

Kleindienst Handed Suspended Sentence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst today received a suspended one-month jail sentence and a $100 fine for refusing to answer "fully and accurately" questions about the ITT antitrust case before a Senate committee.

U.S. District Judge George L. Hart Jr. said Kleindienst was entitled to the light sentence as a man of highest integrity.

Hart said that when Kleindienst testified before the Senate Judiciary Committee in 1972, he "was not bent on deception."

Rather, Hart said, Kleindienst was attempting to protect someone else, an apparent reference to President Nixon's order that Kleindienst drop a big antitrust suit then pending against the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

The sentence imposed on the former attorney general was the minimum possible. Kleindienst, the second U.S. Cabinet officer ever to be convicted of a crime, was accused under an obscure statute making it illegal to withhold information or documents from a congressional committee.

The charge was brought after lengthy negotiations between Kleindienst and special prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Kleindienst pleaded guilty to the misdemeanor charge on May 16.

Under terms of his sentence, Kleindienst remains free, but is on a month's probation.

Since the guilty plea, officials of the bar associations in Tucson, Ariz., Kleindienst's home state, and Washington, D. C., have begun preliminary moves to decide if he should be disbarred.

Kleindienst had testified in 1972 before a Senate committee that President Nixon had not interfered with an antitrust case against International Telephone & Telegraph Corp., a giant conglomerate.

Later, he acknowledged that Nixon had ordered him to drop the pending antitrust suit against ITT. Kleindienst said he was able to persuade the President to change his mind.

"I was wrong in not having been more candid with the committee and I sincerely regret it," he said the day he pleaded guilty.

Diplomas To Almost 800

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

Approximately 780 seniors received their high school diplomas during graduation exercises held last night at each of the four Pitt County high schools.

D.H. Conley

Student speakers for the graduation ceremony at D. H. Conley High School included Milton Tucker and Donna Sayce.

The two students spoke on "No Obstacle Too Great." Miss Sayce stated that many obstacles had been placed in the students' way but that they had learned to cope with the various problems.

"In making mistakes, we have learned the hard way. Sometimes, however, it seems that is the only way," Miss Sayce explained. "Consolidation was an obstacle for many students. It seemed unreal that the Chicod Hornets, the Winterville Wolves, the Whitfield Cougars and the Robison Tigers were all coming together under the title of the D.H. Conley Vikings."

Tucker challenged his fellow classmates to become involved.

"Check things out and have the courage to change for the better and you will see a steady diminishing of the problems in the educational system," Tucker said. "No obstacle should be too great. This idea is not an impossible dream."

Former superintendent, D.H. Conley, for whom the school is named, and Conley Principal J. R. Carraway awarded diplomas to the 176 graduating seniors.

Class president Milton Tucker headed the tasseling ceremony. The invocation was given by Rhuberna Knox and the benediction was given by George Franke.

Special music was presented by Jerry Cribbs, director of the Drum and Bugle Corps at Conley, sang "The Impossible Dream." He was accompanied by John Taylor, administrative assistant of the Pitt County School.

Ayden-Grifton High School Approximately 200 seniors at Ayden-Grifton High School were awarded diplomas upon completion of 12 successful years of school.

Diplomas were presented by Harry Jarvis, chairman of the Ayden-Grifton High School advisory council. Special awards were presented by Principal William Wiggins.

Student speakers and their topics included: Janet Maye, "Values of Our Heritage"; Grigg Denton, "We Are Many"; and Douglas Stokes, "We Are One".

Perchrista Rogers welcomed the parents, families and friends to the graduation ceremony. The invocation was given by Dollie Williams and the benediction by Ronnie Salmon.

Senior class presidents Dollie Williams and Ronnie Salmon led in the turning of the tassels.

Special music was presented by a group of seniors, under the direction of Mrs. Myriam Harris. She also played for the professional and recreational.

North Pitt High School Joy James and Glendolyn Jones were the student speakers for graduation exercises at North Pitt High School last night when 178 seniors were awarded diplomas.

"Our parents, teachers and friends have all contributed greatly to our successful completion of 12 years of school. We will always remember the problems and the decisions our parents have helped us through. Their understanding, patience and love have helped to mold us into the young adults that we are," Miss James said.

"Hopefully, we have learned to accept responsibility, to establish new goals, and to strive for a better understanding of our fellow man," Miss James explained. "Our high school years have been a rewarding

Tornado Rips Town

FORREST CITY, Ark. (AP) — A tornado ripped through this east Arkansas town of 12,500, killing at least four persons, injuring more than 100 and causing widespread damage.

There was still some confusion early today over the number of persons killed.

Officials feared the number would rise as rescue workers combed through the shoulder-high debris that remained of a 45,000-square-foot Gibson's discount store and a 25,000-square-foot supermarket, both of which were filled with shoppers when the tornado struck Thursday evening.

State police said they had confirmed four deaths. Forrest City police and the St. Francis County sheriff's office said at least six persons were killed.

State police also said they confirmed that 48 persons had been admitted to Memorial Hospital at Forrest City and that 17 other persons were admitted to hospitals in Memphis, Tenn. In addition, more than 50 persons were treated at the Forrest City hospital and released.

A spokesman said most of those hospitalized at Memphis were in critical to severe condition.

State police also said 150 to 250 homes had been destroyed. Earlier reports said 350 homes had been destroyed and as many as 2,000 suffered at least minor damage.

Hospital officials identified two of the dead as Inez Spears, 19, and Loyce Jean Smith, 17. Both women were found in the Gibson store debris.

About 150 of the city's homeless were being housed at the Washington Street Community Center.

Lt. Bill Lawson of the state Military Department said Gov. Dale Bumpers had ordered 50 National Guard members from the Forrest City area to go on duty to prevent looting.

A junior high school was heavily damaged and an elementary school was reported demolished.

752-1336

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day, but the phone service is available 24 hours a day.

EMPHATICALLY CONFIDENTIAL

If your name and number is left with Hotline and someone else were to ask you for the name, would you give it? S.R.S.

Emphatically no, we would not. Hotline is, above, all a confidential, free service. When the city manager or the Mental Health Center director or any resource is contacted, the Hotline staffer says only that a reader has asked the particular question.

Inquirers about identities would be turned down flatly.

Apparently you are not the only one who has been skeptical. Hotline has received many extremely interesting questions and has been hampered in dealing with them because names, mailing addresses, and phone numbers, or one of the three have been withheld.

WANTS MARRIAGE COUNSELING

My wife has kicked me out of the house. I think, with some help, we could make a go of it yet, though. Is there a marriage counselor in Greenville? N.R. G.

Counseling for marital problems can be acquired in several ways.

The Pitt County Mental Health Center offers marital counseling with payment based on income and number of dependents.

The REAL House refers calls to the Mental Health Center, and also has a list of private marriage counselors, psychiatrists, and psychologists. REAL also provides aid in emergency cases with on-the-spot counseling over the phone.

A third avenue is East Carolina University. Persons may contact Dr. David Knox at the Department of Sociology, 758-6883. Dr. Knox is a professional marriage counselor, directing the graduate program in marriage counseling at ECU. Services are provided through graduate student counselors, with Dr. Knox supervising them. There is no charge for these services, according to Dr. Knox.

AMTRAK INFO

Where can I get information about Amtrak? E.W.

Amtrak, the federally subsidized system of which almost all railway passenger service is a part, has an office in Rocky Mount in the same building with Seaboard Coast Line Railroad. The phone number is 446-3646.

You may write to National Railroad Passenger Corporation, 955 L'Enfant Plaza, N.-S.W., Washington, D.C. 20024, or you may call toll-free, 800-874-2800 for information about schedules and to make reservations.

New Traffic Signals Installed

Traffic signals have been installed and turned on at the intersection of Third Street and Memorial Drive.

According to James Boyd, traffic service supervisor of the Division of Highways, the signals include a left turn lane on either side of Memorial Drive. There is an exclusive right turn lane for vehicles traveling north on Memorial Drive and turning off on Third Street.

There are three lanes for vehicles traveling south on Memorial Drive including one lane each for cars turning left, right and those going straight through.

There are left turn storage lanes for cars traveling on Third Street. Storage lanes keep the traffic from backing up on Third Street. Left turn signals have not been installed for vehicles turning left off Third Street.

Council Names New City Clerk

Mrs. Lois Dunn Worthington, a veteran of 19 years service in City Hall, was appointed to the office of City Clerk for Greenville at the June meeting of the Greenville City Council Thursday night.

Mrs. Worthington was also appointed for a one year period as a member of the Firemen's Relief Committee. "I'm really very pleased at the confidence the mayor and members of the City Council have bestowed upon me in appointing me as the new City Clerk," Mrs. Worthington said in a Friday morning interview.

"I'll try to fulfill the duties of this office to the best of my ability." Referring to retiring City Clerk William N. Moore, Mrs. Worthington said "I've enjoyed working for Mr. Moore the years we have both been at City Hall.

footage, but if a mobile home is removed from the lot, present regulations would apply to a replacement.

D. D. Garrett, who reported that he manages the property in question, said that Mrs. Payne realizes that a variance would be needed in order to replace the mobile structure but he asserted that she is improving the site. "It's a matter of replacing one trailer with another," he said.

Councilman Clarence Gray said that he objected to a citizen not being able to replace an old mobile unit with a new one.

Councilman John Howard asserted that the objective of the ordinance is to deter the use of mobile homes within the city limits but Gray contended that, "I'm not sure that's the best policy" because some people can not afford permanent structures.

"This is a case where the lot is 6,000 square feet too small for the use requested," Councilman Percy Cox pointed out.

Mrs. Payne, who noted that her husband is in service, told the Council that she needs an extra bedroom since another person will be joining her household soon.

The Council, with Gray voting against the motion for denial, denied the request for a permit.

A request by Mrs. Nancy House for a permit to place a mobile home at 1101 Farmville Boulevard for use as a residence for her sister was approved. Warren said that the lot contains over 5,000 square feet.

Applications for renewal of mobile home permits were approved for United Mobile Homes of America Inc. for the mobile home located on U.S. 264 Bypass West and for Mrs. Almata L. McCoy for the mobile home located at 1306 S. Pitt Street.

A revised bid by J. L. Harris and Sons for painting the interior of Headquarters Fire Station was denied. Carstarphen explained that after the Council approved the Harris bid of $3,414.88 as the low offer in May, the firm discovered that an error in computing the bid was made at the Harris office.

Carstarphen pointed out that the Harris and Sons submitted a revised bid in the amount of $4,680.76 for consideration. Howard offered a motion that the entire job be readvertised.

It was noted that the firm proceeded with the painting work and is now well underway. Carstarphen reported that the firm indicated that if the Council would not consider the revised bid, the contract calling for the original figure would be honored.

Howard asserted that "it is unfortunate that he proceeded with the work" and contended that the project bid should stand if the work is not advertised again for new bids. The Council voted unanimously to reject the offer for the revised bid. (Other May bids included A. B. Whitley for $5,800 and W. Shelby Allen for $6,243).

A request by A. G. Wells for the Council's permission to sell one-half of an eight-acre lot in Greenwood Cemetery to Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Landing was approved since it was asserted that Wells is not selling the property for profit.

Items disposed of under new business included: approval of an application by Ray S. Sharpe for a taxicab operator's permit; approval of a Preliminary Assessment Resolution relative to a petition for curb and gutter improvements on Canterbury Road from Avon Lane to Berkshire Road; adoption of a resolution authorizing the sale of certain city equipment and vehicles at public auction; and Denial of a request by the Town of Falkland for the use of the Public Works Department's mosquito spraying equipment. Carstarphen noted that the city had received a letter from Falkland Mayor Bill Jones requesting the use of the spraying equipment.

