

Cost Of Living Pay Increase Authorized

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The Redevelopment Commission authorized a five per cent cost of living pay increase Monday night for all of its employees.

Joe Laney, executive director, told the commissioners that he felt the one pay increase was warranted and would keep the Redevelopment Commission salary schedule in line with city and county wage levels. Both the city and county have already adopted cost of living increases.

Laney said that the administrative overhead of the commission has been reduced approximately one-third and that reduction will go towards offsetting the increase in terms of budget justification.

In other business on a brief agenda, real estate officer Kirby Boyd reported that six parcels were acquired in the Central Business District since the April meeting and out of the six, two involved condemnation.

Boyd said that three dwellings were removed in the area during the month and several more structures are vacant and ready for demolition. Two structures were advertised for removal and they should be demolished within 30 days, he said.

The staff member reported that three parcels were acquired in Southside during the month and five structures were removed.

second appraisals. The law requires two appraisals to be made on each parcel, it was noted, and there are some 140 parcels in Southside.

Dennis Tripp, assistant CBD project manager, reported that seven relocations were handled in CBD during the month and they included one family, three individuals, and three businesses.

Nine relocations were handled in Southside, it was reported, and involved two families and seven individuals. The commission has acquired approximately 25 per cent of the parcels projected for purchase in Southside.

The commission authorized amendments to both the personal services and engineering contracts with City Planning and Architectural Associates of Chapel Hill to bring the documents up to date and pertinent to work the firm is actually undertaking for the Redevelopment Commission.

The real estate officer explained that third appraisals are needed in cases where there is a wide difference in the first and

A Full Day Of Review

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee today began its first full day of reviewing impeachment evidence with most members expected to get their first chance to listen to White House tapes.

Committee members went into the closed session carrying the thick looseleaf index books they received last week from the committee staff.

While the panel moved ahead with its review of the evidence its staff has collected over the past four months, President Nixon continued to put out word that "there isn't any chance" he will leave office voluntarily.

The committee session today was expected to focus on the Watergate cover-up, when the President learned of it and what he did about it.

In addition to the index listing all the materials collected by the staff, committee members receive each day another looseleaf book laying out the specific allegations and the evidence supporting them.

Day-long closed sessions are scheduled for today, Wednesday and Thursday.

A Scott Proposal World Trade Center Here?

Former Gov. Robert W. (Bob) Scott today proposed that a World Trade Center be established in North Carolina and suggested its location at East Carolina University.

He said he would envision such a center as a clearing-house to coordinate efforts by all involved in promoting international trade ties with North Carolina business and agriculture such as commodity groups, educators and government agencies.

"What better place for a World Trade Center than ECU?" Scott added.

Scott, now executive vice president of the N. C. Agribusiness Council, was a lead-off speaker at a Conference on World Trade sponsored by ECU and the ECU Regional Development Institute to study the influence of world trade on the economy of Eastern North Carolina.

Pointing out the importance of world trade to both agriculture and business, Scott offered a list of suggestions to bolster and improve the state's position on the world trade ladder. He suggested more educational efforts "to inform those who have a stake" in international commerce, "to inform farmers of the importance of world trade to their livelihood, through conferences such as the one today and other means. He suggested specialized short courses for North Carolina leaders in agribusiness "to inform them of opportunities and teach them the rules of the trading game."

Scott also said there is a need for more personnel in the foreign markets section of the N. C. Department of Agriculture which, he said, is "now woefully undermanned."

He said a new office to be opened in Europe to promote trade and other North Carolina interests "will help, but we need more people" involved in this undertaking.

"We are now spread too thin," he said.

Dr. Leo Jenkins, ECU Chancellor, in welcoming remarks, spoke of building "lasting friendships" with other nations and realization that international economics are closely interwoven. Jenkins called for betterment of the state's ports including superhighway connections through the East to the furniture and textile manufacturing centers of the Piedmont.

Jenkins also noted the importance of Latin America as a "future tremendous customer" for such products as North Carolina soybeans.

Jenkins expressed hope that the next General Assembly will reinstate the soon to expire N. C. Commission on International Cooperation, of which he was chairman. The Commission, he said, made significant strides in improving the international understanding through its programs in the state.

IRA's Battle Plans Captured

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The Irish Republican Army admitted today that British security forces had captured one of its master battle plans, but said it was winning the fight to oust Britain from Northern Ireland.

A spokesman for the Provisional wing of the IRA said, the British "may be winning the war of words, but make no mistake about it, we are still winning the war of bullets."

He told newsmen the master plan was "a doomsday plan we drew up some time ago."

Prime Minister Harold Wilson told the House of Commons in London Monday that the army captured the plans in a raid on the Belfast headquarters of the IRA's Provisional wing.

Wilson said some of the documents will be published in Britain and "in other countries where Britain's record under successive governments in relation to Northern Ireland has not been fully understood." Presumably he was referring to the United States and Canada, where there is considerable sympathy for the IRA among persons of Irish descent.

The official death toll in nearly five years of the communal war reached 1,018 early today when two bodies were found after an explosion in a garage in Dungannon, County Tyrone. An army spokesman said a bomb apparently went off as the two persons were carrying it into the garage.

Security officials said the IRA planned to incite the Protestant majority in Northern Ireland to launch a bloodbath against the Roman Catholic minority. The IRA would then move into large areas of Belfast as Catholic "protectors" and occupy strategic positions, including the docks, television stations, newspaper offices and gas, postal and telephone installations.

As they were forced back in fighting with the British army, the IRA would burn Belfast.

The strikers are state employees, and have been offered a pay raise of 7 1/2 per cent, the same as other state employees are getting. They are asking 12 1/2 per cent.

Longshoremen are not striking, but are not crossing their picket lines.

Watts, whose appointment was announced Monday, arranged to meet today with Andrew A. Canoutas of Wilmington, counsel for the strikers. They walked out Friday after negotiations on a contract bogged down.

The strikers and the longshoremen are members of the International Longshoremen's Association.

Hit New Lows

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — The dollar and the British pound plunged to new lows on the Zurich foreign exchange market today.

The dollar dropped from 2.8250 Swiss francs Monday to a 10-month low of 2.7775.

The pound made an even more dramatic plunge from 6.9350 francs to 6.6586, a 4 per cent drop and the lowest level to which the pound ever has fallen.

The West German mark, which usually matches the Swiss franc in strength, declined from 118.15 francs to 116.73.

The French franc, the Italian lira and the Canadian dollar also weakened, though at a lesser rate.

An executive of the Swiss national bank said he believed the weakness of the dollar and the U.S. Presidential crisis were the prime factors in the trend.

He moved immediately for talks to end a four-day strike of dock and warehouse workers which has tied up the state ports of Wilmington and Morehead City.

The strikers are state employees, and have been offered a pay raise of 7 1/2 per cent, the same as other state employees are getting. They are asking 12 1/2 per cent.

Disengagement Believed Nearer

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger returned to Damascus today for more talks with President Hafez Assad amid reports that Syria and Israel have moved closer to a disengagement agreement.

The Egyptian chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Mohammed Abdel Ghany el-Gamasy, also was in Damascus. Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has been urging Assad to come to terms with Israel, but Syrian government spokesmen denied a report by the Iraqi news agency that Sadat was also in the Syrian capital.

Kissinger was due back in Israel later today with the Syrians' response to the latest Israeli proposals.

United States officials indicated Monday that the two governments are close to agreement on thinning out armor behind the eventual disengagement lines and on what kind of United Nations buffer force will stand between their armies.

One senior American official said Israel and Syria had moved closer to agreement on the location of the front lines their forces would man on the Golan Heights. But he said while the distances still in dispute are relatively small, they are of major concern to both sides.

The source said there still was no guarantee that Kissinger's on-the-spot diplomacy—now in its 17th day—will produce an agreement.

Newsmen were told the secretary should know by Wednesday whether a disengagement is possible. But his aides said he plans to return to Washington no later than Sunday.

Israel has been reported willing to give up, either to Syria or the U.N. force, all of the territory captured in the October

Rebuff Foes Of Divorce

ROME (AP) — The overwhelming defeat of the Vatican's campaign for repeal of the Italian divorce law spurred a drive today to end the privileged status of the Roman Catholic Church in Italy.

Despite a vigorous, two-month campaign by Italy's bishops, most of its 190,000 priests and nuns, and the Vatican's political allies in the Christian Democratic party, Italians voted 3 to 2 in a referendum Sunday and Monday to retain the divorce law that has been on the books only since 1970.

As soon as the results were known, anticlerical groups announced a nationwide drive to collect signatures on a petition calling for a referendum on all laws giving the Church a special position.

One such law stipulates that "the Roman, Catholic, Apostolic religion is the only religion of the state." Others give tax exemptions and other privileges to agencies of the Church and Vatican employees.

The outcome of the referendum was also a stinging rebuff to the Christian Democrats, Italy's dominant party ever since World War II, and its secretary-general, former Premier Amintore Fanfani, who led the party fight against the divorce law.

