Rodino Not Assured Of Full Compliance

By JOHN BECKLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Judiciary Committee hopes a White House request for five more days to respond to a committee subpoena means President Nixon intends to turn over the 42 tapes it covers.

But Rep. Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., said Tuesday he received no assurance of full compliance when he agreed to extend until next Tuesday the deadline for delivering the material. It had been due Thursday.

"I'm hopeful the reason the President made the request is that he means to comply," Rodino told a news conference. "We don't want a confrontation. We've gone the last mile and we can go five more days."

Rodino said he is confident the full committee will support him when the White House request is taken up Thursday. He won informal approval Tuesday from senior members.

One member who won't go along, however, is California Democrat Jerome Waldie, who said the White House has had plenty of time to comply in the two months since the request was made.

"It's time the committee showed the same determination to get the material that the White House is showing in denying it," Waldie said.

The request for an extension of the subpoena deadline was made Monday by James D. St. Clair, Nixon's chief impeachment lawyer, in a telephone call to John M. Doar, the chief counsel of the committee.

Rodino said St. Clair told Doar he was having a hard time getting the material together and that Nixon had not yet reviewed it. When asked if partial compliance could not be made by the Thursday deadline, St. Clair said Nixon wanted to review all the material at one time, Rodino said.

Nixon is flying to Jackson, Miss., Thursday to deliver a speech but is expected to remain in the Washington area over the weekend.

At his news conference, Rodino disclosed that a committee request for additional White House evidence was sent to St. Clair last week.

The request, approved by Rep. Edward Hutchinson of Michigan, the senior committee Republican, covers additional material connected with Watergate and documents relating to an antitrust settlement involving ITT and political contributions by the dairy industry.

Rodino said in making the new request the committee made it clear it is reserving the right to ask for more if it becomes necessary.

News Briefs

Agrees Tapes Edited

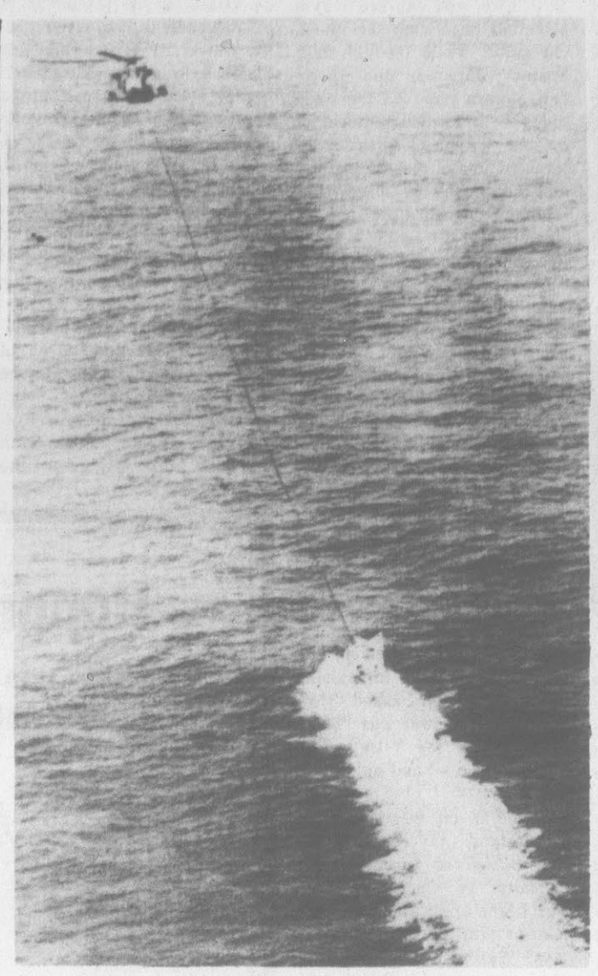
NEW YORK (AP) — NBC News says an expert hired by the White House will agree with a court-appointed team of electronics specialists which concluded that a Watergate tape with an 18½-minute gap was edited and re-recorded.

NBC newsman Carl Stern said Tuesday that the White House expert, Dr. Michael Hecker of the Stanford Research Institute, may not agree with procedures used by the other experts.

However, said Stern, Hecker will not dispute the conclusion of the six tape authorities, who said the tape underwent "the process of editing and re-recording at least five and perhaps as many as nine separate and continuous segments."

The panel, chosen mutually by the White House and the special Watergate prosecutor, did not say if the erasure was accidental or deliberate.

But the group told U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica that "The recording controls must have been operated by hand in the making of each segment."



Suez Canal Work Begun

MINESWEEPING—A U.S. Marine Sea Stallion helicopter drags a magnitic minesweeping device through the approaches of Port Said Harbor. The device is equipped to determine various types of a accoustic and magnetic mines. Then British and American experts using sonar will jointly make a shadow map of the canal spotting underwater obstacles. Afterwards Egyptian divers will identify and remove or detonate the obstacles. Jail Breakout By 5

WENTWORTH, N.C. (AP)— Five prisoners escaped from the Rockingham County Jail at Wentworth early today after they overpowered the jailer.

The Rockingham County sheriff's office reported the five jumped jailer Willie Sellars after sawing through bars and sommoning Sellars to administer medicine to one of them.

Officers said the five robbed Sellers of approximately $60 and made their getaway in Sellars' car a black 1967 model Chevelle bearing license plate EWE 900.

The five were identified as Michael John Pilkey, 19, of Detroit, Tommy Hundley of Eden, Mack John Williams Jr., 23, of Reidsville, Hillard Elmer Smith, 42, of Stoneville, and James Walter Mabe, 26, of Stewart, Va.

The sheriff's office said the five were either awaiting trial here or in other states. They said Williams and Hundley were awaiting trial for murder.

Crib Death Research

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has signed into law a $9 million measure aimed to expand research and counseling on crib deaths attributed to a "sudden infant death syndrome."

The bill, signed by the President on Tuesday, authorizes a three-year program to collect information on the deaths and to counsel families where they occur.

The measure also directs the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development to increase its research on the causes of the sudden deaths.

Sponsors of the bill have said 10,000 children die mysteriously in their cribs each year and that sometimes families are unjustly accused of negligence in these cases.

No Utility Dividend

NEW YORK (AP) — Consolidated Edison Co. says higher fuel costs coupled with bill-collection problems have forced the unprecedented suspension of a quarterly dividend.

Suspension of the 45-cent-per-share dividend, which caught the financial community by surprise, was blamed in part for the sharp drop Tuesday in the stock market.

The giant utility attributed the suspension to an urgent need to conserve cash, citing a one-third decline in first-quarter earnings from 19.3 to 1974.

The company, which serves New York City and neighboring Westchester County, said the decision broke a chain of 343 uninterrupted payouts to stockholders since 1885.

The jolt was heightened by the fact that the common stock of utilities is bought in many cases mainly for its dividend yield. Con Ed stock ended the market day at 12½, off 5¾.

SHOT HIMSELF

CRANBURY, N.J. (AP) — Edward L. Katzenbach Jr., brother of former U. S. Atty. Gen. Nicholas D. B. Katzenbach, shot himself to death with a handgun in his home Tuesday, police said. He was 55.

QUARTERLY REPORT

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Piedmont Aviation Inc. reported net income of $233,578 for the first quarter of 1974. The airline had a $1.6 million loss during the same period in 1973.

Governor Takes 'Dig' At Morgan

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Holshouser said today that in not resigning while he is running for the U.S. Senate, Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan is exhibiting "a very political attitude rather than a good government attitude."

That was the governor's reply when he was asked about reports that Morgan is not resigning now in order to keep Holshouser from having the opportunity of appointing a Republican as attorney general.

In answer to other questions at his news conference, Holshouser said he does not think President Nixon should resign.

The governor also said Secretary of Administration William Bondurant is trying to find a way whereby Ted Harrison, director of public information for the state Department of Transpotation will not have to pay for $10,000 worth of bumper stickers which he ordered without getting bids as required by state law.

Holshouser said Bondurant was seeking "a solution that will recognize it was an honest error."

But Holshouser said "we don't want to leave any indication that we are not staying within the law in this administration."

The governor also said he was disappointed that the 1974 General Assembly failed to amend the traffic laws to eliminate what the governor called "a very large loophole" that enables violators "to get around the law." The governor had urged the General Assembly to amend the law under which a verdict of prayer for judgment continued does not count as a conviction in a traffic case. This has enabled many traffic violators to retain their driver licenses.

ECU To Name Buildings For Belk And Irons

East Carolina University will name two buildings in the Allied Health complex in honor of Carol Grotnes Belk of Charlotte and Dr. Malene Irons of Greenville.

The ECU Board of Trustees approved the action in its Spring meeting Tuesday and set dedication of the Belk Allied Building for May 15 to be attended by formal ceremonies and a luncheon.

Mrs. Belk is the wife of business executive and philanthropist Irwin Belk. Both the Belks and the Belk Foundation have been substantial supporters of East Carolina University and other public and private higher education institutions for a number of years.

Dr. Irons is director of the ECU Developmental Evaluation Clinic and the DEC building will bear her name. In moving approval of the action, Dr. Andrew Best of Greenville said of Dr. Irons, "There is not a more deserving person. We honor ourselves in naming this building for Dr. Malene Irons."

Dr. Irons is a native of Gates County, daughter of Dr. Thomas M. Grant, a widely known Methodist minister who served throughout the North Carolina Conference, and she is the twin sister of Dr. Isa Grant, also a physician. She is a graduate of East Carolina University, of Duke and received her M.D. from the Medical College of Virginia. Married to Dr. Fred Irons, she and her husband began practice in Greenville in 1946. Her husband is director of the ECU Student Infirmary.

The trustees approved a list of 2,481 candidates for degrees at the May 26 commencement, subject to candidates' meeting all requirements. It will be one of the largest graduating classes in ECU history.

Dr. John Horne, director of Admissions, reported an outlook for an increase of approximately 450 students for the 1974-75 school year following a slight decline in enrollment for 1973-74. Horne said preliminary indications are for an increase of some 350 in the freshman class and 100 transfers.

The trustees after hearing reports voted to continue the co-educational dormitory program at Garrett Hall for another year. Reports indicated that the co-ed housing program at Garrett conducted for the past year has been successful.

In other action, the trustees voted to include requests for adequate appropriations in the 1975-76 budget for preparation of a new, long-range master plan for physical development of the ECU campus.

Three new athletic coaches, Pat Dye (football), Wright Anderson (baseball) and Dave Patton (basketball), were introduced and gave brief reports. Athletic director Clarence Stasavich said the ECU athletic budget which has increased from $187,000 a year to $813,000 in the past decade soon will exceed the $1 million figure. He said ECU presently awards 198 athletic grants at a total cost of $254,000. Among immediate goals, he said, are enlargement of the football stadium by 10,000 seats and a larger basketball arena.

Open Bids May 2 On Solid Waste Removal Franchise For Pitt

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Bids will be opened by county commissioners May 2 on applications for an exclusive franchise to collect residenteial solid waste in Pitt County.

The franchise will exclude areas within the corporate limits of any municipality within the county.

Under the terms of the franchise, according to County Manager Reginald Gray, the successful bidder will offer for sale to all residents of the county (excluding those within municipalities) bags for the disposal of trash. The bags then are to be placed at roadside in front of residences and picked up there by the franchised waste collector for disposal.

Under the terms of the proposal, bids are to be based on the rates of disposal charged at the Pitt County landfill and the schedule of pick-ups, Gray explained, noting that a schedule of pick-ups is to be furnished by the successful bidder prior to the start of the operation which will begin when the new county landfill West of Greenville opens. That new landfill is expected to be in operation by July 1.

The franchise, to be awarded for a period of three years, requires the successful bidder to post a $50,000 performance bond.

Gray explained that under the county ordinance regulating the storage, collection and transportation and disposal of refuse persons are required to remove solid waste materials from their premises at least once each week, for disposal at the county landfill or other approved landfill site, or by burying or burning in an incinerator approved by the county health director.

Disposal rates at the landfill will be 40 cents per cubic yard of waste, with minimum charges of 50 cents for cars or pick-up trucks (persons hauling their own refuse).

Gray said rates to be charged by the franchised collector may be adjusted by the county from time to time in order to "make available a garbage collection service at the lowest rate possible," to the citizens.

The County Manager noted that the objective of the ordinance, which became effective February 1, of this year, is to help protect the health of the county residents and provide for universal use of the collection service.

Arrested In Branch Slaying

KINSTON—A Rt. 8, Kinston man was arrested near here Tuesday night and charged with being an accessory before the fact of murder in the death of a Rt. 9, Greenville businessman.

Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that Pitt and Lenoir County deputies and State Bureau of Investigation agents arrested Roy Lee Sullivan, 29, around 10 p.m. and charged him as an accessory in the shooting death of Lynwood Noah Branch.

Shriff Tyson said that Sullivan is being held in Pitt County Jail without privilege of bond.

He said that officers are continuing their investigation of the Branch assault which occurred on March 29. Branch, 36, was found by his wife late on the night of March 29 lying unconscious near his car in the Branch driveway.

The businessman died the following Sunday morning in Pitt County Memorial Hospital as a result of a gunshot wound suffered in the assault.

Ayden Official Calls On Pitt Development Commission To Resign

AYDEN—Ayden Town Commissioner Dr. Eliot Dixon last night called for the resignation of all the present members of the Pitt County Development Commission.

"The present members should realize that it is they who have allowed the present situation to develop. They must take that responsibility and resign," he said.

The statement was made at a meeting held in Ayden for county citizens to comment on the effectiveness of the Development Commission and its activities. The County Commissioners had appointed a special committee made up of Development Commission members to hear complaints and endorsements of the Commission and its activities since its formation by county-wide tax levy in 1957. There has been considerable feeling voiced lately, first during a regular meeting by Commission Secretary Jack Lewis, and later in a meeting similar to last night's held in Farmville, that the Commission has had no tangible results for any community in the county other than Greenville.

Dr. Dixon said last night that, while Farmville supported the County Development Commission yet continued to feel the need to have their local Economic Council, Ayden felt the need to organize their own six years ago and hire a full-time director. "Why did we feel this was necessary? Because we had gotten no help frm the Pitt County Development Commission," he said.

Dr. Dixon suggested that a new commission be appointed. "The Pitt County Board of Commissioners should seek the advice from the existing local governmental units and appoint people who have a demonstrated interest and knowledge of general and industrial development," he said.

"The new board should very closely supervise the executive director," he said. "It is a board that should direct and not be directed. They should keep close tabs on the director and be involved in his activities."

He called for a detailed monthly summary of the Development Commission's activities and for their holding of meetings throughout the county on a regularly announced schedule.

"The director should spend at least three days a week outside the Greenville area

Foreign Aid Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today asked Congress for $5.18 billion in foreign aid money, including $250 million to help Egypt clear the Suez Canal, repair war damage in adjacent cities and restore trade with the United States.

At the same time, Nixon asked for $350 million in military support for Israel and $207.5 million for Jordan.

He said the United States "can and should play a constructive role in securing a just and durable peace in the Middle East by facilitating increased understanding between the Arab nations and Israel ..."

The President also requested $939.8 million to assist South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos "in their efforts to shift their economies from war to peace and to accelerate the reconstitution of their societies."

Grants By PHS

A total of $170,069 was awarded the East Carolina University School of Allied Health and Social Professions by the U.S. Public Health Service last week.

The funds were given for the support of three degree programs in the ECU school. Medical technology received $30,465, occupational therapy received $72,290 and physical therapy, $70,314.

Allied Health Dean Ronald Thiele said the awards were made "to enhance the further development and expansion of the required supervised clinical experiences" for students in the three programs.

The funds are to be used over the next two to three years, he said.

He also noted that the three grants are among only 85 such awards made in the U.S., and therefore represent "a significant recognition" of East Carolina University.

Street Resurfacing Is Now Ahead Of Schedule

The second phase of the citywide street resurfacing program, which began March 20 and included some 9.25 miles of city streets, has been completed a month ahead of schedule.

City Manager Bill Carstarphen said this morning that the second phase, with an initial finishing date scheduled for late in May, was completed early this week with a project cost of $88,850.

Carstarphen cited "excellent planning and coordination among the city engineer's office, the Public Works Department and the Utilities Commission" and also pointed out that "good weather and good work from the contractor, Barrus Construction Co." were instrumental in the early completion.

The official asserted that the "city departments did an outstanding job of planning and coordinating the work" and he added that Greenville residents "gave us excellent cooperation."

With the completion of the second phase of the program, a total of 15 miles of city streets have now been resurfaced. The third phase of the overall project, which began last summer, calls for resurfacing of an additional 13 miles and is scheduled to be carried out in the 1974-75 fiscal year.

With the completion of the third phase, the city will have some 28 miles of streets resurfaced at a project cost of $245,000, all of which is financed by the federal shared revenue program. The City Council approved the project shortly after shared revenue funds became available in 1973.

Equalization And Review Meet Set

The Pitt County Board of Equalization and Review will meet in the commissioners room, Pitt County Courthouse, Mon. May 6 at 2:30 p.m. for the purpose of reviewing the tax value of property placed on the tax scroll for 1974.

The meeting is in observance of the laws of North Carolina.

The board expects to complete its hearings at the May 6 meeting, but in the event of a later adjournment, notice will be given.

Residents may examine their appraisal file in the office of the Tax Supervisor prior to the meeting of the board.

Any taxpayer wishing to appeal to the board, should call the Tax Supervisor's office at 752-4711, for an appointment with the Board of Equalization and Review. This will enable the tax department to have records available with the least possible delay.

'On Being A Parent' Seminar Scheduled For Two Sessions

"On Being A Parent" seminar, sponsored by the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service, has been scheduled for two sessions.

The first session will be held Thursday from 7:30-9:30 p.m. at St. James United Methodist Church.

