Pitt Pupil Testing Evaluated

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer
Dr. John Pyecha, project director of Research Triangle Institute, presented a preliminary report and recommendations of the educational audit and evaluation of the pupil testing program for the Pitt County Public School System at yesterday's meeting of the Pitt Board of Education.

The purpose of the evaluation, according to Dr. Pyecha, is to see if the standardized testing program of students in the Pitt County school is working adequately and meeting the needs of the students.

"If the teachers are going to use the master plan developed for testing, and materials recommended, they must be involved in the planning," Dr. Pyecha stated. "They must know there is some validity in the testing."

Dr. Pyecha stated that 71 percent of the county teachers polled expressed a need for someone to oversee the testing programs in the county system.

In some areas, such as science and social studies, many of the teachers felt the standardized tests did not cover what they were teaching in the classroom.

Only 54 per cent of the students polled stated they felt the test material was a good example of what they had been taught. A total of 65 percent of the students said they were overly bored while taking the standardized tests.

The major needs and weaknesses, according to the county teachers, in the standardized testing program, are:

—the tests do not reflect what is taught in the Pitt County classrooms;

—the tests contain too many items of high difficulty;

—the tests are inappropriate because of the low socioeconomic backgrounds of many Pitt students;

—a need for centralized coordination of all pupil testing and testing related responsibilities;

—need for inservice training in administration of tests and in interpretation of test results.

Board members agreed to study the report presented by Dr. Pyecha and make their recommendation for future testing at the next board meeting.

Cameron Dudley of the architectural firm Dudley and Shoe, presented preliminary plans to the board for a new Farmville Middle School.

The plans call for 68,396 square feet of floor space less an alternate of six classrooms (an additional 5,720 square feet) at an estimated cost of $1,638,939.

Board members asked Dudley to work within 60,000 square feet so that the new school could be built within the money available for the project.

Board member Dr. Tom Patterson of Farmville said the plans had already been cut some 8,000-9,000 square feet.

"My basic concern is when you cut the real meat out of a situation you are just replacing one old building with a new inadequate building, a building that does not meet the needs at all. I feel the building has been cut all it can be cut and still be an adequate facility," Patterson told the board.

"The next cut could mean cutting off the gymnasium or the cafeteria. . . it will be difficult to cut the plans anymore. We need all the space included in the current plans," Patterson added.

The school calendar for the 1974-75 school year was adopted yesterday.

Teacher workdays will be held Aug. 19 through Aug. 23. Orientation will be held on Monday, Aug. 26 for students and the first full day of the 180 days has been set for Aug. 27.

Holidays for the school year include Labor Day, two days for Thanksgiving, Dec. 23 through Jan 1 for Christmas and New Year's Day, Easter Holidays March 27 through March 31 (includes one teacher vacation day).

The last day of school for students will be June 6 and teacher workdays will be June 9 through 11.

Ross Persinger, mayor of Ayden, and a group of Ayden citizens met with the board yesterday requesting that the board reconsider its decision to place the South Ayden School facility up for public sale rather than sell the property directly to the town of Ayden.

Persinger told the board he had checked with the N. C.

Attorney General's Office and that it is legal for two boards of government to transfer property without holding a public sale for the amount of $1 or less.

The town of Ayden would like to purchase the building to be used for a recreational facility for all ages, including the teenagers, senior citizen groups, day care facilities and Boy Scouts.

Persinger said the town would be responsible for renovation of the building and that if the town no longer needed the facility, the property would be given back to the county board.

Sign Procedures Of Disengagement

By HANNS NEUERBOURG

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Syria and Israel today signed the documents outlining the procedure for disengagement of their forces on the Golan Heights.

The signing by Gen. Herzl Shafir of Israel and Gen. Adnan Tayara of Syria cleared the way for their forces to begin pulling back within 24 hours.

The signing also gave the go-ahead for the return of all prisoners of war still held by each side from the October war. The International Committee of the Red Cross said 367 Syrians, 10 Iraqis and five Moroccans were to be flown to Damascus Thursday morning in exchange for 56 Israelis.

Syria exchanged 12 wounded Israelis on Saturday for 25 wounded Syrians and one Moroccan.

Shafir and Tayara negotiated the "operational protocol" they signed today in eight hours of talks last Saturday, Sunday and Monday. It establishes the procedures and timetables to carry out the truce accord and disengagement agreement negotiated by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, which the two generals signed last Friday.

Lt. Gen. Enstio Siilasvuo of Finland, whose United Nations peacekeeping troops will man the buffer zone between Syrian and Israeli forces on the Golan Heights, said he was "confident that the disengagement plan will be carried out without complications."

The conference is expected to resume during the summer or fall.

After he spoke, the Finnish general shook hands with the members of the Syrian and Israeli delegations. The two delegations reportedly talked only through Siilasvuo during their negotiations, and there was no conversation between them today.

Employment Up

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Nonfarm employment in the Southeast rose for the second consecutive month in March to a level of 12,727,300, the U.S. Labor Department's Atlanta office reported today.

Gains of 10,300 in contract construction and 11,600 in government employment highlighted the rise.

Florida led the increase with 7,700, followed by South Carolina with an increase of 5,800, Mississippi 4,300, Virginia 3,200 and Alabama 800.

Non-farm employment levels declined 2,700 in Georgia, 1,000 in Tennessee and 900 in North Carolina.

However, all eight states in the region contributed to an increase of 377,800 workers over the statistics for March 1973.

Manufacturing employment fell 21,400 from February, led by Georgia with a loss of 7,800 jobs and North Carolina with a loss of 5,000.

Durable goods employment was down 8,000 from February. Employment in nondurable goods fell 13,400, led primarily by cutbacks of 5,200 in textiles, 4,700 in apparel, 1,800 in tobacco and 1,200 in food industries.

Middle East Tour

NIXON TRAVEL PLANS—The White House has formally announced President Nixon's June 12-18 swing through five Middle East countries, pledging to build on the success of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's peace missions. Nixon will leave Washington next Monday, arriving that night in Salzburg, Austria, where he will rest until June 12. Nixon will return from his Middle East tour June 18 and will remain in the U. S. for a week before starting off to Moscow June 27 for summit talks. (AP Wirephoto)

Nixon Warns Of Isolation

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer
ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — President Nixon told graduating Naval Academy midshipmen today that "a new wave of isolationism" poses one of the greatest dangers facing America.

Defending his policy of detente, the President said: "In our era, American isolation could easily lead to global destruction."

Nixon said that the United States cannot retreat into isolation from world responsibilities because, he said, the alternative to detente is a runaway arms race, a return to constant confrontation and a "shattering setback to our hopes for building a new structure of peace in the world."

But he cautioned that detente does not mean the United States should become involved in the domestic affairs of other countries.

In clear references to the controversy over emigration of Soviet Jews, Nixon said: "We would not welcome the intervention of their countries in our domestic affairs, and we cannot expect them to be cooperative when we seek to intervene directly in theirs."

Nixon is seeking most-favored-nation trade treatment for the Soviet Union, but Congress is balking in a dispute over Soviet emigration policies toward Jews.

His latest round in Soviet summit talks are due to open in less than a month.

Nixon spoke at the commencement and commissioning ceremony for 920 Naval Academy graduates.

Granted Delay

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Reserve Mining Co. of Silver Bay, Minn., has been granted a 70-day delay in implementing a district court order banning emissions of asbestos-like fibers from its taconite-processing plant near Lake Superior.

The delay was granted on the condition that Reserve Mining take "prompt steps to abate its discharges into air and water."

Firm To Build Kinston Plant

KINSTON, N.C. (AP)—Buehler Products Inc., which manufactures miniature electric motors, plans to build a $15 million plant in Kinston.

The company, based in Nuremberg, Germany, expects to begin operations in the new facility Sept. 1. The plant will employ 100 persons.

Dr. Wolfgang Klug, company president, told a luncheon Tuesday that the company's customers in America and Canada will be served directly from Kinston.

Budget-Hearing For Grimesland

GRIMESLAND—A public hearing on the adoption of Grimesland's budget for the new fiscal year will be held June 11 at 7 p.m. in the town hall.

The proposed budget was submitted to the Board of Aldermen at a call meeting May 21. A copy is available for public inspection in the office of Town Clerk Annabelle Heath.

Revenue-sharing funds for July 1, 1974 through the same date in 1975 will be used for public transportation and improvement of town streets, the Aldermen decided at the same meeting.

WOULD ASK

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said yesterday he would ask Congress for $100 million in foreign aid for Syria if a disengagement agreement was reached with Israel. He added no commitments were made to Syria.

Summer Session At Hand

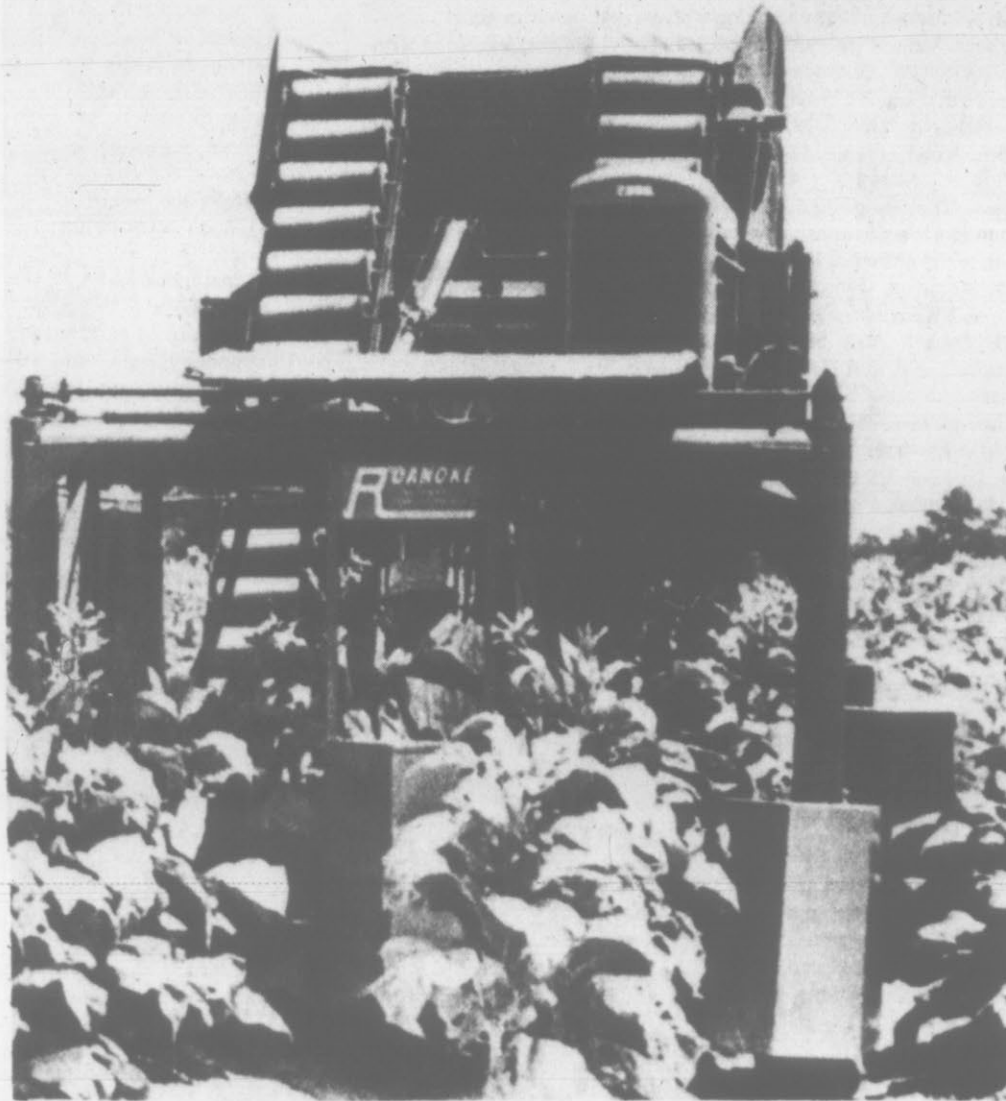

Greenville will soon be livelier again with the return of students for the first of two regular summer sessions at East Carolina University.

Registration for the first session is set for Thursday, with classes to begin Friday. This first session will end on July 12, with the second session scheduled to open July 15 and run until August 20.

Dr. Susan McDaniel, Director of Summer School at ECU, says "my estimate of the number of summer session students, based on information from the Dean of Admission's office, is that between 3,800 and 4,000 students will be attending summer school."

"One development of interest to the public," Dr. McDaniel added, "is that there will be two short sessions of four weeks each for public school teachers. This is the first time for this type of short session, and evidently is a response to the ten months contract in the public schools."

Dr. McDaniel said it appears now that the number of summer students would be similar to last summer's enrollment, and that plans call for essentially the same number of faculty members to be on hand.

One-Man Harvester

FOR THE MAN WHO ROLLS HIS OWN—Tobacco grower Joe Parker pilots a one-man leaf combine, which has been described as the ultimate in harvesting the leaf crop. About 25 of the space-age leaf pluckers are in use in the Moultrie, Ga. area. Older harvesters require a crew of 10 to 12. Parker gathers eight acres of leaf per day. (AP Wirephoto)

VD HELP CONFIDENTIAL

I need help because I think I have venereal disease. I can't leave my name because my mother might recognize my initials.

Any person, regardless of age, who thinks he or she may have venereal disease may go to the Pitt County Community Health Department for diagnosis and treatment, says Mrs. Therese Lawler, director of the personal health division of the Health Department. Everything is kept in strictest confidence, and your parents will not be contacted, she promised. She advises going on any weekday except Tuesdays, preferably during an afternoon.

Hotline felt your situation warranted not using your initials. Good luck.

SOME LIKE LOGO; SOME DON'T

I would like to know when the city is going to get those stupid ridiculous signs that you can't read off our city trucks. I've already written the Mayor, and Council, and City Manager letters saying that the person who designed this thing ought to be given a certificate for stupidity and bad taste. I would like to reiterate that. D. H.

City Manager Bill Carstarphen fielded this one. "We're sorry that this person does not approve of our logo, and he's not alone. We've heard many disparaging remarks, but also many compliments. Our aim was to have a symbol by which the City of Greenville could be recognized. The logo is a concept widely used in the market place for quick, positive identification of products or organizations. It should be recognized on sight, not read. We wanted a unique symbol for our unique city. With the help of the ECU Commercial Art Department, we developed our logo and decided to make it green—for Greenville, of course—on a yellow background. The yellow background, rather than a green one, was chosen because at least two other major community institutions—East Carolina University and the Greenville City Schools—use green for identification.

"You will be seeing the new City of Greenville logo more frequently as we gradually replace equipment and have the occasion to repaint and redesign other items. Changing it would be a costly procedure now, and frankly there are many Greenville citizens who like it very much," Carstarphen said.

OPPOSING GROUP

I would like to get in contact with a group that is opposed to the Chicod Creek drainage project. Do you know of any?

She wore a formal gown of chantilly lace and silk organza fashioned with a high neckline of lace and knife pleated ruffling. The empire bodice was overlaid with lace and featured covered buttons in the back. The lace and ruffle detail was repeated on the covered button cuffs on the long Gibson girl sleeves, on the silhouette skirt and the hemline flowing into a chapel length train.

Her caplet of sculptured lace was attached to a three tiered veil of silk illusion. She carried a nosegay of white roses and baby's breath.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Susan Hargett. She wore a floor length blue floral chiffon dress with a solid blue sash. She wore a blue picture hat and carried a nosegay of blue and white carnations and baby's breath.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Luke H. Lee of Rt. 6, Greenville.

The ceremony was performed by Bishop Hargett father of the bride. Mrs. Ralph Warrington, organist, and Mrs. Ira W. Robinson, soloist, presented a program of wedding music. The soloist sang "A Time For Us" and "If I Could Tell You," accompanied by Mrs. Rebecca Brown.

The brother of the bridegroom, Kent Lee, was best man and ushers were Lee Williams and Earl Williams Jr., cousins of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a floor length light blue knit dress with matching lace trim. The mother of the bridegroom selected a floor length lace trim. The mother of the bridegroom selected a floor length coral orange crepe dress with matching lace trim. Both mothers wore corsages of white carnations.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church cultural hall.

The refreshment table was centered with an arrangement of pink and white carnations flanked by a three branch candelabra holding pink tapers. Mrs. Earl Williams poured punch and Mrs. Fred Feamster served cake. Mrs. James Miller assisted in serving.

The bride's table featured a portrait of the bride and a bud vase with a pink carnation. Mrs. Earl Williams Jr. presided at the bride's table.

Gifts were displayed on a table covered with a white lace cloth. Miss Susan Feamster, cousin of the bridegroom, and Miss Dale Quiddy received guests.

Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Ira W. Robinson.

Tulle bags of rice were given to guests by Miss Pamela Chisum, cousin of the bride, and Miss Lisa Feamster, cousin of the bridegroom.

For a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride changed into a beige crepe dress with matching accessories and wore a corsage lifted from her bouquet.

The bride graduated from Lenoir Community College with an associate degree in applied science. The bridegroom is a student at East Carolina University.

