

Israeli Planes Again Hit Palestinian Strongholds

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer
JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli warplanes struck at Arab guerrilla targets in southern Lebanon today—the second day of air attacks since President Nixon ended his Middle East visit.

A military communique said the planes bombed and strafed guerrilla strongholds in a 15-minute raid and then returned safely.

The Israeli air force made two raids Tuesday into the southwest corner of Lebanon bordering Israel. The first took place as Nixon was leaving Jordan for the Azores, on his way home after his visits to Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Israel and Jordan.

Lebanese authorities reported one Palestinian was killed and five persons wounded in Tuesday's air strikes.

There was no immediate report of casualties today.

The Israeli state radio said the raids were part of a day-today campaign to check such guerrilla assaults as the raid on the Shamir kibbutz six days ago, while Nixon was in Egypt. Three women died then with the four-man Arab suicide squad.

Usually the Israelis retaliate immediately to such guerrilla attacks with strikes the same day or the day after at Palestinian bases in southern Lebanon. But they held off after the Shamir attack because of Nixon's presence in the Middle East.

Sources in Beirut said the targets of today's raids were the valleys and woods around the south Lebanese town of Rachaya Foukhar and the Arkoub region, dubbed by Israel as "Fatahland" after the largest guerrilla organization, Al Fatah.

The continuing war between the guerrillas and Israel underscored Nixon's parting message in Amman that "enormously difficult" problems remain before lasting peace in the Middle East can become a reality.

In Cairo, Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy warned that his government would not "stand with its arms folded toward the new Israeli aggression against Lebanon."

"Israel should bear the responsibility for the consequences of this aggression including sabotage of peace chances in the Middle East,"

Meanwhile, the Israeli military command announced that it had surrendered most of the Syrian bulge at the northern end of the Golan Heights captured in the October war.

A spokesman said Israel handed over to United Nations forces a 180-square-mile area in a brief ceremony
Tuesday near Tel Shams.

Eight Hospitalized In Laurinburg Explosion

Laurinburg, N.C. (AP)—Eight persons were hospitalized Tuesday following an explosion and fire at the Laurinburg Milling Company, authorities report.

A company official said the blast occurred about 4 p.m. at the downtown plant, touching off a series of small fires which were extinguished a few hours later.

Robert Martin, administrator of the Scotland County Memorial Hospital, said three of the injured were moved to North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill. He said all eight had "very serious body burns."

A spokesman in Chapel Hill said the three were later moved to Bowman Gray Hospital in Winston-Salem, but their conditions were not released.

According to the company, the blast occurred when flour dust apparently came in contact with a flame from a welder's torch. No official damage estimates were released, however witnesses said the blast tore off a section of the roof.

Fourteen persons were injured, Martin said, however only eight required hospitalization.

Pitt Men Indicted For Car Theft Ring Roles

By CARL L. TYER

Ten Pitt County men were arrested by Federal agents yesterday following a coordinated attack on a major car theft ring operated from Baltimore, Md., and Eastern North Carolina.

The arrest came after 24 persons were indicted by a Federal Grand Jury in New Bern yesterday alleging their involvement in the receipt, concealment and sale of stolen motor vehicles.

In all, eleven Pitt County men were indicted, while five other North Carolinians were charged. Six Baltimore, Md., individuals were indicted along with a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., man.

Federal Bureau of Investigation agent Edward J. Krupinsky reported this morning from Charlotte that 15 of the 16 North Carolinians had been arrested. All are free under a $2,500 bond on each individual.

Arrested were: Guy Dixon Jr., 47, of Black Jack, Lennis Stroud, 20, of Kinston, Ruben Carroll Stroud, 32, of Kinston, Ernest Harrell, 28, of Farmville, John Boykin, 36, of Walstonburg, Lewis Stocks Jr., 41, of Greenville, Steve Harris, 23, of Greenville, Donnie Braxton, 21, of Greenville, R.S. Woolard, 23, of Ayden, Leslie Thomas Dixon, 45, of Greenville, Charlie Purser, 34, Randy Barr, 25, Ronnie Barr, 27, all of Chocowinity, Hugh Allen Stox, of Greenville, and Harvey Bowen, 56, of Ayden.

Indicted but not yet arrested was C.O. Godley of Pitt County. Indicted from Baltimore, Md., were: George Watson, William Thurmon Simmons, Lonnie McDonald, Robert Lee Horton, Rodney Black and Sonny Horton.

Indicted from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was Roy Lee Wooten. Also returned by the Grand Jury were three conspiracy indictments charging Leslie Thomas Dixon, Johnny Boykin and Lewis Stocks Jr., and others with conspiracy to violate Federal laws regarding the interstate transportation of stolen motor vehicles.

The indictments allege that "late model motor vehicles were stolen, and thereafter altered and given valid certificates of titles so that they could readily be sold to innocent purchasers."

Charged in the first conspiracy indictment was Leslie Thomas Dixon of Dixon's Used Cars near Grimesland, and Purser, Woolard, Ronnie and Randy Barr, Ruben and Lenny Stroud, Harris, Watson and Simmons.

The indictment states that the conspirators "would steal or cause to be stolen numerous late model automobiles... and that the conspirators would obtain wrecked automobiles in a salvage condition bearing

'Obliterated'

ANKENY, Iowa (AP) — Two tornadoes that struck within five minutes of each other obliterated portions of this north Des Moines suburb and threw the town of 10,000 into a state of emergency. Two persons died and at least 10 were injured, state police said.

A newsman on the scene said a 10- to 15-block area "looked like a battleground" after the twisters struck Tuesday night during severe storms throughout central Iowa. Damaging winds, hard rains and hail assaulted a dozen communities in a five-county area and widespread flooding was reported.

The state Highway Patrol, the National Guard and law enforcement officers from surrounding communities went to the scene and set up an emergency medical center in an elementary school. They worked throughout the night and continued into the morning, when heavy equipment rumbled through littered streets to begin cleaning up.

DEAD—Marshal Zhukov

Soviet WWII Hero Is Dead

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government today announced the death of Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov, the Soviet Union's most famous military commander in World War II. He was 77.

The first announcement by Tass, the government news agency, gave no further information about his death. But unofficial sources said he died in a Kremlin hospital Tuesday afternoon after a severe heart attack last week.

He suffered another severe heart attack several years ago and since then had been living in retirement at his country home outside Moscow.

Zhukov, Soviet army chief of staff when Hitler invaded Russia, directed the "hold or die" defense of Moscow in 1941, broke the back of the German army at Stalingrad, lifted the siege of Leningrad, captured Berlin in 1945 and received the German surrender on behalf of the Soviet Union on May 9, 1945.

After the surrender, he and

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower became personal friends in Berlin.

Stalin, fearful of Zhukov's popularity, assigned him to an obscure command in Odessa in 1946. After Stalin's death in 1953, he returned to Moscow as deputy defense minister and became defense minister in 1955. But Nikita Khrushchev dismissed him in disgrace in 1957, and he spent the next few years quietly writing his memoirs.

After Khrushchev's downfall, Zhukov was allowed to appear in public again. His rehabilitation was completed in 1966 and again in 1971, on his 70th and 75th birthdays, when he was awarded the Order of Lenin, the highest Soviet decoration, for the fifth and sixth times.

The son of a peasant, Zhukov was drafted into the czarist army in 1915, went over to the Bolshevik Revolution, joined the Communist party and later studied at the Frunze Military Academy in Moscow and in Germany.

Farmville Man Indicted For Cigarette Shipments

NEW BERN—A federal Grand Jury has indicted a Farmville man for violation of the federal mail fraud statutes in the interstate shipment of cigarettes.

A True Bill of Indictment was returned by the U.S. Grand Jury here yesterday charging Clarence Ray Prescott, 40, of Farmville, J. Gordon Dildy, 21, of Wilson, Bobby Burnett of Wilson and Patricia Brewer, 24, of Atlantic Beach with violation of mail fraud statutes.

Prescott was charged under a 15 count indictment.

According to U.S. Attorney Thomas P. McNamara, the indictments were the result of extensive investigations by inspectors of the U.S. Postal Service.

Prescott's indictment charges him with violations of the mail fraud statutes in the "interstate shipment of cigarettes from Vanceboro, N.C. to the states of Florida, Illinois, Nebraska and Texas.

The indictments claim that a fraud was committed upon out-of-state purchasers who received cigarettes by the U.S. Mail in that they "were not advised that they were required to pay the cigarette taxes which were imposed by the state in which they resided."

"Also an alleged fraud was committed on the states involved in that the defendants failed to report interstate shipments as required by law, and thereby prevented the states from collecting substantial cigarette revenues," according to McNamara.

RECEIVING REFUND

My husband sent his North Carolina income tax return in on Jan. 17, expecting a refund. We have not received it yet. I called the local revenue office and they told me that we couldn't do anything until after June 30. I feel his check has been lost because we have been having trouble getting our mail lately. Mrs. H.R.

Your premonition of a mail mix-up was a good one. Hotline contacted the Individual Income Tax Division of the N.C. Dept. of Revenue and spoke with R.F. Moser. According to Moser, your husband's refund check was mailed Feb. 20 and returned to their office Feb. 25, marked undeliverable by the Post Office. The mailing address he gave Hotline was the same as the one you indicated was given on the tax return. Moser told Hotline the check would be revalidated and mailed again to your home address, as they had no other way to reach you. You told Hotline you would put the Post Office on the alert to your mail problems.

ARE USED CAR BUYERS PROTECTED?

Are there any consumer protection laws for buyers of used cars? Mrs. H.G.

According to Rosemary Green of the Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's office, the used car buyer is protected—if a written warranty is given him when the purchase is made, or if a verbal agreement is made concerning a warranty or the condition of the automobile. She said verbal agreements are much harder to prove in court, but witnesses can strengthen the consumer's case.

She told Hotline that used car buyers, to avoid later problems with warranties, should examine written contracts for statements that the buyer is accepting the car "as is" before signing anything. Get it in writing and know what the writing says, should be a rule of thumb, Miss Green emphasized.

WHY NOT RENOVATE?

Seeing the marvelous job ECU did renovating the Flanagan and Graham Buildings, it occurred to me—why couldn't older county schools be renovated instead of building new ones? Wouldn't it be cheaper, and wouldn't they lend a sense of community unity. The old Grifton and the Belvoir Grammar Schools are examples, I think. P.T.

Pitt County Schools Superintendent Arthur Alford said most studies of the alternatives for improved school facilities show that building anew is less expensive in terms of continued use. "We have to consider not only the initial cost, but the cost over the next 25 or more years of heating, cooling, maintenance, and additions, if needed," he said. Also we have to meet all the current codes, including some against architectural barriers which make our older schools with two or more stories and narrow doorways obsolete.

"Specifically, Grifton is very old, built in the 1920's and Belvoir was poorly constructed during the depression years," Alford said, adding that the schools appreciate the interest of citizens in this difficult responsibility of providing facilities for learning.

The Pitt Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees voted last night on who would represent Pitt Memorial on the Eastern Area Health Education Corporation Committee.

As one of the four large (more than 200-bed) hospitals in Eastern North Carolina, Pitt Memorial will have three representatives on the 42-member committee. The Board decided to have one medical staff representative elected by the medical staff; a board member chosen by the executive committee; and the hospital administrator.

Mrs. Sylvia Waters, R.N. and Mrs. Daisy Coward, LPN, reported on the use of the six-bed ambulatory medical-surgical unit opened last year. All the medical staff members have access to the unit for their patients who need to be in the hospital only a day or less time. Mrs. Waters said. Many surgical patients or patients having diagnostic work done come in at 8 a.m. and go home in the afternoon. The charge is $3 per hour, which considerably reduces the room rate for the patient.

The unit is also used as an overflow for the Emergency Room, especially at night and on weekends, Mrs. Coward said. Located adjacent to the emergency room, it virtually increases the emergency area from seven-bed capacity to 13. It also can be used for persons being admitted to the hospital who are unable to sit up and for whom there is no bed on a floor available at the time, if all the beds here are not filled. Some 1,195 patients used the AMSU between May, 1973, and May, 1974, Administrator Richardson said.

Hospital employees have received notes on the importance of conserving electricity, the Administrator reported. Only one brown-out period has been experienced so far this summer, and the Utilities Commission called then to alert the hospital to turn off all equipment they could to prevent damage.

The hospital budget is being worked on, and will be reviewed by the County Commissioners, it was announced.

Following the recommendation of the medical staff, the following actions were taken on staff privileges: provisional privileges in orthopedics for Dr. Gene Thomas Hamilton; active privileges in dentistry for Dr. Stephen Russell Bartlett; courtesy privileges for Dr. E. B. Aycock; and suspension of privileges to be followed by a period of six months probation for Dr. W. S. Dawson.

Approval was given for the substitution of the phrase, "limited number" for the word "occasional" in reference to the frequency of use of the hospital by members of the courtesy medical staff. This change applied to the medical staff by-laws recently reworked by a committee of the medical staff.

Architects' representative Ralph Hall reported that progress on the hospital is being slowed by a day each time it rains. Holes about four feet square and five feet deep are being dug for the foundation and each time it rains these have to be pumped out before work can continue, he explained. "Once we get past this stage, the weather shouldn't affect us so much," he said.

Hall reported that about $1 million has been paid out so far, and that such material is stored throughout the Greenville area, protecting the county from further increases in prices. Six per cent of the time allotted to build the hospital has been used and it is three per cent complete, he said.

Abby Agrees With This Hard-Nosed Businessman

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am 41 and my boyfriend is 43. We've gone together for six months, and have been considering marriage. We've both been married and divorced. I have worked for 23 years and have some money in the bank. Probably more than he has.

Out of curiosity mostly, I asked him if I could borrow $200. He said, "Yes, but you will have to sign a note." When I showed surprise, he added, "It wouldn't matter if it was my sister or brother. When it comes to money, I want a note."

I couldn't get over his attitude. Then I told him I really didn't need the money, I just wanted to see how he'd handle it, and he said I should write to you and get your opinion. So I'm writing.

CORKY

DEAR CORKY: I'm with him. A loan is a business deal, and he sounds like a hard-nosed businessman. I'll bet a lot more people regret not having asked for a note than regret having asked for one.

DEAR ABBY: A few months ago I met and fell in love with the most beautiful girl I've ever seen. She liked me, too, and soon she was staying with me, cooking my meals and taking care of my apartment. It seemed like an ideal setup, but there is just one problem: she works days in a massage parlor, and is a call girl at night.

She makes more in one night than I make in a whole week, but she never has any money because she likes to gamble, and she gives ten per cent of her earnings to the church.

Is there any way I can get her to quit taking those calls at night? She says she loves me, but she can't live on what I make.

A FOOL IN LOVE

DEAR FOOL: [You said it, I didn't.] So your lady love works in a massage parlor by day and is a call girl by night? When does she work you in? I'm afraid it's hopeless, unless you can make more, or she agrees to settle for less.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a peculiar one. I've been dating a very special young lady for the past two months. She is perfect in every way except for her elbows. They have got to be the ugliest matching pair I have ever seen. I've never mentioned this to her, but she must be aware of it because she keeps them hidden by long sleeves when possible.

I've met her parents only once and they both seem to have normal elbows so it's not hereditary. Could she have developed those ugly elbows through drug abuse? Or could she have had a vitamin deficiency when she was young?

I wouldn't hurt her feelings by asking her what happened to her elbows because I love her, but I wonder if you can tell me anything that might shed some light on the subject.

NAME WITHHELD BY REQUEST

DEAR NAME: It's entirely possible that the young lady's elbows are perfectly normal—it's your concept of ugliness that's far-out. As long as they bend in the right places and you say she is otherwise perfect and you love her, why not accept her as she is—elbows and all? I trust that you are a perfectly flawless man.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "CRYING A RIVER IN BUFFALO": Believe him. It's all over. I think you gave too much. There's nothing for him to come back for.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Couple Weds In Ceremony On Sunday Afternoon

Mrs. Evans Named Chapter President

Business Meeting Held By BPW Club Thursday

Miss Pridgen Entertained

Miss Angela Diane Faulkner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Lois Faulkner of Greenville, became the bride of Richard Allen Langley Sunday at 3:00 p.m.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Capt. Wayne Langley in The Salvation Army Citadel. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Shirley Harrington, organist, and Mrs. Cindy Faulkner, vocalist, sister-in-law of the bride.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Walter Langley of Greenville, and the late Mr. Langley.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white organza formal gown over peau de soie. The bodice had a sheer yoke and high neckline accented with Venise lace and seed pearls. The long bishop sleeves were finished with matching lace at the wrist.

Her three tiered floor length illusion veil was attached to a tiara headpiece of lace with pearls and sequins. She carried a white satin Bible with carnations and baby's breath. The bride is a student at J. H. Rose High School and is employed by Wachovia Computer Center. The bridegroom works at Burroughs Wellcome.

The matron of honor was Debbie Tyson of Reidsville. She was dressed in a formal gown of aqua and white chiffon over taffeta. The bodice was accented with lace and had inserts of ribbons and pink appliques. She wore a white brim hat with pink satin ribbon and carried a bouquet consisting of peonies, miniature carnations and baby's breath.

Bridesmaids were Debbie Faulkner, sister of the bride, Sheryl Langley, sister of the bridegroom, and Kathy Hathaway, cousin of the bridegroom, all of Greenville. Their gowns and flowers were identical to that of the honor attendant and their hats were aqua with white satin ribbon.

Flower girl Anita Rae Hemby of Greenville, cousin of the bride, wore a long aqua dotted swiss dress with pink flowers.

She wore a white peek a boo hat and carried a basket of rose petals.

Brady Smith of Greenville was ring bearer. Ushers were Jack, Charles and Gene Langley, brothers of the bridegroom. The best man was Kenneth Langley of Greenville, brother of the bridegroom.

The mother of the bride selected a formal gown of turquoise chiffon over taffeta fashioned with long sheer sleeves and empire waistline.

The mother of the bridegroom was attired in a full length lime green polyester gown and matching accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of white carnations.

Mrs. William Nichols, sister of the bridegroom, directed the wedding.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall given by the bride's parents.

The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with a candelabra with white bridal flowers. Mrs. Thurman Gray served cake and Mrs. Wayne Hemby, aunt of the bride, poured punch.

The couple will reside at Rt. 2, Greenville, after a wedding trip to unannounced points.

Mrs. Odell Evans was installed as president of Gamma Delta Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha at a dinner meeting held Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Frances Cassick.

Mrs. Odell Evans

The dinner also honored Anne Wooten, who is moving to Burlington. President Cassick paid tribute to Ms. Wooten and the work which she has done for the chapter.

During a short business session, Mrs. Cassick gave a report on the highlights of her year's work. The chapter voted to send an exceptional child to summer camp.

A pledge ceremony for Brenda Matthews was conducted by Rubelle Goin and Carol Stevens. Other officers installed by

Mrs. Cassick included: Vice President, Ruth Cox; Recording Secretary, Boots Barlow; Corresponding Secretary, Carol Stevens; Treasurer, Rubelle Goin; Parliamentarian, Arlene Collins; and Educational Director, Frances Cassick.

