House Judiciary Committee Up In Arms

By JOHN BECKLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's refusal to comply with a House Judiciary Committee subpoena for 11 Watergate tapes is providing new grounds for impeachment in the view of some members.

"It means the cover-up continues," said Rep. George Danielson, D-Calif., after Nixon notified the committee Wednesday he would not comply with the subpoena or any other it issues for Watergate material.

"It's hurting him with the committee," said Rep. Tom Railsback, R-Ill., one of a number of Republicans who expressed disappointment at Nixon's action.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., calling Nixon's refusal "a very grave matter," scheduled a committee meeting for next week to deal with it.

There's some talk of citing Nixon for contempt of Congress and of seeking court enforcement of the subpoena, but a majority appeared to favor taking the President's action into account when considering whether he should be impeached.

The committee staff has advised that it is proper to infer that anyone possessing and refusing to provide subpoenaed evidence is withholding material that could be incriminating.

In a letter to Rodino saying he would not produce the tapes, Nixon said the committee's request, and others it is getting ready to make, amount to "a massive invasion into the confidentiality of presidential conversations."

"More fundamentally, continuing ad infinitum the process of yielding up additional conversations in response to an endless series of demands would fatally weaken this office, not only in this administration but for future presidencies as well," Nixon added.

Rodino rejected Nixon's argument, saying the committee's requests were narrowly drawn and related specifically to the impeachment inquiry:

"There is no way the presidency will be weakened by the constitutional process we are conducting. The republic will be strengthened."

Rodino said the committee will issue more subpoenas if it decides the White House is withholding evidence it needs. The next one likely will deal with the dairy funds and ITT controversies.

The committee has requested tapes of 66 conversations in these two areas and Nixon's lawyer, James D. St. Clair, told it Wednesday it would get only one partial transcript.

The committee delved deeper into the crucial March 21, 1973, stage of the Watergate cover-up Wednesday, adding secret grand jury evidence to its tapes of Nixon's conversations dealing with hush money payments.

In a report accompanying indictments returned against seven former White House and Nixon re-election campaign aides March 1, the Watergate grand jury said a $75,000 payment was made to the lawyer for convicted Watergate burglar E. Howard Hunt Jr. the night of March 21.

In a taped conversation earlier that day, Nixon appeared to be ordering his former counsel, John W. Dean III, to make the payment.

There is some dispute as to whether the $75,000 actually was paid that night, but several committee members said the evidence presented Wednesday made it clear that it was.

The committee also heard a tape of a March 22 conversation in which Nixon, Dean, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and former White House aides John D. Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman discussed various means of dealing with the upcoming Senate Watergate hearings.

Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., said she found the tape "very significant," but did not go into detail. Rep. Robert Drinan, D-Mass., said "the whole tone of the conversation showed they were determined not to let it (the cover-up of White House involvement in Watergate) get out."

In other Watergate-related developments:

—U.S. District Court Judge Gerhard Gesell signed subpoenas directing Nixon to turn over documents, including some top secret papers, for the plumbers trial.

—The Senate Watergate committee granted immunity to Texas lawyer Jake Jacobsen in an attempt to get him to testify about an alleged $10,000 dairy industry bribe to Connally. Connally has denied he took the money.

—Presidential adviser Rev. John McLaughlin urged Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Calif., a member of the Judiciary Committee, to disqualify himself from the impeachment inquiry. McLaughlin, a Jesuit priest, said Waldie "quite clearly has convicted President Nixon in his head and in his heart."

The Boston Globe reported today it had learned from a source who had heard the White House tape that during the March 22 conversation, Nixon said: "Even up to this point, the whole theory has been containment, as you know, John."

Nixon has said he did not learn of any Watergate cover-up until March 21, 1973.

School Holdup

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A kindergarten teacher who reported to work early was robbed today by a gunman who accosted her in a classroom at Barringer Elementary School.

Public school officials said the teacher, Julie J. Wood, was not harmed. She reported the gunman took $10 to $15 in cash and a diamond ring before fleeing from the building.

The robbery occurred about 7:30 a.m., less than an hour before classes were to open. No children were present during the incident.

Union Spokesman Doubts Phone Contract Approval

By CARL L. TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Harry Finch says it has been three weeks since he had a day off and hasn't been to bed before 2 a.m. in quite some time.

Finch is the president of union local 3681 of the Communications Workers of America (CWA), which represents approximately 1,045 employees of the Carolina Telephone Co. in Finch's district.

CWA and Carolina Telephone have been negotiating a new contract for almost three months and the negotiations have resulted in a contract offer which will be voted on by mailed secret ballot between now and May 30.

According to Finch, it looks as if the voting will go against the new contract.

The local president was in Greenville yesterday helping to stage an informational picket in front of the local Carolina Telephone office, the second such picketing this month.

Finch states the new contract offer which will be voted on this month offers a 9.05 per cent pay increase but does not include any cost of living increases.

This lack of a cost of living clause is what Finch believes is the major hitch between acceptance or nonacceptance of the new contract by the union members.

The present contract extension is the third one for the expiring CWA contract.

If the new contract is voted down the international CWA office will be notified and a strike date will be set by the international office, he stated. The international union has 10 days to set a strike date, if it comes to that.

The cost of living clause the union is asking for would amount to a three cents an hour raise for every one-half of one percent cost of living increase as determined by the cost of living index. This cost of living increase would be figured quarterly.

Other items included in the new contract offer, according to Finch, is a dental plan paid by the employees the first two years and picked up by the company the third year, a choice of tours or work schedules for the operators decided upon weekly, instead of every 13 weeks as presently decided, and the company would pick up the employees cost of health insurance the first year and their dependants the second year while the company would reserve the right to pass on any increases in health insurance.

Finch believes if his union members should strike that the public opinion will go against them, as North Carolina has traditionally been an anti-union state and is not use to strikes.

"Unless they change their mind (union members) between now the the time they cast their ballots, I expect the new contract to be turned down," Finch says.

The company has made their "final and best offer" according to their negotiator, he added.

"In my opinion, the vote is going to be an overwhelming no," he commented.

Planners Eye Future Around Hospital Site

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

A conceptual plan designed to guide the future growth around the new hospital site was presented by the Joint City-County Planning and Zoning Commission and discussed with property owners during an informal session Wednesday night.

City Planner John Schofield, discussing the plan which is considered the first step in laying the groundwork for future zoning decisions, said the area covered by the plan includes the land bordered by the Tar River, the Allen Road, the Stantonsburg Road and Memorial Drive.

Schofield said that the central portion of the roughly 1,000 acre study area is proposed for medically-related development. The central area contains the site of the new hospital as well as the current hospital site.

Asserting that, "We feel like this will be one of the fastest growing areas of Pitt County," the planner noted that the board is trying to determine what the medical, residential and commercial needs of the area will be.

Basically, areas of new commercial growth are projected at the intersections of the proposed new roads, he explained, including Arlington Drive Extension, the realigned N. C. 11, and the proposed relocation of U.S. 264. The balance of the area is projected as a residential growth area.

Schofield said that medical personnel from East Carolina University have indicated that if the new medical school is located here and the facility is built in the vicinity of the new hospital, a minimum of 50 acres is needed for a two-year school and some 150 acres is needed if the school is expanded to four years. Additional land would be needed if the proposed area health care facility is located here.

The plan proposes an expansion of Medical Arts zoning to reach from Memorial Drive westward beyond the new hospital site. Residential zoning would also be expanded and highway commercial zoning would remain as it is below the Stantonsburg Road.

"This is the first step in a long process," Schofield told the property owners and other citizens attending.

J. H. Moye, representing the J. G. Moye heirs on the north side of N.C. 43, requested that the planning board delay rezoning action in the area until more is known about the new medical school. Moye asked that the board "give us 120 days for further study."

Speaking on behalf of the Jesse Roundtree Moye Sr. heirs, Frank Wooten requested that the property not be rezoned for residential and medically-related uses exclusively. Wooten, noting that the Moyes gave 17 and one-half acres of their land for the present hospital site, said that his clients feel that the property should be designated for uses such as office and institutional and not residential.

The local attorney also urged the Planning Commission to give property owners more time to study the proposed plan and objected to the board giving

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

Hotline is a public service provided by The Daily Reflector to solve problems and get things done for you. Hotline would like to be able to address itself to all inquiries, but because of the number received, will answer and publish only those considered most pertinent to our readers. Questions or sound-offs may be phoned in to the Hotline number, 752-1336 or mailed to The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834

The Hotline tape is transcribed once each 24-hour recording period. For this reason persons phoning in items accepted for use may not be contacted until the day following their call. Names must be given, but only initials will be used.

ADDRESS, PLUS LOCAL RESOURCE

I would like to know the address of the U. S. Government Printing Office. I would like to get a transcript of the Presidential transcripts. M.S.

That address to use in ordering copies of the Presidential transcripts is Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Public Documents Department, Washington, D. C. 20402. Send a $12.25 check or money order along with your order.

For those not quite so interested in having the government-issued version, all three local bookstores either have or soon will have Bantam versions at $2.50.

WANTS TURNING AID

I feel we definitely need a left hand turn signal at the intersection of Tenth and Elm Streets for vehicles making left hand turns off Tenth. We have talked with the highway commission but haven't gotten much action. J. T. S.

There are two ways to approach the problem if you feel there is a definite need for the left turn indicator. Hotline talked with the assistant traffic engineer for this area, George Eason, in Wilson. He told Hotline he did not feel there were enough left turn executions made at this intersection off Tenth to warrant a left turn light and that one was not planned for the immediate future. However, he also told Hotline that if you felt strongly enough about the need to write the Highway Commission, or him personally, and a study of the intersection would be made. You could also approach the city to ask if they would help in applying for a study to get action started. Even after the study is completed however, if the Highway Commission feels there aren't enough left hand executions made at the intersection, a left hand light still will not be added. Eason added that a left hand light will increase the waiting time for traffic at the lights.

STREET LIGHTS RESTORED

The tenants in at least one section of Shady Knoll Mobile Estates are having trouble getting our street lights repaired. We have contacted the Shady Knoll office, but have got no results so far. It's awfully dark out here at night. Mrs. J.M.

Hotline found the Shady Knoll manager who answered the phone as Betty very cooperative. She said an electrician would be called right away, and within a few days you reported that your street is once again lighted.

A malfunction in the Hotline recording device last night put the machine out of order for part of the recording period. One call received dealing with a mail order firm was cut off without a name address or phone number. If the person calling will call again, we will try and render some assistance.

N. C. Tax Receipts Up

RALEIGH (AP)-Income tax receipts showed the biggest gain as North Carolina's general fund tax collections in April increased 27 per cent over the same month last year.

State Revenue Commissioner Howard Coble reported Wednesday that general fund collections for April totaled $117.9 million, compared to $92.8 million in April last year.

The income tax produced $65.7 million, up $17.2 million from the same month a year ago. The sales tax brought in $48.5 million, compared to $31.3 million a year ago.

Coble reported that highway fund collections for April amounted to $25.6 million, an increase of $8.7 million. The gasoline tax receipts in April totaled $21.8 million, compared to $13.9 million in April last year.

Coble said the big boost in gasoline tax receipts resulted from the fact that collections from several major oil companies for the month of March last year were not processed in April 1973 as they should have been, resulting in gasoline collections for April 1973 being "abnormally low."

"One must consider April and May, 1974 combined reports to arrive at a realistic collections figure for the gasoline road tax," Coble said.

He added general fund collections for the fiscal year showed an increase of $132.6 million over the same period a year ago.

Highway fund collections for the fiscal year totaled $308.2 million, up 4.43 per cent.

Mental Collapse Story Described By Speaker

By CAROL B. TYER

"I was 32 years old, the mother of four children and the director of three choirs, as well as a published writer. I was physically mature and intellectually well educated, but emotionally I was a five-year-old," admitted Mrs. Nancy Covert Smith at a Mental Health Association sponsored luncheon here yesterday.

She was describing herself at the time she experienced a mental collapse seven years ago. "I didn't take pills or drink. My addiction was people," she said. "I would do anything to please you. I like myself so little that I was convinced that no one else could like me for myself. I had a facade that I changed with every person I met. I'd size up the person very quickly and try to do and say what would please him or her. And I worked. I'd take on any job in an effort to get praise from others.

"I'd always been this way, since my grandfather first praised me for practicing piano so faithfully. I was proof that one can live as a neurotic and contribute something—but not

Arrested In Theft Of Guns

A 17-year-old local youth was arrested this morning in connection with an early Tuesday morning theft of seven pistols from a local hardware store.

Chief Glenn Cannon said late this morning that Joe Whitehurst of 204 South Elm St. has been charged with breaking, entering and larceny.

The chief said Whitehurst allegedly broke open a front window to H. L. Hodges Co. at 210 East Fifth St. and took seven pistols, valued at about $900 from a show case in the store.

Whitehurst, according to Cannon, was taken into custody at a local shopping center this morning. He had four pistols allegedly taken from the Hodges company in his possession at the time, the chief noted.

In addition to the charges filed against him for the Tuesday break-in, Chief Cannon said Whitehurst has been charged with breaking and entering in connection with a break-in last March at the Greenville Clinic on East Fourth Street.

An estimated $75 worth of goods reported were taken form the doctor's office during the break-in, Cannon said.

Whitehurst was also charged with possession of mariguana, Chief Cannon noted, after officers found a small amount of the illegal substance in his possession when arrested on the other counts today.

Whitehurst was also charged with possession of marijuana, Chief Cannon noted, after officers found a small amount of the illegal substance in his possession when arrested on the other counts today.

Bond for Whitehurst on the three cases was set at $7,500.

Collect 86 Pints

The Bloodmobile visit to Farmville Central High School on Wednesday resulted in the collection of 86 pints of blood, according to Pitt blood chairman Billy Ross.

Ross said that one of the exciting aspects concerning the number of units collected involved the fact that 75 of the 86 persons giving blood were "first time donors."

He added that there were an additional 62 persons rejected for various reasons. He thanked the Farmville Central Student Government Association for their hard work in coordinating the school visit. The student turnout was the best so far in school visits.

