JERUSALEM (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger postponed his return to Washington again today and headed back to Damascus instead, making a final effort to win a disengagement agreement between Israel and Syria.

Kissinger set out on the surprise flight — his 13th trip to the Syrian capital in 31 days — after the Israeli government held a five-hour marathon session but failed to reach a decision on the latest truce bargaining.

The secretary said earlier that he would not return to Damascus. He changed his mind after another meeting with Premier Golda Meir and Israeli negotiators.

Kissinger had planned to send his top aide, Joseph Sisco, for a last trip to the Syrian capital and then return to the United States.

Giving no reason for the sudden switch in plans, Kissinger drove from Jerusalem to Ben-Gurion Airport shortly after the Israeli government announced it needed further "clarifications" from Syria. The unexplained "clarifications" appeared essential to any agreement.

Israeli reports suggested the critical differences in negotiations were over Syria's insistence on linking the promised Israeli withdrawal to a broader pullback in the future.

Israeli Information Minister Shimon Peres said the Israeli cabinet had gone over the "sum total and general balance of the whole negotiations" in today's first session without concentrating on any particular sticking points.

Earlier Kissinger met for two hours with the Israeli negotiating team, where he reported on Monday's marathon talks with Assad.

"We had a very detailed meeting, the result of which is that the cabinet will meet to make a decision," added Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban. Kissinger did not speak to newsmen.

Reports from sources close to the negotiations indicated it would be a difficult decision for the Israelis, and that Kissinger stood a strong chance of ending his 32-day peace marathon without a disengagement pact.

U.S. officials said draft agreements were already drawn up.

Aerial Rescue

ATLANTIC, N.C. (AP)—Five fishermen were evacuated from a trawler by a Coast Guard helicopter after the boat ran aground in Core Sound in heavy seas and strong winds.

The Coast Guard reported that the 50-foot wooden vessel Nellie Mae ran aground and began breaking up early Monday morning. A rescue vessel was sent from the Ocracoke station and tried unsuccessfully to pass ropes to the disabled vessel. When that failed, a helicopter was sent from Elizabeth City to evacuate the men on board.

The occupants of the boat were identified as T.R. Williams and Davis Cox, both of Belhaven, N.C., and three Swan Quarter, N.C. men, Max Bartell, Tim Bartell and Bill Bartell.

A Coast Guard spokesman said there were five-foot seas and winds of 30 knots at the time of the rescue.

Ford Against Prolongation

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford says he hopes the House Judiciary Committee won't expand its hearings on the impeachment of President Nixon, declaring, "If they drag it out, it could very well interfere with the necessary work of the Congress."

Ford was asked in an interview about reports that committee members feel additional hearings are needed to clarify ambiguities in Watergate tapes and transcripts. "I certainly hope not," he replied. "I think they could — I would hope they would get it, whatever they do, to the floor of the House by late June or early July."

Ford was interviewed in the wake of his strong public disapproval of President Nixon's refusal to provide any additional Watergate evidence to the Judiciary Committee. However, at the vice president's request, that was not raised in the interview.

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler on Sunday put down reports of differences between Ford and Nixon.

Meanwhile, Judiciary Committee Republican Reps. Charles E. Wiggins of California, David W. Dennis of Indiana and Henry P. Smith of New York all said Nixon's "hush money" conversation of March 21, 1973, is the only evidence they have heard that could tend to implicate the chief executive in the Watergate cover-up.

All had insisted before listening to the tape last week that the inquiry had yet to hear any evidence implicating Nixon.

However, the three said in interviews over the Memorial Day recess that the March 21 talk could be a turnaround point if it is clarified with further investigation.

And former Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox said Nixon's refusal to comply with the committee's evidence demands is one of three possible grounds for removing him from office.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica ruled May 20 that Nixon must surrender the tapes, but St. Clair asked the U.S. Court of Appeals here last Friday to overturn that ruling.

Jaworski then asked the Supreme Court to take jurisdiction in the case.

If the Supreme Court accepts the case, it will bypass the appeals court.

N. Ireland Govm't Resigns As Strike Impact Worsening

By ED BLANCHE Associated Press Writer

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The provincial government announced its resignation today as militant Protestants began halting essential services in a showdown with British troops sent in to break the Protestants' two-week-old general strike.

Northern Irish political circles said the government's fall probably would mean the British would reintroduce direct rule of Northern Ireland from London. Protestant militants have said they probably would call off their strike if that happens.

The Northern Ireland government of moderate Protestants and Roman Catholics, called the Executive, announced its resignation after a three-hour meeting at Stormont Palace, seat of the provincial administration outside Belfast.

Angry strike leaders ordered all Protestant workers except those in hospitals to walk off their jobs at midnight. It appeared most were obeying their stop-work call.

"Let the army bury the dead," declared Glen Barr of the Ulster Workers' Council, which is coordinating the strike. "We'll eat grass before we're beaten."

Manual workers abandoned their jobs at the only remaining power station in operation at midnight. The electricity supply, already down to 25 per cent of normal, was being tapered off and a total blackout in the six counties of the British province was expected within 24 hours unless British soldiers could keep the plants operating.

Armed forces technicians, including turbine operators from Britain's nuclear submarines, were expected to take over control of the power stations. But the army would not confirm that they had done so this morning.

The council ordered the shutdown of essential services Monday after 500 troops took control of two Ulster oil depots and 21 gasoline stations.

The new walkouts left the British government with the prospect of directing its more than 16,500 troops in the province to maintain electricity, gas, water and sewage services and provide Ulster's 1½ million inhabitants with milk, bread and food.

"At first we were soldiers," said one trooper, "then policemen, then politicians, and now petrol pump attendants."

Merlyn Rees, Britain's minister of state for Northern Ireland, called the escalating strike action "appallingly reckless."

Prime Minister Harold Wilson interrupted a Scilly Isles holiday to fly back to London today amid speculation he would recall Parliament from recess to discuss the Ulster crisis.

Wilson has called the strike the gravest crisis in Northern Ireland since sectarian war erupted almost five years ago. More than 1,000 persons have died in the fighting.

GIRL WATCHERS' LANDMARK GONE

I have returned to this area after being away for 20 years. I notice there is great improvement in the traffic system, one instance being at Five Points in downtown Greenville.

I hate, though, that the Five Points traffic marker has disappeared. Most of the people my age will remember when the men gathered at this intersection at nights and on weekends, and all the girls who wanted to find somebody would ride through.

I would like the landmark to be relocated, if possible, perhaps on the Town Common as a memorial to the girl watchers of a bygone era. G. W.

Mayor Eugene West says he remembers the practice you speak of, though Mrs. West never let him participate. He has bad news about the fate of the marker you mentioned, though. It was made of concrete and was badly damaged by big trucks and patched several times before it was removed. It's no longer in existence, he says.

HELP FOR VETS

I'm a Vietnam veteran and I would like to know why North Carolina doesn't give the veteran's bonus as provided by the law. And why don't the disabled Vets get a cost of living increase? H.T.

North Carolina does not have a Vietnam Veteran's bonus law, as three other southern states do, according to the local Veterans Affairs office. This law, enacted by state legislatures, provides payment of a bonus depending on the amount of service time spent in the U.S. or outside the continental U.S. during the Vietnam conflict to military personnel and veterans of the Vietnam era.

A federal bill providing for a $566.9 million increase in benefits for veterans disabled in service and their dependents was sent to the President on May 23.

This bill would raise benefits 15 per cent for those disabled 10 to 50 per cent and 18 per cent for those with 60 to 100 per cent disability and those with anatomical losses. Payment to widows and children of veterans who died of service-connected causes would be increased 17 per cent.

DUPLICATES EACH MONTH

My husband and I receive two copies of "The Carolina Cooperator," a magazine we enjoy very much. So do your son and his wife. My daughter-in-law and I each have written several times to try to get this corrected. It seems a waste. Mrs. E.C.D.

Hotline talked to M. G. Mann, editor of the FCX magazine. He said he appreciates your being so conscientious and will try to see that both your families receive only one issue apiece each month from now on.

Shrine Parade

Uniformed walking and motorized units of Sudan Temple of the Shrine of North America will participate in a parade to be held here beginning at noon Saturday.

The parade will be composed of 18 motorized and walking Sudan Temple units, 19 cars containing dignitaries and officials of Sudan Temple and approximately 12 vehicles representing various Masonic organizations in Sudan Temple.

The parade will form on Second Street and proceed south on Evans to Reade Circle, where it will turn and head north on Reade Street.

A reviewing stand will be located near the intersection of Reade and Cotanche Streets.

The parade will be held in conjunction with festivities of Sudan Temple's Spring Ceremonial being held on the campus of ECU this weekend.

New Program Approved By PTI Trustees

The Pitt Technical Institute Board of Trustees, at its May meeting, gave formal approval for the institution to offer a new program in Industrial Technology.

The new curriculum, which leads to the associate degree, focuses upon technical and managerial attributes sought by local industry. The program will be offered only during the evening hours and will carry full veterans benefits for those on the GI Bill who enroll for 12 hours per week.

Dr. William E. Fulford Jr., PTI president, called the program, "One of the most promising we have ever started. It will allow currently employed persons to upgrade their level of skills, to earn a degree, and to take advantage of their GI benefits if they have such. It will also be beneficial to the industrial community as it teaches many of the skills that industry is seeking."

In other action, the board received a new member as G. Henry Leslie was sworn in to succeed James W. Brewer, whose term expired on June 30, 1973. Leslie is plant manager of Burroughs Wellcome Co. here.

Other agenda items included a proposal to increase student activity fees from $5 to $6 per quarter and a proposal for the construction of a dual tennis court on the campus to serve the students, faculty, and staff. Both proposals were unanimously approved.

Before adjourning, the board adopted a resolution of appreciation to James W. Brewer for his nine years of service as a PTI trustee. Brewer was appointed to the PTI board in September of 1965.

Not Leaving?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A week before the deadline for withdrawal of all foreign forces from Laos, U.S. intelligence sources say North Vietnam still has more than 25,000 troops there.

Pentagon sources said it is obvious the North Vietnamese are not going to get out of Laos by June 4, the date when all foreign troops are supposed to be gone under terms of a Laotian peace agreement.

United States personnel will be reduced to a planned group of 30 military attaches and 19 Marine embassy guards by the deadline, officials said.

Pitt Tech Has 121 Grads At Commencement

Degrees and diplomas were presented to 121 Pitt Technical Institute graduates in ceremonies Friday night in McGinnis Auditorium.

The number marked the largest class of graduates in the institution's ten-year history.

Addressing the PTI graduates was Robert Phay, assistant director of the Institute of Government in Chapel Hill, who focused his remarks upon the need for the value of an educated citizenry.

Phay, a nationally recognized authority on the legal aspects of education, cited historical firsts in American education which occurred in North Carolina and assured the graduates that, "Your state, above all others, has sacrificed from its infant stages to assure you of educational opportunity."

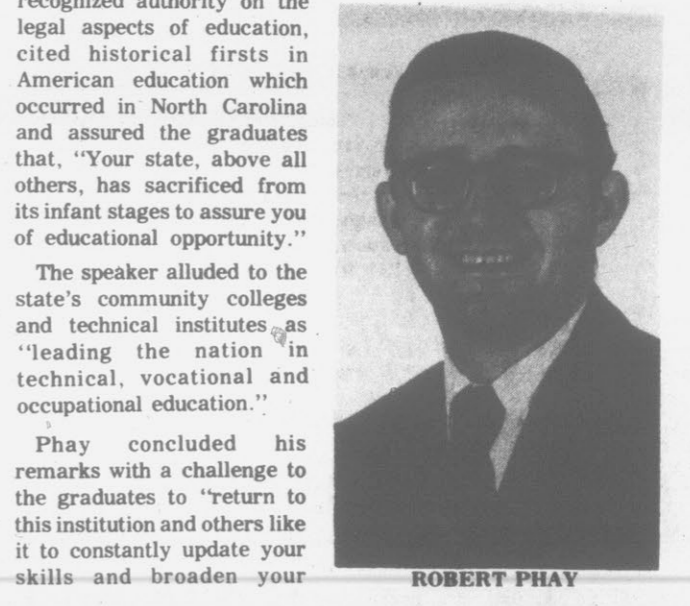

The speaker alluded to the state's community colleges and technical institutes as "leading the nation in technical, vocational and occupational education."

Phay concluded his remarks with a challenge to the graduates to "return to this institution and others like it to constantly update your skills and broaden your perspectives, and in so doing, help shape better lives for ourselves and future generations."

Other participants in the ceremony included Dr. William E. Fulford Jr., president of Pitt Technical Institute, and Sen. Vernon E. White, chairman of the Board of Trustees.

Music for the exercises was presented by Mrs. Becky Carraway, soloist, and Miss Barbara Lang, pianist. M. Dana Hunt, PTI staff member, delivered the invocation and benediction.

ECU Med School Planning Expected In June

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer

Officials at East Carolina University have been given the responsibility to develop plans for an expanded medical school at the Greenville campus, but formal work on the plans may not begin until mid-June.

University of North Carolina president William Friday has authorized ECU officials to develop the plans and taken the necessary step to assign the responsibility to the school administrators, but indicated that the planning should be "consistent with accreditation requirements."

Spokesmen at East Carolina said last week that the proposal to make ECU responsible for the development of the expansion plans is to be presented to the Liaison Committee on Medical Education, which meets in mid-June. The formal planning by the Greenville administrators will be "contingent upon a positive response from the liaison committee," spokesmen noted.

