

Awaits Only Israeli Cabinet Ratification

Disengagement Agreement Said Reached

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
JERUSALEM (AP) —
Sources close to the Israeli government said Israel and Syria reached a disengagement agreement today after 33 days of truce efforts by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

They said a formal accord was awaiting ratification from Premier Golda Meir's cabinet. No official confirmation was available.

The sources said the agreement called for the two governments to withdraw their armies behind a United Nations' buffer zone.

Unofficial Israeli informants said 1,250 U.N.
troops would set up the buffer and that it would be one to four miles wide. They said it would stretch from Mt.
Hermon along the Golan Heights, including the abandoned Golan capital of Quneitra and a strip 300 yards west of the wrecked town.

They said on each side of the buffer the armies would be reduced in two corridors, each six miles wide. In the front line corridor, troops would be limited to 6,000, with 75 tanks and 36 short-range cannon. In the deeper zone, each side would be restricted to 450 tanks, with no long-range artillery or antiaircraft missiles, they said.

Despite the lack of official confirmation, newsmen were invited to Mrs. Meir's office to drink a toast with Kissinger.

"It's all wrapped up," said one source close to Kissinger's negotiations. "It only needs the cabinet to ratify it and that is a formality."

Israel's state radio said the disengagement pact would be signed by Israeli and Syrian delegates in Geneva at the end of this week.

Mrs. Meir's cabinet met early this morning to discuss the pact, then scheduled an afternoon session during which it would decide "yes or no," according to an Israeli government communique. It said the decision would be final.

Information Minister Shimon Peres told newsmen he expected the announcement would be in
"very general terms."

Meanwhile, Israeli officials said Mrs. Meir may quit office in the next 24 hours and turn over the government to Premier-Designate Yitzhak Rabin.

Rabin won approval for a new coalition cabinet
Tuesday night from Mrs.
Meir's Labor party. He announced to President Ephraim Katzir that he was ready to take over with a new government that left out Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and some of Israel's most familiar faces.

Mrs. Meir, who wants to retire to a communal settlement in the Negev desert, remains in power as caretaker premier until the parliament votes confidence in Israel's new leadership.
This may come Thursday.

Sen. Fulbright Unseated; Morse Wins Ore. Fight

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer

Fast-rising political newcomer Dale Bumpers ran away with the Arkansas Democratic senatorial nomination and ended the 30-year career of J. W.
Fulbright, one of the leading powers in American foreign policy.

The two-term Arkansas governor ran up almost a 2-to-1 victory margin Tuesday over Fulbright, who has been chairman of the powerful Senate Foreign Relations Committee for 15 years.

At the same time, 73-year-old Wayne Morse was winning the Democratic senatorial nomination for a political comeback in Oregon.

Morse, who like Fulbright was a leading Senate critic of U.S. Vietnam policy, will meet Sen. Robert Packwood in the fall. Packwood, who ousted Morse after 24 years in the Senate in 1968, was unopposed for the Republican nomination.

In Kentucky, another of the Democratic new faces, Gov.
Wendell Ford, won the party's nomination to challenge Republican Sen. Marlow Cook in November. Both scored easy victories over token primary opposition.

Just four years ago, Bumpers was a school board member and city attorney in Charleston, Ark., a town of 1,500. But in 1970 he upset former six-term
Gov. Orval E. Faubus in the Democratic primary and went on to oust incumbent Republican Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller.
He won re-election in 1972.

Both Fulbright and Bumpers said they were surprised at the size of Bumpers' win.

Bumpers, 48, had called for new leadership in Washington to deal with problems such as inflation, energy, federal spending and post-Watergate political clean-up. Fulbright stressed his seniority and experience, but at 69 said he would "cheerfully accept" retirement if that was the voters' verdict.

With 2,626 of the state's 2,786 precincts reporting, Bumpers had 345,801 votes, or 65 per cent, to Fulbright's 187,718, or 35 per cent.

Morse, who was voted out at the height of his anti-Vietnam war effort, used the related theme of usurpation of constitutional power by the President, but said "the numbers of us opposed to it are increasing."

With 1,647 of the 2,514 Oregon precincts reporting, Morse had 89,211 votes, or 49.2 per cent, compared to 71,604, or 39.5 per cent, for his chief opponent in the four-way race, state Senate President Jason Boe.

In the Arkansas Democratic gubernatorial primary, former Rep. David H. Pryor, 39, of Little Rock held a bare majority of 51 per cent. Faubus was in second place with 33 per cent, followed by Lt. Gov. Bob Riley. Pryor must stay above 50 per cent to avoid a runoff.

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP)—Torpedo Wire and Strip, Inc., of Pittsfield, Pa., has announced it will purchase a 20,000 square foot factory in Rocky Mount.

The company manufactures composite metal wire and strip for a worldwide market. In the Rocky Mount facility, Torpedo will manufacture wire for electronic, aircraft and appliance industries.

Plant manager Richard Haney said the facility is expected to be in operation by Aug. 15. He said it will employ about 15 employees initially and will ultimately have a work force of between 75 and 100.

The announcement came as Prime Minister Harold Wilson called a meeting in London with his cabinet to discuss ways to solve the crisis in the province prompted by the resignation on Tuesday of Protestant members of Chief Minister Brian Faulkner's Executive, the provincial government.

Leaders of the walkout gave no immediate reason for calling it off. The move reversed early extremist pledges not to return to work until Wilson made his announcement on the provincial administration.

Strike leaders wanted an end to Northern Ireland's first attempt at sharing power between its Protestant majority and its Roman Catholic minority. They got it, at least temporarily.

Catholic members of the Executive refused to resign, but a British government statement said the provincial administration could not function without Protestants.

General Strike Is Called Off In N. Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The Protestant extremist Ulster Workers' Council called off today a 15-day general strike which paralyzed Northern Ireland's economy and brought down the British province's moderate government.

The UWC announced that it was asking workers to drift back to their jobs, with heavy industry resuming production probably on Monday.

The announcement came as Prime Minister Harold Wilson called a meeting in London with his cabinet to discuss ways to solve the crisis in the province prompted by the resignation on Tuesday of Protestant members of Chief Minister Brian Faulkner's Executive, the provincial government.

Leaders of the walkout gave no immediate reason for calling it off. The move reversed early extremist pledges not to return to work until Wilson made his announcement on the provincial administration.

Strike leaders wanted an end to Northern Ireland's first attempt at sharing power between its Protestant majority and its Roman Catholic minority. They got it, at least temporarily.

Catholic members of the Executive refused to resign, but a British government statement said the provincial administration could not function without Protestants.

In London, political sources said Prime Minister Harold Wilson was desperately anxious that power-sharing should continue in the embattled province. He called a meeting of senior ministers to consider a way out of the crisis.

When the coalition took office Jan. 1, it was heralded as a political organ to end centuries of feuding between Catholics and Protestants in the six counties. Politicians saw its downfall as a major and perhaps fatal setback to Britain's elaborate peace plan.

One solution available to Wilson under the Constitution Act of 1973 would be for Britain to nominate a caretaker government of politicians willing to serve along with senior civil servants, businessmen and labor union leaders.

This seemed unlikely to satisfy Protestant militants, however, demanding new elections to the Provincial Assembly, which they believe would reimpose Protestant rule in the province.

A spokesman for the Ulster Workers' Council, key group behind the strike, said the protest would continue until assurances are given of new elections.

Nevertheless, the strikers backed off their threat completely to shut down essential services. They restored household gas supplies today, said electric power supplies would be kept at a safe level and sent men back to operate water and sewage systems. Bakeries and dairies were told to resume normal deliveries.

But the militants' grip on industry continued unabated.

Again Ready A Subpoena

By JOHN BECKLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Refusal President Nixon's refusal to provide any more Watergate evidence, the House Judiciary Committee is preparing to subpoena more tapes.

Meanwhile, Judiciary Committee Republicans were advised by the staff Tuesday to seek congressional authorization to go to court for a judgment upholding the panel's right to subpoena evidence from Nixon.

Both Democrats and Republicans, meeting in separate party caucuses Tuesday, decided to support a request by Special Counsel John M. Doar for a new subpoena at a Judiciary Committee meeting Thursday.

Bipartisan support also is expected at the meeting for a letter notifying Nixon he has failed to comply with a previous subpoena and calling his attention to the constitutional authority on which the committee's impeachment inquiry is based.

A party split is shaping up over two other issues due to be considered at the meeting—whether the committee should receive evidence in open or closed hearings, and whether it should make public much of the evidence it has received.

In a related development,
Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski asked a federal judge to turn over portions of a White House tape previously withheld from him, saying he had evidence that Nixon may have discussed with aides the use of the Internal Revenue Service to harass political enemies.

And, Nixon's chief Watergate lawyer says he will advise the Supreme Court Thursday that a dispute over tapes taken to the court by Jaworski should be decided first by the U. S. Court of Appeals.

At their caucus, Judiciary Committee Democrats generally supported both open hearings and release of evidence on hand, while Republicans opposed them, for fear, said one, of jeopardizing pending trials of Watergate defendants.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., said he thought there would be at least one public hearing next week.

The committee resumes its closed sessions today; Rodino hopes to wind up the presentation of evidence relating to Watergate.

At the Republican caucus, a staff memorandum said a bill, similar to that authorizing the Senate Watergate committee's suit, would be "the surest way for the committee to have its day in court."

Rodino opposes going to court on the subpoena issue on the ground that the Constitution gives the House sole power of impeachment.

The committee has issued three previous subpoenas. In response to the first one, requesting tapes, it got edited transcripts. The last two were rejected by Nixon in a letter last week that said future subpoenas for Watergate material would be rejected.

The committee sent Nixon a letter after receiving the transcripts telling him he had failed to comply with the subpoena.
With reluctance on the part of some members, it apparently will take no sterner action this time.

RECALLED HAIR SPRAYS

I recently saw in an area newspaper a listing of products put out by the Food and Drug Administration containing polyvinyl chloride which could be dangerous. The products were women's hair sprays. Could you find out what hair sprays were listed?

Hotline contacted Dan Sitko, supervisor investigator for the Food and Drug Administration in Raleigh and asked if he could supply some information on the particular hair sprays. According to Sitko, the sprays were listed because polyvinyl chloride has been linked to 10 cases of a rare liver cancer among industrial workers who were exposed to the substance for long periods of time. The companies manufacturing hair sprays which contained PVC are Posner, Grant, Bonat, Halliwell, and Clairol. According to Sitko, all of the sprays affected were packaged before June 1973. It is hard to say which sprays were affected as they varied by lot numbers. The most popular sprays affected are ones manufactured by the Clairol company. Those affected are Summer Blonde, Miss Clairol, Sybil Ives and Shiny Touch. All lots of the Clairol spray were affected, and were manufactured in early 1973, according to Sitko. The sprays have been recalled but it is possible some were purchased before the recall.

NEEDS ADDRESS

I have been trying to locate the address of the parent corporation that owns the Ole London Inn here in Greenville, but have not been able to obtain the information from the local manager. Can you help me? G. B.

Hotline contacted the manager of the Ole London Inn but was unable to get the information you requested. It was learned that the motel is owned by the John Yancey Co., whose address was listed as P. O. Box 1487, Newport News, Va., 23601 by the N. C. Motel Association in Raleigh. A telephone call to the John Yancey Co. in Newport News confirmed that they own the local Ole London Inn.

WHAT HAPPENED TO BOYLE?

I would like to know if Hal Boyle is still writing for the AP. I think I heard he retired. R.W.W.

Hal Boyle did announce his retirement the last week in February of this year. "Way down in his final column, he disclosed that he had a rare disease that affects one in every 100,000 persons. It's called amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, but is better known as Lou Gehrig's disease, because the famous baseball player had it, too.

Monday, Apr. 1, Boyle died of a heart attack at his New York apartment. He was 63, and was the writer of more by-lined articles and columns than any writer in the 126-year history of the Associated Press, for which he began work as a copy boy 46 years ago.

Personal Income Tax Cut Plans Being Pushed

By JOE HALL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats are moving ahead with plans for a $6.6 billion personal income tax cut in the face of new warnings from President Nixon that the action could fuel more inflation.

Senate leaders said the tax cut proposal would be called up soon for floor debate and predicted that it would pass their branch. Whether the House will go along is unclear.

The President's views were transmitted to the Capitol in a special report of his Council of Economic Advisers which said a recession is much less likely now.

It estimated the inflation rate would drop to about 7 per cent by the last quarter of 1974. The rate was 12.1 per cent in the first three months of this year, the highest since 1951 during the Korean War.

However, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., vice chairman of the Senate-Economic Committee, told a newsmen "there is no anti-inflation program at all in this report."

"In his current budget, the President recommended one of the biggest spending increases in history, yet his report talks about fiscal restraint," he said.

Proxmire cited as "positively harmful" the proposal in the report to deregulate natural gas, asserting this would mean further sharp increases in utility bills to consumers.

Nixon said in the report "we must avoid the temptation of tax reduction without expenditure reduction," but did not recommend any specific government spending cuts.

However, the leading Senate tax cut advocates contend that this is the way to restore some of the consumer buying power lost because of irreversible increases in the price of oil and products manufactured with large inputs of energy.

The proposal advanced by Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., Russell B. Long, D-La., and Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., would give taxpayers a choice of an $825 personal exemption or a $190 tax credit. The present exemption is $750.

The council said industrial production should increase at a 4 per cent annual rate after mid-year. But the report also said unemployment may rise to between 5.5 per cent and 6 per cent by the end of the year. The rate was 5 per cent in April.

Mrs. McCarthy Named Pilot President

Mrs. Juanita McCarthy was installed as president for 1974-75 of the Pilot Club of Greenville in ceremonies held Monday evening at the Ramada Inn.

Other officers are: Mrs. Lenore Morton, vice president; Mrs. Winona Daniel, treasurer; Mrs. Ouida Debter, recording secretary; and Mrs. Frances White, corresponding secretary.

The directors are Mrs. Sue Howell, Mrs. Evelyn Heidenreich and Mrs. Grace Smith. Mrs. Ruby Fields, a former president, conducted the candlelighting installation service.

A slide presentation "As Others See Us" was presented by Miss Ruth White. A report on the District VI convention held May 3-5 in Winston-Salem was given by Mrs. McCarthy.

The District Administrative Council will host the 1974-75 convention May 2-4, 1975, at the Holiday Inn Four Seasons, Greensboro. It was announced that District VI would have only one area workshop this year, which would be held in Greensboro.

Mrs. Fields conducted the initiation service for three new members: Mrs. Barbara Clark; Miss Margaret Nelson; and Mrs. Usha Gulati. Mrs. Sue Howell, outgoing president, welcomed them into the club and presented each one with a Pilot pin.

