Nixon May Visit Japan In August

By RICHARD LERNER KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — President Nixon may visit Japan next month to follow up on his trips to the Mideast and the Soviet Union despite his ailing leg and the congressional impeachment proceedings, White House insiders said Saturday.

known that he planned to stop there on the way back from Moscow, but the visit was never officially announced and it ultimately was dropped, without explanation, from his schedule.

As Nixon relaxed at his bayside home, his legal defense team worked in Washington to prepare for Monday's Supreme Court test of the President's right to withhold subpoenaed material and a federal grand jury's authority to name him as an unindicted co-conspirator in the Watergate cover-up.

The White House has refused to say whether Nixon would abide by the high court's rulings and an official said Saturday that the President had not even discussed the case with his attorneys since returning from Moscow.

"The president is maintaining contact with his legal advisers through Gen. Alexander M. Haig and other staff members," reporters were told. "However, he has not talked to any of his lawyers personally."

Nixon also was said to have kept in touch with Henry A. Kissinger by cable while the secretary of state was in Munich, the latest stop on his round of consultations with European leaders on the President's summit talks with Soviet party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev.

No definite date has been set, and a White House spokesman would say only that "his (the President's) travel is not yet set, but he does plan to go to Japan in 1974."

Nixon, who has been resting up after his intensive summit talks in Moscow, stayed out of public view Saturday. Aides said he mixed limited work with relaxation and swimming — on orders from doctors who are trying to reduce the swelling caused by a permanent blood clot in Nixon's left leg.

The President's personal physician, Maj. Gen. Walter Tkach said Nixon risked his life by traveling to the Mideast with the blood clot, since it could have broken free and reached his heart or lungs. Tkach refused Saturday to pinpoint the exact location of the clot or divulge its dimensions, but said it no longer poses a serious danger.

Nixon would be the first President to visit Japan. It is Charged In Cocaine Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty-two persons face charges in connection with a drug-smuggling ring that allegedly brought $32.7 million worth of cocaine into this country from Chile in diplomatic pouches and military aircraft, the Justice Department says.

Sixteen persons, including members of the Chilean air force and Navy, were arrested in Santiago, while six others were arrested in suburban Washington, New York City and Madison, Wis., this week. The Justice Department identified all as "key members" of the ring.

Also charged was Marion R. Brown, a University of Wisconsin professor of agriculture who had worked last year in Chile at the university's Land Tenure Center.

Ambassador Recalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American ambassador to Turkey is being recalled in reaction to a Turkish government decision to allow opium poppy growing.

Officials said William B. Macomber Jr., will return this weekend and will report to Joseph J. Sisco, the acting secretary of state, on Monday.

"We are recalling Ambassador Macomber for consultation to review the situation arising from the July 1 decision of the Turkish government," said State Department spokesman John King.

John R. Bartels Jr., who heads the Drug Enforcement Administration, told NBC news that the consequences of the Turkish action "are really disastrous."

Turn Down By Pathet Lao

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — Rep. G. V. (Sonny) Montgomery (D-Miss) said Saturday Communist Pathet Lao officials turned down his suggestion that neutral teams tour Communist-held areas of Laos to seek information about missing Americans.

Montgomery, chairman of the House Select Committee on U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia, said the Pathet Lao assured him that the only known American prisoner in Indochina, civilian pilot Emmet Kay, would be the first person released when prisoners of war are eventually released.

However the Pathet Lao gave no hint of when Kay might be released. It has accused him of being a war criminal on grounds he was captured after the Laos cease-fire agreement was signed.

Thai Death Toll 25

BANGKOK (UPI) — It should have been a routine parking ticket. But taxi driver Poon Lamlueprasert tried to fight off the policemen and young toughs took up the cry of "police brutality" as they tried to wrest the handcuffed man from his captors.

Tempers flared in the sultry evening heat. Crowds formed to march against the police station where Poon was taken.

On Saturday, four days later, 25 people were dead and close to 200 injured in riots touched off by the incident in front of a crowded Chinatown movie theater.

Holiday Death Tolls

The Fourth of July holiday weekend traffic death toll climbed at the rate of 4.5 deaths an hour Saturday, well below the fatality rate of the past two midsummer holidays.

The National Safety Council projected prior to the holiday period that between 450 and 550 persons might be killed in traffic accidents between 6 p.m. local time Wednesday and midnight Sunday. It was the lowest July 4 holiday estimate in 24 years and the council said reduced speeds on highways made it possible.

By contrast, 760 deaths were reported in traffic accidents during the four-day 1972 July 4 holiday period and 192 were reported over last year's oneday holiday. The hourly death rates averaged 7.2 in 1972 and 6.4 last year.

A United Press International count at 2 p.m. EDT showed 332 deaths in accidents since 6 p.m. Wednesday.

A breakdown of accidental deaths: Traffic 332 Drowning 97 Planes 3 Other 42 Total 474

Forty two of the traffic fatalities were reported in California. Texas counted 23, New York 20, Ohio 15, Michigan 14 and Florida 13.

Secures Pope's Support

By KIM WILLENSON MUNICH (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger flew from Italy to Germany Saturday on his briefing tour of Western allies and U.S. officials said he had secured the support of Pope Paul VI for President Nixon's Moscow summit talks.

Kissinger spent 70 minutes with the Pope in the Vatican Saturday morning before flying to Munich for a combination of work and relaxation.

In Germany, Kissinger joined Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher for a working lunch at a village inn. They continued the briefing on the Moscow summit that began when they met in Duesseldorf earlier this week.

After lunch, they drove to Munich to watch Brazil play Poland to determine third place in the world soccer championship.

Senior U.S. officials on Kissinger's plane said the secretary and Pope Paul talked about Jerusalem and the Moscow summit.

Kissinger found the Pope very supportive and very positive toward President Nixon's summit policy, the officials said.

The Pope handed Kissinger a written memorandum concerning the status of Jerusalem, the officials said. Kissinger lacked time to read it before meeting Genscher in Germany, but hoped to study it over the weekend.

The Pope sent a message of warm personal greetings to President Nixon, the official added.

The Vatican has called for a special status for Jerusalem in any settlement of the Arab-Israeli dispute.

Rock, Not Bullet Hits Escort Car

By DOUGLAS STANGLIN DALLAS (UPI) — A rock kicked up by cars or 92-degree heat shattered a window in a patrol car escorting Vice President Gerald Ford into Dallas Saturday, sparking an immediate — but quickly dented — alert of a sniper's attack.

Ford, in Dallas to dedicate the new World Trade Center, told reporters later that he got an anxious call from President Nixon.

Ford said he learned of the incident while waiting to make his speech, long after the sniper theory had been discounted.

Holdup Error

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The man approached the bank teller, said, "This is a holdup," and demanded $500. The teller, startled, turned over $1,000. Then the one-legged man turned on his metal crutches, hobbled out of the bank and into a nearby bar, called for a taxi and made his getaway.

Cambodian Forces Are Trying To Recapture Old Royal City

By BERT OKULEY PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Cambodian government forces killed nearly 400 insurgent troops in an all-out attempt to recapture the Communist-held former royal capital of Oudong, field officers said.

By nightfall, government forces had not yet taken the 15th-century Cambodian capital 18 miles northwest of Phnom Penh but were inflicting heavy casualties, field reporters said. First reports said the government side suffered four killed and 28 wounded but many more missing in action.

In South Vietnam, the Saigon military command accused the Communists of opening fire on a Mekong Delta wedding party, killing 10 persons and wounding 10 others.

Command spokesman Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien said Communist troops gunned down the civilians with bursts of AK47 rifle fire during a Friday wedding near Tra On in Vinh Long province, 58 miles southwest of Saigon, and then fled. He gave no other details.

Thieves shot and killed an American adviser to a United Nations' team in Saigon's main square at noon Saturday. Police identified the victim as William V. Sausotte of Palo Alto, Calif. Witnesses said two men on a motorcycle snatched Sausotte's briefcase from his hand as he walked in front of Saigon's main post office across busy John F. Kennedy Square.

Sausotte started running after them but one of the riders turned and fired a single .38-caliber pistol shot, hitting the American in the chest. The thieves escaped.

The embattled Cambodian city of Oudong fell to rebel forces last March 18, a bitter psychological defeat for the Phnom Penh government because it came on the anniversary of the ouster of former chief of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

More than 3,000 troops were involved in the battle to recapture Oudong, field reporters said. They said about 1,200 insurgents entrenched in bunkers were holding out despite heavy raids by T28 fighter-bombers and artillery barrages.

Foreign Control Of American Resources Feared By Committee

Man Drowns In Tar River

A Pitt County man died Saturday morning when he apparently fell out of his boat while fishing near Grimesland.

Pitt County Coroner E.W. Harvey said that Furney Laughinghouse, 69, of Rt. 1, Grimesland was fishing in the Tar River near Grimesland when the accident occurred.

Harvey said that Laughinghouse reportedly left his home about 8:30 Saturday morning. His empty boat was spotted about 11 a.m. by another fisherman, James Martin, who said that the boat was empty, with a fishing line hung over a tree limb.

Laughinghouse's body was recovered from the river shortly after rescuers arrived at the scene at 12:30.

Coroner Harvey ruled the death as accidental drowning and investigation into the death is continuing.

By WILLIAM CLAYTON WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House subcommittee expressed fears Saturday that dollar-rich oil producing and other foreign countries might buy control of America's vital national resources and export them.

A report by the subcommittee on foreign economy said that huge sums of money available to foreign investors pose problems of investment in this country which the administration is not confronting.

The report had more questions than recommendations except for urging passage of a proposed foreign investment study act to look further into the problem.

"The future prospect of new direct foreign investment in the United States is unclear," said the report. "Many of the secular factors — size of the U.S. market, desire to secure United States know how and resources, evolution of European multinationals, reduction in the gap for labor costs between the United States and other industrialized nations — should continue to sustain foreign interest in the United States economy.

"On the other hand, the dramatic growth during 1973 may not be repeated because the devaluation of the dollar has been partially reversed and because the stock market may not remain depressed over the long run. Furthermore, the effect of soaring petroleum prices may drastically reduce the foreign exchange available for foreign investment."

Petroleum is the key — the dollars that Americans pay to foreign oil corporations, the study says, adding that current policy is to oppose new restrictions on foreign investment in the United States.

"The hard questions, the ones expressed by various segments of the population, ... the administration's policy fails to answer, either to allay fears or to take action in response to legitimate concerns," the report said.

"For example, what about direct foreign investment in this country's national resources? Is there a danger that foreign interests will gain control over our vital natural resources and export them to our disadvantage, or does U.S. sovereignty over foreign investment in this country adequately protect the national interest?"

Saturday Fatality

Pitt County Coroner E.W. Harvey confirmed a traffic fatality on Highway 43 south last night.

Identity of the victim could not be given at press time pending notification of the next of kin.

The victim was killed when the auto in which he was driving was involved in a collision with another auto carrying three passengers.

The extent of the injuries to passengers in the second auto was not available at press time.

The accident occurred at approximately 7:15 p.m. near Cox's Round-up.

July 4th Triplets

July 4, a day traditionally celebrated with picnics or outings in honor of our nation's independence, took on a special light for two Pitt County residents this year.

For James Richard and Christine Fields Lang, it marked the birth of three new members of their family, born at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

The three new members of the Lang family made their arrival just about the time other citizens were ending their July 4 celebration.

First to be born was a boy, Tony Lafayette at 8:19 p.m., weighing 3 lbs. 15 ozs., second was Sonya Lynette, at 8:23 weighing 4 lbs. 14 ozs. and third was Tanyo Yvette, at 8:33 weighing 5 lbs. 8 one-half ozs.

Midnight Curfew Set For Atlantic Beach

ATLANTIC BEACH, N. C. (UPI) — Mayor Moses Brown ordered a midnight curfew for Atlantic Beach Saturday night after a crowd of teen-agers rampaged through the area early Saturday, hurling rocks and bottles at police before officers from 13 different agencies broke up the disorder, arresting 28 persons.

Police spokesmen said three youths were treated and released at a local hospital for minor injuries and some officers suffered bruises and minor cuts from thrown objects.

Chief of Police Willie W. Moore said the disturbance began about 1 a. m. Saturday when several youths on the boardwalk began hurling rocks and glass bottles at police on foot patrol.

The officers called for help and three police patrol cars and a sheriff's deputy responded, only to be met by a shower of more rocks and bottles that shattered a police car window, Moore said. They called for more aid and officers from the other agencies — from as far away as Craven County — responded.

"After police got organized they began arresting anyone that they saw breaking the law," Moore said.

The 28 arrested were charged with misdemeanor offenses including public drunkenness, failure to disperse, disturbing the peace and disorderly conduct. Most were freed on bail Saturday.

Nine youths were arrested Thursday night following a "streaking" incident. The seaside town has been troubled by disturbances by youths for several years.

The mayor's curfew called for all businesses to be closed by 12:30 a. m. Sunday morning. Places selling beer were to close at 11:30 p.m. Saturday.

Persons on the street after midnight were to be arrested, Brown said.

Damages In Mishaps

Two auto accidents in the city Friday caused extensive damage to three automobiles.

A noon accident Friday resulted in charging Joseph J. Henderson II of Lawson's Trailer Park with failure to reduce his speed in order to avoid an accident between the Henderson auto and a vehicle operated by Thesbia Lomis Byrd of Rt. 8, Box 543, Greenville.

Damage to the Byrd auto was set at $600 while the Henderson auto was damaged to the extent of $400, according to police records.

A second accident in the city involved only one auto but resulted in an estimated $800 damage to the vehicle and extensive damage to a city utility pole.

An auto operated by Clarence E. Roberts of 412 Darden Dr. reportedly swerved off the road and struck a city utility pole.

According to police records, Roberts reported he could not control the auto. No charges were filed.

N.C. SBI Apologizes

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The director of the State Bureau of Investigation (SBI) has apologized to the Raleigh News and Observer after the newspaper discovered two SBI agents posing as press photographers during a demonstration Thursday.

"I'm sorry the thing happened. It's not our policy to do this," said Charles Dunn when questioned by a reporter Friday.

The two agents—identified by Dunn as Hugh Cashion and Bob Smith—posed as News and Observer photographers while taking pictures of demonstrators during a march in Raleigh protesting capital punishment.

"I do and will apologize to the management of The News and Observer and can assure you that it won't happen again," Dunn told the newspaper.

Museum Decision Reaffirmed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Capital Planning Commission has reaffirmed its decision to allow construction of the new state Art Museum at the Polk Youth Center prison camp in suburban West Raleigh.

The action Friday could end a year and a half long struggle by those who supported building the museum in the state government complex in downtown Raleigh.

Proponents of the downtown site could seek an injunction against construction, or the 1975 General Assembly could order the Art Museum Building Commission not to locate the museum at Polk.

Grant For UNC TV

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — The University of North Carolina has announced receipt of a federal grant that will enable the UNC television network to produce color programs at each of its three studios.

The director of the UNC-TV network, Dr. George Bair, said the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare had awarded $499,776 to be matched with $169,092 in state money for the purchase of equipment for color telecasts.

Doctor Seeks Protection

JARVISBURG, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Charles E. Wright, whose clinic serves North Carolina's coastal area from Oregon Inlet to Elizabeth City, has threatened to close his office unless law enforcement officers provide protection from "harassment" by criminals.

Wright's clinic, located on the heavily traveled highway leading to the beaches in the Nags Head area, has been burglarized 16 times and 12 of the break-ins have come in the last five years—the latest two weeks ago. He said he was shot at by a would-be robber last October.

The physician Friday told the sheriffs of Currituck and Dare counties that unless armed guards are provided, "I will be forced to close my office for the practice of medicine in the area."

Counterfeit Perfume

RALEIGH (UPI) — Counterfeit Chanel No. 5 perfume is being sold in North Carolina, Attorney General Robert Morgan said Saturday.

Morgan said the bogus perfume differs in several ways from authentic Chanel No. 5. The tops on authentic bottles are glass, he said, while the phony products have plastic tops. The real bottles also have an inscription on the back denoting the amount of perfume in ounces while the fake has no inscription and the authentic bottles are from a solid mold while the phony is molded in two parts with the adhesive joint clearly visible.

Charges Police Control

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — Cannon Mills Inc. is accused in a suit filed in U.S. Middle District Court of controlling the Kannapolis police department.

The suit, filed by the Textile Workers Union of America (TWU) and Pauline Freeman, a union member, alleges that control of the police department by the firm has worked to violate the rights of union workers trying to organize the firm's employees.

The plaintiffs seek $1 million in punitive damages and an injunction barring control of the police department by the company. No hearing has been set.

Named as defendants were the company, Senior Vice President Fred Wilson; Kannapolis Police Chief Robert Ketchie; Cabarrus County sheriff's department Deputy Darrell Cunningham and Lee Polk, an employee of the sheriff's office.

Tar Heel Woman Tormented As Witch

MICRO, N.C. (AP) — Winnie Watson is 79 years old. All she asks is to live her remaining years in peace.

Instead, her days are filled with the insults of wordless stares. And at night, when the moon hangs over the nearby tobacco fields, the tormentors come.

Sometimes they throw stones and firebombs into the yard of the home where she lives alone.

They hiss "witch" and laugh at her screams of anger and pain. She has become an institution in Micro, a rural community in Johnston County in eastern North Carolina. Children grow into adulthood and move away, remembering the little old woman who walked along the hamlet's streets, wearing men's shoes and overalls, carrying her poke.

But for 10 years she has been subjected to torment. Some say it started when a new school was built a half-mile from her

VA Program Called Shoddy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who is on the Senate appropriations panel, has accused the Veterans Administration of shoddy management of its specialized medical facilities.

In a statement issued Saturday, Proxmire said VA "has demonstrated a distressing lack of control over the proliferation of specialized medical facilities that are superfluous to the needs of our veterans." He said the facilities are under-utilized and over-equipped.

Proxmire, who heads the panel that oversees appropriations for VA, wrote VA Administrator Donald E. Johnson asking a comprehensive outline by July 30 of the agency's plans to re-evaluate some of its more specialized programs.

The Senator cited these examples of poor management: —VA spent $465,000 on a kidney-transplant unit that has resulted in two transplants in three years.

—A VA facility in the Bronx, N.Y., has supervoltage cancer-treatment equipment, costing as much as $500,000 per unit, that is being used at only 30 per cent of capacity.

—VA medical advisory committees in Chicago and New York say 70 to 80 per cent of kidney dialysis patients could be properly treated in less costly facilities and a substantial number of personnel could be eliminated.

Alligator Roundup In Louisiana

CAMERON, LA. (UPI) — Wildlife agents are stalking the swamps of coastal Louisiana, with flashlights, burlap bags and snares to round up 500 alligators for transfer to Arkansas and Mississippi.

The National Audubon Society — working with conservation agencies in Louisiana, Arkansas and Mississippi — began the roundup this week. It should be completed by Aug. 15.

"The alligators to be moved will range in length from 3 to 5 1/2 feet," said a spokesman for the Audubon Society. "Smaller gators might have more difficulty surviving in their new homes and the larger ones might follow their homing tendency and seek to return to their original habitat."

Alligators were declared an endangered species in America seven years ago, but since then new laws and stronger conservation efforts have sparked a comeback. In Louisiana, gators have become so plentiful that an annual hunting season is opened and the state occasionally offers to relocate some of its surplus reptiles to neighboring areas.

Dancer's Defection An Artistic Act

TORONTO (AP) — Mikhail Baryshnikov, the Soviet ballet star who defected a week ago after a Bolshoi Theater performance in Toronto, has described his defection as an artistic, not a political act.

"When I was in Toronto I finally decided that if I let the opportunity of expanding my art in the West slip by, it would haunt me always," the 26-year-old Kirov star told John Fraser of the Globe and Mail in an interview Friday.

"What I have done is called a crime in Russia ... But my life is my art and I realized it would be a greater crime to destroy that."

The dancer left no doubt about his intention to remain free to travel and pursue his career at will throughout the Western world. He said he has no intention of joining the National Ballet of Canada or any other company immediately on a permanent basis.

"No other country in the world will be my home but Russia," he said.

The Soviet Embassy in Ottawa has said there is no question of reprisals against Baryshnikov's father in Riga, Latvia. The dancer expressed relief over the embassy's announcement.

"Going To Hell" Unless Hair Cut

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Parents of an 8-year-old boy who received an unauthorized haircut during church services said Saturday they may take legal action.

Mrs. Shand Tillman, wife of a barber, said her son Tim rode a Highway 70 Baptist Church bus to services last Sunday because of promises of hot dogs and soft drinks.

"Tim was pointed out during the services as having long hair," she said. "I don't think it was too long. It hardly touched his collar."

"They said he was going to hell unless his hair was cut so he went forward during the invitation," she said.

"He told the lady (who cut his hair) that his daddy was going to get mad," Mrs. Tillman said. "She went ahead and cut his hair anyway. She gapped it pretty bad."

Tillman said other boys' hair was also cut and the hem of a girl's dress was taken out during the service.

He said he had talked with the church's pastor, the Rev. Mr. Gene Hobgood.

"He (Hobgood) said it was their policy to cut hair," Tillman said. "I've seen a lot of things in my life but never anything like this."

He said his congregation takes "the Bible's position" on hair length for men and apparel for women.

"The Bible position is that it is a shame unto men to wear long hair," he said. "Women are to wear modest apparel."

Hobgood said he has taken a stand against long hair for men and immodest apparel for women since he became a minister.

"But I didn't start it, the Lord did," he said. "And it works."

Scholarship For ECU Junior Diane Taylor Selected For 1974 Volume

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Eleven Southern college students have been awarded scholarships by the Ralph McGill Scholarship Fund.

Jack Tarver, president of Atlanta Newspapers Inc., called the scholarships a fitting memorial to McGill, late publisher of The Atlanta Constitution.

The fund offers scholarships to students who have completed at least two years of college and who have demonstrated an abiding interest in the news and editorial phase of newspapering.

One of the 11 recipients is Diane Taylor of Goldsboro, a junior and history major at East Carolina University.

Mrs. Mary Rose Stocks of Greenville has been selected to appear in the 1974 edition of Personalities of the South.

This volume, printed annually, recognizes outstanding citizens who have contributed to the life of their community through professional or civic activities. A copy of this volume is placed in the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C. each year.

Personalities are selected from nomination received from colleges and universities, association, civic clubs, businesses, and individuals.

Mrs. Stocks is married and has two children, Rosemary and Mack, Jr.

To Hold Hearings On Turkey's Poppy Decision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Foreign Relations Subcommittee plans hearings this week on the Turkish government's controversial decision to let its farmers again grow poppies for opium which would end up illegally on American streets.

"This action represents a slap in the face" to the American people and its efforts to stop the flow of illicit heroin in this country," said Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y. His Manhattan district includes Harlem, an area which he says contains 400,000 addicts.

The State Department thought the issue serious enough to recall U.S. Ambassador William Macomber for consultations to decide what, if any, official action to take against the Ankara government.

The opium poppy contains a gum which is refined into opium and further refined into morphine and other medically useful drugs. Morphine can be distilled to make heroin, which is highly addictive and illegal in the United States and many other countries.

Before 1971, when Turkey agreed to ban cultivation of poppies, it produced about 66 tons of poppy gum a year, the world's primary source of medicinal opium derivatives. In addition, Rangel says, Turkish gum was believed the ultimate source of 80 per cent of the illicit heroin sold in the United States.

The illegal opium does not come from government-controlled plantings in Turkey, but from illicit crops. This gum is smuggled into France and other intermediate locations where it is refined into heroin, a multi-million dollar illegal business.

The 1971 U.S.-Turkey treaty provided for a payment to Turkey of $35.7 million for not growing opium poppies.

Finds Diamond In State Park

MURFREESBORO, Ark. (AP) — Persistence in hunting diamonds at Crater of Diamonds State Park has paid off for Paul Berry of Fort Worth, Tex., and his wife. Their latest search yielded a two-carat prize.

Max Love, a spokesman for the state Department of Parks and Tourism, said the 51-point, light brown diamond was of excellent quality and its value had been estimated at $4,000 to $6,000.

The Berrys had hunted diamonds at the park before. Love said, but the discovery on Friday was their first of any value.

Love said "the most outstanding stone" ever found at the state park was the Star of Arkansas, slightly more than 15 carats, which was found many years ago. He said it was valued at between $85,000 and $100,000.

State DAV Meeting Here On Thursday

Disabled American Veterans (DAV) from all over North Carolina will be gathering in Greenville this Thursday for the 52nd annual state convention of disabled vets.

Greenville's Chapter No. 37 of the DAV will host the convention which will make the Ramada Inn on Highway 264 its center of activities.

Activities will begin at 10 a.m. Thursday and will continue until Sat., July 13.

Activities will include a past department commanders reception, Trench Rats rendezvous, a luau, dances on Friday and Saturday nights and a banquet and luncheon for the DAV Auxiliary only.

Registration for the DAV and DAVA Convention will be held in the lobby of the Ramada Inn, with a fee of $10 per person for the DAV and $13 per person for the Auxiliary.

Convention business sessions will include the adoption of resolutions to be submitted to the DAV national convention to be held this summer. The subject of these resolutions are expected to deal with recent federal policies and procedures that have seriously hindered, interrupted and slowed down normal delivery of traditional veterans benefits and services according to a Chapter 37 spokesman.

County Budget Held Tax Line

The County Commissioners have officially adopted the $13.2 million budget for the fiscal year 1974-75 and mercifully, the budget will be met without a tax rate increase for the general budget.

The commissioners set a tax rate of 62½ cents on $100 valuation. An additional 15 cents per $100 valuation was levied for both county and city school district current expense funds. The county school tax increased by ten cents over that of last year and the city school tax was increased by five cents over the told rate.

All-in-all, however, the county was able to hold the tax rate pretty well. The general budget went up considerably—from last year's $10.9 million to the 1974-75 figure of $13.2 million.

In this time of inflation, the commissioners put the emphasis in the right place by providing substantial salary increases for county employees. They were placed on the state merit system standard pay range for their classification, which meant that some were moved up the scale by one or two steps. This move was desirable in order that the county might hold its experienced employees and attract qualified new employees in the future.

The fact that the county was able to hold the general fund tax rate at the same as it was last year is an indication that among other things, the county's efforts to attract desirable industry is beginning to pay off.

The increase in revenues was attributed to increased property values in the county, and to new industries which are now paying property taxes.

Pitt County launched a program through its Development Commission some years back to bring in desirable industries. The principal benefit is to develop employment for our citizens, but it is also true that considerable investment is made in industrial plants and industries pay a major amount of property taxes to the county. That tends to lighten the tax load for all of us.

The county seems to have a sound budget for this fiscal year.

Hunt Will Push For Ethics Bill

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. predicts success for ethics legislation in the 1975 General Assembly, and has vowed to attempt passage using the persuasion of his office.

Talking with a group of college students working in state jobs during the summer, Hunt noted that there was a time in years gone by when legislators and other governmental officials could legitimately say that their private income and private business relationships were their own business.

"But we just can't afford any more attitudes like that. If public officials don't just lay it all out there for everybody to see, then all kinds of things will be thought of them."

"Now is the time to push for a bill on the books, and not just for the Legislature, but for the executive branch as well."

"There are potential conflicts there, especially among those serving on boards and commissions, which affect the public," Hunt said.

Proposed ethics legislation would require public officials to reveal sources of income and business dealings, and those who favor such legislation feel it is particularly important for the lawyers in the General Assembly who might be on retaining fees for various special interest groups or firms.

Hunt also noted that in presiding over the recent session of the Senate he saw the practice of Senators excusing themselves from votes increase considerably. "But that is not enough," he said.

Project Amendments
In response to the sneaky method used by Mecklenburg County delegates to put an amendment almost through the General Assembly approving liquor by the drink, Senate leaders are considering a projection system which would display all amendments for view.

Basically, a screen and projector would be used and when amendments come in from the floor, usually handwritten by a Senator, they could be shown to all members at one time.

Present practice is a sometimes hurried reading by the clerk.

Set Example
Most people are law-abiding citizens, but winking at crime by citizens—rather than solid opposition—may be a prime factor in the rising crime rate, members of the N.C. Crime Study Commission believe.

An interim report from that group, chaired by State Sen. I. C. Crawford of Asheville, puts first emphasis on a public concern and involvement in fighting crime.

"Perhaps one of the great reasons for the existence of crime is the acceptance of it by the people. This is especially true when crime and other evils abound in high places . . . practiced by persons of prominence and influence. The time has come when men and women who occupy high places in government, in education, in the field of religion and in other . . . (areas) must practice honesty, integrity and uprightness in all things," the report notes.

Citizen involvement is necessary to crime prevention, the committee feels, and is urging steps to involve citizens in crime reporting, radio watches, etching identification on property, alarm systems, volunteer police reserve units, volunteer counselors, etc.

About That Mule
Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt tells this story on the Mississippi general assembly—stressing that it's about Mississippi, and not his home state.

The senate received a multi-million dollar budget package, and without debate adopted it in a matter of two or three minutes.

A little later, a bill came along requiring the state to pay $150 to an up-county farmer whose mule was struck and killed by a state highway truck.

Debate raged, went on for hours, and finally the proposal was killed by a narrow vote.

Angrily, a young senator stood to question the wisdom and ability of his colleagues in passing undebated the budget, while spending hours in defeating a $150 payment for a dead mule.

A wily, old politician responded. The measure was killed, the senator said, because everybody knows a Mississippi mule ain't worth $150.

"And the hours of debate took place simply because the Senate was finally involved in consideration of something the senators could understand," he said.

Preservation Of Outer Banks Is Vital Need

The Interior Department has urged Congress to act quickly on Cape Lookout National Seashore authorization, or else costs may become prohibitive.

"If we were to wait, the escalation of land values may be beyond our means," Douglas Wheeler, deputy assistant secretary of the Interior, said.

We hope action will be taken promptly. Preservation of this Outer Banks asset for all our citizens is essential.

Simon Opposed Nixon's Wishes

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—Economic czar Kenneth Rush's refusal to testify before Congress came on the direct orders of President Nixon and over the strenuous backstage objections of Treasury Secretary William Simon.

Simon was alone in opposing Mr. Nixon's wishes. There is no sign that Rush, the President's old law professor and supposedly his peer, offered any objection to invoking executive privilege. All this deeply distresses many senior Republicans in Congress and some high administration officials as well.

Their distress is twofold: first, they had hoped the 64-year-old Rush, though unlettered in economics, would resist the President's more self-destructive impulses; second, for Mr. Nixon to insist on a broad interpretation of executive privilege during the impeachment crisis shows he has learned little from Watergate.

Claiming executive privilege because Rush is a confidential presidential adviser not confirmed by the Senate is a tenuous argument apart from Watergate. Rush is a counselor, Mr. Nixon's Cabinet member without portfolio, given policy authority over two officials—Secretary Simon and Budget Director Roy Ash—who testify before Congress. He is, therefore, vastly more than a personal adviser.

But with White House transcripts revealing extensive Oval Office discussion of misusing executive privilege, many friends of the administration feel Mr. Nixon should now invoke it only when absolutely necessary. Ken Rush testifying before Congress clearly does not meet that test.

There are signs Rush did not originally consider his job a cloistered one. In private conversations just after coming from the State Department, he talked of having to spend much time testifying on Capitol Hill. But he received different marching orders from the President when Sen. William Proxmire of Wisconsin, chairman of the Joint Economic Committee, called on Rush to testify.

In a White House meeting on executive privilege, Rush offered no dissent to the President's wishes. Only Simon did, in the blunt manner that has made him anathema to the President's senior staff.

The ensuing Rush-Proxmire impasse has started Rush off on a ludicrous wrong foot, in the view of thoughtful Republicans. "We are reassured that the President has appointed a first-class economic coordinator in Mr. Rush," Rep. Barber Conable of New York, chairman of the Republican Policy Committee, recently told the House, "but already he is involved in a somewhat silly confrontation with the Joint Economic Committee as to procedural matters."

Still worse, it reveals the rigidity of Mr. Nixon's mindset. It suggests he still cannot accept Congress as a coordinate branch of government but views the executive branch as inherently superior. Accordingly, in the Rush appointment, Mr. Nixon is up to his old pre-Watergate tricks: giving supervisory functions to a confidential aide who cannot be interrogated by Congress.

His main supervisory function, refereeing disputes between Simon and Ash, has been difficult enough for Rush his first month. Ash's Office of Management and Budget believes Rush was trapped into approving Simon's takeover of the new Cabinet Committee on Energy. Earl Butz, the quick-witted Secretary of Agriculture, had commandeered policy decisions in the livestock crisis until Rush asserted his authority.

Doubt remains that Rush ultimately will be the administration's dominant economic figure. The bureaucracy paid close at-

LIMITS FOR OPEN-MINDEDNESS
The philosopher Carneades maintained that skepticism was the only valid philosophy and that the everlastingly open mind was the only guarantee of truth. To demonstrate his point he announced to his fellow Romans that he would argue on either side of a proposition or on both sides, if his audience preferred.

Shortly after he had made his offer the aged and venerated statesman Cato rose in the Senate and demanded that his trifier be expelled from the city. Arguing on both sides of a question and teaching the people that this was the way of truth would lead at last to confusion of mind and corruption of morals, Cato insisted.

Carneades lives today in the form of modern skeptics who can make up their minds about nothing and who had no undergirding convictions. Open-mindedness is a virtue as long as it leads to an evaluation of all sides of a question and respect for opposing opinion, but as it was in the day of Carneades it is corrupting when it results in refusal to come to moral decisions.

Tito Is Setting Stage

By BARRY WATERS
BELGRADE (UPI) — At the age of 82 President Tito, Europe's most durable Communist leader, has finally made his political will.

At the recent 10th Communist party congress he spelled out the kind of leadership the country can expect after his death and rounded off a two and one-half year period of purges and centralization designed to provide for firm, united government in the post-Tito era.

To run the nation after him Tito has brought back all the veteran party stalwarts who now completely dominate the 39-member policy making party presidium and the eight-man state presidium which on Tito's death is to become a so-called "collective leadership."

The more independent-minded, unorthodox, liberal young Communists who came into the upper ranks of the party during the 1960's have been excluded to prevent any rocking of the political boat.

Loyal Aides Recalled
"His main concern has been to give a cohesion to the party hierarchy and prevent splits developing even if this means an 'elderly, somewhat unimaginative leadership,' one Western diplomat said.

Such splits caused by national and liberal factions led to flareups in Serbia and Croatia in 1971 and 1972 which brought the country close to civil war. It was largely Tito's personal authority that brought the nation through the crisis.

To prevent any recurrence an estimated 100,000 party members have been purged since then and the 10th congress stressed the need for "democratic centralism." This reversed the accelerated decentralization program adopted by the 9th congress in 1969 which allowed nationalism to take root in this federation of individualistic republics.

In bringing back all his most loyal aides of partisan days, Tito has also carefully chosen the kind of men who were very much involved in the crucial break with Josef V. Stalin in 1948 and could be counted on once again to stand up to the Russians, government officials said.

Who Will Lead?
Party authority has also been increased. By making all the state presidium members also members of the party presidium, Tito has created a situation where the Communist party has a stronger controlling hand in running the nation than it has had for many years.

Organizational changes have also given the top levels of the party and the administration more independence of control, although in theory a new constitution has widened the base of the power pyramid by involving workers more in political decision making.

