Jaworski Begins Supreme Court Quest

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski argued today that if President Nixon or any president is free to rule that the Constitution "means what he says it does" without Supreme Court review, then Americans are no longer equal under the law.

The special prosecutor said it would be particularly inappropriate to vest such power in President Nixon "in a personally delicate situation involving criminal charges against two of his former closest aides and devotees," John D. Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman.

Nixon's lawyer, James D. St. Clair, contends that the President will no longer be "master in his own house" if he is forced to comply with a federal court order to yield tape recordings and documents covering 64 White House conversations, as evidence in the coming Watergate cover-up trial.

Jaworski was first to deliver his spoken argument before the justices and a packed Supreme Court chamber, in a case that raised fundamental questions about the powers of the presidency.

St. Clair has held in his briefs that the President has the right to withhold potential Watergate evidence.

Jaworski disagreed. He said Nixon may be correct in his interpretation of the Constitution, but he may also be wrong, "and if he is wrong, who is to tell him so?"

"And if there is no one, as the President and his counsel argue in their briefs, the President then is free to pursue his course of his erroneous interpretations," Jaworski said. "What then becomes of our constitutional form of government?"

"... In our view, this nation's constitutional form of government is in serious jeopardy if the President — any president — is to say that the Constitution means what he says it does and that there is no one — not even this Supreme Court — to tell him otherwise," the special prosecutor said. "Then men no longer are equal in the law."

"Then we have ingrafted an exception to the time-honored concept that this is a government of laws," Jaworski said.

Furthermore, Jaworski said, the Watergate case is a special situation because it involves men who were close to Nixon.

"... To permit the President to make the interpretation is especially insupportable in a personally delicate situation involving criminal charges against two of his former closest aides and devotees who the President, in an address to the nation on April 30, 1973, described as "two of the finest public servants it has been my privilege to know," Jaworski said.

He noted also that Nixon had said last November that Haldeman and Ehrlichman would "come out all right when the proceedings are completed" in the over-all Watergate case.

"Add to this setting, and I refer to it in great sorrow, the fact that a grand jury, by unanimous vote, concluded that the President was a participant in the chain of events that constituted the charged conspiracy..." Jaworski said.

Nixon was named as an undicted co-conspirator by the grand jury that indicted Haldeman and Ehrlichman in the Watergate cover-up.

One of the issues before the Supreme Court was whether the grand jury exceeded its authority in naming Nixon.

Given the circumstances of the case, Jaworski said, he would consider it a mockery "to let the President apply his construction of the Constitution without a review by this court."

St. Clair noted that the court has never confronted or resolved the boundaries of executive privilege, the doctrine of confidentiality under which Nixon claims the power to withhold the subpoenaed tapes and documents.

"The precise issue of the absoluteness of executive privilege, as applied to presidential communications, has never been squarely confronted and definitively resolved by this court," St. Clair said in a brief.

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler on Sunday again declined to comment on whether Nixon would abide by a Supreme Court decision against him.

"The President, of course, has confidence in St. Clair and the correctness of the position that we have taken and will take in the argument before the court," Ziegler said.

A line of spectators began forming outside the court Saturday morning. Most waiting for seats to hear the arguments were of college age.

Nixon Returns To Active Slate

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Back in the White House where he has spent only two full days in the past month, President Nixon plans a "very active" Washington schedule of meetings and conferences this week.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, who described the schedule, said Nixon would meet today with Vice President Gerald R. Ford and on Tuesday with five of his top economic advisers.

On Wednesday morning Nixon meets with Democratic and Republican congressional leaders on his June-July trips to the Middle East and the Soviet Union, Ziegler said.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, due here Tuesday after reporting to European leaders on the Soviet journey, will join the President in briefing the congressional delegation.

Ziegler said Nixon also will meet with the Cabinet Thursday.

Nixon is expected to fly to his San Clemente, Calif., home late in the week for a stay of about 10 days. He flew here from Key Biscayne, Fla., Sunday night.

Unannounced, Nixon flew by helicopter Sunday to Palm Beach to inspect the palatial Mar-A-Lago estate willed to the government by Mrs. Marjorie Merriweather Post, who died last year. The 17-acre spread, which boasts its own nine-hole golf course, will be available as a presidential retreat, meeting place and guest house for visiting world leaders.

White House sources discounted the possibility Nixon might be thinking of selling his Key Biscayne properties to meet heavy financial obligations, such as payment of back taxes and the mortgage on his California estate.

However, should he ever decide on such a move, the 115-room Palm Beach mansion could be made available as a Florida White House.

Nixon, who personally overruled plans to take a small group of newsmen with him to Palm Beach, was said to have spent half an hour inspecting the property with Florida neighbor C.G. "Bebe" Rebozo and two White House aides.

On Sunday afternoon, Nixon took a swim, walked on the sand beach outside his Key Biscayne compound, and cruised for 40 minutes on Biscayne Bay aboard Rebozo's houseboat, Coco Lobo III.

The President and Mrs. Nixon, accompanied by Rebozo, were discovered by newsmen Saturday night dining at the Key Biscayne Hotel, where Nixon thrilled a 10-year-old Florida girl by whirling her onto the dance floor.

He showed no evidence of being hampered by the chronic thrombophlebitis that cropped up in his left leg last month.

HOTLINE

752-1336

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day, but the phone service is available 24 hours a day.

A HOTLINE APPEAL NEED HOUSE TO RENT

Some Pitt County citizens have formed a corporation called New Directions, Inc. to establish and operate a home for kids in trouble. Instead of sending juvenile offenders to training schools, which possibly would give them worse problems, we want to keep them in the community living in a group home instead of with their own families. An operation of this type has been quite successful in a 14-county area of Western N.C.

We need a house in Pitt County, preferably within some city limits. It should have at least four bedrooms and be suitable for four to six kids and houseparents. Rental rate should be no more than $250 a month. Can Hotline help us find such a house? B.W.

Persons knowing of such a house should call 752-6166 and ask for Hotline. We will refer all suggestions and offers.

DAMAGED COAT—WANTS PAYMENT

I put a coat into the Koretizing Mart at Pitt Plaza on March 28 for cleaning. The coat was stained and they said they would try and have the stain removed or else pay me for the coat. I've been back each week, sometimes twice a week checking on the situation, but it seems like I don't get any action. Mrs. V.B.

