Light Voter Turnout Expected Tuesday

Voter turnout is expected to be light both statewide and in Pitt County in Tuesday's primary elections.

Pitt Board of Elections chairman James C. Lanier Jr. said this morning that he expects the county voting to be in the neighborhood of 10,000 and possibly reach as high as 11,000.

Lanier noted that state elections executive secretary Alex Brock predicted a turnout statewide of some 35 per cent and Lanier pointed out that he "wouldn't be surprised if it was less than that."

Pitt County voters, registering some 31,080 strong, will cast their votes on seven different ballots, depending on Democratic or Republican Party affiliation.

Four of the ballots involve Democratic choices; U.S. Senate, State Senator, State House of Representatives, Sheriff, County Commissioner, Associate Justice of Supreme Court, Judge of Court of Appeals, and U.S. Congress. Pitt Republicans will vote for U.S. Senate candidates and for Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. One non-partisan election will be held tomorrow as all voters will be called on to fill three seats on the Pitt County Board of Education.

Lanier, pointing out that the polls will be open at all 27 county precincts from 6:30 a.m. until 7:30 p.m., said that the new Greenville Precinct Ten will be utilized in this primary for the first time. He added that voters living in Precinct Nine who were transferred to the new precinct registration books were notified by letter but he added that persons who were not notified of the change but who were transferred will not be turned away this time if they show up to vote at the wrong place.

Residents living in Precinct Ten will vote at Aycock Junior High School while voters living in the ninth precinct will continue to cast their ballots at Gardner Fire Station. A precinct map showing the new voting district was published in Sunday's paper.

Shown below are local, state and national offices and candidates seeking election to these offices in Tuesday's primary.

Leading Campaigners For Ervin Seat Concur Pres. Nixon Should Resign

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP)—Sen. Sam J. Ervin, the man who headed the Watergate Committee, is retiring, and one of the principal issues in the campaign to succeed him is the central figure in Ervin's investigation - President Nixon.

With North Carolina's primary elections scheduled for Tuesday, three Democrats are considered the leading contenders in a field of 10 and two of them say Nixon should resign. All three have called for a quick conclusion to the Watergate hearings.

But none has gone so far as to say they would vote to convict Nixon were he to be tried by the Senate on impeachment charges. Ervin is staying neutral in the race.

The big three are state Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan; former U. S. Rep. Nick Galifianakis, and former White House aide Henry Hall Wilson, who resigned from the presidency of the Chicago Board of Trade to return to his home state and run.

On the Republican side, state Rep. William E. Stevens, a furniture executive from Lenoir, faces no serious opposition in a bid for the nomination that better known Republicans spurned.

Primary races also are scheduled in six contested Congressional races, for the state Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals, and the General Assembly.

Morgan, 48, has support from many segments of the Democratic party and is the favorite.

He made his initial impact in the state legislature as a strong supporter of a law to ban Communist speakers from state university campuses and as manager of the segregationist gubernatorial campaigns of I. Beverly Lake in 1960 and 1964.

In his five years as attorney general, however, Morgan has hired blacks for the State Bureau of Investigation and as assistant attorneys general. He has also been a vigorous opponent of utility rate increases.

Galifianakis, who lost a Senate campaign to Republican Jesse Helms in 1972, has been coming on strong in recent weeks. Many observers feel that he has made up enough ground to deny Morgan the 50 per cent majority a candidate must have to win nomination. If there is no winner, a runoff will be held in June.

In his six years as a congressman, Galifianakis gained a reputation as a moderate. He was sometimes the only member of the state's congressional delegation to vote in favor of social programs and civil rights legislation.

Galifianakis has said that Nixon should be impeached if he failed to comply with the House Judiciary Committee's subpoena of Watergate-related tapes. He has also charged that collusion by the major oil companies caused the energy crisis.

Wilson, a legislative lobbyist for Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, has apparently failed to generate much enthusiasm, despite spending some $322,000, much of it borrowed. He has suffered from the handicap of living out of the state for almost 13 years.

But he may have enough strength to help deny Morgan an immediate victory, and second primaries traditionally are unpredictable in North Carolina.

Stevens entered the Senate race only after two Republican congressmen, Wilmer Mizell and Stevens' brother-in-law, James Broyhill, declined to run. Both men took preliminary soundings and decided that 1974 would not be the year in which to give up a safe seat in the House to run for the Senate.

Stevens has been running a quiet campaign and is saving his money and advertising for the general election.

The unknown factors in Tuesday's vote will be the mood of the electorate on impeachment and on the economy. "It's weird out there. People are upset and unpredictable," says one pollster.

Also unknown is the extent to which apathy will hold down the turnout. All of the candidates have commented on the lack of interest in politics and candidates this year.

Junked Auto Action OK'd

Pitt County Commissioners today heard reports from various county departments and agencies and took action on several items recommended by the Pitt County Planning Board.

Commissioners gave their approval to the final plan for the Quail Ridge Mobile Home Subdivision—located West of Greenville on the Belvoir Highway—and approved an ordinance regulating junked cars. The board also approved a sediment control ordinance for the county.

All three measures were recommended by the Planning Board. Commissioners also gave their approval to a proposed extension of a sewer from the Grifton municipal limits to an industrial site about a mile east of the town. The proposed 8-inch sewer line is in harmony with the comprehensive water and sewer long range plan adopted by the board in 1970.

Commissioners indicated that the county and several municipalities, including the City of Greenville, may join forces in enforcing the ordinance on a cooperative basis.

Commission Chairman Robert L. Martin reminded board members of a public hearing May 28 on the Contentnea Metropolitan Sewage District. The meeting has been set for 7:30 at the Ayden Town Hall.

The facilities plan and the environmental assessment of the project—designed to link Winterville, Ayden and Grifton together with one sewage treatment facility—will be presented at the hearing.

Raising Price

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—The Charlotte Observer and the Charlotte News increased their newsstand prices to 15 cents today, becoming the first North Carolina dailies to charge that price.

The Charlotte Observer will also increase its Sunday issue to 35 cents.

Free Terrorists

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—The Greek government has freed two Palestinians sentenced to death for the grenade and pistol attack at the Athens airport last August that killed five persons and wounded 55.

The terrorists, Arid el Shafik, 22, and Khantouran Palaal, 21, both Palestinians born in Jordan, were flown to Libya. Their final destination was not known.

Their release to ward off retaliatory terrorist attacks had been expected ever since they were convicted of premeditated murder last January and sentenced to death. The death sentences were commuted to life imprisonment last Tuesday.

Israeli officials said the Greek government's leniency would encourage terrorism.

Columnist Is Prison Escapee

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP)—A weekly newspaper here is looking for a new writer for its prison life column. The old one has escaped.

Vernon Rich, who wrote the column for the Mecklenburg Gazette, remains at large after fleeing a nearby minimum security prison last week.

He was serving a life sentence for murder.

In his last column, Rich wrote that "it would be better to live free and on the run than be in prison."

"We hate they (the columns) are over," said editor Wister Jackson. "As far as we can tell he was first prison writer with any weekly newspaper in the nation."

Israeli Deny Plane Downed By Syria

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP)—The Israeli military command today denied a claim that Syrian anti-aircraft missiles brought down an Israeli reconnaissance plane over Mt. Hermon.

"There has been no air activity today and no Israeli casualties," a spokesman said.

The command reported continued shelling along the Golan Heights and around Mt. Hermon.

A communique issued in Damascus claimed Syrian mis-

Reinecke Trial Set

WASHINGTON (AP)—A July 15 trial date was set today for California Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke on perjury charges stemming from the ITT case.

The action by U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker indicated the court will turn down pending motions by Reinecke to dismiss the indictment or, failing that, to move the trial to California.

Reinecke, a leading contender for California's Republican gubernatorial nomination, was indicted by a Watergate grand jury April 3 on three counts of lying before a Senate committee.

Trial had been set for May 13, but Reinecke's lawyers asked for the delay while the change of venue motions and other matters were handled.

Reinecke originally had pressed for a speedy trial to have the matter settled before the California primary elections June 4.

siles brought down one of two high-altitude reconnaissance planes flying over Syrian positions on 9,200-foot Mt. Hermon, which commands a view deep into southern Syria and northern Israel.

The jet was "seen exploding in midair," the communique claimed.

The communique also reported renewal of tank and artillery duels on Mt. Hermon and the Golan Heights.

It was the 56th consecutive day of fighting on the front.

Agree Tape-Gap Due Erasures

By BERNARD COHEN
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A panel of tape experts has reaffirmed its preliminary conclusion that an 18½-minute gap in a Watergate tape resulted from several erasures and re-recordings, according to an assistant to one of the panel members.

On Saturday the six-man panel gave the final draft report of its six-month investigation to U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica in Washington. The results were not made public.

However, Ernest Aschkenasy, an assistant to Mark Weiss, vice president of Federal Scientific Corp., said in an interview Sunday that the final draft is substantially the same as the panel's preliminary report to Sirica last Jan. 15.

In that report the tape authorities said buzzing that replaced conversation was "put on the tape in the process of erasing and re-recording at least five, and perhaps as many as nine, separate and contiguous segments."

The preliminary report added that magnetic signatures found on the tape "show conclusively that the 18.5-minute section could not have been produced by any single continuous operation."

The final draft does not change that finding, according to Aschkenasy. He said he participated in the technical examination and analysis of the tape.

The 18½-minute gap appeared on the recording of a conversation between President Nixon and then-White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman on June 20, 1972.

Will Tabulate

The Daily Reflector will tabulate returns from Tuesday's primary elections in Pitt County.

Poll holders are reminded to call the Reflector at 752-6166 as soon as votes are counted so that voting totals may be tabulated and posted and staff writers may prepare election result stories for Wednesday's edition.

Callers other than poll holders are urged to limit their calls to the Daily Reflector office so that lines may be kept open for receiving returns.

An election board will be mounted at the Reflector on the south parking lot facing Third Street. Returns will be posted as soon as they are called in and the public is invited to be on hand to view the totals.

REFLECTOR

752-1336

The Daily Reflector Hotline received its first calls yesterday—some challenging questions and many calls from persons who just wanted to listen.

Hotline, as explained in Sunday's Daily Reflector, is a new service which invites readers to call in the pertinent facts about problems which they themselves have tried unsuccessfully to solve and with which they feel a Daily Reflector staff member may help. These may vary from a situation concerning a billing or mail order mixup to one dealing with government agency "red tape," to a question about where to find a needed item. The caller must give his name, address, and phone number so a staffer may contact him for further information. However, only initials will be used in the column.

The Hotline number is 752-1336—a separate line from the regular Reflector number, which is 752-6166.

The staffers working on Hotline are anxious to begin receiving calls on which to work, so the column's regular five-days-a-week publication can begin within the near future.

Twenty New Post Office Buildings For State

CHARLOTTE—The U. S. Postal Service is seeking proposals to build and lease new post office buildings in 20 North Carolina communities.

John J. Wise, manager, Charlotte Postal District, said here today his office will receive proposals from property owners and contractors for all the 20 buildings on June 10.

Bids are to be offered to Wallace R. Nelms, real estate specialist, Charlotte District Office, U. S. Postal Service, P. O. Box 15939, Charlotte, N.C. 28210.

Towns scheduled to get new post offices are: Alamance, Bethania, Bolivia, Edward, Fairview, Falkland, Frisco, Kure Beach, Macon, Middleburg, Middlesex, Nebo, Orrum, Ridgecrest, Ronda, Simpson, State Road, Supply, Thurmond and Vass.

All post offices will be erected from pre-designed standard plans for construction of small post offices through the country, Mr. Wise said, and no architect will be necessary.

All buildings will be leased by the U.S. Postal Service for ten years each, with options on 20 additional years.

Suitable sites should contain from 12,500 sq. ft. up to 18,750 sq. ft., depending on the size of the post office building to be erected on the site, Mr. Wise said.

Largest of the 20 buildings will be at Vass with 2,320 sq. ft. of interior floor space.

Six buildings will each contain 1,856 sq. ft. of interior floor space. They are located at Bolivia, Fairview, Middlesex, Nebo, Ronda and State Road.

Those with 1,392 sq. ft. each are located at Macon, Orrum, Ridgecrest, Supply and Thurmond.

Post office buildings at Alamance, Bethania, Kure Beach, and Middleburg will each contain 1,046 sq. ft. of interior floor space.

Finally, the smallest size buildings, with 840 sq. ft. each, will be built in Edward, Falkland, Frisco, and Simpson.

Worthington-Jones Vows Solemnized On Sunday

NEWPORT, Pa.—The marriage of Miss Donna Jean Jones and Julian Mack Worthington was solemnized Sunday at 2:00 p.m. in the First Church of God here.

The Rev. T. V. Miller performed the double ring ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Virginia Evans, organist, and Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Haines, soloist.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob A. Jones of Newport, Pa., the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a creation of silk a la mode designed with a fitted bodice, wedding band collar and a square yoke appliqued with Venise lace flowers and bordered in a Venise lace trim beaded with seed pearls. The full lantern sleeves were deeply cuffed and trimmed in Venise lace as was the semi-full floor length skirt.

Her chapel length mantilla of three tiers was edged in Venise lace flowers on each tier attached to a bandeau of silk a la mode edged in the lace motif. She carried a colonial bouquet of daisies, roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Julian J. Worthington of Winterville, N. C.

Miss Cora Lynn Worthington of Smithfield, Va., sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. She wore a formal length maize organza gown designed with a high neckline encircled with white Venise lace flowers and green leaves edged in ruffled pleated organza. Matching lace and ruffles defined the front and back of the bodice forming a V-design. Covered buttons extended from the neckline to the waist of the gown front. The long

Miss Lytle Is Honored

Miss Gail Lytle, bride-elect of Bruce West, was honored at a miscellaneous bridal shower Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Browning.

The honoree wore a floor length gown of beige and blue and was presented a corsage of white carnations by the hostess. The refreshment table was centered with a wedding bell centerpiece flanked by candles in pastel pink and blue, the selected bridal colors. Punch was poured by Mrs. Browning and Miss Glenda Albert assisted in serving cake.

The wedding will take place June 22 at the Baptist Church, Arden.

ruffled organza. She carried a colonial bouquet of daisies and baby's breath.

The bridegroom's brother, Lee B. Worthington, of Houston, Tex., was best man. Ushers were Steve M. Worthington of Raleigh, N. C., brother of the bridegroom, and Thomas H. McLawhorn of Charlotte, N. C., cousin of the bridegroom.