The next meeting will be a covered-dish dinner at the home of Mrs. Morton on June 24 beginning at 6:30 p.m. The program "Parliamentary Procedure as it Relates to Pilot" will be given by Lucy Ham of Rocky Mount, who is Pilot International parliamentarian for 1974-75.

Women Thumping For Nation's School Girls

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
UPI Family Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The way it used to be you'd be on the mark saying:

Girls will be girls and boys will be boys.

At least that's the way it was before women's lib brought up the dastardly business of sex role stereotyping from the cradle to the grave—but especially in the nation's schools.

Today to be on safe ground you'd better say—"persons will be persons" and let it go at that. Sex role stereotyping tends to lead little girls toward feminine careers — nursing, teaching, homemaking, motherhood.

It leads little boys down thorn-strewn path toward heman pursuits—rough and tumble sports and careers that require superbrawn or superbrain. Of course, fatherhood, too.

The stereotypes say that, in the latter role, Daddy brings home the bacon. But, of course, mothers do that too.

Thumping a new era for the nation's school girls are two distinguished women from Cambridge, Mass.

Edith Ruina and Laya Wiesner speak enthusiastically and carry a big report when they thump for a new deal for school girls.

Mrs. Wiesner's husband, Jerome, is president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and advised President Kennedy on science. Mrs. Ruina's husband is a professor at MIT. During the Kennedy Administration he was head of the Institute for Defense Analysis.

The report the two women talked about in an interview is based on an MIT Workshop on "Women in Science and Technology." The workshop participants, leaders in science, education and industry, tackled this problem:

"What to do about women who are excluded from scientific and technical jobs—despite the rising national needs for technically competent workers."

One finding was this: "Women continue to be excluded—largely because of persistent and stereotyped sexrole perceptions held by parents, educators, employers and even young women themselves."

"It was found," said Mrs. Weisner, "that some women have been precluded in science and technology because they made poor curriculum decisions in high school."

Those decisions, according to Mrs. Ruina, often had their roots in grade school.

"The girls were not given the proper foundation work for science and mathematics," she said.

The report stresses the need for mathematical competence—something children cannot achieve unless they take the key courses in the lower and middle grades.

The two women said workshop participants showed relatively few girls carefully consider their future careers and the full range of options.

The conference was a way of marking the 100th anniversary of the graduation of the first woman at MIT. The school now has 500 women students, 14 per cent of the total. Next year it will be 20 per cent—and hopefully more the year after that.

"Teachers and counselors must learn more about the preparation necessary for women in science and technology—and the many opportunities for them," said Mrs. Ruina, coordinator of the MIT project.

Methods are outlined in the report, which the women said they hoped will inspire educators to set up mini workshops of a similar nature at the local level. Other recommendations for schools:

—Forming citizen's committees composed of parents and occupational groups. These would act as resources and stimuli for change and would ensure that the available educational facilities are fully utilized by girls.

—Holding principals and staff accountable to school superintendents for providing equal opportunities for girls.

—Avoiding sex stereotyping in hiring.

—Integrating existing courses in shop and home economics or develop new curricula so that both male and female can be exposed to family management courses that encompass child rearing, nutrition, consumerism, finance, administration and maintenance of home equipment.

"Both boys and girls should develop competence to change tires and diapers," is the way one conference participant put it.

Casualness Is Mark Of Popular Table Setting

NEW YORK (UPI) — Casualness and individuality are the marks of the most popular table settings, according to the Jewelry Industry Council.

The bride's china pattern and crystal, too, ought to be registered at the bridal registry in the jewelry or department store. Following her choices, the shopper of a wedding gift can't do anything but please.

The bride's china pattern may be available in the newer three-piece place setting as well as the traditional five-piece place setting. But also consider coordinating or matching serving pieces, oven-to-table-to-dishwasher items with their emphasis on convenience, china accessories for gourmet cooking, table-top cooking and casual entertaining.

Crystal is a gift newlyweds appreciate as barware, as dessert and party-going helpers, as unusual decorative pieces, vases, bowls, salad sets.

Stainless is an ideal wedding gift also. Modern, practical, convenient, a special favorite of the young and young-minded, stainless flatware and hollow ware is especially adaptive in the first home, and every home after that.

Pewter satisfies for the same reasons and looks remarkably well with either silver or stainless in those highly individualized table settings, as decorative accents around that bright, exuberant young atmosphere.

Clocks make good wedding gifts, too. Choose a room, gift it with a clock. Your bridal couple will have a good "wardrobe of clocks" for its first lovenest.

Other good wedding gifts: figurines, limited edition sculptures, plates, historical reproductions honoring the coming bicentennial of the nation, objets d'art.

Change Is The Survival Word According To Book's Authors

By PATRICIA MC CORMACK
UPI Family Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Had a good crisis lately?

Flat tires, cats with lost tails, and peanut butter on a velvet chair don't count.

A good personal crisis may rattle your bones, shake your fillings, and change either your lifestyle or job.

"We live in a crisis culture and it affects the individual's ability to deal with the normal, personal crises of adulthood," say anthropologists George and Nena O'Neill —authors of "Open Marriage" a few years back, a best-seller.

In a new book, "Shifting Gears," (M. Evans), the O'Neills come across as crisis doctors.

The Chinese say every crisis has in it danger and opportunity. Change is the survival word, according to the O'Neills. Unless you shift gears smoothly —changing without trauma —there's trouble.

Avoidance the Worst

"We are constantly told . . . that we must adjust to change imposed on us," O'Neill said.

"These are changes we never bargained for but must deal with. Only nobody ever told us how to change. 'Shifting Gears' tries to help."

Now, in a personal crisis, the psychological bases for our lives are shattered. Yet panic can be eased and anxiety mitigated if we know what to expect, according to the anthropologists.

"Crisis puts us in a position from which we cannot retreat," Mrs. O'Neill said. "It is the point of no return."

The worst strategy in a crisis: avoidance. The O'Neills said that is self-defeating.

Some Sound Advice

Here, from the O'Neill's "Shifting Gears," is some advice to help you make crisis and change work for you:

—It is not the nature of the crisis that determines its impact but rather our attitude toward it. If we thought we were home safe—in a secure place—our attitude will be bad. If long before the crisis you recognized that there is no such thing as a secure place, the impact won't devastate.

—Try not to panic. You do this by agonizing over what might have been or by getting physically ill. To some extent you will do both these things but the quicker you pass through those stages and get on to phase three, the sooner you'll be shifting gears smoothly.

—Phase three is a period of remobilizing resources, with positive activity for solution. Move forward.

—Go into a crisis. The O'Neills said they mean "experience it fully . . . don't try to defuse it."

"Maturity Myth"

"You may experience considerable discomfort at first," they said. "But those who come through crisis with real change and growth are often those who seem to take the crisis the hardest."

What the O'Neills call the "maturity myth" generates its own crisis. This is the idea that you work hard, put some away and reach a really safe place in life sometime in the forties or even later.

The myth is that you can't get to such a place without having a new crisis. And that comes over wnderment over having made it. You ask over and over —"Is this all there is to life?"

O'Neill, a professor of anthropology at the City College of New York, said instead of gulping that maturity myth people should head toward "open maturity."

Home Canning Boom Blows Its Lid If Streaking Offends, Just Wear Blinders

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

Americans are buying home canning jars and lids as if they were diamonds selling at rock bottom prices.

Pressure canners are back-ordered for the fourth consecutive summer. Community canning centers are proliferating.

The reason: a home canning boom of unprecedented size.

Its causes: high food prices that have encouraged more home gardening, forecasts of shortages of commercially packed food, changing life styles and the energy shortage that is keeping more people home.

Demand Way Up

"The demand (for jars and lids) never quit from last year," said Harold Metsker, general manager for the consumer products division, Kerr Glass Mfg. Co., Sand Springs, Okla.

"We've been shipping jars, caps and lids since January. We're running like the seed industry, about 40 per cent above last year."

Metsker and John W. Fisher, president of Ball Corp., another jar and lid manufacturer, said the industry's problem is the same as last year—not enough soda ash for making jars or enough tinplate for lids.

"We're currently running three and four weeks behind on our shipments and have been all along," Metsker said.

He blamed the current shortage largely on panic buying by consumers, rather than shortages of materials. He had this advice for shoppers:

Advice: Cool It

Cool it. Buy only as many jars and lids as you can use. Give manufacturers a chance to catch up and there will be enough for everyone.

(You also can stretch supplies by packing jams, jellies, preserves and marmalades in reusable commercial canning jars from mayonnaise, instant coffee and the like. Anything that can be sealed safely with melted paraffin can be packed this way.)

(But only home canning jars are safe in water bath or pressure canners, which are necessary for safe canning of low-acid foods such as meat, seafood, poultry and most vegetables.)

"(The boom) really began in the Pacific Northwest," Metsker said. "The people in Washington, Oregon and California were still buying during the winter when nobody else was even thinking about it."

He said jar sales in the Tulsa area skyrocketed recently after a syndicated newspaper columnist wrote that the United States was heading for the most severe shortages of canned and frozen produce in years. The columnist also predicted 25 to 100 per cent price increases.

Short Supply, High Demand

Fisher reported an equally great growth in jar and lid sales. He said demand for them and for freezer bags and boxes made by his company rose 46 per cent in 1973 and that demand during the first quarter this year was unprecedented.

Both Fisher and Metsker anticipate higher prices because of short supplies and high demand.

Three major retail chains told UPI there is a tremendous increase in demand for canning supplies.

The J.C. Penney Co., Inc., said its Des Moines stores had sold out their season's stock of jars and lids by the end of February—months before that area's canning season—and reordered.

Andrew J. Santulli, a housewares buyer for Penney, added that his company's stock of pressure canners and other supplies is tight but adequate. He thought some smaller chains and independent stores might run short.

Midsummer Shortage

Both Sears, Roebuck and Co., and Montgomery Ward and Co., reported a tremendous increase in consumer demand, beginning last year and growing in momentum since early 1974. A spokesman for Montgomery Ward added that if it keeps up, there's a good probability of a shortage by midsummer.

Many smaller merchants are pessimistic.

Dave Brown of the Pay 'n Takit grocery, Vancouver, Wash., told UPI: "We're getting (only) about 50 per cent of our orders (for jars) filled."

Other stores in western Washington state reported a shortage of lids as well as quart jars.

Reports of heavy consumer buying were echoed in many areas around the country.

Dr. Ed Heffron, assistant chief of the food inspection division of Michigan's Department of Agriculture, said some farmers bought up a year's supply of canning equipment last fall in anticipation of a shortage.

The few stores in San Francisco that stock supplies the year round said the turnover is rapid. A spokesman for the Farmers' Market said manufacturers were limiting orders. Stores that stock canning supplies only during the summer also reported difficulty in getting orders filled.

Community Canning Centers

In Utah, where home canning is traditional, customers who usually buy only during the season are stocking up early. Two retailers — the K-Mart chain and Warshaw's Giant Foods Store—said buying was more rapid than usual.

In Atlanta, however, supermarket manager Stan Moon said he saw no unusually early or larger-than-usual sales and no shortages were foreseen.

Meantime, community canning centers, first established by a jar and lid manufacturer as a public service during the Depression, are booming. They were very active during World War II, but died out during the postwar period.

Ball Corp., revived the program in the mid-sixties. By last year, 50 centers for low-income households were operating in 15 states. The company expects to double the number this year.

Almost Two Tons

Some centers occupy specially built quarters but most are in schools, churches, donated halls and even abandoned gas stations, drive-in cleaners and slaughterhouses. Large pressure cookers and cooling baths operate up to 10 hours daily in some centers.

Last year, supervisors in Bernalillo and Sandoval County, N.M., helped low-income families preserve almost two tons of produce.

DEAR ABBY: You hear so much talk about how terrible the young people are, but how about the adults?

This new streaking fad is being encouraged by people who are old enough to know better. You can't pick up a newspaper without reading about a streaker. And everyone thinks it's something to laugh about.

Well, last week my 43-year-old husband went to take his usual shower before dinner, when all of a sudden we heard the shower door bang, and in nothing flat here comes my husband running completely naked past me, our teen-aged daughter and two teen-aged sons! He ran through the living room, dining room, kitchen and back to the bedroom. He thought he was being funny. I was furious, and the children were too shocked to say anything.

What do you think about this streaking business?

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: I think that there is so much to cry about today, that streaking is part of the "anything-for-a-laugh" syndrome. For my part, if something I didn't want to see more of came into view, I'd quickly close my eyes.

DEAR ABBY: I am doing time in a federal penitentiary, and have noticed that you seem to have a sympathetic feeling toward prisoners.

I won't go into my history because it would take up your whole column, but I do have a favor to ask of you. I want to study the Bible, but I don't have one. Could you please send me one? I am a Christian. I am not begging. I can pay for it a little at a time. I am black and male, if that matters.

FOUR YEARS TO GO

DEAR FOUR: Your color doesn't matter, but your sex does because I have a friend in Dallas, Tex., who will send a red Bible to any man in prison who wants one, and a white Bible to every female inmate. It comes with instructions on how to study, and it's free. His name is Chaplain Ray. Send me your complete address and I'll do the rest. God bless.

DEAR ABBY: The following story is almost identical to the one described by Loved and Lost, which recently appeared in your column. Only the ending is different. I think it's worth printing.

Mature man in his 40s meets younger charming woman in her 20s. She's sexy, charming, vivacious, etc. A serious emotional involvement follows. After a six months hidden passionate affair the man leaves his wife of 16 years and several wonderful children. He begins a new "heavenly" life with the younger woman, and after one year he finds that she is selfish, moody, materialistic, arrogant and possessive. The situation becomes intolerable, and the love affair is over.

All this time the wife had been getting counseling to help her over this painful experience. I asked if we could try again and this magnificent woman took me back with dignity and nobility. For her the whole miserable episode never happened, and she refuses to hear even one word about it.

Conclusion: There are still women who hold the home and family above their own pride.

PLEASE WITHHOLD MY NAME

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter-in-law steals things from our home. Before we put locks on all our doors and windows, steaks and other foods disappeared from our freezer. Our son [her husband] mentioned casually that they were having steaks so often he was tired of them. In the spring about half of my canned fruit disappeared from my basement fruit room. Their daughter [age 10] said: "It seems like we have just as much fruit as when you canned last summer." Her mother blushed and tried to smush her up.

We spoke to our pastor about this, and he said he thinks our son knows his wife takes these things, but that he's trying to cover up for her. That's hard for me to believe. Our

Private Room Now For Men

PALMA DE MAJORCA, Spain (WNS)—Hairdresser Maria Angel always kept a private room in her shop for princesses, countesses and other feminine royalty. "There is not as much royalty around as in the old days, but the private room is busier than ever," confided Senora Angel. Nowadays it is reserved for males. Spaniards and foreign gentlemen want to be peacocks, but they are very bashful about mingling with women in a beauty parlor."