MISSING PICTURES

Help! In February, 1972 several rolls of color slides were left at Ross's Camera Shop on Evans Street for processing. The film was of an East Carolina University Workshop production and included a personal order and orders from students in the production and the workshop scrapbook. I went on a six-month trip and when I returned the camera shop was out of business. I sent a registered, return receipt requested letter to the owner of the Camera shop asking about my film. I got the receipt back but no further information, can you help me find my film?—P. H.

The case of the wandering pictures is solved and you've got your pictures after two years. Actually they never left town. Hotline contacted an employee of a firm that took over Ross's photo processing business, which also was out of business, but he told us who took it over from him. The Happy Store main office at Fifth and Cotanche has several processed rolls of film which were handled through Ross's Camera Shop and requests anyone missing film to check with them. Their number is 758-5131.

CAT LOST AND INJURED

Several weeks ago my cat was hit by a car at the intersection of Fourth and Elm Streets, on a Sunday night. My husband and I were not home at the time, but a neighbor said a man later came by her house inquiring about the owner of an injured cat he had picked up near the intersection. The neighbor did not know we owned the cat and the man took my cat with him to tend to him. I later printed an ad in the paper requesting information on my cat, but the incorrect phone number was printed in the ad. I called the incorrect number and that person said someone had called about my ad, but I have heard nothing more from the person. Can you help me find my injured cat. He is a male, with long gray hair. G. D.

Although Hotline usually prints completed inquiries, this case warrants a different approach. If the person finding the cat will call Hotline and leave their name and phone number we will let you know who has the cat, or the Good Samaritan can call you personally at 758-0993.

Denies Vendetta In Anti-Poverty Agency Step

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina Gov. Jim Holshouser says there is no political vendetta involved in his administration's decision to transfer control of anti-poverty programs from community action agencies to local governments.

Holshouser also says the administrative decision, taken without consulting the General Assembly, is legal.

But that is not the view of employees of the state's 37 community action agencies. They say they have been illegally blacklisted—perhaps for political reasons—and have filed suit to block Holshouser.

The community action agencies are creatures of the Kennedy-Johnson administrations. They were created as vehicles for the anti-poverty programs of the Great Society.

They are active in 83 counties in North Carolina, providing family planning, nutrition and aging.

The LROs, in Holshouser's plan, will be responsible for planning the programs and designating the agencies to deliver them. As much as possible, regular local government agencies will be used, subject to approval by the state. The community action agencies will not be used, according to a Holshouser aide, unless they submit to the control of local governments.

Holshouser said the plan will result in increased administrative efficiency, elimination of duplicate efforts, and better service to the poor.

It will also mean that local governments will gain control over the patronage involved in the anti-poverty programs.

Sources both within the Administration—who asked not to be identified—and within the community action agencies say this is the key to Holshouser's thinking.

Programs for 200,000 people, ranging from Project Headstart pre-kindergarten classes to bingo games for the aging. They spend more than $25 million per year. Much of it is federal money channeled through the state.

Holshouser's move to replace them is paralleled in Washington by the Nixon administration's efforts to dismantle the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The governor, in an interview Monday with the Associated Press, called it a part of the Republicans' New Federalism, the effort to decentralize control of government programs.

According to sources within the Administration, the plan has been developed over the past year. But it did not surface publicly until the General Assembly—controlled by the Democrats—had left Raleigh.

Holshouser proposes to use the state's 17 "Lead Regional Organizations" as the administrative agencies for the five basic anti-poverty program areas of manpower, child development, (Continued on page 5)

DAR Chapter Officers Installed On Saturday

FARMVILLE—The installation of officers highlighted the May meeting of the Major Benjamin May Chapter, DAR. The meeting was held Saturday afternoon at the Shamrock Restaurant here.

Mrs. Troy W. Rouse, chaplain, conducted the installation services for the following incoming officers: Regent—Dr. Emily Farnham; First Vice Regent—Mrs. Charles Carr; Chaplain—Mrs. Thomas E. Hales; Recording Secretary—Mrs. C. Reynolds Kernan; Corresponding Secretary—Miss Nancy Lewis; Treasurer—Mrs. Allen C. Darden; Registrar—Miss Tabitha M. DeVisconti; Historian—Mrs. Arch J. Flanagan; and Librarian—Mrs. Edward Lee Hill.

Members and guests were greeted upon arrival by the hostesses, Mrs. Leland Andrews, Mrs. Francis E. Price and Mrs. John Andrews. After refreshments were served, Mrs. H.A.I. Sugg, Regent, called the meeting to order.

Mrs. A. M. McWhorter was welcomed as a new member and Mr. and Mrs. Sherman A. Fields were greeted as guests.

Mrs. Leland Andrews introduced the speaker of the day, Sherman Fields. Fields is a native of Lenoir County, a graduate of Atlantic Christian College and is associated in business with Marvin K. Blount Sr. as an accountant. His topic was, "Paul Revere and the World He Lived In."

He said that, next to the 20th century, the age in which Paul Revere lived was probably the most interesting because it, too, was a time of great change. He stated that Revere is remembered for many things other than his famous ride. According to one author, he might well be called America's first big, industrialist in metal. In addition to the work he did as a silversmith, he developed considerable skill in engraving copper plates for printing and engraving. He cast cannons and bells in bronze, and many are still used in New England.

He invented a process for rolling sheet copper and made the copper fittings for the frigate "U.S.S. Constitution" ("Old Ironsides"). He built the first copper rolling mill in the United States. Until this time, all sheet copper had to be imported.

Mrs. Frederick M. Tripp gave the National Defense Report, which was written by John Steinbacker, author and managing editor of the "National Educator" magazine. It was entitled "The Behaviorists Running Children."

Mrs. Sugg gave a report on the Continental Congress, where she represented Major Benjamin May Chapter. She announced that the local chapter had been placed on the Silver Honor Roll for work done in 1973-74 and that North Carolina DAR Chapters had won two prizes for accomplishments during the past society year.

One of these was for the amount of work done on microfilm and given to the National Society, and, the other was for improvements in the State Room in Memorial Continental Hall, Washington.

As part of Bicentennial Celebration, the National Society of the DAR will try to get the signatures of the 16 signers of the Declaration of Independence whose signatures have not yet been obtained by the society. These will be placed in the DAR Museum in Washington with the signatures of the other signers. One of the Bicentennial projects for North Carolina DAR Chapters will be the furnishing of an American Revolution era home. This home is being moved from Scotland Neck to Halifax, where a Historic Square is being created.

A workshop will be held by District VIII Chapters in Tarboro on Wednesday, May 22. It is the Regents' Workshop and will be attended by Mrs. Sugg and Dr. Farnham.

This meeting was the final Chapter meeting of the current year and meetings will be resumed in September.

Junior Woman's Club Gives Appreciation Award

Mrs. Libby Swinson read a biographical sketch of Owens and then presented him a plaque in appreciation for his support and interest in Junior Woman's Club activities.

Other guests included Ms. Daquiri Baxter, Ms. Ann Litcheff, Ms. Pam McGroarty, Ms. Lauren Riddick, and Ms. Mary Shearin.

Mrs. Matt Gustafson, president, presided at the business meeting held at the Olde Towne Inn.

The monthly president's awards honored special mothers: Ms. Brenda Hasty; Ms. Brenda Whichard; Ms. Marie Buck; and Ms. Mickie Savage.

Conservation Chairman Mrs. Swinson announced the conservation workshop for clubwomen's children and guests on June 1 at the Woman's Club. A department meeting will be held at the Swinson home at 8 p.m. Thursday, May 16.

Ms. Betty Fuqua, chairman of the education department, invited everyone to tour the Sheppard Memorial Library following the meeting and welcomed new department members.

Recently appointed International Affairs chairman Ms. Vickie Bishop announced plans of the Baptist Student Union who is sponsoring the Walk for Development. Clubwomen were urged to call the union if they could furnish fruits or sandwiches. Public Affairs Chairman Ms. Patsy Harris collected money from those celebrating May and June birthdays.

A convention report was given by Ms. Rita Womble and Ms. Savage. Ms. Savage presented a certificate to the club who was first runner-up in the newsletter publication category for 1973. Ms. Savage was also elected as State International Chairman for 1974-76.

The annual June family picnic-meeting will be held at the homes of Ms. Patsy Harris and Ms. Marlene Slate in Red Oak at 6:30 June 7. It will be covered-dish picnic by departments.

The meeting was followed by a tour of the Sheppard Memorial Library by Miss Elizabeth Copeland. Becoming familiar with the library facilities is an education department project.

The next board meeting will be May 15 at 8 p.m. at 210 Pinewood Rd.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

A panel of nutrition experts discovered recently that more people go on diets in May than any other month in the year... the reason being they began to worry about how they'll look in a swimsuit. (Frankly, it's been on my mind since February when I rode a bicycle and my legs still rubbed together.)

The plain, simple truth is most people can find more reasons for eating than for not eating. I found this out when I used to go to my diet meetings where we would confess why we had not lost weight. The excuses dieters give for eating is enough to blow your mind.

