Nixon, Brezhnev To Meet Again In '75

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — President Nixon told the Russian people tonight that he will meet with Leonid I. Brezhnev again next year to continue the search for "a lasting peace" and a better life for them and for the American people.

The President also acknowledged that he and the Soviet Communist party leader "have many difficulties, yet to be overcome in achieving full control over strategic nuclear arms."

But he said in a prepared speech they made progress in three annual summit meetings and are "steadily building a new relationship that over time will reduce the causes of conflict."

The Russians provided the green room of the Grand Kremlin Palace and their national radio and television hookup for the speech. Relay to the United States was also arranged.

Nixon gave no hint of any specific results from his on-going talks with Brezhnev in the nuclear field. He briefly mentioned new accords on health and housing and said, "They will give the people of both of our countries a positive stake in peace."

Nixon's speech was on the eve of the windup of his third summit with Brezhnev and followed a new round of talks with him.

"We have been able to meet this year, as we will meet again next year, not in an atmosphere of crisis, but rather in an atmosphere of confidence — confidence that the work we have embarked on is going forward," Nixon said.

Nixon did not say where the fourth summit would take place and he made no mention of an impeachment drive in Congress that if successful could remove him from office by 1975.

Presumably, Brezhnev would come to the United States.

"Peace is not only a condition," the President said while advancing a fourth summit round. "If it is to last, it must also be a continuing process."

Nixon and Brezhnev resumed their summit talks late today after some five hours' delay and conferences with top aides.

As Nixon and Brezhnev got together in the Kremlin they still faced as their top problem finding ways to limit offensive nuclear weapons.

No immediate explanation was given by either side for the delay.

Soviet sources did not discourage reports that the Politburo had met during the past 24 hours. This may have accounted for the delay in resumption of summit talks, but there was no confirmation.

Bicentennial HQ Opens

Amid the usual flurry of last minute details such as installing a phone, moving in donated furniture, and hooking up the plumbing, Greenville "200", Inc., formally opened its headquarters at the corner of Ninth and Evans Tuesday.

On hand to mark the occasion were William Carstarphen, City Manager and Dr. Robert Holt, Vice Chancellor of ECU and President of Greenvill, "200", Inc.

After the ribbon cutting ceremony Carstarphen said, "Nothing is more productive or more fun than a community involved in a festival celebrating its past, present and future. I don't think there's any more encouraging sign of Greenville's vitality than the willingness of local people to put in time, effort and money to put on such a festival. What we're doing today is another example of that special attitude which makes Greenville such an exciting community."

According to Dr. Holt, "The opening of the headquarters of the bi-centennial is concrete evidence and culmination of the many hours of hard work on the part of the bi-centennial committees. Now that we have a focal point for activities, we invite all of the citizens of Greenville to come by for a visit and to become an integral part of the festivities."

Mrs. Dale House, secretary and manager of the headquarters, will be on hand from 9 a.m. till 5 p.m. Monday through Friday to handle questions and give citiczens a chance to present their ideas. The new phone number is 752-1919.

Emotional Argentines Bid Farewell To Peron

By MORT ROSENBLUM
Associated Press Writer

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Thousands of Argentines, weeping and shouting "Long live Peron!" "Long live the leader!" and "Goodby Peron!" bade an emotional farewell to their leader today.

Many threw white flowers over his black wooden coffin as it entered the Plaza de Mayo on its journey to the National Cathedral and a funeral Mass.

The coffin — draped in Argentina's blue and white flag and topped with Peron's general's cap and sword — was carried on a gun carriage for the last part of the solemn 10-mile journey to the cathedral.

When it arrived, 12 grenadiers carried it inside, where a eulogy was read. Afterward, the coffin was again borne on the gun carriage 15 blocks to the Congress.

The carriage was accompanied by Peron's widow and vice president, Isabel, who took over the presidency after Peron died of a heart attack Monday. The funeral was part of a two-day farewell to Peron, leader of the Argentine people for 30 years in power or in exile.

The body of the 78-year-old Peron later will lie in state in the domed, columned Congress building while Argentines, four abreast, file by. A state funeral will be held Wednesday.

National mourning was ordered for today and Wednesday, and flags will fly at half staff for 10 days.

Peron's 43-year-old widow is the first woman chief executive in traditionally male-dominated Latin America, but there was no assurance that she would remain in office for the five years and four months remaining in his term.

Unlike Peron's second wife, Isabel Peron has no political following of her own, has exerted little or no personal influence on the country's politics, is a novice at the business of government, and was elected vice president nine months ago only because her husband insisted on her being his running mate.

Meanwhile, the Peronist movement is badly split between conservatives and radical leftists who united only in support of Peron.

For the time being, however, no attempt is expected to unseat the new president and the country is expected to remain calm. Mrs. Peron, in a broadcast announcing her husband's death, appealed to "friends and adversaries" to calm their "personal passions in favor of a free, just and sovereign country." The armed forces, which overthrew Peron in 1955 and ruled the country for 18 years, promised to uphold the constitutional succession, and all political factions have expresed support.

The labor unions declared a general mourning strike until midnight Wednesday but said essential services would be maintained.

Peron, one of the most loved and hated figures in Latin-American history, was one of a group of army officers with pro-Axis sympathies who seized power in 1943. His mistress, the actress Eva Duarte, organized the country's workers behind him. In 1946 he was elected president by a 55 per cent majority, soon after he married Eva. His first wife had died earlier.

Eva was in effect Peron's co-president but died in 1952 of leukemia at age 33. Two years later, the military overthrew Peron, and he began 18 years of exile.

He met his third wife in Panama. Her real name is Maria Estela Martinez, but she used the name Isabel as a night club dancer and has kept it. They were married in 1960.

Throughout his years in exile, Peron remained the political leader most popular with the Argentine masses. In 1972, the military finally gave up its attempt to run the country.

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day, but the phone service is available 24 hours a day.

VOLUNTEERING SERVICES

I was wondering if a person could give service to senior citizens without getting a special license or doing a lot of paperwork. I'd be willing to give rides to do other little services for those needing assistance. R.B.

Mrs. Beth Clark at the Pitt County Department of Social Services said your volunteer services are needed and will be appreciated. She is contacting you immediately. Anyone else as willing to give as you may call Mrs. Clark at 758-2167.

PLEASE STOP SUBSCRIPTION

We have begun receiving a Buddhist newspaper called World Tribune, published in Chicago. We have not subscribed to this paper, don't want it, and don't know how they got our name and address. I wrote them and asked that it be stopped, and subsequently began getting two a week instead of one. I sent some back postage due—the only result, more papers. Mrs. L.W.

The Chicago publishers of World Tribune asked that Hotline call a Washington, D.C. Eastern Area office. A subscription department spokesman there indicated that yours is a pre-paid subscription and suggested it may have been given you by "a friend who thought you'd enjoy it." He said World Tribune "does no indiscriminate mailing." Your subscription will be stopped immediately, though, as you request, he said.

WHAT GIVES WITH TRAFFIC LIGHT?

I'd like to know why the stoplight near the Burroughs-Wellcome plant gives the right of way to those coming out of the new bypass rather than to those on 13. And why, when the train is crossing the bypass, does the traffic on 13 have to stop? M.G.B.

Division of Highways District Engineer C. W. Snell said the traffic engineers are working on improving this intersection now. At present the light is set to change only when activated from whichever direction a vehicle approaches it. Therefore, once the last vehicle goes through, it does not change until another approaches it from the opposite highway. If traffic is steady, it changes every 50 seconds.

And the light is set to go red in all three directions when the train comes along. This is being changed, Snell said, so that it will be green on Highway 13 while the train is crossing the bypass. However, if cars from either direction on 13 need to turn into the bypass, traffic will still be tied up, as there is no turn lane here. This stretch of Highway 13 is set to be four-laned under the State Department of Transportation's Seven Year Program, he said, and turn lanes will eliminate this problem when the overall improvement is done.

Request Increase

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Automobile Rate Administrative Office Monday requested a 3.2 per cent overall increase in the automobile liability insurance rates.

The office cited rising hospitalization and repair costs as reasons for the request.

The percentage increase is an average of the cost of bodily injury and property damage policies. All drivers in the state are required to carry both types.

Bodily injury rates have dropped 5.6 per cent in the last two years according to figures provided by the office. The decrease is partly due to a drop in the number of claims.

Property damage rate levels have increased by an average 16.7 per cent in the same period.

The last increase in auto insurance rates, in October 1973, was made in response to a 1971 request by the rate office. It amounted to 7.4 per cent.

Friend Links Chenault To Small Group That Hates Black Ministers

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Marcus Wayne Chenault, the alleged killer of Mrs. Martin Luther King Sr., belonged to a small group that believes black ministers should be punished because they misled their people, the Dayton Journal Herald reported in a copyright story today.

The newspaper said it learned of the organization, known as "The Troop," by interviewing a close friend of Chenault.

Interviewed on the condition that he not be named, the friend said that in addition to Chenault and himself the group has about five other members in the Dayton area. He said there are also members in Cincinnati, Columbus and Youngstown.

Neither the FBI nor police had any comment on the report.

Chenault, 23, is being held without bond in Atlanta, Ga., on charges of murdering Mrs King and a church deacon. Mrs. King was the mother of the late civil rights leader the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

Chenault's friend branded all black preachers as "political pimps.

"The black minister is one of the most powerful forces in the black community because of his ability to control people. Yet he is also one of the main reasons we still have ghettos."

The friend described "The Troop" as "Hebrews who believe in God and not Jesus Christ." All are black.

Chenault's friend voiced special bitterness toward the King family.

"The King family had been cursed ever since all those black people got killed in the South for following Martin Jr.'s teaching in the height of the 1960 riots," the newspaper quoted him as saying.

He also accused the Kings of "getting rich" instead of "helping out the poor people.

The friend said he agreed that Chenault's original target was the famed civil rights leader's father, also a minister. He said Chenault apparently changed his mind and decided to kill Mrs. King when he could not find her husband.

He said Chenault had no intention of hurting anyone else, but added that the past weekend's events are only "a warning of what is to come."

When asked if he and Chenault had discussed the assassination before Chenault went to Atlanta, the friend replied, "No comment."

He did say that Chenault had gone to talk with black ministers in Akron and his birthplace of Winchester, Ky., in the months before the shooting. He also said Chenault had been to Cincinnati to take part in a study group "The Troop" had held.

Disclaim Term Of Break-In

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former White House aide who helped plan the 1971 break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist testified today that the term "break-in" was never used in seeking approval for the operation from John D. Ehrlichman.

Ehrlichman, former White House domestic counselor, is one of four men on trial on charges of conspiring to violate the civil rights of Ellsberg's psychiatrist, Dr. Lewis Fielding of Beverly Hills, Calif.

David R. Young, a former National Security Council aide and one of the prosecution's principal witnesses, testified today that the word "break-in," was never used in discussions with Ehrlichman.

Young, a reluctant witness who answered only after repeated questions, also said he considered there to be a clear distinction between "covert" and "illegal" as applied to the Plumbers, a special White House investigative unit that carried out the break-in at Fielding's office.

Young has been granted immunity from prosecution in exchange for his testimony.

On Monday, Young said he received final approval from Ehrlichman for the break-in four days before the break-in occurred.

Ehrlichman has said that he approved of an undercover, but nonetheless legal, attempt to obtain Ellsberg's record of psychiatric treatment. But he has denied knowing in advance of the break-in.

New Bike Safety Standards Effective Jan. 1

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission today wheeled out the nation's first bicycle safety standards, to take effect Jan. 1.

The mandatory regulations, covering everything from braking performance to reflectors, are aimed at reducing the estimated one million bicycle-related injuries last year.

Although the new standards will apply to all bicycles introduced into interstate commerce after the end of this year, those made and distributed before the deadline may continue to be sold.

To reduce consumer confusion, the commission decided that during the next two years new bicycles meeting the standard should bear the label: "Meets U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission Safety Regulations for Bicycles."

Violators of the regulations could face criminal penalties.

Frames, steering systems, wheels and brakes will be required to meet tests for safety, performance and strength.

Front, rear, side and pedal reflectors are mandated, although manufacturers have the alternative of providing either reflectorized tires or wideangle, spoke-mounted reflectors for the side.

Other provisions include coverings for protruding nuts and bolts, protected edges on metal fenders, chain or derailleur guards and adequate assembly, operating and maintenance instructions.

Racing bikes and custom "one of a kind" bikes are exempted.

Engagement Announced

MISS MARILYN FRANCES MOODY. . .is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Moody of Winston-Salem, who announce her engagement to George Leslie King, son of Mrs. Carolyn D. King of Greenville. The wedding will take place Aug. 10.

Miss Glenda Pinne Weds On Saturday Evening

GENOA, Ill.—The First Baptist Church here was the scene of the wedding ceremony of Glenda Lea Pinne and Wyatt Livingstone Brown Jr. Saturday at 7:00 p.m.

The Rev. Richard B. Toikka performed the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Pinne of New Lebanon, Ill.., and Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt Brown of Greenville, N.C.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of sheer organza fashioned with ruffled cuffs on the long sleeves, bibbed bodice, lace trimmed collar and A-line skirt with an attached full length chapel train.

Her three tiered bouffant veil was attached to a lace cap. The bride carried an old-fashioned nosegay of roses, daisies and baby's breath.

The honor attendant was Judy Pinne of New Lebanon, Ill. She wore an aqua gown flocked with flowers. The gown had a stand-up collar and the puffed sleeves were trimmed with daisies.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Petrice Flood of Rochester, N.Y., Mrs. Emma Aska and Miss Vicky Aska, both of Maple Park, Ill. They wore blue flowered formal dresses and carried old-fashioned nosegays of carnations and daisies.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Robert Flood of Rochester, N.Y., Richard Aska of Maple Park, Ill., Frank Pinne of New Lebanon, Ill., Danny Pinne of Genoa, Ill., and Jim Davidson of Kingston, Ill.

The flower girl was Miss Kelly Aska of Maple Park, Ill. She was dressed like the bridesmaids and carried a basket of flower petals.

The couple will reside in Panama City, Fla.

The bride graduated from Pillsbury College with a degree in elementary education. The bridegroom graduated from Duke University with a B.S. in physics and from N.C. State University with a Master's in electrical engineering.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the church honoring the bridal party.

Mrs. Wyatt Livingstone Brown Jr.

London's Female Police Want Equality

LONDON (AP) — The liberation of women in the British police has run into an unexpected obstacle — female chauvinism.

Britain's 47 provincial police forces have separated and distinct men's and women's branches, with the women's limited in size and scope. In London, however, female cops fight their male colleagues for every job at every level, with equal responsibility, equal rank and equal rights.

