Perjury Study Swung Jury To Acquittal Vote

By JOHN MORGANTHALER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A jury that started out "screaming and yelling across the table" has acquitted former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and one-time Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans of all charges in their criminal conspiracy case.

The nine men and three women came to unanimous agreement Sunday afternoon after 26 hours of deliberation that the former cabinet colleagues were innocent of conspiracy, obstruction of justice and perjury. Both were accused of trying to block a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation of financier Robert L. Vesco, in return for Vesco's secret $200,000 cash contribution to President Nixon's re-election campaign.

Referring to Vesco and his aides, Juror Clarence Brown said after the verdict: "They wanted to get something, but I don't think that Stans and Mitchell ever fell for it."

The jury's forewoman, Sybil Kucharski, said, "We were off in little groups screaming and yelling across the table" when the deliberations began. She said the jury was split even on the conspiracy count, so it turned to the six separate perjury counts against Mitchell and Stans.

"After looking through all the perjury charges, the rest was easy," Miss Kucharski said. "We figured there couldn't be any conspiracy if there was no perjury."

The verdict brought a smile to the face of the normally undemonstrative Mitchell. But it brought no legal surcease. He faces trial in Washington at a still unset date on almost identical charges in connection with the cover-up of the Watergate break-in.

Leon Jaworski, the Watergate special prosecutor, still is studying part of the Nixon campaign financing operation which Stans headed.

"Our faith was resting with a very, very fine jury," Mitchell told a news conference in the U.S. Courthouse. "They were a cross section of the people and they were representative of America."

"If there is one place I am firmly convinced you can get justice, it's from the American people. I have great faith in America and that's why I love this country."

Stans was shedding tears of relief by the time the lengthy 15-count verdict had been read. "I've been reborn," he told a newsmen. "I was innocent all along, but it's good to have it confirmed."

In Washington, Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald Warren said of President Nixon: "The President was very pleased for the two men and for their families."

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, said he sees no connection between the verdict and future Watergate cases. "Each case stands on its own bottom," he said.

Vesco, who was indicted with Stans and Mitchell and lives in exile in Costa Rica, called the verdict the "first fair verdict I've heard in a long time."

BEING TOWED
PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP)—

An English oil tanker, North Earl, hit by a fire Sunday that severely burned seven crewmen, was under tow today about 450 miles northeast of Bermuda.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon will make a nationally televised and broadcast address at 9 p.m. EDT today to announce his response to a House Judiciary Committee subpoena and "to disclose other decisions in relation to the Watergate matter," the White House said.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren, in announcing plans for Nixon's prime time address to the nation, refused to say what Nixon's response would be to the committee's subpoena for 42 presidential conversations.

And Warren also refused to elaborate on what he meant by "other decisions" the President has made.

But his wording indicated Nixon had settled upon a course intended to blunt further requests and subpoenas for White House tapes.

Indications were that Nixon would disclose he was ready to give the committee, which now is considering impeachment resolutions, a set of edited transcripts of the conversations, rather than the tapes themselves.

But White House officials continued to refuse to say precisely what would be given the committee, or to say whether Nixon would propose a method for the committee to verify authenticity of the transcripts.

Nixon advisers, seeking ways to emphasize what they described as the massive nature of the response, were considering the possibility of stacking the transcripts on the President's desk during the television address.

The White House said Nixon reached his decision Sunday and was considering a nationwide broadcast to disclose it. The White House refused to confirm news reports that Nixon had decided on the broadcast.

As the week began, two top Republicans said it would be inadequate for Nixon to turn over transcripts but not subpoenaed tape recordings to the House Judiciary Committee. That view was taken by former Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson and Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., in separate television interviews Sunday.

Nixon spent much of the weekend at his Camp David, Md., retreat, working on his response. He had scheduled his return for today but flew back unexpectedly by helicopter Sunday night.

Sources at the White House began putting out word Friday that the President might make a television address Monday night. The subject is certain to be the escalating demands for material from White House files.

official suggested that the burden is on Israel to make "the first move" to bridge the gap between Syrian and Israeli proposals delivered to Kissinger in Washington. He called the differences "very hard to reconcile."

Kissinger and Gromyko were also taking up their governments' differences in negotiations for an agreement to limit missiles with independently targeted nuclear warheads, to get the arms limitations talks moving again.

U.S. spokesman Robert McCloskey said the talk Sunday night touched on the European Security Conference and prospects for a 35-nation East-West summit, and today's longer meeting was expected to cover these topics in greater depth.

The Soviets want the West to accept their hegemony over the other Warsaw Pact countries but are balking at the West's demands for broader entry there of Western books, newspapers, journalists and scholars.

McCloskey said Kissinger and Gromyko also were reviewing several agreements, including scientific cooperation, expanded trade and arms control apart from nuclear weapons, that President Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev could sign when Nixon visits Moscow this summer.

Jets Dogfighting Over Mt. Hermon

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli and Syrian jets battled above Mt. Hermon today in what the Tel Aviv command described as the biggest air battle since the October war.

Israel claimed downing four Syrian planes. An earlier report from Damascus said Syrian anti-aircraft missiles destroyed an Israeli F4 Phantom but Israel denied the report.

The dogfights came after Israeli and Syrian jets bombed and strafed the crest of the strategic 9,200-foot high mountain.

An Israeli command spokesman said Israeli interceptors scrambled when the Syrian planes attacked and scored four hits. The spokesman said all Israeli planes returned safely to base.

The air battle was the second in the post-October fighting. Ten days ago Israel claimed downing two Syrian MIGs in dogfights and losing two F4 Phantoms to ground fire over Mt. Hermon.

Syrian patrols raided an Israeli forward position on the Golan Heights before dawn today and "captured arms and ammunition left behind by fleeing enemy soldiers," the Syrian command reported.

A communique said the patrols all returned safely but made no mention of Israeli casualties. It said "the target was Rasm el Khawaled, believed to be on the edge of the 300-square-mile salient Israel captured in the October war."

An Israeli spokesman refused to confirm or deny the report.

Plea For Soviet Cooperation For Peace Renewed

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger today resumed his appeal to Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko for Soviet cooperation in the drive to separate Israeli and Syrian forces on the Golan Heights.

Talking in Kissinger's hotel suite, they also reviewed prospects for a treaty limiting missiles with independently targeted nuclear warheads.

This evening Kissinger flies to Algeria to see President Houari Boumedienne and lodge another plea for his help in persuading Syria to agree to a disengagement.

Kissinger and Gromyko met for nearly two hours Sunday night immediately after the American secretary arrived from Washington en route to the Middle East for his fifth peace mission there.

Senior American officials said Kissinger understood the Kremlin's political need for a "visible position of influence" in the drive toward a settlement of the Arab-Israeli conflict. But they said he felt the Russians must be made aware of the consequences if the peace effort is sabotaged.

Official sources in Damascus said Gromyko is expected to visit Syria sometime this week, possibly coinciding with Kissinger's arrival at the go-between in negotiations for a disengagement of Syrian and Israeli forces on the Golan Heights.

The purpose of Gromyko's trip was not disclosed. But his visit reflects Moscow's eagerness not to leave a Middle East settlement entirely to Kissinger.

U.S. officials stressed to newsmen aboard Kissinger's plane from Washington that the Israelis and Syrians—and not the Soviets—hold the key to disengagement. One high-ranking

N. Viet Tanks In Attack

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — North Vietnamese tanks made their first appearance of the Vietnam War in the Mekong Delta Sunday night, the South Vietnamese military command reported.

The command said the North Vietnamese used five light amphibious tanks in an attack on the Long Khot outpost, on the Cambodian border 55 miles southwest of Saigon.

A communique said government troops and armored vehicles were rushed to the post, and South Vietnamese artillery knocked out one of the tanks.

The communique said initial reports indicated two government soldiers were killed and a 12 were wounded, while Communist casualties had not yet been determined.

Saigon's chief military spokesman, Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, said the post was manned by about 100 militiamen. He said the battle lasted about an hour, and the North Vietnamese withdrew into Cambodia after the government reinforcements moved in.

The South Vietnamese command also reported that Viet Cong gunners shelled Tuyen Binh and Moc Hoa, both south of Long Khot, killing six civilians and injuring eight.

Hien said with this attack in the delta, "the Communist general offensive has really started."

He said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong are having difficulty moving supplies and are concentrating their attacks on border areas closest to their bases in Cambodia and Laos.

Televised Address Tonight

Nixon Puts Case Before Public

The committee has subpoenaed tapes of 42 presidential conversations and a response is due by 10 a.m. EDT Tuesday.

In addition, a subpoena requested by special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski that demanded tapes and records of 64 presidential conversations calls for a response Thursday.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said that "we have every intention" of meeting the Tuesday deadline for an answer to the House committee subpoena.

Richardson said supplying the transcripts of the tapes would not meet the order of the committee's subpoena. He also said that "the case is close," about whether there was sufficient evidence to prove Nixon had committed an indictable offense.

Richardson resigned Oct. 10 rather than fire then special prosecutor Archibald Cox. He was interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Introducing Controls Bill

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anti-inflation legislation authorizing another year of life for wage-price controls is being introduced in the Senate today over the opposition of big business and labor.

A Senate vote on the bill is expected later in the week. The bill's provisions would be retroactive to May 1; current wage-price control authority expires April 30—Tuesday night.

Sens. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine; Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill.; and Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., say it was fear of worsening inflation that prompted them to offer the bill to extend wage-price control authority for another year.

The measure sponsored by Muskie, Stevenson, Javits and 10 others would authorize the President to reimpose wage-price controls on any segment of the economy that presented a danger of serious inflation.

The Senate Democratic Caucus has urged action to retain control authority but the bill still faces a stiff fight on the Senate floor. Even if the Senate passes the bill, the House would be expected to require at least a few weeks before acting.

The Senate planned to continue debate today on a bill requiring states to reform their automobile-insurance systems in favor of no-fault, a plan under which an accident victim is compensated by his own insurance company regardless of who caused the accident.

A final vote on no-fault is scheduled Wednesday.