The Liaison Committee on Medical Education represents the Association of Medical Colleges and the Council of Medical Education of the American Medical Association, and ultimately approves or disapproves programs for accreditation.

ECU officials in planning expansion of the one-year medical program here will be providing for the expansion of the first-year class from 20 to 40 students and establishing the framework for the addition of a second year of medical education.

Currently students satisfactorily completing the first year of medical school at ECU automatically transfer to the University of North Carolina medical school for their second year.

Dr. William Huffines, professor of pathology and Associate Dean of the UNC School of Medicine said this morning that the ECU transfers to Chapel Hill "all did satisfactorily. . . to my knowledge they have done satisfactorily."

He explained that students in the medical school are ranked according to "honors, passed (satisfactory) or didn't do satisfactorily."

Dr. Huffines said the 20 ECU transfers—in the second year with 110 other medical students at Chapel Hill—"have made an effort to become an integral part of the group. . . and the faculty and staff have made an effort to do likewise.

"The students," according to the UNC official, "didn't want to be singled out as a group and no one else wanted to single them out as a group. . . that these are ECU students. We wanted to treat them like any other student."

"To my knowledge," Dr. Huffines explained, "they responded well to this and everyone else responded well to them."

Law Dean To Push Verbal Skills

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Gobbledygook in some legal papers isn't contrived to mystify or confound clients. A great many lawyers simply do not know how to phrase a sentence, says Judith T. Younger, the new dean of Syracuse Law School.

In fact, a great many students who enter law schools are illiterate, insists Mrs. Younger, a pretty, petite 40-year-old brunette, one of five women law deans in the United States. Writing and verbal skills should be basic tools of lawyers, she explained, and she aims to do something about it.

"Deans often get themselves in hot water by announcing radical changes in law schools without consulting their faculty — after all, running a law school is really a faculty matter. But I do feel that law schools must place more curricular time and effort on writing and verbal skills. Many students haven't the foggiest notion of basic grammatical concepts. Many can not write a grammatical English sentence clearly and with style, but neither can they utter one."

In law schools the tendency is to say that these things should have been taught in first grade, and she agrees.

"But if it isn't taught, we must teach them or at least try to correct the worst errors."

The elements of good legal writing should be the same as good literature, she points out. Law is a branch of letters, not a science. Students should also learn from faculty how to use the library. As it is now, she says, only a select group of students learn or they learn from other students. At Syracuse they have the opportunity through a computer to locate a book in any library in the United States.

Lawyers' opportunities exist in business, banking, government, corporate legal departments, politics at every level, in addition to private practice, but competition for law school admission is keen — there are at least 10 applicants for every available place. She encourages pre-law students not to be discouraged.

"Different admission committees find different subjective factors important. Between acceptances at the top and the rejection floor there is a big middle area of applicants where discretion might be exercised. One set of admitting officers might choose the captain of a college cheer leader squad, another might prefer the person who had involved himself in community action programs in underprivileged areas."

Mrs. Younger has had a wide variety of experience. After graduating No. 1 in her class both in high school and from Cornell University School of Industrial and Labor Relations where she was on scholarship, she hoped to be a management or union contract negotiator.

She began a job with a small electrical manufacturing concern.

"My first contract negotiation resulted in a five-week strike," she explained, good humoredly. "If I were to go further in labor relations, I decided, I needed a law degree."

At New York University she was one of two women in her freshman class. The other dropped out.

"Now 25 per cent are likely to be women, a trend that started during the Vietnam War when law schools became nervous and encouraged women to come to classes."

She expects her first classes at Syracuse will be 22 per cent female. The university has not experienced the serious and continuing deficits of other universities and this year its enrollment is up five per cent.

After law school Mrs. Younger had accepted "a very prestigious clerkship" with Federal Judge Edward Weinfeld. She was his first and last female law clerk. She doesn't know why, she says, but speculates that perhaps no dean since "has sent him a woman with glowing recommendations."

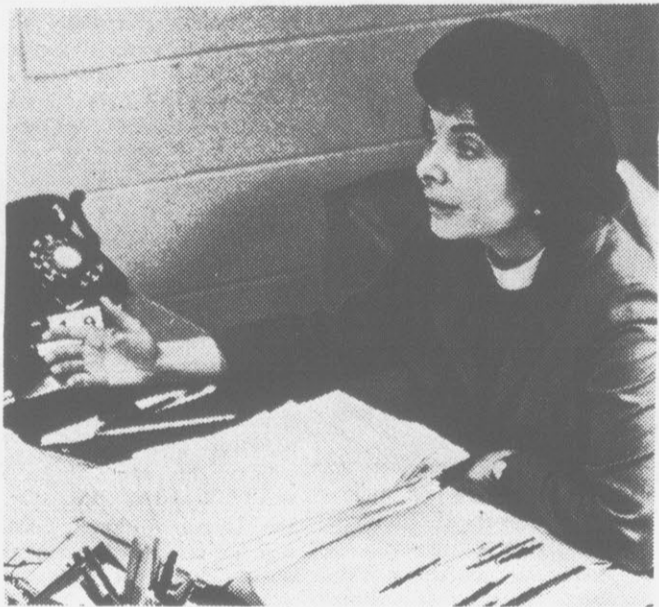

She then worked for a litigation firm where she suspects the men made more "because women are often willing to work for less," but if you are satisfied, "what difference does it make," she remarked.

She has been assistant attorney general of the State of New York, associate dean of Hofstra University, has taught at NYU and has been in practice with her husband of 19 years, now a judge of the Civil Court of the City of New York.

When they and their two children — Rebecca, 11, and Abigail, 7 — make the move to Syracuse he will be the first Samuel Liebowitz Professor of Trial Techniques at Cornell Law School.

"A dean's job is demanding," she says, thoughtfully. "Students, alumni, faculty, administration and other diverse groups, have different ideas of curing law school ills. Then, too, law school excellence depends on the quality of students, which means you must have a superb library and the best faculty to attract them."

She is prepared to meet the challenge.

LAWYER—Judith Younger, the new dean of Syracuse Law School, plans on instituting some relevant changes. For instance, she wants to make sure future lawyers can write a grammatically correct sentence.

Mrs. Hardee Named CW-I President

Mrs. Carol Hardee

Mrs. Carol Hardee was installed as president of N.C. Credit Women-International at the 33rd annual convention held at the Downtowner East, Charlotte, Sunday and Monday.

The Credit Women meet jointly each year with the N.C. Merchants Association.

Highlights of the convention were a banquet Sunday evening featuring Walter Cronkite as guest speaker, the installation luncheon Monday followed by an afternoon trip to Carowinds.

Two Greenville men have been named by Mrs. Hardee as state sponsors for the 1974-75 club year. They are Roscoe King of First Federal Savings and Loan and Jesse Laughinghouse of Bostic-Sugg Furniture Co.

Mrs. Hardee is a native of Pitt County and lived in Greenville prior to moving to Chapel Hill in 1972. She served as president of the Greenville CW-I in 1969 and was named "outstanding credit woman of the year" in 1968. She has also served as secretary and vice president of the state association.

She is currently employed by the law firm of Haywood, Denny and Miller, Chapel Hill, and resides with her husband, Charles, and daughter Kim, at 103 Mary St., Chapel Hill. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McLawhorn of Ayden.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

The Phoenix Zoo recently confirmed a suspicion of mine. Take two orangutans, install a television set outside their cage, and they'll tune in "Let's Make A Deal" over Alistair Cooke everytime.

The TV set wasn't installed to do a survey in taste. It was wheeled in because Ben and Dutchess had been tearing their cage apart from boredom and it was thought watching television might give them something to do.

At first, the animals watched everything that moved. Then they became more selective. They were restless during Sesame Street, irritable to Jack LaLanne and played with their feet during the mid-morning news. Then came the card games, the pyramids, the lights and buzzers, half-hidden puzzles, stuttering celebrities and secret doors and the orangutans went bananas.

I didn't feel I could fairly assess the emotions of the orangutans until I had watched a full day of game shows myself. So, one morning last week, I began with Password right after breakfast and didn't stir from in front of the set until To Tell The Truth went off at 7 p.m.

By this time, I had undergone a complete personality change. Everyone looked like Soupy Sales. I wanted a five-piece dinette set for remembering my own name. I pushed imaginary buzzers and shouted out for no apparent reason, "A Stitch In Time Saves Nine"... dinner was a challenge and I couldn't remember if it was in door No. 1 (the oven), door No. 2 (the freezer) or door No. 3 (the cupboard). Also, I didn't seem to be able to concentrate on what anyone was saying. I'd just smile and mumble, "I want to come back tomorrow and try for the car."

But the one game I seemed to be hung up on was the Newlywed Game. It is basically a game where a wife tries to answer the questions the way she thinks her husband will answer and vice versa. It's a shortcut to World War III. Turning to my husband I asked suspiciously, "What would you say would be the most embarrassing moment at our wedding?"

"When our kids showed up," "Isn't that like you to be cute when there are two motorbikes riding on an answer?"

"Okay, if you want a straight answer, when your Mother arrived in a black veil and a hearse."

"Maybe we'd better get it all out in the open."

"Yeah, well, maybe I should give you more room." The door slammed.

I don't like to overreact, but I think it is only a matter of time before Ben and Dutchess (a) go back to playing with their feet; (b) start ripping up the cage again; or (c) are contestants on the Newlywed Game.

Receiver Of Junk Mail Responds

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the letter from the woman who recommends sending back "junk mail" so the company must pay the return postage and will remove her name from their mailing list.

I hope you don't agree with this policy, Abby. My husband and I started a small business, producing a high quality item, well worth its price. We can't afford national advertising, so we use direct mail advertising to inform people of our product and give them a chance to examine it before they buy.

On the few occasions when people have returned our envelopes stuffed with extra paper, I am more saddened than angry. It shows so much hostility and aggression. If the recipient isn't interested in the product, why not just throw the mail away?

I hope you feel that this is important enough for your column. It means a great deal to the small business people who rely on direct mail for their sales. Thank you.

STRUGGLING

DEAR STRUGGLING: And thanks for giving me the opportunity to open a few million eyes.

DEAR ABBY: When Dad asked his 17-year-old daughter what size bra she wore, she told him it was none of his business. Her mother agreed with her, and you sided with both of them. Dad worked for 17 years to provide the food that went into the tissue which created his daughter's breasts, but it's none of his business what size they are. CRAZY!

I deem it impudent for the daughter and her mother to even question Dad's right to this information. As long as he's supporting her, every part of her development is his business.

Boys get too big for their britches, and girls get too big for their brassieres when they can get away with telling Dad that something is none of his business.

I'll bet you will hear from plenty of readers on this. FRANK IN OREGON

DEAR FRANK: You bet right. And the mail is running 20 to one against me!

Let's set the record straight, Frank. When Dad asked his budding daughter what size bra she wore, nobody told Dad it was "none of his business."

Daughter became embarrassed and declined to answer. Mother sided with Daughter saying she didn't think it was anything Dad had to know, and I took the distaff side.

Read on for a letter from a like-minded physician who said it better than I:

DEAR ABBY: May I say that the father who felt he had a "right" to know his teen-aged daughter's bra size was out of line?

My daughters are 18 and 20, and I have no idea what size bras they wear, and I couldn't care less.

I think that father should have been more concerned with his daughter's feelings than the size of her bra.

OLD-FASHIONED FATHER

CONFIDENTIAL TO "LEFT OUT": Don't pressure him to meet his family. Even though he is separated from his wife, he is still married. Obviously, he doesn't want his family to meet YOU.

Women's Center Originated 'To Translate Talents'

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — To further underscore the women's equal rights movement, the University of California has put major emphasis on its Women's Center.

The center, now in its second year, was originated to help women find what they can do best and how to translate their talents into rewarding careers, according to the university.

"Our most important goal is to provide women with enough information so that they have genuine freedom of choice in planning their futures," said May Diaz, the center's director and also a professor of anthropology at Berkeley.

Because they often do not have enough information, women may make decisions that later "lock them out" of opportunities or options," Mrs. Diaz said.

"For instance, if a woman does not take enough math courses early in her educational career, she has handicapped herself for entry into many interesting and well-paid fields."

"Many of the women who come to us have no idea of the options open to them," Ms. Diaz added. "Sometimes it takes a lot of talking before we can help women see what they've really been interested in and what else there is to do."

"We find it very helpful to ask women what they really wanted to do in their wildest dreams. Then we work from there to find practical ways their interests can be used in the job market."

Duke Ellington Buried After Eulogies And Music

By MARY CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — After a eulogy of word and music echoed by thousands of mourners, jazz giant Duke Ellington has been buried in the city where he first rose to fame half a century ago.

"Duke, we thank you. You loved us madly," the Rev. Norman J. O'Connor said Monday in eulogizing Ellington before 10,000 persons jammed into the huge Episcopal Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine for the Duke's funeral. Another 2,000 stood outside.

"We will love you madly today, tomorrow and forever," added Rev. O'Connor, Roman Catholic priest to the New York jazz community, in paraphrasing Ellington's own traditional signoff.

Born Edward Kennedy Ellington in Washington, D.C., Ellington became a pioneering pianist, band leader and composer here, until many critics described him as the world's greatest jazz composer. He died Friday at 75 of pneumonia brought on by lung cancer.

Before he was buried next to the graves of his parents in a brief, quiet ceremony at Woodlawn Cemetery in the Bronx, some of the reigning royalty of the music world gathered at St.

