community services), $138,700. A breakdown by division of the capital outlay budget proposal shows: New buildings and grounds, $25,000; Old buildings and grounds (additions, improvements, alterations, heating plumbing, furniture etc), $482,000; and Auxiliary agencies (library books, textbooks, buses, garage equipment, occupational education, and maintenance equipment), $118,500.

session school board members approved teachers and principals in career status, probationary status, and also those retiring or resigning. Also on personnel matters, approval was given to extend maternity leave for one teacher, to extend sick leave for another, and to confirm an interim teacher.

prices up a nickel on all basic meals. This will mean that beginning Monday, April 29, lunches for elementary students will cost 45 cents; for junior and senior high students, 50 cents; and meals for teachers and staff, 60 cents. Approval came after Supt. Glenn Cox explained there was no alternative in order to break even when the increase in minimum wage went into effect, the first of May for employees in the Food Services;

—Approved consideration of the Greenville City Schools as possible recipient in the coming school year, at no cost locally, of a guest music or art person from a state program to conduct a cultural program for two elementary grades for a one-week period;

Government Association for further consideration;

—Approved the 1974 audit proposal, accepting the audit offer of the firm of Worsley, Farley and Prescott; and —Heard a report from Cox on three classrooms at South Greenville and one at Sadie Saulter exceeding the legal limit on the number of students authorized per class. Cox noted that the situation would not require hiring of additional teachers, but was required to be reported to the board and to the State Department of Public Instruction for record purposes.

Chairman Dr. Badger Clark welcomed Councilwoman Mrs. Millie McGrath, making her first appearance as the new liaison member of the City Council for the city schools.

Cox revealed the Court of Appeals had heard the case on condemnation on land site for a proposed new middle-junior high school on April 11, and an answer is expected within six weeks.

Israeli Battle To Keep Mt. Hermon

By The Associated Press Israeli planes bombed and strafed Syrian positions on the slopes of Mt. Hermon for the third time this week, the Israelis announced early today.

The Israeli military command reported a one-hour air attack Wednesday but gave no details. It said all the planes returned to their bases.

The Israeli communique reported two Israeli soldiers were killed by Syrian shelling Wednesday and two wounded, bringing total reported Israeli casualties on the Syrian front to 21 dead and 84 wounded since the cease-fire on Oct. 24.

Israel also reported heavy exchanges of artillery and tank fire below Mt. Hermon along the southern flank of the 300-square-mile wedge captured from Syria in October and along the southern sector of the plateau.

A Syrian communique said the Israeli gunners destroyed the village school at Arne, at the foot of Mt. Hermon 20 miles southwest of Damascus. The school was empty because it was the Independence Day holiday.

"We mean to hold on to Mt. Hermon," an officer at an Israeli post on the 9,232-foot mountain told visiting reporters. "This mountain is the eyes and ears of the Middle East." Hermon is located on the border between Syria and Lebanon, just north of the northern Israeli panhandle. Its peak looks down on the Golan Heights and Damascus, the Syrian capital 23 miles to the east-northeast.

Amid the continuing fighting, there were reports of new arms for both the Syrians and the Israelis.

President Hafez Assad visited Moscow this week, and a Beirut newspaper reported that the Soviet government pledged early delivery to Syria of 60 new MIG25 fighter-bombers.

Grifton School Repairs

Members of the Pitt County Board of Education met with Grifton Mayor Dave Bosley and other town officials to reach a solution to the collapsed sewer line problem at the Grifton School.

The Grifton town representatives presented several alternatives to the board of education and finally, the board agreed to contact their attorney, W.W. Speight, to draw up easement and release agreements in connection with the project.

Mayor Dave Bosley said the town of Grifton would repair the present manhole at an estimated cost of $10,000 if the board of education would sign an easement and release agreement. The agreement would relieve Grifton in the event of possible damage to the structures nearby by the manhole.

However, the board explained that after talking with engineers and contractors, they feel there is little possibility of structural damage.

Mayor Bosley explained to the board that repairing the lines would result in driving pilings around the sewer line in order to get to the deeply embedded structure.

Bosley stated the pilings are necessary due to the type soil at the school and that the sewer lines are about 18 feet deep.

Grifton officials felt that driving the pilings might cause some damages to the buildings located near the manhole.

Work on the project was expected to begin today.

In other business, the board reviewed the budget for the next fiscal year and will have a final session on April 24 before presenting a tentative budget to the Pitt County Board of Commissioners.

Large Yellow Diamond Found

KIMBERLEY, South Africa (AP) — An African worker in the crusher section of the Du-toitspan Mine near Kimberley found a 616-carat yellow diamond Wednesday, De Beers Consolidated Mines reported today.

Officials of the company said it was the ninth largest diamond ever found and the biggest ever found in a Kimberley mine.

The officials said the stone was of good shape but was believed to have several flaws. They would not estimate its worth.

Sadat-Soviet Ties Weaken

By AHMED SHAWKI Associated Press Writer CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat said today

Russia "has hesitated for the past six months to respond to some of our arms requests, and accordingly I have ordered the armed forces to look for arms sources from others and this has already been implemented."

He spoke before a joint meeting of the Arab Socialist Union and People's Assembly. The address was carried by Cairo radio.

Sadat described the Soviet failure to supply the requested arms as "a misunderstanding for which I find no reason. We still seek their friendship and want it but let it be known we base our friendship on our interests and principles..."

Sadat added that "the misunderstanding with the Soviet Union may be caused because of our new friendly approaches with the United States.

"Our relations with the United States have improved because the Americans have changed their policy regarding the Middle East problem.

"U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has exerted quite an effort to settle the Middle East problem after the U.S. bias toward Israel."

Referring to improving American-Soviet relations, Sadat said, "If the two super-powers have decided to defend each other I don't see why we should seek the enmity of any country."

"We are not basing our policies for the benefit of one country at the expense of another. Our policy is 100 per cent Egyptian for the Egyptian interests."

Surprise Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon arranged a surprise meeting with Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy today as fighting continued on the slopes of strategic Mt. Hermon and along the Golan Heights in the Middle East.

Fahmy came from New York, where he was attending sessions of the United Nations, for the late-morning Oval Office meeting with Nixon.

Fahmy has been one of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's main contacts in the U.S. effort to arrange a permanent Middle East peace.

Fahmy conferred with Kissinger at the State Department and again during the weekend in New York where Kissinger addressed a U.N. session.

Morgan Claims Elders Don't Get Fair Shake

North Carolina Attorney General Robert Morgan, a candidate for the Democratic nomination to the U. S. Senate told a news conference here early this afternoon that older adults in America are not getting a fair shake.

"By not doing justice to older adults, our society deprives itself," Morgan emphasized. "The attitude that the age of 65 is a cut-off point has led to a wasteful use of one of our country's most valuable resources," the candidate said.

Morgan said "I favor a change in national policy to allow older Americans the right to earn at least $3,000 a year without losing their Social Security payments," but explained, "this is not enough."

It is older Americans living on fixed incomes who suffer the most from inflation, Morgan noted. "Our older citizens now find themselves caught between static or slowly growing incomes and rapidly rising prices for food, clothing and housing—regular cost-of-living increases which the federal government puts at 10 per cent per year."

The Senate hopeful said Americans need to think seriously about providing wider means of safe and available transportation other than the automobile. "We must recognize," Morgan continued, "that it is in the interest of a large segment of our population that they permanently have an independent means by which to travel. Older adults need increased mobility to allow them to live fuller lives."

Morgan told newsmen, "Between now and November, I will seek out other proposals of interest to older Americans. In addition to National Health Insurance, I will be studying proposals... in such areas as nutrition programs for older adults and a national health service corps for medically underserved areas.

"In order for our system to continue, the moral imperative of caring about others must prevail in this land."

Morgan, a former chairman of the Board of Trustees of East Carolina University and staunch supporter of the creation and expansion of the medical school at ECU will speak tonight at the annual meeting of the Mid-East Commission here.

That dinner meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at the Moose Lodge.

Galifianakis Calls For Advance Notice Of Quota Modifications

By TOM BAINES Reflector Staff Writer

A proposal to give tobacco farmers a six-month written notice, to be carried by area news media, of any tobacco quota increase or termination has been offered by senatorial candidate Nick Galifianakis.

Galifianakis said here Wednesday that the proposal stemmed from Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz's action on Dec. 26 of 1973 when the Federal Register carried an "obscure notice" that the U. S. Department of Agriculture was considering "increasing or terminating" tobacco quotas for 1974.

"Even then the major news outlets did not carry the notice until several days later," the former U. S. Representative explained. "Interested people had only until Jan. 10, 1974 to submit their views in writing. Tobacco farmers realized a single administrative decision could cause loss of the quota and price support program."

Galifianakis asserted that, "Butz had made a decision very dangerous to the tobacco farmer's livelihood, especially the small farmer."

The candidate said that in mid-January Butz implemented a ten per cent quota hike and cited the foreign demand for tobacco as warranting the increase. Butz, according to Galifianakis, cited larger cigarette output in foreign countries and unfavorable foreign weather conditions during the growing season as two reasons for the quota hike.

Galifianakis said that the "most dramatic figures which concern the tobacco farmer show that the cost of farm commodities has increased 17 per cent from 1973 to 1974 while the price of tobacco has risen only 3.4 per cent."

He suggested several modifications in the USDA grower designation plan and called for the 80 mile radius from which the farmer must choose the warehouse for his tobacco sale to be increased to a 100 to 120-mile radius. He proposed also that the number of markets within that radius be increased from five to eight or ten markets.

The candidate said that "inflation is hitting the small farmer, in particular."

Galifianakis, in an interview, expanded on statements made Tuesday when he called for President Nixon to be impeached unless he turns over immediately the White House tapes requested by the House Judiciary Committee.

The Durham Democrat said that the point should be made clear that "thousands of North Carolinians and hundreds of thousands of Americans feel like the country is stuck in the mud... and the point of it now is that they are sick and tired of Watergate. They don't want to in the total tobacco production process."

Galifianakis said that although he agrees that foreign markets should be expanded, the "variability of weather conditions is not a sound reason for expansion for the quota hike." He contended that the quota hike is "not actually to meet increased export demand, but to lower the 1973 record prices on the tobacco market." He added that, "These lower prices will not favor the small farmer" and the seven per cent of North Carolina's population involved

For First Time, Pierce Fellowship Wasn't Held On Creek's Bank

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer AYDEN—For the first time in many years, the annual John Pierce Fellowship Club—a gathering of Democratic men and candidates for public office—was held away from its traditional site at Camp Contentment on the banks of Contentnea Creek near Grifton.

Due to high water, the result of heavy weekend rains, the meeting was held at the American Legion building here yesterday.

Some 300 persons attended the annual gathering—the 52nd meeting of the club—and leading the list of candidates and office holders that made their appearance were Lt. Governor Jim Hunt; N. C. Attorney General Robert Morgan and Nick Galifianakis, both candidates for the Democratic nomination for U. S. Senate; Rep. Walter Jones who is seeking re-election to the U. S. House of Representatives; and Superior Court Judge James G. Exum (a Snow Hill native) who is a candidate for the North Carolina Supreme Court.

Former Pitt County Recorder's Court Judge Dink James presided at yesterday's session as president of the club.

Officers elected for the coming year include: Ray Oglesby as president, Sam Bundy as vice-president, Kirby Smith as secretary-treasurer and A. F. Rowe as assistant secretary-treasurer.

Candidates and office holders present were introduced to the gathering, but according to the club rules, no speeches were allowed.

Federal office holders and office-seekers present included Rep. Jones, Morgan and Galifianakis.

Judicial and court related office holders included non-candidates J. W. H. Roberts and Robert Wheeler, incumbent District Court Judge; District Attorney candidate Ed Bloom and Supreme Court hopeful Judge Exum.

Other candidates, for state and local office present included: incumbent Vernon White, and candidates Robert Brown and Harold Hardison for the State Senate; House members Horton Rountree and Sam Bundy; incumbent County Commissioner B. Alton Gardner, J. Vance Perkins and Burney Tucker, and hopefuls Ed Warren, Bill Martin and Ross Persinger; incumbent Sheriff Ralph Tyson—candidate Tommy Burney, currently police chief in Ayden; and Clerk of Superior Court H. L. Lewis.

East Carolina University Chancellor Leo Jenkins spoke to the gathering briefly, expressing his thanks to the General Assembly for the lawmakers approval of plans for expanding the medical school at ECU.

Jenkins too, emphasized it will "always be my inherent right," as an American citizen, "to go to the legislature" to seek solution of problems "regardless of any gag rule."

Jenkins' comments seemed aimed at a move by the University of North Carolina Board of Governors to set up rules regulating the activities of the various chancellors in matters in which they are not in agreement with board policies.

Yawn First, Apologize Later

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been arguing over a question that we would like you to settle for us. I say it is bad manners to yawn in company, but if you can't help yourself, you should do it with your mouth closed.

My husband says he only yawns when he can't hold it back, and he can't yawn with his mouth closed.

Please give us your opinion. Thanks. MRS. B.