The chairman also thanked Dr. Ray Minges of Greenville for giving his time yesterday to be on hand during the collection hours. Ross cited the volunteer help and nurses for their part in the successful visit and he also thanked school officials for making the facilities available.

Record Tourism Season

By The Associated Press

Tourism in North Carolina has picked up so much with alleviation of the gasoline shortage that travel industry officials are predicting a record season.

They speculate it may pass the billion-dollar mark.

Fifty-six million people toured the state last year. More than $955 million was spent on motels, campgrounds, souvenirs and other items.

Tourism is North Carolina's third largest industry, after textiles and tobacco.

State travel officials are directing their campaign at North Carolinians and at residents of states within 300 to 500 miles of Tar Heel vacation sites. The decision to shift the emphasis to points closer to home was made before the gasoline shortage, says George Little, deputy director of the state Division of Travel and Promotion. "But now it's ideal," he says.

The travel officials say crowds now are running ahead of last year both in the mountains and on the coast.

NCNB Increases Employees' Pay

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The statewide North Carolina National Bank has announced an unscheduled cost-of-living pay raise.

Permanent employes making less than $12,000 a year will get 5 per cent more. Those making between $12,000 and $20,000 will get a flat $600, nearly $12 a week.

The increase will benefit 96 per cent of the 4,650 employes of the bank and subsidiaries.

Special Equipment Funds Given To Pitt Hospital By Service League

The Greenville Service League, at its annual business meeting and luncheon Wednesday held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club, voted unanimously to provide the funds for a Kreiselman Resuscitator Basinette to be used in the operating room of Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Other highlights of the meeting, which ended the league's 36th year of service to the Greenville community, were the installation of new officers, the presentation of the Ormond Service Cup and the President's Tray, and the president's annual report.

New officers installed to serve for the next two years are: Mrs. John Biggs, president; Mrs. Leon Moore, first vice presient and Mrs. John Whichard, second vice president. Mrs. Biggs then introduced the other officers and committee chairman who will serve with her.

They are: Recording Secretary, Mrs. W. E. Hudson; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Jack Stoughton; Treasurer, Mrs. Louis Clark; Membership Chairman, Mrs. Moore; Program Chairman, Mrs. Whichard; Civil Defense, Mrs. C. B. Hargett; Publicity, Mrs. Lawton Nisbet; Laughinghouse Hospital Fund, Mrs. Robert VanVeld; Finance, Mrs. W. R. Guice; Emergency Charity, Mrs. C. Norman Bennett; Lending Chest, Mrs. Charles Gilbert; Placement, Mrs. John Shannonhouse; Projects Mrs. Charles Pope; Children's Home, Mrs. Percy Cox; Chapel, Mrs. William Reading and Mrs. Clay Burnette; Art, Mrs. J. W. H. Roberts; Mental Health, Mrs. Virgil Clark, Coffee Shop, Mrs. Ercell Webb; Layettes, Mrs. Robert Abbott; Hospital Activities, Mrs. Tom Haigwood; Bloodmobile, Mrs. Donald Bailey and Mrs. Donald Cherry; Sustaining, Mrs. W. S. Bost Sr.; Past President, Mrs. Stevens.

The Ormond Service Cup, which is given to the member who has shown an outstanding willingness to work, has a wide variety of activities in which she has participated, and has displayed her usefulness to the community, was presented to Mrs. Charles Pope.

The President's Tray is given for outstanding and conscientious service as a league and board member and the recipient this year was Mrs. A. M. Mumford.

The presentations were made by a mother-daughter team who span two generations of league membership. Mrs. J. B. Kittrell, who is a charter member of the league and a member of the Advisory Committee, presented the Ormond Cup to Mrs. Pope. Mrs. Kittrell's daughter, Mrs. Knott Proctor Jr., an active member and past president of the league, made the presentation of the President's Tray to Mrs. Mumford.

Guests at the meeting were introduced by Mrs. Stevens. Welcomed were Mrs. James Bryant of Buchannon, W. Va. who is visitng Mrs. H. H. Bryant. Mrs. John Trotman, woman's editor of The Daily Reflector, was introduced and thanks were expressed to her for the assistance and cooperation she has given the league during the past years.

Mrs. Julia Anthony, who has served as manager of the Service League Coffee Shop for more than 15 years, was also a guest. Mrs. Ercell Webb, Coffee Shop chairman, presented Mrs. Arnold a gift in appreciation for her dedicated service.

Special recognition was given by Mrs. Stevens, president, to the past presidents of the league and to the Advisory Board.

Also recognized was Mrs. Wyatt Brown, founder of the league, for her loyal support during the years, and Mrs. E. C. Wilkerson, the only charter member who is still on active status, for her continued service.

Members giving over 100 hours of service during the past year were cited and include the following: Mrs. P. K. Andresen; Mrs. Donald Bailey; Mrs. John Biggs; Mrs. Morris Brody; Mrs. Clay Burnette; Mrs. Joseph Calder; Mrs. Richard Capwell; Mrs. Herbert Carter; Mrs. A. L. Ferguson; Mrs. James Goes; Mrs. P. L. Mumford; Mrs. Lawton Nisbet; Mrs. Donald Cherry; Mrs. Louis Clark; Mrs. Percy Cox, Mrs. Gerald Crane; Mrs. Karl Faser; Mrs. N. C. Pierce; Mrs. Charles Pope; Mrs. Sam Price; Mrs. John Proctor; Mrs. Knott Proctor Jr.; Mrs. William Reading; Mrs. J. W. H. Roberts, Mrs. John Shannonhouse; Mrs. E. C. Smith; Mrs. William Sneed; Mrs. Charles Snell; Mrs. Charles Stevens; Mrs. John Stoughton; Mrs. W. C. Taylor; Mrs. Bernard Vick; Mrs. W. H. Watson; Mrs. Ercell Webb; Mrs. G. A. Weimer; Mrs. Eugene West; Mrs. E. C. Wilkerson; Mrs. Don White.

Those members who have perfect attendance records were also cited. They are: nine years, Mrs. Milo Smith, sustaining, and Mrs. Charles Stevens, active; eight years, Mrs. W. R. Guice; four years, Mrs. P. L. Goodson and Mrs. W. H. Watson; three years, Mrs. Donald Bailey and Mrs. Con Lanier; two years, Mrs. P. K. Andresen, Mrs. Richard Capwell, Mrs. Charles Gilbert, Mrs. Charles Kuehn, Mrs. Charles Pope, Mrs. E. C. Wilkerson;

One year, Mrs. Virgil Clark, Mrs. Percy Cox, Mrs. Gerald Crane, Mrs. Karl Faser, Mrs. Frank Longino, Mrs. William McConnell, Mrs. A.M. Mumford, Mrs. Lawton Nisbet, Mrs. Sam Price, Mrs. J. W. H. Roberts, Mrs. John Shannonhouse, Mrs. E. C. Smith, Mrs. Charles Snell, and Mrs. Ray Minges, sustaining.

The president's report included a summary of the civic activities in which the Service League has been invovled during the past year. One hundred and eight have given 10,322½ hours of volunteer service during the year.

At the conclusion of her report Mrs. Stevens turned the gavel to Mrs. John Biggs. Mrs. Biggs recognized Mrs. T. I. Wagner, who presented Mrs. Stevens the past presidents pin.

A social hour followed the business meeting. Mrs. Walter Harrington and Mrs. T. I. Wagner poured punch. Serving as chairman for the luncheon was Mrs. Leon Moore, who was assited by Mrs. Ray Minges, Mrs. Frank Longino, Mrs. John Whichard, Mrs. Clay Burnette, Mrs. Joe Hallow, Mrs. Robert Daniel, Mrs. R. S. Lowe, Mrs. Robert VanVeld.

Sustaining members were in charge of the flowers with Mrs. W. S. Bost serving as chairman of that group. The centerpiece on

114 E. Fifth St. In Downtown Greenville

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

An unmarried visitor to our home the other week surveyed our domestic scene and said, "How lucky you are to have such a loving family."

I gave her my Olivia Walton smile and said, "We try."

At that moment, a door slammed hard enough to jar the piano and a voice shouted, "You little thief. You bring back my belt or I'm calling the police!"

"What was that?" asked the visitor.

"Just our family...loving one another to death."

What our friend did not realize is that children from the ages of 2 to 22 have justice attacks...a 20-year period of want's-mine-is-mine-and-what's-your-is-yours-unless-I-borrow-it-and-then-tough-it-out.

A typical day in a loving family might sound like this:

"Okay, take 'em off right now. Those are my pants and you should have thought of that before you wore then to school."

"I told you if you stole one more of my records I'd break your face and I meant it."

"All right, who's the turkey who found where I hid my shampoo? If you want protein in that mop of hair, buy it yourself."

"Someone's been in my closet. I know because I set hangers in a trap and it's sprung."

"Where's my piece of chicken left over from supper? I hid it right behind the olives and now it's gone. Let me smell your breath."

"I know someone has been at my typewriter because the margins are all screwed up. I could take fingerprints, you know."

"That quarter that fell out of the dryer is mine. Does it have an eagle on the front and the first two numbers in the date are 19? Then that settles it."

"I'm sick to death of this family stealing from me. From here on in, I'm going to put a camera focused on my records."

"You sweat in my sweater and you're going to buy me a new one."

My visitor turned ashen and said, "He is kidding. He won't really call the police, will he?"

"Are you serious?" I giggled. "These are just family quarrels brought on by a group of people who compete every day with one another for food, clothing, privacy, parents, time and love...Besides, the last time he called the police on his brother, there were recriminations."

Clinic Set For May 30

A repeat session of the Food Conservation Clinic has been scheduled for Thursday, May 30, at the Extension Office at 203 W. Third Street, Greenville.

The clinic will cover equipment and materials needed for canning and freezing fruits and vegetables. A demonstration on the techniques in canning and in freezing will be given. There will be an exhibit of food conservation equipment, materials and literature.

The clinic will be held at 9:30 a.m. and again at 2:00 p.m.

ANNIVERSARY INVITATION

Mr. and Mrs. Clair E. Smith of Rt. 1, Vanceboro, will be honored Sunday from 2-6 p.m. in observance of their 35th wedding anniversary at the fellowship hall of Chapman's Methodist Church. The event is being given by their children. All friends are invited to attend.

Engagement Announced

MISS MARGARET ELIZABETH WHITEHURST... is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Ray Whitehurst of Greenville, who announce her engagement to David Dowling Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Baker of Rt. 1, Grifton. The wedding will take place June 15.

Hint

Don't tell the string players in the neighborhood, but kids are wearing violins on their feet. It is called a violin but it looks like a shoe —which it also is. Joe Famolare, designer of the "Violin" shoe, got the name from the vamp —which is shaped like a violin. No. It doesn't make music but it might squeak now and then — for the usual reason a shoe squeaks.

A Health Program Compromise

President Nixon appears ready to compromise on a national health insurance program.

The president in a radio address indicated there would be an area of agreement with Congressional plans although he warned against any effort to "socialize our system of health care."

Nixon recognized that doing nothing would mean fewer Americans would have adequate health care.

"Neither course of action, or inaction, is acceptable," he said. "What we must have is a creative relationship between government and our private health care system, which provides the best possible care for all at a price that all can afford."

The administrative plan provides for expansion of Medicare and additional benefits for those over 65; an employee insurance program which would cover most citizens; and a government program for low income families.

The president said patients must be free to choose their physicians; a program must be developed built on the existing private system of health care and all parties should be given a "direct stake in making the system work."

There are other bills pending in Congress which would provide health care, but with variations in financing and benefits. Nixon indicated compromise was possible as long as the basic principles he outlined were not violated.

It appears that a meeting of the minds is taking place between the president and Congress on this issue. It may involve private insurance primarily with payment by the employer and employee, or it could be financed through Social Security payments. It is likely that the physician will still be independent under the system and the individual will choose his doctor. When all is said and done, though, it is almost certain that a national health insurance program will be developed in the near future.

Narrow White House Strategy

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Three weeks ago just before the White House transcripts were publicly released, President Nixon and his inner circle decided at the very last moment to eliminate from the Sept. 15, 1972, conversations his threats against the Washington Post—a calculated decision at the heart of his defense against impeachment.

For once, Mr. Nixon was acting neither out of impulse nor miscalculation. Rather, drastic censorship of the Sept. 15 transcript was part of an overall attempt to limit impeachment proceedings to a narrow question of criminal complicity in the Watergate coverup. What's more, this strategy may be inadvertently aided by the House Judiciary Committee's decision to first take evidence on the coverup.

In response, the committee's membership is splitting after one week of hearing evidence. Most Democrats and some Republicans reject the White House concept, contending a broad picture of the President's activity is essential to weigh impeachment. But hard-core Republicans are echoing the White House line, arguing that their inquiry should begin and end with the Watergate coverup.

Actually, the White House had always been most concerned for non-Watergate reasons about the Sept. 15 meeting between Mr. Nixon and John W. Dean III, then his counsel. Although the President's praise that day for Dean's handling of Watergate does not clearly incriminate him, Mr. Nixon has been extremely worried about his tough-guy reprisal talk on Sept. 15.

Most of those threats were retained in the Sept. 15 transcript as originally prepared for public release. But a last-minute decision before the transcripts went to the nation April 30 eliminated several juicy portions. Excised were Mr. Nixon's threat that the Washington Post would have "damnable, damnable problems" renewing its television station licenses and that "we are going to fix" the Post's lawyer, Edward Bennett Williams.

For all its blundering through Watergate, the Nixon inner circle had to know these threats would soon be revealed. The Watergate grand jury's sealed briefcase sent to Congress contained the Sept. 15 tape. As edited by Judge John Sirica, the tape included Mr. Nixon's threats.

Hence, deletion of the President's remarks was intended to fortify the strategy of narrowly limiting the impeachment inquiry to Watergate coverup.

Superficially, the strategy backfired. When the deleted remarks leaked, the impression of White House duplicity was reinforced. Indeed, the air of cynicism and vengeful politics was even more fragrant in hearing the tape than reading the transcript. Disclosure of presidential threats prompted impeachment investigators to search for White House follow-up challenging television station licenses.