One woman would stand up and say, "I had to go off my diet because I am expecting." "Expecting what?" asked the leader.

"My mother-in-law and if I don't get something in my stomach every three hours I become nauseated." "The next one would say, "I gained weight because it's in my marriage contract."

"How do you figure that?" asked the leader coldly.

"Well, my husband used to work the first shift, but he got bumped to the second trick which means he works from 3 to 11. When he comes in a little after midnight, he hates to eat alone and when we got married we promised to love one another through thick and thin, and these are our thick years and there isn't much I can do about it until he goes back on days."

My favorite story was a woman who ate a cookie. When asked why she fell off her diet for a cookie, she took a deep breath and with her eyes misting said, "I ate a cookie because I missed the elevator."

We were all intrigued, including the leader who said, "Do you want to tell us about it?"

"Well," she began, "it all began when I chipped my tooth on a piece of pizza crust and went to town to see my dentist. I parked in a garage near a department store and since I was early I went over to buy a skirt zipper and I ran into an old boyfriend who couldn't stop staring at my chipped tooth and it started to rain and I wasn't wearing a slip and I remembered I had forgotten (or was it forgotten to remember) to take the chops out of the freezer and I missed two traffic lights thinking about it and I was late to my dentist and he said my gums were going and a lot of people my age went into braces and when I got to the garage it was 4 o'clock and my kids were locked out for the third time this week and they had just opened up this new bakery on the street level of the garage and if I missed this elevator I knew sucking on my car keys wouldn't give me the nourishment I needed. The door slammed in my face and I ate the lousy cookie!"

We gave her a fat ovation.

Let Dad Have His Fun On Dance Floor

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have a most unusual father. He's close to 80, but looks 60, and he knows it. He never misses an opportunity to tell his age because everyone raves about how "young" he looks, and he eats it up.

Whenever Dad goes to a wedding or a party where there's music he gets carried away and thinks he's Fred Astaire. Everyone assumes he's tipsy, but all he drinks is soda pop.

He's a handsome man and a good dancer, but not good enough to put on a solo performance, which he always does. Mom died five years ago, and Dad remarried, and his wife can't control him worth a hoot.

My problem: My son is being married soon. Should I take Dad aside and ask him to please refrain from making a donkey of himself at the wedding reception? Or should I let him do his usual act and try to remain calm? All our relatives and friends know what a show-off he is but the bride's family has never seen him in action.

I love my father, but when he's on, I blush like crazy, a smile freezes on my face, and I clench my teeth until my jaws ache. What to do?
HIS DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: An 80-year-old man who looks like 60 and thinks he's Fred Astaire [and on soda pop yet] is entitled to have a little fun. Let Dad have a good time. And —thank heavens you aren't shlepping chicken soup to him in a rest home every day!

DEAR ABBY: I would like a wrestling partner. Someone who would like to wrestle for fun and exercise. I am not looking to be a champion.

I am 66 years old, in good health, and would like to stay that way as long as possible. I've never wrestled but that type of exercise appeals to me. Where should I look?
WANTS TO WRESTLE

DEAR WANTS: Go to the YMCA [if you're looking for a male partner—otherwise, go to the YWCA] and ask if there is a wrestler who would like to work out with you. If there is, you won't have to twist his arm.

DEAR ABBY: Here is a problem that has our whole family divided: Shirley is married to Robert. Shirley's sister is married to Charles. What are Robert and Charles to each other? I say they are brothers-in-law. Someone in the family [of which I am a member] says Charles and Robert are NOT related to each other at all.

If that is true, I cannot understand why Robert's children call Charles "Uncle," and Charles' children call Robert "Uncle."

Please rush your answer as this problem has thrown a wet blanket over our family reunions for years.
ALL IN THE FAMILY

DEAR ALL: Technically, a brother-in-law is either the brother of one's wife or the husband of one's sister. However, it's customary for husbands and wives to accept their spouses' relatives by marriage as their own.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "K" WHOSE CONSCIENCE BOTH-ERED HER FOR SO MANY YEARS: I took care of that little matter for you, and now you are square. Pleasant dreams.

Holshouser Cautious In Developing Appalachia

BOONE, N.C. (AP)—Gov. Jim Holshouser of North Carolina has warned his native Appalachian region against rushing pell mell to develop its mountainsides.

Holshouser spoke Monday evening at a conference on the future of Southern Appalachia at Appalachian State University in Boone, where he grew up.

While praising the progress that has been made through federally funded Appalachian Regional Commission programs, Holshouser urged caution.

In the past eight years, he said, Congress has pumped $2.2 billion into the region for roads, health programs, vocational education and other projects.

"I grew up in these mountains and I've watched them change," he said. "Yet progress has its hazards. If we rush pell mell to develop these mountainsides, to harness these rivers and remove the mineral resources without looking to either side to see what is happening, we could wake up one day and find ourselves wondering if this is the same land we all knew and loved."

Holshouser noted particularly that the mountain region's coal resources must be used "without doing irreparable damage to the mountains."

"There's an elusive term known as 'quality of life.' It includes the ability of a man to provide for himself and his family. But it also encompasses the environment in which we live—the air we breathe, the water we drink, and the beauty of the earth and the trees and the flowers," he said.

Holshouser is a backer of a mountain area management bill similar to legislation passed by the legislature this year to give the state control over development on the coast. The mountain bill is expected to be an issue before the 1975 General Assembly.

Founded in 1919, the National Association of Accountants has more than 280 chapters in both the United States and other parts of the world.

The Eastern Carolina Chapter was chartered in 1973 with a chapter service area covering a greater portion of 19 eastern counties, including the cities of Wilson, Rocky Mount, Tarboro, Farmville, Greenville, Williamston, Windsor, Edenton, Plymouth, Washington, New Bern, Kinston and Goldsboro.

Activities In 'Sunshine'

Operation Sunshine girls have participated in a variety of activities during the past month.

They took part in a track and field event at Elmhurst School. Bobbie Holloway placed first in the running broad jump and 100-yard dash in the fourth grade division. Bobby Short of West Greenville Gym had been coaching the girls.

For their Easter project, the girls made Easter Baskets and greeting cards for the children in Pitt Memorial Hospital. The girls have been taking gymnastics lessons at the West Greenville gym on the trampoline and in tumbling.

TUMBLING—They were guests of Sheppard Memorial Library one afternoon, seeing movies and looking at magazines and books.

A trip was made to the Sells and Gray Circus at the Pitt County Fairgrounds for the afternoon matinee.

For Mother's Day, the girls made jewelry boxes for their mothers.

Other activities this spring have included sewing lessons, in which the girls made shorts and cooking outdoors on the grill.

World Trade...

Operations, U.S. Department of Commerce, called attention to "considerable potential" for U. S. manufacturers to increase exports. "Opportunity by itself will not create sales," New said.

"Sales will come only with hard and persistent efforts by the American producer—and his effort must be backed by a strong and stable economy at home. The realities of international commerce call for a positive approach—an approach that places responsibility on industry, labor, agriculture and government to work together."

New called attention to a target industry program identifying 15 industries with the greatest export growth potential. He listed electronic data processing, food processing and packaging machinery, pumps, valves and compressors, air conditioners and refrigeration, agricultural machinery and equipment, biomedical equipment, computers and materials handling equipment.

He stressed that restoring the nation's international competitive position "is a task for the American private citizen."

Nearly 100 delegates representing business and agriculture groups were attending the daylong conference at ECU's Allied Health building. Approximately a dozen speakers were on the program.

In his address, Scott said "We are part of the world market and cannot, and should not, isolate ourselves from it."

"What happens to the fish off Peru, the grain crop in Russia, EEC policies, the outcome of GATT (General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade) can and does have a dire effect on prices the farmer receives for his product. And, of course, it affects many others in the agribusiness community."

Scott said the U. S. should be cautious about embarguing the sale of fertilizer, even though fertilizer supplies at home are short. "If we place an embargo on fertilizer then we must be prepared to face retaliation." "Only in phosphate are we self sufficient," he said. "We

Scott praised the role of East Carolina University in "very broad areas of education and service." Jenkins described Scott as a long-time strong supporter of ECU.

The tutorial program is sponsored jointly by the Pitt County Mental Health Association and the Greenville City Schools.

How Seriously Is This Needed?

We don't like to shoot down Santa Claus, but we have to wonder at a summer government program announced by the Nixon administration last week. Allocated was $91.4 million to help communities arrange summer jobs for 700,000 "economically disadvantaged youths."

An Accident Of Birth Decides

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—The "accident of birth"—which North Carolina county a child happens to live in—determines what kind of child care services are available to the child and his family.

The conclusion reached in a far-reaching study of what kind of care children of working mothers get in North Carolina points a finger of guilt at local governmental officials for child care services in the state which are in short supply and under-financed.

The study was carried out by the Learning Institute of North Carolina assisted by 600 volunteers across the state who visited and reported on the facilities which care for children while mothers work.

There are some half-million pre-school youngsters in the state, the study found. Almost half of those (215,000) have mothers who work.

