Rodino Subpoena Is Once Again Declined

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon refused again today to honor any more House impeachment inquiry subpoenas, writing to House Judiciary Committee chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr. that he will do nothing which would "render the executive branch henceforth and forevermore subservient to the legislative branch."

Nixon's six-page letter to Rodino was in response to the Judiciary Committee's subpoena for tapes of 45 conversations related to the Watergate scandal. The letter was released by the White House.

The committee voted 37 to 1 on May 29 to subpoena the tapes, even though Nixon had already refused to comply with an earlier subpoena from the committee and had said he would reject any further subpoenas for material related to Watergate.

Nixon declared again today that "the voluminous body of materials that the committee already has... does give the full story of Watergate insofar as it relates to presidential knowledge and presidential decisions."

Nixon said that "if the institution of an impeachment inquiry against the President were permitted to override all restraints of separation of powers, this would spell the end of the doctrine of separation of power; it would be an open invitation to future Congresses to use an impeachment inquiry, however frivolously as a device to assert their own supremacy over the executive, and to reduce executive confidentiality to a nullity."

U. S. District Judge John J. Sirica was to begin hearing pretrial motions today for seven men accused in the Watergate cover-up case, including motions for a change of venue. One defendant is former White House aide Charles W. Colson, who pleaded guilty last week to obstruction of justice in the burglary of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office.

And the Supreme Court could decide today whether to release a grand jury report that names Nixon an undicted co-conspirator in connection with the cover-up.

In still another federal courtroom, U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell was expected to decide this week, possibly today, what to do about Nixon's refusal to allow John D. Ehrlichman and his lawyers total access to certain White House files in the plumbers case.

The Judiciary Committee subpoena is its fourth sent to Nixon. It got edited transcripts instead of tapes in response to the first one, and nothing for the next two, which called for more tapes and some White House logs.

The committee has sent Nixon a letter saying his refusal to comply with its subpoenas was a grave matter that might be grounds in itself for impeachment.

Nixon was scheduled to leave for a visit to the Middle East a few hours before the subpoena was due. His lawyer, James D. St. Clair, said he would be in daily communication with the President during his absence.

The committee may issue another subpoena at its next business meeting, possibly Thursday, for taped conversations relating to the settlement of an International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. antitrust suit, and to a 1971 increase in milk price supports. The committee asked for 66 tapes but got only one partial transcript.

The committee also is ready to subpoena an Internal Revenue Service audit of Nixon's income taxes and supporting data that St. Clair said more than a week ago he would provide but hasn't.

Presentation of evidence gathered by the impeachment inquiry staff continues Tuesday with examination of the Ellsberg break-in by the special White House investigating unit known as the plumbers.

The committee's evidentiary hearings are expected to conclude June 19 or 20. Still to be presented is evidence bearing on use of federal agencies for partisan political purposes, Nixon's personal finances and the firing of special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Heavy Loss In Lives Due Tornadoes And Flooding

By The Associated Press
Officials estimate that week-end tornadoes and floods that caused 19 deaths and left hundreds injured in three states caused damage of about $55 million. Oklahoma and Kansas officials are seeking a presidential declaration of disaster for areas hit by tornadoes in their states.

Oklahoma Gov. David Hall tentatively estimated damage at $26 million. Damages in Kansas were estimated by officials to exceed $20 million.

Sen. Dewey F. Bartlett, R-Okla., said the White House staff told him President Nixon would try to have the paperwork completed today for federal assistance.

In Arkansas, weekend flooding was responsible for four deaths and an estimated $9 million in damages, authorities said.

Late Sunday night a tornado hit a dormitory at Ferris State College in Big Rapids, Mich., causing some damage and one minor injury.

The twister, one of several which passed through the north central part of the Lower Peninsula, also blew away about 70 per cent of the roof at Riverview Elementary School.

The National Weather Service said the tornadoes that struck Saturday were part of a storm system almost as powerful as the one that struck the Midwest on April 3 and killed some 300 persons.

Thirteen persons were killed in Oklahoma and six in Kansas on Saturday, officials reported. Here's a state-by-state listing of weekend tornado and flood damage:

ARKANSAS — flooding claimed four lives and caused an estimated $9 million damage to buildings and roads, authorities said. Many roads and bridges in Union County were still impassable Sunday night and a number of motorists were stranded, officials said.

KANSAS — Five of the six victims of Saturday's tornado in Emporia were killed at the Lincoln Village trailer court. Damages are expected to exceed $20 million, officials said. Destroyed were 150 homes and apartments, a shopping center and more than 150 mobile homes. Nearly 200 persons were treated by the town's two hospitals, and 35 were hospitalized.

MICHIGAN — A tornado hit a dormitory at Ferris State College late Sunday night and also blew away about 70 per cent of the roof at the Riverview Elementary School, police said.

Most of the damage to the dorm consisted of broken windows, according to reports. One woman had minor injuries from flying glass.

OKLAHOMA — Thirteen persons were killed, five of them in Drumwright. Gov. David Hall estimated damage at $26 million. Officials reported about 250 persons were injured in 13 towns and cities. Nearly one-quarter of Tulsa's 330,000 residents were without electricity Sunday night, and Public Service Co. crews had to rebuild some high-voltage distribution systems.

WANTS CITY WATER

We live within the Greenville Utilities boundary line but cannot get city water connected to our home. We live 2,100 feet from the line, and the city has told us that they can extend service 3,000 feet. We called Greenville Utilities about this and they came out and checked but said they wouldn't put in water lines yet because there weren't enough houses in the area to warrant the construction. Mrs. H. S.

Greenville Utilities Director Charles Horne told Hotline that water could be extended to your area if the residents would pay for the work. Then you and your neighbors could be reimbursed after the city limits were extended past your homes. This construction would cost around $10,000. Long range plans do call for water service to be extended to your area but when that will be accomplished could not be predicted by the Utilities director. Horne said the city has made an agreement with the county concerning the establishments of boundary lines for servicing customers between city and private rural water systems. Although Bell Arthur serves homes quite near you, you unfortunately live outside their lines and not in a populated enough area to have Greenville Utilities service now.

JOB LISTINGS

Do all employers in Greenville list their job openings with the Employment Security Commission? I have been looking for a good secretarial position for several months now. The Employment Security Commission has some but not good ones of a general nature. If employers would list all their openings with the Commission it would be easier for people to find out about jobs. M.M.

No, not all job openings are listed with the Employment Security Commission. Jim Hannon, director of the Greenville office told Hotline that they do a great deal of open position seeking from employers. Representatives of the Employment Security Commission contact 20 major market and 40 minor market business concerns each month, according to Hannon, seeking job openings. A major market business is one which employs 30 or more persons, according to the Commission's definition.

SUGGESTION HEADED

Could a flashing caution-stop light be installed at the intersection of Third and Jarvis Streets? I live near this busy corner and see a lot of accidents and a lot of "near misses" there. The angles are bad and visibility is limited and drivers seem to wonder who has the right of way, even though there are stop signs on Jarvis. K.C.

City Manager Bill Carstarphen said he thinks your suggestion is a good one and that he will present it at the next meeting of the Traffic Commission. He confirmed that this is a much-used intersection with an inordinately high accident rate.

Governor Appoints Morgan Successor: Judge Jas. Carson

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Jim Holshouser today appointed State Court of Appeals Judge James H. Carson Jr. as state attorney general pending Robert Morgan's resignation.

In a news conference this morning at the state Capitol, Holshouser said he intends to appoint Carson as soon as the attorney general's post is vacant.

Present Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan, a Democrat, is expected to resign in September to devote time to his campaign for U.S. senator.

Carson, in a formal statement, said he will resign his position on the Court of Appeals within the next few weeks.

"Today," he said, "I have formally requested that Chief Judge Walter Brock assign me no new cases." Carson said he plans to step down when he finishes his present caseload.

A Charlotte lawyer, Carson served in the N.C. General Assembly in 1967 and 1969.

Holshouser said he had written all members of the State Republican Executive Committee advising them of his selection.

Carson will serve as attorney general until the November election. At that time, an attorney general will be elected to the position for the rest of the present term.

The GOP State Executive Committee will choose the party's nominee for the general election.

Holshouser urged Morgan to resign no later than 90 days before the November election. State ballots must be printed by 60 days before the election, the attorney said, and asked the governor general to avoid confusion and additional state expense in printing ballots.

Nixon Trip Begun

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon flew off today on the first leg of a journey that will take him to five Middle East nations during the next week.

Nixon left the United States with the twin goals of strengthening the new U.S. role in the Middle East and convincing the American people that world peace requires his continuation in office.

After spending some time in Austria to adjust to the time zone changes, Nixon arrives in Egypt Wednesday for the first stop in what is expected to be a warmly welcomed tour of five Middle East nations.

Diplomats in the Middle East and Washington and many American officials see the trip as official confirmation that the United States is a friend of the Arabs—particularly true for Egypt and Syria, two nations that had been entirely dependent on the Soviet Union for military and political support.

Nixon's visits therefore are expected to give a further push to Moscow's declining influence in the Middle East.

While White House and State Department officials deny publicly any connection between the trip and Nixon's Watergate troubles, the President drew one Sunday between his continuation in office and the progress of his foreign policy.

Three Girls Die When Fire Swept Cary Home

CARY, N.C. (AP) — Three young girls—apparently overcome by smoke and heat before they could jump from a second-story window—died early Sunday when fire swept their family's home in Cary, a suburban town just west of Raleigh.

The parents and another daughter, who had jumped from upstairs windows moments earlier, escaped the blaze.

Cary fire chief Terry Edmondson identified the victims as Susan Hagwood, 6, Shirley Hathaway, 15, and Elizabeth Hathaway, 16. They were daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd W. Hagwood.

The three victims were found by firemen in the master bedroom. The parents jumped first, Edmondson said, but the girls "undoubtedly were overcome by the smoke and heat before they could jump."

Another daughter, 15-year-old Sheila Hathaway, twin sister of Shirley, jumped from a second-story window in another bedroom of the home, Edmondson said.

A fireman tried to enter the house and rescue the three girls, but was blown back by a draft of hot air as he tried to climb the stairs, Edmondson said.

The deaths were attributed to smoke inhalation. The cause of the blaze, reported about 3:45 a.m., was under investigation.

According to Edmondson, Elizabeth awoke, discovered the fire and woke up her parents. Hagwood then woke up the other three daughters. Mrs. Hagwood said she tried to call the fire department but the telephone was dead.

After firemen brought the blaze under control, they entered the house and removed the girls. The girls were declared dead at the scene by the coroner, Edmondson said.