Specialists will meet with groups of parents for 40-minute sessions. At the end of each session, the specialist will rotate in order that each group will have an opportunity to talk with three specialists.

Sessions for mothers only will include: Dr. Jannis Shea, Department of Child Development, ECU, Mother-Father Relationship; Dr. Malene Irons, Developmental Evaluation Clinic, ECU, Doctor-Child-Mother Relationship; and Dr. J. E. Clement, gynecologist and obstetrician, Family Planning.

Sessions for fathers only will be: Dr. David Knox, marriage counselor, Father-Mother Relationship; Dr. Mel Markowski, Department of Child Development, ECU, Father-Child Relationship; and Dr. Paul N. Erchman, pediatrician, Doctor-Child-Father Relationship.

The second session has been scheduled for Tuesday, April 30, from 7:30-9:30 p.m. at St. James Church.

Each person may select two of the six discussion groups and the groups will be limited to 20 people. There will be two sessions of 45 minutes each.

The speakers will be: Dr. Leo Hawkins, Department of Human Relations, N.C. Agriculture Extension, Family Relations; Dr. Malene Irons, How To Recognize Abnomalities; Dr. Jasper L. Lewis Jr., childrens dentist, Childhood Dentristry; Dr. Nash W. Love Jr., Department of Child Development, ECU, Discipline; Mrs. Barbara Long, nursery school director, How To Select a Day Care Center; and Dr. G. Earl Trevathan Jr., pediatrician, Your Child and the Doctor-Hospital.

Exhibits prior to each meeting will include: Miss Addie R. Gore, home economics extension agent, Housing and Accessories That Adapt to Age; Mrs. Evelyn L. Spangler, associate home economics extension agent, Togs and Clogs for Tots; Sheppard Memorial Library, Books For Children; Lions Club, Home Eye Test Kits; and Ross Laboratory.

Members of the Planning Committee for the seminar included: Mrs. Hisham Barakat; Mrs. David Knox; Mrs. Henry Riddick; Mrs. Dan K. Wooten; Mrs. W. R. Hardee Jr.; and Mrs. Spangler.

The St. James Methodist Youth Fellowship has offered to care for children at the church for parnets who cannot find baby sitters. Pre-registration of the children is required.

Persons interested in attending either or both the sessions are requested to pre-register by calling 758-1196.

Questions will be answered about children from birth through five years old.

Guitarist Cooks One Dish—But Wow!

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Most afternoons, through the wide window of a pots and pans store a few blocks away from my West Village house in New York City, you can see Wayne Marshall practicing the classical guitar while tending shop. Spanish, Japanese and American guitars hang on the walls along with French batterie de cuisine. Wayne is seriously interested in the classical guitar and his hobby is discovering fine ones; because the shop belongs to his wife Lydie, a young Frenchwoman who also runs a cooking school, he sells his finds there.

The Marshalls use their four-story 1846 building for the store and cooking school (both called A La Bonne Cocotte) and their living quarters. Wayne renovated the shop single-handed, including removing the plaster from a red brick wall, opening a working fireplace and gathering lumber from another old West Village house for beams and shelves.

Although he is greatly interested in French food preparation, he has never attended any of his wife's classes in "cuisine classique." When I asked "How come?" his answer was "She's never asked me." He cooks only one dish — and an Italian one at that!

Wayne is on the faculty of Long Island University's Graduate School of Business. His specialty is Operations Research, the application of mathematics and statistics to business. Wayne and Lydie met when he was doing his doctorate at Case Institute of Technology in Cleveland and she was working for her M. A. in French Literature at Western Reserve.

Born and brought up in Tulsa, Okla., Wayne got his B. S. in mechanical engineering at the University of Colorado and his M. S. in industrial engineering at Purdue. Then came a two-year stint as an army industrial engineer in Texas followed by an engineering job in Michigan. "With my western background, it's no wonder that when I met Lydie her enchanting French accent fascinated me," he says. After completing his doctorate he came to New York to teach at Columbia University's Graduate School of Business; shortly after that he and Lydie married.

Wayne knew good American food because his mother is a fine cook, but Lydie opened the French gastronomic world to him. He set out to learn her native language and became so proficient that he has lectured in French at the European Institute of Business Administration in Fontainebleau. "When I speak French to a Frenchman, he never guesses I'm American," Wayne told me with some glee.

For the past seven years the Marshalls have spent summers in France where they have a country house. Wayne still remembers his first trip to Paris and his reaction when Lydie showed him the shops featuring charcuterie: "Eggs in crystal-clear aspic! Golden-brown quail garnished with black truffles! Galantine studded with green pistachio nuts! The charcuterie windows looked like museums to me. I couldn't believe you could carry away those works of art."

When I twitted him about his one-dish culinary repertoire, Wayne answered: "I wouldn't mind being a cook. It would be fun. But if I were going to cook I'd persuade Lydie to teach me everything she knows. There's no point in her having a mediocrity running alongside."

Priest Unloads Own Woes At Confession

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I can't receive a personal reply because my mother has the habit of "accidentally" opening my mail.

I'm a 35-year-old widow. My husband died last year, and I'm back home living with my parents.

I attend church regularly. A month ago, during confession, the priest, who's about my age, suddenly said: "You people think YOU'VE got trouble—what about me?" Then he started to unload all his problems on me. I felt utterly helpless and ill-equipped to listen to him. I told him I sympathized with him, and then I left. The next time I went to confession, he did the same thing, only this time he got very emotional and broke down and cried.

I really like this priest, and don't want to get him into trouble with the church, but I dread going to confession again. He seems perfectly all right otherwise, but there must be something wrong with him. How can I help him?

FEELING HELPLESS

DEAR HELPLESS: You can urge him to see a doctor. Like any other man, a priest can have a nervous breakdown, and it appears that that is what is happening to him.

DEAR ABBY: I have been going with this gentleman for six years. We both lost our mates, and we seem well suited for each other. He says he wants to marry me EXCEPT he loves his lovely old home and garden and will not leave it. I also have a lovely home, which I would have to give up, but I feel that we both should close the doors on our pasts and start new lives together.

He says I should give him time. How much time should I give him?

ORLANDO

DEAR ORLANDO: How old is he?

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are organic vegetarians, but our best friends aren't. We do many things together but we've never made a point of the fact that we're vegetarians.

They are constantly inviting us over for dinner. They invariably serve meat, and just the smell of meat cooking makes me sick to my stomach. Everything else they serve is either out of a can or from an "add-water" package.

We have quietly endured the meals at their home because we don't want to get them mad at us. How can we turn down their dinner invitations without jeopardizing our friendship? I don't know how many more of their dinners we can take.

YECCH

DEAR YECCH: You should be able to tell your "best friends" that you are vegetarians and as such do not eat meat. With the price of meat the way it is they may not be as "mad" at you as you think.

CONFIDENTIAL TO E. M.: "He who cannot forgive others, breaks the bridge over which he himself must pass if he would ever reach heaven; for everyone has need to be forgiven." [Herbert]

Mrs. Baggett Gives Program

Mrs. Carma Baggett was keynote speaker at the Thursday night meeting of the Alpha Omega Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha Sorority.

Executive secretary of the Pitt County Association for Retarded Children, Inc., the speaker told the members that there are approximately 3,600 mentally retarded citizens in Pitt County.

She also said that there is a great need for more volunteer services for the adult mentally retarded citizens in the county and that the Pitt County Association is now in the process of coordinating more activities for the adults.

It was announced that Mrs. Pat McCarn of Durham, sorority advisor, will visit here June 1 for a luncheon and installation of officers.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Nellie Taylor.

Personal

Mrs. Grover Smith and Mrs. Tom Forbes are visiting their nephew, Conwell Worthington, in New York City.

FEMALE SWIMMER. . .Christine Loock wants to be in the Olympics and to be a doctor.

Christine Loock: Diving From New Heights

By JACK MURRAY
Women's News Service

"I just wasn't as sought after when I graduated from high school as a boy of equivalent national standing would have been. I wasn't written up when I chose SMU. The coaches all knew, but the public isn't concerned when a girl goes to college because there's no intercollegiate athletics for women."

An unusually modest self-appraisal for a 19 year old coed who is considered by many as the best female diver in America. A Pan-American Games team member at 14, Christine Loock earned high point total at the 1973 National AAU Competition and a bronze medal at the World University Games last year. All of this was added to an already long and impressive list of honors in divind competition.

Her coach, long-haired mustachioed Bryan Robbins, who at 27 looks more like a member of the student body than a faculty member at Southern Methodist Universtiy, is far more lavish in his praise.

"If Christine would have been a boy, when she was ready to go to college, every school in the United States that had a swimming and divind program would have been after her. Every one of them would have offered her a full scholarship," says Robbins.

1974 was the first year of competition for Christine and she made Southwest Conference history when she became the first woman to ever score a point in conference championship.

Coach Robbins takes the blame for the delay. "Sometimes I'm too easy-going. I'm not as forceful as I should be. I should have pushed the issue sooner. There has been some pressure, you know, like HEW. When they get on your back it isn't a matter of, let's do it next year, it's now. . .and that's good!"

Try as she may to conceal it, there's still a trace of bitterness when Christine talks about her failure to be treated like male athletes of similar ability.

"Don't think I wouldn't like to be on an athletic scholarship, because I'm not full academic scholarship. If there was some money allocated to women's scholarships it would help take some of the pressure off my studies.

The only scholarship money available was in the school of engineering, so I'm taking some courses I don't want to take.

"But I have to, because it's part of the stipulation of my scholarship." Taking courses she doesn't want to take certainly hasn't hurt Christine's average any. In her three semesters she's had two perfect 4.0s and one 3.8

"Since I was five years old I said I was going to be in the Olympics and I was going to be a doctor. I've been working on it ever since.

I just have to watch out that I don't get depressed or discouraged.

Christine's first attempt at making the Olympics could have been both depressing and discouraging for most athletes. She finished sixth, needing to finish in the top three to qualify.

"I got really nervous and hit the board on a half gainer," she explained, "that put me 13 points behind, right off the bat. But I hope to try again for the next Olympic team and I only hope I can do a little better."

Why has this quiet, soft-spoken, five-foot-five blonde teenager chosen to fight the odds? Why doesn't she just stick to women's competition, where she already enjoys international fame and stature?

"I dive because I enjoy it. The most important thing is my performance and it's not just if I win. There's a lot of real satisfaction in being good.

"I don't know what it would be like to lose a lot, I guess that would be depressing. That's why I wanted to go to the Southwest Conference Championship meet. To see how I would do under that kind of pressure.

"The other reason was if I did this and brought it to light there would be more attention paid to women's athletics in general. Hopefully, by the time I graduate there'll be scholarships for women."

Christine Loock is a woman with definite goals in life, but she doesn't look upon herself as any kind of crusader. "Life's too short to start on an ulcer at 19.

"I'm not going to dive forever, that's why I've got school. More men than women may want to compete, but women should have the chance if they want it. That's all I'm trying to do!"

Planning Seeks To Reduce Population

By K. P. HONG

SEOUL (AP) — "No pregnancy this year" is the keynote of South Korea's family planning program today, says Mrs. Kim Jae-Hee, a consulatant of the Planned Parenthood Federation of Korea.

"We don't mean, however, to reach zero population growth this year with the slogan, which we hope will discourage 30 out of every 100 possible pregnancies," she said.

Korean family planning workers will face an uphill fight in years to come mainly because of an effect of the 1950-53 Korean War, Mrs. Kim added.

The post-Korean War baby boom generation is entering the fertile age period in the mid-1970s, swelling the number of eligible women to about 7 million from the present 5 million, she explained.

Besides, the traditional attitude of preferring boys to girls prevails and most Koreans still consider a family with at least two sons as ideal, taking chances again and again in the hope of producing two boys, she said.

The organization she works for, a member of the International Planned Parenthood Federation (IPPF) in London, was established in Seoul and began operating in 1961, a year before the Korean government started its first family planning program.

It operates with an estimated $1 million in donations from the IPPF, the United Nations Fund for Population Activities, the Asia Foundation, and the U.S. Agency for International Development in Korea. It serves as the sole agency responsible for the implementation of information, education and communication projects in support of the government's family planning program.

Population increases in South Korea, which was short of food, housing, classrooms and money to invest for industrialization, became a serious problem after an estimated 4,775,900 North Koreans moved to the South before and during the Korean War.

During the decade before 1960, the nation's population increased by about one million a year, or by more than 3 per cent.

Since the start of the family planning program, the growth has been reduced to about 700,000 a year. The government envisages further reduction to 540,000 during the 1970s, dropping the current growth rate of 1.9 per cent to 1.5 by 1976, and to 1.3 by 1981.

"We are glad to report that Korea has become, in such a short period of time since our first family planning program started, one of the model member countries of the IPPF," Mrs. Kim said in an interview.

She said there had been good cooperation and coordination between her organization and the government, resulting in smooth implementation of the National Family Planning Program and use of aid funds from international donors in population activities.

Current efforts by the government and her organization included the legalization of abortions, revisions to the family and other laws which now give more privileges to men than women, and information programs in schools, among military servicemen and reservist militia forces, she said.

By the year 2000, family program planners hope 90 per cent of all Korean families will have two or fewer children, and the remaining 10 per cent three, she added.

"The first big gastronomic event in my life was in my late teens when I visited New York and met up with pizza," Wayne told me. "I hadn't known it existed, what I had missed! Then I heard someone talk about Italian spaghetti with white clam sauce. I tried cooking it and have been making it ever since." The Marshalls sometimes invite a few friends to supper to have what has become known as "Wayne's Spaghetti Dish," wine, a green salad and one of Lydie's splendid French desserts.

WAYNE'S SPAGHETTI DISH

1-3rd cup corn or peanut oil
¼ cup olive oil
1 cup finely chopped onion
6 tablespoons sweet butter
2 large shallots, minced
2 large cloves garlic, minced
1¼ cups dry white wine
½ teaspoon dry crushed oregano
Two 8-ounce cans minced clams
Freshly grated Romano cheese
1 pound spaghetti

Heat oils; add onion and cook until transparent. Add butter, shallots, garlic, wine, oregano and liquid drained from 1 can of clams; discard liquid from other can of clams. Boil gently for about 20 minutes. Add drained clams (from both cans) and reheat; off heat stir in ¾ cup Romano. Meanwhile cook spaghetti according to package directions; place in large soup plates; spoon clam sauce over. Pass extra Romano and a pepper mill. Makes 4 huge servings.

Fresh Pineapple

It costs more than five hundred dollars to fly to Hawaii first class, but it costs about fifty cents to bring a first class Hawaiian product—pineapple—to your dining room table.

When choosing pineapple, you'll want to select one that looks fresh—clean—and is heavy for its size. That will be one that is full of juice. Then check to see that it's free from bruises.

And you might look for a pineapple that's square-shouldered. It has less waste than does one that's narrow at the top.

The shell color, contrary to popular opinion, need not be yellow. The shell is green when the fruit is picked and may stay that way until the pineapple is purchased. There may be a yellow tinge starting at the bottom of the fruit—but this doesn't affect ripeness either.

There are a couple of other tests you can try to determine whether or not the pineapple is ripe. But I recommend you try them after you get your purchase home.

One is the thump test. Tap the fruit. If you hear a dull thud—you can figure the fruit is ripe and full of juice.

Here's the second test you can do at home. Try pulling a green leaf from the crown of the pineapple. If it comes out easily—chances are the pineapple is ripe.

If you try these tests and find the pineapple you bought isn't quite ripe, don't be concerned. It will ripen at room temperature.

Onions Good Bet For Spring Dishes

In contrast to last year's shortage, a large supply of spring onions is now available at supermarkets everywhere, according to U. S. Department of Aguiculture (USDA) reports.

During April, most of the nation's onion supply originates in the Rio Grande Valley of Texas. Adverse weather conditions last year caused a shortage of onions on the retail level, but excellent growing conditions this season have given Rio Grande producers the best yield in several years.

Homemakers eagerly anticipate the arrival of new-crop onions each spring, and this year's bumper crop should make many dishes more zestful. Onions can be used in soups, stews, and with roasts. It's worth remembering, too, that onions are low in calories.

When buying fresh onions, homemakers should look for a firm, dry product. The individual onion should be covered with a papery scale and be reasonably free from green sunburn spots and blemishes. Onions with wet or soft necks should be bypassed because they are immature or decayed. Other warning signs are thick, hollow or soddy centers in the neck, and fresh green sprouts on the onion.

With each person in this country eating, on the average, almost 12 pounds, it appears that onion growers have gone over the top this spring in assuring a largy supply of this flavor enhancer for the dinner-tables of the nation.

The Length Of Zippers

NEW YORK (WNS)—The dimensions of the world's largest buttonhole may be a subject for protracted debate, but James Givan, a zipper company executive, believes that the world's longest zipper is 900 inches long.

It was made by his comapny, Scovill Apparel Fasteners, for the covering of a new spacecraft. Other "longies," says Givan, are a 675-inch unit for a MASH-type army mobile field tent, and radar dome covers that extend up to 300 inches. A most unusual application is for concrete pilings: Zip up the mold, pour concrete, wait for it to set, then unzip the mold.

The first commercially practical zippers are believed to have been applied to rubber galoshess in 1923.

ALMOND MARBLE PIE

Chocolate curls may be used as an additional garnish.
3¼-ounce package vanilla pudding and pie filling
Milk
1 tablespoon white rum
8-ounce container heavy cream
Two 1-ounce squares semi-sweet chocolate
½ cup almond paste
Baked 8-inch pie shell

Gradually stir 1 and 1-3rd cups milk and the rum into the pudding mix; cook as package directs. Cover surface, without pressing down, with plastic wrap and cool completely. Whip cream until stiff; fold 1½ cups of the whipped cream into the pudding; refrigerate. Meanwhile melt chocolate over hot water; gradually beat melted chocolate and 1-3rd cup milk into almond paste until smooth. Cool completely. Spoon half of pudding mixture into pie shell; spoon half of chocolate mixture on top; gently run a knife tip through both mixtures to marble. Repeat with remaining pudding and chocolate mixtures. Chill. Garnish with remaining whipped cream. Makes 6 servings.