This experiment in equality, introduced a year ago and unrivaled elsewhere in Europe, has won the support of policemen in London but is viewed askance by many policewomen outside London.

"After the first shock, men have taken great pride in the scheme," said Shirley Becke, one of London's top cops. "But there isn't much enthusiasm among policewomen outside London because it means competing with men for every single job. The abolition of the women's branch meant the abolition of women's jobs. Now everyone is looking at London to see if we fall flat on our faces."

London's ladies in blue, however, are thriving on equality.

Mrs. Becke is the capital's first-ever female commander, one woman among 13 men. A 52-year-old detective, Miss Barbara Kelley, is the first-ever female chief superintendent in Scotland Yard's criminal investigation squad. Sheila Ward, a pretty 37-year-old brunette, is the first station inspector, in charge of 27 policemen and six horses.

"I could have pushed Sheila out on to traffic control when the branches integrated," said her boss, Chief Supt. Peter Saunders. "But she wanted a job with responsibility outside the usual woman's field, so I moved out a man to create this opening for her."

Inspector Ward, while making clear she never tried to be "one of the boys," stressed she could throw her weight — 130 pounds — about as well as most men.

"I've been confronted with a madwoman armed with scissors, a prostitute with a knife, and a six-foot fighting drunk," she said. "They didn't come quietly — but I made them see things my way ..."

The irregular, unsocial hours policewomen work often mean cold dinners — and cold beds—for 9-to-5 husbands, but the girls say this doesn't disturb the peace at home.

"The problems of being a policewoman aren't really serious ones," said a young wife in the London force. "Most men are quite capable of frying an egg or two, and it does no harm to a marriage to be out of each other's hair at times."

Commander Becke's husband, Justin, an oil company director turned vicar, is used to seeing his wife come in, only to go right out again.

"I never ask her questions about her work," he said. "She has many secrets to keep and it wouldn't be fair."

Mrs. Becke, a slim, elegant woman, has no time for hobbies or parish work.

Women were admitted to the British police force in 1919, ahead of the rest of Europe, to look after women who came into custody. As late as the 1940s, however, women detectives were tethered to three tasks — dealing with female shoplifters, taking statements from women and children who had been sexually assaulted, and investigating thefts in women's lavatories. In the uniformed branch, almost nothing was excluded from women at constable level — and thereafter almost nothing was open to them.

Today there are women in every section of the London force except the river police.

"Dragging dead bodies out of the Thames isn't very appealing," explained Commander Becke, whose own career has spanned dealing with blackmail, vice rings, murder and fraud.

British police do not normally carry guns, and although London's policemen and women both receive marksmanship training it seems likely that men would be chosen for armed jobs.

"Of course women could be armed," Commander Becke said thoughtfully. "But only when they absolutely had to."

"But," she said, "I am a vicar's wife in that I look after the vicar. Fortunately the previous incumbent was a bachelor, so the parishioners get on quite well without me."

Find Doctor Who Is Concerned

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the most horrifying article in the Wall Street Journal headlined: "Painful Puzzle Viral V.D. Is Contagious and Doesn't Go Away." Then it described the horrors of Herpes 2, a genital-area virus which manifests itself in painful lesions, akin to facial "cold sores."

The article stated that Herpes 2 is approaching gonorrhea as the next most prevalent venereal disease, is highly contagious, can be contracted by males, results in infant mortality and cervical cancer and, once contracted, can never be cured and will recur sporadically!

Abby, I am a woman who has suffered from Herpes 2 since 1967, and never once has my physician evinced the least concern over it. He prescribed only symptomatic relief remedies and vitamin C, and said, "Let it run its course."

Since my boyfriend saw the article, he's been treating me like I have leprosy.

Please consult with your experts and let us thousands of Herpes sufferers know if the medical world concurs with this article's evaluation. SIGN ME, HERPES HANNAH

DEAR HANNAH: While the article is unstandably alarming, it does not necessarily follow that all the facts concerning Herpes 2 apply to you. If your doctor is not investigating the new developments in the study of Herpes 2, find one who is, and make an appointment for two examinations [one for you and one for your boyfriend]. And don't hesitate to ask the doctor any and all questions concerning this disease.

DEAR ABBY: A wife wrote to say she had found a pair of nylon panties in her husband's pickup truck, and you jumped to the conclusion that some gal friend had left them there.

You overlooked something, Abby. Those panties could have been her husband's!

There are lots of men who like the feel of smooth, soft undies next to their bodies. And don't get the idea that they aren't all men because they are. I know. I've been on the police force for 16 years, and before that I was with the U. S. Marines, and I'm one of those men. I'm also a husband and father of six.

So, Dear Abby, did you ever consider the possibility that there was no lady in the picture?

WEAR PANTIES [WHEN I GET THE CHANCE]

DEAR WEARS: No, I didn't. But you wouldn't believe the number of your "brothers" who wrote to suggest it.

DEAR ABBY: I am approaching 40 and so is my wife. We've been married for 22 years. Like most couples our age, our sex life isn't what it used to be. My wife can take it or leave it. I'm no sex maniac, but I'm not exactly dead yet.

Last Christmas the wife gave me a Polaroid camera, and just for the heck of it, she let me take some pictures of her in the bedroom, unclothed. That's when I discovered those pictures really turned me on.

Now, all of a sudden the wife tells me she is no striptease model, and she doesn't want to pose for any more pornography. I say it's not pornography as long as we're married because I'm the only one who sees those pictures.

We are both born-again Christians. I'd like your opinion. AM I kooky or not? SHUTTERBUG

DEAR SHUTTER: Not kooky, just a little far out. Whatever you do behind closed doors that is mutually agreeable is all right! I'm sold. Now all you have to do is sell the wife.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I've always worried a lot and frankly I'm quite good at it.

I worry about introducing people and going blank when I get to my mother. I worry about the shortage of ball bearings . . . a snake coming up through my kitchen drain. And one day when my husband and I were walking through Central Park in New York and saw a placard reading, THE WORLD WILL END AT MIDNIGHT, I called home and told the kids to cancel my dental appointment.

However, with three teenagers, I find one person can no longer bear the burden. As I told my husband in bed the other night, "I am only human and I am going crazy trying to devote as much time to each problem as it deserves. Besides, I think I am losing my Hugh Hefner Bunny Image."

"You are not losing your Bunny Image," he said. "Besides, I don't know what I can do."

"You take half of the teen-age worries and I'll take the other half," I said simply. "Say if you just took the worry about the cars off my hands it would help."

"Cars?"

"Right. You worry about whether or not they're going to break down when they are out on the road. Whether they run out of gas. Have an accident. Leak oil all over the garage. Fasten their seat belts. Have their tape decks stolen. Come in late. Or fog up the window with their breath and won't be able to see where they're going."

"What's left for you to worry about?"

"Are you serious? I have to worry about their grades. Their jobs. Their friends. Their hearing. Infections from piercing their ears. Slouching and having their spine grow crooked. Catching a disease from their filthy bedrooms. Losing their key. Getting enough sleep. A proper diet to clear up their skins. Their morals. Thier manners. Over-exposure to sex and violence on TV . . . getting telephone fungus from having a phone in their ear 18 hours a day . . ."

"It's all right," he said calming my hysteria. "It will all work out somehow. I had no idea you were carrying all this responsibility."

"It's just that with all the time I spend worrying over the kids I don't have time to worry about the population explosion, the energy crisis, the impeachment proceedings and I can't tell you when was the last time I worried about if you kissed me once would you kiss me again."

Suddenly we heard a screech of tires in the driveway and a motor that sounded like a Leer jet come to a noisy halt. "I'll trade you coming in late for sex and violence on TV," said my husband.

"Take my Bunny Image concern and you're on!"

Utilities Commission Given Emergency Funds

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Utilities Commission—swamped by rate increase requests totaling more than $238 million—has been given an emergency allotment of $290,000 to beef up its staff to handle the crush.

The allotment was approved Monday by Gov. Jim Holshouser and the Council of State. The money was withdrawn from the state's Contingency and Emergency Fund and will be put in a reserve fund for use by the commission.

In requesting the allotment, the commission said its present staff is "unable to perform the investigation, analyses and studies necessary to make needed decisions on the large volume of cases now before it."

The funds will be used as needed for contractual services and the temporary employment of additional attorneys, accountants and economists.

The commission cited several factors as contributing to the emergency it is facing, including:

—"Pending rate increases as follows: electric $199,725,000, telephone $8,760,000, gas $8,317,377, transportation $21,400,400 and water $113,200. (Total: $238,315,977.)

—"Construction by North Carolina utility companies of plant additions totaling $3.4 billion.

—"Cases pending before the Federal Power Commission threatening curtailment of natural gas supplies to North Carolina which could hurt the economy of the state through interruption of natural gas service.

—"A proposed change in the concept of telephone service now being discussed in proceedings before the Federal Communications Commission which would require intensive new studies by the Utilities Commission as well as participation in FCC litigation.

—"An increase in small public utility systems from 200 to 500 in the last three years to provide water and sewer service to residential subdivisions outside municipal corporate limits.

—"Great expansion in public participation in utility rate cases, including consumer, municipal and industry groups. Rate proceedings now run much longer than in the past.

—"An increased number of appeals from decisions and orders of the Utilities Commission, requiring the commission to have adequate representation in the courts.

—"New requirements for the protection of the environment as part of the regulation of utilities, involving new legal research and enforcement not previously needed."

—And, "Numerous tariff rate increase filings by the motor carrier (trucking) industry."

School Grounds To Be Recreation Area

WILLIAMSTON—Approval for the town of Everetts to use the grounds of the old Everetts school as a recreation space was approved Monday at the July meeting of the Martin County School Board. Eugene Rogers, Superintendent of Martin County Schools, says it is his understanding Martin County communities are receiving Revenue Sharing funds for recreation purposes.

A request by citizens of Farm Life community was approved to use the school building there in connection with bicentennial celebrations.

Student insurance for the coming year was approved at a rate of $4.75 per student, which is a 25 cents increase over last year's rate. Contracting agency is the Walker Agency, which provides coverage for football in the $4.75 rate.

In other action, the board of education approved the school food service policy for the coming year; appointed Sam Lee to the Farm Life Local Advisory Committee; and agreed to persue an option for additional land at the site of East End School in Robersonville.

BE CAREFUL

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Toys cause more than 43,000 injuries requiring hospital treatment every year, says Texas home management specialist Lillian Cochran.

"Any toy can be dangerous if misused," she said. "Parents should check the child's toys periodically for the development of hazards."

Tobacco Barn Is Lost To Blaze

SIMPSON—The Simpson Fire Department fought the first tobacco barn fire of Pitt County's harvest season last night.

The fire was reported on the Lonnie Baker farm near here Monday at 10:50 p.m. A wood frame structure, the barn and its contents were a total loss.

Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner said he is hoping for many fewer than the 131 tobacco barn fires reported in this county last summer. "If you do have a fire," he said, "call the nearest fire department first, then do what you can to begin fighting it. Keep the barn doors shut, and if you can, close the ventilators as wells."

Carolina Tel Workers Face Catch-Up Chores

By CARL L. TYER

If you have been waiting to have a telephone installed for quite some time, your wait may soon be over.

Carolina Telephone Co. in Greenville had almost 190 workers return to their work force Monday when members of the Communications Workers of America (AFL-CIO) returned to work under a new three-year contract.

CWA members returning to work in 38 Eastern North Carolina counties ended a strike which began on May 31 when their old contract expired after several extensions.

Greenville commercial district manager for Carolina Telephone, Don Collier, reported yesterday that he had almost 100 per cent of his work force back and that he hoped to have things back to normal in three to four weeks.

"We should be back to normal no later than the 26-27 of July providing we have good weather," Collier added.

The district manager said that they have many orders that have been delayed because of the strike and that they will continue to fill the emergency services as rapidly as possible.

CWA members approved a new contract last week by an almost two-to-one vote.

The strike by CWA members against Carolina Telephone was the first in the history of the company.

"We appreciate the patience and understanding of the public," Collier added, "during this period, and I would continue to urge callers to use direct distance dialing for their long distance calls."

Collier stated he felt the primary concern at the company now was for the work force to get back together as one "which we are doing today, and getting new installations worked."

Items included in the new contract were a 10 per cent across the board pay hike retroactive to May 5, the date the original old contract expired, and a wage-re-opener clause, whereby union members would have the right to strike again next year on May 5 when they negotiate for pay hikes again.

Oppose New Air Service

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Eastern Airlines has asked the Civil Aeronautics Board to turn down Charlotte's request for all-cargo air service.

The city and the Chamber of Commerce asked that another carrier be permitted to provide such service after Eastern and Delta dropped it last December.

Airlift International of Miami has offered to serve Charlotte. But Eastern has told the CAB that Airlift "remains suspended or fails to provide direct service at more than half the points on its certificated route system."

Eastern is the major passenger carrier at Charlotte. It says that curtailment of its cargo service was a result of the fuel shortage. It adds that depending on the availability of fuel this winter, it contemplates the resumption of limited all-cargo service, to include Charlotte.

Eastern contends that meanwhile it has 50 tons a day of unused cargo lift on passenger planes serving Charlotte.

Delta also has filed in opposition to Charlotte's request for all-cargo service.

Flying Tiger, a cargo-only line, has asked to be be considered a potential carrier for the city. But it has asked for a 45-day extension so it can further study the economics of the Charlotte market.

Belhaven Maps Holiday Plans

BELHAVEN—July the fourth celebrations in Belhaven, noted for many years as one of the most active Independence Day commemorations in eastern North Carolina, is all set for 1974.

Again this year, a long list of popular and participant events has been scheduled. Among traditional events are a beauty contest, several water events (including powerboat races, a boat regatta, a ski show), gospel sing, a fish fry and at night a fireworks display over the waters of the Pantego River.

This year a new event is being introduced, a tractor pull contest with five classes of tractor vehicles.

Also over the river will be an air show in the afternoon with Sylvia DeRosset.

As in past years, a number of all day activities will be featured including an art show at EEii's, an exhibition of antique cars, an industrial exhibit, and a showing of "The Raleigh Bay," a patrol boat of the North Carolina Fisheries.

Belhaven's full day of celebrating the Fourth of July begins at 9:00 a.m. and continues until the termination of the street dance at about midnight.

The main parade begins at 11:00 a.m.

Area residents are invited to come to Belhaven for the annual celebration.

Lost Control During Her Drivers' Test

A 20-year-old Greenville resident failed her drivers license exam—the road test portion—yesterday, Greenville police reported.