ECU Growth Is A Happy Sign

Among the encouraging information to come out of this year's ECU graduation was that this is the largest graduating class ever and also admission applications are up for next fall.

The university graduated 2,450 in wet ceremonies last Sunday. It was the largest graduating class in history. During the weekend Dr. Leo Jenkins told alumni that applications for admission are up and the admission office is estimating an increase of 300 to 400 in number of entering freshmen for next fall. This may result in the largest student body in ECU's history next year.

The predictions of increased enrollment come at a time when declines are being predicted for many college campuses around the nation and many had believed that enrollment declines would be seen on the ECU campus.

The rosy outlook for increasing enrollment at ECU is due to the broadening of programs being offered to prospective students and the creation of community colleges and technical institutes which are now feeding students to ECU where they continue their studies for a degree.

East Carolina has over 600 students in its allied health school, which has developed rapidly in recent years. The infant School of Medicine is expected to develop rapidly since funds were appropriated by the State Legislature this year.

East Carolina University doesn't need to grow for size alone. It does, however, need to continue expanding both its undergraduate and graduate programs so that students who come here will have a wide choice of training for the careers they will pursue.

If ECU provides what the prospective students need in the present competitive job market, then enrollment growth will take care of itself.

A New Kind Of Marital Equity

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Sex is not at the top of the list of marital problems, and modern counselors who preach sex adjustment as the end-all of building a successful marriage are shooting wide of the mark, North Carolina's resident marital expert maintains.

Dr. David Mace and his wife, Vera, who are founders and the president-couple of a new national organization for married couples which is growing by leaps and bounds both in North Carolina and in other states, don't agree with the present trend to put sex in first place among marriage adjustment problems.

"If a married couple will learn to love, they can come to terms with sex. This emphasis on sex doesn't correspond with our experience," says Mace, professor of family sociology at the Bowman Gray Medical School's behavioral sciences center at Wake Forest University in Winston-Salem.

Mace argues with the so-called Playboy philosophy which puts sexual adjustment at the center of relationships, and with the growing host of marriage adjustment clinics which both preach and practice sexual adjustment as the key to marital happiness.

director of the American Association of Marriage Counselors.

"No couple today can make a success of marriage under modern stresses without enlightenment and sustained effort.

"It doesn't come naturally, as it did in years gone by when the husband was the boss and made the decisions... there's a new kind of equity in marriage and people are reaching out to this as a new idea, a new thought," Mace said.

Marriage has changed drastically in recent years, but without any formal announcement or drafting of new rules. "making a marriage work has to be learned," he said.

Top Problems

From his counseling, and from the retreat sessions at Montreat, Mace sees "two or three certain things come up again and again in every marriage."

The first, and most often mentioned, is how to deal with conflict and anger. "This is a major problem in marriage. There is a closeness of two people which eventually must cause irritation. This very intimacy inevitably produces conflict and anger which defeats the very purpose of marriage—that of seeking love shared by two people."

The object of the retreats is to "help married couples communicate so they can move past the point where conflicts are either blocked and evaded without resolution, or where they become open fights," Mace said.

The second most important obstacle to a happy marriage is working out the decision-making process. It is difficult for couples in modern society to understand the need for an equalitarian system in making decisions—working out a "two-vote system."

The third most often-mentioned area of disagreement in marriage, Mace said, is the question of personal freedom. "How much freedom is there to be myself in the marital commitment without hurting the marriage," Mace explains.

The list continues, but boils down to an overall assessment of two major areas for marital discord: communication failures and conflict resolutions.

But sexual problems, the Maces argue, are generally the result of other problems in a marriage—reflecting the quality of the relationship itself. Get the relationship right, and sexual happiness will follow naturally, they believe.

A Warning In Crated MIGs

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—Sovietologists here now suspect that the overt appearance of crated MIG-23s on a Soviet wharf in the Black Sea may be a signal for the U. S. to watch its step in delicate Mideast negotiations.

Spotted routinely by high-flying American cameras two weeks ago, the crated MIG-23s—perhaps the world's most sophisticated combat aircraft—could be destined for the Syrian port of Latakia. What makes that prospect so alarming is that Moscow has never cleared the MIG-23 for use outside the Soviet Union itself, with one apparent exception: East Germany, where the supersonic MIG-23 has been flown from Soviet bases by Soviet pilots.

When first spotted by U.S. satellites, officials here feared the half-dozen aircraft would be packed on a freighter, with Syria the likely destination. Now they are not so sure. With Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's negotiations for the Syrian-Israeli settlement nearing a climax, the Kremlin may be using the crated aircraft to convey this warning to the U.S.: give Moscow equal credit with the U.S. for the settlement, or there won't be any settlement.

In that case, the Syrian-Israeli mini-war could quickly blow up into major war, with the Soviet-manned MIG-23s thrown into battle as a dangerous element of escalation.

Mills Vs. Tax Cut
With the Treasury breathing sighs of relief, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas is now taking the position that this is no time for a personal income tax cut.

Democratic leaders in Congress are pushing an election-year tax reduction for wage-earners, and Senate passage is nearly certain. With heavy Democratic support in the House, chances of final approval may depend on Mills—Mr. Taxation on Capitol Hill as chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Mills, who deplores predetermined rigid positions, has been particularly enigmatic about the tax cut. He would support it, he has said, if necessary to forestall a recession. Nevertheless, Secretary of the Treasury William Simon has privately expressed confidence that in the end Mills would drag his feet.

Simon's confidence proved justified last week when Mills quietly put out the word that, while not closing future options, he is against tax reduction now. The reason is inflation. Mills essentially agrees with the view of his unofficial adviser, New York business economist Eliot Janeway, that a tax cut would push the rate of inflation up to 20 per cent.

A footnote: Mills is under less tax-cut pressure now that the House Democratic caucus has sidetracked a package of House committee reforms which would severely diminish the power of Ways and Means. While the reform package was still alive, Mills seemed reluctant to buck the will of Democratic Congressmen on politically sensitive tax reduction.

Sawhill's Second Thought
Federal energy chief John Sawhill, whose decision to join the liberal lobbying organization Common Cause infuriated middle-level White House staffers, has quietly dropped his membership.

When asked at a breakfast with Republican Senators two weeks ago whether he was in fact a member of John Gardner's lobby, Sawhill replied with a smile: "I am not presently a member of Common Cause."

That satisfied the conservative Republican who asked the question. Sawhill did join Common Cause on April 23 when Gardner visited his office. We reported that fact April 28, creating instant outrage at the White House where some aides viewed Sawhill's act as scarcely less treasonable than joining the Communist party.

That fact was clearly perceived by Sawhill, who telephoned Gardner a few days later to tell him that a check covering his and his wife's membership in Common Cause was to be assigned only to his wife Isabel, not him. He also told Gardner his decision to keep arm's length from Common Cause was based on the fact that it actively lobbies Sawhill's own agency.

A successful Baltimore businessman before joining the Nixon administration a year ago, Sawhill freely concedes he lacks political experience. His fumbling with Common Cause proves it, but even conservative Republicans give him high marks for his performance so far as energy boss.

Lowering Of Standards

WASHINGTON—The Environmental Morality Agency has just announced that it was lowering its moral standards for the next two years.

Fosdick Fleigeneimer told me, "We feel we can lower the moral level of the country without its becoming hazardous to anyone's health."

"But why?" I protested. "The whole idea behind the Environmental Morality Agency mandate was to clean up the political pollution in the country."

"We don't like to lower the standards," Fleigeneimer said, "but we have no choice. If we raise the levels of morality in 1974, we could cause massive unemployment on Capitol Hill in November. We also feel that Congress and the Administration need more time to study the best way of doing away with political pollution. I assure you the agency is still very concerned about the problem, but we do have to consider the costs."

"What about the public?" They were counting on higher moral standards after Watergate.

"We've done some extensive testing in our laboratories, and we've discovered that the average American can take far more lying from his government than anyone thought he could. We know that we can increase the dose of false statements and contradictions three times the present level, and people could still live with it. While cleaning up the Watergate atmosphere is an ideal goal, Congress and the President do not want to throw out the baby with the bath water."

"That's well put," I told Fleigeneimer. "But aren't you going to have to do something within the next two years to show the country you are sincere about instituting higher moral standards in the government?"

"I assure you we're doing everything we can within reason. The do-gooders want us to destroy the whole system in the name of morality. But it can't be done overnight. The important thing to remember is that we have been living very well with low morality levels for a long time. Some people have even thrived on them."

"Who sets the morality standards for the country?" I asked.

"The President of the United States. He is in the best position to know just how much morality the country can stand."

"But according to the transcripts, the President was shown to have very low moral standards. Isn't it dangerous to let one man have that much power?"

"Possibly. But as Father McLaughlin, who is the White House adviser, put it, 'Who wants a saint in the White House?'"

"That's true. But in 1968 President Nixon said he would clean up the political climate produced by the Democrats by 1972. Now it turns out the atmosphere is so bad you can choke on it."

"Nobody's perfect," Fleigeneimer said defensively.

Public Forum

To the editor:
In regard to Mrs. Phillips' letter about the play, "The Brick and the Rose," a production put on by E. B. Aycock Junior High Drama Department May 21. I feel she did not realize the profanity used was an important asset to the realization of the performance. Perhaps Mrs. Phillips doesn't realize that all Junior High students are not "naive," and none of the profane words used were new to us or the parents, and only served to enhance the setting. The play showed the bluntness and reality of the drug problem.

Her son was not forced in any way to accept the role in the play which he played. He knew the content of the play, as well as the other actors and actresses taking part, when he accepted the role of a drug addict.

Patricia Wilkerson

E. B. Aycock Junior High School

To the editor:
We are writing concerning a letter which appeared in the Public Forum on Friday, May 24th.

We are shocked and deeply appalled that any learned person should take such a narrow-minded view of "The Brick and the Rose." We feel that the entire play was culturally enhancing. The language in the play was part of the play; it cannot be taken out of context. The students cannot be kept away from reality by being locked in an ivory tower. We are advocating the use of such language as was displayed in the play, but it does not become dirty until it is so construed by the viewer as such.

It has been said, that language is the vehicle of our society, i.e., it is a means to an end. The end results sought by the cast and directors of "The Brick and the Rose" was to show the physical, mental, and spiritual dangers of drugs.

The statement as to the naivete of junior high school students will not be dignified by a reply.

If one person viewing the presentation was saved from drugs by it, we feel that all the time and effort put into the play was not in vain.

Funds Mean Taxes

By BOB COOPER
Associated Press Writer
DYCUSBURG, Ky. (AP) — Dear Uncle Sam:

You can bet your bottom dollar in the revenue sharing barrel that there's a Dycusburg. We even have a zip code, our own post office, a grocery, a restaurant and two churches!

It's just that we don't want the $652 you think you owe us. In fact, we don't want any state revenue sharing money, either. It isn't that we're so rich that we couldn't use a few extra bucks. We're just smart enough to know it would cost us in the long run.

Respectfully,
The 89 residents of Dycusburg.

This letter was never really written, but it sums up the feeling in this tiny rural community on the Cumberland River in far western Kentucky.

The federal government, seeking to find out why 242 towns like Dycusburg, zip code 42037, have not qualified for their 1974 revenue sharing funds, has sent six letters here to get information about how the town's $652 share would be spent. All were returned unopened, as unclaimed letters.

Postmistress Rhea Stinnett said, "I asked around, did all I could, but nobody would claim them so I sent them back."

The first of the letters was addressed to the town clerk, Mrs. Stinnett said, and Dycusburg doesn't have one. In fact, it doesn't have a mayor, a town council or any other kind of official anymore.

Dycusburg did form a town board last summer just to deal with revenue sharing, but after examining all the angles, it let the board automatically dissolve last fall.

"They understood that state revenue sharing money had to be used for street repair," John Howard said. "The state already takes care of our streets and if we took their money, they might stop. We wouldn't have enough to do it ourselves. We'd lose more than we'd Al Capone, America's Number One public enemy of prohibition today lost his appeal for release from the Federal penitentiary in Atlanta, Ga.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals here denied the appeal of the former gangster chief of Chicago for release from the penitentiary on a writ of habeas corpus where he is serving a ten year sentence for evasion of income tax laws.

The former beer and liquor baron sought the writ on the contention that the offenses for which he was convicted were barred by the three-year statute of limitations.

The senior class of the Greenville High School made a contribution of $25 to the Wright Memorial Loan Fund of the East Carolina Teacher's College. They go on record as having the unique distinction among high schools of making a gift to another institution.

The formal presentation of the gift was part of the graduating ceremonies at the high school.

Strength For Today

IS GOD AT WORK?
Anyone who reads history cannot fail to be impressed, and appalled, by the dismal record of atrocities which it presents. And these make one wonder whether God is really "on the job." If He is indeed loving in nature, and not a mere impersonal force far removed from us in the universe, how could He allow such things to happen?

Yet when we think in terms of centuries, we see that the race does progress, and conditions do improve, if only slightly and gradually. Those who believe in eternity feel quite certain that there will come a day when all the good that has ever been achieved will be rewarded and all the evil perpetrated will be punished.

Queen Anne of Austria expressed it well on one occasion when she said to the great Cardinal of France, Armand Richelieu, "Sir Cardinal, God may not settle accounts every day, but He settles them all at last."

Oil Prices Can Mean A Deficit

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — While the United States turned in a net trade surplus of nearly $93 million in April, it is far too early to say that deficits are behind us. Not with oil prices as they are.

No matter how encouraging the country's exports look, some trade analysts look for a net imbalance for the entire year. Blame it not on export weakness, they say, but on import prices, especially for oil.

The Morgan Guaranty, which closely follows the situation, foresees a 1974 trade deficit of as much as $5.5 billion, the unhappy consequence of an increase of $16 billion or more in the cost of oil imports.

Side from the problem— and realistically, of course, it cannot be put aside—the U.S. trade position has improved in several categories during the past year, remarkably so in some respects.

Many a food buyer won't view the situation with the same joy as might a government bureaucrat, but a good part of the improvement is due to a huge leap in the value of agricultural exports from this, the most highly industrialized nation in the world.

In 1972 the United States sent abroad $3 billion more agricultural goods than it imported. In 1973 the comparable figure was $9.4 billion, and in the first quarter of 1974 the agricultural surplus rose to an annual rate of $13 billion.

While that first-quarter could very well fall off to a full-year rate roughly the same as last year's, it does indicate the preeminence of the United States as the world's breadbasket, even if some of the increase is due to inflation.

