News Briefs

Prisoners Held, Not Charged

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Judge Charles R. Ward presided as magistrate here for one day, and was stunned to find 30 prisoners had been held in parish jail without charge — some for as long as seven weeks.

"Shocking," said Ward, ordering the Orleans Parish district attorney's office to file bills of information against the 30 by 5 p.m.

In Louisiana, a bill of information is a method of charging a prisoner that bypasses the grand jury.

First Asst. Dist. Atty. William Wessel said the problem was due to delays in getting police reports on cases turned in to the DA.

Policemen involved in cases frequently do not show up for hearings, possibly because of a cutback in overtime, Wessel said.

Reaction To India's Test

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. officials are concerned that the emergence of India as a nuclear power may prove more beneficiail to the Soviet Union than to India.

Official U.S. public reaction to India's nuclear test last week has been low key so far.

But a very careful assessment is being made now by U.S. officials to determine just how seriously the balance of power in South Asia —where Soviet and Chinese interests crisscross with those of the United States —has been affected by India going nuclear.

Most House Meetings Public

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has opened nearly nine out of 10 committee meetings to the public this year while the Senate still conducts its affairs in secret, according to a Common Cause survey.

The national citizen's lobbying group monitored all House committees which met to draft, discuss and approve legislation between Jan. 1 and May 16, 1974. It concluded that 88 per cent were open to the public and the press.

Common Cause gathered no comparable figures for the Senate since its members still operate under the presumption of secrecy. Only three Senate committees — Government Operations, Interior and Banking —have an open meetings rule.

Aussie Girl Miss Asia

MANILA (UPI) — Blue-eyed blonde Susan Currie of Australia, a five-foot six-inch television weather girl from Brisbane, Saturday night won the title of Miss Asia 1974.

"I feel great," said the 20-year-old Miss Australia after receiving her trophy and the crown, scepter and cape from last year's Miss Asia, Tara Fonseca of India, at the end of a colorful four-hour show.

Thousands Mourn Ellington

NEW YORK (UPI) — Thousands of mourners from across the nation moved past the casket of Duke Ellington Saturday, in final homage to the music genius regarded as one of the greatest American composer, arranger, and instrumentalist.

Ellington wrote more than 900 compositions, many of which have become classics: "Satin Doll,""Don't Get Around Much Anymore, "I Let a Song Go out of My Heart,""I Got It Bad and That Ain't Good,""Do Nothing Till You Hear From Me,""Caravan," and "Mood Indigo" —the last considered by many critics to be his finest single musical creation.

Flood of Illegal Aliens

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The United States is being flooded with illegal aliens who come to find jobs and there is little authorities can do about it, the commissioner of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service says.

"Apprehensions of illegal aliens by the service increased to 670,000 in fiscal 1973, compared to only 21,000 in the early 1960s," Leonard F. Chapman Jr. told newsmen. "And this figure may amount to as little as 10 or 20 per cent of those actually in this country illegally."

"Championship" No Champion

LONDON (AP) — Jason Miller's "The Championship Season," a hit on Broadway for two years, will close tonight at London's Garrick Theater after a run of only three weeks.

One London newspaper, the Evening Standard, attributed the failure of the play to "the unpredictable tastes of the British theater-going public."

The play — about small-town corruption and the former members of a school basketball team — featured an American cast headed by Broderick Crawford. It received only mediocre reviews.

President May Soon Visit Middle East

By RICHARD LERNER

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — President Nixon, voicing hope "the worst is behind us" in the battle against inflation, said Saturday he saw no choice but to stick to his basic economic policies of budgetary restraint, tight money and no tax cut.

Nixon, in a nationwide radio address broadast from his Florida bayside villa, acknowledged that his prescription "may sound like harsh medicine" and added "I wish I could tell you that there is a way out of the present inflation without such measures, but there is not."

The President disclosed that he would send a special report on the economy next Tuesday to the Congress, where some Democratic leaders have called for a tax cut and increased federal spending to ease the strain of the worst inflation in more than 20 years. He said federal spending would be aimed at spurring production, now declining for the first time in more than a decade.

Nixon also announced the appointment of Deputy Secretary of State Kenneth Rush, 64, to be the new chief White House economic policy coordinator, with the title of counsellor to the President.

The President's talk on the economy contained no new major economic plans. Shortly after the 17 minute speech ended, Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler told a news conference:

—The President will visit the Middle East and "there is a distinct possibility" that the trip will be "in the near future." He left open a possibility that it would come before the President travels to Moscow in late June to begin a new round of U.S.-Soviet summit talks.

—He foresaw no indication that Nixon would alter his refusal to turn over more subpoenaed White House tapes or material related to Watergate, and pointedly declined to say whether the President was ready to obey a Supreme Court ruling in any of several overlapping disputes.

In his radio address, Nixon attributed the combination of soaring prices and a slowdown in production and employment to the energy shortage and growing demand overseas for food and other key commodities. But the tone of his speech was generally positive.

...Watergate Review...

By United Press International

—White House Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said Saturday President Nixon likely will continue to refuse to turn over any more tapes or documents demanded by Watergate prosecutors, judges or the House Judiciary Committee. Ziegler said the President thinks he must protect the executive branch from "highly excessive encroachment."

—Nixon ordered his attorneys Saturday to help Judiciary Committee impeachment investigators obtain his federal tax records "under appropriate safeguards." The announcment was made after Attorney General William B. Saxbe said the House could get them from the Internal Revenue Service if it performed some technical procedural manuevers.

—The Supreme Court meets in a regularly scheduled session Tuesday. The justices could then meet immediately to decide whether to accept Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski's request to consider whether they should order Nixon to turn over evidence Jaworski says is needed for the Watergate trial next fall. But court observers believe they will wait for a response from the White House.

Verne Strickland Named 1974 Outstanding Alumni

Verne Strickland, widely known radio and television farm reporter and editor, was presented the 1974 Outstanding Alumni Award during annual Alumni Day ceremonies at East Carolina University.

Strickland, a native of Battleboro, has been farm editor of Capitol Broadcasting Co., Raleigh, and Tobacco News Network for the past eight years, and reports daily to a wide following on radio and television networks which blanket much of the South. He is a 1959 graduate of East Carolina University in English and Art.

In 1973, Strickland was named the top farm broadcaster in the United States, receiving the Ciba-Geigy Award for Outstanding Contributions to Agriculture. This award was a high point in a career of broadcasting that begun on the campus of his alma mater, East Carolina University, when during his junior year Strickland spoke into a microphone of WWWS Radio, the campus FM radio station, for a 90 minute record show. It was his first radio experience.

He switched his academic major from business to English and Art and after graduation and a tour of duty with the U.S. Army, entered professional radio as an announcer. He then became a staff writer for the Evening Telegram, Rocky Mount, where, encouraged by managing editor Vernon Sechriest, he became the newspaper's farm editor. He won a statewide citation from the N.C. Farm Bureau Federation for excellence in agricultural journalism and later joined the Farm Bureau as director of its public information activities in which he served four years.

He serves as chairman of the Board of the N.C. World Trade Association and has covered trade missions to 23 countries.

He has served as regional vice president of the National Association of Farm Broadcasters, and as president of the N.C. Association of Farm Writers and Broadcasters.

Strickland is married to the former Mary Durrene Martin of Whitakers, and they have three children.

Middle East Agreement May Be Near

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is "one or two decisions" short of agreement on a military disengagement between Israel and Syria and will stay at least one more day to complete it, a high American official said Saturday night.

Kissinger came out of what was supposed to be a decisive meeting in Damascus with Syrian President Hafez Assad still short of the final agreement he sought in negotiations that have lasted one month.

The American official aboard his plane said talks were the point where "one or two decisions can do it." He added Kissinger would be "nuts to leave it" even if there could be agreement by Monday night.

"By all normal processes, it is almost inconceivable it could get this close and not work, but in this case I wouldn't bet on it," the official said, referring to the difficulty of the talks.

He said Kissinger would return to Damascus Sunday evening and hoped to leave from either there or Jerusalem Monday morning, stopping over in Cairo a few hours

2,450 Graduate From ECU Today

East Carolina University will confer degrees Sunday on nearly 2,450 graduates and undergraduates making up the largest ECU graduating class ever.

Formal 65th annual Commencement exercises are scheduled for Ficklen Stadium at 5 p.m.

Dr. Jack K. Williams, president of Texas A and M University, formerly chancellor of the University of Tennessee Health Education (medical school) at Memphis, will be the commencement speaker.

Thirteen Air Force ROTC cadets including the first woman AFROTC cadet to be commissioned at East Carolina University will be commissioned as second lieutenants in the U.S. Air Force at commissioning ceremonies at 2 p.m. in McGinnis Auditorium.

A traditional academic procession and a musical program will open the commencement exercises at the stadium. ECU trustees, alumni and officials of the consolidated University of North Carolina system will attend along with families and friends of the graduates who will assemble in caps and gowns.

Air Force ROTC cadets to be commissioned by Col. Earl D. Bruton Jr., are Jimmy D. Bunn, Albert W. Day, Eddie W. Furr, Gerald W. Herring, Lawrence R. Hurst, Alton A. Jones, Jean M. Koszulinski, Mary K. Langan, Charles R. Lipe, Michael D. Myrick, Patrick E. Oren, William P. Peterson, Michael Richardson, Thomas W. Shubert.

Plans Announced For 1974 'Summer In The Park'

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Sunday Editor

For the first time, Greenville will have a summer of music and drama on the grass under the sun (weather permitting) when the eight events "Summer In The Park" program opens on the slope just east of Reade Street on Sunday, June 16.

Stuart Aronson, director of this first community summer venture, has announced that the 2nd Marine Aircraft Wing Band from Cherry Point will inaugurate the program on June 16. (See the Entertainment Page for details on the Marine Band.)

"The North Carolina Fine Arts Council has given us a $2,000 grant," Aronson said. "This has made it possible for us to go ahead with our plans. All of us who have been working on this are truly grateful for the council's assistance."

Aronson, a faculty member of the East Carolina University's Division of Continuing Education, is best known around Greenville for his roles in ECU's Summer Theater musicals. Among his singing roles have been Beauregard in Mame and the governor in The Red Mill.

Aronson and Greenville Recreation Director Boyd Lee jointly conceived the idea of a "Summer In The Park" type of entertainment. They both felt that in the absence of the ECU Summer Theater this summer, something was needed to make the summer a little livelier for area people.

"Although 'Summer In The Park' is being staged in Greenville, Boyd Lee and I want to emphasize this program is envisioned as one for people from all surrounding towns and counties," Aronson said. "We're not thinking of it just in local terms."

The stage will be 24 by 24 feet, raised four feet from the ground. A canopy will cover part of the performing area.

Aronson said "Dr. Jenkins has been most enthusiastic and had made arrangements for us to use university land, which is the grassy slope between Third and Fourth Streets located on the east side of Reade Street."

Several of the individual events are now in the planning stage. In addition to the Marine Band, the Flatland Family Band and Cloggers will perform on July 7. A Soul Sunday is shaping up. This will feature local Negro soloists, groups, choirs and instrumentalists performing in a complete range of Soul music.

"Two of the events will be concert versions of musicals," Aronson said. "We're thinking about Carousel as a beginner. The second choice will probably be an operetta or perhaps another musical." Aronson explained that the concert versions would have an orchestra, a chorus, singers and a narrator, but would not be staged.

"There's few things more exciting for a community than an old fashioned amateur hour," Aronson noted. "It gives everybody a chance to show their talent. I think we've got lots of that here.

"For this we're open to just about anything, country singing, monologues, group skits, guitar players, comedians, opera singers, dancers, Chinese jugglers, you name it.

"Anybody wanting to enter should call the Recreation Center, telephone 752-2355 and give their name and address so that I can start working with them."

Aronson said he would set up a schedule to hear preliminary performances in order to select finalists. "We haven't yet decided how we'll select winners from the finalists," he said, "but we'll use either the applause system or a panel of judges to select winners."

Aronson is enthusiastic about plans for an acted-out children's story. "In this event," he said, "A narrator will tell the story. Children will be costumed for each character in the story and will pantomime the part as it's being read. It's surprising how beautiful this type of presentation can be."

Children or their parents are also asked to call 752-2355 to make arrangements for auditions.

A full scale production of a play is the eighth event to be offered. "I'm not sure yet what the play will be. We're trying to decide on something that will be good and at the same time have a wide appeal."

Aronson said he and Lee wanted particularly to emphasize that relaxation and informality will be the Keynote to "Summer In The Park."

"We'll be encouraging people to come ready to relax and to be entertained," he said. "We want this to be a real community affair, where people bring their blankets, children and babies and dress comfortably, but not, of course," he added, "in streaking costumes." A limited number of chairs will be placed down front near the stage for the benefit of senior citizens.

"We hope the entertainment we are lining up will be so good that people will come no matter how hot it is," Aronson said. "We're also hopeful that this first venture will set the pattern for a continued program of summer entertainment outdoors. I feel," he concluded, "we'll see a lot of fine local talent emerging as a result of this program."

'More Understanding,' Jenkins Tells Grads

MORGANTON — A leader in North Carolina public higher education said Friday there is evidence of more understanding and cooperation between champions of the liberal arts and advocates of vocational training.

"This is as it should be for they are mutually dependent," said Dr. Leo. W.L Jenkins, Chancellor of East Carolina University.

Unfortunately, Jenkins said, "headlines alll too often oversimplify a complex task" in explaining the mission of higher education in today's society. "The public seldom sees the true picture," Jenkins said. "Education has suffered from careless generalizations."

Speaking at commencement exercises at Western Piedmont Community College, Jenkins saluted the program achieved during the eight year history of the Burke County institution, saying it "has amply demonstrated progress which more than fulfilled its promise.

17 Year Old Charged On Several Counts

A 17-year-old Edgecombe County youth was arrested by Greenville police late Friday after trying to elude capture by driving an allegedly stolen vehicle through city streets at excessive speeds.

According to police records, James Curtis Cooper, of Rt. 2, Box 224, Tarboro was arrested at 6:15 p.m. Friday on North Greene Street and charged with operating a stolen vehicle; careless and reckless driving, operating a vehicle with no operators license, speeding in excess of 100 mph in a 55 zone, and failure to stop for a blue light.

Cooper was later charged with auto larceny after being placed in the Pitt County jail.

Cooper allegedly stole a vehicle belonging to an Edgecombe County resident sometime Friday afternoon. Greenville Police spotted the vehicle here later Friday. Cooper tried to evade the pursuing officer when the attempt was made to stop him.

The youth was placed in the county jail under bonds totaling $6,500.

Libraries To Close

Libraries in Greenville will be closed on Monday, May 27 in observance of Memorial Day. The libraries were also closed Saturday. Regular service will be resumed at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Almost 75 per cent of U.S. farm exports in 1973 went to 15 countries. Japan was the leading recipient of U.S. products, followed by West Germany, the USSR and Canada.

Mekong Airfield Attacked

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist raiders blew up seven government helicopters at a Mekong Delta airfield early Saturday, military sources said. Communist forces also attacked and apparently overran five government militia posts in the delta.

The sources said Communist sappers crept into Tra Not airfield, 75 miles southwest of Saigon, before sunup Saturday and attacked the helicopters with plastic bombs. The explosion destroyed one copter and caused heavy damages to six others. One government soldier was wounded.

The bomb attack was the first against Tra Not airfield since the cease-fire agreement was signed Jan. 28, 1973.

The sappers escaped before government troops could react and their strength was unknown, the sources said.

Military sources said a Viet Cong force attacked a 30-man outpost on the banks of the Vam Co Dong River, only 15 miles southwest of Saigon, early Saturday. Radio contact with the beleaguered defenders was lost shortly after the attack began and it was assumed the base was overrun, officers said.

Four other small militia posts between 35 and 150 miles southwest of Saigon fell to similar Viet Cong assaults, the sources said.

In Cambodia forty Communist rebel commandos infiltrated the hamlet of Phume Cham, a mile southeast of Phnom Penh Friday night, killing 21 persons, wounding 38 others and burning down 12 houses.

Will Not Surrender To Protestant Extremists

By DONAL O'HIGGINS

BELFAST (UPI) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson said Saturday the British government will not surrender to militant Protestant extremists who have forced Northern Ireland into what he called "the gravest crisis in her history" through an 11-day strike.

But he did not say whether troops would be used to restore essential services in the province.

Wilson said the government will not negotiate with "law breakers" who are intimidating the Northern Ireland population.

In a grimly worded broadcast address to the nation by television and radio from London Wilson said, "Northern Ireland faces the gravest crisis in her history. It is a crisis equally for all of us who live on this side of the water."

"We will not negotiate on constitutional or political matters in Northern Ireland with anyone who chooses to operate outside the established constitutional framework, with non-elected, self-appointed people who are systematically breaking the law and intimidating their fellow citizens," Wilson said.

Contrary to press predictions, however, Wilson did not announce the government is moving in troops to maintain vital services in Northern Ireland. Neither did he say whether Britain would send more troops to beef up the 16,700 already there.

"It is our duty as the United Kingdom parliament and the United Kingdom government to ensure that minorities are protected, that those in greatest need are helped, that essential services are maintained

Rabin Has Problems In Forming Cabinet

By THOMAS ACKERMAN

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Prime Minister-designate Yitzhak Rabin ran into more snags in assembling a coalition cabinet Saturday and threatened to give up his efforts to form a new government if problems are not resolved in three more days.

Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir refused to continue in his current post, and Foreign Minister Abba Eban refused to reconsider his refusal of the Information Ministry with the added title of deputy prime minister, Rabin said.

Rabin said he will call another meeting of the party leadership Tuesday morning. By then, he said a solution could be found.

"If there is no solution," Rabin said, "I will have to tell the president I have not succeeded in forming a government."

Since receiving the mandate to form a government, Rabin had pledged to call early general elections if he failed in initial efforts to set up a viable coalition cabinet.

Wants Art Museum Downtown

RALEIGH (AP)—Another effort will be made to get a new state art museum located in downtown Raleigh, Mayor Clarence Lightner said Friday.

Lightner said he intends to urge the state Capital Planning Commission to reverse a 1973 decision to have the museum located on a 164-acre site in a Raleigh suburb six miles west of the capitol.

Lightner wants the museum built in a new state government mall where it would add to the city's efforts to revive its dowtown area.

Raleigh legislators have made several efforts to get the General Assembly to reverse the planning commission decision. But they have been thwarted by the determined and powerful opposition of former state Sen. Thomas White of Kinston.

WINSTON—SALEM (AP) — Wake Forest University will award degrees Monday to about 800 graduates of the college, School of Law, Bowman Gray School of Medicine, Babcock Graduate School of Management and the Graduate School.

Dr. Alvin M. Weinberg of Washington, director of the Office of Energy Research and Development, will speak at the commencement exercises at 9:30 a.m. Monday on the plaza in front of Wait Chapel.

N.C. Summer Nurse Shortage

RALEIGH (AP)—Hospitals in several North Carolina cities are facing a shortage of nurses as summer approaches.

The shortage, an ever present problem for hospital administrators, becomes worse in the summer because of vacations, husbands' job transfers, and the desire of married nurses to stay home with their children when they are out of school.

Chemical Injures Tobacco

RALEIGH (AP)—Chemicals placed in transplant water has been blamed for damage to young tobacco plants in five North Carolina counties. The counties include Martin, Wilson, Carteret, Moore and Cumberland.

Furney Todd, extension tobacco disease specialist at North Carolina State University, said he had seen damaged plants in four counties and found farmers "right much concerned."

He said injured plants have changes in the vein pattern, gaps in the leaf margins and narrow leaves. They also are dark green with tender stalk and stems and many bottom suckers.

Hospital Action No Surprise

It comes as no surprise, even though it is not welcome news, that rates are being increased at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

The board of trustees announced increases of $7 for room rates, $5 for operating room and nursery charges and $10 for delivery room charge.

Now wards will cost $41 daily, semi-private rooms $44 and private rooms will cost $47 and $48. The delivery room charge will be $60 and the nursery rate will be $23 while the mother is an inpatient and $28 after she is discharged.

Operating room rates are now $60 for the first half hour and $10 for each additional quarter hour.

Trustee Chairman Ed Warren expressed regret at the increases but cited rapidly increased cost—something we are all familiar with—as the cause.

"Our costs have gone way up beyond the projections made last summer when this fiscal year's operating budget was adopted," he explained.

Hospital officials said an average stay is six days and under the old schedule the average bill has been $525.84. Under the new rates this will go to $567.84 for an increase of 7.9 percent.

This increase in hospital rates is just one more frustration for the average income family which is rapidly being squeezed to death by rising costs on every side. While it is possible to cut down on auto travel or electrical use, there is no getting away from hospital bills when illness strikes.

There is the growing feeling among the moderate income family that the poor are taken care of in the event of major illness and the wealthy are able to take care of themselves. Now even the cost of maintaining adequate health insurance for moderate income families is becoming burdensome.

We would urge the hospital board and its officials and staff to redouble their efforts to see that every dollar is spent wisely so that future increases may be forestalled as long as possible. A major illness has become a financial catastrophe for average income families, and the bleak outlook is that this health cost spiral will continue.

Blind Spot In Refugee Issue

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's diplomatic coup in bringing Syria and Israel to the brink of military disengagement on the Golan Heights now confronts Israel with by far the toughest of its political problems: dealing directly with the hated Palestinians.

Up to now, outgoing Prime Minister Golda Meir and almost her entire government have refused to face up to the Palestinian question. Indeed, some Jewish leaders here are so concerned about this blind spot in Israel's otherwise commendable steps toward a political settlement that they have—very privately—warned the Israeli government to change its tune.

Instead of dealing directly with political leaders of a full generation of Palestinian refugees, such as Yassir Arafat, Mrs. Meir's government is still toying with a gimmick: settling the explosive West Bank question with King Hussein of Jordan.

Kissinger himself has taken secret actions to knock any such Israeli-Jordan deal out of his grand design for a political settlement of 25 years of warfare between Israel and the Arabs.

Since the issue of the Palestinian refugees is the heart of the Arab-Israeli struggle, any separate deal between Israel and Jordan for a Palestinian homeland on the West Bank of the Jordan River would have only one result: immediate intensification of murderous Palestinian attacks on Israeli citizens and even more murderous reprisals by Israel.

Yet, inside Israel itself, the prospect of a truly Palestinian state on the West Bank of the Jordan River (seized by Israel from Jordan in the six-day war of 1967) is still viewed by most Israelis as unthinkable. The primordial fear of attempting to coexist with an independent Palestinian state is too deeply ingrained.

That fear alone has been a major cause of Israel's reluctance to enter any serious political deal with the Arabs: at the end of such a deal lies the dreaded Palestinian state. For example, even before last week's murderous terrorist attack on Ma'alot gravely intensified it, the popular Israeli mood leaned against a Syrian deal.

Thus, some experts here are convinced that the Israeli-Syrian deal about to be consummated by Kissinger would never have been permitted by Israeli public opinion had it not been for the extremely harsh reprisals Israel took last week to avenge the murder of 26 Israelis at Ma'alot by Palestinians terrorist. As of last Sunday night, the retaliation had killed an estimated 80 Palestinians and wounded 200 more, many of them women and children just as innocent as the Israeli schoolchildren slaughtered at Ma'alot.

Without such a deadly reprisal, it is doubtful that Golda Meir's embattled caretaker government could have had enough negotiating freedom at home to agree on the Kissinger-drafted Syrian deal. Popular fury at the Israeli government for failing to protect exposed Israeli border towns and for its handling of the Ma'alot disaster had reached an unprecedented peak. The Syrian deal calling for a major Israeli pullback on the Golan Heights was on the verge of being swept away by citizen demand inside Israel.

The violence of the revenge thus had a political impact within Israel of immense importance: it permitted the weak Meir government to continue Syrian negotiations despite Ma'alot.

But it did nothing to move Israel any closer to the vital question of confronting the Palestinian issue. To the contrary, the cycle of Palestinian atrocities and lethal Israeli reprisals is making each successive Kissinger move harder than the last.

The first move was disengagement of Israel and Egyptian forces along the Suez Canal; then came the Golan Heights separation; and next will be the full-fledged international conference. Headed by the U.S. and the Soviet Union, in Geneva.

Near the top of the Geneva agenda will be the Palestinian question and the West Bank. Some of Israel's most understanding and sympathetic friends in the U.S. are sending this warning to Tel Aviv and Jerusalem: Israel must at last confront this issue head-on. That means agreeing to a Palestinian presence in Geneva with Kissinger in the leading role as Israeli-Palestinian mediator.

Anything less than that, these Israeli backers are saying, is a one-way ticket to more terrorism, more murder and more full-scale warfare.

Copper Craze Hits Tar Heels

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Tar Heels have taken a liking to the idea of having some jewelry made from the copper stripped from the dome of the state's Capitol.

Orders for the traditional North Carolina jewelry continue to pour in at the sales desk in the lobby of the Archives and History building, with receptionist Barbara Lee reporting more than 2,500 orders now on hand.

The waiting list is about 30 days long, with orders received back in mid-April now being processed.

Not just Tar Heels living in North Carolina are interested. Orders have come in from all across the nation—and several European countries.

Asheville craftsman Stuart Nye is producing the jewelry in dogwood and pine designs with 15 different pieces, including bracelets, pins, earrings, tie tacks, and cuff links at prices ranging from $3 to $9. Each is handmade from the hammered pieces of copper taken from the dome two years ago in a renovation project. State officials say there is enough copper to fill the demand of buyers—the original copper removed totaled 3,000 pounds.

Need Gas

Visitors or other travelers in North Carolina will get a helping hand from the state in finding gasoline while in the state.

The five state-operated welcome centers are getting up-to-the-minute information on fuel across the state from a motel chain using a computer hookup to show which gas stations are open and pumping.

Tagged the Gasoline Advisory Service (GAS), the information will be given on request to callers, and is designed to encourage travel in the Variety Vactionland.

County Recreation

The past five years have seen a major turnaround in recreation activities sponsored by county governments.

In that period, the number of counties with at least one full-time recreation staff member has gone from one to 27. Only 32 of the state's 100 counties have no county-run recreation or park program, and since 1972, 23 counties have gotten into the recreation business.

The amount of money spent by counties has increased in the past two years from around half a million dollars in 1972 to $2.8 million in 55 counties this year.

A Sad Lesson

The image of a library catering to a select clientele and only occasionally serving others persists in North Carolina despite the trend towards outreach service, says State Librarian Phillip S. Ogilvie.

Libraries are often the first points of contact for people seeking state services, and "librarians ought to be recipients of training in counseling and helping skills" when people come in with questions and problems, Ogilvie wrote in a recent newsletter circulated to librarians across the state.

Based on that belief, a bill was introduced in the 1974 General Assembly which included librarians among a group of first-contact types such as ministers, educators, policemen, and social workers who ought to be formed into a system of providing counseling and help to people in need.

The effort was met with "hoots and catcalls" from some members of the Legislature who "still cannot conceive of troubled citizens turning to their local librarians for direct answers or referral of their problems to other service agencies," Ogilvie says.

The lesson, he says, is a sad one: "there is slight chance we will live happily ever after unless all of us accept serving the whole community and coping with its problems as our basic responsibility. . .time and opportunity for increased support are running out while we await that day."

Sunday Morning Notes

The Christmas season has begun for Dr. Leo Jenkins.

The card wishes Dr. Jenkins a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

"You are beautiful," it says. "Compounded with LUV and Blessings. And May your total future be the greatest."

ALVIN TAYLOR

Aycock surveyed the witness sternly and then said, "Mr. Horne, I've been wanting to get you in this position for some time to ask you about my electric bill."

The court room crowd broke up laughing, the judge said he was not sure it was the time and place. Horne said he would take the fifth amendment.

Prosecutor Aycock said he had no further questions.

George Bryant, retired McGraw-Hill executive and former Greenville resident, does a Sunday column for The Daily Reflector.

He sent in the following item as an example of the lighter side of Watergate which is floating around the Nation's Capital these days:

WASHINGTON—This town is so wrapped up in Watergate that it dominates local humor. Example:

President Nixon decided to attend a conference at the Pentegon, just across the Potomac River. So, he walked across the lawn to the river bank, then on over to the famous military center. The press missed him and set out in search.

When the President left the Pentagon and was standing on the Virginia side of the river, he saw the reporters gathered on the Washington bank. He decided there was

Public Forum

To the editor:

Anyone who has had the opportunity to observe one of the Greenville Little League baseball teams in action is certainly aware of the unfairness and discrimination practiced among our nine-to-twelve-year-old boys. Some of the players never get to play a single inning because it is already "cut and dried" before the game starts.

However, if any of these boys have a dad who is coach or manager of their particular team, they are in luck, regardless of their ability to play. Some are allowed to play throughout every game barely making one score the entire season, while his fellow teammates sit on the bench, disheartened, disillusioned, and frustrated with no incentive to play.

This method is practiced in both the Tar Heel and North State Leagues. The same pattern follows at the ending of the season when the All-Stars are chosen for the final playoffs. If an All-Star is fortunate enough to have his own coach or manager for the year, his chances for playing are 100 per cent.

Most feel that all the players should participate, regardless of their age, size, color, or the number of years they have been on the team, at least part of the game. Also, most parents feel that under no circumstances should a player be coached or managed by his own father or allowed to be placed on his team.

Not all teams on these Leagues are managed in this undemocratic way. Those that are not have by far more confidence, courage, and enthusiasm, usually winning more games because their coaches and managers are fair.

Our government has become corrupt and this corruption is drastically being infiltrated into our smallest organization. It is not what you want, but who you know that makes the difference. I feel it is time for parents of these boys to speak up for what they feel to be a just cause.

What has happened to the scripture that our Lord said, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you"? Also, the Little League pledge says, "I will trust in God." I hope our generation will trust in God for they cannot put their trust in man.

Fights Tax In Courts

By GLEN CARPENTER

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — One day last year Harold W. Brobeck sat down to file his 1040 federal income tax form. He filled in his name and address, signed at the bottom and sent it off just that way.

The result has been a complicated tax case which has resulted in suits against the government and a six-month jail term for Brobeck. A tax attorney for the Justice Department calls the case one of the most interesting he has heard of.

Brobeck, of Beaver, Pa., is one of a number of citizens who contest the constitutionality of the Internal Revenue Service Code and the Federal Reserve System. In all, six persons have filed suit in federal court in Pittsburgh and about 10 other similar suits have been filed in other states, according to John Hines, trial attorney for the tax division of the Justice Department in Washington.

"This whole saga began initially when Mr. Brobeck began filing income tax returns which had no information except his name and address," Hines said.

Jailed for Contempt

Hines said the IRS informed Brobeck the information was insufficient. Brobeck, former president of an automobile dealership, at first refused to supply records of his business transactions. He was sent to jail for contempt of court for six months, then released when he said he would look for the records. He contends the records cannot be found and his case is still in litigation.

Brobeck's and the five other western Pennsylvania suits against the IRS are all alike. They ask a three-judge federal

40 Years Ago Today

In Chicago, where Policeman William O'Malley was slain in January by a man definitely indentified as John Dillinger, two officers, Martin O'Brien, 44, and Lloyd Mulvehill, 28, were machingunned to death late last night. There was no clue today to the identity of the killers.

Dillinger, fugitive from Crown Point, Indiana's jail, where he was sent for the murder of O'Malley, was suspected.

Announcement that 3,000 has already been raised on the Robert Herring Wright Memorial Fund was made by E.L. Henderson in presenting the play to the students at the Student Assembly Hour this morning.

An opportunity was offered for each student to have a part in helping to raise the fund. The cause was presented from the point of view of the students by two leaders on campus, Miss Frances Newsome and Alva Van Nortwick.

Both felt that since theirs was the last student body to come under his influence they would consider it a privilege to express their appreciation by contributing to the fund.

Strength For Today

THE SACRED FLAME

The people of Florence, in Italy, today cherish to this day a fire taken from a shrine of Jerusalem and brought to Florence by a man named Pazzi. At the time he did so, he was called Pazzi the fool because he spent such a great amount of time, effort, and money to perform an act which would in no material way benefit either himself or his city.

Historically, men who have been willing to undergo the sacrifices like those of Pazzi for some completely impractical end have often been called fools. The unthinking world has little time for sacred flames and fails to understand how men can foresake their ease and comfort to pursue some purely personal ideal. People called Jesus a fool, and many considered St. Paul a mad revolutionary.

But future generations often awake to the transcendent value of great acts of self-sacrifice. The Jesus who died on a cross is undoubtedly the most revered man the western world has produced. And Pazzi, who brought the flame to Florence, is remembered today with respect, while the men considered great by his generation are forgotten.

Iron And Steel Industry's Pinch

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Iron and Steel Institute, made up of the top executives of the nation's steel industry, met here this week. The mood was mixed, often plaintive, sometimes confusing.

When the industry's power and accomplishments weren't lauded, it seemed that its weaknesses and vulnerability were the chief concerns. The future would be good, it seemed, if taxes, imports and environmentalists could be recalled.

The next decade, predicted Stewart S. Cort, chairman of Bethlehem Steel and the institute, will be one in which demand for the product might be unprecedented domestically.

Cort called current depreciation regulations on plant and equipment "a sick joke." Tax provisions aren't doing the job of helping the industry raise capital, he said. And without capital the industry clearly cannot expand.

What then? "If we cannot find a way to provide capacity to meet foreseeable domestic demand, if we don't act on it, mark my words, there'll be irresistible pressure for the government to step in and take over," he said.

Not very long ago such cries would be ignored or considered part of steel's paranoia, or at best, steel's way of obtaining its demands. But not now.

In recent months there seems to be a growing suspicion that pressure groups and government, by ignoring the dollar and cents realities of business, can regulate it into a corner from where there is no escape except into the arms of government.

The financial predicament of Consolidated Edison, which had to seek state assistance, is cited as an example. U.S. overseas air carriers insist they cannot function profitably without regulatory changes. The Penn Central railroad is bankrupt.

The steel industry now maintains that without a more considerate role by government and environmentalists it will be unable to operate profitably enough to attract capital to meet its obligations, including environmental ones.

Edgar Speer, U.S. Steel chairman, stated his opinion with the blunt, threatening quality that has often cost the industry popular support:

"Unless present environmental laws are revised, the steel industry may be headed for 'an environmental calamity' which would have grave repercussions for the nation's economy."

He suggested that this national standard "may well be unnecessary ... and is certainly going to cost the American public dearly if the situation isn't changed."

Despite big returns in 1973, many steel companies still haven't achieved the level of profitability they had in 1957-1959.

Unmoved By Transcripts

By GEORGE GALLUP

(Copyright 1974, Field Enterprises, Inc. All rights reserved. Republication in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with the written consent of the copyright holders.)

PRINCETON, N. J.—President Nixon's release of the transcripts of the White House tapes on April 30 has not reduced the large percentage of Americans who believe the President was involved in a cover-up of the Watergate bugging or had advance knowledge of the incident.

The latest nationwide Gallup survey, conducted May 10-13, shows nearly three persons in four $73 per cent) holding the opinion that Nixon was involved to some extent in the scandal which has dominated the news for well over a year.

The previous survey on the subject, conducted in February, showed virtually the same proportion (71 per cent) holding the opinion that Nixon was involved in the Watergate scandal.

Opinions regarding Nixon's involvement, in fact, have shown remarkably little change since the question was first asked, nearly one year ago. In that first survey, conducted in early June, as many as 67 per cent of the public felt that the President played some role in the rapidly spreading scandal.

8 Percent Say Nixon 'Planned' Watergate Bugging

About one person in 12 in the latest survey (8 per cent) thinks Nixon actually planned the Watergate bugging. Another 26 per cent say he did not plan the bugging but knew about it before it took place. Nearly four in ten, 39 per cent, hold the view that Nixon found out about the bugging after it occurred and tried to cover it up.

Only 14 per cent express the view that Nixon had no knowledge of the bugging and spoke up as soon as he learned about it.

Since the February survey, the proportion saying Nixon planned the bugging or knew about it before it took place has shown little change. At the same time, however, a 5-point increase is found in the percentage holding the belief that the President found out about the bugging after it occurred but tried to cover it up.

Those absolving Nixon of any involvement have shown a slight decline since February—from 17 to 14 per cent.

Third of Republicans Say Nixon Not Involved

Opinions on the issue of Nixon's involvement continue to have a strongly partisan flavor. As many as a third of Republicans (32 per cent) in the survey absolve Nixon of playing a role in the Watergate scandal. Among both Democrats and independents, however, only 8 per cent hold this view.

This is the question asked to measure attitudes on Nixon's involvement in Watergate:

"Here are four statements concerning President Nixon's connection with the Watergate affair. Will you tell me which one comes closest to your own point of view? (A) Nixon planned the Watergate bugging from the beginning. (B) Nixon did not plan the bugging but knew about it before it took place. (C) Nixon found out about the bugging after it occurred, but tried to cover it up. (D) Nixon had no knowledge of the bugging and spoke up as soon as he learned about it."

Views On Nixon Involvement

	Planned	Knew About	Covered Up	No Knowledge	No Opinion

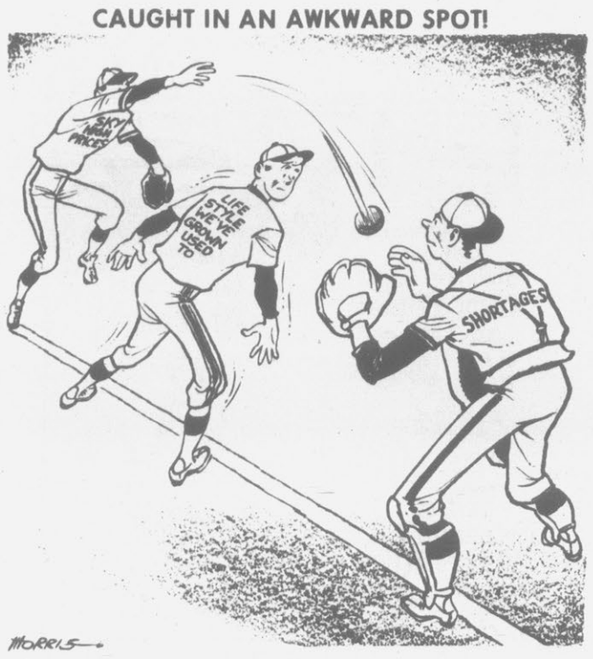
As reported Thursday, developments of recent weeks, including Nixon's release of the transcripts, have had virtually no effect on his popularity rating with the American people. The latest survey (May 10-13) shows 25 per cent of the sample expressing approval of the way he is handling his job as chief executive with 61 per cent disapproving and 14 per cent undecided. The current approval figure matches his low point.

The previous survey on popularity, conducted in late April, showed closely comparable results: 26 per cent approved, 60 per cent disapproved, while 14 per cent were undecided.

CAUGHT IN AN AWKWARD SPOT!



A Conservative View
Two Books: The Future Dark, The Future Bright

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Recent months have produced two books attempting to foretell the future of mankind. One of them is altogether bleak: Roberto Vacca's "The Coming Dark Age." The other is altogether bright: Adrian Berry's "The Next Ten Thousand Years." Together they provide a striking example of how two keen minds, starting from the same essential data, can reach diametrically opposite conclusions.

Vacca is the pessimist. Berry is—not the optimist, exactly, but rather the confident visionary. Where Berry thinks in terms of "we can," Vacca coldly looks ahead and says, "we won't."

Both observers begin with the world of science as it is. Both are concerned with predictable problems of overcrowding, famine, and industrial complexity. Both conceive that within the near future, something will have to give. The accelerated pace of contemporary life, expecially in America, is building toward an intolerable crescendo. The climactic moment can be resolved only by a bursting of conventional patterns and the emergence of new ones.

First, Berry. By the 1990s, he believes, just 20 years hence, solar-orbiting factories will be in operation. These will be served by "flying cities, which ultimately will expand to many miles in diameter and provide permanent homes for hundreds of thousands of people."

Berry sees no insoluble problems for existence in space. His orbiting cities would be heated by solar energy. They would be fed by means of hydroponic farms beneath transparent domes. Waste products would be disposed of by shooting them off toward the sun for tidy incineration.

Looking father into the future, into the 21st and 22nd centuries, Berry sees entire new orders of civilization as pioneering men and women explore the Asteroid Belt and look hungrily toward the riches of Jupiter. His book is heady stuff. His prophecies apparently are reasonably based in extrapolations from known technologies. But "The Nest Ten Thousand Years" qualifies as what used to be called "summer reading."

Vacca's visions are better suited for a freezing night in winter. His work, first published in Italy three years ago, is here updated by the author and translated by Dr. J.S. Whale. Vacca sees not a new Space Age, but a new Dark Age—a catastrophic throwback to medieval patterns of bare existence.

How could such a disaster occur? Not by nuclear war alone, says Vacca. If mankind faced no worse threat than the loss of a hundred million persons by war, there would be no question of civilized survival after a brief period of rebuilding. He sees disaster in terms of the breakdown of entire systems that advanced nations of the world have come to regard as indispensable: electrical power, telephonic communication, energy supply networks, food chains, and the like.

In one grim chapter, Vacca fancies the beginnings of catastrophe on a winter afternoon in Chicago. A railway strike has created fantastic traffic jams that strangle the city. Trucks and autos cannot move. At O'Hare Airport a weary air traffic controller makes a human error. Two planes collide and crash into an already overloaded high voltage line. In a matter of seconds, the entire electrical network of seven major states is knocked out. As the freezing weeks pass, people desperately seek warmth by burning buildings. Disease and conflatration sweep the major cities. Crime becomes epidemic. Millions perish from cold and hunger; half of the surviving population "will die of bubonic plague." It is a nightmare prospect.

Are these conflicting prophecies mere fantasies, wholly lacking in substance? I cannot say, but when I contemplate the nearly total dependence of our great cities upon intricate and vulnerable systems, I would put my bets on Roberto Vacca. Starting from how it is, he tells it as it more likely could be.

Scattered Instances Of Financial Trouble Are Behind Market Jitters

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

That fellow who first observed that the appearance of a single swallow doesn't make a summer was right on the mark, of course. But when that lone bird turns up in the spring, it's solid evidence that an improvement in the weather isn't far off.

The same can't be said about the bits of good news from the economic front these days. They are welcome. But it would be a mistake to read them as any real harbinger of coming relief from roaring inflation and the many uncertainties which accompany it.

What happened to the Labor Department's consumer price index in April is a good example. Price inflation, as measured by this yardstick, slowed to an annual rate of 7.2 per cent about half the March rise. This easing was due to lower grocery prices, reflecting the sharp fall in farm product prices over the past few months.

This is good news for the housewife, to be sure. The bad news for the future is that prices of just about everything else making up the index were still climbing for the sky. It should be remembered that in April controls still applied on many things. May is the first decontrolled month, and prices are shooting up on a broad front—goods and services, too.

So, the prospect is that the April results were little more than a short breather. Certainly, the most that can be claimed is that the annual rate of inflation slowed. Nothing happened that changed the direction.