The chapter will resume meetings in September.

Gossip Gets Man In Fish Stew

INCA, Spain (WNS)—Maria Ruig, 32, served big Sunday dinner to her husband Luis in a way he never expected. She stormed into the local bar and poured the fish stew over his head. "Luis loves his food cooked just right, but he never gets home from the bar in time to eat it properly so he beats me up," she explained. Luis looked sheepish until six of his cronies apologized to Maria for keeping him drinking too late at the bar. Maria said later, "It's not the drinking that men do, but the gabbing at the bar that never finishes. Men gossip twice as much as we women."

Lucille Moore presided at the monthly meeting of the Greenville Business and Professional Women's club Thursday night at the Ramada Inn. Guests at the meeting were Catherine Swain and Mel Long of Greenville and Amanda Hansen of Winston-Salem. Miss Hansen has been in Greenville on a special assignment with the Social Security Office.

A report was made of the Board of Director's meeting held on May 23 at which the committee assignments were made. At that meeting, it was decided to create an Extension Committee to work with the newly organized Williamston Club, and Doris Marlowe was named chairman of the committee.

The Greenville club was presented with certificates awarded at the State Convention for sponsoring the Williamston Business and Professional Women's Club and also for its support of the Business and Professional Women's Club Foundation, a non-profit foundation, which assists women in career-advancement through scholarships and in other ways.

Working toward the ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment was one of the main themes of the State Convention, and Irma Worthington discussed the activities which took place at the State Convention regarding this. Arlene Mallison gave a report on the campaigns and activities of the persons running for state officers.

The Civic Affairs chairman, Natalie Grady, reminded the membership of the Democratic Precinct meetings to be held Tuesday and urged all of the Democrats in the club to attend these meetings which will be held at the regular voting places on June 18.

Camille Clarke presented the program, "Can Women Afford Health Care?" She emphasized the importance of diet in maintaining good health, and pointed out that a study had shown several years ago that forty-eight per cent of all children in North Carolina and twenty-seven per cent of all households in this state had inadequate diets. She discussed her work as a consultant to the Health Departments in thirty-three counties in N.C.

Mary Daugherty, the club president was chosen as the club's delegate to the National Convention which will be held in Chicago, July 21 through July 25. Arlene Mallison was chosen as the alternate delegate.

The annual club picnic will be held at the home of Irma Worthington on July 11 at 6:30.

Miss Ann Pridgen, July 7 bride-elect of Mike VanDyke, was honored Monday night at a floating miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. Bobby Gaylor.

Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Eleanor Scheipers and Mrs. David Lewis.

The honoree was remembered with a gardenia corsage.

The refreshment table was covered with a cutwork cloth and centered with an arrangement of pink snapdragons, Queen Anne's lace and other summer flowers flanked by pink lighted tapers. An arrangement of summer flowers was used in the living room.

Guests were greeted by Mrs. Gaylor.

Artificial Tobacco Tide Rises

If you are wondering where the artificial tobacco is that we heard so much about a few years back, we can assure you that it is still kicking around.

The Wall Street Journal reported June 11 that the search for artificial tobacco is intensifying. It appears that production of the artificial material will be centered in England where there is little tobacco grown and the tobacco industry is strictly government controlled.

There, Imperial Tobacco Co. has begun construction of a $25 million factory in Scotland to produce what will be called New Smoking Material (NSM). It is a joint venture with Imperial Developments Ltd. of Imperial Tobacco and Imperial Chemical Industries. Production start-up is scheduled for Sept., 1975.

In our country Celanese plans to begin production of a nontoxic cellulose material called Cytrel in 1975 in a plant in Maryland. Initially it, too, will be marketed in England.

Whatever happens in the artificial tobacco area, however, it doesn't appear now that it will adversely affect the natural grown tobacco. Indeed, the developers are looking for a world shortage in a few years. Imperial plans a blend of its artificial tobacco.

Whatever happens in the artificial tobacco area, however, it doesn't appear now that it will adversely affect the natural grown tobacco. Indeed, the developers are looking for a world shortage in a few years. Imperial plans a blend of its artificial tobacco of 10 to 20 percent with natural tobacco and Celanese has testing a blend with 40 percent Cytrel.

The world demand for tobacco has been rising despite the health warnings. The experts believe demand from Japan, Britain, Germany and our own country and other nations can exceed American tobacco production. In our own country demand is rising, with cigarette consumption increasing by 4.6 percent last year.

The development of artificial tobacco has not been a happy prospect for American tobacco growers; however tobacco consumption has been increasing and it appears that artificial tobacco, as now envisioned, can only be used as a blend with natural leaf.

Even with the health problems everything points to tobacco farming being an important part of the economy for many years to come. In our area tobacco is a major industry and it seems it will continue to be so for the foreseeable future.

Money Is The Stevens' Issue

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Money is very much on the mind of William E. Stevens as he stumps the state seeking election as a Republican to the U. S. Senate seat being vacated by Sam R. Ervin Jr.

Inflation, the Lenoir businessman said, is one of our most pressing problems, and the uncontrollable Federal budget is a key factor in that inflation.

Borrowing the theme song from his close friend and supporter, Stevens says he would "be happy to be compared to Charlie Jonas as the fiscal watchdog of the Senate side which he was for years in the House." Jonas, retired now after years of leadership in the Republican Party, is Stevens' campaign treasurer.

But it is not his own, or his campaign money, which Stevens said worries him so much—it is the pocketbook of every citizen in North Carolina which is being assaulted by the inflationary spiral.

Not Establishment

Despite his position as executive vice president of the multi-million dollar Broyhill Industries, former presidency of the Southern Furniture Manufacturers Association, former presidency of the N. C. Citizens Association (statewide organization of top businessmen), and his close relationships with the carpeted boardrooms of big business across North Carolina, Stevens said he is not running as an "establishment" candidate.

His Democratic opponent, Attorney General Robert Morgan, has raised the hackles of banking and utilities interests with his strong consumer orientation over the years. It is widely believed that so-called establishment backing will go to Stevens.

Stevens does not agree with that theory, and feels his principal strength and possibility of winning "is not really in those quarters . . . but I must appeal to the mass of families in North Carolina struggling to meet their daily expenses in the face of inflation.

"This is not a case of the establishment versus the consumer in this Senate race . . . we are all faced with the same problems."

Disliking political labels as much as most people, Stevens characterizes himself as "traveling down the middle of the road, veering slightly to the right or slightly to the left as the occasion may demand."

Wouldn't North Carolina have two conservative senators in Washington should Stevens win and join U.S. Senate. Jesse Helms, an outspoken conservative?

Stevens said he would not wear a conservative label. "Sen. Helms and I have compared notes on this very point, and agreed that we would agree on things in many areas. . . and disagree in many other areas. I will wear my own hat."

Stevens, at age 52 and the father of six, believes that his business and family experience have put him "at a point in life and career when I have something to offer. . . I can apply my judgment to North Carolina's problems and American's problems." Principal on his list of those are money (inflation), adequate health and medical care, and national confidence.

Lost Confidence

The Watergate thing, Stevens said, has caused a "loss of confidence in our leadership, disillusion, and frustration," and the only way to overcome that is to look past it and ahead at other problems.

Confidence can be restored by public officials who serve with devotion and integrity, he believes.

Recognizing that he has an identity problem statewide, Stevens plans to spend "several hundred thousand dollars" on intensive campaigning all across the state, using every outlet possible. But the campaign will not be based on gimmickry. "The public is turned off by gimmickry. . . I intend to make my campaign a straight on approach. . . and any surprises will be surprise at how hard I work."

On his prime topic of inflation, Stevens believes current steps to set up budget management laws with Congress drawing guidelines, priorities and spending limits pegged to income is a "possibility to do something dramatic" in curbing federal spending.

The other key inflationary factor, he said, is to recognize that inflation at home is "not just domestic . . . but worldwide" resulting from increasing pressure from underdeveloped countries to reach the standard of living enjoyed in this nation. That pressure, he feels, will continue to lead to development of industrial-business-governmental cartels among nations controlling certain commodities to push the prices higher.

He anticipates that such economic pressures exerted by the oil producing nations will come from many other areas—including copper and aluminum, other rare metals, even coffee and tea.

"Our domestic inflation hinges on worldwide pressures, and America must take a new position and new attitude in world trade on a different level from that traditional concept of colonialism which has held in the past," he said.

N.Y. Democrats Lack Optimism

By ROWLANE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y.

The reasons for the Democratic state convention's overwhelming endorsement of Howard Samuels for governor raises doubt whether New York Democrats can regain power in 1974 after 16 years in the wilderness even when blessed with every political advantage—a melancholy note for the party nationally.

The hard fact is that few Democrats view the energetic Samuels, former New York City off-track betting commissioner, as their best candidate. Yet, he captured 69 per cent of the state committee vote here last week against his only opponent, Rep. Hugh Carey, and is heavily favored to defeat him in the September primary.

This points up the structural inability of New York Democrats to fully cash in on lessons learned from long years of defeat. Regular party leaders, their power diminished and their confidence shattered by the inroads of reform, cannot control the state primary when light turnouts produce a leftward imbalance. In endorsing Samuels, regulars were less interested in winning the governorship than in clinging to their remnants of power. The significance is that with New York essential for national Democratic success, another defeat here would be a calamity.

Actually, this convention showed the party had absorbed some lessons from the horrible past, particularly the 1972 McGovernite binge. Though scarcely equaling the robotlike state Republican convention, it was orderly and unified by Democratic standards.

Unity was the watchword. A potentially divisive resolution demanding unconditional amnesty for Vietnam draft-dodgers was sidetracked. Even formerly wild-eyed McGovernites now admit New York Democrats will be doomed to perpetual defeat unless they recapture the middle-class Catholic vote.

This return to sanity coincides with Republican deterioration, inevitable after 16 years in power but hastened by Watergate. In addition, charismatic Nelson Rockefeller has been replaced as governor by colorless Malcolm Wilson. This, then, should be the year for the return of the Democrat.

The fact that Democrats here were nevertheless lacking in optimism can be traced to misgivings about Samuels, a self-made millionaire industrialist who is making his fourth bid for governor. Although off-track betting has made Samuels well-known to the neighborhood saloon set as "Howie the Horse," many politicians doubt any Jewish liberal can win back the Archie Bunker vote against Catholic conservative Malcolm Wilson. Moreover, centrist labor leaders (including the power Albert Shanker of the teachers' union) are bitterly opposed to Samuels.

Having gained the reputation of a moderately liberal and highly effective Congressman during the 14 years in Washington, Carey long has been regarded as an ideal candidate to win back the Catholic middle class. Slimmed down for the campaign, 25 pounds, he was the oratorical star of the convention with an eloquent three-minute speech Thursday afternoon.

It did not matter. Influential regular leaders, most significantly Meade Esposito of Brooklyn, weeks ago decided to back Samuels, and thereby lock up the endorsement. Although New York switched in 1970 from state conventions to primary elections to decide nominations, the state's Democrats have not broken their traditional habit of staying home on primary day. The 1970 primary turned out barely 20 per cent, dominated by educated, liberal New York City Jews. (Continued on page 5)

A Column For Everyone

WASHINGTON—The mailman keeps coming in every day delivering letters which indicate the country is polarizing on the impeachment issue. The Nixon supporters blame the whole thing on the press. The Nixon detractors say the press hasn't been tough enough. What to do?

As someone who is always trying to please everyone, I believe I have a solution. I got it from the "inaudibles" on the presidential tapes. This column is the first one printed in a newspaper which will take care of both the pro-Nixon and anti-Nixon forces. Steady Housing Decline

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government statistics show that the housing industry's deepest decline apparently has not struck bottom.

For prospective buyers entering the busiest home-shopping season, statistics released Tuesday by the Commerce Department mean continued rising prices and fewer new houses to choose from.

For the nation's economy, it means the industry that the administration once expected to lead the way to a rally instead will be a drag on productivity and employment.

The figures showed construction starts on new housing units in May were 38 per cent below a year earlier. Building permits issued were 43 per cent below a year ago.

Commerce said housing starts, after adjustment for seasonal variations, fell in May to an annual rate of 1,450,000 units, a drop of more than 1 million since construction peaked at 2,509,000 units in September 1972. The worst previous drop since the government began keeping records after World War II was in 1966, when housing starts dipped by 850,000 units before bouncing back.

Building permit issuances for construction, meanwhile, dwindled to 1,055,000 units, a seven-year low.

Housing Secretary James T. Lynn called the figures disappointing, but said House consideration due Thursday of a housing and urban development bill offers some hope. Another version — which the administration dislikes — already has passed the Senate.

But housing economists were more discouraged, particularly by the dwindling building permits. The permits anticipate actual construction by an average of about seven months, which one economist said means there won't be any recovery this year.

Michael Sumicrast of the National Association of Home Builders predicted monthly housing starts will sink to 1.2 million before hitting bottom. Total starts probably will be 100,000 below earlier estimates, or 1.5 million for this year compared to the just over 2 million started last year.

"The big villain is inflation and the inflationary psychology," said Marshall Kaplan, an economist with the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

President Nixon initiated May 10 a series of federal pro-

Public Forum

To the editor:

I note in the Reflector that Attorney General Morgan is finally resigning his job, having been named as the Democratic nominee to succeed Senator Sam Ervin. And he's griping about that!

Legally and morally, Mr. Morgan was obligated to resign his position the minute he announced his candidacy for another elective office—not in August or in any other month—but then and there.

But what did he do? You name it! I have been told on good authority that he not only did not resign, but made use of his office and employees during the campaign. Please correct me if I am wrong, and I will be happy to apologize publicly and privately.

Now, let's get down to business: In another North Carolina county a good friend of mine decided to run for office—same campaign and same time. He was told in no uncertain terms that he would have to resign his then present position, even though he depended upon it for a livelihood, which he needed.

He did, not knowing what the future would bring. But through his loyal friends, and very little money—he made it big!

Would someone kindly enlighten me as to the difference between Atty. Gen. Morgan and my little country friend.

Old Word Meanings Strained

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—So extreme is the current economic scene that the meanings of trusted old words are being strained. Some may well be abandoned for the time being in favor of more descriptive terms, such as:

—The shock market, otherwise known as the stock market. For those seeking big capital gains it has been just one shock after another. Some investors now are so punchy they fear an advance, convinced it is only the prelude to a bigger decline.

—The crime rate, still known popularly as the prime rate, or the borrowing charge that banks assess their best corporate customers. It is now around 11.5 per cent, and many borrowers are convinced it is plain robbery.

Many consumers feel the same way, noting the tendency of businesses to pass on their higher costs in the form of higher prices. In 1947 the prime rate was only 1.75 per cent, or roughly one-sixth what it is now.

Ironically, the justification offered for high interest rates is that they are anti-inflationary. The Federal Reserve Board, for example, insists that a tight-money, high-interest rate policy is needed to curb inflation.

—Ravings, sometimes known as savings. The latter term still might be serviceable if money left in the bank really grew. But it seldom does anymore. It can't grow, in fact, if the rate of inflation exceeds the interest rate.

In the 12 months to April, consumer prices rose 10.2 per cent, far exceeding the highest rates that savings institutions are allowed to pay. The highest permissible rate on savings accounts is less than 8 per cent, compounding included.

The net result is a loss of buying power, whereas the word "saving" suggests that something is maintained or even added to.

—The fudge-it, also called the budget. Most families have what they call a budget to help them allocate funds, to aid them in using their money wisely, to help prevent waste. But then they fudge.

An increasingly common technique for living on a busted budget is to borrow money in order to meet bills. The appearance of a budget remains, but its guidelines are ignored, often out of necessity. The budget is fudged.

Pass through—remember the term; it has become the popular justification for price increases. The raw material supplier passes through to the manufacturer who passes through to the wholesaler . . .

On through the system the increase moves, passed like a bucket of water from one to another until it reaches you. And that's where the bucket stops; you're left holding it.

Strength For Today

USING WHAT WE HAVE

The great artist, Murillo, once found that he had suddenly run out of canvas on which to paint. A friend, sitting with him in his studio, jestingly threw a napkin to him and said, "Paint on this." Taking the friend on his word, Murillo painted a famous Madonna on the napkin which today adorns the altar of a famous church.

We are told in Exodus that when the Lord appeared to Moses and instructed him to lead the children of Israel out of their captivity in Egypt, Moses demurred, saying he had no ability or equipment for such a task. "What hast thou in thy hand?" asked the Lord. Moses replied, "A rod." And with this seemingly ineffectual instrument Moses carried out his great task.

The lesson is that if we take what we have and make the best of it we can often accomplish things we previously thought impossible. For Moses the humble rod became an instrument of liberty; for Murillo the napkin became a masterpiece.

Auctions His Services As Small-Town Doctor

By PETER B. SEYMOUR
Associated Press Writer
MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Ron McIver's future is up for sale.

He's auctioning his eventual services as a small-town doctor in exchange for a subsidy that would get him through medical school.

His contract offer is being made to many of the rural communities which the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare identifies as needing general practitioners but too poor to guarantee a prosperous medical practice.

"The idea isn't new," McIver said. "The Army, Navy and U.S. Health Service will pay your medical school tuition if you agree to work for them a while after graduation."

"But I am not the Army type, and you don't have any choice where you go when you're finished with school. The obvious thing to do is to pick the town I want," he said.

He said his plan also would give him greater mental freedom while in school. He accused medical colleges of programming students to become lucrative big-city specialists rather than rural family doctors.

McIver, who lives in Madison, Wis., says he figures his taste in lifestyle is sufficiently modest to assure him comfort as an osteopath in a community of 600-1,200 population. He said he wants a quiet town with pleasant people and a lake beside which he, his wife and daughter can camp and fish.

Thus the approximately 75 needy towns he has chosen from medical society rosters are found in the lake-dotted states of Wisconsin, Maine, Minnesota, Washington and Oregon.

McIver, a native of Greensboro, N.C., has taken pre-medical courses at the University of Wisconsin in Madison, from which he recently was graduated.

He said replies to his letters have run the range from enthusiasm to "a couple of puzzled responses: 'Is this guy serious?'"

Of 30 Wisconsin towns he has contacted since he began his search four months ago, 20 have responded with positive curiosity. He is negotiating with four in particular, he said.

He asks that his sponsor provide tuition, fees and a monthly stipend for living expenses. He said he has been accepted at Michigan State University and the Kansas City College of Osteopathic Medicine.

"I'll guarantee a year of service for each year in school," he said.

The only fringe benefit he insists upon is that there be a pleasant body of water nearby.

"I can sit and watch it and fish in it," he said. "I am not a powerboat man."

Stars Play For 'Scale' On TV

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Musical groups that draw $50,000 or more for a concert work for scale on the TV rock shows — about $300. And they like it, says Don Kirshner.

Kirshner, who pioneered rock on late-night television with ABC's "In Concert" and his own syndicated "Rock Concert," explained, "Although they only get scale for a show, the inducement is that the television appearance might enhance a star's record sales by $50,000.

"It exposes him to a whole new audience. This is particularly true with new talent."

Kirshner said he believes even the biggest stars will continue to work for scale.