Your check should be in the mail within the week. The manager at the Mart explained to Hotline that it was not known what caused the stain on your coat, but that it could have been something that was in the pocket. As they explained to you, the coat was sent to one of the concerns in Charlotte, who tried hand cleaning the coat, but this also failed to remove the stain. This was one reason it took so long to get a final settlement. The manager told Hotline you were finally told to get some type of proof of the value of the garment and they would make a settlement. You did this and presented it to the manager. Now you both have agreed that $40 is a good settlement price and the manager is merely waiting for the owner to return from vacation in order for the check to be signed.

LOOKING FOR FEDERAL REFUND

I'm having trouble getting my federal income tax refund. I filed it in January just after receiving my W-2 form. I had an accountant figure it, and it was returned indicating there was an error. The accountant corrected the error and returned the form. A few weeks later I was notified that my return was correct and was told I would be receiving a refund and the amount to expect. I still haven't received my refund.

Greenville's Internal Revenue Service office told Hotline they couldn't check on your return for us, but that if you would come by their office personally they would check the central computer and determine if the refund had been mailed. If it had not, they would then put a tracer on it.

Kissinger Talks Oil During London Visit

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger stopped in London today and met with British officials on prospects for channeling Arab oil money into long-term investments in Western Europe.

The high cost of petroleum and raw materials has contributed to economic instability for many of the allies.

U.S. officials said the tentative objective of Kissinger's talks with Denis Healey, chancellor of the exchequer, and Foreign Secretary James Callaghan is formation of an arrangement for offering attractive investment opportunities to the Arab states.

West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt broached the subject to Kissinger during the weekend in Munich. Kissinger flew from the West German city today.

Schmidt told newsmen that Europe's economic problems are more important than stalemated East-West negotiations said Kissinger and Schmidt on troop reductions and security measures.

The Arab oil states have been investing some of their petrodollars before the end of the enormous returns in European year and if the outcome of the short-term bank accounts. In negotiations was satisfactory to seeking the stability of long-term Western allies, it could end term investments the Eu-with the mammoth summit ropeans hope to moderate the conference the Russians want current high rate of inflation. to give it luster.

The U.S. officials said a joint approach would supplement bilateral deals such as one in which the United States has undertaken to provide technological assistance to Saudi Arabia.

The American secretary of state also is briefing Callaghan, Prime Minister Harold Wilson and others on the Moscow summit meeting between President Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Kissinger goes Tuesday to Madrid, the last scheduled stop on his tour to brief West European leaders on Nixon's summit trip.

In West Germany Sunday Kissinger and Chancellor Helmut Schmidt agreed in friendly talks on a wide variety of subjects including energy, currency and relations between the United States and West Germany, their spokesmen reported.

A West German spokesman said Kissinger and Schmidt agreed Sunday that the East-West European security conference in Geneva could be commencing in the end of the year and if the outcome of the negotiations was satisfactory to seeking the stability of long-term Western allies, it could end term investments the Eu-with the mammoth summit ropeans hope to moderate the conference the Russians want current high rate of inflation. to give it luster.

Asked if the two men talked about Watergate, the spokesman said it "would be quite natural" for them to have touched on the subject. He described the talks as "very open and friendly."

Kissinger's spokesman, Robert Anderson, gave no details. He said only that the two men "achieved a complete unity of views" on U.S.-European relations, East-West relations, the security conference and nuclear weapons.

After their discussions, Kissinger and Schmidt watched West Germany capture the World Cup soccer championship with a 2-1 victory over the Netherlands at Munich's Olympic Stadium.

Battered List Key To Seats

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A battered yellow pad covered with names was the key to a seat today as lawyers for President Nixon and special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski headed for their confrontation before the Supreme Court.

Keeper of the list was Bruce Kaplan of Chicago, a student working in Washington for the summer who was No. 8 in line, having arrived on the scene Sunday morning.

More than 250 other persons, mainly of college age, waited with Kaplan early today in front of the building.

They kept in order by using the yellow pad list showing who had arrived first, who second, and so forth in order to be sure the first to arrive also would be the first admitted to the courtroom.

Kaplan said the list was started because they were not allowed across the street onto the court steps until around midnight Sunday and the line to enter could only be formed then.

Police were bringing the youths across the street in groups of 10 following the order of the list and Sgt. Joseph Reid of the force guarding the court complimented their organization.

"These characters are all right," Reid remarked, scanning the long line which snaked down the steps, along a row of hedges and onto the sidewalk. Kaplan said the list was set up by the early arrivals to "prevent a lot of pushing and shoving," and "to try and keep as orderly as possible."

Organizers of the list walked along the waiting line on the court steps with a flashlight checking those in line to prevent "crashing" and make sure those listed first got their proper places.

Kaplan said the guards at the court told him that between 50 and 100 spectator seats will be available for the entire court session out of 423 spectator seats. Twenty-seven others will be used by spectators on a five-minute rotation basis. The rest of the seats have been assigned to lawyers, court personnel, congressmen and reporters.

May Food Prices Up By 50 Cents

WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher retail food prices in May meant a family of four spent about 50 cents a week more to eat during that month than during April, new government figures showed today.

The Agriculture Department, reporting on weekly costs of meals for three family income levels, said the 50-cent increase hit the three groups uniformly. But on a proportionate basis the increase, as in the past, was felt most by lower income families.

A low-cost food plan, which includes less meat and larger quantities of normally more economical items such as cereals and potatoes, cost $43.90 per week in May, up 1.1 per cent from April and $6.70 from May 1973.

The USDA's moderat-cost plan was $55 per week in May, up 0.9 per cent from April and $7.20 from a year earlier. A liberal-cost menu was $66.50 per week, up 0.7 per cent from April and $8 from May last year.

The figures for the three income groups had declined between 30 and 80 cents per week in April.

Retail meat prices began declining in the spring, reflecting part of the sharp drops for live cattle and hogs. But many other food items, including some used in the lower-cost plans, have been relatively higher.