The main outstanding question is who will take over from Tito as president of the party — the nation's key office which also entails ex-officio membership of the state presidium.

Officials said the best bet was Edvard Kardelj, a 64-year-old ex-schoolmaster and party theoretician, who has been Tito's closest aide since the war years.

President for Life
Though he has always been Tito's unquestioned number two, Kardelj had not held high office in recent years until his election just before the congress to the state presidium. The officials said this would put him in an ideal position to take over the party slot.

Sunday Morning Notes

By ALVIN TAYLOR

The mother of a young son says she sent her offspring to camp for four days.

He didn't bathe, she said. How did she find out? Well the youngster brought back the bar of soap she furnished—with the wrapper still intact.

Then there was the toothpaste. The brand new tube obviously hadn't been used. It hadn't even been squeezed.

The boy did change clothes, his mother said. He brought back a bag full of dirty clothes to be laundered.

What's a mother to do?

The Daily Reflector made the July Readers Digest. It would be nice to report that the national magazine had quoted some of our words of wisdom; unfortunately it wasn't quite that way.

Under a "Truth or Error" section the magazine quoted from The Daily Reflector: "We've never had a governor stop and visit us before. It was quite a treat."

The quote appeared in an Associated Press dispatch about a year ago.

Oh, well. At least we were quoted in Readers Digest.

And if the publicity over the penny shortage seems familiar maybe you were around in 1943.

A story in The Daily Reflector, Sept. 28, 1943 said: "Pennies, looked upon by so many as almost worthless coins except for the purpose of paying nuisance taxes and the like, are sorely needed in this community and persons who have quantities of them on hand are urged to get them into banks or turn them over to the stores in order that they might get into circulation."

ALVIN TAYLOR

The article quoted J.H. Waldrop of Guaranty Bank and Trust Co. as saying he had ordered $500 worth of pennies and got only $50 worth.

"As a war measure the copper from which the pennies were formerly made has been turned into other channels and the supply of new pennies is not yet sufficient to meet the needs of normal business," the article continued. "It is expected that the present shortage of small coins will be overcome at an early date but in the meantime persons who have pennies on hand will be helping the war effort and business by putting the pennies into circulation."

Well, there's no war on now, but there is a penny shortage.

Public Forum

To the editor:

I commend you for your editorial calling for the preservation of trees from the onslaught of developers. Greenville would indeed be just another bleak urban expanse of buildings and pavement without them. Yet you neglected to point out a second, entirely practical reason for sparing them: flood prevention.

I am familiar with the harmful effect wholesale tree clearing can have on neighboring property owners and businesses from the experiences of the town where I lived for 22 years before moving to Greenville. During the first 18 years we were there only two minor floods occurred, in spite of the heavy rains that fell each summer. The anatomy of the area was being radically transformed however, as the development of shopping centers, car lots and parking lots caused the leveling of acres of wooded hillside alongside a small stream and highway at the western edge of town. No effort was made to replant the gashes the bulldozers cut into the hill behind this construction. Over a period of years this process sprawled up and downstream, along the highway, until there was neither a floodplain for the stream to expand in, nor the trees which had previously absorbed much of the heavy rainfall.

As a result, after almost two floodless decades we witnessed three disastrous floods in four years, in terms of property damage and, in the most recent, human life. The businesses along the highway for five miles were wiped out two years in succession, as well as many homeowners, who were totally unprepared for such a calamity, due to its lack of precedent.

I would hate to see this story repeated in Greenville.

Jim Sugg Hails A 'New Spirit'

By JOHN KILGO

Jim Sugg, chairman of the North Carolina Democratic Party, says the election of party chairmen on the county level was done smoothly and in a way that will help Democrats in November.

"Any time you have people standing for election," Sugg says, "you have some candidates stronger than others. Obviously, some counties have elected stronger chairmen than might have been elected in a few counties. But we're very pleased with the way those county meetings went."

Sugg says all reports coming to his office indicate "more spirit and enthusiasm than our party has shown in years. We had no real difficulty in these elections. I think all of this shows we'll be united for the general election."

The Democrats, Sugg says, plan a voter registration campaign in the next few months, but the final details have not been completed. He says rather than a "mammoth state-wide campaign," the party plans to conduct the registration drives on the county level. That movement will begin by Labor Day.

Sugg told me he pushed up the date for the party's Executive Committee to name a nominee for attorney general, so the candidate could have more time to campaign. The Executive Committee will meet in Raleigh on July 27 to pick a nominee for the position now held by Robert Morgan.

"We want to give the candidates seeking the attorney general nomination time to do their campaigning with the Executive Committee," Sugg said. "I believe they'll have all the time they need to get their viewpoints across to the committee."

Some people wanted the Executive Committee meeting to come later than July 27, but Sugg feared that might hurt the Democratic nominee in the general election. The Republicans have already settled on their nominee, and he's Appeals Court Judge Jim Carson. Carson will take over the office when Morgan resigns in late August. Then he'll face the Democratic nominee in November.

"We felt waiting later than July 27 might hurt our nominee," Sugg said. "It's more important for the nominee to have time exposing his views to the public, than it is to have weeks and weeks to campaign for Executive Committee votes. Our nominee will need the time to campaign and make himself known to the public."

Jenkins Not Major Issue

The governors of North Carolina's university system are reaching too far in their effort to muzzle East Carolina University Chancellor Leo Jenkins. The limits that would be imposed upon Dr. Jenkins and all other university administrators are likely to stifle open debate and free speech within the university system; not only the cancellors, but also others in administrative positions.

The limits, formally titled "Recommended Policies Concerning Senior Administrative Officers," will come up for discussion and approval at the Board of Governors' July meeting. They bear the unanimous endorsement of a six-member committee of chancellors (including Dr. Jenkins) and a committee of the Board of Governors.

The implications of the limits go far beyond Dr. Jenkins and the immediate controversy over whether to build a medical school at East Carolina University. They would further bureaucratize the university system, weakening the vitality of its contributions in North Carolina's public affairs.

Depriving The State

Two paragraphs of the recommended guidelines are especially dangerous. One would require that only the university system's president, a position now held by William C. Friday, or his delegates could speak for the university system before officers and agencies of state and federal governments. The second is even worse. It would permit "full and free discussion and debate" within the Board of Governors but, once a policy is adopted by the board, chancellors and other administrators could not question it publicly.

These limits could discourage chancellors and other university leaders (some of them leading specialists in their fields) from speaking on a broad range of public questions, such as state taxes, prisons, education, economic development, environmental protection—or any other controversial matter that might be covered by some blanket-ruling of the Board of Governors. That is contrary to the very ideals of a university.

Although we disagreed with his medical school objective, we recognize that the results of Dr. Jenkins's regional flag-waving at ECU have not been entirely negative. His campaign for a medical school probably accelerated the state's willingness to expand medical education of North Carolina students at Chapel Hill, Duke and Bowman Gray. There now is greater emphasis upon primary medical care, and we see an ambitious program for area health education centers (AHECs), all of which are answers to the state's need for more physicians.

We think Dr. Jenkins more than once has crossed the proper bounds for a chancellor of one institution in the system in personally lobbying with legislators and others on matters affecting ECU. But apart from that, we do not think he should have been forced to stay silent publicly on matters he thought were important to ECU and the eastern part of the state. He believes strongly in his institution, and he readily takes positions on matters important to North Carolina.

All that is to the good. We wish other chancellors showed less timidity in that respect: if they did, they would win greater public respect as men who are forthright leaders, not simply faceless administrators.

A Common-Sense Rule

There is a problem, of course, in all this. A chancellor, while being free to state individual views drawn from his experience, ought not to be a legislative politician. He ought not to stake himself out regularly against decisions reached by the Board of Governors. But most chancellors have a sense of propriety and common sense. If one does not—if he consistently oversteps proper, commonsense boundaries—he should be removed. That would be better than muzzling all the chancellors.

We hope the Board of Governors will reject some of these proposed guidelines and start again.

A Conservative View Old Anxieties Proved Worrisome, But Useful

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

This is shop talk. The Supreme Court wound up its term with eight opinions touching upon freedom of the press. The opinions are primarily of concern to those of us in the news business, but what we do in the news business is of concern to everyone else.

Two of the opinions dealt with pornography, and dealt with this intractable issue as ineptly as ever. Two others had to do with prison regulations governing press interviews; I think these cases were wrongly decided, but the issue has limited importance. A fifth case dealt with advertising in transit systems, and a sixth with the narrow field of libel in union publications. Let me put all these to one side.

The two cases that counted were Miami Herald v. Tornillo and Gertz v. Welch. The first decision was unanimous, the second effectively 7-2. As a consequence of these firm statements by the Court, newspapers have something that approaches a new birth of freedom. The question now is: What do we do with it?

In the Miami case, the high court struck down a Florida law that undertook to compel the newspaper to publish certain material submitted by candidates for public office. This was the "right to reply" law. If a newspaper assailed the character or attacked the record of a candidate, the candidate had a right to have his reply printed.

When the Miami case first arose, a year and half ago, newsmen across the country reacted with disbelief and apprehension. The Florida State Supreme Court actually had upheld the law. If the U.S. Supreme Court also should approve, we apprehended that the 49 other states and the U.S. Congress would rush to enact identical laws, and press freedom would have ended. Happily, Chief Justice Burger wrote an excellent opinion nullifying the Florida statute out of hand, and that's that.

I am happy, but not quite so happy, about Gertz v. Welch. The case dates from 1968, when a Chicago police officer named Nuccio killed a youth named Nelson. Nuccio subsequently was convicted of murder. The Nelson family retained an attorney, Elmer Gertz, to bring a civil suit against Nuccio. The following year, American Opinion, official publication of the John Birch Society, carried an article blasting Gertz as a "Leninist" and "Communist-fronter." Gertz sued for libel.

Before the Gertz case came along, the Supreme Court already had acted to limit libel proceedings against the press. The Court had made it very difficult for "public officials" or "public figures" to sue successfully. Obviously, Gertz was neither a public official nor a public figure. He was a private citizen who felt he had been damaged and defamed by false statements. He sued under the old rules of libel, asking especially for punitive damages. A jury awarded him $50,000, but a doubtful trial judge suspended the award.

Only two members of the Supreme Court, Burger and Douglas, voted to reinstate the award. The other seven agreed, though for different reasons, that the award could not stand. The upshot of the several individual opinions is that a publication may be sued if it prints defamatory falsehoods injurious to a private citizen, but the citizen is limited to proving actual damages. The old concept of punitive damages, intended to punish a newspaper for its action, no longer will be sustained.

What all this means is that those of us in the news business are pretty well relieved of the awful anxieties we used to live with. In the absence of willful or malicious or reckless publication—something that happens very seldom—we are home free.

This is good, but something more remains to be said. The old anxieties were worrisome, but they also were useful: They tended to make careless editors careful. Freed of the old risks of a disastrous judgment, it becomes all the more imperative that in writing of individuals, whether in public or in private life, we must be fair. We must open our columns voluntarily to replies. We must actively seek "the other side" of stories. And when we fall into error, we must correct our errors promptly.

The American press today is not especially loved and it is not widely respected, partly because important elements of the press have failed to couple freedom with responsibility. With the Court's opinion, we have about all the freedom we reasonably could ask. I pray we use it wisely.

New N. C. Secretary Of Transportation Faces Large Loss Of Revenue

By MARY NEWSON

Associated Press Writer RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's new secretary of Transportation, Troy A. Doby, says his department is facing a potential 25 per cent loss of revenue.

A husky, six-foot civil engineer, Doby took office Monday, replacing Bruce Lentz who is now secretary of administration.

In an interview with the Associated Press, Doby said rising construction costs coupled with a loss of revenue from the state gasoline tax will cut his department's effective budget by about 25 per cent.

"Either the public is going to have to be satisfied with less service," Doby said, "or else we're going to have to have some additional source of revenue."

Normally, he said, the department projects an 11 per cent increase each year in tax revenues. Because of short gasoline supplies and high prices, however, Doby said gasoline sales have stabilized since last year.

The result, he said, will be $3 million less in revenue than the Department of Transportation had projected.

Approximately 68 per cent of the $352 million in state highway revenue comes from the tax.

Doby cited an 18 per cent annual increase in highway construction costs and said inflation, when combined with the gas tax loss, would cut his department's budget by 25 to 27 per cent.

Doby, a Kannapolis native and graduate of North Carolina State University, was appointed to the old state Highway Commission by

Gov. Jim Holshouser in January 1973. He kept his seat when the commission was converted to the Board of Transportation in July of that year.

A Republican, 40-year-old Doby helped Holshouser during his 1972 gubernatorial campaign by flying Holshouser around the state in Doby's airplane.

During the first eight weeks of Holshouser's administration, Doby supervised development of a new personnel system for the transportation department.

Later, as a member of the Board of Transportation, he led a move by the board refusing to delegate broad powers to then Transportation Secretary Lentz. Doby defended the board's powers during the interview, saying the board's job was a policy-making one.

"I'd like to see the board's jurisdiction widened to include motor vehicles, the Highway Patrol and ports, as well as highways," he said. "It's right that the secretary should receive advice from a group of citizens."

Doby, whose neatly styled hair is flecked with gray, twirled a paper clip through his fingers as he tried to explain how his administration will differ from Lentz's.

"It's a question of pace and priorities," he said and indicated he favored less theory and more action.

"I'm going to apply a judicious amount of judgment to determine when we've gotten enough information," he said.

Meanwhile, he is awaiting various department studies updating the state's seven-year plan for primary highways and probing the department's revenue sources.

The seven-year plan is a master plan providing for state road funding through 1980.

A series of public meetings were held across the state in May to consider revisions in priorities in the program the transportation board approved in October 1973. Lentz said at the time the plan would be updated annually. Criticism of the plan at the time of its adoption included charges it favored some counties at the expense of others. Doby denied that charge.

"Any favoring of an area was a function of the needs or lack of needs in that area," he said. "You can't be all things to all people."

He called Holshouser's highway program a success, in light of its first year's performance.

Doby said the department's funds study would include recommendation on coping with the department's projected revenue loss, and that possible remedies included raising state fees for services such as title transfers.

He has no plans to rehire David Madigan, he said. Madigan, a personnel director for the department, was fired by Lentz in June, 1973 and reinstated by Holshouser a few hours later.

Madigan stayed on the transportation payroll until October and became director of field offices in the Department of Revenue in December.

Doby said the personnel changes he announced after taking office Monday were all he planned.

Those changes included replacing Assistant Secretary for Planning John Cameron with William F. Caddell Jr. and replacing Information Services Officer Ted Harrison with George Robert "Bob" Campbell.

By Gail Michaels Violent Goodbye From The Yellow Butterfly

When I started college, wearing jeans in public was almost as grievous a sin as wearing hair curlers on the beach. It meant: (a) that you had no self-respect; (b) that you were a neglected child; or (c) that your mother was in the hospital for a frontal lobotomy and, consequently, the wash had not been done in three weeks. Nowadays, some girls will spend up to six months embroidering just one pair of jeans.

The other day I was shopping when a boy walked in whose entire attire consisted of hair and jeans. I was unsure whether inflation had hit the denim industry or if he was modelling male bellydancing costumes for Playgirl. His jeans were cut so low that I followed him around the store for half an hour waiting for his stomach muscles to go slack.

I had almost decided to overcome my voyeuristic inclinations when his girlfriend arrived on the scene. She was wearing a halter that would have made a bikini look like a tunic and jeans that rivaled her boyfriend's in the amount of flesh exposed to the elements, except that her stomach spilled over the top. These jeans were embroidered with a large green and orange snake, which wrapped itself comfortably around most of her right leg.

"Come on," she anxiously said to her boyfriend. "Mother and Daddy will be here in 20 minutes. I've got to convince my English professor to change my grade before they get here—and I've got to change clothes." "Oh, wow, too much," the boyfriend responded, flaunting his extensive vocabulary. "What can they do to you? You've got to stand up for your rights," he continued, making sure there remained a wide margin between himself and a nearby belt display. "Look," she shivered. "Mother still wears a hat to church." They both shook their heads in sad resignation.

"Oh, wow!" she screamed. "I've only got 15 minutes left. I guess I'll have to bluff on the grade to my parents and try to get it changed later. Daddy will take away my car if he finds out that I made a 'D'."

"D?" echoed her boyfriend. "But I thought you were sure of a 'C' in English."

"I was, but my stupid professor lowered my grade because I didn't participate in class. I explained to him that I didn't like to call attention to myself—but all he did was stare at my bellybutton."

As she turned around, the yellow butterfly embroidered on the seat of her pants waved a violent goodbye.

Today In History

By The Associated Press Today is Sunday, July 7, the 188th day of 1974. There are 177 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1846, the American flag was raised at Monterey, Calif., after the Mexican garrison surrendered, and the U.S. annexation of California was proclaimed.

On this date: In 1801, the black general, Toussaint L'Ouverture, proclaimed Haiti's independence from France. In 1865, four persons were hanged after being named as accomplices of John Wilkes Booth in the assassination of President Abraham Lincoln.

In 1898, the United States annexed Hawaii.

In 1918, British naval forces bombarded Constantinople during World War I.

In 1941, during World War II, U.S. forces landed in Iceland to forestall any Nazi invasion.

In 1958, President Dwight Eisenhower signed the Alaska statehood bill.

attention to a recent decision by Charles Cooper, a National Security Council staffer and one of the most gifted economists in government service. After declining an offer to become Rush's deputy, Cooper signed on as Simon's assistant secretary for international affairs.

Attempting to control federal spending, the one dynamic economic policy pursued by the administration, is clearly Simon's policy—undertaken over the objections of Ash but with enthusiastic endorsement from Rush. Indeed, Ash has faded quickly. Having failed to become, first, Secretary of Treasury and the economic coordinator, Ash may be gone after completion of the next budget in January.

But key Republicans on Capitol Hill want the President himself fully engaged in the Rush-Simon fight against spending. In the same House speech bemoaning the "silly confrontation" over executive privilege, Conable urged Mr. Nixon to address a "confused and troubled" economic situation with the same intensity that he does foreign affairs. I Mr. Nixon should follow that advice and give the substance of economic policy a higher priority than escaping the scrutiny of Congress, it would be the first time during six years of power.

To the editor:

I think there should be a law against unleashed dogs. I was walking down 14th Street when I was almost attacked by a big red dog. While I was passing the Presbyterian church a white dog attacked me. I was able to double back through the stairs in the front of the church to escape the dog. As I went on down the street I had to run off dogs with sticks.

I'm 12 years old. What would have happened if I were younger?

Little Change In Nixon's Popularity Since His Middle East Tour

By GEORGE GALLUP

(Copyright 1974, Field Enterprises, Inc. All rights reserved. Republication in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with the written consent of the copyright holders.)

PRINCETON, N.J.—President Nixon has failed to register gains in popularity following his recent five-nation tour of the Middle East. Only 26 per cent in the latest survey say they approve of the way Nixon is handling his job as Chief Executive, only one point above his low point to date.

Despite the fact that President Nixon's personal diplomacy has on earlier occasions boosted his standing with the American public, a similar effect is not found in the current survey. The reason lies in the fact that concern over domestic affairs today far outweighs concern over foreign affairs in the public's assessment of Nixon's performance.

The most recent surveys show domestic problems overshadowing international problems in the public's thinking by the widest margin recorded in recent decades. High prices and Watergate top the list of problems named.

When persons in the survey are asked to rate Nixon on his handling of international affairs, 54 per cent express approval. In contrast, only 18 per cent approve of his handling of domestic affairs.

While Nixon's overall rating has remained virtually unchanged since the previous survey, he has registered a sharp 8-point gain among those interviewed who have a college background. In contrast, his rating has fallen off slightly among persons whose formal education is limited to high school or grade school.

Among college persons, a group which surveys reveal to have a greater interest in foreign affairs, as many as seven in ten (72 per cent) say they approve of the way Nixon is handling international relations. In contrast only 34 per cent of persons with a high school background and 34 per cent of those with a grade school education say they approve.

Following is the question asked to determine attitudes on the President's overall performance in office: "Do you approve or disapprove of the way Nixon is handling his job as President?"

Here are the latest results, based on a survey conducted following the President's five-nation tour of the Middle East but before his recent trip to Russia:

Approve Of Way Nixon Is Handling Job?
Approve	26
Disapprove	61
No Opinion	13

To determine attitudes toward the President's handling of foreign policy, this question was asked: "Do you approve or disapprove of the way Nixon is handling our foreign policy—that is, our relations with other nations?"

Here are the results:

Approve of Way Nixon Is Handling Foreign Policy?

Approve	54
No Opinion	14

To determine attitudes toward the President's handling of the domestic scene, this question was asked: "Do you approve or disapprove of the way Nixon is handling our domestic problems—that is, our problems here at home?"

Here are the results:

Approve of Way Nixon Is Handling Domestic Problems?
Approve	18
Disapprove	71
No Opinion	11

President Nixon's overall job rating for the 12 measurements thus far this year appears to have been little affected by events and has fluctuated within a narrow margin of three percentage points—from a high of 28 per cent to a low of 25 per cent, his lowest point since taking office.

World Awaiting Word On 1974 Harvest Of Wheat

By PAUL RECER
Associated Press Writer
WELLINGTON, Kan. (AP) — The field was gilded to the horizon with ripening grain, but the farmer cursed softly, miserably, to himself as he waded through waist high wheat.

he said. "Last year we raised the best wheat a man can grow. We're just not going to make it like that now. Darn-mittall."

Revived Old Drug Store

SEARSPORT, Maine (UPI) — Cherry cokes, strawberry sodas and chocolate malts began fading from the American scene a few years back when drug stores began moving out their fountains and stocking garden supplies and sports clothes.

But in this Maine coastal town, a person with a hunger for nostalgia and a hot fudge sundae can find both.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Schofield opened "The Ice Cream Parlor" on Main Street a year ago and the summer tourists and the year-rounders in Searsport are delighted.

A visit to the small shop is like stepping 20 years into the past. A person gets served from an ancient, marble-top fountain that was salvaged from a nearby drug store. Lined up behind the fountain are metal paper-cup holders, "Coke" glasses and large glass soda containers.

Completing the Victorian atmosphere are bent wood and wire chairs clustered around small antique tables. Children can purchase penny candy from an antique candy counter.

"We're very proud of our fountain," said Mrs. Schofield. "There's not that many around. Matter-of-fact, they are practically extinct."

The Schofields moved here several years ago from Rochester, N.Y., because "we wanted a change of pace and a way to get out of the rat race." They started out with an antique shop but are selling it to devote fulltime to the ice cream parlor.

"My husband had managed a large supermarket and the pressure was pretty great," said Mrs. Schofield. "We decided to make the break and haven't been sorry."

With rough hands, he gently cuddled a bundle of wheat pods. "See this one here," he said. "They're all supposed to be long and full like that. But most of them just didn't fill out."

Pulling down a cap to shade his eyes, he watched a distant combine churn through rippling grain like a ship at sea, leaving behind a wake of straw and dust. Two trucks parked nearby held heaps of the reddish-gold wheat and a boy was ankle deep in the grain, leveling a load with a shovel.

The farmer eyed a faraway bank of silver gray clouds plump with the promise of rain or of hail. He nervously tugged again at his cap.

"I made 45 bushels an acre here last year," he said. "I'll be lucky to get 30 now. I swear, it's enough to turn you into city people."

The scene was common in Kansas and throughout the wheat belt. In a business that is really a boom or bust contest with nature, 1974 will be remembered mostly as a draw. The farmer won some.

But so did nature. The harvest is just past half completed, with combines now cutting fields in Nebraska. But even before they started in Texas last month, the 1974 wheat crop had assumed an importance matched by few in history.

Almost gone are the immense surpluses of government grain from previous years. No longer can stored wheat be pulled from federal bins to counter rising prices at home or turn back famine abroad.

The U.S. agricultural marvel had been available for years to the nations of the world, propping up wheat supplies when crops failed, as they might this year in Africa, Asia and India because of drought.

Harvest, 1974, is also a new era for the farmer. Without the huge government surpluses to tilt the supply and demand equation, the farmer commands the grain market. He, alone, is the source of supply.

By withholding his wheat he can drive up price.

The holdout has begun. Farmers who were stung last year by the profiteering of speculators have stored up to 90 per cent of their newly-harvested grain instead of selling.

Across the wheat belt, many said they're waiting for the price to reach $4.50 a bushel. It was $4 a bushel as June ended.

"By mid-July, the American farmer could control a big percentage of the world's supply of free wheat," says Charles Rhoades of the Oklahoma Wheat Commission. "It's a war of nerves and the farmers have control for the first time."

The precise effect on prices at the consumer level might not be known for months. But almost certainly, experts feel, if the holdout continues, prices will go up for bread, cereal, macaroni, pasta, pastries and the hundreds of other food products tied to wheat.

From government desks in Washington, the 1974 wheat crop looks good, but there is concern. The government's June estimate placed the total harvest at a record 2.09 billion bushels, some 300 million bushels more than last year. But this was nearly 100 million bushels less than the May estimate of 2.1 billion bushels.

Some experts, among them Thomas E. Ostrander, president of the Kansas Wheat Raisers Association, think the final figure will be less than 2 billion.

Through central Kansas and Oklahoma, the weather played tricks with timing. Last fall, when winter wheat was planted, the fields were too wet. In March, when the tender plants were beginning to race toward maturity, a freeze stunted thousands of acres. And in May, when the grain pods were filling out, hot, dry winds blew for days, causing kernels to shrivel.

"I don't think I planted a single acre in what I could call good condition," said Ostrander, who had 2,200 acres in wheat.

The result is showing up now at grain elevators.

"I know farmers who made 45 bushels last year," said an elevator operator in Wichita. "They're getting 25 and 30 now. And a lot of that is not good quality."

Weight tells a lot about wheat quality. Last year, a bushel from this area weighed 62 pounds or more. This year, many are less than 60.

Farms average 1,000 acres around Wellington, the center of Sumner County and the most prolific wheat area in Kansas, in turn the most prolific wheat state. Some farmers here work three times that much land.

The dark, compact, sweet-smelling soil is ideal for growing wheat and is some of the most expensive farmland in the nation. Choice land is selling for $1,000 an acre and very little is available.

Hence, a 1,000-acre farmer is working on $1 million worth of land. And each year he invests in this land, in the long months before harvest, $100,000 in fertilizer, seed, sometimes irrigation, and the labor of weeding and cultivation.

It's an investment that will pay off only on the whim of nature. Too much rain in the fall and planting can be late or even impossible. A late spring freeze can scar and stunt the wheat, lowering production. And after eight months of slowly maturing, the most perilous time of all for winter wheat is the 10-to-14 day harvest period.

A sudden hail storm can flatten the crop.

"I've seen a field after hail. It looked like it had been plowed under," says a young farm wife.

Fire is also a serious menace. Lightning or heat from a faulty combine or truck can start grain fires that burn away harvest dreams in only brief moments.

In Kansas, the wheat harvest is a time of gut-wrenching tension.

People and machines muster as if for an invasion. Farm wives abandon air-conditioned homes to drive trucks in dust and heat. Young children, left on their own, play in the straw at field side. Tempers flare. Minor breakdowns loom as tragedies. Highways jam with trucks and lumbering combines. Exhausted workers push themselves, straining for every bushel.

For the farmer, the work doesn't end at harvest.

After the fields are stripped, he'll spend up to 3,000 hours and many thousands of dollars plowing, cultivating and fertilizing, getting ready for the next crop.

Peace comes only after the October planting. Then the wheat people relax and nature does the work.

"From Nov. 1 to Jan. 1, I don't intend to do anything," Ostrander says, "and I don't care who knows it."

Poison Center Saves Lives As For Away As Alaska

By POHLA SMITH
PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A two-year-old boy was admitted recently to Children's Hospital in Columbus, Ohio, after drinking organo phosphate, a commercial-type insecticide. Quick action was imperative. The poison eventually can paralyze the respiratory muscles, and the child already was showing signs of ascending paralysis. But when physicians went to their supply closet, the only bottle of the only antidote — protopam chloride — was dried up.

They turned to the Pittsburgh Poison Center at Children's Hospital, national headquarters for a growing poison center network. In less than two hours Pittsburgh police, carrying the precious antidote, met an Air Force jet from Columbus at Greater Pittsburgh International Airport. The child was discharged from the hospital the next day. The Pittsburgh center, directed by pediatrician and University of Pittsburgh medical school instructor Dr. Richard W. Moriarty, has nine nurses and two social workers manning the telephones 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Relying on vast files and numerous industrial and toxicological consultants, they provide information to parents, physicians and poison centers across the nation.

Last year, the center handled 25,000 phone calls, mostly of local origin.

Long Distance
Some calls, however, were long distance. Six months ago, the center and a consultant helped diagnose unusual second degree burns suffered by an Anchorage, Alaska, man when flaming industrial oil spilled on his arm.

If Moriarty's dreams come true, long distance aid will become common through the National Poison Center Network and the thousands of poison related deaths recorded each year will be reduced.

The fledgling federation, coordinated by Moriarty, presently includes only a few states. Eventually, however,

Moriarty hopes about 50 to 60 regional poison centers across the nation will be connected with national headquarters by two-way telecopiers for exchange of information on case histories and little-known poisons.

Seattle's Children's Hospital connected with Pittsburgh in July, 1973, as the network's first regional center, serving the state of Washington and parts of Oregon, Idaho, Montana and Alaska. It was the go-between in the Anchorage burn case. Denver General Hospital, Cardinal Glennon Children's Hospital in St. Louis and Buffalo (N.Y.) Children's Center recently joined, and Moriarty is negotiating with centers in the Midwest and Southwest.

Mr. Yuk
The network idea developed two years ago when Moriarty, 34, was turning the 19-year-old Pittsburgh center, previously operated in the Children's Hospital emergency room, into a 24-hour operation with local cooperating hospitals.

He received scores of inquiries about the center and its now well-known "Mr. Yuk" symbol—an ugly fluorescent green face which, when placed on poisons, warns young children of danger and provides adults with the poison center phone number.

The inquiries spurred Moriarty to conduct a national survey of similar facilities. It showed there were between 600 and 650 poison centers in the United States but, Moriarty said, "it was obvious there was chaos."

Some cities had no centers, others had small operations in coroner's offices, Moriarty said. Illinois had between 112 and 117 facilities; California had seven.

Cooperative Program
Many centers, however, expressed interest in a cooperative program, so Moriarty developed and began pushing his network idea.

"That's the kind of system that makes some sense," he said.

Moriarty feels it offers many advantages: it eliminates costly and time consuming file duplication; permits hospitals to share new data on toxics and encourages an "early warning system" of new drug fads.

Additionally, screening poison calls, the number of patients going to emergency rooms is reduced, Moriarty said, because about 70 per cent of all common poisonings can be handled at home.

"And of paramount importance with the whole system," he said, "is having the ability to provide potentially life saving information as rapidly as possible."

Winner Of Scholarship

Students selected for new scholarships were: Alvin Bunch of Oliver Springs, Tenn.; Milford Clark Reid Jr., of Louisville, Ky.; Forest Steven Beverly of Waycross, Ga.; Barbara Ann Moore of College Park, Ga.; Susan Jean Scarbrough of Athens, Tenn.; Diane Taylor of Goldsboro, N.C.; Rosalynn (Anna) Hart of Memphis, Tenn., and Pamela Denise Thornton of Nashville, Tenn.

In announcing the winners, Jack Tarver, chairman of the Fund's Advisory Committee, said the scholarships are a fitting memorial to the late publisher of The Atlanta Constitution. The Fund offers scholarships to students who have completed at least two years of college and who have demonstrated an abiding interest in the news and editorial phase of newspapering.

DIANE TAYLOR

Miss Taylor graduated from Goldsboro, N.C. High School in 1972, and is attending East Carolina University in Greenville where she will be a junior majoring in history. Miss Taylor has worked as copy editor intern on the national desk of The Philadelphia Inquirer, and was a reporter, news editor and worked layout for the Fountainhead, student newspaper at East Carolina.

Coin-Operated Copy Machine At Post Office

A coin-operated copy machine has been installed in the lobby of the U.S. Post Office on Second Street for the convenience of the public, and plans call for a similar machine to be placed in the lobby of the East Carolina University station on Tenth Street.

The coin copier will be in operation 24-hours a day at each location and will copy such things as letter size and legal size sheets, or pages of books. Cost of the copies is 10-cents each.

Officials said that although the copy machine is not owned by the U.S. Postal Service, and is not a regular service of the Post Office, the Postal Service does receive a portion of the profits derived from the use of the copy system.

Pitt Students On Honor Roll

GOLDSBORO—Wayne Community College, in recognition of academic achievement during the spring quarter, has named a number of Pitt County students to its Honor Roll.

The Honor Roll is comprised of students who are enrolled for at least 12 quarter hours and earn a quality point average of at least 3.00 for the quarter with no grade below C.

Those students from Pitt County include:

William B. Taylor, Greenville, fish and wildlife management; Betty Cope, Grifton, watchmaking; Angela C. Thaxton, Grifton, associate nursing degree; and Vickie L. McCarter, Grifton, dental hygiene.

TWO BEDROOMS HAVE ACCESS TO OUTDOORS IN "CHARTRAND" SPLIT-LEVEL

By Gerry Bishop

A 23-foot balcony fronts two bedrooms, each with large closet and sharing a full bath. The master bedroom, toward the rear of home, has its own full bath and walk-in closet. The sleeping area is confined to the top level of the home, providing necessary privacy for comfortable family living.

Down a few steps is the kitchen, dining and living room, which opens from a large foyer. A back stairs from the kitchen to the sleeping area allows private late-night snacking, even though other members of the family may be entertaining visitors in the living room.

The living room is decorated with a bow window and wood-burning fireplace, and the dining room opens to the terrace via sliding glass doors. The kitchen is designed with refrigerator, range and sink in an L-shape for efficient cooking. Eating space is also included here, as well as in the more formal dining room.

The lowest level includes a double garage, storage space and a laundry area. Vertical siding at the balcony area combines with French doors and a stone veneer to create an unusual exterior for the "Chartrand."

From various sources come these bits of information of interest to home owners:

The latest survey of colors preferred by home owners show once again that, while interior color choices fluctuate from year to year, there is very little change in color selections for the outside of the house. Ranking high on the list of exterior colors are the old favorites—deep browns, beiges, olives, greens, ivories and grays. The obvious conclusion of the Moore 1974 Color Research Report is that the American public is conservative when choosing exterior house colors.

...Even the friendly barbecue can be dangerous. The National Fire Protection Association warns that one of the worst practices causing accidents is that of "freshening" a charcoal fire with a flammable liquid. These fluids are sold only for the purpose of starting the fire and not for squirting on it after it is burning.

Work has started on a "dream house" that will be shown at the annual convention of the National Association of Home Builders in Dallas, Tex. next January. The estimated cost is $60,000. The builders will follow the recommendations of more than 100 women. What do they want in such a house? While there were some differences of opinion, the consensus favored a three-bedroom, contemporary, single-story house with 2½ baths, an eat-in kitchen, a family room with a fireplace, a dining room separate from the living room, a covered porch, a pantry, a bathroom and dressing area in the master bedroom, and a laundry-utility room.