Few served
But only 51,000 of those children under six are known to be enrolled in child care services with full-day programs.

The number of working moms in North Carolina, with children under six, now stands at 161,000—and growing.

Inflation and new job opportunities for women are putting more and more of them into the labor market. The study concludes that none of this is bad, that children can thrive, learn, and be well adjusted with a working mom, depending largely upon the mother's attitude toward her role, and on a well-balanced child care program.

And there is the rub. "There are great variations among counties in the kinds and quantity of public services available, in the voluntary nonprofit and proprietary types of services available, in the degree of subsidy or support for child care services by government agencies, churches, and industries," in the state's 100 counties, the survey found.

Six counties in the state had three or fewer child care services available to working mothers: Anson, Ashe, Camden, Gates, Perquimans, and Tyrrell counties.

Even more striking differences in available services is shown when census figures reflecting the total numbers of pre-school youngsters in a given county are stacked up against those enrolled in adequate, full-day child care facilities.

The survey projects that 39 children in Tyrrell County and 40 in Currituck County are not receiving services; in larger counties, more than 5,000 children are being have to wonder, though, if this money can be spent this late wisely. More important, we have to wonder about the inflationary aspects of such a quickly conceived governmental program. The nation is gripped by fierce inflation and to a considerable degree a cause is government spending.

Gov. Wallace Retains A Tremendous Appeal

Alabama Governor George Wallace proved that he is a potent political figure with his big victory in the Alabama primaries last week. The governor enjoyed support among both black and white voters and, by so doing, he served notice that he would be around when the presidential primaries get underway.

A Fury Within Ranks Of GOP

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—The passionate intensity of the Republican stampede against President Nixon can be traced to last Oct. 31 when Gen. Alexander Haig went to Capitol Hill with soothing reassurance for the party's Senate leaders—clearly one of the worst of infinite Watergate miscalculations at the White House.

On that day, White House chief of staff Haig told worried Republicans that the tape of the President's fateful March 21, 1973, conversation with John W. Dean III would prove this was his first knowledge of the Watergate coverup. It is "exculpatory," said Haig.

Not until the House impeachment proceeding raised the possibility that Congress might get the tapes did Mr. Nixon, in a Feb. 25 press conference, change his tune about the March 21 hush-money conversation.

Neither Scott nor the others accuse Haig of deception. They suspect, in fact, that Haig himself was misled. But these Republicans are livid, not only over the contents of the transcripts but because they feel like dupes.

An example is this private remark by one Republican leader: "I campaigned up and down my state all winter proclaiming Nixon's innocence because of what I was told about that March 21 tape." Such fury has created an unbridgeable chasm between Republicans and their President, converting his defense from political to narrowly legal.

Here, then, is yet another, perhaps fatal White House miscalculation, but it seems based less on a naive misreading of the transcripts than on an underlying belief in the Nixon inner circle that they would never be read by Congress.

That is certainly the best explanation for testimony before the Senate Watergate committee last July 30 by former Nixon lieutenant H. R. Haldeman. Based on personally listening to and taking notes on the March 21 tape, Haldeman swore that Mr. Nixon said "it would be wrong" to raise one million dollars in hush money—testimony that resulted in his perjury indictment. In an Aug. 22 press conference, Mr. Nixon generally confirmed Haldeman's version.

Haig, who to this day has never personally heard the tapes, is not blamed personally ("I think Al is a victim as much as we were," says one Senator). Aiming their anger at the President and his lawyers, the Republican deflection then began rolling with Scott's harsh statement of May 7. During the next 48 hours, three prestigious groups of Republican Congressmen—the S.O.S. Club, the Wed-

Sad Second Thoughts

Let me come back to the presidential transcripts. Some sad second thoughts are in order.

When I first wrote about the transcripts 10 days ago, I had read the first 500 pages of the Blue Book. The President, I said, emerges from its pages in pretty good shape. That judgment was premature. When the 1,300 pages are contemplated as a whole, and read in conjunction with the President's public statements, a regrettably different conclusion appears.

We are faced with two questions about the President's conduct. The first is a question of law: Was his conduct criminal? The second is a question of morality: Was his conduct wrong?

If the issue before the country were confined to the first question, I would not be so troubled. These 1,300 pages settle that question: My President is not a crook. The most serious charges that have been raised against Mr. Nixon are that he twice suborned felony—first in the Ellsberg matter in California, second in the burglary at the Watergate—and that the later obstructed justice by conspiring to cover up the unlawful conduct of his aides.

The record as to these charges admittedly is ambiguous. If one reads only an isolated passage here and there, an arguable case can be made that the President at least indirectly commissioned the "penetration" of the psychiatrist's office.

Similarly, prosecutors can find evidence to support their contention that Mr. Nixon knowingly sanctioned the payment of hush money. But the record has to be taken as a whole. Under two familiar rules of criminal law—the presumption of innocence and the rule of reasonable doubt—a fair jury would vote to acquit. If the tapes here transcribed are the most damaging evidence that can be adduced against the President, the House could not rightly impeach him nor the Senate justly remove him from office.

Alas, this leaves the second question, the question of morality. Was his conduct wrong? On this point, the evidence is overwhelming. His conduct was indefensible. If all that one asks of a president is simply that he is not a crook, one asks very little. One is entitled to ask

Other Editors Say The Bumper Crop

(Greensboro Daily News)
Last February, an information officer in the state department of transportation thought he had a good idea when he bought 200,000 bumper stickers for the state. The stickers read: "50 Drive 55"—meaning that fifty states of the union observe a gas-conserving speed limit of 55 m.p.h. on their highways.

Unfortunately for a number of people—the Governor, the information officer, and Lentz—the sticker idea has come unstuck. It turns out that the officer failed to submit the sticker purchase to mandatory bidding procedures, and Mr. Lentz, as executive officer of the department, is by law "personally liable" for the mishandled order, and may have to shell out $10,000 from his own pocket to pay for the illfated stickers.

Such a penalty Mr. Lentz is presumably unable to pay, nor should he be compelled to do so, inasmuch as the purchase was made in good faith and his subordinate's failure to go through the bidding process an honest mistake.

Now William Bondurant of the Department of Administration, has suggested that the bidding be carried out after the fact, in hopes that the original printer, Capital Communications of Raleigh, will submit the low bid. If that happens, then all's well that ends well. If it doesn't, then the state will have to buy from the low bidder and return the extant stickers to Capital Communications, with which it has no binding legal contract.

All of this seems unnecessary. The speed limit remains at 55 and will stay there for some time; Tar Heels hardly need bumper-stickers, much less 200,000 more bumper stickers, to remind them of the fact; and the Dept. of Transportation's information officer and Secretary Lentz have suffered enough embarrassment as it is.

But, and the "but" is important, what is at issue is a matter of principle and indeed a matter of law. "Good faith" and "honest mistakes" have been used elsewhere recently to excuse far more blatant improprieties which we needn't name. Governor Holshouser's advertising contract with Capital Communication opens the sticker deal to added question.

Consequently, charade though it may turn out to be, Mr. Bondurant's suggestion appears to be the lesser of many unnecessary evils, and might be adopted for the sake of good example.

Critical Situation Faces FRB

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—With the business community seemingly determined to continue borrowing money no matter what the cost, the Federal Reserve Board is being forced into an almost unprecedented situation.

In theory, rising interest rates and a relatively smaller than usual growth in the money supply are supposed to discourage borrowing. But recent surveys show that business plans to spend much more than it did in 1973.

One corporate treasurer explained: "We don't like to pay high interest rates but it has been our experience over the past five years that if we don't borrow now we'll pay more tomorrow."

The Fed, therefore, is faced with a situation that grows more critical each day:

Should it continue monetary restraint and risk economic chaos? Or should it relent? After stating he will continue restraint, Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, is being accused by some investment brokers and businessmen of financial brinkmanship.

Manown Kiser Jr., senior vice president of Paine Webber Jackson & Curtis, a large securities house, commented in the firm's newsletter:

"Surely Dr. Burns does not want to cast the economy into the abyss of a liquidity crisis and an ensuing depression. It might cure inflation, but politically and socially, the system would not survive the fall."

The alleged brinkmanship, he said, involves the basic underpinnings of the American financial structure of equity, bond and money markets, and the various financial institutions and commercial banks.

"All are inter — and intra — related, entwined and inseparable," he commented. "If one were to crack, there would be reverberations throughout."

While feeling that the Federal Reserve will ease monetary policy and that interest rates will fall sharply, Chase Econometric Associates late in April felt it was important to consider the alternative.

If the Fed decides to continue to tighten monetary policy in an abortive attempt to reduce the rate of inflation too quickly, chaos would result, said the firm, which is part of Chase Manhattan Corp. It added:

"Under our credit crunch scenario, we would expect the failure of at least one large corporation issuing commercial paper and a resulting lack of liquidity in the entire nonbank commercial paper market."

Commercial paper, a negotiable promise to pay, is an important source of short-term capital for many corporations, as well as a source of income for companies with excess funds to lend.