House Group Entering Final Week Of Inquiry

By JOHN BECKLER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee is entering what Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., hopes will be the final week of its impeachment inquiry with John W. Dean III as a key witness.

Dean, whose Senate testimony a year ago linking President Nixon to the Watergate cover-up helped start the march of events that led to the impeachment proceedings, is due to appear before the committee Tuesday or Wednesday.

Frederick C. LaRue, a former official in Nixon's re-election committee, continues his testimony today.

Dean is being called at the request of Nixon's impeachment lawyer, James D. St. Clair, who apparently hopes through cross-examination to discredit some of Dean's previous testimony.

However, St. Clair may be sharply restricted in the questions he can put to Dean because the committee inquiry is not a trial. The scope of his examination will be set by the committee.

St. Clair has told the committee he wants to question Dean only about his role in the payment of $75,000 to convicted Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt Jr. and his discussion with Nixon on March 21, 1973, about demands for money by Hunt and other Watergate defendants.

However, by having Dean called, St. Clair has made it possible for the impeachment inquiry staff to range over his whole series of charges about White House involvement in the cover-up.

St. Clair is pinpointing his defense on the $75,000 payment, attempting to prove it was for legal fees, not hush money to keep Hunt from talking. But the inquiry staff has developed a much broader case, for which Dean might provide more detail.

The staff already has gone far beyond the March 21 events with LaRue, also called at St. Clair's suggestion.

LaRue delivered the $75,000 payment to Hunt's lawyer, and St. Clair wants to question him only about that. But LaRue, who has pleaded guilty to conspiracy to obstruct justice, delivered a total of $230,000 from a White House fund to Watergate defendants, and the staff is questioning him about that.

LaRue spent nearly two hours on the stand Wednesday and will be back today when the hearings resume at 3 p.m. The starting time was postponed to allow St. Clair to make his argument before the Supreme Court in the White House tapes case brought by special prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

witness by William O. Bittman, Hunt's lawyer who received the $75,000 from LaRue. He is not expected to be before the committee long, and then Dean will take over.

Chief Counsel John Doar has only two more witnesses to call—Assistant Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen and Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's former personal lawyer. Kalmbach will be brought from jail, where he is serving a six-month sentence for illegal campaign fund solicitation.

The committee's schedule calls for examination of witnesses to end by Friday and for deliberation on proposed articles of impeachment to begin July 15.

Armories Have Alarms, But Cost Too High To Hire Human Guards

By NICK TATRO
Associated Press Writer
Most National Guard armories have antiburglary systems, but an informal survey shows many are unguarded by human guards mainly because officials say security patrols are too costly.

A spot check was made Sunday in the wake of last week's looting of an armory in Compton, Calif., in which the FBI said thieves stole enough sophisticated weaponry to equip more than 150 soldiers for combat.

The break-in at the armory in suburban Los Angeles occurred while the facility was unguarded and before officials could finish installing electronic security devices.

Thieves in recent years have broken into other armories in California and storage facilities in other states, including Pennsylvania, Florida, Massachusetts, Kansas and Oklahoma.

"The Guard just doesn't have enough people to have them sit in an armory all the time," said Lt. Rick Roberts, a Guard spokesman in Philadelphia. He said there haven't been "any robberies, just breaking and entering. Most of it is vandalism—windows being smashed and things like that."

He said the 107 Guard facilities in Pennsylvania are protected by burglar alarms, frequent police patrols and the separation of firing mechanisms and ammunition from stored weapons.

In California, where there have been three major break-ins since 1971, a Guard spokesman said all 140 installations in the state would have electronic alarm systems by next June.

In Washington, D.C., the National Guard Bureau said it provides guidelines on storing weapons and has paid 75 percent of the cost of anti-intrusion devices since installation began in 1971. States must provide human guards at their own expense, a spokesman said.

He said 3,365 of the 4,333 weapons vaults around the nation are equipped with electronic alarm systems. Other officials said a wide variety of systems were used, some so sensitive that a knock on the door would set bells ringing at police headquarters.

Guard officials queried Sunday said they had no plans to beef up security as a result of the Los Angeles break-in.

San Francisco police criticized the Guard for "shrugging off" thefts of weapons. A spokesman said when stolen arms are recovered they often go unclaimed because the Guard doesn't want to admit its security was breached. Guard spokesman have denied the charge.

In January 1973, 51 M16 automatic rifles, a grenade launcher and a bazooka were among weapons stolen from an armory in Council Grove, Kan. Two men were convicted and senenced.

(A Guard official in Colorado said the last armory burglary there was 10 years ago and "just a few pistols were stolen.")

He said civilian guards patrolled at three of the state's 24 armories but fewer than 1,000 weapons were stored.

A spokesman in Georgia said alarm systems have been installed and break-ins would be "highly unlikely" because intruders would have to go through certain barriers and "there are safeguards inside the vaults themselves."

In the Los Angeles case, an investigator said "there's a manual anyone in the Guard can send for that gives you the floor plan (of the armory) in writing."

In Oklahoma, an armory at Muskogee was broken into June 27 and five .45-caliber pistols were stolen. Investigators theorize someone may have hidden inside the armory until the doors were locked for the night.

Facilities in Oklahoma are unguarded and officials said locks and vaults were sufficient.

In Montana, a Guard spokesman said weapons are stored at the state's 23 armories in locked vaults with silent alarms tied into police headquarters.

A similar security system has been installed at all of Washington state's 69 Guard installations.

Navy Scrapping Over 300 Ships

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy is scrapping nearly 300 old carriers, cruisers and other ships in the first major reduction of its "mothball fleet" since World War II.

Describing them as either worn-out or outdated, the Navy said the 291 ships being sold for scrap "can no longer be economically utilized."

Most were built more than 30 years ago to fight in World War II and the increasingly sophisticated missile systems, electronics and other advanced equipment are incompatible to such old ships, the Navy said.

Their scrapping will leave 536 ships and smaller craft in the Navy's reserve fleet, including many retired in the past five years as the active fleet was cut back sharply.

The Navy said it expects to net about $20 million, which will buy about one-third of a new patrol frigate.

The Navy developed scientific cocooning techniques around the end of World War II which permitted the layup of much of the then-huge fleet for future emergencies. Machinery, guns and other equipment were preserved while the ships were moored like ghosts along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and in the Gulf of Mexico.