After a wedding trip to the Pocono Mountains, the couple will reside in Galveston, Tex.

The bride is a graduate of Harrisburg Polytechnic Hospital School of Nursing and is now a nursing supervisor at the University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston.

The bridegroom attended East Carolina University and N. C. State University. He is now a medical student at the University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston.

A reception was held at the American Legion Country Club, Newport, Pa., following the ceremony.

Prescription For A Close-Knit Family Is Music

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
UPI Family Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — RX for a happy family: tootle a flute, beat a drum and/or strum, strum, strum.

Music in the home is instrumental in molding a close-knit family unit. That note runs through the case histories of 85 families across America nominated for the title—Musical Family of the Year.

The competition, by the American Music Conference (AMC), this year was close. The judges for the first time selected two families to be recipients of the title.

The James Cunningham family, of Pittsburgh, and the Robert Knaff family of Bethesda, Md., were considered to be most representative of the nation's amateur music-making families.

Play for Enjoyment
Similarity runs through the lifestyles of both families.

To wit:

—James Cunningham, 41, is a nuclear engineer with Westinghouse, while Dr. Robert Knaff, 43, is a research director. Both make their living in a highly technical profession.

—Each family is as deeply involved in community activities as it is in music.

—Each family believes that music in the home has helped build togetherness.

—The two families honored, said Theodore M. McCarty, president of the AMC, "are excellent representatives of the nation's 37 million amateur musicians: enthusiastic, community oriented and dedicated to sharing their musical skills with others.

"Both families play for their own enjoyment. This helps recruit their friends and neighbors to music. They all are involved in many school and community activities. Their love for music spreads to all touched by their happy spirit and sounds."

Musicians Honored
The competition honors all the nation's amateur musicians, according to McCarty. Many are of professional-caliber. Yet, they play for their own entertainment. They find music a magic glue bonding the family.

"Music gives us an opportunity to share our affection for the art of music but even more so, for each other," Dr. Knaff says. He is director of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

"It's a way to learn new skills and teach discipline required to learn what is difficult and to foster self-confidence."

In the Knaff family, or the "Relative Minors," as their friends tag them, Knaff plays piano and teaches the children keyboard harmony; Mrs. Knaff is at home with piano, recorder and harpsichord.

The Knaff daughters include Connie, 15, who plays piano, cello and harpsichord. Jennifer, 11, plays piano and violin. Donna, 8, plays violin and has an ambition—to play "Love In Bloom" on her fiddle with Jack Benny.

Musical Parties
The Knaffs each year have three recitals for friends and neighbors.

"What began as a lark," Mrs. Knaff said, "has grown into a full-fledged musical entertainment for the neighborhood."

Similarly, the Cunninghams provide neighbors each summer with musical lawn parties. Their string quartet is augmented by a horn, harpsichord or clarinet.

Cunningham favors brass. He's equally at home with trumpet, French horn, tuba and baritone. His wife Sylvia, 41, favors the violin. She pitches in when needed with flute and piccolo.

String instruments are favorites of the Cunninghams' eldest, Thomas, 18. He is proficient on the viola, violin, string bass and guitar. Thomas often "jams" with his Dad, who enjoys ad-libbing Dixieland versions of popular tunes.

Other musical Cunninghams include Brian, 17, who plays viola, violin and clarinet; Susan, 15, a pianist who also plays violin, flute, piccolo and cello; Karen, 13, adept on violin, cello, flute, and piccolo; and Stephen, 11, pursuing cello at present.

Romance Too

The Cunninghams met as members of the Everett (Washington) High School band.

Music played a part in the Knaffs' courtship as well. Natives of Canada, Bob and Rhoda Knaff met while attending Montreal's McGill University Graduate School.

A statistics professor who didn't believe that women should go after careers, introduced the two.

"I was impressed with Bob's intelligence, drive and humor," Mrs. Knaff says. She recalled the unusual proposition before he proposed.

"Before he asked me to marry him," she said, "he asked me to sing."

Knaff recalled the moment, saying: "I couldn't ask anyone who couldn't carry a tune to marry me."

In common with the nation's 37 million amateur musicians, the Cunninghams and the Knaffs have no long-range professional goals for their children.

Music to them is something to enjoy at home.

Welcome Wagon Installation Is Announced

Installation of officers will highlight the luncheon meeting of the Greenville Welcome Wagon scheduled for Wednesday, May 8, at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

The club's president, Mrs. Lisa Kannen, will preside during the installation and will be assisted by Mrs. Mary Jones, Welcome Wagon hostess.

It was recently announced that Mrs. Cindy Catlett has been named as an assistant Welcome Wagon hostess.

For persons interested, pre-luncheon bridge will begin at 9:30 a.m. followed by the luncheon at 11:30.

Birthday Party Held Last Week

Joshua Patrick and Roger Jeremy Griffin celebrated their first birthday Tuesday, which was also the birthday of their paternal grandmother.

The twins are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Roger L. Griffin of Charlotte. Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Nichols of Greenville are great grandparents of the twins.

Joshua and Roger were honored at a birthday party at the home of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Nichols, last week.

Conservation Clinic Planned

A food conservation clinic will be held Wednesday, May 8, at 10 a.m. and at 7 p.m. at the Agricultural Extension Building.

Exhibits and demonstrations will be held at both sessions. A demonstration on the techniques of freezing and canning is planned and exhibits showing equipment and supplies needed for canning and freezing will be on view.

The public is invited to attend. For further information call 758-1196.

Squaring A Circle Is Not Easy

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: This is to inform your correspondent, Barbara G. in Wilkes Barre, Pa., that she is not losing her mind—she did read that it is possible to square a circle.

The mathematician who worked it out was Edward V. Graef, and a technical paper explaining the method was authored by him and V. C. Harris of San Diego State College.

If one changes the rules slightly, he can trisect angles and square circles. Using the kind of curve they do, they are able to solve three ancient problems—[1] trisecting the angle, [2] squaring the circle, and [3] duplicating the cube—with just one method.

I hope this helps your correspondent. I enclose a copy of the article, which was published five years ago in the Pittsburgh Press.

HENRY G. GOULD: PROF. OF MATHEMATICS
W. VA. U., MORGANTOWN, W. VA.

DEAR PROFESSOR: Barbara will bless you tonight in her prayers. Now, if anyone out there has a mathematical problem, those with license numbers ending in an ODD number please write to Professor Gould on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. And those with EVEN numbers write on the remaining days. Thanks, Henry, I needed you.

DEAR ABBY: Knowing that our cross isn't the heaviest is small consolation. There are many of us, but those who aren't in our positions rarely give us a second thought. We are single fathers caring for small children.

The cost of day-care and maintenance of the households we have put together in better days causes us to lead semi-cloistered lives. If we should meet some attractive lady, we can't ask to take her out to dinner and a movie because the budget doesn't allow for that plus a sitter to stay with the youngsters. An invitation to spend an evening at my home is given awkwardly, and is sure to be misunderstood. Nobody is going to call me, and nobody is going to visit me, so after the kiddies are in bed, I sit here wishing away the best years of my life.

Can you put in a good word for us, Abby? I have a nice little home, two pretty little kids, over 200 bottles of home-made wine in the basement, and time on my hands. BILL

DEAR BILL: Haven't you ever heard of Parents Without Partners? They are looking for men like you, so start looking for them!

DEAR ABBY: The U. S. Post Office is the most used, yet the least understood service in this country. A reader wrote, "Here's how I succeeded in getting my name off junk mailing lists: I simply cross off my name and address, and write 'REFUSED—RETURN TO SENDER' on the envelope, then I drop it in the mailbox. It costs the company money to receive this mail, so they quickly drop my name from their list."

Abby, for heaven's sake, NO bulk mail is returned to the sender unless it bears specific instructions, "RETURN REQUESTED," or "ADDRESS CORRECTION REQUESTED," or "RETURN POSTAGE GUARANTEED."

All bulk mail which does not bear one of these instructions, is returned to the Post Office by the carrier, inspected by the supervisor, and then thrown in the trash. This extra handling makes extra work for the mail handlers, for which the public must pay!

Please print this, Abby. I've been employed at the Post Office for 17 years and know whereof I speak.

HARLEY D. WHINERY, LYNWOOD, CALIF.

DEAR HARLEY: Of course I'll print your letter. It's the least I can do for the U. S. Postal Department. They've done so much for me.

2 hard-cooked egg yolks, mashed

1 cup clear chicken broth

In a large skillet heat the olive oil and brown chicken in it; remove chicken. Add onion and ham to skillet and cook gently until onion is softened but not brown. Thoroughly mix together the remaining ingredients; add to skillet with chicken. Simmer, covered, until chicken is tender — 20 to 30 minutes. Makes 4 servings. (To prepare the almonds use a hand-operated rotary cone-type nut grater or an electric blender.)

Engagement Announced

MISS HELEN VICKI SMITH... is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Smith of Greenville, who announce her engagement to Lindsey Wiley Moore, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Kenneth Moore Sr. of Rt. 2, Ayden. The wedding will take place July 6.

Steve West Give Program On Wednesday

Steve West, of Flora and Fauna, was guest speaker at the May meeting of the St. Peter's Woman's Club Wednesday.

West gave a short history on terrariums, past and present. He brought items used in a terrarium and prepared one for the members.

A question and answer session followed. An informative pamphlet, "Indoor Plant Guide," was distributed to each member.

Mrs. Anne Butler presided over the meeting. Father Spillane, the moderator, opened the meeting with prayer.

Miss Ada Jones presented the itinerary for the Pilgrimage to the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, Washington, D.C., to take place May 10 and 11.

Final plans were formulated for the annual spring church picnic which takes place June 2, with a rain date of June 9, at 3 p.m. on the school grounds. All are to bring a gourmet dish.

A format was presented for projects to be undertaken for the coming year. Mrs. Mildred Murphy, Mrs. Irene Hanifer and Mrs. Evelyn Brannigan will be on the program committee.

Miss Jones reminded the members that there will be a pilgrimage made to Raleigh on June 16 honoring the Feast of Corpus Christi. All members of the parish are invited.

The president, Mrs. Butler, welcomed Mrs. Phyllis Boyer and Mrs. Pat Hunt as guests for the evening.

A centerpiece of red roses and white flowers arranged in a silver bowl adorned the table. Hostesses were Mrs. Butler, Mrs. Mary Iaboni, and Mrs. Fanny Flower.

Quick breads are so named because of the short time it takes to mix them. They are leavened by the baking powder which produces carbon dioxide when triggered by moisture and heat, or baking soda yielding the same gas when reacting with an acid ingredient of the dough. Modern chemical leavenings have no taste, permitting the delicate flavor of the wheat itself to emerge.

As they are sold in food stores and supermarkets, all-purpose flours should always be enriched with three essential B-vitamins—thiamine, niacin and riboflavin—and the mineral, iron. A second mineral, calcium, is an optional ingredient. Calcium, however, is mandatory in the enrichment of self-rising flour.

Pork Crisis? We'd Best Listen

If pork producers say they have a crisis situation, we need to listen here in Pitt County, for hog production is a major industry for our area.

And the pork producers are saying they have a crisis. So much so that an emergency meeting was held here Friday for discussions with government officials.

Pork producers say they are losing $20 per head on hog sales.

"The present situation could run hog producers completely out of business," Tom Farmer, executive director of the N.C. Pork Producers Association, said.

It was reported that last Wednesday's closing price for pork was 29½ cents per pound but production costs are 35 to 41 cents per pound.

If these figures are accurate, it is not difficult to figure out that hog producers simply will have to get out of the business. If this happens there will be a drastic drop in pork production and we can be certain the shortage will bring a rise in prices sometime in the future.

Rep. Walter Jones said a sharp drop in Japanese pork purchases is part of the cause for the depressed prices Farmer sees sharply rising cost to the pork producer as another. The Russian wheat deal and other factors are affecting this.

It is obvious that the producers of pork need some relief and they need it soon, if we are not to have a disaster in this field of the economy. We hope that something concrete will result from the recent meetings.

Municipal Bus System Would Benefit Many

The ECU Regional Development Institute will assist the city in surveying the public transportation need in Greenville.

A municipal bus system would benefit students, the elderly and working people without cars, but the amount of use of buses will not be known until the survey is done.

Every citizen should participate in this survey so an accurate determination can be made of the potential use for public transportation.

Conservatives Up; GOP Dips

By GEORGE GALLUP

(Copyright 1974, Field Enterprises, Inc. All rights reserved. Republication in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with the written consent of the copyright holders.)

PRINCETON, N.J.—The latest nationwide Gallup survey reveals this political paradox: Republican party affiliation is at an all-time low but the number of voters who describe themselves as conservatives is at a record high.

Currently, 24 per cent of voters classify themselves as Republicans, compared to 42 per cent who describe themselves as Democrats, and 34 per cent as independents. The Republican figure is the lowest recorded since 1940, when the Gallup Poll first started these measurements.

In terms of political philosophy, however, 38 per cent of voters currently consider themselves conservatives, while 26 per cent place themselves in the liberal camp, with 36 per cent undecided. The proportion classifying themselves as conservatives is the highest recorded since this question was first asked in 1936.

The obvious conclusion to be drawn from these findings is that the GOP has been unable to capitalize on the widespread conservative sentiment of the American people—undoubtedly due to image problems and a lack of confidence in the Nixon administration.

Change Favored as Way to Save Two-Party System

Many students of government favor changing party labels from Republican and Democratic to Conservative and Liberal, believing the GOP's low standing in popular support could spell the death of the two-party system.

In addition, many political scientists favor a division along Conservative and Liberal lines because the Democratic party comprises two totally dissimilar wings—a conservative wing, including many conservative Southern Democrats, and a liberal wing. Voters, therefore, have no clear-cut choice.

Two Presidents of recent decades—Franklin D. Roosevelt and Dwight D. Eisenhower—urged a conservative-liberal division in political alignment, which would have brought the U. S. more in line with other major nations of the world where the basic political division is between the "right" and the "left."

It was the avowed intention of President Franklin D. Roosevelt when he was in office to make the Democratic party the "liberal" party, and he went so far as to attempt to "purge" Southern conservatives running on the Democratic ticket.

