

Peaceful But Hot Fourth Of July Observed Here

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Jaycee-sponsored Fourth of July celebration yesterday highlighted an otherwise peaceful, but hot Independence Day in the Greenville area.

Allen Hahn, co-chairman of the Jaycee celebration project with Connally Branch, said "there must have been 5,000 people gathered at one time . . . at the fire works display" which concluded an afternoon and evening program that included such activities as sack races, greasy pole climbs, egg tossing contests, hog calling, watermelon seed spitting, fishing contests and other activities.

In addition, several bands performed and Greenville Firemen and Rescue Squad personnel displayed equipment and gave demonstrations of their skills.

According to Hahn, "a lot of work went into the project, but it was well worth it. We appreciate the cooperation of every single person who helped in this endeavor."

"Everyone seemed to have a good time . . . and that's what the celebration was all about," the Jaycee said. "There were no accidents . . . no one got hurt . . . everything went real well."

Law enforcement agencies in the county, including the Highway Patrol, reported no major traffic accidents occurred yesterday. And Greenville Police and Pitt County Sheriff's Department spokesmen said their departments had routine days, with no major crimes or unusual complaints reported.

And firemen throughout the county, too, had a light day. Greenville fire officials said city firemen fought no fires, while County Fire Marshall Bobby Joyner reported only three fires in the county—two tobacco barn calls (one at 10:23 a.m. and the other at 3:52 p.m.) East of Greenville off U.S. 264, and a car fire at 1:52 p.m. near the intersection of U.S. 264 and U.S. 13.

Although it was the Fourth of July, East Carolina University students were faced with classes as usual, but many found time to travel to beaches or take part in the Jaycee's Independence Day celebration just the same.

Most Greenville businesses were closed yesterday, although a few stores, including a number of grocery stores, did remain open for the day for the convenience of their customers.

Beach Disorder

ATLANTIC BEACH, N.C. (AP)—Between 400 and 500 young Independence Day holidaymakers shouted in abandon and caused a disturbance early today, police reported.

Authorities said it started after there was streaking by boys and one or two girls. Then there were some fights and rock throwing, the police said.

The disturbance first centered on the amusement area, called The Circle, and then moved to the beach before it was contained. It lasted about two hours, until 3 a.m.

Police said about a dozen young persons were arrested on charges of disturbing the peace and other charges.

The five Atlantic Beach policemen on duty were augmented by deputies from the Cartaret County Sheriff's Department, state highway patrol and military policemen from the Cherry Point Marine Air Station.

Atlantic Beach is on the middle North Carolina coast on an island across Bogue Sound from Beaufort and Morehead City.

Stood By 2 Enemy Flags

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a Viet Cong flag to his right, a North Vietnamese flag to his left and the White House behind him, former prisoner of war John Young shouted his thanks to those Americans who demonstrated against the Vietnam war.

"The only thing that brought us home was the struggle of the Vietnamese people and the American people in the streets," he said Thursday at a rally that attracted about 1,700 persons.

The rally, organized by the Vietnam Veterans Against the War-Winter Soldier Organization, capped four days of demonstrations at the Veterans Administration, Justice Department, Court of Military Appeals and Capitol.

The demonstrators demanded amnesty for war resisters, improved veterans benefits and care, an end to aid to South Vietnam and Cambodia and the removal of President Nixon from office.

There was no violence reported during the four-mile march Thursday from the Capitol Mall to the Lincoln Memorial and back, with a stop for the rally on the Ellipse near the White House.

Praising the antiwar movement and criticizing Nixon, Young, of Arlington Heights, Ill., said:

"If Nixon did anything for us, it was that he kept us in North Vietnam four years longer than we should have been there. It's his turn to do some time in a detention camp."

Seven former prisoners, including Young, took part in the week of demonstrations.

Alphonso Riate of Los Angeles, another former prisoner, told the crowd:

"We are here to make it known we are struggling for the rights of veterans and for the right of all Americans to return to their country with unconditional amnesty."

Sam Schorr, one of the coordinators of the march, said that although 6 per cent of all Americans are out of work 10 per cent of the veterans are unemployed. Jobs available through the Veterans Administration are menial ones such as janitors and laundry helpers, he said.

Some of the marchers wore green Army fatigues. Some wore bandages covering wounds received in a clash Wednesday with police men near the Capitol.

As the marchers circled the Lincoln Memorial, they mingled with Independence Day tourists and visitors to a nearby exhibit on American folklife.

Some of the tourists picked up the group's chant and some took snapshots as the marchers raised their arms in the clenched fist salute.

Another group, calling itself the Second American Bonus March after a group that marched on Washington during the summer of 1932 seeking improved benefits, attracted fewer than 50 persons to a rally on the opposite side of the White House from the Ellipse.

Jobless 'Steady'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate held steady at 5.2 per cent in June, maintaining about the same level it has hovered at so far this year, the Labor Department reported today.

The annual influx of students into the job market drove the unemployment rate up faster than employment, but after adjustment for seasonal variations the increases balanced out.

Seasonally adjusted unemployment stood at 4.8 million, up by 46,000 from May. Employment rose by 194,000 to 86.2 million persons.

The administration had been braced for a six per cent unemployment rate over the first half of the year as officials attempted to bring inflation out of the economy.

'Arsenal' Stolen At Guard Armory

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Enough weapons and ammunition to outfit a full Army company have been stolen from a National Guard armory in suburban Compton, authorities reported today.

"It is frightening to think that this (arsenal) would fall into the wrong hands," said Compton Police Sgt. W.H. Williams. "It appears that the theft was a highly organized thing."

Police and FBI agents refused to speculate on who may have been responsible for the theft. But authorities said they were investigating routinely the possibility that a terrorist or radical group may have been involved.

The firing pins were missing from the stolen weapons, the Army said, but police officials added that replacements could be obtained easily.

A list of missing items issued by military authorities included thousands of rounds of ammunition, eighty M16 rifles, seventy M60 machine guns, eight M79 grenade launchers, one .45-caliber automatic and 15 bayonets.

Ammunition taken from the armory Wednesday was listed as 3,360 rounds of 5.56-caliber bullets, 1,000 rounds of 7.58-caliber bullets, 45 rounds of .45-caliber shells, 40 grenades, 16 smoke grenades and 100 riot grenades. They said 75 gas masks also were missing.

Ambassador To Turkey Recalled

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — An informed source said today U.S. Ambassador William Macomber has been recalled to Washington for consultations because of indignation in America over Turkey's recent decision to lift a ban on opium poppy cultivation.

The source said consultations would include the entire range of U.S. relations with Turkey.

There was no immediate confirmation from U.S. officials.

Turkey banned opium poppy cultivation in 1971 under strong pressure from the United States which claimed at the time that most of the heroin reaching U.S. addicts was of Turkish origin.

STEPS DOWN

RALEIGH (AP) — Deputy Atty. Gen. Beverly Lake Jr. stepped down today as an active candidate for the Democratic nomination for attorney general.

An FBI agent said the quantity of weapons and ammunition could fully equip an Army combat company.

Investigators said entry to the armory was through a side door and a vacuum drill was used to pierce the weapons vault, which an armory sergeant recalled locking at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

An Army official said that the firing pins had been removed before the weapons were placed in storage in a vault. The pins were kept in another vault, which apparently was not entered.

Lt. Col. Andrew Wolf, public relations officer for the Military Department in Sacramento, said in a telephone interview that this is standard practice when armories are left unattended.

Wolf said the Army could not afford to post round-the-clock security guards at state armories and they are usually left unattended after normal business hours.

There were no Army personnel at the Compton armory — where, ironically, a silent alarm system is currently being installed — from Wednesday morning until Thursday night, when the theft was discovered, officials said.

Foes Of Death Penalty Stage Orderly March

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A crowd that police estimated totaled about 4,000 persons marched without incident through the North Carolina capital protesting the death penalty.

Black militant Angela Davis, who cochaired a group that calls itself the National Alliance Against Racist and Political Repression, led the Independence Day march. It was held to spotlight the state's Death Row population, highest in the nation.

Miss Davis estimated that the crowd totaled 10,000 persons.

In addition to protesting the state's Death Row population of 45—almost half the nation's total—the march Thursday called attention to the state's total prison population of more than 12,000, highest per capita in the nation, and to statistics showing that fewer North Carolina workers are in labor unions than in any other state.