Ships were demothballed and recalled to active duty in six crises and wars after 1945. The biggest such recall came during the Korean War when 549 ships and craft were recommissioned. This was only five years after World War II and many of the ships still were young.

By the time the United States launched into large-scale war in Vietnam, many of the mothballed ships were more than 20 years old. But 50 vessels were reactivated for duty, which included naval shelling of North Vietnam.

It took many months to get them ready for sea, and there were reports during the war that some elderly destroyers showed signs of breaking up under structural strain caused by the heavy firing of their gun batteries.

The battleship New Jersey was brought out of mothballs, but more than eight months and about $22 million were spent to get it in shape for bombardment duty off Vietnam. Critics said it was a waste of money.

The Navy said none of the remaining four battleships of the New Jersey, Iowa, Wisconsin and Missouri—is on the list to be scrapped.

The list does include five aircraft carriers and 10 cruisers.

'Lost Dog' Trick Again

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—A 15-year-old girl who offered to help a stranger find a lost dog was assaulted during the past weekend, the Forsyth County Sheriff's Department revealed.

Deputy E.W. Copton said the suspect's description matched those given by others who were purportedly attacked by a man looking for a lost dog.

Authorities would not reveal details of the assault, which occurred Saturday. Copton said, however, that the girl received bruises when she tried to escape.

According to Copton, a group of youths returning from a church gathering was approached by a man who said he had lost his dog. Some of the youths agreed to help find the animal.

The man led the girl into a patch of woods where the attack took place, he said.

Since November, the lost dog ruse has been used in attacks on young girls in Cabarrus, Randolph, Rowan and Gaston counties, authorities said. They are not certain, however, that the same man was responsible for all the incidents, although the descriptions are similar.

There have been three reports of rape, three of assault, one of kidnapping and one of indecent exposure, they said.

The man in the latest incident was described as about 5-foot-8, with a stocky build, medium length dark hair, sideburns and brown eyes. He was reported wearing a white shirt and blue jeans.

Saturday's incident took place about 12:45 p.m. near U.S. 158.

State Gets NOAA Grant

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina will receive a $300,000 grant from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration for coastal zone management programs, U.S. Commerce Secretary Frederick Dent announced.

Gov. Jim Holshouser said the state Department of Natural and Economic Resources will administer the federal grant. Much of the money will be passed to county governments to fund coastal management programs on the local level.

The grant was made under the Coastal Zone Management Act of 1972, a federal act designed for national and regional cooperation in resource use and conservation on the nation's coasts and Great Lake shores.

A matching provision in the grant requires the state to provide at least one third of the funds for the program.

During the first year of its coastal zone management studies, the state will conduct a public information and participation program to encourage citizen involvement in coastal zone administration.

The boundaries of the coastal zone will be delineated and natural areas in coastal counties will be mapped. The state will also inventory and map areas of environmental concern. Guidelines for permissible land and water use will be established.

Coastal management legislation already in effect in North Carolina places the major responsibility for land use planning at the county level.

Holding Majority

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka's conservative Liberal Democrats appeared likely today to hang on to their majority in the upper house of the Diet, Japan's parliament.

But it was not clear whether the party would get a majority big enough to demonstrate that Tanaka's personal standing with the voters has improved.

With just over 50 per cent of the votes counted, the Liberal Democrats had won 42 of the 70 contested seats they held in the House of Councillors before the election. Of the other 25 seats decided, the Socialists won 17, the Communists 3 and minor parties 5.

Final results will not be known until early Tuesday. However, there were indications that the heavy urban vote was running increasingly against Tanaka's party.

At stake were 130 seats, half the total 252 seats plus four vacancies. The Liberal Democrats needed to win only 63 to get a majority again.

Marijuana Arrest

One person was arrested Saturday night and two others charged Sunday night with possession of marijuana here, Chief of Police Glenn Cannon reported today.

According to Cannon, Robert Lewis Carmon, 16 of Winterville was charged with possession of marijuana about 11 p.m. Saturday when officers found a small quantity of marijuana in his possession in a parking lot near the intersection of Cotanche Street and Reade Circle.

Carmon, a D.H. Conley High School student, was placed under a $500 bond pending hearing of the case in court.

About 9:20 p.m. Sunday, two Rose High School students were taken into custody at the same parking lot and charged with possession of marijuana, Cannon said.

He identified the two arrested Sunday as William Dwight Vines, 18 of 1614 Lincoln Dr. and Joyce Elaine Davenport, 17, of 2903 Jefferson Dr.

Bond for Vines was set at $1,000 while bond for Miss Davenport was placed at $500.

Miss Ann Pridgen Weds Michael King VanDyke Couple Exchanges Vows In Double Ring Ceremony

In a double ring ceremony Sunday at 4:00 p.m. in Immanuel Baptist Church, Miss Ann Gibson Pridgen became the bride of Michael King VanDyke. The Rev. Mike Smith, of the Way Ministry, performed the ceremony.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Henry Pridgen of Greenville, the bride was given in marriage by her father. The bride wore a wedding gown in a cotton sheer and embroidered Venesian lace. Lace fashioned the mandarin neckline, bodice and long fitted sleeves. The full skirt and chapel length train were deeply bordered with lace and ruffles.

Her veil was elbow length in nylon illusion attached to a tiara of Venesian lace accented with rows of seeded pearls. The bride carried a semi-cascade formal bouquet of white daisies, miniature carnations, stephanotis, baby's breath and green smilax tied with narrow satin streamers.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Allen Holstead VanDyke of Raleigh.

Miss Leslie VanHorn of Winston-Salem was the honor attendant and bridesmaids were Miss Faye Manning, Miss Ellen Broaddrick and Miss Mary Vaughn, all of Greenville, and Miss Rebecca Estep of Plymouth, cousin of the bride.