Hawaiian Party Given Couple

Auxiliary tables were decorated with pineapple centerpiece and candlelight. Scarlet Hawaiian anthuriums adorned the head table. Hors d'oeuvres were served from a watermelon carved fruit basket.

Approximately 50 guests attended the luau which was followed by various games.

Bride-Elect Entertained

Miss Jo Ann Tice, bride-elect of Michael Boyd, was honored at a coffee Thursday morning at the home of Mrs. Douglas Jones. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Jimmy Dail and Mrs. Herbert Paschal.

The bride-elect was presented a corsage of white daisies upon arrival which complemented her black and white dress.

The house was decorated with arrangements of spring flowers and the dining room table was centered with an arrangement of snapdragons and baby's breath.

Mrs. John McConney assisted the hostesses in serving.

Good-byes were said by the hostesses and the bride's mother, Mrs. Woodrow Tice.

The wedding will take place June 8 at St. James Methodist Church.

SUMMER SCENE

A place for relaxation and recreation is often thought of as being a considerable number of miles from home. It is pictured as a place where the scenery is quite different—where there are mountains, a lake or perhaps the seashore. Such a change is welcome and provides the needed break in routine. But as life grows more complicated, more time is needed for relaxing than a yearly vacation provides. Busy schedules and tight budgets encourage families to consider appealing vacation centers right at home. An outdoor living area such as a shady porch, a sunny deck, a pleasant patio or a smooth lawn can provide hours of relaxation without spending time in travel.

Whether a porch, patio, terrace, deck, gazebo, or small apartment balcony is being considered for an outdoor living area, it should be well planned if it is to meet the family needs. The kind of facility wanted, its use, cost, upkeep and its relationship to the house should be decided on.

So varied are outdoor rooms that furnishings are largely a matter of individual taste. There are three requirements, however, to insure long-lasting good looks and comfort. First, furnishings must withstand sunlight, wind and an occasional downpour of rain when forgotten. Secondly, they must be solidly built and well balanced to prevent tipping. Thirdly, they must be constructed of practical material that will not rust, mildew or warp.

Many interesting furnishing items rank high on the 1974 summer scene. Sun umbrellas, rising in popularity, bring strong thrusts of color to lawn, garden, and patio. Their beauty serves as a fringe benefit, you might say, since their main objective is people-protection from the sun. Umbrella fashion favors the square shape this year—offering a change from the more prevalent circular designs.

Rattan furniture manufactures seem to be saying to producers of other types of casual and conventional furniture: "anything you can do, we can do better". The growing popularity of rattan furniture has prompted a broadening of lines, a greater diversity of designs, and loads of accessory pieces. There's a wide range in rattan: from very casual units for garden rooms, porches, vacation homes, and family rooms to handsome high-styled collections for living rooms, bedrooms, and dining rooms in generous-budget homes.

Early to come and last to leave the outdoor scene is rugged redwood furniture. The 1974 outdoor season sees lots of new redwood seating and dining units despite some shortage in this popular wood.

The diversity of units and designs is perhaps more pronounced in wrought iron and steel than in any other material used for casual furniture, according to the Summer & Casual Furniture Manufacturer's Association. Lounging and dining collections in wrought iron for use in garden rooms or outdoors, dining rooms, and summer homes are available in exquisite classic designs in any number of finishes. The choice of upholstery fabric suggests whether it is designed for indoor or outdoor use.

And finally it's hard to imagine summer living without those light-weight, folding aluminum chairs, chaises, and rockers which serve well at the beach or on the patio, terrace, or porch. Companies that manufacture summer furniture state that newsworthy 1974 aluminum additions include the stacking sun cot, the two-position sun chair, and the 5-position sand-lounger. In summary, there's outdoor living furniture available to suit most everyone's taste as well as all types of outdoor living areas.

Stephens-Allen Vows Solemnized Friday

Miss Mary Alice Allen and Jennings Warren Stephens were united in marriage Friday at 3:00 p.m. at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis Allen of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Frances Stephens and the late Mr. Stephens of Norfolk, Va.

The Rev. Ronald Nichols, the bride's pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The couple spoke their vows before ivy covered mantel featuring wedding bells and love birds flanked by burning tapers in hurricane lamps. The house was decorated throughout with mixed summer flowers in a blue and yellow motif. Auxillary tables in the living room featured a bride and bridegroom arrangement and a wedding ring arrangement with ribbons, lilies-of-the-valley and ivy.

Music was provided by Miss Ethel Beaman Allen, sister of the bride.

The bride wore a formal gown of cotton plisse with a fitted bodice and square neckline. The ruffled skirt was tiered with white lace accented with the heavenly blue embroidery edging each tier and the neckline. Her matching mantilla of silk illusion was edged with alencon lace. She carried a nosegay bouquet of blue and yellow mums, lace fern, baby's breath with tiny satin streamers of silver, yellow and blue. The mother of the bride and of the bridegroom each wore blue knit dresses and corsages of white mums.

The bride is a rising junior at East Carolina University. The bridegroom is a graduate of East Carolina University and is currently working toward his Master's degree at East Carolina.

Following a wedding trip to Virginia Beach, the couple will make their home in Greenville.

Immediately following the ceremony, the guests were invited into the dining room for a reception given by Mr. and Mrs. Dickie Allen and Mrs. Doris Sutton.

The refreshment table was covered with a white imported lace cloth over silver centered with an arrangement of yellow snapdragons and baby's breath. On either side were candelabra holding white burning tapers.

After the couple cut their traditional slice of wedding cake, Mrs. Allen served cake to the guests and Mrs. Sutton poured the punch. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Wilbur Hart, Mrs. J.T. Manning Jr. and Mrs. Thurman Page.

Explain His Minor Etiquette Flaws

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I finally met a man I can be serious about, and there are only two things wrong with him.

One: When we go out to dine, he cuts all his meat into little bite-sized pieces as though he were preparing it for a 4-year-old child, or a dog!

The other thing: When a lady comes into a room and he is seated, he never stands up.

How can I get him to correct these two faults without hurting his feelings? He would be perfect otherwise.

SERIOUS ABOUT HIM

DEAR SERIOUS: Tell him lovingly that if it weren't for two minor flaws in etiquette, he would be perfect! Then gently explain. Now, what man would resent a little constructive criticism in order to attain perfection? If yours does, he has more than only two faults.

DEAR ABBY: I have a son who was my whole life until this happened. He was married for 18 years and had two lovely children. Then all of a sudden he left his wife and family to go live with a man!

He called to tell me about it. My world was shattered. When he was younger, I sometimes wondered if he was homosexual. I noticed a few signs, but I never would accept it. In my hysteria, I screamed at him over the phone: "As far as I'm concerned, you just died. In fact, drop dead. I never want to see you again!" Then I hung up.

He and his wife must have some kind of understanding because she doesn't seem nearly as upset as I. I'm told he spent last Christmas Eve with his family, helped with the tree, and everything went smoothly.

Abby, dear, I am not without sin. Was I wrong to sit in judgment and condemn him? Should I accept him for what he is? We were always so close and really loved each other. Should I call him and apologize? Please, Abby, tell me what to do.

BROKENHEARTED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: When we do the right thing, we feel good about it. When we do the wrong thing, we feel bad. Call him.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "PROVED MY LOVE IN COLUMBUS": If he comes near you again, call the police. Or do you want to try for two?

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Survey Brings No Changes

HILDESHEIM, West Germany (WNS)—Teacher Karl Heinz Kreter, 59, surveyed 600 children and learned that 25 per cent of mothers send youngsters to school without breakfast. "One-third of the children had not washed nor brushed their teeth, and more than half of them were not carrying a handkerchief of any kind," Kreter reported. Worse, two out of three students smoked, and some smoked "10 or more cigarettes a day." The teacher added that statistics have not changed for the better since he told these results to parents.

Gas Station Lines Still Loom

You're upset? Move over; you are not alone alone. Things at the gas station have been pretty good for the past few months. No more lines. No more getting up in the dark of the morning to try to find a place in line...to get some gas, to avoid being late to work.

Maybe the worst of all was the uncertainty. Watching the gasoline gauge move slowly but surely away from the "F" toward that ominous "E"; it always seemed to move faster once it got past the midway point. It meant another hassle was inevitable, and you weren't really sure your station could meet the need when you needed it.

Remember how it was? Just finding gasoline dominated your day's thinking...a preoccupation that interfered with devoting full attention to the job at hand.

Well, it could happen again. A couple of weeks ago there was a warning that unless motorists exercised restraint we could have a shortage by August. So reports of rather heavy highway traffic are a little bit unnerving. Last weekend's big highway death toll in North Carolina was another indicator: a lot of people must have been on the road. Maybe you've relaxed a little bit too much. Those car pools have largely disappeared. And there was that weekend trip, too. Somehow the speedometer seemed drawn to 65, and once even nudged 70 on a long straightaway. As a matter of fact, you haven't been staying home as much as when gas was scarce. Your neighbors haven't either.

You've gotta cutback, somehow.

Sure, the flow of petroleum is up about where it was; but remember, it wasn't only the Arab oil-producers who made that shortage. Our refineries can't cope with the demand. It will be several years before more such plants go into production.

Meanwhile (and we tend to forget this) there is an ever increasing number of households, businesses and industries and motor vehicles that must share the present capacity.

Something else to think about: We had an unusually mild winter during the fuel crisis; two such mild winters in a row would be an incredible run of good luck. It isn't anything to gamble on.

We're a long way from being out of a crisis period, so many factors, imponderables, affect the next few years.

It adds up to this: if everyone is extravagant with fuel and energy supplies we have now, those hard times of scarcity are going to return. We shouldn't forget that.

Planning First Vacation Trip

By BILL NOBLITT
WINSTON-SALEM—Joyce Murdock is planning a vacation trip to England.

That may not sound like much of an event. Unless you remember that Joyce is 31 years old, has never been on a vacation in her life, and until a year ago didn't even know what a savings account was. She now has $500 in the bank, a regular job, an apartment, and friends to help her.

For the past 16 years, the longest period of time which Joyce had spent outside a state institution was six weeks.

To her, an institution was a secure place where she could find friends, warmth, and food.

"Joyce symbolizes the thousands of people who have as their only source of help an institution of some sort...her only friend was an institution," says Ted F. Boushy, newly named director of an experimental program aimed at setting up some guidelines for rescuing people from the institutional cycle.

Boushy, a 26-year-old Wake Forest grad, first met Joyce when he visited Black Mountain alcoholic rehab center in the process of producing a film and doing some writing. He majored in theater and journalism.

Aiming At The Persian Gulf

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—A fundamental shift in Soviet strategy in the Middle East is now taking shape, partly as a result of the brilliant success of U.S. peace-keeping moves in Syria, Egypt and Israel, but partly dictated by deeper and longer-range Soviet interests.

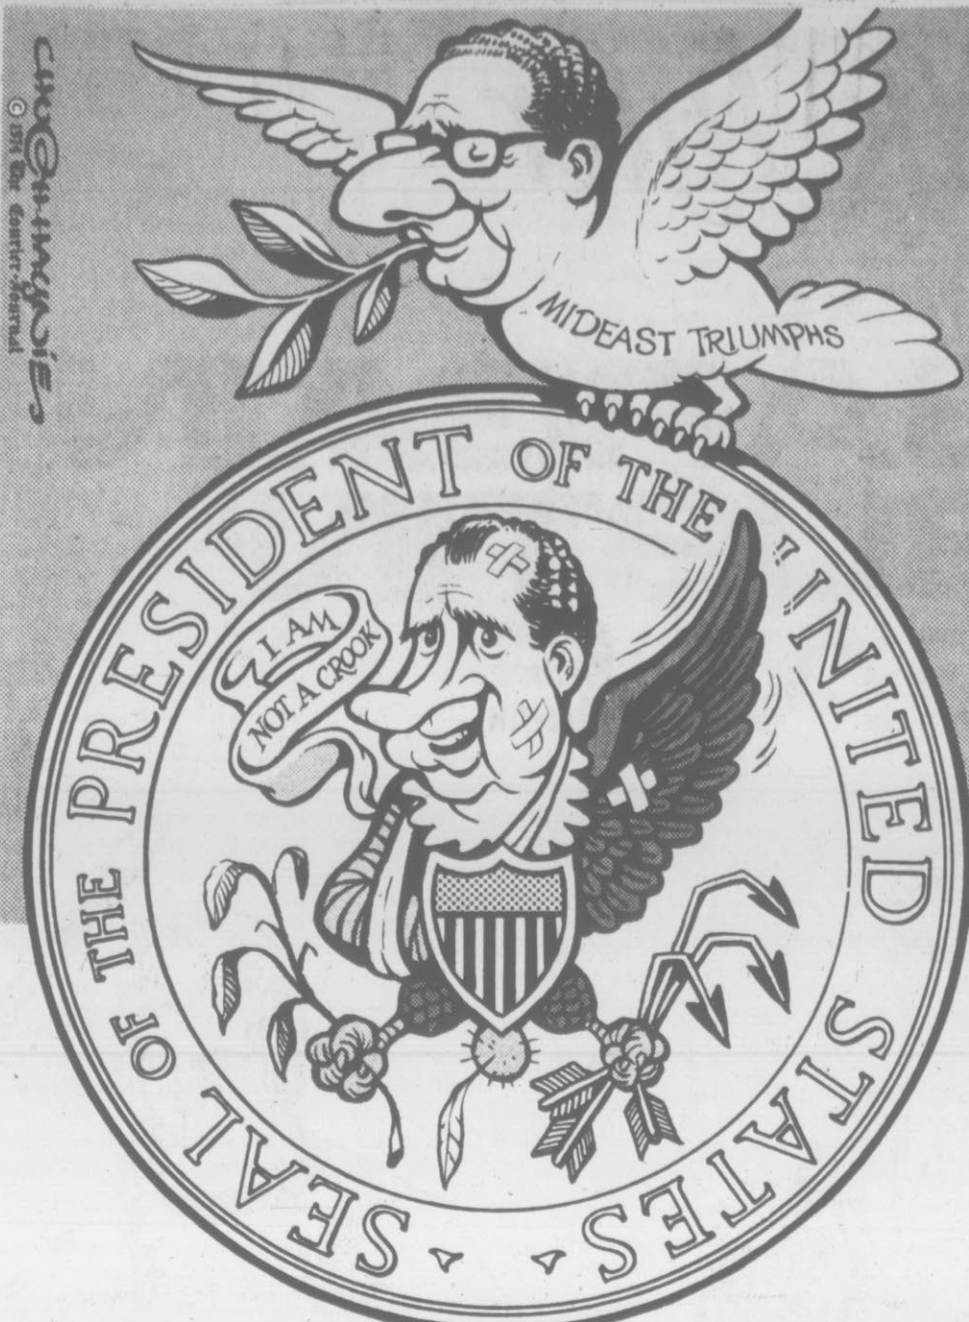

Russian influence in the Middle East of Syria and Egypt is now at its lowest ebb since the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. But farther east, along the volatile rim of the Arabian peninsula and the crucial oil-rich Persian Gulf area leading up to Iraq, Soviet influence will soon be on the ascendancy. Hence, the compass of the Kremlin's new Middle Eastern policy points to potentially dangerous new problems in the Persian Gulf waterway, so vital to the U.S. as American oil supplies dwindle.

Actually, the Kremlin, as viewed both by Arabists and Kremlinologists here, is not suffering all that much from the humiliating reverses it has had to absorb since the latest Arab-Israeli war of last October. Despite the virtual liquidation of its astronomical investment in Egypt, the result of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's masterful diplomacy, there is real Soviet potential in the gradual settlement of the basic Arab-Israeli dispute.

The clearest gain for Moscow is the soon-to-be-opened Suez Canal, an event that has always been a precondition for the shift of major Soviet activity from the rim of the Mediterranean east to the Persian Gulf.

Once the canal has been cleared and widened, Soviet naval vessels will have easy access to the Red Sea, and around the Arab peninsula to the Persian Gulf. At one point, Senate hard-liners, led by Democratic Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, seriously considered a carrot-and-stick approach to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to block Soviet naval passage through a newly-reopened Suez Canal. The carrot: U.S. development aid; the stick: enforced demilitarization of the canal.

Now, not even Jackson wants to risk offending Egypt, the foremost U.S. ally in the Middle East, by attempting to dictate terms of policing that vital artery. Sadat's stunning success in helping set the stage for

They Stole My Stuff

By ART BUCHWALD
WASHINGTON—The paranoia in Washington gets worse and worse. Even I started feeling it, and I went to see a psychiatrist.

"What seems to be the problem?" he asked.

"Everyone is stealing my stuff," I said in anguish.

"Can you be more specific?" he asked.

"Well, you see a couple of years ago things were very dull in Washington and there wasn't much to write about except impoundment and the SALT talks. So I decided to do something to jazz up the column. One day I was walking by the Watergate and I thought to myself, 'Wouldn't it be a gas if the Republicans bugged the headquarters of the Democratic Party?'"

"When did you think of this?"

"Sometime in June of 1972."

Other Editors Say Gun Control

(Christian Science Monitor)
In every reform movement it seems to take a few people asking for the moon before everyone gets a modicum. When such key authorities as big-city chiefs of police ask for an outright ban on handguns in the United States, the lesser goal of tightened federal control may just be achievable.