Reluctance to Change Traditional Structure

While some have strongly favored a change in party labels—from Republican and Democratic to Conservative and Liberal—others are reluctant to interfere with the traditional structure, believing that there is merit in having a conservative and liberal wing within the Republican and Democratic parties—to provide a balance of philosophy and prevent excesses.

Although the current findings reveal the potential strength of the Conservative party label, widespread resistance is found to a new political party division on the basis of Conservatives and Liberals.

In the latest survey, about one person in four (26 per cent) would favor such an arrangement, compared to 50 per cent who are opposed and 24 per cent who do not express an opinion.

Little change has taken place in views on such a change since the question was first put to the public in 1938, when a Gallup survey showed the public to be opposed by a 2-to-1 margin.

Following are the questions asked, with the key findings: "Some people say that the time has come to have a new political party arrangement in the U.S., with conservatives making up one major party and liberals making up the other major party. Do you agree or disagree?"

Agree 26% Disagree 50% No Opinion 24%

As the following table shows, a surprising degree of support is found for the conservative party label among Democratic voters, who are evenly divided as to whether they would prefer the Conservative or the Liberal party if these were the two major parties.

"If a rearrangement of this kind were carried out and you had to make a choice, which party would you, personally, prefer—the conservative party or the liberal party?"

	Conservative	Liberal	Undecided
NATIONAL	38%	26%	36%
Republicans	57	11	32
Democrats	32	22	34
Independents	25	29	34

"Always do right. This will gratify some people and astonish the rest."—Mark Twain.

Strength For Today

FRESH BREAD A little boy was asked one day why he prayed for his daily bread, and his reply was, "Because I want it fresh every day."

There is nothing stale about God's blessings. They have about them a freshness which comes out of the very life of God himself. When men really want the gifts of God and ask for them continually, they receive them, and get them fresh.

Some people's religion is moth-eaten and dusty. On the other hand, there are those to whom faith seems to bring freshness, and whose lives are strengthened and made new every day by the coming of spiritual power. Like the little boy, they get their daily bread fresh, and they get it fresh because they ask it of a heavenly Father who not only wants to give good gifts to his children but to give them continuously.

Jesus said that he was bread which came down from heaven. When men sustain their lives on that bread, they live the life that is life indeed.

The Expletives Deleted

WASHINGTON—On Oct. 13, 1960, John F. Kennedy debated Richard Nixon on television. At the time, the question of Harry Truman's cussing came up. Mr. Kennedy refused to apologize for Mr. Truman's salty language, but Mr. Nixon had strong feelings that a President of the United States should not curse.

He said in part, "One thing I have noted as I have traveled around the country is the tremendous number of children who come out to see presidential candidates. I see mothers holding up their babies so they can see a man who might be President of the United States. I know Sen. Kennedy sees them, too. It makes you realize that whoever is President is going to be a man that all children of America look up to or look down on, and I can only say I am very proud that President Eisenhower restored dignity and decency and, frankly, good language to the conduct of the Presidency of the United States.

"And I only hope, should I win this election, that I could approach President

Eisenhower in maintaining the dignity of the office and see to it that whenever any mother or father talks to his child, he can look at the man in the White House and, whatever he may think of his policies, he will say 'Well, there is a man who maintains the kind of standards personally that I would want my child to follow.'"

I must admit that even though it's been 14 years since Mr. Nixon said this I was very moved. Perhaps, I thought, for the first time in history this country would have a President who didn't cuss.

Nixon didn't make it in 1960, he did become President in 1968, and every time he drove by in the last five years I held my son in my arms (he's now 20) and said, "There's a President who has the kind of standards I want you to follow."

Although Joel was rather heavy, I felt it was worth the strain on my back. You can imagine my despair and disillusionment when the transcripts of the presidential tapes were released and it turned out Mr. Nixon might have been the cussingest President in our history. Almost every other word had an "expletive deleted," and if you count the "inaudibles" and "unclears" and "ambiguities," it's enough to make a U.S. marine sergeant's hair stand on end.

The question is what happened between the time Nixon debated Kennedy and the time he became President of the United States.

I sincerely believe Mr. Nixon was telling the truth when he said he was shocked by Harry Truman's language. I also believe in my heart he didn't start cussing until he lost the election to Kennedy.

Public To Have A Bigger Voice

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—The public ought to have more of a say regarding construction and operation of various health facilities in local communities, and that is the goal of what at first glance looks like an internal bureaucratic maneuver at the Department of Human Resources.

On the surface, transfer of the comprehensive health planning section from the governor's office to the Department of Human Resources looks totally unexciting.

But David T. Flaherty, Secretary of Human Resources, points out that the health planning office transfer will provide "direct access to the agencies involved, such as health, mental health, facility services, social services, and developmental disabilities.

"The planning office should not operate in a vacuum, with no direct relationship with the other aspects of the program implementation," Flaherty said.

New Chief

Lawrence B. Burwell, named by Flaherty to head the operation, echoes that sentiment. He is moving to Raleigh from Asheville where he has headed the four-county Blue Ridge Community Mental Health Center, and has spent his entire career in some phase of community health programs in North Carolina.

"Health planning can't be done in isolation," Burwell said. "There must be more citizen involvement. We hope to generate even more citizen input into spelling out local needs and raising the visibility level of the state's planning function."

At the heart of Burwell's new job will be review and approval authority over any plans for construction of a new or expanded health facility of any sort anywhere in the state.

"We must begin to look at those plans carefully in cooperation with local people to see if the plans truly fit the ideals of local needs," Burwell said.

Burwell's authority will extend over any health facility—whether publicly or privately owned and operated—and involves mostly hospital planning.

The planning office can exercise regulatory powers over health facilities—with the power to approve or disapprove plans.

To do this properly, Burwell said, you must "get the community involved, get the people together, and look at future development with an eye to the needs locally for particular kinds of facilities."

Consumer Input

Burwell said the trend now in distribution of federal funds for local health facilities is toward more insistence upon "consumer input" and that trend will intensify in the future.

"We would estimate that in perhaps five years, there will be some $100 billion in federal funds every year for a national health program. The Congress is now wrestling with that prospect, and some form of health assistance program is almost certain.

"It is equally certain that the federal government will require some organization to oversee this investment—to see how the money is spent, and why, and who calls the shots," Burwell said.

"This step is an effort to get in front of that issue before it becomes critical. What we are really doing is taking a forward look at national health planning requirements further down the road so North Carolina will be ready to move.

"In that context, it is essential that we broaden our planning and regulatory capabilities, and build some solid methods for community involvement in decision making."

Flaherty said this attitude and background of local level planning and program work is one of the key things which brought Burwell into the new state-level job.

"I feel this extensive training at the grass roots level will give Larry special insight into problems and needs of planners at the local level," the secretary said.

Many Black Recruits

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Army officials predict that black representation in the ranks may rise to 25 per cent over the long term.

This would be about 5 per cent higher than the current level and roughly double the percentage of young blacks in the general U.S. population.

April recruitment figures have not yet been published, but black enlistments in the Army reportedly rose last month after leveling off in January through March.

Army manpower officials said they were unable to explain the increase, but it appeared the unsettled economic situation might be a factor.

While insisting they never will impose any racial quotas, officials are concerned about achieving what they call a "representative Army."

Secretary of the Army Howard H. Callaway said recently that "if it were perceived by the American public that the Army was a place only where blacks really belong and we got into this kind of position, I think it would not be a representative army."

"There is always the question ... that it would not be fair in times of combat for blacks to give more than their share of ... the danger and the suffering," Callaway said.

This suggests the Army still is sensitive because of allegations, denied at the time, that blacks took disproportionate casualties in the Vietnam war.

At the same time, Army officials indicate they are pleased with the quality of blacks in their units. One general noted that the Army's crack 82nd Airborne Division is 26 per cent black.

The Army has been the focus of attention for those trying to gauge progress under the all-volunteer concept, because the Army was the most draft-dependent of the armed forces before the selective service law died about 10 months ago.

There is no word yet on how black recruitment went in the Marines, the Navy and Air Force in April.

However, the Marine Corps reported that just under 21 per cent of its recruits were black in the nine months since the draft law went off the books. The Marine Corps has had trouble getting enough qualified volunteers, but not as much trouble as the Army.

The Navy, which has experienced recruiting ups and downs, recorded close to 10 per cent blacks among its recruits in that same nine-month period ending in March.

The Air Force, which has easily filled its volunteer quotas month after month, listed 16 per cent blacks among its recruits over the same span.

Give blood, brothers.

It's so easy to give ... yet so precious. Help someone else with the gift of life.

New Chapter For Penn Central

By STEPHEN H. MILLER

AP Business News Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—The four-year-old story of the Penn Central Railroad's troubles has moved into a new chapter with government charges of fraud to deceive stockholders and conceal losses.

The Penn Central, the country's biggest railroad, has been in federal bankruptcy proceedings since June 1970 and has been sinking deeper into debt ever since it entered reorganization.

The Securities and Exchange Commission this past week filed a civil suit against the railroad, a number of former officers and others charging fraudulent activities centered in 1968 and 1969.

The charges followed a two-year study of the Penn Central troubles by the SEC and included an allegation that $4 million had been diverted to bank accounts in Lichtenstein.

When Penn Central went into reorganization, it owed $248 million in taxes, interest and rents and $1.8 billion on outstanding bonds, contracts and sales agreements.

Since then, the second figure has been trimmed to $1.7 billion, but the first has more than tripled to $900 million.

The line drew on a $100 million government-backed loan in 1971 and 1972 and got another federal loan of $16.4 million in 1973 to repair damage from tropical storm Agnes.

More recently, it received grants of $10.8 million in federal equipment payments.

Late last month, the loss for Penn Central railroad operations in the first quarter was reported up 24 per cent at $68.3 million from a loss of $55.2 million in the same quarter of 1973.

If there were doubts that Detroit was hurt by the nation's energy crunch, they should have been dispelled by the first-quarter profit figures from the nation's automakers.

The best performer was

American Motors Corp., whose earnings were down 59 per cent from a year earlier at $6.9 million even though sales were up 4.6 per cent at $498 million.

Of the Big Three, Ford Motor Co. fared best with a 66 per cent drop in profits to $124 million, its lowest for the quarter since 1967.

General Motors, the world's biggest manufacturer, said its earnings for the quarter were the worst since 1948, down 85 per cent at $120.3 million on a 27 per cent drop in sales.

Chrysler Corp. profits fell no less than 98 per cent to $1.6 million, the company's worst first quarter since it posted a loss in 1970.

Turn Up Vast Profits From 'Dying' Railroad

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III
Associated Press Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A federal criminal investigation has developed evidence that some high officials of the Penn Central railroad made millions of dollars in personal profit before the nation's sixth largest corporation went bankrupt in June 1970, sources familiar with the case say.

A federal grand jury that met secretly in Philadelphia for 18 months went out of business late last year without being asked to indict anyone, the sources say.

The grand jury investigation, run by the Justice Department, was separate from an investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission, which last week filed suit charging the railroad and certain individuals with massive fraud to conceal losses and deceive stockholders.

The SEC suit is a civil action which, although it seeks to recover personal gain by some former railroad officials and others, also seeks to enjoin defendants from continuing actions which presumably they couldn't take anyway after the railroad went bankrupt.

C. Oliver Burt III, an assistant in the U.S. attorney's office here, said the investigation still is active but declined further comment. Burt was assisted by a Justice Department lawyer from Washington who also said he could not comment.

Sources say the grand jury had difficulty obtaining all the records it needed.

These sources say prosecutors still hope to obtain the records and present their case again to a new grand jury in time to beat the five-year statute of limitations of federal conspiracy charges.

The grand jury investigation, according to sources, focused on five key figures "and a few aides."

"This involves millions of dollars in personal profit," said a source.

The statute of limitations on conspiracy, which sources indicated was the central charge under consideration, runs from five years after the last overt act of conspiracy, but it is not clear when exactly the statute runs out in this case.

Although the public was unaware of it, the Penn Central was in trouble almost from the day it was formed in 1968 by merger of the New York Central and the Pennsylvania railroads.

It was forced to file for reorganization after failing to obtain $200 million in emergency federal loan guarantees. The Nixon administration, which initially had been prepared to approve a bailout, backed off at the last moment when Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., of the House Banking and Currency Committee, objected.

me. "I never heard Dick use an 'expletive deleted' until the 1960 Illinois results of the election came in. In 1962, he lost the race for governor in California and he let out one 'inaudible' after another. I didn't know there were that many 'expletives' in the English language. It was hard after that to have Dick over to the house when the children were around.

"I thought when he became President and he was more secure he'd stop using 'expletives,' but apparently once you start using them it's hard to give them up," the friend said.

And so it turns out that President Nixon was no better than Harry Truman when it came to language, and a lot worse than President Eisenhower. It's something we'll all have to get used to.

But I know one thing—I'm no longer going to hold up my 20-year-old son in my arms when the President drives by. Any President who promises to restore good language to the Presidency and then talks the way he did is nothing but an "inaudible" in my book.

Honor Soc. Recognizes 5 Students

Five outstanding students in the East Carolina University Department of Business Education and Office Administration have received recognition from their honor society, Pi Omega Pi.

At its annual awards banquet Tuesday, ECU's Beta Kappa chapter recognized academic achievement records set in each of the four undergraduate classes as well as this year's outstanding graduating senior. Linda Smith of Ayden received the freshman scholarship award, and Phyllis Witherington of Greenville, the sophomore award. Both were given silver keys appropriately engraved.

The Audrey V. Dempsey Scholarship Award, consisting of funds for a quarter's tuition, was given to junior Patricia Stallings of Macesfield.

The Thomas Clay Williams Memorial Scholarship, annually given to the senior student with the highest academic grade point average, was awarded to Nancy Hooper Doolin of Alexandria, Va.

The award includes a key plaque appropriately engraved, and the engraving of the recipient's name on a permanent trophy in the Pi Omega Pi showcase.

The National Business Education Association Award of Merit was presented to Barbara Hester of New York City. This award, consisting of a certificate, a year's subscription to the Business Education Forum and a copy of the association yearbook, is given each year to an outstanding senior.

Beta Kappa chapter was recognized as one of the top ten chapters in the nation for the academic year 1973-74, and a certificate signed by the national Pi Omega Pi officers was accepted by chapter president Patricia Stallings.

Dr. Frances Daniels, faculty advisor, made the presentations.