John the Divine, the city's largest church, for his funeral.

William "Count" Basie, a friendly rival bandleader and friend of Ellington's for 40 years, rode in a half-mile funeral cortege that wound through Harlem to the church. Joe Williams and Michele LeGrande also rode in the procession.

During the service, Ella Fitzgerald sang Ellington's "Solitude" and pianist Earl "Fatha" Hines performed "Mood Indigo." Besides Williams, others who delivered musical eulogies were pianists Billy Taylor and Mary Lou Williams, jazz violinist Ray Nance and singer Lou Rawls.

Among the overflow crowd attending the services were liams, Jack Dempsey, Marian Benny Goodman, Cootie Wil-McPartland, Milt Jackson and blind singer Al Hibbler.

Representing President Nixon were White House aide Stanley Scott and singer Pearl Bailey. Also present was Miss Bailey's husband, Louis Bellson, who played drums in Ellington's band two decades ago.

"He was a genius of the rarest kind," eulogized jazz historian Stanley Dance, a longtime friend of Ellington's.

"He was a master of all he turned his hand to ... He was a natural aristocrat who never lost the common touch and the greatest innovator in his field. He knew what some called genius was the exercise of gifts which stemmed from God."

Wanted By Yugoslavia For Varied War Crimes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In the tranquil Pacific beach town of Surfside, Andrija Artukovic lives in quiet seclusion. In Yugoslavia, he is charged as a World War II mass murderer.

Artukovic, 75, has been fighting deportation to face war crimes charges for more than 20 years. He says the charges are untrue.

He claims he would be a dead man if he were returned to Yugoslavia, where, as minister of interior of Croatia, he is alleged to have been responsible for the deaths of as many as 200,000 Serbs, Jews and Gypsies.

Artukovic became minister of the interior of Croatia after the state was established by Croatian fascists shortly before Germany invaded Yugoslavia in 1941. Croatia now is again a part of Yugoslavia.

He entered the United States under an assumed name in 1947. In 1952, the Immigration Service ordered him deported for overstaying his leave as an alien. But in 1959, after a bitter legal battle, the deportation order was suspended on grounds that he might be persecuted for political reasons if he were returned to Yugoslavia.

Artukovic was Croatian, Roman Catholic and anti-Communist. His cause attracted many Catholics, Croats and anti-Communists in the United States.

Charles Posner, executive director of the community relations committee of the Jewish Federation Council, the parent body of 535 Jewish health and welfare groups, said:

"We have no grief for Artukovic. But the man is 75, and maybe it's time to forget."

Only recently, Artukovic won another round in his long fight to stay in the United States. The U.S. Immigration Service decided to continue a stay of deportation. Presumably, he will be able to live out his life here.

Bomb Exploded At Anti-Fascist Rally

Artukovic, who was a follower of Hitler and Mussolini, has been denounced by some as a mass murderer and defended by others as the victim of a political and religious vendetta.

Militant Jewish groups have demanded his deportation.

BRESCIA, Italy (AP) — A bomb exploded at an anti-Fascist rally today, killing nine persons and wounding 50, officials said.

The industrial cities of northern Italy have been plagued by extremist activities for six years. A time bomb went off in a crowded bank in downtown Milan in December 1969, killing 17 and injuring about 70 persons.

President Giovanni Leone called the incident a massacre and said it was "clear evidence of an attempt by tiny and squalid terrorist minorities to throw the state and the nation into chaos." He urged the government of Premier Mariano Rumor to pursue those responsible "with the utmost energy."

Police expanded investigations into right-wing extremist groups 10 days ago after a youth riding a motorcycle in Brescia died in the explosion of a bomb he was carrying.

Police said they could not immediately determine whether an explosive device was thrown into the crowd or whether a time bomb had been planted in advance at the Piazza Della Loggia.

When the bomb exploded, workers participating in a four-hour citywide strike were listening to union leaders urging the crowd to "be vigilant against the permanent Fascist threat to Italian democracy."

A union official said there were indications the bomb had been placed in a sidewalk trash can.

Guests At Senior Lunch

Mayor Eugene West and City Manager William Carstarphen were among special guests attending a covered dish luncheon of the Elm Street Senior Citizens group meeting at Elm Street Recreation Center late last week.

One of the highlights was the celebration of Henry Loquist's 77th birthday. In a short speech accepting a birthday cake presented by Mrs. Sarah Ashton, Loquist presented a penny bank where each member can deposit a penny for each year of age.

Bring Suit For Copyright Infringement

Host and hostesses for the meeting were Sarah Ashton, Ruth Harris, Alma Letchworth, Alma Paramore, Eva Corbett, Louise Tucker, Mattie Tucker, Eula Andrews, Ethel Allen and Lee Williams. Sam Whitehead, president of Elm Street Senior Citizens, presided.

NEW BERN—A copyright infringement suit against Robert Saieed of Greenville was filed here May 10 by two Atlanta music firms.

DANVILLE, Va. (AP)—The president of Dan River, Inc. here says if employees of the mills go on strike, they will be subject to permanent replacement.

Dwarf Music and Benchmark Music and Jazz Bird Music filed the complaint which charges that their copyrighted songs were performed at The Attic, a night spot at 209 East Fifth St., without authorization.

D. W. Johnston Jr. said the company has a responsibility to operate its plants "and it therefore is desirable for our employees to understand that in the event of a strike the company intends to continue regular operations."

Four Injured In 2-Car Mishap

Four persons were reported injured in a 4:15 p.m. collision here yesterday at the intersection of N. C. 11 and Greene Street.

Police identified the drivers of the cars involved as Herman Lee Manning of Greenville and Hugh L. Bovene of Brooklyn, N. Y., and estimated damage to the cars at $300 each.

Investigators said Manning, Bovene and two passengers in the Bovene car were injured in the mishap.

Bovene was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

The songs involved in the suit are "John Westley Harding" by Bob Dylan and published by Dwarf Music, and "Peaceful Easy Feeling" by Jack Tempchin and published by Benchmark Music and Jazz Bird Music.

The United Textile Workers has said it would begin polling its members Wednesday on whether to authorize a strike as a result of the union's rejection of a 10 per cent pay hike that Dan River had announced would go into effect June 3.

Revival Series Is Announced

There will be a revival at the Christ Temple Holy Church beginning Wednesday night and going through May 31.

The Pastor Elder D. L. Payton will be in charge of the service. The public is invited. There will be special prayer for the sick and shut in each night.

Their complaint asks the U. S. Eastern District Court to enjoin and restrain the defendant from publicly performing the songs in the future and to award monetary damages of $250 each to the plaintiffs as well as court costs and attorneys' fees.

Balloting is to be held from 6 a.m. Wednesday to 1 a.m. Thursday.

Johnston said every effort will be made by the company to insure the "safety and right to work of our employees."

Same Advice From Every Side

From every side now President Nixon is getting the advice that he must comply with court orders concerning evidence in the Watergate investigation.

Vice President Gerald Ford has revealed that he had advised the president in private conversations that compliance is the best route to follow.

Now the President of the American Bar Association has said that Nixon should comply with court orders on subpoenaed tapes.

"All men in this nation are subject to the rule of law," Chesterfield Smith, ABA president said. "I've been sickened and annoyed that the White House doesn't clearly state that 'yes, I am subject to the rule of law. I'm not a king, I'm only a man elected by the people and when the Supreme Court decides that I have to do something, certainly I'm going to do it.'"

Smith was speaking on NBC's "Meet the Press."

A number of other influential figures in both political parties are expressing the feeling that the president must provide the materials that subpoenas call for.

There is no question with us that President Nixon must obey the subpoenas as any citizen would have to do. Much of the information on the tapes is embarrassing to him and his administration, but at the same time much of the material is pertinent to the ongoing investigations.

The president must comply to court orders, if we are to maintain respect for the law in this nation.

Priority Must Go To Control Of Inflation

While President Nixon assures us that the worst economic problems are behind us, Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board warns that the nation's future is in jeopardy if the rate of inflation is not moderated.

While it is difficult at this stage to judge the president's assessment, it is certain that Burns is correct about the effects of inflation on the well being of the nation.

Inflation must be brought under control or we will all be carried under by its effects.

'Stonewalling' Carries Risks

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—President Nixon's refusal to yield tape recordings of presidential conversations for three dates is corrosively transforming Republican faith in his innocence into darkest suspicions of guilt.

House Judiciary Committee Republicans believe that the presidential tapes for three dates in 1972—April 4, June 20 and June 23—would either exonerate or incriminate the President in the Watergate scandal. By adamantly refusing to release them, Mr. Nixon is turning the defenders he desperately needs on the committee into potential votes for impeachment. As Rep. Lawrence Hogan, a Maryland conservative and staunchly partisan Republican, told us bluntly: "The inference when the Fifth Amendment is taken is, justly or unjustly, one of guilt."

Thus, Republicans on the Judiciary Committee will return from the Memorial Day weekend prepared to join their Democratic colleagues in rebuking President Nixon for his defiance. Whereas only Rep. William Cohen of Maine of 17 committee Republicans joined the Democrats May 1 declaring Mr. Nixon not in compliance with the first subpoena, many more are prepared to align themselves against the White House this time.

This suggests that the stonewall strategy at the White House, intended to fatigue and delay a disorganized Congress, may backfire by eroding the very Republican support essential to his survival. That erosion today is at the point where impeachment sentiment in the committee has reached a new high.

The picture is not onesided. Rep. John Rhodes of Arizona, the House minority leader who once seemed to have abandoned Mr. Nixon, now privately predicts the President will serve out his term. If Rhodes has become an all-out advocate for Mr. Nixon, he could influence some Judiciary Committee Republicans. Moreover, when Republicans get together they invariably lapse into political paranoia and conjure up an anti-Nixon vendetta.

For now, however, the mood among the committee's Republicans is that Mr. Nixon has gone too far. Their view differs so sharply from Rhodes's mainly because they know so much more than he about Watergate. While the minority leader still talks in generalities, the committee members are now expert in intricacies, after mind-numbing hours listening to tape recordings.

To most Democrats and at least one Republican (not Cohen), the tapes heard so far incriminate the President. Most Republicans feel the evidence—even the March 21, 1973, hush-money tape—is ambiguous, containing some exonerating and some incriminating information.

But nearly all agree that additional Watergate tapes could clear Mr. Nixon of criminal complicity in the cover-up. In that case, impeachment proceedings would be dead. He will not be impeached because of involvement in any tangential scandal.

Nor are committee Republicans seeking the U-Haul trailer of documents referred to by the President. Rather, they want recordings of presidential conversations for those three 1972 dates: April 4, immediately after G. Gordon Liddy's scheme for the Watergate burglary was presented to John Mitchell; June 20, the first working day after the burglary; June 23, the day when amnesty for the burglars may have been mentioned. If those tapes were surrendered and exonerated the President, a substantial number of committee Republicans would become his active defenders.

These same Republicans, therefore, see no justification in the President's denial of all further tapes. More than ever before, they see this denial as a crimson sign of guilt.

Although Nixon defense lawyer James St. Clair some two weeks ago announced the stonewall policy, committee Republicans had expected moderation. Hence, Mr. Nixon's letter shocked and angered many of them.

When the committee meets Thursday morning to decide its future course, many Republicans will be ready to join Cohen in authorizing a sharp letter calling on Mr. Nixon to perform his constitutional duty in responding to the subpoena. Hogan, Reps. Robert McClory and Thomas Railsback of Illinois, and Rep. Hamilton Fish of New York and probably others are inclined that way.

Strong-willed counsel John Doar, setting the scope of the impeachment proceedings, is dead set against the court suit desired by some Republicans. Doar has very

The Legal Service Bill

The legal services bill that emerged from conference committee a couple of weeks ago is far removed from the simple and straightforward program urged by the President last year. The bill contains several provisions that conservatives view with suspicion. Yet on balance, the measure holds the prospect of much more good than ill. The President should let it become law.

I am aware that many of my brothers in the conservative community disagree strongly with that view. The respected weekly, Human Events, asserts flatly that "Nixon Must Veto Legal Services Corporation." Ohio's John Ashbrook fought skillfully for recommitment of the bill, and lost by only half a dozen votes. I wish he had won.

It is not always true in politics that half a loaf is better than none. The half a loaf may be moldy. But it is generally true that King Compromise rules. He is no bad monarch. In the matter of the legal services bill, neither conservatives nor liberals got all they had hoped for. The question is whether the conference bill is better than no bill. I think it is.

The Congress is concerned here with a fundamental principle of American life. This is the ideal of "equal justice under law." I would suppose that few of my conservative brothers oppose this principle, and I would suppose that few of them believe the principle is now well served. Despite great improvements in recent years, especially in fields of criminal law untouched by the pending bill, the poor are still far removed from "equal justice."

The paramount purpose of a legal services program is to narrow this gap. We live, all of us, like so many flies

Cairo Waits On Him

By DAVID MICHELMORE
Associated Press Writer
CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — When the American secretary of state says he's coming, Cairo's diplomats, newsmen and hoteliers take notice. It's happened five times in the last two weeks, and Henry A. Kissinger still hasn't shown up.

The frustrating procedure has become routine.

The 40 rooms of the Nile Hilton hotel's 12th floor are cleared, United States Embassy officials begin preparations for motorcades, office space and extra news service machines and the Egyptian Foreign Ministry begins working on protocol requirements.

The hotel-clearing usually is the first tipoff to newsmen that Kissinger is expected.

