

Confirms Federal Grand Jury Voted Name Nixon

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential lawyer James D. St. Clair today confirmed published reports that a federal grand jury voted earlier this year to name President Nixon as an unindicted co-conspirator in the Watergate cover-up.

St. Clair told newsmen he was informed of the grand jury's action three or four weeks ago by special prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Asked what the President's reaction was, St. Clair said, "his view, of course, is that they just don't have all the evidence... I think he felt it was quite inappropriate... He was confident that the true facts would come out in time and that he would be exonerated." Unindicted co-conspirators are not charged with a crime and cannot be prosecuted under the indictment in which they are named.

The same grand jury returned indictments March 1 against seven former Nixon administration and campaign aides for allegedly conspiring to block the investigation of the Watergate break-in.

The grand jury also handed U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica a sealed report and a satchel filled with evidence it had accumulated on the President's alleged role in Watergate.

The Los Angeles Times reported today that the grand jury voted unanimously to include the President among the unindicted co-conspirators in the case. The Washington Post, which said it had confirmed the Times story from three separate sources, reported the grand jury vote was 19 to 0 with four members absent.

Both newspapers said the jurors first wanted to include Nixon among the defendants in the case but decided against indicting him because of legal questions over whether an incumbent president could be indicted. The Post said Jaworski advised the grand jury that such an indictment would be legally questionable.

St. Clair said the grand jury's action has "no legal effect."

"It wouldn't be the first time a grand jury was wrong," he said.

St. Clair made his comments as he entered a closed session of the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment inquiry.

Asked if they had been told of the grand jury's action, several committee members, including chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., said they had not been told.

The Post quoted its sources as saying the grand jury naming of the President first became known to defense lawyers in the case during a closed hearing before Judge Sirica early last month.

The Post said the disclosure came in response to a motion by all seven defendants that the prosecution list "all persons alleged to have conspired with the defendants named in the indictment."

The Post said Sirica swore all those in attendance to secrecy after Jaworski disclosed that Nixon had been named an unindicted co-conspirator.

The Post quoted informed sources as saying that the grand jury is believed to have named others besides Nixon as unindicted co-conspirators.

The Post said Jaworski had delayed turning over the list of unindicted co-conspirators to defense lawyers, apparently to keep Nixon's status from becoming public.

James Doyle, spokesman for Jaworski, said federal court rules prevent him from making any comment on matters inside the grand jury room.

Indicted by the grand jury were: former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell; former White House aides H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, Charles W. Colson, and Gordon C. Strachan; former assistant Atty. Gen. Robert C. Mar-dian; and Kenneth W. Parkinson, a former attorney for the President's re-election committee.

Earlier this week Colson pleaded guilty to a single charge of obstruction of justice in the Pentagon Papers case and agreed to cooperate with the prosecutor's office. As a result, Jaworski said he would move to have all other charges against Colson dropped.

By ELIAS ANTAR

Associated Press Writer ST. LAURENT, France (AP) — War veterans and officials from seven countries mark the 30th anniversary of D-Day today with a ceremony at the vast U.S. military cemetery near this Normandy village.

Almost 10,000 servicemen are buried in the cemetery on a cliff overlooking Omaha Beach, the bloodiest of five beaches the Allies stormed on June 6, 1944.

Gen. Omar Bradley, who commanded the Americans at Omaha and adjoining Utah Beach, heads the American delegation to the two-day celebration. About 1,500 Allied veterans of the landing are attending the observance, the biggest ever, of the invasion.

Bradley, at 81 the only living five-star general in the U.S. Army, attended a dinner Wednesday night and the dedication of a museum at Ranville but missed other events. Aides said he found the pace tiring and had to rest.

Ceremonies were held Wednesday at the eastern end of the 40-mile invasion front, where the British, Canadians and a French unit landed at 7:30 a.m. on D-Day.

Two other events were scheduled today to commemorate American feats of arms on D-Day.

A unit of U.S. Rangers stationed in Germany was to reenact the climb 225 Rangers make under withering fire up a 100-foot cliff to capture a German strongpoint at Pointe du Hoc. The men of the 2nd Ranger Battalion used ropes and wooden ladders borrowed from the London Fire Brigade to scale the crags.

Some surviving Rangers were on hand to watch the reenactment.

Some 120 civilian and military parachutists were to jump into the village of Ste. Mere l'Eglise, where the first American paratroopers, from the 82nd and 101st Airborne Divisions, landed in France. They met with devastating fire in the square at St. Mere l'Eglise but regrouped and pushed on.

Astronaut Alan Shepard was to be a guest for the jump and later was to show a film of his moon landing.

IS TRIP OFFER LEGIT?

My husband and I have won a trip to Florida, according to a letter we got from National Travel Inc. of Sparta, Tenn. this week. We have 10 days in which to send in a $20 handling fee. I'd like to know if this is a legitimate travel agency, so we can better decide whether to accept. J.A.S.

Hotline has learned that your proposed trip would be courtesy of Lehigh Acres, a resort community near Fort Myers, Fla. You would receive the three nights in motels, the two adult admissions to Walt Disney World, and discounts at numerous attractions. You would pay for your own transportation, meals, and amusement. You would be invited to a sales talk and tour of the resort, but would not be coerced into buying, according to both the travel agency which contacted you and a local couple who accepted the offer last year.

SHRUBS TAKEN FROM CEMETERY

I'd appreciate whoever stole the shrubbery from our lot in the Winterville Cemetery's putting it back. We put two expensive and unusual shrubs there to mark the lot we've owned for years. They disappeared recently. Mrs. W. G.

Hotline first advised you to inform the Winterville Police, then learned from Winterville Town Clerk Elwood Nobles that the town had had the shrubbery removed, in accordance with town law. There is a local ordinance against planting anything in the cemetery, he said. You say, though, that you have never been told about or given a copy of the cemetery ordinances and saw no signed posted against planting.

IS PERSONAL USE OF CITY VEHICLE OK?

I have seen a person in a city car taking children to school and a Utilities employee getting a haircut, not to mention city employees doing personal business during working hours. Is this not causing city residents to pay higher taxes. W. B.

City Manager Bill Carstarphen said that use of a city vehicle for personal business is prohibited. However, he said, that reasonable on-the-way-to-or-from-work errands would be allowed for—like taking children to school—if the school's pretty much on the way—stopping for a loaf of bread, or even getting a haircut. He added that some employees—like Utilities employees—are required at certain times to be on call all weekend or evening. "They may carry on their normal activities, but must maintain constant radio contact," he said. "Therefore, they might be driving a Utilities truck to a barber shop or a ball game or to church."

"Tending to personal business during working hours is not allowed without special permission," he said, "but it may be done, of course, during a lunch hour."

"We encourage our employees not to use city vehicles during leisure hours or do anything else that would cause local citizens to believe the best interest of the city was not being kept in mind," he said. "I might add that if any citizen consistently sees a city employee doing things he believes violate employees' rules, he should take note of the number of the vehicle and let the city manager's office know about the situation. I would consider this a citizen's duty."

The Pitt County Board of Education Tuesday named James Walker Allen to serve as principal of North Pitt High School and Eugene Morris was named to fill the position as principal at Stokes-Pactolus Grammar School.

Safest In State

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Seventeen North Carolina cities and towns went through 1973 without a traffic fatality, the N.C. State Motor Club reported today.

The number is the same as in 1972 but down from the record 23 municipalities that had death-free records in 1971.

The cities are Ahsokie, Belmont, Boone, Canton, Cary, Concord, Elizabeth City, Graham, Henderson, Jacksonville, Lincolnton, Monroe, Mount Airy, Mount Holly, Oxford, Roxboro and Tarboro.

Missing from the list for the first time in ten years is Cherryville, which recorded three traffic deaths last year. Others that fell by the wayside were Albemarle and Bessemer City.

The state's safest city now is Canton, which has gone seven years without a fatality, the motor club said.

Cities with the most traffic deaths in 1973 were Charlotte with 42, Greensboro 21, Durham 18, Winston-Salem 17 and Fayetteville 16.

Drowned In Surf

KILL DEVIL HILLS, N.C. (AP)—Two persons drowned in the Atlantic Ocean Wednesday in a heavy undertow and nine others were pulled from the surf by rescuers in helicopters, Dare County authorities reported.

A spokesman for the sheriff's department said the names of the victims were being withheld pending notification of their families. One was thought to be a soldier from Fort Knox, Ky.

One of the bodies was recovered, but the other was still missing early today. The Coast Guard was assisting in the search.

The spokesman said there was an extremely heavy undertow Wednesday at the resort town on the Outer Banks. He said authorities had put out warnings that the surf was too dangerous for swimming.

He said the two persons who drowned were swimming together. A surfer reportedly tried unsuccessfully to rescue one of them.

Problems Involving School Accreditation Aired By Consultant

Dr. W. C. Sanderson, elementary accreditation consultant for the Pitt County Schools, reported to the Pitt County Board of Education Tuesday on his findings to date.

Sanderson, chairman of Education Administration and Supervision Deputy of East Carolina University, stated that one of the main problems was that many of the county-employed librarians are not certified. "This is a direct violation of standards and action must be taken to comply with regulations," Sanderson explained.

"There is also a need for music and art teachers and media centers in the elementary schools," Sanderson explained. "The students should have a resource and materials center located in each school and not just a room where they go to check out library books."

Sanderson stated that several teachers are assigned out of certification areas. This matter must be corrected before visitation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, according to Sanderson.

"Some teachers in the middle grades need to individualize the instructional program more," Sanderson noted. "This will necessitate some in-service training and changes in instructional materials."

Sanderson continued, "There appears to be a need to improve services received from the library. We should strive to make libraries more media centered with increased audiovisual supplementary materials."

Sanderson explained that in some middle schools there are excellent exploration programs. However, in others, exploratory experiences are limited.

In the area of administration, Sanderson explained that some principals need to devote attention to the establishing of an orderly procedure in selection, storage and disbursement of supplementary supplies. Also procedures for requisitioning, disbursing, and storage of instructional supplies need to be evaluated. Special emphasis should be given to selection of materials currently on state contract.

"Principals should devote as much time as possible as instructional leaders," Sanderson emphasized. "The Southern Association expects the principal to become totally involved in the instructional process as well as administration."

Sanderson said that in some classrooms, there are instances of overloads, especially in combination classrooms.

"The schools need to look at the instructional program and the teaching pattern for a solution such as multi-age leveling or some method to even out the teaching load. Doing this would require the faculty, too, to take a look at itself and what its teaching methods are, and to make some changes," Sanderson said.

Reporting on his findings in the area of maintenance, Sanderson said there is evidence that budgetary limitations have limited maintenance that was essential. Substandard classroom and general repairs reflect a lack of adequate funding, according to Sanderson.

Some libraries do not meet minimum space requirements and in some instances, the walls could be extended or removed completely to satisfy requirements.

Sanderson also stated a need for painting and general repairs both inside and outside of several old school buildings.

School Bus Mishap Fatally Hurt Four-Year-Old

A team of highly skilled emergency room nurses, physicians and other attendants fought a losing two-hour battle yesterday to save the life of a four-year old girl injured when a school bus driven by her half-brother ran over her in the yard of her home here.

Christine O'Mary died at 3:04 p.m. as doctors prepared to perform emergency surgery to repair severe internal injuries.

The child was injured about 1 p.m. as her half-brother, Julian Allen Coburn, 16, of Route 8, Greenville, prepared to drive the bus from the yard.

Pitt County Coroner and Medical Examiner E. W. Harvey said the girl had been inside the bus and that Coburn told her she could not go with him as he prepared to turn the bus in after making his last run of the school year.

She left the bus, Harvey explained, and as Coburn started forward, he heard her cry and felt a bump and stopped.

