Car Bomb Attacks Take Heavy Toll In Dublin

FIVE FOUND DEAD IN BURNING HOUSE AFTER GUN BATTLE—A fire truck moves up to battle a fire which destroyed a Los Angeles house believed to have been a Symbionese Liberation Army hideout during a protracted gun battle Friday. Bodies of five persons were found in the house after the flames subsided. (AP Wirephoto)

By DONAL O'HIGGINS

DUBLIN (UPI) — Vincent Geraghty stacked fresh sandwiches on the Welcome Inn Bar in Parnell Street and joked with his customers.

"Drink up, lads," he said, "you may never get another chance."

Without warning a blinding yellow flash turned the bar into a shambles. In Parnell Street outside, the first of three car bombs ripped through downtown Dublin, a Belfast-style blitz that killed 28 persons and injured about 175, 100 of them seriously.

It was the deadliest wave of attacks in five years of the violence across Ireland, north and south.

Twenty-three of the victims died in Dublin, two of them babies. The three Dublin bombs were timed to explode within seconds during the Friday evening rush hour, when streets were sure to be packed even more densely than usual by a city bus strike.

Five others died 90 minutes later in a fourth car bomb at Monaghan, 75 miles northwest near the Northern Ireland frontier.

Saturday an anonymous caller with a northern Irish accent warned of another Dublin bomb, police said.

"We have not finished with you yet," they quoted him as saying. "There will be another bomb in Dublin today."

Dublin took no chances and imposed tough security measures immediately. Parking was banned in the city center Check points covered every road into Dublin. Joint army-police posts were established at the Ulster border.

Premier Liam Cosgrave and his cabinet, in emergency session, recalled the 340 Irish army offers and men serving with the United Nations peace-keeping force in the Middle East. Police from the countryside were drafted into Dublin. The Home Guard was placed on alert.

All four cars had been stolen in Northern Ireland. Right-wing Protestant extremists from the north were suspected.

Northern Ireland violence has taken 1,021 lives since August, 1969, but has often spilled south and into England.

The blasts gave central Dublin the look of a city at war. The slightly injured hobbled out of hospitals in bandages and casts along streets filled with shattered glass, twisted wreckage and pools of blood.

Priests were everywhere giving the last rites of the Catholic church. "I anointed 22 people in 30 minutes," said Father Pearse Duggan.

"My God, it was awful," said Geraghty in the wreckage of his Welcome Inn. "One minute we were chatting and joking. The next we were on the ground under a heap of debris."

News Briefs

Noisy Weekend

Police estimated between 6,000 and 7,000 motorcycles were in town for an annual spring rally of riders from several states.

Police Chief Merlin Bellamy's department reported everything orderly as programs of races and other events were run on the high school football field.

Police said the gathering is sponsored by an American manufacturer of motorcycles, and has been staged here for several years.

Capt. Cecil Dilworth of the Highway Patrol said extra men were on duty for the event that he said has drawn riders from the Carolinas, Tennessee, West Virginia, Virginia and Georgia.

Black, White Church Merger

SPARTANBURG, S. C. (AP)—The plan of merger of the former white conference and the former black conference will be completed during the annual meeting of the South Carolina United Methodist Conference here June 3-7.

All provisions of the merger document have been met except the realignment to divide the state into 12 districts instead of 15. Presiding Bishop Edward L. Tullis has already announced the appointment of eight white and four black district superintendents.

The clerical and lay delegates will enact legislation and set goals for church priorities, and approve a budget for the next calendar year.

Surprise In The School Yard

WINCHESTER, Ind. (AP) — Winchester High School Principal Robert Jones was understandably upset when he arrived at school and found a herd of elephants wandering around the school yard.

The Hoxey Brothers Circus, in town for a weekend performance, had mistaken the school yard for the circus site and set up their tents and stakes in a driving rain storm Thursday night.

2,120 Foot Tower Completed

WARSAW (AP) — Poland today announced completion of the world's tallest structure — a 2,120-foot radio and television tower near Plock in northwest Poland.

The tower, which was designed by Jan Polak, is supported by a net of steel wire stays and weighs about 550 tons.

According the Guiness Book of World Records, the previous record holder was a 2,063-foot television transmitting tower built in 1963 near Fargo, N.D.

Hermit To Move On

OCHOPEE, Fla. (AP) — The hermit of the Everglades says he no longer feels free to skinny dip in his canal so he's put his home up for sale and plans to move deeper into the swamp.

"It's getting too public here," says Leon Whilden. "The people are beginning to drive me crazy."

Whilden, a native Floridian with an engineering degree, moved into the swamp 22 years ago, built a clapboard shack and filled in much of his 12-acre grove of cypress trees to form a garden of rare plants and flowers.

Whilden, who is in his 60s, says he thought he had found a quiet, peaceful existence where he could surround himself with nature.

But he says burglars struck twice in the past few weeks and too many people stop by to see his subtropical wilderness—some even pick his flowers.

First For That Country

India Explodes Nuclear Bomb

NEW DELHI (UPI)—India announced Saturday it had exploded a Nagasaki-force nuclear device it said was designed for peaceful uses, not war.

Prime Ministers Mrs. Indira Gandhi said of her country's first nuclear test. "It is nothing to get excited about. We are firmly committed only to the peaceful uses of atomic energy."

The blast made India the sixth nation with nuclear capability. It thus joined the United States, the Soviet Union, China, Britain and France.

Although the Atomic Energy Commission announcement of the explosion gave no details, the Press Trust of India PTI said, "It can be inferred that the explosion created a force equivalent to 10,000 tons of TNT. This was the same force as the atomic bomb dropped on Nagasaki in World War II."

The official announcement did not state when the device was exploded but PTI quoted an official spokesman as saying it took place early Saturday. PTI also said there werer indications the test occurred "perhaps in India's Rajasthan area." Much of the state of Rajasthan in western India on the Pakistan border is desert.

Asked if the explosion would raise India's prestige among developing nations, Mrs. Gandhi replied, "I never bother about prestige."

The explosion came three and a half years after Mrs. Gandhi told Parliament that Indian scientists were working on the technique that made it possible.

Syria Accepts American Plan

By WILBUR G. LANDREY
UPI Foreign Editor

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger achieved a dramatic breakthrough in his Middle East peace efforts Saturday by winning Syrian acceptance of an American plan for a cease-fire line with Israel in the Golan Heights.

Reporting the breakthrough, a high official aboard Kissinger's plane said Kissinger was "very optimistic" at completing the agreement on a cease-fire line in talks with Israeli leaders here Saturday night or Sunday.

He said Kissinger will stay on in the area three or four days to try to complete the larger agreement on disengaging the forces of the two countries—a major step toward peace in the area.

Israelis and Syrians may then meet face to face for the first time in Geneva to sign the disengagement agreement, the official said. Kissinger himself would not be present in Geneva, where Syria boycotted the first round of the Middle East peace conference late last year.

The dramatic breakthrough came when Kissinger's bags were already packed to start home Saturday night.

It came in a three-and-a-half hour meeting with Syrian President Hafez Assad in which, the high American official said, Assad came "close enough" to the American plan Kissinger put forward on Thursday.

The Israelis already had the plan too, and Kissinger met with Prime Minister Golda Meir and the Israeli negotiators later Saturday night at the home of Foreign Minister Abba Eban where he hoped to win their final agreement.

Mrs. Meir and her ministers will meet with Kissinger again Sunday afternoon after the Israeli cabinet meets Sunday morning, the spokesman said.

Patricia Hearst Not Among Victims

Five SLA Members Dead In Wild Gun Battle

By JACK V. FOX

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Patricia Hearst was not in the house where five Symbionese Liberation Army members were killed in a wild gun battle with police but "General Field Marshal Cinque" of the terrorist kidnaping cult was slain, it was disclosed Saturday.

The 20-year-old heiress, granddaughter of legendary newspaper empire founder William Randolph Hearst, was presumably still alive but the mystery of her whereabouts or state of mind was still unsolved.

The five killings may have broken the back of the weird cult which was estimated never to have more than a dozen members.

After a microscopic examination of the five charred bodies found in the ashes of a yellow stucco house in a black area of south central Los Angeles Friday night, Coroner Thomas Noguchi said that Patricia Hearst was definitely not one of the victims.

Noguchi first telephoned the news to Randolph Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner, and his wife. They had been living in fear for their daughter's life since she was kidnaped by the SLA on Feb. 4.

A family spokesman said they were "emotionally numb" after the ordeal and did not want to make any statement at this time.

"They simply sat in a chair and breathed a tremendous sigh of relief," he said.

Noguchi identified four of the five persons killed in the 1,000-shot "war" involving some 500 police and FBI agents Friday.

Examination of dental charts, medical records and fingerprints established the identity of Cinque, the name used by 30-year-old Donald DeFreeze, and three more of the five bodies found in the four foot high debris. Noguchi said.

DeFreeze had claimed in "communiques" and tape recordings to be the leader of the terrorist band, formed while he was an inmate at California State Prison at Vacaville.

First jailed when he was 14, DeFreeze, a black, had a fascination for guns and bombs and a thirst for plum wine. He was the one who demanded a multi-million dollar free food program for the release of Miss Hearst and then spurned it after the Hearsts spent $2 million.

The others killed were Nancy Ling Perry, 26; Patricia "Mizmoon" Solytzsik, 24, and William Wolfe, 22. All were white.

The fifth victim wus a woman listed only as "Jane Doe." Noguchi said she definitely was not Miss Hearst and that he expected to have a positive identification by Sunday.

Miss Perry once was a junior high school cheerleader and a supporter of Sen. Barry Goldwater in his presidential bid. After working as a topless blackjack dealer, she joined the SLA movement and was regarded as its philosopher.

Miss Solytzsik attended the University of California at Berkeley on an academic scholarship and majored in French and Spanish. In her junior year she took the name "Mizmoon" from a Lesbian poem written about her and became emotionally attached to another SLA member, Camilla Hall.

Mrs. Sandburg Has Improved

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—A spokesman at St. Joseph's Hospital reported Saturday the condition of Mrs. Carl Sandburg, 91, was improved.

The wife of the famed late poet and Pulitizer Prize winner was hospitalized in the intensive care unit Thursday night.

Her physician, Dr. James Sloan, said she was suffering from a heart ailment.

Mrs. Sandburg has been living in Asheville since giving the Sandburg home and goat farm near Flat Rock to the National Park Service earlier this year.

The home, 25 miles from Asheville in the mountainous western part of the state, was opened to the public recently as a national historic site.

Carl Sandburg died in 1967.

Ford Believes House To Defeat Resolution For Nixon Impeachment

WAIMEA, Hawaii (UPI)—Vice President Gerald R. Ford expects the House Judiciary Committee to approve a resolution calling for the impeachment of President Nixon and a majority of the House to defeat it.

Here for two days of golfing and relaxation following political appearances in the islands the vice president told a news conference in Honolulu that, "when all the evidence is in, I believe the House committee might vote a resolution of impeachment, but I still think a majority of the members will not favor such a resolution."

Friday had been a busy day, with three speeches, a news conference, a meeting with top military officials, a tour of the USS Arizona memorial at Pearl Harbor and a reception at the Honolulu home of Clare Boothe Luce.

During the news conference Ford urged President Nixon to "bend over backwards" to cooperate with the committee's impeachment inquiry.

Ford added that he saw no indication that the President's ability to lead his administration has been harmed by publication of the transcripts of conversations with his aides about Watergate.

He said the impeachment hearings should also be open to the public in order to avoid distorted news leaks.

Ford planned to resume his travels Monday, with a visit to Tucoma, Wash., and a speech there to a Republican gathering.

Return Of Bus Forms Requested

The City Manager's office urged residents of the Greenville area to return their bus system questionnaires to the ECU Regional Development Institute as soon as possible so that the forms may be evaluated.

The City of Greenville and the Regional Development Institute, in an attempt to measure the need for a bus service for the Greenville area, recently mailed brief questionnaires to local households and requested that the forms be mailed back so that the material could be processed.

Program Designed For Disabled Veterans

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Sunday Editor

The Jobs Optional Program currently being conducted by the local Greenville office of the Employment Security Commission is designed to give the fullest extent of help possible to disabled military veterans, particularly veterans of Vietnam.

Conducted under the supervision of the Employment Security Commission of North Carolina, State Director John B. Fleming has this to say about the disabled veteran-help program; "A special effort is to be made during the months of March, April and May 1974, but emphasis should not be dropped after that time."

Ken Taylor, local Employment Security Commission staff member in charge of veteran affairs, indicated the emphasis would not end. "It's something we've been doing all along, and will continue to do as long as there's a need," Taylor said.

"The Jobs Optional Program," Taylor continued, "is one that works good in two ways. It gives disabled veterans more of a chance to get into jobs, and the way it's set up is also beneficial to the employer."

Basically, Taylor explained, under this program "half of the employees salary will be paid by the program while the veteran is in training. This includes both male and female veterans."

Employers are protected through a contract. Under the contract terms, in the event a disabled veteran employee quits before the expiration of the contract, the employer is given a certain number of days to take another veteran as an employee under the same contract.

"In any event," Taylor pointed out, "all referrals for disabled veterans must go through this office to qualify for this program. Any handicapped veteran can come to us for assistance in finding employment, or he or she can find employment on their own and then come to us for drawing up the necessary contract."

Another feature of the Jobs Optional Program, Taylor said, "is that veterans can also use VA benefits while in training which will supplement their income."

Although most people under this program will be younger people, primarily in the 20 to 29 age group, Taylor said "the program is also applicable to veterans with disabilities going further back than Vietnam."

On the matter of definition of a "disabled veteran," Taylor said this ranges all the way from those "with minor handicaps to major ones. Generally, however, most disabled veterans fall in between. The majority have disabling handicaps that will not keep them from carrying out average work duties."

Taylor said the local Employment Security Commission is anxious to do everything possible to help disabled veterans—as well as others in need of employment.

"One important thing," Taylor said, "is for these people to come in to see us, to talk to us. We're hopeful that disabled veterans needing employment or interested in the Jobs Optional Program will come by the Employment Security Commission office to discuss their situation with us."

Development Around Hospital Subject of Public Hearing

On Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the City Council chambers of city hall, the Planning and Zoning Commission will hold an informal public meeting concerning development around the new hospital.

City Planner John Schofield explained that in September of 1973, the commission received a conceptual plan to guide the future growth around the new hospital site. The area covered by this plan includes the land bordered by the Tar River, the Allen Road, the Stantonsburg Road and Memorial Drive.

Schofield pointed out that the central portion of the study area is proposed for medically-related development. He said that this area contains the site of the new Pitt Memorial Hospital as well as the current hospital site.

Areas of new commercial growth are projected at the intersections of the proposed new roads (Arlington Drive extension, the realigned N. C. 11 and the proposed relocation of U. S. 264) as shown on the Major Thoroughfare Plan. The remainder of the area is projected for residential growth, he said.

"This area is one of the fastest growing areas in Greenville," Schofield commented. "When adequate water and sewer facilities are provided, the potential of the area will only increase. It is for this reason that the Planning and Zoning Commission feels that it is important that all future growth follow a planned approach."

All of the property owners have been notified by mail of the meeting, it was noted. The commission invites comments from all interested citizens, whether they own property in the area or not, Schofield said.

After the public meeting, the commission will further redefine the plan and present it to the City Council for possible adoption as part of the comprehensive plan for the city. All future zoning decisions will be based on the plan as adopted by the City Council.

She will speak at a "Ladies' Luncheon" at the Greenville Moose Lodge at 1 p.m. Wednesday, with reservations needed, and at the Allied Health Building Auditorium at 8 p.m., a talk which is free and open to the public. Young Farmville Man Charged In Three Counts of Robbery

Kenneth Douglas Barrett, 24 of 110 West Cotton St., Farmville was charged here Friday with three robbery counts following an incident at the Universtiy Cleaners at the intersection of Fourth and Greene Streets.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Barrett alledgedly entered the business about 5:35 p.m., with his hand in a bag, told the woman attendant to give him the money and then ran from the store with $112 in cash.

Pitt Sheriff Ralph Tyson was driving past the cleaners at about that time, Chief Cannon said. The clerk ran from the store yelling she had been robbed and the sheriff gave chase and took Barrett into custody on Third Street near the Seaboard Coast Line Railroad crossing, about three blocks away.

In addition to the robbery charge lodged against him in connection with Friday's incident, Barret was also charged with robbery in connection with a theft at the Plaza Camera Shop at Pitt Plaza on April 24, and with a robbery at the Pac-A-Sac store at 1401 Dickinson Ave. on May 10.

Bond in each of the three cases was set at $1,000 according to Chief Cannon.

African Students Took Part In PTI Symposium

The first symposium on customs, culture, crops and creations of Africa was held this week at Pitt Tech.

Paul Vandi, a native of Africa and a first-year Agriculture Business student at Pitt Tech, led the symposium and was assisted by George Okine, also a native African who came to Pitt Tech a year earlier than Vandi. Upon graduation, Vandi plans to return to Africa with the Peace Corps.

Vandi stressed the point that, in America, African pictures and information in magazines, and musical selections are often either deceptive or out of date. Using a recording he had brought with him to Greenville, Vandi played authentic African music.

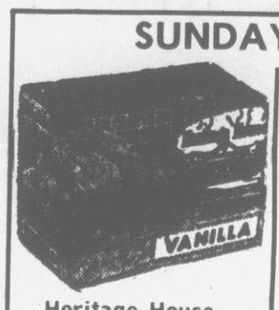

In their remarks, Vandi and Okine told of African customs, culture, agricultural crops, and creations.

Sponsored by the Agriculture Business-Data Processing class of Oral Communications, the symposium was held in the Institute's Auditorium, appropriately decorated with African art, pictures, and wood sculpture.

Nixon-Kissinger Conflict On Telephone Tap Subject

By EUGENE V. RISHER

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI)—The White House Saturday declined comment on what appears to be a conflict between President Nixon and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger over who ordered telephone taps placed on governmental officials suspected of leaking secret information to newsmen.

According to a story by Knight newspapers, a presidential tape recording shows that Nixon told John W. Dean III, his former counsel, on Feb. 28, 1973 that Kissinger had asked for the telephone taps to discover the source of leaks of national security information.

Kissinger, however, in testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee during his confirmations hearings last September, said that while he had supplied the names of people with access to sensitive information, he had "never recommended the practice of wire tapping."

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren, asked about the apparent conflict, decline to comment on what he described as such "selective leaks" from presidential tape recordings. But he did defend Kissinger's acount of the incident by saying his testimony before the Senate committee was "completely consistent with the facts."

Several members of the House Judiciary Committee who heard the Feb. 28 tape said last week that they found no significant discrepancy between it and the transcript. However, the transcript of that tape contains three notations saying "material unrelated to presidential action deleted"—one of them in the midst of a conversation about bugging.

Meantime, Nixon relaxed at a secluded island in the Bahamas as the White House kept up its campaign of criticism against the House Judiciary Committee. Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler charged for the second consecutive day that certain members of the impeachment panel were selectively leaking information in an effort to damage the President.

Despite the committee's own rules imposing silence on all 38 members, Ziegler said," there as been a cascade of prejudicial statements." He demanded again that the proceedings be open.

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — While Gov. Tom McCall acknowledges he has admonished tourists to enjoy themselves "but for heaven's sake please don't move here," because he wanted Oregon to avoid the population crunch, he acknowledges things may be going in reverse.

Oregon, in 1973, was the 11th fastest growing state in the union.

Battles Rage Near Saigon

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist rebels scored major military victories in South Vietnam and Cambodia Saturday, moving tanks to within 22 miles of Saigon and driving government defenders from yet another position along Cambodia's Highway 4, Phnom Penh's only link with the sea.

"The battle will influence the security of Saigon," South Vietnamese military command spokesman Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien said. "But I would not say the fighting will threaten the capital itself."

Three government outposts between Saigon and the district town of Ben Cat, 27 miles to the north, were overrun in the past two days. The third, An Dien, was lost to North Vietnamese tanks Friday evening, Hien said. Its 250-man garrison and 2,500 civilians fled.

Military officers said the Communists are "assured of a military victory to toast the birthday anniversary" of the late president Ho Chi Minh of North Vietnam Sunday.

Government warplanes bombed the area from the air Saturday and claimed they knocked out one Communist tank and damaged another. The tank attack on An Dien was the first ever reported in the Saigon area in Vietnam war history.

In Cambodia, Communist forces overran a 300-man government garrison on Highway 4, killing three defenders and wounding 20 others as the government side lost its 10th position on the road.

Field reporters said the latest position to fall was at Stung Samrong, 48 miles southwest of Phnom Penh. The survivors of the Communist onslaught retreated to another government position at Kompong Seila.

Frog Hopping Olympics To Draw People, Frogs

By CHARLES Mc—ADDEN
Associated Press Writer

ANGELES CAMP, Calif. (AP)—It all started back in California's Gold Rush days, when some miners began betting on whose frog could jump the farthest. Now it's become a sort of froggy olympics.

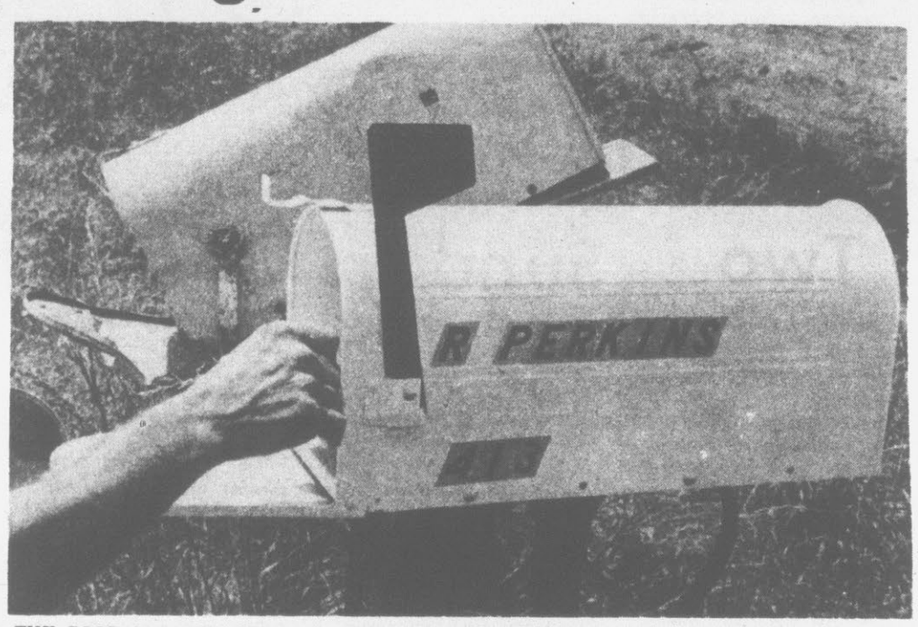

Organizers say they expect 50,000 people and 3,000 frogs to attend this weekend's Jumping Frog Jubilee, held annually in this hamlet in the Sierra foothills about 100 miles east of San Francisco.

Gov. Ronald Reagan, who keeps glass jars of jellybeans in his executive suite, has entered a frog called Jellybean VIII.

Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, running for the Republican gubernatorial nomination despite an indictment for perjury by the Watergate grand jury, has entered a frog named Jaworski, named after special Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

And California Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., running for the Democratic nomination for governor, has entered a frog named Expletive Deleted.

Mail Order Fingerlings Arrived

WINTERVILLE — Charles White of Winterville last week received the first fingerling fish sent through the mail by the U.S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife for use in a Pitt County farm pond.

Roy Beck of the Pitt Soil Conservation Service said the shipment of bass fingerlings was for use in stocking a pond on the Grimes Farm near Grimesland.

Beck said that in the past, fingerlings have been delivered by truck in an aerated water tank and famers were forced to come to the SCS district office in Greenville to receive the fish.

The fingerlings received last week were contained in a plastic bag filled with water and containing antibiotics for protection of the fingerlings.

Greenville Developers Have Filed Notice For Building Nursing Home

M. W. Aldridge, D.D.S., Phillip E. Carroll, J. H. Waldrop and others of Greenville, filed notice on May 15, 1974 of intent to incur a capital expenditure for the purpose of constructing a 120 bed nursing care facility in Greenville, on Oakmont Drive. The project is scheduled for completion in Spring 1975 and is estimated to cost $1,000,000. The proponent states that skilled nursing and related services will be provided.

The project proposal has been submitted to the North Carolina Department of Human Resources for review by planning agencies under provisions of the Social Security Amendments of 1972.

The planning agencies, in examining the proposal, will seek to determine whether the project is needed, if it can be adequately staffed and operated, whether it is economically feasible within prevailing rate structures, and if it proposes specific cost-containment features.

Copies of the proposal have been referred to the Facility Services Division of the North Carolina Department of Human Resources and to the Mid-East Health Planning Council, Washington for review, as required by federal law.

In its role as coordinator of capital expenditure reveiw under Section 1122 of the Social Security Act, the North Carolina Department of Human Resources, through its Comprehensive Health Planning Section, will receive the advice of the State and regional agencies about the conformity of the project to their standards and criteria.

The Department will then decide on the recommendation to be made to the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare concerning the project.

how to select an air conditioner.

You can save money on the original purchase and the operating cost of your air conditioner by careful selection. Here are a few ideas that will help you choose and operate an air conditioner economically:

• The cooling capacity of an air conditioner is measured in BTU's. A unit with a capacity that is too small won't keep you cool enough. One that is too large will cool too quickly and provide insufficient dehumidification, giving a cold clammy feeling. To be sure you select the proper size unit, have your dealer estimate your cooling load before you buy.

• You should also ask your dealer to explain the efficiency of the units that you consider. You will save on operating costs with more BTU's per watt. An air conditioner that removes 28,000 BTU's on 3,200 watts is twice as efficient as one rated at 14,000 BTU's and 3,200 watts. To compare units, divide watts into BTU's. The answer is in BTU's per watt, and the higher the better. This works almost like miles per gallon of gas in your car.

• Most central and window air conditioners may be operated without using the compressor. This allows you to use the fans in these units to provide economical ventilation.

• When outside temperature drops below the temperature inside, open your windows to let heat escape. Close your house tightly during the hottest part of the day. You should also keep out solar heat by closing blinds and draperies of windows exposed to direct sunlight.

• Just as insulation saves on your heating bill by keeping warmth in, good insulation also pays summer dividends by keeping heat out.

Practical Proposal For Area

Former Gov. Bob Scott proposed that a World Trade Center be established for North Carolina and a good place to locate it would be East Carolina University.

Scott saw such a center as a clearing house to coordinate efforts for promoting international trade ties with this state.

"What better place for a World Trade Center than ECU." Scott asked. He was speaking at the Conference on World Trade sponsored by ECU and the ECU Regional Development Institute.

Scott, who is executive director of the N. C. Agribusiness Council, pointed to the importance of world trade to both business and agriculture.

Where, in deed, could there be a better place for a World Trade Center than here on the ECU campus?

Eastern North Carolina is already heavily involved in world trade and our future depends on increasing trade with foreign countries. Tobacco, a mainstay crop for the east, would be in sad shape in Eastern North Carolina if it were not for the steadily increasing world market.

Texasgulf phosphate mining operations in Beaufort are rapidly expanding and the world market is an important part of its future. Imperial Tobacco Co. has it headquarters in Wilson and Burroughs-Wellcome, an international firm, has its United States plant in Greenville.

International interests are already investing in farming operations in the eastern section of the state.

Two areas where Eastern North Carolina will be deeply involved in international trade are its eastern ports and in its broad farming operations. We have already reached the era when the problem is not how to hold down farm production, but how to produce enough food to feed the population. North Carolina farms will be helping to feed the world in the years ahead. These foodstuffs and other goods meant for the international trade will be flowing through North Carolina's ports.

A World Trade Center is almost a must for North Carolina, and efforts toward establishing it should get underway immediately.

There can be no better location for it than at East Carolina University, which is the center of the area where the major developments in world trade will occur.

Slender Reed In Liddy Ploy

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The White House transcripts, otherwise so damaging to President Nixon, have confirmed that he at least attempted to break Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy's silence a year ago—thereby suggesting one shaky line of defense against impeachment.

Mr. Nixon is not revealed by the transcripts as exerting any excess of energy to crack the Watergate scandal by forcing Liddy or anybody else to talk. But he did accede, somewhat hesitantly, to the request by the Watergate prosecutors to help with Liddy. He failed, prosecutors believe, because John Mitchell was running this part of the conspiracy. Mr. Nixon had always shied away from a direct run on Mitchell who was not talking, and Liddy took orders only from Mitchell.

But the President's Liddy ploy may fit the new legalistic strategy of the White House. Even if the President's moral values emerge shredded by the transcripts, it might be argued he was not in total control and that he did finally cooperate with Justice Department efforts to break the scandal by breaking Liddy.

The President's discursive Watergate discussions with his counsel, John W. Dean III, during February and March 1973, show no interest in opening the sealed lips of Liddy or any other conspirator. On March 13, when Dean reported that White House aide Gordon Strachan was "stonewalling" the FBI, Mr. Nixon replied: "I guess he should, shouldn't he?"

Moments later, Mr. Nixon expressed admiration for the iron-disciplined Liddy, then refusing to give federal authorities the time of day. "How the hell does Liddy stand up so well?" he asked Dean. Dean's reply that Liddy's "loyalty is. . .just beyond the pale" brought more Nixon admiration: "He hates the other side too, doesn't he?" Though Mr. Nixon worried that E. Howard Hunt might crack, he knew Liddy would take the water torture before talking.

Nor did the Watergate prosecutors in the U. S. attorney's office here look to Liddy until the final stages of breaking the case in mid-April. Fearful of an impasse in their negotiations with Dean over immunity, they desperately sought an alternative witness. The fanatical Liddy would have seemed unlikely had not the prosecutors obtained information that Liddy had told Mitchell he would do whatever his superiors ordered—talk or not talk. Mitchell was his obvious "superior," but would not the President also qualify?

Thus, on Sunday evening, April 15, 1973, with the scandal cracking open, a request from the presecutors was relayed by telephone to Mr. Nixon by Assistant Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen. "A signal from you might bring the truth from Liddy," Petersen said.

The transcript indicates discomfort by the President. After Mr. Nixon protested that "I never met the man. I don't know what I can do with him," Petersen responded that he would relay the presidential signal to Liddy. Mr. Nixon changed the subject: "I get it. Uh huh. OK. Now you will be through with your things you think by 12:30. Right?" Petersen dropped the subject.

Just seven minutes later, Mr. Nixon was back on the telephone to Petersen's home with a 180-degree change in attitude: "You are to tell him (Liddy) the President wants everybody involved in this to tell everything they know." When Petersen said he would contact Liddy's lawyer in the morning, Mr. Nixon insisted "You might do it tonight. . .I don't want to stall around."

What happened during those seven minutes to so transform the President's attitude? Regrettably, there are no tapes for most Nixon office conversations of April 15. Unknown to Petersen, Nixon confidants H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman were seated with him during both those telephone conversations. Since other tapes show them seeking a presidential image as zealous Watergate investigator, it can be assumed that they urged Mr. Nixon to call Petersen right back.

They were taking no great risks. Even if Liddy should talk, he had no connection with Haldeman, Ehrlichman or the President. He could incriminate only Mitchell, and transcripts of April 14 showed this would fit the Nixon strategy.

The signal was fruitless. The prosecutors concluded Liddy would take orders only from Mitchell, and Mitchell was not cooperating.

But the President now could claim he really tried to break the case. On April 27, he told press secretary Ron Ziegler: "Since March 21st when I had that conversation with Dean, I have broken my ass to get the facts of this case. Right? Tried to get that damn Liddy to talk."

The transcripts prove that claim is inflated. But they do show Nixon agreement to at least one prosecution request and, more important, his impotency with at least one Watergate conspirator.

This question remains: why did Mr. Nixon never signal John Mitchell, his former intimate? Nevertheless the Liddy ploy gives his hard-pressed lawyers one slender reed to lean on, and for that they should be grateful.

Alma Mater Is Honoring Two

By BILL NOBLITT

DURHAM—There are two widely known black mayors of major Southern cities: Maynard H. Jackson Jr. of Atlanta, and Clarence E. Lightner of Raleigh.

Both are former students at the same North Carolina school—N. C. Central University in Durham, a predominately Negro college.

Mayor Jackson, at age 35, is Atlanta's youngest mayor, and the first black mayor, operates an insurance agency and funeral home.

Defense Fund

North Carolina national guardsmen have launched a fund-raising effort to help their colleagues in Ohio who face trial in the 1970 Kent State University shootings.

The state's National Guard Association has voted to raise $2,000 for the eight Ohio guardsmen charged in the deaths of students in the incident.

Officials of the Tar Heel guards say that raising money to help in defense does not represent an endorsement of the actions of the Ohio guardsmen in 1970, but does represent an effort to see that the men have a good defense.

"They were called out by the state, otherwise they would have all been home minding their own business," a spokesman said.

Tar Heels are being asked to meet highway officials at six public meetings scheduled across the state.

Tar Heels are being asked to meet with highway officials at six public meetings scheduled across the state for the purpose of updating the state Department of Transportation seven-year road plan.

Public meetings are set at the following locations and times:

Asheville—Humanities Hall Auditorium UNC-Asheville, 1:30 p.m., Tuesday, May 14.

Free Children

A Children's Freedom Corps set up between the American Legion statewide and the various state agencies concerned with the welfare of kids is getting geared up.

The goal is to help find better adoptive and foster home care for children in North Carolina who are already in an institution of some sort, or about to be committed.

The goal is to set up a statewide system by the end of this year to match up kids in need of special care with families located through the Legion's committee of children and youth.

In the end, homes will be sought where children can be placed instead of facing the impersonal atmosphere of institutions.

Sunday Morning Notes

Kay Joyner, secretary at ABC Moving and Storage was to be the last to leave on a recent day.

There is a high industrial fence around the parking lot of the firm, so Kay placed her car outside the fence. The remainder of the staff left and the big gate to the parking lot was locked, with Kay planning to leave by a front door.

The problem is she normally leaves by a side door which leads to the lot and, after finishing her work, she absent mindedly went through that door. It had a night latch and locked behind her.

After a moment of panic Kay surveyed the situation. There was no way back in the building and no way to unlock the gate which would let her out of the parking lot.

ALVIN TAYLOR

Finally she decided there was only one way out—that was to climb the fence. This she did, and at least one car honked the horn as it came by on the highway.

Kay made it over the fence, however, and soon was on her way home, once she made it to her car parked outside.

A coed was discussing their summer plans.

"Well, first I'm going to stretch out on the beach," the pretty young thing said. "Then towards the end of the summer I might go home for a vacation."

Well, everybody needs rest sooner or later.

Utilities commissioners were discussing whether the city or the utilities should pay the cost of extending water and sewer mains to a new section of Meadowbrook Housing Project.

Ray Minges said he felt it was the Utilities obligation to supply people in the city limits.

Director Charles Horne told the commissioners he had suggested that the city could get the money for the sewer and water lines from revenue sharing and it would

Other Editors Say Ending Quotas

(Winston-Salem Journal)

The North Carolina Democratic Executive Committee wisely has eliminated the quota system for the selection of party delegates and precinct committees. The committee's majority made its decision in light of the party's 1972 losses in the presidential, gubernatorial and senatorial elections.

Under the quota system, women, blacks, young people, and other minorities were guaranteed representation in party delegations. In implementing the quota system, however, the will of the voting majority as expressed in presidential preference primaries, was all too often ignored. As a result, voters recognized that the party organization had disregarded their wishes. When a party organization alienates the people who vote, it subjects the party nominees to public dissatisfaction.

There is an ideological, as well as a practical, reason for rejecting the quota system, and the two are interrelated. The quota system is essentially undemocratic. Representation, both in government and in political parties, should be based on all people and not on groups of people. The Constitution is premised on "We the people," not on various groups of people. Political action, as well as governmental action, should be based on what is good for all the people, not on what is good for this group of people or that group of people.

When priority is given to groups in the population rather than to the total population, the principle of representative democracy is weakened and jeopardized. Blacks and women and young people should be given responsible roles in political organizations and government, not because they are black or female or young, but because they are part of the total population. When they are chosen on the basis of color or sex or age, they will regard themselves as representative of the group rather than of all the people. And in a representative system, such as the American system under the Constitution, the only valid basis of representation is all the people. Thus elimination of the quota system does not reduce democracy, but rather promotes it.

Trade Coming Slowly

By LEONARD CURRY
UPI Business Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chinese peasants, workers and soldiers have a great desire to know about the United States and the western world, according to an American hotel executive recently back from China.

William N. Hulett, general manager of the Mayflower Hotel where the Chinese liaison mission to the United States stayed for eight months last year, said he believes this curiosity will help bring China more responsibility in world affairs in the next 25 years.

But for the immediate future, Hulett said in an interview, he believes Chinese foreign policy will continue to be restrictive, with few Chinese traveling abroad and even fewer Americans inside the Middle Kingdom. So any trade between China and the West probably will evolve slowly.

Hulett, a 30-year-old executive of Western International Hotels, which is contract manager of the privately owned Mayflower, was invited to China as a "friend of the people." The Montana native believes he may be the first American in 25 years to visit China strictly as a tourist.

Hulett, his wife Penny and the owners of the Mayflower — Mr. and Mrs. D.F. Antonelli and Mr. and Mrs. U.S. Auger — spent 18 days in China during January and February.