The attendants wore formal length gowns of spring green voile featuring an empire bodice of white eyelet printed with bouquets of navy, yellow, green and coral flowers. The sleeveless gowns were styled with ruffled straps of the floral eyelet. White rick-rack encircled the waistline and bordered the floral fabric which trimmed the deep ruffle flounce at the hemline. They wore white picture hats trimmed in spring green ribbon and they carried white baskets of coral and yellow miniature carnations, blue corn flowers, yellow daisies, baby's breath tied with coral bows.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Dr. Allen VanDyke of Lexington, Ky. brother of the bridegroom, Joseph Henry Pridgen Jr. of Greenville, brother of the bride, Eugene Edward Egg of High Point, brother-in-law of the bridegroom and Thomas Knupp of Milwaukee, Wis.

A program of wedding music was presented by Miss Delores Fulcher of Colerain, organist, and Mrs. Kathy Ashley Tracy of Greenville, soloist. The wedding was directed by Mrs. Thomas Broaddrick.

The mothers of the bridal couple wore orchid corsages and grand-mothers wore white miniature carnation corsages.

After a wedding trip to Ground Hog Mountain, Va., the couple will reside in Raleigh.

The bride attended East Carolina University and the bridegroom is attending the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church

OXFORD—Miss Sylvia Love Currin became the bride of William Allan Jackson in a double ring ceremony Sunday at 3:30 p.m. in the Hester Baptist Church.

The Rev. Tom E. Lolley officiated at the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chandler Tunstall Currin of Oxford. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cornelius Jackson of Greenville.

fellowship hall. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Willie Hawley and Miss Vicki Faucette.

Mrs. John Adams, aunt of the bride presided at the register. The reception table was covered with a white satin cloth with garlands of greenery centered with an arrangement of mixed flowers accented yellow with yellow candles.

Cake was served by Mrs. Hoyt Naron and Mrs. David Lewis. Punch was poured by Mrs. Louis Schiepers and Mrs. Bobby Gaylor. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Linwood Stoneham, Mrs. Louis Singleton, Mrs. David Whiard and Mrs. Reginald Garris.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Drinkwater said good-byes.

An after-rehearsal dinner was held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club given by Mr. and Mrs. Allen VanDyke and friends of the bridegroom's family.

A bridesmaids luncheon was held Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Linwood Stoneham given by Mrs. Stoneham, Mrs. Thomas Broaddrick and Mrs. Robert Leith.

She wore a matching cathedral length mantilla which was edged in lace and attached to an ivory lace Camelot cap. She carried a bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids, stephanotis and miniature ivy.

Mrs. Stephen Gutta of Chapel Hill was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Ivy Lawrence, Miss Kim Royster and Miss Martha Hilton, all of Oxford, Miss Trudy Rogers of Creedmore, Miss Susan Bennett of Raleigh, and Mrs. John Ray Jackson of Greenville.

The attendants wore identical dresses of Nile green matte jersey designed with empire waists and a cape flounce. They wore matching picture hats and carried baskets of pink daisies, baby's breath and greenery.

Mr. Jackson was his son's best man. Ushers were John Ray Jackson, brother of the bridegroom, and William Kent Worthington, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, both of Greenville, Charles Winston Jackson, brother of the bridegroom, of Rock Hill, S. C., Dale Brent Pilson of Greenville, S.C., and William Randolph Futrell of Statesville, and Channie T. Currin of Oxford, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Daniel Wesley Williams, vocalist, and Miss Emma Day, organist, presented a program of nuptial music before and during the ceremony.

The vows were spoken before a setting of baskets filled with white summer flowers and fourteen branch spiral and tree candelabra.

The bride's mother chose for her daughter's wedding, a formal gown of pink knit featuring a high neckline and flowing back accented by a beaded and jeweled half-belt. She wore matching accessories and a white cymbidium orchid.

The bridegroom's mother wore an aqua-blue formal gown featuring a portrait neckline, organza sleeves and lace appliques. She also wore matching accessories and a white cymbidium orchid.

Mrs. Kent Worthington, sister of the bridegroom directed the wedding.

The bride attended Peace College for two years and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where she was a member of the Phi Beta Kappa honor fraternity and graduated with an A.B. degree in intermediate education. The bridegroom attended East Carolina University before entering the School of Pharmacy at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He was a member of the Phi Delta Chi professional fraternity and was president of the school student body his senior year. He received a B.S. degree in Pharmacy and is now employed with Revco Drug Stores, Lexington. Upon their return from wedding trip to the Poconos in Pennsylvania, the couple will make their home in Winston-Salem.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlor for the wedding party, families and friends.

A rehearsal dinner for the bridal party, families and out-of-town guests was held Saturday night at the banquet room of the Holiday Inn, Henderson.

Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Kent Worthington, Mr. and Mrs. John Ray Jackson and Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Jackson.

Griffin-Brown Vows Solemnized Sunday

FARMVILLE—Miss Phyllis Camille Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Dixon Brown of Farmville, became the bride of Larry Calvin Griffin in a wedding ceremony at the First Christian Church here Sunday afternoon at 3:30. The Rev. B. Eugene Taylor performed the double ring ceremony.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Lloyd Griffin of Raleigh.

Given in marriage and escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown of white angelskin peau designed with a high ruffled neckline edged in a floral Venise lace. The cuffs of the bishop sleeves and the bodice were trimmed in the lace. The full skirt, which extended into a chapel train, was edged in a flared ruffled flounce also trimmed in lace.

The bride carried a crescent bouquet of white carnations, pink roses, fern and white ribbon. Her veil consisted of a chapel length mantilla of silk illusion trimmed in matching Venise lace attached to a Tudor cap of angel-skin peau. She wore a sterling silver cors, a gift from the bridegroom.

Best man for the wedding was the father of the bridegroom.

The maid of honor was Miss Janet Brown, sister of the bride, of Farmville. She wore a gown of pink flouted voile over pink taffeta styled with a square neckline and empire waist with a large bow in back. The full skirt ended in a ruffled flounce edged in white lace. She wore a pink rippled picture hat trimmed with light pink ribbon. She carried a long-stemmed pink rose with a white ribbon, and two long-stemmed white carnations.

Bridesmaids were Miss Kathleen Cooke of Cary, Miss Sue Uzzell, cousin of the bride of LaGrange, and Miss Marjorie Barnette of Farmville. Their dresses and picture hats were identical to that of the maid of honor. They carried one long-stemmed white and one pink carnation with pink and white ribbon.