Tax-Cutting May Feed Fires

A number of Congressional leaders are calling for tax cuts to help the American wage earner, beset by inflation.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, Sen. Walter F. Mondale, Sen. Hubert Humphrey and Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield are among the Democratic leaders of the U.S. Senate who see a tax cut as a way to help families whose budgets are being wrecked by spiraling prices.

"This is something we can do for the average working stiff who's carrying the load in this country," Mansield said.

Humphrey sees a tax cut as a way to help low-income and middle-income families whose living costs are rising "in the midst of a recession." He is also for creation of public service jobs for the unemployed and an agency to monitor and counter inflation.

Kennedy and Mondale proposed tax cuts of $5.9 billion primarily by increasing the personal exemption from $750 to $825.

Calls for tax cuts make us wonder at the economic confusion of this present era. In the past, economists have advocated tax cuts as a way to deal with recession. The theory was that tax cuts put more money in the hands of working people who were apt to spend it. At the same time, during recessions those who sell things had to bargain sharply and this tended to curb inflationary tendancies.

As anybody who buys anything these days knows, there sure hasn't been any curbing of inflatio. Government figures show huge jumps in the cost of living something that the American housewife doesn't have to be told when she goes grocery shopping.

Like almost everyone caught up in the inflationary spiral, we would welcome a tax cut if it will mean real dollars in our pockets. However, the government planners and elected officials should study the situation carefully before they do something for political expediency. If a tax cut is going to send prices shooting ever higher, it is not going to help the individual family and will serve only to aggravate an already bad situation. Some of the old economic theories don't appear to be working now and it is a time to exercise caution, rather than to take rash actions that could lead us into economic disaster.

Showdown On The April Tapes

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The last door open to the White House for peaceful noncompliance with the congressional subpoenas demanding presidential tapes of April 1973 has been slammed shut in advance by senior Republicans and Democrats on the House Judiciary Committee, posing an unavoidable moment of truth Thursday (April 25).

The White House late last week seemed headed toward this approach: give the committee an edited version of the April tapes, omitting "national security" and "irrelevant" material. Simultaneously, veiled hints from the White House have suggested not all the subpoenaed April tapes actually exist.

But an overwhelming majority on the Judiciary Committee simply will not buy this. They want each and every tape by the subpoena's Thursday due-date. They will insist that questions of "national security" and "irrelevant" material be resolved by bipartisan senior committee members and counsel working with Nixon defense lawyer James St. Clair. Claims of missing tapes would be greeted by disbelief and outrage from both Republicans and Democrats.

Thus, the showdown: Mr. Nixon must surrender the tapes or raise Republican suspicions still higher by disobeying the subpoena. That dilemma may encourage what aides describe as a private presidential mood ever more fatalistic. Mr. Nixon knows the game must be played out and thinks he will win it, but adds that if he doesn't, well, that's the way it is.

Last summer's Senate Watergate hearings raised the possibility that the mid-April 1973 presidential conversations hold the key to the game. Having been warned by the Justice Department April 15 that presidential aides H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman might be criminally prosecuted and should be fired, the President disregarded the advice. Instead, he conferred with them in frequent, long conversations whose recorded contents might answer fateful questions: Was this just bad judgment by Mr. Nixon? Or was he involved in the Watergate cover-up?

Some potentially revealing conversations are lost forever. The White House says the recorder ran out of tape at 9:30 Sunday morning, April 15. But assuming the machine was replenished Monday, there were many other Nixon-Haldeman-Ehrlichman conversations during this crucial period.

The President has been particularly chary about their release. Special prosecutor Leon Jaworski's requests were ignored, and he has subpoenaed 13 conversations between April 14 and April 17, 1973. Similarly, St. Clair complained repeatedly that Judiciary Committee counsel John Doar's request for April 14-17 conversations was too vague (though Doar privately told St. Clair precisely what was wanted).

Just before the Judiciary Committee considered the historic subpoena, St. Clair offered Doar all material requested—except the April tapes. After that was rejected, staunch Nixonite Rep. David Dennis of Indiana proposed omitting the April tapes from the subpoena. A party-line vote defeated his amendment.

White House strategy had seemingly succeeded splitting the Judiciary Committee down partisan lines with Republicans supporting nonrelease of the April tapes. But this was suddenly and ironically transformed by the committee's most intransigent Nixonite: Rep. Delbert Latta of Ohio. Without White House prompting Latta proposed another amendment, specifically listing each April 14-17 presidential conversation.

Some suspicious committee members believe Latta wanted to nail down the partisan advantage gained for Mr. Nixon by the defeat of the Dennis amendment; if Latta's proposal lost on another party-line vote, the partisan rapicity of the Democratic majority would be exposed. But the Democratic chairman, Rep. Peter Rodino of New Jersey, shrewdly accepted the Latta amendment. That not only produced an overwhelming vote for the subpoena but locked in committee Republicans, Latta included, for acquisition of the April tapes.

This destroyed Nixonian tactics of accusing Judiciary Committee Democrats of seeking a fishing license or driving a U-Haul truck to the White House. Moreover, House Republican leader John Rhodes endorses the idea of Judiciary Committee lawyers and St. Clair jointly—not St. Clair unilaterally—editing the tapes. tapes.

The White House does not seem to understand that the Latta amendment ended any possibility that congressional Republicans could accept unilateral editing. Still less acceptable would be a sudden revelation privately suggested by one senior presidential aide, that more April tapes are non-existent. Even loyal Republicans would demand: why did the President not say so in the firsst place?

As usual, a tiny White House inner circle is wrestling with the subpoena: the President, St. Clair, counsel J. Fred Buzhardt and chief of staff Alexander Haig. If past practice is followed, the reply will come at the eleventh hour. But this one decision could go further than all the others in deciding the President's fate.

One Telephone Always Answers

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Tar Heel young people are beginning to catch on to a toll-free phone number in Raleigh where people are anxious to hear about any problems children may have.

"We operate on a zero reject basis—that is, every call is a case and will be responded to. There's no waiting list, and we're not concerned with filling out a lot of extensive background data or listing rules to qualify for help.

"The object is to help kids," Don Taylor, director of the Governor's Advocacy Commission on Children and Youth, said in describing the agency's incoming hotline.

Other agencies have hotlines—but they're designed for a specific problem such as drug abuse, runaways, etc. Taylor said his is the only one dealing with any problem children may have, from abuse and neglect at home, trouble finding a public or private agency to help with a mental, emotional, or physical problem, etc.

Young people—and those who work with them—are calling the Raleigh number with increasing regularity; over 90 calls in the past nine months.

Margaret Wright, a member of Taylor's staff, spends about half of her time handling the calls and trying to work out solutions.

Child Abuse

Her tally sheet shows several calls about child abuse at day care centers, people seeking financial aid for unexpectedly heavy medical expenses, questions about available services for children with a variety of problems (a directory is on its way to the printer listing all public and private sources), and inquiries from children facing suspensions or expulsion from school who ask for some help.

Every case called in becomes an active case automatically, Taylor said.

"Our main goal is to come up with a connection for the person calling to somebody or some agency who can do something; somebody who can relieve the pressure of the problem, whether the help comes from the state or local government, or a private agency," Taylor explained.

"Our end of the service is completely free, but of course the solution may end up costing something," he said.

So far, approximately 75 per cent of the cases called in have been closed out with a satisfactory solution to the parties.

Miss Wright said the hotline service has shown no particular pattern of problems, but has demonstrated areas where local and state agencies can cooperate to solve problems, has helped to identify some problem areas, and has solved some immediate problems.

At least one piece of legislation has resulted from a call to the advocacy hotline: the state will provide transportation to school for the deaf, blind, and autistic children across the state.

Local Help

Taylor said most of the problems reported can be solved on the local level as "local agencies—and particularly local advocacy groups getting established—deal more aggressively with the problems of children."

In some cases, the advocacy people can't help. On such case now current has state officials frustrated. A North Carolina woman has in her custody two children: one a grandchild whom she adopted; the other a grandchild for whom she is legal guardian.

The mother wants to reclaim her children, but the grandmother is roaming the country with them in her custody, and the advocacy

The Polyester Solution

WASHINGTON—A group of men were having lunch at a well-known restaurant in Washington the other day. Although they were in various professions, they all had one thing in common. They were away from home a great deal and their wives had said they were getting fed up with it.

Amazingly enough it turned out that their wives, who did not even know each other, used the identical phrases when complaining about their lot.

These included: "All I'm doing is running a hotel."

"The only time I see you is when you come home to get clean laundry."

"You weren't even here for your own daughter's birthday party."

"What the heck is so important in _____?" (Fill in the city where you're going.)

It was at this juncture that Polyester, who works for a computer firm, sprung his plan.

"Our wives' main complaint," he said, "is that they have no one to talk to, which translates no one to bitch to. The reason why we're missed is that they want someone to listen to their stories and give them moral support."

We all agreed Polyester's description of our wives was accurate.

"Suppose," he said excitedly, "we had a computer that could match up complaining wives with other husbands who were on the road?"

We all looked goggle-eyed.

"Are you suggesting wife-swapping?" Acrilan asked.

"In a sense," said Polyester, "but no hanky-panky in the bedroom. You swap wives just so that they have someone to talk to. Let me give you an illustration. I'm on my way to Boston and I feed the computer at National Airport the arrival of my flight and how long I'll be there. I also tell the computer how many children I have, my position in the firm and salary.

"The object of the computer would be to match me as closely as possible to my own situation at home. The computer gives me an address and phone number. At this very moment there is a man in Boston coming to Washington, D. C., and he goes to his computer and asks for an address here. He gets mine. Right?

"Okay, I get to Boston and I check into my hotel. Now remember, the success of the scheme is no hanky-panky.

"Let's say my surrogate wife is Mrs. Dacron. I call her and ask when dinner is being served. I show up at the house at 6 p.m. and before I even hang my coat in the closet, Mrs. Dacron fills me in on the day. She tells me how lousy the kids have been behaving, what when wrong with the garbage disposal unit, how much she paid for eggs and how she can't manage a family on my salary. I get an earful.

"At this very moment the man from Boston is at my house listening to my wife doing two hours on what it's like to run a house when the man doesn't even know where the fuse box is.

"Mrs. Dacron is thrilled to have someone there to let out her frustrations on, and my wife finally has someone besides to kids to talk to."

"But what happens after dinner?" someone asked.

Polyester replied "I go into the living room and watch television while Mrs. Dacron does the dishes."

"Don't you help her with the dishes?"

"Hell no. It would ruin it for Dacron if I did something he didn't do. Then after watching TV I go to my hotel. Dacron, who presumably let my wife do the dishes while he read the evening paper, also goes back to his place."

The trouble with Polyester's plan, when we all discussed it later, is that not one of us could find a single thing wrong with it.

Public Forum

To the Editor:

For five years I have been reading Dr. Crane's column, "The Worry Clinic". I worry about "The Worry Clinic."

Dr. Crane is very quick to downgrade "book learning" and upgrade "common horse sense", but I notice he is very careful to list his own degrees by his name and to refer to the institutions where he has taught.

He seems consistently to give simplistic black and white answers to what are, for the most part, very complex problems.

On Wednesday, April 17, 1974, the column had to do with a woman who had deserted her family and various ideas to help her solve her problems. Dr. Crane concluded by washing his hands of the whole problem, suggesting that such people were a waste of time for him as well as clergymen.

Dr. Crane either has a distorted opinion of the Call of clergymen or the nature of the Church or both. Nobody who needs help is a waste of clergymens' time or anybody else's.

I wouldn't be writing this letter if I felt everyone read Dr. Crane as I do—for amusement. From comments I overhear, however, I am afraid some people may be taking him seriously, which can only mean emotional, psychological and spiritual despair for many.

Strength For Today

WITHSTANDING THE EVIL DAY

When the ruins of Pompeii were unearthed from the lava which had rained down upon it as a result of volcanic eruption, the skeletons of people were found in many positions. Some were striken down and lay prostrate; others were crouched in horror at the impending destruction. But there was one figure, a Roman soldier, who was found standing guard at the city gate where he had been ordered by his commander, his spear still clasped in his hand. While others had fled in terror this soldier carried out his duty to the last.

Occasionally we find individuals who we are sure have this capacity to do their duty no matter what disaster impends. Perhaps this quality was in Paul's mind when he wrote, "Put on the whole armor of God that ye may be able to withstand the evil day, and having done so to stand." Stand, therefore having your loins girt about with truth and having on the breastplate of righteousness.

Fewer Voters Ready

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer

Fewer North Carolina voters are registered for the May 7 primary, in which Democrats and Republicans will choose party nominees for the general election, than were on the rolls for the 1972 election.

The state Board of Elections said that 2,257,092 persons had registered by the April 8 deadline. For the 1972 presidential balloting, 2,357,645 persons were on the rolls.

Registration figures for the two major parties also declined from 1972, the elections board said, while independent totals showed a slight increase.

Despite the Watergate scandals, the Republicans showed fewer losses than the Democrats, who far outstrip the GOP in total registration.

GOP voters strength declined from 541,916 in 1972 to 525,922 this year. The Democrats, with 1,729,436 voters in 1972, account for 1,646,122 of the state's voters this year.

American party affiliation dropped sharply this year, from 7,164 in 1972 to 4,735 this month. However, it is not known how many American party members switched affiliation to vote in the Democratic or Republican primaries.

Election offices in major Tar Heel cities said new registrations were down this year, and that lines near the deadline were shorter than anticipated.

"We had more than 2,000 new registrations. That's nothing compared to 1972," said Martha McLaughlin, executive secretary of the Wake County elections board.

"So far we haven't had any indication that there's much interest (in the primary)," she said. "It has been as slow an election as I've seen in 20 years."

A spokesman for the Mecklenburg County board said she thought there had been a larger number of 18-year-old registrations this year. However, the Pitt County is in excellent financial condition, according to last night's auditor's report to the members of the Board of Commissioners.

Auditor J. H. Coward said that for the first time in several years, recipts are in excess of Expenditures. General fund expenditures are 66 percent of appropriations; Health Department 72 percent of appropriations, County Home and Poor, 85 percent of appropriations and debt service, 42 percent of appropriations.

Receipts for all funds average better than 90 percent of estimated revenue.

The Singing Class of Oxford Orphanage will present a concert in the high school auditorium on Thursday at 8 p.m. The public is invited to attend the concert.

There are 18 children from Pitt County now in the home.

The hunt for John Dillinger continued in Wisconsin today, as the government, with over 100 men, tracked the outlaw to that showy area.

The department of justice has ordered its men to shoot to kill if Dillinger is seen, expecially in the wake of his killing a lawman as he blasted his way from a tavern recently.

Money Crisis Raises Its Head

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Mirror

NEW YORK (AP) — A money crisis appears to lurk just around the corner, and present indications are that business and a lot of individual Americans are going to walk smack into it. The concussion could be shattering.

Business has big capital spending plans on its book, hoping to enlarge and better equip its production facilities. Individuals, encouraged by renewed activity in homebuilding, have plans to buy long-delayed homes.

Neither may be able to go ahead with plans, however, because the money might not be there. And nobody needs to be told that a spending plan without money or credit is as impossible of accomplishment as filling a lacerated balloon with air.

The demand on the money supply has been growing for months, and not even historically high interest rates have been able to suppress it. In fact, the cost of money itself might be contributing to the situation.

It goes like this: a company plans to increase its spending on plant and equipment by 13 per cent over 1973, which is in fact the rate industry as a whole has set as a goal. But instead of having 13 per cent more money it must subtract for inflation — and for the higher costs of borrowing.

Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, which controls the money spigot, has been growing increasingly disturbed about what he considers to be highly inflationary demands for money. He has declared his intention of restraining that demand.

Otherwise, it is the Fed's contention, individuals and business will spend to such a degree that further inflationary strains are placed upon the economy. Inflation must be controlled, Burns asserts, even though it pains.

Countering his position, some investors and businessmen have hollered that monetary policy alone cannot accept so much of the burden of restraint. They claim that to limit the money supply could destroy business, wreck the housing market and bring about a stock market collapse.

Burns this week stood firm. "We aren't going to sit back and prepare a monetary path to a continuation of rapid inflation," he said. "Let there be no mistaking our determination to do this."

figures for total registration dropped in the county from 172,641 in 1972 to 160,681 this year.

Election officials were uncertain about the reasons for the decline, although some said state races fail to attract the attention of national campaigns.

"Of course 1972 was a bigger election," said Kathy Church of the Forsyth County board. "We did not have as long lines at the deadline. I think maybe a lot of it is being an off-year election."

Voters will choose candidates for the Senate seat held by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., as well as standard bearers for the U.S. House of Representatives, the General Assembly, the state Supreme Court, the state Court of Appeals and the General Assembly.

WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N. C.

Americans Are Leaving

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — American business executives are still leaving Argentina to escape guerrilla kidnapers, and no one has any idea when the exodus will stop.

Spokesmen for various American companies say they have no intention of quitting the country permanently. But many firms are shifting their foreign executives elsewhere, at least temporarily.

"You can count the number of American presidents of U.S. firms here on one hand," says one well-connected American source.

The American community represents some $1.4 billion in investments in Argentina, and since last fall it has been the target of leftist guerrillas whose kidnapings the government has been unable to stop.

The exodus began in November when John Swint of the Ford Motor Co. was killed in a guerrilla ambush on Thanksgiving Day in Cordoba. It quickened after the leftist People's Revolutionary Army abducted Exxon's Victor Samuelson last December.