The trip was a result of the friendship Hulett developed with the 40 members of the liaison mission on their April, 1973 arrival in the United States following President Nixon's historic visit to China in early 1973.

"The basic person's knowledge, perception of what the world outside China is like is very slight, and often times incorrect," he said. "They felt the unemployment rate in the United States was

INVITED TO CHURCH

A man on his way to church one Sunday noticed a neighbor standing on the sidewalk outside of the building listening rather wistfully to the sound of singing coming out of the windows. The man invited the neighbor to attend the service. He did so, and later became an outstanding leader in the church.

In later years he told the man who had issued the invitation that when he had first arrived in the city, the dairy man, the letter carrier, the trash collector, and the property assessor looked him up, but no one ever asked him to church, even though many people in the neighborhood were members.

One might think that one shouldn't have to be asked to attend church; it should be apparent that all churches are open to all who wish to attend. But many people are shy and feel that a church is a kind of club which they should not enter without an invitation. So the next time you go to church, ask a neighbor to accompany you.

Not Deterred By High Interest

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — High as they are, those rising interest rates being reported day after day are even higher than is immediately obvious, in some instances by very substantial, and for some borrowers, critical amounts.

The situation is causing considerable fear and frustration among corporate borrowers and some lenders, too. And to some, real distress.

The prime lending rate for the best corporate customers is now between 11.25 and 11.40 per cent at big national banks, but relatively few customers receive those rates. More likely they pay close to 14 per cent.

The reason is a custom called the compensating balance that equires corporate borrowers to keep on deposit—earning no interest—between 10 to 20 per cent of the loan's face value. In theory, this compensates the lender for various services—advice, collection, bookkeeping and the like.

The added expense for borrowers doesn't end there. The treasurer of a well known multinational corporation explained:

"It is difficult for a company to maintain the precise compensating balance so you try to keep a bit more on deposit. And that means your effective rate is higher still."

Interviews with bankers and borrowers indicate that rates are even higher for many companies. Sound but not prime borrowers generally must pay 1 or 2 per cent over the stated prime rate.

Thus, some concerns now are paying more than 15 per cent to borrow from banks, and 20 per cent or more to borrow from big finance companies that offer loans secured by equipment and accounts receivable.

Even at bank rates in excess of 15 per cent, many corporate borrowers still cannot be certain that rising borrowing costs end there.

Traditionally, when a company borrowed at a specified interest rate it could be certain that its money costs would be a certain number of dollars for a certain period of time. That certainly no longer exists.

To reduce their risk during these unprecedented and unpredictable interest rate increases, many banks have introduced a flexible prime rate. When the prime rises for new loans, it also rises on existing ones.

Another technique is the disposition of some big lenders, such as life insurance companies, to demand not only an interest return but a piece of the action as well.

Builders are especially familar with this practice, in which the lender obtains a share of the building's rental income as a condition of making the loan.

When a company declines to pay high rates, or is refused money, it still has an option open: It can finance itself through equity, by selling an interest in the company rather than borrowing.

For many companies, however, this escape temporarily has been shut off. The equity markets are also in poor shape, since investors for the time being seem to prefer lending money at high rates and realtively low risk. New issues of stock are selling poorly, if at all.

While smaller companies, especially those hoping to

Confident In U.S. Future

PRINCETON, N.J.—While confidence in the nation's leadership—both at the presidential and congressional levels—is probably at the lowest ebb in this century, confidence in the future of the United States remains high. As many as seven in 10 Americans (68 per cent) express a high degree of confidence in the nation's future.

Sharp differences, however, emerge on the basis of major population groups. For example, far fewer blacks (45 per cent) than whites (72 per cent) express confidence in the nation's future.

Age, sex, and level of formal education are also factors. A bare majority (53 per cent) of persons between the ages of 18 and 29 express "quite a lot" of confidence, compared to 72 per cent among the 30 to 49-year-old group, and 75 per cent among the 50 and older group.

Women are slightly less optimistic about the nation's future than are men, 64 per cent saying "quite a lot" of confidence, compared to 72 per cent among men.

Most Informed Most Likely To Be Confident

The most informed group in the population—those with a college background—are also the most likely to register a strong vote of confidence in the future of the nation. Nearly eight in 10 (77 per cent) of persons with a college background indicate they have "quite a lot" of confidence in the future of their country, compared to 66 per cent among those with a high school background and 63 per cent among those whose formal education has been limited to grade school.

A cross-analysis of the survey findings by demographic groups shows that persons most likely to say they have "quite a lot" of confidence in the future of the United States are men, 50 years of age or older, white, with at least a high school education or better. As many as nine in 10 in this group register the highest degree of confidence.

In sharp contrast, those least likely to say they have "quite a lot" of confidence in the future of the nation are persons between the ages of 18 and 29, black, with less than a college background. Only about one in four in this group expresses a high degree of confidence.

'Hard To Muster Enthusiasm'

Among those who are worried about the future of the nation is a 35-year-old waitress: "We've been in a depressing situation for the past several years and it's hard to muster your enthusiasm after you've been held down so long."

A 30-year-old counselor at a mental health clinic in Kentucky said: "Our basic strength is open communication and individual rights. I am frightened by attacks on these rights."

A 58-year-old housewife from New York admitted: "I feel insecure because there seem to be many factions in this country, each promoting their own interests and not concerned with the general welfare."

Difficult Times Seen As Unifying Force

A common theme among those expressing a high degree of confidence is that difficult times bring people closer together. Others in the survey take heart from the fact that the nation has survived and been revitalized by earlier periods of stress in its history.

Here is what a 40-year-old salesman from Wausau, Wis., said: "Despite what some people try to tell you, democracy and the free enterprise system are still alive and well, changing to fit the times and needs of the nation."

Said a 50-year-old Bethesda, Md., housewife: "Watergate is a blessing in disguise. From now on, all of us are going to be more alert to the excesses that can rise in the field of politics."

"I'm pinning my hopes on the younger generation. I'm counting on them to bring the nation fresh ideas, as well as some idealism," said a young Pennsylvania housewife.

Congress Receives Low Rating

This survey on confidence in the future of the nation was recorded at a time when ratings of Congress and of the President are at low points.

Only about one-third of all voters (30 per cent) in a recent nationwide Gallup survey say they approve of the way the Congress is handling its job. Nearly half (47 per cent) say they disapprove, while another 23 per cent are undecided.

The same survey shows the approval rating given President Nixon to be 25 per cent, matching his previous low point to date—and only 2 points above the lowest point recorded for any President since the beginning of modern polling in the mid-'30s.

Two out of three of those who disapprove of Nixon's performance also express "quite a lot" of confidence in the nation's future—not far below the proportion who hold this view nationally.

issue public shares for the first time, have been having a tough time of it, some of the larger companies also have been forced to postpone or reduce stock offerings.

The home buyer, too, has been affected by the tendency for true borrowing costs to exceed posted rates. Mortgage lenders increasingly seek to have borrowers become depositors too—at a lower interest rate than they could get elsewhere.

Lenders also are inclined to reserve the right to refinance mortgages at the end of five years, thus escaping the usual 20-year commitment at a set rate that has been traditional with mortgages.

Although not new by any means, points are common on mortgages today. When interest rates rise above state usury laws or the upper limits of government backed mortgage rates, a lender has a choice: Stop making loans or charge points.

A point is 1 per cent of the loan, paid at the time of the transaction, by either the buyer or seller. Nobody, it seems, is entirely exempt from the consequences of a distorted money market.

A Conservative View Depicts Deterioration Of Our Criminal Law

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

LOS ANGELES—Our criminal law has fallen into a condition that may charitably be described as chaotic. That is the judgment rendered by a California jurist in a brilliant book scheduled for publication this month. The book is "The Price of Perfect Justice," by Judge Macklin Fleming of the Court of Appeal of California. As you love the law, do not miss this work.

Judge Fleming's thesis goes to this effect: The highest appellate courts in the nation have become so obsessed with "the perfect trial" that they have lost sight of the fair trial. As one consequence, our system of criminal law is bogged down in a swamp of legalisms, technicalities, and judicial booby traps. In this morass, the fundamental question of guilt tends to disappear. The goddess of justice finds herself holding a pair of cockeyed scales and an impotent sword.

That is too brief a summary of a devastating work of criticism. Other writers on the law tend to single out particular areas for comment, and some of these other writers make clean hits. Judge Fleming's book is a grand slam homer: He clears all the bases. It is a fair observation on most lawyers, judges and law professors that they write turgid stuff; it is as if their pens had been dipped in library paste. Judge Fleming, by contrast, writes crisply and lucidly. Even the most untutored laymen can read this book with profit.

The California jursit, now 62, writes from a lifetime in court, both at the bar and on the bench. Graduated from Yale Law School in 1937, he practiced briefly in New York, then migrated to California after World War II. There he began the general practice of law, specializing in trial work. He has known both sides of the courtrooms of Los Angeles, as an assistant prosecutor and a public defender. He served five years as a trial judge on the Superior Court for Los Angeles County, and ten years ago took his place among the 20 justices who make up the Second District of the Court of Appeal of California.

It is from this vantage point, as an appellate judge required to interpret the mandates of his judicial superiors, that Judge Fleming has witnessed the maddening deterioration of our criminal law. He and his colleagues have become, in effect, umpires for the games defendants play. Daily they are compelled to give practical effect to the bizarre theories handed down from above.

Judge Fleming dryly describes the delaying tactics that impede criminal justice. These he terms "sidetracking" and "mainlining." The defense lawyer who elects to sidetrack a prosecution may begin by attacking the arrest warrants, or the composition of the grand jury, or the qualifications of the judge. A lawyer may then attack the constitutionality of the law itself, or contend that excessive publicity prevents a fair trial, or appeal from preliminary rulings. Once a case gets back on the main line, the prosecution can be slowed to a crawl by a dozen other delaying motions.

Conviction and sentence no longer mark a terminal point. A defendant found guilty in a state tribunal needs only to cry "due process" or "equal protection" or "retroactivity" in order to leap into the federal courts for review. Defense lawyers have been given great balls of twine, and they have learned to tie justice into knots.

Judge Fleming's book is polemic in its spirit, but restrained in its tone. He lets the appalling facts speak for themselves. His concern is for the blindfolded woman with the sword and the scales: "Each time the criminal process is thwarted by a technicality that does not bear on the innocence or guilt of the accused, we trumpet abroad the notion of injustice; and each time a patently guilty person is released, some damage is done to the general sense of justice."

He urges a return to trials that are swift, fair, and final. He wants more attention paid to substance and less to mere ritual. And he wants judges to serve as judges instead of as legislators, policy-makers, super school boards, or smart-alecks. This is a sockdolager of a book. One hopes Justices Douglas, Brennan and Marshall, for starters, find time to read it.

Federal Reserve Board Tight Credit Policy Is Fairly Well Supported

By GEORGE BRYANT

WASHINGTON—Guessing how long the Federal Reserve Board will be able to maintain its tight credit policy is a popular game these days.

The Fed has tried this inflation control in the past and, frankly, without what can be called any great success. One of the prime reasons for failure is that once the economy really begins to feel the squeeze, politics come into play and the Fed has been forced off course—forced to relax.

But this time around, observers think they detect a difference. The Fed, indeed, is talking a tougher line. And it seems to be getting more than usual support in Congress, where the notion is seeping through that unless something is done to curb rising prices the consequences, in terms of recession or even worse, can be serious.

Also, White House policy is giving the Fed some measure of support. There is a downhold on spending, although it is far from tight. But there are also efforts to insulate the home building industry from the impact of tight money. This, without question, will aid the Fed in sticking by its guns.

Housing usually is the first victim of tight credit. As interest rates move up, savers look for better returns on their funds. Money is shifted from the home mortgage market to other investments. The result has been quick political pressure on the Fed to ease up in order to get housing, a force in the economy, moving up again.

To avoid a real credit-induced crunch in housing the government, in varied ways, is pumping about $10-billion into the home mortgage market, with what amounts to an interest subsidy. The result should be at least a mild stimulant for housing at a time when money for other purposes is tight and costly.

Some Washington authorities are guessing that there will be no general relaxation in Fed policy this year. In fact, some Federal Reserve sources say that credit is going to have to remain tight for two-to-three years if the rate or inflation is to be slowed in any important way and eventually brought under control.

This, of course, does not mean that the Fed will be following a truly rigid course. There will be times when it will have to pump funds into the credit system to prevent rates on Treasury and other borrowing from skyrocketing. The object is described as being a withholding at least some of the credit which would be necessary to finance today's lofty inflation rate.

In terms of the over all economy, the Fed is represented as feeling that a period of "no growth" is desirable for a few quarters, at least, unless this brings on a sudden and unacceptable climb in unemployment. Right now, unemployment is holding around 5 per cent, a figure which will bring some screams from Congress in this election year. But in terms of hardship, its not a difficult figure to live with. In fact, a 6 per cent rate would not be regarded as grossly unacceptable on present conditions.

But the credit policy is bound to keep the economy under a heavy cloud of uncertainty. There is the danger, of course, that the Fed could hit the brakes too hard and throw things in to a down spin. The Fed has no dependable yardstick against which it can measure the likely consequences of its actions with any great certainty.

So far, the high interest policy has failed to bring about the hoped-for shrinkage in demand for bank loans. But the banks are being put under increasing pressure to take a more cautious approach on credit applications. This means that loans will become increasingly harder for businesses to obtain. There's speculation of a 12 per cent prime rate.

But there is no doubt that high interest rates are blunting capital expansion plans a bit. Some companies, including utility companies, have had to modify and even abandon plans to tap the long term bond and debenture market.

Latest projections for the remainder of the year show economists still divided on the outlook. But there is a rather substantial body of opinion that the worst of the downturn, much of it tied to the energy crisis and to housing weakness, is over. They see a leveling, and then an upturn as the year wears on.

But it is going to be an uncertain time. Watergate hurts and the Democratic Congress is reluctant to face up to the deficit problem, which is force behing inflation.

Hulett said there seemed to be no aspiration for material gains, but there was a "peer group pressure tension on your role in the Communist party. Holshouser Laughs Off Any Higher Ambitions

By JOHN KILGO

It has been rumored for months that Gov. Jim Holshouser has higher political ambitions, but the Governor laughed this off when asked about it ten days ago on a trip to Jacksonville, Fla.

A radio newsman got this reply from Gov. Holshouser when he asked the question: "I've only been Governor of North Carolina for a little over a year, and it was 72 years since we had another Republican Governor. There were a lot of changes that I saw were necessary when I served in the Legislature. I have my hands full as Governor, and that's certainly my role now."

Gov. Holshouser also said in that interview that he hopes the American people realize how important it is for the Republican Party to maintain "its healthy balance in the Congress. George Meany and some others are determined to get that congressional dictatorship they're always talking about. I don't think that would be good for the country."

The reporter asked some rather soft questions about Watergate, and Gov. Holshouser said he didn't want to be put in a position of "defending the Watergate episodes. I think they were wrong and I think they were misguided."

Robert Morgan spent a couple of days on the telephone last week calling people around the state thanking them for the support he received in the U. S. Senate race. Many Morgan billboards across the state were purchased until June 1, in case a runoff would have been necessary. His picture will be prevalent for a couple of more weeks, but the Senate campaign really won't get jumping until Labor Day.

Charlotte City Councilman Milton Short was the easy Democratic winner in the primary for the 9th Congressional seat, now held by Republican Jim Martin. Short didn't do much in the primary, but he says he'll unload the works against Martin in the fall.

"I feel it's my duty to talk to voters in this district about Watergate," Short said. "It's the only way the people down here have of registering their disgust over what happened."

When Martin defeated Jim Beatty for the congressional seat two years ago, he said repeatedly during the campaign "that a vote for me is two votes for President Nixon."

Short says he plans to remind voters of that many times during the campaign. But reporters often remind Short that he contributed $50 to Martin's 1972 political race. To that, Short says: "It was a mistake."

A Tar Heel Democrat, just back from Washington, says the only thing the town is talking about "is who will be in Ford's cabinet. . ."

School Mix Is Still Sore Point In Town's Racial Harmony

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer

SUMMERTON, S.C. (AP) — Joseph Richburg rested his arms on the back of a barber's chair, fixed his eyes on the narrow, quiet downtown street, and said, "It is amazing to see how the blacks and the whites get along so good in everyday life, but when you mix them in the schools — BOOM."

Richburg is black. He is chairman of the school board in this Clarendon County community of 6,500.

Just twenty years ago the U.S. Supreme Court handed down its decision outlawing school segregation in a case from the Summerton school district and others.

Two decades ago there were schools for blacks and schools for whites. Today, there are only three white youths attending Summerton's public schools. More than 400 whites are enrolled at the private Clarendon Hall Academy, nestled in a grove of pines on the outskirts of the town.

Richburg, soft-spoken silverhaired owner of a small barbershop, said in an interview, "things are better now than they once were, but there's plenty of room for improvement.

"We have no racial problems in this town. The white and blacks work good together. But the white people just don't want to desegregate the schools," he said.

Richburg removed his glasses and wiped at a spot on the lens, and in a soft voice said, "I got a feeling one day we'll have the whites back in the schools. It may not be too far off. It should happen and I think it will happen. Sometimes it takes the white people time to adjust to change."

Billy DuBois is the mayor of this east-central South Carolina community, a contractor by trade, and proud of what he calls the "law-abiding citizens of this place, both the blacks and the whites."

DuBois was planning to do some fishing on one sunny afternoon this week at nearby Lake Marion. He delayed the outing today, "We get along better here, I mean the blacks and the whites, than any place I know of. It is a peaceful town, you can see that yourself."

DuBois admitted, however, this spirit of trust and cooperation disappeared when desegregation of the schools was involved.

He has a young daughter, not old enough for school, and observed, "I can't say why parents with school-age children don't send them to public school. I'm not in that position as yet."

C.A. Ridgeway is chief of police and he has a four-man force, two blacks, two whites.

"There are never any racial problems here," he said.

Will there ever be full desegregation of the schools, and an end to the private school approach?

"I don't know, I just don't know," he said.

Several white citizens, none who wanted to be quoted by name, said the reason for the white flight to the private school was simply a matter of percentages.

One said, "If the ratio was even 50-50, I might consider sending my kids to the public schools. Now, the way it adds up, they would be outnumbered 6-1 or maybe 7-1 by blacks.

"The real answer is freedom of choice. When we had that approach there 25 or maybe more black children in the school system. Nothing wrong with that. But when you have 400 or 500 white children going to school with 2,000 blacks, we can't stand it."

B.O. Butler, the 48-year-old district school superintendent, a black, took a deep puff off his pipe, and said, "As far as I know there are excellent race relations in Summerton. I guess the white parents won't send their children to the public school system because of the large number of blacks. Why they feel this way, I don't understand.

"I hope one day it will come to completely mixed schools, where our children work and study together as our adults now do," he said.

Butler said it was difficult to get approval of an increase in school taxes because most of the whites send their children to the private schools, or to nearby Manning, where the black-white ratio is far lower than Summerton.

Of the 6,500 residents of Summerton, about 5,200 are black.

Only three whites attend the public school; one of 105 teachers and four of 12 administrators are white.

Butler, a graduate of South Carolina State College, said, "We have enough money to just get by, no more. We have maintained a complete program, but with no frills. Our biggest problem is getting the voters to approve an increase in taxes to help the schools."

Summerton isn't a wealthy area to begin with. A two-year-old survey ranked it 75th among the state's 93 school districts in potential revenue.

E.C. Covan, owner of a small grocery store and a retired Air Force pilot, sends his three children to public school and says, "I spent 21 years with Uncle Sam, all over the earth. I rubbed elbows with every kind of person, and found people are only people, no matter what color they are."

Butler said, "Those three white students get along great with the other children. There are no disciplinary problems. They get along as if they had been together with the blacks all of their lives."

'Community Standards' Set By Movie Attendance

EDITOR'S NOTE — X-rated movies and adults-only bookstores have sprung up throughout the country in recent years. Once confined to sleazy city neighborhoods, they migrated first to the suburbs and now to small-town America. In Harlan, Iowa, X-rated movies are shown once a month. There was protest last year, but that's disappeared.

By TERRY RYAN
Associated Press Writer

HARLAN, Iowa (AP) — "I'm setting my standards at the box office," says Al Woodraska, owner of the Harlan Theater, the only movie house in town. "That's what pays the bills."

To help pay the bills, Woodraska is showing X-rated movies once a month. "Midnight Plowboy" did good business in April. "Teen-age Bride" is the next X-rated attraction.

Harlan is a farm town and county seat, a community of white houses and front porches pocketed in the gentle hills of western Iowa. The telephone book lists 20 taverns, 28 churches and 43 farm equipment and feed dealers. Last year, X-rated movies drew pickets from the local Baptist church and city council condemnation in this town of 4,049. This year there hasn't been a ripple.

"Last Tango in Paris," critically acclaimed and X-rated, set a box office record — $379.90 in four days — at the Harlan Theater in March.

Harlan and its theater are far from unique. With increasing frequency, X-rated films are flashing flesh across the screens of drive-ins and movie houses in small-town America.

"Hot Month in August" hit the Carthage, Miss., drive-in in April. "The Cheerleaders" ran for two days in Baker, Ore. And the citizens of Hooksett, N.H., had a chance to see "Chesty" Morgan, a burlesque queen of substantial portion, in "Deadly Weapons."

"People say they don't want X-rated movies, but they sure support them," said Woodraska. "It's the only thing they'll come and pay for. It's just that simple."

It is not just that simple to everyone in Harlan. There are people who don't like X-rated movies, period, and some who object to having them shown in their town. Most, however, are willing to live with it.

"As of today, the community standard is, 'We'll tolerate it,'" said the Shelby County Attorney, John Sawin. "If you don't have any complaints, you assume the community is satisfied. I haven't had a single complaint."

"Well, we've probably got some people that don't agree with them," said Glen Hansen, barber and bartender. "But to tell the truth, it's never been brought up much lately. They don't even talk about it."

In days gone by, the local movie house was the entertainment center of small town America. Color TV and network movies have changed that. TV sets glow in the night and blank marquees stare down on Main Street. X-rated movies are keeping some alive.

"It's just one of those things," said Glen. "It's changing. Always has, always will. Sometimes you wonder about it. Then you figure, the good old days—people wouldn't want them back either."

The red, white and blue lights of the Harlan Theater glimmer at twilight in the southwest corner of the square. Woodraska has a small office upstairs behind the projection booth. Stashed in a corner are the gold shoes, bow tie and straw hat he wears on Saturday. As "Uncle Al," he gives away jump ropes and yo-yos at the matinee.

Woodraska, who took over the theater last June, several months after the protest, reached for the books. He is 39 and the father of three children. The blond hair is deserting the front of his scalp. He wears tooled leather boots and a striped sport shirt.

"We did all right from June to September. We were making ends meet. But since then....

"Look at this. 'Bang the Drum Slowly,' a good picture for everyone. Zero one night, no one came, and here, 'Day of the Jackal,' one of the big picture of the year. Sunday was $44.50, Monday was zero and Tuesday we did $24.50.

"I waited and business still didn't pick up. So then I wrote a letter to the ministers telling them I was going to bring in the X-rated pictures. It just seemed that this was what the people wanted."

On the first Sunday-Monday-Tuesday of March, the feature at the Harlan Theater was "The New Land," a story of immigrant staking out a new life in 19th century America. Eighty-one people came and Woodraska had $88.80 left after paying film rental.

On the same three days in April, the feature was "Midnight Plowboy," the X-rated tale of a farm boy in the big city. It drew 160 people and there was $151 in the till after film rental.

Lowell Holmes, an insurance agent, was elected mayor in January. Like many in Harlan, the only concern he voices is that people under 18 might get in to see the X-rated movies.

"That's the one big objection," he said. "I don't know how you can tell me if I'm 16 or 26. And how difficult is it to get a fake ID"

X-rated movies have not really become acceptable in Harlan, said the mayor, not socially and morally acceptable.

"Allowed would be a better word," he said.

Mayor Holmes was walking across the square, headed for the courthouse. Doc Early came out of the Harlan Bakery. Charles "Doc" Early is moderator at the First Baptist Church, a member of the city council and one of Harlan's six practicing veterinarians.

The laws and the courts are part of the problem, Doc said. "If they legalize it or fail to illegalize it, it becomes possible to show it against public sentiment. There's no way to enforce it."

Something has changed in Harlan, said Doc Early, but not all that much.

"People haven't changed since Christ's time or before," he said. "It's, well, I suppose it's the eroding away of our resistance to this sort of thing. Then again, people in my generation have a lot of hangups as far as sex is concerned. And is that good?"

The building that houses the Harlan Theatre was built in 1882. Half hidden behind the marquee is an engraved stone block: "Long's Opera House."

Blanche Tank, who lives in an apartment above the theater, can remember when touring stage companies stopped to entertain the populace. She is 83.

"Well, I've seen it coming for several years now," said Mrs. Tank. "People are just kind of passive about it. They don't ...I don't know whether they are too busy with too many things or what. A lot of people don't take time to think about things anymore.

"Everything is so different now," she said. "I just don't get too excited about it anymore." →

Make Paper Of Corn Starch

CHICAGO (AP) — A new method for making paper from corn starch was recently reported in Prairie Farmer, one of the nation's leading rural magazines.

The magazine says chemists at the USDA Northern Regional Research Laboratory in Peoria, Ill., have developed the corn starch derivative as a stable ready-to-use liquid. Paper made from this particular type of starch can be recycled, thus conserving timber and reducing costs.

Corn Belt Blues: Farmers Can't Find Fertilizer

By DENNIS MONTGOMERY
Associated Press Writer

FARMER CITY, ILL. (AP) — Here in the corn belt, spring planting is in full swing. But farmers are grumbling that they can't get enough nitrogen fertilizer to sow the bumper corn crop predicted by the U.S. government.

"There's nothing they can do about it," says Lew West, one of the 200 farmers who purchase fertilizer from his Farmer City Grain, Fertilizer and Chemical Co. Because of the energy crisis, the natural gas in nitrogen fertilizer has been in short supply. West had to cut back his customers to "20 per cent of what we sold them last year."

Without nitrogen fertilizer, the corn planted per acre must be reduced, sacrificing the high yield needed for a bumper crop. Or farmers can switch to soybeans, which don't need nitrogen, the scarcest of the major fertilizer ingredients.

Many farmers in Indiana, Iowa and Illinois — the corn belt states — say they are making the switch to soybeans, either because they can't get the fertilizer or it's too expensive.

"We're selling for $185 a ton and we hear of prices on up as high as $400 a ton," West said. "Last year we sold for $75 to $85 a ton."

Exports cut heavily into 1973's record 5.6 billion bushel harvest. As a result, stocks of corn, the staple livestock fattener, are 15 per cent below last year's level and the price has risen from $1.65 to $2.60 a bushel for mid-May delivery. That has driven up beef prices, too, and many livestock producers have reduced their herds until corn prices drop.

Prices should drop, according to the experts, if October's corn harvest is 6.7 billion bushels, as the U.S. Agriculture Department predicts.

Edwin Harre of the Agriculture Department's National Fertilizer Center in Muscle Shoals, Ala., says the 6.7 billion bushels is probable because "we don't look for the nitrogen fertilizer shortfall to be more than 4 or 5 per cent at the most."

To this Edwin Wheeler of the Fertilizer Institute in Washington, an industry association, replies: "Farmers can expect no more than 85 per cent of the nitrogen they need." That could reduce the estimated corn crop by nearly one billion bushels.

The National Corn Growers Association has estimated a 1974 harvest of 6.1 billion bushels.

Richard Stone, who farms 1,400 acres near Bradfordton, feels from his own experience that the Agriculture Department's corn harvest expectations are too optimistic. In interviews, other corn belt farmers agreed with Stone because of the fertilizer problem.

Stone has purchased 75 per cent of the nitrogen fertilizer he wants at $195 a ton, triple what he paid last year. Because of the shortage, he's sowing only 700 acres in feed corn instead of the 1,000 he planted last year.

"There's no point in going on without nitrogen," Stone says. He'll plant soybeans in those 300 acres.

The 39-year-old farmer, tilling land that has been in the family more than 150 years, thinks that early planting in the Midwest this year — in expectation of a dry spell — might have put "too much pressure on the fertilizer market."

Last year, planting was delayed a month, until late May, because of heavy rains.

In the Wabash River Country near Carmi, a black market developed in nitrogen fertilizer. Bill Lamont, a fertilizer dealer, said that when his regular nitrogen supplier failed him, "about the only thing left to do was to buy some of this black market material."

Lamont sold to 15 old customers at $370 a ton. "The rest said that if they have to pay that kind of price they'll just go to planting beans instead of corn."

Arkansan Fulbright Sees Toughest Election Fight

BILL FULBRIGHT, essentially a scholar, finds himself engaged in his strongest Senate challenge since 1944. (UPI Telephoto)

By ROBERT CAREY

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — On a clear November afternoon more than 50 years ago young Bill Fulbright took the snap from center and broke quickly to his right, about 15 yards from the SMU goal line.

He stopped suddenly and lobbed "a little old nothing pass" to his right end, Homer Berry, all alone in a corner of the end zone. Berry caught it easily and Arkansas, fueled chiefly by the running, passing and field goal kicking of halfback Fulbright, went on to defeat the highly favored Southern Methodist University Mustangs 9-0 to win the school's first homecoming game.

It was Arkansas' biggest football victory in the history of the university in those early days and Bill Fulbright was the man of the hour.

"Fayetteville tonight is a howling mass of maniacs," said the first paragraph of the story about the game the following day in the Nov. 19, 1922, Sunday edition of the Arkansas Gazette.

So it was that at age 17 Bill Fulbright—better known today as Sen. J. William Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee — became an authentic Arkansas hero. He has never really looked back since. In his senior year Fulbright was named a Rhodes Scholar for three years study at Oxford. At Oxford's Pembroke College he was on the tennis team and won his half blue at lacrosse. After Oxford he graduated second in a class of 135 at Washington University Law School.

Youngest Rhodes Scholar

At 19, Fulbright was the youngest scholar ever to win the Rhodes appointment. At 34 he was named president of the University of Arkansas, the youngest president in the school's history and at the time the youngest university president in the country.

Then came election to Congress, the Senate and the final congealing into J. William Fulbright, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, gadfly to presidents, one of the chief architects of the downfall of Joseph McCarthy and disengagement from South Vietnam.

In 1943, while still in the House, he drafted and saw passed a one-sentence resolution calling for establishment of the United Nations. In 1946 the Fulbright student fellowship program was established and his name became a household word in academic circles.

Walter Lippman was one of Fulbright's warmest admirers but to President Truman Fulbright was just "an overeducated Oxford S.O.B." Other presidents have had similar uncomplimentary names for him.

At one point Fulbright was the only man in the Senate to vote against financing Sen. McCarthy's Communist witch hunts. He called the Wisconsin senator "a boodler" and "a fraud and a dangerous man." McCarthy responded by dubbing Fulbright "Senator Halfbright" which was used by other detractors from time to time thereafter.

Strongest Challenge

Essentially a scholar who treasures his moments of reflective solitude, Fulbright in this spring of 1974 finds himself engaged vocally and publicly in easily the strongest challenge he has faced for re-election since he first came to the Senate in 1944.

Gov. Dale L. Bumpers, who rolled up the largest mandate ever accorded an Arkansas governor in his two terms, is the challenger. By all pre-voting indications Bumpers holds an advantage and Fulbright is campaigning hard to close it before the May 28 primary.

Fulbright and Bumpers are the only two contestants in that primary and whoever wins is sure to be the junior senator from Arkansas. There is Republican opposition but it is not considered a threat to the winner of the Democratic primary.

The Senator is campaigning hard, as for instance one warm May afternoon at Smith's Used Car Lot in Conway, Ark.

There is sweat on the brows of many of those seated on hay bales scattered about the lot and enjoying fresh fried catfish, french fries, baked beans and iced tea, courtesy of the Faulkner County Fulbright Campaign Committee.

No Folksiness

It is an interesting crowd. Lots of men in work clothes, straw hats and long sleeved shirts rolled up above sunburned and tattooed forearms. Pipe smokers in sport coats with padded elbows. Some professors from Conway's two colleges. Also housewives, kids, garage mechanics in grease smeared coveralls and long-haired college Joes in numeral jerseys and cut off jeans.

Fulbright arrives. He could be dressed for an afternoon tea at the Belgian Embassy. The gray glen plaid suit is freshly pressed. The blue checked tie is knotted firmly under the blue on white pin-striped dress shirt. The shoes are black and polished. The dark rimmed glasses are in place (no fooling with contacts), no open-collared attempt at youthfulness or folksiness. Here is Senator Fulbright of Arkansas, the same on stage as off, be it a conference on the Middle East with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger or a catfish fry on a Conway used car lot.

He moves slowly through the crowd, speaking to groups of twos and threes seated or standing around the hay bales, then on down the line of people waiting for catfish. "I'm glad to see you," he says to each one. "I'm glad you've come."

An old fellow, teeth long gone and no dentures to fill the gaps, smacks the last juices from an empty catfish backbone and tells the Senator, "You're doin' a fine job, Bill; we're all for you."

"Thank you," says Sen. Fulbright. "Thank you very much. I appreciate that." He shakes the old man's hand, smiles and moves on.

Fulbright's Style

Had that been Dale Bumpers shaking the old man's hand he would have gotten his name, used it two or three times in conversation, inquired if the man had any relatives by that name in some other county and more likely than not come up with a better than average anecdote about some mutual acquaintance. That is Bumper's style and it is effective. That is not Fulbright's style.

Mrs. Eleanor Spitz, a lively redhead who worked zealously in Bumpers' two gubernatorial campaigns in 1970 and 1972, is now dishing out catfish just as zealously for Fulbright.

"Senator Fulbright has always been my senator," Mrs. Spitz said. "He stood the way I stood on things. He spoke for me. I voted for him before I ever heard of Dale Bumpers.

"I worked very hard for Bumpers. He has been a good governor and I won't listen to those who try to tell me he hasn't. But I wish he'd stayed governor. The sad thing is that Arkansas will lose no matter who wins this election.

"I could never switch from Fulbright to Bumpers. It would be disloyal."

The dilemma of Mrs. Spitz points up a common problem in this campaign; divided loyalties. A majority of Arkansas voters have supported both men in past elections and now they must make a choice.

Family Split

W. Christopher Barrier, a Little Rock lawyer, is one of those who opted to back Bumpers and is a precinct coordinator for the governor. "Frankly, on his record alone, Gov. Bumpers has been more progressive and more effective than Sen. Fulbright," Barrier said. He said Fulbright "has been a fine senator" but, "there comes a time when you should step aside and let a younger man have the job."

Barrier's wife, Emily, is a volunteer worker in Fulbright's headquarters. It's the first time that he and his wife, both active in politics, have ever split on a candidate. "She just hopes I'll come to my senses before it's too late," Barrier said, smiling.

Fulbright at 69 is 20 years older than Bumpers, who looks even younger with his boyish cowlick and full-toothed grin. Fulbright himself appears in excellent health, jogs almost every morning and watches his diet. "He's always been a physical fitness bug," an aide said. And he looks younger than his 69 years.

Fulbright says for the voter the issue is simple: which man can better represent Arkansas? "I don't pretend that I'm a guru and that if I leave everything will collapse. I admit willingly that the country will continue whether I'm there or not.

"But the people of Arkansas have a great investment in me and what I can do," he said. "I do think I can be more effective in protecting their interests."

Fourth Quarter

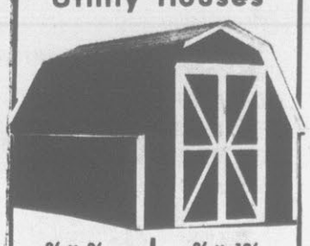

For Fulbright, it is the fourth quarter of his political career and although seemingly behind, he is running as hard as he knows how. He is hopeful and philosophical. "The people of Arkansas have been good to me," he said. "I will be content with their decision."

The air in Fulbright's camp is cheerful enough. On the wall of Fulbright's state headquarters there is a hand-lettered note:

"Glen Campbell's folks are with us. We've won! Mrs. Carie Campbell (Glen's mother) wants to accompany us to the poultry festival in Nashville."

Chalk up some Blue Grass votes, anyway, for the foreign relations chairman.

Yachts Sail Desert Sand

WASHINGTON (AP) — Yacht racing usually conjures up pictures of white water and flying spray. But camera crews recorded brown sand and flying stones when they filmed a 1,500-mile "sail" across the Sahara Desert last summer by land yachts from eight countries.

Speeding over the western Sahara with triangular sails taut in the breeze, the one-man craft often race on only two of their three tires as steeply canting hulls lifted one wheel high in the air.

The helmeted yachtsmen maintain a precarious balance by deft handling of two steering wheels: one to maneuver the vehicle's front wheel, the other to trim its brightly colored mainsail.

For their month-long journey, land yachts from Belgium, Canada, France, Great Britain, the Netherlands, Poland, the United States and West Germany set out from Tindouf in southern Algeria, once a stop for caravans traveling the old trade route to Timbuktu.

Though the light craft can go up to 60 miles an hour, alternate stretches of undulating sand hills and patches of hazardous rock and loose stones frequently cut their speed in half.