Almost every other nation on earth has a greater proportion of its citizens engaged in agriculture, but none can even approach the United States in productive capacity and efficiency.

Fortunately for the trade balance, but less happily for the American consumer, food prices are increasingly determined by a world rather than domestic market. If world demand pushes up prices, Americans must pay too.

Another encouraging segment of the trade figures is finished manufactures, especially of heavy, capital items. In 1972, finished manufactures showed a net trade deficit of $1 billion. In 1973, a $1 billion surplus showed up.

Since the third quarter of 1973 the surplus in this area has been growing, and during the first three months of this year was at an annual rate of $6.1 billion.

Aided by a dollar devaluation that Morgan Guaranty puts at 19 per cent in about four years, U.S. trade strength actually has improved except for that big but — oil.

All by itself oil is tipping the balance of trade, and not nearly so much because of its volume as its price. Last month, said Commerce Secretary Frederick Dent, imported oil averaged $9.84 a barrel, versus $2.78 a year ago.

LAUGHS WIN EMMYS—Mary Tyler Moore of the Saturday night series and Alan Alda, the Army surgeon of "M-A-S-H" are in the proper spirit as they pose with Emmys they won as best actress and actor of a series. (AP Wirephoto)

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A poignant drama tracing a black woman's path from slavery to the civil rights movement and two zany comedies were the big winners of television's "Best of the Year" awards.

Cicely Tyson was named actress of the year for her performance in the title role of "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman," and the show was named as television's outstanding special of 1973.

All of the performers, writers and directors competing for the newly established "Best of the Year" awards previously were announced Emmy winners.

"Thanks to all the Jane Pittmans of the world," Miss Tyson said during the 28th Emmy Awards, telecast by NBC from Hollywood's Pantages Theater. She won over Mildred Natwick of "The Snoop Sisters."

Alan Alda, the anti-establishment Army surgeon of "M-A-S-H," and Mary Tyler Moore, who portrays the bouyant assistant producer of a television news show on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," won as actor and actress of the year for series.

They beat out Telly Savalas of "Kojak" and Michael Learned of "The Waltons," Emmy winners as performers in dramatic series.

"M-A-S-H," an irreverent spoof of the Army set in wartime Korea, was selected the outstanding comedy series. The British production of "Upstairs, Downstairs" was named the outstanding drama series.

Hal Holbrook was named actor of the year for his portrayal of the skipper in "Pueblo." He won over Oscar winner William Holden of "The Blue Knight."

Michael Moriarty and Joanna Miles were named supporting actor and actress of the year for "The Glass Menagerie," which starred Katharine Hepburn.

"Columbo" was picked as the outstanding limited series.

"The Carol Burnett Show," and its star, Miss Burnett, won Emmys for the second consecutive year as the outstanding music-variety series.

Lily Tomlin and her special, "Lily," were honored for the best comedy-variety special.

CECILY AND EMMYS—Cecily Tyson, star of "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman," holds the Emmys she won last night from the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences. She won statuettes as best lead actress in a drama and also as best actress in a special or limited series. (AP Wirephoto)

"Marlo Thomas and Friends in Free to Be ... You and Me" was named the outstanding children's special.

Robert Butler was named series director of the year for "The Blue Knight" and Dwight Hemion won specials director of the year for "Barbra Streisand ... and Other Musical Instruments."

Emmys for outstanding achievement in sports programming went to "ABC's Wide World of Sports" and to its host, Jim McKay.

"We'd have to defend ourselves. We'll tap their telephones, audit their income taxes, break into their offices and steal their doctors' records."

"That should do it," I said. Fleigenheimer said, "You have to keep in mind political expediency in Washington must always have priority over unrealistic moral standards. Otherwise everyone in this town would be out of a job."

Daytime TV Is Special World

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — I'm ashamed to admit it, but until a few days ago I'd never seen those daytime shows that got their own Emmy awards salute Tuesday. However, a bad cold helped me see the light.

I repaired to bed shortly after noon with a high fever. I turned on the TV set and saw two daytime shows before falling asleep. One was "Let's Make a Deal," the other "The Guiding Light."

Mrs. Tidwell, the lady down the hall, had told me earlier "Let's Make a Deal" was a soap opera and "Guiding Light" a game show. I think that's what she said.

As drama, "Let's Make a Deal" seemed one of those off-Broadway things where surrealism, blank verse and refrigerators blend together in a neoclassical setting that at times seemed unreal.

I guess you have to watch it without a fever, but no less than Sinbad Brittle, New York's most prestigious drama critic, has called it "profoundly moving ... a laugh riot and a romp."

The chapter I saw was set in a studio, apparently to set up a play-within-a-play concept. People were dressed in strange garb. One man came disguised as a mail box, a clever commentary on our postal system if ever there was one. But he got no letters.

The principal actor wore a plaid jacket. He said, "Hello, you all. Mr. Cameraman, would you do me a favor? Just sweep that camera down this front row of beautiful ladies who didn't get selected for the trading floor but are still smiling and take a look at them."

He played guessing games with several "contestants," this apparently being a social commentary on competition. When they won, they hopped up and down, apparently commenting on the state of feet.

As far as "Guiding Light" goes, it wasn't half as thrilling as I thought game shows are supposed to be. Most of the contestants spent the time hollering at each other, sighing or crying.

One lady even said, "Mike, I think you owe mother an apology."

Apparently, one contestant didn't even show up, because the other lady said, "It was just awful the way he came down and left without saying a word to us."

There was no audience, no cheering and yelling like the game shows I used to know. For that matter, no prizes were given away.

I think Mrs. Tidwell gave me bum advice on both shows. I bet she doesn't even watch them.

FISHY PRIZE

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Oliver Woods, Conway, Mich., who caught a 39-pound chinook salmon from Little Traverse Bay, was one of 90 Michigan fishermen presented with "Master Angler's Awards" for the best catches of 1973.

The Department of Natural Resources, which presented the awards, said Woods' catch was the largest reported all year.

Glenn Turner's Jury Showing Signs of Split

By F.T. MACFEELY
Associated Press Writer
JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A federal jury that showed signs of being split on the issues of mail fraud and finances went into a sixth day of deliberations today in the case against Glenn W. Turner and seven business associates.

First on its schedule was hearing the rest of the testimony given last Oct. 29 and 30 by Larry W. Toler, who was secretary-treasurer of Turner's Koscot Interplanetary Inc. cosmetics firm in 1969.

Jurors asked to hear this testimony about the financial operations, and a court clerk and court reporter began reading it Tuesday.

Toler testified he found records so confusing he couldn't tell what Koscot's financial position was, was but he estimated it had a "negative working capital of $1.5 million."

Earlier in the day, jurors questioned U.S. District Judge Gerald B. Tjoflat about the legal aspects of mail fraud charges against the defendants.

The judge repeated about 20 minutes of the charge on the law which he gave before turning the case over to the jury last Thursday.

What may have puzzled some jurors was that two companies that did very little business by mail would be charged with mail fraud.

Before he was put under the gag rule by Tjoflat at the start of the trial last September, Turner claimed he was accused of mail fraud because the government couldn't attack his businesses any other way.

In the indictment returned in May 1973 at Tampa, Turner and six others — Harry B. Atkinson, W. Leroy Beale, Clyde C. Cobb, Jess O. Hickman, Malcolm A. Julian and Hobart Wilder — were charged with 26 counts of mail fraud and one of conspiracy based on mail fraud.

The other defendant, Ben U. Bunting, was omitted from six of the mail fraud charges.

All defendants live in the Orlando, Fla., area, where Turner's business are based.

Much of the testimony by 170 government witnesses concerned tactics used by the defendants aboard chartered planes known as "go-tours" and at "golden opportunity" meetings around the country.

Witnesses said prospects were high-pressured into buying $4,500 distributorships in Koscot and the motivational company, Dare to be Great.

St. Clair Says High Court Should Not Intervene

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's Watergate lawyer says the Supreme Court should not intervene in the legal battle over White House tapes.

James D. St. Clair said Tuesday that the dispute over tapes subpoenaed by special prosecutor Leon Jaworski should be decided by the U.S. Court of Appeals before any involvement of the Supreme Court, which Jaworski has sought.

Meanwhile, Jaworski said there is evidence that Nixon probably discussed with aides use of the Internal Revenue Service to audit and harass political enemies, and he asked U.S. District Court Judge John Sirica to give him a White House tape which he believes contains that conversation.

Discussing Jaworski's Supreme Court request with reporters, St. Clair said: "Cases that are concerned with constitutional issues ought to be carefully considered by the courts, and I think it would be appropriate that these matters not be short-cutted."

He said he would so advise the court on Thursday.

A U.S. District Court has ruled that Nixon must surrender the tapes and St. Clair asked the appeals court last Friday to overturn the ruling.

On the same day, Jaworski asked the Supreme Court to assume jurisdiction, which would mean bypassing the appeals court.

In papers filed with U.S. District Court, Jaworski said there is evidence that the White House presented lists of individuals to the Internal Revenue Service for harassment and that "the White House unlawfully attempted to have the IRS investigate" former Democratic party chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien.

Jaworski asked Sirica to reconsider an earlier order allowing the White House to withhold part of the tape of a Sept. 15, 1972, conversation involving Nixon and former aides H. R. Haldeman and John W. Dean III. Jaworski said both Dean and Haldeman testified before the Senate Watergate committee that the IRS was discussed at the meeting.

In other Watergate developments:

—Francis X. Carroll, former Washington representative of a Pennsylvania dairy cooperative, pleaded guilty to aiding his boss in making an illegal $50,000 corporate contribution to Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

—Evangelist Billy Graham said he could "not but deplore the moral tone implied" in the transcripts of Nixon's conversations about Watergate. "What comes through in these tapes is not the man I have known for many years," he said.

—Joseph J. Connolly, the lawyer who headed the prosecution of former Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst, resigned from the Watergate special prosecutor's office. A source in the prosecutor's office said Connolly felt Kleindienst should have been charged with perjury, rather than being allowed to plead guilty to a misdemeanor.

Could Find Old Galleon

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—A Spanish galleon believed to have sank 450 years ago with a large quantity of gold aboard may be in the area that will be searched first in a planned archeological survey of South Carolina waters.

The University of South Carolina Institute of Archeology and Anthropology announced the survey Tuesday. It said it would begin around Winyah Bay in Georgetown County. Eventually, the survey is expected to cover all underwater areas of the state.

Wade Quattlebaum has told the university archeologists he discovered the galleon several years ago and said he found gold coins and jars in the wreckage. He asked about but did not receive a state salvage permit. Officials said he did not want to reveal the vessel's location.

Quattlebaum also said a second ship is nearby.

Dr. Robert L. Stephenson, state archeologist, said the galleon, if intact, would be one of the most important discoveries in history aside from the gold.

The university has contracted with a Florida firm, Norman Scott's Expeditions Unlimited of Pompano Beach, to do the actual underwater work.

Billy Graham Deplores Tone Of Nixon Transcripts

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rev. Billy Graham says the transcripts of President Nixon's conversations about Watergate are "profoundly disturbing."

"One cannot but deplore the moral tone implied in these papers," Graham said Tuesday, ending a three-week silence about the released texts he had imposed until he had time to examine them himself.

A long-time personal friend and spiritual adviser to President Nixon, Graham said that "what comes through in these tapes is not the man I have known many years. Other mutual friends have made the same observation."

But the evangelist said Nixon remains "my friend, and I have no intention of forsaking him now. Nor will I judge him as a man in totality on the basis of these relatively few hours of conversation under such severe pressure."

"But I would be neither his friend nor God's servant if I did not point out the righteousness of God's demands at such a time as this."

Graham telephoned his statement from his Montreat, N.C., home.

Graham said he last had spoken with Nixon about three weeks ago by telephone while conducting a crusade in Phoenix, Ariz. "I got the call in my hotel room one morning about 6:30 a.m.," he said. "He just wanted to say hello."

Graham said he since has spent several days reading the White House-released text, and had "thought about it and prayed about it" before issuing his statement.

"I just wish the whole thing had never happened," he said.

His statement said a "nation confused for years by the teaching of situational ethics now finds itself dismayed by those in government who apparently practiced it."

"We have lost our moral compass. We must get it back."

Graham said while "we have no other president's transcripts by which to compare" to Nixon's conversations, reading them has been a "profoundly disturbing and disappointing experience."

Although "we know that other presidents have used equally objectionable language — it does not make it right. 'Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain' is a commandment which has not been suspended, regardless of any need to release tensions."

Graham did not mention the Rev. John McLaughlin, a Jesuit priest on Nixon's White House staff who has defended the President's use of profanity as an outgrowth of a need to release tensions. But he used virtually the same words, and in doing so disputed McLaughlin.

Father McLaughlin's stance has created controversy within his Jesuit order. On Tuesday, the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano criticized priests who become "trapped within the system" and who turn away "from the Christianity which was your stimulus and original aim." Although the story did not mention Father McLaughlin by name, Jesuit sources said it was relevant to McLaughlin's case.

Graham said the basic, firm moral law is clearly stated in the Ten Commandments, and he added:

"If this nation is destroyed, it will be the result of moral decadence within. Therefore this should be a time to come to our senses, to return to God and his law. It would be nothing less than hypocrisy to call for a moral housecleaning at the White House unless we are willing to do the same at your house and my house."

"Our repudiation of wrongdoing and our condemnation of evil, however, must be tempered by compassion for the wrongdoers. Many a stone is being cast by persons whose own lives could not bear like scrutiny. Therefore, we dare not be self-righteous."

Mallory Given Alumni Award

JAMES B. MALLORY

FORK UNION, Va.—James B. Mallory, Dean of Men at East Carolina University at Greenville, N. C., has been named recipient of the Distinguished Alumni Achievement Award, sponsored by the Washington, D. C. chapter of the Fork Union Military Academy Alumni Association.

Mallory attended the academy at Fork Union in 1936 and 1937, before attending the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

The ECU dean is one of the first men to receive the Distinguished Alumni Achievement Award, Fork Union spokesmen said, noting that the citation is designed to recognize Fork Union men who have distinguished themselves in various fields since leaving the school.

Mallory, who won five varsity sports letters during one at Fork Union—in Football, Baseball, Basketball, Track and Tennis—was cited for the award for his work in the field of athletics.

A citation honoring Mallory will be placed on permanent display at the school in recognition of his achievement and to serve as an inspiration to the students currently attending the school, academy spokesmen said.

A Lawrenceville, Virginia, native, Mallory served in the Air Force following his graduation from UNC, then coached football and baseball at Burlington High School and Elon College and played professional baseball with Washington, the Giants, and the Cardinals, before coming to East Carolina in 1953 as baseball coach.

Mallory, named Dean of Men at ECU in 1958, continued his coaching career at the school until 1962, producing some outstanding baseball teams.