Nevertheless, the strategy is having its desired effect with many committee Republicans. By cutting out the threat against the Post, Mr. Nixon clearly made his point that it is irrelevant. "To me, that has absolutely nothing to do with impeachment," one Republican told us. Said another: "You hear a lot worse about the Washington Post in the (Republican) cloakroom any day."

Some committee members also feel White House strategy has been unintentionally advanced by committee counsel John Doar's plan for presenting evidence. Instead of beginning with peripheral issues such as the ITT affair or the milk fund and working toward the Watergate climax, he started with presidential involvement in the coverup. If no criminal liability by Mr. Nixon can be proved here, these Congressmen believe, Doar will seem picayune when he turns to ITT or the milk fund.

On balance then, Mr. Nixon's staunchest Republican defenders on the committee were cheered by the opening week of listening to tapes. They are grateful that the expletives deleted by the White House were no more profane than what is said on late-night TV talk shows. They are even more pleased that the tapes heard so far (not, of course, including the March 21 hush-money tape) do not clearly implicate Mr. Nixon criminally.

The committee majority, including a few Republicans, thinks otherwise. It believes Congress must seriously ponder a President threatening governmental force against private corporations and citizens.

It also is more insistent than ever that Congress get not just transcripts but tapes, not only to hear the chilling laughter of H. R. Haldeman, but also to discover deleted material. Only then can Congress learn of such matters as Mr. Nixon's discussion with Dean about using the Internal Revenue Service against Democratic leader Lawrence F. O'Brien, deleted from the Sept. 15 transcript by both Sirica and the White House.

But the White House never has hoped for more than a substantial minority on the liberal-loaded Judiciary Committee. Even if inadequate to block impeachment on the House floor, a sizeable minority would make Senate conviction less likely. Thus, in campaigning to narrow impeachment to strict Watergate criminality, the White House made progress last week.

Fate Steps In For Dying Boy

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—It was about this time last year when J.L. McGee decided to take a night off from his National Guard camp duties at Ft. Bragg for an overnight visit with his family in Middlesex.

He hadn't been home long when he heard the fire siren go off downtown. McGee is a volunteer fireman, now assistant chief of the unit in the Nash County farming-commuter town between Raleigh and Wilson.

When he braked to a stop at the firehouse, McGee saw a big crowd gathered around. "The most people I'd ever seen downtown," he recalls.

In the middle was the still form of an 18-month-old boy sprawled across the seat of a car. A volunteer fireman was pressing the lad's back, and a crying mother reported that her son had drowned in the bathtub.

Award Given

Last week, McGee, with that toddler on his arm, visited the governor's office to receive a medal and citation for his action then. The award was presented by the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, is called the Humanitarian Award, and is presented to people who save a life through knowledge gained during a medical self-help training course. Only 36 awards have been presented since establishment in 1967.

McGee and the boy whose life he had saved are close—you can tell that by looking at them. But such a relationship is only natural in a town of some 700 people, in which the lifesaver and the boy's family live only three blocks apart.

But this relationship is more than that, and McGee figures the Orientals have something in their belief that a man who saves another's life become responsible for that person.

"Sure I go by to see him some. . .and with a satisfied feeling. I know his momma and daddy are close to him and raising him fine, but I kinda go by to check on him. You know, I just have a feeling that I saved his life, and I want to look after him a little bit," the 37-year-old photographer for the state Department of Military and Veterans Affairs said.

McGee said he had always wondered if what you learn in a training course is worth anything. "It is. Thank goodness it all came back. I just went to work spontaneously," he said. McGee bent over the child to give mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, seeing the dilated pupils when he did so. A physician later said another 30 seconds would have been too late.

Hooking his left fingers in the child's mouth to hold the tongue out of the way and placing his left elbow on the chest to feel for air pressure, McGee set to work.

All that kept going through his mind, he now recalls, was to take care not to pump too much air. . .a child's lungs are small and can be damaged.

Fingers Wiggle

Then, out of the corner of an eye, McGee saw two fingers wiggle.

"That was one of the happiest moments of my life. . .I knew we had a chance and the job was half done." He kept working, and the lad revived.

Today, Charles Rassie Lewis Jr., is a happy active fellow who hammed it up in the governor's office while TV cameras whirred and flashbulbs popped.

He sported a fresh cut place on his forehead, results of a tricycle wreck the other day.

Rassie's neighbors hope things will settle down for the boy.

In his first 18 months of life, Rassie Lewis Jr. has:

—Been backed completely over by a car with the tires crossing his mid-section, but he was lying on soft ground which absorbed the weight;

—Been thrown into the windshield of a car in a collision;

—Been struck in the head by a hammer;

—And survived by 30 seconds drowning in a bathtub.

Morality Outcry Fishy

Patriotism, said Dr. Johnson, is the last refuge of a scoundrel, and "morality," by the same token, may be the last refuge of those seeking the removal of Mr. Nixon. There is something fishy about this latest outcry. Let me walk around it, sniffing.

To avoid misunderstanding: I have several times expressed the dismay, disappointment, and revulsion of many conservatives at the devious attitudes disclosed by the presidential transcripts. The President's own threat to "fix" Edward Bennett Williams, and to create "damnable, damnable problems" for the Post-Newsweek television station, bespeaks an atmosphere in which a John Dean could retire confidently to his office, licking a pencil, there to prepare his enemies lists. Enough said.

But it is one thing to express regret, disillusion, and even contempt, and it is quite another thing to argue that Mr. Nixon should be removed from his office for want of "moral leadership." We do not elect a president to serve as our moral leader. We elect a president to execute the laws, to make treaties, to nominate judges of the Supreme Court, and to serve as commander-in-chief.

The recent outcries about "moral leadership" have a faint air of desperation: All else having failed, let us try morality. Under the most rudimentary rules of due process, it now seems plain that Mr. Nixon has committed no criminal offense. He did not connive in the Watergate bugging; he did not participate in the coverup; he did not suborn perjury or obstruct justice or involve himself in misprision of felony. He did not take bribes from ITT or the milk producers. He committed no criminal fraud in the matter of his income taxes, and he took no graft at San Clemente. If an impeachable offense is to be equated with a criminal offense, or even with a "serious offense against the state," the evidence thus far adduced falls short of the rule of reasonable doubt.

But "morality" has a nice ring to it. Coming from members of the Congress, it has a nice hypocritical ring to it. There are many representatives and senators, of course, who are models of impeccable integrity. There are others who make up the biggest bunch of nickelgrafters in town.

Periodically some enterprising reporter compiles a list of the perquisites that congressmen have voted themselves, ranging all the way from lush pensions, free medical care and franking privileges, down to cheap haircuts and reserved parking at the airport. Some of these high-toned fellows are now intent upon voting themselves life tenure in the name of election reform. Many of them have accepted life tenure in the name of election reform. Many of them have accepted campaign contributions, whether

Proponents of ever tighter regulation for every phase of business and industrial life need only to look at the nation's railroads to see a prime example of the difference between theory and practical experience in the matter of regulation.

The railroads are perhaps the oldest regulated industry in the U. S. Theoretically, public regulation of the rails was supposed to assure adequate rail service at fair prices.

Instead, as the years passed and the autos, trucks and aircraft appeared on the scene, the albatross of 19th century regulation hung on to weaken rail initiative and bring major portions of the industry to the point of collapse.

But now, a new day of energy problems has dawned.

Ironically, this has brought unprecedented recognition of the fuel-saving qualities and the minimal pollution and land use characteristics of railroads.

It appears that at long last the rails might be permitted to breathe a little more deeply of the life-giving air of free, competitive enterprise.

An indication of this was evident in President Nixon's statements on transportation.

The President had said "a healthy rail system is essential to the development of a balanced transportation system. Nothing has hindered the economic health of our nation's rail systems more than the outmoded and complex federal regulations which govern those systems."

He referred to legislation proposed to Congress which would, in his opinion "eliminate the practice of discrimination through taxation which has further contributed to the economic problems of our railroads."

He noted that the railroads "make extremely efficient use of fuel with little negative effect on the environment."

And thus the rails "are more necessary than ever."

The issue of transportation regulation stands far above any question of partisan politics.

From the standpoint of the public interest, the President's call for a revamping of the transportation regulatory system deserves the widest support.

Who Is Really Boss?

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon always has had trouble getting along with Watergate special prosecutors.

He didn't want one hired in the first place, yielding reluctantly after the scandals forced a staff and Cabinet shakeup.

His firing of Archibald Cox stirred the first serious moves for impeachment.

Now the White House is feuding with Leon Jaworski over who is boss.

During the House impeachment inquiry the President cannot afford any renewal of the crisis that came when Cox went.

Nixon's spokesmen and lawyer say there has been no consideration of firing Jaworski, although circumstances now are similar to those that led the President to get rid of Cox.

The central issue now, as then, is simple: Can the special prosecutor take the President to court when the President tells him not to?

In each case, the controversy flared over the demands of the prosecutor for access to White House tape recordings the President said he would not yield.

Cox was fired after vowing to press in court for recordings of nine presidential conversations, in defiance of Nixon's instructions to drop the case and settle instead for summaries for the tapes.

But three days later, on Oct. 23, 1973, facing a wave of impeachment demands and an adverse public reaction, the President yielded and agreed to turn over the tapes.

Within a week, arrangements had been made for a new special prosecutor.

Now, up against another tapes controversy with Jaworski, Nixon's lawyers say he is prepared to contest to the Supreme Court a subpoena for recordings of 64 conversations. Jaworski already has won in U.S. District Court.

40 Years Ago Today

May 23, 1934

Evelyn Frechette, sweetheart of John Dillinger and Dr. Clayton May, a Minneapolis physician who treated his gunshot wounds, were today convicted by a Federal Court jury of conspiracy to harbor the Indiana outlaw. Mrs. Augusta Sale, a co-defendent, was acquitted.

Federal Judge Dunnar H. Torthbye sentenced Dr. May to two years imprisonment and a fine of $1,000.

Miss Frechette was sentenced to serve two years in the woman's reformatory at Alderson, W. Va., and fined $1,000.

The eight year trail of murder and robbery of Clyde Barrow, dangerous bandit, was ended today, beside a companion, Bonnie Parker, in a hail of bullets from a sheriff's posse fifty miles east of Shreveport, La., near the town of Gibbsland, Louisana.

Both the man and woman were killed instantly before they could fire a shot and their bodies and automobile were riddled with bullets. They drove into a posse ambush arranged by the former captain of the Texas Rangers, Fred Hammer, who had followed the Barrow trail relentlessly.

Strength For Today

FINDING LIVINGSTONE, AND GOD

In 1877 the British newspaperman, Henry M. Stanley, was sent to Africa to find the great explorer and missionary, David Livingstone, who had disappeared somewhere in the dark continent. After a considerable search Stanley did find him, and his first words upon meeting him have come down to us as one of the better known apothems of the nineteenth century: "Mr. Livingstone, I presume?"

But as far as Stanley was concerned, something much more important than a catchy headline came out of the meeting. Stanley was an atheist, and proud of it, but as he subsequently followed Livingstone in his missionary activities and came to appreciate the great personal sacrifice he had made in coming to Africa, his deep love for humanity, and his quiet faith, Stanley was converted to Christianity.

When Livingstone died, Stanley buried his heart beneath a great tree and brought the body back to England, Livingstone was subsequently interred in Westminister Abbey, among England's heroes, and Stanley was a changed man.

Another Dismal Housing Note

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — While the future of housing may already seem as forlorn as an abandoned cellar excavation, still another dismal report has been issued by an important mortgage banker.

The nearly impossible situation faced by the industry is exemplified by a massive outflow of funds from mortgage lenders, by rising mortgage rates, and by materials costs that are rising at an unpredictably swift rate.

But a report by Advance Mortgage Corp. of Detroit suggests that still another factor adds to the pummeling being administered to housing. In spite of pay increases, that is, customers are literally unable to buy.

Advance Mortgage summarized the predicament this way: "Home-buying costs have been rising some 3½ times as fast as their customers' income." This indicates that, even if they can borrow, many customers won't do so.

"In the past 12 months," the report continues, "average new home prices have increased at least 18 per cent, and mortgage interest rates on a 90 per cent mortgage are now in the range of 9½ per cent where usury laws permit, compared to 8¼ per cent a year ago.

"That adds up to a 28 per cent increase in the monthly payments on a typical home mortgage—compared to an 8 per cent increase in average personal income."

And the sales prices might go higher still. Irving Rose, president of Advange Mortgage, a subsidiary of the First National City Corp., notes that while raw land costs have leveled off, total development costs have risen.

Cost increases are said to be especially severe in petroleumbased components such as asphalt paving and shingles and plastic pipe, and metal items such as sewer pipes and reinforcing bars.

"Builders are complaining they don't know what their houses will cost," Rose relates. "In Florida, some single-family home builders are completing entire tracts in advance of any attempt to sell so they will know their complete costs before setting a price. Others are preselling but with escalation clauses."

Advance Mortgage concludes: "The housing recovery projected for this year has died in its cradle."

Had 'Fly Up' For Brownies

Six Brownie troops held their Fly Up Ceremony at Hooker Memorial Church recently.

This ceremony is performed when second year Brownies receive their wings and become Junior Girl Scouts.

Brownie troops receiving their scout status were: Troop 52, Mrs. James Houlik, leader; Troop 230, Mrs. Jack Koontz; Troop 275, Mrs. Baxter Richardson; Troop 89, Mrs. Ed Seykora; Troop 433, Mrs. Malcolm Green; Troop 355, Mrs. Ralph Harper.

After the ceremony, refreshments were served.

Honor Society Elects Twelve

The East Carolina University chapter of Alpha Kappa Delta honor society in sociology has elected 12 new members.

They include Dr. Paul Tschetter of the ECU sociology faculty who is to be faculty advisor to ECU's Delta chapter.

New members Allen Brooks of Raleigh and Claude R. Alley of Marion will serve as president and vice president of the chapter during the 1974-75 academic year. Both are graduate students.

Ray Brannon of Elizabeth City, also a graduate student, was elected secretary-treasurer of the chapter.

James H. Davis, a senior, of Greenville, was among the new members.