ECU School of Art Freshman Brian Vines

A Young Artist Starting With A Familiar Dream

When young men and women enroll as fledgling art students in East Carolina University's School of Art, they start with a familiar dream—to someday be a successful artist.

Success, as most quickly point out, does not so much mean making money as it does developing their talent and hopefully, receiving recognition.

Brian Vines, a tall slender art student from Fayetteville, is now finishing his freshman year at ECU. At this stage in his schooling, what he likes most and what he does best, is drawing.

After showing a few things at the Student Union, Brian received a call from someone on The Rebel staff. "They must have liked the drawings," he said, "because they used four of them in the magazine."

Brian's drawings are strong on the element of fantasy. About the cover drawing for The Rebel, he said: "It's somewhat along the lines of St. George and the Dragon, but it's my own conception.

"This drawing, all the drawings that I do on my own, I'm not speaking about class assignments, are completely from my mind. Most involve the human body. Usually, when I draw, I set out to draw a complete picture, to finish an idea I've conceived."

One of The Rebel quartet, Brian said, "is the result of an idea I had after reading a poem contributed by Phil Arrington."

"The Temptation of Jesus," his largest drawing to date, is a complex, involved rendering of Jesus, lifted from the ground by one figure, surrounded by three figures suspended in the air. The surrealistic quality of the figures—tendons and muscles revealed without the outer layer of flesh and skin—is further heightened by the incongruous placement of figures and the barren, dream-like landscape.

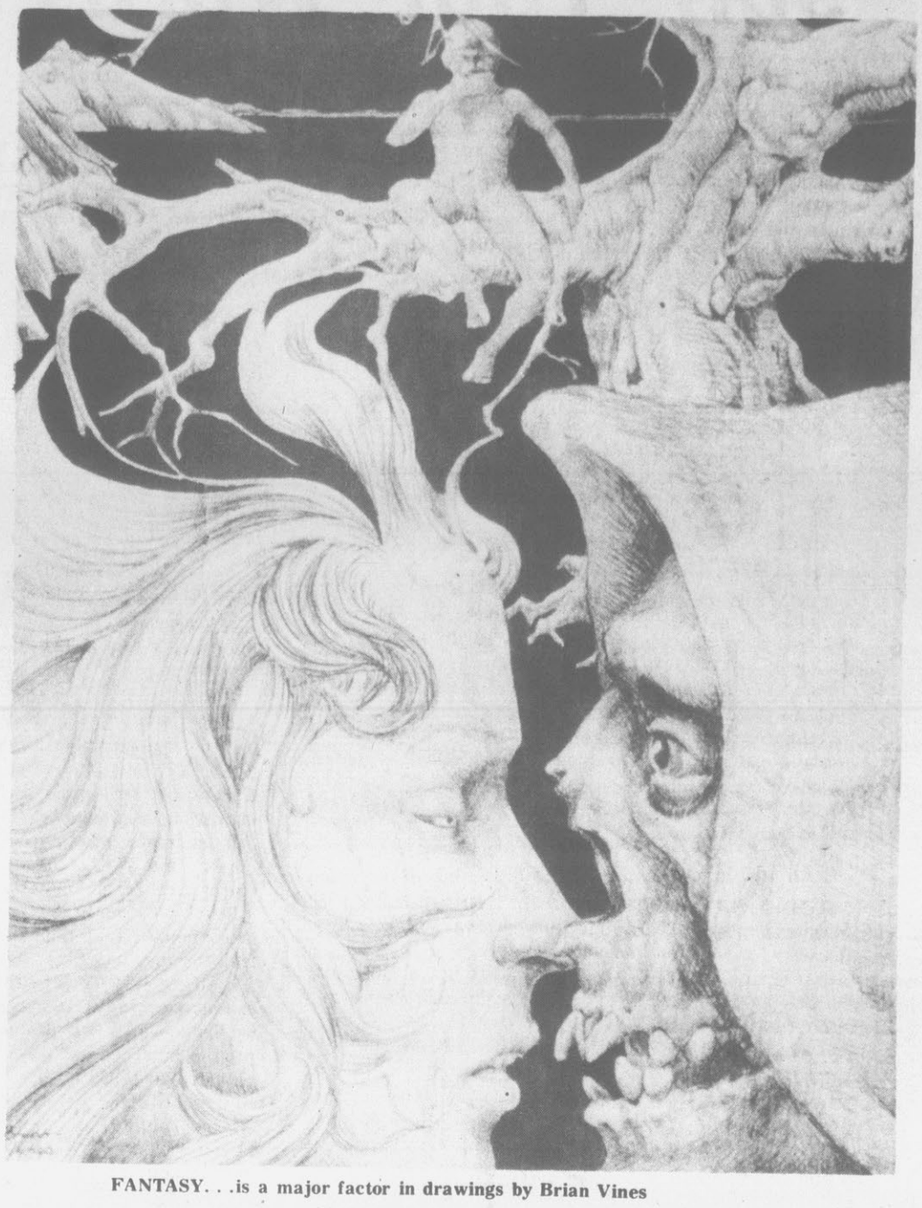

Brian's statement: "I admire the work of Michelangelo, de Vinci and Dali" perhaps explains threads of influence manifest in these drawings. "I also have a real deep admiration for Frank Frazzetta, I believe that's his name. Anyway, I'm referring to the artist who draws covers for Conan books. He's great."

Brian is the son of a recently retired Army man, C-MSgt. Huey Vines. His mother is from Germany. "There's only one artist I know of in my family's background," he said. "My German grandfather was a woodcarver." Brian has twice lived in Germany during tours his father had there.

At ECU Ray Elmore teaches him drawing, Gerald Johnson design, and Tran Gordley, painting.

"What really got me interested in drawing," he answered a question, "was this guy at Reid Ross High School in Fayetteville, a guy named Danny Miller. Before he came I thought I was really good, top notch. But when Danny came to our class, I saw how much better he was, and that spurred me on. Ever since I've tried a little harder."

Jerry Raynor

FANTASY. . .is a major factor in drawings by Brian Vines

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By MARGARET CLARK

Among the new fiction titles for this month is THE GREEK by Pierre Rey. This giant inside novel of the jet set, already an international best seller, blazes with intrigue and drama as the Olympian super rich battle for supremacy in business, in the bedrooms and on the oceans of the world. From yachts to international palaces, from Rolls-Royces to diamonds as big as the Ritz, this fascinating story of the richest, most powerful man in the world—and of the men and women who live and love in his orbit—will have every reader guessing "who's who."

In an intricately woven account of political deception, Geoffrey Perrett's EXECUTIVE PRIVILEGE is the story of what happens when an assistant to an ailing paranoid President, who succeeded via an assassination, begins to appreciate what can be accomplished behind the screen of executive privilege—"you could do almost anything you have the will to do—." And the way is tortuous but effective. Through the agency of a committee formed to investigate the assassination he imprints "conspiracy" on press and public. Then with the careful undermining of the President's feeble hold on reality and paying off members of the committee and sectors of the Army against one another—the stage is set for a Christmas day take over of the government.

In another thriller, THE VOICE OF ARMAGEDDON by David Lippincott, the Justice Department receives four photographs mailed from various parts of the country. In each the same unknown many is shown shaking hands with a celebrity at some public occasion. Accompanying the photos are tapes whose words have been spliced from radio and TV programs threatening an assassination attempt. An emergency task force is set up under the leadership of a psychoanalyst specializing in the criminal mind. What the reader knows, but what the task force must find out is that Armageddon is a brilliant but unstable man who has decided against assassination because "most of the attention goes to the victims." Instead he has planned a spectacular act of violence to ensure that his name will be remembered forever. But even the reader, who is a witness to the step-by-step preparations, does not know what the act will be. And the horror and tension mount as the day of Armageddon moves closer.

ONLY GENTLEMEN CAN PLAY by Hugh McLeave is a spy story with a British double agent and a female agent from Moscow. When love springs up between these two agents, the fake intimacy their mission requires suddenly turns real and they are caught in an impossible and suicidal passion. The story swings through Moscow, London, Berlin, and Prague, and finally back to the Czech countryside, where the plot takes its queasy turn before the climax clears the air like the rattle of a firing-squad.

Ray Elmore Exhibit

Each sunspot's enormously powerful magnetic field pours out streams of electrified particles that can cause radio signals to bounce crazily about the globe. Top Country Stars To Perform May 31

COUNTRY STARS. . .Kenny Starr, left, and Loretta Lynn will appear in concert at D. H. Conley High School on Friday, May 31. Others in the country music attraction will be Ernest Tubb, the Texas Troubadours and The Coal Miners. Tickets are now on sale for both the 7:30 and the 10:00 p.m. performances to be staged that night.

Some of America's top country stars are going to be in Pitt County on the last day of May in a program making up Country Spotlight Numer 11.

Loretta Lynn, Ernest Tubb, the Coal Miners, the Texas Troubadours, and special guest star Kenny Starr will all be on hand in a Memorial Day week-end show of country music at the D. H. Conley High School Gym on Friday, May 31.

Sponsored by the Pitt County Law Enforcement Association, the country singers will make two appearances, one at 7:30 p.m. and a second at 10:00 p.m.

Reserved seats are priced at $6:00, $5.00 and $4.00. Tickets are available from: Music Arts, Greenville; Mall Record Shop, Kinston; Jowdy's Washington; Bob's TV and Appliance, Ayden; Toyland, Farmville; and any Pitt County Law Enforcement officer.

Considered America's top female country singer, Loretta Lynn gives 200 concerts each year. Her beginnings are typically un-20th century, she was raised in a log cabin on her grandfather's farm near Butcher Hollow in eastern Kentucky. Married at 13, she was a grandmother at 32. Her first big break (in the midst of raising a family) came with the release of I'm A Honky Tonk Girl. Success followed success, and today her name is synonomous with dozens of hit songs. In June, 1973 she was cover personality for Newsweek magazine.

For a full generation (or longer) Ernest Tubb's name has been a by-word for country and western music lovers. Known as "The Texas Troubadour," Tubb made an early hit more than 30 years ago with Walking The Floor Over You. For years he has been one of the top drawing cards of the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville and has toured all over the U. S. and in much of Canda.

These two veterans will be joined by young Kenny Starr, who is making a name for himself as one of the most promising young country performers. The Coal Miners are supporting Loretta Lynn, and Ernest Tubb will be backed up by the Texas Troubadours.

For the cast of "The Lost Colony"

Loessin Named Director Of Summer Program

Dr. Edgar Loessin, chairman of the Department of Drama and Speech at East Carolina University, has been named resident coordinator of the summer program for academic credit for cast members of The Lost Colony.

After several years, through efforts of the outdoor drama group and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, an innovative, cooperative theater education program has been planned for this summer on Roanoke Island.

The program is funded by the North Carolina Department of Cultural Resources and the Mary Biddle Duke Foundation.

Officially entitled Drama 194, Professional Theater Laboratory, the transferrable college-credit course carries an academic value of nine semester hours and will give an unlimited number of students a chance to study under a unique professional production staff and in a working theater atmosphere.

Joe Layton, director of The Lost Colony; associate choreographer Mavis Ray of East Carolina University; costume and scene designer Fred Voelpel; lighting designer Nananne Porcher; production coordinator Robert Knowles; and general manager Dr. John F. Hruby, will all join in conducting classes for participants.

"This educational program is a most important innovation in the continuing development of The Lost Colony" says general manager Hruby. "The Roanoke Island Historical Association, producers of Paul Green's symphonic drama, has been seeking to develop such a program for several years. Now the educational values inherent in the professional work of the production can be more fully utilized educationally through this cooperative effort."

Chowan Dance Workshop

Chowan College's third annual Dance Workshop, scheduled for June 15-21, will headline an outstanding faculty of performers and instructors from New York and Norfolk, Va.

The workshop is sponsored by Chowan's fine arts department and the Academy of the Norfolk Ballet. Instruction will be given in classical ballet, modern, Spanish and character dance, drama and music appreciation. Students will be divided into one of three levels: beginner, intermediate, and advanced.

The cost is $85 and includes room and board and a minimum of four daily classes. Recreation facilities, including tennis courts and swimming pool, will be available.

"The minimum age for resident students is 10, and careful supervision is taken by faculty, guest teachers and student counselors," explained Dr. James Chamblee, who heads Chowan's fine arts department. "The college infirmary also has a registered nurse on duty at all times," he added.

Michael Loutozanski, formerly of the National Ballet and the Ballet Trion, will teach the advanced ballet classes. Also serving as an instructor will be Marguerite Wesley White, a performer with the City Center of Joffrey Ballet.

Beginner and intermediate ballet will be taught by Gene Hammett and Teresa Martinez. Penny Martin will teach drama. Miss Martinez will also teach Spanish dance. All are from the Academy of the Norfolk Ballet. Dr. Chamblee will teach music appreciation.

The instructor for modern dance will be Sara Ford Byrne, formerly a member of the Jose Limon Dance Company and currently teaching dance for the Hastings on Hudson Recreation Dept. in New York.

Registration will be held Saturday, June 15 from 2-5 p.m. in Parker Hall, air-conditioned dormitory where the students will be housed. The workshop will close with a student program Friday, June 21.

Applications are available from Dr. James Chamblee, Chairman, Fine Arts Department, Chowan College, Murfreesboro, N. C. 27855.

Ovid Pierce To Speak In New Orleans

Ovid Williams Pierce, writer-in-residence at East Carolina University, will discuss his new book The Wedding Guest at the New Orleans Public Library May 29 for the library's "Meet the Authors Series."

The program, sponsored by the Friends of the New Orleans Public Library, will be held in Gallier Hall on the Second Floor.

The Wedding Guest is Pierce's fourth major book and has received widespread acclaim on the insights of a retired professor's reaction to social change in his Southern hometown.

Publisher's Weekly hailed the book as "the equal of Faulkner's best."

Suit Your Words To Circumstances And Needs

By DR. ALICE GINOTT

WHEN A CHILD COMES TO YOU WITH A HURT, your first impulse may be to minimize it. A better approach is to offer sympathy and understanding:

George, 7, fell and hurt his arm in the school playground. He was brought, screaming and crying, to the nurse's office.

The nurse searched for words. "That must really hurt," she said with understanding. "Yes," George agreed and stopped crying. There were no more screams, either.

"I used to minimize a child's complaints," the nurse admitted. "I'd say things such as 'It can't hurt that much' or 'Come on now, show me how brave you can be.' Now I address myself to the child's immediate needs. I acknowledge his hurt and pain first. This makes the child feel understood and comforted."

The nurse's sympathetic words stopped George's tears.

THE SAME APPROACH worked when Lori, 4½, scratched her finger and immediately burst into tears. "Let's see that finger," said the teacher. Lori held it up. The teacher, looking at the scratch, stifled an impulse to say, "Oh, that's nothing." Instead she said, "Your finger hurts." Lori tearfully nodded yes. "Could you use a bandage?" asked the teacher. "Yes" said the child. "OK," Teacher agreed, "that finger needs washing and first aid."

Lori's crying stopped. The whole incident, instead of being prolonged, was over in 2 minutes.

WHILE MAKING A COLLAGE, Michael, 4, called out, "Mommie, there is no more tape." Mother looked at the spool and acknowledged regretfully, "You're right, it's all gone."

"Oh, well, you can't win them all," Michael said cheerfully as he began to figure out new ways to complete his project without tape.

"In the past," admitted Mother, "I immediately would have felt responsible, if not guilty, for my son's running out of tape. I'd have stopped everything and looked for a new roll. I might even have driven to a store to buy some. Now I see my role differently: When needed, I provide emotional first aid, letting my son suggest and find his own solutions. This way, he sees me as a caring mother and he experiences himself as a competent person."

PAUL, 3, LIKES TO JUMP ON THE BED. Mother said, "Beds are not for jumping. Beds are for sleeping. Grass is for jumping."

Paul looked out the window and repeated, "Grass is for jumping."

In the evening, he began jumping on the bed, then stopped himself and said loudly: "Beds are not for jumping."

In this incident Mother helped her little son incorporate and accept responsibility for his own actions. She avoided all criticism. ("Don't you have anything better to do than jump on your bed? You want to break it? Bad boy!") Instead, she defined the use of objects, clearly and without bitterness. She gave information without derogation.

TO MEET A CHILD'S NEEDS OF THE MOMENT, a brief response addressed to his heart is far better than a lengthy, logical explanation:

Mother had come in to give Grace, 6, a bedtime kiss. "Mommie," asked Grace, "were you ever a queen and Daddy a king?"

"You wish we were?" asked Mother. "Yes," said Grace.

"If we were," suggested Mother, "you'd be a princess."

"Yes," agreed Grace. "And princesses are very special."

"In our family," Mother said, "you are a princess."

"Oh Mommy!" exclaimed the youngster with delight. Apparently it was the response she was looking for because she went to sleep content.

Afterwards Mother admitted she'd resisted an impulse to include Grace's sister in the princess category because "I responding to Grace's need of reminded myself I was the moment."

U. S. Consumes Much Silver

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 150 million ounces of silver are used in the United States each year.

"Production," says a Department of Interior spokesman, "could be increased by discovery and development of new resources, and increased prices would encourage development of large known potential resources in low-grade disseminated deposits."

BIG DEAL

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California's partyboat fleet of nearly 500 boats carries about 720,000 fishermen annually, generating revenues of about $6 million.

Little Current Shocks Cannonade's Bid

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — Miguel Rivera gunned Little Current through a hole on the rail approaching the eighth pole and he charged to a runaway victory in the $209,000 Preakness Stakes Saturday at Pimlico.

Outsider Neopolitan Way was second and Kentucky Derby winner Cannonade was third ahead of Jolly Johu, who was another longshot.

For a time in the upper stretch it appeared Cannonade might keep alive his chances for the Triple Crown, but those chances evaporated in the final eighth of a mile as Little Current simply ran away.

Buck's Bid's hopes for the Preakness vanished when he stumbled coming out of the gate and threw rider Don MacBeth. MacBeth apparently was unhurt.

Little Current, who had finished fifth in the Kentucky Derby after making a big stretch run, beat Neopolitan Way to the finish by a widening seven lengths. Neopolitan Way finished a length in front of Cannonade, who was three quarters of a length better than Jolly Johu.

The time of 1:543-5 for the 13-16 miles tied the clocking of Nashua in 1955 and made the 99th Preakness the third fastest.

Canonero II won in 1:54 flat in 1971 and Secretariat was timed in 1:542-5 last year.

Little Current, owned by John Galbreath, returned $28.20, $15.40 and $7.80 to his backers in a crowd of 54,911 on a sunny day. Neopolitan Way, owned by Elizabeth F. Thomas, paid $22 and $10, and John M. Olin's Cannonade paid $4 to show.

The victory for Rivera was sweet, coming on the heels of his 10th-place Derby ride on Rube The Great, and the Puerto Rican earned the victory with a beautiful ride on the chestnut son of Sea Bird.

It was the first Preakness victory for Galbreath, who had seen his Darby Dan silks carried to triumph by Chateaugay and Proud Clarion in the 1963 and 1967 Derbies. Little Current's win was worth $156,500. Both the gross purse and the winner's share were Preakness records.

In spoiling Cannonade's shot at the Triple Crown, Little Current, who had been ridden by Bobby Ussery in the Derby, won his second race in the eight starts as a 3-year-old and third in 12 outings in his career. He now has earned $198,-022 this year and $207,192 for his career.

Trainer Lou Rondinello missed the Derby after being hospitalized for a kidney stone two days before the race, but he was on hand to watch his first Preakness starter bring home a victory.

Completing the order of finish after Jolly Johu were Kin Run, who had run in claiming races in three of his four previous starts; J.R.'s Pet; Derby runner-up Hudson County; Rube The Great; Silver Florin; Destroyer; All Game, Heir to the Line, and Buck's Bid.

Each starter carried 126 pounds.

Destroyer, who does not like off tracks and Pimlico Track was listed as good Saturday after a morning rain, set the early pace. Then as the field approached the turn, it began to bunch up.

Turning for home, Cannonade was in the middle of the track and got his head in front briefly. But then at the eighth pole, Little Current shot through on the rail and left the crowd gasping as he simply ran away from his rivals.

Little Current was bred by Galbreath, a 77-year-old construction magnate who also owns the Pittsburgh Pirates baseball team, at Galbreath's Darby Dan Farm in Kentucky.

He raced only four times as a 2-year-old, winning once. This year, he had raced only in stakes and had never been closer than fourth except when he won the Everglades.

Rivera said after the race, "I had a great horse and I never was worried about the inside. It is the shortest way home. I never had any trouble on the rail all the way. At the eighth pole, we were flying and I hit him only once. I want to thank all the people in the world and say thanks to everybody."

"He just couldn't get ahold of the track," said Cordero of Cannonade's performance. "I moved him up in the stretch but he didn't run his race."

Senior Babe Ruth Tourney To Be Here

Come early August, Greenville will turn into the focal point of the Southeast—at least as far as Senior Babe Ruth Baseball is concerned.

The city will play host to the Southeastern Sectional Babe Ruth (16-18) Baseball Tournament, drawing teams from eight different states.

As the host city, a Greenville team will automatically gain entry into the tournament, along with the North Carolina state champion, and titleholders from Tennessee, Mississippi, Georgia, Virginia, Alabama, South Carolina and Florida.

The double elimination tournament will run from August 2 through August 7, with four games the first day, three the next three, and two the final two days.

The tournament is being sponsored locally by the University City Kiwanis Club, and club officials admit that it just may be the largest project that they have ever undertaken.

The tournament will be held in Guy Smith Stadium, and each of the teams involved will have come through the ranks in district and state tournaments. The winner will advance to the Senior Babe Ruth World Series, to be held later in the year.

Most of the players will arrive on August 1, and will be staying in the homes of citizens during their tournament stay.

Bill Clifton, who coaches in the Senior Babe Ruth program in Greenville, will be tournament director, it has been announced.

Jerry Fulford will serve as overall chairman of the project, while Dan Earnhardt and Dale Brooks will serve as co-chairmen.

Julius Budacz will serve as treasurer for the project, with Joe Wilson in charge of ticket sales. E. Gordon Conklin will be housing chairman, with Allen Buck in charge of facilities. Joe Hallow is program chairman and Bill Watson will handle publicity. Herbert W. Lee will be welcome and courtesy chairman, with Joyce Buck in charge of consessions.

The Key Club, a junior organization of the Kiwanis, will also aid in the tournament, handling concessions. Griff Garner is president of the organization.

Bill Sewell, a national Babe Ruth League representative, told the tournament committee that he is extremely pleased that the club is sponsoring the tournament, and noted that many cities in the country have used a regional tournament as a stepping stone toward hosting a national event.

Pairings for the tournament will be announced in the future, as will the sale of tickets for the event.

The Greenville team which will represent the city will also be picked at a future day, following the regular season of the league.

Jaycees Rip R.C. By 10-2

The Jaycees rolled to a 10-2 victory over R. C. Cola yesterday in the North State Little League.

The results left both teams with 2-2 records on the year.

R. C. pushed ahead in the first inning of the game. Junior Hardee led off, reaching on an error. He moved up on a passed ball and took third on an out. Larry Jones singled to score him. Jones pushed to third on an error on the play and scored on Jeff Worthington's sacrifice fly.

But the lead was short lived. The Jaycees came up with three runs in the bottom of the frame to gain the laed. Mike Pollard doubled and took third on a wild pitch. Todd Brown walked and Teddy Gartman reached on a hit. John Winstead walked, forcing in Pollard. Kenny Barnes also walked, scoring Brown. Gartman then scored on Elby Forrest's sacrifice fly.

In the fourth, the Jaycees came up with four more runs. Brown walked and stole second. Gartman singled him in, and Winstead reached on a two-base error. Barnes hit into a fielder's choice getting Gargman at home. Forrest walked and Marion Crisp singled in both Winstead and Barnes. Forrest then stole home for a 7-2 lead.

The final three came in the fifth. Pollard doubled and scored on Garman's single. Winstead finished up the scoring with a two-run homer.

Barnes, in hurling the win, allowed only two hits, striking out 15 and walking two.

Pepsi Rallies To Roll Past Integon

Pepsi-Cola rallied to roll to a 14-6 victory over Integon yesterday in the Tar Heel Little League, but the game involved a protest by the losers.

Pepsi is now 2-2 on the year, while Integon has a 1-3 record.

Integon jumped into the lead in the first, scoring three runs. Blair Smith singled and Mont Carter reached on an errror. Will Barrett quickly made it 3-0 with a home run.

In the second, Integon got a couple of runs to add to their total. Todd Galloway singled and Alan Hudson walked. Both moved up on a wild pitch and Smith singled in Galloway. Carter got a hit to score Hudson, making it 5-0.

Pepsi got its first run in the third. Mark Shank singled and moved up on an error on the play. Mickey McGrath also singled, and another error let Shank score.

In the fifth, Pepsi got two more. Shank singled and this time McGrath slapped a homer.

They got four more in the sixth for a 6-5 lead. Fred Matney reached on an error and Jeff Wilson walked. Shank then homered for the lead.

Integon came back with one in the bottom of the inning to tie it. Hudson reached on a fielder's choice and moved to third on passed balls. He scored when Smith reached on an errror.

But in the top of the seventh, Pepsi pushed over eight runs to claim the win. Rickey Sutton walked, as did Mike Campbell and Scott Wilson. Matney also walked, forcing in Sutton. Wilson singled, scoring Campbell and Wilson. Shank walked, and McGrath got a hit to drive in Matney and Wilson. David McClanahan doubled in McGrath, and Kevin Richards got a hit. Sutton grounded out, but it scored McClanahan with the final run.

A.J. Foyt Watches Challengers Fall

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A.J. Foyt, on the hot seat for a week, held on to his front row pole position Saturday as a field of 33 starters was virtually completed for the May 26 Indianapolis 500 mile race.

Foyt, a 39-year-old Texan who is making a record 17th start at Indianapolis Motor Speedway, had compiled a fourlap speed of 191.632 miles an hour in first round trials last Saturday.

Though conceding the No. 1 spot to no one, the battle-scarred veteran admitted he didn't expect anyone to beat him.

But there were 10 drivers remaining in his group of pole position eligibles going into Saturday's final round of trials, and he grabbed himself a grand stand seat to watch them fire away.

Nobody came close. Of three drivers given a chance to dislodge him, Mike Hiss of Tustin, Calif., a three-year-man, made the best try.

The 32-year-old ex-collegian wheeled Roger Penske's No. 2 McLaren four laps around the 2½ mile oval at an average of 187.490 m.p.h. to nail a front row spot beside Foyt and Wally Dallenback, who was Foyt's chief challenger last week.

Thus, the front row for next Sunday's 58th running of the world's richest auto race will have three-time winner Foyt on the inside of the three-abreast lineup, with the 37-year-old Dallenbach in the middle and Hiss on the outside.

Dallenbach qualified a Patrick Racing Team eagle at 189.683 m.p.h., but must start the race with a gas-gulping, oversized turbo-charger.

Fifteen drivers had made the lineup a week ago, and there was some reshuffling of positions in the first half of Saturday's runs.

Johncock, 37, from Phoenix, Ariz., had been considered the most likely challenger to Foyt. But the stubby, 14-year driving veteran could do no better than 186.027 m.p.h. for his four laps.

Later, however, Chief Steward Tom Binford ordered Johncock's Patrick Racing Team Eagle, impounded. He said a "tell-tale" gauge indicated the possibility that Johncock's machine had exceeded the maximum 80 inches of pressure allowed in its turbocharger.

Binford said tests would be run Sunday before any announcement would be made of whether the car was legal.

"We needed much more practice time," the out-spoken Johncock said. "The Speedway shortened the practice time allowed this year, and everytime I looked around, it was raining."

Andretti, a three-time national driving champion, qualified a backup car, a new Eagle, after working all month to bring a newly-designed Parnelli (for car owner Parnelli Jones) up to speed.

His four-lap average was 186.027 m.p.h. Mosley, victim of two serious crashes at Indy, saw his 185.319 average of a week ago hold up for sixth place.

The third row will have 1968 winner Bobby Unser on the outside, with ex-school teacher Tom Sneva, a rookie, riding in the middle, and Britisher David Hobbs on the outside. All qualified a week ago.

Dick Simon, a Mormon elder from Salt Lake City and father of eight children, landed the inside fourth row spot Saturday with a speed of 184.502 m.p.h. He joins earlier qualifiers Gary Bettanhausen, who is Hiss' teammate, and young Jimmy Caruthers in that row.

Walther qualified in the middle of the fifth row with a speed of 183.927 m.p.h. and commented: "It was my fault that I didn't go faster; the car was capable of doing it. But I think it was pretty good for a guy who is getting a second chance, one that the good Lord gave me."

Hiss revealed that his McLaren ran the four laps somewhat short of the 80 pounds of pressure allowed on the exotic turbochargers the Indy cars use.

Jack Makes Bid; Three Shots Back

By MIKE RABUN
UPI Sports Writer

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — Chuck Courtney survived another blustery, humid afternoon Saturday to maintain his advantage after three rounds of the $250,000 Colonial National Golf tournament, but Jack Nicklaus fired one of only three sub-par rounds of the day to move within three shots of the lead.

Courtney, without a victory in the past five years, shot an even par 70 over the treacherous 7,142-yard par 70 Colonial Country Club course to finish 54 holes at three under 206.

Two strokes back was Wintu Indian Rod Curl, who shot 71 and was at 208.

Nicklaus, despite a shakey start, put together a one-under 69 and said he was pleased to be in the position he was.

"When I came here at the first of the week," Nicklaus said, "I thought because of the way I was playing that I might be going home after the second round. I've played this course a lot of times and I feel I know the course pretty well.

"I like the position of being a couple of shots back where I can make a charge and run by the leaders."

No other golfer was under par for three rounds in the PGA's first designated tournament.

Hale Irwin, who shot a 73, and Tom Weiskopf who shot 72, were tied for fourth place at even par 210. Julius Boros was a shot back at 211, having fired a 76.

The only rounds under par shot Saturday other than Nicklaus' 69 were 66s by Monty Kaser and Gary McCord, both of them well out of the running for the $50,000 first prize.

Courtney increased his lead from one to two shots with a 25-foot birdie putt on the final hole that hung on the lip for a moment and then fell in.

Nicklaus, meanwhile, had trouble at 18 for the second day in a row. On Friday, Nicklaus hit the lake to the left of No. 18 green and was lucky to make a bogey. Saturday his second shot from the right rough almost went into the lake again before stopping in tall grass. From there Nicklaus made another bogey.

Winds that gusted more than 25 miles an hour and greens that became slicker as the day went along combined to produce the high scores.

"There are positions you can get in where you just can't make anything but a bogey," said Nicklaus. "And I'm sure some of the guys are getting in those positions."

Curl, playing with Courtney, lost three stokes to par in his first five holes — making a double-bogey at the fifth when he sliced his tee shot into the Trinity River. But the 5-foot-5 Curl rallied with birdies at the 7th, 9th and 10th holes and moved into a share of the lead with a birdie at the tough par-3 13th. From there, however, Curl weakened and bogeyed two of the last five holes to fall two shots behind.

Giants Top Padres, 4-2

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mike Phillips walloped a three-run homer in the eighth inning, carrying the San Francisco Giants to a 4-2 victory over the San Diego Padres Saturday.

Gary Matthews walked with two out off San Diego starter Steve Arlin, 1-5, to start the Giants' rally. Steve Ontiveros followed with a ground-rule double and then Phillips homered on an 0-1 count over the right field fence.

Arlin fell behind in the first inning on Bobby Bonds' double, Tito Fuentes' sacrifice bunt and a sacrifice fly by Garry Maddox.

The Padres then took a 2-1 lead on successive homers by Nate Colbert and Willie McCovey.

Pirates Leave Monday To Make Regional Title Bid

East Carolina University has one spring sports team that has not finished its season. The baseballers ended their regular season May 7, but due to winning the Southern Conference championship, they will compete in the NCAA District III tournament May 23-27 in Starkville, Miss.

And to a few members of the Pirates, more specifically the ones that were questioned, the opportunity awaiting the team is that of "a chance of a lifetime."

"We're pleased to have the chance," Coach George Williams said earlier this week. "This is what we've been working for all year."

The Pirates are slated to take on Vanderbilt University in the opening round, beginning 9 p.m., Central Daylight Time. Statistics on the Comodores show them to be a team similar to the Pirates: .253 team batting average, leading hitter at the .323 mark, and leading pitcher at an 8-3 mark, with the team ERA slightly higher than the Bucs", 2.97.

The Pirates' team batting average finished at .263, leading hitter at .326, and best pitcher at 5-2, 0.64, with ERA setting at 1.70 for the team. But all the numbers will be of no consequence to the Pirates.

"The stats don't mean much when you've got to play six games to win in four days," said Williams. "That's one reason why we're going to go with both the intention and capability of winning."

Another Vanderbilt number, 151, was a record-setter for the Commodores this season. They stole that many bases as a team, rolling up a 36-20 overall and 13-4 Southeastern Conference mark. This could present a problem to most teams with the major infield switch that the Pirates are making, namely finding a new keystone combination.

The move will come due to Carl Summerell, the team shortstop opting to prepare for the Coaches' All-America game in June. Geoff Beaston, the team second baseman, will move to shortstop and either Gary Averitte, a freshman, or Charley Wall, a junior college transfer with limited Pirate playing experience. Whatever position switch may be involved, the Pirate's general attitude is to go down and simply play baseball and not worry about the past.

For example:

"It's really nice for the guys that we're going," said Russ Smith, leftfielder. "We'll play some top-flight teams and show everyone how good we really are."

"It's going to be a good trip for the team, since we've worked for this all season," said Wayne Bland, who finished with a 5-2 record for the Bucs. "If we get some breaks, we could win it all."

And from assistant coach Monte Little, who spent four years with the St. Louis, Houston and Detroit professional baseball organizations:

"I'm very happy for the young men on the team. And I sincerely feel that we can win at Starkville."

The journey will begin at 9 p.m., May 20, via charter bus leaving Scales Fieldhouse. The team will spend Monday night in Atlanta, and bus over to Starkville Tuesday. The homeward-bound itinerary is dependent soley on how the Pirates succeed in the tournament. Other teams competing, aside from the Bucs and Vanderbilt, are Miami of Florida, University of Southern Carolina, Georgia Southern and North Carolina State, the Atlantic Coast Conference champion.

The Pirates will take 20 players eligible for competition, and in the four-day grind, keeping them in playing shape could be a problem. Kirby Patterson, from the Pirate Sports Medicine Division, will handle those chores, and he brought up a point that certainly hasn't been overlooked.

"Going to a national tournament can certainly bring limelight to the school," said Petterson. "And like everyone has said, it is a chance of a lifetime."

And it starts Monday, May 20, at 9 a.m.

CBS Pressure Halted Contest

NEW YORK (AP) — Larry Fleisher, general counsel of the National Basketball Association's Player's Association, charged Saturday that a proposed All-Star game between players from the NBA and American Basketball Association had been cancelled because of possible pressure from a television network.

The game, scheduled for Saturday at Providence, R.I., was cancelled after the NBA owners won a binding arbitration prohibiting their players from participating.

Fleisher said he believes the owners moved against the game because of television considerations. The charity game was to be televised by the American Broadcasting Company, which had televised NBA games from 1964 until this season when the Columbia Broadcasting System got the contract.

"The rival television network paid a lot of money for the rights to the NBA Game of the Week and was very unhappy to see it (the All-Star Game) on another network," said Fleisher.

The NBA players' counsel said one of the league's major arguments in the battle over whether the game should be played was whether an All-Star Game could be telecast by a network which does not hold broadcast rights to the NBA Game of the Week.

Fleisher added that another consideration was the stand by the owners that "the players should not have the right to put on a game...that this is a province the owners feel belongs to them."

Former Teammates Hand Perry Loss

CLEVELAND (AP) — Eddie Brinkman tripled home the tying run in the seventh inning and scored on a single by John Knox to give the Detroit Tigers and Mickey Lolich a 3-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday.

Loser Jim Perry, 3-3, scattered six hits until Aurelio Rodriguez singled with one out in the seventh to start the rally that carried the Tigers to their fourth consecutive triumph.

Lolich, who raised his record to 3-5 with his second victory in a row, fell behind 2-0 before he retired a batter in the opening inning when Frank Duffy led off for Cleveland with a single and John Lowenstein hit his second home run of the baseball season.

Lolich finished with a five-hitter.

Twins, 10-4

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Twins lashed 10 singles off California's Bill Singer in less than five innings en route to a 10-4 victory over the Angels in a nationally televised baseball game Saturday.

Minnesota bunched four singles and capitalized on an error by California shortstop Dave Chalk to score three runs in the third inning.

Singles by Tony Oliva, Steve Braun and Bobby Darwin with one out in the fifth inning chased Singer, 5-3, and helped the Twins to a 6-2 lead.

The Angels threatened in the sixth but reliever Ray Corbin retired pinch hitter Joe Lahoud on a foul pop with the bases loaded.

Corbin, 3-0, replaced starter Dave Goltz with two runners aboard and none out in the second inning after Goltz was struck on the right knee by Tom McCraw's line drive.

The teams combined for 30 hits during the three-hour contest.

Defending American League batting champion Rod Carew, seeking a third consecutive title, drove in three Minnesota runs with two singles and an infield out. Carew is batting .395.

