40,000 Free Tomato Plants

TAVARES, Fla. (AP) — Charles O'Neill fertilized his lawn with three tons of sludge, expecting it to produce lush green grass. Instead, he ended up with 40,000 tomato plants.

"Ripe or green, I like them," said the 63-year-old O'Neill, a cabinet maker. "But I'm not a nut over them...and I'm sure I won't be after this is over."

O'Neill said that when he started hauling the sludge in, a sewage plant official told him he would probably later find a few tomato plants growing in his lawn.

"Naturally, we thought we'd have some here and there, but certainly not this many," O'Neill added. "We've even got four or five watermelon and pumpkin vines in with them."

Three different kinds of tomatoes surround the couple's white, two-bedroom home in Tavares, located in the heart of Central Florida's lake country.

"We've got cherry tomatoes, the regular ones and one kind I'm not sure of," said Mrs. O'Neill.

The plants, laden with tomatoes, are about two feet high and will be ready for harvest in two weeks.

Asked how the sludge produced tomato plants, O'Neill explains: "Well, I don't quite know how you say it politely, but they came from people. Tomato seeds aren't digested. They just pass through."

$3,600 Per Hour For Streaker

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Dave Eldridge put an ad in the paper for someone to do what lots of people have been doing free, and he found lots of people would like a job as a streaker.

It all started when advertising man Eldridge decided a fleeting nude would be a lively finishing touch for a dinner to honor his father's 50 years in advertising.

Naturally, he advertised: "STREAKER WANTED — MF; 15 seconds at business anniversary party. Genteel audience. Call 396-8189, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. An Equal Opportunity Employer."

The result was some 60 applicants for the job, which pays $15 for 15 seconds — or about $3,600 an hour. Eldridge said he's been called by a 52-year-old woman who's "very interested," a college student who said he might as well get paid for streaking and an employment agency that promised to send over several applicants.

He will conduct interviews next week with the applicants fully clothed, Eldridge said. He noted that two-thirds of the callers were females.

Over 500 Balloons Airborne

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 500 weather balloons were being sent aloft across much of the nation this weekend to help the space agency check the effectiveness of satellites.

The balloons are being released at three-hour intervals from 8 a.m. EDT today to 8 a.m. EDT Sunday from points in virtually every state east of the Rocky Mountains.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Friday the purpose is to provide "ground truth" data and comparing it with information provided by four weather satellites. The data will be analyzed at NASA's Marshall Center in Huntsville, Ala.

Portugese Round-Up

LISBON (UPI) — The army has rounded up more than 1,200 strongarm men of the old regime and is hunting down the interior minister who led the hated secret police for 13 years, a spokesman for the ruling military junta said Saturday.

More than 900 ex-agents of the secret police have been jailed as well as 300 members of the paramilitary Portuguese Legion, the old bodyguard of the late dictator Antonio de Oliveira Salazar, the spokesman said.

The army has arrested and sent to barren Sal Island in Cape Verde the former head of the lone political party, Elmano Alves, spokesman Maj. Jose Osorio said.

Troops were searching for Antonio Goncalves Rapazote, interior minister under former Premier Salazar and Marcelo Caetano from 1960 to 1973, he said.

Rapazote was responsible for the now banned secret security police, who supported the old right-wing regime with terror and imprisonment.

Even after the government had fallen to the military on April 25, they fought with machine guns from their headquarters down a narrow side street in Lisbon's fashionable Chiado area.

Meanwhile, Enrique Tierno Galvan, the unofficial leader of the outlawed Spanish Socialist Democrat party, flew from Madrid to Lisbon Saturday to confer with Portuguese Socialist leader Mario Soares.

'We Never Give Up,' Nixon Declares

By RICHARD LERNER STILLWATER, Okla. (UPI) — President Nixon flew to this college town Saturday night amid mounting demands for his resignation and told a friendly crowd greeting his arrival, "We never give up."

A crowd of perhaps 9,000 greeted Nixon at nearby Vance Air Force Base where the presidential party switched to helicopters to fly to Oklahoma State University.

"To go by and have people say, 'Hang in there, we are with you.' Believe me that does your heart good," the President told the air base crowd. "I have the old Okie spirit — I got it deep down inside — we never give up."

Nixon was accompanied on the flight by four members of the Oklahoma congressional delegation, three Republicans and one Democrat. The state's four other congressmen declined his invitation to accompany him.

After a 25 minute helicopter ride, the presidential party arrived at a practice field adjacent to Lewis Stadium where graduating exercises were held for OSU. One in the crowd brandished a sign saying, "Pope and Kennedy are

It was Nixon's first venture onto a college campus in six months and came at the close of a week that saw some key GOP members of Congress recommend his resignation and the initial presentation of evidence to the House Judiciary Committee conducting an impeachment inquiry.

The President, accompanied by Mrs. Nixon and some advisers, looked for a warm welcome during his few hours in Oklahoma. He carried the state easily in all three of his presidential campaigns and the school's emphasis on agricultural study gives it a relatively conservative reputation.

As a precaution, however, university officials imposed a ban on demonstrations and protest signs inside the stadium.

Leaders of some dissident student groups announced plans to stage a "non-disruptive" demonstration during Nixon's visit and predicted it would draw as many as 3,000 participants including some from Norman, Lawton and other surrounding Oklahoma cities.

Hijackers Subdued After Tour

By ALEJANDRO MOYA BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — Police aided by a pilot with a karate chop Saturday subdued hijackers who had taken an Avianca airlines Boeing 727 with 94 other people aboard on an aerial tour of Colombia with demands for a ransom and safe passage, police said.

The passengers and crew were unharmed except that several passengers suffered minor injuries in the stampede to get off police said.

The hijacking ended 1½ hours after it began. Police said three hijackers were involved. One of them was shot during the scuffle when they were arrested, police said.

The condition of the hijacker who was shot was not immediately known.

One eyewitness said that one of the pilots, who happened to be a karate expert, overcame one of the hijackers.

The jet was parked hundreds of yards from the terminal building of Bogota's Eldorado international airport. It had just been refueled and the hijackers had demanded a fresh crew to fly to a final unspecified destination.

The hijackers seized the plane enroute from Pereira to Bogota on Friday and forced the crew to fly on to Bogota and thence to Cali, Pereira and back to Bogota, where their hijacking ended.

The hijackers first set a deadline of 1 p.m. (2 p.m. EDT) but later extended it by an hour. As the second deadline passed, the hijackers said they wanted a fresh crew. The airline indicated a new crew would be provided.

The government told the hijackers through the control tower that it would not pay a cent and called on them to surrender to police. The government promised they won't be shot on sight if they give up peacefully.

Meanwhile, the plane sat on the runway and had a new tire installed while other aircraft were taking off and landing all around.

Syrians Open Fire On Israeli Sites

By United Press International Syrian gunners opened fire on two Israeli civilian settlements Saturday and Israeli gun crews fired back, the Israeli military command said, rounding out two months of daily combat along the Golan Heights front.

plomacy on Sunday by flying to Damascus, the Syrian capital.

In Damascus, Al Thawra (The Revolution), a state-controlled newspaper, said the Arabs should start preparing for the post-disengagement stage of the conflict. Though the editorial was aggressive in tone and heavily hedged with ifs, ands and buts, it was the most optimistic pronouncement to come out of Syria since Kissinger began his trip.

Day-by-day fighting resumed along the Heights March 12 after months of off-and-on exchanges of fire since the October war.

As battle resumed Saturday for the 61st consecutive day, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger dispatched his two chief aides to the Golan region for a six-hour inspection trip around the key city of Quneitra.

Diplomatic sources said the Al Thawra editorial reflected signs of optimism that Kissinger may succeed in his disengagement mission.

Undersecretary of State Joseph J. Sisco and Harold M. Saunders, senior member of the National Security Council, made the helicopter trip with the Israeli chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Mordechai Gur. The trip gave apparent credence to reports that Israel is willing to give up Quneitra.

A Syrian military communique said fighting on Mount Hermon continued through Friday night and spread Saturday to other sectors of the Golan Heights front.

The Israeli military command said Syrian artillery crews fired on Ramat Magshimim and the surrounding southern Golan Heights but caused no casualties or damage. Fire was returned, the command said.

Kissinger is scheduled to begin the third week of his latest mission in shuttle di-

Strike Mentioned As Possibility

Carolina Telephone Employees Negotiating A New Contract

By CARLL TYER Reflector Staff Writer

Carolina Telephone Co. was facing a possible strike by members of the Communications Workers of America Union last night as negotiations on a new contract were headed for the old contract expiration date at midnight.

The union (CWA) represents operators, installer repairmen, construction and equipment maintenance employees and some clerical staff personnel, in all of eastern North Carolina served by Carolina Telephone.

In Greenville, the union represents approximately 150 to 160 employees. About 25 employees staged and "informative pickett" of the local telephone office to "inform the public of our situation," according to a union spokesman.

Union and company negotiations were being held in Rocky Mount Saturday at the Carleton Motel. As of 9 p.m. last night no contract settlement or old contract extension had been agreed upon.

A spokesman for Carolina Telephone, Don Collier of Greenville, said Saturday night "we feel that the company is vigorously pursuing efforts to maintain good employee-employer relations which are vital to the provisions of good telephone service."

CWA has never struck with Carolina Telephone since the union started representing some employees in 1969.

A union spokesman, Linda Carroll, stated in Greenville Saturday that the company was offering wage increases which did not include cost of living increases.

Collier indicated the company had offered a new three year contract to the union representatives Friday which would cost the company $6.5 million for the three year duration.

"The three year contract offered would provide for some 29 per cent increases in basic payroll cost for the employees affected," according to Collier.

"The first year provisions of this offer would amount to over 11 per cent in wages and other items including increases in overtime pay, premium pay, and vacations as well as covering all hospitalization insurance for the employees and improvement in pensions," Collier added.

"We're not asking for anything revolutionary," said Don Holder, a union spokesman in Rocky Mount, "just increases in wages and better fringe benefits." "The new contract might be for three years or one," he added.

ECU Authorized To Plan 2nd Year Med. Training

BOONE, N. C. (AP)—The University of North Carolina Board of Governors has authorized East Carolina University to start planning for a second year in its medical training program.

Acting on legislative direction to expand the program, the governors authorized UNC President William Friday to assign the school's chancellor, Leo Jenkins, the task of planning.

In a unanimously adopted resolution, the governors said such planning should look "toward accreditation of the two-year program at East Carolina University with appropriate transfer arrangements to the School of Medicine at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill."

In other action Friday, the governors heard a progress report on efforts to meet a June 1 deadline for revised plans to eliminate racial identification at state supported universities.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare notified the university system last month that its plans were not acceptable. The department recommended changes in the areas of program planning, hiring practices and the timetable for implementing the changes.

John Sanders, UNC vice president for planning, said the system "will go as far as it can to meet the HEW requirements."

The governors also received a report naming Dr. Mary Elizabeth Keister of UNC-Greensboro as the 1974 winner of the O. Max Gardner Award. The award is presented annually to a faculty member of the state university system who, during the scholastic year, "made the greatest contribution to the welfare of the human race."

Dr. Keister, now a member of the UNC-G economics faculty, won the award for her research while serving as director of a demonstration nursery center at the university.

Her research showed that under carefully controlled conditions, group care of infants and toddlers was potentially as successful as home care by mothers. The findings contradicted those of a 1951 report by the World Health Organization.

WALKING—Jim Speer, left, Stuart Long and Malechi Evans, were three of 110 walkers who left Ficklen Stadium Saturday morning on a 25 mile Walk For Development, to raise money for needy causes. Speer, a local VISTA worker, ran the 25 mile distance. According to a spokesman for the program, approximately $2,000 to $2,500 will be raised by the walk. The money will go to the local Boy's Club and two other organizations, while 42.5 per cent of it will go to a refugee program in Vietnam. Greenville's was one of many similar walks taking place over the country today. (Reflector photo by Carl Tyer)

New Church In Memory Of Murdered Family

DONALSONVILLE, Ga. (AP)—A century-old Baptist church, attended by generations of the pioneer Alday family, is being replaced by a new one in memory of six slain members of the clan.

It will be a year May 14 since Ned Alday, 62, his brother and three husky sons were executed one by one in Jerry's mobile home as they returned from their southwest Georgia peanut fields.

Waiting inside the trailer were merciless killers with automatic rifles.

Mary Alday, Jerry's pretty 26-year-old wife, was raped repeatedly, then taken to nearby woods and shot to death in the back.

All are buried side by side under black marble near the tiny, 101-year-old white frame Spring Creek Baptist Church which was the center of their lives.

Ned, his brother, Aubrey, 57, and sons Jerry, 35, Chester, 32 and Jimmy 25, were all officers in the church—superintendent, treasurer, song leaders and Sunday school teachers.

Townpeople in this small farming community where the Aldays settled more than 100 years ago, are working hard to raise the money to replace their old church with a new sanctuary.

Lieutenant Saves Sgt.

FT. BRAGG, N. C. (AP)—A Kentucky National Guardsman was reported in good condition Saturday after riding to safety with another paratrooper when his own chute failed to open.

M. Sgt. Marion Priestley of Lexington, Ky., suffered a broken ankle and bruises in the accident Friday.

Priestley, who was on a training exercise, fell through the open center hole of a parachute carrying Lt. Jerry Rust of Huntington, W. Va. Rust grabbed Priestley's collapsed parachute and held it until both had reached the ground.

Rust was not injured.

Girl Wins Pitt Tech Speech Contest

Miss Katherine Williams of Greenville has won Pitt Technical Institute's fifth annual speech contest.

Enrolled in the secretarial program at PTI, Miss Williams presented "My Dummy" as her entry in the event. She explained how to become a ventriloquist and gave a demonstration of such skills with her dummy, Danny O'Day.

Other winners were Rufus Huggins of Greenville and Danny Woolard of Washington first and second runners-up in the contest, respectively.

Participants included Chris Dudley, Herbert Bullock, Gerry Sutton, Keith White, Danny Thomas, Joan Barnhill, Paul Vandi, Ray Moore and Terry Carmichael.

A highlight of the contest program was the performance of Lois Williams, last year's winner of the contest. She gave her winning presentation from last year.

Jack West, PTI police science student, served as master of ceremonies. Coordinators of the program were Lee Huffman, a representative of the Student Government Association and Mrs. Jean Brown, English instructor.

Man Drowns In River

GRIMESLAND—Members of the Greenville Rescue Squad Saturday morning recovered the body of a 30-year-old man from the waters of the Tar River near here some 11 hours after he attempted to swim across the water and went under.

Pitt County Coroner and Medical Examiner E. W. Harvey identified the man as William Robert Terterton of Grimesland.

Investigators said John Samuel Bell, 30, of Creswell, and Terterton were together about 11 p.m. Friday when the two decided to swim from the South bank of the river to Seine Beach on the North side of the river.

Bell safely completed the swim and was standing on a pier watching Bell as he swam over half-way across, then went under.

Members of the Greenville rescue unit searched the waters of the dark river for an hour Friday night, then returned at 8:30 a.m. Saturday to resume the hunt for Terterton.

Accident Investigated

Greenville Police investigated one auto accident in the city Friday resulting in extensive damage to two autos.

Police estimated damage at $2,000 to an auto operated by Edmon Robbins Jr. of 3700 Ninth St. S.E., Washington, D.C., after his auto was struck by a vehicle operated by Preston Harper of 1118 Colon Ave.

Damage was estimated at $875 to the Harper auto. Harper was charged with failure to see his movement could be made in safety.

Charged In Hit And Run

A 19-year-old Greenville youth was arrested on the East Carolina University Campus Friday night after the auto he was allegedly operating struck a girl on the sidewalk in front of the Pitt Theater on Evan's Street.

According to city police records, John R. Stanfield of 2316 Deal Place was charged with driving under the influence, careless and reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident involving personal injury after the auto he was operating was found on the ECU campus by a campus policeman.

Also charged in the accident was Charles Ray Harris Jr. of 106 Vernon St., who was riding with Stanfield at the time of the accident. Harris was charged with aiding and abetting in a hit and run.

Stanfield was placed in the Pitt County Jail under a $1,300 bond, while Harris' bond was set at $300.

Allegedly struck by the Stanfield car was Carolyn Markham O'Neal, 20, address not given.

Israel Reveals Golan Heights Disengagement Plan

By WILBUR G. LANDREY
UPI Foreign Editor
JERUSALEM (UPI) — The Israeli cabinet gave Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger its "complete" proposals Saturday night for a military disengagement with Syria on the war-ravaged Golan Heights.

Kissinger received the plans in a two-hour meeting with Israeli ministers after sending his two top aides to inspect the Golan Heights city of Quneitra and its neighboring hills, the key to agreement on a cease-fire line.

"I now have the full range of Israeli considerations. I will take them to Damascus tomorrow and report back tomorrow evening to the Israeli cabinet," Kissinger told reporters after the meeting. Prime Minister Golda Meir was absent because of an illness.

Kissinger said that both sides were beginning to move "toward a serious examination of each other's positions" but that there were still very tough hurdles to be cleared before agreement is reached.

Israeli Information Minister Shimon Peres, in answer to a question, told reporters that Kissinger now had the "complete Israeli position."

Peres added: "The Israeli proposals were the fullest given until now in a compromise on every possible aspect of an agreement."

Peres said the Israelis considered the Syrian position tough but that Damascus appeared "ready to reach an agreement along the lines of the earlier agreement between Egypt and Israel."

He said that when Kissinger presents the latest Israeli positions to Syrian President Hafez Assad, it will be "a very important day for the future of the negotiations."

Undersecretary of State Joseph J. Sisco and Harold M. Saunders, senior member of the National Security Council, flew by helicopter to the heights with Israel's chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Mordechai Gur. Once there, they traveled by car.

State Department spokesman Robert Anderson said they were gone six hours, including travel time, and spent four hours in Quneitra and its environs.

Quneitra, once the Syrian administrative capital for the Golan Heights region, lies about a mile inside the point of the farthest Israeli advance in the 1967 war. Now a ghost town, it lies at the heart of Kissinger's efforts to get an agreement on the cease-fire line. A high official with his party has said that once the truce line is agreed on, the other issues will fall into place.

The visit appeared to lend credence to reports that Israel is willing to give up Quneitra.

For weeks, sources and newspapers in both Israel and Egypt have reported Israel might be willing to give up Quneitra itself as part of a settlement, but would insist on retaining three strategic hills west and north of the town — Tel Hermonit, Tel Bentel and Tel Avital. They protect three Israeli settlements.

Fresh artillery exchanges were reported between Syrian and Israeli forces Saturday as the fighting on the Golan Heights went on for the 61st day. Israel charged that Syrian gunners shelled two Israeli civilian settlements on the northern frontier.

Israel, however, expressed increased optimism Saturday that Kissinger can bring about a military disengagement agreement in the Golan Heights but said the next move is up to Syria.

Kissinger completed the second week of his mission by taking most of the day off before a scheduled meeting with Prime Minister Golda Meir and her ministers on the eve of his next shuttle to Damascus Sunday. He spent the morning in his suite at the King David Hotel.

N.C. Ports Shut Down

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP)—A strike has shut down North Carolina's two ports of Morehead City and Wilmington.

Dock and warehouse workers struck Friday for a contract and higher pay, and longshoremen refused to cross their picket lines.

The strikers are state employees, and are members of the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA). They are asking a wage increase of 12½ per cent. The State Ports Authority has offered 7½ per cent, the same other state employees are getting.

Contract negotiations began several months ago in compliance with a federal-court order requiring the state to bargain with the union. They bogged down last Wednesday, and no date for resumption has been set.

Belk Brothers Clash

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Henry Belk, 57, a son of the late founder of the Belk Department stores, says his brother, Irwin Belk, 52, hit him on the head and body and took from him the manuscript of a book on which he has been working for years.

Henry filed suit Friday against Irwin for $50,000 damages and the return of the manuscript.

Henry said another brother, John M. Belk, mayor of Charlotte, was a witness to the alleged attack March 5 in the Belk Stores buying offices in Charlotte, and would be called to testify.

Superior Court Judge ordered that Irwin Belk bring the manuscript to a hearing on May 23.

Boys Set Leapfrog Record

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Twelve boys with a talent for jumping claimed the world's record for leapfrogging Saturday after making their way around and around a parking lot for 51 miles.

They broke the old mark of 50 miles, according to the Guinness World Book of Records, at 8:03 a.m. but that wasn't enough. The boys planned to keep going until 6 p.m. with six leapers jumping while the other six rested.

The boys - one seventh grader and 11 eighth graders from Turrentine Middle School-staged their leap off at 6 p.m. Friday.

Sandburg Home Historic Site

FLAT ROCK, N.C. (AP)—The restored Civil War home and goat farm in which poet Carl Sandburg spent the last 22 years of his life was opened to the public today as a national historic site.

The estate, called Connemara, is outside Flat Rock near Hendersonville in the western North Carolina mountains.

Sandburg died in the house on July 22, 1967, at the age of 89.

Seeks Second Rate Hike

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Duke Power Co., which has requests for a rate increase of 17 per cent pending before utilities commissions in North Carolina and South Carolina, announced Friday it will seek another "of the same magnitude."

It cited inflation and costly new generating plants.

President Carl Horn said the new request—the exact amount still being figured—would be filed this summer.

He said Duke will base its request on a new North Carolina law that permits the use of future or projected economic conditions, an option the state's utilities persuaded the legislature to pass. He acknowledged this will mean that the proposed increase will be higher than it would have been under the "test year" computation, the current method of figuring.

Public hearings on the 17 per cent increase are to begin in Raleigh May 28 and in Columbia in July.

Duke already is collecting the 17 per cent, in addition to an automatic pass-through that reflects increases in the cost of coal. Any part of the 17 per cent disallowed will be returned to customers with interest.

Singing Locusts By The Millions

OLD FORT, N.C. (UPI) — Millions of singing locusts have moved in on the nearby community of Cane Creek, setting their strident voices to an unnerving song that residents fear may last all summer long.

"You wouldn't believe it unless you saw it," said Mrs. George Grindstaff, a retired schoolteacher who lives with her husband on a five-acre plot in the Cane Creek community east of here.

"They're just all over everything. It's just unbelievable."

Mrs. Grindstaff said Saturday the locusts, millions of them, rose from the ground about two weeks ago and have now attached themselves to nearly everything above ground in about a 100-acre area.

"They're hanging from the eaves of the house, all over the trees, everywhere," she said. "They're ruining our shrubberies and trees. You just hate to be outside."

Mrs. Grindstaff said the locusts have started to sing and fly around. "The noise is just awful and the air is just full of them." J. H. Barnes, assistant police chief of Old Fort, said "It's a regular din up there. You can't hear nothing for them hollering."

Mrs. Grindstaff, who has lived on her property for over 30 years, remembers locusts from time to time but never as thick as this year.

"We have a few of them each year and we've had them a lot in the past," she said, "but nothing like this year."

The pests, according to her, cause extensive damage to shrubs and trees.

"We have a few right nice apple trees and I'm afraid they are going to be ruined. But I don't know what we can do."

"I don't think there is anything you can do with them unless with an airplane or something. I guess they'll be here all summer."

Would Bar Nixon From Bargaining

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Ogden Reid, D-N. Y., said Saturday he will introduce legislation next week barring President Nixon from plea bargaining to escape possible prosecution in exchange for his resignation.

Two Children Die In Fire

LENOIR, N.C. (UPI) — Two children perished in a mobile home fire near here Friday night but another child was saved by her mother.

Authorities said the victims were Shannon Powell, 4, and her sister, Kim, 2, daughters of Mrs. Debbie Powell, who managed to escape with an infant daughter.

Mrs. Powell said she was asleep and was awakened by the flames. She grabbed her infant daughter and ran out but was driven back by flames when she tried to reach the rear of the mobile home.

Authorities said they learned that Mrs. Powell's husband, Dennis Powell, recently escaped from the Caldwell County prison unit and was still at large.

The state Bureau of Investigation said it wanted Powell for questioning about the blaze.

Submarine Crew Survives Quake

TOKYO (AP) — A Japanese submarine with a crew of 80 weathered the shocks of a jolting earthquake that struck southern Izu peninsula and claimed 30 lives Thursday, the submarine's skipper reported.

Earthquake experts said it was extraordinary for a submarine to encounter an earthquake below the surface and survive.

Cmdr. Bunsei Okamura said in a report to the military today, "The force of the earth's energy was frightening. The tremor came with a sudden roar and shook us for about 30

Six Dead, 36 Injured In Bus Crash

CHARLESTON, Mo. (UPI) — A Greyhound bus smashed into a disabled truck trailer near a highway detour Saturday and was "ripped open like a tin can."

Six persons were killed and state police said at least 36 others were injured.

Robert Ritchey, Charleston police chief, said the detour signs on U.S. 60-62 in connection with construction of an Interstate 57 overpass had been posted Wednesday and the driver of the bus may not have been advised of the change in the road.

Ritchey, one of the first policemen on the scene after the bus crashed into a disabled truck trailer on the side of the road at 4:15 a.m., said the impact "ripped the right side of the bus completely out."

"No passengers were thrown from the bus," he said. "Everything was inside the bus. It was ripped open like a tin can."

Names of those killed in the crash had not been released more than eight hours after the accident, pending notification of next of kin.

The bus left Effingham, Ill., just after midnight Friday and was headed for Memphis. Ritchey said the roads were dry when the crash occurred and that the bus went off the right side of the road as it was heading around a curve to the left.

An accident little more than an hour earlier had left a tractor-trailer rig disabled to the side of the road. Ritchey said the tractor was gone by the time the bus reached the scene but the trailer was lying on its side about nine feet off the edge of the roadway.

Proposed Law Allows Slaughter Of Dolphins

By ERIC SHARP
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI (AP) — State officials say a proposed change in the federal law will allow commercial fishermen who buy a $5 permit to slaughter dolphins along Florida's coast.

The change was actually proposed under a law designed to protect dolphins from drowning when trapped in tuna fishermen's nets.

"If this change is allowed it will wreak havoc with our efforts to protect porpoises," says Maj. Joe Brown, chief enforcement officer for the Florida Marine Patrol.

Adopted in 1972, the Marine Mammal Protection Act gave fishermen two years to switch to gear that would let trapped dolphins escape. A federal spokesman said Friday that with two years up in October, a change is needed to keep fishermen from being held liable for the occasional dolphin killed even with the new nets.

The proposed change would let a fisherman kill a porpoise that endangered his gear, catch or life after he first tried to frighten the animal away.

But Cliff Willis, fisheries director for the Florida Department of Natural Resources, maintained it would encourage fishermen to kill dolphins, which have little commercial value themselves but eat some commercially valuable fish.

"If it only covered occasional dolphin trapped in a net, it would be okay," Willis said.

"But it lets the fishermen decide when to kill porpoises."

The U.S. Department of Commerce has set a hearing on the proposed change May 16 in Seattle, Wash., also a fishing fleet area.

N.C. Democrats Adopt New Party Plan

By ELIOT BRENNER
RALEIGH (UPI) — North Carolina Democrats Saturday adopted a new plan of party organization eliminating existing quota requirements at the precinct level but retaining them at the county and state levels.

The plan, argued for almost five hours in a motel ballroom here, also drops the existing provisions of a quota system for delegates to national Democratic conventions.

Liberals among the 288-member state party executive committee complained the new plan, which takes effect immediately, was a "retreat" from previous party commitments to minorities. Conservative and moderates however were pleased with the compromise document.

The new plan, replacing one adopted in 1970, drops race and sex restrictions on precinct party conventions.

However, in a compromise move over strict guidelines, delegates agreed precinct committees "should bear a reasonable relationship to the makeup of the active Democrats. . . as to sex, age, ethnic background. . ."

Moderate party members on a 136-76 vote, failed to attain the two-thirds majority needed to adopt a portion of the new plan dropping quota guidelines for county committee makeup.

Attempts to consider the document on a part by part basis were rejected, and delegates on a resounding voice vote, decided to consider it as a whole.

Italians Vote On Divorce Law Today

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer
ROME (AP) — Weeks of public debate over divorce ended today as Italians prepared to vote today to decide the fate of the nation's divorce law.

An estimated 37.5 million Italians are eligible to vote on whether the country's three-year-old law permitting divorce should remain on the books.

Campaigning was barred after midnight and newspapers played down the referendum. It was a different story on Friday.

Thousands turned out for a rally in Rome's Piazza del Popolo which brought together representatives of five major political parties, including the Communists, who fought to repeal the law.

In Milan, dozens of youths tried to shout down Amintore Fanfani, secretary of the dominant Christian Democratic party, which alone among the government parties was committed to the repeal.

The Vatican's weekly newspaper, L'Osservatore della Domenica, kept up the church's attack against dissolution of marriages. An article blasted what it called the biased coverage of the campaign by Italian newspapers and accused them of distorting the motives of those who are against divorce.

Police in Bitonto, a village near Bari in southern Italy, reported that one person was injured in a fistfight between Communists and members of the neo-Fascist Italian Social Movement who tried to tear down each other's campaign posters. The Social Movement party wants the divorce law repealed.

Parliament approved the divorce law in December, 1970, but anti-divorce groups collected more than a million signatures to force the referendum.

Elmhurst Garage Sale

Floyd Mattheis, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the Elmhurst Elementary School PTA, announces that a garage sale for the benefit of the PTA is to be held on Saturday, May 17.

The event will take place from 10:00 a.m. until 1:00 p.m. in the school's auditorium area.

Mattheis is asking interested persons from the community to donate items for the sale, including baked goods. Any contributions will be accepted after 1:00 p.m. on Friday and from 7:30 to 9:30 a.m. on Saturday.

Gay Student Group Bids For Breakfast With N.H. Governor

DURHAM, N.H. (AP) — The Gay Students Organization at the University of New Hampshire wants to have breakfast at the mansion of Gov. Meldrim Thomson, who would like to ban the homosexual group from campus.

The GSO is raising money to bid on a breakfast at the Bridges House in Concord, the governor's official residence, in a fund-raising auction for WENH-TV, the state's public television outlet.

Gail Thomson, the governor's wife, has offered the top bidder a pancake breakfast for eight. Partaking of Mrs. Thomson's pancakes, served with maple syrup from the governor's farm, is considered a social triumph in New Hampshire.

"Rumor has it that the governor has put up $400 for one of his friends on campus to outbid us," said Louis Kelly, the homosexual group's secretary-treasurer. "I know we've got enough money to top that bid, and we will collect all week-end."

Kelly said financial support has been promised by several homosexual groups. But he said he did not have high hopes for gay students sitting down to breakfast at the mansion.

"I think if the GSO outbids everybody on it, the breakfast will be cancelled," he said.

The GSO is involved in a court fight with UNH trustees and Thomson, a conservative Republican who wants the group banned from campus.

The governor also has threatened to cut off state funds to the university if it continues to recognize the homosexual group as a bona fide student organization.

Historical Soc. To Meet

The final meeting of the season of the Pitt County Historical Society will feature an address by Dr. Charles Price, professor of history at East Carolina University.

A "Dutch" dinner meeting will be held Thursday, May 16 at 7 p.m. in the Ramada Inn, according to Donald R. Lennon, Society president.

Dr. Price will speak on "Pitt County During Reconstruction."

A business session will include election of officers and board of director members for the coming year.

Public Works Week Proclaimed By Mayor

Greenville Mayor S. Eugene West has proclaimed the week of May 19-25 as National Public Works Week.

West asserted that "public works services provided in our community are an integral part of our citizens' everyday lives" and he pointed out that the "support of an understanding and informed citizenry is vital to the planning and construction of public works programs and systems such as water, sewer, streets, highways, and other types of facilities."

The mayor contended that the "quality, efficiency, and effectiveness of these facilities as well as the planning, design, and construction of further facilities, is vitally dependent upon our public works engineers, administrators, and technicians."

In proclaiming the week, West urged "all citizens and civic organizations to acquaint themselves with the problems involved in providing public works facilities and services" and to "recognize the important role in our safety, health, and well-being that is played by the public works officials in our community."

Not Felt At The State Level

Tuesday's primary elections in North Carolina turned up no major surprises, or unusual shifts in voting habits of the voters.

There had been some thought that the revelations of Watergate might affect the voting habits of U. S. citizens. Of course, the primary elections didn't pit Republicans against Democrats, so there was no measurement there of the relative strength of the two parties.

The Tuesday primary drew only a light vote, and there might be those who argue that some voters were so repelled by Watergate that they shunned the voting procedures. It is more likely, however, that the voters didn't turn out in North Carolina because it was an off-year election and there was only one major race—U. S. Senate—to attract attention. That more fits the pattern in our

Sophisticated Driving Gear

By BILL NOBLITT
 RALEIGH—You're cruising down the interstate with the car rocking along at five miles an hour over the limit. Your mind is pretty much on driving, but a nagging headache is about to surface—that argument with the boss a few hours earlier. A truck cuts you off. Blood pressure rises, temper flares. Your mind is not on careful driving. A buzzer sounds off, a panel of lights on the dashboard comes to life. The warning sign tells you that both anger and blood pressure are pushing you into a mood which is dangerous to yourself, your passengers, and other motorists.

Fair warning with time for action. That is not necessarily a scene from some science fiction TV show. Researchers at the National Driving Center in Research Triangle Park near Durham are probing a direct link between bad wrecks and bad drivers.

Space Age Idea
 "Hardware and the capability is here, now, to measure a driver's heart rate, his fatigue level, his medical condition. Those sensors were developed in the space program and used in space flights," says Col. Charles A. Speed, former highway patrol commander and now a consultant to the National Driving Center, a state-funded research program.

"We could use this sensor equipment from the space program to monitor body functions in a car, spot blood pressure problems or drug reactions, and with warning devices mounted on the dashboard of a car, alert a driver to problems," Speed said.

Auto manufacturers agree that the equipment is feasible.

And the North Carolina research agency, founded by the state's Medical Society, the Bar Association, and the Independent Insurance Agents Association of North Carolina, is at work building links between emotional, mental, attitudinal, medical, and physical problems and traffic accidents.

The National Driving Center soon will occupy a new building in the research park. A test driving track will be part of the facility on a 120-acre site.

Cure Problems
 In a nutshell, Speed said, the object is to provide research on evaluations of a large number of drivers with lengthy records of violations and accidents, pinpoint the relationships between driving problems and medical, social, or behavioral characteristics they possess, and ultimately to develop appropriate programs of therapy, rehabilitation, and psychological counseling to cure the risks.

Why the medical approach to traffic accidents? Physicians, Speed said, are concerned that the motor vehicle is the number one killer in the nation—outstripping the worst fatal diseases—and that no research was aimed at the driver.

Previous research has concentrated on vehicle and roadway design elements, while his 40 years of work in highway safety led him to believe that a handful of drivers with special problems were causing most of the mayhem on the highways.

Additionally, Speed said, physicians are worried over the Monday morning glut of hospital space and time by accident victims. Almost every hospital in the state has from 10 to 25 such victims on a Monday, taking bed space and attention from other cases.

Resulting from the research will come a method of pinpointing trouble drivers through licensing and court procedures.

"We believe eventually and hopefully to see established a series of driving license-medical evaluation centers across the state to effectively incorporate into the program results of the research.

"Located at or near existing public health facilities and staffed with medical and research people to measure reflexes, psychological conditions, physical problems, etc., the state centers would have a driving track nearby to test drivers and to carry out rehabilitation programs."

The object, Speed said, would be to correct the problems, not to remove the driver from the road. In many cases, as well, restricted licenses may be called for, limiting speed and driving conditions for problem groups.

All of this will call for some major shifts in public attitude towards driving. Speed believes. People now think of driving as a right guaranteed by a democratic system.

"We license people in the name of democracy, then if we find something wrong we try to take away that license through punitive action. We will have to approach driving as a privilege for which you must qualify."

state.

The voters apparently were not bent upon turning out anybody who is presently in office in blame for Watergate. Some incumbents lost in the State Legislature, but few incumbents or long-time professional politicians lost solely because of Watergate revulsion.

To us, however, all this does not indicate that there is not major concern among North Carolina voters about the problems of Watergate. Rather, we think voters in this state have been able to separate North Carolina politics from the problems of the Nixon administration. We do not believe state voters blame North Carolina congressmen and senators or Republican governor Holshouser for what went on in the Republican presidential administration.