Sheila Hathaway was slightly injured when she jumped from the window. She was treated at a hospital and released, the fire chief said. Mrs. Hagwood suffered a sprained ankle in her jump. One fireman was slightly injured but not hospitalized.

Crime-Fight Up To Community, Family: Dunn

By SUSAN PRICE
Associated Press Writer

Statistics due to be published this summer by North Carolina's Police Information Network, an arm of the state Department of Justice, show crime rose about 5.5 per cent last year.

Any slowdown in the rising crime rate must begin within the community and the family, says State Bureau of Investigation Director Charles Dunn.

"The answers are not going to come from Washington or Raleigh. The problems are in the community and that's where they must be solved.

"All this law and order jazz is very well and good, but it isn't worth a damn without community backing and concern," Dunn said.

According to a preliminary state uniform crime report, 21,833 violent crimes were committed in the state in 1973.

Divided into categories, that's 84,482 property crimes, 630 murders, 805 reported forcible rapes, 3,585 robberies, 16,804 aggravated assaults, and 42,306 burglaries.

"Put in simpler terms, that's two murders, two rapes, 46 assaults, 116 burglaries, 175 larcenies, and 23 motor vehicle thefts every single day," Dunn said.

Crime is up in most major cities across the state.

According to Raleigh police, violent crime there rose a full 16 per cent in April, 1974, over the same month last year.

In Charlotte, figures show crime up in fiscal year 1974 with 11,978 crimes in 1973 as compared to 15,477 this year.

Police say there were 55 murders in Charlotte this fiscal year over last year's 47, and 64 rapes as compared to 56 in 1973.

In Winston-Salem, police recorded two more rapes, 85 more robberies, and 430 more aggravated assaults in 1973 than in 1972.

In Greensboro, according to Federal Bureau of Investigation uniform crime reports for 1973, total crime in that city rose to 8,662, above the 8,023 reported in 1972.

Dunn has a host of ideas for curbing the crime rate, but most begin with community and family projects.

He cited more law enforcement manpower, more training and more innovation, along with quicker trials as needs in the criminal justice system. "Double standards exist. We need equality in trials regardless of who you are and who your lawyer is," he said.

Dunn said the capital, punishment issue has overshadowed the need for more modern facilities and more innovative approaches in the correctional system.

"But to make any progress, we must begin with the juvenile delinquent," he said. "We can go into the schools now and point out the kids who will become delinquents. But there's no one to help the child that's crime prone."

According to Dunn, about half of the children in juvenile detention centers have never committed a crime. Most are there for skipping school, he said.

"And what is there for young people to do? People don't do things as a family anymore. The closest thing to a family reunion in most families is sitting around the television. And the most meaningful conversations (Continued on page 8)

If pregnant, marry now—not in 4 months

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Bob [not his real name] and I have been engaged since last Christmas. The problem is I am pretty sure I am pregnant, and my wedding is four months away. I probably shouldn't wear a white gown and veil, but I already bought mine, and if I can get into it I'm going to wear it.

I haven't told anybody but Bob, but I may have to tell my mother because I feel lousy in the morning, and she wasn't born yesterday.

If I'm pregnant, would it be okay to go ahead with the church wedding like I planned? We would tell people afterwards that the baby was premature. Rush your answer to me.

SUE [NOT MY REAL NAME]

DEAR SUE: First, see a doctor. If you're pregnant, make the wedding simple and soon. And don't count on fooling anybody who can count to nine.

DEAR ABBY: You are, once again, absolutely wrong. You recently advised a reader to fall for one of the oldest tricks in the book—to pay for more gas than she asked for simply because the attendant "made a mistake" and put an extra dollar's worth in her tank.

True, occasionally an attendant does make a mistake, but he is in business, and if it's his mistake he should bear the loss.

Would you pay the telephone company for a long distance call you didn't make but was billed to your number?

By now you know I am a lawyer. I doubt if you will print this, but if you do, please correct my spelling. I am too busy trying to persuade my clients that the legal advice they got from their barber, mechanic, plumber, garbage-man, friend-who-had-a-similar-problem and columnist is not really the law, not always entirely correct, and is very seldom complete and/or accurate.

DEAR UPSET: C'mon. The principle involved in that "dollar's-worth-of-gas" letter must have eluded you. The customer said she'd go home to get another dollar and bring it back. She never returned. Then her child wrote to ask me what Mother should have done. I said: "Since she promised to return with the dollar, she should have!"

You're right. I wouldn't pay for a long distance call billed to me that I didn't make simply because that call is not a commodity I would eventually use. [Not so with the gas already in my tank.]

And if you write again, please include your name and address. I have more to say to you than I can fit into this column.

DEAR ABBY: About the wife who wrote that her husband was having an affair with a young teacher. [She was a minister's daughter he had met in church.] The wife asked you if she should tell the girl's father, and you told her not to.

Thanks for advising her not to tell Dad. I don't want her husband for keeps. I just want to borrow a little of what she doesn't want. [She says their marital relations are not enjoyable to her.]

I'll be leaving town soon. Maybe this experience will jolt that wife enough so she will at least try to love her husband. He certainly needs it.

It's positively stupid for any wife to leave her husband vulnerable to an affair when it's so easy to please a man.

Group Will Try To Halt Impeachment

By JANET STAIHAR

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 1,000 persons who claim President Nixon is being treated unfairly are going directly to Capitol Hill to try to stop the impeachment proceedings.

Members of the Committee for Fairness to the Presidency planned to meet with individual House and Senate members today to present their case in support of the President.

Their lobbying efforts were to follow a prayer breakfast.

At a luncheon meeting Sunday, Nixon told the group, "With your support I shall do nothing that will weaken this office."

"You came from the heart of America and you have touched our hearts."

Appearing with his wife and two daughters, Nixon reiterated that he would not leave office until January 1977. Then, Nixon said, it will be "with our heads held high."

Bandits Took Shipped Cash

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Five armed men drove into the courtyard of Milan's main post office in a stolen mail van early today, forced five employees to lie down on the floor and escaped with a bag full of foreign currency estimated to be worth several hundred thousand dollars.

Police said the bag contained cash being shipped by foreign banks to Italian banks. It was the second such raid on the post office in four months. A similar amount was taken the first time.

Light Enough" in 1955; at lower left as she appeared "There Shall Be No Night" on television in 1957, and at lower right with Basil Rathbone in costume for "Romeo and Juliet" in 1933. (AP Wirephoto)

Katherine Cornell, 81, Succumbs At Her Home

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass. (AP) — For decades, audiences applauded the dazzling performances of Katharine Cornell. "Romeo and Juliet" and "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" were among her triumphs.

The American National Theater and Academy recently cited her "incomparable acting ability and her theatrical genius" and said she had "elevated the theater throughout the world."

Miss Cornell became ill May 29 at her town house in New York City and was flown to Martha's Vineyard at her request. On Sunday, the actress who had brought so much excitement to the theater died of pneumonia at her home here. She was 81. Her body will be cremated in Boston on Tuesday and a memorial service will be held next week in Vineyard Haven's town hall.

Miss Cornell was born Feb. 16, 1893 in Germany. She was raised in Buffalo, N.Y., and made her first professional appearance there in 1918 as a member of a stock company.

She married Guthrie McClintic, who directed all of her plays but one. With her portrayal of Iris Marsh in Michael Arlen's "The Green Hat" in 1925, Miss Cornell became a star.

In 1931 when she formed her own production company. With "Katharine Cornell Presents" on theater signs, she staged "The Barretts of Wimpole Street"—a romantic success that she revived five times on stage and once in a rare television performance.

Triumphs followed in "Candida," "Romeo and Juliet" and "Saint Joan."

Miss Cornell initiated theater decentralization with a 20,853-mile repertory tour.

During World War II, Miss Cornell took "Barretts" to servicemen abroad and was awarded a 5th Army plaque for outstanding service.

After McClintic died in 1961, she retired from the stage.

In appraisal today of her career, AP Drama Critic William Glover wrote:

"Among her peers, a mighty galaxy, she was recognized as a remarkable quintessence of special talent, restless in comedy, but uniquely able to enthral in drama with a combination of vocal nuance and sinuous grace."

Critic Brooks Atkinson said in today's New York Times:

"Something electric happened when she stepped on a stage. She was born to be an actress ... If she had a great reputation it was not because she had manufactured it. It was because—in addition to that personal magnetism—she had the integrity and taste of a lady."

Setback For Drug Traffic

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Since last July 5, 23 persons have either been convicted or pleaded guilty in North Carolina federal courts on heroin distribution charges.

It was on that day that a crackdown began on drug traffickers, some of whose operations had been under investigation for years.

The crackdown was known as "Operation Eagle," and involved a number of agents from a variety of agencies, state and federal.

"Dope is set back a long way in this state," says Assistant U.S. Attorney Joseph W. Dean of Raleigh.

"How far it is set back we can't tell. There's no way to measure drug imports you don't know about."

Charles Dunn, director of the State Bureau of Investigation, said, "We were able to cripple the flow of heroin into and across North Carolina. We haven't stopped it, but the price is doubled and the quality is about a third as good."

The powerful grizzly bear has been timed running in bursts of up to 30 miles an hour.

Says Burley Production Falls Behind

FRENCH LICK, IND. (AP) — Tobacco production is not keeping pace with usage, President William D. Hobbs of the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., said here today.

Speaking to 28th annual convention of the Burley Auction Warehouse Association, Hobbs said use of burley during the last three growing seasons was more than 360 million pounds of burley above production.

"This is almost an entire crop," said Hobbs. "These figures are more than a little alarming to me and they should be to you, too."

"In the past manufacturers have been able to make up the difference between auction sales and usage from pool stocks."

He said the pool stocks have been "almost exhausted so we must rely on the farmer to meet our needs."

"The days ahead will be extremely important for every segment of the tobacco industry, be it farmer, warehouseman or manufacturer," Hobbs said. But he emphasized that he viewed the future with confidence.

Hobbs said a worldwide shortage of tobacco now means demand for tobacco on all markets has intensified.

He said Reynolds is in the process of installing new cigarette making equipment which almost doubles capacity by enabling employes to make over 4,000 cigarettes a minute from each machine.

Hobbs said the tobacco industry last year experienced a sales growth of about four per cent, greatest in recent years. He predicted per capita consumption would continue to grow. He said smokers have shown "they are not about to be stampeded to give up their smoking pleasure by claims of anti-smoking groups."

The association includes about 90 per cent of the sales centers in the eight-state burley marketing belt.