Further information about the award recipients includes: Pitt County, Ayden—Linda Kay Smith, Route 2, 1973 graduate of Conley High School; Greenville—Phyllis Stancil Witherington, Route 5, 1971 graduate of Conley High School.

Mitterrand, d'Estang Facing Runoff Battle

By PAUL TREUTHARDT
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — Socialist Francois Mitterrand will face conservative Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing in a close runoff battle for the French presidency May 19, France's voters decided Sunday.

Backed by the powerful Communist party, Mitterrand led a field of 12 candidates on the first ballot with 10,935,763 votes, or 43.36 per cent of the total cast. Giscard d'Estaing, a member of the Independent Republican party, ran second with 8,286,382, or 32.85 per cent.

Since the heavy turnout of 25 million voters gave no candidate a majority, a runoff must be held between the two high men in two weeks. But the voters dealt a shattering blow to the Gaullist Party, which dominated French politics for more than a decade under Presidents Charles de Gaulle and Georges Pompidou.

The official Gaullist candidate, former Premier Jacques Chaban-Delmas, polled only 3,693,168 votes, or 14.64 per cent, in what was billed as a primary against Giscard d'Estaing, the leader of the junior party in the Gaullist coalition.

The consensus of politicians and newspapers was that the major shakeup in the political pattern made the outcome of the runoff unpredictable, with the result likely to be a photo finish.

The big question mark was how many of the 14 per cent who supported Chaban-Delmas after a campaign marked by personal bitterness toward Giscard d'Estaing would switch their votes to the 49-year-old finance minister.

Conceding his defeat, Chaban-Delmas maintained his resolute opposition to the Socialist-Communist union but avoided naming either Mitterrand or Giscard d'Estaing.

Gaullist party leaders were meeting today to decide their tactics. Should large numbers of hard-line Gaullists stay home on May 19, Mitterrand could squeeze through to victory.

Gaston Defferre, the Socialist mayor of Marseille who is expected to be premier if Mitterrand wins, admitted that not all the left wing had turned out to back its standard bearer Sunday. It has been suggested that some Socialists were wary of the link with the Communist party, which is expected to give the Communists a third of the cabinet posts if Mitterrand is elected.

Defferre said these Socialist stay-at-homes constituted "a reserve for the second ballot, and Francois Mitterrand should win."

"A good portion of those who voted for Chaban-Delmas may not vote for Giscard d'Estaing in the second round," Defferre added. Culture Minister Alain Peyrefitte, a veteran Gaullist agreed, saying that the "dynamic of the majority," or bandwagon effect, which favored De Gaulle and Pompidou in the past might work now for Mitterrand.

Michel d'Ornano, secretary-general of Giscard d'Estaing's party, indicated a "red scare" campaign for the next two weeks.

"What will parents of school-children think if the minister of education is a Communist party member?" he asked. "What will the farmers think in a similar case? What will the French people think if a Communist holds the foreign affairs portfolio when major international negotiations are in progress?"

Mrs. Rogers At Conference

GREENSBORO—Mrs. Everlena C. Rogers, court counselor of the Third Judicial District, Greenville, will participate in the Conference for Counselors and Judges Wednesday and Thursday at the Holiday Inn here.

Mrs. Rogers will preside at the workshop session on "Behavior Modification in Court Counselor Programs."

Other workshops include "Recent Trends in Juvenile Justice" and "Group Work Techniques."

JOHN HOWARD

STAN RIGGS

The resolution was inspired in Howard in 1965 when several construction projects were underway in Greenville. After seeing many trees taken down Howard felt something should be done to protect the beauty of the city.

To some, a law requiring a penalty for cutting down a tree might be rather ridiculous. But to a tree lover, like Stan Riggs, trees are worth protecting with penalties.

A resident of Greenville for seven years, Riggs moved here from Raleigh, and recalls his impression of Greenville as a very green place when he moved here.

"I traveled through here quite a bit before coming to East Carolina and the most prominent thing that stuck out in my mind was the beauty of the by-pass because it wasn't so developed. Then there was Tenth and Fifth Streets which were so beautiful with all the trees," Riggs states today.

Now he feels only one of the three prominent areas remains, Fifth Street.

The geology instructor feels the resolution introduced by Howard nine years ago is a very adding he was going to remind the council of its existence.

"Trees cut down noise and heat," in town he states.

"We have a policy now that we try and replace every tree we remove in a renovation project, that's why there are holes in the sidewalk along Reide Circle. We plan to plant trees along that drive," he adds.

Riggs states he feels the policy of replacing a tree is a good one but adds he wishes more consideration be given to already grown trees.

"I think some respect should be given these trees, some of them are 100 years old, they should be treated as you would a 100 year old citizen," the instructor adds.

"Along with being of ornamental value, they are a necessary item in controlling drainage," Riggs interjected.

TREELINED—Protecting tree-lined streets like Fifth was the intention of a resolution offered by city councilman John Howard in 1965. (Reflector Staff Photo)

Mrs. Branch Resigned As Administratrix

Mrs. Connie Hardee Branch, charged in connection with the shooting death of her husband Linwood Noah Branch here in March, has resigned as administratrix of her late husband's estate, according to Pitt County Superior Court Clerk H. L. Lewis.

Lewis said Mrs. Branch was named administratrix of the estate shortly after Branch's death. He noted that Branch's brother, M. K. Branch petitioned his office April 29 to have Mrs. Branch removed as administratrix. The court clerk noted that a hearing had been scheduled on the petition for May 10.

Lewis said, however, that Mrs. Branch resigned her position May 3, saying she was "unable to complete the administration" of the estate.

Mrs. Branch has been charged with conspiracy and with being an accessory before the fact in her husband's death.

Still Driving Faster Than Law Allows

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Two months after the 55 miles per hour speed limit went into effect on a nationwide basis, an Associated Press survey shows Americans have slowed down a little but are still driving faster than the law allows.

The AP sent reporters in the 48 contiguous states to drive on the highways on May 1, keeping at the legal limit of 55 m.p.h. to see what other motorists were doing. The AP also checked on the number of speeding tickets issued before and after the limit was lowered and on traffic accidents.

Among the conclusions:
—Americans in all but a handful of states, including

Wyoming, Wisconsin, Idaho, Delaware and Oklahoma, are ignoring the 55 m.p.h. limit, whizzing by a driver who travels at the legal speed.

—The average speed on most highways is 65 to 70 m.p.h., below the speeds people used to travel when the legal limit was 70 or 75 m.p.h.

—Police are giving out more tickets. Only one AP reporter — in Indiana — saw a patrol car actually pull over a speeding vehicle. But authorities cite statistics to show that they are enforcing the law stringently. The Kansas Highway Patrol said 6,091 arrests for speeding were made during the week ended April 15, up from 2,352 arrests in the same week of 1973.

—The highways are safer. The National Safety Council says traffic deaths in March were down 25 per cent from a year earlier. Ohio officials say 107 persons died in traffic accidents on March and April weekends this year, compared to 193 persons last year; North Dakota authorities said there have been only 31 fatalities so far this year, compared to 52 last year.

Says Academies Not For Women

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Women should not be accepted at the nation's service academies because society is not ready to send them into combat, Defense Department officials have said.

Dr. M. Richard Rose, deputy assistant Defense Secretary in charge of education, said, however, that the military is offering more opportunities to women than ever before.

"The primary use for the academies is to train men for leadership positions in combat," Rose said. "As society is not ready to send women into combat, they should not be in the academies."

Rose was in Nashville to deliver an address at George Peabody College for Teachers. He is a former provost at the University of Pittsburgh.

The state bird of North Carolina is the cardinal.

—Speeds are creeping up as gasoline availability increases. Gov. John D. Vanderhoof of Colorado said he sees "more people exceeding the speed limits than there were a couple of months ago. All they have to do is increase gas consumption by 4 or 5 per cent and we're right back in the same jam."

—Drivers think the lower speed limit can be enjoyable, but agree that it gets boring over long distances in monotonous country. They also said there was a tendency to let the speedometer creep up to match the flow of traffic.

Congress passed legislation late last year giving states until March 4 to lower the speed limit to 55 m.p.h. as a conservation measure or face the loss of federal funds. All 50 states complied.

NORTH CAROLINA: The only car passed by a driver doing 55 m.p.h. on Interstate 85 for three hours was an old truck. Most other vehicles traveled at about 60. Cmdr. E.W. Jones of the highway patrol said his citizens were complaining about people ignoring the 55 m.p.h. limit. "We received so many complaints that we concentrated marked and unmarked cars on I-85 between Durham and Winston-Salem, a distance of about 75 miles, and during a two-week period 800 speeding citations were issued ... far greater than for a comparable period a year ago."

SOUTH CAROLINA: It was extremely difficult to maintain a 55 m.p.h. speed limit and the other cars whizzed by — 12 in five minutes on one stretch of highway. Col. P.F. Thompson, head of the highway patrol, said drivers have eased up on compliance now that there is more gasoline available and predicted that April statistics will show an increase in the number of speeding tickets.

TENNESSEE: A driver going 55 m.p.h. was passed by 41 of 44 vehicles spotted during a journey on Interstate 24 and passed only three. A passenger in the car commented after about 10 minutes: "It's not that some of them are passing us. They're ALL passing us." The estimated average speed was 65 m.p.h. No highway patrol car was spotted. The state highway patrol said there were 9,946 speeding tickets issued during the first two weeks of April, 1974, more than double the 3,758 issued during the same period of 1973. "We're enforcing the speed law with a 5 m.p.h. tolerance," said Safety Commissioner Claude Armour. On the journey from Nashville to Sewanee, most of the cars going above 55 m.p.h. were from Tennessee; on the way back, most of them were out-of-state.

Julie Williams is ten years old and a budding musician. She's been playing the piano since she was four and more recently she's been learning to play the flute. Along with other kids in her fourth grade, she's been invited to play with the North Carolina Symphony. They're all practicing to beat the band.

But a lot of Julie's practicing on the flute had to take place in bed. Because she has a kidney condition that needs very special treatment.

The problem was discovered when Julie was four. She was in the hospital 19 days then, and she's been back to the hospital several times since. Last year, her doctors decided to try a new kind of medicine on Julie. One they hoped would cause permanent remission of her ailment.

For six months Julie took the medicine, and for six months she visited the hospital Outpatient Department almost every other day for tests. It looks as if the medicine worked. Julie's back in school now practicing her flute out of bed.

It's been quite a strain on Julie. And on her parents.

But one thing that hasn't been a strain is the hospital bills. Julie's covered by her parents' Blue Cross and Blue Shield major medical benefits. All her hospital visits—even her tests as an outpatient—were covered.

Major medical benefits like Julie needed is an extra program available through Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina to groups of 25 or more. It takes over where regular coverage ends when you have a long term or really serious illness.

Dairy Co-Op Official Said Ready To 'Help' Mills

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A top dairy cooperative official allegedly wanted to raise $2 million in cash to help Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., run for President in 1972 against Richard M. Nixon, who had been promised $2 million in dairy money himself.

David L. Parr, the former second-in-command at Associated Milk Producers, Inc., believed Mills could win the Democratic presidential nomination and beat Nixon, according to statements attributed to Parr's former associates at the giant dairy cooperative.

"Dave Parr wanted to build a kitty for Wilbur Mills of $2 million," the co-op's former lobbyist, Bob A. Lilly, is quoted as saying. "He wanted this to be in cash."

The milk producer's present chief executive, George L. Mehren, is quoted as saying he cut off some of Parr's aid to Mills when Mehren took over leadership of the co-op in early 1972.

At that time, just before Mills announced himself as an active candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, Parr had assigned a number of salaried cooperative employees to assist the early draft-Mills campaign, an apparent violation of federal law prohibiting use of corporate money in campaigns.

"I turned down a proposed check-off of employees by Parr and gave directions that it was contrary to company policy and would not be allowed. Parr reminded me that it was for Wilbur Mills and that we owed him a good deal," Mehren is quoted as saying.

The check-off was apparently for a fundraising effort for Mills that Parr wanted to conduct among the co-op's employees, according to a source close to the Senate Watergate committee's investigation of the affair.

Mehren is quoted as saying that he was told five co-op employees worked on the Mills campaign. Lilly named six employes who he said actually worked for Mills. A seventh co-op employee has been identified as the main advance man for Mills.

Parr ran the milk producers' office in Little Rock, Ark., in Mills' congressional district. He believed that Mills, head of the House Ways and Means Committee, could go "all the way" and win the White House, according to a statement attributed to Robert O. Isham, the milk producers' former controller.

The statements of Lilly, Mehren and Isham were made public in a court proceeding after the Justice Department's anti-trust division subpoenaed the investigative notes of Edward L. Wright, a prominent Little Rock attorney who probed the co-op's political activities on assignment from its board of directors.

Mills has publicly referred to Parr as a "good friend." He has declined requests to be interviewed about his connections to Parr and the milk producers. The co-op donated $25,000 to his presidential campaign, the largest single recorded donation. Parr also poured at least $50,000 worth of corporate support into the early draft-Mills campaign in late 1971 and early 1972, and Mills has said he was unaware of this.

Parr's lawyer, Robert Light, won't allow his client to be interviewed about the Mills support, on grounds that Parr is being investigated by the Watergate special prosecution force. Parr recently pleaded guilty to a federal charge of conspiring to give $22,000 illegally to Hubert H. Humphrey's 1968 campaign. That indictment was brought by a grand jury in Little Rock, unrelated to the Watergate prosecution.

Parr and other co-op officials had promised $2 million to President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign, and at least $727,000 in dairy money has actually been traced to the President's political coffers.

The House Judiciary Committee presently is investigating whether this $2-million promise influenced Nixon's decision to raise federal milk price supports in 1971, something the White House denies.

Venezuela Holds Tom

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — British singer Tom Jones was prevented from leaving Venezuela when he tried to board a plane for the United States.

A local newsman, Manuel Olalquiaga of the "El Universal," got a court order against Jones for injuries allegedly inflicted by Jones' bodyguard.

Olalquiaga said David Perry struck him on the head last Wednesday. Perry reportedly left Venezuela the next day.

Jones reportedly was being delayed pending a court appearance today. A spokesman at Jones' London office said they received a call from him after he was stopped from leaving Sunday and he was "totally bewildered..."

Jones cabled Prime Minister Harold Wilson for aid. A spokesman said Wilson would be shown the cable after he returned from a trip.