If it is true, we think it indicates a degree of sophistication among Tar Heel voters that is desirable.

Government-Toppling Season Is Upon Us

It seems to be a time for toppling of governments and Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau of Canada's Liberal government must step down to make way for new elections.

The no-confidence vote came on the government's budget and probably was tied to the problem that plagues most governments these days—that of the effects of inflation on low and middle income citizens.

So there will be a new election in Canada and the campaign oratory will ring with arguments on how best to deal with the effects of current inflation.

The Unreality In White House

By ROLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Suspicions that the Nixon White House is dangerously out of touch with reality in its handling of the impeachment issue reached a new high just before the President's April 29 televised address announcing the release of an edited transcript of 46 taped White House Watergate-related conversations.

In an elaborate presentation in the Cabinet Room, undisclosed until now, Gen. Alexander Haig, the White House chief of staff, played a segment from one of the tapes to astonished members of the Nixon cabinet.

"It was a fantastic meeting," one official told us. Haig said that release of the 1,308-page transcript would finally prove the President's innocence in any Watergate coverup role. Then, after a thumbnail description of what Mr. Nixon would tell the nation half an hour later in his televised address, Haig flicked the playback switch on a White House tape machine, turned up the volume and let the tape run for two minutes. He did not identify the tape.

Secretary of the Treasury George Shultz, nearing his last day in office, sat stony-faced, arms across his chest, while the Nixon cabinet was treated to what one called "a series of unintelligible screeching noises."

Haig explained that the tape in question had been "prepared" by White House technicians for maximum audibility, then said that anyone could understand why White House secretaries "have been climbing the wall around here" transcribing the tapes.

Around the table there was stunned silence. One cabinet member whispered a question about the release of the tapes: "Why didn't they do this months ago?" but Haig himself was asked no leading questions. After switching off the tape, Haig told each cabinet member to "make up your own mind" about the President's innocence and if they agreed he was innocent to get out around the country and make the President's case.

That cabinet meeting, with the President himself not there, marked only the second time the cabinet has been briefed in advance of a Nixon Watergate statement. The first was April 30, last year, just before Mr. Nixon fired H. R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman and John Dean III.

On that earlier occasion, Mr. Nixon's desperate hope that he had reversed the Watergate tide proved disastrously wrong. Yet the experience of one failure after another to get out from under Watergate seems to have made only slight impact on Richard Nixon's sense of reality.

Thus, when he flew west to Arizona and Washington state last Friday (May 3), the President was described by Republican politicians who accompanied him as "euphoric" from the impact of his April 29 speech and the release of the Watergate transcripts. Mr. Nixon talked animatedly about the fall campaign and how much he wanted to get around the country to help Republican candidates.

"He must not be reading the newspapers," a leading Nixon supporter in Congress said later.

This appearance inside the White House of being out of touch with reality, moreover, led to major confusion about the President's decision on the release of new Watergate tapes to special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski. In separate television panel show Sunday, both Haig and James D. St. Clair, Mr. Nixon's Watergate lawyer, proclaimed no more Watergate tapes would be turned over either to Jaworski or to the House Judiciary Committee.

Then on Monday, St. Clair's request for a postponement of court action on Jaworski's subpoena for 64 more Watergate-related tapes convinced the prosecutor's office that a deal was in the works.

Sen. Ralph Scott's granddaughter is attending ECU and he spoke to one of her classes recently.

"I feel somewhat like the young man out on his first date," the senator told the class. "I know what I want to do; I just don't know where to start."

"Maybe I had better start by expressing my appreciation to you for allowing me to visit with you here today," he continued. "I'll have to admit that having a granddaughter in the class made it a lot easier for me to get invited to speak."

Scott continued, "Before coming down, I started to try to brush up on my psychology or what-have-you in order to make a better impression. But then I reminded myself that I was an agriculture major in college. So I decided to leave well enough alone."

Sen. Scott recalled another story, "It brings to mind the story of an instructor in charge of teaching adult illiterates in a small village up in the mountains. This instructor always tried to impress on his students the importance of honesty. He required each of them to give a pledge that they had neither given nor received help on their final exam. As the papers were handed in the instructor noticed one paper in particular. On it was written this pledge: 'I ain't had no help on this exam, and God knows I couldn't give any...'

Other Editors Say A Pennyworth

(Greensboro Daily News)

The penny, which individually has a purchasing power of approximately zero, is coming in for close scrutiny these days. It has reached the point where the penny's copper content is worth more than the coin itself for anything except paying sales tax. That development has moved the U.S. Treasury Department to issue an order banning the exportation or melting down of pennies.

There has been talk of changing the metal mix of the coin by replacing most of the copper with baser metals. Now a trade organization is suggesting that a new coin, the two-and-a-half-cent piece, replace the penny altogether. At the same time, the sponsors of the idea would change the metal mix of 95 per cent copper and 5 per cent zinc to a 70-30 ratio.

Herbert Barchoff, chairman of the trade organization, was quoted as saying: "Let's face it, the penny is virtually obsolete. Even our proposed two-and-a-half-cent piece might be obsolete 10 years from now if the present rate of inflation continues."

Put that way, there is no "maybe" or "might" about it, and it wouldn't take 10 years either. Further, no one in Washington in the executive or legislative branches of the federal government appears to have any real ideas for curbing inflation.

Thus it seems a more sensible course would be to abolish the penny and the nickel and replace them both with a copper alloy coin the size of a dime. It would have roughly the purchasing power the penny had in 1960. The quarter would then be the new two-and-a-half-cent piece and a dollar would be worth a dime. That's deflation of a sort and the effect would be to make ordinary millionaires out of multimillionaires and near-paupers, on paper, out of most of us. But it may be the only way to restore the penny's purchasing power.

"And part what else?" her mother asked.

"Oh, I don't know," Lisa replied. "American. I guess."

Well, why not? The Dubbers are formerly of Greenville and Mrs. Dubber is the former Jane Jackson.

Two coeds were discussing a trip to Wilmington over coffee one morning.

"Do you go by Trenton?" one asked.

"Heavens no," the second coed replied. "I wouldn't go by way of New Jersey."

Decline In Rate Of Inflation?

By JOHN CUNIFF
 AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The standard or consensus forecast, made up of the views of private and government forecasters, seems to favor a decline in the rate of inflation and interest rates later this year.

In the recent past those hopes remained unfulfilled, so forecasters are under greater pressure now to state their case in specifics rather than generalities. Here are some of the specifics that support their view:

—Much of the huge increase in oil has now worked its way through the production process to the point of sale. It is unlikely that any future increases will be of the same magnitude. —Commodity price increases, although they continue, aren't of the same magnitude as they were during the past year.

—The world's harvests show signs of being more abundant than in the past year or so, indicating some lessening of pressure on food prices.

—Removal of price controls, while it might cause some immediate price increases, will tend to make some products more available and thus cause a leveling of prices over a period of months.

—There are indications that wage and benefit settlements in major labor contracts are likely to be only moderate, a reaction to an anticipated rise in the unemployment rate. —Inflation and shrinking buying power is likely to convince many consumers that spending for big ticket items should be postponed.

—But there's still another side of the forecasts. A lot of hope still lies at the root of those assumptions, nourishing an optimism that isn't shared by all.

Critics of the consensus point out that: —Harvests tend to be unpredictable. While the United States can look forward to a record wheat harvest, for example, can the same be said of all the world's wheat and rice producers?

Moreover, the increased demands for foods reflect a long term situation—the rise in the world's population, coupled with a desire for more nutritional balance throughout the world.

—Nobody can say for sure what effect the removal of price controls will have. Some of the increases already announced are in very basic areas, steel and automobiles, for example, which affect prices of other goods and services.

—Despite high interest rates, business continues to lay plans for massive spending on plant and equipment. While this might make them more productive, more efficient over the long term, it could add to inflation and interest rates this year.

—Some economists doubt that wage demands will remain moderate, especially since the buying power of wage earners is declining. They are, in fact, surprised at labor's stance.

Strength For Today

WHEN FAITH COUNTS

The great missionary of the nineteenth century, Adoniram Judson, as a youth had a young friend who persuaded Judson that all of his religious beliefs were empty fantasies. Shortly after this Judson began to travel about the country with an itinerant dramatic group.

One night he was in a hotel room next to the room of a man who was dying. The presence of death turned his mind back to his repudiated religious beliefs. In deep distress he thrashed about in his own bed, aware of his inadequacy to face the possibility of his own death.

The next morning the desk clerk told Judson that his neighbor in the next room had died during the night. He then found out to his consternation that the man was the same boyhood friend who had convinced him that his religious convictions were nonsense.

Convinced now that God was trying to tell him something, Judson became one of the great evangelical preachers and missionaries of his generation.

Observations From Editorial Columns

Arming Both Sides, No Way To Peace

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has added an oak leaf cluster to his Nobel Peace Prize but it will be a strong peace indeed that holds up under the tremendous concentration of weaponry that exists in the Middle East.

The Arab nations, and presumably Israel as well, are better armed and better equipped than they were before the October war, despite the fantastic expenditure of military wherewithal in that conflict. This is because, as some observers have pointed out, much of the equipment lost in the war was obsolete or second line and the replacement material is spanning new and of the latest type.

In the massive air and sealift carried out by Russia in the course of the war, Egypt received 600 late-model tanks, 100 MIG-21 jet fighters, and 30 SAM-3 and SAM-6 missile batteries, among other military goods.

Syria received 800 tanks (making her stronger in that category than France), 100 jets, 15 SAM missile batteries and other weapons.

There is also a tremendous secondary arms market within the Arab world, thanks to the unlimited funds commanded by the oil-rich members. According to the London Times, Libya has given nearly $100 million worth of arms, training and cash to various Palestinian terrorist groups.

Saudi Arabia, which has subsidized Egypt's wars with Israel to the tune of a billion or so, has concluded a deal with France: 5.6 billion barrels of crude for Mirage jet fighters, tanks, missile launchers, mine-sweepers, you name it.

Arabia Felix, the Romans called the peninsula. Happy Arabia.

No slugged in this business, the United States will deliver a consignment of F5E Freedom Fighters to Saudi Arabia this spring, making things even happier.

Iran, a non-Arab state and long-time recipient of U. S. military aid, will receive 30 F-14 Tomcat fighters beginning in 1976. Why Iran needs one of the most advanced planes in the world at a cost of $14 million per copy is a good question. Perhaps the Persians still remember the devastation wrought against them by the hordes of Genghis Khan.

Iran will also buy some Leopard tanks from West Germany. Happy Iran.

This is only the sketchiest outline of the arms situation in the Middle East—a situation created by and fostered by the United States, the democracies of Europe and the Soviet Union, to their mutual and collective shame.—The Altus (Okla.) Times-Democrat

Oil Companies' Taxes

The House Ways and Means Committee has approved a bill to phase out the 22 per cent oil-depletion allowance, impose a temporary excise tax on high-priced crude oil, and deny some of the tax benefits accorded petroleum companies for overseas operations. The Committee expects to formally clear the measure for floor action this month.

Both conservatives and liberals are unhappy with it, presaging opposition in both House and Senate. The conservatives believe it is too harsh on the oil industry and the liberals too light.

It is well that the Committee would doom the oil-depletion allowance; it is an inefficient but highly costly encouragement to exploration, wholly unnecessary now that the world price of oil has touched off a domestic drilling boom. And the tax incentives that have spurred oil companies' foreign activities are clearly extravagant. But the excise tax on "windfall profits" is unfortunate, even though oil companies' profits are soaring while Americans at large are suffering varying degrees of financial ill-effects from jacked-up petroleum prices.

Apart from the difficulty of identifying "windfall" profits—the industry's after-taxes take was down overall until recently, and much of the latest profit bulge is attributed to inflation—an "excess-profits" tax previously has been imposed by Washington only during World War I, World War II, and the Korean War. In each instance it was justified as a necessary revenue-raising measure and inflation dampener, and on the grounds that no one should be enriched by an extreme national emergency.

Similar arguments now are being made for an excess-profits tax upon the oil industry, but they are suspect. The strongest case in behalf of the tax is the provision to give the companies the option of plowing back into new exploration and development the profit that would be taxed. But current oil prices are incentive enough.

The oil-depletion allowance, then, should be ended. The favorable tax treatment of oil companies' foreign-sources income should be modified. But the excess-profits tax should be resisted.—Norfolk—Portsmouth (Va.) Virginian-Pilot

One For The Record?

The annual report on how congressmen spend tax money on foreign travel has been eliminated from the Congressional Record. Rep. Wayne Hays of Ohio told Atlanta Journal Washington correspondent Maurice Fliess that this was done as part of his campaign to cut "trivia and junk" out of the Record to save money.

Regular readers of the Congressional Record could think of a number of other items customarily printed in the Record that are of less use than reports of how tax money is spent.

For example, there is the extension of remarks to include in the record things never said on the floor. There is the reprinting of various articles of only local interest to a congressman and his constituents. There is even reprinting of newspaper editorials, which we would like to think is not in the category of trivia and junk but nonetheless shouldn't be done at taxpayers expense.

Rep. Hays hopes to rectify what he calls a mistake as a result of which this list is no longer available for public inspection in one central place. If this is done, the media can still help the public to get information on congressional junkets without it having to be in the Congressional Record.

However, it might be worth reprinting as an extension of remarks if any congressman is interested.—The Atlanta (Ga.) Journal

A Conservative View The Courtroom Road From Warren To Weinstein

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK
We are coming up now on the 20th anniversary of Brown v. Board of Education. Perhaps this white, middle-aged Southerner may be permitted a few anniversary thoughts.

In terms of its impact on our people and our institutions, the Supreme Court's unanimous opinion of May 17, 1954, was the most important opinion of this century. An arguable case can be made, indeed, that Brown had even greater social and political impact than the Dred Scott case a century before. And, ironically, Brown remains to this day very bad law.

In a single stroke that morning in May, the Court struck down the segregated schools of 17 states. Chief Justice Warren's opinion accomplished much more: It paved the way, and it created the strong foundation, on which an entire new structure of law could be built. After Brown, the deluge: civil rights, voting rights, public accommodations, equal opportunity. The black child born 20 years ago this week, not only in the South but elsewhere, has known a far different America—and with all its imperfections, a far better America—than his parents knew.

As a matter of jurisprudence, Brown still seems to me wrong. In essence, the court looked at the institution of school segregation and said: This is immoral, therefore it is unconstitutional. It was a monstrous non sequitur. The palpable fact is that when the sun rose on the morning of May 17, 1954, segregated schools were indeed constitutional. They had been constitutional for 86 years. Courts repeatedly had said so.

The evidence is overwhelming that the 39th Congress never on earth intended the Fourteenth Amendment to prohibit the states from operating racially separate institutions. Such Northern states as New York, Ohio, and Indiana continued to operate segregated schools long after the Fourteenth was ratified. The United States Congress itself saw nothing unconstitutional in the segregated schools of the District of Columbia. But when the sun set, the Constitution had changed.

Bad law breeds bad law. The teaching of Brown was that students could not be assigned to public institutions solely by reason of race. But in subsequent cases, having to do with racial balance busing, the Court stood that principle on its head. The Court now approves the assignment of children solely because of their race. The contradiction has yet to be resolved. Other judges, building their own bizarre constructions on Brown, have further distorted the law. Last January a federal district judge in New York, Jack B. Weinstein, found that the Constitution commands desegregation of the Mark Twain Junior High School in Coney Island. The school, which was 81 percent white in 1962, had changed to 18 percent white in 1973 largely as a consequence of changes in residential patterns.

Judge Weinstein conceded that there was no evidence of state compulsion. There was no segregative design on the part of public officials. Indeed, "desegregation was the goal of all."

What happened was simply that white families moved away, and black and Puerto Rican families moved in. The judge saw this as a "conspiracy—explicit and implicit—of an entire society." He now has ordered every resource of the city, the state, and the federal government committed to a draconian plan to drag whites back to Coney Island in order to "refertilize" the district with white child-bearing families. At whatever cost in money and in social upheaval, Judge Weinstein proposes to compel the reordering of an entire community. Just to change the racial balance of a single school. It is a disgraceful abuse of the judicial power.

But if questions of jurisprudence can be put on one side, the road from Warren to Weinstein has proved a good road. Oliver Brown, Harry Briggs, Dorothy E. Davis, and other plaintiffs in the several cases were only children 20 years ago. They could not have known what a lasting contribution they would make toward a better life for their people. Giving full account to the tensions, the hardships, and the new abuses that have been created in uprooting the old way, it has to be said that his way is better. It is not perfect. It is better.

Wallace Keeps Eyes On Basic Issues That Are Always Before Voters

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

The letter from Alabama Governor George C. Wallace was well-timed and welcome. It interrupted a flow of grim news about President Nixon and somewhat grim recollections of others who have either held or aspired to the nation's highest office.

The tone of the news left no doubt about it: Even if the transcripts show Nixon not guilty of impeachable high crimes and misdemeanors, he should get the boot anyhow. He has exhibited frailties and tolerated a White House moral climate which disqualifies him. It was this last consideration which had turned thoughts to others who have occupied the high office, or sought it. Fortunately, their frailties (more weaknesses, if you prefer) have not been used by critics to the complete disregard of what is commonly called achievements.

You don't have to go back to the Administrations of such men as Jackson, Lincoln, Grant or even Harding to come up with climates which don't measure up on all counts.

Take the Patron Saint of the modern Democratic party, for example. Franklin Roosevelt could lie with the best of them, when it served what he considered good purpose. What he said was often far from what he did. Then there's the matter of the mistress who lived as a member of the official family.

In many ways, Harry Truman stands out as a very proper man. He did have a weakness for sour mash and for language which would make an old time mule-skinner blush. There was much speculation about some of Truman's cronies, with influence. They became wealthy.

If inclined, you can take Dwight Eisenhower apart on the question of morality. Democrats made great sport of his supposed relations with an English woman who was his chauffeur in World War II. And there were the gifts of livestock and machinery for his Gettysburg farm.

And the extra-curriculum activities of President John Kennedy tinted the Washington gossip circuit. The young President had a way with him. And he had a way with the language, too—Navy, you know.

Lyndon Johnson was a standout. While in the House, Senate and White House, he helped his family become very wealthy. In the Senate, he handled large sums of cash, intended for reelection, or election, of Democrats to that body. When Bobby Baker "stonewalled" it, a lot of names got protection.

In any such rundown, the name now considered most likely to head the Democratic ticket in 1976 should not be left out. Senator Ted Kennedy is credited with frailties, too. This the matter of the young woman who drowned in a late night accident. The Senator disappeared for hours, then reappeared with a strange story of shock.

These men, of course, had an advantage which President Nixon has not enjoyed. They were spared the disapproval, or even hatred, of the so-called Washington-New York press axis. A hostile Congress never investigated them. And, they were at least tolerated by the liberal left, now fighting to regain national power and influence.

As noted at the start, Wallace's letter was welcome. The envelope effectively dashed any hope of a personal communication from the man who, probably, ranks as key to the political future. It was an obvious political broadside. But it was a relief from the other stuff.

Wallace got right down to his key question. "If the 1972 Presidential election were being held today and I was on the ballot... Would you vote for: George McGovern, Richard Nixon, George Wallace?"

The result, no doubt, will show Wallace looking stronger than ever on today's political stage. But as for 1976 plans, Wallace gave a quick "I don't know." He did, however, list some "issues" he said he planned to speak out on. All, one way or another, get right down to how we live. And all are being slighted by a Washington preoccupied with Watergate. Wallace said he is concerned that military superiority over the communists is being lost. Anti-military sentiment is on the rise in Congress.

The governor said he is also concerned "that most politicians in Washington want to take a lot of your money and give a guaranteed annual income to people... even if they refuse to work." He will talk about the issues of inflation and school bussing.

The letter never mentioned Watergate. It stuck with issues close to the voters—one of Wallace's strengths.

Today In History

By The Associated Press
Today is Sunday, May 12, the 132nd day of 1974. There are 233 days left in the year. This is Mother's Day.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1949, Soviet authorities in Berlin announced that the 328-day blockade of land routes to the isolated city had been lifted.

On this date: In 1774, the Boston committee of correspondence proposed that all American colonies suspend trade with Britain.

In 1775, American troops captured Crow Point on Lake Champlain from the British.

In 1820, the English woman who founded modern nursing, Florence Nightingale, was born in Florence, Italy.

In 1932, the body of the kidnapped baby son of Charles A. Lindbergh was found in a woods in Hopewell, N.J.

In 1938, Japanese warships captured the Chinese island of Amoy.

Evans-Novak...

John J. Sirica said its purpose was to give St. Clair more time to arrange "possible compliance" with Jaworski's subpoena. The apparent reason: St. Clair had concluded that public and political pressure to turn over the 64 new tapes, all involving conversations on the main Watergate case from June 20, 1972, to June 4, 1973, would be irresistible.

But one day later, St. Clair made another astounding reversal, reiterating the original White House rigidity on no more Watergate tapes for Jaworski or the House committee. That reversal restores and strengthens the White House hard line and is certain to line up many if not most Republicans on the Judiciary Committee behind a new House subpoena. It also appears to assure a historic court test which, unlike the similar confrontation last fall when Mr. Nixon backed down, could lead to a Supreme Court decision and a constitutional crisis.

In short, the extraordinary tape playback for Mr. Nixon's cabinet, designed to mark his emergence to high ground, was only one more ominous shadow of the unreality pervading his presidency. It marked a new high in fantasy.

Morgan Basks In Glow Of Impressive Victory

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH—Robert Morgan smiled that boyish smile of his and said: "When you win like this, you have to thank hundreds and hundreds of people, and I wish I could call every name for you."

Morgan was basking in the aftermath of a very impressive win in the Democratic Senate primary. He had said privately a day before the primary that he would win without the pain of going through a runoff.

So the man whose opponents said was "highly vulnerable," swept aside the opposition and now can turn his attention to November when he faces Republican Bill Stevens. Morgan has to rate the odds-on favorite to win then, but he's scared stiff that his supporters will figure it as automatic. Morgan does not. He says he'll work hard to make sure the political upset doesn't happen.

Morgan's victory last Tuesday came about as his ardent supporters said it would. He ran well in the East, where one of his workers described it "as pitching a shutout in the East," and he was highly respectable in urban areas such as Charlotte, Greensboro, Raleigh and Durham.

To show how far Morgan has come as a statewide figure, one only has to examine the vote in Charlotte-Mecklenburg to see that he has made giant strides. Morgan trailed Nick Galifianakis by only 600 votes in Charlotte, and was soundly ahead of Henry Hall Wilson. Eight years ago, Morgan would have had a difficult time getting any vote in Charlotte. But this time he ran about even with Galifianakis in Charlotte's black precincts, did well in middle income white boxes, and carried some of the city's high income precincts.

Such a showing by Morgan in the urban areas is what Galifianakis and Wilson workers had feared. They knew if the attorney general did well in the Piedmont, he would be too hot to stop.

Two Charlotte attorneys, George Miller and Gene McCartha, headed Galifianakis' campaign in the Queen City. They said the day of the primary that they must win handsomely in Charlotte for Galifianakis to force a runoff. After the returns began coming in, they tried to remain optimistic—but they knew Morgan had done the job in Charlotte and the cause was lost.

The poor showing of Wilson was a shock to some. He worked long and hard and spent a good deal of money to capture only 12 per cent of the vote. He was imminently qualified to serve in the Senate, but his campaign never got going.

Morgan told this reporter in January that Wilson's campaign had not caught on, and he felt confident that it wouldn't. Wilson's being away from the state for 12 years no doubt hurt him to a degree.

The light voter turnout was probably to Morgan's favor, because his name was well-known, and his political organization did a better job of getting his people to the polls.

"Some people say the light vote helped me, others say it hurt me," Morgan said. "I'm sure all of us had rather see a heavier vote. But whatever, I'm satisfied with the results."

Campus Scene Calmer Today, But Not As Serene As The '50s.

By GEORGE GALLUP

(Copyright 1974, Field Enterprises, Inc. All rights reserved. Republication in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with the written consent of the copyright holders.)

PRINCETON, N.J.—Although the mood on college campuses today is calmer than in the turbulent '60s, there is little evidence to suggest that the current college scene is as serene as it was in the 1950s.

While the chief concerns of students today differ from those of the '60s—worry over political morality replacing anger over the Vietnam war—many students (nearly four in 10) continue to believe that violence is sometimes justified to bring about a change in society. This finding suggests that the student activism of the '60s could again be ignited by a particular issue or issues.

College students today also differ sharply from students of the '50s in their dedication to bringing about societal change by becoming involved in the "helping" professions, such as teaching and social work. Gallup surveys have shown that more than half of college students have at some point worked among poor and underprivileged groups.

Changes in manners and morals on campus have also undergone a pronounced change since the '50s. The latest Gallup college survey sought to measure current behavior in regard to the use of marijuana, the fad of "streaking" and hair styles.

Marijuana Users Now At 55 Per Cent

The percentage of college students who have used marijuana has increased to a new high point, with 55 per cent saying they have used the drug at least once.

Although this figure is up four points over a fall 1971 measurement, the rate of increase has slowed. For example, the percentage had leaped 46 points between surveys taken in 1967 and 1971.

This question was asked to determine how many students have tried marijuana at least once:

"Have you yourself ever happened to have tried marijuana?" The following table shows the national trend since 1967, when

Per Cent of Students Who Have Tried Marijuana
Spring 1967	5%
Spring 1969	22
Fall 1970	42
Fall 1971	51
Winter-Spring 1974	55

Students from relatively affluent families are more likely to have tried the drug than are students from less affluent families. In addition, men are more likely to have used marijuana than are women—62 per cent compared to 49 per cent.

Polls Uncover Bare Facts On 'Streaking'

All students in the latest college survey were asked to express their views on streaking. The typical reaction is one of bemused indifference, with generally favorable attitudes outweighing generally unfavorable attitudes by more than a 2-to-1 margin.

About one student in 25 (4 per cent) has streaked. This percentage projects to a quarter of a million college streakers for the college population as a whole. More men than women have streaked—6 per cent compared to 2 per cent.

"It's too big a risk to take when you consider it goes on your record as a sex offense," was one woman's comment. Another remarked, "I haven't found anyone yet who can tell me what the purpose of streaking is."

Among the boosters of streaking is a young male student who commented, "It's fantastic—I'm for it 200 per cent!" Another student, a female at an Eastern college, said, "At least streaking is better than burning down schools."

Long Hair Grows In Popularity

Long hair among men has continued to increase in popularity over the last three years. For every male student who now wears a short traditional hair style, there are three who wear long hair, with most of this latter group wearing hair over the ear but not to the shoulder. The early survey showed long-hairs outnumbering those with short haircuts by only a slight margin.

The results reported today are based on in-person interviews with a total of more than 1,000 full-time students on 60 campuses, in surveys conducted in January and in March.

New Book Charges 'Big Labor Buys Its Democrats'

By DONALD LAMBRO WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor unions and the Democratic candidates they support have "flagrantly violated" the law forbidding use of union funds in federal campaigns, says the attorney for the original seven Watergate defendants.

Douglas Cuddy charges in a new book that unions have illegally spent tens of millions of dollars in union dues in direct violation of the Federal Corrupt Practices Act.

Cuddy, a Washington, D.C., lawyer, further alleges that much of this illegal financing has been done at the request—or at least with the knowledge—of many prominent Democratic congressmen who received labor assistance in their campaigns.

In his book, "The $100 Million Payoff—How Big Labor Buys Its Democrats," Cuddy urges appointment of a special prosecutor to investigate and seek federal indictments against those Democrats and labor officials he alleges have violated the law. The book is to be published this week by Arlington House of New Rochelle, N.Y.

Much of the evidence Cuddy uses to support his allegations came from the files of the International Association of Machinists (IAM) and its political action arm, the Machinists Nonpartisan Political League (MNPL). The IAM files were opened when dissident members filed suit.

Partisan Political Purposes Cuddy said the documents contained in the files, together with other information he has accumulated, proved "beyond a reasonable doubt" that the funds "supporting organized labor's political activities come from the dues paid by union members, most of whom are under compulsory-unionism contracts, and that those funds are committed to partisan political purposes without regard to the normally conflicting political sentiment, loyalties, and wishes prevailing among union members."

After the June 17, 1972, Watergate break-in, Cuddy represented all seven original defendants, but later withdrew from the case. He also was the first person approached, according to Senate Watergate Committee testimony, to deliver hush-money to the defendants. According to the testimony, he refused.

The evidence he has gathered, Cuddy contends, shows that union members sometimes are coerced into making political cash contributions. And he also argues that the campaign services that unions provide over and above these contributions run into many millions of dollars—most of it paid by union dues.

These services as he lists them include labor union employees assigned full-time to campaigns; "nonpartisan" drives to register Democratic voters; printing campaign literature and congressional newsletters; use of union computers for mailing lists and voter tabulations; use of union trucks and other campaign equipment, and much more.

Cuddy says locals are assessed per member to pay for their national union's political education programs, and that this money is being spent illegally to help Democratic candidates.

Federal Law Violation

All these activities, he says, violate the Corrupt Practices Act. The act declares it illegal for a labor organization to use union funds to contribute to any candidate for federal office, or even expend dues in his behalf.

Energy Crisis Not Due Arabs

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The United States would have been faced with an energy crisis with or without the Arab oil embargo, according to the president of the American Petroleum Institute.

The only thing the embargo did was make the shortage come sooner than it would have under normal conditions, Frank Ikard said.

"Beginning in 1970 our crude oil supply started falling off at the rate of something in the order of 200,000 barrels a day per year and we hadn't developed the North Slope of Alaska, we hadn't developed the marine resources," he said.

'Youth Attention' Will Expand

Pitt County's Youth Attention Program, originated in 1971, will soon be expanded to surrounding counties, according to Henry

Cox, one of the original initiators of the program. Cox, chief family court counselor of the third judicial district, was formerly Pitt County probation officer. Because of Cox's expanded territory, he has learned of further areas needing a similar program to the Pitt County Youth Attention Program. Cox said he realized the need for a program similar to the federal Big Brother program in this area when he was probation officer and looked for a dynamic local businessman that could help him get his program off the ground. He chose Bill McDonald, a local insurance broker.

Since the fall of 1971, Cox and McDonald have been working with Youth Attention seeking volunteer big brothers to work with youth in need of a guiding figure. Many of the youths Cox, McDonald and their volunteer workers work with have been in trouble with the law. Most have only one parent while many have a parent who does not live in the home or provide a parental figure.

Youth Attention works with children from age 7 to teenagers. Volunteers in the program work with their particular youth anywhere from a few hours per month to a daily meeting. Presently, 25 volunteers are working with 25 needy youths. Cox and McDonald state they have 75 other youths needing and wanting big brothers, but they have a need for volunteers.

Help for the local program has come in the form of a Vista worker from New York, Phyllis Soloman.

Miss Soloman will be working with Youth Attention in coordinating volunteer workers with needy youth and recruiting more volunteers.

Cox is presently trying to expand Youth Attention into Carteret County, where he already has a head for the program in mind.

In the future he hopes to set up similar operations in Craven and Pamlico counties.

Pitt County's program is modeled after a similar program in Boulder, Colo.

Youth Attention requests persons wishing to inquire into their program to call the local Vista office.

Lanier Named To Committee

The Chairman of East Carolina University's Department of Library Science was notified this week that he has been appointed to the State Library Committee.

Dr. Gene D. Lanier who is also current president of the North Carolina Library Association was informed by Philip S. Ogilvie, State Librarian and Grace J. Rohrer, Secretary of the Department of Cultural Resources. This new committee was established under the Executive Organization Act of 1973 as stated in the General Statutes of North Carolina. Six of the seven committee members have been appointed by Gov. James H. Holshouser. The oath of office will be administered on Thursday, May 30, at the committee's first meeting.

It will be the responsibility of this new committee to advise the Secretary of the Department of Cultural Resources on matters relating to the operation and services of the State Library, suggest programs to aid in the development of libraries statewide, and advise the Secretary upon any matter the Secretary might refer to it.

Lanier, who has been at East Carolina since 1959, has had extensive experience serving on state boards and commissions as well as chairing several committees of state and regional library professional organizations. He is married to the former Susan Roberts of Washington and has two daughters, who reside at 526 Westchester Drive.

Superport Said Coastal Hazard

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)—A proposed superport off the Louisiana coast could pose a danger to the environment, a Louisiana State University researcher says.

Dr. Sherwood Gagliano says the proposed $528 superport, to be used by oil tankers, could adversely affect oyster beds and recreation areas in the Gulf of Mexico.

He also said currents in the Gulf could push accidental oil spills into the coast.

Cite Arson As Major Concern

MENLO PARK, Calif. (UPI)—Stanford Research Institute study into "Violence Problems Affecting Fire Departments" asserts that arson should be by far the major concern of fire fighters.

"Arson losses... account for at least 10 per cent, and possibly 30 per cent or more, of all building fire losses—greater than all the other costs of violence combined," the report says.

It adds that arson rates are rising faster than other types of fire and faster than other types of crime.

One solution the institute offers is a step-up in cooperation between police and fire departments.

Oahu Favored Among Islands

HONOLULU (UPI)—Eighty-one per cent of Hawaii's population lives on the island of Oahu, giving that island a density in excess of 1,100 per square mile.

The population is young, with 50 per cent under 25 years of age.

Honor Carr At Commencement

RALEIGH—Paul W. Carr of Greenville was one of 140 North Carolina State University students who were honored at the University's 85th annual commencement Saturday.

Carr, majoring in mechanical engineering, received the AFROTC First Honors Ribbon. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Carr of Rt. 1, Greenville.

NOTICE TO PITT COUNTY CITIZENS

Notice is hereby given that an exclusive franchise for the collection, transportation, and disposition of Residential Solid Waste in unincorporated areas of Pitt County was initially adopted at the May 8th, 1974 meeting of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners.

Due to public concern shown at the May 8th, 1974 meeting, a public hearing has been scheduled for May 15th, 1974 at 7:30 p.m. in the District Court Room of the Pitt County Courthouse. The proposal will be presented and alternatives discussed in an effort to reach the appropriate solution. If it is determined at this meeting that the proposed system is the most desirable, the Ordinance granting the exclusive Franchise above referred to will be considered for final adoption at the next regular meeting of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners in the Law Library of the Pitt County Courthouse on Monday, June 3, 1974.

THANK YOU

Dear Citizens of Pitt County:

On behalf of Robert Morgan, Democratic nominee for the United States Senate, I wish to thank you for the overwhelming support given him in the recent primary election.

It is gratifying to know that we are so solidly behind our chosen candidate, and the vote given him is indicative of the hard work put forth by his many Pitt County supporters. I want each of you to know how much I personally appreciate your votes, your financial assistance, and all of the time and efforts expended in his behalf.

With this kind of support in the November General Election, I am confident that we will elect Robert Morgan our next United States Senator.

Very truly yours,
A.B. Whitley, Chairman
Committee to Elect Robert Morgan

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Richter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: After services or inspirational studies, get out in the social whirl, enjoy others, and do whatever is available of a humanitarian nature.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Listening to the suggestions of good friends on how to gain your personal wishes brings fine results. Out to the social in p.m., for a delightful time.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A good day to do something that will help you and your community. Plan more efficient future routines. Take it easy tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Contact bigwigs in a.m., who can aid you and who have information you need. Make new contacts who can be of great future help.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Your intuition is working accurately. You can now know how to advance quickly in the future. Enjoy recreations with mate. Be generous.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Ideal day to sit down with associates socially, iron out differences and make better arrangements for the future. More harmony with outside world is possible.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Showing appreciation for those who have done you many favors in the past will bring more goodwill in the future. Discuss mutual duties with others to improve efficiency.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Enjoy sports, other pleasurable activities with those you like. Give a gift to a close tie and improve the relationship. To bed early.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Come to a far better understanding at home for harmony and love. Study new project that has a fine chance of bringing great future success.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Evaluate your ideas by checking them against spiritual values and make any changes necessary. Have a delightful time later with congenials. Get chores done at home in p.m.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Think in terms of more prosperous living, then take the right steps to achieve it. Consult one who can help you with modern methods for advancement.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You can expand where personal interests are concerned, and become a far more popular person. Listen to what a clever friend has to suggest for your improvement.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study spiritual truths to guide your life more intelligently. Some personal contact with friends later is fine. Romance favored in p.m.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will love people and should do well in any humanitarian work. Slant the education along lines to help better the world at large, since there is also love of work here and the ideas are practical. Make sure to give spiritual training early, and don't neglect calisthenics. Some musical training is fine, also.

