

Chairman Of Bicentennial Is Selected

Mrs. Janice Buck of Greenville has been selected for and has accepted the post of overall chairman of the city's Bicentennial Celebration.

The selection of Mrs. Buck, who is president and treasurer of Buck Supply Co. here, was announced at Monday night's meeting of the bicentennial board of trustees.

Commenting on her role as chairman, Mrs. Buck said that, "I look forward to working with the people of the community in making this an event that we, our children and our grandchildren will long remember."

She added, "We have a heritage of which to be proud and each of us has something to contribute to make this a grand and glorious celebration."

The board of trustees, acting on the recommendation of the theme committee, selected the theme for the upcoming celebration; "1774-1974-2174 Greenville: At Peace With The Past-With Hope For The Future."

The board also named Paul Taddiken to serve as bicentennial treasurer. The selection of Taddiken completes the slate of officers for the event.

The board is now in the process of contacting area citizens to serve as division chairmen and an April 29 meeting has been set to announce the six division heads.

'Preferential' Ruling Shelved

By VERNON A. GUIDRY Jr.
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today declined, at least for the present term, to rule on the constitutionality of giving preferred treatment to racial minorities in compensation for past discrimination.

The ruling in a case involving a preference for minority students at the University of Washington Law School had been eagerly awaited for its potential impact on the future course of affirmative action programs to redress past discrimination.

But the court said today in an unsigned opinion that the case is moot.

The case involves a white student, Marcos DeFunis, who was initially denied admission to the law school while a number of minority students gained admission although not scoring as well on admissions tests and the like.

DeFunis, who was admitted to the law school under judicial order, is about to graduate.

"Because the petitioner will complete his law school studies at the end of the term for which he is now registered regardless of any decision this court might reach on the merits of this litigation, we conclude that the court cannot... consider the substantive constitutional issues tendered by the parties," said the unsigned court opinion.

Justices William J. Brennan Jr., Thurgood Marshall, Byron R. White and William O. Douglas dissented.

The unsigned majority opinion indicated the issue will be available for court decision at a later date.

"If the admissions procedures of the law school remain unchanged, there is no reason to suppose that a subsequent case attacking those procedures will not come with relative speed to this court now that the Supreme Court of Washington has spoken," the majority said.

The state supreme court had approved the admissions policies of the law school. State authorities have told the court that DeFunis will be permitted to complete his legal education and receive his degree regardless of the outcome of the case.

The Constitution requires that federal courts act only in an existing case or controversy.

Seek Approval Of Party's Successor To Premier Meir

By JONATHAN BRODER
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) —

The ruling Labor party today sought President Ephraim Katzir's approval for Yitzhak Rabin to form a new government to succeed the one headed by Premier Golda Meir.

The party chose Rabin on Monday to succeed Mrs. Meir, who resigned over criticism of her government's handling of the early phases of last October's Mideast war. A former chief of staff and ambassador to Washington, Rabin faces hard bargaining with prospective coalition partners.

The ruling Labor party picked him for the job by a vote of 298 to 254 over Information Minister Shimon Peres.

Even before receiving Katzir's official approval, Rabin met with party colleagues to discuss the shape of the new cabinet, a party spokesman said.

He has three weeks to put together a coalition with a majority in the Knesset, Israel's parliament, and could get a three-week extension if necessary. But both of Labor's partners in previous governments — the National Religious party and the Liberals — have made clear that Rabin will have a tough job getting them to join his team.

Many Liberals want a new election rather than just new faces in the cabinet. And leaders of the Religious party are under fire from their militant youth division for not extracting enough religious concessions from Labor when they joined Mrs. Meir's last government on March 6.

The selection of Rabin was seen as a victory for the dovish left wing of the Labor party, which advocates greater territorial compromise with the Arabs than Mrs. Meir had been willing to offer.

"We must exhaust every possibility of peace," he declared in his acceptance speech.

But Rabin's reported willingness to return to Jordan part of the West Bank territory captured in 1967 alarms the Religious party, which considers the territory part of Biblical Israel.

Rabin at 52 is the first sabra, or native-born Israeli, to be picked for the premiership, the youngest man ever chosen and the representative of a generation new to the top power circle in Israel.

A newcomer to politics, he joined the cabinet for the first time six weeks ago as labor minister. Although he was chief of staff during the 1967 war, he was not called back to active duty during the war last October.

Planning-Zoning Agenda Readied

The Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission will consider an eight-item agenda at Wednesday's 8 p.m. session at city hall.

Under old business, preliminary plats of Kingsbrook Subdivision, located north of 14th Street and west of Coghill Subdivision, and of James L. Evans heirs, located south of Pitt Plaza and west of N. C. 43 will be discussed.

New business items include: a final plat of Lake Ellsworth Subdivision, Section II, a part of the Lake Ellsworth development plan; final plat of North River Estates Subdivision, Section I, located west of Greenville Terrace and east of State Road 1419; Annexation of First Free Will Baptist Church; preliminary plat of Sandy Acres, located on the west side of State Road 1704 and south of the Brook Valley entrance; preliminary plat of Earl's Estates, located across the highway from Cherry Oaks Subdivision and east of Brook Valley; and a preliminary sketch of the R. M. Garrett property, located at the northwest intersection of Country Club Drive and N. C. 11 (Memorial Drive).

Mitchell-Stans Case Probably To Jury Today

NEW YORK (AP) — The criminal conspiracy case against John N. Mitchell and Maurice H. Stans, the two men President Nixon picked to run his re-election campaign, is headed to the jury.

Testimony in the nine-week-old trial of Mitchell, the former attorney general, and Stans, the onetime commerce secretary, ended Monday. The jury of nine men and three women, the first in nearly half a century to sit in criminal judgment of former Cabinet members, could get the case by Wednesday.

Final summations by the defense were scheduled for today, with Stans' lawyers leading off, followed by Mitchell's. The government probably won't make its closing arguments before Wednesday.

U.S. District Judge Lee P. Gagliardi has said he hopes to charge the panel regarding the law that applies to the case late Wednesday, with deliberations to begin thereafter.

The last time former Cabinet members were tried on criminal charges was in the aftermath of the 1923 Teapot Dome scandal over the leasing of government oil reserves. Former Interior Secretary Albert Fall was sentenced to a year in prison for accepting bribes and his colleague in President Warren G. Harding's Cabinet, Atty. Gen. Harry Daugherty, was freed because of a hung jury.

Ford Urges Nixon To Turn Over Data

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford says President Nixon might have tried harder to get the story of Watergate out sooner and that, he should cooperate as fully as possible to clear it up now.

Ford, in remarks here Monday, called on Nixon to turn over within 48 to 72 hours all relevant material sought by the House Judiciary Committee for its impeachment probe.

A committee subpoena for tapes and documents covering 42 Watergate related White House conversations has a 10 a.m. Thursday deadline.

In a question-and-answer session at the annual meeting of The Associated Press, Ford was asked whether he thought Watergate and its coverup could have occurred without his knowledge if he had been president at the time.

"It's pretty hard to put yourself back into the shoes of somebody else in a situation like that," Ford told 1,300 newspaper and broadcast industry leaders. "I do read the papers... very extensively. I couldn't have been oblivious to some of the things that were going on, that had taken place or transpired."

"It would be my technique if I were in those shoes — which I hope and trust does not take place — to want to find out as quickly as possible," Ford said. "I assume that the President did. In fact, I have good reason to believe that he did."

"Unfortunately," Ford added, "some of the people who should have known obviously did not give him the full story."

"Now whether there should have been a more vigorous prosecution of all the details, that's a matter of judgment," he said. "And in my case, I think I would have tried to nudge some of my employees about as hard as I possibly could."

Ford said Nixon knew nothing in advance about the burglary and bugging of Democratic party headquarters in Washington's Watergate complex during the 1972 presidential campaign.

Bulletin

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has asked for and been granted a five day extension in responding to a House Judiciary subpoena for White House tapes, a spokesman said today.

The Vice President also said he was confident Nixon had not committed any impeachable offense under the Constitution. But he urged Nixon to make every effort to settle the issue once and for all.

"I hope and trust that some time in the next 48 or 72 hours, the White House will cooperate to the maximum in making available to the House Committee on the Judiciary the relevant material that he committee has requested," Ford said.

Ford drew applause from his audience when he said, "I strongly believe that to be the right course of action, and I hope and trust the decision follows that pattern."

However, Ford's use of the word "relevant" when saying what he thought should be turned over follows current White House terminology on the subject, and indicates the possibility that materials which Nixon or his lawyers feel irrelevant or unnecessary to the impeachment inquiry might be withheld.

The White House said Monday that Nixon is still undecided on "the content or form" of his response to the committee's subpoena. Committee chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr. has said anything less than full compliance might be considered grounds for impeachment.

Physical Exam For One Dollar

WAUKON, Iowa (AP) — For $1 apiece, some elderly residents of this northeast Iowa farming community may have prolonged their life.

For that paltry sum, more than 200 residents have received complete physical examinations, some of which detected unsuspected ailments.

"So often the doctors and I noticed that a lot of older people are still coming to the hospital in very deplorable physical condition," said the Rev. Arlin Adams, explaining the reason for the low-cost checkups.

"We saw that they had waited too long, and when they came for health care it was too late."

Pastor Adams, a Lutheran and former administrator of the 42-bed, city-owned Veterans Memorial Hospital, helped establish the program in this community of 4,000.

The examinations at the hospital were made possible through "Operation: Health Saving," which combined the town's medical and volunteer resources.

Donald Dunn, executive vice president of the Iowa Hospital Association, said Monday the program "points up the basic weakness of the Medicare and Medicaid health insurance for the elderly."

For the same diagnostic services given in Waukon for $1, Medicare patients elsewhere must pay the first $84 of the total charge, he said.

Geologist Says Oil Discovery Is Expectable

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The senior geologist of a Texas oil company says that the discovery of oil reserves off the Atlantic coast can definitely be expected in the near future, with areas off the Middle Atlantic States having good potential.

Fred J. Paulus of Superior Oil Co., Houston, Tex., said here Monday that research indicates that several areas of the Atlantic, particularly Georges Bank off New England, Baltimore Canyon off the Middle Atlantic States, and Blake Plateau off Northern Florida and Georgia, are prime drilling possibilities.

Paulus, speaking at East Carolina University, noted that his company, as well as all of the major oil firms, have been testing for new oil reserves under the continental shelf for some time and the prospect of finding significant reserves is no longer four to five years away.

The official explained that seismic profiles which enable geologists to gain information pertaining to the underwater earth formations have been obtained off Cape Hatteras some 400 miles due east and although the area off the North Carolina coast is probably not considered one of the high priority drilling areas now, there is "no reason why we shouldn't expect to find oil off North

Pair Arrested In Girl's Death

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP)—Police said two men were arrested today in the death of an Atlanta high school girl, whose body was found tied to a tree Sunday in rural Gaston County.

Det. Archie Huffstetler said Wallace Charles Lanford, 21, and Pinkney Thompson Mitchell Jr., 25, were taken into custody by Gaston County police about 9:30 a.m. on U.S. 321.

He said the two surrendered following a brief chase. Warrants had been issued charging them with murder in the death of Kathleen Smiley, 16.

Huffstetler said Mitchell escaped from the Catawba County Department of Corrections Feb. 13. He had been serving three to five years for auto larceny.

The girl's mother, Mrs. F.D. Smiley, said Miss Smiley was last seen Sunday morning when she visited her father in Atlanta. The Smileys are separated and the father lives in Minneapolis, Minn.

Mrs. Smiley said her daughter telephoned to say she would return home after buying some gasoline. She was found stabbed to death about 7 p.m., nine hours later.

Police cannot explain why she traveled to North Carolina. Her car was found burning near where her body was discovered. Miss Smiley was traced through school books left in her car. Her mother confirmed the identification Monday.

County's New Landfill Ready By About July 1

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County's new landfill, located about a mile west of the Greenville city limits on the Allen Road, hopefully will begin operations about July 1, county manager Reginald Gray said today.

The county purchased the land—some 102.97 acres—for the landfill and right-of-way access in March.

Included in the purchase was 100.62 acres from J. H. Harrell at $135,000; 1.7 acres from J. D. Hice for $1,700 and .65 acres from Lillian Allen Jenkins for $5,000.

Independent appraisers who inspected the land prior to its purchase by the county indicated that the $135,000 for the Harrell property was a "fair market price," the maximum price, without crop allotments, but indicated the $5,000 paid for the Jenkins property was high. The appraised value for the Jenkins land was set at $3,000 per acre.

The $1,700 the county paid, for the Hice property was a "very good price" according to the appraiser who set $1,400 per acre as a "fair market" price for that property.

According to Gray, the county had little choice but to pay the higher than normal price for the Jenkins land because it was vital to the access route to the landfill site. That property, he noted, fronts on the Allen Road.

According to Gray, commissioners considered a number of other sites, but due to their location, price or the fact that they would not pass state requirements for landfill areas, the Harrell property was finally chosen.

"We are about to run out of the Littlefield Site," Gray noted. "It will just about last until July."

He indicated that as soon as an access road is constructed at the new location and "a little site preparation" is done, the new landfill will be put into operation and the Littlefield area closed. "It's hard to really determine," Gray said, but he theorized the new sanitary landfill would last the county "a number of years."

Gray said the length of time the landfill can be used is "based on the volume of solid waste that comes in," but suggested that four or five acres per year would be required.

Harrell purchased the property he sold to the county in 1965 and 1968.

Records on file in the office of the Pitt County Register of Deeds indicate that 72 acres was purchased by Harrell in 1965. Tax stamps on that deed indicate that he paid $55,000 for that land.

In 1968, Harrell purchased another 63.7 acres, with tax stamps on the deed indicating a purchase price of $49,500.

Gray noted that Harrell has offered to buy back the land at the same price paid by the county if the county wishes to dispose of the property.