Rock is fairly well established on the tube, albeit mostly in the wee hours. Besides his two shows, there is NBC's "Midnight Special," which also goes into other areas; "Soul Train," which features only black stars; and the syndicated talk show for rock stars, "Speak Easy."

Kirshner, 39, is a leading entrepreneur in the music business. At 24, he founded his own music publishing and record company and later became president of Colgem Records. He managed the musical publishing works for the Beatles and, since their breakup, for John Lennon and Paul McCartney.

He created the musical group for "The Monkees," a TV show a few years back, and then did it again for "The Archies," an animated group on a Saturday morning cartoon show.

He is looking for a prime-time series in the vein of "The Monkees" and "The Partridge Family." But with the added realism of today's TV comedy.

"It would be a combination of music and comedy," he said. "The country is ready to laugh. If you can combine that with warm and appealing kids, I'm sure it will take off."

Local Student Among Scholars

LAURINBURG—Joseph Lee Howell will be one of 60 students participating in the St. Andrews Science Scholars Program to be held from July 14 to August 16 at St. Andrews Presbyterian College in Laurinburg. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Howell of 132 Longmeadow Road in Greenville. Joey will be a senior at J.H. Rose High School in Greenville next year.

Participants for this National Science Foundation sponsored program were selected from among hundreds of high ability applicants. The students will live on campus and study and utilize such techniques as computers and electron microscopy under the direction of St. Andrews professors.

One of the benefits of the activity is the chance to meet and interact with other science-interested students, who, this year, will be coming from 17 states, the District of Columbia, and American Samoa.

The result: a ticket with four Jews and one black.

New York regular leaders, no longer "bosses" but now engaged in precariously balancing conflicting interests, have lost confidence in their ability to win primaries. This distorted decisions last week on the state ticket. Although 1974 could be the year to beat liberal Republican Sen. Jacob Javits, every possible moderate Democratic foe had to answer this question: could he beat former Atty. Gen. Ramsay Clark, the transplanted Texas whose outlandish leftwing posture would taint the entire ticket if he were nominated?

Nor do the regulars want a dangerous power struggle with the reformers for party posts. Thus, the regular leaders backed Samuels mainly because they felt unable to defeat him with Carey in the primary.

However, two key regulars deeply interested in a November victory, Pat Cunningham of the Bronx and Dominic Baranello of suburban Suffolk County, broke ranks to support Carey. That gave him over 31 per cent of the vote, putting him on the September primary ballot.

Carey's strategists hope that effective precinct organization, built from remnants of the old Kennedy apparatus and drawing from organized labor, will enlarge the primary turnout by bringing in ethnic middle-class voters.

Few Democratic politicians agree. They believe Samuel's superb organization will get out his vote to swamp the low-turnout primary. "It makes me sad to see Hughie do so well," one party veteran told us after Carey's speech here. "There's no doubt he'd make a great candidate and there's no way we can nominate him." New York Democrats seemingly have not fully satisfied their death wish after 16 years of trying.

Govm't Will Buy Up Beef, Pork

By BRIAN B. KING
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — To aid the nation's cattlemen and hog producers, the government will buy up to $100 million of beef and pork.

Kenneth Rush, economic counselor to President Nixon, said Tuesday the meat would be bought this summer and distributed to school lunch programs.

John Chapman Early Ecologist

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — Johnny Applesseed, legendary orchardist of 18th century America, was the hippie ecologist of his time.

He had a mystical love for nature and all growing things. He worked tirelessly to preserve the apple tree and plant it widely.

Johnny's real name was John Chapman. Born in 1774, he walked thousands of miles across Ohio River settlements distributing apple seeds. He also helped clear wilderness areas and plant the seeds, says the New Jersey State Department of Agriculture.

"By buying now we help the cattlemen and hog producers, who are suffering from low prices, and we help prevent future dislocations in the market that would adversely affect consumer prices," Rush said.

Agriculture Department officials declined to predict how the new meat purchases might affect consumer prices. But one department official said midwestern markups have been wide enough so that it might be possible for meat packers and retailers to absorb the purchases without passing further costs on to family shoppers.

The president of the American Meat Institute, Richard Lyng, said the action "should not have any major impact on retail prices. But it could have the effect of encouraging some producers to stay in business."

The exact amount of the purchases and the breakdown between beef and pork was not announced. If the entire amount were spent on beef, for example, it would mean about 100 million pounds of hamburger, which is several days' cattle slaughter.

The Agriculture Department has purchased about 105 million pounds of beef and pork during the fiscal year ending June 30.

Claire Robinson, president of the Kansas Livestock Association, and Paul Nauer, president of the National Farmer Organization in Kansas, called the purchase "a drop in the bucket."

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., said, "This ought to give the cattlemen a shot in the arm. Maybe the market will go up two or three cents."

Arch Booth, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, said the government should encourage increased consumption of beef rather than having the government "bail out" the meat industry.

The purchases were among the major demands of Midwest congressmen and cattlemen, who also want the military to step up its meat buying.

Livestock prices have fallen steadily at the farm level for eight months while holding relatively high at the retail level.

Other proposed remedies being sought are moratoriums on meat imports, consideration of some form of credit relief for cattle areas and probes of the middlemen's share of the retail price.

Can Food In 55-Gal. Drums

DENVER (UPI) — A new aseptic canning process announced by a California company makes it possible to pack fruit and vegetables safely in 55 gallon drums. A drum is comparable to 75 No. 10 cans of the sort used for institutional feeding. The process permits canning in natural juices without syrups, according to the School Foodservice Journal here.

Green Soybean Good Vegetable

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — While mature dry soybeans are a popular source of protein, green soybeans can be used as a vegetable and grown in a household's garden, says the University of Illinois College of Agriculture. The beans are higher in calcium and vitamin A than peas and contain vitamin C which is lacking in peas. The plants are drought-resistant, productive and easy to grow. Some varieties are better than others as garden plants.

Disclose Sums Given To Zoo

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP)—The North Carolina Zoo reports a good start in plans to purchase a variety of animals, thanks to efforts of high schools, clubs and organizations across the state.

Jamestown High School and Ragsdale High School in High Point have raised $2,000 for a pair of Bengal tigers.

A campaign is underway in Raleigh and Wake County to raise $28,000 to purchase two giraffes. North Carolina State University basketball player Monte Towe has been helping the drive.

Zoo officials say the 1,371-acre zoological park near Asheville will be the first total natural habitat zoo in the world. Animals will be kept both indoors and outdoors in barless, cageless surroundings intended to be like their native environments.

Trinity High School has donated $2,000 for a polar bear. Eastern Randolph High has contributed $250 for a wildcat.

Other funds contributed for the purchase of animals include: Thomasville High School, $300 for a pair of African porcupines.

Ecology Club of Southeastern Guilford High School, $100 for a pair of toucans, brightly colored tropical birds.

Asheboro Jaycettes, $50 for a toucan.

East Wilkes High School, Rhonda, $150 for a white-tailed deer.

Gamma Phi Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi sorority, Asheboro, $150 for a bushbaby, a small tree-dwelling primate from Senegal, Africa.

Central High School, High Point, $2,000 for a pair of bison. Pleasant Garden Elementary School, $60 for a female prairie dog and a peacock.

Bethel Primary School, second grade class, $5 toward the purchase of an anteater.

In addition, Forest Hills High School in Marshville donated $150 to be spent according to the wishes of zoo director William Hoff.

Officials said funds had been raised by zoo supporters through bake sales, car washes, rent-a-kid services, bike-athons, school dances and similar events.

Everybody's On The Town Ballot

BEVERLY BEACH, Fla. (AP) — There's never a voter recognition problem during local elections in this tiny Atlantic Coast town. All 18 registered voters know each other, and they're all on the ballot.

"We just put everybody on the slip," says city clerk Marcella Leatherwood, whose husband, Granville, is mayor. She said those who get the most votes "turn out to be our mayor and city commissioners."

The mayor and five commissioners are elected annually in a nonpartisan vote. Mrs. Leatherwood says the system has worked without a hitch since the town of 80 residents was incorporated 19 years ago.

"We've had some close elections, even ties, but I never heard a nasty word or seen evidence of any hurt feelings," she says. "Folks just abide by the vote 'cause it's the democratic way."

Two years ago, two citizens were deadlocked for one commissioner post. A special ballot was drawn and a second vote broke the tie.

Leatherwood, 58, was re-elected mayor last month. The incumbent five commissioners also won.

All six elected posts are unsalaried, but Mrs. Leatherwood, 57, says there has been some talk of offering a stipend for her appointed job.

"There's so much red tape with the state and the federal revenue sharing," she says. "These bookkeeping duties would get the best of me if I didn't get help ... Those boys in Tallahassee and Washington want five or six copies of everything."

Beverly Beach, about 20 miles north of Daytona Beach, has for years successfully fought off annexation proposals by neighboring Flagler Beach.

But the town may begin to expand if a proposed mobile home complex is annexed.

Arrest Son Of ABA President

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Police here say they arrested the son of American Bar Association President Chesterfield Smith and the daughter of former Florida Board of Regents Chairman D. Burke Kibler for streaking.

The young couple were reported to have dashed nude at 3 a.m. Tuesday through a pancake house where a Lakeland police officer was taking his lunch break.

Jacqueline Kibler of Lakeland and Chesterfield Harvey Smith of Bartow, both 21, were released on $300 bond and told to appear in court June 27 to answer indecent exposure charges.

The elder Smith said, "I don't excuse any conduct that is a violation of the law at all, but I'm sympathetic to my son and I'll be working with him to assist him in any way that I can involving his problems."

Smoke Detection Devices Slated

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina will require automatic smoke-detection devices in all new mobile homes after Sept. 1 and in all new apartments and homes by the end of the year.

The regulations, adopted without fanfare earlier this year by the state Building Codes Council, are expected to reduce the number of persons who die from smoke inhalation.

Kern Church, council secretary, said Tuesday that the devices cost about $40. They trigger an alarm when smoke accumulates, he said.

According to Church, Ohio is the only other state with such a requirement.

Eyes Windmill System To Fill Power Needs

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Sea breezes have better uses than sailing boats, flying kites and drying laundry, says a college professor. He has in mind giant windmills that would generate all New England's electricity.

"This is an energy resource that's right here in our front yard," says Prof. William E. Heronemus.

The front yard is New England's 473-mile coastline. And the resource is the wind that whistles up and down the coast at an average speed of 20 miles an hour.

If enough windmills were anchored off the coast, all the region's electricity could come from the air by the 1990s, he says. And it would only cost about three-fifths of what people are paying now.

The professor is a civil engineer at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst who specializes in alternate sources of energy.

Getting people to take the wind seriously has been a problem for Heronemus. Their skepticism starts to show when he tells them how many windmills it would take: 14,700 anchored off the coast at distances ranging from 12 to 200 miles from shore.

Each windmill would be a diamond shaped, lattice work mast rising 340 feet above the water. Each would hold three massive propellers 200 feet in diameter.

With 14,700 windmills outfitted with three propellers each, "that's 40,000 generators," Heronemus says. "I claim this is part of the reason for its success. You could set up a factory type of production that could get this down to a very, very reasonable cost."

He says his system could churn out 159 billion kilowatt hours of electricity a year — four times as much as the six New England states used last year. And the load could be doubled without any problems, he says.

Heronemus says that there are technological questions about the scheme, but he says they can be worked out.

One is designing the propellers so they will turn easily and withstand hurricanes. Another is what to do when the wind is calm.

William Irving, director of research and environmental affairs for Boston Edison, said utilities are studying the uses of wind, and it might be a good source of electricity in the future. But right now, they are going ahead with a program to build nuclear power plants.

William Jones, a staff associate at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Energy Laboratory, said generating electricity by wind is a definite possibility, but more money must be spent to work out the technology.

Six Objectives In Saving Resources

Six objectives for the conservation and development of fish and wildlife resources have been selected by the Pitt County Fish and Wildlife Resource Committee, according to James N. Galloway, chairman. The Committee was recently appointed by the Mid-East Resource Conservation and Development Council.

The objectives are: develop more and better fish and wildlife programs on public and private lands; insure that adequate access to public fishing waters are provided; plan for the orderly development of lands so as to insure that wildlife, natural and scenic areas, such as greenbelts, are maintained; acquaint the people with the abundance of species of wild animals and plants that we have in this region; take steps to maintain and improve the stream fisheries in the region, especially the shad, herring and rock fish; and to protect and enhance the habitat of rare and endangered plant and animal species.

Other Fish and Wildlife Committee members serving with James Galloway are Marshall Colcord; Roger Collines, III; Jackie R. Harrington; Roger P. Taylor and Hershel Williams. Committee Advisors are Dr. Vincent Bellis, Dr. Charles O'Rear, and Kay Dunn.

These six objectives selected by the Pitt County Committee will be presented to the Mid-East Regional Fish and Wildlife Resource Committee for inclusion in the Mid-East RC&D long-range plan, Galloway reported. The Mid-East RC&D covers Beaufort, Bertie, Hertford, Martin and Pitt Counties.

The important part of the RC&D Project will be the proposal of specific measures that can be carried out to reach these objectives. The Committee members need help to come up with ideas from anyone who will propose projects for the Mid-East RC&D long-range plan, Galloway concluded.

Recaptured One Of 5 Escapees

YADKINVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Authorities announced the capture Tuesday of Harold Hall, one of five inmates who fled a state prison unit near Yadkinville Monday night.

Officers said Hall, 28, of King, was picked up about 2 p.m. a few miles from the unit. Three of the five remain at large.

Railway Historical Society Enjoys A Train Ride

Reflector Staff Writer
FARMVILLE—The conductor shouted "ALL ABOARD", the bell clanged, the whistle blew, and the passengers settled back for the train ride. All usual occurrences at a train station, these series of events were taking place in Farmville last Sunday, where a passenger train hasn't stopped over in many a year. The scene was the spring outing of Chapter 67 of the East Carolina Chapter of the National Railway Historical Society. Comprised of some 43 members, the Farmville chapter's membership is now scattered from Farmville to San Francisco, but the interest in old trains is still there. Last Sunday some 60 fans of railroading gathered in Farmville to take a short ride on the old East Carolina tracks from Farmville to Jarvis Joyner's Crossroads and back. Farmville's chapter owns six pieces of old railroad equipment, two flat cars, a caboose, two engines and a baggage-postal car.

Activities of the chapter include work days spent maintaining their equipment and a few social gatherings when the families gather, the small diesel engine is fired up and the tracks of the old East Carolina Railroad are again put into use. Bob Newton, vice-president of the local chapter states membership into the chapter requires two things, an interest in railroading and payment of membership fees.

There are 110 chapters of the NRHS throughout the country, with memberships from 10 members up. Farmville's Chapter is fortunate to have acquired several pieces of equipment, as only 20 percent of the chapters own equipment. The engines were surplus government equipment used to pull cars around a military supply yard in Norfolk and Cherry Point while the flat cars both came from Cherry Point. Their 1923 caboose was donated by the Seaboard Coastline Railroad and the baggage-postal car from the Southern Railroad.

Newton states the chapter hopes to have the baggage car put back into shape in the near future and placed on display.

Chapter meetings are sometimes held in the caboose, where a small wood stove provides heat in the winter.

Also located in the caboose is an old ice box used in the past for storage of food items for the train crews.

The membership in Chapter 67 has railroading deep in the blood, one of the directors is the son of the former owner of the old East Carolina Railroad which ran from Tarboro through Farmville, Henry C. Bridgers Jr.

But membership doesn't require an ancestor in railroading, just a love for the smell and sound of trains and everything that went with them.

WOODEN CABOOSE. . . The 1923 caboose owned by the local chapter was built in 1923 and has been rebuilt by the members. A stroll through the wooden structure gives an inkling of the living conditions the old railroaders put up with on their jobs.

CHAPTER EQUIPMENT. . . Part of the old railroad equipment owned by Chapter 67 of the National Railroad Historical Society is a 1923 caboose, former military flat car used to transport tanks and a diesel electric engine, extreme background, used at the Norfolk Shipyard until a few years ago.

Gold Prices Hurt Beirut's Artisans

By HARRY KOUNDAKJIAN
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The artist who makes your Oriental gold necklaces is in trouble.

With the price of gold zooming, nearly 70 per cent of Beirut's artist-goldsmiths are out of work because business has dropped off sharply.

Tourists with money to spend seem to be buying less expensive silver handiwork and the wealthy Arab sheiks from the Persian Gulf are buying bullion, according to goldsmiths here.

"Things have really come to a standstill," said one of them, Hagop Kahvejian. "In the old days, the gold souk (market) was a must for visitors to Beirut. They still come but they aren't buying gold items any more because the price has gone sky high."

In Beirut, a free market for all kinds of precious stones and metals exists. Nearly 90 per cent of the goldsmiths do their own processing. Rich traders with imported electric machines account for the rest.

The Lebanese government maintains strict control of the karat markings on all gold jewelry and penalties are heavy if there is any shady dealing.

Some traders have received jail sentences of five years and lost their licenses for trying to dilute their product. The Ministry of Finance controller in the market also lost his job when one case came to light.

The bracelets on display in the dozens of shops in the old, covered souk may be 24 karat pure gold with no brass or silver added but they are soft to handle.

Usually, the bracelet is graded anywhere from 18 to 21 karats and contains brass and silver so that it will stand up to daily use. But chains, small charms and crosses are graded 9 to 14 karats.

Kahvejian, 32, the son and grandson of goldsmiths and one of the hundreds of Lebanese Armenians who work in the gold souks, says life is becoming difficult for him and his colleagues.

"It's becoming tougher to compete with electronic machines and the high cost of gold," he said. "Imports of machine produced gold from Italy hurt but the grade is not too pure."

"Ours is purer and a lot of sweat goes into producing the jewelry we make. But what's the use of seeing your hand work in the window all the time, getting dustier every day? It would be better to not work anymore."

There are 945 miles of street in San Francisco and 38,812 street lights.

Special Courses To Set U.S. History Straight

By WARREN TALBOT
NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Do you know that half of George Washington's army stayed behind when he made the famous crossing of the Delaware River because there weren't enough boats?

Or that the Battle of Bunker Hill in Massachusetts actually was fought on nearby Breed's Hill?

With the nation's Bicentennial approaching, Donald Magee thinks the realities of the American Revolution should be made known — and shown — to people.

Magee is coordinator of a summer program at Salve Regina College, which he said is designed "to take the 'history' out of history books and blow the dust off our Colonial past."

"Too many people think of history in 'founding father' terms rather than in terms of the real people and issues involved," he said. "We hope to give our students a genuine insight into the personalities — Washington had a terrible temper — and the events of our Revolution by humanizing history."

The four-week course entitled "The Phenomena of a Revolution" includes a schooner trip to Mystic, Conn., and visits to battle sites at Saratoga, N.Y. and Bennington, Vt.

The course will begin with a Revolutionary War musicale of sea chanteys and slave music.

The course is one of 76 major activities sanctioned by the Rhode Island Bicentennial Commission which stands out with conspicuous success compared to commissions in some other states.

Rhode Island is believed to be the only state in the nation in which every city and town — there are only 39 — has a local bicentennial group working on activities leading up to the national celebration two years hence.