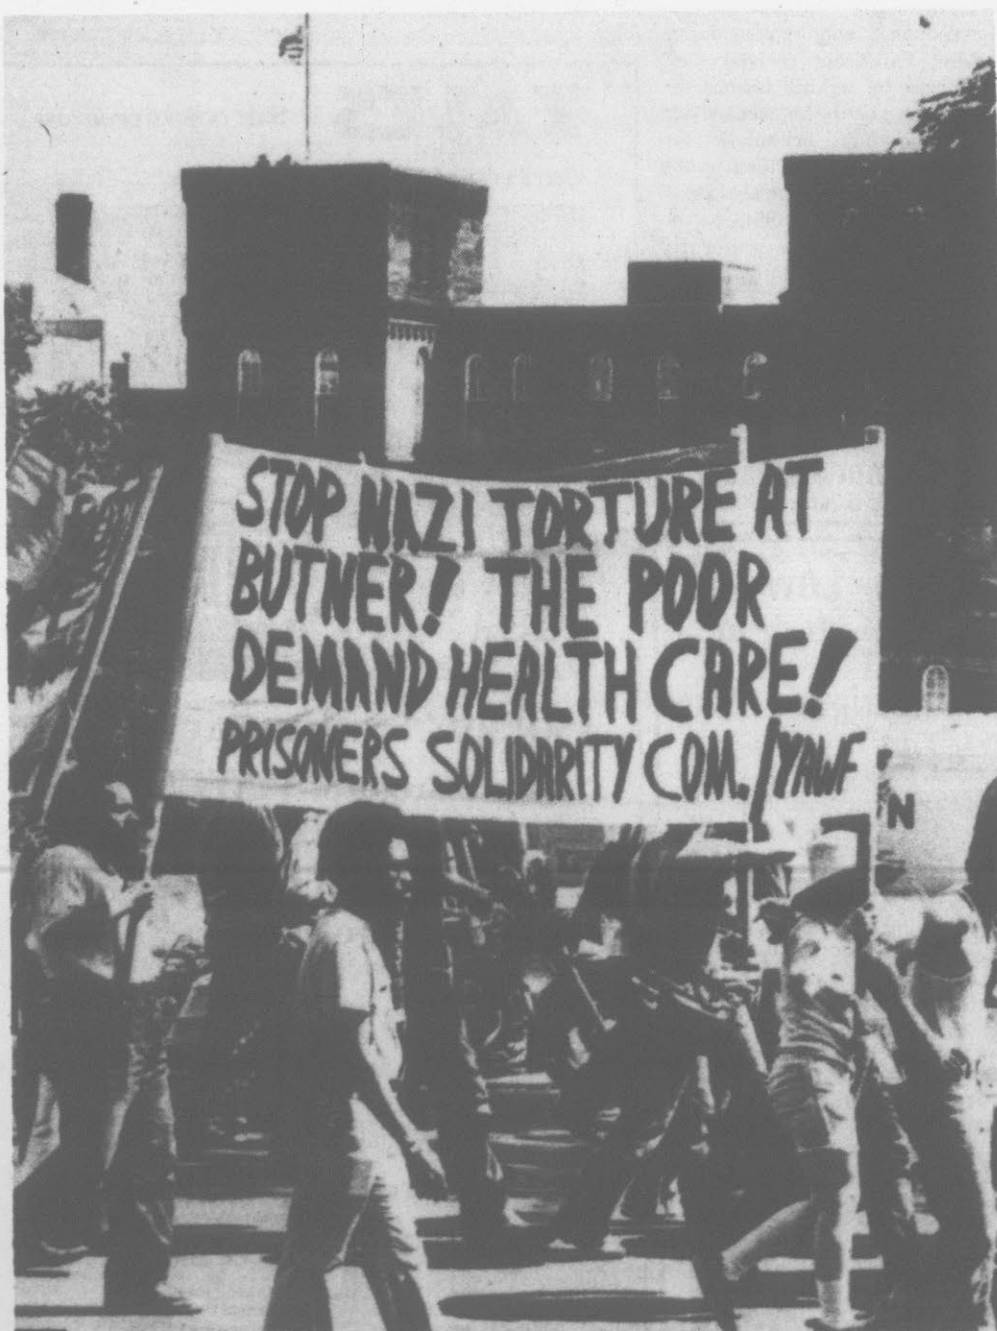

After meeting at a downtown auditorium, where marchers were welcomed by Raleigh's black mayor, Clarence Lightner, the crowd walked to the Capitol. Miss Davis and the Rev.

Ralph David Abernathy of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference spoke to the crowd at the Capitol, then the march moved on, past Central Prison where men condemned to die are housed.

Other speakers included Clyde Bellecourt of the American Indian Movement.

The prime cause of tension during the march was a group of 12 pickets from segregationist groups including the American Nazi party, the Ku Klux Klan and the Rights of White People.

There were jeers at the segregationists but no incidents.

SEEKING FULL PAYMENT

On April 9, 1973 I slipped and fell in the Big Star Food Store here in Greenville. I went to the doctor and had a broken wrist set. He also prescribed some medication and later physical therapy. The whole bill came to $250. The insurance company is offering to pay only $105. I feel they should pay the entire medical bill, so I would not accept the $105. My husband had to borrow money from the bank to pay the bill. Shouldn't the insurance company pay the entire bill? Mrs. L.B.F.

The food store is not liable for the entire bill since they were not proven liable for the fall, according to James Harrington of the Underwriters Adjusting Co. of Raleigh. You stated there were no witnesses to the incident, and that you yourself did not know what had caused you to fall. No material was found afterward that could have caused the fall, you indicated.

Underwriters Adjusting Co. offered to pay your emergency medical bill, amounting to $105 last year. According to Harrington, this offer is still good. He told Hotline that if you would write him personally he would send a check to you immediately.

NEEDS TIME OFF

At the Black and Decker Plant in Tarboro, I sometimes work 19 days straight without a day off. I'm 60 years old, and since my husband is disabled, I really need to work. Don't labor laws require a day off every so often. T.O.B.

Federal labor laws make no restriction on the number of hours worked by any person 18 or older. Your employer is covered by federal laws, since it is engaged in the manufacture of goods shipped in interstate commerce. Evelyn Crump, secretary to the N.C. Deputy Commissioner of Labor, said, so North Carolina labor laws do not apply. Where state law does apply, labor is restricted to 10 hours a day, 56 hours a week, with no more than 50 hours without time-and-a-half pay, she said.

PAST DATE USED

A HOTLINE item used yesterday was out of date—it said construction of Greenville's swimming pool was to begin June 16. The contractor should have equipment and materials on the site Monday, and a groundbreaking is tentatively set for next Thursday, City Manager Bill Carstarphen said.

HER COLLECTION

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (WNS) — Betsy Van Loon, 11, was named treasurer of a Girls' Lib school committee to get financial contributions from boys for a campaign for coeducational sports teams. At the end of two weeks, she reported, "The amount collected up to 11 a.m. this morning was nil, which is very low."

Teacher Tries Role Reversal On Students

ROTTERDAM, Netherlands (WNS)—Teacher Bep Vanderhof had no trouble getting her previously mediocre students to pass examinations with flying colors. "They were bored with traditional, uninspired instruction," she explained, so Miss Vanderhof revived their interest by writing lessons upside down on the blackboard and "giving them arithmetic answers, then having them make up problems to fit the answers." She said, "Let the child be the teacher, and he generally becomes interested in learning."

Inner Beauty Hidden By An 'Ugly Exterior'

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding that "Double Ugly" guy who says ugliness is a curse because no one wants to associate with physically ugly people. You said, "Ugliness—like beauty, lies in the eye of the beholder. The qualities that make one loved and wanted have nothing to do with the way one's face is formed. Honesty, patience, kindness, generosity—all the virtues—can be developed. A beautiful character counts for more with people who count than physical beauty."

Abby, you missed the whole point. This ugly person should seek out the blind for friends. He should volunteer to help in a school for the blind, or get a job there.

They say if a deaf lion roars in the desert, there is no sound. Nothing looks ugly to those who cannot see, so forget all that rot about developing honesty, kindness and a beautiful character, and give the poor guy some practical advice. He might find what he's looking for in the world of the sightless. PRAGMATIST

DEAR PRAG.: Who says: "If a deaf lion roars in the desert, there is no sound?" Just because the lion can't hear the sound he makes, doesn't mean it's nonexistent.

To suggest that physically ugly people should seek out the blind in order to be loved is an insult to the sightless. Although they are unable to see physical ugliness, they're better able to "see" those qualities which are far more intrinsic to a person's real worth than physical beauty.

So if a physically ugly person has an ugly character, he should stay away from the blind—for they may "see" him better than those with 20-20 vision.

DEAR ABBY: In reply to Double Ugly: I have never met an ugly person I didn't like. They have personality plus!

When I was a young girl, I learned the little fellows with the big freckles and the stringy red hair that hung in their yellow-green eyes were the ones to ask a favor of. The handsome guys were too busy thinking about themselves.

Mr. Ugly, I like you already, for you have shown a lot of character and humility by asking for help with your problem. That is beauty right there! So you see, you aren't as ugly as you thought you were. ONE WHO KNOWS

DEAR ABBY: When I first saw this nurse, I said to myself: "That has got to be the ugliest woman I've ever seen!" She was shaped like a pear, had a pockmarked complexion, an enormous nose and buck teeth, and she wore thick glasses.

But an hour later, after watching her work with disturbed children, and observing her gentle, patient, kind, loving personality, I completely forgot about her looks.

Everyone who knew her adored her. She had the disposition of an angel and a way of bringing out the best in people. If I had to name the most beautiful woman I've ever met, I would have to say that nurse wins, hands down. CAPTIVATED

Editor Advocates Freedom

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (AP) — Editor, writer, and mother of four children Harriette Rhawn Behringer wants it known that the women's movement is not for women only.

"It is not a movement for women, but one for freedom and human dignity," said the editor of Alert, a 22,000 circulation women's legislative review published here monthly.