Officers said Barbara Barfield Whichard of 808A Bancroft Ave. did an estimated $200 worth of damage to a borrowed car she was driving and about $50 damage to shrubbery at the North Carolina Highway Patrol troop headquarters building here about 11:20 a.m. when the car went out of control.

Investigators said Mrs. Whichard, traveling East on Tenth Street, was preparing to turn into the Highway Patrol office driveway but was going too fast. Drivers License Examiner Cecil Morgan, riding with her during her driving exam, told her to slow down.

Instead of mashing the brake with her foot, Mrs. Whichard hit the accelerator, causing the car to jump the curbing and crash into the bushes.

No injuries were reported and no charges were made, officers said.

Program By Drama Team

The Four Evangels, a drama team from Free Will Baptist Bible College, Nashville, Tenn., will present a program entitled "A Message for Everyman," Sat. July 6 at 8 p.m. at the Grifton Free Will Baptist Church.

The program is directed by Joseph Jones, a member of the college's speech faculty and includes both dramatic and musical sequences. Opening with James Weldon Johnson's "The Creation," it moves to "The Cruelest Idol," an enactment of the Biblical account of the healing of Naaman, and concludes with "I Stand At The Door Knocking," based on Revelation 3:20.

Members of the cast are Dannye Potter, a junior from Midland, Texas; Garnett Reid, sophomore from Nashville, Tenn., and Mike Russell, sophomore from Decatur, Ill. Jones is from Samantha, Ala.

The program of Christian drama will also introduce the ministry of the Free Will Baptist Bible College.

The program is open to the public and the Rev. Gordon Hart, pastor of the church, invites your attendance.

Climate Of Love Is One Step

The United States has another sad and senseless shooting on its record with the death of Mrs. Martin Luther King, Sr. in Atlanta.

Mrs. King, mother of civil rights leader Martin Luther King, was slain as she played the organ for Sunday services at the Ebenezer Baptist Church in Atlanta where her husband preaches.

A church deacon was also killed by bullets allegedly fired by a lone black gunman and another church goer was injured.

Mrs. King's death follows a long line of shooting deaths involving prominent national figures, including President John F. Kennedy, his brother, Robert Kennedy; her own son the Rev. Martin Luther King and others.

The pattern in virtually every case has been that a lone gunman took it on himself to extinguish the life of someone important to the nation.

Each of these tragedies raises the question of how such horrible plans become implanted in the minds of otherwise obscure people. Then we have to wonder what we, as a people, can do about it. The answer is probably very little, except to develop a climate of love for our fellow man, rather than hatred.

The King family had endured far too much tragedy and heartbreak in service to our nation. Our heart's go out to them.

A Reminder Time Is Near For Bicentennial

The opening of the Greenville bicentennial office serves to remind us that the celebration of Greenvile's 200th anniversary is fast approaching.

The festivities are set for October and already a series of entertainment events is being planned.

Many people are contributing their efforts to the bicentennial celebration, but it is going to take the support and participation of all our citizens to make it a success.

Red Tape Maze Has A Real Foe

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Once upon a time, a Tar Heel farmer needed to burn off a field, so being a conscientious fellow, he set out to get a government permit.

He found you needed two permits, not just one: a forestry permit and an air quality permit.

So, pursuing his ambition through bureaucratic red tape, he succeeded in getting both permits.

But he still couldn't burn.

One of the required permits allowed burning only between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. The other restricted burning to the hours of 5 p.m. till midnight.

James E. Harrington discovered that conflicting permit situation recently as he pondered the coming reorganization of the state's Department of Natural and Economic Resources which he heads as the secretary appointed by Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr.

An Example

The burning permit conflict is just a simple example of the kind of governmental duplication, red tape, and bureaucratic legalese which Harrington found so frustrating as a private developer before taking the government post?

How many permits does the sprawling agency which he heads issue? "I don't have any idea. Lord, I don't suppose anybody really knows . . . somewhere over 60," Harrington said as he puzzled the question.

One of his aims in reorganization will be to reach a "single permit" system whereby a new industry or a land development or any of the numerous projects which must get state permits can do so with one application—dealing with one office.

Out of the maze of sedimentation, water and air quality, dredge and fill, environmental impact, surface water, ground water, concerns, Harrington hopes to merge all of the bureaucratic concerns into one unit.

In a recent in-depth discussion of his plans for the year ahead. Harrington outlined a series of shifts which he anticipates will cause some cries of anguish in his agency, but which he hopes will better serve the public.

One key step in that direction will be to establish one office with one staff to oversee all that permit issuing, even though the process of hearings will still be carried out by different commissions.

Another major step in Harrington's plans is stronger emphasis on field offices. "We want to decentralize things in terms of program delivery and strengthen the field offices, putting them closer to the customer rather than so much Raleigh emphasis," the secretary said.

Man In Charge

In establishing the field offices, Harrington will put an office manager over the entire operation, reporting directly to him, instead of keeping a field office chief for each separate function. That central supervision will, he hopes, stop the duplication of effort and inspections.

About 50 state employes will be on hand in each field office, and each will be encouraged to work across division lines so that the agency will have employes who "talk to each other."

The goal: "To institutionalize an awareness of the total mission of the department among employes, to urge them to mention to one another what is going on in their individual programs. That is the way things get done," Harrington said.

Two field offices now operating in Salisbury and Concord will be closed, and a central office opened in Mooresville for the south-central Piedmont area.

Asheville, Winston-Salem, Fayetteville, Raleigh, and Wilmington will continue as field office locations, and a decision is pending on whether the eastern region will be covered from an office in Greenville or original Washington.

The new divisions operating in the agency are: Environment, Marine Fisheries, Parks and Recreation, Resource Planning and Development, Forest Resources, Economic Resource Development, and Community Assistance. The Wildlife Resources Commission is loosely connected but left outside the main agency.

Labor Defects From Strauss

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The long-simmering dispute between Democratic national chairman Robert S. Strauss and big labor has escalated to a total break with AFL-CIO president George Meany refusing to either see Strauss or answer his letter.

Bitterly complaining that Strauss has forgotten his friends and placated his New Politics enemies, the AFL-CIO informed him a month ago that their relationship was at an end. Thus, what once seemed merely a personality clash between Strauss and AFL-CIO chief political operative Al Barkan has become a major split among moderate Democrats.

The tireless Strauss remains extremely popular among congressional leaders, governors and mayors. Nevertheless, the rupture with his erstwhile labor allies weakens Strauss by forcing him to depend on the labor movement's left wing, which may well abandon him ultimately. Worst of all, the split impedes bringing the Democratic party back to moderation after its McGovernite binge—the common goal of both Strauss and AFL-CIO leaders.

Barkin, director of the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education (COPE), had few labor supporters last autumn when he started complaining that Strauss was appeasing the forces of New Politics. But gradually more and more union chiefs grew fearful of Strauss's ability to prevent a recurrence of 1972.

The disaffection peaked with two developments in recent months. The first was Strauss's inability to control the party's charter commission meeting March 15 as he had claimed. The other was his acquiescence in creating a compliance review commission with sweeping powers over all party affairs. Taken together, those two developments were viewed as a warning signal that McGovernism was resurgent.

On May 17, Barkan wrote Meany a confidential memorandum asserting that labor's support of Strauss for national chairman in December 1972 was a major political mistake, that this view was widely shared by party moderates and that it was time for the AFL-CIO to go it alone. Meany agreed.

Barkan next polled a committee of some 15 union officials, asking authorization to break relations with Strauss. Included on the committee were such former Strauss allies as president George Hardy of the service employees, president Bud Raftery of the painters, and political action chief Dean Clowes of the steelworkers. All agreed to the split.

Consequently, Barkan telephoned Strauss to inform him their relationship was at an end. Strauss asked to see Meany to personally plead his case, but after difficulty in setting a date, Meany grumbled, "What the hell's the use?" and declined to see him. Strauss next wrote Meany and other AFL-CIO officials (addressing them formally as "Dear Gentleman") asking for a meeting. It was not answered.

Despite this formal break, middle-level staffers from AFL-CIO headquarters and the Democratic National Committee still confer. But Bob Strauss and Al Barkan have not exchanged a word for a month. That means the AFL-CIO is seeking on its own to moderate the party, for example electing delegates to the mid-term convention at Kansas City in December.

All this, Strauss told us, results from "some differences between me and Al Barkan over tactics, not objectives." Some Democratic politicians see Barkan lashing back because Strauss would not take orders from big labor.

But Strauss's critics in the AFL-CIO and the Coalition for a Democratic Majority (CDM) perceive much more at stake. They feel Strauss's quest for party unity has mistakenly embraced New Politics forces, who originally opposed him as chairman and are determined to maintain a McGovernite coloration in the party. These critics note with dismay that poisonous sniping at Strauss in the newsletter written by Alan Baron, paid operative for New Politics members of the Democratic National Committee, has abruptly ceased.

With the AFL-CIO hierarchy defrocking him, Strauss is forced into the arms of anti-Meany unions—principally the auto workers, communications workers and machinists—whose ideology differs profoundly from his own. Indeed, Strauss now may be counting far too much on New Political forces whose recent affection for him is paper-thin.

For example, ever since becoming national chairman, Strauss has drawn on his vast reservoir of charm and energy to woo California's left-leaning party leaders. Therefore, he hopes that California caucuses in November will elect a delegation to Kansas City at least reasonably friendly to him. But, in truth, key California Democrats plan a delegation totally committed to New Politics and oblivious to Strauss's wishes. If they succeed, Barkan's complaint that led to big labor's break with Strauss will be partially vindicated.

Intent Is Not Enough

Some of the greatest failures of contemporary liberalism can be measured in their reversal of Pollyanna's maxim: Ex malo bonum—out of evil, good. Liberalism has a way of standing the maxim on its head: Ex bono malum. A new study is at hand to buttress this lamentable observation.

The new study, by Professor Sam Peltzman of the Chicago Graduate School of Business, deals with the consequences that have stemmed from the 1962 amendments to our drug laws. He finds these consequences, on balance, bad. Some of us who are not professional economists long ago arrived at the same conclusion by hunch, intuition, and rough observation. Peltzman gets here by classic methods of economic analysis.

That evil consequences flow from good intentions is scarcely a novel proposition. Such results often are observed when government sets out to tinker with the functions of the marketplace or with the workings of human behavior. Two recent examples come readily to mind: price and wage controls, and racial-balance busing. To these might be added such fiascos of liberalism as high-rise public housing, urban renewal, deficit spending, and certain measures taken in the name of reducing pollution.

The 1962 amendments to the basic 1938 Drug Act were an outgrowth of the very best intentions. Congressional liberals, led by the late Senator Estes Kefauver, were convinced that durg manufacturers were exploiting a gullible public. Riding the shock waves produced by the thalidomide scandal, they wrote into law some sweeping new demands for the approval and marketing of drugs. Where the old law had demanded proof merely of a drug's safety, the new law demanded proof of a drug's effectiveness as well. The senator from Tennessee assuredly did not want to harm the consumer; his purpose was to benefit the consumer. Who could quarrel with so goodly an intention?

Peltzman quarrels with it. In his methodical examination of the actual results of the 1962 amendments, the Chicago economist demonstrates convincingly that these consequences have ensued:

Innovation has been stifled. In the decade preceding the amendments, drug manufacturers introduced an average of 43 new chemical entities a year. The average since then is 16 new entities a year.

Consumers have not gained. On the contrary, they are losing from $150 to $350 million annually in benefits they might have had if it had not been for the prolonged delays and abandoned experiments of recent years. That is the demonstrable economic loss. The human loss is incalculable. Human beings have died, or have suffered needlessly, for want of drugs that might have been available if the Kefauver amendments had never been adopted.

The principal result of the 1962 act has been delay. Because of the elaborate requirements of the Food and Drug Administration, manufacturers now are compelled to devote from four years to nearly nine years in accumulating absolute proof of a drug's effectiveness. The FDA itself, which in 1962 processed a new drug application in seven months, now requires two and a half years for its own review.

Peltzman offers these bleak illustrations: A delay of two years in a drug that could reduce cancer deaths by 25 percent would result in the loss of 166,000 lives between 1970 and 1980. A similar delay heart disease could cause 383,000 deaths. If pre-1962 drugs for tuberculosis and

To the editor:

As we all know, July 4th Holiday is here and many of us will be enjoying a vacation at the beach.

As chairman of the Safety Committee for The Pitt County Association of Insurance Women, I would like to stress a few points on "safety" for your holiday.

In the United States drownings have averaged over 7,000 during the past few years. Year after year, the age group that has the greatest number of drownings is 5 to 44. About 70 per cent of those who drown are non-swimmers. About 80 per cent who drown have had no swimming instruction. About 86 per cent who drown are male. Over 2,000 persons drown while swimming or playing in the water. Drownings rank either third or fourth each year in the causes of accidental death in the United States.

Learn to swim well enough to survive in an emergency. Never swim alone and swim with someone who has the ability to help when necessary. Stay out of water during electrical storms. Avoid long periods of immersion and overexposure to the sun.

Let's do all we can to make this a safe and enjoyable July 4th. Have a safe holiday!

Agency Tie-In Raised

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a three-month period immediately before the Watergate break-in, E. Howard Hunt Jr. asked his former CIA bosses to direct him to retired agents skilled in lock-picking and burglary, a report to the Senate Watergate committee said today.

The CIA official who provided the information retired one day after the arrests of the Watergate burglars, the report said.

Prepared at the direction of committee Vice Chairman Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., the long-awaited report said the new information contradicts public testimony by senior CIA officials that Hunt had no contact with the agency after Aug. 21, 1971. That was the date on which the agency says it refused Hunt any further assistance for his undercover assignments for the White House.

The Baker report raises—but does not confirm—several new suspicions that the CIA may have known in advance of both the June 17, 1972, Watergate break-in and the Sept. 2, 1971, burglary of the offices of Dr. Lewis Fielding, a Los Angeles psychiatrist treating Pentagon Papers figure Daniel Ellsberg.

CIA Director William E. Colby, who directed that the names of certain CIA employes and contacts be deleted from the public report, said he had hoped Baker's unprecedented investigation would convince him "that CIA had no prior knowledge of the Watergate or Ellsberg break-ins or cover-up."

The Watergate committee has stopped all its investigations and the Baker report recommended that the CIA oversight committees of the Senate and House continue the probe.

It said the agency had denied Baker's investigators—headed by Fred Thompson, the panel's Republican counsel—access to dozens of documents and witnesses it said must be obtained before definite conclusions can be reached.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., and Rep. Lucien Nedzi, D-Mich., who headed separate congressional oversight probes into possible CIA-Watergate links, have said they find the Baker report unconvincing.