The city manager said that he and Public Works Director Mayo Allen discussed the matter and it was recommended that if the request was approved, the equipment would be used in Falkland one night per week for four hours at $25 per hour to cover general maintenance and depreciation.

Cox observed that the four hours "should be spent in Greenville" and he noted that "as much as I'd like to help them out, we have a responsibility to the taxpayers . . ." Cox said that there are a lot of areas in Greenville that "I'd like to see covered."

The Council split three to three in voting on the request to deny the request. Voting to deny were Council members Cox, Gray and Mrs. Mildred McGrath while Dr. Frank Fuller, Joe Taft and Howard voted to approve the request. Mayor Eugene West broke the tie in voting to deny the request.

Holliday discussed a proposal and cost estimate for correcting a drainage problem which has existed in the vicinity of Sixth Street between Maple and Elm Streets for some time. The residents in the area requested that study be given to the drainage problem.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon considered giving lie detector tests to several hundred thousand federal employees during a 1971 hunt for security leaks, says a House Judiciary Committee source.

In a taped presidential conversation the committee heard Thursday, Nixon reportedly discussed giving the tests to all employees with a security classification, estimated then to be 300,000.

Advised the tests would result in mass resignations, he finally ordered them for about 1,000 employees in the State and Defense departments, the Central Intelligence Agency and to the problem would be to install an additional drainage line from the low point of the area to intercept the drainage system of East Carolina University. The work would be undertaken on city property, it was added.

Cox recommended that the funds for the drainage correction be placed in the budget.

Other business included: scheduling of a public hearing on a request by Carroll and Associates, agents for the James L. Evans heirs, for rezoning of some 143 acres located south of Pitt Plaza and west of N.C. 43 from RA-20 and Shopping Center to R-6, Office and Institutional, and Shopping Center; consideration of a revision in the fee schedule for processing and advertising variance and rezoning requests; Approval of law enforcement assistance grant contracts with the N.C. Department of Natural and Economic Resources, Division of Law and Order to provide for a legal advisor service for the city, the establishment of a reference library in the Greenville Police Department, and for training for members of the Police Department; and approval of a contract with Worsley, Farley, and Prescott Inc. for the annual city audit. The audit contract provides for a fee of $3,800.

In business not scheduled on the Council agenda, a request by the Bicentennial Committee to make available $5,000 which was earlier designated by the Council for bicentennial seed money was approved.

The Council also adopted a request asking the N.C. Department of Transportation to initiate improvements at the intersection of 14th and Evans Streets. The intersection is viewed as a serious traffic problem, it was noted.

Council members, after hearing requests from a group of citizens for indication as to what is being done towards establishing a public transportation system in Greenville, informed the citizens that the Regional Development Institute at ECU is processing information obtained through a bus service questionnaire mailed recently in Greenville. Word is expected shortly after July 1 on the results of the survey.

the National Security Council, the source said. There is no evidence they were ever administered.

The source quoted Nixon as saying about the polygraph tests, "I don't know much about these things, but it scares the (expletive deleted) out of them."

The July 24, 1971, tape was played as the committee, conducting its impeachment inquiry, received evidence relating to the domestic surveillance activities of the Nixon administration.

It also received details about White House-ordered wiretaps on 13 government officials and 4 newsmen, and about the "Huston Plan" for gathering domestic intelligence that contemplated the use of burglary and other illegal acts.

The late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover vigorously opposed the plan, named for its chief drafter, Tom Charles Huston, and Nixon has said he withdrew approval July 28, 1970, five days after granting it.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., declined to answer when asked whether the committee received evidence the plan was terminated.

The administration justified all the activities examined by the committee on grounds of national security.

Rep. Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass., called the national security justification "totally unwarranted" in the case of the 17 wiretaps. He said nothing involving national security was picked up by any of the taps and that several of them were retained for months after it was clear they were producing nothing.

Another member said the information was given to former White House aide H. R. Halde-man, who used it for political purposes.

Drinan said at least one person also was kept under physical surveillance and the White House was told what he did when his family was out of town. None of the individuals was identified.

At its next session Tuesday, the committee will look into the break-in of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist by the special White House investigative unit—the plumbers.

Rodino said presentation of evidence can be completed in about five more sessions, or by June 19. It then will consider calling any witnesses that might be needed, he said.

Republican committee members are demanding that witnesses be heard, but many Democrats feel the committee will have enough evidence by then to permit consideration of articles of impeachment.

Rodino said the committee may meet next week to consider issuing another subpoena for

White House tapes relating to the dairy industry and International Telephone & Telegraph Corp., matters that the committee examined earlier in the week. It requested 66 taped conversations, but Nixon has refused to provide them.

Couple Weds Sunday Afternoon Be Sure Of Facts Before Accusations

ROBERSONVILLE—Miss Sheila Frances Ward and Ashley Clay Croom pledged their double ring marriage vows before the Rev. Donald Weaver in the First Christian Church Sunday, at two o'clock in the afternoon.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Ward, and Mr. and Mrs. Alton Croom all of Robersonville.

The bodice was styled with a sculptured neckline, empire waist and long calla point sleeves. Venise lace floret appliques adorned the neckline, bodice, waist and was used throughout the A-line skirt which flowed into a chapel length train. A wide sata peau ruffle bordered the skirt and train.

The headpiece chosen by the bride was a camelot style cap of Venise lace florets with an illusion veil edged with Venise lace florets flowed to the waist. The bride carried a nosegay of spring flowers.

Mrs. Betty Jo Manning attended as matron of honor. Mrs. Manning wore a formal empire waist, and full flowing skirt complemented by a pink headpiece shaped in a petal effect.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Ward chose a formal gown of pastel blue Marricaine with a long sleeve jacket and wore a white cymbidium orchid. Mrs. Croom selected a formal pastel pink gown of Marricaine with a short jacket and a pink cymbidium orchid corsage.

Mrs. L.A. Croom, paternal grandmother of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Sallie Mae Warren, maternal grandmother of the bridegroom, were remembered with white cymbidium orchid corsages.

Mrs. Robert Harris, served as mistress of ceremonies and wore a corsage of white carnations. For a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, the bride changed to a red and white polyester dress with matching accessories and wore her mother's white orchid.

Mrs. Croom is a graduate of Robersonville High School and Beaufort County Technical Institute where she holds an associate degree in nursing. She is employed by the Robersonville Township Hospital.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Robersonville High School and is currently attending East

DEAR ABBY: We have a dentist in our town who is so money hungry it's unbelievable. It's a pity the new generation will never know the kind of dentists we knew when we were growing up. They always had time to listen, and they cared.

This dentist sees anywhere from 50 to 60 patients daily. Besides a secretary who answers his telephone, he has three people working for him whom he calls "technicians" although none of them has ever had any formal training for the job. They take X-rays, impressions, and even clean and scale teeth. One pulled a suture out of my mouth on the doctor's day off!

Isn't there a law to protect the public against unqualified people doing dental work? Where should I write to complain?

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: There ARE laws, and they are well-defined. Write to your county or state Dental Association. But before you make any accusations, be sure of your facts.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 18 years, and I always thought we had a great marriage.

Having once been his secretary, I sometimes fill in at his office when one of his girls is on vacation.

Last week while I was working there, a man phoned, and in a very gruff and angry tone, he asked to speak to my husband. Since my husband happened to be standing right beside my desk at the time, I handed him the telephone.

Then I heard this booming voice say: "My wife just told me everything, and even though I have a loaded gun, you're not worth going to prison for and neither is she, but if I ever catch you near her again, don't say I didn't warn you!" Then he hung up.

Abby, I nearly fell apart. I went home immediately, and my husband followed me. We had a long talk, and he told me who she was. [She and her husband belong to our club, and she certainly doesn't look the part.] My husband said he'd seen her only a few times, she meant nothing to him, and he'd never see her again.

I forgave him, and believe him when he says he'll never see her again, but I'm bound to run into her at the club, and I'm not sure I can handle it. I want her to know that I know. Should I tell her?

SHOOK

DEAR SHOOK: No. Keep your cool, and resist the temptation to tell her that you know. [Your husband will tell her.] No need to punish her further. Her husband has probably already taken care of that.

DEAR ABBY: Can you think of a nice, simple way for me to ask my parents if I can have a guy spend the night with me? I'm a 21-year-old liberated woman who lives at home.

This guy I'm dating lives about an hour's drive from my house, but he works only ten minutes from here. On Friday nights he works until 10 p.m., and he has to be at work at 9 a.m. on Saturday, so you can see how much more convenient it would be for him if he slept over.

My folks are on the old-fashioned side. Got any ideas?

Something More Than Money

The world, experts tell us, is inching perilously nearer to a hunger crisis. It concerns Americans not only because of the anger, desperation and unrest among nations involved (because such frustration can lead to mortal wars); but because our natural humanitarian instincts are stirred.

A mushrooming population in Asia, Africa and some segments of Latin America, only partly explains the problem. There are other factors, too. What is of immediate concern is that food production is not keeping up with the demand.

From one quarter we are told that food stocks in the world today are enough for 27 of consumption—against 100 days in 1961.

The director general of the Food and Agriculture Organization tells us that crop failure this year in just one major producing area of the world "would cause a widespread food shortage."

Senator Hubert Humphrey notes about 70 per cent of all grain exports come from the U.S.; with Canada and Australia supplying most of the rest. That puts the U.S. in the middle of some potentially agonizing decision-making. We represent the globe's major breadbasket, we cannot help but be involved.

Present law requires all domestic needs and commercial export demands must be met before food can be distributed to needy people. In recent years, the amount of food available for such distribution has declined.

Senator Humphrey is of the opinion the U.S. should offer the sale of at least $1 billion worth of food annually to poor nations at below-market prices. An observer might rejoin that the amount of food available for $1 billion is shrinking. . . check your own grocery list against a year or two years ago. . . and, irregardless of the bargain price we might set for the neediest peoples, buying sufficient food to offset their problem would be out of their reach.

We should know that dollars alone will not avert famine. This country has pumped billions upon billions of dollars into foreign aid over the past 20 years. Nearly all of the hands reaching out for Uncle Sam's dollars today are the same ones extended 20 years ago. It could be said, too, that after billions upon billions of dollars devoted to segments of our own society in forms of relief and welfare, that the ranks of the underprivileged or poverty-stricken, or underdeveloped, have seen little change in their number.

The United States should, and must join in seeking remedial action to avert a famine crisis; but we see little or no hope in depending upon giveaways as a part of the final answer.

Slow Start In Prisoner Work

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—State officials are running into hangups over returning prisoners to work on the roads.

Top-level officials are willing, it seems, but "field level" supervisors in some sections of the state are balking.

The problem stems from the change in the status for the prisoners: they used to work "under the gun" of prison guards, but the 1973 General Assembly called a halt to that road-gang practice; now, the inmates are on work release, work without guards, and are paid.

"Right now we have approximately 150 inmates approved who in fact do not have jobs. The problem appears to be a non-availability of positions at the Department of Transportation," said Kip Kautzky, director of program services at the Department of Corrections, the man in charge of work release.

The State Board of Poles has given its okay for about 300 inmates to go to work on the roads, and is willing to go even further, Kautzky said.