"Husbands and friends of women in the movement are ardent supporters of our work. We look upon men as friends, and we must destroy the myth that women in the movement are hostile to men," she said.

Ms. Behringer, a title she prefers, had edited Alert during a year's leave of absence from Xerox Corp. as part of the company's social service program. "We don't just represent militant feminists, but a broad spectrum of women from every geographic area of the state," she said in an interview.

Alert concentrates most of its efforts on politics because "women have learned where the decision makers live and that's politics," she said.

"With strength of numbers, women in Connecticut can establish power — a word foreign to women."

Ms. Behringer said Alert's efforts during the 1973 General Assembly session helped create a state Commission on the Status of Women, helped change laws penalizing pregnant working women and helped ratify the federal equal rights amendment after it was defeated by the assembly in 1972.

"We have a long way to go, but it indicates the strength of dedicated feminists in the state," she said.

Ms. Behringer said she is also attacking the problem of human dignity by writing for children.

"Sex stereotyping is crippling too many talented women who are ignored by industry," she said, adding that it is important for youngsters to see the woman they read about in interesting roles.

In her book "When I Grow Up," men and women swap jobs so youthful readers will not associate one occupation with one sex or the other.

"We must make parents aware that the sex stereotypes exist in textbooks so that school districts will not purchase sexist materials. The image of 'reality for a child comes from parents, friends, school, TV and books,'" she said.

If your house is near a noisy road, plant shrubs and tall evergreens to screen out the sights and sounds of motor traffic.

NAACP Attacks Police Tactics In 'Zebra' Case

By BILL CRIDER
Associated Press Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The stop and frisk search of black men during San Francisco's tense "Zebra" manhunt was condemned by the NAACP convention as dangerous over-reaction by police.

Undertaken in a drive to end terrorist-style murders of whites by blacks, such searches were later ruled unconstitutional by a federal judge.

"The lawless acts of the police created such an intolerable condition of tension and apprehension in the black community that it could have led to an explosion of enormous dimensions," a resolution said.

It was among resolutions approved by the 3,070 delegates by voice vote during the last two days of the five-day 65th annual convention, which ends tonight with a banquet.

Zebra was a police code name for a special radio frequency used in coordinating police action whenever a new sidewalk shooting jolted the city.

In motiveless attacks spread from last December to April, 12 whites were slain and 8 maimed. Police said that in each instance the attacker was identified as a black man.

Nathaniel Colley, a Sacramento, Calif., lawyer who won the U.S. District Court injunction against the Zebra stop and frisk, said authorities knew such searches were illegal when they were ordered.

"It was really a search for evidence, they were looking for a .38 pistol," he told a convention workshop. "They knew this was an unconstitutional search."

In other resolutions, the NAACP demanded a moratorium on mental tests where most blacks score lower than whites.

Standardized tests are misleading when they have not been corrected for cultural bias, the delegates said.

Such tests result in "a disproportionately large number of black students being misplaced in special education classes and denied admissions to higher education opportu-

Face Arrest In S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Two Pretoria businessmen may be arrested if they return to South Africa before their scheduled trial in Charlotte, N.C., in October on charges of smuggling 912 pounds of marijuana into the United States.

"If either of those two men sets foot in South Africa, the Americans most probably would not get them back from us," said Koen van Tonder, chief of South Africa's police drug squad.

Vor. Tonder declined Thursday to specify what might be done with the men, Nicolaas Heyns and Keith Foster. "He said publicity might 'surely give the two a clear indication of our intentions, and we don't want this.'"

The two were released on bonds of $30,000 each last Tuesday in Charlotte. American authorities gave them permission to travel to South Africa provided they return to Charlotte for the trial.

Heyns told newsmen in Charlotte that they planned to return to South Africa. But it was not known whether he was aware of possible arrest in his home country.

Two men from Myrtle Beach also are charged with participating in the alleged smuggling of the marijuana from South Africa.

New Outdoor Drama Opens

SNOW CAMP, N. C. (AP)—"Sword of Peace," born of a four-year community effort and now North Carolina's newest outdoor drama, opened Thursday night to a capacity audience.

"The miracle is that we're even opening at all," said Jim Toland, general manager of the drama which will be staged Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights through August in an 850-seat amphitheater constructed by citizens of this tiny Alamance County community at the crossroads of nowhere.

Dignitaries on hand for the premiere included Gov. Jim Holshouser, former Gov. Bob Scott, of Alamance County, and Rep. L. Richardson Preyer, D-N. C., from Greensboro.

The play depicts the area's Quaker ancestors and the battle with their consciences over taking up arms in the American Revolution or holding to their firm belief in nonviolence.

SALES OF METERED WATER INCREASES
NEW YORK (AP) — By 1995, every person in the U.S. will be buying metered water, predicts Rockwell International Corp., largest producer of domestic water meters in the nation. Currently, there are 40 million domestic water meters in use. One meter serves four people, on the average.

Find No Conspiracy Evidence

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The Justice Department said Thursday there is no evidence of a conspiracy in last Sunday's shooting death of Mrs. Alberta King, but Hosea Williams said he is unconvinced.

Williams is president of the Atlanta chapter of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

Meanwhile, Mrs. King's family spent a quiet Fourth of July reading some of the hundreds of telegrams which have poured in from around the world expressing sympathy.

In Washington, Deputy Asst. Atty. Gen. K. William O'Connor said he has asked the FBI to call off an investigation of a possible conspiracy, saying "the evidence did not support any concept of conspiracy."

Marcus Wayne Chenault, 23, of Dayton, Ohio, has been charged with killing 69-year-old deacon Edward Boykin and Mrs. King, 70, mother of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., in a shooting spree at Ebenezer Baptist Church in Atlanta.

"There isn't any group of consequence with which Mr. Chenault is associated other than a very small religious organization in Winchester, Ky. It's a group of four or five people which has no bearing on this case," O'Connor said.

Williams said Thursday that although he disagreed with the Justice Department's decision, he was not surprised.

"They've done the same thing before," he said, mentioning rulings on the assassinations of John and Robert Kennedy.

"And I'll bet my life that (James Earl) Ray, if he did pull the trigger, was not acting alone when he shot Dr. King," Williams said.

Referring to Chenault, he said, "I certainly don't think this gentleman acted alone. I think there is an effort to stop the movement, to wipe it out and bring an end to those who openly oppose our present system."

Williams said he was in the Atlanta jail from an arrest during a protest march when Chenault was brought in.

SCLC President Ralph David Abernathy was also present when Chenault told them, "You all just keep those reverends in front of your names: the boys will get all of you," Williams quoted Chenault as saying.

Mrs. King was gunned down Sunday as she played the organ in her husband's church.

Martin Luther King Sr. was holding up well Thursday and said he plans to deliver the sermon this Sunday in his church, a family spokesman said.

A constant stream of friends filled his ranch-style red brick home Thursday, as well-wishers continued to mourn the family's latest tragedy.

Down Old Regimentation Road

It is becoming increasingly clear that our society is headed straight down Regimentation Road, and nobody seems to give a hoot because that's obviously what Americans want.

Every time we (and that includes you-all) elect lawmakers at any given level, our lawmakers appoint law-givers otherwise known as Commissions to improve our quality of life. Over a period of several lifetimes, we're knee-deep . . . hip-deep, no, neck-deep in commissions that have to justify their existence or forever meet the paymaster with an apologetic air.

Our indignation over commission-creating is no sudden thing. It has been smoldering for years, and only was fanned into a roaring, all-consuming and all-inclusive flame of pure outrage by the U. S. Consumer Product Safety Commission's bicycle safety standards.

The "standards" insult every bicycle-maker and bicycle-buyer by incorporating well-known safety-factors as though they had been just discovered. Lights and reflectors for night-bikers are already required by communities; sturdy frames and adequate brakes have long been part and parcel of consumer-demand; and so are round, durable wheels and chain guards.

And, Great Day In The Morning! The "standards" require operating and maintenance instructions, as well as a label reading "Meets U. S.

Consumer Product Safety Commission Safety Regulations for Bicycles". It is surprising no mention was made of requiring handlebars on each product . . . somehow that was overlooked.

Just wait. The next regulation is going to require dull tines on table forks and non-slip handles. The width and length will be prescribed by law, and each fork must have a "label". Hogwash!

Anti-Climax To Juan Peron's Stormy Career

The death of Juan Peron ends an era in Argentina.

His final return to the South American country and election as president was an anti-climax to his career.

Peron seized power in 1943 and led a group of army officers with pro-Axis leanings which made him decidedly unpopular in North America, then locked in combat with the Axis powers.

A military coup toppled Peron and he spent 18 years in exile. His popularity continued, however, and when he returned to Argentina he was re-elected to office. By then it was too late to regain his iron control of the nation. He was too old and too sick and death overtook him this week.

It all leaves the immediate political future of Argentina unclear.

More Called To Advisory Roles

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—More North Carolina citizens will be called on to serve their state as advisors than have in the past as governmental reorganization continues.

An example is found in the Department of Natural and Economic Resources which is just entering into a year-long period of change following approval by the General Assembly of a plan for reorganization.