Business loans outstanding at the big New York banks fell slightly in the week ended last Wednesday, but the amount, about $37 million, wasn't enough to convince observers that a trend to less demand was setting in.

Outlays Out Of Hand?

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—A House report concluding $17 million in federal funds has been spent in connection with President Nixon's homes has broad support of Republicans who say security spending has gotten out of hand.

Several Republicans said they expected the report to get overwhelming approval of the House Government Operations Committee today, not as criticism of Nixon but of wasteful security spending.

The report proposed to the committee recommended the government take action to recover "any improper expenditures."

It also recommended security spending in the future be strictly limited to only one of a president's private homes.

The report said the $17 million—$9 million for San Clemente and $8 million for Key Biscayne plus $176,000 for Grand Cay in the Bahamas, where Nixon is a frequent guest of his friend Robert H. Abplanalp—covers all costs including personnel in connection with the homes.

It said some of the spending was "far in excess" of security requests and that some of it was for items contracted by Nixon's aides rather than regular federal agencies.

The report accused the Secret Service and other agencies of having "abused the discretion given them" by Congress' lack of restraints on security spending.

"As a result, government expenditures for all purposes at privately owned property have risen from practically nothing during the Roosevelt-Truman era to over $5 million in the Johnson administration and over $17 million during the first five years of the Nixon administration," the report said.

Rep. Richard M. Mallary, R-Vt., said the report does not criticize the entire sum spent in Captain George R. Pond and Lieutenant Cesare Sebellia soared away from Floyd Bennett Field at 6:24 a.m. today with the intention of reaching Rome without stop.

Pond, former navy flier and Sebellia, one-time Italian war ace, had been planning the flight for several months. They had hoped originally to make the attempt last fall but abandoned the idea because of unfavorable weather.

Their plane, a large orange and maroon monoplane, carried enough fuel to last more than forty hours.

Employees of the courthouse enjoyed a half holiday Saturday and will continue taking the half day off indefinitely.

The half holiday was ordered by the Board of County Commissioners meeting in regular monthly session here the first part of the month. The action came after members of the Pitt County Bar Association appeared before the board and asked that the courthouse be closed on Saturday afternoon.

INVESTING IN A BIBLE
At a World Sunday School Conference, John Wanamaker, the very wealthy merchant who founded the great department store which bears his name in Philadelphia, described the beginning of his Sunday School work some seventy years before.

possible all that has counted most in the life that I know now. It was the greatest and most far-reaching purchase I ever made.

Wanamaker had found the great value in modeling his life on Biblical precepts. And his great financial and political success showed that a life built upon these precepts can bring achievement in many different ways. One, of course, does not go to the Bible for material success; but the morality contained within it can play an important role in the material life of the believer.

New Training Program In Food Service Field

A new program of education for food service personnel has been inaugurated by the Pitt County Community Health Department, Health Department Director Roger Barnaby announced. Classes will be conducted on the premises of commercial food establishments and institutions by Sanitarian Patsy Coburn.

The first program was launched this afternoon for employees of the Bonanza Sirlon Pit and will continue Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons. Yesterday's session was addressed by Barnaby and Environmental Health Supervisor Willie Pate. Barnaby complimented Manager James Andrews of Bonanza for being "first" to request this educational program for his employees. "The health department looks forward," Barnaby stated, "to working with all the restaurants and other food service operators in a joint effort to upgrade the quality of the food service profession. Our major goal is to insure the high quality of food and to provide the public with safe and sanitary food service."

Barnaby pointed out that the number of establishments serving food in Pitt County has increased geometrically over the past few years, so the need for this type of education became apparent.

Plans for this intensive educational effort, he explained, were developed through a special grant received from the State Department of Human Resources, Division of Health Services in cooperation with the Pitt County Board of Health and the Pitt County Board of Commissioners. "We are fortunate to have Mrs. Coburn who is a graduate of East Carolina University in home economics and has received special training in environmental health to conduct these classes. As you know," Barnaby commented, "the ties between East Carolina University and county government, especially the health department have helped strengthen the public health program in Pitt County."

Commenting on the design of this new program, Willie Pate explained that this is the result of much discussion with other health professionals in the state and with the managers and owners of the food service industry in Pitt County. "It was decided to conduct classes in the individual establishments in an effort to reduce the cost to the establishment and also to provide an actual work setting experience for the participants. Upon the completion of the course, each participant will receive a certificate," he said. "It is our goal to reach as many establishments as possible in this new program for the food service industry."

more. One is entitled to ask for a certain purity of conduct, for a sure sense of moral leadership, for a keen understanding that presidents must be judged by standards more demanding than the standards we apply to lesser men.

Here, too, one can find isolated passages in which Mr. Nixon says what one would like a president to say: "It would be wrong, that's for sure. . . Tell the truth, John, tell the truth! . . . We've got to prick the boil and take the heat. . . The President lets his sense of compassion show through in his sympathy for E. Howard Hunt and for others caught in the Watergate net."

But when allowance has been made for these comments, hundreds of bleak pages remain. In page after page after page, the President emerges as little more than a second-rate public relations man. He wiggles, he squirms, he ducks and bobs and he weaves. He cannot face John Mitchell. He yields to John Ehrlichman's stronger will. He is concerned above all things with a "scenario," with a "strategy," with a "line." He does not lead, he merely goes along. His purpose is to stall, to conceal, to mislead. Finally, to be sure, he does act decisively: He wrings a resignation out of John Dean and reluctantly he lets H. R. Haldeman and Ehrlichman go. But the whole record is a record of cynicism and amorality.

There is more. Mr. Nixon was charged with surrendering these tapes as evidence to the House Judiciary Committee. The transcripts he offered are fatally defective. The Washington Post has counted 1,670 notations of "inaudible" or "unintelligible." Newsweek has 1,787. In one conversation with Henry Petersen, at least 362 passages are thus marred. The President himself ordered the deletion of a dozen portions of material "unrelated" to presidential actions on Watergate. Viewed as evidence, the Blue Book has limited probative value. The pages may serve Mr. Nixon badly, but they are self-serving all the same.

"I am so sick of this thing," Mr. Nixon says at one point. We are all sick of this thing. The country is sick of this thing. But the miserable prospect is that we will all be sicker yet before the country begins to get well. Even if the House refuses to impeach (a prospect that grows increasingly uncertain), a pestilential virus of these 1,300 pages will persist. The President's appeal now is not for understanding or for justice or even for vindication. His appeal is for mercy, and for compassion. Under the melancholy circumstances, it seems a vast deal to ask.

McReynolds Judge In Writing Awards

The National Council of Teachers of English announces the appointment of Doug McReynolds, East Carolina University as a regional judge for the 1974 NCTE program, Achievement Awards in Writing.

This nationally recognized competition, now in its 17th year, cites approximately 850 high school seniors for excellence in writing and recommends them to colleges and universities for admission and for financial aid, if needed. The NCTE also honors teachers and schools that have participated in the training of these young men and women.

Students are nominated for Achievement Awards in Writing by their high school English departments and are chosen for Awards by state judging committees. The regional judging committees are composed of both high school and college teachers of English who work under the direction of state coordinators.

The National Council of Teachers of English is a professional organization of individual and institutional members at all levels of instruction. Its goal is to increase the effectiveness of the teaching of English language and literature in the nation's schools and colleges.

National Hospital Week Is Observed

This week Pitt County Memorial Hospital is joining some 7,000 hospitals throughout the country in observing National Hospital Week. The slogan for this annual event is, "Get to know us before you need us."

In announcing this special week, Jack Richardson, Pitt Memorial Administrator, said, "In this era of vast social and economic change, people are concerned about how hospitals are meeting growing health care needs, both inside and outside their walls. They have a rightful interest in how efficiently and effectively hospitals are fulfilling their responsibilities, and about rising costs of health care services."

"Low prices are out of style," William E. Reid told the Cottonseed Products Association meeting here Monday. "The new contracts are running as high as 65 cents. I don't think the higher price paid last year have shown up on retail counters yet. Consumers should begin seeing the effects of higher price during the 'back-to-school' shopping period."

Reid said growers this year will plant about 14.6 million acres of cotton, despite the predictions of some that cotton would become "a specialty crop" during 1974.

He said the future of the cotton industry is as bright as he has ever seen it.

Good Year For Cotton Growers

DALLAS (AP) — The president of the National Cotton Council of America says cotton prices are higher than at any time since the Civil War and cotton farmers should do well in the current crop year.

Anti-Poverty . . .

They say the governor has been angered in the past by political activities by community action agency personnel, many of whom are Democrats.

Holshouser acknowledged the widespread impression in the 1960s that the community action agencies were too involved in politics. But he had not known of any of them working against him.

"If I were interested in politics in this, it wouldn't make sense to turn it over to local governments. In this state, they're mostly controlled by Democrats," he said.

Holshouser said he was convinced that his plan would result in better services to the poor. Although he refused to attack the community action agencies directly, a source close to the governor was more blunt.