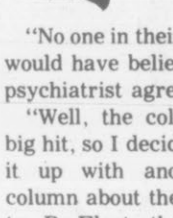

Such control—including what would seem to be the minimum requirement of firearms registration—has been favored by a majority in U.S. polls over many years. Yet the opposed minority has had the zeal and lobbying power to resist it. And the current administration has not shown the appropriate leadership toward controlling the weapons which have slaughtered so many innocents.

Hopes for at least some measure of increased control must be heightened when Boston's police commissioner, Robert di Grazia, reports an increase in the number of American police chiefs holding the same opinion he does: that handguns should not be permitted to anyone but the police. He told the Kiwanis Club of Boston that eight others at a recent San Francisco meeting put forth this view, in contrast with only two chiefs two years ago.

Commissioner di Grazia is in a better position than most to know the shocking statistics of handgun injuries and fatalities in the United States as compared with countries having stricter gun laws. He also knows and deplors such anti-gun-control arguments as "if guns are outlawed, only outlaws will have guns" and "guns don't kill, people do."

"I am not saying that gun control will end homicide and robbery," he reportedly explains. "But I am saying—and it is just common sense—that it is far easier to conceal and kill with a handgun than any other weapons. Assaults with handguns are five times more likely to cause death than those with any other instrument."

How many more killings and maimings do there have to be before the American government and its leaders recognize the common sense of effective gun control?

Claims Scare Tactic

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer
SEATTLE (AP)—The chairman of the nation's Democratic governors has accused Republicans of scare tactics in warning that Democrats could gain a "veto-proof Congress" in the November elections.

"The term 'veto-proof Congress' is merely a cynical ploy to detract from the most important issues of 1974," Gov. Wendell H. Ford, D-Ky., said Tuesday as sharp partisanship broke out at the 66th National Governors' Conference.

The conference ends today with the annual business session at which the governors are expected to adopt a broad resolution urging campaign reform and other measures to deal with Watergate-type abuses, steps already taken by many states.

The conference also is expected to elect Gov. Calvin L. Rampton, D-Utah, as next year's chairman, succeeding Gov. Daniel J. Evans, R-Wash.

The partisan verbal battle began when Kenneth R. Cole Jr., President Nixon's top domestic policy aide, said during a panel discussion Tuesday morning that election of a "veto-proof Congress" might doom the revenue-sharing program.

Then Gov. Winfield Dunn, R-Tenn., chairman of the Republican Governors Association, said in an interview he was frightened by the thought of a Congress so heavily Democratic it "would give George McGovern and Hubert Humphrey the opportunity to run our country which they didn't get in the 1968 and 1972 presidential races."

"I take strong exception to a thread of political propaganda which has run through this conference from invited members of the present national administration," Ford told a news conference.

He said he considered it "no less than a rude assault against the integrity of all Democratic members of Congress" by implying they will always vote a certain way.

He said he hopes the Democrats attain a two-thirds control of the House and Senate that would give them the numerical strength to override presidential vetoes, but he said he objected to GOP efforts "to use the term to scare people."

Short of the three-fourths control needed to pass resolutions, Democratic governors at the meeting decided against trying to put the conference on record in favor of a tax cut to fight inflation or to raise any Watergate-related matters other than a bipartisan ethics resolution sponsored by Govs. William G. Milliken, R-Mich., and Patrick J. Lucey, D-Wis.

Instead, they authorized Ford to report they believe the nation needs "tax reform and relief for middle and lower income individuals coupled with selective budget cuts."

In other developments: —The Democrats elected Gov. Wendell R. Anderson, D-Minn., to succeed Ford as conference chairman. Gov. Philip W. Noel of Rhode Island was elected vice chairman.

—The Republican governors decided tentatively to hold their next meeting in St. Louis after the November elections.

—Democratic National Chairman Robert S. Strauss and GOP Chairman George Bush advised the governors at separate party breakfasts of efforts to work with the General Accounting Office to ease strict enforcement of minor cam-

UNREQUITED PRAYER
Shakespeare wrote: "We, ignorant of ourselves Beg often our own harms, which the wise powers Deny us for our good; so find we profit By losing of our prayer." How then are we to pray? Are we to make no definite petitions? Of course we are. We are to tell God what we want, but always we are to end our prayers with the declaration that we want these things only if they are consistent with God's will.

Elections Stir No Excitement

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Watergate, lack of competition and general apathy apparently are keeping people away from the polls this year.

An Associated Press spot check showed low voter turnout in most areas that have held primaries or special elections so far this year.

Eight primaries were held Tuesday, but only one—in California—generated any real excitement.

Politicians attribute the lack of interest to a variety of causes. Some say the Watergate scandal has caused a distrust of all elected officials; others claim there simply were no major issues to bring out the voters.

In Michigan, only about 30 per cent of the registered voters turned out for a special election to fill the seat formerly held by Vice President Gerald R. Ford. The race was won by a Democrat, Richard VanderVeen.

"Watergate killed us," said William McLaughlin, state Republican chairman, and Robert Eleveid, the county GOP leader agreed. Eleveid said Republican voters stayed home, while Democrats went to the polls.

President Nixon helped boost the turnout in another Michigan district, the 8th, where 54 per cent of the registered voters balloted. Democrat Bob Traxler defeated Republican James Sparling.

The President visited the district at the invitation of the GOP candidate. "Nixon increased the voter turnout, but helped change few minds," said Sparling.

The North Carolina board of elections said voter turnout in the state's May 7 primary was 35.1 per cent, compared to a normal off-year turnout of 40 to 42 per cent. The main contest was for nominations for U.S. senator.

State Republican Chairman Thomas Bennett said the low number of voters "was due to the fact that there was no general or widespread enthusiasm for any of the U.S. Senate candidates."

In Indiana, state officials estimated only 25 per cent of the three million or so registered voters balloted in May 7 primaries. They said that the previous low turnout was 28.32 per cent in the 1970 off-year primaries.

"The turnout indicates apathy that I think is caused by Watergate, President Nixon's tax troubles and the state of the economy," said William Trisler, the state Democratic chairman.

More than half the estimated voters in Alabama turned out for the May 7 primary in Alabama, compared to 62 per cent who voted in the 1970 primary. Political leaders, including Gov. George C. Wallace who was easily renominated, predicted in advance that the turnout would be low because of a lack of major competition. There was a runoff Tuesday in Alabama for the lieutenant governor's spot.

Moose Receive Service Award

TROPHY—Greenville lodge Secretary E. M. Baldree presents Mooseheart's first-place award in the field of community service to Past-Governor Garland Beddard (right) and last year's Civic Affairs chairman William Shaw.

The Greenville Moose Lodge received Monday night their eleventh award from Mooseheart for work in the field of community service. The trophy, won in competition among Moose Lodges in the United States and Canada for the 1973-74 year, was presented Garland Beddard and William Shaw, Governor and Civic Affairs chairman respectively for that year, by Secretary

Edwin M. Baldree. Shaw called attention to the work of committeemen and many lodge members as being responsible for the award and recognition accorded Lodge 885. Governor Jack Morgan announced Roy Thompson would serve as Civic Affairs chairman for the coming year, and the next program to be undertaken by the committee was the Little League Field Day on July 4. Four members received recognition for their conservation roles. They were Alton Warren, Jack Morgan, Eugene Hart and Tom Jamieson. Entertainment chairman Don Edgerly announced the next lodge dance would be on Saturday night with music by the Betty Weldon combo. Eight new members were enrolled at the meeting. They were: Charles R. Hayes, Kenneth Spiller, Billie P. Webb, Marty Yancey, Charles E. Boyd, Larry Overby, Johnny A. Simonowich and Bobby L. Tripp.

Mental Checkup For Pot-Grower

FAIRFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A Medal of Honor winner who said he couldn't adjust to being a hero and was growing marijuana as part of his fight for personal freedom has been admitted to a mental institution for observation.

Kenneth Kays, 24, entered the state mental health center at Chester on Tuesday for observation on an emergency hospitalization petition granted by State's Atty. Robert Hawkins of Wayne County at the request of Kays' father, John.

Hawkins said the elder Kays asked him for help when he found his son in an incoherent state at his trailer home.

"The grounds were that the boy was yelling and screaming and was irrational," Hawkins said.

Young Kays was arrested twice and convicted once this spring on charges of cultivation and possession of marijuana. He was placed on probation. Kays openly grew about 100 marijuana plants in a small plot at his father's farm east of this Southern Illinois town of 6,000.

In a recent news interview, he said what he did in Vietnam and what he was doing in Fairfield were parts of his quest for personal freedom to discover himself.

He said marijuana is a tool in discovering the self and he didn't believe the law had the right to take it away from him.

At one point, Kays said, "I can't handle being a hero."

On May 10, 1970, in Vietnam, Kays, a draft resister turned medic, repeatedly crawled beyond his lines under fire, even after his left leg was shot away, to treat and rescue wounded soldiers. After his discharge in December 1970, he returned to live in a trailer home behind his mother's house.

Responded To 21 Calls

During the month of May, a total of 21 fire alarms were received in Pitt County covering a total of 20 fires, according to Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner.

Automobile fires led the list of types of fires, with seven alarms called in for car fires. There were also two house fires, three fires in buildings other than houses, three grass or woods fires, one instance of mutual aid—where one station goes to the aid of another—and five fires listed in the miscellaneous or "other" category.

In one of the lowest loss records in many months, an estimated total of only $2,900 was lost in the month period due to fires. Estimated value of property involved in fires was $32,900, with another $116,000 in estimated property value exposed to the fires.

The Farmville Fire Department was the most active during May, with a total of five alarms answered by that station.

Area Students On Dean's List

RALEIGH—Two area students have made the Dean's List for the spring semester at St. Mary's College in Raleigh. In order to be eligible for the Dean's List, a student must carry a minimum of fourteen academic hours with a quality point ratio of 3.25 or higher and maintain the status of a student in good standing with the Faculty and the honor board of the Student Government Association.

Those students attaining the Dean's List include: Miss Margaret Lewis Stevens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Stevens of Greenville and Miss Jessica Gay Fleming, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Fleming of Grifton.

Another Evening Aboard Yacht

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has spent another evening on the Potomac aboard the presidential yacht Sequoia.

Nixon dined aboard the vessel Tuesday with White House Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig Jr., Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and a Kissinger aide, Brig. Gen. Brent Scowcroft. A spokesman said the group discussed the Mideast situation and Nixon's upcoming trip to Moscow.

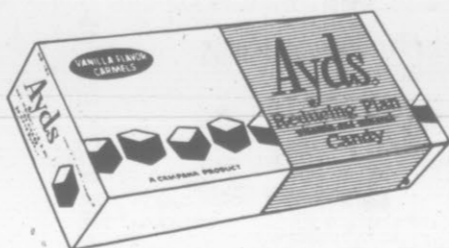

The President has dined aboard the yacht several times in recent weeks.

Shale Oil Is Still Elusive

By JOHN A. WEBSTER
ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — An Albuquerque research organization is experimenting with a method of extracting oil from Rocky Mountain shale deposits without removing the shale from the ground or using nuclear devices.

The Atomic Energy Commission, in cooperation with private industry, has been working for years on the "in situ," or in place, method of extracting oil locked in the tight shale formations.

But the AEC's methods, used in such projects as Grubbuggy in New Mexico and Rulison in Colorado, have employed nuclear devices to shatter the shale and release the oil. The use of nuclear explosions led to environmentalist outcries.

The Albuquerque experiments, by the Energy Technology Department of the private Sandia Laboratories, would be an alternative to nuclear devices. The experiments also could provide a cheaper method of getting the oil.

"Successful completion of the project would go a long way toward helping the country build up a large reserve of competitively priced oil," said H.M. Stoller, head of the Sandia project.

Stoller said his department will investigate the "in situ" treatment of other fossil fuels such as coal, but the initial experiments will be concerned with oil shale.

"In situ treatment should have the advantage of minimal environmental impact," he said. "Other forms of oil shale treatment would leave large amounts of shale on the surface after processing."

"In situ processing would also be safer than either underground or surface mining."

Oil shale deposits in Colorado, Wyoming and Utah are estimated at 1.8 trillion barrels of oil. The shale oil occurs as a solid bituminous material that yields 25 to 30 gallons of oil per ton of shale.

The cost of the technical problems of removing the oil from the shale has prohibited its commercial development until recent increases in crude oil prices boosted its competitive potential.

Stoller said the method proposed by the lab to remove the oil involves shattering and burning the shale deposits. The oil, now locked in the rock, would be forced to the bottom of the shale bed and could then be pumped to the surface.

The first step in the process, Stoller said, would be drilling of a verticle hole through the shale deposit. Then, the deposit would be caved in with non-nuclear explosives, he said.

Stoller said without the additional space created by the vertical hole, the shattered shale would not be porous enough to burn.

Propane gas would be fed into the rock and ignited, creating a smoldering bed of shale, he said. The heat, approximately 900 degrees, would be high enough to allow the oil to flow to the bottom of the deposit.

"The two most difficult problems appear to be preparation of the test bed—fracturing the rock so it will burn efficiently—and controlling the combustion so that the maximum amount of oil will be produced," Stoller said.

"In addition, we must learn a great deal about the reaction chemistry of oil shale—how temperature, pressure, flow rate and other factors yield quality and quantity."

Ideally, he said, 90 per cent of the oil in the shale would be recovered using the proposed method.

Money for the project is included in AEC funding for the facility, said Jim Mitchell of Sandia's public information office. Mitchell said the lab was not now working with any oil company seeking to develop the oil shale deposits in the western states but said "anything we learn, we'll turn over the private industry."

Stoller said laboratory experiments were already underway on the project, and "subsequently, we hope to conduct full-scale bed preparation tests underground."

"This should be followed within a year after test site acquisition by our first full-scale in situ test, with oil actually pumped to the surface," he said. "A full-sized commercial test could follow in 12 to 24 months with the technology then ready for transfer to private industry for regular use."

Cleaning Bulbs Saves Energy

NEW YORK (UPI) — Clean bulbs, lamps and lampshades save energy—yours and the local electric company. The extra light lessens eyestrain and uses less fuel if it permits you to use a smaller watt bulb.

Keep washable shades clean with an occasional sudsy bath. Clean bulbs and the lamp with a damp cloth—but for safety's sake, unplug the lamp first to avoid shock.

Calories Match A Light Cream

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fluid and dry coffee whiteners generally are made from nondairy ingredients, says Cornell University Cooperative Extension Service.

The main ingredients of fluid whiteners include a vegetable fat which usually is coconut oil. The dry, instant-dissolving whiteners are made up of ingredients similar to the fluid products. The whiteners contain about the same number of calories as light cream.

Special Shades Cut The Glare

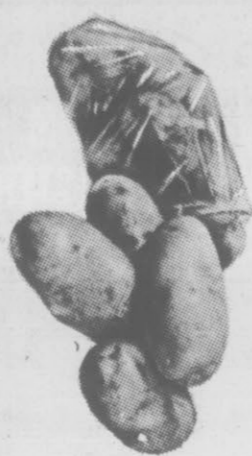

NEW YORK (UPI) — High intensity street lighting is an approved crime deterrent but it has a drawback. The stronger light keeps some people awake nights. Many people solve the problem with room-darkening window shades, says the Window Shade Manufacturers Association.

Chosen in pretty colors, the shades add a decorative note while they cut out glare.

Subversive List
Now 'Abolished'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's list of subversive organizations, born of the post-World War II Red scare, has been killed as serving no useful purpose.

President Nixon issued an executive order Tuesday declaring that the list "is hereby abolished and shall not be used for any purpose."

The action prevents government officials from routinely asking job applicants whether they have ever belonged to any of the 300 groups designated subversive.

Though most government agencies gradually have dropped such questions, the Defense Department had continued to use the list in screening job applicants, said Kevin Maroney, head of the Justice Department's internal security section.

Nixon's order does allow government officials to ask job applicants whether they have ever belonged to the Communist party and to inquire in general terms about membership

Construction In Progress On Governor's Offices

Carolina Tel and Union Resume Talks Tuesday

TARBORO, N.C. (AP)—Talks aimed at ending a strike of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. plant and traffic employees will resume next Tuesday at Rocky Mount.

Company and union representatives met with federal and state mediators for several hours Tuesday at Rocky Mount. There was no word as to progress, if any, toward settling the strike.

Meanwhile, W. E. Marshall, public relations manager for the company, said today that cable cuttings reported Tuesday resulted in a loss of long distance service to the Carteret County towns of Marshallberg and Atlantic.

In addition, he said a disruption of most long distance service following cable cutting was reported in Havelock and the Cherry Point Marine Air Station.

Marshall said service also had been disrupted by cable cutting in Fayetteville, Henderson, Williamston, Washington, Aurora, Wilson and New Bern.

In Fayetteville, Cumberland County Sheriff's Department officers arrested Charles E. Taylor III, 20, a telephone installer and repairman for the company, Tuesday and charged him with cutting telephone lines last Saturday, the day after the strike began. A hearing was scheduled for Taylor in District Court June 13.

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—Construction work now in progress in the state Administration Building will give Gov. Jim Holshouser and his staff a spacious new suite of offices at an as yet unestimated cost.