Perhaps the most significant shift will be in terms of citizen membership on the various commissions, councils, and committees which oversee the numerous activities of Natural and Economic Resources.

Overall supervision will come from the Board of Natural and Economic Resources, which in some ways replaces the old Conservation and Development Board, but is much broader in scope.

Cut Lines
At the heart of the new board's responsibility is a coordinating forum to keep tabs on running situations in which problems of development, planning, programs, and environmental impact cut across the bureaucratic lines of the department.

This broad outlook, state officials hope, will provide an open forum to consider all the aspects of where ought an industry of major land development project locate, what will be the impact on a community and what will a community have to do to provide supports, what will the environmental impact of development be, and so on.

That board will be made up of 25 members. Secretary James E. Harrington will serve as chairman. Ten members will be appointed by the governor. The other 14 will consist of the chairman and one member from each of seven commissions operating in various areas of Natural and Economic Resources.

In each commission, membership will be structured by statute to provide what the Legislature hopes will be a cross-section of people knowledgeable and interested in the various areas of activity.

This is the first time that the law will dictate the kinds of people named to the government boards. In the Environmental Management Commission, for instance, there must be a physician, a board of health professional, someone from agriculture, an engineer, a fisherman, a ground water expert, representatives of municipal government.

In Marine Fisheries, there must be a commercial and a sports fisherman, an ecologist, a coastal land developer, a seafood processor, etc.

Varying Backgrounds
In each case, Harrington noted, the law requires a makeup of different backgrounds, and "that's an improvement, especially where you have regulatory functions."

Harrington said he is deliberately outlining important functions for the commissions, and the host of smaller councils and committees, so that members will have a sense of participating.

"We have to give them some strong responsibility, and where that is not provided by law, we are providing it by department regulation.

"Otherwise, how would we get the qualified people . . . we have to give them responsibility sufficient to interest and attract people qualified to serve, otherwise, who would want to come up here to Raleigh one day a month and listen to a lot of talk . . . why bother, it's not worth the pay."

An example of the move in that direction, he said, will be a regulation giving the Parks and Recreation Council authority to name the state parks.

In addition to the board and the commissions outlined, there are councils operating in specific areas such as forestry, parks and recreation, community and economic development, earth resources, the state zoo, air and water quality, water safety, commercial and sports fisheries.

Soviet Uneasy Over President

By ROWLANDEVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

MOSCOW—Permeating every aspect of the murky summit meeting here is deep Soviet uncertainty over the future of President Nixon, the central topic of conversation by everyone here—except Mr. Nixon and the Soviet leaders themselves.

The President's calculated and self-serving efforts to enshrine detente as a special Nixon creation—its future coexistent with his own—has both embarrassed and angered his Soviet hosts. A leading Western analyst called it "outrageous."

Indeed, the real reason for the extraordinary change in the official translation of Mr. Nixon's celebrated toast to Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev at the state dinner last week, which credited detente to his "close personal relationship" with Brezhnev, was that it appalled and offended Brezhnev himself. It appeared to elevate Brezhnev to heights unacceptable to the Communist party hierarchy.

Although Brezhnev is now at the peak of his personal prestige and power, the cult of the individual went out with Nikita Khrushchev. Far more important, however, is the fact that detente became an object of highest Soviet policy not by any Brezhnev whim but by decree of the 24th Party Congress in April 1971.

The translation changed Mr. Nixon's phrase "close personal relationship" with Brezhnev to "relations between us." As one well-informed Soviet expert told us: "We have never based any foreign policy ever on the claim of a personal relationship and we do not intend to start now."

No word of this Soviet displeasure was allowed to sift through to Mr. Nixon. Indeed, every public pronouncement uttered by Soviet leaders here is carefully screened to avoid any semblance of veiled criticism of the President. That is a measure of the delicacy with which the Kremlin has approached its 1974 negotiating sessions with a President who is here today—but may be gone tomorrow.

Yet, beneath this placid surface, the party's ruling establishment is asking critical questions about Richard M. Nixon and the future of detente. For example, it is felt that since Mr. Nixon's 1972 pledge for vast U.S. trade credits to the Soviet Union, and his promise to extend tariff equality to Moscow, are still unfulfilled because of congressional resistance, he should have brought a congressional delegation with him to the summit. But in fact, the President was not about to share any summit glory with the Democratic Congress.

More important, it is now being widely but privately said that Mr. Nixon should have explained the pitfalls of congressional politics before he promised so much in the way of expanded trade two years ago. Although no word of Communist party disenchantment has seeped into the tightly controlled party press about the abysmal failure of the U.S. to deliver on those Nixon promises, there is profound regret within the top leadership. That regret could boomerang on Brezhnev if the trade stalemate continues much longer.

Moreover, a feeling of unease is beginning to permeate high party levels about the continuing instability of the American government, including published reports in the American press about dissension between Mr. Nixon and his Secretary of State. Kissinger is regarded here as critically important to the process of detente.

The attack on Kissinger by liberal Democrats and "other powerful elements" in Washington, in the words of one theoretician here, is beyond comprehension in this country of monolithic bureaucratic solidarity. Coupled with the President's failure to speak out for Kissinger, this both disturbs and distracts Soviet leaders.

None of this means that detente has been weakened as fundamental Soviet policy. To the contrary, the mere fact that the leadership here is treating this third summit with exquisite delicacy and making so obvious a public effort to ignore Mr. Nixon's vulnerability points the other way: Detente is still perceived as vital to Soviet interests stretching far beyond the end of Richard Nixon's presidency.

But the mood is uneasy, the atmosphere murky and the accomplishments meager. As

Need More Potentates

PARIS—"There's your problem," said Francois as an Arab sheik walked by the bar at the Hotel George V.

We were talking about the economy in Europe, and Francois was trying to explain it to me.

"You mean there are too many Arab sheiks?" I asked him.

"No, I mean there are not enough sheiks—oil sheiks to be specific. This shortage of Arab potentates is killing everyone."

"How's that?"

"It's called recycling. When you Americans once had money, you came by the millions to Europe and spent it here. When you ran out of money and the Japanese had it all, they came here to spend it. We always complained about tourists, but it was one of the best ways to keep the money in circulation."

"Now," said Francois sadly, "the Arabs have all the money and there are not enough of them to spread it around."

"I thought there were a lot of Arabs in the world," I said.

"There are," replied Francois, "but they are not the right kind. Only a few of them have any of the oil money. The king of Saudi Arabia, for example, who must have made $21 billion on oil this year, has about 132 sons and nephews. That means each son or nephew would have to spend $160 million for the rest of us to get even."

"That would be tough to do," I admitted.

"Most of the oil sheiks leave their wives at home, so you don't get any business at Dior, Balenciaga or Givenchy. They don't buy any art, and they're not known for their wine consumption. What can they spend their money on?"

"Post cards?" "Exactly. Even if they ate at Maxim's twice a day, they wouldn't be able to use up all the money that's rolling in. The other oil sheikdoms are no better. I would say at the maximum there are about 1,000 Arab families who are responsible for recycling $40 billion a year. There is no way they can do it."

"What's the answer, Francois?"

"The oil kingdoms have to produce more Arabs. We have to start a population explosion program in Saudi Arabia, Abu Dabi, Bahrain and Kuwait so the royal families will give birth to more princes."

"Won't that take time?" I asked.

"Maybe, but if they start now at least we'll have a change in the '80s when our oil bill will be somewhere around $100 billion."

Other Editors Say Budget Reform?

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

The need for congressional budget reform is so obvious that Sen. Sam Ervin considers the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974 one of the most important pieces of legislation he has ever worked on. It was passed last week by unanimous vote of the Senate.

The Joint Study Committee on Budget Control began its work on the problem before legislation was even introduced. To a large extent, then, the new act is the outgrowth of the committee's work. By the same token, the Committees on Government Operations and Rules and Administration in the Senate have done significant work in the formulation of the bill which passed the Senate last March.

There were a host of issues to resolve, the most important of which were the type of congressional budget to create, the timetable for the congressional budget process, the manner in which authorization bills are to be handled in the future, the nature of the annual budget resolutions, and the method by which the congressional budget actions are to be reconciled before the start of each fiscal year. In Ervin's opinion, these issues have been resolved.

For example, the highly controversial issue of impoundment of appropriated funds by the President is dealt with by a compromise. The impoundment title—Title X of the new act—is based on the assumption that the President has no power under the Constitution to impound lawfully appropriated funds in the absence of a delegation of such authority by Congress.

However, it recognizes that there are indeed times when the proper exercise of the executive function might make the deferral or rescission of budget authority the best public authority. In order to meet these specific situations, the title deals with various types of executive actions and places restrictions on each.

The Tar Heel senior senator believes the congressional budget procedures in the new act are workable. They constitute the first major reform of the method of authorizing and appropriating funds in more than half a century. And while the new act does not guarantee fiscal responsibility, it does make that goal at least attainable.

NEW YORK (AP) — With almost the same automated response that allows its new SX70 camera to produce a color picture right before your eyes, the stock of Polaroid Corp. declined more than 30 per cent in one day this week.

The loss was predictable. Figuratively speaking, the events of Tuesday were set in motion when the shutter was snapped by a company announcement Monday.