The prices of houses continue to go up. The latest figures at hand, reported by the National Association of Realtors, apply to existing single family houses. The median sales price of an existing house in April was $31,690 compared with $28,490 for the same month a year ago—an increase of more than 11 per cent. More than 69 per cent of the houses sold were in the price class of $25,000 and over. Only 6.5 per cent were in the less-than-$15,000 class. Prices were generally higher in the Northeast, followed closely by the West, then the South and, finally, the North Central states.

George Preston, president of the U.S. League of Savings Associations, thinks interest rates on mortgages will stay at their present level for some time to come. He also believes the cost of new houses will be boosted by further rises in construction costs.

By ANDY LANG AP Newsfeatures

I will be painting the outside of my house soon. I have painted inside rooms in the past, but this will be my first job of this kind. I have seen so many conflicting viewpoints on the kind of weather during which a house can be painted that I am a little confused. For instance, just the other day I saw one newspaper article that said not to paint when the humidity is very high, and the very same day I saw a magazine story that said it was all right to paint on damp days. Which is correct and can you give me any additional information on when to paint?

with says the interest rate will be 9½ per cent. I thought I read somewhere that the rate on a conventional mortgage could not be more than 8 per cent. Why is the bank allowed to charge 9½ per cent?

Interest rates on conventional mortgages (that is, those not insured by the Federal Housing Administration and the Veterans Administration) vary according to the state in which you live. The usury rate for home loans in your state permits 9½ per cent interest, so the bank is within the law. There are a few states where the maximum rate allowed is 6 per cent, but most states permit higher rates. Even though you do business with a particular bank, remember that you can shop around for a mortgage. Where your credit rating is exceptionally good, you can sometimes get a slightly lower rate of interest.

Old Houses Appreciated Today

NEW YORK (UPI) — The "old house" is coming into its own. The country colonials, roomy "gingerbread" Victorians, the city brownstones are being snapped up by buyers intent on the charm and value of the past. Old houses have both—charm and value—says R.A. Clem Labine, editor of the Old House Journal but they also have pitfalls. They demand know-

"They really should be declared an endangered and dangerous species."

For every old house that is being well cared for, Labine says, there are 20 that are being allowed to deteriorate, or being mutilated in the name of remodeling, to say nothing of the lovely old houses that are being razed in the march of "progress."

But not every old house is a worthy prospect for the would-be restorer. "An old house," warns Labine, "can be a money-gobbling trap for the unwary." Labine's publication features old house restorations and practical advice on ways to restore, decorate and maintain houses built prior to 1914.

How to determine whether that romantic 1870 Victorian, with its spacious rooms, high ceilings, marvelous original woodwork, perfect location and wonderful old trees and plantings, is a good buy? It calls for a thorough professional inspection of the mechanical systems buried beneath the romantic exterior, warns Labine. "It's these mundane details that go unchecked in that enthusiastic first flush of old-house fever that can spell the difference between success and disaster."

Labine says the Old House Journal has catalogued the most common—and costly—ailments of old houses. "While the checklist doesn't take the place of evaluation by a licensed engineer, it will help to eliminate those houses that are beyond your means to repair," he says.

Traps The five points most overlooked:

WIRING—Unless it has been rewired recently, an old house invariably is underpowered. A house today needs a minimum of 100 amps of 3-wire 240-volt service. Check the entrance box in the cellar. Only two or three circuits (fuses) are a tip of inadequate electrical capacity. To modernize an inadequate electrical system will cost $500 to $1,000 or more.

ROT AND TERMITE DAMAGE—Starting in the cellar, use an ice pick to probe sills and ends of joists. Any sponginess is cause for concern.

HEATING PLANT—An old house is likely to have a coal furnace that has been converted to gas or oil, a prime source of trouble. Look for a nameplate (absence of one is a sign of poor quality) to check for a date stamp. If a boiler is approaching 25 years or older, expect to spend $1,500 replacing it before too long.

PLUMBING—Check hot and cold water pipes in the cellar with a magnet. If the magnet sticks, it's galvanized iron pipe and won't last too long. Inspect main waste pipes for signs of leaks or patches. On top floor, turn on all faucets and flush toilet. If pressure drops markedly, either the house isn't being supplied with adequate pressure or pipes are constricted with scale.

WATER DAMAGE—Keep an eye on outside walls and ceilings (especially the top floor) for stains that are telltale signs of water damage. Leaks can be coming from holes in the roof, leaky gutters or walls or faulty plumbing. Water damage should be traced to its source. It could mean a $25 pipe repair—or a $2,500 new roof.

Remudding Labine said the Journal, after a survey of 500 18th and 19th century houses, concluded "many people buy an old house because of its charm—and then proceed to eradicate that charm by thoughtless alterations, 'remudding' rather than remodeling or restoration."

Victorian houses built after 1860 are particularly vulnerable to character-destroying modernizations, he said, because they are not old enough to be considered antiques.

Frustration Can Ruin The Do-It-Yourselfer

By VIVIAN BROWN AP Newsfeatures Writer

Some years ago one do-it-yourselfer resigned for life. He didn't exactly jump off the family tree, but he snipped a few branches. Now every year about this time, his wife rereads the letter of resignation and daydreams about what might have been—the enclosed swimming pool, a new deck or a patio. After she rereads the letter she sighs and throws away all the colorful project pictures she had cut out of periodicals during the year hoping for a more promising turn of events.

Here is the letter that might prove helpful to a wife whose husband has just embarked on the do-it-yourself path: "I am the average do-it-yourself type American male—a small wallet, a strong back and a weak mind—who is writing this resignation to relieve his blood pressure.

"In 10 years I have alternately torn down and put back the old house I purchased in a weak (very) moment. Except for two summers when I revolted, I've had a decade of projects that have taken anywhere from one month to a year.

"I know what it means to completely tear out a room in the house and do it over from bare wall studs to the $150 plastering job that the expert smooths on after I finish with the real labor. And I know what it means to add a room on a house.

"I've taken abuse from my wife and children, my English setter and even from the local building materials dealer, the plumber, electrician and the other dear-as-gold workmen that I've had to hire from time to time. "I've got this old-new place right up to my Adam's apple, and when I pick up an issue of a popular home magazine that oozes with honey and spice my blood pressure runneth over.

"Turn to any page in one of those magazines and you'll find such diverse articles as, 'How I Made a Small Cottage into a 15-Room Mansion,' or 'How I Rebuilt a 100-Year-Old House With Only One Hammer and a Few Nails.'

"What they don't usually mention is what goes on between the decision to build something and the finish line.

"The average do-it-yourselfer weekend-babe-in-the-woods type usually talks over a project with his wife. After a year or two of no-compromise he finally gets up and runs to the lumber yard where in answer to his request for 14 2x4s he encounters further resistance.

"The bored clerk with a blank stare poses a question: "Do you want 6 or 12 foot lengths, 24 or 32 or what? Do you want spruce or pine, cedar, or what? Do you want No. 1, 2, 3 or a real rotten grade. What are you going to use them for?"

"After a few minutes of deep thought the DIY (me) replies 'give me those.'

"Frustrating decisions go on through door frames, windows, siding and the different nails and hardware needed.

"The DIY dashes home with a station wagon loaded with the materials and hammers happily away over the weekend. But then, like genies of doom, the kibitzers begin popping up.

"From a neighbor he learns that the wall will cave in unless he supports it while he is putting the picture frames up. His wife chirps up with, 'I though you were going to do so-and-so...And one of his children points out that 'a board looks crooked.'

And then one day he finds out how much it all costs for that little project. The bill arrives listing the nails, the windows, the 2x4s, the siding, and all the rest. Then the little 'how to add a house on a room' type of thing starts to hurt right down to the shoes (the ones with the holes in them).

"My answer to the magazines is: how about just one issue on how to make the extra money to do the house project. Labor may count for much, magazine-wise, but they are not giving away lumber, tools, and the other materials that are needed.

"And as for the classy landscaping job that makes a house look fabulous (their word, not mine)—if you could afford that at all, you wouldn't need to do anything yourself, except maybe lie down in your hammock...And that's what I intend to do from now on."

New Air Route For Caribbean

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — Bahamas Air, the official carrier for the nation, will inaugurate twice-weekly flights to the Turks and Caicos islands in July, an airline official announced here.

The Turks and Caicos, a British colony lying beyond the southeastern tip of the Bahamas chain, has no scheduled air service at present.

Plans were announced several weeks ago to construct a 500-room resort in the Turks and Caicos.

NEVER ARGUE WITH SUCCESS

There is a sound philosophy based on the premise: "Never argue with success." If you have the urge to invest in real estate, listen to what some of the most successful investors have to say about it.

Andrew Carnegie: "Ninety percent of all millionaires become so through owning real estate. More money has been made in real estate than in all industrial investments combined. The wise young man or wage-earner invests his money in real estate."

Marshall Field: "Buying real estate is not only the best way, the quickest way, and the safest way, but the only way to become wealthy."

John D. Rockefeller: "The big fortunes in the future will be made in real estate."

John Jacob Astor: (He's a little more specific.) "Buy on the fringe and wait. Buy land near a growing city! Buy real estate when other people want to sell. Hold what you buy."

Secret Weapon Of Henry VIII Remains Underwater

By GREGORY JENSEN
LONDON (UPI) — She was King Henry VIII's secret weapon and for 429 years she lay unsuspected a few feet below one of the world's busiest shipping lanes.

She was perhaps the world's first battleship and Henry, of the many wives, named her the Mary Rose after his sister. She carried his fortunes into battle and before his horrified eyes she turned turtle and sank without firing a shot.

But some day soon she may be seen again as the splendid warship she was that day in 1545. Alexander McKee thinks the Mary Rose can become another Vasa, the 17th Century warship Swedish archeologists plucked from the mud of Stockholm harbor.

McKee found the Mary Rose in the Solent channel of Britain's south coast. He has worked on her for nine years. Given another few years and a few million dollars, he intends to bring her up.

Prince Philip and Lord Mountbatten have contributed to a public fund launched recently to raise the necessary cash. Queen Elizabeth had McKee to lunch to discuss his impossible-seeming project.

Good Condition
"We've exposed about half the ship around the stern," McKee said in an interview, "and we've found it in good condition—one might almost say astoundingly good condition."

"We calculate we need a five-year program of continuous work. That will establish the ship's size, its possible weaknesses, and whether in fact it will be possible to raise her intact. We're almost certain she can be raised, but we're being very cautious."

McKee is a professional historian and an amateur skindiver. The Mary Rose made him a careful, patient archaeologist. His new Souvenir Press book, "King Henry VIII's Mary Rose," tells the ship's story.

It begins with her refit into Henry's secret weapon—the first ship to carry guns that could sink rather than just damage other ships. Henry made her vice-flagship of a fleet he personally commanded against a marauding French squadron off England's south coast.

Crew Panicked
For days he kept his fleet bottled in Portsmouth harbor.

Finally he ordered it into battle. The top-heavy Mary Rose, gun ports open and overloaded with fighting men, led the fleet down a narrow channel.

But at a dogleg in the channel the ship turned too sharply and heeled. Her crew panicked. Water flooded through the gun ports. Under the king's eyes, in what McKee calls "a moment of pure cinema," she sank with 400 men in a matter of seconds.

Henry won the battle without her, then employed Venetian craftsmen to raise her. They tried for four years, and failed.

McKee set out in 1965 to find her. He was searching for a dozen historic wrecks under the Solent, one of the world's most bustling sea lanes.

In a year he was convinced the Mary Rose lay under a featureless mound on the sea bed. Slow years of inch-by-inch work, using makeshift equipment and amateur divers, showed McKee's teams they had found something beyond their wildest hopes.

Miraculous Accident
"A miraculous accident of preservation" kept the Mary Rose virtually intact, McKee said. More than just a wreck, however historic, she lies there much as she was on the day she went down.

McKee said the Mary Rose can plug two gaps in historic knowledge—of ship construction in Henry's time and of the revolutionary guns he developed.

She was "a key vessel in the startlingly rapid evolution of the wooden battleship as a floating gun platform," he wrote. The Mary Rose conceals "virtually unknown technological changes so great as to result very shortly in European dominance of half the world for many centuries."

Books Given To Library

The North Carolina Funeral Directors Association has presented a gift of books on death, dying, grief and funerals to the J.Y. Joyner Library at East Carolina University in Greenville. The presentation was made in order to provide more material for those who seek information on the subjects noted.

Among the books included are "Understanding Grief" by Edgar N. Jackson, "Cremation" by Paul E. Irion and "On Death and Dying" by Elisabeth Kubler-Ross.

The gift was made by this organization in conjunction with a program of the Funeral Information Center, a division of the North Carolina Funeral Directors Association, whose primary purpose is the dissemination of information pertaining to death, dying, grief and funerals. The Center is dedicated to the study of material pertaining to the subject in book, literature, cassette tape and audio visual forms.

Been Digging The Same Hole For Four Years

LONDON (AP) — Christine Woodley didn't pay much attention when workmen started digging a hole in the street outside her home in the Wapping district of London four years ago.

But they're still digging. They've been digging the same hole, filling it up and then digging it again for four years.

Mrs. Woodley said the workmen "told me they were searching for a gully pipe which drains away the water. They have been looking for it for four years and still haven't found it. I wonder they don't give up."

Said neighbor Mrs. Esther Terry: "every time it rains I'm flooded out. After four years I've given up complaining. The water has nowhere to go and it is just pumped back up the pipes, flooding our apartments."

Will Interview Job Candidates

Job Corps Counselor Grady Wheeler will be interviewing prospective job candidates at the Social Services Department in Greenville during the month of July.

Wheeler will be at the office on July 12, 19, and 26. If those interested cannot meet with the schedule, they are asked to call 1-800-662-7948 toll free in Raleigh so that other arrangements can be made.

Will Speak At Church Sunday

Sister Shirley Atkinson will be speaking at St. Rest Holiness Church in Winterville Sunday afternoon at 4 p.m. She is the former Shirley Banks of Ayden. The public is invited to attend.

Dictator's Film Is A Comic Hit

By ALINE MOSBY
 PARIS (UPI) — The funniest film in Paris was not meant to be that way.

Gen. Idi Amin Dada of Uganda just did what comes naturally, in glorious color, for a documentary on him made by Swiss-French director Barbet Schroeder.

The result has Parisians lining up at a Left Bank theater to watch the tall general with a pot belly hanging over his belt lumbering with a grin through the 90-minute film.

Made originally for French television, the film relates how Amin, heavyweight boxing champion in the Uganda army, took power in a 1971 military coup. Since then, says the film, his activities have included dispatching a telegram to President Nixon offering sympathy over Watergate. He cabled Queen Elizabeth of Britain suggesting he accompany her to Canada. His telegram to President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania said, "If you were a woman I would marry you even if your hair is gray."

Amin, who established a military dictatorship, in one scene counsels some boxers. "You must win by a knockout." To show his strength he swims with four friends across his private swimming pool and wins by neatly knocking two of them out of his path.

Marx—Groucho, That Is
 In the film the general talks to crocodiles, plays an accordion in a restaurant and joins in a folk dance waving a spear and shield.

"People like me very much," he says in his broken English. "All the Arab leaders love to hear me speak. I am the most important leader in Africa. Everybody listens."

Some Paris newspaper film critics likened the film to Groucho Marx or Mack Sennett. It is more reminiscent of British satirist Evelyn Waugh's book, "Black Mischief."

In one scene the general says he is a great military strategist and "if I have to fight the war against Israel, I'll fight inside Israel with paratroopers."

Then he stages a military exercise to illustrate his plan, calling to the cameraman, "Film this, take this..." One airplane and one helicopter (second-hand French craft given Uganda by Israel) swoop over the Uganda hillsides. As his soldiers stumble along the general shouts, "Victory on the Golan Heights!"

Not All Funny
 "Kissing is very intelligent, he only goes to weak leaders," Gen. Amin says. "He never is in Uganda because he knows I know how to tell the Americans about their mistakes."

Amin shows off his four wives and 18 children, saying, "I'm a very good marksman."

Not all the film is funny. One scene shows his letter to the United Nations complaining Hitler did not kill enough Jews.

In another scene the general instructs his cabinet on how to make the people love them. The ministers nervously tap pencils on noses and fingers while Amin complains about how the foreign minister misbehaved.

Fifteen days after this scene was shot, says the narrator, the minister was found floating dead in a river. He was replaced as foreign minister by a beautiful mannequin, Miss Elizabeth Bagaya.

Bananas for Britain
 The general says in the film his future plans include teaching Swahili to American blacks. He also is collecting bananas, food and vegetables to send to Britain, former colonializer of Uganda.

He says, "I am very annoyed. I requested airplanes from London to distribute food to Britain but they haven't sent the planes yet."

Director Schroeder said he was surprised at the TV documentary's success as a comedy in a movie house.

"I went there very humbly to record his character," the director said. "Most of this film has been shown already on Uganda television so I guess he liked it."

Family Band, Cloggers Perform Today

AROUND AND AROUND AND LIFT THOSE FEET... Eight members of one of two Greenville Cloggers sets are shown in action. The local dance group will join The Flatland Family Band, another local group whose specialty is music making, in today's "Sunday In The Park" series of Sunday entertainment. The public is invited.

Week Of Concerts Set For Eastern Music Festival

The Eastern Music Festival, at Guilford College in Greensboro, will offer a week of concerts beginning Monday, July 8, with a recital by many of its talented piano students. This concert, as well as Tuesday's performance by the student Guilford Chamber Players, will begin at 8:15 p.m. in Dana Auditorium and will be open to the public free of charge.

On Wednesday, July 10, the world-renowned Beaux Arts Trio will join the Eastern Chamber Players in concert. Pianist Menahem Pressler, violinist Isidore Cohen and cellist Bernard Greenhouse will be performing "Trio in A Major" by Haydn and "Trio in C Major, Op. 87" by Brahms. In addition, two compositions written by Greensboro native Peter Michalove will be performed. "Ramifications" will feature Richard Harrison of the New Orleans Symphony and principal flute in the Eastern Philharmonic Orchestra. Michalove's "Three Note Piece" will be played by David Watkins, a member of the piano faculty both at Georgia College and at EMF.

The festival Wind Quintet will play a work by Edward Cone, also a former Greensboro resident.

The Eastern Symphony Orchestra, made up of advanced student musicians under Maestro Robert Hause, will perform Thursday evening. The program will include Bach's "Brandenburg Concerto No. 3".

All concerts are scheduled for 8:15 p.m. in the air conditioned Dana Auditorium. General admission will be available at the door.

Beethoven's "Symphony No. 6" and will feature Daniel Domb, artist-teacher at Baldwin-Wallace College in Cleveland in Dvorak's "Cello Concerto."

Friday, July 12, the student Guilford Symphony will perform works by Dello Joio, Mozart, Faure, and Sibelius. Robert Helmacy will conduct.

On Saturday, July 13, the Eastern Philharmonic Orchestra will perform under guest conductor Thomas Briccetti, Music Director of the Fort Wayne Philharmonic. The Beaux Arts Trio will be the featured guests as the orchestra performs the "King Lear Overture" by Berlioz, the "Triple Concerto" by Beethoven, and "Concerto for Orchestra" by Lutoslawsky. All three works are being performed at the Eastern Music Festival for the first time.

Karen Paluzzi In Flute Recital Monday

A summer recital is taking place Monday at 8:15 p.m. at A. J. Fletcher Hall on campus when Karen Paluzzi appears in a flute recital accompanied by Peter Takacs, pianoforte and harpsichord.

Miss Paluzzi, a senior in the East Carolina University School of Music, is from Chesapeake, Va., and is a student of Miss Beatrice Chauncey. Her accompanist, Peter Takacs, is a member of the music faculty at ECU.

For the past year Miss Paluzzi has played piccolo with the Norfolk Symphony and has been principal flutist with the Norfolk Chamber Orchestra in residence at Old Dominion University.

Beginning this fall, she plans to be playing with the Hampton Symphony and also to open a flute studio in the Norfolk-Virginia Beach area. Works scheduled to be performed are a baroque Sonata for flute and harpsichord by Telemann; Poem for Flute by Charles Griffes; and a contemporary work dating from 1951, First Sonata For Flute by Bohuslav Martenik.

There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

Today's "Sunday In The Park" entertainment is a locally based double feature music and dance treat, with the Flatland Family Band and the Greenville Cloggers to be on hand for a festive third event in the Sunday series.

Originally comprised of six members, the Flatland Family Band now has five members—Mike and Linda O'Connor, violin and guitar; Skeet and Carolyn Creekmore, banjo and autoharp; and Stanley Riggs, bass. The sixth member, banjo player Bill Joyner recently moved away from Greenville.

The band's companion Greenville Cloggers dance group—the two have often appeared together—has sixteen members formed into sets of eight people each. Brian DeMarcus is the group's leader.

Subsequent to their initial Greenville appearances a few years back, the two groups have been in wide demand, with performances given throughout North Carolina as well as in Virginia, South Carolina, Tennessee and on up into Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Their most recent appearance, yesterday, was in Durham, as participants in the USA-USSR Arts Festival held in conjunction with the two-nation field track meet at Duke University.

For all who have not had the good fortune to hear the lively music of the Flatland Family Band or to watch the innovative dancing of the Greenville Cloggers, today's performance will be an excellent opportunity to catch them for the first time.

Under the auspices of the Greenville Recreation Department and directed by Stuart Aronson, the "Bicentennial Sundays In The Park" is made possible by a grant from the Fine Arts Council of North Carolina.

Aronson again reminds those planning to attend to come dressed informally and supplied with seating comforts such as blankets and pillows. The event begins at 7 p.m. on the grassy slope between Third and Fourth Streets east of Reade Street. There is no admission charge and persons of all ages are urged to attend.

Aronson said "if all goes well, we will have the 'Soul Sunday' groups on hand for Sunday, July 14. This is our plan at the moment." The scheduled appearance of several individuals and groups for "Soul Sunday" was cancelled earlier due to inclement weather.

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By KAY TAYLOR
Children's Librarian

Mr. Murgatroyd really did not want to take in boarders, but with such a large house, he thought he might as well make use of the space to earn some money. Half-heartedly he advertises his rooms for rent. He warns each prospective tenant that the rent is too high, but they all accept large rents, as a fact of life. Soon Mr. Murgatroyd finds himself with a strange assortment of tenants: a sailor and mermaid, a little old lady who fills her room with plants, a lady with many children, and a bear that plays the flute. Mr. Murgatroyd is certain that his tenants will fight and he will have a marvelous excuse to get rid of them all. Strangely enough, however, all the tenants get along well. Margaret Mahy tells the story of Mr. Murgatroyd and his tenants in ROOMS FOR RENT. Brightly illustrated by Jenny Williams, ROOMS FOR RENT will appeal to younger readers.

The anticipated arrival of a baby in the family is often hard for a child to accept, especially if that child has been the only one for several years. Such is the case with Antonia. After enjoying the limelight for nine whole years, she is not the least bit anxious to have a baby in the family, especially after her best friend complains about what a nuisance it is to have a baby sister. Torn between her own selfish interests and her parents' desire for another child, she pours out her feelings in CONFESSIONS OF AN ONLY CHILD by Norma Klein.

Finding out the true facts of life is sometimes very difficult for youngsters. Parental explanations in terms that the child does not understand may lead to false and often amusing conclusions. Friends usually are not much help either because they are often full of misinformation. FREDDY'S BOOK by John Neufeld deals with Freddy's search for enlightenment on the subject of sex. While highly amusing to adults who remember their own confusion, FREDDY'S BOOK contains valuable information for young people seeking answers to their questions about sexual intercourse and its role in their lives.

Both the children's and the young adult librarian recommend FREDDY'S BOOK highly. By using fiction Neufeld has been able to accomplish things that most books on the subject fail to do; he has written a book which is technically accurate but does not make sexual intercourse seem mechanical. In addition he has refrained from moralizing or trying to force his values on the reader.

FREDDY'S BOOK is available in the young adult collection as well as the children's collection. Parents may wish to read this book first.

Commercial Posters As An Art Form

Long before display advertisements in newspapers and magazines were commonplace methods of advertising events (and merchandise) printed posters were widely used to make public announcements.

A vast majority of such printed announcements serve the purpose of conveying information relative to a place and date of a particular event. Because they serve a functional use, most posters are designed with emphasis on giving essential information in brief form, with little thought for beauty as an inherent part of a poster design.

There have been notable exceptions through the years, however, of posters being created that combines function and visual attractiveness. It was in France that the concept of posters as a form of art first became widespread. Toulouse-Lautrec is perhaps the best known artist in-involved in this field; and his posters for plays and music hall events have become collectors items and have achieved the status of a valid art form.

In the 20th century, the craft of poster making has become sophisticated, with noted artists often contracted to create original designs combining harmony of lettering and pictorial subjects. Usually, they are printed in many colors on a fine quality paper.

In many instances, in France as well as in other countries, posters are created by commercial artists that incorporate a pictorial subject directly related to the subject or event being advertised.

The two posters shown on this page fall into that category. Both were widely distributed in shops, on walls, in the Metro, and on kiosks on the sidewalks of Paris during 1952.

The poster depicting a lady wearing roses in her hair under a straw hat called attention to a four month exhibition relating to popular traditions in the Paris area. The exhibition was at the Sceaux Chateau, near Paris.

The second poster announced a six month long exhibition at the National Library held in commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the birth of Victor Hugo. A reproduction of a watercolor by the noted writer and a facsimile of his signature are incorporated into the design.

It will be noted in both posters that the pictorial element is the dominant eye-catching device. Next in importance are large letters announcing in simplest terms—"Popular Traditions..." and "Victor Hugo"—the basic subject matter of each exhibition. Place, dates and hours are given in progressively smaller lettering. The Popular Traditions poster even provides, in small print at the bottom, information on metro and bus lines to take to travel from Paris to the Sceaux Chateau.

Thus, these are large edition posters used extensively to advertise two cultural events. At the same time, they are items worthy of being collected as fine examples of attractive 20th century posters.

Photographs By Tommy Forrest

Old weathered buildings offer a photographer, novice or professional, a fascinating challenge. The texture of wood, or rusted metal contrasted with the living green of vines and weeds provide a wide range of pictorial possibilities.

The pictures were made early afternoon of a bright, sunny day.

Tommy explains the equipment and technical data used in making these photographs:

"I used a Leica M2R, with a

35 mm f2 Summicron lens. The photos were shot with Plus X film, which is a fine grain film at a moderate speed—(normal) ASA 125.

For the shot of the blinds, which was made from the inside looking out, I set the camera at 60th sec. at f-11.

"On the other photos the film speed was 125th second, and 'f' settings were bracketed between f-5.6 and f-11.

"Processing the film is where the fine grain is brought out. The film was developed in Ethol UFG chemical, with strict attention given to agitation. The initial film speed of the film under which these photos were produced was daylight-ASA 320 for Plus-X film.

"The developer when used according to the manufacturers directions can produce negatives of very high acutance, normal contrast, and extreme latitude.

"Fixing of the film after development was done in the normal manner. This was followed by washing. Both fixing and washing should be near the development temperature."

Connors Storms To Wimbledon Crown

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
WIMBLEDON, England (AP)
Young Jimmy Connors, bull mean and bulldog tough, shattered the comeback dreams of aging
Ken Rosewall Saturday with a devastating display of killer tennis that both stunned and saddened the final Wimbledon gallery.

Ill., swept to the men's singles title in only 90 minutes, 6-1, 6-1, 6-4.
The packed center court crowd of 14,000, almost unanimously cheering for the 39-year-old war horse from Australia at the start, wound up applauding the cocky young American with the heart of a fighter and the strokes of a genius.
The kid was terrific.
So Connors joined his bride-to-be, Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., as singles champions of the oldest and biggest tennis tournament in the world and pooled their honeymoon prize money—$25,000 for Connors, $17,500 for Chris.

As titleholders, they danced the first dance Saturday night at the lavish Wimbledon Ball.
"We've been engaged seven months, we will probably get married in November," Connors said afterward. "We would have gotten married, whether we had won or not."

Connors brought back memories of the game's immortals—big Bill Tilden, Don Budge, Pancho Gonzales and Rod Laver—as he destroyed the rhythm of one of the sport's great shotmakers and turned the match into a rout.
"He is a killer," said the youngster's long-time coach, Pancho Segura, a former rival of Rosewall. "The tougher the situation, the meaner he gets."
"He has a great mental approach, and pride. He gets steamed up 100 per cent. He

favorite after dramatic victories over John Newcombe and Stan Smith, said Saturday he lacked the tools to compete with such a fired-up adversary.
"He hit every line on the court," the 5-foot-7, 142-pound Rosewall said. "He scrambled for every ball. He made all the right moves. He never hit a soft shot."
"I am disappointed at the score. I am disappointed that I did not play better, but you can't take anything away from Jimmy. His confidence kept getting stronger as the match went along. I never felt I might pull it out, as I did against Newcombe and Smith."

Connors played with such furiosity and fury that he swept through the first two sets in less than an hour, never permitting Rosewall to win a service after the deuced first game.
Connors hardly made an error as he engaged Rosewall, the master backcourt tactician, in long rallies, always hitting deeper, always producing the sharper angle and always keeping the plucky little Aussie on the defensive.

"I never was able to put good points close together," Rose-wall said. "I was never able to put pressure on Jimmy because he kept pressure on me."
Dick Stockton, who lost to Connors in the semifinals, said.
"Playing Connors is like fighting Joe Frazier—he keeps coming at you."
Connors, holding Miss Evert's hand in the post-match press conference, said he never had played a better match.

"My strategy was to keep the ball in play, stay back and rally with Ken until he tired," he explained. "I made the first returns to the center of the court and then began shooting for angles."
"I didn't care if I broke my back doing it—I was determined to go for every point."
On the court, Connors acts

Kansas City Beats Boston Royally, 5-3

By DAVE O'HARA
AP Sports Writer
BOSTON (AP) — As far as the Boston Red Sox are concerned, right-hander Al Fitzmorris of the Kansas City Royals is one of the toughest pitchers in the American League.
Fitzmorris, summoned from the bullpen in the sixth inning, worked his way out of a jam and checked the Red Sox the rest of the way Saturday in the Royals' nationally televised 5-3 victory.

The Royals jumped to a 2-0 lead in the second inning on a single by John Mayberry, a double by Solaita, a walk, a single by Healy and a double-play grounder.
Boston, which has lost four in a row and eight of its last 11 starts, tied the score on Petrocelli's two-run homer, his 12th, in their half of the second.
Kansas City scored again in the third when Otis singled, stole second and came home on McRae's single. Cooper tied it in the bottom of the inning with his seventh home run of the season.
The Royals then went in front to stay with a run in the fourth on singles by Healy, Fred Pa-tek and Cookie Rojas and made it 5-3 in the fifth when McRae doubled and scored on a single by Solaita off reliever Reggie Cleveland.

with one out in the third.
In the sixth, they loaded the bases with one out but Dick McAuliffe batted for rookie catcher Tim Blackwell and lined a hard shot down the first base line only to have Solaita turn it into an inning-ending double play.
Harper reached third with one out in the seventh on a single, stolen base and a sacrifice but Fitzmorris easily retired the next two batters.
Wise, a veteran right-hander acquired from the St. Louis Cardinals, struggled from the opening pitch. He has been set back this season by tendonitis in his right arm and an injured finger on his pitching hand.
"It feels as if my arm is going to fall off," Wise said. "I can't do anything out there. I'm struggling all the day. The arm hurts on every pitch. I'm going to have to see the doctors and see what can be done."

WINNER'S LEAP—America's Jimmy Connors leaps the net in fine style after beating Australian tennis veteran Ken Rosewall 6-1, 6-1, 6-4, to take the men's singles championship Saturday at Wimbledon, England. (AP Wirephoto via cable from London)

"I brought in Fitz because he pitches well against this club," said Kansas City Manager Jack McKeon. "Besides, he has a sinker ball and I wanted someone to keep the ball in the park. He did exactly what I wanted."
The Royals raked Boston starter Rick Wise for 10 hits and all their runs in less than five innings. However, they had to withstand Boston threats most of the way. "We don't have any laughers," McKeon said after the three-hour struggle. "All our games go down to the wire. It doesn't matter, though, as long as you win."
Amos Otis, Hal McRae, Tony Solaita and Fran Healy had two hits apiece in helping the Royals to their fifth victory in the last seven games.
Nelson Briles, making his second start since returning to action from knee surgery, surrendered seven hits, including home runs by Rico Petrocelli and Cecil Cooper, and collected his first victory of the year with help from Al Fitzmorris in the sixth.

Wise saw his record drop to 3-4 in his first season in the American League.
Solaita's run-scoring hit off
Cleveland was the 11th and last Kansas City hit. Cleveland walked four and struck out two the rest of the way.
The Red Sox, who finished with 10 hits, had plenty of chances, but were unable to capitalize after Cooper's homer

Oaks Golf Club course. Mrs.
Carner, one stroke back of Mrs.
Breer after 18 holes, turned in a 72.
Next, with 145s, were Jo Ann Prentice, the leading money-winner on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, and Pam Barnett. Miss Prentice shot a 71 and Miss Barnett a 72.
A 73 by Carolyn Kertzman and a 71 by Jane Blalock put them together with 146s.
Miss Roberts, 25, carded six birdies—three on each nine—and two bogeys. Her secret, she said, was "lagging the ball up on those fast greens." She three-putted only the seventh and 15th.

Mrs. Breer, 35, of St. Petersburg, Fla., admitted she became "lackadaisical because it's such a beautiful day." The sun shined brightly, the temperature was in the low 80s and there was no wind.
"Then I began to talk to myself and I got rid of the laziness," she said.
For Mrs. Carner, 30, who moved up to second on the money-winning list last week in Montreal, the eighth hole was "my favorite." She got an eagle-three on the par-5 481-yard test for the second consecutive day. This two-under effort came on a 75-foot putt.
Mrs. Carner said she had trouble slowing down.
"I felt so good when I started out that I couldn't slow up," she said. "Even my caddy kept telling me to take it easy."
"Tonight I might watch a late movie and be tired tomorrow."
Sharon Miller, who had a 71
Friday, shot a 76 in the second round of the 54-hole event and was tied at 148 with Debbie Austin, 74, Susie Berning, 73,
Kathy Cornelius, 73, Sandra Palmer, 73, Sandra Post, 74, and Betsy Rawls, 74.

Sneed Sweeps All Rounds To Take Milwaukee

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Ed
Sneed, the leader all the way, shattered the hopes of any would-be challengers with an eagle-three on the sixth hole and breezed to a comfortable four-stroke victory in the Milwaukee Open Golf Tournament.
Sneed, 29, claimed the second title of his six-year pro career with a final round of 72 and a 72-hole total of 276, 12 under par on the hilly, 7,001-yard
Tuckaway Country Club course.
The handsome, 6-foot-2 native of Columbus, Ohio, became only the third man this year to lead through all four rounds of a regular tour event. Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller were the others.

Grier Jones, who made one istant second with a 71—280.
Chuck Courtney, Bob Zender and Dave Hill tied for third at 281. Courtney had a 69 and Zender a closing 73. Hill failed to make a challenge and had a final round 73.
The group at 282 was made up of Lee Trevino, Tommy An-ron and Larry Hinson. Hinson had a last-round 70 while Aaron and Trevino matched 71s.
Sam Sneed, a 62-year-old marvel now in his fourth decade of competition, stumbled to a 75—287.
Sneed's opening 66 staked him to a two-shot lead in the first round. He had a three-stroke margin after 36 holes and led by four going into the last round of this tournament that began and ended one day early in order to give some players a quick start on their trip to England for next week's British Open.
Sneed's winning margin has been exceeded only once this season. No one got closer than three shots in the sunny, breezy final round and Sneed all but clinched it with his eagle on the 524-yard sixth hole.