A Review Road Band Has Kept The Faith

Night club "road bands" have a tendency to become watering hole referees after a while, calling the shots for those that come to listen in the pleasant confusion of a Rock and Roll bar. In time the group can lose not only its identity but a large part of its professional pride, causing them to be little more than living juke boxes. Last Thursday night at the Attic, I heard a group that after four years of road work has remained original enough and talented enough to probably break away and make it big. They call themselves "Warm." And that's what they are. When I met them, during the first break, I had yet to hear the music. But as they talked, sweaty and hoarse from a little too much work, the simple honesty and professionalism came through these Alabama boys like a prelude for the next set.

They told of the times as a warm-up band for Black Oak, and the tours through the north, Chicago, Detroit, and Beggar's Banquet in Louisville, Kentucky, (favorite of U. of L. students). They also talked of their humble beginnings. The lead guitarist learned as a boy from his dad in Birmingham, and they started playing together six years ago in that smoky, southern steel town. But then they got a signal and quickly had to go back to the tiny stage to make music.

For those of you not caught up in the beautiful sickness of Rock and Roll it's not a simple thing to explain. This "madness" is basic and raucous but above all it's happy. Occasionally, after being grounded in big business for so long, some group's playing turns to show. Then the excitement is all fake and the craziness leave the Rock and Roll. But, like their name, "Warm" maintains a pure performance. There's a lot of good solid power here. If I'm ever around when they're playing somewhere, I'll go again. These guys are really good.

Deplore Phone Vandals

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Union leaders feel their members aren't responsible for vandalism to equipment of the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. of Tarboro.

"We feel like our members aren't responsible," said Howard Finch, president of the Communications Workers of America local 3681.

Speaking at a weekend news conference, Finch said the vandalism, including "all these cut cables around here," is damaging the union's bargaining position.

He warned union members not to engage in vandalism, and said if they did they would be subject to trial under the union contract.

Some telephone subscribers have been without service for varying periods of time when phone lines were cut.

The strike over a new contract began more than a week ago, and estimates from both sides say around 3,000 union workers are taking part in the walkout.

More negotiations are scheduled Tuesday at Rocky Mount.

Let The Ocean Stand Between

Somebody, sooner or later, is going to suggest "Let's send Henry Kissinger to Northern Ireland to settle that feudin' and fightin' that's going on over there."

And that would be a pity. Secretary Kissinger's miracle-working negotiations have done great things for the United States and for the countries of the Middle East. He has earned (the hard way) every plaudit that has come his way. But dealing with the Irish problem is too much to ask of him.

To begin with, it is not even remotely our problem. It would be an unwelcome intrusion; and every other country in the world that had an internal feud underway would look over their shoulder to see if Uncle Sam's long nose was poking into their affair. Every government, no matter how enfeebled, feels obligated to cope with its internal problems; and every people has its pride . . . and stubbornness. Ulstermen are traditionally accorded having an extraordinary quantity of both.

No. We do not want Sec. Kissinger in Londonderry. There is a limit to his miracles and his luck. The whole Kissinger mystique could come tumbling down on such an assignment. Right now, all his talents must go to keeping his past successes alive and well.

It's just as well an ocean separates him from Ulster; and we want to keep it that way.

Unbelievably, D-Day Thirty Short Years Ago

Another anniversary of D-Day, that historic assault on the beaches of Normandy, has come and gone. It took place thirty years ago; and that comes as something of a surprise, too.

Thirty years? It can't be that long. There are many thousands of Pitt Countians who remember the event as a time of high excitement and pride and fear and dread. Eyes and ears were attuned to all the scraps of news flowing from a far-off war front.

It is sobering to reflect today there are more Pitt Countians who have no memory of that momentous event than remember it. We who do remember are outnumbered.

History must be marching at a double-time pace; and this we begrudge.

Nixon Risking A 'Minefield'

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Behind all the public plaudits now embroiling President Nixon's trip to the Middle East, his peremptory decision to go with such unseemly speed has alarmed some of his most intimate advisers.

Instead, Mr. Nixon's insistence on going before the ink has even dried on Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's delicate agreement disengaging Syrian and Israeli forces is the first conclusive sign of the President's willingness to risk Kissinger's miracles of mediation abroad in the interest of impeachment politics at home.

The issue is not Mr. Nixon's natural instinct to cash in on Kissinger's triumph. No President would do less, and no Secretary of State would expect him to do less. The problems of a quickie presidential tour before the dust has begun to settle on the radical reformation of Arab-Israeli relations are far more fundamental.

No matter how it is glossed, the Nixon visit looks like rubbing the nose of the Russian bear in the ashes of their immense political defeat in the Arab world.

Once the Nixon-Kissinger team cut the Gordian knot of two decades of pro-Israel U. S. policy, it was predictable that Moscow could never compete on equal terms with Washington in the Arab world. But the Russians have desperately tried to reduce their losses, even to the point of sending Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko on humiliating but face-saving visit to Damascus at the critical moment of Kissinger's triumph. When he arrived, his dinner with President Hafez Assad was cancelled and his plane was towed to a distant point on the airfield at Kissinger's request so no photograph could be taken of the two super-power aircraft side by side on the tarmac.

But cutting losses and keeping a hand in play is still the Soviet game. Accordingly, Moscow has now sent to Syria a handful of operational, Soviet-piloted MIG-23 fighter-bombers, the first time ever that this No. 1 Soviet aircraft has been allowed out of the Soviet bloc. Almost nothing Assad has asked in the way of military equipment has been denied him. Moreover, Assad's own desire to compromise with Israel on the new buffer zone was resisted every step of the way by pro-Soviet elements in his Baathist government.

That new buffer zone may or may not be stabilized, but the sudden appearance of the American President at this point could look provocative, particularly if he brings nothing new with him.

But what is there new to bring? U. S.-Syrian diplomatic relations would have been restored without any presidential visit. The new $100 million American aid package has been on the books for several months. The really tough issue—what to do about the Palestinians and a new Palestinian state—bristles with insoluble problems, and a single verbal stumble by the President on his trip could set off a political explosion.

"It is a minefield," one top-rank diplomat here told us, "to be entered only after most careful preparation."

Thoughtful U. S. politicians agree. Democratic Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, a foreign policy hard-liner, praised Kissinger's mediation but told us that Mr. Nixon's quickie trip was "a rush job fraught with great risks."

A second hazard in the President's trip next week is yet another long Kissinger absence from the State Department. With the Moscow summit less than three weeks off, Kissinger has yet to make final recommendations on major summit questions: strategic arms control, trade and credit, troop levels in Central Europe.

The best that can be said for the conspicuous haste of the Nixon trip is that he is moving fast to make an extra capitalization of Kissinger's shrewd investments. The Middle East, however, is not yet ripe for presidential vainglory.

Hence, the real reason—that Mr. Nixon foresees lurid television coverage of frenzied Arab millions cheering him night after night as he cannot be cheered back home—carries disturbing overtones. It hints not that the President would ever knowingly risk U. S. interests to advance his own, but that his corrosive impeachment struggle is impinging on his judgment, a judgment that, in foreign policy, has always been calculated and hard-headed.

Strength For Today

RESPONDING TO CHANGE

The English essayist, Thomas Carlyle, was once aroused by the reactionary attitude of some of his dinner guests. They declared that this was the best of all possible worlds and that none but radicals and demagogues wanted to see it in any way changed. Leaning over to his guests, Carlyle reminded them that the French aristocracy of the old regime also thought that theirs was the best of all possible worlds and contemptuously derided a book prophesying change called "The Social Contract" written by a young unknown named Rousseau. "But," said Carlyle, "their skins went to bind the, second edition of this work."

We simply cannot ignore the change that is taking place constantly around us, but must respond to it in some way. Not all of it is good; nor is all of it bad. Therefore we should not take a doctrinaire pro or con attitude but should analyze each individual change in the light of its moral and social consequences.

A Great Year For W.I.

WASHINGTON—Watergate Industries held its annual stockholders meeting at the federal courthouse in Washington last week, and Sherlock Springbinder, the chairman of the board, reported a windfall profit of $2 billion. Watergate Industries is a conglomerate that deals in all aspects of the Watergate affair from providing legal talent to selling memoirs of Watergate personalities.

Mr. Springbinder told the happy stockholders, "The way things are going, Watergate should be one of the best growth stocks of 1974. The legal profession alone has earned $30 million, and very few of the trials have begun. By the time all the indictments are handed down we expect to have 30,000 lawyers working full time on advances alone will come to 120 million. If President Nixon decides to write his book of what really happened, I could see another $10 million in added revenue."

There was more applause.

"Our book division is also showing a great profit. We estimate that everyone involved in Watergate from John Dean to the mail room boy at the Committee for the Re-Election of the President will have a nonfiction or fiction book out by next Christmas. If you include newspapermen, defendants, prosecutors, former White House personnel, former attorneys general, milk producers, ex-CIA men, secretaries and grand jury foremen, we believe there will be 670,000 different books published this year, and the advances alone will come to 120 million. If President Nixon decides to write his book of what really happened, I could see another $10 million in added revenue."

There was more applause.

ART BUCHWALD

"The movie rights for Watergate are going very briskly. Robert Reford is working on 'All the President's Men,' and several other movie producers are readying projects, including 'Gidget Goes to the Watergate,' 'Last Tango at the White House,' 'The Tapes of Wrath,' 'Lassie at the Supreme Court,' 'The Life of Bebe Rebozo' and 'Confessions of a Jesuit Priest.'

"Watergate Industries has bought four movie studios, and we now have a record division where we intend to produce the hit exploitives from the transcripts."

Springbinder continued: "We also plan to go into TV in a big way if the impeachment trial takes place. We will produce Monday Night at the Senate with Howard Cosell and Frank Gifford, to Tell the Truth with Richard Nixon, I've Got a Secret starring Gordon Liddy and the Six Million Dollar Man with Maurice Stans.

"Watergate Industries is happy to announce it is going into the employment agency business, since it is estimated that there will be 345,890 White House aides looking for jobs in the next 12 months.

"Our congressional subpoena printing plant is now working 24 hours a day, and we just received a multimillion-dollar contract from the House Judiciary Committee which should keep us busy for two more years."

Springbinder got a standing ovation.

Other Editors Say Anti-Poverty Failure

(Winston-Salem Journal)

Certainly it is desirable to establish programs which will enable poor people to break out of the cycle of poverty in which they are enmeshed. But the programs of the late President Johnson's "War on Poverty"—although admirable in goal—have turned out to be lamentably long on failure.