Exxon paid the guerrillas $14.2 million on March 11, but nothing has been heard of the Cleveland, Ohio, man. Fears are growing that he may be dead.

Eight years ago the American community was estimated at 8,000 residents. The United States Consulate in Buenos Aires says there are about 4,000 Americans still in Argentina.

But it has been saying that since November, and reliable sources say at least 130 American executives have left the country in that period. In the past two years, enrollment at the American school in Buenos Aires has decreased from 900 to less than 400.

Boat Exams

The Greenville Flotilla of the US Coast Guard Auxiliary is now giving free pleasure boat examinations for legal and safety requirements.

Giving the examinations are Ivey Coward and Richard Stephenson.

The courtesy motorboat examination decal, the "Seal of Safety" is awarded to those boats which meet legal requirements and additional safety standards set by the Coast Guard Auxiliary.

Courtesy examinations are made upon the request of the boat owner. Any deficiencies found will be brought to the attention of the owner and no one else.

Anyone interested in a free boat examination should call Francis Dorey, Flotilla Commander, at 752-4202 or 756-3470.

Bike Rodeo On Saturday

A bicycle safety inspection and rodeo will be held Sat., Apr. 27 at the Elm Street Park in conjunction with Bicycle Safety Week, April 22-17.

Bicycle Safety Week in Greenville is being co-sponsored by the Optimist Club and the Greenville Recreation Department.

Observance of the safety week will end with the safety inspection and rodeo. Only bicycles that have undergone safety inspection by 11 a.m. will be allowed to enter the rodeo.

Twelve trophies for riding skill abilities in the rodeo will be awarded, four trophies in each of three age classes. Boys and girls will compete together in each age group in such skills as balancing at slow speed, steering, circle riding and maneuvering and breaking.

Each entrant in the rodeo will receive a membership card to the Optimist Bicycle Safety Club and a bicycle identification card to aid in recovery of stolen bikes, according to Bruce Hudson, chairman of the program for the Optimist Club.

Greenville policemen will be on hand to register bicycles needing a license.

office continues to get abuse reports. At last report the trio were in California, while Maine officials were searching for them as well.

"If they were in North Carolina, we could do something. But we can't get a lead on them, and some agencies in other states don't really take an interest in the case, so we just haven't had any luck," Taylor said.

Hopefully, he added, one day soon the wandering trio can be located and "some steps taken to protect the kids—and that's what our job is," Taylor said.

Just Like Old Political Rally

TBILISI, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Judging from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's performance, it could have been a hometown political rally.

Hundreds of people crowded around the Massachusetts Democrat when he and his family visited the Soviet state of Georgia on Tuesday. Kennedy responded by shaking hands, smiling and waving.

Officers Of TPA Voted

Pitt County Post E. E. of Travelers Protected Association of America, meeting recently, approved a club donation of $100 to the Winterville Fire Department towards the purchase of self-contained breathing equipment.

The chapter also voted to collect donations from individual TPA members towards the fire department project and some $95 was given to supplement the chapter donation.

Fire Chief Paul Hunsucker accepted the funds on behalf of the department.

Post E. E., which met for its quarterly meeting at the Winterville Fire Department building, elected new officers for the 1974-75 period, effective May 1. Elected were Leon Smith Jr., president; William B. (Bill) Martin, vice president; and William J. (Bill) Williams, secretary-treasurer.

Directors elected during the session included Cecil C. Worthington and J. H. Mobley of Winterville, and Noah Raynor, James H. Harris Sr. and J. D. Wilson Jr. of Greenville.

The post approved the applications of 12 area citizens for membership.

The Pitt County post currently has over 800 members.

DURANTE WINS AWARD—Veteran entertainer Jimmy Durante waves his hat in his familiar manner in acknowledgement of the tribute paid to him Tuesday in New York, the bestowal of the 22nd annual Silver Lady award of the Banshees, a club which includes male artists, editors, writers and newspaper executives. Durante, now 81, sang a couple of his old hits at the luncheon. Durante, still active although confined to a wheelchair, is the first person not connected with the newspaper profession to win the award. (AP Wirephoto)

Photo Analyst Says Gun Was Strapped To Patricia's Hand

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP) — Photographs of Patricia Hearst taken by security cameras during an April 15 bank robbery indicate she was an unwilling participant in the holdup, a photo analyst says.

Peter Davies of New York City said in a letter to the Hearst family that one picture indicates the gun Miss Hearst held was strapped under her coat to her right hand. The letter was released Tuesday.

Davies said Miss Hearst appears to have been "very much an unwilling participant" and may have been strapped to the gun to prevent her from discarding it "in a surrender or die situation."

Miss Hearst's father, newspaper executive Randolph A. Hearst, said the analysis "reinforces some of the things I thought. I am sure she's either being coerced — brainwashed — or being forced, but I don't know which it is, and I'm sure he (Davies) doesn't either."

Charles W. Bates, FBI agent in charge of the case, said only, "Photos are subject to various interpretations."

Davies is author of a book called "The Truth About Kent State." In the book he analyzed photos of National Guardsmen firing on a crowd of campus demonstrators in the 1970 incident in which four students died.

There has been speculation whether Miss Hearst, 20, was a willing accomplice in the $10,692 holdup in which four alleged members of the Symbionese Liberation Army are named in warrants. The SLA claims responsibilty for the Feb. 4 abduction of Miss Hearst. In a message on April 3 she renounced her family and said she was joining the terrorist group.

Authorities describe the SLA as a heavily armed, multiracial organization of about 25 persons.

Voice-Screening Set For Adults

A voice screening for adults in the Greenville area will be held at the Department of Social Services Thursday from 9-12 a.m.

The program is sponsored by the Regional Medical Program and the East Carolina University Speech and Hearing Clinic.

Persons experiencing chronic hoarseness, harshness or loss of voice may be the victim of a local pathology including laryngeal cancer.

All area residents are urged to attend, free of charge. A hearing screening will also be provided.

Upset Over Oil Profit Reports

By JOSH FITZHUGH
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The oil companies report: Exxon, net income after taxes of $705 million in the first three months of this year. Texaco, after-tax profits of $589.4 million. Occidental, net income for the first quarter up 718 per cent over the same period last year.

The gains come after similarly sharp rises for most companies in the last three months of 1973, when the Arab oil embargo and the energy crisis sent prices spiraling. Some percentage increases may be deceptive, however: Occidental's figures are contrasted with a depressed first quarter in 1973.

Speaking of the substantial increases in profits being announced by the oil companies, Sen. Henry M. Jackson says they show "the bankruptcy of the government's energy policy."

The Washington Democrat, chairman of the Senate Interior Committee, said higher oil profits and prices "make the working man and the people who employ him the orphans of neglectful — even reckless — government actions."

Jackson made the comments in Washington on Tuesday after four more oil companies released first-quarter 1974 earnings reports which showed sharp increases over the January-February-March 1973 period.

Exxon, the nation's number one oil company in terms of sales, said its profits of $705 million for the three months ended March 31 were up 39 per cent over 1973 period. But Exxon said its earnings were down 10.4 per cent from the fourth quarter of 1973.

Texaco, which squeaked by Mobil last year to become the country's second biggest oil firm, said its first-quarter profits of $589.4 million represent a 123 per cent increase from the $264 million disclosed for the same period in 1973.

Occidental Petroleum Corp., the 11th largest, reported first-quarter profits of $67.7 million, up 718 per cent over profits of $8.28 million during the first quarter of last year.

Occidental said gross revenues for the period jumped from $681.4 million in 1973 to more than $1.3 billion this year. Earnings per common share increased from six cents to $1.14.

The company said the big jump should not be considered indicative of the rest of the year. The 1973 first-quarter earnings were restated to reclassify extraordinary items as ordinary earnings and to provide for deferred Canadian taxes on operations there.

And Skelly Oil Co. of Tulsa, Okla., said its first-quarter 1974 profits were $19.7 million, up 97 per cent from 1973 on a 40 per cent jump in gross revenues to $214.4 million. Skelly's first quarter earnings per share jumped from 84 cents to $1.66.

Profits or earnings are corporate net income after taxes.

The announcements Tuesday by Exxon, Texaco, Occidental and Skelly follow reports earlier in the week by Gulf Oil and Standard Oil of Indiana listing first-quarter earnings more than 75 per cent above year-ago levels.

The strong earnings have caused the oil companies to repeat the announced purpose to which they will be put. Officials for both Texaco and Exxon said the profits would go mostly into capital development and exploration for new energy supplies.

At a New York press conference, the newly named head of the Federal Energy Office, John C. Sawhill, said his agency would analyze oil company profits "to see if price increases have led to increased investment, especially in drilling and development rather than in marketing."

Recognized Unclaimed Body In Funeral Home

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP) — Martha Evans had heard the story about an embalmed body being kept in the second-floor storage room of the Woodward Funeral Home. So when she brought a beautician to do the hair of deceased friend, she asked to see it.

"Oh, my God, it's Bellhouse," she shrieked.

Bellhouse was the family nickname for her brother-in-law, James Evans, who had been missing for 27 years. He was a migrant worker in the peach and apple orchards and farms along the East Coast.

His wife, Lulia Mae, now of Cranford, N.J., and the rest of the family had searched for him from Florida northward.

But it was Mrs. Evans who found him — embalmed and dressed in a black suit, white shirt, black tie and hat, standing upright under a sheet in the corner of the storage room. She discovered the body in January, but details weren't made public until she granted an interview on Tuesday.

A funeral is planned July 27, long enough away to allow Evans' wife and seven children to make arrangements to be present from New Jersey, Texas and California.

Officials said Evans died near Spartanburg 3½ years ago at the age of 80. But they said no one in the family knew of the death because he had been using the alias William Bryant.

No one claimed the body at the Spartanburg General Hospital and so it was transferred to the funeral home and embalmed. Officials there tried through newspapers and radio stations to find someone to claim it, but got no response.

The executive director of the South Carolina Funeral Directors Association, W.O.Folk, said the funeral home broke no law by allowing the body to remain unburied for so long.

"It was convenient for us" to put it in the storage room, the funeral home manager said. "It was out of the way, and nobody was stumbling over it."

True Bill

The Pitt County Grand Jury has returned a true bill of indictment charging Mrs. Lola Kornegay, 19, of Rt. 2, Ayden with manslaughter in the Feb. 21 death of her six-week-old daughter.

Pitt Coroner and Medical Examiner E. W. Harvey Jr. ruled that Carolyn Ann Kornegay died as a result of head injuries. An autopsy on the infant revealed several skull fractures, it was noted.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that a trial date for Mrs. Kornegay, who is under $500 bond, will be scheduled for the next session of Superior Court here.

Four Dietetics Students Work In Hospitals

Four students in the East Carolina University Department of Food, Nutrition and Institution Management are working in eastern North Carolina hospitals this spring for professional field experience in dietetics.

They are Sandra McCue of Pitman, N. J.; Patricia Herman of Gastonia; Evelyn Lois Dail of Dunn; and Beth Waugh of Wikesboro.

Miss McCue is working at Pitt Memorial Hospital, Greenville, under the supervision of Lorraine Nobles, MS, RD. Miss Herman and Mrs. Dail are at Nash General Hospital, Rocky Mount, under the supervision of Amelia Frances Bass, RD. Miss Waugh is assigned to Beaufort County Hospital, Washington, under the supervision of Elizabeth Davenport and Clyde Hicks.

Locating Extra Tobacco Plants

As a public service for Pitt County tobacco farmers, the Pitt County Farm Bureau is coordinating information on availibility of extra tobacco plants.

Farmers with extra plants available are asked to call the extension office, phone 756-3165, giving the variety and approximate number of plants available. Farmers in need of plants are also asked to call the extension number to place their names on the list of farmers needing plants.

Superintendents Going To Event

Several area school superintendents will attend a seminar on "Administrative Teaming in Education" April 30-May 1 at the Holiday Inn in Kinston.

Superintendents attending the session include: Arthur S. Alford, Pitt County; Glenn F. Cox, Greenville City; R. E. Rogers, Martin County and George S. Taylor, Greene County.

The seminar is being sponsored by the Department of Public Instruction in cooperation with the National Academy of School Executives of the American Association of School Administrators.

The meeting is being held to acquaint superintendents with the pros and cons, approaches, and procedures of administrative teaming.

Visiting Choir To Sing Sunday

The Concert Choir of Lynchburg Baptist College, under the direction of David P. Randlett, will be presented Sunday at 10 a.m. at Grace Church at the corner of Spruce Street and Watauga Avenue here.

The LBC choir is on its annual spring tour, which this year takes the 40 members through the southeastern United States. The public is invited to the concert.

LBC is a four-year Christian liberal arts college located in Lynchburg, Va.

No Injuries In Auto Collision

Sidney Cornelius Manning of Route 1, Winterville was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 5:20 p.m. collision on Greenville Boulevard 700 feet East of the Evans Street intersection.

Police said the Manning car collided with a vehicle driven by John Maurice Marsh Jr. of Route 10, Greensboro, causing an estimated $200 damage to the Marsh car and $300 damage to the Manning vehicle.

No injuries were reported.

Set Service For Sick, Shut-Ins

New Englanders Suspicious Of Onassis Refineries

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — The energy crisis dramatized what New Englanders already knew: they are major consumers of oil, but they are also at the end of the pipeline, totally dependent on outside suppliers for refined petroleum products.

So when Aristotle Onassis flew to New Hampshire last December, saying he was "not a Greek bearing gifts," he clearly expected a warm welcome for his proposal to build a giant oil refinery.

He encountered a mixture of enthusiasm and bitter suspicion.

Despite technological improvements, refineries produce noise and odors. Environmentalists have fought suggestions that one be built along the tourist-rich New England coast.

Gov. Meldrim Thomson of New Hampshire has balked at suggestions from fellow New England governors and others that the six states join in a regional effort to solve the area's oil supply problems.

Since his inauguration two years ago, Thomson has been actively searching for someone to build an oil refinery in the state. He says it would be a boon to the economy and a solution to the energy shortage.

Industry engineers say any refinery in New England must be built near the coast to minimize the cost of piping crude oil from offshore tankers. New Hampshire is landlocked except for an 18-mile strip of rocks and beach that touch the Atlantic in the southeast corner of the state.

Five major oil companies have looked at the area and gone away, but Onassis decided it was worth trying.

He had the unqualified backing of Thomson and of William Loeb, publisher of the Manchester Union Leader, the state's largest and quite powerful newspaper.

New Hampshire has relatively little land-use legislation to protect the environment and ecology of the seashore. And there is no personal income or sales tax in the state.

Official studies indicate that the wording of the state's real estate tax law would exempt most of a refinery complex from property taxes, and tax revenue most likely would be derived from the state's 7 per cent tax on corporate profits—if the refinery makes a profit.

Industry spokesmen say refineries generally are the least profitable link in the oil producing and marketing chain. One called them "necessary evils that the companies are forced to build only because they can't sell crude oil at gas stations."

Onassis became a millionaire at 25 by shipping oil, not refining it, and has made hundreds of millions since by putting together one of the largest independent tanker fleets in the world.

Twenty years ago, Onassis signed a deal with the king of Saudi Arabia that would have guaranteed him the right to transport at least 10 per cent and as much as 80 per cent of that oil-rich Arab nation's crude production. Several major oil and shipping companies, with the aid of the United States and Britain, combined forces to make him break the contract that would have given him a stranglehold on the market.

Onassis continued to make money on his fleet by putting some tankers under long-term charter to the major oil companies and retaining others for the "spot market," hiring out ships to haul a single cargo on a single trip.

Industry representatives say the spot market can be extraordinarily profitable but also risky. "You can lose your shirt if you build a supertanker, and then can't keep it full," said a spokesman for the American Petroleum Institute.

In 1968, Onassis tried again to guarantee constant cargoes for his tankers by promising to build a refinery and power complex for his native Greece. In exchange for building the $400 million plant, he would have had exclusive control over the refinery's oil shipments.

But the deal fell through two years ago when Onassis couldn't deliver a total financing package or assure the refinery a source of low-priced Arabian crude oil.

Olympic's proposal for New Hampshire would be even more expensive—an estimated $600 million for a 400,000 barrel-per-day complex—but with it Onassis would get a deepwater port on the Atlantic capable of servicing the highly efficient supertankers.

There has been talk, sometimes encouraged and sometimes denied by Olympic, that Onassis is willing to offer Saudi Arabia or some other oil-producing nation a substantial interest in the refinery in exchange for a guaranteed supply of crude and an assurance of business for his ships.

With the exception of a few American-flag carriers that Onassis built to settle a court case 20 years ago, virtually his entire fleet of about 70 ships sails under so-called "runaway" flags or flags of convenience. That means they are registered in countries that don't tax or regulate them.

"If I had the fleet and the contacts in the Middle East," one industry insider said, "I'd buy the crude cheap at one and resell it to myself when it gets to the States so I could write off the refinery operation and take the profits on my runaway ships."

Food Store Is Held Up

GRIFTON—Police here and the Pitt County Sheriff's Department are investigating an armed robbery at a food store Monday night that resulted in the theft of an undetermined amount of money.

Grifton Police Chief Linwood Outlaw said that the Stop-N-Go food store at the intersection of Highland Avenue and Queen Street was reported robbed shortly before 10:40 p.m.

Chief Outlaw said that the food store's night clerk told officers a man entered the store and waited until another customer left before going to the check-out counter with several items. The clerk reported that she began ringing the items up on the cash register and the man pulled a gun when the register's money drawer opened.

Chief Outlaw noted that the clerk reported she was instructed to lie on the floor and she remained there until the man left the store. The chief said that the exact amount of money taken has not been determined at this time.

He added that the clerk was not injured in the robbery.