DEAR MRS. B.: Yawning with one's mouth closed isn't easy. However it can be done, but a squelched yawn offers very little satisfaction.

The ideal solution would be to go ahead and yawn, but cover your mouth with your hand. And apologize for it afterwards.

DEAR ABBY: We are members of a small junior college baseball team who are going through the same problem thousands of high schools and colleges are going through each year. The coach insists upon our getting our hair cut off at the ears and at the top of our collars. This is his first year as a baseball coach, and he expects us to sacrifice our hair for baseball, although this college offers no scholarships, and the team agrees that they would give 100 per cent at all times. We can't see how the length of our hair can make a difference in how we play.

In order for our college to play baseball we must have at least 15 guys out, and when a coach makes such stiff demands, it causes some guys to quit. This in turn hurts the school's chances for a winning team.

What's your opinion, Abby? TALL CORN STATE

DEAR CORN: I don't want to throw you a curve, but I'm with you 50 per cent. An athlete's hair should be short enough in front so it doesn't get into his eyes, but what goes on in the back should be his decision.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem which I have discussed with my married daughter, and she said I should write to you.

After many years of marriage, my husband has been seeing another woman. She's a young school teacher he met at church. [Her father is a minister.] The worst part of it is, I know he really does love her, but I'm afraid of what people would think if I let him go to her.

I admit that our marital relations have never been enjoyable for me, but I have done my duty and given him three children who are grown and married now.

I work full time, which my husband never liked, but it has provided us with lots of extras we wouldn't have been able to get as soon as we did.

Should I call this young woman and tell her I know the truth and she'd better stop seeing my husband or else? Should I call her father and tell him about it? Or should I keep quiet and hope they get tired of each other before too many people know about it? TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED: Don't call the young woman. And don't call her father. You and your husband should get some counseling and level with each other.

If you don't let him go to her [knowing that he really loves her] because you are afraid of what people would think, that's a poor reason. Add that to your feeling that you've done your "duty" and given him three children, and the picture becomes even more clear. You seem to be a reasonable woman. Counseling is the only answer.

DEAR ABBY: In trying to decide what to give my son and his bride for a wedding gift, I have come to the conclusion that the best gift I could give them would be the treatment at a "stop smoking" clinic.

The treatment costs $350 per person, so I feel that it would be a generous gift, considering my relatively low income. My son has been warned by his doctor that he should stop smoking, and he has indicated that he would like to. However, there wouldn't be much point in giving him the treatment unless his bride takes it, too.

Under the circumstances, would it be proper for me to offer such a gift or would I be considered meddlesome? CONCERNED MOTHER

DEAR CONCERNED: I don't agree that there wouldn't be much point in giving your son the treatment unless his bride agreed to take it, too. However, unless you know for certain that they both want the treatment and would welcome it as a wedding gift from you, it might not be appreciated.

Coffee Drinking Just Sideline

By LEONARD PRATT
TOKYO (AP) — The country that turned drinking a cup of tea into high art has made drinking a cup of coffee anything you want it to be.

Care to feel like you're in Vienna about 1907? How about the first class lounge on a White Star liner bound for Le Havre circa 1928? Or a museum of science, or the drawing room of a Venetian-count?

Then come to Tokyo and have coffee. Or at least half a cup of it at prices that rocket past one U.S. dollar with hardly a pause.

Pretty steep, even in one of the world's most expensive countries, but then nobody goes to a Tokyo coffee shop to drink coffee anyway. That's because Japan is one of the world's most crowded countries — with 1,083 persons per square mile, compared to America's 85 — and so coffee shop customers are really just renting private space in a pleasant atmosphere, space to read, or to talk. To that friend from the office, who's really a better friend than anyone suspects, you hope.

And meetings of such import are not to be conducted in other than the appropriate "funiki," or atmosphere, something that is very important to the Japanese.

So since the funiki's the thing, it comes in all colors, shapes and sizes, something for every occasion from Beethoven to Elton John. Say you're determined to prove to your boy friend that there's a lot more to you than meets the eye. Buy a beret so he'll think you've been to France, and suggest you spend some time at a classical music coffee house.

"Kurashiku mudô myuzhiku," it says on the menu. The Japanese language has perfectly good words for "classical mood music," but somehow it's more cosmopolitan to say it in Japanese English.

There are certain requirements for the kurashiku myuzhiku coffee shop. There must be a fireplace, with fire. It must have smoke-darkened bricks, a chandelier that Czar Nicholas II would have been proud of, and heavy wooden tables with carved heraldic motifs.

Some coffee shops are so gilded and polished that if they ever stopped serving coffee they could go into business as diamond merchants. Still others specialize in the linoleum floor school of decoration, with autographed photos of American jazz musicians on the walls. The styles are endless. Bavarian, Old English, pink and white whipped cream dreams, turrets and crenelated battlements. One is decorated with nothing but antique Japanese time pieces. Others aren't that big on facilities, but are renowned for the beauty of their waitresses.

More than a few multistoried Tokyo buildings are nothing but coffee shops, ranging from Munich-cum-Gothic in the basement to Restoration astronaut on the sixth floor.

Nobody is ever thrown out of a coffee shop. True, that first glass of orange juice will cost you $2, but then you can sit all night with no more interruption than the waiter pouring you more water every 15 minutes.

Within wide margins, you can do anything you like. Talk, read, sleep or gaze existentially into the middle distance.

In a crowded bustling society it's an instant room of one's own, and even at $2 a glass, it's cheap for that.

Church Women United Meeting Held Tuesday

An Easter message was given at the opening for the Church Women United meeting held at the St. James Church Tuesday morning. Thirteen churches were represented.

Mrs. Don Bailey, chairman of the 1974 World Day of Prayer, gave her report. Suggestions were made for next year's observance and it is hoped that the high school youth will be involved in 1975.

The next Church World Service clothing collection will be made during the week of Aug. 26 when the truck will be at St. James Church. Although used clothing and blankets continue to be needed, an emphasis will be placed on helping people buy sewing machines and fabrics in order that they can make their clothing.

Blankets, baby layettes, childrens heavy garments and mens clothes are in demand. Lightweight summer wear is wanted for Asia, Africa and Latin America. Funds, fabrics and blankets are used primarily in disaster relief.

The women were urged to continue to collect high quality clothing, both new and used.

Chairman of May Fellowship Day, Mrs. Frank Davis extended the invitation for the covered-dish luncheon on Friday, May 3, at noon at Our Redeemer Lutheran Church. All Health Kits for the migrant work and the Least Coin offerings will be presented. Mrs. Jack Wilkerson will speak on "Explore New Paths."

Miss Lela Brown Stencil was introduced as the new chairman of the Least Coin for Church Women United. According to a report on the CWU project of Bibles for the prisons at Raleigh, only 400 of the 1,000 needed have been collected. The Revised Standard Version requested may be purchased for $1.35 through the American Bible Society. Contributions are to be sent to Mrs. T. Frederick Henry, 114 E. Miller St., Salisbury, 28144.

Henry Riddick Is Speaker

Henry Riddick, of the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service, presented a program on vegetable gardening at the meeting of the Cherry Oakes Home and Garden Club held Tuesday at the home of Janice Bateman.

He pointed out that one does not have to dig up the back yard to grow vegetables. Strawberries and cocktail tomatoes can be grown in hanging baskets and most other garden plants can be grown in boxes or baskets.

During the business session, the club's by-laws were approved and the meeting time was changed to the first Tuesday of each month.

Committee chairwomen appointed included: Projects, Brenda Edwards; Ways and Means, Lona Ratcliff; Social, Barbara Stoneman and Glo Clark; Publicity, Geneva Yadav; and Community Current Events, Dorothy Gleason.

Frances Mallison gave the tips for the month. The May meeting will be held at the home of Karen Collier. Co-hostess for the meeting was Barbara Stoneman.

Party Honors Local Author

Ovid Pierce was honored at a cocktail party at the Greenville Golf and Country Club, celebrating the publication date of his fourth novel, "The Wedding Guest," Friday evening.

Hostesses were the author's two sisters, Mrs. Edgar Bounds and Mrs. Wiley Gregory of Weldon, and Mrs. LeRoy Barrett and Mrs. Austin Perry, of Greenville.

The club was decorated with masses of summer flowers. Dr. Charles Bath, of the East Carolina School of Music, and Mrs. Bath, played the piano and violin through the evening.

About 170 guests from Chapel Hill, Durham, Weldon, Wilson, Raleigh and Greenville, and some out-of-state friends were present.

Rev. Parvin Gives Program

The Rev. Robert Parvin presented the program at the Saturday meeting of the Major Benjamin May Chapter of DAR held at the chapter house, Farmville.

He urged members to support the youth of the community by working with them.

Mrs. H. A. I. Sugg, chapter regent, reported that the chapter received honorable mention on the State Honor Roll and was commended for its monetary gift to the American Indians.

Miss Joan Tyson received a gift honoring her for writing the best essay in a school contest sponsored by the DAR Chapter.

Mrs. A. M. McWhorter was named as a new club member. Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. W. C. Mercer, Mrs. Leroy Bass and Mrs. Charles Joyner.

By Erma Bombeck

As a child of the '40s I have always had an inherent faith in "the system."

I never tore the tags off of my pillows until I was told to do so. I always felt confident knowing I had bathed that morning with soap containing hexachlorophene. And never once did I question the health of my living bra.

But times have changed. A friend, watching me spoon yogurt into my mouth the other day, said "Hey, wouldn't it be a gas if someone found out in future years that yogurt made you fat!"

I dropped the spoon. "What a rotten thing to say." "Not rotten, just realistic. Everyday old myths are being exposed. Wouldn't you feel like a fool if Joey Heatherton was considered homely and carrots caused acne?"

"That's utter nonsense," I protested, but later I began to think. Suppose... just suppose advertising and so-called experts had brainwashed us.

Suppose flouride caused pregnancy and sex caused cavities. Suppose you could catch a cold just by proper rest, lots of liquids, and two aspirin tablets.

Suppose surgery could be self-taught, man could live by bread alone, and profanity was the main cause of air pollution.

For a moment, I allowed myself to think about the family in the year 2000. They might all be sitting around a TV set when the mother came in and said, "If I told you once, I told you a million times, no more watching Brady Bunch reruns. You know how all that goodness upsets you before you go to bed. Why don't you watch some violence once in awhile?"

"The Martin kids next door get to watch the Brady Bunch."

"I don't care about the Martins, I care about you."

"I wish I lived at the Martin's," grumbled a voice. "They get to keep their bedrooms neat, have a lot of vegetables for dinner, and their mother always has a cold meal on the table."

"Vegetables are bad for your teeth and my meals aren't so hot!"

"You know something, Mom. We think you're just jealous of Mrs. Martin."

"Me jealous of Mrs. Martin! Hah! I could be fat and flat chested if I wanted to. It's just that I don't want to stop and eat all those snacks in between meals all the time."

I jolted myself back to reality. Ridiculous! The whole thing was absurd. Everyone knows the good guys wear white and the bad guys wear black, small cars use less gas, and dogs are man's best friend, but suppose... just suppose that dust was put under my bed to measure time...

Stans Claims 'Privacy' Policy

By JOHN MORGANTHALER
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Former Commerce secretary Maurice H. Stans says he had a mandate to keep secret financier Robert L. Vesco's $200,000 cash contribution to President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign. He swears he was not covering up any misdeeds of his own, or anyone else.

Stans testified about a March 14, 1972, meeting of campaign officials, including four White House aides. He said it was decided not to follow the lead of Democratic presidential aspirant George McGovern, who voluntarily released names of campaign contributors.

"I took that as a mandate to me to do everything possible to insure the privacy of these contributors," Stans told a jury Wednesday at his federal conspiracy trial. He is a codefendant with John N. Mitchell, the former attorney general.

"That was behind the whole thing," the 66-year-old Stans said at another point. "Vesco made a contribution in private and privacy was his constitutional right under the law. I was doing my best to protect Robert Vesco and every other contributor up to April 7."

A new law effective April 7, 1972, mandated the reporting of all campaign contributions from that point on.

Stans was still under direct examination when the trial recessed for the night. He will return to the stand when it resumes today.

Mitchell and Stans are accused of conspiring to obstruct justice for allegedly attempting to impede a Securities and Exchange Commission fraud investigation into Vesco's affairs, in exchange for the $200,000 secret contribution, and later lying about it to a grand jury.

One of the most potent government witnesses against Stans was G. Bradford Cook, general counsel and later chairman of the SEC. He admitted he lied under oath about Stans on five earlier occasions, but insisted his trial testimony was the truth.

In line with a key clause in the conspiracy count, Cook testified Stans got him to change a paragraph in a proposed SEC complaint about Vesco, to delete specific reference to the transfer of the $200,000 in cash that made up the contribution.

"I did not ask Brad Cook to delete anything on that occasion or any other occasion," said Stans. He said Cook told him he was having the paragraph reworked at his own instigation because it was too "sensational."