To be sure, some of the Johnson-era anti-poverty programs have been helpful, but some have done little more than provide sinecures for lucky bureaucrats. Some have suffered from incompetent, and at times scandalous, administration. Some have been plagued by a lack of real concern for the poor and the predictable results of attempting too much with too little preparation and control.

Accordingly, disgust with the operation of some anti-poverty programs has produced a willingness on the part of a number of national leaders, including President Nixon, to reduce the War on Poverty to the level of a skirmish. For example, the House of Representatives last week acted to eliminate the Office of Economic Opportunity, while continuing community action programs under the auspices of a different agency.

Such moves tend to cut too deeply, when study and reform—not simplistic axe-wielding—should be the guides in approaching anti-poverty programs. The nation urgently needs to determine what will actually enable poor people to break out of the poverty cycle. Certainly job training and work opportunities must be fully developed. And in the long run, family planning and improved education obviously are vital.

But the practical problem of reform is not only to isolate such goals, but to devise effective means to reach those goals. Simply wiping out the Johnson-era failures is too easy: The reasons behind those failures must be found, and the wisdom thus gained must be applied to developing programs that will do the job that the War on Poverty, rightly but unsuccessfully, tried to do.

Big-Time White-Collar Crime

By DEAN LOKKEN

Associated Press Writer SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Mention "white-collar crime" and you're apt to evoke images of mild-mannered bank clerks skimming a few hundred dollars or office workers swiping company supplies.

But state and federal officials have uncovered in Utah what they say is white-collar crime running into millions of dollars, and they're filing charges in an attempt to halt it.

At a time when 14 individuals and three companies were indicted, federal officials said the crackdown was just beginning.

"When all criminal cases are finally completed, the Internal Revenue Service expects to have presented cases to the Department of Justice and the U.S. attorneys' offices for prosecution in excess of 60 individuals on various federal tax violations," said C. Evan Wride, acting district director of the IRS in Utah.

The IRS attack on white-collar crime in Utah is being made by a special team of investigators operating under the title of "Project Shell." The name is derived from so-called shell corporations—publicly held, dormant companies with no assets or liabilities.

Of 63,000 corporations listed by the secretary of state, roughly half are shells, an assistant secretary of state says. Promoters buy control of the dormant companies, sell their stock and make off with the money. Wride says one group acquired a company whose stock was worthless in late 1968, pumped questionable assets into it and managed to sell the stock for $13 a share.

W. Jerry Ungricht, assistant Utah attorney general, was hired nearly three years ago to investigate securities problems.

He says the state attorney general's investigation into securities frauds "mushroomed to the point where we felt we needed federal assistance." The federal Law Enforcement Planning Agency this month approved nearly $100,000 for an "Economic Crime Unit" to help the state.

Ungricht admits the state has been lax until recent years in policing securities transactions. He said the Uniform Securities Act,

Insure Nixon's Safety

By GAYLORD SHAW Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP)—As President Nixon jets across the Atlantic today, U.S. Secret Service agents and host country security men are being deployed in unprecedented numbers throughout the Middle East.

According to several sources, never have so many men—upwards of 10,000—been assigned to protect a President.

Publicly, officials in Washington and the Middle East disclaim excessive concern for Nixon's safety.

"Security does not worry us," said Syria's protocol director, Khalil Saadawi.

"Security as always will be dealt with," said White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler.

But privately, some security officials express deep concern about the President's safety in a region scarred by violence and terrorist attacks for a quarter-century. The extensive security preparations underscore their concern.

The Secret Service has called agents from field offices across the country to beef up the agency's White House detail, a spokesman said. He would not discuss numbers, but it is believed that more than 100 agents—perhaps as many as 250—are involved in guarding the President during his trip.

But the size of the U.S. security team is dwarfed by host country forces. In Syria, for example, about 2,000 plainclothesmen were deployed for security during Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's repeated trips to Damascus in troop disengagement negotiations.

Syrian officials acknowledge that this force will be more than doubled for President Nixon, by 3,000 crack paratroopers.

Jordan's King Hussein has been the target of past assassination attempts, and there will be "tightening everywhere" for Nixon's visit, according to one unofficial source.

The head of the White House Secret Service detail, Dick Kaiser, has been in the Middle East for a week, conferring with the host countries in arranging security.

The time frame for security planning is much shorter than on previous presidential trips overseas. Usually, advance teams are sent out two to three weeks ahead. On this trip, they went one week ahead.

Nixon's bulletproof limousines are being flown to the Middle East. Helicopters from the presidential fleet also are heading there aboard giant cargo planes.

Agents talk privately of the risks involved in Nixon or Kissinger mingling in crowds.

They also worry about security in the moments immediately after the presidential jetliner takes off, since some terrorist groups are said to possess small, heat-seeking missiles capable of bringing down a low-flying aircraft.

Agents are being assigned around-the-clock to guard presidential aircraft and the luggage of the President's party.

Special precautions also are being applied to newsmen traveling with the chief executive in a pair of chartered jetliners, and their luggage.

C&D Board Is Now A Memory

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—The flagship of the state's fleet of boards and commissions has passed from the scene. The C&D Board is no more.

Few bureaucratic agencies survive half a century, especially when engaged in the hot political battles which were the rule for the North Carolina Board of Conservation and Development.

Once the most powerful political body in the state—even more sought after as a political plum than a seat on the Highway Commission—the C&D Board attracted some of the top business and civic leaders in the state over the years.

C&D stood at the front in moving North Carolina from an agricultural economy to an industrial base, and under Gov. Luther Hodges reached its peak in influence and power.

That power derived mainly from the board's position of leadership in industrial growth, and decisions in locating new industries in specific areas of the state and determining future land uses—and benefits—in given communities.

Movie Ahead

Tar Heels can look back on 1975 as the year when C&D pushed the button that moved their state into a modern economy.

But one of the biggest shortcomings of the program—and one more particularly evident in the past few years—was the absence of environmental concerns in board decisions. Conservation was a part of the name, and little else. The thrust was toward development.

Since 1971 when the General Assembly endorsed the governmental reorganization plan, it has been a foregone conclusion that the old board would be eliminated or restructured.

A new board, which state officials believe will provide a broader program and wider citizen participation, takes the place of C&D. It is called the Board of Natural and Economic Resources, has 25 members, 10 of them at-large and 14 representatives from other councils and commissions within the Department of Natural and Economic Resources, and the secretary of the department serving as ex-officio chairman.

Secretary Jim Harrington says he thinks this will give broader input and has urged members of the outgoing C&D Board to accept membership on some other council.

No More

No More Service Chairman Harry C. Robbins, appointed to the post by Gov. James E. Holshouser, said he has decided to "get off all the boards I can so I can spend more of my time doing those things which I enjoy most."

Robbins, board chairman of Carolina-Caribbean Development Corp., and president of Tweetsie Railroad and Hounds Ear development, said he will not serve, if asked. "I have no political ambitions, and such service often is a springboard to such."

Robbins said the board has not been particularly active under his leadership because we knew of the reorganization, and knew that this was coming to an end." That produced frustration, he said, and another source of frustration has been the emphasis on development instead of conservation.

When appointed, Robbins said he was criticized for bringing developmental attitudes to the board.

Rather, he feels the state "has been somewhat remiss in not taking action sooner to protect our natural environment. . . it has only recently become aware of the danger of not moving with a planned program in this direction."

Robbins sees little difference between the new and old boards which he characterized as simply a means of "looking over the staff's shoulder to exercise some control so that the administration has to answer for what the staff does."

Over the years, C&D Board meetings have lasted up to three days and were a major event in Raleigh. The final meeting of the board sailed along with a short agenda, and leaders had a difficult time finding enough material to occupy a full day. The board adjourned early for lunch, and many members left town shortly after lunch.

Demos Hear More Unity Appeals

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Democrats heard renewed pleas for party unity at their annual Downeaster fund-raising event here this weekend.

"We North Carolina Democrats can no longer afford the luxury of internal bickering and needless disputes. We need to close the ranks and work together in harmony," Fountain said.

Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt also urged "a strong Democratic party effort" to support Democratic candidates in the November election.

While Fountain and Hunt decried voter disenchantment and apathy toward politics, attendance at the Downeaster itself was sparse. And it was colored by campaigning of at least 10 prospective candidates for state attorney general.

The candidates, hopeful of the party's nomination when U.S. Senate nominee Robert Morgan resigns as attorney general in mid-September, gathered in the lobby and hospitality suites of the Wilmington hotel where the Downeaster was held.

$284,000 Loan To Electric Corp. Approved

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Congressman Walter B. Jones announced today that the Rural Electrification Administration has approved a loan in the amount of $284,000 at five percent interest to the Edgcombe-Martin Electric Membership Corp. of Tarboro.

The corporation serves in Beaufort, Pitt, Martin, Edgcombe, Bertie, Halifax, Nash and Wilson counties.

Jones said that the purpose of the loan is to finance service for 500 additional consumers, 33 miles of distribution lines, and system improvements.

He said that the Edgcombe-Martin EMC will obtain supplemental financing from the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Finance Corporation.

Among the other candidates who have said they will seek the post are state Rep. C. Kitchin Josey of Scotland Neck, state Rep. H. M. Michaux of Durham, unsuccessful congressional candidate Hector McGeachy of Fayetteville, state Rep. McNeill Smith of Greensboro and several others.

Hyde, Josey, Edmisten, Winner and Mitchell met early Sunday morning with party chairman James R. Sugg to discuss the date and procedure for the party executive committee to select the nominee.

Participants in the meeting stressed afterward that no decisions were reached and that the meeting was not an attempt to squeeze out anyone else or to narrow the field. They said they discussed such things as how the executive committee would vote, by roll call, in public or in closed session.

FUNERAL PROCESSION—A bridge at Ballinacorney, Ireland, is packed with mourners following the hearse carrying the body of Michael Gaughan to burial Sunday. Gaughan died in a hunger strike while imprisoned in Britain for Irish Republican Army activities. (AP Wirephoto)

Police Make No Effort To Seize IRA Fugitive

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — A fugitive leader of the Irish Republican Army gave the funeral oration at the grave of hunger striker Michael Gaughan, but police made no attempt to arrest him before thousands of mourners.

A 17-man IRA honor guard clad in black and 2,000 mourners escorted the body of Michael Gaughan from Dublin on Sunday to the grave in Ballina, his hometown in County Mayo.

David O'Connell, a top chief of the Provisional wing of the outlawed IRA, defied about 100 uniformed and plainclothes police to deliver the graveside eulogy.

Wanted by authorities in both the Irish Republic and Northern Ireland, O'Connell was surrounded by a guard of IRA men in black berets. But the police made no attempt to arrest him or to stop the IRA honor guard who fired a volley of pistol shots over the coffin, and O'Connell disappeared in the crowd of about 7,000 persons.