Talk Watershed Project Delay

A meeting to determing what is causing delay of the Swift Creek Watershed Project and to determine what can be done to resolve the problems was held last night at the Pitt County Court House.

The program included the following speakers: Roy Beck, Soil Conservation Service district conservationist; Robert Warlick; Lewis Pampelin; Daniel F. McDonald and several local watershed farmers.

Beck explained to the goup that the project is being delayed due to the passage of the National Environmental Policy Act. NEPA requires a review of all small watershed projects.

Beck stated that comments from wildlife agencies and other groups, both federal and state, have resulted in delays in the project.

Warlick showed color slides of the Swift Creek Project. The slides showed fallen trees across the channels. He explained how fish and wildlife habitat would be damaged if the channelization project is completed.

Warlick suggested that the project be revised to eliminate work in the Creeping Swamp area and that the old channels in Swift Creek, Clay Root Swamp and Indian Wells Swamp be snagged of debris. After that is completed, Warlick suggested that the watershed sponsors wait for two or three years before doing anything else so that the work could be observed.

Pampelin, of the Federal Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife, stated he did not want to see any work done in Creeping Swamp main and its principal tributaries; snagging only on the main channels in Swift Creek, Clay Root, Indian Wells and Back Swamp; would permit channelization of some 30 laterals up in the principal farm areas; and that sediment traps be installed.

Dick Folsche of the Raleigh SCS office, stated that the project originally provided for five years storm protection level as requested by local farmers.

He stated that SCS hydrologists have calculated that snagging only on Swift Creek main would give only one year storm level protection and may not provide adequate depth for drainage to some areas of farmland.

J.H. Canterbury, SCS employee, suggested that sponsors, SCS and wildlife agency representatives visit the land and look at each of the problem areas to see if the problems can be resolved.

The sponsor representatives agreed to visit the site in June and have community meetings throughout the watershed area to explain the problem to the local people.

East Carolina University biologist Vince Bellis said he felt channelization projects had adverse downstream affects.

Senate Okays Payment For Losses In Poultry

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Bill compensating the Mississippi poultry industry for the destruction of millions of pesticide-contaminated chickens has been passed by the Senate and sent to the House

The House already has held hearings on almost identical legislation, but the bill is still pending in an Agriculture subcommittee. That bill, or the one passed Tuesday by the Senate, could reach the full House early next week.

The Senate's action, by a vote of 56 to 31, came after the Senate rejected a motion by Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, to return the bill to the Agriculture Committee for public hearings.

Clark said the bill had been too hastily considered and would set a dangerous precedent of the government compensating every businessman who suffers a financial setback because of an emergency.

But Mississippi Democrats James O. Eastland and John C. Stennis, two of the Senate's most powerful members, argued that the concept of agricultural indemnities is not new.

They argued that it would be discriminatory to allow the indemnities for the beef and dairy industries but refuse the same kind of relief to the poultry industry.

The bill would allow the government to pay the producers the fair market price of the birds — perhaps as much as $10 million — and supplement unemployment benefits for workers left temporarily jobless.

The Senate rejected several amendments proposed by Clark, including one that would have narrowed the scope of the legislation. That provision, overwhelmingly defeated, would have allowed payment of indemnities only to producers who prove they cannot absorb the loss and remain in business.

Eastland said about 7.6 million chickens have been killed and disposed of by the industry.

The federal government ruled that the birds could not be marketed because routine testing had shown them to be contaminated with dieldrin, a crop pesticide known to cause cancer on prolonged exposure.

The chickens were believed to have been contaminated by oils added to feed.

Man Arrested On Rape Charge

The Pitt County Sheriff's Department has arrested a 20-year-old area man and charged him with the Monday morning rape of a 63-year-old Rt. 9, Greenville woman.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson reported that James Edward Boyd of Rt. 9, Box 172, was arrested around 12:30 yesterday and charged with the alleged rape. The sheriff said that the incident was reported at 11:40 a.m. and apparently took place around 11 a.m.

A hearing has been scheduled for May 8, Sheriff Tyson reported, and Boyd is being held in Pitt County Jail without privilege of bond.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina egg markets weaker on large and mediums Tuesday. Supplies adequate, demand only fair.

Weighted average prices for small lot sales of consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby outlets: Grade A large whites 53.73, medium whites 47.72, small whites 38.84.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina hog prices 50 cents to $1.00 lower today. Tops of 29.00-29.50 at Rocky Mount; 28.50-29.50 Kinston and Lumberton; 28.50-29.00 Tarboro and Bethel; 26.50-28.50 Wilson and High Falls; 29.00 Salisbury.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina dock broilers: Market steady for this week at 35.71 cents per pound. Undertone unsettled to weak for next week. Supplies adequate and demand fairly good. Estimated slaughter today 1,122,000.

North Carolina hens: Market steady to weaker on heavy type. Undertone unsettled, supplies fully adequate and demand slow. Prices paid for hens over 7 pounds, 12½-13 cents; F.O.B. plants too few to report prices.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted another broad decline today, burdened by prospects of tight money and Consolidated Edison's surprise decision to omit its second quarter dividend.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 7.04 at 838.94, and there were about six times more losers than gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was relatively active in comparison with the sluggish pace set over the past several weeks.

A record 10½ per cent prime lending rate spread to numerous banks across the country today, and brokers said the Federal Reserve's declared intention to stick with a restrictive monetary policy was producing continued uneasiness among investors.

On Monday Arthur F. Burns, the Fed's chairman, said he was determined to pursue such a money policy to combat inflation.

"The question now becomes how long he is willing to stay with that approach and how intensely he is willing to get with it," said Monte Gordon at Dreyfus Corp.

On the dividend suspension by Con Ed, the New York electric utility, Gordon said: "That hurt. Utilities are normally the group of stocks you run to for safety."

Con Ed shares were delayed in opening for a second straight session. On Tuesday they dropped 5¾ to 12¼.

Weakness in other utilities also continued, with the Dow Jones average of 15 utilities down 1.21 at 80.62 on top of a plunge of more than 4 points Tuesday.

Matsushita Electric was down ⅝ at 16⅜ in trading that included two sizable blocks, and Motorola was off 1½ at 52½. The Justice Department said Motorola's plan to sell its television set business to Matsushita raised some antitrust questions.

On the American Stock Exchange, the volume leader was Houston Oil & Minerals, down 1⅝ at 39⅝. The Amex' 11 a.m. market-value index was off .85 at 91.44.

The NYSE composite, meanwhile, dropped .46 to 48.35.

Launch Study Of Health Ins.

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is starting its study of national health insurance legislation with most attention focused on President Nixon's proposal and major compromises sponsored by top Democrats.

The House Ways and Means Committee scheduled Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Caspar W. Weinberger as leadoff witness today.

"Comprehensive health insurance is an idea whose time has come in America," Nixon told Congress when he sent his bill to the lawmakers earlier this year.

The President noted that "there is widespread support in the Congress and in the nation for some form of comprehensive health insurance. Surely, if we have the will, 1974 should be the year that we find the way."

Already waiting on Capitol Hill at that time were a cradle-to-grave measure backed by Senate health subcommittee Chairman Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and a compromise plan sponsored by Sens. Russell Long, D-La., and Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn.

Long is chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and Ribicoff, a former secretary of health, education and welfare, is a leading liberal on the finance panel.

Earlier this month Kennedy joined Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, in introducing a compromise intended to reconcile what had been sharply divergent approaches to health-care legislation.

Land-Plans Are Advised

"With the rapid changes in our society we must plan wisely in order to conserve land," Ed Yancey, Extension Chairman of the Pitt County Agriculture Extension Service told those attending the meeting of the Pitt County Farm Bureau Board of Directors meeting Tuesday night. "Land for recreation, for highway use, waste disposal, for housing and business developments and for agriculture," Yancy added, "are all part of the necessity for wise planning."

Yancy, guest speaker at the director's meeting, used slides to emphasize possible means of planning in land usage.

J.C. Galloway, a member of the N.C. State Farm Bureau Board of Directors, gave a report on the insurance meeting held earlier Tuesday in Raleigh.

Another speaker at the meeting was Johnny Radford, manager of Greenfield Dairy in Pitt County and president of Pitt County Young Farmers. Radford reported that the most recent meeting of the young group was well attended and that plans were being made for booths at the Pitt County Fair in October.

Special guests at the Farm Bureau meeting were state senator Vernon White and representative Sam Bundy.

Council Meeting Of Girl Scouts

The spring council meeting of the Coastal Carolina Girl Scouts will meet here Thursday at Memorial Baptist Church.

Volunteer Girl Scout workers representing 26 counties will attend the meeting. Also attending will be administrative professionals from the area scout office in Goldsboro.

The meeting will begin at 10:30 a.m. with a coffee hour, business session and lunch at noon.

Women who have been outstanding in scouting will receive awards during the meeting.

School Hosting Competition

Karl B. Pace Academy will host a forensic competition among private schools in Eastern North Carolina Saturday beginning at 9 a.m.

Forensic competition involves competition in the areas of art, handwriting, journalism, creative writing, spelling, dramatic monologue and poetry readings.

Other schools scheduled to participate in the event include: Bertie Academy, Chowan Academy, Martin Academy, Albemarle Academy, Tarboro-Edgecombe Academy and Pamlico Community School.

Expected Some Horsing Around

CHICAGO (AP) — When the Chicago Police Department asked elementary school pupils to name the first 10 horses in the department's new mounted patrol, they expected some horsing around. They got it.

One youngster suggested "Streaker — so that the policeman can ride bareback."

Opening Bids .

He said the decision to operate under the franchise method was based on the "desire to provide collection service at the least possible cost," to the county and to prevent double taxation or duplication of service—a condition that would exist if residents were taxed for a county-financed collection service unless the county undertook the collection of refuse within all the municipalities, too.

Gray noted that all vehicles hauling refuse, except those operated by individuals hauling their own waste, will be required to display an identification tag or decal in order to gain entrance to the county's landfill. He said the special landfill use permits are issued by the Health Department.

Portion Of Pledges Mailed

Pledges made to the 1974 March of Dimes Telerama held March 9 and 10 on WITN-TV exceed $45,000, according to Chairman Helen Parker.

However, only a portion of this amount has been mailed in, she said. All those who have not yet sent in their contributions are urged to mail them to Telerama, Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, Box 794, Washington, N.C. 27889. The money raised by the March of Dimes is used to buy hospital equipment for intensive care of newborn infants, patient aid, public health education, research, and other local and state projects.

BACK AWAY

NASHVILLE (AP) & Tennessee has become the second state to renege on its ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment for women, opening the door for lawsuits testing the legality of such a move.

Development .

getting to know the county and its people," he said. "He should attempt to develop the interest of other people in general development. He should sit in other drug stores and listen to what is being said. He should visit every business establishment, both large and small with the entire county with the next year. (And this includes hog parlors.)

"The primary mission of the Development Commission should be studied with an eye, not so much focused on purely industrial development, but should include all areas of general development. Some of these might be as follows:

a. providing up-to-date aerial survey maps of the towns and surrounding areas.

b. exploring ways to provide better fire protection to the rural areas.

c. instigating and coordinating clean up campaigns throughout the county, both urban and rural.

d. encouraging in all possible ways when a local business needs help for expansion or development of new products. This would be through local financing of the Small Business Administration.

e. be willing to answer or find the answer to any question that relates to general county development.

f. encourage beautification projects throughout the county.

"I am sure," Dr. Dixon concluded, "that there are other areas in which he could function that have not occurred to me. If it is something that would make Pitt County a better place in which to live and work, then the Pitt County Development Commision should be involved."

Winterville Town Manager Elwood Nobles defended the Commission saying, "The citizens of Winterville have no ax to grind with the Commission. One reason we don't have industry is we don't have the facilities—we just don't have anything to offer."

R. E. Boyd of Winterville, a Commission member, said he saw no objection to Commission members' being appointed by local government units. He urged that all complaints be brought directly to Development Commission members.

Commission Chairman Corey Stokes said that the executive director gives a monthly report, of which a copy is presented to each Commission member present at the monthly meetings. "The Commission members do know what is going on," he said. "We might not be considered progressive, but we do the best we can."

Investigative committee chairman, Dr. Pou, listed the ideas he believed had come from the meeting: that there needs to be a new procedure in appointing Commission members, that the Commission should be interested in more than just industrial plant location, that there should be more supervision and involvement by Commission members with the executive director; that meeting of the Commission should be held at various locations throughout the county at regular intervals; and that more help should be given to all areas of Pitt County.

Collecting Remains Of 107 Dead In Jet Crash

By GHAFUR FADYL
Associated Press Writer

DENPASAR, Indonesia (AP) — Rescue teams today were collecting the remains of the 107 victims who died aboard the Pan American 707 jet that crashed Monday night into a jungled mountain on the island of Bali.

Twenty-eight Americans were among the dead. There were no survivors.

Officials said the search teams found the plane broken in three main parts, lying in a deep ravine on 3,900-foot Mt. Mesehe.

The bodies were being brought down the mountain for transfer by helicopter or car to Denpasar, the capital of Bali, 36 miles to the southeast.

Recovery teams reached the crash scene Tuesday after the Indonesian army cut a trail and made a clearing for the helicopters to land.

The bodies of the 96 passengers and 11 crew members were to be taken to a Denpasar hospital before being handed over to the various foreign embassies.

Relatives of some of the 29 Japanese killed in the crash were flying to Bali today.

The government sent a team of experts to Bali to investigate the cause of the crash, which was the worst in Indonesia's history. The last message from the plane said it was flying at 12,000 feet preparatory to landing on Bali, and there was no indication of any difficulty, the air controller at Denpasar reported.

Officials were unable to explain why the plane was making its final approach from the northwest rather than from the west, the normal route over the sea.

The flight was en route from Hong Kong to Bali and Sydney, Australia. From Sydney it was to have gone on to Honolulu and Los Angeles.

Winterville Taking Bids

WINTERVILLE—Bids for expansion of the Winterville water system are now being accepted.

The bids, divided into three parts, will be opened at the town office on May 29 at 11:30 a.m.

The three areas bids are being asked include: 1. water distribution system; 2. 500,000 elevated storage tank; and 3. gravel wall well.

The contract doctuments and other information for bidders may be obtained from McDavid Associates, Inc., 120 N. Main St., Farmville; Associated General Contractors, Raleigh; or F. W. Dodge, Inc., Raleigh.

The project was approved in a $220,000 bond referendum held Feb. 26.

Scholarship For AFROTC Cadet

East Carolina University Air Force ROTC cadet Ronald C. Stewart has been awarded an Air Force College Scholarship.

The scholarship covers full tuition, laboratory expenses, incidental fees and a textbook allowance. Also included is $100 per month in non-taxable pay.

Stewart was nominated to receive the scholarship by institutional officials and by Air Force ROTC officers. Final selection was made on a nationally competitive basis by a central selection board at Air Force ROTC Headquarters in Alabama.

Arrest Youths For Trespassing

Two teenagers, Raymond Earl Battle, 17 of Route 1, Stokes and Jackie Lee Best, 16 or Route 5, Greenville, were arrested by Greenville police Friday night on charges of trespassing after they were discovered inside a fenced-in area at Greenville Parts and Metal Co. on North Greene St.

Chief Cannon said the two were discovered inside the firm's property about 10:30 p.m.

Delinquent Tax Notices Mailed

WINTERVILLE—Delinquent tax notices have been mailed in Winterville, according to Town Clerk Elwood Nobles.

If the taxes have not been paid by May 1, the property will be advertised for sale in a local paper.

The tax lien sale will be held on June 10.

The interest on the 1973 property taxes now is 4¼ percent.

TERMITES OR ANTS?

Don't be half sure. Call a professional pest control operator for an inspection today

The potential damage to property from termites can exceed the damage from tornadoes, hurricanes and fire. This is why termite protection is as important as a homeowner's insurance policy.

Rampants Rally To Top Northern Nash

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

RED OAK—Rose High School rallied for three runs in the top of the seventh inning and came away with a 3-1 victory over Northern Nash to remain in second place in the Division I baseball race yesterday.

The game had been a scoreless tie through the first five innings before Northern Nash finally pushed over a run in the sixth—one that a slip in the outfield helped to key.

Although it really didn't seem that way, it was a pitching duel most of the way. Chris Manning went all the way for the Rampants, hurling a three-hitter. Two of those hits came in the sixth when the Knights scored their only run. He walked just two batters and struck out just four.

Losing hurler Tim Sykes allowed just six hits, but gave up only three in the first six innings, and just one of those was out of the infield. Rose kept some pressure on him, however, loading the bases in the second with none out, and then getting a runner to third with one out in the fifth.

Northern Nash got only two runners as far as second, and one of them scored.

After Rose had gone down in order in the first inning, the Knights got off their first threat. With one down, James Wells walked and Craig Smith singled to center. But William Carter's grounder to third was fielded by Macon Moye, who easily initiated a double play, forcing Wells as he headed for third, then throwing out Carter.

It took another double play for the Knights to end the first Rampant threat, in the second inning.

Robert Brinkley led off, dragging a bunt past the mound for a single. Macon Moye, bunting down the third base line in a sacrifice attempt, beat out the throw, putting runners on first and second. Al Heath then walked to load the bases. But a popup gave Northern one out, and when the suicide squeeze was attempted, the ball was popped up, giving the Knights an easy double play to end the inning.

Neither team had another base runner until the fourth when Smith walked, but died at first for the Knights.

In the fifth, Heath opened up with a double down the left field line. He stole third with one down, but a strikeout and another popup ended the frame.

Northern finally broke the ice in the sixth. Wayne Lucas led off, hitting a fly into left field. Griff Garner, going after it, slipped down, and after recovering, just failed to reach the ball as it fell in for a hit. Ronnie Boddie sacrificed Lucas up, and Glenn Rackley came on to run for him.