"Bicentennial commissions in other states are having trouble deciding whether they are tourist agencies or should be planning a celebration for all people in their state to participate in," said Paul M. Giacobbe, Rhode Island Commission executive director.

Rhode Island, Giacobbe said, has taken a different approach. "What we did was maximize public involvement. We asked people to tell us what they think should be done. Vast numbers responded and as a result our commission is working on what people want, not what the state alone thinks is important."

The American Revolution course at Salve Regina College is part of the commission's concept.

NOISY CROWD?

LONDON (AP) — Mrs. Ann Shifrin and her husband caused a traffic jam outside their home here in Camberwell by projecting protest messages on to the side of St. Giles Church opposite. The couple complained that when the church bells were ringing they could not get their children to sleep. A large crowd gathered to read the messages.

Sometimes you can actually pay a lower price for higher quality. That sometime is now.

When it comes to macaroni, no one tops Skinner. You see, we take a lot of pride in the way we make our pasta. Every Skinner product starts with 100% Amber Durum Wheat Semolina, the finest pasta ingredient in the world. That's why Skinner looks better, cooks better, tastes better. Most other brands mix Amber Durum Semolina with lower quality wheats. And if a product starts with less than the best, it ends up being less than the best.

Of course, top quality ingredients cost a little more. So sometimes you have to pay a few extra cents for Skinner. But right now you can buy the very best for less than what you usually pay for ordinary macaroni. Just clip the coupon and save 10¢. Municipal Annexation Law Given Mixed Reviews

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer

North Carolina's municipal annexation law has been praised as a model of orderly urban development and condemned as a ploy for achieving taxation without representation.

The statutes, adopted in the late 1950's and later modified, give urban planners a means for orderly growth and expansion. But property owners can find their real estate taxes doubled, and unless the annexing city makes a procedural error, they have little recourse.

"The general principle of municipal law is that the cities are total creatures of the General Assembly," said Frank Gray, an attorney for the North Carolina League of Municipalities.

"The General Assembly can expand or contract city boundaries by law or give the city the power to expand by law."

Under state law, municipalities can annex adjoining areas without consent of the residents if the property meets certain standards of development. The city must serve notice that it plans annexation, and hold public meetings on the subject.

Once it announces annexation, property owners—but not renters—have 30 days to appeal.

The grounds for appeal are limited. Basically, property owners must show either:

- That the city cannot meet the deadlines for providing services such as fire, police or water of the same standard as in other areas.
- That the area is not developed according to standards set forth in the law.
- That the city failed to follow procedures such as serving notice or conducting public hearings.

Since urban residents are subject to both city and county taxes, forced annexation is unpopular with many property owners.

"I resent the decision being made by politicians not elected by my vote," said one resident of a newly annexed area of Charlotte. "That amounts to taxation without representation, which as I remember, is what the American Revolution was all about."

Most complaints center around money. When Charlotte annexed some 32 square miles last January, many property owners found their monthly mortgage payments increased by $25 to $30 to cover city taxes.

Although fire insurance, garbage collection and water-sewerage fees declined with annexation, most homeowners found themselves paying more once their property became part of the city.

"I plan to move into the county," said one retired man. "I can barely pay the county tax."

But Deputy Atty. Gen. James Bullock says the courts have dismissed arguments that forced annexation is unconstitutional.

"An area must be eligible for annexation and their plans for financing and providing services are the things that can be attacked," he said.

Standards of development for annexed areas vary according to the size of the adjoining town. For areas adjoining major cities, at least 60 per cent of the land must be in use for other than farming, and at least 60 per cent of the residential acreage must be in lots of five acres or less.

"The thrust of the law is that what has become urban must be incorporated into a municipality," Gray said.

Some counties have successfully petitioned the General Assembly for exemption from the law, Gray said. However, over the years many of these, such as Dare County, have accepted the statutes, he said.

Urban planners, who praise the laws, argue that residents of fringe areas should pay for the services they receive by living near a city, such as streets, parks, water and sewerage, and recreational facilities.

Opponents claim they pay for these services through other means.

"Any county resident who goes to the city creates business by working or shopping there," said a Mecklenburg County resident.

However, as inflation hits city government, municipal leaders welcome the additional tax revenue that annexation brings. Charlotte officials recently announced that thanks to the annexation of some 43,000 persons, a tax increase would not be necessary during the next fiscal year.

"This allows for normal growth and development," said Gray. "It is unimpeded by several jurisdictions competing for the same royalties."

Lye Soap To 'Bridge' Gap

DAPHNE, Ala. (AP)—Mayor Glen Jordan has come up with something new to put this Mobile Bay town on the map: old-fashioned lye soap, just like grandmother made.

And, he says, it not only will get rid of dirt but will send the red bugs running.

In passing out complimentary bars to friends, he tells them it will "smooth wrinkles, remove warts, cure rheumatism and gout and grow hair."

Jordan said he prepared the concoction because "I wanted to bridge a generation gap backwards."

And what a concoction it is.

He began by saving wood ashes from willow, hickory and ash to which he added a careful blend of ash from a demolished outhouse.

With the right amount of lye he added a deft touch of coon fat and other fats left over in the kitchen.

To complete the blend Jordan threw in a dash of water from Pole Cat Creek, and poured it all into a huge iron kettle over a blazing fire.

To give the lye soap an acceptable fragrance, he added a handful of mint leaves.

Mrs. Jordan says it's great for washing clothes and dishes and removing grease and tar.

Jordan has produced 75 bars of lye soap so far. He says he means no particular implication when he gives them to people.

Beginning Of 'Bad Things'

NEW YORK (AP) — Martha Mitchell says the "beginning of a lot of bad things for Martha" happened on an evening when she became bored with a movie at Camp David and wandered into President Nixon's empty bedroom in search of something to read.

The estranged wife of former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell related the incident Tuesday on WCBS-TV's "Pat Collins Show," on which she is a co-host this week. She said it was customary at Camp David to show movies in the evening.

"This night, they had a movie I couldn't stand and I removed myself very quietly," she said.

"I walked into his bedroom, threw myself on the bed and looked for something to read. In that entire room all I could find was TV Guide," she said. "Then he came in."

"So the President didn't like you on his bed," commented musical comedy star Carol Channing, a guest on the show. Mrs. Mitchell didn't elaborate.

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—A search is on for an ailing prisoner from Raleigh, N.C., who walked out of a Charleston hospital last Sunday night.

Steve Mercer, 24, was arrested May 24 at Myrtle Beach in the holdup of a branch bank there. He had been admitted to the Charlestown County Hospital three days before his escape. He disappeared after his leg irons had been removed to allow him to go to the bathroom.

Grim Fact For World: Food Supply Dwindling Fast

By BERNARD BRENNER
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lester R. Brown, a widely quoted authority on world food supplies, has given up bacon and eggs for breakfast and cut his personal meat consumption about one-third by using substitutes.

Brown, a senior fellow at the Overseas Development Council here, is under no illusion that his change of diet will do anything to alleviate the spectre of famine in southern Asia and sub-Saharan Africa this year if world harvests fail to meet present forecasts.

His voluntary belt-tightening is a personal declaration, an example of what the well-fed Western nations should be doing at a time when "the world is likely to be highly vulnerable on the food front in the years ahead."
Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-

Minn., says Americans should use less fertilizer on their lawns so farmers in India would have more to grow wheat. A.H. Boerma, director general of the U.N. Food and Agricultural Organization, says that by mid-year, the world's food reserves will be down to a three-week supply.

If all Americans substituted grains, vegetable protein and other foods for one-third of their meat and poultry consumption, Brown estimates, there would be a net annual saving of 30-35 million tons of grain now used to feed animals. And a mere one million tons of grain would feed six million Indians for a year, he said.

But the outlook for the developing world is far grimmer. The reasons are incredibly complex, and given the precarious balance of world supply and demand, even the most insignificant factor a year ago becomes crucially important today.

The disappearance of anchovies off the Peruvian coast last year produced a rush on U.S. soybeans as a protein substitute for feeding cattle, and quadrupled the price of soybeans at one point. The Arab oil embargo and soaring fuel prices put the cost of fertilizer almost beyond the reach of some poor countries struggling to feed themselves.

"The poor nations, and the poor people within nations, are in an especially dangerous predicament," Brown said.

Elsewhere, Famine Threatens Paarlberg, ordinarily an optimist about the world's ability to feed itself, conceded that wide areas of Asia, Africa and parts of South America will be "in considerable jeopardy" this year without big harvests.

"Their stocks are low. The energy crisis has left fertilizer supplies short and high-priced and fuel is very high. Their foreign exchange reserves are reduced. If they get good crops, things are all right. If not, they're in serious trouble," Paarlberg said.

All experts agree India and other countries are suffering because the heavy demand for grain has cut world reserves to a minimum.

Paarlberg insists that even with bad harvests in the poor countries, the potential for a major famine this year has been greatly reduced by the prospect of bumper crops by the world's major grain exporters, including the United States, Canada and Australia.

But Brown believes the past year's boom in grain prices amounted to a death sentence for many poor people abroad.

"When people spend about 80 per cent of their income on food, as much of mankind does, a doubling in the price of wheat or rice cannot possibly be offset by increased expenditures," he said. "Instead, the price rise drives a subsistence diet below the subsistence level."

Many Factors Involved Among the factors behind the current crisis are:

—Unfavorable weather conditions, including the drought in sub-Saharan Africa, and damaging floods in southern Asia. Some experts believe these developments in recent years reflect a global change in climate, but others aren't sure.

—The steady, geometric advance in world population, now increasing by 70 million persons a year.

—A sharply higher demand for meat by consumers in the affluent nations, including Japan. This in turn means more of the world's grain goes into animals instead of feeding humans.

—The related but politically significant phenomenon of the Soviet Union abandoning its traditional austerity in years of poor harvests and turning to the West for grain imports, as it did in 1972 when it bought 400 million bushels of U.S. wheat.

Higher Production Possible A recent Agriculture Department study claims that by 1985, given good weather, prices and adequate supplies of fuel and fertilizer, American farmers can increase production of wheat by 40 per cent, feed grains by 50 per cent, soybeans 33 per cent and can double rice production.

But what if hungry people abroad cannot afford to buy it? One government economist said the United States and other wealthy countries will have to decide, in effect, whether to pay their farmers "to produce food specifically for aid."

In the past, the United States simply gave away surpluses piled up under federal price supports. Now, with market prices at record highs and much of the world desperate to buy American food, Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz seems committed to all-out farm production and exports to the highest bidders. He insists, however, that America also will help meet emergency shortages wherever they occur with direct food shipments.

At a time when American farmers are beginning to grumble about price declines caused by this year's big harvests, Butz is dead set against the government setting high farm price guarantees to pile up huge government-owned reserves. Eventually, his argument goes, such stockpiles would backfire by undercutting market prices and discouraging full production.

Humphrey Has Plan Humphrey has charged that "there seems to be almost no understanding of the gravity of the world food crisis in the Department of Agriculture." He has introduced legislation that would protect domestic farm prices and help encourage full production by funneling part of this year's potential surplus—if it really does outrun current needs—into a reserve stockpile partly controlled by the government for the benefit of other nations.

Butz says U.S. reserves should be controlled by private interests—farmers, traders and food processors—and not the government, and he firmly opposes suggestions for U.S. participation in an internationally controlled emergency food stockpile.

Diplomatically, the United States is likely to go into the world food conference convening in Rome in November—at the initiative of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger—stressing cooperation of the wealthy nations in offering technological assistance to help poor countries increase food production.

The conference also will be ready to discuss building world reserves, but unless Butz is completely overruled, this will not include approval of any massive internationally controlled granary.

FHA To Push Better Rural Housing Drive

James T. Johnson, State Director, Farmers Home Administration announced today that the agency has initiated a program to further encourage the use of existing housing and provide better homes for low-income rural families through low interest home improvement loans.

The agency can now provide "interest credit" to reduce the effective interest rate on loans made to rehabilitate or repair a dwelling that a borrower already owns, and either lives in or will live in once it is brought up to standard.

Loans of up to $7,000 will be made for repairs that will improve and modernize substandard dwellings, so as to provide adequate homes in rural areas. Terms for repayment of the loan may be as long as 25 years.

To be eligible for a FmHA home improvement loan with interest credit, the housing must be located in rural countryside or a rural town of not more than 10,000 people. The loans are designed especially for low-income families.

Under this program, interest credits can reduce the effective interest rate paid by the borrower to 1 percent if the adjusted family income is less than $3,000. If the adjusted family income is more than $3,000 but less than $5,000, the interest rate will be 2 percent. If the adjusted family income is between $5,000 and $7,000, interest will be 3 percent.

The policy of making interest credit and repair and rehabilitation loans is another method of utilizing the existing supply of housing to improve living conditions for low-income rural people.

Additional information about this loan program may be obtained from the agency's 73 county offices throughout North Carolina.

Well-Fed America

For Americans, the near future looks comparatively good. There will be short supplies of some foods this summer, especially canned vegetables, and prices will be higher than last year. But Agriculture Department specialists say there will be no problem getting enough to eat.

"Shortages? If you mean, having less than somebody would like to have at a price he considers appropriate, yes, we'll have that," said Dr. Don Paarlberg, the department's chief economist.

"But if you mean nutritional deficiencies, the answer is no. We'll have enough tons of food. I see no prospect that we'll have any food lines."

Jerry V. Holden, a computer specialist at the Agriculture Department, said the data he is seeing suggests Americans will see "food lines, much the way there were gas lines last winter, if not this summer at least within the decade." But Larry V. Summers, another government food economist, in a separate interview estimated per capita U.S. food supplies would be higher this year than last, and that includes meat, fish, poultry and dairy products.

Grain supplies will be up, too, if farmers harvest predicted record crops of 2.2 billion bushels of wheat and 6.7 billion bushels of corn—and if crop failures abroad do not spark a new round of price-boosting exports.

No Real U.S. Shortage

George Koch, president of the Grocery Manufacturers of America, agreed. Koch said Americans need not fear a general food shortage this year although prices will be unpleasantly higher. He predicted a pinch in processed fruits and vegetables over the next few months, which means someone shopping for a large can of one vegetable may have to settle

Strikers Seek Food Stamps

By The Associated Press Food stamp officials in eastern North Carolina report receiving applications from striking employees of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph.

Members of the Communications Workers of America went on strike 18 days ago after rejecting a contract designed by union and company representatives. Union spokesmen said the workers want a cost-of-living clause in the agreement.

Union and state officials predicted Tuesday that only a small percentage of the approximately 2,800 workers on strike will be eligible for assistance.

John Kerr, chief of the Food Systems Program of the North Carolina Division of Social Services, said applications from workers on strike are handled like any other applications.

"We are not in sympathy with them (strikers)," Kerr said, but the state has "no choice in the matter."

He said he did not know how many applications from union members have been received. CWA has three units in eastern North Carolina—in Fayetteville, New Bern and Rocky Mount. Social Service departments in all three areas reported they have received food stamp applications from CWA members.

Food stamp eligibility is limited to families with less than $1,500 in liquid assets.

Rain Gutters Good Planters

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — White aluminum industrial rain gutters make good planters for terraces, porches or even indoors. Charles D. Hardy, writing in Modern Maturity, says the five-inch wide, five-inch deeper material can be bought in varying lengths and used to hold small potted plants at whatever height is convenient for the gardener.

Classroom In The Sky

Twenty-two school teachers will attend a unique classroom in the sky from now through June 28. Participants are science and occupational education teachers who are taking part in this year's Aviation Science Institute sponsored by the Department of Public Instruction's Division of Science.

Hal Pearce, a teacher at J. H. Rose High School in Greenville is one of the participants. For the fourth year, the institute will take place at Raleigh-Durham Aviation, Inc. between Raleigh and Durham, with John McClain, chief ground school instructor, conducting the classes.

The teachers will receive 70 hours of training, which will qualify them for the basic ground instructor's rating and the FFA written test for a ground pilot's license. They will also be eligible for two advanced workshops also sponsored by the Division of Science. As part of the institute, the teachers will participate in a cross-country flight during the second week of instruction.

DANDELIONS ARE FOR EATING—Colorado State University Prof. Richard G. Walter says people shouldn't spray dandelions. Instead they should salt and pepper them. He maintains dandelions make good eating. The assistant professor of botany and plant pathology, shown digging a clump of dandelions with their root, says served properly, weeds make a great addition to any meal. (UPI Telephoto)

How Tar Heel Congressman And Senators Voted

By ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON—Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes June 6 through June 12.

HOUSE
DEEPWATER PORTS
Passed, 174 for and 158 against, an amendment to speed construction of off-shore receiving stations to handle large oil tankers, so-called "super tankers."

The amendment was offered as a substitute for a bill (H.R. 10701) to establish federal regulations over construction of such deepwater ports.

The amendment speeds the process by giving the Department of Interior control over construction permits, instead of establishing a new commission, and by eliminating certain provisions that would have allowed the states to block construction or to assess taxes on constructed ports.

The bill, as amended, was later passed and sent to the Senate.

The ports would be built at least 20 miles off-shore and could only be used by oil tankers. States could block construction in order to protect shore-line environments.

Supporters argued that off-shore ports will reduce the dangers of oil spills. They also said that oil shipped in super-tankers costs 40 per cent less than in conventional tankers.

Most opponents favored the original bill because it reserved greater state control over the construction of deepwater ports.

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1) and James Broyhill (R-10) voted "yea."
Reps. L. H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Wilmer Mizell (R-5), Richardson Preyer (D-6), Charles Rose (D-7), Earl Ruth (R-8), James Martin (R-9) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "nay."

Rep. Ike Andrews (D-4) did not vote.
LAND USE PLANNING
Rejected, 204 for and 211 against, a motion to grant a rule to permit consideration of a bill calling for federal support of state and local land use planning efforts.

Under House procedures, a bill must be granted a rule—which governs such things as length of debate—before the House can consider it.

By refusing to grant a rule, the House in effect killed the bill (H.R. 10294).

The bill called for the Interior Department to establish federal guidelines on the best ways to use land without endangering the environment. The bill earmarked $800 million in federal grants to fund state land use planning efforts.

Supporters argued that pollution and the population explosion will wreak havoc if the nation does not plan now for future expansion. They said by refusing to grant a rule the House was ducking its responsibilities. Rep. John Dellenback (R-Ore) said, "Tough problems do not disappear when we ignore them."

Opponents argued that the bill would lead to federal control of private property. Rep. Joel Broyhill (R-Va) argued against the federal government getting "into the business of telling us how to use and develop our personal property."

Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Preyer, Martin and Taylor voted "yea."
Jones Mizell, Rose, Ruth and Broyhill voted "nay."

VICE PRESIDENT'S HOME
Passed, 380 for and 23 against, a bill to create a temporary official residence for the Vice President.

The bill (S.J. Res. 202) now goes to conference. It authorizes remodeling a home at the Naval Observatory—presently occupied by the Chief of Naval Operations—as a temporary residence until a permanent Vice President's home can be built.

The remodeling costs are estimated at $48,000.