The first alert that the end of Kissinger's Middle East peace mission was near, and that he was coming to Cairo, occurred May 16. The latest was Monday, when the Kissinger party cabled its regrets again until today.

"It's real simple when you've been through the exercise four or five times," one American diplomat said. Another added: "It's always a sweat."

The American diplomats begin telephoning their Egyptian counterparts once word is received that Kissinger plans to fly to Cairo.

The Egyptians, who provide official cars, reception committees and a meeting place for Kissinger and President Anwar Sadat, say they would love to know the time of Kissinger's arrival "a few hours—maybe six—ahead of time."

"But if we have to do it in less, we have to do it. We've gotten used to it," said Ayub Sharrara, a Foreign Ministry protocol officer.

The Kissinger party runs up a hotel bill of $1,000 a night, paid by the embassy. On three of the false alarms, the hotel was able to move last-minute guests into rooms left vacant by stalled negotiations for a disengagement of the Syrian and Israeli armies on the Golan Heights.

About 25 guests were moved to poolside cabanas Monday, only to be moved back upstairs on word that Kissinger would spend the night in Jerusalem.

Some guests get alternate accommodations in other hotels.

Sees Marriage Rules Changed

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Women, confused over slogans put out by female libbers and seeking an unattainable "equity" in marriage, are abandoning the marital ship in droves—and that is a critical factor in the soaring divorce rate in North Carolina and across the nation says Dr. David Mace.

Marriage as an institution and the foundation of the community is heading toward a most difficult time; the working principles have changed, "but nobody has announced this... nobody is prepared... there are no rules to go by," the professor in family sociology at the Behavioral Sciences Center at Bowman Gray Medical School of Wake Forest University in Winston-Salem believes.

In short, the very nature of marriage is changed in modern society, a major transition which few people—already married or contemplating marriage—are prepared for.

"Meanwhile, couples everywhere are battered black and blue—psychologically—by this trauma," Mace said.

"The result is that some people, especially young people, are looking at this and saying that marriage is no good. But it can be. We can train for it."

Soaring Divorce

The internationally recognized authority on family life, author, former executive director of the American Association of Marriage Counselors, and founder of the growing new Association of Couples for Marriage Enrichment (ACME), points to two factors as the major contributors in the soaring divorce rate.

1. Women's Liberation activity with emphasis on equality and freedom which is "causing confusion for men who are not very used to the idea of shared equity... and causing women who won't take things lying down to fight back."

2. No-Fault Divorce—new laws which permit divorce simply on the grounds of wanting it without proving any cause.

The women, seeking equality and leaving marriages in droves, are seeking something unattainable, Mace believes.

"There's no such thing as equality in marriage. Sure, there can be equality in employment opportunities for women, equal pay for equal work, and equality in a lot of other areas. But many women following the militant lead of Women's Liberation are mistakenly abandoning marriage."

"But equality in marriage has no meaning. There is no point at which it has any meaning in a marriage, because the very foundation of marriage is love, fairly shared," Mace says, with each member of the partnership giving much more than he or she takes.

Tracing the history of marriage in this country, Dr. Mace recalls that just a few years back boys and girls were trained for their roles in life—the boy to work, produce money, run the home, be the boss; the girl to raise children, keep house, subject herself to her husband's will.

Changed Rules

That concept has changed, changing marriage without any notice, into "a partnership, seeking intimacy in depth. Conflicts used to be resolved by the man who announced that he was boss and his word was final," Mace explains.

No more. Modern marriages are a new ballgame and the rules haven't been drawn up... leading to confusion and "confrontations in an antagonistic mood" and battered families.

There is an answer, Mace said, and that is what he and his wife, Vera Mace, are about in stumping the state and the nation promoting the Association of Couples for Marriage Enrichment—a concept which the couple launched last July on their 40th wedding anniversary.

At the heart of the approach are two cardinal principles: that just as boys and girls were once trained in the home, school, church, and community for the kind of marriages by the same institutions—if some new understanding of marriage can be mapped out; and that married couples themselves must get into the act of defining the rules and ironing out the conflicts rather than letting the marriage experts study the problems from a distance "manipulating married couples like a lot of sheep," Mace says.

Public Forum

To the editor:

People of Greenville and all supporters of East Carolina University baseball should be very proud of the Pirates, who competed in last week's NCAA District III Tournament held on the Mississippi State University campus in Starkville.

I traveled down to watch and to cheer the Bucs on to victory. And although they did not win, my trip back to Greenville was not a long one. I felt just as proud of them as if they had won.

You would have had to have been there to realize what I really mean. Every one of the guys gave 110 percent and played just as good or better than their opponent.

In their first game against Vanderbilt, which they only lost 2-1, catcher Rick McMahon showed everyone watching that he was probably the best defensive catcher in the South, if not elsewhere, as he threw out four runners trying to steal second. And then there was pitcher Bill Godwin, who went all the way, giving up only eight hits and picking a runner off of first base in the meantime. Just one little break and our boys would have won that game.

In our second game against nationally 4th-ranked University of South Carolina, who had opened up against N.C. State and won 9-0, ECU played well and only lost, 5-1. In that game the Pirates showed people they had power as Mike Hogan drilled one out at the 380 mark. Also in that game pitcher Wayne Bland came on in relief in the 5th inning and held the Gamecocks scoreless the rest of the way.

On the first day of the tournament, many people were asking: "Where is this school?" "Is it Eastern Carolina or East Carolina?" "Do they really deserve to be here?"

Well now they know where ECU is at, they know how to pronounce it, and they know darn well the Pirates had every right to be there.

My hat's off to Coach George Williams, Coach Monte Little and the entire ECU baseball team.

S.A. Dunn Jr. of Scotland Neck has succeeded T.T. Hollingsworth as sales tax collector in Pitt County.

Dunn will be located in the tax collector's office in the Chamber of Commerce, but will make the usual rounds of the county assisting merchants and business men in reporting their taxes.

The new collector, originally from Scotland Neck, has been in Rocky Mount for several months.

W.E. Hooks, chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee, today issued a call for the county convention of the party at the courthouse on Monday, June 11 at 11 a.m.

He also called party precinct meetings to be held in the various townships on Saturday, June 9 at 3 p.m. The county convention is held to elect delegates to the State Convention in Raleigh on June 21.

The Post Office will be closed on May 30 for the observance of Memorial Day.

Strength For Today

JESUS AS REVELATION

In the gospel of John, Jesus is referred to as the only begotten Son which is in the bosom of the Father.

This means that Jesus is the revelation of the heart of God. He did not come to reveal the wisdom and power of God. We find these revelations in the natural world around us. But Jesus came that men might know with certainty which could not be shaken that in God they have a heavenly Father who loved them.

The revelation of God which we get in the natural world is sometimes terrifying. The world seems to be under the rule of ruthless laws which have no place for mercy and love. It is when we look to Jesus who is the revelation of the heart of God that we realize that love is behind it all. In our finite state we only dimly comprehend the wisdom and power of the Most High. But always we can understand love. And when we see the love of God being shown forth in Jesus, then we comprehend God in a new dimension.

Can't Even Give Money Away

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — There is a Dycusburg, Ky., but how to get it and 241 other local governments to fill out a form is a problem facing the Office of Revenue Sharing.

The agency says these communities still have not qualified to receive their federal revenue sharing money for 1974. If they don't qualify soon, they will lose the funds.

They range in size from Artesia, N.M., which is due $127,963, and Calhoun County, Florida, $69,932, to towns like Impact and Uncertain City, both in Texas, which are due only a few hundred dollars.

They are all that are left of about 3,000 local governments which were denied funds last year because they had not completed government forms specifying how they were using their revenue sharing funds.

Each community has been sent at least six letters, in addition to follow-up telephone calls, a spokesman said.

Dycusburg, which is due only $652, poses a special problem. All of the letters have been returned to Washington as being misaddressed. Several ad-resses have been tried, but still the mail is returned.

"We're still trying to find some way of getting the mail to Dycusburg," a spokesman said.

A few communities among the nation's 39,000 local governments have refused to participate in the five-year revenue-sharing program.

Boys' Town, Neb., for one, said it didn't need them. A few others said they don't want to deal with the federal government, a spokesman said.

But they are not among the communities the agency is still trying to qualify, although a spokesman acknowledged that a few may not exist at all.

The identifications come from Census Bureau records, and it may be that a few tiny communities have ceased to exist since the last census count, the spokesman said.

Many of them do exist. "Calhoun County is bound to be there somewhere; we owe them to a lot of money," the spokesman said.

But time is running out, and the Office of Revenue Sharing said it will soon consider the money unclaimed and distribute it on a pro-rata basis to the governments which have qualified.

Computers, Projectors Are Used In War Games

PLAY WAR—Combat situations are plotted by computer for students at the U.S. Naval War College in Newport, R.I. (AP Wirephoto)

By WILLIAM CASEY
Associated Press Writer
NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — In an attempt to make war games more realistic, the U.S. Naval War College is replacing its traditional tabletop method of fighting battles with computers and movie projectors. And sometimes even politicians.

War games are regarded as the cheapest possible way to discover and demonstrate faulty combat decisions, and the new methods being tried here make the center a trailblazer in that area, says Capt. Don Henderson, director of the college's war gaming center.

Since politicians often are looking over the shoulders of military men, politics was injected into a recent exercise.

Henderson said top-level

State Department employees acted as umpires in the game and controlled the escalation of involvement, "to the complete frustration of the military commanders."

"It was so realistic; the end result was it helped reach the objectives of gaming completely," he said.

In a dark room at the war gaming center, combat situations are plotted on a large movie screen using 48 projectors along with hand drawings and paste-on cutouts.

A computer tallies the damages and determines the weapons strengths, courses and speeds of ships and aircraft involved.

The huge movie screen also is used for re-enactments of famous naval battles of history. Actual films are spliced into the presentation on a small side screen. Sound effects and flashing lights depict volleys and direct hits.

The games include combat situations ranging from a single aircraft against a submarine to a major conflict between nations involving decisions by fleet commands and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The center is developing a digital computer system to let many more high-speed combatants take part at once to add more realism to the exercises, Henderson said.

Says Rebozo Also Paid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Columnist Jack Anderson reported today that President Nixon's close friend C.G. "Bebe" Rebozo in 1969 paid for nearly $12,000 in improvements at the President's home in Key Biscayne, Fla.

In his column, Anderson wrote that an Aug. 6, 1969, check for $11,978.84, signed by Rebozo and drawn on his personal account went to pay for electrical, air conditioning and painting work on Nixon's bay-side home, adjacent to one Rebozo owned.

Anderson quoted reliable sources as saying Rebozo also paid for a swimming pool, a pool table and architectural services for the Nixon home.

The columnist said he was unable to give exact figures or these other reported payments because he had not gained access to the cancelled checks for them.

Anderson said the White House declined to comment on the matter. He said Rebozo, contacted through an intermediary, said he did not have his financial records at hand and would have to check them.

Legislative seniority is matched against a call for new leadership as Sen. J. W. Fulbright faces Gov. Dale Bumpers today in the Arkansas Democratic primary.

Fulbright, a veteran of three decades in the Senate, has called the vote "the most crucial election in America."

Other primaries are set today in Oregon and Kentucky. In Oregon, former Sen. Wayne Morse, like Fulbright an early and outspoken foe of the Vietnam war, is up against three other Democrats in his bid to regain a Senate seat now held by Republican Robert Packwood.

Arkansas also has a Democratic primary for governor, involving former Gov. Orval E. Faubus, former Rep. David H. Pryor and Lt. Gov. Bob Riley. However, most attention has focused on the Fulbright-Bumpers race.

Most opinion polls showed the very popular Bumpers ahead, although Fulbright said he had a poll showing the race too close to call.

Fulbright, 69, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has stressed his 30 years of experience and contended that seniority in Congress means a substantial plus for Arkansas.

"There is hardly any state in the Union that has done as well economically, and the basic public facilities of this state have been built largely by money from the federal government," Fulbright said in a joint television appearance with Bumpers.

"This is a result of the influence and the seniority, if you like, of its representation," the senator said.

By contrast, Bumpers, 48, termed the seniority system "a breach of faith with the young people of this country and I would work to change the system because I don't think it has served us well."

Bumpers, serving his second two-year term as governor, cited inflation, the energy shortage, low public confidence in Congress and other national problems to back up his call for new leadership.

The Oregon senatorial primary pits Morse, 73, against state Senate President Jason Boe and two political unknowns. Morse's campaign was geared largely to environmental issues. If he wins, Morse will face Packwood, unopposed for the GOP nomination.

Oregon voters also were choosing Democratic and Republican candidates to succeed retiring Republican Gov. Tom McCall.

In Kentucky, Sen. Marlow Cook was expected to win re-nomination on the Republican ticket, while Gov. Wendell Ford was favored to win the Democratic nomination to oppose him in November.

The primary was marked by little campaigning, with both Cook and Ford saving their resources for the general election. Cook won a court fight to stay on the ballot after two Democratic state officials attempted to disqualify him for filing a financial statement two days late.

A Pleasant Boat Ride Ended With Six Dead

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP)—It was to be a fun evening, a boat ride down the Intracoastal Waterway from Murrells Inlet to Bucksport Marina a few miles away, a nice dinner, then a pleasant boat trip back.

Springtime weather has a nasty habit of being unpredictable, sometimes violent without warning.

About a half-mile from the boat's home port of Waccawatch Marina at Murrells Inlet, 15 miles south of Myrtle Beach, tragedy struck out of the darkness. What is believed to have been a tornado came out of the stormy South Carolina skies at about 10 p.m. Sunday.