Wells hit a long fly to center that Heath fielded going away, but the runner didn't test his arm. Smith, however, came up with a single into left, and that plated Rackley for a 1-0 lead.

Rose came right back, however. Brinkley led off with a triple into deep right center. Macon Moye then brought him over to tie it up with a fly to left.

Heath got it going again with a double to right center, and he again stole third. With two away, Jerry Griffin walked, and Dickie Johnson ran for him.

Manning aided his own cause with a line drive back through the middle, and that scored both Heath and Johnson, who had earlier gone to second unheeded by Northern. That staked Rose to their 3-1 lead, and they put down Northern one-two-three in the seventh to gain the victory.

Rose, now 6-2, meets Goldsboro tonight at 6 p.m. at Ayden-Grifton in the finals of the Ayden-Grifton tournament. The host team and Kinston meet for the consolations at 8 p.m. Rose travels to Wilson on Thursday for their next league game.

Croom Captures Golfing Title

Dot Croom of Walnut Creek Country Club in Goldsboro took top honors in the annual Greenville Ladies Invitational Golf Tournament, held yesterday at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

She fired an 83 for the low round of the tournament, taking first low gross honors in the championship flight. She also won the closest to the pin contest held on the 15th hole of the tournament.

A total of 95 women participated in the tournament.

Hariette White of Greenville Golf and Country Club took second place in the championship flight with an 85, while Jane Sauve of Brook Valley was third with an 86.

Myrl McCall of Walnut Creek was the low net winner in the championship flight with a 73.

First flight winners were, first low gross, Margaret Weatherly of New Bern, 85; second low gross, Lilly McCalley of Carolina Pines, 87; third low gross, Nancy Monroe of Greenville, 88; first low net, Mary Dale White of Greenville, 71.

Second flight winners were, first low gross, Euthamy Twisdale of Scotsfield, 88; second low gross, Jo Williams of Minnesott Beach, 93; third low gross, Ruth Wells of Happy Valley, 93; first low net, Hazel Ward of New Bern, 73.

Third flight winners were first low gross, Mary Hooks of Happy Valley, 94; second low gross, Pat Morrill of Happy Valley, 94; third low gross, Joan Hooper of Greenville, 95; first low net, Lucy Hagar of Carolina Pines, 72.

Fourth flight winners were, first low gross, Ruth Billica of Brook Valley, 99; second low gross, Evelyn Ward of Brook Valley, 99; third low gross, Ann Whitehurst of Greenville, 102; first low net, Eleanor Ruggin of Greenville, 72.

Fifth flight winners were, first low gross, Ann Moon of Brook Valley, 101; second low gross, Celeste Wilkerson of Greenville, 103; third low gross, Maxine Hawley of Greenville, 112; first low net, Lilly Brothers of Minnesott Beach, 78.

Robersonville Back In Lead

ROBERSONVILLE—Robersonville, with a little help from Rock Ridge, vaulted back into the lead of the Northern Division of the Eastern Plains Conference yesterday, taking an 11-0 rout over North Edgecombe.

Rock Ridge downed South Edgecombe, giving them their second loss. Robersonville, now 6-1, moved back into the sole possession of first with the results of the two games.

Matt Wilson hurled a no-hitter at North Edgecombe, in the five-inning contest. He struck out 13 of the 17 batters he faced, just two more than regulation. He walked one and another reached on an error.

The Robersonville team also turned in a fine theft performance in the game, stealing a total of 14 bases.

The Eagles got it started in the first when they scored a pair of runs. Mike Matthews singled and stole both second and third. Victor Hardison reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Matthews. Hardison stole second and took third on a passed ball, scoring on Jeff Warren's single.

In the second, the Eagles pushed over six runs to break the game wide open. Jimmy Stalls led off with a walk and stole second, and Jeff Warren also walked, loading them up. Wilson singled in Griffin, and Matthews then stole home. Warren also stole home, and Doug Warren slapped a two-run homer to close out the inning with an 8-0 lead.

The last three scored in the third. Larry Jackson tripled and Stalls reached on an error, scoring Jackson. Stalls stole second, took third on a wild pitch and scored on a passed ball. Matthews singled and stole second, then scored when a pickoff attempt was errored.

The Eagles travel to West Edgecombe on Friday for their next game.

Bears Hand 1st Loss To Cubs

BEAR GRASS—Bear Grass High School handed the Williamston "B" team its first defeat of the year yesterday, 5-3.

The battle was again a pitching duel between cousins as Tommy Gardner started for the Tigers, but couldn't stick around for the end. Mark Gardner started and finished for the Bears, getting the win.

Williamston took the lead in the second inning, pushing over three runs. Gray Roberson walked and stole second. Ray Roberts then walked, and both runners stole up. Herbie Rogers also walked, loading the bases. Roberson then stole home, and Eddie Odom reached on an error, scoring both Roberts and Rogers for the 3-0 lead.

The Bears came back with two in the bottom of the second. Gardner walked and Dickie Williams doubled. Alan Crawford reached on an error, scoring both runners.

In the fourth, the Bears pushed over three more to take the lead and the win. Gardner walked and stole up, scoring when Williams tripled. Crawford reached on an error, scoring Williams. David Price and Jerry Wynne both singled, the last hit, scoring Crawford with the final run.

Bear Grass is now 4-4 overall, while Williamston's Cubs are 6-1. Bear Grass travels to Bath today.

Eastern Wayne Stuns Chargers

NEW HOPE—Eastern Wayne dealt Ayden-Grifton's Chargers a hard blow yesterday in the Eastern Carolina Conference baseball race, gaining a 4-2 upset victory over the Chargers.

Ayden-Grifton got only three hits in the game, as Eastern Wayne's Ward struck out four and walked six in going the distance for the victory.

Ayden-Grifton scored first in the game, getting a run in the second frame. Stevie Tripp singled, then came in when Ricky Thorne got a hit.

The Chargers pushed over another run in the fifth, upping their lead to 2-0. Tony Koonce walked, stole both second and third, then scored on an error.

But in the bottom of the fifth, Eastern Wayne came up with two runs, tieing the score. Graham reached on an error and Sutton singled. An error on the relay let Graham score. Slay then singled in Sutton with the tieing run.

The Warriors came back for two more in the sixth, gaining the lead and the victory. Grady singled and Graham brought him around with another hit. Sutton then reached on an error, moving Graham to third. He stole home from there on a double steal.

The Chargers are slated to play host to Kinston tonight in the consolation finals of the Ayden-Grifton Baseball Tournament. Rose and Goldsboro meet for the title at 6 p.m., with the A-G Kinston game following at 8 p.m.

Aycock Downs Greene Central

PIKEVILLE—Charles B. Aycock High School pushed into a 4-0 lead and held onto it to finally take a 4-2 victory over Greene Central's Rams yesterday.

Parker Davis tossed a two-hitter at the Rams, fanning 12 along the way, while he walked six.

Aycock jumped into the lead in the first inning, scoring a lone run. Richard Lancaster singled and Finch doubled him to third. Herndon walked and Davis helped his own cause with a sacrifice, scoring Lancastor.

In the third, however, Aycock put it away, scoring three more runs. Finch reached on an error and Herndon singled. Davis again played the hero, slamming a three-run homer to up the lead to 4-0.

Greene Central came up with a run in the fourth to get on the scoreboard. William Brown and Tim Butts both walked and Shorty Radford followed the same way loading the bases. A walk to Ronnie Whitley forced in Brown with the first Ram run.

The other Greene Central run came in the seventh. Whitley walked and came in when Jerry Carraway reached on an error.

The Rams play host to Eastern Wayne on Friday.

Expansion Seen Almost Certain

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — National Football League owners went back into session today to consider the details of what seems to be an almost certain expansion beyond its current 26 clubs.

After listening to what Commissioner Pete Rozelle called, "a lengthy, comprehensive report," from the league's expansion committee Tuesday, the owners adjourned for the day. "We hope," said Rozelle, "to have a vote tomorrow."

That meant another day of waiting for five cities bidding for NFL franchises. They are Memphis, Honolulu, Tampa, Seattle and Phoenix. "We've waited this long," said a representative of one of the bidding cities. "We can wait another day."

It appears that the wait will be worthwile for some of the cities. The committee's report to the NFL owners supported expansion and touched on all aspects of the matter from a timetable to stocking new teams to financing.

Rozelle said the owners had held considerable discussion following the report but would not indicate whether the issue could be resolved quickly.

Rozelle indicated that the discussion among the owners now centers notso much on whether the NFL should expand as it does on how, when and to where it should expand.

Rozelle admitted that expansion wasn't the only thing the owners discussed in their day-long meeting.

"I think," he said smiling, "the World Football League was touched on."

The Commissioner said he did not feel that the development of the rival league had anything to do with NFL expansion. "It's not really relevent to their operation as far as we can see." he said. He did, however, note that seven of the 12 WFL cities already had NFL teams.

Tigers Defeat Roanoke Rapids

WILLIAMSTON—Williamston High School maintained its grip on first place in the Northeastern Conference baseball race with a 3-0 victory over Roanoke Rapids yesterday.

The win boosted the Tigers into a 6-1 conference record. They are 9-3 overall.

Roy Lilley tossed the victory, allowing only two hits for Roanoke Rapids. He struck out two and walked three.

Williamston took the lead in the third inning, scoring two runs. George Brown singled and Eric Godard got a hit. Lilley attempted to sacrifice them up, but the play was made to third, getting Brown. Phil Selby then doubled, driving in both Godard and Lilley for the 2-0 lead.

In the sixth, Williamston added another run. Joe Roberson doubled, scoring when Berwyn Barnhill tripled.

The Tigers are scheduled to travel to Rocky Mount tonight.

Farmville Central Bombs Conley, 15-4

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY PEELE

Chips and putts from area golf courses:

Farmville

The Farmville Golf and Country Club held a "Spring Superball" Tournament last weekend.

First place went to the team of Larry Lewis and Bill Thompson, while Nelson Tugwell and Warner Rackley finished second. Third was the team of Jim Lancaster and Tommy Lewis. Three teams tied for third, Reed Kennedy and Don Johnson, Mike Dorman and Wes Cobb, and Milton Barnett and Sonny Bradham.

Brook Valley

Charles Bridgers and Steve Wise recently had their best rounds while playing at Brook Valley Golf and Country Club. Bridgers had a 37-37—74 for the 18-hole round. Wise's best was a nine-hole score of 36, shot on the back side.

The Brook Valley Men's Association will hold a Superball Spectacular on Sunday. All members of the Men's Association are invited to play. Signups will continue through Friday, with pairings and starting times set up on Saturday.

Qualifying for the men's club championship is now underway, and will close on May 5. Those wishing to enter must play two 18-hole rounds, and announce their intention to qualify in the pro shop prior to teeing off.

Champ Worries About Putting

By KEN ALYTA
AP Sports Writer

PINEHURST, N. C. (AP)—Defending champion Beth Barry was concerned about her putting as she moved into today's double round action in the 72nd North and South Amateur golf tournament at the Pinehurst Country Club.

"I missed four or five putts of about five feet for wins," the 25-year-old school teacher from Mobile, Ala., noted unhappily after her 20-hole victory over uneheralded Mrs. Anne Dana of Lancaster, Pa., in Tuesday's opening round.

Miss Barry's lapses on the greens and visits to traps on the last two holes of regulation play enabled Mrs. Dana to pull even on the No. 2 course, shortened to 5,900 yards.

The 24-year-old Pennsylvanian, playing with a black patch over her right eye to combat double vision following a cataract operation as a 7-year-old, missed a golden opportunity for a major upset.

On the 19th hole she three-putted from 40 feet. She left her first putt six feet short and missed it. It gave her a half in bogey fives as Miss Barry, for the third hole in a row, was in a trap.

But on the 20th, the recent winner of her second straight Mexican Amateur hit a No. 5 wood approach eight feet from the pin and made her birdie three putt to win. Mrs. Dana was three feet from the hole in four.

Marlene Floyd, a striking blonde who 10 years ago was named by a national magazine the year's most beautiful golfer, was Miss Barry's second round opponent today.

Miss Floyd, sister of touring pro Raymond Floyd, is an air line stewardess who lives in Hawaii.

She came up with the most surprising result of the first round, a 19-hole victory over Connie Day of Cleveland, Tenn. Miss Day, twice a runnerup here, evened the match after standing three down with five holes to play, but lost to a par four on the extra hole.

The winner of the Barry-Floyd match was to go against the survivor of one between Pat O'Brien of Delray Beach, Fla., and Terry Wilson of Decatur, Ga.

Rounding out the upper bracket, co-medalist Mrs. Nancy Roth Syms of Colorado Springs, Colo., met Mrs. Peggy Brady of Charleston, S. C., the 1968 National Junior champion as Peggy Harmon, and Helen Duntz of Claverack, N. Y., played Nancy Bunton of Huntington, W. Va.

The lower half featured a match between National Amateur champion Carol Semple of Sewickley, Pa., the other co-medalist, and Mrs. Marlene Streit of Ontario, Canada, the 1956 North and South winner.

Completing the bracket, Cynthia Hill of Colorado Springs met Mrs. Judie Oliver of Pittsburgh; Debbie Massey of Bethlehem, Pa., faced Mrs. Marcia Dolan of Danbury, Conn.; and Curtis Cup veteran Lancy Smith of Snyder, N. Y., went against Barbara Vetrano of San Francisco.

After today's two rounds, semifinals follow Thursday and the 18-hole title match Friday.

Celtics Chase Series Title

By DAVE O'HARA
AP Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics, smelling championship money as in their glory years in the 1960s, are favored to defeat the New York Knicks and wrap up their playoff series tonight at the Garden.

With a 3-1 advantage in the best-of-7 series, the Celtics already are looking ahead to a showdown with the Milwaukee Bucks for the National Basetball Association title.

However, Boston Coach Tommy Heinsohn guardedly warned his charges against looking beyond the Knicks, noting: "We still have to win one more in their series."

The Knicks were put on the brink of elimination in a 98-91 loss in the fourth game in New York Sunday. Things don't look much brighter for them, although the record shows that the visiting team has won the last three games in the Eastern Division final playoff.

New York is faced with a "must win" situation — for three games in a row. And no one in the game thinks the Knicks can win three in a row from Boston. The Celtics won five of seven regular season encounters before taking command in the playoffs.

"We know what we have to do," New York super star Walt Frazier said. "We're not conceding anything. If we play as well as we did at home Sunday, we can win."

The Knicks, though, just don't appear to have the muscle or the speed to cope with the Celtics. Boston captain John Havlicek is having a ball as the team's leading scorer. Dave Cowens, Paul Silas & Co. are dominating the boards.

With center Willis Reed and veteran forward Dave DeBusschere hurting, the Knicks hardly resemble the same team which won the NBA title by defeating Los Angeles after eliminating Boston in seven games last year.

The first official major league night baseball game was played in Cincinnati on May 24, 1935.

Brock Steals Second Three Times In Game

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

Time hasn't caught up to Lou Brock yet — and neither has catcher Johnny Edwards.

The Houston catcher now knows how fast the 34-year-old Brock can cover the 90 feet between the bases — faster than he can throw. The St. louis speedster tested Edwards' arm three times and three times the arm came in second.

"I don't think he's slowed down that much," said Houston Manager Preston Gomez after his team was victimized by Brock and the Cardinals 8-2. "And he probably knows how to run better."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Cincinnati Reds downed the Chicago Cubs 5-3; the San Diego Padres whipped the New York Mets 10-2; the Los Angeles Dodgers overcame the Philadelphia Phillies 5-3 and the Montreal Expos trimmed the San Francisco Giants 8-4.

Brock, who has now stolen 646 bases in his career, the ninth best mark in history, is off to his fastest start with a league-leading 11.

The spring has not always been the best base-stealing season for Brock, who has now stolen three bases in a single game 14 times.

Besides his steals, Brock contributed three hits and two runs to the St. Louis attack which backed Sonny Siebert's eight-hit pitching.

Reds 5, Cubs 3

The Cubs ended Roger Nelson's no-hitter in the sixth and Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson ended his night in the seventh, lifting him for a pinch-hitter with the Reds ahead 2-1.

The pinch-hitter, Terry Crowley hit a sacrifice fly, making the score 3-1, and the Reds added two runs in the eighth.

Dodgers 5, Phillies 3

Pinch-hitter Tom Paciorek slugged a three-run homer in the bottom of the ninth to rally the Dodgers over the Phillies, who had taken a short-lived 3-2 lead in the top of the inning.

Padres 10, Mets 2

Even the last-place Padres are picking on the defending National League champs.

Randy Jones tossed a seven-hitter and John Grubb knocked in four runs with a single, double and three-run homer to drop the Mets for the 10th time in their first 13 games.

The Padres shelled Jon Matlack, 0-1, Harry Parker and Ray Sadecki for 16 hits.

Jones, 1-4, blanked the Mets until the seventh when Cleon Jones singled and scored on Wayne Garrett's triple.

Expos 8, Giants 4

Montreal scored five unearned runs in the sixth inning, two on Tim Foli's single to beat San Francisco.

An error by Montreal first baseman Ron Fairly led to three unearned San Francisco runs in the fifth, giving the Giants a 4-2 lead.

But the Giants returned the favor an inning later when an error by rookie third baseman Steve Ontiveros triggered the five-run outburst, capped by Ken Singleton's RBI single.

Derby Tickets Bring High $$

By BOB WATSON
Associated Press Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — One newspaper ad offers a $1,000 "reward" for box seats. Another offers to trade season tickets to the Cincinnati Bengals football games for two precious seats.

The rush is on for seats, and they are increasingly hard to find for this year's 100th running of the Kentucky Derby, the most ballyhooed and wildly celebrated two minutes in sport.