The government contends the money was pledged to Stans at a meeting March 9, 1972, with Vesco and aides. There was testimony that Stans said Mitchell might be able to arrange a meeting between the Vesco group and top echelon SEC officials, that he made a telephone call, then announced to the Vesco people that "your appointment with Mr. Mitchell is ready."

"I had a telephone call from my secretary to tell me my next appointment was ready. And I believe I probably said out loud that my next appointment was ready," Stans testified.

Stans said it was he and not Vesco who brought up the subject of the SEC investigation. The witness said Vesco told him he believed the matter could be settled in a face to face meeting with William J. Casey, Bradford's predecessor as SEC chairman.

"I said, 'Mr. Vesco, that should be no problem,'" Stans testified. "Anybody who is having trouble with a government agency should be able to go to the head of that agency."

Nevertheless, because of the SEC probe, Stans said he consulted with Mitchell, the overall head of the Nixon campaign forces.

Stans quoted Mitchell as saying he had information that the investigation of Vesco by the SEC was winding down, and that Vesco's lawyers were convinced he had done nothing wrong. Stans added:

"He said, and I agreed, there was no reason under the circumstances that existed at the time that we should not accept the contribution."

New Boss For Energy Office

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—John C. Sawhill, designated Wednesday to head the Federal Energy Office, says the major thrust of his agency over the next 12 to 18 months will be toward energy conservation.

Sawhill promised when his appointment was announced to send the President a plan by Nov. 1, to make the nation self-sufficient in energy.

But in an interview before the announcement Sawhill said it would take several years at least to achieve any substantial increases in U.S. domestic oil and gas production.

In the meantime, he said, the nation's imports of petroleum will continue to increase — making it even more vulnerable to sudden interruptions of supply, such as the recent Arab oil embargo.

During the next few years, the only way to reduce the imports and the threat is to reduce U.S. petroleum demand, he said.

"My approach would be to pursue very vigorous conservation."

Sawhill's attitude should be welcome to the administration's top environmental advisers,

Environmental Protection Administrator Russell E. Train and Chairman Russell W. Peterson of the Council on Environmental Quality.

Train charged Monday that energy conservation was mostly just talk so far and said he saw no great push in that direction by the Federal Energy Office, which has authority over energy conservation programs.

Peterson is urging a national goal of reducing the growth rate of energy consumption from its recent 4 or 5 per cent a year to 1.8 per cent.

Sawhill talks in terms of a 3 per cent energy growth rate.

But rather than setting an arbitrary target Sawhill says "we've got to put in front of the American people some of the difficult choices we have to make."

"Let's say we can build another Alaska pipeline but there are environmental and resource costs; or we can drive in smaller cars and maybe save enough gasoline to make the pipeline unnecessary. We've got to make that kind of choice," Sawhill said.

The FEO plans to hold public hearings this summer on the issues involved in the drive for energy self-sufficiency.

FCIC Has Needed Data

Flue-cured tobacco growers who will combine harvesting their 1974 tobacco crop should check with the Federal Crop Insurance Office serving their county soon for information on the special agreement just made available on acreage meeting recommended combine harvesting requirements.

Betty Lou Jones is the local representative, and her office is located in room 103 of the federal building, 215 Evans St.

W.G. Lane, Raleigh Contract Service Center director, has been authorized to enter into special agreements with growers who have converted to combine operations for harvesting.

The FCIC developed the agreement at the request of growers who have converted to the combine method of harvesting. These growers were concerned that they would be faced with harvesting problems not recognized by the FCIC All-Risk Tobacco contract with loss adjustment based on the normal harvesting methods involving hand labor.

Blacks Asked To Cooperate

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto has appealed to blacks to cooperate if they are stopped on city streets for identification and possible search by police hunting for the "Zebra" killers.

"Extraordinary situations like this call for extraordinary measures," Alioto told reporters Wednesday. "We will be stopping a number of people who fit a certain profile — a lot of them innocent."

"Mass murderers are simply roaming the streets of San Francisco, killing people at random without any real motive or without any real sense. This can't be investigated as a regular murder."

Nelson T. Shields IV, 23, became the 12th white person killed within five months by a black gunman who fired without warning and without provocation Tuesday night.

Six other whites have been wounded in shootings police have code-named the "Zebra" case. Washington Garner, the black president of the Police Commission, urged the city's blacks, "If you are stopped, don't resent it. Show your identification and, if necessary, permit a search."

Alioto said, "We are mindful of constitutional guarantees. Everything will be done within constitutional limits."

Police Chief Don Scott said in three of the shootings two persons were seen and a composite drawing of one gunman was being circulated. He said police would be acting with information that would narrow the number of persons that might be stopped by police.

"We are going to stop slender black people," Scott said. The composite drawing is of a black man 20 to 30 years old, slender build, and 5-foot-9 to six feet in height.

The mayor said the total reward now posted for information leading to the conviction of the killers is $30,000.

Still Dangers In Middle East

There should be no question that the Middle East is still the trouble spot of the world. The hostilities there still pose the greatest threat to world peace because of the rich oil deposits in that area.

If we needed any reminder the Russians gave it to us when they insisted this week on "full participation" in all future peace negotiations.

There were reports that Russia had agreed to furnish Syria with sophisticated new weapons.

The Soviet Union has been maneuvering for a long time in the Middle East with only spotty success. The Soviet leaders recognize, however, the power of oil in the world's economy, so they can not be expected to stand by while agreements are made with the Arab nations.

As always, the danger here is that the United States and the Soviet Union will be drawn into some kind of confrontation from which one or the other cannot back down. Then could come the kind of showdown which would be disastrous for the world. Like all problems, those of the Middle East will not be dramatically solved. The best we can hope for is the gradual solving of many little problems so that eventually peace will be reasonably permanent in that section of the world.

Refunds Are Incentive For Early Tax-Filing

It is not certain how many people will file late income tax returns, but it is a sure thing that a lot of people wait until the last day to file.

The N.C. Revenue Department reported that as of Wednesday there were still 800,000 returns to come and 270 bags of mail were delivered to the revenue office on Tuesday.

We assume that those who have refunds to come file early; but those who owe file late.

New Power For Speaker's Role

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Not many years ago, being speaker of the North Carolina House of Representatives was little more than a titular honor.

A new trend in members of the General Assembly, and the presence of a Republican governor for the first time this century, is changing that. The speaker now plays a vital role in the Legislature, both through his appointment of committee chairmen, and through his daily presiding over what reports and measures do or do not make their way to the floor at favorable times.

Additionally, speakers are more aggressively using their powers of personal persuasion and political clout to bring about legislative results.

Issue Settled

As a result, the position has taken on more importance—and attracted the interest of aspiring leaders. For the 1975 session, the question is all but settled—lacking only the formal vote of the Democratic caucus—for James C. Green, D-Bladen.

Close political observers anticipate that Green will provide a generally conservative leadership, and will name as committee chairmen the senior members of the House representing the "Old guard" Democratic Party.

Several present committee chairmen say openly they do not expect to be named to their present posts by the new speaker, and some wonder if the shift will mean a more conservative—even reactionary—leadership next year.

Green has not made any appointments, and of course will not until further down the road. Appointments to chairmanships, and to favored committees, are often held as trump cards to help line up legislative programs.

Those familiar with the legislative process and close to Green, however, are speculating over what the leadership structure of the House will look like in 1975.

Prominently mentioned among Green's closest associates and advisors is Liston B. Ramsey, D-Madison, presently chairman of the Finance Committee and highly regarded to repeat that role in 1975.

Next Speaker?

Ramsey is also mentioned as a candidate for speaker of the House in 1977, but he does not openly discuss that prospect pending the November elections.

Another name often linked with Green is that of Claude DeBuhl, D-Buncombe, who this session was chairman of a local government committee, and vice chairman of Military and Veterans Affairs, and of a sub-committee of the Appropriations Committee.

A Piedmont auto dealer, Art Thomas, D-Cabarrus, is another lawmaker often mentioned as a strong prospect for a major committee chairmanship under Green's leadership.

Two prominent eastern legislators round out the list of prospective top leadership in 1975: Larry P. Eagles of Tarboro in the northeastern county of Edgecombe, and Daniel T. Lilley from Kinston in Lenoir County.

Eagles has not held a chairmanship this year, but has been active as vice chairman on both highway safety and roads; while Lilley has served as chairman of banks and banking, and held memberships on the finance, insurance, wildlife, and alcoholic beverage control committees, among others.

Retiring Speaker James E. Ramsey of Roxboro has relinquished a lot of his power to Green in the closing weeks of the General Assembly—for two obvious reasons: one was to provide Green the leadership opportunities and experience of shepherding legislation through the machinery; the other was the natural failing of a lame duck leadership as time draws close to adjournment.

"I must concede that once a presiding officer gets things functioning, chairmen named, legislation moving, his leadership declines. The members naturally start looking to the leadership of the next session for guidance," Ramsey commented.

Love is skin-deep. Give Blood.

Infuriated By 'Sleeper Play'

By JOHN KILGO
RALEIGH—It would not be anything close to normal if the North Carolina Legislature met without the Mecklenburg delegation stealing attention away in the closing moments of the session.

It happened again this year, and the star of the performance was Sen. Mike Mullins, a Republican lawyer from Charlotte, who attempted some slight of hand to win mixed drinks for his constituents.

What Sen. Mullins did is inexcusable—especially if you get caught, and doubly especially if it concerns liquor. Mullins tried a sleeper play. The play has been used successfully in the past in the Legislature, but usually on non-controversial items, and never on mixed drinks.

Mullins, of course, took a routine local bill, and tacked a provision on the end of it that would have allowed mixed drinks in Charlotte. The bill was sailing through the Legislature when the liquor provision was discovered.

Then it hit the fan. Legislators do not like to be embarrassed by one of their own members. Can you imagine how the Legislature would have felt if it had unknowingly passed a liquor bill for Charlotte?

The Legislators were steaming. They let Mullins know how they felt in no uncertain terms.

The Mecklenburg delegation, which had worked long and hard to gain the respect of the rest of the Assembly, didn't know what to make of the situation. Hardest hit was Sen. Eddie Knox, chairman of the delegation, who had won high respect and considerable influence in his two terms in Raleigh.

"I wish this had not happened," Knox said of Mullins' sleeper. "It probably undoes a lot of good that we had accomplished up here."

A female member of the Mecklenburg group was beside herself.

Jo Graham Foster asked friends: "Didn't he (Mullins) know that even if he had gotten that through, they would have called us back up here to undo it at an expense of about $80,000?"

Sen. Mullins is running for reelection to the Senate. He has higher political ambitions. He toyed with the idea of running for the U. S. Senate this year but backed down.

It's hard for people in other parts of the state to understand how Charlotteans feel about liquor-by-the-drink. The business leaders in the city believe their city will never reach anything near its potential until it can serve mixed drinks.

The people in Charlotte have twice voted overwhelmingly in favor of mixed drinks, and when politicians announce for state office, the first thing they are asked is: "How do you stand on liquor-by-the-drink?"

The Chamber of Commerce of Charlotte passed a resolution several months ago asking the delegation to try and win a local option mixed drink bill for Charlotte during the session just ended.

Sen. Knox received the Chamber's proposal, looked at the results of the statewide vote which smashed liquor-by-the-drink and replied: "The timing's not right to discuss mixed drinks during this session."

But Sen. Mullins decided he'd try anyhow. He came forth with his infamous sleeper play that infuriated most of the men and women he serves with in Raleigh.

Strength For Today

PERSONALITY
Personality is one of the most powerful forces in human affairs. It plays a large role in bringing success to our business, professional, home, and church life.

It is also a significant element in the Christian religion. One of the things which distinguished Christianity from other religions have of course had founders with notable personalities, but these have often become formalized by time and myth. But in Christianity the founder was a personality never abstracted into a mere symbol. Take Christ out of Christianity and you have little religion left—little more than a collection of helpful teachings, the real significance of which has been lost because they are no longer sustained by the personality of Christ.

Christinity means a personal loyalty to Jesus Christ himself. If we lack that, our religion has very little meaning.

Politics And Pussycats

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK
DES MOINES, Iowa—The wandering reporter who wanders into Des Moines is likely to be impressed first of all by the gilded dome atop the state capitol. The dome is an old-fashioned eye-popper. If the reporter idles away a part of the afternoon by glancing through the Evening Tribune, he may also be impressed by the personal ads in the classified section. These are new-fangled eye-poppers. Some funny things are happening in Iowa these days.

The massive capitol, dome and all, is the sort of solid symbol usually associated with the Midwest. The people of Iowa got started on this project in 1870, fought it through to completion in 1884, and made the building a model of classic respectability. It speaks of prairie virtues and honest industry. This is the Iowa of popular legend.

But what about those ads! One day last week the Tribune carried a column and a half of persons, starting with the Red Eye Adult Book Store, offering hard come films at $7 and up. Twenty-count 'em, twenty—massage parlors were promoting outcall service to home, hotel or motel, complete with "pretty girls," "lovely maidens," and "pink panther specials." The ad hints at bacchanalian revels and libidinous assignations 'out where the tall corn grows. What kind of Iowa is this?