During the week, there was a brief expectation that the tight credit-high interest picture might be changing. The rate on what's called Federal funds (uncommitted reserves banks lend each other) dropped sharply. The indication was that banks again had a large amount of loanable funds on hand and that credit might be easing.

But the Federal Reserve System stepped in to soak up funds, using a procedure which bites into bank deposits and thus shrinks ability to lend. This was taken as evidence the Fed is determined to keep a heavy foot on the credit brake as a way of slowing inflation.

There is concern that the Fed might push too hard. Interest rates on both short and long term money are moving into record levels. The worry is that with all the debt the economy is carrying today, enterprises which borrow to meet needs will be driven to the wall.

This has led to a spate of speculation about a "liquidity crisis," even involving financial institutions. Certainly, some recent events, when woven together, make a rather unsettling picture and on an international scale, even.

First, Consolidated Edison, the big electric utility serving New York City, got in a cash bind. It passed its dividend. The repercussions reached to stocks and bonds of other utilities, as investor confidence was shaken.

Then, a dividend was passed by big Franklin National Bank, New York. Earnings were "poor". Heavy losses had resulted from foreign exchange dealings. The Federal Reserve System helped the bank with a big loan, reportedly $750-million, when it couldn't borrow from usual sources.

There has been at least one "scare" which caused a pension fund to hold up in buying certificates of deposits from a bank. The story has caused investors to think a bit about this type of IOU. And troubles have popped up in commercial paper, issued by many companies to finance short term transactions.

And abroad, countries are having to scramble for funds to cover trade deficits growing out of the Arab oil price hike. As of now, there is no certainty as to just how some will make out.

These instances of financial trouble may be little more than "unique" situations. But they are causing money market jitters. This shows in pressure on stocks of banks. Some of the leaders have taken some mauling.

As this space has pointed out before, corporate and individual debt is high, relative to handy cash. It's the sort of situation which makes for toruble if times turn tough.

panel to rule on the constitutionality of the IRS Code and the Federal Reserve. The plaintiffs claim seven amendments to the U. S. Constitution are violated by the government in collecting the federal income tax. But the thrust of the argument rests on the 5th Amendment which daals with self-incrimination.

"We are pleading the 5th Amendment to protect ourselves," he said. "We take the position we don't owe a tax."

Says Taxes Misused

Hartman explained that those who have filed the suits do not object to paying a constitutionally levied tax. However, he said that when the Federal Reserve System was created in 1913, the Congress gave away its constitutional power to levy and collect taxes.

"We are trying to get our 5th Amendment rights adjudicated and this is why we are filing these suits, he said."

Hartman also says the taxes that have been collected are not being used for the proper support of the government.

"We feel that these monies being collected by the IRS ure not being used to benefit us, but rather are being used to enslave us."

"Liberty Amendment"

As examples of alleged misuse of federal tax dollars, Hartman said an organization known as the "Liberty Amendment" has compiled a list of unusual federal expenditures. Among them, Hartman said, was a $5,000 appropriation to study the diving behavior of seals, $20,323 for a study of the mating calls of American frogs, and $20,000 for research on the blood groups of Polish pigs.

Hines said Brobeck, Hartman and the others "have a belief that the Federal Reserve System, the IRS Code and the Coinage and Currency Act are all unconstitutional. For that reason they object to the payment of federal income taxes."

"They feel the Federal Reserve System is unconstitutional because it is not backed by the gold and silver standards. They say the money is not backed up by any standards."

However, Hines noted that Brobeck, as president of the auto agency, did accept paper money when he sold cars.

By JOHN KILGO

An earlier column on Jim Newcomb, the 66-year-old fire extinguisher salesman who is the GOP nominee for Chief Justice of the State Supreme Court, pointed out that he is without any legal training.

Newspapers across the state have editorialized on Newcomb's nomination and most have been extremely critical of it. Republican voters had the choice between respected Greensboro Judge Elreta Alexander and Newcomb, and they chose the man who sold fire extinguishers.

Some newspapers have suggested that this primary shows without doubt that the Legislature should change laws requiring judges to obtain office via the public ballot. Under present circumstances, candidates for judgships cannot talk about anything that could be construed as issues. Neither can they get into serious debate with their opponents. They're almost limited, under the present groundrules, to giving name, rank and serial number and not much else.

If you couple that with a dull primary, the voters might make less than a wise decision. The May 2 primary was certainly dull and the vote was light. The ballot was also long, which increased chances of voter confusion.

GOP Chairman Tom Bennett was very upset with the results of the primary which gave Newcomb the victory. He says Newcomb is a fine man, but he can't support him in November.

Some newspapers have taken a critical look at themselves, saying they didn't give the Newcomb-Alexander race enough play. No one thing won for Newcomb. It was a combination of things mentioned above, plus the fact that Newcomb worked hard to win.

Newcomb is angry at the reaction his nomination has provoked.

"I din't expect Bennett and (Gov. Jim) Holshouser to support me," Newcomb said. "They didn't want me on the ballot in the first place. As for the press, you people are being vicious. The people spoke and they wanted me."

Newcomb, no matter about his lack of credentials, is totally serious about waging and winning campaign in the fall against Justice Susie Sharp. He says he will be in the role of a heavy underdog and the people will rally to his campaign.

During normal times, that would be a boast more than a threat. But who knows what might happen politically between now and November? It's at least within the realm of possibility that North Carolinians will have a man with no legal qualifications sitting on their highest state court, as the most powerful member of the court.

Game Protectors Pit Wit Against Wit, Brawn Against Brawn

By CINDY ROSE
Associated Press Writer

THE EVERGLADES, Fla. (AP) — It's sundown. Jim Sistrunk is in his pickup truck, lights out, driving along narrow, bumpy levee roads on the lookout for poachers.

His job as a wildlife officer pits wit against wit, sometimes brawn against brawn, in adventures reminescent of the days of bounty hunters.

The setting is the swamp, eerie in the blackness with fireflies catching movements of otters and raccoons, frogs singing in husky voices and the lights of Andytown 18 miles away.

The beauty belies danger and Sistrunk knows every poacher he spies is a hunter with a gun.

"It's hazardous work," Sistrunk says. "We get into a lot of hassles. People are more likely to use those guns now than they ever have before."

Earle Frye, director of the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, says that in the past three years there has been a rash of violence involving wildlife officers.

"It's the same in all areas of the country, more men are killed and hurt," he says. "It's hard to understand the taking of life over a misdemeanor like deer poaching."

Dan Crowder was killed May 3 in north Florida when he tried to stop a deer hunter. Conally Campbell was shot five times near Fort Lauderdale by deer poachers. He lived. Leon Walker died in an auto accident in Columbia County during a high-speed chase.

Five officers were hung in effigy after arresting a ring of organized deer killers bagging an estimated $35,000 yearly.

"If somebody decides they want to hurt a wildlife officer, they've got the advantage," Sistrunk says. "They can do it, there's no way that man can stop them. They've got guns to hunt. They can just shoot first. The officer can pull his gun and get a shot off but he'll be hurt."

In Florida, there are only 153 state wildlife officers to protect millions of acres. Sgt. Sistrunk and his seven officers are responsible for protecting the animals in 700,000 acres of Everglades.

"It's a lot of land but if a poacher does it regularly, we've got a 50-50 chance to catch him," Sistrunk says. "The good hunters tip us off."

The poachers themselves, in a bid to prove they no longer believe in such night doings, tell on one another.

"They do it to try to say they've changed their ways and are now strictly for conservation," Sistrunk says. "But we know 'em and we know better.

"One time we were having trouble with shipping illegal fish to Miami. I caught a driver and led him to believe somebody had tipped me off on him," he added. "He'd call me three nights a week and tell me when a shipment was coming. For about three months we caught every one. . ."

Most poachers in Florida are after deer, weighing about 100 pounds and selling at $35 a head. The deer hunting season is about a month and a half. Deer is tasty game but often chopped up and disguised with hamburger for illegal sale.

Alligator poaching has declined since strict federal laws in 1972 which forbid interstate transport of the skins. The gators taken now are usually caught for the edible tails. Wildlife officers also get involved in drug busts.

Sistrunk knows the habitual poachers. The trick is to catch them with the goods.

"It's like a game and I've got to outsmart the other fellow. They'll try everything in the book. They'll even come by my house early in the morning to see if my car is there," Sistrunk says.

But two can play that game. Sistrunk often wakes when a car drives past his house on a little-traveled, dead-end street just off the main road that leads to the glades.

"I'll watch to see if the car's headed to the glades. Then I'll get up and go after them," he says. "Sometimes I get them, sometimes I don't."

When the glades are dry, Sistrunk uses his truck but during rainy season takes the airboat, which can skim across inches of water. He's helped by an airplane, also without lights, about 15 nights a month.

There is a skill to driving more than 100 miles a night along canals and around cypress trees. But Sistrunk, a native Floridian, has been on patrol the past 12 years and talks of levees as a city driver discusses interstates.

"Hunters have to use a light to shoot by so we could see them long before they could hear us," he says. "I sometimes drive all night without ever turning my lights on. There are stumps but you learn where they are."

Sistrunk, a powerfully built man, says he's been shot at once. He wasn't hit.

But there have been other tough ones. "I could have drowned fighting one guy to get the skins he threw into a canal," he says. "We were both big and it took me awhile to subdue him."

Another time, Sistrunk says he roared up and down Alligator Alley in a 100-mile-an-hour chase. "We kept ramming each other, spinning around and going the other way. Both cars were wrecked," he says.

Sistrunk says an airboat chase can also go to speeds of 100 miles an hour if a man has the guts to drive it that fast.

"There was one group who threw out their back seat to try to wreck my car," he says. Others put large rocks in the road or chain a gate to slow him down.

But sometimes Sistrunk fishes while he waits for a poacher. There are even some nights when he stops off at a cabin to eat and watch television.

Advise Growers Designate Early

Flue-cured tobacco growers are now in the process of designating the warehouses where they will market their 1974 crop according to Stacy J. Evans, Pitt County executive director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

He said that even though the sign-up will continue through June 14, all growers are encouraged to designate early.

"A great deal of paper work has to be done by local ASCS offices and Flue-Cured Stabilization Corporation after farmers designate. ASCS offices will furnish Flue-Cured Stabilization a list of all growers and the poundage to be sold at each warehouse. They will then compile a composite list of growers and the poundage to be marketed at each warehouse. These lists are then furnished to each warehouse and to the marketing committee," Evans said.

Evans said that this new program was initiated in the hope of making the marketing more orderly and equitable for all growers. With markets opening in late July the sooner the composite lists can be made available the smoother this year's market should operate.

All growers are urged by Evans to make their designations as soon as possible. He concluded by saying that early designations will certainly increase the chances of success of this new system of marketing.

Law Applies To Buyer, Seller

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — The Louisiana Senate has decided that a man is just as guilty as a woman if he pays for her sexual favors.

By a 32-5 vote, the Senate approved a bill to make the state prostitution law apply to both the buyer and the seller.

The measure now goes to the House for action.

BACK TO LIFE—Victor Solow, 56, producer of documentary films, gestures in his Mamaroneck home as he talks of his experience of being dead for 23 minutes after suffering a heart attack. At 10:52 a.m. on March 23 he collapsed of a heart attack while driving his car. For the next 23 minutes until 11:15 a.m. when his body was jolted by electric shocks at United Hospital in Port Chester, N.Y., Solow had no measurable pulse, no heart activity and no vital signs. The 'chemistry' is there for him, but not for her

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I never thought a successful businessman would have to write to Dear Abby for advice, but here I am with the rest of the schnooks.

I am a 56-year-old Southern gentleman who lost his wife a year ago. [No children.] I put my house on the market and fell in love with the real estate agent. She's a sophisticated, 42-year-old divorcee who can turn me on with a look. I knew she was for me an hour after I met her.

I took her to New York, and we stayed at the best hotel [separate rooms]. We saw five Broadway shows in as many nights and had a wonderful time. I took her to a jewelry store, hoping she would pick out some rings, but she ended up with a diamond wrist watch instead.

All the time I wined and dined her I never laid a hand on her because I wanted her to know I was a real Southern gentleman whose intentions were strictly honorable.

When we got home, she told me she couldn't marry me because the "chemistry" wasn't right. [Now what the heck does that mean?] She returned the watch and asked me not to call her anymore. Abby, I love this woman. How can I win her over? VIRGINIAN

DEAR VIRGINIAN: You can't. The lady is looking for sky rockets, Roman candles, gypsy violins and goose bumps. In other words, YOU don't turn HER on. Don't waste precious time brooding. You have a lot going for you, so get going.

DEAR ABBY: After being married to Dudley for 30 years I suppose I should accept the fact that he isn't the most demonstrative man in the world, but something has come up that bothers me.

A few months ago we got a dog, and since then nothing has been the same around here. Dudley calls the dog all the pet names he used to call me. He even pats the dog on the same spot he used to pat me.

Abby, I need a little affection, too, but I am being ignored. When I complained, Dudley said: "Don't tell me you are jealous of a dog?"

Well, I am, and I'm not kidding. Any suggestions? SECOND FIDDLE

DEAR SECOND: Put up a howl and ask Dudley to please treat you like a dog. And if he refuses, bite him in the leg.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Energy Crisis Said Exploited

HOUSTON (UPI) — The president of the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association says Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash. is exploiting the energy crisis to further his own political career.

Kenneth E. Montague said Jackson's recommendations for a rollback on the price of crude oil is not going to help solve the energy problem.

"The oil and gas consumers of this country will be outraged when they realize their supplies are being sacrificed for the political ambitions of Sen. Henry Jackson," Montague said.

Nine Scrapbooks On POW Story

EARLHAM, Iowa (UPI) — A collection of scrapbooks kept by the mother of the state's first prisoner of war captured in Vietnam has baen turned over to researchers.

Mrs. Myra Spencer, mother of Navy Lt. Larry Spencer, donated nine volumes of her scrapbook collection of the Center of Prisoner of War Studies. Between the time her son was captured in February, 1966, and released in February, 1973, Mrs. Spencer catalogued hundreds of clippings about the war and efforts to free the POWs.

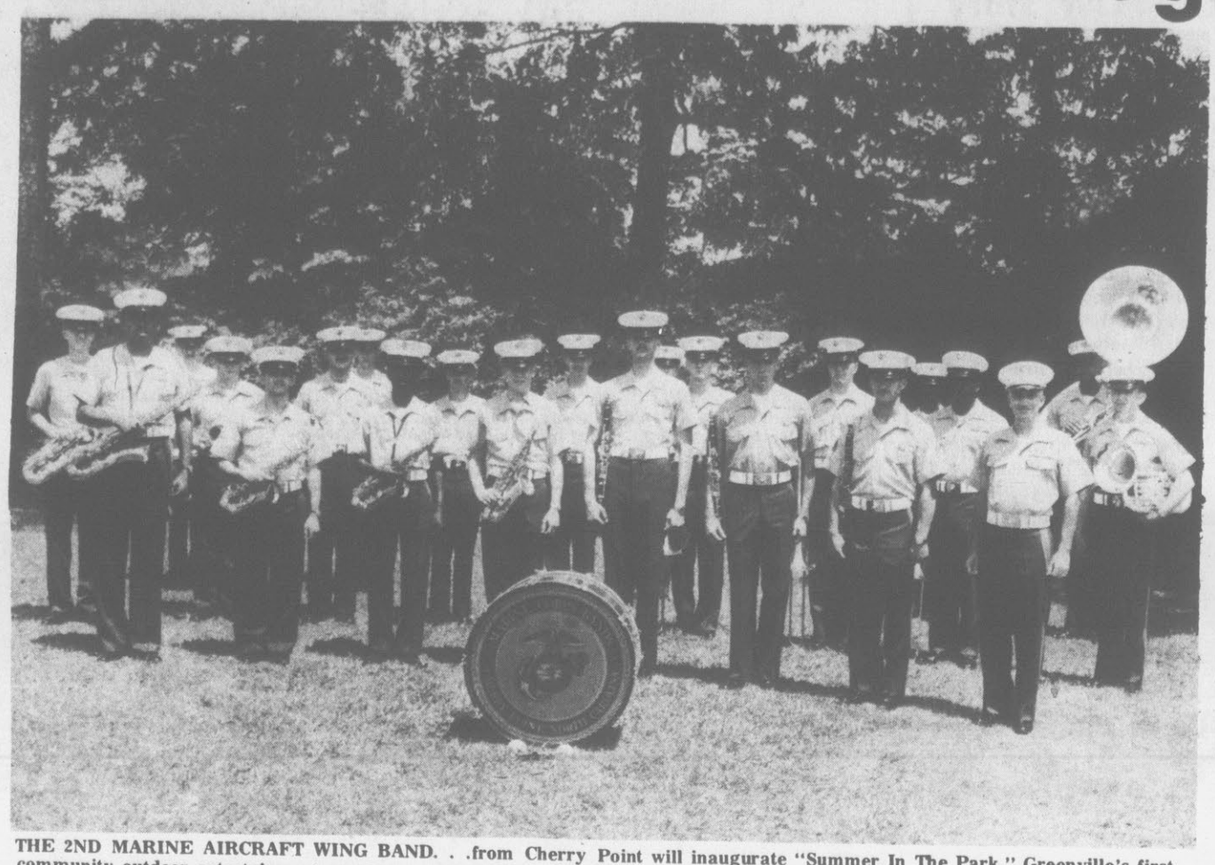
Marine Band To Inaugurate Summer Program



THE 2ND MARINE AIRCRAFT WING BAND. . .from Cherry Point will inaugurate "Summer In The Park," Greenville's first community outdoor entertainment program The hour of performance will be announced in this newspaper at a later date. (Photo from Public Affairs Office, Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point.)

The 2nd Marine Aircraft Wing Band is coming to Greenville on Sunday, June 16, to inaugurate the "Summer In The Park" program, a new community outdoor entertainment venture for Greenville.

The band, currently under the direction of 2nd Lieutenant Jesse O. Sunderland, is now in its 31st year. It was organized in the World War II year of 1943 in the Pacific Theater of Operations.

Based at the Marine Corps Air Station in Cherry Point since 1946, the 2nd Marine Aircraft Wing Band has performed in 28 states and has given concerts in Canada, Mexico and the Caribbean area.

Well known for its musical versatility, the band in concert plays music ranging from martial to classical, from popular tunes to the latest in contemporary styles.

For its role in fulfilling innumerable and varied commitments throughout the eastern United States and in Mexico for the period December 1, 1970 to November 29, 1972, the 2nd Marine Aircraft Wing Band was awarded the Meritorious Unit Commendation for meritorious service. Only two other Marine bands have received this honor.

The band's repertoir is a broad one, with more than 2,000 selections.

The public, including children, is invited to attend the June 16 performance. There is no admission charge.

Teen-Age Emotions In Literary Outlet

Insights. By students of Rose High School. Greenville, N.C. (Morgan Printers), 1974. Paper, 28 pps (unnumbered). 65 cents.

Each year since students at Rose High first published a literary annual, the annual edition of Insights has become a looked forward to event by students and also by people of the community.

In this small literary effort are the usual emotions and dreams of young people, for the most part expressed in the same vein made in past years by other generations. Now and then a student strikes a new note, or comes forth with a refreshingly different angle to age old bittersweet beginnings of longings or doubts.

In a brief five line poem, entitled Love, for example, Janet Crockett draws a sharp image and raises a haunting possibility:

"Love is like hunting,
dinosaurs,
Knowing there are none,
Just an endless search
For the real thing."

Imagination runs riot in a three chapter short short story by Bob Higgins. Consider Chapter 3, quoted here in its entirety: "I was aroused by a pink scoundrel sniffing my ears. I was in my boudoir. My wall was lined with fire hydrants. A train came through. A barrel floated by. Someone passed a joint. Someone needed an Alka-Seltzer. A damsel in distress screamed as Sir Lancelot rode by. A balloon deflated.

"They crowned me king of the numbskulls. I cried, I laughed. Someone handed me a steel bar to rule with. It was of the variety used to crack skulls with. But what about the train?" (It would be unfair to provide a clue to preceding chapters, including Chapter Two and One-Half.

Not all the contributions, (prose or poetry), by any means measure up to the two cited here. Many are burdened with the "I Am Me" theme so pervasive of creative writing by youngsters in this age group. Death—poetic death, allegorical death; the pain of love lost are, expectedly, a staple part of the literary diet in Insights.

Some 30 black and white line drawings (Insights is printed on a pinkish cream paper) are scattered throughout the publication. Here, as in the literary efforts, the spectrum varies widely. Some are no more than attractive squiggles. Fritz Coggins' half page drawing of a woman's head against a dappled cubist background and Elaine Nichols' bold back cover drawing are admirable example of student art.

Insights is the once a year opportunity to get honest insights into the way teenagers express themselves. There's more than enough pure reading pleasure to justify the minimum cost of this literary keepsake. All who had part in any way are to be commended for continuing a fine local creative effort.

Jerry Raynor

Male Companionship Theme Dominates Film Making

EDITOR'S NOTE — Movie love stories have changed. Now it's male companionship that's big box office rather than boy-meets-girl. One reason: The moneymaking stars in today's movie world are mostly men.

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

Reynolds was making a wry comment on a fact of movie life in the 1970s: that male companionship is a more prominent theme than male-female relationships.

Reynolds himself starred in one of the most notable examples, "Deliverance," in which four men canoed down a raging river to reassert their manhood.

"The Sting," voted by the Motion Picture Academy as the best film of 1973, spotlighted the trend. Newman and Redford were portrayed as a couple of scamps pulling off a mammoth con game with the zest of a couple of teenagers playing one-on-one basketball.

Their female companion was a warm-hearted hooker who served them beers.

The two stars also enjoyed enormous success with the 1969 "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid," in which they shot their way into banks, baggage cars and the hearts of filmgoers as a pair of whimsical desperados.

The "boy-meets-boy" or buddy picture has become the most significant trend in today's film industry. The reasons are financial, social and perhaps psychological.

Finances come first. The fact is that such films as "Butch Cassidy," "Midnight Cowboy," "MASH," "Easy Rider," "The Odd Couple," "The Sting," "Deliverance" and others based on male relationships have been enormously successful. Producers are notorious for seeking to repeat success.

Also, the moneymaking stars in today's movie world are largely male. "Who are the big stars?" muses director Mark Robson. "Paul Newman, Steve McQueen, Robert Redford, Dustin Hoffman. So you try to get two of them in one film."

Actress Kathleen Nolan believes that woman are relegated to being "the victim or the whore" in films because of the early militancy in the women's movement.

Miss Nolan, a Screen Actors Guild vice president and leader of the Guild's Women's Conference Committee, observed, "We are suffering the backlash of the excesses of women's lib in the 1960s. I think it is because of the inherent fear of change, the fear of losing control on the part of the male."

The frustration of film actresses was expressed by Glenda Jackson after she won her Oscar for "A Touch of Class." She remarked that she might retire from the screen because there are so few good roles for women.

Charlton Heston pointed out that his kind of epics seldom calls for important female roles: "There's not much a woman can contribute when you are assaulting Valencia, acting as President of the United States or defending Khartoum.

The men who make films are inclined to minimize the trend. Says Billy Wilder, director of "The Front Page": "This is a long, long tradition in the American film. The greatest love team in the history of Hollywood was Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy."

Psychologists might find some indications of homosexuality in the films. "The Super Cops" is one of a rash of movies dealing with male companions on both sides of the law: "Cops and Robbers," "Hot Rock," "Mean Streets," "Busting," etc. The two cops, Ron Leibman and Davis Selby, talk about meeting a couple of girls, but their dates are never seen. The two men show their affection for each other by an occasional grasp of the shoulder.

Psychology professor Scott Fraser of the University of Southern California admitted the Freudians might find homosexuality in the films. Fraser does not.

"I think they reflect a more enlightened attitude that accepts the fact that men can form a close relationship without any sexual connotation," he says. "This has been a recent development in America.

"We still don't kiss and embrace, as Frenchmen do, but now male friendships are less susceptible to suspicion. That's healthy."

"When I made 'Midnight Cowboy,' I didn't consider it in terms of starting a trend," says British-born John Schlesinger. Nor does he see any undertones of homosexuality: "Basically it was a human story about need. Such stories transcend sex."

ECU Senior Art Student Shannon McBride

A New Mushroom Show

Right in the middle of Shannon McBride's exhibit of prints that form the current show at The Mushroom Gallery is an intriguing little literary tale that perhaps indicates the artist also has a gift for writing.

This brief literary effort in a sense ties in with her print—at least indirectly. As her senior art thesis, the Washington, D.C. resident has based a portfolio of lithographs on J. R. R. Tolkien's super-imaginative Lord of the Rings trilogy. In the prints based on Tolkien's work, she has captured something of the strange world the author evokes, although her pictorial allusions seem a bit soft and over dreamy.

I find the non-Tolkien based prints more revealing—stronger, with more tension and visual impact.

Two or three bi-metal lithographs are particularly promising works. One print with a fine composition is entitled "Me and My Apples," (in which the female figure holds a basket void of apples).

A native of Iowa City, Iowa, Miss McBride has been at the ECU School of Art for four years. She has studied with Donald Sexauer and Gerald Johnson, among others.

"I'm oriented more toward drawing than anything else," She said when asked why she had chosen ECU for her art training. "The printmaking department here is really so good, and it's closer than anything else to what I really felt I needed when I started studying."

Miss McBride's show will be on view through the end of May.

Open House At EEii's Today

Two Hyde County art teachers and one art student will be featured in the new exhibit to open today at EEii's little KORNER of the world in Belhaven. A reception for the public will be held beginning at one and lasting until five in the afternoon.

Joe Cashwell cna Candy Melson are both art teachers in the Hyde County schools. The third member of the exhibiting team is Pat Howard, a rising senior at Mattamuskeet High School.

Laurinburg native Cashwell is a graduate of Appalachian State University at Boone. Work he is exhibiting includes fabrics, sculpture, ceramics and printmaking.

Miss Melson, Chapel Hill native, is a graduate of UNC who has studied radio, television, and film production as well as art. She will display a variety of items in the EEii show.

Writers Meet On Tuesday

The second meeting of the Greenville Writers Club for the month of May will be held Tuesday, at 8:00 p.m. at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Steele, 104 Avon Lane.

All persons interested in creative writing are invited to attend. Manuscripts are read and discussed at these meetings.

The Aycock Spring Show

CRAFTS AND MOSAIC DISPLAY. . .from the current annual Aycock Junior High School Art Show now on view at the Greenville Art Center.

The annual spring Junior High School exhibit of art now on view at the Greenville Art Center is full of surprises, all good ones. First off, it's unusually well arranged and hung; and important to a student show, immaculately labeled. A second good point is the fine balance between individual student work and group work. This method allows viewers to see the creativeness of individual students and the happy results that can also be achieved when several hands work on one joint project.

The junior high annual is displayed in the three sections of the south gallery. Crafts, drawings, collages, moasics, mixed media, watercolor, acrylic, other mixed media are represented, in black and white and in color. A few pieces are also hung in the central hallway.

Aycock students of the seventh, eighth and ninth grade are represented in this show. Teachers in the Aycock Art Department are Mrs. Marsha Eakes, Bob Karl, and Mrs. Ella Mallenbaum. These three prepared the exhibit and were assisted by Mrs. Vivian Selby and Renee Laughinghouse, who have both taught additional art classes this year.

This show will be on view until early in June. The Aycock show is the last opportunity before school is out for the summer for those delighted by children's art to see some excellent examples.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By LOUISE WILKERSON

Sheppard Library has several new romantic and suspense novels to enrich summer reading.

Rosy Chabbert's LEONELLA is the story of the youngest daughter of an impoverished Venetian duke. As the story begins she is anticipating what will happen to her if she is caught climbing back into the palazzo from the gondola in the stormy night. There will be the beating by her half-mad drunken father and his sadistic servant-mistress. Yet she is not fearful for clutched to her are the lire and address of the romatic American painter who has promised to return for her in six months. As the gondola nears the palazzo, there is a burst from the sky and the gondola crashes into the canal. Thus begins the amorous adventures of an enchanting heroine who lets her newfound freedom go to her head.

What Harry Mitchell least expected, as he entered the darkened room was the perverted version of This Is Your Life on a home movie screen starring pillar of the community Harry himself and a beautiful, golden haired girl named Cini. The movie, produced and presented by a trio of psychopaths, is for sale at the new low price of $150,000 payable now, otherwise world wide distribution. What the unholy three, the porno flick dealer, the trigger happy cokehead, and the vodka swilling boss of a nude model joint, never expected was a mark who'd come on strong. For Harry Mitchell was a tough, self-made man. He had gone from assembly line to ownership of a multi-million dollar company, had a wife and children he loved, and was not about to lose everything to three punks with a blackmail scheme, even after that scheme turned to murder. FIFTY TWO PICK UP by Elmore Leonard is the Delacorte suspense novel of the year.

Ethel Gordon's newest novel THE BIRDWATCHER is a suspense filled story of murder, political intrigue and star-crossed love. When Lisette's fiance dies in Vietnam she abruptly quits her top secret defense job in the midst of chaos over the disappearance of highly confidential military notes. She flees to Scotland to the ancient house of a beloved cousin Irene and her millionaire husband only to intercept danger. For there are spies and observors every-where and whether they are watching Lisette and looking for the military notes or hired by Irene's husband to punish her for her promiscuity, remains to be seen. Though there is another house guest, a young man invited to help console Lisette, it is Irene's millionaire husband who she is attracted to. As the quartet works out their entangled destinies a murder occurs and the mounting dangers culminate in an attempt at live burial.

The newest in the "Marianne" series by Juliette Benzoni is MARIANNE AND THE PRIVATEER. The two previous novels have been read by millions who thrilled to the story of the woman who won the heart of the Emporer Napoleon Bonaparte. Now returned to Paris as the Princess Sant'Anna she finds Napoleon settled in bourgeois comfort with Maria Theresa. At a festive ball attended by all of imperial society she meets again the American sea captain to whom Marianne's first husband lost her fortune and virginity at cards. She renews her former relationship with the adventurous privateer but a malevolent plot threatens both of them and when justice finally does strike, it threatens to destroy their love along with their enemies.

— A Review —

The Wine Of Astonishment by Rachel MacKenzie. New York, 1974, The Viking Press. 154 pages, $5.95.

Take the second decade of the 20th century—a nostalgic time when women waved their hair and wakes were held in the home, add two unmarried sisters whose widowed domineering mother has just died, and Rachel MacKenzie's novel, The Wine Of Astonishment begins to unfold.

The story begins when Emmeline Henderson, an autocratic matriarch residing in the small town of Pliny Falls, New York, dies abruptly of a stroke. She leaves behind the family business and the town's only industry, the Henderson Preserving Company, and two spinster daughters, Martha and Esther, ages 32 and 29 respectively.

Under their mother's oppressive guardianship, the Henderson girls lived a sheltered and restricted life. At her death, they find they are shy, withdrawn, and a bit frightened of the world about them. Eventually, with the gentle persuasion of David Rathbone, the bachelor pastor of the First Presbyterian Church where Martha and Esther worship, and their good neighbors, Oliver and Lucy Bradley, the sisters break through the shackles of their warped upbringing and begin to explore the new mode of living into which their mother's death has plunged them. Gradually they grow into an awareness of themselves as individuals and are then able to experiment with reality—to touch and be touched by all the intricacies that weave the bittersweet pattern of life.

Martha, who has played the organ at the church for years, becomes increasingly conscious of the presence of David Rathbone and begins to invite him to Sunday dinner. At church services one Sunday morning, Esther sings a solo which more than inspires Oliver Bradley. So begins what at first is a harmless flirtation between Oliver and Esther.

Martha is disturbed when she discovers that her high-spirited sister is attracted to a married man. When the romance appears to grow serious, the good folk of Pliny Falls begin to gossip. Oliver's wife, Lucy develops dark circles under her eyes, and Pastor Rathbone decides to preach on the topic of the Christian Home.

By the time the congregation has heard a sermon on "The Sacrament of Marriage" and "The Sanctity of the Family", more than one upstanding citizen walks away smarting with guilt and self-righteous indignation.

Out of these unsettling consequences comes despair for David Rathbone. He concludes that he has failed his congregation. He decides to resign and leave Pliny Falls. Martha realizes in her level-headed way that their relationship will never go beyond the courting stage and she and David part miserably with that silent understanding. Esther, however, firmly believes that she and Oliver were meant to be together. She becomes unyielding in her desire to marry him.

Lucy Bradley painfully consents to a divorce. Taking their two boys, she goes to Reno. When the divorce is final, Oliver and Esther marry immediately. They return from their honeymoon to live in the spacious Henderson home. Oliver, who before, had been an insurance salesman, is promptly given 25 shares of Henderson Company stock and a position as office manager.

Harmony in the household lasts only for a very brief period; Oliver, Esther and Martha struggle with trials and disappointments.

The author provides astute insights into the characters in her book. When marital disputes continue between Oliver and Esther, the reader knows intuitively that trouble is not far ahead. Indeed, the author clearly shows that a marriage based on such a tenuous foundation as physical attraction is, most often doomed.

The Wine Of Astonishment is fine reading. It is a book about reasonably normal people and their reaction to the positive and negative integrants of life. This reveiwer believes that a work of fiction, if it is to have any lasting value at all, should focus, at least in part, on this precept.

Satterfield Chalice Purchased

East Carolina University artist John Satterfield has received word that a ten inch chalice made by him has been purchased from the North American Goldsmith Exhibition that opened May 17, in the Renwick Gallery of the National Collection of Fine Arts, Smithsonian Institute in Washington.

The chalice, of copper, forged electroplated in gold and with electroformed textural surface, was one of 113 works chosen from among 738 entries nationally for inclusion in the biennial exhibiton.

The National Goldsmith Exhibition is presented in conjunction with the Minnesota Museum of Art and the Society of North American Goldsmiths. It will remain on view at the Renwick Gallery (Pennsylvania and 17th Streets) until August 18 The exhibition will travel to other places in the U.S. for a period of two years.

Green's 70 Keeps Him In Memphis Lead

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

MEMPHIS (AP) — Hubert Green won't be playing it close to the vest in Sunday's final round of the $175,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic.

"Three strokes isn't enough," the young man said after establishing that much leading margin with a two-under-par 70 in Saturday's third round.

"I want to bust out early tomorrow, maybe get a whole lot in front. I'm not saying I'm gonna do it, but I'm gonna try.

"Three strokes is one better than I was starting the round. But it isn't much. If I make bogey and somebody else makes birdie, then all of a sudden it's pretty tight.

"I'm gonna try to gamble a little bit from time to time, try to get a lot in front.

"I'm gonna play my best. If it's good enough, I'll win. If it's not good enough, someone else will win."

Green, already the winner of some $103,000 this season, put together a 54-hole total of 202, 14 under par on the 7,1993-yard Colonial Country Club Course and within one stroke of the best three-round totals of the year on the pro tour.

Lou Graham and Bob Wynn came on to tie for second at 205. Graham, a native Tennesseean and a great favorite with the huge gallery, fashioned a five-under-par 67, while the longshot Wynn—a nonwinner in five years on the tour—had a 69.

Masters champion Gary Player shot himself back into contention with a 69 and a 206 total, just four strokes behind going into the last round of the chase for a $35,000 first prize.

He was tied with tour regular Don Bies, who had the day's best round, a 66.

Rod Curl, the little Wintu Indian who scored a surprise triumph last week in Forth Worth, Tex., and Tom Watson drifted back. They were tied for second, two shots back of Green, when play started in mild, cloudy weather, but Watson went to a 74-208 and Curl a 75 for 209.

Dave Hill, the defending champion and a four-time winner of this tournament, made one move at the leaders, going four strokes under par after six holes. But he couldn't keep it going and finished with a 70-210. Lee Trevino had a 69-213 and is 11 shots back.

Many of the game's premier attractions—Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller, Tom Weiskopf and Arnold Palmer—are skipping this tournament that is sandwiched in between two "designated tournaments," events in which they are required to compete.

Their absence, however, seemed to work no ill effects on the size of the gallery. The crowd was announced at 36,000, one of the largest of the year.

Green, who took the lead in Friday's second round, never trailed and was never caught.

He parred the first six holes he played, birdied the par five seventh, then parred around to the 16th, another par five.

He was hole high in two, hit a beautiful little chip to within two feet of the flag and made the putt. That gave him a four-shot lead, and, with another par five coming up, it looked as if he was preparing to run off and hide from the rest of the field.

But he bogeyed the tough 175h, three-putting from a long distance, and had to settle for a par five on the finishing hole after driving into the rough.

DOUBLE STEAL—Baltimore Orioles Mark Belanger slides for third base as New York Yankees Graig Nettles takes catcher Thurman's Munsons's throw in third inning. Belanger beat the tag, as Paul Blair made second base on the double steal.

Briggs Carries Brewers

BOSTON (AP) — Johnny Briggs drove in four runs with his 10th and 11th homers of the season and the Milwaukee Brewers defeated Boston 9-2 Saturday, snapping the Red Sox' six-game winning streak and regaining first place in the American League's East Division.

Briggs belted a two-run homer into the bullpen in right-center against Boston starter Reggie Cleveland, 2-5, in the first inning and hoisted another two-run shot into the left field screen off Rogelio Moret in the sixth.

Pedro Garcia accounted for two more runs with his sixth homer, a two-run shot off Moret in the seventh.

The Brewers, who were knocked out of the division lead by the Red Sox Friday night, jumped to a 5-0 lead in shelling Cleveland in the second inning and were in command all the way behind Clyde Wright, 5-5.

Milwaukee jumped on Cleveland for three runs in the second inning. Robin Yount singled with two out and Don Money and Dave May followed with doubles for two runs. George Scott then delivered the first of his three hits, a single that scored May.

Phillies 4, Expos 3

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Greg Luzinksi drilled a three-run homer in the eighth inning, powering the Philadelphia Phillies to a 4-3 victory over the Montreal Expos in the first game of a twinight doubleheader Saturday.

Dave Cash opened the Philadelphia rally with a single and moved to second on Larry Bowa's single.

Johnson's First Beats Minnesota

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Alex Johnson's first home run of the season, a two-run shot in the eighth inning, helped the Texas Rangers to a 4-3 victory over the Minnesota Twins Saturday.

Toby Harrah opened the eighth with a single, the eighth hit off loser Vic Albury, 2-2, and Johnson followed with his homer, putting Texas on top 3-2. Jeff Burroughs' single chased Albury in favor of Bill Campbell and the Rangers added what proved to be the winning run on a walk and Lenny Randle's single.

Brown, 2-1, was making his first start of the season after seven relief appearances. He left in the eighth after the Twins scored their third run on Jim Holt's infield hit and a triple by Bob Darwin. Steve Foucault retired Steve Brye and Larry Hisle on grounders, leaving the potential tying run stranded at third base.

The Rangers nicked Albury for a run in the first inning when Cesar Tovar led off with a double and took third on an infield out. After Johnson walked, the runners worked a double steal, with Tovar swiping home as he beat the return throw from second baseman Jerry Terrell.

Low Fuel Quotas Make Pits Hazardous

By KAROL STONGER
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Traffic in the pits on race day is going to make the Los Angeles freeways look like they are closed for repairs."

"If there are any accidents this year," said veteran Indianapolis 500 driver Al Unser, "they're going to happen in the pits."

With the fuel load in the low-slung Indy racers limited to 40 gallons for Sunday's start of the 58th Indy 500, each of the 33 cars will average about a half-dozen refueling stops. That means more than 200 trips in and out of an area less than one-half mile long.

"By the time I get ready to go back out there," said Unser, who won here in 1970 and 1971, "I'll be going close to 100 miles an hour.

"If I had my choice, I'd fuel up right on the track."

With two fatal flaming crashes last year and a crewman killed in the pits by a fire truck going against the normal traffic flow, increased safety measures were taken.

The pits have been lengthened by 856 feet, giving each car 10 more feet of "parking space." Emergency vehicles will be stationed at both ends of the area to avoid two-way traffic, and a one-lap penalty will be imposed on any driver whose crewman crosses the pit pavement while his car still is in the race.

Although the U.S. Auto Club set the penalties, Clarence Cagle, grounds superintendent for the last 29 years, was in charge of some $300,000 in improvements in the pits and other areas round 2½ miles of asphalt.

Ahtough Cagle has been busy commanding security and hasn't actually watched a race since 1939, he probably knows the Indianapolis Motor Speedway and its environs better than any man.

Although he considers the improvements in the pits the most advantageous of his year's efforts, he calls the new starter's booth the "gold tower."

"That's because we spent so much overtime getting it built," said the lean, leathery Cagle. "We didn't get the go-ahead until April 16 and we had to have it done by May 6."

Cagle can rattle off the dimensions of the new tower on the outer rim of the track as well as tell which areas of the retaining wall were raised 14 inches, or 16 inches, or whatever, so the cars won't be as likely to jump the track and barrel into the stands. He points with pride to what he calls "black grass," rough asphalt that replaced the grassy infield area near the fourth turn where Swede Savage cracked his car last year.

He also can say, without even thinking, that 2,000 seats, at $25 each, were taken out of the area where fuel from Salt Walther's car sprayed fire last year. They were taken out because spectators couldn't see over the newly-heightened wall, he says, as well as for safety. But he made enemies in the process.

"Older people liked those seats because they didn't have to climb into the stands," he said, "and I'm still getting letters from them complaining that they won't be able to sit there any more."

Although Cagle believes he's learned a lot about safety during his long tenure at Indy, he says nothing he does can assure an accident-free race. Only slower speeds can do that.

"That is a must," he said. "It's something that's got to come. "They've just got to get more mileage out of their fuel."

NCNB, Builders, Dairy Reap Babe Ruth Decisions

day, Home Builders beat Pepsi, 9-1. The Builders got all they needed in the first as Joe Godette reached on an outfield error letting him go to second. Mark Conway walked. An error let Godette score and Conway scored on a passed ball.

Home Builders added three each in the fourth and fifth innings.

Billy Ellington scored the only Pepsi run in the second as he walked, stole second, took third on an out and scored on a passed ball.

NCNB breezed past Planters in the second game by a whopping 17-4. NCNB kept Planters from scoring in the top of the first after Planters had moved a man around to third. In the bottom of the inning, NCNB pushed over four runs. Doug Selby, Howard Vainwright, Dave Middleton and Joel Clark all walked forcing in the first run as Selby scored. A walk to David Phillips scored Vainwright. Middleton was singled in and Clark scored when Jessie Baker walked.

NCNB put up seven more in the second. They also added one in the third, two in the fourth and four in the sixth. Planters scored once in the fourth and thrice in the seventh.

College View scored first but caved in as they fell to Carolina Dairy, 10-4.

College View had gone ahead in the third on four runs. Jay Chenier singled as did Mike Sutton. Both stole up and walks to Ross Hawkins and Jeff Aldridge forced in Sutton. Gene Pittmen and Reggie Spain reached on errors letting Hawkins and Aldridge score.