Late that day Polaroid announced that its net income for the second quarter of the year would be about 8 cents a share, compared with 26 cents a share in the comparable quarter a year earlier.

Such news travels fast. Polaroid is of particular interest to the big institutions. These pensions and mutual funds, bank trusts, insurance companies and the like, have huge investments in Polaroid, which is considered a glamour stock, an action stock.

That so many institutions should choose Polaroid is no mystery. They think alike. They also know to a great extent what each institution holds. And since they know the thinking process also, they have an excellent understanding of what their friendly competitors are likely to do.

They knew exactly the reception that the Polaroid statement would receive. It practically flashed a neon "sell" sign over Wall Street, and so began the scramble to unload before the other guy.

So heavy was the influx of sell orders that trading in Polaroid couldn't begin until nearly 12:30 Tuesday afternoon. By the close of

A Vast Office Awaits

By MARGARET GENTRY

WASHINGTON (AP)—After 21 years of planning and construction, the FBI is preparing to move in September to a gigantic and costly new building towering over a full block of Pennsylvania Avenue.

The moving itself may take as long as eight months, FBI officials said.

When the transition is complete, the FBI's vast headquarters operations will be housed in one building for the first time and the building itself will become Washington's biggest monument to the man who dominated the agency for four decades, the late J. Edgar Hoover.

Named for Hoover after his death, the building was authorized by Congress in 1962, but it took another six years before construction began.

Sprawled halfway between the White House and the Capitol, the sand-colored concrete structure sits across the avenue from the FBI's parent agency, the Justice Department.

FBI executives and much of the headquarters staff currently use offices in the Justice Department building. But computer systems, the fingerprint division and some other operations are in eight buildings scattered around Washington.

Currently, the FBI must move hundreds of records from one location to another daily. The records, encased in locked metal boxes, are shuttled under guard in vans.

Thomas Jenkins, deputy associate FBI director in charge of administration, said no files have been lost or stolen in the shuttle service, "but you always run that chance the more you have to move them."

Jenkins said the new quarters will enable the FBI to increase its daily tourist capacity from 3,500 to 5,000.

The FBI tour is a popular attraction for Washington visitors, especially in the summer, when long waiting lines often form.

"We feel bad when we have to cut them off out there on 10th Street and they've come all the way from Seattle," he said.

Jenkins and Assistant Director Eugene Walsh said the structure's cost amounts to $126 million, more than double that first estimated by Congress a dozen years ago.

Constructed in one 11-story section and another seven-story section, the building will accommodate about 7,400 employees and contains underground parking for about 500. The structure surrounds a landscaped open courtyard with a fountain.

It wasn't the first time a glamour stock suddenly was stripped of its cosmetic allure. Numerous instances of kneejerk institutional activity can be found over the past seven or eight years.

The fact is that trading activity on some days now is 70 per cent by institutions. The individual investor, so necessary to provide the variety of opinion that keeps prices from lurching, is almost out of the market.

Cadet Plans To Defend
His Secret Marriage

LEXINGTON, Mass. (AP) — Donald M. Boyd goes before a board of officers at West Point, N.Y., today in his attempt to graduate from the U.S. Military Academy despite being married while enrolled there.

Boyd, 23, from Lexington, was married secretly in his junior year at the service academy. The marriage was revealed in an anonymous letter to his superiors two weeks before he was to graduate from West Point last month.

Boyd was barred from receiving his diploma and commission as a second lieutenant. West Point officials said he was dismissed not because he married but because he violated the academy's honor code by lying about his marital status.

"But I never lied," Boyd said. "I never said anything until I was asked, and then I admitted it."

Boyd has filed suit in U.S. District Court in New York, saying the West Point regulation forbidding marriage is unconstitutional because it denies him a fundamental right. His attorney, Steven Hyman, was successful last year in having a marriage ban at the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N.Y., declared unconstitutional.

"I realized that the rule existed, but I felt all along that it was unconstitutional," Boyd said. "I still performed to a high level of excellence. Being married had nothing to do with my qualifications as an Army officer."

"Why bow my head now and say 'I was a bad boy. I got married.' What kind of man would do that?"

His 21-year-old wife, Jodi, said, "He probably did better after he was married. An officer is supposed to be a responsible human being. Don actually took on more responsibility by getting married. Many of the cadets there never learn to think for themselves."

The young couple has an 11-month-old daughter, Christin.

The Boyd family lives in a house in Lexington.

Gas Dealers
Are Happier

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Last winter, gasoline station owners were angry and frightened at what the energy crisis might do to their business. Now they are enjoying shorter hours and higher profits.

One of them, Dan Queen of Charlotte, says that right now the service station business is the best it's ever been.

Dealers in the Carolinas say three reasons are contributing to their higher profit margins.

1. The Nixon administration has allowed dealers to tack three cents more profit onto the price of each gallon of gasoline.

2. Shorter hours, a necessity during the crisis, have continued. Most dealers have come to enjoy nights and weekends with their families. And they have come to realize that shorter hours mean lower overhead.

3. And promotional gimmicks, such as trading stamps and free drinking glasses, that the oil companies used to push on the dealers, are a thing of the past. Such gimmicks used to cost dealers up to a penny a gallon.

The average service station in North Carolina sells about 25,000 gallons of gasoline a month. So the increase of three cents a gallon means added profits of $9,000 a year.

Experiments Begun By
Salyut 3 Cosmonauts

MOSCOW (AP) — Two Soviet cosmonauts began carrying out experiments today inside the Salyut 3 space station after successfully docking their Soyuz capsule to the orbiting laboratory.

The Soviet news agency said the mission commander, Col. Pavel Popovich, and his flight engineer, Lt. Col. Yuri Artyukhin, took over the controls aboard Soyuz 14 for the last 325 feet to the linkup with the 18-ton Salyut. The earlier part of the approach was controlled from the ground.

The exact time of docking was not revealed, but Tass said it occurred today. There was no indication how long the two men would stay aboard the space station or when they would return to earth.

Salyut was launched on June 25, and the cosmonauts were sent up from the Baikonur space center in Kazakhstan Wednesday night in an effort to carry out the Soviet Union's first wholly successful operation involving a manned space station. The 1971 flight of Salyut 1 ended in disaster when its three crewmen were killed on the trip back to earth. The second Salyut was sent into orbit in 1973, but no crew was put aboard, and the station apparently broke up.

Tass said Popovich and Artyukhin, both 44, were feeling well and had begun to carry out their program of experiments aboard the station.

According to Tass, the work program includes studies of the earth's surface, the atmosphere, outer space, the effect of space flight on the cosmonauts and testing of the space station's "improved design and on-board systems and equipment."

The cosmonauts also are checking on the performance of the Soyuz spacecraft, which is to link up with a U.S. Apollo spaceship in the joint Soviet-American mission in July 1975. The last Soyuz mission was last December, when two cosmonauts orbited the earth for eight days in Soyuz 13.

An American crew for the joint mission now is training at the cosmonaut center near Moscow, and a spokesman for the group, Jack Reilly, reported about noon Thursday he had been told the Soyuz-Salyut link-up had been accomplished. Later in the day he said the Russians had informed him of the launching of the cosmonauts, not the docking. He said he could not explain the mixup.

Holiday Traffic
Toll Rises To 8

By The Associated Press

Two Robeson County teenagers were run over and killed early today while lying in a road to bring North Carolina's July 4 holiday weekend traffic toll to eight.

The deaths pushed the state's traffic toll for the year to 698 compared with 917 in the same period of last year.

The Highway Patrol said two 16-year-old youths, Kenneth Hardin and Frankie Lane Locklear, both of Rt. 1, Pembroke, were killed while lying in a rural road six miles west of Pembroke.

One person was killed and two others were seriously injured when a car from Plainview, Tex., ran off Interstate 40 at Kernersville early today. Identities of the victims were not released immediately.

A 29-year-old Erwin man, Ralph Adair Rea, was killed when his car ran off a street and hit a utility pole at Erwin.

A head-on collision on a rural road six miles west of Selma killed Alonzo Harper Jr., 61, of Rt. 2, Clayton.

Three other deaths had been reported previously.

Inflation Drains
Church Wealth

YORK, England (AP) — Inflation is draining away the wealth of the Church of England, but this enforced poverty may lead to spiritual enrichment, the next Archbishop of Canterbury said today.

Dr. Donald Coggan, the present Archbishop of York who succeeds Dr. Michael Ramsey in November as spiritual leader of the church and of the worldwide Anglican Communion, cited a newspaper editorial that said Britain is facing an "inflationary disaster."

"These are grave and weighty words, and we neglect them at our peril," he told the General Synod of the church at the opening of its summer session.

"That the church in the coming years will be stripped of much of its possessions through the exigencies of the economic situation is almost certain. But must this be regarded as an unmitigated disaster?"

"Could it not be a case of God stripping His church for action? May it not be a means of revelation, a call to hear what the spirit is saying to the churches?"

The archbishop decried selfishness, the lack of a sense of vocation in many jobs and "an educational system which overdevelops the acquisitive and competitive instinct, rather than eliciting the wide variety of gifts which can be found in any given classroom full of children."