Mallory, in 1962, was awarded the Will Wynne award by the Raleigh Hot Stove League. The award is presented annually to the North Carolinian who has contributed most to the sport of baseball.

Politicking Investigated

RALEIGH (AP) — James T. Johnson, North Carolina director of the Farmers Home Administration, is under investigation for alleged overt politicking in connection with his federal position, a Raleigh newspaper reported today.

The News and Observer said an official of the U.S. Department of Agriculture confirmed the inquiry was being made. Sources said no criminal violations were involved but that allegations of political activity and possible Hatch Act violations were reviewed.

Sidney Aaronson, the USDA's inspector general, told the newspaper, "There were allegations of some irregularities. An inquiry was conducted and a report filed with the FHA's national office" in Washington. Aaronson did not elaborate further.

Johnson, contacted at his Raleigh office Tuesday, said he was unaware of the investigation.

The Farmers Home Administration is the lending agency of the USDA.

Protests Ban For Handicapped Girls

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — Police Chief James Howerton, irate over an American Legion Auxiliary policy barring handicapped girls from participation in Girls State, has mailed in his paid-up membership card.

Howerton, a former Legion post commander, also wrote a letter of protest to National American Legion Commander Robert E. L. Eaton of Indianapolis, Ind.

Howerton said he took the action after reading a news report that the auxiliary did not intend to change its policy for this year's "Democracy in Action" program June 15-23 at Capital University in Columbus. A Columbus school teacher had urged that the ban on handicapped girls be lifted.

An auxiliary spokesman explained that the rule against participation of handicapped girls was based on the belief that they would not be able to keep up with other girls in the week-long exercise in government.

"As a member of the American Legion I am returning my paid-up membership card as a symbol of protest in behalf of those who cannot protest on their own," Howerton said in his letter to Eaton.

He also protested that "we, as an organization, can condone excluding a child with sightless eyes, twisted limbs or unhearing ears from participating in our form of democracy."

"That we can say that the Constitution for which we fought to preserve does not apply to you because your body is not perfect, and we cannot take the extra time to push your wheelchair or guide you through an unlighted room.

"That we have reached that point in our society where compassion has been replaced with indifference.

"I would remind you that many of our own are handicapped because they believed strongly enough in our form of government that every person has the right to reach for the brightest star in the heaven... the right to reach for that star should not be denied to anyone."

Miss Rhodes On Honors List

FERRUM, Va.—Miss Karen Wolcott Rhodes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin M. Wolcott, 1720 Forest Hills Drive, Greenville, was named to the honors list at Ferrum College.

The Honors List at Ferrum is composed of students who have received grades of "B" or better in all their academic subjects for the semester and have an average of 3.0 or better out of a possible 4.0.

Corn Production Costs Rising, But Yield Good

By SANDRA PENFIELD
ECU Student Journalist
The cost of producing corn will increase as much as $30 per acre this year, but Pitt County's yield should be as high as ever, according to Henry Riddick, Associate Extension Agent for Pitt County.
Pitt ranks as the second-largest corn-producing county, economically speaking, in North Carolina, having produced an estimated $14,690,000 worth in 1973, he said.

Riddick said that the increasing cost of farm equipment and fertilizer, along with the nitrogen shortage will make it difficult for the farmer, but will not have a foreseeable effect on the level of production.

"Rising prices will not stop the farmer from growing as much corn," Riddick commented. "They actually cannot afford not to stay in production, because of the fixed production costs."

Riddick added that farmers probably will continue to see excellent returns at harvest time, which with adequate rainfall, should be the last of June.

Referring to the nitrogen shortage, Riddick said that farmers will plant with whatever amount is available.

Projected price ranges for this year's crop have not yet been officially computed. Riddick suggested that corn would be placed on the market at approximately $1.75 to $2 a bushel. The 1973 figures showed the average prices ranged from as low as $1.70 per bushel in August to as high as $3 per bushel in March.

This increase in price was realized by grain storage. As the supply dwindles after harvest time, farmers sell stored grain at an increased price, Riddick explained.

Of the 330,000 acres of land available for farming in Pitt County, 70,000 acres were planted in corn in 1973, Riddick reflected.

Fiber Glass For Marching Bands

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — The old brass band ain't what it used to be — and, you may not know it, but it hasn't been for 17 years.

School marching bands have been switching to fiber glass sousaphones and one manufacturer here, C.G. Conn, now reports fiber glass as "top brass" in sousaphone sales.

At Michigan University, where the marching band made the switch 17 years ago, Director George Cavender likes the lighter weight of the new instruments since moving with on-field formations is as critical as the music.

WOMEN IN CHURCH
ATLANTA (UPI)—Women in the Presbyterian Church in the United States are pressing that denomination for a theological reflection on the role of women in the church.

MORSE WINS—Former U.S. Sen. Wayne Morse, 73, took his first step back to the Senate Tuesday, winning the Democratic nomination in the Oregon Primary. He'll oppose Bob Packwood, the Republican who unseated him in 1968. (AP Wirephoto)

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina hog prices were irregular today. Tops of 27.25-28.25 Kinston and Lumberton; 26.50-27.00 Rocky Mount; 26.50 Salisbury; 26.00 Wilson and High Falls; 25.50-26.00 Tarboro and Bethel.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina f.o.b. dock broilers: Market steady with firm undertone noted for next week. Supplies adequate and demand good. Estimated slaughter 1,212,000 head.

North Carolina hens: Market steady on heavy type. Supplies fully ample and demand slow. Prices paid for hens over seven pounds, at farm, 10 cents.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) —North Carolina egg markets were steady Tuesday. Supplies adequate, demand good. Weighted average prices of small lot sales of consumer grade eggs delivered in cartons nearby outlets: Grade A large whites 50.73, medium whites 43.19, small whites 35.54.

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices settled lower in dull trading in the stock market today.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 4.62 at 809.68, and losers moved out to a narrow lead over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts trace the absence of investor enthusiasm to the prospect of a prolonged period of economic belt tightening as the Federal Reserve Board battles inflation.

Thomas & Betts was the most-active NYSE issue, down 1/2 at 41. A 150,000-share block traded at that price.

Aluminum issues showed broad declines traced by analysts to concern over moves by Jamaica, and possibly other countries, toward a greater share of bauxite mining operations and revenues.

Alcan Aluminum was down 1/4 at 29%; Alcoa, 3/4 at 41 1/4; Anaconda, 1 1/2 at 22 1/2; Kaiser Aluminum, 1 1/2 at 18%; and Reynolds, Metals, 1 1/2 at 19 1/2.

A.H. Robins was up 1 1/2 at 17 1/4, rebounding from a 2 1/2-point drop Tuesday. The company said today it would continue to market an intrauterine device, reported to have caused complications in a small number of women, and added that even if it had decided to withdraw the product, it would have cut the company's earnings per share by no more than 2 cents this year.

On the American Stock Exchange, the volume leader was National Kinney, unchanged at 6 1/2. The Amex' 11 a.m. market-value index was up .39 at 82.45. The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks declined .02 to 46.47.

Hopes Build New France

PARIS (AP)—President Valery Giscard d'Estaing met for the first time with his new government today and outlined his hopes for liberalizing the administration and changing the face of France in line with the promises he made during the electoral campaign.

"We are here to change France and not to make a career, neither you, nor me. I am counting on you to guide France and organize the necessary changes," he told the ministers.

Giscard d'Estaing said that first priority would be given to the fight against inflation and a transformation of French society.

He called for a cabinet meeting on June 12 to make a thorough examination of "the whole of the problems posed by the recovery of France in a tortured situation, with priority for righting of our external balances and the fight against inflation."

Michel Poniatowski, minister of interior in the new government, relayed Giscard d'Estaing's remarks to newsmen from the steps of the Elysee Palace. He said the new president asked the ministers to reduce their staffs as much as possible and had promised to cut the Elysee Palace staff from 464 to less than 300.

Reds Attack Mobile Homes An Outpost

PHNOM PENH Cambodia (AP)—Khmer Rouge insurgents attacked a government outpost seven miles southeast of Phnom Penh in a new effort to put pressure on the Cambodian capital, a military source said today.

The source said Khmer Rouge insurgents hit Robah Angkanh from three sides—north, east and south. Details of the fighting only 1 1/2 miles east of suburban Takhmu were not immediately known.

Two government outposts in the area were evacuated in the past two days. Field reports said 100 government soldiers were reported killed or missing but that 12 escaped through enemy lines.

Government troops launched an immediate counterattack to oust the rebels from an area five to six miles southeast of Phnom Penh, near the abandoned outposts, the source said.

Military observers believed the insurgents were trying to gain a foothold close to the capital, apparently to bombard Phnom Penh with rockets and artillery.

Further east along Highway 1, government forces continued a drive to reopen the road between Phnom Penh and the ferry crossing town of Neak Luong, the Cambodian command said.

Mobile Homes Being Robbed

Pitt County Sheriff's Department is investigating three break-ins at rural mobile homes that resulted in the theft of a variety of home appliances.

A break-in at the residence of Betty Lockemy on Rt. 2, Box 198, Greenville was reported at 4:03 Monday afternoon and resulted in the larceny of a radio, stereo, tape player, and two speakers with a total value of $1,500.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that the rear door of the mobile home had apparently been forced open to gain entrance.

The sheriff said that Frank Smith Jr. of Rt. 1, Box 289, Ayden, reported that his mobile home was entered sometime between 8 a.m. and 12:45 p.m. Tuesday and a television, toaster, radio and amplifier, valued at some $300, was stolen. Smith also reported the theft of $50 in change.

The theft of a radio, valued at approximately $50, was reported by Mrs. Robert Briley of Rt. 1, Box 277 near Winterville around 4:45 p.m. Tuesday.

Sheriff Tyson said that entrance to the mobile home was gained after breaking open a window. He added that storage drawers in the home had been rifled and the contents were scattered on the inside of the mobile unit. Damage to the home was estimated at approximately $50.

The sheriff cautioned mobile home residents to be sure they lock their homes and to report strangers seen in the mobile park areas to the Sheriff's Department. He said that the department maintains a patrol to investigate such reports.

Aaron Finds He's Not Through Chasing Babe Ruth's Records

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Hank Aaron is not through chasing Babe Ruth, it seems. And you thought it was all over when he hit No. 715 earlier this year.

In April, the Atlanta slugger hit the shot heard 'round the world by surpassing Ruth's famous 714 lifetime home run figure. But there was another Ruthian record that even Aaron himself didn't know about—730 homers including World Series and All-Star games.

He tied it Tuesday night with a homer that beat the Philadelphia Phillies 2-1 in 10 innings.

"Oh, no, you're kidding!" Aaron exclaimed upon learning of the feat. "I thought that I had gotten rid of Ruth's records once and for all. I guess the Ruth thing will be with me for the rest of my life."

The blast, ninth this year and 722nd of his career in regular season games, ended a longball drought for the classy Brave hitter. He had hit a baseball out of the park since May 12.

In the National League's other games, the Los Angeles Dodgers routed the St. Louis Cardinals 11-5; the Cincinnati Reds tripped the New York Mets 7-2 and the Houston Astros trimmed the Montreal Expos 8-4.

Aaron's homer over the center field fence came off Philadelphia right-hander Jim Lonborg on a "hard slider." Lonborg, the 1967 American League Cy Young award winner, gave up four hits while walking none and striking out two.

Dodgers 11, Cards 5

Home runs by Ken McMullen and Joe Ferguson keyed a 20-hit attack that propelled Los Angeles over St. Louis.

Both homers, McMullen's second of the baseball season and Ferguson's fifth, were two-run blasts off one-time Dodger pitcher Alan Foster, who was chased after 2 2-3 innings.

American Legion Gets Second Straight Win

Greenville's American Legion baseball team rolled to an 11-1 victory over the Greenville Pros yesterday. It was the second straight win for the Legionaires.

Again, three Greenville pitchers combined for the victory, giving up only three hits. Mike Belton started, going three innings, giving up one hit and the lone run. He walked four and fanned two. Gary Averette went the next three, allowing no hits, walking one and striking out two. Chris Manning finished the final frame, giving up two hits, as he did not strike out or walk anyone.

The Legion pushed over three runs in the first inning to take the lead. Kelly Heath walked and Griff Garner also got a free ticket. Both stole up a base and Robert Brinkley singled in Heath. Garner scored on a passed ball, and after Macon Moye walked, Al Heath singled in Brinkley.

The Legion added four more in the second. Belton walked, and Kelly Heath singled. Garner reached on a fielder's choice that left Belton safe on an error. Brinkley singled in Belton, and Heath scored when Moye's fielder's choice got Brinkley at second. Al Heath reached on an error, scoring Garner, and a double steal scored Moye.

Three more scored in the fourth. Kelly Heath opened with a double and Garner walked. Moye walked and Al Heath reached on a grounder that was errored when it was played to home, scoring Kelly Heath. Keith Jones sacrificed in Garner and Jack Jenkins reached on an error, scoring Moye.

The final Greenville run came in the sixth. Brinkley singled for the third hit, took second on a passed ball and third on a wild pitch. He scored on Al Heath's single.

The lone Pro run came in the second. John Lopez walked and Robert Carraway and Grant Jarman did too, loading the bases. A walk to Terry Talbott let the run come in.

The Legion will be in Wilson for a triple-round-robin affair this weekend.

Grace Handed First Defeat

Oakmont Baptist handed Grace Free Will Baptist its first loss of the season last night in the Church Softball League, and First Christian picked up its first win of the year.

The First Christian win came in the opener on Field One, as they downed People's Bible, 7-2. People's got both of its runs in the top of the first. Christian came back with two in the second to tie it, then pushed over the go-ahead run in the third. They added two more in the fourth and two in the sixth to wrap it up.

Oakmont nipped Grace, 9-8, in the second game. Grace got one in the top of the first, but Oakmont came up with three on a homer by Singleton. Grace tied it up with two in the top of the second, but Oakmont went back out with three in the bottom of the inning. Grace rallied for five in the fifth, taking an 8-6 lead. But Oakmont scored three runs in the seventh to gain the win.

In the final game, St. James rolled to a 25-3 win over Arlington Street. St. James got four in the first with Whiteford homering. They added three more in the second with a home run by Owens. The Methodists added 12 in the third with Board getting a homer. One scored in the fourth and five more came over in the fifth. Arlington got all three of its runs in the fifth.

pushed over three for a 5-2 lead. They added one in the fourth and five in the fifth with R. Langley homering. Black Jack got one in the fourth, another in the fifth and four in the sixth, but couldn't catch up.