At present there are approximately 265 inmates working on the roads an increase of about 100 since secretaries David Jones of corrections and Bruce Lentz of transportation announced early this year an agreement for putting more prisoners to work.

On the surface, officials paint a picture of wanting the prisoners to work on the roads, but being faced with budget problems.

Kautzky thinks the problem is deeper than that. "There's a dilemma here. We've got these men in a go pattern, with approval to work, and nowhere to put them. And a lot more could be gotten ready real soon."

Corrections is willing and the manpower is there "if we can just iron out whatever problems there are," Kautzky said.

The real problem, he believes, is resistance of field supervisors to having prisoners working alongside regular employees. "The inmates now have the status of regular employees, and are paid under general salary guidelines. . . creating a status problem in supervision."

"They used to work under the gun and were a captive audience, but now the supervisors have to treat them differently." In short, the supervisors don't like having the prisoners working for them, corrections people feel.

Some Reluctance
"Sure, I'll admit there has been some reluctance in the field to use the prisoners," says chief maintenance engineer Paul Dupre at the Department of Transportation.

But, he hastens to add, a day-long meeting of division engineers was held recently in Raleigh and this problem was one of the items covered. Secretary Lentz discussed the problems with the engineers, Dupre said, and "they are now in favor of this program. . . we're satisfied it will grow." Highway people are shooting at a figure of over 900 inmates on the roads in the near future.

Right now, transportation officials aren't sure how many inmates are working on the roads. Officials at the transportation office of personnel and training say they don't know—"that's first floor (Lenta's office) stuff."

Dupre said that problem will be ironed out with a report filed in his office every two weeks showing how many are at work.

Dupre said he strongly favors the program. "We want to use these people. They need the jobs, it's good for them, and it gives them something to do. And we need them on the job." He recalls that road maintenance, litter collection, and repairs fell down some after prisoners were taken off the roads. "We were short handed for a while. . . we were not prepared for the change," he said.

He said some of the slowness in gearing up to hire inmates resulted from not having money budgeted for the purpose, and part of it from a go-slow policy while the General Assembly debated measures to restrict the pay to not more than $1.80 per hour. "That wouldn't work, with men working side-by-side being paid different rates," Dupre said. The proposal was killed.

Prison labor is now paid the going rate: $2.22 per hour for laborers; $2.52 per hour for general maintenance and driving.

Corrections officials are less than optimistic that the issue can be resolved soon. Kautzky thinks it will take time to change the attitudes of supervisors in the field so they will accept the inmate worker.

Another Front Against Nixon

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—When Charles W. Colson's lawyers two weeks ago suddenly and unexpectedly entered into secret plea bargaining which led to Monday's stunning guilty plea, they were opening yet another front against President Nixon's desperate fight for survival.

Colson, though a senior White House aide under Mr. Nixon, was only a peripheral figure in the Watergate conspiracy and the Ellsberg burglary. But his plea demolishes the badly tattered national security argument used as a defense in the Ellsberg case by John D. Ehrlichman: It, therefore, provides special prosecutor Jaworski with new leverage to begin plea bargaining with Ehrlichman.

Mr. Nixon for a solid year has linked his own fate with Ehrlichman's so that a guilty plea by Ehrlichman would further undermine the beleaguered President. But just a guilty plea in itself would not be adequate to grant Ehrlichman leniency. Since the prosecutors regard him as a central figure in the conspiracy, he would have to become a chief government witness—with conceivable ill effects for Mr. Nixon.

Until some two weeks ago, Colson seemed a dependable stone wall. But months of Watergate pressure were telling on Colson—widely publicized in his recent religious conversion—as it did not seem to effect either Ehrlichman or Haldeman.

"Unlike the Dutchmen," a former White House colleague told us, "Chuck Colson is a real human being with red blood in his veins." His friends report he was hurt and shocked by the contempt toward him by the President, Ehrlichman and Haldeman revealed in the edited White House transcripts.

More to the point, Jaworski had a strong though limited case against Colson in both the Watergate and Ellsberg trials. Published reports that the case was paper-thin and that Jaworski would settle for a one-count misdemeanor plea came not from the special prosecutor but from the Colson camp. Nor did Colson's counsel and law partner, David Shapiro, take all that seriously the threats by Judge Gerhard Gesell of dismissing charges against Colson and Ehrlichman unless the President released subpoenaed tapes.

Consequently, feelers from Colson reached Jaworski's office two weeks ago, and a one-count felony plea was agreed to last week. Although indictments against Colson in the main Watergate case are now dropped, Colson is by no means excused from testifying on his alleged conversations with Mr. Nixon over clemency for the Watergate Seven. Besides, the Supreme Court is now considering Jaworski's subpoenas for those tapes.

However, the prosecutors do not expect Colson to become another John Dean, cascading incriminations against everybody from Mr. Nixon on down. Even though Colson helped publicize himself as the master of Nixonian dirty tricks, Jaworski's investigators had come to believe he was not a central conspirator. But his very plea does help the prosecutors immediately.

While denying prior knowledge of the 1971 burglary of the Beverly Hills, Calif., office of Dr. Lewis Fielding, Colson in his guilty plea confessed seeking "confidential and derogatory information. . . from (Ellsberg's) psychiatric files. . . for the purposes of publicly disseminating said information." That is viewed by the prosecutors as a major weapon against Ehrlichman's argument that the break-in was justified on grounds of national security.

Colson's plea, therefore, will be used to force serious plea bargaining with Ehrlichman—considered a real possibility since John J. Wilson and Frank Stickler officially withdrew as Ehrlichman's attorneys May 24 (though they still represent Haldeman). When a deal was offered Ehrlichman early this year, Strickler immediately asked what was being offered Haldeman. At that point, Jaworski let the matter rest.

Should Ehrlichman plead guilty in the Ellsberg case, Mr. Nixon's own reasons for failing to report the break-in when he first heard of it would be undercut. But the greater danger to the President would stem from what Ehrlichman would have

The Husband Of Mrs. K

WASHINGTON—The one question I keep getting asked when I'm on the road is "What kind of husband will Henry Kissinger make?" It's a hard one to answer, but on the basis of Henry's recent behavior, Mrs. Kissinger is going to discover that it isn't easy to be married to the super-negotiator of the world. This is the kind of situation that could come up. "Henry, I forgot to buy bread for the smoked salmon for our dinner party tonight. Would you do down to the supermarket and get a couple of loaves?" Henry replies, "Of course, my dear." He returns in a half-hour. "What kind of bread did you want, rye or white?" "It really doesn't matter, Henry. Either one will do."

It's not going to be that easy. The supermarket has more white than it does rye and therefore they have put the white bread up in the front and the rye bread in the back. They're demanding guarantees that I buy two loaves of white for every loaf of rye. I've taken the position we should have the right to buy the rye bread without having to purchase the white bread. "For heaven's sake, Henry, the guests are coming in 45 minutes. Will you go back and get the bread?" Henry comes back after 15 minutes. "The supermarket has agreed to sell me the rye without having to buy the white, but they raised the problem of the size of the loaf. If we get the large loaf, we get three cents off, but that means we'd only need a loaf and a half. But if we get the small loaf, we'd need two and the price would be prohibitive. What do you suggest?"

ART BUCHWALD

"Henry, I need the bread for dinner. Would you please go back and bring some home?" Henry went back to the store and returned again. "I think I've worked out a compromise, Nancy. If we get rolls instead of bread we won't have the problem of choosing sizes. The supermarket has indicated it would consider selling us rolls at a special price providing we buy a jar of peanut butter that they're pushing as part of a 4th of July sale. I told them I would bring the offer back to you and lay it on the table." "Henry, I don't care if it's peanut butter or jelly or cream cheese as long as you get the bread."

"They didn't raise the question of jelly or cream cheese, but I'll tell them you'd rather have that than peanut butter."

By this time several reporters who are standing outside the Kissinger home surround the secretary of state. "Mr. Kissinger," one of the reporters asks, "we understand you're trying to buy bread for your dinner tonight. Do you think you'll be able to do it?"

"There are still some last-minute details to be worked out," Henry says, "but I'm optimistic that there will be a deal."

But when Henry returns from the supermarket he is glum and tells the reporters, "I would be less than candid if I told you that I brought back bread."

"The supermarket has raised some last-minute conditions on slicing that I'm not sure can be met. But after reporting to my wife I am going back and make one more effort to find a compromise which both sides can

Other Editors Say An Inevitability

(The Raleigh Times)

The House of Representatives recently voted down a bill to coordinate conversion of U. S. weights and measures to the metric system. The action presents a stumbling block to a change whose backers claim is inevitable if the United States is to compete in foreign markets.

Probably the most specious argument against the change was that presented by Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa. Gross asked: "Why must Americans be made to adopt these and other foreign measurements?"

The answer is simply that in worldwide industrial manufacturing the U. S. is dipping water with a leaky bucket. The metric system of weights and measures is so superior to the jerry-built system of ounces and inches we use that there is no competition.

Rep. Gross' question poses another more interesting question: Just how foreign is the metric system? True, it was first adopted for weights and measures in France, but how foreign is the penny, the dime, the dollar, the ten-dollar and the hundred-dollar bill?

Our money has always been based on the metric system, and those who fear what they think is unfamiliar should realize that we have been counting our cash that way since we first started minting it.

The metric, or decimal systems, lends itself readily to calculations. Children are made familiar with the metric system financially from the time they get their first allowance, but then are required to bend their grains the rest of their lives guessing at the equivalents in ounces and inches.

To depreciate and delay the metric system—which is simplicity personified—as something "foreign" is to do a great disservice to American workers and American manufacturers and they struggle to compete in the worldwide marketing system.

They now run this race with one leg lashed with the ball and chain of a complicated, outdated, medieval and non-mathematical system of measures.

The backers' claim of inevitability is correct. Sheer necessity alone will in time insure the predominance of the metric system in the United States. Short-sighted politicians can only serve to delay the day.

The fund vice president reached this conclusion: "A soundly conceived and administered investment decisionmaking process is today's best bet for sound strategy in the 1970s. # Symbol Of U.S. Effort

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's Middle East tour is a major diplomatic act, not because of any expected agreements but rather for its symbolic representation of the emerging new American power in the area.

There may be a few tangible results from the President's five-nation swing that starts next Monday—establishment of full diplomatic relations with Syria, for example.

But the main purpose as stated by White House spokesman Gerald L. Warren this week is to "consolidate what has been achieved on the road to peace" by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Left unstated by White House officials but clearly understood is that Nixon's visit means the United States is committed at the highest level to creating an entirely new status in the Middle East, not only among the Arabs and Israel but also on the part of the superpowers.

That this can be done simply by Nixon visiting Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Israel and Jordan is not accepted universally. And some critics say the Watergate scandal at home is the real reason for the President's journey.

However, leaders of the nations involved in the trip have indicated Watergate has not affected their plans to welcome Nixon warmly.

And American experts generally agree that the President's journey is important and will be effective.

His presence will underline what Kissinger has described as the U.S. commitment "to bring about a just and permanent peace" between Arabs and Israelis.

By being only the second American chief executive to travel in that part of the world in 30 years, Nixon will be supporting the U.S. pledge to be even-handed in its treatment of Middle Eastern nations.

A corollary of the point that only President Nixon of the major world leaders can travel in both Arab capitals and Israel is an object lesson aimed at Moscow. Each step the President takes in the Middle East reflects a diminishing Russian influence.

This will be particularly true, if, as is hoped by American officials, Nixon is welcomed enthusiastically.