Gaughan, 24, died Monday after a 64-day fast in a prison on the Isle of Wight. He and five other IRA prisoners in England had been fasting to press demands for transfer to prisons in Northern Ireland and status as political prisoners.

The other hunger strikers, including the sisters Marion and Dolours Price, quit their fast Saturday.

Early Sunday, their kidnappers freed the Earl and Countess of Donoughmore in a Dublin park. The 67-year-old countess said they were told they were being let go "because the hunger strikers stopped striking."

Lord Donoughmore, 71, told newsmen he could not positively identify his captors, "but I imagine they were members of the IRA."

The two were bruised and shaken but otherwise in good health. Lord Donoughmore's coat was bloodstained, and he had a black eye and a cut on the back of his head. He said that after the initial scuffle when they were seized outside their country mansion they were treated well.

The earl, a Protestant, said his captors told him they kidnaped him because he once was a member of the British Parliament.

In Northern Ireland, a bomb exploded at a racetrack on the outskirts of Belfast, killing a young girl and injuring seven other persons. The track was in a Roman Catholic district, but some of the injured were Protestants.

"Are there any questions?" he asked.

"Why aren't there more women involved with Watergate?" a militant stockholder shouted from the floor.

Springbinder answered nervously, "It's true that Watergate was strictly a white male affair, with very few exceptions. We tried to find women who could become involved, but there just weren't any who were qualified. Women don't seem to be physiologically or mentally able to cope with all it takes to be part of a Watergate scandal."

'Buster' Crabbe Is Hospitalized

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — Clarence "Buster" Crabbe, a former Olympic swimmer who portrayed "Tarzan" and "Flash Gordon" in films, was reported resting comfortably at St. Vincent Hospital here.

Crabbe, 65, was described as being in "favorable" condition Sunday night by the hospital's nursing supervisor.

He was hospitalized Friday, reportedly with a virus, after he became sick while on a promotional tour.

'Could Support' George Wallace

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Charles Evers, civil rights leader and mayor of Fayette, Miss., says he could support Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace for vice president.

Evers said his opinion of Wallace, once known for his segregationist stand, has changed in recent years "because the man is changing."

The brother of slain civil right leader Medgar Evers said Sunday his support of a Democratic party ticket which included Wallace would hinge on the presidential nominee.

He said he could vote for him on a ticket with Sen. Edward Kennedy or Sen. Walter Mondale but had reservations "about a ticket with Wallace and someone like Sen. Henry Jackson."

Churchmen Talk Change Of Name

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Southern Baptist Convention (SBC) opens its annual meeting here Tuesday with a former president of the organization asking whether "Southern" really describes the 12.3 million member denomination.

Dr. W. A. Criswell, a conservative, announced here this week that he intends to ask the messengers to the convention to appoint a committee to study the possibility of changing the SBC's name and make recommendations.

Dr. Criswell has been pastor of the First Baptist Church of Dallas, the largest congregation in the denomination, for 30 years. Recently he announced he intends to return to the church $300,000 he has received in salaries from it in the years he has been its pastor.

The Dallas pastor said he favors "Continental" as the new name for the denomination. "The plain and simple truth," he said, "is that the Southern Baptist Convention is no longer the Southern Baptist Convention. It is Northern and Western and Eastern as well as Southern."

Dr. Criswell disagreed with the view that the name Southern is indicative more of a "conservative, doctrinal position," than a geographical position.

He stated that the same "conservative, doctrinal position" that characterizes Southern Baptists "would be retained under any other name."

"Continental," he pointed out, "would include us all from Maine to California, from Alaska to Hawaii, and it could include those churches in Canada who cooperate with us."

Criswell admitted that "the same prejudices" that have linked "Southern" to a doctrinal position of conservatism and which "have destroyed our ability to change our name in the past will be a factor in Dallas."

The Christian Life Commission of the SBC is expected to provide some of the topics and convention debate with a series of recommendations that touch upon religious, political and racial issues.

The commission will submit a five-part recommendation on women in the SBC, and another on race relations urging Baptists "to communicate the conviction that racism is theologically untenable, politically destructive and fatally dehumanizing."

The Commission also will present a recommendation on integrity in government urging members to become more involved in politics. The recommendation calls on Baptists to commit themselves "to bring about further reform of campaign financing to the end that elections may be taken out of the hands of big business, big labor and other special interests and returned to voting public to whom they rightfully belong."

Ford Mentions Retirement

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford has mentioned to his son, Jack, the possibility of retiring some day to northern Utah.

Young Ford said after a visit of the vice president to Utah over the weekend that his father "talked about the possibility of retiring out here, becoming a lawyer or justice of the peace."

Ford delivered the commencement address Saturday at Utah State University, where Jack is studying forestry.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market flattened out today under profit-taking pressures after last week's steep advance.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 2.19 at 851.53, although gainers maintained a 7-to-6 lead over losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading slowed down considerably from Friday's active pace.

Cuts in the prime lending rate by several banks were cited by brokers as a key stimulus to buying in past week's trading.

Semiconductor stocks, which have been conspicuously weak recently, posted some further sharp declines.

Motorola, the Big Board volume leader, was down 2 1/2% at 52 1/2; Texas Instruments, second on the active list, fell 6% to 92; National Semiconductor was down 1 1/2% at 14 1/2, and Fairchild Camera lost 3/4 to 43 3/4.

Analysts say one apparent source of selling in the stocks has been a Tariff Commission proposal that would have the effect of removing a tariff exemption for silicon products from abroad.

Additionally, they noted a slowdown in orders to the industry from last year's boom levels.

"Some investors may also fear a repetition of the industry's 1970 setback," said Stan Berkson, an analyst who follows semiconductor issues at Moody's Investors Service.

Geon Industries was down 2 1/2% at 93 1/2, trading for the first time since Feb. 22 on the American Stock Exchange. Geon holders are slated to vote early next month on Burmah Oil's proposal to purchase the company's assets at a price equivalent to $10.75 a share.

The Amex' 11 a.m. market value index was up .04 at 25.82. The NYSE composite, meanwhile, was down .20 at 48.51.

'Good' Supply

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Gasoline supplies remain good in North Carolina, according to a survey by the Carolina Motor Club.

T.E. Pickard Jr., executive vice president and general manager of the club, said of 216 service stations checked during the week ending June 1, only one was out of gas. Three reported they were limiting purchases.

More than 100 reported they were staying open after 6 p.m. on weeknights, and many said they were open on the weekends.

The average price for regular gasoline was 58 cents, while premium was selling for 61 cents, Pickard said.

Exemptions Are Invalidated

WASHINGTON (AP)—A controversial Federal Power Commission order exempting small producers of natural gas from direct regulation was invalidated on technical grounds today by the Supreme Court.

The court disagreed, however, with a ruling of the U.S. Circuit Court in New Orleans that the commission lacked the power to adopt such a method of regulation for the small producers.

By an 8 to 0 vote, the Supreme Court held that the commission's order in the case had been ambiguous and sent the matter back to the commission for further proceedings.

Dunn . . .

Dunn noted that more juvenile delinquents are coming from the "right" side of town and calls these youngsters the "affluent deprived," youths who have everything but find something lacking.

"One of the biggest family problems today is a lack of grandparents. They used to be a focal point in the family and provided a bridge between parents and children during times when a 'generation gap' began to form. Old and young people used to have great relationships, with benefits on both sides," Dunn explained.

"Another problem we have is women-dominated families. Many men are too busy making a buck to take time for their families. We need a better balance of men and women in the lives of children. Elementary school kids usually see men only for discipline, and high school youths don't see men unless they're athletes. More men teachers would help.

"We also need more recreational opportunities. Just think of all the space wasted with church parking lots. It would cost less to buy equipment, hire a full-time recreation director and open churches at nights and on weekends, than it would cost to support one child for a year in a juvenile institution.

"And look at school facilities," Dunn continued. "Libraries and recreation facilities are locked up at night, in the summer and on weekends, when they would probably be of the most use to youngsters."

He concluded, "To slow crime, first we need to look around for meaningful youth opportunities. Then we can find some actual solutions to our problems."

Israel Claims POWs Tortured

By The Associated Press Israel has accused Syria of "brutal torture" of Israeli prisoners and says it will protest to the United Nations.

Syria countered with charges that Israel mistreated Arab prisoners. Each government denied the other's accusations.

The Israeli government issued an official statement Sunday expressing "indignation and revulsion" at reports from returning POWs that they were regularly beaten with rubber truncheons and burned with electric lights. The prisoners said they were given poor food and medical treatment.

Some prisoners said they could not publicly reveal the worst of the tortures.

Despite the exchange of atrocity charges, an Israeli military command spokesman said disengagement of forces on the Golan Heights was proceeding according to schedule.

Charter Officers For K-of-C Unit Installed

The John Ivey Smith Council of the Knights of Columbus installed its charter officers and held the exemplification of the admission degree to the charter members of the newly formed council.

The ceremonies were held yesterday afternoon in the St. Gabriel's Roman Catholic Church Hall. The Rev. Charles H. Mulholland, pastor of St. Gabriel's Church, and the Rev. Maurice Spillane, pastor of St. Peter's Church were among the approximately 40 Catholic men admitted to the ranks of the Knights of Columbus during the ceremony.

Officers installed are Thomas Hanifer, Grand Knight; Kevin Cunningham, Deputy Grand Knight; Hugh Carroll Sr., Chancellor; Raymond Dumas, Lector; Joseph Pellegrini, Advocate; Milton Jenkins Jr., Warden; James Rostar, Recorder; Delbert Roscoe, secretary-treasurer; Thomas Keith, Financial secretary; William Ellington, Outside Guard; Frank Flower, Inside Guard; Thomas Shea, Trustee for three years; James Murphy, Trustee for two years; and Frank Doyle, Trustee for one year.

Many state officials of the Knights of Columbus attended the ceremony. Grads Warned Of Growing Problems

CULLOWHEE—One of the major tasks facing the next generation of national leaders is establishing "credibility and confidence" in the federal government, Dr. H.F. Robinson, chancellor of Western University, said here Friday night.

In an address at the 88th annual graduation program at WCU, he told 825 graduates that at "no time in the history of the nation has there been a greater need for leadership nor have there been more opportunities" for men and women to exercise it.

A former provost of Purdue University and for many years head of the Department of Genetics at N.C. State University, Dr. Robinson warned that world food and population problems are approaching monumental proportions.