Rookie shortstop Luis Gomez and Steve Braun each collected three singles in Minnesota's 17-hit barrage, a season high for the Twins.

Bobby Valentine paced the Angels with three singles and a double.

The Twins, who have been plagued by poor weather and low attendance this season, drew only 4,380 on a heavily overcast day. Their 1974 attendance is only 82,198 for 15 home dates.

Bosox, 10-2

BALTIMORE (AP) — Bernie Carbo, Dick McAuliffe, Mario Guerrero and Rico Petrocelli delivered run-scoring singles in a six-run seventh inning that lifted the Boston Red Sox to a 10-2 victory over the Orioles Saturday.

With the score tied 1-1, Petrocelli led off with a sharp single off the glove of third baseman Brooks Robinson and loser Ross Grimsley, 4-4, walked Dwight Evans. Carbo singled for one run, Danny Cater hit a sacrifice fly which also sent Carbo to second and McAuliffe's single made it 4-1 and chased Grimsley.

Juan Beniquez and Guerrero greeted reliever Bob Reynolds with singles and, after Beniquez stole third, Carlton Fisk's grounder got him home with the fifth run of the inning.

Carl Yastrzemski singled, knocking out Reynolds, and Petrocelli singled off Jesse Jefferson for the final run of the inning.

Luis Tiant, 3-5, went the route although the Orioles reached him for 11 hits, including Boog Powell's second home run of the season in the eighth inning.

Phils, 9-2

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Del Unser hit a three-run homer and Mike Schmidt blasted a two-run shot in a seven-run sixth inning that carried the Philadelphia Phillies to an 9-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday.

Schmidt's homer came off loser Bob Moose, 1-5, after a single by Tommy Hutton. Later in the inning Unser homered off reliever John Morlan after runscoring singles by Dave Cash and Larry Bowa.

Schmidt scored the first run of the game for the Phillies in the second inning on Mike Anderson's sacrifice fly.

A wild pitch by Ron Schueler scored a run for Pittsburgh in the second and Willie Stargell hit a home run in the sixth, his sixth of the baseball season.

Mets, 6-0

NEW YORK (AP) — Jon Matlack fired a four-hitter and Rusty Staub and Wayne Garrett drove in two runs apiece in the first inning, leading the surging New York Mets to a 6-0 rout of the Montreal Expos Saturday.

The Mets, who have won three in a row and seven of nine after a slow start, jumped on Montreal ace Steve Rogers, 6-2, for all their runs in the first three innings.

Bud Harrelson led off with an infield hit and went to third on Cleon Jones' one-out single, with Jones taking second on the throw. Staub singled them both across.

John Milner also singled and, after Dave Schneck struck out, Garrett laced a double off the glove of diving center fielder Ron Woods for two more runs.

The Mets added two runs in the third on Staub's infield hit, singles by Milner and Schneck and Ron Hodges' sacrifice fly.

The only hits off Matlack, 5-1, were Bob Bailey's third-inning single following a two-out error, a bloop single by pinch hitter Terry Humphrey in the seventh, Hal Breeden's two-out double in the eighth and Woods' leadoff single in the ninth.

Dodgers, 1-0

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Steve Garvey singled Dave Lopes home from third base with two out in the 13th inning Saturday, giving the red-hot Los Angeles Dodgers a 1-0 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Garvey's hit came off Lew Krausse just after the Atlanta relief pitcher was struck in the stomach by Tom Paciorek's line drive.

Lopes opened the 13th with a single, only the Dodgers' fifth hit. He went to second as Bill Buckner grounded out and took third while Krausse threw out Paciorek. The pitcher then collapsed in front of the mound, but remained in the game. Garvey then singled to right.

Atlanta starter Phil Niekro held the Dodgers to two hits in nine innings while Andy Messersmith of Los Angeles blanked the Braves on four hits in 10 innings. Mike Marshall and Charlie Hough blanked the Braves on one hit over the final three innings.

The Dodgers' only hits off Niekro were a leadoff double by Lopes in the fourth, a drive that barely eluded the reach of left fielder Ralph Garr, and Joe Ferguson's single with two out in the eighth.

Atlanta's most serious threat came in the third when Garr beat out a one-out bunt and raced to third on a wild pickoff throw by Messersmith. However, he remained at third as Marty Perez flied to short right field and Dusty Baker lined to third for the final out.

Cards, 11-2

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ted Sizemore's two-run homer ignited a four-run first inning and Ken Reitz drove in three runs, boosting the St. Louis Cardinals to an 11-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday night.

Sizemore, who has just 12 homers in six major league baseball seasons, hit his first this year into the left field stands off Chicago starter Rick Reuschel, 3-2. Lou Brock had opened the Cardinals' first with a single and stolen his 25th straight base before Sizemore connected.

Reggie Smith walked and Ted Simmons and Bake McBride singled to load the bases before Reitz drove in one run with a sacrifice fly. After Joe Torre received an intentional walk, Mike Tyson scored Simmons with a sacrifice fly.

The Cardinals added two more runs in the second on Reitz' RBI single. McBride hit a two-run homer in the eighth to add to the St. Louis' scoring total.

The Cubs had taken a 1-0 lead off winner Sonny Siebert, 3-3, in their half of the first inning on Billy Williams' RBI single. Williams also drove in another Chicago run in the third with a grounder.

Brewers, 5-2

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Dave May and Johnny Briggs hit home runs, leading the Milwaukee Brewers to a 5-2 victory over the New York Yankees Saturday.

Winner Kevin Kobel, 2-1, who had beaten the Yankees in New York last Sunday, surrended a two-run homer to Bill Sudakis in the eighth and needed relief help in that inning.

May gave the Brewers a 1-0 lead in the first inning against Mel Stottlemyre, 5-5, with his seventh homer of the baseball season. It was his fifth in his last eight games.

Waldrop Named Top ACC Athlete

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—North Carolina's Tony Waldrop, who has run nine consecutive miles in less than four minutes, Saturday was named the Atlantic Coast Conference's athlete of the year.

"I'm very shocked," he said when informed of the voting by the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association.

Shock was a typically modest reaction for the shy miler who graduated from North Carolina last week. But the award would not shock anyone who has followed the season Waldrop has enjoyed.

Counted among his nine subfour minute efforts were a world indoor record of 3:55.0 in San Diego, the Wanamaker Mile at the Millrose Games, the NCAA indoor championship, ACC titles outdoors and indoors, and a 3:53.2 victory at the Penn Relays. The latter was the fastest mile ever run in the eastern United States.

Waldrop is the first track man to win the award, named for Anthony J. McKevlin, since Duke's Dave Sime in 1956.

He won it with 75 votes in a year when individual excellence abounded in ACC play. David Thompson of N.C. State, the national player of the year in basketball, was second with 52 and John Lucas of Maryland third with 14.

Thompson, who led N.C. State to the national championship, had won the award last year. Lucas was an All-ACC guard in basketball and won the league's singles title in tennis.

"I would have expected Thompson to get it myself," said Waldrop. "I admire him as an athlete very much."

Waldrop, despite winning several All-American awards as a sophomore and junior, was not particularly well known outside track circles until he moved up from the 880 to the mile this year.

He is a six-foot, 145-pounder with an unruly shock of long blonde hair, and he wears a T-shirt that says "Run for Fun."

It embodies his philosophy. Waldrop went to UNC on a Morehead Scholarship, given for academic and extracurricular excellence. When he took his degree in political science, his academic average had placed him consistently on the Dean's List.

He told one interviewer this season that apart from running, his favorite activities included the theatre, chamber concerts, and reading authors such as Hemingway, Dostoevsky and Thomas Wolfe.

"The idea of pro track doesn't appeal to me," he said. "As for the 1976 Olympics, that's too far away to plan on."

Waldrop said Saturday that he plans to run in the California Relays in Modesto next weekend and then point for the NCAA and AAU championships. Later in the summer, he plans to run in Europe.

Maryland Takes Carmichael Cup

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—The University of Maryland has ended North Carolina's three-year hold on the Carmichael Cup, symbol of overall athletic supremacy in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Maryland amassed 72 points on the basis of seven for a first in league competition, six for second, etc. North Carolina was second with 70½.

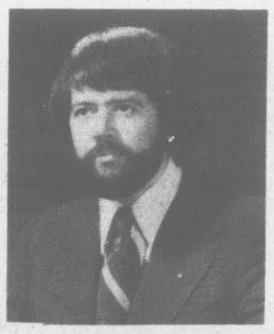

The Terrapins took league titles in indoor and outdoor track and lacross and finished high in the standings for football, basketball, wrestling, soccer, cross country, wrestling and fencing.

North Carolina won titles in fencing and tennis and finished close to the top in most other sports.

Suggs Again Shines In Regional Track

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Friday afternoon turned into another banner day for Tarboro sprinter Carter Suggs. The national high school record of 9.2 seconds in the 100-yard dash eluded him, but he drew an ovation following a fantastic effort in the mile relay that saw him finish only second in the Regional High School Track Meet.

In the 100, Suggs, bound for East Carolina University next year, had to run into a cross-wind that many times swirled into a head-wind. In getting victory in the event, he ran a 9.3 clocking, again tieing the national record for the event among high school age runners.

He went on to win the 220-yard dash in a time of 21.6 seconds, and to finish second in the long jump with a leap of 22 feet, six inches.

But his greatest race was his last of the afternoon, the anchor leg of the mile relay.

Tarboro didn't get off to a good three-quarter, and by the time Suggs got the baton, he was a poor fifth in the six team heat, trailing the fourth place man by over 10 yards. But by the time the pack reached the third turn on the track, with some 200 yards to go, Suggs had caught up. But he got boxed in and was forced to break his stride, swing out and go the long way around.

Even so, he turned in a fantastic performance, just missing catching the leader, who beat him by four-tenths of a second. Suggs was timed by Coach Bill Carson of East Carolina at 47 seconds, an outstanding high school time for his split in the quarter-mile leg.

A total of four area performers qualified for next week's state meet in Raleigh, set Friday night at the N.C. State University track.

Ronnie Wilkes of Farmville Central won the long jump, soaring 22 feet, 10½ inches. His teammate, Ray Hardy took third place in the 440-yard dash with a time of 51.3 seconds.

Lafon Forbes of Greene Central was second in the shot put with a toss of 54 feet, 11¾ inches. And Jesse Brown of Ayden-Grifton qualified second in the high jump with a leap of 6 feet, 2 inches.

The first four finishers in each event qualified for the state meet.

Wilmington Hoggard took the team trophy, finishing with 27 points, while Tarboro was second with 22. Pinecrest was third with 19, followed by Jacksonville and E. E. Smith with 15 each. Cary with 14, Bertie with 12, Millbrook with 11, and Farmville Central and West Cartaret, nine each, rounded out the top 10. A total of 39 teams picked up points in the meet.

Besides Suggs, there were two other double winners in the meet. Marvin Rankins of Bertie won both of the hurdle events, while Jeff Moody of Pinecrest won both the 880 and the mile.

Although records weren't available for the meet, it was conceeded that Wayne Struble of Raleigh Sanderson set a new pole vault mark, leaping 15 feet.

Bunt Attempt Turned Into Homer As Hisle Powers Twins To Win

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

The plan, Frank Tanana figured, was for Larry Hisle to put the ball a few feet in front of the plate. He figured about 400 feet too short.

Hisle was batting in the bottom of the eighth inning for Minnesota. Ahead of him, Joe Lis had singled. And behind him was the meat of the Twins' batting order.

Tanana and the rest of the California Angels owned a 1-0 lead. It figured Hisle would be bunting...which is what he did on the first pitch, pushing it foul.

"I thought he was going to bunt again," Tanana said. "I threw him an up-and-away fastball that didn't have much on it."

But Hisle put everything he had into it, driving the ball 421 feet into the right field stands for a two-run homer that carried the Twins to a 2-1 victory over the Angels.

"There's no way I dreamed he'd hit it that far," Tanana said.

In other American League games, Baltimore blanked Boston 6-0 in a rain-shortened six-inning contest, Oakland mauled the Chicago White Sox 10-4, Kansas City topped Texas 6-4, Detroit downed Cleveland 4-3 and the New York Yankees edged Milwaukee 3-2.

Twins 2, Angels 1

"I was expecting a fastball 'cause he was only trying to get me out, what with Rod Carew and Tony Oliva following me," Hisle said of Tanana. "And he threw me the fastball, apparently thinking I was gonna bunt again. I got the homer in a hit-and-run situation."

But why the switch? "It was a bit of a gamble," admitted Twins Manager Frank Quilici. "But it sure worked, didn't it?"

Tanana, who also was victimized last week by a Minnesota homer that turned victory into defeat, added that "I'd throw him the same pitch again—but with more on it."

Orioles 6, Red Sox 0

Mike Cuellar checked Boston on six hits and Tommy Davis clubbed two homers, driving in four runs in a game trimmed to six innings by rain and enlivened by the appearance of the first streaker at a Baltimore ball game.

A's 10, White Sox 4

"We haven't had too many like that this season," said Alvin Dark after his A's rolled over Chicago on the strength of a four-run first inning and a six-run second.

Ray Fosse's three-run triple—on which the White Sox's Buddy Bradford broke his collarbone trying for the catch—highlighted the first-inning burst. Joe Rudi's two-run single and Bill Melton's two-run error were the big plays in the second inning.

Royals 6, Rangers 4

Fred Patek's two-run triple capped a four-run second-inning that sent the Royals past Jim Bibby and the Rangers, overcoming Texas' 3-0 lead. George Brett drove in the other Kansas City runs with doubles in the fourth and sixth innings.

When Texas scored its fourth run and had the tying runs on base with one out in the seventh inning, Doug Bird took over on the mound for winner Bruce Dal Canton.

Tigers 4, Indians 3

Al Kaline's run-scoring single triggered a three-run sixth inning that led Detroit over the Indians, who hit into four double plays. Lerrin LaGrow picked up the victory with late relief help.

"I really didn't throw well tonight and was lucky," said LaGrow. Sometimes it takes a few breaks to win a game and we got them tonight."

Yanks 3, Brewers 2

Bill Sudakis' run-scoring single capped a two-run first inning and Jim Mason hit a decisive sacrifice fly in the seventh in the Yankees' victory over Milwaukee which snapped New York's five-game losing streak.

George Scott hit a homer for the Brewers' final run—the one that left them one short. It came only moments after Roy White had made a brilliant diving catch of Dave May's long liner.

National League scores: New York Mets 5, Montreal 0; St. Louis 9, Chicago 8; San Diego 7, San Francisco 3; Cincinnati 4, Houston 2; Atlanta 5, Los Angeles 3 in 11 innings, and Philadelphia at Pittsburgh was rained out.

Robersonville Captures Title

ROBERSONVILLE—Robersonville clinched the championship of the Eastern Plains Conference Friday as they beat Saratoga in the final game of the playoff, 5-0. Jimmy Stalls was the winning pitcher boosting his record to 5-

Stalls went all the way striking out four, walking three, hitting one, and giving up four hits.

It took the Eagles five innings to finally get a run. Stalls singled in the fifth and Dan Thompson singled. Mike Matthews reached on an error scoring Stalls. Victor Hardison singled to score both Thompson and Matthews and a wild pitch scored Hardison.

Stalls added the final Eagle run in the sixth as he singled and scored on an erroed pick-off at first.

Saratogo put men on in very inning but had a major threat only in the first as Peele Garris doubled and took third on an out.

Rampants Close Year With Victory

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

ELIZABETH CITY—Rose High's Rampants celebrated the end of the baseball season with a 14-hit, 14-run barage against Northeastern Friday as the Rampants rolled to a 14-5 win.

Northeastern was in the game only in the first inning when they overcame a three-run Rose spurt to take a 4-3 lead. The Rampants fought back with two in the second and coasted from there.

Mike Belton did most of the work for the Rampants pitching four innings. He walked four, struck out seven and gave up six hits. Chris Manning relieved him in the fifth and did not allow a single hit while striking out four.

The heat seemed to have little effect on either team as both had rallies in the first inning.

Al Heath led off the game for the Rampants with a single and Dickie Johnson reached on an error moving Heath to second. Gil Whitford walked filling the bases and Ronnie Rasberry scored Heath when he hit into a fielder's choice forcing Whitford. Rasberry stole second while Johnson stole home. Jerry Griffin slammed a double to drive in Rasberry.

In the bottom of the inning, the Eagles took the lead. David Suermann and Ray Scott both walked. Cliff Harris beat out a bunt single loading the bases but Suermann was forced at home when Jay McDonald tried to bunt him across.

Jon Merritt tripled to clear the bases for three runs and a hit by Bruce Bright score Merritt.

Rose got the lead back in the second. Belton drew a one-out walk and Heath singled. Robert Brinkely singled to right scoring Belton and an error on the play let Heath score, also.

Two more went up for the Rampants in the third as Griffin singled and moved to third on an outfield error on the play. Jimmy Averette drove him with a single to left. Averette took second on a passed ball and scored on a hit by Greg Sasser.

Northeastern got its final run in the bottom of the third Mark Nolan singled with two out and Mike Sawyer got a hit. Dwane Stallings also got a hit to score Nolan.

That run was matched by Rose in the top of the fourth by Brinkley as he walked his way on, stole second and came across on Rasberry's single.

Belton singled in the top of the fifth and moved to third on a hit by Heath who went to second on the relay. Both scored on a single by Brinkley.

Manning came in the bottom of the fifth and allowed only two baserunners in the three innings he pitched. Rose added four more in the seventh aided by a two-run double by Ron Hunt.

Heath and Rasberry led the Rampants with three hits each while Brinkley and Griffin had two apiece.

Jamesville will be the host team in the opening game, meeting Creswell in Jamesville on Tuesday at 4 p.m.

Pantego grabbed the early lead in the game, getting a run in the second. Brinn singled and moved up on an out. He scored on Harris' hit.

In the third, Jamesville came up with three runs to jump into the lead. Billy Brown reached on a fielder's choice and Byron Davis ran for him, stealing second. Steve McCombs singled in Davis with the tieing run. Gurkin Martin singled to score McCombs and later he scored on Ronnie Padgett's error.

In the fourth, the Bullets picked up two more. Larry Ange reached on a fielder's choice, scoring on Brown's triple. Martin then singled in Brown.

The Bullets got another in the fifth as Padgett singled and scored when Clifton Hardison reached on an error. Another crossed in the sixth when Jerry Ange singled and moved to third on an error and a sacrifice. He scored when McCombs squeezed him in.

The final two Jamesville runs came in the seventh. Hardison walked and scored on Ange's double. Brown reached on an error, scoring Ange.

Pantego rallied for five runs in the fifth, tieing it briefly. Stoot hit a three-run homer to spark that frame.

Jamesville is now 15-4 overall and 12-2 in league play.

Kiwanis Get First Victory

The Kiwanis won their first game of the season Friday with a 12-4 victory over Coca-Cola in the North State Little League.

The game was scoreless until the fourth, when the Kiwanis broke it open with six big runs. Skip Hill was hit by a pitch and Willie Moye singled. Tom Brown walked, loading them up, and Sterling Ashby doubled in both Hill and Moye. A wild pitch scored Brown, and Grant Stackhouse singled in Ashby. Howard Moye reached on a fielder's choice that let Stackhouse come all the way around when it was errored. Moye then scored on another error on the play.

Coca-Cola came up with one in the fifth. Jeff Camp singled and advanced on a passed ball. Rick Hardee singled to score him.

The Kiwanis added six more in the sixth. Skip Topping singled and Hill walked. Moye singled to score Topping. Michael Clemmons doubled to score both Hill and Moye, and Ashby reached on an error, scoring Clemmons. Jay Whitehurst reached on another error, and Howard Moye singled to score Ashby. Topping got another hit, driving in Whitehurst.

Coke came up with three more in the bottom of the sixth. Lee Hardee walked and George Wilkerson doubled. Scott Daughtery singled in Hardee and both runners advanced on an out. Johnathan McGee singled in both Wilkerson and Daughtery.

Matson Competive Again In The Shot

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Tex. (AP) — They don't snicker at Randy Matson anymore.

The 6-foot-7, 265-pounder used to be the world record holder in the shot put, but in recent months he had been struggling to reach the modest distance of 65 feet, and had been the object of catcalls and criticism which he now says "gave me the incentive to be competitive again."

The former Texas A&M star, who once held the world outdoor record at 71 feet 5½ inches, uncorked his career indoor best of 70-feet, 5¼ inches Friday night in the International Track Association meet at Texas Stadium before a crowd of 10,173.

His series was the second best of his career. It went 69-10¼, 70-½, 70-5¼, 70-¼, 68-5 and 69-8¾.

"I can throw it perhaps two feet farther than I did tonight," Matson said. "I went back to the technique I had in 1965."

Meanwhile, Ben Jipcho, the tireless Kenyan, won both the mile and two mile. He edged Dave Wottle with a time of 4:00.6 in the mile and nicked George Young in the two mile, both with times of 8:45.9.

Bob Seagren came within inches of establishing a world indoor record in the pole vault. He cleared the bar at 17-8 but missed three times at the 18-3, which would have been a record. On his second try, he just brushed the bar with his shirt.

Jones Denies He Used Drugs

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Veteran defensive end David "Deacon" Jones denied accusations of drug use Friday and said he didn't expect to play for the San Diego Chargers next season.

"I don't think that I'll play another down of pro football in San Diego," the 13-year National Football League veteran said on a radio talk show.

"But I will play another year of football, because I want to prove to the people that Deacon is a football player and not a drug addict." He said he thought he would be traded.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle fined Jones, seven other Chargers, General Manager Harland Svare and owner Eugene Klein a total of $40,000 last month for alleged violations of the league's drug policy.

"The only thing I'm guilty of is being on a 2-11 team," Jones said, referring to the Chargers' 2-11-1 record. "I will not pay the $3,000 fine because I'm not guilty. Anything that I have taken in the ranks of professional football was prescribed to me by the team physician."

Norman Helps Father With Good Pitching

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

At the ballpark, Fred Norman tried to ease his father's pain with a well-pitched game Friday night.

"When I was born, he was 47 years old," Norman, 32, said of his father. "He always comes to see me pitch. I wish he had been here tonight, but he just couldn't make it."

The youngest Norman, however, nearly did make it. He pitched 8 1-3 innings of eight-hit baseball, striking out five and walking one while recording a 4-2 victory for Cincinnati over the Houston Astros.

In other National League games, the St. Louis Cardinals trimmed the Chicago Cubs 9-8, the New York Mets blanked the Montreal Expos 5-0, the San Diego Padres downed the San Francisco Giants 7-3, the Atlanta Braves topped the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-3 in 11 innings and the Philadelphia Phillies-Pittsburgh Pirates game was rained out.

Norman, over 45 1-3 innings, has surrendered just 32 hits and nine runs while striking out 45 and walking only 10. The victory raised his won-lost record to 3-3 and lowered his earned run average to 1.59.

Houston Manager Preston Gomez didn't seem especially impressed after his team's seventh consecutive loss. "We've got no hitting, that's all," Gomez said.

But the Astros didn't get much fielding, either, as errors brought home three of Cincinnati's runs. Two scored on Houston pitcher Claude Osteen's wild throw to the plate in the fourth.

Doug Rader's fifth home run of the season broke Norman's string of 24 innings without an earned run.

Cards 9, Cubs 8

Ted Simmons drove in three runs with a first-inning homer, then broke an 8-8 tie with a sacrifice fly in the eighth inning to carry the Cardinals past Chicago.

The Cubs rallied from a 6-1 deficit to come within 6-5, and after St. Louis made it 8-5, Chicago scored three runs in their half of the eighth to tie it.

Billy Williams had four runs batted in for the Cubs—two of them on his fifth-inning home run. Don Kessinger contributed four hits for Chicago and drove in two runs.

Mets 5, Expos 0

Seaver, last season's Cy Young Award winner, had slumped to a 1-4 record and a 3.5 earned run average. But Friday's game may have marked a turnaround.

Rusty Staub stroked a two-run homer on loser Balor Moore in the third inning for all the runs Seaver needed.

Padres 7, Giants 3

Nate Colbert's fifth career grand slam home run helped San Diego defeat San Francisco and end a nine-game losing string. The blast capped a five-run Padres first inning.

Enzo Hernandez singled and Enzo Hernandez hit a sacrifice fly to bring home the other two San Diego runs. Bobby Bonds had a two-run double and Ken Rudolph's single drove in the Giants' runs.

Braves 5, Dodgers 3

Pinch-hitter Mike Lum, given life when Ron Cey dropped his foul fly in the 11th inning, drove a two-run double to center field to score the winning runs for Atlanta.

Jimmy Wynn drove in two runs for the Dodgers with a triple and a double. The Dodgers' nine-game winning streak was stopped.

VACATION HOME CAPITALIZES ON SCENERY

GLASS EXPANSE PROVIDES SWEEPING VIEW FOR "HIGHPOINT"

The living and dining areas of this home are placed on the upper level, to combine with a wooden deck for an expansive view of vacation country. Floor to ceiling windows and glass doors provide the natural light needed to complement the wood and stone elements used in the "Highpoint" construction.

Opening onto the living area is a kitchen, with windowed double sink, built-in range and a breakfast bar.

On this upper level a bedroom also is included, with full bath and linen closet.

Downstairs, through the foyer, are storage and service areas, in addition to two bedrooms. Laundry facilities, furnace and hot water heater open onto a second full bath. Housed in the fireplace foundation in the carport is a built-in barbecue, serviceable in any weather.

A stone terrace is laid underneath the deck to further enhance a wooded setting and to provide weather-free access to the stairs leading to the deck.

In addition to providing soft light, the glass expanses contribute to the angular, contemporary design of the "Highpoint."

Reduce Summer's Heat Levels

By DOROTHEA BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Energy conservation is a year 'round effort but, just as most families found cooperation did not require chilly homes last winter, it need not mean a hot summer.

Since 20 per cent of the total energy used in the United States is used for heating and cooling 70 million living units, energy conservation at home is important. Even small savings by individual families can add up to tremendous amounts on a nationwide scale.

The savings that help the conservation effort will be felt, too, in the family budget since energy prices are at record levels.

The key to savings is careful planning —and a lot of little things. No large outlay of money is required, and anything spent will be more than repaid in terms of fuel savings and comfort.

For the homeowner, a first consideration should be the plantings around his house. Ideally, there should be deciduous trees on the south and west to shade windows. This will cut down on summer heat which pours in while allowing winter sun to enter.

Plant Trees

If you do not have suitable trees, check with your nurseryman before planting. Some types grow to provide shade more rapidly than others.

It has been calculated there is a difference of 40-50 degrees in ground level temperature between grass and flagstones or concrete. Think carefully before you build a sunny patio outside those sliding glass doors. Shrubs and lawn will give more of a cooling effect.

Awnings —on windows and shading patios —can do much to reduce heat levels from summer sun.

Another practical measure, whether you live in a house or apartment, involves the use of light-colored shades or drapes. Dark colors absorb heat. The National Bureau of Standards says light colors will reduce heat gain through windows by 50 per cent. They should be drawn when sun is high.

Engineers pinpoint windows as the biggest energy drain in the home. One says, "One square foot of glass can lose as much heat as ten square feet of wall. This same single pane of glass in summer will store and reradiate some of the sun's heat."

Storm windows, or double glazing, by trapping air between panes of glass, provide insulation, cutting heat loss from the house in winter and reducing heat gain in summer.

Savings

The Citizen's Advisory Committee on Environmental Quality estimates that an investment in storm windows could save between $48 and $126 annually in cold areas and, for air-conditioned homes, result in additional savings by cutting heat gain in summer. The Oak Ridge National Laboratory says storm windows left on during the air conditioning season can reduce energy output by more than nine per cent, with resultant money savings.

Frank Gorell, president of Season-all Industries, Inc., Indiana, Pa., a leading custom manufacturer of storm windows and doors, says the investment in storm windows actually will pay for itself in 7 to 10 years. The National Bureau of Standards says they will return an annual "dividend" of from 13 to 18 per cent or more in terms of savings in fuel bills.

The University of Illinois has calculated that ten 15-square-foot windows will leak about 100 more gallons worth of fuel oil per season if they are single glazed. Engineers explain: "With a typical three by five foot single glazed, double hung window, almost three times the energy would be lost through the window as is lost around the sash area." Storm doors help, too, because heat gain through or around the door is approximately the same.

Weatherstripping doors and windows, caulking cracks and openings will help.

Cutting attic heat build up by means of a ventilating fan is another energy and dollar saver, particularly if you use it to bring in cool air at night instead of running the air conditioner.

When possible, install air conditioners, if you must use them, on the shady side of the house.

Keep windows closed. Leave storm windows up on those windows not needed for ventilation.

If you're not using an attic fan, open windows early in the morning to admit cool air and freshen the house.

Avoid adding extra heat by turning off lights, television sets when not in use. Do laundry, ironing, baking and other hot tasks in the cool of the morning.

Gasoline Once Thought Useless

CHICAGO (AP) — If waiting in line for gasoline makes you lose your sense of humor, try to remember that the precious fuel was once considered useless.

In fact, until the automobile came along kerosene was the major product of oil refineries, according to World Book Encyclopedia. Because it burned slowly, it was used to light lamps, heat homes and cook food. Gasoline, too, was a refinery by-product. Because it exploded when ignited, it was often dumped into rivers and creeks for disposal.

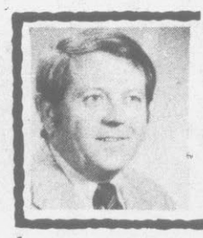

"Beware of despairing about yourself."—Saint Augustine.

Lawn Tractor Sales To Rise

CHICAGO (AP) — The fuel shortage will have no effect on lawn and garden equipment sales in 1974, according to Darwin Kettering, senior vice president for operations of Massey-Ferguson, world's largest maker of tractors, and a leading manufacturer of lawn and garden machines.

According to Kettering, industry sales of lawn and garden tractors should rise 7 per cent over 1973. Massey-Ferguson expects its own lawn equipment sales to increase by 9 per cent this year.

"The fuel shortage will force more people to stay at home this summer," said Kettering. "As a result, money spent on lawn and garden activities will show an increase. Dollars previously slated for vacation driving, motor homes, water craft and other vacation-oriented activities will be channeled to lawn and garden products."

Real Estate

By Louis E. Clark, GRI

REALTOR

TAKEOVER NOT AUTOMATIC

When buying an existing home, taking over a mortgage can be practical and profitable. But be cautious. Don't take for granted that assigning the mortgage to another is automatic.

The lender has a stake in who's going to repay him. Many mortgages are written which specifically prohibit this practice without the consent of the mortgage lender. The teeth will be found in an inserted acceleration clause which makes the whole balance due and payable upon sale.

The bank can activate or waive this clause depending on the credit rating of the buyer, maintenance of the property or spread between original and current interest rates. If the interest spread is great - don't count on a takeover mortgage.

Before you advertise "low int. mort. takeover", and set yourself up for a letdown, why not have us check your mortgage and advise you.

No doubt about it. The portable electric drill is the machine that introduces most do-it-yourselfers to the use of power tools.

It has been around for a long time, but came into its own right after World War II when home handymen discovered that modern electric tools made it feasible to tackle projects that never would have been attempted in the past. It hasn't changed very much since then, except that most new models have extra housings to guard against the possibility of electric shocks. But every year, more and more attachments are being turned out for use with the drills.

A portable drill should be purchased or at least selected by the person who will be using it most of the time. That's because it is important that it "feel" right in the hand, a factor which is also important in the proper choice of some other tools, notably a hammer.

The quarter-inch size is probably still the best seller, but the three-eighths size is becoming more and more popular. The half-inch drill is still used mostly by professionals. Size, by the way, does not refer to the size of the hole that can be drilled but to the maximum size of the shank that can be inserted in the chuck.

The chuck, which holds the bit shank, can be tightened by hand only, as in the cheaper models; or with a socket or Allen wrench; or with a geared key. When a drill comes with a wrench or key, I find it advisable to attach it to the power cord of the tool so that it is always handy when required. Nothing is more annoying than to get ready to use an electric drill and then discover that the wrench or key has been mislaid.

When driving screws or nails into wood, especially hardwood, drilling pilot holes first will make the job easier and, more important, prevent splitting. The holes should be slightly smaller than the diameters of the screws or nails being used. Also, to prevent the drill bit from "wandering" and marring the surface of the wood, make a small indentation with an awl where each hole is to be drilled. The bit point should be placed in this tiny hole before starting the drill motor. The pressure on the drill should be moderately firm, never heavy. When it is possible, back up the material with a block of wood to prevent splintering as the bit comes out on the other side.

Drills have a primary function of drilling holes, but almost anything can be done with them with the use of the proper accessories and attachments. If you have a drill and haven't done much shopping in recent years, you'd be surprised at how many things can be attached to drills these days. If you are a first-time buyer, it is well to consider the purchase of a kit that contains, in addition to the drill, at least a few of the most-used attachments.

Sweating walls and windows, balky doors and squeaky floors are among the 35 subjects discussed in Andy 'Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.

Cedar Grove, An Old Cemetery

FESTOONS OF SPANISH MOSS. . .hang from branches in an older section of Cedar Grove, forming a wind sensitive canopy above old tombstones.

THE GRIM REAPER. . .as depicted in this splendid small bas-relief, seems more friendly than ominous as he tugs gently at the hair of a young maiden.

New Bern's Cedar Grove Cemetery, one of the oldest public cemeteries in North Carolina, is more than just a burial site for the dead. Sturdy old trees, tombstone art and delicate iron fences combine to make this a final resting place of tranquility and beauty.

Iron gates of simple design stand open during daylight hours. A low wall of rough textured stone marks the cemetery's boundary. Legend has it the wall weeps. Whether this is a natural process because of the absorbent quality of the stone gathering, then releasing accumulated moisture; or whether it's attributable to a mysterious miraculous property—the legend lends a touch of romance that seems in keeping with the Old World atmosphere of Cedar Grove.

From the main gate, a carriage road winds through the cemetery. A line of old trees divide the incoming and outgoing lanes. Gnarled and bulging roots of trees push against the edges of the road, and rearrange the symmetry of low retaining walls.

In spring and summer, birds sing, dart from tree to tree, and sometimes drop to the grass to seize an insect. The smallest breeze sings in the dense foliage of trees, including a number of fine old cedars.

Any cemetery is to a degree a brief history of individuals, families, and communities. In an old cemetery such as Cedar Grove, there are histories other than those of people.

Changes in tombstone art are clearly discernible. In the late 18th and early 19th century thin slabs of stone, often curved at the top were popular choices. As the 19th century progressed, preferences were for more massive stone and granite markers, frequently monumental in size. Many of these are sky-pointing obelisks, some modified with decorative devices or statues resting on the flattened pinnacle. Tombstones of more recent decades of the 20th century tend to be simplified and smaller in size.

Scattered here and there among the more commonly inscribed stones are a few excellent examples of tombstone art, such as the Grim Reaper and the Young Maiden and a cascading bouquet of stems, leaves, flowers and buds carved in bas-relief shown in photographs on this page.

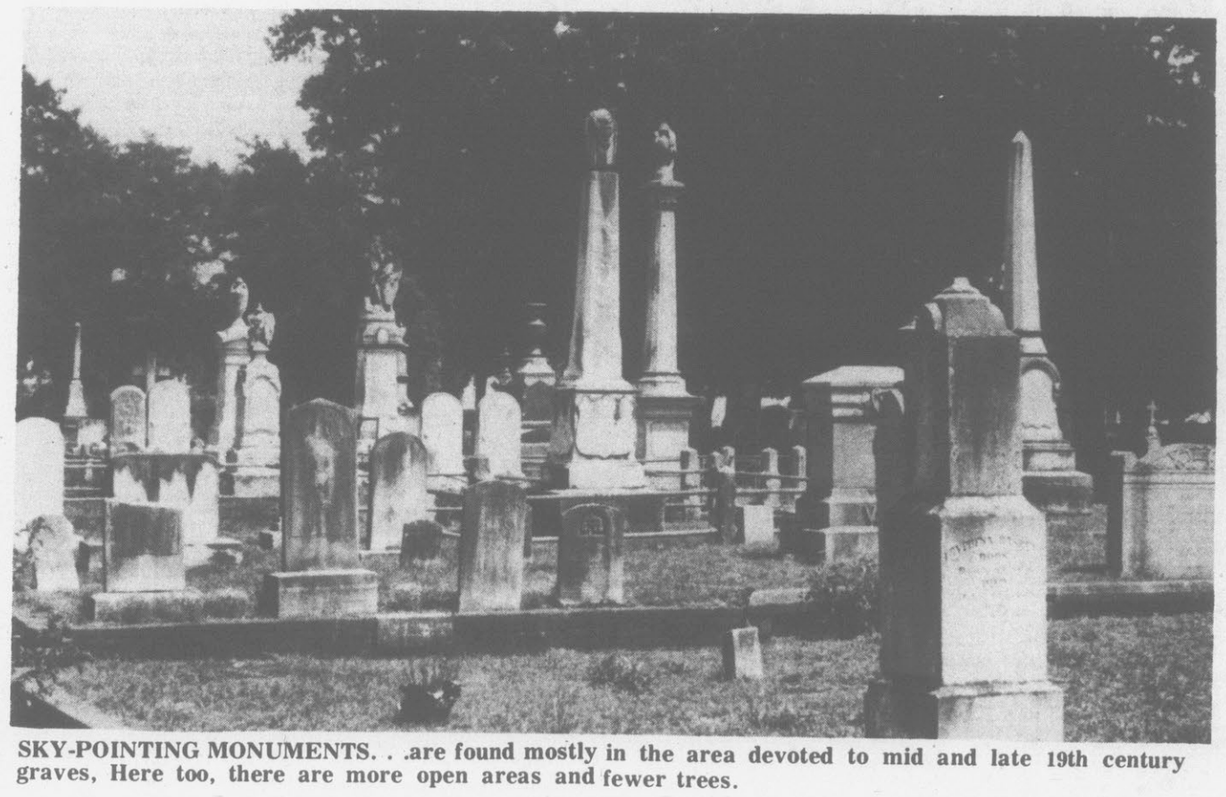

There's also several good examples of fine wrought iron designs in fences enclosing family plots, with an occasional elaborate iron gate of intricate fugures and landscapes. A circular pool is filled with vivid goldfish streaking in and out of the openings among tangles of dark green water plants.