"The people in the CAAs are more interested in keeping their jobs than they are in helping the poor," he said.

Just before he left Raleigh, the legislature passed an appropriations bill aimed at insuring that the community action

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Tuesday, May 14, 1974—5 agencies survived the Nixon administration's efforts to kill them.

It provided $900,000 in state funds to be used for administrative expenses of the agencies if their federal funds were cut off. The decision on the federal funds is still pending in Washington.

Keith Clark, a Holshouser aide who is working on the transfer program, said the bill does not do what the legislature apparently intended it to do.

"It's very vague," Clark said. He said the Administration would not arbitrarily impound the funds, but expressed doubt that they would ever be used to keep the agencies going.

Clark's statement annoyed State Sen. McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, who drafted the bill with the aid of community action agency attorneys. "They (the Administration) never took part in the debate. They had a duty to bring these things when the legislature was in session, not when everyone's gone home," Smith said.

The community action agencies have also expressed doubt that the Administration can establish a structure through the LROs that will comply with federal guidelines. The LROs are composed of representatives from county governments.

connection with President Nixon's homes "because obviously much of it was warranted."

"But I think my feeling is that there should be some designated limits on how far spending should go," Mallory said. "And it should be for security, not improvements."

Rep. Robert P. Hanrahan, R-Ill., said "there has been too much looseness involved" in security spending and said he particularly agrees with the recommendation that it be limited in the future to only one home in addition to the White House and the Camp David presidential retreat.

Gainers barely outnumbered losers, however, in light trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Recount In Board Race

WHITEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—The Columbus County Board of Elections has ordered a recount of the 12-candidate race for the three places on the county school board.

It did so Monday after Davis McPherson cited the possibility of human error in the count which placed him fourth, only 30 votes behind Frank Carter, who ran third. The result of the voting of last Tuesday had been given as Carter 2,138 and McPherson 2,108.

Claude Spivey, defeated for state senator, announced that he would appeal to the state Board of Elections the dismissal of his complaint last week by the county board. Spivey had petitioned the board to delay certification until the State Bureau of Investigation completes its probe of alleged election-law violations. He also cited the disappearance of 3,200 ballots, later discovered marked as excess ballots.

During Monday's hearing he said four persons living in South Carolina were carried on the voter registration books in Columbus County.

KFC Captures Fifth City League Victory

Kentucky Fried Chicken won its fifth straight game last night in the City Softball League while Sunnyside Eggs lost its first of the year, and Grady-White got its first victory.

In the opener at one park, Grady-White took an 11-9 win over Carolina Dairy. G-W scored once in the first, but the Dairymen got one in their half to tie it up. G-W then pushed over eight in the second to take the lead for good. F. Brown slapped a homer during the frame. The Boatmen added one in the third and one in the sixth to wrap it up. Carolina Dairy got two in the second and six in the seventh but couldn't keep the rally alive long enough.

The Little Sluggers rolled to a 20-2 win over Shirley's in the second game. The Sluggers got three runs in the first, then added five in the second. They knocked in 11 in the fourth with homers by T. Cox and B. Kuyhenda. They closed out the scoring with one in the sixth, another homer by Cox. Shirley's got one each in the third and fifth.

In the final game, Kentucky Fried Chicken bombed Union Carbide, 25-6. KFC pushed over two in the first, then got five more in the second with J. Clark homering. They added two in the third and seven in the fourth. Three more crossed in the fifth with another homer by Clark, and six were scored in the sixth with C. Meeks homering. Union Carbide got one in the first and five in the second.

In the opener at the other field, Parker's handed Sunnyside Eggs a 7-3 defeat. Parker's got four runs in the first, then closed it out with three in the fifth. Sunnyside got one in the second, and two more in the fifth.

The second game saw Pier 5 take a 14-0 win over Greenville Utilities. Pier 5 got seven runs in the first, with homers by Suggs and McKinney. Three more crossed in the second, and two more came over in the third with Gurganus homering. The final two scored in the seventh.

In the last game, Morgan Printers took a 16-11 win over the Jaycees. The Jaycees got two in the first, but Morgan came back with three in their half. They added four more in the second with R. Cox homering. They added seven more in the third with I. Arnold homering, then got one in the fourth and one more in the fifth. The Jaycees added three in the third, five in the fourth and one in the sixth.

Elks Roll By Graniteers

The Elks picked up their second Tar Heel Little League victory with a 14-4 romp over the Graniteers yesterday. The win boosted the Elks to 2-1, while the Graniteers fell off to 1-2.

The Graniteers pushed over two in the first. Mike Moyer singled and Garrett Young got a hit. Stuart Satterthwaite singled in both runners for a 2-0 lead.

But the Elks came right back to tie it up. Chris Ross singled and Lynn Jackson doubled. Gavin Ray grounded out, scoring Ross, and Emmett Walsh reached on an error, bringing in Jackson.

In the third, the Graniteers pushed back into a 4-2 lead with a pair of runs. Jamie Byrd reached on an error and Micah Dixon doubled. Young singled to drive both across for the lead.

But in the fourth, the Elks rallied for seven runs, taking the lead for good. Ray led off with a single and Walsh got a hit. Terry Skinner reached on an error and Don White singled in both Ray and Walsh. Mike Lemmond sacrificed, but White was thrown out trying to score on a passed ball. Lloyd Jackson walked and Ross got a hit. William Sneed walked, as did Lynn Jackson, scoring Lloyd Jackson. Walks to Ray, Walsh and Skinner brought in Ross, Sneed and Lynn Jackson for a 9-4 lead.

The final five came in the fifth. Lemmond walked and Jack Main got a hit. Both moved up on a passed ball and Sneed walked. Lynn Jackson then rapped a grand slam homer. Ray walked, moved up on a passed ball and an out, and scored on Skinner's hit.

Playoff Scheduled

ROBERSONVILLE—Robersonville's Golden Eagles, champions of the Northern Division, will meet Saratoga, the Southern Division champion, in a best-of-three series for the Eastern Plains Conference title and the right to advance into the state 2-A playoffs.

Robersonville will play host to the first game tonight at 8 p.m. The two will then meet in the second game at Saratoga on Wednesday, also at 8 p.m. A third game, if needed, will be scheduled later.

Saratoga and North Johnston tied for the regular season title, but no time was left for a playoff. A vote of the coaches in the conference gave Saratoga the right to meet Robersonville.

Rose Athletes Honored Monday

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Rose High School honored its top athletes from the past school year last night at the Annual All-Sports Banquet at the school.

Awards were presented to 22 athletes during the night, along with letters to those who earned them in the ten sports sponsored by the school.

David Patton, the new basketball coach at East Carolina University was the featured speaker for the evening. He told the group of athletes, their parents and guests that sports is a great part of society today.

"In every game," he said, "the student-athlete lays it on the line. They deserve the recognition they get because they had to put out a lot. Sometimes they have good times and sometimes, they're bad." Patton praised the high school coaches, saying that in college, the coaches there get "finished products. The high school coach brings the athletes along. They teach them the fundamentals and get the job done. We (the college coaches) simply mature them."

The coach noted that there were some fine athletes for them to emulate. "David Thompson (N.C. State All-American in basketball) is one, and your own Al Hunter is another," he said.

"You can measure how much a player wants to play," Patton said. "You can't tell what's inside of him just watching him occasionally. A lot of times the man who doesn't appear to measure up is the one who will win. Look at the Boston Celtics. They have all the wrong people, they were told. They didn't have a big center, they had short guards and slow forwards, but nobody convinced them, and they went out and beat Milwaukee."

"This is what we tell our players," he said. "We want them to do the best they can and we want them to play to their potential. Then, whether they win or lose, we're satisfied. We don't want them to save anything; we want them to get it all out. And finally we tell them to believe in themselves."

Patton added that the coaches, parents and teachers of young athletes have a lot to do with their success. "They have a tremendous influence on them. They provide the inspiration for them. It's easy to talk about doing this, but it's hard to accomplish."

Two special awards were presented during the evening. One was to Marvin Leggett for his long services as photographer for Rose High School's football team. The other went to Matthew Ward, student statistician, who lettered in four sports in that position.

A total of 26 awards were presented to athletes.

In football, five awards were presented. They went to Jerry Griffin, Most Improved; Jeff Hagan, Best Lineman; Harold Randolph, Best Defense; Doug Paschal, Best Back; and Dickie Johnson, Most Valuable.

Art Klose received the Most Valuable Runner award in cross-country.

The Most Valuable Player award in junior varsity football went to Howard Hill.

Basketball awards went to Herb Bynum, Most Valuable Player; and Mike Brewington, Most Valuable Junior Varsity. Becky Piner was named the Most Valuable Player for girls' tennis, while David Walton received the boys' award in that sport.

Three wrestlers received special recognition: Bill Barrett, Most Dedicated; Mike Alexander, Most Improved; and Harold Randolph, Most Valuable.

Ed Garvin was presented the Coach's Award in swimming, while Art Klose was named Most Valuable.