He lashed a long-iron second shot that reached the green and trickled up about five feet to the left of the cup. Sneed made the putt and from then on, it was a fight for second place.
The composed, unemotional Sneed reeled off seven consecutive pars after that and put it out of reach when he holed a 22-foot putt for a birdie two on the 14th hole.
That gave him a five-shot margin with four holes to play.
The soft-spoken, articulate Sneed came into his own with the Kaiser Open last fall but has been bothered by health problems and had been in a slump since then.
He'd won only $14,623 this season before collecting the winner's share of $26,000 from the total purse of $130,000 in this one.

Evans Provides Winning Hit In Braves' 3-2 Win

CHICAGO (AP) — Darrell Evans' double with one out in the 10th inning gave the Atlanta Braves a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday.
Ralph Garr opened the inning with an infield hit off reliever Oscar Zamora and was sacrificed to second before Evans' tie-breaking double.
The Cubs climbed into a 2-2 tie in the seventh on Jose Car-denal's bases-loaded pinch single.
Atlanta's Roric Harrison was sailing along with a three-hit shutout when the Cubs loaded the bases on singles by Bill Madlock and Andre Thornton and a walk to Vic Harris.
Joe Niekro relieved and got pinch hitter Chris Ward on for an infield pop before yielding Car-denal's single.
The Braves scored in the second on singles by Dave Johnson, Frank Tepedino and Harrison. They added an unearned run in the third when they chased starter Jim Todd.

Robinson and Evans. Dusty Baker singled to left but Robinson was thrown out at the plate by Williams. Catcher Steve Swisher then fired to second trying to get Baker but the ball sailed into the outfield as Evans scored.
The victory snapped a three-game Atlanta losing streak and a three-game Chicago winning streak. Lew Krause, 2-2, picked up the decision and Danny Frisella, who worked the 10th inning, was credited with his fifth save.
Except for the seventh inning, the Cubs mounted only one other serious scoring threat. Williams singled to open the eighth and was sacrificed to second. Madlock received an intentional pass but Thornton lined into a double play. Zzamora, who has been the bullpen workhorse for the Cubs since coming up from the minors three weeks ago, was charged with the defeat, giving him a 1-

Chisox Blow Lead; Not Game

DETROIT (AP) — Home runs by Carlos May, Dick Allen and Bill Melton helped Chicago to a 9-0 lead after five innings and the White Sox hung on for a 9-8 victory over the Detroit Tigers Saturday.
The White Sox staked Wilbur
Wood to a 6-0 lead with six runs in the second inning off Luke Walker, 4-1. May blasted a three-run homer in the inning.
Ken Henderson singled in a run and Ron Santo singled in two.
In the fifth, Allen and Melton hit homers off Dave Lemanczyk.
Allen's homer, his 21st, bounced off the Tiger Stadium roof in left field. Bucky Dent also singled in a run in the inning.

Terry Forster relieved Wood, 14-9, to begin the sixth and promptly gave up singles to Jerry Moses and Brinkman before Mickey Stanley belted a homer to pull Detroit within one at 9-8.

Orioles Stop A's String

OAKLAND (AP) — Ross
Grimsley fired a five-hitter and Brooks Robinson and Paul
Blair homered as the Baltimore Orioles snapped Oakland's five-game winning streak 3-0 Saturday.
Grimsley, 10-7, gave up infield hits to Bill North in the first inning and Bert Campaneris in the fourth and ninth.
The other Oakland hits were singles by North in the sixth and Joe Rudi in the seventh.
All three Baltimore runs came off Dave Hamilton, 5-2.
Robinson lined his third homer of the season over the left field fence in the second inning and Blair hit his eighth against the facing of the 'upper deck in left field in the sixth.
The Orioles scored their other run in the fifth on a two-out double by Andy Etchebarren and a single by Mark Belanger.

Grimsley walked none, struck out six and allowed only two Oakland runners as far as sec-

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY PEELE

We offer our congratulations to East Carolina University Sports Information Director John Evenson for an honor he's just received.

The 1973-74 ECU Swimming Guide, written and edited by Evenson, has been selected the best in the nation according to judging sponsored by the College Sports Information Directors of America.

The guide was judged along with other entries from the NCAA's Division I (University Division). Indiana placed second in the judging, while N. C. State was picked the third best.

Evenson is currently attending the CoSIDA convention in Chicago, where he'll receive his award.

For those who don't already know it, East Carolina's season football tickets for this year are on sale. This year, the Bucs have five home games and a book of tickets runs $30.

Home games include Bowling Green, one of the powers of the Mid-American Conference; East Tennessee State, a top team from the Ohio Valley Conference; strong independent Southern Illinois; along with another independent Dayton, and Southern Conference rival The Citadel.

In addition, tickets to the N. C. State-ECU game, on October 5, are also available at $7 each.

While the Pirates will probably be favored to win the Southern Conference title again this year, they are going to have to do it all on foreign ground.

The Citadel as noted above, is the lone Southern Conference game they have in Ficklen Stadium. The Bucs must go on the road for the rest—Furman, Appalachian State; Richmond, William & Mary, and Virginia Military Institute.

Davidson, which has de-emphasized football, is the lone team in the conference not appearing on the ECU schedule.

The Wildcats do play three teams in the league, VMI, The Citadel and Appalachian State. They'll probably be dropping some of them as soon as possible, since they are no longer any factor at all in the Southern Conference race.

Davidson has announced that it will schedule teams with programs of "it's own stature." They dropped such teams as East Carolina, William & Mary and Furman. ASU and The Citadel will probably be even more voices raised about there getting out of the Southern.

We have missed the summer baseball program at East Carolina this year, and so has Coach George Williams. He's hopeful that the university will reenter the North Carolina Summer Collegiate League next year.

The Bucs, despite the loss of some key personnel, hope to be in the thick of the Southern race again next year, and Williams would like nothing better than a second straight title—something the Bucs haven't been able to do since joining the Southern. They won it in 1966, 1968, 1970, and 1974—a good record, but one that still can be improved.

Three U.S. Teams Row Into Finals

By NOEL HUGHES
AP Sports Writer

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England (AP)—Three American crews posted victories Saturday to carry U.S. hopes into the finals of the Henley Royal Rowing Regatta, but the combined Vesper-Potomac crew was beaten after a brave fight against a top Russian squad in the semifinals of the Grand Challenge Cup for heavyweight eights.

Despite that blow in the historic regatta's premier event, U.S. hopes were high heading into Sunday's windup over the one-mile, 550-yard River Thames course.

The American winners on a windswept but sunny day were Harvard University, the Porcellian Club of Cambridge, Mass.

and the youngsters of Holy Spirit High School of Absecon, N.J.

In the Grand Challenge Cup, which dates right back to the inauguration of Henley in 1839, it was a close battle and the Russian Trud Club was lucky to hold on for victory.

The Americans, a makeshift crew composed mainly of the best men from the Philadelphia Vesper Boat Club and the Potomac Boat Club of Washington, lost by only one-quarter length as Trud surged home in 6:30—over 20 seconds faster than the times in all the races so far in this year's regatta.

It appeared that faulty steering by Vesper-Potomac cox Bob Jaugstener of Philadelphia cost the Americans the race.

Matthews Paces Giants In Win

NEW YORK (AP)—Gary Matthews' two-run homer and Randy Moffitt's strong relief pitching led the San Francisco Giants to a 5-2 victory over the New York Mets Saturday.

New York starter George Stone, 2-7, took a 1-0 lead into the fifth inning but was nicked for two runs on doubles by Steve Ontiveros and John Boccabella and a single by Tito Fuentes.

Stone, who has dropped nine decisions in a row to the Giants since last beating them four years ago, was relieved by Tug McGraw after Garry Maddox opened the sixth inning with a single. One out later, Matthews hit his ninth home run of the season for a 4-1 lead.

San Francisco starter John D'Acquisto, 7-7, gave up a run in the second on one of his six walks. John Milner's double and Jerry Grote's single. The Mets scored again in the sixth on Ron Hodges' single and Dave Schneck's double. Moffitt came on after Ed Kranepool opened the Mets' seventh with a pinch single and blanked the Mets on one hit the rest of the way.

The Giants added a run in the eighth when Bob Miller walked Bruce Miller with the bases loaded.

Group Threatening To Enlist Outside Aid

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

The president of the National Football League Players Association said Saturday the NFLPA would do everything legally within its power—including soliciting help from other unions—to prevent NFL exhibition games if a strike against the owners is not settled.

Bill Curry, a starting center for Houston last season, joined 14 other veterans in picketing at Sam Houston State University in Huntsville, Tex., as the first of 104 Oilers' rookies and free agents filtered into training camp.

"They (rookies) can practice here all they want to," Curry said, "but if this thing is not settled, they're not going to play the exhibition season."

Curry said the NFLPA could get help from broadcasters' unions and the Teamsters to picket stadiums. "If nobody shows up at the stadiums and nobody broadcasts the games, why play the games?" he mused.

Curry said he and other NFLPA members would meet with the Oilers rookies Sunday prior to their first workout "to tell them some things they haven't been told."

"No one has told them if they'll receive a per diem," Curry said. "Or, if they bust up a knee, if they'll get their salary anyway."

Other Oilers' players walking the picket line with Curry included Dan Pastorini, Willie Alexander, Al Jenkins, Guy Roberts, Fred Willis, Elvin Bethea, Zeke Moore, John Matuszak and Greg Bingham.

The picket line was the second one to go up. The first site, last Wednesday, was the San Diego Chargers' camp at U.S. International University.

Two new Chargers, free agent wide receiver Coleman Zeno and first-round draft choice Don Goode, a line-backer, left the camp Friday and joined the pickets.

Chargers' owner Eugene Klein gave Goode a 24-hour "grace period" to return to camp or lose what he called a "very substantial" bonus.

The deadline passed at 3 p.m. EDT, Saturday with Goode still absent.

Curry said he realized fans were becoming disenchanted with the veterans. "It's hard for them to realize what we mean by freedom if they haven't gone through it," Curry said.

"Maybe they will understand it if we say that we just want to work where we want to and that doing so will not destroy pro football."

John Galbreath, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, has won two Belmont Stakes. He won the 1963 running with Chateaugay and the 1974 renewal with Little Current.

Optimists Win On Home Run

Pitcher Glenn Moore helped his own cause Friday by blasting a two-run homer to lift the Optimists to a 2-1 win over the Moose and even their best-of-three series for the City championship at a game each.

The Moose had surprised the Optimists by taking the first game of the series, 7-4. The Optimists had to hold off a sixth inning rally to wrap up the win and send the series into the final game which was to have been played Saturday, weather permitting.

The Moose tried to pick up where they had left off in the first game as they pushed toward a score in the first. Ashley Taylor walked and was sacrificed up. A passed ball put him on third and David Carroll walked. The runners tried a double steal but Taylor was tagged out at home.

Then in the second, Dean Wilson doubled to open the inning and went to third on a passed ball. Dwayne Alligood hit into a fielder's choice that got Wilson at home. Alligood was later forced at third.

The Moose finally got on the boards in the fourth. Carroll walked and scored on a double by Wilson.

But in the bottom of the frame, the Optimists broke Carroll's no-hitter and came up with the winner. Billy Dough singled but was thrown out stealing. Jim Keirnan walked and Moore sent his team ahead with the homer.

Ricky West doubled in the sixth for the Moose but was thrown out trying to stretch it into a triple. Carroll followed him with another double and he stole third but could not tie it up.

Through the first three innings, Carroll had pitched a perfect game setting nine batters down in a row. He struck out nine for the game and gave up just two hits. He walked two.

Gibson's Bat Gets Card Win

CINCINNATI (AP)—Bob Gibson helped himself with a run-scoring single in the seventh that broke a 1-1 tie and carried the St. Louis Cardinals to a 3-1 decision over the Cincinnati Reds Saturday.

Clay Kirby, 6-5, had a 1-0, two-hit shutout until the seventh when Bake McBride led off with a bunt single and eventually came around to score the tying run on a Cincinnati error.

After Gibson singled in the tie-breaking run, the Cardinals added their third run on a wild pitch by reliever Tom Hall.

Johnny Bench had given Cincinnati a 1-0 lead in the second when he led off with his 15th homer of the baseball season, the Reds' first homer off Cardinal pitching this season.

Gibson, who has defeated Cincinnati more than any active National League pitcher, whipped the Reds for the 22nd time in 39 decisions.

Gibson, 5-8, allowed just three hits and struck out six to

Brew 3-0 Victory

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Dave May's two-run double in the second inning and six-hit pitching by Billy Champion and Eduardo Rodriguez swept the Milwaukee Brewers to a 3-0 victory over the Minnesota Twins Saturday.

May's double was one of only five hits off loser Joe Decker, 8-8, who left in the eighth.

Three double plays in the first five innings aided Champion, 3-1.

George Scott walked to open the Brewer second, but was thrown out trying to steal. However, Decker walked Mike Hegon and Darrell Porter and both scored on May's double down the right field line.

Larry Hisle singled in the Minnesota sixth and raced to third on a two-out single by Tony Oliva. Rodriguez then replaced Champion and retired Bobby Darwin on a grounder to Scott at first.

Don Money singled leading off the Brewer third but was caught stealing. Decker held the Brewers hitless from then until Deron Johnson singled with two out in the seventh.

In the eighth, the Brewers drove Decker out of the game with two base hits, including one by Robin Yount that scored Milwaukee's third run.

'A Dream Come True'—Connors

By FRED COLEMAN
Associated Press Writer
WIMBLEDON England (AP)— "It's like a dream come true," Jimmy Connors said Saturday after winning the men's singles tennis title at Wimbledon.

"When I was six years old, I dreamed of it happening," Connors said. "When I was six years old, my opponent in the 1974 final Ken Rosewall, was at the height of his tennis career, one of the best players in the world. Now almost 40, the little Australian was no match for the hard-hitting American, only 21, and still getting better each year. Connors won easily 6-1, 6-1, 6-4.

"In a long tournament and a long match, the advantage goes to the younger player," the disappointed Rosewall said sadly. It was his fourth loss in a Wimbledon final, the only major title that has eluded him.

Always a good loser, Rosewall paid tribute to Connors as "one of the best in the game. He didn't make any mistakes today. He hit almost every line on the court. He moves very well and few players get the ball back as hard or as often as Jimmy. I just couldn't put enough pressure on him to do well."

Connors was delighted with his performance. "I just played unbelievable tennis," he said. "I never played that well before. Everything went right for me."

Connors smiled and squeezed the hand of his fiancée, Chris Evert, the woman's singles champion, who sat at his side.

They plan a November wedding.

A delighted Pancho Segura, Connors' Coach, said Jimmy now is the best tennis player in the world. "He's another Rod Laver," Pancho said.

Connors, from Belleville, Ill., now lives in Los Angeles. He has been ranked jointly as No. 1 in the United States with Stan Smith of Sea Pines, S.C.

Smith lost to Rosewall in a five-set Wimbledon semifinal in which the little Australian, behind 2-0 in sets and facing match point in the third set, rallied with some of the best tennis ever seen at Wimbledon. The price of Rosewall's comeback victory then may have been fatigue.

"Ken, I think, was very tired from yesterday's match," Connors said. He played three and a half hours against Smith.

"Today, I got every possible break. I didn't let the wind bother me or anything like that."

Connors won $25,000 and Miss Evert $17,500 giving them over $42,500 for a wedding present.

About the only trouble the pair had in two weeks here was preparing for the Wimbledon Ball Saturday night. Connors and Miss Evert practice so much tennis that they have little time for dancing.

By tradition, the men's and women's singles champions have the first dance together. Asked if he was looking forward to the dance, Connors said, "Yes and no. Yes, because we won the championships. No, because I don't think we dance so well."

Net Win Almost A Family Affair

like a bull in a bull ring—fractious, always moving, almost snorting.

There is an air of arrogance about him. After winning a crucial point, he swaggers back into position, his shoulders stooped and his head down, all the time fingering the strings of his steel racquet.

Receiving service, he spreads his legs and gets into a crouch, head out-thrust and his long hair bobbing. He acts like a man who is good at his trade and knows it.

Some of his fellow pros regard him as a smart aleck. On the court, he indulges in mimicry and gestures intended to draw titters from the gallery—which they usually do. Some say he has inherited the histrionics from his doubles partner, Ilie Nastase.

A medium-sized player at 5-10 and 150 pounds, he is lightning quick with remarkable reflexes. A good server, he is on top of the net in one bounce. His volleys and smashes usually are final.

Connors has drawn resentment from some of his fellow pros because of his refusal to join their union, the Association of Tennis Professionals. Only last week, his manager, Bill Riordan, announced a $10 million suit against the ATP for conspiring to keep Connors out of the French championships.

Had he played at Paris this year and won, the former UCLA student would have three legs on the so-called Grand Slam, having already won the Australian and Wimbledon, and would have needed only the U.S. title to duplicate a feat achieved only by Don Budge and Rod Laver.

Connors pounced on Rosewall at the outset, winning 10 straight games after Rosewall had held service in the opening game. In the final six games of the first set, he gave up a total of only seven points.

With the score 5-4, and Connors serving for the match, the youngster ran to a quick 40-0 lead with two beautiful volleys and a smashing volley that kicked up chalk on the back line.

Pirate Club Meets Goals For 1973-74

The East Carolina University Pirate Club is beginning its 1974-75 season, seeking to up its contributions to the university athletic program to $250,000.

Executive Director Ira Norfolk and Club President Les Garner have announced that the club has attained its goal of putting $200,000 into the grant-in-aid program at the school for the 1973-74 year. This marked the second straight year that the club's goal had been surpassed.

"We really want to thank the directors, membership chairmen, and all of the members for their work during the past year," Norfolk said. "Under President Garner, who is starting his second year at the helm of the Pirate ship, we have made great strides. We hope that we will be able to surpass our goal of a quarter of a million dollars this coming year and continue to improve East Carolina athletics."

During the past two years, Norfolk noted, the Purple-Gold section of Ficklen Stadium has been expanded from 166 to a current 560. The club has also taken over the publication of the football and basketball programs this year, securing the advertising for the book, to be the largest by far ever issued by the university. Dr. Ray Minges headed this project, which will become an important source of grant-in-aid income in the future.

"We feel that we are making giant strides in aiding the university program," Norfolk added. "We will have the first of four annual meetings on Wednesday at the Pirate Club building, to really kick off the drive."

That meeting will begin at 3 p.m. with an executive committee meeting, with the board of directors and community membership chairman meeting at 4 p.m. A dinner will follow at 5 p.m.

The executive committee is made up of President Garner, vice-presidents Joe Hallow of Greenville; Jim Jackson of Midlothian, Va.; and Harold Thomas of Greenville, secretary John Osborne of Durham; treasurer Cliff Moore of Greenville; and past presidents M. W. Aldridge of Greenville and Ed Casey of Grifton.

Maddened Jones Speeds To Pair Of Gold Medals

By BOB CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Reggie Jones doesn't care whether he's known as the world's fastest human. But he'd like for people to know his name.

Jones, angry at being the "unknown runner" behind Steve Williams, sped to two gold medals in the U.S.-USSR track meet Friday.

His efforts weren't enough to keep the Soviets from taking a 90-75 lead in the combined mens' and womens' competition and a 54-49 lead in the mens' events.

But Jones and his teammates from the National Collegiate Athletic Association champions at the University of Tennessee kept a depleted U.S. team from being run out of Duke University stadium.

Jones led Williams in a U.S. sweep of the 100 meters in 10.2 seconds and anchored the 400-yard relay team to a 39.3 second victory.

Fellow Volunteer Darwin Bond outkicked Maurice Peoples to win the 400 meters in 46.1, and Tom Hill and Charles Foster recorded the only other U.S. sweep in the 110 meter hurdles. Hill held Foster off to win in 13.5 seconds.

Today, at least, Jones said, the Russians will know who he is. He said he had read a news story this week quoting a Soviet as saying that Steve Williams and someone else would be running for the U.S.

"That made me mad," he said.

The Soviets had a lot of company in their ignorance until this spring. Jones, a 20-year-old freshman from Saginaw, Mich., burst on the scene when he beat Williams in the NCAA 100-yard championship earlier this year. Friday was his first international competition.

Tom Byers, an Ohio State freshman, led the 1500 meters until the final turn. Then, ac-ording to Byers, he was bumped by a Russian runner and stumbled off the track.

Meet officials and the Soviet runners disagreed and the final ruling was that Byers tripped on the curb and then bumped the Russian.

With Byers stumbling, Russians Vladimir Ponomarev and Vladimir Pantelev swept the race, with Ponomarev recording a time of 3:42.4. "He lost his balance," Ponomarev said through an interpreter. "I think I would have won anyway because I felt great."

Other long American faces belonged to pole vaulter Dave Roberts, who failed to clear any height and recorded no points, and to Charlie McGuire.

McGuire bided his time in the 10,000 meters until the last lap was half over. He spurred into the lead but was soon overtaken by Valentin Zotov. "I started my kick too soon," McGuire said.

The Soviets showed their strength in the field events. Alexsey Spiridonov won the hammer with only one throw, a meet record 244-11. Viktor Saneyev then won the triple jump with 54-4. Vladimir Trofimenko took the pole vault at 16-10 3/4. Viktor Volkin set a Soviet national record with a 67-10 3/4 heave in the shot put.

American women, despite some stellar individual performances, fell behind 36-26. Top performers were high jumper Joni Huntley, quarter miler Debra Sapenter and sprinter Renay Bowen.

Miss Huntley leaped an even 6 feet. Miss Sapenter outkicked Olympian Nadezhda Ilyina to win in 52.1 seconds. Miss Bowen held off the Soviets' Lyudmila Maslakova to win the 100 meters in 11.6.

The Soviet women countered with sweeps in two events and a victory in the 400-yard relay. Faina Melnik copped the discus at 217-6, and Tatiana Kazakina ran away in the 1500 meters in 4:14.4.

Times and distances throughout the day were hampered by intermittent rain.

Alphabetical Dodgers Win On Zahn, Marshall

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Dodgers are having things their own way from A to Z ... from Walter Alston, the dean of major league managers, to their latest headliner, rookie pitcher Geoff Zahn.

Alston pointed Zahn toward the mound for his first start of the season in the second game of a doubleheader in Montreal Friday night and the 27-year-old left-hander pitched seven brilliant innings, allowing only one hit before Mike Marshall came on to preserve the Dodgers' 7-0 triumph. The Expos took the opener 11-6.

Elsewhere in the National League, the St. Louis Cardinals edged the stumbling Cincinnati Reds 3-2, the Philadelphia Phillies flattened the San Diego Padres 8-1, the Houston Astros whipped the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-1, the Chicago Cubs took a pair from the Atlanta Braves 4-1 and 3-2 and the New York Mets nipped the San Francisco Giants 3-2.

Cardinals 3, Reds 2
Pinch hitter Jim Dwyer's tie-breaking two-run single in the eighth inning sparked St. Louis over the reeling Reds.

Joe Torre opened the inning with an infield hit when third baseman Dan Driessen fell down trying to field his ground-er. Ted Simmons doubled Torre to third and Clay Carroll relieved starter Fred Norman. Carroll issued an intentional walk to Bake McBride, loading the bases, and Ken Reitz forced Torre at the plate before Dwyer delivered a single to center.

Phillies 8, Padres 1
Del Unser tripled in two runs and Bob Boone hit a three-run homer in the Phils' five-run first inning. That was more than enough for Steve Carlton, who snapped a personal three-game losing streak with a six-hitter.

Astros 7, Pirates 1
Ex-Pirate Milt May drove in three runs with three hits and Larry Dierker fired a four-hit-ter. May contributed an RBI single to a three-run surge in the first inning against Dock Ellis, singled for a run in the third and doubled across another in the seventh.

Cubs 4-3, Braves 1-2
Andre Thornton hit a leadoff homer in the bottom of the ninth to win the nightcap after the Cubs took the opener on the five-hit pitching of Bill Bonham and Don Kessinger's two-run double in the fifth inning. Thornton jumped on reliever Max Leon's first pitch in the ninth and powered it into the left field seats.

Mets 3, Giants 2
Dave Schneck, who hadn't driven in a run since May 21, delivered a pair of run-scoring singles in support of Jerry Koosman's six-hit pitching. Schneck drove in an unearned run with a second-inning single off loser Jim Barr and singled home the Mets' second run in the fourth. Ted Martinez followed with an RBI double for what proved to be the winning run.

Brazil Hoping For Third Place

By GEOFFREY MILLER
AP Sports Writer
MUNICH, Germany (AP) — Brazil was trying to keep a respectable place on the world soccer map Saturday while doing some drastic rethinking for the future.

The Brazilians, dethroned world champions, faced Poland in a game for third place in the World Cup at Munich's Olympic Stadium.

It was the first day of soccer's big weekend. The show-piece final between West Germany and The Netherlands is set for Sunday.

Even before Brazil had finished its role in the tournament, its team manager, Mario Lobo Zagallo, was talking of radical changes in team-rebuilding before the next World Cup in Argentina in 1978.

"Perhaps only three men in our present team will keep their places in the Brazilian team of the future," Zagallo said frankly.

"In modern football there is no place for those who can only play in one position."

The Brazilian manager was clearly thinking of the Dutch team which beat his squad 2-0 last Wednesday. The Dutch play at high speed with 10 men flung into attack and all ready to fall back on defense when required.

Zagallo's candid talk about the future appeared harsh on some of his stars, like defender Luiz Pereira and hard-shooting midfielder Rivellino, who have made a genuine impact on this World Cup.

Throughout the tournament, the Brazilians have been feeling the loss of the legendary Pele, here only as a spectator. They could find it a tough job overcoming the Poles.

Poland, vastly improved in the last year, reached the semi-finals with the help of two fast wingers, Grzegorz Lato and Robert Gadocha. Lato leads the World Cup scoring with six goals, but Gadocha has been more impressive.

Meanwhile, German police mounted a massive security operation to protect the teams and the large number of distinguished guests, including U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and European royalty, who were expected to watch the two games.

The stadium is only a half-mile from the spot where Arab guerrillas stormed the Israeli team's headquarters during the 1972 Olympics.

Twelve hundred police were being deployed in and around the stadium, with up to 3,000 more close at hand.

Connors To Meet Rosewall In Wimbledon Singles Finals

By FRED COLEMAN
Associated Press Writer
WIMBLEDON, England (AP)

— History had a rare chance to repeat itself here Saturday at staid old Wimbledon, and this time Ken Rosewall could finally win the big one which has always eluded his brilliant reach.

Twenty years ago, Rosewall, only 19, faced veteran Jaroslav Drobny, then 33, in the 1954 Wimbledon final. It was a setting much like today's.

Pickets Will Not Stop Mandich

By The Associated Press

Some 35 Miami Dolphin veterans failed to reach a unified decision on what to do about the six-day-old player strike during a meeting with leaders of their union.

But Miami tight end Jim Mandich said after the Friday night session with officials of the striking National Football League Players Association that he would cross any picket line and would be at camp on July 14, the date Dolphin veterans are scheduled to report.

Meanwhile, the second picket line of the strike was to be set up today at Sam Houston State College in Huntsville, Tex., site of the Houston Oilers' training camp for rookies and free agents. Team officials said 104 players were expected in camp.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFLPA, said in Miami that at least 20 veterans of the Super Bowl champion Dolphins would picket the opening of that team's training camp at Biscayne College Sunday, when 48 rookies and non-regular veterans are expected to report. He vowed the picketing would "go on all day, every day."

pressure on other teams in the league."

Earlier in the week, Langer said that at least 80 per cent of the Dolphin veterans want to play in the All-Star game.

Other than to say he hadn't made up his mind about reporting to camp, Langer declined further comment after Friday night's meeting, but said he planned a statement on Saturday. He had harshly criticized the NFLPA leadership earlier.

The NFLPA went on strike Monday over 63 issues. Among those are the so-called "freedom issues," including the right to negotiate with any team a player wishes and the right of a player to veto trades.

Singing Yankee Bats Shoot Down Rangers

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The New York Yankees drove the Texas Rangers batty Friday night.

Swinging like they haven't done all season, the Yankees socked 20 hits off assorted Texas pitching enroute to a 14-2 romp over the Rangers.

"This was long overdue," said New York Manager Bill Virdon. "We've been struggling lately and a game like this should get us going. At least I hope it gets us going."

The Yankees, who broke a seven-game losing streak with a 6-4 decision over Detroit Thursday night, made it two in a row by humiliating Texas phenom David Clyde.

"The kid has great velocity but he just missed with a lot of pitches tonight," said New York's Bill Sudakis. "He was very close but his problem was that he was not close enough that often."

In the other American League games, the Detroit Tigers took a doubleheader from the Chicago White Sox, 9-6 and 7-4; the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Minnesota Twins 5-3 in the first game of a doubleheader before losing the second 6-4; the Oakland A's tripped the Baltimore Orioles 6-0 and the California Angels downed the Cleveland Indians 7-2. Kansas City and Boston were rained out.

Tigers 9-7, White Sox 6-4
Jim Northrup hit his sixth home run this week and Joe Coleman won for the first time since May 15 as Detroit beat Chicago in the first game of their doubleheader.

Norm Cash and Gates Brown each belted two-run homers and Ed Brinkman drove in two runs with a homer and single, leading the Tigers to their second-game victory.

Brewers 5-4, Twins 3-6
Powered by home runs by Deron Johnson and John Vukovich and aided by a double error by Minnesota third baseman Steve Braun, Milwaukee beat the Twins in their first game of the day.

Larry Hisle belted his 12th home run and three singles, leading Minnesota over Milwaukee in the second game.

A's 6, Orioles 0
Reggie Jackson and Bill North each hit two-run homers to power Jim "Catfish" Hunter and Oakland over Baltimore.

The victory was the fifth straight for Oakland and put the A's five games ahead of the Kansas City Royals in the American League West.

Hoping To Recoup Losses

Robert L. Whitney began the sale with brief remarks Friday before stepping aside to let the auctioneer do his work.
On the block Friday and today were 112 horses, including Whitney's favorite, Beau's Inspiration—along with what horse trailers, pony carts and tack remained of his Nelson County farm.

The 61-year-old horseman built Whitney Stables from an ordinary 201-acre cattle farm purchased in 1955, turning it into a white-fenced showplace of green pastures and immaculate barns.

His string of horses made the green-and-white colors of Whitney Stables famous in show rings throughout the East.

But a tornado slashed through the farm April 3, killing horses, wrecking buildings and tearing up fences.

Since the cost of recovery was prohibitive, what could be salvaged is being sold. Whitney and his wife, Judy, are moving to Lignum, Va., to train Morgan and saddlebred horses for John Hagan, a wealthy auto

American Team Rows Into Finals

By NOEL HUGHES

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England (AP) — The United States schoolboy champions from Holy Spirit High School of Absecon, N.J., sped into the finals of the Princess Elizabeth Challenge Cup for eights at the Henley Royal Regatta Saturday with a smooth semifinal victory over England's Bedford Modern School.

But two other American hopefuls from Kirkland House of Harvard and Potomac Boat Club of Washington, lost over the one-mile, 550-yard River Thames course.

The Holy Spirit eight, stroked by Kenneth Monar, was a half-length up from the start and gradually pulled away in winning by 2-3 lengths in 7:30.

The Holy Spirit youngsters put on a precision display of control rowing, hardly raising their rate above 28 strokes per minute.

The comeback tactics of Kirkland House finally failed in the quarter-finals of the Ladies Challenge Plate for heavy-weight eights.

This time, Kirkland allowed its English opposition, the University of London, to get too far away and despite a rousing finish, the Americans lost by 3 3/4 lengths in 7:17.

In previous rounds, the Kirkland eight had started slowly but finished strongly in scoring narrow victories. But in the quarter-finals, the highly rated London crew calmly swept ahead and stayed there at a leisurely 32 strokes per minute.

Coming to the finish, Kirkland stroke Gene Labarre of Marietta, Ohio, had his crew steaming at 42 strokes per minute, but they hardly dented the London advantage.

The four from the Potomac Boat Club, stroked by John Butler, made its exit in the Wyfold Challenge Cup quarter-finals. It lost by 3 2-3 lengths in 7:51 to England's Leander Club.

"This is an extremely difficult situation for me," Whitney told buyers assembled Friday from as far away as New York, Georgia, Pennsylvania and North Carolina.

"This is a great group of horses and I hate to part with them," he said. "I'm not looking for sympathy or charity, though, so if you see a nice horse—well, try to buy him as cheap as you can."

Whitney said he expected a good price for the chestnut yearling named Beau's Inspiration, a son of the best stallion ever to stand at Whitney Stables, the late Stonewall's Beau Peavine.

"I had high hopes for him," Whitney said. "He ought to bring a nice price. At least $10,000 or $10,500, I hope."

Beau's Inspiration did better than that, though, bringing a top bid of $12,000 from John Hagan of Virginia, whose horses the Whitneys will train.

"I thought if he went at a reasonable price he would wind up in the best hands possible," Hagan said. "And I think the Whitneys should know what to do with him. It'll be kind of a nice way for them to start out with me, don't you think?"

Tennessee Bicentennial Held In Old Capital

By Bill RAWLINS
Associated Press Writer
JONESBORO, Tenn. (AP)—Not since Andy Jackson arrested a man for slicing off a child's ears has this one-time Tennessee capital been so busy.

The 132 members of the legislature are meeting in the northeast Tennessee town (pop. 1,800) for the first time since 1785, to help celebrate its 200th birthday. It's part of "Jonesborough Days," launching the community's effort to put its future in its past, restoring the ears of livestock to their splendor.

It was here in 1785 that the first general assembly of the lost state of Franklin, carved from western North Carolina, sought unsuccessfully to gain federal recognition. When Tennessee joined the union 11 years later, Jonesboro was its first capital.

And it was here in the early 19th century that Judge Andy Jackson, the future president, ordered the arrest of Russell Bean for the ear slicing incident.

Paul M. Fink, Washington County historian, says he has the original warrant.

According to Fink, Bean went down the Tennessee and Mississippi rivers to New Orleans on a three-year trading expedition.

"When he got home, he found this baby on the floor, which didn't seem quite right to him," said Fink, "so he sliced off his ears. At the time, they noticed the ears of livestock to brand them. Bean said he was marking the child so nobody would think it was his."

When Jackson ordered Bean's arrest, Bean got a rifle and started shooting. When the high sheriff said he couldn't arrest him, Jackson did it personally.

Children are faring better in the restored Jonesboro. As the celebration got into full swing Friday night with street dancing and a show by Bob Hope, youngsters munched on cotton candy and hot dogs and wandered happily about the downtown area.

Jonesboro decided to turn back the clock about two or three years ago, Fink recalls, "when the idea grew up with a lot of people that one of the more promising hopes for the town's future was capitalizing on its history."

The electric arc-lights hovering over the downtown streets will be replaced with period lamps, all utility lines will go underground, storefronts will get old looks with new facades.

The legislature itself will convene in joint session outside one of the oldest of the town's buildings, a log cabin built by Christopher Taylor, the founder of one of Tennessee's oldest families.

"This thing will not be completed in my lifetime or yours," said Fink. "It will be a continuing process that we hope will go on and on and on."