The House faced a vote today on a resolution authorizing another $979,000 for the Judiciary Committee, about half of it earmarked for the investigation of whether President Nixon should be impeached.

Also on the House agenda was a compromise bill establishing a Federal Energy Emergency Administration to replace the Federal Energy Office, which was created by presidential order.

House debate is planned for Tuesday on a bill appropriating $2.27 billion for energy research, including $1.5 billion for Atomic Energy.

The bill for the first time brings together all energy-research-and-development funds that in the past had been contained in various agency bills, ranging from the Interior Department to the Atomic Energy Commission.

Also in the energy field, the House Ways and Means Committee is expected to finish work this week on a bill reforming the oil-industry tax structure.

The measure would phase out gradually the oil depletion allowance and tax excess industry profits unless they are plowed back into exploration and development for more energy.

African Rebel Leaders Refuse Deal With New Portuguese Junta

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN
Associated Press Writer

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Rebel leaders in Portugal's African territories have spurned the new junta's promise of limited self-government and say they will fight on for independence.

"The only way to end the war in Mozambique is for the Portuguese to recognize the right of the Mozambique people — led by Frelimo — to independence," said Frelimo, the guerrilla movement in Mozambique.

"The war will continue if the junta's intention is to perpetuate the colonial system through new means," it added.

The Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola, one of the two main guerrilla groups in that territory, said it was prepared to negotiate "concerning the complete independence of our country." But it rejected the proposal by the leader of the junta, Gen. Antonio de Spínola, for a federation of Portugal with her African colonies.

"In such a federation, Portugal would always have the last word," it said. "The power of the state can only be in the hands of Angolans."

The chain of events that ended in the military coup last week began with a book by Spínola in which he said Portugal never could win a military victory in its 13-year-old war against the African rebels. But he reportedly told a meeting of politicians and newspaper editors Saturday that the African territories must be granted self-determination, not independence.

"Self-determination is the right of every people freely to choose its own destiny," Spínola said. "But for this decision, a people needs to be conscious of its choice and needs to possess a certain cultural level. Otherwise, third parties would determine this destiny."

"Self-determination must express the will of the people, and immediate independence would mean the acceptance of someone else's will."

This was considered a reference to claims of the ousted regime that Communist countries foster and support the African rebel movements.

Newspaper reports of the meeting said Spínola also declared:

All Portuguese will be given freedom of political activity except extremists; "the junta cannot consent to the establishment of authoritarian regimes, whether from the right or from the left."

The transformation of political life must be orderly and gradual; "any abdication of authority would mean the risk of having to apply measures contrary to the junta movement's own principles."

"It is natural for the various political groups to want to move rapidly, but ... acceleration could be disastrous."

Meanwhile, an ecstatic crowd of 5,000 in Lisbon welcomed the first political exile home Sunday—Socialist Mario Soares, who returned from four years in Paris to one of the first such demonstrations permitted in years and to a warm embrace from Spínola.

"The army has given people freedom of expression," Soares told the crowd at the railroad station. "But it is not the army but the workers and the people who must finish the job. It is not the time for division. People who want democracy must unite."

"Death to political police. People's courts to kill the murderers," the crowd yelled back, nearly turning the welcome for Soares into a mob scene. Soldiers locked hands around him while others pushed demonstrators aside with their weapons.

Spínola has pledged free elections within a year, and Soares, 49, is expected to play a major role in future politics.

Throughout Lisbon, the heady celebration of the coup mingled with cries for vengeance. The army continued its hunt for an estimated 2,000 members of the hated secret police believed still at large.

The Lisbon press, muzzled by strict censorship since 1928, appeared to be feeling its way toward the full freedom promised by Spínola. A senior editor at the Diário de Lisboa said circulation had tripled in just three days. Newspaper kiosks were sold out minutes after newspapers went on sale.

Lost Brother Found By Salvation Army

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: In response to an inquiry last summer from a woman who wanted to marry a married man whose wife had disappeared years before, you advised: "Contact the Salvation Army, Box 3856: Lt. Col. Pauline Eberhart, San Francisco, Cal. They have had remarkable success in locating missing persons."

That gave me an idea. I had been searching through the usual channels for a brother who had been missing for 47 years. No success. So I thought: "Why not give it a chance?"

I wrote to the Salvation Army per your suggestion, giving them the necessary information, and they went to work.

Last week they reported that they had been successful, and they forwarded me a photostatic copy of a letter they had received from my lost brother. And in the same mail I also received a letter from him. What a marvelous surprise!

Abby, how can I thank you?

L.T. IN SEATTLE

DEAR L.T.: Don't thank me. Thank those wonderful people at the Salvation Army who do so much for so many in every corner of the world.

DEAR ABBY: How can a man come back to life at 53 after 13 years of life without life?

My wife died recently after a long illness, and I've been out of circulation for so long I don't know where to begin making a new life for myself.

I may sound cold and heartless, but now that she is gone, I feel a sense of freedom. You see, she left my bed 13 years ago and never showed me any sign of affection after that, so in my view our marriage ended then. [She thought a man over 40 didn't need a woman to sleep with.]

My ego has been ground down to a pulp publicly and privately more times than I can count. My only source of satisfaction is in knowing that I stuck with her until the bitter end without cheating on her once, although I often was tempted.

Now I am free to find a woman who can compensate for all that emptiness. Abby, I am so full of love, and so eager to give it to someone, I can hardly stand it.

Somewhere there must be a woman who is willing to take on a steady assignment like that. But where do I start looking? I need it now. Thirteen years is long enough. I ask only for one with stamina. Thanks. GEORGE

DEAR GEORGE: Call your friends—married and single—and let them know you are interested in dating. You'll be swamped! Find out what your church and community have to offer in the way of social programs. Get into volunteer work. [That's a good way to meet people with similar interests.] Get out and get going. Some lucky gal has a treat coming.

DEAR ABBY: There is a teacher at school who makes some of us girls sick. He pulls the hair out of his sideburns and eats it!

We would like to know why he does this, and what we can do to make him stop. NAUSEATED

DEAR NAUSEATED: I don't know about humans, but monkeys have been known to pull the hair out of their heads and eat it when they are despondent and frustrated. I think your teacher needs help.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a man who watches television while making love to his wife? My husband never makes love to me in the bedroom anymore, always on the sofa in the living room so he can watch TV, too. And it's usually on the spur of the moment, which is not to my liking.

He was a lot more considerate and loving when we were dating. He's so afraid he's going to miss something good on television it has practically ruined our sex life.

Will you please tell me how I can get him back in the bedroom? DISSATISFIED

DEAR DIS: Move the TV into your bedroom!

St. Mary's Alumnae Spring Meeting Held

NEW BERN—Forty alumnae from Eastern North Carolina gathered at the New Bern Country Club here Friday for the annual spring luncheon meeting of the St. Mary's College Alumnae Association.

The Rev. John W. S. Davis, chaplain at St. Mary's College, Raleigh, was the featured speaker.

The Rev. Davis discussed the religious aspects of St. Mary's and said that the "common theme at St. Mary's is to recognize the Kingdom of God...to see reality beyond anything in creation."

"At St. Mary's," he continued, "we train girls to see the kingdom of God. We also develop their talents, so that they might express God's Kingdom not only at St. Mary's but in their community." The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Graham Barden Jr., New Bern.

The Rev. Charles Sharp of New Bern, rector of the Episcopal Church, gave the invocation. Mrs. Tom Sloan of Washington, president of the Eastern Carolina Chapter, presided and gave a welcome. Mrs. Murgay B. Lynch Jr., of Washington, secretary-treasurer, gave the secretary's report.

Mrs. Charles Kavanaugh of Greenville, over-all chairman of the chapter's Fund-Raising Campaign, said the chapter has raised to date $5,000. She also reported a total of $43,000 has been received in the Alumnae Office from all the chapters in North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia. The goal is $50,000. Mrs. Kavanaugh continued, and said the deadline for reaching this goal is June 15, 1974.

Through the generosity of four trustees, a $50,000 challenge gift has been made available to the St. Mary's Alumnae Association this year.

Other alumnae recognized at the meeting included those serving on the fund-raising campaign; and Mrs. C. Swanson Graves of Washington, who invited alumnae to the new Washington Yacht and Country Club next spring for the chapter's annual meeting; Mrs. Fred Carmichael of New Bern, who was in charge of arrangements; Mrs. Barden, who gave the spring mixed flowers; and Mrs. Thomas McKnight, who was in charge of reservations.

Household Hints

Americans are doing more baking at home, and the trend is expected to increase, with strong sales of baking pans and home mixers along with an increase in the sales of family flour, up more than seven percent in one year.

Whether it's caused by the desire to "do your own thing," to cut food costs, to "return to the basics" or by increased time at home due to gasoline shortages, Americans are discovering a real interest in home baking.

Yeast breads, with their characteristic special flavor, are leavened through the chemical-biological reaction of yeast fermentation. Because of the time required for the yeast to multiply, grow, and produce carbon dioxide—the same gas that makes soda pop bubble—most yeast breads take two hours or longer to make.

Engagement Announced

Col. and Mrs. Hubert Eldridge Allen of New Bern announce the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Allen Warlick, to William Earl Brinkley Jr. of New Bern, son of Mr. and Mrs. Brinkley of Greenville. The wedding is planned for June 22.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting, followed by a dance for the membership and their guests.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nixon administration officials are concerned that the expiration of economic controls Tuesday will spur a burst of big wage hikes and thus aggravate inflation.

While officials say they hope labor will restrain its demands, government figures show contract settlements already have grown costlier within the past few months, reversing a four-year trend.

Also, strike activity in recent weeks is up substantially.

Potential labor troubles loom ahead with airline machinists and longshoremen as well as in the coal, construction, communications and railroad industries.

The administration has indicated most concern over negotiations in the soft coal industry, which is to start contract talks this summer with the new leadership of the United Mine Workers.

"All the ingredients are there to have a very difficult time," said W.J. Usery Jr., the President's chief labor trouble-shooter.