Space for the new offices was created when State Auditor Henry Bridges and his staff were moved from the first floor of the Administration Building to the second, occupying space left vacant when another state agency moved to the Albemarle Building across the street.

When the work is completed late this summer, Holshouser will have a larger, wood-paneled office, complete with private toilet. His top aide, Gene Anderson, will move into the existing governor's office, which is also paneled and also has a toilet.

Holshouser's staff of 28 aides and secretaries will, for the most part, have spacious individual offices, according to press secretary Jack Childs.

The aides are now working in small, partitioned cubicles and their secretaries generally share common floor space.

No one in the Administration seems to know how much the project will cost. Holshouser's administrative assistant, Phil Kirk, said the new carpets, drapes and furniture will be paid for by unspent funds from the governor's office budget. Bids for them have not yet been received, Kirk said.

He said the governor's office has accumulated a surplus of approximately $50,000 in the past fiscal year. Generally, state agencies can not take unspent funds and use them for other purposes. Exceptions, according to state budget officer Ken Howard, can only be made by the governor, acting as state budget director.

"Putting together a decent governor's office strikes me as a reasonable expense," Howard said.

The cost of moving and erecting partitions for the new offices comes from the budget of the state Division of General Services, the agency charged with maintenance for state buildings.

Director C.W. Williams said he has not calculated the man-hours which the job of renovating the governor's office will eventually consume and thus has no way of knowing how much of his division's budget is being spent on the job.

Kirk, meanwhile, is stacking carpet samples on his desk and refereeing mock arguments among his staff about whether the decor should be Carolina blue or N.C. State red.

"One thing about this old office," he laughed in his cramped cubicle. "You can't get a bunch of protestors in here."

Childs said the new offices will mean that "the next governor won't have to start tearing walls down again. These offices should be sufficient for a while."

That was the opinion of former Gov. Bob Scott, however, when he had the old State Capitol Building renovated to provide a spacious office for the governor and some of his staff.

Holshouser, however, decided he did not want to have his staff walking the block from the capitol to the administration building and decided to keep his office there.

He uses the capitol office only for ceremonial occasions.

Childs indicated that the governor may be motivated by the same idea that keeps many North Carolinians moving into better quarters—keeping up with the Joneses.

"We didn't realize how bad our offices were until we started visiting other states and seeing the offices their governors have," he said.

"Even here in North Carolina, some cabinet officers have better offices than the governor."

Seeking Relief On Babysitting

WASHINGTON, D.C.—First District Congressman Walter Jones today introduced legislation to offer relief to working parents who have been adversely affected by the recently approved Wage and Hour Law as it relates to full time babysitters.

Jones said that his bill was "realistic" and had the approval of Congressman John Dent of Pennsylvania, subcommittee chairman, and the assurance of his assistance in enacting "this much needed legislation."

Senate and later agreed to in conference.

The Jones bill would exempt from full time babysitting coverage a single head of household whose earnings would not exceed $7,500 per year and would further exempt joint heads of households whose total income does not exceed $15,000 per year.

The strike followed a rejection by workers of a three-year contract proposal calling for a 9 per cent increase in wages and benefits the first year and a 7 per cent raise in each of the next two years.

The workers said they wanted an improved pension plan and a cost of living clause in the new contract.

Marshall said repair and maintenance forces, reduced sharply by the walkout, were making "every possible effort" to restore service to near normal.

Lobbying Is Denied

RALEIGH (AP)—The head of Carolina Power & Light Co.'s legal office says the company and a public relations executive are innocent of charges of illegal lobbying.

"We are absolutely convinced that we have complied with the law," W. E. (Dub) Graham Jr. said Tuesday in an interview. "We aren't guilty of this or any other violation of law."

Proposes Nixon For Peace Prize

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—A Lebanese columnist today proposed President Nixon for the 1974 Nobel Peace Prize "for setting the Middle East on the peace path."

"He deserves it for creating an image of a new, even-handed America, striving to lead warring Arabs and Israelis to a just and lasting peace," Michael Abu Jawdeh wrote in the newspaper An Nahar.

"He also deserves it for braving immense security risks and deciding to make a trip to Middle Eastern capitals many of which have long been dead-set against the United States."

The congressman reported that although legislation has been introduced to exempt completely all babysitting coverage, it is predicted that this approach will have little or no chance of being approved by the committee, as presently constituted, which would be required to act upon such legislation.

Former 'Miss World' Victim Of Overdose

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Doctors say former Miss World, Marji Wallace, is in critical condition, suffering from a potentially lethal dosage of a sleep-inducing drug, Doriden.

The doctors, who asked not to be named, said Miss Wallace was placed on a kidney dialysis machine to flush the drug out of her system. The Indianapolis model is in intensive care.

Miss Wallace, 20, a close friend of the late race driver Peter Revson, was described by one doctor as "comatose, and in pretty bad shape."

As a matter of record, he explained, when the wage and hour bill passed the House, babysitters were exempt but this provision was added by the

Asked if Marji might have intentionally taken an overdose of the drug, her father, Dell Wallace, said, "I'd be surprised if she would do anything like that."

Miss Wallace was crowned last November in London, but World pageant organizers revoked her title after publicity about her relationship with British soccer star George Best.

MAYOR BROKE—Friends of cancer-stricken Miami Metro Mayor Jack Ore have pledged $50,000 to help defray expenses incurred by the treatment in hospitals. A benefit soccer game in Miami's Orange Bowl will be held June 28, at which time friends hope to raise $50,000 or more. (AP Wirephoto)

Train Traffic-Blocking Action By Farmville Board

By CAROL B. TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
FARMVILLE—Farmville Police Chief Carl Tanner was given two tough jobs by Town Commissioners last night—to enforce the town's ordinance against trains blocking intersections for more than five minutes, and to enforce the livestock ordinance. Persons in Claremont subdivision are being "trapped in" for from 20 minutes to an hour by trains which are setting off and taking on cars at the Southern Railway Depot. Don Wrought, a Claremont resident who presented the problem, was advised to contact the landowners on either side of the path which now provides another exit to the subdivision. If the landowners requested it, the town would make it a dedicated street and would keep it dragged. Several local residents are keeping ponies in town, even though the ordinance against having any kind of livestock in the city limits was passed June 6, 1972. Chief Tanner was asked to give these persons no more than 30 days to have these animals moved. A public hearing was called for the next regular meeting on the paving of Perry Street from Southern Railroad to Wright Drive. A petition by the landowners was declared sufficient and a paving resolution was adopted. Since there were no persons protesting the action at a public hearing, property on Fields Street Extension was rezoned from light industrial to highway business. Commissioner Leroy Redden reported he is working with Mrs. Etta W. Givens of Wilson on the bringing up to standard of a house she owns, but needs more time, so action was tabled. Local accountant Vance Taylor was chosen to audit the town's Economic Development Administration water system improvement project now underway. Fire Chief H. P. Norman and local citizen Jack Cobb were asked to investigate sites for a new fire station in the south end of town. The station in this area now in use is on the edge of Cobb's Barbecue Restaurant lot and Cobb wishes to purchase the land. The Commissioners said there are no stop lights they know of now that need to be designated as "no right on red" after the new State law allowing one to turn right on red comes into effect July 1. They said that if the need is seen later, they will designate the ones to be different. They agreed with the Department of Transportation Highways Division that the speed limit on the newly improved Highway 264 Bypass within the city limits should be 50 m.p.h. Approval was given to a Planning Board recommendation that a sign about a public hearing be placed on all property requested to be rezoned at the same time the notice of the hearing is placed in the newspaper. The sign would state the date of the hearing, the present zoning and the requested new zoning. The Commissioners were reminded of a public hearing on the 1974-75 budget which will be held June 18 at 7:30 p.m. in the Municipal Courtroom. Approval was given to estimates by Pittsburgh-Des Moines on the construction of the new elevated water tank. The total cost will be around $138,000. James Taylor represented both the Farmville Senior Citizens Club and Sunbeam Chapter No. 49 of the Order of Eastern Star. He said the Senior Citizens need a meeting place and some means of transportation. The OES pointed to the need for tennis courts and a swimming pool on the south side of town. Commissioner Redden volunteered to work with the groups. The town agreed to go along with a new state ruling that up to 40,000 square feet, about an acre, of soil may be disturbed by construction without a sedimentation permit.

Joins City Police Dept.

Michael Wayne Roope, a Warrenton native, has joined the Greenville Police Department and has been assigned to the Uniformed Division, according to Chief Glenn Cannon.

MICHAEL ROOPE

According to the chief, Roope attended Wilson Technical Institute for two years and received his BS degree in law enforcement from Wesleyan College in Rocky Mount last month after two years study there.

Roope joined the cadet program at the local police department last December and worked as a dispatcher here before becoming a regular officer.

The new policeman is married to the former Donna Brauer of Norlina and attends the Baptist church.

Record Field In Spelling Bee

WASHINGTON (AP) — A record field of 40 boys and 40 girls are testing their skills in the 47th National Spelling Bee.

The finalists had been winnowed out of an estimated 7.5 million children who participated in runoffs at the local level.

The contestants represent local newspapers in the contest that is sponsored by Scripps-Howard Newspapers.

Nine contestants are repeaters from previous bees — the largest number ever.

The contestants, who must not have reached their 16th birthday or passed beyond the eighth grade, compete for a total of $6,100 in cash prizes.

Last year, the contestants went through 518 words to decide the champion, Barrie Trinkle, representing the Ft. Worth Press.

The Defense Department announced the trip Tuesday, adding Schlesinger would not fly to Brussels for meetings of NATO defense ministers, as previously planned.

How Tar Heel Senators, Representatives Voted

By ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON—Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes May 23 through May 29.

HOUSE
FEDERAL DEBT CEILING Passed, 191 for and 190 against, a bill to raise the federal debt ceiling from $475 to $495 billion. The Administration had requested a $505 billion ceiling. The bill (H.R. 14832) now goes to the Senate.

Supporters argued that the increase is needed to pay for programs already funded. They said failure to raise the ceiling would result in fiscal chaos. Rep. Al Ullman (D-Ore) said, "We have no alternative but to vote this bill out."

Opponents argued that a lower ceiling would force Congress to cut back on programs that stimulate inflation. Rep. LaMar Baker (R-Tenn) said, "This country has to wake up. . . . We can no longer price ourselves out of existence."

Rep. Richardson Preyer (D-6) voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L. H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Ike Andrews (D-4), Wilmer Mizell (R-5), Charles Rose (D-7), Earl Ruth (R-8), James Martin (R-9), James Broyhill (R-10) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "nay."

ABORTIONS Passed, 290 for and 91 against, an amendment to bar the use of federal anti-poverty funds "for medical assistance and supplies" for abortions.

The amendment was offered to a bill to dismantle the Office of Economic Opportunity by turning over the most of its functions to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (H.R. 14449).

Supporters of the amendment argued that taxpayer's dollars should not be used for abortions.

Opponents argued that the amendment would discriminate against poor women. One opponent, Rep. Donald Fraser (D-Minn) said that in barring the funds "we would not outlaw abortion, we would only outlaw it for poor people."

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Mizell, Preyer, Ruth and Taylor voted "yea."

Rose and Martin voted "nay." Broyhill did not vote.

ANTI-POVERTY PROGRAM Rejected, 94 for and 284 against, an amendment to give the Secretary of HEW total control of community action agencies, the core units of the Great Society's War on Poverty.

In rejecting the amendment, the House voted to keep language to create an independent Community Action Administration within HEW. The new administration would fund local anti-poverty efforts, such as day-care centers and job programs, that now are funded by the Office of Economic Opportunity. OEO will go out of existence on June 30, 1974.

Supporters argued that anti-poverty efforts should be under Administration control. They said creating an independent Community Action

Administration merely perpetuates OEO, but with a new name. Rep. Albert Quie (R-Minn) argued against "letting the whole thing go on as before."

Opponents argued that community action programs need to be insulated from the Administration because it wants to gut anti-poverty efforts. Rep. William Steiger (R-Wis) said Congress must tell HEW "that we believe in the independence of community action."

Fountain, Mizell, Ruth and Martin voted "yea."

Jones, Henderson, Andrews, Preyer, Rose and Taylor voted "nay."

Broyhill did not vote.

NEW POVERTY AGENCY Passed, 331 for and 53 against, a bill to dismantle OEO. The bill (H.R. 14449), however, would keep most OEO programs alive by transferring them to HEW. It now goes to the Senate.

The bill authorizes $3.7 billion in anti-poverty funds for fiscal years 1975 through 1977, with $1 billion earmarked for the nation's 900 community agencies (above vote).

Supporters argued that the government is obliged to help the poor improve their lot. Most of those voting against agreed with President Nixon that the War on Poverty has been largely a failure.

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Preyer, Rose, Martin and Taylor voted "yea."

Mizell and Ruth voted "nay." Broyhill did not vote.

SENATE
INTERNATIONAL AID Passed, 55 for and 27 against, a bill to loan $1.5 billion to poor nations by way of the International Development Association, the so-called "soft loan window" of the World Bank. Borrowing nations have fifty years to pay back loans, at one per cent interest. The loans pay for electrical plants and other basic economic improvements. The bill (S. 26650 now goes to the House, which rejected a similar bill last January.

Supporters argued that the loans are needed desperately by the world's poorest nations, such as Bangladesh, to keep one step ahead of starvation. Other members said a healthy world economy helps the U. S. Sen. John Tower (R-Texas) said the IDA is "a channel for bridging the gap" between the rich world and the poor world.

Opponents argued that the money could be better used domestically for such things as home mortgages. Sen. Harry Byrd (I-Va) said, "This throwing away of tax funds . . . must come to a halt."

Sens. Sam Ervin (D) and Jesse Helms (R) voted "nay."

SOVIET AID Tabled, 59 for and 25 against, an amendment to bar Export-Import Bank loans to non-market economy nations, such as Russia.

The amendment was offered to the International Development Association bill (above vote), although the IDA is not related to the Export-Import Bank.

In tabling the amendment, the Senate voted to permit loans to Communist countries.

Those voting to table argued that the amendment could restrict Secretary of State Kissinger's ability to extract trade concessions from the Soviets. Other members argued that the question was too important to be considered as a non-germane amendment to the IDA bill.

In agruing against the move to table, Sen. Peter Dominick (R-Colo) said, "There must be some kind of insanity" in a policy that gives loans to the Soviets while America is hard-pressed economically.

Ervin and Helms voted "nay."

Extra care in engineering...it makes a big difference in small cars.

Buying a small car?

ASK YOUR FORD, GM OR VOLKSWAGEN DEALER IF HE CAN MATCH CHRYSLER CORPORATION'S SMALL CARS ON THESE SEVEN IMPORTANT POINTS!

Does his car get better fuel economy?

FACT: In a recent fuel economy test, under both city and highway driving conditions, Plymouth Duster and Dodge Dart Sport with 225 "Slant Six" engines got much better mileage than either Nova or Maverick sixes. In fact, our "Slant Sixes" even did better than the four-cylinder Mustang II in light city driving.* Of course, the mileage you get depends on many factors, including how and where you drive and the condition of your vehicle.

Does his car have more hiproom than Dodge Dart or Plymouth Valiant and Duster?

FACT: Dodge Dart and Plymouth Valiant and Duster have more hiproom to seat you comfortably than any car in their price class offered by Ford, GM or Volkswagen.

Does his car have Electronic Ignition as standard equipment?

FACT: While some models of some cars are beginning to offer Electronic Ignition, only Chrysler Corporation, first to offer Electronic Ignition as standard equipment, offers it as standard equipment again this year on every car it makes in North America.

Can his car match Plymouth Valiant and Duster or Dodge Dart for easy maintenance?

FACT: With standard Electronic Ignition, you can save up to $62 every 24,000 miles with a 6, up to $90 with an 8, on recommended ignition maintenance over competitive 6's and 8's like Nova's. And, Chrysler's TorqueFlite transmission has no required maintenance under normal driving conditions.

How does his car compare with Plymouth Duster or Dodge Dart Sport for trunk space?

FACT: Plymouth Duster and Dodge Dart Sport have the largest capacity by far in the small-car field, three times as much as Ford's Pinto, and twice as much as Volkswagen or GM's Vega.

Does his car offer Unibody Construction and Torsion-Bar Suspension?

FACT: Only the small cars from Chrysler Corporation give you both the features of Torsion-Bar Suspension (a different way to obtain a comfortable ride) and all-welded Unibody.

Is his car priced lower than a Plymouth Duster or a Dodge Dart Sport?

FACT: We believe there is no car in the Ford, GM or VW lineup priced less and still offering the combination of value, economy, room, comfort and engineering features found in the small cars from Chrysler Corporation.

Williamston Bd. Considers Traffic Hazard Report

WILLIAMSTON—Based on a report by the Williamston Rescue Squad, Town Commissioners Monday night were asked to consider steps to alleviate dangerous traffic conditions in and around the town.

Depart On June 12 For FBLA Meet

Two members and one sponsor of the Ayden-Grifton Chapter of the Future Business Leaders of America will leave on June 12 for San Francisco, Calif., to attend the 23rd annual FBLA National Leadership Conference.