Their lead did not last long, however, as the Dairymen rallied in the bottom of the fourth to win the game.

Sid Ashby and Larry Boyette walked. Bobby Woronoff singled loading the bases and a walk to Darrell Roebuck forced in Ashby. Ricky Robinson walked and Woronoff scored on a passed ball, Roebuck stole home. A wild pitch scored Robinson. Steve McClanahan walked, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and was singled home by John Coffman.

Boyette had two hits for CD.

In Friday night's games, Home Builders beat NCNB, 2-1, on a homer by Wright Hooks, and Carolina Dairy edged Planters, 7-5, scoring two runs in the seventh to break a 5-5 deadlock.

Exchange Holds On For 10-8 Win

Exchange rallied for five runs in the top of the fifth inning yesterday to take a 10-8 win over the Graniteers in the Tar Heel Little League.

The lead never settled with one team until the fifth. Exchange got a 2-0 lead in the first. Gordon Douglas walked and Charles Daise was hit by a pitch. Both moved up on a wild pitch and a second wild pitch scored Douglas, Daise scored on a ground out.

The Graniteers got six walks in the bottom of the first and were able to go ahead, 4-2. Jeff James drew a pass as did Jamie Byrd. Both advanced on a wild pitch and Stuart Sattherthwaite walked to load the bases.

Lance Searle walked in James and an error on Mike James' ground ball let Byrd and Satterthwaite score. Mike Moye and Mike Tucker were walked forcing in Searle.

Allen Clark singled and scored on an error after advancing on an out and a passed ball to cut the lead to 4-3 in the second. Exchange then went back intothe lead in the third on home runs by Steve Irwin and John Williams.

The Graniteers slipped in front again as they got four runs in the third. Searle walked and went to second as Mike James reached on a fielder's choice. After Moye walked, a balk let Searle score. Jeff James waled and an error scored Mike James. Garrett Young doubled in James and Moye.

The Exchange had not given up yet and struck for five in the sixth to win the game. Eddie Moye got a hit and Mark Douglas singled. A hit by Charles Daise drove in Moye and an error to Al Shackleford scored Douglas. Irwin hit into a fielder's choice that got Daise. Williams singled to drive in Shackleford and Williams walked. Irwin scored on an error and Williams on a hit by Moye.

Williams and Moye had two hits each for Exchange while the Graniteers got only two.

Horton's Blast Gives Tigers Win

DETROIT (AP) — Willie Horton's three-run homer in the eighth inning lifted the Detroit Tigers to a 5-4 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday.

Horton's 12th home run of the season came off reliever Fred Beene following singles by Mickey Stanley and Al Kaline. It wiped out a 4-2 Cleveland lead on Charlie Spikes' two-run homer in the top of the eighth.

Oscar Gamble opened the Cleveland eighth with a single off reliever Luke Walker and Spikes hit his sixth home run of the season, However, Horton's blow made a winner of Walker, his first American League decision.

Detroit took a 1-0 lead against Bob Johnson in the first inning on singles by Stanley and Kaline around a balk by Johnson. The Indians scored off Lerrin LaGrow in the second on a single by John Ellis, a pair of infield outs and Leron Lee's single.

The Tigers moved back in front with a run in the fourth in Norm Cash's single, a error by right fielder Spikes, a wild pitch and Ed Brinkman's single off Johnson's glove. The Indians tied it again in the fifth on singles by Jack Brohamer and John Lowenstein, an error by right fielder Jim Northrup and a wild pitch.

Coltrain, Keel Multi-Winners

There were four double winners and two triple winners among the participants in Saturday's Junior Olympics for boys and girls 13 and under.

In the nine and under age group, Bethel's Lu Anne Keel was the winner of a pair of events, taking firsts in the 880 and the mile. In the boys division, Keith Coltrain, also of Bethel, won the 880 and the mile and ran a leg of the winning 440 relay team.

In that same age group, Chuck Higgs of Jacksonville Catholic School won the 100, 220 and the 440 yard dashes.

Karen Tottle of Morehead City won both the 220 and the long jump in the girl's 10-11 group. In the nine and under group, Lorma Hicks of Jacksonville Catholic won the 220, 440 and mile walk. Beaufort's Anne Ward won the 100 and the 220 in the 12-13 group.

Lions Slaughter Coke By 17-4

Riding nine hits and 11 walks, The Lions rolled to a 17-4 win over Coke handing Coke their sixth loss of the year in the North State League. The Lions are 5-1, one game out of first place.

The Lions got rolling in the first as Roger Williams walked an Krage Gardiner singled both scored on Peter Pace's home run.

Scott Galloway got a hit in the second for the Lions opening the inning. He took second on a passed ball went to third on an error and stole home.

The Lions added three in the fifth and two in the sixth.

Coke scored all its runs in the sixth. Lee Hardee singled and George Wilkerson was safe on an error. Chuck Allen loaded the bases drawing a walk and a walk to Barry Tyson forced in Hardee. Walks to Billy Branagan, Rick Hardee and Mark Jones forced in the other three runs.

Gardiner, Pace, Collier and Galloway all had two hits for the Lions.

Dodgers Shrink Giants, 9-5

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bill Russell's three-run homer capped a six-run first inning and the Los Angeles Dodgers ended a brief two-game slump by routing the San Francisco Giants 9-5 Saturday.

Rick Auerbach and Steve Garvey also homered for the Dodgers while Tommy John, 7-1, hurled a seven-hitter.

Auerbach, leading off the first inning against loser Ron Bryant, 1-4, was safe on a throwing error by third baseman Steve Ontiveros. Tom Paciorek and Jimmy Wynn followed with singles, but Auerbach was cut down at the plate on a throw from left fielder Gary Matthews.

But Garvey, who hit his 11th homer of the season in the seventh inning, knocked in the first run with a double, Joe Ferguson walked to load the bases and Ron Cey's ground-rule double made it 3-0.

Ferguson was nailed at the plate on Willie Crawford's grounder to first baseman Dave Kingman, but Russell hit Bryant's next pitch over the left field fence for his fourth homer of the season.

John retired 12 of the first 13 Giant batters before singles by Matthews and Kingman and Chris Speier's two-run double ruined his shutout bid in the fifth.

By winning the first two games of the four-game series, the Giants had climbed to within seven games of the front-running Dodgers. Saturday's loss dropped them eight games back.

Playoffs Down To Three Teams

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP)— Defending regional champion Georgia Southern won its second consecutive game after a first-round loss, defeating Southeastern Conference champion Vanderbilt 5-3 Saturday afternoon in the NCAA Dist. III baseball tournament.

Coach Ron Polk's seventh-ranked Eagles return to action Saturday night, playing the loser of the Miami-South Carolina contest.

Miami and South Carolina were both undefeated, heading into their Saturday evening game.

With Vanderbilt's loss, the tournament's three conference champions have all been eliminated, leaving the three nationally ranked teams to fight for the regional championship and a berth in the college world series in Omaha, Neb., next month.

Right hander Barry Beck, 8-3, was credited with the victory.

Georgia Southern scored two runs in the second inning with Mike Cash scoring on a wild pitch while shortstop Rick Toth drove in the other run.

The Eagles scored their other three runs in the fifth, with two men scoring on first baseman Carl Person's triple to right field. Jim Morrison drove in Person on a double.

Vandy scored in the second inning on an error, and got its second run in the fourth on Gene Menees's single, scoring Steve Chandler. Rick Duncan's two-out single in the seventh drove in Ted Shipley.

The victory boosted Georgia Southern to 47-13, while Vandy finished with a 37-22 record.

Pirates Eliminated From Tourney By USC

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

STARKVILLE, Miss.—South Carolina, one of the co-favorites in the NCAA District III Playoffs, sent East Carolina University home Friday night, handing the Bucs their second straight loss, 5-1.

The Pirates, with nothing to be ashamed of, just couldn't counter the tough play of the Gamecocks, fourth-ranked in the nation, with a much better program.

East Carolina losts its opener in the tournament to SEC champion Vanderbilt, in a 2-1 game Thursday, and many observers felt that the better team in that game lost.

first team eliminated from the field. After bowing 9-0 to South Carolina on Thursday, the ACC champ fell to Georgia Southern 6-1, in the first game.

Friday night's third game went unbeaten Miami against Vanderbilt. The winner of that game would play South Carolina, while the loser struggles with Georgia Southern to remain alive in the loser's bracket. Saturday's schedule was such that one team, the one to remain unbeaten, would play one contest, while two teams will be forced to play a doubleheader to decide which one goes into Sunday's tournament finals.

South Carolina, with the nation's number one pitching staff, handed the Bucs only a three-hitter in the game. Greg Ford, who went all the way, fanned 16 Pirates, only one short of the District III record. Two of the hits off him, however, were for extra bases, homer and a double.

Dave LaRussa, the Pirate ace, took the loss, giving up all five runs in four and two-thirds innings. Wayne Bland went the rest of the way, holding the Gamecocks scoreless on two hits.

The Pirates scored first, and enjoyed a lead for an inning and a half. The lone run came when Mike Hogan opened the second inning, riding a 1-1 fast ball over the fence in right center, come 380 feet from home.

They had another fine chance in the fourth, after they had fallen behind, 3-1. Bobby Harrison led off with a single to left, and Ron Staggs followed with a double up the alley in left center. Harrison racing for home from first, wasn't quite fast enough, however, as shortstop Eddie Ford, (son of former Yankee pitcher Whitey Ford), relayed John Cambrell's throw to catcher Drew Choate just in time to catch the sliding runner.

Staggs then died at second. Only once more did the Bucs get a man on far as second. That was in the sixth, when both Charlie Wall and Staggs walked.

South Carolina, meanwhile, got going in the third, scoring three runs after two were out. With two down, Jeff Grantz hit a liner into left. Ford followed with a single to right, moving Grantz to third. On the relay in, Geoff Beaston tried to cut down Ford, who had moved off first, but his throw was off target, and the overthrow let Grantz come on in and moved Ford to second. Hank Small followed with another hit, scoring Ford. He too moved on to second in the relay. Earl Bass, who was three-for-four in the game, came up with another single, driving in Small for the 3-1 lead.

The final run came over in the fifth, Gambrell reached on a fielder's choice with two down. Jim Pankovite followed that with a triple to the fence in right center, making it 5-1.

In the seventh, the Gamecocks got off another threat. Gambrell was hit by a pitch and stole second, but was cut down trying to go to third on Pankovites' infield grounder.

Their final threat came in the eighth. Larry Wojeicki reached on a fielder's choice, and moved up when the ball was overthrown on the double-play attempt. Grantz reached on an error, moving Wojeicki to third, but the Bucs were able to end it there.

The defeat closed out the 1974 season for the Pirates. They ended up with a 17-13 record, with six of their losses coming on one-run decisions.

Cuellar Wins Fifth Game As He Beats New York, 5-1

NEW YORK (AP) — At 37 years old, Mike Cuellar has never felt better. In the last few weeks, he has never looked better.

Off to a bad start this year, Baltimore's pitching "relic" is on the right track these days—and Saturday, won his fifth straight game with a 5-1, two-hit beauty over the New York Yankees.

"I have no explanation for my bad start," said the left-hander. "It's just that balls that were going through the hole before now are being caught. I'm getting better breaks now."

The onetime 20-game winner scoffed at insinuations that he was too old to pitch well.

"I don't worry about my age," said Cuellar. "If you feel good, what does it matter how old you are? I never think about my age."

Cuellar lost the first three games of the season, but has won the last five, all with complete games. Usually a pitcher with an excellent curve, Cuellar relied mainly on his fastball Saturday against New York because the breaking ball wasn't working well.

Cuellar, who dropped his first three decisions, walked four and struck out one. He was scored on in the fifth when Graig Nettles walked and Fernando Gonzalez doubled him home.

Baltimore took a 1-0 lead in the third inning off loser Pat Dobson, 3-7, a former Oriole. Mark Belanger led off with a Baltimore chop single and Blair bounced a single past third base. With one out, the runners pulled a double steal and Belanger scored on Tommy Davis' smash to short.

Blair opened the fifth with his fifth home run of the season and the Orioles made it 3-0 and chased Dobson on singles by Bobby Grich, Earl Williams and Boog Powell. Brooks Robinson's single off reliever Dave Pagan made it 4-0 and Baylor hit his first home run of the season off Pagan in the seventh inning.

The only other hit off Cuellar was Gene Michael's ground single in the third inning, and the veteran left-hander retired the last 14 batters he faced.

By winning, Baltimore edged back into second place in the American League's tight East Division race, one-half game behind Milwaukee.

The Orioles pounded out 14 hits, including doubles by Jim Fuller and Blair. They amassed 10 hits off Dobson in 4 1-3 innings.

The Yankees' only threat other than their scoring inning came in the third when Gonzalez drew a one-out walk and Michael bounced his single up the middle. Cuellar induced Chris Chambliss to bounce into an inning-ending double play.

Drivers, Positions Set For Today's World 600

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Dave Marcis wheeled his Dodge around the Charlotte Motor Speedway on Saturday at 150.732 miles per hour to lead final-day qualifiers for Sunday's World 600 stock car race.

Nineteen drivers vied for the 10 remaining starting positions in the 40-car field with the final qualifiers separated by only 1.4 mph. Marcis, of Skyland, N.C. and Wausau, Wis., took the 31st starting place with his best speed of the day.

J.D. McDuffie, in a Chevrolet, had the second quickest speed of 150.573 around the 1½ mile high banked oval. The remaining qualifying speeds for the $183,000 race ranged between 150.518 for Cecil Gordon in a Dodge and 149.361 for David Sisco, who will start last in a Chevrolet.

The World 600, shortened to 540 miles because of the gasoline shortage, is the longest race on the Grand National Circuit.

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP)—Here is the lineup for Sunday's World 600 stock car race at the Charlotte Motor Speedway with the last 10 qualifiers determined in Saturday's time trials:

Williams Leads Cubs To Win

CHICAGO (AP) — Bill Williams hit his seventh home run of the season and drove in three runs, leading the Chicago Cubs to a 5-4 victory over Bob Gibson and the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday.

The Cubs broke a 2-2 tie in the third inning when Don Kessinger singled and Williams tagged Gibson, 3-4, for his home run. Chicago added what proved to be the winning run in the same inning on a walk to Rick Monday, a stolen base and St. Louis errors by catcher Tim McCarver and shortstop Luis Alvarado.

The Cardinals came back with two runs off winner Bill Bonham in the fifth on singles by Ted Simmons, Bake McBride and Joe Torre and a triple by McCarver after Torre was caught rounding first too far on his single.

World 600 Has Never Seen Petty In Winners Circle

By DICK WATERS
Associated Press Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Richard Petty, who has won more races than any other stock car driver living or dead, has never won the World 600 — the longest event on the Grand National circuit.

Although the 600 will be 60 miles shorter Sunday because of a cutback requested by the Federal Energy Office, the Charlotte Motor Speedway event is still the longest of the year.

The 1½-mile, high-banked oval has become known as Petty's jinx track, especially since Hollywood released the movie "The Richard Petty Story" a couple of years ago. The film, in which Petty starred, built the story line around the fact that the Randleman, N.C., driver had never won at Charlotte.

"Every time I come to Charlotte, I think this is the race I will end all that talk," the 34-year-old superspeedway star said. "And I feel no different this time. All I need is a little luck."

The ironic thing about Petty's plight at Charlotte is that Petty Engineering, headed by Lee and Maurice Petty, Richard's father and brother, and Dale Inman, a cousin, has the second best track record in the 14-year history of the World 600. Petty an Engineering has won three races, second only to Holman-Moody car builders who have scored four 600 triumphs.

The second Petty car won in 1964 with Jim Paschal driving in 1966 with Marvin Panch; and in 1972 with Buddy Baker, winner of the past two 600s.

Hershel McGriff will be piloting the second Petty-built Dodge in this year's race.

Richard hopes to be the one who helps his own team move into a first place tie with Holman-Moody. But he won't be surprised if the other Petty car winds up in the victory lane.

The Petty claim they don't set their cars up any different for the 600 than they do for any other race despite the additional 100 miles.

Lee Petty says there is no secret to winning at Charlotte. "Everyone talks about getting ready for this race or getting ready for that race, but they're missing the point," Lee adds. "You just have to do as much preparation as you can and hope that's good enough."

"Richard was just born into racing," Lee recalled when asked about his son's success. Lee, a three-time national champion, said Richard and Maurice were real close brothers.

"They and their cousin, Dale Inman, Richard's chief mechanic, used to play together in the hills around Level Cross, N.C., all the time. They raced wagons, bicycles, anything they could find that would run," Lee recalled.

Lee said as early as 1960, he could tell Richard was a driver of unusual skill.

"You could see how he moved a car around traffic, how he anticipated what the other fellow was going to do," the elder Petty said. "He had the knack and I think he learned to utilize drafting at Daytona faster than anybody else."

"Now, that was some headache. There I was trying to win a race and at the same time looking out for them. When you're racing with your sons . . . there's a certain amount of anxiety about it. I was always anxious about everyone on the track but when your sons are involved it's different," Lee said.

Despite Richard Petty's jinx at Charlotte Motor Speedway, he's still among the favorites to win this year's $183,000 World 600. His chief challengers should be David Pearson, Bobby and Donnie Allison, Cale Yarborough and Buddy Baker.

Mayberry, Allen Play Strange Friday Roles

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer

John Mayberry a fighter?

Dick Allen a peacemaker?

Unusual roles for both of them, but those were the parts they played Friday night.

Mayberry, Kansas City's usually mild-mannered first baseman known more for his slugging exploits with a bat rather than his fists, surprisingly became incensed when he was struck just below the right knee by a pitch from Chicago White Sox pitcher Stan Bahnsen. The misguided toss came in the third inning, one inning after Mayberry had tagged Bahnsen for a solo homer.

Mayberry then charged toward the mound, after dropping his bat, and tagged Bahnsen with his fists, landing with both hands, as players from both dugouts and bullpens streamed onto the field.

Finally, the controversial Allen, who has been involved in many fights, including a celebrated slugfest with former Philadelphia teammate Frank Thomas, restrained the angry Mayberry. When order was restored after 10 minutes, Mayberry was ejected but Bahnsen was permitted to remain in the game.

But Bahnsen was the loser to in Kansas City's 4-2 victory.

In other American League games, the Boston Red Sox topped the Milwaukee Brewers 5-3, the Minnesota Twins routed the Texas Rangers 9-0, the Cleveland Indians downed the Detroit Tigers 3-1, the Baltimore Orioles beat the New York Yankees 6-3, and the California Angels edged the Oakland A's 4-3.

Mayberry's homer, his ninth of the season, gave Kansas City a 1-0 lead and the Royals went ahead 3-0 just prior to the brawl on Amos Otis' two-run single.

Mayberry was apologetic about charging at Bahnsen and triggering the free-for-all. "I shouldn't have done it," he said. "I'm sorry. I just forgot about the game. It's the first time I've ever done anything like that."

Indians 3, Tigers 1

Fritz Peterson pitched a six-hitter and John Lowenstein drove in two runs, keying Cleveland's victory.

The Tigers wasted the 2,900th hit of Al Kaline's major league career and a sparkling relief performance by Woody Fryman, who allowed only one hit and no runs in six innings.

Red Sox 5, Brewers 3

Home runs by Bernie Carbo and Juan Beniquez paced Boston's 12-hit attack that carried the Red Sox to their sixth straight victory and into first place in the AL East, one-half game ahead of Milwaukee. The slugging Red Sox have scored 52 runs and pounded 85 hits during the streak.

Carbo and Cecil Cooper each collected three hits for Boston, while Dick Drago pitched four-hit scoreless relief over the last 42-3 innings and earned his fourth victory in five decisions.

Twins 9, Rangers 0

Bert Blyleven, Minnesota's precocious 23-year-old right-hander, pitched a five-hitter for the 20th shutout of his major league career and received home run support from Harmon Killebrew and Larry Hisle.

Blyleven struck out 11, walked none and shackled Texas' Jeff Burroughs. Burroughs had driven in at least one run in his last 10 games—one short of the major league record—and saw his 12-game hitting streak end.

Orioles 6, Yankees 3

Rookie Jim Fuller doubled home the tying run in the seventh inning and Enos Cabell delivered the tie-breaker with a sacrifice fly, helping the Orioles hand New York's Mel Stottlemyre his fifth consecutive loss.

Angels 4, A's 3

The Angels' victory was their first in nearly three years over Oakland ace Jim Hunter, who had beaten them eight straight times since July, 1971.

City League Games Marked By Many Runs

Rallies were the deciding factors in three games Friday as Univ-Seafood, Parker's, and Union Carbide had to stage come-from-behind spurts to get wins in the City Softball league.

At Evan's One, Univ-Seafood struck for eight runs in the bottom of the seventh to pull out a win over GUCo. GUCo had scored twice in the top of the first but U-S slipped in front in the second with three runs.

The game was tied in the top of the fourth on a single run by GUCo but again U-S forged in front in the bottom of the frame with three runs including a homer by Watson to take a 6-3 advantage. GUCo added one in the fifth and then roared into the lead with nine runs in the sixth. They made it 13-6 in the seventh with another tally.

In the bottom of the frame, U-S did the almost impossible. They rallied for eight runs including another homer by Watson to pull out the win.

The second game, between Hallow's and the Jaycees was cancelled.

White's Insulation had to battle back in order to win over Parker's, 11-9. Both teams put up four in the first. Parker's got a homer from Wallace.

The lead went to White's in the third as they scored once but Parker's came back to go ahead in the fourth getting five runs. White's pulled within two, 9-7, in the fifth and then won it in the sixth as they pushed over four runs.

At field no. 2, the Little Sluggers had no trouble disposing of Sunnyside Eggs, 16-8. They scored first with a run in the top of the first only to see Sunnyside take the lead away in the bottom of the frame with three runs. Sunnyside added two more in the second but it was all over for in the third, the Little Sluggers blew in eight runs, one of which was a homer by P. Mattox.

The Sluggers added six in the fourth and one in the fifth. Sunnyside got three in the fifth.

Union Carbide had to quelch a last inning rally by Morgan to win, 12-11.

Union Carbide went in front, 3-0 in the first only to see Morgan tie it in the bottom of the first. Union Carbide got it back in the second on a homer by Avery. The lead changed hands in the third as Morgan went on top, 5-4.

Union Carbide forged ahead in the fourth with three runs, 7-5 but the game was tied again in the bottom of the fifth as Morgan got a pair.

Both teams scored two in the seventh and Union Carbide pushed over the winner in the top of the eighth with three tallies. They had to stop Morgan in the bottom of the eight as Morgan got two runs before they were retired.

Pier-5 won over Grady White by forfiet.

Garr Leading League; Continues Hitting Pace

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The way Ralph Garr is going this year, he'll hit close to 300. That's not a .300 batting average, but 300 hits.

One of the hottest batters in baseball, Garr added three more hits to his whopping total while leading the Atlanta Braves to a 3-0 decision over the Houston Astros Friday night.

"I'm not satisfied where I'm at," Garr said despite drilling two home runs and a single in boosting his hit total to 73 at the first quarter mark of the season.

Garr's .378 batting average leads the National League, and if he continues at this frantic pace, he'll have about 290 hits for the year.

"That's nothing new with me," said Garr, referring to his hitting streak. "Look back over my life hitting. When I get my hits, they are in bunches. I don't mean three or four hits in a row. I mean in a series of games. I've been hitting that way all my life. Nobody knows anything about it but me, but if I keep going, they'll know."

In the other National League games, the St. Louis Cardinals nipped the Chicago Cubs 1-0; the Pittsburgh Pirates stopped the New York Mets 4-1; the Montreal Expos trimmed the Philadelphia Phillies 4-2; the Cincinnati Reds defeated the San Diego Padres 6-3 and the San Francisco Giants turned back the Los Angeles Dodgers 9-7.

Capra, 3-2, in a rare starting role, permitted only singles by Greg Gross in the first inning, Cesar Cedeno in the fourth and Tommy Helms in the eighth. He walked only one batter and struck out four.

It was the first shutout of Capra's career. He once pitched eight innings of shutout ball for the New York Mets in 1972, "but they took me out because I guess they thought I was tired."

Cards 1, Cubs 0

Ted Simmons led off the ninth inning with a double, was sacrificed to third and scored in a run-down to give St. Louis and Sonny Siebert the victory over Chicago.

Winning pitcher Sonny Siebert, 4-3, tossed a five-hitter while loser Rick Reuschel, 3-3, also allowed five hits.

Pirates 4, Mets 1

Jerry Reuss hurled a six-hitter and Willie Stargell drove in one run and scored twice, helping Pittsburgh beat New York.

Expos 4, Phillies 2

Reds 6, Padres 3

Pedro Borbon bailed Don Gullett out of a ninth inning jam, leading Cincinnati out of a four-game losing streak with a decision over San Diego.

Borbon came in after Gullett gave up hits to the first two San Diego batters in the ninth. The reliever loaded the bases with a bunt single and gave up a sacrifice fly before getting a double play.

Giants 9, Dodgers 7

Bobby Bonds and Chris Speier each stroked two-run singles in a seven-run third inning that carried San Francisco over the Los Angeles.

Moose Win On Two-Hitter

The Moose won their second of six games of the year and moved into a tie for fourth place in the Tar Heel Little League as they shut out Integon, 6-0 on a two-hitter by David Carroll.

Carroll struck out eight and walked five during the game. Both Integon hits were by Will Barrett.

The Moose got enough in the first to win it with a single run. Ashley Taylor doubled and scored on a hit by Ricky West.

In the fourth, they added two more as Carroll singled and Dean Wilson doubled him to third. An error on Bobby Scott's grounder let Carroll score and another error scored Wilson.

Taylor singled to open the fourth and he came around to score with the aid of two errors.

Bobby Gantt and Dwayne Alligood singled in the sixth and both advanced on a wild pitch. Rusty Davenport singled driving in both runners.

New Coach For Trail Blazers

After finalizing the details of his agreement with the team and meeting the media for the first time in his new capacity, Wilkens departed with a signed three-year contract in one hand and a can of game films in the other.

"I'll be studying these films to determine weaknesses and evaluate talent," he said. Even before he plugged in his projector, however, Wilkens admitted two areas that need work.

"We definitely need improvement in team defense and we have to find an on-the-court leader," he said.

Could that leader be Bill Walton, the All-America UCLA center who recently signed with the Blazers for a reported $2.5 million?

As cool off the court as he was on it during his 14-year National Basketball Association career, Wilkens quickly was ready with an answer.

"People in basketball know that Kareem Abdul-Jabbar couldn't carry the Milwaukee Bucks to a championship in his first season," Wilkens said. "Bill Walton is not an Abdul-Jabbar, but he is a fine player."

The new coach made clear, however, that young talent would be the key in the effort to rebuild a club which has compiled an embarrassing 94-233 record over the last four years.

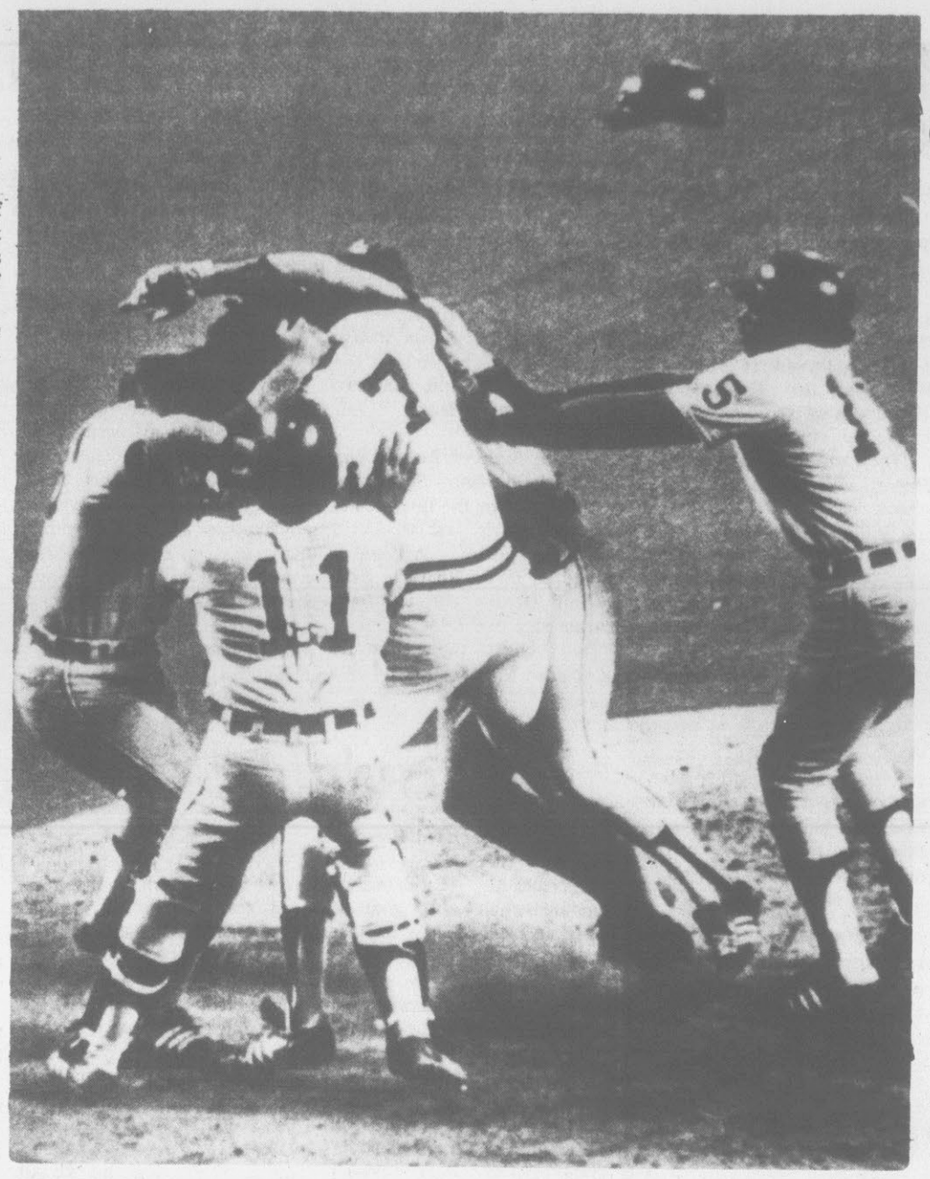
Meeting Set

There will be an organizational meeting today at 4 p.m. at the South Greenville Recreation Center for the Coastal Boys Baseball League.

All boys ages nine to twelve, interested in playing baseball at South Greenville should attend this meeting. J. W. Grimes is the league president.

HEARING BIDS

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP)—The athletic directors of the Atlantic Coast Conference schools who also make up the basketball committee, will hear presentations Thursday from four cities bidding for the 1976 postseason championship tournament.



MIX IT UP—Hats and fists flew in the third-inning fight in Friday night's Chicago White Sox-Kansas City Royals ballgame. Kansas City's John Mayberry (7) charged Chicago's pitcher Stan Bahnsen, left, after being hit by a pitched ball. Here, catcher Chuck Brinkman (11) and Dick Allen, right and another infielder attempt to break up the fight. Mayberry, whose helmet went flying, was ejected from the game. The Royals won, 4-2. Allison Unhappy With Starting Spot, Speed

By DICK WATERS
Associated Press Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Bobby Allison, who normally runs well in any stock car race he enters, is not at all happy with his qualifying speed for Sunday's $183,000 World 600 at the Charlotte Motor Speedway.

The Hueytown, Ala., speedster who has won 42 races during his career, is equally unhappy over new carburetor rules put into effect this week by the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing.

Allison, who has won only one race this season, turned in the eighth fastest time during the second round of time trials Friday. His 151 m.p.h. in his big engine Chevrolet gave him the 23rd starting spot in the 40-car field.

A few minutes earlier, brother Donnie Allison led second-day qualifiers with 155.315 m.p.h. using a small engine that he borrowed from Bobby.

Bobby was asked if he was surprised by the results of the qualifying.

"No, not really," he replied. "We had run a little better in practice, but it is the carburetion problem (NASCAR's new rule that restrict carburetion of larger engines) that has us in a bind."

A reporter asked him why he did not switch to the small engine (364 cubic inches) that Donnie borrowed.

Bobby replied, "Because you guys won't pay the bill. Do you want to pay the bills? It has cost me $80,000 to run the small engines for the past four races."

Allison then waved off further questions, explaining that he had other business elsewhere.

Bobby Isaac, who holds the world's closed-course speed record of 201.104 at Talladega, Ala., posted the second quickest qualifying speed Friday. He wheeled the Hoss Ellington-Banjo Mathews Chevrolet around the Charlotte track at 158.404 to land the 17th starting spot.

Frank Warren, Billy Scott, James Hylton, Dan Daughtry, C. G. Spencer and Dick Trickle were among the 15 second-day qualifiers.

J. C.'s Roll To 9-2, One-Hit Victory

Kiwanis scored two first inning runs but could not survive a Jaycee onslaught in the second inning and fell for the fifth time this year as the Jaycees took a 9-2 win in the North State League, Friday.

For the J.C.'s it was their third straight win and are 4-2. The Kiwanians fall to 1-5.

The victory was a sweet one for Kenny Barnes as he pitched the Jaycee win getting a one-hitter in the process. He allowed only a first inning single while walking five and striking out 13 batters.

Kiwanis scored two in the first. Tom Brown walked and Steve Topping got the only hit moving him to second. Howard Moye walked to load the bases and a passed ball scored Brown. Michael Clemmons also walked and then a second passed ball let Topping score.

The J.C.'s put two on in the bottom of the first but failed to score. Then in the second they batted around running up five scores. Elvy Forrest reached on an error and Marion Crisp walked. Both were sacrificed up and Larry Talbert singled loading the bases. A catcher's error scored both Forrest and Crisp and put Talbert on third. A ground out scored Talbert.

Brown singled and an error on the play moved him to second. Teddy Gartman walked and an error on John Winstead's grounder scored Brown. Barnes walked to load the bases and a walk to Forrest forced in Gartman.

Four more went up in the fourth. Gartman walked and scored on a home run by Winstead. Singles by Barnes, Forrest and Crisp drove in Barnes and a ground out scored Forrest.

Winstead had three hits to lead the J.C.'s and Gartman had two.

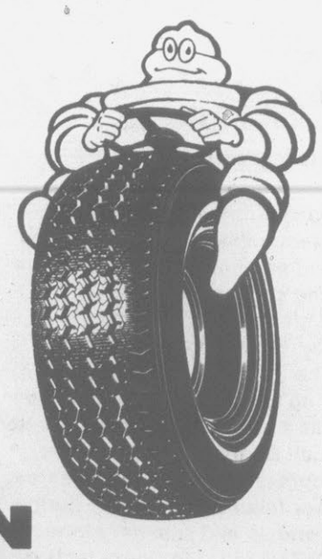
In tires, it's not the price you pay. It's how often you pay it.

This steel-belted Radial Tire carries the Michelin Warranty* for 40,000 miles on the original tread. (Many owners get much more.) Puncture resistant Michelins give precise steering, and smooth driving comfort. So stop in and start saving today.



40,000 MILE WARRANTY

*Michelin's Warranty for X Radial Highway Passenger Tire shown here covers tread life, normal road hazards (excluding repairable punctures) and defects in workmanship and materials for 40,000 miles, when tire is used on passenger vehicles in normal service in continental United States, except Alaska. Credit or refund (at Michelin's option) is equal to current actual selling price multiplied by percentage of warranted mileage not run on tire.

MICHELIN

The Gas Savers

Because of the lower rolling resistance of Michelin "X" radials over conventional bias-ply tires, you might get as much as 10% savings over your present gas consumption. This means more miles per gallon of gas. It means extra dollars in your pocket.

Green Fires Second 66 For Second Round Memphis Lead

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

MEMPHIS (AP) — It isn't likely that success will spoil Hubert Green, but it sure does confuse him.

"I really don't know how to handle it," Green said after taking his second consecutive 66 for a 132 total and a two-stroke lead Friday in the second round of the $175,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Open Golf Tournament.

His score matched the best 36 holes for the year on the pro tour and gave him a solid advantage over little Rod Curl and red-haired Tom Watson, tied for second at 134. Curl had a 69, and Watson one of the four 66s posted in the hot, muggy weather.

Green, a lanky 27-year-old from Birmingham, Ala., has won two titles and more than $103,000 already this season and—with the absent Johnny Miller and Buddy Allin—has been among the standouts of the season.

"Winning takes a lot more out of you than just playing in a tournament does. You get real tired.

"I've never been in this position before. It's like my first year on the tour. You don't know when to rest, when to take time off, how to handle yourself."

Then, he added, with a grin:

"I just hope I can learn this year and have the opportunity to put it to use next year."

"I just didn't hit my irons very well and got in a lot of bunker trouble," said Curl, the bubbly little Indian who scored a surprise victory in last week's Colonial National in Fort Worth, Tex.

Jaguar Places

Ronnie Wilkes of Farmville Central took a fifth place in the long jump. His teammate Ray Hardy also of FC finished just one position out of the scoring in the 440 getting a sixth. There were only five winning places.

Jamesville Knocked Out Of Running

CHOWAN—Manteo pulled off a double play in the top ofthe fourth inning ending a Jamesville threat and enabling Manteo to pass the Bullets in the bottom of the frame and go on to win, 7-3, knocking Jamesville out of further play in the State 1-A playoffs.

Jamesville saw Manteo take a 1-0 lead in the first and came back to move in front, 2-1 in the fourth. They got four hits in that inning but the double play winded the Bullets and they only scored once more during the game.

Manteo had gotten their run in the first as Denton singled and scored on hits by K. Kee and Owens.

Jamesville's Billy Brown reached on an error in the fourth and Steve McCombs singled him up. Gurkin Martin lined out to short and Brown was caught off second for the DP.

Consecutive hits by Eric Martin, Ronnie Padgette and Bucky Dickerson drove in McCombs and Eric Martin with the go-ahead runs.

The lead did not last long as Manteo struck for three in the bottom of the fourth. With two out, Daniels reached on an error and Heroux walked. Mann doubled to score them both and after taking third on the relay, Mann scored on an error.

Manteo added three more in the fifth. Denton singled and stole second. Kenny Kee singled to drive him in and a home run by Steve Kee scored Kenny Kee.

The Bullets scored their other run in the sixth as Gurkin Martin doubled and scored on Eric Martins' single.

Denton and K. Kee had two hits each for Manteo and Eric Martin had two for Jamesville.

Dispute Begins, Ends On Entry Technicality

An AP Sports Analysis
By JERRY GARRETT
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The dispute over qualifications for Sunday's Indianapolis 500-mile race began as it ended—on a technicality.

With 11 unqualified racing machines still in line last Saturday, Speedway officials pronounced time trials closed at 6 p.m. A complicated entry blank clause was invoked, denying for others the quarantee of a chance to make the race after any car in line before they made a second attempt.

Whether the Speedway's interpretation of the clause was legally sound will likely be tested in a $1 million lawsuit still pending. But requests by five of the 11 owners for qualifications to be reopened were tossed out of Marion County Superior Court Thursday by Judge Frank A. Symmes Jr. He ruled the plaintiffs had not exhausted their full channel of appeals with the U.S. Auto Club.

The five then appealed to USAC, but the race sanctioning body, as the plaintiffs' attorneys predicted, refused to intervene.

One of the questions raised, and possibly answered in courtroom testimony, was how a car could go through the qualification line twice before others went out a first time.

Carl Gehlhausen, one of the plaintiff car owners, testified the car in question, driven by Johnny Parsons, started the day in the back of the line but was pushed past his car and others later in the day.

Gehlhausen said when he protested, "a Speedway official put his foot on the wheel of my car and said, 'Stay put. You'll have your chance.'"

Looking back, Gehlhausen wondered whether someone in authority at the tradition-ridden Speedway might have wanted Parsons, son of 1950 Indy winner Johnnie Parsons, to have a chance at the field for nostalgia's sake.

Speedway officials later revealed a list had been made of cars going onto the track before the 1½-hour practice period Saturday. It was the order of those cars on the list that determined the order of qualifying, Chief Steward Tom Binford said.

The idea was a new one, and according to all entrants contacted unannounced.

"I had a feeling there might be a problem like this," said USAC national champion Roger McCluskey. "So I spent most of the night before qualifications trying to find out the order of the day for Saturday."

Finally, in the early morning hours Saturday, McCluskey found someone who knew of the list.

"So I had my car out there at 6 o'clock in the morning," he said.

The other car owners, who didn't believe the "order of the day" would be that complicated, merely waited until shortly before 11 a.m., the start of time trials, to push their cars to the qualifying line.

"If we had known about that list there would have been the damnedest rush you ever saw to get out there Saturday morning," Gehlhausen said.

Suggs Leads Tarboro Victory

RALEIGH (AP)—With Carter Suggs starring in three events, Tarboro High School team Friday night won the 70th annual state High School Track and Field Championships.

Six records were set and one tied as Tarboro posted 24 points, Hoggard of Wilmington 19, West Mecklenburg of Charlotte 15, E.E. Smith of Fayetteville 15, Pinecrest of Southern Pines 13, Ashbrook of Gastonia 12, Millbrook of Wake County 9, Greensboro Grimsley 9, Bertie 8, and East Mecklenburg 8.

Suggs won the 100 yard dash in 9.5 seconds, broke his own record in the 220 at 21 seconds, won the long jump with a leap of 23 feet 1 inch and anchored Tarboro's record setting mile relay team which posted a 3:18.5 and took five-tenths of a second off the existing record.

Rufus Crawford of Gastonia's Hunter Huss posted a 6'9¾" in the high jump to set a new record by one inch.

In the mile, Henry Jones of Ashbrook posted a new state record with a time of 4:09.8 and George Jackson of Hoggard set a new record of 47'11½"in the triple jump.

David Ward of Olympic High School in Charlotte vaulted 15 feet to break the state record in the pole vault by two inches.

In the 180-yard low hurdles Tony Bouler of West Mecklenburg tied the state record of 19.2 seconds. Earlier he won the high hurdles in 13.7 seconds.

Jeff Moody of Pinecrest came in second in the mile but his time of 4:10.5 was better than the old record. He went on to win the 880 in 1:55.7.

Flanagan Accepts Post

Dwight Flanagan a former East Carolina football player under Clarence Stasavich and Mike McGee and a graduate assistant under Sonny Randle has accepted a position as receiver coach at The University of Southwestern Louisiana, it was announced recently.

Flanagan was a coach at Howard University until the termination of their football program after over 70 years of intercollegiate play. He will be on the staff of Augie Tammeriello who comes to S. La. after working as line coach at Colorado. Tammeriello was also an assistant under N.C. State Head Coach Lou Holtz when Holtz was at William & Mary.

The University of Southwestern La. has had a major change in their athletic staff with new Athletic director and new football staff. The school is on probation by the NCAA for recruiting violation.

"The school is quite similar to ECU; its the second largest in the state with over 13,000 students," Flanagan said. "They are quite progressive."