In Child Star Area, Hollywood Isn't What It Used To Be

By DAVID DUGAS
NEW YORK (UPI) — Two of the most talked about screen performances of the past year have been provided by little girls not previously known to the general movie-going public.

They are Tatum O'Neal, the 10-year-old who won herself an Oscar as best supporting actress for her role as a budding con artist in "Paper Moon," and Linda Blair, 15, who won the Hollywood Foreign Press Association's Golden Globe as best supporting actress for her work as the devil-possessed child in "The Exorcist."

Tatum seems assured of a future in movies—with the approval of her father Ryan O'Neal. Miss Blair, a rapidly maturing teen-ager, says she's more interested in horses than making movies. Of course if somebody offered her a movie with horses—like Elizabeth Taylor in "National Velvet"—"That would be lovely!" she exclaims.

What's remarkable, though, is the virtual disappearance from Hollywood of child stars—kids with talent and box office drawing power who appear in film after film.

Yesteryear's Mini-Stars
Where, one wonders, are the Shirley Temples and Mickey

FEW CHILD STARS TODAY... Tatum O'Neal (right) won an Oscar, and Shirley Temple (left) was awarded a special miniature Oscar; but today there is a virtual disappearance of child stars in Hollywood. (UPI Telephoto)

Rooneys of today?

Shirley and Mickey both were awarded special miniature Oscars in the 1930s when their movies were boxoffice favorites.

Ten other child performers later won scaled-down Oscars in recognition of their talent and popular appeal—including Deanna Durbin, Judy Garland, Margaret O'Brien and Peggy Ann Garner.

While scores of children have won fame—and wealth—from television, it's been mostly hard times for child movie stars in recent years.

One obvious reason: the "adult" pictures now favored by Hollywood offer few if any roles for kids. There are the "family" movies from the Disney studios and those of a few producers such as Robert Radnitz, but they are the exception. Not even the Disney folks have a child superstar under contract. And no one has been pounding at the door of young Kevin Hooks, the brilliant young star of Radnitz's "Sounder."

Maybe Better for the Kids
Not that the shortage of children's movie roles is necessarily a bad thing for the youngsters themselves. The few Hollywood stars of today who began their careers as child actors have little good to say about the experience.

Ask Elizabeth Taylor, Roddy McDowall, Natalie Wood, Mickey Rooney or Patty Duke if they wouldn't rather have had a "normal" childhood. Or if they'd want their own children working in movies.

They all managed to survive the experience of child stardom one way or another, as have others before and since. But that's how most of them think of it—that they "survived" it.

Jackie Coogan, four years old when his role as "The Kid" with Charlie Chaplin made him a star, has spent much of his adult life playing character roles. Now nearing his 60th birthday, he's still active in movies and TV.

Petula Clark, too
Jackie Cooper, who came along eight years later and gained his first fame in the original "Our Gang" film comedies, then with Wallace Beery in "The Champ", switched to motion picture and television producing and directing. But he returned to acting with a popular TV series, "Hennessey", in the late 1950s. In the past three years he has gone back to movies both as an actor and director.

Petula Clark has millions of fans too young to remember her movie debut—at age 12—30 years ago. A show business childhood doesn't seem to have hurt her any more than it did Julie Andrews who spent her girlhood on the stages of English music halls.

Margaret O'Brien, one of the most popular child stars of the 1940s, fell out of favor as a young adult but recently returned to acting in television dramas. Patty McCormack, who went from Broadway to Hollywood for her first movie, "The Bad Seed," has kept busy in recent years with television.

Patty Duke has been more successful. Winner of a full-sized Oscar for her "supporting" role in "The Miracle Worker" at age 16, she now is a 26-year-old actress who moves easily from films to TV and back again.

Money's Still There—From TV
Fortunes can still be earned by child actors, but not by Tatum O'Neal or Linda Blair working in movies. Today's rich-kid actors are building their fortunes from television series.

Johnnie Whitaker, for instance, His movie career started at age six with "The Russians Are Coming," and he'd made three movies for Disney before being picked two years ago for the title role in a new film of "Tom Sawyer." But it's those six years he spent as the star of the television series "A Family Affair" that have made him an international star—and a millionaire.

Outside of television, Hollywood's child actors seem doomed to one or two good roles. Maybe three at most. By the time that many parts have come their way, they've grown up.

Bridge Winners Announced

Unit Tournament bridge winners Wednesday afternoon at the Bank of North Carolina included:

Mrs. L. D. Harris and Mrs. Clifton Toler, first; Mrs. Roger Critcher Jr. and Mrs. J. S. Rhodes Jr., second; Mrs. W. R. Harris and David Proctor, third; Mrs. Fred Sorensen and Emma Blanche Warren, fourth.

Saturday afternoon winners at First Federal Savings and Loan were:

North-South: Mrs. J. M. Horton and David Proctor, first; Mrs. Lacy Harrell and Mrs. Shirley Dail, second; Mrs. Roger Critcher Jr. and Mrs. J. S. Rhodes Jr., third.

East-West: Steve Callihan and Ron Beall, first; Claude Goodman and George Martin, second; Mrs. Mary K. Perry and Lewis Newsome, third.

Dr. Scott Is Nominee For Annual Presentation

Dr. Alice Scott, chairman of the East Carolina University Department of Food, Nutrition and Institution Management, is one of two North Carolina nominees for "Recognized Young Dietitian of the Year," an annual award given by the American Dietetic Association.

Eligible for nomination are active members of state dietetic associations, who are 30 years old or younger and who have demonstrated leadership in professional work. North Carolina's other nominee is Nancy J. Kennon.

Dr. Scott is an alumna of ECU, with advanced degrees from UNC-Greensboro and NCSU. She has been chairman of the ECU nutrition faculty for four years.

Her research background includes work in the areas of hormonal effects on levels of serum fatty acids and a nutrition survey of the ECU campus. She has published several research reports in professional journals.

At present, Dr. Scott is president of the Eastern District Dietetic Association and is an active member of the North Carolina Council on Food and Nutrition. She is also a member of Sigma Xi, Delta Kappa Gamma, Omicron Nu and Phi Upsilon Omicron honor societies.

She is cited in the 1972 edition of "Who's Who in Outstanding Young Women of America."

Program On Mexico Given By Homemakers

A program on Mexico highlighted the meeting of the ladies of the Sweet Gum Grove Extension Homemakers held at the home of Mrs. Mayo Rogers Thursday.

The program was given by club members, who spoke on various subjects and showed articles made in Mexico.

Giving leader reports were Mrs. Eric Whitchard, clothing, on "Caring for Fabrics," and Mrs. Rogers, citizenship, on "Character."

The devotion was given by Mrs. Margaret Briley. After the business session, Mrs. Rogers served Mexican food with coffee.

Spring Meetings Announced

The spring subdistrict meetings of the United Methodist Women of the Greenville District will include local officer training workshops.

Each subdistrict meeting will be held on a Sunday afternoon at 2:30.

The Snow Hill and Kinston Subdistricts will meet together in Grifton United Methodist Church on April 28.

The Greenville and Washington Subdistricts will combine for their meeting at Holy Trinity United Methodist Church, Greenville, May 5.

The Belhaven Subdistrict will meet at Panteo United Methodist Church May 19.

All United Methodist Women are urged to attend one of these three meetings. Those who are unable to attend their own subdistrict are invited to participate in one of the other meetings.

It is important that all United Methodist Women participate because of the new organization. The idea is to discover how to work together as a team.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I just figured out if my husband paid just half the attention to me as he does the lawn, my 70-year-old mailman would never have started to look like Robert Redford.

If ever there was a valid suit for alienation of affection, it's that lousy lawn.

There is something about the ability of a man to grow a few blades of grass that contributes to his masculinity. He is either a grass grower or he is not a grass grower. I have seen virile men move into the neighborhood with tattoos on their lips, but if they have fungus on their dwarf tiff, forget it. They're just not one of the boys.

A lawn enthusiast has two moods: irritable and irritable. These are interchangeable depending on whether the grass is growing or whether the grass is not growing.

When the grass is not growing, my husband goes to the library to see what could be missing, has his soil analyzed, waters, soaks, fertilizes, and has the nurserymen who sold him the seed make a house call.

When the grass is growing, he runs the mower back to the store to make sure the blade is cutting, trims, rakes, rolls and makes an obscene phone call to the dog next door who over-fertilized it in the first place.

There is no pleasing a lawn freak.

Some say it is normal for the man to want a pretty lawn.

I don't know what is normal anymore. I sent the kids to Mother's, blew an entire food budget on steaks and wine, put a dab of garlic on the lightbulb and slipped into something that had not been paid for. "What are you thinking?" I teased, turning off the TV set.

"Did you turn the hose off?" he asked. Is it normal for a man to call the police and report a flock of birds who are eating our grass seed? Is it normal for a grown man to mourn a brown spot for three years?

I was all set to tell the mailman about my infatuation with him when he said, "I see your husband uses a chemical fertilizer of nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash. Tell him if he invested in a little sheep dip, he'd do away with that crabgrass. Is there something you wanted?"

"I thought you looked like someone I knew," I said. "But I was mistaken. You all look alike."

Undecided Voter Is Still Key To N.C. Senate Race

An AP News Analysis
By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—With two weeks to go before the May 7

Democratic primary, the undecided voter is the key element in the race for the U. S. Senate, North Carolina Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan is conceded a substantial lead at this time over Nick Galifianakis and Henry Hall Wilson by most observers and pollsters. But they do not agree on whether he has locked up 50 per cent of the electorate. To do that, he will have to win a substantial portion of the undecided vote.

Morgan's goal is to win the nomination without a second primary. If Wilson or Galifianakis can force a runoff, they will have accomplished their immediate goal. They believe that Morgan's support is "a mile wide and an inch deep." It is based, they say, on the belief of many Democrats that Morgan is easily the most formidable candidate the party can field this year.

Morgan's strategy at this stage is to continue to campaign vigorously. He will have a heavy schedule of personal appearances and media advertising.

He is trying to impress the voters as a thoughtful candidate too concerned with the nation's problems to pay any attention to the clamorous charges and attacks from Wilson and Galifianakis.

Galifianakis and Wilson, with little to lose, are working desperately to win the allegiance of the undecided Democratic voters and get them to the polls.

The typical undecided voter, estimated by most observers to make up between 15 and 25 per cent of the electorate at this time, is a white collar worker from the Piedmont. His vote is not responsive, generally, to organizational influence.

Galifianakis and Wilson are wooing this voter with advertising and public statements geared to presenting themselves as unpolitical candidates concerned with bread and butter issues like inflation and taxation.

They are gambling that the undecided voter is fed up with President Nixon and will support a candidate who attacks the President.

And, they are trying to paint Morgan as a typical politician, which almost everyone believes is a bad thing to be this year. This is behind their attacks on him for not resigning as attorney general.

Morgan's biggest strength is in his organizational support. Throughout the state, he has a wide variety of Democratic regulars working for him.

In Charlotte, for example, he is backed by conservative trial lawyer Allen Bailey, an old I. Beverly Lake supporter, and by Stan Kaplan, a radio station owner who was a strong supporter of George McGovern.

In Wilmington, he has support from most influential Democrats, led by former State Sen. John Burney.

In the farm country of the east, Morgan's support includes a number of U.S. Department of Agriculture employees who recently met privately with him because they were fearful that publicity could cause them trouble with their Republican employers.

Few people are willing to predict the results of this election.

Some feel that the undecided voter may not vote at all. They cite the general lack of public interest in the campaign and the general disillusionment with politics in general.

If this is true, Morgan will have an advantage, since his organizational type of support is more readily deliverable.

Others feel that Galifianakis is coming up strongly, has a good recognition factor from his previous campaigns, and can take enough of the undecided vote from Morgan to force a second primary.

But one political observer, with access to some reliable polls, said simply, "The climate out there is weird. The mood of the electorate is furious and unpredictable. There's no telling what might happen."

Higher Oil Profits Said Vital

WASHINGTON (AP)—The new head of the Federal Energy Office says higher oil prices and "substantial but reasonable profits" are vital to improving the nation's future energy outlook. "Where price elicits new supply, it serves a useful economic function and benefits consumers with increased supply, which ultimately results in lower prices," energy chief John C. Sawhill said Monday.

Sawhill, named last week to head the FEO, told the Senate Commerce Committee that the oil industry's financial statements for the first quarter of 1974 would show a continuing rise in profits.

His testimony came as Gulf Oil Corp. and Standard Oil of Indiana announced first-quarter profits more than 75 per cent higher than the same period last year. Both companies said much of the jump in profits resulted from overseas operations.

Sawhill criticized a provision of the pending Consumer Energy Act that would create a federal oil and gas corporation.

"It's been through the genius of our private enterprise system that we've been able to gain control over most of the (energy) reserves," he said.

Commenting to reporters after his appearance before the panel, Sawhill forecast that the price of gasoline would not rise "more than a few cents" per gallon.

"Prices are now in the low 50s," he said. "I wouldn't expect them to go over 60 cents."

In other energy-related developments:

—The head of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, said industrialized nations will face more oil price increases unless they "curtail their galloping inflation" which has pushed up the cost of manufactured goods.

Jamshid Amouzegar, who also serves as Iran's finance minister, said Monday that oil prices would remain at their current levels until October. But he said oil producers might then demand "something to take care of inflation."

—A spokesman for Common Cause, the citizen's lobby, urged creation of a federal oil and gas corporation because "the present structure of the petroleum and allied products industry militates against an effective competitive market for oil, gas and other fuels."

—An Exxon executive acknowledged to the Senate investigations subcommittee that the huge oil firm had furnished data on U.S. military oil purchases to the Saudi Arabian government last November, shortly after imposition of the Arab oil embargo.

Charles O. Peyton, president of Exxon International Co., denied that the country-by-country information on the amount of Saudi Arabian crude oil used in refining products for the military was "sensitive" to national security.

Sadat Defection Irks Politburo

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

It is possible now that the Middle East can pose a question mark over the long-term pre-eminence of Leonid I. Brezhnev at the Soviet helm.