FBLA is the national youth organization for high school students who plan to enter careers in business or business education.

The national organization has chartered over 5,800 chapters in the United States and has membership of 106,000 students. Approximately 1,700 high school members and advisers from all over the United States are expected at this year's conference.

The major business of the meeting is the election of national officers for the 1974-75 school year and a series of competitive events between chapters and between state delegations.

Events include public speaking, typing, accounting, a spelling relay, parliamentary procedure demonstrations, and the selection of a Mr. and Miss Future Business Leader.

In the report, a spokesman for the rescue squad revealed a study shows that in the past two and one-half years, serious accidents have been frequent at the cross-road adjacent to the Roanoke River bridge of the U. S. 17 by-pass. In that period, there has occurred 19 accidents, with four fatalities and 18 injuries, and extensive property damage.

A warning light or blinking light was recommended to warn motorists of this hazardous intersection.

Another request is for the relocation of a cross-over on U. S. 17 south of Williamston, to permit turn-in from that highway to McGaskey Road leading to the new hospital. As now positioned, the cross-over involves additional traveling and cut-back to reach the hospital road.

A third condition for which rescue people are seeking assistance is that of house numbering. Their study shows many Williamston houses are not numbered or are improperly numbered.

Commissioners are taking the recommendations under review and will seek immediate remedial action on these conditions.

Haywood Harris, director of Martin County Community Action, presented a budget request for $3,500 support from Williamston funds. This will be discussed at the budget meetings to be held soon.

Commissioners denied a union request by strikers of Carolina

Telephone and Telegraph to be granted a permit to parade for the duration of the strike. Strikers must continue to apply for and be granted a day by day permit for parading with signs. Approval was given Curtis

Leathers for installing one pool table and one pin-ball machine at James Service Station on Washington Street.

Several ordinances and amendments were adopted. These include: an ordinance prohibiting loud, disturbing and unnecessary noise in town; an amendment to the sub-division ordinance that will allow 40 foot streets in areas already in planning prior to adoption of a new sub-division ordinance requiring 50 feet streets; an ordinance making disposal of glass bottles, tin cans or other refuse on city streets, sidewalks or in parking lots unlawful; an ordinance eliminating parking spaces near the intersection of Washington and Main Streets; and an ordinance on Planned Use Report anticipation for use of Revenue Sharing Funds for the period July 1, 1974 to June 30, 1975. The funds are expected to amount to a little over $169,000.

A public hearing for July was set for rezoning property owned by Mrs. Louie P. Martin between Park Drive and Woodside Avenue; and the town attorney was directed to draft a fair housing ordinance to incorporate into the town's Workable Program.

Town commissioners have directed the town engineer to look into the possibility of extending, in the future, water and sewer lines to land outside the one mile jurisdiction which has been donated for construction of a Christian Church Retirement Center.

Approval was given to Jack Holt, chairman of the Martin County Bicentennial-Committee, to use a mobile home for a bicentennial office on the Belk-Tyler Parking lot from now through October.

LA PAZ (AP) — Two colonels reportedly led a military revolt against President Hugo Banzer Suarez late Tuesday night, but the government claimed today that the attempt had been smashed.

Ordered To Assist Victim's Children

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Instead of going to jail for five years, a Miami postal worker has been ordered to pay $7,500 toward the education of the children of a man he killed in an auto accident.

"I decided to help the victim's two small children, who have been left without a father," Circuit Judge Sidney Weaver said after ruling on Richard Urso's no-contest plea to manslaughter charges.

Weaver ordered Urso to pay $1,500 for the next five years of a probation sentence. The money is to go to a fund for Gregory Pough, 2, and his sister, Sabrina, 6.

Raymond Pough, a porter, died of injuries suffered last October when Urso's car ran a red light and struck Pough's auto.

"The money will be set up in a trust fund for the two children," Weaver said in the order made public Tuesday. "As each one reaches the age of 18, it will be available for their education."

Urso, 35, also is the father of two small children. He is acting supervisor of the Biscayne Annex post office and earns $11,500 a year.

The idea was accepted wholeheartedly by Pough's widow, Linda, 22.

Union 'Political Education' Outlays Under Attack

By ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republicans object to the villain role in the current congressional campaign reform drama. The real bad guys, they say, are the ones behind the union buttons.

The specific GOP complaint, which gained volume as Democrats rolled up four victories in five special House elections this year, is that unions have so distorted their legal right to engage in "political education" among their members that organized labor now acts as a tool of the Democratic party.

This is not a new charge, but GOP spokesmen were notably quiet about their old union antagonists during the party's "New Republican Majority" phase, which peaked when the AFL-CIO withheld its support from the Democratic presidential candidate in 1972.

Now the GOP-union honeymoon is over and Republicans claim Democrats are getting help from unions in skilled manpower and material assistance that violates the spirit—if not the letter—of the law.

Republican National Chairman George Bush, in a speech last winter, voiced the suspicion that in the Pennsylvania special election unions had provided personnel and services—so-called "in-kind" aid—that exceeded their right to inform members on political issues.

In-Depth Probe Urged
"What is needed is an in-depth, across-the-board investigation of the campaign spending practices of some of the big labor spenders," Bush said. "Alexander Barkan at COPE (the AFL-CIO's Committee On Political Education) should be the leadoff witness. COPE is really a political arm of the Democratic party."

Bush's complaint came after the Democrats won the first special election. After the fifth race, Rep. Robert Michel of Illinois, chairman of the House Republican Congressional Committee, estimated unions made unreported in-kind contributions of more than $50,000 per race in addition to cash donations—which the law says must be voluntary contributions of union members.

Michel said labor contributed $95,000 of a total $151,000 reported by the successful Democratic House candidates in Pennsylvania, Ohio and two Michigan districts, in addition to in-kind assistance.

A spokesman for COPE said that because many took part there was no way to estimate the value of labor's in-kind services which went into the special election campaigns. But he emphasized that care was taken to restrict dues funds to legally permissible political education activities directed at union members and their families.

The spokesman agreed that COPE, as well as many union officers in the congressional districts and states involved, had made a concentrated effort in the special election campaigns.

Register By-Pass
Republican officials, citing newspaper reports and other sources, said national and regional COPE campaign experts, as well as officials of individual unions schooled in politics, descended on the four districts captured by the Democrats. They said the unions had spent $11,000 for 23 hotel rooms in Johnstown, Pa., and were able to bring people in and out to work on the campaign without the necessity of registering them by name.

Republicans also objected to use of union mailing lists and computerized labeling services donated to their opponents, but on this point an official of one union took sharp exception.

"Republicans have it all over the Democrats when it comes to using computers in campaigns," he said. "Lots of businesses and banks have them and let them be used and they can split up work so that no one is really burdened."

He also said the American Medical Association's political action organization, AMPAC, had a sophisticated computer operation used mostly by GOP candidates.

Labor's Input
Republican objections to union campaign activities are not confined to post-election gripes. First, a number of Republican candidates probably will campaign against "Big Labor" this year, and GOP members of Congress may make a strong effort to put new legal restrictions on "in-kind" contributions by unions.

Michel hinted at this in a speech to the Republican National Committee April 26, when he ticked off labor's contributions to the four new Democratic House members and said: "So, what the American people thought they were rejecting by such an overwhelming vote for the presidency in November of 1972, they are getting in ever-increasing doses in the Congress."

Michel was bitter about what he called labor's "tremendous" input of unreported resources to the Democrats, and said "all this pious talk about campaign reform legislation is just so much baloney if we go all through the motions and don't address ourselves to these heretofore unreported in-kind contributions."

Nixon's Proposal
Nixon avoided singling out labor—and in fact his proposal also would crack down on business and professional organizations that dabble in politics. But his plan to outlaw in-kind contributions clearly would affect unions most.

"Because there is as much room for abuse with in-kind contributions as with financial ones," the President said in his message to Congress. "I believe we should prohibit all in-kind donations by any organization other than a major political party."

"Any in-kind contribution by an individual would, of course, continue to be permissible, but would have to be disclosed as to both donor and recipient, with an open report of its reasonable value. These personal in-kind donations would come within the same ceiling limitations as monetary contributions and would apply towards the ceiling amounts for Senate, House and presidential elections."

According to one union political agent, Nixon's proposal would "end labor's role in politics as we now know it." He said a lawyer or businessman might be able to take leave to help a candidate, but a factory worker could not afford to.

Telephone Co. Lines Are Cut

By The Associated Press
Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. reported today that several long distance lines in eastern North Carolina had been cut.

The company blamed the partial disruption of its long distance service on sabotage by members of the striking Communications Workers of America.

But the FBI, which has been called into the case, said it had no evidence as yet that there had been sabotage.

A CT&T spokesman said that the Carteret County towns of Marshallburg and Atlantic lost all long distance service Tuesday night after the cables were cut.

He said that the same incident disrupted long distance service to portions of the town of Havelock and the U.S. Marine Corps air base at Cherry Point. Disruption of the Marine installation's telephone service led to the calling of the FBI.

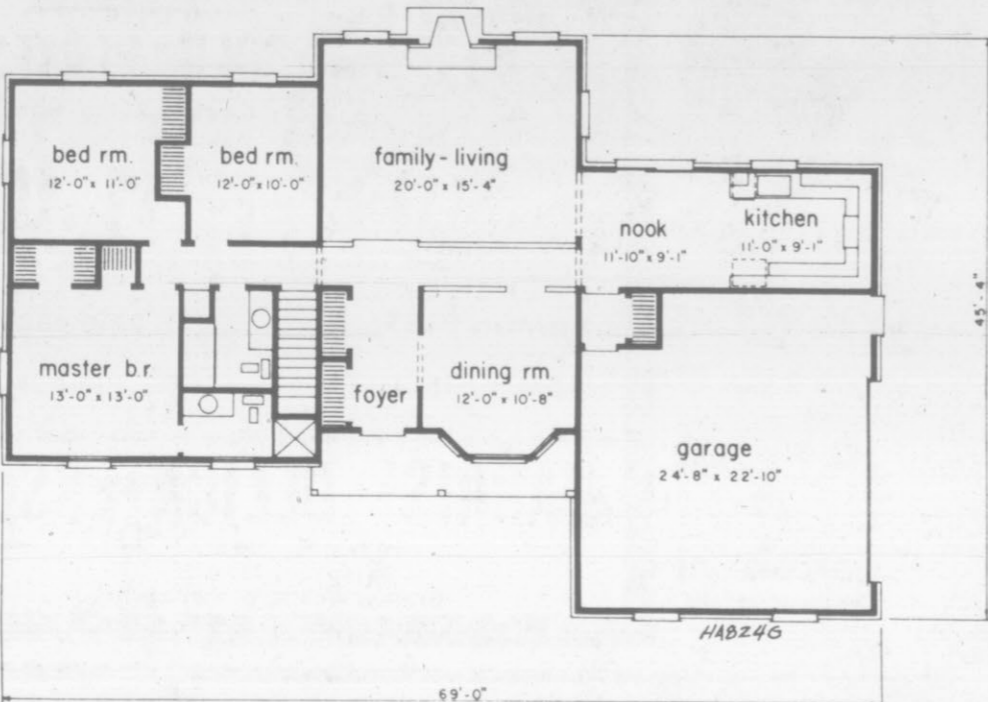

CT&T said minor disruptions of service occurred because of cable cutting in Fayetteville, Henderson, Williamston, Washington, Wilson and ten other communities.

Members of the Communication Workers have been striking since last week, when they voted to reject a contract offer which had been accepted by their bargaining agents.

More negotiations, assisted by state and federal mediators, are expected to resume on June 11.

CT&T serves 38 counties in eastern North Carolina with 370,000 customers.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina f.o.b. dock broilers: Market steady today with this week's weighted average price at 35.79 cents per pound. Market tone for next week is unsettled. Supplies about adequate, demand good and weights desirable. Estimated slaughter 1,203,000.

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock market prices slipped back today in the face of a still-uncertain outlook on interest rates. The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 6.41 at 822.28, and losers maintained a 5 to 3 lead over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Weyerhaeuser, the Big Board's most-active issue was down 2 1/2 at 36 1/2, and Louisiana-Pacific lost 1 1/2 to 14 1/2. Brokers traced selling pressure on the stocks to reports of weakening Japanese demand for logs.

Semiconductor stocks also continued their recent decline, with Fairchild Camera down 1 1/2 at 44 1/2; National Semiconductor, 1/2 at 16 1/2; and Texas Instruments, 3/4 at 100 1/2.

Electronics industry analysts noted some signs of a slowing of orders, which they said was to be expected after a long boom in the companies' business.

Must Relabel Most Antacids
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Food and Drug Administration says virtually all antacids will have to be relabeled and some reformulated to comply with the first federal standards for nonprescription drugs.

Under the FDA regulations, announced Tuesday, antacids can be promoted in the future only for treatment of heartburn, sour stomach and acid indigestion.

The manufacturers of almost 8,000 brands of antacids are being given one year to relabel and reformulate their products or pull them off the market.

Big-selling products such as Alka-Seltzer and Bromo-Seltzer, which combine an antacid with a pain reliever, will be required to stress that they are intended for use only against concurrent symptoms of headache and acid indigestion.

The labels also will have to include a section alerting consumers to other possible problems associated with the products.

To the voters in Pitt and Greene Counties, I would like to express my deep appreciation for the overwhelming vote of confidence bestowed upon me in the recent primary. As a native of this "Garden Spot" it was most gratifying to be sustained by so large a majority.

As the November elections draw nearer and a difficult campaign progresses, much effort and money will be needed. No effort, help or support will be too small to be gratefully received.

Remember me in your Prayers.

Sincerely,

Jim Newcomb,

Candidate for Chief Justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court

His Bequest Is To Alcoa

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP)—A retired employe of the Aluminum Company of America has bequeathed his life savings of nearly $50,000 to the Alcoa Foundation, which has well over $100 million in resources.

Andrew John Peldich, who worked as a pump repairman at the firm's plant in East St. Louis until his retirement 18 years ago, led a frugal life until he died at age 82 last September.

Without a family and detached from his native Yugoslavia since his emigration in 1914, Peldich left his savings for the foundation to disperse among various educational, welfare and cultural projects.

The contribution was disclosed Tuesday in an edition of The Alcoa News, a company publication.

Peldich's special loyalty to the Pittsburgh-based firm came from the help it gave him in becoming a U.S. citizen, the story said.

Tar Heel Hurt In Crash-Landing

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—A Dunn, N.C., man escaped serious injury Tuesday when he crash-landed his plane in a clearing shortly after his single-engine aircraft took off from DeKalb Peachtree Airport.

The Federal Aviation Administration said 58-year-old Ben B. Hartsfield radioed the tower shortly after takeoff, saying he had engine trouble and asked permission to land.

He was granted permission but was advised the wheels were not down properly on his Mooney 21, which then overflew the runway at the airport and came down in a clearing.

Hartsfield was reported in satisfactory condition at DeKalb General Hospital.

town to purchase the property, then we want to see the facility sold immediately and dismantled, cleaned up. It is an eyesore to the town and the citizens in the area," Persinger said.

J.J. Brown, mayor pro tem of Ayden, stated he was very concerned about the condition of the property. He explained it was embarrassing for residents in the area to have someone come in and visit in the community.

Another concerned Ayden citizen said if the facility was converted to a recreational center that crime in the area would be almost eliminated. The young people in the Ayden area would have somewhere to go for recreational activities.

The board said the matter would be taken under advisement and a decision would be announced later.

John Moye, representing four property owners of the C. Heber Forbes farm, located adjacent to the Pitt County School Bus Garage, asked permission to use the front portion of the present entrance to the garage.

Moye explained to the board that the owners are thinking of developing the property and that needed exits and entrances on both N.C. 11 and U.S. 264 are desired.

The property owners would be responsible for having the road constructed, drainage and curb and gutter. The road would require about 10 feet of land beyond the curb and gutter. Also needed would be 144 running feet on one side of the road and 210 feet on the other side. The farm consists of 72 acres.

The board granted Moye permission to use the present road in developing his land. A group of Winterville citizens appeared before the board seeking restoration of the budgeted amount of $175,000 for construction of four kindergarten classrooms at Robinson Primary School.

Will Retain Woodcock

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A union constitutional amendment has paved the way for Leonard Woodcock to head the 1.5 million United Auto Workers' 1976 contract negotiations with Big Three automakers.

The amendment, allowing officers to serve three-year rather than two-year terms, had been advocated because Woodcock would have had to retire.

UAW officers no longer can be candidates after turning 65, which Woodcock will reach within two years.

His re-election to a third term was expected to be little more than a formality today.

A sometimes-sharp debate raged for more than two hours on the three-year term proposal, however, led by a group of delegates known as the United National Caucus.

Woodcock presented the UAW's Social Justice Award to Katharine Graham, publisher of the Washington Post, and reporters Carl Bernstein and Robert Woodward, for the Post's coverage of Watergate.

"This is the kind of job the press should do all the time," Mrs. Graham said in accepting the award.

California Voters OK Political Reform Law

By LEE GOULD
Associated Press Writer
California voters will choose between the liberal son of a past governor and a Princeton-educated former college government professor when they elect a governor in November.