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Richter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A fine day and evening to put into effect the modern decisions which you have made recently as well as improving your relationships with business associates. Take the time to let good friends know that you value the alliance.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) If you contact many friends by telephone at this time excellent results will follow. Do favors for those who have been good to you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) An influential person will be willing to give the support you need if you make the proper approach. Think along constructive lines.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Good day to increase your knowledge by obtaining the information you need from available sources. Don't neglect correspondence.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make sure you follow through with what you have agreed with others. Improve ego of close tie and have more happiness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make certain you do the work that is expected of you by associates. You can get the backing you need from bigwig at this time.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Find a more up-to-date system through which to handle routines and you will have more time for important duties. Act wisely.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Use spare time for planning your favorite recreation. Put those creative skills on a high level and impress the right people.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make the little changes and repairs that will make your home more charming. Show more courtesy to kin and increase harmony.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make those necessary appointments so that you can improve your productivity and profits. A little social life is fine tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make sure you finish a practical task you have started. Study your monetary position and make improvement if necessary.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take the time to improve your appearance which is important to you at this particular time. Attend the social tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have many personal tasks that need your immediate attention. Seek an adviser and get the suggestions that will aid your progress.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have fine ideas on how to make self and surroundings more charming. A combination here of one who is old-fashioned at one time and then very modern can lead to big success. A most interesting personality here. Spiritual training is most important for this youngster early in life.

Boston Police 'Professional Victims' Scoop Up Criminals

By BARBARA BURKE

BOSTON (UPI)—A man leans over a parked car, retching. He straightens up and staggers down the dark, narrow street, his silhouette suddenly lit by headlights as he stumbles in the path of a car.

A drunk one might find in any city after dark?

Three men and I were watching this drunk, waiting for him to be robbed. But he had had nothing to drink but a cup of coffee.

The four men formed a unit of the Boston Police Department's new "Mod Squad."

Their job is to get robbed. They are professional victims.

"We want to make the criminal look over his shoulder," says Captain Joseph P. Rowan, chief of the squad. "We want to create a feeling that there are policemen everywhere."

A thief robs a man and jumps into a cab. Both victim and cabbie are cops.

In the men's room of a bus terminal, one man suggests to another that they rob a drunk. His would-be accomplice is a cop.

The "Mod Squad" first went out on the streets April 1, with 20 men. It now has about 40.

Rowan hopes it will eventually include 125 policemen and women.

The only woman now on the squad is a 5-foot former schoolteacher. Posing as a shopper, she had her wallet stolen four times the first six times she was out—resulting in 10 arrests.

And when the "Mod Squad" makes an arrest, Rowan says, "we don't have to depend on civilian witnesses."

The squad has been denounced as repressive by a black community group that put out flyers warning the public about its existence.

Actually, the squad, which includes nine blacks, has yet to enter predominately black neighborhoods, though Rowan says it will.

"We're not looking for black people; we're looking for thieves."

The federally-funded program has learned from the successes and failures of similar programs in cities such as Kansas City, Mo., New York and Detroit, Rowan says.

The Detroit program ran into problems he hopes to avoid. "Some 20-odd people were killed by the police, and some policemen were killed too," he said.

"Our policy is if a fellow has committed a felony in your presence, and is running away, don't shoot him for that."

"And we don't get involved in any minor stuff"—no "prostitutes and kids smoking reefer."

Mod Squad members work in teams of four. The decoy acts drunk, lost or sick—anything to make him look vulnerable—while the three "back-up" men watch from a distance, on foot or in taxis, delivery trucks or unmarked cars.

When the decoy is robbed, he signals his comrades, who arrest the thief. "Everyone we've arrested has a record," says star victim Charles Fleming. "It isn't first offenders."

Fleming was robbed four times his first night, and three times in an hour. "I think some of us have a ham instinct—some guys seem to make better decoys," he says.

The decoy I'm watching isn't having any luck. I sit with a policeman in a cab—dubbed the "Shuttlebus"—watching the ersatz drunk stumble, burp and spit for 20, 30, 40 minutes.

The night is cold, passersby are few. A man in his 50s peers round the corner at the decoy. "He's eyeballing him," says the patrolman I'm with. I get ready to witness my first crime, but the man goes away. "Something spooked him," my companion says.

"Sometimes it's 10 minutes—bang, five minutes—bang. Sometimes you can sit 'all night.'" We try three streets before I give up shortly before midnight. The policemen work until 2 a.m.

Despite the camaraderie, the wigs and fake mustaches, and the Startrek jargon, there's little glamour in decoy work. But the patrolmen talk of "satisfaction."

"In uniform in a patrol car we knew these things were happening: visual patrol is probably just postponing it," Fleming said. "Now an old woman walking down the street, who may have been a victim, might get home with her pocketbook."

Confinement Is A Better Life

SAIGON (UPI)—Thirty North Vietnamese officers and about 200 Viet Cong have lived under tight security at the edge of Saigon since the Jan. 28, 1973, cease-fire agreement.

The officers and men serve as members of two delegations, one supposedly searching for a Vietnam peace and the other involved in trying to win release of prisoners of war and aid in the search for missing.

They live under tight security, surrounded by South Vietnamese military policemen at Camp Davis, a former American troop rest and recreation staging area, named for the first U. S. soldier killed in Vietnam.

Except for official meetings, official receptions and helicopter flights to their own headquarters, they are not allowed out of Camp Davis.

A newsman asked one Viet Cong officer how he liked living in the camp.

"Well," the young man replied, "it's better than fighting the war."

Still Grinds Baseball Bat Out Of Logs

By ARTHUR FREDERICK NORTH PARSONSFIELD,
Maine (UPI) — Ernest W.
Hussey just turned 90 and he's still spending his time grinding baseball bats out of logs, just as he has for the past 69 years.
Hussey's bat factory is a one-man operation across the street from his house, and he makes about $1,100 each year by selling the bats to a California company and to stores and summer camps in some seven states.

The bat factory began under another man. Hussey took it over when the first manufacturer died.

"Well, I tell you, I had a friend, he's dead now, and he played nine years of professional ball, and he threw his arm out and he couldn't play anymore," Hussey said. "He started making bats, and I started helping him, and when he died I took it over."

Hussey manufactures the bats, under his own label, through July. Then he works for an antique dealer.

"I make handles for the things they dig up," Hussey said. "They dig up those old antiques, sometimes I don't even know what they are, and they tell me to put handles on them, so I do."

"You know what those antique dealers are getting for old broadaxes? About $24. We used to pay 50 cents for them, or pick them up on the dump."

Hussey works by himself, using an old lathe and a sander he made himself, except he has someone come in to split the 40 inch logs from which the bats are made.

"I bought the lathe and made the sanding machine myself, land sakes, that must have been 25 years ago, made it out of an old sewing machine and a mowing machine," he said.

Hussey works every day, either on the bats or with antique dealers. "I work all the time," he said, "I always have some work ahead."

His usual busy schedule was interrupted last fall when he had an accident that put him in bed for eight weeks.

"I fell through the floor," Hussey said. "I went upstairs to the shop and there's a hole in the floor with a cover over it, and the cover was gone and in I went.
I was hung up in there for quite a while."

"I skun one leg bad, and was laid up for quite a while. But I'm back again."

Hussey played baseball as a youngster and still loves the game. He's a Boston Red Sox fan, but he won't predict how the team will do this year.

"I imagine they'll win," he said. "And they'll lose."

$336,817 For ECU Projects

A total of $336,817 was received by six East Carolina University schools and departments during April.

The largest amounts were awarded the ECU School of Allied Health and Social Professions by the U. S. Public Health Service.

Federal grants were received for projects in physical therapy, occupational therapy and medical technology. The ECU-based Alcoholism Training Program for North Carolina received $106,318 from the N. C.
Division of Mental Health.

Other ECU grants included awards from federal agencies and private foundations for research projects in biology, health and physical education, history and philosophy.

Workshop Set For ECU

The Gregg Smith Singers will be featured at a special workshop for choral directors and students at East Carolina University this summer.

The workshop, "Choral Music in America," is scheduled for July 6-11. It is a cooperative offering of the ECU School of Music and the ECU Division of Continuing Education.

Gregg Smith and the Gregg Smith Singers are well known performers of various types of choral music, particularly American compositions. Their most recent recordings are three volumes of American music which were released earlier this year.

According to an ECU spokesman, the Singers have established a reputation as a first-rate choral group both as live performers and as recording artists. The Singers have toured widely through out the U. S. and Europe.

Among the workshop activities are lecture-demonstration sessions on American choral music through Charles Ives, twentieth century American choral music, building choral sound appropriate to the music, conducting techniques for new choral concepts and choral theater and multi-dimensional sound.

The workshop will include several rehearsal sessions, involving the Gregg Smith Singers, workshop participants and a select high school choir.

The high school choir, to be composed of 32 singers, will include recipients of four scholarships supplied by Burrage Music Co. of Raleigh.

College credit will be awarded on three levels: graduate, under-graduate and pre-college (for high school students).

Further information and registration materials are available from Dr. Charles Moore at the ECU School of Music or from the ECU Division of Continuing Education, Box 2727, Greenville.

ECU Symphony Spring Concert Today

The East Carolina Symphony Orchestra will present its final concert of the year today at 3:15 p.m. in Wright Auditorium, conducted by Robert Hause. Soloists will be Kenneth Davis, Gary Fountain, Donna Grose, Linda Metz, and Melissa Thrasher.

These five students were selected by the faculty of the School of Music in the Concerto Competition held in the fall of 1973. The purpose of the Concerto Competition is to identify and select the most outstanding student performers enrolled in the School of Music to perform each year with the orchestra.

Solo works on today's program are: "Una voce poco fa" from Rossini's The Barber of Seville; Flute Concerto by Rivier; Piano Concerto No. 1 by Prokofiev; "Toreador Song" from Bizet's Carmen; and "Symphonic Variations" for Piano and Orchestra, by Caesar Franck.

The program will open with the Prelude to Wagner's Die Meistersinger von Nuernberg and conclude with Igor Stravinsky's great 20th century masterpiece, Petroushka.

The concert is open to the public without charge.

Music On Campus

Three concerts and three student recitals are scheduled this week for Music on Campus. Unless otherwise noted, all events are to be held in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall at the time and date listed, and all are free.

Today: 3:15 p.m., Wright Auditorium. East Carolina University Symphony Orchestra annual spring concert. (See separate story this page).

Monday: 7:30 p.m., Miss Virginia Mark Edmondson, senior vocal recital; and John Charles Bryan, Jr., French horn, recital.

Miss Edmondson, a native of Maury, is a student of Dr. Charles Moore. She will be accompanied by Anne Manning. Selections she has chosen are: "Per la gloria d'adorarvi," Bononcini; Non so piu cosa son from Mozart's opera La Nozze di Figaro; Che fiero Costume, Legrenzi; Schubert's Heidenroslein; Schumann's Die Lotusblume; Wolf's Und willst du Deinen liebsten sterben sehen; Schubert's Der Schmetterling; Evening, by Ives; My Days Have Been So Wonderful, Hopkinson; and Long Time Ago, Copland.

Winston-Salem native Bryan is a student of James Parnell. He will be accompanied by Laura C. Grant, and assisted by Robert Thomas and Andrea Harman. The five compositions he will play are: Haydn's Concerto in D, No. II; Mozart's Horn Concerto No. 4 in E Flat (The Romanza); Hindemith's Sonata for Horn; Gardner Read's Poem; and Beethoven's Trio for Three Horns, (the finale).

9:00 p.m., Leroy Bland, senior recital, clarinet. Bland, a native of Robersonville, is a student of Herbert Carter. He will be accompanied by Karen Keating, piano; and assisted by Candace Flowers, clarinet; Linda Wagner, clarinet; and Keith Bailey, clarinet. His selections are Saint-Saens' Sonata, Opus 167; Ralph Vaughan Williams' Studies in English Folk Songs; and T. Stewart Smith's Suite for Four Equal Clarinets.

Wednesday: 8:15 p.m. East Carolina String Quartet. (See separate story this page).

Thursday: 4:00 p.m. The lawn in front of the School of Music. (See separate story this page).

Former Local Writer Heads Texas Program

Mrs. Betty Casey, formerly of Greenville and a frequent contributor of feature and women's page articles to The Daily Reflector during the years she lived here, was coordinator of the Second Annual Texas Writers Roundtable held Saturday at Ingram Texas.

A number of distinguished writers appeared at the day long event, including Maggie (Margaret) Cousins, former editor of Good Housekeeping, Ladies Home Journal, and Doubleday publishers; Giles Tippet, who has written non-fiction works such as The Brave Men, Saturday's Children; and novels—The Trojan Cow and The Bank Robber; and Vera Webster, general editor for Golden Press in New York.

Other writers on the program were Byron W. Dalrymple, contributor to Outdoor Life, True, Argosy, Field and Stream, and author of a number of sportsmen books; John Igo, a San Antonio poet and playwright; Carlton Stowers, Linda W. Eckhardt, Helen Reagan, Eleanor Friede (the editor who finally decided to give Johnathan Livingston Seagull a chance), and Mrs. Casey.

String Quartet Concert Thursday

The East Carolina String Quartet of the East Carolina University School of Music will appear in concert Wednesday, May 15, at 8:15 p.m. in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall on campus.

Big Bands Play Today

A "Jazz for Sunday Evening" program will be presented tonight at 8:15 in the Recital Hall of the A. J. Fletcher Music Center by the East Carolina Jazz Ensembles.

The program will feature two big bands, a number of smaller ensembles and the Pamlico Sount—a student rock ensemble.

The two big bands, under the direction of George Broussard and George Neff, will perform music written for band leaders such as Buddy Rich, Woody Herman, Count Basie and Billy May. In style, the music on the program will range from Swing to Rock.

There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

Music On The Lawn

A spring music making event will take place on the lawn in front of the School of Music at 4:00 p.m. Thursday, May 16, when George Naff conducts the ECU Concert Band.

Selections listed for the concert are Sousa's El Capitan; The Girl I Left Behind Me, Anderson; Emperata, by Smith; Concerto for Horn, with Andrea Harmon, soloist and Gary Beauchamp, conducting; Maltby's Hall to the Fleet; Missal's Concertante for Percussion and Band, with

A Pilot Art Project Offering Fun, Challenges

It's a first time program and the kids are wide-eyed and happy about it. As a pilot experiment, about a dozen East Carolina University School of Art students—majors in ceramics and sculpture, under faculty member Charles Chamberlain, were on hand Thursday at Agnes Fullilove Kindergarten School to show the little ones that art is fun as well as being challenging.

The Community Arts Management Class, under the guidance of faculty member Ray Elmore, is designed to give art students on-the-spot training in working directly with children; and to let young children see what they can do with materials, particularly modeling clay.

"It's working out splendidly," Chamberlain said. "I hope it's something we'll be able to get into more next year. There's a lot of potential in a program like this."

Each kindergarten class had their turn in going outside to watch and to try their hand in making small items from clay at tables placed under the trees. Naturally, when it came to metal welding or carving ice with sharp knives, they could only watch. But they gave their avid attention to Mary Langston. Masked in dark goggles, bit by bit she added metal wire to an abstract sculpture. The moment Glenn Eure finished carving a three foot high ice bird, the children broke ranks to feel the bird, and to take cold licks.

Art students giving demonstrations in this first Community Arts Management Class were Charlie Davis, Larry Benfield, Mike Scharf, Mary Cromartie, Debbie Bryant, Katherine Myers, Ed Weintraub, Glenn Eure and Mary Langston.

Plans are to leave a permanent souvenir of the student artists' visit. This will be in the form of a wood and metal sculpture that will also be a play item for the playground area.

Things To Know About Your Car

The Time-Life Book of the Family Car. John Paul Porter, editor, New York, N.Y., Time-Life Books, 1973. 358 pages. $14.95.

Attention: If you, the reader, find yourself in one of the following categories, then The Time-Life Book of the Family Car is a must for your bookshelf.

1. Anyone whose knowledge of his or her car stops at the ignition switch;
2. An individual who has a basic set of tools (screwdriver, pliers, etc.) in the car, but doesn't know what to do with them;
3. An individual who has a basic set of tools, works on his own car, and then has a mechanic repair what was originally wrong with it plus whatever he has broken;
4. An individual who consistently, when buying another car, buys a lemon, or;
5. An individual who gives a mechanically knowledgeable friend an ulcer with his never-ending car troubles.

At the present time, my copy of this book is circulating among a few of my friends who have fallen into the above categories.

Seriously, the purchase of this book should save the reader substantial sums of money in future dealings with cars, mechanics, and car dealers. The book explains in an interesting manner how a car functions. It breaks the car up into systems, i.e. fuel system, electrical system, cooling system, and oil lubricating system, and explains how each works. All explanations are accompanied by color coded pictures of the systems. The explanations are kept short and are simple enough for anyone to understand, yet they are detailed enough to be consistently helpful.

The book also includes a section on buying a new car, how to get the one you want at the best price. There are also sections on used cars, financing, insurance, maintenance, and repairs. For the individual who would like to learn how to do minor repairs on his car and thus save himself some garage expenses, there is a section devoted to do-it-yourself. It carries the reader, step-by-step through such things as changing oil, replacing the spark plugs, points and condensers, and servicing the cooling system. All instructions are accompanied by illustrations.

Finally, there are sections devoted to driving your car, recreational vehicles and the car of the future.

The Time-Life Book of the Family Car is a well-thought-out book which I think many will enjoy reading. And it might save you some money, too.

Featured in "Natura-Science Annual 1974."

New Studies and Discoveries

Nature-Science Annual 1974 Edition. Chicago, Time-Life Books, 1974. 192 pps, illustrated, $5.95.

Combining easy reading with superb photography, the editors of the 1974 Time-Life Annual bring together 14 scientifically important studies and discoveries of the past year. From the remote edges of our galaxy to the newest digs of the archeologists, life, and past life, is magnified to a degree which stimulates the reader toward a greater appreciation of himself and our complex world.

On July 23, 1972 an eye-in-the-sky called the Earth Resources Technology Satellite was launched, which received only a tid-bit coverage by the news media. But the Nature-Science Annual, in its "Earth Inventory From Space" article, offers 12 pages of information, using beautiful color photographs taken 570 miles above the earth's surface.

One of the most impressive accomplishments of the ERTS pictures documented a record Mississippi flood, providing for the first time an over-all view of a flood in the making and a quick assessment of the extent of damage without time-consuming surveys on the ground.

For the ecology-conscious reader, this annual contains an article on "Turning Garbage into Gold." The opening sentence reflects our complacency over waste, yet depicts hope for the future:

"Historians of the future may look back at 1973 as the year the Throwaway Society began to mend its ways." A two-page detail of a trash disassembly line gives an idea of the proposed solid-waste recovery plant for Hempstead, Long Island. Borrowing machinery from paper, scrap-metals, mining and wine-making industries, the plant would convert 2,000 tons of refuse a day into one million kilowatts of electricity.

The annual takes the reader into the boggy depths of the Great Dismal Swamp.

A dozen color photographs, which were taken in early spring and away from the canals and logging trails, capture the beauty of passion vine, turkey-tail fungi, yellow jessamine, and the delicate fiddleheads of cinnamon ferns.

Many people fear that the Dismal Swamp, the northernmost of the great southern swamps, is being destroyed by large lumber companies and land-clearing operations. But this article, "A Swamp Revisited," tells of an eleventh-hour reprieve in 1973. Union Camp Corporation, the largest owner of property in the swamp, donated its entire 50,000-acre holding to the Nature Conservancy, a nonprofit organization devoted to saving wilderness acres. It was interesting to find that one animal, the Dismal Swamp short-tailed shrew, is found nowhere else in the world.

In the last 20 pages of the 1974 Nature-Science Annual is a brief review of events, discoveries and developments, ranging from animal behavior to zoology. This portion is as intriguing as the Weekly Reader of our school days.

The reader of this Annual will find nothing dogmatic in its contents. In fact it could be a humbling experience in that it shows him a greater world does exist just beyond the limits of his own common vision.

Reception Today

A public reception today from 3 to 5 p.m. is being held at the Mint Museum of Art in Charlotte honoring four Greenville artists.

The four—Janet Fisher, Kelly Adams, and John and Dorothy Satterfield, will have on view a collection of jewelry, photographs and weavings.

This is the final exhibition point for the traveling show, formed by the four artists, which has been on view in a number of southern cities for several months.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By WILLIE MAE GIBBS

THE FAN CLUB, a new novel by Irving Wallace is launched on the idea that man's ultimate erotic fantasy is the longing and desire for a perfect sexual partner. The story develops around four very different men who turn from their unsatisfying, ordinary lives to an obsession of the magnificent young movie star, Sharon Fields. These four men—Adam Malone, a gentle idealist devoted to being a one-man fan club of Sharon Fields; Howard Yost, an unsuccessful insurance agent whose life seems pointless compared with his past football glories and sexual reveries; Leo Brunner, a mild-mannered accountant haunted by the full hopelessness of his life and marriage; and Kive Shively, a coarse, bitter redneck garage mechanic—join forces to create The Fan Club and conspire to convert their fantasies of Sharon Fields to reality. Their brilliantly conceived kidnap plan and its success, the playing out of each man's repressed sexual wish in the mountain cabin chose as a hideaway, Sharon Fields' reckless use of histrionic talents and wiles to play one man against another in a desperate and deadly sex game—all are described with mounting tension in THE FAN CLUB.

Frank Yerby, the master storyteller, has brought together all of the great qualities of his talents in THE VOYAGE UNPLANNED, his twenty-fifth novel. In this story which deals with men in battle searching for a place to love and for identity and integrity, Mr. Yerby has even gone a step beyond searing battle scenes, passion, vivid characterization, and riveting plot. He has added a remarkable insight into modern history, moving the reader from war-torn France to modern Israel, climaxing in Madrid.

John Farrow and Simone Leby—comrades-in-arms—are the principal characters in Mr. Yerby's new book. Even though they met in an environment where mere survival was a great task, their vitality and fierce energy allowed them time to love. Their story is a thrilling tale of a love that triumphs over war, world strife, and the fragmentation of modern existence.

In her second novel, A COLD WILD WIND, Frances Casey Kearnes, tells the powerful and poignant story of a beautiful and willful young girl named Jill Blankenship. Chilled by the Montana winds that howled through the cracks in the walls of the shack where she grew up, haunted by hunger, and denied affection and tender closeness, Jill yearned for money—the right kind of money position and gilt-edge security. A need for love which she was afraid to admit sometimes caused her to bargain. Sometimes, as with the young rancher Ross Harlan, there was no bargaining; just miraculous, open love. Seeing such occasions as momentary lapses in her single-minded drive for success, Jill sacrifices Ross's love, the illegitimate son, and much more as she clawed her way to the top of Denver society by way of a loveless marriage to Denver's most eligible young bachelor. Too late, she realized that she who knew the price of everything knew the value of nothing.

A War Novel About Innocents

The Barking Deer, by Jonathan Rubin. New York, George Braziller, Inc., Publisher. 1974. 335 pps, $7.95

An old legendary tale of the Montagnard people of the Central Highlands of South Vietnam tells about Kra the Tiger and Bru the Eagle fighting over a muntjac (barking deer). Both claimed they only wanted to give the muntjac a proper home. They fought and tore at each other, becoming themselves bloody and mangled, and hurting the helpless muntjac. Finally, exhausted, they discovered their quarry is no more—just a wet splotch, a smear of blood.

To this day, the forest muntjac bark out the story of how it was in the days of Kra and Bru, a warning for all to hear.

Using this ancient tale as a framework, David Rubin has written a novel about these shy, home loving, ancestor worshipping hill people again caught up between two opposing forces seeking to win their loyalty. The 20th century Kra and Bru are the Viet Cong and the joint American-South Vietnamese military forces.

The Barking Deer has the ring of authenticity. The author served two years, 1962 to 1964, as a Special Forces sergeant among the tribal people of which the Rhade is the major tribe. The book is rich in the knowledge of tribal lore and superstition that can only be gained by one who has had the experience of living among these people.

Rubin is a master of the art of developing characters—there are many unforgettable ones in this book. Wise old fun-loving Grandmother Pan for example: "She had trouble chewing and threading a needle and doubtless would have had a hard time doing the boogaloo. She had a bruise on one of her toes from kicking a pig in the ribs, and a crick in her neck from craning to see who was sneaking off with whom—usually with Mrs. Y Bong. She also had a roughish way of meeting you grin-on and peppery-eyed and poking through your pockets for treats."

American Sergeant Moon, whom the inhabitants of Buon Yun village loved because he respected their beliefs and superstitions and had formed a bond of close friendship with Rhadeo, the brightest lad in the village, is described by Rubin as "Growing up into a lean, straight young man with dark watching eyes and a mouth forever reshaping itself with his faraway thoughts. Moon the great dreamer. The great one for doing anything once. Fascinated by everyday things, but mostly by new things and also things you did only once. Exploring here, exploring there. Still fascinated, most of all, by the prospect of traveling to far distant places and living a far distant life."

The Barking Deer is a taut, fast moving story, where the stray ends of so many misunderstandings, so many little complex resentments of the human heart lead inexorably to the tragedy of terrible and useless deaths. The tragedy is all the more real in that we deeply care for these people.

Though not sympathizing with their cause, we cannot but help admire the tenacious dedication of the enemy, his willingness to undergo the harshest sacrifices for his cause. Rubin does not glamorize the enemy, but he does confirm what any who have served in Vietnam know, that he is indeed a formidable foe.

Like the sturdy fabrics woven by the Montagnard women, The Barking Deer is a tightly woven chronicle of hopes and dreams, of fears and despair experienced by the many totally fascinating characters populating this book.

The Barking Deer is not, however, just a dark story of war and death. It is a shining example that in man's adversity there's the minor joys of day to day life—the embrace of a lovely girl, the finding of a special dew drop in a christening rite. Rubin has found in the Montagnards of Vietnam and in the lives of those fate brought to their remote area a warm and compelling human story. He has told it beautifully.

High Gasoline Usage Means Back To The Line-Ups

By RICHARD M. HARNETT
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Oil company officials are warning that if Americans keep using gasoline as extravagantly as they have in recent weeks it will be back to the old line-up at the service station.

"Anyone on the road today can see what is happening," said D.H. Bower, director of marketing for Standard Oil Company of California. "The wonderful effort of people generally to cut down on demand is going by the boards now that the embargo is lifted."

Bower warned that, although there are few service station lines now, the over-all quantity of gasoline available is going to be less than the demand for the foreseeable future.

"It's a tough one to handle," he said in an interview. "How do you convince the public that they are going to have to keep the 'conservation ethic' without getting back to the extreme situation that we had?"

Makes About Face

"But, believe me, a long term tight situation is really with us, and unless we conserve, we will be right back with the gasoline lines."

Standard executives concede that until the Arab embargo they themselves were not thinking shortage.

"We were a little late in discovering how much demand was increasing," said Eneas D. Kune, research director. "A year ago we found that demand was up 6 per cent. It had been running with a 3 to 4 per cent annual increase."

The company says its policy has made a 180-degree turn — from promoting consumption to promoting conservation of gasoline.

It has also undertaken a huge refinery building program to increase output. Officials note that, no matter how much oil is available, the quantity of gasoline is limited by refinery capacity and the refineries are now running at full speed.

Present Cost Normal

Bower says he doubts that supply-demand economics will do the job. "Theoretically it is possible that the price could rise to the point where demand leveled off. But I don't know where that level is. In Europe and some Asian countries, the rate of price increases has been larger than here. The price is double what it is here and there is still the demand."

Although gasoline price increases have sent Standard's profits skyrocketing, the company does not feel the price is out of line.

"If you go back 10 years and compare the price, you see the present cost of gasoline, compared to other commodities, is normal, mainly because for the first eight years of that 10-year period it was very depressed," said Bower.

Keep Engine Tuned

Changing from a "consumption" policy to a "conservation" policy has involved widespread adjustments at the oil company. Marketing people who had been taught that success was selling more of the product had to be retrained to the idea that success is getting customers to hold their needs to last year's level.

"We will not take on new business that makes us furnish lesser amounts to our present customers," said Bower. "Our sales representatives are sitting down with customers, teaching them what they can do to stretch whatever gallons they get."

Standard has prepared a list of tips for consumers on how to get more miles per gallon. Basically, the advice is to keep your engine tuned, drive at moderate speeds (most cars give four more miles per gallon at 50 mph than at 70 mph), and plan trips intelligently.

To show that it is 100 per cent behind energy conservation in all respects, the company has cut down on lighting and lowered the thermostats at its offices and plants. This week the government awarded Standard a citation for saving energy under the "business and industry Energy Management Program" of President Nixon.

Historical Society To Hear Price

Dr. Charles Price, member of the faculty in the Department of History at East Carolina University, will be the speaker for the meeting of the Pitt County Historical Society to be held at the Ramada Inn on Thursday. Dr. Price will speak on the Reconstruction Period that followed the War Between the States with special emphasis on Pitt County and this area of North Carolina.

Dr. Price did his undergraduate work at Davidson College and received his Ph. D. at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He is a recognized authority in the area of Reconstruction history.

A report will be given by the Nominating Committee, of which Charles A. White of Greenville, is chairman. This committee will present a slate of officers for the society for 1974-1975.

A special tribute of appreciation for the late Mrs. Pattie Bruce Wooten, long-time secretary of the Society and for many years one of the Society's most active members, will be presented by Dr. Ralph Hardee Rives.

Miss Annie Turner, secretary, asks that reservations be made with her for the dinner meeting no later than noon on Wednesday.

Reservations Deadline Near

The deadline for reservations for the Pitt County Mental Health Association luncheon featuring Nancy Covert Smith as speaker is this coming Friday.

The cost is $2.00. Checks should be made payable to the Pitt County Mental Health Association and mailed to PC-MHA, Box 167, Greenville.

Mrs. Smith is the author of Journey Out of Nowhere, a book about her nervous breakdown, treatment, and recovery.

A. J. Foyt Grabs Indianapolis Pole

By BLOYCE BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Crafty A. J. Foyt captured the front row pole position for the 58th Indianapolis 500 Saturday, standing aloof from a raging rules dispute that shot down some of his challengers.

Foyt, as flamboyant and frisky as he has been since his redhot rampage through racing in the 1960s, steered his low-slung, home-made Gilmore Racing Team Coyote around the ancient Indianapolis Motor Speedway at a four-lap average speed of 191.632 miles an hour.

It was by far the best speed of a controversial first round of trials to set up a field of 33 starters for the May 26 race.

It also was the highlight of a day that saw the 2½-mile "Brickyard" virtually taken over by streakers and unruly crowds during a three-hour rain delay.

One streaker was hurt when he attempted to climb a new observation tower at the start-finish line, and a security officer was injured when, track officials said, he was beaten up by a gang of spectators.

Earlier, a crew member of one of the race cars was hurt when he fell beneath his machine on Pit Road. Identified as Jim Vogrin of Easton, Pa., he was taken to Methodist Hospital for a compound fracture of his right leg.

Foyt was the first driver to make a qualifying run on a day that opened with bright sunshine and ended in thunder-showers. He took only one warmup lap before setting off on a 10-mile run that gave him his first pole starting spot at Indy since 1969.

His first circuit was his fastest, 192.555 m.p.h. But he slowed slightly on each succeeding lap as he completed the four circuits in an elapsed time of 3 minutes, 7.86 seconds.

Nine other drivers made their runs before the rain came, and five others got into the lineup before another downpour closed the circuit for good.

Before the rain, however, Wally Dallenbach nailed the middle front row position with a speed of 189.683 m.p.h. in an Eagle-Offy and slender Mike Mosley claimed the outside berth with 185.319 in a Lodestar-Eagle.

The second row positions went to Tom Sneva, a 25-year-old former school teacher, with 185.149 m.p.h. in a Kingfish-Offy; 1968-winner Bobby Unser, 185.176 in an Olsonite-Eagle; and Britisher David Hobbs, the only foreigner in the field, 184.833 in a McLaren-Offy.

A number of drivers still were eligible to make what will be considered first-round qualifying runs next Saturday. And, though Foyt appears to be untouchable in his pole spot, technically they will be eligible to bump him out of it.

Still left in the first-round group is Gordon Johncock, the 1973 winner; second-year man Mike Hiss in one of Roger Penske's McLarens; and Mario Andretti, the 1969 champion, who abandoned his original entry and will try to qualify a backup Eagle.

The rules dispute arose during the three-hour rain delay.

Al Unser and last year's record-setting pole winner, Johnny Rutherford, were eliminated from contention for the No. 1 spot by a rule they claimed they didn't understand.

Rutherford, who shattered the Speedway's lap standards a year ago with one circuit at 199.071 m.p.h. and four at 198.413 m.p.h., had cracked an engine during an early morning practice session.

He had logged an unofficial lap at 191.071 but suddenly found himself faced with an engine change with very little time left to do it.

Rutherford's Team McLaren crew completed the job in about two hours, but the delay prevented him from getting into the qualifying lineup by the 11 a.m. deadline listed in the rules.

Tom Binford, the track's new chief steward, said Rutherford's failure to have his car in line at the designated time eliminated him from the list eligible for the pole.

Not only that, the ruling placed the Fort Worth, Tex. veteran so far down the line that he couldn't make his run on the first day.

Also a victim of the rule was Al Unser, the 1970-71 winner, who had broken a piston in the earlier practice but wheeled his repaired machine to the line with several other qualifiers still ahead of him.

Rutherford and Al Unser protested the ruling vigorously, saying they understood they were required only to appear in the line of cars waiting to qualify well ahead of their turn on the track.

"You're kidding," Rutherford fumed when told he wouldn't be eligible for the pole. "When did they change the rules. That's different from anything else we've ever had before."

Binford responded, "It's as simple as that. They didn't show up at 11 a.m. and they forfeited their chance."

All the while, Foyt waited in his garage for what was left of the challengers to shoot at his mark.

Other first day qualifiers included Gary Bettenhausen, 184.492 in a Penske-McLaren; Jimmy Caruthers, 184.049 in a Cobre-Eagle; George Snider, 183.993 in Foyt's other entry; Steve Krisloff, 182.519 in an Eagle; Billy Vukovich, 182.500 in an Eagle; Jerry Grant, 181.781 in a companion car to Caruthers'; Lloyd Ruby, 181.699 in an Eagle; Bill Simpson, 181.051 in an Eagle; and Duane Carter Jr., 181.605 in an Eagle.

HAPPINESS IS RAIN—Three-time Indy 500 winner A. J. Foyt smiles with members of his crew after they completed qualifications for the 58th annual race at an average speed of 191.632 m.p.h., well ahead of the other qualifiers. Rain halted the trials, assuring him of the position for the May 26 race. (AP Wirephoto)

Angry Hill Vaults Into Lead Of Houston Tourney

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

HOUSTON (AP)—Dave Hill, still angry from the treatment he received at this event a year ago, hammered out a five-under-par 67 and moved into a tie with Steve Melnyk for the second-round lead Saturday in the rain-delayed $150,000 Houston Open Golf Tournament.

"I just want to get even," said the intense, controversial Hill, who had a two-round total of 137, seven under par for two trips over the wet and soggy 6,905-yard Quail Valley Golf Club course.

Melnyk got a piece of the lead with a brilliant 65, seven under par, despite hitting a ball in the water.

"I don't think that I'm playing good enough to win, but I'm gonna try," said the tough, wiry, little Hill. "I'm still hot at the (sponsoring) Houston Golf Association. I will continue to be hot at them. Even if I win."

"I want to get even. That's the only reason I'm playing here."

Hill explained that he was refused permission to withdraw from this tournament last year when he was snowbound at his home in Evergreen, Colo. He got here, played one round and withdrew.

"It cost me $500 to play one round. I want to get even," he repeated.

Melnyk, who had the day's best round, and Hill shared a one stroke advantage over tour sophomore Tom Kite and Australian Bob Stanton going into Sunday's double round of 36 holes.