Delegates to the UMW's recent convention urged their leaders to negotiate for higher wages, sick pay, cost of living increases and a tripling of industry payments to the welfare fund. Company spokesmen termed these demands "pie in the sky."

Steel workers recently won wage and benefit increases estimated as averaging about 13 per cent a year. Although steel usually sets the pattern for other industries, Usery predicted wage hikes will average about 10 per cent this year.

Labor's current militancy was demonstrated last week when the Machinists Union voted 5 to 1 against a new contract with United Air Lines which provided for a $1-per-hour raise in mechanics' pay over the next year.

The union has set a Friday strike deadline in negotiations which are expected to set the pattern for seven other major airlines.

In other industries: —Some 4,000 contracts covering most of the construction industry are up for renegotiation this year.

—The International Longshoremen's Association, representing dock workers in six Northeastern states, is demanding a 34.4 per cent pay raise.

—Railroad unions, preparing for negotiations later this year, are reported to be seeking a 15 per cent wage hike.

Tourism is Missouri's third largest industry. Agriculture leads the state.

Ten Traffic Deaths Over N.C. Weekend

By The Associated Press

The North Carolina Highway Patrol said the 10 traffic deaths in the state last weekend pushed the year's toll to 439 compared to 549 for the comparable period in 1973.

Kenneth D. Brady, 27, of Greensboro, was killed when his motorcycle ran off a rural road south of his hometown and hit a tree.

Seven-year-old David L. Watson of Henderson was struck by a car when he ran into its path on a rural road five miles south of Henderson.

In a similar accident, Joseph Gombel, 15, of Fayetteville, walked into the path of a motorcycle on a rural Cumberland County road.

Edgar M. Ledford, 62, of Burnsville was killed when his car ran off I-40 west of Waynesville and overturned.

William Simon Kelly, 30, and Ralph Carnegie, 22, both of Rt. 2, Sanford, were fatally injured when a car left a rural Lee county road 8 miles north of Sanford and crashed into several trees.

Glenn Edwin Hill, 18, of Rt. 1, Wagram, died when a car crossed a center line and crashed into one in which he was a passenger. The accident occurred on U.S. 401, 2 miles south of his Scotland County hometown.

A car driven by Wade Wilbur Edwards, 31, of Rt. 3, Nashville, ran off a rural road 6½ miles south of Nashville in Nash County and overturned several times.

Charles Randal Wilson, 22, of Greenville, died when his car ran off a highway just west of the town and struck a utility pole. Authorities said about a half hour later, a passing truck hit a low-hanging wire and toppled the pole on a small crowd gathered at the wreck scene, injuring nine persons.

Dennis R. Butler, 21, of Fort Bragg, died in a two-car crash at an intersection two miles north of Bladenboro.

Will Marry On 90th Birthday

SEATTLE (AP) — George Starr will turn 90 Wednesday. Florence Lidren turns 81 the same day. They're celebrating by getting married.

Starr, who retired 14 years ago as chairman of the King County Democratic committee, was supposed to be guest of honor at a birthday party thrown by his old friends.

"I laughed when they told me," Starr said. "I said 'I'm going to get married.'" So the party was switched to Tuesday.

Starr and Mrs. Lidren met briefly 26 years ago. Mrs. Lidren, a widow, wanted a job in the postal service. Starr, who was Seattle postmaster at the time, got her a job at a post office contract station.

But they didn't see each other again until about three months ago, about a month after Starr's second wife died. He initiated the romance by calling Mrs. Lidren to ask if he could pay her a visit.

"I thought about it for a little while and said I guess it couldn't hurt anything," she said.

He began visiting once a week. Each time, they sat on her large davenport and talked. She said that each time they sat a little closer.

A month ago, he popped the question.

"I was shocked," she said.

He wasn't all that sure himself. He said he thought it might be a little soon to remarry a third time, only five months after his wife's death.

But the reservations didn't bother one of Mrs. Lidren's sons, the Rev. Clay Cooper of Spokane.

"Well, you're not kids anymore," he said. "This is the third time for both of you."

The honeymoon will be in Tahiti.

The case of the motorcycle rider who was quickly cast in a new role.

James McWillis of Winston-Salem. Fourth in a series of actual case histories from the files of Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina.

The man with the plaster arm is James McWillis of Winston-Salem—an ardent cyclist who had an accident trying to avoid an accident. It happened at Myrtle Beach. While swerving to miss a car, his motorcycle overturned, he broke his arm and sprained both ankles.

James was rushed to a hospital. They x-rayed his arm, put the cast on, and taped his ankles—all in the Outpatient Department. After he got back home, his doctor sent him to the hospital for more X rays to see if his arm was healing properly. And they were also made as a hospital outpatient.

The accident was unfortunate. But James was lucky in one way. He's a member of a Blue Cross and Blue Shield group plan paid for by his employer. It covers outpatient treatments like X rays and casts. So at least he wasn't hobbled with hospital bills. He's back at work now, at the Reynolds Division of the Forsyth County Hospital Authority, Inc.

Outpatient benefits are just one example of the broad coverage provided by Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina. In addition to basic inpatient care, these extra benefits include visiting nurse service, skilled nursing facility care, and the services of home health agencies. And all are available on a group or non-group basis. Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina—a good influence on everybody's health.

Outpatient benefits. Another strong case for Blue Cross and Blue Shield security.

Discontent Amid Achievement

Pitt County's Development Commission has enjoyed success in recent years in bringing major industries to the county.

The larger ones have settled in the Greenville area, and recently there has been some discontent in many of the county's other communities because new industry has not located in other Pitt County municipalities.

It is a paradox that at its time of greatest achievement the Development Commission should come in for criticism, but the commission should do all within its power to act on suggestions from citizens of the county.

We can note that the major new industries which have come here recently have actually built outside the city limits of Greenville. The people who work at these plants will come from all over the county and the property taxes paid will go entirely to the county government. Still, we can understand the desires of leaders in Farmville, Ayden and other communities to have industries located nearby.

All of us should remember that any development of high quality non-polluting industry anywhere in the county will be a help to all of us. Through taxes and disposable income the new industries will put new wealth into our economy.

It would be good for the county's overall development if new industries were to locate at some of the communities other than Greenville and we would hope that the Development Commission will work in this direction. We hope that answers to the discontent will come from the recent meetings in Farmville and Ayden which a commission committee held.

Perhaps permanent type advisory committees could be established in each of the communities so that matters concerning industry-seeking could be brought before the full Development Commission as they arise.

Most problems seem to involve lack of communication and perhaps something can be done to keep the lines of communication open between the Development Commission and all areas of the county.

Moscow Holds A Large Stick

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's scheme to give Moscow a ringside seat during his effort this week in the Middle East to disengage Israeli and Syrian forces is being threatened by both Israel and Egypt, thereby endangering his overall settlement plan.

Both Israel and Egypt are independently and for differing reasons acting to frustrate Kissinger's Soviet tactic, which is central to his grand design. By giving the Soviets just enough sense of participation, Kissinger hopes to dissuade Moscow from cutting the cable on his dramatic high-wire act in mid-course.

Thus, a private agreement was reached between Kissinger and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko calling for a meeting in Geneva on the eve of Kissinger's journey to Israel and Syria which began Sunday to nail down a separation of warring Israeli and Syrian forces.

That Kissinger-Gromyko meeting was to have been announced with fanfare just before it took place. But President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, now near the top of the world's Soviet-haters, leaked the news himself a week ahead of time. Sadat's apparent game: to show the Russians he is privy to secret U.S. planning in all aspects of the Middle East.

Although officials here are publicly philosophical about Sadat stealing their thunder, they privately complain it has further aggravated a potentially explosive setback to the grand American design. Sadat's ploy has fed Soviet fears of being frozen out of a Middle East at peace while the U.S. is firmly entrenched with its former Arab antagonists.

The other half of the story is growing resistance in Israel to giving Moscow any share in the Golan mediation.

Kissinger and Gromyko had planned a second dramatic meeting in Damascus itself following the Geneva session. Kissinger's purpose in arranging the Damascus meeting was to ease Soviet fears of being last man out by having Gromyko at the scene of action.

The Israelis, however, balked. As we write this, it is far more likely that Gromyko will go to Damascus after Kissinger leaves.

The importance of Kissinger's grand design—keeping the Soviets happy enough to prevent their sabotaging a political settlement—can only be understood in the approaching third stage of the complex negotiations. Following the Israeli-Egyptian and Israeli-Syrian disengagements, the third stage is to start the Geneva conference with the presence of the Palestinians as a key element in the negotiations.

If Moscow decides to scuttle the delicate Kissinger plan, all it need do is block attendance at the Geneva conference by the more moderate Palestinian nationalists headed by Yasser Arafat. The Soviets could insist that the true representative of the Palestinians is not Arafat but some more militant extremist.

That would keep Arafat home. But a radical Palestinian delegation would never be admitted to the Geneva conference. So there would be no representation at Geneva for the Palestinians—the heart of the bloody Middle East struggle. In that case, the Geneva conference would fail before it starts. Indeed, without Palestinians present, the Syrians themselves would boycott Geneva even if Kissinger effects a Golan Heights disengagement.

President Hafez Assad of Syria is already battling radical elements in his Baath party ready to charge him with selling out both to the U.S. and to U.S. "stooges" in Cairo. These radicals know that Assad is as eager as Sadat to make a new deal with the U.S.

Assad has personally telephoned exiled Syrian moderates in Beirut who fled Syria at the peak of anti-American sentiment following the 1967 war. Assad's message to these former leaders of Syrian business, banking and commerce: come home! Assad, just as Sadat, has glimpsed an economic future in which American capitalism and technology loom large.

But Assad still depends on Soviet backing for every new arrangement he makes with the U.S. and Israel. Moscow's hand in encouraging Syrian battle against the Israelis the past six weeks, a fact widely accepted here, is proof of that. For him, full partnership between Kissinger and Gromyko in Kissinger's Golan Heights mediation is vitally important.