The school had scheduled several opponents that have played ECU in past seasons such as Southern Mississippi and Tulane. They have scheduled the University of Hawaii for the 1977 season.

Flanagan played at East Carolina from '66 until '70 and was an assistant under Randle. He then went to coach at New Hanover High School in Wilmington and from there he went to Howard. The Edenton native will begin his duties at S. La. in July.

Deer Hunters To Get Bag Limit Change In Fall

RALEIGH—Deer hunters in the eastern part of North Carolina will be able to shoot three deer during the upcoming 1974-75 hunting season; an increase of one over the previous season bag limit.

This was one of several changes in the hunting regulations adopted by the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission at its regular monthly meeting here, Monday, May 20. The new regulations were adopted following a series of nine public hearings held across the state during April.

"Several of the proposals were changed as a result of information gained at the public hearings," said Frank Barick, chief of the Division of Game for the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission. "For example, changes were made in the deer regulations, particularly concerning bow hunting and a proposed gun season in Johnston County.

"The hearings furnish us an opportunity to learn what our hunters want, and we are always glad to be able to meet their wishes whenever it is possible and still maintain a rich, natural heritage of wildlife."

Four changes were adopted in the statewide deer hunting regulations. The season bag limit on whitetail deer was increased to three in the eastern part of the state where there is an October 14-January 1 season.

Also, the one week season in the northwestern part of the state was extended to include that part of Guilford County north of I-85 east of Greensboro and north of I-40 west of Greensboro. In Orange and Alamance counties, the area open to deer hunting has been extended south to I-85. The use of dogs for hunting deer would now be allowed in that part of Anson County east of N.C. 742. Also, Alexander County will be closed to deer hunting for the coming season.

"Because hunters were generally opposed, the commission did not adopt an open season on deer in Johnston and northern Sampson counties," pointed out Barick. "The bow season was also moved back two weeks in certain areas at the request of archers."

The bow season for deer will be October 18 through November 16 in those parts of the state where the gun seasons are November 25-December 21 (Uwharrie section), November 25-January 1 (Butner section) and November 25-30 in the northwestern section of the state.

"Other deer seasons remain generally unchanged from last year, and hunters should check their new regulation booklets which will be available soon to get the exact dates," said Barick.

The Wildlife Commission also adopted the either-sex deer seasons for the 1974-75 season. Exact boundaries will appear in the new regulation booklet.

The either-sex seasons will be:

November 25-30 in all of Perquimans County and in parts of Camden, Chowan, Currituck and Hyde counties.

November 25-December 7 in parts of Buncombe (Biltmore Estate), Craven and Pamlico counties.

November 25-December 21 in all of Halifax, Hertford and Northampton counties, and in parts of Bertie, Edgecombe, Hyde and Martin counties.

November 25-January 1 in all of Gates county.

The Wildlife Commission voted to keep the split bear season the same as last year, except that there will be no open season on bears in Robeson County.

The proposal to reduce the daily bag limit from eight squirrels to five was not adopted, and the 1974-75 season will retain the eight squirrel limit.

The season on bobcats was moved back to open December 16-February 15, and trappers must attach a metal tag to each trap showing the name and address of the trapper. Also trappers must visit their traps daily. Finally, the taking of otter east of U.S. 1 will be allowed during the entire shortened trapping season.

Two changes were adopted in regulations applying to hunting raccoon. The Commission voted to extend the shorter season and specified bag limits now applicable in western counties eastward into Stokes County, and added Davidson County to the list of counties where raccoons may not be shot. In addition, the shortened trapping season is designed to reduce the pressure on raccoon populations.

In order to comply with recently enacted Federal regulations and state law, the Wildlife Commission established a split season totalling 124 days for taking crows.

The Commission adopted a proposal to make it unlawful to erect or occupy for the purposes of hunting, any tree stand attached by nails, screws, bolts or wire to a living tree on any game lands.

Shriner's Presenting Salute To Freedom Pageant

RE'GENERATION. . .the singing group of ten young people who will be performing in Greenville on Friday night at Minges Coliseum. The group is appearing under the auspices of the Shriner's Convention.

Text By Carl Tyer

Celebration of the nation's 200th anniversary will begin in Greenville this Friday night when the Sudan Temple of the Shrine of North America present their "Salute to Freedom."

The Shriner's pageant will be given in conjunction with a performance of the Re'Generation Singers, a patriotic singing group of 12 young people from Nashville, Tenn., brought to Greenville by Sudan Temple.

The Re'Generation has performed in 45 of the 50 states and have appeared before nearly two million people in more than 1,100 live performances.

The Friday night pageant and performance of the singing group will be open to the public, as a gift from the Shriners to the people of this area.

All other activities of the three day Spring Ceremonial will be for members of the Shrine and their families only.

The Shriners pageant will commence at 7:30 p.m. Friday night. Attending will be N. C. Lt. Gov. James Hunt, Grand Master of Masons William L. Mills Jr., and ECU Chancellor Leo Jenkins.

Uniformed units of the Sudan Temple will perform in their part of the program, which will include selections of patriotic music and a narrative on the development of our country.

She is considered the "financial boss" according to Ron Coker, the groups manager.

Her job includes dealing with all the production people who put on the groups big concerts.

According to Coker, many people are surprised to see such a young girl running a big entertainment group, but he has found she does a better job than any of her predecessors.

Thrasher is the group's sound technician and is responsible for operating the $40,000 sound system. According to Coker, Thrasher builds an orchestra out of a mixing console.

The group is presently on their fourth ten month tour.

Formed three years ago, the performers were chosen from auditions by performers from all over the country.

On stage performers include: Sue McClane, 20 of Portland, Ore., Barbi Reynolds, 19 of San Diego, Calif., Lorraine Combre, 20 of Clifton, N.J., Virginia Dobbs, 19 of Phoenix, Ariz., Debbie Field, 21 of Portland, Ore., Merv Moore, 23 of Denver, Colo., Rob Schilperoot, 26 of Sunnyside, Wash., Gale Field, 24 of Boise, Idaho, Tony Mack, 21 of Marion, Ind., and Lee Young, 25 of Bessemer City, N.C.

The group was developed by Derric Johnson who arranges all of the performance music. He has written over 70 songs, done extensive musical arranging and has produced numerous record albums.

The Re'Generation has produced seven stereo albums.

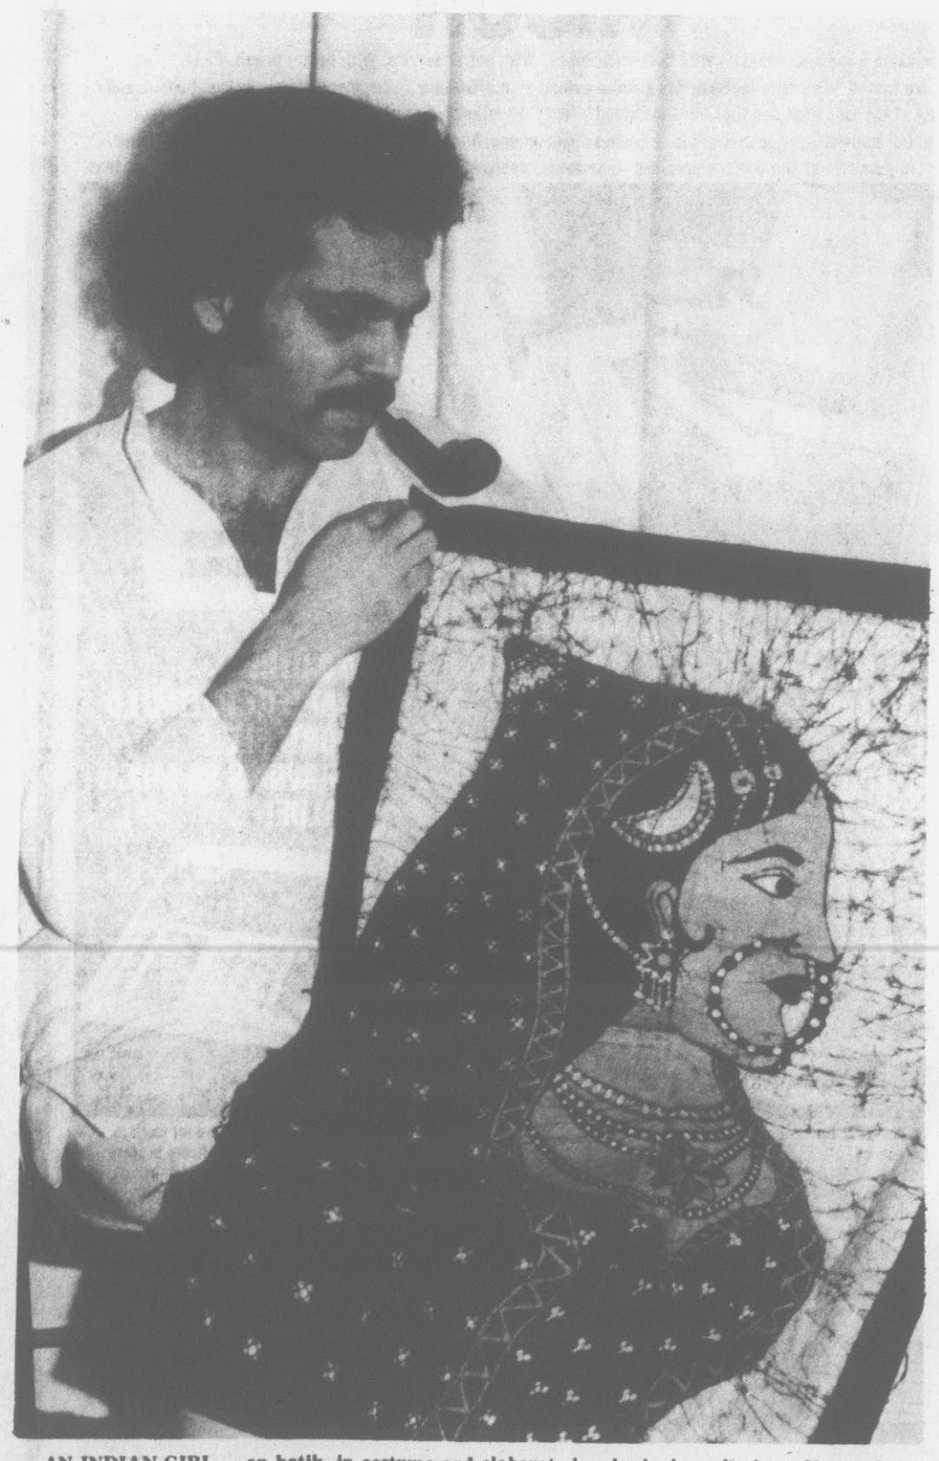
They have sung for the Kiwanis International Convention, the Rotary International convention and the Shrine World Convention, along with performances at Disney World in Florida and conventions and gatherings all over the U.S.

Their performance has been termed "unforgettable."

Arun Sibal, Native Of India And Now A Resident Of Greenville

A Young Man Influenced By Two Heritages

THREE MUSICIANS. . .are shown in this colorful batik. Arun says traditional music and dances are a vital part of his native India's culture.



AN INDIAN GIRL. . .on batik, in costume and elaborate jewelry is shown by Arun. Now a pipe-smoker, Arun says he also likes chewing ban, the red betel nut favored by millions of Indians.

"As a child and youth in India I played outdoors a lot. There were always lots of games, cricket and soccer all summer long." Arun Sibal, a young Indian bachelor in his 20s now living in Greenville and employed as a process engineer in development and associated production area at Dupont's Kinston plant, talked about his native country and his years in America.

"There's another game, a simple game everybody plays for hours," Arun said. "We call it guli danda. To play it, you use a small piece of wood with sharp edges. You put it on the ground, strike it with another stick, or rod, which makes it fly into the air. As it flies by, you hit it again, sending it as far as you can. There's no set rules, but there's all sorts of variations you can play on this game."

Bareilly, a town 150 miles southeast of New Delhi, India's capital, and less than a hundred miles from the border of Nepal, is Arun's home town. "My first schooling was at St. Mary's, a convent school run by missionaries," Arun said. "After I finished the fifth grade, my father transferred to Delhi where I attended a government school."

Arun and his family belong to the Arya Samaj Sect. "Within the Hindu religion" he said, "there's a large number of sects. Arya Samaj is one of them. We worship no idols at all. The Vedas, divided into four sections, is our main book. Teaching is mostly by the Upanishads, which are somewhat like proverbs." Of large frame, but still wiry from being physically active, Arun explained his ethnic origin. "Generally northern Indians are of a larger build than southern Indians of the warmer climates of India. If you search far back into Indian history, you'll find that the Ayrans moved into this area. Most north Indians are descendents of the Ayrans." He has thick black hair and wears a mustache. "Until recently I had a beard," he said. "I'm seriously thinking of growing one again."

The late Krishan Sibal, Arun's father, was a native of Punjab, now part of Pakistan. "My father and my mother, whose name is Kailash, emigrated into India in 1947.

"At first, my father's profession was that of a lawyer. Then later he became an accountant in a bank. That's what I always remember him as." Arun said his father died in 1962. "We are of the Kshatriyas caste, the second highest caste in India," he added.

There are five children in the Sibal family. "My older brother Shiv lives in Charlotte. He's just recently married. I have a younger brother, Virinder, who received his BA degree in India last summer in commerce. He's now studying for his CPS. Both my sisters live in India. Sharda is married, and Indira is single."

In talking about his home country, Arun frequently makes reference to his family. "Family life is very close in India," he said. "Most activities involve families. Our life style is community centered. You could say Indian life style is very much a public one. As an example," he pointed out, "people going to work generally use public transportation. A fixed number of people will take the same bus to and from work every day. These people will form close ties, get together in the evening. The women will get together in one place, the men in some other place and talk or play games.

"Another example is that young and old go to the main market together. It's the same with going to movies. In India movies are a family affair. India perhaps turns out more movies than any other country. They're long, usually three hours and are colorful, often stories of old legends. With few exceptions, each movie will have five or six songs."

One of Arun's uncles has lived in Raleigh for more than 25 years. He now works in the textile field for the Hercules firm at Research Triangle Park. "There was no conscious planning in the fact the men in our family have become associated with the textile field," he said. "My older brother Shiv is a design engineer, but most of his designs are for textile plants.

Studied Textiles

Arun received the BS degree in textile technology from the Indian Institute of Technology in 1969. "My studies there covered all aspects of textiles, from the cotton plant and fiber through manufacture and fabric design. Design is what I really enjoy most."

On his decision to come to America to study, Arun said it was based on two factors. "First was my curiosity, the curiosity of the young to see a new place. My second reason was to study more." In the spring of 1973 he received his master's in textile technology from North Carolina State University. "There I went into synthetics more," he said. After working for Hercules, he accepted employment with Du Pont at Kinston.

Stimulating

While cherishing customs and traditions of his native India, and respect for its basic influence on him as a person, Arun admits he finds his new environment stimulating and rewarding.

"I like living in Greenville," he said, "however, I still keep close ties to friends in Raleigh. There you have a much larger Indian community. Lately, religious gatherings have been organized, the Puja, a kind of worship service. At NCSU we celebrate Indian festivals on campus. Every year we have an Indian night in Raleigh and present a cultural program, and from time to time have Indian dancers and singers come in."

Arun would like to see a similar situation exist in Greenville, but doubts it will materialize soon. "If it does," he said, "it would probably have to start from the ECU campus if and when there are a large number of Indian students studying there." Indian students at NCSU, including Arun, were instrumental in getting Indian cultural and religious programs underway in Raleigh.

Indian Festivals

Some of the Indian festivals he mentioned are Lohri, which takes place in January. "For us the significance of this festival is that winter is about to go and spring is coming. We build campfires, sit around, talk, eat popcorn and delicacies. It's a family thing."

In March, what is perhaps the best known Indian festival internationally is that of Holi. "This is when we throw colors, wet colors and dry colors at everybody," he said. "In the afternoon, particularly in the Delhi area, there's a procession. We got a noted politician, put him on a donkey and sing and dance around him. The good part about Holi is that everybody becomes friends, even those we may have had hatred for in the past."

Then in October and in November comes the two main Indian festivals of the year. "In October Indians celebrate Desherra, commemorating the defeat by King Rama of the King of Ceylon. This festival lasts about ten days. All schools are out, and all kinds of plays are staged and acted by local people in Rama's honor. He's considered to be like a god. Effigies of Rama, his son and his brother are made and burned during Desherra.

"The Diwali festival takes place during November, 20 days after Desherra to celebrate the victorious return home of Lord Rama. Everybody greets him with lights. We have flat candles made of mustard oil that are burned. Some people use regular candles or colored electric lights, as you do at Christmas."

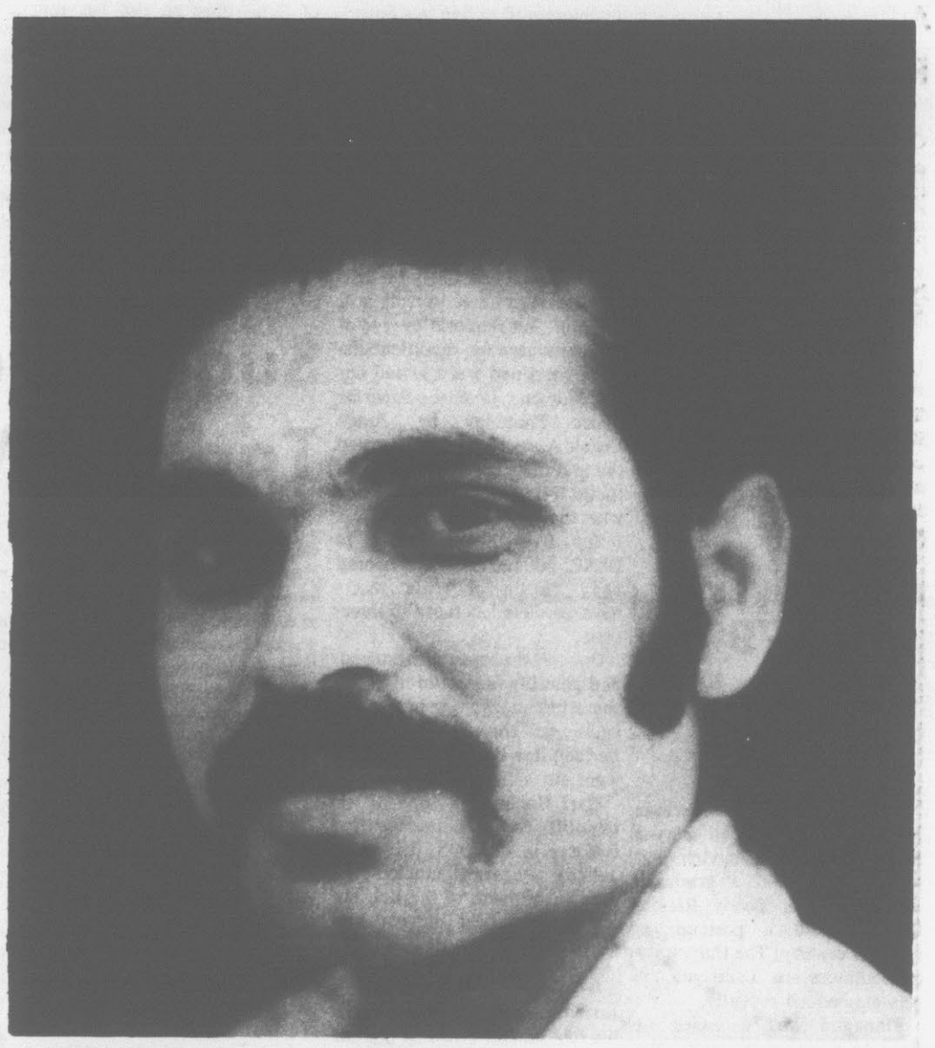
To keep rememberance of his home a daily part of his life, Arun has a collection of Indian works of arts and crafts. On the walls of his Greenville apartment are a number of batiks depicting figures from Indian legends and the famous caves of Ajanta. Others are of a young maiden in Indian dress and jewelry. A small, very light, openwork boat of soft cream straw is beautiful in its simplicity. "I watched an old man in a market place make this," Arun said. "It appealed to me. I appreciate the fineness of his craft."

A lavishly detailed doll is another reminder of India. "This doll represents a woman of the Punjab area in typical country dress," Arun said. "You see, she's making butter. Even today in almost every home in the rural areas of modern Indian women make butter in this way. My mother too, still makes her own butter, but with a different appliance.

"When I visited India last year and was ready to return to North Carolina, my aunt gave me this doll. It was a going-away gift."

This summer, Arun plans to extend his American experience by taking in some of the coastal sights of North Carolina. "I hear its beautiful and I want to see that part of North Carolina," he said.

It's quite apparent that this young Indian is a product of one of the more fortunate developments of the mobile 20th century—a man who takes pride in his own native heritage and at the same time is eager to discover the best in his new environment.



ARUN SIBAL . . .native of Bareilly in northern India and now a resident of Greenville, wants Americans to know more about his country. Arun finds living and working in the U.S. a stimulating experience.

Austria Will Give Prisoners An Annual Vacation

By ROLAND PRINZ

VIENNA (AP) — Prisoners are entitled to an annual ten-day vacation as of next year in Austria, a country where jailbreaks are rare and occasional escapes are nearly always motivated by jealousy.

While not all of the 8,400 pretrial and convicted inmates in Austria's 63 penitentiaries will automatically benefit from the new law, officials said an overall maximum two-week holiday can be obtained by those whose term is at least two years, with one quarter already served.

Life-term convicts will also get home leave if their conduct is satisfactory and they have been jailed for seven years.

But officials in the Justice Ministry made it clear the essential precondition for a prisoner to don civilian clothes for a five-day furlough twice a year would be the certainty that he return on time without committing further offenses.

"It is hardly conceivable to re-integrate offenders into society by totally excluding them from their human environment. This is why we are trying to provide more contacts with the family and the outside world," Heinrich Kelier of the Justice Ministry, a state prosecutor, said.

Keller explained this would be one of a series of attempts to cut down the number of repeat offenders. In Austria, as in most European countries, the "backsliders" account for about half of all ex-convicts.

"The holiday measure and permission for inmates to leave prison in groups — and in civilian attire — is not only dictated by humanity but by sheer reason," Keller said.

Other prison reforms will be introduced in conjunction with the "holiday law," such as the streamlining of punishable offenses.

"We have shut up too many in the past," Vicktor Pickl, department head in the ministry's penal administration section told The Associated Press. "In fact, Austria, a country of about 7½ million people, tops the European list with 117 prisoners per 100,000 citizens.

The official said the penal administration reform would "depopulate" Austrian prisons, introducing a system of fines up to 30,000 Schilling — $1,500 dollars — or more, for sentences that have so far carried a six-month term or less.

As to the absence of prison riots, Pickl explained "our system and the Austrian mentality — whict hesitates taking drastic action even as far as criminals are concerned — have mostly ruled out major disturbances."

Under Austrian penal administration, there are no exclusive "maximum security" prisons, and the really tough cases are spread evenly over the country, apart from mentally disturbed or sexually abnormal convicts, who are given special treatment.

TRIPLE ARCHES DECK SPANISH RANCH

By Gerry Bishop

Triple arches and ornamental railing deck this Spanish ranch home. The arches create the spacious feeling that is realized inside the "Cortez."

Luxurious touches add to the gracious lines of the home. Stretching more than 26 feet, the master bedroom is designed with two entrances, a walk-in closet and second closet, and a shower with bath. As designed, the room could be divided into two smaller bedrooms, or into bedroom and den.

While the bedrooms are enclosed in a wing to the right of the foyer, the living areas and dining areas lie to the left. The large, formal living room has a wood-burning fireplace and opens to the dining room as well as the foyer. To the rear of the home a family room, also with fireplace, has sliding glass doors to the terrace.

The kitchen is situated between the formal dining room and a dinette, which also opens to the family room. Access through the dinette is provided to the patio, and a half bath and utility area are tucked into a corner to the rear of the dinette.

Living areas are well separated in the "Cortez," with groupings for eating, living and sleeping. An angled double garage and full basement provide added storage, and the patio and terrace create access to the outdoors.

Over-all dimensions: 105 ft. by 38 ft.

Q. — I follow your questions and answers in the paper regularly and now I have a question that I hope you can answer for me. The home I live in has redwood on the outside. I want to put on aluminum siding, but have been told that it should not be used over redwood. Is this true?

A. — This is an unusual question, since most persons like redwood as an exterior material. But there is no reason why aluminum siding cannot be used over redwood. As with any other material, the important thing is to build out the old surface to provide a good nailing surface. This may necessitate partial or complete furring of the present siding. Furring strips, as you probably know, are narrow strips of wood or other material used to get an even surface. The care with which furring is done saves much time and work on the other stages of the project.

Q. — In painting a room, should the woodwork and trim be done before or after the walls and ceiling?

A. — The best procedure is to paint the ceiling first, then the walls and, after those are completely dry, the woodwork and trim.

Need A Cash Reserve

By DOROTHEA BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Browsing through some old columns in search of filing space, a question caught the eye: "Why does a family get into trouble with credit?"

The question, and the answers to it, seem even more timely today than they did ten years ago.

Most families, to some extent at least, "live on credit." It is accepted in the American way of life. They borrow to acquire useful assets for a fuller life at a much earlier age than would otherwise be possible.

Most of the money the American family pays to service its debt for the cost of these things —homes, autos, boats, home improvements and furnishings, education — repays principal and adds to the family's net worth. By far the greatest proportion of all types of loans are repaid without problem.

When borrowers get into trouble, lenders say, generally it is the result of improper planning, because they did not weigh all the factors involved, consider the possible consequences, leave margin for the unexpected —the job loss, medical or other emergency.

This always has been true, but it is a warning that should carry added weight today when inflation has pushed up living costs for most families much faster than income has increased. It is more important than ever to plan use of credit.

Reserve Important

The family which has inadequate cash savings surely will want to build up at least an emergency reserve before taking on debt for any but the most pressing reasons. The family with an auto loan, a couple of revolving charge accounts and an installment loan or two would be wise to whittle these down before taking a vacation on credit or buying a new refrigerator or stove or television set when the old model still gives service. All families will want to weigh the cost and risk of borrowing against the need, be certain payments will not put strain on a budget that might have to be stretched to cover even higher costs of daily living.

Because personal loans have a relatively short repayment period and high monthly installments, most families do limit their use of this credit perforce to what can be handled in the budget. (Those who don't should seek financial planning help.) Occasionally, the value of some proposed purchase —a swimming pool, say, or a camper—makes scrimping in other departments valid for a time, as long as resources are not stretched to the point where an emergency could cause a real financial crisis.

Mortgage borrowing, however, is over the long term, and it is easy to overextend here, particularly in these times of high prices and high interest rates.

Too often, lenders say, in buying a home no allowance is made for necessary purchases of equipment, furnishings and other extras. Little recognition is given to the rising tax trend or to the inevitable maintenance and repair bills.

Consider Burden

In the thrill of buying a home, a family may feel no scrimping will be too much to pay for a more luxurious house. Perhaps, for a few, it won't. For most, prolonged curtailment of recreation, entertainment, clothing, travel budgets, etc., may prove too great a price. For some, rising costs might soon make the burden impossible.

As much as you want a new home, be sure you need it and can afford it.

For a family which has built up sizable equity in its home over the years, the temptation may be great to refinance to obtain cash. Valid as this is under some circumstances, the experts warn that refinancing should not be undertaken lightly.

Repayment of money obtained through a mortgage loan is spread over a long period and thus monthly costs are low. However, the over-all cost of such borrowing nearly always is greater than a personal loan and home equity, a valuable asset for any family, once cashed in is rebuilt only slowly.

A family should think carefully before adding to mortgage debt and do it, not frivolously, for the transient pleasure or luxury that could be postponed, but only for purposes of long-term value.

The American habit of "living on credit" need not be cause for guilty conscience or for financial trouble, as long as the borrowing is planned wisely and with proper regard for individual circumstances.

REALTOR

EXCLUSIVE RIGHT TO SELL

When listing your home with a Realtor to sell, there are a variety of arrangements you can make. But if you are seriously intent on selling your home within a reasonable time and at the price you are asking, it would pay to consider making an "exclusive right to sell" agreement.

This gives the Realtor the right to his commission if he actually sells your home during the listing period, or if another broker sells it, or if you sell it yourself.

Under these conditions, the Realtor will have the added incentive and protection to go all-out in heavily advertising your house and showing it to prospects. He will not be afraid of bringing it to the attention of other Realtors who may have qualified prospects. As a rule, Realtors are willing to cooperate and share the single commission. That gives you the advantage of moving several realtors make a determined effort to sell your home.

Attention Tobacco Farmers

The following three issues seem to be the talk of the times.

(1) Gas Allocation?
(2) President Resignation?
(3) Tobacco Designation?

I do know that there will be no waiting in line if you designate the New Independent Warehouse in Greenville to sell your 1974 tobacco crop.

In 1972 and 1973 we had an average waiting time of less than 1 hour to be unloaded, and we plan to continue this method of giving you an exact day to sell and a time to arrive.

INTERESTING FACTS

The second U.S. President, John Adams, died July 4, 1826 at Quincy, Mass.

The third U.S. President, Thomas Jefferson, not only died July 4—but on July 4, 1826—the same day in the same year as Adams. Jefferson died at Charlottesville, Va.

And, here's another interesting fact. . .

D.G. Nichols Agency's personnel has more years experience in real estate than any other agency in Greenville! Call on us if you're thinking of buying a home, or selling your present one.

The wedding will take place June 23. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. Wiley Dew Forbes of Wilson.

Miss Janice Grier Is Bride

SPARTANBURG, S.C.—Miss Janice Ormond Grier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Thomas Grier of Spartanburg, S.C., became the bride of Gameel Byron Hodge Jr. Friday at 8:00 p.m.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Ben Hudnall and the Rev. John Drake in the Central United Methodist Church. A program of wedding music was presented by Miss Beverly Barrs, organist, and Mrs. Jane Frazier Rolandi, soloist.

The bride attended Mary Baldwin College, Staunton, Va., and graduated from the University of South Carolina with a B.S. degree. She was a member of Delta, Delta Delta sorority and is a provisional member of the Junior League of Spartanburg. She made her debut at The Assembly Ball in Spartanburg in 1972.

The bridegroom grduated from Spartanburg Day School and Vanderbilt University, where he was vice president of the Honor Council and a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity. He will enter Duke University Medical School in August.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a Mauer original gown of candlemist sheer silk over peau de soie. The gown was fashioned with a low scalloped neckline and Victorian bodice of alencon lace, pearls and crystals which was attached to an A-line skirt also appliqued and bordered in alencon lace, pearls and crystals.

Her cathedral train was appliqued with lace, pearls and crystals and from her cap of the same material, fell a cathedral length veil of illusion. White gardenias and valley lilies adorned her mother of pearl Bible.

Miss Anne Tatum Perrin of Spartanburg, S.C., was the honor attendant. She wore a floor length emerald green chiffon gown and carried a cascade of spring flowers featuring yellow tulips, yellow and white roses and valley lily interspersed with other flowers.

Bridesmaids were Miss Janice Louise Reinartz of Redondo Beach, Calif., and Miss Mary Blount Grier of Spartanburg, S.C., cousins of the bride, Miss Mary Susan Hodge of Spartanburg and Ann Arbor, Mich., Miss Olive Echols Foss, Miss Elizabeth Patterson Powell, Miss Jo Ann McCracken, Miss Agigail Louise Sims, Miss Walton Jackson Vandiver, all of Spartanburg, Miss Sarah Hale Wampler of Pulaski, Va., and Miss Louisa DeRosset Pritchard of Mount Pleasant, S.C. They were dressed identical to the honor attendant.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were John Riley and Robert Battle Grier, brothers of the bride, John Adams Hodge, brother of the bridegroom, Robert Payne Richardson Jr., Alfred Marcus White III, Thomas Rudolph Young III, all of Spartanburg, William Randolph Matz of Tenn., Frederick Richard Folz of Evansville, Ind., Patrick Teaslie Hunter II of Lake City, Fla., and Ronald Thomas Bauman of St. Petersburg, Fla.

Weeks-Harrington Vows Are Solemnized

The marriage of Miss Susan Ellen Harrington and Joshua Hines Weeks was solemnized in the Memorial Baptist Church Saturday at 4:00 p.m. The Rev. Norman C. Bennett conducted the double ring ceremony.

Organist Joe Goodwin and soloist Rev. Charles Smith presented a program of music. The Rev. Smith sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "The Son of Ruth."

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Harrington Jr. of Greenville, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal length gown of white organza designed by Columbia featuring a bolero bodice appliqued in white floral Venise lace which extended over the bodice to the modified natural waistline. The long sheer sleeves with fitted cuffs featured the Venise lace appliques. The full flared skirt extended to an attached chapel train.

She wore a chapel length illusion veil edged in floral Venise lace attached to a Juliet cap trimmed in Venise lace beaded with pearls. The bride carried a formal bouquet of white phalaenopsis orchids, miniature carnations and red sweetheart roses tied with red and white satin streamers.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Sam J. Weeks of Greenville.

The church was decorated in the center background with a heart candelabrum flanked by fifteen branch semi-circular candelabra and tall standards of greenery. Preceding to the altar were tiered candelabra with bouquets of white snapdragons, mums, pom pons and larkspur. Candles were lighted by John Harrington, brother of the bride, and James Weeks, brother of the bridegroom. At the altar was a prie-dieu decorated with sprays of carnations where the bridal couple took their vows, exchanged rings and knelt for the closing prayer and benediction.

The honor attendant was Eva Harrington of Greenville, sister of the bride. She wore a formal length gown by Emma Domb of white voile flocked in a miniature red and green floral pattern. The gown featured a sweetheart neckline, shirred empire bodice, short pouf sleeves and a tie of self-fabric accentuated the gown back. The hemline of the modified A-line skirt was edged in a deep ruffled flounce. She wore a white straw garden hat trimmed in red velvet ribbon and carried a nosegay of white daisies, red miniature carnations and baby's breath tied with red satin bows with long streamers.

Bridesmaids were Vickie Davenport, Brenda Murray, Jean Trevathan, Sallie Jenkins, all of Greenville, Ann Duncan, Martha Floyd and Janet Nethercutt, all of Raleigh. Their dresses and flowers were the same as that of the honor attendant.

The mother of the bride wore a formal length gown of lemon knit and carried a hand bouquet of golden rapture roses and baby's breath. The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal length gown of champagne quiana nylon and carried a corsage of pink roses pinned on her handbag. Mrs. Charles Hines, grandmother of the bridgroom, wore a white rose corsage.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were James Weeks, brother of the bridegroom, John Harrington, brother of the bride, Will Corbitt, Clifton Edwards, Bryant Kittrell, Don Edwards, Mike Harrington, cousin of the bride, all of Greenville, Harry Payne of Wilmington, and Phil Lamn of Wilson.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple will reside in Raleigh.

The bride is a graduate of Hardbargers Business College, Raleigh, and is employed by the N. C. Medical Society. The bridegroom is a graduate of UNC-CH and is employed by the Agricultural Chemical Division of Union Carbide.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall. Those assisting were Miss Charlotte Roberts, Mrs. S. J. Roberts Jr., Mrs. H. H. Roberts, Mrs. H. L. Roberts, Mrs. W. F. Harrington, Mrs. Vance Harrington Jr., aunts of the bride, Mrs. Moye Dail, Mrs. J. B. Kittrell Jr., Mrs. Ralph Tucker and Mrs. Carl Kinlaw.

An after-rehearsal dance was held Friday night honoring the bridal couple at the Greenville Elks Lodge given by friends and family of the bride.

The parents of the bridegroom and James T. Weeks entertained the wedding party at a rehearsal dinner Friday evening. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Moye Dail, Mrs. George Harvey and Mrs. A. M. Mumford.

Couple Speaks Vows Saturday

HIGH POINT—Miss Katherine Ann Inman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clifford Inman of Greenville, became the bride of Michael Henry White at two o'clock on Saturday.

The ceremony was performed by Dr. R. Delbert Byrum at Wesley Memorial United Methodist Church here. A prelude of organ music was presented by Mrs. Wanna McAnally.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Clyde Henry White of High Point, and the late Mr. White.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of white organza with cluny lace, styled with a high neck, empire waist, and demi-bell skirt. The tucked bodice featured a ruffled yoke and lace inserts. The tucked bishop sleeves were banded with lace and ended in a deep cuff.

The honor attendant was Miss Patricia Inman, sister of the bride, who wore a formal length gown of mint green silk linen designed with a scooped neck, short puffed sleeves and empire waist with a flared A-line skirt. She carried a bouquet of yellow marguerite daisies and gypsophila with streamers of yellow ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. David Harris, sister of the bride, Mrs. Robert Dail, both of Greenville, and Mrs. Joel Deaton of Greensboro. They wore gowns styled identically to that of the honor attendant and carried matching nosegays.

Flower girl was Miss Elisa Creech of Greenville. She wore a formal length gown of green dotted swiss fashioned with a tucked bodice and long puffed sleeves. She carried a white lace basket filled with yellow daisies and stephanotis.

Rush L. Johnson Jr. of High Point was best man. Ushers were Barry Frank of Greensboro, Daniel Shaw of Archdale, and David Wagoner of High Point.

The mother of the bride wore a formal length gown of green voile fashioned with an empire bodice in white floral lace. The mother of the bridegroom wore a pink knit formal length gown with an open collar and long sleeves. Both mothers wore rose corsages.

Following a wedding trip to Atlanta, the couple will reside in Greensboro.

The bride is a magna cum laude graduate of UNC-Greensboro, where she was an Alumni Scholar and received a B.A. degree in Spanish and French. She is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Pi Delta Phi, national French honor society, and Sigma Delta Pi, national Spanish honor society. She is employed as a teacher at Mendenhall Junior High School, Greensboro.

The bridegroom graduated from High Point Central High School and served in the United States Air Force. He is employed by the Federal Aviation Administration at Greensboro Regional Airport.

Miss Jane Inman presided at the guest register and wore a corsage of white daisies. Mrs. Howard T. Wright, aunt of the bridegroom, and Mrs. John D. Dunivant cut the cake, and Mrs. John Glass and Miss Sharon Lewis poured punch.

Mrs. Clyde H. White, mother of the bridegroom, entertained members of the wedding party, family, and out-of-town guests at a dinner at the Holiday Inn Downtown after the wedding rehearsal Friday night.

The bride's table was draped in white, and the centerpiece was of yellow and white snapdragons, shasta daisies, and gypsophila interspersed with satin wedding bells. Candlelight hurricane lamps were at each end of the table. Matching flowers were used on the guest tables.

Beaman-Evans Vows Exchanged

The marriage of Miss Rosa Lee Evans and Dalton Rufus Beaman was solemnized in The Salvation Army Citadel Friday at 8:00 p.m. by Capt. Joseph Chastain of Kinston and Capt. Al Smith.

Mrs. Eddie Hobgood of Greenville presented a program of organ music. Vocalists were Mrs. J. E. Chastain of Kinston and Hobgood.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Evans of Greenville, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore an A-line gown fashioned with a Victorian collar, matching lace sleeves and long train with lace accenting the border. She carried a bouquet of white and yellow summer flowers.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Catherine B. Jones of Washington, cousin of the bride. She wore a gown of pastel blue designed with an empire waistline and carried a bouquet of yellow mums.

Miss Stephannie Phillips of Greenville, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a dress of pastel blue and carried a basket of yellow rose petals.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Wayne Cooper of Greensboro and Richard Mitchell of Elizabeth City.

The couple will reside in Greensboro after a wedding trip to the beach and unannounced points.

The bride is a graduate of Rose High School and the Salvation Army College, Atlanta, Ga. She is employed by Southern Bell, Greensboro. The bridegroom is a graduate of Farmville High School and will be employed by the R. C. Bottling Co., Greensboro.

The bride's table was decorated with an arrangement of yellow daisies. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Sandra Stubbs of Durham, Miss Betty Ipock and aunts of the bride, Mrs. Rommie Brock, Mrs. Lewis Melton, Mrs. Forest Mills and Mrs. Cleveland Vincent, all of Greenville.

MRS. DALTON RUFUS BEAMAN

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

The "baby" of the family should never be allowed to see his "Baby Book" until he is mature enough to handle it.

The other evening in a search to find out when he had measles our youngest was rummaging through the bookcase when he came upon the baby books of the older children.

"No," I said. "Actually I don't think we have any of you in the buff. There wasn't time."

He was quiet for a moment and then asked, "How soon did I go into suits?"

"I mean what with bringing you home and getting you settled."

"Oh. Hey, here's a footprint and a handprint. Have I got one of those?"

"If you want one it's yours. They all look alike."

"Where's my baby bracelet with my name on it?"

"I put you in pre-soak one day and it got lost."

"You're on your sister's shelf. What volume did you get that out of? 'Little Sister Waves Bye-Bye?' or 'The First Ice Cream Cone?'"

"Vol. II, 'Baby Spits Up.' What's this?" he asked, hoisting a bookend.

"It's a bronzed pancake that your brother made at camp and brought home. I keep that with his rock collection, his slides, and his movies."

"It's weird," he said. "My older brother is pictured wearing my clothes and playing with all my toys. Is this my shelf?"

He took a single scrapbook off the shelf and opened it. A melted cake candle, an order blank for a third grade group picture and a newspaper clipping of a recipe for cabbage rolls fell out. He flipped through the blank pages anf finally looked up, despair written all over his face. "Didn't I ever crawl? Have a birthday? Dress up for Halloween? Go to school? Wave bye-bye? Play in the snow? Have a report card? Make anything out of a lace doily?"

"You did indeed," I said. "And as soon as Daddy takes one more picture on that roll, we're going to see you do all of those things."

Just then I remembered when he had measles. It was Christmas, 1962, and we took a picture of him so sick he couldn't get his head off the pillow and the picture, if memory served me, was in the sewing basket.

But I couldn't tell him. I figured he had all he could handle for one day.

Dinner Meet Held By Club

A brief business session was conducted by Mrs. Sally Broaddrick, new president. This was the final meeting until September.

MRS. JOHN GRAHAM CHERRY JR.

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va.—The Bayside Christian Church here was the scene of the Saturday afternoon wedding of Miss Bonnie Anne Martinette and John Graham Cherry Jr.

The Rev. Edgar E. Wilbur Jr. performed the double ring ceremony. Lt. Craig Lorrie, of the U. S. Naval School of Music and Band, was organist. Mrs. Margaret Trouland, soloist, sang "More," "The Wedding Song" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Martinette of Virginia Beach, Va., and Mr. and Mrs. John G. Cherry of Rt. 5, Greenville, N.C.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of polyester organza over taffeta with white Venise lace, roses and daisies. The gown was designed with a high-rise waistline, wedding band collar, full length bishop sleeves with lace cuffs and self-covered buttons featured in back. The chapel length train fell from the bow in back.