A spokesman for Jones said the delay would cost him "tens of thousands of dollars because we will miss recording sessions scheduled for tonight in Alabama."

Arrest Man In Robbery Case

Herbert Hadley Harrington, 22, of 112 West 16th St. has been arrested by Greenville police on charges of breaking, entering and larceny, robbery with a dangerous weapon and assault by pointing a gun in connection with an April 9 incident here.

Detective Capt. L. J. Russell said the charges against Harrington stemmed from an early morning break-in and robbery at a River Road apartment during which $75 in cash, a wrist watch and stereo equipment were taken and another incident the same morning at 501A Church St. in which more cash was stolen.

Another man was arrested earlier in Florida and returned to Greenville in connection with the case, Capt. Russell explained.

Harrington was taken into custody Friday.

Sunday Saw 4 Auto Mishaps

A series of four traffic mishaps here Sunday resulted in two persons being injured and an estimated $2,840 property damage, Greenville Police reported.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from two collisions on Elm Street 150 feet South of the Brookgreen Road intersection.

The first of the collisions occurred at 11:04 a.m. and involved cars driven by Jesse Ray Howard of 102 Avon Lane and Janize Leonard Jones of 1502 East Wright Rd.

Damage to the Howard car was set at $300 while damage to the Jones car was placed at $600.

Jones was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

At 11:13 a.m., a car driven by Mary Apperson Powell of 123 King George Rd. collided with the Howard car, causing an estimated $700 damage to the Powell vehicle and another $300 damage to the Howard auto.

Mrs. Powell and one occupant of the Howard car were reported injured in that mishap, according to Police.

Officers charged Mrs. Powell with failing to reduce her speed enough to avoid an accident.

No charges were reported following investigation of a 1:45 p.m. collision on N. C. 23 50 feet South of the U. S. 264 intersection that involved cars driven by Paul Vinson Ellis of Macclesfield and Linda Grace Curry of Farmville.

Damage was estimated at $40 to the Ellis car and $600 to the Curry auto.

An estimated $150 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 12 noon mishap at the intersection of Fourth and Greene Streets.

Investigators identified the drivers involved as Lester Brown Jr. of 207 Contentnea St. and Fred Douglas Joyner of Route 1, Stokes.

Joyner was charged with failing to stop for a red light.

Sickle Cell Session Set

A one-day workshop on Sickle Cell Disease will be held next Monday at the School of Allied Health at East Carolina University.

The general public, as well as persons involved in health care delivery are invited to attend. There will be participants from the five counties in Region Q of the Mid-East Commission—Beaufort, Bertie, Hertford, Martin, and Pitt Counties.

The Comprehensive Health Planning Committee of the Mid-East Commission and the Genetic Counseling Unit of the Sickle Cell Program of the Department of Human Resources in Raleigh are sponsoring the workshop.

The Eastern Elementary School PTA will meet Thursday night, at 7:30 p.m., in the All-Purpose Room of the school.

This will be the last meeting of the year and new officers for the PTA will be elected by the membership present. All interested parents, members of the PTA, are urged to attend this most important meeting.

The program will be an all musical one. The Eastern Elementary School chorus under the direction of Mrs. Zenora Langley will perform. There will also be selections by Johnny Wooten and the band.

By C. BARTON REPERT Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's chief lawyer says the President's defense against impeachment depends on whether Nixon himself was involved in hush money payments to Watergate defendants.

James D. St. Clair, White House special counsel, said Sunday the presidential tape transcripts released last week prove Nixon neither authorized nor knew of the payments and thus is innocent of any "criminal plot to obstruct justice."

St. Clair also said he considers it unrealistic to think that a constitutional dispute between Congress and the President over what amounts to an impeachable offense could be resolved in court.

In another televised interview, White House chief of staff Alexander M. Haig Jr. said he hopes the leading members of the House Judiciary Committee will personally listen to the White House tapes and verify the transcripts.

Nixon said in releasing the material that Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., and Rep. Edward Hutchinson of Michigan, the senior committee Republican, could hear the actual tapes at the White House. They have not yet accepted the offer.

Haig said anyone who reads the transcripts "knows without a shadow of a doubt that there has not been much tampering with the contents of them. They speak for themselves."

Haig declined to reply directly to questions about whether the White House also would turn over evidence sought on issues other than Watergate, such as the milk fund, the ITT case and a $100,000 would-be campaign contribution by Howard Hughes.

But he added that these "are legitimate questions and for people involved to do any less than their best, they would, of course, be remiss."

Meanwhile, two members of the House panel warned against interpreting the committee's party-line vote on the transcripts as a sign of a partisan split on the impeachment issue.

After receiving edited transcripts from the White House instead of the actual tape recordings, the committee voted 20 to 18 last week to inform Nixon he had not complied fully with its subpoena.

"Few if any really thought he was in full compliance," said Rep. Paul S. Sarbanes, D-Md. "The difference in opinion was in the proper response."

Rep. Thomas Railsback, R-Ill., said the vote reflected procedural differences which do not affect the committee's ultimate goal of reaching the truth in its impeachment probe.

Interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press" program, St. Clair said "the President has been charged with essentially a criminal plot to obstruct justice. This is by paying people hush money to keep quiet."

Haig appeared on ABC's "Issues and Answers" while Sarbanes and Railsback were interviewed on "Face the Nation" broadcast by the CBS television and radio networks.

In related developments:

—The White House said it has found "a number of important contradictions" between Dean's sworn testimony about six talks he had with the President and the transcripts of those conversations.

—Former Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox said that judging by the White House transcript of Nixon's March 21, 1973, meeting with Dean, "I think it could be inferred that there was an intent to obstruct justice on that date."

—An assistant to Mark Weiss, one of six experts chosen to probe the 18½-minute gap in a Watergate tape, said the final draft of the panel's report still concludes that the lapse was caused by numerous erasures and re-recordings.

—Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., said Nixon's releasing of the edited transcripts was an "obvious plea to the public" that would fail. He said the President is not fully complying with the House Judiciary Committee's subpoena and said that, in itself, could prejudice his case if he is tried by the Senate.

Nancy Kissinger Shelves Shyness

By BARRY SCHWEID Associated Press Writer AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Nancy Maginnes Kissinger has put her shyness into storage.

In 90-degree Egyptian heat she cheerfully scrambles 80 yards down to inspect the Roman baths at Alexandria.

An Episcopalian, she visits Jerusalem and tours Judaism's Wailing Wall, the Moslems' Dome of the Rock and the Christian Church of the Holy Sepulchre.

A 6-footer, she hugs President Anwar Sadat's wife and manages not to appear awkward despite the six or eight inches between their heights.

A chain-smoker, she doesn't break out her cigarettes in public.

And she pads to the back of husband Henry Kissinger's jet to chat with reporters, memorizing most of their names on the first shot.

Reared in a wealthy, suburban New York setting, Nancy Maginnes learned the social amenities long ago at the Master's Girls School in Dobbs Ferry D Mount Holyoke College.

But moving onto the world diplomatic stage as the wife of Kissinger, a globe trotter with an impulsive and offbeat sense of humor, is a test even for this smooth, 40-year-old socialite.

"Don't do it, you can't afford her," Kissinger told a reporter who offered to take his bride shopping in an Arab market.

Kissinger also uses his wife,

Journalism Group To Honor Whichards

Two members of the Whichard family, publishers of the Greenville Daily Reflector, will receive honorary membership in the East Carolina University chapter of Alpha Phi Gamma honor society in journalism.

In ceremonies scheduled for Sunday, May 12, ECU's Delta Nu chapter will induct David Julian Whichard and his son John S. Whichard. Another son, David J. Whichard II, editor of the Reflector, is a charter honorary member of the society.

According to faculty advisor Ira L. Baker, Delta Nu will be the only Alpha Phi Gamma chapter in the nation to have three honorary members from the same family. Baker is also a former national president of Alpha Phi Gamma.

Eleven students will also be inducted at the Sunday ceremony.

Current officers include:

Darrell Edwin Williams of Aberdeen, president; Edward Earl Herring Jr. of Durham, vice president; Glenn Lewis Rutherfordford, treasurer; Linda Jayne Gardner of Halifax, Va., secretary; and Sydney Ann Green of Franklinton, bailiff.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Soaring interest rates kept the stock market grounded today.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 6.10 to 839.80. Declines outnumbered advances by about 5-to-3 on the New York Stock Exchange.

First-hour volume on the Big Board was at an 18-month low.

Numerous banks across the country joined in increasing their prime lending rates to a historic high of 11 per cent this morning, and observers were predicting further increases.

General Motors headed the Big Board's most-active list, down 5/8 at 47. Brokers noted disappointment at overall April auto sales figures.

MGIC Investment dropped 2 1/4 to 23, and CMI Investment was down 1 1/2 at 15%. Brokers said high interest rates and the slump in the housing industry were helping to prompt the selling of stocks of mortgage-guaranteeing concerns.

Coca-Cola was up 1 1/2 at 100 1/4. The company reported higher first-quarter earnings and said a dividend increase would be considered.

Gold prices were lower as bullion prices dropped in Europe. Homestake was down 1 1/2 at 78 1/2, ASA, Ltd., lost 2 1/2 to 78 1/2, and Dome Mines was off 2 1/2 at 157 1/2.

On the American Stock Exchange, the volume leader was Novo Corp., unchanged at 3.

Geriatrics, Inc., subject of a proposed merger with ARA Services, rose a point to 9 1/2.

The Amex' market-value index was down .33 to 89.86 at 11 a.m. The NYSE composite stood at 48.16, down .29.

Obituaries

Darden
Mr. Clarence Darden of 660 Jefferson Avenue, Brooklyn, N.Y., formerly of Ayden died Friday after an extended illness at The Holy Family Hospital in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Funeral services will be conducted Tuesday 2 p.m. at Mount Calvary F.W.B. Church on Howard Avenue, Brooklyn, N.Y. for the past 40 years and was a member of Mount Calvary F.W.B. Church.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Sarah Darden of the home; one daughter, Mrs. Brenda Hudson of Brooklyn, N.Y.; one sister Mrs. Margaret D. Hooks of Brooklyn, N.Y.; and five grandchildren.

Messages of sympathy may be sent to the home, 660 Jefferson Avenue, Brooklyn, N.Y. 11221.

Haddock
Mr. Robert H. Haddock, 49, died Thursday. Funeral services will be conducted at three o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the Epworth United Methodist Church by the pastor, the Rev. Dan Earnhardt. Burial will be in the Church Cemetery. The body will be taken from the Wilkerson Funeral Home to the Church one hour prior to the time of services.

Mr. Haddock, a native of Pitt County, spent most of his life in Craven County in the Epworth Community. He was a member of the Vanceboro Christian Church.

Surviving are four sons, SSG Marvin Earl Haddock of the U. S. Army, now stationed at Fort Dix, N.J., Rickey Ray and Levy Dale Haddock, both of Jacksonville, Fla., and Robert Randy Haddock of New Bern; two daughters, Mrs. Hugh T. Morris of Anshunburg, West Germany, and Mrs. Gordan Loman of Jacksonville, Fla.; his mother, Mrs. Will Haddock of Vanceboro; five brothers, Eddie Haddock of Vanceboro, Frank and Marvin Haddock, both of Alexandria, Va., Roy Lee Haddock of New Bern, and Dilton Earl Haddock of Greenville; a sister, Mrs. Leslie Burroughs of Greenville; and seven grandchildren.

Newton
Mr. George Richard Newton of Rt. 4, Greenville died at his home Sunday. He was the husband of Mrs. Frances Newton. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at Hemy By Funeral Home in Fountain.

Pugh
Mr. Herman Lee Pugh, 18, of the Piney Grove community of Craven County, died Sunday in Pitt Memorial Hospital. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at the Norcott and Co. Funeral Home, Ayden.

Mr. Pugh was the son of Woodrow and Dora Dean Green Pugh.

Wooten
Mrs. Pattie Bruce Wooten, widow of Dr. William I. Wooten, died Saturday night at her home. The funeral service was conducted at 11:00 a.m. Monday in St. Paul's Episcopal Church by Rev. Lawrence P. Houston, Jr., the rector. Interment was in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Wooten spent her entire life in the Greenville community. She was born in Greenville on July 25, 1895. She attended the Greenville Model School, Fassafern Preparatory School in Lincolnton, and was graduated cum laude from Randolph Macon Woman's College, Lynchburg, Va., with a Bachelor of Arts degree.

She was married to Dr. William I. Wooten of Greene County in 1923. He died in December, 1943.

Mrs. Wooten was instrumental in the organization of the Pitt County unit of the American Red Cross and was its first president. A member of Chi Omega sorority, she served in recent years as patron and adviser to the local chapter of this organization at East Carolina University. A member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Mrs. Wooten served as Sunday School teacher and was the first woman in the diocese of East Carolina to serve as a member of her local church vestry. Mrs. Wooten was also a charter member of the Sans Souci Book Club, a member of The Greenville Woman's Club and Garden Club, the Greenville Arts Council, the Daughters of the American Revolution, and the American Association of University Women, and was secretary of the Pitt County Historical Society.

Surviving are two sons, Dr. John L. Wooten and William I. Wooten, Jr. both of Greenville, and a daughter, Mrs. Powell Bland of Goldsboro; six grandsons and two granddaughters.

Mr. Wilton Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Williams of Contentnea Street here, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital Sunday. Funeral arrangements are in-

Individual's Role Cited

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—The call for "individual responsibility" to help solve the nation's ills was sounded by black publisher John H. Johnson Sunday in a commencement address at A&T State University.

"We need personal commitment to help work for fair employment, environmental protection and dignity for the young and the aged," Johnson told the school's record 850 graduates.

"If we continue to sidestep this responsibility, our institutions will continue to decay."

"There is much to be done," he continued. "There are cities to be rebuilt, lives to be reclaimed and children to be taught."

The publisher of Ebony and Jet magazines said, "To be human in this crucial age is to be responsible. You can be responsible by controlling your own communities and voting and influencing others."

He told the graduates to refuse to participate in institutional repression of any type.

"Free men and women accept the challenge of righting the wrongs," he said.

During the exercises, Johnson and Dr. Russel Mawby, president of W.K. Kellogg Foundation in Battle Creek, Mich., received honorary degrees.