Record Lending Rate

NEW YORK (AP) — A new record prime lending rate of 12 per cent has been established, with 18 of the nation's 20 largest commercial banks establishing that level this week.

The prime rate is the interest level which banks charge their biggest and most credit-worthy corporate customers on short-term loans.

The first move to a 12 per cent rate was made Wednesday by Bankers Trust Co. of New York, the nation's seventh largest bank. Then, on Friday, the nation's six largest banks and a number of others followed suit.

For all, the previous rate had been 11 1/2 per cent.

The stock market, meanwhile, had one of its quietest days in years on Friday, with volume at 7.40 million shares.

Refuses To Reduce Bribery Sentence

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—A federal judge has refused to reduce the sentences of two top officials of Norfolk Shipbuilding & Drydock Co. convicted of conspiring to bribe Navy ship inspectors.

John L. Roper III, president of the yard, and his brother, George W. Roper II, a vice president, Friday asked U.S. District Court Judge Walter F. Hoffman to reduce their sentences from four months to 30 days.

Defense attorney Walther B. Martin said the Navy has imposed extra punishment on the men by insisting the Ropers and five others convicted in the case be removed from their jobs for more than two years if the yard is to get Navy work.

The Navy has dropped the shipyard from yards approved for Navy work.

The Ropers are in Allenwood Federal Prison near Lewisburg, Pa.

Edgar L. Pickler Jr., executive vice president of the shipyard, and Wesley D. Payne, an assistant vice president, have 91-day sentences to serve in Allenwood, which they will begin in September.

Rafael Torrech III, chief estimator; Carlos Agnese, Torrech's assistant, and Dan H. Knight, purchasing agent, have completed 30-day jail terms imposed by Hoffman.

Martin argued that the Navy has given the shipyard two choices: If the yard is to get Navy work, the officials must go; if the officials stay, the Navy will go.

He said this "is extrajudicial punishment within itself."

HE DRINKS SO DRIVERS WON'T—Ted Brown, a disc jockey for a New York radio station, demonstrates a program Thursday. Brown became progressively befuddled, and forgot the name of his station as well as his home telephone number. He went through the demonstration to try to keep people from drinking before driving. Home Rates Increased WASHINGTON (AP) — The maximum interest rate on federally insured home mortgages is being increased to a record 9 per cent, effective Monday.

The increase from the previous rate of 8.75 per cent was prompted by the continuing rise in market interest rates, officials said Friday in announcing the boost.

"This continuing rise in the cost of money forces us to increase the maximum rate FHA (Federal Housing Administration) will insure so that prospective home buyers will continue to Clamping Down On Capital Lobbyists Thornsby. . .

EDITOR'S NOTE — Washington Lobbyists. They're often called the fourth branch of government. They might also be described as the least regulated branch. Now, stimulated by Watergate, a handful of congressmen have introduced legislation that would make a lobbyist's daily activities public record.

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Andrew Biemiller, chief lobbyist for the AFL-CIO, was testifying before a House Committee recently on legislation in which organized labor had an interest. Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., was a member of the Committee.

"Congressman Zablocki..." Biemiller began in his gravelly voice.

"Andy," the congressman interrupted, "why don't you call me Clem like you always do."

An anti-labor lobbyist witnessed the exchange.

"My guys tell me that poor son of a gun jumped out of his skin when Clem said that," chortles Biemiller.

And chortle he might. Good old Clem had served with good old Andy when Andy was Congressman Biemiller, also a Wisconsin Democrat.

"I helped get him elected," Biemiller notes in passing.

"It's just the kind of thing politicians do for each other. I mean, you're part of the club. It's that simple."

Biemiller 67, is indeed part of the club. Some might say he's president. He is one of nearly 2,000 registered Washington lobbyists, a band of men and women who have advanced the First Amendment's right to petition Congress to a high art form.

But the very word lobbyist conjures up vision of Dita Beard, laundered money, milk industry campaign contributions, oil company influence.

"When I go back home and tell people I'm a lobbyist, it's much the same as saying I'm a pimp," says one lobbyist who believes devoutly in anonymity.

At least seven bills are before Congress to revise the 1946 law which still regulates lobbying. A chief revision would require lobbyists to keep logs of whom they see, why they are seeing them and who is paying them for their efforts. The 1946 law specifies only registration and listing of expenses.

Even in the nation's capital, where everyone knows what everyone else is doing, there are euphemisms for lobbyists: "legislative liaison man," "legislative counsel," "vice president in charge of government relations."

On the other hand, elected officials speak freely about the invaluable role the lobbyist often plays. Mike McPherson, administrative assistant to Rep. William Clay, D-Mo., give an illustration:

"When there is any education bill up, the National Education Association is, of course, vitally interested. They're as knowledgeable about any education act as any member of the committee. They're able to bring in information he don't have. They have resources not available to us in terms of statistics, field interviews, the results of existing legislation. They bring important insights into the operation. They know whether or not a piece of legislation needs to be continued or whether we're just spinning our wheels."

The good lobbyist, according to Biemiller, will present the opposition's viewpoint — with, of course, arguments to refute it.

Almost anyone is free to lobby. But the name of the game is good connections and expertise.

Take Charles (sic) Walker. He's got both, he hung out his consultant shingle 18 months ago, and blue-chip America queued up; General Motors, Ford, Procter & Gamble, Allied Chemical General Electric Alcoa and Bethlehem Steel, to name a few.

Not that these giants were without lobbyists. But they wanted the Walker touch, and the Walker connection.

He was an Undersecretary of the Treasury; the man who personally fired G. Gordon Liddy in 1972 from his job as Treasury Department Lawyer. Walker's a Republican and a man who once prompted Lyndon B. Johnson to refer to him admiringly as an "S.O.B. with elbows."

He also was a Treasury Department official under Dwight Eisenhower and close friends are on the House Ways and Means and the Senate Finance Committees.

"Superlobbyist?" he asks. "That's another one of those exaggerations. We just try and work efficiently for our clients."

Nearly everyone seems to agree that the 1946 lobbying law still in force is a poor one.

"There were never any hearings on it," says Milton Smith, chief counsel for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. "It was tacked on to a congressional reorganization bill... Nobody is even sure who wrote it and nobody paid any attention to it."

Periodic attempts have been made to pass a new law. Until Watergate, no one showed much interest. Sen. Robert Stafford, Sen. Robert Stafford, R-Vt., for example introduced reform legislation several years ago. But no one came to the hearings on his bill, and it died from neglect.

"Not even the league of Women Voters seemed to care," Stafford said.

In the climate of Watergate morality, Stafford has re-submitted his reform bill. Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., has introduced another, similar bill and there were five before the House at the beginning of summer.

Lobbyists, in interviews, say the 1946 law is so vaguely worded that the requirements to register and to list expenses probably could be bypassed. The reform legislation would remove the vagueness, as well as requiring lobbyists to keep logs of their daily contacts and their sources of income.

The public thus would be able to know how much time and money went into influencing a specific piece of legislation.

Common Cause, which listed $934,835.67 for lobbying expenses last year — the highest of all lobbies — strongly supports reform legislation.

Good lobbying often is a question of knowing when to do precisely the right thing. Take the congressman who had just had the same operation as George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO. In fact, Meany had helped the congressman get the same doctor and had called with cheer and advice.

Afterwards, Biemiller, the lobbyist, called. The Congressman had voted "no" on a land reform bill once before. After small talk, Biemiller got down to business. "What I really called you about is to ask whether you could give us a 'yes' vote on that issue." The congressman answered: "Since you asked, Andy, yes."

"That doesn't happen often," Biemiller says. "And I'd never ask anyone to vote with me as a matter of friendship."

Sometimes you don't have to ask.

"Wait 'til they find out mine is 1/8" higher than theirs!"

Romania Builds A Resort Strip

By NICK LUDINGTON
MAMAIA, Romania (AP) — Romania is trying to develop its Black Sea coast so you could take a summer stroll along the 125 miles of beach from Russia to Bulgaria without stepping on anything but a sun-oiled beach.

The potential, said Renato Iliescu, spokesman of the Tourism Ministry, is for one million sunbathers, all lying on the beach at the same time, each with a square of sand six by ten feet.

Since 1958, Romania has developed resorts along the southernmost 45 miles of its coast with beds for 100,000 tourists in hotels and villas. They are mostly packed during summer.

The Romanian Riviera last year contributed an estimated $100 million to the country's balance of payments.

About 750,000 foreign tourists stayed on the Black Sea coast, half from socialist countries and half from the West, Iliescu said.

Mamaia is the northernmost of the resorts, next to the busy port of Constanta. At the time of the Communist takeover in 1948, Mamaia had one 400-bed hotel, a few private villas and a dowdy summer palace for Romania's royal family.

Now Mamaia, a modest Miami Beach on a strip of sand between the sea and Lake Stuhol, has 45 hotels with 35,000 beds.

Further south is the 25,000-bed resort of Eforie built around a health center offering various forms of physical therapy and baths in the mud of Lake Tekirgol. Romanians claim this black goo, formed of ancient, decayed plants, is an effective treatment for rheumatism, skin disorders and other ailments.

Further south from the lowly mud of Lake Tekirgol, the tourist orbits among the planet-resorts of Neptune, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn, all built since 1967 with a total of 40,000 beds.

In one of the modernistic top-class hotels, called deluxe but not up to Western deluxe standards, a double room costs $25 with breakfast. A clean but simple double in one of the more modest hotels costs $15 a day. There are private villas with shaded gardens just back from the beach for $50 a day and up.

The attractions of the Romanian coast in summer are uninterrupted sun, fine sand, shallow ocean bathing and no sharks or pollution.

Iliescu conceded that the level of services and recreational facilities is not yet up to standards required, particularly by American tourists. He said only a disappointing 25,000 Americans visited Romania last year.

There are no golf courses, a few scattered mini-golf games, tennis courts, outdoor bowling courts and pinball machines. There are small boats for rent and waterskiing in the lakes. Tours of a day or more are offered to scenic and historic sites around Romania as well as side trips by air to Moscow, Istanbul and Athens.

Wooden Boat To Soon Disappear

ST AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — If you want photographs of those quaint wooden fishing boats, take your pictures now because they are about to go the way of the old frigates.

Following the lead of recreational boat makers, commercial yards are switching to fiber glass reinforced plastic for the material's safety and durability advantages.

A manufacturing company here, the nation's largest producer of shrimp boats, has been phasing into fiber glass for four years.

Sex Discrimination Cases Are Plaguing U.S. Supreme Court

By CHARLOTTE MOULTON WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sex discrimination cases continue to plague the Supreme Court, which is in disagreement over how to rule on them.

The latest problem concerns Social Security benefits for men and women with minor children whose spouses have died. The law provides benefits for widows but not widowers.

A special three-judge federal court in New Jersey found the statute unconstitutional on Jan. 28. The court barred Caspar W. Weinberger, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, from denying benefits to widowers "solely on the basis of sex."

The panel stayed its own order to allow an appeal to the Supreme Court. The appeal has been filed by the Justice Department, but the court is unlikely to act on it until fall.

The successful challenge to the law was made by Stephen C. Wisenfeld, whose wife had been a teacher in Edison, N.J. She died during childbirth on June 5, 1972, leaving her husband with the care of an infant son.

Harder for Widows? Wisenfeld worked for a Springfield, N.J., firm for part of 1973 but at the time his case was heard was unemployed. He has master's degrees both in mathematics and business administration.

The Social Security Office in New Brunswick, N.J., allowed him insurance benefits for the child but none for himself, although maximum contributions had been deducted from his wife's salary during her years as a teacher.

The government argued in the lower court there is no constitutional defect in the federal program because it is harder for the survivors to replace income when a husband dies than when a wife dies.

This reasoning governed the Supreme Court's decision in April upholding a Florida tax law granting an annual $500 exemption to widows—but not widowers. The ruling came after the New Jersey court's action in the Wisenfeld case.

The panel found that, while Congress might have intended to rectify past and present discrimination against women, the effect is just the opposite because Paula Wisenfeld's sur-living spouse and child receive smaller Social Security benefits than would the family of a deceased male teacher who earned the same salary and made the same payments.

Inherently Suspect In so ruling, the panel said classifications based on sex are "inherently suspect"—as are those based on race—and must pass a test of "close judicial scrutiny" to gain approval.

Women's rights advocates have been urging the Supreme Court for several years to take this approach, but until now it has declined to do so.

The Social Security Administration has estimated that the cost of father's benefits under the lower court's decision would be $20 million for fiscal 1974.

In another recent sex discrimination case the court ruled 6 to 3 on June 17 that states can deny disability insurance payments for normal pregnancies while granting it for males incapacitated by prostate trouble or circumcision, which affect only members of their sex.

Justices William J. Brennan Jr., William O. Douglas and Thurgood Marshall viewed the decision as a "retreat" from recent decisions in this area, which tended to give women a somewhat better break without actually finding sex a "suspect classification."

Estate Administrators For instance, in 1971 in an Idaho case the court ruled that states may not give preference to males in providing for appointment of estate administrators. And last year it required the military to accord women in the armed forces the same dependency benefits as male members.

Brennan, Douglas, Marshall and Justice Bryon R. White have urged the court to place gender-based laws in a "suspect classification," but have been unable to win the one more vote to gain a court majority for this viewpoint.

The argument rests on the Constitution's guarantee of "equal protection of the laws"—the provision on which have rested so many decisions in favor of blacks.

Meantime the Equal Rights Amendment, which bars governmental discrimination based on sex, is making the rounds of state legislatures and could settle all the disputes eventually.

SALES
with a small time philosophy
We believe that the salesperson is the most important person in our Company, and this philosophy has helped us become one of the fastest growing industrial corporations in America today.
The average commission income of our salespeople is $18,000-$20,000 annually their first year, and this figure grows substantially by the second and third years. They are backed by a drawing account up to $300 weekly, and an excellent program of fringe benefits for family security.
The exceptional quality of our industrial products and their use by nearly every type of business and organization have created a virtually ideal sales situation that can easily lead to sales management responsibility.
Sound interesting? We believe it should if you want income security, opportunity, limited travel and time to spend with your family. No previous sales or technical background necessary for the right person.

INTERESTING FACTS

Did you know that the man who invented crossword puzzles originally called them "word-cross" puzzles, but a printing error made it come out "cross-word" instead of "word-cross" and since it appeared that way in the newspaper the first day, it was decided to let it stand in that form.

Thus, one of our most famous expressions exists by accident.

The creator was Arthur Wynn. His first puzzle appeared in the New York World on Dec. 21, 1913.

And, here's another interesting fact . . . excellent financing is available on BRAND NEW homes located at Ayden Golf and Country Club! 7 3/4 per cent interest! 3 bedroom homes with 2 full baths, all have entrance foyer, living room, dining room, kitchen with dining area, family room and garage. CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A curious day and evening. By taking advantage of some up-to-date ideas, equipment, or formulas you can get much of value accomplished, but if you stick to the usual you are apt to come to a full stop, or to have disappointments hard to eradicate. Keep alert.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get together with progressive pals and avoid the bores. Attend some brilliant social affair. Stick to facts and don't go off on any tangents.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Contact a powerful person and get the right advice on how to advance your own position in the world. Avoid those with inflated egos. Keep poised.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) An up-to-date formula along with needed data can help you progress faster. Taking risks of any sort could be dangerous now, so stay on the safe side.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Find out how friends solve problems you have now, and get them straightened out quickly. Reach better understanding with associate. Don't be so suspicious.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Try to get on the good side of successful people and climb on the bandwagon. Use that information you have intelligently. Avoid foolish ventures.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study how to do your regular work more intelligently for greater rapport with co-workers. Help that fine pleasant pal who has done you many favors.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You can now enjoy new amusements, so get out of that rut. Take no chances with one who wants you to spend beyond your means.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study the conditions at home and do your utmost to make them more beautiful, comfortable, operative. Decide what new items are needed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try to adhere to standards that have long been found to be right and stop playing the field. Then be off to the hobbies you like with good friends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Enlarge your consciousness for greater income to keep up with mounting expenses. A newly rich person can give you pointers on how he or she did it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Use your fine ability to gain personal aims with relative ease, and try to please closest friends. Diplomatically contact those who can give you needed data.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Good day to gain needed knowledge from fine books or experts. Use your hunches in making plans for the future.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will want to break away from old conventions and bring about radical New Age ideas of his or her own. This could prove to be very valuable to the masses. Be sure to send to the right schools where both old and new knowledge is taught, and freedom of thought is encouraged. Don't neglect spiritual training early, or your progeny could go astray. Give some kind of musical lessons.

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime is fine for utilizing your fine psychic qualities and developing a successful plan of action for the future. Some confusion appears later and it would be unwise to make any important decisions.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Plan joint activities with members of your family, but don't try to do too much in a short time. Make mutual long-range plans.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Discuss your particular aims with good friends and gain their cooperation for attaining them. Don't neglect to pay important bill.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You can easily make headway now in the business world. Don't discuss your plans with an associate who is not in the right mood.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A new mode of living will give you more of the world's goods. Handle those drugeries which you have been postponing.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Take steps to improve your surroundings and get rid of whatever is obsolete. Try not to spend too much money for entertainment.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Talking over joint affairs and individual motivations with associates can bring about better understanding. Use your wisdom.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Engage in work without delay while you are enthused. Then you can keep a personal appointment. Home is your safest bet tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have an opportunity to enjoy a coveted social event today, so be sure to do so. Show more devotion to family. Be wise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Discuss the future more intelligently with kin and show you will cooperate with them more. Keep private worry a secret.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make plans for the future and get the approval of associates before putting them into operation. Forget the social temporarily.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A good day to get down to practical affairs and get excellent results. Avoid a friend who has nothing to do but waste your time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't be afraid to state your aims to good friends who can help you achieve them. Steer clear of a bigwig who is irritable right now.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be able to see and hear things that others cannot, so don't try to fool your gifted progeny. Plan for an expansive kind of education and screen playmates carefully early in life for best results. The field of science is fine here. Be sure to give ethical and religious training.

Little Zip In European Auto-Makers

By THADDEUS C. KOPINSKI

BONN (UPI) — Automobiles are crowding the European highways this summer as if the fuel crisis never happened.

But not so many of them are new ones. And some automotive industry leaders predict that in some countries this will be the worst year car manufacturers have had in a long time.

In Germany, Volkswagen chairman Rudolf Leiding moaned that "1974 without a doubt will be the hardest year in the history of the VW works."

The company has announced it expects to end the year in the red for the first time.

Holland's DAF Company director Leo van Dongen said, "The measures around the oil crisis, to wit fuel restrictions, car-less Sundays and speed limits, have shaken the faith of drivers in the free use of the automobile in such a way that the purchase or replacement of the automobile was delayed and the money used for buying some other durable goods."

A spokesman for France's Renault works voiced a more optimistic view saying, "Most people are already forgetting the gasoline price hike and by the end of the year large models will be selling again."

Hard Times

One thing seems clear—between the cost and price increases on the one hand and psychological factors on the other, Europe's auto producers, like their American and Japanese counterparts, are in for a hard time in the near future.

With few exceptions, domestic sales have plummeted, as have exports. Production cut-backs, which resulted in large-scale lay-offs together with price increases, combined into a vicious circle whose end result has been an even smaller demand for the automobile.

In West Germany production in the first four months of this year was 17.1 per cent below 1973. In the first quarter, Holland's output decreased 32.5 per cent, and Great Britain's was down 19.2 per cent.

This has meant that West German car factories have had to lay off at various times this year more than 100,000 of their workers.

Of Volkswagen's 125,000 employees, 45,000 have been put on short work shifts, with five of the manufacturer's six factories at an almost complete standstill.

Holland's DAF assembly plant in Born switched to a three-day work week in the first quarter.

Compact Cars
Britain's Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders

said it expected production to drop 30 per cent this year to 1.1 million vehicles, compared with last year's output of 1.6 million. "Production is likely to be hit by shortages of manufacturing materials and components and sales generally could suffer from the big increases in the cost of motoring due mainly to the sharp rise in petrol (gasoline) prices," a Society spokesman said.

Some manufacturers are looking for a solution in switching production to compact economy cars. Volkswagen already has begun drafting plans for an even smaller model than its highly successful "Beetle."

It also has begun production of a mini station wagon—the "Golf".

Ford has announced a new small model Escort to be made in Spain, and West Germany's General Motors subsidiary Opel will follow suit with its own economy model versions. Even in Sweden, Italy and France, which held their own or even improved production, the strains are beginning to show, especially in the export markets.

STRAIGHT TALK ABOUT SUMMER ELECTRIC RATES

Questions Most Frequently Asked

Q. When do summer electric rates go into effect?

A. Summer rates will apply to all electric bills rendered between July 1st and October 31st of each year. Greenville Utilities has been using seasonal rate schedules since 1971. They are the same as our power supplier, Virginia Electric Power Company.

Q. Just what are summer electric rates?

A. All of Greenville Utilities electric rate schedules are "seasonal." One schedule applies to electric energy billed during the peak use months, July through October. Another schedule applies to the off-peak use months of November through June.

Q. What is the difference between the Residential Summer & Winter Rate Schedules?

A. Both rate schedules are the step type. The bottom step in the summer schedule is 2.20c per KWH, while the bottom step in the winter schedule is 1.17c per KWH.

Q. What does this mean in cost to consumers?

A. The consumer's cost for various levels of use under summer and winter schedules are as follows:

KWH	Summer			Winter
	Reg. Rate	Fuel Charge	Total	Reg. Rate	Fuel Charge	Total
600	$14.57	$3.60	$18.17	$14.57	$3.60	$18.17
1000	23.37	6.00	29.37	20.34	6.00	26.34
2000	45.37	12.00	57.37	33.40	12.00	45.40
3000	67.37	18.00	85.37	45.10	18.00	63.10
5000	111.37	30.00	141.37	68.50	30.00	98.50

NOTE: Costs are based on Residential Rates with Water Heater and $0.006-KWH Fuel Adjustment Charge.

Q. Why are summer rates higher than winter rates?

A. For three reasons: First: the rate Greenville Utilities must pay VEPCO for electric power is higher in the summer months than during the winter months. Second, electric distribution system losses are significantly higher during the hot summer months. When applied to the high fossil fuel adjustment charge being paid to VEPCO, this cost becomes considerable. Third, in order to deliver the high demand for electric energy during the summer months, Greenville Utilities must provide extra large electric facilities. These extra facilities are about 50 percent larger than needed for fall-winter-spring loads. The summer rates are set higher so that the consumers who create the demand for the extra larger facilities pay according to the cost-to-serve their demand.

Q. Why not have an "average" rate year around somewhere between the summer and winter rates?

A. Because the consumer who creates the high summer demand would not pay a fair share of the cost to serve high summer peak loads, while the consumer who does not require the extra facilities would pay more than a fair share of the cost-to-serve. Seasonal rate structures are used simply because they provide a more equitable sharing of cost-to-serve electric consumers.

Q. How much should it cost to air condition an "average" home?

A. There are many factors that determine how much electric energy is required to air condition a residence. Some of the factors include; (1) the size of the home, (2) how it is insulated, (3) how the thermostat is set, (4) how other appliances in the home are used, (5) efficiency of the air conditioning system, and (6) the weather. With this many variables it is not possible to estimate an "average" cost to air condition a home.

Q. With cost of electricity so high, how can a family afford to air condition their home?

A. Air conditioning a home is just like other "things" we buy. Each individual must place a priority on air conditioning along with other needs and desires. And since every other product and service we buy today is high, and constantly going up, it is extremely difficult to set priorities.

Q. How much more will electric energy cost this summer over last summer?

A. For the same usage as last summer the cost will be up about 20 to 25 per cent, and this is due entirely to the fossil fuel adjustment charge paid to VEPCO.

Q. Do commercial and industrial customers also pay on a seasonal rate?

A. Yes. All rate structures are designed to fairly represent the cost-to-service, including the higher cost of summer loads.

Q. Where can we get some information on how to cut back on electric usage?

A. A number of pamphlets are available in our main office which give practical suggestions on how to save on your electric bill. They are free and will be mailed to you on request.

Guidance Counselor Active In Community

By GAIL MICHAELS
Teenagers haven't changed much, at least as far as Betty Speir is concerned.

"People are people, and young people are young people," said Mrs. Speir, one of the two guidance counselors at North Pitt. "There are more students at North Pitt, but when I taught in Farmville and Bethel the problems were about the same. It just takes some young people time to grow up; they don't all mature at the same time."

She added that drugs might possibly be a bit more prevalent but that she is almost certain that cheating has not increased significantly. "One group of students is surprisingly like the last."

Mrs. Speir is a Bethel native and a graduate of Duke University. She taught for one year in Farmville and when her youngest daughter was six, she began teaching at Bethel High School. In 1963, she obtained a masters degree in education, with a major in English, and in 1967 she received her Masters in guidance.

The two counselors at North Pitt, Mrs. Speir and Miss Pencie Nixon, see every student during the school year, but those with problems usually come in voluntarily instead of being referred by a teacher. The problems overwhelmingly revolve around the student's search for identity. "The major problem we encounter is people coming to grips with what they want to be in life and how they see themselves," said Mrs. Speir.

She added that the rapid industrialization of the county contributes to these identity crises. "Industry coming in has caused increased difficulty in adjustment. There's been a change in lifestyle. This has always been an easygoing agricultural area with no strict time schedule except during planting season. Then, all of a sudden, the parents are involved in industrial jobs. It means more money but a stricter time schedule. And, whereas the mother was always home, she may be working a shift now. So the student is not responsible to an adult during the day. This means that the students have to learn to adjust to more personal freedom sooner."

Parental Advice
Having taught for so many years while raising two daughters of her own, Mrs. Speir is well-equipped to help students to solve their problems. "Usually they just need to talk about a problem—they come up with their own solutions," Mrs. Speir said. Those solutions frequently involve seeking parental advice, an action which Mrs. Speir strongly encourages. Evidently many teenagers visualize a generation gap that doesn't actually exist. "That's the nicest thing—when students, who didn't think their parents would understand, come back and say the parents stood behind them," she said.

The increasing urban and industrial orientation of the county is not only causing a general reevaluation of goals but it is causing young women to view themselves in a new light.

"There is a great change in the aspirations of the girls. It's very seldom that I talk to a girl now who's planning to get married and stay at home. Even in the early sixties, it was the primary ambition. Even if a girl went to college, she wanted to stay at home. I really believe girls are now serious about careers earlier than boys are. It seems very important to these girls to be independent."

The numerous changes in lifestyle have produced pressures on the schools to provide programs that better suit the needs of today's pupil. Mrs. Speir feels that the schools are really making an effort to meet these demands from both the students and the public. "There are more programs now than, say, 10 years ago," Mrs. Speir asserted. "And there are more special programs. For example, North Pitt has a special Spanish Culture program. The students don't have to contend with grammar, but they do learn about the people. They may not be able to speak perfect Spanish, but they feel they've really accomplished something when they finish the course. The schools still have problems, but at least they're trying to solve them."

One program which Mrs. Speir endorses wholeheartedly is levels. The school places students in different classes according to their ability. Thus, a very fast learner will not be hindered in his ability to go through the material, while a slower student can advance at a more leisurely pace.

"Surprisingly enough, our students will pick the correct level for themselves about 95 per cent of the time," Mrs. Speir said. This does not completely solve the academic needs of the students, however. "Of course, you can't isolate students from their background or their parents. A child might have the mentality to go to a university, but if he and his parents don't see him in that setting, he won't go, or, if he does, he won't stay."

Discipline

Although the schools are increasingly conceding to student demands, Mrs. Speir does not believe that students should be allowed total freedom in the school setting. She feels strongly that teenagers need and want discipline both at home and in the schools. "I've found that what youngsters respond to best is not having a lot of petty little rules but having definite limits set for important things and knowing they have to observe those limits."

Mrs. Speir readily admits that there are some problems which she and school officials are not equipped to handle. There are many Pitt County agencies which work with the schools and individual students, who, for one reason or another, are not responsive to regular school programs. North Pitt has its own vocational rehabilitation counselor and works closely with agencies such as the Pitt County Mental Health Department, the Development Evaluation Clinic, Social Services, and

Sheltered Workshop. Mrs. Speir also singled out the many ministers and court counselors, who are instrumental in convincing children to stay in school.

Optimistic about the future of both the schools and students, Mrs. Speir concluded, "Teachers and educators in general are doing a splendid job now. Conditions haven't been the easiest in the last four or five years, but everybody is putting forth extra effort. They are determined that the new schools in Pitt County are going to be a success. And we are seeing progress now. Each year the behavior's a little bit better, and even the test scores seem to be improving."

Mrs. Speir does not confine her talent to her occupation. She is extremely active in community affairs. She is a director for the Sheltered Workshop and secretary of the Pitt Memorial Gifts Committee, which will be raising funds for the new hospital in the fall. She is district representative for the North Carolina Arts Society and served for four years on the Commission on the Employment of Women. In addition to these activities, she finds time for her hobbies: ceramics, gardening, and reading.

Favorite Interest

Perhaps her favorite outside interest, however, is her extensive work in politics. A few years ago, when she was president, Pitt County's Democratic Women hosted the State Convention of Democratic Women. She is vice chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee and has worked a great deal with the Teen-Dems. She was also a member of the committee that recently rewrote the plan of organization of the North Carolina Democratic Party.

Mrs. Speir's enthusiasm for politics is inspiring. "Politics deals directly with people, and I think people are fascinating," she said. "It's one way to build good government, too—you have to operate through political parties."

Although her father and grandfather were active Democrats, she claims that her political affiliation is predominantly due to her beliefs, not family tradition. "I am a Democrat because of my beliefs mainly. The longer I stay in the party, the more I know I belong."

Obviously, it takes an exceptional woman to combine all these activities with a career and family. Mrs. Speir doesn't attempt to minimize the difficulties of such an active schedule. "It's great now when the girls are in college. The most difficult time was when the girls were in high school. That's the most demanding time for a mother. But I think perhaps we all profited from my bringing home a fresh viewpoint."

SOME PROBLEMS REQUIRE TWO HEADS... Guidance counselors Betty Speir and Pencie Nixon discuss the cumulative folder of a student to determine what she must take to graduate next year.

Statewide Survey Pinpoints

Low Pay Received By School Food Personnel

By WILSON DAVIS
UNC-G News Bureau

GREENSBORO—A survey of over 1,500 school cafeteria managers in North Carolina has revealed that their salaries are generally low, that over half will be retiring within 15 years and that two-thirds of them feel the need for additional training.

The survey was conducted by Miss Mildred B. Davis, a faculty member in the School of Home Economics at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. She is director of a federally-funded project entitled, "Operation Improvement—Child Nutrition Programs," which is focusing on increasing nutrition education and training for school food service personnel in the state.

The survey includes responses from 1,575 of the state's slightly over 2,000 school cafeteria managers.

A salient finding in the resulting data concerned the low salaries being paid to school food service managers in North Carolina. In her written report, Miss Davis summed it up this way: "Salaries are generally low and about one-third are working for less than a minimum wage for an eight-hour day, 40-hour week, for nine months."

In releasing the report, however, she pointed out that the survey was taken during the spring of 1973, and that since then—on May 1, 1974, coverage under the new federal minimum wage has been extended to school food service managers and workers. The hourly rate under the federal minimum wage as of May 1, is $1.90 per hour, and on Jan. 1, 1975, it will go up to $2 per hour.

According to the survey, salaries vary considerably among school food service managers in the state. However, at the time of the study, only 19 were making more than $5,000 a year (nine months). A majority—89.2 percent of those surveyed—were earning between $2,000 and $3,800 per nine-month year, and 55.1 percent were earning less than $3,200 per nine-month year. The survey points out that the latter figure is considered poverty level income.

The report noted that salary information taken out of context in the survey—without regard to months employed and hours worked—is invalid. It also revealed that 96.8 percent of those surveyed where employed nine months per year. Moreover, approximately 1,200—or 70.5 percent of those surveyed—worked an eight-hour day. A total of 442—or 26 percent worked six hours per day.

Ralph Eaton, director of the School Food Service Division within the State Department of Public Instruction in Raleigh, said in a recent interview that the salary information in the study was "certainly revealing to me, because we had not done such a survey."

Eaton added that he is delighted that the new minimum wage law of $1.90 per hour now covers the state's approximately 13,000 school cafeteria employees. "We think this is certainly a step forward for most of our school food service employees," he added. "However, even with these new rates that local administrative units will be required to pay food service workers, we still think it's highly inadequate to attract the caliber of people we would like to see in food service."

The $1.90 per hour minimum wage law was mandated to go into effect last month, Eaton stated.

He noted that the school food service is a big business in North Carolina, spending approximately $80 million a year and producing about 900,000 meals per school day all over the state.

Much of that $80 million per year comes from the U. S. Department of Agriculture which has heavily subsidized the school cafeteria program since 1946 when the National School Lunch Act was passed by Congress. Other than U.S.D.A. subsidies, the school cafeteria feeding program must be largely self-supporting, paying employees' salaries out of operating expenses.

How can the local schools afford to pay cafeteria employees the higher salary required by law now in view of the fact that they were paying the low salaries revealed in the survey earlier?

"We realize that local schools will experience, in many cases, extreme difficulty in meeting the new minimum wage and hour salary requirements," responded Eaton. In order to do it, local school administrative units and individual schools must make every effort to intensify their training programs and bring about improved management, he added.

Another source of financial help lies in the possibility of adjusted rates of reimbursement from the U.S.D.A., Eaton observed. He added that there are several bills pending in Congress which would, if passed, increase the reimbursement rate from the U.S.D.A. and provide increased food donations to further assist in meeting the new wage requirements.

Eaton emphasized, however, that improved training of workers and improved management in cafeterias are "musts" in view of increasing costs of food, labor and equipment in school food service work.

He also stated, "I think we're going to have to continue to push for additional state and local support from tax dollars if we're going to stay in the school food service business."

And he noted that research has shown that "you cannot teach a hungry child." Despite the bleak picture of low salaries for school food service workers revealed in the survey, Eaton said that much progress has been made in upgrading these wages over the years. "I recall about 12 years ago, we still had people making about 45 cents an hour. But since then, we have seen many administrative units put into effect pay incentive plans and merit increments based on workers' self improvement through training courses."

The survey reported that 51.4 per cent of the school cafeteria managers are over 50 years of age, and Eaton said this is a significant finding. "This means that in about 12 years or so we can anticipate that more than half of the managers will have to be replaced. Where are the local schools going to get these people? ... To begin with there are not this many people who are qualified—at any salary. So the big job we still have to do is to continue to train the people we can attract" and develop their capabilities.

The study noted that the managers surveyed are receptive to additional training. Approximately 69 per cent of those queried indicated they need additional knowledge in their work. Those surveyed reported that they have completed 4,471 training courses, which averages out to just over 2½ courses each.

According to the survey, three-fourths of the 2,575 cafeteria managers have a high school education, and one-fourth have less than a high school diploma.

The "Operation Improvement—Child Nutrition Programs" under which the survey was conducted is now in its second and final year as a federally-funded project. The program is functioning under a $144,675 grant from the U.S.D.A., and it is being operated under a contract from the School Food Service Division of the State Department of Public Instruction.

Objectives of the project are:

—To develop standards and requirements for the certification of school food service workers in North Carolina.

—To develop contents for educational courses designed to meet these criteria.