Griff Garner was named Most Improved in baseball, while the Most Valuable Player award in that sport went to Robert Brinkley.

Fannie Johnson was named the Most Valuable Athlete on the girls' track team, while Keith Joyner was named the Steelman Award winner in boys' track, while A. J. Tyson was the Most Outstanding Track (Runner) winner and Melvin Roberson was Most Improved. Lindberg Morris took the Most Valuable Field and the Most Valuable Athlete award in track.

Joyner was also named the winner of the Dixon Cup, while the Kiwanis Cup went to Jerry Griffin.

Pirates Ink Metro Cager

Wade Henkel, a 6-foot-7, 210-pound forward from Vienna, Va., one of the players Coach Dave Patton "wanted from the first of the year," has signed a basketball grant-in-aid with East Carolina University.

Henkel is the second Pirate cage signee. Last week, Earl Garner, a 6-6 forward, signed to play at East Carolina next year.

"The addition of Wade to our basketball program for next year makes us unbelievably happy. As many people know, we got off to a late start in recruiting because of a coaching change. When Wade agreed to come to East Carolina, it cast a different light on our progress," Patton believes.

Patton rates Henkel, a prep star for George Marshall High in Falls Church, Va., as a tremendous shooter with excellent jumping ability for a man his size. What makes it even better," Patton says, "is that we think he will continue to grow.

Henkel was a three-year varsity starter for George Marshall. As a sophomore he averaged 14 points and 14 rebounds. As a junior, he scored 14 points per game pulling down 13 rebounds. Then, as a senior, he blossomed, scoring at a 22 point per game clip while averaging 15 rebounds per game. His prep honors include first team All-District and All-Region.

George Estes, East Carolina assistant who recruited and signed Henkel, said "he is without a doubt an outstanding addition to our program not only in terms of basketball ability but

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY REELE

Following this past Sunday's editorial on the situation between the Babe Ruth League and the junior high school, additional information has been brought to our attention.

We always strive to be fair in our writing, and correct so far as possible. We talked with a number of people on all sides last week in an attempt to learn the entire situation. Some of it came too late to be included in the column. For instance, the Babe Ruth League in the same meeting that it voted to allow all boys to play, set up a committee, which includes the director of the City Recreation Department, and the City School Athletic Director, to study the situation and the rules to make sure the situation doesn't develop again.

Overall, it appears to be a situation where all parties, including The Daily Reflector, were not TOTALLY informed of the situation.

Throughout our career, we have noted a reluctance of people to give us the full facts—for what ever reasons they may have. Despite extensive work and all attempts to find out all the details and to be fair, sometimes the very people who would profit hurt themselves.

Sunday night, two Babe Ruth coaches came to me, on their own, Jim DeCastro and Steve Moore, to bring further information on the situation to me.

They felt that their position had not been given full light, and that their particular action in the matter was "with deep concern for what was best for the boys."

They added that they do not feel that the two programs, Babe Ruth and junior high school, are in conflict, but support each other.

"The Babe Ruth League has always, in a spirit of cooperation, contacted the Aycock coach as to his wishes regarding dual participation of players," they wrote in a statement they prepared for our use Monday.

"This year our vice-president reported to us, before final approval of our schedule, that as in the past, the coach had no objections to the League playing his players as long as we did not pitch players who he intended to pitch. It should be pointed out that we had heard of the existence of a conflicting school rule. The League did not have an exact understanding of the rule and relied upon the school to inform us of its wishes."

Consistent to the coach's request, but not because of it, the league voted to play the first 15 games as exhibition games so that no team would have a pitching advantage. At that time, prior to the start of either season, the coaches stated, all players would be allowed to participate.

"On Monday, April 29, three weeks after the Babe Ruth tryouts, players on our two teams reported to us that they were instructed by their Aycock coach they would no longer be able to participate until the Aycock season was complete." They added that a board member tried to see the Aycock coach, but was unsuccessful, but did talk with him by phone the next day. "(The board member) reported to us at (a Tuesday night meeting) that the coach... had reverted to his previous position, (and was invited to attend that night's meeting.)"

During that meeting, one of the league's coaches obtained a copy of the rule governing dual participation and read it to the group. "After a long discussion we supported (and adopted) a motion to enforce these rules even though the school apparently would not," they said, adding that the league also voted not to allow league members to quit the Aycock team to join their Babe Ruth teams.

"... The players in question were already in violation of these rules and ineligible for further junior high school play since they had participated in Babe Ruth League practices. The action was taken as a good faith attempt to adhere to the rule and avoid future conflicts."

The coaches said that following the meeting on Tuesday, the parents of some of the players involved protested to the league and another meeting was scheduled for Friday, May 3. At least

Ayden-Grifton Defeats Greene Central

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer
LITTLEFIELD—Ayden-Grifton's Chargers closed out their baseball season last night on a winning note as they out-scored the Greene Central Rams, 8-4.

The Chargers finish with a record of 11-7 while the Rams are 9-7, not counting their tie game with D. H. Conley.

Both teams slapped out six hits but the Chargers made the most of five Ram errors to help them get the victory. Eddie McCullen went all the way for A-G to get the win. He struck out eight and walked four. Jessie Hooker started for the Rams but was relieved in the bottom of the fourth by Dale Pridgen who finished the game.

The Chargers got a run in the first as Ronnie Salmon walked, went to second on an out and scored on a long double by Tom Craft.

Joe Heath got the first hit off McCullen in the second and stole second but could not score. The Rams broke through in the next inning to take the lead.

Phil Harrison walked and was sacrificed to second. Donnie Blizzard beat out an infield hit moving Harrison to third and a passed ball scored Harrison. Blizzard scored when Jerry Carraway reached on an error.

The Chargers got it back in the bottom of the inning and then some. Ricky Thorne struck out but reached base when his third strike got away from the Ram catcher. He stole second and went to third on a fly out. Stevie Tripp beat out a bunt to score Thorne. Ned Craft forced Tripp at second.

Tom Craft drove in Ned Craft with his second double and when Chris Parisher's grounder was errored, Tom Craft scored.

The Rams cut the lead to 4-3 in the top of the fourth. Health singled and stole up. Harrison scored him with a hit to center.

That was as close as the Rams got. In the bottom of the frame, the Rams committed three errors that let the Chargers rally for four runs. McCullen led off with a walk and was sacrificed to second. Thorne singled him to third and an error on the play scored him. Salmon walked. Tripp was safe on an error scoring Thorne and a sacrifice by Ned Craft scored Salmon. Tom Craft was safe on the third error bringing in Tripp.

Greene Central added one more in the sixth as Shorty Radford walked and came around on hits by Harrison and Pridgen.

Tom Craft had two hits for A-G while Heath and Harrison had two each for the Rams.

seven players parents were represented at this meeting, along with the entire board of the league.

"At this meeting, we became convinced that the league action had not been fair to all boys in that we had changed our position after the Aycock season had begun." They noted that some of the Aycock players involved were not regulars and had played very little, if at all, but could be playing regularly on a Babe Ruth team. "Realizing we had forced certain players into a position where they had no choice of programs, (and since technically the players were already ineligible because of practicing on Babe Ruth teams), wanting to act in good faith toward adhering to the state public school rules, and desiring no conflict between the two programs (the league voted to) rescind our earlier action as it applied to the 1974 season ONLY; and formed a committee... to insure no conflict in the two programs would ever exist in the future."

"It should be made clear that no decision was reached by the Babe Ruth League without long and thoughtful consideration of the facts as we had them with the boys' best interests at heart," they concluded.

It thus boils down to this. There was not a sufficient flow of information between the junior high school and the league. It is difficult to find where to lay the blame. Had the league known what the results were to be, they would not have allowed the boys involved to play.

But apparently, no one in a position of authority within the school system make if fully clear what the penalties were. We personally feel that communication on both sides was to blame. While the coaches state that the Aycock coach was invited to the Tuesday meeting, this has not been confirmed. Perhaps both sides should have tried a little harder to get all the facts into the open before the action was taken.

At any rate it is too late.

We are convinced that the league is acting in good faith not to allow it to happen again, regardless of what the city school system does. Hopefully, there will be closer ties between the league and the schools in the future.

But we do know that there is a communication breakdown. We have first hand evidence of it ourselves. The Babe Ruth League presented us with a schedule prior to the start of the season. We learned, off hand, Saturday, that this week's schedule has been changed.

We also learned Sunday night, just through passing conversation, that instead of the first five games being exhibition, and not included in the standings that the games of last night would start the official season, and that three games would be added to the end of the schedule to make a full 15-game slate for each team.

But—as yet—not one league official has taken it upon himself to let us know of the schedule changes or in the change of status of the schedule.

It is not the duty of the news media to ask a league if it has changed its schedule or its method of determining the champion. It is the league's responsibility.

So again, there is a communications gap.

Home Builders Tops Bankers

Three errors and a wild pitch by NCNB pitcher Joel Clark broke a 2-2 tie in the seventh inning and gave Home Builders a 5-2 victory in Babe Ruth baseball action last night.