At present, the government pays for security protection of Vice Presidents' homes. The cost for securing Vice President Ford's home was $81,000; for Vice President Agnew, $245,000 and for Vice President Humphrey's Minnesota home and Washington apartment, $123,000.

Supporters argued that creating a temporary home and then building a permanent residence will save taxpayers' dollars in the long run.

Opponents argued that investing in a temporary home is wasteful, and instead the government should immediately construct a permanent residence. Rep. Cardiss Collins (D-Ill) said the bill does little more than "shuffle people around at taxpayers' expense."

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Mizell, Preyer, Ruth, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "yea."

Rose voted "nay."
Senate

DEFENSE SPENDING CEILING
Rejected, 38 for and 52 against, an amendment to set an overall ceiling of $21.6 billion for military weapons procurement in fiscal 1975.

The amendment was offered to the military weapons procurement bill (S. 3000), which later passed and was sent to conference.

The amendment would not have cut any funds from the bill, but would have served as instructions to the conference that the Senate would not accept a bill that went above the ceiling.

The amendment was designed to force the House to accept the Senate's version of the bill. The House military weapons bill calls for spending $22.6 billion. The Administration had requested $23.3 billion.

Most of the funding difference between the Senate and House versions was due to lower Senate appropriations for naval shipbuilding.

In supporting the amendment, Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn) said, "We want to send a message to the House... that we will stand firm."

In opposing the amendment, Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss) said the amendment leaves no "room for negotiation" and amounts to "kicking the House in the face."

Sens Sam Ervin (D) and Jesse Helms (R) voted "nay."

ROTC AND UNIVERSITIES Passed, 48 for and 43 against, an amendment to instruct the Defense Department to offer scholarship aid to officers who take courses at universities that have dropped the Reserve Officers Training Corps.

The amendment was attached to the military procurement bill.

At present, the Defense Department will underwrite educational costs for active officers, except at schools that have dropped ROTC.

Supporters argued that the Defense Department's policy is an attempt to coerce the universities into reinstating ROTC.

Opponents argued that the affected universities must pay the price for caving-in to campus politics during the Vietnam War era.
Ervin and Helms voted "nay."
TROOP CUTS
Rejected, 44 for and 46 against, an amendment to cut overseas troop strength by 76,000 as of Dec. 31, 1975.

The amendment was offered to the military procurements bill.

At present, there are 437,000 Americans, plus dependents, stationed abroad. The rejected amendment would have set a ceiling of 361,000 overseas personnel. It would have given the Secretary of Defense the choice on where to make the cuts.

Supporters argued that the cuts would save tax dollars to help the nation's balance-of-payments posture. Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont) said, "In excess of $900 million" would be saved yearly.

Opponents argued that the cuts would undermine on-going talks with Russia on mutual European force reductions. Sen. Sam Nunn (D-Ga) said the cuts would "increase the danger of nuclear war in Europe if we had a conflict" by decreasing America's ability to respond with soldiers instead of missiles.

Ervin and Helms voted "nay."
EPA RESEARCH
Rejected, 40 for and 50 against, an amendment to let private contractors do energy research with funds that are transferred from the Environmental Protection Agency to other federal agencies.

The amendment was offered to an energy research and development bill (H.R. 14434) that was later passed and sent to conference.

At present, EPA can contract with private companies and it can transfer funds to other agencies, but other agencies cannot subsequently use funds received from EPA to contract with private companies.

Supporters argued that EPA does not have the man power to do all its required research and, thus, other federal agencies should be permitted to use EPA funds to contract privately on energy and environmental research.

Opponents argued that the amendment was an Administration attempt to weaken EPA's control over research. They said that direct EPA control over EPA-sponsored research helps insure strict enforcement of environmental laws.

Helms voted "yea" and Ervin voted "nay."

Minnie Pearl Is Just An Illusion Created By One Sarah Cannon

By SYLVIA RECTOR
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — There is no Grinder's Switch. And there is no Minnie Pearl. Both are living illusions stitched together from Sarah Cannon's Broadway dreams.

Proudly erect, Mrs. Henry Cannon carries them to the Grand Ole Opry microphone each week, her price-tagged bonnet cocked on upswep hair. And in one high-pitched "How-dee," she pours out her love to America.

Minnie Pearl is someone she has adjusted to and accepted more than cultivated.

"You'd have to have known me when I was younger to understand the difference," she said, searching for words to put her self, as opposed to her role, in perspective.

"I wanted to be a serious dramatic actress. I thought I was so pretty and so cute. I never had a pretty face but I had a gorgeous figure. I was heading down an entirely different road. God never intended me to make it to Broadway. I guess he had other plans," she musied.

"But somehow, way deep inside my heart, I knew I had the ability to make people laugh. I knew it but I fought it. I tried to push it back because I just didn't want to do comedy."

The depression and the death of her father had ended her career at the exclusive Ward-Belmont School in Nashville and hard times were clouding America.

"So I came home and later found a job with a place in Atlanta that sent me around to organize musical shows for Lion's Clubs and PTA's. And all the time I was in those little country towns I'd dream of New York and think about how I'd get there."

The elements of Minnie Pearl's personality were collecting themselves.

"I came up with the idea for her during those shows. Her name is a combination of the two greatest country names I'd ever heard. And her personality is a combination of ideas and spirits from the country people I grew up with and met."

Almost in spite of Sarah Cannon, Minnie Pearl appeared during those shows and found her way to Nashville's Opry.

"I'm totally in love now with country music and those crazy characters at the Opry I've been working with for 35 years now. And I love my audiences, no matter where they are. And I think they love Minnie."

It's jarring to hear her refer to Minnie Pearl as "she." For most of her fans, it is Minnie who is real. They don't know Sarah Cannon.

Her conversation and voice, however, fluctuate between culture and the country. Both people talk from the same body. Both can be light and both, serious.

But whether it's Sarah Cannon or Minnie Pearl speaking, there is compassion and sincerity wisdom. Sarah Cannon's feelings about the world are simply Minnie Pearl's without naivete.

"So Sarah and Minnie are becoming interchangeable personalities. We didn't used to be though," she said thoughtfully.

"I can just slip into her when I want to. I don't ever have to let people get too close to Sarah Cannon in talk shows or interviews unless I want them to. Minnie can just step right in there between me and anybody else. I can hide behind her."

"She and I are a lot alike," she said in a lighter voice.
"But she's nicer than I am and funnier than I am. And she doesn't have any of the problems or hang-ups I have."

If that's true, it's because Minnie lives in Grinder's Switch, where a simpler life breeds a different personality.
"There's no such thing as Grinder's Switch anymore. There are none left. Television is everywhere."

It is television which brings the world to Minnie's hometown of Grinder's Switch. And where the world's reality lives, Grinder's Switch cannot survive.

Sarah explains it in a routine she developed for Minnie's encores: "I want to tell you about a mythical place called Grinder's Switch. It's a place I've lived for 35 years. It's a place where there is no cancer, no Watergate, no Vietnam, no murder, no child abuse, none of the ugly and bitter things."

"And I wish for each of you... a Grinder's Switch."

Portuguese Hoping For Tourism Boom

LISBON (UPI) — Like a hopeful gambler shaking a pair of dice, Portugal believes its "lucky seven" is about to come up.

The "lucky seven" the new government is hoping for is a new "invasion." Not the armed legions that have violated Portugal's borders six times over the centuries, but an invasion of foreigners armed with fat wallets.

To prepare for them, developers are spending nearly $100 million on three ultra-modern recreational complexes in a picturesque area of beaches and fishing villages that retain much of their old-world charm.

Backed by the government, they have built scores of new hotels and laid out golf courses, tennis courts, riding stables and boat basins. Topping off the venture are three gambling casinos rivaling any in Las Vegas.

The new tourist center is located in Portugal's Algarve Province, stretching along 200 miles of the balmy Atlantic coast.

While the developers are trying to insure something for everyone, the casinos are viewed as the main tourist attraction. The first was opened last year at Penina. Another began operating this year at Vilamoura and a third will open in July at Monte Gordo.

More than 400 hotels and inns have been built in Algarve, ranging from luxury accommodations at $18 a day per person to smaller but popular pensions for $6 a day. Top chefs have been imported to provide gourmet menus.

The new government is assuring prospective visitors the April coup which brought it to power has had no disruptive effects on tourism in Portugal.

Fee System For Forest Campers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Forest Service says that beginning this weekend, campers using many facilities in national forests will be charged fees ranging from $1 to $4 a day.

The agency announced Monday that the fees, suspended by Congress in 1973 and later reinstated, will go into effect June 22 at about 2,000 of the 5,000 camping grounds operated by the Forest Service.

John R. McGuire, chief of the Forest Service, said restoration of the fees will benefit campground users because the money goes toward improvements and management of recreational facilities.

Deny Association With Death Penalty Protest

RALEIGH (AP)—Civil rights groups' united front against the death penalty in North Carolina was weakened Tuesday as two leaders said they were not associated with scheduled July 4 demonstrations.

Golden Frinks and the Rev. Leon White said in a news conference they would have nothing to do with a demonstration against capital punishment scheduled for July 4 in Raleigh.

The demonstration, planned by the National Alliance Against Racism and Political Repression, is the work of "mavericks," Frinks said.

Frinks is state field secretary for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and White is executive director of the North Carolina-Virginia Commission for Racial Justice. They said their groups had already committed themselves to a strategy of voter education aimed at electing a legislature which will abolish the death penalty.

The leadership of the national alliance includes Angela Davis and the Rev. Ben Chavis. They have vowed to focus national attention on the death penalty in North Carolina, where 44 people are currently sentenced to death.

"They (the national alliance)

come in for a day," Frinks said, "stir everyone up and we have to pick up the pieces. They can stonewall the attitude of the legislators."

Institutional rivalries appeared to be part of Frinks' and White's decision to disassociate themselves from the demonstration.

"It's an issue of leadership," White said. "We had no input into their plans. The question is whether we are going to deal with the death penalty or whether the alliance is."

White and Frinks said they hoped North Carolina would move to stop the flood of death sentences before they became a national issue.

They called on Gov. Jim Holshouser and the Rev. Billy Graham to designate June 29 as a statewide day of prayer on the death penalty issue.

They also asked Holshouser to appoint a commission of legislators, religious and civil rights leaders to study alternatives to capital punishment.

Neither Holshouser nor Chavis were available for comment.

Hearst Home Quiet, Grim

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP) — A "quiet and grim" mood has settled over the home of newspaper executive Randolph A. Hearst as the family awaits new word of their kidnapped daughter turned revolutionary.

"They probably still hope that she will return," family spokesman John Lester told reporters Tuesday outside the home where fugitive newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst once lived.

Lester said the family has not recovered from the shock of learning that 20-year-old Patricia was charged with kidnaping, assault and robbery in Los Angeles and bank robbery in San Francisco.

Miss Hearst was abducted Feb. 4 from her Berkeley apartment by the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army. Later, in a taped message, she renounced her family, said she had joined the group and had taken part in an April 15 holdup of a San Francisco bank.

Six SLA members were killed in a fiery shootout with Los Angeles police May 17. Miss Hearst and alleged SLA members William and Emily Harris are sought as fugitives.

Hearst is editor and president of the San Francisco Examiner.

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market, once again stuck in the interest-rate doldrums, drifted lower today in light trading.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 2.98 at 827.28, approximately matching Tuesday's closing decline. Falling stocks held to a 2-to-1 lead over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

"I think we're in a rut, and the market's steadily being eaten away by interest-rate concerns," said John Doherty, analyst with Blyth Eastman Dillon.

Doherty and other brokers say investors are looking toward bank-loan and interest-rate developments later this week for signals as to the market's direction.

If prices continue to drift lower for as long as a week, Doherty says, he thinks there may be some panic selling as the Dow breaks through past lows hit this winter.

On the Big Board, the most-active issues were I-T-E Imperial, down 1/4 at 12 1/2; J.P. Morgan, off 1/4 at 59 1/2; and American Home Products, down 1/4 at 42 1/2.

Schering Plough was down 3/4 at 66 1/2. An analyst noted a slowing of the sales growth of the company's major earner, a drug called Garamycin.

Gold stocks moved lower, with ASA, Ltd., down 2 1/2 at 83, Domes Mines off 1/4 at 49, and Campbell Red Lake down 1 at 36 1/2.

Items Of Art Said Stolen

NAGS HEAD, N.C. (AP) - An art gallery owner says thieves entered his establishment early Monday and made off with a collection worth "a conservative $380,000."

The theft was not announced until Tuesday.

Chester Smith said he and three members of his family were asleep in their apartment above his shop when the theft occurred. It was not until he prepared to open Monday that he discovered the loss, Smith claims.

Smith said the loss was not insured.

legitimate vehicle identification numbers and accompanied by a valid motor vehicle certificate title.

"Hereafter the vehicle ID numbers on the stolen vehicles would be either replaced or altered so as to correspond to those of the salvage vehicles and thereby conceal the stolen nature of the automobiles and enable the stolen vehicles to be readily transferred to innocent purchasers by use of the certificate of title issued to the salvage vehicle," according to the indictment.

Charged in the second conspiracy indictment returned by the Grand Jury were Johnny Boykin of Boykin's Used Cars in Walstonburg, N. C.; Bowen, McDonald, Simmons, Ruben Stroud, Horton, Black, Harrell, Wooten and Sonny Horton.

According to the indictment, the operation of this conspiracy was similar to that of the first.

Most of the allegedly stolen vehicles were coming from the state of Maryland, according to the U. S. Attorney.

The third conspiracy indictment charges Lewis Stocks Jr., of Stocks Used Cars in Greenville, and Godley, Woolard, Miller, Guy Dixon Jr., Stox and Braxton with "willfully and knowingly . . . conspire, confederate and agree together with each other and with diverse other persons to the Grand Jury unknown to commit . . . offenses against the United States."

Maximum penalty upon conviction of the conspiracy violations is a $10,000 fine or five years imprisonment or both.

Maximum penalty for the violation concerning the receipt and concealment of stolen motor vehicles provides for a penalty of five years imprisonment or a $5,000 fine or both for each count.

According to the U. S. Attorney, the cases will be scheduled for arraignment in the U. S. Eastern District Court at the next regularly scheduled term of the court.

$9,000 For Her Poodle

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) - "Little One," a poodle whose owner won $9,000 in a suit claiming the dog was traumatized after getting cut while being groomed, apparently holds no grudges.

Introduced as evidence Tuesday in the Broward County Circuit Court jury trial, Little One walked over to the groomer who allegedly caused all her mental turmoil and let the man pet her.

But the six-member jury apparently wasn't impressed by the show of friendship. The three women and three men awarded Evelyn Caswell $7,500 in punitive damages and $1,500 in compensatory damages.

"She's not like a normal dog anymore," Mrs. Caswell had told the jury. "She's more like a retarded child. She's lost her playful personality and tends to stare off into space a lot."

She had sued for $15,000, saying Little One suffered anguish after a January 1973 clipping by Frank Swavola in a grooming van outside her home.

National Pet Spa, owner of the van and defendant in the suit, makes door-to-door grooming calls in this Gold Coast city.

The company had Little One introduced into evidence as its last witness to show the dog suffered no ill effects from the grooming.

Mrs. Caswell claimed Little One was cut during the clipping but that Swavola, instead of treating the cut, groomed over it. The cut became infected, Mrs. Caswell said, and the infection caused the trauma.

Swavola claimed the cut was already there.

Mrs. Caswell said she plans to spend the money left after legal expenses to campaign for a law requiring that dog groomers be licensed by the state.

Court Martial Upheld By U.S. Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court today upheld the court-martial of former Army Capt. Howard B. Levy for urging black enlisted men not to go to Vietnam if ordered to do so.

In doing so, the court upheld the constitutionality of the so-called "general article," which has been a mainstay of American military justice since Revolutionary War days.

Levy had challenged his court-martial on grounds that the article is unconstitutionally vague.

The article, part of the Uniform Code of Military Justice, forbids "conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman" and "all conduct of a nature to bring discredit upon the armed forces."

Justice William H. Rehnquist, writing for the 5 to 3 court majority, said Levy "could have had no reasonable doubt that his published statements urging Negro enlisted men not to go to Vietnam if ordered to do so" were in violation of the challenged article.

"While the members of the military are not excluded from the protection granted by the First Amendment, the different character of the military community and of the military mission require a different application of those protections," Rehnquist wrote.

Justice Potter Stewart, dissenting, said, "I cannot believe that such meaningless statutes as these can be used to send men to prison under a Constitution that guarantees due process of law."

"It may be that military necessity justifies the promulgation of substantive rules of law that are wholly foreign to civilian life, but I fail to perceive how any legitimate military goal is served by enshrining these rules in language so vague and uncertain as to be incomprehensible to the servicemen who are to be governed by them," Stewart said.

Justice William O. Douglas and William J. Brennan joined Stewart in his dissent. Justice Thurgood Marshall took no part in the decision.

The government had appealed a circuit court decision declaring the general article unconstitutionally vague and discarding it as a catch-all traditionally used for prosecutions ranging from straggling to gambling with a subordinate.

Levy was convicted by a general court-martial in 1967 of willfully disobeying orders and making disloyal statements about U.S. policy in Vietnam.

He was sentenced to dismissal from the Army, forfeiture of all pay and allowances and to three years confinement at hard labor.

The record at Levy's court-martial showed that he told enlisted men that "Army Special Forces personnel are liars and thieves and killers of peasants and murderers of women and children."

He did not deny the statements.

After his release on bond in 1969, Levy went to New York where he has worked at Lincoln Hospital, for a health organization and as a medical volunteer in a city prison.

None Injured In Bombings

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) - Three bombs exploded and three other bombing attempts were thwarted today as the Irish Republican Army's new bombing offensive went into its second day.

Nobody was hurt by the bombs, but one man was shot when he drove off a gang that tried to blow up his store. One explosion wrecked a hardware store in Armagh.

Authorities blamed the Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army, which said it was responsible for eight bombs on Tuesday, including a package device that killed a policeman.

One newspaper reported that the Provisional command had ordered the guerrillas to resume full-scale warfare on security forces after a three-week lull.

Meanwhile, one faction of Protestant extremists—the East Belfast branch of the Ulster Defense Association—rejected the proposal by the UDA's West Belfast branch to try to negotiate a three-month cease-fire with the IRA.

Here To Tell Story Of Young Orphans

Representatives of the Children's Home Society of Greensboro will be in Greenville tonight at 8:00 p.m. at Cornerstone Baptist Church to inform local citizens about the problems of homeless children.

The society, a statewide, voluntary-support child-welfare agency, is trying to find adoptive homes for black and mixed-race children. Members of the society have been sponsoring public meetings in several areas of the state to publicize the need for black adoptive families.

At each meeting, a couple who has already adopted shares with the audience their own experience in deciding to adopt and tell about the child who is placed in their home.

Children's Home Society staff members also discuss the adoption process and talk about some of the children who need homes.

There is no obligation on the part of anyone attending to make an application to adopt a child. The meeting is for the purpose of creating public awareness of the black and mixed-racial children who are waiting for a permanent home.