Changes are evident too in attitudes of cemetery landscaping. In the older areas, trees are more plentiful, and open areas between family sites are considerably more spacious than in the newer areas.

Rambling through an old cemetery might not be everyone's idea of ideal sightseeing. But for those inclined to a time of solitude in a place where nature has mellowed the art of stone and iron, a stroll through Cedar Grove Cemetery can be a refreshing, a rewarding experience.

SKY-POINTING MONUMENTS. . .are found mostly in the area devoted to mid and late 19th century graves, Here too, there are more open areas and fewer trees.

Energy Crisis Boosts Busing

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS (UPI) — Paris buses lumber along with the sign, "buses save energy" or "gasoline is scarce". Electric battery buses have rolled into service in Manchester, England. And the number of bus customers in Denver, Colo., has risen 22 per cent since the energy crisis began.

A new report by an international research organization, Eurofinance, says that out of the ashes of the oil emergency is rising resurrected the once-dying bus.

Europe and the United States currently are working on 50 new bus models or systems, the report says, adding:

"Most of the cities of Europe and North America are in grave difficulty over transportation because of the energy crisis, slow strangulation of traffic, loss of travel time for commuters, pollution, and deficit-ridden public transit systems."

Short of putting the population back on bicycles, the solution is the good old bus, according to the report distributed to ministries of transport, banks and city governments.

Cheaper Than Subways

The main advantage of the bus over subways is that the bus can be pressed into service faster and is much cheaper.

"For the cost of Washington's new subway system you could buy new buses for every major city in the country," said Francis Britton, an American and one of the engineers, economists and scientists who spent a year making the report.

West Germany leads the list with 11 new types of buses under development. Next comes Great Britain with 10, the United States 9, France 8, the Netherlands 4, Switzerland 3, Italy 2 and one each for Austria, Norway and Sweden.

More than 30 of the new buses do not use petroleum-based fuels. And the other 17 economize on fuel.

The United States has developed a steam bus. The Netherlands, Germany and Sweden are working on an engine that could use any fuel from cow dung to leaves. Thirteen types of electric battery buses have been built in Norway, Germany, the United States and France.

"Space Bus"

Austria's new ultra-modern, square-looking "steyr" bus is rolling around Vienna, powered by natural gas. Norwegian engineers redesigned a bus from scratch and came up with an experimental machine that looks like a van. Made from techniques and materials used for U.S. space ships, the bus is so lightweight that it uses little fuel.

The United States recorded a 1.4 per cent gain in passengers on city public transportation in 1973, the first increase in decades, apparently caused by the gasoline shortage. U.S. buses, subways and commuter trains had been losing passengers at the rate of four to six per cent a year since 1950.

The experts do not agree whether faster buses, more frequent service and reduced fares would pull more people out of automobiles and thus reduce pollution and traffic congestion. A Cambridge, Mass., research firm says people would give up their cars if buses were more comfortable, frequent and fast.

But Rome tried free bus rides in 1972 and investigation indicated most of the new passengers were former pedestrians, not motorists.

Efficiency Is Money-Saver

NEW YORK (AP) — Consumers should check a number of appliances before making a purchase, says Arthur D. Little, the international research and management consulting firm. The best air conditioners can cool a house as well as less efficient models while using less than half the amount of electricity.

The price differences of a more expensive but more efficient model can be recovered within a year, the firm points out. The same is true of other electric appliances such as small cookers, grills, toasters, frypans, fondue pots, etc.

TO PROBE VENUS—The drawing shows a multiprobe spacecraft proposed for intensive study of the Venus atmosphere beginning in 1978. The planetary exploration program will be carried out by two separately launched spacecrafts: a probe-laden bus, above, and an orbiter. The vehicle will carry one large atmospheric probe and three identical small probes. The large probe will descend through the Venus atmosphere by parachute to an altitude of about 44 kilometers where it will jetison the parachute and free-fall to the planet's surface. The smaller probes will be targeted to sample the Venus weather at locations 5,000 miles apart. Their mission ends when they land on the surface. (AP Wirephoto)

(1) Gas Allocation?

The Rev. C. Norman Bennett Jr. performed the double ring ceremony. A program of organ music was presented by Joseph Goodwin, organist. Mrs. Earlene Stocks sang "When God Gave Me You," "The Song of Ruth" and the "Wedding Prayer."

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Givens of Greenville and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Bruce L. Mills of Greenville.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal length white lace gown featuring a princess silhouette design with a high neckline encircled with white satin ribbon edged in lace. Matching trim extended over the gown front to the hem, centered with tiny satin covered buttons. Ribbon and lace also edged the long fitted lace sleeves. The bride wore an heirloom pin of her great great grandmother's.

She wore a chapel length white illusion mantilla edged in chantilly lace to match the gown. The bride carried a cascade of white carnations and pom pons.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Charles Rose of Greenville. She was dressed in a formal length sleeveless gown of organza in floral shades of hot pint, lavender, maize and lime green over light pink taffeta. The gown was designed with a portrait neckline accentuated by a double ruffled collar of the floral organza. The empire waistline was encircled with moss green velvet ribbon, with a bow in back. A flared ruffled flounce of organza edged the hemline of the flared A-line skirt. She wore a garden hat in hot pink. She carried a long-stem pink mum with streamers of hot pink, lavender, and green.

Bridesmaids were Vickie Garris, Mary Alice Smith, and Ann Dail, all of Greenville. Their dresses and hats were identical to the honor attendant. They carried long-stem yellow mums with streamers.

Miss Tiffney Carmichael, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Carmichael, and Miss Susan Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Harris, cousins of the bride-groom, were flower girls. They wore floor length white organza over white peau de soie gowns. The empire waistline was encircled with hot pink velvet ribbon. They carried baskets of pom pons.

Kevin Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Baker, of Greenville was ring bearer.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Charles Rose, Lynn Banks and Rick Boles, all of Greenville.

The chancel of the church was centered with a basket of gladioli, mums, and pom pons. On each side, seven branch candelabras filled with greenery and palm trees were used. The couple knelt for the benediction on a white prie-dieu.

The mother of the bride was dressed in a formal length gown of pink knit. The mother of the bridegroom was attired in a formal length gown of mint green knit. Both mothers wore corsages of carnations.

Mrs. Thomas Broadrick directed the wedding.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride is employed with Pitt Surgical Associates, Inc., Greenville. The bridegroom attended Lenoir Community College and is now employed with the Greenville Fire Department.

Reception

The refreshment table was covered with white satin and centered with an arrangement of pink snapdragons, carnations and pom pons. The table was also enhanced with nosegays of pink and white ribbon.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Barrington presided at the bride's register.

Mrs. Russell Jones of Virginia and Mrs Raymond Spain of Greenville served the cake after it was cut by the bridal couple. Mrs. Ed Jones and Mrs. Authur Wayne of Greenville poured punch.

Goody-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Herman Phelps.

Pre-nuptial events honoring the Mills-Givens wedding party included a rehearsal party Friday night given by the parents of the bridegroom in the church fellowship hall. Guests included members of the wedding party and invited guests.

Customs Vary Throughout U.S.

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: In my work I deal with the public. My supervisor told me that the use of the words "ma'am" and "sir" is not proper—that a "thank you," or a simple "yes" or "no" is sufficient.

He insists that when one uses "ma'am" and "sir" he implies that he is socially beneath the person he is speaking to.

Is my supervisor correct? I don't share his views.

NORTH CAROLINA

DEAR NORTH: I don't share his views either. But customs vary in different parts of the country [or world]. In Iowa, where I grew up, "ma'am" and "sir" were used to show respect and had nothing to do with one's social position.

DEAR ABBY: I have been a widower for only ten months, and all I want is to be left alone. I am constantly pestered by widows, divorcees and wives whose husbands don't pay any attention to them. Also, people with the "have-I-got-a-girl-for-you!" routine. You wouldn't believe the propositions I get.

When I try to bow out politely, they say: "What's the matter, are you some kind of queer?"

Last week a young neighbor from across the street came over with a pie and a story about how lonely she was with her kids in school all day and her husband on the road. Then came the proposition. I finally had to ask her to leave.

This morning while taking a shower I heard someone breaking through my front door. It was the lady next door. She said she just happened to see me through my bathroom window, and I looked like maybe I wasn't feeling well so she came over to see if there was anything she could do for me. I had a terrible time getting rid of her. After that, I pulled down my shades and bolted my door. I'm a prisoner in my own house!

I even put a sign on my front door "Were you invited?" But everyone thinks I mean somebody else.

I am not particularly good-looking. I try not to hurt anyone's feelings, but I don't want anyone pestering me. What should I do? NO NAME OR ADDRESS

DEAR NO: You've put out a sign, bolted your door, and given no one the slightest encouragement. All that's left is a watchdog and a barbed wire fence.

DEAR ABBY: I am 49 and going through my menopause. I have hounded my gynecologist for help, but I can't get any satisfaction from him, so I'm asking you. How can I be absolutely sure I won't get pregnant? [I have three grandchildren!]

My husband is 50, and we're not sex maniacs or anything like that, but we do get together once in a while, and I am living in fear that I'll find myself pregnant with a change-of-life baby. I have told my doctor that, and he said: "Don't worry—women your age seldom get pregnant." Abby, I don't want to take any chances, but my doctor says I don't need to take any precautions.

Is he right? Am I foolish to be concerned? Can you recommend something to ease my mind? NEEDS ADVICE

DEAR NEEDS: You need more than advice. You need another doctor. Even though the chances of your becoming pregnant are small, it's possible! I don't blame you for wanting to be absolutely sure. If you don't know another gynecologist, your Planned Parenthood Clinic can give you competent medical advice and recommend the most ideal method of contraception for a woman your age. Good luck.

Vienna Blooms Internationally

By WERNER VOLLMANN

VIENNA (AP) — Some 25 acres in the south of Vienna that film pioneers once used for location shots have been turned into a giant garden to host the International Flower and Garden Show (WIG) 1974, which runs through October 14.

Officials predict that about four million people will wander through the area of flower beds and small lakes during the six-month exhibition.

Other features are a hotel and a medical center, next to a fast-growing housing area which replaced the wooden sheds, dusty factory buildings and ponds of long-vanished brick industry. The ponds and the unkempt shrubbery of the so-called Oberlaa area fascinated the filmmakers in the 1920s and 1930s.

Ten countries have their own exhibits and about 30 are exhibiting specialties of their regions in indoor shows.

It is the second Flower and Gardening Show here, the first one, in 1964, having been staged in the north of Vienna. It rehabilitated an area of city dumps and gravel yards and turned it into such a landscaping jewel box that it was decided to build Vienna's United Nations City there as headquarters for such international organizations as the International Atomic Energy Agency and the U.N. Industrial Development Organization.

Big things are also expected from the 1974 show on the opposite side of the city. The nearby housing project will eventually provide homes for 20,000 Viennese. Furthermore, a rich thermal sulphur spring is to be the center of a new health resort.

The medical center, called Kurmittelhaus, was opened earlier this year. Eventually it will provide thermal sulphur treatment for some 3,000 patients, most for rheumatism. A 520-bed hotel in the immediate vicinity will cater to people seeking treatment at the center, but also to tourists who just want to be away from the noise of the city.

West German gardening expert Erich Hanke won the competition to provide the overall design for the landscaping. He did not send bulldozers in to flatten the area as some of the other architects had suggested, but instead left the natural soft slope intact. He put the rose garden—the center of the show—around one of the low hills.

Besides the rose garden, there are the "Gardens of the Nations," the shrub garden, the water garden, paradise garden, concert garden and other attractions including a display of herbs.

In addition to the indoor exhibits, officials predict the "Gardens of the Nations" will probably draw the most visitors. Belgium, West Germany, Czechoslovakia, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, Switzerland, Spain and Hungary have their own gardens.

For the Japanese exhibit 30 tons of rocks were shipped from Japan to Oberlaa to make the garden as authentic as possible.

Adults are invited to play in colorful surroundings of an "Erwachsenenspielplatz" (playground for grownups) or can visit an industrial exhibit.

The planners did not forget the children. On the northwestern part of the area there are three playgrounds called "Earth," "Moon" and "Universe."

"Earth" is an everyday playground that offers children sand to play with. The "Moon" has a grayish ground and bizarrely-shaped objects. A series of modern playthings excites the imagination of children in the "Universe."

There are about 15 miles of sidewalks, paths and roads crisscrossing the area. Those who prefer transportation to walking can ride a monorail train or a "panorama" train.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Now that many of us are using eggs as a main dish for supper, it behooves us to find interesting ways to serve them. Recently a friend reminded me that Huevos a la Flamenca, a delightful way of treating eggs, is a popular dish in Spain and that it should be better known in our country. It is offered all over Spain although — as you would suspect from its name — it originated in southern Spain, home of the flamenco dance.

Here then is an American version of Huevos a la Flamenca. As in Spain, the ingredients may be varied: ham may be used instead of sausage, peas or snap beans instead of the mixed vegetables. The seasoning, too, may be changed: the sherry may be omitted and minced parsley added.

SPANISH BAKED EGGS

- 4 ounces chorizo, sliced (see note below)
- ¼ cup chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons water
- 1 tablespoon dry sherry
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen mixed vegetables
- ½ of a 10-ounce package frozen asparagus spears, cut in 1-inch pieces
- 1 large tomato, diced
- ¼ cup sliced pimiento-stuffed green olives
- 6 eggs

In a hot 10-inch skillet, cook through and brown chorizo, turning slices with a spatula. With a slotted spoon, remove chorizo and drain on paper toweling.

To drippings in skillet add onion and cook gently, stirring often, until golden. Add water, sherry, mixed vegetables, asparagus pieces and tomato; with a wooden spoon, break up mixed vegetables, if necessary, as they thaw; cover and simmer until vegetables are tender. Stir in chorizo and olives. Turn into a 2-quart shallow baking dish; level with a spatula.

Break an egg into a saucer; slide carefully, making sure yolk does not break, onto top of vegetable mixture. Repeat for each egg, spacing so that vegetable mixture is covered. Tightly cover baking dish — with foil if necessary.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until eggs are set — 15 to 20 minutes. To garnish, you may use extra sliced olives and cook the remaining ½ package of asparagus spears.

Makes 6 servings.

Note: Chorizo is a Spanish sausage flavored with garlic and paprika; it is sold in some supermarkets and stores specializing in Spanish products. If it is unavailable, use sweet or hot Italian sausage.

Four hundred recipes are given in the illustrated "Cecily Brownstone's Associated Press Cookbook" available by sending $4.95 (check or money order made payable to "The Associated Press") to this newspaper in care of AP COOKBOOK, Box G4, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.

ECU Alumna To Perform With Opera Company

Jacqueline Willis Rausch, an alumna of the East Carolina University School of Music, has signed a contract to perform with the Chatauqua, N.Y., Opera Company this summer.

The company has scheduled seven works for performance, including "la Traviata," "La Boheme," "Don Giovanni," "La Cenerentola," "Merry Mount," "Philip Marshall," and "West Side Story."

Ms. Rausch will sing the soprano roles of Musetta in "La Boheme" and Liz in "Philip Marshall," and will sing with the chorus in the other five operas.

The Chantauqua season runs from June 18 through August 19. Twenty-four singers were selected for tihs summer among applicants throughout the eastern U.S.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Willis of Route 1, Morehead City, Ms. Rausch is a 1966 graduate of West Carteret High School and a 1972 graduate of ECU, where she studied voice with Gladys White.

During her study at ECU, she was a frequent lead singer in campus choral and operatic performances.

Company Ends Cat Crisis

GANGES, France (WNS)—Nobody objected when Marguerite Apolloni, 65, retired from the stocking factory, but a strike was threatened when she announced that she was taking her 16-year-old cat with her. Mme. Apolloni replied, "I know he's over 100 years old in human terms and he needs the rest more than I do." Trouble was averted when the company bought three cats to succeed aging Minou.

NAIW Week Proclamation Signed By Mayor

The week of May 19-25 has been proclaimed on a national level as National Insurance Women's Week. Here in Greenville, Mayor S. Eugene West has joined in the proclamation honoring the Pitt County Association of Insurance Women.

The National Association (NAIW) was founded in 1940 and now has over 15,000 members in 325 affiliated associations. The Pitt County Association has been organized for one year and there are 29 members.

The purpose of the insurance women's association is to encourage and foster practical and coordinated educational programs in the insurance industry. The major objective is higher education and the major project is public safety.

The purposes and objectives have been promoted through educational classes organized and sponsored by NAIW members. In 1968, NAIW announced the Certified Professional Insurance Woman (CPIW) as a designation of professionalism for its members. The emblem of CPIW gives evidence to employers and associates of the high standards of the individual in achieving professionalism.

The Pitt County Chapter has been active on the city, county, state and regional levels since its organization last year. They have sponsored many radio spots during the national holidays, a safety booth at the Pitt County Fair and the Lock You Car Campaign. At the present time they are working on "Project Drive" for the Driver's Education Classes taught in the public schools. This is an effort to educate the future motoring public to better understand the insurance industry and the need for insurance.

Miss Donna Kay Hines, laughter of Mr. and Mrs. Connie Bryant Hines Sr. of Greenville, became the bride of Robert Thomas George Jr. Saturday at :00 p.m.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Charles Crisp at the Greenville First Free Will Baptist Church. A program of organ music was presented by Mrs. Ruth Taylor. Connie Bryant Hines, Jr., brother of the bride, sang "The Twelfth of Never," "I Can't Help Falling In Love With You," and "My Sweet Lady." The bride and bridegroom sang the "Wedding Prayer."

The bride, givien in marriage by her father, wore a formal length gown designed and made by her mother. The skirt of the gown consisting of alternating panels of candlelight silk shantung, overlaid with sheer silk organza and alencon lace, was styled with a shaped bodice rising above the waist. The bodice was of alencon lace, with seed pearls centered in each flower and underlined with sheer organza and silk shantung, continuing to the top of the leg o'mutton sleeves. The scalloped scoop neckline and end of the top sleeve were accented with Venise lace embroidered with pearls. Alencon lace flower appliques centered with seed pearls cascaded down the front panel of organza on the skirt. A scalloped edging of lace and seed pearls embroidered on the hem surrounded the full length of the gown.

She wore a cathedral length illusion veil with arm-length and elbow length tiers attached to an open Camelot headpiece of Venise lace, beaded in pearls. The bride carried a Victorian cascade bouquet of gardenias, stephanotis and ivory roses, centered with an orchid.

Miss Lisa Darlene Hines, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. She wore a formal length, empire waist gown made by her mother. Designed with an A-line skirt of buttercup yellow polyester crepe, the bodice was covered with yellow and white flower embroided organza while the scoop neckline featured a wide circular ruffle of matching organza. She wore a headpiece of yellow velvet ribbon looped with flowers at the sides matching her white wickered basket which was overflowing with spring flowers, nested in baby's breathe. Accenting the basket were streamers of champagne satin ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Miss Wendy George of Angola, N.Y., sister of the bridegroom, Miss Elaine Evans of Clinton, Miss Rhonda King of Fremont, and Mrs. Patricia Basden of Dudley. They wore gowns and caried baskets styled identical to that of the maid of honor in romance blue.

Flower girl was Sharon Woolard of Washington, cousin of the bride. She wore a formal length gown and headpiece of yellow matching the maid of honor. She carried a miniature basket of spring flowers.

The father of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Dave Shuford of Jacksonville, Bryant Hines, brother of the bride, Clyde Hines, uncle of the bride, Alton Stocks, Bennie Perry, Jerry Griffin, all of Greenville.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Roselind Johnston and Mrs. Genova Lewis of Greenville.

The mother of the bride chose a formal length dress of blue imported crepe de chine and wore a wrist corsage of ivory cymbidium orchids. The bridegroom's mother selected a pink formal length dress of polyester and wore a wrist corsage of ivory cymbidium orchids.

The couple will reside in Bethesda, Md.

The bride is a graduate of Winterville High School and Bowman Gray School of Radiologic Technology Winston-Salem. For the past year, she has been instructor at the Wilson Memorial School of Radiologic Technology.

The bridegroom attended the State University of New York at Fredonia, New York and is a graduate of National Naval Medical Center School of Radiologic Technology, Bethesda, Md. He is presently with the U. S. Navy.

An after-rehearsal dinner honoring the bridal couple and out-of-town guests was given Friday night at Tom's Restaurant.

Vintage Romance Changes Rules

ROEHAMPTON, England (WNS)—Revolt broke out in the Old Folks Home here when Mary Warden, 72, was prohibited from dating Henry Laverick, 84. Regulations forbade the romance because Laverick lives 300 yards away from the home. President Henry White promptly threatened to resign if the rules were not changed. "We will not have a Romeo and Juliet tragedy," he promised, and the rules committee agreed. "True love must always win for old folks, too."

Broccoli should be cooked in a covered pan, but the cover should be removed several times during the cooking because this helps to keep the broccoli green. Give other green vegetables this same treatment.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Since 1968, there has been a dramatic decrease in big families. Today 48 per cent say 2.1 children is the ideal family.

Where does that leave me? Somewhere between the propagation of the faith, the population explosion and 1.1 surplus kid at my dinner table.

And don't think I haven't paid dearly for my 1.1 overflow. To begin with, he fouled up the family vote. We used to vote even, at two-all, which left some room for persuasion. Since he arrived, my hsuband and I haven't won a decision in 15 years. Whether it is a vote on a vacation site, what TV show we are going to watch, or whether or not parents are to be impeached, the vote is always the same: Kids, 3—Parents, 2.

I am not being dramatic when I say this is a two-child-geared society. If the Good Lord had meant for people to have more than two children, he would have put more than two windows in the back seat of the car. We once threatened to put one on the front fender and the other two cried because they each wanted one.

A popsicle can only be divided two ways. There are two pairs of shoelaces in a package, so that one child always goes around with gym shoes that flop off his feet when he walks. There are only four chairs to a dinette set (so that one never matches) and four breakfast sweet rolls to a package.

We always had one too many for a rowboat, and when we rode the Ferris wheel, it was two to a seat and the odd one always rode alone like an only child.

Few people realize this, but did you know that a No. 2 can of fruit cocktail contains only two marischino cherries? This means when you divide two marischino cherries between three children, two are happy and the other one runs right out and retains F. Lee Bailey to fight a cherry custody suit.

Chores are geared toward twos—one washed dishes and the other dries, but what does the third child do? He becomes a useless bum and grows up to steal hubcaps.

Bunk beds come in twos. There are two sinks to a bathroom, two Hostess Twinkies to a package and free circus tickets come in pairs.

I mentioned this to the kids the other night and half-kiddingly said, "You know what this means, don't you? One of you has to go. Just for kicks, let's take a vote on it."

When the votes were counted, it was 4-1. I had been phased out of the family.

Red Tape Slows Coal Gasification Plant Program

By JOHN A. WEBSTER

ALBUQUERQUE, N. (UPI) — Construction of a series of coal gasification plants in Northwestern New Mexico should begin early next year, provided the companies can obtain permits from federal, state and Navajo tribal officials.

"It's a time consuming phase," said Joseph Byrne of WESCO, one of two companies which seek approval to build the plants. "We want to be sure that we comply with all the requirements, but we would like to see the process streamlined."

WESCO, a joint venture of the Texas Eastern Transmission Corp. of Houston and the Pacific Lighting Corp. of Los Angeles, still needs five separate approvals before it can start construction, Byrne said.

The other firm which has filed applications to construct the coal conversion plants, El Paso Natural Gas Co. (EPNG), could start work on a pilot plant this year if it receives federal approval, but Doug Meed of EPNG's public relations office said construction on the major plant won't start before the spring of 1975.

Plan Four Plants

"It's a long, involved process with a large number of government agencies and it takes a considerable amount of time," Meed said. "We first got into hearings in September of 1972."

WESCO and EPNG plan to build their plants, which produce gas by heating coal under pressure, in the Burnham area of the Navajo Reservation, about 30-35 miles southwest of Farmington, N.M.

Byrne said WESCO's present applications are for one plant, costing about $447 million, but he said the company planned to eventually build four gasification plants in the area. EPNG plans to build two complexes at a cost of about $420 million each.

Meed said producing synthetic natural gas involves subjecting the coal "to a great deal of pressure and heat. You're actually cooking the coal rather than burning it.

Decision Awaited

"What you get, in essence, is a methane gas which is compatible, when you finally finish the process, with the natural we run through our pipeline."

Both companies have made arrangements to mine the coal from the area where the plants are scheduled to be built and ship it through existing pipelines.

"We're in the process of trying to get all the approvals we need in hand," Byrne said. "We hope to have them all by the end of this year. If so, we will start construction early next year."

He said the company needed to complete leasing arrangements with the Navajo tribe which would encompass "employment agreements, lease payments and the environmental situation."

TRADEMARK — A pool table has become one of the Jackie Gleason trademarks . . . his first job was racking up billard balls in a poolhall. Here Jackie teaches his hostess, Julie Andrews, an elegant four-cushion shot, when "Julie Andrews and Jackie Gleason . . . Together" do a musical-comedy hour on Wednesday, May 22 (9-10 p.m.) on channel 3-5-12.

Jackie Joins Julie In Show

Jackie Gleason — "The Great One" — makes a rare guest star television appearance when he joins Julie Andrews for the "Julie Andrews and Jackie Gleason . . ." special, Wednesday, May 22 (9-10 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12.

A dedicated Gleason fan, Julie devotes this hour to paying tribute to Jackie's varied and enormously successful career.

Together, they will recreate some of the characters Gleason first made famous on television in "The Honeymooners," and on "The Jackie Gleason Show" — the Poor Soul, Reggie Van Gleason, Joe the Bartender and the Honeymooners.

They'll do scenes from some of his movies — like "The Hustler"; from his Broadway show, "Take Me Along," and explore other facets of his career, which began back in burlesque.

There's a wonderful chemistry between Miss Andrews and Gleason which will provide an unusual opportunity for first-rate entertainment.

The combination allows Miss Andrews to use her superb talent for comedy, and affords the viewing audience the chance to enjoy the tremendously versatile Jackie Gleason.

The special taped in London the end of April, posed a difficult problem for Gleason — he never flies. But in honor of this very special event, the man who played "Away-y-y-y we go!" and "How Sweet It Is" into the American language, made his first transatlantic flight in over 20 years.

Through all of the many years of his popularity, Gleason's railroad excursions have always provided interesting and often hilarious copy for the press and enjoyment for the public.

Gleason, frequently praised as one of America's great comic artists, also has been honored for his skills as an actor. He is the winner of Broadway's coveted Tony Award for his performance in "Take Me Along."

In addition, he has been applauded around the world for his memorable performances in such motion pictures as "Requiem for a Heavyweight," "Gigot," "The Hustler" and "Papa's Delicate Condition."

Gleason's climb to stardom is not an overnight success story. He said: "I knew I had a lot of hard work ahead of me before I achieved my goals. I didn't mind every much. I knew I would eventually get them. And it turned out right. It has been a happy story."

At the beginning, though, the odds were against "a happy story."

Gleason was born in Brooklyn, New York, Feb. 26, 1916. His mother earned a modest salary as a subway change clerk. His father disappeared when Gleason was eight years old.

His first job was as a rackboy in a local poolroom. Not a shy boy, Gleason soon learned the skills of the felt-covered table.

High spirited and cool with a cue, Gleason at one point impersonated a reigning New York pool whiz who called himself The Masked Marvel.

The star also tried stunt-driving off a pier at Atlantic City but he quickly turned to show business on dry land, with the emphasis on a boyhood talent for getting laughs.

He soon was appearing in nightclubs.

His knack for giving depth to his characters took him from night spots to his first important television work in "The Life of Riley."

He went on to star in some of the most successful weekly comedy shows in television history.

Roles Followed Their Work In Candy Shop

If Jessica Walter hadn't gotten a job in a little candy store in New York City, she might not have starred with James Garner in the motion picture "Grand Prix" or opposite Clint Eastwood in "Play Misty for Me" or in a special upcoming episode of "Ironside."

As a lady cop who is promoted to San Francisco's Chief of Detectives, Miss Walter guest-stars in the two-hour "Ironside" colorcast of "Amy Prentiss, AKA: The Chief" Thursday, May 23 (9-11 p.m.), on channel 6.

After two years at the Neighborhood Playhouse in New York, Jessica and her friend Brenda Vaccaro were graduated. "There we were," Miss Walter recalled, "with our diplomas in our hands and nothing in our pockets."

Jessica remembers that after the graduation rites, such as they were, she and Brenda were ambling along the sidewalk in a rather dispirited manner when they noticed a "Help Wanted" sign in the window of a candy store.

In they went and were hired. "As it turned out," said Jessica, "we did everything there was to do with the candy. We made it, packed it and sold it. We ran the place. And that was OK with our boss. He was a dear."

A CHIEF, with no Indians: Jessica Walter guest-stars as policewoman Amy Prentiss, who is promoted to chief of detectives, resulting in the mass resignation of her male staff. The two-hour "Ironside" drama will be seen Thursday (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 6.

What was important to them about "running the place" was that payday put something in their pockets; they could use the phone whenever they wanted; and their adjustable work schedules allowed them to get to auditions for acting roles.

The free phone and flexible work schedule paid off: Jessica got small roles on TV, which led to parts on Broadway and eventually to movies.

Now comes "Amy Prentiss," and who knows after that? There's no telling how far you can go if you start out in the right candy store.

Guest stars on the "Amy Prentise" story include William Shatner, Robert Webber, Art Metrano and Jack Soo — all playing detective officers who find themselves with a woman for a boss. Pippa Scott portrays a newspaper reporter.

The guest stars join "Ironside" series star Raymond Burr, as Chief Ironside, and co-stars Don Galloway, Don Mitchell and Elizabeth Baur in their regular roles as his aides.

Hearings To Be Carried Live

The formal hearings of the House Judiciary Committee in its impeachment investigation will be broadcast live on a rotational basis by the television networks with the first open hearing scheduled for Tuesday, May 21.

The rotation plan will assure live nationwide television broadcasting of the hearings and provide the public with a wider choice of television programming.

ABC will carry the first scheduled day of hearings, CBS the second day, and NBC the third day.

Although each network, in turn, will assume primary responsibility for carrying the hearings live, any network may provide complete or partial live or recorded broadcasts on the days when it does not have the primary broadcast responsibility.

Nine-Year-Old Is Seasoned Actress

Actress Kim Richards is the picture of innocence. The golden-haired beauty possesses a refreshing naivete that endears her to practically everyone she meets.

But looks can be deceiving. Beneath Kim's girlish exterior beats the heart of a seasoned professional actress—quite remarkable for a nine-year-old.

Kim, who stars as the pixieish sister of a precocious young inventor in the mystery adventure, "The Whiz Kid and the Mystery at Riverton," airing on "The Wonderful World of Disney," Sunday evenings, May 19 and 26, on Channel 6-7, is a dynamo of energy and affection.

She has starred in two TV series to date, "Nanny and the Professor" and "Here We Go Again," and has recently completed filming on "The Year of the Big Cat," a two-part wilderness adventure.

Disney was so impressed with Kim last year when she starred in "Whiz Kid" and a western entitled "Hog Wild," that they offered her a three-year contract, something the studio hasn't done for five years.

Born in New York, Kim's career as an actress began, would you believe, when she was five months old. Her mother, Kathy Richards, recalls how her daughter broke into show business.

"They were looking for a baby to model disposable diapers for a TV commercial and Kim's playfulness sold them. Kimmy didn't know what it meant to be shy; she was a natural."

More commercials followed for the hazel-eyed youngster who moved to California with her parents in the mid-sixties. She won the role of Prudence in "Nanny," guested on other TV shows and appeared in dozens of commercials long before she reached five. Her unaffected charm has graced nearly 90 commercials to date.

How does the petite Kimmy react to all this attention and success? With a shrug of the shoulders and wide-eyed excitement.

"I really enjoy working in TV and movies," she says in her peculiarly deep husky voice developed at age three. "I don't work for the money, although some of my school chums think I do. I act because I like it."

TRIO OF SLEUTHS . . Eric Shea (on phone), Kim Richards and Clay O'Brien win positions in their local city government for a day and accidentally uncover a swindle to defraud Riverton of $200,000 in "The Whiz Kid and the Mystery at Riverton," airing on "The Wonderful World of Disney," Sunday evenings May 19 and 26 and on NBC-TV.

TRANSFORMATIONS

Amazing changes can be wrought inexpensively with some cans of bright paint or rolls of wallpaper. Old furniture gets a new lease on life with a colorful coat of paint or can take on a totally new look with a graphic or stencilled pattern. The mystique of hanging wallcovering has been shattered ever since the advent of pre-trimming and pre-pasting. Try it and see how easy it is for you.
Try and see how easy it is to have a comfortable and attractive living room with new wall to wall carpeting. We have a very large selection for your convenience. Off Screen Life Unlike TV Roles

On screen, they are Joe Mannix and Barnaby Jones, tough, singular men without wives or children to encumber their work as private detectives.

Off screen, they are respectively Mike Connors and Buddy Ebsen, the stars of "THE MYSTERY DOUBLE FEATURE: Mannix-Barnaby Jones," on Channel 3N-9-11. Unlike their alter egos, they are devoted family men.

The time required to make both hour-long series is long and arduous, and can easily drive a wedge between an actor and his family.

"You have to work very hard at being a husband and a father in this business," Connors says. "At the end of the day, when I get home, I'm talked out. Still, I have to take time to sit with my wife and kids and go over their day and tell them about mine."

Ebsen agrees. With three children still at home, including a teen-age son and daughter, Ebsen says he sees that on weekends he goes dune-buggy riding with his son Dusty, or watches daughter Kiki in an equestrian competition.

A check with Connors and Ebsen on their weekends often produces identical activities—swimming, horseback riding, a family barbecue and, perhaps, a visit with friends.

What about those lavish Hollywood parties? "Who's got the time?" Ebsen asks. "Who's got the energy?" Connors wants to know.

SPY DRAMA — Ex-spy Elena Standish (Dana Wynter) offers to help Commissioner McMillan (Rock Hudson, left) and spy chief Mark Errickson (Steve Forrest) in cracking a difficult case, in "Man Without a Face," a McMillan & Wife segment of "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie" to be colorcast on Sunday, May 19 (8:30-10:30 p.m.) on channel 6-7.

Belgian Congo Setting For Sunday Drama

Jim Brown, Rod Taylor, Yvette Mimieux and Kenneth More star in "Dark of the Sun," a realistic drama set against the background of the violent conflict in the Belgian Congo in the early 1960s.

This agonizing story of rebels, mercenaries, refugees and murderers will be presented in its television premiere on "ABC Sunday Night Movie," May 19 (8:30-10:30 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12.

John Cardiff ("Sons and Lovers") directed the drama of a war-torn nation, where children are casually murdered on behalf of a "cause"; money means more than lives, and a new nation brings out the best and worst in heroes and cowards.

Dinah Remembers: First, A Woman

DINAH'S PLACE — Dinah Shore has been welcoming celebrities to share their culinary secrets and join her in songs for the past three years in her special place at NBC. Colorcast every morning (Monday-Friday) 10-10:30 a.m. Danny Thomas is pictured above with Dinah during a recent visit.

"A female performer in television walks a perilous line.

"Being a female star, and yet not being a dominating woman, is to walk on eggs, for there is nothing less attractive than a woman who has lost sight of the fact that she is first a woman."

These words are from the leading lady of daytime television, Dinah Shore. Dinah's program is often categorized as a "morning talk show."

"Our guests," she says, "show our viewers how to do things, they don't just talk about them."

Dinah Shore has done and continues to do quite a lot.

She is an avid golfer; she is a member of the board of directors of the May Company, a chain of department stores; and she still finds time to do needlepoint, to play tennis, to cook, to be mother to her two children, Melissa Ann (Missy) and John David ("Jody").

It was a long way from her days as Frances Rose Shore, cheerleader at Hume Fogg High School in Nashville, Tenn.

College studies came next at Vanderbilt University (Nashville) but Dinah was also interested in singing.

In her sophomore year she had her own 15-minute radio show on WMS, Nashville. She opened her show with the song "Dinah" and used the same song in an audition for disc jockey Martin Block several years later.

He called her "Dinah" because he couldn't remember "Frances." She has used the name since.

After receiving her Bachelor of Arts degree in sociology Dinah tackled New York and she teamed with another young singer, Frank Sinatra, on radio station WNEW.