—To conduct seminars for training of personnel involved in school food service work and personnel responsible for special food service programs for children.

Miss Davis, the director of the project, said she feels the survey data strongly supports the need for developing and implementing standards for certification for school food service personnel and for developing strong and comprehensive training programs. This action would not only improve competencies in work performance, but would also bring added status and recognition to those who carry out the school food service program, she asserted.

Miss Susan Leggett Is Bride

Miss Susan Marlowe Leggett became the bride of Joel Grant Hancock Saturday afternoon at four o'clock in a garden wedding at her home on East Rock Spring Road, Greenville. James Woodie Britt, branch president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Calvin Leggett of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie William Hancock of Harkers Island.

Prior to the ceremony a program of wedding music was rendered by Miss Anna White, organist, and David Howell, oboist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an all silk empire gown with a portrait neckline which was encircled with tiny pearls and finished with crystal pleated ruffle edged with Venise lace. The long sleeves were finished with matching ruffles and lace, accented with pearls. The waistline was enhanced with lace trim and accented with an attached white satin bow with long streamers in the back. The skirt, styled with a deep crystal pleated flounce edged with Venise lace, extended into a chapel length train.

Her veil of silk illusion fell from a Camelot cap covered with Venise lace and pearls. She carried a tapered cascade bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids with sprays of miniature carnations and ivy tied with white satin ribbon.

Miss Amy Malene Leggett was maid of honor and Mrs. Halvor Moe was matron of honor. Both are sisters of the bride. They wore formal gowns of pale pink chiffon with a portrait neckline trimmed in white lace. The long full sleeves were trimmed in matching white lace at the wrist and the full skirts ended in a deep ruffle. They wore headpieces of miniature pink and white carnations sprayed with baby's breath and carried nosegays of miniature pink and white carnations tied with pink satin bows with long streamers.

Miss Deena Hancock, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. She wore a formal gown of pink dotted swiss trimmed in white lace at the neckline and short sleeves. She wore a pink satin ribbon in her hair and carried a basket of pink and white summer flower petals.

Jonathan Wayne Willis of Raleigh, nephew of the bridegroom, was best man. Groomsmen were William C. Byrd III of Kinston and Mohammad R. Saba of Tehran, Iran, and Greenville.

The bride's mother wore a formal gown of pale green silk jersey designed with a V-neckline and long sleeves. She wore matching accessories and an orchid corsage.

The bridegroom's mother wore a formal gown of pale blue knit designed with portrait neckline and short sleeves. She wore white accessories and an orchid corsage.

Mrs. Jabel O. Duval, grandmother of the bride, wore a pink crepe dress with matching long sleeved jacket. She wore white accessories and an orchid corsage.

For a wedding trip to western North Carolina, the bride wore a blue checkered dress of cotton knit with matching long sleeved jacket. She wore navy accessories and her mother's corsage.

The bride is a 1971 graduate of Junius H. Rose High School and is a senior at East Carolina University, where she is majoring in psychology. She plans to complete requirements for the Bachelor of Arts degree in 1975. She is presently employed at Joyner Library, East Carolina University.

The bridegroom is a 1970 graduate of East Carteret High School. He graduated magna cum laude from East Carolina University in May with the Bachelor of Arts degree.

He is presently studying for the Master of Arts degree in history at ECU.

The couple will reside in Greenville.

The wedding was under the direction of Miss Annie Cobb.

Following the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a reception at the Greenville Masonic Temple. Greeting guests were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stuart Flanagan of Greenville and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Glen Leggett of Naples Fla.

Mrs. George Poovey Jr. of Banner Elk and Mrs. Hubert Simmons of Stokes poured punch. Assisting in serving were Sharon and Mary Iva Flanagan and Mrs. Russell Cayton, all of Greenville.

Miss Teresa Elaine Leggett of Greenville and Miss Dawn Hoffman of Naples, Fla., presided at the bride's register.

Good-byes were said to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Graham Leggett of Greenville, and William Leggett of Kinston.

On Friday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Halvor Moe and Miss Amy Malene Leggett entertained the Hancock-Leggett wedding party and relatives at an after-rehearsal patio cookout and swimming party at the home of the Moe's.

Tell Wife To Forget Tactless Friends

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am 55, and recently remarried. She's a terrific woman who is close to my age. My problem is that some of my tactless friends keep reminding my wife that my ex-wife was pencil slim and dressed like a fashion plate. Now my present wife is determined to diet down to skin and bones.

I think this is ridiculous. I don't want another skinny woman whose main concern in life is dressing to the nines and keeping her weight down, and who, quite frankly, looked like a prune in the raw.

How can I convince my wife that I like the well-padded, soft cuddly woman she was when I married her?
PREFERS A PEACH

DEAR PREFERS: Doesn't your wife know all this? If not—tell her. If you do, and she continues to pay more attention to your tactless friends than she does to you, you have bigger problems than you think.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 19-year-old girl who is getting more and more confused about the word "morality." Who decides what is morally right? My parents? Society? The law? Or should I make the decision myself?

My parents are divorced and I live with my mother. She keeps company with a nice enough man, but they go away together for weekends, and I'm sure they do more than hold hands. I don't know why they don't get married.

Meanwhile, my mother doesn't want me to stay out too late with my boyfriend. He's in law school, and we can't afford to get married until he graduates.

He doesn't see anything wrong in premarital sex, but it just doesn't seem right to me. I've been able to hold out so far, but why should I? The pill is available, so there is no danger of my getting pregnant. Besides, we love each other, so what's wrong with making love?

I'm sure my mom thinks it's okay for her to do what she does, but she'd have a fit if I did it. How come the difference in standards?
PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: Your mother (like most mothers) regards you as her responsibility, not as a mature young woman who can accept the responsibility for her own actions.

If you feel sufficiently mature and competent to set your own standards for your own reasons, do it.

Who decides what is "morally right"? With the help of your learning, examples, experience and conscience—and with an eye for consequences—YOU decide. And God bless.

The muff gets a big hand for the new season. It looks great with capes, long and swinging, like something out of a Russian background movie.

DEAR ABBY: After 50 years of marriage, I lost my mate. Although we never were blessed with children, we had many nieces and nephews who always addressed us as "Uncle Herman and Aunt Minnie."

I recently married a lovely woman who had been a friend of the family's for many years. [She lost her mate, too.] Now I find that my nieces and nephews address us as "Uncle Herman and Bertha."

I don't mind being called "Hey you," but I think it's disrespectful of them to address my wife as "Bertha."

What do you think? SAME OLD UNCLE HERMAN

DEAR UNC: I think you should tell your nieces and nephews that you'll gladly answer to "a monkey's uncle," but you'd appreciate it if they would call your wife "Aunt Bertha."

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Miss Yetta Hardy Weds On Saturday Afternoon

AYDEN—Miss Yetta Olivia Hardy became the bride of R. J. Clark Jr. in a ceremony at the Zion Chapel Free Will Baptist Church here yesterday at 3:30 p.m. The Rev. Stephen Jones of Greenville performed the ceremony.

The bride is the niece of Mrs. Inez Chestnut of Farmville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Clark Sr. Rt. 2, Mt. Airy.

Given in marriage by Bennie E. Harding Jr., the bride wore a white empire chantilace gown with lace ruffles at the neck and sleeves. The gown swept into a beruffled chapel train. A long veil of illusion edged in chantilly lace was accented by pearls. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses centered with an orchid corsage. Train bearers were Paris France and Donna McCummings, both of Winston-Salem.

The maid of honor was Ms. Myrna Watson of Magnolia, N.J. She wore a shrimp chiffon gown with low neckline, sleeveless with soft flared collar accented from the empire bodice and draped toward the waistline in the back. A soft A-line skirt designed with a flowing wateau back panel was accented with a flower. The outfit also featured a large picture hat of shrimp with a white hat band.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Catherine Harding of Greensboro. She wore an ivory chiffon empire gown with a low neckline, accompanied by a high neckline, long sleeved valera embroidered in shrimp, ivory, and aqua.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Gloria Ingram, Ms. Anne Moore, Ms. Irish Artist, Ms. Doris McDonald, Mrs. Linda McCummings, and Mrs. Brenda Sheppard, all of Winston-Salem. Mrs. Virginia Herring, sister of the bride, of Philadelphia, Pa., Mrs. Debra Bolden of Staten Island, N.Y., Mrs. Jacqueline Mason of Charlotte, Ms. Carolyn Martin and Ms. Mattie Foston, both of Washington, D.C., and Mrs. Edna Bailey of East Orange, N.J. Sonja Clark of Winston-Salem, and Sharon Hughes of Pilot Mountain were junior bridesmaids.

The bridesmaids dresses were the same as that of the maton of honor. Ring bearer for the double ring ceremony was Joseph Askew of Winston-Salem. Best Man was Edsel Hughes, also of Winston-Salem.

Ushers were Bruce Clark, Kenneth Clark, Archie Smith, Donald McCummings, R. J. Sheppard, John Jones, Charles Johnson, Sam Jenkins, Freddie Brown, and Bobby Adams, all of Winston-Salem, Danny Mason of Charlotte, Robert Hughes of Pilot Mountain, and William Gainer of Kinston.

Flower girls were Hope Hall of Canton and Ingrid Jones of Winston-Salem. They wore white gowns fashioned like the other attendants and carried baskets of white and shrimp carnations. For her daughter's wedding, the bride's mother chose a formal length gown of light blue accented with white matching accessories. She wore a white orchid corsage. The mother of the bridegroom wore a mint green formal dress with matching accessories. A white orchid accented her dress.

Johnny Wooten of Greenville, organist, and Ms. Shirley Coward of Ayden, presented a program of wedding music. Ms. Coward sang "O Promise Me" and "The Lord's Payer."

Following the wedding a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. Guests were received by Mrs. Narcissus Jackson and Mrs. J. W. Ormond, both of Ayden. Mrs. Esther Murphy of Kinston, aunt of the bride and Mrs. Ardella Suggs of Farmville poured punch. Mrs. Dorothy Hooks and Mrs. Margie Hooks, cousins of the bride, served cake and other refreshments.

After a wedding trip to Acapulco and Mexico City, the couple will reside in Winston-Church, Bell Arthur.

Wedding Invitation

Mr. and Mrs. Carnie C. Hedgepeth request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Jackie Sue, to Steven Harrison Boswell on Sunday, July 14, at 3:00 p.m. at the Bell Arthur Christian Church, Bell Arthur.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

A U. S. Congressman recently deplored government spending and cited just a few of the appropriations he thought were frivolous.

- $6,000 to look into the bisexual behavior of Polish frogs.
- $70,000 to conduct research on the smell of perspiration from Australian aborigines.
- $203,979 for the city of Los Angeles to extend Traveler's Aid to migrants who get lost on the freeways.

Now I'm as frugal as the next person, but frankly I think this is money well spent. Especially the idea of a Traveler's Aid program on the expressway.

They are jungles. Why, I once met a boy on an exit ramp who got lost on a cloverleaf in 1942, en route to Fort Dix. The kid didn't even know the war was over.

This too is little publicized, but there's an expressway near Cincinnati that was never built for people to exit. Why would they erect such a highway system, you ask? For many reasons.

It was used to test endurance records for Platformate. It was built to research fuel emissions from beer trucks.

It was a road to nowhere for depressed 53-year-old women who had just been told by their obstetricians they were expecting.

It was a strip where the highway departments put their signs out to dry: YIELD MERGE STOP SOFT SHOULDER TRUCK ROUTE DOWNTOWN RIGHT LANE ENDS YOU JUST PASSED THE BALLPARK EXIT REDUCE SPEED. In no particular order.

I not only find the idea of a Traveler's Aid program on the expressway thrilling, but I would also like to see a Welcome Wagon lady cruise the area. What a joy it would be to have someone visit with you as you watch your radiator boil over . . . welcome you personally and wish you well in your new surroundings. Perhaps she could give you a certificate for a free lunch at your next Stuckeys. . . a picture of a tree suitable for framing. . . a bumper sticker saying, "HONK IF YOU THINK I'M LOST." She might even provide textbooks for the children so they might be qualified to graduate when you find an exit.

Granted, the government comes up with some pretty looney projects for spending the tax dollar.

But we could do worse than caring for gay frogs, people pollutants, and a whole generation growing up on the freeways without love.

ITALIAN VISITOR. . . Mrs. Eufemia Galeotti accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Clarence Harris, returned to Florence Monday.

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

"When I go back to Italy, I will leave a large part of my heart in Pactolus, said Mrs. Eufemia Galeotti of Florence, who left Monday after spending three months here.

This was Mrs. Galeotti's first trip to America and also her first airplane flight. She has been visiting her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Harris, and their children and and granddaughter.

While in North Carolina, she toured Morehead City, Atlantic Beach and traveled in the mountains on the Blue Ridge Parkway. When asked what she had enjoyed most about her trip here, she said, "Everything."

"I enjoyed it all—the beach, the mountains and even my two fishing trips to Swan Quarter. It was the first time I have been fishing and I especially liked coming home after the fishing trip and cooking and eating the fish we caught. I have lived my entire life in Florence and never had the opportunity to go fishing. The water is so polluted that people don't eat fish caught in the water near Florence," she added.

A diabetic, Mrs. Galeotti's diet has been limited but her favorite American foods are chicken and pastry, oysters, shrimp, crab meat and cornbread.

In describing her trip to America, Mrs. Galeotti commented, "The flight was not hard—it was a happy trip and everything went smooth. I was just tired and it was a long trip for someone of my age. If God is willing and I continue to have good health, I hope to return again in two years.

A highlight of her three-month visit was the celebration of her 77th birthday on June 29. She was honored at a surprise dinner party given by her granddaughter and her husband.

"I will never forget the people I have met while here. They have all been so friendly and kind. I have enjoyed staying in my daughter's country store where I have met so many people. The only bad part has been the fact that I speak very little English and it is hard to communicate when you don't know the language.

"One of the best things was seeing my son-in-law after about 29 years and seeing my grandchildren and great granddaughter," she continued.

Mrs. Harris was the interpreter for her mother. In conclusion Mrs. Galeotti said, "I like the peaceful country living but I still prefer the city life. In Florence, I am closer to the grocery store and other shops."

Mrs. Harris returned to Florence with her mother on Monday on her seventh trip back there. She has been living in the United States since 1946.

Julie Andrews Writes Book After Making Promise To Daughter

By SANDRA GITTENS
NEW YORK (AP) — Keeping a promise to a child is perhaps one of the most difficult things a parent "has" to do. Nevertheless, the results can sometimes be a source of pleasure for both child and parent. So says Julie Andrews, film and Broadway star, who started out to write a "page full of nonsense" to satisfy her daughter

Jenny, and ended up with a published children's novel of 188 pages called "Mandy." That was three years ago. Now, using the same talent Jenny sparked, Julie has written a second book, "The Last of the Really Great Whangdoodles." It's dedicated to her husband, Blake Edwards, and as its author she uses the name Julie Edwards.

"Mandy," she explains, "came about as a result of a game we were playing. While we were in Paris, Jenny and my other two children were running wild. I was busy making a film and we were all on sort of a holiday. I couldn't keep an eye on them very well. So I devised a game where I said, 'Okay, if you don't pick up your laundry, and if you don't brush your teeth at least once a day, and if you don't change your underwear, then you'll have to pay a forfeit.' And Jenny, who is the oldest, said, 'Okay, but you'll have to play the game too — you've got to stop swearing so much.'"

Don't Just Clean Basement, Take Inventory Of 'Treasures'

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Are you a basement hoarder? If so — it's a prime time for a clean-up-with-feeling. That means making a decision about each thing.

There are a lot of people who might use the things that would otherwise grow moldy. One family took an inventory of basement "treasures" and was surprised to find that lots of it — nine-tenths — was expendable. But it might have been useful to others if a decision had been made earlier. For example, five rusted bikes had been put aside against the day their married children might come back and ride them. Or their grandchildren. But as the man quipped, "They make them with tires now."

What-we-don't-need-and-nobody-else-needs: The rusted bikes...corroded percolator...warped records...mildewed paperbacks...stiff stuffed animals...a collection of fur coat collars...a pile of silver-fished magazines...warped skis...rusty tools...an overstuffed chair that had been stuffed to a dynasty of mice...a soggy piece of sheet rock...old cans of paint, brushes, unusable rollers...a useless lawn mower...rusted fishing tackle...old tires...a length of rubber hose (from an old washing machine installation)...old poinsettia plants.

Each resumed a former hobby. The husband located an old easel and paints and can't wait to get back to his palette (and maybe some new paints).

Considering taking the easy way out, Julie first contemplated writing her a page of nonsense, but on second thoughts decided to write her something a little more meaningful that just might teach her something without her realizing it. "I tried to teach her something she didn't know. She's a city girl and didn't know too much about the country. I'm fond of the country and nature and things like that, so I came up with the idea for 'Mandy.'"

Jenny was 11 when I got the idea but she was about 14 by the time I presented the book to her. Then I found that I had enjoyed writing that one so much, that I kind of felt lost when I stopped, so I started on the second. The second also had its unusual beginnings. Looking through the dictionary for a word, Julie said she "literally saw the word whangdoodle."

What-we-keep...old pieces of lumber to be used as kindling next winter...a box of family mementos and pictures... old straight-back chairs that can be refinished...Christmas ornaments and tree stand...electric trains (for grandchildren)...spare glasses...filing cabinet...trunk...traveling coolers...garden tools.

After separating everything into three piles outdoors, they selected give-aways for the church flea market and throw-aways for their town's spring clean-up drive, and earmarked odds and ends for the neighborhood tag sale. Their diligence provided them with a personal bonus.

1974 Debutantes To Make Formal Bows In Early September

After the leisure days of summer and vacations, early September will be highlighted by the annual North Carolina Debutante Ball.

The ball will be staged in Raleigh's Memorial Auditorium on Friday, Sept. 6. The annual ball is sponsored by the Terpsichorean Club, which was formed in 1927 to sponsor an annual statewide Debutante Ball.

Debutantes from Pitt County include: Bethel, Amy Louise Everett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton White Everett; Greenville, Paula Garde Arthur, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Stuart Ficklen; Lois Ann Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Watson Brown; Ariane Michele Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Graham Clark; Peggy Sears Corbitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Shaw Corbitt; Deborah Walston Webb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Fred Webb Jr.; and Kathryn Oliver Whichard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Jordan Whichard II.

The formal presentation on Friday evening, featuring the traditional cartwheel figure, will lead off a gala round of dances and parties honoring this year's debutantes.

Space Available For Would-Be Gardeners

By CAROLYN DAVIS
ECU Student Journalist
Now, regardless of profession or available land space, anyone can enjoy a garden.

Helen Chapin, operator of Rent-A-Garden on Evans Street Extension, rents 20' by 50' plots for use by would-be gardeners in the area who don't have their own land designed for gardening.

Now in its second year of operation, Rent-A-Garden was planned in the fall of 1972. Owned by the Chapins, the two to three acre lot used for the gardens was previously leased to farmers for growing corn.

Then Mrs. Chapin read an article in the September, 1972, issue of "Redbook" about renting garden plots to those who liked to garden on a larger scale than they were able to do in their backyards.

Tom, Mrs. Chapin's husband, put his engineering talents to work and designed a lot for use as individual gardens by staking off plots, walkways and a parking area for gardeners. With the individual plots being tended by different people, there is a great variety of vegetables grown in the gardens. Mrs. Chapin says tomatoes are the favorite of most of the gardeners. "Although almost any summer vegetable can be found on the plots."

There is also a variety of people found at the gardens, all who seem to enjoy their work and their products, according to Mrs. Chapin. "We have doctors, professors, nurses, teachers, laborers, just about all walks of life are out there, she said.

Although there is no type of barrier between the individual plots other than stakes, there is no problem of gardeners stealing each other's vegetables as far as Mrs. Chapin has seen. "I have never seen such a congenial group of people," she commented. "I think digging in the earth is kind of a common denominator for most people."

Most of the people who rent gardens are not farm oriented, but are novices, as Mrs. Chapin classifies herself. She attributes the success of the gardens to the rising food costs and a tendency of today's society to return to nature.

"You just can't buy vegetables that taste like the ones you grow yourself," Mrs. Chapman said. Yields are not confined strictly to summer crops, although most people do just plant one crop. "When someone rents a plot, it's theirs for the entire year to do what they want with it. Some take full advantage of it and plant spring crops, summer crops, and fall crops."

Renting a plot for the year costs $20. This fee will give the tenant only the right to use the land in any way he desires. — Nothing is furnished by the Chapins. "Once a year we go in and break up the soil to get it ready for spring planting. We also keep the walkways and parking area by mowing it, but we do nothing to the individual plots," said Mrs. Chapin.

There are 60 plots. Many of the plots taken this year are simply renewals of the plots that were rented last year, according to Mrs. Chapin. "The only ones that didn't renew leases were the people—mostly young couples—who moved. This makes me feel it's worthwhile," she said.

Daytime lengths for skirts for fall and winter range from the center of the kneecap to the midcalf, the latter usually worn with boots. Evening dresses occasionally are midcalf but usually ankle length or to the floor. Most skirts have fullness in bias cut, gores, or the new front gathered dirndl line.

Her work as a painter was preceded by an interest in photography, in which she has also become a skilled competitor.

She has won many prizes, including an honorable mention, two second prizes and a Grand Prize, the last in a competition sponsored by Volunteer Service Photographers, Inc., which drew more than 400 entries. Despite the fact that Miss Becker is confined to a wheelchair and her condition causes periodic tremors and palsied moments, she has been able to take excellent photos of children, and action shots.

Her first photography teacher was a volunteer who taught her and other patients. They started the Kingsbrook Photography Club. "My first camera," she recalls, was one with a bellows that was specifically adapted to my needs." She uses the fastest speed on the camera and the smallest opening on the lens in order to minimize any effect of a possible tremor of her hand.

"Thanks to the help of Rose Cohen and Ben Levine, formerly of the occupational therapy staff, who spent a great deal of time with me, I was able to develop my techniques in painting," she said.

Because of the handicap, which requires her to be seated and prevents her from raising her arm to paint (she is left-handed), she is unable to use an easel and all of her painting is done on a table.

Miss Becker now paints in acrylics, watercolors and oil. Her paintings are still lifes, abstracts, landscapes and seascapes. Her techniques include brush, rag and roller. She likes to be alone when she is painting. "I am very temperamental and I can't stand being watched when I paint," she explained.

Three of Miss Becker's paintings—a still life, an abstract figure in motion and a painting of flowers—have been sent to the Association Nationale des Amis des Handicapes Physiques for exhibition and sale at

Cerebral Palsy Patient Makes Way

NEW YORK (AP) — Dora Becker is now realizing one of her many ambitions — to exhibit her paintings in Paris, France. Not an unusual ambition for an artist, but unusual in the fact that Miss Becker, who has cerebral palsy, has been a patient at the Kingsbrook Jewish Medical Center in Brooklyn, N.Y., for 40 years. Since she started painting 13 years ago her works have been entered in more than a dozen exhibitions and competitions, including those sponsored by the Brooklyn Museum Art School, where she has a lifetime art scholarship. Competing against physically normal artists, she has won a gold medal, a silver medal and many ribbons.

"I saw a patient who had had a stroke, and she was painting," she recalls of her start as an artist. "I said to myself, 'If she could do it with such a handicap, certainly I could too.'"

Miss Becker received her early training at the Medical Center in the Occupational Therapy Division of the Department of Rehabilitation Medicine, where she was told she had a feeling for color. Her first paintings were still lifes of fruits and flowers. Visitors to the center and friends who viewed these works told her that her colors were fresh and clear.

Her work as a painter was preceded by an interest in photography, in which she has also become a skilled competitor.

She likes to be alone when she is painting. "I am very temperamental and I can't stand being watched when I paint," she explained.

Three of Miss Becker's paintings—a still life, an abstract figure in motion and a painting of flowers—have been sent to the Association Nationale des Amis des Handicapes Physiques for exhibition and sale at the Theatre de Chatelet in Paris.

Meanwhile, she is continuing her work, under the supervision of Bob Frazer and Selma Einhorn, in Kingsbrook's Occupational Therapy Division. She also helps other patients and instructs both patients and staff members from various departments in macrame (the art of creative knot tying).

Miss Becker is a member of both a creative writing class and a poetry class of United Cerebral Palsy, New York. She is now completing a short story—a modern day love story. Miss Becker, who was admitted to Kingsbrook when she was a youngster, has many friends among the patients, hospital staff and her competitors in art and photography. They find her always smiling and cheerful.

MRS. JAMES STATON MARTIN

Couple Weds In Ceremony Friday Night

KINSTON—Miss Clara Marguerite Brown of Kinston became the bride of James Staton Martin of Greenville Friday night in a private ceremony at the home of the bride.

After a wedding trip to the Outer Banks, the couple will reside in Williamston.

The Rev. David Alexander officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Robert Brown of Kinston. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Joseph Roy Martin Sr. of Greenville, and the late Mr. Martin.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of candlelight styled with an empire waist encircled by a satin ribbon, long sleeves and a box neckline. The elbow length mantilla was bordered with lace scallops. She carried a bouquet of pink and white roses centered with a lift-out corsage.

Mrs. Carla Aldridge of Kinston, sister of the bride, was matron of honor.

J. Roy Martin Jr., brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The bride is a 1971 graduate of East Carolina University and has been employed with the Goldsboro City Schools. She will now teach at Martin Academy in Williamston.

The bridegroom is a 1971 graduate of Atlantic Christian College and is employed by Wachovia Bank and Trust Company in Williamston.

The two-piece look is in for evening as well as daytime wear, for fall '74. Top a crepe skirt with bow tied tunic striped in Lurex.

Found in the better dictionaries, she said, the definition is a humorous mythical creature of fanciful and undefined nature.

"I said that's a marvelous name and I'll call the book 'The Last of the Really Great Whangdoodles,' and the title never changed. The story kind of grew out of the idea for the title."

Since "Mandy" was only her first effort, Julie said she set out to teach a little more in "The Last of the Really Great Whangdoodles." Today, she explained, children are going through a great depersonalization. Things are being hurled at them so fast and the world is changing quickly—with the media feeding emotions to them—that ordinary things like using their imaginations and keeping an open mind are being lost.

"For instance," she said, "I think most children would rather sit in front of a television set and get all their feelings second hand rather than go down the block, or climb a tree, or build a club house. I'm saying don't lose your imagination, don't stop thinking for yourself, don't just sit and be fed. Go out and do and keep aware and awake. I've tried to do it with a lot of humor."

'Carving Out' Stage Of Soul City Is Nearly Done

EDITOR'S NOTE — From rolling meadowland in one of North Carolina's poorest counties, a city is to rise, Soul City. It's the dream of a black civil rights leader who believes he can organize a new community free of racism.

By MELVIN LANG
Associated Press Writer
SOUL CITY, N.C. (AP) — Ribbons of red clay rutted by car and truck tires meet atop a gently sloping hill on the plains of North Carolina's Warren County. Where the roads cross, highway marker reads: "Soul City."

The simple signs stand as a symbol of transition from the days when Warren County was a center of slavery to the time — still in the future — when Soul City will be real: a self-sufficient town of 50,000 planned by blacks as an interracial community.

Six years in the making, Soul City today is 5,200 acres of rolling meadowland, broken occasionally by tree groves and by mobile homes parked in clusters or alone.

These are the temporary homes and offices of Soul City's first residents, 225 people in all. They are the staff that is building Soul City, and their families. Their leader is Floyd McKissick, a balding six-footer whose name is famous in civil rights. McKissick, now 52, resigned in 1968 as national chairman of the Congress of Racial Equality to return to his native North Carolina and develop Soul City.

Most of McKissick's closest collaborators are blacks from the civil rights movement. But he also has recruited 21 whites and three Indians on his staff of 60.

"We have brought together black, white and Indian here," says McKissick. "We find that they agree 90 per cent of the time and just working together, you can destroy five per cent of their differences."

Construction of the first permanent building is to begin next month. It's to be a factory shell called "Soul Tech I." McKissick says he already has a company under contract to occupy the factory and employ 350 people — the first step toward self-sufficiency. He won't name the company.

Once the factory shell is started, construction of permanent homes and shopping center is to begin in the fall.

Mrs. Evelyn McKissick is one of three trustees running a sanitation district established last year by the state. It's primarily to benefit Soul City, but also serves Manson, a tiny crossroads town three miles away. Under North Carolina law, a sanitation district can put in plumbing, garbage collection, a water system, electricity, levy taxes and issue bonds. Some of this is now being done for Soul City's mobile homes.

The 5,200 acres of meadowland which McKissick Enterprises either owns or has options to buy is in Warren County, one of North Carolina's poorest. Its population is 66 per cent black, the largest percentage of blacks of any North Carolina County. McKissick says one of Soul City's goals is to raise the county income level. At present, the median family income is $6,550.

The "carving" stage of Soul City is nearing an end. State highway crews are cutting a new road from Interstate 85 and soon will pave the clay rural roads that plagued Carey and other settlers.

Gone also is most of the fear among whites that Warren County, already predominantly black, would be overrun by blacks.

One of the few outspoken opponents of soul City is Jeanne Hight, an office worker in Henderson, 10 miles from Soul City. She contends that federal loan guarantees commit tax money for special interests.

"I don't have anything personally against Mr. McKissick, nor against his development of Soul City, but I just don't feel like it ought to come out of the taxpayers' pockets," said Mrs. Hight.

Soul City got a big boost when the Chase Manhattan Bank of New York, whose President is David Rockefeller, decided to provide development money.

Melvin Homes, city manager of Henderson, admits to envy of the Soul City project.

"They have the strongest zoning ordinance that has ever been adopted in North Carolina," he said. "If that plan is followed, nobody has any reason to object to that city."

Mac Davis Begins His Show Thursday

Mac Davis, as the lyrics of his song imply, believes in music and in love, a point which he makes musically during the opening moments of each segment of "The Mac Davis Show" premiering Thursday, July 11 on channel 7.

"I Believe in Music," which is his theme song, has been recorded by more than 50 other artists.

It is one of a number of songs for which he has become famous. His first self-recorded hit, "Baby Don't Get Hooked on Me," became the number one song in the country just a few weeks after its release. It earned a gold record and was named the most performed song of the year by BMI (Broadcast Music, Inc.).

He has recorded five albums and 13 singles, including the current "One Hell of a Woman."

His original compositions include "Watching Scotty Grow," "In the Ghetto," "Something's Burning," "Friend, Lover, Woman, Wife," "You're Good for Me," "Within My Memory," "I'll Paint You a Song," "Whoever Finds This, I Love You," "Lonesomest Lonesome," "Naughty Girl," and others.

Mac Davis was born in Lubbock, Texas, where he joined the church choir at the age of 10. He attended Emory University in Atlanta, Ga., and discovered that music attracted girls more than muscle.

He started performing with a group and then began writing songs. He had no formal training — just an instinct for matching words to music. To this day, he says he can't read music.

He got into the business end of the music industry in Atlanta and continued in this area upon coming to Hollywood. Meantime, he continued writing songs. Two were recorded: "You're Good For Me" (Lou Rawls) and "Within My Memory" (Glen Campbell).

An appearance in Las Vegas with Nancy Sinatra brought generous reviews, and since then he has performed on a number of TV shows.

He and his wife, Sarah, live in North Hollywood. He has a 10-year-old son, Scotty, by a previous marriage.

In his first show, Davis is host to guests Ken Berry, Carol Lawrence, Jerry Van Dyke and comedian Hank Garcia.

Mac opens the program with a few bars from his theme song. "I Believe in Music."

DAVIS PREMIERES SUMMER SERIES — Jerry Van Dyke (l) and Ken Berry (r) help Mac Davis launch "The Mac Davis Show". The summer series, starring the noted songwriter-entertainer, will feature different guest stars each week. The show will premier on Thursday, July 11, and run through August 29 (8-9 p.m.) on NBC channel 7.

NARRATORS—Stars who will appear and narrate the "Bicentennial Minutes" series for the week of July 7 are (top, left to right) Edward Asner, July 7; Jean Stapleton, July 8; (middle) James Franciscus, July 10; George Kennedy, July 11; (bottom) Glenn Ford, July 12; Gail Fisher, July 13. A star for the July 9 "Minute" will be announced shortly. The series, consisting of 732 one-minute specials celebrating "America's Bicentennial," will be broadcast every day of the year in prime time from July 4, 1974 to July 4, 1976 on CBS-TV.

More Stars Joining Bicentennial Series

Edward Asner, Jean Stapleton, James Franciscus, George Kennedy, Glenn Ford and Gail Fisher will appear in and narrate the "Bicentennial Minutes" series during the week starting Sunday, July 7, on Channel 9-11.

On Sunday, July 7, Edward Asner, featured on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," will describe how, 200 years ago on that date, Samuel Adams made a blistering attack against all trade with the British — making him a figure British officials hated and feared. The "Minute" will be seen at approximately 8:28 p.m., at the conclusion of Apple's Way.

The Monday, July 8, "Minute" will be narrated by Jean Stapleton, who stars in "All In The Family". Miss Stapleton will convey Martha Washington's advice for the storage of cherries. The special will be broadcast at the conclusion of "Gunsmoke."

Louis Jourdan will appear in a narrate the Tuesday, July 9 "Minute" at the conclusion of "Maude." Jourdan will describe how, 200 years ago on July 9, French settlers in Ste. Genevieve on the western bank of the Mississippi River sent a message to the Spanish Governor in New Orleans, complaining that high taxes had left them nothing but air — air which, although beautiful, could not support their families.

On Wednesday, July 10, James Franciscus, who has appeared in such television series as "Longstreet" and "Doc Elliott," will describe the plight of an American seaman named Samuel Dyer, who was hustled aboard a British flagship and threatened with hanging unless he would inform on John Hancock and other patriots. The "Minute" will be seen at the conclusion of the "Tony Orlando and Dawn" program.

George Kennedy will appear in and narrate the "Minute" on Thursday, July 11. Kennedy, who won an Oscar for his performance in the film "Cool Hand Luke," explains how, on July 11, 1774, Sir William Johnson, Superintendent of Indian Affairs, and one of the few men the Indians trusted, met with hundreds of Iroquois braves and prevented yet another bloody Indian war in the Mohawk Valley — only to die of natural causes two hours later.

ART IN DECORATING

Even the most beautifully furnished room looks unfinished without a few paintings on the walls. For the four walls are the largest expanse of unbroken space in a room—and, naturally, they need enlivening. Collecting art has gone from a fad of the very rich to everybody's hobby today. The paintings don't have to be Picassos or Pissarros to be of importance—they can be everything from good graphics to lithographs, or even old oils found in junk shops, if that's your taste. Everyone's taste differs where floor coverings are concerned. Therefore, we have such a large collection of carpet for home as well as business. Report On Gun Control

CBS REPORTS: "Murder and the Right to Bear Arms," a 1964 investigation into the explosive issue of gun control—or lack of it—will be presented as the first of this summer's 12-part "CBS News Retrospective" series on Sunday, July 7 (6-7 p.m.) on Channels 9-11.

Originally broadcast on the Network on June 10, 1964—just months after the assassination of President Kennedy—"Murder and the Right to Bear Arms" presents sharply divergent interpretations of the constitutional guarantee that "the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed." Prof. Arthur E. Sutherland of the Harvard Law School discusses the meaning of the Second Amendment, and a spokesman of the National Rifle Association explains the position of that organization.