The meeting tonight is open to anyone concerned about these children, as well as to couples who may be interested in adoption. Cornerstone Baptist Church is located at the corner of 13th and Railroad Streets.

Greenville Surprises Rocky Mount, 13-2

Ayden-Grifton, Taff, Kiwanis All Claim Senior BR Victories

Taff Office, University Kiwanis and Ayden-Grifton each picked up victories in the Senior Babe Ruth League last night. Taff downed Farmville, 6-4, while University took a 12-0 win over Washington and Ayden-Grifton nipped the Fire Fighters, 5-2.

Ayden-Grifton still leads the league with a 5-0 record.

In the game at Ayden-Grifton, all the action came in the first inning, with both teams scoring all of their runs in that frame.

The Fire Fighters pushed over two in the top of the inning. Clennel Streeter singled and then stole second. He was sacrificed to third and scored when Danny Norris reached on an error. Norris moved up on the play and then stole third. Keith Gould singled him in for the 2-0 lead.

But it didn't stand long, as Ayden-Grifton came back with all five of their runs. Ronnie Salmon and Paul Riccarelli both singled, and a hit by Tom Craft loaded the bases. Greg Nelson and Johnny Willis both walked, forcing in Salmon and Riccarelli. Randy Nelson hit a sacrifice fly to score Craft, and a pair of passed balls let both Nelson and Willis score.

From there on out, neither team was able to push in another run.

Farmville scored first in the game at Greenville, getting a pair on second. Eddie Horne reached on an error and stole both second and third. He scored on a passed ball. Keith Oakley singled and stole second. He took third on a passed ball and scored after Ricky Smith, David Joyner and Ricky Shreve all walked.

They added another run in the third for a 3-0 lead. Tommy Cobb singled and stole both second and third. A passed ball let him score.

Taff came up with a pair of runs in the third. John Causey singled and Willis Streeter tripled him in. Jack Jones got a hit to score Streeter.

In the sixth, Farmville added another run. Marty Hobgood walked and stole both second and third. He scored on an error.

Trailing 4-2, Taff put on a four-run rally in the bottom of the sixth to push ahead. Pete Cullop singled and Bobby Dough got a hit. Both moved up on an error on the play, and another error let both score. Jimmy Peszko reached on another error and Jimmy Buck provided the winning punch with a home run.

No details were available on the University Kiwanis-Washington game.

Exchange Nails Down The Title

The Exchange romped to a 14-2 victory over Integon yesterday, celebrating its Tar Heel Little League championship. The victory insured the Exchange of the title.

The win left the Exchange with an 11-2 record on the season, while Integon dropped off to 6-7.

The Exchange pushed over seven runs in the first inning of the game. Mark Douglas walked, and Gordon Douglas reached on an error. Al Shackleford singled in Mark Douglas, and a wild pitch advanced both runners. Chip Cayton walked to load them up and John Williams singled in Gordon Douglas. Eric Deal reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Shackleford, and Allen Clark singled in Cayton. Eddie Moyer walked to drive in Williams. Gordon Douglas singled in Deal and Clark was awarded home on an interference call.

In the third, the Exchange added two more runs. Moyer reached on a two-base error and Mark Douglas was safe on another miscue. Moyer scored on Gordon Douglas' infield out, and Charles Daise reached on a third error, scoring Mark Douglas.

Integon got both of its runs in the bottom of the third. Junior Neal walked as did Latham Mills. Blair Smith singled in Neal and the two runners moved up on a wild pitch. Mills came in on an out.

The Exchange pushed over four more in the fifth. Mark Douglas singled and Gordon Douglas was hit by a pitch. Shackleford singled in Mark, but Billy Kittrell hit into a fielder's choice, getting Gordon. Williams doubled in Shackleford and Deal reached on an error, scoring both Kittrell and Williams.

The final run came over in the sixth. Mark Douglas reached on an error, stole second and took third on a wild pitch. Shackleford singled him in.

Ladies League Nears Finish

The Ladies Softball League moved within one game of wrapping up the regular season last night with only first and last place definitely set. Belmonte, finished with a 12-0 record, has first wrapped up, and the Daily Reflector, 0-11, cannot escape the cellar.

They came close to claiming their first win last night, however, as the Reflector bowed to Pitt County Memorial Hospital, 15-14. The Reflector pushed over five runs in the first, while Pitt came up with three. The Reflector added one in the second and five in the third, including a homer by S. Spivey. Pitt came up with four in the third and five in the fourth. The Reflector got three in the fifth, but Pitt got one there and another in the sixth on B. Blount's homer. They got the win with one run in the seventh.

In the second game, Little Mint nipped Dixie Sales, 10-8. Little Mint got three in the first and added one in the second. They pushed over two in the fourth and four more in the sixth. Dixie got one each in the second and third and rallied for six in the seventh, but it wasn't enough.

In the final game, Coca-Cola took a 20-6 win over Piggy-Wiggly. Coke got four in the first, with M. Johnson homering. They added four more in the second and three in the fourth. Nine crossed in the sixth, with S. Hardy homering. Piggy-Wiggly got three in the second, two in the third on S. Pittman's homer, and one in the fourth.

The league wraps up regular season play on Thursday, and starts its double elimination post-season tournament on Tuesday.

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY REELE

It seems to be all in a day's work for Gaylord Perry as he steams along in the American League. He captured his 12th straight victory after an opening day loss on Monday, and if he continues along at this pace, he'll certainly be the starting pitcher for the American in the All-Star Game.

Jim Perry, by the way, was going for his 200th major league victory in his last start, but failed to get it. He'll be trying again on his next outing. That win is a milestone for pitchers, and only a select few have made it that far.

Gaylord, at the pace he's going, will probably be reaching it soon, too.

We understand that the last week in July and the first in August are going to be very busy for the Greenville people. You already know about the annual Boys' Home All-Star Game, set for July 27. And of course, there is the Southeastern Regional of the Sr. Babe Ruth to be held here August 2-7.

Now, we have been told that the State Little League Tournament is also slated for Greenville, running July 31 through August 2. Unfortunately this overlaps the Senior Babe Ruth Tourney, and there is a possibility that these dates will be moved around to avoid the conflict.

But at any rate, it will certainly keep folks busy around here—especially we people at the Reflector, who cover it all.

And not only is all that going on, but the Southern Conference holds its annual football "Rouser" on August 4-6 at Boone.

Then, right after that, the high schools will be starting practice for the football season.

The Southern Conference, by the way, will be picking its Player of the Week a little differently this year. In the past, the assistant to the commissioner handled the job of picking out the player or players to be honored by the conference each week. This was done from a list of nominees submitted by each of the schools.

This year, however, the assistant commissioner will be aided by a panel, composed of the president of the Southern Conference Sports Media Association, and the three state vice-presidents.

Nominees will continue to be submitted by the individual universities, but the panel will not be bound by them. Hopefully, this will end some of the charges of bias that have floated around for the past few years when one player or another did not receive the honor.

Oakmont Loses, But Holds Lead

St. James missed its chance to push into first place in the American Division of the Church Softball League last night when it lost to Immanuel Baptist. Oakmont, which retained a half-game lead over St. James, also bowed, losing to Black Jack.

Grace, the National Division leader, picked up a victory in its outing.

In the opening game on Field Two, Immanuel took a 13-4 win over St. James. Immanuel pushed over three runs in the first, then came up with two in the second. They added one in the third, and picked up three each in the fourth and fifth. They closed out with one more in the sixth. St. James got two in the third and two more in the fourth.

Grace won its game with a forfeit over Presbyterian in the second contest.

St. Gabriel remained a game behind Oakmont with a 7-6 win over People's Bible. St. Gabriel got one in the second and added two in the third. People's came up with three in the fourth, but St. Gabriel got three more in the fifth. People's tied it up with one in the sixth and two more in the seventh. St. Gabriel then won it with one in the bottom of the seventh.

First Christian recorded another forfeit victory in the first game on Field One. The forfeit came over University-Mt. Pleasant.

Black Jack romped to a 15-0 victory over Oakmont in the second game. Black Jack pushed over four in the first, then came back with three more in the second. They got one in the fourth, three in the fifth and closed out with four in the sixth. B. Carson had the lone homer of the game.

In the final contest, Memorial rolled to a 30-8 win over Arlington Street. Memorial got seven in the first inning, then picked up three in the second.

ROCKY MOUNT—Greenville's American Legion baseball team broke loose last night and rolled to a 13-2 victory over previously unbeaten Rocky Mount.

Not only was the loss the first for Rocky Mount, it represented the first victory for the Greenville team, who had an earlier win washed away.

Greenville's earlier win over Williamston was discounted because Williamston had not had an equal number of chances when the rain halted the game. The game was interrupted in the seventh with Williamston batting. Greenville had scored in the top of the seventh.

Randy Potter hurled the victory for Greenville last night, scattering five hits. Only in the second, third and fourth did Rocky Mount even manage to get men on base, as Potter set them down in order in the first, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth. He walked two and struck out four during the nine innings.

Greenville jumped into the lead in the top of the first, scoring three runs. Barry Johnson singled and Robert Brinkley walked. Macon Moyer also walked, loading the bases. Kelly Heath reached on an error, scoring Johnson, and Jack Jenkins reached on another error, letting Brinkley and Moyer score for the 3-0 lead.

They added two more in the second to up the lead to 5-0. Keith Jones walked and Al Heath reached on a bunt single. Both were sacrificed up and came around to score later.

Rocky Mount picked up its first run in the bottom of the second inning. Jeff Collins doubled and came around on outs.

The other Rocky Mount run crossed in the fourth. B.

Robinson singled and moved up on an infield out. He scored on B. Weaver's single.

Greenville added two more runs in the sixth. Jerry Griffin and Jones both walked. Potter singled to score Griffin and Jones.

Greenville powered in four more in the seventh to run their lead out to 11-2. Moyer led off with a single and was sacrificed up. Jenkins reached on an error and both Griffin and Jones walked. A wild pitch had scored Moyer earlier, and Jenkins came in on another. Potter singled in Griffin and Al Heath walked to force over Jones.

The final two runs came over in the ninth. With two down, Al Heath singled and Johnson reached on an error. Both came around on a hit by Brinkley.

Greenville will play host to Wilson on Thursday.

Giants Get Win

GRIFTON—The Giants nipped Piggy-Wiggly, 15-14, last night in the Southern Pitt Little League.

Mike Coward got the victory, while Gary Edwards was pinned with the loss.

Chris Phillips and Kevin Battle each hit grand-slam homers for Piggy-Wiggly. Thomas Riley, Don Sauls and Roger Smith each had two hits for the losers.

Tony Gardner and Arnell Credle led the Giants with three hits each, while Mitch Cox had a pair.

Lions Knot Up Lead Again, 5-3

The Lions rallied to down the Jaycees, 5-3, to set up their confrontation with the Optimists for sole possession of first place in the North State Little League.

The two teams are tied with 11-2 records in the league and will meet on Thursday in what will probably decide the title. The Jaycees are now 7-6 in the loop.

The Jaycees scored first, pushing over two in the third. Crowell Pope was hit by a pitch and Marion Crisp singled. Both advanced on a passed ball and both came in when John Winstead reached on an error.

The Lions came back with two in the fourth to tie it up. Arthur Fletcher singled and moved up on an error. Shelton Wilson then stepped up and slammed a home run, knotting the score at 2-2.

The Lions came up with three more in the fifth to claim the victory. Peter Pace doubled and Don McGlohn singled. Fletcher reached on an error, scoring Pace. McGlohn scored on a wild pitch and a passed ball let Fletcher come across.

The Jaycees tried to get a rally going in the sixth, but got only one run. Elvy Forrest singled and moved up on an error. Chuck Coggins walked and Mike Pollard's single brought in Forrest.

Giusti, Despite Win, Likes 'Pen

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Pittsburgh Pirates' starting rotation is a nice place to visit but Dave Giusti wouldn't want to live there.

"You get used to the pace in the bullpen and it's tough when you have to go out there for more than a few innings," the veteran relief ace said Tuesday night after making his first start since 1970 and blanking the Los Angeles Dodgers for seven innings in the Pirates' 2-0 victory.

Houston's Mike Cosgrove, on the other hand, would like to follow in Giusti's footsteps ... or at least the path Giusti trod when he made 113 starts for the Astros in 1965-67-8 before he was traded first to St. Louis and then to Pittsburgh.

"I would like to think I've earned a starting assignment, but I don't think so," the young left-hander said after relieving Dave Roberts with one out in the first inning and holding the Philadelphia Phillies to a pair of bunt singles the rest of the way in Houston's 1-0 triumph.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Montreal Expos edged the Cincinnati Reds 2-1, the Atlanta Braves trounced the New York Mets 6-1, the St. Louis Cardinals blanked the San Francisco Giants 3-0 and the San Diego Padres whipped the Chicago Cubs 9-4.

Jim Cox led off the ninth inning against Clay Kirby with his second major league home run and Ernie McAnally hurled a two-hitter for Montreal. Ken Singleton singled home a run for the Expos in the first inning and the Reds tied it in the third on a walk and Pete Rose's double.

Braves 6, Mets 1
Ivan Murrell drove in four runs with a bases-loaded triple and his first home run of the season and Atlanta rolled to its 23rd triumph in the last 31 games behind the seven-hit pitching of Roric Harrison.

Cardinals 3, Giants 0
Alan Foster pitched a five-hitter and singles by Joe Torre and Mike Tyson produced runs in the first and fourth innings. Foster, making his first start in three weeks, notched his first triumph since April 20.

Padres 9, Cubs 4
Pitcher Dave Freisleben singled home one run, doubled and scored another and combined with Bill Greif on a seven-hitter despite home runs by Chicago's Jose Cardenal, Bill Madlock and Chris Ward.

American League scores:
Boston 6, Oakland 1; Chicago White Sox 7, Cleveland 3; Baltimore 10, Minnesota 1; Texas 6, Detroit 0; California 3, New York Yankees 0; Kansas City 7, Milwaukee 0; second game of the twinghter rained out.

Grich Slams Three Homers For Orioles

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Against the Minnesota Twins, hitting home runs was as easy as one-two-three for Bobby Grich.

"I hope the Twins stay around a while," Grich noted after cracking three homers and driving in six runs in Baltimore's 10-1 victory over Minnesota Tuesday night.

Grich, who incidentally beat the Twins with a home run Monday night, hit a three-run homer in the third inning, a bases-empty homer in the fifth and a two-run job in the seventh.

The slugging infielder had a chance to tie the major league record of four in a game, but grounded out in the eighth inning.

"I was going for it," Grich admitted. "All I had in my mind was to hit as hard as I could. The ball came in a little lower than I would have liked, but it was a good pitch to hit."

The three shots gave Grich 11 for the baseball season. A new style in the batter's box has given him new-found power.

In the other American League games, the Chicago White Sox beat the Cleveland Indians 7-3; the Kansas City Royals beat the Milwaukee Brewers 7-0 in the first game of a twinght doubleheader before the second game was rained out; the Texas Rangers blanked the Detroit Tigers 6-0; the California Angels beat the New York Yankees 3-0 and the Boston Red Sox trimmed the Oakland A's 6-1.

White Sox 7, Indians 3
Jim Kaat, backed by two home runs each by Dick Allen and Jorge Orta, notched his 200th major league career victory with a nine-hitter in Chicago's victory over Cleveland. Kaat, 6-6 for the year, is 200-166 in his 13 major league seasons.

Royals 7, Brewers 0
Paul Splittorff pitched a two-hitter and Amos Otis and John Mayberry hit home runs to lead Kansas City over Milwaukee.

Rangers 6, Tigers 0
Jim Bibby fired a two-hitter, pitching Texas over Detroit. Bibby, 10-8, struck out seven and walked none in tying the Rangers' record for most victories in a season, a mark he now shares with Rich Hand, who was 10-14 in 1972.

Angels 3, Yankees 0
Nolan Ryan and Skip Lockwood combined for a five-hitter, pitching California over New York. Ryan, 8-6, worked the first six innings before developing a blister on his pitching hand. Lockwood preserved the triumph, only the fourth for the Angels in their last 15 games.

Red Sox 6, A's 1
Bob Montgomery singled home a run in a three-run third inning and had two other hits to back Roger Moret's ten-hitter and lead Boston over Oakland.

National League scores:
San Diego 9, Chicago 4; Pittsburgh 2, Los Angeles 0; Houston 1, Philadelphia 0; Montreal 2, Cincinnati 1; Atlanta 6, New York 1 and St. Louis 3, San Francisco 0.

Jones Goes ABA Route

DENVER (AP)—The ailing American Basketball Association has received a shot in the arm from Bobby Jones, who signed a multiyear contract with the ABA's Denver Rockets.

The signing, made official at a news conference Tuesday, is the first involving a major player by the ABA in 1974.

Terms of the contract offered the 6-foot-9 North Carolina defensive standout were not disclosed, but the pact is believed to be in excess of $1.5 million for six years.

Rumors concerning an impending collapse of the ABA or possible merger of the ABA's stronger teams with the National Basketball Association apparently did not disturb Jones.

Acknowledging negotiations with both Denver and the NBA's Houston franchise, Jones said, "I felt I was as secure coming here as at Houston."

Jones, a forward who averaged 16.1 points and 9.9 rebounds a game at North Carolina last season, originally was selected by the Carolina Cougars of the ABA in a special 1973 draft.

When Denver signed former Carolina General Manager Carl Scheer and Coach Larry Brown on June 3, the Rockets also obtained negotiation rights to Jones in exchange for "future considerations."

Houst chose Jones in the first round of this year's NBA draft, but their negotiations ended Saturday night.

Denver owner Frank M. Goldberg called the signing "one of the most significant in ABA and Rockets history"

ACC Tournament Is Going North

LINVILLE, N.C. (AP)—The 1974 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament will be played in Landover, Md., the first time that the annual playoffs have been scheduled outside North Carolina.

Conference spokesman Skeeter Francis said the tournament will be played March 4-6 at the Capital Center, one of four coliseums which bid for the event.

However, the league announced that the tournament, which decides the ACC representative to the NCAA playoffs, will return to Greensboro, N.C. for 1977 and 1978.

The announcement came Tuesday following a meeting of the conference basketball committee, which consists of member athletic directors.

Maryland's athletic director, Jim Kehoe, had urged that the 1976 contract go to the Capital Center. Kehoe and others from non-North Carolina schools wanted the tournament out of the state because of partisan crowds.

Maryland officials complained after the Terps' defeat last March to North Carolina State that no North Carolina court was truly neutral when a team from that state was playing.

Four of the seven ACC teams are from North Carolina.

Francis said the one-year move from North Carolina would test whether the playoffs could attract the large crowds that they have in the state.

"The tournament has been played all these years in North Carolina," Francis said. "The basketball committee felt that maybe if it were played in other parts of the conference area, it could be as successful."

The tournament was held in Raleigh, N.C. in 1954, the year the ACC was formed. It remained in Raleigh until 1967 when it was played in Greensboro.

From 1968-1970 the event was held in Charlotte and in 1971 it was returned to Greensboro, where it has been played ever since. The ACC has a five-year contract with the Greensboro Coliseum, which expires with the 1975 tournament.