The child, Harvey said, was struck by the left rear wheels of the vehicle, causing severe internal injuries.

The child's father, Curtis O'Mary, was holding her in his arms when a Greenville Rescue unit arrived to transport her to the hospital. Rescue workers said O'Mary passed out enroute to the hospital and that the child stopped breathing, but respiration was maintained by artificial means.

After arrival at the hospital, O'Mary himself, reportedly stopped breathing but respiration was restored and he was released from the hospital later in the afternoon.

Harvey, who said the child died moments after being wheeled into an operating room for emergency surgery, ruled the death as accidental and said no charges were made.

Miss Teresa Cherry Weds Saturday Afternoon

Miss Teresa Brown Cherry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Talton Cherry, became the bride of Paul David Hart Saturday at 8:00 p.m.

The Rev. Robert G. Hufford performed the double ring ceremony in Hooker Memorial Christian Church. A program of music was presented by Mrs. Sharon Irwin organist, and Mrs. Ann Searl, flutist.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Triffley Hart of Willingboro, N.J.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal sleeveless gown in ivory fashioned of schiffli embroidered silk organza over peau de soie and Venise lace. The gown, designed by Piccione, was styled with an empire waist accented with Venise lace, colonial neckline and a slightly gathered skirt. The skirt flowed into an attached chapel length train bordered with lace beading.

The bride's picture hat was of bridal braid, imported chapel length silk illusion and lace. She carried a formal bouquet of gardenias, stephanotis and English ivy tied with ivory satin.

The maid of honor was Miss Beth Cherry, sister of the bride. She was attired in a formal pink floral gown in multi-colored shades. The gown was styled with an empire waist encircled with pink velvet ribbon and scooped neckline. The A-line skirt was bordered with ruffles. She wore a pink Camelot hat with fingertip matching illusion and carried a hand bouquet of pink daisies, miniature carnations nestled in baby's breath with improved smilax.

Bridesmaids were Miss Sharon Barrett, Miss Ann Sowden, Mrs. Mike Joyner, Miss Nancy Garris and Mrs. Robin Rogers. Their dresses and bouquets were identical to that of the honor attendant.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Patrick Parker, Louis Cherry, brother of the bride, Mike O'Brien, Brian Rogers, James Madden and Danny Long.

The ring bearer, Robert Ramirez, nephew of the bridegroom, carried a white satin pillow decorated with pink pixie carnations.

The mother of the bride wore a formal length turquoise chiffon dress. The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal floral print gown of green and yellow chiffon. Both mothers wore corsages of phalaenopsis orchids.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Cherry Court club house.

The entrance to the party room was lighted with hurricane lamps with bows of white satin.

The refreshment table was covered with white satin cloth garlanded with smilax centered with an arrangement of white larkspur and snapdragons designed in a silver candelabra.

On the bride's table was a tiered decorated wedding cake. Toast glasses and cake knife decorated in pink and white completed the table.

In the center of the mantel was an arrangement of white summer flowers flanked with candelabra.

MRS. PAUL DAVID HART

Sheila Scott Recalls Flights

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Sheila Scott has finally gotten her driver's license — after failing the test three times.

Meanwhile, she has flown around the world solo three times, holds over 100 World Class Light Aircraft records, has broken the sound barrier in a naval jet fighter and is the first solo pilot — man or woman — to pass directly over the true North Pole in a light aircraft.

The British flyer, wearing a black and white suit, pink nail polish and the Amelia Earhart Medal on a gold chain around her neck, recalled some of these adventures on a visit to New York to promote her just-published autobiography, "Barefoot in the Sky."

"I really do fly barefoot in the tropics. When you're sitting on one little seat up to 18 hours at a time your feet swell," explained Miss Scott, who holds commercial ratings for helicopters, seaplanes, private and gliding planes and balloons, and who founded the British Ballooning and Airship Club.

"I go for solo because it doesn't mean anything if you have a second person in the plane," she said. "Then you can eat, sleep, no reason to land except for fuel — there's no endurance involved."

Not only has there been plenty of endurance involved in her career, but there has also been near disaster, including times when all her flight instruments failed and the 1969 England-to-Australia race in which she almost lost her life in the Pacific.

"I am often afraid," she admitted. "The thing is to stay with the airplane, to make it perform, to cope, even though you're shaking in every limb. On world record flights, when you're pushing your way beyond anything you or your plane was built for, there must be some form of trouble as well as good moments."

Trouble came on her historic polar flight in 1971, when ice built up on her wings, her radio and navigational aids went out, she was operating with only a sun compass — and there was no sun. But there were the good moments too.

"A shaft of sunlight came through," she remembers of being on top of the world. "Suddenly it seemed as though the cabin was full of people, my whole team. It gave me confidence."

The blonde, green-eyed aviator recalls that as a child she was "always curious and wanting to find out things and getting in and out of scrapes," but she never dreamed of flying. In fact, she became a nurse during World War II, and after that she enrolled in drama school and had bit parts in films and TV shows.

It was not until she was in her early 30s that Miss Scott took her first flying lesson after she jokingly told friends she was going to learn to fly and they held her to it.

"During your first solo you're so afraid you don't notice anything, but somehow you bump your way back to the ground. After landing the exhilaration and triumph come," said Miss Scott, adding with a laugh that she broke her arm slipping on a potato chip at the celebration party that night.

"They grounded me but I wouldn't have that, and I went up with a safety pilot. I got used to having someone in the cockpit with me and it was hard to go up alone again."

But solo again she did, and eventually got caught up in international racing, where she was often the only woman. Miss Scott, who holds the Order of the British Empire along with countless other honors, says that though she has experienced discrimination as a woman, "the more professional the pilot, the more help he gives. But lower down on the scale it hasn't always been easy."

"Men 'adventurers' are highly sponsored and never have to pay for their planes or boats or whatever. In England, at least, a woman 'adventurer' has to do everything for herself. I've had to lecture, write, beg and borrow, to raise money to buy my planes and finance my competitions," said the veteran of 4,500 hours in the air.

She has owned three planes: "Myth," Greek for female moth, "Myth Too" and "Mythre." And when Miss Scott, who always disliked cars and feared the ground, finally passed her driving test just two years ago, an auto manufacturer presented her with a car.

Her third plane, "drowned" in a hurricane, is being rebuilt "because I promised her that she would fly again. It sounds sentimental, but my planes have given me the world and never let me down whatever happened, and it is important to me that I leave them in flying order."

Now that she has no aircraft in which to race, the attractive Miss Scott, who is divorced, is directing her energies toward her first love, acting on radio and TV, and toward writing, including a children's book about her stuffed rabbit mascot, Buck Tooth.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Kids nowadays take all the fun out of gift-giving.

It used to be that whatever you coughed up came as a surprise. Not anymore. Last Christmas I was presented with not only a list of suggestions, but the serial numbers, the list price and the store hours that handled them.

All of it was as spontaneous as an Eastern Sunrise.

Not only that, but they seem to have no conception of what constitutes a gift and what constitutes a "memorial."

Take Fred. He's a nice kid who lives down the street who happens to be graduating from high school this year.

"I have to buy a gift for Fred," said my son.

I smiled at his thoughtfulness.

"What did you have in mind?"

"He wants a tape deck for his car." (Serial no. 9176329, Retail $59.95.)

"And I want a motel where you dial 4 and Robert Redford appears at your door with ice."

"A guy only graduates once," he said.

"If he plays his cards right, that's enough," I said.

"He doesn't need anything else," he insisted.

"Ridiculous," I said. "If you got him a tape deck for his car, what would his parents give him?"

"Who do you think is giving him the car?"

"That's their business," I said. "But I personally believe a car is like entering a marriage... you go into it when you can promise to love and support it from this day forward in overtime pay and in gas shortages, in good mileage and brokendown-transmissions... in oil leaks and insurance premiums until you and the loan company (or death, whichever comes first) do part."

"You said that before," he grumbled. "It still doesn't solve what I am going to give Fred for graduation."

"How much money do you have?"

"Thirty-five cents and a student I.D. card."

"That can get you identified as a pauper."

"Maybe I could get him a new tennis racket? A sports shirt? A hot comb? A can of tennis balls?"

"How about a card?" I asked.

"That's not much for a guy who has everything."

"I know something he doesn't have."

"What?"

"A need."

Ignorance Is A State Of Meaning

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the socially active university professor with a Ph.D. who wasn't sure of what R.S.V.P. meant until he saw it in your column: You replied "Ignorance is simply the absence of knowledge which is no crime. We are all ignorant, only on different subjects."

Abby, ignorance is "not knowing something we should know." Nescience is "not knowing something one would have no reasonable expectation of knowing."

Your not knowing the distinction between "ignorance" and "nescience" is nescience on your part. The professor's not knowing the meaning of R.S.V.P. is ignorance on his part.

P.J.R.: WORD FREAK

DEAR FREAK: Since words are my tools, I felt ignorant not knowing the meaning of the word "nescience." Then I polled three newspaper editors, two lawyers, a psychiatrist, the heads of the English department in three of our leading universities, a world famous novelist, a United States Supreme Court Justice, and an expert who writes a syndicated column on words, and not ONE of them had ever heard of the word "nescience." So, now I feel more nescient than ignorant.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old girl, and my problem involves my psychiatrist. I trusted him completely and told him things I never in a million years would tell my mother, because he led me to believe that everything I told him would be held in the strictest of confidence.

Can you imagine how I felt when I overheard my mother telling a relative on the phone some of the things I had told my psychiatrist? I can't tell you how this upset me!

In high school I stayed away from counselors, teachers, shrinks, etc., in order to avoid this.

When I saw my psychiatrist, I asked him why he did this to me. At first he denied it, then he said that my mother had become "concerned" about me, so he told her everything. Abby, I thought I could trust him, and he betrayed me!

What is the law concerning a doctor's keeping information confidential? He said he had a right to talk to my mother without my permission. Did he? I am not a minor.

UPSET

DEAR UPSET: Your doctor has committed a breach of ethics, and you would be perfectly justified in reporting him to the Ethics Committee of your local county medical society and/or psychiatric society. I suggest you do just that.

DEAR ABBY: How can I get a reply from a place of business when I write them requesting specific information?

I wrote to these people three times—and even then I was ignored. I didn't ask for any special favors; I inquired about buying something they sell. What is the matter with people these days? Please tell me how to get an answer out of them.

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: To insure a reply — and usually a prompt one, enclose a stamped, addressed envelope. If you are ignored, give up. They probably don't need the business, and they certainly don't deserve it.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been considering beginning a family, but we aren't completely certain that we want to, for various reasons. However, here is one reason in particular which bothers me. I have always been a rather possessive person, and it is important to me to be the most important person in my husband's life.

I'm afraid if I had a child, the child might become more important to my husband than I am and I would then become jealous of my own child. I've seen it happen in some families.

I have caught myself feeling jealous when my husband shows affection for our dog. Now, wouldn't it be terrible to feel that way about your own child? Does this sound far out to you, or have you come across this problem before? And what should I do about it?

JEALOUS

DEAR JEALOUS: If you're jealous of a dog, forget about a family. It shouldn't happen to a child.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Cal. 90212 for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Park Programs Are Welcome

We have previously urged that the university-controlled property east of Reade Circle be put to some public use; thus we are happy to note the plans for a "Bicentennial Sundays in the Park" program this year.

A series of entertainment events will be held in the area between Third and Fourth Street. The natural slope provides good ground seating and a stage will be constructed for the programs.

Events scheduled include the U.S. Marine Band, (June 16) the Flatland Family Band and Cloggers (July 7). A Soul Sunday is planned and concerts of musicals are being considered. Finally there will be an amateur night during which local talent can perform before a live audience.

The program is being put on by the Recreation Commission in cooperation with the university with a $2,000 N.C. Fine Arts Council grant. And the programs will be not only for Greenville people. Citizens from the entire eastern area are invited to attend and, of course, there will be no admission charged.