Watergate Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., also has said reading the Baker report fails to convince him the CIA had anything to do with the break-ins or cover-up.

The report also questioned the official CIA account of the extent of the aid given to Hunt at the request of White House adviser John D. Ehrlichman.

It said the events that led to the Fielding break-in at Los Angeles "caused a wealth of conflicting testimony among CIA officials."

The report said that last February, after a third search of its files, the CIA found a transcription of part of Ehrlichman's July 22, 1971, conversation with Marine Gen. Robert E. Cushman Jr., then the CIA's deputy director.

"The document is especially significant in that it quotes Ehrlichman as saying that Hunt was working for the President and that the CIA was to give Hunt 'carte blanche,' the report said.

"The technician who dealt with Hunt has testified that he received approval for each and every request of Hunt from his supervisory officials at the CIA," the report said.

Strength For Today

BELSHAZZAR

Belshazzar—an account of whose tragic passing is recorded in the fifth chapter of the Book of Daniel—was a playboy of the ancient world, a burden to the people over whom he ruled. Right in the midst of a party Belshazzar was giving to a thousand of his nobles, a hand appeared in the air and began writing strange Hebrew words on the wall. Daniel, called in to interpret the writing, announced that God had closed the books on Belshazzar. He had scanned the entries of a lifetime, drawn the balance, and found the king hopelessly in arrears.

Belshazzar's enemies found him shortly thereafter transfixed with terror. Without more ado they struck him down and another king mounted the throne he had disgraced.

The handwriting is always on the wall for anyone who refuses to believe that there are certain moral principles in the universe which cannot be violated and who scorns the moral sanctions by which society is held together.

Management Given Questions

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Once upon a time corporate management took the position that its job was to run the company well and that the price of the stock would take care of itself.

Merchandising and marketing were left to the brokers, who in theory provided each well-managed company with a sales force in the person of registered stock representatives. Corporate officers remained in the background.

The maxim probably worked during bull markets, when stocks were bought rather than sold, when brokers had more business than they could handle, when there were more active investors than there are now.

But nobody can deny that something has happened to the old setup when so many listed stocks are selling just above book value, and the price-earnings ratios — or number of times earnings a buyer is willing to pay — is down to 3 and 4 from 14 or 15.

For one thing, the depressed condition of the stock market has forced many companies into borrowing extensively, helping to send interest rates rocketing. With debt financing becoming so costly, some corporate managers are re-examining the equity market to see what can be done.

One suggestion that has received more consideration within industry than from the general public was offered by John C. Whitehead, partner in Goldman, Sachs & Co., and chairman of the Securities Industry Association.

Speaking in his association role, Whitehead insists that "management must begin to assume more responsibility for building stockholder interest in their company's securities."

The bulk of his suggestions were delivered a few weeks ago to the American Society of Corporate Secretaries, most of them in the form of questions:

"What is there about your company's stock that should appeal to an investor? Why is your industry an attractive one to invest in? Why is your company uniquely attractive?"

Rarely have investors heard of a company coming directly to investors with the vital answers to such investment questions.

"If each publicly owned company would spend just one per cent of the time and money it now spends merchandising its own products on merchandising the concept of stock ownership, we would go a long way to reinvigorate our free market system," Whitehead said.

CP&L Asks FPC Okay Big Wholesale Rates

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Carolina Power and Light Co. has asked the Federal Power Commission to approve big increases in the rates it charges its wholesale electricity customers.

The utility seeks approval of a 64 per cent rate hike for its electric cooperative customers, and a 35 per cent increase for its municipal customers. Together these customers represent about 20 per cent of CP&L's business.

In addition to the proposed hike in the basic rates, the utility also seeks approval of a fossil fuel adjustment clause, identical to that already in effect for CP&L retail customers. The clause allows a utility to pass higher fuel costs on to its customers.

Under present contracts, the earliest the new basic rates can be effective is next Jan. 1.

However, CP&L is requesting the FPC to conduct an investigation "on the urgent need for the fuel clause" and make it effective Sept. 1, subject to refund or other conditions.

"The company is asking the FPC to find that the unprecedented rise in fuel costs since last October and its impact on CP&L's financial condition makes this action necessary in the public interest," the utility said in a statement Monday.

Based on 1974 operations, the proposed rate and fossil fuel adjustment clause would increase the utility's annual revenue from its 44 municipal and electric cooperative customers by $36 million, CP&L said.

The utility said the same rate would apply to all wholesale customers, but different usage characteristics would cause the impact to vary. The utility increased the price charged cooperatives in 1971 and the price charged municipalities in March 1973.

CP&L cited "sharply rising fuel costs, financing and construction and substantial expenditures for environmental protection as justification for the basic rate increase."

The company also has pending with the North Carolina Utilities Commission a request for a 21 per cent rate increase for its retail customers.

Limousine For A Freed Lifer

VACAVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Convicts probably dream about what happened to Wesley R. Wells.

Once sentenced to death, Wells ended 46 years behind bars Monday by ordering a guard to open a gate. Then he climbed into a chauffeur-driven silver Rolls Royce and was swept grandly away. A Cadillac followed as a backup car.

The Rolls and Cadillac were rented for the occasion by the Delancy Street Foundation of San Francisco, a self-help organization for drug addicts and ex-prisoners. The foundation had sought for years to get Wells released on parole.

California's Adult Authority, which serves as the state parole board, decided last week that Wells at age 63 was no longer a threat. It ordered him released to the foundation's custody.

Representatives of the Delancy Street Foundation wore red buttons saying "46 Years Is Enough" when they greeted Wells upon his release from the California Medical Center at Vacaville, a state prison about 70 miles northeast of San Francisco.

Using a cane, the graying convict walked up to the prison walls.

"Hey, man, open that gate," he shouted to a guard.

One of the waiting reporters asked the inevitable question: "How do you feel?"

"Don't my expression tell you how I feel?" Wells asked.

Asked why the foundation had rented the Rolls Royce, spokeswoman Linda Reed said it was partly to celebrate the end of the battle to free Wells and partly to make him feel good.

"Wouldn't you like to be chauffeured around in a Rolls Royce after 46 years?" she asked.

Wells was sent to San Quentin in 1928 for receiving stolen property. His sentence was extended in 1932 when he was convicted of manslaughter after a fellow inmate was killed in a fight. In 1947, he was sentenced to death for hurling a cuspidor at a guard, but the sentence later was reduced to life imprisonment.

Wells, now partially restricted to a wheelchair, told reporters he was the same man who entered prison back in the days of bathtub gin: "No. Let me qualify that. I'm older, wiser and better self-controlled."

The Pitt County Humane Society announces its second annual photo contest.

This contest, sponsored by the Humane Society of the United States, is offering three first prizes of $50 each and three second prizes of $25 each. Last year a $25 prize was won by a Greenville contestant, Marsha Hemby.

Copies of the rules and regulations of the contest may be obtained at Bissette's Photo Department or by sending a post card to the Photo Chairman, Miss Evelyn Beasley, Pitt County Humane Society, P.O. Box 1155, Greenville, N.C.

There will be a 50 cents entry fee to cover postage and handling, which is payable at the time the photo is turned into Bissette's Photo Department, headquarters for entries.

There will be three categories of photos—People and pets, wild animals and Domesticated animals. Black-and-white and color photos are eligible.

severe mental disorders had been subjected to the same delays now demanded, thousands of patients would have died or endured needless hospitalization.

Like most professors of economics (John Kenneth Galibraith and Milton Friedman excepted), Peltzman writes with a laborious pen. His study, published this week by the American Enterprise Institute, is hard going. But this is rewarding scholarship all the same. It supports a thesis long ago laid down by such keen observers as Burke and De Tocqueville: Government is most to be feared when government sets out to do good.

Claim Massive Medical Fraud

CHICAGO (AP) — Blatant cheating by pharmacists and doctors involved in the state's medical aid to the poor has been uncovered by the Illinois Department of Public Aid, the Chicago Tribune reported today.

A three-month investigation by the department showed that the state frequently has been billed for drugs and supplies the welfare recepient never received or never needed, the newspaper said.

The alleged fraud may be a major cause of Medicaid payments increasing by 43.5 per cent in Illinois last year — from $37 million to $53 million — although inflation also is a factor.

Some welfare recepients said doctors gave them a list of over-the-counter medicines and supplies and told them to check off what they might need some day.

A memo by an investigator said that several welfare recipients reported they were encouraged to check all the items on the list.

One woman showed investigators a suitcase full of drugstore items and three vaporizers still in their boxes. She said all had been prescribed by a doctor.

In another case, investigators found elastic support pantyhose prescribed for a six-year-old girl. The girl's mother said she only received three pairs, although the state was billed for eight. The same child received three bottles of a prescribed medical lotion, but the state was billed for 12 bottles.

The investigation was ordered by Joel Edelman, director of the department, last March.

Abuses were reported to be so widespread that the Illinois Bureau of Investigation was called in to check on possible violations of the Dangerous Drug Act.

The use of prescribed drugs increased almost 28 per cent in 1973 or an average of 7 per cent for all Medicaid recipients.

Edelman plans to extend the investigation, staff investigators said.

Monday Saw Three Traffic Accidents

An estimated $2,050 property damage resulted yesterday from a series of three traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville Police.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 4:55 p.m. mishap at the intersection of 14th and Chestnut Streets involving cars driven by Rena Louise McLawhorn of Route 1, Winterville, and Louella Powell Clemmons of Glendale Ct.

Police, who charged Mrs. Clemmons with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety estimated damage at $700 to the McLawhorn car and $600 to the Clemmons auto.

Mary Helen Jackson of Mountain Lakes, N.J. was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 2:13 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Sixth Street.

Officers said the Jackson car collided with a vehicle driven by Catherine Teele Waller of 1804B West Third St. resulting in an estimated $100 damage to the Jackson car and $300 damage to the Waller vehicle.

A 9:10 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Skinner Street resulted in Kelly Barnhill of 1216 Battle St. being charged with failing to yield the right of way.

Police said the Barnhill car collided with a vehicle driven by Lawrence Brett Hagans of 1009 Colonial Ave. causing $150 damage to the Barnhill car and about $200 damage to the Hagans auto.

Boy Killed As Cable Snapped

WEST JEFFERSON, N.C. (AP)—An 8-year-old boy was killed Monday when a cable holding cinder blocks on a truck snapped and hit him in the head.

The accident occurred as the blocks were being delivered to his home in the Smethport community just outside West Jefferson. The boy was Lacy Howell Jr.

Brought Blaze To Firemen

SELMA, Ore. (AP) — Firemen didn't have to rush to the scene. Vincent Linigni brought the blaze to them. The trouble was, nobody was home at the fire station.

Linigni was unable to put out a smoldering fire in his davenport, so he dragged the couch from his home, loaded it onto his pickup and drove to the local fire station where he dumped it in the driveway.

But the volunteer station was unmanned.

Fortunately, a volunteer fireman who happened to be driving by stopped to put out the flames. The couch was destroyed.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — North Carolina egg markets were steady Monday. Supplies adequate, demand fair. Weighted average prices for small lot sales of consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby outlets: Grade A large whites 51.59, medium whites 40.72, small whites 31.23.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina hog prices were steady today. Tops of 39.00-40.00 at Kinston and Lumberton; 37.50-38.00 Rocky Mount; 34.50-35.00 Tarboro and Bethel; 39.00 Salisbury.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina hens: Market generally steady. Supplies of heavy type adequate and demand fair. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds, at farm, 7-8 cents; f.o.b. plants too few to report prices.

North Carolina f.o.b. dock broilers: Market steady with this weeks' weighted average for less than trucklot sales at 38.32 cents per pound. Supplies adequate and demand good. Estimated slaughter today 1,060,000.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market drifted to a narrow loss today in listless holiday-week trading.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 2.27 at 803.97, and losers took a 4-to-3 lead over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the market was dominated by an atmosphere of cautious waiting among investors for further developments on the interest rate front.

They said the slow pace of activity so far this week was likely to continue with the markets due to be closed Thursday in observance of Independence Day.

National Gypsum was the most-active NYSE issue, up 1/8 at 11 3/8. A 90,000-share block changed hands at 11 1/4.

Golds weakened along with bullion prices in Europe. ASA, Ltd., was down 1 1/2 at 78 1/4, Homestake Mining lost 1 3/8 to 40 1/4, and Dome Mines was down 1 3/8 to 45 1/4.

Damon Corp. added 5/8 to 10 1/2, bouncing back a bit from Monday's precipitous 15 3/4-point drop. The producer of medical and other scientific instruments projected last week that earnings for the current fiscal year would show a decline.

Losers in the glamour sector included Burroughs, down 1 7/8 at 98; Texas Instruments, off 1 1/4 at 92 1/4; IBM, down a point at 211 3/4; and Walt Disney Productions, off 3 at 40 1/8 in trading that included a 36,400-share block at 40 1/2.

The NYSE's 11 a.m. composite index of all its listed common stocks was down .13 at 44.73.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was down .26 at 78.47.

The Amex volume leader was Syntex, off 3/4 at 41.

$480 Million Voted To Aid Delinquents

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has passed and sent to the Senate a bill authorizing $480 million to deal with problems of juvenile delinquency and runaway youths.

The four-year measure, approved Monday on a 329-20 vote, would establish a juvenile delinquency prevention agency in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The House defeated 210-144 an attempt by Rep. Albert H. Quie, R-Minn., to shift jurisdiction over the new agency to the Justice Department's Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

In a report backing the legislation, the House Education and Labor Committee said that previously only about $10 million in HEW funds had been allocated to the handling of youth crime, although almost half of all serious crime in the United States is committed by juveniles.

The bill would set up a federal aid program to deal with problems of runaway youths and their families.

HEW would be directed to report to Congress in a year the results of a comprehensive statistical survey "on the characteristics of runaway youths and their relationship to antisocial behavior."

The bill also would give money to states based on their population under age 18, with a minimum of $150,000 per state.

But each state first would have to submit a plan for development of "advanced techniques in the treatment and prevention of juvenile delinquency" under supervision of a state board.

New Bridge For Grifton Slated

GRIFTON—Work should begin in the near future on a new bridge over the Contentnea Creek here on N.C. 118.

The state Highway Division said low bidder for the project, when bids were opened June 25, was Kitchin Construction Co. of Warsaw, with a bid of $434,030.39.

The new structure, 375-feet long, with a roadway 40-feet wide between curbs, will replace the present bridge, which will be demolished before the new structure is erected.