The stolid capitol and the Pussycat Parlor ("let our kitties relax you") provide a working metaphor for political changes that would have astonished the Union veterans of a century ago. When the cornerstone was laid for the capitol, Iowa had a 100 percent Republican delegation in Washington. That admirable condition continued into the 20th century. With only a few defections—and these for only single terms here and there—Iowa kept sending solidly Republican delegations to the House and Senate. Such conspicuous Democrats as Senator Guy Gillette were merely exceptions to the rule.

Twenty years ago, to get to more recent history, it was still a beautiful Republican picture: Bourke B. Hickenlooper and Thomas E. Martin were in the Senate, and Republicans held all eight seats in the House. This was like having $50 steers and $40 hogs. The political landscape was as even and serene as the black and level fields.

Well, gentle readers, behold the Pussycat Parlor. The state is in ferment. Iowa's six seats in the House now are divided three and three, but there is a very real possibility, or so a reporter is told, that after November the GOP will be down to Lonesome Bill Scherle in the Fifth. The Senate seat being vacated by Democrat Harold Hughes is likely to go to Rep. John C. Culver, the two-fisted giant from Cedar Rapids. Culver, an activist liberal Democrat, is said to have an edge over either of the two Republicans, George F. Milligan and David Stanley, who are competing for the GOP nomination.

The Democrats are hopeful of grabbing the Third District seat being vacated by veteran H. R. Gross and they believe they can dump

Simon In New Office

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—The country's high inflation rate will replace the energy crisis as the number one challenge for William E. Simon, President Nixon's choice as his fourth secretary of the Treasury.

Nixon named the 46-year-old millionaire and former Wall Street investment banker to succeed economist George P. Shultz, who steps down in May after nearly two years at the Treasury Department helm.

Simon has served since December as head of the Federal Energy Office. The White House said he will be succeeded as energy administrator by his deputy, John C. Sawhill, 37.

Simon's appointment as Treasury secretary is expected to touch off a struggle among Nixon's economic advisers to gain a portion of the considerable influence over economic policy-making held by Shultz.

Nixon said he would take a more active hand himself in economic planning and will head the important Council on Economic Policy, a post previously held by Shultz.

Other positions held by Shultz that will not go to Simon include assistant to the President for domestic and international economic policy, which will remain unfilled for the time being, and chairman of the Cost of Living Council, a position of declining influence that will be filled on an interim basis by council director John T. Dunlop.

Sources say that Simon will face a difficult challenge in the international policy-making arena from Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who Monday showed his interest in this field in an important statement on U.S. foreign economic policy delivered to the United Nations in New York.

But Simon is said by aides to feel the major problem facing him as Treasury secretary will be the country's worsening inflation rate, which saw consumer prices rise 8.8 per cent last year, and at a 12 per cent rate during the first two months of this year.

Simon is said to generally support the approach to inflation followed by Shultz, including steps to increase agricultural production.

Other Editors Say Unions In Politics

(Wilson Times)
The International Association of Machinists, in a case initiated by a group of dissident members of the union, was forced by a federal court in Los Angeles to release thousands of documents. They reveal in unusual detail how the IAM goes about electing its friends to federal office.

The story appeared in the Wall Street Journal and it shows that money is just one tool machinists use to help favored office seekers. According to the court records, indirect aid is a big item.

A glimpse into the inner workings of one of the AFL-CIO's largest and most politically active unions shows that there is a lot more to a union's political clout than the direct financial contributions reported to the government watchdogs—labor's political experts say the machinists probably adhere to the campaign spending laws as closely as any union.

Direct gifts are often over-shadowed by various services provided free of charge to favored candidates under the guise of "political education" for union members. The indirect aid includes some of labor's most potent political weapons; assignment of paid staff members to candidates' campaigns, use of union computers, mobilization of get-out-the-vote drives.

An important question is whether these dues-financed activities violate federal laws that for decades have barred unions and corporations from using their treasury funds to contribute anything of value to candidates for federal office. Watergate revelations, some union politicians believe, have demonstrated that labor can never collect enough rank and file donations to rival campaign contributions by business bigwigs.

William Holayter, director of the union's political arm, says the political activities of the machinists' union are aimed at the union's members and are therefore proper.

The real goal of the right-to-work foundation is to eliminate the forced payment of dues. A federal judge dismissed the suit Dec. 19, largely because the union offered to start rebating the dues of any member who disagrees with the union's stand on political or legislative issues.

Guessing On Economy's Future

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—Where the economy goes from here is becoming the subject of plain guesswork among some otherwise fearless forecasters of short-term trends whose brainpower is relied upon heavily in financial circles.

Many seem to agree that it might be an eventful summer in terms of prices and interest rates and wages and shortages, but conviction seems absent on whether things are going up or coming down.

Several analysts have sagely observed that while interest rates have been rising the trend has been down. That seems to suggest that recent increases have been mere jiggles in a downward slanting line, but you can't be certain.

One nationally circulated newsletter drops a reference to 15 per cent bond yields, while others maintain that the current 9 per cent return for new, top-rated corporates has to be the tops.

But those who claim to know really don't, unless they have managed to read the mind of Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, who is the most influential man in determining how high or low the rates go.

What about prices? A widely known economist with White House acquaintances is telling his corporate customers to expect the worst. He says inflation is chronic, that it isn't going to go away and everyone better realize it.

But others, some admittedly of the school that perennially believes "things can't get any worse," feel that the peak of inflation has been reached. Food prices have climbed 60 per cent in a decade.

You can take your pick of opinions about what is likely to happen when wage-price controls expire April 30, with forecasts seeming to be equally divided between a moderation and an increase in the inflation rate.

Unable to find a consensus regarding prices, or on their prospects for wage parity, consumers are taking matters into their own hands and are planting their own vegetable gardens.

Special Elections A Factor In 1976 Campaigning

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — And now Bob Traxler takes his place beside John P. Murtha, Richard VanderVeen, Thomas Luken and Robert Lagomarsino.

Their collective clout in Washington doesn't add up to much. They are, after all, the most junior members of the House of Representatives.

But the way they got there will be a significant factor in shaping campaign strategy in both political parties for the congressional election season just ahead.

For they are the men who won the special House elections of 1974, all in what had been safely Republican districts. All but Californian Lagomarsino are Democrats.

"No Republican should assume he has a safe seat any more," said Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, the Senate GOP whip.

ken of Michigan, where VanderVeen earlier captured another traditionally GOP House seat.

In each of the five special elections, the issues raised had included national and area economic problems, Watergate and the President himself.

Although Nixon spent a day campaigning for Traxler's Republican opponent, the White House maintained that the President had not become the big issue in Tuesday's election.

No one can prove or disprove that Nixon's situation was behind the Republican defeats there and elsewhere. But each of the districts involved went Republican by a landslide margin in 1972, before the scandals unfolded.

Together, the five elections point to a protest vote aimed at the Republican White House. Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., who is running for re-election this year, said he was concerned about a backlash against all Republicans because of Watergate.

Vice President Gerald R. Ford said the trend in the special elections pointed to an overwhelming Democratic majority in the House next year. "One party control is not good for America," Ford said.

That, and the comments of other Republicans about the danger of damage to the two-party system itself, sound a good deal like the GOP comeback theme that followed landslide congressional losses in the 1964 presidential defeat of Sen. Barry Goldwater.

The special elections, the polls, and other indicators of the national mood, are likely to lead many Republican candidates to seek to put some room between themselves and the administration, particularly the President. Nixon was quoted weeks ago as saying privately that he understood some Republicans would find it necessary to do so. Democratic candidates are just as likely to do what Traxler did, and try to depict their GOP rivals as Nixon men.

Ford and other GOP leaders said the Democratic special election victories should have no bearing on House action on Nixon's impeachment.

Of course, there are four more Democratic votes now. But the political situation could have a more significant, indirect effect on Republican House members. The defeats, the polls, and in many cases, their own surveys of constituents, indicate that the President's political power has ebbed to the point at which it doesn't have to be a factor in their individual decisions on impeachment.

While politicians weigh the impact of their elections, Reps. Traxler, VanderVeen, Lagomarsino, Murtha of Pennsylvania and Luken of Ohio will have to start campaigning all over again.

The terms they won last only for the balance of this year. To stay in the House, they'll have to run and win again in November.

FCC Counts On Local Officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission has served notice that local officials must set up some system to handle complaints by cable television subscribers rather than have them write the FCC.

"Much time and effort is wasted" when the subscriber has to be told "his complaint is within the purview of local not federal officials," the commission said.

Escapee Is On 'Wanted' List

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI has placed James Elsworth Jones, a convicted kidnaper wanted for escaping from a Virginia jail, on its list of 10 most wanted fugitives.

Jones, 40, is wanted on a federal warrant for escaping last October from a county jail in Augusta County, Va., where he was awaiting trial on a local armed robbery charge.

Bridge Listed As A Landmark

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The Eads Bridge connecting St. Louis and East St. Louis, Ill., is the world's first steel-truss bridge and is registered as a national historic landmark.

The bridge, completed July 2, 1874, is named for its designer and builder, Capt. James Buchanan Eads. It has three spans of more than 500 feet, more than 200 feet longer than any built previously.

"It appears some Democrats are riding the President's coat-tail to Washington," said Republican Gov. William G. Mill-

Bride Welcomed By Pres. Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's opinion of his secretary of state's new bride is that "she's a little liberal, but otherwise she's all right."

Nancy Kissinger got a presidential welcome Wednesday night during a White House dinner for Latin American foreign ministers.

Mrs. Kissinger was an assistant to former New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller before her marriage to Henry A. Kissinger.

Like Shultz, Simon is cool to economic controls.

Simon likely will give additional details on his thinking on ways of combatting inflation when he appears before the Senate Finance Committee for confirmation hearings, expected early next week.

Republican Wiley Mayne in the Sixth. In their own state legislature, the Democrats made stunning gains in 1972, despite George McGovern's drag on the ticket, and with a further gain of only half a dozen seats they could take the lower chamber in November.

This objective, unbiased and nonpartisan estimate, compiled from a Democratic point of view, comes from 29-year-old Michael T. Blouin, a liberal Democrat from Dubuque, who confidently expects to succeed John Culver in the Second. Republicans, naturally, take a quite different view. They expect to field attractive candidates right down the line, and with a little bit of luck they believe the Third and the Sixth Districts can be held.

The Watergate scandals seem to play a small role in Iowa politics. The labor vote is far more important in both of the key House contests, and there is no inclination to visit the sins of Richard Nixon upon either of the Republican aspirants for the Senate. What is happening, apparently, is that the state simply is finding the old Republican virtues less alluring than the new Democratic temptations. It would be unbecoming to suggest that GOP strategists metaphorically call on Sheri, or Vicki, or the Tahitian Tigress, but it seems evident that here in Iowa, marble and granite no longer reign supreme.

It's A Time Of Travel For Lawmakers And Friends

By DAVID C. MARTIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — While Congress is in recess, nearly four dozen senators and representatives are traveling overseas at taxpayer expense — "feeding at the trough" as one State Department official put it. Many are accompanied by their wives.

The legislators are members of delegations to international conferences in Romania, Malaysia, Korea and Taiwan.

Their itineraries also include stops in Paris, Athens, Istanbul, Singapore and Hong Kong. They travel in Air Force planes, and at each stop are eligible for $75 a day spending money.

On two of the trips, the congressional delegations will meet with legislators from other countries to "talk and pass resolutions on international topics of the day," said the State Department official who asked not to be named. A third group will look on as observers while outgoing Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz participates in the annual meeting of the Asian Development Bank in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.

The State Department handles arrangements for most overseas trips but refers all queries concerning itineraries to Capitol Hill.

Asked why the State Department would not release unclassified information relating to travel at public expense, one department official explained that "their first allegiance is to the congressmen, and you don't want to be running around advertising that your principals are feeding at the trough."

Members of the O'Neill delegation are stopping off for two days in Hong Kong, with the option of a side trip to Saigon, on the way to South Korea and Taiwan. Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., and his wife went along because "Mo thought it'd be a fun trip," an aide said.

The group of 19 senators and congressmen, plus wives and staff members, attending the annual meeting of the Interparliamentary Union in Bucharest, Romania, are going by way of Greece, Turkey and Bulgaria, a memo to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee says, and will fly to Paris for the weekend before returning home.

Members of the House and Senate Banking committees left Monday aboard the plane carrying Secretary Shultz and will spend time in the Philippines, Indonesia and Singapore before arriving in Kuala Lumpur next week for the two-day meeting of the Asian Development Bank.

The cost of the foreign travel will remain largely hidden from public view. Flights aboard Air Force planes disappear into the mammoth Pentagon budget while the State Department absorbs much of the cost incurred by various U.S. embassies charged with entertaining the visiting congressmen.

The $75 a day in expense money also is furnished by the State Department in the form of U.S. owned foreign currencies. Members are required to make public the amount of these so-called "counterpart funds" spent in each country, but records of past accountings give little indication of what the money actually was spent on.