Democrat Edmund G. Brown Jr., the 36-year-old son and namesake of the man defeated by Ronald Reagan in 1966, and Republican Houston I. Flournoy won party nominations in California's primary election Tuesday.

Flournoy, 44, now state controller and a former state legislator, won the GOP gubernatorial nomination in a landslide victory over Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke. Flournoy, who holds a Ph.D. from Princeton, is considered a moderate Republican.

Reinecke, once considered a favorite, suffered a blow April 3 when a Watergate grand jury indicted him on a perjury charge in the ITT case.

Brown, 36, was one of 18 Democrats, including San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto and State Assembly Speaker

C. P. Shaw, spokesman for the group, explained there are some 897 lots that have been recently sold or are available for purchase in the Winterville School District. That alone, according to Shaw, shows the need for immediate expansion of the kindergarten program.

"When the allocation for Robinson School was withdrawn and given to the Ayden Community, I feel it was a hasty decision on the part of this board and consideration should be given to the Winterville area," Shaw said.

"Robinson has been used to its limit for years," Shaw said. "The South Ayden school could be renovated and used for a school facility cheaper than a new facility can be built."

"Our project has been dropped on the priority list and we feel it should remain on the list as the number four priority as the board approved earlier this year," Shaw said.

Shaw said it would seem logical to expand the kindergarten facilities at Robinson now, as it appears the city and county school systems consolidation is inevitable.

"We are in sympathy with the town of Ayden, but at the same time we don't feel that we should suffer because of them," Shaw said.

"It seems that if the Ayden community was entitled to reevaluation of its needs, then Winterville is due the same courtesy," Shaw emphasized.

"It is interesting to note that in 1960-62, the last construction took place at both Robinson and South Ayden Schools. Since that time, Robinson has continued to be used to its maximum capacity, while South Ayden has been abandoned."

The board adjourned at 5:15 p.m. to meet with the Pitt County Board of Education to review the 1974-75 budget.

Associate Superintendent Tom Craft gave a brief explanation of the items included on the budget and explained why some areas had increased in amounts over last year's budget figure.

Bob Moretti, who sought the Democratic nomination. He had based his campaign on support for Proposition 9, a Watergate-inspired initiative that would reform campaign practices. The proposition was approved.

In South Dakota, Thorsness, 42, who spent six years in a North Vietnam prison camp and who holds the Medal of Honor, said he did not see the war as a major election issue.

Thorsness, who had announced his intentions to seek McGovern's seat shortly after returning to the United States last year, said, "The war is over. I hope we've learned our lesson. I hope we don't have to re-fight that war in this campaign."

IOWA—State Rep. David Stanley won the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by Democrat Harold E. Hughes, Stanley, who lost a bid for the Senate to Hughes by 6,415 votes in 1968, will be matched against James H. Meredith, who broke down racial barriers at the University of Mississippi a decade ago, was a surprise leader in a five-way Democratic congressional primary in Mississippi. He faces a run-off election June 25.

—Congressmen seeking reelection in the eight states holding primaries Tuesday had little difficulty securing renomination by their parties. Many faced no-or token—primary opposition.

Flournoy, 44, now state controller and a former state legislator, won the GOP gubernatorial nomination in a landslide victory over Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke. Flournoy, who holds a Ph.D. from Princeton, is considered a moderate Republican.

Reinecke, once considered a favorite, suffered a blow April 3 when a Watergate grand jury indicted him on a perjury charge in the ITT case.

Brown, 36, was one of 18 Democrats, including San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto and State Assembly Speaker

Rep. John Culver, D-Iowa, in the general election. Culver was unopposed. James Schaben, state senate minority leader, won the three-man Democratic primary for governor and will face incumbent Republican Gov. Robert D. Ray, who was unopposed.

ALABAMA—Lt. Gov. Jere Beasley, who ran behind millionaire Charles Woods in the first primary May 7, fought back to win renomination in the Democratic runoff. Beasley offered a helping hand to Gov. George C. Wallace, who was renominated for an unprecedented third in the first primary four weeks ago.

NEW JERSEY—All incumbent congressmen seeking another term were renominated without serious challenge.

MONTANA—Democrat Max Baucus and Jack McDonald, a Republican who recently bolted the Democratic party, won congressional nominations to face incumbents who were unopposed in the primary. In November, Baucus will challenge Republican Rep. Dick Shoup while McDonald will face Democratic Rep. John Melcher.

SUSPECT ROBBERY IN GUN DEATH

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A 67-year-old Charlotte cafe operator was shot to death Tuesday in what police believe was a robbery.

James Harris was shot once in the head with a .22 caliber bullet. He was found dead in his small cafe. Police said the cash register in the grill was open and contained only small change. Harris's wallet was still in his pocket, but contained no currency.

A neighbor told police she heard what could have been a shot about 2:30 p.m. Harris was found dead a short time later.

BEER NIGHT—A policeman escorts a woman off the field at Lakefront Stadium on Tuesday during a game between the Texas Rangers and the Cleveland Indians. Spectators and players skirmished on the field and the game was declared a 9-0 forfeit with the Rangers the victors. (AP Wirephoto)

Cleveland Fans Riot On Field

By RICHARD BILOTTI
AP Sports Writer
CLEVELAND (AP) — "It's the closest I've ever seen anybody come to getting killed in my more than 25 years in baseball," Texas Ranger Manager Billy Martin said.

The Cleveland Indians and the Rangers tried to play baseball Tuesday night, but the fans ran on the field, threw beer bottles, firecrackers, chairs, welded knives and started an uncontrollable melee in the ninth inning.

The Indians forfeited the game to the Rangers. The second game of the three-game series is scheduled for tonight. It was 10-cent beer night at Municipal Stadium. Some 25,134 fans turned out on a warm lakefront night.

Early in the game young fans started running on the field in between innings and were cheered by the crowd. Occasionally a firecracker went off. In the sixth inning a streaker was applauded.

The number of persons running on the field increased each inning, and the Indians kept narrowing the Rangers 5-1 lead.

In the sixth inning Martin removed his bullpen crew from the right field area because of missiles being thrown.

Firecrackers were thrown into the Rangers' dugout.

In the ninth inning the Indians tied the score at 5-5 and had bases loaded, when fans again poured out of the right field stands and started harassing Ranger outfielder Jeff Burroughs.

The Rangers came off the bench brandishing baseball bats and headed for right field, led by Martin. The Indians came out of the dugout to help their baseball opponents.

"You have to realize that the only thing I had to defend myself with was my fists," Burroughs said. "I was happy to get some help. And I thank the Indians for coming out to help me."

There were player-fan skirmishes all over the field.

Chief umpire Nester Chylak, hit on the head with a chair and cut on his hand, said, "We were so scared out there we had made plans for our escape. It was 500-to-one odds, and we could have gotten killed out there very easily." He added: "I saw weapons out there, and I'm sure the only other place you would see something like this happen would be in a zoo."

Chylak said he waited until all the ballplayers were off the field before calling it a forfeit so none of them would be jeopardized. The forfeit gave the Rangers a 9-0 victory, but all the records count.

Police said five persons were arrested.

Hospitals reported seven fans were treated for minor injuries. No ballplayers were injured seriously. Indians' pitcher Tom Hilgendorf was hit on the head with a chair, but Indian trainer Paul Warfield said it did not appear serious.

The last forfeited major league game was the final day of the 1971 season in Washington, D.C., when the Senators were to move to Texas.

Martin called Tribe Manager Ken Aspromonte five minutes after he returned to the dressing room to thank Aspromonte for the help the Indians gave the Rangers.

Aspromonte said the entire team was disgusted with the crowd, and he speculated that the club's attitude might suffer because of it.

"Cleveland may have lost a ballclub tonight," Aspromonte said.

Leaders Take Church Wins

St. James gained a half-game lead in the American Division of the Church League over idle Oakmont, while Grace avoided its third loss remaining atop the National Division last night.

Moose Capture 10-9 Victory

Only one team remains in the cellar of the Tar Heel Little League as the Moose survived a 10-9 battle with the Graniteers yesterday moving a game out of last place.

The Graniteers have sole hold on the not-so-illustrious position with a record of 2-7. The Moose, now 3-6, are five games behind the league leading Exchange.

The Graniteers took the upper hand in the second inning pushing over six runs including three home runs. The Moose picked up one in the third and then exploded for eight in the fourth. The Graniteers fought back but fell one run short.

Two Graniteers homered in the second. Jeff James led off the inning with a single and Garrett Young homered for two runs, and Mike James followed with a triple. Stuart Satterthwaite drove him in with a single. Satterthwaite moved to third on Micah Dixon's double two outs later and both runners scored on a homer by Mike Moye, his second in the last two games.

Ashley Taylor got the Moose on the boards in the third. He was hit by a pitch and David Carroll walked. An error scored Taylor.

The Moose cranked it up in the next frame and did not stop until they had eight runs. Dean Wilson was hit by a pitch and Bobby Gantt reached on a fielder's choice. David Vaughn was safe on a fielder's choice that loaded the bases. Rusty Davenport singled scoring Gantt and Vaughn and Taylor reached on an error.

Mark Sasser singled reloading the bases. Carroll was hit by a pitch forcing in Davenport and a hit by Ricky West scored Taylor.

Sasser was thrown out trying to score on a passed ball. Carroll scored on a wild pitch and Dwayne Alligood doubled. Carroll and Alligood scored on a single by Gantt.

Young homered again in the fifth for the Graniteers making it 9-7.

The Moose added the clincher in the fifth as Sasser singled and later scored as West reached on an error.

The Graniteers out together a mild rally in the sixth pulling within one, 10-9. Jamie Byrd was safe on a miscue and Dixon walked. Both scored when Searle was safe on an error. The game ended on a strike out.

Alligood and Carroll struck out 13 Graniteers between them.

Lewis Mills Resigns Richmond Cage Post

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Lewis Mills, basketball coach of the year in the Southern Conference this past season, has resigned from the University of Richmond to become assistant athletic director at Virginia Commonwealth University.

The announcements by Mills and Virginia Commonwealth occurred at news conferences here Tuesday.

Mills is the second head coach to leave Richmond in recent months. Frank Jones, who had been head football coach and athletic director at Richmond, was fired from his athletic director's post earlier this year and an angry Jones quit as football coach, going into private business.

Sutton Inks Pact

Michael Sutton, 6'0" guard from D. H. Conley High School has signed a basketball grant-in-aid with the Kittrell College Bulldogs, according to Claude Clark, the college's head basketball coach.

Sutton will be the first white to play with the team. "We've just started recruiting white players, but we're starting out with one of the best high school players around," Clark said.

Sutton was an outstanding player in his three-year starting position with the Conley team. He was selected to the Eastern Carolina all-conference team and ranked as one of Conley's top shooters from the field (51.2 per cent) and from the free-throw line (74.6 per cent). "He's great on assists too, a real team player," Clark said, adding that Sutton had won his teams' "Hustler's Award" during his senior year.

Sutton is expected to be a combination basketball and baseball player, according to Clark who says that he acquired a .304 batting average at Conley. "He's also an excellent student, ranks in the upper 5 per cent of his class and is a member of the National Honor Society, and I doubt if he'll have any trouble making social adjustments here," Clark said. "We are hoping that after Sutton's successful season with the squad, other white athletes will be encouraged to come here," he added.

Larry Daniels, another Conley player, has also signed with the Kittrell team for next year.

Mills applied for the athletic directorship vacancy created when Jones was relieved of the job but the school hired Clyde Biggers of the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

The 38-year-old Mills, who had been with Richmond since 1962, reportedly was upset that the private university bypassed him and hired someone else.

Chuck Noe is athletic director and basketball coach at Virginia Commonwealth University, a state-supported university across town from UR.

Noe coached Mills when he was a star guard at Virginia Tech in the late 1950s. Mills remained at Tech after graduation to become an assistant coach under Noe and the two became close friends.

Mills moved from Tech to coaching high school basketball and in 1962 went to UR as assistant basketball coach. The following year he became head basketball coach when Lester Hooker left the post to become athletic director at the College of William & Mary.

Mills twice has been named Southern Conference basketball coach of the year. The first time was in 1967-68, when his team, in a rebuilding year, finished 12-13. This past year his Spiders finished 6-12 and second in the conference standings and then lost by two points to Furman in the conference tournament championship title game.

University of Richmond President E. Bruce Heilman said Tuesday the school will begin searching for a new basketball coach. That search will be directed by a committee headed by Biggers, who has yet to arrive on campus for his new job.

Beltone Keeps Winning Ways

Beltone won its ninth game of the year last night while Coke got its fifth and Dixie Sales its second in the Ladies Softball League.

In the opening game, Coke beat the Daily Reflector, 23-3. Coke got three in the first but the Reflector rallied for two in the bottom of the first. Coke put it out of reach in the second with six. Coke added three in the third and 11 in the fifth.

The Daily Reflector scored its other run in the second.

Beltone scored first with four runs in the first in their win over Piggly-Wiggly, 12-6. Beltone added three more in the second on a home run by Taylor. They got their final total with two in the fourth and three in the fifth. PW scored once in the fifth and five times in the fifth including a homer by L. Wilson.

Dixie Sales had to hold off a last inning rally to get their 18-14 win over Pitt Hospital. Dixie took an early lead with three in the first but Pitt Hospital pulled within one in the bottom of the frame. The Hospital tied the game in the second 3-3, but Dixie Sales moved back on top in the third getting two runs.

Dixie rallied for six in the fourth. Hospital came up with two but they were matched by three runs for Dixie in the fifth. Dixie Sales pushed over the winner in the top of the sixth as they recorded their four runs. They held off the Hospital in the bottom of the sixth after the Hospital had pulled up to within four preserving the victory.

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY REELE

The American League is having their troubles according to the latest attendance reports.

Through the latter part of May, the league was experiencing one of the worst declines in history. Through some 20 home stands by each of the teams, the league's overall attendance was down nearly 150,000 over the same period last year.

Only one of the 12 American League teams is showing an increase in attendance, the surprising Texas Rangers, who have a gain of over 120,000. And that means that the rest of the league is actually down about 170,000 over last year.

The National League, at the same time, is doing much better, with some up and some down, but a general increase for the entire league overall. The best increase so far is at Dodger Stadium where the red-hot Los Angeles team is holding forth.

Some of the decline at the gate in the American is attributed to increase ticket costs. At Oakland for instance, to carry a family of four, park the car, and have a few hot dogs and beers, a family can expect to spend some $20. We understand that one can go to Atlanta Stadium for much less.

The high salaries demanded by the players, the high profit margins the owners wish to maintain (where they can get a profit) are hurting the sport.

Well, not the sport, but sports in general. We have already bid a fond farewell to the Carolina Cougars, North Carolina's first possibly, last attempt at a major league team. And the direct cause of death was strangulation because of high salaries.

The Cougars had one of the highest payrolls in sports. And while it drew as well as most of the other professional basketball teams, it still couldn't make ends meet.

The formation of new leagues, such as the World Football League, and the World Baseball League, can only serve to push the prices higher and higher.

Then one day, the multi-million dollar players and the owners with their high ticket prices are going to look around their stadiums and find them empty (as some apparently already are). Then maybe they'll find out that the public isn't going to support this sort of stuff much longer.

As you may know by now, the city will play host to the Senior Babe Ruth Regional Tournament here in early August, with teams from eight states in attendance.

Reportedly, if Greenville does a good job of running the show, and shows good attendance, they might be considered for the national tournament.

This would be a nice thing for Greenville.

At the same time, after visiting Starkville, Miss., where the last two NCAA District III tournaments have been held, we feel East Carolina University could do just as good a job, and probably have more attendance too. This is fine baseball, and should attract well.

East Carolina, however, needs improved seating and press facilities before they could handle anything like that. We'd like to see the university get these facilities, then try for the tournament.

In all probability, the NCAA tournament format may be changed by next year. Currently, the Southeastern, Southern and Atlantic Coast Conferences get automatic bids, and three independents are invited for a six-team field.

But the MEAC has declared itself to be a Division One entrant, and should also get an automatic berth. Some people, among them ECU's Clarence Stasavich, are seeking two tournaments for this Division, the biggest in the nation. They would like to have the four conference teams meet in one tournament, preferably in the NC-SC-Va area, while the top four independents meet in another, probably in deep South. Then, the two winners would meet in a best-of-three playoff for the College World Series berth for the district.

ALL TIME HOME RUN KING— Atlanta Braves slugger Hank Aaron, right, is greeted at the plate after hitting his 16th grand slam homerun of his career in the seventh inning of a game against the Phillies in Philadelphia Tuesday night. Aaron's Grand Slam Breaks Another Mark

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Hank Aaron has become, once and for all, major league baseball's all-time leading home run hitter.

Aaron slugged the 16th grand slam homer of his career—a National League record—against the Philadelphia Phillies Tuesday night, leading the Atlanta Braves to a 7-3 triumph.

It was the 731st home run of his career, counting regular season, post-season and All-Star games, breaking a tie with Ruth for the all-time lead.

"Jeez, I thought I broke the record last month," said Aaron, with a smile. Then he added, "Now they can start interviewing the guy who is chasing me."

The Atlanta superstar said he hoped things would calm down a little now, and he could get back to thinking about baseball.