Work on the new two-lane bridge will begin in the near future and completion of the project has been set for October 1, 1975.

ECU Physicists At Workshop

Drs. George Bissinger and Terence McEnally of the East Carolina University physics faculty attended a workshop on physics in the arts at the University of South Carolina last week.

Supported by the National Science Foundation, the workshop was designed to bring together physicists from several states to discuss the presentation and demonstration of physics in such areas of the arts as the operation of musical instruments, room acoustics, symmetries in art and color combinations.

Private Clubs Barred From InstantMembers

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Newly established private clubs holding brown-bagging permits are prohibited from issuing instant memberships under a new Alcoholic Beverage Control Board regulation effective today.

The new regulation requires a wait of five days after application before persons can become members of such clubs, which have previously issued memberships immediately after patrons walked in the door and paid a small fee.

In addition, places holding brown-bagging permits as private clubs or social establishments are forbidden to advertise publicly, under the new rule.

The regulation was adopted by the ABC Board June 18, and is effective today for new establishments. It goes into effect Aug. 1 for old ones.

'The Group' Will Meet

"The Group," a club for handicapped adults in the Greenville area, will meet tonight at the Greenville Recreation Center on Elm Street at 7 p.m.

Organized through the cooperation of the Greenville Recreation Center and the N. C. Easter Seal Society, "The Group" meets twice a month, and enjoys a variety of activities.

The adults have now undertaken the task of raising money to take a trip to Carowinds. To accomplish this, they have worked for the past month preparing craft items to be sold at a craft and bake sale. The sale will be held on July 6 beginning at 10 a.m. at Pitt Plaza.

Items to be sold include sand candles, decoupage plaques, nature candles, key chains, sea shells, sea shell jewelery, and many other items.

ECU Sponsoring Another Food Service Class

Because of the popularity of the first School Food Service Institute at East Carolina University, ECU and the institute's sponsors have decided to repeat the program July 8-12.

The institute is offered by the ECU School of Home Economics and the ECU Division of Continuing Education in cooperation with the N.C. School Food Service Division.

Its purpose is to increase the knowledge and skills of school food service personnel in the areas of menu planning, quantity food preparation, record keeping, job design, and supervision and training.

Participants in the institute will receive foods laboratory experience as well as instruction from classroom lectures and discussions.

This Time, Less Cavier In Diet

MOSCOW (AP) — In his 1972 summit visit to Moscow, President Nixon often ate caviar with his breakfast, lunch and dinner.

This time around, however, the weight-watching chief executive is confining his morning meals to wheat germ cereal and milk, Press Secretary Ron Ziegler said Monday.

Mourners File By Mrs. King

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Mourners by the hundreds filed past the casket of Mrs. Martin Luther King Sr., in Ebenezer Baptist Church today, where she was killed Sunday by a berserk gunman.

The body lay in a pastel pink coffin at the altar, only a few feet from the organ which she was playing when she was killed.

In the first hour more than 1,000 filed through the front doors of the church, up a few steps and down the right aisle of the church and then past the casket.

They were mostly working class people—maids, workmen, young and old. Some of them were children. Some women, who said they were members of the church, shed tears as they paused briefly before the body.

The body was clad in a pink lace dress with an orchid corsage. Mrs. Isaac Farris, the daughter of Mrs. King and her only surviving child, said the corsage was from a childhood friend of Mrs. King.

"Mother taught us to love and not to hate," Mrs. Farris said. She and her husband were the only members of the King family at the church. Other members of the family viewed the body at a funeral home about 1 a.m., she said.

There were no uniformed policemen in view, but several plain clothes officers were among the crowd, which waited outside the church beneath a warm sun.

Generally Fair During Holiday

RALEIGH (AP) — Clear to partly cloudy and warm weather is forecast for North Carolina on July 4 and the holiday weekend, the National Weather Service said today in an extended outlook.

Little rain is forseen through Saturday and high temperatures will range in the upper 80s to the low 90s across the state.

Lows will be in the low to mid 70s, except in the 60s in the mountians, forecasters said.

Rocky Mount Nips Legion In Finale

Moose Capture Tar Heel Win

The Moose rode the three-hit pitching of David Carroll, who also smacked a two-run homer to a 4-0 victory over the Elks yesterday giving the Moose the Tar Heel Little League playoff championship.

The Moose had finished in a tie for fifth place in the regular season, and drew the sixth place seeding in the playoffs, but rolled through defeating the fourth, first and second place regular season finishers along the way.

Carroll, who went all the way, scattered the three hits, all of them singles. He walked six and struck out seven in getting the win.

The Elks had several threats, however, loading the bases in the first, second, and fifth. They also put a man as far as second in the fourth.

But the Moose dug in each time, forbidding them to cross home plate, preserving the shutout.

The Moose, after threats in the first and third inning, finally broke the ice in the fourth. Dean Wilson singled and Dwayne Alligood got a hit. Rusty Davenport walked to load them up, and Bobby Gantt singled in Wilson. An error on the play also let Alligood score for a 2-0 lead.

The Moose got their other two runs in the fifth. Mark Sasser reached on an error, and Carroll slapped a two-run homer for the total.

The Moose will now meet the Optimists, winners in the North State League, for the City Championship. Play starts Wednesday, and continues Friday and, if necessary, Saturday in the best of three series.

Rocky Mount pushed over two runs in the eighth inning to nip Greenville, 5-4, last night as the two teams closed out the regular season.

The loss left Greenville with a 5-11 regular season record.

Greenville will not move into the playoffs, hosting Snow Hill tonight at 8 p.m. at Harrington Field, in the first of a best-of-three series. The second game will be played Wednesday night at 8 p.m. in Snow Hill, with the third, if needed, back in Greenville Thursday night.

The winner will move into a best-of-three series with Rocky Mount the following week.

Rocky Mount jumped into the lead with a pair of runs in the top of the first inning. James Wells singled and moved up on a sacrifice. Jeff Collins reached on an error and Hilton Sykes singled, driving in Wells. Burton Robinson then got another hit, scoring Collins. Both runs were unearned.

Rocky Mount threatened in the second, third and fifth, but didn't score again until the seventh. Greg Proctor doubled to left and scored when Tommy Warrick got a hit with one down. That made it 3-0.

Greenville put a man in scoring position in the first, but failed to make it pay off. Griff Garner singled and took second on an error on a pickoff attempt. In the second, Greenville loaded the bases without luck. Jack Jenkins singled and Keith Jones and Jerry Griffin both walked with one down, but two strikeouts ended that threat.

In the fourth, Greenville threatened again. Jenkins and Jones again both walked, but nothing came around. In the fifth, Garner walked and stole second, but again, the team couldn't bring anyone in.

But in the seventh, Greenville got a rally going, pushing over four runs to take the lead. Girffin walked and Al Heath drew another. Both moved up on a passed ball and Robert Brinkley singled in Griffin and Heath. Kelly Heath walked and Macon Moye reached on an error. Jenkins reached on another miscue, scoring Brinkley and Jones walked to score Kelly Heath.

But the lead didn't last as Rocky Mount came up with two in the eighth. Sykes singled and Robinson reached on a bunt single. Both were sacrificed up, and T. Sykes reached on an error, scoring buth runners for the 5-4 lead that held.

Greenville put a man on third in the ninth, as Brinkley singled, was sacrificed up and stole third, but the rally died there.

Optimists Nip Jaycees By 1-0

A home run provided the lone score as the Optimists won the North State Little League playoff, 1-0, over the Jaycees.

The win gave a sweep of league honors to the Optimists, who earlier won the regular season title. They are now scheduled to meet the Moose, an upset winner in the Tar Heel League, for the City Championship.

That best-of-three series is scheduled to begin Wednesday, continuing on Friday, and if necessary, Saturday.

The game was a hurling duel between the two opposing pitchers. The winning pitcher, Glenn Moore, scattered five hits to the Jaycees, never more than one an inning. He struck out eight and walked two along the way.

The Jaycees offered a threat in the second when Elvy Forrest singled and moved up on a wild pitch with one out, but two strikeouts ended that threat. They got another threat in the third when Marion Crisp reached on an error, took second on a fielder's choice and moved to third on an error. He was then thrown out trying to score.

In the fifth, Teddy Gartman singled and moved up on a passed ball, but waited there.

Losing pitcher, John Winstead, tossed a one-hitter—but the one hit was the fatal one—a homer. He struck out nine and walked one in the contest.

The Optimists failed to offer a threat the entire game—except in the second, when Patrick Wilson connected and drove the ball out of the park for the 1-0 lead—a lead that held for the victory.

Little Leagues Choose Stars

All-Star teams for the two Greenville Little Leagues have been announced for 1974.

A total of 14 boys from each league were selected, along with four alternates.

The Greenville North State League will open play on Wednesday July 17, meeting Robersonville. The Area II tournament, which involves the Greenville teams, will be held in Tarboro.

The winner of the game between Robersonville and Greenville will meet Seymour-Johnson on Thursday, July 18, with the winner moving into the Area II finals.

Greenville's Tar Heel League entry has drawn a first-round bye and will meet the winner of the Tarboro—Roanoke Rapids-Weldon game, also on Thursday, July 18. The winner moves into the Friday finals.

Winners from Area I and Area III will collide in Tarboro on Thursday, July 25, with the winner meeting the Area II champ on Friday, July 26. The State Tournament will then be held in Greenville on July 30 through August 1.

Members of the All-State team for the North State League are: Glenn Moore, Jim O'Brien, Jim Kernan and Patrick Wilson of the Optimists; Peter Pace, Krage Gardiner and Shelton Wilson of the Lions; John Winstead, Marion Crisp and Kenneth Marnes of the Jaycees; Leon Hardee Jr., and Jeff Worthington of R. C. Cola; and Steve Topping and Tom Hill of the Kiwanis.

Alternates will be Art Fletcher, Herman King and Allen Collier of the Lions, and Mark Jones of Coca-Cola.

Chosen from the Tar Heel League are: Al Shackleford, Glenn Deal, Mark Douglas, and Charles Daises of the Exchange; Gavin Ray and Don White of the Elks; William Barrett, Blair Smith and Talmadge Neal of Integon; Miccah Dixon and Michael Moye of the Graniteers; and Ashley Taylor and David Carroll of the Moose.

Alternates will be Jeff Wilson of Pepsi-Cola; Charles Ross and Lynn Jackson of the Elks, and Garrett Young of the Graniteers.

Home Builders Wins To Capture BR Title

Home Builders wrapped up the Babe Ruth League championship for the 1974 season last night with a 17-5 victory over College View. In the other game, North Carolina National Bank rolled to an 8-2 win over Carolina Dairy.

The games wound up play for all four teams. Only Pepsi-Cola and Planters Bank have games left. They meet in their closing contest at 6:15 p.m. Wednesday. A 13-year-old game will follow the regular game.

Home Builders closed out the year with a 12-3 record, while Pepsi-Cola took second at 10-4. They are followed by College View, 9-6; NCNB, 7-8, Carolina Dairy, 5-10; and Planters Bank, 1-13.

In the opener, Joel Clark teamed with Dave Middleton to toss a four-hitter at Carolina Dairy.

NCNB pushed into the lead with three runs in the third inning. Doug Selby reached on a two-base error and took third on a wild pitch. He was balked home. Joey Cherry walked and came around to score on a hit by Jerome Ross. Ross moved up on an error on the play and scored when Bryant Morton reached on a two-base error.

Carolina Dairy came back with a run in the bottom of the frame. Sid Ashby walked and moved up when Larry Boyette reached on an error. Ricky Robinson and Darrell Roebuck both walked, forcing in Ashby.

NCNB got two more in the fifth. Clark walked and stole second. He took third on a passed ball and scored on Morton's single. Morton moved up on an error on the play and scored on Middleton's hit.

Two more came over in the sixth. Selby singled and stole second. He scored when Clark reached on a three-base error. Joey Cherry then singled in Clark.

The final run came over in the seventh. Morton doubled and Tommy Chenier came in to run for him. He took third on an out and scored on Scott Peele's ground out.

Carolina Dairy got its other run in the seventh. Ashby singled, and moved all the way to third, when the ball got past the outfield. He scored on another error on the relay.

Home Builders wasted no time in letting College View know that it was wrapping up the title in its game. They pushed over four runs in the first inning. Tim Allen walked and moved up on a wild pitch. Mark Conway also walked and Wright Hooks singled in Allen. Hooks moved up on the play and a wild pitch scored Conway. Joe Godette walked and stole second. Ken Kuntz also walked, as did Lance Wetherington, forcing in Hooks. Thomas Bunch singled in Godette.

The Builders added three more in the second. Conway walked and Hooks got a hit. Kuntz also singled, scoring Conway. Hooks scored on a passed ball, and Wetherington singled in Kuntz.

Four more came around in the third. Mac Avery singled and Allen got a hit. Both moved up on a wild pitch, and Hooks singled and Allen got a hit.

Four more came around in the third. Mac Avery singled and Allen got a hit. Both moved up on a wild pitch, and Hooks singled in both runners. He took third on an error on the play and scored when Godette reached on a two-base error. Kuntz reached on another miscue, scoring Godette.

College View picked up its first run in the bottom of the third. Joey Downing singled and stole second. He gained third on a passed ball and scored when Reggie Spain reached on an error. That made it 11-1.

The Builders got two more in the fourth. Bunch singled and took second on a balk. A passed ball put him on third, and he scored on Conway's double. Conway moved up on an error and scored when Hooks doubled.

College View got one in the fifth. Jay Chenier walked and stole second. He scored on an error on the play.

In the sixth, the Builders added another run. Conway walked, moved up on Godette's hit, and scored on a wild pitch.

They got three more in the seventh. Wetherington walked as did Jim Stallings. David French singled, and a wild pitch scored Wetherington. Reggie Selby singled to score Stallings, and an error on Conway's grounder let French score.

College View rallied for three in the bottom of the seventh. David Lowe walked and Spain doubled. Chenier singled in Lowe and Spain, and moved up on an error. Chenier stole third and scored on Ross Hawkins' single.

All-Stars Chosen

The Greenville Babe Ruth League announced last night its 1974 All-Star Team.

The team will represent the Greenville league in the area playoff to be held in Washington, starting July 11. The double elimination tournament will have at least four teams, and possibly five in competition for a berth in the state tournament. Besides Greenville, teams entered include Washington, Pitt County, and Creswell.

In addition to the regular Babe Ruth teams, a 13-year-old team will be picked later to play in the 13-year-old tournament, to run concurrently with the regular one.