Although the Communist party chief may find it increasingly difficult to live with the Americans, he may also feel he can't do without them.

Whatever sort of stew Moscow cooked up for the Middle East, something went wrong with the recipe. Consequently, Kremlin policy makers now focus their efforts east of Suez on Syria and Iraq, all but writing off the influence they so carefully and expensively built up in Egypt, the leading Arab nation.

Undoubtedly the ruling Politburo is irked. With Egypt's defection, Moscow has practically no influence to speak of in the Arab West. East of Suez, meantime, oil-producing nations are so enormously rich that the Arabs can hope for a time when they won't have to rely on the Russians or anyone else for loans.

How much of what happened can be assessed to Brezhnev's policy of placating Washington in hopes of economic dividends from detente?

In all likelihood, Brezhnev lays much of the blame for his current headaches at the door of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. But what about the reaction of the party Politburo, particularly the old-style conservatives who never liked the detente policy very much to begin with?

As of now, Brezhnev looks much the man in charge. But so did Nikita S. Khrushchev only a short time before he was toppled by his colleagues in the Politburo and party central committee after they totaled up the balance sheet from his policies.

Sorority Announces Honors, Initiates

East Carolina University's Gamma Sigma chapter of Kappa Delta social sorority has announced the names of new pledges and initiates along with a newly elected president and a chapter member of ECU's Greek Hall of Fame.

Dianne Lucas of Asheboro is the new president of the chapter. Recipient of the Artemis award at the recent campus Panhellenic Awards banquet, Miss Lucas was previously chapter secretary.

She is a rising senior, majoring in early childhood education at ECU.

Kappa Delta member Christina Riley was named to the Greek Hall of Fame, a roster of outstanding sorority members at ECU.

A recent inductee into Sigma Theta Tau honor society in nursing, she is a resident of Salisbury.

New initiates of Kappa Delta are Becky Richardson of Lake Waccamaw, Cathy Gentry of Roxboro, Lynda Cox Best of Wilson, and Meredith Shaw of Pennes Grove, New Jersey.

New pledges are Georgina Amy McLellan of Denville, New Jersey and Nancy Roundtree of Raleigh.

Rate Increase Hearing Set

RALEIGH (AP)—The state Utilities Commission has set a hearing for November 5 on application of Public Service Company of North Carolina for a rate increase of 10.3 per cent.

The proposed increase would hike the average residential customer's monthly gas bill from $10.52 to $11.91.

The company said it needs additional revenue to cover rising costs of labor, materials and other expenses. The increase would boost the company's revenue by about $4.46 million annually.

We Can Plant New Trees Now

A hearing was held on the long range proposed major thoroughfare plan by the City Council last week.

The turn out was good and a number of pertinent questions were raised which is an indication that our citizens are interested in the problems of street routing before they are confronted with a bulldozer.

One objection raised to widening of Fourth Street was that the work would necessitate cutting down of trees.

Well, Greenville has many tree-lined streets and they give the city an exceptional beauty. It has always been a matter of concern to all of us when trees have been chopped down to make way for a new street or the widening of an old one. Yet, we know it is sometimes necessary to remove trees to provide for adequate streets.

With a long range thoroughfare plan something can be done about this problem. If we know that a street will have to be widened sometime in the future we can begin now to plant new trees further away from the curb line than the present ones.

Most of the street projects are years away, perhaps as much as 20 years. If we plant new trees now they could be of adequate size to maintain the pleasant atmosphere of a tree lined street by the time the street project is carried out.

If for some reason, the widening project is not carried out, we will still have the trees and the community will be that much better off.

Wave Of Inflation Is Very Much With Us

Those who say that the worst is over for inflation, need to take a look at the March cost of living figures.

A 1.1 percent increase, attributed to both food and non-food commodities, was the worst in 25 years.

Consumer prices were 10.2 percent higher than a year ago.

Rampant inflation can be just as devastating as an economic crash for the wage earner. This is something that the government should come to recognize.

Farmers Mart Business Good

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—If government officials are seriously looking for a way to keep the people who want to stay there down on the farm, Charles G. Murray figures he has found one way to help.

"Our first priority is serving the small farmer who has no other place to go, and who needs to sell some of his produce in order to stay on the land," Murray says as he surveys the sprawling 21 acres of buying and selling activity at the North Carolina Farmers Market in Raleigh.

"Those are small time farmers who want to stay in the country. They've made a living out there, and raised their families, but things are getting tighter.

"We've lost a few, but we have a lot of part-time farmers who come with pickup trucks and sell to the public. Some days, we have 75 to 100 trucks in here during the season," Murray said.

The Raleigh market is the only one in the state, and one of a handful in the country, which is state owned and operated.

More Needed

Plans are now underway for another in Asheville—which, like the Raleigh installation, will provide space for wholesale buyers and shippers, packers, and so on.

But Murray sees the real need in North Carolina for a number of smaller markets devoted to the consuming housewife and smalltime farmer.

"I'd like to see a whole string of these across the state. There's a genuine need, and a service to be performed," he believes.

Figures bear that out. The Raleigh market, estimates now show, does around $25 million in business a year.

And on a typical Saturday from June through September when farms within driving distance of Raleigh are producing fresh crops more than 300 vehicles per hour pass through the market gates. The peak comes between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. when more than 400 cars per hour enter.

An true to the rural tradition of face-to-face shopping for fresh produce, some goods change hands: fruits, 173,620 bushels a year; vegetables, 127,765 bushels; melons, 659,000; and a newcomer to the local market—pumpkins, 41,369.

Farmers pay one dollar to park and peddle off the backs of their trucks; other retailers pay $3 a day for a stall under the shed.

In all, the market pays its own way. The state bought the facility in 1961 from real estate developer J. Willie York who had run it since it started in 1955. The state paid $475,000 for the facilities, and pumped in something under $70,000 more after two floods caused damage.

But the market has returned to the state something like $25,000 a year, reducing the state's investment to about a quarter of a million dollars.

Not only local produce can be found in the market. During the off-season, shoppers and truckers can find grapes from South Africa, Australian apples, and melons from South America.

In fact, shoppers these days—whether at the market or in the local supermarket—are more apt to find Mexican beans and corn and tomatoes than any other kind.

"The big farmers form California, Texas, and Florida are moving to Mexico where they can get cheap labor—that's the big direction now for agriculture, says Murray.

And that's another reason he would like to see a whole string of consumer markets across North Carolina—to help the local farmer stay in business.

Tastes have changed, too, in the years Murray has run the market. "We've seen a real change in eating habits as people moved to North Carolina from Pennsylvania and New York, and such. They'd never heard of blackeyed peas or gooseneck squash or okra.

"And they wanted to buy things like broccoli and zucchini squash. So, our farmers have started producing the things they want, and they've started learning to eat the local vegetables, too, so everybody is learning. In fact, we have some Southern housewives who are buying that northern food too."

Murray is a sociologist, graduating from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, and in his dapper turtleneck sweater and blazer looks more like an actor than a farmer—but he figures he has found the perfect job helping people. In March, he went to a national convention in California and won the title of National Market Manager of the Year.

Profits From Impeachment?

By ROWLANE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Conservatives who have been contributing to a pro-Nixon publicity campaign to counteract liberal bias in the radio-television industry have in fact been helping a venture seeking profits from the President's impeachment crisis.

An organization calling itself the Conservative Broadcasting Centre is soliciting funds to buy radio and television time so that big-name conservatives can defend Mr. Nixon on the air. In fact, the Centre has done nothing more than mail two pro-Nixon scripts to radio stations. The clear intent of the promoters is self-profit.

"The major news organizations are saying that the American people want President Nixon impeached," the fund-raising appeal begins. "One news organization is not—the Conservative Broadcasting Centre." The letter, signed by chairman John L. Jones, claims its programs are "going out to thousands of stations and being heard by millions of people." To provide stations "a quality program," the letter asks for money.

In truth, the downtown Washington address listed for the Centre is a mail-drop for Potomac Arts, Ltd., a direct mail firm in suburban McLean, Va., owned by Jones. At 31, Jones is a veteran conservative activist who long has criticized Mr. Nixon for betraying conservative principles. In contrast to the "quality" programming promised, Jones told us all the pro-Nixon material actually prepared consists of merely two written scripts mailed to radio stations. He is simply giving the scripts away, not buying air time.

The Centre "enables outstanding conservatives to air their points of view before the public," says the letter. As examples, it then prints the names and photos of conservative "patriots," including Sens. James Buckley and Barry Goldwater, Reps. John Ashbrook of Ohio and Philip Crane of Illinois, Govs. George Wallace and Ronald Reagan—not one of whom authorized use of his name. Jones informed us, moreover, that the Centre is not distributing a single program involving any of them—and certainly not a program discussing Buckley's demand for Mr. Nixon's resignation.

The appeal has raised only $4,700 so far, but that is based on a test mailing of 17,300. Jones intends to plow the money back to solicit some 3 million conservative names available to direct mailers. Although his letter calls the Centre a "non-profit organization," Jones does not deny his profit motive. "I believe in capitalism," he told us.

A footnote: Both Sen. Buckley and Rep. Crane have asked Jones to stop using their names and photographs. "My press secretary was totally incapable of supplying me with the name of even one station broadcasting Centre programs," Buckley wrote.

A Creepy Ambassador

Just as the special prosecutor zeroes in on Nixon diplomatic appointments, the President is ready to nominate a 33-year-old survivor of the Committee to Reelect the President (CREP) to a post of unusual political sensitivity: ambassador to Costa Rica.

Pretty little Costa Rica happens to be the refuge of financier Robert Vesco indicted in CREP's campaign contributions scandals. Costa Rica's refusal to extradite Vesco is an international embarrassment requiring an experienced hand in the U.S. embassy. Instead, Mr. Nixon leans toward Stanton D. Anderson, a Republican activist utterly lacking diplomatic experience.

Although former colleagues at the White House and CREP disagree about Anderson's talents, all are amazed at his prospective ambassador's post. Apparently making up for questionable credentials is the fact Anderson is a protégé of powerful Frederick Malek, former CREP strongman and now deputy Budget chief. Since leaving CREP, Anderson has been Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for congressional relations.

CREP Conned Ford

Vice President Ford now derides CREP as an "arrogant elite guard of political adolescents" responsible for Watergate, but he had no such misgivings in 1972 when he insisted that his attractive college-aged son be given a job there.

Middle-level CREP staffers, worried that hiring the sons of H. R. Haldeman and other top Nixon officials

Strength For Today

THE MISCHIEF OF THE VIRTUOUS

The great English novelist, William M. Thackeray, wrote in one of his novels, "The wicked are wicked no doubt, and they go astray and they fall, and they come by their deserts; but who can tell the mischief which the very virtuous do?"

Often it was the respectable people of his day that Jesus berated rather than the gross sinners. The Pharisees were the special object of his criticism. Yet no one could deny their virtue. They attended synagogue regularly, gave alms to the poor, and were diligent in prayer.

But Jesus pointed out that people who keep themselves from gross sins sometimes do more harm by their hardness of heart, pride, and carping criticism than outright sinners. Furthermore, the virtuous sinner is hard to identify and unfailingly unrepentant. So let us be sure that our virtue is really what it seems to be and not self-interest in disguise.

Dirigible Dream Lives

It had been more than a year since I last talked with J. Gordon Vaeth, the dirigible man, but I found him one day last week at the Army-Navy Club. He was looking more than ever like the commander of Jules Verne's Nautilus—trim, gray-haired, dark-eyed—and he had bad news and good news.

First the bad news: Private capitalism, so far as he knows, has not yet invested a hard nickel in revival of the airship. Now the good news: Some seed money is in sight from the government, and interest is soaring.

Vaeth is an old Navy type. He fell in love with lighter-than-air ships as a ground officer with Navy blimps in World War I. The love affair has never palled. He is now director of system engineering for the National Environmental Satellite Service, but he spends most of his spare time promoting the idea of building fleets of dirigibles to provide an entirely new form of worldwide freight and passenger transportation.

My friend reminds me of the little old Southern lady who was known to insist that General Lee never retreated. Well, she was asked, what about Lee at Appomattox? "Ah," she said stoutly, "he was only advancing to the rear."

In a sense that is what Vaeth and his fellow enthusiasts have in mind. They perceive a need for a major breakthrough in transportation. At least ten billion dollars, here and abroad, recently were pumped into the supersonic transport plane. The SST was supposed to be a quantum jump into the future. It flopped. The idea of flying maybe 120 passengers and a few boxes of freight at 1,500 miles an hour proved unsalable. The airship visionaries look the other way: They dream of giant dirigibles that would fly maybe 500 passengers and 400,000 pounds of freight at 120 miles an hour.

I last reported on this in February of 1973. Since then a lot has happened. Fortune magazine came forth with a stimulating piece last December. Vaeth himself appeared on the NBC Today show. A number of editorial writers seized upon the concept. In September the Navy and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration joined with Massachusetts Institute of Technology in a seminar on the subject. In January the respected American Institute for Aeronautics and Astronautics held a serious session on "The Helium Horse." Georgetown University has a seminar scheduled for this fall. Most significantly, NASA's budget for the next fiscal year will include perhaps $250,000 for preliminary feasibility studies.

No one really knows whether modern-day airships are in fact feasible. After the proponents' enthusiasm has been appropriately discounted, some tough questions plainly remain: Cost. Safety. Crew training.

The most economical way to go to college is to stay home! This is not a contradictory statement—it means attend a community or other area college by commuting. Thirty-two states offer tuition help to their own needy students, whether boarders or commuters. The best thing about this is that the need need not be at the poverty level to qualify.

A new federal program which matches state funds on a dollar-for-dollar basis will increase funds available in states, but this money would normally be available only to state residents. This is with good reason in states such as West Virginia, where colleges and universities and medical schools are crowded with easterners, excluding many West Virginians, although hard-won West Virginia wages have paid the taxes to fund their own halls of higher learning.