From all indications, these hopes will be fulfilled. Egyptian Ambassador Asraf Ghorbal told a newsman this week the visit is of "tremendous importance" to his government.

Syrian leaders have been

Nominations Submitted

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina coastal towns and counties have sent their nominations for the Coastal Resources Commission to Gov. James Holshouser.

The governor will select 12 of the 15 commissioners from the local governments' nominees. All 20 of the counties eligible to nominate commissioners sent in names, the Department of Natural and Economic Resources said. New Bern, Jacksonville, Havelock and Long Beach were the only municipalities which failed to nominate anyone, the department reported.

The nominees represent interest groups ranging from marine ecologists to coastal development financiers.

The makeup of the commission caused one of the major struggles over the Coastal Land Management Act in the 1974 legislature.

Originally Holshouser would have appointed a commission of 12 members.

In the bill's final form, Holshouser must choose 12 of 15 commissioners from the nominees of local governments.

The failure of the four towns to nominate anyone could add to the governor's three free appointments. According to the law, the governor can make his own nominations when local governments fail to do so.

Secretary of Natural and Economic Resources James Harrington said Thursday he was pleased with the quality of the nominees.

Fog Can Deceive Average Driver

NEW YORK (AP) — Fog can raise havoc with the average motorist's vision in more ways than one.

Pedestrians, trees and oncoming vehicles viewed through fog may look twice as far away as they really are, reports CIT Service Leasing Corp., which provides safe-driving information for users of its cars and truck fleets.

What's more, a motorist driving through fog may feel that he is going at only half his actual speed.

By this time the guests are arriving and Nancy is crying. Everyone asks where Henry is and Nancy doesn't have the nerve to tell them he's still out trying to buy bread for dinner.

Just as they sit down to dinner Henry rushes in with three boxes under his arm. His face is flushed and he waves them at Nancy. "Bread?" Nancy asks. "Ry-Krisp," Henry replies. "But at least it's a start." "By gum," says a reporter peeking through the window, "Henry's done it again."

To get rid of a grand total of two conspiracy, one obstruction of justice, and seven perjury indictments, Ehrlichman would have to talk long and hard. At the White House, the unlikely prospect of a broken Ehrlichman stonewall has always been considered the point of maximum peril for the President. Colson's plea of guilty, therefore, could become the most significant development in the Watergate case since last summer's revelation of the secret tape recordings. The irony is that the Chuck Colson who so loudly proclaimed the virtues of loyalty above all else in politics could conceivably—even if indirectly—become his chief's undoing.

Church Affiliation On West Coast Is Lower

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The people of Utah, Rhode Island and North Dakota are more extensively affiliated with churches than the populations of any other states of the nation.

In contrast, the smallest degree of church affiliation is in the West Coast states of Washington, Oregon and California.

These are among conditions turned up in the first compilation in 20 years of religious statistics by denomination in each region, state and county in the country.

"The West Coast seems to be attracting a non-church sort of population," observed Douglas Johnson, of New York, one of an interdenominational research team that collected the figures.

"This doesn't necessarily mean that the West Coast is irreligious, since many of the new religious movements spring from there," he added. "But it does indicate that the migrations to the West involve some sort of tacit rejection of affiliation with the organized churches."

Heavily Mormon Utah tops the list of states in the proportion of church affiliation, with 83.6 per cent of its people belonging to churches. North Dakota is second at 76.6 per cent and Rhode Island third, with 75.3 per cent.

The scantiest percentage of church affiliation is in Washington State, where only 32.5 per cent belong. Next, in small degree of membership, is Oregon, with 33 per cent, and California, with 33.5 per cent.

Regionally, that same pattern holds true; with the slimmest segment of church-belonging—33.5 per cent—in the Pacific coast region. The heaviest affiliation is in the New England states, where 60.4 per cent belong.

The 237-page statistical report was a joint project of the Glenmary Research Center, a Catholic agency in Washington, D.C., and research sections of the interdenominational National Council of Churches and the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

Here is how the 50 states rank in percentage of people belonging to churches:

Utah, 83.6; North Dakota, 76.6; Rhode Island, 75.3; South Dakota, 69.2; Wisconsin, 67.3; Minnesota, 66.3; New Mexico, 63.3; Massachusetts, 63.2; Iowa, 62.4; Nebraska, 60.4; Connecticut, 60.4.

Louisiana, 59.8; Pennsylvania, 59.2; Texas, 56.2; Illinois, 55.2; Oklahoma, 55.1; Kentucky, 54.8; Idaho, 53.6; Kansas, 52.7; South Carolina, 52.4; Montana, 52.3; Vermont, 52.1.

New Jersey, 51.6; Mississippi, 51.1; Missouri, 51.1; North Carolina, 50.7; New Hampshire, 50.3; Tennessee, 50.1; Alabama, 47.8; Wyoming, 47.6; Arizona and Ohio, 47.4; New York, 47; Georgia, 46.2; Michigan, 45.9; Arkansas, 45.8.

Maine, 44.8; Indiana, 44.6; Virginia, 43.3; Delaware, 43.2; Maryland, 42.8; Colorado, 41.5; Florida, 41.2; West Virginia, 40.5; Hawaii, 37.9; Nevada, 37.8; Alaska, 37; California, 33.5; Oregon, 33; Washington, 32.5.

A PASSING SCENE—The closing of the safety door and the whining of the large electric motor are sounds the elevator operator hears as he takes passengers from floor to floor. Elevator operators have been replaced in most buildings by push-button automation. William Dixon of Greenville, has worked with North Carolina National Bank (formerly State Bank and Trust Co.) for 15 years, during which time he has had his ups and downs as he operated the elevator.

Now, the elevator call button on the first floor has a sign over it—"Not In Service". The old machine, which requires an attendant, is used only when someone cannot climb the stairs or to transport heavy loads to upper floors. The old building is scheduled to be demolished in the future as part of the Central Business District improvement project. (Reflector Photo By Tommy Forrest)

Dirty Tricks By Coastal Currents

KILL DEVIL HILLS, N.C. (AP)—Oldtimers call them "dirty water."

It's an appropriate name for rip currents, for they send silt to the surface, and they play dirty with swimmers caught in them.

Rip currents were blamed for the drowning of two men and near-drowning of about a dozen other people Wednesday, and another man was rescued Thursday from rip currents near Kitty Hawk.

The rescued man, William B. Stein of Binghamton, N.Y., said he went farther beyond the beach than he intended while he was floating in the Atlantic. When he tried to swim ashore, he encountered the currents.

"I'd swim about three body lengths, and they'd take me out about the same distance," he said. "I did realize that I was in trouble."

Stein said he "wasn't really frightened" because he saw his wife, who was on the beach, summon a lifeguard. "In any event, it's something I'll remember," he said.

Said Mrs. Stein, "It's very frightening for the onlooker."

Rip currents, often incorrectly referred to as rip tides, are caused when an unusual amount of water is trapped between an offshore barrier and the beach.

In rough weather, the pressure of the water increases as rapidly breaking waves add to the volume. The water seeks the path of least resistance, a break in the barrier, and moves swiftly to that point.

The fast-moving water goes just beyond the barrier, sending silt to the surface and releasing whatever was caught in its grip.

In a series of interviews Thursday, a policeman, two lifeguards, and two surfers said swimmers caught in the currents most frequently add the most dangerous element—panic.

"If they'd be calm and float with the current, somebody would go out and get them," said lifeguard Ronnie Routten of Life Guard Beach Service at Kill Devil Hills.

"The problem comes when they panic. The first thing you know, they go under, and that's the last you see of them."

Routten, a three-year veteran of lifeguard service on the Outer Banks, said rip currents are worse when winds are from the northeast or east.

When the wind is from those directions, the water is deceiving, he said, "It's clearer, warmer, and prettier, but it's dangerous."

Routten, his fellow lifeguards, and Patrolman Justin Tillett of the Nags Head Police Department warned beach occupants of the current hazard Thursday, and a local radio station broadcast warnings. There were few swimmers.

"Most of the people are real glad to be told about the currents and have them explained to them," Tillett said.

Routten said some swimmers encounter problems because they are ignorant of the ocean.

"People come down to this beach, maybe from out west. They're not experienced and think the ocean is a big swimming pool. That's where they get into trouble."

Town Manager Herbert E. Dugro of Nags Head said that local hotel and motel managers are asked to warn their customers of the dangers, but that the town is seeking a warning system.

"Some of these people just don't realize the ocean's potential and treat it like a millpond," he said.

The town also is "thinking of having several qualified lifeguards patrol the beach, along with police," he said.

Like Virginia Beach, the north Outer Banks communities have no municipal lifeguard force. A privately owned lifeguard service provides lifeguards to motels and hotels in return for having beach-equipment rental stations in front of them.

The service also operates an emergency vehicle, available to towns for $1,500 a year.

Nags Head did not subscribe to the rescue service this year, but there are some lifeguards at Nags Head establishments.

"We feel that we can better cover the beaches ourselves on a year-round basis," Bugroo said.

There are five lifeguard stations this summer. "It's amazing that there aren't more drownings," Routten said. "Each year we get more and more tourists."

The bodies of the two men who drowned Wednesday have not been recovered. Several spokesmen speculated that they will be found north of where they were last seen, since the current was moving north Thursday.

Tillett explained that rip currents are misnamed when called rip tides.

Tides are controlled by the moon, he said, whereas currents are controlled by the wind and water depth.

In normal weather, he said, waves reach the beach at the rate of about one per minute, but the breaking action may be many times that rate in foul weather, thus multiplying pressure of impounded water.

It surges out as the waves continue to shore, creating rip currents.

Recapture 5 Of Wayne Escapees

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Seven prisoners escaped from the Wayne County Jail Thursday night after one inmate overpowered a guard and unlocked the cell blocks, but five were back in custody today, less than 12 hours after the break.

Sheriff Bill Adams said the break occurred about 8:30 p.m. when jailer Alvin Ingram was returning Jimmy D. Smith, 23, of Kinston, to his cell and was overpowered by Smith.

The sheriff said Smith, awaiting trial on an armed robbery charge, had asked to see his lawyer Thursday and when the attorney arrived Smith demanded to be moved to a corner cell to insure privacy during their talk.

Adams said that several hours after the lawyer left Smith demanded repeatedly to be returned to his own cell and was being returned there when he threw the jailer to the floor and beat him.

The sheriff said two men were apprehended within a couple of hours. He identified them as Larry Massey, 20, and Melvin Sutton, 19, both of Goldsboro.

Adams said Massey, who was awaiting appeal on a bank robbery charge, surrendered in the presence of his mother. Sutton, awaiting appeal on larceny and traffic charges, was found lying on the shoulder of U. S. 117 south of Goldsboro.

Two others were picked up shortly after dawn as they walked along U.S. 70, between Goldsboro and Kinston. They were identified as Smith, who touched off the break, and James Reginald Holmes, 31, of Kinston. Later, Elijah Fair, 21, of Goldsboro, was apprehended.

Remaining at large were Charles McKinney, 26, of Kinston, and Clarence Carr, 33, of Goldsboro.

All were taken into custody without incident.

A Free Trip If Birthday Is On July 4

Somewhere in the State of North Carolina is a boy or girl between the ages of 12 and 15 who was born on the 4th of July and would like to spend the most memorable birthday of his life at Independence Hall in Philadelphia on a four-day all expense paid trip.

According to the Philadelphia Freedom Week Committee, the key to the opportunity is the prompt preparation of an essay of not more than 300 words on the subject "What My American Freedom Means to Me."