"A number of things have changed since this broadcast was made 10 years ago," says News Correspondent John Hart, host of the retrospective series. "In 1968 Congress passed the Gun Control Act, which controls all interstate shipment of guns and prohibits most sales across the counter to anyone who doesn't live in the dealer's state. It outlaws firearms sales to convicted felons, fugitives from justice, addicts or people with certified mental disease.

"Murder statistics have changed, too," Hart goes on to say. "They suggest that the laws or their enforcement are inadequate—maybe both. Ten years ago there were roughly 10,000 murders, half of them with guns. Last year there were nearly 20,000 murders, two-thirds of them with guns. There has been no new Federal legislation since 1969."

On the broadcast in 1964, Correspondent Robert Trout reported that "the world's greatest arsenal of privately held small arms, consisting of 150- to 200-million guns, is owned by citizens of the United States."

The broadcast highlights the case history of one gun—a .38 caliber pistol—which was used to kill two policemen in Los Angeles. It traces the gun's ownership from the factory to the time of the killings. Also on the broadcast are interviews with men at Stateville Prison in Illinois who had used guns to commit crimes, including murder.

Action In Spy SpooF

Dean Martin stars as super-espionage sleuth Matt Helm in "The Silencers," a wild-swinging, frolicsome spy spoof filled with action, villains, glamorous girls and top secret weapons on "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," Sunday, July 7, (8:30-10:30 p.m.) on channel 3W-5-12.

Co-starring in this action-intigue comedy are Stella Stevens, Daliah Lavi, Victor Buono, Arthur O'Connell, Robert Webber, James Gregory, Roger C. Carmel and Cyd Charisse. Featured are the "Slaygirls," and Beverly Adams as Lovey Kravezit.

In "The Silencers," Chinese agent Tung-Tze (Victor Buono) masterminds a ring planning to divert an American missile so that it will destroy Alamogordo. Matt Helm, retired from the counter-espionage agency known as ICE, is living it up in a bachelor's dream-world which includes a unique multi-purpose round bed, a bubble-bath swimming pool and a secretary named Lovey Kravezit (Beverly Adams). Uninterested in returning to espionage, Matt is persuaded by his former spy-mate Tina Batori (Daliah Lavi), after she prevents one of Tung-Tze's more enticing agents from knifing Helm while she is kissing him.

With some incredible new weapons at his command, Helm and Tina head for Phoenix, Arizona, where a defecting U.S. scientist is to pass a computer tape over to a Tung-Tze agent.

SIGNS FOR SPECIALS

Sada Thompson has been signed to star as Mary Todd Lincoln opposite Hal Holbrook in "Sandburg's Lincoln," six one-hour drama specials based on Carl Sandburg's six-volume biography of Lincoln. The first is scheduled for Sept. 6.

ANIMATED SERIES

An animated series based on personalities appearing in "The Partridge Family" will be produced by Hanna-Barbera Productions.

The series, called "Partridge Family-2200," will be a space-age version of the famed singing family for telecast this fall on CBS-TV.

CHANGED TUNE

Terry Meeuwsen, Miss America of 1973, who will be a co-host of the Miss America Pageant on Sept. 7, was a professional singer who had her own club act and was a member of the New Christy Minstrels before she decided to enter a Miss America local pageant in her native Wisconsin.

GUEST STARS — Jack Albertson guest stars as an aging pool player who gets the chance to regain his self-respect, in the "Cowtown Hustler" episode of "Gunsmoke" Monday, July 8 (8-9 p.m.) on channels 9-11.

Hollywood Squares Will Present 2000th Show

On Monday, July 8, "The Hollywood Squares" will colorcast its 2,000th show (11:30 a.m. - 12 noon) on NBC-TV.
 Before taping show No. 2,000, host Peter Marshall and producer Jay Redack sat down to figure out what 2,000 shows represent, and they came up with the following figures:
 —77,000 questions asked of celebrity panelists.
 —40,000 meals served to cast and crew.
 —18,000 guest appearances by celebrities in the squares.
 —2,000 chances for contestants to win the "secret square."
 —400 days of taping programs.

—1,000 hours of programming.
 —2,000 segments directed by Jerome Shaw, who has been with "The Hollywood Squares" since the first show.
 —$6,000,000 worth of prizes, in suggested retail value (This is an average figure).
 —3 correct answers from John Davidson.
 They were kidding about the last figure, of course. Davidson, a semi-regular panelist on the show, is well-known for bluffing — except for the few times he really has come up with a correct answer.

 The first edition of "The Hollywood Squares" was telecast Oct. 17, 1966. Two of the panelists on the show were Rose Marie and Charley Weaver, featured regulars who are also on the 2,000th colorcast. Joining them are John Davidson, Vincent Price, Ruta Lee, Kent McCord, George Gobel, Sandy Duncan and featured regular Paul Lynde.

A specially decorated cake will grace the set for the celebration.

Mystery Has Surprise Twist

Robert Shaw, whose most recent film appearance was in the role of the duped gambler in the Oscar-winning "The Sting," and his wife, Mary Ure, head a distinguished British cast in "The Break," a "Wide World: Mystery" with a surprising twist, which will be presented on Monday, July 8 on Channels 5-12.
 "The Break," a one-hour drama, will be aired from midnight to 1:00 a.m., because of the 2½-hour film, "Villa Rides," to be presented earlier in the evening.

MAUDE'S DAUGHTER — In three sultry poses is Adrienne Barbeau, who stars as Carol, the daughter of Maude Findlay (Series star Beatrice Arthur) on "Maude," seen Tuesdays (8-8:30 p.m.) on channel 9-11.

Adrienne Barbeau A California Girl

Adrienne Barbeau, Maude's daughter on "Maude," was born in Sacramento, California on June 11. She moved with her parents to San Jose, California, and was graduated from Delmar High School there. While still a pre-schooler, she was encouraged by her mother toward a musical education and was taking ballet lessons at age three and vocal lessons a very few years later. By the time she was in high school, music and dancing were a way of life and she never considered any other career. In San Jose she was active in both high school and community theater and when the San Jose Light Opera received a federal grant to tour the Pacific area to entertain U.S. servicemen, she went along. The company performed in Korea, Taiwan, Japan, Okinawa and other Pacific bases.

After returning from the tour Miss Barbeau headed for New York. She studied drama with Warren Robertson. She received a great deal of valuable training in musical stock, including "West Side Story," "Carnival," "The King and I," "The Boy Friend," "The Three-penny Opera," and others.

Miss Barbeau made her Broadway debut in 1968 as the second daughter in "Fiddler on the Roof."

In addition to her many musical roles, Miss Barbeau also appeared in dramatic roles in "Rashomon" and "John Brown's Body."

Together" Laurence Luckinbill and Robin Strasser. A ghost story about a mysterious old man and his dead wife who take revenge on those who try to evict them from their home to make way for an urban renewal project. (repeat, 90 min)

Rush Order For Nuyen Portrait

Painting a portrait isn't an easy assignment, and when the artist is given a three-day deadline to do it, it's an even tougher job.

The painting in question is a portrait of actress France Nuyen. It's featured on "Hawaii Five-O," starring Jack Lord, to be seen on Tuesday, July 9 (8:30 - 9:30 p.m.) on channel 9-11. According to the script, the painting represents the dead mother of the character Miss Nuyen plays.

In the episode, McGarrett (Lord) is enchanted by the lady in the portrait, which hangs in the palatial mansion of the Hawaiian industrialist, played by Herbert Lom. The lady is the deceased wife of the industrialist and is supposed to bear an eerie resemblance to her daughter, Miss Nuyen.

For the painting, Miss Nuyen went to the CBS Television Network photo gallery in Hollywood to sit for color photographs. The actress then rushed off to Hawaii for the filming of the episode, while the photo lab developed the pictures. Then, artist Rosemary Calder took over with a three-day deadline to meet.

Mrs. Calder just made it, and the final product will be seen in all its splendor on the "Hawaii Five-O" episode.

ANROID—Mike Farrell (left) as micro-electronics engineer Jerry Robinson, along with Robert Douglass as Dr. Michaels, prepares for the activation of Questor, an ambulatory computer capable of all human functions, in "Questor Tapes" to be colorcast on "NBC Wednesday Night at the Movies" July 10 (9:00 p.m.) on channels 6-7.

Find Startling Secret Of Questor's Origins

Robert Foxworth stars as Questor, an android (an ambulatory computer capable of all human functions) programmed by scientists to find its missing creator, or face nuclear destruction, in "The Questor Tapes," on "NBC Wednesday Night at the Movies" July 10 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Scientists from five nations are assembled in a laboratory at Caltech in Pasadena, Calif., to program Questor, created by Dr. Emile Vaslovik, a missing Nobel Prize-winning scientist.

Micro-electronics engineer Jerry Robinson protests their decision to ignore Vaslovik's tape and use university programming. The scientists refuse his request and proceed with their plan.

dition to her success as an actress, she also manages a successful business and is an author and world traveler.

Her business interests include a 40-acre ranch in Hidden Valley, Calif., and a condominium complex called "The Eve Arden Plantation," near Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. She also is writing a soon-to-be-published book about her extensive travels in Europe.

In her spare time, Eve and her husband, Brooks West, are decorating their new home near Beverly Hills. Eve also dabbles at painting and is skilled at needlepoint.

Two of Eve's children are following in their mother's theatrical footsteps. Her daughter, Connie, is appearing with a Shakespearean troupe in San Francisco, while her son George, is a theatre arts major in college.

Unflappable Mother Of The Bride

"I've loved every minute of being a mother to a bride again," said Eve Arden about her latest role as the unflappable Millie Owens in "Mother of the Bride", a zany, 90-minute "ABC Afternoon Playbreak" comedy airing Wednesday, July 10 (1:30-3:00 p.m.), on Channel 3-5-12.

"The script is very personal to me," said the former star of "The Mothers - In - Law" and "Our Miss Brooks." "I went through the whole frantic scene only a year or so ago when my daughter Liz was married.

"I remember only too well the myriad of details and all the anxieties and frustrations a mother goes through when her daughter gets married," who is determined to give her daughter an elaborate wedding - even though the event is to take place in only six days.

In real life, Eve is a bit of a master planner herself. In ad-

Latin Music Featured On TV Special

Trini Lopez and Jose Feliciano are the co-hosts of "Latino Festival," a music special featuring Latin music, which airs as "Wide World: Special," Wednesday, July 10 (11:30 p.m. - 1 a.m.) on Channel 3-5-12.

"Latino Festival" marks the first time that a music program featuring all Latin-American performers and highlighting Latin music will be carried on major network time throughout the country. The show, which was filmed at the Plaza Nueva in San Antonio, Texas, stars Trini Lopez and Jose Feliciano, Johnny Rodriguez, the rock group, El Chicano, singer-comedienne Liz Torres, and the Mariachi Nuevo San Juan Band.

Trini Lopez, who recently celebrated his tenth anniversary in show business, will perform "Sing," "Eres Tu," "Adelita," "Michael, Row Your Boat Ashore" and "If I Had a Hammer," and he and Feliciano will sing "La Bamba" and "Piel Canella."

Feliciano, a young Puerto Rican guitarist and singer who has been blind from birth, was discovered while playing the folk clubs of Greenwich Village. He sings "I Like What You Give," "Rain," "Usted," and "Sabor A Mi."

Johnny Rodriguez, whose matinee idol looks attract female fans of all ages, played guitar with the great country music

Presenting the 84 mpg Volkswagen.

Since all the car manufacturers are conducting their own mileage tests these days, we at Volkswagen thought we'd conduct one too. So we modified our body—and our engine. And, of course, we got someone who didn't weigh much to drive. Lo and behold, we got 84 miles per gallon! Ridiculous? Nobody normally drives like this? Of course. That's precisely our point. Nobody normally drives like most of those tests you're seeing. Volkswagen: An honest 25* miles per gallon.

CAUGHT IN MELEE — Gregory Peck (center) as a scientist, and Francisca Tu (right) are caught in a melee, when he visits Red China and gets involved in political intrigue, in "The Chairman" on "The CBS Thursday Night Movies" Thursday, July 11, (9-11 p.m.) in color on channels 9-11.

Spy Mission A Thriller

Gregory Peck and Anne Heywood star in "The Chairman," explosive thriller about an American scientist who is sent to Red China on an important spy mission, on "The CBS Thursday Night Movies" Thursday, July 11 (9-11 p.m.) on channels 9-11. Arthur Hill co-stars in the color presentation, which will be shown for the first time on television.

"The Chairman" presents Gregory Peck as John Hathaway, a Nobel Prize-winning American scientist teaching in London, who is sent to Red China to obtain the formula for an enzyme which erases the effect of climate, enabling crops to grow almost anywhere. Because this could revolutionize the world, both the United States and Russia are anxious to obtain the formula.

GUEST HOST—Film director Peter Bogdanovich will make his debut as guest host of "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson." Bogdanovich has directed such movies as "The Last Picture Show," "Paper Moon," "What's Up Doc?" and "Daisy Miller." He will appear on Friday, July 12 on channels 6-7.

Actor's Dish Is Laughter

"Do you require applause?" "No, just love," answered Gene Wilder.
 "Are they the same thing?" he mused. "They're close. Sometimes an audience can... (Aside: Are you asking personally or professionally?)... an audience will applaud a lot or maybe not so much. It's really not a barometer of how much they liked it," Wilder opined.
 "Me, I like the approval of the people I'm working with—'cause in the movies, where I usually work, there's no audience, so you have to trust the carpenter and the electrician and the make-up people. If they love you and they're laughing quietly so as not to ruin a take—then you know it's good. If they don't know when you're doing it's not so great."
 Well, Gene Wilder, had little to worry about on the set of "Marlo Thomas Starring in Acts of Love—And Other Comedies," to be rebroadcast Friday, July 12 (8:30-9:30 p.m.). Wilder's scene in the special places him in a clothes closet trying to seduce Marlo Thomas, who plays his married neighbor. The cast and crew broke up every time they ran through the scene.

How did Gene Wilder get turned on to acting? "I saw my sister in a recital when I was eleven," he said. "I walked into the room—a concert hall—the lights started to dim and then the spotlight came on stage. The room was quiet and they all were looking at her... and I thought that was an ideal situation!"

Wilder has sought that spotlight ever since. He started acting lessons at 13... and in 1968 he was nominated for an Oscar for his role in "The Producers."

House Guest With A Ghost

A young women's romantic attraction to her parents' handsome house guest takes an eerie turn when she suddenly screams and faints. She later explains that she felt the presence of a ghost, who entered the house with the guest, in "The Haunting of Rosalind" on the late-night series, "ABC Wide World of Entertainment," Friday, July 12, (11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m.), on Channel 3W-5-12.

The woman, Rosalind (Pamela Payton-Wright), is joyful when the visitor, Arthur Lloyd (Frank Converse), reveals his fondness for her. But she discovers that Arthur has a wedding band inscribed with the name Helen, and that he is more than merely fond of her sister Dita (Susan Sarandon).

Trilogy Of Escapades

"The Magnificent Six and a Half," a trilogy of hilarious escapades involving a gang of six imaginative kids, plus one half, a little girl named Peewee, will be rebroadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival" Saturday, July 13 (1-2 p.m.) on channels 9-11.

This motion picture from England consists of three segments. In "Ghosts and Ghoulies," Whizz, a newcomer to the gang, must spend an hour in a haunted house as his initiation. In "Peewee's Pianola," the gang finds a player piano which they attempt to move in a van, but a bump in the road causes the pianola to become a runaway, with one of the gang inside.

In "A Good Deed in Time," the gang, having embarked on a campaign of doing good, finds that even virtue has its hazards. By an odd coincidence, each good deed they attempt requires the use of a ladder. They borrow one from a house painter who seems to need it every time the kids are using it.

Burr Tillstrom's Kukla, Fran and Ollie with Fran Allison are hosts of "The CBS Children's Film Festival."

ALL'S FAIR — Children at the Tulsa State Fair participate in an old-fashioned pie-eating contest. NBC-TV's "GO" visited the fair and will show many of the events, amusements and contests on the colorcast of Saturday, July 14, (12:30-1 p.m.) on channels 6-7.

Bill Cullen Has Winning Streak

Bill Cullen, host of NBC-TV's new daytime game series, "Winning Streak," has compiled one of broadcasting's longest winning streaks — he has never been unemployed since he entered the medium at the age of 19.

The witty and personable performer began his broadcasting career in his native Pittsburgh, when he took a job at a local radio station while enrolled as a pre-med student at the University of Pittsburgh. Quickly realizing that a radio career was what he really wanted, Bill quit school after a year as a student.

In 1944, Cullen moved to New York and snared a position as a staff announcer on NBC. His first game show was "Winner Take All," which was on radio from 1946 to 1950 when it moved to television.

Never at a loss for words or the bestowing of prizes, Bill is perhaps best remembered for the very successful show, "The Price Is Right," which he hosted on network television for nine years. He also was host for "Eye Guess" for four years.

Before taking on the "Winning Streak" assignment, Bill was host of "Three on a Match," which enjoyed a three-year run on NBC-TV. He also is host of the syndicated weekly game series, "The $25,000 Pyramid."

In addition to handling his own shows, Bill has kept busy appearing as a frequent guest on several shows, including "I've Got a Secret," "The Match Game," "To Tell the Truth" and "You Don't Say."

A Special For School-Agers

A special CBS News broadcast for school-age children, "What's Congress All About? Part One: The House of Representatives," with Correspondent Roger Mudd, will be presented Saturday, July 13 (12-12:30 p.m.) on Channels 9-11.

The House of Representatives holds exclusive powers to originate all bills regarding revenue, to elect a President if no candidate wins a majority of the electoral votes, and to bring impeachment charges against a President. Young viewers of the broadcast will discover how bills become laws, and why members of the House are at the heart of the democratic system.

The broadcast also covers the origins of Congress and the role — in today's 435 member House of Representatives — of Rep. Peter Rodino of New Jersey, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee. Interviews with two House pages, Kim Tomb of Hawaii and Bob Kieffer of New Jersey, will also be presented.

'Go' Plans New Slant At History

"Go-U.S.A.," a series of seventeen half-hour programs dramatizing the origins and growth to the United States through stories of little-known contributors to American history, will be colorcast on NBC-TV Saturday mornings during the 1975-76 season as part of the observance of the nation's Bicentennial celebration, was announced this week by Robert T. Howard, President, NBC-TV. By-passing the well-known stories of Paul Revere, George Washington and other famous historical figures, the programs will focus on the contributions of lesser-known individuals of varied nationalities and backgrounds who played roles in the establishment and development of our country.

"The lives and exploits of our national heroes have been well-documented," Mr. Heinemann said. "But a careful reading of history reveals an abundance of 'average people' — many of them youngsters — who, through a combination of circumstance and timing, proved themselves no less heroic than the major historical figures of their time."

Among the individuals whose stories will be told are the little slave girl in New York who overheard discussion of a plot against George Washington; the young boy who single-handedly hauled a badly needed cannon through the snow to an American general; and the 14-year-old girl who served in the Army two years undetected. One drama will focus on the origins of the American cowboy in the early west.

"Go-U.S.A." will mark a departure for the "GO" series, which begins its second season in September. In its first two seasons of production, the series has concentrated on documentary-style, first person experiences for youngsters, rather than scripted dramas. The portable PCP 90 videotape camera, which the "GO" crew has developed from a special event camera into a production camera of wide versatility, will be used on "GO-U.S.A."

CHILDREN'S SHARE

During 1973, 48 percent of the total programs of PBS (the Public Broadcasting Service) were children's programs.

Satellite To Bring British Open Golf

The British Open Golf Championship from Royal Lytham and St. Annes Golf Course in Lancashire, England — the third leg in golf's Grand Slam — will be telecast via satellite by ABC Sports, Saturday, July 13 (4:30-6:30 p.m.), on channels 3-5-12.

Vying for shares in the 50,000 pounds (approximately $125,000) purse in this most prestigious golf classic will be a roster of the greatest names in golf. The list of leading U. S. golf professionals includes defending champion Tom Weiskopf, perennial great Jack Nicklaus, who won the open in 1970; two-time Open winner Lee Trevino, 1974's number one and two leading money winners, Johnny Miller and Hubert Green; all-time great Arnold Palmer, and other standout performers including Bruce Crampton, Dave Hill, Gay Brewer, Lanny Wadkins, Tommy Aaron, Gene Littler, Jerry Heard and J. C. Snead.

In addition to the American contingent, the Open will feature the leading golfers of the British Isles, the European Continent, South America, Asia, Australia and Africa — an all-star international field, headed up by this year's Master Champion, Gary Player of South Africa.

ABC Sportscasters for the British Open will be Chris Schenkel, Jim McKay, series host of "ABC's Wide World of Sports," and professional golfer Dave Marr as an expert commentator.

ABC Sports will provide U. S. viewers with comprehensive coverage of 12 holes in this all-important final round of play.

Stockton Plays Ilie Nastase

Dick Stockton plays Ilie Nastase on Sunday, July 7, (2:30-3:30 p.m.) on "CBS Tennis Classic" to be broadcast on CBS-TV.

Pat Summerall and the competing players comment on the matches played at Lakeway World of Tennis, Austin, Texas.

FROM DURHAM — USA-USSR Track and Field Championship — with Brent Musburger, Ralph Boston and Bill Toomey as commentators will be televised from Durham, N.C. on "CBS Sports Spectacular" Sunday, July 7 at 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. on channels 9-11.

Super Golf Tourney

The Tournament Players Championship, a new and important addition to the list of the world's major golf competitions, has been added to the roster of tournaments that will be covered by ABC Sports this year, it was announced today jointly by Boone Arledge, President of ABC Sports, and Deane Beman, Commissioner of the Professional Golfers' Association Tournament Players Division.

The Tournament Players Championship, which will be played on Labor Day Weekend at the Atlanta Country Club in Atlanta, Georgia, will be televised live and exclusively by ABC Sports Saturday, Aug. 31 (3:30-5:00 p.m.)

In announcing the agreement with the PGA-TPD to televise the Tournament Players Championship, Mr. Arledge said, "ABC Sports is delighted to have the opportunity to bring viewers this new and exciting tournament, which promises to become one of the most important in the world of golf."

Commissioner Beman stated, "The Tournament Players Championship will become the fifth major championship - along with the US Open, the PGA Championship, the Masters and the British Open - for two important reasons.

"First, because it will have the strongest field ever assembled for a tournament. And, second, because the players themselves have created this tournament and will lend it their complete support, as evidenced by the fact that players such as Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller, Lee Trevino, Tom Weiskopf, Billy Bruce Crampton and Lanny Casper, Brian Allin, Lee Elder, Wadkins have agreed to play."

'Georgette' Has A Talent For Ballet

LETTING LOOSE— Georgia Engel pulls out all the stops as an unflappable flapper from the Roaring Twenties. She portrays Georgette on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," Saturdays (9-9:30 p.m.) on channel 9-11.

Georgia Engel, Ted Baxter's girl friend on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," was born on July 28 in Washington, D. C., the daughter of a United States Coast Guard vice admiral whose military duties kept the family moving frequently.

From early childhood, Miss Engel studied dancing. She received her high school diploma from the Washington School of the Ballet Academy in the nation's capital. Shortly after graduation, she moved to Hawaii with her family, majored in drama at the University of Hawaii in Honolulu, and managed to get her college degree in three years. She continued her dancing and took on a new interest, swimming.

Miss Engel returned to Washington, joined the American Light Opera community theater and appeared in productions of "Music Man," "Zaneeta" and "The Major's Daughter." She was a member of the Washington Theater Club, a resident theater, for a season.

In 1969, Miss Engel moved to New York City, where she appeared in the Equity Library Theater production of "Lend an Ear." Casting agent for David Merrick saw her in the show, which led to her playing the role of Minnie Fay in Merrick's "Hello Dolly!" The off-broadway production of "The House of Blue Leaves" was her next major production and when the show toured to Los Angeles, Miss Engel continued in her role of "Corinna."

In Los Angeles, Mary Tyler Moore and her husband, Grant Tinker, saw the play and were enchanted with Miss Engel. Coincidentally, a few days later, Miss Moore and Miss Engel met at a dancing class which they both attended. This led to Miss Engel's first appearance as Georgette, in an episode of "The Mary Tyler Moore Show."

New Titles Given Two Programs Next Season

Titles of two previously announced programs for the 1974-75 season on NBC-TV have been changed, it was announced today by Lawrence R. White, Vice President, Programs, NBC-TV.

He said that the program previously known as "In Tandem" will now become "Movin' On" and the former "The Rangers" series gets the new name, "Sierra."

"Movin' On," which will star Frank Converse and Claude Akins as cross-country truck drivers, will be broadcast Thursdays from 10 to 11 p.m., "Sierra," Thursdays from 8 to 9 p.m.

"We made these changes in the interest of clarifying the subject of the programs," explained Mr. White. "Movin' On" is a better title for the story of two restless men who just can't settle down, and they're always movin' on."

Mr. Robertson explained that "Sierra" is the name of a fictional national park. "Actually we'll be filming in U.S. National Parks in many parts of the country, from the sea to the desert, but rather than creating the impression that one park has all these various beauties and problems, we have created a fictional park — Sierra."

AGE OF REASON

'THE APARTMENT' — Forlorn Jack Lemmon, as a young businessman who has begun to doubt the ethics of lending his apartment to senior executives for their romantic pursuits, forlornly contemplates his key in "The Apartment," a comedy-drama on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" July 13 (9-11 p.m.) on channel 6-7.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR CLARENCE KELLEY, director of the FBI
There seems to be a rash of kidnappings. Are there any legislative steps being taken to alleviate the problem?—Debra Mussari, Niagara Falls, N.Y.

● There have been several kidnappings for ransom in the last six months, and legislation presently in effect covers all those incidents. In the several months that have followed the kidnapping of Patricia Hearst, the FBI, in conjunction with local authorities, has been involved in investigations of eight major abductions and one conspiracy to kidnap. All of the victims have been released. More than two dozen suspects involved have been arrested. More than $1 million in ransom money has been recovered. In the ninth case, a planned kidnapping was thwarted. But it's the Hearst case, of course, that has grabbed all the headlines.

FOR PETER FALK, TV's "Columbo"

Do you have any plans to do a weekly series?—M. M., Harrington Park, N.J.

● I'll never go on TV on a weekly basis unless I can't work anywhere else. I'm no dummy. If I'm in the gutter, I'll take a weekly series—but only if I'm in the gutter.

FOR CLAUDETTE COLBERT

I've often wondered at what point in your life you decided to cut your hair in the bangs that have become your trademark.—L. D., Indio, Calif.

● I came to California in 1932 to do "The Sign of the Cross" for Cecil B. DeMille and I had to wear a wig that looked very much as my hair does now. A friend thought the wig was very becoming and so did I, so I decided to use the style on my own hair as well. Also, if I wear my hair differently, my face suddenly looks very serious.

FOR JULIA CHILD, "The French Chef"

When the question, "Why do men make better chefs?" comes up, you and other experts talk about the physical strength required for the work. Are there other reasons why people think men are better cooks?—Karen Bowers, Morgantown, W. Va.

● Yes, I think so. Men are often less fussy than women and seem to be more inventive and daring. But perhaps the new liberated woman will beat them out. We'll have to wait and see.

FOR RONALD REAGAN, governor of California

Are you for or against legalized gambling and a state lottery in California?—Ronald Taylor, Eureka, Calif.

● I have always opposed the expansion of legalized gambling as a means of producing revenue because of the very real threat of encouraging and perpetuating organized crime. In addition, I feel we should not take advantage of those aspects of man's nature that tend to degrade him. In past years, the people of California, through the ballot, have expressed their disapproval of a state lottery.

FOR GENE RODDENBERRY, creator of "Star Trek"

Why is the new "Star Trek" done in cartoon form when so many members of the original cast are involved?—R. A., Chicago, Ill.

● Because the cast can come in once a month and tape four shows at a time. If we were doing a live show, we would be tying up their time for nine months out of the year.

FOR EILEEN FORD of the Ford Model Agency

Is Europe still a good hunting ground for New York modeling agencies?—J. F., Niagara Falls, Ont.

● It isn't what it used to be. There are lots of beautiful girls there, but the lure of New York isn't what it was. They'd rather make less money and live in Paris!

FOR ISAAC HAYES, composer-performer, actor

Has religion played an important part in your music?—L. O., East St. Louis, Ill.

● Religion has influenced me, as it has most black entertainers, but I don't go to church often. Not that I am not a Christian. I just feel you can keep the Commandments when you are on your own, in your own house, and in your own way of life.

FOR JOAN BLONDELL

So many actresses simply fade from the Hollywood scene, but you're still going strong. How do you account for this?—Casey Wyansmith, Washington, D.C.

● I made up my mind at least a dozen years ago that I'd had it with the pretty stuff and was going to be a character actress. I went from being a glamour gal to whatever acting part I could get. I believe as the English do: Take small roles, starring guest shots, anything—but keep working.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

I'm curious as to what has become of the first Mrs. Nelson Rockefeller.—J. McL., Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

● Mary Todhunter Clark, the first Mrs. Rockefeller, is living quietly in New York City. She shuns publicity and any kind of limelight, but in April she visited her good friend, the wife of Gov. Malcolm Wilson (Rockefeller's successor), at the executive mansion in Albany, N.Y. This was her first visit to her former home since her divorce. She made the journey, unescorted and unrecognized, on a Penn Central train. But, as in the old days, she rode in the governor's car from the station to the mansion.

Let's Explode the Myth: You Can't Escape Crime by Moving to the Country!

By Sloan Wilson
Especially for FAMILY WEEKLY

Sloan Wilson says:

"The idea that crime is a disease peculiar to the cities does not contribute anything to the understanding of it. It's time that all of us realized that there is no place we can run, no place where we can hide. Crime is something that both country and city people have to find new ways to prevent in their own backyards."

Sloan Wilson is the author of "The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit," "A Summer Place," and other novels.

Elizabeth Gee

"In the country almost every man has firearms, and there are many places where they can be used without being seen or heard by witnesses."

When city people go to the country on vacation, they often think that they are leaving the world of crime behind. Because I live in the foothills of the Adirondacks, friends in New York congratulate me for having "escaped the violence" that scares them so much.

I still love living up here in the mountains, but after three years of it, I have stopped believing that the country is always as peaceful as Lake George seems on a quiet starlit night. On paper we don't have much serious crime—and the same can be said for rural regions in the South and the West—but even in the old days of the wild frontier, towns with big cemeteries often had few crimes on the books.

Last summer the illusion of eternal peace was rudely shattered in the Adirondacks when someone stabbed two men to death in the woods and abducted a girl who was later found dead in an abandoned mine shaft. There was a massive manhunt, complete with helicopters and roadblocks—and many people who had taken to the hills to find peace went back to the city in disgust. Finally a man who came from this region was wounded by a conservation officer with a gun and charged with one of the murders. At this writing his case has not been decided by the courts, but the news of his capture calmed a lot of frantic people. Some of the area's boosters have trotted out police records to convince tourists that the murders were only a freakish fluke, and our community is usually as trouble-free as the Garden of Eden before Eve ate that apple. I doubt that this is true.

The Adirondacks, like city slums, contain many desperately poor people. Essex County, where I live, has an unemployment rate that ranges above 25 percent in the winter. The rural poor have many advantages that the city poor lack, but they also have many disadvantages. A poor man in the country can fish and hunt, but his hut or trailer can be terribly isolated in the winter. In the mountains there is little opportunity for conviviality, for entertainment or for meeting new people. During the long, cold winters it is easy for a man to brood about personal wrongs he believes have been done him.

It would not be fair to say that murder is "common" around here, for many of the small mountain villages go for decades without a murder on their books. I'll put it this way: If I wanted to kill someone, I think it would be much easier to get away with it in the country than in the city. In the country almost every man has firearms, and there are many places where they can be used without being seen or heard by witnesses. There may not be many murders on the books, but every fall there are a lot of people shot in the woods. Almost always these killings are written off as accidents or suicides. Murder, after all, is a very difficult crime to prove in the forest. These accidents often involve natives who have been schooled in the use of rifles since early childhood, and they often take place at surprisingly short range. You can draw one of two conclusions:

Either country folk cannot learn to handle guns safely, despite their pride in their marksmanship, or some of these killings are not quite accidental.

Country cops cannot be blamed for their reluctance to charge murder. Once they say a man has been murdered, they are under great pressure to catch a murderer. There are only a few state policemen and village cops, and they have thousands of miles of wilderness to patrol. They lack sophisticated equipment, and they have so little money for fancy sleuthing that they hesitate to take fingerprints, because that's an expensive process. Furthermore, the police cannot always be assured of the support of everyone when they charge murder. Psychotic killers are of course hunted down as avidly as they are in the city, but if a man kills to right some deep personal wrong, his neighbors may not rush to report him. A lot of folk still believe in the unwritten law up here. The tradition of working out one's own rough forms of justice without appeal to outside authority is still strong.

The suspicion that murder is more common in the country than the record books show will not come as news to anyone bred in a rural area. Country folk still feel safer in the mountains than they do in the city because murder in the city is such a terrifyingly random affair. A lot of city crime is a collision between strangers. Except when the tourists come, almost everyone knows everyone else in the country. If you don't do something to infuriate your neighbors, you will be fairly safe.

One reason why there are so few cases of recorded rape in the country is that the rapist cannot simply melt into the crowd and disappear. However, a worse kind of sexual crime is all too prevalent in rural areas: incest. Long a subject for crude humor, this crime, which is so pathetic when it involves minors, is all too common in any isolated region, as social workers and physicians can testify.

Thefts are more rare in the country than they are in the city, if only because there are few homes or business establishments that offer much to steal. Vandalism, however, is common. The target is often summer cottages that stand empty all winter. Windows are smashed, doors are pried open and furniture is overturned in an explosion of rage that rarely can be explained. The blame is often put on youngsters, but the culprits are almost never caught. My own family's summer home on Lake George and those of many of my friends have suffered this kind of damage during the past two winters.

I do not think that the existence of country crime gives any reason for denigrating country people, for the majority of rural folk are of course as innocent as the majority of city dwellers. But I think the dark side of country life is worthy of study.

Desi Arnaz Looks Back: "My Children Prove Even a Broken Marriage Can Be Worth It!"

"Desi never hangs up without saying, 'I love you, Dad.' In print it may look coy, but he doesn't say it for effect. He's always done it, even if we talk just a minute."

Desi Arnaz, Sr., looked amazingly trim and was in the best of spirits when we recently broke bread together. After 14 years away from show business, he's back at work on the Universal lot. Ironically, his ex-wife, Lucy—mother of his two children, Lucie, 23, and Desi Jr., 21—had just decided to give up the TV grind in favor of movies and a few specials.

FAMILY WEEKLY: What made you decide to go back to work?

DESI: MCA-Universal boss Lew Wasserman called me and said I should quit sitting around and come develop one property at a time and let him handle all the administrative details, which I hate. Lew was my first agent, you know.

ever been near it. I was finishing high school and was all set to go to Notre Dame to study law. I was going to be a criminal lawyer. Come to think of it, maybe there was a little bit of ham in me I didn't know about.

FW: Why didn't you go into law?