Keeping the Soviets happy, therefore, is essential for Kissinger in this fifth trip to the Middle East. By acting as though Moscow has no stick left to strike with in the Middle East, the Egyptians and Israelis seem determined not to help him.

Give blood, brothers.

It's so easy to give... yet so precious. Help someone else with the gift of life.

THE WORST LIES

The worst liars in the world are those who lie to themselves. There are many different kinds of lies. Some people tell the so-called white lies. Others exaggerate. Still others spread malicious tales about their friends and neighbors.

But the person who tells the damaging lie is the person who keeps deceiving himself day after day and year after year. He may never utter an untruthful word, but he continually shields himself from reality by assuring himself of something that is not true. He excuses himself for mediocrity. He deceives himself into believing that his little indulgences will never lead to anything serious. He had soft cushions spread everywhere upon which he alights after every well-merited failure. Nobody can make him face the truth about himself or the world.

People lie at different levels of personality. The deeper the level at which they lie, the more dangerous the lie. To deceive one's self is to lie at life's deepest level.

Plain Speaking Updated

WASHINGTON—One of the most successful books of the year is "Plain Speaking," Merle Miller's interviews with Harry Truman when the former President was living in Independence, Mo. Mr. Truman was quite frank about his opinions of the people he knew when he was President.

It is quite possible that 20 years from now someone like Merle Miller might take his tape recorder to San Clemente and interview former President Nixon on his 81st birthday.

It could go something like this.

Q—Mr. President, what do you consider was your greatest accomplishment when you were in the White House?

A—I kept them from getting the tapes. They did everything they could but they never found them. Do you know where they were hidden?

Q—No, sir.

A—I had a pumpkin patch just behind the Rose Garden and I hid the tapes in the pumpkins. I got the idea from Alger Hiss. (laughter)

Q—That was a great idea, Mr. President. Without the tapes, of course, they couldn't find any evidence to impeach you.

A—You can say that again. To this day no one has been able to find them. You know the special prosecutor is still asking for them. Every week someone serves me a subpoena. But I've ignored them all. If I've said it once I've said it a hundred times, 22 years of Watergate is enough.

Q—I noticed you were just served with a subpoena last week. What do you intend to do about it?

ART BUCHWALD

A—James St. Clair is in the next room writing an answer to it.

Q—Is he still working for you?

A—Yup, he's getting a little deaf and his eyesight is not as good as it used to be, but he's still one heck of a lawyer. Anyone that can keep stringing along the House Judiciary Committee for two decades is my kind of man.

You see, the trick was never to say we wouldn't give them the tapes. The trick was to always say we were working on it, and we'd give them an answer in a few weeks. It's been going on since 1974 and here we are in 1994, and they still haven't got what they've asked for.

Q—Next to keeping the House from getting the tapes, what do you consider your greatest accomplishment as President?

A—Paying my back income taxes. I want to tell you that was some blow when they asked me for a half-million dollars. If I hadn't gone into the real estate business with (Continued on page 5)

To The Editor:

This letter is written regarding the first annual Jaycee-Sponsored Special Olympics, held at the East Carolina University track on April 20, 1974. It is most difficult for me to accurately express my feelings of exultation over this particular project. My only regret is that there was a rather limited number of spectators from the Greenville community. May I strongly encourage each of you who might have the opportunity to witness an event such as this in the future to please do so.

I would especially like to commend Alice Keene and Boyd Lee from the Greenville Recreation Department, David Turnage from the Jaycees who served as project chairman and for the many volunteers from East Carolina University who gave of their time and effort for this most worthwhile endeavor. The elements which were foremost in my mind as I had the chance to assist in this project, was the amount of pride and determination which each handicapped individual demonstrated in themselves. In a world which has often been closed to these young people, suddenly they were cast in the role of "stars in their own right." Through the Special Olympic Project the spectators were able to see there are no losers—these individuals are all winners in my book.

An overriding factor which I continually observed was each participant was always putting forth their very best efforts in a spirit of good, clean, wholesome competition. A most rewarding lesson can be learned by many of us so called "normal" individuals, by observing the actions of these people who are much less fortunate than myself and others. To say that I was deeply moved by the opportunity to assist in this effort would be a gross understatement.

Nixon Voices A Minority View

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—If you share President Nixon's view of the economy you believe this year will be "a good year," next year will be "very good" and 1976 will be "the best... in history."

That assessment, the first since the President assumed the additional, pivotal role of economic coordinator, was made last Thursday in a speech at Jackson, Miss.

If you share the President's optimism you are also in a minority as measured by the surveys, which have their limitations but which certainly cannot be ignored.

The Survey Research Center's latest findings come with this bleak, broad and very bearish commentary from its economists, who operate the facility as part of the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research: "The consumer pessimism measured in the latest survey derives not only from the financial pressure consumers feel because of inflation, but also from psychological stress of uncertainty about the future brought about by adverse news concerning inflation, shortages, unemployment, and what many people view as failure of the government and its economic policies."

An important reason why consumer pessimism increased so rapidly, the economists said, was "the pervasive and growing lack of faith people have in their government."

In the strictly economic area, a good many prominent economists, bankers, union officials and businessmen have declared themselves uncertain of the future. They know the nation still has stamina and know-how and that it continues to fight for economic goals, but they aren't certain they can be reached.

Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, has recently been emphasizing his fears rather than his hopes, maintaining that inflation threatens to undermine the economy if it isn't contained.

One of the biggest setbacks to the battle of prices was being announced by the Labor Department almost as the President spoke. Worker

Good Meat Supply

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Government market experts say consumers will have no trouble finding relatively large supplies of meat at supermarkets next month but warn that a little searching will be needed to find canned vegetables and some other food items.

Generally, says the Agriculture Department, shoppers will have enough of most items to go around during May shopping trips. The preview of next month's grocery store situation was announced today in a "Food Marketing Alert" by the department.

The brief report was confined only to what USDA experts see as the food supply situation and did not include predictions on prices or over-all grocery costs.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz told a news conference last week, however, that consumers already have seen two-thirds of this year's food price increase occur. Prices are expected to go up "a bit more," he said, but not at the rate of recent months.

Butz said he thought an earlier prediction by his department that 1974 grocery store food prices most likely would go up 12 per cent from last year's average still was valid. The 1973 increase was 16 per cent from the previous 12-month average.

The alert report, distributed to large-volume food buyers such as hotels and restaurants, said beef and pork production in May is expected to exceed year-earlier levels. Broiler chickens, turkeys and eggs also are expected to be in larger supply.

"Canned vegetable supplies stay well below normal," the report said. "Early March canners' stocks of snapbeans, sweet corn and green peas... were 9 per cent less than a year earlier. Frozen vegetables, while moving faster than last year, are generally adequate."

Potatoes, which have soared to record prices the past season, will continue to be "lighter than normal" in store supplies, the report said.

Dairy products generally are expected to be ample, but non-fat dry milk may continue "fairly tight" next month, the report said.

"Dry bean and split pea supplies, in general, are inadequate because of strong demand and less output in 1973 than in 1972," the report said, but added: "May supplies of lentils for all uses are highest in four years for the month."

Problems Of The Aging Discussed At Meeting

Loneliness, low income, poor housing, transportation availability, health care and the imminence of death are among the chief problems that plague the aging in our society, said the keynote speaker at an East Carolina University conference

Wednesday.

Sue Drummond, assistant recreation director for the city of Winston-Salem, was featured speaker at "Aging and the Aged: Integrity versus Despair," a workshop conference sponsored by the North Carolina League of Nursing and the N. C. Dietetic Association.

Elizabeth Bowling, instructor in the Duke University School of Nursing, discussed the normal physical aging process.

Joel Vickers, associate professor of community health at ECU, spoke on community planning for the aged, an increasingly necessary item as more people are living longer and the birth rate continues to drop.

A special feature of the conference was a panel discussion by four retired persons on aging from the consumer's point of view.

They were retired teachers Elizabeth Savage, W. W. Howell and Johnetta Spillman of Greenville and retired ECU professor Alice Strawn.

Mrs. Savage stressed the importance of hobbies and other interests to the retired person's wellbeing, and Miss Strawn, the necessity for planning ahead for retirement before retirement age occurs.

Howell discussed the hardship recent high inflation has caused the retired person on a fixed income, and added that some benefits are to be derived from organizations for retired personnel, which are major lobbying forces, and pressure groups on behalf of senior citizens with financial problems.

Mrs. Spillman cited four things of great importance to retired persons, "a place to stay, financial means, friends, and faith in God."

Names of conference participants include:

Farmville—Pauline H. Barfield, retired nurse; Greenville—Beatrice M. Truax, VISTA recreation director; Alice Keene, City Recreation Coordinator; and Diana D. Carroll, instructor, ECU School of Home Economics.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market drifted in a mixed pattern today as a technical rally that began Friday quickly played itself out.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 6.10 at 828.54, although advancing issues hung on to a slim lead over declines on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was slow. Analysts said many investors apparently had withdrawn to the sidelines while awaiting a scheduled nationally televised address by President Nixon tonight on Watergate and impeachment issues.

Brokers said high interest rates remained the dominant reason for the market's weakness. Banks' prime lending rates stood in a range of 10 1/2 to 11 per cent today, and some observers were predicting more increases.

"It's very hard to visualize any sustained rally until we get some indication that interest rates are peaking," said Ronald Cooper at W.E. Hutton & Co.

One contributor to the Dow's drop was Eastman Kodak, down 2 1/2 at 10 1/2. The company reported a very small first-quarter earnings increase.

Charter Co., which reported first-quarter per-share profits of $4.55 compared with 61 cents in the like period a year earlier, was up 1 1/4 at 32 1/4 after a delayed opening.

Trans World Airlines was the Big Board's most-active issue, down 1/4 at 10. A 142,400-share block traded at that price.

Chrysler, which listed a first-quarter profit of only 3 cents a share, about in line with expectations, held steady at 16 1/2.

Most golds gave ground, but Dome Mines managed a 1/2-point gain to 157. The company reported sharply higher quarterly earnings and raised its dividend.