A number of churches in England have had to sell their gold and silver plate in recent months, both to maintain their parish work and the church buildings. The treasures are legacies and selling them has caused much controversy.

Some clergymen are agitating publicly for sizable increases in their low salaries. The financial officials of the church say the pay can be raised only by the laity digging deeper into their pockets for their parish priests.

Slow Smoker

CHAPEL HILL (AP)—A Chapel Hill doctor kept his pipe lit for 70 minutes Thursday to claim first place in the fifth annual North Carolina Pipe Smoking contest.

Eric Wuldsburg, this year's winner, was four minutes short of the state record of 74 minutes set last year. The world record for pipe smoking, set in Finland, is four hours and seven minutes.

Contestants must keep 3.3 grams of tobacco alight for as long as possible with two matches. Both matches must be used within the first five minutes of the contest.

Wuldsburg's comment on winning: "I feel awfully woozy."

Dissident Ends
Hunger Strike

MOSCOW (AP) - Political dissident Andrei Sakharov said Thursday night he was ending a six-day hunger strike for medical reasons. He said he lost 17.6 pounds and complained of failing eyesight and feeling dizzy after six days of taking only water.

Sakharov began his hunger strike to protest treatment of political prisoners in Russia and to give force to an appeal made to President Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev on the eve of their Moscow summit.

Traded Two Lives
In Water Rescue

RUSKIN, Fla. (AP) — "Two lives were traded for two others," a relative said after two young men drowned while helping save two other kin from deep water during a family Independence Day picnic.

Donald L. Thompkins, 17, and his brother-in-law, Lee Oliver Wilson, 20, drowned while helping to save Donald's brother, Timothy Thompkins, 9, and the Thompkins youths' uncle, James Rose, 27.

The Thompkins family—cousins, uncles, mother, brothers, sisters—gathered Thursday to celebrate the holiday with good food, swimming and games at E.G. Simmons Park near the tiny town of Ruskin, about 15 miles south of Tampa.

"But tonight we're a sad family," said Gloria Thompkins, 19, a sister.

Rose and Timothy had waded too far out in a man-made canal and stepped over a 20-foot dropoff, a sheriff's spokesman said.

Donald Thompkins and Wilson heard the cries for help, dove into the deep water, and gave the other two a shove. In doing so, both men went under.

"We never saw them again," Gloria said. "We can't understand how it happened. They never even came up again. We couldn't help them. None of us knew the water dropped off so deep like that."

"My brother jumped in to save my uncle and little brother and then my brother-in-law jumped in to help. I went in to help. That was all."

Gloria and two other relatives who also went in were able to pull Rose and young Timothy to safety. The bodies of the victims were recovered later by sheriff's divers.

Lt. David Mitchell of the Hillsborough County sheriff's office said the two drowning victims apparently couldn't swim well enough to save themselves.

KEEPING IN STEP

You don't have to be "square" to go to church. The image of dour individuals with "holier-than-thou" attitudes is as old fashioned today as people dancing the minuet.

Take the Adamses, for example. They aren't youngsters, to be sure, but they are very much in step with the times, and their home is a haven for teenagers. Mr. Adams is a lawyer, who works with kids who have been in trouble. Mrs. Adams is on the local school committee and also helps the Girl Scouts.

The Adamses like to walk to church each Sunday and to discuss the sermon on the way home. Their minister is "with it" too—he strives to counsel his parishioners on the dilemmas that confront Christians today.

The Adamses, their minister, their church—all a part of today. Are you?

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market slipped quietly lower today in extremely slow holiday weekend trading today. First-hour turnover on the New York Stock Exchange was the lightest in more than 2½ years as many investors took an extended Independence Day holiday.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 3.21 at 789.66, a little more than a point above the three-year closing low of 788.31 it reached last Dec. 5.

Losers led gainers by 3-to-2 on the Big Board. Adding to the post-July 4 lull was the rapid spread of another quarter-point increase in banks' prime lending rate, to a record 12 per cent.

The increase was begun by a few banks on Wednesday, and by late this morning most major banks across the country had joined in it.

Analysts said there was still no evidence of a letup in the interest-rate pressures that have plagued the stock market since early spring.

Polaroid, up ½ at 24½, was the Big Board volume leader again today. Earlier this week the issue fell sharply after the company projected sharply lower second-quarter earnings.

Golds lost ground in the wake of Thursday's slide in bullion prices, which hit a five-month low in world markets before rallying slightly today.

ASA Ltd., was down ¾ at 76, Homestake lost a point to 38½, and Dome Mines slipped ¼ to 45½.

The NYSE's 11 a.m. composite index of about 1,500 common stocks stood at 43.68, down .19.

At the American Stock Exchange, Marinduque Mining B was the most-active issue, up ½ at 37½. The Amex market-value index was down .23 at 76.50.

Giant Pizza Had Buyers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — They came, they bought, they ate and in two hours what was billed as the world's largest pizza was no more.

About 200 July 4 revelers attacked the monster pizza, which measured 30 feet, 10 inches across. It consisted of 471 pounds of dough, 221.9 pounds of tomato sauce, 290.5 pounds of cheese and 75.1 pounds of pepperoni.

It yielded about 6,000 normal-sized slices that were sold for 40 cents each. That adds up to $2,400. Sponsors said they hoped to show a net profit of about $2,100 for the Clintonville Residents Association, a north-side Columbus neighborhood group.

Nine local pizza parlors put the pizza together with military precision.

The first batch went into the oven at 12:10 p.m. By 1 p.m. it was being assembled on a bandstand-like platform at Clintonville Park. Alcohol heaters kept the creation warm.

The pizza makers proclaimed it the "world's largest pizza," according to the Guinness Book of World Records.

Kissinger Still Travels

PARIS (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger briefed France's president at breakfast today on President Nixon's summit talks in Moscow, then rushed to Orly Airport to fly to Rome for talks with Italian President Giuseppe Leone and Pope Paul VI.

"We discussed international relations as well as Franco-American relations and relations between the United States and Europe in a very friendly, constructive, open and warm atmosphere," Kissinger said after his 80-minute session with President Valery Giscard d'Estaing at the Elysee Palace. He met Thursday evening with Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues.

Kissinger is touring West European capitals to tell America's allies what transpired at the Moscow summit and to assure them Nixon made no secret agreements with the Soviet Union.

Charge Driver In Collision

Nan Boyer Goodwin of Raleigh was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 4:20 p.m. collision yesterday at the intersection of Tenth and Elm Streets.

Police said the Goodwin car collided with a vehicle driven by Peggy Ann Youngblood of Albemarle, causing an estimated $1,000 damage to the Youngblood car and about $800 damage to the Goodwin vehicle. No injuries were reported.

NEW YORK (AP) — The finances of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey's 1968 and 1972 presidential campaigns are under investigation by special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski, according to CBS television.

The network also reported Thursday that sources in Jaworski's office said investigators were concentrating on contributions to the Minnesota Democrat from figures in the dairy industry.

A Senate Watergate committee report has said Humphrey got $200,000 from the same dairy sources who contributed to President Nixon's re-election campaign. Humphrey expressed the belief that he had not done anything wrong.

In an interview at his Waverly, Minn., home Humphrey told CBS he lived in Wright County, the largest dairy county in the nation.

"For one to say that the contribution in the dairy cooperative to Hubert Humphrey was buying a bill or a vote would be the same thing as saying a contribution in Texas from an independent oil company was buying a vote," said Humphrey.

Humphrey also denied reports that he accepted $50,000 in cash from Howard Hughes in exchange for helping the billionaire industrialist halt underground nuclear testing in Nevada, where Hughes has extensive holdings.

"Mr. Hughes' man, Mr. Maheu, did present the case to me," Humphrey said. "I sent it to the Atomic Energy Commission. The AEC ruled against it and that was the last of it."

Robert A. Maheu formerly headed the Nevada operations owned by Hughes.

Humphrey said charges of other corporate contributions also were being investigated.

Palestinian Weapons Request Meets Veto

By The Associated Press
The Lebanese government vetoed a Palestinian request to the Arab League for $20 million worth of anti-aircraft missiles and other heavy weapons to protect refugee camps in Lebanon against Israeli air attacks, Beirut newspapers reported today.

The reports said Premier Ta'ieedien Solh told the emergency meeting of the 21-nation league in Cairo Wednesday and Thursday that any defense system contributed by the other Arab states would have to be placed outside the camps and put under control of the Lebanese army.

The Lebanese delegation countered with a $1 billion armament plan, the papers reported.

Mahmoud Riad, the league's secretary-general, announced Thursday night that the Cairo meeting adopted resolutions "capable of confronting the situation in Lebanon."

But the Beirut papers said the dispute between the Lebanese government and the Palestinian guerrilla leaders forced the meeting to postpone a decision on any concrete action until an Arab summit meeting in Morocco in September.

The Palestinian guerrillas completely control the refugee camps in Lebanon under an agreement reached with the government after civil war in 1969 between the guerrillas and the Lebanese army.

Many Lebanese complain that this has resulted in the establishment of "states within a state," and tension between the Palestinians and the Lebanese often is high.

Riad said the Arab League meeting rejected the Palestinians' call for a renewal of the oil embargo against the United States.