A two-week engagement at the Strand Theatre followed. Her work impressed bandleader Xavier Cugat, for whom she made her first recordings.

She kept moving up the ladder: She sang as a "fill in" artist for NBC Radio, held a featured spot on the Chamber Music Society of Lower Basin Street broadcasts, was heard on the Ben Bernie radio program, and then, for three years, was on Eddie Cantor's NBC Radio show which established her as a national star.

Daytime Juror

Joel Crothers, who plays Julian Cannell in "Somerset," was summoned for jury duty, and the writers of the daytime series decided to "put him on jury duty" in the script as well. Several fellow jurors, seeing Crothers in the courthouse, remarked to him: "You really are on jury duty, aren't you?"

CLARK GABLE as a Southern plantation owner during the Civil War era, prepares to protect his property from ravaging invaders, in "Band of Angels," to be presented in color on "The CBS Late Movie" Monday, May 20 (starting at 11:30 p.m.) on channel 9-11.

Espionage Tale Debut

George Peppard, Joan Collins and Judy Geeson star in "The Executioner," a suspenseful espionage drama of spies who can never come in from the cold, filmed on location in Great Britain and Greece, and making its television premier on the "ABC Monday Night Movie," May 20 (9-11:15 p.m.) on channel 3-5-12.

Oscar Homolka, Keith Michell and Alexander Scourby are featured in the "thriller whose greatest virtues lie in establishing and sustaining the tension," according to the Monthly Film Bulletin.

In the story, an Intelligence operation in Vienna is destroyed by counter-espionage agents and spy John Shay (George Peppard) escapes back to London, convinced that a double agent at Headquarters is responsible.

With the aid of his girlfriend (Judy Geeson) he steals secret files that lead him to believe that Adam Booth (Keith Michell), a fellow agent, is the man responsible. His charges are dismissed, but his own investigation convinces him that Booth is the man. He kills the suspected traitor and assumes his identity to uncover the rest of the double-agent operation.

Shay is determined to avenge the deaths of his colleagues, but he is also appalled by the callousness of his own superiors -

Modern Drama About Werewolf

A modern-day werewolf rips out a trail of terror in a small Louisiana bayou town in "Moon of the Wolf," a suspense shocker that The Hollywood Reporter called "a fascinating modern-day reworking of the werewolf myth which was filmed on location in primeval Louisiana swamps and is better written, better acted and more genuinely suspenseful than the rash of feature fright pieces which have long since replaced legitimate horror with girsly bloodletting."

"Moon of the Wolf" will have an encore showing on ABC Wide World of Entertainment" Monday, May 20 (11:45 p.m. - 1:15 a.m.) on channel 3-5-12.

David Janssen stars as the sheriff who must first convince the townspeople that the werewolf is real and then put an end to the creature's bloody rampage.

Barbara Rush, Bradford Dillman and John Geradino (of ABC's "General Hospital") also star in the thriller, which features Geoffrey Lewis, Royal Dano, John Chandler and Claudia McNeil.

The film opens with the discovery of a mutilated young woman. Sheriff Aaron Whitaker (Janssen) is at a loss to explain the extreme violence of the death, and Dr. Druten (Beradino) can provide no immediate answer.

During his routine questioning, Whitaker goes to the home of Andrew Rodanthe (Dillman) a socially prominent young man who is the town's leading citizen. The sheriff is pleased to discover that Radanthe's sister, Louise (Miss Rush), has returned after living in New York for five years.

Whitaker remembers his fondness for Louise during their school days, but Rodanthe makes it clear that he does not want his sister to have any visitors.

Gregory Peck In 'Shoot Out'

Oscar winner Gregory Peck portrays a rehabilitated ex-gunman who seeks revenge from his former partner, in "Shoot Out," the season-premiere colorcast of "NBC Monday Night at the Movies" May 20 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Peck was named Best Actor of 1962 for his performance in "To Kill a Mockingbird".

In the story, Clay Lomax (Peck), released from prison in the year 1890, sets out to find his former accomplice, Sam Foley (Gregory).

Seven years earlier, Foley now a respectable citizen in the town of Gun Hill, shot Lomax in the back and escaped with their stolen loot.

Aware of Clay's release, Foley hires a trio of gunman — Bobby Jay (Robert F. Lyons), Skeeter (John Chandler) and Pepper (Pepe Serna) — to watch Clay and report if he heads for Gun Hill.

The three are given instructions to harass Lomax, but not to kill him.

Change Of Pace For Hope Lange

Since Hope Lange has won two Emmys as Best Actress in a Comedy Series (for "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir"), it may seem odd to some that she is leaving Comedy for awhile and will be seen in a controversial dramatic role in "I Love You. . ., Goodbye," the "Tuesday Movie of the Week," May 21 (8:30-10 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12.

It doesn't seem odd to her.

"I love doing comedy," she said in a recent interview, "but I don't think I was able to give my all on that particular show. It was a combination of many factors. I felt I needed a breather of sorts, so, when my contract was up, I just told them I wasn't coming back."

No stranger to drama, Hope Lange won an Oscar nomination for her performance in "Peyton Place" an Emmy nomination last year for her work in the "Movie of the Week," called "That Certain Summer."

"The part I play in 'I Love You. . .Goodbye' is an actress' dream," she said. "I play a wife and mother who married at 18 and now, at 36, is fed up with the roles society has forced on her and decides to leave her family to find a new life that will challenge her as a person.

"I believe the role will cause some controversy," she admits. "A woman walking out on her husband and children isn't exactly the proper thing to do in our society. But, then, it is the same society that causes this woman's actions. She really never had time to find out who she was or what she really wanted out of life. What 18-year-old has?"

Hope feels that a lot of women have considered walking out, if for nothing else than to shake up their husbands and families, dreaming of a block-buster action to call attention to themselves as something else besides dish-washer, cook and housekeeper.

"I truly empathize with the character I play," she says. "But in all honesty I must admit that I don't think I'd have the courage to do what she did.

NO SOUTHERN BELLE — Elizabeth Taylor stars, along with Marlon Brando, in "Reflections in a Golden Eye," the explosive story of seething frustrations on a Southern Army base, on "The CBS Late Movie" Thursday, May 23 (starting at 11:30 p.m.) on channel 9-11.

John Forsythe Playing Doctor

John Forsythe stars as the chief of staff of a Los Angeles medical center faced with a multitude of problems in "The Healers" a World Premiere drama to be colorcast on "NBC Wednesday Night at the Movies" May 22 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

First Requisite Just 'Sympathy'

More than 200 women in Los Angeles have taken up the challenge and are attempting to do something about the rising incidence of rape in urban areas. Their first concern, however, is to supply immediate counseling to the victims.

The fact that rape victims need help is candidly shown in Leonard Freeman's production of "Cry Rape!", to be broadcast on "The New CBS Tuesday Night Movies" on Tuesday, May 21 (9:30 - 11 p.m.) on Channel 9-11.

Freeing the victim of a sexual assault of her sense of guilt or responsibility was one of the most imperative needs expressed to the producers of the candid film special when they went to the producers of the ladies for guidance.

"However, sympathy is the first requisite for most of the victims, we were told," says Will Lorin, the producer and scripwriter of "Cry Rape!"

Baboon Filming Repeated

If you think of animals and Africa, chances are the domesticated lions of "Born Free" come to mind — or perhaps some other heartwarming story of the taming of wild animals by compassionate, patient people.

However, Jane Goodall, her photographer-husband, Hugo Van Lawick, and their research staff at Gombe National Park in Tanzania shunned interaction with the baboons there as much as possible in the making of the news television special, "Jane Goodall and the World of Animal Behavior — The Baboons of Gombe," which will have a repeat telecast, Wednesday, May 22 (8-9 p.m.) on channel 3-5- 12.

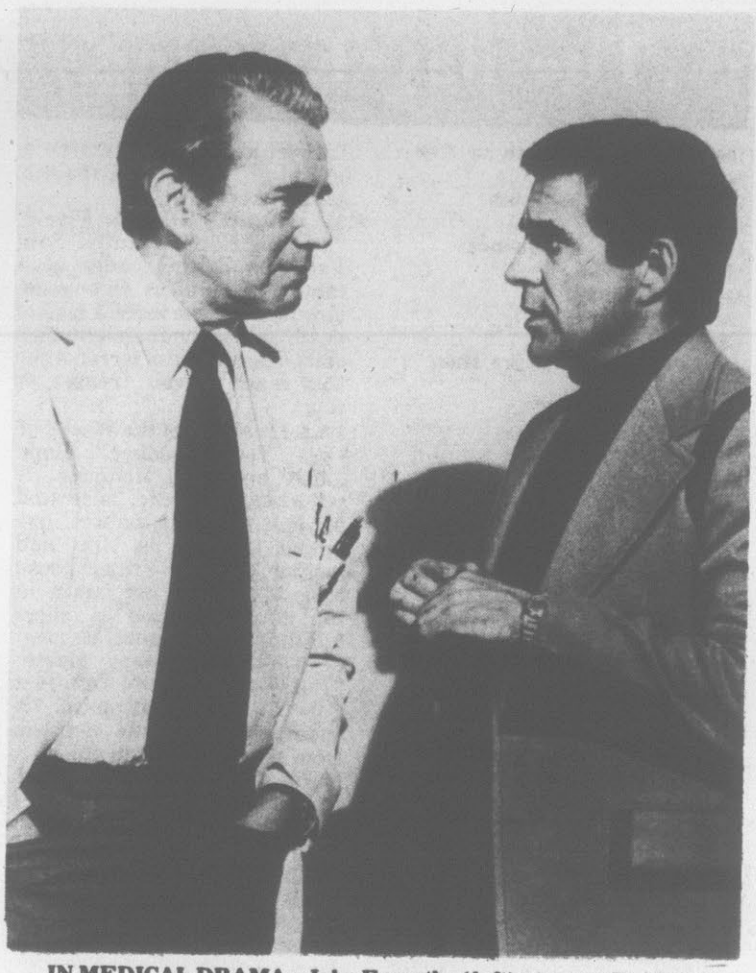

Ensconced in Africa since 1960, Miss Goodall acknowledges that baboons and chimps and even wild dogs and other animals studied there are usually fascinating, often beautiful, and occasionally, even cute or charming.

"But we are there to observe and study them, not to interact with them," she emphasized.

"The whole purpose of our studies is to attempt to understand human behavior better by observing and acquiring knowledge about behavior patterns in lower animal forms, to try and determine which are basic patterns and most likely to survice evolution."

In doing this, the blonde scientist, whose first documentary, "The Wild Dogs of Africa," won two Emmys, feels the studies could be compromised if the baboons' behavior is altered by contact with human beings.

"We want to watch them as they've been for thousands of years, perhaps longer," she points out. "Not get them to like us."

IN MEDICAL DRAMA—John Forsythe (left) stars as Dr. Robert Kier, chief of staff at a medical research facility, and Pat Harrington stars as Joe Taite, the administrator of the hospital, in "The Healers," a World Premiere drama to be colorcast on NBC Wednesday Night at the Movies, May 22 (9-11 p.m.) on channels 6-7.

Fresh, Fragile Story Of Love

Richard Chamberlain and Yvette Mimieux star as a couple in a fresh and fragile marriage that faces a first year of separation, overwork and semi-starvation, in "Joy in the Morning," to be seen on "The CBS Thursday Night Movies" May 23 (9-11 p.m.) in color on Channel 3N-9-11. Also appearing in supporting roles are Arthur Kennedy, Oscar Homolka and Donald Davis.

A love story in the classic tradition, it tells the tale of Carl Brown, a struggling law student in the late 1920s, and his fragile, inexperienced bride Annie.

MARY McDONOUGH, portraying Erin Walton, finds a baby deer in the woods and brings it home to keep as a pet, which puts her on the wrong side of the law, in "The Fawn" episode of "The Waltons" to be seen Thursday on channels 3N-9-11.

'BURR' TO BE FILMED

"Burr," the "wickedly entertaining" (New York Times) novel by Gore Vidal, which is still sitting comfortably on top of the Best-Seller list after 25 weeks, will be filmed within the coming year for broadcast in several parts, as a Special Motion Picture. Casting and airdates will be announced at a later date.

Report On Peacetime Pentagon

Fewer men serve in the U.S. armed forces today than at any time since the demobilization after World War II. There are currently no American soldiers at war anywhere in the world, yet the military budget is now at an all-time high of $85.8 billion.

What is the mission of the military of the United States? How can it achieve its goals? Why does it cost so much? CBS News will examine these questions when CBS REPORTS: "Peace and the Pentagon," which is currently in production, is broadcast at a date and time to be announced.

Pentagon Correspondent Bob Schieffer will anchor the report, which takes a look at the Pentagon in peacetime and how that institution views itself and chooses to exercise its duties and responsibilities.

"In this time of peace," says Isaac Kleinerman, producer of the broadcast, "we must ask ourselves what we have learned from the conflict in Vietnam. Specifically, what we will be doing on this broadcast is asking what the military has learned from Vietnam, and how it will use this knowledge in the future."

Double Feature On Love And Marriage

What's a nice girl to do when it looks as though her two husbands might meet? Karen Valentine, starring as a tender-hearted airline stewardess, confronts that crisis in the comedy "Coffee, Tea or Me?" to be rebroadcast as the first part (9-10:30 p.m.) of a double-bill presentation on "The CBS Friday Night Movies" Friday, May 24 (9-11 p.m.) in color on channel 3N-9-11. Starring as the men in her hectic life are John Davidson and Michael Anderson Jr. Louise Lasser and Lou Jacobi also star.

Carol Burnham Byrnes handles her stewardess job as ably as she handles a double romantic life as the wife of both medical student Dennis Burnham in Los Angeles and struggling artist Tommy Byrnes in London.

But disaster threatens when Tommy gets a one-man show in San Francisco and wires Carol to meet him there. She sets off, telling Dennis she's going to an aunt's funeral. When Dennis follows, planning to surprise her, Carol frantically tries to keep the two men apart.

Meredith Baxter and Michael Burns star in the tender romance of a young couple whose marriage is disrupted by the possibility that their family is expanding, in "Young Love," to be seen as the second part (10:30-11 p.m.) of the double-bill presentation.

April and Peter Tolliver are trying to organize their new marriage on a plan, according to which Peter will finish his schooling before the couple decides to raise a family.

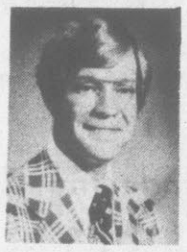

OPERATE '13' NOW

"It's wonderful to find in a role a thing you have never done before," said Frank Converse, starring as a "gypsy" trucker in "In Tandem". "Now I can operate a 13-on - the - floor diesel truck." ("In Tandem" will be a series on NBC-TV in the 1974-75 season.)

Golf Champions Tee Off On Saturday TV

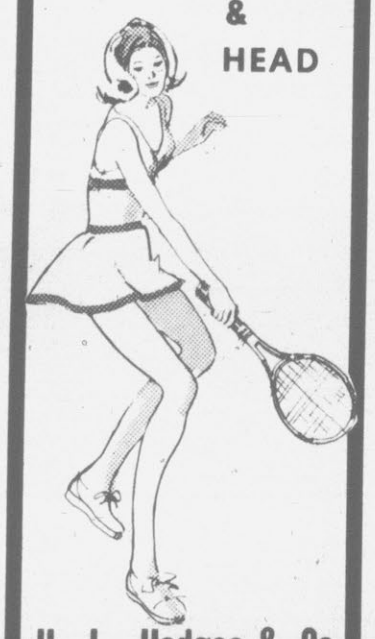

J. C. Snead, Billy Casper, former U. S. Open and Masters champion, and Dave Stockton, former PGA champion, tee off in first-round action of the "CBS Golf Championship" to be broadcast Saturday, May 25 (4-5 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Jack Whitaker, veteran sportscaster, and former U. S. Open champion Ken Venturi describe the medal-play competition, played at Firestone Country Club in Akron, Ohio, for a total purse of $272,400 in prize money and first-round bonus money of $300 per hole, with carryovers.

Snead turned down a pro baseball career to pursue his famous uncle Sam Snead into pro golf. In five years on the pro tour, he has won three championships, and he made a strong run at the 1973 Masters Tournament before finishing second.

Casper, one of golf's superstars and a two-time U. S. Open champion, has 50 career championships.

Sundays Bring Tennis Classic

The third annual "CBS Tennis Classic," with 16 top World Championship of Tennis men professionals competing for $47,500 in prize money at Lakeway World of Tennis in Austin, Texas, will be broadcast Sundays, May 19 through August 25 on CBS-TV.

The opening match of the "CBS Tennis Classic," this year expanded to a full hour, will feature Roger Taylor meeting Marty Riessen and will be broadcast at 3:00-4:00 p.m. The matches of June 2 and June 23 will be presented at 1:00-2:00 p.m., and all other matches will be aired at 2:30-3:30 p.m.

Best In Ladies' Tennis

The best and richest in women's tennis with a distinct international flavor—that's what the second annual Family Circle Cup tennis tournament has to offer.

Championship action and highlights of the event will be colorcast on Saturday, May 25 (5-6 p.m.) and Sunday, May 26 (3-4:30 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Thirty-two of the top professional women players, representing 19 countries, will be competing at the Sea Pines Racquet Club, Sea Pines Plantation, Hilton Head Island, S. C., for the tournament's $30,000 first prize, as well as a 1974 automobile.

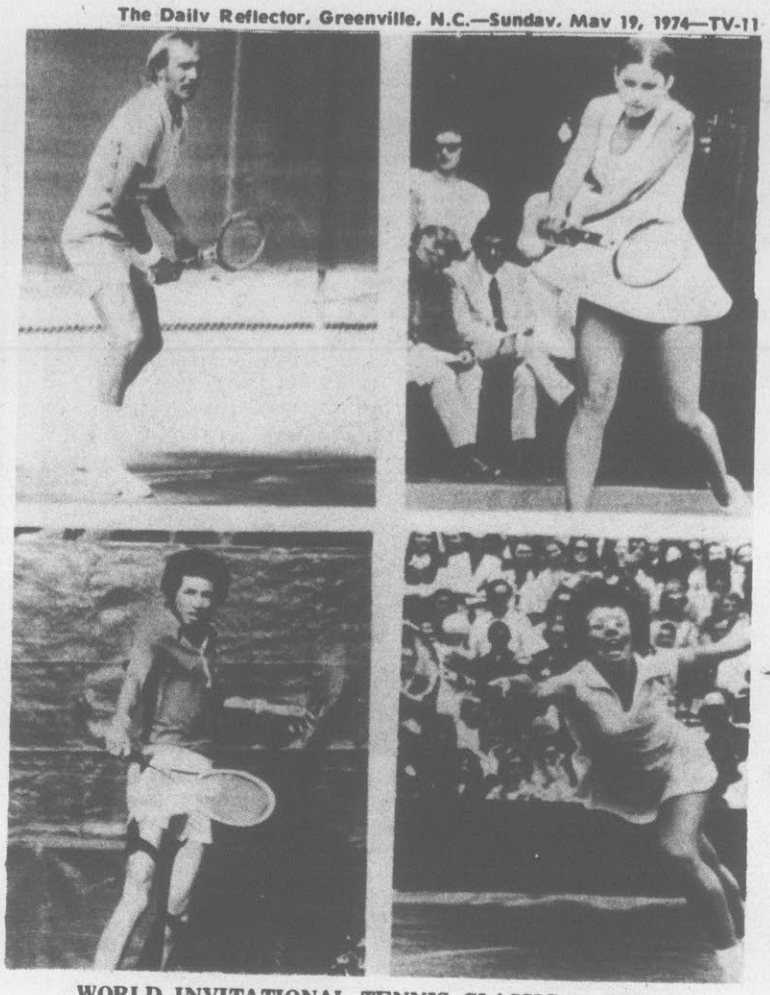

Last year's titlist, the colorful and outspoken Rosemary Casals, will be back to defend her crown against some of the top names in women's tennis. This special telecast of the Family Circle Cup will be presented on tape, with the event actually being contested April 30-May 4.

The 25-year-old Ms. Casals, a diminutive (5-foot-2) acrobat who is an excellent shotmaker, has expressed optimism about her chances of retaining the Family Circle Cup. With all the best women players now completing on the same circuit, Rose — as she's best known — says, "I feel I can win, but this year, on this circuit, everybody's tough."

Three players who didn't compete in the 1974 tournament — Chris Evert, Evonne Goolagong and Virginia Wade — are expected to provide the major competition as Ms. Casals seeks her second title in this rich event. Rosie, who has yet to meet Evonne this year, has split a pair of matches with both Chrissie and Mrs. Wade.

Jim Simpson and Bud Collins will be joined by a woman commentator, Grace Lichtenstein, for coverage of the event.

Ms. Lichtenstein, a reporter on The New York Times' Metropolitan Desk (from where she "covers everything from city hall to concerts"), will inject her expertise into the commentary. She is not a player in the sense of such well-known names as Ann Hayden Jones and Julie Heldman, who has worked on previous tournaments, but a writer, a viewer of the woman's tennis scene. She can add insight about the players and speak freely with them and frankly of them.

WORLD INVITATIONAL TENNIS CLASSIC — This is the sixth in a series of eleven telecasts from the Hilton Head Racquet Club on Hilton Head Island, South Carolina. Today's show will feature Stan Smith and Chris Evert (top photo) vs. Arthur Ashe and Billie Jean King (bottom photo) in the Mixed Doubles Semi-final. Commentary provided by Chris Schenkel and Pancho Gonzales Sunday, May 19 (3-4 p.m.) on channel 3-5-12.

MEETS IDOL—Ted Knight (left) as Ted Baxter, finally meets his idol, CBS News Correspondent Walter Cronkite, but it doesn't lead to fame and fortune as he has long dreamed, on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" Saturday, (9:00-9:30 p.m.) on channels 3N-9-11.

Cloris Wanted 'Haggard' Look

Cloris Leachman was worrying about how she looked. The Oscar and Emmy-winning actress was determined to hear the truth.

"You've seen it," she said, referring to "Dying Room Only," the "ABC Suspense Movie," airing Saturday, May 25 (8:30-10 p.m.) on channel 3-5- 12. "Honestly, now, how did I look in the opening shot?"

"Awful," was the reply. "You looked as though you hadn't had a good night's sleep for two days."

"Great," Cloris said. "I really looked haggard, huh?"

"Yes."

"And what about later, when I've freshened up in the ladies' room . . . brushed my hair down . . . do I look too good?"

"No, you just look as though you've washed your face and brushed your hair a little," was the somewhat hesitant reply. Actresses generally crave extravagant compliments, but again Miss Leachman's response was ecstatic.

"I've been so busy getting ready to go to Rome to do Mrs. Miller in Peter Bogdanovich's Daisy Miller' that I couldn't go to the screening," she said. "I knew I was right to pin my hair up in the car. It makes me look awful, but that woman wouldn't care about her appearance. She'd want to be comfortable. That air conditioning had gone out. It would be unreal if I later looked great after just a few minutes in a ladies' room."

What Cloris wanted — a performance with reality — Cloris got. "She does look tired in the opening shots," commented a producer executive. "And, afterwards, she looks — well, she looks okay, real okay."

"Real okay" is a low-key phrase which certainly wouldn't satisfy most Hollywood's stars of yesteryear, or even of this year. Nevertheless, it does please Cloris, who has been known to describe herself as "all nose and mouth."

Pioneering In Baseball

It was — a soft spring day in May at Baker field on the Columbia University campus. For Bill Stern, it was a day of problems, foremost of which was how to cover a baseball game with one television camera.

The first sports event ever televised — a ball game between Columbia and Princeton — was a historic grand slam and an atristic flop. "We couldn't follow the flight of the ball," Stern, the NBC commentator, said at Columbia 35 years ago. "We pleaded with the umps to be more emphatic with their calls and we actually prayed that all the batters would strike out, because that was the one thing the camera could record."

The logistics of this historical event were modest indeed. The camera used by NBC was a pioneer iconoscope. Its picture was beamed to an antenna atop a flagpole, then the signal continued to a receiver on the 85th floor of the Empire State Building. From there, a select audience of a few hundred people viewed the action at Radio City, while fewer than 400 TV sets scattered around Manhattan brought the game into homes where it had never been before.

The event elicited lots of prophetic comment; notably one in Life magazine. . . "reception was fuzzy. . . . but no fuzziness can hide what the event means to American sports. Within 10 years, an audience of 10,000,000 sitting at home or in movie theaters will see World Series and Rose Bowl games."

Oscar Winners Will Reappear

Sidney Poitier and Rod Steiger are the stars of "In the Heat of the Night," a hard-hitting adventure-drama and winner of five Academy Awards, to be colorcast on Saturday, May 25 (9-11:30 p.m.) on Channels 6-7.

The 1967 United Artists release won Oscars in the categories of Best Picture, Best Actor (Rod Steiger), Best Screenplay (from another medium), Best Film Editing and Best Sound.

Lee Grant and Warren Oates co-star.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR JEAN STAPLETON of "All in the Family"*

Have you had very many reactions from Women's Lib about your role of Edith on "All in the Family"? —Monica DuBoce, Hayward, Calif.

● Oh, yes, many advocates of Women's Liberation have commented on the character of Edith. Several oppose her seemingly subservient place to Archie and think she is hurting the movement, while others think she is good for the movement because she brings to light the domineering husband. And still others just love her for what she is—a very honest, straightforward woman, who puts her family and her home above everything and everyone else. Not even the strongest Women's Libbers can fault her affection for all God's creatures, human or animal.

FOR SEN. JACOB K. JAVITS (R-N.Y.)*

Isn't there a danger that the law Congress just passed on war powers will tie the President's hands in the Middle East?—R. Koblitz, San Francisco, Calif.

● If we are to run the risk of war in the Middle East, then it should be by the concurrence of the President and the Congress. That goes for any war, including the Middle East war.

FOR DIONNE WARWICK

Songs by Burt Bacharach and Hal David may be beautiful, but didn't you find working with them restrictive? Will you make any movies?—Mrs. George Moore, Teaneck, N.J.

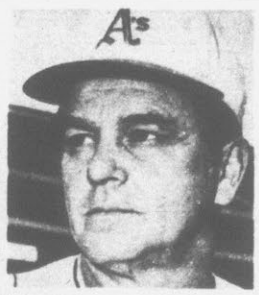

● No, I wasn't restricted. I felt Bacharach and David are the best songwriters in a thousand years, and I loved doing their songs. As to doing movies, right now I'm not interested. We've all been offered films where you have to take off your clothes, but I'm not going to jump on that bandwagon. It's stupid.

FOR CAROL CHANNING

I've heard that actors have a hard time winding down after their performances. Do you find it hard to relax afterward?—I. Bosler, Medford, Mass.

● Oh, no, it's no problem. I can fall asleep right away. Sometimes after a show I'll get new lyrics to learn for the next day. I'll read them over before I go to bed and then I'll wake up every three hours and go over them during the night. But I go right back to sleep.

FOR DICK WILLIAMS,
former manager of the Oakland A's

Some athletes and managers say that once the game starts they are oblivious to booing. Do you agree?—Vince Morton, Durham, N.C.

● I never minded being booed by the fans in another city. But it always bothered me when my teams were booed by the fans in their own city. That bothers players, no matter what they say.

FOR SEN. GEORGE S. McGOVERN (D-S.D.)*

I prefer organic foods myself. Why all the fuss over a scarcity of chemical fertilizer? — Dennise O'Neill, Ft. Mitchell, Ky.

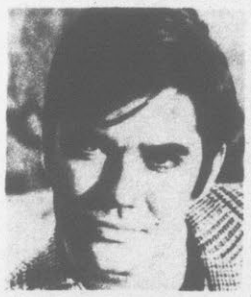

● Because about one-third of the total food and fiber production in the U.S. is directly attributable to the application of fertilizer. It's that simple. In my judgment, what we are dealing with is nothing short of a national emergency.

FOR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

You talk sex, but why do you wear such unsexy, cover-up-to-the-neck clothes?—Nora Wvcinski, Trenton, N.J.

● Clothes must fit one's own life-style. My life-style is one of communications, and my clothes ought not to distract from this. But my fashion image has changed a great deal in the past two years, and I've become much more style-conscious and appreciative of fine clothing.

FOR REX REED, film critic*

Some people consider Sam Peckinpah's "The Wild Bunch" about the bloodiest Western ever made. Do you approve of movies like that?—Tom Todd, North Highlands, Calif.

● I thought "The Wild Bunch" was sloppy, turgid, rhetorical and dull, with a slaughterhouse of carnage simmering underneath it all, like a rotting fungus, giving Peckinpah a good leer at the expense of a gullible public that likes to be outraged. Trash is still trash, even when the blood spurts in slow motion disguised as art.

FOR ORSON BEAN

What has become of you? I used to see you on TV all the time. Then you seemed to disappear.—Mrs. M. A. Palmer, Covina, Calif.

● What became of me? Well, I decided that there were more important things in life than pursuit of success. I still like to work on occasion (and have to work on occasion to eat), but mainly I'm with my wife and four kids—enjoying life, communing with nature and being a house-husband. And I appear most every evening in the kitchen doing the dishes after dinner.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

In my opinion, Ethel Merman is the greatest musical-comedy star ever. What's happened to her?—R. R., Morristown, Tenn.

● You don't hear too much about her now because she doesn't want to work in the theater anymore and is constantly rejecting offers for the stage. She prefers to make records and an occasional TV appearance. She recently cut two albums in London—"Miss Merman Sings Merman" and "Ethel's Ridin' High." And, although this is not publicly known (Miss Merman likes to keep it quiet), she works as a volunteer one day a week at a New York hospital, as a saleslady in the gift shop.

Old Socks, Chairs—Yes, Even String!

Our Political Leaders Economize, Too—Here's How...

Kissinger: "If I wait I can use the suit again."

"I have to force myself to buy new razor blades. I keep thinking, 'I know I can get more shaves out of this.' "
—Rep. Claude Pepper (D-Fla.)

Richard Nixon guards a beat-up old chair that "still has a lot of good wear in it."

By Frances Spatz Leighton

Henry Kissinger: Saving suits is the favorite economy of the Secretary of State. Henry Kissinger is loath to throw away a suit just because he has "outgrown" it. "If I wait I can use the suit again when my weight fluctuates back to that size. Since my weight goes up and down and up and down again, it would be wasteful to let my waist — spell that w-a-i-s-t — dictate my clothes budget."

Pat Nixon: It just wouldn't be practical for Mrs. Nixon to turn the frayed collars on her husband's shirts as she used to do years ago. But there is one special economy that Pat Nixon does insist on, and that is to reuse envelopes. "I hate to see envelopes going to waste," she says, "especially since paper is in such short supply and wasting it means wasting one of our natural resources." Pat Nixon keeps a supply of masking tape on her desk and pastes it on top of the old address. Then she writes the new name and routing on the masking tape.

Richard M. Nixon: As for Mr. Nixon, he hates to see good furniture thrown out to make way for the new. There is one beat-up old chair that he has hung on to for years. "Every time that Mrs. Nixon has wanted to get rid of it," says an aide, "Mr. Nixon says, 'No, no, there's still a lot of good wear left in it.' At this point in time it's sitting in one of the upstairs rooms, looking as respectable as it can, covered in brownish-olive velvet."

Caspar W. Weinberger: The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare is not at all embarrassed by the fact that his wife still turns his frayed shirt collars to get that extra wear. And his wife Jane, hearing that Mrs. Nixon used to turn her husband's collars in the pre-White House days, laughed and exclaimed, "Heavens, doesn't everybody? I wouldn't dare throw away my husband's shirts until the collars and maybe even the cuffs had been turned and worn out. I had excellent training to be the wife of an economical man like Caspar. My grandfather was Angus Fraser, a devout Scotsman. You had to pry that man away from his old clothes. I grew up learning economy." Secretary Weinberger also points out that his wife "can make an 'Everything-But-the-Kitchen-Sink Soup' out of any and all leftovers.

"In fact," he adds, "Jane could write a book called 'Gourmet Leftovers.' "

Sen. Sam Ervin of North Carolina is a rabid paper saver. According to his aide, Pat Shore, "Senator Sam" has ordered that outdated stationery never be thrown out, but instead be cut into quarters and used for taking telephone messages. He has special little boxes on every desk that serve as paper holders for these cut-up letterheads of previous Congresses.

Sen. Frank E. Moss of Utah: "Shoes are my favorite economy. I could wear one pair forever. I have them soled and resoled, and I have patches on the patches. I get very fond of my shoes. To me, having them patched is a luxury. When I was going to law school, in the height of the Depression, I did my own patching. I would get patches at the drugstore and stick them on myself. And you know something? I still have shoes I bought 25 years ago."

Sen. Frank Church of Idaho: Cars are also the pet economy of Senator Church, who helps safeguard the nation's environment from his seat on the Senate Interior Committee. So much so that he has to take a ribbing not only from his wife but from his gas-station serviceman. Says his wife Bethine, "My husband had the last Kaiser automobile extant in the United States. He couldn't part with it. He can never part with any car. That Kaiser looked so strange and way out that when he'd drive it somewhere, the attendant would say, 'What's that?' Then he had a ten-year-old Chevy that developed strange noises. He drove it into the service station and asked the man to look at it. The mechanic said, 'Senator, I think it's totally gone.' My husband looked as if someone was trying to throw his child away. He said, 'How much would you charge to rebuild it for me?' "

At this point, Senator Church breaks into his wife's story, "Right. And I had it rebuilt. Fine job. It's better to pay $200-300 than $2,000-3,000."

P.S.: The Senator now owns a 1965 Mustang that he says proudly is kept "tuned as fine as a watch and only sips gas like a lady."

Inouye: His office is at an un-Hawaiian 60 degrees.

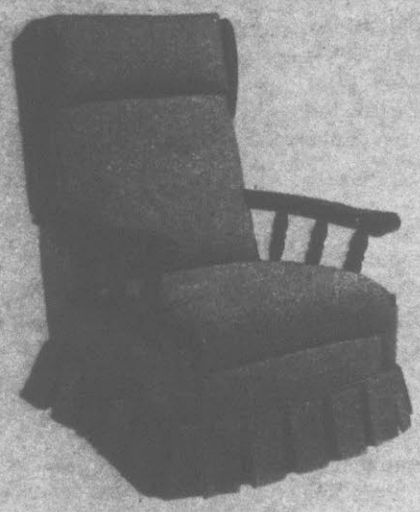

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii: When Senator Inouye heard that Mr. Nixon was asking everyone to turn office thermostats down to 68 degrees, he said, "I can do better than that." Thereupon, he turned his Senate office thermostat as low as it can go – 60 degrees – and that's where it remains. "We all wear sweaters around here," says a secretary, "and sometimes a sweater on top of a sweater. But we're with the Senator in anything he thinks will help our country."

Rep. Claude Pepper of Florida has a thing about razor blades: "I have to force myself to buy new razor blades," he told this reporter. "I keep thinking, 'I know I can get more shaves out of this.' I'm the perfect man for the Wilkinson ad. I will go the greatest number of shaves possible on a blade and then I will have to strain myself to get up to the counter and get some more." According to his aides, Representative Pepper also saves everything else, even old license plates. "He loves to save," confides an assistant, "and he tells himself that it's justified because it helps make a complete record of one man's life in public service."

Albert: "I won't be back, will you turn out the lights?"

Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma: The Speaker of the House is a different kind of ecology hound. The man who was just a heartbeat away from the Presidency after the resignation of Spiro Agnew goes through the office turning off all things electrical. He turns off all lights that are not actually helping anyone and he turns off all electric typewriters he hears buzzing. And as if that doesn't make his point, he never fails, when leaving the office early, to turn to his secretary and say, "Well, I won't be back, so will you turn out the lights?" With his wife, he practices another economy—bulk buying, actually accompanying her to the grocery store to help her figure out the best buys.

Proxmire: "I save $1,200 by walking and jogging."

Sen. William Proxmire of Wisconsin: "My favorite economy is walking several miles each way to and from work," says the slim, trim Senator, who keeps a set of hiking clothes both at home and at the office. "I once figured out that I save $1,200 a year by walking and jogging instead of taking cabs. It's an economy that I'd like to see spread because it cuts down on the consumption of gasoline and protects health by keeping the body in good tone."

Gerald Ford is another man who makes a point of turning out unused lights, including those in halls, but he has another pet economy that intrigues his office staff—he uses a pencil right down to the stub. "That comes of sending kids to school," he explains. "If you want to raise thrifty kids, you have to set the example."

Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, amazes his staff and all who know him by bringing his lunch to work. "Yes, I brown-bag it every day," he smiles. "I get exactly what I want—plenty of fruit, luncheon meat, the kind of bread I like, and I save a couple of dollars a day. But even more important is that I can sit and think as I eat and read, and do some work. It's a great time-saver." The Senator keeps a small refrigerator in his office.

New Faces From New Jawlines

"If you have a crooked leg, you can wear bell-bottom trousers and be stylish. But if you have a crooked mouth . . . there hasn't been much you could do about it — until now."