Friday's scheduled second round was washed out by a series of thunderstorms that dumped almost three inches of rain on the course and made it wet and heavy, spotted by pools and puddles of casual water for Saturday's round.

Stanton and Kite were tied at 138, Kite after a 71 and Stanton with a second round 68.

Wally Armstrong, the raw rookie who had shared the first round lead with Kite, matched par 72 and was tied at 139—just two shots back—with hometown hero Kermit Zarley. Zarley had a 67 in the hot, muggy, almost windless weather.

There was a group of a dozen at 140, among them were rookie Ben Crenshaw, defending champion Bruce Crampton of Australia and Houston's own Homero Blancas, who got into contention by holing a 160-yard second shot for an eagle two on his last hole.

Most of the game's glamor names are skipping this tournament which immediately precedes next week's Colonial National, a designated tournament in which they are required to play. Among the missing are Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller, Lee Trevino, Tom Weiskopf, Arnold Palmer and Gary Player.

Hill, a veteran of 16 years on the tour, has a life-long history of controversy. He caused international headlines with his criticism of the 1970 United States Open Course and once filed a multimillion dollar law suit against the PGA.

Never before, however, had he tried to win because he was mad at the tournament sponsors.

"That's the only reason I'm playing here," he insisted.

Hill, who said he got a putting tip from Ryder Cup captain Jack Burke, holed putts of 20, 15 and 15 feet for three of his birdies, ripped a six-iron second shot to within three feet of the flag for an eagle three on the 10th, made one bogey when he missed the green on the next hole, and got it back with a three-iron shot that set up an eight-foot putt for a duce on the 14th.

Melnyk, who has known little but frustration and disappointment since joining the tour with gaudy amateur credentials three years ago, made a bogey from the water on the fourth, twice holed birdie putts of 15 feet, hit irons inside of eight feet for six more birdies and missed only one green.

He matched the course record and didn't have a five on his card.

Orioles Rip Indians, 12-1

CLEVELAND (AP)—Rookie Jim Fuller hit two home runs and Bobby Grich one while Baltimore's Mike Cuellar limited Cleveland to five hits as the Orioles chased Fritz Peterson in the first inning and routed the Indians 12-1 Saturday.

Paul Blair opened the game for Baltimore with a double. Peterson, 2-1, retired the next two batters, but consecutive singles by Earl Williams, Don Baylor and Brooks Robinson gave the Orioles a 2-0 lead.

Fuller, who entered the game with one homer, hit a solo shot in the Orioles' three-run seventh and a two-run homer in the eighth. Both came off Ken Sanders, the fourth Cleveland pitcher. Grich homered off Sanders in the ninth.

The Orioles scored two runs in the fourth off Dick Bosman and two more in the sixth off Fred Beene.

Baltimore's Mark Belanger had four singles and a double of the Orioles' 22 hits and scored three times.

Baugh's 66 Puts Her In Contention

By Bob Cullen
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP)—Laura Baugh fired a 66 Saturday to move within two strokes of a stumbling Jo Ann Prentice after the second round of the $35,000 American Defender Golf Classic.

Miss Prentice, after threatening to run away with the tournament, bogeyed three of the last five holes for an even par 72 to fall back to within range of the pack. After her opening round 65 she was at 137, seven under par. Miss Baugh rolled in eight birdy putts in recording her lowest professional round. She caught some trees on two holes for her only bogeys.

She was also the clear gallery favorite. Dressed in pink hot pants, the kitchensh blonde had most of the men on the course following her.

Dropping to third place was Debbie Austin, who "struggled all day" for a 73 that gave her a 140 total, one shot behind Miss Baugh.

In a group at 141 were Gail Denenberg with a 70, Carolyn Kertzman with a 71 and defending champion Judy Rankin with a 71.

Yaz Is Hero In Boston Win, 8-5

DETROIT (AP)—Carl Yastrzemski doubled home the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning and scored on a throwing error as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Detroit Tigers 8-5 Saturday.

Carlton Fisk singled with two out in the eighth and scored when Yastrzemski doubled to left-center, making a loser of relief ace John Hiller, 5-1. Yastrzemski continued home when the relay from shortstop Eddie Brinkman hit Fisk and rolled away.

Boston added a run in the ninth on a punt by Juan Beniquez, Rick Burleson's single and an error by center fielder Mickey Stanley.

The Red Sox had overcome a 4-0 deficit with three runs in the fifth, one on a single by Fisk, and a pair in the sixth on a two-run single by Fisk. Detroit tied the score at 5-5 with a run in the seventh off reliever Juan Marichal and scored on a throwing error as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Detroit Tigers 8-5 Saturday.

Horton drove in two runs with a double in the third off Rogelio Moret following run-scoring singles by Al Kaline and Sutherland. Eddie Brinkman started the outburst with a double and Dick Sharon walked.

Beniquez opened the Boston fifth with a double off Joe Coleman and came around on infield hits by Burleson and Tommy Harper. Fisk singled the second run across and a pair of walks forced in the third.

Burleson's double and an error by second baseman Sutherland preceded Fisk's two-run hit in the sixth.

Carolina Dairy, Builders, Planters Take Ruth Wins

Carolina Dairy, Home Builders and Planters Bank picked up victories in the Babe Ruth League yesterday afternoon.

Carolina Dairy downed College View, 5-4, while Home Builders bopped Pepsi-Cola, 11-3.

The afternoon opened with Planters Bank taking a 4-2 victory over North Carolina National Bank.

NCNB pushed over one in the top of the first. Doug Selby walked and stole second. He took third on Joel Clark's single and scored when a pickoff attempt was errored.

Planters came back with one in the bottom of the first. Buddy Boyd reached on two-base error. He scored when Freager Sanders singled and was then thrown out trying to go to second.

Planters took the lead with three in the second. Calvin Williams singled and Mac Stokes got a hit. Jarvis Campbell also singled, loading the bases. Greg Lassiter singled in Williams, and both Stokes and Campbell scored when the ball was bobbled.

NCNB got its only other run in the third. Selby walked and took second on a passed ball. A wild pitch let him go to third, and he scored on an error.

Greg Lassiter, who went all the way for Planters allowed only two hits, walking four and fanning eight.

In the second game, Home Builders pushed over three runs in the second inning. Thomas Bunch reached on a fielder's choice and Lance Weatherington walked. Greg Guthrie also walked, loading the bases. Reggie Selby singled, driving in both Bunch and Weatherington. Ronnie Chapman got another hit, scoring Guthrie.

Home Builders added four more in the third. Gary Allen walked and Bunch singled. An error on the play let both advance, and Weatherington singled in both of them. Guthrie reached on an error after he struck out, and Weatherington scored on the play. Passed balls moved Guthrie to third, and he scored when Chapman grounded out.

Pepsi-Cola got one in the fourth. Henry Baker walked and moved up on a wild pitch. Derek Brewington singled him in.

The Builders got it back right away. Wright Hooks reached on a hit and moved to third on an error on a pickoff attempt. He scored on another error, on the relay.

In the sixth, the Builders got three more. Timmy Allen singled, stole second and Ken Koontz walked. Both moved up on a passed ball and David French walked. Mark Conway walked to force over Allen and Hooks singled in both Koontz and French.

The other two Pepsi runs came in the seventh. Tony Worthington and Marty Worthington both walked. They advanced on a balk and a passed ball scored Tony Worthington. Walks to Randy Lorimer, Chris Keys and Worth Albea forced over Marty Worthington.

In the final game, Carolina Dairy grabbed the lead with two in the first. Mike Sutton doubled and Jay Chenier singled. Joe Downing reached on an error, scoring Sutton, and a hit by Ross Hawkins brought in Chenier.

College View came up with a pair to tie it up in the second. Steve McClanahan singled and Randy Hodges walked. Gary Chapman walked to load them up and John Coffman's single brought McClanahan and Hodges over.

College View took the lead with two more in the third. Ricky Robinson walked and Darrel Roebuck singled. Larry Boyette got a hit, and an error let Robinson score. McClanahan reached on another error, scoring Roebuck.

Carolina Dairy rallied for four in the fourth to take the lead and claim the win. Michael Shank reached on a fielder's choice and was sacrificed up. Sutton singled him in and Chenier singled. An error on the relay let Sutton score and moved Chenier to third. He scored on Downing's double with the run that proved to be the winning one.

Buc Runners Star In Meet

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—East Carolina University placed in five events in the tough Pitt Invitational Track Meet held at the University of Pittsburgh yesterday.

The Bucs carried only eight people to the meet, and five of them came away with points in the meet.

Sammy Phillips finished second in the high hurdles with a time of 14.1 seconds, tying the East Carolina school record.

Larry Malone sailed out 24 feet, 2¼ inches in the long jump, losing only to an All-American who is the only man to beat him this year.

Maurice Huntley finished third in the 220-yard dash in 21.8 seconds, while Jerry Klas was fourth in the steeplechase in 9:15.8.

Junior Net Team Loses

Greenville's junior tennis team lost its second match of the year yesterday as Wilson took a 5-2 win claiming victories in all but two matches.

The Greenville team is now 3-2 for the year. The team will be meeting Tarboro next Saturday in Tarboro as it goes after its fourth win.

Rob Edmundson (W) defeated Tommy Stoughton, 8-3.

Keve Clayton (W) defeated Michael Hinsley, 8-5.

Steve Ross (W) defeated Brad Brown, 8-6.

Jess Rollins (G) defeated Jay Hemby, 8-1.

Frank Bolt (W) defeated Bart Green, 8-6.

Edmundson-Clayton (W) defeated Rawlins-Hinsley, 8-2.

Tom Ludwinsky-Steve Hobbs (W) defeated Jack Riley-Johnston, 8-6.

San Francisco In Rally Past Braves

ATLANTA (AP)—Tito Fuentes' two-run pinch double highlighted a six-run uprising in the sixth inning that carried the San Francisco Giants to an 8-7 victory over the Atlanta Braves Saturday.

Fuentes also delivered a run-scoring single as the Giants added two runs in the eighth.

The Giants entered the sixth inning trailing 2-0 but combined six hits with two Atlanta errors. The outburst included singles by Gary Matthews, Gary Thomasson, Dave Rader and Bobby Bonds.

Tom Bradley, 4-3, was the winner. He scattered eight hits before giving way to Elias Sosa in the seventh.

Garry Maddox opened the sixth with a double off loser Ron Reed, 5-3, and scored the Giants' first run on a single by Matthews. Thomasson also singled and the tying came home when second baseman Dave Johnson bobbled Chris Speier's grounder.

Rader's single put San Francisco ahead 3-2 and chased Reed in favor of Tom House. After Bradley forced Speier at third, Bonds singled a run across and Fuentes drilled his double.

The Giants picked up two decisive runs in the eighth on a pair of walks, Fuentes' single and a throwing error by left fielder Ralph Garr. Atlanta came back with two in the bottom of the seventh on a single, walk and a throwing error by shortstop Speier.

Exchange Tops Moose

The Exchange won their second straight Tar Heel Little League game yesterday, downing the Moose, 3-1. It was the first loss in two starts for the Moose.

The Moose scored first, getting their only run in the first inning. Mark Sasser reached on an error and was balled to second. He took third on an out and scored after Ricky West walked and David Carroll reached on an error.

The Exchange kept the Moose in check after that however, including halting a bases-loaded rally in the third.

In the second, the Exchange got all they needed with a trio of runs. John Williams reached on an error and Eric Deal was safe on a fielder's choice. Allen Clark singled, scoring Williams. An error let Deal come in and Clark scored when Mark Douglas reached on an error. That gave the Exchange a 3-1 lead, and they held it the rest of the way.

100 Yards In 9.0 Seconds

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Ivory Crockett ran a world record clocking of 9.0 night, shaving a 10th of a second off the 11-night, shaving a 10th of a second off the 11-year mark set by Bob Hayes and officially equalled by at least four others.

The fast time came at the Tom Black Classic Track Meet, sponsored by the University of Tennessee.

All-Sports Fete Monday

Rose High School will hold its annual All-Sports Banquet Monday night at 6:30 p.m. in the high school cafeteria.

The banquet will honor the Rampant athletes in the various sports participated in during the past school year. Trophies will be presented to the outstanding players in the sports, along with letters to those who earned them.

David Patton, the new head basketball coach at East Carolina University, will be the featured speaker of the evening.

Tickets are available from any member of the Rose High School coaching staff.

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY REELE

The unfortunate happenings of this past week—between the junior high school and the Babe Ruth League—must not be allowed to continue, nor to happen again.

No program in baseball has the right to destroy another, whether by design or accident. And what has happened in past years cannot be brought up as an excuse.

From all that we have been able to learn, the junior high school, and the high school coaches warned the Babe Ruth League what the consequences of the league's allowing the Aycock players to compete prior to the end of the junior high schedule would be.

Granted that these things had happened in the past. Two years ago, it was gotten away with—this is admitted. But in 1973 when the two schedules overlapped and boys played, they were declared ineligible for the final game. That game was still played, with the ineligible boys, but as far as the official records went, Wilson's Coon Junior High School won it by a forfeit.

At the same time, state officials warned the Greenville City School officials not to allow it to happen again. Any boy who played in the future, they were told, would be immediately declared ineligible, and if they continued in dual participation, the school system would be subject to fines by the North Carolina High School Athletic Association. This is a serious matter for all concerned.

Despite this, the Babe Ruth League tossed out a ruling it had made that would have prevented dual participation from happening. We are told that several of the coaches claimed they would not have enough players to participate in the first games—all of which did not and will not (even now) count in the standings. We are told that some of the parents of junior high school players wanted their sons to play for both teams. We have not been able to learn how many parents this involved, but we have been contacted by some who said they were not even aware of the meeting and had they known of the penalties involved they would not have allowed the boys to play.

At least one boy, in heartbreak, has declared he would not play any more Babe Ruth baseball.

It begins to look as though a few people pulled a railroad job on the Babe Ruth League. We do know there was some opposition—both by parents and by coaches—to allowing these boys to play.

But at no time, when the chips were down—Friday night—were any officials of the city school coaching staff contacted for their views. Neither Wilson McDowell, the Aycock coach, nor Bud Phillips, the City Athletic Director, were invited to this important meeting. If they had been there, perhaps things might have been different.

Nevertheless, at least one league coach warned of what would happen, but apparently he was not listened to.

We are not seeking to lay the blame on the Greenville Babe Ruth League as a whole. We do blame some few, however, who through either ignorance or indifference, allowed these boys to play and ruin their junior high school eligibility.

The importance of team play is to instill loyalty. Those who wrecked the junior high school program will have no gripes when and if those boys they hurt rebel.

The rule is there to protect the boy, not hurt outside teams. For instance we were told by one youth, now out of Babe Ruth, had played for the Aycock team. "I practiced two hours with Aycock, and then had to go and practice for two more hours with my Babe Ruth team. I got home around eight to eat, get bathed, and then I still had to do my homework," he said.

Now maybe some parents might not mind this, but I, as a Babe Ruth parent, would, and I can bet that most of the others would be opposed to it also.

There is no way that this can help a boy at all.

But what can be done?

This year, nothing can. The rule has been broken, not so much by the players, most of whom claim they did not know that they would lose their eligibility, but by those who rushed them into uniform for their own selfish reasons.

Next year, however, it will not happen again. Already the school system is thinking of how to avoid it. Players, when they come out for the team, will be warned of the rule. Parents will be made aware of this rule, and it might be a good idea to have them sign a consent slip showing this, along with a promise not to allow these boys to play in any other league until their season is completed. An effort will be made to get the Babe Ruth League and any other league that might be involved to either delay the start of its season until the junior high season is over, or to make it a set rule that competition will not be allowed to any boy who is—or was—a member of the Aycock team during the year, preventing some few from quitting to play when the Babe Ruth season starts.

New York Nets Take ABA Title

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Billy Buford can get married today with his best man, Larry Kenon, on hand after all.

The New York Nets saw to that when they belted Utah 111-100 Friday night to clinch the American Basketball Association championship.

While his teammates celebrated with a wild champagne and shower party, Kenon hurried to catch a plane to Chicago. His old teammate at Memphis State, Buford, was the reason.

If the Nets hadn't finished the Stars off Friday night, the two teams would have been back in Utah for a sixth game in their series tonight.

"I know that," said Kenon. "I kept telling the guys we couldn't lose this one. I've gotta be in Chicago."

Kenon obliged his pal with some clutch baskets down the stretch, helping the Nets pull away and clinch New York's first ABA title. The result left the capacity Nassau Coliseum crowd in a frenzy and the players had to fight their way into the dressing room. Kenon and guard John Williamson, two rookie starters, had 23 points and 15 points respectively. Second year man Brian Taylor had 19 and the old men of the starting lineup, 24-year-old Julius Erving had 20, and 26-year-old Billy Paultz, 21. "They said we'd fold under the pressure of the playoffs," said Kenon. "But inexperience doesn't mean you can't play. What is experience now? We won it."

The Nets started slowly and led by only two points at half-time, 50-48. "We felt fortunate to be up by two at the half," said playoff Most Valuable Player Erving, who had only seven points in the first half. "We felt our defense in the last two minutes of the first half had given us the lead and we decided we had to keep it up in the second half."

New York came out hot and opened a 10-point lead at 70-60. But the Stars bounced right back on the hot hand of Willie Wise, who led all scorers with 34 points. Utah caught New York and then went ahead of the Nets 95-94 with 4:46 to play.

Expos, 3-1

MONTREAL (AP) — Bob Bailey's two-run home run in the fourth inning backed Steve Renko's eight-hit pitching and carried the Montreal Expos to a 3-1 National League victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday.

Bailey hit a pitch by Sonny Siebert, 2-3 over the left-field fence for his fourth homer of the season after Ron Fairly had singled to lead off the inning.

The homer built the Expos' margin to 3-0. They had taken a 1-0 lead in the third inning on singles by winning pitcher Steve Renko, Tim Foli and Willie Davis.

Renko won his first game since April 16 to raise his record to 2-4. He gave up the Cardinals' run in the seventh when Mike Heintzelman doubled down the left field line and Bake McBride singled.

Astros, 4-2

CINCINNATI (AP) — Tom Griffin survived first-inning wildness to throw a four-hitter and Tommy Helms drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly Saturday, leading the Houston Astros to a 4-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Milt May set up the winning run with a walk in the fourth inning. He moved to third on Doug Rader's double and scored on Helms' sacrifice fly.

Griffin, 5-1, had walked only 22 batters in 48 innings before the game, walked three in the bottom of the first and two scored to tie the baseball game at 2-2. Pete Rose and Joe Morgan walked, then Johnny Bench doubled both home.

Bench later singled for another of Cincinnati's hits. George Foster and Ken Griffey had the others.

Brewers, 3-2

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave May's two-run homer in the second inning and Ken Berry's run-scoring single in the seventh helped the Milwaukee Brewers end a five-game losing streak Saturday with a 3-2 victory over the New York Yankees.

May connected with two out in the second inning and Darrell Porter on base after being hit by a pitch. May's third home run of the season came off loser Doc Medich, 5-2, who allowed only five other hits.

May scored what proved to be the winning run in the seventh. He singled, moved around to third on a sacrifice and a long fly ball and scored on Berry's single.

The Yankees scored off winner Jim Slaton, 4-3, on a leadoff homer in the bottom of the second by Chris Chambliss, his second. They got their other run in the eighth on singles by Thurman Munson and Ron Blomberg and Graig Nettles' sacrifice fly.

Athletics, 4-1

OAKLAND (AP) — Deron Johnson slugged a home run—one of five extra-base hits by Oakland Saturday—and the A's continued to a 4-1 triumph over the Minnesota Twins.

The A's scored a run before Minnesota starter could get anyone out in the first inning. Bill North opened with a double and Bert Campaneris tripled him home. Two outs later, Gene Tenace doubled to left center to bring home Campaneris.

Johnson's third home run of the baseball season came in the third inning, pushing the A's advantage to 4-0. Campaneris had opened the inning with a single, stolen second and gone to third when catcher Randy Hundley's throw to second base went into center field. He scored on Joe Rudi's sacrifice fly and Johnson hit his solo homer one out later.

The Twins came up with their run in the sixth, when Rod Carew singled and scored on Tony Oliva's double.

Mets, 6-3

CHICAGO (AP) — Cleon Jones, Don Hahn and Rusty Staub hit home runs and the New York Mets held off the Chicago Cubs 6-3 in a rain-delayed National League game Saturday.

Right-hander Craig Swan held the Cubs to just four hits in his six innings of work. But Ray Sadecki, who relieved at the start of Chicago's seventh inning, gave up the Cubs' runs and five hits.

Chicago raked Sadecki for three runs in the eighth, two of them scoring on pinch-hitter Andre Thornton's first major league home run. Harry Parker preserved Swan's first major league victory.

Jones hit his first homer of the season off Cub starter Ken Frailing, 2-2, in the fourth inning, giving New York a 1-0 lead.

The rains came after Chicago's half of the inning, causing a 40-minute delay.

Bucks, Celtics Go To Last Game

By DAVE O'HARA
AP Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — After a long, hard season, the Milwaukee Bucks and the Boston Celtics find themselves in a one-game showdown for the National Basketball Association championship.

The Bucks forced a seventh and deciding game set for Milwaukee Sunday afternoon by edging the Celtics 102-101 on Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's patented sky hook shot with three seconds left in the second overtime Friday night.

The 7-foot-2 center, averaging nearly 34 points in the first six games of the series, came through with his spectacular shot just four seconds after John Havlicek had given Boston a 101-100 lead.

Milwaukee called time after Havlicek's basket and sent in Jon McGlocklin for additional firepower. But Abdul-Jabbar elected to try his hook while moving toward the baseline. The ball dropped through the hoop cleanly and the Bucks had their second victory in three games in Boston. "It was supposed to be Jon's shot, but everybody else was covered so I took it," Abdul-Jabbar said after playing the entire 58 minutes along with teammate Oscar Robertson and Havlicek.

Boston's starting center Dave Cowens picked up his third foul early in the opening period and sat out 14 minutes of the first half as Milwaukee built a 47-40 lead.

"That hurt us, hurt us bad," Boston Coach Tommy Heinsohn said. "They also shot 60 per cent and we shot 35 per cent in the first half, but, hell, it was a great game."

"We had our chances," Boston's Paul Silas said. "Now it comes down to who wants it the most."

league. They will not allow any league to use the field in the future, under a plan they are considering, unless such guidelines are followed.

And we ask this. Why—in any league—must play start so early, and why must it end so quickly? We feel that too much emphasis is being placed on the 15 boys who make the All-Star teams. There are some who would just as soon see Greenville withdraw from any national organization and simply play a longer season—for the benefit of the boys, all the boys. As it is now, it cannot be called any type of summer recreation program since it is over so early.

The alternative might be to continue these national programs, but increase the number of players on the teams, say to 18. (We understand some have that number already.) Then, after the All-Stars have been chosen, allow them to go on their merry way and continue to allow the rest of the boys to play until at least mid-July. Then have a post-season tournament for these boys, giving them a true chance to play some ball and develop their skills.

What does it all boil down to anyway? Is Babe Ruth baseball, is Little League baseball something for the coaches or the parents, or the sponsors? Absolutely not! It is for the boys. So why not allow them to make the fullest use of it.

Bowling

The Greenville Men's Bowling Association recently completed its annual Championship Tournament.

The team of Earl Penny, William Moseley, William Harrell, Jaime Lagasca and Dallas Stocks captured first place in the team standings.

Rene Steiner and Roy Garver took the doubles, while O. H. Smithson was the single's winner. Earl Harris captured the all-events championship.

The high three-game series, scratch, was rolled by Harvey Nethercutt, while the high game, scratch, was posted by Roy Lee.

Suggs Stars In Sectional Track Meet

FINISH OF A FINE DAY—Carter Suggs of Tarboro High School crosses the finish line two-tenths of a second ahead of a Bertie Senior High School runner as he anchored the Vikings' mile relay team to victory. Suggs won the 100-yard dash, tying the national high school record of 9.3 seconds, then finished first in the 220 and third in the long jump. He will return to the ECU track next Friday for the Regionals. (Reflector Photo)

Tarboro High School's Carter Suggs tied the national high school record for the 100-yard dash again yesterday in the high school sectional track meet held at East Carolina University.

Suggs tied the mark for the first time last year in the meet, running a 9.3 second dash. The record was not made official however, because of windage. This year, however, the wind, although in his face, was below the maximum allowed, and the record will be official.

Suggs also won the 220-yard dash in a time of 21.2 seconds, and was third in the long jump with a leap of 21 feet, 9 1/2 inches. He finished off the afternoon by running the anchor leg on the mile relay team for Tarboro in a time of 3:26.6.

In that event, he had to make up over 10 yards during the final 440-yards and did so easily, finally winning by two-tenths of a second, a lifetime in track.

Suggs got plenty of challenge from a man he'll be running with for the next four years, Larry Austin of Jacksonville, who placed second to him in both of the dashes. Both are bound for East Carolina University next year. Austin ran the 100 in :9.4, and the 220 in :21.4.

Jacksonville captured the overall championship, gathering

36 points, while Bertie was second in 31, and Tarboro finished third with 29. West Cartaret finished fourth with 17, followed by New Bern with 16, Farmville Central with 15, Rose with 14, Greene Central with 12 and Kinston and New Hanover with 10 each.

Other schools scoring included: Northeastern 9, Wilson 8 1/2, South Lenoir 8, Ayden-Grifton 6, White Oak and Roanoke Rapids, 5 each, Jones Senior, Edenton Holmes and Scotland Neck, 4 each, South Edgecombe 3, Aurora, East Cartaret, Plymouth and Conley, 2 each, Williamston 1, and Camp Lejeune 1/2.

The top four finishers in each event qualified for next Friday's Regionals also to be held at East Carolina. Qualifiers from three different sections will meet here to determine entrants into the State meet.

In the mile relay, however, the five top finishers were qualified into the regionals. Rose High School, which finished fifth, was awarded a berth after protesting that they had been bumped by another team during one of the exchanges. The protest was upheld, allowing them the berth.

Ten individuals, plus the Rose 880 and mile relay teams picked up points in the events, but three of them failed to qualify for the regionals. Lindbert Morris of Rose qualified for both 220-yard dash and the triple jump, while A. J. Tyson qualified in the two-mile run.

From Greene Central, Lafon Forbes qualified in the shot put and the discus. He won the former with a toss of 52 feet, 1 3/4 inches. Little of Greene Central also qualified in the 440-yard dash.

Farmville Central's Ronnie Wilkes qualified in the long jump, the low hurdles and the triple jump, while Ray Hardy qualified in the 100 and 440-yard dashes. David Smith finished fifth in the 880-yard run, failing to qualify.

Williamston's Jeffrey Roberts was fifth in the high hurdles, while Conley's Calvin Hawkins was fifth in the 100.

Jesse Brown of Ayden-Grifton won the high jump with a leap of 6-5, qualifying for the regionals.

Besides Suggs, there were two other double winners, G. T. Johnson of Jacksonville, who own the long and triple jumps, and Marvin Rankins of Bertie, who took both of the hurdles.

Summary:

Robersonville Clinches Title

ROCK RIDGE—Robersonville clinched the championship of the North Division of the Eastern Plains Conference Friday night as Doyle Farmer threw a one-hit 5-0 win over Rock Ridge.

The game was the third in a row for the Eagles in which a no-hitter was spoiled in the last innings. Friday, Farmer lost his bid in the last of the seventh with two out when the RR batter singled with two strikes on him.

Farmer increased his season record to 5-0 striking out 11 and walking two Rock Ridge batters. The Eagles got all they needed in the first as Victor Hardison walked and went to second on a wild pitch. Jeff Warren reached on a two-base error letting Hardison score. Matt Wilson singled to drive in Warren and after Wilson had moved around on a steal and a ground out, he scored on Larry Jackson's single. The Eagles added two more in the fifth. Hardison singled and took third as the centerfielder lost the ball in the fog. Wilson brought him home with a triple and a hit by Kim Knox scored Wilson.

Gene Griffin singled and Mark Vaughan walked for Robersonville in the seventh and both moved up on a wild pitch but could not score.

Wilson and Jackson each had two hits for the Eagles. The Eagles will probably play Saratoga for the league title in a best-of-three series next week. Saratoga had a one game lead going into the final games in their division.

and 8-2 win over White's Insulation. Talbott pushed over one in the first, then added two on homers by T. Thompson and B. Bowles in the second. They got two more in the fourth and two in the fifth. One more crossed in the sixth. White's got one in the second on B. Bates homer and one more in the fourth as R. Boles homered.

Kentucky Fried Gets Fourth City Victory

Kentucky Fried Chicken won its fourth straight game in the City Softball League Friday night.

In the opening game on Field One, University Seafood took an 18-6 win over Union Carbide. Union Carbide scored three in the top of the first, but University came back with three to tie it up in their half of the frame. In the third, University pushed over five runs to take the lead for good. They added five more in the third and five in the sixth to wrap it up. Union Carbide got two in the fifth and one in the sixth. Kentucky Fried Chicken rolled to a 16-3 win over the Little Sluggers in the second game. KFC got all it needed in the first with four runs, including a homer by Aldridge. They added one in the second, three in the third on Meek's homer, and eight in the sixth. The Sluggers got all three of their runs in the second.

Hallow's nipped Daniel Construction, 6-5, in the final game. Hallow's got one in the first and another in the second. Daniel came up with four in the

R.C. Captures First Of Year

R.C. picked up its first win of the North State Little League season Friday as they handed Coke its second straight loss, 12-2.

R.C. went to work in the first getting three runs. Jr. Hardee singled and stole second. Chip Davis walked and Larry Jones singled to load the bases. A wild pitch scored Hardee and an error let Davis score. Another wild pitch scored Jones.

R.C. kept it going with two more in the second. Dwayne Fisher walked and Hardee singled. An outfield error on the play let Fisher score and Hardee take third. Hardee was wild pitched across.

Two more runs went up for R.C. in the third to all but put the win away. Jeff Worthington singled and Stacy Mills got a hit. An error on the play let both runners move up a base. David Holley singled and an error let both Worthington and Mills score.

R.C. added five more in the fourth. Coke got its only two runs in the sixth. Lee Hardee reached on a two-base error and scored on Mark Jones' triple. Jones scored on a passed ball.

Billy Brannigan had two hits for Coke while Hardee, Jones, Worthington and Holley each had a pair for R.C.

Taylor Is State Champ

HIGH POINT—North Pitt's Kathy Taylor captured the girls' State Championship in the mile run Friday, winning in record time.

Miss Taylor crossed the line with a time of 5:21 to set the new mark.

One other area girl placed in the state meet, Conley's Teresa Baker, who finished fourth in the high jump with a leap of 5-1.

Conley's 440-yard relay team finished sixth in :52.5, and Vickie Hawkins was seventh in the shot put with a toss of 33 feet, 5 inches. North Pitt's mile relay team finished seventh, and in a disputed call, Joy Forbes of North Pitt was disqualified after finishing third in the 880-yard dash. Meet officials noted that two of her team members ran along beside her, off the track, during the final few yards, and disqualified her under "pacing" rules.

HOLLYWOOD—Ayden-Grifton turned the tables on the D. H. Conley Vikings Friday as they put together two last inning rallies to take a 6-4, come-from-behind win.

Last Tuesday, the Vikings had beaten the Chargers on their home field with a timely hit and an A-G error. Friday, the Chargers did it to the Vikings as they used a home run by Tom Craft and three big errors to get the victory.

Eddie McCullen won it for A-G. He walked three, struck out four and gave up six Conley hits. Jack Jones was the loser striking out six, walking four and scattering five hits.

Both teams went down in order in the first. Craft opened the second with a single but could not get farther than second which he stole.

In the bottom of the frame, the Vikings pushed into the lead getting one run. Jones led off with a single but was forced at second when Randy Adams hit into a double play. Donnie Cox beat out a hit to third and he stole second. Eugene Forrest singled to drive in Cox.

The Chargers tied the game in the top of the fourth as Craft walked, stole second and took third on an error on the steal. Greg Nelson singled in Craft.

The Vikings scored again in the fourth to break the tie. Vic Corey walked and stole second. He went to third on an out and scored on a hit by Adams.

Conley tried to pad its lead with a run in the fifth making it 3-1. Keith Gould lined a hit off the pitcher's rubber. He stole second and scored on a hit by Clenell Streeter.

In the sixth, the Chargers got a lift and pushed over three runs to take the lead. Stevie Tripp walked and stole second. Craft, after fouling two off, ripped a hit into the wide open spaced in center field and raced all the way home to tie the game, 3-3.

Nelson kept it going drawing a walk and he stole second. Paul Ricciarelli singled and when the Conley leftfielder could not control the ball, Nelson was able to score.

The Vikings got an earned run in the bottom of the sixth to tie the game again. Jones walked and stole second. Adams brought him in with a single.

That was all for Conley, however, as the Chargers rallied again getting two this time. Ronnie Salmon walked and stole up. Tripp reached on a throwing error on his grounder back to the mound with Salmon scoring on the play. Tripp went to second and Ned Craft sacrificed him to third. Nelson singled to drive in Tripp.

The Vikings went down in order in the bottom of the frame. Tom Craft had two hits for A-G while Adams had a pair for the Vikings.

Baker Tosses No-Hit Win; Builders Romp

Home Builders rolled to a 13-0 victory over Planters Bank, and Henry Baker tossed a no-hitter in Pepsi-Cola's 17-1 win over Carolina Dairy in Friday night's Babe Ruth League action.

In the opener, Home Builders pushed over a run in the third inning to take the lead. Mark Conway tripled and came home when Wright Hooks singled.

Four more runs came over in the fourth. Reggie Selby got an infield single and moved up on an error on the play. Ronnie Chapman singled and moved up on a fielder's choice. Conway was intentionally walked and a walk to Hooks forced in Selby. Joe Godette doubled in both Chapman and Conway, and both Lance Weatherington and Ken Koonce walked, forcing in Hooks.

The fifth saw another Home Builders run score. Chapman walked and was balked to second. Conway reached on a fielder's choice and Hooks singled in Chapman.

Six crossed the plate in the sixth. Koonce singled and Mike Adams walked. Chapman walked to lead then up and Thomas Bunch reached on an error, scoring both Koonce and Adams. Conway walked and Hooks was safe on another error, scoring Chapman. Godette doubled in Bunch, Conway and Hooks to close out the frame.

The final run came in the seventh. Adams singled and David French walked. Bunch reached on a fielder's choice, as did Conway, scoring Adams.

Godette went 4 for 5 in the game and drove in five runs. Baker, in throwing his no-hitter at Carolina Dairy, walked three, hit one and struck out 11. The lone run was unearned.

That came in the second inning after Pepsi had already taken a 9-0 lead. Bobby Werenoff was hit by a pitch and moved up on a passed ball. A pair of errors then brought him in.

Pepsi jumped into the lead in the second with two runs. Marty Worthington singled and Worth Albea doubled him in. He advanced on the relay and scored on Baker's out.

Seven runs crossed in the second. Micky Finn reached on a fielder's choice and Worthington walked. Albea singled in Finn and Baker reached on an error. Derek Brewington singled in Worthington and Albea Billy Ellington singled, scoring Baker, and an error let Brewington come around too. Danny Hester doubled in Ellington, and Greg Lee reached on an error, allowing Hester to score.

In the fifth, Pepsi added four more runs. Randy Larmer was hit by a pitch and Kevin Haut singled. Albea walked to lead them up and Baker reached on an error, scoring both Larmer and Haut. Brewington singled in Albea and Baker, running the score to 13-1.

Two more came in the sixth. Danny Carmon reached on a fielder's choice and moved to third on an error. Haut walked and stole second. Albea singled in both runners.

In the final frame, two more scored. Ray Kilpatrick was awarded first on interference by the catcher and was walked to second. Larner reached on an error and a walk scored Kilpatrick. Carmon reached on an error, scoring Larner.

Albea was three-for-four in the game, driving in five runs, while Brewington was four-for-four and had for RBI's.

Tigers Fall To Ahoskie

AHOSKIE—Ahoskie held Williamston to just two hits Friday as Ahoskie downed the Tigers, 5-0.

Ahoskie got the winner in the first as Wynn and Reddick both were safe on errors. Brinkley walked loading the bases and a sacrifice by Raynor scored Wynn.