Achieved 4.0 Academic Grade

MURRAY, Ky.—Carolyn Johnson of Greenville, N.C., was one of 248 students at Murray State University who achieved a perfect 4.0 academic standing during the spring semester.

A total of 1,185 full-time undergraduate students were listed on the dean's list.

Health Program Near: Kennedy

By JOE HALL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy says there are broad areas of agreement between the Nixon administration and Congress on the essentials of a national health insurance plan.

He told the nation in a radio address Wednesday "a new spirit of compromise and progress is in the air" that may make it possible to enact such a program this year.

Kennedy, D-Mass., said the health insurance bill he is sponsoring with Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., is better in many respects than the Nixon proposal.

Kennedy's speech was delivered as the Democratic congressional majority's reply to an address on the same subject by Nixon Monday.

The President spoke of compromise, too, but said he would not yield on the basic principles of his plan.

One of the principles, he said was that the program must operate through private insurance companies and not "a costly, federal-dominated structure."

The Kennedy-Mills plan would be financed through and operated by the Social Security system.

The senator said among its advantages, including elimination of what he described as large profits made by the private companies, coverage of the individual from job to job or between jobs or when he was retired, and a tax that would be higher for persons well-off and lower for the poor.

Kennedy said the basic coverage of hospitalization and physician services in the two bills was about the same.

But his measure contains benefits lacking in the Nixon bill, such as medical care for pregnant women and small children and greater protection against catastrophic illness.

One major hurdle to enactment of a far-reaching national health insurance plan this year is the jammed schedule of the House Ways and Means and Senate Finance committees, which must act on it.

Each panel is holding public hearings on the subject, but they also must consider this year such important measures as tax reform, international trade, tax increases for oil companies and an increase in the national debt limit.

Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., a Finance Committee member, says he sees no chance for enactment of health insurance in 1974 if the House votes to impeach President Nixon and the Senate conducts a trial on the charges.

In testimony prepared for the House Ways and Means Committee today, a spokesman for the nation's private health insurers said his industry supported a government-private partnership but strongly opposed an all-government insurance plan.

"We are not quarreling about goals. We are arguing about means," said Fredrick E. Rathgeber, executive vice president of the Prudential Insurance Co. of America, who was representing the Health Insurance Association of America, the American Life Insurance Association and the Life Insurers Conference.

He said a partial or total government takeover of health insurance would be "inefficient, inflexible and an unnecessary use of taxes urgently needed to deal with other domestic needs."

from business or labor, that bear an aroma—a sort of eau de garbage dump—not to be readily distinguished from the smell that emanated from the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

Some of the lugubrious remonstances from the private sector have little more to commend them. We are hearing from political parsons more concerned with defending the terrorists of Angola than with serving their own flocks. We are hearing from great newspapers whose demonstrated concept of morality is to traffic in stolen goods.

It ia a great dividend, of course, when the country is led by a president who inspires respect, affection, and love. Washington in his first term, Lincoln in the war years, Franklin Roosevelt in the Depression, Eisenhower in the postwar exhaustion—one thinks of these, and perhaps there have been others. Yet it seems to me a mistake to demand of a president that he serve as a national symbol, like a British Monarch, or that he become a spiritual leader, the One Great Scoutmaster of us all.

I am as concerned as any man about the amorality of Mr. Nixon. Again, I deplore it. But I would trade ten thousand expletives deleted for one Lewis Powell on the U.S. Supreme Court. If it is moral leadership the President's critics want, let them first seek to provide it themselves, by the high example of their own lives.

Received Degree In Graduation At ACC Friday

WILSON—Miss Bernice Kathleen Watts received a bachelor of science degree from Atlantic Christian College during graduation ceremonies Friday.

She is the granddaughter of Mrs. William Marcellus Windham of Rt. 4, Greenville.

While at Atlantic Christian, Miss Watts served as secretary of her junior class and senior class. She majored in elementary education and minored in history. She plans to teach primary education.

As a member of Delta Zeta Sorority, she held offices as historian, philanthropy chairman and was president during her senior year.

She received the "Woman of the Year" award from Delta Zeta for outstanding participation and the "Golden Crest" award from Delta Zeta Province XX-S.

Jaworski complained there, and to the Senate Judiciary Committee, which backed him, about the contention of the White House that he could not properly pursue the subpoena case in court because it involves a dispute between two officials of the executive branch.

Jaworski said that interpretation of his standing would make a farce out of the special prosecutor's office.

Federal courts have held that by voluntary agreement and Justice Department regulations, the administration has given the office of the special prosecutor a unique measure of independence with the force of law behind it.

The edited Watergate transcripts recount early discussions of a special prosecutor, and Nixon's opposition to the idea. "Now the difficulty with the special prosecutor — it gets a guy into the (expletive deleted) thing," Nixon said on April 15, 1973. "First it's a reflection — it's sort of admitting mea culpa for our whole system of justice. I don't want to do that."

But 15 days later, shuffling the Cabinet to install Elliot L. Richardson as attorney general, Nixon authorized him to appoint a special prosecutor. Congress was pressing for one. Richardson chose Cox.

The White House always viewed Democrat Cox with suspicion, aides there contending that he was a partisan out to get Nixon.

Jaworski is a Democrat, too, but from Houston not Harvard. His prosecution of the case has led him, like Cox, to demand in court material the President does not want to provide.

Is granddaughter heading for trouble?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Maybe this is none of my business but I'm worried about my 14-year-old granddaughter. She's a beautiful child and very mature for her age. That's the trouble, I'm afraid. She's growing up too fast for her own good.

She turned 14 last Christmas and her boyfriend [he is 21] gave her a suede coat trimmed with real fur. He also gave her suede boots and a purse to match. That's not all. He gave her a portable TV and stereo set with maybe two dozen albums, plus a ten-pound box of candy.

I don't think a girl that age should be allowed to accept such expensive presents from a man, do you? The girl's father [my son] wasn't too pleased, but the mother thought it was just wonderful, and she even bragged to all her friends about it.

I can't talk to my daughter-in-law because she thinks I'm an old fogy, but I'd like to know what you think about this. I'm so afraid that the child is headed for trouble. What can I do?

GRAM

DEAR GRAM: Nothing, unfortunately, since her mother thinks it's "wonderful." Let's hope your granddaughter doesn't have any rough sledding before she finds out there isn't any Santa Claus.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a senior in high school. Lots of the kids at this school get drunk, smoke grass and have sex. They think it's cool.

I don't do any of these things, and they call me a square. It's not that I'm better than the others; I just don't want to participate in unlawful or immoral activities. Are there many other kids who don't follow the crowd and try to be cool?

LONER AT S. H. S.

DEAR LONER: Plenty. Those "cool" characters usually end up in hot water up to their necks. In your case, square is smart.

DEAR ABBY: So many older people grumble about how "neglected" they are. I wonder if it ever occurred to them that if they made an effort to be good company, they might attract more people. I realize that nobody can be cheerful all the time, but people who talk of nothing but illness, death, hardships present and past, will find that even close relatives give up, and pay only an occasional "duty" visit, and never stay any longer than they have to.

Take my mother: My husband and I drove 300 miles to take her out for dinner on Mother's Day. My husband has a wonderful sense of humor and he tried so hard to entertain her, but he couldn't get her to brighten up no matter how hard he tried.

She spent the whole time talking about illness, and death, and everybody's bad luck, and all the depressing subjects in the world.

We could have spent much more time with her, but four hours of her company put us both so down in the dumps we couldn't wait to leave. I was depressed for two days afterwards.

Abby, she's so much better off than many others, but she complains constantly, throwing constant digs about how nobody ever comes to see her. I wish she realized that not ALL older people are avoided. Only the crepe-hangers. Please print this. She may see it and get the hint.

HAD IT WITH MOM

DEAR HAD IT: Don't bet the rent. If she sees it, she'll probably apply it to some of her friends.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Cal. 90212 for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Admits Kidnap, Robbery Hoax

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—A 17-year-old Norcross, Ga., service station attendant who told police he was robbed Wednesday night and forced to drive to North Carolina, has admitted the story was a fake, police said today.

Mecklenburg County police said Alan Guinn Warbinger told them four men robbed him of $25 of his own money and $300 of the station's. He told them one of the men got in the back seat of his car and the other three followed in another car, forcing him to drive to the Charlotte vicinity.

Mecklenburg police Lt. Eugene Rushing said Warbinger admitted the story was a fake and that he had hidden the money in a spare tire. He told police his conscience was bothering him. Rushing said officers had been suspicious of several flaws in the account.

The lieutenant said Georgia authorities were charging Warbinger with larceny of the service station's money. He said the youth planned to waive extradition and that Georgia police were en route to pick him up.

Rushing said Warbinger's father was also on his way to Charlotte. He said the father still thought his son was a victim of a crime.

Warbinger originally told police that the four men left him locked in his trunk near Charlotte after driving from Georgia on Interstate 85. He said he was able to get out through the rear seat.

Warbinger told police one of his abductors had beaten him around the face and he was treated for bruises at a Charlotte hospital. Rushing said later that Warbinger said he received the bruises Wednesday night when he fell from a rack at the service station.

Rushing said the youth told police he got the idea for the scheme from detective stories.

Hens: Market steady on heavy type. Supplies are fully ample and demand slow. Prices paid per pound for hens over 7 pounds at farm 10 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices were mixed today as bargain hunters helped bring at least a temporary halt to the market's recent slide.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 2.58 at 805.15, although declining issues maintained about a 5-to-3 lead over those advancing on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was moderately active.

Matsushita Electric, the Japanese company which makes Panasonic products, was the most-active issue on the Big Board, rising 3/8 to 15 7/8. A 102-200-share block traded at 15 7/8.

Superscope, which said it expected to show a 50 per cent gain in second-quarter earnings, advanced 1 1/4 to 15 3/4.

Copper and silver issues declined as prices of the metals dropped in world markets.

Among the coppers, Kennecott was down 1/4 at 31, Phelps Dodge lost 1/8 to 35, Anaconda was down 1/4 at 23, and Continental Copper-Steel lost 5/8 to 7 1/8.

Hecla Mining was down 1 3/4 at 20 3/4, and Rosario Resources lost 1 1/2 to 25 1/4 in the silver sector.

Coal issues, another group which has weakened lately, continued to decline, with Pittston down 3/8 at 31 5/8 and North American Coal off 3/8 at 27 1/2.

On the American Stock Exchange, Syntex was the volume leader, up a point at 49 3/8. The Amex' 11 a.m. market-value index was down .29 at 79.84.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks, meanwhile was .08 lower at 45.83.

happily and at peace with oneself."

"I was fortunate that the spiral inside me kept tightening until I gave way completely and got the help I needed to find out who I am."

Mrs. Smith was hospitalized for a short time having "fallen apart" as she practiced at the church organ one day. She describes the way she felt—the inexplicable anxiety, the irresponsible behaviour, the fears, the illnesses that later went away when her mental condition improved, and the inability to make decisions—in her book "Journey Out of Nowhere." And she tells of the breakdown period. And of her slow growth into an emotionally mature person.

"It took three to five years, and an analyst who forced me to look inward at myself as I really was, and do something about growing into an independent person," she said.

"We expect physically maturing to take time; we expect an education, which brings intellectual maturity to take time, but we tell an emotionally stunted person—snap out of it."

"And we whose intellect tells us that, we, ourselves are not emotionally mature tell ourselves, I'll do better tomorrow. I won't react that way next time. And we hate ourselves when we fail."

"Mental illness is the only one I know in which a person consults his family, his friends, his minister, everyone he can think of—if he seeks help at all—before he sees a professional. Your mental health clinic is here to help you if you have a problem—if you suspect that you are not meeting life in a mature way."

She explained how she knows that she is now a well person. I am at peace with myself and with God, she said. "Before when I did church work, I did it for the glorification of Nancy. I know now that I am not a musician, and should never have been directing a choir at all. Now I am doing what I truly love to do. I can write with ease, and love every minute of working with words and thoughts. The State of Ohio has certified me as a professional writer, qualified to teach on the college level, though I am no more than a high school graduate. I have written four books, and will be researching another this summer.

"And though going from city-to-city and speaking is hectic, I love it because I feel I'm doing something worthwhile for other people."

Asked how she knows that she isn't still trying to please others, she answered. "Now my happiness does not hinge of the approval of others. Of course, everyone enjoys the good opinions of others, but now it's just frosting on the cake with me."

"Give a child or a person with a growth problem the opportunity to become competent," she advised. "And don't try to put him back into his box, once he does." She said this is a particularly difficult problem in family life. "Family members often perform as if in a play," she said. "And when one member of the cast suddenly changes his lines, the others miss their cues. They must think fast and truly love in order to ad lib correctly and keep the person as a secure member of the cast."

"Christ was the epitome of emotional maturity," she said. "He loved each person for himself and did not tell them he would love them after they shaped up. And he never fragmented himself. And he didn't talk too much. And he didn't care if not everyone approved of Him. He has wisdom, which is the ultimate of emotional maturity."

Planners. . .

owners only two-week notice of the plan when the plan was actually received by the board in September of 1973.

Dr. Joseph Murad, who has an office on W. Fifth Street extension, voiced his opposition to the rezoning of the area to sole medical usage and C. L. Lupton, owner of Lupton Roofing at 1900 W. Fifth Street, said that he hopes the board will keep the area commercial.

Property owner Kenneth Buck suggested that the board furnish copies of the proposal to property owners and consider each piece of property individually "to find out more about what each. . .piece of property would be good for." Buck also asked for 120 days to restudy the plan before any rezoning action is taken.

Issac Taft, a property owner on N.C. 43, requested that the area from State Road 1202 to the Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center, which is now zoned for RA-20 and proposed for R-6 or R-9, be zoned for commercial usage.

Wooten asserted that the plan is needed but he contended that it is premature until more is known about the medical school question. He said that, "I think we should wait until the medical school situation is settled" before proceeding with the plan.

Commission member Karl Fraser said the plan is "far from being premature." He said that public welfare is a prime consideration in the medical care area, as well as the interests of the property owners.

Commission chairman Earl Howell told the audience that "this is not a finalized plan. We are at the stage where we want to get feedback and we are getting that."