"Bicentennial Sundays in the Park" is a fine example of town and gown cooperation. It will be putting to use the park-like area along Reade Circle until the land is needed for construction by the university.

Wishing Many Plateaus Ahead

Move over world for Pitt County's annual crop of young people. Our educational facilities are turning them out in ever-increasing numbers, and this year is no exception.

They represent the very best people-product the resources of our community, state and nation could contrive. Each graduate, from our university, our technical institute, our high schools, represents a tremendous investment in dreams, work, hope and aspirations.

As did their predecessors, they face a world of uncertainties. And as in other years, they are armed with the accumulated knowledge and values accrued through untold generations.

Their learning process is not ended. It will continue for a lifetime, and hopefully will be of value to generations to come.

Today we congratulate our graduates on having reached a plateau that seemed so distant only a short time ago. We wish them well in striving for new and different plateaus that lie before them. May there be many.

For when one runs out of goals to achieve, even the marvel of life acquires a lackluster hue.

Republican For Atty. General

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Of all the hopeful jockeying for position as would-be attorney general, only one is guaranteed that he will hold the office—at least for a few months.

Appeals Court Justice James H. Carson is getting ready to make a move across the street from his Ruffin Building office to the Attorney General's desk in the Justice Building, as soon as incumbent Bob Morgan steps down for his U.S. Senate race, probably in August.

The official announcement of Carson's appointment to the post is expected momentarily. "Gov. Holshouser asked me not to run for re-election to the Appeals Court so I could be ready to take that assignment," Carson said.

What will he do in the short time until the November election he will have as the official Attorney General? Run for re-election to the post, Carson says bluntly.

"I will use the time to, hopefully, get elected. This period will give me a chance to start a staff and campaign organization, and get a statewide campaign going."

No Housecleaning
Carson said he forsores no "general housecleaning" when he, a Republican, takes over the traditionally Democratic slot. There are members of Morgan's staff who have taken leaves of absence and have been actively campaigning in the U.S. Senate race for Democrat Morgan. "I hope that problem will take care of itself. . . they should leave with Morgan."

As for those career people who have been doing their jobs, they have nothing to fear, and he will not ask any to change their party affiliations, Carson said.

Carson said he has no second thoughts about using the office as a campaign tool. "Morgan has proved that the office can run itself," he says, and he plans to "campaign vigorously, visiting all areas of the state, speaking out on the issues and trying to draw a sharp contrast between myself and my opponent— whoever that may be."

Will he run as a strong Republican candidate in this year of Watergate, or as a strong individual seeking personal identification?

"A combination of the two—with emphasis on the latter (personal identification)," said the 39-year-old Charlotte-born attorney with a smile.

Watergate Hurts
"Anybody who says Watergate is not going to hurt us this year is just whistling Dixie. If everything is resolved, then Republicans may be able to run on their own recognition. . . but if Congress is still dragging its heels in November, somewhere between a House vote of impeachment and a Senate trial, it will hurt badly. . . it could be disastrous," Carson believes.

But won't Carson be vulnerable to the same charges of using his office to run for election which the Republican leadership leveled at Democrat Morgan in the Senate race?

Not at all, Carson fires back. "Clearly, anybody running for the office he is already in has a right to remain in office while running. . . there are some distinctions, as if a judge were running for attorney general, he would have to get out of office; or if an attorney general were running for another state office, then the line is fuzziest."

"But, running for the office he already holds while staying in office clearly is on the right side of the line," Carson said.

Carson is reluctant to get into the issues which he will pinpoint in his campaign, figuring that "after I get off the court will be plenty of time to discuss that." But, he does expect consumerism and environmental protection to play key roles. "Also, I want to take a look at Fair Trade laws, especially as they concern gasoline prices in North Carolina. I have some opinions on that already, but will have to develop the facts," he said.

Wilson Shows No Bitterness

By JOHN KILGO

Henry Hall Wilson, with no trace of bitterness, feels the timetable of current events damaged his bid to become the Democratic nominee for the U.S. Senate from North Carolina.

In an interview with me, Wilson also declared he would do anything he can to help Robert Morgan be elected to the Senate in November.

Wilson says his campaign for the Senate badly needed exposure, more so than the campaigns of Morgan and Nick Galifianakis, because they were better known to the voters.

"In the months before Sen. Ervin announced that he was not running," Wilson said, "he was dominating the newspapers, TV news and new magazines. Obviously I was not of national interest and should not have been. That was a problem for me. Then on Dec. 20 Sen. Ervin made the announcement that he would not run. As soon as the holidays were over, the North Carolina Legislature cranked up and remained in session three weeks before the primary."

Wilson said the "principal" political reporters in the state were covering the Legislature and not the campaign for the Senate.

"Obviously I was the candidate in most need of exposure," he said, "so this hurt me. The media had to deploy their talent as they saw fit, and I'm not being critical, but it resulted in the Senate campaign hardly being covered in those months. When it was covered, it was fair, complete and responsible and I have no complaints about it."

Wilson, vacationing at the Outer Banks, issued a statement recently that he would actively support Morgan against Republican Bill Stevens in November. Wilson had charged during the primary that Morgan didn't know enough about national issues to go to Washington.

"How can you support Morgan, if those charges you made during the primary are true?" I asked him.

"I can certainly support him against a Republican candidate whose sole experience is one term in the state Legislature," Wilson responded. "I will do anything for Morgan that he wants me to."

Name identification is becoming more and more important in political campaigns and came under fire from Wilson during his bid for the Senate.

"I think the voters have to feel they know the candidates and know their backgrounds and views," Wilson said. "I think that's a necessary situation. I believe it's more than name ID. I think it's knowing who you are, where you've been, and what you think. It is very difficult to acquaint yourself with the public. I took a year off in an effort to do so and failed."

Wilson is not through with politics. He refuses to say what office he might seek in the future, but he says he does intend to take an active role in the political life of the state.

He says he's working on several business ventures and will now concern himself with making a living. He'll live in Monroe. I asked him if it was hard to return to small-town living after having been in Washington and Chicago for 12 years.

"I lived in Monroe until I was 39 and loved it," Wilson said. "I still love it. I had always planned to return. I've had no trouble adjusting."

Did his 12-year absence from the state hurt him in his Senate campaign?

"Yes," he said. "My opponents used it against me regularly and the press picked it up. I suspect it had something to do with the outcome of the primary."

Wilson says he spent the limit of his personal money on the campaign, which came to $35,000. He says he doesn't know exactly how much money he spent in total on the Senate effort, but will file a detailed financial report on that within the next few days.

Prospects In Baltimore

BALTIMORE — The first purpose of conservatism is to conserve; and by that elementary definition, Baltimore is embarked upon a bold venture in conservatism. Its program might well provide a model for other old cities in search of renewal.

You seldom hear much about Baltimore. With a population of more than 900,000, it is the seventh largest city in the land, but except for stories of great athletes and crooked politicians, Baltimore's dateline seldom appears in the news. The city's most enduring institution is Blaze Starr, the Burly-Q queen. It is also acclaimed, in this century, as the home of H.L. Mencken, Gerald Johnson, and the Johns Hopkins lacrosse team. It has the only clock tower in the country built in the fashion of the Palazzo Vecchio of Florence, with Bromo-Seltzer numbering the dial. Regrettably, that about sums it up. Baltimore has vastly more to offer. In Mencken's time, the city was known as one of the pleasantest of all American cities to live in. It was just enough off the main line. With no great tourist attractions, Baltimore avoided the swarms of nearby Washington; and with no pretensions toward power and munificence, the city avoided the frenzies of New York. A sensible Baltimorean could go where the action was, and return to shady streets, superior schools, the Sun papers, and some of the finest seafood in the world.

It was all very pleasant, but in the course of time much of Baltimore went to seed. Suburbia drew middle-income families away. Changing life styles made white elephants of old houses. The famous marble steps, left unscrubbed, turned smoggy gray. A gloomy prophet, looking at the Baltimore of ten years ago, might have predicted an irreversible decline.

It hasn't turned out that way. With a combination of good sense and good leadership, Baltimore has managed to make the right decisions on urban renewal. Two policies have proved especially wise. The first was to preserve old neighborhoods, rather than to destroy them. The second was to consider not only low-income blacks, but middle and upper-income whites as well.

As a consequence of the first policy, the demolition of slum property has been kept to a minimum. Baltimore has avoided those vast bombed-out blocks that once were thought indispensable preliminaries to urban renewal. Such neighborhoods at Mt. Vernon, Bolton Hill, Tyson, Union Square and Federal Hill have been made objects of lively preservation. Property values are soaring. A three-story rowhouse near the inner harbor, which could have been had for $2,000 ten years ago, is on the market now for $32,000—unrestored.

Baltimore is about 50-50 black and white. When the urge for self-improvement swept the city, a wrong decision might have been made to concentrate on great apartment structures to provide public housing for the low-income blacks. Baltimore did build some god-awful new public (Continued on page 3)

Public Forum

To the editor:
I feel compelled to comment on an issue which has troubled me more and more in recent years. That is the increasing tendency for women to request and receive abortions.

I suppose that if you accept the premise that there is such a thing as an undesirable pregnancy, further reasoning will lead you to the conclusion that the termination of a pregnancy can be desirable. Well, there is no such thing as an undesirable pregnancy. There may be pregnancies which seem to be undesirable under a given set of circumstances. But upon careful scrutiny and analysis, we'd find that the birth of the child might possibly have caused a few people some inconvenience. And I say "might possibly" because no one has any way of knowing what the circumstances will be at the time of birth. But whatever the circumstances we have no right to play God.

If we can legally end a human life three or four weeks after it has begun, then what was wrong with Hitler's ending them 30 or 40 years after they began? The only difference is that the murder takes places at a different stage of development of the organism.

The feminists would have us believe that the fetus belongs to the woman in whose womb it may reside, and for that reason, she has the right to have it cut away like a malignant growth. The fetus does not belong to the woman, not when it is one second old, not when it is 36 years old. The conception is a miracle of God's. The resulting fetus belongs to God. The woman has merely been given the honor of being the host and custodian of the child until it has developed to a stage of self-sufficiency. She has no more right to have it murdered at age one second than she has to have it murdered at age 36.

If human beings will suffer for having killed other human beings, then whoever kills a defenseless unborn child will suffer. Enjoying our lives is our business. Starting and ending lives is God's business.

Strength For Today When Debt Becomes Excessive

PERFECTION THROUGH SUFFERING

Christ was made perfect through suffering. It seems a strange way, does it not, for God to have treated his only begotten son and brought him to the perfection of saviorhood?

Yet when we think about it a moment, the reason becomes plain. It was the cross which made Jesus the savior of mankind because the suffering of the crucifixion threw him back upon God in a way that nothing else in his ministry could do. The obedience and faith of Jesus was what God had wanted from his children since the beginning, as the Old Testament makes plain. But something more was needed; Christ had to be made perfect. This could come only through pain. Suffering is, of course, an experience which we all have from time to time, but in this case it was what tied Christ both to God and to men. The obedient Son of God was made perfect and raised to a position of spiritual glory when he at last submitted to the commonest of human experiences.

NEW YORK (AP) — There exists that ancient argument over just when and at what figure debt becomes excessive.

At the extremes, proponents of one point of view insist that credit is a right to be used freely in quest of a better life, while advocates of the other view maintain it is a sin that leads to financial hell and damnation.

The extremes would agree on one thing—public and private debt in the United States amounts to an almost incomprehensible figure. At the end of 1973 it totaled $2.525 trillion.

On a per capita basis that amounts to roughly $12,000. The net public debt, made up of the obligations of the federal government and its agencies, plus those of state and local governments, rose 5.4 per cent last year to a total of $593 billion, but was far exceeded by private debt.