Folks who've been around for a number of Derbies say this year's competition for tickets is the keenest they've seen.

Minneapolis banker Mike Brennan never had any trouble getting Derby tickets in the past. He placed ads in the Louisville newspapers.

"Usually I get dozens of calls and can pick my seats. Of course, I pay through the nose for them," he said. "But this year I've only had two calls.

"One guy said he had a deluxe, two-bedroom apartment and a Lincoln Continental with a chauffeur for four days, plus the tickets. All he wanted was 2,800 bucks. I laughed."

Churchill Downs, the historic track where the most famous of horse races is run, seats only 42,000 in its grandstand, and those tickets are sold out. Anyone can get a ticket for admission to the infield, and upwards of 60,000 or 70,000 always do. But unless you're content with drinking watered-down mint juleps and watching about anything except a horse race, the infield is not the place.

Status on Derby Day is having seats in the grandstand, where Southern ladies in brightly colored hats and dresses and gentlemen in anticipation of a winning bet bask in the sun and await the strains of "My Old Kentucky Home." Then for two minutes, give or take a second, a crowd of 3-year-old thoroughbreds tear around the mile track one and a quarter times in search of a bed of roses, $100,000-plus and fame.

And for the 100th Derby, it seems here as if everybody intends to be there.

Wake Still In The Lead

SANFORD, N. C. (AP)—Freshman Bob Byman of defending champion Wake Forest and North Carolina State's Vance Heafner shared the lead with 36-hole 150s, six over par for the distance, going into today's final round of the Atlantic Coast Conference golf tournament.

Wake Forest, holding a 20-stroke team lead with 765, sought its eighth straight conference title while defending champion Jay Haas, with a 152, was just two strokes off the individual pace set by his teammate and Heafner.

Team scores behind Wake Forest were North Carolina 785, N. C. State 797, Maryland 808, Clemson 811, Duke 817 and Virginia 843.

HOLLYWOOD—Farmville Central buried the D. H. Conley Vikings under a barage of 16 hits and 14 runs yesterday as the Jaguars folled to a 14-5 win to establish a strong hold on a piece of first place in the Eastern Carolina Conference.

The Jags are in a see-saw fight for the top spot in the loop with the Chargers of Ayden Grifton. The two teams will meet in a show-down Thursday night in a game that could mean the eventual championship for the winner.

The game was close only through the first inning as both teams pushed over a single run. The Jaguars put the lid on the contest in the next frame as they batted around getting nine runs on ten hits. Farmville Central added a pair in each of the fourth and sixth innings to round out their scoring. The Vikings came up with two in the second and two more in the sixth but were never able to get a rally going.

Ed Wells went all the way for the Jaguars. He pitched an unusual game striking out only two Vikings, walking none but giving up eight hits. Bobby Bryan started for the Vikings but after giving up three runs in the second he was relieved by Jack Jones. Jones finished out the game walking one, fanning nine and giving up 11 hits.

All but one of the Jaguars got a hit and all but one scored in the rout. They banged out five extra base hits, three triples and two doubles. They scored their first run with the aid of a double.

Jeff Cobb led off the game with a walk and stole second. Two outs later, Barry Johnson bounced a shot over the fence in center for a ground-rule double scoring Cobb.

The Vikings countered with a tieing run in the bottom of the inning. Vic Corey slammed a home run into center for the Vikings first score.

But the Jaguars remembering the struggle they had earlier in the season when they pulled out a 5-1 win over the Vikings, poured it on in the second and put the Vikings away. Tony Oakley led off with a single and Gary Cowan, running for Oakley, stole second. Eddie Horne reached on a bunt single as Cowan moved to third. Marty Hobgood also was safe when his bunt trickled through the infield as the Vikings did not know who should cover the bunt. Cowan scored on the play and Horne pulled up at second.

Cobb singled to left and the ball got away from the Conley defender letting both Horne and Hobgood score as Cobb took second. Jones then relieved Bryan. The Vikings tried to pick Cobb off as he stole third but the ball got away into left field scoring Cobb to make it 5-1.

Wells greeted Jones to the mound with a triple and Tommy Cobb followed with a run-scoring single. Hits by Barry Johnson and Bobby Wooten filled the bases. Oakley bashed a triple for his second hit clearing the bases and a hit by Horne brought Oakley across.

Jones tripled to start Conley going in the second and Eugene Forrest scored him with a three-bagger. Keith Gould singled Forrest across but the rally died after that.

Oakley singled and Mike Jenkins was hit by a pitch in the fourth. Both scored on a double by Horne.

Conley pushed over two more in the sixth as Forrest was safe on an error and Gould singled. Both scored when Joey Baggett singled.

Wooten tripled in the FC sixth and scored on Jenkins' hit. Jenkins moved around to third on an error when he tried to steal second and scored as Forrest threw the ball away thinking he had to tag first after Horne struck out.

Oakley and Horne led the Jags' hitting with three apiece. Tommy Cobb, Johnson and Wooten all had two. Gould had a pair of singles for the Vikings.

Conley travels to North Lenoir Friday.

Perry Finally Tops Oakland

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Spitter, spitter, who's got the spitter? Not Gaylord Perry.

"I didn't see a spitter," said Oakland's Gene Tenace after hitting against Perry Tuesday.

The reknown "greaseball" pitcher beat the A's 2-1, but they did not see his special pitch. As a matter of fact, they did not see much of anything else.

Oakland Manager Alvin Dark looked—and also saw no spitter.

And what did Gaylord Perry say? Not much — he was just happy to beat Oakland for the first time in his career.

"I think the law of averages was long overdue," said Perry after eight straight defeats at the hands of the A's.

In the other American League games Tuesday, the Kansas City Royals whipped the Boston Red Sox 5-2; the Baltimore Orioles nipped the California Angels 4-3 in 10 innings; the Minnesota Twins nudged the Detroit Tigers 1-0 in another 10-inning affair and the Chicago White Sox downed the Milwaukee Brewers 3-2.

National League scores: Cincinnati 5, Chicago 3; St. Louis 8, Houston 2; San Diego 10, New York 2; Los Angeles 5, Philadelphia 3 and Montreal 8, San Francisco 4.

Without his No.1 pitch, Perry scattered eight hits. He got support from Charlie Spikes, who hit a two-run double for the Indians' winning margin.

Spikes' two-out double in the seventh broke a scoreless pitching duel between Perry and Oakland's Jim "Catfish" Hunter, who went the distance and allowed just three hits.

Ray Fosse provided Oakland with its run on a two-out homer in the ninth, his second of the American League baseball season.

Royals 5, Red Sox 2

Buck Martinez' single knocked in the winning run during a three-run, ninth-inning rally that carried Kansas City over Boston.

Orioles 4, Angels 3

Rich Coggins stroked a two-out single in the bottom of the 10th inning that snapped a tie and gave Baltimore its victory over California.

Twins 1, Tigers 0

Steve Braun smashed a lead-off home run in the 10th inning, powering Minnesota over Detroit.

The homer shattered a strong pitching performance by Detroit's Lerrin LaGrow, 0-2, who went the distance and gave up eight hits.

Bill Campbell, 2-0, who relieved starter Dick Woodson in the 10th inning, was the winner.

White Sox 3, Brewers 2

Dick Allen broke out of a slump, stroking two hits and scoring two runs, to lead Chicago over Milwaukee.

Top Miler Considers Between Devils, Heels

By TOM SALADINO
Ap Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — North Carolina may have another Tony Waldrop in its track future when the nation's No. 1 high school miler makes his decision shortly on the college of his choice.

"I've narrowed it down to between North Carolina and Duke," said diminutive Ralph King of Atlanta's St. Pius X High School of the flock of offers that have poured in from colleges around the country.

King raced to a 4 minute, 9.1 second mile clocking in the Florida Relays recently, the best time in the country for a schoolboy, according to Track and Field News.

"However," the 18-year-old admits that "Tony Waldrop had nothing to do with my choice. It was more academics," Ralph said Tuesday.

Waldrop was the sensation of the indoor track season when he won everything in sight and clocked under 4 minutes each time, including lowering the world indoor mark to 3:55.

"I liked the Atlantic Coast Conference program and both North Carolina and Duke have excellent premed schools," said the member of the National Honor Society, who carries straight A grades. "I have hopes of becoming a surgeon."

King has already performed surgery on Georgia distance records with his mile clocking the best ever by a Georgian and the 5-foot-7, 130-pounder also owns the two-mile record with a 9:10.2 time.

"He has the best times in the state," says his proud coach George Satelle, who adds, "going by that you'd have to say Ralph has to be the greatest high school miler in state history.

"We're glad he's with us," says Satelle, who also teaches math at the Catholic school. "He's done so much on his own through pride and determination. We're really proud of Ralph here."

Four years ago, however, when King began his career, the outlook didn't look as bright. But hard work, including running 5 to 7 miles per day before school, has made its mark.

Ralph ran a 4:56 mile as a freshman along with a 10:55 two-mile before lowering his times as a sophomore to 4:30.4 and 9:33.

Last year the bright youngster came into his own, ripping off a 4:13 mile to win the National Junior Olympic Mile championship at Michigan State and soon after recorded a two-mile clocking of 9:10.2, a state record.

"I just got better by doing it," he said modestly of his achievements.

He believes he'll get better in college "because I still haven't matured physically. Then I'll just have to continue working hard and I believe my times will come down."

As for goals, Ralph says breaking the 4-minute barrier is the dream of all milers, "but I'll just have to wait and see."

Meanwhile, that's about all North Carolina can do. And maybe hope a little, too.

Ground Gained In Grid Battle

OTTAWA (AP) — Canadian Health Minister Marc Lalonde gained ground Tuesday in his attempt to outlaw American football leagues, but whether he can go the full distance remains in question.

The House of Commons gave approval in principle to Lalonde's bill banning American professional football by a vote of 118 to 92. It now goes to a committee where witnesses can be called before it returns to the Commons for final approval.

Observers sniffing the political climate doubt whether Parliament will last long enough for the bill to complete the entire legislative process.

The New Democrats, effective balance of power in the minority Commons, have indicated they might help defeat the Liberal government after the budget is presented May 6.

Lalonde's bill is designed primarily to ban the new World Football League Toronto Northmen. But it would affect all American professional football leagues and would set a limit on the number of American players allowed on Canadian pro football teams.

Toronto businessman John F. Bassett, president of the Northmen, has said he intends to have his team playing in July. Lalonde says no.

Bassett, reached in Louisville, said, "It was not unexpected. But it (the legislation) has to go to Committee and it still has to have a third reading.

"I'm just glad the government can now get back to serious Canadian business like it ought to be doing instead of fooling around with football.

If the NDP does help defeat the government early next month, however, there likely will be an early July election. That would mean Parliament would have only about two weeks to deal with the controversial football bill. Committee study alone will take much longer.

SPORT SHORTS

By The Associated Press

BOSTON (AP) — Charles Luce, assistant director of athletics at Boston University, has resigned effective Aug. 15, school officials said Tuesday.

He has been named director of athletics and physical education at Connecticut College by the dean of faculty there, where he will also coach the basketball team and hold the rank of associate professor.

WEST CHESTER, Pa. (AP) — Dr. Ed Norris is retiring after guiding his West Chester State College swimming team to nine Pennsylvania Conference titles and three Middle Atlantic Conference championships.

Norris, who announced his retirement Tuesday, coached for 14 seasons at West Chester, posting a 95-68 won-lost record. He will remain at West Chester as associate dean of health and physical education.

Simpson Claims Strike Probable

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It looks like we're going to have a strike," says superstar O.J. Simpson, in discussing the current negotiations between National Football League players and owners.

And, adds pro football's greatest single-season ground gainer, it couldn't happen at a worse time for the owners. He referred to the efforts of the fledgling World Football League to lure NFL stars when their contracts expire.

"It makes you wonder why the owners don't start talking seriously about a contract," said the former University of Southern California halfback. "For the players, the new league is the best thing since the AFL. I think it ought to mean an average yearly increase of $10,000 to $15,000 for the players.

"For the owners, a strike would be a disaster. If the World Football League were the only game on television — and they're supposed to start in July — then people will watch it. The new league would be off to a great start."

During a rare respite between movie and television jobs, Simpson relaxed in the living room of his trophy-filled hilltop home. His life has been kinetic since the end of the 1973 season in which he rushed for a record 2,003 yards for the Buffalo Bills.

Simpson admitted that he had received feelers from the World Football League, "but I decided to go for security for myself and my family." He decided to stay with the Bills and has told them that he will play this year and next.

"Then I'll see what happens," said Simpson, 26. "My contract calls for me to play until 1977, but I'm not sure I want to play that long."

Old Africa's Culture Has Seen Change

By LARRY HEINZERLING

DAKAR, Senegal (AP) — An aging African minstrel, called a "griot" in Senegal, bitterly complains his son has no interest in learning the ancient ballads of past generations.

The griots, pronounced gree-oh, are the oral historians of West Africa, commonly found in Senegal, the Gambia, Guinea, Mali, Upper Volta and several other countries.

In Ghana, a player of the balafon, West Africa's traditional wooden xylophone, says you just can't buy a decent hand-made instrument anymore.

A traditional dance group performing on television in Abidjan, the Ivory Coast's skyscraper capital, suddenly broke out of its African rhythm into a brief waltz before ending its performance dancing the jerk.

The impact of modern life on this backward but developing continent seems to be corrupting Black Africa's art heritage.

But some say the clash between new and old may already be producing hybrid art forms superior to those of the past.

The first impression, however, is that what many consider Africa's rich artistic tradition is suffering a sharp decline.

The skilled village sculptor who once spent weeks or months perfecting his carvings or the musician who tenderly shaped his own instruments is fast disappearing from the scene.

The scramble for wealth in the growing cash economies of impoverished Africa has spurred the decline.

In Nigeria, and other West African countries, "art factories" are churning out wooden masks, statuettes and other carvings by the thousands.

Africa's ubiquitous traders say they sell this "junk art" to tourists at hotels, airports and market places because very little else is being produced.

The same problem has affected other art forms.

"Traditional music is strong in Upper Volta but not as strong as 10 years ago," says Valerie Christian, a Peace Corps ethno-musicologist researcher at the Voltaic Center for Scientific Research in Ouagadougou.

Miss Christian is helping record music in Upper Volta before traditional forms disappear completely.

Pebbles in soft drink bottles are replacing the traditional gourd rattles, she says, which changes the tone of the music.

Some groups use metal whistles, sardine can rattles and tin can "cymbals," thereby corrupting the "purer" sounds of the past.

Instead of natural fibers, stringed instruments — such as the cora used by griots — are now being fitted with nylon fishing string or steel strings.

Carefully carved wooden drums tightly covered with animal skins are being overtaken by makeshift tom toms of tin cans, discarded oil drums and glass jars.

In Nigeria, bead necklaces are being made from melted-down beer bottles. Shoe polish is used extensively throughout West Africa to give face-masks their coloring.

In Kano, heart of Nigeria's Moslem north, ancient dye pits are still used to produce rich indigo cloth. But the legendary desert Tuaregs in Niger and Mali find colored felt-tip pens indispensable in decorating leather work.

And the Tuaregs now "recycle" the metal of wrecked cars to make "traditional" swords and locks they pass off to tourists as ancient relics.

Greater Use Of Bank Cards

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans used bank cards more than 632 million times in 1973 to charge nearly $14 billion.

This represents a jump of more than $3.4 billion over 1972 when total dollar volume for purchases and cash advances amounted to less than $10.5 billion, the American Bankers Assn. reports.

Retail sales volume for 1973 climbed to more than $12 billion, an increase of 34.6 per cent over 1972 figures. Cash advance volume increased 31.3 per cent to total more than $1.4 billion at the end of 1973.

Nashville Brass Took 'Selling' By Danny Davis

By SYLVIA RECTOR

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — "I remember when they used to tell me 'Country people don't like horns and pop people don't like country music.' But I knew I had a good idea. I just knew I did," Danny Davis remembers.

It was six years ago that Danny first assembled The Nashville Brass. But the group had been alive for seven years before that as a dream he couldn't sell.

For seven years, the story goes, Danny would stand up in RCA board meetings and tell other company executives he wanted to put horns in country music. And for several years, they laughed.

It was the RCA joke.

Davis came to this country capital as the RCA executive in charge of the Nashville product. It was here he met Chet Atkins, a man not bound by old taboos. Atkins said "Try it."

In October of 1968, Danny Davis and the Nashville Brass produced their first album. Within three months, the factory was wondering where all the records had gone.

So much for history.

"I guess you can just chalk it up to Irish Tenacity," Danny remarked with a smile behind those incredibly blue eyes.

Definitely Irish, he's an oddity in country music. Born in Randolph, Mass., he never went through the county fairs and honky-tonks like so many people in the industry.

"I came up through the jazz era, during the days of the Big Band sound. When I came here, I was an executive and thought my days of performing were probably over," he said.

He brought with him more than a love of classy, up-town brass.

"One thing we try to do on stage is entertain that audience. I expect a musician to be an entertainer. I put the show together so the guys can project their personalities and be individuals.

"It's not a new theory. It began during the Big Band era. I guess what we try to do is something paralleling what Tommy Dorsey did. His fans knew the individuals who played for Dorsey. And many of them, like Sinatra, went on to claim their individual fame."

The men in the Brass don't seem in any hurry to leave. Only three of the original group have left Danny in the six years they've been together.

Danny puts together one of the livliest, funniest and most sophisticated shows to come out of the Music City. He modestly calls himself a "half-way comic," but he manages to avoid the country cornball brand of humor.

There are three doctorate degrees on his stage; four have masters' degrees. "Then there's Curtis McPeake, the banjo picker, who can't read music," Danny laughs.

"The musicianship is embarassingly high," he says.

But Davis keeps the melody pure.