Nancy Isn't Very Eager

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Nancy Reagan says she still doesn't think it would be "a dandy thing" for her husband, Ronald, to become president of the United States.

But, Mrs. Reagan also says she wants the Republican California governor to do whatever he wishes.

In 1968, Mrs. Reagan was asked if she wanted her husband to be president. Her answer: "I don't think any woman would want the awesome, tremendous responsibilities of the presidency for the man she loves."

The same question last September brought a similar response.

On Sunday, she said: "Nothing has happened lately to make me think that's the dandy thing to do but, of course, I want him to do what he wants, to do what he feels he should do. I hope I've learned something in the last 7 1/2 years, and that's that you can't make long-range plans. I don't have to think about him running for president right now, so I'm not going to."

VOTE FOR WILLIAM B. (BILL) MARTIN
Tuesday, May 7, 1974

This ad sponsored by friends of Bill Martin for Pitt County Commissioner

Lasso gets the Fall Panicum out of your peanuts.

Lasso controls fall panicum, a grass problem that seems to be getting out of hand on a lot of southern farms. In fact, there are very few herbicides that do get fall panicum, and that's one reason why it has been spreading so rapidly. But fall panicum isn't the only problem Lasso gets out of your peanuts. Lasso controls crabgrass, a close second in importance. Also pigweed. Lasso even reduces competitution from yellow nutsedge, when used at the higher recommended rate. You can spray Lasso liquid, or put down Lasso granules behind your planting rig. It's up to you. And if you happen to grow corn or soybeans in addition to peanuts, Lasso is the only herbicide around that'll work on all three crops. Carryover? With Lasso there just isn't any. You can use Lasso and never have to worry about carryover damage. So plan now to go with Lasso in your peanuts. You'll get the fall panicum out and more peanuts in. Lasso. It works hard for peanuts.

Pitt Girls Win Honors At Meet

RAEFORD—Several Pitt County girls were among winners and qualifiers for the State Girls Track Meet, to be held Friday in High Point. They gained the state meet by placing in the sectional meet, held Saturday in Raeford. North Pitt High School's girls place fifth in the point standings, while D. H. Conley was seventh. Rose and Ayden-Grifton, also in the competition, failed to score. Teresa Baker of Conley took first place in the high jump, winning with a sectional record leap of 4 feet, 10 inches. Vickie Hawkins of Conley was fourth in the shot put with a toss of 33 feet, 9 inches. In addition, the Conley 440-yard relay team of Linda Mills, Jackie Costin, Connie Mills and Baker finished fourth in 53.1 seconds. Kathy Taylor of North Pitt won the mile run with a sectional record of 5:20.9. Joy Forbes also captured a title for the Pant-HERS, winning the 880-yard run in 2:32.6. The mile relay team from North Pitt, composed of Taylor, Forbes, Joan Andrews and Jackie Nelson, finished fourth with the time of 4:31.1.

Celebrities In 'Charity Open'

GROVE CITY, Ohio (AP)—Twenty-five celebrities from the media, government and sports will join 75 amateurs Saturday for the first annual Grove City Charity Open Golf Tournament. The celebrities will be headed by pro basketball stars Larry Jones of the Philadelphia 76ers, John Barnhill, assistant coach of the Los Angeles Lakers, Rudy Tomjanovich of the Houston Rockets and Steve Jones of the Denver Rockets, officials said.

Harvard Crew Defeated Penn.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Harvard's undefeated heavyweight crew breezed past Penn Saturday, taking the 2,000-meter Adams Cup Regatta in 6:24.6. Penn was six lengths behind at 6:46. Navy finished third at 6:59.3.

72 LANES OF WOMEN HOUSTON (AP)—The 45-day Women's International Bowling Congress tournament runs through May 18 on a 72-lane center in Houston. A total of 5,734 five-woman teams have entered with prize money of $417,779. It's the second richest WIBC in history.

Three World Series games ended in ties before lights were installed in major league parks. The ties were in 1907, 1912 and 1922.

Meet Swept By NCCU

ORANGEBURG, S.C. (AP)—North Carolina Central University literally ran away with the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference track meet title. Two of its runners set meet records Sunday. Larry Black did the 100-yard dash in 9.4 and Robert Ouko took the 880 yard run in 1:51.4. Their performances helped NCCU pile up the top team score of 77 points. Defending champion Delaware State came in second with 68 points as Mike Wilson also set meet records by winning the mile 4:09.5, and the two-mile in 9:36.6. Other team scores: South Carolina State 52, North Carolina A&T 28, Morgan State 22, Howard University 13, and Maryland-Eastern Shore 9. Host South Carolina State took the conference golf crown as only three schools competed. S.C. State had 749, Delaware State 908 and NCCU 910. Raymond Greer of S.C. State led the individual golfers at 146 in the two days of play over the 6,647-yard, par 72 Hillcrest course. NCCU took the tennis crown also. It scored 45 points by winning all single and doubles. Runners-up were N.C. A&T 33, S.C. State 29, Delaware 26.

North-South Golf Tournament Begins

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP)—The 64-match first round of the 74th annual North and South Amateur Golf tournament gets underway today on the 7,000-yard No. 2 course at Pinehurst Country Club. Forty-five exempt players were to be joined by 128 others who survived Sunday qualifying. George Burns III of Port Washington, N.Y., the Canadian Amateur champion, won qualifying honors with a 36-hole score of one-under-par 143. Burns fired a three-under-par 69 Saturday on the No. 2 course, but switched to the No. 4 layout Sunday where he stroked a two-over-par 74. Runnerup Bobby Edgerton of Raleigh, N.C. was four strokes back at 147 after shooting 76 on the No. 4 course. Florida State's Steve Smyers also had a 76 Sunday for third place at 149.

WTT Will Make Debut

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—World Team Tennis, the latest product of the modern sports explosion, debuts tonight with the Philadelphia Freedoms—led by Billie Jean King—exchanging strokes with the Pittsburgh Triangles, directed by Ken Rosewall. The WTT is a product of Ms. King's husband, Larry, and Dennis Murphy, who helped start the American Basketball Association and the World Hockey Association. It is a controversial concept that has not been accepted by Rod Laver, Stan Smith and Arthur Ashe—three of the game's leading stars.

Philadelphia and Pittsburgh will play six matches—a pair each of women's singles, men's singles and mixed doubles. Add up the cumulative score of games won and the team with the highest total wins. Each game is settled by the first player to reach four points. The first player to win six games wins a set. You have to win by two games (i.e.: 7-5). If a match is tied at six, a nine-point tie breaker settles the issue.

Coaches such as Ms. King and Rosewall determine the lineup, and changes can be made in the middle of a match if the coach feels the player isn't performing well. There are 16 teams in the WTT, eight in an East Division: Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Boston, Baltimore, New York, Cleveland, Toronto and Detroit; and eight in the West: Hawaii, Los Angeles, Florida, Chicago, Minnesota, Golden Gate (San Francisco), Denver and Houston.

Greying Pearson Is Talladega Winner

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer
TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — "It's really not my favorite race track, but I'll take a victory anywhere I can get them at my age."

That was David Pearson talking Sunday after winning the Winston 500 Grand National Stock Car race at Alabama International Speedway — a 2.66 mile oval he drives as easily as he does his lawn mower back home.

New Records At San Jose

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Maren Seidler has broken a 14-year-old American record in the women's shot put and Jim Bolding has set a world's mark in the 440 intermediate hurdles at the eighth San Jose Invitational Track and Field Meet.

Miss Seidler, formerly of Tufts University and Hayward State, tossed the shot 54 feet 10 1/2 inches Saturday, erasing the old U.S. mark of 54-9 set by Earlene Brown in 1960.

Bolding, of the Pacific Coast Club, outlasted Ralph Mann and finished the hurdles in 49.6 seconds, one of several meet records set.

Shot putter Al Feuerbach, who set a new world's record here last year won the event again Saturday with a toss of 69-8 3/4, but was three inches off his performance of the previous week.

Pearson, a greying 39-year-old three-time stock car racing champ, beat off a succession of challengers enroute to his third straight Winston 500 triumph and a check for $25,845. "It was work, hard work, every minute," he said of the 3 hours, 20 minutes and 9 seconds it required to drive the 169 laps or 450 miles, "I feel like I've been through a wringer."

The race was stopped twice by rain, for a total of an hour and 53 minutes. These stoppages, plus six yellow light periods, cut 61 laps out of the racing time. But Pearson still averaged 130.220 miles per hour, his apple red and white Mercury frequently turning laps at 188 mph.

Most of his challengers either dropped out with blown engines or other mechanical problems, leaving only Benny Parsons' Chevrolet to challenge the final 50 miles. Parsons, the 1973 Grand National champion, made a spine-tingling bid for the victory but fell about two car lengths short at the end.

Gary Bettenhausen, one of Pearson's more serious threats, was put out by a freak pit road accident that injured three of his crewmen, one seriously. Bettenhausen, a star on the Indianapolis-based U.S. Auto Club circuit, was leading the race when he made a routine pit stop during one of the yellow light slowdowns for gas and concrete pit wall, trapping crewman Donald Miller of St. Louis, Mo., against the barrier. Surgeons removed his right leg below the knee at an Anniston hospital later in the day.

Two other crewmen, Dale Watson of Arden, R.I., and John Woodard of Reading, Pa., were treated for bruises and lacerations.

Nettles Honored For 11 Homers

BOSTON (AP) — Craig Nettles of the New York Yankees, who hit 11 home runs in April for an American League record, has been named winner of the league's Star Parade Award for the month.

Nettles broke the old mark of 10 homers set by Frank Robinson in April, 1969. He equaled the major league record, set by Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell in 1971.

Fourth Fastest Mile Ever Run

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Denis Fikes of the University of Pennsylvania has recorded the fourth fastest mile ever run in a college dual track meet.

The Penn senior ran the mile in 3:58.3 Sunday as the Quakers beat Cornell by a 125-47 score. Fikes registered his first sub-four-minute mile, 3:55.0, when he finished second to North Carolina's Tony Waldrop in the Penn Relays on April 27.

The other sub-four-minute miles run in dual college meets were done last year by Oregon's Steve Prefontaine, 3:56.8, Ken Popejoy of Michigan State, 3:57.0, and Hailu Ebba of Oregon State, 3:58.1.

Financial Disclosures By Handful Of Lawmakers

By WILLIAM L. CHAZE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — About 60 of the 535 members of Congress have voluntarily made public disclosure of their tax returns or net financial worth.

Another 25 contacted in an Associated Press survey say they are preparing to make a public accounting of their finances or are considering that step.

Full public disclosure by members of Congress is not required by law.

House members must file with an ethics committee a form listing business interests, but the worth of those interests is kept confidential by the panel.

Senators must file with the comptroller general a copy of their federal income tax return and a list of finances not covered in the return. The information also is confidential.

The Senate twice has passed legislation requiring fuller disclosure. The House, however, has acted on neither bill.

Most members who have moved on their own to disclose their finances say they did so in an attempt to restore the credibility of government, especially in light of Watergate.

"Those of us who have been elected to the legislative branch can help restore credibility in government by being frank and open in all respects," says Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah. "One way to be candid is to make full disclosure of personal finances."

Moss gives an accounting every two years. His most recent statement listed $118,636 in assets, against $126,917 in liabilities.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, disclosed his net financial worth immediately upon being appointed to serve out the remainder of Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe's term. He said disclosure was important because "public confidence in the integrity of government has fallen to its lowest point."

Metzenbaum, with a reported net worth of $3.6 million, is among the wealthiest members of Congress. But some of the richest men in Congress have not disclosed. They include Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.; Sen. James Buckley, Con.-R.-N.Y.; and Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill.

Buckley says he receives about 200,000 letters each year from constituents, but has never been asked to make an accounting. He says he might at some future date.

Kennedy likewise has said he might make some form of public disclosure. But, in the past, he has refused on grounds his finances cannot be separated, for disclosure purposes, from other members of his family.

Percy says the experience of the Hearst family in California shows that disclosure of financial worth can endanger the safety of a public figure's family. Percy's daughter, Valerie, was beaten and stabbed to death at the age of 19 in 1966 by an unknown assailant.

Of those who make a policy of disclosing their net worth, a number are multimillionaires. They include Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., who lists his net worth in excess of $3 million, and Rep. Ogden Reid, D-N.Y., who lists his at more than $4.15 million.

Others are Rep. Jerry L. Pettis, R-Calif., $1.3 million; Rep. Pierre S. du Pont, R-Del., $2.5 million (in stocks); and Rep. Gilbert Gude, R-Md., with $2.3 million.

Rep. Charles W. Whalen Jr., R-Ohio, lists his worth at nearly $1 million. Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, reported his net worth at about $2 million when he was elected in 1970. He releases tax summaries each year. Many of the others who have disclosed list net worth of several hundred thousand dollars.

They include Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, D-Ill., with $668,250; Rep. Richard F. Vander Veen, D-Mich., $244,518; Rep. Guy Vander Jagt, R-Mich., $327,000, and Rep. Charles A. Mosher, R-Ohio, $235,000.

Also, Rep. John Dellenback, R-Ore., $469,200; Rep. William Lehman, D-Fla., $621,000; Rep. Bill Archer, R-Tex., $409,293; Rep. Richard T. Hanna, D-Calif., $545,244; Rep. Claire W. Burgener, R-Calif., $334,898; Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., $547,800; Sen. J. Glenn Beall, R-Md., $305,817; Sen. Walter B. Huddleston, D-Ky., $215,167, and Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., $685,963.

At least seven list net worth in excess of $100,000. They are Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., $180,831; Rep. Edward J. Biesinger Jr., R-Pa., $126,049; Rep. Wendell Wyatt, R-Ore., $118,636; Rep. John Culver, D-Iowa, $115,000; Rep. John Rousset, R-Calif., $150,000; Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, $153,141, and Sen. William Lloyd Scott, R-Va., $150,000.

Maine's two representatives — Democrat Peer Kyros and Republican William S. Cohen — list the smallest net worth of those who have disclosed.

Kyros says his is about $25,000 and Cohen lists $29,000.

"I'm worth so little my staff is embarrassed about it," said Kyros.

Oldtime Fiddler Is Taping Folksongs

By JON HALVORSEN
MIDDLE GROVE, N.Y. (AP) — Lawrence Eugene Older, 61, a journeyman mechanic who never got past the sixth grade or took a music lesson, knows hundreds of folksongs, ballads, reels and laments because he was "raised on 'em."