Congress recently removed the needs test on the Guaranteed Student Loan Program for students whose family incomes are under $15,000. Several colleges and universities are putting more emphasis on merit scholarships, designed to help the middle-income families who are finding the new higher tuitions out of reach. If Dad or Mom is a veteran, there are other special advantages.

The best thing for a new student to do is to go to the college scholarship officer and lay his family's and his own finances on the line. The officer will try his best to put together a package of work-study, loans, scholarships, perhaps under a new federal-aid program of Basic Opportunity Grants (BOG) and from state and other sources. The early bird gets the worm. Apply for Admission and financial aid now.

Housing Outlook Is Uncertain

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Many economists are hoping for an increase in housing activity to help boost the economy out of the hole into which it tripped during the past year.

Unpredictable at the moment, however, is whether housing will be able to provide that push. The uncertainty of it all has many an economist in a quandary. Housing, it seems, hasn't made up its mind.

After plunging from an annual rate of nearly 2.5 million housing starts early in 1973 to fewer than 1.5 million this January, activity resumed in February. In that month the start rate rose to 1.8 million units.

Came March, however, and activity dropped again to the January level. That was bad news. However, housing permits, an indicator of future activity, rose, and that was good news.

To the rescue of forecasters who find the erratic activity too much to tolerate comes Saul Klamman, housing authority and vice president and chief economist of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks. Said he:

"My hunch is that the coming housing upturn will proceed at a relatively slow pace. My fear is that even a sluggish recovery may be prematurely aborted." The long-awaited housing upturn, he said, "may prove disappointing."

In an address here, Klamman cited some of the most compelling factors underlying his relatively bearish view:

1. The large backlog of unsold new units. Buyer resistance in private housing markets was mounting last year, he said, at the very time many new homes were coming on the market.

"As a result, unsold inventory mounted and by early 1974 was equal to one year's sales, substantially above a year earlier."

2. Mounting land costs and housing prices. Some potential buyers, he said, may have been discouraged by the rapid acceleration in costs. "They have second thoughts when they see their favorite $30,000 house sporting a new $50,000 price tag."

3. Nagging energy uncertainties. "Uncertainties about where and whether to build or buy have not disappeared," said Klamman. Neither buyers nor builders

Telling Their Profits

By JOSH FITZHUGH

AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's giant oil companies are beginning to tell how much money they've made in the last three months, and the figures are going straight up.

Two of the major oil companies — Gulf and Standard of Indiana — announced their earnings for the first quarter of 1974 on Monday, and both said profits were more than 75 per cent higher than for the same period last year.

The reports gave credence to predictions of analysts, who said the profit reports from the oil giants would be 50 to 100 per cent above a year ago.

Two more of the country's largest petroleum producers, Exxon and Texaco, plan to make their first-quarter earnings' reports today.

Gulf and Standard of Indiana (Amoco) attributed their increased earnings to overseas operations.

Gulf, one of the top five companies in oil sales, reported earnings of $290 million, or $1.49 per share of common stock, for the first three months of 1974. This was 76 per cent above the $165 million of 80 cents a share earned in the corresponding period last year.

Standard Oil of Indiana, ranked in the top 10 according to sales, announced profits of $219 million, 81 per cent ahead of the $121.1 million reported in the first quarter of last year. On a per share basis, Amoco earned $3.13 in the first quarter of 1974, up from $1.74 per share last year.

In overall revenues, Gulf said its sales rose to $4.52 billion.

Fighting off an ambush of 28 federal and state officers, John Dillinger, America's public enemy No. 1, again stalled capture at Bohemia on Lake Vilas, Wis., today and was reported heading south.

In a prolonged shooting affray, three men were killed and two wounded.

Dr. R. H. Wright, president of East Carolina Teachers College, suffered a stroke of paralysis at the college this morning. His condition is described as critical by hospital officials.

Approximately 200 books were contributed by Greenville residents to Sheppard Memorial Library in the Kiwanis book canvass here Saturday.

A second canvass will probably be held next month.

The canvass was made by 18 members of the local Boy Scout organization, who stated that the entire city was covered.

The major part of the books consisted of works for children. The need of children's books was stressed at the meeting of the Kiwanis Club.

The Pirates of East Carolina Teachers college will meet the A.C.C. baseball team at the college diamond at 3:30 tomorrow.

Troy Burnett will pitch for the pirates and Johnson will catch.

How N.C. Senators And Representatives Voted

By ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON—Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes on April 11, the last day before Congress' Easter recess. Congress reconvenes April 22.

HOUSE

COMMODITIES REGULATION Rejected, 158 for and 179 against, an amendment to hire full-time commissioners to regulate the trading of agricultural commodities. The amendment was offered to H.R. 11313, which was later passed and sent to the Senate.

The overall bill would regulate trader-manipulation of the commodities market, which last year had a volume of about $500 billion. At present, the market is largely self-regulated.

In rejecting the amendment, the House voted approval of part-time advisory commissioners, appointed by the President with Senate approval to work with the Secretary of Agriculture.

Supporters argued that the proposed commission needs independence to effectively oversee commodity trading, and that part-time commissioners would "rubber-stamp" policies drafted by the Secretary of Agriculture. Rep. Neal Smith (D-Iowa) said that commodity traders want full-time commissioners who are "just as independent as the Securities Exchange Commission."

Opponents of full-time commissioners argued that the proposed board's policy should be wedded to the Agriculture Department's nationwide farm policy. Rep. William Wampler (R-Va.) argued against creating another "unnecessary bureaucracy."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), Ike Andrews (D-4) and Richardson Preyer (D-6) voted "yea."

Reps. L. H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Wilmer Mizell (R-5), James Martin (R-9), James Broyhill (R-10) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "nay." Reps. Charles Rose (D-7) and Earl Ruth (R-8) did not vote.

SENATE

TAX AUDITS Passed, 69 for and 20 against, an amendment to require the General Accounting

Office to audit the income tax returns of any federal officeholder or employee who makes more than $20,000 a year.

The amendment was attached to the public campaign financing bill (S.3044). If the language become law, congressmen, presidents, federal judges and high-level government employees will be subjected to yearly tax audits, which will be made public by the GAO.

Supporters argued that such audits will help restore public trust in politicians. Sen. John Tower (R-Texas) said the Congress should be subjected to "the same, intensive audit that President Nixon underwent."

In opposing the amendment, Sen. James Buckley (C-N.Y.) said, "I see no legitimate purpose in this gratuitous invasion of privacy." Other senators argued it would cost too much to audit so many federal officials.

Sen. Jesse Helms (R) voted "yea." Sen. Sam Ervin (D) voted "nay."

CAMPAIGN HELPERS Rejected, 40 for and 48 against, an amendment to limit free help from labor unions and corporations to candidates for public office. The amendment was attached to the public campaign financing bill.

The overall bill calls for a $6,000 limit on any organization's contribution to an individual's campaign. The rejected amendment would have set a "fair market value" for services rendered by employees of a corporation or members of a union.

The value of such services would have been considered as part of the $6,000 limit.

Supporters argued for closing a loophole that permits labor unions, in particular, to provide limitless "volunteer" services to favored candidates. Sen. John Tower (R-Texas) said that without the amendment "this so-called campaign reform bill will be nothing more than a sham."

Opponents argued that it would be impossible to determine when such aid is voluntary and when it is subsidized by a corporation or union. Sen. Joseph Biden (D-Del.) asked, "How could anyone legitimately enforce" the amendment's provisions?

Helms and Ervin voted "yea." PUBLIC FINANCING Passed, 53 for and 32 against, a bill calling for public financing of campaigns for federal office. It now goes to the House. Among its major provisions are:

—Federal subsidies to serious candidates for federal office. The subsidies will come from taxes collected under the "dollar check-off" provisions on income tax forms.

—Campaign contribution limits of $3,000 from individuals and $6,000 from organizations to all campaigning (primary and general election) of a candidate.

—Uniform, nationwide poll closing times to prevent media projections of presidential elections before western state voters have cast their ballots.

—Public tax audits of federal officials (above) and income source disclosure for candidates for federal office.

Helms and Ervin voted "nay."

Face Trial For Terror Spree

TROY, Mich. (AP) — Two prison farm escapees who allegedly wove a trail of terror and death across two states will face murder charges in the slaying of a Troy policeman first, authorities say.

Joseph A. Molinare, 29, and Gordon L. Stockenauer, 26, were ordered held without bond Monday after their arraignment on first-degree murder charges in the shooting death of Patrolman Martin Chivas. Conviction would bring a mandatory life sentence.

They also are charged with murdering a Wisconsin housewife and are wanted for questioning in the death of a 17-year-old service station attendant. Troy Police Cpl. Thomas Morris said that in statements given officers after their arrest, Molinare and Stockenauer "admitted to all the crimes they've been accused of."

Police said the escapees were captured in a Flint residential neighborhood Monday after a brief chase on foot near the home of Molinare's girlfriend.

Molinare and Stockenauer were among four men who escaped Saturday night from a minimum security area at the state prison at Marquette, Mich. Both were serving sentences for felonious assault.

Chivas, 23, a two-year veteran of the Troy force, was fatally shot while investigating a break-in at a gasoline station before dawn Monday, police said.

Molinare and Stockenauer also were named in a federal flight warrant in the Oshkosh, Wis., murder of Charlene Beaudin, 33, who they allegedly abducted in Marquette after their escape.

They also were wanted for questioning in the Sunday robbery-murder of Kenneth Kasprzyk, 17.

already smacked of nepotism, opposed hiring young Jack Ford. But John Mitchell and Jeb Magruder passed this word: pressure from then House minority leader Ford could not be ignored. Jack Ford now says he is "disillusioned" with Mr. Nixon, but he worked hard for him in CREEP's youth division at $100 a week between May 15 and Nov. 15, 1972.

Limping with a cane after knee surgery, Jerry Ford himself managed to attend ribbon-cutting ceremonies at CREEP's Washington Storefront offices on Aug. 11. Not then or any other time during the campaign did CREEP officials hear Ford complain that the Republican National Committee, not CREEP, should be running the campaign.

(Continued from page 4) compared to $2.1 billion for the first quarter of 1973, while Amoco's revenues rose to $2.28 billion from $1.47 billion.

Meanwhile, Ashland Oil, a smaller firm, said Monday its profits for the quarter were $19.4 million, or 75 cents a share, 22 per cent above the level one year ago. Ashland's earnings were down, however, from the last quarter of 1973, when they were $34.4 million.

Security analysts and government officials said the huge jump in profits is bound to affect debate over an energy bill now in Congress. They said the earnings, added to similar strong gains in the last three months of 1973, may lead to a strengthening of an oil windfall profits tax bill now in the House Ways and Means Committee.

Continued demand for petroleum and higher crude prices are the principle reasons for the higher profits, analysts said.

William Walker, general counsel for the Federal Energy Office, said the sharp increase in crude oil costs has given the oil companies a substantial increase in inventory profits, which are accounting changes which result from goods increasing in value while in storage.

In addition, Walker said, the international firms may gain from better margins and higher prices for oil products abroad. Gulf Oil took note of "improved margins in Western Europe and higher price levels on the crude oil the company produced for itself."

Vaeth is convinced that every such question can be answered affirmatively. The technology of metallurgy has made prodigious gains since the days of the Hindenburg. Weather hazards can now be detected and avoided. In today's world, concerned about energy, environment, and underdeveloped nations, the airship offers advantages no other form of transportation can match.

As Vaeth reasonably observes, dirigibles take off on their own silent gas. They navigate with little fuel. They can reach far into the interior of Africa or South America, and they can load and unload without monstrous concrete runways. Floating leisurely at low altitudes, they would provide luxurious cruise ships. Of greater economic importance, they could move tremendous quantities of freight—lettuce, perishable fruits, fresh vegetables and the like—from the West Coast to the East Coast in 36 hours.

Vaeth's favorite dream is of a giant airship, the "Spirit of America," or the "Spirit of '76" built as a bicentennial symbol of the imagination and boldness of the United States. Throughout the bicentennial period, it would make its friendly perience known in state visits, mercy missions, and disaster relief around the world. It is a captivating dream. What its needs, right now, is money.

If Planters can offer 7.25% savings certificates with a 7.52% annual yield, how come everyone else isn't doing it?

$1,000 Minimum Deposit. Four Year Maturity.

They might if they could. But very few banks have the unique computer system that Planters has.

Our new system compounds the interest on our 7.25% certificates on a daily basis. So if your interest and principal are held to maturity for four years, you get the extra advantage of a 7.52%* effective annual yield.

If you don't want your interest compounded and retained with your certificate, you can be paid quarterly by check or we can transfer your interest to another PNB checking or savings account.

Either way, with PNB's 7.25% certificates you can watch your money earn more without lifting a finger to help it. Invest it and forget it.

Come talk to a Planters banker or send in the coupon below. But do it soon, because our new savings certificates are available for a limited time only.

You wouldn't expect an offer this good to go on forever!

Possibly $1 Million For Agnew's Book-Writing

BY MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew already has been assured of more than $300,000 for his novel and could get more than $1 million, his agent said Monday.

And, the agent, Scott Meredith, said Agnew is committed by contract to visit England for five days to promote the novel, "A Very Special Relationship."

on its publication there by W.H. Allen Ltd.

Meredith said the visit could come as early as next January or February if Agnew completes the book by September as he hopes to, or as late as May if Agnew writes up to his contractual deadline in December.

Meredith has periodically issued reports on new contracts for the book, always giving general rather than exact figures on the amount Agnew would receive.

In addition to the British contract, he said contracts had been signed for Japanese publication by Hayakawa Shobo, Portuguese publication by Moraes, Greek publication by Labrakis Press and Flemish serialization by the Brussels newspaper De Post.

He said Spanish, Brazilian and French offers had been turned down, but that he anticipated signing 20 more foreign contracts. Movie rights have not been sold.

Asked about the monetary figures, Meredith replied, "In some countries over $100,000. The British and German contracts definitely. But in France nobody's ever got over $100,000." No German contract has been signed.