The second game saw Memorial Baptist take a 10-5 win over University-Mt. Pleasant. Memorial got five in the first then came back with four more in the second. They added one in the fourth to finish up their scoring. U-MP got three in the third, one in the fifth and one in the seventh.

St. Gabriel took a 21-15 win over Immanuel in the final game. St. Gabriel got one in the first, but Immanuel came up with six in their half of the frame. St. Gabriel rallied for seven in the second, then pushed over three more in the third. They added five in the fourth, one in the sixth and four in the seventh to wrap it up. Immanuel came up with one in the third, three in the fourth on C. McNeil's homer, four in the fifth and one in the seventh.

Jollie In 4-2 Victory

Jollie nipped Hamilton, 4-2, yesterday, in a Pitt-Martins Semi-Pro game.

Hamilton scored first, getting a run in the first frame. P. Whitfield singled, moving up when a pickoff attempt was errored. Pete Whitfield singled him in.

Jollie came up with all four of its runs in the fourth. L. Ross singled and J. Moore walked. B. Bateman hit into a fielder's choice, getting Ross at third. C. Coburn doubled to score Moore, and E. Coburn's double scored both Bateman and C. Coburn. A passed ball moved E. Coburn to third, and he scored when the ball was errored on the throw to try and get him.

The other Hamilton run came in the sixth. Pete Whitfield walked, then stole second. E. Ayers doubled him in.

Jollie is now 5-3 in league play.

Fire Fighters Down Kiwanis

The Fire Fighters nipped University Kiwanis, 8-7, in a 12-inning affair at Guy Smith Stadium last night in the Senior Babe Ruth League.

In other action, Ayden-Grifton downed Taff Office Equipment, 4-2, while the Washington-Farmville game was postponed as the Farmville team is still not ready to begin play. No details on the AG-Taff game were made available to The Daily Reflector.

The Fire Fighters pushed over four runs in the first inning to take the lead. Mike Sutton walked and Danny Norris reached on a fielder's choice. Randy Adams singled, scoring Sutton. Gary Cowan walked, loading the bases and Joey Baggett walked to force over Norris. Greg Coward doubled, driving in both Adams and Cowan, but Baggett was thrown out trying to score.

The Kiwanis got their first run in the second. Doug Causey singled and stole second. Bill Ellington reached on a walk and Rick Harrell reached on a fielder's choice. Causey then stole home with the run.

The Kiwanis got another in the fourth. Causey singled, moved to third on Ellington's hit and again stole home.

In the fifth, the Kiwanis added another. Greg McGlohan walked and moved to second on an out. He took third on an error and scored when Ken Tetterton singled.

The tying run came in the seventh. Steve Fuchs walked and stole second, scoring when Tetterton reached on an error.

It stayed 4-4 until the 12th, when the Kiwanis pushed over three runs to take a 7-4 lead. Fuchs doubled and took third on a passed ball. Tetterton reached

Going Straight Isn't Hurting Perry As He Chalks Up 8th Win

Gaylord Perry says he's now on a grease-free diet, but his victory column hasn't lost any weight.

"I'm just not using the greaseball anymore, not since the crackdown," said Perry, whose bread-and-butter pitch used to be more butter than bread.

But going straight hasn't hindered Perry's effectiveness.

Tuesday night, the 35-year-old Perry became the winningest pitcher in the major leagues this year when he checked Texas on five hits and the Cleveland Indians blanked the Rangers 8-0.

Since an opening day loss to the Yankees, Perry has been as unhittable as a greaseball, building an eight-game winning streak.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Boston Red Sox clubbed the Minnesota Twins 9-5; the New York Yankees edged the Chicago White Sox 3-

2 in 10 innings; the Kansas City Royals downed the Baltimore Orioles 9-5 in 11 innings, the Milwaukee Brewers stopped the California Angels 6-2 and the Detroit Tigers beat the Oakland A's 3-1.

Tigers 3, A's 1

Detroit's Gary Sutherland raised his 1974 homer count from one to three, providing the difference against the defending World Champions.

Sutherland connected for solo shots in the fourth and sixth, helping Woody Fryman, 1-3, to his first victory of the season.

Royals 9, Orioles 5, 11 innings

Cookie Rojas' grand-slam homer in the 11th inning surprised himself and the Orioles and gave Kansas City the victory.

Red Sox 9, Twins 5

Slumping Dick McAuliffe triggered a decisive five-run fifth inning with a homer and the red-hot Red Sox rolled to their ninth victory in their last 10 games.

Pepsi-Cola In Romp To Victory

Pepsi-Cola rolled to a 12-4 victory over the Graniteers yesterday in the Tar Heel Little League.

The win boosted the Pepsi record to 4-3 on the year, while the Graniteers fell off to 2-5.

Pepsi pushed over a pair of runs in the first inning. Fred Matney led off with a walk and Mark Shank doubled. Mickey McGrath walked, loading them up. David McClanahan reached on a fielder's choice with Matney scoring on an error. Rickey Sutton then singled in Shank for the 2-0 lead.

The Graniteers came back with three in the second frame. Mike Tucker walked, as did Mike Haut. Jamie Byrd walked, loading them up, and Mike James singled to score Tucker.

A hit by Miccah Dixon scored Haut and Stuart Satterthwaite walked, forcing in Byrd for a 3-2 lead.

Pepsi came right back with four in the third to take the lead for good. Shank led off, tying it up with a home run. McClanahan followed with a single and Mike Campbell doubled. Sutton singled in McClanahan and an error let both Campbell and Sutton score, making it 6-3.

Pepsi got another run in the fourth, as Shank hit his second straight homer, upping the lead to 7-3.

In the fifth, Pepsi added five more runs. Scott Dupree singled and Matney got a hit. Jeff Wilson doubled to score Dupree and Shank reached on an error, scoring both Matney and Wilson. McGrath walked and Sutton singled in Shank. An error let McGrath come in with the final Pepsi run.

The Graniteers got one more in the sixth. Mike James singled and Dixon got a hit. An error let both advance, and a wild pitch scored James.

Hogan, LaRussa On All District

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—Champion Miami, runner-up South Carolina and third-place Georgia Southern dominate the 10-member National Collegiate Athletic Association District 3 baseball team for 1974.

Chal Port of the Citadel, chairman of the district election committee, announced the selections Tuesday.

Ron Fraser of Miami, which takes a 49-9 record to the nationals starting June 7 at Omaha, Neb., edged Bobby Richardson of South Carolina, 48-8, for district Coach of the Year.

Miamians on the honor squad are Orlando Gozalez, first baseman who batted .407 and stole 57 bases; and Stan Jakuboski, lefthanded pitcher with a 14-2 record and 109 strikeouts.

South Carolinians named are Hank Small, slugging left fielder batting .360, with 17 home runs; and Earl Bass, right-handed pitcher with a 12-1 record and 129 strikeouts.

Georgia Southern players selected are Jim Morrison, third baseman who hit .345 and batted in 84 runs, hitting 10 home runs; and Keithel Chauncey, center fielder with a .317 batting average.

The other four choices are Randy Davidson, Florida State second baseman who hit .340; Ted Shipley, shortstop from Vanderbilt; Rick Katz, right fielder for Jacksonville who batted .389; and Lin Hamilton, Clemson catcher, with a .347 batting average.

Player Joins Group Against 'Designation'

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Pro golfer's great experiment goes into Phase II this week in the $250,000 Kemper Open.

The 72 hole test, which gets underway Thursday, is held on the beautifully conditioned, 7,085 yard, par 72 Quail Hollow Country Club course, is the second of the "designated tournaments," a new concept that is being tried this season.

The first of the "designated tournaments," events in which the game's leading players are required to compete, was held just two weeks ago in the Colonial National at Fort Worth, Tex.

It was the first time the touring professionals had been stripped of their jealously-guarded right to pick and choose their tournaments; they were forced to play or face penalties up to and including a suspension of their right to play on the tour.

Their reactions ranged from enthusiastic acceptance by Lee Trevino to outright rejection by Arnold Palmer, from a "wait and see" attitude by Jack Nicklaus to a change of heart by Tom Weiskopf, once strongly opposed to the plan. Now Gary Player has added his voice to those who wonder if the new idea is the answer. "I don't like it," said Player, the little South African who won the Masters and added a second American title in last week's Danny Thomas-Memphis Classic.

"When and if they go to 10 designated tournaments, you'd be locked into your schedule. You'd have no flexibility at all. It would be very, very difficult for me."

"But if they kept it at three, and spread them around, changed them every year and gave every tournament a chance at being a designated event, now that would be something else."

This year only three tournaments have the "designated" tag. The World Open this fall is the other one. The rules provide for as many as 10 a season, however.

Under the rules of the "designated tournament" plan, the players who must complete are the top 30 money winners from the previous season, the Masters, U.S. Open and PGA champions from the last five years, the leading money winner from the last five years, the current British Open champion and the last-named U.S. Ryder Cup team.

In all, 36 players come under those categories. All are here. Player, who insists "I'm playing absolutely the best golf of my career; no question about it," and Weiskopf rank as the leading contenders for the $50,000 first prize.

Weiskopf, scheduled to play with Vice President Ford in Wednesday's pro-am, is seeking a return to the form that won him seven titles last season. He hasn't won this year, but has an unmatched history of success in this tournament. He's the defending champion, has won this one twice in the last three years and has taken more money out of this tournament than any other man.

R. C. Cola In Win Over Coke

R.C. Cola scored in every inning but one as they rolled to an easy 11-5 win over Coke in the North State League yesterday.

R.C. pushed over runs in all but the fifth inning but by then they were ahead 9-5 and nearly assured of the win. It was their third of the year and the seventh straight loss for Coke.

R.C. went to work in the first getting a pair of tallies. Jeff Worthington reached on a fielder's choice and went to second on a passed ball. Junior Hardee was safe on an error letting Worthington score from second. Rob Rood doubled in Hardee.

R.C. put up two more in the second. Stacy Mills led off with a hit and moved around on a wild pitch and passed ball. Dwayne Fisher got on by an error and was wild pitched to second. Both runners scored on a single by Larry Jones. Jones stole up and a passed ball put him on third but he was thrown out trying to steal home.

Hardee singled in the third for R.C. and scored on a bunt by Doug Perry after moving to third on a wild pitch and a passed ball.

Coke had pulled within two in the bottom of the second. Ricky Hardee had singled and after being wild pitched to second, Jeff Camp reached on an error. Barry Tyson walked and a single by Billy Branagan scored Hardee and Camp.

Coke added another in the third remaining two down. George Wilkerson singled and two passed balls moved him around to third. He scored on a hit by Mark Jones.

R.C. put it out of reach in the fourth with a four run rally. Tracy Mills led off with a hit and Dwayne Fisher was safe on a fielder's choice. Chip Davis reached on an error scoring Mills in the process. Jones singled driving in Fisher and moving Davis to third. Worthington was safe on another error moving Jones to third but Davis was cut down as he tried to score.

Hardee laced double to score both Jones and Worthington.

Coke scored their final two runs in the fifth as Howard Wilkerson walked and George Wilkerson doubled him to third. Ricky Hardee singled in Howard Wilkerson but George was thrown out as he crossed home. In the meantime, Wilkerson had moved around to third. A hit by Jones scored him.

R.C. got it back in the top of the sixth to round out their scoring. Hardee singled and Rood walked. Both stole up and Hardee stole home. A single by Doug Perry drove in Rood.

Pennsylvania Pushing Women

By FRED FARRAR
Associated Press Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — In the space of just the past couple of weeks, the face of women's intercollegiate sports in Pennsylvania has changed completely.

Recruiting, athletic scholarships, summer sports camps and even televised games are either realities or being planned.

The first public word came Friday, when it was learned Penn State had approved as many as 50 athletic scholarships for women starting this fall. Not counting its 100 football grants, Penn State awards about 100 athletic scholarships to men.

While Penn State was deciding about granting scholarships to women, the University of Pittsburgh was recruiting.

And Pitt has been so successful, says basketball coach Sandra Bullman, that "we're going to win a national championship with these girls."

But from the defending national champions, Immaculata College of Malvern, Pa., comes a challenge.

"Tell Pitt to add us to their schedule," said coach Cathy Rush.

Her teams have compiled a 74-4 record the past four seasons.

Her husband, Ed, an official in the National Basketball Association for seven years until he switched to the rival American Basketball Association this past season, said Immaculata's following is growing by leaps and bounds.

Rush said next year's team has been scheduled into Madison Square Garden and will play twice in Philadelphia's basketball shrine, the Palestra. And there is more.

"We are very, very close to signing a television contract," Rush said. "The interest is definitely there, and women's basketball will definitely be a major spectator sport in the future."

The rush to financial aid for women athletes and the upgrading of long-neglected women's sports programs around the nation has been prompted by a set of guidelines being drafted by the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

It is believed they will call at least for equal opportunities for women athletes in colleges and universities receiving federal funds.

Ignoring the guidelines could mean loss of the federal money.

Penn State, with 10 years of intercollegiate women's athletics behind it, doesn't have as far to go as many schools.

Its assistant athletic director, Della Durant, is a woman.

Its women have an entire building for their program, and they receive an increasingly large share of the athletic budget. The decision to start awarding scholarships, for example, probably adds 50 per cent to this year's estimated intercollegiate expenditures of $40,000 for women.

Barnes Feels He's Worth More Money

NEW YORK (AP) — Marvin Barnes' mother thinks her son is worth more than Bill Walton.

Walton, the three-time All-American and two-time College Player of the Year from UCLA, was officially made the No. 1 pick in the National Basketball Association's draft of college players by the Portland Trail Blazers Tuesday.

Actually, the Trail Blazers had signed Walton before the draft, the Bruins' 6-foot-11 center agreeing to a five-year contract for between $2 million and $3 million.

Portland and Philadelphia, the teams with the worst records in the league last season, had conducted a coin flip to determine the No. 1 pick. The Trail Blazers won.

That left the 76ers with the No. 2 choice, and after being rejected by the league in an effort to draft 1974 Player of the Year David Thompson of North Carolina State, they selected Barnes, the 6-9 All-American from Providence.

A very happy Barnes acknowledged that his mother was recommending a $3 million contract. "That sounds good to me," he said. Barnes was the nation's leading rebounder last season and the runner-up in 1973. He was drafted last year by Denver of the American Basketball Association.

Barnes' teammate, Kevin Stacom, was picked in the second round by the Boston Celtics.

Big men were at a premium in the first round, with 15 of the 18 players selected being centers or forwards.

Buffalo selected Rhodes scholar winner Tom McMillen of Maryland as the ninth pick over-all, considered by some a surprise because the lanky McMillen might pass up pro ball to continue his education. Furthermore, his toughness, stamina and lack of speed have been questioned by pro scouts.