DESI: The revolution is what happened. My dad was mayor of my hometown in Cuba for ten years. My uncle was the chief of police. They had that town pretty well wrapped up for a while. Then Dad was elected to Congress. He still kept a hand in farming, raised cattle, slaughtered them and sold meat. All of a sudden, within 48 hours, everything was lost. My father's brother was killed, my dad was thrown in jail bows all over the place. Lucie would get mad if I introduced her. But when she went to Marymount, she was in a couple of plays and everything changed. She's one heck of a dancer, and can sing well, too.

FW: Are you sorry you had to raise your children in the limelight?

DESI: No — I'm amazed how they've turned out. I don't know how we could do better. If they'd turned out badly, all kinds of psychiatrists could tell me what I'd done wrong, but the kids double-crossed everyone. They're just great.

FW: Are you close to your children?

DESI: I see them continually and we talk on the phone almost daily. In fact, I consider Desi my best friend. He does something nice that means a lot to me. He never hangs up without saying, "I love you, Dad." In print it may look coy, but he doesn't say it for effect. He's always done it, even if we talk just a minute.

FW: Did you run into any snag about who would have the children when you and Lucy divorced?

DESI: I think we managed to handle that well, if I do say so myself. We didn't set any rules like they had to be with me every other Saturday, or stuff like that. We left it up to them. If I was at my place in Del Mar and they wanted to go to the beach, they'd come stay with me. And so on. I think it's a terrible thing to make them go one week here, one week there.

FW: Have you and Lucy managed to stay friends?

DESI: We're much better friends now than before.

FW: Do you think Lucie's marriage to Phil Vandervoort would have had more chance if she'd been older?

DESI: That's a hard one to answer. She was 20 or 21 when she married and I don't know if you can arrange the timing. How do you manage falling in love? It just happens.

FW: Was Desi hurt when his romance with Liza Minnelli ended so abruptly?

DESI: I am sure of it.

FW: Does he have a temper?

DESI: Desi is such a gentleman. When the kids were little, Lucie used to push him around a bit and he'd take it. He had a wonderful disposition. Better than mine, thank God. But when he gets mad, watch out. He takes quite a while, then finally he says, "Don't do that again." And that's it.

FW: Is your wife Edie an actress?

DESI: No. When I first came out here in 1940 she was a cigarette girl at Santa Anita. She was a horse-aholic even then. Just like me. She was about 20. I thought I was a pretty good-looking character then, and never had any trouble with girls, but nothing worked with her. And I tried every angle. Twenty-five years later, I married her. I guess the moral is "Never give up."

FW: Where do you live?

DESI: We are up to our fins in places. I've a little house in Beverly Hills that my mother occupies. My father just passed away last year. I've a ranch in Corona that I want to convert into a kind of posada (in Spanish, an inn). Then the place in Del Mar, and my home in Las Cruces in Baja that I designed and built myself.

FW: What do you consider your biggest mistake?

DESI: That's tough — I've made so many. Probably buying RKO studios. It wasn't a mistake commercially, but it was personally. It made me into something I didn't want to be: a business tycoon.

FW: If you could do everything over again, what would you do differently?

DESI: I'd try not to grow so big. But, unfortunately, that's the name of the ball game in this country. I would have much preferred staying with a few quality shows I liked. But, just to keep people employed, I had to do others, and then I had to compromise, and that's terrible. There's only one way to do things, and that's the right way.

FW: Looking back, what do you think was the "rightest" thing you did?

DESI: I don't like to keep bragging, but my kids are wonderful. There's a lot to be said even for a marriage that didn't work because we did a couple of good things—two good kids. Lucy and I gave a party for Desi Jr. on his 21st birthday—even invited Gary, for heaven's sake [Lucille Ball's husband, Gary Morton]—and at the end of the evening, I looked across the room at our two kids and I said to Lucy, "Honey, if we never did anything else, we have those two wonderful people sitting over there."

Lucie

Desi Jr.

Desi and wife Edie: "Twenty-five years later, I married her."

Pictorial Parade

To show you how low he was on the totem pole then, he used to pick me up and drive me to work—and I was getting practically no salary! Now he's a big wheel.

FW: Aren't you afraid you'll get too involved again?

DESI: No. I did that before, and once was enough. At one time I was president of a studio, starring in my own series, and was responsible for 20 other shows. I had 35 sound stages and 3,000 people to take care of. If I quit, they were out of work. It became a monster. That's why I wanted out. But now I'll have nothing to do with administration. If I want something I just pick up the phone. It's a pleasure. Someone else can do all that other stuff.

FW: Had you always wanted to be involved in show business?

DESI: No. No one in my family had and our house was ransacked.

FW: What did you do?

DESI: Everything was chaos for about two months. I finally got to Key West, Fla., in '34, with just what I had on. And I found out something interesting about life: After all the big shots who'd been up to dinner, the only person to help me was my dad's secretary, who loaned me $110 to get out.

FW: How do you feel about both of your children going into show business?

DESI: I'm glad they like it. Their mother gave them good training, having them in her show. It was worth six years of college to be with Big Mama.

FW: Did you anticipate that your children would want to be actors?

DESI: Lucie surprised me. She was the introvert of the family. Whenever we had anyone over, and I'd introduce the kids, Desi was like Al Jolson, taking Free Frigidaire Automatic Ice Maker when you buy one of our three most popular refrigerators.

Frigidaire has made it possible for its dealers to offer you an automatic ice maker absolutely free when you buy any one of our three most popular refrigerator-freezers:

Our 17 or 20.6 cubic foot Top Freezer Refrigerators, models FPCI-170T and FPCI-206T. Or our 20.3 cubic foot Side-by-Side 3-door Refrigerator-Freezer, model FPCI-203 V3. (You pay only for the plumbing and installation of the ice maker.)

It means you won't have to fill ice trays at the kitchen sink. And you won't have to worry about spills on the way to the refrigerator.

It also means you can always have a bucket of ice on hand for those unexpected occasions. It's all done for you automatically, right inside our 100% Frost Proof refrigerator-freezer. And it's a dependable ice maker, too, because we've been building dependable refrigerators for over 50 years—and whatever we build, we build to last.

What's more, we've used our exclusive Frigi-Foam insulation to make our walls as thin as possible to give you as much storage space—in as little space—as possible.

And trimmed the fully-adjustable shelves with the luxurious look of teakwood to make all three models as beautiful inside as out.

Unfortunately, this automatic ice cube maker offer can't last too long.

In fact, since it expires July 31, 1974, we suggest you see any participating Frigidaire dealer as soon as possible.

A Mexican Chili Soup and Hot Stuffed Hero Rolls

Mexican Warmer*
Harborside Stuffed Hero Rolls*
Sweet 'n' Simple Coleslaw*
Watermelon Wedges
Soft Drinks Beer Milk

*Recipe given

MEXICAN WARMER

1 can (11¼ ozs.) chili-beef soup
1 soup can water
1 can (8 ozs.) whole kernel corn, drained and chopped
½ cup sliced, pitted black olives, optional
⅓ teaspoon ground cumin seed or chili powder
3 drops hot-pepper sauce

1. In 2-qt. saucepan, combine soup and water smoothly. Add remaining ingredients, heat to boiling. Reduce heat; simmer 5 minutes, uncovered.
2. Serve in mugs.

Makes about 3½ cups, 4 servings

HARBORSIDE STUFFED HERO ROLLS

3 pkgs. (10-oz. size) brown-and-serve French or hero rolls
2 cans (4½-oz. size) deviled ham or 2 cups chopped bologna or ham
1 pkg. (8 ozs.) process Cheddar cheese slices, chopped
1 cup finely chopped celery
¼ cup finely chopped onion
¼ cup chopped dill pickle or pickle relish
½ cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon prepared mustard

1. Cut rolls lengthwise into 2 halves with a sharp knife. Using a fork scoop out inner roll, leaving a shell about ½ inch thick.
2. Crumble soft inner-roll pieces into a bowl. Stir in remaining ingredients. Heap ½ cup mixture into each half roll and place the 2 halves together.
3. Preheat oven to 350°F. Place rolls on a cookie sheet and bake for 35-40 minutes, or until golden brown and hot. Or wrap each roll in foil and place on barbecue grill about 4 inches from medium-hot coals. Grill 25-30 minutes, turning once or twice.

Makes 6 servings

Harborside Heroes—crisp, crusty rolls overflowing with a hot, cheesy filling—will go a long way to satisfy hearty, man-sized appetites.

SWEET 'N' SIMPLE COLESLAW

1 large head cabbage, slivered, 2½ qts.
2 cups green-pepper rings
2 cups Spanish onion rings
¾ cup sugar, plus 1 tablespoon
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon celery seed
1 tablespoon salt
1 cup white vinegar
¾ cup vegetable oil

1. In large 3-qt. bowl layer cabbage, green pepper and onion; sprinkle ¾ cup sugar over all.
2. In saucepan combine remaining 1 tablespoon sugar and remaining ingredients; mix well. Heat to boiling, stirring; pour over slaw. Cover with plastic film or foil and refrigerate at least 4 hours.
3. Just before serving, toss salad thoroughly.

Makes 2½ qts., 8 servings

Each Plate Is Produced In A Limited Quantity

Rare Limited Edition Collector Plates

When Limited Quantity Is Gone, There Will Be No More Available!

Since ancient days, man has revered magnificent works of art in fine porcelain. Cleopatra, the Emperors of Rome and the Caliphs of Bagdad all showered rewards on their skilled ceramic artisans. Now you too can enjoy and own what only Emperors and Kings once did.

Every lovely plate on this page is perfect to start your own personal collection. Each is a true Limited Edition plate you will certainly take great pride in displaying in your home. And each represents excellent value for the price.

The number of collectors of Limited Edition Plates has grown by hundreds of thousands since the end of the Second World War when renowned European and American artists and craftsmen returned to their studios. The unprecedented boom in this centuries old art form has led to impressive increases in the value of many plates.

WHY DO LIMITED EDITIONS INCREASE IN VALUE?

The answer is simple — supply and demand. Each year, world famous companies like those represented here, produce a limited number of a prestige plate, then destroy the master. This forever freezes the supply available to collectors and dealers. Meanwhile, there is no set limit on demand.

In our opinion, the plates represent wonderful additions to your home and many are excellent investment opportunities too. However, we certainly cannot show you all our recommended plates in our advertisements. So, we will send to you with the purchase of any plate in this ad — FREE OF CHARGE — our famous monthly Newsletter. It is filled with collectors items and valuable information and for many people it serves as an encyclopedia of collectibles.

KNOWING WHAT TO BUY IS ALL IMPORTANT!

Modern plate collecting is certainly not a new hobby. It can be said to have started with Bing & Grondahl's first Annual plate produced in 1895; it sold for 50¢ then and is currently worth $2,700. Knowing what to buy is all important! Shown in this ad is the latest in the fabulous B&G series, the 1974 Annual, which we offer to you for only $22.00, a "must" buy for serious collectors. Also shown are magnificent rare plates from many other of the finest studios in Europe and America — including Goebel Hummel, Haviland-Parlon, Royal Copenhagen and Gorham — all available only while limited quantities last.

We feel we have been pretty successful in helping our customers. For instance: we sold the 1969 Bing & Grondahl Mother's Day Plate for $9.00 . . . it now brings over $300.00; we sold the 1971 Goebel Hummel Annual for $30.00 that now brings up to $225.00. We have chosen every limited edition plate on these pages as the most beautiful and potentially the most valuable. Some are handmade, some handpainted and some are serially numbered. And value aside, all these plates are exquisitely lovely decorations for your home.

OUR SPECIAL OFFER

Look over the beautiful plates shown here, make your selection and take advantage of the fantastic special offer shown below. We know you will be delighted. But do it soon because our offer is subject to limited supply and we expect many people will take advantage of it.

Bobby Bragan: "Here's My All-Time, All- Star Batting Lineup"

Bobby Bragan

Willie Mays

Joe DiMaggio

Yogi Berra

Sandy Koufax

FORT WORTH, TEXAS

Dear Sirs:

I feel compelled to write you concerning your article, "The World's Toughest Batting Orders—As Selected by Ten Star Major League Pitchers," which appeared in the March 31 FAMILY WEEKLY. I think it is a shame when unproven players such as Dave Concepcion of Cincinnati are placed in a lineup of "toughest outs." I agree that Hank Aaron, Billy Williams, Rod Carew and Willie Stargell are among the greatest hitters the game has ever known, but it certainly did not take your panel long to forget Roberto Clemente.

Please do not interpret this as a misunderstanding of the purpose of your article. I understand that it was a survey of contemporary pitchers versus the hitters they must face each day. But I thought it would be fun to compare these lineups to those of days gone by. Why not take a look at some of these names in an all-time lineup?

Batting order:

- 1. Willie Mays, cf: .300 lifetime hitter... over 600 home runs and over 300 stolen bases... probably the greatest outfielder ever.
- 2. Ty Cobb, lf: .367 lifetime avg... 4,192 career hits... 890 stolen bases... 2,245 runs... 3,034 games.

3. Babe Ruth, dh: .342 lifetime avg... 714 home runs... 2,216 RBI... 690 slugging average... the most prolific hitter of his time.

4. Rogers Hornsby, 2b: .358 lifetime hitter... 302 career homers... two-time triple-crown winner... the greatest right-handed hitter ever.

5. Joe DiMaggio, rf: .325 lifetime avg... 361 career homers... 579 career slugger ranks in Top Ten in eight different World Series categories.

6. Pie Traynor, 3b: .320 lifetime... hit right at .300 for 12 straight years... probably the finest fielding third-sacker ever.

7. Honus Wagner, ss: .327 lifetime... 722 stolen bases... 3,415 hits... seven-time batting champ... five-time RBI champ... all-time great fielder.

8. George Sisler, 1b: .340 lifetime... 375 stolen bases... two-time batting champ with averages of .407 and .420... slick fielder.

9. Yogi Berra, c: .285 lifetime... 358 homers... 1,700 games behind the plate... leader in three World Series categories... second in three others.

LHP: Sandy Koufax... 655 lifetime... winner ERA champ for his last five seasons... four-time strikeout champ... ninth lifetime KO man... only man ever to throw four no-hit games... included one perfecto. RHP: Walter Johnson... 413 career wins... 110 shutouts... 3,499 career strikeouts... 2.17 career ERA... nearly 6,000 innings pitched... 532 completions. You may have noticed that the name of Henry Aaron was left out of the listing. Having been fortunate enough to manage Henry for four seasons, I can personally attest to the fact that he is one of the greatest players who have ever lived—both in his play on the field and in his behavior off it. Unfortunately, his all-around play is not quite as spectacular as that of a Mays and his home-run feats are not as prolific as those of Ruth. This is not to say that Aaron does not deserve the homer record, because he does. However, the home-run feats of the Babe were indeed amazing. Many years, the Babe would out-hit entire teams! So the fact is that Ruth was a god among his contemporaries, whereas Aaron was out-hit many times by other players in the league. Nonetheless, I would list Hank Aaron as my No. 1 reserve on this team.

I just thought your article was thought-provoking and that a comment was appropriate. Thank you very much.

Bobby Bragan's letter—and his lineup—are interesting, all right. FAMILY WEEKLY's batting order was compiled by Sports Editor Larry Bortstein after he talked with pitchers active in the major leagues today. They were asked to name active players only, which explains the absence of Roberto Clemente, and the whole Bragan batting order. Bobby Bragan, incidentally, formerly played as infielder and catcher for the Philadelphia Phillies and the Brooklyn Dodgers. He was manager at Pittsburgh, Milwaukee and Atlanta before becoming president of the Texas League, his present position.

Human Medicine Is Bad Medicine for Pets!

If your pet pup has a stomach-ache or your cat has the sniffles, don't reach into your medicine cabinet for a pill or a potion. They will probably either be useless or lethal.

One should never administer most human-type laxatives to pets, with the possible exception of milk of magnesia. Many laxatives contain small amounts of strychnine—poisonous to Bowser and Tabby. Aspirin is another potential killer for cats, though permissible for dogs. Although some cats have had baby aspirin on the advice of a veterinarian, better not experiment with this drug yourself—it has proved disastrous too many times. Cold remedies of any kind should be avoided. Tranquilizers should only be administered with a veterinarian's prescription. Ditto antibiotics. In fact, let your vet decide on all medications and you'll be safer. —By Felicia Ames

Jobmanship

When Your Company Wants You to Relocate

The growing resistance of American employees to relocation has forced many corporations to change their moving policies. In the 1950's and '60's, an executive often had to relocate 11-14 times before reaching his final niche. Nowadays, to reach the same niche, an employee may only have to move five- six times. Atlas Van Lines' sixth annual nationwide survey of corporation relocation policies and plans discovered the dramatic drop in corporations' expectations. In 1969-70 the companies surveyed expected a whopping 66.7 percent of their salaried people to pack up and change towns at least once every three years. By 1972 employee attitudes reduced this to only 36.9 percent. Now, in 1974, it's down to 28.5 percent moving in three-year intervals and an impressive 45 percent of salaried personnel not moving at all in a five-year period. Also, fringe benefits for moving have increased. Eighty-six percent of companies now grant company-paid moving of unlimited weight of household goods. Fifty-eight percent will pay for the move of a second auto. Forty-three percent will pay for a boat. Seventeen percent even toss in maid service to clean your old home when you leave and/or prepare your new home for your arrival. —By S. R. Redford

At the big neighborhood Garage Sale almost everyone has a gimmick. Pick the one who doesn't.

1. No. He's Vaughn Gudeel. Gimmick: Insists on "feeling the merchandise." Merchandise is about to teach him theory of acupuncture (it's alive). 2. Nope. He's Ben Takin. Bought water bed—that later developed an oil slick. Gimmick: Menthol cigarettes so cold, it's like trying to set fire to an igloo. 3. She's Vera Vane. Gimmick: With 20-400 vision, she "doesn't need" glasses. Thinks she's talking to old college beau. Smokes

Cabbage Leaf cigarettes—preferred by two out of three inchworms. 4. No. He's Frank Apraisal. Just bought "Man Packing Suitcase" painting. Later cleaned it and found it's really "Alligator Having Snack." Smokes cigarette with so many air vents it's like smoking a harmonica. 5. Right. He knows a genuine article when he sees it. Wants no gimmicks in his cigarette, either. Camel Filters. Good taste. Honest tobacco. 6. He's Noah Bargane. Just broke a 130-year-old chair. Now owns $200 worth of genuine antique firewood.

TREASURY OF WALTZES—30 beloved waltzes on 3 records or 2 cartridges—our FREE GIFT to you!

You are invited to accept, FREE, A Treasury of Waltzes, the sparkling first volume of The Longines Symphonette Society's magnificent Family Library of Beautiful Listening.

This is an invitation to the waltz—and more. It's our way of introducing you to the Library's musical joys! A Treasury of Waltzes, the 3-record or 2-cartridge Volume 1 of the Library, contains 30 of the greatest melodies from the waltz capitals of Europe—Vienna, Moscow and Paris. It includes Tchaikovsky's immortal Sleeping Beauty, Strauss's Blue Danube, Chopin's brilliant Minute Waltz, Lehar's saucy Merry Widow and dozens of other glittering waltzes by 16 of waltzing Europe's most famous composers! And it's yours FREE, as an example of the pleasures you can expect from each of the 20 volumes in the Family Library of Beautiful Listening.

Here in one comprehensive library, you'll find most of the great music you already know—and much more that you don't! Six hundred great melodies in all—more than 40 hours of them. Melodies of love as old as Tchaikovsky's Romeo and Juliet, as new as Francis Lai's theme from Love Story... marches by Mozart, Liszt and John Philip Sousa... classic concert pieces by Strauss, Grieg, Brahms... folk songs from the Old World and the New... dances... Broadway and Hollywood hits... piano music by Beethoven, Chopin and Schubert... theater songs by talents as diverse as Offenbach, Sigmund Romberg, Gershwin and Kurt Weill... tunes as old as Kol Nidre and as new as 1973's Dueling Banjos... it's really the most remarkable listening library ever!

The Family Library of Beautiful Listening is yours in records or tapes. It is available only by mail, and only from The Longines Symphonette, the musical organization that has brought more good music to more American families—at more reasonable prices—than any other concert group. Now, medical science has the power to say to you:

Follow these 3 simple steps, and BEGIN YOUR "MIDDLE YEARS" AT 70, 80, EVEN 90!

Announcing — an incredibly simple, medically proven, overwhelmingly documented ANTI-AGING program that is designed to:

- give you the lean, glowing look of a youngster past sixty . . .
- retain the strength and grace and power of a trained athlete in your body beyond your seventies . . .
- and keep you in vibrant good health till ninety or more . . . even if you feel "rotten" today . . . even if your mother or father died far too young of diseases that are STILL carried in your bloodstream!

Yes, This Medical "Youth-Building Program" is so Strong That It Can Even Overcome Poor Heredity!

It is so strong, in fact, that it may actually make you look twenty or more years younger than your parents did at the same age . . . at the same exact time that it enables you to live thirty or forty years longer than they did!

We realize, of course, that these facts may seem virtually impossible to you at this moment . . . until you are shown the new medical techniques by which these goals are attained! They are:

1. The most powerful "age-reversing mechanism" known to man . . . which takes exactly six minutes per day . . . may be done by any man or woman, no matter how poor their health today . . . and which is bluntly recognized by one of the leading physicians in this book to give far better "youthifying" results — far faster — than even "cell therapy" treatments costing hundreds of dollars apiece!

2. A direct attack on the stored-up emotional poisons in your body that eat away strength and youth like internal acid, and replace them with never-flagging fatigue! This incredibly simple technique drains out those poisons, and that deady fatigue, in approximately ten of the most revivifying minutes you have ever spent!

3. A new way to lose weight — not a diet — designed to change your present suicidal eating habits in exactly 48 hours! And, to break at last the vicious fat-multiplying cycle inside your body, that causes you to put on more weight, from less food, than your thin friends.

Let Us Repeat Again: These Medical Techniques Are So Powerful That They Actually REVERSE THE AGING PROCESS — WITHOUT DRUGS!

They cause you, quite simply, to grow stronger and not weaker, as you grow older! And here is the medical documentation to prove it:

In tests conducted at a leading University and Medical School in Southern California, it was discovered that life-prolongation, accomplished this way, not only added decades to potential human life spans, but — even more important — also produced vastly increased vitality and vigor, as well as startlingly heightened resistance to dread "senile decline!" (Reported on page 129 of this thrilling new book.)

As a result of scientific observations and experiments conducted in several different locations in the United States (as well as in Europe and Soviet Russia), it was definitely established that these techniques will enable almost any individual to live beyond 90 . . . and even beyond 100 healthy, productive, thoroughly enjoyable years — even if he or she had tragically short-lived parents or grandparents! In other words, disastrous heredity can now be overcome! (See page 36.)

At a leading Gerontology Research Center on the Pacific Coast, its' president bluntly stated that a single one of the techniques given to you here had (in essence): " . . . reversed the aging process and over a period of time restored the characteristics of youth to the bodies of middle-aged men!" (See Page 129.)

And one of his colleagues, discussing the same simple procedure, went so far as to state that it: " . . . relieves joint stiffness, lowers the blood pressure, and reduces the amount of fat in the body tissues. It acts like a miracle drug, and it's free for the doing!" (Italics ours — see page 130.)

But All This Research Documentation Is Only The PROLOGUE To The Real Meat Of This Revolutionary New Book! FOR NOW THE YOUTH-RESTORING PRINCIPLES LEARNED ALL OVER THE WORLD ARE PUT TO WORK — INSTANTLY — FOR YOU!

How to lose weight without counting calories — by harnessing the same exact forces which made you overweight in the first place! (It is not unusual, with these methods, to lose 15 and more pounds the first week — up to 10 pounds the second week — and a good hundred pounds or more, in as little as 15 weeks. And the weight stays off — for decades!)

How to add 10 . . . 20 . . . perhaps even 30 glowing years to your life, simply by avoiding the everyday "Life-Traps" that make you grow old too fast!

How a careful examination of your eye can tell you, with unerring accuracy, if you've eaten the wrong foods that night for dinner . . .

and therefore have to give them up for a few days till your body's digestive powers restore themselves to the correct balance!

Little-known-stress-on-the-heart Number 1 . . . that kills unwary thousands every year . . . and can be prevented simply by reading a single sentence on page 70!

When you must eat . . . and eat . . . and eat if you really want to lose weight!

"Hungry enzymes" that now infest your body! They are the real reason all past attempts to peel off ugly fat have been such torture for you! And you can "command" your body to destroy them — for good — as simply as this! (See page 82.)

Why most people's muscles simply "melt away" as they grow older! (No wonder "old age" to them means ever-growing weakness!) And how you can stop that muscle-melting process overnight . . . and replace it with vibrant new strength!

And More! And More! And More! Like This —

What really causes vigor to drain out of the "aging" body! A simple fluid that if the body gives up too much of, it then dies of old age! And how you can "pump that vital cell-nourishing fluid" right back into your body . . . actually increase your body capacity to utilize by as much as 133% . . . in just a few thrilling minutes every day!

How to exercise your heart! Anyone — no matter what age — can do it! And prevent the greatest tragedy of all — premature heart attack!

Read the line in the middle of page 144 as though your life depended upon it! Because, if you've ever worried about killing your own heart through the worst possible error you can make — this one line will show you how to avoid it . . . forever!

World's easiest exercise program — for men and women who are pitifully out of shape!

How to avoid the man-made diseases! And save your body, and your nerves, at exactly the same time!

What your sleep, or lack of it, is really telling you! And how to ease yourself into a good night's rest again!

What your fingers tell you that can save your life! Listen to them . . . obey their command . . . and you may be able to out-run your own youngster!

World's most effective weapon against demolished nerves! Gets you back to loving life, instead of hating it, in just about ten blessed minutes!

No more nervous breakdowns! And no more un-necessary heart attacks (or strokes!) The technique shown to you on page 197 may banish them from your life — for good!

How to add ten years to your life, by avoiding one little fatal mistake — at night! Before you go to sleep!

How to laugh at old age — at least till you're ninety! A simple program so effective that it may actually cause strangers to think that you are your best friends' grown children!

And Yours To Prove — In Its Entirety — For 30 Days, Entirely At Our Risk!

The choice is yours. This is a book for people who mean business. It costs you nothing! We take all the risk! Fair enough? Why not send in the coupon — TODAY!

SPECIAL ADDED BONUS SECTION

How to survive a heart attack! Why so many heart attacks are the "silent" type, that kill without the victim even being aware he has been seriously ill before! The one warning signal you simply CAN'T ignore! Why HALF of all heart attack victims ACTUALLY KILL THEMSELVES because they just don't know what to do!

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY By Richard Armour

BACKUP MAN

My wife has a dress I prefer,
Though it may not look nicest on her.
She has fancier gowns, more expensive;
Her wardrobe, you see, is extensive.
This dress, though, I cherish so much
Has a personal, heartwarming touch.
What's that? It's a zipper in back
That because of some muscular lack

She cannot zip up—must have aid.
It's the way that this dress-style was made.

So she calls me, with feminine yelp,
And I? Well, I'm happy to help.
I'm suddenly needed, her man—
Which I think was the dressmaker's plan.

Wife: "Dear, lets go out tonight and have a good time." Husband: "Good idea! If you get home first, leave the garage light on." —Anna Herbert

SWING JUMPER Injury and death on the playground

QUOTE: "At first glance, jumping the fence doesn't appear to be the kind of thing that is learned. The first jump has to be successful. Ralph, the jumper [shown here], says that three or four years ago, the first time he tried it, he waited too long to leave the swing and flew over the fence, far enough out to miss a metal basketball backboard on the far side on his way down. In his fall he got caught on the basket rim and broke his shoulder. And his little brother—he was seven, and started jumping when he was six—used to jump fences at a different playground. There was no mesh fence there. It had been torn down, but the framework was still standing and the swing riders would jump to the top bar and hang on. His brother left the swing too late, struck the bar with his chest, flipped over, and down. He died two days later. After explaining this, Ralph walked back to the swing for a few more jumps before calling it a day." From "Hangin' Out: City Kids, City Games," by James Wagenvoord (J. B. Lippincott Co., $5.95). UNQUOTE.

How would you like the prospect of being attacked by bats? When Brad Dillman went to Mexico to make "Chosen Survivors," he was told he would have to be attacked by thousands of live bats because they wanted the effect to be "real." "Naturally I was apprehensive," recalls Dillman, "but I didn't get tetanus shots because I was told they'd make me sicker than if I got bitten." As it turned out, he didn't need to worry. There are two things bats are afraid of: light and people. And, of course, in making a film, those are the two essential ingredients. "They tried everything they could think of to get the bats to attack," says Dillman. "They shoved them down wind tunnels and blew them with huge fans, but they'd just swoop up to the ceiling and hang there. Finally they had to resort to faking the shots."

JACK LORD Almost like being in love

Hawaii has its own "Gauguin," and the people who snap up his work in the Islands today are often astounded to learn that the signature is by the same Jack Lord who stars in "Hawaii Five-O." Jack's oils sell for as high as $6,000. His watercolors bring between $1,000 and $1,500, and his lithographs go for about $200. And they do sell. The Ala Moana Shopping Center Gallery sold $64,000 worth of his work in one year. The Margaret Keene Gallery sells an average of $35,000 worth a month. Lord says he'd rather be thought of as a painter than an actor. "To me, painting is like being in love for the first time. There is something very special about it." Jack is represented in 40 museums, and the Metropolitan Museum of Art has five of his works.

2 PAIRS for 18⁹⁵ with HABAND's TRIPLE PLUS

for LONG LIFE
— Longer than we dare promise out loud!
EXACT FIT
— No running around wasting gas to find your size!

And Haband's 1974 EASY CARE FACTOR
— Never Need a Shine!

WHY PAY $15 to $30, Even for WHITES? HABAND PRICE 2 pair 18.95

This year, WHITE SHOES are IMPERATIVE and a GOOD-LOOKS NATURAL TOO, for office wear as well as your weekend and vacation dress-up occasions. Only the prevailing high prices (or the pesky trouble of shopping for them) can spoil the fun now.

(Sure, most shoe stores will have a windowful of Whites out front, but try to get your size inside! It makes you wonder how they can even stay in business!)

Well, Haband Company of Paterson, NJ has been in business since 1925 selling excellent men's wear from coast to coast to men who require good quality and yet do not have the time to waste running around shopping. Now, with the gasoline crisis, we are doing even better business!

We sell excellent shoes in all the latest styles and our specialty is having all sizes in stock, ready to ship at once. For instance:

IS YOUR SIZE ON THIS CHART?

We carry all the styles shown on this page in all these sizes, READY TO SHIP! And we will be happy to send you ANY 2 pairs for only $18.95, ON APPROVAL, direct to your door. When the package arrives, you try them on, show the family, see how they fit, and compare the value with what you are used to spending.

Then if for any reason you feel they are not all you expected, you may return them for complete refund.

We have sold millions of pairs under this same guarantee and we invite your AT-HOME INSPECTION, ANY 2 Pairs for $18.95! Just use this easy order form coupon:

YOU WILL BE SHOCKED WHEN YOU SEE OUR SHOES!

These are not cheap shoes! They are the completely new 100% man-made shoes that look and feel like full grain leather but are lighter weight and perform even better!

They are fully lined, with full heel-to-toe cushion insole, cushion arch support, full built-in shank, and life-of-the-shoe PVC sole and heel! All detailing is excellent, with heavy metal buckles and trim, handsome wheeled sole edging, heavy elastic gores, full lifetime laces, THE WORKS!

What's This Easy Care Factor?

Simply This: White Shoes have gained their tremendous popularity today because the new materials are so easy to clean! Just a quick wipe with a damp cloth restores their original spotless white, and they never need a shine! It's that simple, and what a pleasure at this spectacular low price!

WAIT NO MORE! The day of the overpriced Executive Shoe is over. Sooner or later you will be wearing these new price shoes. Why overspend one penny more on old-fashioned kinds? Start right now. Check your choice — we await your instructions!

Virgil, you're early today!

Indeed I am, Dr. Fuddle.

And I'd better be! This fiendish competition is getting to me.

How's that?

All these little brats are on vacation now and they're after my jobs.

How can kids get jobs away from a good worker like you, Virgil?

They cut the price.

You see, Doctor - Pardon me, please!

Virgil, did I hear you call me a fiendish little brat?

Oh, no, Eve! I never said that!

He really didn't. Eve. He said the competition was fiendish!

How about little brats cutting the price?

Let's say that the labor supply is now exceeding the demand and that is what has cut the price.

Is that any better, Eve?

Anything is better than that "fiendish little brat" bit!

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

Our Story: INSPIRED BY THEIR OWN BOASTING AND INFLAMED WITH MEAD, JARNSAXA AND HIS CREW MARCH ON THE WINTER CAMP OF OLAF REGAN TO PROVE THEIR HARDIHOOD IN BATTLE.

IT IS A ROUGH ROAD TO TRAVEL AND THEY STOP OFTEN TO RENEW THEIR FIGHTING SPIRIT FROM A CASK BROUGHT ALONG FOR MEDICINAL PURPOSES.

IT IS DAWN WHEN THEY REACH THEIR GOAL AND HALT IN DISMAY.....

.... OLAF REGAN HAS PUT TO SEA ON HIS HOMEWARD VOYAGE, LEAVING ONLY THE MESS OF THEIR WINTERING. "WE WILL BURN THEIR MEAD HALL!" SHOUTS JARNSAXA. "PERHAPS THEY WILL RETURN AND OFFER US BATTLE!"

"SIT DOWN," A SLEEPY VOICE GROWLS, "IF THEY SEE US HERE THEY WILL KNOW OUR CAMP IS UNGUARDED, AND THEY CAN REACH IT BY SEA AND PLUNDER IT BEFORE WE CAN GET THERE BY LAND."

GONE NOW IS THE WARLIKE SPIRIT, AND THE MEAD THAT MADE EACH MAN FEEL LIKE A HERO HAS BEEN CONSUMED.

THE EMPTY CASK IS THROWN ASIDE AND YOUNG ARN IS PUT IN ITS PLACE. BUT ALL IS NOT LOST, FOR THIS FIASCO HAS CONTRIBUTED TO HIS EDUCATION AND IT WILL BE A LONG TIME BEFORE HE EVER AGAIN SEES THE BOTTOM OF A MEAD CUP.

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Hal Kaufman's JUNIOR WHIRL

OFTEN we say that we can see through a person—meaning, of course, that we understand his motives. But there is a way to see through a person, or yourself, for that matter, and again an x-ray or other machine is not required. Here's how: Employed as a sighting device is a rolled sheet of paper. Peered through as shown in the picture above, that is with both eyes open, but with one peering through the paper tube, the other fixed on target—in this case someone's arm—the arm will appear to have a hole through it. This illusory effect is created by a slight diversion of the line of sight in one eye.

PUTTS 'N' BOOTS! Only one of five possible paths leads from putter's club to the hole at top left. Which path is it? (© 1974 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

- BULLETIN BOARD
- CHANGE, PLEASE! You may have as much as $1.19 in U.S. currency and yet be unable to give change for a dollar bill. What ten coins would you have? A half-dollar, quarter, four dimes and four pennies.
 - Kookie Kwiz: Name three or more states with animals in their names. No fair peeking below. How about Moussehustlers, Hareizona, North and South.
 - If your uncle's sister's son is not your cousin or your brother, who is he? He's you.
 - Say fast, if you can: Howl, fowl, jowl, bowl. Now try: Hour, sour, flour, tour.