Junior bridesmaid was Miss Melonie Kue of Farmville. She wore a gown of white flocked voile with scattered bouquets of pink flowers over white taffeta designed like that of the other attendants. Her headpiece was of pink flowers. She carried two long-stemmed pink carnations with pink ribbon.

Ushers for the wedding were Michael W. McIntire of Raleigh, Phillip Pate, cousin of the bridegroom of Zebulon, Wright Uzzell, cousin of the bride, of Charlotte, Edwin Littrell of Rocky Mount, and Kerry Stainback of Durham.

Edward Johnston Harper III of Winston-Salem, organist, presented a program of wedding music.

The director was Mrs. Russell Griffin of Wilson.

Immediately following the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a reception in the Farmville Masonic Temple. Mr. and Mrs. Byron L. Uzzell of LaGrange greeted guests.

The lace covered refreshment table was enhanced by an epergne of roses and two three branch candelabra with pink lighted tapers. After the bride and bridegroom cut the first slice of cake, Mrs. Marshall Lucas of Lucama and Mrs. John Mewborn of Pikeville served guests. Mrs. Francis Harper of Kinston and Mrs. Albert Buck of Newport News, Va., poured punch.

MRS. LARRY CALVIN GRIFFIN

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Uzzell of Goldsboro invited guests to register. An auxiliary table was enhanced by a double epergne, a single lighted pink taper and a portrait of the bride.

Inflation May Need 'Surplus'

Rep. Liston B. Ramsey, chairman of the House Finance Committee and member of the Advisory Budget Commission, says that North Carolinians are being overtaxed.

He bases this on the fact that there was a $144 million surplus this year and a surplus of in excess of $100 million is foreseen for next year.

"We're going to have another so-called surplus," he said. "We're overtaxing our people."

Ramsey was in favor of a tax cut during the 1974 General Assembly session.

We certainly would like to see some taxes cut and particularly those of the wage earner who is being hurt so much by inflation.

The budget makers, however, need to take a look at spending requests for the next fiscal year before the tax cut movement goes too far. Inflation is hitting the state government, too, and as costs are projected for the next budget, the increases are going to be awesome.

North Carolina's surplus more or less carries over from budget-to-budget to act as a cushion for potential recession. That is necessary since the law requires a balanced budget for North Carolina.

The size of the surplus alone won't determine whether there should be a tax cut. Trimming spending where waste can be found will be the best way to provide a tax cut that won't harm the state's ongoing programs.

If the budget makers look carefully at all agency requests there is a good chance that spending can be held to the point where some tax relief will be possible. It is a challenge we would hope the legislators can meet.

Unsettling Effect In Record Interest Rate

There had been hopes that the prime interest rate—the rate banks charge their best customers—had peaked and would turn downward.

Instead the prime rate has continued upward and banks are now going to 12 percent interest—highest in the nation's history.

The high prime rate is upsetting to investors and it is anybody's guess when the rate begins to drop.

Arms Race Can Hurt Kremlin

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

MOSCOW—A somber new fact of Soviet life, which President Nixon and his aides subtly blended into their private conversations with Soviet leaders, is beginning to worry the Kremlin more than ever before over the continuing economic drain of weapons spending.

The conventional price of skyrocketing costs of arms on the domestic economy—projects delayed, factories not built—is well known, of course. The new fact is the alarming crisis of negative population growth in the Russian heartland of the Soviet Union—European Russia and the once-free Baltic states of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia. That crisis is directly tied to shortfalls in the domestic economy.

This part of the Soviet Union, containing nearly half the population, is the main source of skilled manpower, brainpower and energy—a singularly important asset for any nation. The phenomenon of near-zero population growth, apparently first noticed last year, now is moving into the grim region of negative growth.

The danger can be seen from the fact that the single most important target of the five-year plan, starting in 1976, is to funnel about $50 billion into European Russia to revive and restore the old cultural heartland and the Baltic states.

Although President Nixon failed to make the breakthrough he wanted on control of runaway nuclear arms costs, he and his aides quietly hammered away at this theme: if the arms race isn't stopped, the Kremlin must increase even further the fat slice of the budget pie going to defense (now between 25 and 30 per cent of the gross national product).

That would destroy for a long time to come the Soviet rationale for detente: more consumer goods, decent housing in smaller cities and the countryside, and a workable civilian technology.

Pressure from the Soviet brass for continued high arms spending, particularly from Gen. Vladimir Kulikov, armed forces chief, was intense during the summit. Kulikov and other senior military leaders were far more restrained in dealing with the Americans than party leader Leonid Brezhnev. Indeed, the top men in uniform were on occasion barely civil.

Yet, despite the intense pressure of the Soviet military complex for costly deployment of multiple warheads, the population problem in European Russia is perceived by some experts as intrinsically more important. While population growth among racial minorities in Soviet Central Asia is booming too fast, the seedbed of the best manpower potential is drying up.

The basic reason is the flight to urban centers from small towns and villages, many of which still, half a century after the revolution, have only a single paved street, outdoor plumbing and no conventional apartments. Running away from that bleak and squalid life, with its marginal farming and isolation, families are moving to minuscule apartments in the big cities. Once there, they make a remarkable discovery: children are a liability.

The result: a plummeting birthrate.

That explains the new $50 billion program, the emblem of the new five year plan. It calls for fertilizer plants, paved streets and roads, "restoration" of ancient, almost uninhabitable villages to stop the flight to the city and to rehabilitate the most important land in the empire.

This population crisis is only one of hundreds of chronic economic problems here. It explains much of the Soviet drive toward detente and the lust for American technology, credits and trade.

It is not a crisis of ideology or civil rights. The self-exile of Alexander Solzhenitsyn and the tragic sealing-off of physicist Andrei Sakharov seem to have helped reduce dissident tensions. Yet, sometime in the future as more Russians get "out" to see the world and make comparisons, the military complex may find competition for the budget pie more pressing than they dream today.

The negative population growth in European Russia is the best example of why this is so. As one Russian told us, it is "dangerous" to risk so much in order to continue the "madness" of the arms race. That was Mr. Nixon's feeling, too, and some of his aides think it also may be shared by Brezhnev.