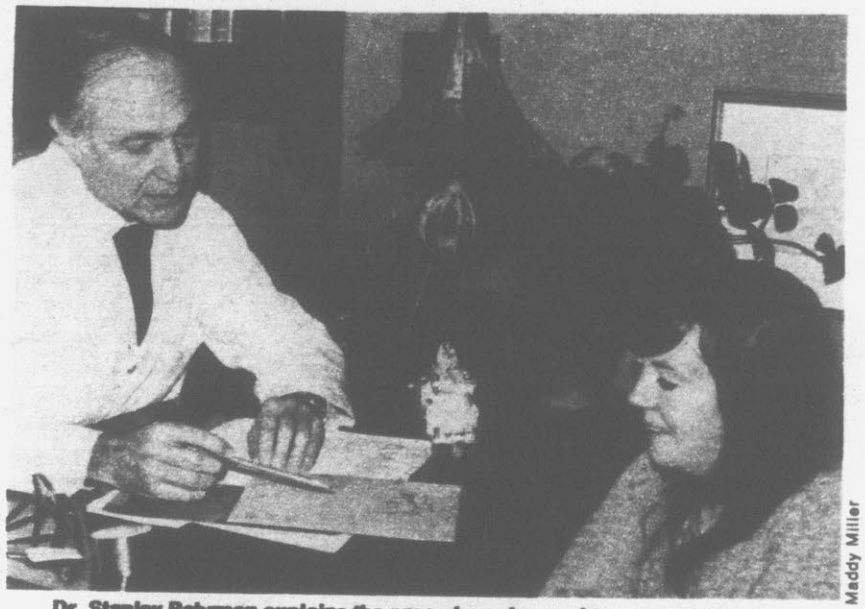

By Ann O'Shea

"I'm going to split your jaws and rearrange your face." This may sound like Ali's warning to Frazier before a bout, but it's also what an oral surgeon might tell a patient who wants to correct a jaw deformity. Most of us think oral surgeons are the people our dentists send us to to have an infected or impacted tooth removed or a broken jaw patched up. But today's oral surgeons go far beyond these rehabilitative skills to correct mistakes nature has made in the development of the bones around our mouths.

Dr. Stanley J. Behrman, oral surgeon at The New York Hospital and associate professor of surgery at Cornell Medical School, is a pioneer in corrective oral surgery. He has been fascinated with the shapes and structures of people's jaws for 30 years. "The mouth is the most subjectively intimate organ of the body," he explains. "The two basic human drives—hunger and love—revolve around the mouth." It is also one of the most public and exposed parts of our bodies. If you have a crooked leg, you can wear bell-bottom trousers and be stylish. But if you have a crooked mouth, a protruding jaw, a weak chin or an asymmetrical face, there hasn't been much you could do about it—until now.

The mouth and its related parts—the jaws, chin, lips and teeth—send signals to all with whom we come in contact, and we are immediately judged, correctly or incorrectly, to be strong or weak, brave or timid, sensuous or plain, by the shape and structure of our mouth. And as others see us, so we often see ourselves, and become what our faces seem to say we are.

Larry Laiken, a 22-year-old college student who writes comedy in his spare time, is a warm, friendly, outgoing person, but his underdeveloped upper jaw and long, pointy chin gave him a sinister appearance. He spent seven expensive years wearing metal braces and rubber bands on his teeth, after which his orthodontist gave up in despair. Larry, who at one time considered becoming a comedian, felt his face was a liability. "Every time I saw a picture of myself, I cringed a little inside," he confided. His sister-in-law, who works at The New York Hospital, sent him to see Dr. Behrman, and though Larry had some reservations, he went through with the operation. Today, he has a handsome new face, with his upper jaw brought forward into proper alignment, his chin rounded and seven millimeters shorter.

Maddy Miller

Sometimes the cosmetic benefits are simply a side effect of corrective oral surgery. Kathy Kalos' teeth were in danger of falling out because her severe underbite was wearing away the gums around her upper teeth. After three futile years with an orthodontist, she was sent to Dr. Behrman. He corrected her bite, saved her teeth, and brought her protruding lower jaw and chin back into alignment. Besides salvaging her teeth, Kathy's looks improved; she felt prettier, more sure of herself, started dating more and got married soon after.

The operation itself is only the finale to a long series of exacting planning stages. Impressions of the patient's teeth and jaws are taken and plaster models are made. A profile X ray of the skull is used by the surgeon to compute exactly how many millimeters either or both jaws need to be moved. He then works out the surgical procedure on the plaster models in much the same way that an architect might adjust his plans on scale models.

Once the planning is completed, the surgeon is ready to operate. It used to be necessary to perform the surgery through an incision in the neck, but it is now possible to operate entirely within the mouth, leaving no visible scars. Once the jawbones are rearranged, the teeth and jaws are wired together to allow the bones to knit in place. Occasionally an orthodontist will have to work on the patient's teeth after the operation, but often the correct placement of the jaws permits the teeth to fall into proper alignment by themselves.

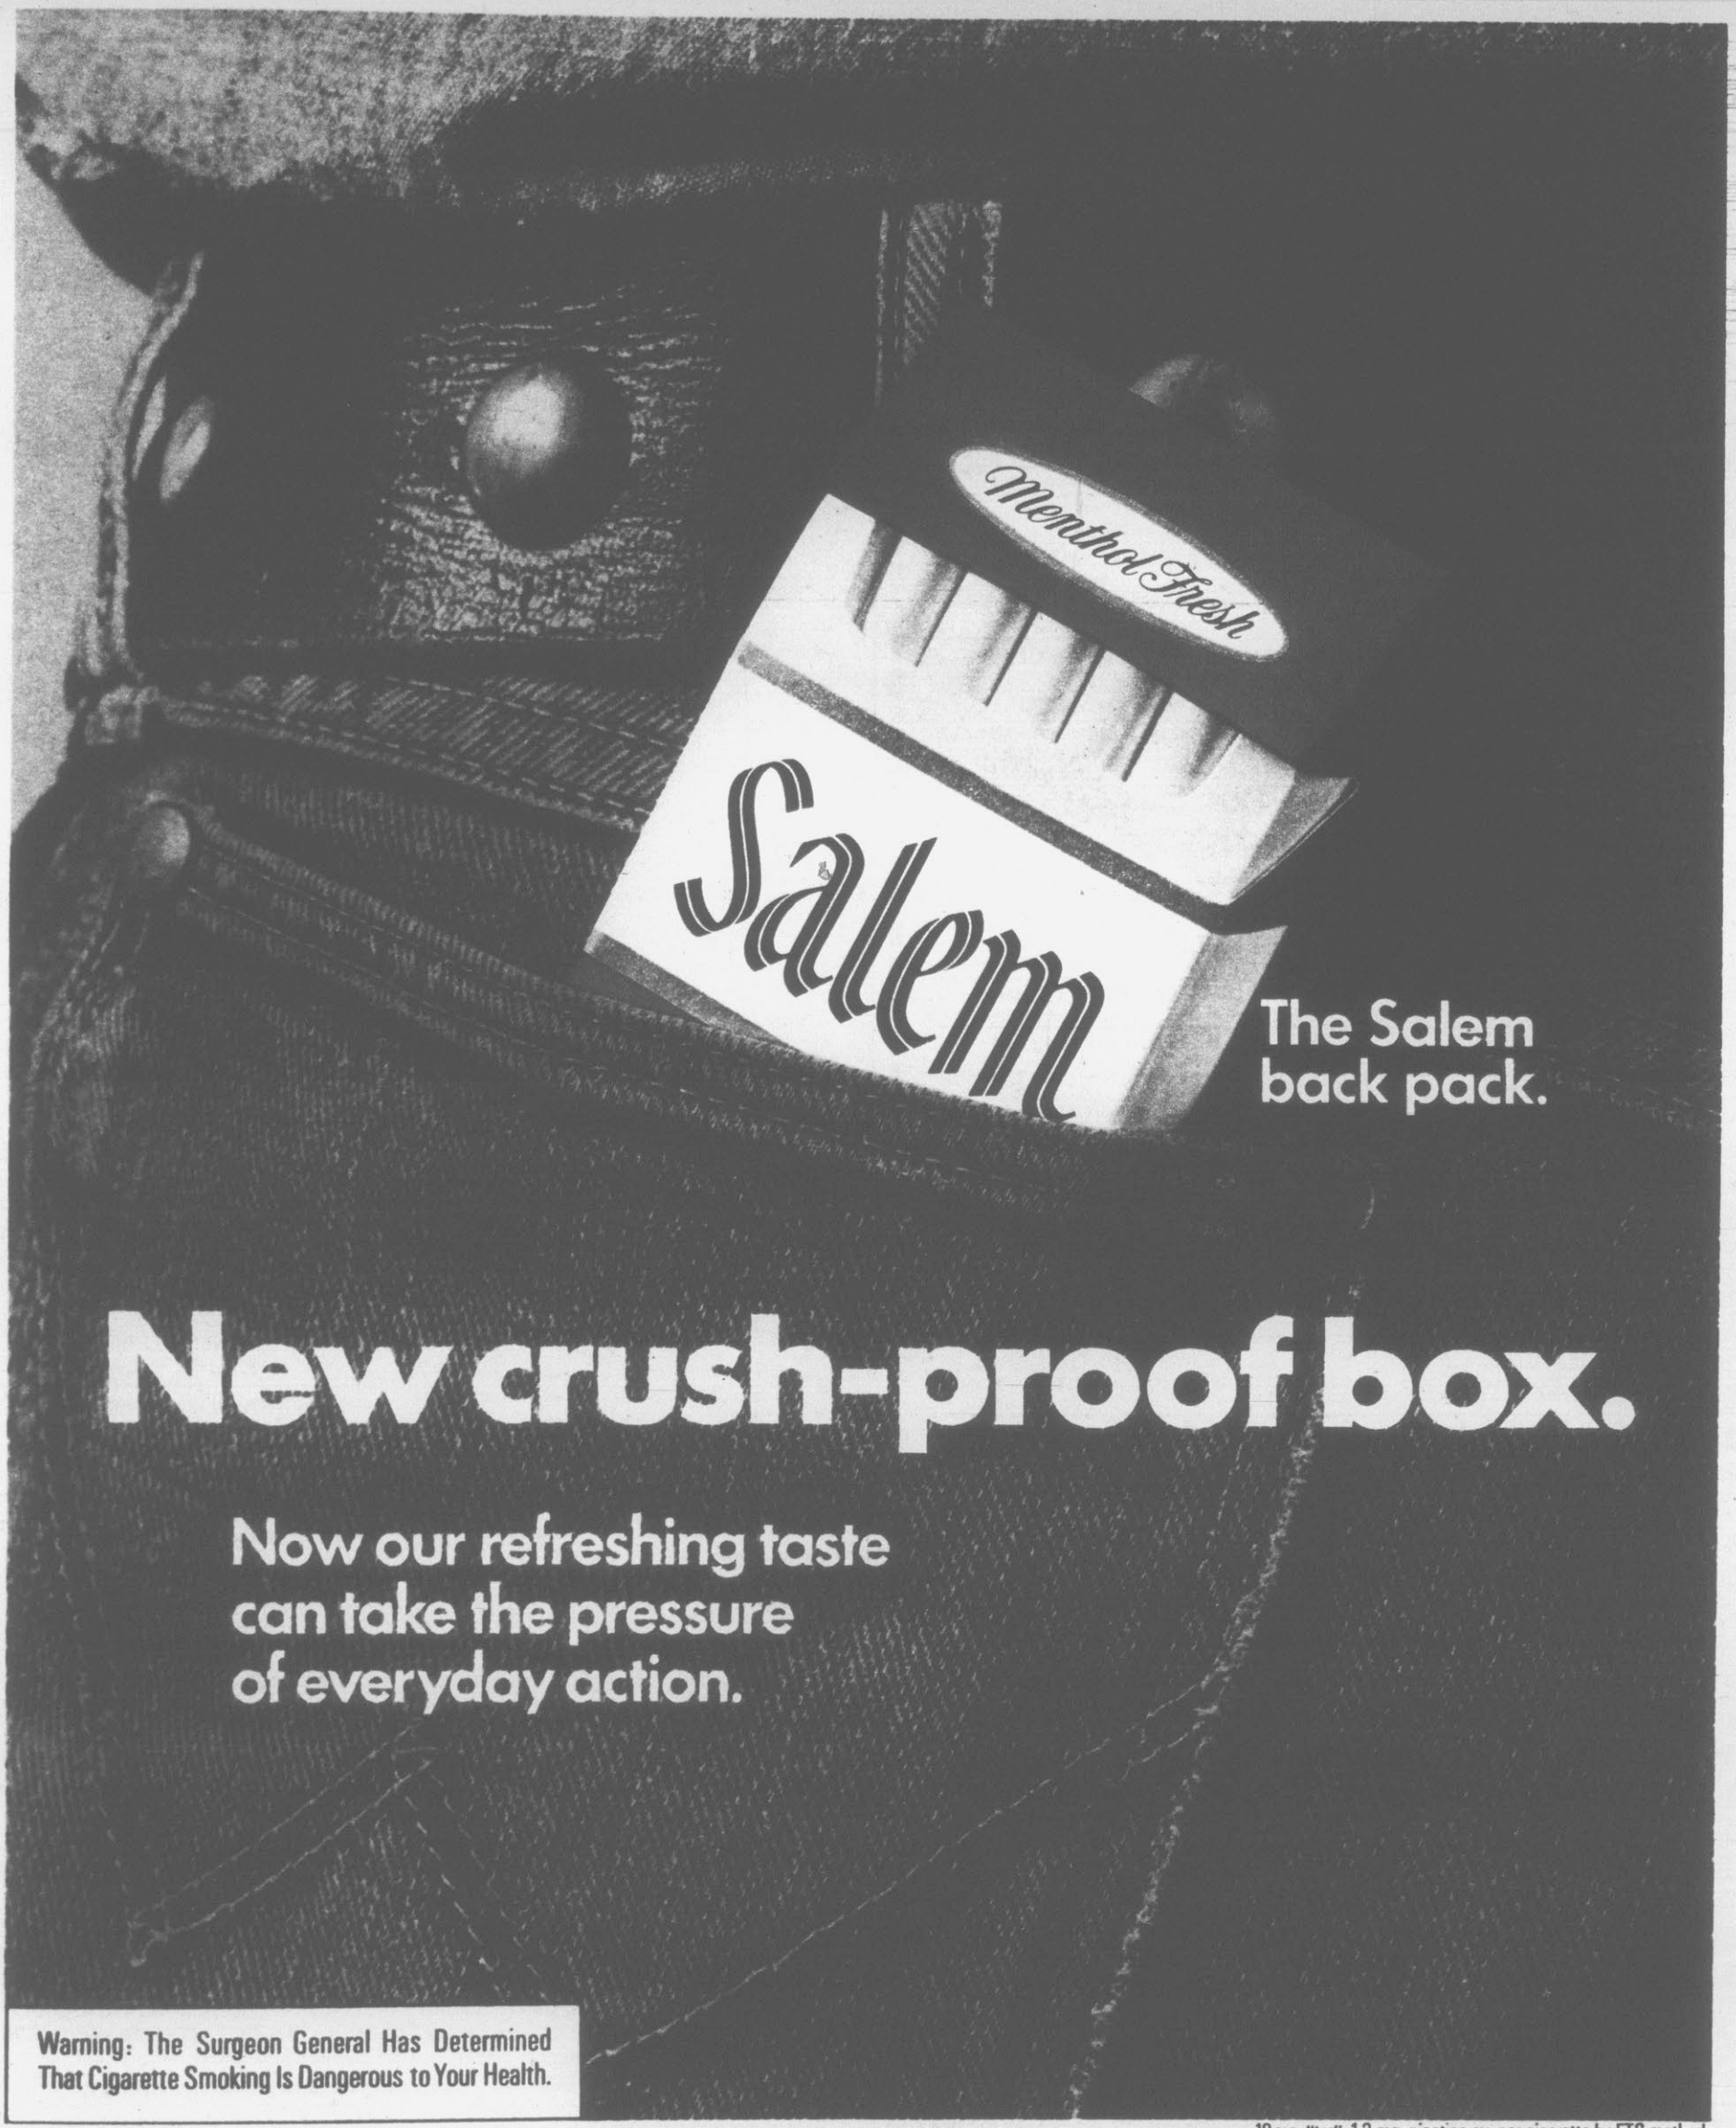

Although the calculations, planning and operation are highly complex procedures, it is not the technical aspects that are the most fulfilling for Dr. Behrman. "We don't treat jaws, teeth or bones; we treat people," he stresses to his students. Watching shy patients open up, defensive patients drop their guard and self-conscious patients forget themselves delights him most.

The cost of an operation can range anywhere from $350 to $3,500 and up. "But," insists Dr. Behrman, "anyone who needs or wants an operation of this sort can have it, regardless of the cost, at one of the several oral surgical training centers in the country." Operations are performed for little or no money by in-service residents under the close supervision of an attending oral surgeon.

As to who needs corrective oral surgery, Dr. Behrman says that anyone whose physical functions of chewing, swallowing, breathing or speaking are impaired, or anyone whose ability to function in society is impaired by an oral deformity, is a likely candidate. His oral-surgeon trainees are cautioned against dismissing a patient whose deformity seems inconsequential. If it seriously bothers the patient, there is reason enough for correction. Conversely, he warns students against proselytizing indiscriminately among people whose malformations do not worry them.

Surgery is not usually recommended for young children because their development is not yet completed, but otherwise, age is not a factor. Even people who have lost their teeth can have jaw deformities corrected, enabling them to wear artificial teeth better.

Although oral surgery can't work miracles, it can help to improve the way someone sees himself. As Larry Laiken commented: "You can't help but expect that the operation will solve all your problems, emotional and physical. You come to realize, however, that it's not going to do that. But the image you have of yourself is the most important one, and when you can take a part of that image and do something positive about it, you have to feel better. This is reflected in the way you respond to others and in the way you perform in society."

Smart Cooking Kids in the Kitchen

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen talks about peanut butter. Says Marilyn, "Feeding the kids a peanut butter sandwich comes in handy. It's quick, easy, right at your fingertips, and kids love it. What Mother may not know is just how nutritious peanut butter can be!"

"The Do-It-Yourself Complete Peanut Butter Sandwich Meal"

Elizabeth Gee

A peanut butter sandwich, a glass of milk and an orange will provide 30 percent of all the nutrients experts say you need for a full day.

THE DO-IT-YOURSELF COMPLETE PEANUT BUTTER SANDWICH MEAL

2 tablespoons peanut butter
2 slices whole wheat bread or enriched white bread
1 (8 ozs.) glass of milk
1 orange, quartered

1. Spread peanut butter on one slice of bread. Top with second slice of bread, cut in half. Place on plate.

2. Serve sandwich with milk and orange.

Makes 1 complete peanut butter sandwich meal

A sandwich made with two tablespoons of peanut butter and two slices of whole wheat bread provides 30 percent of a child's Recommended Daily Allowance of protein, 40 percent of the niacin and 15 percent of the iron, along with other vitamins and minerals. Vitamins A and C are about the only "notable absences." Drink an eight-ounce glass of whole milk with the sandwich, and there is a jump in all three major nutrients plus vitamin A, calcium, phosphorus and riboflavin. A peanut butter sandwich with whole or skim milk is close to being a nutritionally balanced meal. But where do you find vitamin C? In an orange, of course! So make an orange the "dessert"! Such a "meal" will bring all the nutrients to good energy levels, with most of them at 30 percent or more of the Recommended Daily Allowance.

PEANUT BUTTER SNACK BARS

¼ cup butter or margarine
2 tablespoons plus ⅓ cup peanut butter
¼ cup honey
⅓ cup brown sugar, packed
3 cups natural cereal
½ cup semisweet chocolate pieces

1. Line a 9-inch-square baking pan with foil.

2. In 1-qt. saucepan combine butter, 2 tablespoons peanut butter, honey and brown sugar. Heat over low heat, stirring occasionally, until smooth and sugar is melted.

3. Pour hot mixture over cereal in large bowl, stir well. Turn cereal mixture into foil-lined pan, press down evenly. Cool completely.

4. Make frosting: Combine chocolate pieces and ⅓ cup peanut butter in top of double boiler over hot (not boiling) water. Stir until chocolate melts and mixture is smooth. Spread over cereal mixture. Chill until firm. Cut into bars. Makes 3 dozen bars

"We're looking for people to write children's books."

If you ever wanted to write...for pleasure or profit...here is your opportunity.

by Francis R. Gemme

Francis R. Gemme, consultant to the Institute of Children's Literature is President and Publisher of Young Readers Press.

We need writers. There are over 200 publishers of books for children and more than 400 magazines for young readers . . . that need writers.

We know that many people could help fill this void in children's literature, if they could only get started. Are you one of these people? Do you have the urge to write and the ambition but are unable to get professional training or are tied to your home or job? Perhaps you are too unsure of yourself to start.

Have you ever read a children's story and said, "I can do better than that"? Have you ever deplored the lack of good new literature for young readers? Do you love children? Do you want to do something important with your life? And earn the rewards and satisfaction of writing for children? That very attitude may be the signal that you can do it. For the desire and interest must come first.

Stories only you can write.

Once you understand and utilize the basic techniques, writing for children may be easier than you think. Your personal experiences, fantasy, human nature, nature itself, hobbies, all lend themselves to good subjects. Many of these have been written about – plainly and simply – and have been published. You probably have within yourself many children's stories only you can write.

A new kind of school.

The Institute of Children's Literature was founded to encourage more and better writing for young readers. Top writers and publishers have worked together to create this professional course to teach you to write for children and teenagers. People like Lee Wyndham, a teacher and author of forty-eight books, ranging from the picture book age into the high teens, and over two hundred short stories, articles and serials–Hardie Gramatky, author and illustrator of many famous children's books like his Little Toot – and John Ledes, President of Astor Honor Books, who has published many award-winning children's books. Together we have written and published hundreds of books and magazine articles for young readers. We know how to write – how to teach – and how to help you get your writing published.

Learning to write and sell.

The early success of the course has been repeated time and time again by people like yourself who knew in their hearts they could write good things for children.

This course will train you step by step, from writing an opening sentence through the writing and selling of a finished manuscript. Yes, you will have a completed manuscript when you finish the course.

Because writing is such a personal profession, we believe that the teaching of this course must also be personal. That is why in addition to writing materials, text books, instruction and assignments, you will receive personal guidance from your own instructor on every lesson.

The instructor chosen for you will be a professional writer who will stay with you throughout the course. He will show you how to utilize your personal feelings, experiences, imagination and interest to write for children–in your spare time at home.

Work at your own pace.

A writing course is best learned at home when you feel like working. There is no bell to end the class, no interruption from other students. You and your instructor can work together at the pace and depth desired. This personal pace allows more time for each student than is possible in a classroom situation.

You mail your completed work to your instructor who carefully reads and edits each assignment. He then writes you a long personal letter explaining in detail his corrections and makes specific recommendations. You receive professional advice and guidance from the same instructor throughout the course. And you work where you want and when you want.

The rewards.

Although many writers of children's books earn $10,000 to $15,000 and more a year, the benefits of a writing career include the challenge, the excitement, and great satisfaction of doing something important with your life. When you complete this course you will be a qualified writer with a future. And what a future!

The market is unlimited. It is the constant cry of editors and publishers, of both books and magazines, that they need more good manuscripts for young readers.

More than 200 publishers of children's books produce over 3,000 books each year with total sales of $170,000,000! And over 400 periodicals for young readers have a combined circulation exceeding 80,000,000. Books and magazine articles for children are made into TV shows and movies. And there are twenty-four children's book clubs and a rapidly growing children's paperback market.

Writing is only satisfying when your work is published, and for writers of children's literature it is easier now than ever to find a publisher.

Will you take the first step?

You may be a teacher, be taking care of your home, or be a concerned grandparent. You may believe that you do not have the necessary background to become a successful writer. But as an author you will be judged by your writing ability, not your sex, age or education.

For instance, women writers are on the best seller list as often as men. And in the field of children's books and magazines there are as many women editors as men.

Free test.

To find qualified men and women with writing aptitude worth developing, the Faculty and Consultants of the Institute have prepared a special Aptitude Test. It is offered free and will be graded free by a member of our staff.

If you want to be a writer send in the coupon below for this free test and a free brochure which fully describes the Institute course and faculty, the current publishing market for children's literature and a new future for you. If you have writing aptitude, you will be eligible to enroll. Of course, there is no obligation.

Institute of Children's Literature FW1
Redding Ridge Connecticut 06876

I would like to receive, without cost or obligation, the brochure describing your course and your free Aptitude Test. I understand that no salesman will call.

Glenda Jackson:

The Quiet Woman Who Just May Be Our Greatest Actress

In 1971 Glenda Jackson won an Academy Award for her performance in "Women in Love." A year later she was an Oscar nominee for her part in "Sunday, Bloody Sunday." This year she won her second Oscar for her role in Mel Frank's sophisticated comedy "A Touch of Class." There is not much doubt about it. When I talked with Glenda, I was talking with the best actress in the world today.

FAMILY WEEKLY: How do you feel about winning a second Oscar?

GLENDA: Surprised. And flattered. I was very happy to win one. I didn't expect another.

FW: Your role in "A Touch of Class" was quite a change of pace for you, wasn't it?

GLENDA: Yes, and I enjoyed it immensely. It was my first chance to make people laugh.

FW: You appeared nude in "Women in Love," "Negatives," "The Music Lovers" and "Sunday, Bloody Sunday." Would you consider yourself a sex goddess?

GLENDA: I don't look at it that way. I analyze a scene only by the content of the script, of the story itself. Besides, I consider myself a "character woman."

FW: Then you don't mind nudity in films?

GLENDA: I don't.

FW: How does your husband feel about it?

GLENDA: He doesn't mind either—provided it's well played and an integral part of the story. I look upon myself as the actor side of the actor-director partnership. I thought what I was asked to do was valid, so I did it.

FW: Is there anything you would not do for a film?

GLENDA: I can think of nothing I would not do in a film if I thought it was valid, apart from murder or something cruel.

"You see, I am something of an ugly duckling. My eyes are too small, and I have rotten skin. As a matter of fact, I don't think anything about me is physically attractive!"

FW: How long have you been acting?

GLENDA: For over 20 years, 15 of them in the theater.

FW: Do you enjoy it?

GLENDA: No, I don't. I savor it. I don't know if that's the right way to put it, but there are so many insurmountable

I spent my life on a "starvation" diet, then I ate and lost 72 pounds.

By Mary Gioia — as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

When I say I "starved" myself, the menu for my day went like this. No breakfast. But as soon as I got to work, I'd have diet soda and a piece of coffee cake. Twenty minutes later, coffee to wake me up, with cream and sugar. Then, about eleven thirty, maybe a bite of cake someone's mother made. At lunch-time? I took just a skinny sandwich. But since I didn't have breakfast, I figured I could afford a little scoop of ice cream. Then, mid-afternoon, so I wouldn't cave in, I ordered a malted. Never anything solid. Too many calories! Naturally, by evening, I was starved. I couldn't wait for my first meal of the day. A good healthy Italian dinner. Of course, when my mother put dessert on the table, I didn't want to hurt her feelings, so I ate it. And that, quite frankly, is how I dieted up to 205 pounds.

Now in between all this hunger, I would also take reducing pills. But they always made me very nervous. So eventually I'd give them up until I couldn't stand hearing any more comments, like: "You've got such a pretty, rosy-round face. Too bad you can't lose any weight." Then off I'd go again on my crazy "starvation" diet and add a lot of pounds.

As I talk about it now, I wonder how Carmine, my husband, ever married me. Maybe because, basically, I had a happy disposition. Still, I used to get hurt by remarks. I remember once we were dating and Carmine saw a girl with a beautiful figure. Suddenly, he turned to me and said: "If your head was on that girl's body, you'd be great."

In an effort to make his dream come true, I turned to diuretics, followed by about every reducing pill in the drug store. But they made me feel so sick, I finally broke down and said: "I can't lose weight, Carmine. You have to accept me as I am." And, thank goodness, he did!

After we were married, I ran my kitchen like my mother's — with lots of good food which, unfortunately, only added more fat to my hips and thighs. It was too bad, because Carmine always wanted to buy me clothes. And I was so hard to fit.

I think he would have died if he'd known that the pants suit I wore on my honeymoon had a maternity top. Of course, I wasn't pregnant, but it was the only one that was fashionable and a good fit.

Actually, it took another clothes crisis in my life to finally make me reduce. You see, I was to be a bridal attendant at my brother's wedding and I wanted desperately to look nice.

Luckily, I'd been reading those ads about people who'd lost weight on the Ayds plan. But, quite honestly, I thought the whole thing was a gimmick. Then I saw a cardboard stand of an Ayds plan loser in the drug store and the girl looked so terrific I said to myself: "It's probably money down the drain, but here goes." I read the ingredients on a box of Ayds® Reducing Plan Candy and learned they contain vitamins and minerals, but no drugs, so I went home with the chocolate fudge kind.

I started on the Ayds plan the very next day, taking one or two Ayds with a hot drink like the directions say, and the results were astounding. They really helped curb my appetite. What's more, for the first time in my whole life, I began to eat sensibly. Three meals a day and none of the garbage in between.

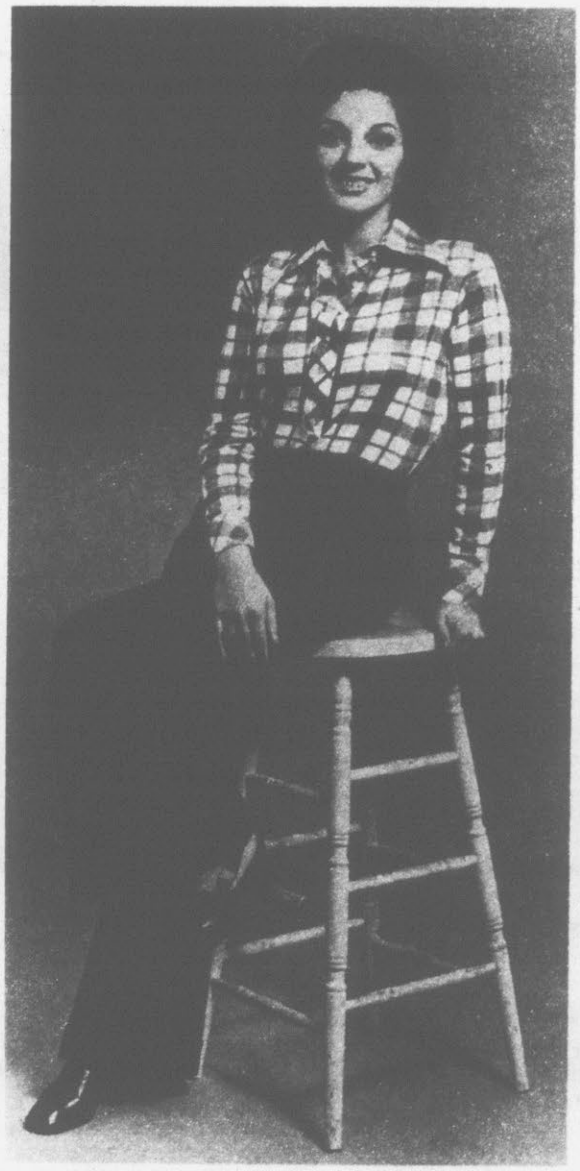

I also came to realize that there is no magic anywhere when it's a matter of reducing. Maybe I knew it before, but somehow I could never face the fact — or help myself — without the Ayds plan.

In the end I went down to 133 pounds on the Ayds plan. I was so thrilled when I had finally done it that I went out and bought the clingiest orange dress I could find. And I wore it to a big family affair in my hometown, Bayside, Long Island. And guess what? My husband had to re-introduce me to one of my very own cousins.

Believe me, you only have to have something like that happen to you to know that there isn't a "starvation" diet in the world to compare with being able to eat three meals a day on the Ayds plan and still lose weight.

At 205 pounds, I stayed on the shore, because I was so afraid that no lifeguard could ever save me if I were drowning.

Now that I'm 133 pounds, I love checks, plaids and pants – especially after years of wearing a blue and black wardrobe.

problems in each picture, in each scene, that when one is done well I get satisfaction out of it. Well, maybe even that isn't the right way of putting it. Let us say it is continually interesting.

FW: Are you ambitious?

GLENDA: I'm lazy by nature, so I really don't want to work hard unless I'm interested in something. Yet every time I accept a script I'm immediately sorry about it because I have to devote so much time to it and away from my family.

FW: What does your family consist of?

FW: Is your husband an actor?

GLENDA: He used to be. Then he became a director. Now he's an art dealer.

FW: How did you two meet?

GLENDA: After I graduated from school I went through a period of semi-starvation in repertoire. It was during this time that I met Roy. We played opposite one another in "Jane Eyre," and he was so bad that I had to stick pins into my hand to keep from breaking up. Besides, I can't act with someone with whom I'm emotionally involved. Like when my mother is in the audience when I do a play, everyone else might as well go home.

FW: Did you always want to become an actress?

GLENDA: No. When I was little I wanted to be a ballerina.

FW: What made you change your mind?

GLENDA: I just got too bloody big! There wasn't anybody around who wanted to lift me! And one can only do so many dying swans!

FW: And you went directly into acting after that?

GLENDA: No, I left grammar school when I was 16 with no special ambitions and for two years I worked at a pharmacy. It was at that time that I joined the local amateur-theatrical society because I thought there must be more to life than the chemist's shop. And then I applied to the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts and they accepted me. I am not very adventuresome, but when something comes up that I like I become very tenacious.

FW: I understand you have been married only once, yet you have had four wedding rings. Isn't that a bit unusual?

GLENDA: The first one was very cheap, really. It simply broke. The second one wasn't much more expensive and dissolved when I washed some diapers in too much bleach. The third one slipped off my finger and down the drain. [She showed me a beautiful wide gold wedding ring set with diamonds.] I hope this one will last!

FW: Do you like jewelry?

GLENDA: I wore earrings once, but somehow they weren't me. I'm not much for jewelry, or for that matter, fancy clothes. If I don't have to get dressed up for official functions, I prefer wearing plain trousers. They're the most comfortable, and I'm all for comfort.

FW: What is your biggest problem as far as acting is concerned?

GLENDA: To find the proper material. That's how you end up doing revivals of plays and films —and some of them are done very well. It's depressing and boring. As I said, I am a "character woman" and there are not that many good parts about. You see, I am something of an ugly duckling. My eyes are too small, and I have rotten skin. As a matter of fact, I don't think anything about me is physically attractive!

FW: Is that why you did "Mary, Queen of Scots" a few months after portraying Queen Elizabeth on TV in "Elizabeth R"?

GLENDA: Yes. But I did it a second time because I wanted to play opposite Vanessa Redgrave. And besides, after years of sex stuff and playing neurotic ravers, I thought it would be nice to play a part my mother could see in the cinema and say, "That's my Glenda."

FW: One last question: How do you feel about the fact that within a comparatively short time you have become the most sought-after movie star in the world?

GLENDA: I wouldn't say I am surprised—STUNNED is the word!

Johnny Winter:

My Ten Favorite Records

Johnny Winter, the phenomenal blues guitar player from Texas, has emerged as one of America's hottest performers. "Listening to music," Johnny says, "should be an emotional experience. The way it makes you feel is much more important than the technical ability of the artists or performers. When listening to something you don't understand, try to be open and hear what the performer is trying to project, rather than judge it by guidelines you've already set up."

Can YOU Collect $1,000's In Free G.I. Veterans Benefits?

Amazing Facts Revealed — 265 Free Benefits For Qualified Veterans Of Vietnam, Korea, WWII — Up To 30 Years After Discharge!

by Paul Michael

© Copyright 1974, Good News Publishing Company

No matter what your branch of service—whether you've been a veteran for 30 days or 30 years—start collecting your free G.I. benefits immediately!

You don't know me from Adam, but I have dug up some absolutely startling facts and information that can mean thousands of dollars in YOUR pocket!

You gave some of the best years of your life to Uncle Sam—in the service.

You served honorably to protect your country in time of great national emergency—in World War II, Korea, Vietnam!

But, when was the last time YOU got something from your Government?

Last week? Last month? Last year? Never?

If you are like most of us, you believe that you are not entitled to any free G.I. benefits and services—or, that all your benefits ran out a long time ago.

NOT TRUE!

For example, did you know that . . .

- If YOU are a World War II veteran YOU are entitled to up to $12,500 in G.I. loans to purchase, construct, refinance or improve your home—to buy a farm, farm machinery, supplies, equipment!
- If YOU are a Korean veteran YOU are entitled to borrow up to $10,000 to buy a mobile home—up to $17,500 if the site is included!
- If YOU are a Vietnam veteran YOU are entitled to up to $210.00 a month for 36 months to pay for your education or retraining.
- If YOU are the wife, son or daughter of a soldier who was killed or wounded in Vietnam, Korea or World War II—you have $1,000's in free benefits and services owed to you right now!

And, as a veteran or dependent, you may well be entitled to FREE medical treatment, FREE dental treatment—FREE education for your children—FREE job-finding assistance—Civil Service preference—special low-interest loans and mortgages—thousands upon thousands of dollars worth of benefits and services!

I made this discovery quite by accident. A friend of mine down in Miami told me that I was entitled to $210.00 a month in educational benefits, even though I was discharged over 20 years ago. He was right!