Wright Hooks was the winning pitcher for Home Builders. He issued only one hit, a high-hop single off his glove by Jesse Baker in the third inning. Hooks struck out nine and walked two. Losing pitcher Clark also struck out nine, but walked six men, one of which led to Home Builders' initial run.

With one out, Lance Weatherington and Gary Allen reached on successive singles, and with two out, Reggie Selby walked to load the bases. Ronnie Chapman walked to force in Allen with the first run of the game.

NCNB countered with a pair of runs in the bottom of the third. After one out, Bryant Morton walked and moved to second on Baker's hit. After Doug Selby struck out, Dave Middleton hit a blooper which the second baseman dropped, allowing Morton and Baker to score after they had moved up on a passed ball.

Home Builders retied the game in the fifth after Timmy Allen's leadoff triple to right-center. After Mark Conway fanned, Hooks hit into a fielders' choice. The shortstop fired to the plate, but failed to peg Allen. When an argument ensued about the plate call, Hooks tried to reach second, but was thrown out by the catcher.

The Builders settled the issue in the seventh as Chapman and T. Allen reached on successive errors. Both moved up on a wild pitch and were joined on base by Conway who was walked. Hooks was walked to force in one run. After Joe Godette struck out, Gary Allen hit into the infield fly rule, but the shortstop dropped the ball to allow T. Allen to score. On backing up the play, the left-fielder's throw to the third baseman was kicked out of his glove by Conway, letting Conway score with the third run of the inning.

Home Builders captured its first victory of the year in the first official game of the year, while NCNB suffered its first loss.

Jollie In Two Losses

Hamilton took a twin-bill from Jollie on Sunday, winning the first game 4-1, and the nightcap by 6-0.

With one out in the first, W. Carlisle walked and Frank Mobley slapped a two-run homer to give Hamilton the lead. They scored again in the third on Mobley's second homer.

In the fifth, E. Ayers and W. Coffield led off with singles and Danny Hardison grounded into a fielder's choice, scoring Ayers.

Jollie got its lone run in the seventh. Bobby Parker led off with a hit but was thrown out on L. Ross' fielder's choice. Ross moved up on a passed ball, and scored when J. Parker's grounder was errored.

Hamilton got three runs in the second frame of the second contest. C. Whitley singled and J. Scott walked. J. C. Whitfield doubled in both runners. D. Hardison walked and P. Coffield singled in Whitfield.

Three more scored in the fifth. B. Turner singled, but was out on a fielder's choice. Carlisle doubled and Whitley singled. J. Scott then doubled to drive in three runs.

Ellis Homer Powers Indians To 4-1 Victory Over Red Sox

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer
"It was a bad pitch," John Ellis said happily.
"It was a bad pitch," Luis Tiant said sadly.
It was a good pitch for Cleveland and a crummy one for Boston.
It was a pitch that ended up in the left field seats, a three-run homer by Ellis in the first inning, a booming shot off the troubled Tiant that catapulted the Indians on their way to a 4-1 victory over the Red Sox Monday night.

Also in the American League, Milwaukee edged into first place in the tight East Division by beating Baltimore 9-4, California belted sagging Texas 8-4, Minnesota turned back the Chicago White Sox 7-5 and Oakland shellacked Kansas City 11-2.
"It was a bad pitch. It was a slider that was just hanging right there over the plate," said Ellis. "Tiant doesn't give you many of those pitches and I was lucky to take advantage of it. If he didn't do that, he probably would have shut us out."

"It was a bad pitch," Tiant agreed. "But you can't win without getting runs. We haven't been getting any runs recently. I feel good and I've been pitching well and that's all that matters to me."

Moore Has No-Hitter

The Optimists gained a 5-0 victory over Coca-Cola yesterday as Glen Moore tossed a no-hitter in the North State Little League game.

The win was the third straight for the Optimists, while Coca-Cola was absorbing its third loss of the year.

Moore walked only two runners during the day, both in the final inning. Two others reached on errors. He struck out eight during the game.

The Optimists pushed over one run in the second frame. John Hendricks singled and was wild pitched to third. David O'Brien reached on an error, scoring Hendricks.

The other four runs came in the fourth. O'Brien reached on an error and moved to third on wild pitches. Kenny Kirkland walked and Billy Dough slammed a triple, scoring both runners. Jim O'Brien walked, stole second, and a balk led Dough score. A wild pitch brought O'Brien in with the final run.

Apodaca Doesn't Want To Start

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
Bob Apodaca came out of the bullpen Monday night to give the New York Mets some much-needed relief ... as a starting pitcher.

If he has his way, he'll be starting again as soon as possible ... right back toward the bullpen.

The 24-year-old rookie right-hander, whose seven previous major league appearances were all in relief, worked five innings—just enough to pick up his first victory as the Mets defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 5-3. He allowed six hits and two runs and left when he developed a blister on his pitching hand.

"I felt strong, but I wouldn't want to be a regular starter," said Apodaca, who got his starting shot because Jon Matlack pulled a muscle running before a game in Chicago on Saturday. "I really prefer relieving because you can get in there maybe three or four times a week."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Houston Astros 8-4, the Cincinnati Reds downed the San Francisco Giants 4-1 and the Atlanta Braves shaded the San Diego Padres 7-5. Chicago, Montreal, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh were not scheduled.

Dodgers 8, Astros 4
Jimmy Wynn's two-run single highlighted a five-run fifth inning and he drove in another run with a sacrifice fly. Wynn had four homers and seven RBI in his two previous games.

GOP Leaders Shun Newcomb As A Chief Justice

An AP News Special
By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—Will North Carolina voters choose as chief justice of the state Supreme Court a Republican fire equipment dealer with no legal experience?

Not if they take the advice of Gov. Jim Holshouser, Senatorial nominee William E. Stevens or state GOP chairman Thomas S. Bennett. All three Republican leaders issued statements Monday saying they could not endorse James M. Newcomb of Williamston, the man the GOP voters chose to run against Democratic Associate Justice Susie Sharp in the November elections.

Newcomb won the Republican nomination by defeating another woman jurist, District Court Judge Elreta Melton Alexander of Greensboro. Mrs. Alexander was elected a judge in 1968 and reelected in 1972. She was the first black woman to graduate from Columbia University law school and the first black woman in the nation elected a judge.

Both Newcomb and Mrs. Alexander said Monday in interviews that neither racial nor sexual prejudice were factors in her defeat.

"I don't think it played a significant role at all," said Mrs. Alexander. "It may have made a difference to some persons, but I don't think it was that important."

"My personal opinion is that if it had any part in the campaign it was very insignificant," said Newcomb.

Neither campaign had much publicity. Newcomb's platform was that was "Christian family man" was needed on the court. The other justices, he said, could help with the legal technicalities. "Definitely not," he said, when asked whether it should be necessary for a supreme court justice to be a lawyer.

But Bennett disagreed. He said he did not believe in following a party label out the window.

The Morehead City attorney served for a year as a clerk to a Supreme Court justice, "and I'm familiar with the duties a justice has to perform."

"Unlike other judgeships, an individual must have some legal background, and be able to read, understand and apply legal precedents," Bennett said.

"A Supreme Court justice has to write formal opinions that require substantial scholarship as far as legal theory goes," he added.

"Mr. Newcomb does not have this kind of background. Therefore, in my personal judgment, as an attorney and political leader, I cannot in good faith recommend him for election."

Newcomb said he was "not too surprised" at Bennett's stand and would have a statement on it later in the campaign.

paign. Holshouser and Stevens, without much comment, concurred in Bennett's opinion. They said they would not endorse either candidate.

Mrs. Alexander added that she "Could not in good conscience support one who may have good intentions but does not have the necessary qualifications and experience."

Several legislators interviewed Monday expressed the opinion that Newcomb's election provides an excellent argument for legislation establishing non-partisan merit selection of judges.

Legislation that would have set up a commission to screen persons for appointment as judges and recommend them to the governor for appointment was defeated by the state House this year after winning Senate approval.

Newcomb's nomination "is one of the more pointed examples of why merit selection would bring broader qualified candidates for judicial office," said Rep. Sam Johnson, D-Wake, who led the battle for the merit selection bill in the House.

Sen. Eddie Knox, D-Mecklenburg, said the court would be in an "anomalous situation" if Newcomb were elected. "The reason we have been able to get some good judges is because most have been appointed first."

Bennett also opined that Newcomb's primary victory "will definitely support the contention that judges should be selected or appointed on a non-partisan basis of merit selection and prerequisite abilities."

Mrs. Alexander said she favors merit selection, but not the bill the House defeated. She said a constitutional amendment requiring that judges be lawyers was necessary.

Rep. C. Kitchin Josey, D-Halifax, who led House opposition to the merit selection bill, said the state's present system is really partly appointive since judges are usually named by the governor to fill vacancies and then stand for reelection as incumbents.

The system, Josey said, "has worked well in the past and I think it's going to operate well this fall." He said he is convinced that Justice Sharp will be elected.

If Newcomb should be elected, he said, "I'd have to take another look at it."