Minutes later, the 22-foot boat was wreckage under 30 feet of water, six people were dead and another injured.

About 1 a.m. Monday, family members at Myrtle Beach, worried because the dinner party hadn't returned home, began to search. By 2 a.m., their fears were confirmed.

Joan Young was found by her brother, dazed, unbelieving, on the marshy bank of the river. She had suffered a broken collarbone.

She told of hearing a noise like a tornado but not having time to think about it before it struck. "When it hit the boat, that's the last thing she remembers," Georgetown County Coroner John A. Broach said.

Monday, searchers found the bodies of three of the victims and the others were presumed dead. The search continued today.

Mrs. Young's husband, James Edwin, 35, was missing. Also missing were Donald W. Harrelson, 33, and his son Donald Tracey, 12. Searchers found the bodies of Harrelson's wife, Sara, 32, and their daughters Geneva Ann, 10, and Karen Michelle, 9.

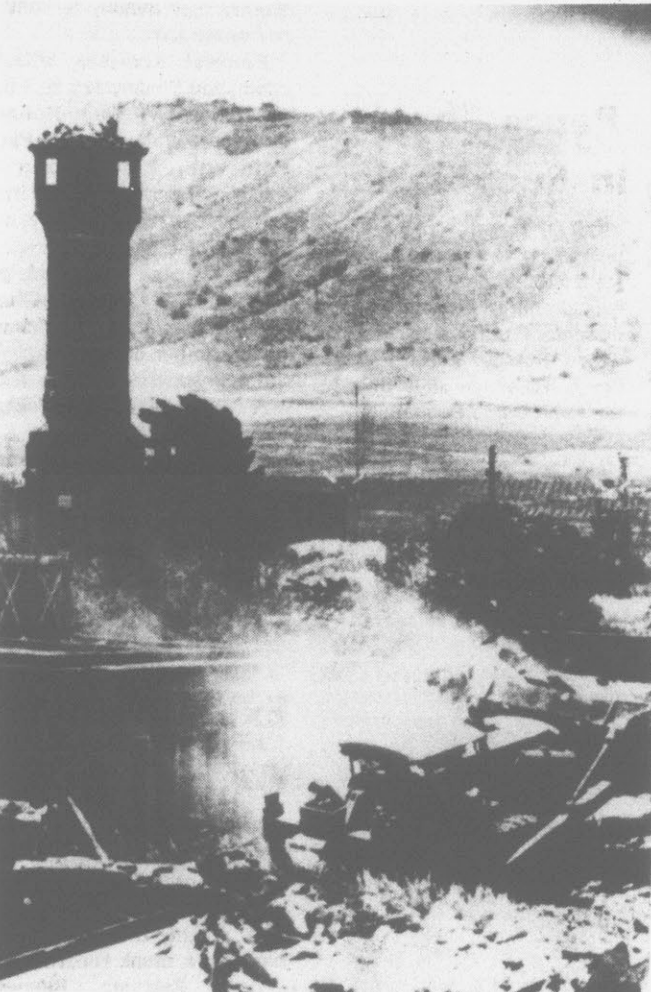

Mrs. Young told rescue workers she was holding Karen when the wind struck. It yanked the child from her arms, ripped the cabin off the boat, then capsized the craft.

Mrs. Young vaguely recalled clinging to the boat from underneath. Then it began to sink and she had to dive to swim away from it. Later she was on the shore and called for help when the search boat came by where the twister ripped through on its way to the ocean.

Conway Fire Chief S.E. Hendrick said the river's swift current could have carried the bodies far from where the boat was hit.

"It's a tragic thing," he said. "It makes you stop and think. If they'd been a minute later or a minute sooner it wouldn't have happened to them."

Nine Dead In N.C. Traffic

By The Associated Press
Nine persons lost their lives in traffic accidents over the Memorial Day weekend in North Carolina, one less than the 10 predicted by the N.C. State Motor Club.

The highway patrol said the fatalities pushed the 1974 highway death toll to 531, compared with 698 during the corresponding period last year.

A 58-year-old Hickory man, Fred W. Atwood, was killed near his home when his car left U.S. 321 and struck a bridge.

Samuel J. Wicker Jr., 40, of Fayetteville, died when his motorcycle slammed into the side of a freight train in Moore County near Pinebluff.

Sixteen-year-old Joy E. Jarrett of Concord was struck and killed by a car on a residential street near her home.

Ronnie Ledford, 26, of Beason, was killed when his car ran off I-85 near Gastonia and struck a bridge.

A freak accident on a rural road claimed the life of 56-year-old Perman Warren of Henderson. Officers said his tractor left the road and ran over him when he fell off.

Meunier A. Russell, 38, of Bunn, was killed when his car ran off a rural road in Franklin County and overturned.

An 85-year-old Pinetops woman, Linda Harris, died when the car in which she was riding was struck by another vehicle at an intersection near Rocky Mount.

David Wright, 62, of Tabor City, perished when a car struck his bicycle near Whiteville.

Troy Henry Jr., 31, of Currie, died when a car ran over him as he lay in a rural road east of White Lake.

The holiday counting period began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended Monday at midnight.

nearly unanimous committee support in rejecting any diversionary quest for a contempt of Congress citation against Mr. Nixon. Rather, Doar intends to push ahead on what evidence he has.

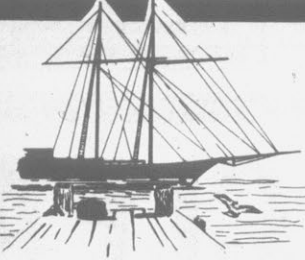

One thoughtful Republican member, disagreeing with the Democrats, feels that evidence is not sufficient for impeachment. Nor does he believe defiance of a House subpoena will ever be viewed by the Senate as reason for convicting a President. But he now plans to vote for impeachment on grounds that the President has denied evidence necessary for the House to decide his guilt or innocence, and that such evidence might later be obtained in a Senate trial. That decision on his part spells out the dangers of stonewalling.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market kept last Friday's rally alive today, but most of the gains were fractional, and trading was slow.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 1.87 at 818.52, while advances outnumbered declines by about 94-to-5 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the market's upturn late last week after a sharp decline in the previous several sessions had encouraged some investors. They said hopes continued that interest rates might soon stop climbing.

Schlumberger was the most active Big Board stock, down 1 1/2% at 100. A 26,800-share block changed hands at that price.

Gold and silver issues dropped as bullion prices continued to slide in Europe. ASA, Ltd., was down 2 1/2% at 72 1/2. Homestake Mining lost 1 1/2% to 72 1/2. Dome Mines' recently split shares were off 3 at 45 1/2, and Rosario Resources was down 1 1/2% at 23 1/2.

MGIC Investment, subject of some bearish comments in Barron's magazine, dropped 2 1/2% to 17 1/2, trading at new 1974 lows. The stock traded as high as 46 1/2 earlier this year and 98 1/2 last year.

Ames Department Stores, which reported higher quarterly earnings, rose 3/4 to 3 1/4 to head the list of NYSE percentage gainers.

On the American Stock Exchange, the most-active issue was Research-Cottrell, up 3/4 at 7 1/2. The company said it had received letters of intent for construction of some $18 million worth of water-cooling towers.

The Amex' 11 a.m. market-value index was up 1.09 at 81.02. The NYSE composite index of some 1,500 common stocks rose .10 to 46.69.

Fast Expansion In Special Field

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI) — The chairman of the Washington State University Department of Engineering says because of the energy crisis and the problems of pollution the engineering field is expanding faster than students can be trained.

Dr. Joseph Bring said within five years there could be 10 jobs for every chemical engineering student the university graduates.

N.C. Acquiring Baldhead Segment

SOUTHPORT, N. C. (AP)— Carolina Cape Fear Corp. said today it is donating approximately three-fourths of its Bald Head Island property to the state for use as a nature preserve.

William R. Henderson, president of the development company, said the transfer would take place as soon as attorneys could complete the legal documents.

In a related but separate move, Henderson said Carolina Cape Fear would be given authorization to build a marina on Bald Head, assuring the company water access for buyers of its property.

James E. Harrington, state secretary of natural and economic resources, scheduled a news conference in Raleigh today to discuss the agreement.

Negotiations between state and federal officials and Carolina Cape Fear had been under way for several months.

Earlier Harrington said the agreement "insures the natural area preservation of a unique part of North Carolina's coast."

Carolina Cape Fear owns about 12,000 acres of land, some of it submerged, in the Bald Head area in the mouth of the Cape Fear River. Henderson said development of the property had been delayed by extended negotiations over the marine access route.

Asked if state or federal officials had exerted pressure on the company to donate the land, Henderson replied: "You bet your sweet bippy there has been. But it's all been in a good natured manner."

"We have tried to say from the inception of our project that we intended to develop the property as responsibly as we could. This is just a reflection of that. We feel that to do this will protect those areas that many were desiring to be protected," Henderson said.

"It has cost us an awful lot of money. The delays have run up to the millions of dollars... We hope that the resulting plan is of such a high nature that we could recoup some of that loss," Henderson said.

Carolina Cape Fear will confine most of its development to the southern end of Bald Head Island.

The property to be given to the state includes about six miles of the eastern shoreline of Bald Head and a number of smaller islands.

Exile Resting At Monastery

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Marcelo Caetano, the exiled former premier of Portugal, spent his first day in Rio resting at the St. Benedict Monastery, a monk reports.

Dom Estevam Bitencourt said Caetano spent all of Monday in a cell which was reserved for him and left it only to have lunch with the monks.

Caetano, a former Portuguese President Americo Thomaz arrived in Sao Paulo a week ago after the Brazilian government accepted them as political exiles in the wake of the Portuguese coup.

SMALLER TOLL

Hunting Man Lost In Baja

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Fresh volunteers are joining the search for a man missing since May 17 when he took a wrong turn during a motorcycle race and ran out of gas in Mexico's Baja California desert wilderness.

Sheriff's Lt. Dusty Rhodes said searchers found fresh footprints Monday, leading them to believe that Fred Mundy, a Riverside, Calif., drug store owner, was less than 24 hours ahead of them. There is plenty of water in that area, about 80 miles south of the border city of Mexicali, he said.

Searchers earlier thought they were about three days behind Mundy, 46.

The oldest of Mundy's two sons, Douglas, 19, has been coordinating communications with the search party and making arrangements for food and fuel to be sent from the Riverside area.

Searchers during the long Memorial Day weekend included more than 35 Americans, 12 Mexican ranchers and two U.S. Navy helicopter crews. Some of the Americans had to return to their jobs today and were being replaced by the new volunteers.

Rhodes said Mundy apparently has walked 60 miles or more since abandoning his motorcycle. His route at times has taken him in circles as he wandered between two north-south highways which wind down the lonely coastlines of the Baja peninsula.

Bible Studies More Popular
NEW YORK (UPI) — Group Bible studies are becoming more popular, according to the Assemblies of God Department of Education. The church's Berean Bible School gained 42 per cent in enrollments in correspondence Bible Study programs.

Harris Jansen, dean of extension education, cited group enrollments and expansion of curriculum as growth factors. Courses are offered in Biblical literature, doctrinal studies, practical theology and family living.

Believe Fugitives In Southern Calif

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The FBI says it is operating on the assumption that Patricia Hearst and two Symbionese Liberation Army members are still in Southern California.

FBI spokesman Richard Woolf said Monday that officials theorize Miss Hearst, 20, the newspaper heiress who has claimed allegiance to her SLA captors, and William and Emily Harris may be hidden out in mountains around Los Angeles.

"You have to consider the possibility that they're camping out since they apparently bought outdoor clothing at the sporting goods store," Woolf said.

The Harrises and Miss Hearst were identified by authorities as participants in an incident May 16 in which they said Harris bungled a shoplifting at a suburban sporting goods store and Miss Hearst

Graduated 65 At Martin Tech

WILLIAMSTON—A record breaking 65 graduates received degrees and diplomas at graduation ceremonies held last Friday at Martin Technical Institute near Williamston.

Lt. Governor Jim Hunt, speaker for the occasion, told graduates "to be producers rather than parasites, with a willingness to accept responsibility for contributing their energies, abilities and talents in the battle of life."

A. B. Ayers, president of the institute's Board of Trustees, presented the graduates, and Dr. E. M. Hunt, president of Martin Tech, gave students their degrees and certificates. Achievement and service certificates were presented to a number of graduates in various fields.

Graduates from the one year vocational program received diplomas in the fields of automotive mechanics, electrical installation and maintenance, and cosmetology.

For the two year program, graduates received Associate of Applied Science degrees in architectural technology, general office technology, fish and wildlife management, secretarial-executive, law enforcement technology, and forest management.

In addition, 68 students received recognition for having completed requirements for the award of the high school equivalency certificate.

Following graduation ceremonies, a reception for guests, graduates and their families was held at the institute.

Soviet Defense Chief Visiting

ALGIERS (AP) — Soviet Defense Minister Andrei Grechko has arrived here for a state visit, his second to Algeria in four years.

Grechko arrived Monday, and officials said his visit will include tours of industrial plants and a conference with President Houari Boumediene. His visit to the North African nation will be followed next month by a visit from Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Brett Pulls A Babe As He Leads Two Buc Wins

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

It looks as if the Pittsburgh Pirates may have another Babe Ruth on their hands.

For you young fans, Babe Ruth was the leading home run hitter of all time before Henry Aaron came along.

But Ruth was also a pretty fair hurler before he went into the hitting business full time in 1922. He showed a 94-46 pitching record and a 2.28 ERA.