He said the U.S. contract, with Playboy Press, was the highest, which would put it over $100,000.

He put the contract for U.S. serial rights with Ladies Home Journal at over $100,000 and said, "In total, this book could bring more than $1,000,000."

In England, Agnew is to appear on television, hold news conferences and meet publishing executives as part of the promotion of the novel, an account of a vice president a decade in the future who becomes the dupe of Iranian militants seeking a U.S.-Soviet confrontation.

Dr. Jack K. Williams, president of Texas A&M University, will speak at East Carolina University's annual commencement ceremony Sunday, May 26.

Approximately 2,000 ECU undergraduates and graduates will receive degrees at the commencement.

Dr. Williams spent more than 18 years on the staff of Clemson University, S. C., leaving as academic vice president. He has also been academic vice president of the six-campus University of Tennessee System and chancellor of the University of Tennessee's health education campus in Memphis.

He was also Texas' first commissioner of higher education, serving from 1966 until 1968.

A native of Galax, Va., Dr. Williams is an alumnus of Emory and Henry College, with advanced degrees from Emory University, Atlanta, Ga. He also holds honorary doctorates from the University of Florida, Austin College and his alma mater.

The author of the book "Vogues in Villany," he has published numerous papers in American history and educational administration.

Dr. Williams is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Kappa Phi honor societies and is current chairman of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools' Commission of Colleges, and president of the national Federation of Regional Accrediting Commissions of Higher Education.

In addition, he is chairman of the Veterans Affairs Committee of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges and chairman of the Council of Presidents, Public Senior Colleges and Universities in Texas.

He is also a board member for Frozen Food Express Industries, Inc.; Anderson, Clayton and Company; and Campbell-Taggart Company.

Assume Threats Are From SLA

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The FBI says it "can't take the chance" that the two latest messages purported to be from the Symbionese Liberation Army are not authentic.

The FBI said it will assume the messages are real because they threaten to kill policemen if SLA members are harmed and because the life of newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst may still be in danger.

The messages, signed by a "General Pax," do not reflect the usual pattern of the terrorist group. They were received Monday by the Sacramento Bee, and said five California peace officers would be executed for any SLA member killed.

The SLA, a group which authorities believe is multiracial, heavily armed and numbers about 25 young men and women, claims responsibility for the Feb. 4 kidnapping of Miss Hearst.

John Reed, agent in charge of the Sacramento FBI office, said the FBI cannot assume the messages received by the Bee are not the real thing.

"Since the life of the victim is still in jeopardy and the lives of police officers are in jeopardy, we can't take that chance," Reed said.

African Food Will Be Workshop Topic

There is a tendency to relate Afro-American "soul food" to African food, despite the difference between the two. This difference will be the subject of a workshop demonstration conducted by Dr. Robert Bunker. Dr. Bunker will make a presentation on the preparation of African dishes. In addition, he will also prepare several dishes for the audience to sample.

According to Dr. Bunker, there are several African dishes that are very simple and inexpensive to prepare. He has been known to feed ten people for one dollar.

Following the food workshop, Dr. Jo Saunders and Dr. Robert Bunker will conduct a workshop on African dances. In addition to demonstrating several native African dances, members of the audience will be taught the dances. The dances are easy to learn. Music for the workshop will be performed by a live rhythmic section consisting of African students.

These two workshops will be conducted Wednesday April 24, at 7:30 p.m. in room 201 of the Student Union. There is no admission. The program is being sponsored by the African Studies Committee and is being held in conjunction with the Black Arts Festival.

Investigated 2 Accidents

An estimated $775 damage resulted in two collisions investigated by Greenville police yesterday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 4:25 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Tenth Street involving cars driven by Barbara McDaniel Johnson of 207 Adams Blvd. and Linda Lupton Brown of 133 North Library St.

Investigators, who said no injuries resulted, estimated damage at $200 to each of the two cars.

Mrs. Brown was charged with following too closely.

Hellen Layrutha Nelson of Route 1, Grifton was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of an 11:30 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Maxwell Street.

Police said the Nelson car collided with a vehicle operated by Wayne West Phillips of 111 Leon Dr. causing an estimated $175 damage to the Nelson car and about $200 damage to the Phillips auto.

No injuries were reported.

Olive Branch Extended Factions In Lutheran Doctrinal Argument

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—The president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod appears to have offered an olive branch to feuding sides in a doctrinal dispute in the 2.8-million-member denomination.

At a news conference Monday on the closing day of the four-day convention of the South-eastern District, Dr. Jacob A. O. Preus said he was anxious to "place" seminary students who bolted in February from the church's Concordia Seminary in St. Louis, Mo.

He said constitutional provisions would have to be met in allowing the students to return to the seminary but that "each side" in the dispute "has to bend."

The difference is that the remaining faculty at Concordia would have to certify students for placement in parishes and the students would have to accept certification.

The students, along with a majority of the faculty, since have formed a "seminary in exile, called Seminex," and have refused to follow the dictates of the seminary's board of control, thus adding to the constitutional tangle of the doctrinal matter.

The district convention voted to continue funding seminarians at Seminex and to allow congregations to seek Seminex pastors through the district president, Dr. Charles S. Mueller of Silver Spring, Md.

As serious as the differences are between theological conservatives and liberals in the church, Preus said he doesn't see the conflict leading to a schism.

As far as doctrinal differences with the faculty are concerned, Preus said a background report indicates that "a great majority of the faculty did not have any serious doctrinal deviations or positions."

Mueller, who has differed with Preus on the doctrinal matter, says the church problems can be solved if the confusion over positions of power can be resolved.

In essence, the church's approach to control functions is congregational but also tied to doctrinal guidance from the governing body of the denomination. One Lutheran defined it

Monday as being "Baptist with doctrine."

"I think that if we could get our policy concerns wrapped up, we could understand what our authority relationships are," said Mueller. "Once we get the people on the top of the pyramid and the leaders on the bottom, we can get something done."

One of Mueller's responsibilities in the doctrinal dispute will be to seek accreditation for some of the Seminex students. During the opening days of the convention, delegates authorized congregations to seek new pastors from Seminex through Mueller.

The action, which can be used only with seminarians from the district, is the only way local churches could get around a synodical dispute that prevents calls to nonaccredited clergymen.

The convention of some 450 delegates from 153 congregations strung from Delaware to South Carolina managed to close out their convention Monday with a flurry of business, most of which had been pushed aside to deal with synod problems of the church.

The convention bogged down only on racial issues with a small but vocal minority trying to tone down legislation dealing with the elimination of "racism" in religious education and with the backing of the district Commission to Combat Racism.

Included in the religious education legislation is the replacement of "white oriented" educational materials with "multiracial" materials, the recruitment and inclusion of minority teachers and students for educational ministries.

The Rev. Bryant E. Clancey of Charlotte, N. C., elected second vice president of the district—the highest position attained by a black in the district—said later the district black caucus "achieved its primary goals."

He said those goals included his election, although he is the outgoing third vice president; the commitment of the requirement that blacks be given "primary" consideration in filling district executive positions in a reorganized structure, and the changes in the educational materials.

"There is no doubt in my mind that the problems of the synod will have a depressant effect on evangelism," he said.

In other action Monday, the convention:

—Urged congregations to study the possibility of separating confirmation and communion practices which historically have dictated that first communion is not received until after confirmation.

—Sought synodical action to grant delegate status to advisory members of districts, such as professional workers.

—Sought further synod approval of giving a single vote at district conventions to each congregation that share pastors.

Firms Plan Pay Boosts

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Two major textile companies and an apparel firm Monday announced plans for employee wage increases.

All three have headquarters in Greensboro.

Cone Mills Corp. and Burlington Industries Inc. are the textile firms. Bates Nitewear Co. Inc. is the apparel maker.

Burlington is the world's largest textile company and Cone is the Greensboro area's largest single employer.

The companies would not say how large the increases will be, but published reports indicate Burlington's raises would amount to about 10 per cent.

Cone's increases will be effective May 13, in nonunion plants in North Carolina and South Carolina. A company spokesman said negotiations for pay raises have been scheduled with the union representing workers in its plants where collective bargaining agreements are in effect. Nearly half the company's 12,000 employees are in Greensboro and Guilford County.

Burlington's manufacturing division will raise wages within the next month. Most increases are expected to be in effect by May 20. About 69,000 employees will be affected by the Burlington wage hike.

Bates Nitewear's raise will be given to salaried and hourly employees. The company has about 500 employees in Greensboro and 300 in Yadkinville. This raise is its third in the past 12 months.

Hikes Asked By Railroads

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's railroads say "an urgent need for additional revenue" is prompting them to request permission for a 10 per cent hike in freight rates.

In a petition Monday to the Interstate Commerce Commission, the industry warned that some major rail carriers "are in immediate danger of ceasing operations because of lack of cash."

While reliance on railroads for freight transportation is increasing, the industry told the ICC, resources to meet that demand "are grossly insufficient."

The railroads said the requested 10 per cent increase, plus a 1 per cent rate hike still pending for eastern and western regions, would produce about $1.6 billion annually.

Of this total, $932 million would be needed to offset increased expenses, taxes and rents, leaving a net increase of $668 million in operating income.

According to the railroads, the boost in net income would result in an industrywide rate of return of 5.27 per cent, less than what the ICC said in a 1971 rate case was an adequate level of earnings.

The petition to the ICC said current net earnings "are favorable only in comparison with the deeply depressed levels of other recent years and are significantly lower than the levels of 20 years ago."

In the same test, USAC certified that a Plymouth Duster and a Dodge Dart Sport, equipped with a 225 "Slant Six" engine and new standard 2.76 rear axle, got much better gas mileage than Nova or Maverick, with six-cylinder engines—did better than a four-cylinder Mustang II in the city and comparably on the highway.

Tickets On Sale For Game, Fete

Tickets for both the East Carolina University football Purple-Gold game and the ECU football banquet will go on sale tomorrow at the Minges Coliseum ticket office.

The Purple-Gold game will be held at 7:30 p.m. on Saturday, May 4; and will be the first full-game workout by the Pirates under their new coach, Pat Dye. Tickets are $1 for adults and 50-cents for area students. East Carolina students will be admitted on their IDs.

The banquet, to be held at 7 p.m. on Monday, May 6, will be held at the Greenville Moose Lodge, with a limited number of tickets available. They are $6 each.

Frank Howard, former Clemson University football coach, will be the main speaker.

Meanwhile, the Pirates continued their workouts Monday, working mainly on technique.

Coach Dye assessed the scrimmage Saturday following a review of films. He stated that he was pleased but that the Bucs still have a long way to go.

He singled out the work of offensive tackle Ricky Bennett, noting that "he improves every day," along with offensive lineman Jack Dove, switched from defense only a week ago.

He also praised fullbacks Tom Daub and Don Schink.

"Several defensive people are making vast improvement also," Dye said, but did not single out any individuals.

"We just don't have enough time left to get in all we want to," he added.

Bucks Complete Four-Game Sweep

By JERRY LISKA

AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — "The Big J," dead as ever, and "The Big O," evergreen pro, have the Milwaukee Bucks primed and ready to strike for the National Basketball Association championship.

The Bucks exploded in the second half for a 115-99 goring of the Chicago Bulls Monday night in the Chicago Stadium to waltz off with a four-game sweep of their Western Conference final series.

Milwaukee now marks time, awaiting the NBA title showdown against the winner of the current Eastern final series between the Boston Celtics and the New York Knicks.

The Boston-New York argument resumes Wednesday night in Boston with the Celtics holding a 3-1 edge in the best-of-7 series.

In the American Basketball Association, Indiana kept alive Monday night in the Western Division playoff with Utah, winning 110-101 to trail 3-2 in the quest to face New York in the ABA title round.

As Milwaukee advanced to the final NBA round with eight victories in nine playoff games against the Los Angeles Lakers and Bulls, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar sky-hooked 38 points and plucked off 24 rebounds.

But it was the 35-year-old Robertson who applied the coup de grace to the overmatched Bulls. Big O, in his 14th NBA season, went scoreless as the Bulls fought to a 52-48 halftime lead, but then he turned the tide with three quick baskets starting the second half.

Robertson scored 10 of his game total of 16 points in the third quarter when the Bucks broke the game open with 12 unanswered points to surge ahead 75-66 and then coast to an easy victory.

"I never saw Oscar play any better. He simply turned the game around for them," said unhappy Bulls Coach Dick Motta, whose club was obliterated in its first NBA second-round effort in history.

In the ABA, Indiana's Pacers stayed alive against the Utah Stars, after once trailing 3-0 in their series, on 29-points each by Mel Daniels and George McGinnis.

Utah missed the services of ailing Zelmo Beaty, who also may be benched by an infection for Thursday's sixth contest at Terre Haute, Ind.

New York gained the ABA title round with a four-game sweep against Kentucky in their Eastern final series.

Semi-Pro Opening

The Belvoir Bombers and the Jollie Giants took wins in the opening games of the area semi-pro league Sunday.

Belvoir rolled to a 27-2 victory over the Hamilton Hornets, coming up with 16 runs in the seventh inning. They had scored one in the first, another in the second and two each in the third and fourth before their big outburst. Five more came in the ninth.

Hamilton scored one each in the first and ninth.

Jollie scored two in the first, then came up with four in the third. Another crossed in the sixth, with three scoring in the eighth.

Jamesville got three in the third, one in the sixth and three more in the seventh.

Hector Cruz of the St. Louis Cardinals was chosen most valuable player in the Texas League in 1973. Playing for Arkansas he led the league with 30 homers and 105 runs batted in. He hit .328, second best figure in the circuit.

Ayden-Grifton Second In Four-Way Meeting

WHEAT SWAMP—Southern Wayne High School gained victory in a four-way track meet held at North Lenoir High School.

Southern finished with 83 points, while Ayden-Grifton was second with 66. D. H. Conley finished with 51, while hosting North Lenoir brought up the rear with 47.