Her two tiered imported illusion veil, edged in daisies, was attached to a Camelot headpiece with pearl centered daisies. She carried a white covered Bible with white sweetheart roses, daisies and baby's breath with satin streamers.

Mrs. Joyce Martinette of Franklin, Va., sister-in-law of the bride, was the honor attendant. She wore a formal gown of apricot crepe fashioned with a colonial bodice with a lace bib, wedding band collar, short puff sleeves trimmed with matching lace and high-rise waistline with a back sash. She carried a colonial bouquet of mixed flowers in orange ice colors centered with white daisies and baby's breath. Her headpiece matched her bouquet.

Bridesmaids were Miss Paula Cherry and Miss Jennifer Cherry of Greenville, sisters of the bridegroom, Miss Judy Broyal of Oxford, N.C., Mrs. Herbert Faison of Suffolk, Va., and Mrs. Samuel Smith of Virginia Beach. Va. Their gowns were in orange ice crepe styled identical to the matron of honor. Their bouquets were also identical in apricot colors.

Flower girls were Angela and Lisa Martinette of Franklin, Va., nieces of the bride. They wore full length dresses of white flower flocked organza over orange ice taffeta and carried small bouquets like the bridesmaids in apricot colors.

Honorary bridesmaids were Miss Sue Roberts of Kinston, N.C., Miss Becky Garret of Hopewell, Va., and Miss Barbara Emerson of La Grange, N.C.

The mother of the bride wore a formal dress of ice blue polyester crepe and wore a corsage of yellow talisman roses. The mother of the bridegroom selected a formal gown of mint green polyester crepe and wore a corsage of yellow talisman roses.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Larry Martinette of Virginia Beach, Va., brother of the bride, Jack S. Warren and Carter Crandell, both of Stokes, N.C., Walter Tyler of Richmond, Va., and Samuel Smith of Virginia Beach, Va.

After a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va., the couple will reside in Virginia Beach, Va.

The bride is a graduate of Atlantic Christian College, Wilson, with a degree in nursing. She was a member of Alpha Chi national honor society and Phi Mu Sorority. The bridegroom is a graduate of ACC and is with the City of Virginia Beach, Va., in the Juvenile and Domestic Relations Dept.

Mrs. E. C. Newsome and Mrs. Cecil Martinette were mistresses of ceremonies.

Couple Weds In High Noon Ceremony

Miss Susan Reid Hill and Lee Todd Pair were united in marriage Saturday at noon in the Hooker Memorial Christian Church. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Christian White, minister of St. James United Methodist Church and pastor of the bridegroom.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Sharon Irwin, organist, Miss Sheila Marlowe, soprano, and Jesse Nelson, trumpeter.

The parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Trent Hill and Mr. and Mrs. Percy Lee Pair, all of Greenville.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of silk organza which featured a fitted bodice with bands of Venise lace down the front and at the waistline, a high ruffled neckline, full bishop sleeves with bands of lace, and a wide lace band at the wrists ending in a lace edged ruffle. The gathered skirt had a deep ruffle at the hemline which extended into a wide circular chapel length train.

Her veil was a cathedral length mantilla attached to a Camelot hat with a Venise lace sunburst design and edged in Venise lace. The bride carried a colonial nosegay of pink roses, stephanotis, daisies, and baby's breath tied with pink and white streamers.

Miss Elaine Garner served as her cousin's maid of honor. Her gown was of pink flocked organza and featured a gathered bertha at the shoulder and a deep ruffle at the hemline. A wide cumberband of hot pink chiffon ended in a wide bow at the back waistline of the dress. She carried a white wicker basket filled with mixed spring flowers.

Bridesmaids were Betsy Hill, sister of the bride, Anna White, Ellen Heidenreich, all of Greenville, Jo Anne Oakley, cousin of the bride, of Greensboro, Rachel Harrelson, cousin of the bridegroom, of Southport, and Pam Stone of Siler City. They wore gowns styled identical to that of the honor attendant and carried identical baskets.

Percy Lee Pair, father of the bridegroom, served as best man. Groomsmen were Harry Pair, brother of the bridegroom, Trent Hill and Scott Hill, brothers of the bride, Duff Harris and Jim Heidenreich, all of Greenville, and Craig Bartholomew, cousin of the groom of Richmond, Va.

Mrs. Leslie H. Garner, aunt of the bride, directed the wedding.

The mother of the bride chose a formal length gown of blue polyester chiffon and wore a white phalaenopsis orchid. The mother of the bridegroom selected a gown of white chiffon with shades of pink to strawberry styled in the Gatsby look and her flowers were pink roses.

The grandmothers of the couple, Mrs. W.O. Griffin of Williamston, Mrs. G.W. Hill of Greensboro, Mrs. Rachel Rook of Southport and Mrs. Ida Pair of Richmond, Va., wore white orchid corsages.

The couple will reside in Greenville. The bride is a junior in the School of Music at East Carolina University. The bridegroom attends East Carolina University and is associated with his father in Pair Electronics, Inc.

Immediately following the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a reception in the church fellowship hall. Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Garner, aunt and uncle of the bride, greeted the guests.

Mrs. William M. Green of Robersonville, and Mrs. Robert Oakley of Greensboro, aunts of the bride, served wedding cake and punch. Good-byes were said to Dr. and Mrs. Joe Ward.

On Friday night following the rehearsal, the bridegroom's parents entertained the wedding party, relatives, and out-of-town guests at a dinner at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

On Friday at noon, the bridesmaids' luncheon was held at the home of Mrs. Guilford Worsley. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Leslie Garner and Mrs. William M. Green of Robersonville, aunts of the bride.

Jail and Work Hurt Marriage

PARIS, France (WNS)—Cafe waiter Abd-el-Kader, 34, fell in love with a pretty customer, Christiane Sorel, 32. They got engaged, but before they could wed, the Arab had to serve a short jail sentence for petty thievery. The wedding took place as soon as he was free. Then Abd-el-Kader learned that his bride had become employed. "When I asked her to stop work, she went into a rage and locked me in the house," he reported. The groom climbed out a window to look for a job, and Christiane had him arrested for going outside the territory limited by the parole authorities. "She's a very jealous lady," declared the Arab as he returned to jail. "She told me that she can be happy now that she knows I'm safely beyond reach of other pretty girls."

Civils-Hofmann Vows Exchanged

KINSTON—In a double ring ceremony Saturday at 3:00 p.m., Miss Ingrid Erika Hofmann became the bride of Myron Franklin Civils in the First Free Will Baptist Church here.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grover L. Boykin of Rt. 2, Grifton, the bride was given in marriage by her stepfather. She wore a formal ivory satin gown with a chapel length train fashioned with a high neckline, empire waist and long sleeves. Lace embroidery adorned the bodice and sleeves of the gown.

Her floor length veil was attached to a Camelot headpiece of lace accented with pearls. She carried a prayer book centered with a white orchid with streamers of pink miniature carnations.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mrs. H. F. Civils of Kinston, and the late Dr. Civils.

Miss Vickie McCarter of Grifton was the honor attendant and Sherwood Oglesby of Kinston was best man.

Ushers were Billy Mathews and Douglas Mathews, both of Cove City.

After a wedding trip to Disney World, Fla., the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University School of Nursing and is employed at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Plan For Future When Buying Wedding Gifts

Salient features of any wedding gift: durability, utility, practicality, good looks. The gifts most likely to succeed in meeting all these requirements probably will come from the jewelry store.

Embarrassing and troublesome duplications are avoided when the couple enters its requests in the bridal registry.

Her silver flatware pattern usually is the first thing today's bride registers. Even the untraditional young couples recognize the imaginative potential of silver for every occasion, no matter how casual.

Gifts of flatware can vary from individual place setting pieces or serving pieces to a three-piece place setting and the traditional six-piece place setting.

Silver hollow ware is as versatile as it is elegant. Some of the items: A mug holding bread sticks, relishes and appetizers in a butter dish, crackers and nibbles on a cake stand.

Also: A silver funnel for decanting, vermouth dispenser, napkin rings and hurricane lamps.

The heirloom potential of any silver wedding gift adds to its preciousness and worth.

A particularly lovely gift is a set of toasting goblets —in silverplate. To be used that wedding day and on all the happy anniversaries after. Engraved, of course.

A non-porous safety glass cutting board for the kitchen is easier to care for than the wooden kind. It's smooth surface won't mar, nick, scratch or discolor; and it doesn't absorb liquids or grease.

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

June, the traditional month for wedding ceremonies, is the month selected by Donna Forbes and Dale Muchmore for their wedding. The couple will exchange wedding vows on the 23rd in New York City.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Sullins College, Bristol, Va., and East Carolina University, where she received her Masters in music.

She was a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority and Sigma Alpha Iota. Donna made her debut at the North Carolina Terpsichorean Club Ball in Raleigh.

Her fiance is a graduate of San Diego State College and served as an officer in the U. S. Navy, stationed in Korea for three years.

Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church here will be the scene of the Aug. 4 wedding of Linda Carol King and Ernest Hargett.

The bride is a graduate of Wayne Community College, Goldsboro, with a degree in dental hygiene. She was a member of Phi Theta Kappa fraternity and is employed as a dental hygienist with Dr. Jay M. Collie, Greenville.

Ernest is a graduate of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, with a degree in pharmacy. He is a member of Phi Delta Chi fraternity and is employed as a pharmacist at Biggs Drug Store.

Mrs. Gerrelene McDowell Walker, CPA, of Greenville, has been admitted to membership in the American Woman's Society of Certified Public Accountants by its board of directors.

AWSCPA, a national society, was organized in 1933 to advance the professional interests of women certified public accountants and to encourage women to be involved in the professional development activities of AWSCPA and other technical and accounting organizations.

Household Hints

Tired of shirt-tails pulling loose from your skirt or pants waistband? Convert shirts, tops and even sweaters by attaching a readymade snap-fastened nylon tricot pant-bottom by hand or machine. Look for it in small, medium and large sizes at sewing supplies stores.

Third finger, left hand, has been the proper location for wedding rings since the times of the ancient Egyptians.

Both shirt and sweater combinations and romantic Victorian designs are maternity dress design trends. The Victorian look calls for high waists, puffed long sleeves and antique-style laces and other trims.

MRS. ROBERT JOHN LUISANA

Miss Swensson Weds Saturday

St. Paul's Episcopal Church was the scene of the Saturday morning wedding of Karen Cassell Swensson and Robert John Luisana.

Father Mahalan and the Rev. Dan Earnhardt performed the ceremony at 10 a.m.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Sigurd Simcox Swensson of Chadds Ford, Pa. Mrs. Salvatore Sinsigalli of East Hartford, Conn., and the late Mr. Joseph Luisana are parents of the bridegroom.

Miss Lise Swensson, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Salvatore Sinsigalli Jr., brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

The bride attended Agnes Scott College and graduated from East Carolina University. The bridegroom attended Manchester Community College and graduated from ECU, where he served as president of the student body.

The couple will reside in Greenville.

She Cycles Into Social Circle

ROTTERDAM, Netherlands (WNS) — Mary Johnson, an American medical student abroad, was lonely in Holland until the gasoline shortage forced her to give up her car for a bicycle. "My first day on the bike I made seven new friends and was invited to five homes for supper," reported the 22-year-old Bostonian.

Miss Jane Marie Cade Weds Carl A. Robin On Saturday

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—The St. Petersburg Yacht Club here was the scene of the wedding of Miss Jane Marie Cade and Carl Allan Robin Saturday at 11 a.m.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Frederick F. Mitchell and Dr. Walden L. Cade, both of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Mrs. Mary F. Robin of Frostburg, Md.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal length gown of ivory organza over ivory taffeta flocked with tiny pick flower bouquets. The portrait neckline was edged in flared ruffles of ivory organza and Venise. The long full sleeves featured ruffled cuffs banded in ivory lace. Pink satin ribbon encircled the empire waistline, finished with a single pink silk rose and pink ribbon streamers in the back. The hemline of the full skirt was edged in a flared ruffled flounce trimmed in ivory Venise lace.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Greenville, N. C.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University and is employed by Worsley, Farley and Prescott, Inc., Greenville, N. C. The bridegroom graduated from ECU and received a diploma from Goethe-Institut, Munich, Germany, and attended the Universite de Paris, Paris, France. He was formerly employed by the Ministry of Aviation and Air Defense, Jeddah, Saudi Arabia. He is now a graduate student at East Carolina University.

Following the cermony, a reception and buffet luncheon was held in the Terrace Room, St. Petersburg Yacht Club.

Annual Family Reunion Set

GRIFTON—Descendants of the late John William Rouse and his first two wives, Winifred Ann Pridgen Rouse and Bettie John Dail Rouse, will hold their 10th reunion at the Riverside Christian Church Sunday, June 2.

Plans for the reunion were announced by Egbert T. Rouse of Jacksonville, president of the reunion. Family members are being urged to meet at the church at noon. A picnic lunch will be served on the church grounds at 12:30 p.m.

Efforts are being made to compile a history of the Rouse family since its arrival in America about 1674.

Last year's reunion was attended by 182 people. Officers named in addition to the president included Mrs. Sallie Rouse Johnson, Grifton, vice president, and Mrs. Eliza Walters Magill, Goldsboro, secretary-treasurer.

STRETCH

GASOLINE THIS SUMMER.

Smart motorists are getting the most from every gallon of gasoline. By reducing their usual speed. Avoiding jackrabbit starts and prolonged idling. Checking for proper tire pressure. Keeping their cars in tune. If every driver played it smart and saved just one gallon of gasoline each week, it would save millions of gallons of gasoline. And that's what much of this section is all about.

Twin Problems Faced By Motorist Require Better Maintenance

"May I use the car?"

This question is no longer the exclusive property of some teen-ager asking dad for permission to use the family auto. With growing shortages of fuel, restrictions of emission limits and other regulations facing the motorists, soon the whole nation might be asking, "May I use the car?"

As we enter the period of the year when car ownership and operation is most pleasureable — vacation time — the motoring public must face up to some unpleasant facts.

The energy shortage is growing more severe and pessimistic sources predict that the price of a gallon of gasoline may climb even higher in the near future.

Some Positives Emerging

There is talk of revoking the very privilege of driving in certain areas of the country. This is particularly so in locales with high concentrations of cars and with smog-prone climatic conditions.

It may require uncommon optimism to see the flimsiest silver lining in these black clouds but there are some positives emerging from this negative state of affairs.

One such positive is the growing realization on the part of the car owner that there is indeed a "tomorrow" as far as the supply of gasoline is concerned.

The motorist can no longer operate a car without considering the need to conserve fuel.

Therefore, he accepts the fact that he must both drive sensibly and maintain his car to get the best possible fuel economy.

* * *

An increasing number of owners are aware high speeds and erratic driving are shameful wasters of fuel.

Compelling Reason for Shortage

Add to this the car owner who neglects tune-up, who fails to keep his tires inflated properly and commits other maintenance transgressions and you have as much a compelling reason for gasoline shortages as all the problems in the oil-producing world combined.

The threat to your right to operate your car has its roots in the energy crisis and air pollution problem. However, the level of pollutants from cars is on a steadily declining plateau. All cars built since 1967 have some form of emission control devices. As low emission-equipped vehicles replace older cars without such equipment, the air is getting cleaner.

And as more motorists are made aware that engine maintenance keeps emissions low, even the older cars are emitting less pollutants.

* * *

It's no exaggeration that the average citizen would be lost without his or her car. Therefore, the average Joe and Jane is looking at his car in a new way.

Car Something to Care For

The car is now being regarded as something to care for, so it will run right and last longer.

This Care For Your Car Section, recognizing this new trend, is dedicated to helping you get better gas mileage, lower emissions and longer use from your car. It is further dedicated to the tens of thousands of skilled technicians in this land who'll help you keep your vehicle running right.

Gasoline prices haven't soared to the point where the fuel will be a substitute for cash at the bank. And a savings account for gas is not one of the services offered by even the most innovative financial institution. But this young motorist and her banker friend demonstrate the fact that up to two gallons of gasoline per tankful can be saved when a car's engine is tuned. Driving sensibly is another sure-fire way of helping to solve the energy shortage.

Cause Drag, Waste Fuel

If you think the gasoline shortage is a drag, then there is something you can do to make it less of one. Make sure critical components of your car are in good condition to eliminate conditions that waste fuel.

For instance, lack of maintenance in areas such as tires, brakes, shocks, wheel alignment and transmission can affect gasoline mileage as well as safety. In some cases, these faulty components help create a "drag" on the engine, thus requiring more gasoline to keep the car running.

Underinflated tires create such a drag. So can poorly adjusted brakes, especially when the driver has a habit of "riding" the brake pedal. Gas-wasting engine drag also can result from improperly aligned wheels.

Worn shocks also can cause road wandering with resultant fuel waste.

Camera

Just as you would have your car inspected before taking a vacation trip to make sure it's running smoothly, check your camera. Shoot a test roll of film before leaving. If the pictures are satisfactory, you can be reasonably sure the camera is working properly. If not, bring it to a dealer and have him check it over.

When you pack your camera for the trip, the first thing to do is "unpack" it and keep it handy for any photo scene that presents itself en route. It won't help to see just the shot you want if your camera isn't easily available.

Traffic Jam Italian Style

According to Italian auto expert Marcello Sabbatini, author of this article, the rapid growth of car ownership in his country has been accompanied by a general and regrettable neglect of car maintenance. So, frequent breakdowns of cars on crowded highways often lead to traffic jams like these. In addition, the typical Italian car owner pays little heed to gasoline economy or pollution, Sr. Sabbatini opines in the amusing report (below) on the habits of his countrymen in caring (or not caring) properly for their cars.

Italian Car Care A 'Not-y' Problem

By MARCELLO SABBATINI

Driving in Italy is more of an adventure than ever. In town, the constant traffic jams lead to neurosis. Main roads are always clogged because motorists use them in preference to the expensive toll roads. Those who use the tollways find two conditions. When they are lightly traveled, everyone drives too fast. The other extreme is being forced to go for miles at walking speeds because there is a jam at the exit or road work ahead.

Symbol of Freedom

The average Italian, who used to worship the automobile as property (at least until the mid-'60's), now doesn't value his car more than he would a washing machine. The automobile is no longer the status symbol it once was.

When Fiat in the '50's gave the Italians the opportunity of mass motorization, the Italian considered the motor-car as a symbol of freedom from years of poverty. With it they were buying a status symbol. And they kept themselves informed on everything relating to a car. And they cared for their cars.

But now this interest in car care is over. The Italian driver puts oil and petrol in when they are needed, but he habitually forgets to put water in the battery until the battery is ruined. He lets the tread of the tires become worn like racing car slicks. At most, he washes his car occasionally. He forgets his anti-freeze altogether.

Push to Maximum

Two of the problems that today Italian motorists absolutely don't worry about: pollution and fuel.

Also, Italians in general drive with the accelerator pushed to the maximum, not only when they go fast, but even when they go slowly. There seems to be an allergy to the correct use of gears in relation to economy in consumption.

Driving with minimum throttle is completely out of fashion; the so-called "egg on the accelerator" (advertised by a firm to promote economy in driving) would continuously become an omelet under the foot of the average Italian driver.

What Do You Think?

But to over-accelerate also means to pollute. And the idea of shutting off one's motor at least in interruptions of traffic is an idea that rarely occurs to our motorists. Everyone is afraid if he turns off his engine, his neighbor will immediately take advantage and pass him, as in fact it happens. (Even at the cost of traveling on the emergency lane, which should be reserved for emergencies.)

But after all, what do you think the pale-blue exhaust fumes are for the Italians, used to seeing smoking chimneys in the exhaust pipes of thousands of mini motor-bikes in between the web of a chaotic traffic that doesn't lighten even in the season of the great fogs in the North? Or in comparison with the smoke of the pollution in industries?

WATCH YOUR BATTERY

Six Ways to Stretch Mileage Offered by Noted Race Driver

By JERRY GRANT
Champion Spark Plug Co.
Highway Safety Team

Maybe you believe that a professional race driver giving tips on saving gasoline is like a vegetarian offering advice on how to barbeque a steak. I don't know about the vegetarian and the steak. I do know that saving fuel is becoming a vital consideration to those of us who race at the Indianapolis '500' and other tracks around the country.

Since the United States Auto Club, sanctioning body of Indianapolis-type racing, recently reduced the fuel allotment per race car, the driver must be more fuel-conscious than ever. Getting that little extra mileage from a tank of racing fuel can mean the difference between winning a race or being an also-ran.

* * *

1. Any car I drive, be it at Indy or my own private car, is in best possible shape. I don't waste a drop of fuel because my engine isn't tuned, my tires aren't properly inflated, my brakes are faulty or any other part of my car isn't functioning the way it should.

The average motorist can't say the same. If he has neglected maintenance he is wasting costly and scarce fuel.

* * *

2. Driving fast is the name of my game and I have the skill to do it safely. But I don't drive any faster than absolutely necessary to win. And that's part of the secret of driving with gas economy in mind.

Reducing your highway speed from 70 miles per hour to 50 can save you more than 20 per cent in fuel. With gasoline prices the way they are, you're saving almost four gallons or $2 or more per tankful by cutting speed.

3. If you've ever ridden with a professional race driver, you know that he is an extremely smooth driver. both on and off the track. He doesn't indulge in gas-wasting jack-rabbit starts. He keeps a steady foot on the gas pedal, doesn't pass erratically or lane hop.

All these maneuvers consume fuel unnecessarily.

* * *

4. The successful race driver always anticipates traffic patterns. If you do the same on the road, you'll save gas. Try to "play" traffic lights and don't tailgate to avoid sudden stops and starts.

* * *

5. None of you is apt to experience the pit stop where your tank is filled and tires changed in 20 seconds. But avoid, if you can, long periods of idling, either at a service station or any other place.

If you have to wait in your car for more than a few moments, turn off the engine. This holds true at a railroad crossing while waiting for a train or at a market waiting for someone to come out of the store.

Pre-Vacation Car Check Major Step to Safe Trip

No one would think of mailing a valuable package without making sure it was wrapped carefully and completely protected. Yet if statistics are correct, most people aren't as careful when sending their most precious possession on a long journey.

If that invaluable cargo is a family and the carelessly prepared container is a car, then odds are almost even that there is at least one serious defect in that vehicle. The odds are based on reports from official vehicle inspection agencies showing approximately one out of every two cars cannot pass simple safety checks.

To help make certain you and your loved ones have a safe and breakdown-free trip, here's a list of items to check with your favorite service outlet before you depart.

* * *

BRAKES, TIRES AND WHEELS: Have brake linings inspected, check fluid levels and seals and adjust brakes. Check tires for excessive wear or visible signs of damage. If needed, rotate the tires. Also, check wheel alignment and balance and make sure your shock absorbers are not worn out or damaged.

VISION: Check windshield wipers, headlights, turn signals, back-up and brake lights to make sure they are in good condition. Make sure washer reservoirs are filled and that all glass and mirrors are clean.

* * *

COOLING SYSTEM: Clean out and flush the cooling system and refill with new coolant, and rust inhibitor if needed. Check the thermostat, fan belt and water pump. Inspect all belts and hoses and condition of the radiator cap.

* * *

LUBRICATION: If needed, change the oil and oil filter. As part of an overall chassis lubrication, check transmission and differential fluids, front wheel bearings, locks and hinges.

* * *

TUNE-UP: If it has been more than 10,000 miles since your last tune-up, have one performed. As part of the tune-up check compression, coil output, charging rate of generator or alternator, install new spark plugs, inspect plug wires and boots, service and replace distributor components, service carburetor, check emission system and replace air cleaner. Also check battery and cables, cranking, starting and operating voltages and electrical wiring.

Boy Scout Rule Recommended

Where there's no Boy Scout around to help, always Be Prepared. Having a safe, properly maintained car and good driving habits are important to all motorists, but the lone woman driver must use an extra measure of caution when she drives. Driving the children to school every day is just one of the times when the lone woman driver must be prepared for every situation.

Task Force Proposes Uniformity In Safety, Emissions, Noise Tests

It's a 95 mile drive from Benton Harbor, Mich. to Chicago, Ill. Yet in that short distance a motorist will pass through jurisdictions with three different types of vehicle inspection laws.

In Michigan, the only inspection law is a random spot test of a few safety-related items. Indiana has compulsory vehicle inspection on an annual basis. Chicago has no safety inspection law but has compulsory emissions tests.

To eliminate such confusion and help alleviate three major problems involving motor vehicles, a new group has proposed a solution. The Motor and Equipment Manufacturers Association has formed a periodic motor vehicle inspection Task Force.

According to Task Force Chairman Wayne E. Rapp of Walker Manufacturing Co., "The Task Force's objective is to help formulate and establish at the state level, with federal approval, a uniform national periodic motor vehicle inspection program which includes safety, emissions and noise inspection standards and procedures."

Only 31 states have compulsory inspection of safety items like tires, brakes and lights. Along with Chicago, New Jersey has emissions inspection laws.

According to car experts, inspection laws now in effect have value beyond contributing to vehicle safety. Inspections also make motorists more conscious of the over-all condition of their cars, including engine components affecting lower emissions and better fuel economy.

CHECK TIRES IN A.M.

For accurate tire pressure readings, be sure to check yours before you've driven too many miles. Constant, high speed travel will generally increase air pressure.

A SPECIAL DECALOGUE FOR THE . . .

Lone Woman Driver

The Ten Commandments were made for everyone, but the Lone Woman Driver must have a set of her own. Here is her Decalogue:

I

THOU SHALL NOT PICK UP HITCHHIKERS

Being a "lady Samaritan" can be extremely risky when you're on the road alone. That innocent looking boy with the sweet face may be a Baby-Face Nelson in disguise.

II

THOU SHALL NOT GIVE STRANDED MOTORISTS A LIFT

When you're driving along the highway and see an anxious motorist standing in front of his raised hood, keep right on driving. Instead of giving someone a lift yourself, go to the nearest service station and report the situation.

III

THOU SHALL BE SURE TO CARRY SPARE CHANGE

Asking for hand-outs may work for a panhandler, but in times of emergency a few spare coins are a necessity. That pay phone won't work on love, and that dime might just be needed to call the police.

IV

THOU SHALL ALWAYS LOCK YOUR DOORS WHEN DRIVING ALONE

An unlocked door or window is an open invitation for intruders. Your side vent will provide enough fresh air. A locked door is not only a security measure, but in case of collision it'll prevent you from flying out the door.

V

THOU SHALL NOT ENTER AN UNLIT PARKING LOT ALONE

Having a personal bodyguard is not always feasible, but try to have someone accompany you to your car at night. A lone female walking through a deserted parking lot is a temptation few muggers can resist.

VI

THOU SHALL ALWAYS DRIVE DEFENSIVELY

Placing the blame on "the other guy" won't help you much if you're in the hospital. Always watch for the unexpected.

VII

THOU SHALL ALWAYS KEEP YOUR CAR UP TO SNUFF

Avoiding a problem is easier than remedying one. And listen to your "woman's intuition." If you think something is amiss, stop in at a service facility and have it checked.

VIII

THOU SHALL NOT LET YOUR GAS TANK GO BELOW HALF FULL

With the increased fuel shortage, many service stations are operating on reduced hours. It may be difficult to find an open station when your fuel needle nudges empty.

IX

THOU SHALL LEARN THE MECHANICAL BASICS OF YOUR CAR

Your owner's manual wasn't meant to line your glove compartment; it was meant to be read. Try to acquaint yourself with this reference.

X

THOU SHALL BE PREPARED FOR DISABLING SITUATIONS

The basic ingredients for a well-stocked car include: a jack and spare tire, signal flare or lamps, flashlight, city and state road maps, first aid kit, ice scraper and snow shevel.

Japan's Thousands of New Drivers Must Keep Cars Safe

By EIZO IKEDA

Japanese passenger car ownership has increased ten-fold during the past ten years. More than half of the enormously enlarged number of drivers are first time car owners, short on experience. Compared to other countries the background of the average Japanese car owner is unusual.

The older driver here, also his fellows abroad, has a deep mechanical knowledge, gained from past experience. He knows how to care for his car and keep her running in a trouble free manner.

For the inexperienced driver, car maintenance presents a problem. He has to have someone keeping his car in shape for him.

The average private car runs about 1,000 miles per month, say 11,000 miles per year. Therefore little trouble should be expected during the first two years of ownership. New cars have the advantage that if, and when, they give trouble, it is only necessary to call for the dealer's mobile service unit. So, as a piece of general advice to the mechanically innocent — "Buy a new car and have fewer problems."

There are strict regulations in force concerning the safety maintenance of cars. As a condition of registration, all vehicles in Japan must pass an inspection every two years (one year for trucks).

To pass this test, every car, even one which has been driven only 20,000 miles in 2 years must be serviced completely.

Thanks to this obligatory system, vehicles in Japan are kept in a reasonably safe state. Suspension, brakes, lighting, windshield wipers and non-standard modifications are checked for safety.

It is advisable for owners to get more frequent maintenance for their cars, such as taking them to the dealer's service facility periodically. However, if this is not possible, the driver should ask for a quick "check-through" when he stops at the gasoline station.

Service stations are capable of simple engine tuning and, of course, they check oil, water, tires and spark plugs.

Japan is a small country and the average driving distance is short. So the private owner is unlikely to wear his car out. Because of this, he gets by on infrequent maintenance.

There are very few enthusiasts who service their own cars. I was surprised to find how few people even washed and waxed their cars themselves. In this respect it is advisable for the car owner to learn to detect problems early and turn his car over to the experts.

WOMEN on Wheels

HELPFUL SAFETY HINTS

By Elizabeth Stimley
Plymouth Safety Writer

Test your brakes.

Think of your driveway as a personal miniature test-track. Before you enter traffic, let the car roll a few feet and test the brakes for stopping power.

This is one of the smartest driving habits you can develop and it may warn you of trouble before it becomes dangerous.

Danger Signals

Pedal goes down farther than normal. Even when the pedal is depressed completely it should still be at least one inch from the floor. The brakes' hydraulic fluid may be low. Take the car in immediately for service.

When brake pedal is applied the car pulls to one side. Either a leaking wheel cylinder, or anything from grease on a lining to a damaged drum could cause this. Get it serviced.

Brake pedal feels spongy when depressed. Usually a very serious condition, requiring immediate attention. It could mean leaking fluid or air in the hydraulic system. See a qualified serviceman.

Untuned Engine Like Having Hole in Tank

Accounts for Wasting Almost Two Gallons for Every 20 You Buy, Say Experts; Here's Why

Untuned engines will, on average, consume more than 8 percent more fuel than when freshly tuned. However, tests conducted by Champion Spark Plug Company show that in extreme cases badly neglected engines waste even more fuel. Some engines were so badly out of tune that they were using 20 to 35 percent more fuel than tuned engines.

Operating a car with an untuned engine is like having a small hole in your gasoline tank. You're wasting almost two gallons of fuel for every 20 you put in the tank.

According to tests conducted by Champion Spark Plug Company, a tuned engine will consume 8.2 per cent less gas than one overdue for a tune-up. (That is an engine that hasn't been tuned in more than 10,000 miles.)

In simple terms, the internal combustion engine used in almost all cars in use today is powered by the ignition of a gasoline and air mixture.

Two basic systems, carburetion and ignition are involved.

If those systems don't work right, then fuel is wasted.

The carburetor receives a supply of gas and air and meters it in precise amounts to the combustion chamber. Here, an electrical charge supplied by the ignition system through the spark plug ignites the air/fuel mixture. This source of power is converted into the energy that eventually drives the wheels of the car.

* * *

Improperly Adjusted Carburetor Contributes to Wasting Gasoline

Virtually any malfunction in the carburetion and ignition systems contributes to gasoline wastage. If the carburetor is improperly adjusted, one of two conditions may exist. Either there is too much or too little gasoline in the fuel/air mixture.

If there is too much gasoline, the excess fuel will not be converted to power but will eventually escape from the engine in a raw state. This not only wastes the fuel but contributes to air pollution. In some cases, a too-rich carburetor setting will cause engine flooding and an even greater waste of fuel.

With a too-lean carburetor setting and with too little gasoline in the fuel/air mix, you hamper engine performance. Thus, you must step on the accelerator harder to get sufficient power to operate. So, more gasoline is wasted.

Other carburetor-related defects that waste fuel include malfunctioning automatic choke and dirty air cleaner. If the choke is stuck, you'll be getting too much gasoline in the air/fuel mixture. If the air cleaner is dirty, then the air supply will be restricted, again creating a too-rich mix. In either case, you're dumping excess raw gas into the engine.

* * *

Fuel Squandered When Ignition System Fails to Function Well

Any defect in the ignition system is likely to create misfire and a resulting incomplete burning of the fuel. Thus raw gasoline will end up in the exhaust, both squandering fuel and creating pollution.

The role of the ignition system is to convert about 10 volts of primary current from the battery to upwards of 25,000 volts at the spark plug firing end. Any defect in this system producing less voltage is apt to create a misfire.

Common defects that can lead to misfire include worn out or fouled spark plugs, deteriorated plug cables or boots, distributor or coil malfunctions.

If any of these components aren't working right, it is possible that the electrical charge provided won't be sufficient to fire one or more spark plugs. The air/fuel mixture will not be ignited in affected cylinders. So, not only will gas be wasted in non-firing cylinders, but you need to compensate for loss of power by feeding more gas to the functioning cylinders.

If there is a general deterioration of the ignition system, the engine won't start at all (with a resultant waste of fuel trying to start the engine).

Jerry Grant, noted race driver and member of the Champion Spark Plug Company Highway Safety Team, has gas economy on his mind. USAC, the official sanctioning body of Indy-type racing, has cut fuel allowances per race by some 30 percent. So Grant and his fellow drivers will be practicing some of the same fuel savings procedures recommended for all motorists in this time of gasoline shortages.

Tips on Safe Trailering

STARTING: Accelerate carefully. Take it slowly and easily.

* * *

TAKING CURVES: Stay close to the middle of your lane.

* * *

TURNING —

Right Turn: Look in your right mirror. Signal, slow down. If turn is sharp, move ahead until car's front wheels are well ahead of curb . . . then turn to the right.

Left Turn: Check traffic. Signal. Proceed slowly. When you make your turn, drive well into intersection in order to swing wide, to allow for the trailer.

SLOWING, STOPPING: A sudden stop can jacknfe your trailer or shift your load, so keep a greater distance than normally between you and the car ahead. Keep out of the fast lanes and maintain a speed that makes sudden stops and slow-ups unnecessary.

* * *

PASSING: When towing a trailer you can't accelerate as fast as without it. Then too your car plus trailer is much longer. Before you pass, make sure there's enough time and room. When you have passed, allow more room before you move back to your lane. Don't cut in and swerve . . . this can make your trailer swing and sway.

* * *

BEING PASSED: Help other drivers pass you where necessary. If you're holding up a line of traffic, the right thing to do is signal, pull off, and let them pass.

If a large bus or transport passes you, air pressure may push the rear of your trailer to the right. Almost instantly, this pressure will push the front of your trailer. Be prepared to steer out of this situation. Accelerating a bit may help. Braking will not.

Compulsory Vehicle Inspections Producing Good Results

Little children leap up and down in glee and their parents smile when they see it. This source of pleasure for Chicago residents is a multi-colored "scoreboard" that flashes results of the recently-introduced compulsory emissions tests in the second largest U.S. city.

The scoreboard with its green and red lights that tells motorists they "Pass" or "Fail" their emissions probes may be a showman's touch to the serious program.

But when it flashes green for a car that has just completed the test, the car owner seems to feel genuine joy and a sense of satisfaction that his or her car is not part of Chicago's air pollution problem.

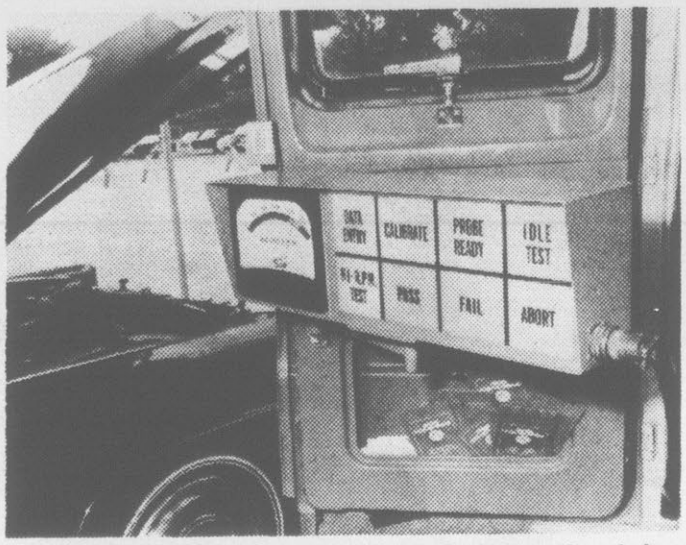
One Third Fail

The emissions inspection program was begun in Chicago in June of 1973. Since then tens of thousands of cars have been probed to see if they meet hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide limits established by the city.

To date, about two out of every three cars have been able to meet the standards. The one-third who have failed have been told the probable causes of their problems and asked to return for a retest after the necessary engine adjustments have been made.

The test itself is short and simple for the motorist. He drives to one of 18 check lanes situated in various parts of Chicago. The car is hooked up to a test equipment van, with an infra-red emissions probe inserted in the tail pipe and a lead attached to the ignition system. Information about the car is fed into a computer and emission readings are taken at two speeds — one at normal idle and a second at fast idle.

It is the computer and test machines, rather than the operator, that determines pass or fail. Since allowable limits differ for age of car and for private or commercial vehicles, the computer instantly compares the emissions of the car being tested and what permissible levels are. Results are simultaneously printed out for the car owner and flashed on the "scoreboard" for him to see.



All eyes are on the "scoreboard" that flashes results of the mandatory emissions test all Chicago cars must undergo. Since introduced in June 1973, tests have been held for tens of thousands of Chicago car-owners. About two of every three owners get the green "pass" light and one-third the red "fail" light. The "abort" light is for a small percentage of vehicles that cannot be tested due to major engine malfunctions or unadaptability to the testing equipment.

Cars that pass are adorned with a blue and white sticker which is valid for 12 months.

One Major Problem

Despite the fact that the emissions checks are mandatory, helpful to the environment, fairly fast and painless, the Chicago inspection program has one major problem. Not enough cars are being brought in to utilize the capacity of the check lanes.

According to program director Joe Seliber, "We try to remind motorists time is of the essence. While the law states a deadline for compliance, we urge motorists to have inspections done well before that deadline when facilities aren't crowded."

Pollution Wastes Gas

Seliber believes one approach to getting more cars in for testing lies in the current fuel crisis. He said that the same engine malfunctions that cause high emissions are the ones that waste gasoline. Once the high emissions are brought under control, gasoline consumption will go down.

Emissions inspections are conducted without extra cost to motorists as part of their annual Chicago car license fees. There are approximately one million vehicles in the city.

Buying Some New Tires? Put Best on Rear Wheels

When a person buys a new dishwasher, he's going to put it where he needs it most — in the kitchen. Safety experts say the same rule applies when buying new tires. Unless the car has front-wheel drive, tires should go where they're needed most — on the rear wheels.

"When selecting a pair of replacement tires in the same size and construction as already on the car, they should be put on the rear wheels for better traction and handling," says Ross R. Ormsby, Chairman of the Tire Industry Safety Council.

Many experts feel motorists who develop tire problems on the front axle, because of skidding or disablement, still have a certain degree of control over the vehicle with the steering wheel. However, when the problem occurs on the rear wheels most drivers have no way to compensate for skids or swerves before the vehicle can be stopped.

Tire safety experts from the National Bureau of Standards Office of Vehicle Systems Research Institute for Applied Technology surveyed independent studies conducted throughout the country and involving thousands of passenger cars. Their findings appear to agree with the Council's recommendations.

There is strong evidence that a significant number of car owners place least worn tires on the front wheels, whereas available accident experience indicates the least worn tires should be placed on the rear.

"Bald tires on the rear appear to be more of a safety hazard than on the front, a finding at variance with automotive folklore. And bald tires on wet pavement make a particularly hazardous combination.

"Vehicles in accidents have a larger number of severely worn tires on the rear than on the front, suggesting that it is safer to put newer or less worn tires on the rear," said the government survey.

When Sleep Is Not Good for You

"Asleep at the switch," an expression current during the days when railroads were a major means of transportation, could have a counterpart today, "Asleep at the wheel."

About 20% of all automobile accidents are believed to be the result of driver sleepiness. A survey in Oklahoma indicated that 48% of drivers involved in fatal accidents during the past 11 years had "fallen asleep" at the wheel.

Extended driving without rest is the chief cause — even three hours of driving without stopping can cause attention lapses of three or four seconds while driving.

COLOSSAL SAVINGS

If every motorist in the U.S. saved two gallons of gas a week, total yearly savings for the nation would exceed one billion gallons.

THINGS NEEDN'T COME TO THIS...

French are Lacking Facilities For Proper Maintenance

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Robert Ahier, who authors the accompanying report from France, has been a United Press International Staff Correspondent in Paris since 1944.

Ahier

His specialty has been coverage of the automotive industry in all of its aspects from racing and production through servicing since before joining the Paris UPI staff.

Mr. Ahier has a Master of Arts degree in Diplomacy and Law from Paris University and in the United States has studied Political Science and Philosophy at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn.

By ROBERT AHIER

In France one must take as good care of a car as of a wife, better if possible.

At least, this is what people used to say. Now Frenchwomen take very good care of themselves, thank you, and cars are becoming more and more difficult to service.

France is still far behind the United States in mass production of automobiles, highway construction, garages, parking lots and servicing. But since World War Two, the development of automobiles in this country has been startling . . . from an output of 34,625 cars in 1945 to a total 3.2 million in 1973.

Even more important, a big 55 per cent of the total production is exported all over the world.

Different in France

But maintaining a French-built car is basically different from doing the same in the United States. Cars here are smaller. An American compact ranks as a large car in Europe. Construction material is lighter.

A low-cost automobile weighs from 1,500 to 2,000 pounds. Engines are small, too, with the exception of sports cars. A typical widely-sold model boasts only 60 horsepower, three to four times less than an average American car.

French-built motors turn faster to reach maximum power, and thus they are more vulnerable to breakdown. An average car rarely makes it past 60,000 miles. Often city dwellers resell their cars to country folks

There is no real answer to this question.

Each of the four French automakers has tried to give its own answer by offering a year guarantee on parts, or a mileage guarantee on parts and labor or some combination of both, in their own registered garages.

But there are hardly enough garages to go around and a one-year guarantee means relatively little to a buyer who spends at least $2,000 on a small car.

In addition, the French cover much less ground each year than do Americans. Average mileage runs between 8 and 15,000 miles yearly. This means people want to keep their cars operating satisfactorily between three and five years.

Studies Being Made

The Common Market has now initiated wide and expensive studies to improve highway safety, pollution control and dependency of cars in the coming years. The Common Market governments are also taking measures to slow down the mass slaughter on roads and highways every weekend and during holidays.