Ken Brett, the left-handed pitching and hitting sensation, seems to pose a similarly wonderful "problem" for the Pirates.

In the first game of the Pirates' Memorial Day doubleheader sweep of the San Diego Padres Monday, lefty Brett pitched perfect baseball for eight innings and ended up with a two-hit, 6-0 shutout.

But the work of a pitcher who hits like Ken Brett is never done and his bat was called on to pinch hit in the second game. Brett boomed a two-run triple to spark a five-run seventh inning uprising and the Pirates went to beat the Padres in the nightcap 8-7.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Chicago Cubs pounded the San Francisco Giants 12-4; the St. Louis Cardinals overpowered the Los Angeles Dodgers 7-2; the Atlanta Braves crushed the Philadelphia Phillies 9-1; the Cincinnati Reds beat the New York Mets 4-2, and the Houston Astros at Montreal Expos game was rained out.

"Brett's something else. He had a heckuva day," said Richie Hebner, who blasted a dramatic two-out, two-run homer in the ninth inning of the second game to rally the Pirates over the Padres.

Reds 4, Mets 2
Cincinnati jumped on struggling Tom Seaver for six hits and four runs in the first two innings and Fred Norman checked the Mets for four hits.

Braves 9, Phillies 1
Phil Niekro, 6-3, tossed a five-hitter in pitching the Braves to their 10th victory in 12 games. He struck out seven, including five in a row, and walked one.

Cards 7, Dodgers 2
Joe Torre smacked a two run-homer and Reggie Smith and Ted Simmons added solo shots, powering the St. Louis over Los Angeles.

Optimists In 5-3 Victory

Kenny Kirkland's second inning, two-run double highlighted a brief rally that netted the Optimists three runs and they went on to beat the Jaycees, 5-3 in a North State Little League game, Monday.

The three runs in the second provided the winning margin for the Optimists as they went in front 4-0. The Jaycees pushed over three in the fifth but it was not enough as they dropped their third game to be 4-3 while the Optimists are undefeated at 7-0.

The Optimists got a run in the first as Jim O'Brien singled and went to third on an outfield error. He stole home to give the Optimists a 1-0 lead.

In the second, John Hendricks led off with a base hit and an error moved him to second. He was wild pitched to third and after Sammy Hodges walked and stole second, Kirkland doubled to drive in both runners. Billy Dough got a hit to score Kirkland.

The Jaycees closed the gap to 4-3 in the top of the fifth as Marion Crips and Crowell Pope both singled. They were advanced by a wild pitch and Larry Talbert brought them around with a double. Mike Pollard singled moving Talbert to third and a sacrifice bunt by Todd Brown scored Talbert.

The Optimists pushed over their final run in the bottom of the fifth. O'Brien doubled and took third on an out. He scored on the single by Glenn Moore.

Pollard had two hits for the Jaycees while O'Brien had a pair for Optimist.

He Threw The Double Play Ball

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Bruce Dal Canton has two "out" pitches in his repertoire—the knuckleball and the double play ball.

The knuckler he's been working on for some time. The double play ball he learned about from his manager Monday night.

Faced with a tough ninth-inning situation, Jack McKeon advised his pitcher to "throw the double play ball to Brooks Robinson." He did and the Kansas City Royals took a 9-1 decision from the Baltimore Orioles.

"It wasn't my best night with the knuckle ball," Dal Canton said after pitching a five-hitter in the nationally televised game. "I still don't have the consistency I'd like to have with it."

Subdued for the greater part of eight innings, the Orioles looked as if they would knock

Dal Canton out of the game in the ninth with two singles and a hit batsman that loaded the bases with one out.

The jaunty McKeon then bounced out of the dugout for a conference with his pitcher. "I just came out here to get on national television," McKeon said jokingly before giving Dal Canton the advice about the double play pitch.

In the other American League games, the Boston Red Sox nipped the Minnesota Twins 3-2 in 10 innings; the Chicago White Sox defeated the New York Yankees 5-3; the Oakland A's routed the Detroit Tigers 12-2; the Texas Rangers blanked the Cleveland Indians 6-0 and the Milwaukee Brewers shut out the California Angels 2-0.

Red Sox 3, Twins 2
Bernie Carbo, who had homered for two runs in the fourth inning, stroked a two-out single in the 10th to give Boston its victory over Minnesota in a game which featured a brilliant pitching duel between Boston's Luis Tiant and Minnesota's Ray Corbin.

White Sox 5, Yanks 3
Skip Pitlock scattered five hits in 6 2-3 innings in his first American League start and Chicago, helped by Pat Kelly's two-run single, beat New York.

A's 12, Tigers 2
Reggie Jackson stroked three hits to raise his batting average to .404, knocked in two runs and scored two in just four innings, leading Oakland over Detroit.

Rangers 6, Indians 0
Jim Bibby broke a five-game losing streak with a sparkling three-hitter and Jeff Burroughs continued his RBI rampage with two to lead Texas over Cleveland.

Brewers 2, Angels 0
Rookie Kevin Kobel out-pitched strikeout king Nolan Ryan with a six-hitter and Don Money slammed a two-run homer, leading Milwaukee to a 2-0 victory over California.

National League scores: Pittsburgh 6-8, San Diego 0-7; St. Louis 7, Los Angeles 2; Chicago 12, San Francisco 4; Atlanta 9, Philadelphia 1 and Cincinnati 4, New York 2. Houston and Montreal were rained out.

Integon Gets Win Over Elks

Mark Barber had three hits and William Barrett a home run to pace Integon to a 13-5 win over the Elks yesterday in the Tarheel Little League.

Integon had trouble holding on to the lead through the first three frames but after a four run rally in the fourth, they never lost it.

Integon scored first with two in the top of the first. Horace Barrett reached on an error and stole second. Latham Mills walked and Barrett singled to load the bases. An error let both Barrett and Mills score.

The Elks got it back in the bottom of the inning and then some as they took the lead. Chris Ross singled and Lynn Jackson reached on an error. Gavin Ray walked loading the bases and Emmett Walsh drew a pass to force in Ross. Don White singled in Jackson and Terry Skinner sacrificed to score Ray.

Integon tied it in the third as Mark Barber singled and moved around on an error and a ground out and scored as Mills reached on a fielder's choice.

Ray homered to lead off the bottom of the third lifting the Elks back on top. Don White walked, stole up and went to third on a hit by Skinner and scored on an error giving the Elks a 4-3 advantage.

But Integon cut loose in the fourth for four runs to take the lead and hold onto it. Blair Smith singled and Mike Holloman walked. Todd Galloway singled to drive in Smith and Alan Hudson walked to load the bases. Mark Barber singled in Holloman and a single by Barrett brought in Galloway. Hudson was thrown out trying to score on a passed ball. Mills and Barrett walked forcing in Barber.

Integon added six more in the sixth getting help from Barrett's homer that drove in two additional runs.

Barrett had a pair of hits for Integon while Ross and Skinner had two each for the Elks.

P-W Gets First Win

GRIFTON—Piggly-Wiggly gained a 4-2 victory over Chicod last night in the opening game of the Southern Pitt Little League.

Kevin Battle gained the victory, tossing a two-hitter. He struck out 12 along the way. Carl Arnold, who threw a three-hitter, got the loss, striking out eight.

Mike Edens got both of the Chicod hits, a single and a double. Smith, Battle and Barefoot each picked up singles for Piggly-Wiggly.

Tonight's games sent the Indians against the Giants and Rogers Furniture against the Hornets.

Record Purse For Indy Race

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A record purse for the 1974 Indianapolis 500-mile race was awarded Monday with Johnny Rutherford taking a check for $245,031.52 as the winner's share.

Under the normal split between drivers and car owners, Rutherford's split will amount to approximately $98,012.60.

The checks were presented at the annual awards banquet from a total purse of $1,015,686. The over-all prize money was $4,000 more than the 1971 race—the first million-dollar payoff in the history of auto racing.

"This is a dream come true," the 37-year-old Fort Worth, Tex., winner told the banquet audience at the Indianapolis Convention-Exposition Center.

"I've got a lot of people to thank," he added. "Naturally, I have to give my biggest thanks to Team McLaren and all the people involved. 'It's just hard to describe my feelings for these people.'"

Mark Donohue, 1972 Indy winner, presented the 500 championship ring to Rutherford.

"I think it means a lot in tradition," Donohue told the new champion. "It will mean a lot for you to look back on ... It's a great thrill for me to come up here and make this presentation."

Second-place money totaling $99,503.57 was awarded to Bobby Unser. It was more than he received for winning the race in 1968.

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY REELE

East Carolina University's Pirates, despite the fact that they lost two straight games, don't have a thing to be ashamed of following their play in the District III Baseball Playoffs.

The Bucs bowed to Vanderbilt, the Southeastern Conference champions, 2-1, in a game that they could easily have won. Twice, the tall grass which the groundskeepers didn't get a chance to mow because of rains just prior to the tournament, cost them runs, at least two and probably three. Only once did Vandy hit a ball into this grass, and subsequent events would not have altered their score.

Then, in the second game, the Pirates lost to South Carolina, the runner-up in the tournament by a 5-1 score. In that game, Mike Hogan hit the only home run of the tournament.

For his play in the two games, it was generally agreed by both the fans and press alike that Buc catcher Rick McMahon was the best in the field. He threw out four of four basestealers in the Vandy game. South Carolina did manage to steal one base, but they got that off the pitcher.

Bill Godwin also tossed a fine game in his loss to Vandy.

But to quote a former ECU football coach, you're not talking about apples and apples. East Carolina currently puts about $20,000 into its baseball program. At the same time, a team like South Carolina is putting in around $90,000 and has 20 or more full scholarships.

With the independents putting up that kind of money, and the conference teams doing much less, it's no wonder the independents are dominating the playoffs. Again, there is a rumor that the Southern will lose its automatic berth in the tournament. But the Southern team wasn't embarrassed like that of N. C. State, the ACC representative. If one conference is dropped, the rest should be dropped too.

The independents, with their money program also have an added advantage. They play over 50 games a year. The coaches of these teams constantly have pro scouts sending them players they aren't quite ready to invest in to "mature" prior to signing pro contracts. They are, in practice, farm teams for the pros. So it's no wonder they stand heads above the rest.

We don't advocate rushing out to put a great deal of money into the East Carolina program. It can't be done overnight. But before someone starts detracting from the Pirate program, they should know just where they stand with the others. It would be nice to have a program like that, but it takes money. East Carolina's Pirate Club currently is raising in the neighborhood of $200,000 a year.

South Carolina's Gamecock Club raised over $800,000 last year. That's the difference.

While we're on the subject of improvements, we feel that when East Carolina goes after the funds for the resurfacing of the track, they should consider building more stands and moving the lights from Ficklen to the track when they install new ones. (We know they've been promised to the high school for their field, but the poles will probably have rotted by then.)

The large number of people who showed up to watch Carter Suggs during the two meets here show that there is a great deal of interest in this sports. With Suggs headed here for a four-year stay, the Bucs should be getting much more attention, and they could also be the host team for their own relays if a sponsor can be found.

Miami Rebounds After Loss To Ford Visiting Gain NCAA Regional Title, 2-1 For Golf Date

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP)—If South Carolina has a nemesis, it has to be a side-arm Miami hurler named Jerry Brust, who pitched a two-hitter and a three-hitter which cost the Gamecocks the NCAA Dist. III baseball title.

Brust hurled the two hitter Saturday, handing South Carolina its first loss, 5-0, in the double elimination tournament.

South Carolina bounced back to capture Monday's first game 3-1, forcing a nightcap, but Brust also came back and hurled a three-hitter for a 2-1 victory and the District III championship.

The only run the Miami sophomore allowed in 18 innings against South Carolina was a leadoff homer over the left field fence in the championship game by second baseman Jeff Grantz.

Miami, which entered the tournament ranked sixth nationally, scored both of its runs in the opening inning off Greg Ward, who earlier had defeated East Carolina 5-1 on a three-hitter.

Jim Crosta, the leadoff

Miami batter, singled to center and stole second base. Orlando Gonzalez drew a walk with both runners advancing on Wayne Krenchicki's sacrifice.

Crosta scored on Rick Richle's fielders' choice and Gonzalez came in for the winning run on a wild pitch.

Coach Ron Fraser's Hurricanes — runner up in last year's Dist. III tournament — will make their first trip to the College World Series in Omaha, Neb., next month, joining seven other NCAA district champions.

South Carolina scored three unearned runs in the eighth inning of the opener to force the nightcap.

With two outs in the eighth, Drew Choate scored on a single by Grantz, and Hank Small's single brought in both Grantz and Jim Fleming, who had singled.

Miami scored its only run, also unearned, in the bottom of the eighth when Gonzalez scored on Small's bad throw to first in a double play attempt.

Earl Bass picked up his 12th victory against one loss for South Carolina.

Miami is now 48-9 for the season, while South Carolina finished the season 48-8.

Ford Visiting For Golf Date

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford, who says his official activities have caused his golf game to suffer in recent months, is beginning a two-day visit to the South in which he'll play two rounds of golf.

Ford plans to play one round today in Charlotte, N. C. and then another Wednesday in the Kemper pro-am tourney at the Quail Hollow Country Club in Charlotte.

The two days in Charlotte differ from the hectic schedule the vice president has been maintaining because, according to officials, it will be strictly a social, fun trip for Ford—no speeches and no meetings.