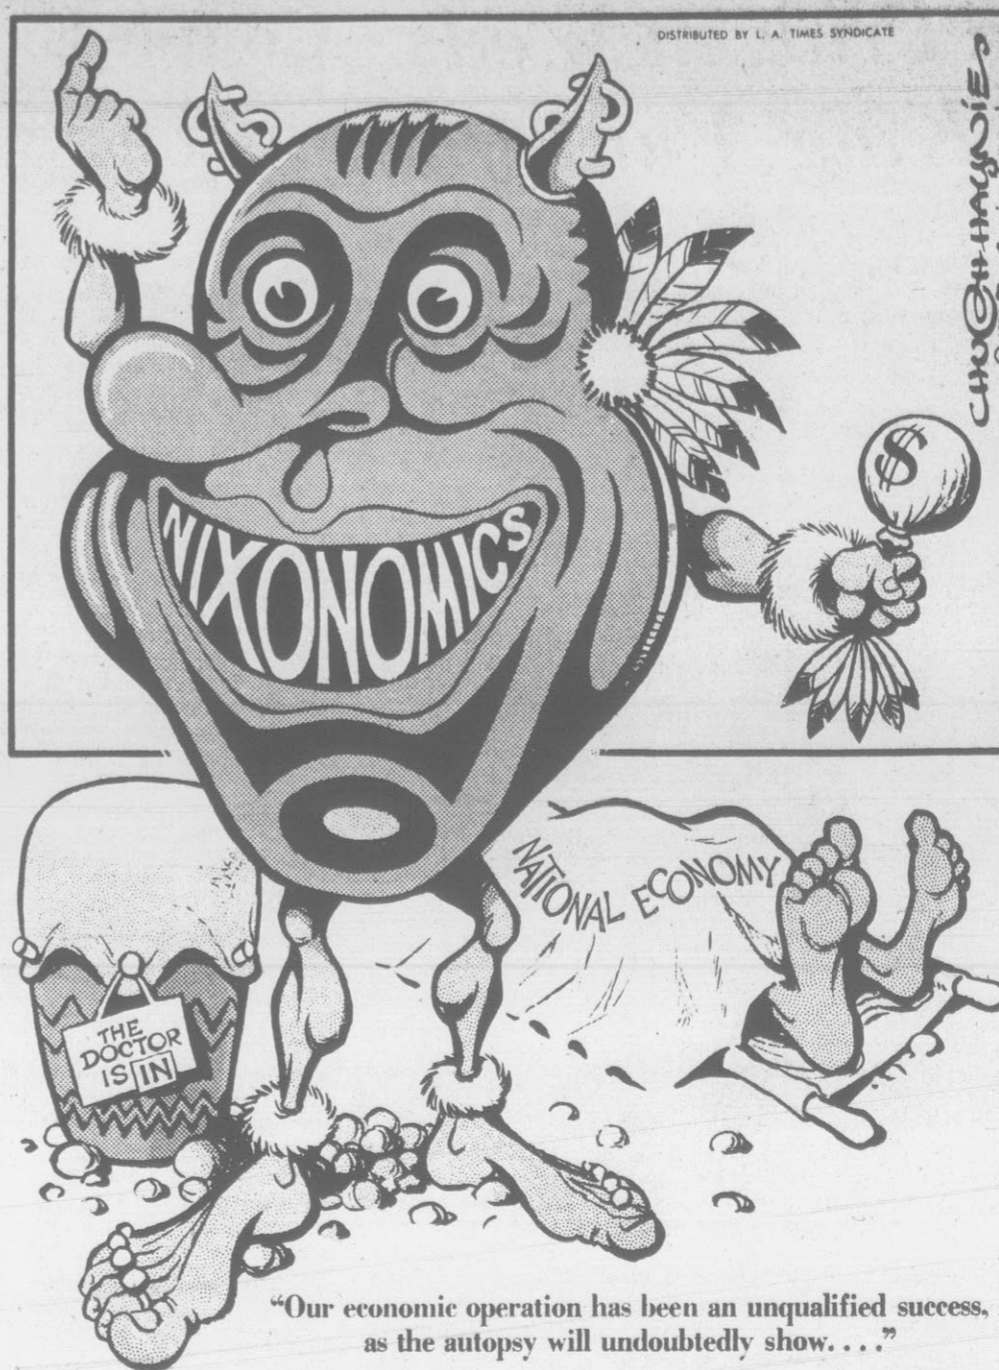

Strength For Today

MUSIC FROM ABOVE

When Franz Joseph Haydn, the composer, was an old man he was brought in a wheel chair to a theater in Vienna where his masterpiece, "Creation," was being performed. When the climax of the piece was reached, the audience suddenly burst into applause for Haydn. After it had died away the old man struggled out of his chair to his feet and addressed the now hushed audience. "The music is not from me," he said. Then pointing upward he added, "It came from thence. From heaven come all good things."

We can believe these words when we listen to great musical masterpieces, but few of us can think that this applies to the more humble good things of life. Good health, a loving family life, a rewarding job—these things we attribute to good luck or our own good management. Yet if God sends great oratorios into the hearts of a few geniuses, is it not reasonable to assume that He also sends good things into our own lives?

Lost Luggage Headache

PARIS—One of the biggest problems of air travel is getting your luggage back at the end of the trip. For some reason more luggage is being lost now than ever before, and it's quite a headache for the airlines—not to mention the people who are flying.

What makes the whole thing mysterious is that if you're traveling with your wife the airlines somehow manage to only lose (ital) her (unit) bags, the ones she absolutely needs if she is going to survive the trip.

There isn't a husband who has ever flown by air who hasn't faced this situation.

You get off the plane dog tired and wait at the baggage gate. The carousel keeps turning and turning with everyone's luggage. You have all your bags in a matter of minutes. Your wife gets all her dresses, costume jewelry and underthings. You wait an hour staring at the carousel hoping against hope it will be the last piece of baggage off the plane. You don't dare speak to your wife. She finally speaks to you, "They lost my bag."

"I guess they did."

"What are you going to do about it?" she says, her lips pursed as if she's going to let out a scream.