In that latter category, corporations alone accounted for $1.1 billion of the $1.93 billion total, with the remainder divided among individuals and corporate enterprises. Corporate debt rose 13.6 per cent, individual debt by 11.6.

Consumer debt, mainly of the kind that is paid back in installments, now exceeds $180 billion, compared with $157 billion in 1972 and $138 billion in 1971. But don't forget that inflation alone makes figures look larger.

The biggest load of any individual debt category is accounted for by home mortgages, which amounted to $74 billion at the close of

Space-Shuttle Future

By HOWARD BENEDICT

AP Space Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States plans only one manned space flight in the next five years. But starting in 1979, Americans will fly into orbit on an airline schedule, with 725 flights projected over a 12-year period.

That's more than one mission a week, with four to seven persons on each, including a crew of three.

Among the travelers will be men and women scientists and researchers of many lands. The flights will be for working personnel only; there will be no sightseeing trips into space.

A full passenger load of seven will mean a per-person cost of about 5 million.

Dr. Myron S. Malkin, director of the space shuttle program, said the cost of developing two shuttle vehicles by 1979 will be $5.15 billion—one-fifth the cost of the Apollo program.

He said NASA probably will need seven shuttles in the 1980s, with five extra craft being purchased from the contractor, Rockwell International, at about $250 million each.

To make this launch rate possible, and economical, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is developing the shuttle, a vehicle that will be launched like a rocket, fly like a spaceship and land on a concrete runway like an airliner.

The size of a DC9, an airplane that carries 90 to 110 passengers, it will be able to make 100 or more round trips into orbit.

NASA officials discussed the shuttle and its over-all space transportation plan for the 1980s at a briefing Wednesday. NASA sees itself becoming a "trucking agency" to deliver people and payloads into space for commercial users, other government agencies and foreign governments.

In effect, passengers will buy seats on a shuttle to conduct experiments in orbit for periods up to 30 days, sharing the estimated $10.5 million cost of each mission. An Apollo space mission cost $450 million, and nothing was reusable.

John F. Yardley, associate administrator for manned space flight, said the shuttle and its two solid fuel launching rockets are reusable. The rockets will parachute back to earth for recovery.

Initially, the shuttle will be used to place communications, weather and scientific satellites into orbit, eliminating the need for conventional throwaway rockets. If a payload should have trouble, a shuttle crew could fly up to repair or retrieve it.

The recently-completed Skylab space missions demonstrated that a science can be developed for surveying earth's resources from space. Oil and mineral companies, farm, fishing and timber organizations and other industries have expressed an interest in having their own researchers on the shuttle.

Metals processing, electronic and pharmaceutical companies want to explore production possibilities in the unique weightlessness and vacuum of space.

The Defense Department plans to operate 29 per cent of the shuttle missions for military purposes such as reconnaissance.

Nine European nations—Belgium, Denmark, France, West Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Spain, Switzerland and the United Kingdom—are developing a reusable small space station for $400 million, called a Spacelab, to be orbited by a shuttle in 1980.

1973, up $35 billion in a year. But don't forget that the population keeps rising too. Is all this too much? Those who most enthusiastically defend the present debt position maintain it is still within bounds, that much of it is backed by collateral and earning power, and that borrowers are more sophisticated in using credit.

A good many critics, many informed financial people, are growing more fearful that both families and corporations are borrowing too far into the future.

Sniper Slain, So Is A Policeman; 10 Wounded

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A shotgun-wielding ex-convict killed a policeman and wounded eight other officers and two civilians before he emerged from a flaming rooming house and was shot to death early today, police said.

Police Chief Richard Andersen said Elza Carr Jr., 33, had held police at bay with an automatic shotgun for more than four hours before he came out of a flaming, tear gas-filled rooming house on Omaha's Near North Side.

The chief said Carr was firing the weapon at officers as he opened a door on the porch. Police returned the fire and Carr was killed, he said.

Andersen said Patrolman Paul Nields, about 26, died at a hospital of a head wound suffered at about 12:45 a.m. when he entered the house as police urged the sniper to surrender.

Authorities said Nields, married and the father of two, was among officers who launched tear gas about 2½ hours after Carr had fired from upstairs in the two-story frame structure.

Flames engulfed the house in late stages of the incident, apparently ignited by tear gas canisters. Three persons in the house when the shooting started managed to escape uninjured.

Andersen said pellets from the man's weapon had hit eight other officers, a man who had been visiting Carr and a bystander.

Andersen said Carr had been convicted of burglary and auto theft charges, and newspaper files showed he was in the Nebraska Penal Complex in 1972.

According to the police account, Carr had held off police since about 9:30 p.m., after his half brother, Jesse McDonald, 44, was wounded in the house and officers were summoned.

Mrs. Harry Owens, who lives on the first floor of the house, said she had called McDonald to say Carr was ill and needed $10. She said McDonald was shot as he left the apartment. His condition was not reported.

Two other patrolmen were wounded about the same time as Nields. There was no report on their conditions.

Andersen said Carr, shooting from a window, wounded two sergeants and three other patrolmen. Three of the men were reported in serious condition, two others in fair condition.

Police started firing tear gas into the house at about midnight but Carr refused to surrender. The police chief, using a bullhorn, repeatedly urged Carr to "lay down your weapon and come out with your hands up and you will not be harmed."

Reporters said the only response was jeering from many of the estimated 300 bystanders in the predominantly black area.

Another patrolman was shot shortly after 2 a.m., and flames and tear gas then drove Carr from the building at 2:05 a.m.

The bystander was not hurt seriously.

(Continued from page 4) housing, but a visitor finds none of the sterile, soul-destroying hives that once were the rage.

The emphasis, instead, has been on housing opportunities across the economic scale. The city found itself a couple of years ago with 1,600 vacant houses in its possession, all of them forfeited for non-payment of taxes. Under a homesteading plan (used also in Wilmington and Philadelphia), the houses now are being sold at one dollar each to owners who will agree to restore them and to occupy them for at least two years. A city loan fund provides six percent financing for improvements.

Robert C. Embry, Jr., commissioner of housing and community development, emphasizes that this "is not a poverty program." It is a middle and upper-income program. Its object is to revitalize the downtown city with new families and a new tax base.

One hesitates to paint too rosy a picture. Baltimore's dream of rebuilding its entire inner harbor is still far from fulfillment. A great deal of money may be invested unwisely in a financially disastrous subway system. The lunacies of racial-balance busing and contrived integration may undermine the sense of community that Baltimore is working so hard to revive. But so many right decisions have been made — decisions based upon human beings and not on buildings — that one finds solid grounds for hope. The late Mr. Mencken, who was not pleased with much, might well be pleased at what Baltimore is doing now.

Greenville To Host Regional Hearing Tuesday

House Kills Subsidy To U.S. Sugar Producers

By WILLIAM L. CHAZE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has killed the 40-year-old federal sugar program, but opponents and supporters disagree over what effect the action will have on sugar prices for the consumer.

The bill's chief supporter, Rep. W.R. Poage, D-Tex., said Wednesday's 209-175 vote will agree over what effect the action will have on sugar prices for the consumer.

Peysers and other opponents of the bill argued that the bill contained a formula that would have boosted the retail price of sugar by at least a half-cent per pound over the highest price allowed under the present Sugar Act.

Peysers charged during debate that the sugar program, established during the Depression to help the industry survive, was now "making the taxpayer and the consumer damn unhappy."

The program sets domestic and foreign production quotas and provides subsidies to sugar producers.

Peysers said the object of the program was to stabilize domestic sugar prices, but that it had failed to do so.

But Poage, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, said, "The House is going to find out it must have a sugar bill. By tomorrow morning, there will be second thoughts on this."

Poage, whose committee drafted the measure, said that without federal payments to encourage sugar production, production likely will fall, driving up prices.

He predicted that prices will rise from 30 to 75 cents a pound by early next year.

Poage said he will not try to resurrect the legislation. And barring further congressional action, the program that has been costing about $90 million annually will end Dec. 31.

The bill killed by the House would have raised by a half-cent per pound a minimum sugar "price objective" set by the government under the Sugar Act. That would have been passed along to growers, to be offset by lifting a half-cent excise tax on the refined, or processed, product.

Sugar now is selling at at least twice the current price objective — the price the government considers fair for sugar.

There is no ceiling on prices under the program.

RALEIGH—Secretary of Human Resources David Flaherty announced this morning that Greenville has been selected as one of four cities to host a regional hearing to better aid the department in their services.

The Human Resources Dept. has adopted a management tool to be called the Planning Budgeting System or PBS. This is a method of planning and budgeting based on identifying, documenting and assigning priorities to human needs.

In local areas, PBS will involve citizens, managers and employees at both regional and state levels. These people are being asked to plan for future human needs as well as estimating the resources that will be required to meet those needs.

PBS will provide budgeting requests at each level in the department which will be based on need stated at service delivery level and reviewed at each departmental level. PBS will also be involved in needs assessments. "We must be able to identify the needs that exist in N. C. in order to develop programs to meet those needs," said Flaherty. "With this in mind we have scheduled four hearings to receive citizen input." Other meetings will be in Fayetteville, Morganton and Greensboro.

Flaherty said that the department is encouraging participation in these hearings from local city and county government officials as well as private citizens. "This input is essential if we are to be successful in preparing a comprehensive assessment of human needs and a valid list of department priorities in developing the 1975-77 budget for the general assembly."

Along with Flaherty, division directors and regional managers will be attending these hearings. Each presentation will be handled on a first-come, first-served basis with each meeting beginning at 10 a.m. Time will be limited to the number of persons wishing to speak.

"This is a golden opportunity for the recipients of our services to point out where there are gaps in our program and where needs are not being met," said Flaherty. "Not only can the taxpayer voice his views as to how his money is being spent but he can also make suggestions for new programs and services in meeting human needs in North Carolina."

The hearing will be held in the auditorium of the Allied Health building on the ECU campus, Tuesday.

Lang To Serve As Telethon Chairman

RALEIGH—John A. Lang, Vice-President for External Affairs at East Carolina University, will serve as Democratic County Telethon Chairman for Pitt County, State Democratic Chairman James R. Sugg announced Tuesday.

The Telethon will be broadcast over the CBS network for 21 hours on June 29-30.

Pitt County Chairman Lang, appointed by the County's Democratic Party Chairman Henry Oglesby of Grifton, will be active in planning Telethon participation which Party officials have described as "another major step forward in campaign financing."

"This kind of progress in campaign financing is being achieved," said Sugg, "by turning to the public in North Carolina and saying to the average man and woman 'if you care about your party, if you care about your country, if you want good government, you have to pick up a piece of the action.'"

Sugg said the Party found in the 1972 Telethon that Americans "will not turn away from their country's institutions at a time when our system is under great stress. They will rally to the system, and one immediate way they can answer the challenge is to support the Democratic Party on June 29-30 as we go to the people in an open Telethon appeal for funds."

Arrest Man For Damage

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—A striking employe of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. was arrested early today on a charge of malicious damage to the company's property.

Fayetteville Det. John Levy said Joseph R. McFayden, 18, of Fayetteville was accused of tampering with a Carolina Telephone box in Fayetteville early this morning. Residents spotted someone opening the box and an investigation later revealed that wires inside it had been cut.

McFayden was released on bond. A trial was scheduled for June 13.

Carolina Telephone workers who belong to the Communication Workers of America have been on strike since last Friday when contract negotiations broke down. The company has blamed cut lines in several areas of eastern North Carolina on striking employes.

It Ticked—But Innocent

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The olive colored suitcase was unclaimed at the Charlotte bus terminal Wednesday. When the luggage handler heard an ominous ticking inside the suitcase, police were notified.