A mandatory check-up of all cars every year or two years by a government-accredited body is also under discussion in government circles, in spite of the heavy costs involved.

A safe tip to North American drivers visiting Europe: don't take your car along with you. Rent one in Europe .

Tune-up:—A Car Care Service That Brings Prompt Pay-Off

QUESTION: What automotive service begins paying for itself once it is performed?

ANSWER: An engine tune-up.

* * *

In these days of skyrocketing gasoline prices, the money saved on gas after a tune-up is performed actually can recoup the cost of the tune-up itself. In addition, bonus benefits from a freshly tuned engine include lower emissions, better passing performance and surer starting.

According to figures issued by Champion Spark Plug Company which contain research findings on the effects of tune-up on car operation:

* * *

• Tests show that an 8.2 per cent improvement in gasoline economy can be achieved with a tune-up, when compared to driving a car that's traveled more than 10,000 miles since the last tune-up. Thus, nearly two gallons of gas per tankful can be saved by a newly tuned engine.

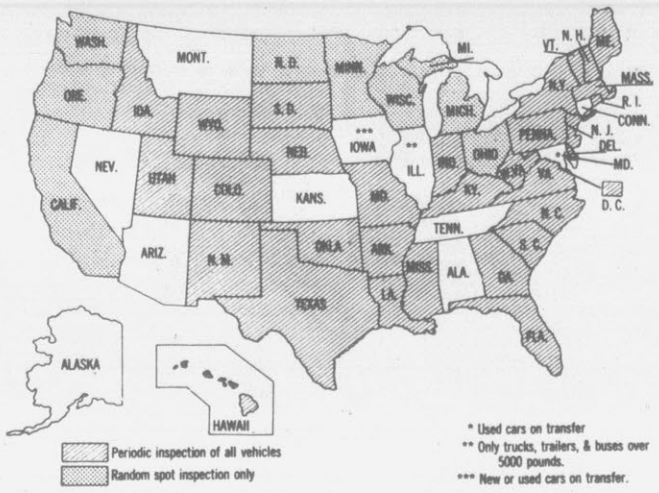
* * *

• Champion idle emission tests revealed a tuned engine produced 57 per cent less carbon monoxide and 48 per cent less hydrocarbons than engines in need of tune-up. Corresponding reductions also were realized at driving speeds.

* * *

• Champion tests showed the following increase in passing performance following an overdue tune-up. There was an average 8.6 per cent increase in engine power which would allow the car to pass another vehicle in 8.0 per cent less distance.

Mapping Car Inspections



ABOVE — Current guide to states with mandatory motor vehicle inspection laws that generally affect safety, not emissions or noise pollution.

* * *

• Tuned engines showed improved starting efficiency according to Champion tests. Untuned engines experience twice as many "won't starts" as tuned engines and required an average 15.4 per cent more time to start.

So, in the words of many automotive experts, "Tune-ups don't cost. They pay."

HELP ! ! !

If your car should break down on a busy highway, the Ontario Traffic Safety ministry suggests you take the following actions to summon help and create the least possible hazard to yourself and other motorists:

- Pull completely off the road onto the shoulder.
- Use your four-way emergency flashers.
- Lift up the hood of your car and tie a white handkerchief to the radio antenna or door handle.
- Use flares if you have them.

Inefficient Cooling Systems Can Cut Gasoline Mileage

No one pours gasoline in his radiator, but a car's cooling system can be responsible for reducing gasoline mileage. So can other car parts that seemingly have no connection with fuel consumption.

Since the condition of the cooling system affects engine performance, abnormalities in cooling temperatures curtail gasoline mileage. A faulty thermostat, causing an engine to run too cool, creates a condition where more gas is needed to maintain power. An overheating engine also hampers efficient combustion of fuel.

Inside the engine, a stuck heat riser valve also wastes gas. When this valve is not operating as it should, fuel is not vaporized efficiently and excess raw gas escapes into the exhaust.

As for the exhaust system itself, if there is any obstruction in it, fuel economy suffers. The reason is the obstruction will make the engine work harder and thus use more gas.

* * *

Poorly Timed Engine Means Loss Of Power; Demands More Gas

Other conditions that waste gas include poorly set ignition timing. A poorly timed engine means loss of engine power so more gasoline is needed to provide power necessary to operate.

Other engine power robbers and fuel wasters include clogged PCV valve, plus other malfunctioning anti-pollution devices and poor compression due to bad valves or other engine defect.

To detect and correct any of these gas wasters, bring your car into your favorite service outlet for a tune-up. Don't be surprised if the fuel you save almost pays for the cost of that tune-up.

Proper Car Care Crucial to Cleaner Air

Federal Environmental Chief Calls Untuned Motor 'Trouble'

By RUSSELL E. TRAIN
Administrator, Environmental Protection Agency

Automobiles are an important part of the American way of life. Since the 1920's, while the population of the United States doubled, the number of automobiles has increased 800 percent.

Today we have nearly 100 million registered automobiles in this country, virtually one for every two persons. And three out of every four Americans are licensed to drive those automobiles.

Our entire way of life has been restructured, especially since the end of World War II, to accomodate the tremendous increase in the number of automobiles and the mobility which they afford. We have built our lives around the automobile and are now almost totally dependent upon some form of personal transportation.

Relying on the automobile's capabilities most of us have situated ourselves beyond practical walking or cycling distances of relatives, friends, jobs, stores, churches, medical and recreational facilities, libraries and theaters. And on top of this, in most areas public transit today is either inadequate or nonexistent.

Major Pollutants

As a result the automobile has become the single most important source of three major air pollutants.

It is estimated that in 1971, on a nationwide basis, gasoline powered motor vehicles contributed 43 percent of the hydrocarbons, 62 percent of the carbon monoxide, and 31 percent of the nitrogen oxide emitted into the air.

In many cities, however, these motor vehicles contributed far more than the national averages — reaching the 90 percent range in some cities.

The Clean Air Act of 1970 requires the automobile industry to reduce these emissions by at least 90 percent by 1976, as compared with 1970 or 1971 emission levels.

Even with these major reductions, the Environmental Protection Agency has determined that more than 35 metropolitan areas in the United States, having a combined population of 88 million, would not be able to meet the health-related air quality standards of the Clean Air Act by the law's 1975 deadline unless stricter controls were imposed on pollution sources.

Half Reach Goal

About one-half of these cities can reach their goals by being tougher on stationary sources, primarily industrial and commercial facilities, and through transit improvements, parking restrictions and automotive inspection and maintenance programs.

Proper engine maintenance, enforced by sound inspection programs, is an important part of every community's effort to reduce and control air pollution. The amount of pollution reduction through inspection and maintenance programs varies among cities because nearly every city has to cope with circumstances somewhat different from the others.

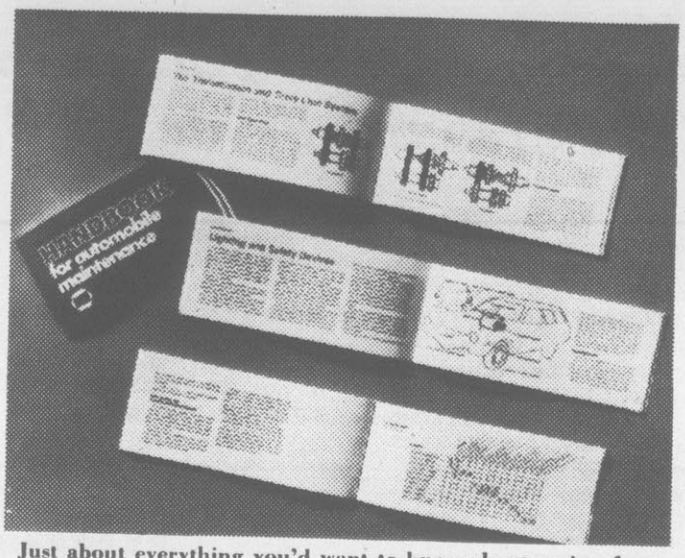
Portland Acts

Portland, Oregon anticipates a 12 percent reduction in pollutants through its inspection and maintenance program; Denver and Sacramento look for about a 7 percent reduction and Boston about 3 percent.

Annual emissions inspection in State-operated facilities will cost an estimated $2 per vehicle. Annual maintenance costs are expected to be in the $20 to $30 range for vehicles which fail the inspection test. Most of this maintenance is routine work which would normally have been performed voluntarily by prudent motorists.

In addition to the pollution-control benefits, the Department of Interior estimates that an auto tuneup every six months will cut American oil consumption by 140,000 barrels a day.

A properly tuned car may seem like a small way to cope with today's pollution and energy problems.



Just about everything you'd want to know about caring for a car is contained in the Automotive Information Council's "Handbook for Automobile Maintenance." The booklet explains how various systems work, how to spot potential trouble and how to maintain various components. Copies may be ordered for 25 cents from AIC Handbook, P.O. How They Care for Their Cars Abroad

Automobile Maintenance Matter Of Personal Pride in Britain

CONTRIBUTING THIS ARTICLE IS DOUG MITCHELL, Editor of "Popular Motoring," a monthly journal for British motorists, many of whom like to service and repair their own cars.

By DOUG MITCHELL

Any dry Saturday or Sunday in the residential streets of British towns you will see them. Legs sticking out from under a time expired heap, a torso bent over an engine compartment, or maybe a young couple adding a final gleam to shining bodywork.

The typical British motorist is tending his pride and joy. Old or young, they all have one thing in common — they love their cars.

And in many ways they are right to do so. A car, any car, given the attention it needs will respond like a healthy dog and run well. Neglected, it will become dull and lifeless.

We are very economy minded in Britain, and especially boast about the number of miles we can squeeze from each gallon of fuel, and economy begins with a well tuned engine.

Probably the most important thing in tuning is to make sure that the ignition system is working properly. Some people will leave things to themselves until, one day, the engine refuses to start, but long before that happens fuel is being wasted by not being fully burned.

Plug Check Advised

Spark plugs are supposed to have a working life of around 10,000 miles but it is quite possible that they will be "off-song" well before that.

An electronic engine diagnosis is not expensive and if carried out every 5,000 miles, any weak spots can be located and rectified before they develop. Contact breaker points in the distributor are usually changed at 5,000 mile intervals but I prefer to change mine every 3,000. They cost little and the benefits are sure starting and better combustion.

A simple thing which will cause an over-rich carburetor mixture and, therefore, high fuel consumption, is a dirty air cleaner. This will restrict the air intake so that excessive fuel is drawn into the combustion chambers and, in addition to high consumption, performance will be down and engine wear up due to dilution of the sump oil.

An engine which reaches its full running temperature quickly is better all round. To encourage this, I recommend fitting an adjustable radiator blind, especially for winter driving. If you do, I also recommend fitting a temperature gauge if you haven't one already to avoid over-cooking it!

Right Tyre Pressure

Another very simple maintenance job which repays handsomely, is keeping the right tyre pressures. If they are too high or too low the treads will wear more rapidly and, believe it or not, the extra drag from soft tyres will increase fuel consumption.

But without doubt, the biggest factor in keeping down gas bills is your right foot. It has been proved over many Economy Events that light acceleration coupled with good traffic anticipation will result in savings of 25 per cent and more. So treat the gas pedal as if it had an egg on it!

One thing you must do — or have done — regularly is an engine oil change. The usual interval is 6,000 miles, but if a car is used mainly for short runs about town, I would halve that period.

Nibble at Vitals

On short trips the engine never really gets warmed up, and by-products of combustion collect in the sump instead of being boiled away through the exhaust. Acids form and nibble away at the vitals severely reducing engine life.

It isn't possible in a short article like this to cover more than a few main points of car care, so I have concentrated mainly on the fuel economy aspect. The things which I have mentioned are all easy to do yourself, and if you do even just one of them, you will reap a benefit.

WHEN A PROBLEM DRINKER DRIVES, IT'S YOUR PROBLEM.

Problem drinkers were responsible for 19,000 highway deaths last year. That is your problem.

Because they didn't kill only themselves. They killed people they loved, people they'd never met, people like you.

If your friend has a drinking problem, there are many ways you can help him. But first you must help him stay alive. So others may live.

If you are really his friend, don't help him drink. Admittedly, you alone probably can't stop a problem drinker from drinking. But you can discourage it.

If he has been drinking, don't let him drive. Drive him yourself. Call a cab. Take his car keys.

It won't be easy. After all, he is your friend. You don't want to hurt him or insult him. But the alternative is perhaps losing him.

Detroit Looking Ahead To 1980 And 1995

By EDWARD S. LECHTZIN
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT (UPI) — While most Americans still don't know what the 1975-model cars will look like, automotive executives are lining up their plans for 1980 and even looking ahead to 1995.

Higher gasoline prices and the shift toward cars that are smaller, or get better gas mileage, are here to stay and will be a key factor in determining what cars in 1980 and 1995 will look like.

By 1980, smaller and lighter cars with new power sources and fuel-saving transmissions will be a fact. On-board computers will help control and diagnose engine problems before they are noticeable.

Twenty years from now, however, "will be a whole new ball game," said Fred G. Secrest, a Ford Motor Co., executive vice president who is one of the men charged with looking into a cloudy crystal ball and making the right decisions.

The auto industry still will be strong in 1995, Secrest predicted, because "it adapted to the energy challenge, developed new technology and people still will want the freedom and convenience of personal mobility."

Key to Design

Energy conservation will be the "key" to automobile design and use from now on, Secrest said, because of the higher cost and potential shortage of fuel.

Some of the things that will affect the outlook for 1980 are the gasoline lines of the past few months, increased car pooling and greater use of public transit.

"I am convinced that automotive lifestyles in 1980 will look pretty familiar, even though a good many changes will have taken place," said Secrest, head of the Operations Staffs. "The challenge to the car industry is to design big cars that will get 20 miles per gallon, and little cars that will get 30 miles or more to the gallon."

Some of the changes in automotive design and technology that will help improve gas mileage substantially by 1980, according to Secrest, could include:

Lightweight Cars

—Lighter weight cars through more use of aluminum, plastics, high-strength steel, smaller engines and designs that provide a better ratio of usable space to over-all size.

—Improved aerodynamics to reduce wind resistance and radial tires that provide between 6 and 9 per cent more gas mileage.

— Automatic transmissions with fluid torque converters that "lock up" in high gear, in order to provide high-gear fuel economy equal to that of manual transmissions. There also will be greater availability of manual transmissions with four or perhaps five speeds, with an overdrive top gear.

—Variable carburetors that adjust to provide the best fuel economy for specific speeds.

—New forms of the internal combustion engine to utilize fuel better. The rotary engine, Secrest said, will see only limited use "because of its inherently high fuel consumption."

New Energy Sources

These are some of the developments that look good for 1980. But shifts in energy sources and other unforeseen developments in the next five years could cause even more severe changes in the industry than have occured in the past few months.

Not being able to forecast the immediate effects an energy crisis would have on car sales has cost the industry dearly this year and put more than 100,000 workers—one-seventh of the industry's work force—on indefinite layoff.

Industry executives are hoping they'll be able to forecast the changes a little better in the coming years.

Solar Power

He sees the use of solar power or energy from nuclear fusion to heat and light homes, stores and offices and run factories and railroads. That would free petroleum for cars, trucks and aircraft. The size, shape and power plant of automobiles probably will be new.

"Perhaps they will be powered by the 'external combustion' Stirling engine or by a gas turbine," the Ford executive said. "Electric power certainly is a possibility but it will probably be limited, at best, to special-purpose, short-range vehicles for urban and suburban use.

"Steam, or Rankine cycle, engines will probably not be used because of excessive size, weight, complexity, cost and fuel consumption."

SAVE GAS.

A lot of it. In nationwide fuel economy tests, motorists' cars were tested before and after a tune-up. Results showed that a tune-up with new Champion spark plugs saved, on the average, a gallon of gasoline in every tankful. Considering that 3 of every 5 cars on the road need a tune-up right now, tune-ups alone could save us millions of gallons of gasoline each week.

Tune-ups benefit us in other ways, too. Quicker acceleration for safer passing. Dependable starts. Plus a substantial reduction in emissions.

See your mechanic regularly for a Champion tune-up. Once a year or every 10,000 miles.

Indy 500 Changed

The Indianapolis 500, considered the most prestigious auto race in the world, is undergoing the largest number of chances since the first event at the old Brickyard. Last year's tragic $1 million classic, as well as the recent energy crisis, dictated many of the sweeping alterations.

Raising the outside wall all around the 2.5 mile oval, widening the fourth turn and enlarging the pit area are the primary physical changes. The new wider pit entrance has a specially engineered bumper device on its point to provide an additional safety precaution. The fourth turn now provides a straighter chute into the pits and more escape area for on the track trouble. Also, longer pit areas for each car are expected to diminish congestion on the track.

The starters' stand has been moved to an elevated position on the outside of the track, on the lower floor of a new and modern communications center. From the communication center telephone and radio contact will be maintained around the oval as well as between the working officials throughout the race.

Indy has also added another new grandstand. This now provides the Brickyard with a permanent seating capacity for almost a quarter-million spectators.

With respect to the energy crunch, the track opened a week later than usual with qualifications on two days in lieu of the regular four. In addition to eliminating two qualifcations days, the speedway has curtailed the hours the facility will be open. These measures were taken to the Federal Energy Commission's 25 percent reduction in fuel consumption request.

Cars will be limited to 40 gallons of on-board fuel with a 280 gallon total limit. The 280 figure will allow around 1.8 miles to the gallon. This should slow down the speeds and diminish mechanical failures.

There are 68 entrants in this year's event, but only 45 are considered contenders for the 33 starting spots. Included among the entrants are: three times champion A. J. Foyt and winners Mario Andretti, Bobby Unser, Al Unser, and Gordon Johncock. Also on hand are the veterans Roger McCluskey, Jim McElreath and Lloyd Ruby.

SUNDAY SPECIAL—ABC Sports will capture the many faces of the world's most popular and prestigious auto race, the Indianapolis "500", a two-hour special telecast airing (8:30-10:30 p.m.) on Race Day Sunday, on channels 3W-5-12. Seen here (clockwise from upper left) racing star Mario Andretti talking with world driving champion Jackie Stewaet; the color and pageantry of the traditional Indy parade; and racing great Bobby Unser about to don his crash helmet.

HOSTS EMMY SHOW—Johnny Carson, star of NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson," will be the host of the 26th annual Emmy Awards Show, to be colorcast live Tuesday, May 28 (9-11 p.m.) on channels 6-7.

A THIRD PARTY?

Will black Americans form a third major political party? Is the United States ready for one? Wednesday, May 29 at 10:00 p.m. on UNC-TV Channel 25, the development of black power will be explored.

The Pursuit Of Youth Depicted

Trimming five or 10 years off one's appearance with a face lift was once the exclusive domain of the wealthy dowager or aging movie star. Today, even the middle-aged middle-class secretary and construction worker undergo plastic surgery in an effort to look young.

They're all seeking that mythical Fountain of Youth, pursued by mankind since the first caveman saw the wrinkles of his face reflected in a pond. How today's middle-aged Americans attempt to turn back the clock while waiting impatiently for scientists to find the "cause" and "cure" for old age is explored in "The Pursuit of Youth," a tv special scheduled for Thursday, May 30 (10-11 p.m.) on channel 6-7.

"Plastic surgeons lift faces, breasts and behinds, and slice off fat that diets won't shed," explains Lucy Jarvis, the distinguished NBC news producer. "Health spas pound, cleanse and starve us. Health stores woo, scare and bilk us. And scientists tell us that the secret to long life is within our grasps."

The program will take a close look, adds Mrs. Jarvis, at "how we leave no stone unturned in our pursuit of youth while we wait for that magical formula. We'll examine the spas of Switzerland, the chemists of Rumania and the blade of the plastic surgeon's knife.

With a script in the form of a personal essay by Dr. Isaac Asimov, the noted author and biochemist, the program will also explore the reasons why so many Americans are afraid to grow old.

And by concentrating on the vigorous activities of some elderly persons, celebrities as well as the not-so-famous, it will show that, as Mrs. Jarvis says, "there is really little an older person cannot do."

Proven Teaching Technique Is Used

A New York advertising executive with six sons was puzzled because his ten - year - old could memorize the words of every rock song he heard, but the boy could not remember multiplication tables.

The paradox occurred to the ad man, David B. McCall, president of McCaffrey and McCall, Inc., when he was vacationing with his family on a ranch in Montana.

"It struck me in the clear air of the Rockies", said McCall, a third generation New Yorker, "that it would be good to put the two together —music and multiplication."

That was the genesis of "Multiplication Rock," the ABC series of animated films, each dealing with an individual number. The informational programs are telecast in four minute segments, eight times each weekend throughout the children's program bloc.

McCall originally thought only in terms of producing a record with the multiplication tables set to music and when he returned to Manhattan he promptly asked a composer to do the work. But the results were flatly "no good," he remembers.

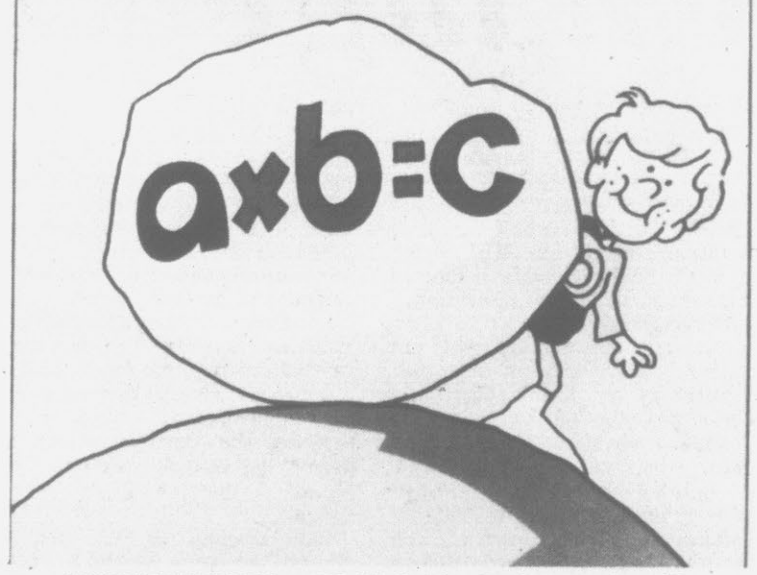
The project was dropped for a year until he met Bob Dorough, a performer - composer who came from Arkansas with stops along the way at North Texas State Teachers College, Columbia University, Paris, and some other places.

"He did more with the idea than I ever dreamed could be done," commented McCall.

Then the advertising agency chief asked the Bank Street College of Education, where he had served on the board of directors, to test two songs. The college experimented with the songs in eight inner city and suburban schools.

"They found that the things worked like a charm," said McCall. "The songs were a wonderful way to introduce a traditionally dull subject and we felt encouraged to proceed."

The songs struck Tom Yohe, the co-creative director at the McCaffrey and McCall agency, as visual and he developed designs.



ANIMATED FILMS — "Multiplication Rock." a series of four-minute animated films, each dealing with an individual number, is televised on ABC eight times each weekend throughout the children's programming bloc. Set to lively contemporary music and lyrics, each film focuses on a specific numeral to teach the multiplication tables. The Sunday, May 26 (10:55-11 a.m.) segment will be "Lucky Seven Sampson."

A LITTLE LUXURY

Expensive needn't mean extravagant. A little luxury material can go a long way in decorating. The trick is to use the costly material in an area, where it can make a real impact. Often, by concentrating pattern, color, and design in a small space, you can use less of a frankly expensive fabric, paper, or paneling, yet get big decorating effects. Look into the use of wall coverings and window treatments with careful consideration.
Careful consideration should be taken when selecting new carpeting for your home. We offer the largest variety in the area and expert installation is assured. Eastern Carpet Inc., 602 West Greenville Blvd., Greenville. 756-1944. "Where There's Always A Sale." "Carpet is our Business, Not a Hobby."

Ranks Split Over Cancer War Issues

Three Nobel Prize-winning scientists figure importantly in a report on the "war within the war" on cancer to be shown on "NBC News Presents: Special Edition" Sunday, May 26 (10-11 p.m.) on channel 6-7.

"When this country declared war on cancer in 1971, everyone applauded," Bob Rogers, who produced the report, says. "But now a number of scientists are having second thoughts. There is, in fact, a war within the war on cancer, and its outcome will affect the lives of all of us."

The report spotlights the fight between government officials and scientists over how money should be spent. "What the scientists are upset about," Mr. Rogers says, "is not so much the war on cancer itself, but what they perceive as the Nixon Administration's approach to basic bio-medical research."

The nobel laureates voicing their views in the report are Dr. Arthur Korneberg, head of the department of biochemistry, Stanford University, co-recipient of the prize in medicine in 1959; Dr. Joshua Lederberg, professor of genetics, Stanford School of Medicine, co-recipient of the prize in physiology and medicine in 1958; and Dr. Salvador Luria, professor of biology, MIT, co-recipient of the prize in medicine in 1969.

The thrust of the report, according to Mr. Rogers, is that many promiment American scientists believe that the war on cancer is being conducted in a way that may be self-defeating. "The reason for this," he says, "is that the emphasis is on applied research directly related to cancer problems, at the expense of basic research. Most scientists feel the answers to cancer will eventually come from basic research."

Man At Work Inside Robot

Twenty - six - year - old Bill Malone was rather excited about working with Peter Falk, star of the "Columbo" segments of the "NBC Sunday Mystery Movies."

It was probably the first time on the series that the invincible Columbo couldn't see the face of the person he was talking to.

Malone is the man behind the robot in the "Mind Over Mayhem" episode of "Columbo," to be colorcast Sunday, June 2 (8:30-10 p.m.), on Channel 6-7. Actually, Malone is the man in the robot. He will not be seen by television viewers, only his "son" — as he calls his creation — is seen.

From within, Malone pushes buttons to operate the gyros and scanners and works the controls that operate the robot's hands.

"There's a lot of machinery but you really couldn't say it was mechanical," Bill said, pointing out that the robot is primarily man operated.

Dinah Is Bringing More Celebrities

Following is the program schedule for "Dinah's Place" for the week of May 27-31. Air time is 10-10:30 a.m.

Monday, May 27 — Eric Olson and Vincent Van Patten, who play the two young sons in TV's "Apple's Way," show how to prepare snacks that youngsters like. Camp director Rochelle Hoffman gives tips on selecting summer camps. Dinah makes "apple no-name cake" and sings "Hello Faddah."

Tuesday, May 28 — Julia Meade prepares pot roast and vegetables. Dr. Neil Solomon offers dieting tips and suggests exercises. Dinah sings "Come Saturday Morning."

Wednesday, May 29 — Actor Bill Bixby and his wife, actress Brenda Benet, discuss their marriage and how it relates to their work. Master gardener Jerry Baker shows what plants to use in the bedroom, and Dinah sings "Touch Me in the Morning."

Thursday, May 30 — Dr. David Fisher, president of the San Francisco Psychological Association, leads a discussion on child behavior. Dinah sings "Yakkity-Yak."

Friday, May 31 — Gina Lollobrigida talks about her life, loves and career after turning 40 and discusses her book, "Italia Mia." Dinah and Gina prepare spaghetti ala carbonare, and sing "Volare." Gina gives grooming tips to members of the audience.

BIG BUFF

When Demond Wilson, star of "Sanford and Son," appeared for the taping of the May 28 special, "The Bluffers," he dressed as an Indian. Someone asked him what tribe he belonged to and Wilson answered: "I'm a West Indian."

Daytime Emmy Show Planned

Barbara Walters and Peter Marshall will host "The First Daytime Emmy Awards Presentation," to be colorcast on channels 6-7, Tuesday, May 28 (12 noon to 1:30 p.m.).

The broadcast will mark television's first Emmy Awards presentation designed specifically to honor outstanding achievement in daytime programming.

The daytime awards program, which will originate live from New York City's outdoor Rockefellar Plaza, will be presented on the afternoon of the annual prime-time entertainment Emmy Awards show, to be telecast from the Pacific Pantages Theater in Hollywood with Johnny Carson as host (9-11 p.m.).

Miss Walters, featured on the "Today" program, also hosts her own syndicated show, "Not For Women Only," and broadcasts on NBC Radio's "Monitor."

She has accepted many challenging assignments, including one with the News team that accompanied President Nixon to the People's Republic of China. More recently, she traveled to England to report on the wedding of Princess Anne. Her many newsmaking interviews include one with Henry Kissinger following his peace negotiations with the North Vietnamese, and one with Mrs. Nixon after her return from a goodwill tour of West Africa.

Peter Marshall, in addition to hosting the highly popular game show "The Hollywood Squares," is also an actor, singer and writer. He starred on Broadway with Julie Harris in "Skyscraper" and headed the London company of "Bye Bye Bridie." The television personality recently completed a summer tour of "Music Man" and performed an eight-month stint in two other musicals—"High Button Shoes" and "Anything Goes" in Las Vegas. Marshall has made several records, written the screenplay for the film "Wild in the Sky" and starred in two films—"Ensign Pulver and "The Cavern."

DAYTIME HOST—Barbara Walters, co-host of "The First Daytime Emmy Awards Presentation," to be colorcast Tuesday, May 28 (12 noon-1:30 p.m.) on NBC-TV, poses with one of the coveted statuettes.

Jane Fonda In Comedy Film

Academy Award winner Jane Fonda (Best Actress, 1971, for "Klute"), Jason Robards and Dean Jones star in "Any Wednesday," a comedy based on Muriel Resnik's Broadway stage success, to be colorcast on "NBC Friday Night at the Movies" May 31 (9-11 p.m.) on channels 6-7.

Six days every week, millionaire industrialist John Cleves (Robards) is a faithful husband; but each Wednesday, while supposedly on a business trip, he visits his girlfriend, Ellen Gordon (Miss Fonda) in a New York apartment charged to one of his corporations as an executive suite.

India Tour Turned Chad To Acting

Chad Everett, star of "Medical Center," decided on an acting career after he was selected as one of the 12 actors to tour India in repertory for the U.S. State Department.

He auditioned for the tour while attending Wayne University — without knowing it.

A group from the State Department saw Chad in a college play and a week later, he learned he had been chosen for the project. Over 700 had been auditioned by the State Department.

He has also lived in South Ben, Ind., Birmingham, Ala. and the Michigan cities of Detroit and Dearborn. He went to Hollywood after a meeting, in New York, with William T. Orr, Warner Bros. vice president in charge of production. Chad was modeling college clothes at the time.

In Hollywood on an option, Chad was given parts in the "Bronco" and "Surf-Side 6" series in lieu of a screen test. His performances clinched a contract. He played a leading role opposite Diane McBain in the motion picture "Claudelle Inglish."

Chad was born on June 11 in South Bend. He attended Fordson High School in Dearborn, Mich., where at 17 he made his first stage appearance. Later, while a student at the Henry Ford Community College, Michigan State University and Wayne University, he participated in dramatics. He also played football and took part in track events.

Other than acting, he has worked as a salesman, truck driver, professional model and announcer.

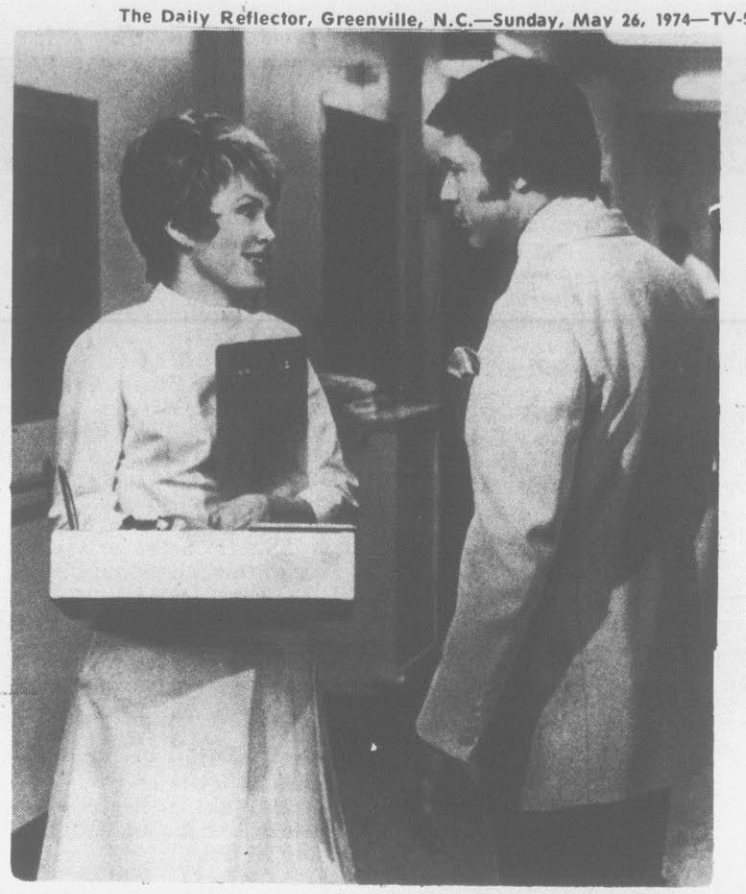
His hobbies are writing songs and poetry.

He keeps in shape by doing 100 pushups and 50 sits a day. This regimen counteracts the effect of his passion for steak with mushrooms, Indian shrimp curry and spaghetti.



RUSH IN A RUSH — Barbara Rush in the role of a hospital lab technician is stopped by Chad Everett on one of her busy rounds. In this "Choice of Evils" episode of "Medical Center." airing on Monday, May 27, (10-11 p.m.) on channels 9-11. Miss Rush faces the dilemma of trying to convince her desperately ill ex-husband to undergo life-saving surgery even though it may make him impotent.

Comedy Will Make Debut

Tony Randall stars as an underwater development expert who proves his point about the wave of the future by moving his family into an underwater home, in "Hello Down There," a comedy making its television debut as "The ABC Monday Night Movie" on May 27 (9-11 p.m.) on channels 3-5-12.

Janet Leigh is starred as the wife, whose only problem in moving to their new neighborhood is the fact that she is terrified of the water.

Jim Backus, Roddy McDowall and Ken Berry are co-starred, with Merv Griffin making a special guest appearance as himself.

In the story, Fred Miller (Tony Randall) has designed and built an underwater house as part of his research and development work for T. R. Hollister (Jim Backus). Unfortunately, Hollister considers the idea absurd and is going to fire Fred until Fred offers to prove the feasibility of underwater living by moving his own family into the house for 30 days.

HOLDEN STARS — William Holden stars as the troubled parent who tries to fill his dying boy's final days with love, in "The Christmas Tree" on "The CBS Thursday Night Movies" Thursday, May 30 (9-11 p.m.) in color on channel 9-11.

New Films Acquired

NBC-TV has acquired a bundle of 17 new feature films for the coming season, and the titles indicate a definite move toward more action-adventure in the network's picture selections.

Holden Plays Sad Father

William Holden stars, along with Virna Lisi, as the torn and troubled father of a dying child, in "The Christmas Tree," to be seen for the first time on television on "The CBS Thursday Night Movies" Thursday, May 30 (9-11 p.m.) on channel 9-11. Brook Fuller appears as Pascal, the child.

While vacationing in Europe, a welathy widower, Laurent, and his young son witness an airplane accident that fills the atmosphere with radiation. Laurent is saved by swimming underweater, but Pascal is exposed to the poisoning and develops leukemia.

Award Goes To Schenkel

Sportscaster Chris Schenkel has been honored with the 1974 Distinguished Service Award of the Billiard and Bowling Institute of America.

The Award is given for significant contributions to the bowling and billiards industries. Schenkel regularly hosts the ABC telecasts of the "Professional Bowlers Tour.

Previous recipients of the citation, given annually for the past 20 years, include the late J. Edgar Hoover; television and motion picture star Jackie Gleason, and Willie Mosconi, member of the Billiard Congress of America's Hall of Fame and one of the lgendary performers in the sport.

Emmy Show Proves Tough

"Being the host and doing a monologue for the Emmy Awards presentation is like doing my monologue for the 'Tonight Show' — there's no place to break it in and you only get one crack at it," says Johnny Carson. For the fourth consecutive year, Carson will host the annual Emmy Awards Show, to be colorcast live Tuesday, May 28, on channels 6-7, (9-11 p.m.) from Hollywood's Pacific Pantages Theater.

"It's true," Carson continues, "that with the Emmy show we have more time to prepare, but my monologue, or jokes, still cannot be tested as you might test material for a nightclub act or a stage show.

"When I plan my nightclub act, I try some of the material in front of live audiences and there is always time to edit what we feel might not be good."

Carson also points out the obvious problem in hosting such a show: "Our live audience is composed mostly of people in the entertainment business, while our TV audience is the average viewing public. Sometimes it's difficult to know how far to go with a 'trade' joke. We can't be too 'inside.' For example, last year I opened the show by saying, 'Welcome to an evening with Yorkin and Lear.' I was, of course, referring to the previous year when their TV shows won a lot of awards. I am not sure how many viewers caught that line.

Stars Of MGM Will Be Guests

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's famous promotional slogan, "More stars than there are in heavy," aptly describes the "Wide World Special" on "ABC Wide World of Entertainment," Wednesday, May 29 (11:30 p.m. - 1 a.m.).

Entitled "That's Entertainment: 50 Years of MGM," the program will take viewers to the premiere of a new movie and a gala banquet attended by film stars who have been under contract to the famous Hollywood studio.

The guest list includes Elizabeth Taylor, Liza Minnelli, Fred Astaire, Frank Sinatra, James Stewart, Gene Kelly, June Allyson, Leslie Caron, Cyd Charisse, Rita Hayworth, Margaret O'Brien, Jimmy Durante, Russ Tamblyn, Sammy Davis, Jr., Jack Haley, Sr., Howard Keel, Dany Dailey, Xavier Cugat, Lucille Ball, Robert Young and Charlton Heston. And, as they say in show business, many, many more.

The show will open with the arrival of celebrities at the Beverly Hills Theater in Beverly Hills, Calif., to see the world premiere performance of "That's Entertainment," a film which showcases musical segments from a half-century of MGM productions.

Army Archerd of the Hollywood Reporter will greet the arrivals as he does at many Hollywood premieres.

After the conclusion of the movie, the TV cameras will follow the celebrities as they walk down a red-carpeted Wilshire Boulevard to the posh Beverly Wilshire Horel. There they will attend a banquet hosted by George Hamilton and his wife, Alana, who will interview the stars.

Segements of the stars' most famous movies will be integrated into the interviews.

METHOD MAN

Sinatra Stars In Spy Drama

Academy Award winner Frank Sinatra (Best Supporting Actor, 1953) stars in "The Naked Runner," an espionage drama with unusual plot twists, May 29 (9-11 p.m.) on Channels 6-7, on "NBC Wednesday Night at the Movies."

Sam Laker (Sinatra), an American widower who designs furniture in England, is planning to take his teen-age son, Patrick (Michael Newport), on a business trip to the Leipzig Fair behind the Iron Curtain. Before he leaves, Laker gets a call from a wartime buddy, Martin Slattery (Peter Vaughan), with whom he served in Special Operations in Germany. Slattery, who is with British Intelligence, wants Laker to deliver a message in Leipzig. Reluctantly, Laker agrees.

Monte Hall In Special Show

Monty Hall, the man who has put together some of the most fantastic "deals" on "Let's Make a Deal," has come up with another big deal.

It comes in the form of a comedy and music special, "Monty Hall at Sea World," airing Friday, May 31 (8-9 p.m.) on channel 3W-5-12.

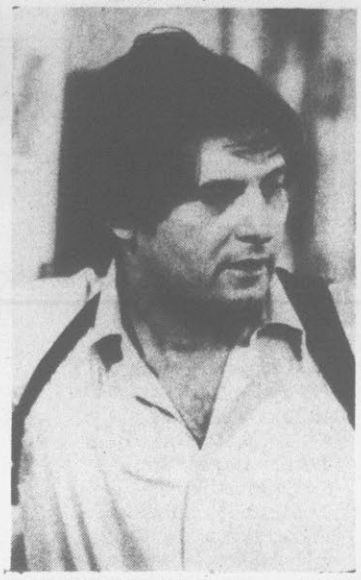
"I know it's the type of show everyone—grandparents, parents and kids alike will all enjoy," says Monty. "I am very happy with the show and the way it came out."

Monty said, "That's the fun of doing whatever you want. A person has the opportunity to be a complete entertainer. For that reason I am really enjoying this year."

PlanSummaries On Hearings

CBS-TV plans to air unscheduled half-hour or hourlong CBS News special summary reports, anchored by Walter Cronkite, on the House Judiciary Committee impeachment hearings whenever news developments warrant.

The News specials, which are expected to air at 11:30 p.m. are designed to complement the live and delayed coverage being offered by the three networks.



JOSEPH BOLOGNA portrays Salvator Bonnano, heir apparent to his father Joseph "Joe Bananas" Bonanno, allegedly once a powerful gang leader, in "Honor Thy Father." The two-hour special film presentation has its world premiere on "The CBS Friday Night Movies" May 31 (9-11) p.m.) on channels 3N-9-11.

GEAR GAP

Claude Akins, who will star in the new fall series, "In Tandem," as a gypsy trucker, says: "I first learned to double-clutch when I drove trucks in the Signal Corps, but it still doesn't help me to remember which gear I'm in."

Lynx Is A Friend

The story of the unusual friendship between a Russian forest ranger and an orphaned lynx is told in "Friends for Life," an adventure film from Russia which will be rebroadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival" Saturday, June 1, (1-2 p.m.)

The ranger rescues the injured baby lynx, whose mother has been killed by a bear, nurses it back to health with the help of the ranger's German shepherd dog, and the three become close and loyal friends.

The lynx grows into a fine, strong animal, and the ranger refuses many offers to sell him.

New Children's Film Series In September

Arch Whiting has been cast in the leading role of Sergeant Cory in the new Saturday morning series, "Run, Joe, Run," which will make its debut on NBC-TV in September (9:30-10 a.m., in color).

With the casting of Whiting in the key role of the dog handler who seeks his runaway canine friend, Joe, the series began production in and around Los Angeles this week.

Joe is played by a German shepherd named Heinrich, who has been trained specifically to portray an Army attack dog unjustly accused of turning on his master, thus being labeled a killer. The episodes will depict the adventures of the runaway Joe as he eludes his captors, as well as his friend, Sergeant Cory, who knows of the dog's innocence and tries to catch the animal so he can clear him.

Arch Whiting is a veteran of various TV action shows, including "Barnaby Jones," "Cannon," "Streets of San Francisco" and the "F.B.I."

Actress Wrote Tense Thriller

Actress Yvette Mimieux turns writer and writer Tracy Keenan Wynn turns director for "The Deadly Touch," a tense thriller which has just completed production for airing next season on ABC's "Movie of the Week."

Miss Mimieux will also star in her first screenplay. Wynn who wrote the highly acclaimed "Tribes" for the network's "Movie of the Week" three seasons ago and has been nominated for an Emmy this season as adaptor of "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman," will be directing his father, Keenan Wynn, in this first directorial outing.