On Monday, Ford stood in for the Florida-vacationing President Nixon in the Memorial Day ceremonies at Arlington National Cemetery in which he called on Americans to give more attention to veterans of the wars in Korea and Vietnam.

Last week, when asked about his golf game, the vice president said he didn't have "a very good handicap. I make a few pars but I offset them with bogies and double bogies."

"I have to work on it (golf game) more in the future," he said.

Ford, who shot a 95 and 96 on a trip to Hawaii 10 days ago, was asked if he had ever played golf with President Nixon and who was the winner.

"Tentatively, we hope to play next (this) week," replied Ford, adding with a smile: "We both need more practice."

Top Choice Is Already Signed

NEW YORK (AP) — The impact of Bill Walton's lucrative, far-ranging contract with the Portland Trail Blazers was to be felt today by the other National Basketball Association teams as they began the job of trying to sign their collegiate draft choices.

The Trail Blazers, the team with the worst record in the NBA's Western Conference last season, gained the shot at the league's No. 1 draft selection in a coin flip with the Philadelphia 76ers, the club with the worst record in the Eastern Conference.

Then, even before today's draft, the ambitious Trail Blazers went out and signed Walton to a five-year contract estimated between $2 million and $3 million. Money, however, was not the only factor in Walton's signing with Portland.

"There were clauses we were capable of getting for Bill that perhaps we couldn't get for another player," said Sam Gilbert, Walton's business adviser.

These included Walton's approval of any trade to another team and his right to say what he feels and not what someone else instructs him to say during an interview, Gilbert said.

The adviser said that the 6-foot-11, 220-pound Walton also made a number of other requests, but declined to discuss them.

No player picked in today's draft had the reputation or the credentials of the UCLA center. Walton was the Associated Press' College Player of the year as a sophomore and a junior, and was runner-up as a senior to David Thompson of North Carolina State. He led UCLA to its sixth and seventh consecutive NCAA championships in 1972 and 1973 and to third place in this year's tourney.

He set an NCAA career field goal shooting mark with a .651 percentage, breaking the mark of .639, held by Lew Alcindor, now Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, formerly of UCLA, and he bettered Alcindor's school rebounding record with a total of 1,370.

But many players selected in the 10 rounds of drafting by the 18 NBA clubs had outstanding collegiate careers and likely would demand tremendous contracts. Of the group, the top players also were taken by the American Basketball Association in its recent draft—and would be able to pit one league against the other as a lever in contract negotiations.

Three Capture City Victories

Morgan Printers, Sunnyside Eggs and Kentucky Fried Chicken picked up victories in the City Softball League last night. Three other games were postponed because of wet grounds and will be played Wednesday night.

Kentucky Fried Chicken gained a forfeit victory over Greenville Utilities in the first game.

In the second, Sunnyside Eggs downed Union Carbide, 13-7. Union Carbide pushed over five runs in the first inning to take the lead, including a two-run homer by Daniels. Sunnyside came back with four in the second as Gaddis had a homer. They pushed ahead with two in the third, and got three more in the fourth. They added one in the sixth and three in the seventh. Union Carbide scored two more in the fourth.

Morgan Printers downed

Talbot, 15-10, in the final game. Morgan jumped into the lead with seven runs in the first inning of play. They added one in the third, then got two more in the sixth. Talbot's came back with one in the second, two in the third and five in the fifth. They added two more in the sixth to tie it at 10-10. But in the seventh, Morgan pushed over five more with Williamson homering, wrapping up the win.

Sports Briefs

By The Associated Press
SAN DIEGO (AP) — The new-look San Diego Padres are drawing almost twice as well as a year ago.

Before Monday's road stint began at Pittsburgh, the Padres' home crowds totaled 424,657, or an average of 16,333.

The total was 239,274 by the same point last season.

The Padres drew only 611,806 during all of 1973. On Saturday night 44,405 fans—a record—nearly filled San Diego Stadium.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — O.J. Simpson and Larry Csonka, star football players, have joined the field for the Sports Celebrity Tennis Tournament June 3-4.

Rick Barry, John Havlicek and Gail Goodrich of pro basketball, Jim Ryun and Bob Seagraven of pro track, hockey player Rod Gilbert, pro golfer Hubert Green, and soccer star Kyle Rote Jr. are other athletes who will take part in the round-robin doubles competition.

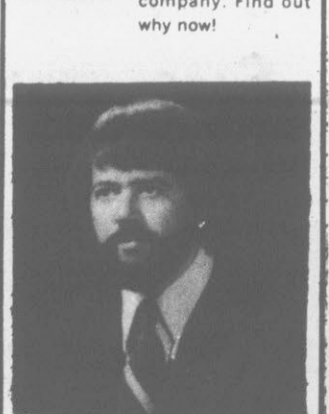

MONTREAL (AP) — An international basketball tripleheader featuring the men's and women's teams from the People's Republic of China, will be held here at the Maurice Richard Arena June 19.

Boston College rushed for 74 plays in its opening game of the season against Temple.

Penn State will participate in two holiday basketball tournaments this season — the Utah Classic at Salt Lake City, Dec. 14-15, and the Quaker City Classic at Philadelphia, Dec. 28-29.

The Worry Clinic

Some Ailments Due Deficiency

Ada was desperate! After 18 months of standard medical treatment, she feared being a lifelong cripple. Then notice what happened when she met her childhood music teacher! In just one month, 3,000 doctors ordered the newspaper booklet below.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.
CASE A-640: Ada Z., aged 28, was desperate.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "I am a private secretary and always made a very nice salary. But 3 years ago, I developed such crippling arthritis in my hands that I couldn't even operate the keys of my typewriter."

"My elbows were also stiff and I had difficulty even feeding myself."

"It scared me to think I might be a helpless cripple, especially since I must help support my widowed mother, who lives with me."

"For 18 months I took various medicines that several doctors prescribed."

"But my arthritis never diminished, so I grew desperate regarding how to earn a living."

"Then I met a former piano teacher with whom I had studied as a child."

"She said she had been forced to give up all her pupils because she also had her fingers contracted badly with arthritis."

"But she added that she had read your column about the possible value of the ocean's 44 trace chemicals in banishing deficiency ailments."

"So she urged me to go to the Gulf of Mexico and get a supply of sea water, which I did."

"Well, I took half a glassful every day, distributed in milk, tomato juice, soup, etc."

"And within 60 days my fingers and elbows began to limber up."

"And at the end of 4 months I was back at my secretarial job, using the typewriter without any inconvenience at all!"

"So tell your readers that when other remedies fail, they might try ocean water."

Deficiency Ailments

Many human ailments are described as being apparently due to some chemical deficiency.

For we medics don't attribute them to germs or a virus.

Among this list of possible deficiency ailments are not only arthritis, cataracts, hardening of the arteries, deafness, diabetes and psoriasis but possibly cancer, too.

There are 44 water soluble chemicals in the sea, all of which are also in dilute amounts in our human blood.

When the continents first rose out of the oceans, those same chemicals were in the soil and then in fruits and vegetables raised thereon.

But since they are water soluble, the rains soon began to leach them out of the soil and carry them back to the oceans.

In recent years, medical research has shown the vital need for a trace of iodine to prevent simple goiter.

And agricultural colleges have shown the great advance of red salt over the 50-pound blocks of white salt for farm animals.

My mother had been getting some sea water every day ever since 1955 until she passed away in February, a day before her 96th birthday.

She surpassed by 6 years the longevity of all her known ancestors on both sides of the family.

In one month, over 3,000 doctors wrote for the booklet below and with tens of thousands of you laymen, have been using sea water as a possible prevention of deficiency ailments.

If I had cancer, I'd drink one full glass (probably two) of sea water daily, distributed in milk, tomato juice, etc.

Unless you are a heart case and ordered to go low on salt, there is no significant ill effect in a little sea water daily and you may add many years to your life span.

So send for the booklet "The Ocean's 44 Trace Chemicals," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Metric System Given A Setback In Britain

LONDON (AP) — British housewives don't like their meat and vegetables being weighed out in those foreign kilograms instead of good old pounds and ounces.

Therefore, British butchers and grocers are refusing to go over to the metric system. And this, says the government's Metrication Board in its annual report, is one reason why Britain's changeover to the metric system is running two years behind schedule.

The board suggests that the government should name a date when all shoppers will be made to go metric. The target date had been the end of next year, but it would not be achieved until early in 1978, the board said. Stores, such as the butchers' and grocers', which weigh out foods in front of the customer, are unlikely to start using metric measures until they are legally required to do so.

The government must remove the remaining legislative obstacles to metric change, the Board says. In particular, it should be made legal to sell in prescribed metric quantities all those goods, like sugar, which at present can only be sold in packages relating to imperial quantities — that's pounds and ounces.

On the broader front of industry, commerce and education as a whole, the board says there is a good chance that all change to metrication should be "substantially completed" by 1975 — the target date set in 1965.

The momentum in the change to metric measures, which was lost in 1971, has not been regained, the board warns. It says 1973 was a year of "steady but slow progress."

Delay weakens Britain's competitive position in international trade and increases costs to industry by requiring dual production and dual inventories.

The report says that metrication is frustrating educators and raising costs. Strain is being placed on children and there is waste of Government departments, the board says, must do their part by specifying their purchasing requirements in metric measures. A major publicity drive to explain metrication to consumers is needed, the board emphasizes. A heavyweight advertising campaign began this spring.

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Early in the day you can easily improve your environmental conditions as well as act with much cleverness in fixing a mechanical utility. Later some confusion arises that requires all your ingenuity to uncover truth.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be meticulous in the handling of duties today. Taking tender care of your health is important now. Show that you have wisdom.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan now for future amusements so you will be amply prepared for them. Demonstrate to friends that you are a very fair person.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Although the situation at home is tense, show that you are devoted to family just the same. Don't break any promises today.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't take any risks in motion and follow every rule and regulation that applies to you at this time. Be alert.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Keep preoccupied with financial and property matters early in the day. Consult with an expert on how to have a greater income.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Steer clear of amusements or social matters that are very expensive. Do something now that you have been neglecting a long time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study your projects and see how they are progressing. Be more willing to do favors for mate and then ideal accord results. Be wise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have promised to do favors for good friends, so be sure to do them, or they lose faith in you. Attend a group affair.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Find out what a bigwig expects of you, and then carry through in a most efficient way. Don't lose your tempo tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have a new course of activity that can become very successful if you obtain the data you need. If a bill is accurate, pay it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handling obligations in meticulous fashion can make this a most successful day. Show mate how happy you are to be together.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Reconcile with any associates with whom you have had a misunderstanding of late. Show others that you are very intelligent.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY — he or she will be able to handle all the various details of any project with precision, and for this reason can be most successful in almost any sphere of endeavor. Be sure to give the right ethical and spiritual training early in life. The ability to act swiftly in an emergency is great here.

The bidding had much to commend it — it was short and to the point. North had a perfect one no trump opening bid and South made the value bid when he leaped directly to game in spades, for his hand offered excellent prospects for game even opposite a minimum no trump opening.

West led the king of hearts, and declarer saw at once that he would make the hand if either black king was in the

Labor Studies Are Offered Laborers

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — After eight hours on the job 22 factory workers in this industrial city pick up their lunch pails and head for school.

A pioneer program of labor studies is trying to help the workers keep up with their bosses.

"The program is really designed to fill the intellectual void between highly educated technical management personnel and, in most cases, their less formally educated union counterparts," said James Stewart, the program's originator.

Described by its founders at Housatonic Community College as a first in Connecticut, the program is aimed at full-time workers. It lists among its students foundry workers, steelworkers, machine shop employees and construction laborers.

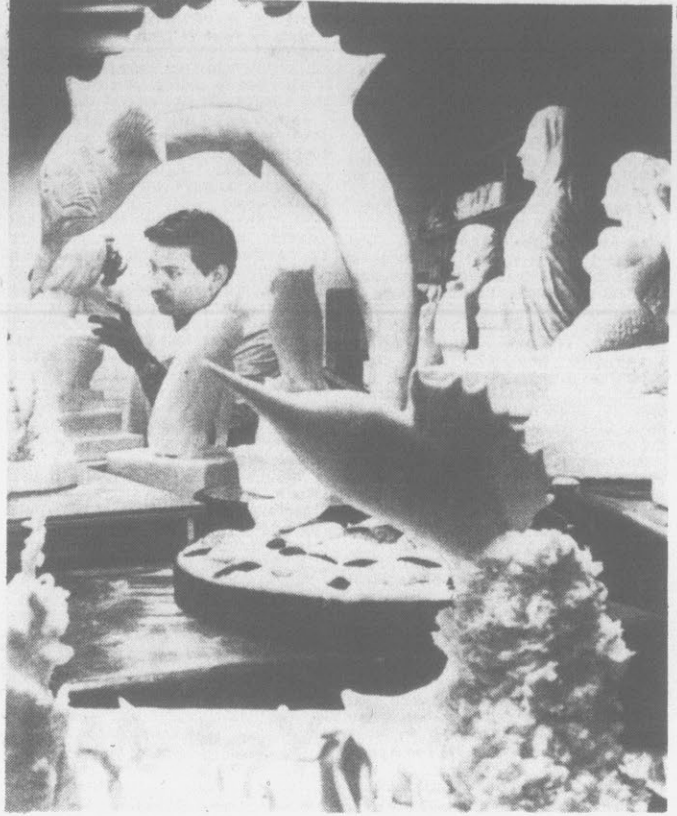

The courses, developed by the college and the Labor Education Center of the University of Connecticut, range from the history of collective bargaining to the sociology of the work place.