The Atlanta Hawks' first choice was center Mike Sojourner of Utah, the Most Valuable Player in the 1974 National Invitation Tournament, who was taken from the hardship list.

Another center drafted as a hardship in the first round was junior Maurice Lucas of Marquette, taken by the Chicago Bulls. It brought a bitter reaction toward pro recruiters and lawyers representing players from Marquette. Coach Al McGuire, who lost juniors Jim Chones in 1972 and Larry McNeill in 1973 to the pros.

The new New Orleans team chose Aaron James of Grambling in the second round as its first selection. It had traded away its first-round choice. It also named Scotty Robertson of Louisiana Tech as coach.

In the only trade Tuesday, the New York Knicks gave their first-round choice to Chicago for forward Howard Porter and the Bulls' second-round pick in 1975.

Women Romp To Big Victories

Two amazing high scoring games highlighted the triple-header at Guy Smith last night as Belton bashed The Daily Reflector, 36-0, and Little Mint performed surgery on Pitt Hospital, 32-2, in the Ladies Softball League.

The first game was a mild affair compared to what was to come. In the opener, Piggly Wiggly downed Dixie Sales, 6-2. Piggly Wiggly got all they needed in the first, pushing over four runs. They added one in the second and one in the seventh on a homer by S. Pittman.

Dixie scored in the third and sixth.

Then the dam broke loose. Belton blew over six in the first, including home run shots by Taylor and Piner. They scored 15 in the second with home runs coming from Taylor, hitting two in the frame, Barnhill and Pollard.

Belton slacked off in the third getting only three but fought back up in the fourth pushing over 11. Piner homered again and Sawyer added one.

Little Mint must have gone to school on the preceding game as they took the night cap, 32-2, over the Hospital. They struggled for three runs in the first and got three more in the second. They brought in nine in the third, five in the fourth, three in the fifth, five in the sixth and four in the seventh.

Hospital scored in the third and seventh.

Giants Get Win

The Giants took a 7-5 victory over the Indians in the Southern Pitt Little League last night.

Doug Branch was the winning pitcher, allowing four hits. He struck out 10 and walked four. Jeff Allen took the loss, walking nine, fanning nine and also allowing four hits.

For the Giants, Gardner had two hits, including a double and a two-run homer. The other two hits went to McRoy (a double) and Cox. Vines, McLawhorn, Allen and Brock each had a hit for the Indians, with the latter getting a double.

How Tar Heel Representatives, Senators Voted

By ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON—Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes May 16 through May 22.

HOUSE
LEGAL SERVICES CORP Passed, 227 for and 143 against, the conference report to establish a Legal Services Corporation to provide free legal services to the poor.

The measure (H.R. 7824) awaits Senate action. It would create a presidentially-appointed board to administer the program, and place strong restrictions on the activities of legal service lawyers.

Among the restrictions are:
—No political activities, including voter-registration drives, while on government time.

—No lobbying of federal, state and local governments, except when representing a client.

—No participation in public school desegregation cases.

—No representation of women seeking non-therapeutic abortions.

Supporters argued that the measure advances the concept of equal protection under the law by granting poor persons access to quality lawyers.

Opponents argued that free legal services to one class of citizens discriminate against middle class persons who must pay for their lawyers. Other opponents argued that the measure's restrictions were too soft on such activities as lobbying.

Reps. Ike Andrews (D-4), Wilmer Mizell (R-5), Richardson Preyer (D-6) and Charles Rose (D-7) voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L. H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Earl Ruth (R-9), James Martin (R-9), James Broyhill (R-10), and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "nay."

OVERSEAS INVESTMENTS Passed, 225 for and 152 against, a bill to continue the Overseas Private Investment Corporation, a federal agency that guarantees insurance to American corporations that invest abroad.

The bill (H.R. 13973) now goes to conference with the Senate. It would extend OPIC's life to December, 1977.

OPIC provides insurance against war, rebellion and expropriation in foreign lands. OPIC gets its money from premiums paid by corporations, although if all corporations presently insured were to lose their investments, the federal treasury would be liable for up to $600 million.

Supporters argued that helping overseas investments helps the nation's balance-of-payments posture and spurs economic development in poor countries.

Opponents argued that OPIC encourages multi-national corporations to build new plants overseas—where labor costs are low—instead of building plants at home where jobs are needed.

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Preyer, Rose, Broyhill and Taylor voted "yea."

Mizell, Ruth and Martin voted "nay."

MILITARY SPENDING Rejected, 185 for and 209 against, an amendment to limit fiscal 1975 military procurement authorizations to last year's ceiling, plus 7.5 per cent for inflation.

The amendment would have sliced $733 million from the $22.6 billion authorization bill (H.R. 14592).

The overall bill was later passed and sent to the Senate. It calls for funding weapons purchases and development of new weapons, such as B-1 bombers and Trident nuclear submarines.

Supporters argued that the country needs to tighten its belt to combat inflation. Liberals critical of the Pentagon and some fiscal conservatives supported the cuts.

Opponents argued that the cuts would weaken the nation's defenses. Rep. Samuel Stratton (D-N.Y.) said the funds are needed to keep pace with Soviet development of new weapons.

Andrews and Broyhill voted "yea."

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Mizell, Preyer, Rose, Ruth, Martin and Taylor voted "nay."

SENATE

FOOD STAMPS FOR STRIKERS Tabled, 52 for and 31 against, an amendment to prohibit striking workers from receiving food stamps, except those workers whose jobs paid so little that they already were receiving food stamps.

By tabling the amendment, the Senate in effect killed it.

The amendment was offered to S. 3458, a bill to increase the federal share of the food stamps program from 50 to 62.5 per cent.

The overall bill now goes to the House.

In supporting the move to table, Sen. Robert Taft (R-Ohio) said that regardless of why a person is out of work, if he qualifies for food stamps he should get them.

In opposing the move, Sen. Jesse Helms (R-N.C.) said that a striking worker should be "aware of the consequences. He should not expect a subsidy to remedy" his self-imposed hardship.

Sens. Sam Ervin (D) and Jesse Helms (R) voted "nay."

AMATEUR ATHLETICS Agreed, 56 for and 29 against, to reconsider a previous voice vote on which the Senate had passed a bill to establish a federal amateur athletics agency.

The parliamentary effect of the vote to reconsider was to force sponsors of the bill (S. 3500 to temporarily shelve the measure, rather than risk a defeat on a record vote.

The bill's intent was to patch up difference between the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) and the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA), which have forced some athletes to forego certain competitions or risk blacklisting by one of the groups.

The bill also would have established a permanent federal agency to oversee and promote amateur athletics, at a maximum per-year cost of $50 million to the U. S. Treasury.

Supporters of the move to reconsider, and thus shelve the bill, argued that amateur athletics are outside the control of the federal government, and viewed the bill's price tag as too high.

Opponents argued that a federal agency is needed to end the feud between the AAU and the NCAA. Sen. James Pearson (R-Kansas) said athletes have become "pawns" in that feud, and need federal protection.

Ervin and Helms voted "yea." ANTI-BUSING Passed, 47 for and 46 against, a "soft" anti-busing amendment stating that long-distance busing is bad public policy but permissible in certain extraordinary circumstances.

The effect of the amendment would be to declare that busing should not be used to achieve desegregation, except as a last resort. Its chief thrust is to express a sense-of-the-Senate guideline on busing.

The amendment was added to the $25 billion school bill (S. 1539), which now goes to conference with the House.

Busing foes had hoped to pass an amendment that would have opened existing busing plans to court challenge, but on this vote the Senate refused to permit such challenges.

Senators voting "nay" favored a stronger anti-busing amendment.

Ervin and Helms voted "nay."

Protestants and Catholics, had collapsed with the resignation of Brian Faulkner and his Unionist Protestant colleagues. (AP Wirephoto)

Would Bolster European Units

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Army commander in Europe says military manpower trimmed from headquarters and support elements will be used to strengthen combat units rather than being returned to the United States.

Gen. Michael Davison said no net reductions in U.S. arms strength in Europe are in the works.

Davison's statement in an interview countered persistent reports that the United States would cut total U.S. strength in Europe by about 20,000 support troops.

"The whole name of the game is to plow back manpower savings into improved combat capability," Davison said. At the same time, he disputed other reports that have suggested the United States might reduce sharply its tactical nuclear weapons in Europe.

Davison said U.S. tactical nuclear weaponry in Europe is under study constantly and that the number of such weapons could be adjusted but that he expects nothing of any significance to develop in the way of changed deployments.

At present, the United States has about 7,000 nuclear bombs, shells and other tactical-type weapons there.

The commander of 190,000 U.S. soldiers, most of them in Germany, Davison said he had returned to Washington to brief the Army headquarters staff on progress in streamlining headquarters and support elements.

'The Cure' Is For Everybody

By OTTO DOELLING
Associated Press Writer
OBERSTAUFEN, Germany (AP) — It was still dark when the hefty woman known as "the packer" pushed into his hotel room without knocking.

She ordered him to strip, and while he meekly obeyed, she spread a cold, wet sheet over his bed.

"All right," she said in her no-nonsense voice, "you can lie down again."

As he hit the clammy sheet, he came fully awake. His teeth chattered. Within minutes, the packer had finished her reverse-Houdini routine and the man lay wrapped like an overweight mummy in a leaky tomb.

"It's now six. I'll be back at eight. Do you think you can hold out that long?" She waited for his weak nod before slipping back out into the corridor and groping for the door next door.

Soon, all through the hotel, other guests lay similarly packed and helpless with sweat beginning to pour into their eyes. Day after day, this scene is repeated in pensions and hotels in the Alpine resort of Oberstaufen.

The packer strikes before dawn. Her willing victims, mostly from West Germany's affluent middle class, literally stew in their own juice. All this is part of a Schrothkur, a century-old cure or natural course of treatment now practiced with the blessing of the West German medical profession.

The Schrothkur's postwar popularity has risen apace with West Germany's "economic miracle," whose side effects have included hypertension and overweight. The cure is designed to shed excess pounds, reduce the fat and cholesterol content of the blood and alleviate a host of chronic ills from gout to impotence.

An American newsman who checked into Oberstaufen at 206 pounds shed 13 pounds during a two-week cure of sweating, dieting and drinking wine liberally one day and abstaining the next. His triglyceride blood-fat count dropped from 249 to 121 in that time.

"Taking a cure" has become the rage of continental Europe, where health insurance and socialism have put the former watering spots of kings at the disposal of Everybody — Herr Schmidt, the corner butcher, as well as Leonid Brezhnev, chief of the Kremlin.

They are sipping the mineral-laced waters at Vichy and Karlovy Vary, getting sprayed with sea water at St. Malo, being buried up to their necks in Ischia's hot sands, sniffing the vaporous air of a Hungarian cave at Jovafvo, bathing at Bad Ems and living a monastic life for a week or two at Uscio.

Some physicians may still dispute the effectiveness of this or that cure, but the avid practitioners of pill-less courses of treatment swear by Hippocrates that spas and other cure resorts offer the best way to tune out, tone up and rid the body of toxic effects of the modern world.

"It was wonderful and effective," said a Frenchman whose allergies were washed away by mud baths and mineral water. "The water, air and surroundings were so pure that I felt reborn."

A Rome office worker who made a habit of going to a spa each year for his rheumatism moaned: "I wasn't able to go this year, and now I feel pains all over. It's not something you can do just one time and then be cured. You must go every year."

A more skeptical voice was raised by a Rome physician. "I think it's 75 per cent psychological and 25 per cent heating system," he scoffed.

To the north in Germany, the medical profession formally recognizes natural cures as an extension of clinical treatment.

Dr. Heinz-Peter Brauer, general secretary of West Germany's equivalent of the American Medical Association, conceded that physicians would never send a patient on a natural cure for treatment of a serious illness. But they do prescribe cures during recuperation. Patients who are overweight, hypertense or who have chronic stomach and liver ailments also are sent on cures.

"Any physical therapy — be it baths, be it massages, be it mud packs — is perfectly suited for influencing such diseases as rheumatism, gout and others," Brauer said.

Health insurance plans in western and eastern Europe pick up part or all of the costs of spa cures.

Foreigners Are Buying Greek Isles

ATHENS (UPI)—Foreigners—rich businessmen, middle class investors, even barefoot holiday campers—are bargaining for land on the sun-beaten isles of Greece, caressed by the waters of the Aegian or Ionian Sea.

And many Greeks are asking for new ways to prevent foreigners from literally buying up the islands, afraid that the influx of foreign residents is altering their way of life.

Prices Soar

"On the small island of Skiathos, English and German businessmen have taken over a great part of the coast and are beginning to move inland," said C. Stambolis, an architect.

"They usually buy one acre and build pretty, rustic villas, which they live in or rent during the summer season. At Canapitsa Bay, the price of each acre has reached 800,000 drachmas ($27,000).

"The villagers sell their fields because they cannot cultivate them any longer, owing to lack of working hands. Urbanism and emigration are also to blame. The National Tourist Organization of Greece should encourage the local people to establish small hotel units on their own property, without neglecting the cultivation of their land."

On the sacred island of Patmos, almost half the old houses have been bought and restored by Englishmen, who often annoy the natives by their behavior, local authorities said.

On Crete, Americans, Germans and other western Europeans buy stretches of land near the sea to build country houses or hotels.

Double Danger

Corfu, which has a much more limited area, faces the double danger of having the entire length of its coastline occupied by foreigners, and of the whole island becoming a vast group of hotels.

Hydra and Spetse, two small islands in the Saronic Gulf, attract foreign purchasers because of their beautiful and very old houses, which are bought, restored and used as homes, workshops or hotels.

Though lacking vegetation, the Cyclades seem to cast a spell upon foreigners, who long for a dream house on one of them. Among this group of islands, Mykonos, Paros, Santorini and Ios are the most popular. In certain parts of Mykonos, one acre costs 1,200,000 drachmas ($40,000).

There is legislation on the books that has been used to prevent foreigners from buying Greek land. The law originally was designed to prevent foreigners for security reasons from buying land near the frontiers, but more recently it has been applied to the islands.

Skirting the Law

"Before 1967, a great many foreigners bought houses on Santorini," said Emmanuel Lignos, lawyer and publisher of the local newspaper.

"Most of them were German and Swiss painters and writers. But since the latest excavations, the island has been defined as frontier territory and the prohibition has been extended here, as well as to the neighboring islands of Ios and Amorgos."

Determined foreign purchasers, however, can get around legal difficulties either by entering into partnership or secret contracts with Greek nationals.

Not only can the law be circumvented, but some Greeks believe that foreign land buyers have their value.

French Connection

"Ios is worshipped by the French, and its tourist development is due to them," said Nicos Coutroumbis, a lawyer and publisher of the island's only newspaper.