The United States, he said, is discovering that it is no longer economically independent. "Our leaders," he said, "have prepared us poorly for this state of affairs. We are not ready for the massive emotional, intellectual, and economic adjustments that are needed in order for us now to live our lives in this new kind of international 'dependency' climate."

Pitt County graduates (bachelor's degrees unless otherwise noted) were: James Michael Brady, social sciences, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Smith, 603 W. 2nd St.; William Robin Holland III, business administration, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Holland Jr., 312 S. Lee St.; Patricia Liles Hutchinson (Mrs. Duncan Alexander), health and physical education, daughter of Graydon Liles, W. Wilson St.; and Theresa Sue Mann Miles (Mrs. Robert Clarence), 208 N. Oak St., home economics, awarded summa cum laude, daughter of Mrs. Norma W. Mann of Durham.

He concluded, "To slow crime, first we need to look around for meaningful youth opportunities. Then we can find some actual solutions to our problems."

Pipeline Hit By Explosion

BEALTON, Va. (AP)—Investigators worked today to determine why a natural gas pipeline in this rural Fauquier County community burst late Sunday, triggering a huge fire.

There were no injuries. Officials of the Charlottesville district office of Transcontinental Gas Pipeline Corp., of Houston, Tex., owner of the line, said a 32-inch line apparently ruptured and the leaking gas ignited at about 10:15 p.m.

An hour later, the company managed to shut off the three main supply sources that feed the line, paving the way for the fire to burn itself out.

The rupture and fire left a crater, described by one state police officer as "big enough for a box car."

The American League Promotion Days Help A's, Tigers, To Sunday Wins

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

When you're a winner, as the Oakland A's, the shrieking of the "enemy" crowd can sound like music. But when you're a loser, it can drive you bats.

And, so, ignoring the hollering of a "Jacket Day" throng of 46,812 in Milwaukee, the A's ran up a quick lead Sunday and held on to beat the Brewers 5-4.

In Detroit, though, a screaming "Bat Day" crowd of 42,491 shook up a pair of California outfielders and helped the Tigers to defeat the nosediving Angels 5-3.

In Sunday's other American League games, the New York Yankees edged Minnesota 4-3, Texas trimmed Baltimore 3-2, Boston belted Chicago 10-6 and Cleveland beat Kansas City 8-6.

Deron Johnson, who hit a homer for Oakland, said the Brewers' crowd was "great. These are real baseball fans. It's just fun playing baseball in front of all these people. I like a big crowd. It makes you a little more keyed up."

Sal Bando slugged a two-run homer to go with Johnson's solo shot that enabled Oakland to build a 5-1 lead in the fifth inning. Pedro Garcia homered for Milwaukee.

Tigers 5, Angels 3
A three-run, noise-aided fourth inning against Nolan Ryan, capped by a monstrous double by Willie Horton, carried Detroit past California, which dropped its 10th game in the last 13.

With the score tied 2-2, Mickey Stanley started the Tigers' big rally with a double. Then the crowd took over. Gary Sutherland hit a liner to right-center field. Either center fielder Mickey Rivers or Lee Stanton, coming over from right, could have caught it. But they couldn't hear each other calling for it. Afraid of colliding, they each pulled up short and the ball fell for a hit.

Yanks 4, Twins 3
Graig Nettles hit a sixth-inning homer for the Yanks, then capped a three-run ninth with a single that kept the Twins last in the West.

Jim Fregosi drove in two Texas runs, one of them with a tie-breaking homer in the eighth inning, to beat Baltimore.

Red Sox 10, White Sox 6
Bob Montgomery drove in three runs to pace the assault by the Red Sox, who cut loose for four runs in the first inning and five more in the sixth.

Indians 8, Royals 6
Oscar Gamble and Dave Duncan hit homers in Cleveland's victory over the Royals. Gamble's seventh of the season came in the fifth inning and Duncan's eighth came in the seventh inning after George Hendrick's double.

In the National League, it was Cincinnati 14, Philadelphia 7; Houston 11, the New York Mets 1; San Diego 6, St. Louis 5; Los Angeles 4, the Chicago Cubs 3, Pittsburgh 14, San Francisco 1 and, in a doubleheader, Atlanta 3, Montreal 2 in the first game and Montreal 7, Atlanta 3 in the nightcap.

Green Wins IVB, Thinks Of Rest

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Hubert Green admits that he is mentally tired—that the week-in, week-out grind of golf is getting to him.

After pocketing $30,000 for winning the $150,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic Sunday with a 17-under-par 271, Green talked more enthusiastically about a two-week vacation than this week's U.S. Open Championship at Winged Foot Country Club in Mamaroneck, N.Y.

"I haven't missed a tournament in months," said Green, who compiled rounds of 70-67-66-68 for his third tour victory of the year. "But the grind gets to you."

What about the Open, the most prestigious title in golf? "I'd like to win it, but I enjoyed winning here," he said, waving toward the 6,708-yard Whitmarsh Valley Country Club course he had just wrecked. "I like to do well, and the way I've played the last few weeks is nothing to turn my face down about."

"I'll get in my car and drive to New York and play hard. If I get whipped, fine. I'm going to take two weeks off. I won't play again until the Milwaukee Open."

Green, 27, who previously this year won the Bob Hope Desert Classic and the Greater Jacksonville Open, boosted his 1974 earnings to $156,165, second only to top money-winner Johnny Miller. He shattered the 72-hole tournament record at Whitmarsh by three strokes. Billy Casper and Tom Weiskopf each had won here with 274.

Green finished four strokes ahead of Hale Irwin, who carded 69-72-68-66-275 and earned $17,100. Miller and Tom Jenkins tied for third at 277 and picked up checks for $8,850 each.

Wolfpack In Black

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—North Carolina State is proof that money flows in with successful football and basketball teams.

Athletic Director Willis Casey says all the figures aren't in yet, but State will have a total surplus of about $800,000 this year.

Members of the Wolfpack Club, the school's booster organization, contributed a record total of about $1 million to the athletic scholarship fund.

Winning the NCAA basketball championship and the Atlantic Coast Conference football title encouraged the Wolfpack boosters to contribute more, Casey says.

A trip to the Liberty Bowl for the football team helped the money situation. Ticket and television receipts taken in during the regular and post season competition in football and basketball totaled $2.1 million.

The money picture is so good that Casey is looking about for ways to spend the surplus.

For one thing, State is setting up an endowment fund that will provide a continuing assured income for the scholarship program during lean years. The goal is $2 million.

The school is making improvements to its athletic plant, including replacement of some seats and the floor at William Neal Reynolds Coliseum, where the Wolfpack plays its basketball games.

The Wolfpack Club funds will more than cover the expenses of the approximately 200 athletes who get financial aid at State, Casay says.

ROCK HILL, S.C. (AP) — For years, the Rock Hill Country Club tried to give away a new car for a hole-in-one during its annual member-guest golf tournament.

"Nobody ever came close," said club pro Bill Petty.

So this year tournament officials decided to eliminate the prize. There was not only was there a hole-in-one. There were two.

Bob Jones of Gaffney, S.C., aced the 179-yard No. 2 hole Saturday and Jim White of Rock Hill, S.C., did likewise on the 159-yard 17th hole Sunday.

National League Roundup 'Big Red' Working, But Not Fast Enough

The "Big Red Machine" is rolling ... but not fast enough to catch the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Even though the buoyant Cincinnati Reds buried the Philadelphia Phillies 14-7 Sunday for their 12th victory in 15 games, there was no reason for the Dodgers to hit the panic button.

They still hold a juicy, eight-game lead in the National League West race, you see.

Yarborough Wins Road Race At Riverside

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — The next time Cale Yarborough sits in a race car on a hot day, he will probably be wearing what will be called a "cool suit."

It is a system of tiny tubes that wrap around the race drivers' body that carries ice water to help keep him cool inside the furnace-like cockpit of a NASCAR stock car.

Yarborough admits that he could have used one Sunday when he won the NASCAR Grand National Road Race at Riverside International Raceway in a '74 Chevrolet, but almost collapsed from the heat in the winners' circle.

Medics gave doses of oxygen after the race to revive Yarborough and Bobby Allison who finished his '74 Chevy 2.7 seconds back in second place.

Yarborough won in record time, covering 361 miles at an average speed of 102.442 miles per hour. Afterward, he described the ordeal.

"I ran out of water half way through the race," he said. "My thermos jug was completely out. I was just getting dehydrated. I didn't have anything to drink."

"Man, it was so hot you wouldn't believe it out there, but it never did bother me as long as across the short chute and along the straightaway I could put my hand out of the window to get some fresh air. "When I pulled up and stopped and that dead heat hit me, it was just like hitting me in the face with a sledge hammer, you know."

Yarborough said he was going to look for his long-used cool suit, because all the rest of this year's NASCAR races are going to be hot like the one Sunday in the 92-degree Riverside afternoon.

"Actually, the thing weighed 80 pounds," Yarborough said of the cool suit. "We had tire problems, and we just felt like 80 pounds was too much to ask for the tires. We were just blowing tires anyway."

Tire companies improved the tires, he continued, but then NASCAR allowed the drivers to start racing with their windows open, and the cool suit was abandoned.

Yarborough was helped by what may have been two monumental goofs by two of his competitors.

The first, pole sitter George Follmer, broke into a huge lead after only one lap, but his 74 Matador suffered engine damage after seven laps.

Car owner Roger Penske reported the damage occurred when Follmer missed the shift and overrevved the engine.

Then, late in the race, Bobby Allison elected to come into the pit for gasoline, and gave up the lead to Yarborough. It was a lead he never got back. After the race, Allison's crew chief Bill Hamner, emptied the gas tank to see if Bobby had to make that stop 20 miles from the end.

"I don't think he had to," Hamner said.

Carner, With Help Wins Golf Classic

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Joanne Carner has won three women's golf tournaments in four weeks and she thinks she knows why.

"I was never confident of my game until Gardner Dickinson worked with me the week before Christmas in Florida," Mrs. Carner said after she shot a three-under-par 70 Sunday to capture the $100,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association Desert Golf Classic.

"Now I've got the attitude that I think I can win any time I tee it up."

Dickinson, a long-time pro on the men's PGA tour, also advised Mrs. Carner not to take any time off since she was red hot after winning the Bluegrass Invitational and the Hoosier Classic during the last four weeks.

Ms. Palmer hit her tee shot two feet from the pin on the 16th and made the putt to pull to within one shot at seven under. On the 17th, however, the Dallas veteran hit her first shot into a fairway bunker and her next into a bush. She had to take a drop for a penalty and wound up with a triple bogey. She finished with a 76 and a total of 287.