Chosen to the team are: Henry Baker, Derek Brewington and Billy Dllington of Pepsi-Cola; Greg Lassiter and Steve Manning of Planters Bank; Wright Hooks, Mark Conway and Joe Godette of Home Builders; Sid Ashby of Carolina Dairy; Jay Chenier, Jeff Aldridge and Ross Hawkins of College View, and Joel Clark, Joey Cherry and Doug Selby of NCNB.

Alternates will be John Coffman of Carolina Dairy; Worth Albea of Pepsi-Cola, and Gene Pittman of College View.

Two Win In S. Pitt

The Indians and Giants advanced in the Southern Pitt Little League playoffs last night.

The Indians took an 11-10 victory over Piggly-Wiggly, and will meet regular season champion Rodgers Furniture tonight.

In the other game, the Giants downed the Hornets, 8-4. Doug Branch was the winning pitcher, giving up three hits, while striking out nine and walking seven. Jesse Carmon took the loss, allowing six hits, walking five and striking out nine.

Tony Gardiner led the Giant hitting with two hits, both triples. Sammy Tucker added two doubles, while Mike Coward and Branch each had doubles. Terry Mills had a double to lead the Hornet hitting.

The Indians will meet Chicod, the second place team, in tonight's other second round game.

National In Church Victory

The National Division of the Church Softball League rolled to a 6-2 victory over the American Division in the annual All-Star Game played last night.

The National gained the lead with a run in the first. R. Dixon singled and moved up to score on a double by T. Adams.

They added another run in the second. C. Camp doubled and scored on Dixon's hit.

In the sixth, the National gained another run, for a 3-0 lead. J. Grimsley reached on an error and moved up on B. Elks' error. W. Bailey reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Grimsley.

The American came up with both of its runs in the seventh. D. Singleton reached on an error and D. Potter walked. R. Oswald singled in Singleton, and a double by T. Powell scored Potter.

The National added its final three runs in the ninth. S. Carraway singled and N. Pollard got a hit. E. Britt doubled in one run, and a double by B. Hines brought in the other two.

Borzov Won't Run The 100

By BOB CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—There will be no classic confrontations at 100 and 800 meters in this weekend's U.S. vs. U.S.S.R. track meet, according to Soviet coach Igor Ter-Ovanesyan.

Olympic gold medal winner Valeriy Borzov will not run in the 100, where American ace Steve Williams was hoping to meet him.

And Evgeniy Arzhanov, Olympic silver medalist in the 800 meters, is bowing out of a race with American record holder Rick Wohlhuter.

Borzov will run against Williams at 200 meters, Ter-Ovanesyan said. Borzov won the gold medal in both sprints at Munich. But Williams, though he is entered in the 200, is primarily a 100 man.

Arzhanov, who dealt Wohlhuter his last defeat at Minsk in 1973, will run the 1,500 meters, Ter-Ovanesyan said in an interview Monday.

The Soviet coach, whose long jump duels with Ralph Boston were a fixture of U.S.-Soviet competition in the 1960s, predicted that his team will lose to the U.S. men by about 10 points.

He said he expects the Soviet women to beat their American rivals by more than 15 points, giving the Russians the overall team victory.

Ter-Ovanesyan only smiled when asked whether he had picked up the American coaching technique of poor-mouthing his team's chances to the press.

He said he felt the high humidity in Duke University's Wallace Wade Stadium would hurt his athletes more than the Americans.

American coach Jim Carnes has predicted that the Soviet men will win by about the same 10 point margin.

The Americans are competing without several top flight athletes who chose to go to Europe to compete in invitational meets.

Borzov, Ter-Ovanesyan said, is training toward a peak at the European championships in August. "He is not ready to run the 100. He does not have the speed. But he is ready to win in the 200," he said. Ter-Ovanesyan speaks fluent English.

Williams, who did not run in Munich, has been looking for a shot at Borzov since he emerged as America's premier sprinter last year. Their only meeting was on the anchor leg of the 400-meter relay in Minsk last year. Williams was faster, but Borzov was coming off an injury.

He said he expected Arzhanov to win the 1,500 meters if he is not hampered by a minor leg injury.

Ter-Ovanesyan sat at trackside wearing only a pair of white gym shorts during his interview. Most of his team had skipped the workout opportunity to go on a shopping spree at a nearby mall.

He smiled frequently as he recalled the early, pressure-packed days of U.S.-Soviet track. "Things are more comfortable now. Everyone knows each other more."

He said he was looking to renewing his friendship with Boston, who will be working for a television network covering the meet.

State To Go On Tour

WASHINGTON (AP)—The North Carolina State University basketball team will leave Aug. 7 for a 17-day tour of the Far East, it was announced Monday.

The national collegiate basketball champions will play two games in Manila, Aug. 10-11 against the Phillipine National Team and in Jakarta Aug. 13 and Medan Aug. 14 against the Indonesian national club.

The tour will end in Tokyo with a game against the Kanto College All-Stars Aug. 22.

The U.S. State Department will finance part of the trip.

Oakland Spoils Williams' Debut

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Welcome back, Dick Williams.

Things haven't changed very much, have they? The Oakland A's ... you remember the Oakland A's ... are still a pretty tough bunch to beat.

Williams took the long trip from Palm Beach Gardens, Fla., and the world of real estate to Anaheim, Calif. and the world of the American League Monday night, returning to baseball as manager of the California Angels. Ironically, the uniforms on the other side of the field belonged to his old friends, the world champion A's.

For seven innings, things looked fine for Williams. The Angels were leading 3-2 and Nolan Ryan was working smoothly. Then in the eighth, doubles by Sal Bando and Angel Mangual keyed a three-run Oakland rally. Final score: Oakland 5, California 3. Now Williams knows how the other half has been living for the last couple of years in the Oakland-dominated American League.

Elsewhere in the AL Monday, Cleveland swept a doubleheader from Milwaukee, 3-1 and 9-3, Boston downed Baltimore 6-4, Kansas City shut out Chicago 9-0, Detroit edged New York 4-3 and Texas defeated Minnesota 6-2.

In the only National League games scheduled, Houston shut out Atlanta 3-0 and Montreal whipped Chicago 10-3.

Indians 3-9, Brewers 1-3

Cleveland used the long ball to sweep a doubleheader from Milwaukee and move into second place in the American League East, only two behind Boston.

George Hendrick homered in each game and John Ellis hit a three-run homer and drove in five runs in the nightcap.

Rangers 6, Twins 2

Texas remained in a virtual second place tie with Kansas City in the American league West, defeating Minnesota.

Tigers 4, Yankees 3

Jim Northrup broke an eighth inning tie with a two-out home run, Detroit's third of the game, as the Tigers defeated the Yankees.

Royals 9, White Sox 0

Cookie Rojas delivered four straight hits, including a two-run homer, and Fred Patek and Hal McRae also homered, powering the Royals over the White Sox in the nationally televised game.

Red Sox 6 Orioles 4

Boston bunched three runs in the first inning, two of them on Cecil Cooper's homer, and then held on to defeat Baltimore.

Astros 3, Braves 0

Don Wilson pitched a five-hitter and drove in Houston's first run with a double, as the Astros shut out slumping Atlanta.

Expos 10 Cubs 3

Ken Singleton and Mike Jorgensen drove in two runs apiece and Bob Bailey drilled a home run as Montreal trounced the Chicago Cubs.

First Fan Reaction To Strike Unfavorable: Strikers Picketed

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer

The striking National Football League Players Association, which plans to put up the first picket lines in the history of sports on Wednesday, got the first faint flicker of fan reaction Monday night—and it was not favorable.

Two teen-aged football fans picketed a Cincinnati motel Monday night as the NFLPA leaders met with Cincinnati Bengal players. "I think they (the NFLPA) should reconsider some of their demands and start thinking of the fans," said one of the protesters, Jim Murphy.

The strike began at 12:01 a.m. Monday with the 1,200-player union saying "No Freedom, No Football" and hoping the walkout will force the 26 NFL club owners to grant the NFLPA its so-called freedom demands.

Starting Wednesday in San Diego, where the Chargers are scheduled to open the first NFL camp, the union hopes to keep rookies and free agents, as well as its own membership, from reporting for training.

If successful, the NFLPA action could eliminate the exhibition season and seriously affect the revenue of many teams.

After both sides fired salvos Monday, the NFLPA leadership, headed by Executive Director Ed Garvey and President Bill Curry, left Washington for San Diego, but stopped off in Cincinnati.

"We received expressions of concern on many of the issues," Curry said after a 90-minute meeting with 15 Bengal players.

Pat Matson, the Bengals' player representative, said the vote to support the NFLPA was unanimous.

Earlier, Garvey and Curry conducted a news conference at which many questions were asked by Mike Brown, assistant general manager of the Cincinnati team and son of Paul Brown, Bengal head coach and general manager.

"What you are telling these people is not consistent with the information I am receiving," Brown told Garvey.

Garvey countered: "The owners are telling the public they'll play anyone who can walk on a field in order to go ahead with exhibition games."

This is the second strike action by the pro football union—and the fourth in major league sports—since 1970, but the walkout four years ago ended before preseason play started.

Negotiations between the owners and players union broke off last Wednesday after 10 sessions and approximately 62 hours at the bargaining table failed to produce a contract agreement.

The bargaining, under the auspices of the Federal Mediation Service, collapsed over the so-called "freedom issue" demands by the players seeking the right to switch teams when their contracts expire and to exercise a veto over possible trades.

In Washington Monday it was announced that the union had filed unfair labor practice charges against the owners.

In New York, meanwhile, John Thompson, executive director of the NFL Management Council which represents the owners in the negotiations, called the charges nonsense.

Top Seeds In Wimbledon Wins

By ROBERT JONES
Associated Press Writer

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Billie Jean King, Chris Evert and Evonne Goolagong, the three top seeds in the women's competition, advanced to the quarter-finals at Wimbledon today with straight-set victories, but fourth-rated Rosie Casals was upset by Linky Boshoff, a little-known, 17-year-old South African.

Miss Boshoff stunned the Wimbledon crowd on this windy day by beating Ms. Casals of San Francisco 6-3, 6-2. Ms. Casals became the first seeded woman to be eliminated from this prestigious tennis classic.

Meanwhile, Ms. King, the defending champion from Long Beach, Calif. who is seeded No. 1, needed just 50 minutes to defeat Lesley Charles of Britain 6-3, 6-0 in her fourth-round match.

Miss Evert, the No. 2 seed from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., beat Mona Schallau of Iowa City, Iowa 7-5, 6-1.

In another women's singles contest, eighth-seeded Olga Morozova of Russia trimmed Karen Krantzcke of South Africa 9-7, 6-4.

Two major upsets marked men's play Monday. Ismael el Shafei of Egypt stunned Sweden's 18-year-old sensation, fifth-seeded Bjorn Borg, 6-2, 6-3, 6-1, and Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn. defeated eight-seeded compatriot Athur Ashe 7-5, 6-3, 8-9, 6-3.

Borg, who was runnerup in the World Championship of Tennis finals in Dallas earlier this year, was coming off victories in the French and Italian Open.

After his defeat, Borg who has been surrounded by young admirers all week, could share little of their youthful energy and enthusiasm.

"I am very tired," said Borg, who was able to get only six points off his service in the three sets. "Now I go home for a few days' rest with my parents. Then I must play Davis Cup."

Tanner used an explosive, high-bouncing serve to dismiss Ashe, once rated the top player in the United States and twice a semifinalist at Wimbledon.

Last year's Triple Crown winner, Billie Jean King, defending her singles, doubles and mixed doubles titles, was more troubled by the wind than by France's Francoise Durr in their singles match.

It was also a good day for the rest of the seeded men and women.

Newcombe of Australia, Nastase of Romania, Connors of Belleville, Ill., and Smith of Sea Pines, S.C., seeded 1-2-3-4, respectively, advanced with only Smith encountering any trouble.

The women aiming at taking over the top spot at Wimbledon kept pace with Ms. King. Chris Evert, Evonne Goolagong, Rosemary Casals, Virginia Wade, Kerry Melville and Olga Morozova all won.

WHO: The 1,200-member NFL Players Association versus the 26 NFL club owners.

WHEN: At 12:01 a.m. EDT Monday. Picketing will begin at 9 a.m. Wednesday at the training site of the San Diego Chargers in San Diego, the first club to open camp. Pickets will appear at the subsequent openings of camps.

THE ISSUES: The players union submitted its list of 90 demands, later condensed to 63, to the NFL Management Council, bargaining agent for the owners, on March 16. After 10 sessions at the bargaining table, no new contract could be reached.

The crux of the demands are the so-called freedom issues, calling for elimination of the reserve clause, the option clause, the waiver system and the so-called Rozelle rule, which allows the commissioner to order compensation for a club when one of its athletes plays out his option and signs with another team.

The owners reject total acceptance of the player demands but have said they are willing to discuss modification of the NFL's rules and regulations.

Says Clemson Offered Money

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Basketball superstar Moses Malone's mother has told a Richmond newspaper that two colleges offered money and an automobile to her son in apparent violation of NCAA recruiting rules.

Mrs. Mary Malone said Clemson offered her son $1,000 through an intermediary to buy a car and a New Mexico recruiter loaned him a rental car, the Times-Dispatch reported in today's editions.

Malone, the most heavily recruited high school player in years while at Petersburg High School, signed recently with the University of Maryland. He's now working at a summer job in Washington, Mrs. Malone said.

"Clemson offered Mo money," Mrs. Malone said. "They gave my brother a grand to buy a car for Mo."

The car deal apparently fell through when Mrs. Malone's brother, Charley Hudgins, was unable to secure financing for the auto, the Times-Dispatch reported.

Mrs. Malone said she didn't know what happened to the money, but neither she nor her son took any of it, the newspaper reported.

Mrs. Malone also said John Whisenant, a New Mexico assistant coach who recruited in Petersburg for three months, allowed Malone to use his rental car for a short period, the Times-Dispatch said.

The car was given to her son through an intermediary, Mrs. Malone said, and when she discovered that he had the vehicle, "I told Mo he had to give it back.

"Then I called Coach Whisenant and told him to come over here and get his car. I was pretty mad, and I also told him to get out of town, but I guess I had no right to do that," the Times-Dispatch said.

Whisenant, Hudgins and Clemson Coach Tates Locke couldn't be reached for comment Monday night.

Mrs. Malone said she and her son informed NCAA investigators of the alleged violations and knew of no other schools which had broken regulations in an effort to recruit Malone, the newspaper reported.

Mrs. Malone said she's very glad the recruiting war for her son is over, but she was "kind of glad I went through it. It was educating. What I learned from it is how crooked some people can be and how nice some people can be."