Howell, noting that a public hearing is required before such a plan could be adopted, emphasized that the proposal is a rough draft and it will probably be several months before a vote is taken.

Board member John Moye suggested that the property owners, as a group or individually, meet with Schofield to discuss the proposal in further detail.

Schofield said that the plan will not be a speedy process and he noted that the "last thing we want to do is to create a fear that if property owners don't sell their land today, then they will lose money on it."

He assured those making comments that their suggestions will be taken into account by the commission in studying the overall plan.

Pirates Opening District Play Tonight

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

STARKVILLE, Miss.—East Carolina University's Southern Conference champion Pirates head into the District III NCAA baseball playoffs tonight, playing the final game in the first round of the tournament.

The Bucs will clash with Southeastern Conference champ Vanderbilt in the first round of the double-elimination tournament. The overall winner will join seven others in Omaha, Nebraska, in two weeks for the College World Series.

The ECU-Vanderbuilt game is set for 10 p.m. Eastern Daylight Time. South Carolina, seen by many as the favorite in the tournament, takes on Atlantic Coast Conference champ N.C. State in the opening game at 3 p.m., while independents Miami of Florida and Georgia Southern meet at 7 p.m.

South Carolina comes into the tournament with the top pitching staff in the country, with a combined earned run average of 1.65, and this has brought them the favorites role. South Carolina also has the best record in the field, a 44-6 mark. During the year, they hit .283 as a team, hit 56 home runs, stole 145 bases, and won 21 of their last 22 games.

The Gamecocks will be making their first trip to Starkville. Coached by former Yankee great Bobby Richardson, the Gamecocks are led by Tim Lewis, a lefty with an 11-1 record, and Earl Bass, 10-1, a righty. Bass has a 1.26 ERA for 93 innings, while Lewis has a 2.13 mark. Bass has also recorded 120 strikeouts.

The South Carolina nine is led by John Gambrell, its centerfielder, at the plate. He has a .401 average and has stolen 32 bases. Hank Small, the first sacker, has 17 homers and 58 RBIs.

State, their foe, comes into the game with a 22-10 mark, led by Tim Stoddard, who recorded a 5-0 record after finishing basketball. He has a 1.26 ERA. Tommy Hayes and Mike Dempsey follow him on the mound, but the State pitching may be their weak point.

Jerry Mills, who is a sometime second baseman, and sometime designated hitter, is the Wolfpack's leading batter with a .351 average. Ron Evans, at third, is the only other man over .300 with a .309 mark.

State's big hope is to continue winning in the clutch. They were 6-2 in one-run games, and 3-0 in extra innings.

Georgia Southern, 44-12, comes back to Starkville as the defending champion. The Eagles have one of the better batting averages with a .299 mark, and have seven players hitting over .300. They have a team ERA of 2.29 and have 102 stolen bases to their credit.

Jim Morrison has the top batting average with a .345 mark. He also leads the team in homers (10), triples (7), doubles (14) and runs batted in (80).

Top moundsman is Pete Mano (9-2, 1.17 ERA). He's backed up by John Gibson (9-2, 2.50); Barry Beck (7-3,2.42) and Bob Gerdes (7-3, 2.69).

The Miami Hurricanes have the second best overall record, a 44-8 mark, and are the hitting leaders of the tournament. They batted a cool .304, and boast an ERA of 2.13. First basemar Orlando Gonzales leads the hitters with a fine .403 average. He's also stolen 50 bases. Phil LaMetrico, the designated hitter, has a .389 average, followed by Jim Crosta at third with a .330 mark.

While Miami isn't known for its power hitting (the team leader in homers has only seven) they make up for it on the base paths, stealing 144 bases.

Their top pitcher is Stan Jakubowski, who has a 13-1 mark and a 1.53 ERA. Jerry Burst is next at 8-0 and 1.41, followed by Gary Sorno, 7-0, 1.67 and Tom Baxter, 7-3, 2.50.

Vanderbilt has the highest earned run average as a team among the field, a 4.31 mark. Rick Rhodes, expected to start against the Bucs, is the best hurler, with an 8-3 record and a 2.97 ERA. They are 36-20 overall.

The Commodores didn't hit much as a team either, just .253 with Rick Duncan the only batter over .300. He's hitting .323 and has 45 RBIs.

Speed may be their big strength, as they stole 151 bases. They also have survived a rugged Southeastern Conference slate with an 11-4 mark, and won a best-of-three series with Alabama for the title.

East Carolina's 17-11 record is the worst of the field, as the 28 games played by the Bucs represent only about half as many games as the others played.

The Bucs have one of the top pitchers in the nation, however, in Dave LaRussa, who has an 0.64 ERA. Bill Godwin is right behind him at 1.64, and Wayne Bland has a 2.14 mark. LaRussa is 5-2, while Godwin is 6-3, and Bland has a 5-2 record.

The Bucs aren't hitting much as a team either, just .263. Only Ron Staggs at .326 is over .300, although John Narron has a .290 average.

The Bucs were also hurt when Carl Summerell, their second team All-SC shortstop, elected to pass up the tournament to prepare for his pro football career.

Coach George Williams will probably move Geoff Beaston to short, and put Charlie Wall into the second base slot.

Following Thursday's opening games, the six teams will conue in a complicated schedule, designed to have a winner by Monday.

Three Teams Left Alive

After Tuesday's games, the field of area teams participating in post-season baseball playoffs was cut from four to three. Those left are Farmville Central, Robersonville and Jamesville.

Jamesville will be shooting to move up a notch in the pairings tomorrow as they meet Cape Hatteras at Chowan for a 4:30 ballgame. Jamesville beat Creswell Tuesday, 5-4, in a tough game. They had to come from behind to win it with a run in the bottom of the last inning.

2-A Robersonville will be playing again Saturday night as they play host to Hallsborough. The Eagles beat Clayton 3-0 on a two-hitter by Matt Wilson. Hallsborough downed East Waccammaw 4-3. They are 16-3 for the season.

In the 3-A pairings Farmville Central is the only team left of the two entered. Williamston was knocked off by FC rival, C.B. Aycock on a freak outfield collision which let the winning run score in Aycock's 5-4, no-hit victory over the Tigers.

The Falcons will face Farmville Central at Aycock if the weather permits. Should the Aycock field be deemed too wet, the game will be moved to Snow Hill where the Greene Central field will be used.

Farmville Central was a winner over Havelock in a drawn-out 11-inning affair last Monday which the Jags took, 3-0. They will meet Aycock at 8:00, Friday.

Jaycees Roll With No-Hitter

Behind the no-hit pitching of John Winstead and the hitting of Kenny Barnes, the Jaycees rolled to a 22-0 rout of Coca-Cola yesterday in a North State league game.

While Winstead was hurling a no-hitter, Barnes was slapping out three hits two of which were homers bringing in seven runs.

The Jaycees got all they really needed in the first inning pushing over three tallies. Mike Pollard led off with a single and Ted Brown was safe on an error. Both moved up on a passed ball and scored on a hit by John Winstead. Elvy Forrest reached on an error letting Winstead score.

Barnes hit a grand slam in the second bringing in four runs. Pollard, Teddy Gartman and Winstead all walked and kept walking as Barnes put one over the fence.

The Jaycees went on to add six in the third, five in the fourth and four in the fifth. They were held scoreless in the sixth.

Coke had threatened only once and that was in the first as they loaded the bases. Billy Branagan reached on an error. Rick Hardee was hit by a pitch and Lee Hardee was safe on another error. Two pop-ups ended the inning.

In getting the no-hitter, Winstead struck out 11, walked one and hit one.

Marion Crips led the Jaycees with four hits, Barnes and Winstead had three each. Crowell Pope had two hits.

Jaycees	346 540—22	16 2
Coke	000 000— 0	0 9

Integon Gets 4-2 Victory

Integon pushed over a pair of runs in the top of the sixth inning yesterday to get a 4-2 win over the Graniteers in the Tar Heel Little League. It was the second win of the year for Integon.

The game had been tied on two runs by the Graniteers in the third but Integon rallied for the winner on a single and a double in the sixth. Integon had taken a 2-0 lead in the first.

With one down, Blair Smith got the first hit of the game and that was followed by a single by Latham Mills moving Smith to second. Both moved up on a fly-out. Mark Barber reached on an error scoring Smith and a catcher's error let Mills score.

The Graniteers had a mild threat in the second as Jeff James singled, went to second on a passed ball and took third on a ground out but died there.

Then in the third, the Graniteers tied it up. With two out, Mike Moye singled and moved around to third on an error on the play. Jamie Byrd reached on an error scoring Moye and Garrett Young got a hit putting Byrd on second. Miccah Dixon doubled in Byrd.

It stayed that way until the sixth. Integon had moved Mills to third in the fifth but could not bring him in. Will Barrett led off the sixth getting a double for Integon and he scored the tiebreaker on a single by Alan Hudson. Hudson went to second on an out and scored on a double by Mont Cartel.

James walked to start the bottom of the sixth and one out later Mike Haut reached on an error. James was forced at third by Steve Holloman and the next batter grounded out ending the game.

Cartel, Mills and Hudson each had two hits for Integon while Young had a pair for the Graniteers.

Horton Gets Beer; Brewer Fans Get Mud

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Willie Horton gave Milwaukee fans mud in their eye Wednesday night because they got beer in his.

The Detroit Tigers' slugging left fielder was the target of some naughty words the previous night when he hit two home runs. Wednesday night he was showered twice with beer after hitting a two-run homer that powered the Tigers to a 6-4 decision over the Brewers.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Baltimore Orioles edged the Cleveland Indians 1-0 in 12 innings, the Boston Red Sox extended their Fenway Park hex over the New York Yankees 6-3, the Oakland A's downed the Minnesota Twins 7-4, the California Angels beat the Kansas City Royals 6-1 and the Chicago White Sox split a doubleheader with the Texas Rangers, winning the opener 6-2 and dropping the nightcap 8-2.

Horton's seventh-inning homer, his 11th of the season, came off rookie Bill Travers and landed in the left field bleachers where, he said, the fans had cursed him a night earlier.

Angels 6, Royals 1

Frank Robinson and Joe Lahoud hit home runs and a controversy over a call on a rundown paved the way for three first-inning runs as California's Bill Singer's pitched a five-hitter.

Robinson's homer in the fifth was the 560th of his career and raised his total of extra base hits to 1,132, tying Tris Speaker for seventh place on the all-time list

Orioles 1, Indiana 0

Paul Blair's run-scoring single after Boog Powell's double and an intentional walk to Brooks Robinson drove in the game's only run while Ross Grimsley blanked Cleveland on eight hits.

A's 7, Twins 4

Reggie Jackson drove in five runs with his 13th homer, a double and a single and Joe Rudi socked a tie-breaking two-run triple in the ninth inning.

Red Sox 6, Yankees 3

Cecil Cooper and Bernie Carbo drove in fifth-inning runs as the Red Sox posted their eighth consecutive home victory over the Yankees. Boston has won 17 of 18 Fenway meetings with New York since August 1972.

White Sox 6-2, Rangers 2-8

Texas' Jeff Burroughs, who leads the majors with 45 runs batted in and who homered in the opener, belted a two-run triple in a three-run third inning and Ferguson Jenkins struck out 10 batters in the nightcap for his seventh victory.

Chicago's Jerry Hariston pinch hit an RBI single that ignited a tie-breaking four-run seventh inning in the opener to give Wilbur Wood his fifth straight triumph.

No Radio Coverage

There will be no radio coverage of the East Carolina University Pirates on their trip to Starkville, Miss., for the District III NCAA Baseball Tournament.

A spokesman at the university said that area radio stations had attempted to put the game on the air, but were unable to get enough sponsors for the broadcasts. Additional attempts by the university to get sponsors for the games also proved unsuccessful.

KFC Wins Eighth; White's Holds To Second

White's Insulation remained in second place of the City League Gold division as leader Kentucky Fried Chicken beat the Daily Reflector for its eighth win of the year.

In games at Evans 1, Pier-5 beat the Jaycees, 7-3, White's dumped GUCo, 18-10 and Parkers squeezed past Hallows, 7-6.

At field two, Talbot's beat Carolina Dairy by 11-5, Shirley's took Daniel Const., 16-11 and KFC upended the Daily Reflector 11-4.

Pier-5 scored first with a run in the first but the Jaycees tied it in the second. Pier-5 edged back into the lead with two in the third and added two more in the fourth on a homer by S. Davis. The Jaycees cut two runs off the lead in the fifth but Pier-5 scored once in the fifth and sixth innings to wrap it up.

GUCo scored first with a run in the first inning of the second game but White's slipped on top with two in the second. They added another in the third only to see GUCo zoom back in front with four in the bottom of the third.

The lead changed hands again in the fourth as White's got it back on five fourth inning tallies. GUCo tied it up with three in the bottom of the frame. Whte's got the winner in the fifth pushing over five.

White's added five in the sixth and GUCo got two in the sixth. Parkers jumped off to a 4-1 lead in the bottom of the first of the nightcap at field one and picked up another in the second matching the run Hallows scored in the top of the second.

Parkers got two in the fourth moving out by 7-2. They had to hold off a rally in the fifth that saw Hallows come up with four runs before they were stopped.

Down at field two, Talbott beat Carolina Dairy, 11-5. Talbott got one in the first but it was matched by one in the second as the Dairymen scored.

Talbott got the lead back with a lone score in the third and added two in the fourth. Carolina Dairy tied it in the last of the fourth, 4-4.

Carolina Dairy broke it open in the next frame, 5-4 but Talbott struggled to tie it with a run in the sixth and won the game in the seventh getting six runs.

T. Brown had homered for Talbott in the fourth.

Another multi-score game raged as Shirley's hung on to beat Daniel in the second game. Shirley's got three in the bottom of the first and after Daniel went up with one in the second, Shirley's added five in the second. Daniel put up two more in the third and four in the fifth including a homer by Weekly.

Shirley's made it 10-7 in the fifth only to have Daniel rally for four in the sixth to take the lead. Shirley's put together a rally in the last of the sixth getting six to win the game. C. Powell homered for Shirley's in that inning.