The terminal loading area was sealed off while two sergeants and three crime lab bomb specialists took charge. The suitcase was loaded carefully in a trailer designed to transport explosives.

It was taken to a former residential district, now abandoned. Sgt. J. J. Kelley, crouching behind a tree, fired four shotgun blasts into the suitcase. No explosion.

Finally, a bomb expert blasted the suitcase apart with a small liquid-powder explosive.

In the litter was found the windup alarm of a fire detection device and photographic slides, apparently belonging to a home fire alarm salesman.

Alabaman Wins Spelling Crown

WASHINGTON (AP) — Julie Ann Junkin, 12, of Gordo, Ala., won the 47th annual National Spelling Bee today by spelling hydrophyte correctly.

Miss Junkin, representing the Birmingham Post-Herald, won out over Gail Meier, 14, of Bartlett, Tenn., representing the Memphis Press-Scimitar, who misspelled mantelletta.

Miss Junkin then correctly spelled mantelletta and then went on to spell the winning word.

Hydrophyte means a plant growing in water and mantelletta means a knee-length outer garment worn by prelates.

Tears coursed down Miss Junkin's cheeks as she accepted the trophy as 1974 spelling champion.

ECU Students Pump $17,000 Daily Into Greenville

The input of "outside" money pumped into the business community of Greenville by East Carolina University students amounts to about $17,200 a day, not counting lodging.

According to a survey just completed, this input amounts to $6,279,049.62 for the entire year ended May 31, 1974. For comparison purposes, the total is approximately equal the municipal budget of the town of Chapel Hill for the same year.

The study conducted by a Spring quarter seminar class in Urban Geography at ECU showed a very wide range in individual student expenditure of money brought into Greenville and spent in the businesses of the city. The average student sampled spent $80.76 per month off-campus for meals and items other than lodging. Each class member obtained an average figure for the amount his sample group spent per month and the highest of these ranges was $216.38 per month and the lowest $47.64.

Dr. Ralph E. Birchard,

Associate Professor in Geography, explained the survey this way:

Most of the 16 students in the class obtained information from 30 questionnaires given to other students. Questionnaire information from a total of 458 students was obtained, a 5.5 per cent sample of the fulltime, on-campus student body for the 1973-74 academic year.

Four hundred and five of the students sampled live in North Carolina and reside in 67 of the 100 counties of the state. Counties with more than 10 participants each were Pitt (37), Wake (27), Forsyth (23), Nash (17), Guilford (15), Cumberland (14), Onslow (14), Alamance (13), Wilson (13), Wayne (13), Johnston (11) and Mecklenburg (11).

The 53 out-of-state students in the sampling came from Virginia (21), Maryland (7), New Jersey (5), Florida (4), Pennsylvania, New York and California (3 each), Alabama, Connecticut, Delaware, West Virginia, Ohio, and Illinois (1 each), and from Taiwan (Republic of China). By class there were 129 juniors, 118 sophomores, 88 seniors, 62 freshmen and 61 graduate students.

The questionnaire was designed to check the amount of money spent off campus for meals and items other than lodging—money that was earned, brought in or sent in from outside of Greenville.

An estimate was made of the total dollar input of outside money into the business of Greenville each year. For this it was assumed that the 8,319 fulltime academic year students spent 8.5 months in Greenville and summer school students two months here.

The overall average student expenditure per month, $80.76, was therefore multiples times 8.5 months times 8,319 students with a product of $5,710,660.74 spent by 1973-74 school year students in Greenville. This same average, $80.76, times two months times 3,519 students (the average enrollment for the two summer sessions of 1973) gives a total of $568,388.88.

Added together the academic year and the summer school figures give an estimated student input of money from outside Greenville spent in business here to be $6,279,049.62 from June 1, 1973 to May 31, 1974. This amounted to about $17,200 per day for that 365 day period, Sundays and holidays included.

Seven graduate students and nine undergraduates, seven of them in Urban Planning, handled the questionnaires. All of the graduate students, except Thomas Loftin, who teaches at Fike High School, Wilson, are working toward Master's degrees in Geography. They are Georgia Arend, Chapel Hill; John Bogako, Greenville; Harry Hurlocker, Concord; Marie Perry, Nags Head; Tommy Powers, Winston-Salem; Harry Jones, Tarboro. Undergraduates are Carl Bell, New Bern; Stephen Farris, Chester, Va.; Andrew Harris, Macon, N.C.; Alan Jones, Raleigh; Robin Kimel and Edward Pinnix, Winston-Salem; Daniel Sullivan, Burlington; William Whlay, Goldsboro, and Vicki Taylor, Swansboro.

A B.S. degree in Urban and Regional Planning is a new academic program at East Carolina University recently approved by the University Board of Governors.

Again Sue Over Island

WILMINGTON (AP)—An action filed in U. S. Eastern District Court seeks to block construction of a marina on Bald Head Island until a full environmental impact statement is prepared.

The suit was brought Wednesday on behalf of the Conservation Council of North Carolina and four supporters in New Hanover and Brunswick counties. It contends that the Army Corps of Engineers abused its discretion by issuing a dredge-and-fill permit for the marina without preparing an impact statement or holding public hearings.

The corps issued a permit for the marina nearly two weeks ago after working out a plan which would give the state title to 9,000 acres of marshlands and beachfront claimed by Carolina Cape Fear Corp. The corporation has begun limited development of the island near Southport.

The suit charges the arrangement was worked out in "highly secret negotiations over several months." Named as defendants are Col. Albert C. Constanzo, Wilmington district engineer of the corps; Secretary of the Army Howard Callaway, and Carolina Cape Fear Corp.

The action asks a temporary restraining order be granted until motions for a preliminary and permanent injunction are heard.

Now Held In County Jail

Howard P. Wiseman, 39, of Norfolk, Va., charged with murder and conspiracy to murder in the death of Lindwood Noah Branch, is now in Pitt County Jail following his extradition to North Carolina.

Pitt Sheriff Ralph Tyson, who noted that Wiseman waived his extradition rights on Tuesday, said that Pitt deputies transferred Wiseman from a Norfolk jail to Pitt County yesterday afternoon.

The sheriff reported that Wiseman is being held without privilege of bond.

Two other defendants in the Branch case, Matthew Jack Wheaton of Chesapeake, Va. and Roy Lee Sullivan of Rt. 8, Kinston, are also in Pitt County Jail while a fourth defendant, Mrs. Connie Hardee Branch, wife of the victim, is out on $100,000 bond. Mrs. Branch is charged with conspiracy to murder and being an accessory before the fact of murder.

Firebombings In Kannapolis

KANNAPOLIS, N.C. (AP)—The eastern part of Kannapolis was hit by six fires early today, police said.

Officers said at least three of the blazes were caused by firebombs.

No injuries were reported, but an estimated $500,000 in damage was done to two of the firms—a building supply company and a mobile home firm.

Police could not explain why the rash of fires occurred. The first was reported around midnight. About four hours later, five other fires were reported within a mile and a half radius.

Officers said the remains of firebombs were found at three of the blazes.

Stand Reaffirmed

WASHINGTON (AP)—A House vote to reaffirm its firm stand against school busing clouds the future of a bill that would provide $21 billion in federal aid to elementary and secondary schools.

Before agreeing to a conference to reconcile its bill with one passed in the Senate, the House voted 270 to 103 Wednesday to instruct its conferees to stick to the House language on busing.

The House provision specifies a list of measures that must be taken against segregation before busing may be continued. It restricts the power of federal courts to order busing beyond the next-closest school and directs that all previous court orders may be reopened to conform with the new guidelines.

The Senate version states its intent that the authority of federal courts to enforce the Constitution will be diminished and omits the provision for reopening past cases.

Indicate 5 Ministers Will Leave Greenville

According to information received late this morning, five Methodist ministers will be departing Greenville churches and five new ministers will be coming in to replace them. The changes result from assignments made at the annual state conference of the United Methodist Church being held in Fayetteville.

At Holy Trinity United Methodist Church, the Rev. John Samuel McMillan will replace the current minister, Rev. Roy Turnage.

Two changes are scheduled at Jarvis United Methodist Church, with Rev. James H. Bailey to become senior minister and Rev. John Archie Farmer associate minister. These two will replace Rev. Troy Barrett and Rev. Charles M. Smith.

At St. James United Methodist Church, the new ministers named are Rev. Francis Rederick Randolph and Rev. James C. Lee, who will be senior and associate ministers, respectively, replacing Rev. Christian White and Rev. Gerald Peterson.

The five appointments noted here constitute advance announcements, and could conceivably change with last minute conference decisions.

but I was afraid he'd sue me," she said.

The Daily consulted with college lawyers who said her case looked pretty solid. So on Wednesday afternoon, Snell, McGarry and Mrs. Cheap held a brief ceremony outside the Communications Building.

Snell stood in a bathing suit, swimming flippers and a T-shirt emblazoned with the words "Daily Libel Team."

Mrs. Cheap, switching from custard to chocolate cream at the last minute, piled on a massive helping of whipped cream and let fly.

"If this makes her feel better, it's cool," said Snell, a sophomore from Walla Walla, Wash.

"I've had clients who have gotten more money out of a settlement but not more satisfaction," McGarry said. "If only all libel suits could be so easily settled."

Opt For Pie Rather Than A Libel Suit

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—Faced with a choice between a libel suit or surrendering a reporter to be hit with a pie, the University of Washington Daily opted for pie.

At issue was a file photograph of Diane Cheap, a 1970 graduate, as she received a debating award. It was reprinted in the Daily's April 16 issue to illustrate John Snell's column poking fun at beauty contests.

Mrs. Cheap, a high school teacher in Snohomish, Wash., said through her attorney and former debate partner, Arthur D. McGarry, that the article was libelous, slanderous and made her the subject of ridicule among her students.

She threatened a $1,000 libel suit unless the Daily agreed to turn over the person responsible to be hit with a custard pie.

Attorney Peter Marshall described Fisher as "unresponsive, uncooperative and inaccessible."

The suit, filed in State Supreme Court in Manhattan, charges Fisher reneged on an agreement for filming and videotaping of his 1972 championship match against Russian Boris Spassky in Iceland.

Integon Gets Win Over Pepsi

Will Barrett hit his third and fourth home runs Wednesday as he carried Integon to a 5-1 victory over Pepsi. The game was marred by a protest by Pepsi in the fifth inning.

The protest arose with two Integon runners on and no count on the batter, Blair Smith. Integon was ahead 5-0 at the time.

Integon had taken a 2-0 lead in the fourth on a solo homer by Barrett. Integon also put two more runners on as Smith singled and Todd Galloway walked but neither could score.

In the fifth Latham Mills reached on an error and moved to second on an out. Barrett walked and an error committed as he tried to take second and let Mills score and Barrett go to third. The protest was then lodged before Smith was pitched to.

Pepsi got its only run in the last of the sixth. Mark Shank singled and Mickey McGrath got a hit. Mike Campbell reached on a fielder's choice and a passed ball scored Shank.

Pepsi was held to only three hits in the game while Integon got just four. Both Integon's Smith and Pepsi's McGrath struck out nine batters.

BIG DAY FOR BROCK—Lou Brock (20), St. Louis Cardinals, slides safely into second, stealing, as the ball hits him in the back during a game with the San Francisco Giants yesterday.

Shortstop Bruce Miller looks into his glove for the ball that wasn't there. Brock stole two bases, hit safely three times and scored twice in the Cardinals' win.

Home Builders Takes 7-3 Win Over Planters

Home Builders defeated Planters Bank 7-3 as Wright Hooks survived a sixth inning scare, which included a protest on a disputed interference call between second and third. It was the only game scheduled for Babe Ruth baseball last night.