On the American Stock Exchange, Syntex was the volume leader, down 3/4 at 47 1/2. The Amex's 11 a.m. market-value index was up .24 at 89.60.

Johnny Miller Captures Fifth Pro Title Of Year In T-of-C Golf Play

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Johnny Miller wasn't expecting to win the Tournament of Champions. Not after that opening 75. And, as late as the last round he was pulling for Buddy Allin, a onetime teammate at Brigham Young.

"He's a gutsy little guy who's had a lot of problems. A real gentleman. I was pulling for him to win," Miller said, smiling, and added: "But I was trying to get in my licks, too."

He did. Miller claimed his fifth pro golf title of the year Sunday with a clutch four-foot par-saving putt on the last hole that let him avoid a sudden-death play-off with Allin and John Mahaffey.

Miller, the U.S. Open champion and the sensation of the tour this season, was the only man in the elite field of 25 tournament winners who broke par in the windy, pressure-packed final round. He had a 69 and a 280 total.

Allin and Mahaffey, now a runner-up three times this season, each had a share of the top spot until they bogeyed the 72nd hole. They tied for second at 281, Mahaffey with a final 70, Allin with 71.

Billy Casper was alone at 71—283. The group at 285 included Gene Littler, Jerry Heard and Hubert Green, a two-time winner this year. Littler and Heard had 71s on the 6,855-yard La Costa Country Club course and Green blew to a 77.

Jack Nicklaus, a four-time winner of this tournament and favoring to do it again, closed with a 75 and was well back at 287. Lee Trevino trailed the field with a 300 total. For the first time in two decades Arnold Palmer failed to qualify for the tournament that is made up only of regular tour events for the last 12 months. Masters champ Gary Player had a previous commitment and could not compete.

Miller collected $40,000 from the total purse of $200,000 and pushed his winnings for the year to an eye-popping $192,877. "Up until a year ago I had to play my very best and get the breaks to win a golf tournament," Miller said.

"Now it's getting like Nicklaus. You know, he wins a golf tournament and comes in and says 'I didn't play particularly well.'"

"I don't mean that my game is anywhere near as good as his. I don't mean that at all. What I mean is that I can play not my best, just pretty good, and still win."

Miller, who now has won eight times in the last 10 months, scored previous victories this year in the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, the Phoenix and Tucson Opens, and the Heritage Classic.

Appalachian Is SC Net Champ

BOONE, N.C. (AP)—Appalachian wound up its Southern Conference tennis schedule Saturday holding the league championship as well as the regular season title.

The Mountaineers took the top three singles and two doubles titles in the tournament for 22 points to second-place Furman's 17. William & Mary finished third with 11 points, followed by defending champion Davidson with 6, The Citadel with 4, Richmond with 3 and VMI and East Carolina, both without points.

ASU's win ends a nine-year domination of the tournament by Davidson and Furman. The Wildcats claimed seven titles during that period to Furman's two.

Appalachian clinched the tournament crown by winning the nos. 1 and 2 doubles finals after sweeping the top three singles matches earlier.

Keith Richardson and John Geraghty took their 23rd straight win by beating William & Mary's Ford Robinette and Chip King 6-2, 6-1 for the top doubles spot. Rich Keller and Roger Neely defeated the Citadel's Mike Martin and Bob Kerbo 6-2, 6-4 for second place.

In other doubles action, William & Mary's Sandy Smith and Don Ball bypassed Furman's Jeff Maddox and Mark Stone 4-6, 7-6, 6-2.

Richardson avenged his only singles loss of the year by defeating Furman's Dave Holly 6-4, 6-4 for the singles crown. Richardson became the first player in 10 years and the fourth ever to win back-to-back league singles titles.

Appalachian's freshman Geraghty raised his season mark to 25-0 by whipping Richmond's Dave Snidow 6-2, 6-3 while Keller rapped William & Mary's Charlie Blumberg 6-3, 6-4 for second and third places.

The Mountaineers did not fare as well in three other singles duels with Furman. Jim Hall edged Neely 7-5, 7-6; David Rouse fell to Jeff Maddox 6-2, 7-6 and Mark Stone topped Don Eason 7-5, 6-3 for the fourth, fifth and sixth slots.

A strong case could have been made against East Carolina's winning the Southern Conference baseball championship after the Pirates were beaten 1-0 in their league opener March 16 by Furman's Paladins.

That first game of a double-header at Greenville, S.C., was to mark the Pirates' last defeat in conference play—barring an upset at home today in their league finale against the Citadel's Bulldogs.

Not only did East Carolina overpower the rest of the league, but the seven other teams were so evenly balanced that the Pirates could have clinched the championship last Saturday even if they'd lost both games of a double-header at Virginia Military.

East Carolina didn't. In fact, the Pirates won both, 7-1 and 8-2, to run their league record to 12-1.

But the victories weren't necessary when Appalachian State dropped the second game of a twin bill to William & Mary's Indians 9-2 after the defending champion Mountaineers had won the opener 3-2.

That defeat dropped Appalachian to a final 9-5 conference record, a mark that could be tied today by Richmond's Spiders in their league finale at William & Mary.

The Citadel went 12 innings Saturday for a 1-0 victory over Furman that set up a scrap for the last five spots.

The Bulldogs are 5-7 with two games left. Davidson's Wildcats and William & Mary 5-8 with one game remaining. VMI 5-9 and finished and Furman 3-9 with two games to play. They could wind up in a five-way deadlock for fourth place, all at 5-9.

East Carolina, 17-8 over-all, used the same formula against VMI it has used on its other conference foes—pitching and timely hitting.

Dave LaRossa gave up six hits and one unearned run in the first game and was backed by four double plays. Wayne Bland had a no-hitter in the nightcap until the Keydets' Bobby McQueen singled with two out in the sixth inning and finished with a two-hitter.

The Pirates scored five runs in the third inning of the first game on six hits, Russ Smith driving in two of the runs and Ron Staggs, Mike Hogan and Johnny Naron one each.

Ron Leggett, who had three hits in the opener, singled in two runs as the Pirates scored four times in the fourth inning of the nightcap. Jeff Beaton drove in four runs with a triple and homer and Carl Summerell had a double and single and scored twice.

The two defeats ended a 6-14 over-all season for VMI.

As a result of the split at Appalachian, the Mountaineers are 17-13 over-all and William & Mary 8-16 against all opposition.

Ken Feaster's bad hop single sent home The Citadel's run in the 12th inning against Furman, whose Todd Brenizer pitched a five-hitter. The victory lifted The Citadel to 13-11 over-all and dropped Furman to 14-15. Mark Mazzucca got the victory in relief.

Davidson fell to 8-15 in a 12-3 nonleague defeat at the hands of Pfeiffer, but Richmond climbed to 21-12 with a 9-7 triumph in 11 innings over Virginia Tech, now 12-14.

Bill Daly and Bob Vernon hit two-run homers and Bobby Mitchell a solo blast for Richmond, which blew a 5-0 lead, and all three also had singles. But the Spiders won it in the 11th on Don Trevillian's sacrifice fly and Marshall Owen's run-scoring double.

Tech's Vince Carbaugh drove in four runs with a double and a single, while the Gobblers' Sandy Hill and Paul Adams had three hits each.

The Citadel's game at East Carolina and Richmond's invasion of William & Mary were the only games on tap today for league teams.

Take Victories In Japan Meet

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP) — Americans Patty Johnson and Janice Wiser scored victories Sunday at an international track and field meet.

Miss Johnson won the women's 100-meter hurdles in 14.2 seconds, while Miss Wiser took the women's 100-meter dash in 12 seconds.

the prospects of hosting the game and of giving North Carolina girls the opportunity of playing in international competition," Miss Yow said.

ELON COLLEGE, N.C. (AP)—A team of North Carolina women will play the Russian Women's National Basketball Team on June 3 at the Elon College campus.

Coach Kay Yow of Elon College says the encounter will be one of eight games played by the Soviet women on a tour of the country.

She says she has invited outstanding female basketball players from throughout North Carolina to play in the game.

Sloan Avers Good People Will Prevail

CINCINNATI (AP) — North Carolina State basketball Coach Norm Sloan, whose Wolfpack toppled UCLA's dynasty last month, says he's "a little disturbed" at the harsh reaction he's received from fellow coaches.

"I am disappointed by the reaction of the people, especially that of some of the more established coaches who feel I've let them down with techniques and hard-nosed attitudes," Sloan said.

He was in Cincinnati attending a coaching clinic.

His critics brand him as a "male pollyanna," he said. He hears accusations that he "bought" the NCAA championship.

"They charge up to me and take me to task," Sloan said. "How can you get before a group and preach undisciplined style?" he is asked.

"All I'm trying to do is share with them intimate glimpses of the people I know and pass it along," he said.

Sloan, who began coaching in 1951, said he was an exponent of the hard-line approach in his early years.

"I changed about 12 or 13 years ago. I used to say to my players, 'I don't care if you like me or not; I only care if you perform.'"

Now, he said, "I care very much if they like me and love me. I do care very much. This upsets these coaches."

"A successful team isn't X's and O's and it isn't kids who can run and jump. It's the way they think... a concern for your players and teammates as individuals," he said.

"I've seen extremely talented teams lose because of the thoughts and attitudes they carried around. "Good people and good thoughts will prevail," Sloan said.

Blalock Felt Like Winner

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—"I felt good starting out the day," Jane Blalock said after winning the Birmingham LPGA Golf Classic by three strokes Sunday.

Miss Blalock fired three birdies on the front nine and pulled out of a close race with Sandra Palmer and Sandra Haynie for the win.

"I birdied the first hole and that gave me momentum," the winner said. "I knew I had to be under par to win."

"I feel super," she observed. "I feel like a million dollars."

Miss Blalock's three-round, five-under par 211 netted her the $5,000 top prize for the tournament.

Miss Palmer, who finished with a 214, earned $3,750 in prize money and Miss Haynie, with a total of 215, took $2,850 away.

Miss Blalock played the back nine conservatively — hitting safely to the center of the greens. Miss Palmer's par 72 and Miss Haynie's one-over 73 were not good enough to challenge the winner.