It started me thinking and digging into the mass of confusing rules and regulations on free G.I. benefits due to all veterans. Here are some of the things I found out:

- Free G.I. benefits and services DO NOT come to you automatically. You will NEVER get a letter from the Government or the V.A. telling you about them. YOU must know about them—YOU must qualify for them—YOU must apply for them!
- You are probably being "cheated" out of $1,000's in these free benefits and services.
- You are entitled to these free benefits and services—whether you have been out of the service for 30 days—or even 30 years!
- The money to pay for these free services has already been set aside by Congress. It is just sitting there waiting for you and/or your dependents to claim it.

It's a darned shame that you haven't been told until now. The veterans' rights mess is such a scandal that some Congressmen are calling for an investigation!

But, it's not too late. The important thing is that NOW you can claim your rightful share—the share you "paid for" with your time in service. Last year alone it added up to a $9 billion bonanza! Don't be too surprised to learn that you may be entitled to:

- G.I. Bill aid worth up to $8,000 during four years of enrollment in a qualified college or educational institution!
- The nation's best buy in life insurance that offers real protection!
- Fulltime or outpatient medical care in a VA hospital!
- Pensions as high as $130.00 per month even when the disability is not connected with military service!
- Preference in competing for and retaining a job with the federal government!
- VA guaranteed or direct loans to buy, build or improve a home in which you intend to live or a farm which you plan to operate!

These free benefits and services could fill a book. And now, with the help of a friend, that's exactly what I've done. I call it "How To Get What The U.S. Government Owes Veterans And Their Dependents!" It shows over 265 benefits and services available to qualified veterans of Vietnam, Korea and World War II. But it doesn't just list them, mind you, it tells you how to get them. It tells you what to do to qualify, who to contact (including all necessary names and addresses) and what to say. And perhaps most important of all, the editors have taken out all the technical language and have cut through the usual red tape to make it easy for you to apply for and get all the free benefits and services you are entitled to without problems or hassles!

Although this book can mean hundreds and perhaps thousands of dollars to you, it is priced at only $4.95. Remember, it is not enough to qualify for veterans benefits and services—you must know exactly how to apply for them.

2 Extra Reports—Free!

Yes! When you order right away, you get 2 Extra Reports—Free! Free Report #1: "How Veterans Can Get All The Help They Need From Veterans Organizations!" Free Report #2: "How Veterans Can Get All The Help They Need From The Red Cross!"

$100.00 In Benefits—Guaranteed!

In fact, you have a double, 100% no-risk guarantee. If you don't like the book when it arrives, return it for an immediate refund of your $4.95, no questions asked. Or, keep it and use it for a full year. If you don't collect at least $100.00 in free benefits and services, send it back next year. You still get your $4.95 back!

Just One More Thing . . .

We all see newspaper ads by fly-by-night operators. They use phoney names and hide behind post offices box numbers and care only about getting your money. I can assure you that I am a real person; a veteran (US 51347738); that I really work for the Good News Publishing Company (you can look us up in the telephone book—or stop by for a visit); that I'm really interested in helping you and other veterans claim your rightful share of free G.I. benefits. Think about that for a moment!

RUSTY STAUB:

He's the "Galloping Gourmet" Of Baseball!

Baseball fans know Daniel "Rusty" Staub as the $100,000-a-year outfielder who helped the New York Mets win the National League flag. Gourmets, however, know him as the best cook in baseball. He has had as many as 80 people in at one time to enjoy his culinary skills and receives kudos for his service as well as his recipes. "I like to serve in the elegant manner," he says. "I favor Waterford crystal, Wedgwood china and, of course, sterling." . . . Staub, 29, is a redheaded native of New Orleans who developed into an amateur chef through his mother's coaching. He keeps a loose-leaf book titled "My Recipes" next to his kitchen stove. . . . When he signed his professional baseball contract out of Jesuit High School in New Orleans, Staub found he had to do a great deal of traveling. He didn't like to eat out so he started to cook for himself in his apartment. Teammates spoke so highly of his skills that girl friends and wives began asking him for recipes. . . . Staub was bedeviled by injuries in 1972 and 1973 but nevertheless sparked the Mets' comeback drive, which enabled them to win the division title on the last day. His shoulder was damaged when he crashed into a wall during the play-offs against the Cincinnati Reds, but despite this handicap, he batted .423 in the World Series. . . . Staub has the reputation of being a great "swinger" as well as a great chef but claims this is an exaggeration. "If I went out with as many girls as they say I do, I'd never have the time to play baseball," he tells you.

The Diet Watch

What Are the Dangerous Weight-Gaining Ages?

At what stages in your adult life should you be detective-alert to the possibility of putting on weight? For women, critical periods are during a first pregnancy and after menopause. This is due to hormonal factors. Another critical period for women is just after the age of 21, because a girl begins to exercise less and doesn't lower her caloric intake to compensate. Men? A critical period is between the ages of 25 and 40, when men generally decrease their activity, but don't change their adolescent big-eating habits. Both men and women inadvertently tend to gain weight after 50 because of a lowered basal metabolic rate and decreased exercise—unless they adjust their calories accordingly. If you're in one of these susceptible periods, increase your activity and cut down calories. Even if the susceptible period is a temporary stage (as in pregnancy) you can later go back to former habits—but you may happily find yourself adjusted to staying on the slimmer (and healthier) side.

Group Marriages: What Makes People Join?

Why do some young adults take so enthusiastically to experiments in group marriage or communal living? Some are idealists trying to remake society. But a new study suggests that many grew up in homes in which the parents did not present a "united front." Frequently the parents had markedly contrasting religious and political views. They also differed on what their children's life goals should be and didn't give them any pattern of values. Young men and women from such homes sometimes report that they obtained their life philosophy from TV or other media rather than from their families. They may be attracted to group marriage or communal living in hopes of finding "the acceptance, security and meaningful relationships" they've failed to find in their original families.—By Shirley Sloan Fader

The Doctor Lets You In

Sinuses: Why on Earth Do We Have Them?

Did Nature goof when she made sinuses? Many sinus sufferers have thought so. Actually, there are about 25 sinuses, or air cavities, in the body. The ones that bother us are those called the paranasal sinuses that are located in the forehead and on each side of the nose. We do know that they do two things: give resonance to the voice and help to make the skull lighter. It is also believed that they act as a reservoir to make air moist and warm. Sinus trouble—or sinusitis—is caused by an inflammation of the lining of the sinus, usually through germs but sometimes through allergy. How can you fight it? First, shrink the tissues, either through the use of tablets or a vasoconstrictor nose spray. (One word of caution: Overuse of these products—particularly the nose sprays—can cause a "rebound" effect.) Second, do try to breathe through the nose. This helps ventilate the sinus passages. Finally, drink fluid and take aspirin to reduce the headache. In some severe cases, it may be necessary to have your sinuses drained by a doctor.

Kyle Rote Jr.: / The Unknown

"When the dust finally settled, one man stood alone in first place. It was not O. J. Simpson. It was not Seagren, Havlicek or Rose. It was Kyle Rote Jr."

By Larry Bortstein

Soccer star Kyle Rote, Jr. . . .

. . . and some of the "Superstars" events he competed in.

Last February, a group of the greatest athletes in the world gathered in Rotonda, Fla., to compete in the "Superstars" competition. O. J. Simpson was there. So were Bob Seagren, John Havlicek and Pete Rose. Each was required to compete in seven of ten events—not including their own specialties. A lot was at stake. Not only would the winner get more than $50,000—but there were all the intangibles of pride and ego.

When the dust finally settled, one man stood alone in first place. It was not O. J. Simpson. It was not Seagren, Havlicek or Rose. It was a relatively unknown young man with a very well-known name: Kyle Rote, Jr.

The name Kyle Rote, of course, is synonymous with football. Kyle Rote, Sr., was an All-America halfback at SMU and fashioned an excellent 11-year NFL career with the New York Giants before retiring to enter the field of sports broadcasting.

It seemed a sensible route for his son to follow—except it wasn't the one Kyle Jr. wanted to pursue. First, after graduating from high school in Dallas, he accepted a football scholarship to Oklahoma State University. "I know people at SMU were disappointed," Kyle says, " and quite a few other people were upset by my leaving Texas and the Southwest Conference."

But young Rote's biggest decision was yet to come. After a year, he questioned the relevance of big-time collegiate football. "I was the type of student who had to avoid distractions in order to get good grades. The atmosphere for football players at Oklahoma State wasn't conducive to classwork. I had to find a small school where I could get along and do what I wanted."

Kyle found his answer at the tiny University of the South in Sewanee, Tenn. Once a major football power in its own right, Sewanee now nestles quietly atop the plateau of the Cumberland River, far from the glamour and crowds of big-time athletics. There were no athletic scholarships for Sewanee students. But Kyle Jr. would have had to search high and far to find any college with a scholarship in the sport he decided to embrace.

The sport was soccer, and by the time he enrolled at Sewanee in 1969, Kyle had played it only two years, and then only on a rudimentary level. Soccer has long been a stepchild of American sports, appreciated mostly by immigrants from nations where it is the sport. Kyle barely knew of its existence until he and several high school football teammates tried it as a summer conditioner. Then one afternoon, they learned what the game really was all about.

Ron Griffith, an Englishman from Blackpool who was a sports correspondent for a Scottish newspaper, came upon Kyle and his friends kicking a soccer ball around one hot summer afternoon. Griffith offered to teach them the finer points of the game.

"At first we were offended by this guy butting in," recalls Kyle. "But we soon realized he could help us a lot. Pretty soon we formed a team called the Black Bandits and we scrimmaged other local teams."

Though he continued to play football, Kyle finally succumbed to the lure of soccer when he entered Sewanee.

Armed with a degree in psychology and a new wife, Mary Lynne, of Rossville, Ga., Kyle returned to Dallas in June, 1972, uncertain of his future. The Dallas Tornadoes of the North American Soccer League offered him a playing contract that, by their own admission, was more of a public relations ploy than a serious attempt to recruit a new player.

"I had a lot of local appeal," Kyle concedes, "and I had played soccer, so it was a logical move on their part. Except they didn't really feel I would ever be an important player. The job they offered me was a combination player-public relations director."

Joining the Tornadoes with the 1972 season more than half completed, Kyle only played in practice, but his potential for the game began to emerge.

"My size [six feet and 185 pounds] is bigger than average for soccer," he points out, "and I learned how to use it to good advantage." Rote also discovered he had a natural aptitude for "heading" the ball. Since the use of arms and hands is prohibited in soccer, except by goaltenders, players must pass the ball either by kicking it or hitting it off their heads.

"It's mostly a matter of timing," Kyle explains. "You have to time the movement of your head with the flight of the ball."

When the 1973 NASL season began the following April, Kyle was a regular member of Dallas' playing roster. He quickly proved that Tornado Coach Ron Newman was correct in his judgment of the young Sewanee graduate by scoring a goal in the first game of the year. By the end of the season Rote was the league's scoring champion (ten goals, ten assists) and rookie of the year.

Playing center forward, a position analogous to center in basketball and hockey, Kyle helped the team go all the way to the championship final of the NASL, before bowing to the Philadelphia Atoms.

That Kyle is a "different breed of cat" is illustrated by the fact that he is using part of his "Superstars" prize money for his tuition at the Perkins School of Theology. Kyle plans to be ordained in two years.

He isn't certain if he will go into active preaching. He intends to remain in soccer for several more years. His rise to stardom in the sport comes at a time when soccer may be experiencing its long-awaited boom in the U.S. In Dallas alone, the number of people playing soccer on all levels has risen from 192 five years ago to more than 40,000 today.

"I'd like to be remembered," Kyle says, "as a pioneer in soccer in this country. I think the public is waking up to how great a game it is. Before I leave it, if I ever do, I want to be sure I've done something for the sport."

VERY SPECIAL PEOPLE

The Struggles, Loves, and Triumphs of Human Oddities

As a youngster, Francesco Lentini was so shocked at what he saw in an institution for the severely handicapped that he never complained about his third leg again.

These are just a few of the many "mistakes of Nature" included in Frederick Drimmer's fascinating new book, VERY SPECIAL PEOPLE. What makes them very special is that they were all born "curiosities" and they all lived unusual lives. Like Chang and Eng, the original Siamese twins, who were joined at the chest for life. They married sisters, set up separate homes, and fathered 22 children between them!

Then there was Grace McDaniels, billed as the ugliest woman who ever lived (and her photo proves it). Believe it or not, Grace received several proposals of marriage before she accepted one from a handsome young man. They had a perfectly normal son, who grew up to be his mother's manager!

John Merrick, the grossly deformed "Elephant Man," was deserted by his heartless manager. Befriended by a kindly doctor, Merrick became quite famous and was frequently visited by Royalty.

The stories in this book are true, and we have over 65 rare photos to prove it. Never has one book been so complete. There are chapters on giants, dwarfs, fat people, armless and legless wonders, hermaphrodites (half man, half woman), bearded ladies, and numerous other human oddities.

This is not just a picture book of "freaks." The author treats these people with insight, compassion and the dignity one earns by being born different from everyone else.

VERY SPECIAL PEOPLE will also teach you one of the most important lessons that life has to offer: the incredible ability of man's mind, soul, and spirit to overcome any physical imperfection...no matter how hopeless it may appear. Read this book and you'll never indulge in self-pity again.

Only $5.95, hard covered, 412 pages, 67 photographs.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

The Two Basic Personality Types: Which Is Better?

True or False: Introverts have better memories than extroverts. (See number 5)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Women tend to be much more introverted than men.

2. If a person is a nonsmoker, the odds are better than even that he's an introvert.

3. Introverts not only differ from extroverts personality-wise, but even their body chemistry is different.

4. Introverts are more fearful than extroverts.

5. Introverts have better memories than extroverts.

6. When life hands the introvert more pressures, stresses and emotional conflicts than he can handle, he reacts in an entirely different way than the extrovert.

ANSWERS

1. False. In a recent psychological survey, men and women subjects were asked to indicate whether they considered themselves introverts or extroverts. More than three times as many men as women rated themselves as introverts. And studies also show that women, much more than men, tend to share such extroverted traits as sociability, impulsiveness, talkativeness, interest in the personalities of others, etc.

2. True—according to studies conducted by the Economic and Social Research Institute, which show smoking to be definitely associated with extroversion, and that "in nations where the level of extroversion is high, the population's consumption of tobacco is high also."

3. True. Studies at a leading university showed that introverts' body temperatures increased more during the morning hours than did the extroverts'. The opposite was true for the afternoon. Tests also showed that each personality type tended to be most alert during the times of the day when their body temperatures were elevated.

4. True. Consensus of studies shows that "introverts are predisposed to develop conditioned fears, and take less readily than extroverts to potentially dangerous activities." It's interesting to note in this connection that research has shown that it is much harder to teach introverted children to swim, and it is more difficult for them to overcome their fear of the water.

5. True—as demonstrated by psychological studies at the University of London. While extroverts did better on short-term memory tests (retaining learned material better for brief periods), it was found that "after 24 hours, introverts remember almost twice as much as extroverts."

6. True. Studies at Britain's Institute of Psychiatry have shown that introverts in such situations are predisposed to become neurotic, while extroverts are more likely to become involved in some form of antisocial behavior. To put it another way, when the introvert is under greater pressures than he can cope with, he tends to explode inwardly. But the extrovert explodes outwardly—and lets the chips fall where they may!

What we are offering you, in fact, is the world's first "inside" manual on how ordinary women (with perhaps a slightly better face and a slightly better figure than yours) are transformed overnight into stunning beauties! With pounds carved painlessly off their figures! Years smoothed effortlessly off their faces! Every good feature perfected, and every bad feature either corrected or disguised!

And then—when the absolute exquisite face-figure has been created out of the raw girl who first came into the studio—this dazzling physical beauty is then "frozen" against time and weight-gain-of-even-an-ounce for ten . . . twenty . . . even forty years!

For great models are not born; they are made! (On page 10 of this eye-opening volume, you are taken behind-the-scenes in the most glamorous "sorority" in the world, and you are shown that there is scarcely a model alive who did not need to have ten or twenty pounds whisked off her figure, and a major transformation made on her face, before a top model agency offered her a contract!)

But these women made themselves slim, and made themselves radiant far more cleverly and easily than you have ever dreamed. Let us prove that to you right now:

Take Slimming, For Example! How Would You Like To Eat What You Want, When You Want It—And Still Get And Stay Slim Forever!

Let us just quote one of the models whose "forever-young, forever-slim" secrets are revealed here! She says, quite frankly, "I positively adore food. And I never, but never, starve myself. Yet I weigh the same today as when I started modelling more than ten years ago." (Italics ours.)

Why? Because she uses the "Self-Maintaining Diet"! The diet that's fun, that's the happiest of adventures! That actually tames, overnight, those sudden wild urges that destroy your figure! That re-educates your taste buds and your metabolism, so that you find yourself able to eat what you want, when you want it, without gaining so much as an ounce—and (at least at the beginning) losing as much as a pound a day!

Using this diet strategy, food becomes an ally rather than an enemy! It fills you up, but never out! Using this strategy, one model went from 140 pounds to 123 pounds in well under a single month—and she still ate what she pleased on weekends!

Using this strategy, every other model (with the exception of one or two) who faithfully followed it for ten days lost ten big pounds—to start! Another (a perfectionist) went from 133 to 97 pounds! Another, who was bottom-heavy, not only shed ugly pounds all over her body—but spot-exercised the flab right off her bottom so perfectly that she now does bathing suit ads!

And This "Frozen Slenderness' Is Only The Beginning Of The Stunning New Beauty These Top Models Can Give You! Without Your Risking A Penny!

For example:

Of all women, a successful model must always be a healthy, sexually vibrant, powerhouse of energy! She must be able to "turn on the dazzle" at a moment's notice—despite the fact that she has been dashing all over the city, toting pounds of clothes, a make-up kit, and often a wig box! Here are the "glamour vitamins" that turn on such amazing stores of physical vitality—ready to go to work for you within seconds after you read page 42!

Nor can an $80-an-hour model afford the slightest trace of dandruff! After trying all the expensive treatments and preparations, here's how they simply rinse the ugly flakes away, at home, in seconds—for pennies! (Page 63.)

And glasses are out too! Weak eyes, aging eyes, dull eyes can cost a model her career! These top models believe that most women take to spectacles simply because of lazy eye muscles, just as most women take to girdles because of lazy body muscles! And if you want to escape the "eyeglass-prison"—perhaps far faster than you've ever dreamed—check page 68 the moment you get this book!

And how about strong, sexy teeth! Did you ever hear, for example, of the new sealants that can be applied to your teeth in seconds, to shield them from harmful bacteria! (See page 73.)

SPECIAL BONUS SECTION: Tips from top hand models that may solve your rough, red problem forever! They say bluntly that there is simply no excuse any longer for hands that are anything else but silken smooth—and nails that are as strong as steel! One glance at the "magic" hand exercises on page 81 may convince you, for good!

PLUS, of course, the same "million-dollar know-how" for your feet as well! Including a natural-fruit way to keep their skin exquisitely white and fine-pored! And a simple little action that builds a natural-shield against calluses right into them!

Just MOVE the way you're shown on pages 89 to 103 . . . and watch inches seem to evaporate into thin air—as though you could practically "smile" them away!

Here are special, super-effective slimmers for the stomach, legs, hips, calves, derriere, arms, bosom—and especially that embarrassing "below-stomach bulge" that otherwise grows larger and larger! Also two startling "firmer-uppers" for neck lines and for bags under your eyes that you must try at once if you suffer from either one!

How to achieve the illusion of a near-perfect face (for example, if you have a receding chin, how to "add" to it in seconds) . . .

And Much, Much More! But Read Them All—Prove Them All, From Cover To Cover—Without Risking A Penny!

This book is for people who want to get things done! You owe it to yourself to try it! We take all the risk! Why not send in the coupon—TODAY!

Rare Limited Edition Collector Plates:

Each Plate Is Produced In A Limited Quantity And Then The Mold Destroyed. When Limited Quantities Are Gone, There Will Be No More Available.

We've chosen every Limited Edition Plate on this page as the rarest and finest quality available. Some are handmade, some handpainted and some serially numbered—each is a masterpiece from a world-famous art-plate company such as Bing and Grondahl, Haviland, and Goebel-Hummel, and each has good investment potential. However, due to the energy crisis in Europe, porcelain plants are now working at up to only one-half capacity and this year the supply will not satisfy the demand. We suggest that you place your order TODAY!

WHY DO LIMITED EDITIONS INCREASE IN VALUE?

Each year, quality companies like those represented here, produce a limited number of a prestige collector plate before destroying the mold. As these plates "sell out" and get out of the hands of dealers and into the hands of collectors such as yourself, prices generally rise. We've sold many in recent years that have increased 500% . . . and because we can't show all our recommended plates in our ads, we send you Absolutely Free, with any order from this ad, our famous Joy's Monthly Newsletter that shows pictures and gives important information on collectors items of world wide interest.

KNOWING WHAT TO BUY IS IMPORTANT!

We feel we've been pretty successful in helping our customers make right choices. For instance: we sold the 1969 Bing and Grondahl Mother's Day Plate for $9.00 . . . it now brings over $300.00 (and we hear that the 1974 B & G Mother's Day, available in this ad at only $16.50, will be equally limited); the 1972 Haviland-Parlon Christmas Plate we sold has quadrupled in price and the 1973 edition, shown in this ad, is almost sold out; the 1971 Goebel Hummel Annual now brings up to $225.00 (we still have some 1972's and 1973's at $32.00) and the 1974 Goebel Hummel Annual, also in this ad, is very limited this year. (And only 2,500 were produced of the 1973 Santa Clara Christmas Plate, offered in this ad, making it the rarest ever!)

Plate collecting isn't a new hobby, either. Bing and Grondahl of Denmark produced their first dated Annual Plate in 1895 and have produced one every year since. That 1895 Plate sold for 50¢ and is currently worth $2,700.

OUR VERY SPECIAL OFFER:

You should take advantage of the fantastic 1972 Santa Clara plate offer shown at top of page but do it soon because all Limited Edition Collector Plates are subject to limited supplies and we fully expect a huge response to this obvious good deal.

The Day I Met King Faisal

"Your interview with His Majesty, King Faisal, is tonight at nine," an Arab minister told my husband. "Madam will accompany you."

It was our third day in Saudi Arabia. My husband Tom is a journalist, and this interview was very important to him. I was just along for the ride—so you can imagine my astonishment when I learned that King Faisal wanted to meet me, too!

As we drove to the palace, Tom told me: "I'll never forget the time when I sat in on a tribal meeting, trying to interview Faisal. Guys were running in and out with papers, a man was getting marital advice from the King, Cabinet ministers were vying for his attention. Suddenly a little man ran up and shouted 'Faisal! Faisal!' When he finally got the King's ear, he asked directions to the men's room. No one thought it unusual. They ask him anything and just call him Faisal."

At the palace gates, the red-bereted Royal Guard, bayoneted rifles at their sides, peered in, then saluted us through.

" 'Once when the King saw a Saudi TV announcer with long sideburns, he called the station and ordered him to get a haircut.' "

On the stairs, Faisal's personal bodyguard snapped to attention. They were romantic-looking, white-robed, dark-skinned men, their chests crossed with bandoliers of bullets. They, too, carried rifles, and were right out of the movies.

Heels clicked behind us. Massive carved doors swung open. A few robed men stood by. ("Personal advisers," Tom whispered.)

Faisal rose, his emaciated figure robed in traditional Saudi black and white. The only royal appurtenance was the golden rope that kept his head covering in place. As Tom introduced me, Faisal smiled and shook my hand warmly. He sat down and indicated a couch beside him.

It was hard not to be overwhelmed by Faisal's prominent features. The hooked nose descended from caves of circles below his eyes. His face was strong, though barely masking his years and his bouts with disease.

Faisal sat stiffly erect, watching

Faisal: Stern fellow.

Tom compose his questions, glancing at me, exchanging looks with his advisers. His tough-minded exactness in answering some questions and his purposeful ambiguity in answering others contrasted with his fragile appearance.

His reputation with other Arabs is of a tyrannical, puritanical conservative. As a sample of his opinions, he told Tom he believes Zionism is a Communist plot to gain control of the entire Middle East.

Faisal leaned toward Tom: "Ask Europeans and Americans about anti-Semitism. We are only anti-Communist and therefore anti-Zionist. How can we be anti-Semitic? We are Semites. Jews are our cousins."

Faisal's tone of voice said he was an unbending man. Queen Iffat, his wife, told me the next day, "He sees people like the Beatles as bad influences. Once when the King saw a Saudi TV announcer with long sideburns, he called the station and ordered him to get a haircut."

When the interview ended, I reached for Tom's camera and tried to take Faisal's picture. But something was wrong with the flash. And the pressure of the King's impatience set me fumbling. I handed Tom the camera to fix.

Oh heavens! I thought. What must the King think?

But Faisal—almost smiling—was peering over Tom's shoulder, entranced with what Tom was doing to the camera. When the camera was fixed, Faisal's face returned to its old expression, so I snapped the picture of my smiling husband standing next to a stern Faisal. I guess the King didn't want oil-hungry Americans to see anything but his stern public image!

BACKACHE?

THE MOST AMAZING AND SUCCESSFUL BODY SHAPER EVER CREATED

JENNIFER McCARTHY writes to tell us... CASE #2116

"I lost 6½ inches off my waist, 15 pounds of excess weight, 2¼ inches off my hips...shaped up in just 14 days!"

One 5 Minute exercise, twice daily, lying on my back watching T.V., reducing my food intake only by 20% — but not giving up any of the foods I love — DID IT!

Jennifer the day she started on the 5 Minute Body Shaper Plan.

KEN WALLER writes to tell us that... CASE #136

"I lost 3 inches off my waistline, 6 pounds...and shaped up - in 5 days!"

One 5 Minute exercise, twice daily, lying on my back watching T.V., reducing my food intake only by 20% — but not giving up any of the foods I love — DID IT!

Only 5 Days Later — Gut gone, and shaping up. Fast Enough?

7 Months Later — Still in great shape — muscular, firm and rugged — Results that Stay!

Results in just 3 days!

Joe Weider, fitness expert and trainer of champions since 1936 says:

"Give me 5 minutes twice daily for only 7 days and you'll lose up to 3 inches from your waistline, up to 6 pounds of unwanted weight, and 'shape up' — or I will return every penny."

LET'S FACE THE FACTS WHY YOU'RE OUT OF SHAPE

You eat the wrong combination of foods, you do not get enough exercise to thoroughly work your muscular, metabolic and respiratory systems daily. Because of this, fat accumulates around your waistline, heart and other body organs, slowing you down, aging your body and destroying your vitality, virility and youth. There is only one way to firm up and shape up: that is through proper exercise and proper nutrition. Effortless exercisers, reducing pills, sauna shorts, weighted belts, dangerous and painful diets and other gimmicks designed to appeal to your laziness will not work and have been exposed by the medical profession as frauds, ineffective and in some cases dangerous. They can only reduce your pocketbook.

Face up to it... If you want to slim down, firm and shape up, you must work off the inches, and there is no safer, faster and more enjoyable way to do it than with our patented, truly miraculous "5" Minute Body Shaper Plan.

HOW DOES THIS INGENIOUS "5" MINUTE PLAN SLIM, FIRM AND SHAPE YOU UP?

The Weider "5" Minute Body Shaper plan is based on doing ONE CONTINUOUS, RHYTHMIC COORDINATED EXERCISE, twice daily. That's all you do. No dieting. Eat the foods you like—however, we suggest you consume 20% less food, while on this plan, for maximum results. This one five-minute exercise is designed to attack the Waist and Hips (where fat accumulates quickest, giving your body a flabby, weak and distorted look)—as well as burn off excess fat fast by speeding up stored calories and reshaping your chest, abdomen, firming up your legs and arms—your total body!

It's safer than strenuous workouts, beats the time consumption and dangers of gym workouts . . . or any other vigorous sport.

Patent Pending. Copyright Joe Weider, 1974

OPTACON
Can it replace Braille?

A new device will help the blind read without using Braille. It has been invented by three Stanford University professors—one of whom has a blind daughter. "I presume," says Dr. J. G. Linvill, "her unfortunate circumstance gave me the drive to find something for the blind." Called the Optacon, the electrical device converts an optical image to a tactile image on a vibrating rectangular field. The blind person takes the scanning machine (pictured) and moves it over the printed page from letter to letter. As the right hand scans the page, the left hand picks up a tactile image of the letter from a small vibrating device about the size of a portable tape recorder. The Optacon may be used with a small amount of training and is far less complicated than learning Braille, according to its creators. The machine now costs about $5,000 but will be cheaper when it is mass-produced. (For more information write to the Electronics Laboratories at Stanford University, Stanford, Calif. 94305.)

QUOTE: The Russians idolize the late John F. Kennedy says Charlotte Y. Salisbury in her new book. "I don't believe there has ever been an American family that appealed so to foreigners as the Kennedys, and for many of the same reasons that they appealed to us. They were so exciting, so dashing, so young and idealistic, so hard-working and dedicated to their country. And it is always glamorous to be so rich. I was told that John F. Kennedy has become like an icon to many Russians; his picture hangs in many Russian homes. He is worshiped as the embodiment of intelligence, democracy and freedom, a god and a martyr." From "Russian Diary" (Walker and Co., $6.95). UNQUOTE.

EDWARD ASNER
Father of twins

When Ed Asner is not playing Lou Grant on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," he is at home with his twins—a boy and a girl. Are twins harder to raise than one child? "Yes," says Asner, who is becoming something of an expert on the subject, "particularly if you want them to grow up as individuals, as we do. When there are two children, one usually intimidates the other. A parent can always reason with the older one, but with twins it's a constant problem. At first the girl was more dominant, but now it's the boy who's loud-mouthed. We also make sure they don't dominate each other by keeping them in separate schools." Sounds like the proverbial battle of the sexes to us!

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

PROTECTIVE CUSTODY

Grandparents have an advantage on parents—
Their lesser responsibility.
But parents come closer, their years being fewer,
To matching their children's agility.

Though maybe for only an hour,
But after ten minutes of watching and leaping
He questions his staying power.

Oh, grandparents try to be ever-alert,
Want parents to trust and believe them,
Then sigh with relief when there's Changing of Guards
And the parents return to relieve them.

A customer warned a used-car dealer: "Now, don't tell me this car was owned by a little old lady who used it only on Sundays." "Even better," the dealer replied. "It was owned by a physician who used it only for house calls." —Conrad Fiorello

At a party where much liquor was being served, a man embraced a stranger by mistake. When he saw his error he said, "No offense intended, madam, I thought you were my wife." "A fine husband you must be," she snorted, "you overstuffed, miserable, incompetent lout!" "You see," exclaimed the drunk, "you even talk like her!"

My six-year-old grandson was asked by his teacher to write out his favorite recipe. No problem there! "How to make spaghetti. (1) cook it. (2) Use about three quarts of spaghetti sauce; use about three tomatoes and some meat loaf. (3) Put this on this much _____ (about ½ in.) spaghetti. That's all. Three people could eat this."

The world's strongest tape

PURE STAINLESS STEEL ADHESIVE TAPE

HOLDS 160,000 POUNDS PER SQUARE INCH

SIX TIMES STRONGER THAN ALUMINUM TAPE!

Here are some of the miracle bonds this Stainless Steel tape will create:

- Refinishing rusted auto trim
- Adding new trim to cars, boats, bicycles
- Wrapping auto mufflers and exhaust pipes
- Repairing gutters, eaves, downspouts
- Sealing heater and air conditioner ducts
- Protecting leading edges of auto doors and hoods, trimming and decorating around the house
- Brightening metal furniture
- Many, many more

Only $2.99

Here's the tape! It's stainless steel adhesive tape, a tape that is six times stronger than aluminum tape and because it's stainless steel, it can't corrode. Permanently seals all kinds of holes, leaks, breaks, rough spots, places you never thought were repairable before with a sealing tape. Not only is it stronger than anything ever created before, but it gets better as it gets older! It will never corrode, improves with age. It is waterproof, and grease resistant —withstands temperature extremes from minus 30° to plus 250° fahrenheit. Say goodbye to old fashioned aluminum tape and anything else you only hoped would work.

We guarantee that stainless steel adhesive tape will do the job and do it permanently. Its applications are almost endless. You can use it to refinish auto trim, add new trim to cars, boats and bicycles, give a protective new look to leading edges of doors, you can seal heater and air conditioner ducts, repair downspouts and gutters. You simply press it into position and once it's on it stays, becoming a permanent part of the seal.

And because it accepts paint and patching compounds, you can put it in place and paint right over it with matching colors and your surface looks like new. It's the tape you've been looking for to do all those jobs around the house, requires no special tools for application. You simply press or wrap and there it is once and for all, the job completed and looking as good as new. So order your stainless steel adhesive tape now, a big 2″ by 10′ roll only, $2.99 (better order two rolls, you'll be finding so many applications you'll want to use as much as you can). Two for just $5.50.

Prince Valiant

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: "MAKE HER SPEAK!" SHRILLS THE MAD DUKE, "USE YOUR DARK POWERS THAT SHE MAY SAY THE WORDS OF ADORATION FOR WHICH I HAVE WAITED THESE FIFTEEN YEARS!"

"MAKE HER SPEAK, WIZARD, MAKE HER SPEAK, OR YOU TOO WILL BE FOREVER SILENT!" SIR GAWAIN MOVES A STEP CLOSER.

HE IS THROWN INTO THE "LOVE NEST" HE MADE FOR HIS POOR UNFORTUNATE BRIDE, AND THE HEAVY OAKEN DOOR LOCKED. "NOW TO FIGHT OUR WAY OUT OF THIS MADHOUSE," SAYS GAWAIN. "NOT IF THE PLAN I HAVE IN MIND WORKS," ANSWERS ARN.

SECOND IN AUTHORITY IS THE SENESCHAL, AN EVIL, AVARICIOUS MAN, AND TO HIM ARN SAYS: "THIS KEY WILL MAKE YOU MASTER OF THE CASTLE AND ALL ITS RICHES. IT WILL BE PUT INTO YOUR HANDS THREE LEAGUES FROM THE CASTLE GATES."

SO THE SENESCHAL ORDERS THE GATES TO BE OPENED, AND AT THE REQUIRED DISTANCE RECEIVES THE KEY. AN EVIL GRIN TWISTS HIS FACE, FOR HE HAS GUESSED THE SIGNIFICANCE OF THE LOCKED DOOR.

"WHY PUT THAT SHIFTY VULTURE IN COMMAND?" ASKS GAWAIN. "BECAUSE HE IS A WEAKLING AND CANNOT CONTROL THE DUKE'S VICIOUS ROGUES. BEFORE NIGHTFALL THE CASTLE WILL BE STRIPPED OF ITS RICHES..."

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1. Mane is different. 2. Haunch is missing. 3. Tail is missing. 4. Hat is different. 5. Buckle is different. 6. Bracelet is missing.

SUM FUN! Ask a friend to jot down a number between one and 10. To this, you add a number of 10 or less. Then he repeats and you repeat alternately until a total of 100 is reached. Whoever reaches that exact total wins the game.

Once you have tallied any one of these totals, you can reach all of the others simply by noting the number your opponent adds, then adding enough more to make 11. Upon reaching a total of 89, you cannot lose.

BULLETIN BOARD

● FOLDEROL! Fold a sheet of paper in two. Fold it again. And again. And again, etc. How many times at most can you fold it? After seven folds, how many thicknesses will you have?

Seventeen.

● Sentence Safari! Find two animals in: Elmo used to be a real funny clown.

ALL SWEPT AND DUSTED, AND TH' DINNER'S COOKIN'- HE'LL BE HOME ANY MINUTE NOW- BETTER GET TH' BISCUITS READY.

WORK- HERE IN THIS LITTLE SHOP NOW FOR OVER THIRTY YEARS- MY LITTLE HOUSE- THE FRUIT TREES- BERRIES- A FEW CHICKENS- A LITTLE MONEY IN THE BANK- FOR WHAT? I'VE OFTEN WONDERED-

T'S BEEN PRETTY LONELY, SOMETIMES ... OF COURSE THE COLLEGE STUDENTS HAVE HELPED-- BUT OF THE THOUSANDS WHO HAVE PASSED IN AND OUT OF MY SHOP ... NONE HAS EVER REALLY TOUCHED MY LIFE-

THEN LAST SUNDAY ... THAT BRIGHT-EYED KID AND HER DOG ... COLD-SOAKED TO THE SKIN-- HALF-STARVED- BUT NOT LICKED-

SHE'LL STAY TILL SHE'S FED UP AND THEN DRIFT ON, MOST LIKELY- I COULDN'T BLAME HER ... THERE'S A LIGHT ... SOMEONE WAITING AT HOME FOR ME-- AFTER ALL THESE YEARS ...

MY DAUGHTER WOULD HAVE BEEN LIKE THAT ... IF I'D EVER HAD A DAUGHTER-

HURRY UP- SUPPER'S ALL READY- TH' BISCUITS TURNED OUT SWELL-

Virgil didn't show up again!

That's strange, isn't it, Pop?

I saw him at Dr. Fuddle's yesterday.

He's cut Mr. Fracas's lawn lately, too.

Doin' your own yardwork now, Wallet?

That's what bugs me. I had him first—you guys got him from me!

Hi, Mr. Wallet. I'm sorry to be late.

Hello, Virgil! Where have you been?

Busy, busy, busy! I've got several new yards lately—recommendations from satisfied customers, you know.

Two of Mr. Fracas's friends, for instance. Thanks, Mr. Fracas!