In the last game of the night, KFC dumped the Daily Reflector, 11-4, getting all they needed in the first with five runs. KFC added three in the third and two in the fourth and one in the sixth. TDR scored all its runs in the sixth.

Golf Tourneys Planned at GCC

There will be a lot of activity at the Greenville Golf and Country Club in the next few weeks as the club is holding three tournaments.

Tomorrow, Friday, the club is sponsoring a Ladies day in which the lady members play the club pro, Gordon Fulp. Their handicap will be subtracted from their gross score and those ladies with net scores better than the pro will win awards. They will play the front nine.

On May 26, there will be a Teen's Captain's Choice for members' children between the ages of 12 and 16. This tournament will also be on the front nine and a weiner roast will be held afterwards. Entrants may register in the pro shop.

Then on June 2, there will be a regular Captain's choice beginning at 3 p.m. with a shotgun start. Registration will be in the pro shop.

Indy Winner May Get Checked Flag In Superior Court

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The winner of the 58th annual Indianapolis 500-mile auto race could be decided, in part, through court action.

Testimony was to resume today in Marion County Superior Court on a lawsuit that sought to reopen qualifications for the Sunday, May 26, race to five entrants who claim they were deprived of a chance to make the field.

Attorneys for the five plaintiffs, Roy Woods Racing, Carl Gehlhause, K & L Racing, EldoniRasmussen Racing Products and Webster Racing, called three of a planned 47 witnesses Wednesday after defense attempts to kill the suit failed.

One witness, Indianapolis Motor Speedway Vice President Joe Cloutier, said that one of the plaintiffs, if allowed to qualify now for the 33-car field, might "win the race, and that would bring the other cars in the field down on us."

He added, "At stake here is not only the prize money, but the prestige and commercial endorsements that can run into millions for the winner. We'd have lawsuits from every other driver now in the field, if that happened."

Chief Steward Tom Binford testified that the cars left waiting in line when time trials ended Saturday at 6 p.m. were no longer guaranteed at least one chance for the field.

"One car that went through the line before them was on its second attempt, although the first time out with a new driver," he said. "That broke the line of first-time qualifiers."

Those suing contend that the car in question, No. 94, driven by rookie Johnny Parsons, was improperly placed in line and even moved ahead of others.

"What we wanted to bring out," said plaintiffs' attorney Don A. Tabbert, "was that when Binford let the car in the lineup, he was in effect disqualifying unjustly the other cars in line."

Binford also testified that the track was closed by rain for all but about five of the 14 hours allotted for qualification runs this year.

Tabbert contended there was sufficient time for qualification attempts by only "about 38 or 39" of the 68 entrants.

Attorneys for the defendants, the Speedway and the U.S. Auto Club, tried for a "temporary mandatory injunction" to stop the race until reopening of qualifications. Judge Frank A. Symmes Jr. overruled the requests and a motion for a change of venue, which would have in effect killed the case also.

Regardless of the outcome, carburetion tests were scheduled today for the 33 cars in the field and two alternates.

Also planned was a five-mile bicycle race around the track teaming the drivers and guests.

Extra Guards 'Helped' Giants To 6-2 Decision

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

There were a couple of extra men in blue in San Francisco and Atlanta Braves Manager Eddie Mathews said they gave his club a boost.

Besides the traditional men in blue keeping law and order on the four bases, there was a Burns security guard stationed at each end of the Atlanta dugout, insuring the safety of the new crowned king—home run record holder Henry Aaron.

"They did a good job today. It made a big difference, really helped us" Mathews said Wednesday after the Braves dropped the San Francisco Giants 6-2.

The two guards posted on orders of Giants owner Horace Stoneham, were around to protect Aaron after he was hit on the head by an orange hurled into the Braves dugout Tuesday night.

Elsewhere in the National, League, the Chicago Cubs downed the New York Mets 9-6; the Los Angeles Dodgers trimmed the Cincinnati Reds 6-3; the Philadelphia Phillies beat the St. Louis Cardinals 7-1, the Houston Astros knocked off the San Diego Padres 5-1, and the game between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Montreal Expos was rained out.

Aaron snapped a 1-1 tie with a run-scoring double that triggered a four-run Atlanta outburst in the sixth inning.

Astros 5, Padres 1

Milt May liked his first homer as an Astro so much, he did it again.

May, an offseason acquisition, slammed his first homer for Houston Tuesday night, then slugged a pinch hit grandslam homer Wednesday night with two outs in the bottom of the ninth, giving the Astros their second straight victory after 10 losses in a row.

Cubs 9, Mets 6

Jerry Morales, who drove in three earlier runs with a solo homer and a two-run single, crashed a three-run homer with two out in the ninth inning, lifting Chicago over New York.

Phils 7, Cards 1

Del Unser backed Ron Scheuler's two-hit pitching with three RBIs on a home run and a single, powering Philadelphia past St. Louis.

Lou Brock opened the first with a double for St. Louis, then Scheuler retired the next 11 batters before Jose Cruz blasted a solo homer in the fifth.

Player Considering Golf's Grand Slam

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Gary Player, always the optimist, is giving very serious consideration to the unaccomplished Grand Slam of golf.

"Oh, yes," Player said. "It's possible. It would be very, very difficult, but it's possible.

"Of course," the little man continued with a pixie grin, "it's now possible only for me this year."

The Grand Slam consists of the Masters, the United States and British Opens and the PGA national championship. No one has ever won all four in a single season. Only four men—Player, Jack Nicklaus, Ben Hogan and Gene Sarazen—have won all four in a lifetime.

Player got the first leg on it—and eliminated the possibility of anyone else making a run at it—when he won the Masters in Augusta, Ga. last month.

Now his sights are set on the U.S. Open, the next of the world's four major championships.

"Of course," the little rancher from Johannesburg, South Africa said, "I have a very particular interest in the American Open. I've won two Masters, Two British Opens, two PGAs and a single American Open championship.

"If I could win the American Open again, that would give me a double round on all the major championships. That, of course, has to be my next major goal."

Player made the comments before teeing off today in the first round of the $175,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Classic.

"I'm playing very well indeed," said Player, winner of more than 90 international titles in a globe-trotting career and one of only six men to acquire $1 million in earnings on the American tour.

"I'm very content with my game right now."

Even with those overwhelming credentials, however, Player was less than the favorite for the $35,000 first prize here.

That role belonged to Dave Hill. The intense, outspoken veteran is the defending champion, has won this title four times in the last seven years and has taken $119,994 in winnings out of this event alone.

Just behind him is flamboyant Lee Trevino, the winner here in 1971 and 1972 and a one-stroke loser to Hill last year.

Other standouts in the field of 147 that will test the 7,173-yard, par-72 Colonial Country Club course are Hubert Green, a two-time winner this season; Rod Curl, who took the title in last week's Colonial National at Fort Worth, Tex.; John Mahaffey, a three-time runner-up this year; and 1974 titleholders Allen Miller, Leonard Thompson and Lee Elder.

The final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by Hughes Sports Network.

'Speedway Flash' May Not Return To Indianapolis

By JOHN SHURR
Associated Press Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The "Flash" won't make it to the Indianapolis Motor Speedway for the May 26 500-mile race and may never show up again.

Many race fans and the staff at the Indianapolis News, who put out the special race-day "flash final" edition, are having to give up the 30-year tradition because the 1974 race falls on a Sunday when the afternoon newspaper doesn't publish.

"It's only the second time in the 28 years that I've been here that the special won't be sold," said News Sports Editor Wayne E. Fuson.

"We used to send it to the track by helicopter, truck, automobile and motorcycle," he added. "It was show business—a great promotion."

The four-to-eight page extra, which came to be known as the "helicopter edition" as well as the "flash final," had been planned for distribution after the 1973 race.

But, when rain postponed the event three days in a row, it became impossible to keep carrier boys at the track to sell the 10-cent souvenir that recapped the highlights of the day.

For 10 years, the News made arrangements with a helicopter service to pick up the papers near their downtown plant and fly them to the track where they were dropped at the first turn.

The fly-in became impossible in 1973 because of FAA restrictions and rain that held up the big race for three days.

"We would pre-cast the headlines so we could pick out the right one (which named the appropriate winner) and then go with it," Fuson said.

"I would sit in the press box with a special headset so I could listen to our people around the track with one ear and the people at the office with the other," he added.

"During the last 25 miles, I would talk with the managing editor and when there was about one lap left I would give him the leader and boom, he hit the button and away the presses went."

The "flash" sold about 20,000 copies on an average race day, and fans often paid the carrier boys from 50-cents to $1 per copy. "It was a tradition," Fuson explained.

Weaver Named Al Manager

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — Manager Earl Weaver has more important things to think about at the moment, but two months from today he'll be managing the American League All-Star team for the fourth time.

The Oriole skipper was named by league president Lee MacPhail Wednesday to direct the American League team in the annual All-Star game against the National League July 23 in Pittsburgh.

He'll replace Dick Williams, who resigned as manager of the Oakland Athletics after they won their second straight pennant and World Series in 1973. The New York Yankees tried to sign Williams, but because he was still under contract with Oakland, the move was disallowed.

Since Baltimore was the runner-up to Oakland, Weaver was named as the replacement for Williams.

Weaver managed the American League in 1970-71-72. He was criticized several times for his pitching selections, notably for leaving relievers off the pitching staff. Shortstop Campy Campaneris of the A's once rapped Weaver for not being used in the game.

"Just once," Weaver said, "I'd like to hear someone say 'thanks'."

Although Weaver has directed only one American League victory, the 6-4 decision at Detroit in 1971 is the only loss dealt the National League in the past 11 years. Both losses suffered by Weaver's teams were in extra inning games.

Indianapolis May Be Next To Fall Ladies

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Old Gasoline Alley might as well get used to the smell of perfume, insists Joy Wilkerson—the brickyard of the Indianapolis 500 is the next bastion to be stormed by the lady libbers.

"Girls are playing Little League baseball, women are riding horses in the big races, why shouldn't they be driving these machines just like the men?" the 35-year-old housewife and race driver from North Hollywood, Calif., said today.

"All we women need now is experience, but sponsors already see the way that the gals will be jockeying the formula cars in Indianapolis and similar races."

Joy, blonde, curvy and controversial, leads a double life.

As Mrs. Anthony Cardoza, she is the wife of a Hollywood producer and overseer of three children by previous marriages. As Joy Wilkerson, she hosts a talk show on cable television on the West Coast and races automobiles at every opportunity.

"I've been racing two years. I am the first woman to be allowed in the pits. I am the only one to get a NASCAR license, and I've had the laws changed," Joy said during a break in final rehearsals for Sunday's 500.

"My husband calls me the trail blazer—he thinks I could be the first woman to crash Indy, but I figure I may be too old."

Joy was invited to this granddaddy of automobile events by the head man, Tony Hulman. In her red fire-resistant suit and green hot pants, she has been a striking participant in all track activities—except the race itself.

She started racing in Powder Puff Derbies but soon tired of this dilettante for women—only stuff and struck out on her own. J.C. Agajanian gave her her first chance to race against men.

"In the last two years, I've raced everything except the big formula cars," she said. "I've raced midgets, stock cars and dune buggies and I've been taking lessons at the Bob Bondurant School in California for the formula cars.

"Most of the time, I'm the only woman in a race. Three weeks ago at Terre Haute (Ind.) I finished second to Johnny Parsons, Jr., in a USAC-sanctioned race. I don't like Powder Puff Derbies any more. It's like the roller derby. The girls just like to bend fenders and work out their frustrations."

Pepsi Big Winners

For the first time this season, the ten-run rule was used as Pepsi, on a 10-run fourth inning, bombed College View, 32-5.

The rule says, roughly, that if a team is ahead by ten runs or more with two or less innings to play, the game can be called. That is just what happened as almost every Pepsi batter got some sort of hit.

No other details of the massacre were available.

Some Southern Republicans say Watergate and related developments may diminish the GOP's growing strength in the South.

The area has shown a strong trend toward the Republican brand of conservatism in recent years, and President Nixon has received warm welcomes in Southern cities.

But the possibility that Watergate may have changed all that has some Republicans worried.

"We would have advanced further along more easily if we didn't have Watergate," said Jerry Thomas, Democrat turned Republican who is expected to run for governor of Florida this year.

U.S. Rep. David Treen, R-La., said he thought Watergate "will have the effect of temporarily retarding the growth of the party in Louisiana. But I don't think it will weaken it."

"If it had not been for Watergate, we would have had some very prestigious switchovers in Florida," added state chairman L. E. "Tommy" Thomas (unrelated to Jerry Thomas). But, he added, "I think it'll pick back up. Most people in Florida are conservatives..."

Few will say so for the record, but several Republican leaders admit they would feel more comfortable entering the 1974 general elections with Vice President Gerald Ford in the White House rather than President Nixon.

One leading North Carolina Republican, requesting anonymity, even said it would be "thrilling" if Nixon stepped down and Ford became president.

Another North Carolina party spokesman, state chairman Thomas S. Bennett, said it "is difficult to say whether Ford would help us. . .In light of the transcripts, I'd say the President has many more minuses than Ford has, but I'm not in a position to speculate on who I'd rather see as President."

A prominent Georgia Republican, who also asked not to be identified, indicated he was embarrassed by the transcripts.

"I was chagrined, red-faced about the whole situation," he said. "I was shocked by the language. The shame of the whole thing is that if he had laid all the cards on the table to begin with, people would have accepted it."

"I'd say yes," the Georgia Republican continued, "he (Ford) is more acceptable politically than President Nixon."

But others disagreed.

"We have to look to who's there," said Jerry Thomas "Richard Nixon was elected overwhelmingly by the people of Florida and he's carrying out what he considers to be a mandate the best way he can. If the election were held today between Nixon and McGovern, Richard Nixon would win again."

Clarke Reed, chairman of the Mississippi Republican party, said he is "more comfortable with Nixon. Nixon is a more known quantity."

Bob Shaw, Georgia GOP chairman, says the Watergate image "may be found in all camps. And many incumbents may bear that image and the public may be willing to dump them this year in both parties."

His Democratic counterpart, Charles Kirbo, agrees. He says Watergate "has created a climate in which the people want a change, but they want a a change for the best."