He declined to give details of what financial, political and military support the resolutions promised but said they were "aimed at reaffirming Arab solidarity with Lebanon and defending its lands and national sovereignty and consolidating its positions against Israeli aggression."

Solh said his government was satisfied with the outcome. But Zuhair Mohsen, the Palestine Liberation Organization's representative, was skeptical.

"Arab League countries have adopted thousands of resolutions," he commented to newsmen. "What matters is their implementation. So let us wait and see."

Elsewhere: President Hafez Assad of Syria said his government and

"and properly should."

Asked about his donation to his 1972 campaign of $110,000 of his own money that was held in a blind trust, he said:

"I felt when I gave my own money I was doing something that was a sacrifice and so help me, I've really been in a kind of tizzy about it. I'd never believe that anybody would be criticized for giving his own money to his own campaign, except possibly by your wife."

Managing the trust was Dwayne Andreas, a Minneapolis financier and close friend of Humphrey who goes on trial next week on charges related to alleged illegal contributions to the Minnesota Senator's 1968 campaign.

The government has alleged that Andreas, board chairman of First Interoceanic Corp., contributed $100,000 in Humphrey's behalf to four Illinois organizations through the firm.

Driver Charge Dirty Tricks

By F.T. MacFEELY
Associated Press Writer
DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — David Pearson admits he needed a trick to win the Firecracker 400 stock car race for the third straight time Thursday.

Richard Petty called it a dirty trick.

Pearson, 39, the gray fox of racing, and Petty, 37, the king to NASCAR fans, are both million-dollar career winners and respected for their courtesy and concern for safety.

But each accused the other of unsportsmanlike conduct as they jockeyed through the last of 160 laps around the 2.5-mile Daytona International Speedway.

Passing the grandstands—filled with a record crowd of 65,000—going into the final lap, Pearson suddenly cut the throttle of his Mercury, with Petty's Dodge right on his rear bumper.

"I never thought he'd let off that quickly with somebody so close behind," Petty fumed. "I had to let off. Otherwise I couldn't have turned the steering wheel fast enough to miss him."

Pearson complained that Petty tried to drive him into the pits in a sprint to the finish line off the final turn.

"I gave him a lane," countered Petty, not mentioning that it was the asphalt track apron he left open.

Pearson, using the familiar slingshot technique off the high bank, managed to cross the finish line a little more than one-half car length in front and $18,000 richer. Petty had to settle for $10,925 and second place for the fourth straight year.

Although it was a two-car race on the last lap, Buddy Baker in a Ford and Cale Yarborough in a Chevrolet had been contenders to that point. They finished in a dead heat for third, as not even a photo could separate them at the finish. Because of qualifying and equipment money, Baker had the bigger payday of $6,087 to Yarborough's $5,912.

Bobby Allison, taking a one-race ride in Roger Penske's Matador, was one of nine drivers who held the lead at various times and was very much in contention until valve trouble in the last 30 miles dropped him to fifth place for $4,650.

At 138.302 miles per hour, it was the slowest Firecracker 400 ever run.

Indianapolis 500 winner Johnny Rutherford, starting next to last, smacked the outer concrete wall along the west turn when his Chevrolet engine exploded after only seven laps. He was taken the hospital and checked but was uninjured.

SPINOUT—David Sisco of Nashville, Tenn., in car 05 spins out in the second turn Thursday during action in the Firecracker 500 at Daytona Speedway.

He was unhurt and returned to the race. David Pearson took the victory in the annual July 4 event. (AP Wirephoto)

Picket Sign Unusual For 'Horn' To Carry

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

For a number of years now, when the fall season came around, Les Strayhorn looked forward to carrying the football. But right now, he's wondering if he's going to be carrying a picket sign instead.

Strayhorn, who completed his playing time at East Carolina following the 1972 season, signed with the Dallas Cowboys as a free agent. During the 1973 year, he impressed the Dallas coaching staff, and eventually worked his way up to the number two tailback slot behind All-Pro Calvin Hill.

But with the NFL veterans out on strike, Strayhorn isn't quite sure what to expect when he gets to Dallas.

"I was planning to leave last Tuesday," he said, "but it looks like it's going to be this weekend before I get away. I'm going to go down to Dallas and see what the other veterans are doing. I'll talk to them and see what to do."

"But I've got a feeling that this strike is going to last for a while," he added. "It should be interesting. It certainly is a new experience for me."

"The Horn" as he was called while an undergraduate at East Carolina, says that he's had nothing but encouragement from the Dallas management during the past year. "They told me that they expect to play me a whole lot more during the coming year. And I'm really looking forward to starting—when we do start."

Physically, Strayhorn doesn't feel that there is a great deal of difference between collegiate and professional football. "But mentally, there is a lot of difference. The professional offenses and defenses are a whole lot more complex," he said. "They have many more options. They got into a lot more detail in their scouting and in their preparation for the coming games."

As a rookie, Strayhorn went into training camp a little unsure of himself. "I was uneasy around the veterans," he admitted. "But when I got to know them, I realized that they were okay guys. I got a lot of help from Hill and (Walt) Garrison and some of the others."

While he ran behind Hill most of the time, Strayhorn was switched to fullback to run behind Garrison part of the time also. "I had to learn both assignments, and sometimes it got to be a little confusing. I was doing what I was supposed to do at one position while I was running another. It's a lot different than running the two positions in college."

This year, however, Strayhorn expects to spend most of his time in the fullback slot, to polish it. But he's not sure who'll be the number one man. "I don't know Garrison's situation. I presume that he's back with Dallas, but I don't know (about the World Football League). I'm going all out for the spot. But it's tough to assume anything."

Strayhorn said that he had been contacted by the WFL, but showed them no encouragement, and that they soon dropped their attempts to woo him away from Dallas.

This year, two of Strayhorn's former teammates, Carlester Crumpler and Carl Summerell, move from East Carolina into the pro ranks, at Buffalo and New York (Giants) respectively. The Horn has talked with them about their reporting, and given them some pointers.

"Mainly, I told them to do their best at all times. You only have a short time to impress the coaches. If you don't do it when you get the chance, you're usually not around for a second chance," he said.

Strayhorn hopes to see Summerell this year, since Dallas and the Giants play twice, but Buffalo isn't on the schedule. "I think they ought to go on and report," he added. "They've got too much at stake to stay out."

The big back also has talked with Dallas about some of his other former teammates, as pro prospects. "But they (Dallas) have such a fine scouting system, I doubt if I could help them much," he added.

So for the next few weeks, it seems, Strayhorn will join the other veterans waiting outside the training camp of the Cowboys. "We'll be working to keep in shape, I'm sure. I've been working all summer, and I'm sure they have too. We'll all want to be ready to play right away when the strike is over."

"And I look for Dallas to have another good year. We have some losses, but we have some good rookies coming in. I figure I'll have 10 or 11 trying for my spot, so it's going to be interesting," Strayhorn said.

"It was an exciting first year. I can't pick out any moment that stands out, really. It was one very good experience, and I'm looking forward to another big year."

Snow Hill came back to take its second straight 5-0 victory over Greenville's American Legion team last night, to take a come-from-behind series win over the locals.

Greenville had won the opening game of the series for a 1-0 lead in the best-of-three affair. But Snow Hill came back with a 5-0 win on Wednesday, evening things up.

Monte DeRatt tossed the victory for Snow Hill, scattering eight hits. Despite the fact that Greenville got off several threats, they were unable to crack the ice against Snow Hill, and were thus eliminated from further play.

Chris Manning started and got the loss for Greenville, while Wesley Deal and Vic Corey both came on in relief.

Snow Hill got off a threat in the first when Richard Lancaster walked and moved up on an out. Greenville also got a threat in the first, when Al Heath doubled and Griff Garner was hit by a pitch. Robert Brinkley reached on a bunt single, loading the bases, but Macon Moye hit into a fielder's choice that got Heath trying to score. A liner was then turned into a double play to end the threat.

Both teams also threatened in the second, with Jerry Carraway reaching on a two-base error for Snow Hill, and Jerry Griffin singling, stealing second and taking third on Manning's infield hit.

Greenville also had a chance in the third when Heath singled and Garner was again hit by a pitch, but again a double play got Snow Hill out of trouble.

In the fourth, Snow Hill pushed over the first two runs of the game. DeRatt singled and moved up on a sacrifice. Carraway reached on an infield hit and Terry McFatter followed with a triple to center, driving in both DeRatt and Carraway. Snow Hill didn't offer another threat until the seventh, when they pushed over their other three runs. McFatter led off with a walk and was sacrificed up. John McKeel reached on an error, and a hit by Lancaster brought in McFatter. Tommy Herndon singled in McKeel, and moved Lancaster to third. The two worked a double steal, scoring Lancaster with the fifth run.

Snow Hill put men as far as second in the eighth and ninth, but couldn't score again.

Greenville moved Manning as far as second in the fifth when he and Heath walked. Then in the sixth, Moye singled and Keith Jones walked. In the seventh, Mike Belton singled and Garner was hit by a pitch for the third time, putting a man in scoring position again.

Kelly Heath singled and Randy Potter was hit by a pitch in the eighth, and Garner—hit for the fourth time—started the ninth, moving to second on Brinkley's walk.