Ahoskie added two more in the third as A. Williams singled and moved around to third on a throwing error. Wynn reached on a fielder's choice and Reddick singled. A walk to Brinkley scored Williams and Raynor reached on a fielder's choice scoring Reddick.

Ahoskie added two more in the fourth.

Keith Brown had both the Tigers' hits.

Graniteers Down Pepsi

The Graniteers rallied for three runs in the top of the sixth to get a 5-4 win over Pepsi for their first Tar Heel victory of the year.

The Graniteers are 1-1 while the Pepsi team falls to 1-2.

Neither team scored in the first although they did put men on base. Miccah Dixon had reached on an error for the Graniteers in the top of the first and moved around on a passed ball and a wild pitch but failed to score.

In the bottom of the frame, Fred Matney walked but was forced at second by Jeff Wilson. Mark Shank reached on an error moving Wilson up but Mickey McGrath forced Wilson at third and the inning ended with the next batter.

Pepsi pushed over three runs in the second to take the lead. Mike Campbell walked and Kevin Richards singled. Ricky Sutton was safe on an error to load the bases. Matney hit into a fielder's choice that got Campbell as he tried to score. Wilson singled to score Richards and a double by Shank brought in both Richards and Sutton.

The Graniteers cut it by one in the top of the next inning. Jamie Byrd walked and Mike Moye singled. Byrd tried to steal third and the throw was errored letting him score and Moye take third. Moye scored when Garrett Young grounded out.

The Graniteers threatened to tie it up in the fourth as Mike James singled, took second on Lance Searle's error and third when Mike Tucker was hit by a pitch. James was forced at home, however, by Mike Haut.

They did take the lead in the sixth pushing over three runs. Searle led off with a single and Tucker walked. Haut forced Tucker at second but moved Searle to third. Byrd doubled in both runners to slip the Graniteers in front Byrd was thrown out going to third. Dixon, Moye and Young were walked and a wild pitch brought in Dixon.

Pepsi tried to rally in the bottom of the sixth but came up a run shy. Wilson singled but was forced at second by McGrath. An error let McGrath take second and a wild pitch put him on third. Scott Wilson got a hit driving in McGrath but a fly out ended the game.

Moye had a pair of hits for the Graniteers while Jeff Wilson and Richards had two each for Pepsi.

'Optional Education,' A Useful School Program

In any innovative educational program, the real proof of its worthiness is the practical results accomplished. One current program in the Greenville City Schools, the "Optional School Program," has all the earmarks of an approach that in the truest sense meets the needs of students who, for one reason or another, have become drop-outs.

"The most important thing about the Optional School Program," says Mrs. Ann Harrison, "is the positive changes shown in student attitudes," the improved relationships fostered between the students and their teachers." As Director of Pupil Personnel and Exceptional Children Services for the city schools, this program comes under her guidance.

The Optional School Program is conducted in a wing of Third Street School. Currently, 40 students are enrolled in the program. Until recently, the students were all drawn from junior high grades. In March, the program was expanded to bring in senior high level students.

Basically, the Optional School Program is structured with each student receiving half a day's regular academic courses through the Learning Laboratory. There, the student can study in areas in which they need assistance. Most of the studies are in the fields of reading and math. The other part of a day's instruction is given over to personalized instruction in a wide range of practical skills. . . use of sewing machines, carpentry, basic accountant skills, etc. "These courses," Mrs. Harrison said, "are designed to give the students an awareness of jobs that are available, to prepare them for jobs, and to give them confidence when time comes for job placement."

The Optional School Program is staffed with teams of teachers, a counselor, and a homebound instructor.

The Learning Laboratory team has Gerald Miller, and on a part time basis, Roosevelt Roberson. Joe Deversa and Mrs. Nancy Walters are on the vocational training team; and a third instructional team is comprised of Miss Sheila Wilson and Miss Pat Daniels.

Mrs. Mavis Williams is coordinator of Parenthood Training-Homebound Instruction. Peter Greenspan in counselor and in charge of job development and job placement services, and Tony Gray is a part-time school social worker.

To date, Greenspan has received support from several business firms in arranging job placements. These have included jobs as nursery landscapers, a waitress, a wrecking crew worker, a teacher aide, and aides for the Operation Sunshine project.

At a recent national meeting in New Orleans, a workshop presentation of the work being done in this program has drawn praise and inquiries from other schools in North Carolina and from schools in other states.

It all adds up to a needed service—here in Greenville and in every American community—one more practical way to keep students in school and to train them for useful work when school days are over.

WEEKLY STOCK CHART—The AP average of 60 stocks ended down 2 points Friday at 266.3 from last week's closing of 268.3. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed 4.54 points up at 850.44, from last week's 845.90. The market started down, headed up, then surged ahead before falling back again over the week. A short fall Monday was followed by two upward days. A big rise Thursday came as investors' confidence, but over 800 banks reached a new price of 1 1/2% per cent level Friday and this wiped out most of the gains. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

A&P APPOINTMENT
Barbara Doran Sullivan of New York City has been appointed by The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. Inc. to the newly created post of national director of consumer affairs in an expansion of A&P consumer relations activities.
John J. Cairns Jr., company vice president-merchandising and national director of sales, said that Mrs. Sullivan, a former food and cookbook editor for Good Housekeeping magazine, was selected to develop and direct programs that will enable A&P to relate more closely to customer interests and to serve as the consumer's advocate within the company.

PAYMENTS REPORTED
Prudential Insurance Co. announced that its payments to policy holders and beneficiaries during the entire year of 1973 averaged more than $74 million a week.
Prudential said that the record disbursements totaled $3.86 billion in 1973 including payments to North Carolina policyholders and beneficiaries of $35,630,000. More than 72 per cent of the state total went to living policyowners, it was noted, with the balance going to beneficiaries.

CP&L ADVANCEMENT
David W. Mosier Jr., a Greenville native, has been promoted by Carolina Power & Light Co. to director of the Visitors Center at the Shearon Harris nuclear plant site in New Hill.
Mosier joined CP&L in 1971 as a senior engineer at the H. B. Robinson plant at Hartsville, S. C. and was promoted to maintenance supervisor of the Brunswick plant in Southport in 1972. He was named senior staff engineer in the special services department in Raleigh later in 1972.
The new director graduated from J. H. Rose High School and the U. S. Naval Academy with a bachelor of science degree in nuclear physics. He is a lieutenant in the Naval Reserve.

CORPORATE PRESIDENT
Carolina Dairy Products Inc. announced the appointment of Thomas L. (Tommy) Edwards to corporate president by its board of directors.
Edwards, who has served the firm at several levels, started with the company as plant superintendent in charge of milk products in the Kinston office. Later he advanced to vice president in charge of both milk and ice cream production. Two years ago, Edwards was promoted to executive vice president and transferred to Greenville as manager.
Carolina Dairy has principal offices in Greenville and Kinston with branches in Washington and Jacksonville. The company serves 17 counties in eastern North Carolina with dairy products.

TOP FIGURES
Stewart Sandwiches Inc., Norfolk-based sandwich company, announced record sales and income for the second quarter of fiscal 1974 which ended March 29.
Stewart officials reported net income for the second quarter of $318,145, an increase of 46.6 per cent over the $217,013 recorded for the second quarter of 1973. Earnings per share of common stock climbed to 17 cents per share for the quarter, a gain of 54.6 per cent over 11 cents per share for the previous year.
Sales of Stewart Sandwiches, which has a sales center in Greenville, rose 51.5 per cent in the second quarter to $7,309,217 from the 1973 figure of $5,166,732.

EARNINGS GAIN
Consolidated earnings from operations of Jefferson-Pilot Corp. for the first quarter of 1974 showed a gain of 19 per cent or eight cents per share, according to president W. Roger Soles.
Soles reported that consolidated earnings, excluding net gain from sale of investments, were $12,647,000, compared with $10,632,000 for the first quarter of 1973.
Net income for the quarter, including gain from the sale of investments and after income taxes, was $12,684,000, compared with $10,801,000 for the first quarter of 1973.
Directors declared a quarterly dividend of 15 cents per share, an increase of two cents per share, payable on June 7 to shareholders of record at the close of business on May 17.

LIVING WITH DIGNITY

By Gerry Bishop

Sliding-glass doors opening onto ornamented balconies allow these one-bedroom units to bask in sunlight. Shake shingle roofs and exterior stone contribute to the dignified charm of apartment living.

Opening from a foyer, each apartment boasts an immense walk-in closet and enjoys a full bath with towel closet.

Each efficient kitchen contains refrigerator and range, and a hall unit holds a washer and dryer.

The 24-foot long dining living area holds its own coat closet and opens onto a short hall leading to the bedroom. The bedroom, as well as the living room, opens through sliding glass doors to separate porches or balconies.

The flow of traffic is well-managed in each unit, with the entrance to the apartment designed at the separating point between dining and living sections of the large living area. Directly across from the entrance is the short hall to the bedroom and bath. The kitchen is hidden from view of the living area.

Entrances are well planned, with sliding doors providing the direct access to the out of doors, but with the inside entrance giving protection in cold weather or from extreme heat.

Qualified As Do-It-Yourselfer

By DOROTHEA BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wally and Natalie Bruner, married less than a month, sank every cent they had into the downpayment on a Washingtonville, N.Y. Victorian mansion, 18 rooms sans plumbing or heat but with 125-year-old black varnish on the floors, a nine-year accumulation of grime and what Natalie called "wonderful possibilities." In what Bruner describes as a "two-and-one-half year ordeal," they restored the house to its original splendor—and added the modern amenities.

Wally insists he would never do it again — "Never!" Still, it was an experience that qualified Bruner, a radio broadcaster by profession, as an authentic do-it-yourselfer and led to a career for the couple as producers and hosts of "Wally's Workshop," a weekly television series which demonstrates home repair and construction projects. Wally is author of a book by the same name (Simon & Schuster $7.95), and is a do-it-yourself consultant to U.S. Plywood.

Anything Possible
Bruner's advice to less experienced do-it-yourselfers is down-to-earth. He believes anyone can do just about anything — if he wants to and if he has the time, and the patience. This doesn't mean he thinks everyone should tackle everything. It's necessity, not choice, he says, that makes most do-it-yourselfers. He says each individual must determine for himself what he can and can't, should and shouldn't do.

For instance, speaking of his own indoctrination, Bruner says while he and Natalie "made money on the restoration and enjoyed doing most of it," (they sold the mansion and now live in a house they've remodeled in Indianapolis) his job as a television show host required him to be on the scene only one day a week. Tackling a job the size they did without the time could be disastrous.

For the neophyte, Bruner says, the biggest stumbling block is fear of the unknown. "You've got to take the first step, to learn. There's no mistake that can't be fixed," Bruner says he has done some jobs as many as four times.

It is wise, of course, to start with the smaller projects and work up. Bruner sees plumbing, especially the simple repairs, as do-it-yourself work — "the worst that can happen is a flood." When it comes to electrical work, however, he strongly recommends a professional, except for the simplest repairs, like rewiring a lamp or changing a plug, or work like drilling holes and pulling wire under professional supervision.

Whatever you tackle, Bruner stresses, "doing your homework" is important. Read up. There are many books written just for the do-it-yourselfer. Then, if at all possible, try to see it done. "If you're going to install drywall, watch a professional at work." Ask questions of the professionals. Ask friends who've done the job what they learned from the experience. Ask the people where you buy your materials.

Tips
Bruner offers a few tips from his own experience:
—You can do it, but it won't be simple.
—Try to reach agreement with your spouse before you start. Women, he notes, are pretty good do-it-yourselfers themselves, and even better supervisors. Most of them, he says, tend to be a bit more particular in performing a task than a man. "It usually takes them forever to get it done, but when it is completed, it's a lot closer to perfection than when the average man tackles the same job."

—There are no 30-minute jobs. It takes that long to find the screwdriver.
—Get more than one price on hired labor.
—Don't count on delivery — add two weeks.
—Measure twice, cut once.
—Use your ingenuity.
—Finish one room before you start another.

Bruner says it isn't likely you'll save much money with do-it-yourself, certainly not if you count the value of your time. But you probably will be able to afford a better job for the same money, putting what you have to spend into materials.
"If you do it yourself, it will be done right, to your satisfaction — maybe even to your wife's."

From various sources come these bits of information of interest to home owners:

Whether you are on the lookout for a new house or merely read the newspaper advertisements about houses, you know the prices continue to rise. Did you know how much? The average sale price of a new single-family house sold during 1973 rose 14.1 per cent to $34,800, a $4,300 increase over 1972 average sale price. Single-family houses sold in 1973 totaled 619,000, 13.8 per cent below the total sold the previous year. The largest regional increase in price was in the West, the smallest in the Northeast.

grass or weeds, especially with power equipment; using cultivators and saws; spraying chemicals; pruning bushes and trees, and simply gardening in the sun.

Four principal problem areas in housing, housing finance and the housing sales industry were listed by Sheldon Lubar, the Federal Housing Administration commissioner, in a Washington conference with realtors. These areas are the escalation of housing costs, which price out of the market those with incomes under $20,000; the steepening of the mortgage money supply cycles; the high number of mortgage defaults in central cities and undersubscribed programs, and serious delays in the processing of applications. Among the reforms he suggested were the freeing of the FHA interest rate to permit it to rise and fall with the market; eliminating discount points, and the offering of co-insurance program wherein the loan originator would accept a portion of the risk.

Home handymen will find invaluable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.

ARE DAMAGES TAX DEDUCTIBLE?

As a homeowner, expenses from damage or improvements may affect your income taxes. For instance: damage to your house from, say, fire or windstorm may be partially deductible as a casualty loss. After subtracting insurance compensation, deduct $100 for each accident and the remainder can be claimed as a tax deduction.

Improvements, such as a porch, garage, finished basement, and so on cannot be deducted. However, they can be added to the cost of the house when figuring profit on the sale. So, keep good records of such expenses. Try to preserve cancelled checks and receipted bills. They will help substantiate the figures if necessary.

I'm just scratching the surface here. If this situation applies to you, I suggest you contact your nearest Internal Revenue Office for a copy of their pamphlet No. 530 "Tax Information on Deductions for Homeowners." It may save you some money.

State Has Two Senior Senators

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Arkansas' senior United States senator has only two more years' experience in the Senate than does Arkansas' junior senator.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., was first elected to the Senate in 1942 and Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., was first elected in 1944.

Here's the Answer

Q.—Some years ago I finished the attic in our house, using 4 by 8 plywood sheets and hardwood molding along the top near the ceiling. I remember that it was quite a job painting the molding a harmonizing color. The lesson I learned was to paint the molding before it was put up. I have a similar job now in another house we bought. Can I buy the olding already finished?

A.—In some lumber yards and building supply houses, yes. But it will cost more. A fairly recent development is the sale of molding in exactly the same color and pattern of the paneling. A friend of mine finished a basement room, using a hardboard paneling with a textured, light-colored surface.

The molding was made of exactly the same material in the same color with the same texture. He said the lumber yard had the paneling in stock and was able to get the matching molding on order. As a result, the paneling and the molding flowed together so that the molding was inconspicuous. In molding that is already finished, it usually is stained, because most molding is made of hardwood with a pleasing surface that is best left unpainted.

Q.—I put down a flagstone walkway on our property. Grass has now started to grow between the stones. I don't want to run the mower over the stones because of the possibility that the blade might scrape them. What's the best way to keep the grass from growing between the stones?

A.—Use one of the permitted weed killers. It will also kill the grass. But use it carefully according to directions. Especially, don't use it on a windy day if you employ a sprayer.

Petition SEC Over Hiring

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission has been petitioned by religious and other groups to end what they say is discrimination in hiring by the securities industry.

A statement from the United Church of Christ said the commission knowingly sanctions employment discrimination against minorities and women in its employment procedures and "fosters such discrimination by other exchanges and by securities dealers."

Some of the groups joining with the church in filing the petition were the Council on Women and the Church of the United Presbyterian Church and the National Organization for Women.

Central Landfill Due In Operation By July 1

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

"One thing I must say they failed to do, though it may have been quite inadvertently done, is they did not communicate adequately with the people," David Stevens of Brook Valley said Friday of plans by the Board of County Commissioners to issue an exclusive franchise for the collection of solid waste.

Pitt County Commissioners have purchased a new sanitary landfill site West of Greenville and have taken bids for an exclusive franchise for collection of garbage in areas outside the various municipalities in the county.

Regulations applied by state and local health departments concerning the collection, transportation and disposal of solid waste are extremely strict and require a great deal of time and money for compliance, county officials point out.

As of January 1973, the open burning of garbage has been prohibited and in June of 1973, the General Assembly required that all solid waste be disposed of in a sanitary manner, such as in a sanitary landfill.

That state requirement resulted in the county opening—as a pilot project—a landfill at Littlefield, between Ayden and Grifton, for use by county residents and municipalities.

Health Department regulations now require the disposal of solid waste in a sanitary manner at least weekly, beginning July 1, 1974.

Three methods can be used: individuals may bury and cover their own waste; they may burn it in an approved incinerator (none are located in Pitt County); or waste may be disposed of in a landfill.

The Pitt County Planning Board, working in conjunction with the county commissioners studied the problems (found 160 roadside dumps throughout the county) and devised a system by which indiscriminate dumping is prohibited; waste is collected, transported and disposed of as required by the health department regulations; and offered the most economic and desirable system practical, in their estimation.

This study, begun in 1972, resulted in the decision to operate one centrally located landfill site, thus reducing the cost required to purchase additional land and equipment and hire additional labor needed for additional landfill locations.

The cost of equipment already purchased to operate the one central landfill has been about $100,000.

County Manager Reginald Gray said that barring any unforeseen problems, the central landfill will be in operation by July 1. It will accept solid waste at a fee of 40-cents per cubic yard and the fee is expected to be adjusted downward as the original cost of the land and equipment is paid for and funds have accumulated for the operation of the site without the use of public tax money.

In addition to the decision to operate a central landfill, and possibly the most difficult problem to be considered, was the method of providing collection service for all county residents not served by municipal collection services.

About 60 per cent of the citizens living outside municipal boundaries are not now receiving collection service of any kind, and to offer back door pickup for every household was judged by planners and commissioners as not feasible.

The only system of collection not eliminated in the rounds of discussions following the study was the bag system—where residents would purchase bags for the disposal of their waste—with a minimum once per week pickup.

Commissioners held a public meeting in February 1973 with municipal representatives, rural haulers and interested citizens and the plan was described to them.

It was proposed and approved at the time that a single franchise be considered in order to serve everyone equally.

As a result of that session, the county planner, county manager and county attorney were instructed to develop rules and regulations in which the franchise statement should be included.

This was done. An ordinance based on these rules and regulations was finally adopted and on October 1, 1973, the Pitt County Health Department Ordinance governing solid waste disposal was put into effect.

In September 1973, all rural haulers—approximately 22 in the county—were invited to a meeting at which time the proposed regulations were explained. They were informed about the franchise, and were encouraged at that time to unite to seek the franchise themselves. Eventually they decided not to incorporate and seek the franchise.

"We are by no means declaring the perfection of the proposed system," according to County Planner Howard Hurlucker. "There is no perfect system," he emphasized, noting that in reality "there are very few even adequate methods." But the planner noted, "the system proposed offers advantages and problems, with the advantages "clearly tipping the scales in their favor."

First, Hurlucker said, "of the 22 haulers presently operating, only part look to this as their only source of livelihood, with fewer still depending only on residential collection."

Collection from schools, commercial establishments and industries in the county, Hurlucker pointed out, will not be franchised under the proposed plans.

Secondly, "this would be a dependable operation with backup equipment in case of breakdowns, and provide a guaranteed pickup schedule," Hurlucker explained.

A minimum once per week pickup for areas which will not economically justify anything else will be maintained, with two pickups per week—behind the house—provided where density would justify, for approximately $5 per month (including the disposal fees which are not presently being paid by the rural haulers).

The proposed franchise system will also provide someone to contact and hold responsible if collection is not satisfactory.

And, Hurlucker noted, "this system provides for equal pay for equal use." He noted that the alternative is the establishment of "a tax district, with county residents being taxed at the same rate, whether they produce two or 20 bags of waste per month. County taxes are high enough and the man that produces the waste should pay for its disposal."

A public hearing has been scheduled for Wednesday on the issuance of a franchise, Hurlucker pointed out.

Stevens, president of the Brook Valley Home Owners Association, was one of several individuals to express concern over the exclusive franchise proposal last week.

"I feel this way," he said. "I have no doubt of the sincerity and integrity of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, and am confident that they have done a considerable amount of work... the Planning Board has done quite a bit of research in the area of solid waste disposal... and I think they have been genuinely searching to find a suitable disposal system that could be applied uniformly throughout the county."

"But," Stevens said, "one thing I must say they did fail to do... they did not communicate adequately with the people... that will be very personally and vitally involved in this new system."

Stevens charged, "it was never made clear to the majority of the residents how the landfill related to the new disposal system" the county was proposing.

"We were never advised that we were going to have to deal with a legal monopoly, created by the action of our local county government. This is, in effect, what they are proposing in offering an exclusive disposal contract for a period of three years... for a period of three years. It's unbelievable."

Stevens suggested that the "net effect of this type of action" is going to be to "put a considerable number of local hard working private businessmen out of business."

According to Stevens, one bidder for the franchise "expounded at great length on how much better his system would be for all of us and what efficient service he could render."

"My response to this is very simple. If his service is all this efficient, and is going to be so great for the people, then why doesn't he come in and get a license and sell his service to the rest of Pitt County on a merit basis in competition with people already in business."

"And if his green bag pickup system is so much better than the present service, then the people of Pitt will buy his service."

Stevens continued, "this is the American system of free enterprise, and is diametrically opposed to that is a government-created monopoly."

"I don't think the Pitt County Commissioners should subject the residents to this type of monopolistic situation. Our citizens should have freedom of choice in this matter, and if they do not meet their responsibilities in terms of sanitation requirements, and in terms of other local ordinances and state laws, then corrective action would certainly be appropriate on the part of the County Commissioners."

Stevens suggested, "the system as it exists now (with private nonfranchised haulers) certainly gives no cause what so ever for the extreme action" that the commissioners "are proposing," and said "the service will roughly double what we are now paying for the same service."

The Brook Valley Home Owners president noted that petitions are currently being circulated among involved residents "so that we can make our opinions and feelings known to the Commissioners."

"All that we are asking," he said, "is that they respond to the majority wishes of the people."

Cambodian Troops Caught In Trap

By LYNN C. NEWLAND
PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Seven Cambodian government soldiers were killed and 28 wounded Saturday when they were tricked into an outpost on national Highway 4 supposedly abandoned by Communist forces, military sources said.

The trap was sprung at O Tahay, about 90 miles southwest of Phnom Penh and 20 miles northeast of the threatened port of Kompong Som. Government forces walked back into the lost outpost without a shot being fired, military sources said, then found themselves in a murderous crossfire from Communists surrounding them.

Cambodian air force helicopter gunships strafed Communist forces around O Tahay, the sources said, and dropped ammunition and food into the position to the survivors.

Closer to the capital, government troops reopened a section of national Highway 1 about 20 miles southeast of Phnom Penh on Saturday, 24 hours after insurgents, for the first time in two weeks, had closed it.

A government force of 300 infantrymen and 33 armored vehicles drove the Communists off in a three-hour battle, field reporters said. The government lost three men killed and 10 wounded, while the rebels left six dead behind on the battlefield.

Along Highway 4, which connects Phnom Penh with the deepwater port city of Kompong Som, government positions have been under attack all week.

Two battalions of reinforcements were flown to Kompong Som on Saturday from Kampot, a smaller port about 25 miles to the east.

Julie, David Says Nixon Not Resigning

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Julie and David Eisenhower said Saturday President Nixon confided Friday night he would take impeachment "constitutionally down to the wire" rather than resign. They said the tape transcripts merely show him as "a human being who saw his dreams crumbling."

Standing in front of a grape arbor in the Jacqueline Kennedy garden, their voices catching occasionally with anger and emotion, they flatly denied rumors Nixon was preparing to resign and said the nation had no grounds for shock over the profanity or moral tone of the transcripts.

The President's younger daughter—who said she was "so proud" of her father—and her husband conducted the outdoor news conference while Nixon worked in his Executive Office Building hideaway before leaving for Oklahoma.

Eisenhower, who spent Friday evening cruising the Potomac aboard the Presidential yacht with Julie and the President, said Nixon told them he meant to see the impeachment process through to a Senate trial if necessary.

"He would take this constitutionally down to the wire and he would go to the Senate and he said that if there were one Senator who believed in him, that's the way it would be," Eisenhower said. "He believes that it's a constitutional process. He believes this is the best way to handle the situation."

Asked whether there were any truth in the rising wave of rumor that Nixon is preparing to resign, he said, "no," and added, "I think that's categorical—he wouldn't."

Julie described her father as "disturbed" by the increasing calls from Republicans for his resignation, but determined to resist them.

David said the President was now "stronger than ever" and Julie added that her mother also "takes things with a grain of salt... she's weathering this storm."

Heatedly denying suggestions they had been sent out to speak as mouthpieces for the President, the couple took issue with charges that the transcripts show shocking immorality in the Oval Office.

"I don't see how you can be shocked by the transcripts," Julie said.

She said they should be read with the understanding that, at the time, Nixon was "a man who saw his dreams crumbling down around him."

David used that same phrase. The transcripts, he said, reveal "a man who was reacting as a human being who saw his dreams crumbling."

He said these were "private talks under the most compelling situation in which the President was trying to remove the taint of any criminality from the White House..."

"It's unfair to hold the tone of these conversations against him," he said.

Julie worked visibly to hold back her anger when a reporter suggested the couple was merely conveying the White House line on Nixon's behalf.

"I'm so proud of him that I would never be afraid to come out here and talk to any member of the press about resignation or anything, even though it goes against my grain, because I know he doesn't want me to come out here," she said.

"He doesn't want anyone to construe that I'm trying to answer questions for him."

Claims Diego Garcia Base Would Spur Soviet Arms Race

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States will spark off a strategic naval arms race with the Soviet Union in the Indian Ocean if it beeps up its base on the island of Diego Garcia, a new United Nations report says.

The report prepared for Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim tells of Pentagon plans to lengthen the airfield runway on the British-owned island to handle B52 strategic bombers and to deepen the lagoon to accommodate a dozen ships.

That, it says, would give the United States "a major strategic naval base from which it could deploy...strategic nuclear submarines in the Indian Ocean" within ballistic missile range of the Soviet Union.

The report goes to a special committee on the Indian Ocean. Meanwhile, Chairman Lee H. Hamilton of the House South Asia subcommittee said today Congress should not be pushed into approving the base.

"I am persuaded that this expansion at Diego Garcia is indicative of a major and potentially disturbing new policy departure," the Indiana Democrat said in a statement.

Hamilton said the British government probably will not decide until mid-summer whether to lease the Diego Garcia atoll for the expanded U.S. facility. He urged both Congress and the administration use the "breathing space" to reconsider the expansion.

The House has approved the Navy's request for $29 million to expand the U.S. naval communications post into a fueling station for aircraft carrier task forces.

Julie described her father as "disturbed" by the increasing calls from Republicans for his resignation, but determined to resist them.

David said the President was

Spanish-Americans Now Number 10 Million

LOS ANGELES (AP) — More jobs and more money for Spanish-American programs are on tap because new figures show there are 1.5 million more people of Spanish origin in the United States today than listed in the 1970 census.

A special report issued Friday by the U. S. Census Bureau put the number of Spanish-origin people at 10.6 million, compared to 9.1 million in 1970.

Because government money and private and public affirmative action programs are based on the numbers of a specific minority group, Spanish-American community leaders expect more government funds and jobs to result.

Robert Gnaizda, general consul of the Mexican-American Population Commission of California, said in California alone, the updated figures may result in as many as 160,000 additional jobs by 1980 and an extra $300 million in funds for special federal projects.

The report also showed the 1972 median income for persons of Spanish origin was $8,180, about 8 per cent higher than in 1971 but still nearly $3,000 below the median income for all U. S. families.

The report listed the Spanish origin population of California at about 3 million, with another 2.2 million in Texas, 1.7 million in New York, a total of 1.1 million in New Mexico, Arizona and Colorado and another 2.6 million scattered throughout the other states.

The report said 83 per cent of Spanish-origin families live in metropolitan areas.

SHE'S OKAY NOW—Four-months-old Loretta, pygmy chimpanzee at the San Diego Zoo, is fully recovered now after a bout with pneumonia, but still weighs less than six pounds. Soon her first tooth will be coming in. (AP Wirephoto)

Foster Care Homes Often Nightmare For Children

By RONALD G. BURNS
NEW YORK (UPI) — For a seven-year old, Jimmy Watson has been around.

He's seen all kinds of people, been all kinds of places. In fact, since the age of two when his father died, he's lived in four different homes with eight different parents and 17 different brothers and sisters.

Like some 300,000 other children across the nation, Jimmy is stuck in the child-care limbo known as foster care.

Designed as a temporary expedient, foster care in the view of a growing number of critics has become a permanent nightmare for those children in the system who can't go home and can't be adopted. Such children are faced with continual shuttling among "temporary" foster homes — sometimes for years at a time.

Antiquated Laws
The children are kept in limbo, the critics say, by antiquated state adoption laws that either flatly forbid foster parents to adopt or perversely encourage the continuation of foster care through high state subsidies.

They point out that many states still lack any deadlines for the termination of the rights of natural parents to their offspring, preventing many children—no matter how neglected or abused—from being freed for permanent adoption.

And in many other states, vague or nonexistent laws give child welfare agencies absolute control over the placement of foster children, including where, why and how long they stay.

"We've had the practice of placing children in foster homes who were waiting for their parents to become rehabilitated," said Ellen Schwartz, chief of adoption in the Illinois Children and Family Services Department. "We're finding now, though, that many parents just aren't making it, and too many children are remaining in limbo for years."

Widely Differing Approaches
Other states have a variety of approaches:

—In West Virginia, there are three types. "Long-term" foster care is assigned when "legal entanglements" block the accordance of actual parental rights. "Permanent" is usually for handicapped children and allows the state to retain guardianship and pay medical bills. "Temporary" is a "planning phase" not to exceed one year. Except for the third category, actual adoption is effectively discouraged by the apparent lack of any mechanism to terminate the natural parents' rights to the child and the failure of the state to subsidize medical payments for a permanently adopted child.

—Connecticut is attempting to implement a "temporary-permanent" foster care system, in which families are "screened as to their desires" before the child is placed. "Permanent" placement would lead to eventual adoption.

—In Pennsylvania, welfare agencies may bring "termination proceedings" against natural parents. But foster parents are barred—by general policy, not by law—from adopting the children they might have housed, clothed and fed for several years, and in fact must sign adoption waivers before children are placed in their homes.

Even No Laws
—Georgia, Nebraska, Arkansas and Iowa have no laws regarding the placement of foster children, but welfare agencies routinely instruct foster parents they have "no edge" in any adoption procedings.

—Wyoming gives foster parents first crack at adoption, but stresses it does not allow adoption proceedings to begin until the natural parents have shown "absolutely no interest" in the child.

Even in states which have mandatory "judicial reviews," the critics claim that high subsidies have kept welfare agencies lax in their efforts to find permanent homes for neglected children.

In New York, for instance, foster families receive state subsidies of at least $1,800 per child per year and placement agencies keep a like amount to meet salaries and expenses.

The private agencies claim the system is working well, and they insist that, if anything, they're operating at a deficit.

High Costs
Louise Bynam, associate director of the Spence-Chapin Adoption Agency, the largest such private agency in the world, said, "The cost of keeping a child in an institution is over three times that of foster care," and added:

"We pursue with all possible vigor our efforts to get children into permanent adoption—and we manage it with considerable success."
But New York State Sen. Joseph Pisano, a leader of foster care reform, declared: "The agencies are too quick to use foster care and do too little to keep the child at home—and many still lack a real commitment to get kids out of foster care and into permanent adoption."

Even among agencies, there is criticism. "There is no question that the subsidies tend to encourage a perpetuation of foster care," said Gertrude King, assistant director of the Louise Wise Agency.

Orphanages Disfavored
As the use of orphanages fell out of favor and as the pill, abortion and changing mores left a dwindling number of newborn infants available for adoption, the placement of children in foster care began in significant numbers about 10 years ago.

In New York City alone, 22 private agencies and the city's own Child Welfare Bureau currently place some 1,200 children a year in foster homes at an annual expenditure of nearly $5 million in subsidies.

But Arthur Gluckman, president of the New York Adoptive

Parents Committee, said the agencies "can't possibly have such high expenses," and added:

"They claim they're private, but these subsidies make up most of their funding. That's state money paid by the taxpayers. But who watches the agencies? Who regulates them? These stipends just encourage them to keep children in foster care."

Advocates Stronger Control
A decade-long reform effort by Gluckman and Pisano met with success two years ago when the New York State legislature passed a law requiring judicial reviews of foster care cases after two years.

The law includes a provision to terminate the rights of natural parents to their children, freeing the children for permanent adoption. Foster parents are given first crack.

Gluckman, however, believes the law isn't enough.

"The agencies are still dragging their feet on moving children into permanent adoption," he said. "And we're allowing unregulated agencies to have total control over children's lives. Even the natural parents don't have that."

Could Prevent 14,000 Deaths

NEW YORK (UPI) — Current information on the value of lap-type safety belts for saving lives indicates that if all passenger car occupants used belts at all times, such use would save more than 14,000 lives annually.

The belts, says the National Safety Council, would save lives by preventing ejection from the vehicle and reducing contact with the vehicle's interior.

Installation of shoulder straps with lap belts was made mandatory in January 1968 for two front seat occupants.

Their Every Love Is At Country Home

DADDY'S BEAGLES... are fun for the girls. Robin, Laura, and Mrs. Tripp pose with Mike and Flo and Kate and Little John.

By CAROL B. TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

PACTOLUS—If a patient cancels at the last minute, Dr. William E. Tripp Jr. doesn't fret. He sheds his bright dentist's jacket and goes outside to work in his vegetable garden until the next patient arrives, or he strolls up the lane to his home and plays with his children.

Dr. Tripp recently moved his practice from Robersonville, where he began in 1969, to his family farm on Rt. 5, Greenville. His receptionist, Mrs. Pat Page, comes out from Robersonville, as do many of his patients, though he also has many from the Pactolus area and also from in an around Greenville.

Mrs. Tripp also works at home, teaching piano, voice, and guitar.

"Everything we love to do, we now have at home," she said.

"Bill grew up on this farm and, though I was reared in Greenville, I'd always dreamed of country living, so we have always been in complete agreement on the subject. We lived several miles out of Chapel Hill even when Bill was in school. He had a garden then, as now. He wanted it so much he even broke the ground with a spade the first year we were there.

Needed Running Space

"The one time we decided to try living in town, when Bill started his practice in Robersonville, we just weren't happy. We liked the people, but we felt so limited, with no space for our children and horses and dogs to run. We decided we just had to go ahead and get out here on the farm, where we'd dreamed of building a house someday. We bought a double-wide mobile home and got the horse pasture ready and, in a couple of weeks, here we were."

Dr. Tripp had thought it would be nice to have his practice on the farm, Mrs. Tripp said, but it was not until last November that a fire in his office in Robersonville caused him to begin making serious plans. "He got one chair in February and started to work, though there was still a lot of work to be done on the building," she said. "It is about finished now, though. It's white frame, like the house we hope to have someday."

"Bill and I honeymooned in Kentucky and I fell in love with the stately frame houses and the expanses of pasture with white fencing. That's what we'd like to have here someday—a white frame colonial-style house that the office 'matches,' and pastures fenced in white."

Horse Lovers

Mrs. Tripp, the former Millie Overton of Greenville, loves horses and does all the caring for and training of the family's eight horses and three ponies. She is showing Copper Penny on the Coastal Plain Horse Show Circuit for the first time this season.

"Bill helps me get in the hay and do the fencing, but nothing else," she said. The only thing he appreciates about a horse is its beauty. He loves to look at them, but he never rides, and he leaves all the feeding and grooming and training to me. He's perfectly willing for our daughters and me to ride, though."

Robin, six, and Laura, three, both love to ride, though their mother emphasizes that it is done only with close supervision. "A horse will mind perfectly if he knows you're in control, but will get away with anything he can," she said. "They're not play toys."