Mrs. Skala birdied the sixth, 11th, 15th and 18th holes to finish with 69 and capture second-place money of $12,000. Miss Palmer birdied the final hole to take third place money of $7,000.

Miss Hamlin shot a 73 and finished in a four-way tie for fourth at 288 with Jane Blalock, Carol Mann and Gail Denenberg.

The victory moved Mrs. Carner into third place on the current LPGA money winning list with almost $41,000.

Joann Prentice won $1,700 and extended her money lead to $55,000 while Ms. Blalock remains in second place with $49,500.

Bombers Romp, 21-7

OAK CITY—Belvoir's Bombers lived up to their nickname Sunday as they walloped the Hamilton Hornets 21-7, in semi-pro action.

Belvoir scored in all innings except the eighth, when they went three up and three down. They also scored eight in the ninth inning.

The Bombers led off the scoring with two in the first when lead-off batter Robert Johnson was hit by a pitch. A single by Larry Dixon, a fielder's choice, and a single by Edgar Savage scored Johnson. The latter single scored Dixon from second. They added one more in the third when Johnson again reached on a single, stole second and third, and scored on Billy Savage's single.

Hamilton scored two in the second. D. Whitfield singled, moved up on a single by M. Reason, stole third, and scored on a fly ball. Reason stole second, and came home on an error.

The Hornets scored one more in the third when W. Baker doubled, and came around on a two-base error. They scored two in the fourth, and got single runs in the seventh and eighth.

Belvoir scored one in the fourth, two in the fifth and seventh innings, and four in the sixth. They totaled 22 hits, with Dixon leading the way with 4-for-6.

Post 39 Drops Pair Of Weekend Decisions

SNOW HILL—Greenville's American Legion baseball team had a bad weekend as they lost two games, their third and fourth in a row.

Saturday, the locals were beaten on a home run as Rocky Mount took a 2-1 win. Then on Sunday, Greenville lost to Snow Hill, 6-4.

In Sunday's contest, Greenville took the opening lead, 2-0, in the first inning. Griff Garner led off with a single and scored on Robert Brinkley's triple. Brinkley came in on a sacrifice by Macon Moye.

The advantage was short lived as Snow Hill rallied for three in the bottom of the frame. Peele Garris doubled and went to third on an error. He scored on a ground out. Jerry Narron, reached on an error and Monte DeRatt singled. Mike Carter singled to score Narron and a sacrifice fly drove in DeRatt.

Snow Hill added three more in the third as Jerry Carraway and Narron both singled. DeRatt walked and a walk to Mike Carter forced in Carraway. Narron scored on a fielder's choice and a single by Jeff Bryant drove in DeRatt with a hit.

Greenville closed within two in the seventh but that was as close as they got. Al Heath got an infield hit and scored on a double by Keith Jones. Gil Whitford singled in Jones.

Greenville only had one other big opportunity and that was in the eighth as they put the first three men on but a fielder's choice and a pair of strike outs ended the threat.

Greenville only left five men on base, the same number as Snow Hill.

Brinkley and Jones each had two hits for the locals.

On Saturday, Greenville was tied down on a one hitter by Rocky Mount's Griffin. Rocky Mount scored first in the fourth. Greenville fought back with a run in the bottom of the fourth as Brinkley walked and eventually scored on a double by Moye. The game was won in the fifth when Robinson homered.

Greenville had chances to score in the fifth, eighth and ninth innings but could not bring the men around.

Priority Given Reading Skills

Heed Hilda's query! For it isn't the "whistle" that pulls the train! Many "whistle" courses in school have value but the real "motor" of the entire educational machine is described below. Before kindergarten you can motivate your child for college!

By GEORGE W. CRANE Ph.D., M.D.

CASE A-652: Hilda K., aged 28, has 2 kiddies in kindergarten and first grade.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "it seems tragic to me that so many supposedly intelligent children make low grades and soon drop out of school."

"And many of those who graduate with a high school diploma are unable to add the price of a hamburger, piece of pie and a cup of coffee."

"And they often can't compute the retail sales tax of 4 per cent thereon!"

"So what is the greatest need in our present school system?"

Build The Motor
The "motor" of the entire educational machinery is "reading."

Unless you can read fluently, you can't do well in math or history or any other subject that requires a textbook.

Yet our modern youth are becoming such slaves of the TV (boob tube) that they are earminded.

Incidentally, ear-minded people are then ripe for mob leaders or fiery Hitlers, for they stampede more easily than eyed-minded folks!

Readers are thus more independent and individualistic. They don't stampede as easily or even swallow printed propaganda as readily, for the same newspaper has opposing columnists, whereas television sticks more closely to but one side of an issue.

Although the TV has several educational values, it always tends to prepare the listener for emotional appeals, as about the fuel "crisis" or the water "crisis," etc.

You can easily spot the pupils who will graduate from high school vs. the dropouts by noting how many of them read books, magazines and especially the local newspaper.

How many of you parents have a library card that permits you or your family to borrow books from your city library?

How many own an encyclopedia?

Or have taught your kiddies how to look up the answers therein to their many school problems, as well as your own dilemmas?

Every literate home should also have a dictionary, which the children should consult almost daily (and so should you adults).

Plus an atlas, to keep the family abreast of world affairs and geographically oriented.

Try to answer these simple questions from my newspaper Quiz Column:

(a) Which city is nearest the equator: New York - Paris - Rome - Moscow?

(b) Which is the nearest the North Pole: Boston - Montreal - London - Vancouver?

Do you have a Bible in your home? Is it used weekly?

For reading is essential to their success in ALL the major

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JUNE 11, 1974

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day is fine to attend to duties you have been putting off for a long time. Later you find it difficult to make your ideas work out as you wish. Study all phases of a plan for better understanding.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can handle affairs secretly in the morning but be sure you get down to business later in the day. Avoid being suspicious.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get in touch early with a good pal who can give you valuable data you need. Avoid any social gatherings today. Keep calm.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Taking chances with your good name could be bad now, so be above suspicion. Don't push any bigwigs. Sidestep one who gossips.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't delay working on a new plan since later you are likely to meet with all sorts of irritations. Relax tonight.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Attend to those chores ahead of you and don't get confused by distraction. Avoid an argument with mate. Take time for pleasure.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try to establish more harmony with associates by doing more listening and less forcing of your will on them. Be poised.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't try to force co-workers to do more than is required of them. Plan to rest more so that you don't harm your health.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't force others to go along with you where amusement is concerned since there are tensions which the planets could cause.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You had better use tact at home or you could be confronted with much difficulty. Do something to clear up misunderstanding.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan to make appointments and calls but steer clear of those that could be troublesome. Try to be more courteous with others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You think money will cover up almost anything now, but if you use more ethical methods, you will do much better. Be thrifty.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You want to gain some personal desire and the best way is for you to use tact and improve your appearance. Think logically.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she could easily have unwarranted suspicion of others, so teach early in life to get on the positive side. Give good food, exercise and spiritual training, and then you have a gracious and well-poised person who can accomplish a good deal during lifetime. Study of music is fine here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS

Q. 1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AJ8 ♥87 ♦AK643 ♣AJ9
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—There is no satisfactory call available, so we suggest temporarily with the fancy bid of one spade. You are a point or two short of a two no trump rebid, and too strong for one no trump or two diamonds. You hope partner can take further action, so you can bid no trump at your next opportunity. The risk in bidding spades is not great, for if partner persists in raising, you might be in your best spot.

Q. 2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQ1072 ♥982 ♦K64 ♣J4
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♥ Pass

What action do you take?
A.—Two spades. Your opponents have not shown any great signs of strength, and partner should have a reasonable hand. Since you have the master suit, don't sell out too cheaply—competing for the part score is worth the risks involved.

Q. 3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q98643 ♥7 ♦J109 ♣A62
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♣ 1 ♥ 2 ♣ ?

What action do you take?
A.—Pass. Partner did not invite you into the auction. Your spade suit is weak, and partner might have the same support for your suit that you have for his. If partner wants to hear from you, he can reopen the bidding with a double.

Q. 4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AJ1095 ♥QJ8 ♦A ♣K843
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
Pass Pass Pass 1 ♣
Pass 1 NT Pass 2 ♣
Pass 3 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Three spades. The fact that partner was willing to try again after your two club rebid should spur you to carry on. Despite his original negative response, a rebid of your excellent spade suit might induce him to raise to game with a doubleton honor or three low cards.

Q. 5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠K962 ♥1075 ♦Q98 ♣K5
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
Pass Pass Pass 1 ♣
Pass 3 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Double. Partner is virtually marked with a singleton heart, so his distribution should match well with your hand. Indeed, if his response is in spades, you could easily have a game. However, if he bids a minor and the opponents proceed to three hearts, do not double. Be content to defend in the knowledge that you have pushed them one higher than they intended.

Instead of surrounding kiddies with so many mechanical toys and athletic equipment, please remember that they'll never become engineers or pro athletes unless they can R-E-A-D.

TV is fun and entertaining, but you don't rate honors or become star pupils by means of the boob tube!

So stress reading, by surrounding kiddies with attractive, colorful books even when they are toddlers.

Build up respect and fondness for printed material. And send for my booklet "How to Raise Your Child's School Marks," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

Bite-The-Bullet Week For PBS

By JAY SHARBUTT AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — This is bite-the-bullet week for public TV stations. They're readying final decisions on which national shows they'll "buy" for next season under the Public Broadcasting Service's new national program cooperative plan.

In the plan, stations are asked to pay a fair-share percentage of the cost of certain programs they'd have gotten free in past years, when federal and foundation funds weren't as limited as now.

But PBS emphasizes that programs bought under the new system will represent only 40 to 50 per cent of PBS' 1974-75 schedule and that the stations will get the balance free as in previous years.

Offer A Course In Crocheting

Pitt Technical Institute has a course in crocheting beginning Wednesday at 7 p.m. The class will meet each Wednesday from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m.

Course content will consist of teaching the student the basic stitches and most popular stitches in crochet, the various types of threads, laundering and blocking.

Interested persons are urged to attend the first meeting.

When the cooperative began operations last month, 93 program proposals that would cost nearly $42 million were on the auction block.

As a series of "elimination" rounds began last week, at least 49 program proposals, most of them new ones, were eliminated from the bidding because of insufficient station interest, PBS said.

PBS says to keep or get a show on the air nationally at least 80 per cent of the nation's 151 public TV licenses must be willing to pay for it. The show's cost to these stations can't be higher than the price they were quoted in the final elimination round.

If a proposal doesn't pass these two tests, there still is a way to get it on the air on a limited basis.