There also are incidental expenses such as a Navy doctor reportedly assigned to travel with the O'Neill delegation as "physician in attendance" and the cost of inoculations administered without charge to members prior to their departure.

Regardless of what budget the money comes from, all expenses are met with funds originally authorized and appropriated by Congress. "It's a no-win situation," the State Department official said. "It's all money appropriated by the selfsame congressmen who are spending it."

Prison Break Plot Failed

NEW YORK (AP) — Police today were seeking two men and two women who tried to cut through a steel partition to help three alleged Black Liberation Army members escape from prison. Their plot failed, however, when their acetylene torch ran out of fuel.

Police said the four went into a visiting area of the Manhattan House of Detention Wednesday night and attempted to free Albert Washington, 31, and Francisco Torres, 24, both now being tried in the murders of two New York City policemen, and Henry Brown, 25. Brown was acquitted in a separate cop-killing case but is being held for trial on charges of robbing a Brooklyn bank.

The four, who were said to have been armed with three handguns, used an acetylene torch to cut a quarter-inch steel partition separating them from the three prisoners in the visiting area.

While they were trying to execute their plan, they handcuffed two prison guards and locked them in booths normally used by visitors to talk by telephone with prisoners, Corrections Commissioner Benjamin Malcolm said.

Last December, four alleged sympathizers of the Black Liberation Army were arrested after they were discovered in a utility tunnel under a street outside the jail, also known as the Tombs.

Bar Ass'n Is Checking On Nixon And Mitchell

By SUSAN EVERLY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The City Bar Association is probing allegations of professional misconduct against President Nixon and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

The investigation could lead to their disbarment in New York state, according to John G. Bonomi, the association's chief counsel.

The probe is part of a nationwide investigation by bar associations into all lawyers allegedly linked to the Watergate case and related matters, Bonomi said.

Information for the probes has come from Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski and the Senate Watergate committee, Bonomi said Wednesday in a telephone interview.

Also involved in the city probe are Gordon Strachan, a former aide to H.R. Haldeman, former White House chief of staff; David R. Young, former co-director of the White House "plumbers;" and an unidentified lawyer, Bonomi said. All are licensed to practice in New York.

John D. Ehrlichman, former presidential adviser; Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's former personal attorney; and political saboteur Donald H. Segretti are the subjects of similar investigations in California where they are licensed to practice, he said.

Any disbarment proceedings against the President will be held up and will rest on the question of whether a President in office may be prosecuted in the courts or subpoenaed to appear before an investigating committee, excluding a congressional impeachment panel, Bonomi said.

"There is a substantial question where disciplinary proceedings can be brought against a President in office — its a unique situation," he said.

Bonomi explained that the bar association's grievance committee will study the allegations, and if it decides to go ahead with disbarment proceedings it will present its case to the Appellate Division of State Supreme Court. If found at fault, the lawyer in question can be censured, suspended or disbarred, he said.

"We are keeping a running file on all the available information concerning Watergate lawyers throughout the country," said Bonomi. He is chairman of the national discipline committee.

City Workers Out On Strike

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — Some 200 Gastonia street and sanitation employees went on strike this morning.

Interim city manager Gary Hicks met with representatives of the workers to hear their grievances.

In recent months the workers have taken wage complaints to the city council, but there was no immediate word today as to the nature of their complaints.

A Talking Trash Can Is Invented

By HOWARD ULMAN
Associated Press Writer
BROOKVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — He talks, he sings, he makes slightly risqué suggestions and he swallows garbage.

He's Arthur, the talking trash can.

His inventor thinks a kind word from Arthur encourages people to fill him with garbage rather than dump it where it doesn't belong.

Arthur is the brainchild of Charles Hamad, 24, of Danbury, Conn., a graduate student in psychology at C.W. Post College, and Dr. Jeff Corey, an associate psychology professor and Hamad's thesis adviser.

Arthur's voice is a tape cassette, activated when trash is stuffed into the 45-gallon can.

Hamad said he has five different tapes for Arthur. Several say, "Thank you," one plays music and another makes random noises.

And then there is what Hamad calls the "X-rated tape."

Hamad says it's "kind of corny, but says things like, 'Meet me up in your room in 10 minutes with a whip and a prune danish.'"

But Hamad says a simple "thank you" seems to work best.

"Basically it's an example of behavior modification, it's merely a mild form of reward," Corey said.

Hamad says some students have had trouble coping with Arthur, the gabby garbage collector.

"One person had keys in his hand and he thought it was a regular garbage can," Hamad said. "He was sort of taken aback by the response the can gave him. He dropped his keys in it and we had to take the whole thing apart to get his keys back."

Hamad says he placed Arthur in a college dining hall for about four hours one day.

For the first hour, the cassette was turned off, and only 20 persons stuffed garbage in Arthur.

For the next three hours, the cassette was turned on and "a few hundred people" used Arthur, Hamad said.

Freed After 8 Months Under Death Sentence

RALEIGH (AP)—"It's a miracle!"

That's what Martha Walker said Wednesday as she tearfully welcomed her son upon his release from North Carolina's grim Central Prison where he had spent eight months under a death sentence.

The North Carolina Supreme Court had good news for Samuel A. Poole, 31-year-old truck driver, last week when it reversed his conviction of first degree burglary. The court said there was insufficient evidence.

"I never lost hope," sobbed Mrs. Walker. "I thank God for everything. My prayers have been answered."

Poole's wife and three small children awaited him at their home in Moore County, 90 miles from Raleigh.

Poole was flanked by a prison guard and his attorney as he came through the prison gates. He carried two paper bags in one hand and a shoe box in the other. His attorney, Wayne Robbins, quickly whisked Poole away in a car, leaving his mother and a brother, Thomas Eugene, standing at the prison.

The brother was concerned about his brother's return to Moore County.

"The enemies he had are still there... Some wanted him to get the gas..." He was referring to the gas chamber North Carolina uses to execute its capital offenders.

The North Carolina legislature recently amended the death penalty law to retain capital punishment for murder and rape but abolished it for first degree burglary and arson.

Poole maintained he was innocent of breaking into the home of 50-year-old Tinnie Maness in Moore County the night of last May 19. Miss Maness escaped uninjured through a window when she discovered an armed intruder outside her bedroom.

Arrested For Marijuana Sale

Steve Bucko Jr., 18 of Port Angles, Washington, was arrested by Greenville police officers last night on charges of possession and sale of marijuana.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Bucko was taken into custody at his Jones Dormitory room in connection with an incident that occurred April 9 at which time he allegedly sold a Police Department narcotics officer two one-ounce bags of marijuana.

Bond for Bucko was set at $5,000.

Galifianakis

She told officers she could not identify the man, but investigators attempted to link Poole to the break-in. However, the Supreme Court said the evidence was so flimsy the judge should not have submitted the case to the jury.

The brother was concerned about his brother's return to Moore County.

Rampants Romp Past Northern Nash, 8-2

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Rose High School used the hitting of Griff Garner, Robert Brinkley and Gil Whitford, along with some heads-up baserunning to romp to an 8-2 victory over Northern Nash yesterday.
The victory tied the Rampants for second place in the Division I standings with Rocky Mount. Both now have 4-2 league records.
Chris Manning hurled the victory and had a two-hit shutout going until the final inning when two more hits and a walk brought in two runs, one of them unearned.
Garner, Brinkley and Whitford each banged out two hits, with Brinkley and Garner both getting doubles. Garner, who was two-for-three, raised his team-leading batting average back to an even .600, with an 18-for-30 season mark.
The Rampants hopped on the Knight pitching in the first inning for three runs and were never in trouble again after that. They added another run in the second, got three more in the fourth and a final one in the fifth. Oddly enough, in the only two frames they did not score in, the third and sixth innings, they failed to put a man on base.

Going into the seventh inning, Manning had face only one more than the regulation. Although he had allowed a first inning single, that man had been erased in a double play. That hit had been a bad-hop one off the shoulder of Kelly Heath at Shortstop. The only other hit was one in the second inning that Heath fielded deep in the hole at short, but couldn't make the long throw in time.
Manning cruised along without another baserunner until James Wells led off the seventh with a single to center, the best hit ball for the Knights to that point. With one down, Steve Lindsey walked, and both runners advanced on a passed ball. Phil Lindsey then came on to run for Steve, and both he and Wells scored when William Carter got a two-out single to center.
But it only meant the loss of the shutout and not the loss of the game, since the Rampants had rushed over eight runs in the previous six frames.
With one down in the first, they started the quest. Whitford took a walk and Garner slapped the ball into left. Brinkley doubled down the right field line, scoring Whitford. Garner came home on a wild pitch after Macon Moye had walked. Brinkley, who had moved to third on the pitch came on in when the throw back to the plate by the catcher was off target and the ball rolled back to the pitcher's mound with no one around.

Rose boosted the lead to 4-0 with another run in the second. Jerry Griffin walked and Dickie Johnson ran for him. Manning sacrificed him up, and Whitford singled to center, scoring him. Garner followed with a double moving Whitford to third, but the rally died there.
The Rampants came up with three more in the fourth, moving the lead to 7-0. Griffin again walked and again Johnson came on as his runner. Manning laid down another sacrifice bunt towards third, and when the third sacker made the play, Johnson, seeing the base unguarded, raced all the way from first to third safely on the play. Kelly Heath then hit a sacrifice fly to center, scoring him.
But Rose wasn't through. Whitford singled and moved to second when a pickoff attempt was wide of the base. Garner was hit by a pitch and Brinkley singled to center, scoring Whitford. Moye got another hit,

Mitterwald Cracks Three Homers To Spark Chicago To 18-9 Win

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer
They call Chicago the Windy City—and the hurricane the Pittsburgh Pirates ran into was stirred up by the Cubs' George Mitterwald.
He hit three home runs Wednesday, one of them a grand-slammer, and drove in eight runs as Chicago's Cubs blew out the Bucs 18-9.
"I heard about this wind in Wrigley Field, but I didn't know it could be so beautiful," said Mitterwald, who came to Chicago in an off-season deal with the Minnesota Twins.
In Wednesday's other National League games, Montreal whipped the New York Mets 7-4, Philadelphia beat St. Louis 12-5, Los Angeles crushed Cincinnati 14-1 Houston downed San Francisco 3-2 and San Diego defeated Atlanta 6-1.
Mitterwald hit his bases-loaded bomb in the first inning, smacked a homer with two men on in the third and socked one with the bases empty in the sixth.
In the eighth, Mitterwald doubled and, when he got back to the dugout, the rest of the Cubs zinged him for not hitting a fourth homer.

"I'd hit a fourth one, I would have fainted," he grinned.
He also got a run batted in with a bases-loaded walk in the fourth inning. "I wanted to try for another homer, but when the count went to 3-0, I was given the take sign," Mitterwald said. "So I got a walk and still produced a run."
Rick Monday, Jerry Morales and Bill Madlock also homered for the Cubs, whose first 10 runs came off Pittsburgh starter Jerry Reuss. Willie Stargell, Richie Hebner and Richie Zisk homered for the Pirates.
Expos 7, Mets 4
"I was kind of excited about getting my first major league homer here," said Barry Foote—and so were the rest of the Expos. It came at a most convenient time, leading off the bottom of the seventh inning, breaking a tie and propelling Montreal past the staggering Mets, who have now lost six straight games.

Bob Bailey also homered and Tim Foli drove in three runs for the Expos. Steve Rogers went the route, giving up six hits. Two of them accounted for all the Mets' runs, a pair of homers by Dave Schneck.
Phils 12, Cards 5
Mike Anderson had four hits and Bill Robinson three in Philadelphia's throttling of St. Louis, the Phillies' sixth straight victory, their best winning streak in four years.
"This is great," said Anderson, who enjoyed his first 4-for-4 game in the majors. "Everybody's sharing the load. With a man in scoring position, if you don't do the job the next guy will."
"The competition makes us all pull a little harder," Robinson agreed.
Dodgers 14, Reds 1
"Cincinnati is the team to beat," said Jimmy Wynn—and he had a hand in the beating administered by the Dodgers. He swatted his sixth homer of the young season, a three-run shot.
But he was just one of many heroes. Steve Garvey slugged two homers, Dave Lopes hit a two-run double and Ron Cey had a two-run single.

Astros 3, Giants 2
Ollie Brown's walk, a wild pitch by San Francisco's John D'Acquisto and Dave Kingman's wild throw on Bob Watson's sacrifice bunt gave the Astros the winning run in the seventh inning.
"I wanted to make him field it," Watson said of Kingman. "That was the idea. I think it's the first time I ever bunted against the club."
Padres 6, Braves 1
John Grubb and Fred Kendall each drilled two-run singles in the third inning and Dave Winfield homered in the fifth to lead San Diego past Atlanta.
Jim McAndrew withstood 10 hits by the Braves, four of them by Ralph Garr. "He hit everything I threw up there," said the Padres' pitcher. "Fastball, curveball, forkball... I threw everything at him but the telephone book."
In Wednesday's American League games, Milwaukee beat Cleveland 5-4 in 16 innings, Boston edged the New York Yankees 4-3, Baltimore blitzed Detroit 6-1, Texas trimmed Kansas City 4-2, California defeated Minnesota 5-3 and Chicago beat Oakland 5-3.