And because others want to hear the songs the way Larry Older learned them from his family and friends here in the southern Adirondacks, he and his fiddle have been invited to play at the Newport Folk Festival, Columbia University, the Northeast old-time Fiddlers Convention in Vermont, which he helped found, and Caffe Lena in nearby Saratoga Springs, among other places.

"A book's the worst place in the world to get a song. That's why the collectors now are beginning to listen and send their students right out into the woods, when they hear a man singing a song, you know, they get it a lot closer. You can't interpret off a piece of paper."

Older, one of 10 children, began working as a logger when he was 15 and bought a fiddle for $3 with his first week's pay.

His repertoire — "We'd better be modest and say 500, but I do 1,000 in effect" — includes many songs of English, Scotch and Irish origin, although often given a mountaineer's twist. He learned most of them from his mother, who worked all her life as a professional cook in lumber camps, from his father, often employed as a camp foreman, and from an uncle.

And there was something in the environment that encouraged people to tell stories, which eventually were put to music. "If you set in a house growing up as a kid and hear two, three old men sitting around a stove at night, telling about the deer they killed up in Devil's Kitchen or somewhere — well, before you're 12 years old, you're going to hear that deer killed a hundred times. You're going to hear the songs over and over and over."

Older and his wife, Martha, plan to retire this fall to Florida. He intends to record as many songs as he can remember on tape, which should keep both him and collectors of his brand of music busy for years.

"I can't be that specific on the national level, because I lack the background."

—Robert Morgan
candidate for U.S. Senate
Greensboro Daily News, 4/13/74

That's what Robert Morgan said when asked about his platform in the U.S. Senate race. He also said he prefers not to discuss Richard Nixon's troubles because it might sidetrack his campaign. Nick Galifianakis figures the country can't afford to be sidetracked any longer by Richard Nixon. Six years in Congress taught Nick you don't sidestep the tough decisions. And he isn't mincing words now. "The only person who stands between Richard Nixon and a fair trial," Nick said, "is Richard Nixon himself." He called for a fair and speedy trial in the U.S. Senate, so we can get this problem behind us. Nick knows a lot of things make a Senator's job tough. Being uninformed shouldn't be one of them.

Arraign Millionaire's Daughter In Big Art Theft

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — The rebel-daughter of an English millionaire was to be arraigned today for taking part in the biggest art theft in history. Bridget Rose Dugdale, 33-year-old former debutante and holder of a Ph.D. from London University, was arrested Saturday when she drove up to a country cottage near Glandore, in southwest Ireland, police said.

The police said that in the cottage they found 16 of the 19 paintings stolen April 26 by a woman and four men from the country home near Dublin of Sir Alfred Beit, and the other three paintings were in the trunk of the car. They included masterpieces by Vermeer, Hals, Rubens, Goya and Velasquez and were valued at more than $20 million.

The gang had sent the police a note saying it would destroy the paintings unless $1.2 million in ransom was paid by May 14 and unless the sisters Dolours and Marion Price were transferred to a prison in Northern Ireland. The sisters are serving life sentences in a London jail for bombings in the British capital.

Miss Dugdale is the daughter of Col. James Dugdale, chief of an insurance syndicate at Lloyds of London, and was one of the first women accepted as a member underwriter at Lloyds. She lectured on economics at London University and in the United States and worked as an economist for the British Ministry of Overseas Development and United Nations agencies.

Last year she was given a two-year suspended sentence for leading a gang that burgled her father's home of $192,000 worth of silver and art works while her mother and father were attending the Derby.

"I love you — but I hate everything you stand for," she told her father in court. She said her parents had tried to turn her into "marriage fodder" when she wanted an academic career.

"My hate of the system my parents practice and gain by is stronger than ever," she said as she walked out of the court. "I am going back to the poor."

She is wanted in England on a charge of arms smuggling and in Northern Ireland for the bombing of a border police station by a hijacked helicopter.

The Beit paintings were found because farmer Connie Hayes became suspicious when the man and woman who rented a cottage from him "kept the door locked, the windows closed and the curtains down." He mentioned his suspicions to Sgt. Pat O'Leary and Constable William Creedon in Glandore, and they called in help to stake out the cottage after learning it had been rented two days before the art robbery.

The paintings were insured for $2.4 million, and the insurance company offered a reward of $240,000 for their return and information leading to the arrest of the thieves. But the company said no reward would be paid since the paintings had been recovered by "routine police inquiries."

Provide Epileptics With Special Home

SOUTHINGTON, Conn. (AP) — "Kaboom" and "Limpy," two humans treated as outcasts by some, now share meals and live in a home for epileptics. Kaboom gets her nickname from the crash of her head on the floor whenever she has an epileptic seizure. She wears a helmet to protect her. She also receives no-nonsense counseling that one day may allow her to live a normal life.

programs. They pay what they can and must have their own physicians. The halfway home is a better answer for epileptics than the large hospital in the country where the handicapped can never work or live on their own, Coppola maintains.

When a person is an epileptic, even if only slightly affected, the label can prevent him from getting a job or living a normal life. Coppola believes that a major part of the expense in supporting unproductive persons such as the handicapped would be eliminated if society's attitudes changed.

Kaboom and Limpy live with four other young adults in The House of Hope, a halfway house operated by the Connecticut Epilepsy Assn. Executive Director Francis Coppola and his wife, both epileptics, gave up their bakery business across the street three years ago and began helping fellow epileptics. "I've done most of what I've wanted to. Now we want to find out as much as we can...and pass it on to someone who could really use it," said Coppola, whose four children also live in the two-floor building.

Coppola views epilepsy as far more complex than simply brain damage or a nervous disorder. Stress and strain can bring on an attack and too often an epileptic purposely brings on his own seizure as an escape mechanism or device for sympathy, he said. Epileptics sometimes develop emotional problems in their attempts to deal with society. Coppola allows none of his charges to feel sorry for themselves.

Upstairs the Coppolas live with four seriously handicapped epileptics who the director says are handicapped mainly "in their attitude that prevents them from living normal lives." Downstairs two other epileptics who are preparing to leave the home share a bedroom.

(Paid For By Committee To Elect Ed N. Warren)

To The Voters Of Pitt County:

As the campaign for Pitt County Sheriff draws to a close, many of the details of the past few months come to mind. I wonder if I have been able to get across to the voters those points I have been trying to make. During this campaign, I have tried to convince you that under my leadership, the Pitt County Sheriff's department would be organized into a highly trained and highly technical force with specific duties and areas assigned to specific deputies, depending on the aptitude of the deputies.

Never in the campaign have I said or insinuated that present deputies would be replaced or fired. I do have some ideas for a few changes in personnel, but I have not made this a part of the campaign. Most of the present deputies, if they wish, would be retained.

My criticism of the present situation is the lack of a comprehensive training program. We are living in a technical age, where common sense must be merged with training and "space-age know-how" to make a department that gives the people of Pitt County "value-received" for their tax dollar.

I am not critical of the fact that deputies are using county cars and county time to "politic" for their boss. This I expected to begin with, and I don't blame the deputies. Neither am I overly critical of the fact that some of my supporters have been called on by deputies. This is politics. I don't appreciate the fact that pressure has been brought on some of my supporters to switch sides, but I can still accept this.

But Pitt County needs more from the sheriff's office than it has been getting. Crime in the county has been steadily increasing. I am speaking of major crimes and apprehension and convictions for major crimes is still pitifully short of a realistic percentage. The recent murder, investigation and arrests, in the case of a prominent Pitt County businessman, has provided the Sheriff with practically a daily press forum, because of the timing of the arrests and the spacing out of the investigation. But this case, insofar as arrests are concerned, has to be the exception rather than the rule.

I want the opportunity to serve you, to show what I can do. I feel like those citizens in the county who know me, and know the importance I attach to training and criminal investigation, can testify to the fact that I am qualified to handle the job. As police chief of Ayden I have been able to bring to trial and get convictions on 75 percent of the felonies that have taken place in Ayden, from robbery, burglary, and felonious assaults, to drug abuse and drug connected crime. This has been done by use of criminal investigation processes available to any department.

(Pitt County deserves no less!)

Farm Tips

By Dr. J. W. Pou
Agricultural Specialist
Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., N.A.

North Carolina's hard-earned "hog cholera-free" status is regarded as one of the major agricultural achievements of the decade, but it is a trophy that will require careful maintenance, according to animal health experts.

"Continued vigilance is necessary," cautioned Dr. T. M. Curtin, head of the Department of Veterinary Science at North Carolina State University.

"There still could be reservoirs of the disease that could pop up at any time."

North Carolina was declared "hog cholera-free" on January 16 after going a full 12 months without a confirmed case of the disease. At that time only Texas had not acquired the "cholera-free" status, but since then parts of Mississippi and Tennessee have been quarantined because of an outbreak.

No one wants to see a similar shattering of the "cholera-free" status in North Carolina. Achieving that status cost taxpayers some $1.6 million in state indemnities and $2.2 million in federal funds.

There have been countless manhours spent inspecting hogs so that they could be moved from one farm to another or from farm to market. Much of this legwork has been done by county agricultural extension agents and vocational agricultural teachers.

Dr. Curtin emphasized that the time is still far away when hog cholera can be forgotten as a serious disease threat to North Carolina's valuable swine industry.

The virus that causes cholera very possibly still exists in any number of places.

Frozen pork from an infected animal would not pose a threat to humans, but scraps of the pork may end up in some form of hog feed and become a source of infection for any number of animals.

Certain numbers of wild hogs are known to exist, and these animals are potential sources of infection. Although imported meat is carefully inspected, the possibility always exists that infected pork could find its way into the U.S. and start a whole new epidemic.

"There is virtually no immunity in any of our hogs now," Dr. Curtin pointed out. "The nation's entire hog herd is highly vulnerable to infection, and this is why continued vigilance is a must."

Permits are still required to move hogs into North Carolina. Inspection permits are also required for in-state movement of all hogs except those going directly to slaughter.

Trio Drown As Watergate Car Left Road Books Soon

By The Associated Press

Three young people drowned when a car plunged into a pond near Warrenton, raising North Carolina's weekend traffic death toll to nine.

The number of fatalities for the year was 462 Monday compared to 589 for the same period last year.

Mary Louise Watson, 18, and Sarah Ann Simes, 21, both of Warrenton, and James Ervin Moore, 17, of Henderson, drowned early Sunday when their car left a rural road about a mile off U.S. 401 and crashed into a small pond.

Thomas Alexander Derr, 73, of Ellenboro, was killed in Charlotte Sunday night when the car in which he was riding struck a utility pole on South Boulevard.

Donald Ray Reid, 27, of Charlotte, died when his motorcycle ran off N.C. 150 and hit a sign post one-half mile west of Mooresville.

Twenty-year-old Mary Lynn Jackson of Cherokee was killed when the car in which she was riding ran off a rural road three miles south of Cherokee and struck a tree.

The Highway Patrol said William K. Lewallen, 13, of Rt. 2, Sofia, walked into the path of a car seven miles south of Archdale in Randolph County.

Sank Munday Jr., 45, of Rt. 1, Sherrills Ford, died when his car overturned three times four miles west of his Catawba County home town.

Virginia Bost Plyler, 53, of Rt. 7, Statesville, died in a two-car head-on collision on U.S. 70, a mile east of Statesville.

Pitt Lawmen Sponsor Country Music Show

The Pitt County Law Enforcement Officers Association is sponsoring a country music show starring Loretta Lynn, Ernest Tubb and Kenny Star May 31.

Two performances are scheduled—one at 7:30 and the second at 10 p.m.—and they will be held at the D. H. Conley High School auditorium.

All proceeds from the show will go toward financing the construction of a club house, pistol range and other training facilities for use by law enforcement officers in the county.

In Greenville, tickets may be purchased from members of the Greenville Police Department. In other communities, local law enforcement officer-members of the Pitt County group will have tickets, as well as members of the Pitt County Sheriff's Department.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Employees of a Nashville printing firm worked non-stop during the weekend setting type for an 898-page paperback book containing transcripts of President Nixon's Watergate conversations.

Bantam Books, Inc., Sunday flew the printing mats to Chicago where the $2.50-per-copy books will be printed. Bantam officials said copies will be on the newsstands in 30 key cities by Tuesday afternoon.

The Bantam version of the Watergate transcripts will be one of at least two such books being prepared. Dell Publishing Co. of New York is expected to have copies on the newsstands later this week.

Copies of the transcripts began arriving at T. E. Lowe Publishing Co. late Friday. Supplementary materials arrived Saturday.

Officials of the company said the typesetting job was completed at 4:30 a.m. Sunday.

In addition to the transcripts released by President Nixon in a television address Tuesday night, the Bantam book will contain a 2,500 word introduction by the New York Times White House correspondent, R. W. Apple, a 100-page chronology of Watergate events and the President's address to the nation last week.

Drive A Little . . . Enjoy A Lot

Farm Scene

By EDWIN L. YANCEY,
County Extension Chairman

The number of tobacco leaves harvested from an acre of tobacco is important. Too many may cost you just as much as too few. Management studies compared value from fields with 90,000 to 150,000 leaves per acre. They show that around 110,000 leaves per acre is the most profitable level to aim for.

Tobacco specialists at N. C. State University point out that leaf numbers higher than 110,000 per acre produce higher yields but result in higher production on costs which more than offset the value of additional yield and results in lower net price per pound. Leaf numbers below 110,000 leaves per acre are too low to utilize the growth factors present such as soil and sunlight and result in decreased yield and value.

How do you obtain the optimum of 110,000 leaves per acre? Three factors will determine leaf numbers. Row width, spacing of plants in the row and topping height can be adjusted to achieve the desired number. As an example, if rows are 42 inches apart and plants are 25 inches apart in the row, their topping at 18 leaves will result in 110,000 leaves-acre. A chart in Tobacco Information for 1974 (available at the Agricultural Extension Office) gives other row width, plant spacing and topping heights to get the same results.

Chemical Sucker Control

Top early, use a contact sucker control agent and follow with a systemic for the most profitable tobacco production. According to Dr. W.K. Collins, Extension Tobacco Specialist, after tobacco plants reach the button stage yields will be reduced by 20-25 pounds-acre per day until they are removed.

Tests conducted in three counties during 1973 (including Pitt) showed an average net increase of $98 per acre to the combination sucker control treatment. A contact agent was applied at the button stage and followed by Royal MH-30.