In this respect, Watergate seems to run against all incumbents.

But Republican congressmen are in especially difficult positions. While Democrats can follow party lines when the time comes to vote on impeachment, Republicans are faced with a problem.

If they vote for impeachment, they turn off loyal Republicans who still support Nixon. If they vote against impeachment, many independents and Democrats who vote split tickets will go the other way.

"I'll lose 25 per cent of the vote whichever way I go on impeachment," says Rep. James G. Martin of North Carolina's 9th congressional district.

"I don't expect to be able to campaign on the issues I'd like to: defense, inflation, energy," he adds. "But since (Archibald) Cox was fired, I've made speeches about those things and it doesn't matter. The press always asks a question on impeachment and that's what the stories are about.

But Treen said he feels that "where you have an incumbent, the issue is his record...I took office in January 1973, and, without implying anyone's guilt, it's obvious that I did not have any involvement with Watergate."

Republicans have steadily gained strength in recent years in the South, but in most states the political scene is still dominated by the Democrats.

One exception is Tennessee, where Republicans in the state legislature are mapping strategy aimed at taking over three more seats in the House to gain a majority.

But most Tennessee observers feel Watergate will not hamper the state party, partially because Sen. Howard Baker's role on the Senate Watergate Committee has served to remove the state GOP from being tied in with Nixon.

In Alabama, observers say the GOP could be hurt by Gov. George Wallace's campaign against his Republican opponent, former state Sen. Elvin McCary of Anniston, and perhaps generating a straight ticket Democratic vote.

Republicans in South Carolina may pick up one more seat in the U.S. House and could take the governor's office, which is being sought by retired Army Chief of Staff Gen. William C. Westmoreland, according to political theorists on the scene.

Republicans already hold two seats, and are expected to take a third when Marshal Parker runs for the 3rd District post being vacated by W. J. Bryan Dorn, a Democrat who is running against Westmoreland.

Awards For Two Seniors

Robert Myrl Boys of Jacksonville and Christopher C. Cullifer of Charlotte, both senior students in the East Carolina University Department of Physics, are the latest recipients of two departmental annual awards.

Boys is this year's recipient of the department's Outstanding Senior Award, given each spring to the graduating senior in physics with the highest academic grade point average.

Cullifer is this year's James Fenly Spear Memorial Award recipient, selected by the physics faculty on the basis of scholarship, citizenship and leadership.

The Spear Award consists of a cash award of $50 and was established by Nell C. Spear of Chapel Hill in memory of her son, James Fenly Spear Jr., a former East Carolina student who was killed in World War II.

Both students accepted their awards during a recent departmental meeting from Dr. J. William Byrd, ECU physics department chairman.

Boosting S. Vietnam Military Aid Barred

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's effort to boost military aid to South Vietnam has lost what may be its last hope in Congress.

The House refused Wednesday either to raise or lower present Vietnam aid in a $22.6-billion weapons authorization bill it passed 358 to 37 and sent to the Senate.

A similar bill awaiting Senate action would cut the present $1.126 billion Vietnam aid to $900 million.

At the same time, House-Senate conferees reported out a separate $769 million supplemental military bill recommending rejection of the Pentagon's request to increase Vietnam aid by $266 million through a bookkeeping transfer.

The House also rejected amendments to phase out 100,000 U.S. troops overseas and to cut the $22.6 billion weapons bill by $733 million across the board.

An amendment by Rep. Robert L. Leggett, D-Calif., to cut the Vietnam aid to $1 billion was rejected 211 to 190.

But Chairman F. Edward Hebert, D-La., abandoned his House Armed Services Committee's proposal to boost the aid to $1.4 billion because of heavy House opposition and moved instead to keep the aid at the present level.

Hebert's motion was approved by voice vote.

The amendment to phase out 100,000 of the 435,000 U.S. ground troops overseas in 18 months was proposed by House Democratic leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. and rejected 240 to 163 after a debate that split Democratic leaders.

Opponents, including Speaker Carl Albert, said the House would not vote to cut 100,000 troops overseas without knowing where they would be withdrawn or what the consequences might be.

Opponents joined Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in saying that any U.S. troop cut in Europe would undercut present negotiations for a mutual U.S.-Soviet reduction there by taking away any need for the Soviets to negotiate.

Kissinger said in a telegram from Jerusalem, read to the House by Hebert, that "a unilateral reduction of U.S. troops in Europe would be useful to no one but the Soviets."

The highest point in Pennsylvania is 3,214-foot Mount Davis in the Allegheny Mountains.

Pontiff Proclaims 1975 A Holy Year

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI today solemnly proclaimed 1975 a Holy Year and urged world governments to consider granting amnesty to all prisoners, especially political prisoners.

In a papal bull — the most authoritative form of papal message—the pontiff also called on the Roman Catholic Church to bring all movements started in the wake of the 1965 Ecumenical Council, called Vatican II, under the discipline of the church hierarchy.

The proclamation came one year after the announcement of the Holy Year. Pope Paul declared that the theme of the Holy Year would be "renewal and reconciliation."

The bull strictly followed practices observed by the Holy See since Bonifane VIII ordered Rome's first Holy Year in 1300. According to tradition, the bull was issued on Ascension Day.

A similar appeal for amnesty in the 1950 Holy Year by Pius XII was heeded by several states, including Spain, Brazil and Chile.

The Pope called on Roman Catholics the world over to seek a "just and proper balance" of the trends that have sprouted in the Catholic Church in the decade since Vatican II.

Nixon's Jesuit Defender Summoned By Superiors

By GUY DARST
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The Rev. John McLaughlin, the Jesuit priest and presidential aide who recently defended President Nixon's use of profanity, has been called to Boston by his religious superior for "prayer and reflection."

The Rev. Richard T. Cleary, provincial of the Jesuit Fathers of New England, said Wednesday there was a possibility Father McLaughlin could be asked to leave his White House post, or be dismissed from the order, which would not necessarily affect his status as a priest. Father Cleary, who noted Father McLaughlin was living in the Watergate apartments in Washington, questioned whether the priest was living up to his vows of poverty and obedience.

Father McLaughlin recently spoke out in defense of Nixon, saying he was a great moral leader and that his use of curse words was a necessary release mechanism.

Father Cleary, asked if he would agree with Father McLaughlin's defense of profanity, said, "I would be standing up against Moses if I did ... 'Thou shalt not take the name of thy Lord and God in vain'." He said Father McLaughlin was not speaking for the church.

JOHN McLAUGHLIN

Father Cleary also said he had no record of Father McLaughlin being given permission to live in the exclusive Watergate apartments.

"Speaking for myself, I would not live there," he said, adding that Jesuits usually are required to live in Jesuit communities.

"I will be asking him to take a brief time away for prayer about his situation and reflection with me," Father Cleary said, adding he was asking Father McLaughlin to come to Boston as "soon as he can get time to do it."

Father Cleary said, "I do not intend to hurt him ... I am not saying he is not in good standing as a Jesuit priest."

He said no actual permission had been given for McLaughlin to work in the White House, although he said some encouragement was given.

"I understood it as research writing and special assignments for the President," Father Cleary said. "He has made recent statements on his own. It is my understanding this is not what he was originally hired for ..."

In Chicago, McLaughlin, told of Father Cleary's statements, said he did not intend to speak for the church. He said he had conducted a survey of 9 of the 10 Jesuit provinces in the United States and said he found only 36 letters and 6 telephone calls inquiring about his actions or protesting them.

Puts Blame On Secrecy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pollster Louis Harris says a key requirement for restoring confidence in government is to "let the people observe in fact how it operates and, indeed, to invite the people in to help make decisions."

Harris told a Senate Government Operations Subcommittee Wednesday the public no longer accepts traditional arguments for preserving secrecy in Congress and other segments of the federal government. The panel is considering legislation to curtail government secrecy.

He said it is "no happenstance that less than a third of the American people can express any degree of high confidence in any branch of the federal government today."

Harris said the public generally suspects that those elected or appointed to high federal posts "are using their power for their own rather than the country's benefit.

"This in turn leads most people to conclude that a substantial amount of monitoring by the citizenry of those vested with responsibilities of running government is very much in order these days."

The islands of Bermuda are partitioned into nine parishes, most of which were named for the English dukes and earls who invested in the original Bermuda company.

Pollster Weighing Survey's Effects

SMITHFIELD, R.I. (AP) — Pollster George Gallup says his organization is "weighing very carefully" whether to suspend a survey regarding possible impeachment of President Nixon.

Gallup, in a news conference before speaking at the annual dinner of the Pawtucket-Blackstone Valley Chamber of Commerce Wednesday, said the consideration to withhold poll results was based on discussions in the press as to whether such surveys unduly influence Congress during impending impeachment proceedings.

However, he added that neither client newspapers nor government officials have contacted his firm on the question.

Gallup also said that his latest poll scheduled to be released Sunday will indicate a continued increase in the number of Americans who think the President should be impeached or removed from office. But he refused to say whether the new poll shows that a majority now favor the President's removal.

The Gallup poll released one-and-a-half weeks ago reported a 5 to 4 majority opposed to Nixon's removal from office.

In his speech, Gallup said the Republican party has been unable to capitalize on the widespread conservative sentiment of the American people. He said this was undoubtedly due to "image problems and the lack of confidence in the Nixon administration."

Gallup said the latest surveys show more Americans classify themselves as conservative today than at any time since the question was first asked by his organization in 1939.

The Worry Clinic

Building Only A Greater Bias

Frank's problem is breeding racial bias that now hurts the smart,, honest and capable members of such "quota" minorities. Politicians try to win the welfare and relief voters by ignoring merit.

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

CASE A-639: Frank J., aged 38, applied for a janitor's job in a large western Indiana city school.

"But, Dr. Crane," he grumbled "they wouldn't even look at my qualifications or past experience.

"For the Assistant Superintendent had issued an order that nobody was to be hired for such jobs except those of a certain racial minority.

"And one of the school principals told me personally that he had been ordered to hire that ethnic group, regardless of qualifications!

"What makes employers ignore merit and accept incompetents just because of their belonging to a certain minority group?"

"Pull" vs. Merit

This all too common situation is rapidly building up greater racial prejudice in America!

For the honest, trained members of any minority group are thus inheriting the ill will being generated by such political partiality.

Recently, an electrical engineering firm was ordered to disregard trade and achievement tests for prospective applicants for technical jobs.

"You must hire 30 per cent of a minority ethnic group," a bureaucrat ordered, "regardless of their test scores."

Obviously, this works a severe injustice on the well trained, smart members of that same ethnic minority, for they are now inheriting the growing hostility of a majority of citizens and employers.

A factory superintendent in Detroit told me that many of his workers are so ignorant that they can't even tell the time of day from the face of a clock or watch.

"But, Dr. Crane," such employers protest, "we are forced to hire such incompetents by order of the bureaucrats who are pandering for votes."

And that same "quota" demand is now urged on medical, dental and law schools, plus engineering and even Liberal Arts colleges.

But how would you readers like to be treated by a physician who got into medical school just because he belonged to a minority ethnic race instead of because of merit?

Who'd want to patronize a lawyer or dental surgeon who was also pushed through school on that "quota" demand?

Many school teachers are likewise given teaching jobs when they can't pass the standard tests required, but they happen to belong to a racial "quota" group whose votes the politicians are trying to attract.

The only real hope for sanity in education and in the personnel field, lies in disfranchising the welfare and relief group!

Once their votes are no longer up for grabs by the politicians who offer the most boondoggling concessions, then sanity will return.

Which means jobs, college entrance and other desirable posts will again be based on merit, not race or "quota" tactics.

In our Olympic teams, we ignore "quota" methods and pick men on merit.

Same goes for our professional baseball and football teams and even entrance into Heaven!

It should likewise apply to all other fields!

Send for my booklet "Vocational Guidance," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents, and learn how to win jobs on merit.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Nature Fighting Noted Gardener

TROY, Mich. (AP) — Jerry Baker, "America's master gardener," is waging battle with the enemy in his front yard, and he's losing. He says every time he turns around Mother Nature "is giving me a punch in the mouth."

A glance about Baker's yard in this Detroit suburb would not indicate that the gardening author lives there. Like thousands of other yards, it is dotted with weeds.

The grass needs mowing; the half-acre is dotted with dandelions, dehydrated rhododendron, chickweed and creeping junipers, and a 10-by-10 yard vegetable patch needs spading.

"It's just your average yard," says Henry Baskin, a close friend and neighbor of Baker.

Baker's fast-selling gardening books—"Plants are Like People" and "Talk to Your Plants"—have earned him the label of "America's master gardener" and "Mr. Grow It All."

But weeds are growing between and around many of his plants. A 115-foot blue spruce has grown crooked since it toppled in a winter storm. A large section of his backyard needs to be torn up and raised to keep it from flooding. And his evergreens need pruning.

One of the things Baker says in his books is that the gardener should talk to his plants — nicely. He has even gone so far as to name three of his favorites, "Deke, Denney and Doris Delphinium."

Baker has his own television show, syndicated in more than 100 markets.

His name is synonymous with growing things and he has been asked to endorse some 112 commercial products — from fertilizer to windshield wipers — since he quit his job as a Detroit policeman in 1961 to sell garden equipment.

"I do what I say I do in my books. But I'm not immune from problems," Baker says.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Five of ♣

Faced with a choice of finesses to make his game contract, South's decision was predicated not on which finesse would win, but which he could afford to lose.

After South opened the bidding with one no trump, North could have probed for a 4-4 major fit. However, his hand was perfectly balanced, with no ruffing value whatsoever. Therefore, he rightly decided that a nine-trick contract might be easier to make than a ten-trick one even if opener held four hearts.

West led the five of clubs, and declarer captured East's ten with the jack. The play to this trick made it virtually certain that both the ace and queen of clubs were in the West hand.

Declarer could now count eight running tricks, and the ninth trick could be established in either red suit. However, declarer could not afford to let East gain the lead, for once that defender got on play, South's king of clubs would be under the axe. So, declarer ruled out the diamond finesse, since that could be taken only into the danger hand, in favor of the heart finesse — for the heart finesse could be taken with complete safety.