The individual victories were spread out, with North Lenoir winning five events, while Ayden-Grifton and Southern Wayne each took four. Conley won one event. Conley and Southern Wayne took relay wins.

Mack won three events for Southern Wayne, taking the high hurdles, the 100 and the 220-yard dashes. Jesse Brown was a double winner for Ayden-Grifton, winning the high jump and the low hurdles. North Lenoir's Russ won both the 880 and the mile runs.

Ayden-Grifton and Conley will take part in the Pitt County meet on Friday.

Kinston Pounds Ayden-Grifton

LITTLEFIELD—Kinston High School rolled to a 10-0 victory over Ayden-Grifton High School last night.

Franklin Blackwell tossed a one-hit shutout at the Chargers for Kinston. He struck out 11 and walked only two.

Kinston jumped into the lead in the second inning, gaining a pair of runs. Blackwell reached on an error and Colin McDuffy made it 2-0 with a home run blast.

In the third, Kinston added another run. Shelton Fisher walked and was sacrificed up. Sotello Long then singled him in for a 3-0 advantage.

In the fourth, three more runs crossed the plate for the Vikings. McDuffy singled and Karren Rhem walked. Duffy Johnson singled and all three runners scored on Fisher's double. That made it 6-0.

Two more came over in the fifth. Rob Jones singled and scored on Jeff Head's triple. Blackwell then singled in Head.

The final two scored in the seventh. Jones singled and Head reached on an error. McDuffy then doubled in both runners.

Chicod In Win

CHICOD—Chicod Junior High School gained a 5-3 victory over Grifton yesterday.

Jimmy Dixon tossed the victory for Chicod, while R. Edwards was tagged with the loss.

Mike Teachey led the Grifton hitting with a homer and a triple. No one else on either team had more than one hit.

Chicod is now 3-1.

She's Learned Her Way Around

By KEN ALYTA
Associated Press Sports Writer
PINEHURST, N.C. (AP)—National amateur golf champion Carol Semple, who spent the winter months selling real estate in the Dominican Republic, has demonstrated again she knows her way around the acreage of the Pinehurst Country Club's no. 2 course.

She went into today's 16-match first round of the North and South Amateur with her confidence boosted by her third medal-winning performance here in four years.

The tall, sturdy 25-year-old blonde from Sewickley, Pa., and little Mrs. Nancy Roth Syms, two-time winner from Colorado Springs, Colo., bested the course in a steady wind Monday to share medal honors with 70s, four under women's par for the shortened 5,900-yard course. They were three shots ahead of Debbie Massey of Bethlehem, Pa.

Long-hitting Miss Semple, who birdied four holes in a row starting with no. 3, also tied for the medal in 1972 and won it outright the year before.

But in a half dozen appearances here the daughter of U.S. Golf Association president Harton Semple has never survived the quarter finals.

Before she won the U.S. title last year, the achievement was proudest of, was a ninth place tie in the 1972 U.S. Open — or, as she put it, "I was second-row amateur."

She said winning the national title "has given me a lot more confidence." Her overall play reflects this observation.

Her opponent today was Liana Zambresky, reigning Trans-National champion from Pebble Beach, Calif., in the top lower bracket match.

The same half of the draw includes such title threats as Mrs. Marlene Streit of Ontario, Canada, 1956 champion; Miss Massey, winner of three Florida tournaments this year; Lancy Smith of Snyder, N.Y., Curtis Cup player two years ago; and Cynthia Hill of Colorado Springs, Colo., who'd like to be on this year's cup team.

Top player in the upper bracket was Beth Barry of Mobile, Ala., 25-year-old defending champion who was exempt from qualifying. Her opponent was Mrs. Anne Dana of Lancaster, Pa.

Other favorites in the top half were Western Amateur champion Mrs. Katie Falk of Milwaukee, Wis.; Connie Day of Cleveland, Tenn.; and Mrs. Syms, who shot a record 69 to win the medal nine years ago.

Seventy players competed in the qualifying round with 84 the cut off score.

Two rounds Wednesday will be followed by semifinals Thursday and the 18-hole finals Friday.

Group Putting The Fish Back

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Man is not a fish's best friend, but some bass anglers are trying hard to make the relationship livable for the fish at the wrong end of the hook.

Putting the bass back into the water instead of into the frying pan is the aim of a new program called "Don't Kill Your Catch," and schools of bass should be happy to read the project's statistics.

The Bass Anglers Sportsmen's Society (BASS), which began the program, says that 82.5 per cent of the fish caught at its tournaments so far this year have been returned to the water. And a record 97.8 per cent return was made in competition earlier this month at Beaver Lake, Ark.

The pros, says BASS President Ray Scott of Montgomery, "treat their bass like babies. They pamper them from catch-to-scales like you wouldn't believe."

Under the program, the fisherman receives an extra ounce credit for each bass brought alive to the scales. Scott says careful handling is the essential factor in the fish's survival.

Tests have been run by BASS to check on the effects of handling — and one of the tests produced a result that sounds like the proverbial fisherman's exaggeration. Two hundred bass were kept in a holding pond to see how many would survive after being handled during weighing and more than 40,000 survived.

Actually, of the 200 put in the holding pond for two weeks, 178 were still alive and healthy at the end of the test. But some had mated during the sojourn, and some 40,000 new baby bass were calling the pond home when the test was concluded.

Clyde Looks To The Derby

LOUISVILLE (AP) — "Around the barn we just call him Clyde," Monti Sims said at Churchill Downs, waving his hand toward Destroyer — the big colt he's training for a Kentucky Derby try.

"That's because he's a big old country horse," Sims said of the Santa Anita Derby winner, a horse that stands about 47 hands (5 feet, 8 inches).

"In the Santa Anita Derby he started the pace from the stretch when Aloha Mood moved three-quarters of a length ahead," the trainer said.

"My colt dug in, fought back and won by a head."

The Florida-bred son of Vitorio out of a Nashua mare has a good chance in the 100th run for the Roses on May 4 if the track is right, Sims added Monday.

"I wouldn't trade this horse for any other in the Kentucky Derby if the track is dry," he said. "Destroyer can't handle an off track."

On a fast track though, Sims said, Destroyer looks like a Kentucky Derby winner. The Santa Anita Derby was 1 1/4 miles; the Kentucky Derby is 1 1/4 miles.

And Sims says, "Destroyer figures to get stronger as the distances stretch out."

NFL Talking Of Expanding

By HOWARD SINER
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League, which may lose dozens of players in 1975, begins talking seriously today about the possibility of adding anywhere from one to five teams that year.

The 26 NFL teams, concerned about unresolved negotiations with its players and potential competition from the infant World Football League, begins what is expected to be at least three days of meetings to mull over the granting of franchises to Memphis, Seattle, Phoenix, Tampa and Honolulu.

In the last NFL expansion, the Cincinnati Bengals joined the league in 1968 at a cost of about $8.5 million. This time the entry fee will likely exceed $10 million. If the NFL does decide to expand, the guess is it will add two teams for the 1975 season.

If there are "favorite" and "longshot" roles, they belong to Memphis and Honolulu, respectively, thanks to the emergence of the 12-team WFL, preparing to begin competition in July.

Memphis was originally a part of the WFL's plans — but the city told the league, "thanks ... but no thanks."

It said it was holding out for a shot at an NFL team.

But remote Honolulu, affected by scheduling and travel problems stemming from the energy crisis, perhaps further dimmed its NFL prospects by accepting a WFL franchise. That created the possibility of an unpredictable legal battle for a limited audience of only 650,000, smallest regional population of the five candidate cities.

Yastrzemski, Nearing 35, Is Playing Like A Kid These Days

By DAVE O'HARA
AP Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Closing in on his 35th birthday, Carl Yastrzemski of the Boston Red Sox is playing like a spritely kid. He resembles the Yaz who won the American League's Triple Crown in 1967, but he refuses to look back.

"I'll never forget '67 because I had such a wonderful year and we won the pennant, but there's no sense in looking back," Yaz said Monday night after hitting two homers and a single for three runs batted in in Boston's 4-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

It was the only game played in the American League. In the lone National League game scheduled Monday night, the Houston Astros blanked the Atlanta Braves 7-0.

Yaz, named team captain by new Manager Darrell Johnson in spring training, is wrecking opposing pitchers. He is batting .360 with six homers and five doubles among his 18 hits in triggering the Red Sox into the AL East lead with a 9-5 record. His slugging percentage? A whopping .860. And it has resulted in 16 runs batted in. He also leads the Red Sox with 11 runs scored.

Yastrzemski, whose single scored a run in the first inning, drilled a shot over the Boston bullpen into the bleachers in right center for his homer in the sixth. Then, in the eighth, he lined a shot into straightaway center for another homer.

"Yes, I would say that he's swinging a pretty good bat," Boston Manager Darrell Johnson said with a smile after the Red Sox' fourth consecutive victory. "We need him, and he knows it."

Yaz, who will be 35 in August, singled and grounded out against Kansas City starter Nelson Briles. He unloaded the homers against reliever Joe Hoerner, who went looking for another pitch to throw the Boston slugger the next time he faces him.

ACC Holds Tourney

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—With Clemson drawing a bye, the other six Atlantic Coast Conference baseball teams play Thursday in three sudden death elimination games for the ACC tournament.

Under the pairings announced Monday, Clemson, the league's regular season champion with a 10-1 record, moves directly into the double elimination playoffs to be held Friday through Sunday.

In Thursday's games, second place North Carolina (9-3) meets last place Wake Forest (0-12) on N. C. State's diamond in Raleigh. Third place N. C. State (7-4) plays sixth place Duke at North Carolina in Chapel Hill. Fourth place Virginia (6-6) meets fifth place Maryland (5-6) at Duke.

If State wins against Duke, the tournament will be played in Raleigh. If State loses, the tournament will be held in Chapel Hill.

Astros 7, Braves 0

"I'm only a growing boy," said Cesar Cedeño after blasting a pair of homers to back Claude Osteen's seven-hit shut-out pitching. "I've got some power now and I'm going to get some more."

"I'm only 23. I think my power will be to all fields when I get my full strength."

Cedeño followed Roger Metzger's single with a two-run blast off Roric Harrison in the Astros' three-run fifth. He hit a three-run blast in the seventh, following Greg Gross' double and a walk to Metzger.

His third and fourth homers of the season gave him 23 runs batted in, pushing him into the major league lead.

The shutout was Osteen's first with the Astros and 39th of his major league career, ranking him second to the 55 posted by St. Louis ace Bob Gibson among active pitchers.

Wake In Golf Lead

SANFORD, N.C. (AP)—Bob Byman, Wake Forest freshman, took a one-stroke lead into today's second round of the 54-hole Atlantic Coast Conference Golf Tournament.

He shot a one-over-par 73 Monday. There was no sub-par rounds. High winds and the length of the Carolina Trace course, 7,000 yards, helped keep totals high.

At 74 were Skip Dunaway of North Carolina and Vance Hefner of North Carolina State. Defending champion Jay Haas, a Wake Forest sophomore, opened with 79.

Wake Forest also led in team competition. Based on scores of the best five shotmakers on each team, the Deacons had 389 strokes, only one better than North Carolina. Next in order came N.C. State 394, Marland 411, Duke 412, Clemson 415 and Virginia 431.

Brad Burris of North Carolina was fourth with 77. Tied for fifth at 78 were Ken Dye of N.C. State, Bob Caprera of Duke and Bill Agrabite of Wake Forest.

This is the 21st annual tournament.

Nicklaus Pick In Champ Field

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Notes from the pro golf tournament trail:

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus has been installed as the favorite, at 4-1, for this week's $200,000 Tournament of Champions.

Lee Trevino, who finished second to Nicklaus by a single stroke last year, was named as the second choice by Las Vegas' bookies. He was listed at 6-1.

Dave Stockton, Tom Weiskopf and Johnny Miller were at 8-1 and the group at 10-1 included Gene Littler, Billy Casper, Jerry Heard, Lanny Wadkins and Hubert Green.

Lefty Sam Adams was the longshot at 100-1.

"I was just lucky I was home," in Sherman, Tex., he said. "My wife rushed me to the hospital. If I'd been alone, on the road somewhere by myself, I'd have died."

Chris Blocker, after two seasons of part-time participation on the tour, plans to return to full-time competition.

"For the last couple of years I've only played in maybe 10, 12 tournaments a year," Blocker said. "I was all involved in developing a line of clubs, and Billy Maxwell and I had a club in Jacksonville, Fla."

"Everything is going fine," he said. "But I found out the world of business ain't as much fun as playing golf."

On a per capita basis, the T of C is the highest priced tournament on the tour. It figures out to about $8,000 in prize money for each entrant.

Monsanto is withdrawing its sponsorship of the tournament that has carried its name for the six years in Pensacola, Fla., and the future of the tournament is uncertain.

Masters champion Gary Player of South Africa is missing the Tournament of Champions for just one reason—he has to.

Shortly after his return to competition following major surgery last season, the little globetrotter signed a two-year contract to compete in a Japanese event. It's being held this week.

Player signed the contract before he won last year's Southern Open, which made him eligible for this event.

A victory in the T of C would make Gene Littler golf's seventh $1 million winner.

Player became the sixth man to go to seven figures in career winnings when he won the Masters, joining Nicklaus, Trevino, Casper, Arnold Palmer and Australian Bruce Crampton in that select circle.

Littler is next on the alltime list with $965,402. The first prize in the T of C is $40,000, enough to push him over the mark. Weiskopf has career earnings of $944,865.

By The Associated Press
LONDON (AP) — Basil Reay, secretary of the International Lawn Tennis Federation, says Rhodesia has "suddenly withdrawn" its team from the Women's Federation Cup Tournament scheduled for Naples May 12-19.

"The reason, I suspect," Reay explained Monday, "is that, under the United Nations ruling, it would be extremely difficult for a Rhodesian team to get visas."

BREST, France (AP) — Eric Tabarly brought his yacht, Penduick VI, into port here Monday night after being forced to abandon the Round-the-World Race only a few hundred miles from the finish line in Britain.