Dr. Tripp enjoys hunting, and he keeps beagles. Kate and Mike and Flo and Little John are four beagle puppies being spoiled by the children until they're of the age to be trained. There's also Duchess, a German Shepherd who is more than a little jealous of the attention given the beagles and Smut, a nondescript former stray that Laura insisted the family adopt. And there are Tom, a huge yellow cat, and three goldfish.

Since Mrs. Tripp's parents and her two sisters and their families live in Greenville and Dr. Tripp's parents live just up the road, there are guests for nearly every weekend. "We put two picnic tables in the back yard just so we could have everybody out at once for fish fries and barbecues or plain old picnics," she said. "The niece and nephews and friends just love to come out here and ride in the pony cart and do all the other things they can do only on a farm. When a shower of rain drives them inside, this trailer's really bulging. We love it, though."

"We think we're the luckiest people in the world to have a place like this for our children, relatives, friends, and ourselves to do all the things we enjoy."

Accent On Living

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Sunday, May 12, 1974—C-1

A RIDE WITH CHESTER... "the best cart pony in the world," as his mistress calls him is fun for Laura (left) and Robin (right) and their mother (center), as well as for their cousins and friends so treated.

BRIDLING CHESTER... is Mama's job, but Dr. Tripp and Laura help out.

The Woman Cop, Proving Herself In Man's World

EDITOR'S NOTE—Women who say they want to help people are joining police forces across the country, at better-than-average salaries. But with the job comes danger and verbal abuse. And the woman cop has to prove herself before male officers accept her as one of their own.

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeature Writer

"Robbery in progress. Robbery in progress."

Scout 19 makes a U-turn. With siren and flashing red lights clearing the way, the car swings through the busy streets of Washington, D.C.

Police Officer Cawley is driving Scout 19 this Saturday night in a section of the nation's capital most tourists would hesitate to enter after sunset.

Scout 19 screeches up to the Chinese restaurant where the robbery was reported as police cars respond from all directions. It was a Code 1 call — a potentially dangerous situation that the police hit en masse. This time, however, it's a false alarm.

Officer Cawley is Cynthia. She's 24, the mother of a 2-year-old son and a cop in Washington, D.C., a city with a high crime rate. She is one of a growing number of women in the United States who have chosen law enforcement as a career.

She and her colleagues across the nation do everything the men do — from writing parking tickets to apprehending would be robbers to investigating homicides. Even the FBI now has 28 G-women. The Police Foundation, a nonprofit, Washington-based agency that studies and evaluates police work, estimates that two per cent of America's police are women. And the number is growing rapidly, the foundation says.

The International Association of Chiefs of Police is conducting a nationwide survey to determine the number of policewomen doing front-line patrol and detective work, and the number serving simply as dispatchers and clerks.

Some are "pretty young things" that the wives of policemen complain about: They don't want them riding with their husbands for eight hours a day. Some are fat, some are short, some are black, some are white. Some look like movie stars. Some look like only a fool would consider them the weaker sex.

Officer Cawley, an attractive, nearly six-foot black woman who has been a police officer for two years, is a good-natured sort who says she likes to give people a break. She pulls up behind two cars that are doubleparked in a ghetto area and sits there a minute. The drivers see her, race for their keys and move their cars. No tickets.

She is one of nearly 300 women on the district's 4,816-person force.

Across the Potomac River and into Washington's suburbs, Marcia Kincaid — pronounced Kincaid — patrols in Scout 15 in Arlington, Va. She packs a .38, as does officer Cawley, carries a blackjack and mace on her hip and has a 12-gauge shotgun strapped on the frontseat hump in her car. Her nightstick is tucked beneath the neck support on the passenger's side.

Scout 15 gets a call that a woman is having a fit in an apartment building. Miss Kincaid hits the red lights and drives with her left hand on the wheel, her right hand on the siren control under the dashboard, changing it from a wail to a hi-lo signal.

"People get used to the same sound and don't react" is her theory. She grabs the nightstick and races into the building. The woman, it turns out, represents no threat. She is having an epileptic seizure and eventually is taken to a hospital.

Miss Kincaid, 24, will marry a supervisor on the force in May. Like Officer Cawley, she's been a Ms. Fuzz, as woman cops are sometimes dubbed, for two years.

Arlington's crime rate is not that of the district's, but a cop's life there is not without its perils. Two Arlington policemen have been killed in the line of duty since 1972.

Miss Kincaid, an attractive blonde with a college degree, worked undercover, mainly in drug cases, before she took to patrolling. She has drawn her .38, though never fired it, and has poised the shotgun for action, too, but it's never been fired.

And in New York City, there's Police Officer Eileenrose Delaney, not your average Irish cop.

Eileenrose is a 12-year veteran who has posed as a lady of the evening, tailed men running numbers and followed women who received then-illegal abortions. She owns 40 wigs as part of her repertoire of disguises.

What prompts a woman to want to become a police officer — a dangerous job and one that makes her the object of verbal abuse from a not-always-understanding public?

For Officer Delaney, 40, born to Irish immigrants, it was something she wanted to do for as long as she can remember. She worked for 12 years in a bank, then her mother saw a squib in a newspaper that the Police Department was hiring women. She applied instantly.

For Officer Kincaid, it was something that came up when she couldn't find a job. She never really thought of it before. And for Officer Cawley, who has three years of college, it's a chance to be your own boss, to meet people, both good and bad, and to have responsibility. Both allow as how they might be persuaded to change jobs if they found something as challenging that paid as well.

Officer Delaney? Well, she might be persuaded to take something like the presidency of Chase Manhattan Bank. Otherwise, forget it. She loves the New York Police Department.

Generally, the pay for a high school graduate, the standard requirement, is good. In New York City, for instance, starting patrolmen earn $11,200 annually. In Philadelphia, it's $10,896; in Chicago, $10,524; in Los Angeles, $10,670; in Detroit, $9,000. At the other extreme, there's Poplar Bluff, Mont., starting salary $4,992.

Catherine Milton, assistant director of the Police Foundation and author of "Women in Policing," has interviewed hundreds of women police officers and reports no negative motives for joining.

"The women like to do something where they will help people," she says. "There's not too much difference between a school teacher or a social worker and a police officer."

The Police Foundation, funded by the Ford Foundation, is studying the attitudes and records of women riding patrol in Washington. Its preliminary findings conclude that young and black patrolmen are more receptive to women as partners, that the community feels "policewomen would be advantageous in handling domestic disputes but disadvantageous in handling street fights or riots."

(This is something of a contradiction. More police officers are injured handling domestic disputes than in any other single call.)

Both men and women said they would prefer a male partner. In violent situations, the male-female versus two-male teams performed about the same, although all-male teams made more contacts in an eight-hour tour than male-female teams.

In New York City, the patrolmen's Benevolent Association has gone on record as being less than enthusiastic about women riding patrol duty. The organization told the police commissioner it approved of women as a third partner only.

Officer Delaney's partner, however, has no objections.

"It depends on the woman," says Metcalf. "I feel as safe with Rosie as I would with any man. But of the original five women assigned to the 110, I would only feel safe with three of them. I got shot at once, and Rosie went right in after the guy. She's okay."

The big breakthrough for women came, of course, in March 1972 from Title VII of the Civil Rights Act. It prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex. Other breakthroughs are a result of lawsuits. A Chicago policewoman collected $10,000 in back pay over a disputed maternity leave. Height requirements have been dropped from many departments because of court action. Discrimination suits involving promotions have blossomed.

New York City, with 700 women, including a deputy inspector, has one of the least discriminatory policies. By contrast, some cities have a required number of slots to be filled by women and that's it. In Cincinnati, for example, seven women are on the 1,200-person force. And one of those women must quit before another can be hired.

The FBI is unisex these days, with a 5-foot-7 height requirement for both men and women, plus a college degree, perfect references and the ability to run two miles in 18 minutes.

"The only time being a woman interfered with my work was when I ripped my pantyhose," says a woman agent. "I made the men sit in the car while I ran into a store and bought another pair."

The agent was a swimming instructor, teacher, engineer and personnel director before joining the FBI. She did so after reading a newspaper article about federal agents. The woman not only asked that she remain anonymous, but that the city in which she is based also go unnamed.

"I've never been bored one day since I joined," she says. "It becomes a game trying to outwit them." The hazel-eyed, 5-foot-8

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

When the Good Lord was creating Mothers He was into His sixth day of "overtime" when the angel appeared and said, "You're doing a lot of fiddling around on this one." And the Lord said, "Have you read the spec on this order?" "She has to be completely washable, but not plastic. "Have 180 movable parts. . . all replaceable. "Run on black coffee and leftovers. "Have a lap that disappears when she stands up. "A kiss that can cure anything from a broken leg to a disappointed love affair. "And six pairs of hands." The angel shook her head slowly and said, "Six pairs of hands. . . no way." "It's not the hands that are causing me problems," said the Lord. "It's the three pairs of eyes that Mothers have to have."

endure." "Can it think?" "Not only think, but it can reason and compromise," said the Creator. Finally, the angel bent over and ran her finger across the cheek. "There's a leak," she pronounced. "I told You You were trying to put too much into this model." "It's not a leak," she pronounced. "It's a tear." "What's it for?" "It's for joy, sadness, disappointment, pain, loneliness and pride." "You are a genius," said the angel. The Lord looked somber. "I didn't put it there."

Latham-Allen Vows Solemnized

ATLANTIC BEACH—The marriage of Miss Lynnette Mary Allen of Miami, Fla., and Dr. Walter Bryan Latham of Miami, formerly of Bethel, was solemnized on Saturday, May 4, at 4:00 p.m. at the summer residence of the bridegroom's parents at Pine Knoll Shores. The Rev. Paul Browning, pastor of the First United Methodist Church, Morehead City, officiated at the ceremony. The parents of the couple stood with them during the ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Allen of Atlanta, Ga. the parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Latham of Bethel. Mrs. Latham received her education at Florida State University where she graduated with a degree in fashion merchandizing and was a member of Chi Omega sorority. She is now a fashion model. Dr. Latham attended the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and the Medical School there. He was a member of Sigma Nu and interned at the Medical College of Virginia. He served as an AF flight surgeon in Ohio and Europe for two years and received further training in thoracic and cardiovascular surgery at the University of Miami Department of Surgery Hospitals. At present Dr. Latham is consultant to the South Dade Community Health Center and the Homestead Florida AFB Hospital in thoracic surgery. He is an instructor in surgery at the University of Miami School of Medicine and serves on the staff of several Miami hospitals. Festivities honoring the couple included a luau given in Bethel by friends of the bridegroom's family, a buffet on Friday night for arriving guests at the Latham's cottage and a wedding breakfast at the John Yancey given by the bridegroom's parents. A reception and a dinner following the wedding was given by the bride's parents at the Coral Bay Club.

Couple Weds On Saturday

KNIGHTDALE—The marriage of Charlene Laughlin Davis and Will Ormond Aldridge Jr. took place here Saturday.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. C. F. Laughlin of Asheboro. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Ruby S. Aldridge of Greenville, and the late Mr. Will Ormond Aldridge Sr.

The brother of the bride, the Rev. John C. H. Laughlin, of Kentucky officiated at the ceremony.

After a reception at their home, the couple left on a wedding trip to unannounced points.

The couple will make their home in Knightdale.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Nachman of Vienna, Va., announce the engagement of their daughter, Deborah Anne, to James Allen Bailey, son of Mrs. Mary Lou Lamm of Sims, and the late Mr. Milton Bailey. The wedding will take place in August.

Reception Held Monday Night

Four Montgomery County, Md., students assisted East Carolina University Chancellor and Mrs. Leo W. Jenkins Monday evening when the Jenkinsons entertained about 100 of ECU's Maryland students at a reception at their home on Fifth Street.

All four are residents of Silver Spring, Md.

Woman Cop

(Continued From Page C-1) agent has investigated crime on an aircraft, bank robbery, kidnaping, extremist groups, extortion, racketeering, bank fraud and embezzlement, and bad check artists.

Starting pay is about $17,000 a year, considerably higher than city and county police department salaries.

The arguments against policewomen go on and on.

"Most of the men are very much against it," says the Police Foundation's Miss Milton. "It's a very emotional issue. There's a feeling it lowers a man's job."

"But departments have been using women in decoy and plainclothes work for years. That's far more dangerous than patrol work," she adds.

And then there are the little problems the woman cop faces. Like the night officer Delaney thought she heard some strange noises in her home in the middle of the night. She woke up her husband. He yawned.

"And so why are you waking me up? You're the one with a gun who's a cop!"

Your Silence Doesn't Imply Agreement

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My sister-in-law has a job as good as the one I have, but she doesn't budget her money, so consequently she is always in debt and she never has anything to show for her money.

I am just the opposite. I shop around and spend my money wisely, and I have a very nice wardrobe. My sister-in-law is my size, so every time she sees me wearing something new she says: "When you're through with that, throw it my way."

It makes me feel like I should give it to her after I've worn it a season, but I like to keep my clothes from one season to the next, and I really don't want to "throw" anything her way or anybody else's way.

How should I handle it? If I say: "I'll keep you in mind," then I'm committed to give it to her. If I don't say anything, she can assume she'll get it eventually.

I have given her a few things in the past, but I don't like to be rushed. Any suggestions? LIKES TO DRESS

DEAR LIKES: I disagree. Silence doesn't necessarily imply agreement. But to avoid a misunderstanding, say: "I'm glad you like it, but I'm not making any promises."

DEAR ABBY: I was faithfully married for 18 years to a man I can only describe as a kind and considerate husband. He doesn't chase and is a good provider and a good father. Bed hasn't been very exciting for me for many years, but I put on an act for the benefit of his ego. He had no idea he wasn't the greatest lover, but I didn't know how bad he was until I ran into Jimmy, which is why I have this problem.

Jimmy was my high school boyfriend who just happened to be in town [he travels] on business. It's a long story, but let me just say Jimmy and I have been meeting at a motel a few afternoons a month for the last five months. We're not "in love" [he's married, too] and nobody is going to leave anybody over this. We're just filling a need in the lives of one another. [His wife is a prude.] I never knew a 40-year-old woman, married for 18 years, could come to life the way I did.

The problem is that the "act" has become harder and harder to keep up at home. Comparisons in techniques and results leave me a wreck! Now I'm in a trap of my own making. It was all right as long as I didn't know what I was missing.

There is no way to approach this with my husband. I'd be apt to get one rap for complaining, and another for knowing the difference. At 40, I'm not ready to give up sex, and at 50, my husband isn't going to get any better in bed. Where do I go from here?

"TRAPPED" IN MANKATO, MINN.

DEAR TRAPPED: Go to the Medical School of your university and inquire about its course in Human Sexuality. [Minn. U. has one.] Trained teams are available for private counseling. Quit trying to kid your husband and suggest that the two of you take it together. When enlightenment replaces ignorance and inhibitions are broken down, miracles occur. But this is possible only when both parties sincerely want improvement. So if you want a more satisfactory love life with your husband, spend the energy. It will probably take far less than all the cloak-and-dagger chasing around for a clandestine affair, and it's far more rewarding.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Academy Night Held By WOTM

The Women of the Moose held its Academy of Friendship Chapter Night program Thursday in honor of the co-workers who received their academy degree at the annual session of the Academy of Friendship held in Burlington.

Chairman Lea Miller introduced her speaker, Miss Ada Jones, who is a past Senior Regent and a College of Regents member of the Women of the Moose. Miss Jones gave a brief history of the Academy of Friendship and the requirements for earning the degree.

Mrs. Miller presented co-workers Shirley Daughtridge, Ginny Shaw and Linda Thompson with gold rings which represent the Golden Circle of Friendship.

New members enrolled into the chapter were Evelyn Cottam, Thelma Corbett, Janice Drew, Ora Joyner and Katie Peaden.

Senior Regent, Dorothy Anderson announced the slate of officers for the coming year and urged members to be present for the election on May 23.

Annual Bosses Night And Awards Banquet Held Friday By NAIW

The annual Bosses Night Awards Banquet of the National Association of Insurance Women was held Friday evening in the Red Room of the Moose Lodge. Prior to the dinner a social hour was held.

Mrs. Polly Dail, president, welcomed the bosses and guests for the occasion. Bill Clifton gave the response and the invocation was given by Mrs. Sophia Sumner.

Bosses and special guests were introduced by Mrs. Joyce Shackleford, including Mrs. Marcella West, Mrs. Olivia

Turner and Mrs. June Mumford, from the sponsoring association in Wilmington, and Mrs. Virginia Nichols, state president of Wilson.

The theme for the occasion was "Education, Loyalty and Fellowship" spelling elf and was carried out with green and white elves and spring flowers with branched candelabra and ivy. Corsages of white carnations tied in green were presented to the incoming officers. Placecards in white with green elves decorated the head table. Miss Patricia Buck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Buck, provided the entertainment for the evening. Miss Buck's mother is a charter member of the Pitt County Chapter of NAIW. Miss Buck is a vocalist and plays the guitar.

Dan McGlohon was named Boss of the Year. He is affiliated with Hines Insurance Agency. The Boss of the Year Award Plaque was presented by Mrs. Dail.

Mrs. Sarah Jenkins was named Outstanding Woman of the Year. She was presented with the association's silver bowl and award plaque by Mrs.

Dail. She has held a position with Willard and Webb for several years and has been active on many committees of this association.

The installation services of the officers for the coming year was held. Mrs. Nichols extended greetings from the State Association and installed the officers in a candlelight ceremony.

The new officers are: Mrs. Jenkins, president; Mrs. Jane Bradbury, first vice president; Miss Hilda Pinkham, second vice president; Mrs. Joyce Mills, recording secretary; Mrs. Phylis Nobles, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Georgie Hall, treasurer; and Mrs. Joyce Shackleford, parliamentarian.

Upon installation, Mrs. Dail presented the gavel of office to Mrs. Jenkins. At this time Mrs. Jenkins presented certificates of membership to each of the members and presented Mrs. Dail with the past president's pin. The association won two awards at Regional Convention in Baltimore. Mrs. Dail presented these awards to Miss Pinkham for second place scrapbook award and to Mrs. Frances Blanchard for second place safety award.

In closing Mrs. Dail called on the group for a reading of the association collect.

Mrs. Joyce Mills, Mrs. Jane Bradbury, Mrs. Sarah Jenkins, Miss Hilda Pinkham and Mrs. Georgie Hall.

On The Young Side

The Greenville Youth Council met Monday and elected officers for 1974-75. They also voted to close out their book drive project and consider new projects at the meeting on May 20.

All Greenville youth from grades seven-12 are invited to meetings to participate in discussions and bring their problems to the attention of the council.

Elected were: Chairman, Richard Gray; Vice Chairman, Robert Wease; and Secretary-Treasurer, Debbie Lambeth. The Executive Board of the GYC will meet tomorrow night.

Three juniors were chosen to attend Boys State at Wake Forest this summer, June 9-15. They will study state government and at the end, elect a Boy's State Governor and Lieutenant Governor to attend Boy's Nation.

Selected were John Miller, Ron Hunt and Eddie Smith.

The girls' "Key Club" met Monday night to choose a name and elect officers. May 20 at 6 o'clock is the last meeting that new memberships will be accepted. K'dettes was chosen as the name. Helen Fleming was elected president, Christie Priestly, vice-president, Lynn Gantt, secretary, and Vickie Price, treasurer.

The Boy's Tennis Sectionals were held Thursday and Friday in Wilson. Playing doubles were David Walton and Joe Thurber, Jack Richardson and Dana Hendrick. Tim Toates and Julian Vainwright played singles. Those that qualify for state will travel to UNC May 16.

Insights
"Insights," Rose High literary magazine finally arrived and was received by students with enthusiasm. The magazine has more art and literary works than ever before. Additional copies are still available at 60 cents for any interested citizens.

Editors were Kathleen Waugh, Kathy Cunningham and Carol

Ostrow. Other staff members were Myrla Cox, Ida Gray, John Miller, Rosalyn Jones, Lori Hooper, Alison Lyder, Mary Helen Rountree, Annis Paschal, David Pendered, Mike Staton, Betty Moseley, Peggy Wilkerson, Mike McGlohon and Elaine Nichols. Mrs. M. Virginia Jones was faculty advisor.

The annual All-Sports Banquet is scheduled for tomorrow night at 6:30. ECU head basketball coach Dave Patton is guest speaker. All sports awards and letters will be presented.

Elections were held Thursday and Friday for SGA and class officers. SGA candidates gave campaign speeches and skits at an assembly Thursday morning.

Portuguese Feel New Freedoms

By JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer
LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Manuel Fernandes Videira is a plasterer, a man on a scaffold, who still reaches, bends, coughs in a sea of white dust nine hours a day for the equivalent of $25 in a brown pay packet at the end of the week.

He still takes the same overcrowded trolley bus downtown to work and his wife still packs him the same lunch of fish sandwiches. But for the plasterer, life has changed since April 25, when a military coup overthrew the authoritarian regime that had ruled Portugal for 48 years.

"It has to do with the boss," says Videira. "He's gotten very quiet all of a sudden. He's not stepping on my toes any more. He's promising raises, but there's a bigger change. It's in the way he talks. Before it was always work more, work harder. Now it's just do your job properly and do it well."

More than just a regime, the military coup that the Portuguese call "our revolution" overthrew a relationship between people—one which involved a sullen acceptance of authority and an assurance that power at any level would always go unchallenged.

The plasterer's wife works at the Lisbon University canteen, and she and the other women there felt free enough after the coup to complain about working on Sundays. As a result they got weekends off.

"You could say that we are a bit of a revolutionary couple," said Videira jokingly.

Life has changed, too, though not materially, for some of the privileged class—like Maria Fernanda Portugal Ribeiro, an elegant woman with two grown sons and a husband who commands a navy training ship.

Her cleaning woman still comes to her town house, and her mother-in-law still worries that she is too outspoken. But Mrs. Ribeiro says she is no longer ashamed of her country.

"I used to live here in constant irritation," she explained. "I was always nervous. When I tell you I hated to live in this country the way it was I am telling you the truth. I always wanted to get out. Now I feel jubilant. I want to stay and see what happens."

She said that the biggest change was in her attitude toward Portuguese men.

"I used to feel a lot of contempt for them. I used to think they were worthless, incapable of attempting anything noble. I know many other women who felt this same way. A friend called me up the other day and said the biggest surprise of the whole thing was to find out there are some men in Portugal."

But the coup also brought sadness and fear to some lives, and the victims of the excesses were not always the agents of the now dismembered political police.

The first days after the government's overthrow were anguish for Joao Martin Simoes who has a popular restaurant in Cascais, a fishing village turned tourist haven near Lisbon. One day a newspaper article identified him as an informer for the political police.

"It was the saddest day of my life," he recalls. "You think, 'What can you do about something like that?' How powerless you are to say, 'No, I am not an informer.' I could imagine being called any name but not that."

Ultimately Simoes was cleared and the newspaper published a retraction. He put advertisements in other papers showing his photograph and a statement that said he never had anything to do with politics or the police.

But the damage had been done, and amid the general jubilation over the new political climate, Simoes is deeply wounded.

"I hope it won't hurt my business," he said. "I'm 42 years old but it seems like I've been working for 60. I'm going to sue the paper. If I shut up about this, some people would take it as an admission of guilt."

BIG SMILE IN A BIG CROP—Danna Cornelison, 4, flashes a big smile standing near her home in part of Kansas' wheat crop which is predicted to pass 400 million bushels for the first time this year. The green wheat, now head-high, will be harvested in about a month. (AP Wirephoto)

Old Pilots Form Cult Of 'Staggerwing' Fans

By LES SEAGO
Associated Press Writer
TULLAHOMA, Tenn. (AP)—Walter Beech called his new craft the Model 17, but to generations of pilots who have fallen under its spell since 1932, the big biplane has been "The Staggerwing."

For pilots such as John L. Parish and W. C. "Dub" Yarbrough, there will never again be another plane to equal the Stag. And because there won't, they are building a museum so future generations will appreciate the Staggerwing Beechcraft.

Parish, a sporting goods manufacturer, and Yarbrough, a retired Naval aviator, began work in earnest late last year after receiving support from other Staggerwing owners.

Loyalty to the old bird runs so high among Staggerwing admirers, that they are succeeding.

The Staggerwing was the Lear Jet of the 1930's. Along with the Howard, Waco, Spartan and the Stinson, it ushered in the era of the enclosed cabin in which the company president could ride in relative comfort without regard for the then-unreliable airline schedules.

Today, only Beechcraft remains of the aircraft manufacturers who pioneered the executive airplane concept and the Staggerwing, is still one of the most-sought after aircraft in the skies.

Powered by a big radial engine, the Beech could nudge 200 m.p.h. 40 years ago when the Air Corps was still happy with a 180 m.p.h. fighter craft.

The Staggerwing got its nickname because of the curious arrangement of its wings. Instead of the top wing being ahead of the bottom airfoil as was the custom in the days of biplanes, the lower wing was closer to the nose—an arrangement known as negative stagger.

Beech manufactured some 760 of the Model 17s, the last in 1946 when newer and more glamorous ships began appearing. Less than 125 are still flying and perhaps another 100 are being rebuilt by antique aircraft enthusiasts.

Tullahoma is the site of probably the first museum dedicated to a single aircraft type.

The museum is going up at the south end of Tullahoma's airport, Northern Field, where "The Tullahoma Bunch," a loose-knit organization of confessed "old airplane nuts" meets irregularly to fly, work on and talk about antique airplanes.

There, in three hangars built by Parish, reside more than 30 antique airplanes bearing names long-missing from the scene: Taylor, Stinson, Ryan, Myers, Globe, and Travelair, the forerunner of the Beech.

Among the old ships is Parish's personal Staggerwing, "Big Red," two other Stags being rebuilt and a hangar full of spare wings, flaps, elevators and rudders for the old plane.

"We've got probably 95 per cent of the Staggerwing spare parts in the country," Yarbrough said. "If someone needs something to rebuild his beech, we can help him. And if someone has an extra wing or empennage, he can send it here and get credit for it, then when he needs something, we can help him out."

At the end of the hangar line, steel girders are going up to house the museum. A reconstructed "dog run" log cabin will serve as the office, housing flight manuals, technical records and photographs of the various staggerwing versions.

The museum will house several Model 17s as well as a Travelair 4000, an open cockpit biplane designed by Beech before he formed his own firm.

Most of the display ships will be flyable, Parish said.

"The planes will be there for people to look at, but we'll have most of them flying," Parish said.

The museum will be dedicated in mid-June when the national Staggerwing Club holds its annual fly-in at Tullahoma.

Parish is expecting as many as 100 of the cabin biplanes and their owners, plus an assortment of other antique craft, to participate in the fly-in.

Among those expected is Louise Thaden, one of the early women pilots who at one time held the speed, altitude and endurance records—all set in Staggerwings. The office and technical library is to be named in her honor during the fly-in.

Yarbrough, the museum president who flies a World War II Grumman Hellcat when he's not working on the museum or one of the antique planes at Parish Aerodrome, pointed out that Staggerwing owners believe in flying their planes.

Many of the ships expected at the fly-in are working planes, he said, and most are used for long-range travel on a regular basis.

World Of Beauty Queens Changing

Feminists take note: the world is changing, even in the rarified atmosphere of the Miss USA and Miss Universe winners' circles.

Taking this year's title-holders into consideration, it would seem that the time-honored cliché of the empty-headed beauty queen is a thing of the past.

There was a time — and not too long ago, either — when beauty-contest winners were as predictable as they were beautiful. Certain questions were sure elicit inevitable responses; for example, to the question, "How have you enjoyed your year as Miss Cattle Queen of Weedpatch?" The answer was unflinching: "It was the biggest thrill of my life. If only it could go on forever!"

For contrast, consider the response to this same question by Miss Universe, (1972) Kerry Ann Wells of Australia: "It was exciting, but it was also tiring. My favorite moments came when people saw me under that title and related to me as a human being." Another beauty queen put it this way: "The year broadened my horizons — it's not until you travel that you realize what a big world it is out there — but a year is long enough. I don't know if I could keep up the pace much longer."

Now those answers may not be a press agent's dream, but they're human responses, and they're indicative of a new trend which is noticeable among girls who enter today's beauty contests. They are no longer wide-eyed with the glamour of it all; they tend to be real live three-dimensional human beings whose physical beauty is just one aspect of their personalities.

Well, after all, an intelligent face is more beautiful than a vacant one, and the fact that the Miss USA and Miss Universe contests are recognizing this is an encouraging sign.

This year the 23rd annual "Miss USA Beauty Pageant," with 51 of the most beautiful girls in the United States competing for the coveted title of Miss USA 1974, will be broadcast live from Niagara Falls, New York, as a special two-hour presentation Saturday, May 18 (10-12 p.m.) on channels 9,11.

The special will highlight the judging of the selected finalists and will be climaxed by the crowning of the new titleholder by Miss USA 1973, Amanda Jones. Maria Margarita Moran of the Philippines, Miss Universe 1973, will make a special guest appearance. Miss USA 1974 will represent the United States in the "Miss Universe Beauty Pageant," to be broadcast July 20. On hand to repeat their duties as Master of Ceremonies and Hostess will be Nob Barker and Helen O'Connell. Judges announced thus far include New York Giants kicking specialist Pete Gogolak; Chinese-American artist Dong Kingman; psychologist Dr. Joyce Brothers; Eileen Ford, head of her own successful modeling agency; actor George Peppard; fashion designer John Weitz; Geoffrey Holder, actor, dancer and producer; Sylvia Hitchcock, Miss Universe 1967; actress Sylvia Sidney, and auto-racing Rodger Ward. An 11th panel member will be announced.

The newly chosen Miss USA will receive $7,500, plus a $7,500 personal-appearance contract. The four runners-up will receive U.S. Savings Bonds ranging from $1,000 for the first runner-up to $200 for the fourth runner-up.

TO CROWN NEW QUEEN — Miss USA 1973, Amanda Jones, will crown the new titleholder, on the "Miss USA Beauty Pageant," to be broadcast live from Niagara Falls, N.Y., Saturday, May 18 (10:00 p.m.-12:00 Midnight, EDT) on the CBS Television Network.

An Afternoon's Fantasy Special

"The Magical Mystery Trip Through Little Red's Head"—an enchanting blend of fantasy, fun, music, and humor which takes children on an exciting journey through the human mind — will be presented on the "ABC Afterschool Specials" series, Wednesday, May 15 (4:30-5:30 p.m.) on channel 3W-5-12.

In announcing the animated special, Mr. Squire D. Rushnell, Vice President, ABC Children's Programs, stated: "Children are usually very concerned about their emotions, because often they don't understand them. This program uses fantasy and humor to inform them about that strange world — the mind. I think it will be beneficial to children as well as entertaining and enjoyable."

The special uses techniques similar to that of the critically acclaimed "ABC Afterschool Specials" presentation, "The Incredible, Indelible, Magical, Mystery Trip," which aired in February of 1973. The New York Times called that show "a cleverly colored animation (which) is inventive ... the pacing is brisk, the tone is sassy-serious and the anatomical galaxy of Alice in Wonderland characters is perky to hilarious."

FLIES — A "sense rocket" flies Carol (left), Larry (right) and their guide Timer (center) to the "Fountain of Feelings" in "The Magical Mystery Trip Through Little Red's Head," an "ABC After-school Specials" presentation on Wednesday, May 15 (4:30-5:30 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12. This imaginary journey is a fun-filled lesson on the human brain.

Health Hazard To Be Report's Topic

A CBS REPORTS broadcast examining vinyl chloride as a common health hazard of grave proportion is currently in production by CBS News. The broadcast will be presented at a date and time to be announced. Early this year, vinyl chloride was linked to a dozen cases of rare liver cancer among 6,500 workers engaged in making the chloride.

Large-scale production of vinyl chloride began in the 1950s and was presumed harmless. But 20 years later, now that cancer, which often may take years to develop, has been found among vinyl-chloride workers, there is a persistent fear that the consequences from exposure to this chloride may reach well beyond the cases that have been discovered so far.

Poetry To Be Seen, Heard

The imaginative new art form of combining language with graphics or musical elements — often with startling effect — is demonstrated in "Poetry to See, Poetry to Hear" on "Camera Three" Sunday, May 12. On this program, writer-critic Richard Kostelanetz, who has been active in this field as creator, editor and critic, traces the development of the different branches of this art form.

Widely diverse examples of the form seen on the broadcast include Kostelanetz's own "Disintegrate," in which that word is printed several times in progressively "decaying" type; Gay Beste Reineck's "Fig," a stylized picture of the fruit created from the letters of the word; Robert Indiana's well-known "Love" poster, and Johnathan Price's "World Salad," a bowl of clear plastic cubes with various words on their faces.

FORCED — Ernest Borgnine (left) and Rock Hudson are forced into a brink-of-war confrontation with a Russian Task Force in "Ice Station Zebra," coming on "The ABC Sunday Night Movie", May 12 and "The ABC Monday Night Movie", May 13 at 9 p.m. on Channel 3-5-12.

'Ice Station Zebra' Monday

Rock Hudson, Ernest Borgnine, Patrick McGoohan, Jim Brown and Tony Bill star in "Ice Station Zebra," the adventure-drama about the perilous Arctic voyage and mission of a U.S. nuclear submarine, which will be telecast in two parts, on successive nights beginning on the "ABC Sunday Night Movie," May 12 (8:30-10:15 p.m.), and concluding on the "ABC Monday Night Movie," May 13 (9-10:30 p.m.) on channel 3W-5-12.
 The crew of the USS Nuclear Submarine Tigerfish, under the command of Cmdr. James Ferrady (Rock Hudson), is sent on a perilous voyage under the Arctic ice cap to the North Pole. Their mission is to rescue survivors at a weather station shattered by an explosion and fire and enveloped by a winter storm.

David Jones (Patrick McGoohan), a close-mouthed British Intelligence agent is aboard and Ferrady is instructed to assist him in every way. Halfway to the pole, they rendezvous with a helicopter and pick up Boris Vaslov (Ernest Borgnine), a mysterious Russian working for British Intelligence.

THE TODAY LOOK

The period look, reminiscent of a turn-of-the-century manor house, is making a big hit in the modern city home—be it an apartment or a converted brownstone. This look, popular, for some time, is now suddenly quite the rage. Perhaps it's because it's nostalgic; we all know that nostalgia is the mood of the moment in the theater, films, fashion, and now decorating. Today's look is a combination of contemporary color and materials with antiques. This is probably the reason for its popularity.

The popularity of wall to wall carpeting for the home as well as the business continues. We have a very large variety for your convenience. Eastern Carpet Inc., 602 West Greenville Blvd., Greenville. 756-1944. "Where There's Always A Sale." "Carpet is our Business, Not a Hobby."

Lawrence Welk Is Easing Up

Lawrence Welk will be seen and heard less often in the years to come after his 50 years in the band business that started with a squeezebox on the farmlands of North Dakota. He has decided to "ease off" now that his life span is rolling into the 70s, and wants to spend more time with his family and enjoy the fruits of his labors.

He has called off one night a week of appearances at the Palladium. It comes at a time when his TV ratings are the highest and his personal tours to sellout crowds.

Dramatic Account Of Missile Crisis

In October, 1962, the world stood on the brink of destruction, precipitated by a confrontation between the United States and the U.S.S.R. over the Soviet placement of nuclear offensive weapons in Cuba.

ANGIE DICKINSON

Angie Dickinson will make her debut as star of a weekly network television series on "Police Woman" scheduled to be colorcast Fridays on NBC. She will re-create the role she originated in one of this season's most successful episodes of "Police Story," titled "The Gamble."

The dramatic, nerve-shattering story of "The Missiles of October" will be presented on the ABC Theatre series of specials during the fourth quarter of 1974, it was announced today by Martin Starger, President of ABC Entertainment. "The Missiles of October" deals with the 13 days during which the world, unknowingly, stood only moments away from a nuclear holocaust.

Czech Comedy In Two Parts

"Six Bears and A Clown", comedy film from Czechoslovakia about the adventures of a circus clown, will be rebroadcast in two parts on Saturday, May 18 and Saturday, May 25 (1-2 p.m.) on "The CBS Children's Film Festival" in color on channel 3N-9-11.