The conference invited coliseums in Greensboro, Charlotte, Landover and Richmond, Va., to bid for the contract.

A decision was expected last month during the ACC's annual spring meeting in Myrtle Beach, S.C., but final action was delayed.

Francis said a one-year contract was not unusual. "When the Landover people applied for the tournament, they were acceptable to a one, two or three year contract," Francis said. "Then the one year contract was set by the basketball committee."

In other business, the conference announced that some schools would experiment with three basketball officials rather than two next season. Francis said all league schools would use six-man football officiating teams.

The league also deferred action on its television contract with producer C. D. Chesley until the NCAA finalizes its national contracts.

Merritt System Is Working For School

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — With a meager $4,000 budget, Tennessee State plunges into the football recruiting wars annually in search of pigeon-toed youngsters with long legs, short bodies and square chins.

But don't laugh. "We go undefeated last year, win the championship and send five kids to the pros in the first two rounds of the draft," said Coach John Merritt, one of the East coaches in Saturday night's All-America football game.

What's more, Tennessee State—enrollment about 5,000—has compiled a 93-13-3 record during Merritt's 11-year reign that includes four national small college championships.

"And when the pros take five of your kids in the first two rounds, that dispels all sorts of misnomers about small colleges," Merritt noted with no small amount of pride.

A jocular, rotund figure who contends his major personal expense is for cigars, Merritt recently rejected a job with the pros and also spurned an opportunity to become the first black head coach of a predominantly white major university, Wichita State.

"I can do more good for black kids at Tennessee State," he explained simply. His recruiting philosophy nearly defies description, let alone credibility, yet Tennessee State ranks behind only Southern Cal and Notre Dame in producing pro prospects.

"With a $4,000 recruiting budget and a monthly telephone allowance of $50, we're kinda limited. You can't do much traveling with that and you can't put too many boys to bed with that, so we've had to figure some way to live within our means," he said.

"We go by the anatomical structure of a boy," Merritt explained. "By and large, we feel an outstanding athlete is a young man with long legs ... and a short body ... certain anatomical phases restrict an athlete's ability."

"For example, if he's knock-kneed, we don't take him. If he's slewfoot, we don't take him. We feel that if he's pigeon-toed, he's a good athlete and we'll take him.

"And if a boy's got a square chin, he's a hitter. "But basically," we want the tall boy. We wouldn't recruit a defensive lineman, or even an offensive lineman, under 6-4. I think this one reason you find so many of our boys being drafted by the pros."

Merritt's most recent celebrity, Ed Jones, was nicknamed "Too Tall." He was the National Football League's No. 1 draft choice, the property now of the Dallas Cowboys.

An all-state basketball player, he had 52 basketball scholarship offers and one football invitation—from Tennessee State.

So don't knock the Merritt system.

Women To Get More Chances

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's schools may not have to give women football scholarships, but they are going to change many of their policies to give female athletes more opportunities to compete in sports.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has made public its long-awaited proposed regulations interpreting and implementing sections dealing with sports under Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972.

The regulations, released Tuesday and to be published in the Federal Register Thursday, state: "No person shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, be treated differently from another person or otherwise be discriminated against in any physical education or athletic program ..."

They say schools may have separate teams for males and females if selections for the squads are based on competitive skill. The schools also could have single teams open to both sexes.

If separate teams are offered, however, a school may not discriminate on the basis of sex in providing the necessary equipment or supplies, or in any other way.

HEW said the institutions do not have to spend equal funds for men's and women's teams.

Failure to comply could result in loss of federal funds to a school.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association, an organization of some 775 schools which virtually controls all varsity athletics, declined to comment immediately on the regulations.

The NCAA has waged an all-out fight against the regulations since an earlier draft was circulated for comment in January.

Aaron Is Honored

NEW YORK (AP) — Hank Aaron, acclaimed by Mayor Abraham D. Beame as "one of the world's few authentic heroes," has been given the city's highest award, the Gold Medal, an honor usually reserved for astronauts and visiting heads of state.

The 40-year-old home run king was honored at a City Hall welcoming ceremony Tuesday attended by more than 800 city officials, sports dignitaries and fans. Seated on the dais were Mrs. Babe Ruth and Mrs. Lou Gehrig, widows of the Yankee stars.

"It is truly fitting that Hank Aaron receive this tribute from our city," Beame said. "A home run record has belonged to New York, thanks to Babe Ruth, for 40 years. Now that Hank has the record, I think it is only fair that we have Hank, too."

Earlier this year, Aaron shattered Ruth's long-standing career home run record of 714.

Bill Posedel has returned to the major leagues as pitching coach for the San Diego Padres.

No Merger Seen For Next Season

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The possibility of merger between the National and American Basketball Associations apparently has been run into a temporary roadblock and both leagues again will operate as separate entities next season.

The NBA Board of Governors are scheduled to vote today or Thursday on the merger issue—after trying to choose, between Los Angeles lawyers Alan I. Rothenberg and Henry J. Steinman Jr. to succeed the retiring J. Walter Kennedy as commissioner.

A vote of 14 members of the 18-man board was necessary for passage in both matters. But an ABA owner, preparing for his league's meetings in Louisville, Ky. Thursday and Friday—a gathering that Commissioner Mike Storen has said would "give us our starting lineup for next season"—said he didn't think the NBA could get 14 votes for merger.

Among those NBA teams reportedly against merger are Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles, Milwaukee, New Orleans and Seattle.

Kennedy has said he did not expect a merger to be nego-

Boys Club In Financial Crisis

"We're in a financial crisis," Graham Gutting, executive director of the Pitt County Boys' Club said Wednesday morning. Annually, since the founding of the boys' club, board members have conducted a fund drive during the month of May. This year, a goal was set for $22,000 for the month long drive. The drive, according to Gutting, "netted only about $1,000."

"The United Fund is our mainstay in keeping in operation now," Gutting said, "but even at that, their contribution of $12,000 represents only about one third of our budget, so we have to depend on other drives and events to raise enough money to keep the program operative."

This year, the Pitt County Boys' Club—with clubs in Greenville Ayden and Farmville and one scheduled to open tomorrow in Bethel—has an operating budget of $34,000, plus an additional $5,000 for capital outlay and mortgage payments for a total budget of $39,000.

In past years, various events, such as the Jaycee sponsored wrestling matches, have provided significant support to Boys' Club operations.

One current fund raising program now underway is a Ping Pong Marathon Tournament, under the direction of W. B. "Buff" Chalk, Jr. "The boys are playing day and night," Gutting said, "and will reach their 100th continuous hour at Friday noon. This marathon is designed to get the public's attention. Any individual wishing to make a contribution can mail a check to Boys' Club of Pitt County, P. O. Box 2947, Greenville."

Saying the summer program, the most active one during the year, "needs $7,000 in order to finish out the summer." Gutting expressed concern that it may not be possible to continue the program in full.

"Mrs. Etsil Gordon, our president, is in Farmville to contact community and business leaders in an effort to get an active fund drive underway there," Gutting commented. "There's a possibility, if things don't improve, that we may have to cut our Farmville program. Of course we hope not and are going to do everything possible before taking action that drastic," Gutting added.

"All of us are pinning our hopes on people responding once they understand the situation we're in," Gutting said. "I feel anyone familiar with the club's work or anyone who will take time to come by the facility on Skinner Street can see what we're doing."

Dinner Meeting Set Thursday

The Pitt County Young Republicans will hold a dinner meeting at Parker's Barbecue Restaurant on Thursday, at 7 p.m.

All interested Young Republicans are asked to attend. The cost is $3.00 per person.

'1812 Overture' Triggers Alarm

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Firemen answered an alarm at Symphony Hall in the Atlanta Memorial Art Center here Tuesday night. But it was a false alarm.

A spokesman said the sensitive fire alarm equipment was set off by a performance of Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture," directed by Robert Shaw.

Nuclear Supply Shortage Looms

WASHINGTON (AP) — A shortage of nuclear materials could jeopardize President Nixon's nuclear arrangements with Egypt and Israel, a member of the House-Senate Joint Atomic Energy Committee says.

Rep. Chet Hollifield, D-Calif., said Tuesday the shortage also could leave a number of proposed American nuclear power plants without fuel.

Hollifield commented after John A. Erlewine, general manager of the Atomic Energy Commission, told the committee the government will be unable to make new contracts after June 30 for supplying nuclear materials to power plants and other industrial users.

Erlewine said his agency is not producing enough nuclear fuel to fill any new contracts after June 30.

Erlewine said he did not know how the cutoff date would affect the arrangements with Israel and Egypt. But he said most domestic nuclear power plants already have contracted for the materials and shouldn't be affected.

Hollifield accused the AEC of "failure of responsibility" in not making plans to meet the shortage. He said the agency should have been able to "see down the road to the point where we would no longer be able to supply domestic reactors with the fuel they need to produce the electricity this country needs so badly."

Erlewine said the AEC has to stop making new contracts to supply nuclear fuels because existing contracts account for virtually all the capacity of the government's plants at Oak Ridge, Tenn., Portsmouth, Ohio, and Paducah, Ky., that manufacture the fuels.

Erlewine said private industry has failed to respond to administration appeals that it help the government in producing the nuclear materials.

"Without any question, there are policy questions to be addressed on the future production of special nuclear materials," he said.

Erlewine said the government would be able to meet all existing contracts for nuclear materials.

Report 'Copter Crashed, Burned

REIDSVILLE, N.C. (AP)—The Rockingham County Sheriff's Department reported today that a helicopter crashed and burned on Highway 29, near Reidsville, apparently killing two persons aboard the aircraft.

The department said the helicopter apparently struck high tension wires and plunged earthward.

Further details were not immediately available.

Evidence Shakes Nixon Statements On Cover-Up

By JOHN BECKLER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's statements that he first learned of the Watergate cover-up March 21, 1973, have been shaken by evidence presented to the House Judiciary Committee.

Alexander M. Haig Jr. and Ronald L. Ziegler. Members said Nixon's comments about a March 17 conversation he had with his former counsel, John W. Dean III, indicated he and Dean discussed the Watergate cover-up then. Members could not hear the tapes Nixon was listening to. Stung by criticism of a new leak of a confidential committee memorandum, members were reluctant to discuss what they heard.

But May 21, in a press briefing, Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., had said the June 4 tape showed the March 17 meeting with Dean included "a discussion of the Watergate matter and the possible involvement of White House personnel and others."

no reference to a discussion of Watergate. Meanwhile, former Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst told the Senate Judiciary Committee that he stayed deliberately aloof from the original Watergate investigation. He said Justice Department aides assured him there was not enough evidence until April 1973 to go beyond the original seven defendants in the June 17, 1972, Watergate break-in. And the U.S. District Court in Washington began disciplinary proceedings against Kleindienst, who has been convicted of refusing to answer certain questions about the ITT antitrust litigation. The court's grievance committee ordered him to show cause within 30 days "why he should not, as a member of the bar of this court, be disciplined."

examination of any witnesses who might be called. A decision on whether to call any, and who, will be made next week.

OK Extending Food Stamps

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has approved extending until July 1, 1975, food stamp benefits for needy, aged, blind and disabled persons covered by the new Supplemental Security Income program.

The bill, passed Tuesday by a voice vote and sent to the Senate, continued a temporary measure due to expire June 30. It included an amendment to close a loophole affecting SSI recipients in New York, California, Massachusetts, Wisconsin and Nevada.

A taped presidential conversation heard by the members Tuesday indicated to several of them that Nixon was aware at least four days earlier that White House aides might be involved in it.

It is not the four days that is significant in their view. They said the apparent discrepancy raises doubts about Nixon's Watergate explanations. He repeatedly has given March 21 as the date he first learned of efforts centered in the White House to contain the spreading scandal.

The committee heard an excerpt from a June 4, 1973, tape made while Nixon was listening to a number of tapes and commenting about them to aides

Firetrucks To Wake Husband Killed In Wreck

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Mrs. Bernice L. Jones was arrested early today in connection with an unusual scheme to wake up her husband, authorities reported.

According to officials, the 43-year-old woman said she summoned fireengines hoping the noise would awaken her sleeping husband.

He apparently went to bed after a marital argument. She was charged with calling in a false alarm, police said.

PLYMOUTH, N. C. (AP) — A 52-year-old man was killed early today in an automobile accident on N. C. 32 about 7½ miles south of Plymouth, the State Highway Patrol reported.

The victim was identified as Noah Cleo Oakley of Rt. 1, Plymouth. The patrol said his car ran off the road on the right side, then skidded back across the highway and struck a culvert.

Confirm Sawhill As Energy Boss

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has confirmed John C. Sawhill as the nation's new federal energy chief.

The 87 to 4 vote came Tuesday after a last-minute call by Sen. James L. Abourezk, D-S.D., that the Senate protest against Nixon administration energy policies by turning down Sawhill's nomination.

Sawhill, now in charge of the Federal Energy Office, will become head of the new Federal Energy Administration when that agency officially comes into existence July 27.

Now 'Honorary New Yorker'

NEW YORK (AP) — Alabama-born Hank Aaron, the Atlanta Braves' 40-year-old home run king, is now an "honorary New Yorker" too.

Aaron, praised by Mayor Abraham Beame as "one of the world's few authentic heroes," accepted New York's highest award — the Gold Medal — before an admiring throng of more than 800 city officials, sports figures and baseball fans in front of City Hall on Tuesday.

"To you kids I say, go ahead and get an education, and remember no matter how high the mountain, any of us, black or white, can climb the highest mountain," Aaron said.

Roughing It Is Not Necessary At A Hideaway

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

ST. JOHN, U.S. Virgin Islands (UPI) — Getting away from it all does not necessarily mean roughing it in some wilderness.

For there are hideaway resort islands in the Caribbean where you can escape for a while from the pressures of 20th century living without giving up modern comforts and conveniences.

Take St. John, smallest of the three main islands in the U.S. Virgins, which lies about three miles across Pillsbury Sound from brash and lively St. Thomas.

Thanks in large measure to Laurance S. Rockefeller, it remains relatively unspoiled despite the wave of tourism which swept across the Caribbean and deposited high-rise hotels, casinos, traffic jams, pollution and other problems in its wake.

A dedicated conservationist, Rockefeller donated more than 5,000 acres of his Caneel Bay Plantation to the United States for what is now the Virgin Islands National Park. And he has made sure that the natural surroundings be preserved in any expansion of facilities at the Rockresort, which lies inside the park.

Approaching from the sea—there is no airstrip—St. John must look much as it did when Christopher Columbus discovered the islands in 1493. The hills are still thick with tropical trees, plants and flowers and the air is fresh and clean.

Land and sea birds fly across the translucent blue waters caressing miles of uncrowded golden sand beaches fringed by palm and seagrape trees. It looks quiet and serene—and it is.

The Caneel Bay resort covers about 150 acres of gardens and parklike grounds and offers seven beaches, tennis courts and a variety of other land and sea activities. Its accommodations, meals and services have long rated among the finest anywhere.

It is not for swingers—there are no night clubs or casinos. There is dancing, movies and sometimes local entertainment but generally everything shuts down tight around midnight.

There are no telephones.

television, radios or piped-in music in the guest rooms, furnished in Danish modern. Cooling is by ceiling fans and trade winds which provide cross-ventilation through louvres in front and rear walls.

There are two excellent dining rooms and quiet cocktail lounges—one at the main pavilion at Caneel Bay and the other at Turtle Bay. For informal mid-day meals, there's a snack bar in the ruins of the old Sugar Mill, which features foot-long hot dogs.

I relaxed at Caneel while on tour of the Caribbean in conjunction with the inauguration of services by Eastern Air Lines to 13 new island destinations—St. Thomas, Haiti, Jamaica, Trinidad-Tobago, Guadeloupe, Martinique, Dominican Republic, St. Maarten, Aruba, Curacao, Antigua, Barbados, and St. Lucia.

Naturally, we discussed crime and tourism in the Virgin Islands with Richard (Dick) Erb, general manager of Caneel for the past eight years. Erb noted that St. Croix is more than 40 miles from St. John and said it is "sad that we should suffer from the adverse publicity."

Most of Caneel's winter guests are repeaters, he said, "who know from personal experience that there are no problems on St. John—and I certainly wouldn't let my wife and four children stay if there were."

"We still do not issue keys to rooms unless requested," Erb said. "And hardly anyone ever bothers to ask."

But, he said, "we are suffering from the image that all the Virgin islands are unsafe and people just aren't going to come down."

For those who do come down between April 16 and December 15, Caneel offers a variety of attractive package plans and off-season rates almost 50 per cent less than in the high season.

St. John also has a small cottage colony near its capital of Cruz Bay while camp sites, tents and cottages are available for rental in the National Park. But space is usually tight and advance reservations are a must.

U.S. Wealth Of Coal Still Largely Untapped

By EDWARD S. LECHTZIN (S02).
PARMA, Ohio (UPI) — With 48 per cent of the world's known supply located in the United States, this country is the Saudi Arabia of coal. Yet 78 per cent of the energy used is from oil and natural gas and just 17 per cent from coal.

Why isn't coal in greater use? Because it's dirty. While the black smoke that is the most visible element of how dirty coal is as a fuel can be eliminated —and virtually has been —a pollutant of equal concern remains. That pollutant is sulfur dioxide and is much more difficult to remove.

"Long ago man thought that the odor of sulfur dioxide meant that the Devil was lurking about," Ernest S. Starkman, General Motors Corp. vice president for environmental affairs, quipped recently. "Today, even though technology has advanced a bit, power house operators still are bedeviled by sulfur dioxide."

Expensive System
GM recently allowed newsmen to tour a facility attached to its power house at the Chevrolet Motor Division plant. It housed a pollution control system that may permit firms to burn high sulfur coal in power plant boilers without polluting the air.

It is an expensive system—more than $3 million in design and construction costs—and operating the system will add about $10 to the cost of each ton of coal burned. The sulfur content of the coal used at the plant is between two and two and one-half per cent and the system—called a double-alkali scrubber—removes more than 90 per cent of the sulfur dioxide

"We realize that if this system is to find a wider application, considerable cost reduction must be effected and the price of differential between high-sulfur and low-sulfur coal must be significant," said Starkman.

The boilers that produce the power to run the Chevrolet plant consume about 55,000 tons of coal a year. High-sulfur coal now costs about $25 a ton while the cleaner-burning low-sulfur coal costs just over $30, making the use of the scrubber system uneconomical under present conditions.

Price Rise Foreseen
Part of the cost of that coal is the transportation charges. GM buys the high-sulfur coal for its Parma plant in eastern Ohio while the low-sulfur coal must come a greater distance, from Kentucky and West Virginia.

As the price of scarce fuel oil and natural gas rises, so will the price of low-sulfur coal. The expensive systems designed to clean up the SO₂ will then be more economical.

"As for the future application of the scrubber system within GM, we will consider each plant on an individual basis," said Starkman. "This means that in those areas where there is an environmental problem, like the Cleveland area, our plants can burn coal and use the scrubber as a viable alternative to burning oil or natural gas."

The scrubber system was put into operation Feb. 28 and in the first two months of operation removed about 160 tons of SO₂ from the exhaust gases.