Utah Takes 3-0 Lead In Series

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer
Winners don't want to arouse losers, and losers don't want to sound like losers.
That's why the talk coming out of the Utah and Indiana locker rooms Wednesday night sounded the same.
"We still have a big problem just getting out of this series and getting into the league championships," said Utah center Zelmo Beaty—one of the winners—after the Stars' 99-90 victory had given them a dominant 3-0 lead over the Pacers in their best-of-seven American Basketball Association semifinal playoff series. "Indiana's not out until the buzzer sounds in the final game."
"It's hard to be optimistic when your down 3-0," said Indiana Coach Bobby Leonard—one of the losers—"but it's not over yet. You're not out until you lose four."
In the other ABA semifinal action in the National Basketball Association playoffs. Tonight, the Milwaukee Bucks, up 1-0, meet the Bulls in Chicago. The Boston Celtics, holding a 2-0 lead host the New York Knicks Friday night.

The Stars' defense has been the difference in the series. They've limited the Pacers to totals of 96, 102 and 90.
"We got a little mixed up on offense sometimes," said Beaty, "but we played excellent defense. I never thought when this series started we'd ever get the Pacers down 3-0."
Willie Wise snapped a 69-69 fourth period deadlock with six straight points. Meanwhile, Utah's defense held Indiana to two foul shots in the first six minutes of the fourth period as the Stars took control of the game.
Rone Boone topped the Stars with 24 points. George McGinnis had 27 points for the Pacers.

Farmer Hurls No-Hit Victory

JAMESVILLE—Doyle Farmer tossed a no-hitter at the Jamesville Bulls last night for Robersonville's Golden Eagles. The Eagles came away with a 5-0 victory over Jamesville.
Farmer recorded 15 strikeouts on the way to the victory, as he walked just two. Jamesville never offered a threat to the Eagles along the way.
The Eagles grabbed the lead in the first inning of the game and pushed over three runs then. Jeff Warren reached on an error and then stole second. Matt Wilson brought him home with a triple for the first run. Doug Warren followed with a single, scoring Wilson. Warren moved up on a passed ball, scoring the third run when Mike Matthews doubled.

Perry Goes 15 Frames But Gets No Decision

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

After 15 innings of Gaylord Perry, the Milwaukee Brewers were happy to see someone else. They saw Ken Sanders—but they didn't see him very long.

With Cleveland's ace out of the game at last, Bob Coluccio immediately seized advantage of the situation and hit a home run that carried the Brewers to a 16-inning, 5-4 victory Wednesday night.

"Perry had a good fastball and slider and an awful lot of guts," said Coluccio. "That was the best I've seen him. When a guy 35-years-old throws that kind of stuff for 15 innings, that's super."

Although pitching almost two complete games, Perry didn't want out. "I wanted to stay in," said the Indians' star. "I could have gone more."

Elsewhere in the American League, the Boston Red Sox nipped the New York Yankees 4-3; the Baltimore Orioles beat the Detroit Tigers 6-1; the Texas Rangers defeated the Kansas City royals 4-2; the Chicago White Sox turned back the Oakland A's 5-3 and the California Angels trimmed the Minnesota Twins 5-3.

National League scores: Montreal 7, New York 4; Chicago 18; Pittsburgh 9; San Diego 6, Atlanta 1; Philadelphia 12, St. Louis 5; Los Angeles 14, Cincinnati 1 and Houston 3, San Francisco 2.

Coluccio not only delivered the game-winning hit on a 3-1 pitch leading off the 16th inning, he also broke up Perry's no-hit bid earlier.

Perry had held the Brewers hitless until Coluccio, after fouling off five pitches, singled sharply to right with two out in the sixth.

Despite the sour luck, Perry was pretty content with his night's work.

"I was mixing a fastball and a hard slider," he said. "The hard slider was rising and the fastball was sinking."

Red Sox 4, Yankees 3

Bernie Carbo and Bob Montgomery drove in eighth-inning runs, lifting Boston over New York. Pat Dobson of the Yankees fell apart after pitching no-hit baseball for six innings.

Dobson lost his no-hit bid and shutout when Carl Yastrzemski hit a home run in the seventh inning, when the Red Sox tied the game 2-2.

"I was throwing fastballs inside to the left-handed hitters all day," said Dobson. "Yastrzemski hit a high fastball that I got too far over the plate. I wouldn't have thrown that pitch with a man on base."

Orioles 6, Tigers 1

Baltimore jumped on Woodie Fryman for five runs in the first inning and Jim Palmer fired a five-hitter to lead the Orioles to victory over Detroit.

Fryman, 0-2, walked Bobby Grich and balked him to second to begin the outburst. Designated hitter Tommy Davis followed with a run-scoring single, then rookie Jim Fuller smashed a two-run homer, his first of the season.

Bill Slayback replaced Fryman and was greeted by a single by Mark Belanger, who drove in the fifth Baltimore run.

Rangers 4, Royals 2

Jeff Burroughs' tie-breaking double in a three-run eighth inning carried Texas over Kansas City.

Pinch-hitter Lenny Randle led off the eighth with a single and reached third when pitcher

HOLLYWOOD — For the second time in two days, the D. H. Conley Vikings had to rely on a come-from-behind rally to pull out a victory. This time, it was the North Pitt Panthers who fell to the Vikings, 12-6.

The game had originally been rained out after the Vikings had run up a 13-1 lead over the Panthers. But yesterday, the winless Panthers put a scare into the Vikings as they came up with a four-run third inning to take a 6-1 lead. But the Panthers could not hold onto it as Conley tied the game and went ahead in the fourth. They added four more in the fifth to insure the win.

Jack Jones started on the mound for the Vikings but was rocked for four earned runs in just over two innings. He walked three, struck out three and gave up a pair of hits as well as hitting one Panther. Vic Corey relieved Jones in the third and went on to get the win. He fanned four, walked two and gave up an additional three hits to the Panthers.

Rick Harrell went all the way for the losers. He struck out six, walked six and scattered seven hits. Randy Adams ran his batting string to five straight hits before he reached on an error in the Conley fifth.

North Pitt put one on in the first but did not score. Then in the second, they broke through with a pair of tallies. Vincent Barnhill walked and was wild pitched to second. Harrell moved him to third with a single and an error as Jones relayed the throw in to second let Barnhill score. Harrell scored on the outfield miscue.

Conley came back with a lone run in the bottom of the frame as Bobby Bryan walked, stole second, went to third on Adams' hit and stole home on the double steal.

North Pitt knocked Jones out in the third as they batted around. Aubrey Wynne was hit by a pitch and he took second on a wild pitch. Craig McLawhorn moved him to third with a hit and walks to Ken Tetterton and Steve Fuchs forced in Wynne.

Corey came in and walked Barnhill forcing in McLawhorn. Harrell slapped an apparent sacrifice fly to center but the ball was dropped as all runners advanced safely with Tetterton scoring. Two outs later, James Carr singled to left to drive in Fuchs.

Harrell got the Vikings in order in the bottom of the third and the Panthers proceeded to pick up where they left off. With one out Tetterton singled and Fuchs got a hit. Two fielder's choices ended the inning.

The North Pitt lead did not hold up long as the Vikings exploded for seven runs in the fourth. Donnie Cox led off with a walk and Bryan reached on an error moving Cox to third. Bryan stole second and both scored on a triple by Adams to right.

Jones kept things going with a single to drive in Adams. Jones stole second and Ricky Phillips was hit by a pitch. Clennel Streeter reached on an error scoring Jones while Phillips

Horne Has Stroke Lead

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—Dick Horne of Mt. Pleasant had a one-stroke lead today going into the second round of the 29th annual Azalea Invitational Golf Tournament.

He shot a 3-under-par 68 on the 6,415-yard, par 71 Country Club of Charleston course Wednesday.

Pushing him in a three-way tie at 69 were Ernie Adcock of Charleston, Bobby Gause of Columbia, and George Burns III, current canadian amateur champion.

Four men coming in at 70 were Don McIntosh and T. E. Pederson of Charleston, Mike Tokarczyk of North Charleston and Gus Sylvan III of Columbia.

The only other players equaling or bettering par were Robert Watson of Charlotte, N.C., and Tommy Watson of Charleston, tied at 71.

went to third. Streeter tried to steal second but the ball was thrown into centerfield letting Phillips score. Corey doubled to drive in Streeter and a hit by Cox who started it all, scored Corey. Conley had enough but they added four more runs in the fifth.

McLawhorn singled and went to third on an error in the sixth but North Pitt failed to score again.

The Vikings were led at the plate by Adams and Jones each having two hits. McLawhorn had a pair for the Panthers.

Conley is now 6-3 while the Panthers fall further back to 0-9. North Pitt will be seeking a measure of revenge Friday when the two teams meet on the Panthers' home field.

From Icarus and da Vinci to NASA, the moon and...the sky's never been a limit, really. As far as we can tell, since the beginnings of our existence as men we earthbound plodders have filled our dreams and exercised our wits with visions of launching ourselves out of our element and into the air to fly, winged and godlike. Now this generation, taking for granted enormously sophisticated and high-powered ways of doing just that, has come up with a sporty and workable version of the most obstinately basic and challenging approach of all—hang-gliding. You're on your own in this game. You just attach yourself to a kind of simple, delta-shaped kite, jump off a hill and go, birdman, go.

ABA Out To Make Its League The Best

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Basketball Association, armed with nearly 200 draftees—including high school sensation Moses Malone and 50 from the rival National Basketball Association—today sets out in its quest to become what Commissioner Mike Storen calls "the best basketball league possible."

The ABA has amassed its formidable group of draftees over the last 15 months, with most of its selections being made Wednesday. They included the NBA in an unprecedented and open declaration of warfare, 79 collegians and the brilliant Malone, who averaged 35.8 points and 25 rebounds during the 1973-74 season in leading Petersburg, Va., H.S. to its second straight state championship.

Twenty other college players were selected in a secret draft last month, and 43 others are holdovers from three separate drafts conducted last year, beginning in January, 1973.

Each group contains some highly intriguing prospects, and now the ABA will begin unloosening its purse strings in efforts to sign them.

Perhaps the most intriguing is Malone. The dynamic 6-foot-11, 210-pound teenager has been swamped with various collegiate offers. But when the Utah Stars surprisingly picked him Wednesday, it marked the first concrete move by the pros to lure him. Previously, the Virginia Squires had only talked to him.

Bob Kilbourne, Petersburg High's athletic director, said he feels Malone should go to college first: "I can't predict what he will do, but I believe up to now his thoughts have been going to college."

Arnie Ferrin, the Stars' general manager, said that Larry Cregar, the club's director of player personnel and assistant coach, would go to Virginia today and discuss the situation with Malone and his family.

"If we find out that his parents don't want him to turn pro yet," said Ferrin, "we won't pressure them."

The Stars, however, would lose the rights to Malone—under a new ABA rule—if they don't sign him by September—and he would become eligible for the draft again next year.

But that's not the case with such All-Americans as Bill Walton of UCLA, David Thompson of North Carolina State, Marvin

Barnes of Providence and John Shumate of Notre Dame—all of whom were drafted as undergraduates last year, but have not yet signed.

The 6-11 Walton, a three-time All-American and two-time Player of the Year, still belongs to the San Diego Conquistadors. Thompson, this season's Player of the Year, is the property of the Memphis Tams. Barnes belongs to the Denver Rockets and Shumate to Virginia.

Walton, Barnes and Shumate all are seniors. The ABA now will only have clear access to them until next month when the NBA holds its draft of college players. The Portland Trail Blazers, who won a coin flip with Philadelphia for the NBA's No. 1 pick, already have announced they will select the much heralded and highly coveted Walton. Whether he is signed by San Diego or Portland, the price is expected to be extremely high.

Dr. Leonard Bloom, San Diego's owner, said Wednesday he has discussed Walton's possibilities with him and his two attorneys, "but active negotiations" will not take place until next month when the UCLA star returns from his current trip to Mexico.

Thompson, meanwhile, is only a junior and the only way he could be picked by an NBA team in next month's draft is if he applies for hardship and is accepted. He also is expected to command a lucrative contract.

Another undergraduate selected by the ABA was sophomore Larry Fogle of Canisius, the 1973-74 national collegiate scoring champion with a 33.4 per game average—and, he too, wants a big contract.

"I'd have to be offered $1 million before I'd even consider going to the pros," said Fogle, who was drafted by the Denver Rockets.

The ABA not only will be concentrating on signing the 142 collegians and one high school star it has under its draft wing, but also will be trying to entice the 50 NBA players it picked.

Among them were 1973-74 scoring champion Bob McAdoo of Buffalo, 1972-73 Most Valuable Player Dave Cowens of Boston and Atlanta's Pete Maravich, the scoring runner-up to McAdoo.