"My concentration hasn't been good," he said. "I've been thinking about celebrations and speeches and how to talk to the politicians."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Cincinnati Reds beat the New York Mets 6-3 in 10 innings, the Montreal Expos topped the Houston Astros 5-0, the San Francisco Giants defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 5-3, the Los Angeles Dodgers blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-0 and the San Diego Padres nipped the Chicago Cubs 6-5.

"I hit a slider, up and in," said Aaron of his grand slam off Eddie Watt, which highlighted a six-run seventh inning rally that broke the game open for Atlanta.

The homer gave Aaron the National League career grand slam record with 16, one more than Willie McCovey. However, he's still a good distance behind the Lou Gehrig's major league mark of 23.

Tuesday night's blast was Aaron's 10th homer of the season. He has only 29 hits this season but has driven in 29 runs.

Seattle Newest Team To Join NFL's Clan

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Seattle is the newest member of the growing National Football League family and Commissioner Pete Rozelle promises more action, some of it possibly in present NFL cities that also have fledgling World Football League clubs.

Seattle got the 28th NFL franchise, carrying with it the healthy initiation tab of $16 million, from the owners Tuesday, and joins Tampa, added in April. Both teams are scheduled to begin playing in 1976 although that timetable could be moved up one year, according to Rozelle.

Seattle was selected over Phoenix, Honolulu and Memphis but the losers aren't out of the NFL picture yet. The commissioner said their bids will remain under consideration.

"I wouldn't expect another city to be added this week," said Rozelle, but he added the expansion committee would explore it.

"Future expansion is a totally open deck," he said. "We are not restricting ourselves from going into any city, including current NFL cities. There are no limitations on the cities considered. New York, Chicago and Los Angeles were on our original list as NFL cities to be considered for additional franchises."

Two of those cities have franchises in the WFL and the third, Los Angeles, is home base for the WFL's Southern California club.

"Going from 28 to 30 clubs is probably the next logical step," said Rozelle. Asked if he would favor moving into a city that already had a WFL team, Rozelle said, "Sure, I might be. It depends on the circumstances."

Seattle currently has a new domed stadium under construction.

"It is the 16th largest market in the country and falls into the NFL schedule for the largest cities in the country," said the commissioner. "It is the only part of the country in which we didn't have a franchise."

Rozelle said that the vote to accept Seattle, the lone city recommended by the expansion committee, was not unanimous.

He said the Seattle and Tampa franchises might not be placed in any conference at once. "We're keeping our options open," he said. "We might float them for a year or two. Alignment is a tedious problem."

No ownership decision was announced. Like Tampa, Seattle interests may now formally apply to the league for the franchise.

In Memphis, Mayor Wyeth Chandler said that the failure of the National Football League to grant the city an expansion franchise Tuesday justifies an earlier decision to welcome a World Football League team.

Coca-Cola In First Victory

Coca-Cola snapped an eight-game losing streak yesterday, downing the Kiwanis, 10-7, to gain their first North State Little League victory.

The win gave Coke a 1-8 mark, while the Kiwanis are now 2-7.

Coke jumped into the lead in the top of the first, getting a trio of runs. Chicky Allen singled and Lee Hardee reached on a fielder's choice. Mark Jones singled, loading the bases. Ricky Hardee's hit brought in Allen, and an error on Howard Wilkerson's hit let Lee Hardee score. Another error on the play scored Jones.

The Kiwanis came back with one in their half of the first. Tom Brown walked, took second on a passed ball and third on a balk. Skip Topping doubled him in.

Coke got another run in the second. Billy Brannigan reached on an error and Allen walked. Lee Hardee reached on an error, scoring Brannigan.

The Coke team pushed over five more in the third. Ricky Hardee singled and Howard Wilkerson reached on an error. Jonathan McGee reached on a fielder's choice, and Jeff Camp doubled in both Hardee and Wilkerson. Brannigan reached on an error and Allen reached on another, scoring McGee. Lee Hardee sacrificed in Camp and a single by Jones scored Brannigan.

The final Coke run came in the fourth. Wilkerson singled, took second on a passed ball and gained third on an out. He scored on an error.

The Kiwanis tried to get a rally going in the bottom of the fourth, scoring twice. Sterling Ashby walked and Jay Whitehurst reached on a fielder's choice. Dan Mayo also reached on a fielder's choice. A passed ball scored Ashby and another allowed Whitehurst to

They got three more in the fifth. Topping walked and so did Skip Hill. Michael Clemmons reached on a two-base error, scoring both Topping and Hill. Ashby doubled to drive in Clemmons and cut the lead to 10-6.

One more run came in the sixth. Mayo singled and a passed ball moved him up. Topping doubled him in but the rally died there.

LIBERTY N.Y. (AP) — Grossinger's will be the site of the $42,000 Celebrity Pro-Amateur invitational golf tournament June 17-18. Pros including Buddy Allin, Lee Elder, Rod Curl and Tommy Aaron will compete.

Allin is a two-time winner on the PGA tour this season. Elder and Curl have won one tournament each and Aaron took the prestigious Masters title in 1973.

this summer. Her phone number is 758-2496.

"It's not necessary that the juniors be members of the Greenville Tennis Club to participate in any of the tournaments," Mrs. Daniel said. "They do have to join the United State Lawn Tennis Association, however." A junior membership in the USLTA is a nominal sum, she stated.

The first tournament on the state slate is the Jaycee Junior Tournament at Gastonia on June 26-29, and entries close on June 24.

"We will also be having tournaments in Kinston in July and in Goldsboro in August in our area," Mrs. Daniel said.

"I will have entry blanks for all the state's junior tournaments, and anyone who would like to play can contact me for information," Mrs. Daniel said.

Jollie Giants Capture Exhibition Victory

The Jolly Giants downed the University Kiwanis in an exhibition game last night, 12-11. The Giants are members of the Pitt-Martin Semi-pro league, while the Kiwanis are part of the Senior Babe Ruth League.

The Giants took the lead in the third, scoring seven runs. Bill Bateman singled and Edward Coburn got a hit. Both advanced on an out and Dennis Jeffers singled in both Bateman and Coburn. Bobby Parker walked and Leroy Ross hit a three-run homer. Wayne Hardee walked and stole second. Ray Parnell reached on an error and Charlie Coburn grounded out, but scored Hardee. Bateman doubled in Parnell with the seventh run.

The Kiwanis came up with one in the third. Steve Fuchs reached on a two-base error and took third on a passed ball. He scored on an error on Greg McGlohon's infield hit. The Kiwanis added four more in the fourth. Kenneth Tetterton walked as did Greg Sasser. Al Salisbury also walked, loading the bases. Tetterton scored on an error and Bill Ellington reached on a fielder's choice that brought in both Baker and Salisbury. Phill Dash singled in Ellington.

One more run came in the fifth, cutting the lead to 7-6. Doug Causey doubled, moved up on an out and scored on Salisbury's error.

The Kiwanis came up with three in the seventh to tie it up. Tetterton singled and Sasser got a hit. Rick Harrell singled, scoring Tetterton. A passed ball scored Sasser and Ellington sacrificed in Harrell with the tying run.

In the ninth, however, the Giants came up with three more runs. Charlie Coburn reached on a fielder's choice and stole second. Bateman reached on an error, and Coburn then stole home. Edward Coburn walked and Frankie Corbitt singled to score Bateman. Jeffers walked and Parker singled in Edward Coburn with the 12th run.

The Kiwanis rallied for two but it wasn't enough. Sasser and Salisbury both walked, eventually scoring on passed balls. Jolly 007 002 003—12 11 9

Anti-Inflation Steps Outlined

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP)
— Americans will have to be restrained from buying everything they want to combat inflation, says Treasury Secretary William E. Simon.

Unemployment also may be higher than desirable in months ahead, but that too is necessary for the anti-inflation drive, Simon said Tuesday night.

"A very high rate of inflation is now built into our system. To reduce that inflation to tolerable levels will take time, and it will not be achieved without pain," Simon said.

The Treasury secretary spoke at a meeting of the International Monetary Conference being attended by government and private financial leaders from 21 nations.

Simon said inflation in the economy will last for some time but said he was confident the country could survive it "without crippling effects."

But he said it would be necessary to maintain the economy at less than full capacity, with demand at a level below total potential output.

Simon said that if demand and productive capacity were to continue in balance, inflation also might continue at near the present 12 per cent rate.

"Demand will have to be below total potential output—very close to it, but below," he added.

Simon indicated it will be necessary to have an unemployment rate higher than might otherwise be desired. He said "our labor markets must not be too tight" to help promote a gradual slowdown of the upward trend of pay scales.

A key to restraining demand will be a holddown in government spending, Simon said. He added that he thought Americans would support tough anti-inflation policies because they are tired of inflation.

Annual Meet Ends Today

MONTREAT, N.C. (AP) — The Presbyterian Synod of North Carolina was to conclude its annual two-day meeting today with progress reports on reorganization of the synod.

Dr. Frontis W. Johnston of Davidson was elected moderator in the opening session Tuesday. He is a Kenan professor of history at Davidson College.

Dr. Johnston replaces retiring moderator Dr. James H. Appleby, professor of evangelism and director of field work at Union Theological Seminary at Richmond, Va.

The more than 650 representatives from throughout the state heard a sermon by Dr. Appleby Tuesday evening. The Mission Committee on Presbyterian Colleges and Seminary also gave a presentation.

In today's sessions the newly appointed Committee for Nominations will nominate a moderator for the next synod. Resolutions and bills will be placed before the members of the organization.

The meeting will close with the presentation of the Margaret Bowen Award for Distinguished Service in Christian Education and a final reading of committee reports.

of Madison County's one ABC store. The board was scheduled to face a public hearing on the matter next week in Asheville.

R. W. Ponder, chairman of the three-member board, could not be reached for comment, but Hot Springs Mayor Joe R. Henderson verified the resignations.

He said he had received the resignations of Ponder and board member Clyde Huntsinger two or three days ago. The third member of the board, T. A. Russell, is in the hospital, but will probably tender his resignation shortly, Henderson said.

Dr. L. C. Holshouser, chairman of the state board, had requested the resignation of the Hot Springs board.

'Brain Drain' Hurts India

By HARIHAR KRISHNAN
NEW DELHI, May 14 (UPI) — It is widely acknowledged in Britain that its health services would suffer drastically if the more than 4,000 immigrant Indian doctors living there were turned out.

In the U.S., according to recent figures, the number of foreign doctors mainly from India and South Korea seeking employment outnumbered Americans graduating from American medical institutions.

The Indian government regards this situation as an alarming brain drain problem as more and more young Indian doctors flee to advanced countries in search of more money and better working conditions because they are unable to find employment here—where they are badly needed.

"We need our doctors desperately and we want them more than ever to serve our people, particularly in the rural areas," a Health Ministry spokesman said.

He admitted the doctor brain drain problem is even more severe than the flight of scientists, engineers and other skilled Indians.

Acute Shortage

Although there is no exact estimate of the number of Indian doctors abroad, officials say it runs into tens of thousands in the countries of Europe, Canada, the U.S. and Australia.

In India the doctor-population ratio is one doctor for every 5,000 persons but in several thousand Indian villages a doctor cannot be found within a radius of 20 miles.

"With the increase in the number of Indian medical institutions more and more doctors are looking for employment but a majority of them are unwilling to go to rural areas where, we agree, working conditions are atrocious," an official said.

"There is no way we can ban their (doctors') travel to other countries," the Health Ministry spokesman said.

New Policy

U.S. Surgeon-General S. Paul Ehrlich during a recent visit to New Delhi explained the problem in an interview with an American correspondent.

"This is a problem," he was quoted as saying. "The lesser developed countries like India have been helping to subsidize the medical manpower needs of the United States. In the next few months a policy will be evolved in the federal government to deal with this problem."

He was referring to a request by Indian Health Minister Dr. Karan Singh that something be done to stem the outflow of Indian doctors.

Having ignored the problem for years, the Indian government woke up to the situation after the three-month strike by New Delhi's 2,400 junior doctors which crippled health services in the capital. The doctors demanded higher salary and better working conditions in the incredibly overcrowded city hospitals.

Strike Settled

Whereas an intern in a country like the U.S. earns upward of $400 a month, his Indian counterpart gets less than $30. In some cases an Indian intern makes considerably less than an office peon in a business firm.

After tortuous negotiations, the Health Ministry settled a strike last month with an offer of $46 a month for an intern and $66 for a house surgeon.

"What the hell do you expect us to do with this money when in a city like Delhi or Bombay a man needs a minimum of $80 just to be able to eat two meals a day," a junior doctor complained. "If we go to a rural area where our services are badly needed, we can't afford to buy even a bicycle and we will have to do everything from delivering a baby to treating cancer."

The United Nations, which now has taken up the issue, said in its Secretary General's report, "The net outflow of trained personnel from developing countries is significant enough to justify the international concern."

Compensation Urged

The developed countries should not regard the existence of a potential supply of trained personnel from the developing countries as a supplementary source to fill the demand for trained cadre," the report said.

However, unable to suggest an immediate solution, the report urged "compensating the developing countries for the trained immigrants" through bilateral agreements.

"Any plan for compensation for the brain drain must be in addition to, and not at the expense of, development assistance to the developing countries," it added.

"Such a solution is not going to solve the problem for the doctor who can make about $100,000 a year in a country like the U.S. but can't make even $1,000 in India," another official remarked.

Step-Savers In House Chores

NEW YORK (UPI) — Save steps in cleaning by using a basket or carton lined with soft towels to carry breakable small objects to the sink for washing.

Other containers to lighten your load include a double-sided pail or two separate pails—one for wash water and the other for rinsing, says the Soap and Detergent Association.

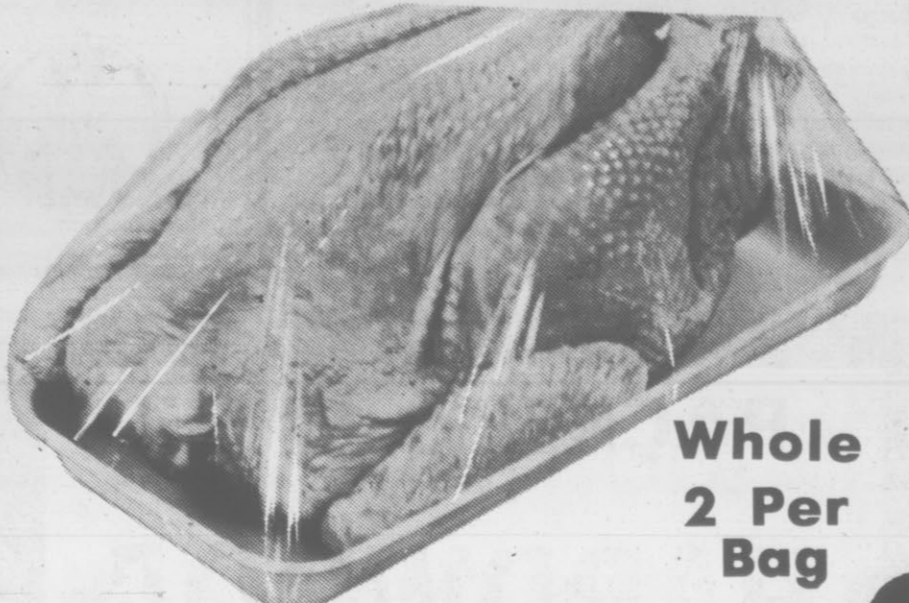

Get all your brooms, mops, scrub brushes, steel wool pads and kneeling pads together before you start.

Old toothbrushes, cotton swabs and pipe cleaners are handy for working lather into crevices and other hard to reach areas.

Trieste Again Real Headache

By PETER J. SHAW
ROME (UPI) — Like a bad hangover that refuses to vanish, the Trieste headache is throbbing again.

Italy and Yugoslavia nearly went to war two decades ago over control of Trieste, a port region at the northern tip of the Adriatic Sea. Now the 1954 accord that stabilized the situation is wobbling.

The agreement, backed by the World War II western allies, scrapped a postwar idea of setting up a free territory around the city of Trieste. It awarded Italy administration of what was then Zone A, encompassing the city, and gave Yugoslavia control of the largely agricultural Istria peninsula area known as Zone B.

Neither country was granted sovereignty over its respective zone although each claims de facto sovereignty. Herein lies today's headache.

In March new signs appeared at three crossings into Zone B, marking the sector as part of Yugoslavia. Italy protested to Belgrade over what it viewed as an illegal attempt by Yugoslavia to claim the area outright.

Belgrade interpreted the Italian complaint as an attempted claim to Italian sovereignty over Zone B, and fired off a counter protest.

Rome then denied it had any intention of usurping Yugoslavia's share of the divided territory and said Italy would continue "to respect the line of demarcation by the same standard by which it respects the frontier of state."

The dispute still simmers although Western diplomats say the easy and obvious solution is to declare the line between the two zones the state frontier.

This would please Yugoslavia, which diplomats suspect may be trying to divert attention from separatist rumblings at home by pumping up nationalist feelings over Trieste. Strong nationalist currents run in Slovenia and Croatia, the two Yugoslav republics bordering on the Istrian peninsula.