The essay is to be postmarked by June 18 and sent to the Freedom Week Committee, 1660 Municipal Services Building, Philadelphia, Pa. 19107. It should be accompanied by the name, address, telephone number, age, school attended, and parents' names and have a recent photograph of the candidate attached.

The Freedom Week Committee, according to its chairman William Goldman, will make its decision promptly and advise the winner. The youngster, who will henceforth be known as the North Carolina Yankee Doodle Dandy, will be brought to Philadelphia, accompanied by one of his parents, from July 1 to July 4. He will stay at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, engage in a round of sightseeing at such famous places as Valley Forge, Franklin Institute, and other places, as well as dining at the finest restaurants, going to the theatre, and enjoying a series of birthday parties.

The climax of the visit will be the competition when the North Carolina youngster will compete with other boys and girls from the 13 original states for the honor of being named the National Yankee Doodle Dandy. While all the boys and girls will receive awards and gifts, the

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rang up another broad gain today, welcoming a prime-rate reduction by New York's First National City Bank.

City Council Appointees

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 7.20 at 852.55, and gainers outdistanced losers by close to 4 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Prices spurred upward at the opening as Citibank announced it was lowering its interest rate on short-term loans to big business from 11 1/2 to 11 1/4 per cent.

After the initial jump, however, prices slipped back a bit, and activity slowed as the market seemed to pause for breath after its sharp runup since the start of the week.

The Dow, through this morning's first half hour, had soared more than 50 points since Monday's opening, and brokers said it was to be expected that some investors would want to cash in on profits before the weekend.

A wide variety of financial issues and other so-called "interest-sensitive" stocks dominated the NYSE percentage-gainers list.

Citicorp, parent holding company of First National City, was the most active issue on the Big Board, up 3/4 at 40 1/4.

In the mortgage-guarantee group, MGIC Investment rose 1/2 to 21 3/4, and CMI Investment was up 1 1/2 at 17 1/2. Finance companies showing gains included Beneficial, up 1 1/4 at 20 1/2, and Household Finance, up 1/4 at 15 1/2.

Kaufman & Broad, the large housing developer, was up 3/4 at 6 1/2. Numerous real estate investment trusts also advanced.

On the American Stock Exchange, Southland Royalty shot up 3 1/2 to 37 after the company reported on the natural gas flow from a Wyoming well.

The Amex' 11 a.m. market value index was up 1.10 at 85.63, and the NYSE composite showed a .45 gain at 48.83.

experience for us. Through consolidation we have made many friends, who otherwise we might never have known. We have seen good times and bad times. . . hopefully, we will cherish to good memories and learn from the bad ones."

"Even though we have attained many of our goals, we feel we are only just beginning our journey through life," Miss James said.

"Saying farewell to a school that has been an integral part of our lives is not an easy task," Miss Jones said. "As we receive our diplomas, we also receive the outside world. We must be willing to accept the challenges the world offers. If we use our God-given talents to the best of our ability, we can and will succeed."

Miss Jones explained that one gets out of life what one puts into it.

"Fellow classmates, strive to do your best, for if you are worthy, success shall surely find you. We must make the best of our opportunities," Miss Jones emphasized.

"We thank our parents and faculty for standing by and giving us that guidance we needed. We shall always be appreciative and have warm memories of you," Miss Jones said.

The invocation was given by Bonita Manning and the benediction was given by Michelle Toney.

Presentation of the school gifts was made by seniors Debbie Pollard, Peggy Braxton, Delilah Perkins and Patricia Roebuck. Diplomas were awarded by Principal W. C. Latham and assistant principals Ernest McNair and Farney Moore.

Wanda Brown and Sylvia Andrews were in charge of the tassel ceremony.

Special music was presented by the school choral group. Farmville Central High School Principal speakers for the graduation exercises at Farmville Central included Christine Tyson, Sylvia Bryan, Charieese Jordan and Bill Bass.

The speakers were introduced by class president Pam Monk. She also presented the class gift. Diplomas were awarded to the 191 graduation seniors by Principal Russ Cotton.

For their theme, the four speakers chose the poem "If" by Rudyard Kipling.

"Our first success will be upon the accomplishment of being an individual," Miss Tyson said. "Every individual has a place to fill in the world and it is important in some respect, whether he chooses to be so or not."

"We are standing on the threshold of adulthood. . . and adulthood is a frightening experience. As adults, we become ourselves, leaving behind the different personalities we copied from other students," Miss Tyson said.

"I am reminded of the baby bird who is pushed out of the nest and forced to use his own wings," Miss Tyson said. "That is his major step in becoming an individual, capable of providing for himself and later for others."

Miss Bryan stated that the graduates are now searching for the answer to the question of what our future holds for us.

"To dream is good, but to make our dreams a reality will be better," Miss Bryan said. "As builders of tomorrow, we must plan our lives around what we believe to be the truth. As we attempt to make our dreams come true, we must learn to accept failure and success for what they are and for how they shape our future lives."

Miss Bryan added, "Being a dreamer and a thinker is good, but unless we put forth the effort to make our life's dream come true, they shall remain only a dream."

Miss Jordan explained that graduation means not only the end but the beginning.

"Graduation means the end of an achieved goal but not the end of learning. It is a beginning and it is now that we must take what we have learned thus far and start anew. We must establish new goals, make new acquaintances, solve new problems and answer new questions," Miss Jordan said.

"Whatever our future plans are, failure will not be a stranger to any of us. Many times we will win; many times we will lose," Miss Jordan said. "We should not allow ourselves to be discouraged. We learn from our mistakes."

Bass told the group, "As we leave our homes and our high school, we will be faced with problems of adjusting to new and different situations. We will meet all kinds of people and ideas, but we must cling to our virtues and values."

"Each of us will encounter success and failure. We must learn to accept both," Bass said. "Time waits for no one. We must make every second count. We must use our time wisely."

Bible School To Begin June 10

Vacation Bible School will be held June 10-14 at the First Wesleyan Church, located on Hwy. 43 south of the Bells Fork community.

The theme for the week is "God's Good News, For You-Thru You."

Convicted For A Third Time

HILLSBOROUGH, N.C. (AP)—John Lee Edwards was sentenced to life imprisonment Thursday after he was convicted for the third time of strangling 84-year-old Dora Lloyd in 1971.

An Orange County Superior Court jury at Hillsborough deliberated only 25 minutes before finding the 22-year-old defendant guilty of first degree murder.

Judge Charles T. Kivett immediately imposed the life sentence. This sentence was mandatory because the death sentence has been ruled unconstitutional for the time Mrs. Lloyd was killed.

Edwards' two previous convictions were overruled by the state Supreme Court.

Fire Damaged Frat House

Greenville firemen were called to 700 East Tenth St. about 7:10 p.m. yesterday when a fire erupted in the dwelling. . . the Kappa Sigma fraternity house. Officers said the fire apparently started when a cigarette set draperies in the dwelling on fire.

The blaze, which was out when fire units arrived, caused only light damage.

SEEKS REPEAL

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Carolina Senator Sam Ervin introduced a bill Thursday to repeal federal no-knock authority and to permit individuals to sue the government of illegal acts by its agents.

The wild turkey not only is the largest upland game bird, it is also the fastest.

Rap Richmond's Police In Handling Kidnaping

RICHLAND, Va. (AP)—The mother of a 3-year-old boy abducted from Marietta, Ga., Monday and then left in a Richmond department store Tuesday has criticized Richmond police, and Marietta police have agreed with her.

Police here held the boy until Wednesday night when his mother, Mrs. Natalie Goodman, arrived to take her son, Matthew, back home.

Mrs. Goodman said in Marietta Thursday night there was no excuse for Richmond police to wait a full day before notifying Georgia authorities her son was safe.

"I'm glad I live in Georgia and am not being taken care of by Virginia police," Marietta Deputy Police Chief

Jack Ellison said, "The whole thing is rotten. It stinks." Matthew was found in a store wearing a tag that said, "I am from Atlanta. Please help me to get home."

Ellison said he heard that a Richmond detective handling the case went home at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday and did not attempt to notify Georgia officials until the next day.

"We never close here," Ellison said. "This department was put through a lot of strain during the time the child was in custody in Richmond."

Ellison said word came from Richmond just as a group of about 200 police, military reservists and Civil Defense workers were leaving to search a wooded area.

The FBI, meanwhile, said

Thursday it is seeking the man who found Matthew in the department store and turned him over to store officials.

A spokesman for the Richmond FBI office said the man who found the boy was white, below average height, in his late 30s, with light sandy hair and a full mustache.

The FBI said Matthew was "extremely intelligent, gregarious and laughing nearly all the time." The boy told police he had been taken by a "big man" in an "old car" from in front of a Marietta store as he waited on his mother.

The FBI said Matthew told of spending Monday night in a motel and that the man bought him candy and some plastic toys.

Police said there was no indications Matthew had been molested.

Chased Phony Deputy's Auto

RALEIGH (AP)—Two officers of the North Carolina Enforcement and Theft Bureau became suspicious Thursday when they saw a Greenville, S.C., sheriff's car stop a pickup truck on Interstate Highway 85 in Gaston County, North Carolina.

According to Acting Director Roy McCampbell of the enforcement and theft bureau, the two North Carolina officers, Bill Lyerly of Gastonia and Tim Bowers of Raleigh, demanded to see the license of the driver of the car who was dressed in the uniform of a Greenville, S.C. deputy.

While they were inspecting the license, the man in the deputy's car drove away at high speed. The chase extended for about 25 miles and the two cars reached a speed of over 100 miles per hour, McCampbell related.

McCampbell said the fugitive was "using the blue light and siren on the car to move traffic out of the way so he could flee from our car." He said the car was finally stopped with the assistance of a state Bureau of Investigation agent.

McCampbell identified the driver of the car as Tobias Franklin Howard of Gold Hill, N.C. and said he was jailed at Gastonia under charges of possessing a stolen vehicle, impersonating an officer, speeding in excess of 100 miles per hour, reckless driving and failure to stop for a blue light and siren. South Carolina officers arrived later bringing warrants charging Howard with grand larceny and impersonating an officer.

Public Eating More Goobers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Americans gobble an average of eight and one-half pounds of goobers per person per year. That's one and one-half pounds more peanuts than the per capita consumption ten years ago, says the Cornell University Extension Service. The increase apparently is due to the high price of other protein foods such as beef, poultry and dairy products.

As soon as they leave the nest, young mallard ducks can swim up to a third of a mile.

See Increase In Jobless

WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher unemployment among teenagers boosted the nation's jobless rate to 5.2 per cent in May, the first increase in four months, the government reported today.

The turnaround is expected to continue in the coming months, rising to between 5.5 and 6 per cent by the end of the year, according to administration forecasts.

The Labor Department said 4.7 million Americans were unable to find jobs last month, an increase of about 170,000 from the previous month.

Unemployment has hovered in the 5 to 5.2 per cent range since January, after rising from a 3 1/2 year low of 4.6 per cent in October. It was 5.2 per cent in January and February, 5.1 per cent in March and 5 per cent in April.

Total employment in May, at an adjusted 86 million, rose slightly after showing little growth during the winter and spring months. Over the past year employment has expanded by two million.

Pinch Hitter Does The Trick

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

In Milwaukee pinch hitters are as popular as prohibitionists ... and about as successful.

But that was before Mike Hegan.

Hegan, a newcomer to the Milwaukee bench, laced a two-run pinch single Thursday, the first successful Brewer pinch hit in 24 attempts this season, and the Brewers dumped the California Angels 9-7.