The hero of the film is a clown who has a successful circus act with six trained bears and a chimpanzee.

When the manager of the circus trades the bear for a pig act, the clown finds himself without a job, and applies for work at the local school as a cook.

Entertainers Show Private Talents

Monday, May 13 — Actor Gary Collins talks about his move to Africa for his starring role in the new fall series "Born Free."

He and his wife, Mary Ann Mobley, help Dinah make stuffed mushrooms and artichoke sauce. Dr. George O'Neill and his wife, Nena, discuss their popular books "Open Marriage" and "Shifting Gears."

Tuesday, May 14 — Marcel Marceau acts out the recipe for boeuf bourguignon and talks about the art of mime.

Marcel shows kids how he would portray a bird, a fish, and love, and sketches a French river scene as Dinah sings "Under Paris Skies."

Wednesday, May 15 — Master gardener Jerry Baker shows Loretta Lynn how to "grow a salad" by planting vegetables alternately with flowers.

Fashion co-ordinator Marianne Ryan shows new summer styles, including the "Gatsby Look." Dinah and Loretta sing "Anytime."

Thursday, May 16 — Dr. Theodore Tubin, president of the American Institute for Psychoanalysis, leads a discussion on coping with every day emotional problems and explains his six keys to happiness.

Dinah sings, "It Takes a Whole Lot of Human Feeling."

Friday, May 17 — Gavin MacLeod and his new bride, Patti, discuss their recent marriage, demonstrate a painting technique and show how to make bread-dough baskets.

The MacLeod's dog is given a personality test by Matthew Margolis of the National Institute of Dog Training. Dinah sings "Ain't We Got Fun."

Miss Anderson portrays the role of a woman who must resurrect the remnants of her marriage after her husband — presumed dead for six years — is now released from a Viet Cong POW camp.

Celebs On Baseball

Joe Garagiola, Don Meredith and Dick Williams — in order of appearance — will occupy the first three slots in the celebrity guest line-up when Monday Night Baseball resumes on NBC. Joe Garagiola, who joined NBC-TV sportscasters Curt Gowdy and Tony Kubek for the first Monday Night Baseball colorcast of 1974 — the historic April 8 telecast in which Hank Aaron broke Babe Ruth's career record with his 715th home run — will move back into the celebrity spotlight May 27.

Garagiola, an eight-year major leaguer who later became the first Game-of-the-Week telecaster, is slated for a total of four Monday Night appearances. The recipient of a Peabody Award for his "Baseball World of Joe Garagiola" will also be doing a minimum of 10 Saturday afternoon Games - of - the - Week, in addition to the July 23 All-Star Game.

Don Meredith, the former Dallas Cowboys quarterback and ABC-TV Monday Night Football commentator now under an exclusive, long-term contract with NBC, will be the guest celebrity June 3.

Wide World's Specials Set

The life story of rock music superstar Elton John, a celebrity birthday party for Phyllis Diller, and Dick Cavett's revealing 90-minute interview with transsexual Jan Morris, will be presented in three "Wide World Specials" on the "ABC Wide World of Entertainment" in the week of May 13-17.

George Maharis, Eileen Brennan, and Ed Nelson are among the starring players in the week's "Wide World Mystery" dramas.

All programs will be seen in the 11:30 p.m. - 1 a.m. time period.

The week begins with the presentation of "Police Headquarters," a "Wide World Mystery," on Monday, May 13. Ed Nelson stars as Lt. Calvin Zenger, faced with the challenge of solving two separate murder cases — the seemingly accidental death of an affluent member of a posh tennis club, and the killing of a mobster while he was in a motel room with a woman.

George Maharis and Eileen Brennan, who was a featured player in the Oscar-winning film, "The Sting," star in "Come Die With Me," a "Wide World Mystery" on Tuesday, May 14.

Maharis has the role of a man who kills his wealthy, older brother, who had refused him a loan, and is held in a love bondage by the housekeeper, played by Miss Brennan, who is aware of his crime.

A birthday soiree for comedienne Phyllis Diller, "Phyllis Diller's 102nd Birthday Party," is the "Wide World Special" for Wednesday, May 15.

With Peter Lawford as host, party guests will include Jim Nabors, Jack Burns and Avery Schreiber, George Kennedy, Louis Nye, Edie Adams, Nanette Fabray, Rich Little, Ronnie Graham, Dr. Joyce Brothers and Arthur Space — each to contribute, in his own way, to the celebration.

Jan Morris, the transsexual who had been noted journalist James Morris, will be the only guest on "The Dick Cavett

HUSBAND-WIFE STAR — Natalie Wood and Robert Wagner star as two sensitive people reaching out to each other for a love stronger than the hurts they have known in "The Affair," a story of discovery on the "Tuesday Movie of the Week" May 14 (8:30 - 10:30 p.m.) on Channels 3, 5, 12.

Darden in co-starring roles. In the 90-minute movie, Sherman is seen as Barney Kaylor, a tour guide, who puts his own life on the line to save the others, as does passenger Bob Parsons, played by Campanella.

Astin, as Andrew Tustin, rides the tramway with the purpose of overcoming his intense fear of heights. Miss Powers portrays Nancy, a divorcee who is reluctant to try marriage again with Campanella.

Ross Martin and Nancy Malone play Mr. and Mrs. Martin Leonard, whose 15-year-old marriage is shaky. Miss McDevitt is Aunt Louise, a sprightly septugenarian along for the ride, and Darden is Kramer, a pickpocket who is on the tramway to ply his trade.

Trapped On Aerial Tramway

The lives of passengers on an aerial tramway are imperiled when they are trapped 8,500 feet in the air in "Skyway to Death", a gripping drama airing as the "Wednesday Movie of the Week" May 15 (8:30-10 p.m.) on channels 3W-5-12.

The all-star cast includes Ross Martin, Stefanie Powers, Bobby Sherman, Tige Andrews, Nancy Malone and David Sheiner. Special guest stars are John Astin and Joseph Campanella, with Ruth McDevitt and Severn

'Police Story' Cameras Roll

NBC's critically acclaimed anthology series, "Police Story," started production this week at Screen Gems for its second season.

The first drama being filmed is "A Dangerous Age," by E. Arthur Lean. It stars Emmy Award winner Edward Asner as a veteran police officer.

Returning in his recurring role of Vinnie, the bartender, is Scott Brady.

PLAYS GRANDSON — Robert Drivas portrays the grandson in a dynastic gangland family, in "V for Vashon," a special presentation of "Hawaii Five-O" Tuesday, May 14 (8:30 - 11 p.m.) on Channel 9-11.

Banacek's Proverbs

Each ethnic group has its culture proverbs passed along from one generation to the next. Sometimes there is a loss, not only in translation but in the handing down, but most such sage bits of wisdom remain basically intact.

On "Banacek," series star George Peppard portrays a modern-day bounty hunter whose origins are Polish.

Scattered throughout the "Banacek" series are "slightly altered" Polish proverbs, uttered by Peppard. For example:

"If your socks are not in your shoes, don't go looking for them in heaven."

"If it isn't potato borscht, there could be orphans working the mines."

"The cheese will still smell after four days."

"A twisting road will still get you to Warsaw, and you won't be bored."

 In "Hello Mother, Goodbye," wily matriarch Theresa Mullen (Miss Davis) disapproves of eldest son Ken (Ken Mars) chucking a $42,000-a-year job to start his own mod mail-order business, and of his divorce from Judy (Ellen Weston).

DOMINEERING MOTHER — Bette Davis portrays Theresa Mullen, a wily matriarch who tries to dominate her adult children's lives in "Hello Mother, Goodbye," one segment of "Three-In-One Comedy" to be colorcast on "NBC Wednesday Night at the Movies" May 15 (9-11 PM) on Channel 6-7.

Phyllis Marks 102nd Birthday

It isn't every girl (yes girl) who can celebrate a 102nd birthday party in style.
 Centenarians being what they are (what they are is in short supply), Phyllis Diller brings it off with éclat, high humor, and a fine touch of frenzy in "Phyllis Diller's 102nd Birthday Party."
 The soiree takes place on a "Wide World Special" on the "ABC Wide World of Entertainment," Wednesday, May 15 (11:30 p.m.-1 a.m.) on channels 3W-5-12.
 Hosted by Peter Lawford, the black tie function, held in a posh Bel Air mansion, is a wild amalgam of incidents, accidents (on purpose), and a roast.
 In the program proper (and this is a very proper program), one gets to know Phyllis' past as viewed through the jaundiced eyes of those who knew her when.

A Scrutiny Of Bachelor Tales

That ever-fascinating topic, the unmarried male, comes under scrutiny in various guises — a symphony bass player whose girl hates classical music, a television comedy writing team, a bright young banker whose social life is lacking, and a businessman with an eccentric mother — in "Bachelors 4," four original half-hour comedies on "The CBS Thursday Night Movies" Thursday, May 16 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 9-11.

Garagiola Kept'em Laughing

The cast and crew of the World Premiere drama, "Lucas Tanner," say there was a show going on at both ends of the cameras during the filming, thanks to the story-telling expertise of guest star Joe Garagiola.

Known for his quick wit and mastery of the anecdote, the major league catcher-turned-broadcaster regaled his co-workers with off-stage quips and coffee-break sports stories that made their set the most popular set in town.

Joe told the story about how a report was circulated along the sports grapevine that Willie Pep, the great ex-featherweight champion, had died. A reporter called to check on the story and Pep himself answered the phone and said, "Naw, I didn't die last night. I wasn't even out of the house."

About his ball-playing days as a major league catcher with the St. Louis Cardinals, Chicago Cubs, Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Giants, Joe pointed out, "Each time I was traded, the sportswriters would announce 'this is a deal that will hurt both teams.'"

Joe laughed as hard as his listeners when he told of a scouting report a coach had drawn up on him.

Alan King Net Classic Saturday

ABC Sports will present exclusive live coverage of the third annual Alan King Tennis Classic from Caesars Palace, Las Vegas, Nevada — one of the richest tennis tournaments in the world — on Saturday, May 18 (3-4:30 p.m.) and Sunday, May 19 (4-6 p.m.) on channel 3W-5-12.

Sportscaster Howard Cosell will report on the action in the final rounds of the $150,000 tournament, assisted by the host, comedian Alan King, and all-time tennis great Pancho Gonzales.

An all-star roster of celebrities has been assembled for the competition. Over the past two years, the tourney has attracted some of the biggest names in show business, sports, politics, fashion and the arts.

Included among celebrities who will be competing in the program division of the Alan King event are Dick Martin and Dan Rowan, Bill Cosby, Johnny Carson, Charlton Heston, Clint Eastwood, Merv Griffin, Andy Williams, Buddy Hackett, Paul Anka, Sidney Poitier, Steve Lawrence, Ed Ames, Don Adams, Rosey Grier and Rafer Johnson.

Children's Films Stir Involvement

"The two ingredients in every good children's film that we look for are involvement and participation," says Faith Frenz, producer of the award-winning weekly series, "The CBS Children's Film Festival," seen Saturdays (1-2 p.m.) on channels 3N-9-11.

"While entertainment is, of course, important in a film," Miss Frenz says, "the act of participating, of identifying with someone else's life nourishes the child's awareness and enables him to reach out and care about those around him."

"Involvement allows the child to grow emotionally without being conscious of the process. Identification lifts the viewer out of his skin. Without realizing it, he has learned the meaning of empathy."

Another important element required by the CBS Children's Programming Department when selecting a film for young viewers is a clear definition between the good guys and the bad guys.

"The Children's Foundation of England polled a group of children, aged 7-12," Miss Frenz says. "It seems that villains are universally popular — especially among boys — because of the appeal of bravery and masculine daring, and of the rejection of authority. However, children also recognize and accept the basic premises of conventional morality when these are illustrated on the screen."

"The children are delighted when the hero is triumphant and the villain meets his just deserts. Basically the children fear villains, so they derive satisfaction from seeing the source of their fear overcome in the last reel."

Rod Laver In WCT Finals

"Rocket" Rod Laver, seeking the only major tennis crown that so far has managed to elude him, makes his fourth appearance in the World Championship of Tennis Finals at Dallas, where the WCT singles title will be decided. The event will be colorcast on Sunday, May 12 (1-4 p.m.) on channels 6-7.

The 35-year-old Australian veteran, runner-up to countryman Ken Rosewall for the $50,000 top prize in both 1971 and 1972 and a semifinalist last year, will be competing against seven other top WCT professionals.

The other participants, representing six different countries, are Americans Star Smith, the defending champion, and Arthur Ashe; John Newcombe of Australia; colorful Ilie Nastase of Rumania; Tom Okker of The Netherlands; Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia, the 1973 Wimbledon champ; and Bjorn Borg, the 17-year-old Swedish sensation.

Ashe, defeated by Smith in last year's title match, will also be appearing in his fourth World Championship of Tennis Finals. Newcombe and Okker will be in their third WCT championship event; Smith in his second; and Kodes, Borg and Nastase in their first. Total purse is $100,000.

Newcombe (Blue Group), Nastase (Red Group) and Laver (Green Group) qualified for the competition by being the top point men in their respective groups. Runners-up in each group—Smith (Blue), Okker (Red) and Ashe (Green)—also joined the elite eight as did Borg and Kodes (both Green), who earned wild-card spots by being the next highest in points, regardless of group.

Jim Simpson and Bud Collins will provide commentary for the coverage.

AGE OF CONSENT

Jessica Walter, who stars as a chief of detectives in the two-hour "Ironside" drama, "Amy Prentiss, AKA: The Chief," May 23, made her Broadway debut in the play, "Advise and Consent."

Rodeo, Gymnast Displays

The graceful agility of competitors in the National AAU Gymnastic Championships and the strength-sapping events of the Western Rodeo Championships will be featured on "CBS Sports Spectacular" Sunday, May 12 (1-2:30 p.m.) on channels 3N-9-11.

Brent Musburger, series host, and Linda Metheny, a former Olympian, along with Tom Maloney, gymnastic administrator for the AAU, describe the events in the gymnastic championships from Billings, Mont. Jack Phillips, head of the Cowboys Rodeo Association, will be joined by Walt Garrison, Dallas Cowboy running back and noted rodeo cowboy, for the rodeo championships from Clovis, Calif.

Among the competing men gymnasts will be Mike Carter, a student at Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge, La., who is a newcomer to the sport; Mel Hill, 1972 AAU national champion in vaulting; John Crosby, who has won eight medals in the Pan American Games and a gold medal in Russia; Yoshi Hiyasaki, a coach and teacher at the University of Illinois, who is the defending champion in three events — all-around, horizontal bar and pommel horse; and brothers Gene and Jay Whalen, newcomers who are outstanding candidates for the 1976 Olympics.

The distaff competition will feature Roxanne Pierce, 1972 Olympian and defending AAU champion in vaulting and uneven bars; Nancy Theis, 1972 Olympian and third ranking U.S. gymnast; and Joan Moore Rice, defending all-around and floor-exercise champion.

The thrills and daring of the rodeo cowboy will be highlighted in such events as saddle bronc riding, focusing on John McBeth, who heads the list in the competition; bareback bronc riding, spotlighting Joe Alexander, the 1972 world titleholder, along with Steve Cosca and Larry Jordon; and the ever-dangerous bull riding, featuring Don Gay, a 19-year-old who placed four times at the 1972 National Finals Rodeo.

KAREN VALENTINE

Karen Valentine, the popular comedienne who starred for five seasons on "Room 222" will star in her own half-hour comedy series, "The Karen Valentine Program," premiering in January, 1975.

DOWN THE STRETCH — Sports essayist Heywood Hale Brown (upper left) and veteran sportscaster Jack Whitaker will describe the action for the Preakness, from Pimlico Race Course in Baltimore, Md., Saturday, May 18 (5-6 p.m.) on Channels 9 & 11.

In a recent student economy run, co-sponsored by Tarheel Toyota, Toyota distributors and the Greenville Jaycees, six students along with two alternates accompanied by Jaycee representative, Jack Meyers drove a 1974 Corolla S-5 Coupe for 150.9 miles. The Corolla was chosen from Tarheel Toyotas showroom and averaged 41.9 miles per gallon. These six students were competing in a national contest to dramatize the need for maximum fuel economy through sound driving habits. Students participating in the economy run from the Greenville area were Francine Elks, Ken Buck, Scott Wolcott, James Smith, Leonard Sheppard, Nat Perkins, Donald Moore and Mark Flanagan. Prizes to be awarded by Toyota Motor Sales U.S.A., Inc. will include two $500 scholarships for the winning drivers from each area, $300 for the winning school and $200 for the Jaycee chapter sponsoring a winning team.

Tarheel Toyota was pleased to supply the Corolla used in the test drive. Why not stop in today and test drive one of our Toyota's that we have in stock. We have the best selection of new Toyota's available anywhere.

Expand Sports Programming

"ABC's Wide World of Sports" will expand its programming from 90 minutes to 2½ hours - airing 4:40-7 p.m. - on Saturday, May 18, for exclusive coverage of two major live events, the NBA-ABA All-Star Basketball Game with superstars including John Havlicek, Walt Frazier, Julius Erving and George McGinnis, and the previously-announced Indianapolis "500" Time Trials.

The NBA-ABA All-Star Game, to be played at the Providence Civic Auditorium in Providence, Rhode Island, pits the outstanding players of the two professional leagues as chosen by the players themselves - in their third annual post-season clash.

In their first two matchups, the NBA All-Stars were victorious in hard-fought contests. Both games were decided in the final minute of play, with the NBA clinching a five point victory in the first meeting, and squeaking by with a one-point margin in the second.

Covering all the live basketball action from Providence will be Sports caster Keith Jackson, who will be joined by basketball great Bill Russell, Coach and General Manager of the Seattle Super-sonics.

The NBA-ABA All-Star Game gives basketball fans throughout the nation their only opportunity to see the premier performers of both professional leagues assembled in competition on the same court.

Live coverage of the Indianapolis "500" Time Trials on Saturday, May 18, will feature racing action on "bumping day," as many of auto racing's leading drivers and their machines go against the clock in their final opportunity to win berths in the starting grid for the Sunday, May 26, classic race. Once the starting field of 33 cars is filled, the remaining drivers have only one chance to post a higher qualifying speed than the slowest car in the field, thus bumping it from the field and moving into the 33rd position as all the other qualified cars move up one position in the grid.

Reporting on the Indy Time Trials will be Sports caster Jim McKay, series host of "ABC's Wide World of Sports," with world driving champion Jackie Stewart and automotive authority Chris Economaki.

The following are the team rosters for the NBA-ABA All-Star Game:

NBA LINE UP — John Havlicek, Boston Celtics; Spencer Haywood, Seattle SuperSonics; Elvin Hayes, Washington (formerly Capital) Bullets; Rick Barry, Golden State Warriors; Dave Cowens, Boston Celtics; Bob Lanier, Detroit Pistons; Bob McAdoo, Buffalo Braves; Walt Frazier, New York Knickerbockers; Phil Chenier, Washington (formerly Capital) Bullets; Dave Bing, Detroit Pistons; Geoff Petrie, Portland Trail Blazers.

ABA LINE UP — "Dr. J" Julius Erving, New York Nets; George McGinnis, Indiana Pacers; Dan Issel, Kentucky Colonels; Willie Wise, Utah Stars; Artis Gilmore Kentucky Colonels.

Also, Caldwell Jones, San Diego Conquistadors; Swen Nater, San Antonio Spurs; Jimmy Jones, Utah Stars; Ron Boone, Utah Stars; Mack Calvin, Carolina Cougars; Ted McLain, Carolina Cougars.

WAITING TIME

Stage, TV and film actor John Forsythe, who stars in "The Healers" a World Premiere Movie to be colorcast on May 22, had his first Broadway job as a ter in a restaurant where his co-worker was Kirk Douglas.

PARAMEDIC AID—Paramedic John Gage (Randolph Mantooth) helps a man (Craig Chudy) who has presumably been smoking pot in "Insomnia," an episode of "Emergency!" to be colorcast Saturday, May 18 (8-9 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Offer Comedy Presentation

Six businessmen, seeking relaxation from domestic and professional responsibilities, go off together in a delivery truck on a weekend camp-out and wind up in jail charged with disorderly conduct in "Shirts-Skins," a special half-hour comedy presentation on Monday, May 13 (10:30-11 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12.

Advertising man Teddy Bush, dentist Francis Murphy, pediatrician Benny Summers, business manager Jerry Axelrod and broker Dick Dubin are annoyed when thrifty dress manufacturer Sidney Krebs picks them up in a garment truck instead of a rented camper, as originally planned.

After an uncomfortable drive to a beach campsite, the men are greeted by a thunderstorm, with which they cope by literally quaffing 80-proof liberations and playing touch football.

Drenched, cold and stoned, the men change into dry women's clothing, which they are "modeling" when State police come on the scene.

The teleplay was inspired by author and director, Bruce Paltrows' previous screenplay "Shirts-Skins" which starred Doug McClure and Bill Bixby and aired on "ABC Tuesday Movie of the Week."

FOR SEN. WILLIAM PROXMIRE (D-Wis.)

You have been critical of the oil industry for years. Don't you feel that by your criticism you have contributed to the present energy crisis?—R. D. Collins, Midland, Texas

● It is true that I have criticized the special oil-industry tax treatment—the depletion allowance, the tax loopholes that allow oil companies to write off in one year what most companies must wait 8 to 12 years to write off, and the golden gimmick that treats "royalties" paid abroad as "taxes" and allows the companies to get away with paying little or no taxes at home. Most major oil companies pay from two to ten percent in federal income taxes. Other companies pay 48 percent! But there is no way that my criticism has contributed to the energy shortage. These loopholes go on. The oil companies continue to pay little or no taxes. If I had been successful and done away with the depletion allowances and other gimmicks, they might have a case. But we hardly put a glove on them, as the saying goes. No industry in history has had more incentives to produce than oil companies. The problem is they have been pampered with excesses.

FOR HARVEY KORMAN of "The Carol Burnett Show"

On "The Carol Burnett Show," you sometimes start laughing in the middle of a skit. Is this rehearsed?—Christi Grossman, Orange, Calif.

● Most of the people I work with on the show know that I break up easily, and they deliberately throw me off. Most of the time I just can't help it. I'm a great audience for other comedians.

FOR MARGARET TRUMAN DANIEL

How did it feel to be a young girl living in the White House?—Marge Lake, Troy, N.Y.

● We were able to live very privately on the second floor of the White House. I could have my friends in, and I kept a refrigerator on the third floor well-stocked just for our use. There was no raiding the big refrigerators downstairs, because they were kept locked. There were too many security men, secretaries and others about who liked to snack.

FOR WILLIAM FRIEDKIN, director of "The Exorcist"

Do you feel any pangs of remorse when you hear about people being almost turned "psycho" by your movie?—Helen Wallace, Bloomington, Ind.

● Anyone who is blitzed by seeing "The Exorcist" was in trouble going in. People get from the film what they bring to it. To me it's a film about the mystery of faith, the mystery of goodness. A lot of people are apparently coming out with a negative image. I didn't put it there.

FOR ROSEY GRIER

Did anyone make a crack about your doing needlepoint after your book "Needlepoint for Men" came out?—D. L. Lansing, Merced, Calif.

● One guy did, and I think they're still looking for him. Actually, I don't resent it. I feel everyone should do what he wants to do and not bother about its being labeled masculine or feminine or whatever.

FOR BUFORD PUSSER, real-life hero of "Walking Tall"

"Walking Tall" is supposedly the true story of how you cleaned up a crime-ridden county in Tennessee. How much of the movie was really true?—James Dolan, Canton, Ohio

● About 80 percent. We made some changes because some of the innocent people still living there would be hurt if we said what relatives of theirs had done. I was shot eight times and stabbed seven times, and many of those incidents weren't shown in the movie. But the important facts are there, so I don't hesitate to say it is a true-to-life movie.

FOR DONNA FARGO, country singer

Is it true that you're a teetotaler?—A. F., Kingsport, Tenn.

● It's true that I've never had a drink. Back in college, people were always trying to trick me into it, too—but I always knew immediately if somebody had switched drinks on me while I was away. And I'd get mad. They're the same kind of people, I think, who throw you in a pool and try to drown you, saying you'll sink or swim.

FOR DORIS DAY

I have heard that you would never wear the fur of any animal. Is this true?—Kay Gorelsky, Savannah, Ga.

● I don't believe it's right that an animal should be killed for a frivolous reason, and I can think of no more frivolous a reason than to provide a woman with an adornment to feed her vanity. I am in favor of wearing synthetic furs, which can be very attractive.

FOR HANK AARON

Babe Ruth used to swing mammoth 50-ounce bats. What are the dimensions of yours?—Dane Roysden, Marion, Ind.

● I use a "Hank Aaron" bat made by Hillerich and Bradsby. The model number is A-99 and it's 35 inches long. The weight varies between 33 and 33½ ounces. Not as big as the Babe's, I guess.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

What's the story on the romance between Al Pacino and Tuesday Weld? Any chance of their marrying?—Oren Wadell, Hamilton, Ohio

● Not as of this moment. Al and Tuesday—who were quite cozy together for many months—had a big battle and went their separate ways. Al seems to be happy dating just about every beauty in sight, but Tuesday is licking her wounds and being consoled by her former husband, Carl Harz, with whom she's still friendly. And Dudley Moore, the English actor, hovers prominently on her horizon.

OPINION/
By Louis Nizer

Elizabeth Gee

Of all the people in Watergate who received universal acclamation, Judge Sirica is first. He has been praised by critics at the opposite ends of the spectrum. President Nixon has twice referred to him as that "courageous judge." Senator Ervin, Senator Baker and the other members of the Watergate Committee have heaped adulation upon him. If any editorial in the nation has contained an unkind word about Judge Sirica, I haven't found it.

Judge Sirica

Wide World

I, for one, am loath to make the point I am about to make, but I feel it has to be made. The epigram, "The end does not justify the means," has a corollary: "The means does not justify the end." During the McCarthy terror, it was easy to detect the impropriety of the means, even if the objective—to stop Communism—was desirable. "You can't," we cried, "pillory people and destroy them by innuendo and hearsay." But when today we enjoy the discomfort of those who are being accused, we are inclined to overlook the means by which they are exposed.

Judge Sirica's objective has been magnificent—the exposure of the Watergate scandal. But what have been his means?

Five defendants pleaded guilty to burglary. Two others stood trial and degree and kind, from other forms of duress to obtain confessions, which our Supreme Court has repeatedly condemned?

In one famous case, in which a murderer was forced to confess, giving objective evidence that left no doubt of his guilt, the Supreme Court set aside the conviction and freed him. Justice Douglas wrote the following sentence, which I have always admired for its forthrightness. He said that it was true that some murderers who now go free would be caught if third-degree methods were used to wring confessions from them. But "this is the price we pay for a civilized society." If we resort to duress, sooner or later innocent men are going to be pounded and beaten.

There are many forms of duress. Some are subtle, not merely the rubber pipe applied below the face to leave no marks, but endless questioning that deprives the victim of sleep, and other psychological devices. Once we break down the constitutional guarantees, we set an evil precedent.

Let me give another illustration. Senator Ervin, a constitutional lawyer of standing, and Senator Baker, a very able lawyer, said on television during the hearings, not once but several times, "Ninety percent of this testimony would not be admitted in a court of law because it is hearsay. But this is not a court. We are a Senate committee seeking the truth. So we will accept this evidence."

Just reflect on that a minute. The they who were drenched with accusations against individuals, who, guilty or not, had none of the safeguards provided by criminal law.

Let me consider a third proposition. A Senate committee is authorized to take testimony for one purpose only—to formulate legislation. It has no authority to decide the guilt or innocence of any individual. Only a court, which affords a defendant protective privileges, can do so. No other system of law is as zealous in its concern for one who may be deprived of his liberty as ours. Consider some of the safeguards our Constitution provides.

First, there is a presumption of innocence that continues to the last second of the trial. Second, the jury must be unanimous. If one out of the 12 has a doubt, the defendant is free. Third, the defendant can sit quietly by no matter how guilty and say, "You, Mr. District Attorney, must prove me guilty. I am not going to help you." Fourth, the judge charges the jury, "If you believe this man is guilty, you must, nevertheless, not find him so unless you find that he is guilty beyond a reasonable doubt." This is an extraordinary standard.

Justice Black was interviewed shortly before his death and was asked, "In view of the decisions you are handing down here, isn't it almost impossible to convict anybody?" He shocked the reporters by replying, "Of course—that's the purpose. Read the Constitution. The government has immense power—the FBI, police, prosecutors—and unlimited funds. The individual citizen stands alone. The very title of the action is enough to put terror into the heart of a citizen. 'The United States of America against John Jones.' So we have built a cordon of rights around him to balance the situation, to protect the individual against the overwhelming power of the government. That's our purpose. To make things as tough for the prosecutor as we can."

Now, one final word. I, for one, and I hope you, too, are concerned but not discouraged by the revelations that have shocked. It is healthy that they have come out. Only in a democracy could this miracle of exposure have occurred, despite the enormous powers vested at the top. Also, I believe it will result in legislation to control financing of elections and proper procedures for election processes. This will be a magnificent result.

Ours is a great and noble nation. We must not give vent to despondency or skepticism. There are fine people in government and out of government and in business and out of business, and our great nation couldn't have achieved its eminence in science, business and culture without a healthy core. The surrounding corrupting tissue will have to be removed.

Do Sirica and Watergate Methods Really Honor Our System?

"The hearsay in the Watergate hearings was not projected merely to 12 jurors, but to 20 million Americans. It was they who were drenched with accusations against individuals, who, guilty or not, had none of the safeguards provided by criminal law."

were convicted. Sirica told them that they knew more than they had told and he was sentencing them provisionally to 35-40 years. If they cooperated and confessed all, he would reconsider the punishment. After four weeks, one of the defendants cracked and wrote a letter saying he was ready to talk. Thus the objective was achieved.

But do we want judges—despite the result in this case—to use penalties to force people to surrender their right under the Fifth Amendment not to talk? Is this not a form of judicial duress? Is it very different, except in truth is equated with hearsay evidence. For centuries, legal philosophers have considered hearsay evidence the worst way to get the truth. The reason that hearsay evidence is eliminated from trials is not technical, but because in the scales of evidence it has no weight: it has no probative value. I could convict anyone in this country of any crime through hearsay evidence. You would be helpless. "A" takes the stand. He is a reputable and honest man who always tells the truth. He swears that he met "B," who told him that the defendant said he had stolen the money. You can't cross-examine "A" effectively. "B" is not available to be tested. It is by use of hearsay that tyrants convict those they wish to dispose of, no matter how innocent.

Does purging our political system justify such wrong means? Mind you, the hearsay in the Watergate hearings was not projected merely to 12 jurors, but to 20 million Americans. It was

Louis Nizer is the author and attorney whose latest best seller, "The Implosion Conspiracy," is being produced as a major motion picture by Otto Preminger. When Judge Sirica was recently asked his hobby, he responded, "reading Oliver Wendell Holmes and Louis Nizer." ## People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

What Really Makes People Creative?

True or False: Women who have many romantic fantasies are likely to possess a high creative potential. (See number 5)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Creative people live in a different world from the non-creative.
2. You can be highly intelligent and lack creative ability.
3. Creative people live longer.
4. You're likely to be more creative if you were brought up on a farm or in a small country-town environment, where the family activities and diversions were of the simple, homespun variety.
5. Women who have many romantic fantasies are likely to possess a high creative potential.
6. It's easy for a person to increase his capacity for creative thinking.

ANSWERS

1. True. As one authority observes in summing up the findings of leading studies on creativity, "The creative person's originality derives, in part, from his ability to perceive the world differently than do other persons. Less bound than others by cultural conditioning, the creative person retains an open mind and a childlike capacity to experience the world in a personalized, innovative manner. He also possesses a childlike ability to fantasize, to imagine and to express curiosity." These capacities are present to some extent in a great many individuals, but, more often than not, they are allowed to remain dormant. It follows that only to the degree that they are awakened and cultivated is a person's creative potential realized.
2. True—as evidenced by psychological studies at Case Western Reserve University, which showed that though intelligence may facilitate the development of creativity, it does not insure it. Even though a person's IQ is high, there are many other factors that relate to creativity. For example, it's pointed out that "rigidity [closed-mindedness] as a personality trait may limit creative expression." And research on creativity at Princeton University bears this out.
3. True. Two leading studies of longevity have shown that the ability to express oneself creatively tends to go hand in hand with good health, a general feeling of well-being, good morale—and a life-span that averages appreciably longer than that of the general population.

4. False—according to a university study of hundreds of schoolchildren who were administered a battery of tests relating to five measures of creativity. The results were compared with the family backgrounds and life-styles of the parents. It was found that "parents of highly creative subjects preferred a complex and stimulating environment for themselves and for their children."

5. True—as shown by research at a leading university, where it was found that women who daydreamed frequently, who entertained myriad fantasies about love and romance, were apt to possess a marked creative potential. Women who never had such fantasies at all "appeared to be a bland, passive and conventionally feminine group." Furthermore, research into the personality characteristics of creative women, conducted at the University of California, showed that women who had distinguished themselves in creative fields (artists and writers) differed from other women in that they were more emotional, aggressive, adventurous, imaginative and self-sufficient. Women authors were found to be "more sensitive and less controlled than women in general."

6. True. The secret of getting more mileage out of your creative powers with no more effort than pressing a button has been demonstrated at Middle Tennessee State University, where studies were made on the effect of sound on creative performance. Subjects were given creative-thinking tests, and scored for fluency, flexibility, originality and elaboration of ideas. They were tested under four sound conditions: speech, music, industrial sound and quiet. Findings: "Subjects' mean performance was higher under music in all creative categories—except elaboration. And industrial sound accounted for the lowest performance on all creative scores except fluency." Other results: Subjects were more fluent, original and elaborate in quiet surroundings than when the sound of people talking was audible to them.

How to collect from Social Security at any age!

Would you like to know how much money you have invested in Social Security right to the penny? Then would you like to know how to get the most from that investment including all the brand new Social Security benefits? Now you can do both by using the short easy coupon at the bottom of this page. Here is the way it works. The left half of the coupon will be sent to the proper government office. They will run a check on your account and then send you a report in a confidential sealed envelope. This report will tell you how much of your earnings have been recorded in your Social Security account year by year. There is no charge for this service, not even postage.

The right half of the coupon will be used as a shipping label to send you a copy of a new book entitled, "How to collect from Social Security at any age." If you think that you have to wait until retirement age to start collecting your Social Security benefits, this book will really open your eyes. Here are some of the little-known facts about Social Security you will find out about in this book:

- How to increase the amount of your payment if you are already on Social Security.
- How to collect your share of the brand new Social Security benefits just passed by Congress.
- How to qualify for Social Security disability pensions at any age.
- How to increase your Social Security benefits.
- How to report your Farm income for Social Security.
- How to make your whole family eligible for Social Security benefits, even your youngest children.

- How to replace a lost Social Security card.
- How to replace a lost Social Security check.
- How to get a refund if you have overpaid your Social Security taxes. (Studies show that two out of three people overpay.)
- How to figure out what your Social Security retirement payments should be.
- Should you tattoo your Social Security number on your body?
- What papers do you need in order to file a Social Security claim?
- How ten million people who are only 30 years old, on the average, collect Social Security.

- Should you get a divorce in order to get more Social Security? (a lot of people already have.)
- Should you have two Social Security cards?
- How to get free services which are available from Social Security.
- How to make sure your employer is not cheating you on your Social Security.
- How you may be cheating yourself out of your Social Security benefits.
- When are the five times you should get in touch with your Social Security office?
- How to work and still get Social Security benefits.
- How to cash in on Social Security even if you've never paid a penny into it.

- How to get hospital and medical insurance for the aged.
- How students between the ages of 18 and 22 can get Social Security cash benefits.
- How to get the special Social Security benefits that are only for veterans.

Although this book can mean hundreds and perhaps thousands of dollars to you, it is priced at only $3.00. Remember, it is not enough to qualify for your Social Security benefits. To get your benefits you must know how to apply for them. The book tells you how to qualify, who to contact—including all necessary addresses, and what to say. This is a 100% no risk offer. If you do not like the book, return it and your $3.00 will be immediately refunded. You will still get the confidential report on your Social Security account.