Donna Young shot a two-under par 70 and tied JoAnne Carner, who shot an even par 72, for fourth place. They both earned $2,112.50.

The LPGA tour moves to Atlanta where a field of 90 will tee up Thursday for the first round of the Lady Peps Open.

American League batting champion Rod Carew (.350) batted only .254 last season against the Chicago White Sox. He hit .444 in 12 games against Detroit.

Celtics Roll Over Full-Strength Bucks

By MIKE O'BRIEN
AP Sports Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Boston Celtics challenged the Milwaukee Bucks at their strength—superstars Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Oscar Robertson—and lived to tell about it.

Dave Cowens' outside shooting kept the 7-foot-2 Abdul-Jabbar away from the Boston basket Sunday, while pressure team defense wore down Robertson, the Bucks' 35-year-old playmaker. The formula, plus 26 points by old pro John Havlicek, swept the Celtics to a 98-83 victory and a 1-0 lead in the National Basketball Association championship playoffs.

"If we had just let them do what they wanted to, they would have killed us," said JoJo White, who teamed with Don Chaney to apply relentless pressure to Milwaukee's depleted guard corps.

"We wanted to make Oscar handle the ball as much as possible because he gets tired," White said, adding the Bucks can expect more pressure in Game 2 of the best-of-seven series on Tuesday here.

"We're going to press no matter what," he said. "There's nothing they can do about it. They can't hire a helicopter to bring the ball up."

Abdul-Jabbar, the NBA's Most Valuable Player, poured in 35 points and grabbed 14 rebounds. But only two teammates, Bob Dandridge and reserve Mickey Davis, scored in double figures—managing 12 points each.

Dandridge, guarded most of the time by the 34-year-old Havlicek, sank only six of 17 shots and scored only eight points until the final minute. Robertson connected on only two of 13 shots.

Cowens, whose 19 points matched White's total, sank three consecutive baskets midway in the first quarter as the Celtics broke from an 11-11 tie to a permanent lead.

Cowens played much of the time near the top of the key or on the right side in what Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn called the Celtics' no-post offense. The strategy forced Abdul-Jabbar away from the defensive basket, opening the middle for drives by Havlicek.

"With Kareem, it's a cat-and-mouse game," Havlicek said. "If you have a big guy you try to keep him under the basket. We don't have a big guy, so we try to keep Kareem outside."

The Celtics, fueling their fast break by outrebounding the Bucks 46-40, led 35-19 after one period, by 17 points in the second quarter and 67-52 with 5:09 left in the third period.

Cowens, five inches shorter than Abdul-Jabbar, had 17 rebounds.

Yankees' Craig Nettles New HR King

By The Associated Press

Meet the new home run king. Hank Aaron? No. Craig Nettles.

Nettles has done something that even Aaron has not been able to accomplish yet.

The New York Yankee third baseman broke an American League record and tied the major league mark with his 11th home run of April during Sunday's 8-5 loss to Texas in the second game of a double-header.

The Yankees, who beat the Rangers 11-2 in the opener, have the hottest long-ball hitter in the majors in Nettles. Some-what of a disappointment last season after his acquisition from Cleveland, Nettles has become the darling of the New York press and fans.

His blast, a two-run shot off Ferguson Jenkins Sunday, broke the American League record of 10 set in 1969 by Baltimore's Frank Robinson and tied the major league mark set by Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell in 1971.

In other American League games, the Baltimore Orioles nipped the Oakland A's 4-3; the Minnesota Twins topped the Milwaukee Brewers 6-5; the Detroit Tigers beat the Chicago White Sox 6-4; the Boston Red Sox turned back the Kansas City Royals 5-4 in 13 innings and the Cleveland Indians walloped the California Angels 10-2.

Defended Title In Hill Climb

CHIMNEY ROCK, N.C. (AP)—"I was so fast on the straightaways the car's front wheels left the road twice."

That was how John Finger of Greenville, S.C., described his victory Sunday in the 29th Chimney Rock Hill Climb.

Finger, successfully defending his title, drove his Super Formula Vee to a three-second victory over Harry Ingle of Charlotte, N.C.

He was timed in 1:51.806 over the 1.9-mile course, while Ingle, also in a Super Formula Vee, was clocked at 1:55.073.

Ted Tidwell of Augusta, Ga., won the Class II title with a 2:08.853 in a Porsche.

Ed Wheeler, Also of Augusta, captured Class III in a Formula Vee Beach at 2:13.337. Radley Rice of Northampton, Pa., drove a Lotus to the Class IV trophy in 2:13.678.

Chris Dobbins of Brevard, N.C., won Class V in a Pinto. He was clocked in 2:50.424.

A purse of $3,000 was divided among the winners, with Finger also awarded the Governor's Cup.

Clean Sweep In NAIA Tennis

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP)—High Point made a clean sweep of NAIA District 26 tennis championships by winning the singles and doubles finals Sunday after outdistancing all challengers for the district title — its third straight — Saturday.

The team was assured its third consecutive doubles championship in NAIA District 26 tournament play Sunday since the competing teams both represented High Point.

Peter Ranney and Hector Villarreal defeated Bill Ashley and Kim Dillard 6-4, 6-1.

High Point also produced both singles finalists, with top-seeded Ranney pouncing schoolmate Robert Goode 6-3, 6-2.

High Point, fourth-seeded in the nation last year, grabbed 32 points to clinch the district title Saturday. North Carolina Central trailed with 10, followed by the University of North Carolina at Greensboro with 9, Elon with 8, Lenoir Rhyne with 4, Catawba 2 and Pfeiffer 2.

British Soccer Player Of Year

LONDON (AP) — Midfielder Ian Callaghan of Liverpool's English Cup finalists was chosen Britain's soccer Player of the Year Sunday by the British Soccer Writers Association.

Callaghan, who has played 652 consecutive games, finished three votes ahead of runner-up Billy Bremner of Division I champion Leeds United.

Ron Keselowski Takes First Big Racing Title

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

Mario Andretti went far afield to win only his third race since 1969. Cale Yarborough stayed home and copped his fourth of the season.

Ron Keselowski hiked off into the Pocono Mountains of Pennsylvania to capture the first major triumph of a five-year career. And it all happened during the weekend.

Ron who? Keselowski, from Pontiac, Mich. He's a short, stockily-built driver who learned big speedway driving in four years of also-ran competition on big Southern ovals.

He drove a Dodge to a $10,000 triumph in a 500-mile race for United States Auto Club stock cars at Pocono International Raceway, putting down such stalwarts as Buddy Baker, Wallyallenbach, Butch Hartman and Norm Nelson.

Not only that, he did it by driving without brakes the last 250 miles and praying that he wouldn't wreck.

"I almost cried like a baby near the end, knowing I might win it but knowing also that the car might break at anytime," Keselowski said. "It had never held together that well before."

Keselowski had been among the front runners from the start, but his victory was made easier when leader Hartman, the three-time USAC stock car champ, fell out with less than 10 miles to go.

Nelson, also a former USAC champ, finished second in a Plymouth, while third through fifth place went to Emerson in a Dodge, Mickey Flora in a Dodge and Elmo Langley in a Ford.

Keselowski's average speed for the 500 miles was 130.596 miles per hour.

Andretti, who won only once last year and once in 1971, teamed with Italian Arturo Merzario to bring an Alfa Romeo home first in a 1,000-kilometer event at Monza, Italy.

The two posted an overall speed of 131 m.p.h. as Alfes driven by Belgium's Jacky Ickx and Rolf Stommelin of Germany and Italy's Andrea de Adamich and Carlo Facetti claimed the runner-up spots.

Andretti, perhaps America's best distance driver, will debut a Formula 1 Parnelli car in September, aiming at a three-year program to win the world Grand Prix driving championship.

At Madrid, Nicky Lauda of Austria won the rain-shortened Spanish Grand Prix, a rain-shortened race. He beat Ferrari teammate Clay Regazzoni by 36 seconds in the 177.7 mile race.

Lauda's time was 2:29.57. Third place went to Emerson Fittipaldi, followed by Hans Stuck, Jody Scheckter and Denis Hulme.

And Yarborough probably had the weekend's hardest chore. He drove a Chevrolet 450 grueling laps around the half-mile Martinsville, Va. Speedway, with doggedly-determined Richard Petty on his heels.

"It was the hardest afternoon's work I have done since I used to plow cotton in South Carolina," the 200-pound, 5-foot-10 Yarborough said.

But it was worth it. Yarborough collected $18,000 for his 225-mile trip—the Virginia 500 is the richest short track event in the country.

Quality Makes Person's Life

Former Chief Justice Earl Warren of our U. S. Supreme Court, shows the proper attitude to take regarding birthdays. He exemplified Dr. Peale's superb stress on "Positive Thinking." Heed Horace Mann and also try to build up an epitaph like Abraham Lincoln's.

CAES A-618: Earl Warren, former Chief Justice of our U. S. Supreme Court, was celebrating his 85th birthday.

When asked how it felt to be 85 he smilingly replied:

"Well, I feel wonderful about it now."

"But when I reached the age of 40, I was a larmed."

"Then a companion reminded me that I should be grateful to be 40, for he told me millions of Americans never see that 40th birthday!"

Positive Thinking

This remark of Judge Warren is a splendid example of Dr. Peale's emphasis on "Positive Thinking."

Imagine how few Americans will ever reach that 85th milestone!

Thousands of boys in Vietnam would have traded an arm or leg just to have seen their 30th birthday!

For they died at 19, 20, 21 and other youthful years.

If you male readers are now 67 years of age, that means over half the men in the U.S.A. will never attain that birthday.

And if you women are 75, half of all the females in America will never reach that milestone either.

Indeed, many millions, even without the death toll by war, will never reach the age even of 21.

For children's diseases, auto wrecks, venereal infection among teen-agers, plus campus suicides, drugs, drownings, etc., decimate the ranks every year.

Many children even die of diabetes, cancer and various types of accident.

But don't make a fetish out of longevity.