But after the second, Greenville never got a man past second base, ending their hopes of advancing in the playoffs.

Snow Hill moved into the second round of the playoffs now, facing regular season Area I East winner, Rocky Mount.

Evert Trying For Win Again

WIMBLEDON (AP) — Teen-ager Chris Evert won the women's singles title at the Wimbledon Tennis Championship today by beating Russian Olga Morozova 6-0, 6-4.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Jimmy Connors and amazing Ken Rosewall marched into the men's singles final at Wimbledon today with sizzling displays of tennis.

The 21-year-old Connors, 21, of Belleville, Ill., the No. 3 seed in the tournament, gained his first Wimbledon final by beating unseeded Dick Stockton, 24, of Dallas, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4.

Rosewall, the gritty little 39-year-old Australian, reached his fourth Wimbledon final—he has never won the title—with a 6-8, 4-6, 9-8, 6-1, 6-3 victory over Stan Smith of Sea Pines, S.C., who is coranked with Connors as the top men's player in the United States.

The men's matches were played simultaneously today before a large crowd at the aged tennis complex, and preceded the women's final between Connors' fiancée, Chris Evert, 19, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Olga Morozova of the Soviet Union.

Miss Evert entered her second straight final here with a reputation as the "ice dolly" as she met her "very good friend" and doubles' partner, Mrs. Morozova. Miss Evert lost to Billie Jean King in the final last year.

Mrs. Morozova, 24, the wife of a Moscow electrical engineer, upset both Ms. King and Britain's Virginia Wade to become the first Russian to reach a Wimbledon final. Her name in Russian means "frost" and she too has nerves of ice.

In today's men's semifinals, third-seeded Jimmy Connors of Belleville, Ill., faced unranked Dick Stockton of Dallas and fourth-seeded Stan Smith of Sea Pines, S.C., took on ageless Australian Ken Rosewall, seeded No. 9.

Miss Evert reached the finals with a convincing 6-2, 6-3 victory over Australia's Kerry Melville. Mrs. Morozova had more trouble, coming from behind to beat Miss Wade, 1-6, 7-5, 6-4.

Chris Evert was talking to newsmen when she learned her finals opponent was to be Mrs. Morozova. The Florida girl was clearly disappointed.

"Olga is going to be very tough," Miss Evert said. "She is so consistent and so full of control of herself ..."

Mrs. Morozova returned the compliment, praising Miss Evert as a cool customer "twice over."

She said she had lost to Evert four times this year, "but these matches were on clay. It's easier playing her on grass because the bounce is faster," the Russian added. "But with Chrissie, you have to play the points all the time."

Miss Evert said she met Olga at the French championships in 1973 and "We hit it off immediately. She is quiet and I'm the quiet type. We began practicing together and became very good friends. We play very well together, we complement each other."

Miss Evert and Mrs. Morozova, the top-seeded pair left in the women's doubles, were to play a semifinal match together Friday after they compete for the singles title.

Both losing semifinalists in the ladies singles—Miss Wade and Miss Melville, predicted Chris Evert would take the title.

Others refused to count Mrs. Morozova out. Miss Evert said the Russian has "an American game. She has a good serve and rushes the net and volleys well."

Mrs. Morozova was delighted to be in the final. "I called my husband last night after beating King," she said in flawless English. "He was thrilled. He'd love to come here and see me but it isn't possible. There isn't time to get a visa."

"In Russia everyone thinks of Wimbledon as the world championships and my husband told me everyone was talking about my win over King."

Sports Briefs

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) —

The Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association Thursday named the Johnstown, Penn., Jets of the North American Hockey League as their farm team.

Last season, Saints minor leaguers were assigned to the Sun Coast Suns team at St. Petersburg, Fla., until that club was disbanded midway through the season.

MUNICH (AP) — Pele, the former Brazilian World Cup soccer star, rode through the streets of Munich Thursday in an open carriage drawn by 10 horses, a traditional Bavarian custom for honoring important guests.

Bench Stars Help Cagers

By JOHN R. SKINNER

AP Sports Writer

CAGUAS, Puerto Rico (AP) — Coach Gene Bartow says he feels like he has two John Havliceks on the bench of the U.S. squad which has breezed through its first two games in the World Basketball Championships.

Bartow's super substitutes are 6-foot-11 Joe Meriweather of Southern Illinois and 6-3 guard Luther Burden of the University of Utah. They made their presence felt for the second straight time Thursday night as the Americans trounced Spain 114-71.

Havlicek played the role of relief man in his early years with the professional Boston Celtics before switching to a starting role. And, Bartow says, "Meriweather and Burden are starters—they just don't start."

"In international competition, you just have to have two or three players that come in with strong relief efforts."

Burden pumped in 22 points as he hit eight of 15 field goal shots and all six foul attempts against Spain. Meriweather had nine points and his four rebounds fail to adequately show his worth underneath the basket.

He has been an intimidating defender when in the game.

Lucas scored 25 points to top the U.S. squad against Spain and led a spurt which gave the Americans a 10-2 lead. Spain never threatened. The Spaniards, nearly as big as the Americans, had downed Argentina 96-89 in the opening round.

The U.S. club showed a whopping 41-21 edge in rebounds. And the defense that Bartow praised was responsible for numerous steals and turnovers.

The victory assured the U.S. a spot in the finals which begin Sunday and continue through July 14.

The two top teams in each of three divisions advance into the round-robin finals along with defending champion Yugoslavia and host Puerto Rico.

The U.S. squad plays its final qualifying game tonight against Argentina, which beat the Philippines 111-90 Thursday night. The U.S. beat the same team 135-85 the night before.

The United States is seeking only its second title in seven attempts in this world event. Also assured spots in the finals are the Soviet Union, Cuba and Canada.

Scores Injured In Carowinds Mishap

CHARLOTTE (AP)—At least 41 persons were injured Thursday at the Carowinds theme park near Charlotte when a shuttle tram they were riding struck a steel monorail pillar.

Most of those hurt suffered only minor injuries but a Statesville child, 11-year-old Danette Forsyth, was hospitalized with a possible fracture of the jaw, according to Charlotte Memorial Hospital spokesmen.

The child's father, Richard Forsyth, 34, received a cut on his leg which required stitches and the mother suffered cuts on her knees, according to hospital spokesmen.

The accident occurred shortly after noon in the Carowinds parking lot as the three-unit tram carried an estimated 75 passengers from the parking lot to the entrance.

Officials identified the driver as Jennifer Covington, 16, of Charlotte, a summer worker at the park. She suffered a blow on the head.

At the hospital emergency room, Miss Covington said she was turning the tram when her vision momentarily was blocked by a large sideview mirror.

The monorail which winds through the park was not damaged by the accident and continued to operate.

The bidding:
South 1 NT West Pass North 3 NT East Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♣
The bridge activist takes every finesse in sight in the firm belief that they are fore-ordained to succeed. However, on many hands, a more passive approach to play can earn unexpected rewards.

With a full opening bid opposite his partner's one no trump opening, North did not expect his partner to have any problems collecting nine tricks at no trump. Unfortunately, the North and South hands were mirror distributions, with the result that declarer had no long suit to establish once the opening lead made a break in his combined eight-card holding unlikely.

West led the queen of clubs, and declarer could count eight top tricks. The chances of a 3-2 break in clubs were dimmed by the opening lead, and it appeared that declarer would have to rely on the heart finesse for his contact. But that line had a great disadvantage—declarer could take the heart finesse either way, and he did not relish the idea of risking the contact on his ability to locate a queen. Fortunately, both the North and South hands were loaded with intermediates—tens and nines which, though given no value in the point count, are often the difference between success and failure in a close contact. Declarer decided to put them to full use.

He won the first trick with the ace of clubs, and continued with a club to the king. He did not even mind that East discarded a low heart on the trick. South simply continued with a third round of clubs, allowing West to win the trick as East sluffed a diamond. West cashed his remaining club as East pitched a spade, but he was merely delaying the inevitable. He now had to break a suit for declarer, and South did not mind which—he intended playing for split honors in whichever suit West attacked.

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Friday, July 5, 1974—A won't be driving as planned in an auto rally next week. The prince, cousin of Queen Elizabeth II, has become the first member of Britain's royal family to appear in court.

Prince Michael, 13th in line to the British throne, was fined $120 and ordered not to drive for three months after admitting on Thursday that he had driven his Ferrari at speeds up to 110 miles an hour.

Michael entered his guilty plea by letter, but was ordered by magistrates to appear in court. He did so, and a spokesman for Buckingham Palace said it was the first time a blood relative of Queen Elizabeth II had appeared in the dock.

Popular Guide
For Vestrymen

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of the most popular books for leaders of the Episcopal Church is a 64-page publication, "A Vestryman's Guide," which describes duties of the vestry, explains parish structure, programs, administration, excerpts from canon law and other information on church organization and statistics.

The manual, sponsored by the Episcopal Church Foundation and published by The Seabury Press, official publishing house of the Episcopal Church, is now in its fourth printing. Since its initial publication in 1972, more than 33,000 copies have been placed in the hands of vestrymen and other interested persons in more than 7,000 parish vestries in the United States.