If you do not take advantage of your new Social Security benefits, you are only cheating yourself, after all, you have already paid for them. It is easy to start getting your new Social Security benefits. Just fill out both parts of the coupon below. Mail the coupon and $3.00 in cash, check or money order to The Good News Publishing Co., 7576 Freedom Ave., North Canton, Ohio 44720. The book will be sent to you immediately by return mail. Your confidential Social Security report will be mailed to you separately as soon as the government has finished checking on your account. Checks and money orders should be made payable to The Good News Publishing Company.

Something for menthol smokers to think about.

There are menthol cigarettes and there are menthol cigarettes. And if you're a menthol smoker you certainly know by now which one you really enjoy smoking.

So what makes us think we'll ever get a crack at switching you?

Well, we're going to try.

Because if you're like a lot of cigarette smokers these days, you're probably concerned about the 'tar' and nicotine stories you've been hearing.

Frankly, if a cigarette is going to bring you flavor, it's also going to bring you smoke. And where there's smoke, there has to be 'tar.' In fact, in most cigarettes, the more flavor, the more 'tar.' Except for Vantage.

You must know that Vantage cigarettes have a special filter which reduces 'tar' and nicotine without destroying flavor.

What you may not know is that Vantage is also available in menthol.

Not surprisingly, what separates Vantage Menthol from ordinary menthols is that Vantage Menthol gives you all the flavor you want, with a lot less of the 'tar' and the nicotine that you probably don't want.

Now Vantage Menthol is not the lowest 'tar' and nicotine menthol you'll find. It's simply the lowest one you'll enjoy smoking.

Since you're the best judge of what you like about menthol cigarettes, don't just take our word for it.

Try a pack of Vantage Menthol and then you'll know for sure.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

Today there is a new emphasis on health, longevity and a trim, attractive body. Here's a special section designed to cut through the propaganda and zealotry—and provide the basic, common-sense facts you and your family should know.

Those "Good-for-You" Foods Can Be Great-Tasting, Too!

Nutrition-wise, this is a perfectly balanced table setting. Recipes include: Baked Whole Stuffed Fish, Marinated Flank Steak, Barley-Mushroom Pilaf, Quick Lemony Sautéed Liver, Cottage Cheese Vegetable Salad, Blushing Yogurt Dressing, Orange-Glazed Beets, Raw-Vegetable Mélange, and Green Beans with Basil.

- ½ cup plus 2 teaspoons corn oil
- ½ cup finely chopped onion
- 3 cups (¼ inch) stale bread cubes, about 5 slices
- 1 cup chopped celery, ribs and leaves
- ¼ cup finely chopped parsley
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons hot water
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1 (3-5 lbs.) whole fish (striped bass, bluefish, red snapper, carp, lake trout), rinsed and cleaned Parsley sprigs

Lemon wedges
Carrot slice

1. Heat ⅓ cup oil in medium skillet. Add onion and cook, stirring, about 5 minutes.

2. Add bread cubes and stir until coated with oil. Remove from heat. Add celery, parsley, lemon juice, water, salt and pepper; mix well.

3. Preheat oven to 500°F. Line 15x10x1-inch baking pan with foil and oil lightly.

4. Place fish in pan. Stuff body cavity with dressing. Close with wooden toothpicks. Brush fish lightly with remaining oil. Continued

5. Bake 5 minutes on rack in middle of oven. Reduce heat to 400°F. and continue baking 40-65 minutes (allowing 12 minutes per pound), until fish flakes easily with fork.
6. With two large spatulas, remove from baking pan to heated serving platter or wooden plank. Garnish with parsley sprigs and lemon. Cover fish eye with carrot slice. Serve immediately. Makes 4-6 servings

MARINATED FLANK STEAK

- 1½-2 lbs. flank steak
¼ cup sesame seed
¼ cup corn oil
¼ cup soy sauce
¼ cup dark corn syrup
2 tablespoons dry sherry
1 small onion, sliced
1 clove garlic, crushed, or ½ teaspoon garlic powder
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
¼ teaspoon ground ginger

1. Trim steak of excess fat. Cut steak diagonally ¼ inch deep to score. Snip narrow end of meat to prevent curling.
2. Stir remaining ingredients together.
3. Place steak in marinade, turning to coat both sides. Cover with foil or plastic wrap and refrigerate several hours or overnight. (You may also use a heavy-duty plastic bag to marinate steak. Fill bag with marinade, add steak. Close securely. Place bag in pan to prevent any spills, refrigerate as above.)
4. Preheat broiler if necessary. Place steak on broiler rack and broil 6 inches from source of heat, turning once. Broil about 5 minutes first side and 3 minutes second side, a total of 8 minutes for medium rare.
5. Place steak on serving platter or board and slice thinly on the diagonal, across grain of meat.

QUICK LEMONY SAUTEED LIVER

- ¼ cup corn oil
½ cup sliced onion
1½ lbs. beef liver, sliced (½ inch), cut into 2x½-inch strips
½ teaspoon salt
Few twists freshly ground black pepper
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ cup finely chopped parsley

1. Heat oil in large skillet. Add onion and sauté until golden, about 5-8 minutes. Remove to paper towel, cover.
2. Add liver to skillet and sauté quickly over medium-high heat, stirring frequently, until browned on both sides. (Takes about 5 minutes.) Season with salt and pepper.
3. Sprinkle with lemon juice and parsley, toss. Arrange on serving platter, top with onions.

KNOW YOUR "BASIC FOUR" FOOD PLAN (It's the Easy Way to a Balanced Menu!)

1. MEATS

Importance: Basic source of protein.

Amounts recommended: Two or more servings per day of 2-3 ozs. of lean cooked meat, poultry or fish.

2. FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

Importance: Basic source of vitamin C (citrus; fresh strawberries; broccoli; brussels sprouts; peppers) and vitamin A (dark-green, orange and deep-yellow vegetables).

Amounts recommended: Four or more servings every day, including one serving of a good source of vitamin C, and one serving every other day of a good source of vitamin A. The remaining servings may be of any other vegetable or fruit.

3. DAIRY PRODUCTS

Importance: Source of bone-building calcium; vitamin A and vitamin D.

Amounts recommended: Children under 9: 2-3 glasses milk; children 9-12: 3 or more glasses; teenagers: 4 or more glasses; adults: 2 or more glasses.

Milk products such as cheese, ice cream or yogurt may replace part of the milk directly or in cooking.

4. BREADS AND CEREALS

Importance: Carbohydrates (for energy); B vitamins; calcium.

Amounts recommended: Four servings or more daily. Count as one serving: 1 slice of bread; 1 oz. ready-to-eat cereal; ½-¾ cup cooked cereal, cornmeal, grits, barley, macaroni, etc.

These Recipes Emphasize Flavor, Boast Few Calories

We needed a little extra room to make the point that a pound of Miracle spreads 36 more slices than unwhipped margarine.

Miracle Brand Margarine is whipped. Which means that a pound of Miracle goes 50% further than a regular pound. Spreads half again as many slices of bread.

And it comes to you in pretty, reusable bowls with your choice of three colors.

So you get delicious Kraft margarine flavor, whipped to spread smoother and easier, plus a handy reusable bowl.

Miracle. What else could you call it?

BARLEY-MUSHROOM PILAF

2 tablespoons margarine
½ cup sliced mushrooms
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup coarsely chopped green pepper
1 cup medium pearl barley

2 cups chicken broth
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
¼ cup finely chopped parsley

1. Heat margarine in 3-qt. saucepan. Sauté mushrooms, onion and green pepper 5 minutes, stirring frequently.
2. Add barley, chicken broth, salt and pepper; stir. Heat to boiling. Reduce heat; cover and simmer for 45-55 minutes, or until barley is tender and liquid is absorbed. Stir occasionally, add water if necessary.
3. Stir in parsley lightly with fork just before serving.
*Makes 8 (½ cup) servings.
133 calories per serving*

COTTAGE CHEESE VEGETABLE SALAD

6 crisp lettuce leaves or cups
2 cups cottage cheese
1 medium cucumber, peeled and thinly sliced
¼ lb. fresh mushrooms, sliced
1 medium zucchini, cut in strips
2 medium tomatoes, cut in 12 wedges
Blushing Yogurt Dressing, recipe on Page 14

1. Arrange lettuce leaves on serving platter, leaving space in center.
2. Divide cottage cheese and place a small mound in center of each lettuce leaf. Arrange cucumber, mushrooms, zucchini and tomatoes around cottage cheese.
3. Place small bowl of Blushing Yogurt Dressing in center.
Makes 6 servings, 101 calories per serving without dressing

ORANGE-GLAZED BEETS

1 tablespoon margarine
½ tablespoon minced onion
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
½ cup orange juice
2 tablespoons light corn syrup
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Dash salt
Dash pepper
2 cans (1-lb. size) sliced beets, drained

1. Melt margarine in 3-qt. saucepan over medium heat. Add onion and cook 1 minute, stirring. Remove from heat.
2. Stir in cornstarch until smooth. Mix in orange rind and juice, corn syrup, lemon juice, salt and pepper. Heat to boiling, stirring.
3. Add beets, stir. Cover and simmer 5 minutes until thoroughly heated.

QUIZ: SO YOU THINK YOU KNOW WHAT'S GOOD FOR YOU...

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. It's a good idea to take one food of animal origin at each meal.
2. Teenage girls require as much food as teenage boys.
3. Acne is caused by improper diet.
4. Vegetable food values are not affected by the amount of water used to cook them.
5. Fattening a baby improves his health.
6. Potatoes boiled with "skins" on retain more vitamin C than if cut up.

ANSWERS:

1. True. Foods of animal origin, such as skim milk, do not have to be very high in cholesterol; also, animal proteins balance proteins of vegetable origin.
2. False. They require about two-thirds to three-quarters of the quantity eaten by boys. But girls do require almost the same quantity of protein, vitamins and minerals.
3. False. The AMA reports that acne is not caused by improper diet. There's no proof that fatty foods make skin oily. Certain foods, like chocolate, may worsen the skin problems of some individuals — but skin cleanliness is thought to be the best control.
4. False. The use of as little water as possible is recommended to preserve vitamins. (Steaming is an excellent cooking method—place vegetables on a perforated rack over water.)
5. False. Children who are overfed during the critical ages from birth to two years and from eight to 12 years tend to develop more fat cells than children on normal diets. These fat cells remain throughout life. Therefore, overfeeding a baby can create problems he will never be able to overcome.
6. True. Exposure to air destroys vitamin C.

WHAT MAKES A NUTRITIOUS BREAKFAST?

A good breakfast should supply about one-fourth of our daily requirements for calories, protein, vitamins and minerals.

There are many kinds of morning meals that meet these nutrition requirements. One of them is the basic cereal and milk breakfast. It gives you ready-to-eat cereal with milk, 100% pure orange juice from Florida, and bread or toast with your favorite spread.

You get the good nutrition your body needs to start the day right, and all the good taste you could want. An added bonus is how quickly it can be served up when you're in a hurry.

A Chicken Soufflé— Without the Egg Yolks!

FAMILY WEEKLY/Elizabeth Gee

Curried Chicken Soufflé fits the bill: No egg yolks!

Tips 'n' Topics

WHAT SHOULD YOU WEIGH?

An approximate guide to what an adult should weigh is his weight at age 25 if he was in good physical shape.

The AMA says a person who leads a moderately active life needs 15 calories per pound every day. So look at a height-weight chart and find out how much you should weigh for your sex, body-build and age. Multiply by 15, and the answer is the number of calories you need to keep that weight.

If you want to lose weight, figure how many pounds you want to lose in a week. (Two pounds a week is the AMA suggested limit for a safe rate of loss.) There are 3,500 calories in a pound of fat. So if you want to lose two pounds a week, you have to cut back 7,000 calories, or 1,000 calories a day.

CURRIED CHICKEN SOUFFLE

- 1 tablespoon fine dry bread crumbs
- ¼ cup margarine
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
- ½ teaspoon curry powder
- ½ cup flour
- 1 can (10½ ozs.) chicken broth, undiluted
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- ¼ cup finely chopped green pepper or 2 tablespoons snipped chives
- 1½ cups chopped cooked chicken or 2 cans (5-oz. size) boned chicken, drained and chopped
- 1 cup frozen cholesterol-free egg substitute, thawed
- 3 egg whites, room temperature

1. Preheat oven to 375°F. Oil a 2-qt. soufflé dish and sprinkle with bread crumbs.

2. Heat margarine in 1-qt. saucepan until melted. Add onion and curry powder. Sauté, stirring frequently, 5 minutes.

3. Remove from heat, stir in flour smoothly. Gradually add broth. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly with wire whisk.

4. Stir in salt, pepper, green pepper and chicken; cool 5 minutes. Blend in egg substitute.

5. Beat whites until stiff, but not dry. Fold lightly into mixture. Pour into soufflé dish.

6. Bake 50-55 minutes, until well-puffed and golden brown.

Makes 6 servings, 245 calories per serving, 33 milligrams cholesterol per serving

CEREAL PEANUT BUTTER BARS

- ¾ cup light corn syrup
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 cup creamy or super-chunk peanut butter
- 4 cups ready-to-eat flaked cereal

1. Lightly oil a 9x9x2-inch pan.

The Doctor Lets You In

New Contraceptive Shot—With One Slight Drawback

The Pill works. But it must be taken daily—and for women who forget, that's a problem. But there's a new birth-control substance—in the form of an injection—that needs to be given only once every three months. It's a hormone called Depo Provera, or medroxyprogesterone. The FDA has allowed its use under restricted conditions until more is learned about it. But it's for women who cannot, for some reason, take the Pill or use other contraceptive methods, or for whom other means of contraception have failed to work. Depo Provera has been under study for ten years. Its effectiveness is the same as that of the Pill. But it has an important drawback: There is a risk of prolonged or even permanent sterility after the use of the drug is stopped. If you must take the new injectable contraceptive, you should be aware of this.

And before you get an injection, ask the doctor to read to you the package insert that comes with the vial containing Depo Provera. The FDA has demanded this as a condition to allow it on the market. P.S.: There is also on the drawing boards a non-hormonal, safe contraceptive to be taken as a pill or as an injection once a month. It is one of the prostaglandins, about which you will hear much more in the future. But this is not available yet. —By Erwin Di Cyan, Ph.D.

ALAN ALDA:
"What's Wrong With Us Men Staying Home for Awhile?"

"Men also suffer from stereotyped attitudes about the sexes," says Alan Alda, star of "M*A*S*H." "We're taught that it is in our interests to go out and be breadwinners, even at jobs we don't like, because that's how it is supposed to be. Sometimes we drop dead of heart attacks with all that pressure. What would be wrong with reversing roles for awhile and letting the man take care of the house and go to school to study a field of interest while the wife worked? Men are deprived in other ways, too—like not being able to express the soft side of ourselves. Also, I think if men and women could mix on an equal basis at an early age, we would be able to work better side by side and have much more rewarding relationships. Look what happens when we go out to relax. The men talk to the men; the women, to the women. My point is that if we could end sexual stereotyping, maybe men would be happier, too." —Interviewed by William Wolf tournament when he was only in the fourth grade and was so consistently good he was dubbed "the child prodigy of golf." At the University of Texas, he became the first freshman ever to win the NCAA golf title. He then won the NCAA two more times and added ten other amateur championships to his string. . . . Golf fans have been impressed with Ben's honesty as well as his skill. He failed to qualify in one tournament because he insisted on calling a penalty on himself. "My dad told me I've got to play by the rules and I've always followed what he told me," he explains. . . .

The Young Golfer Nicklaus Picks to Win a Million

First there was "Arnie's Army," who followed their hero, Arnold Palmer, around golf courses. Now it's "Ben's Wrens," a crowd of female admirers who trail after Ben Crenshaw, the golf world's latest sensation. Crenshaw is a 22-year-old Texan with a dewy-eyed, angelic appearance and a mop of long blond hair that make all his "Wrens" want to mother him. . . . Despite his disarming looks and his comparatively small size, he packs tremendous power in his drives and is a tough competitor who goes out on the links "absolutely determined to win." In only seven months as a pro, he's won over $100,000 and caused the winningest golfer, Jack Nicklaus, to comment that he'll win $1 million in prize money faster than anyone ever has before. . . . Crenshaw got off to perhaps the flashiest start in history when he won the first tournament he entered as a pro and finished second in two major tourneys that followed. His charisma also established him as a prime gate attraction. . . . Crenshaw learned golf as a child from his father, a lawyer in Austin, Texas. He entered his first Crenshaw has what golf buffs call "the long swing." He takes the club all the way back before bringing it forward. The force of his swing stems mainly from the power in his legs. . . . Although many golfers get the jitters when fans follow them and insist that they be kept at a distance, Crenshaw welcomes the crowds. "Their support and cheers make me play better," he says. "When the fans whoop it up for me, it makes me try harder than ever." . . . Crenshaw is the idol of the new young pros. "Ben beats you to death, but you can't help liking him," says Allen Miller, one of the young set. "As a young player, we feel he's representing us and our era. When he finishes ahead of the older players, we feel he's scored a victory for us as well as for himself."

YOUR NERVES CAN CURE THEMSELVES

once you learn how to de-sensitize them, this doctor's ingenious new way...

If You Suffer From A Single One Of These Torturous Symptoms Of Nerves, Tension Or Chronic Anxiety, THEN THE FACTS BELOW MAY BE THE MOST IMPORTANT YOU HAVE EVER READ IN YOUR LIFE!

Because they reveal, for the first time, how your nerves have tricked you into the following mental symptoms: constant nervousness and over-irritation . . . indecision . . . depression . . . loss of confidence in yourself and others . . . feelings of unreality . . . overwhelming obsession with one or two horrible thoughts . . .

a hopeless feeling that your entire personality is coming apart . . . that your identity is dissolving . . . or that you may be helplessly drifting into a nervous breakdown!

And—equally as bad—how your nerves have tricked you into the following physical symptoms:

chronic fatigue, that starts in the morning, and grows worse as the day goes on . . .

"missed" heartbeats—"racing" heart—palpitations—or sudden sharp pains under the heart . . .

sweating hands—or "pins and needles" in either your hands or your legs . . .

"churning" stomach . . . nausea . . . choking feeling in the throat . . . inability to take a deep breath . . . tight band of pain around the head . . . "ready to jump out of your skin" . . .

strange tricks of vision . . . weak spells . . . insomnia, that goes on night after night after night . . .

hand shaking . . . panic spasms . . . knots in your chest . . . dizziness . . . difficulty in swallowing . . . vomiting . . . and all the other physical tortures that turn your life into one continuous hell!

And Every One Of These Nervous Symptoms Can Be Controlled . . . And Then Diminished . . . And Then Eliminated—OFTEN BY AS LITTLE AS THIS ONE SINGLE INSIGHT INTO THEIR HIDDEN CAUSE!

And that insight is this:

If you suffer from any of the nervous symptoms listed above, then you must understand at once that your nerves are not ill. . . . they have not deteriorated . . . they have not lost their true physical health in any way! What has happened to them instead is that they have simply become OVER-SENSITIZED . . . "rubbed raw" by too much outside irritation . . . and are now ready to discharge the emotional and physical symptoms of panic at even the slightest thing that goes wrong!

Thus, the depression . . . indecision . . . loss of confidence and all the other emotional symptoms you feel are all caused by OVER-SENSITIZED nerves! And the churning stomach . . . palpitating heart . . . never-ending headaches and all the other physical nervous symptoms you feel are—again—all caused by OVER-SENSITIZED nerves!

And therefore the way to treat ALL these symptoms is NOT with drugs . . . NOT with shock . . . NOT with medical formulations or hospitalizations at all! The way to treat these nerves is to change the poisonous-thoughts that are rubbing them raw!

And this is done (as proven by this internationally-famed physician on thousands of patients) in four simple steps! The first of which stops nervous symptoms (both physical and emotional) from multiplying from that moment on! The second of which serves to tranquilize and quiet down those over-sensitized nerves

WHAT OTHERS SAY:

" . . . helped me so much and released me from the particular hell I have been living in since my breakdown six years ago."

"I am amazed at the progress I have made in such a comparatively short time."

"It would be no exaggeration to add that your book saved my life."

"The method you give for cure of nervous conditions is so effective—so simple."

"The great reassurance you give about the distressing physical symptoms of a disturbed nervous system, is one of the greatest benefits to be derived from your book."

"You cannot possibly imagine what a relief it is to be able to view life normally again, instead of fear-panic all the while."

"I cannot describe the emotion I felt to find, at last, someone who really understood the problem, and to hear her say the condition can be cured. . . . If only this understanding person had the time to take all sufferers under her wing."

"I would like you to know that my nervous condition has so greatly improved through the advice gleaned from your most precious and invaluable book . . . that all symptoms have now disappeared and I rarely need Librium or sleeping capsules."

"My physician is amazed at my progress and of course I showed him your book which he borrowed and read thoroughly and is now recommending."

"My wife has made a vast improvement. I'm sure if she had her treatment in earlier years she would never have had to go into the hospital at all!"

WHAT THE PUBLISHER SAYS:

HOPE AND HELP FOR YOUR NERVES has sold over 250,000 copies and has been endorsed by medical and mental-health associations throughout the world. Millions of Americans have heard Dr. Weekes on television and radio shows and have read excerpts from the book which appeared in Reader's Digest.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

DR. CLAIRE WEEKES became interested in the problems of nervous illness when she observed in her medical practice that those who suffered most suffered "nervously." Dr. Weekes is Consulting Physician to the Rachel Forster Hospital in Sydney, Australia. She has appeared with Mike Douglas, Arlene Francis, Barry Farber and many other U.S. radio and TV shows.

far more powerfully (and permanently) than any drug a pharmacist could ever give you!

The third of which lets you stop fighting those symptoms (which only intensifies them in an ever-increasing spiral of sheer torment), and—instead—leaves them alone in an ingenious way that lets them start healing themselves!

And the fourth of which—the great reward—brings you slowly-but-surely back to the person you used to be! With a new, enduring feeling of control and confidence that nothing can destroy! So much so that this doctor actually comes right out and states bluntly: "The advice given here will definitely cure you, if you only follow it!"

In Fact, Case History After Case History Proves That Cure May Be So Dramatically Quick That Your Friends And Family Will Beg You To Tell Them Your Secret!

Once again, it doesn't matter what physical or emotional symptoms you are now suffering from . . . how "deeply entrenched" they are . . . how long you have been plagued by them . . . how "old" or "weak" or "out-of-control" you may feel today! Here is specific, step-by-immediate-step advice that will (again to quote directly from the doctor) "banish every unwelcome sensation and regain peace of mind and body!"

For example: The two-minute self-treatment (you perform one ingenious little action with your chest) that ends sudden panic seizures on the spot—including all their side effects such as dizziness, pins and needles, involuntary stiffening of the joints, inability to breathe, and all the rest.

That "lump in the throat that won't go away"—how to banish it in minutes . . . and enjoy eating any food you wish to once again!

Physical weakness—perhaps the most dreaded of all symptoms—and (surprisingly) perhaps the fastest of all to banish! How to deal with the twin monsters of fatigue and guilt! And leave behind emotional exhaustion . . . morning depression . . . thoughts that once raced around and around in your mind without cessation! (And leave them all behind—for good!)

Why so many patients who tried these simple techniques actually came out of their nervous sicknesses as far finer and stronger people than they ever were before!

How to recover from chronic tension caused by an insoluble problem! The only sane way to overcome it! How to avoid unnecessary suffering, for both yourself and others! And, perhaps, actually turn your worst defeat into crowning success!

The surest and most permanent way to cure obsessions! How to tap the forces of Nature, every morning, that are just waiting to cure you!

How to bring happiness back into your everyday life! Not by waiting for some great event or reward . . . but simply by developing the eyes to see joy in the little things around you!

How to beat insomnia! Again, specific, proven step-by-step instructions! Ten different aids that may have you waking up tomorrow morning as fresh as a baby, with eight full hours of blissful sleep replenishing every cell in your body!

And—the final goal! How to develop the kind of nervous control that automatically turns panic off the instant it starts! That frees you forever from "nerve-crutches" such as drugs or alcohol! That lets you pick up your life again from the point where over-sensitized nerves forced you to abandon it, with absolute confidence that you now have the poise and self-possession to accomplish the goals you have always wanted!

An Open Mother's Day Card To Our Mom, Jane Powell

When I decided to take my own apartment at 17," says Sissie Steffen, "Mom didn't exactly love the idea. But she raised me to be like her—independent. Today she lets me know she's very proud of me. Very few people at age 21 own 12 horses, a stable and a reputation as one of the best trainers of hunters and jumpers in the state. I owe that to my mother."

"I'm the baby of the family," says Lindsey, "and Mom has always had a little trouble learning how to let go. Last summer she nearly had kittens when I told her I didn't want to appear in summer stock. Previously, I had spent four summers playing with her in 'The Sound of Music,' 'The Boy Friend' and 'My Fair Lady.' But I grew tired of being Jane Powell's daughter. I wanted to do something that was solely me. So I ran a concession stand and doubled as a waitress and loved every minute of it. Do you know, when Mom adapted to the idea, she slapped me on the back and wished me good luck when she saw how happy I was. That's what she cared about."

"That reminds me of the time I embraced Buddhism," says Sissie. "Mother was skeptical to say the least, but she did something super. She attended our meetings, and after listening and observing, recognizing we were sincere, she said, 'Okay, if that's what you want.' Do you know what made it doubly special? For as long as I was interested in Buddhism, she would talk to me about it and try to understand the ideology that appealed to me."

"Actually, Mom's what you

"Her homelife was just that: a home life."

"One of the reasons Mother's career died for a while is because she wouldn't do Broadway; wouldn't leave the family; wouldn't miss one minute of our growing up."

would call a feeler-outer," says Lindsey. "She'll never say no to something we want, at least not until she investigates it. Most often, as soon as she determines that it's not harmful, she'll give in. She knows that at 18 I have a lot of growing up to do, but she is allowing me to do it my way rather than hers. Two years ago, when I met Mike, he became my whole life. I don't think it was a conscious decision suddenly to exclude my mother, but I did. And she never complained. I think she understood it was something I had to do then and that it would change as soon as I matured."

"Lindsey having a steady at 16 was a bit of a shock for Mom," laughs Sissie, "considering how slow I was in that area. I was first allowed midnight curfews at that age! Mom is a very old-fashioned mother in some ways. She insists on knowing where her children are. Frankly, I always liked that. No one ever raised us kids except Mother. She was a mother and homemaker first, then an actress. If she ever felt a conflict between her career and her life at home, I never felt it. Even when I went with her to the set, she was always my mother first and then Jane Powell. Much later, when we all went on the road summers to do summer stock, she would also never allow rehearsals to interfere with the family's time. One of the reasons Mother's career died for a while is because she wouldn't do Broadway; wouldn't leave the family; wouldn't miss one minute of our growing up."

"You know, I think Mom's lonely in New York without us," says Lindsey. "Despite her bubblyness, Mom doesn't make friends easily. What friends she does have, she has had for ages—like Roddy McDowall, who's almost like an uncle to us. I think he's Mom's only real show-business friend. I know she adores Red Skelton and is fond of Dean Martin, but Mother has never brought her Hollywood life into our home. Her homelife was just that: a home life."

"Mom's always said, 'Just be yourself,'" says Sissie. "That's great advice. I did just that. In fact, she kids me that I chose the farthest thing from Jane Powell to be myself. Mom is positively and absolutely allergic to horses. I am not jealous of Mother's work or stature. I'm happy for her and proud."

"Mom loves her work," says Lindsey. "She'll tell you otherwise, but she's miserable when she's away from performing too long. She's always ready, constantly in shape, even during the layoffs. I have never known a morning when she didn't grunt-and-groan for a full 30-minute workout. She's taken dance lessons every Monday, Wednesday and Friday for as long as I can remember. I laugh when I read an interview in which she says she hates the life of a stage actress. She loves it! She loves to sing and she loves the applause."

"Jane Powell is Irene" advertise the posters and billboards of the long-running musical in which MGM's former girl-next-door darling-of-millions makes her Broadway debut. But... Jane Powell is really Mother to two daughters—Suzanne ("Everyone calls her Sissie") and Lindsey, ages 21 and 18 respectively. Theirs is a unique family. "We all do our thing," says Sissie, who owns the Sissie Steffen Stables and is horse trainer at Will Rogers State Park. "And," adds sister Lindsey, "particularly Mama. She beat us all last year in a downhill slalom race."

"But it is more than just that," adds Sissie. "Mom loves to make people happy. I think now that we're grown, Mom will work at her career again."

"She felt unwanted by the public for a very long time, but now this incredible reaction to her in 'Irene' has changed that," says Lindsey. "You see, Mom really feels love for her audiences. Now that it is being returned, I think she has a fulfillment she's denied herself."

"Lindsey is right," says Sissie. "Work to her is living, and her motto's always been to live."

"So Mom, if you're reading this, know our best wishes are with you. After all you've done for us, you deserve this new life for yourself. Now—go out there and knock 'em dead!"

Love,

Sissie and Lindsey

What in the World!

THE HANSON QUINTS
Or... the famished five

With the ever-increasing rise in food prices, what is a mother of quintuplets to do? "It wasn't so bad at first," says the mother of the Hanson girls, the first set of quintuplets to be born in Britain in a century. "They managed on baby food with, perhaps, a casserole or some kind of fish during the week." Now the quints are older and Mrs. Hanson is finding it harder to feed them. Here is the average fare for a week: three giant packs of cereal, four pounds of sugar, two pounds of butter, 21 quarts of milk and seven bottles of orange or black-currant juice. "Fortunately, they like chicken and it is a good buy right now," adds Mrs. Hanson, who has a sixth daughter, Rachel, 22 months old. Imagine what the food bills would be if the quints liked steak!

QUOTE: John Kenneth Galbraith describes the Peking Department Store: "It has three sales floors, each about half the size of one at Saks Fifth Avenue... Presumably because there are no high incomes in China, there is a notable absence of big-ticket items. No furniture, no appliances except for one refrigerator, no television sets, but unfortunately, a growing supply of transistor radios. Turnover is about $100,000 a day... the store is open seven days a week from nine until seven. Employees, of whom there are 2,300, average 63.00 yuan (roughly $31.50) a month... The Chinese advantages: no slow-moving high-end items, little or no showing of styles, little or no fitting of clothes, high consequent output per salesperson, low returns, no credit, no credit cards, no green stamps, no advertising, no shoplifting. The store would not do well in Westchester County, New York. It seems right for Peking." From "A China Passage" (Signet, $1.50). UNQUOTE.

Michael Douglas, star of the TV series "The Streets of San Francisco" and son of actor Kirk Douglas, once got a commendation from

Michael Douglas

President Nixon for saving a man's life during filming. "While we were working in the San Francisco Bay, a stunt man was run over by a speedboat and pretty well chopped up by the propeller. I jumped in, pulled him out, then gave him first aid and artificial respiration. It took months before the man was well enough to get around again. That's why I got the President's National Merit Life Saving Award."

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY By Richard Armour

SINK SONG

Whoever named the sink a sink
Did really rather well, I think,
For sink is what my spirits do
If I should chance our sink to view,
Our sink is not unkind or vicious,
But it is filled with pans and dishes
As well as things I hate to face
That ought to be some other place.
With dish and glass our sink is sunk,
It shows what we have eaten, drunk.

Indeed, piled almost to the ceiling,
Our sink gives me a sinking feeling.

A major airline provided its switchboard operators with instructions to follow in case of a bomb threat. The first directive was to notify the police. Sooh, an operator got the chance to use the instructions. "I'm sorry," she informed the caller. "We don't take bomb threats. You'll have to call the police."
—Dorothea Kent

An artificial thing, shampoo—
What would a genuine poo do?
—Frank Fillery

The jury foreman announced: "We find the defendent not guilty." "What possible reason can this jury have for such an astonishing verdict?" asked the judge in amazement. "Insanity, Your Honor," was the response. "What!" exclaimed the judge. "All 12 of you?"
—Thomas LaMance

A tradition is what you have when you're too lazy to think up something new.

Our friends' small son and his parents went to visit some friends who lived on a farm. City-bred little Billy was fascinated with the farm animals, tractor, etc. Needless to say, he had had no previous experience with eating foods straight from the garden so when he returned home he was quite excited. "Grandma, Grandma," he said, "guess what they had to eat on the farm—underground potatoes!"

Easy Care NO-IRON KNITS

That's right! White Slacks are the best looking pair of pants in the world. Business or pleasure, all week or all weekend, morning noon and night. But they have to be 100% perfect - not a smudge, not a sag, not a wrinkle: Perfect! Or what a mess you'd have!

NEW KNITS KEEP IMMACULATE!

Haband's new 100% polyester knits don't spot or stain like other slacks. Don't hardly wrinkle at all. And they're TWO WAY KNIT so they have gentle two-way stretch. They fit you better and look better because they can adjust themselves to your position and movements. Great for All Day Office Wear!

Just as Great for Country Club!

AND PLEASE UNDERSTAND: These are neither high-styled overpriced resort slacks nor stodgy old trousers that would label you an old man. Just an excellent value on middle-of-the-road 1974 GOOD LOOKS that will stay in style for year after year after year. And FIVE colors to choose from.

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR
BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: "I LOVED MY ALEDA AS NO MAN HAS EVER LOVED A WOMAN. EVEN THE POETS ARE UNABLE TO GIVE WORDS TO ITS SPLENDOR."

"I TURNED THE TOWER INTO A LOVE BOWER AND FILLED IT WITH PLEASANT THINGS FOR HER ALONE; PERFUMES, GOWNS OF MANY COLORS, AND PRECIOUS JEWELS."

"SHE WANTED PARTIES AND DANCING. POOR CHILD, SHE WAS TOO YOUNG TO APPRECIATE A LOVE SO GREAT THAT IT WOULD BE A DESECRATION TO LET OTHERS SHARE HER BEAUTY."

"SHE SPENT HER DAYS GAZING FROM HER WINDOW AT THE TREES AND GARDENS. EVEN IN THE RAIN AND STORM SHE STOOD AT HER WINDOW. I FEARED SHE MIGHT FALL VICTIM TO A FATAL CHILL, SO I HAD MASONS FILL IN THE WINDOW."

"I SPENT HOURS DESCRIBING THE GREAT ROMANCES OF THE PAST, AND THEY ALL SEEMED TAWDRY COMPARED TO OURS. SHE WAS BEGINNING TO UNDERSTAND, FOR SHE STARED AT ME WITH GREAT ROUND EYES, OFTEN TEAR-FILLED. BUT SHE SELDOM TALKED."

"ONCE I STOOD IN THE DOORWAY WHILE SERVANTS SERVED HER FOOD. SHE TALKED AND TALKED, ASKING QUESTIONS, BUT NEVER ONCE MENTIONED MY NAME."

"SINCE THEN SHE HAS NEVER SPOKEN, EVEN REFUSED MY OFFERINGS. BUT YOU, WITH SORCERY, WILL MAKE HER TALK." THEREUPON HE UNLOCKS AN OAKEN DOOR.

ALEDA SITS IN A CARVED CHAIR ARRAYED IN SILK AND SATIN, HER JEWELS SPARKLING THROUGH THE COBWEBS. AFTER A LONG SILENCE, ARN ASKS: "HOW LONG SINCE SHE SPOKE LAST?" "FIFTEEN YEARS," ANSWERS THE DUKE.

I HAVE SOME IDEAS ON HOW TO RUN THIS CAMP BETTER

WHAT DID THE GENERAL SAY ABOUT YOUR LAST IDEA?

NOTHING

YOU'RE AHEAD, THEN

WOULD THE GENERAL PAY MORE ATTENTION TO MY IDEAS IF I MAILED THEM OR TOOK THEM IN PERSON?

WHY NOT DO BOTH?

WELL, SEND HIM A WIRE TELLING HIM YOUR STUFF IS ON THE WAY

THEN SEND HIM ANOTHER WIRE TELLING HIM YOU'RE ON THE WAY

YOU'RE COMPETING WITH EVERYONE FOR HIS ATTENTION! THIS WAY HE'LL NOTICE YOU

DO YOU REALLY THINK HE'D GO FOR THAT?

HOLY SMOKE! ANOTHER WIRE SAYING HE'S ON THE WAY!

LOOK, SIR! IT'S SNOWING!