Elsewhere in an abbreviated American League schedule, the Texas Rangers dropped the Cleveland Indians 6-2 and the New York Yankees downed the Chicago White Sox 5-1.

In a pinch, the last person you'd call on would be a Milwaukee pinch hitter. But California Manager Bobby Winkles left the Brewers little choice.

"I knew they didn't have any right-handed hitters left on the bench but (Bob) Collucio," said Winkles, explaining why he replaced right-hand pitcher Skip Lockwood for lefty John Cumberland in the seventh inning. "I knew Collucio had been hurt and I wasn't sure he was able to hit."

Milwaukee Manager Del Crandall, who later confirmed that Collucio was unable to hit, was forced to send up the left-hand hitting Hegan.

He said his teammates "told me he has a big breaking ball, so I tried to lean up to the plate," said Hegan, recently acquired from the New York Yankees. With their advice, he got his hit.

Rangers 6, Indians 2
Jackie Brown threw a curveballing seven-hitter at the Cleveland Indians, supported by Alex Johnson, who knocked in four runs, two in a three-run Texas seventh.

Yankees 5, White Sox 1
George Medich scattered 10 hits and the Yankees deprived former teammate Stan Bahnsen of his 100th major league victory in his fifth straight unsuccessful bid.

National League scores: New York 4, Cincinnati 3; San Francisco 9, St. Louis 6; Houston 4, Montreal 0; Chicago 5, San Diego 1; Los Angeles 6, Pittsburgh 0.

Western Added To Buc Slate

Western Carolina University has been added to the 1975 East Carolina University football schedule, it was announced this morning in Cullowhee.

The former Carolinas Conference rival for the Pirates returns to their schedule for the first time since 1963, when Coach Clarence Stasavich's Bucs rolled to a 50-0 victory over the Catamounts.

The game will be played on October 18, 1975, at 7:30 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium. The scheduling of Western Carolina completes the 1975 schedule.

The two schools first met in 1936, with Western Carolina taking a 7-6 victory. In 24 meetings, the Catamounts hold a 13-11 edge over the Bucs in overall victories.

Western recently withdrew from the Carolinas Conference to go independent. They are currently seeking membership in the Southern Conference, and the scheduling of the Pirates will add to their hopes. They have also scheduled two other Southern schools, Appalachian State and Furman University.

The complete 1975 schedule: September 6, at North Carolina State

The complete 1975 schedule: September 6, at North Carolina State; Sept. 13, at Appalachian State; Sept. 20, William & Mary; Sept. 27, at Southern Illinois; Oct. 4, Richmond; Oct. 11, at The Citadel; Oct. 18, Western Carolina; Oct. 25, at North Carolina; Nov. 1, Furman; Nov. 8, at Virginia; Nov. 22, VMI.

Coronary Likely

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Doctors at University Hospital expected to complete tests today on Ohio State University football Coach Woody Hayes, who was hospitalized after complaining of chest pains.

The 61-year-old Hayes was being treated in the hospital's coronary care unit, and his physician, Dr. Robert J. Murphy, said, "It does appear he (Hayes) had a small heart attack."

A hospital spokesman said an official diagnosis would be announced today.

Hayes, college football's second winningest coach, was listed in guarded condition Thursday night. A hospital spokesman said Hayes was resting comfortably and his pulse and blood pressure were stable.

The Buckeye coach was bothered by chest pains early Thursday.

Murphy said he was called to Hayes' home and decided at 6:30 a.m. Thursday to have him hospitalized.

"I saw him (Hayes) as late as last week," Murphy said. "In general, he's in robust health."

Hayes has served more seasons than any other football coach at OSU. In 24 years, his Ohio State record is 159-49-8, including three national championships.

He has earned 192 college football victories, second only to Alabama's Paul "Bear" Bryant.

Kiwanis Upset Optimists, 4-2

The Kiwanis used walks and some timely hitting to pull off a 4-2 upset of the league-leading Optimists yesterday in the North State Little League.

The defeat knocked the Optimists out of a clear lead in the league. They now have an 8-2 record, and are even with the Lions in the loss column. The Kiwanis are 3-7.

The Optimists scored first, getting a run in the first. Billy Dough reached on a fielder's choice and moved up on an out. He got to third on a wild pitch and a passed ball allowed him to score.

The Kiwanis tied it up in their half of the frame. Tom Brown walked and a wild pitch put him on second. He moved up on Skip Hill's hit and scored on an error on the play.

In the third, the Kiwanis pushed ahead with two more runs. Brown and Sterling Ashby both walked. Hill was hit by a pitch, loading the bases. Howard Moyer reached on an error, scoring Brown, and a passed ball let Ashby in for the 3-1 lead.

The final Kiwanis run came over in the fourth. Brown walked and stole second. Ashby then doubled to drive him in.

The other Optimists run came in the sixth. Glenn Moore reached on a three-base error and Patrick Wilson reached on an error, letting Moore score.

Skip Topping got the victory, allowing only three hits. He walked two and struck out three. Jim O'Brien took the loss on a four-hitter, but he walked in and fanned six.

Catch Was Not Counted

MOREHEAD CITY—A shark or a propeller blade may have cost David Nichols of Greenville a shot at the Big Rock Marlin Tournament championship earlier this week.

Nichols, fishing on the Barbara B with Captain Bill Blount, landed a blue marlin which was believed to be the biggest one taken so far. But it had been mutilated by either a shark or a boat propeller during its struggle, and this disqualified it.

The leader through Wednesday was Jerry Wright Jr. of Kitty Hawk who landed a 363½-pound blue.

The tournament ends this afternoon.

The win upped the Elk record to 6-4, while the Moose fell to a 3-7 mark for the year.

The Moose took the lead in the second inning, scoring three runs. Dwayne Alligood reached on an error and was wild pitched to second. He stole third and scored on Bobby Gantt's hit. David Vaughn singled and both moved up on a wild pitch. Rusty Davenport walked and Ashley Taylor reached on an error, scoring Gantt. Mark Sasser walked, forcing in Vaughn.

Gavin Ray and Tracy Cain both walked, loading the bases. Walks to Chris Ross and Lloyd Jackson forced in Jackson and Ray. Emmett Walsh singled, scoring Cain. An error on the play let Ross also score. White doubled again, scoring both Jackson and Walsh. Sneed then doubled to score White. A sacrifice fly by Bert Singleton brought in Sneed with the tenth run.

The Moose added one more run in the sixth. Vaughn walked and Taylor reached on an error. Carroll singled, scoring Vaughn.

Windy Candlestick Park Comes To Aid Of San Francisco Giants

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The San Francisco Giants won in a breeze Thursday. Literally.

Aided by the well-known Candlestick Park wind, the Giants scored seven runs in the fourth inning and went on to beat the St. Louis Cardinals 9-5.

"Candlestick is by far the toughest park to play outfield in the National League," said St. Louis center fielder Lis Mendez.

He lost a fly ball in the wind during that wild fourth inning and it cost the Cardinals three runs. Frustrated over Gary Matthews' wind-blown double with the bases loaded, Mendez noted: "All you can go by is the sound of the ball hitting the bat. It sounded hard hit, so I started back. But the wind held it up and I ran as hard as I could but couldn't get to it."

The wind also pestered St. Louis starter Lynn McGlothen, who held a 3-0 lead until he was blown out in the fourth.

"I had great stuff and when I got that 3-0 lead, I thought I was in control," said McGlothen, a former American Leaguer making his first appearance in Candlestick's wind cavern. "But I just couldn't adjust to the wind. I felt like I had a good, live fastball, but the wind was moving it two or three feet."

In the other National League games, the New York Mets nudged the Cincinnati Reds 4-3; the Houston Astros beat the Montreal Expos 4-0; the Los Angeles Dodgers blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-0 and the Chicago Cubs beat the San Diego Padres 5-1.

Mets 4, Reds 3
John Milner hit a tremendous leadoff home run against reliever Pedro Borbon in the eighth inning, lifting New York over Cincinnati.

Astros 4, Expos 0
Lee May hit two bases-emphy home runs and Larry Dierker pitched a three-hitter, pacing

Houston over Montreal.

Dodgers 6, Pirates 0
Andy Messersmith pitched his second straight shutout with a five-hitter and Ron Cey blasted a two-run homer, leading Los Angeles over Pittsburgh.

Messersmith, 6-1, permitted only five singles while running his scoreless inning streak to 18.

Cubs 5, Padres 1
Don Kessinger and Rick Monday each knocked in two runs to help Chicago and left-hander Ken Frailing beat San Diego.

American League scores:
New York 5, Chicago 1; Milwaukee 9, California 7 and Texas 6, Cleveland 2.

Schlee Not Surprised After He Shot 66 To Take Philly Lead

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Curly haired John Schlee wasn't surprised that he shot a six-under-par 66 to take the lead after one round of the $150,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic. It was in the stars.

Schlee, 35, an avid student of astrology, hasn't been playing too well this year on the pro golf tour. He is 66th on the money winning list at $20,119 and his best has been a tie for 11th at San Diego.

"I had a bad astrological aspect between Neptune and my rising sign, Aquarius. Neptune is a very slow moving planet. It kind of boggles the mind. It makes it very hard to concentrate," Schlee explained.

The 6-foot-3 Schlee, who describes himself as "the defending runner-up" in next week's U.S. Open, said he has been bored, lackadaisical, unable to concentrate. "At the Masters for example I was eight under on the front side for the tournament and eight over on the backside," Schlee said.

So what's different now at Whitemarsh Valley Country Club? The bad astrological aspects are gone now, Schlee explained. "It left two weeks ago. June has always been a good month for me. I'm a Gemini."

It was in June last year that Schlee started the final round of the U.S. Open at Oakmont tied for the lead. He finished second when Johnny Miller fired a course record 63 to win.

While Schlee ambled stary-eyed around the 6,700-yard, par-72 Whitemarsh course claiming eight birdies and two bogeys, 26-year-old Tom Jenkins and veteran Charley Siford carded five-under-par 67s to trail by one stroke.

Another stroke back at 68 were Jim Colbert, Bob Allard, Victor Regalado, Wally Armstrong and Tom Kite.

There were 11 grouped at 69, including Bob Menne, upset winner last week at the Kemper Open. Defending champion Tom Weiskopf was at 71 with 14 others.

Masters' champion Gary Player also scored a one-under 71, and U.S. Open king Johnny Miller, a five time winner on the tour this year, carded a par-72.

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY REELE

A Duke alumnus informs us that we are mistaken in our article about Duke Coach Mike McGee. We stated that McGee had a four-year contract that would expire after this season.

But, the alumnus says, this is not true, although he originally was told this too. Seems McGee has a much longer contract with the Blue Devils, but although the alumnus admitted that he knew the length, he would not give it out.

He said that his own opinion is that McGee is solid and is in better shape than at any time during his tenure, although he did agree that many of the alumni are unhappy with him and this year still could prove to be a pivotal one for the coach.

We have also heard that McGee feels that this is the year that Duke fortunes will turn around. He feels that the Blue Devils will be a contender for the Atlantic Coast Conference championship this year, instead of being down near the cellar.

Time will tell.

We applaud the crowd that came out to see the Indians and the Texas Rangers—on Wednesday night, that is. The crowd that romped on the field Tuesday night has no place in the sporting world.

Following Tuesday night's wild ending to the Indian-Ranger game, the crowd Wednesday, although small, applauded an announcement that anyone going on the field would be fined. They also applauded the actions of their team as they went on to win.