Trio Seek Race Slot

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — David Pearson, Richard Petty and Cale Yarborough, stock car racing's "Big Three," headed a list of pole position candidates in today's first round of qualifying for the July 4 Firecracker 400.

The first 20 positions in what will become a 40-car starting order were to be decided in speed runs around the 2.5-mile Daytona International Speedway beginning at 10 a.m. EDT.

The $115,000 mid-summer classic drew a record 62 entries, including all of the Winston Cup Grand National circuit's top runners and two big guns from the rival United States Auto Club's Indy-car division.

Johnny Rutherford, who cashed a record $246,000 check after winning the May 26 Indianapolis 500 and added to his bank account by capturing the Schaefer 500 at Mt. Pocono, Pa., Sunday, will drive a Chevrolet in this one.

A.J. Foyt, winner of three Indy titles, also has won the Firecracker twice—in 1964 and 1965—and the Daytona 500 in 1972. He will compete in Thursday's race in a Chevrolet owned by Donnie Allison, also a contender.

Pearson, Petty and Yarborough have won 14 of the 15 Grand Nationals this year. Yarborough has six triumphs and $140,760, Petty five wins and $136,015 and Pearson three victories and $102,835.

Pearson has won the last two Firecracker events and also won it in 1961.

Petty, though a five-time winner of the Daytona 500 and the only man to win that event more than once, never has put it all together in the Firecracker. He has three second place finishes.

Yarborough won the July classic in 1967 and 1968 and also has a triumph in the Daytona 500.

Cincy Leads National Votes

NEW YORK (AP) — Cincinnati seems to be the people's choice as the voting for the National League All-Star baseball team enters its final week.

With voting scheduled to end Sunday, four Red players are leading vote-getters at their respective positions and catcher Johnny Bench is threatening Hank Aaron as top vote-getter of all.

Aaron, the all-time home run slugger from Atlanta, still leads all players with 1,198,471, but Bench is threatening with his 1,153,312 total.

With 2,719,915 votes counted, the Reds' Tony Perez leads at first base with 490,791, teammate Joe Morgan is ahead at second base with 758,823 and Pete Rose appears to have an outfield spot clinched with 832,124 votes.

Ron Cey of Los Angeles is the leading candidate to start at third base in the July 23 All-Star Game in Pittsburgh with 654,480 votes, while Jimmy Wynn of Los Angeles has 713,745 and is a favorite to win the other outfield spot.

In the closest contest, shortstop Bill Russell of Los Angeles holds a slim lead against Larry Bowa of Philadelphia and Dave Concepcion, of—you guessed it—Cincinnati.

Russell has received 494,185 votes against Bowa's 435,240 and Concepcion's 430,712.

Pitchers and reserves will be chosen by the opposing managers.

Trevino Heads Milwaukee Field

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Lee Trevino, enticed by a change in format and looking for more playing time, heads a surprisingly strong field for the $130,000 Milwaukee Open Golf Tournament.

The 72-hole event, which offers a $26,000 first prize, gets under way Wednesday and runs through Saturday, a departure from the usual Thursday-through-Sunday format for regular pro golf tour events.

The change was made to help accomodate players who wish to compete in next week's British Open. This gives them an extra day of travel time. It's also because of the holiday weekend.

Trevino is one of those affected by the British Open. He's won two of the last three British Opens and will be playing in the old tournament at St. Anne's in England next week.

"I might have played anyhow," Trevino said. "I can't take time off and practice for a tournament. I need to play the week before. That's how I get sharp, by playing, not by practicing.

"But the extra day will help, too. It'll help a lot. You have to fly all night to get there. Then you've got to stay awake all the next day. That's the only way you can handle it. If you go to bed when you get there, you're dead. It'll take you a week to get adjusted."

The Milwaukee Open, which customarily occupies the time slot the week before the British Open, often gets the tour's leftovers.

Not so this year.

In addition to Trevino, one of the game's outstanding gate attractions, the 144-man field that will test the 7,010-yard Tuckaway Country Club course includes 62-year-old Sam Snead; Hubert Green, the season's No. 2 money winner and winner of three 1974 tournaments; Buddy Allin, a two-time winner this year, and such other winners as Jim Colbert, Bob Menne, Leonard Thompson and defending champion Dave Stockton.

Gold Slips To 7-6 Victory

The Gold Division inched to a 7-6 victory over the Purple Division in the annual City Softball League All-Star game played last night.

The Gold got the lead in the first inning with a run. C. Nicholson singled and scored on a double by R. Phillips.

But the Purple came right back to tie it up. S. Worthington singled and moved up to score when L. Hardee reached on an error.

The Gold went back out on a run in the third. M. Aldridge doubled and scored on W. Ward's single.

The Gold added four more in the fourth. L. Brown singled and Nicholson got a hit. Phillips doubled in both runs, and scored on a hit by J. Clark. Aldridge doubled to score Clark.

The Purple came up with two in the fifth. M. Parrell singled and J. Huber doubled him in, scoring on T. Culbreth's hit.

Two more came over in the sixth. Hardee singled and B. Kuykendall slapped a two-run homer.

The Purple then tied it up with one in the seventh. W. Nichols singled and came around when Culbreth reached on an error.

But in the ninth, the Gold got the winning run. Clark singled and moved up on a hit by Aldridge. R. Leggett singled him in.

The Worry Clinic

Moral Tutors Are Bypassed

Heed Rabbi Samuel's shrewd psychoanalysis! It is dangerous when a majority of the voters lack confidence in churches, our public schools, the Supreme Court and Congress. Ecologists better fret more about erosion of Uncle Sam's soul!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE A-673: Rabbi Samuel, aged 42, is shocked.

"Dr. Crane," he began as we dined together, "The moral decay in America is worse than most people imagine.

"It isn't just the high incidence of venereal disease, shoplifiting, drug addiction or promiscuity that has finally alarmed me most.

"No; it is the data that Louis Harris found on his poll last winter when the U.S. Senate commissioned him to find out how much confidence the public placed in various organizations.

"Our U. S. Supreme Court rated only 33 per cent and even the United Fund scored but 35 per cent.

"So our churches must face up to the grim reality that the mainstream of society is bypassing moral tutors."

Spiritual Decay

Many of you readers will recall that Harris survey but I'll give you a brief memory test thereon.

Analyze the 5 entries at the left and then try to match them with the percentage of confidence that the public places therein.

The percentage figures are jumbled so the number opposite each organization does not apply to it.

| | |
|---|---|
| (a) Organized religion | (v) 44% |
| (b) Organized labor | (w) 41 |
| (c) U.S. Senate | (x) 36 |
| (d) Local police | (y) 30 |
| (e) TV news | (z) 20 |

Out of 22 organizations or institutions rated by the American public, only 2 scored above the 50 per cent level!

These were the medical profession (57 per cent) and garbage collection (52 per cent)!

Confidence in local government was only 28 per cent and but 24 per cent in law firms.

Local schools drew 39 per cent which means that almost two-thirds of Americans have lost condidence in our public educational system!

Louis Harris made a very comprehensive poll nationwide, so his data should challenge the thinking of all our citizens.

Alas, our newpapers obtained a confidence rating of but 30 per cent which was far below the TV newscasts! Why?

Here are the correct confidence scores reposed in those 5 entries listed above:

| | |
|---|---|
| (a) Organized religion | -36% (x) |
| (b) Organized labor | -20 (z) |
| (c) U.S. Senate | -30 (y) |
| (d) Local police | -44 (v) |
| (e) TV news | -41 (w) |

Isn't it shocking to find that organized religion enjoys the confidence of only 36 per cent of Americans? Why?

Is it due to the fact many clergymen have changed their former evangelistic pulpits into political soap boxes for sociological issues?

And how do you figure that 41 per cent confidence in TV news vs. only 30 per cent for the printed word in the newspaper?

Could it be that the public is more easily persuaded by the human element, as indicated by the newscaster's authoritative voice, his gestures, emotional arousing tricks, plus the public's familiarity with the same newscaster, day after day?

For familiarity breeds confidence, so maybe we need more signed newspaper stories, where the writer's personality begins to attain some of the TV newscaster's personalized influence.

But Rabi Samuel is psychologically correct in his view that the churches need to revamp their emphasis and forego political pulpit propaganda!

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JULY 3, 1974

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Tomorrow's coming Full Moon gives you the feeling you have more to do than you can, but action is so stimulated that you accomplish more than you had imagined you could. Be more organized in your efforts and this gains support.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Ask direct questions of bigwigs instead of being in doubt about what they can or will do for you. Change your attitude with kin for fine results.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Being more open-minded to the new and letting go of the past that has served its purpose is wise now. Handle small interests quickly to derive benefits.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get an early start handling matters of a practical and money nature and make big headway. Get expert's advice on an important matter. Don't waste time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) If you think associates are not fair with you, discuss it with them instead of fretting. Then find the right way to handle one who opposes you.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get work out of the way quickly. You now have the answer on how to handle some secret anxiety and clear it up. Avoid one who only pretends to like you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Handle problems with a close tie so you can enjoy tomorrow's holiday. Make sure you know what a group is after before you accept some invitation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Straighten out any misunderstandings at home. Take care of an outside matter satisfactorily, also. Avoid one who is a troublemaker tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try to get your aims to the attention of bigwigs who can help you to further them quickly. Some new acquaintance could be helpful in your career also.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Pay bills and make collections without delay so you feel more secure. Give more attention to tax, government matters. Keep up insurance policies.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get into activities that bring you more success in personal matters during day, then join with congenials socially tonight. Afternoon is best for business matters of importance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get into the quiet of your study and make better plans for the future since your hunches are good and so are your ideas. Then start action on plans.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Listen to a good friend who has fine ideas for your progress, though not a very glamorous person. Don't permit mate to stifle you through jealousy. Be loyal to kin.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have wonderful ideas for making a big success in life. Give as fine an education as you can to insure success, even fame. Government work is fine. Teach to be objective early and not to give in to the emotions so much for big results. Spiritual training early.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Open Air Art Show In Belhaven July 4

The Tenth Annual Open-Air Art Show is scheduled to be a feature of Belhaven's 1974 July Fourth celebration. Amateur and professional artists are invited to exhibit in the show. The July Fourth art show will be in the garden at EEii's little KORNERS of the world in Belhaven.

Artists may register their work on the afternoon of July 3 or until 10:00 a.m. on the morinig of July Fourth. Categories which are open to all will include paintings, sculpture, ceramics, graphics, crafts, fabrics, and photography.

Awards for the 1974 show include engraved plates and purchase awards. Collectors are invited to take advantage of this opportunity to obtain some fine works of art. Persons desiring more details on the show may call 943-3111 any day for Mrs. Bateman.

Belhaven's July Fourth celebration will include an historical display in the city hall arcade. The exhibit of farm, home, school, and industry artifacts of those used in by-gone days is being arranged in keeping with the forthcoming bicentennial of our nation.

The bidding:

|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♡ | Pass | 2 ♡ | 2 ♠ |
| 3 ♡ | Pass | Pass | Pass |

Opening lead: Nine of ♠

There are many subtleties to the play of the cards on defense. Even an expert can overlook a critical consideration, as this deal from a team match dramatically illustrates.

At both tables, a competitive auction ended with South as declarer at a contract of three hearts. Since East had bid spades during the auction, at both tables the nine of spades was led. At one table, East won the first trick with the king of spades and shifted to the ten of diamonds. This presented West with a considerable problem.

If the ten of diamonds was singleton, obviously the correct defense was to win the ace and return the queen, so that East could ruff away dummy's king. However, if East held a doubleton diamond and West took the ace, the defenders might not score a second diamond trick. After considerable thought, West elected to play low, and that was that. Dummy's king won, trumps were drawn and when East gained the lead with the ace of clubs, he did not have another diamond to reach partner's established trick. Declarer was able to get two diamond discards—one on a spade and the other on a club.

Sitting East at the other table was Eddie Kantar of Los Angeles, one of the U. S.'s best known player-writers. He came up with a superior defense that left his partner in no doubt whatsoever. Instead of winning the first trick with the king of spades, he made the abnormal play of the ace! Now, when he shifted to the ten of diamonds, West was presented with a different picture of the hand. It seemed that declarer had the king of spades, so there was no reason to duck the diamond—that would present declarer with an immediate discard. So he won the ace of diamonds and continued with the queen. Declarer covered with dummy's king and East ruffed. The king of spades and the ace of clubs brought the defenders' total to five—one more than declarer could afford to surrender.

New Minister Assumes Duties

Dr. and Mrs. Will Rogers Wallace and family have established a residency in Greenville where on July 1, Dr. Wallace officially assumed the duties as new minister of First Christian Church.

DR. WILL WALLACE

Dr. Wallace holds a B.S.L. degree from Johnson Bible College and the Doctor of Ministry degree from Lexington Theological Seminary in Lexington, Ky. He received further clinical pastoral education through work at N.C. Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem and at the National Institute of Mental Health Research Center in Lexington, Ky.

Just prior to his move here, Dr. Wallace served jointly as Director of Pastoral Care at Sunrise Manor Nursing Home in Hodgenville, Ky. and as minister of Hodgenville Christian Church. He is married to the former Patricia Gail Smith of Knoxville, Tenn., and they have three daughters, Cindy, Laura, and Connie.

At 9:00 a.m. and again at 11 a.m. on Sunday, July 7, Dr. Wallace will for the first time conduct the worship services at First Christian. The congregation will welcome the Wallaces into the church family at an informal coffee hour at 10 a.m. Friends, visitors, and all members are invited to share in the fellowship of the social hour and to attend the worship service of their choice.

Issues Own Money

MBABANE, Swaziland (AP) — This New Jersey-size African kingdom has announced plans to introduce its own paper money and coins in September. Swaziland now uses South Africa's rands and cents and will remain a member of the rand monetary area which includes Botswana, Lesotho, South West Africa as well as South Africa.

Kiwanians At Meet In Denver

Two members of the Greenville and two of the Winterville Kiwanis Club recently attended the 59th Annual Kiwanis International Convention held in Denver, Colo.

Attending from Greenville were W. C. Taylor, president of the local club, and Dave Stevens. Attending from Winterville were Norman and Hazel Worthington and Linwood and Vannie Rouse.

The convention was held from June 23-26 at the Denver Convention Complex.

'Peace' Has Different Meaning To Soviet

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The way the world's Communist leaders evidently interpret the word "peace" suggests to many in the West a need for a "handle with care" label on the Soviet-American detente.

Supporting the advertised aims of summits is much like being in favor of motherhood. Nobody's going to be publicly against peace and international collaboration.