In a comparison study, entomologist from N.C. State University studied budworm and hornworm populations at six on-farm sucker control tests. They found consistently lower populations of insects where better sucker control was attained.

Many Are Culled But Few Chosen

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A total of 31 new series will be on the networks next fall. That's the highest number in recent history, but don't get the idea it's suddenly become easy to get a new series on TV.

It's still the same old story: Many are culled but few are chosen.

That's the dismaying — for writers — word from Larry White, the man in charge of programming for the NBC

Television network.

He estimates he gets between 500 and 600 proposals for new series each year "and I think you'll find the figures are approximately the same at every network."

Out of this proposal pile, White says, NBC culls about 120 prospects that the network considers interesting enough to warrant a financial investment.

The majority of these, he says, only get as far as the outline or script stage. About 35 actually are filmed as "pilot" shows for new series, but the attrition doesn't stop there.

At NBC, just 12 weekly prospects got the green light for the 1974-75 season. It's a higher-than-usual number, but still represents only 10 per cent of all the shows NBC had under serious consideration.

From where do new series proposals come?

"You get the bulk of them from the professionals in the business, but you also get some from out of the woodwork, so to speak," White said, referring to ideas submitted by amateur writers.

White, who couldn't recall a case in which a network made a series submitted by an amateur writer, was asked what factors determine whether a new series gets on the air.

He said network executives look for such things as: "Are the characters the kinds of characters who will have a lot of available stories? Is the concept the kind that will have staying power with varying stories? "Are the characters the kind and, on several occasions, we play the pilots on the air prior to decision time."

"In addition, there's a lot of testing that goes on. We test the shows with audiences in theaters, on cable television and, on several occasions, we play the pilots on the air prior to decision time." Minnesota's mean annual temperature is 44 degrees.

Buick Century.

The concentrated Buick. Its size is right.
And so is the price.

The car is Buick's Century Luxur—a most contemporary new breed of Buick, as you'll see.

To be sure, the things that make a Buick a Buick are there in abundance. The ride. The quiet. The rich interior environment. And that certain intangible something that describes a quality automobile.

Note, please, the formal roofline. It marks this Century as a class car. A car of substance.

But for all its substance, Century is also quite a small car. Trim of dimension. Light of foot. Easy to drive and park. Reasonable to operate.

You might say it combines the nimbleness of cars priced less with the comforts and refinements of cars priced a lot more. It's a superb Intermediate. At a price that's within reach of just about everyone.

There's still another dimension to this car that you'll like. A value-for-the-money dimension. Not just how little you pay. But how much you get.

Look at the equipment Century Luxur carries standard: Turbo Hydra-Matic Transmission.

Front disc brakes.

Power steering.

Plus a moderately-sized 2-barrel V-8 engine.

It's all included in the price shown. And that price also includes deluxe wheel covers and whitewall tires. For a relatively small car, Century is certainly a lot of car.

In all, it's one very intelligent way of dealing with these demanding times. And remaining serenely comfortable in the process.

BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS

Q. 1 — East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠K102 ♥98 ♦A7632 ♣J107

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 ♥	Double	?

What action do you take?

A.—Bid one no trump. Take this opportunity to describe a balanced hand with moderate values. This might enable partner to continue the fight should the opposition show a desire to compete.

Q. 2 — Neither vulnerable, East-West have 40, as South you hold:

♠K6 ♥A107 ♦AQ872 ♣652

Your right-hand opponent opens with one spade. What action do you take?

A.—Double. We would not normally endorse a takeout double of one spade on such meager values, since you are forcing partner to show a suit at the two-level. However, considerations of score dictate a strategic bid at this point. If you pass and West raises to two spades, you could then be faced with the decision of forcing partner to bid at the three-level, and if he is broke, that might prove expensive.

Q. 3 — North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠J10654 ♥Q10932 ♦2 ♣K5

The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
3 ♦	3 NT	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A.—Pass. Don't be a nursemaid. Partner's overall puts him strictly on his own. Had he been interested in the major suits, he could have doubled for takeout.

Q. 4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠K95 ♦AJ1092 ♣A8765

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	3 ♥	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Three no trump. You have an awkward bid to make because of your void in partner's suit, and your spade holding is by no means ideal for a no trump contract. Partner's bid is, of course, forcing, and we hesitate to suggest an 11-trick contract because of the minimum nature of the opening bid. The scientist's bid of three spades is also acceptable.

Q. 5 — East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠A5 ♥A8762 ♦AJ743 ♣4

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♦	Pass	2 ♣	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Three spades. You have good distribution and three aces. Since partner has bid his suit twice in the face of a possible misfit, your doubleton ace is good support and you should give him one more chance.

Q. 6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠K1092 ♥QJ8 ♦Q98 ♣A54

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 ♥	Pass	4 ♥	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Five clubs. Thus far, you have done little to reveal the strength of your hand. Your response of a new suit and simple preference to partner's first-bid suit could have been made with 87 points. It is time you came out of the bushes and showed your values, for your hand could easily produce a slam.

Q. 7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠KQ5 ♥10654 ♦1043 ♣KJ10

The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♦
Pass	1 NT	Pass	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Double. You are maximum for your no trump response and have reasonable prospects of winning four tricks on defense. A penalty of at least 200 is in view, and it could be substantially greater if the cards lie well for your side.

Q. 8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠83 ♥A8 ♦AJ10982 ♣KQ6

The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♦	1 ♥	Double

What do you bid now?

A.—While you certainly have the values for a free rebid, we suggest you refrain from any action and give partner the courtesy of the road. His double of the opponents at the one-level suggests shortness in your suit, and he might be able to handle the rescue bid as well.

GENERAL MANAGER

Jennings Blakely has been named general manager of WNCT-AM here, according to an announcement by Rober R. Turner, vice president-radio operations of Park Broadcasting Inc., Ithaca, N.Y., the parent company.

Blakely, who has been manager of WYGO-AM-FM in Corbin, Ky. for the past year and a half, began with the station as an announcer in 1968 and then transferred to the sales department before assuming management of the station.

Park Broadcasting, which also owns WNCT-TV-FM here, operates seven television and 11 radio stations.

ELECTED TO SOCIETY

Dr. George H. Hitchings, vice president of research, Burroughs Wellcome Co., has been elected a foreign member of the Royal Society of London and cited for his contribution to chemotherapy.

Dr. Hitchings' work on purines and pyrimidines at the Wellcome Research Laboratories, it was pointed out, has led to the discovery of new compounds for the treatment of leukemia, malaria, gout and a wide range of bacterial diseases.

Burroughs Wellcome said that election as a foreign member of the Royal Society is one of the highest distinctions attainable by a scientist.

Charles H. Horne Jr. of Greenville was elected to the board of directors of EPIC Inc. (Electric Power in Carolina) recently during the annual membership meeting in Raleigh.

The board named Simon C. Sitterson Jr. of Kinston to his third consecutive term as president.

AWARDED CERTIFICATES

Frank E. Kidd Jr. and Marshall E. Yancey, special representatives with the Greenville agency of Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Co., have been awarded Certificates of Achievement for having completed the company's Career School in Life Insurance in Greensboro.

The two local life underwriters were among 46 Jefferson Standard representatives from 14 states and the District of Columbia who were invited to attend the school because of their outstanding records with the company, it was noted.

PROMOTION ANNOUNCED

The promotion of John F. D. Sledge to industrial financing officer of Marine Midland Bank-Western in Buffalo, N.Y. was announced by Richard O. Hopkins, executive vice president.

Sledge, son of Mrs. Lucille J. Sledge and the late F. D. Sledge of Greenville, joined the bank in 1970 as a management trainee. He was named an administrative assistant in 1971 and an assistant industrial financing officer in 1972.

A graduate of Howard University, he received his master's degree in business administration from Babson College. He and his wife and two children live in Tonawanda, N.Y.

JOHN F. D. SLEDGE

INCREASES REPORTED

Thorne Gregory, president of Branch Banking and Trust Co., reported that consolidated income before securities gains and losses totaled $984,711 or 94 cents per share, compared with $680,035 or 65 cents per share earned in the first quarter of 1973.

Gregory said that net income after deducting securities losses amounted to $965,579 or 92 cents per share, up 41.1 per cent over the $648,107 or 65 cents per share earned during the same period last year.

Total resources of the bank and subsidiary were $376,926,345 compared to $316,966,205 on March 31, 1973. Deposits at the end of March totaled $323,024,800 compared to $270,523,152, a gain of 19.4 per cent over the prior year.

Texan Fervent Fuel Conserver

By ANDREW A. YEMMA
AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Quiet and unassuming, Lt. Gov. William P. Hobby makes an unlikely spokesman for the most energy-active state in the nation.

Yet during the past year Hobby has devoted more of his official time to his duties as chairman of the governor's Energy Advisory Council than anything else.

"Texas is well known as the largest energy producing state," Hobby said. "But Texas is the largest consuming state as well."

"Because our size is second only to Alaska, we use more energy in transportation. We're also a leading agricultural state, and agriculture is a large user of energy. And with our refineries we're the largest petrochemical producing state, and that takes a very large amount of energy."

Drives Small Car

As lieutenant governor, Hobby's constitutional duties prescribe that he preside over the Senate and be prepared to take over for the governor in case of illness or death. But during his first term, Hobby has maintained a low political profile, choosing to work behind the scenes on a project he believes vitally important to both his state and nation.

Though his family is one of the state's wealthiest, Hobby was driving a Volkswagen to save gasoline long before it became fashionable, and his wife, Diana, rode a bicycle daily between the State Capitol and the University of Texas during the 1973 Legislature.

"It's very ironic that the 20th Century is going to go down as the century of oil and gas," Hobby said. "All the discoveries made in this century are going to be burned up in this century."

That statement leads him to advocate new governmental regulations on the uses of the nation's cheapest fuels — gas and oil.

Must Preserve Fuels

"Natural gas is the basic feedstock for the petrochemical industry," he said. "It's a basic raw material for most of our chemical fertilizers, and the effect of the energy crisis on agriculture is something we've just begun to see."

"It's silly to use natural gas as a boiler fuel when it's so valuable as an agricultural feedstock. We have got to — through governmental policy, whether taxation or regulatory — see that gas and oil are preserved for their highest uses — transportation, agricultural and petrochemical feedstocks."

Still Hobby insists a hands-off governmental approach to the energy industry's pricing and profits policies is necessary for a healthy national economy. For that reason he opposes the Consumer Energy Act now before Congress, agrees with critics that the act may lead to nationalization of the oil and gas industry and says President Nixon "wisely" vetoed similar legislation last December.

"The real danger from legislation like that is that it would lead to the worst of both possible worlds," Hobby said. "We need more investments in the field of energy, and it's going to take the investment of mass amounts of capital funds."

Favors Coal

"The Chase Manhattan Bank put out a figure just recently that was so immense that it staggered the imagination — it was in the hundreds of billions of dollars.

"But where does the investment money come from? Investment is made 'immense' — it was in the hundreds of billions of dollars and still not attract the investments necessary to solve the problems."

Hobby predicts that the 1975 Legislature, with recommendations from his Energy Council, will handle its energy legislation in a routine manner. He doesn't anticipate the need for an emergency session as was contemplated at the height of the energy crisis last December. Until the lawmakers return to the Capitol, Hobby says he will be advocating more efficient uses of the state's oil and gas reserves — like turning to coal, for instance, to fire the boilers of electrical generators.

"You can generate electricity on lignite but it's darn difficult to run a car or a tractor on coal," he said.

Extra care in engineering...it makes a big difference in small cars.

There are good little cars and there are great little cars.

Good Little Cars

Good little cars are priced low like Volkswagen.

Good little cars can get good gas mileage like Nova, Maverick and Mustang II.

Good little cars can seat four or maybe five people like Vega, Pinto and Maverick.

Good little cars offer locked-in, out-of-sight trunk space like Pinto.

Good little cars offer conventional ignition.

Good little cars require points and condenser replacement. And, they require spark plug changes at 6,000 miles. These changes are recommended by the manufacturers and could cost you as much as $81 every 24,000 miles.

Great Little Cars

Great little cars are priced less than Volkswagen. Dodge Dart Sport and Plymouth Duster are actually priced below VW's most popular model*.

Great little cars like Plymouth Duster and Dodge Dart Sport with their Slant Six engines, proved in certified tests conducted by the United States Auto Club that they can get much better gas mileage in city and highway driving than Nova or Maverick. And in the same USAC test, they even got better mileage in city traffic than a 4-cylinder Mustang II.

Great little cars like Plymouth Valiant and Duster, and Dodge Dart seat five or six people, and have more hiproom than Nova, Hornet, Maverick, Vega and Pinto.

Great little cars like Dodge Dart Sport and Plymouth Duster offer more than three times the trunk space of Pinto, all under lock and key and out of sight.

Great little cars like Dodge Dart and Plymouth Valiant and Duster offer Electronic Ignition standard. An exclusive standard feature on small cars from Chrysler Corporation.

Great little cars like Plymouth Valiant and Duster and Dodge Dart have no points or condenser to replace, and spark plugs can last up to 18,000 miles under normal driving conditions. A savings to you of up to $62 over competitive 6-cylinder cars like Nova and Ventura in the first 24,000 miles alone.†

Checking All Rumors

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — FBI investigators say there have been no new developments in the Patricia Hearst kidnaping, even though reports came in from across the country from citizens who thought they have seen the newspaper heiress.

"Of course, we check out all such reports," FBI Special Agent Charles Bates said Sunday. "We get quite a few of them every day."

Meanwhile, agents continued to pore over evidence collected from an apartment that had been occupied by the Symbionese Liberation Army, which claims it kidnaped the 20-year-old coed three months ago.

The evidence included clothing, acid stained papers and other important evidence, the FBI said.

At the Hearst residence in suburban Hillsborough, Miss Hearst's parents, Randolph and Catherine Hearst, spent a quiet weekend at home.

Their hopes for Patricia's return were dealt another blow at midnight Friday when an offer for $4 million in food for the needy in exchange for Miss Hearst's release expired.

A statewide alert was issued in North Carolina for a red car in which a woman reported seeing three black men and a woman resembling Miss Hearst.

Police said the woman's account was the only indication they had that Miss Hearst may be in the state. The woman told police she saw the car traveling north from Charlotte on Saturday.