It's quality, not quantity, that makes your life worthwhile.

For example, Methuselah reached the world record lifespan of 969 years, but what did he do for mankind?

Yet Jesus died at the age of 33. And every village in America contains churches erected in His name.

Thousands of college and hospitals also are a living memorial to His meager 33 years.

Most of the world's great art and music are rooted in His 33-year journey from Bethlehem's Manger to Calvary!

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS
Q. 1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠ A 7 6 3 ♦ Q J 9 3 ♠ 10 8 7 2
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♠ Pass ?
What do you respond?

A.—You have an awkward hand, too good for one no trump yet with neither the shape nor strength for a bid of two no trump. Therefore, you have to bid a suit at the two-level, and we favor a bid of two diamonds. We reject clubs because we don't like bidding a suit headed by nothing, and two hearts is dangerous—partner might jump to game with three-card support.

Q. 2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠ K 9 2 ♦ Q 6 5 ♠ K 5 4 3 ♠ A Q 8
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 2 NT Pass
3 ♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Three hearts. There is no need for more drastic action at this juncture. We prefer a return to the major suit rather than a diamond raise because, if partner has a weak distributional opening, 10 tricks should be easier to make than 11.

Q. 3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠ J 10 9 8 5 4 ♦ A 10 6 ♠ K 5 ♠ A 6
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 3 ♣ Pass
3 ♣ Pass 4 ♣ Pass
What do you bid now?

A.—Six spades. Opposite a jump shift you have a very fine hand indeed. Once partner supports spades your hand reveals to be considerably more than 14 points in view of your long suit, so there doesn't seem to be much point in beating around the bush. You shouldn't consider a grand slam—if partner had enough values for 13 tricks, he would have taken stronger action than merely raising to four spades.

Q. 4—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠ A 8 ♥ 5 2 ♦ K Q J 9 8 2 ♠ A Q J
The bidding has proceeded:
East South
What action do you take?

A.—Five diamonds. This could turn out badly, but it is a calculated risk. There is no way to explore scientifically after East's preempt, and to pass would be cowardly—the opponents might steal the hand from you, or, what's worse, make four spades while you have five diamonds.

Q. 5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠ 9 2 ♦ A Q 10 9 2 ♠ A Q 10 ♠ K J 9
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ 2 ♦ ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Double. Your hand should produce at least the equivalent of the defensive club, and anything partner can add is gravy. The more partner has, the bigger the expected dividend, so take a big demerit if you bid two no trump.

Q. 6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠ J ♥ Q 8 2 ♦ A K 5 ♠ A 10 7 6 2
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
2 ♥ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Three diamonds. An immediate bid of four hearts would not do justice to this powerful hand. You intend bidding an appropriate number of hearts at your next turn.

Q. 7—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠ A 6 5 ♥ Q 7 2 ♦ 10 3 ♠ J 6 5 4 2
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass Pass 1 NT Pass
2 ♥ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. While it is our practice on occasion to raise to two no trump with seven points and a five-card suit, you hesitate to do so with such a shabby suit. Partner would need a maximum and a good club fit to make game a reasonable proposition.

Q. 8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠ J 8 7 4 3 ♥ Q K 9 5 4 ♦ 6 ♠ A 10
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
Pass 1 ♠ 1 ♥ Pass
Pass 2 ♣ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. Suffer in silence, and hope the opponents will bail you out. Had partner wanted to hear about your spades, he could have reopened the bidding with a double. Therefore, his hand is limited and distributional.

More Spell Out Marriage Rules

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A Case Western Reserve University professor says today's brides and grooms often don't say "I do" until they have said what "I'll do" and "You'll do" through a lawyer.

Sometimes the couples even spell out timetables for who makes the bed and who takes out the garbage, Marvin B. Sussman says.

Sussman, director of the university's Institute on the Family and the Bureaucratic Society, has a grant to study the new wave in marriage contracts.

He advertised for couples willing to submit copies of the contracts for use in the study. Working with him are Hugh A. Ross, a professor in Case Western's Law School, and Betty E. Cogswell, a University of North Carolina professor.

The ultradetailed pacts sometimes are called joke contracts.

because they virtually are unworkable, Sussman says. But he says others are serious in detailing plans for children, privacy, housekeeping tasks, money, sex—and how to end the contract if it comes to that.

Some may permit infidelity, others may make it grounds for divorce, he says. Older newlyweds may set up protections for money and property from previous marriages or specify how to handle inheritances relative to previous families.

Under one contract he has seen, the professor says, each party was to bear separate names. It also spelled out whose family name was to be used by any children.

There haven't been enough of the contracts yet to know what provisions will be upheld by courts, the professors says, so one of the questions the study is to help answer is whether they are legal.

Sussman says the discussion of a contract after marriage could clarify what each partner expects and thus save a marriage.

And for those only at the engagement level, he says, it can uncover hidden conflicts and prevent a marriage that shouldn't be joined.

Top Guerrilla Recaptured

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Police recaptured a top Irish Republican Army guerrilla late Sunday just two weeks after he escaped from prison by taking the place of a paroled prisoner.

Ivor Malachy Bell, described by the police as a leader of Belfast's IRA forces, was picked up at a house in the city.

Bell, 37, escaped from the Maze Prison in County Antrim by posing as another prisoner who had been given permission to leave the prison for a short time to be married.

Meanwhile, a 15-year-old youth was found in Belfast shot in the hip and knee—a traditional form of punishment meted out by the IRA to informers.

Fatally Stabbed By 3 Unknowns

FT. DIX, N.J. (AP)—New Jersey authorities say an 18-year-old soldier from Greensboro, N.C., Pvt. Lonnie F. Eaton, was stabbed to death and another soldier injured by three unknown assailants Sunday.

Pvt. Thomas White, 22, of Buffalo, N.Y., was reported in satisfactory condition in Walston Army Hospital at Fort Dix.

A Pemberton Township woman driving on the base spotted White in the street and stopped. Her car was struck in the rear by another. Police found Eaton's body in a wooded area nearby.

Officers said the men were slashed repeatedly with a knife or straight edge razor.

An Army spokesman said Eaton was being held at Fort Dix for disciplinary action. The spokesman said Eaton had gone AWOL after being ordered to go to Germany.

Real Attention On Great Lakes

By LINDA WEIMER
Written for UPI

(Editor's Note: The writer is a member of Earthwatch Wisconsin, a service of the Sea Grant Program and the Institute for Environmental Studies at the University of Wisconsin.)
MADISON, Wis. (UPI)—More than 10,000 square miles of the state of Wisconsin still lie unexplored, and to some extent unappreciated, beneath the waters of the Great Lakes.

Many state residents don't fully realize the investment they have in Lake Michigan and Lake Superior. It is difficult to comprehend how huge these lakes really are and, hence, the sizable chunk of real estate that lies beneath them.

Lake Superior, for example, is the largest fresh water lake in the world in terms of surface area and is over a quarter of a mile deep.

The five Great Lakes together contain an estimated 65 trillion gallons of water, enough to cover the entire continental United States to a depth of nine feet.

Within Wisconsin's lake boundaries lie vast resources—fish, minerals, 620 miles of scenic coastline and an abundance of fresh, and still relatively clean, water.

Great Lakes Neglected
But those in the lake states who have been slow to fully realize the wealth and potential of the Great Lakes are not alone.

The Great Lakes, as vast and bountiful as they are, have suffered an identity crisis for many years.

On the national scene, they have taken a back seat to the oceans; here in Wisconsin, they have often taken a back seat to the inland lakes. In fact, some have suggested, not jokingly, that more is known about Madison's Lake Mendota than about Lake Superior.

This identity crisis is apparent in the scientific community. There is only one academic research vessel on the Great Lakes though there are more than 20 on our oceans.

While research facilities are found up and down both salt-water coasts, the only major one on the Great Lakes—at the University of Wisconsin in Milwaukee—was founded just last year.

Encouraging Signs
Nevertheless, there are some encouraging signs that the Great Lakes are finally coming into their own and that awareness about their resources and their problems is growing both locally and nationally.

A major Great Lakes water quality agreement was signed recently between the United States and Canada to protect the lakes from further degradation. Research funds to probe Great Lakes' problems have been steadily increasing. And the Environmental Protection Agency has become very active in this region, enforcing federal water and air quality standards.

Within Wisconsin, several groups such as the Save Lake Superior Association have arisen out of concern for the lakes, while such existing groups as the League of Women Voters have adopted special Great Lakes projects.

Another encouraging sign has been the passage of the federal Coastal Zone Management Act of 1972. Designed to preserve and wisely develop the nation's coastal regions, the act specifically includes the 4,000 miles of Great Lakes shoreline.

Federal Assistance
The federal government, through the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, is now in the process of granting $7.2 million to states to develop plans for dealing with their coastal lands.

Wisconsin will soon join some 30 other states in making a bid for some of these funds to develop some coherent approach to managing the state's coastal resources.

This is important because this narrow strip of land along the shore is the critical point at which man meets the lakes.

Man takes his vacations, builds his homes, sites his industries and power plants, takes his drinking water and moors his boats and ships all in the coastal zone.

Hence, this is where the lakes receive the most pressure from human activity. Problems of water quality, loss of wildlife habitat, overdevelopment and shoreline erosion arise there.

Wisconsin's move to develop some comprehensive plan for its coastal zone is perhaps the best indication of all that the state's 10,000 square miles of underwater real estate are finally to get proper attention.

Exile Invited By Baptist School

WACO, Tex. (UPI)—Baylor University, the world's largest Baptist school, has invited Alexander Solzhenitsyn, the expelled Soviet novelist, to become its writer in residence.

"We don't know his religious or philosophical beliefs, but a man like him has to believe in the dignity of man to an inordinant degree," said Herbert H. Reynolds, Baylor executive vice president.

JUMPIN' JOE—Joe Carlisle, 13, of Santa Barbara, is the world's champion pogo stick rider—or at least he believes he is. Joe set a new world record of 15,000 hops last week, surpassing the 14,000 record set not long before by someone whose name already has been lost to history. (AP Wirephoto)

Candidates Looking To More Small Contributors

By RICK SCOTT
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Chances are you'll be asked to contribute to the campaign of a U.S. Senate candidate before general election time rolls around in November.