Feel Draft Is Publicity Stunt

By ANDY LIPPMAN
AP Sports Writer

Many representatives of the National Basketball Association are labelling Tuesday's draft of NBA players a publicity stunt which will yield few new results.

"The draft is a move by the ABA that I think has been planted by what the World Football League has done; the great amount of publicity they have got," said Atlanta General Manager Pat Williams.

"They are having trouble getting through their season. I would say primarily it's a publicity move and one they are using just to keep some semblance of hope live for their league."

The ABA drafted 50 NBA players prior to their regular collegiate draft, each team taking five players.

The first player drafted was 6-foot-8 center Bob Kauffman of the Buffalo Braves.

"We're not too worried," said a spokesman for the Braves, who also had Bob McAdoo and Gar Heard chosen from their ranks. "The Braves have never lost a player to the ABA yet, either in the college drafts or from jumping leagues."

"You're talking about players who are still tied to this club for several years yet and they're already getting good bucks. It appears the ABA didn't do its homework, at least as far as our players are concerned."

Red Auerbach, the Boston Celtics' president and general manager, lit up a big cigar, which has been his trademark before commenting on the ABA's tapping of four of his players including star center Dave Cowens.

"It doesn't bother me a bit," said Auerbach. "They're all under contract."

Larry Fleisher, the NBA's general counsel, expressed surprise at some of the ABA picks.

"I can't understand them drafting (Dave) DeBusschere and Lenny Wilkens, who will be 112 years old by the time he's able to play for the ABA. . . Either they were not serious about drafting NBA players or they were stupid."

ABA Commissioner Mike Storen was also skeptical of Memphis' selection of DeBusschere, who has already signed a long-term contract to be general manager of the ABA's New York Nets and Wilkens, who has two more years and an option year remaining on his contract with the Cleveland Cavaliers.

"Maybe that's why Memphis finished in last place," said Storen.

Joe Axelson, president of the NBA's Kansas City-Omaha Kings was upset, but for a different reason.

"I'm insulted," he said after learning that the Kings, who had no players available, had none drafted in the ABA draft.

He's Looking For A Victory

NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — Every once in a while, auto racing promoters bring in a hot shot local driver to do battle with the big name pros. The guy sells tickets, but usually doesn't set the woods on fire during the race.

Harry Gant says he may sell a few tickets to Sunday's Gwyn Staley 400 Grand National stock car race, but he's also looking for a possible first place finish against the Grand National elite.

"It is a chance I have been looking for," says the 34-year-old Gant, a building contractor who lives at Taylorsville, 20 miles from the five-eighths of a mile North Wilkesboro Speedway. "I have a good car, I know the short tracks, and I think I can get the job done."

Gant has the credentials. He's the North Carolina sportsman driving champ—the cars are similar to the more expensive late model Grand National machines—and he brings a string of more than 70 victories on short tracks.

He'll drive a Ford owned by Junie Donlavey and he will be the fifth driver to occupy the cockpit of that car this season. The car is a good one, powered this year by a mid-sized engine that gives it a high handicap under the Grand National circuit's new carburetor rules.

"I don't know of any driver

I'd rather have in the car at North Wilkesboro," said Donlavey, whose string of "rental" drivers over the years reads like a who's who in racing. "The guy drives at least 70 short track races every year and, with him, I think we have a good chance of winning."

Gant and some 35 other drivers began warmups, looking toward a round of qualifying Friday that will determine the first 10 starters in a 30-car field.

The first short track event since the rules change affecting carburetors, the race drew most of the Grand National circuit's big winners, including leading money winner Cale Yarborough, the Allison brothers, Bobby and Donnie; 10-time North Wilkesboro winner Richard Petty, and George Follmer, the two-time U.S. road racing champ.

Like the Gant and Follmer Fords, the Yarborough and Allison Chevrolets will carry small engines. But because of reduced horsepower under the new rules, the track's 107.558 miles per hour qualifying record appeared to be safe this time around.

Petty, whose victory record at North Wilkesboro has been uncanny, will use a big engine in his Dodge and professes to be among the probable also-rans.

Fewer And Fewer Think 4 Children 'Ideal' Family

By GEORGE GALLUP
(Copyright 1974, Field Enterprises, Inc. All rights reserved. Republication in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with the written consent of the copyright holder.)

PRINCETON, N.J.—The proportion of Americans who favor large families has declined dramatically since 1968 and is now at the lowest point in the 38 years that regular surveys on the subject have been conducted.

In the latest survey only 19 per cent of the public says the ideal number of children is four or more. Only six years ago in 1968, the percentage was twice as high, 41 per cent.

The median response regarding the ideal number of children in a family is two, slightly below the "replacement level" of 2.1. The replacement level is figured at 2.1 rather than 2.0 in order to compensate for the women who do not have children or who die in child-bearing years before they have had two children.

The appeal of the small family (one or two children) has dramatically increased while the desirability of larger families (four or more children) has declined. In 1945 only 23 per cent of the public said the ideal number of children was one or two. The figure today is 48 per cent.

On the other hand, the "only child" family holds no more appeal to people today than in 1945. Only 1 per cent of people interviewed in 1945 said the ideal number of children is one; today's figure is 2 per cent.

Various factors have been cited as contributing to the swindling birth rate, including the cost of living (particularly the cost of education), widespread use of contraceptives, concern over crowded conditions and overpopulation, more liberal abortion laws, and changing values and life-styles as reflected by women's liberation.

Although many factors are involved in projecting this growth, the public's views on the desirability of large families have been found to anticipate, with considerable accuracy, long-term trends in the birth rate.

Views of Women.

Catholics Most Changed Since 1967

The decline since the 1967 survey in the percentage favoring large families has come among all population groups, but it has been most pronounced among women, Catholics, younger adults, and persons with college or high school backgrounds.

In 1973, for the first time in four decades, Catholic views corresponded to those of Protestants on the ideal number of children, and their views again, this year, are closely comparable. In the latest survey, 18 per cent of Protestants and 20 per cent of Catholics say the ideal number of children is four or more.

In 1968, 37 per cent of Protestants said four or more is the ideal number, but a considerably higher percentage of Catholics, 50 per cent, held his opinion.

The following table shows what Americans currently believe to be the ideal number of children:

Ideal Number of Children?

One	2
Two	46
Three	22
Four	14
Five	2
Six or more	3
No opinion	10

Worldwide Trend?

Interest in smaller families may be a worldwide trend judging by the available survey evidence.

In a recent survey conducted by the British Gallup Poll, 14 per cent said the ideal number of children is four or more—a sharp drop from the 30 per cent recorded in 1971.

Similarly, only one-third as many Canadians today as in 1960 believe the ideal number of children is four or more. The figure was 68 per cent in 1960, declined to 33 per cent in 1970, and to 23 per cent in the current survey.

The current views of the Australians closely parallel those of Americans and Canadians, with 21 per cent of Australians saying the ideal number of children is four.

In Switzerland, the percentage saying four or more children is ideal has declined from 11 per cent in 1968 to 7 per cent in the latest survey. And, in Uruguay the percentage saying four or more has declined from 20 per cent in 1968 to 12 per cent in 1971, to 7 per cent in the current year, as determined by a survey conducted by the Gallup Poll's Uruguay affiliate.

Although no data are available for the current year, surveys in recent years in Sweden and Greece have also shown a downtrend in the percentage of people favoring large families.

Following are the results from eight nations based on surveys conducted by Gallup-affiliated organizations. Interviewing was carried out during the first three months of the current year:

Per Cent Saying 4 Or More Is Ideal Number Of Children
Australia	21%
Canada	23
Great Britain	14
Spain	18
Switzerland	7
Uruguay	7
U.S.A.	19

This question was asked, as in all previous surveys: "What do you think is the ideal number of children for a family to have?"

The results for the U.S. reported today are based on in-person interviews with a total of 1,562 adults, 18 and older, interviewed in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation, during the periods Feb. 8-11 and 15-18. The results for other nations are based on in-person interviews with representative national samples in each country.

Indians Are Divided Over Supporting The A.I.M.

DENVER (UPI) — Support for, or condemnation of, the American Indian Movement is probably the greatest single issue dividing the nation's Indian population today.

The militant organization, founded in Minneapolis in 1968, has as its goal the awakening of public opinion to the plight of the Indian in a white man's society and the return of Indian life to a spiritual communion with the Great Mystery.

The controversy surrounding AIM centers primarily on the methods it uses to attain its goals. Some Indians view the violent tactics of the organization as the last hope for a downtrodden and oppressed people. Others believe violence can only harm the Indian cause.

AIM leaders, who for the most part are urban born and educated, say that while they oppose violence, it often is the only way to focus attention on the poverty and prejudice that confront Indians.

"The methods that the American Indian Movement employs have come out of frustration," says Russell Means, a national AIM leader.

"If to destroy a small amount of your possessions is the only way to make you listen, then maybe it is time we made you listen," says Vernon Bellecourt, AIM national director.

Against Violence Charles Trimble, executive director of the more moderate Congress of American Indians, questions the need for violence. But he concedes that AIM's actions—such as the battle of Wounded Knee, S.D., last year, and occupation of the Indian Affairs building in Washington, D.C. — have brought Indian problems before the public.

"We do not tolerate and do not condone any activities of violence or confrontation," Trimble said. "But you have to say that it (AIM) showed the utter frustration of a lot of people. It showed a need for accelerated work in the affairs of the BIA (Bureau of Indian Affairs) through legislation."

Many Indians, however—mostly the younger generation—are not content to wait for legislation. They say they have had enough years of congressional enactments that have robbed them of their self-sufficiency, relegated them to back-country reservations and lowered them to an abhorrent poverty level.

"We want to force the United States government to live up to its treaty commitments to the American Indian," Means said. "If they refuse, then we have no rights as Indian people. I will not submit to slavery."

Mistrust BIA Another bone of contention among Indians is the effectiveness of the administration of the BIA, the governmental agency established to carry out the "trust" responsibility of the U.S. government toward Indians.

Charles Emory, a college-educated Cheyenne River Sioux and a federal employe, believes the BIA is doing the best it can under adverse conditions created by law and various court decisions.

"The BIA is in the unenviable position of having to try to decide what is best for Indians when Indians themselves sometimes don't know what they want," Emory said. "I think the agency is making the best effort it can under those circumstances."

AIM, which receives some money from the federal government and various church groups, directs most of its wrath at the BIA for failing to institute programs that will directly benefit Indians. BIA leaders lose patience with such blanket disaffection.

Lobby, Says BIA "You don't hear veterans whipping the Veterans Administration, do you?" said Helen Peterson, field coordinator for the BIA in Denver. "When they don't like something VA does, they get their lobbies busy in Washington to change the law under which VA operates."

"Well, BIA—like VA—carries out the law to the extent that Congress appropriates the funds for them to do so," Mrs. Peterson, an Oglala Sioux, said. "People who whip BIA in general, irresponsible terms had better understand they are playing into the hands of vested interests who have always wanted Indian lands, and still do."

Ignoring such arguments, the AIM leaders say the organization will continue to use whatever means are necessary to reorganize society until Indians "are able to maintain their identity and still compete economically, politically and socially in the white man's world."

The Hardest Thing To Be Today Is An Indian

By CHARLES J. CANNON DENVER (UPI) — The American Indian is an alien in his own land, and when economic pressure drives him to the city he becomes even more a stranger, lost and bewildered in a society he doesn't understand and that doesn't understand him.

"Culturally," explains Mrs. Helen Peterson, a field coordinator for the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) in Denver, "Indians are averse to dog-eat-dog competition for the essentials of life, such as jobs or education."

"For centuries," adds Mrs. Peterson, herself an Oglala Sioux, "Indians have been exploited, robbed and manipulated. Their economic and social systems have been attacked and they have been buried under every conceivable kind of public and private program known to the non-Indian world."

"As a result, they are totally unprepared for the rushed, industrial life they find in the cities."

Many Indians who do go to the cities "and decide to stay and join the white man's race," says Mrs. Peterson, "are forced, because of a lack of education or training to take manual labor jobs where the hours are long and the pay is oftentimes low. Some of those who stay wind up on the welfare rolls. Others end up on Skid Row."

Tribal Differences A major problem of government and society in seeking to help the Indian "ethnic minority" is that the term itself as applied to American Indians is a misnomer. Nearly every tribe, and there are more than 300 of them, has its own language, laws and religion. They live in different styles of homes, wear different types of clothing and practice different customs, all centuries old.

Hence, while a Chicano from Albuquerque can understand and feel at home with a Mexican-American from New York, an Osage Indian from Oklahoma City, for instance, is a world apart from an Assiniboine Sioux from Billings, Mont.

Several things, however, do unite all Indians regardless of tribe. One of these things is their desire to observe their unique, legal relationship with the federal government. Another is their yearning to escape the shabby "stepchild" treatment that has been their lot for the past hundred-odd years.

Much of this treatment has been reasoned and deliberate, a purposeful attempt by the government in behalf of livestock, mining, timbering and water interests as the nation was expanding in the 1800s—and since—to take the Indian land and resources.