PBS says interested stations can form their own cooperative to help pay for the show, but it would cost them far more than if the minimum 80 per cent of the nation's public TV stations also were paying.

Stations participating in this minicooperative would be the only ones in the PBS system allowed to air the show.

During the first elimination round last week, at least six shows had met the 80 per cent criteria and now are considered safe for next season, PBS says. Among them were such veterans as "Sesame Street" and "Wall Street Week," but there also were two newcomers — "Soundstage," a pop music series from Chicago's WTTW, and "The Japanese Film," a 13-part series from KQED in

Dogs, Cats For Adoption

Dogs and cats of all ages and breeds are available now for adoption through the Pitt County Humane Society, according to Pat Giles, society adoptions chairman.

Mrs. Giles, who said the Society will also attempt to find homes for all types of pet animals, said that the group maintains lists of animals available for adoption and persons who want inexpensive pets.

Mrs. Giles may be reached at 758-4842 after 3:30 p.m.

Lost and found animals, it was noted, should be reported to Donna Morris, the Society's lost and found chairman, during the day at 758-4801. She records descriptions of animals reported lost and will attempt to find the owners of unidentified lost cats and dogs.

Humane Society members plan to assist with the care and feeding of animals lodged in the new Greenville Animal Shelter on Cemetery Road. Tentative opening date for the city shelter is June 15.

The Society reported that animal lovers of all ages are invited to join the organization and help with its work in the areas of adoption, care of sick and injured animals, the Friends of Animals reduced-fee spaying and neutering program, and staffing of the city shelter.

Interested persons are invited to attend a meeting and join as individual members or as families. Meetings are held each first Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Third Street Planters Bank Building.

Biggest Treasure Find Or Gigantic Hoax For S.C.

TREASURE HUNT—Map of the South Carolina coastline shows general area where search is underway for a sunken galleon and its cargo. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By ED ROWLAND
Associated Press Writer
GEORGETOWN, S.C. (AP) — Bronze Norman Scott adjusted a yellow cable trailing from a 42-foot boat slowly going up the black-water Sampit River. The cable towed a torpedo-like device Scott hopes will pinpoint an ancient ship with millions of dollars worth of gold.

"It's either the biggest find of the century or the biggest Clifford Irving," he said in reference to the man who wrote a hoax biography of millionaire Howard Hughes.

What Scott and his Expeditions Unlimited, Inc., of Pompano Beach, Fla., and the South Carolina Institute of Archeology and Anthropology hope to find is a 430-year-old Spanish vessel, 65 to 70 feet long, lying on its side and partially covered with mud, but intact. They are searching the maze of rivers that converge on Georgetown and flow into Winyah Bay, then the Atlantic.

The problem is they don't know exactly where to look. Another is they suspect a tale of the ship's discovery is a hoax.

Since word of the search broke two weeks ago, it has assumed near novel-like proportions. At the center is the man who started it all.

He is Wade Quattlebaum, a dockbuilder from a tiny community more than 75 miles inland from Georgetown whose work has over the years taken him up and down the coast. Three years ago he went to state officials and said he had discovered the ship.

Negotiations were held intermittently until this spring, when the Institute of Archeology and Anthropology director, Dr. Robert L. Stephenson, decided the time had come to search for the vessel whether Quattlebaum helped or not.

Stephenson says he tried to come to terms with Quattlebaum. His latest offer came Saturday, when he asked Quattlebaum to turn over 10 gold coins and two other artifacts from the wreck, after which he felt terms could be arranged.

"I gave them a message that I'm ready for a contract anytime they want to come to me. I'm not going to them," he added.

Concessions he has demanded include income from a museum at Georgetown that would be built to display items from the wreck, assurance he would conduct recovery operations and a guarantee that the gold coins would remain in the state.

Stephenson said to let Quattlebaum recover the ship would mean "I'd be ruined professionally," because Quattlebaum isn't an archeologist. An associate of Stephenson's says it would be like a layman performing appendectomy.

Late last month the state and Scott signed an agreement under which Scott is financing a 30-day search for the ship. If he finds it, he will receive 45 per cent of coins or jewels aboard, plus 55 per cent of the rights to sell the story of the discovery to television and other media.

The institute has no funds of its own to undertake a search of this magnitude and Scott is an acknowledged expert. The institute retains supervision.

But Scott's initial enthusiasm has waned after 10-hour, six-day-a-week operations under a broiling sun. He said Saturday in answer to a question about that he has learned, "A very interesting lesson."

Alan B. Albright, an underwater archeology expert on the Institute staff, has been with Scott's crew since it arrived. He supervises each day's operations on the glassy-smooth streams.

At the center of Scott's operation is a radar-like device contained in the towed "fish." An instrument on board the Chris Craft, Abby Two, receives echoes from instruments in the fish and with them electronically prints a chart of what's on the bottom. The device scans sideways for yards in both directions.

When the printout shows an interesting shadow, such as might be cast by a shipwreck, a buoy is tossed overboard to mark the spot for divers. Scott has two, one in each of two smaller boats that trail the Abby Two.

The frogmen slip underwater and explore the object by feel. They can't see more than six inches in the tannic acid-laden

Lodge To Honor Past Masters

Crown Point Lodge No. 708 AF & AM will hold its annual Post Masters Night on Thursday to officially salute its members who have served as Past Masters.

Past Masters will be honored include George W. Smith, Ed Ratcliff, Durward M. Harris, Jim Jenkins, Stuart L. Buchanan, Bill Heyman, Walter G. Gardner, Sam K. Price, Richard E. Squares, Leslie H. Garner, John Conway, Guilford Worsley, Charles Castevens, Fred H. Rogers, Harvey P. Markham, Willie J. Rogers, Wiley S. Christie, Robert E. Smith, Fred Switzer, and James W. Brewer.

Local Mason Stuart Buchanan said that, "Crown Point Lodge is most proud of the fact that among this group are two sets of brothers, Willie J. and Fred H. Rogers, and Leslie H. and Walter G. Garner. To have this type of loyalty and dedication from two families is not unheard of but is uncommon," he contended.

"In addition, this lodge is most proud of the fact that one of its members has served as Grand Master of Masons in North Carolina," Buchanan continued, noting that James W. Brewer served in this capacity in 1962. Les Garner is currently serving as Junior Grand Warden of the Grand Lodge of North Carolina.

The lodge member said that a special event will occur on Thursday night when John A. Conway, Past Master, will confer the third degree on his son, John Conway Jr. All of the past masters will assist in conferring the degree.

Lodge Master Clarence Oakley invited all Masons, especially Crown Point Lodge members, to attend the meeting.

Oakley called an emergent communication at 6 p.m. to begin the proceedings. A dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. and the lodge will reconvene at 7:30 p.m. for the conferring of the degree.

N.C. Traffic Killed Nine

By The Associated Press
Traffic accidents killed nine persons in North Carolina during the weekend, raising the 1974 road toll to 597.

The state highway patrol says that compares with 777 killed during the corresponding period a year ago.

A 7-year-old Chadbourn boy was struck and killed by a car Sunday morning on N.C. 410 just outside Chadbourn in Columbus County. He was identified as Charles Lee Singleton.

William Thomas Vicks, 29, of Burlington, was killed Sunday when his car left a street in Graham and struck a tree.

A two-car crash at an intersection in Brunswick County claimed the life of Willie McCoy, 55, of Leland.

Gerald Massey, 17, of Pleasant Hill, died in a one-car wreck Saturday night on N.C. 125 near Roanoke Rapids in Halifax County.

A 26-year-old North Wilkesboro man, George Kenneth Sauter Jr., perished when he lost control of his car on a rural road in Wilkes County. Officers said the vehicle left the road and hit a sign.

Floyd Latta, 33, of Taylors, S.C., was killed when his car struck a guard rail on U.S. 25 in Henderson County.

Mary Richardson Jeffreys, 32, of Wake Forest, was killed when her car ran off a road and overturned near Raleigh.

Harry Payne, 39, of Jacksonville, died when his car ran off a rural road near his hometown and overturned.

A similar accident claimed the life of Pete Atkins, 47, of Lawsonville, who was killed near his hometown in Stokes County.

Heroin Traffic To U.S. From Mexico Is Rising

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — After two years of decline, heroin traffic into the United States is reported on the upswing, with Mexico replacing Europe as the primary source and conduit for the narcotic.

Federal drug enforcement officials say the heroin is refined from poppy plants grown in western Mexico, then shipped into the U.S.

At the same time, there is growing trade in marijuana from long-established sources in Mexico, leading to an intensified antimuggling campaign along the 1,400-mile border.

But some officials acknowledge that U.S. government efforts to cope with the illicit activity have been partially impeded by bureaucratic wrangling among agencies with jurisdiction over certain aspects of narcotics control.

The Customs Service, which has concentrated its own border drug interdiction efforts chiefly against the Mexican marijuana trade, contends that heroin traffic from there is negligible.

Although heroin remains priority No. 1 because of the danger it poses, customs officials said synthetic drugs are their biggest worry.

However, the Drug Enforcement Administration, a year-old Justice Department agency with which Customs has clashed frequently over enforcement policy, says Mexico has become the source of as much as 50 per cent of the heroin reaching the United States.

During the peak years of heroin traffic, 1969-72, up to 80 per cent of the narcotic reaching U.S. shores came from or through Europe. Only about 15 per cent from Mexico.

Mexican heroin is easily identified by its brown color; the more refined product from European laboratories is white. But officials say there is no difference in the potency.

John R. Bartels Jr., director of the drug agency, said brown heroin, once confined mostly to the West Coast, recently has been turning up in eastern cities—one indicator used to determine source.

He says he is skeptical of most drug statistics reported by government agencies and admits he is "not happy" even with the figures compiled by his own. The heroin situation is assessed by such indicators as seizures, quality of the drug, street prices and the number of deaths from overdose.

The Customs Service, deprived of some of its functions when the drug agency was created in President Nixon's general overhaul of drug enforcement system a year ago, has doubled the number of individual marijuana seizures from Mexico in the past 10 months. Agents seized more than 85 tons of marijuana between October and March and 25 tons in the March-April period alone when the Mexican harvest was in full swing, official reports show.

In that time, Customs agents seized 8.33 pounds of heroin at all U.S. borders; 5.83 pounds came from Mexico.

The shift to Mexico as a major heroin source is due in part to the success of federal authorities in breaking up established connections from Europe, the Middle East and Asia, officials say.

Bartels says that while the international heroin traffic always has been controlled by the Mafia, the Mexican connection only now is showing signs that "these guys are now starting to get organized," he said.