The reason? Aides to leading Republican and Democratic Senate candidates in the May-7 primary say the campaign financial disclosure law is forcing them to look increasingly to small contributors.

"It's not more difficult to raise small dollar contributions than it has been in the past," says Brad Hays, campaign manager of state Rep. William Stevens, the leading Republican candidate.

But, Hays adds, "It is harder this year to raise the big dollar contributions. The wealthy are always looking for excuses not to give and the disclosure law has given them a new reason not to give.

"I think the disclosure law is forcing candidates to turn to the small contributors. I just think we're having to turn in that direction now. It's the hard route. It takes more work. But, I think it's healthy," he said.

"We'll get the little people involved in politics, and I think that's a step in the right direction."

The disclosure law, passed by Congress in 1971, requires that candidates and their campaign organizations, list the name and address of all contributors who give $100 or more to a campaign. This year, the major Senate candidates are going even further.

Henry Poole, campaign manager for Democratic Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan, says Morgan's campaign is listing all contributors who give $10 or more. Morgan's disclosure reports have been complicated and lengthy.

Hays says that the Stevens campaign is listing all contributors, regardless of the amount given.

Democrats Henry Hall Wilson and Nick Galifianakis also seem to be making a full accounting and disclosure.

Poole and Hays agreed, in interviews last week, that the disclosure law has made some big contributors more reluctant to give than in the past.

Harold Edwards, a Charlotte attorney, is one of the big contributors. He has given $3,500 to the Morgan campaign and mortgaged some of his real estate to make $25,000 in loans to the attorney general's campaign.

He doesn't particularly like having his name listed publicly, but on balance, believes the disclosure law "is excellent."

"Obviously it makes you a target for other people," he told The Associated Press in an interview.

Edwards claims he represents no special interests. He insists that he is supporting Wake Forest University in the late 1940s. "I had to mortgage some of my property to make him the loan."

In past election years, Edwards said he has usually given only $25 to $100 to political candidates, except when he gave "maybe $1,000" to Morgan's successful campaign for attorney general in 1968.

Edwards is not the only big contributor in this Senate primary. The campaign disclosure reports, which are on file in the North Carolina secretary of state's office, reveal the names of dozens of others.

There's Dr. H.D. Mabe, an Erwin physician who has contributed $5,000 to Morgan's campaign, according to the latest report, which covered the period through April 15.

There's Julius Frankel, a Chicago commodities broker who has contributed $10,000 to the Wilson campaign. More than a dozen other Chicago brokers have given $1,000 or more to Wilson's campaign, the reports disclose.

And, there are six Chicago men who have given $5,000 each to the campaign of Democratic hopeful Galifianakis.

W.H. Dougherty of Charlotte, chairman of the board of NCNB Corp., has given $500 to Stevens' GOP campaign.

Of the 10 Democrats seeking the Democratic nomination, only five have bothered to file the required reports. In addition to the frontrunners—Morgan, Galifianakis and Wilson—Mildred Keene of Charlotte and Fred Chandley of Wake Forest have filed the reports.

Stevens is the only one of the three Republican hopefuls who have filed campaign financial reports.

The law requires candidates to file the detailed reports—which are broken into sections on receipts and expenditures—on March 10, June 10, Sept. 10 and Jan. 31. The reports also must be filed 15 days before the primary, runoff and general elections, as well as five days before the primary, runoff and general elections.

The last reports, filed April 22, covered financing through April 15. Another report is due Thursday, five days before the primary.

Those who fill out the reports say they are "a clerical nightmare." But, generally they believe the law is a good one.

"I think the people have a right to know who is financing a candidate's campaign," said Poole.

Edwards agrees with a provision of the law that limits what a candidate and his immediate family may spend on the candidate's own campaign. "I don't think a candidate and his family should be able to buy an office," he said. Edwards, however, agrees with provisions allowing unrestricted contributions by other individuals.

"As long as it's there for the public to see, and they know who is giving the money and how much, I think it's okay not to have a limit on individual contributions," he said.

While the reports list the names of big contributors, there are dozens of pages with names of contributors who have given $10, $25, $50 and $100 to the campaigns.

Wilson, who has made technical mistakes in filing his report and has missed one of the deadlines, has spoken out for public financing of political campaigns in the general elections. However, he has said he knows of no way besides private donations and loans to finance primary elections, where many candidates often are seeking an office.

Another Cutback In Green Berets

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Special Forces, once this country's glamour troops, are being cut back again as the Army builds a new elite force of light infantry.

Army officials say the strength of the Green Berets is being reduced to about 5,000 men with the withdrawal of the last 1,400 special forces troops from the Taiwan and Okinawa by June 30. The peak strength was 11,700 in 1968.

When the pullout was announced some time ago, it was indicated the men would be sent to Special Forces units in the United States.

But officials now say most will be reassigned to other Army duties and that many will be encouraged to join three new battalions of Rangers to be formed.

Although the numbers involved are small, the decline of the Special Forces underscores a shift from major concern about guerrilla warfare toward highly mobile units tailored to fight conventional battles in Europe and possibly the Middle East.

The Green Berets got their big boost in the early 1960s when President John F. Kennedy and his advisers feared Communist China and Russia would promote guerrilla style "wars of national liberation" in Asia, Latin America and Africa.

Kennedy administration officials believed the tough, versatile forces, operating in small teams, could be instrumental in helping developing countries overcome such insurgencies.

In South Vietnam, where they reached their zenith, the special forces recruited, taught and led Vietnamese irregulars in reconnoitering and harassing North Vietnamese infiltrators. Sometimes they made forays into neighboring Cambodia and Southern Laos for this purpose.

The only Green Berets overseas will be a battalion in Germany and another in the Panama Canal Zone. Special Forces training teams from the Canal Zone have been helping some Latin American governments troubled by insurgency problems.

Meanwhile, the planned formation of three Ranger battalions represents a revival of a force created in World War II, when the Rangers were modeled after the British Commandos.

The aim of the new program is to provide specially trained light infantry units that can be moved where needed in a crisis even more swiftly than airborne battalions because they will be unencumbered by artillery, vehicles and other heavy equipment.

Numbering 588 officers and men, Ranger battalions will be about 200 fewer in strength than conventional Army battalions. Their biggest weapon will be 90mm recoilless guns, lightweight but heavy hitting. Each battalion will have only two jeeps and no other rolling stock.

Speakers included Phyllis Rochelle from California State University, Les Levin, project director for the Southern Regional Education Board's social welfare faculty development division.

Fred Stamm, director of standards and accreditation for the Council on Social Work Education, John Spores, program specialist on standards and accreditation for the Council on Social Work Education, and Will Scott, chairman of sociology and social services at N.C. Big Betting Ring Raided

NEW YORK (AP) — Police say they have broken up a $189 million-a-year gambling ring with the arrests of 31 persons in coordinated raids on "wire rooms" throughout the city.

"This was one of the largest gambling rings in recent years," a police spokesman said Sunday after teams of racketeers agents raided 21 locations.

Authorities said the operation took bets on horse races and other sports events and grossed more than $518,000 daily, nearly one-fifth the $2.6 million in bets handled each day by the city's Offtrack Betting Corp.

Sixteen of the 21 targets were in Brooklyn, three in Queens and one each in the Bronx and Staten Island.

All those arrested were charged with promoting gambling in the first degree and possession of gambling records. Each is a Class E felony carrying up to four years in prison upon conviction.

Battering rams and crowbars were used to enter five of the alleged gambling centers. However, police reported no resistance.

Life Sentence For Murder

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—A Mayock, N.C. man has been sentenced to life in prison for the murder of a Turkish sailor in a $2.50 robbery.

Jack Morris Gillen was found guilty of second-degree murder in the death of Seyit Er in 1972. The man's skull was smashed with a baseball bat. The sentence was handed down Friday by Circuit Judge Everett Richardson.

Gillen's companion, John Francis Roach of Jacksonville, pleaded guilty to a manslaughter charge and received a 15-year jail sentence.

The two sailors were serving aboard the USS Saratoga at the time of the slaying. The ship was based in nearby Mayport. Er was attached to the Turkish destroyer ZGR Zafer.

Lasso gets the Fall Panicum out of your peanuts.

Lasso controls fall panicum, a grass problem that seems to be getting out of hand on a lot of southern farms. In fact, there are very few herbicides that do get fall panicum, and that's one reason why it has been spreading so rapidly.

But fall panicum isn't the only problem Lasso gets out of your peanuts. Lasso controls crabgrass, a close second in importance. Also pigweed. Lasso even reduces competition from yellow nutsedge, when used at the higher recommended rate.

You can spray Lasso liquid, or put down Lasso granules behind your planting rig. It's up to you.

And if you happen to grow corn or soybeans in addition to peanuts, Lasso is the only herbicide around that'll work on all three crops.

Carryover? With Lasso there just isn't any. You can use Lasso and never have to worry about carryover damage.

So plan now to go with Lasso in your peanuts. You'll get the fall panicum out and more peanuts in.

Lasso. It works hard for peanuts.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

BY THE STANDARDS of 10 years ago, this vacation home would be too large and too luxurious. Today, however, it is typical of vacation homes most high in popularity. The wrap-around porch going 28 feet in two directions leaves little doubt that much outdoor living will take place here. The built-in barbecue in the vast chimney block is in the center of outdoor activity. Four outdoor entrances are provided for making life easy. The formal entrance goes through a paneled trophy room with closet, timbers and a seat. The side entrance is for direct access from living lounge to porch. The kitchen entrance is convenient for outdoor eating. The left side entrance is into the bath and shower. The second floor's two bedrooms make a total of four and a bath there gives the house two. Architect for Plan HA797M is Rudolph A. Matern, 89 E. Jericho Turnpike, Mineola, N.Y. 11501. Anyone interested in knowing the cost of the blueprint can write to him and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The house has 1,057 square feet on the first floor and 494 on the second.