'GO' Visits Coast Guard Activities

Activities of the U. S. Coast Guard and its helicopter unit stationed at Floyd Bennet Field on Long Island, in New York are the subject of "GO" Saturday, June 1 (12:30-1 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Lt. Bob Gravino spends much of his time in such matters as keeping an eye on the pleasure boats in New York harbor, looking for oil or sewage pollution, checking on the Russian Fishing Fleet in off-shore waters, and watching the busy traffic of ocean liners and freighters in New York Harbor.

"GO" will watch not only these activities, but also three special emergencies that Lt. Gravino and his helicopter became involved in: hoisting a man with appendicitis from the deck of a boat, coordinating the amphibious rescue of a disabled drifting boat, and rescuing three men from a fire at sea. Host and narrator is actor Leonard Nimoy.

Quail Hollow Strain Is Rewarding

The four finishing holes of the Kemper Open, played at the Quail Hollow Country Club in Charlotte, N. C., with its $250,000 in prize money, to be broadcast Saturday, June 1 (5-6 p.m.) and Sunday, June 2 (4-5 p.m.) on channel 9-11, make for a powerful course. Playing to 7,219 yards and a par-72, Quail Hollow is the longest course on the PGA Tour.

For the benefit of viewers of the Sports presentation, the following is a size-up of the four finishing holes to be covered on the broadcasts:

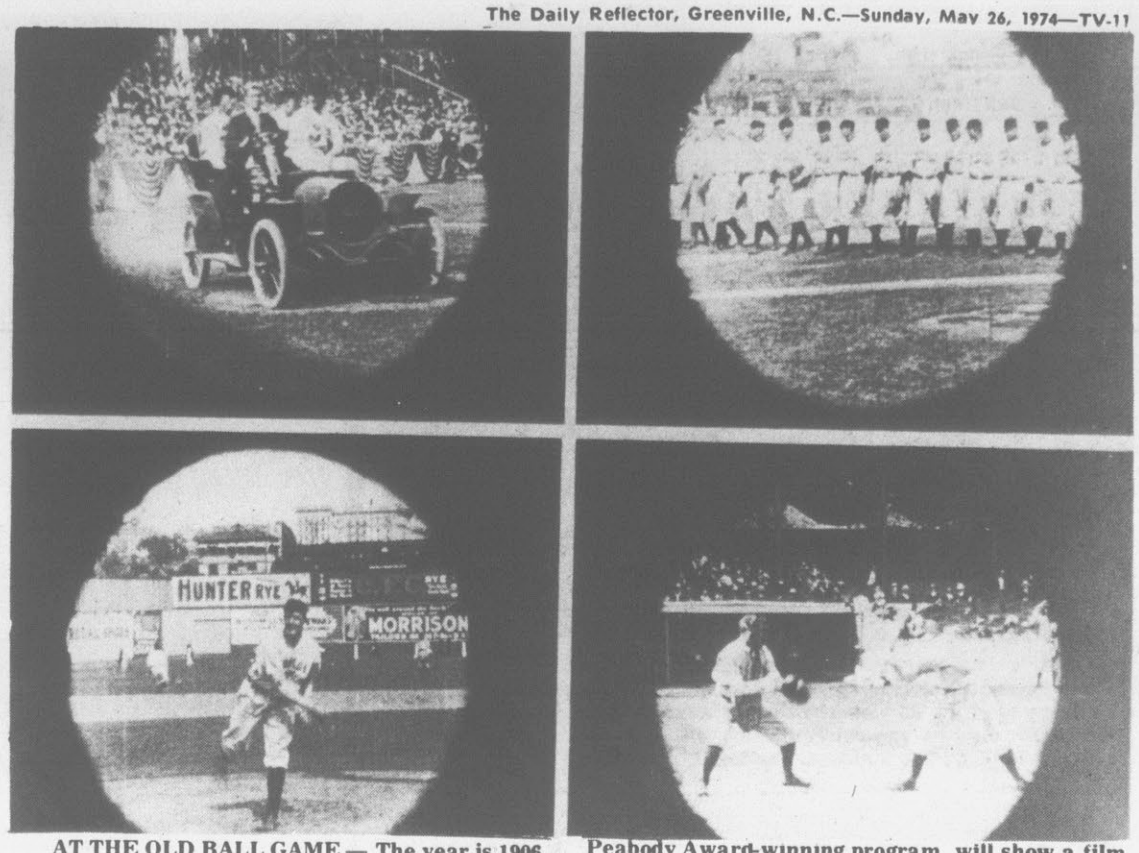
The 15th, a par-5 playing to 599 yards, is probably the most demanding hole on the course. It is actually a double dogleg left, around dogwood and pine, and a lake that extends over 340 yards from the tee. Although two traps guard the right front of the green, some of the pros will nearly drive this green, since the last 50 yards are downhill.

The pros then will be hitting 2- or 3- irons to span a 130-yard lake to a large green with two huge traps on the left side, at the picturesque 205-yard 17th hole, a par-3. There is also a bunker at the right front of the green to catch timid shots. The green, which slopes to the left, is also protected by trees and a mount on the right.

The 18th is an intimidating finishing hole, playing to 488 yards and a par-4. This slight dogleg left runs between woods and thick rough rishing from both sides of the fairway, and calls for positioning the drive. The pros will be hitting 4-, 5- or 6- irons to the large sloping green, where, given good pin placement, there may be a few birdies and possibly quite a few bogies. Of course, at any fine finishing hoel, a lot of strang things can happen.

BEAUTY ON THE BENCH

Rebecca Ann King, Miss America of 1974, who will crown her successor at the conclusion of the 54th annual Miss America Pageant on Sept. 7, intends to enter law school upon ending her year-long reign. Her eventual ambition is to be a judge.



AT THE OLD BALL GAME — The year is 1906. It's a nice, mild afternoon in April and the New York Giants are opening the season at Coogan's Bluff, later to be called the Polo Grounds. A goodly crowd was there, but don't fret if you weren't. You'll be there, Monday, May 27 (8-8:15 p.m.) preceding Monday night Baseball on NBC-TV. On that date, "The Baseball World of Joe Garagiola," the Peabody Award-winning program, will show a film clip these photos were taken from. Included are shots of the pre-game festivities (upper panels), the legendary Christy Mathewson in action (lower left) and all the proof you'll ever need (lower right) that catchers were all men in those days; they caught without shin guards. Nostalgia will reign as the Garagiola show also features a look at the old ball parks.

Rare Film To Be Offered

The country abounds with baseball fans who never saw the legendary Christy Mathewson pitch, which is no great mystery. Matty, the pride of the old, old New York Giants, started his major league career in 1900 and there are very few people around the ball parks these days who can say they saw Matty in action when he really had it.

All this will change, Monday, May 27 (8 p.m.) on "The Baseball World of Joe Garagiola." On that date, the show will include a rare film clip never before shown on network television — that of Mathewson pitching in 1906 when throngs of people were wont to assemble on Coogan's Bluff to view the action below.

Despite the fact that this film was made 68 years ago, the quality is remarkably clear, enough to bring the TV fan of today back to baseball as it looked at the turn of the century when life was simpler and catchers caught without shin guards.

In addition to the segement on Mathewson, this edition of the 15-minute "Baseball World of Joe Garagiola" will feature a nostalgic look at the old ball parks — where they were, and where they've gone.

RANCHER-SHERIFF — Fess Parker stars as Elisha Cooper, a widowered California rancher who supplements his meager income by working as a sheriff, in "Climb an Angry Mountain," a World Premiere to be colorcast on NBC Saturday Night at the Movies June 1 (9-11 p.m.) on channel 6-7.

Diet's Payoff Is An Acting Career

After a year of being a television star, and one of the regular cast members of "The Bob Newhart Show," Marcia Wallace still feels that she is living a dream.

During a break in rehearsal for a series' episode which revolves around Miss Wallace's romance with a man old enough to be her father, she reminisced about her career.

Like a newcomer who has just landed her first job, she asked out loud, "Who'd ever thought that someday I'd be sharing a stage with Bob Newhart, and getting the laughs?"

Miss Wallace's rise from a 230-pound, out - of - work comedienne to her role as Carol Kester on the Newhart series was one of simple dedication and hard work.

It began when she put herself on a diet.

Her goal, as she put it, was to lose "a whole person" and trim down to 130 pounds.

"The first 50 pounds were the easiest," Miss Wallace explained. "It took three months for them to go, and then the big battle began. The last 50 pounds came off very slowly."

Before the weight came off, however, she found jobs in the theatre hard to get and had to work elsewhere. So now she notes, jokingly, that she and series star Suzanne Pleshette share a common interest, in bed sheets: "Suzanne designs them, and I sold them."

Richard Thomas Lacked A Talent

Only one thing kept Richard Thomas from becoming a ballet dancer. He didn't have the talent.

"I was born into dancing," says the star of "The Waltons". "I spent my childhood backstage watching my parents dance all around the world. Today they own a large ballet school in New York City."

"I'm just plain awkward," Thomas admits. "I fall over or into things all of the time. My kid sister, who is some years younger than I am, used to help me tie my shoe laces."

It may be just as well that Thomas didn't become a dancer because he might have been lost to the acting world. Since age seven, when he played in stock companies of "Damn Yankees" and "Anything Goes", critics have noted his ability and natural stage presence. Some even called him a star back then.

"Actually thre's no such thing as a seven-year-old star," he says, "because the next year you're eight and want to be a fireman. As for stage presence, when you're born in a truck you think nothing of walking on stage from the wings."

The articulate young Thomas speaks Spanish, French and Chinese, "which I learned because it was the most far-out language I could think of."

"An actor's consciousness is in his mouth muscles," he says. "Many writers are unaware that some words won't pass the oral barrier. You can do Shakespare running up and down a ladder. It's like a musical score. No stage diections are needed."

Emerges After 34 Years Of Suspension

A beautiful young woman emerges from 34 years of frozen suspension into a shockingly new environment, finding that she is younger than her children and that someone is making attempts on her life, in "Live Again, Die Again," the "ABC Suspense Movie," Saturday, June 1 (8:30-10 p.m.) on Channel 3-12.

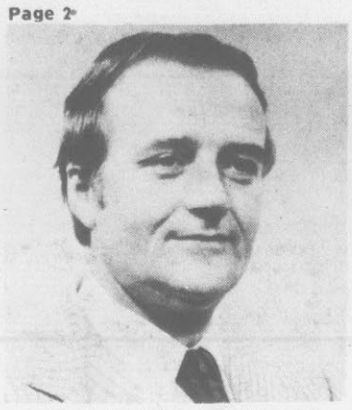
A DECADE OF PROGRESS

1974

Learning To Earn—NOW



Dr. William Fulford

A Message From The President . . .

Pitt Technical Institute

Office of the President

P. O. Drawer 7007
Highway 11, South
Greenville, North Carolina 27834
Telephone: 756-3130

Dear Fellow Citizen:

Pitt Technical Institute has just completed its first ten years of service to the people of Pitt County and Eastern North Carolina. Although this first decade has not been free of growing pains, Pitt Tech has made significant strides toward fulfilling its designated purposes.

PTI began the fall quarter of 1964 with 96 students enrolled in nine curriculum programs. In 1974, this number has grown to a curriculum enrollment of over 1050 in 24 programs.

Yet, the full impact of our Institute cannot be adequately assessed solely in terms of enrollments, programs, and graduates. Pitt Tech, for example, has provided training to strengthen all law enforcement, fire protection and emergency rescue departments in Pitt County. The school's masonry class alone has bricked over 35 churches and fire departments in the county.

During the past four years, nearly 500 adults have completed high school through our programs and scores of others have learned to read and write.

As one of PTI's major roles is the preparation of an adequate work force for business and industry, and constant upgrading of personnel for these firms, much time has been directed toward these ends. Some $200,000 has been invested by PTI in new industry training programs.

Another interesting effect of Pitt Tech has been its sheer economic impact upon Pitt County. In fiscal year 1972-73, for example, Pitt Tech received $144,000 in-county funds. Research has shown that the return on this local investment (through institutional, staff and student expenditures in the county) totaled over $3,188,000. This benefit, plus the benefits of the institution's services would appear to justify its continued existence.

PTI has expanded so rapidly in recent years that its facilities have failed to keep pace with expanded enrollments and services. Currently, both facilities on the main campus are seriously overcrowded and several curricula are having to be taught in temporary, off-campus quarters. Some progress is being made to expand the facilities, but much more is needed. If such expansion can be realized, Pitt Technical Institute can look forward to a second decade of service which will equal or surpass the first decade, and it is toward this end that we shall direct our talents and energies.

Sincerely,

William E. Fulford, Jr.

Accreditation

Pitt Technical Institute is recognized and approved by the N.C. State Board of Education, Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, the N. C. Commission for the Blind, and the Veteran's Administration. The Institute is a member of the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges, the N. C. Department of Community Colleges, the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, the Student Services Personnel Association, and the Associations of Occuptional Curriculum Directors.

Student Personnel Services Have Many Responsibilities

The broad objective of the program of Student Personnel Services at Pitt Technical Institute is to aid the student in developing the attitudes, understandings, insights and the skills which will enable him to express himself as a socially competent person. The program places special emphasis on campus relationships and experiences which complement formal instruction.

The Student Personnel Department, under the direction of Mr. George S. McRorie, is responsible for the following services for students enrolled at Pitt Technical Institute.

1. Counseling and testing: Two qualified counselors are available to assist students in selecting an appropriate course of study, to provide occupational and educational information, to discuss scholastic or personal problems which may arise and to test students in order that they might be properly placed.

2. Admission: The Student Personnel Department is responsible for the enrollment of all full time day students along with recruiting. Pitt Technical Institute has an "open door" policy for all applicants who are high school graduates or are eighteen years old or older.

3. Registration: The Student Personnel Department is responsible for the registration and maintenance of all records concerning students.

4. Financial Aid: A full time financial aid officer is available for students needing financial assistance. This aid is available through grants, loans or work study programs.

5. Placement: Pitt Technical Institute maintains a placement officer in the Student Personnel Department to assist students in securing profitable employment.

6. Housing: The institute does not have dormitory facilities but the Director of Student Personnel maintains a housing list to aid out-of-town students in finding suitable housing.

7. Food Service: The Snack Bar provides hot lunches, sandwiches, cakes, soft drinks and other foods.

8. Student Activities: The Student Activities program is planned to supplement the instructional program by providing a variety of meaningful educational, cultural and social experiences. The Student Government Association serves to promote interest in these areas. Pitt Tech also has an organized basketball team.

9. Veterans Affairs: A full time qualified veterans affairs officer is available to ascertain that all veterans are properly enrolled in a given curriculum and are receiving proper benefits.

Many Veterans Attend PTI

Veterans and the dependents of veterans make up a large percentage of the Pitt Technical Institute student body. All courses offered in the school catalog are approved by the Veteran's Administration for G. I. Benefits.

To assist the veterans in claims and other benefits, the Institute maintains a Veterans' Affairs Office with a full-time person on duty. This person is readily available to all veterans and dependents.

The Veterans' Affairs Officer starts with new students by advising them of educational benefits available, courses offered; and assists them with their original application for admission to the school. After acceptance by the school, the Veterans' Affairs Officer is responsible for certifying the enrollment, or his intention to enroll to the Veteran's Administration in order to get the educational benefits started.

During the time the veteran is in school the Veterans' Affairs Officer certifies attendance, progress, etc., to the Veteran's Administration concerning each individual veteran and maintains a file on him in the school office of Veterans' Affairs.

Last, but not least, the Veterans' Affairs Officer acts as a liaison officer between the veteran and the school faculty; the veteran and the school administration; and the veteran and the Veteran's Administration.

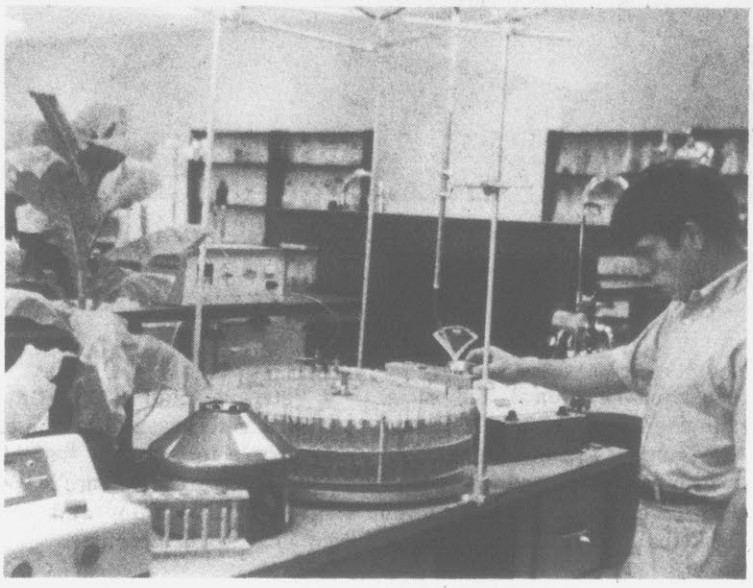
REWARDING AREAS OF STUDY

What Is The Key To Pitt Tech's Success?

What's unusual about Pitt Tech's instructional program? What makes students want to come here rather than to some other school? Why has enrollment increased from 96 students to over 1000 students in ten years?

Some students would say "diversity of programs;" others would say "outstanding faculty," "relevance," or "student-centeredness." Still others would say "flexibility of programs and schedules" or "job opportunities upon graduation;" the list could go on and on.



Agriculture Chemicals, Agriculture Business and Veterans Farm Program

Air and Water Resources

Located on Highway 11, south, between Greenville and Winterville, Pitt Tech has more than 67,000 square feet of usable space (in two buildings) with spacious and well-designed laboratories, shops, and classrooms. The Georgian-style architecture of the campus amid the short-leaf pines provides a relaxed, informal atmosphere for students to study, work and relax.

A comprehensive curriculum of technical and vocational programs, one and two year, attracts students throughout North Carolina, other states, and several foreign countries. While the greater majority of the students are from Pitt County, many students from surrounding counties also attend Pitt Tech. Through their own efforts and the PTI Cooperative Education Program, many students work part time and earn while they learn in their chosen field. This program gives the students the opportunity to practice or apply what they have learned in the classroom.

Job Opportunities Upon Graduation

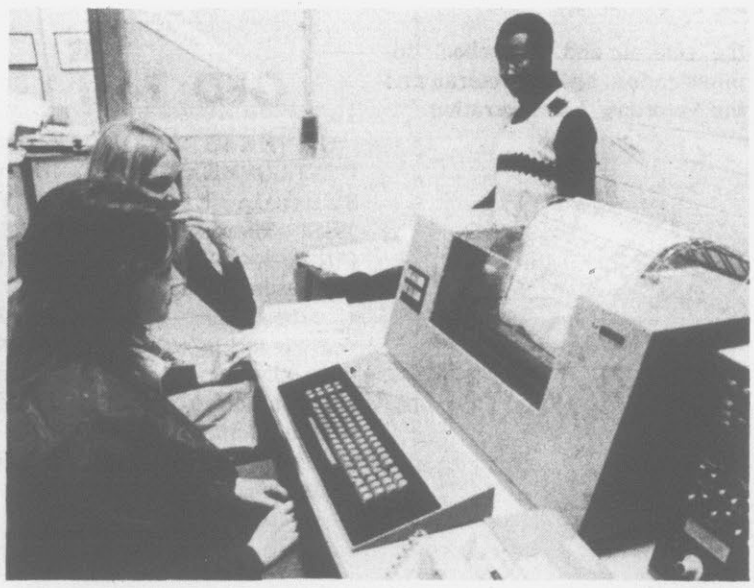
Diversity Of Programs

Architectural Drafting

Several senior colleges, such as N. C. Wesleyan and Appalachian State University, will accept all courses of two-year graduates of Pitt Tech and admit such students as full juniors. Other senior institutions such as East Carolina University will accept for transfer certain technical courses in the two-year programs.

Upon graduation, a wide range of well-paying job opportunities is available to Pitt Tech graduates. A placement officer provides any needed assistance. Most students locate jobs in the local area—Pitt County and surrounding counties. However, some students leave the area to pursue their chosen field, often for higher salaried opportunities.

Commercial Art and Advertising Design



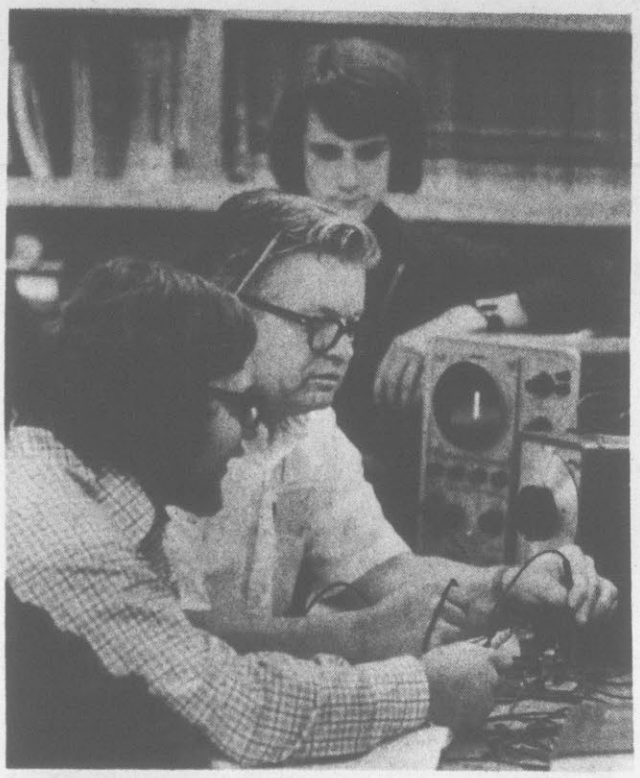
Data Processing

Pitt Tech is dedicated to providing expanded educational opportunities, relatively inexpensive and near home, for young people and adults who desire to continue their education. The vocational and technical programs are designed to prepare students for jobs in industry, business, agriculture, and service occupations. All curriculums have local advisory committees to ensure that the respective programs are up-to-date and attuned to current happenings in each field.

Learning To Earn

Police Science

AT PITT TECHNICAL INSTITUTE



Electronic Technician and Electronic Servicing

Opportunities for practical education exist in abundance in this technical institute—working on cars in the auto shop, repairing televisions in the electronics labs, assisting patients at Pitt Memorial Hospital, firing weapons or taking foot prints in police science. Other practical experience examples include working with field crops test plots in agricultural programs, shoeing live horses in farriering, drawing plans for recreational parks in architectural drafting, working in mental health clinics in the mental health program, and assisting in building renovations at Pitt Tech in electrical installation and maintenance—these are but a few. All curriculums provide such opportunities, too numerous to mention them all.

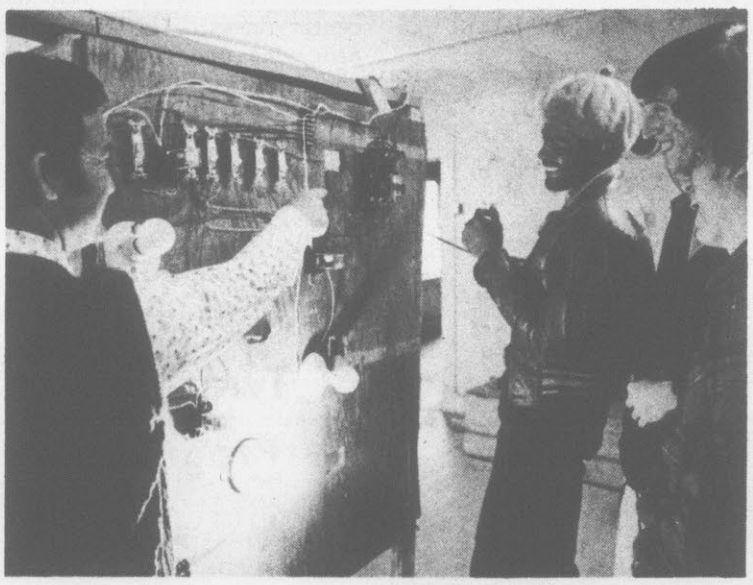
Secretarial Science (Executive, Legal and Medical) and General Office Technology

Business Administration and Accounting

The faculty at Pitt Tech is one of the best in the state. Each faculty member has work experience in his respective subject and is highly competent in his subject matter and as an instructor. The faculty is student-centered (willing to give individual attention to individual students and is concerned with the "total or whole" student, not just in the student's specialty field).

Pitt Tech is dedicated to the "open door" admissions policy of the N. C. Community College System. Students of all races, creeds and colors are accepted; the young, the middle, and older age; those working and those not working; those of low, average, and high academic ability; the rich and the poor; male and female; and advantaged and disadvantaged.

Auto Mechanics



Electrical Installation and Maintenance

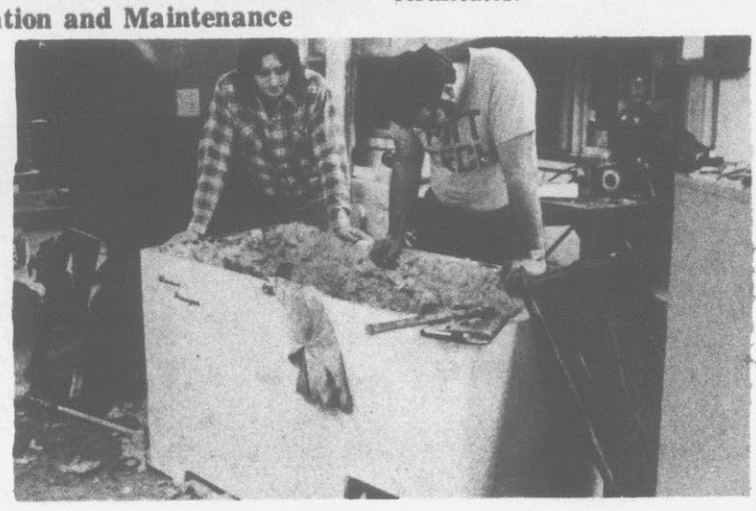
Currently, two-year programs are offered in Air and Water Resources Technology; Agricultural Chemicals Technology; Agricultural Business; Agricultural Science and Mechanization (Veterans Farm Program); Architectural Drafting; Commercial Art and Graphic Design; Electronic Data Processing-Business; Electronics Technology; Mental Health Technology; Nursing Education; Police Science; Accounting; Business Administration; General Office Technology; Secretarial Science; Industrial Management Technology; and Industrial Maintenance Engineer.

Vocational one-year programs include: Agricultural Science and Mechanization; Surveying; Auto Mechanics (one- or two-year option); Electronic Servicing (one- or two-year option); Machinist Trade (one- or two-year option); Electrical Installation and Maintenance; Heating, Refrigeration and Air-Conditioning; Practical Nurse Education; Teacher Assistant; Farriering (12 weeks); and Operating Room Assistant. A one-year Welding Program and two-year Food Service Program have been approved but not yet implemented.

Associate in Applied Science Degrees are awarded to two-year graduates. Diplomas are awarded to the graduates of the one-year programs. Persons graduating from other programs receive certificates.

Mental Health

Extra curricular activities at PTI are recognized as a valuable means of expression outside the classroom. Activities ranging from intramural sports to Student Government Association functions allow students the opportunity to develop socially, culturally, and personally, as well as academically. The Student Government Association serves to promote interest in student affairs on and off campus.



Heating, Refrigeration and Air Conditioning

All of the PTI programs are designed to accommodate students on different levels. Many courses are now structured for individualized instruction to accommodate the best interests of the student. Classes at Pitt Tech are offered between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 10:00 p.m. five days per week, except on Friday when all classes end at 5:00 p.m. The majority of the curricular courses are offered between 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m.; however, many curricular courses are offered at night, such as business, industrial, and maintenance courses.

An outstanding Related Subjects Department provides instruction in math, English, physics, and social sciences, which are an integral part of most curriculums.

STUDENT CENTEREDNESS

To meet the individual needs of the students, Pitt Tech's offerings also include programs such as Guided Studies, Cooperative Education, Speech and Hearing Therapy, and Student Tutors. The Library Resources Center and the Learning Center provide additional opportunities for students to pursue their individual interests and studies. An on-campus counselor assists the visually impaired (blind) students with their special problems.

A two-year technical student carrying 12 quarter hours and a vocational student carrying 30 contact hours are considered as full-time students. The normal load is 15 to 18 hours (4 to 5 courses). Suggested outlines for sequences of courses are available for students in each curriculum.

Maybe it is the emphasis on diversity of programs, outstanding faculty committed to excellence, relevance of the content of courses, student-centeredness, flexibility of programs and schedules, job opportunities upon graduation that makes Pitt Tech unusual, resulting in attracting all types of students and meeting the needs and interests of each.

County Funds Are Important To Pitt Tech

Pitt County funds have played an important role in the total growth of Pitt Technical Institute. The chart below shows the increase in operating (current) funds received by PTI from various sources for the year 1964 and 1974:

Operating (current expense)	1964	1974
County	$ 12,465.00	$ 125,583.00
Federal	None	178,801.00
Financial Aid (student aid)	972.00	54,484.00
State	184,508.00	1,660,091.00
TOTAL operating funds	$197,945.00	$2,018,888.00

From the time plans were being made to build the present campus buildings, Administration Building and Humber Building, to 1974, PTI has received approximately $515,000 in capital outlay (construction funds) from Pitt County. During this time, approximately $338,000 in county funds have been spent, in addition to county construction funds, for extending water and sewer lines from Winterville to campus and for parking lots and paving. During 1974, $95,000 has been appropriated by the county for constructing additions to the Administration Building. Funds for equipment at PTI increased from $62,830 in 1964 to $480,000 in 1974. (includes funds for library books)

The Fiscal Affairs Department at PTI is responsible for budgeting, accounting, Bookstore, central printing, maintenance of grounds and buildings, security, and purchasing.

Mr. W. H. Howell is the Chief Fiscal Officer of Pitt Technical Institute.

Learning Center

Learning Resource Center

The Library Resource Center (LRC) is a hub of activity on the Pitt Technical Institute campus. Located on the third floor of the Robert Lee Humber Building, the LRC is the place where information, services, materials, and equipment can be found to meet a wide range of educational needs. Students pursuing curriculum course assignments, faculty members in search of new or additional multi-media teaching materials, staff members engaged in educational research projects, and members of the community with special requests for individual and group assistance are among those served by the LRC staff of library-media specialists, technicians, and assistants.

The LRC materials collection, selected to support the technical and vocational educational programs of the Institute and to provide reference materials in all subject areas, includes all types of communication media.

The Pitt Tech LRC is open each Monday through Thursday from 7:45 a.m. until 9:30 p.m. and on Friday from 7:45 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. to serve students, faculty, and staff of the day and evening programs of the Institute. The facilities, equipment, materials, and services are also available for use by business, industry, civic organizations, community agencies, and to individuals in the Pitt Technical Institute community area of service.

Adult Education

More than 10,000 adults are involved in extension and evening (adult education) programs yearly at Pitt Tech. The Institute provides any day or night class or training that is desired or needed by individuals, industries, businesses, civic groups, churches, and community groups, if within the purposes and policies of the Institute.

Courses may be conducted mornings, afternoons or evenings. Classes may meet once, twice or daily each week. On-campus facilities and off-campus facilities such as public schools, community buildings, churches, civic centers, industrial plants, fire stations, etc. are utilized. Many courses may be taught or are already being taught in facilities in your local community.

Each course is open to any adult who thinks he can do the required work and has a need for such training. A minimum of ten persons is usually necessary to begin a course.

Evening certificate programs are conducted at night for adults who wish to earn certificates and are designed to be completed within four to eight quarters. Certificates are issued only upon completion of the courses required in a particular program. Students may enter a program at the beginning of any quarter. Courses within each program may be transferred for credit to the day certificate, diploma, or degree programs if the students have met the admission requirements stated in the general catalogue.

Pitt Technical Institute has an Adult Education Center located at 112 East Wilson Street, Farmville, N.C. A Learning Center (individualized instruction), Adult Basic, General Adult and Occupational programs are available at the Center. Further, Adult Basic Education and High School Equivalency programs are available, on a year-round basis, at the Meadowbrook, Kearney Park, and Moyewood Housing projects.

Interested persons are urged to visit or telephone 756-3130, extension 38, Greenville, N.C., or 753-5747, Farmville, N.C., for further information.

FOR ELLIOTT ROOSEVELT,
son of the late President Franklin Delano Roosevelt

Why did you write that revealing book about your father's and mother's personal lives? Was it for money? Fame? What?—E. G. Parkinson, Wellsville, Utah

● Since the passing of my parents, I have read a steady flow of appraisals of their lives. Some of these books were conscientiously researched by able historians. Others have been written by haters or lovers of one or the other. From all this writing I have experienced a feeling that a kind of cardboard, one-dimensional image was emerging that did not tell the full story of the development of these two human beings. My parents were two of the most gallant, brave, lonely and brilliant human beings that ever came to the fore in this country. But they were human. They had their faults, they made their mistakes, they bled just as you and I. I wrote this book because I felt they would agree that history should know the true trials and tribulations to which they were submitted.

FOR JEANE DIXON

What is your opinion of a ouija board?—Mrs. R. I. Eve, Austin, Texas

● In my opinion, the ouija board possesses no real psychic significance in and of itself. I think it relies more on the subconscious thoughts of the players—thoughts that supply the nucleus of its alleged "magic." The ouija board is usually a harmless game; but it could turn into something harmful at the expense of overly impressionable players.

FOR GEORGE PEPPARD

Why is so much emphasis placed on Banacek's being Polish?—John Brewinski, Grand Forks, N.D.

● We wanted to counter the Polish jokes, I guess, and show an intelligent, urbane man of Polish extraction.

FOR LORETTA SWIT,
*"Hot Lips Houlihan" in "M*A*S*H"*

What is your reaction to being a sex symbol on "M*A*S*H"?—A. N., Norwood, Ohio

● What's a sex symbol anyway? I have no hang-ups because I am not beautiful. I wish it were possible for someone with irregular features and great talent to become a "sex symbol," but I don't expect to see that happen in my lifetime. "Plastic Pretty" is too ingrained, I'm afraid.

FOR JIMMY BRESLIN, author and newscaster

Since the publication of your book "World Without End, Amen," you have been called "a serious novelist." Has this change in image meant much of a change for you?—E. L. Donovan, Colorado Springs, Colo.

● Certainly. When I goofed up something in the old days, people would call me names. Now they excuse the same behavior because I'm a "serious novelist" and have "temperament."

John F. Kennedy, Jr.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

I have read that John F. Kennedy, Jr., is 14, but only in the fifth grade. Is it true that he is retarded? How many more Kennedy children are retarded?—Mrs. E. Lowe, Wilmington, N. C.

● John F. Kennedy, Jr., at 13, is in the 8th grade at Manhattan's Collegiate School, where he's regarded merely as an average student. His academic record is not outstanding. (A friend of the Kennedy family was quick to point out that John's father was "a late bloomer," too. The late JFK attended Choate, where, out of 112 students, he was 64th.) Young John is a football buff, a tennis enthusiast, a lover of horseback riding and an avid reader of comics. His friends and family describe him as lively, mischievous and a prankster. They predict he'll be a playboy when he's older. . . . John's sister Caroline has always been an excellent student. She had an A average at Manhattan's Brearley, and is maintaining the same standard at Concord Academy, where she's described as bright and studious. Of the 29 Kennedy grandchildren, to the best of our knowledge, none is retarded. However, as is known, Rosemary Kennedy, the 54-year-old daughter of Rose and Joseph Kennedy, is retarded.

Caroline Kennedy

FOR MRS. BIRCH BAYH, national chairman of the 1974 American Cancer Society Crusade

You've had a mastectomy. What lessons did it teach you that other women might benefit from?—Mrs. H. M. Miller, Chicago, Ill.

● I urge women to check themselves monthly. Ninety-five percent of breast cancer is first discovered by the woman herself. So if she is checking herself monthly, chances of detecting it early are good. And to the woman who is so nervous about going to her doctor, I want to stress that 75 percent of lumps are not malignant.

FOR LEE MARVIN

Why are actors so extravagant?—Nancy Wills, Provo, Utah

● I can't talk about other actors, but I don't think I'm extravagant. I've worked hard most of my life. Today I sometimes feel like spending something on myself, but my only extravagance, if you can call it such, is my boat, which I keep in Hawaii. And even that I rent when I'm not using it.

What do you think of the seat-belt interlocks on new cars? I say it's big-brotherism. My friends say it's just safety first. —E. Davis, Elmira, N.Y.

● I know of no single intervention by government in the lives of its citizens that is more universally resented than the requirement for 1974 cars that dictates that we cannot start the engine until we strap ourselves in. It may well be that any driver who fails to put on a safety harness is an idiot. But freedom implies the freedom to be an idiot so long as one does not endanger others.

An Afternoon With Joe Namath:

Interview by Bob Oates, Jr.

This interview takes place at Joe Namath's Football Camp for Boys. A handpainted sign says so. Joe has been working on his arm all month, and now he's letting it loose on long passes. He is feeling good. The receiver is out there 70 yards. Ball in hand, Namath is ready for his final throw. It will be a bravura performance. He sets himself facing straight ahead. He smiles down the meadow to the apprehensive receiver, coils the top of his body and without lifting his feet he flips the ball high and tightly spinning, splitting the air.

"I enjoyed that," Joe says later. "It feels good to be able to put the ball out that way."

Weren't you worried about hurting your arm, throwing like that without taking a step?

"No. I don't like to worry. In the first place, I don't like the feeling, so I hardly ever do any worrying. And there's no reason for me to be concerned about my arm because I know what I can do with a football."

"It's true. I'm not really sure why it is, but for some reason I've had a happy attitude my whole life."

"Of course. I've been playing football practically my whole life. Some parts of it—meetings and stuff like that—that gets a little old. But playing quarterback is a gas. It's a big responsibility, a challenge, and I like that. I get a lot of self-satisfaction out of it. First off, you have to be a pretty good athlete to be quick enough, have the right footwork and a good arm, have good enough reactions. And then you have to be able to handle the tactics, call the right plays in the right situations, keep calm under pressure, and keep your team together and working. It's fun moving down the field and getting points on the board. I get a charge out of it."

Sounds like you would play the game just for fun.

"That's wrong. You hear people say the game's so much fun somebody would play it even if he weren't getting paid for it. But that doesn't make any sense to me, not in the pros. The athletes are so big and fast that the game is too dangerous to play just for the fun of it. Every week one of your friends is limping off the field or getting carried off and that has to make you stop and think. And then there's all the time it takes, the mental strain. Let's put it this way: If they tried to run the National Football League on fun alone, I don't think they could field one team."

Do you think other teams psych themselves up to play against you?

"I hope so. I don't know that they do, but if they did, it would make me feel good. I'd be glad to know they thought that much of me. But as far as making it tough on me, they don't really have to do anything special. Defenses are getting so tough these days they don't need any unusual incentive. Football keeps getting finer and finer. The players get stronger and faster and the coaching gets more sophisticated, and every year it gets a little more difficult to get anything done out there."

"The ball was long gone and I'm just watching and it's bright and sunny and all of a sudden—Wham!—it's dark and the stars are out and there's this whirring in my head. I mean I got hit!"

Joe, I'd like to know your thinking in a specific situation a couple of seasons ago. This was your first call of the year, in an exhibition game against San Francisco. You hadn't played much in two years and the first thing that happened to you was a punt by the 49ers downed one foot from your goal line. On the first play you went back and threw a quick sideline pass to gain seven yards. That was a gutsy call, I thought. It was almost like you were saying, "Joe Namath is back."

"Yeah, I remember that play. I remember the punt rolling toward the end zone and I'm saying, 'Get in there, you.' But then their guy leaped and batted it back and I said, 'Okay, then, that's a great play, that's all right.' But when I went out there, I mean there was only this much distance between the ball and the goal line. I was thinking over our plays, but we don't have a single running play that couldn't lose a few inches depending on how the defense played it. There was nothing I could call and be sure of beforehand, so I didn't even call a play in the huddle."

What did you say in the huddle?

"I just said, 'Check with me.' We do that sometimes when I want to get up there and look the defense over before calling a play. This time I wanted to see what those guys thought we'd do. When I got up there, the linebacker on the left was up real tight and looked like he was going to blitz. The cornerback on that side was back a little, so I just called that quick-out pattern to the left end."

There is a lot of pain involved in football. What do you think of the violent aspect of the game?

"I don't like it. It hurts, you know, and I'm not into pain particularly. I'm not a masochist. The guys playing this game get bigger and quicker every year. It's great if you're just watching the game—I love to see them play. But being out there on the field with those guys, that's rough. Us little dudes are always getting bent in half."

An Afternoon With Joe Namath

Continued

"It's weird. It's not a natural feeling at all, just standing there trying to pay attention to what's going on 40 yards away and meanwhile here's all these cats trying to crunch you. It's not an easy thing to get used to.

"The first time you get knocked down, it's kind of a shock. But you get yourself back together and throw a few more, and then you get hit again. The second one's not as bad as the first. And by the time you've been knocked down 20 times and got up 20 times, what difference does the twenty-first make? Hell, they can have you then. You've got a job to do. It gets to where you almost don't notice what's happening to you. I've had guys come up to me after the game and say, 'Man, you took a couple of shots out there.' And I'll say, 'What shots?' I don't remember getting hit. By the time I'm climbing up from going down I'm already thinking about the next play."

"By the time you've been knocked down 20 times and got up 20 times, what difference does the twenty-first make?"

So you don't notice getting hit?

"Most of the time, no. But some hits stick with you pretty good. I still remember a lick I got in my first game after my knee injury in 1971 against San Francisco. I went back and threw a long pass. The ball was long gone and I'm just watching and it's bright and sunny and all of a sudden—Wham!—it's dark and the stars are out and there's this whirring in my head. I mean I got hit! I didn't even know who did it. Boom! I got up and wobbled toward the line and said, 'Nice hit, buddy.' I got back into the huddle, bent over and started to get dizzy. I had to stand straight up and hitch at my pants a little—take some air—before I could get myself going at all. A hit like that one, I'll remember that quite a while."

"Not often playing football. I learned where that kind of nervousness comes from when I was playing golf once. I was playing a golf exhibition with Paul Bryant, my coach down at Alabama. There were 10,000 people there watching, and I'll tell you I was really upset. We walked down the fairway from the first tee and I told Paul, 'This is awful. I was so nervous back there I couldn't even take the club back. I've never been this nervous.' And Bryant said, 'There's a bunch of people watching you do something you don't have that much confidence in. This isn't football, where you've worked so hard for so long to prepare yourself.' And when he said that, it sunk in. That's how I get confidence in my play. I prepare myself beforehand until I know I can do what I have to. Then I have faith."

Do you think of yourself as a hard worker?