The unluckiest man of the race, Tabarly twice had the mainmast break during the marathon event. Finally a weld on the mast broke again in the Atlantic on the last run to Plymouth.

Though he made temporary repairs, the mast risked breaking again and Tabarly abandoned the event and ran for Brest. He said he did not think the basic design of the yacht was at fault. "Penduick has all the qualities needed. In a month we will set off again for the Newport-to-Bermuda Race."

LONDON (AP) — Newcastle United, an English soccer cup finalist, has been banned from playing any cup games on its own ground next season. The punishment, handed out Monday by a disciplinary commission of the Football Association, followed an investigation into a crowd riot at Newcastle's St. James Park Stadium during a March 9 cup quarter-final tie against Nottingham Forest.

The move was seen in effect as a punishment for Newcastle fans and not the club.

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP) — Wofford, Francis Marion and South Carolina State posted team totals of 374 to deadlock for the first-round lead in the NAIA District 6 championship at Lan-Yair Golf Club.

Mrs. Allende Working Against Chilean Junta

MRS. SALVADOR ALLENDE, wife of the late president of Chile, is greeted recently by well-wishers at Calcutta Airport, India. (AP Wirephoto)

By EDWARD CODY
Associated Press Writer
NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Salvador Allende's widow is campaigning around the world against the military junta that toppled her husband's leftist government and took over Chile last September.

She has visited a dozen countries in Latin America, Europe and Asia to speak before all kinds of audiences in a lonely effort to preserve the memory of her Marxist husband and his attempt to lead Chile into socialism without violence.

"The battle is against fascists... We have to defeat the military junta that is now governing in Chile," she said in an interview in New Delhi. "We can't rest until the military junta is defeated."

During a two-week tour of India as guest of the National Federation of Indian Women, Mrs. Allende, 59, has met with Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, President V.V. Giri and leaders of Parliament.

She has also spoken to students, newsmen and anybody else willing to listen. Her message: a denunciation of the new Chilean regime's repression and charges that the United States had a hand in her husband's downfall.

The Chilean Embassy in New Delhi issued a statement denying her charges and accusing her of vilifying her own country.

Mrs. Allende came to India from Japan. Before that she had been in Finland attending an unofficial tribunal investigating charges of torture against the Chilean junta headed by Gen. Augusto Pinochet. From India, she will return to Europe.

She said previous speaking tours have taken her twice to the United States and Cuba and once each to Canada, Britain, Italy, Venezuela, Berlin and Bulgaria.

Tax-Cutting Ranks Reinforced

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield has joined a growing number of Congress members supporting a substantial tax cut to help Americans hard hit by spiralling inflation.

However, Chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board said Monday he opposes a tax cut. Rather, the board plans to use money and interest policies to fight inflation, even though such policies could hurt the home building industry, Burns said.

Mansfield, noting increasing support for a tax cut among legislators and economists, said, "This is something we can do for the average working stiff who's carrying the load in this country."

Inflation is running at a rate of more than 10 per cent annually, according to government statistics.

Mansfield said the revenue lost through a tax cut could be made up by closing tax loopholes and by reducing spending for defense, foreign aid and space.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, the acting Republican leader, told newsmen he does not think there is going to be a tax cut this year. But he added that one might be justified if necessary to head off a recession.

Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., a senior member of the Senate Finance Committee, said Congress ought to be talking about balancing the budget instead of cutting taxes.

"Let's deal with the cause of inflation and not fool the American people with talk about a tax cut," Curtis said.

Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., also have urged a tax reduction.

In the House, Speaker Carl

Albert of Oklahoma and Chairman Wilbur D. Mills of the powerful Ways and Means Committee have indicated they would support such a move unless there is a marked upturn in the economy soon.

Burns did not elaborate on his opposition to a tax cut.

However, administration spokesmen have said that a tax reduction would be inflationary and would not have any immediate effect on the economy.

Morgan Lists Outlays Of $348,705 For Race

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan says he had spent $348,705 in his Democratic primary campaign for the U. S. Senate through April 15 and had received $353,977.

The figures were contained in a report filed Monday with the secretary of the U. S. Senate. Copies also were filed with North Carolina Secretary of State Thad Eure. Morgan reported he had received $145,630 in individual contributions and $140,000 in loans.

Monday was the deadline to file detailed reports of campaign contributions and expenditures.

Democratic U. S. Senate candidate Henry Hall Wilson's report had not been received late Monday.

Nick Galifianakis, Democrat also seeking the U. S. Senate nomination, reported he had spent $55,424 through April 15 and received contributions totaling $59,156. Of his expenditures, $17,591 went for communications-media purposes.

Republican U. S. Senate candidate William E. Stevens reported contributions through April 15 of $6,925 and expenditures of $5,236. He said his campaign was $11,769 in debt as of April 15.

Morgan's report showed that more than half of his expenditures went for communications-media purposes.

The biggest share, $164,000, was paid to Cook Reuf and Associates of Columbia, S. C., which is acting as his political consultant and handling his media campaign. During the March 1-April 15 period Morgan spent $172,167.

His biggest loan was for $75,000 from First Citizens Bank & Trust Co. in Raleigh. It was co-signed by 15 persons. Twenty-two of his contributors gave $1,000 each. Harold M. Edwards, Charlotte attorney, gave $3,500.

The $1,000 contributors included Mrs. Hargrove Bowles of Greensboro; Jean A. Benoy, Cary, attorney with the state Department of Justice; and Leo Brody, Kinston department store owner.

Galifianakis' report showed he had received more than half of his contributions from Chicago men. A Non-Partisan Committee to Elect Nick Galifianakis to the U. S. Senate gave $25,000. Its five members each contributed $5,000. They were listed as Louis Kuchuris, Alexander Valos, Angelo Geocaris, Christ Patreos and Michael Stathos. A Chicago industrialist, Theodore N. Vombrack, donated $5,000.

Ten Democrats and three Republicans are seeking nomination to the U. S. Senate.

Galifianakis' expenditures included $12,500 paid to Martilla, Payne Kiley & Thome Inc., of Boston, his campaign consultants.

Stevens reported that 16 persons had contributed $6,925 to his campaign. James E. Broyhill, Lenoir, chairman of the board of Broyhill Industries, contributed $1,000. Hugh Chatham, Elkin, president of Chatham Manufacturing Co., also gave $1,000.

Stevens' debt included more than $11,000 owed to Art Speciality of Raleigh for billboards and campaign posters.

July 1 Trial Date For Six Slayings

By JIM BARLOW
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Elmer Wayne Henley will go on trial here July 1 in the deaths of six of the 27 teen-aged victims of the Texas mass murder case.

District Court Judge Preston Dial ordered prosecution and defense attorneys to be ready to start jury selection on July 1 and to begin the presentation of testimony on July 8.

The teen-agers were killed in what the state describes as a homosexual torture ring.

In a 20-minute session on Monday, Dial also disposed of nine defense motions. He granted only one.

He refused to move the trial out of San Antonio because of publicity here — the same reason Henley's trial was transferred from Houston. Instead, he said he would try to pick a jury and grant the change of venue only if he were unable to find 12 unprejudiced persons to serve on it.

He also refused to delay the trial because of publicity.

He granted defense lawyer Will Gray's motion to question individually all potential jurors who had heard or read about the case.

No trial date has been set for David Owen Brooks, 19, who is charged with four murders in the case.

The state claims Henley and Brooks procured other teen-aged males for parties given by Dean A. Corli, 33, which ended in homosexual rape and torture.

The bodies of 27 victims were found buried at various locations in and around Houston last August.

TERMITES OR ANTS?

Don't be half sure. Call a professional pest control operator for an inspection today.

The potential damage to property from termites can exceed the damage from tornadoes, hurricanes and fire. This is why termite protection is as important as a homeowner's insurance policy.

Meet To Review Status Of Watershed Project

A meeting to discuss the current status of the Swift Creek Watershed will be held tonight at 7:30 in the Pitt County Court House.

The purpose of the meeting is to determine what is causing delay on the Swift Creek Watershed Project and determine what can be done to resolve the problems.

B. Alton Gardner will preside at the meeting tonight. Included on the program will be the following: Roy Beck, SCS soil conservationist, report on current status of the project; Robert B. Hazel, assistant to executive director, report from N. C. Wildlife Resources Commission; Edward Bradley, field supervisor, report from the U.S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife; Daniel E. McDonald, assistant director, report from Office of Water and Air Resources; and consideration of alternatives from several watershed farmers.

J. H. Canterbury, Ralph C. Heath, David A. Howells, Edward A. Jones and Frank M. Wooten Jr., are expected to make comments during the meeting.

Sponsors of the project include: Pitt County, Pitt County Drainage District No. 3, Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District; Beaufort Soil and Water Conservation District and the Craven Soil and Water Conservation District.

Commissioners for the project include: Elwood C. Davenport, Ray Garris, James B. Smith, Jesse Smith and J. H. Mills Jr.

Surveying Pitt Attitudes On Various Issues

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Interviewers from the Survey Research Center of the University of Michigan will begin contacting families in Pitt County this week in their regular quarterly survey of public attitudes.

The survey asks respondents to express their views about present business and economic conditions, as well as possible future trends. In addition, it asks about a variety of other topics including attitudes toward violence and housing arrangements for the elderly.

Results of the interviews will be published in statistical form. Findings are never identified with any individual person or address.

Local interviewers are Mrs. Virginia Lansche and Mrs. Clara Shackell.

Dr. East Speaks At Duke Univ.

Guggenheim Award To F.P. Brooks

CHAPEL HILL—Frederick P. Brooks Jr., chairman of the Department of Computer Science at the University of North Carolina has been selected to receive a Guggenheim Fellowship.

Brooks is the son of the late Dr. Frederick P. Brooks of Greenville.

He received the award for studies on computer architecture and in the human factors of computer systems.

Brooks will spend seven months in England at Cambridge University doing research in the Computer Laboratory. He has been chairman of the Dept. of Computer Science since 1964 at UNC, and is the co-author of a book and many professional papers.

He was selected by the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation's Committee of Selection from among 2,668 applicants in the annual competition.

The subjects proposed by the Fellows range through science, scholarship and the arts. During its 50-year history the Foundation has granted nearly 8,500 Fellowships for a total of $55 million. This year's awards total $4,151,500.

Grifton Offers Tennis Classes

GRIFTON—Beginners tennis classes will be taught in Grifton starting Wednesday afternoon for six weeks.

Classes will be held from 3:30 to 4:30 and from 5 to 6 p.m. at the town park tennis courts.

The instructor will be Jonathan Segal, editor of the Kinston Daily Free Press. He will be assisted by Lynne and Sue Haseley.

Participants are asked to provide their own racquet and either three new tennis balls or $3. Students should wear tennis shoes.

Classes are being sponsored by the Grifton Recreation Commission.

The Worry Clinic

100 Per Cent Belief Needed

Ethel is heart broken at losing the man she loves because of a "Triangle." But her fiancé gave her a choice! She claims she has tried to break away from her former love, but can't. But that's because her resolution is only 75 per cent instead of 100 per cent.

By GEORGE W. CRANE

Ph.D., M.D.

CASE A-613: Ethel C., aged 20, is a college senior.

"Dr. Crane," she moaned, "I'm in terrible trouble."

"For I love a senior boy and we expected to get married when we graduate in June."

"But he says he will not marry me unless I quit my cigarettes."

"Dr. Crane, I simply can't quit!"

"For I have been smoking 3 packs a day ever since I came to the university."

"Oh, I have tried several times to break the habit, for I have often dated football players and other athletes on campus."

"But they don't smoke and some of them have been bold enough to tell me they can't enjoy kissing a human smoke stack!"

75 Percent

Vs. 100 Percent

When tobacco, liquor or drug addicts say they have tried to kick the habit, they are talking about 75 percent resolution vs. 100 percent.

They are like the announcer who was ballyhooing a tightwire performer at Niagara Falls.

The announcer told the awed crowd that the death defying feat involved walking clear across the Falls with nothing but a balancing rod to prevent his dropping to his death.

Next, the tightwire artist even rode a bicycle across the taut wire, while everybody held his breath in suspense.

"Do you want to see him ride the bike across the Falls a second time?" boomed the announcer, and the crowd roared approval.

Meanwhile the tightwire artist listened to the glowing praise of the announcer.

"Do you really think I can make a second trip safely?" he asked.

"Certainly you can!" the announcer affirmed.

"You really believe that?" asked the tightwire expert.

"Yes, I am positive!" added the announcer.

"All right," replied the performer, "just climb on behind me and we'll make this next trip together!"

But the announcer reneged, for his belief was not 100 percent, despite his previous POSITIVE protest.

And so it is with dieters, tobacco addicts and other slaves of nuisance habits.

We claim we are going on a diet or will quit drugs, tobacco or liquor.

But subconsciously we qualify and hamstring our supposed 100 percent resolution with many subconscious amendments and codicils that reduce our actual will power from 100 percent to 75 percent or less.

Everybody can quit drugs, liquor, tobacco or overeating in an instant if he really wants to do so enough to make his resolution 100 percent.

Ethel should thus quit entirely; not taper off.

To do so, she can substitute use of the same hand and arm, as by carrying candy coated gum in the same pocket or purse.

Then she can go through the same hand-arm movements and chew vigorously to release her extra nervous tension.

For smoking is not primarily a chemical habit but is a "muscle habit," to drain off excess energy.

So send for my booklet "How to Quit Tobacco and Liquor," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠

The number thirteen is lucky for some, especially for bridge players who are able to count that far. South was among that group, and that was the only skill he required to bring home his slam.

South thought he was too good to double three spades for takeout, so he decided to try a cue-bid of four spades before mentioning hearts.

That was sufficient inducement for North to drive the hand to slam. His bid of four no trump asked South to show his suit — it was not

Blackwood because no suit had been agreed upon. After

South bid hearts North showed the ace of spades, and South wisely elected to rebid his solid six-card suit in preference to mentioning his scrawny club suit.