The Italian government has been hesitant to seek a border pact for fear it might offend Italy's extreme rightwing element and further disrupt an already tottering domestic political situation.

Occasional bomb incidents indicate that Trieste is a potential powderkeg. On April 27 a homemade bomb caused $5,000 worth of damage at a Slovenian school in Trieste. There were no injuries in what was the second blast at the school in five years. Police sought rightwing suspects almost exclusively and politicians labeled the explosion an anticommunist, antislovene hate display.

The demarcation flareup is ill-timed for Trieste. The closure of the Suez Canal in 1967 lost Trieste, Italy's biggest seaport after Genoa, even more traffic to Antwerp, Rotterdam and Hamburg. Now it hopes to bounce back with the reopening of the waterway and maritime officials say a drawn-out territorial contest could delay a shipping resurgence.

N.C. Runoff Primaries Saw Mixed Successes

By The Associated Press

Incumbents had mixed success Tuesday in runoff primaries in North Carolina sheriff's races.

Democratic incumbents were renominated in Scotland, Bladen and Vance counties. A Republican incumbent lost in Yadkin County and a Democratic incumbent lost in Columbus County.

Scotland County Sheriff B.P. Lytch won renomination with 3,156 votes over Wayne Davis Jr., who had 1,425. Lytch will face Republican E.W. Horne in November.

Sheriff John B. Allen polled 2,826 votes in Bladen County to win the nomination over Jabe T. Frink, with 2,575. Allen now faces Republican nominee Bob McDuffie.

Incumbent Vance County Sheriff Linwood T. Falkner won the Democratic nomination to succeed himself with a margin of 17 votes over opponent Willie J. Currin. Falkner received 2,776 votes to 2,759 for Currin. Falkner will oppose Republican Moses Smith in the general election.

Columbus County Sheriff Ben Duke lost the Democratic runoff to John Coleman. Coleman polled 3,249 votes to 2,555 for Duke. Coleman faces Republican Harold Babson in November.

Republican incumbent Sheriff Charles T. Speer lost to Ronnie Ball in the Yadkin County GOP runoff. Ball had 2,120 votes to 1,142 for Speer. Ball meets Democrat Harold Hill, a sergeant on the Yadkinville police force, in the November election.

Wilson County Chief Deputy Sheriff W. Robin Pridgen defeated Frank Jones in a Democratic runoff. Wilson County Sheriff J.W. Thompson is stepping down after 28 years in the job. Pridgen had 6,321 votes to 3,414 for Jones. He will oppose Republican nominee Elbert Balkum in the November general election.

Billy Anderson won the Republican nomination for Wilkes County sheriff against Fred Myers. He had 4,990 votes to 3,972 for Myers. He will oppose Democratic nominee Brad Davis Sr. in the November election.

Wilkes County Sheriff E. Hoke Wiles is resigning after two terms.

Ship Sunken For A 'Reef'

ATLANTIC BEACH, N.C. (AP) — A World War II liberty ship has been transformed into an artificial reef off the North Carolina coast.

A Marine demolition team from Camp Lejeune sent the vessel to the bottom about 3,800 yards offshore Tuesday. The ship sank within eight minutes after the charges were detonated.

Two other World War II liberty ships that will serve as artificial reefs will be sunk in the next few months off Wrightsville Beach and near Oregon Inlet. The reefs will also include discarded tires.

A spokesman said there were no complications with the sinking. The ship's superstructure and one deck had been removed. Its insides had been cleaned to meet state and Environmental Protection Agency specifications.

The liberty ships, used to transport troops, are 440 feet long.

The 1973 General Assembly initiated the artificial reef project. The reefs are expected to benefit commercial and sports fishermen.

People Love To Ride The Yukon Train

By ROBERT C. Miller
WHITE HORSE, Yukon Territory (UPI) — Some of the gold gouged out of the frozen Yukon in the 1890s is pouring back as tourist dollars, most of it and its owners hauled over the unique and historic White Pass & Yukon Railway.

Short—only 110.7 miles, narrow—three foot gauge, and profitable. North America's only unsubsidized railroad links the deep water Alaskan port of Skagway with this capital of Canada's Yukon Territory.

Much of the WP&Y's profit comes from its passengers. An international road, it employs both American and Canadian train crews. Although Skagway has a population of only 758 and White Horse 12,000, the WP&Y carried a record 52,715 passengers last year and expects to do even better this year.

It's powered by modern diesels, but the coaches are the most obsolete still in use by any railroad. Heat in the varnished passenger cars is still supplied by wood stoves now modernized as oil burners, eliminating arguments over who would stoke the stove during winter runs when the temperature settles in around 30 and 40 below zero.

Although the railroad has never owned a dining car, White Pass passengers eat well. All the trains stop at the division point of Bennett, headwaters of the Yukon River and named for the famed American editor, James Gordon Bennett. Here Mrs. Mary Siggers presides over the biggest stove in the Yukon, a 12-foot monster that turned out 855 meals on Aug. 12 of last year, the biggest single day in the WP&Y's history.

Scenery and History
The famed "sourdough" meals—which substitute bakery rolls for sourdough bread—are included in the $25 ticket and always include homemade pie, be it breakfast, lunch or dinner. Scenery and history are the White Pass's biggest attractions. It climbs nearly 3,000 feet in 17 miles after leaving coastal Skagway, offering some of the most spectacular views of Alaska as it crawls through the St. Elias mountains. Five diesel units are needed to drag each of the mixed passenger and freight trains up the face of the mountains. In some stretches, old "Shake, Rattle and Roll" climbs 80 feet for every 1,000 feet of track.

The route follows one of the two passes through which the thousands of gold seekers poured into the Yukon in the gold rush of '98. There were only two sensible routes to the gold fields near Dawson, 400 miles down the Yukon: Assault the St. Elias range via White Pass or Chilkoot Pass and float down the Yukon from Lake Bennett to Dawson via White Horse. Or sail around the Alaska Peninsula into the Bering Sea and take a paddlewheeler the thousand miles up the Yukon to Dawson. The vast majority of gold-struck Americans invaded Canada via the Chilkoot and White passes.

Educated Track-Layers
British money and a Canadian Irishman named Michael J. Heney built what historians agree was the toughest railway construction job ever attempted. Work started in May, 1898, using black powder, sledges, picks and shovels wielded by some of the best educated minds ever to lay track. The labor force was made up mostly of flat-broke doctors, lawyers, engineers and even preachers who ran out of money long before they hit the gold fields.

Twenty-seven months later the road was completed to Caribou Crossing on the Yukon. Sternwheelers hauled the gold seekers downstream to Dawson where they found the best claims already staked and most of the gold gone.

The WP&Y has stayed in business ever since, sometimes so broke that there was trouble meeting the payroll. During World War II the White Pass became one of the most important railroads in the far north, and was run by the United States Army. The great bulk of the freight needed to build the Alaskan Highway was hauled into White Horse by old "Shake, Rattle and Roll."

But hauling humans is still an important source of WP&Y revenue, particularly the one-day excursions from Skagway to Bennett. All through the summer the tourists will pour off the cruise ships at Skagway, board the big-windowed coaches for the day's outing at the old ghost town of Bennett.

The Worry Clinic Poor Parents Pass The Buck

Prof. Kerby's problem confronts all school officials. That's failure of parents to use the proper psychological "blueprint" for building responsible personalities in their kiddies. Bad children usually have bad parents!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE A-649: Richard Kerby is the new principal of a large consolidated high school.

"Dr. Crane," he asked, "we'd like to have you address our parents, teachers and many of the students at an 'Open House' program."

"And I'd prefer to have you discuss the 'Pros and Cons of Discipline,' for some of our pupils deviate from our standard rules and regulations. "And the parents don't always support the teachers in our attempts to maintain proper discipline."

Bravo, Teachers
Alas, millions of parents are passing the buck to school teachers and Scout leaders.

For those parents who have followed Dr. Spoff's "permissive" doctrines till their youngsters are social "monsters."

Then, when such undisciplined children reach the school and are supposed to conform to standard efficient rules of social conduct, the parents often grow incensed at the teachers for penalizing those same unruly youngsters for their misbehavior. Bad children usually have bad parents!

Any adult with normal intelligence realizes that you must have a precise drawing or blueprint for erecting a new And the success of the carpenters, masons, plumbers and electricians depends on precise adherence to the blueprint.

Well, the same is equally true of building a successful personality!

Those rules and regulations should begin in the home!

If you permissive parents fail to start your offspring correctly, at least be grateful (not hateful) when teachers and Scout leaders try to make a civilized American out of your spoiled brat!

Here's a brief test to show how teachers can quickly spot the unruly monsters who will complicate our costly public school system:

(1) They have not been taught to work at home for their spending money but have been indulged via an unAmerican "Allowance Plan." (2) They don't carry a newspaper route, mow lawns or work for outside employers.

(3) They have not been members of the Boy or Girl Scouts, Campfire Girls or 4-H Clubs.

(4) Their parents are not active in a local church.

(5) They are not regular attendants at a Sunday School.

(6) They come from broken homes, which often cause the children to play one divorced parent against the other for unwarranted privileges.

(7) They are poor readers, which makes them try to grandstand to offset the "dunce cap" role they soon occupy in class.

(8) They are not members of athletic, science, band or other school teams and organizations.

(9) They have attended several grammar schools before entering high school, which often lowers their school marks.

(10) They suffer from inferiority complexes, either organic, social or racial, and thus try to compensate via drugs, beer drinking, cigarettes and profanity or vulgar sexual language.

School counselors can weed out the potential trouble makers even when the freshman class first convenes, just by that quick 10-point inventory!

Personal counseling can then often salvage these potential delinquents, but you parents are basically to blame for their anti-social outlook.

So send for my "Tests for Good Parents," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents and thus cooperate with the school teachers!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

WOULD THIS SCARE AN OLD CROW?—It would appear there might be more crowing than scaring, looking at this scantily clad beauty. But gardeners at the U.S. Air Force's Yokota Air Base, on the outskirts of Tokyo, have set up this discarded mannequin as a scarecrow to keep the birds away from the crops. The airmen don't know whether Ethel keeps the garden bird-free, but there's no denying she attracts second looks from passers-by. (AP Wirephoto)

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JUNE 6, 1974

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You find many small problems in your relations with others and it is necessary for you to iron them out objectively, instead of emotionally. Use ingenuity to handle persons and conditions blocking your progress.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Kin can be quite demanding today, so try to get out with good friends and avoid any bickering at home. Make necessary changes in abode in p.m.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) An out-of-town letter gives you good tips on how to get better results with a disturbed individual. Clear decks for big things.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle money matters with care. Listen to what an adviser has to say, since this could be helpful to you. Don't tease mate in p.m.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You are in doubt on how to proceed in certain matters and should seek advice of one with right answers. Don't repeat past errors. LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Contact a good pal who can be trusted in confidential matters and plan what's best to do. Don't lose sight of the big issues.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Do whatever is important for career or credit, even though a friend wants you to go on some tangent. Get into civic matter that increases prestige.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Find some novel way of impressing bigwigs with your finest abilities, and get advice from those in the know. Prepare yourself better to make big headway.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Heed hunches so you understand why your life is changing radically at this time. Thought and affection bring you more understanding with mate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be sure you and your partners each know own duties, definitely. Study into those strange conditions between you and an associate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Although very busy, take the time to discuss with an associate any moves you want to make, or there could be trouble later. Vitamins increase energy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Although you want recreation, first handle anything important. Get into something creative that is somewhat different.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get work done at home, then take kin out for needed recreation. Sports are especially good at this time. Use intelligence.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will want to look beneath the surface for the right answers. Because of all the curiosity in this nature, you as parents could be answering questions by the minute asked by your youngster. So be sure to give as fine an education as possible and slant it toward selling, teaching, politics, medicine, etc. Give a good grounding in spiritual matters early, too.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Bobbie Gentry's Talents Wasted

By JAY SHARBUTT

AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — CBS tonight is showcasing the efforts of Bobbie Gentry, a fine singer; Frank Peppiatt, a skilled writer; and Jack Elliott and Allyn Ferguson, two gifted arrangers.

CBS calls their collaboration "Bobbie Gentry's Happiness Hour." Wrong title. This show is a wretched, overproduced mess that somehow manages to waste the considerable talents of all concerned.

On Martin Tech Honors List

WILLIAMSTON—Four Greenville area students made the Honors List at Martin Technical Institute for the 1973-74 academic year.

To be eligible for the Honors List, a student must maintain an average of 85 or above. Students from Greenville who qualified for the Honors List are as follows:

James E. Godwin III, Terence R. Snowden, and David Jan Williams, fish and wildlife management; Clark Bainbridge, forest management.

The first of four CBS variety series scheduled this summer, it'll be with us four weeks. If tonight's sample is what Miss Gentry & Co. have in mind, July will come none too soon.

I herewith cross my fingers and hope the program improves, if only because I've always admired Miss Gentry both as a singer and as a songwriter ever since hearing her "Ode to Billy Joe" a few years ago.

She's always struck me as a good performer who'd be a great one if she'd only just consider the virtues of simplicity.

Alas, simplicity is nowhere present in tonight's show, which roars in like a garish fugitive from the main room of any Las Vegas hotel, complete with blaring brass, gaudy dance numbers and feeble patter.

Robert Goulet and Wayne Newton are on hand for additional music and comedy support, but despite their old-college-try efforts, nothing ever jells. It only pablums.

Regulars Varli Bromfield, Michael Greer and Earl Pomerantz join in some comedy skits, but they lose, too.

Peppiatt, who as the show's producer was in charge of the writing and pace, has done way, way better; ditto Messrs. Elliott and Ferguson, who for the most part buried Miss Gentry in overarrangements.

Some hands require a miracle if declarer is to succeed at his contract. On others not even a miracle is enough — the opposition must contribute as well.

Six hearts cannot be described as a dignified contract. North must take most of the blame, for there was no valid reason for him to continue when South could do no more than bid four hearts over the jump raise. South, too, might have been content to suppress his diamond feature in view of his weak trump holding.

West led the queen of spades, and the sight of dummy did not fill declarer's heart with joy. It seemed that two trump losers were unavoidable. After some thought, however, South devised a scheme whereby an unsuspecting defender might be lured into giving him some assistance.

Dummy's ace of spades was played at trick one, East followed with the three and South with the deuce. Declarer cashed dummy's jack of clubs, led a club to the queen and continued with the king of clubs. He was trying to create the impression that he wanted to discard dummy's spade loser, and West rose to the bait. He ruffed the king of clubs with a low trump, and this was all declarer needed. He returned to his hand with the king of diamonds and led a trump. Whether or not West rose with the ace, declarer could limit his trump losers to one.

West could have defeated the slam either by refusing to ruff the third club or by ruffing with the ace, for then East would still have a trump trick. Was there any clue to the correct play?

Yes, if West trusts his partner. East followed to the first trick with the lowest spade possible. If he held the king, he would have encouraged by playing a high spade. Thus, West should have realized that declarer was not trying to discard a spade and that, therefore, his play had a distinctly fishy odor.

Four Nominated For State Senate

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — Democratic voters have nominated four men as candidates for the North Carolina state Senate.

The nominations were decided in primary runoffs Tuesday in three state senatorial districts. Voting was very light.

Pleas "Red" Lackey of Henderson won the second Democratic nomination for two seats in the 23rd Senatorial District—Alexander, Catawba, Iredell and Yadkin counties.

Unofficial returns from 91 of the district's 92 precincts gave Lackey 3,098 votes to 1,208 for Robert C. Crissman of Jonesville.

The district's other Democratic nomination was won in the May primary by Bobby Lee Combs of Hickory. Combs and Lackey will face incumbent Republicans J. Reid Poovey of Hickory and Kennedy H. Sharp of Mooresville in the November general election.

Charles E. Vickery of Chapel Hill and Russell Walker of Asheboro are the Democratic nominees for the two seats in the 16th Senatorial District of Chatham, Moore, Orange and Randolph counties.

They led a three-way runoff that saw Carl M. Smith of Chapel Hill eliminated. With 116 of the district's 117 precincts reporting, Walker unofficially had 7,866 votes, followed by Vickery with 4,716. Smith trailed with 3,838 votes.

Walker and Vickery won nominations for the seats being vacated by retiring Sens. William P. Saunders of Southern Pines and A. B. Coleman Jr. of Hillsborough.

The Democratic nominees will face Republicans Michael Budd of Siler City and Ed Terney of Chapel Hill in the Noember election.

Edd Nye of Elizabethtown won the nomination in the 11th Senatorial District of Bladen, Brunswick and Columbus counties.

He defeated Frank T. Grady, also of Elizabethtown. Unofficial returns from the district's 63 precincts showed Nye with 6,646 votes to 4,495 for Grady. The nomination was for the seat being vacated by retiring Sen. Arthur Williamson of Chadbourn.

Nye will be opposed by Republican Mitchell Mercer of Chadbourn in the general election.

Uncumbent state Rep. T. Clyde Auman Jr. of West End, a Democrat, won renomination for the Moore County seat in the North Carolina House. He defeated Dock G. Smith Jr. of Robbins, 2,013 to 1,274, in a runoff. Auman will face Republican H. Taft Williams of Eagle Springs in the fall election.