But the investment of too-high hopes in the long-range results of the series of summits could mean building up the Western public for a jolting letdown at some future date. As the Middle East war proved last October, it's not difficult to set the process of confrontation in motion.

There are valid-looking reasons for the caution.

One is the Soviet approach to the summit. It is clear from the thrust of Communist propaganda that Western and Communist regimes speak entirely different languages, have different definitions of terms, different outlooks on just what constitutes peace.

From what the Soviet leaders and press have been saying, Moscow's aim is not what Americans might regard as real peace, but rather to gain certain advantages from commerce with the West while at the same time exploiting the difficulties of the capitalist world, particularly in its citadel, the United States.

True, the summitry that began in 1972 produced an upsurge of Soviet-American trade and agreements on scientific and economic collaboration, which might be considered good omens.

But the meat of the summit business is the arms race, and analysis suggests that not enough has happened in that respect to warrant vaulting hopes. Agreements in the field evidently have been sufficiently porous to permit continuing and significant buildups.

If President Nixon and Leonid Brezhnev cannot reach meaningful agreement on strategic arms limitation, the arsenals likely will be far bigger and potentially more devastating, no matter what economic, technical and cultural pacts are achieved.

Soviet press treatment of the arms question leaves an impression that Brezhnev's military men are unwilling to settle for anything short of clear over-all superiority. They have superiority in some respects already, and certainly in conventional military power which could be decisive in Europe, given the mutual deterrence of nuclear weapons.

The military press, particularly, is full of warnings about alleged plots of "aggressive circles" in NATO to launch a "new imperialist war." This specter is made an excuse for seeking ever larger arms expenditures.

The Russians already have caught up in multiple-warhead missiles, in numbers though not in quality. Against the rumbling background obbligato from the military, Brezhnev's bargaining has a sound of hold-the-line, until advantage is assured.

Another reason for caution: the persistence of the Cold War.

Moscow repeatedly accuses the West of Cold War language and postures. But Soviet propaganda often sounds as implacably hostile to the West and as Cold-Warish as ever.

The Kremlin did its part in fomenting the latest Middle East crisis. In the subsequent energy crunch it did its level best to propagandize oil producers into making things tough for the Americans. But there are other grave causes for misgivings.

A constant Soviet theme, muted only in the actual period of the summit meeting, tells the world's Communists that the aim of detente is to hasten the world revolution. The propaganda says the time is propitious because "as a system, capitalism is undergoing profound crisis."

What does "peace" mean in the official Communist view of "peaceful coexistence?" It means major war must be avoided. But the doctrine of small "just and unjust" wars is maintained, a "just" war being one involving Communist-backed forces. To these the Kremlin constantly pledges all-out support.

What are Moscow's long-range detente goals? Here's how Mikhail Suslov, veteran member of the ruling Politburo, put it in a speech three weeks ago:

"International political actions in recent years mean not only intentions to build interstate relations on a basis of renouncing the use of force and noninterference in each other's affairs. No. They mean more than this. These acts, treaties and agreements at the same time strengthen the positions won by the world of socialism and other revolutionary forces. They create the opportunity for a further peace offensive and open up more favorable prospects for the further advance of revolutionary forces in the struggle for the interests of the working class, democracy, national independence and socialism."

All those terms in Soviet jargon are synonymous with "Communist party."

Such statements are made for the benefit of internal and international Communist audiences and not intended for the general public in the West, which is repeatedly assured of the Kremlin's honorable intentions.

There is yet another aspect that raises Western eyebrows.

When President Nixon at the summit spoke of agreements made possible by "personal relationships" that had been established, the Soviet press deleted the word "personal." Again, in a Nixon reference to a prospective 1975 summit, the date was knocked out. Such things don't happen in Moscow by chance.

Some see in this curious treatment a suggestion that Brezhnev doesn't want to make agreements and the future of the detente process dependent upon President Nixon's tenure in office.

However, it also could mean that Brezhnev himself has run into some background criticism from those in the top party and military strata who might dispute the wisdom of ignoring the Watergate scandal in the United States. There probably are those in the Soviet leadership who see advantages in exploiting internal American troubles as leverage for bargaining.

Fire Crew Dispatched

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A 22-man volunteer crew from the North Carolina Forest Service is on its way to help battle wildfires currently raging out of control in the southwestern United States.

The rangers, from the state's Mountain Region, left Asheville by bus Monday night. They were to fly from Knoxville, Tenn., to the Boise Interagency Fire Center at Boise, Idaho. From there, they will be dispatched to Arizona, New Mexico or one of the other southwestern states.

Arizon had more than 300 wildfires burning out of control, a spokesman for the state Forest Service said Monday. The U.S. Forest Service requested help from rangers in North Carolina and other states.

A second crew of North Carolina rangers has been placed on alert for possible dispatch to the fire scene within the next few days, the state spokesman said.

North Carolina rangers helped fight fires in the Pacific Northwest last August.

Everybody Ignored Attack On Woman

CHICAGO (AP) — A woman lawyer, her neck bleeding after she was struck with a heavy chain, screamed for help as she peddled her bicycle after her attacker. For more than a mile people watched but ignored her pleas.

Judy Widmer, 25, said she was on her way home from her law clerk job when a man hit her with a heavy chain as she rode through a pedestrian underpass in Lincoln Park, on Chicago's North Side.

"He looked at me with a super-vicious killer look as I passed him, then he let the chain go," Miss Widmer, who received 10 stitches in her neck, said later.

The chain wrapped around her neck and dazed her, she said. But she held onto her bike and yelled at a nearby male cyclist to help her. She said he ignored her.

Her attacker ran. She chased him on her bicycle.

She said she repeatedly called out for help. But everyone she passed in the crowded park ignored her, she said.

Joggers. Other bicyclists. A man reading a newspaper. A bus full of people. Guards taking down the flag at the Chicago Historical Society. A woman emptying her garbage. She said they all watched—only watched.

Finally Tom McNamara, 30, a candidate for state representative, responded. He was on his way to play tennis when he saw Miss Widmer.

"I couldn't believe how bloody she was," he said.

McNamara and an unidentified man chased the alleged attacker, stopped him and held him until the police arrived.

David Parker, 20, of Chicago, was charged with attempted theft, aggravated battery and assault in the Friday incident.

Unable Get Campsites

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)— The National Park Service says hundreds of persons have been unable to reserve campsites in national parks for the Fourth of July holiday. The new nationwide computerized reservation system overloaded telephone lines in Iowa.

Callers to Cedar Rapids got busy signals or recording saying they had reached the wrong number.

Cattlemen Say They Need Bigger Share Of Dollar

INFLUENCES MEAT COST—The cost of grain influences the cost of meat because farmers must buy grain to feed their animals. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The men who raise the steers that put beef on the American dinner table want a bigger share of your dollar. They say they'll go broke if they don't get it.

Bill Frank has 130 head of cattle on his 320-acre farm near Hudson, Colo., a town of 450 persons northeast of Denver.

When his cattle get big enough, he'll sell them to someone like Lawrence Kentfield of Wilsonville, Neb., who fattens them on grain.

Then Kentfield will sell them to someone like John Morrell Co., a packing house that is part of United Brands.

Morrell will slaughter the cattle, cut them up and sell them to someone like Pantry Pride-Food Fair, one of the nation's largest supermarket chains.

Pantry Pride-Food Fair will sell the meat to you.

The American National Cattlemen's Association, which represents people like Frank and Kentfield, estimates its members have lost more than $1 billion since September because of declining livestock prices.

Legislation is pending in Congress for an open-ended emergency program of government-guaranteed loans for livestock and poultry producers.

Part of the problem is that there is more meat than any of the experts predicted.

More cattle were fed out on the range — out of sight of government analysts who check feedlots to try to figure out how much beef is on its way to market.

In addition, cattlemen feeding their livestock on grain decided to hold on to them longer, writing for prices to rise after government controls were lifted. The cattle got bigger than normal, producing more meat — and fat. And the prices paid to farmers didn't rise.

Meanwhile, there was a backlog of cattle. Truckers' strikes meant the cattle couldn't be shipped to market. The backlog got bigger and consumers still weren't buying beef.

Ranchers in Florida, the nation's 18th largest cattle producing state, are in the same boat as those in Colorado. Florida ranchers produce 2.2 million head a year, virtually all of them for sale to out-of-state feedlots.

Last year, they were getting 57 cents a pound from feedlot operators. Last week, they were getting 25 cents a pound.

The price the rancher got for his calves declined because men like Nebraskan Kentfield, who fattens the calves, refused to pay more.

Kentfield put 160 head of cattle into his feedlot pen on Feb. 26. The animals weighed an average 660 pounds and he paid farmers 42 cents a pound or about $280 each. By June 1, the cattle weighed an average of 1,025 pounds each and Kentfield estimated he had spent $120 feeding each one.

Kentfield fed the cattle on grass and grain. He said that at current prices, cattle have to eat more than 45 cents worth of grain to gain one pound. Farmers with pastureland to spare are charging Kentfield 35 cents for each pound his cattle gain while grazing on the land.

The price for grain and pastureland has doubled in the past year, Kentfield said. Corn that used to be $1 a bushel is $2.50; the pastureland price used to be 17 cents a pound gained.

Kentfield watched the price paid for cattle going down. He wanted to cut his losses and sell on June 1. He was willing to take 33 cents a pound, but he couldn't find a buyer. So Kentfield decided to hold on to the animals and is still feeding them. Choice feeder cattle were selling for about 40 cents a pound last week, still below Kentfield's break-even point.

He has $119,021 in loans coming due and doesn't know how he'll pay them.

Kentfield made money in past years — his 1973 tax return showed a net income of $6,568 and he says his annual income through the 1960s and early 70s was about $10,000. And he plans to stay in the business.

"If things get on an even keel and I could get the money, I could pull out in two or three years," he says.

Montfort of Colorado operates both a feedlot and packing operation, marketing more than half a million head of cattle a year.

In 1972, the company had sales of $288.8 million and a profit of $5.8 million — about 2 per cent. In 1973, Montfort sales were $301.2 million and profit was $1 million, about one-third of one per cent.

This year, for the first time, company officials provided a breakdown of the feeding and packing operation. The cattle feeding division showed a loss of $10.8 million for the first six months of 1974; the packing operation showed a profit of $3.2 million. Montfort got a tax refund of $3.9 million for a net, after tax loss of $3.7 million for the first six months of the year.

Sam Adams, Montfort vice president, estimated that feedlot operators have lost $1.75 billion in the past nine months "compared with total equity of something over $3 billion. That equity was built over many years..."

Kenneth Montfort, president of the Greeley-based firm said: "We're going through a general belt-tightening. But there's no doubt that we will survive."

Halt Procuring Beagle Puppies

EDGEWOOD ARSENAL, Md. (AP) — The procurement of beagle puppies for use in chemical warfare experiments has been suspended pending intensive review by the Defense Department, according to the Army.

The Army said it has suspended procurement of 450 beagle puppies on which bids were to have opened Friday.

The announcement follows congressional and public criticism for the use of beagles in military testing programs. The Army has denied it planned to test poison gas on the dogs, however, saying they were to be used in effots to develop a vaccine against chemical agents such as tear gas and other riot controls.

The statement said tests are continuing with the small number remaining from the 400 puppies purchased last year.

$77,280 Grant To Service Projects

Secretary of Human Resources David T. Flaherty has announced that Region Q, composed of Herford, Bertie, Martin, Pitt and Beaufort Counties, has received a grant of $77,280 from the federal government through Title III of the Older Americans Act.

The grant is part of a statewide total of over $1 million. Federal guidelines require that 80 percent of the funds be spent in 10 "high impact" areas (including Region Q) which contain 59 percent of the state's elderly population. The remaining 20 percent of the allocation has been granted directly to 13 service projects throughout the seven lower impact areas of the state.

Some areas would receive smaller allotments than in previous years, although the total federal appropriation this year is greater than ever before, Flaherty noted.

"Congress has expanded the number of high impact areas from four to 10, so the money has to go farther," he explained.

Flaherty empahsized that no aging services currently in operation will be terminated or cut back because of the recent shift to the Councils of Government as the administrative agency.

Title III fund are administered through the Governor's Coordinating Council on Aging, headed by Executive Director Robert Q. Beard.

Suitor Told Quit Pursuit

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — A Superior Court judge has told a young man that his pursuit of a woman who has spurned his attentions is "folly" and to leave her alone.

"No matter how beautiful this woman may be, you just have to give her up," Judge Bill Dozier told Michael Vigil as he issued a preliminary injunction Monday against Vigil.

The young suitor waged a determined campaign for Debra Gonsalves with flowers, telephone calls and a diamond ring.

Miss Gonsalves testified in San Joaquin County Superior Court that she met Vigil in September 1972 where both worked at a pipe manufacturing plant.

He telephoned her at least 30 times a week, sent her flowers and gifts, proposed marriage several times and offered her a diamond ring, she said.

Miss Gonsalves testified that she asked sheriff's deputies to make him cease, but Vigil was undeterred and even lost his job because he was distracted from his work.

Dozier said Vigil could go to jail for 30 days if he violates the injunction. Both Vigil and Miss Gonsalves are in their early 20s.

LOTTERY

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Oregon Congresswoman Edith Green believes a national lottery would be a good idea to reduce the national debt. She notes it cost U.S. taxpayers $24 billion just to keep up with interest payments during one year's period on a debt in excess of $470 billion.

If you find it hard to save money, now you can cheer up. Planters National Bank is going to try and help.

For the next several months you can build a beautiful set of dinnerware in either delicate porcelain china or contemporary imported stoneware while you build your savings.

When you open a Regular PNB savings account with $25 or more or a Golden savings account with $100 or more, we'll give you your first 4-piece place setting, free. If you already have a Planters savings account, we'll give you your free dinnerware when you deposit a minimum of $25.

You can choose from two patterns: the translucent Lady Carolyn fine china in white and muted green or the striking, oven-proof, Aztec stoneware in brown, yellow and orange. Both are completely dishwasher safe.

Every time you deposit $25 or more, you can add to your collection. Additional place settings and beautiful accessory pieces are all available at about half their regular retail price.

If you can't wait, you can buy either set all at once with a $500 deposit. The Lady Carolyn 63-piece service for only $90.50 and the Aztec 47-piece service for $63.45.

Come to Planters today and see both sets of dinnerware on display. Then start your collection and your bank account at the same time.

When you've finished you'll have a full set of dinnerware and a bank account earning the highest possible interest allowed by law.

Because at Planters, we may give you a good reason to put your money here. We also give you a good reason to keep it here.