"I think one of the reasons the Big Bands died was because they sophisticated themselves right past their audience," Danny explained.

"Everybody loves instruments ... pure, beautiful music. Do you realize that if Irvin Berlin were alive today and brought a song like "I'll Be Loving You Always" to a publisher, he'd take a look at it and say it was a country song? It's a simple song.

"That's what country music is all about. It's simple and pure," he declared.

Danny manages to bridge the gap between the purity of country music and the sophistication appreciated by those cultured in more urbane musical idioms.

Nashville's Belle Meade brahmin, for example, often book the group for their country club parties, although most of that Southern society set would never admit they like country music.

A publishing company, concert tours and recording keep Davis busy. But he's hinting at a new venture.

"It's too early yet to say anything definite, but I'm looking at something in television," he said. "And I'm very excited about it, very excited," he smiles.

Danny believes if he were just starting the Nashville Brass now, even though country music is more open than it was six years ago, he'd still have trouble selling the idea ... unless he found someone willing to think ahead and to experiment with new ideas.

He says his idea for television is a new idea, "a completely new concept," as he put it.

But then, Danny Davis is convinced the idea will work. And he's proved what Irish tenacity can do.

ECU Group At Session

A delegation of six students from East Carolina University won honorable mention at the National Model United Nations Conference (NMUN) held in New York April 16-21.

ECU represented the position of Singapore in the General Assembly. The ECU team competed with more than 100 schools from across the United States. The debate dealt with topics ranging from the Middle East, disarmament, peacekeeping, trade and tariffs, trusteeship, human rights and international terrorism.

This is the first year since 1970 that ECU has sent a delegation to participate in the conference.

The conference is hosted annually by the National Collegiate Conference Association (NCCA) at the Statler Hilton Hotel. Schools from throughout the United States and Canada participate in the General Assembly, Security Council, Economic and Social Council and the International Court of Justice.

Japanese Find It Simpler To Borrow Words

EDITOR'S NOTE — Advertising men may have started it, but the Japanese have adopted the language as their own. It borrows words from English, French and German, adds an occasional "o" or "u." To keep "uppatodatu" newspapers print a daily index of new foreign words from Japanese readers.

By LEONARD PRATT

TOKYO (AP) — A night baseball game is a "nitah," an air conditioner is a "koolah," a dirty movie is a "porno" and if a girl is in the "mudo" she can go to a beauty shop and get a "perma."

The country where this language is spoken is Japan, and some people say that unless you speak English, you'll never understand modern Japanese.

Staying "uppatodatu" in Japan is complicated by the firm conviction that foreign language — French, German, Spanish and above all English — are classy.

Old people complain they're unable to understand television ads, and those out of the country a few months say they have a lot of catching up to do when they get home.

One of Tokyo's major newspapers reserves space in each day's edition to explain new foreign words used in that paper. These are combined into a dictionary published at year's end. Last year it was 535 pages.

That can get technical, with words like capital gain — "kyapitaru gein" — and syndicated loan — "shinjiketo ron."

"There are some people critical of the introduction of foreign words, but they are in the minority," says a Japanese linguist. "I put them roughly in two main groups: conservative elderly professors and college-educated housewives.

"Why housewives? I don't really know. Perhaps they want to show others that English words are anything but special to them, having been to a university.

"And then there are the emotional complaints in newspaper 'Letters to the Editor's columns. A middle-aged person will write in saying he ordered a hot coffee in good Japanese at a coffee house, only to hear the waiter shout back to the cook, 'One hotto!'"

Another Japanese said foreign words are borrowed because they have the connotation of good quality. "French words are used by the fashion industry here because France has a fine reputation in that field.

"Likewise, many English words are used for cars and machinery."

But it's not just the long words of science and industry which are imported. It's the flood of foreign words and titles applied to everything from mailboxes — posto — to electronic remote control — remocon.

The words are used freely in college lectures and in television newscasts. "Many of these words, such as ice cream or hamburger, were borrowed because the objects they describe were new to Japan. Others, like 'i-dee-oro-jee' — ideology — were imported into Japanese because our word for it may have been too broad in meaning and the foreign word was more precise," one Japanese professor commented.

"But sometimes we completely Japaneze the word so that Americans have difficulty identifying it in our daily conversation."

Oldtimers recall that immediately after World War II, the Japanese — although somewhat fearful — accepted the inpouring of American occupation troops with no outward sign of hostility and adapted quickly to things American. That started the popularity of English words.

Most words Japan borrows from English are just names of things; English words often shortened, and spelled in the Japanese alphabet.

But it goes further than that, to the point where American ways of saying things have been taken over as well.

Japanese, for example, has no possessive pronouns — my, his, ours, theirs. So Japanese has taken over the English words, especially "my."

A family that owns an automobile is a "mycar" family.

If you're complaining about not getting paid enough, you could tell the boss you don't have enough money to buy "myhouse."

There's even a soft drink called "mylime."

In addition to the borrowed English words spelled in Japanese, there are wholesale imports as well. The English doesn't always appear to make sense, but it's evidently good advertising.

A major department store once installed potted shrubs and blasted off an ad campaign proclaiming "Walk! in green ... Talk! in green."

That makes some sense, but what about "47 Days Christmas"?

Most people don't understand English, but that's not the point. It's like using Japanese in an ad for a Japanese restaurant in the United States. Even though most people seeing the ad won't understand it, it gives an aura of something exotic and interesting.

It's the advertising that's responsible for most of the imports, and the reason there are so many of them is that advertising in Japan creates a style of life.

So when a Japanese "salary man" gets his Christmas "bonas," he can watch the ads on the "terebi" set and decide how to find the best "bargen."

And if the "bonas" isn't enough, he could always charge it.

On his "kurejito" card, of course.

Manure To Heat Home

NORTH BRANFORD, Conn. (AP) — Home heating from a manure pile is the ultimate goal of a simple tank converter fashioned by Alton Eliason and Joseph Pelliccio.

Two home-fuel tanks connected by pipes already are producing enough methane gas to heat Eliason's greenhouse, they say.

When the converter is fully operational it will use manure from Eliason's chickens plus dead leaves and plants from the greenhouse to produce gas.

"The residue is even richer than when it went in and will make excellent fertilizer for the greenhouse," Eliason said.

With success and a sufficient supply of chicken manure the two hope to create a larger converter and switch the oil-heating system of Eliason's home to methane gas next winter.

"The beauty of the thing is its cost," Eliason said. The existing converter would cost between $200 and $300 to build, he said, and the gas-making ingredients cost little, if anything.

Home production of methane from animal waste is growing in popularity throughout the country because of the fuel shortage.

The Worry Clinic

Utilize Your Subconscious

Edward Moore's example shows how your subconscious mind can help solve your problems during sleep. He was a confidant of Dr. John Harvey Kellogg, founder of the Kellogg Sanitarium. Dr. Kellogg invented cornflakes in a dream! See below.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE A-614: Edward F. Moore is a brilliant U. of Michigan engineering graduate who now is a successful Wall Street investor.

"Dr. Crane," he said as he was visiting at our home recently, "one of my most interesting deals came to me in a dream.

"For several years I have been trying to purchase the key block of stock in a certain company, but the dealer-stockholder refused to sell.

"The solution came to me in a dream and it solved my former impasse."

As we discussed the fact that often out subconscious mind will evolve a solution to a perplexing puzzle, he added:

"Did you know that cornflakes were also invented as a result of a dream?"

When I shook my head, he continued:

"Dr. John Harvey Kellogg was a great food researcher and also owner of the famous Battle Creek Sanitarium in Michigan.

"In his work with cereals, Dr. Kellogg wondered how he could utilize corn, to supplement the popular demand for oatmeal, as well as puffed wheat and puffed rice.

"That night he drifted off into slumber, apparently with this puzzle on his mind.

"And in his sleep, the idea came to him. It startled him into wakefulness.

"So Dr. Kellogg got right out of bed and hastened down to his kitchen.

"He shelled some ordinary yellow corn and placed it in a bowl of water, to soak till morning.

"Then he returned to bed and fell asleep.

"Next morning, he rushed downstairs, to find that the corn had softened while in the water.

"So he laid the grains on a bread board; took a rolling pin and then ironed them flat.

"Next, he placed them in the oven to roast.

"When they were a crisp golden brown, he took them out and poured the corn flakes into a bowl.

"They proved to be delicious, and that's how cornflakes were originated.

"But Dr. Kellogg wasn't concerned with manufacturing problems, so he turned the business over to his younger brother.

"The company zoomed and was estimated to have reached $50 million in value by the time Dr. Kellogg's sanitarium burned down.

"When Dr. Kellogg then asked this brother to lend him $1 million to rebuild the sanitarium, his brother refused.

"And I understand that's why Dr. Kellogg never spoke to his younger brother till he died.

"Dr. Kellogg told me this story himself, so I got it direct from the inventor of the original cornflakes."

Aprpos of dreams, many students have found that if they go to sleep perplexed by an unsolved math problem, the solution may pop into the minds during sleep.

Which means their subconscious has polarized various bits of relevant information around the enigma till the correct solution suddenly appears.

That "polarization" also is helpful in your waking state!

So when you have a theme or public speech due tomorrow or next week, at least pick a topic NOW, so your subconscious will be culling relevant ideas in advance.

Send for my booklet "Public Platform Strategy," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 25, 1974

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until noon, force nothing, but plan activities. Later in the day and p.m., modernize things that mean the most to you through which you can express your talents.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study future trends well, then take the action necessary to become more successful. Visit with kin and good friends. Drive with utmost care.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Start new economical action that will build your bank account. Read statements and reports that are of a practical nature.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Organize personal relationships better for a happier, more productive life. Put the best plan to work quickly. Take treatments to improve appearance.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Handle personal matters in the a.m., so you can consult with experts later regarding business matters. Show more affection for mate.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Steer clear of one who gossips or you can say things you do not mean, but enjoy social affairs that are worthwhile.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Safeguard your reputaton in the a.m. Straighten out your problems, so you can talk later with higher-ups for more progress.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Pursue new aims in a.m. for added success. Make an appointment with a new friend who can give you needed data. Be on time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Take care of promises during day so you can enjoy romantic pleasure later. Do not follow hunches early, but later they are quite accurate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) An associate could be annoying in a.m., but hold your temper, then all works out fine later and mood changes. Speak quietly, persuasively.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Handle duties early and efficiently so you can do something later to make your life with associates more ideal. Buy new wardrobe accessories.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You can take some little risk in p.m., as you might very well come out the winner. But keep wallet in a safe place.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Do those things that will make life at home more harmonious and more love will exist there. Entertain in p.m., and show off family.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have plenty of nerve energy and should have more rest than others during early childhood so nerves will become settled. There is a brilliant and logical mind here, but it needs discipline for best results. Much can be accomplished that will help the masses. Give as fine an academic education as you can, including foreign languages.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Two-Hour News Show Is Tested

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Six years after its Los Angeles station began a local two-hour evening news show, NBC is about to begin a similar effort here next Monday at its flagship station, WNBC-TV.

Because this is the nation's richest video market and erroneously considered by the townies to be the navel of new events, things like WNBC's move usually commence with far more hoopla than elsewhere in the U.S.

Such was the case the other day when the station gave an advance peep at "'NewsCenter 4,' New York's first two-hour nightly news broadcast."

NBC invited print writers — even "Women's Wear Daily" sent a delegate — to hear about the show. It issued press kits outlining the new program and the journalistic histories of those involved in it.

It assembled anchormen and executives and threw open the doors of Studio 6-B, home of the show and former home of the "Tonight" show. Later, there were free eats at the 64th floor of the RCA Building.

The basic idea of all this was to publicize the show as it starts its ordeal-by-viewer. The theory is a lot of viewers who now don't watch WNBC news might tune in and hopefully remain steady customers.

That would translate into higher ratings, which are to TV what circulation figures are to newspapers. And WNBC's evening news show, faced by those of ABC and CBS stations here, now is a poor third in ratings.

Higher ratings mean higher advertising fees. But there's a second factor that's equally important. WNBC's move, if it clicks, could give a greatly improved "lead-in" audience — and ratings — to the national "NBC Nightly News," now a close second to the "CBS Evening News."

WNBC will be the fourth station in the U.U. to try locally produced, two-hour news programming. The others are KNBC in Los Angeles, which began it in 1968, and ABC-owned KABC-TV in Los Angeles and KGO-TV in San Francisco, both of which started their new shows on April 1.

On entertainment matters, ABC says at least six of its affiliates decline to carry "The Wedding Band" tonight. It's a two-hour play, set in a South Carolina seaport town in 1918 and concerns a 10-year love affair between a white baker and a black woman.

Wish I could say this Joseph Papp-produced epic had more going for it than fine acting by Ruby Dee, among others. But it doesn't.

It's just bloated soap opera with sporadic racial epithets, including one outburst near the end that contains the most racially and sexually abusive language I've ever heard on commercial TV.

They'll cause heavy viewer complaints. The sad thing is, this play, as adapted for TV, has no real defense. It's a dog, pure and simple.

Gasoline Credit Cards Cut Back

By DAN BERGER
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With profits booming and supplies short, oil companies are cutting the credit card agreements that helped make "Go now — pay later!" the call of the road.

The bank-type credit card is flatly rejected at many gas pumps as more motorists are having to pay cash. And paying for motel rooms, dinner or rental cars with gasoline credit cards is getting harder.

At the same time, the oil companies are slimming down their own accounts.

"We're not aggressively going for new credit card customers," said an Atlantic Richfield spokesman.

Added an Exxon official, "Our requirements are more restrictive today than they were two years ago."

A Shell official said card renewals will no longer be automatic for customers who have a history of difficulty in paying or who use their cards infrequently.

As with trading stamps, glassware and contests, the companies say they no longer need to promote travel or accept a half-dozen credit cards to sell gasoline.

"Costs and marketing conditions have changed drastically," said a Shell spokesman in Houston, Tex. "We don't have to work quite as hard at selling gasoline."

By restricting credit cards the oil companies may also save money. Though the finances of credit card operations are secret, it is known that all major oil company credit card divisions lose money because of bad debts, card theft and service charges.

An estimated $20 billion in service station business was conducted last year with 110 million credit cards, the American Petroleum Institute says.

4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ◇

Generally, it is right to ruff with a low trump when partner gives you the opportunity. However, do not make a fetish of this—at times there is a better play available.

Had his distribution been anything but 4-3-3-3, North would have taken some action at his first turn. Therefore, when South showed extra values with his reopening double, North felt fully justified in jumping to three spades. South naturally was not prepared to languish in a part score when there had to be a play for game.

West led the king of diamonds, and continued with the ace and a low diamond. East seized the opportunity to score a ruff with his low trump, and the defenders had blown their chance to defeat the contract.

Declarer won the heart return, entered dummy with a club and took the spade finesse. West's failure to follow suit was now no tragedy, for declarer could reenter dummy with the remaining club honor to repeat the trump finesse. He picked up the king of trumps and claimed the rest of the tricks.

East should have realized that the best chance to defeat the contract was to score two trump tricks, and that it might be fatal to reduce his trump length. Instead of ruffing the third round of diamonds, he would have done far better had he discarded a club.

This seemingly innocuous play would shatter declarer's transportation to the dummy. He could enter dummy once with a club to take the trump finesse, but when West shows out, declarer would need a second finesse to limit his trump losers to one. The only way to get to dummy to repeat the finesse is in clubs, and East can now ruff his second club lead. He still remains with K-10 of trumps, and must score a second trump trick to defeat the hand.

MONK and wife, LIDA MONK, dated the 19th day of May, 1970, and recorded in Book E-39 at page 705, in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County, North Carolina, default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness thereby secured and said deed of trust being by the terms thereof subject to foreclosure, the undersigned trustee will offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder for cash at the courthouse door in Greenville, North Carolina at noon, on the 29th day of April, 1974, the property conveyed in said deed of trust the same lying and being in the County of Pitt and State of North Carolina, in the Town of Bell Arthur, and more particularly described as follows:
LYING AND BEING in the Town of Bell Arthur, in Pitt County, North Carolina, BEGINNING on the eastern side of an unnamed Alley which BEGINNING point is South 34 deg. 15 min. East 529.25 feet from the Southeast corner formed by the intersection of the Eastern property line of said unnamed Alley and the Southern edge of the right-of-way of the County Road No. 1262 and said BEGINNING point also being the Southwest corner of the Sam Monk lot; thence North 49 deg. 30 min. East 105 feet to a pipe at a ditch, cornering; thence with the said ditch, South 34 deg. 15 min. East 50 feet to a stake at a corner, cornering; thence South 49 deg. 30 min. West 105 feet to another corner marked by a large Axle in the eastern line of the aforementioned Alley and also being the Northwest corner of the K. Taft land; thence with the eastern boundary of said unnamed Alley North 34 deg. 15 min. West 50 feet to the BEGINNING. Reference is made to deed to Sam Monk dated February 5, 1952, of record in Book F-26 at page 103 of the Public Registry of Pitt County.
Said sale will be made subject to all outstanding and unpaid taxes and assessments.
This the 1st day of April, 1974.
H. Horton Rountree,
Trustee
April 3, 10, 17, 24, 1974

CARD OF THANKS

I'D LIKE TO thank all you wonderful people black and white for the many nice things you did for me while in the hospital and since I've been home. Words cannot express how thankful I am to God for all of you. During my convalesence at my home, I solicit your prayers. Thank you and may God bless all of you. Walter L. King.

"priceless"

There are some things in life that have no price.

At Stratford Arms we try to create an atmosphere that makes it a happy place to live.

Even though our apartments are reasonably priced some people think the attitude and atmosphere are priceless. Come and see and feel it.

Lovely 1, 2 and 3 bedroom apartments plus swimming, sports, facilities for kids!

Come and look.