EPA Contract Signed
Robert K. Phillips, staff engineer on the GM Environmental Activities Staff, explained that one key feature of the GM system is its reliability. In its first 650 hours of operation, there were no unscheduled shutdowns and no time when untreated gases were belched from the smokestacks.

GM and the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) have signed a one-year development contract to study the design and construction, with an eye to reducing both initial costs and operating expense.

GM admits that it would like to see greater use of coal so more petroleum would be freed for use by the transportation sector which does not yet have an alternative fuel.

New Zealand Whiskey Has Gone Legal

By IAN McCAUSLAND
DUNEDIN, New Zealand (AP) — Hoots maun, it's legal, it's above board, and it has just gone on sale — genuine whiskey with a "Distilled in New Zealand" label.

Not that there hasn't been whiskey made here before, but it was illegal, under the counter and difficult to buy.

Nobody's too sure, but the rumor is that moonshine whiskey was one of the first products of the 300 Scottish pioneers who migrated here 126 years ago.

Ignoring the hellfire and brimstone sermons of their temperance-minded Free Church of Scotland clergy, the migrants set up stills in the hills around their settlement.

They named the settlement Dunedin, the old Gaelic name for the anglicized Edinburgh.

The fiery spirit they produced was named Hokonui after the tiny hamlet which became famous for its particular brand.

Hokonui hooch received a shot in the arm when it became the shot for thousands of thirsty prospectors who poured into the Dunedin hinterland after gold strikes in 1861.

The whisky goldmine lasted 14 years before the government imposed crippling excise duties on liquor production.

Mention Hokonui to New Zealanders these days — and they wink and clam up, indicating that the excisemen have not tracked down all the stills.

The legal production of whisky has been surrounded by almost as much security as Hokonui.

Since the Wilson Malt Extract Company — now Wilson's Distillers Ltd. — made the first moves 10 years ago to acquire a production license, there have been only snifters of information.

Actual production of whisky started at the company's old whitewashed stone and brick headquarters in 1969, since when the liquor has been maturing gently in American-made white wood casks.

"The whisky business is very competitive," said a company official. "We are taking a greater-than-average risk in trying to break into the market and cannot afford to let our competitors know too much."

Just how competitive was shown when company officials went to Scotland to probe the business. Scottish ancestry or not, the officials were greeted warmly — and treated dourly by distillery men there.

The New Zealanders knew they had the malt, grain and even the peat necessary to make whisky.

They searched the often mist-topped hills and claim to have found the vital ingredient of pure soft water — the reputed "secret" of Scotch whisky — at Deep Creek where, curiously, a prospector recently staked a claim in the hope of making a new gold strike.

The secrecy surrounding the new whisky went further.

The company ran a competition for a name for the product. A winner was selected from the 18,000 entries — and had enjoyed his Hawaiian vacation prize months before the name was announced.

The winning name was "45 South," a reference to the latitude of Dunedin — with overtones of the '45 rebellion (1745) in Scotland. The premium brand is to be known as "Wilson's Whisky."

The company, which has a $3.3 million U.S. investment in the whisky, hopes to grab half the annual New Zealand market of 400,000 gallons, at present imported from Scotland.

The government has come to the party by fixing excise duty on the local product at $19.93 U.S. a proof gallon — $7.13 U.S. less than the rate for imported whisky.

Churchwoman Against ERA

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The head of the Relief Society of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints (Mormon) has broken with other women leaders over the need for the Equal Rights Amendment.

Mrs. Belle S. Spafford said she was not "in accord with those who believe that current problems and needs of women may best be answered, in the main, by adoption of a Constitutional Amendment of Equal Rights."

U.S. Receiving Little In Exchange Of Technology

By HOWARD BENEDICT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Detente has generated a steadily increasing number of U.S.-Soviet technology exchanges, prompting growing concern that Russia is shrewdly acquiring U.S. know-how to improve its military posture while giving little in return.

The situation is stirring a serious policy debate in Congress and among several government agencies. Many on both sides believe a new national policy on export controls is needed.

Joins Office Of Dr. Pace

Dr. David W. White has recently joined Dr. Charles Pace in the practice of ophthalmology at 1707 West Sixth Street.

DR. DAVID WHITE

Dr. White is a native of Norfolk, Va., where he graduated from Granby High School in 1951. Following undergraduate work at the University of Virginia, he graduated from the University's School of Medicine in 1958. After his internship at Stanford University Hospital, he returned to Charlottesville to begin his residency in ophthalmology which he completed in 1962.

He practiced in Lynchburg, Va., for five years before entering the Army Medical Corps.
After achieving the rank of Lieutenant Colonel, he resigned his commission to resume his private practice in Lynchburg, and later in Miami, Fla.

Dr. White is married to the former Betsy Dale Tice of Kingsport, Tenn. They have three children, a daughter Liza, and two sons, William and Robert.

Critics contend many American companies, with approval of the administration, are selling computers, communications systems, precision ball-bearing machines and ship-building technology which have military application to the Soviets under what are supposed to be commercial agreements for civilian use.

Some officials charge the deals have advanced development of Russia's missile warhead accuracy by two to four years and its computer know-how by perhaps a decade. They say Russian missiles, tanks and military vehicles run on ball bearings based on American technology.

These critics say the Soviets may be soon competing in world markets with U.S. firms from which they purchased the technology.

America is getting very little Soviet technology in return, they say.

The technology-science cooperation agreement signed at the Moscow summit in May 1972 relaxed U.S. export regulations.
Many American firms, in their efforts to create new markets in the East, have signed far-reaching agreements with the Soviets.

Administration officials believe a strong technology exchange program is necessary to further detente and to achieve a favorable balance of economic and political advantages. But some officials, noting the U.S.- USSR wheat deal, admit the Soviets are shrewd bargainers and they have alerted American companies to keep their guard up.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., terms it a dangerous situation. He said preliminary study by the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, which he heads, indicates that Soviet experts are trying to acquire "significant technology ... which could have a serious impact on U.S. defenses."

"When we start holding hearings, I think the country will be rather startled at what is happening," Jackson said. "Unless we do something about this, there are going to be some shocking technology transfers."

Malcolm R. Currie, director of defense research and engineering at the Pentagon, is waging a campaign to warn U.S. industry of the pitfalls.

"The Soviets have become critically aware that their great deficiency is not in scientific knowledge but rather in production technology," Currie said.

"We therefore see what appears to be a carefully designed Soviet approach to acquire production technology," he said.

Especially disturbing to Currie and others are recent Soviet overtures to five U.S. aerospace firms: Lockheed, Boeing, McDonnell Douglas, General

Electric and United Aircraft's Pratt & Whitney Division. The Russians are seeking jumbo jet aircraft and engines.

What the Soviets really want to buy, the critics say, is the technology that would allow them to build their own production facilities, now sorely lacking in the USSR.

The Soviets know how to build big jets. But Pentagon experts say Soviet production techniques would not allow the Soviets to produce them efficiently enough to compete on the world market.

The Defense Department, which is considering using such giant as Boeing's 747 as military transports, fear the Russians would use technology obtained in any such deal to improve their military airlift capability.

Boeing and Lockheed have signed protocol agreements to explore possible civil aviation projects with Russia.

Boeing said the protocol was "limited to the exchange of scientific and technical information." But the Soviet news agency Tass reported the agreement could result eventually in an American-designed aircraft plant in Russia and in the development of new passenger aircraft and helicopters.

Another concern of Pentagon planners is the National Security Council's recent approval for a group of U.S. computer companies to install an air traffic control system in Russia comparable to that used by the Federal Aviation Administration. The U.S. team, headed by IBM, is competing with a French firm for the contract.

This would allow the Soviets to accommodate increased air transport and to compete with airlines of other nations for expanded international routes. It also would permit creation of the computerized military air traffic control system they now lack.

A leading congressional opponent of the sale of advanced computer systems to the Soviets or other eastern bloc nations is Rep. Ben B. Blackburn, R-Ga. He said American computers were sold to Russia as early as 1959, but that export restrictions limited the quality to systems available to the Russians elsewhere in the world.

But through the years, Blackburn said, American computer technology has funneled into Russia, either through direct sales or through other Communist-bloc nations.

Blackburn said the combination of U.S. and British computer technology has advanced development of the Soviets' multiple independently-targeted re-entry vehicles—MIRVs—from two to four years. This, he said, allowed them to take advantage of the SALT-1 treaty to advance the Soviet strategic posture in a time span unanticipated in Washington.

Despite owning this technology, Blackburn said, the Russians have failed in an effort to create a manufacturing base for third-generation computers.

"Consequently, the Kremlin leaders are asking our electronic and computer firms to create a Soviet productive base in which to manufacture third generation and advanced scientific computer systems," he said.

No U.S. company can sell technical goods to Russia without approval of the National Security Council, which gets recommendations on sensitive export licensing clearances from the State Department, White House Council on International Economic Policy and the Commerce Department's Bureau of East-West Trade.

Steven Lazarus, director of the Bureau of East-West Trade, concedes there have been conflicts between his agency and the Pentagon on questions of technology export clearance.
But he insists the bureau is sensitive to national security and he sees "no evidence that security has been compromised."

Explaining why technical-export regulations have been relaxed, the bureau's Kenneth S.
Yalowitz said "United States government policy has been predicated on the assumption that increased U.S.-USSR trade and technical cooperation would contribute to the expansion of constructive relations and complement on-going negotiation on disarmament and troop reductions.

"We want the USSR to look to the United States for the exchange of products and technology. To the extent that we succeed, we shall be improving over-all prospects for development of a mutually-beneficial relationship."

He acknowledged there has been some concern in regulatory agencies about the seepage of technology resulting from protocol agreements signed in the past two years between about 25 U.S. firms and Soviet organizations.

He said an amendment has been proposed to the Export Administration Act to require U.S. firms and their foreign affiliates to report within 15 days any written understanding which could result in export of high-technology items.

Undersecretary of Commerce John K. Tabor said a goal of the United States is to obtain technology in the fields in which the Soviets excel.

"They have large programs with unique and valuable breakthroughs in metalworking, engineering plastics, hydroelectric power and high voltage transmission techniques," he said. "Experts advise me they lead the world in development of magneto hydrodynamic power generators, which can generate electricity directly from coal combustion. Some authorities hold they are strong in research, particularly in the theoretical fields such as physics, chemistry and mathematics."

Tabor reported that since detente the U.S. has obtained some new technology from the Soviets, including a low-cost method of extracting magnesium and processes for cooling blast furnaces, remelting metals and smelting aluminum.

We put Sealtest® to the ice cream parlor taste test.

Interviewer: What do you enjoy about that ice cream?

Phyllis Cash: Very creamy...rich...smooth...cool.

Interviewer: That actually is Sealtest ice cream. It's from a supermarket.

Phyllis Cash: I would never believe this came from a carton from a supermarket... 'cause they usually don't taste this fresh or as creamy.

Interviewer: And how did this taste?

Phyllis Cash: Just as if it were freshly made and very creamy and delicious.

How to avoid future shock.

Tomorrow won't take care of itself. And, deep down, you know that. So you'd better do something about your future money needs today.

There's a painless way. Simply start building your nest egg a little at a time. It's easy when you buy U.S. Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

You can save as little or as much as you want. Just specify the amount. And it'll be set aside from your paycheck and used to buy Bonds.

Then, when the future arrives, you'll be better fixed to face it. Because Bonds are the best shock absorber around.

Now U.S. Bonds pay 8% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (9% the first year). Bonds are replaced if lost, stolen or destroyed. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Phyllis Cash wasn't the only one who reacted this way when we replaced an ice cream parlor's ice cream with Sealtest ice cream. Here are some others:

"It's too good."
"You're kidding!"
"It doesn't taste like supermarket ice cream."

So why spend money on those expensive ice cream parlor ice creams, when you can get the same delicious taste from Sealtest ice cream.

20¢ off
on your next 1/2 gallon of Sealtest ice cream.

Mr. Dealer: Sealtest Foods will reimburse you 20¢ plus 3¢ handling allowance when this coupon has been properly redeemed for one half-gallon of Sealtest ice cream by your customer, provided you received it on your sale of this product and that sufficient product to cover all redemptions has been purchased by you within ninety-days of redemption. For redemption, mail to Sealtest Foods, Box 1799, Clinton, Iowa 52733. Cash value 1/20 of 1¢. Coupon void where taxed, prohibited or restricted by law, and may not be transferred by you. Customer may pay any sales or similar tax applicable. Offer expires December 31, 1974.

The Worry Clinic Having Money Is Not Enough

Ed resented the fact that girls regard him as stodgy and lacking in a good sense of humor. He didn't even realize they also considered him egotistical to a fault and miserly. Yet 4 girls jilted him, despite his millionaire status!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE A-663: Ed F., aged 41, is a bachelor. "Dr. Crane," he grumbled, "I've been enrolled for 6 months in the Scientific Marriage Foundation."

"And I have been introduced during that time to several attractive girls."

"But I don't seem to hit it off very well with any of them, though I am a graduate engineer and very wealthy."

"So I finally persuaded the last girl to rate me on your famous 'Tests for Sweethearts.'"

"But what griped me the most was her comment that I have no sense of humor and am also tactless and self-centered."

"Dr. Crane, why should a girl be so concerned with a man's having a good sense of humor?"

WHY HUMOR?

When a girl says she likes a man with a good sense of humor, she isn't referring to Bob Hope wisecracks.

Nor to the vulgar, pornographic stories that men often tell when they are in the locker room at the Country Club or half drunk at a formal dinner party.

A sense of humor, from the woman's viewpoint, means a well balanced social outlook that permits him to laugh at his own foibles.

It involves a well balanced personality instead of the intense egotist or Hitler megalomaniac.

Also implied in that idea of "Humor" is the fact that he doesn't make a scene over trivial flaws and mistakes in other people, or his own children.

Recently I referred to True Magazine's survey of career women concerning their attitude toward men.

And for the personality traits they deemed most attractive in a man, they listed (1) Sensitivity, and (2) Sense of humor, in that order.

As you can readily perceive, those career women picked Siamese Twin attributes, "Sensitivity" and "Humor" are closely related.

Unless a man is socially well oriented to human personality and thus has a deft understanding of what is appropriate vs. inappropriate, he can't see anything out of order in a faux pas or ridiculous act. So a topnotch humorist like Bob Hope, must be a superb Applied Psychologist.

A hermit miser, like Silas Marner, would not be expected to have a sense of humor.

Nor would Robinson Crusoe. And bachelors, who have remained aloof from the main stream of human relationships, thus are often akin to Silas Marner.

In fact, one of the girls that Ed had dated, wrote a note to the home office, saying:

"He is the stingiest and most egotistical man I have ever met in my entire life!"

Yet Ed never dreamed he was violating the social code or acting miserly, for a Silas Marner never sees himself as a penny-pincher.

The intense egotist thus looks out at life through what I call a one-way street and can't imagine that other people regard him in possibly a different light than he views himself.

People who are sensitive and thus with a sense of humor, employ the two-way street outlook.

Ed, for example, would see nothing laughable in a recent Public Utility leaflet with some humorous items therein, such as:

"The length of a minute depends on which side of the bathroom door you're standing on."

Send for my 200-point "Test for Sweethearts," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JUNE 20, 1974

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Richter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: It is necessary to adopt a cheerful attitude now since the eclipse of the Sun releases emotionalism which can cause considerable depression if permitted to be a part of the consciousness. Read good books, listen to cheerful radio, music, or view comedy TV.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) The situation at home could bring arguments if you are not diplomatic. Take no chances with persons you do not know. Stick close to home.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Much care in motion should be used now to prevent accidents. Get shopping done but make sure you keep an eye on your purse.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You cannot buy your way into things that are not for you, so use more ethical methods along different lines.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You may feel unhappy and should not gad about and make others depressed also, but keep to yourself. Improve appearance and you'll snap out of it.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Proceed with jobs instead of trying to get out of them, and you gain benefits. Graciously assist one in trouble.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't look to any friends for help now since they are occupied. Avoid the social and keep busy. Help a deserving person.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Although you may not like some new regulations, try to be patient or you could get into trouble. Increase income.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A new acquaintance could prove disappointing, but that is because you were not very friendly. Have fun tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Though you want to run away from your responsibilities, this is the time to get them done. Stop being so suspicious of mate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A partner is emotional and could give you some trouble, but be patient or there would be a severance of connections. Be objective.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan work and do it early. Don't lose your temper with others, or you could undermine your health. Be efficient.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Have a good time within budget. Give greater attention to that creative skill you have and make it pay off in good figures.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be a born problem-solver, so slant the education along such lines, be it with the police department, the government, big business firms, etc. Teach early not to mix in when others are having trouble, or there can be much trouble here, of a personal nature. Teach while young to work with the hands, since the mind here is so complicated the building of the body might be neglected.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Top Student In Home Ec.

Miss Debbie Jean Manning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Manning of Rt. 2, Greenville, has been named top-ranking home economics student at D.H. Conley High School. The award was announced by Mrs. Beulah W. Mebane, chairman of the department.

The pattern for the award, sterling silver, was selected by the home economic students as part of a special project in consumer education, and the silver has been on display in the home economics department throughout the year.

The award is made available by the Sterling Silversmiths Guild of America in recognition of the fine work done in high school home economics education, and to stimulate student interest in the homemaking arts. Miss Manning plans to attend Beaufort Technical Institute next year to study two year accounting programs. She was president of the FHA, and for the past four years has been a member. She also has been involved in FBLA for three years, and a member of the Photography and Pep Clubs for one year.

The bidding:

South West North East
1 NT Pass 3 NT Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Two of ♠

It is not always easy to spot the right combination to develop a crucial extra trick. Today's hand is a typical example, and I would hazard a guess that the majority of players would fall into the same trap that declarer did.

The auction presented no problems. South had a classic one no trump opening bid and North, with 10 HCP and a five-card suit, certainly had nothing to be ashamed of when he raised to game.

When dummy came down, declarer could count seven running tricks, and the king-queen of hearts was certain to provide an eighth. It seemed that diamonds would have to be developed for the game-going trick. To give himself an extra chance, declarer allowed East's king of spades to win the first trick, and ducked the continuation of the three as well.

West won and drove out the ace of spades. Declarer cashed the ace and king of diamonds, and then conceded a diamond to East. After taking the ace of hearts, East led his last spade, and that was down one. "Had West started with five spades, I would have made the hand, partner," remarked South.

That was true enough, but hardly likely in view of the defensive carding. West's opening lead of the two of spades and East's return of the three at trick two made it a moral certainty that the suit was going to divide 4-4. Thus, by conceding a diamond declarer was, in effect, giving the defenders the setting trick without a fight, for he would have to lose three spades and the ace of hearts as well.

Declarer overlooked the importance of dummy's ten of hearts. By utilizing that card, he can bring his chances of success up to a straight 50%—a finesse for the jack of hearts—which is a considerable improvement over 0%. South was right to hold up the ace of spades twice, but after winning the third spade he should have led a heart to dummy's ten. East can win the ace and the defenders can take their third trick in spades to complete the book, but the remainder of the tricks would have been declarer's.