The disputed call involved Planters three run spurt in the sixth. Mac Stokes singled to right field and moved to third on a double by Steve Manning. Greg Lassiter reached on an error by the third baseman, allowing Stokes to score, and moving Manning to third. Lassiter went to second on the throw from left field trying to get Manning.

Danny Boyd then rapped into an apparent fielder's choice. The shortstop, in attempting to field the ball, was hit by baserunner Lassiter. The home plate ump ruled Lassiter out for interference. A ten-minute protest followed, and a formal protest was later filed. Manning, who scored on the play was sent back to third, but he scored later anyway on a passed ball.

Gary Porter singled through the shortstop to drive in Boyd with the third run of the inning, and the end of their rally.

The Builders got started in the second, when Ken Kuntz tripled to the alley in left-center, and scored on an infield out. Mark Conway brought across their second run in the third when he doubled to left-center, reached third on an infield out, and came around to score on the first baseman's error.

Conway scored their third run in the fifth when he singled to center, stole second, got to third on a passed ball, and scored on Hooks' single to right.

Builders won the game in the sixth with two runs. Lance Worthington got an infield single and moved to second on a passed ball. David French walked, and with two down, McDonald Avery slapped a double to left to score Wetherington. French went to third on the hit, and scored later on a passed ball.

Builders took insurance in the seventh with two more runs. After Joe Godette hit into a force-out, Kuntz singled and moved to second when the right fielder tried to nail Godette at third. Lassiter balked Godette home and Kuntz to third. Kuntz scored again on another infield out.

Friday night's games have been cancelled due to graduation exercises at Rose High School. The thirteen year-olds will have their game Saturday afternoon at Guy Smith Stadium at 2 p.m. Home B'ders 011 012 2-7 10 2 Planters Bank 000 003 0-3 5 2

R.C. Cola In Upset Victory

David Holley and Junior Hardee each hit two run doubles as they sparked R. C. Cola to a 6-3 victory over the Jaycees yesterday in the North State Little League.

The victory raised the R. C. record to 45 for the season, while the Jaycees dropped off to 5-4.

The Jaycees picked up the first run of the game, scoring it in the first inning. Mike Pollard singled and moved to third on a couple of passed balls. Teddy Gartman singled to drive him in.

But R. C. came right back scoring four runs to take the lead for good. Hardee led off, reaching on an error. Chip Davis reached on another error, and both moved up on a passed ball. Jeff Worthington walked, loading the bases. Holley then doubled to drive in Hardee and Davis. Stacy Mills grounded out, but Worthington scored on the play. A wild pitch brought in Holley for the 4-1 lead.

In the third, R. C. came up with its other two runs. Mills was hit by a pitch and Rob Rood walked. Both advanced on a fly out and Hardee doubled, scoring both to make it 6-1.

The Jaycees came up with a run in the fourth. Kenny Barnes walked and Elvy Forrest singled. Both moved up on a passed ball, and Marion Crisp grounded out, scoring Barnes.

The final Jaycee run came over in the fifth. Larry Talbert walked, moved up when Todd Brown reached on an error, and scored on another error.

The Jaycees' Kenny Barnes was inadvertently left off the list of the league's top ten hitters on Tuesday. Barnes, hitting .360, ranks ninth in the league.

Players Thoughts Wandering To Next Week's U.S. Open Tourney

By BOB GREEN

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Gary Player's here. And, by his mere presence, the gritty little South African must be ranked high among the favorites for the $30,000 first prize in the Philadelphia Golf Classic.

But the diminutive golfer from Johannesburg is having trouble keeping his thoughts centered on this 72-hole test that began today on the White-marsh Valley Golf Club course.

His thoughts keep straying to Winged Foot at Mamaroneck, N.Y., site of next week's United States Open Championship.

"It's very much on my mind," said Player, the current Masters champion who seeks a second leg on the unaccomplished Grand Slam of Golf. "The Grand Slam can be accomplished," Player insisted. "You have to be playing very well, of course. And your putting has to be exceptional. Winged Foot will place a premium on putting.

"And you have to have the breaks. You have to have good luck in the draw, in the half of the field you're playing in, in the weather, in a lot of factors. "But it can be done. Oh, yes, it can be done."

It hasn't been before. No one ever has won the Masters, U.S. and British opens and the PGA in a single season. Only Player, Jack Nicklaus, Ben Hogan and Gene Sarazen have won them all in a career. Player needs another U.S. Open title to join Nicklaus as the only man to win all four crowns twice.

He said he is playing here only because of a sense of responsibility to the sponsors, who gave his friend Vincent Tshabalala, a black South African golfer, an exemption.

Tshabalala, under Player's sponsorship, is completing a three-tournament swing through the United States at Winged Foot.

Others in the 144-man field chasing a total purse of $150,000 are defending champion Tom Weiskopf, U.S. Open king Johnny Miller and Buddy Allin and Hubert Green.

NC, SC Players Among Draftees

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The major league baseball draft dipped into North Carolina and South Carolina ranks Wednesday with Clemson University of the Atlantic Coast Conference providing three of the choices.

Top choices were two University of South Carolina players. Shortstop Eddie Ford, son of Whitey Ford, Yankee great as a pitcher and now a Yankee coach, was the first round choice of the Boston Red Sox. And Earl Bass, South Carolina pitcher, was picked in the fifth round by the Cleveland Indians.

Steven Cline, Clemson pitcher from Hagerstown, Md., was a sixth round choice by San Francisco. He was assigned to Fresno.

Richard Haynes, Clemson infielder from Barnwell, S. C., was chosen by Houston in the eighth round and assigned to Cedar Rapids.

San Diego chose William Hamilton, Clemson catcher from Rock Hill, in the 10th round and assigned him to Walla Walla.

Jeff Smith, Wilmington shortstop, was a second round choice by Houston, which sent him to Denver.

Another sixth round choice was Jerry Narron, a Goldsboro catcher, who was picked by the New York Yankees and assigned to Fort Lauderdale.

Baltimore chose Richard Rickman, Greensboro shortstop, in the 11th round and assigned him to Miami, while David Caldwell was a 12th round choice of Philadelphia. Spartanburg got the services of the Kannapolis outfielder.

Todd Brenizer, Furman University pitcher from Greenville, was a 13th round choice of Philadelphia, which ticketed him to Spartanburg. In the same round, Kansas City chose Charles McLean of Rockingham and assigned the third baseman to San Jose.

William Suter, High Point College pitcher from Towson, Md., was picked in the 15th round by Boston, which assigned him to Winter Haven.

It didn't bother Doug Rau to see Richie Hebner heading for first base with Pittsburgh's first hit after 7 1-3 no-hit innings Wednesday night as much as its did to see Richie Zisk hightailing it for the plate with the Pirates' first run.

"I wasn't really concerned about the hit, although I thought about a no-hitter in the fifth inning," the Los Angeles left-hander said. "The hit didn't get me down as much as the run since it made it a one-run game again."

Rau allowed two more singles before giving way to relief ace Mike Marshall in the ninth with the Dodgers on top 2-1. And after coming within five outs of a no-hitter, the second-year left-hander didn't even figure in the decision. Marshall yielded a game-tying single to Zisk and then became the winning pitcher when Steve Garvey homered leading off the bottom of the ninth, giving the Dodgers a 3-2 victory.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Philadelphia Phillies held off the Atlanta Braves 4-2, the St. Louis Cardinals downed the San Francisco Giants 4-1, the Montreal Expos trounced the Houston Astros 8-3 and the San Diego Padres edged the Chicago Cubs 4-3. Cincinnati and New York were not scheduled.

Phillies 4, Braves 2
Mike Schmidt's three-run homer, his 12th, and Bob Boone's solo shot produced a four-run third inning that gave Jim Lonborg all the support he needed to keep the Phillies one-half game ahead of runner-up St. Louis in the National League East.

Cardinals 4, Giants 1
Lou Brock and Tom Heinzelman cracked three hits apiece and Brock stole his 33rd and 34th bases of the season while Sonny Siebert gained his sixth victory with last-out relief help from Orlando Pena.

Expos 8, Astros 3
Willie Davis, Bob Bailey and Hal Breenen drove in first-inning runs against Claude Osteen and Mike Jorgensen and Jim Cox drove in two runs apiece in the last two innings. Mike Torrez pitched eight innings for Montreal before Chuck Taylor finished up.

Padres 4, Cubs 3
Fred Kendall doubled home the tie-breaking run in the eighth after the Cubs had tied the score in the top of the inning on Bill Madlock's pinch single.

American League scores:
Boston 4, Minnesota 3; California 6, Milwaukee 5; Oakland 9, Detroit 1; Baltimore 5, Kansas City 4; Cleveland 9, Texas 3; Chicago White Sox 7, New York Yankees 6 in 15 innings.

Rodgers, Giants Win

The Giants and Rodgers Furniture Company picked up victories last night in the Southern Pitt Little League.

The Giants downed the Hornets, 8-5, in a game played in Winterville. Mike Mills was the winning hurler, throwing a three-hitter. He fanned seven, but walked nine. Jesse Carmon took the loss, allowing seven hits. He struck out eight and walked seven.

Mike Coward led the Giant hitting with two hits, one of them a two-run homer. Doug Branch had two triples, while Tony Garner had a triple and Arnell Credle had a double. For the Hornets, Carmon hit a two-run homer.

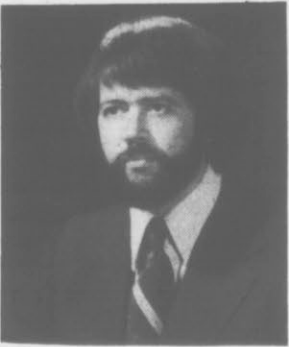

Rodgers took a 4-1 win over Chicod. T. Gunter won the game, allowing four hits. He struck out only three, but didn't walk any. Carl Arnold, the loser, was charged with all four runs, as he allowed two hits but walked seven in three innings. Mike Edens came on in relief and shut Rodgers out the rest of the way on one hit.

No one on either team had more than one hit, nor did better than a single.

Indians Provide Fireworks In 9-3 Win

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
The fans left the fireworks to the baseball team in Cleveland

Wednesday night. Home runs exploded at Municipal Stadium instead of people. It resulted in a 9-3

Cleveland victory over the Texas Rangers in relative peace and quiet.

"I really liked it when the fans stood up and cheered our boys when they hit their homers," noted Cleveland Manager Ken Aspromonte. "That's the kind of fans we want to come out and see us. They can enjoy our success with us. Those others, I don't ever want to see around."

It was a far more civilized scene than Tuesday night when their game was torn apart by a riot. Hundreds of fans, apparently hyped up by "10-cent beer night," threw debris and flooded the field, chasing the players to cover. The Indians had to forfeit the game.

On Wednesday night, only about 8,000 persons showed up—about one-third of Tuesday night's audience. The public address announcer told them that finances would be levied if anyone ran on the playing field. And they cheered the announcement.

There were mostly cheers from then on, as Oscar Gamble and Dave Duncan hit three-run homers for the Indians in a seven-run sixth inning. The only boos through the entire evening came when Texas Manager Billy Martin walked to the mound to change a pitcher.

In the other American League games, the Baltimore Orioles nipped the Kansas City Royals 5-4; the Oakland A's blasted the Detroit Tigers 9-1; the California Angels turned back the Milwaukee Brewers 6-5; the Chicago White Sox stopped the New York Yankees 7-6 in 15 innings and the Boston Red Sox defeated the Minnesota Twins 5-3.

Mark Belanger's bloop double with two out in the ninth inning scored Frank Baker from first base, capping a three-run rally that lifted Baltimore over Kansas City.

A's 9, Tigers 1
Gene Tenace blasted a 415-foot grand slam home run in the fifth inning, leading Oakland over Detroit.

Vida Blue, 5-5, scattered four hits in seven innings for his fourth consecutive victory and fifth in his last six decisions.