Declarer crossed to dummy's king of spades and led a low heart to his jack. He did not care much whether this won or lost. If it lost, dummy's ten of hearts was set up as the game-going trick and, with West on lead, declarer's weak spot was safe from attack. If it won, South would have his ninth trick there and then.

Note that, if the heart finesse loses and West shifts to a diamond, declarer cannot afford to finesse. To guarantee the contract, he must rise with dummy's ace of diamonds and take his tricks in the correct order lest he block himself out of a winner.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, MAY 24, 1974

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Most everyone is eager now to gain a well-rounded understanding of what is expected of them and of whether they have the requirements necessary to advance to desired goals. If you know what you want, you can use your finest talents constructively.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can advance today where home, business, property affairs are concerned if you are clever. Show kin you will do your utmost to make them happier.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Good for appointments of all kinds, whether business, personal or social. Contact those with whom you are compatible. Drive with real care.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be ambitious and make big headway so you have plenty of security in the future. Put practical ideas to work and make new plans.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You are highly magnetic and can pursue personal goals, be highly social and make big headway thusly. Come to a new accord with fine friends.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) In privacy, work to get an inspiration that is helpful. If you plan well, you can enjoy romantic happiness you desire. Be charming.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Listen to good pal so you gain a desired goal that has been difficult for you to do much about by yourself. Group meetings give spiritual uplift.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct 22) Get involved in some civic affair that can help your community and make you a more important member of such Get the right persons to assist you.

SCORPIO (Oct 23 to Nov. 21) Work on new projects that interest you, but first get necessary information. Those whose experience has been different from yours have the facts you need.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try to be with the one you love as much as possible now and show real affection. Get pressing responsibilities behind you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) An emotional individual can be handled now in a most intelligent way, and much accomplished. Reconciliation with one with a bone to pick is possible.

AQUARIUS (Jan 21 to Feb 19) Get all that work ahead of you done efficiently since it is interesting to you. Avoid some situation that can cause you a peck of trouble.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan to be with persons you want in your life in the future. Show more affection for mate. Put off new project until Monday.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will love to deal with the public and is interested in public utilities, commodities and the like, so slant education along such lines. Teach early to be more objective; otherwise your sensitive youngster could get hurt very easily by others, and the constructive aspects in this chart would be greatly lessened, or even lost. Some religious training is necessary while young.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

At Meeting In Charlotte

Dr. S. M. Walter and C. F. McAndrew attended the 57th spring convention of the North Carolina Chiropractic Assoication on May 16, 17 and 18, at the Sheraton Center, Charlotte.

Robert Morgan, Attorney General and the Democratic nominee for the U.S. Senate was the featured guest speaker.

Dr. D. D. Gibbons of Kalamazoo, Mich., a specialist in Endo-Nasal Technique held a seminar centered around a treatment to help people suffering with such conditions as sinus trouble, deafness, hayfever, sore throats, loss of smell and voice, impacted ears, eustacian tube deformaties, bent septums, and deformed and congested turbonates.

Other speakers were : T. LaFontine Odom, Attorney-At-Law, discussing jurisprudence and court room procedure; Dr. Gustave Dubbs of New York, Director of U.S. Chiropractic Comprehensive Health Planning Office, lectured on the importance of chiropractic inclusion in all matters of health planning affecting Norch Carolinans.

The members of the association and guests were also treated to a preview of a new educational film on chiropractic as a career. The convention ended with the banquet Saturday evening, with songs and music of "The Sounds of America" group from Charlotte.

Earned Degree At Davidson

William Hayden Higgins of Greenville received the B.S. degree in math from Davidson College during graduation exercises Sunday.

Higgins is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Dalton Higgins of 214 Churchill Dr.

At Davidson he has been a member of the golf team, intramural sports and served as a residence hall counselor.

The Great Sphinx of Egypt was built about 2900 B.C.

BB&T is now twice as convenient.

Branch Banking and Trust Company first came to Greenville about three months ago.

We're very happy to say that our reception was tremendous. So tremendous, in fact, BB&T has opened a second office in Greenville.

It's conveniently located on Memorial Drive at West End Circle. There's plenty of parking. And plenty of fast, friendly BB&T service.

Which is something that has only come to Greenville once.

Award Goes To Riddick

NAGS HEAD—Henry C. Riddick of Pitt County has been named the top young agricultural extension agent for Northeastern North Carolina.

The N.C. Association of County Agricultural Agents presented Riddick with its "Young Agent Award" Monday night during the association's annual meeting here.

Riddick, 29, was cited for his educational work with peanuts, pesticides, horticulture and farm records.

A native of Elizabeth City, Riddick joined the Pitt extension staff as an assistant agent in 1968. He was promoted to an associate agent in 1972.

Riddick is a 1968 graduate of N.C. State University with a B.S. degree in agronomy.

NOTICE OF SALE FOR TAXES

Under and by virtue of the power vested in me by the laws of the State of North Carolina, particularly Chapter 310 of the Public Laws of 1939, as amended and pursuant to an order of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, I will offer for sale and will sell at public auction for cash to the highest bidder at the Courthouse door in Greenville at 12 o'clock noon on Monday, the 3rd day of June, 1974, liens upon the real estate described below for the nonpayment of taxes owing the year 1973. The name of the owner or of the person who listed the real estate for taxes, the real estate which is subject to the lien, and the amount of the lien being set out below. Reference is made to the records in the Office of the Tax Supervisor for more particular description of said real estate, and notice is hereby given that the amount of the liens set out below are subject to the addition of penalties as provided by law, and the cost of sale.

NOTICE OF RESALE
North Carolina
Pitt County

TAKE NOTICE that the following described school property will be offered for resale; the Pitt County Board of Education having determined that said property is no longer needed for school purposes, under the provisions of Section 115-126 of the General Statutes of North Carolina, and said property having been offered for sale, and resale, after which, within the time allowed by law, an advanced bid was filed on said property:

NOW, THEREFORE, the Board of Education of Pitt County will sell at public auction to the highest bidder for CASH, at the Courthouse door in Greenville, Pitt County, North Carolina, at 11:15 a.m., on the following described property:

"That certain lot or parcel of land located in the Town of Grimesland, Pitt County, North Carolina, upon which is located the brick building formerly used as the Grimesland Elementary School: BEGINNING at the point of intersection of the northern right of way of Pitt Street and the eastern right of way of Chicora Street; thence from said point of beginning and with the eastern right of way of Chicora Street North 30-57 East 260.0 feet to an iron stake, a common corner with the property of Fernand V. Pilosi; thence with the property line of the said Pilosi, South 58-36 East 208.20 feet to an iron stake, a corner; thence continuing South 58.36 East 16.38 feet to an iron stake, a corner; thence continuing with the said Pilosi line South 31-35 West 84.15 feet to an iron stake, a corner; thence North 58-36 West 16.38 feet to an iron stake, a corner; thence South 31-35 West 26.44 feet to an iron stake, a common corner with M. H. Godley and Fernand V. Pilosi; thence with the line of M. H. Godley South 31-35 West 149.4 feet to the northern right of way of Pitt Street; thence with the said right of way North 58-36 West 205.33 feet to the point of the BEGINNING. Reference is made to map of record in Map Book 22, page 63, of the Pitt County Registry."

The opening bid for this property will be $5,615.00.

This property is being sold by the Pitt County Board of Education subject to that certain Lease of record in Book X-41, page 420, of the Pitt County Registry, and subject, further, to the rights granted to the Lessee in said Lease by a letter dated September 5, 1973, from the Pitt County Board of Education to said Lessee, a copy of which letter can be obtained from the office of the Pitt County Board of Education.

The Pitt County Board of Education, in selling the property described herein, makes no warranty, express or implied, respecting the future use of the septic tank or seepage lines from said tank which have been or are presently serving the buildings on the property described herein.

This property will be sold for CASH and the sale will remain open for ten (10) days to permit the making of an upset bid. A 10 per cent cash deposit will be required of the highest bidder on the date of the sale.

Galifianakis And Wilson Picking Up The Pieces

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Nick Galifianakis is looking for some who wants 50,000 blue and white bumper stickers.

Henry Hall Wilson is trying to get out from under a $200,000 campaign debt.

Such are the current activities of two men who, until May 7, had a common goal—the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate.

They lost, of course, as Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan won a decisive victory and the right to face Republican William E. Stevens in the November general election.

Since the election, Galifianakis and Wilson told the Associated Press, they have been resting, relaxing and getting started on their new careers.

Neither has any immediate plans to run for elected office again, but neither would rule the option out.

Galifianakis' campaign office in Raleigh is still open and several volunteers are helping him tie up the loose ends.

Galifianakis said one abrupt difference in the transition from candidate to private citizens is that the bills are coming to his home in Durham now, rather than to campaign headquarters.

He said he has had to work hard to raise almost $4,000 since the campaign ended to help take care of the debts. "It's kind of hard to tell a small creditor that you don't have a personal liability for those debts," he said. Legally, they are the responsibility of the campaign committee.

Galifianakis said he has taken time in the past two weeks to go to the beach with his family and re-establish his relationships with daughter Katie, 10, and son Jon Mark, 7.

"Katie said 'Daddy, you're still my hero,' which gave me a boost. Jon was disappointed because we wouldn't have the van (a camper in which Galifianakis campaigned) anymore. Everyone's got his own thing," he laughed.

Galifianakis "played tennis one day last week for so long that I was blistered." He is also preparing to go back to work with his law firm, which has offices in Durham and Washington.

"It would be wrong for me to say my interest in politics is foreclosed. It wouldn't be true. But I've got to get over this (his defeat) first before I can think about any plans to get back into politics," he said.

Galifianakis said he felt his defeat was largely due to "the constraints of time and money." He felt he had too little of both to combat Morgan.

Henry Hall Wilson's analysis of his loss was simpler. "I was not perceived by the public to be a credible candidate."

Since his defeat, Wilson said, he has spent two weeks with his family at Nag's Head, attended the graduation of his daughter, Jean, from Duke University LW School, and "duffed around on the golf course," with his wife, Mary.

He has written letters to campaign contributors and attempted to raise some more money. Wilson borrowed more than $200,000 to finance his campaign.

But the bulk of it came from a close friend, Robert O. Helms of Monroe, and his aunt, Mrs. P. Y. Adams of High Point.

It is not uncommon in politics, particularly with losing candidates, for campaign loans to be written off as post-campaign contributions. "Whether you write out a check or write off a debt, it's a contribution," Wilson said.

He added he plans to remain in Monroe, although he does not expect to practice law full time. He said he was getting involved in a number of business ventures both in and out of the state. But he said his plans were too tentative to discuss specifically.

Both men appear to be discovering the same saving race in defeat, a sense of humor.

Galifianakis, in contrast to his often tense demeanor during the closing stages of the campaign, laughed frequently as he discussed it this week.

"We have these bumper stickers...50,000 of them...delivered the day before the election. Can you believe that? They're good quality, the colors are nice, and they have practically every letter of the alphabet.

"Do you need any?"

Ralph Nader Says New Energy Forms Blocked

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. energy companies are actively blocking developments on new forms of energy that threaten to cut into their profits, Ralph Nader says.

The consumer advocate told a House-Senate joint economic subcommittee Wednesday that as a result, little has been spent on research into such fields as solar energy.

"The energy industry is more interested in an energy source it controls," Nader said. "Thus, it marked disinterest in solar energy." Development of devices that would harness solar energy could result in energy "going directly to the consumer, bypassing the oil industry and utility companies," he said.

Nader urged establishment of a government oil and gas corporation to compete with private industry in developing and marketing fuels.

He also said the government should not rely on oil companies to do research on new energy sources, but should pump new funds into its own research programs.

The Army's research into converting cellulose in waste material into ethyl alcohol should be greatly expanded, Nader said.

It "shows great promise as an automotive fuel and for use in fuel cells," he said.

Fuel cells are devices which produce electricity through largely nonpolluting electrochemical reactions.

With fuel cells, "people could have their own private power plants in their homes," Nader said.

He accused large oil companies of keeping such devices from being developed through a "suppression of technological efficiency."

"The fuel industry wants to sell oil, gas, coal and uranium. Yet with reasonable research and development programs, this country could develop far more abundant, cleaner and safer energy sources," Nader testified.

Coast Guard Recruiter Here

The Coast Guard Recruiter will be at the Courthouse here in Greenville, Tuesday, May 28, announced Chief Petty Officer George H. Garrett, Officer in Charge. The recruiter will be at the Courthouse from 12 noon until 4:30 p.m.

Information about the Coast Guard may be obtained by contacting the recruiter at the Courthouse or by contacting the main recruiting office in Morehead City, or telephone 726-4664 (collect).

Tobacco In Crucial Year

ROCKY MOUNT, N. C. (AP)—A tobacco marketing specialist with the North Carolina Department of Agriculture says flue-cured tobacco growers will have to "push real hard" to produce the estimated 1,250 million pounds required this season.

John H. Cyrus said Wednesday that failure to produce enough tobacco to meet foreign and domestic demands could threaten the tobacco quota program.

He told the Eastern Carolina Warehouse Association production is critical this year because there is no surplus for the first time since World War II. He said growers must "change their thinking" and relate to production rather than holding back as they have in the past.

Fred G. Bond, manager of the Tobacco Stabilization Corp., predicted most grades of tobacco will be about seven cents a pound higher than last year.

Revival Series Begins Sunday

CHICOD—Evangelist Billy Kelly of Pelham, S.C. will conduct a revival at Shelmerdine Baptist Church here Sunday morning through Wednesday evening.

Missionary James E. Ray will speak at the Wednesday evening service, also.

Services begin at 7:30 each evening. The public is invited, according to the pastor, the Rev. Travis Smith.

FIRST BANQUET

The Women's Auxillary of the Old Eastern Missionary Baptist Union entertains its first banquet Saturday, at 7:30 p.m. at the Moyewood Recreation Center, 1710 W. Third St.

MAY SUE—Alice Mae Winton, the reigning Miss Black America of Michigan, is threatening to sue the promoters of the beauty pageant because she never received her prize money and has spent an estimated $1,200 of her own money to discharge her duties. (AP Wirephoto)