"These are the true fans," one player said afterwards.

But the people who ran wild Tuesday, and those in another city who poured beer on an injured player as he lay on the ground below them should be kept out of the parks. They do nothing for the sport except to hurt it.

Jerry Narron, brother of East Carolina University's Johnny Narron, was among those drafted by the New York Yankees in the draft the other day. The younger Narron, a senior at Goldsboro High School, is being sought by a number of colleges, including East Carolina, where the Narrons have already had two members of their family.

You may remember the first, a cousin, "Rooster" Narron.

Johnny, too, may be signed by the Yankees. Reportedly he has been offered a free agent contract.

Two former Pirates are still active in the professional baseball ranks. Hal Baird, a former Buc pitcher, is now with Omaha, a farm club of the Kansas City Royals in the American Association, a triple-A league. According to the latest stats to reach us, however, he's appeared only briefly this year in one game.

Tommy Toms, the most recent Pirate to sign, is with Amarillo, a farm club in the Giant organization, according to ECU Coach George Williams. He hasn't appeared among the leaders in that league's somewhat limited statistical breakdown that we've seen.

'Naughty' Word Troubles NCAA

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The hush-hush word of "professionalism" found its way into the NCAA track and field meet Thursday night.

Taunts have been following Northeast Missouri quarter miler Larance Jones of Northeast Missouri State since he signed a contract as a wide receiver with the New York Giants of the National Football League.

"I've been getting the shaft as far as publicity goes," said Jones. "Everyone is saying 'who is this Larry Jones and where is Northeast Missouri State and what is all this trouble he's causing?' Everyone is pointing a finger at me ... they make me feel as if I had committed some kind of sacrilegious sin."

Because he signed with the Giants, Jones will not be eligible for AAU competition.

The semifinals of the 440 was one of the glamour events scheduled for tonight in Memorial Stadium.

There's little concern among the athletes competing here that the AAU will flex its muscles to make ineligible all those competing against Jones.

Finals were scheduled Friday night in the hammer, long jump, shot put and six-mile run.

We're expecting a few extra people for dinner tonight.

Tonight, the world will have 213,000 more mouths to feed than it had last night.

Unfortunately, we're not growing food as fast as people. But there's still hope of reversing the trend.

Modern technology is increasing the production of staple food crops in many countries.

This "green revolution" is something Union Carbide is very much a part of.

We make insecticides that not only save food crops from bugs, but destroy themselves afterwards.

Another of our products protects high-moisture feed grains against spoilage from molds. So more of the crop ends up as meat.

We've also developed better ways to store, transport and package food.

And we're working on other new ideas: A seed tape that's already helping farmers grow more food per acre of land.

An amazing gel that helps plants grow faster with less water. And a sea farm where we're raising salmon by the thousands.

Helping the world grow more food is not the only thing we do. But it's one of the most important.

Because those 213,000 guests are coming — whether we're ready or not.

Today, something we do will touch your life.

The 'Worry Clinic' Promiscuity Is Always A Folly

Naomi's sexual dilemma is widespread. Both California and New York have almost a 50 per cent divorce rate. Which means the couples confused "mating" with the idealism of a true love type of "marriage." Discuss this case and send for the booklet below.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE A-651: Naomi Z., aged 32, is the Guidance Counselor in a California high school.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "you doubtless realize that our divorce rate in California is almost 50 per cent."

"And some papers even carry the pictures of college men and their coed concubines, in lieu of the usual wedding pictures!"

"So the stamp of public approval is beginning to make our teenagers think that sexual promiscuity is right and proper."

"And some of the mothers of our students actually go along with this lax moral code."

"They have even told me that they feel it is well for both sexes to 'sow their wild oats' before they ever think of marriage."

"For they claim such promiscuity teaches the couples better sexual adjustment. Is that really true?"

Sex Sophistry
No; that's merely sexual sophistry lustful and rationalization.

For example, if an untutored boy sits down at the keyboard of 10 different pianos and pounds the keys in aimless fashion, will 10 pianos make him any more of a Paderewski than just one piano?

Certainly not!
For pianos don't teach music!

It takes a qualified expert, such as a piano instructor, to do that job.

And when a boy is tutored by such an expert, he may become a concert musician or even another Paderewski.

For Paderewski didn't need but ONE PIANO TO ATTAIN HIS FAME!

So this promiscuity argument now widely parroted by stupid parents, is not only false, but it leads to the venereal disease epidemic that is spreading all over America.

And it dissipates the idealistic aspects of true love, so that many young people now think "mating" is synonymous with "marriage."

Alas, mating is comperable to a restaurant banquet, where the physical senses are surfeited but you don't feel enamoured of the chef or cook.

Sexual union is supposed to be the culmination of a true love affair, instead of a one-night orgy.

Wise men for the 5,000 years of recorded history have pointed out the folly of thinking that sex is synonymous with true love.

Women tend to identify the two, but that isn't the case with men.

For rapists don't have any tender regard for their victims, but abuse them and then may kill them afterwards!

Men can thus enjoy sex with victims they hate or just to get their "money's worth" for having paid for dinner and a and falsely protest their undying love, though they may desert you next morning.

Read about Prince Ammon's case (II Samuel, Chapter 13), which has been a Biblical warning to women for nearly 3,000 years!
Promiscuity actually reduces a couple's chances of marital happiness!
So don't desecrate the idealism of true love by mere mating orgies.
Send for my booklet "Sex Problems in Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents, and you can become expert with just one partner.

A Pocket Guide Of Summer TV

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Summer is when America's TV viewing sharply decreases. This is because important matters need tending, matters like dozing, fishing or sacrificing costly hamburger to appease the gods of barbecue.

But some of us will stay by our sets. For those hardy souls, we offer an official pocket guide on what needs watching and what doesn't.

In the Approved popular category, rerun division, try "M-A-S-H," "Streets of San Francisco," "Kojak," "Mary Tyler Moore," "Police Story" and maybe "The Fugitive" if you still don't know how it ended.

In the Approved news-public affairs category, inspect "60 Minutes," "Jean Shepherd's America"—if it's on anywhere, and the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment probe—if it ever goes public anywhere.

In the Approved sports category, just two shows are suggested: Any ABC-covered auto race and any baseball game covered just by NBC's Tony Kubek and Joe Garagiola.

In the Approved public TV entertainment category, rerun division, try "Upstairs, Downstairs," "War and Peace," the "Lord Peter Wimsey" series and —aw heck, go to London and cut out the middleman.

On the Disapproved List, is golf (too much whispering and it seemed that there was no way to avoid two heart losers unless declarer could maneuver an endplay. To exploit that possibility, declarer won the club and drew trumps in two rounds. The remaining high club and the ace and king of diamonds were cashed, to strip the North and South hands of minor suit cards. Now, declarer cashed the ace of hearts, on which both defenders played low, and exited with a low heart.

West saw no reason to play anything other than the jack of hearts, and East had to win the trick with the queen. He had nothing but minor suit cards left, and whatever he returned would permit declarer to discard his last heart while ruffing in dummy, thus holding his losers to one heart.

Both East and West were at fault in allowing declarer to make his contract. East could have made things easy for his partner by jettisoning his queen of hearts under the ace. However, West could still have saved the day by going up with the king of hearts on the second lead of the suit, picking up the queen and so allowing him to score his jack.

What if declarer holds the queen of hearts? Most unlikely, in view of the way that play has progressed. With that card, declarer would probably have taken the heart finesse.

Because West's play of the king "swallows" his partner's queen, it has become known as the Crocodile Coup.

West led the queen of clubs, and dummy was a great disappointment. The queen of diamonds was a wasted card,

Proof Needed For Applicants

People may be asked to prove their age, identity, and citizenship to get a social security number when applying for the first time, according to Cy Adcock, social security district manager in Greenville.

The proof is required under an amendment to the social security law. "The requirement effects native United States citizens, naturalized citizens, and aliens," Adcock said.

People can apply for a social security number by writing or visiting any social security office. Application forms are available at social security offices and post offices.

"Age can usually be proved with a birth or baptismal certificate," Adcock said. "Identity can generally be proved with a driver's license, voter's card, or similar evidence—preferably something that carries your signature."

People born in the United States can usually establish citizenship with the same papers they use to prove their age and identity, he said.

People applying for duplicate social security numbers because they've lost their social security cards or changed their name generally aren't affected by the proof requirement, according to Adcock.

The proof requirement is intended to help prevent people going on there), summer football (have they no mercy?) and rock concerts (no, they have no mercy).

This summer's Disapproved List already is a massive array of titles ranging from "Toma" (a reluctant choice, since I greatly admired the show where he disguised himself as an adding machine, ran a total and found he didn't amount to much) to "The Advocates."

But we add two more shows, "All in the Family" and "Sanford and Son," to the list on grounds Carroll O'Connor and Redd Foxx have become grouches. Nothing makes a man so cross as success.

We realize the official pocket guide for summer viewing doesn't contain much, but neither does the set. You might see what's on radio — or hear, if you're a purist — during the really dog nights.

Women Trained In Officiating

FOREST CITY, Iowa (UPI) — Three women students at Waldorf College here have taken a class in football officiating.

Karol Sucher, Pam Ellner and Marilyn Meinecke now are in demand at campus football games.

Miss Meinecke said she took the course because she complained about officiating and wanted to know more about football.

Teens 'In Trouble' Go To Utah Town

By LIDIA LESZCZYNSKI
St. GEORGE, Utah (UPI) — The 14-year-old girl and her 16-year-old boyfriend, having crossed the Nevada desert to this small southern Utah border community, vow to spend their lives with each other.

As the justice of the peace pronounces the children man and wife, their parents give each other reassuring looks that this was the only way. The baby, soon to be born, now will be legitimate.

Couples such as this, in most cases with the girl "in trouble", come to Utah by car or bus from neighboring states, particularly from California, Nevada and Arizona, where without a special—and often costly—court order a girl can't marry until she is 16 and a boy, 18. Utah is one of only six states in the nation where, with

Bicyclist Is Fatally Hurt

AYDEN—An eight-year-old boy was fatally injured here last night when the bicycle he was riding collided head-on with a car on West Third Street.

Pitt County Coroner and Medical Examiner E. W. Harvey said Joey Wayne Anderson of West Second St. was dead on arrival at Pitt Memorial Hospital, following the 6:56 p.m. collision. Harvey listed the cause of death as a crushed chest and severe internal injuries.

Ayden Police Chief Tommy Burney said young Anderson was riding his bicycle West on Third Street, looked back over his shoulder to check for traffic coming up behind him, and made a left turn into the path of an East-bound car driven by Raymond Earl Jones, 21, of Route 1, Farmville.

Damage to the car was set at $175 while damage to the bicycle was estimated at $10.

No charges were made, Chief Burney said, and Coroner Harvey ruled the death as accidental.

parental consent, a girl legally can become a bride at 14 and a boy a groom at 16.

In 1971, the latest year for which the Office of Vital Statistics in Salt Lake City has figures, 85 per cent of the 1,350 brides and 678 grooms under 17 who took their vows in Utah lived outside the state. The office says 428 girls took the big step before reaching 16.

From Southern California Although the young marriageable age applies to the entire state, the most popular site among out-of-state teens lies in Utah's southwestern corner—the closest locale to heavily populated Southern California, home of many of the new-wives.

More than 200 of the 1,248 brides under 18 married in Utah tied the knot in St. George.