Angels 6, Brewers 5
Joe Lahoud blasted a two-run homer with two out in the ninth inning, giving California a victory over Milwaukee.

White Sox 7, Yankees 6
Jorge Orta's one-out double in the 15th inning scored Dick Allen from second base and gave Chicago its victory over New York.

Red Sox 5, Twins 3

Luis Tiant scattered 10 hits and Rick Burleson knocked in the winning run with a single in the sixth inning, pacing Boston past Minnesota. Tiant posted his fifth straight victory and boosted his record to 7-5.

National League scores: St. Louis 4, San Francisco 1;

Philadelphia 4, Atlanta 2; Montreal 8, Houston 3; San Diego 4, Chicago 3 and Los Angeles 4, Pittsburgh 3.

NFL Looking To The World

NEW YORK (AP) — First Seattle, then the world. That seems to be the general direction of expansion as the National Football League brought Seattle into its ranks, then on Wednesday seriously was considering opening a separate pro league in Europe next spring.

The NFL owners, who wrap up their three-day meeting today, took Seattle into the fold Tuesday. On Wednesday, the owners modified the punt return rule again, then expressed enthusiasm over the proposal of a six-team, six-week league in Europe, recommended to start next spring.

Bob Kap, active in European soccer and instrumental in bringing several soccer-style kickers to the United States, presented the plan. The teams would be stocked by players from the NFL, who would return then to the U.S. for the regular NFL fall season.

The proposed cities are: Istanbul, nicknamed the Conquerors; Rome, nicknamed the Gladiators; West Berlin; Barcelona; Munich, and Vienna. Except for Istanbul, which has a stadium that seats 55,000, all these cities have stadiums with seating capacities of more than 75,000.

Seattle and Tampa, which was voted into the NFL in April, raised the NFL ranks to 28 teams. Both clubs are to begin play in 1976, although the timetable could be moved up a year, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle says.

As for the punt rule, last season, any player on the punting team could race downfield to cover the kick when the ball was snapped. In April, the NFL attempted to stimulate more punt returns by preventing any player from running downfield until the ball was kicked.

Now the rule, given unanimous approval by the owners, allows for a wide receiver on each side to leave the line of scrimmage when the ball is snapped, the rest of the players after the kick.

Several teams, including Cincinnati and Oakland, experimented with the April rule change and "discovered that the man covering the punt wasn't able to get within 12-13 yards of the punt return man," Rozelle said.

Several coaches have said that if their punt coverage team couldn't get downfield, they would instruct their punter to kick out of bounds, preventing any runback.

Martin Says Protest 'Face-Saving Effort'

By RICHARD BILOTTI
AP Sports Writer

CLEVELAND (AP) — Texas Ranger Manager Billy Martin says the Cleveland Indians' management is trying to save face by filing a formal protest against the Tribe's forfeiture of the pair's violence-ridden Tuesday night baseball game.

"They should do what the President (Nixon) didn't do," Martin said. "Just come out and admit they made some mistakes and that they will do everything they can do to prevent it from happening again."

Martin said the actions of Indian General Manager Phil Seghi and Executive Vice President Ted Bonda were "ridiculous."

The Indians filed a formal protest to the forfeiture with American League President Lee MacPhail Wednesday morning.

"While we deplore the incidents which lead to the forfeiture, we also feel that there was no warning given to the fans during the course of the game by the umpires that any continuation of interruptions of play would lead to a declaration of a forfeiture of the game," the protest telegram said.

The Indians' management also said the umpires lost control of the game.

The Indians won Wednesday night's game 9-3 before 8,101 orderly fans.

More than 25,000 Cleveland Indian fans turned out Tuesday night on 10 cent beer night. Early in the game a few young persons started running around the outfield between innings. By the ninth inning firecrackers, beer bottles and chairs were being thrown and the number of persons running on the field had grown considerably.

When the Indians knotted the score at 5-5 in the ninth the Rangers rushed onto the field to fight the fans, who had gathered around right fielder Jeff Burroughs. The Indian players came to the assistance of the Rangers.

Martin said the troublemakers were drunk and referred to them as beasts.

Statements from MacPhail and Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said promotions such as 10 cent beer nights would have to be made known to their offices in advance that security studies would be made.

Bonda grieved that a security study should be done, but denied that the beer promotion had anything to do with the occurrence.

"You're giving beer a bum rap," Bonda said.

Bonda said a number of things combined created the ninth inning melee.

He included: —Retaliation for a fight the Rangers and Indians had in Texas last week.

—A large crowd (25,134) on a warm night.

—A lot of young people in the crowd who played follow the leader after seeing a few fans run on the field.

—The Indians tying the score in the ninth.

—The Texas Rangers leaving the dugout with their bats to fight fans in the ninth.

Jack Bids For Title

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus has returned to Winged Foot after a 14-year absence, with a new grip and five extra pounds to take into next week's bid for a 15th major golf championship.

Claude Harmon, the longtime resident pro at the course where the U.S. Open starts June 13, was flabbergasted.

"Can you imagine," said the paunchy teacher of princes and kings. "Here's a guy who has won every major championship in the world, most of them two and three times over, and he's changing his grip a week before the Open."

Nicklaus flew in from his home in West Palm Beach, Fla., for a re-introduction to the famed Winged Foot course Wednesday and immediately began charting the layout like a surgeon preparing for a delicate operation.

At the 442-yard eighth hole he laced into an iron shot. The ball formed a perfect parabola, sailing to the green only a few feet from the cup.

"That's it, that's it," Jack said with obvious delight and to no one in particular. "All spring I've been trying to move the ball left to right."

Nicklaus, winner of a record 14 major championships, has managed only one tour victory this year—the Hawaiian Open—while Johnny Miller, the defender in the Open, dominated the early season with four triumphs.

He professes he is not discouraged.

"It isn't that I have been complacent or spending too much time on other things," he said. "I've been working hard on my game. I just haven't been playing well, that's all, and it's been largely due to the fact that I haven't been able to fade the ball."

He said, "I feel fine, although at 190 I'm about five pounds overweight."

Nicklaus was a pudgy, crew-cut 19-year-old amateur when he played in the last U.S. Open at Winged Foot in 1959. He shot two 77s for 154 and missed by a shot making the cut. Billy Casper won it.

The next year Jack returned to play it again—the last time he had seen it—while on his honeymoon.

TWO OF MONGO'S WIN
NEW YORK (AP) — Two sons of the stallion Mongo recently won feature races more than 1,000 miles apart the same day. Bushongo won the Flamingo Stakes at Hialeah in Florida for Mrs. Marion du Pont Scott, while Star Edition captured the Iroquois Handicap at Garden State Park in Camden, N.J., for Holly Crest Farm.

CADDY HELPED TREVINO
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Lee Trevino captured the recent New Orleans Open but he was fortunate to play in the final round. He faced disqualification after the third round when he inadvertently signed an improper score card. But his caddy, Nal Harbey, caught the error before Trevino turned in his card.

On the third hole of the third round, Trevino registered a birdie 2 but wrote a 3 on his card. Trevino added his score five times before his caddy found the discrepancy.

Missing 2 Days, Tot Safely Home

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Three-year-old Matthew Goodman was safely back home today and his mother, who spent two days wondering whether her only child was dead or alive, vowed "it would never happen again."

Mrs. Natalie Goodman was reunited with her son Wednesday night at an airport in Richmond, Va., where Matthew turned up Tuesday, about 24 hours after he disappeared from a shopping center in nearby Marietta.

The boy was not identified until Wednesday. A few hours after she was notified, Mrs. Goodman flew to Richmond aboard a state-owned plane which was made available for the trip.

Meanwhile, FBI agents entered the case and asked newsmen not to question the boy or his mother in detail about the apparent abduction.

After meeting his mother at Richmond's Byrd Field, Matthew told her he was taken from the shopping center, where she was shopping while he played on a merry-go-round, by a man who led him to a car and told him they were "looking for Mommy."

"He drove all around and looked everywhere," Matthew said, "but he couldn't find you."

All the boy would say of his abductor was that, "It was a man. It was a mean man."

Mrs. Goodman, a 28-year-old social worker, repeatedly hugged and kissed her son and asked him several times if he was hurt or mistreated. He said he was not.

"I think it was just a lonely person who wanted to have a little boy for a while," she told reporters. "Thank God for that."

"Before I found out he was alive, I didn't know what I would do. I thought I would die."

Mrs. Goodman, who is divorced from the boy's father, Dr. Steven Goodman of Santa Fe, N.M., said she would never leave her son alone again "even if he becomes a mama's boy."

Matthew, who celebrates his fourth birthday June 19, was found Tuesday at a busy Richmond department store. A note was pinned to his shirt, saying, "I'm from Atlanta, Ga. Please help me get home."

Mrs. Goodman shed a few joyful tears during the reunion, but Matthew was all smiles. During the flight back to Atlanta Wednesday night he happily hugged his mother, munched on a ham sandwich and played with the microphones of newsmen who accompanied Mrs. Goodman on the trip.

Mrs. Goodman asked Matthew what he would like when he gets back to Atlanta.

"A bicycle," the boy replied. "That's exactly what you'll get," said his relieved mother.

Convictions Are Upheld

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Court of Appeals has upheld the convictions of four persons on disorderly conduct charges growing out of a protest over the firing of a high school band director at Edenton.

The court said Wednesday the four received a fair trial free from prejudicial error.

The charges had been brought against Don Anthony Woods, a field secretary for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, and students Johnny Wayne Wills, Matthew Wilbert Wills and Roy Archie Wills. They were arrested May 16, 1973, after refusing to leave the principal's office at John A. Holmes High School.

The four had gone there following the dismissal of band director Richard A. Satterfield.

The court dismissed a suit brought by the town of Wadesboro against Gov. Jim Holshouser, Social Rehabilitation and Control Secretary David Jones and State Probation Director B.

Cerrod Ford Has Strong N.C. Republican Backing

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Vice President Gerald Ford has strong support from North Carolina Republican county chairmen should he decide to run for President in 1976, according to an Associated Press survey.

Ford is scheduled to visit Raleigh Friday. He will give the graduation address at a private school and then speak at a fund raising luncheon for GOP Congressional candidate Ward Purrington of Raleigh. It will be Ford's third visit to North Carolina in as many weeks. He played golf for two days in Charlotte last week and prior to that appeared at a fund raising affair for U.S. Rep. James G. Martin, R-N.C. Ford's heavy schedule of party appearances has endeared him to the county chairmen. The Associated Press contacted 15 of them across the state. Eleven said Ford was their strong choice for the GOP nomination in 1976. The rest were undecided or favored John Connally of Texas or Ronald Reagan of California.

Ford, since becoming vice president, has consistently said he has no intention of running for the presidency. But the county chairmen are confident that he will.

"He's in a position where he almost has to say that he's not seeking the nomination at this point," said William F. Graham of Forsyth. "There've been others who said they weren't interested and then ran," said Frank Montgomery of Durham.

"I don't think he has the burning ambition to be President that many candidates have, but when the time comes, I think he can be prevailed upon to run," said Al Butler of New Hanover.

The GOP chairmen like Ford for several reasons.

"He's earned a lot of good will" within the party through his strenuous speechmaking schedule across the country, said Zack Smith of Mecklenburg.

"He's being exposed to what is going on in Washington," said Dixie Green of Pitt County. "That gives him experience that would be valuable to the country and to the office."

"I think the country is looking for someone who is sincere," said Butler. "The people want a social conservative who is not flamboyant. Ford's personal life, morals and financial situation are beyond reproach."

None of the chairmen are bothered by reports from Washington that those who know Ford do not consider him the brightest man in the country. President Lyndon Johnson is supposed to have said that Ford "played too much football without his helmet."

"I don't put any stock in those stories," said Carolyn Gardner of Rutherford County. "I've heard him speak."