Removal Acts A series of Removal Acts in the 1800s gradually took from the Indian vast amounts of tribal-owned land. Much later, Congress got around to granting treaties reserving certain lands to Indian in recognition of their sovereign rights as distinct peoples to own and govern their homelands.

The fact that many of these "reservations" were far removed from original tribal lands and usually consisted of barren land no one else wanted is one of the distressing heritages of the Indian today.

In 1887, Congress compounded its earlier wrongs with passage of the Dawes Act. This act required that Indian lands, heretofore owned communally by each tribe, were to be parceled out to Indians on an individual basis. This act also stipulated that any surplus tribal lands left over after members had received their allotments would be ceded to the federal government and opened for homestead entry.

The net effects of the Dawes Act were that tribes were deprived of any solid economic base they might have had with their lands intact and that many tribes coming under forced allotment lost up to two-thirds of their land.

Forced to Cities So it is that today many Indians—young and old—are compelled for job, educational or health reasons to leave the reservations and go to the cities. And what they find there is complexity beyond belief. The white man's world is one of specialization and stiff competition, and where Indians are grouped by the ruling society with other darker-skinned people whose problems are different.

It is the "difference" that makes the problem so difficult. Congress each year appropriates millions of dollars for programs aimed at helping Indians. But the tribes or groups affected often are not heeded in regard to how these funds should be administered. The result is sometimes a pouring of dollars into programs that are neither necessary nor desired—or constructively helpful.

Tony Hollow Horn Bear, one Indian who tried the white man's world, is a case in point. When Tony left the Rosebud Sioux Reservation in South Dakota in 1911 at the age of 20, to join the U.S. Army, he was already an alcoholic.

"Life on the reservation was one drunk after another," Tony said in an interview. "Life there revolved around drinking. There was nothing else to do."

Tony learned a trade while in the Army, that of aircraft technician, and tried to find a similar job at the end of his six-year hitch.

Same Old Story "It was the same old story," he said. "I couldn't hold a job because of my drinking and I drank because I couldn't keep a job."

Tony was fired from several positions. Finally he decided it was time to seek professional help.

Lenient To A Good Cook

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP) — A 76-year-old woman who came to court in a wheelchair and admitted selling heroin has been sentenced to six years of unsupervised probation by a judge who liked her cooking.

Judge Frederick B. Smillie, recalling fondly how much he'd enjoyed Blanche Smith's food when she ran a local restaurant, handed down the decision in Montgomery County Court on Wednesday.

"If it can be used for the vice president of the United States, it can be used for you," Smillie told Mrs. Smith, referring to the sentence of unsupervised probation.

Mrs. Smith had pleaded guilty to charges of selling heroin to state police undercover agents.

State police said they raided her home three times in 1972 and each time they found heroin.

"I don't believe you were engaged in drug traffic," the judge told her. "Your son who is downstairs on a murder charge used you as a fall guy. You collected the money that he finally got."

Mrs. Smith's son Donald is in jail awaiting trial on charges of murder and drug trafficking.

Before sentencing, prosecutor Theodore Swain asked the judge: "The problem is, what do we do with a 76-year-old heroin pusher?"

"You don't really believe she is a pusher, do you?" the judge replied.

The Worry Clinic Maybe Another Chemical Cure

Dr. S and I both belong to the American Medical Association. But we are openminded scientists. Read his report of the ocean's 44 trace chemicals when used by a totally crippled arthritic. Also, note his Parkinson's patient!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

CASE A-610: Dr. S, aged 45, is a surgeon who has a clinic containing 6 other physicians. He is also secretary of his local Medical Society, with 400 members.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I recently was leaving my office late, when a man about 30 came in.

"He told me he would go crazy if I couldn't combat his insomnia.

"For his wife was a victim of crippling arthritis to such a degree she couldn't feed herself or even roll over in bed.

"All her wrist, elbow, shoulder, hip and knee joints were fixed or frozen!

"Her husband said he'd taken her to 3 specialists over the past 4 years and had spent $5,000 on various treatments, to no avail.

"He even had to lift her into bed and prop her up with pillows.

"After a couple of hours, she'd waken and call out to him, so he'd arise and turn her on her side.

"In another 2 hours, she'd waken once more, and ask him to turn her.

"But now he said when she rouses him, he can't go back to sleep so he is about crazy with tension and lack of adequate slumber.

"Well, Dr. Crane, this wasn't my kind of case, but I felt sorry for the man and his wife and wanted to do something, though I figured if 3 specialists had proved ineffective, what else could I do?

"But I had several gray plastic bottles of sea water, concentrated 10 times, so I gave him one of them and told him to give her a spoonful with each meal.

"No label was on the bottle so he didn't know it was merely ocean water.

"One month later, he came back for a 2nd bottle and later, a 3rd.

"Then one night as I was locking the door to my office after all my assistants had left, the phone rang, so I went back to answer it.

"An excited woman's voice informed me it was this arthritic wife.

"She had turned over in bed that morning all by herself, and for the first time in 4 years!

"So she wanted another bottle of that 'magical medicine' I had given her husband.

"Well, Dr. Crane, after 6 months, this woman is now back on her feet, doing all her housework; driving her car, and playing golf.

"The only evidence of her former 4 years of arthritis is a slight angulation at each elbow, but who can adjust to that readily, even to the point of playing golf.

"Now her improvement is probably due to just one of those 44 trace chemicals that you mention in sea water.

"Maybe our A. M. A. or research scientists will ultimately test all 44 of those water soluble trace chemicals, one at a time.

"But right now I am happy to get that housewife back into a happy, pain-free life, and also relieve her dutiful husband of his chronic insomnia.

"Two of my internist colleagues, also are astounded at the improvement in my aged father, whose Parkinson's trembling made it impossible for him to eat peas, even in a spoon.

"Now he is almost as calm as I am, can sign checks legibly and even balance peas on a knife!

"Yet no other medication by those internists helped him till he began taking a little sea water with each meal.

If you readers live near the sea, try the sea water, for unless you are on a salt-free diet, it will not you.

So send for my booklet "The Ocean's 44 Trace Chemicals," enclosing a long stamped, return Envelope, plus 25 cents. (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

News Special Is Set For Women

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Two weeks from today, CBS News will air a one-hour daytime news special for women. It eventually could become a regular weekly event, according to a CBS executive in charge of the project.

Chosen For Who's Who

Twenty Beaufort County Technical Institute students have been selected to appear in the 1974 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges. Two of these students, Susan Briley Worthington and Jerry R. Williams are Pitt County natives.

Students are selected to receive this honor on the basis of outstanding achievement in the areas of scholarship, citizenship, leadership, and extra-curricular activities. The students will receive official award certificates recognizing their achievements.

Susan Worthington is a graduate of J.H. Rose High School and was employed at Pitt Memorial Hospital as a Licensed Practical Nurse. Mrs. Worthington will receive her Associate Degree of Nursing (RN) in August. She plans to continue her study toward a B.S. degree in nursing while working at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Jerry R. Williams is a graduate of D.H. Conley High School and the Pitt Memorial Hospital Operating Room Technician program. He will receive his Associate Degree of Nursing (RN) in August. Williams, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie O. Williams, plans to work at Pitt Memorial and continue his education in the Nurse Anesthetist program at Winston-Salem.

88-Year-Old Is A Carrier

COALGATE, Okla. (AP) — Don't tell Mary Johnston she's too old to be a paper carrier.

Nearly every day the 88-year-old woman walks briskly up and down the streets of Coalgate carrying the Evening and Sunday News.

The International Association of Newspaper Circulation Managers says she is the oldest carrier in the United States.

Why does Mrs. Johnston, who has a separate income, deliver papers?

"Keeps me limbered up," she replied. "I'm old and old people set and get in wheelchairs.

"Not me."

She has been delivering the news in this southeastern Oklahoma community for almost 34 years.

One time a customer offered to drive Mrs. Johnston on her route, but she refused.

"That's how you get old. Everybody riding around in motor cars. I tried to drive one once, back in 1941, don't trust them."

Friends have tried to get her to give up her 164-customer route, but she won't.

"I'd rather work than fool around," she said.

CART-BLANCHE—Talk about a dog's life, these three Lake Worth (Fla.) pooches are unashamedly easy riders as their dutiful, if momentarily blinded, mistress supplies the energy. Every dog has his day, but this may be carrying things just a bit far. (AP Wirephoto)

The bidding: South West North East

Opening lead: Ten of ♠

Declarer allowed the canary on the roof to distract him from the sparrow in the kitchen, with the result that he went down a trick on a hand that should have been made.

South considered that his wealth of intermediate cards and his good five-card diamond suit made his hand too strong for an opening bid of one no trump. He elected to treat his hand as being worth 19 points, and showed his strength by opening one diamond and then rebidding two no trump. North had just enough to go on to game.

West was faced with a choice of unattractive leads. A spade looked safe enough, but it was unlikely to accomplish anything for the defense. Even if long cards could be established in the suit, West had no entry. Somewhat desperately, he decided to try to find values in his partner's hand, and attacked with the ten of hearts.

Declarer saw a chance for an extra trick in the heart suit, so he played low from dummy. East won the king and shifted to the king of clubs, and declarer's cause would score a trick in each red suit and three clubs for down one.

Declarer lost the hand at trick one thru one of the most common errors in bridge—failure to count his tricks. He did not need a second heart trick for his contract, for he could come to nine tricks via three spades, four diamonds and the ace of hearts and clubs. Furthermore, on the ten of hearts lead, there was no way the defenders could win four tricks in the heart suit, for dummy's eight would be a stopper. But it was imperative that declarer prevent the defenders from winning a heart and switching their attack to his weak spot — clubs—before the ace of diamonds had been forced out.

All declarer had to do was win the ace of hearts at trick one and concede a trick to the ace of diamonds. He would then come to nine tricks before the defenders could establish their five.

Weaving Class Begins Tonight

Pitt Technical Institute will offer a class in weaving beginning tonight at 7:00 p.m. in room 123 of the Humber Building.

This introductory course will be 24 hours in length and will meet from 7-10 p.m. each Thursday for eight weeks.

Course content will include a review of the materials and techniques utilized in weaving on a single frame loom. Practices employing different knots and weaving stitches will be discussed along with projects in tapestry weaving and a variety of practical items that can be produced with the frame loom. There is a $2.00 registration fee for this course.

Interested persons should plan to attend the first class meeting.

Sanford Reported Considering Entry

RALEIGH (AP)—The News and Observer said today former Gov. Terry Sanford is seriously considering running again for the presidency.

of government, that it needs a candidate who can bring a new candor and sense of decency to the national government or a new sense of participation by people at all levels of American life. I'd like to support that kind of a person and that might be what I finally do.

The paper said Sanford, now president of Duke University, was careful to add that he has reached no final decision.

"But I haven't ruled out the possibility that I might become a candidate for those purposes in due time. Neither have I made a decision that I will become such a candidate."

In an interview Wednesday, the former governor explained:

Sanford belatedly entered the race for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972. But he was outpulled by more than 100,000 votes in the North Carolina presidential preference primary by Gov. George Wallace of Alabama. Sanford received 77 1/2 votes at the Democratic National Convention which nominated Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota.

"All I'm saying is that I think the country needs a candidate that is not tied to the Washington structure, that's out there where the people are, needs a candidate that can bring a different look at the problems stop repression, and to defend democratic rights.

Anyone interested in transportation to the march may call John Prevette, 752-3297 or write him at 207 N. Oak St., Apt. 5, Greenville.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, APRIL 19, 1974

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening to cultivate a cheerful and happy attitude, otherwise depressing and complicated conditions could develop. Take under advisement any decisions expected of you. Avoid making a serious mistake.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Use an objective approach when handling those duties ahead of you. Try to be of assistance to troubled associates. Think logically.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Try to get your own problems handled wisely without having to depend on others so much. Do something thoughtful for mate tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use real caution in the handling of career matters since higher-ups are watching you. Make sure you pay all bills and avoid trouble.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Although present work seems boring and you seek new pastures, it is best to stick to present set-up. Don't be extravagant.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make sure you keep any promises you have made and try to help associates who are having troubles. Don't go on a foolish tangent.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Tactfully try to find out what your true position is with allies, but don't ask dumb questions. Steer clear of one who opposes you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You want to argue with a good associate because you are in a bad mood, but don't alienate such a valuable person in your life.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Instead of expecting others to do so much for you, get busy and do something for them instead. Don't be wasteful with money.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Show more consideration for those who dwell with you. Think along very pleasant lines. Show others you are loyal to family.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Much care should be used in motion today if you want to avoid a ticklish situation. Don't anger one by making critical remarks.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Monetary affairs seem very difficult for you to handle right now. Cut down on those expenses that are too extravagant. Be wise.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Turn discontent around to cheer and you can accomplish a great deal. Forget all that social nonsense tonight. Plan the future wisely.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she could easily do well in trouble-shooting professions and become a leader in such, so don't try to put knee-pants on your progeny. Make sure your youngster does not cause friction just for the fun of later clearing it up. Direct the education along mental lines instead of the manual.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!