"I know some guys work harder. They feel the load is so heavy they should study all the time. But as long as I'm satisfied I have my work done right, I can't see eating and drinking and sleeping it. Of course, I find myself thinking about it a lot, calling plays in situations. Sometimes I'll be shooting a game of pool and I'll find myself calling plays against a 5-1 No Exchange. But once I know what's happening, I don't keep studying and studying. It's best for me to relax, to have some fun and keep the tension from building up. That's how I perform best."

If you want to know more about Joe Namath's camp for boys, you can write to the Namath Instructional Football Camp, Box 142, Peck Slip Station, New York, N.Y. 10038. Or call John Dockery at (212) 425-2619.

The camp is in Dudley, Mass., and is for boys 8-18 who want to learn the ins and outs of football under professional supervision. (Some of Joe's assistants are Jim Kiick, Ed Marinaro, Joe Greene and George Sauer.) There are three one-week sessions: June 23-29; June 30-July 6; July 7-13. Joe says he will be there all three weeks. Cost is $175 per session.

AT LAST! A DOCTOR WHO SAYS:

Take Food, Not Medicine, If You Suffer from Any One of These Ills!

"Why do I avoid prescribing drugs?", says this brilliant and controversial physician, who has cured literally thousands of patients with nothing more than ordinary food alone!
"For these four vital reasons"—

1. Because drugs do not produce health. They merely mask the symptoms of a disease . . . cover up the condition, while the body struggles on valiantly to cure itself.

2. This is the reason why so many men and women, of all ages, no sooner fight their way out of one ailment, than they fall right into another. Why they are always "half-sick". Why they never really know what it means to be completely free of pain, in glowing health. Because they, and their doctors, do nothing more than merely fight off each new attack, and never drain out the poison that is left from that attack, or rebuild the vital weakened tissue before it can fall prey to a new disease!

It Is "Tissue Weakness" That Opens The Door To One New Disease After Another! And NO Drug—Only Food—Can Build REAL TISSUE STRENGTH Again!

3. The lasting way to fight disease, then, is not just to counter-attack each new symptom in its turn . . . but to build such sheer physical strength into each threatened cell of your body that the organism that causes that disease is either destroyed, or rendered harmless, the very instant it enters your body!

4. This is done in two ways: First, to use a medical-diet to drain out the poisons that make your body weak today. And, finally, to use a second, even more powerful medical-diet to pour Super-Nutrients–Nature's own medicines–into every crippled organ of that body . . . not only to force out that specific disease, as fast as humanly possible, but also to leave that organ perhaps even healthier than before it was first attacked!
For example—

See How This NATURAL Method Has Worked— In Thousands Of Case Histories, From Every Walk Of Life, And With Almost Every Ailment You Can Imagine!

"When I came to you I suffered from swelling and tingling of extremities, almost constant hunger, periodic weakness, great sensitivity to glare and loud noise . . . Since becoming your patient I find myself energetic and alert until nearly midnight, awake fully by 7:30 or 8 each morning, in good spirits, not sluggish, and continuing throughout the day glad to be alive, performing challenging tasks!"

"Before I became your patient, I had visited several skin specialists hoping to find help in the removal of what appeared to be growths on my face. Biopsies were taken; result negative. I asked how to get rid of these growths; how to prevent their growing back. I received a shrug of the specialist's shoulder (later, his bill!); he didn't know! Dr. Nittler took one look at the area involved and prescribed (natural) medication for external application which within one week's time cleared up the difficulty. It has not returned."

And Still More Thrilling Results! All Told In The Patient's Own Documented Words!

"However, on Easter Sunday, March 29, 1970, I suffered not only another occlusion, but an acute cardiac arrest. This was preceded by three days of intense weariness, fatigue and restlessness . . . Only extreme good luck made it possible for me to write these words . . . They (his regular physicians) believed open heart surgery to be the only hope for giving me a normal life span . . . It was at this point that I was referred to Dr. Nittler . . . after his initial examination and after reviewing my medical history . . . he started me on his "basic heart program" . . . Within weeks, I noticed great improvement . . . an increased surge of well-being with each passing week. My family doctor continues to monitor my case. He cannot, at this point, rule out the open heart surgery recommended by his peers, but he is honest enough to admit I've shown great improvement. He says my heart is beating more slowly and stronger and that everything sounds good. My laboratory tests are all normal . . . I'm looking forward to returning to work and a normal productive life."

"I've been subject to asthma all my life. It would come with a cold or when I laughed or exercised too hard. The situation became dramatically worse when we moved to Santa Cruz in 1966. For some reason I'd catch a cold every four to six weeks . . . Only when I got it, it would go to my chest, develop into asthma, and I could hardly breathe. I was fed up with being sick and tired all the time . . . So I went through Dr. Nittler's whole program . . . Now (1971) the few colds I catch are very mild. I can't even remember the last time I had asthma with or without a cold!"

"In the latter part of November past, I broke out in an allergic dermatitis—severe hives . . . in addition to the hives, I would get a severe pain in an area above the right kidney . . . It was an acute shattering pain that immobilized me. I was next given cortisone. After 24 hours this would lessen the severity of both hives and pain. As long as I continued with cortisone . . . I was fine, but when I stopped, severe hives and pain recurred. Then back to cortisone for four or five days, followed by hives and pain. I seesawed back and forth in this manner for several weeks . . . A friend of mine gave me Dr. Nittler's phone number and begged me to call him. . . . Then on the tenth day under Dr. Nittler's care, something wonderful (to me, a miracle) happened—I was free of my ailments! A staggering weight had been lifted from both my shoulders and my wife's . . . Now I am in the thirteenth month after the doctor's care, enjoying the best of health and feeling great."

And Literally Thousands Upon Thousands Of Case Histories More! ALL STEMMING FROM NATURAL "SUPER-FOOD" TECHNIQUES LIKE THESE, THAT YOU CAN USE TOMORROW IN YOUR OWN HOME!

Again, to list only a few examples of the specific, step-by-step "Super-Food" Treatments given you in this great book:

Home treatment for constipation that works through your skin, and removes internal poisons, painlessly and automatically, at the same time it restores normal functions.

How to increase the blood flow (and therefore the life-giving oxygen) not only to your heart tissues, but your entire circulatory system. (As just one side-benefit of this new, natural therapy, cold feet simply feel warm and good again!) This process automatically lowers the work load of your heart, and your lungs, and so, as another marvelous side-benefit, almost immediately diminishes the ever-increasing shortness of breath that plagues most people!

How to get rapid relief from gallbladder pain. A treatment that also may enable you to actually, painlessly pass a stone or two (and get rid of them for good). And, at the same time, stimulate the flow of bile from your liver, and begin simultaneously stomach-healing food-therapy.

Why hemorrhoids do not have to be endured any longer! A simple capsule that may yield apparent benefits in a day or two, with restoration of normal function and comfort in a few weeks, just as it has in case after case in Dr. Nittler's own files!

How, if you suffer from an acute illness, you can actually feed your body healing food-ingredients through the skin. That go to work to help you, in seconds!

Liver Detoxification! Follow These Simple Rules, AND PAIN-CAUSING POISONS LITERALLY POUR OUT OF YOUR BODY!

The best and most ancient method of healing wounds. (Animals do this instinctively. But we've forgotten it.)

A do-it-yourself prostate massage that involves only a simple motion with the legs and soles of your feet . . . plus a little-known and delicious food that greatly aids in the normal function of this important gland.

What to do for repeated violent pains in the chest (called Intercostal Neuralgia, and often mistaken for heart trouble or even attack). How to tell the difference at once. And then use a simple natural spray that relieves this torturous pain in minutes, for hours!

The inexpensive food that has fantastic results with cold, and even flu! As Dr. Nittler says: "This remedy alone cures many cases of flu."

Why Dr. Nittler dares to say: "I have known very severe long-standing cases (of Athlete's Foot) respond dramatically after one application"!

And why he also says: "I have seen a deep nasty boil on a cheek drain through the skin in one night with the use of this (natural food product). The infection was on the pad, there was no infection left in the boil and no wound visible."

PLUS: emergency treatments for burns that prevent scarring . . . a simple remedy for poison ivy that works . . . how to melt away warts (and even some brown spots) . . . a non-prescription product (as are all the other remedies given here) that has a wonderful healing effect of the mucous membranes of the intestinal tract . . . home remedies for internal parasites . . . what you must do, at once, for diarrhea . . . how Dr. Nittler treats ulcers . . . how to rebuild weak stomachs, without aggravating them . . . how to break fever in emergencies, especially in children . . . the tested routine to follow for any virus infection . . . strength-foods for every part of the body . . . how your body can build up its own reserve supply of nutrients to fortify its natural resistance in terms of stress or epidemic . . . weight-reducing without tears . . . the most effective treatment ever invented for hypoglycemia (low blood sugar) . . . and much, much more!

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Allan H. Nittler, M.D., received his diploma in medicine almost thirty years ago from the University of Cincinnati . . . has been associated since then with both the United States Army and the San Francisco City and County Hospital. He was one of the first physicians to recognize the need for vitamins in medical therapy and the radical difference in effect between synthetic and organic vitamins in therapeutic dosage. He is a frequent contributor to various magazines and journals, and is recognized today as one of the leaders of the new medical science of preventive nutrition as a major factor against both fatigue and disease.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

How Much Do You Know About Being a Parent?

True or False: Considerations involving the children should always come first in any marriage relationship. (See number 4)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Because of the close mother-son relationship, a small boy is chiefly influenced by his mother's behavior and attitude.

2. A child's view of death is quite unlike a parent's.

3. To communicate effectively with your child you should capture and hold his visual attention by looking him in the eye while talking to him.

4. Considerations involving the children should always come first in any marriage relationship.

5. The best way to deal with your child's errant behavior is to lecture him firmly, and to logically point out the error of his ways.

ANSWERS

1. False—according to a University of Michigan study of 180 fathers and their four-year-olds, which showed that "though a small boy may spend more time with his mother, it's his father's behavior that seems to shape the child's motivation and ability to learn." Findings of the study showed that "the father who responds positively to his son's needs, praises his achievements and involves him in decision-making is enhancing the boy's intellectual development." A further finding: The father may show this same kind of "nurturing" behavior toward his four-year-old daughter without affecting her learning ability. For girls of this age, the mother's influence was found to be dominant.

2. True. It has been found that a child's concept of death depends on his age and stage of development. Children from three to five usually deny death as final; children between five and nine years tend to regard death as a personage who "comes and gets you." At about nine, the child recognizes death as a natural and inevitable process. In another study it was found that many young children "equate death with an accident or illness and may report that they themselves have died—viewing death not as a separate and distinct state, but simply as another phase of life."

3. True. As one authority counsels after evaluating a series of studies on children: Always try to catch your child's eye when you talk to him—or when he is confiding in you. Parents are also advised to "talk to your child from the day he is born. Don't just make baby-talk noises. Really communicate with him."

4. False. Psychological studies have shown that "if parents are preoccupied with their children at the expense of all other adult engagements, especially their relationship with each other, they are headed for anguish and psychological disruption. It may look virtuous, but it leads to self-limitation. It is the parents who assert that they have a right to a life of their own who offer the best prospects for untroubled and resourceful children."

5. False—according to the findings of psychologist Fitzhugh Dodson, who has specialized in research on child-parent relationships. In summing up his findings in the definitive treatise "How to Father," he observes that "the actual result of being on the receiving end of a lecture [particularly one delivered in front of other people] is that the child is made to feel ashamed, inadequate and resentful. These feelings will insure that he will be even less likely to take his father's suggestions." His advice to fathers: Learn to praise your child. Be on the lookout for behavior that you can praise. If he hangs up his pants but drapes his shirt and socks over the chair in his room, praise him for hanging up the pants and ignore the rest of his behavior.

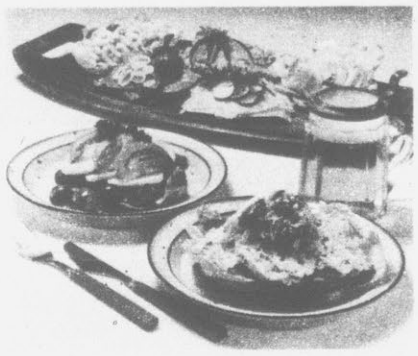
Open-Faced Sandwiches From Denmark

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen has just the answer for that next luncheon or card party. Marilyn says, "These open-faced sandwiches from Denmark are perfect for easy entertaining. Prepare them ahead of time, then store them in the refrigerator, just as you would hors d'oeuvres or canapés."



Open-faced sandwiches, made ahead of time, allow a hostess to keep her cool.

DANISH ESROM

- 4 slices buttered thin rye or pumpernickel bread
- 4 lettuce leaves, preferably Boston or leaf lettuce
- ½ lb. thinly sliced Danish Esrom or King Christian cheese
- 2 tomatoes, cut in wedges
- Dash garlic salt
- 4 parsley or dill sprigs
- 12 radishes
- Mustard

1. Top prepared bread slice with lettuce leaf, then ⅛ lb. cheese. Place a few wedges of tomato on top. Sprinkle with garlic salt and garnish with parsley. Place radishes alongside sandwich. Serve with mustard.

2. Refrigerate, covered with plastic film, if not serving immediately.

DANISH TINY SHRIMP

- 4 slices buttered thin white or rye bread
- 4 lettuce leaves, preferably Boston or leaf lettuce
- 2 cans (4½-oz. size) small shrimp, drained
- Mayonnaise
- 1 hard-cooked egg, sieved
- 4 fresh dill sprigs or dash dillweed
- 4 lemon wedges

2. Refrigerate, covered with plastic film, if not serving immediately.

ROAST BEEF

- 4 slices buttered thin white or rye bread
- 4 lettuce leaves, preferably Boston or leaf lettuce
- ½ lb. thinly sliced rare roast beef
- Horseradish
- ½ cup thinly sliced onion rings
- Pickles

1. Top each bread slice with lettuce leaf. Cover with ⅛ lb. roast beef. Place a small spoonful horseradish in center. Top with onion rings and garnish with a pickle or two.

2. Refrigerate, covered with plastic film, if not serving immediately.

Strung Out on Tension—At 200 Mph.

A soapbox derby held when Cale Yarborough was ten years old convinced him his future lay in auto racing, not tobacco farming. He now earns about $200,000 a year, has twice won the celebrated Southern 500 and finished a close second to Richard Petty in this year's Daytona 500 classic. . . . Yarborough grew up on a tobacco farm near Timmonsville, S. C., and entered the soapbox race as a lark. He became so infected with the excitement of racing he decided to learn everything he could about cars. He and some friends began rebuilding old cars, and at 15, he piloted one of them to his first victory. . . . Yarborough had a chance to play halfback at Clemson University, but he decided football was "too tame" and put all his athletic concentration on the auto tracks. . . . Mechanics describe Yarborough as "one of the hardest drivers in the business." When he drives, he literally becomes part of the machine and screams abusively at it if it doesn't behave exactly as he wants. His wife says that his mood of total absorption begins a day or two before a race, when he withdraws into a shell and fixes his mind on nothing but the upcoming event. . . . All racing drivers know fear, but according to Yarborough, the better ones know how to turn fear into courage. "You're strung out on tension when you race," he has remarked. "On one front, you're fighting the track. On another, you're listening to the scream of your engine. Then you are obsessed with psychological problems. What will the man in front of you do if you pass him? How about the car behind you? Are you really that tired? Can't you push yourself a little more? If you can turn these fears into a release of energy, you can obtain great speed." . . . Yarborough is still a farmer—in the investment sense. Much of his huge earnings from auto racing have been invested in farms, fertilizer businesses and real estate. His earnings are such that he doesn't have to drive to get to races around the country—he flies his own six-passenger plane.—By Barry Abramson

Almost everyone at the beach today has a gimmick. Find the one who doesn't. 1. Nope. He's Harmon Nee. Gimmick: His singing voice, that sounds like two chalk slates mating. Even his cigarette sings—every time he inhales, its multiple filter whistles "Dixie." 2. Not Laura Enertia, beach queen. Gimmick: More movable parts than a Swiss watch. Has a waiting list for crew when she surfs. Smokes Ms. feminist cigarettes—whose taste just msses, too. 3. Not "Bull" Gene Biceps. Gimmick: His waterproof makeup. Doesn't always hold arms that way—this morning he mistook spray starch for his underarm deodorant. Smokes his fat cigars down so far, the ashes drop behind his teeth. 4. No. He's Tyrone Shulace, beach pest. The "58" stands for his I.Q. (He thinks "off shore drilling" is something the Marines do.) Smokes Huff 'N Puff superfiltered cigarettes. You have to draw so hard, an art diploma comes with them. 5. Right. He enjoys the beach, not the beach crowd. Needs no fads or gimmicks in his cigarette, either. Camel Filters, Honest tobacco. Good, rich flavor. 6. Unidentified frying object.

by Gary Halbert

© 1974 Good News Publishing Co.

If you are like most Americans, you probably work hard and you probably pay your fair share of taxes. (Maybe you pay even a little more than your fair share.) What you get in return for your tax dollars depends a lot on who you are.

If you are poor, you may be getting Federal Housing, food stamps, and other welfare benefits.

If you are rich, you may be getting oil depletion allowances, special low tax rates on your investments, and maybe you are even getting other super special tax deductions.

But what if you are not rich or poor? What if you are like most of us who are just regular people stuck somewhere in the middle?

What do you get then? The answer to that one is easy. You get to keep paying.
And paying.

It is getting depressing. But what can you do about it? If you are already taking all of your legal deductions and you don't want to move to another country or do something illegal, there is only one thing left for you to do.

You've got to make sure that you are getting every penny's worth of government benefits that your hard-earned tax dollars are paying for. The trouble is that most people don't have any idea of what they have coming from the government or how to go about getting it. For example:

• Did you know that the government will lend a United States citizen $5000 and more at below market interest rates? If. . .the citizen knows how to apply for the loan!

• Protection for your children—a check list of over 200 toys banned as being unsafe for children. Check this list before you buy anything!

• How would you like to have your own five acre vacation hideaway? Prices begin as low as $25 per acre!

Do you know the advantage of collecting Social Security benefits before your sixties? Or that 1½ million children receive Social Security checks each month? Would you be interested in a complete foreign language course for only $2.00? How about exciting high-profit insured investments? Or traveling in the U.S.A. and abroad at government expense? How much do you really know about your new Social Security and your new Medicare and your new Veterans benefits?

If you didn't know that you had all of these benefits coming to you, don't feel bad. Not one person in 1000 really knows how to get what they have coming to them in return for their tax dollars. Here are a few more things you can get if you know how:

☆ Free employment assistance if you are having trouble finding a job because you are not a youngster any more.

☆ Free aptitude test that would otherwise cost you up to $25 to find the job you are best suited for.

☆ Free government land to stake your claim when prospecting for silver, gold or other valuable minerals.

☆ The right to enter a fabulous government sweepstakes—a public drawing to claim oil and gas rights to public lands. Profit potential ranges all the way up to $75,000!

All of the above and hundreds of other little-known government benefits are available to U.S. taxpayers. The trouble, as mentioned earlier, is that most people just don't know about all of the free benefits that they have coming or how to go about getting them. Even if you could work at it full time, it would probably take you weeks or months to dig up all the information that would be necessary in order to take full advantage of what your taxes have paid for. For years and years, the average citizen has been in the dark because there was simply no practical way to find out about all of these things.

Now there is a way.

Now there is a brand new revised book out called "How To Get What The Government Owes You". It tells about 320 government benefits that most people have never heard of. And it doesn't just tell about them, it also tells you how to get them. It tells you how to qualify, who to contact, (including all necessary addresses), and what to say. The book is broken up into 39 short, easy to read chapters. Here is an idea of what is in some of the chapters:

Chapter 4 tells about what the government has free for boaters. Chapter 5 tells about what is free for businessmen and investors. Chapter 11 is on free financial assistance and loans. Chapter 16 is all about low-cost government land bargains. Chapter 26 tells what the government has free for parents. Chapter 32 tells what is free for senior citizens. Chapter 36 has information on how to buy government surplus. Chapter 38 tells what is free for veterans. Chapter 39 is a special section on what is free for women.

That's just 9 of the chapters. There are 30 more! The book also contains two very special reports. Report 1 is "Who To Complain To In The U.S. Government" (the complete details on who to contact when you have a problem.) Report 2 is "Directory of Regional and Local Addresses of U.S. Government Agencies." (This will help you get faster action on the benefits you have coming.)

If you are a U.S. taxpayer, you should have this book. The book is not now available in newstands or bookstores. Maybe it never will be. For now, at least, it is only available by mail.

To get your copy, write your name and address and the words "Government Book" on a piece of paper and send it along with $3.00 in check, cash, or money order for each book you want.

The book will be sent to you promptly by return mail. It comes with a complete money-back-guarantee.

All orders should be mailed as soon as possible. If you don't take advantage of these benefits, you are only cheating yourself. After all, you have already paid for them.

Stunning Jacqueline Bisset: Why She's Still Afraid Of Marriage

"I've had people on TV shows ask my name before I went on, to be sure they had the correct pronunciation, and then when it was time to introduce me, they became tongue-tied...."

Heads swiveled as slender Jacqueline Bisset crossed the flagstones of the crowded Polo Lounge patio toward me. I couldn't help overhearing an ogling Beverly Hills businessman mumble enthusiastically to his companion, "That's Jackie Bee-say!" At another table three plump matrons whispered enviously, "That Miss Beezet is too thin!" When Jacqueline settled beside me, I had to ask:

FAMILY WEEKLY: Do people often mispronounce your name?

JACQUELINE (rolling her startling green eyes heavenward): Constantly! I've had people on TV shows ask my name before I went on, to be sure they had the correct pronunciation, and then when it was time to introduce me, they became tongue-tied and still couldn't remember. Once I even started to say it wrong and had to correct myself!

FW: Just for the record, how do you say your name?

JACQUELINE: Bis'-sit.

FW: That doesn't sound French.

JACQUELINE: It's not. Bisset is a Scottish name. The way we say Bisset, it sounds hard. Frankly, I don't think it really goes with Jacqueline. It's difficult to say, and isn't very melodious. It's harsh.

FW: You say you're not French, yet you did speak French in your film "Day for Night." Do you speak it fluently?

JACQUELINE: I hadn't spoken French for four years and I was rusty. I was very apprehensive, but before I went to France, François Truffant, the director, called me to find out for himself if I had an accent and if I would be able to speak well enough to suit him. Then before every shot he went over everything to be sure I understood the thought behind it all, knew exactly what was intended and what he wanted, and was comfortable in the lines.

Pictorial Parade

"I don't believe that when you marry, you become one person....I think you should stay two individual people."

FW: Do you find it difficult to live on foreign locations?

JACQUELINE: If I am anyplace for three months, it is home to me. There is no problem. I take certain things with me wherever I go – my books, records – and settle in right away. The only stipulation I make is that I must have a balcony.

FW: Why is that?

JACQUELINE: Because I don't like the feeling of being shut in. I may never get to use it, but I know it is there, and I can get out in the air if I want. This is absolutely essential to me.

FW: Where would you say your real home is – where do you have your roots?

JACQUELINE: England. I am an English citizen, and that's where my family is. But my house is in Los Angeles, in Benedict Canyon. I just bought the property, which goes up the hill behind me, so I now can have absolute privacy.

FW: Isn't that the area where the macabre Manson murders took place?

JACQUELINE: Yes, but I don't think about that. I'm not afraid, probably because I don't dwell on it.

FW: Do you consider yourself a loner?

JACQUELINE: I like being alone, but I've found that I need people more now than I used to. I don't know why that is. The hardest part of being at the studio all day is that you are constantly surrounded by people. I sometimes escape to the powder room just to get away by myself for a while. I can't stand frenetic chatter.

FW: I know that Michael Sarrazin is your constant companion – have you thought about getting married?

JACQUELINE: It's not in my thoughts now. There have been periods when I thought about it, but they passed.

FW: Does this mean you think marriage is outmoded?

JACQUELINE: Not at all! I believe in marriage. I believe in it so much that I think it must be a sensible step. It is something to be considered in depth. One should not enter into it for some silly reason: not for fun, or status, or security reasons, as some people do.

FW: Why do you think so many marriages fail?

JACQUELINE: Because it's a hard relationship. Often one person continues growing and the other does not. One suffers, the other becomes defiant.

FW: What do you feel is holding you back?

JACQUELINE: While I am a secure person by myself, I am easily subjugated. I have a strong desire to please. I could easily cease to live my own life. I don't believe that when you marry, you become one person. I think you stay two individual people, and I think you should stay two individual people.

FW: Your father is a doctor, your mother was a lawyer; you are an intelligent, articulate person. If you hadn't become an actress, what career would you have chosen?

JACQUELINE: I had thought a lot about being an archaeologist and visualized digging about in Egypt or someplace, which was a silly notion because I never knew anything about it. And then I had an enormous desire to work in a hotel.

FW: A hotel?

JACQUELINE: Yes, but don't ask me why. I have no idea, except I thought about myself behind a desk, talking to people. And I had a thing about big kitchens. In my own house, the kitchen is the very center. Lots of rough wood and tiles. It's Spanish-French provincial.

FW: Do you have any pet peeves?

JACQUELINE: This isn't an irritant at all, but I am constantly being mistaken for actress Jennifer O'Neill. Once I saw a picture that I thought was me, and it turned out it was a photo of her. It was amazing!

FW: Did you ever meet her?

JACQUELINE: Finally. After this had gone on for some time, I decided I had to see her and find out what it was that made people think we were the same person. We happened to be in New York at the same time so I called and made an appointment to meet her. When I went to her hotel, the elevator man said, "Hello – you're Miss O'Neill's sister, aren't you!" But when we met, we didn't look like each other at all!

BUY OUR MAGAZINE AND GET AN ENCYCLOPEDIA FREE!

Order an eight-month subscription to Moneysworth, the shrewd, authoritative fortnightly that tells you how to get the most for your money, and we'll send you absolutely free a copy of the 496-page, quarter-of-a-million-word Moneysworth Consumer Encyclopedia, the definitive consumer buying guide.

How much does a subscription to Moneysworth cost? Incredibly, ONLY $2.99!!

In case you've never seen the Moneysworth Consumer Encyclopedia (also published as "Consumers All"), it is the fundamental reference work on personal finance. Its chief feature, like that of all consumer buying guides, is, of course, telling you how to get the most for your money—in buying appliances, hi-fi's, furniture and automobiles.

The volume also reveals how to obtain free medical services, cut your food bill, locate a house that will appreciate in value, get mortgage money cheaply, reduce your electric bill, plan unforgettable vacations that cost next to nothing, and buy just the right kinds of insurance (auto, theft, fire and life) in just the proper amounts.

The Wall Street Journal: "Want to know how to replace a zipper, lose weight, save money on food, choose the right educational toy? How to build a patio, wire a garage, get rid of crabgrass? If you do, beat a path to this how-to book covering just about every practical question you can think of relating to food, clothing and shelter." Lady Bird Johnson: "I should have had a copy of this book when I started housekeeping; it is indeed the most remarkable compilation of information between two covers, a regular encyclopedia, and I believe it will become a handbook in every American home." Parade: "A must for every household." The Washington Star: "Reads like a letter from a wise old uncle and covers just about everything but choosing a mate." The Washington Post: "A handy-dandy guide bulging with tips on everything from dog bites to a working wife." Associated Press: "An all-knowing almanac." Federal Times: "A standard reference book for the homemaker and handyman." The New York Times: "Packs into 496 pages thousands of how-to-do-it facts for everyday living." Other critics have rhapsodized as follows: "It's a gold mine of savvy advice." "A do-it-yourself bible." "Written by some of our best brains."

The Moneysworth Consumer Encyclopedia is mammoth both in size and scope. It consists of 496 double-column pages and over a quarter of a million words of hard-to-come-by information and sage advice. The work is divided into one hundred and forty chapters and subchapters, and its index alone occupies eight pages and contains two thousand, four hundred entries. The text is supplemented by illustrations, floor plans, botanical drawings, menus, charts, maps, calorie tables and so on.

Contributors to this historic work include one hundred and thirty-three top experts in the field of consumer affairs. Among them are the Surgeon General of the United States, Secretary of Agriculture, heads of over 20 schools of home economics of leading universities, high-echelon officials of consumer-protection agencies (like the Food and Drug Administration) and renowned chemists, nutritionists, biologists, architects, economists, etc., etc., etc. Together they constitute the most formidable think tank of experts ever assembled in behalf of the consumer.

To repeat, you may obtain a copy of this invaluable, unprecedented work simply by entering a subscription to Moneysworth—at the ridiculously low price of ONLY $2.99!!

In case you're not familiar with Moneysworth, let us explain that it is (as New York critic Robert Reisner has stated) "By far, America's most trustworthy and useful consumer publication." It rates products as to best buys (as among cars, cameras and the like); it offers tips on how to save money (they will astound you with their ingenuity); and it counsels you on management of your personal finances (telling not only how to reap maximum returns on your savings but also how to fight inflation). Moneysworth is the most widely read periodical of its kind in the world, with nearly one million readers.

Cars that Are Stingiest with Gas

The editors of Moneysworth are a team of hard-nosed, experienced journalists with considerable expertise in the fields of consumer affairs and quality periodical publishing. The publisher is Ralph Ginzburg, creator of the classic Avant-Garde magazine (Mr. Ginzburg was among the first to provide Ralph Nader with a medium through which to express himself on auto safety). Moneysworth's editor-in-chief is Betty Fier, formerly of Fact magazine. Radiating from this nucleus of editorial energy are reporters, researchers, product-testers and consultants throughout the United States. Together they create America's first—and only—consumer periodical with charisma.

Moneysworth is available by subscription only. The cost of an eight-month subscription, again, is—incredibly—ONLY $2.99! And you get the Consumer Encyclopedia ABSOLUTELY FREE!!

What's more, we're so confident that Moneysworth and the Consumer Encyclopedia will prove indispensable to you that we offer them with what is probably the most generous money-back guarantee in publishing history: We absolutely and unconditionally guarantee that Moneysworth—in combination with the Moneysworth Consumer Encyclopedia—will increase the purchasing power of your income by at least 15% or you get your money back IN FULL. In other words, if you now earn $10,000 a year, we guarantee that Moneysworth and the encyclopedia will increase the value of your income by at least $1,500—or we'll refund your money. Meanwhile, you will have enjoyed a subscription to Moneysworth FREE and you may keep the encyclopedia WITH OUR COMPLIMENTS!! What could be more foolproof?

HENRY AARON
How good it feels

When Henry Aaron hit his 715th home run and passed Babe Ruth's record he said: "I'm thankful to God it's all over." In a book Aaron wrote with Furman Bisher, the home-run hitter describes what it's like at the plate. "I don't go up there swinging for the fence every time I go to bat. I like the feel of a home run. It does have a special feel, too. You can almost tell when one leaves your bat. Not every time will the feel be true. Sometimes you hit a 'home run' that hangs in the wind and gets caught, or 'hooks' like a golf ball and goes foul. But you still get the feel that when it left the bat it was a home run." From "Aaron" (Thomas Y. Crowell Co., $6.95).

QUOTE: Kristi Witker states emphatically she did not get her job on the McGovern campaign through a romantic liaison with the candidate – despite a malicious rumor. In her new book, however, she does comment on reasons why certain alliances are formed among coworkers during a campaign. "Like soldiers in a foxhole, unnatural relationships are formed in a campaign. Bonds are quickly tied by virtue of shared experience and interest, and previous attachments fall away as your world diminishes. Home no longer exists; it has been replaced by something cozier and more engulfing—the campaign itself. Men who might seem most dreary when viewed with the full trappings of their lives – wife, children and suburban home—are now only seen as much-needed and very available mental, emotional and physical companions." From "How to Lose Everything in Politics (Except Massachusetts)" (Mason & Lipscomb, $7.95). UNQUOTE.

SUSIE AND HERBIE
"The Odd Couple"

What do you say about a love affair between a kitten and a mouse except that it is a most unusual thing? This picture of Susie, the kitten, and her friend Herbie was shot recently while Herbie was trying to catch a few winks. Which proves that love sometimes triumphs even over the law of the jungle.

Despite her troubles this year off the coast of Bermuda, the "Queen Elizabeth 2" is scheduled to go on an 80-day voyage around the world, leaving New York City on January 10, 1975. The 1,300 passengers on the super-trip will pay between $4,800 and $86,200 per person. The highest price entitles a couple to a duplex penthouse suite complete with private staircase, private patio and their own bar. Passengers are expected to devour the following: one ton of caviar, five tons of lobster, 15 tons of filet mignon, two tons of pâté and 17,100 bottles of champagne and wine. Cruisers will also drink more than one million cups of coffee. Bring on the Dramamine and Alka Seltzer!

DATES: Sunday is Mother-in-Law Day. Also Sunday is the Indianapolis "500." Memorial Day is observed Monday. The Emmy Awards will be presented on Tuesday.

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

PURE SPECULATION

There must be good mosquitoes, ants,
As well as flies and gnats and vermin.
It's something that I can't determine.

I wonder, when the day arrives
They shuffle off this mortal coil,
What's their reward for honest toil.

Do they, recipients of grace,
Ascend to some celestial place,
Enjoying as a well-earned plus
Eternal bliss along with us?

I rather hope, if truth be known,
They have a Heaven of their own.

Rumor has it that they've brought out a new drink called Foreignade. It's the refreshment that never pauses.

Two American businessmen met in a swank Brazilian hotel. One said, "I'm having the time of my life, and the insurance company is paying for everything. My factory burned down and I got a $100,000 settlement!" The other businessman said, "What a coincidence. My factory was blown away by a hurricane. I got a $500,000 settlement!" The first businessman took a long, thoughtful puff on his $2 cigar, then poked his friend in the chest and said, "Tell me, how do you start a hurricane?" —Robert Orben

WHY PLANT A GROUND COVER?

In many areas and situations, ground covers are more appropriate and more satisfactory than turf. They are able to grow and thrive in sun OR shade, and in poor soil.

On steep slopes where mowing is difficult, ground cover is much more effective and much less laborious to maintain than grass. Ground covers hold the soil as well as turf and the textures are far more interesting.

Small areas of grass are a continual chore to keep mown and trimmed but ground covers require almost no care. They are excellent protection and soil conditioners. They hold the fallen leaves from blowing away, thus helping to add annually to the humus content.

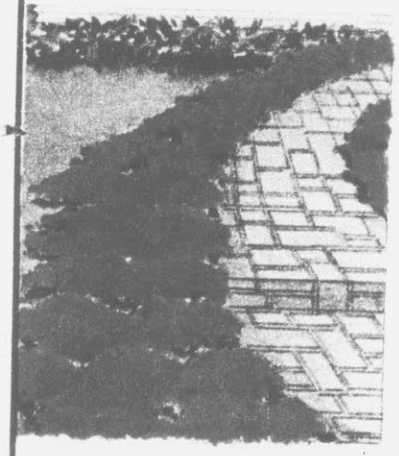
Check these Special Features of the Perfect Ground Cover!

CREEPING RED SEDUM

- Grows in Any Soil
- Thrives in Sun or Partial Shade
- No Special Care Needed
- Extremely Hardy
- Brilliant Color
- Rich, long-lasting Foliage
- Neat, uniform Growth
- Quick, but Disciplined Spreading
- Guaranteed
- Inexpensive

You will receive hardy northern nursery grown plants carefully packaged to arrive in prime condition. An outstanding buy at less than 20¢ per plant in lots of two dozen!

WHY CREEPING RED SEDUM?



One of Sedum's most valuable assets is its full time beauty. Lush foliage begins in early spring, and star-shaped wine red flowers delight the viewer from late June through September. The attractive semi-evergreen foliage lasts well into winter, maintaining its rich green and bronze color nearly all year round.

Besides being one of the loveliest of the ground covers, Sedum also rates high on the other requirements. It is hardy, grows well in sun or partial shade, in sandy soil, clay soil, or good soil.

Its thick foliage and root system hold the soil on slopes or banks. The neat 3-4" cover forms a dense perennial mat to bring green and wine red beauty to slopes, borders, rocky areas, anywhere beauty and durability are needed.

Each plant will easily and quickly spread to fill one sq. ft. Sedum spreads evenly, maintains its uniform smooth beauty at all stages of growth. Unlike some other ground covers, Sedum, also called "Dragon's Blood," stays where you put it — does not straggle out into places where it doesn't belong. Sedum is almost indestructible, enduring and persisting against heavy climatic and nutritional odds.

FULLY GUARANTEED

All items guaranteed to be of high quality, exactly as advertised and to arrive in good healthy condition or purchase price will be refunded. RETURN SHIPPING LABEL ONLY —you may keep the plants. (One year limit).

Now is a Good Time to Plant RED SEDUM!

Your young Sedum plants will establish themselves and begin to spread a few days after planting. In a month or so they will already be 3-4 inches in diameter. They may lose their foliage as the first winter progresses but will leaf out again in early spring. During a long growing season they may reach 12" in diameter, always maintaining their neat regulated shape.

SPECIAL BONUS

2 PEONIES 25¢

Everyone's favorite. With Sedum orders of $2.50 or more, you can order 2 Red Peony bushes (a reg. $1.75 value) for only 25¢. Take advantage of these extra savings on handsome peonies—special with this value-packed Sedum offer.

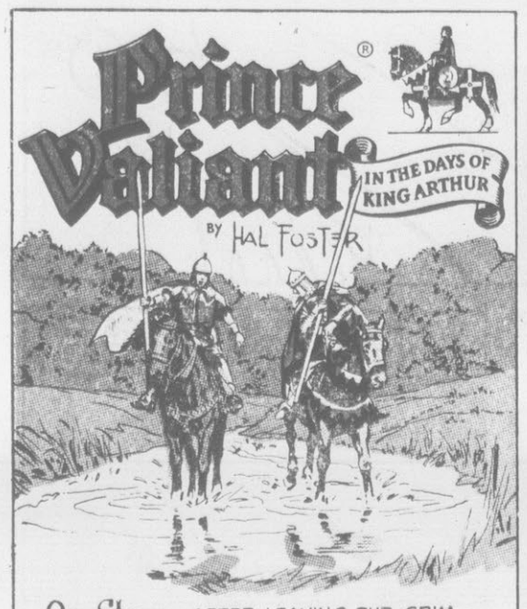
IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

BY HAL FOSTER



Our Story: AFTER LEAVING THE GRIM CASTLE OF THE MAD DUKE THEY RIDE SWIFTLY, AND SEVERAL DAYS LATER, ARN POINTS: "LOOK, GAWAIN, THE STREAMS ARE ALL FLOWING NORTH, THE COAST CANNOT BE FAR AWAY."

THE NEXT DAY THEY ARE MET WITH SNOW AND SLEET DRIVEN BY A COLD WIND, A REMINDER THAT WINTER STILL HOLDS THE NORTHLANDS IN ITS GRIP.

THEIR ARRIVAL IS ANNOUNCED, AND LADY MELLICENT, IN THE MIDST OF HOUSE CLEANING, IS NOT TOO PLEASED. "A POX ON THIS INTRUSION," SHE EXCLAIMS PETULANTLY, "FEED THEM IN THE BUTTERY AND LODGE THEM WITH THE YEOMEN." "BUT, LADY, THEY ARE PEOPLE OF QUALITY," ANNOUNCES THE BUTLER.

SHE TAKES A PEEK FROM THE WINDOW AND CHANGES HER MIND. SUCH A HANDSOME PAIR ARE RARE IN THIS REGION. AN HOUR LATER SHE FLOATS LIGHTLY DOWN THE STAIRS SMILING A WELCOME, HER BRIGHT EYES RIVALING HER JEWELS.

HER SHY BEAUTY BRINGS OUT THE BEST IN SIR GAWAIN. HE IS GALLANT, HE IS WITTY, HE TOSSES BACK HIS SILVERY CURLS AND HIS SMILE SHOWS WHITE TEETH, MUCH AS A WOLF MIGHT AT SIGHT OF A PARTRIDGE.

"IT IS SUCH A PLEASURE TO HAVE COMPANY," MURMURS THE LADY MELLICENT MODESTLY, "FOR IT IS LONELY HERE. MY HUSBAND IS AT THE COURT OF KING CLOVIS AND WILL NOT RETURN UNTIL SPRING."

"NOW, CALLOW YOUTH, IF YOU WATCH ME YOU WILL LEARN HOW A MASTER AT LOVEMAKING CAN WIN THE HEARTS OF FAIR LASSIES," BOASTS GAWAIN. "YEA, KING OF HEARTS," ARN GRINS, "YOU HAVE GRAVY ON YOUR MOUSTACHE!"

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1. Doormat is missing. 2. Hair bow is smaller. 3. Hairdo is different. 4. Bow on box is smaller. 5. Apron is different. 6. Gift box is smaller.

If he tries to pull one hand up and the other down, remind him that the test is to pull both to the sides.

BULLETIN BOARD

● HOLD THAT TIGER! Tiger trainer Tom Tyler tickled the terrible tiger's tummy, then tied two tin cans to its tail. Tormented, Tabby the tiger tore Tom's tights to tatters. Tom tensed, tossed a table. Tabby turned tail. Repeat rapidly aloud.

● With what eight letters of the alphabet can you tell a girl named Ellen that she is very attractive? No fair peeking below.

These letters: U R A B U T I. N.

● How many negatives can you discover in "Don't never say I didn't never give you nothing"?

There are five.

● Two early U.S. Presidents on common U.S. coins appear to have ribbons in their hair. Which two?

WELL, YUH SEE, SANDY AND I HAVEN'T ANY MONEY TO PAY BOARD- WE SURE DON'T WANT TO 'MPOSE ON YOU-

IMPOSE ON ME? WHY, ANNIE- I WAS AFRAID TO ASK YOU TO STAY- FEARED YOU'D THINK I WAS IMPOSING ON YOU, AND RUN AWAY-

WELL, SINCE YOU'RE GOING TO STAY HERE, WE SHOULD HAVE A LITTLE TALK, I GUESS- WHO ARE YOU, ANNIE, AND WHERE DO YOU COME FROM?

WHO AM I? OH, I'M NOBODY- AND I DON'T COME FROM ANY PLACE IN PARTICULAR- WHO ARE YOU AND WHERE DID YOU COME FROM?

SUPPOSE WE FORGET THE PAST- SAY WE START FROM THE MOMENT YOU CAME DOWN THE STEPS INTO MY SHOP, EH?

FINE

BUT WAIT- THE WORLD IS FULL OF GOSSIPS, AND HALF OF THEM ARE IN THIS LITTLE TOWN OF BUTTERNUT, I'M SURE- WE'LL HAVE TO HAVE SOME ANSWER FOR THE BUSY BODIES-

WELL, YOU MIGHT BE MY UNCLE

Mr. Wallet, I guess you're pretty mad about what Jason did and I'm sorry.

It's okay, Mrs. Bloop.

Oh, I don't think so.

Oh?

Too bad.

Then when Jason went in to pay the fine, they got him again—for running a red light.

What a shame!

Oh, no!

No, Walt, he's like poison ivy.