"I think back to when I was in school. The smartest person often wound up not using his talents whereas the average person often eventually comes through," said Green.

"I went to law school with Ted Kennedy, and he was near the bottom of the class, said Graham. "I don't see how a man could be a successful lawyer and Congressman if he were a yo-yo."

Those chairmen who are cool to Ford says he is either too closely tied to President Nixon or lacks charisma.

"When you start talking about a presidential candidate, you start talking about winning, and I think Ford is too closely tied to Nixon. There's a stigma involved," said James E. Swofford of Wilkes.

"I want someone with a little charisma, and I think Connally and Reagan have it," said William White of Transylvania.

But White and Swofford were joined only by Harry Robertson of Alexander in their support of Reagan or Connally.

John Cresimore of Wake said he was undecided.

Additional chairmen supporting Ford were Carroll Jordan of Trédel, Horton Horner of Person, Frank Smith Sr. of Caldwell, and Warren Pritchard of Mitchell.

Plan Church School Work

Hooker Memorial Christian Church will begin its Vacation Church School this Monday beginning at 9 a.m. and continuing through Friday. Each days' sessions will end at 11:30 a.m.

Children from age three through the sixth grade are invited to attend the school, whose theme this year is "God's People Must Choose."

The staff for this year's activities include: Mrs. Dottie Gray, Mrs. Gray Pollard, Mrs. Mary Jane Vanderburg, Mrs. Anna Garrett, Mrs. Jewell Hu, Mrs. Rachel Churchill, Mrs. Jane Laughinghouse, Mrs. Beverly Stocks, Mrs. Daphne Tedder, and Miss Marilyn Thompson.

Mrs. Katie Lou Kittrell will direct the musical program at the school, while Cheryl Smith, Susan Ball, and Lisa Laughinghouse will serve as assistants to the teachers.

School will start promptly at 9 a.m. in the sanctuary with a brief devotional by the Rev. Ralph Messick. Children will then go to their individual age group sections where they will participate daily in Bible Study, music, recreation, and arts and crafts.

This year's program is being directed by Mrs. Carol Smith.

Says Condition Still Critical

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — The mother of a 20-year-old girl who was killed in a car crash says her daughter took an overdose of sleeping pills because "she may have felt it wasn't possible to go on."

Mrs. Alice Wallace told newspapermen Wednesday her daughter was responding to treatment but was still in critical condition from the overdose Monday.

Miss Wallace, 20, was a close friend of racing driver Peter Revson, who was killed recently in an accident. She was stripped of her beauty title because of publicity surrounding her relationship with English soccer star George Best.

Says Budget Data Secret

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—City Manager Guy Smith has declined to make public a 62-page document entitled "Budget Salary Data" that lists current and proposed salaries for 800 Fayetteville city employees.

William Lassiter, attorney for the North Carolina Press Association, says such documents are public record and state law guarantees the right to examine them.

Smith denied the volume was a part of preliminary budget information and said he would not willingly release it to the press. He furnished each city council member a copy of the 185-page preliminary budget for 1974-75.

Salary data was routinely included in preliminary budget information furnished newsmen and the council until 1972. Smith said he ended the practice because "it caused too much dissatisfaction among city workers."

Mayor Jack Lee said the data should not be released.

Two Ballets Slated Tonight

The two ballets being performed under the auspices of the Rose High Fine Arts will be presented tonight beginning at 8:15 p.m. at Rose High gymnasium.

Under the direction of Christina Williams, dancers will perform a full length version of The Sleeping Beauty and will also dance the children's favorite, Enchanted Forest.

There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

Three sandy acres topped by stunted mangroves beat Miami Beach as far as pelican taste in Florida resorts is concerned. Their favorite nesting island gives its name to and is the central feature of the 7,000-acre Pelican Island Wildlife Refuge, 150 miles north of Miami. The refuge, the nation's first of its kind, was established in 1903.

During the nesting season from December through July, some 2,500 pelicans lay their eggs and rear their young here—and they're good parents, better than the ibis, heron and other species which share the refuge in lesser numbers. Where the pelicans' devotion does prove ruinous, however, is for the mangroves on which they roost in such unheeding togetherness that the trees eventually just wear out. Then the pelicans move away for a few years until the trees have grown back....

Above, various members of the pelican colony disport themselves around "their" territory. At right, they share perching space on a depressed-looking mangrove with other visitors to the refuge.

Two Firms Refund

RALEIGH (AP)—The attorney general's office says two North Carolina companies have agreed to halt what it termed misleading sales tactics and refund money to customers.

The Consumer Protection Division identified the companies as A & A Discount Center Inc. at Greensboro and K. I. D. S. Inc. of Graham.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Donald A. Davis said consumers had complained that the Greensboro home improvement company induced them to sign deeds of trust on their property without telling them what they were signing.

Davis said other complaints against the firm included advertising artificial sale prices and paying customers for the names of other people who later invested in the company's services. Davis said such referral sales are illegal.

Jack Spital, president of the company, said in a telephone interview he did not believe the company's tactics were illegal, but he agreed to change them.

The Graham firm claimed to place children in television and magazine advertisements. Asst. Atty. Gen. James Blackburn said an investigation showed the company had never signed contracts or made any agreements with any agencies to use the children registered with K. I. D. S.

Gary Thompson, company president, told the state he would not resume operations until his revised business plans are approved by the state.

Hot Computers Warm Building
HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI)—Heat generated by computers as they turn out business data will be used to warm a new building here.

The Hartford Insurance Group estimated computers work up enough energy to ultimately save 120,000 gallons of oil annually.

The computer heat will circulate through a nine-story building, now under construction for The Hartford. Computer heat formerly was regarded as an unwanted by-product of data processing.

Price Interest Overestimated
DETROIT (UPI)—Automobile dealers often fail to understand what young men want in a car, the Newspaper Advertising Bureau says. They tend to overestimate the young man's interest in price and underestimate his interest in how easily and sharply the car handles and how well styled it is.

Uncovering Ancestral Link To Edward Teach Is Very Dubious

By DR. H. G. JONES
Curator

Written for The AP

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A lady wrote in the other day wanting to trace her ancestry to Edward Teach, better known along the Carolina coast as Blackbeard. If the meager data available on Blackbeard is accurate, he isn't a very eligible candidate for ancestor worship.

The man called Blackbeard was surrounded by mystery. His real name is not known; he was variously referred to as Teach, Thatch, Tatch, Tache, and Tash. Some writers claim his name was Edward Drummond. Whether he was born in England or in Virginia, he grew up during the "golden age" of piracy—the late 17th and early 18th century.

He entered history aboard the Ranger in the Caribbean. When the Ranger captured the French ship, Concorde, Teach was allowed to take command of the prize.

He changed her name to Queen Anne's Revenge and outfitted the vessel as a powerful pirate ship. Now fully committed to piracy, Teach declined even to spare

English ships. He was soon the quarry of the Royal Navy and became the most feared pirate afloat. He cultivated a devilish appearance with his long black hair, braided beard, turban-like headdress and belt of pistols and daggers. He seemed to delight in using his nickname, Blackbeard.

It was in 1718 that Blackbeard arrived along the North Carolina coast. Ostensibly he "surrendered" to Gov. Charles Eden at Bath under the act of grace on which pirates could be forgiven if they promised not to plunder again.

Available evidence, however, seems to indicate that both the governor and Tobias Knight, secretary of the colony and collector of customs, gave their blessings to the pirate to continue his scourge.

At the height of his bloody career, he commanded several ships with around 400 men, captured dozens of prizes and dealt mercilessly with their crews. One hideout near Ocracoke Inlet became known as "Blackbeard's Castle" and another as "Teach's Hole."

So powerful was Blackbeard that he demanded and received supplies from the governor and council of South Carolina, and in North Carolina he was a celebrity

Bath where he built a home and, in the presence of the governor, married a 16-year-old girl—reputedly his 14th wife—whom he forced to submit both to him and his companions.

Blackbeard's free reign in North Carolina was not appreciated by Virginia shippers whose crews grew increasingly reluctant to go to sea. Virginia Gov. Spotswood determined to track down and get rid of the menace of the sea. He outfitted two sloops which in November 1718 engaged Blackbeard's ship the Adventure, in Ocracoke Inlet.

After an inconclusive exchange of gunfire, Lt. Robert Maynard brought his sloop alongside the pirate ship and the crews turned to hand-to-hand fighting. In heroic style, Maynard and Blackbeard squared off in a fearsome clash of cutlasses that left the pirate dead with 25 wounds. His head was severed and swung beneath the bowsprit of the victorious sloop.

In Bath, Gov. Eden and Secretary Knight laid claim to the pirate's goods. Even the lords proprietors of Carolina entered a claim. It was not until after a vice-admiralty court ruling that the plunder was finally distributed to the victorious Virginians who had defeated Blackbeard.

Will Return All Of His Salary

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Dr. W. A. Criswell of the First Baptist Church of Dallas says he will return every penny he has taken in salary since becoming its pastor 30 years ago, more than $600,000.

The Rev. Dr. Criswell, 65-year-old former president of the Southern Baptist Convention, said he already has begun to return the money and will fulfill his total pledge upon his death — "I have consummated my pledge in my will."

"The first time I preached in a church, the deacons took up a collection and I was given $10," the Rev. Dr. Criswell recalled Tuesday. "But I gave it back to them and told them that I did not preach for money."

The pastor of the 18,000-member congregation said at that time he did not know how he was going to live without any money, "but I had the tremendous feeling that I had given my life to God freely."

"I feel I still want to give back to the church everything that it has given to me so that when I meet the Lord I can say I did all of my work freely."

The Rev. Dr. Criswell first mentioned his plan to his congregation in a recent Sunday sermon.

The pastor of the world's largest Southern Baptist church is the first to acknowledge that not all of his money has come from his salary at First Baptist.

The Rev. Dr. Criswell said he has received substantial income from the sale of his more than 15 books, numerous speaking engagements and some private gifts.

He said his financial commitment to the church would not jeopardize the security and well-being of his family.

"They are well taken care of," he said.

Students Earn While Learning

An enviable record has been set both in man hours of work performed and in wages received by occupational students at Rose High School.

Claude West, chairman of the Vocational Department, has announced that a total of 146,100 hours with gross wages of $266,961.29 was achieved this school year by students in Distributive Education, Home Occupations, Office Occupations and Industrial Cooperative Training classes.

Students in these classes, West noted, "worked half a day and attended regular academic classes half a day." Although they were in school only half a day, these students had to meet full academic requirements and earn all credits required for the school year.

"The more than a quarter million dollars earned by the students," West said, "does not include the summer work of some of the students which is a carry over of their participation in one of the work study programs. It also does not include wages earned by carpentry and masonry students during the summer."

"For the students and staff at Rose High," West commented, "I express thanks to the 114 businesses and individuals in and around Greenville who worked with our 210 vocational students, making this fine program possible."

Blanch First, Then Freeze

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If you plan to freeze fruits and vegetables from your garden this summer, heed this advice from the U.S. Department of Agriculture: Heat, or blanch, vegetables in boiling water before you pack them in moisture and vapor proof materials or containers. Blanching slows or stops enzymes that can toughen or discolor produce.

'Watchdog' For Tobacco Marts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U. S. Department of Agriculture is forming an advisory committee to watch the flue-cured tobacco marketing situation.

The department said Wednesday that the committee will propose opening dates for sales of flue-cured tobacco in growing areas. It will also recommend selling schedules for warehouses and marketing areas.

Officials said the panel will include 33 members representing flue-cured producers, warehousemen and buyers. They will report to the director of the tobacco division in the USDA Agricultural Marketing Service.

The badger probably got its name from the badge-like marking on the animal's forehead. The name first was applied to a European relative of the American badger.