Stewart, an assistant profesor at the labor center, said the students reacted favorably to the program in the first semester even though most of them attended after working eight hours. Most planned to continue for the entire two-year course.

The courses are designed to give the workers knowledge of labor and the labor movement, its history and its functions in today's society. English and economics are also required to complete the program.

The majority of the union men enrolled, unlike the majority of union members, are under 30 years of age.

SPACE CRAFT—Visitors to the Kennedy Space Center are receiving a preview of the joint United States-Soviet Union manned space mission in mid-1975. The American Apollo and Russian Soyuz spacecraft are now on exhibit in the KSC's Vehicle Assembly Building. Linking the two spacecraft is a special docking adapter built by the United States which will be launched with the Apollo spacecraft. These are full-scale models. (AP Wirephoto)

Oil Loss Not Yet Made Up

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — It may take another month for U.S. oil imports to recover fully from the Arab embargo that ended last March. Once they do, the Federal Energy Office hopes they can keep on growing.

Even so, the outlook this summer is for small gasoline shortages similar to those felt last summer, and for the same reason—a chronic shortage of refinery capacity to process crude oil no matter where it comes from.

Last October, U.S. crude oil imports averaged 3.6 million barrels a day.

After the Arab embargo was imposed, it took four months of gradual decline for crude oil imports to hit bottom, at about 2.1 million barrels a day in February.

Then, crude oil imports turned around and started in-

Kindergarten Graduation Program Held

Graduation exercises for Tammy's Day Care Center and Kindergarten were held at the St. James Methodist Church May 24.

Those included in the kindergarten graduation were: Jeffrey Breedlove, Tracie Cates, Wesley Croom, Linda Davis, Dewey Dunn, Robbie Ehrman, Steven Ferebee, Henry Fleming, Michael Follmer, Stephanie Hardee, Gena Hill, Gena Leggett, Ritchie Smith, Lynette Williams and Polly Worthington.

Participating in the program also were nursery school children including: Greg Jones, Scottie Smith, Sean Tyer, Jan Millyon, Monique Bowns, Lisa Hoff, Jerry Folson and Jonathan Friend.

CATERING WOODPECKERS—There's nothing like sitting at home and being served in bed. These Red Bellied woodpeckers keep a steady supply of food coming for their young who are bedded down inside a Florida palm tree. The sign was left by an apparent bird lover. (AP Wirephoto)

Okinawans Wondering Where They Go From Here

by GENE SALTZGAVER
 NAHA, Okinawa, Japan (UPI) — Okinawa Prefecture has begun its third year back under Japanese rule still uncertain of its future.
 Okinawa has been undergoing a continuous facelifting since it was returned to Japan by the United States on May 15, 1972. Prior to that Okinawa had been under U.S. trusteeship for a quarter of a century following World War II.
 High rise hotels are sprouting up throughout the island, major expressways are being constructed, old roads are being modernized and homes are becoming more westernized than ever.
 Despite all this sudden modernization, many Okinawans view the future with skepticism.

 As late as this century portions of the Okinawan chain known as the Ryukyu Islands were still considered to be in the stone age. The main island of Okinawa itself, while not as neglected, was always a quiet, easygoing place of rather shy people.
 Rushed Into 20th Century
 It was abruptly jolted into world attention during World War II, then found itself being rushed rapidly into the 20th Century during the Korean War. Prosperity and easier living gained a strong foothold in the years under American trusteeship, including those during the Vietnam war when Okinawa was a logistical base for the U.S. military.

 In 1972, having witnessed the Japanese "economic miracle," Okinawans were eager for their return to a prosperous and booming Japan.
 All was not to be as bright as expected, however. The dollar shock that hit the world in 1972 especially hurt Okinawa, starting a price rise skyward that to this day has not slowed down. Once one of the cheapest areas in the Far East, Okinawa now finds its prices as high or higher than some prices in Tokyo.
 Food, most of which must be shipped in from mainland Japan, is very expensive.

Prices of many daily commodities have also shot up since reversion. Apartment rents, which had been low, have soared.
Prices Up, Up, Up
 As of March this year Naha, capital of the Prefecture, was listed fourth among the most expensive rental areas of Japan. Before reversion, multi-room apartments averaged about $60 to $70 a month. Now they cost about $50 a room or more.
 Within the past year blame for continually rising prices has shifted from the dollar shock to next year's planned International Ocean Exposition here—Expo 75. Many union and leftist organizations are saying that Expo 75 is responsible for the new high cost of living.

 Land speculators moved into Okinawa in force following reversion, buying up cheap land from Okinawans, then reselling it to mainlanders or other Okinawans at exorbitant prices. Money hungry farmers held out for the highest price when the government of Japan was buying land for the Expo 75 site at Motobu Peninsula in northern Okinawa.

 Money from mainland Japan kept on pouring into Okinawa, most of it for new hotels, high rise apartment houses, new roads and land.
Money Flows
 Money has been spent as though it was going out of style and now the cash situation has become tight. But prices continue to climb.
 Despite their unhappiness with the current situation the islanders are pulling together in their efforts to make the 1975 exposition a success, and Prefectural Governor Chobyo Yara is confident it will be.

 "As the site of the Ocean Exposition," the Governor told UPI, "Okinawa fully understands the significance of the event. The people are determined to make it a success."
 "We want to make the Exposition a significant opportunity in striving for creation of future peace, which mankind is strongly calling for."
Construction Booming
 This spring, thousands of Okinawans have poured into the countryside to see how work on Expo 75 is progressing. All the way from Naha to Motobu Peninsula, a two-hour drive, preparations for Expo 75 are dramatically visible, beginning with tall new hotels and office buildings in Naha itself, the modern expressway to the site that is gradually taking shape, on to the busy construction at the site itself which will be filled with elaborate structures.

 Expo 75 is scheduled to open on July 20, 1975, and run six months. What lies beyond is the cause for most Okinawan concern. One big question is whether, after Expo, there will be an economic letdown.
 Many progressive businessmen here think such doubts are groundless. They believe Japan will develop Okinawa into another Guam or Hawaii, industrially and otherwise—including making it one of the top tourist spots in the world.

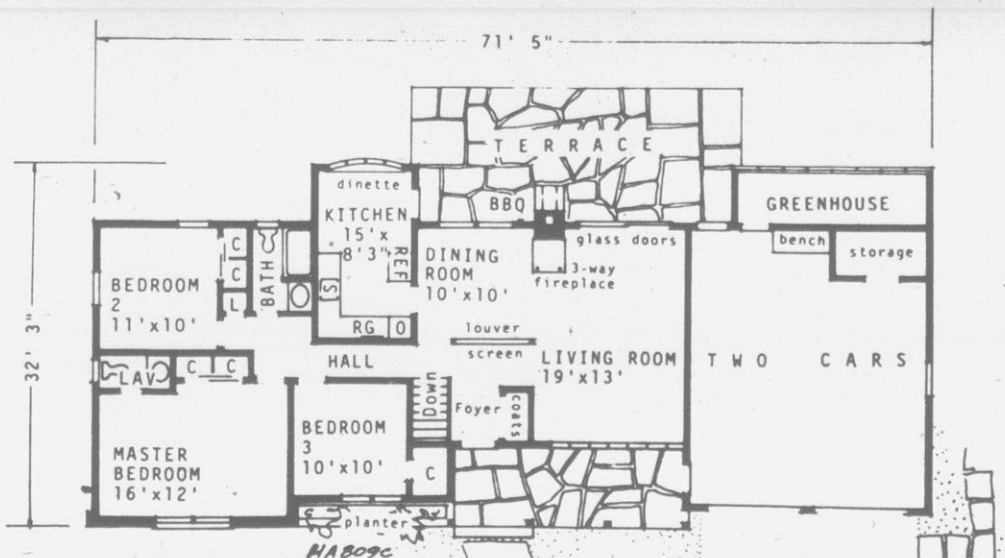

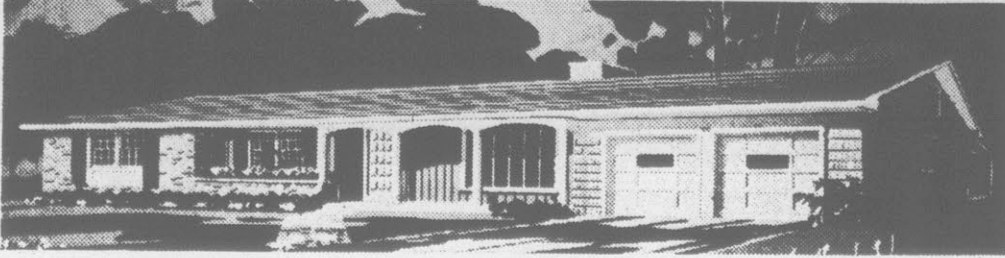

Tributes To War Dead Marked Memorial Day

By The Associated Press
 Solemn tributes to America's war dead mixed with three-day vacations for millions as the nation celebrated Memorial Day.
 Traditional events such as graveside services, parades and political speeches highlighted the nation's tribute to its fallen. Many took advantage of the long weekend to take short vacations and an estimated 60,000 persons even turned out in Victoria, Tex., for the Fourth Annual Armadillo Exposition and Confab—including an Armadillo race.
 In a radio broadcast from Key Biscayne, Fla., Monday, President Nixon urged Americans not to shirk responsibilities for world leadership.
 "America's isolation can lead only to the world's destruction," Nixon said. "Our hopes for a lasting peace are brighter than at any time in living memory because we now have a structure of peace and we are carefully working to strengthen it."

 Vice President Gerald R. Ford laid a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington National Cemetery near Washington.
 Ford said Americans should not only honor war dead of the past, but should "honor and ... help the living veterans of Vietnam, who have known few parades, few bands and few cheers."
 "Americans who served the longest war of our history in Southeast Asia and the South China Sea were no less brave, their suffering was no less severe and their sacrifices were no less real than those of Valley Forge and Gettysburg," Ford said.

 Residents of Illinois were faced with the prospect of two Memorial days — Monday and again May 30, the traditional date. The state has enacted legislation to celebrate the day on May 30, but private industry celebrated on Monday. The Monday date was set by Congress to provide more three-day weekends.
 In Victoria, Texas, Armadillo Exposition sponsor Fred Armstrong estimated 60,000 to 70,000 attended his festival because they must have "had nothing else to do."
 For the record, "Old Willie" won the Armadillo race in the stretch and "B.S." won the best-dressed armadillo contest.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

A COMPACT RANCH HOME that has clever ideas for space utilization is the design here. The sheltered patio gives an attractive outlook to the rooms at the back, and an optional greenhouse can be added. Plan HA809C has three bedrooms and one and a half baths. Living area is 1,095 square feet in the design by Lester Cohen, Room 505, 48 W. 48th St., New York, N.Y. 10036. Anyone interested in learning the cost of the blueprint can write to the architect, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Indira Asserts Neighbors Need Have No Fear

NEW YORK (AP) — India's Prime Minister Indira Gandhi has asserted that "our neighbors need have no fear" despite her country's explosion of a nuclear device last week.
 "There is a difference between a nuclear country and a nuclear-weapons country," Mrs. Gandhi said in an interview published in the current issue of Newsweek magazine.
 "We are not a nuclear-weapons country. We don't have any bombs. We don't intend to use this knowledge or this power for any other than peaceful purposes."
 Mrs. Gandhi made the comments three days after the blast had unleashed a wave of criticism and outrage in Western capitals. Many critics charged India was spending money on nuclear tests while accepting millions in aid for its starving poor.

Appealing For New Patriotism

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — The president and chief executive of a Virginia-based financial services company hopes to restore confidence in the American system by trying to show that hardship and controversy are part of the country's heritage.
 Warren M. Pace of Richmond Corp., noting that the White House, Congress and big business are getting "poor marks" in public opinion polls, has committed a segment of his company's advertising budget to list 119 "great and not so great moments in American History" from Jamestown in 1607 to the energy crisis of 1973.
 The advertisement's message concludes: "We hope they'll serve to remind you than even in the face of adversity, America has always emerged a stronger nation. And together, we will do it again."

Tonight Is Emmy Night

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Using a new format, television caps its protracted Emmy awards program tonight.
 The major awards for individual achievement and for programs will be presented on the Emmy telecast on NBC. It airs at 9 p.m. EDT.
 The category awards for acting, writing and directing were announced two weeks ago. These winners will compete for the first annual "best of the year" awards tonight.
 The Emmys for daytime programming will be awarded this afternoon during an NBC telecast from New York.
 Ten Emmys were announced Monday. "The Dick Cavett Show" and "Tomorrow" host Tom Snyder won in the special classification of outstanding programming and individual achievement, and writer-cartoonist Charles M. Schulz won for outstanding individual achievement in children's programming for "A Charlie Brown Thanksgiving."
 Among those to be presented Emmys will be William Holden of "The Blue Knight"; actress of the year, series—Mary Tyler Moore of "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" and Michael Learned of "The Waltons"; actress of the year, specials-limited series—Cicely Tyson of "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman" and Mildred Natwick of "The Snoop Sisters."

Big Goals Set By Fish Farm

NEWPORT, Ore. (UPI) — The production of dinner plate size salmon and trout is the goal of a new private fish hatchery established here recently by Oregon-Aqua Foods.
 The facility is located on a 10-acre area and includes 16 pens where salmon and rainbow trout will be raised to one or two pound size, according to market demand. The firm hopes to produce three million pounds of fish a year.