"Foreign exchange has come into the island, and the villagers who find employment in tourism do not desert their villages any more. That is why the prohibition of land sales caused such a commotion here."

Evangelos Aneroussis, lawyer and former member of Parliament for the Aegean islands, suggested:

"Prohibition (of land sales to foreigners) is not always the best solution. There should be a special public department deciding in each case whether the purchase would be beneficial or not, according to the intentions of the buyer and the whole situation on the island."

Sub-Killer Near Ready For Mission

By RON HUTCHERSON
SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The S-3A Viking, a sophisticated fusion of aircraft, computer and sensory systems, is airborne and nearly ready for its mission—destroying the best submarines of the '70s and the '80s.

The carrier-based submarine killer has been delivered here for pilot training, and it will go into service when fliers and aircraft carriers are ready.

"On station, surrounding the task force, it will be in position to detect and destroy submarines and surface targets and provide early warning of impending or actual missile launches against the force," the U.S. Navy said when it introduced the Viking in February.

As soon as the plane was delivered, fliers in Air Antisubmarine Warfare Squadron 41 began practice flights, taking off and landing at North Island Naval Air Station, the carrier base, in preparation for drill at sea.

"Flies Nice"

"It really flies nice," said Lt. Jim Offutt, the squadron's pilot of NATOPS (Naval Air Training Operations and Procedures in Standardization).

"There's a lot of excess thrust. You've got as much power as you need to get out of any kind of situation, and it takes off and lands in relatively short distances."

The plane, crewed by four men, uses two turbofan engines for power. Its 68-foot wingspan can be folded to 29 feet for storage on shipboard.

The aircraft is equipped with an on-board digital computer, an array of submarine finding equipment and varied weapons.

The nerve center is a Univac general purpose digital computer linked to the Acoustic Data Processor (ADP), high-resolution radar, Magnetic Anomaly Detection (MAD) and infrared sensory equipment.

Electronically Guided

The ADP picks up signals from special buoys which are dropped into the sea during missions to serve as reference points.

The radar reveals physical shapes on the water and in the air, the MAD is sensitive to the magnetic qualities of a ship or a submarine, and the infrared unit detects heat from ships, submarines and other sources.

The electronic eyes, ears and feelers enable the Viking, whether loitering at 160 knots or racing at its maximum cruising speed of 370 knots (600 miles an hour), to spot ships, submarines and aircraft miles away.

The data from the various sensory units is fed into the computer, and signals of interest are separated from normal background noise and flashed on display units in front of the flight officer who directs the subhunting mission.

On his instruction, the computer can assume control of the plane to put it into position—the right alignment, speed and altitude—to fire rockets, torpedoes, mines and other "destructors" at an enemy on or below the surface.

Airborne Sea Control

The system will give the Navy a "new dimension in airborne sea control," according to Lockheed-California Co., maker of the plane. It replaces S-2 trackers which have served as the main carrier-based antisubmarine warfare planes since 1959.

"The S-3U will solve the problems of the antisubmarine tactician who has previously been immersed in piles of charts and logs, who has had to twist numerous knobs and throw many switches, while simultaneously attempting to interpret incoming raw intelligence and formulate an effective tactical plan of action," Lockheed said.

"In the attack phase, the computer...selects and arms weapons, cues the pilot to turn on the master arming switch, calculates the release point and, unless overridden by the pilot, releases the weapon."

The Worry Clinic

Nuisance Habit Can Be Broken

Mary's abject slavery to her nighttime bugaboo can be corrected by the methods below. An ordinary doorbell buzzer, operating on dry cell batteries, can give her a modest little shock that will teach her bladder to behave!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE A-588: Mary T., aged 9, is terrified by a bugaboo at night that demoralizes millions of kiddies.

"Dr. Crane," her worried mother began, "Mary still wets the bed occasionally."

"We thought she might have kidney trouble, but nothing is medically wrong."

"And she cried pathetically for us to help her get free from this bugaboo."

"But we are at our wits end. 'So what else can we do to help her?'"

Enuresis Cures
Bed wetting (enuresis) troubles all children till they themselves finally break themselves of this nuisance habit.

At the age of 4 years, almost 25 per cent of kiddies are still its victim.

And many unhappy folks remain occasional victims not only in the teens, but even in adulthood.

It caused many men to be "washed out" of military service, too!

But it is merely a nuisance urinary bladder habit that the victim has allowed to dominate him long after most children have declared a revolution.

At the outlet of the urinary bladder is a small circular muscle (sphincter) that shuts off the flow of urine.

In babyhood, this muscle relaxes whenever the bladder gets full and thus lets the urine flow into the diaper, day or night.

So the cure of bed wetting requires that the victim become pugnacious and visualize the contest between himself and that shut-off muscle at the outlet of the bladder.

Mary must thus go to bed with the firm resolve to waken and go to the bathroom under her own power (not propelled by Mamma).

Don't scold but build up her morale and also follow these methods:

(1) Give her an alarm clock, which she is to wind and set to go off about 1 1/2 hours after she retires.

She should keep resolving that at its first sound, she'll hop out of bed and void her urine.

Many such victims cure themselves quickly by this alarm clock device.

(2) Another surefire method is to teach that sphincter muscle not to relax while its owner is asleep.

Do this by seeing that she gets an electrical shock when the first drops of urine complete the circuit in the following doorbell buzzer scheme.

Buy a buzzer doorbell, operated on dry cells, and hook it to a couple of strips of wire door screening. Fasten them to the sheet crosswise and about 6 inches apart, so her bare legs will cross them.

Meanwhile, place a couple of large squares of the screening under the sheet so her hips will lie upon them. They are to be separated by strips of cloth so they don't set off the buzzer till the first few drops of urine complete the circuit.

Then she'll get a little electric shock that will sting her legs and soon "condition" that little shut-off muscle of the bladder to stay closed until she is wide awake and consciously releases it!

With dry cells, this shock is not harmful but stings enough to waken the enuresis victim.

So send for my booklet on the "N-Uroclast," enclosing a long, stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

Any mechanically minded teen-ager can easily construct this buzzer shocking device, aided with a little wire door screening.

Bicentennial Title Is Bestowed Series

"Bicentennial Sundays In The Park" will be the official name of Greenville's eight event summer outdoor entertainment series, according to Greenville Recreation Department Director Boyd Lee.

Over the past several weeks as the final planning stages have been shaping up, the program has been referred to variously as "Summer In The Park," "Summer Sundays In The Park," and most frequently as "Sundays In The Park."

"At a meeting of the Bicentennial Committee Monday night," Lee related, "it was asked if the program could be called by the title 'Bicentennial Sundays in The Park.'"

"I could see no objection and thought it would be fitting for this first time effort to be called by that name," Lee said. "I told them we'd begin using the bicentennial title."

MemphisNamed Special Alley

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — A downtown alley named "Nov. 6" commemorates the day in 1934 when Memphis approved a $9 million bond issue to buy electric power from the Tennessee Valley Authority.

The city still receives TVA power under a special agreement with the giant power firm.

Greenville Recreation Department, "Bicentennial Sundays In The Park" will be coordinated by Stuart Aronson working in conjunction with Lee.

The North Carolina Council of the Arts awarded $2,000 to the Greenville Recreation Department for the series. This was only one of a number of various categories of grants totaling $158,884.67 made to art and entertainment agencies and programs in North Carolina.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, MAY 30, 1974

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have a very good chance now to find out what others expect from you, especially your close romantic tie. You can also establish greater rapport than in the past. Improve your surroundings and engage in the artistic.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Come to a meeting of minds with associates where some important project is concerned. Use extreme caution in travel today.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan your day's duties early in the day and carry through to get right results. Come to an agreement with a stubborn co-worker.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A good day for having fun at the recreations that you most enjoy. Show more devotion to loved one. Take time for reading.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Ideal day to busy yourself making home a haven of comfort. Some light entertaining in the evening would be enjoyable.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan how to be more productive in your line of endeavor. Write to those out-of-towners who can be helpful to you. Be thankful.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Adding to possessions is easy right now, so get busy early on such, especially where value is concerned. Improve budget.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are able to engage in personal matters and handle them well at this time. The evening is for the social side of life.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You love to investigate and this is the time for coming up with the right answers to many enigmas. Evening is for romance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Contacting friends you like and building firmer friendships is wise now. Make sure a business matter is handled well.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Showing your capabilities to bigwigs can bring excellent results now. Civic work can be handled with much success now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Obtain all the information you can now and don't be against any necessary changes that need to be made. Don't neglect friends.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Follow your intuitive faculties now since they are particularly accurate and can help you in your activities. Be charming.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have a fine personality and others will want to help, even spoil your progeny, so be sure to teach the habit of work so that the price paid for favors will not be high and the fine promise in this chart will come to fruition instead of dying on the vine. Give good spiritual training.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Most players look with disdain upon the lowly deuce. South, declarer on today's hand, brought home a close contract because he had been dealt a deuce rather than any higher card.

South held a solid two no trump opening bid, bolstered by 150 bonus points for his four aces. North's values were the bare minimum for a raise to game, but South possessed the skill to make a contract that was not an overly firm ground.

Snacking Holds More Appeal

MORRISVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Can snacking hold more appeal for college girls these days than streaking? Apparently.

The delicious thought of digging into a box of cereal recently overcame the urge of a group of students at the state university here to witness a streaking incident right under their dormitory windows.

As the streaking was about to begin, one hungry coed suddenly found a box of a natural-type cereal and headed back to her room — by herself, she thought. She was immediately pursued by a dozen other girls who abandoned the streakers for a chance to snack on the cereal instead.

She was so amazed that she wrote a letter to Quaker Oats, producer of the cereal, to tell them about it.

Store-Planning For The Future

READING, England (AP) — Berkshire County Council is questioning 6,000 housewives on where they shop and what they buy to try to predict shopping patterns for the next 30 years.

A spokesman said, "The results will show up any faults in the present layout of shops which we hope to put right for the next generation."

Fewer Farms But Larger Size

By JIM PERRY
ECU Student Journalist

One of the most notable trends in agriculture today is the relationship between the decreasing number and the increasing size of farms.

In Pitt County alone, the number of farms has dropped 43.4 per cent since 1940. Statistics show the average size of these farms has increased 56 per cent, however.

In 1940 there were approximately 300 farms in Pitt County, with an average size of 66 acres. There are roughly 140 farms with an average size of 103 acres, according to the 1969 Census of Agriculture and the Pitt County Extension Office. Pitt County is part of the national trend. However, the national trend shows more extremes.

What is the cause of this trend? Perhaps the best explanation is that the little farmer finds it increasingly hard to compete with his bigger counterpart. Rising costs and the demand for a more efficient, large-scale operation is often more than the little man can handle.

This influences another trend: the amount of land being farmed. In Pitt County in 1940, approximately 20,000 acres of land were under cultivation. That total now has dropped to just over 14,000 acres. The decrease in acreage has been countered by improved production methods and higher yields. The gross agricultural income figures show that this income has jumped approximately 17 per cent.

A smaller trend is seen in the market situation. United States farmers have enjoyed an increasingly good market for their products. How about the future? This depends on uncertain conditions—the stability or growth of our own level of farm production and the level of production in other countries. World demand is expected to climb, opening more foreign markets.

A final trend being followed by U.S. farmers, as well as those of Pitt County, is mechanization. This does not hurt the farmer directly because it is cheaper and more efficient to have a machine do the work of many people. But it does hurt the people.

In 1963 agricultural employment in Pitt County stood at 9,250. By 1971, it had dropped to 5,240, leaving some 4,000 individuals to find new jobs. Labor wages for those working have more than doubled in the same decade.

All of these factors have made it more economical for the farm owner to cultivate his own land. With the aid of a very small labor force and a vast armada of new farm machines, this feat is made easier.

Pitt County farmers now have approximately $20 billion wrapped up in farm machinery—necessities, according to farm equipment dealers.

New equipment, however, is not always what's wanted. As one salesman put it, "Farmers are smart. They buy and sell new and used items to their own best interest." Such practices could bring on expensive and time-consuming repairs, though he warns.

Farmers and salesmen agree that crops need loving care and the right medicine to prevent their becoming ill. The variety of chemicals available to fight various diseases and infestations is mind-boggling. Henry Riddick, pesticide coordinator for the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service, is the man often called to help find the right combination of chemicals to bring in a healthy crop.

Riddick says a farmer with an infected tobacco plant bed, for instance can bring a sample of infected plants to him and he can prescribe the right combination of chemicals to rid the plants of the problem. The goal is, of course, a healthy crop and a healthy return for the farmer.

Amount of land farmed, mechanization, use of chemicals—all are part of the effort to get the maximum yield. And Pitt County is part of the total usage picture throughout the United States and the world.

NORTH CAROLINA UTILITIES COMMISSION
Notice is hereby given that J. W. Tyson d-b-a Homestead Community Water, Route 303, Greenville, North Carolina, has filed an application with the North Carolina Utilities Commission for a Certificate of Public Convenience and Necessity to furnish water utility service in Homestead Mobile Estates, Pitt County, North Carolina, and for approval of the following rates:

Class Of '62 Held Memorial Services

Services commemorating the 1962 graduating class of South Ayden High School were held this past Monday by surviving members of that senior class.

The ceremony took place at the Ayden-Grifton cemetery. The late-afternoon service consisted of prayer, the singing of the old school song, and the placing of wreaths on the graves of those who had died since 1962.

Wreaths were placed on the graves by Annias Smith of Winterville and William Aytch of New York City. Those students commemorated include Dr. Robert D. Brown, co-

Offer Free Vega Repair

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors says it is responsible for engine damage caused by overheating in up to 1.3 million Chevrolet Vegas and will make needed repairs free of charge.

Every Vega the company has made is involved in GM's offer.

At the same time, the auto giant disputed on Tuesday a report by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration that 441,000 GM cars might have a defect that could cause accelerators to jam. GM said it did not consider the problem, involving 1965-1968 Buicks and 1970 Cadillacs, "safety related."

The auto maker said it would offer the Vega repairs to owners who have driven their cars less than 50,000 miles and have not abused the vehicles. Normally the subcompact's aluminum engine carries a 12-month, 12,000-mile warranty.

The Vega was introduced in 1970.

GM said the Vega engine is more susceptible to damage caused by overheating than conventional cast-iron engines because aluminum does not stand up to extreme heat as well.

Overheating could warp the engine block and cylinders, requiring hundreds of dollars in repairs, a Chevrolet spokesman said. He declined to estimate how much the firm expected to spend on the repairs.

The safety administration said a potential defect in two brackets in engine mounts of 1965-1968 Buick Electra 226s and Wildcats and 1970 Cadillacs with cruise control, except El Dorados, could cause the accelerators to jam.