West led the king of spades, and South was only mildly satisfied with his dummy. It seemed that the fate of the contract hinged on the club finesse. However, declarer decided to learn as much about the hand as he could before committing himself.

He won the ace of spades and immediately ruffed a spade, East discarding a diamond. Three rounds of hearts were drawn, and the ace and king of diamonds were cashied, West discarding a spade on the second round of each red suit. Thus, West was marked for exactly seven spades, one heart and one diamond, and therefore four clubs. Suddenly, the odds against the club finesse had become rather strong.

However, South found a way to turn his knowledge of the count of the hand to his advantage. He cashed his last trump, coming down to four clubs in his hand and three clubs and a spade in dummy. West had to guard the queen of clubs and couldn't discard all of his spades lest he set up dummy's spade, so perforce

he came down to one spade and three clubs.

With this groundwork laid, declarer crossed to dummy's king of clubs and led the spade, discarding a club from his hand. West won the trick, but had to concede the slam by leading from his queen of clubs into declarer's ace-jack tenace.

Gradual Decline In Shoot-em-ups

By JAY SHARBUTT

AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Holly-

wood's blank cartridge industry, which enjoyed boom times during television's much-criticized shoot-em-up era of the late 1950s, faces a bleak outlook next season. And it may get worse.

A look at the NBC and CBS program lists for next fall shows TV gunfire and other violence, already on the wane

Congress and citizens' groups, continues to decrease.

ABC has not yet announced its fall schedule.

Shows emphasizing what the trade calls "human values" are on the rise, with the exception of CBS' new "Planet of the Apes" series, which is serious monkey business.

Excluding made-for-TV films or recent movies, which may not have violence, there'll still be the sounds of guns blasting and bodies falling, albeit on a controlled scale, next fall on NBC and CBS.

But save for three shows in which mayhem might occur—

"Gunsmoke," "NBC Sunday

Mystery Movie" and "Adam-

12"—none of the potentially violent series in the new CBS-NBC lineups airs until 9 p.m. EDT.,

when most of the nation's younger viewers theoretically are a-bed.

The strongest indication of the trend toward less violence at any hour is in NBC's new lineup. Out of 12 new entries, one is a situation comedy, two are comedy-dramas and five are "human value" series.

CBS, which gave the last cat-

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Tuesday, April 23, 1974—11

egory impetus by sticking with

"The Waltons" through lean ratings times, also is keeping pace. Only one of its new series, a gumshoe saga named

"Manhunter," portends gunpowder.

In addition to "Planet of the Apes," its other new wares are two sitcoms, "Rhoda" and

"The Paul Sand Show," and three new "human values" series, two of which are half-hour comedy-dramas.

The two are "The Love

Nest," about an elderly couple on Social Security, and "We'll Get By," created by Alan Alda of the "M-A-S-H" gang and concerning the lives of a suburban

New Jersey family.

NBC's five contributions to the "human values" movement are:

—"Born Free," based on the African wildlife book of the same name.

—"The Little House on the Prairie," an American plains series, set in the 1890s and based on the classic books by Laura Ingalls Wilder.

—"The Rangers," about the activities of the U.S. Forest Service.

—"Petrocelli," about a Harvard-educated big city lawyer who hangs out his shingle in a Southwestern cattle town.

—"Lucas Tanner," about a big league pitcher-turned-sports writer who becomes a high school teacher after the death of his wife and young son.

All these shows are an hour long. Two half-hour shows described as comedy dramas, are "Chico and the Man," about an embittered garage owner and his brash young Chicano "partner," and "Sunshine," about a young musician who's supporting an orphan girl.

NBC's eighth nonviolent offering for the fall is a sitcom called "Second Start," about a successful businessman who gives it all up to enter medical school with the help of his family.

In Weekend Activities

RALEIGH—Five Pitt County girls will participate in special activities at Meredith College during Parents' Weekend beginning Saturday.

Cherry Ann Croom of 1410 N. Overlook Dr., Gail Susan Jones of 1502 E. Wright Rd., and Ellen Heath of Rt. 2, Robersonville, will participate in the modern dance program Saturday at 3 p.m. This event will honor the Spring Queen and her court.

They are three of 67 students involved in the dance program, titled "Man's Treasures."

Miss Mary Charles Whitehurst of Bethel is a member of the Aqua Angels, the college performing synchronized swimming group, which will present an aquatic show Saturday at 8:15 p.m.

A member of the college gymnastic group, Miss Maria Tugwell of Farmville, will be one of 14 students participating in the "Swing into Spring" gymnastic program, scheduled for 8:15 p.m. Saturday.

Parents' Weekend will be held Saturday and Sunday.

Representative Sam D. Bundy will be the guest speaker at the Pitt County Unit of the North Carolina Association of Educators' annual banquet Friday at 6:30 p.m. at Farmville Central High School.

Bundy will speak on school legislation.

Farm Tips

By Dr. J. W. Pou
Agricultural Specialist
Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., N.A.

The official figures are slowly coming in to confirm what virtually everyone in agriculture had suspected all along, according to Woody Upchurch, N. C. State University agricultural information specialist. That is, last year was a record shattering farming year in North Carolina.

Tar Heel farmers will be hard pressed this year to equal the 1973 production of corn, soybeans, peanuts, cotton and some of the crops of lesser economic importance such as grapes, peaches and pecans.

Production records were set in corn, soybeans and peanuts, and flue-cured tobacco production was 20 percent larger than the previous year at 795 million pounds. This could be eclipsed this year with a 10 percent allotment increase and quota carryover. The average yield per acre last year was 2,113 pounds, highest since 1964.

The same good weather that aided tobacco transplanting also helped corn, cotton and peanuts get off to a good start. North Carolina farmers harvested a record 114.8 million bushels of corn, 9 percent above the 1967 record. The average yield per acre was 82 bushels — two better than the previous high.

Peanuts, aided by a near-perfect harvest season, averaged a record 2,800 pounds per acre as growers harvested 465 million pounds. Production topped the 1970 record by 19 million pounds and the yield was 130 pounds per acre better than the record, also set in 1970.

Soybeans, being a later crop than the others, suffered to some extent from the same dry fall that aided the harvest of corn and peanuts, but not enough to prevent another record. Tar Heel growers turned out 36 million bushels of beans — 24 percent above the record set the year before. Acreage was up 29 percent to 1.5 million. The crop averaged 24 bushels per acre.

While not a record, cotton production was up a snappy 39 percent over the previous year at an estimated 165,000 bales. Some 173,000 acres were harvested, and the estimated average yield was 458 pounds. This compares with a 337-pound average in 1972.

Farmers' costs of production were up substantially in 1973, but so were prices. Cotton prices, for example, reached the highest levels since Civil War days, and the prices for other crops were among the highest ever received.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

BY THE STANDARDS of 10 years ago, this vacation home would be too large and too luxurious. Today, however, it is typical of vacation homes most high in popularity. The wrap-around porch going 28 feet in two directions leaves little doubt that much outdoor living will take place here. The built-in barbecue in the vast chimney block is in the center of outdoor activity. Four outdoor entrances are provided for making life easy. The formal entrance goes through a paneled trophy room with closet, timbers and a seat. The side entrance is for direct access from living lounge to porch. The kitchen entrance is convenient for outdoor eating. The left side entrance is into the bath and shower. The second floor's two bedrooms make a total of four and a bath there gives the house two. Architect for Plan HA797M is Rudolph A. Matern, 89 E. Jericho Turnpike, Mineola, N.Y. 11501. Anyone interested in knowing the cost of the blueprint can write to him and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The house has 1,057 square feet on the first floor and 494 on the second.

Farm Scene

By STEVE C. RIDDICK

Why is it important to buy a Performance Tested Boar? The advantage of knowing his efficiency is enough. Take for example, if the average feed conversion in a herd was 3.3 pounds feed per pound of grain and a boar was used with a demonstrated 2.7 feed efficiency figure, then a herd improvement of 0.1 pound feed per pound of grain could be expected. This is true because the heritability of feed efficiency is about 35 percent and the boar supplies only half the genetic potential while the dam supplies the other half.

Thus if a boar was to sire 100 litters and was responsible for improving feed efficiency by 0.1 pound and the feed cost was 6 cents per pound, then he would be responsible for $691 in feed savings. A corresponding value in both growth rate and carcass quality can also be expected and have a definite value.

In most cases, any improved genetic material is introduced through the boar so any herd improvement is related directly to the boar. A boar can have a continuing influence not only on his progeny but through his progeny to future generations. A boar that would maintain the performance level of a herd cost a given figure. This figure is added to the value of improved performance through gain, feed efficiency and carcass quality to determine what a good boar is worth.

Five Goals in Better Swine Management

1. Wean 10 pigs from sows—8½ from gilts.
2. Market 80 percent at 225 lbs. by 5½ months.
3. Market 85 percent number 1's
4. Obtain a feed efficiency of 400-425 pounds from breeding of sows to marketing of pigs.
5. Resolve not to introduce a disease in the herd from other hogs.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—Corn and soybeans were slightly stronger at leading grain markets in North Carolina Monday. No. 2 yellow shelled corn brought mostly 2.70-2.80 per bushel in the East and 2.75-2.85 in the Piedmont. No. 1 yellow soybeans were mostly 5.66-5.73 per bushel.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina hog prices mostly $1.00 lower today. Tips of 30.00-31.00 at Kinston and Lumberton; 30.00-30.50 Rocky Mount; 28.00-29.00 Tarboro and Bethel; 27.00-29.00 Wilson and High Falls; 30.50 Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Elizabethtown, Pink Hill, Pine Level, Chadbourn, Ayden, Laurinburg and Benson: 30.00 Salisbury.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina f.o.b. dock broilers steady today. F.O.B. dock average for this week is 35.71 cents per pound. Supplies adequate, demand generally good and weights desirable. Estimated slaughter 1,109,000 head. North Carolina hens: Market tone unsettled. Supplies fully adequate for a slow demand. Heavies, at farm, 13 cents per pound; f.o.b. plants 13 cents.

NEW YORK (AP)—Negative news from several directions pushed the stock market broadly lower in light trading today. The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down only 3.67 at 854.90. But declines overwhelmed advances by about 7-to-2 on the New York stock exchange.

The Dow Jones average of 15 utilities also showed a sharper decline than the industrial indicator, slipping 1.22 to 84.77.

Consolidated Edison, the nation's largest electric utility, said today it was omitting its first quarterly dividend after 343 consecutive payouts over the last 89 years.

Newton D. Zinder at E.F. Hutton & Co. called the Con Ed announcement "a real shocker." The company's stock was delayed in opening on the Big Board.

Other depressants on the market included the continuing rise in the prime lending rate. After Monday's close, New York's Franklin National Bank boosted its prime from 10 1/4 to 10 1/2 per cent.

In addition, brokers said there was an uneasy response on Wall Street to the Federal Reserve Board's avowed intentions to pursue a relatively restrictive monetary policy in order to combat inflation. Such a policy carries the implication of continuing high interest rates, analysts said.

Flying Tiger was the Big Board volume leader, down 1 1/4 at 15 1/4. On Monday the company reported lower first quarter earnings.

Safeway Stores, drawing interest in advance of a scheduled meeting with New York securities analysts tonight, rose 1 1/4 to 43 1/4.

American Century Mortgage Investors was down 1/4 at 5 1/4. The real estate investment trust omitted its dividend and reported sharply lower nine months' earnings.

On the American Stock Exchange, the most-active issue was Champion Home Builders, down 1/4 at 4 1/2. The Amex's 11 a.m. market-value index was off .38 at 93.85.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks stood at 49.43, off .26.

Ray had been on a four-day hunger strike to protest his solitary confinement when he was moved to the hospital Sunday. But the prison warden, James Rose, said he thought Ray was "pretending he passed out in his cell."

Ray has taken legal steps to end his solitary confinement. Prison officials say he's held in solitary because his life is in danger from other inmates.

Paulus said that the picture has been "pretty well put together" concerning the North Carolina shelf and drilling will be done.

One of the most favorable areas off the Atlantic coast is some 60 miles due east from Atlantic City, N. J., he added, and the first oil reserves will probably be sought there.

Leasing of areas of the continental shelf by the government will probably take place by 1975, at the earliest, Paulus reported. He contended that it will be four years before oil from sites that were leased last December in the Northeast Gulf of Mexico will reach the refineries.

According to information published by the American Petroleum Institute, the U. S. Geological Survey estimates that recoverable quantities of petroleum under the continental shelf of the United States may range from 160 to 190 billion barrels of crude oil and from 820 to 1,100 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

Up until now, only about two per cent of the continental shelf area has been opened up by the government to leasing.

Paulus was formerly employed by Texaco Oil Co. and joined Superior in 1962. In 1970 he was aboard the Glomar Challenger as a scientist involved in the Atlantic Ocean deep-sea drilling project sponsored by the National Science Foundation.

His ECU appearance was sponsored by the Department of Geology.

Fewer Fresh Vegetables

WASHINGTON (AP)—Consumers can expect fewer fresh vegetables on store counters this spring, but the Agriculture Department says no serious shortages are anticipated except for potatoes.

Producers of major fresh market vegetables planted 4 per cent fewer acres this spring, the department's Outlook and Situation Board said Monday.

Production may be down even more sharply, perhaps 5 per cent below a year ago, officials said. "Spring melon acreage is also down slightly and is sharply less than 1972," the report said.

But officials added that "fresh vegetable imports, mainly from Mexico, have been running very close to the record" set last year.

The report said large supplies of onions are expected this spring, a sharp turnaround from a year ago when smaller output sent onion prices soaring.

Potatoes, however, will continue to be costly in the weeks ahead.

Officials said potato stockpiles on April 1 were down 9 per cent from a year earlier.

BURBANK, Calif. (AP)—"Mama" Cass Elliott, the rotund songstress formerly with the "Mamas and Papas" singing group, is recuperating today after collapsing in a television studio last night.