"I marry about four of five of them a week. About 90 per cent of them are from out-of-state," said city Justice of the Peace Newell Frei, one of two J.P.s in St. George.

The other is county J.P. Willard Farr, who performs most of the ceremonies but refused to discuss them.

Both J.P.s try to counsel the couples before the short civic ceremony.

Sages of the World Although we believe the character is developed in the home, and a 10 minute speech won't change it, we try to instruct them," Frei said.

He likes to quote "sages of the world," such as Christ, Confucius or Buddha, in stressing his "do unto others" lesson. His advice also always includes a lecture on words.

"I tell the kids that words destroy a marriage, that the 'open sesame' to a good marriage is to say each morning something kind, understanding, tolerant to build up the partner's image."

All this advice, and the ceremony, is free unless the couple volunteers a donation.

"In most cases they need the money much more than I," Frei said.

Often, the youthful pair will send letters, instead of cash, to thank the J.P.s for their help. "Some of the nicest letters I ever got were from the kids I married," Frei said.

Few Honeymoons Sometimes the honeymoons can afford a honeymoon trip 120 miles south to Las Vegas, but in most cases they return home right after the wedding so the groom, almost always a few years older than his bride, can return to work.

With the coming of the baby, after all, expenses are going to pile up.

Most of the girls are at least three months pregnant, and many "past the safe date for an abortion," Frei said. "They just want to get married and have the baby."

Since parents rarely miss their children's nuptials, the weekends, when they are off work, are most popular for the weddings. If for some reason the parents can't make it, the young couple arrives with notarized statements of consent. During six years as a J.P., Frei has never received a complaint from a parent unaware of his son's or daughter's actions.

"In many cases they call first for an appointment for their children. They have no great choices: The cost and moral conflicts of an abortion or expenses of a court order, or the free wedding here," he said.

So the 14-to-16-year-old brides keep arriving, but, as Frei pointed out, "not in a great rush, mind you."

Special Service Sunday Evening

Mrs. Shirley Jones, Australian evangelist, will be the Sunday morning speaker at Faith Pentecostal Holiness Church at 11 o'clock.

A special service will be held Sunday evening at 7:30 honoring Miss Doreen Hardee, Miss Betsy O'Neal, Lindsey Burroughs and Richard Edwards, 1974 high school graduates.

The church is located on 14th Street Extension. The public is invited to attend.

Honored For Church Work

Miss Betty Barr, for her work on the St. Monica Missionary Baptist Church Building Fund, has been named Miss St. Monica for 1974.

Miss Barr graduated from Pitt County Training School, and has been employed by the ASCS Department of Agriculture in Greenville for eight years. She is an active member of the church usher board and secretary to the New Bern Eastern Missionary Baptist Church Association.

President At Camp David

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is spending some time at his Camp David, Md., retreat.

The President flew to Camp David on Thursday night after a dinner cruise aboard the Navy yacht Sequoia. Mrs. Nixon and Tricia Cox, the Nixons' daughter, accompanied him on the cruise. But they did not accompany him on his trip to the camp.

Confirm New Sec. Of Navy

WASHINGTON (AP) — J. William Middendorf II has been confirmed by the Senate to be secretary of the Navy. Middendorf's confirmation Thursday promotes him from Navy undersecretary, a post he's had since last year. A former New York banker, Middendorf also served as ambassador to the Netherlands.

TOTATO?—Mrs. Millie Drake of Rt. 2 Greenville said she thought she was going crazy Sunday when she inspected her garden and found what looked like small tomatoes growing on several of her potato plants. Actually the small berries, similar to tomatoes, are fruits of the potato plant, according to a botanist at East Carolina University. Dr. Vincent Bellis. Dr. Bellis said it is not common for potato plants to produce berries from their blooms but that it does happen. He noted the berries are probably slightly poisonous unless boiled. Bellis said that potatoes and tomatoes are in the same plant family. (Reflector photo by Carl L. Tyer)

Draft Evasion Amnesty Favored

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church favors amnesty for those who fled the United States to avoid military service in Vietnam for religious reasons.

The 1,100 delegates from 54 Eastern and Piedmont counties voted Wednesday to support amnesty. They also advocated that local churches in the conference work to improve the living conditions of migrants who work in eastern North Carolina.

Both issues drew heated debate. The amnesty resolution originally had advocated that all draft resisters be allowed to return without penalty, no matter what their motivation for leaving.

Evidence Suggests No Moon Race By Russians

Local Construction Reported

DESPITE THE DECLINE... of 12.8 per cent in building permits recently announced for the overall North Carolina construction trade, the construction business in Greenville seems to be maintaining a fairly healthy pace. Here, building constructor Johnnie Hedgepeth, second from left, explains to three young workers the Building permits totaling $1,157,800 were issued in Greenville during April, according to State Labor Commissioner Billy Creel.

Creel said that permit totals for the first four months of 1974 in Greenville amounted to $2,932,522.

Other eastern totals for April included: Goldsboro, $1,030,000; Jacksonville, $346,361; Kinston, $921,831; New Bern, $22,100; Rocky Mount, $762,000; and Wilson, $699,814.

Totals for the first four months included: Goldsboro, $4,359,250;

Jacksonville, $1,225,687; Kinston, $1,940,979; New Bern, $435,450; Rocky Mount, $6,908,458; and Wilson, $6,309,495.

The commissioner reported that permits totaling some

New Tax Title For Housewife

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Louisiana State University's Cooperative Extension Service says wives who work are faced with a title problem on their income tax returns.

The service recommends women use the term "home manager" rather than "housewife" to describe their jobs, since wives usually fill the roles of: family secretary-treasurer, purchasing agent, food processor, chef, hostess, interior decorator, maintenance supervisor and gardener.

Wives also act as seamstress, laundress, chauffeur, nurse, teacher, counselor, mediator, coordinator and community worker.

$66,155,178 were issued during April in 38 North Carolina cities of more than 10,000 population. He said the building figure was down 1.8 per cent from April of 1973.

Creel said that the 38 cities reported $214,111,038 during the first four months of 1974, a 12.8 per cent decline from the four month period of 1973.

A Surprise For Tapes-Stealer

DALLAS (AP) — The thief who stole a tape recorder and several tapes from the car of Francis Andrews of Tomball is in for a surprise — the only sounds recorded on the tapes are heart sounds.

Andrews, 42, who lists his occupation as "heart sounds" work, told police he was in Dallas working at the Veterans Administration Hospital when someone broke into his car and stole the tapes. Also lifted was a "digital heart sound scope" he invented and values at $25,000.

Andrews told police the scope is one of only two in existence. He said he was installing the other one at the hospital. The scope is a machine used in heart research.

Stationery Now Badge Of Office

NEW YORK (AP) — The quality of the stationery organizations allocate their executives may become a badge of office, the Cotton Fiber Paper Council says. The Commonwealth of Virginia, for example, now designates who among state office holders are entitled to 100 per cent cotton fiber content paper and envelopes, who get 50 per cent cotton paper, who 25 per cent, and on along the line. The higher the rank, the better the paper.

The council predicts that with this trend stationery will join corner offices, private washrooms and company jets as symbols of executive suite status.

WASHINGTON (AP) — During the 1960s, the United States conducted a crash program to beat the Russians in putting a man on the moon. Now, American space officials have evidence that the Soviets never were in the race and that they trail this nation by several years in manned space technology.

Their manned spaceship, the Soyuz, has less capability than the U.S. Gemini craft of a decade ago. It is almost totally controlled from the ground and could not make a lunar trip.

New Parking Pattern Set

The parking pattern on streets from Holly to Elm, between Fourth and Fifth Streets has been changed, in accordance with a policy established several years ago, Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon noted today.

According to Cannon, the new parking regulations on the cross streets between Fourth and Fifth, in front of East Carolina University provide for parking on the east side of the streets and no parking on the west.

Signs have been erected to indicate the proper parking pattern, he indicated.

Cannon explained that parking is rotated from one side of those streets to the other on an annual basis out of consideration for property owners living on those streets.

The chief emphasized that illegally parked vehicles on those streets are subject to being towed away, and urged drivers to observe the new parking pattern.

Cosmonauts play much more passive roles than American astronauts. They mainly go along for the ride. Pinpoint landings, common in the U.S. program, are unheard of in Russia, the philosophy being "just so they land somewhere in the Soviet Union."

Soviet rockets are far less powerful than America's. These facts have come to light during discussions between American and Russian experts planning a joint manned flight next year.

In their desire to promote this cooperative venture, the Soviets have revealed many of their long-guarded space secrets. Disclosure was necessary by both sides to assure there would be no hidden danger when the Soyuz and an American Apollo ship hook up in orbit.

U.S. officials don't downgrade the Soyuz; they say it is fine for its purpose: Relatively brief orbital flights up to a week and for ferrying cosmonauts to a space station.

But they were surprised at the lack of sophistication.

"Through the early and mid-part of the 1960s we were sure the Soviets were in the moon race," one official said. "By 1967 or 1968 we had enough information that told us they didn't have the technical capability to make a lunar journey for several years."

Prof Requests Asylum In U.S.

TOKYO, Japan (AP) — A Soviet professor who had been teaching Russian at Osaka University has requested asylum in the United States, the U.S. Embassy said today.

An embassy spokesman said the request by Boris P. Redkin, 36, a graduate of Leningrad University, was "under consideration in Washington."

Japanese sources said he came to Japan in 1972 under the Japan-Soviet cultural exchange program.

Three astronauts and two cosmonauts are to make the joint flight, set to start July 15, 1975.

Because the Apollo craft is more sophisticated and reliable:

—Russia will count down two rockets and spaceships on adjoining pads and will launch the second if something should go wrong with the first. The second countdown will trail the first by three days. Two separate Soviet prime crews are being trained.

—Once in orbit, the Soyuz will be mainly passive. The Apollo will be launched from Cape Canaveral, Fla., seven hours later and will conduct all maneuvers over a 24-hour period to catch and move in for a linkup with the Soyuz. An American tracking transponder like that carried on the Apollo program's lunar lander will be placed aboard the Soyuz to help guide the Apollo.

Astronaut Eugene Cernan, who commanded the Apollo 17 moon landing and now is a member of the management team planning the U.S.-Russian flight, said the Russian spacecraft basically is designed around a philosophy that it doesn't need a man to fly.

The American spaceships are designed to work only with a human being in the loop, Cernan said.

He said the Russian space program had no major over-all goal like landing on the moon, other than those of being first. "Get the first iron ball in orbit. Get the first man there. Get the first woman. Get the first two people up there at the same time; the first multiman spacecraft. So, politically, they gained some significant firsts."

These space spectaculars prompted President John F. Kennedy in 1961 to set a goal of landing men on the moon before the decade ended.

During the Soyuz 11 flight in 1971, the three cosmonauts died during re-entry when their spaceship suddenly decompressed because of a faulty valve design and they became exposed to the vacuum of space.

The Americans are satisfied that proper modifications have been made so there are no dangers in this area for next year's flight.

Will the Soviets gain any of America's technological secrets?

"Except for the common docking system, which is a joint design, the two nations will use their own equipment," said Chester M. Lee, director of the Apollo-Soyuz program for NASA. "We see their equipment and we really don't get into the guts of it, and they don't get into the guts of ours. The whole program was structured basically so that it wasn't necessary to exchange a lot of technology."

Of the one piece of U.S. equipment will be aboard the Soyuz, a tracking transponder, Lee said, "... I think that's technology that is not the type we're worried about. It's recognized and it's understood."