"I am going to do (ital) something (unital) about it," you say, knowing in your heart there isn't a damn thing you can do. But you have to show some machismo. You go up to a man in uniform. "See here, sir," you say in

Other Editors Say Intoxicating Scheme

(Greensboro Daily News)

The Smithsonian magazine reports in the June issue that an Emory University scientist, Peter Fong, believes alcohol offers a solution to the energy crisis. In a paper he gave at a recent meeting of scientists, Mr. Fong suggested that alcohol made from corn and other grains can be mixed with gasoline and the mixture used in today's automobiles without engine modifications.

He pointed out that about half the United States' potential corn producing acreage is now out of production. It's his idea to legalize farm distilleries. He foresees no labor problems, either, because he envisions an exodus of the unemployed from urban slums to the rural areas to operate the distilleries.

According to Mr. Fong, the operation not only would be profitable, but would also amount to a sort of recycling process of materials usually discarded. Sewage sludge could be used as fertilizer for the corn crop without scaring off the consumers—who are going to feed the product to their cars and trucks, not to themselves. The distillers could burn cornstalks to provide the energy to run the stills. Leftover protein from the distilling process could be used as animal feed.

It's a heady idea. It carries potential benefits for the economy and the environment. In some states it wouldn't even be necessary to import a lot of unemployed persons from the urban slums to operate the stills. North Carolina, for one, has a substantial backlog of unemployed or part-time moonshiners already.

But somehow we doubt the government is ready for it yet. For one thing if the plan were put into effect it might produce an epidemic of chronic hiccups, an epidemic not confined to motor vehicles, either.

Fiscal Funnies Are Not Funny

By JOHN STOWELL

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) —

One of the prime pastimes in Congress is reading and deploring the "fiscal funnies," or titles of federally financed research projects.

You know, the ones like $70,000 to study the smell of Australian aborigines' sweat, $375,000 to try to turn plastic Frisbees into weapons of war, $6,000 to classify a Polish frog, or $20,324 to study the mating calls of Central American toads.

Scientists bristle at the bars, contending the titles of research projects cannot adequately describe what the studies are all about.

Rep. H.R. Gross, R-Iowa, for years specialized in reading the funnies into the Congressional Record, with appropriate comments. Gross is retiring this year.

His understudy, Rep. William J. Scherle, another Iowa Republican, was off to a good start in 1972 when he called a $20,000 study to determine why kids fall off tricycles a "birdbrained, bureaucratic scheme." In this volatile election year, with inflation high and voters' confidence in their government low, more congressional voices are being raised against questionable federal spending.

Rep. Lee H. Hamilton, D-Ind., was particularly miffed to learn that the government was spending $576,969 to teach mothers how to play with their children and $121,000 to find out why people say "ain't."

After corresponding with the White House, and being told that budget-watchers don't watch project spenders, Hamilton concluded that the executive branch "appears unwilling to take the lead in weeding out unwarranted expenditures from the budget."

"On the whole, of course, the government is spending federal money for programs which are in the public interest," he said. "But the preceding examples illustrate the need for much more rigorous scrutiny of all spending."

The National Institutes of Health, a frequent target of the fiscal funnies readers, points to a number of seemingly frivolous research projects which proved to be human lifesavers:

—A scientist studying monkey blood types found the key to the mysterious RH—for Rhesus monkey—factor which clogs the blood of certain human infants, causing crippling brain damage and often death. Now the blood of so-called "blue babies" is transfused totally before they are born.

—Another researcher looking for artificial diets for protozoa and bacteria accidentally discovered that folic acid is a necessary nutrient in the human diet and, when missing, causes pernicious anemia.

—An NIH scientist studying the development of chicken embryos found a chemical compound to treat victims of placental cancer. The cure rate now is 80 per cent. Before, diagnosis was a virtual death warrant.

—And Harvard microbiologist John Enders' curiosity about tissue cultures, which led to the isolation and identification of the polio virus and to the eventual development of the

Canada Set To Vote

By EDITH M. LEDERER

Associated Press Writer TORONTO, Ont. (AP) —

A crowd of immigrants cheered Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau and booted challenger Robert Stanfield at a picnic, as the two wound up campaigning for the election today of a new House of Commons.

Canadian voters were going to the polls to decide whether Trudeau's Liberals or Stanfield's Conservatives would form the next government. Political experts rated the election a toss-up, though the Liberals have held a narrow lead in every poll. But the polls point to neither party winning a majority, with Canada's second successive minority government as the result.

Trudeau and Stanfield made final campaign appearances Sunday at a huge picnic on a lush island in the middle of Toronto harbor. It was sponsored by a radio station that broadcasts in 32 languages for Canada's large first-generation immigration population, and most of the crowd of 15,000 were immigrants.

Trudeau arrived in the early afternoon in a sport shirt and was mobbed and cheered. The 54-year-old French-Canadian leader did a little Greek dance while his 25-year-old wife, Margaret, danced with an elderly Italian woman.

Two hours after the Trudeaus left, Stanfield, 60, showed up in a tie and sports jacket. The crowd had dwindled to about 1,000, and it greeted Stanfield, whose support is strongest among Canada's English-speaking population, with a chorus of boos sprinkled with a few cheers. He got his feet wet while trying to board a boat to leave and hit his head on a low beam as he climbed inside.

Trudeau told the crowd: "Be happy in Canada. Let's make it a great place. Let's make it a great tomorrow."

Stanfield repeated the same theme later.

Mrs. Trudeau drew the biggest response when she said she had gotten in trouble for saying her husband had taught her "a lot about loving." She said she still believes love is a great thing, and she loves her husband and wants "a peaceful, loving country."

Neither Stanfield nor Trudeau mentioned the chief issue in the campaign—inflation, now running at nearly 11 per cent. But Julia Nemeth of Hamilton walked behind Stanfield shouting: "Don't fool the people. Two years ago, I pay 17 cents for bread. Now I pay 36 cents. I want a better life. I don't care whether it's Trudeau or Stanfield. Who's going to give me a better life?"

Stanfield has proposed a 90-day wage and price freeze to be followed by 18 months of flexible controls. Trudeau says inflation is a worldwide problem and controls won't work in Canada just as they didn't work in the United States or Britain.

Canada's prime minister is the head of the party that wins the largest share of the 264 seats in the House of Commons.

First Witnesses Set To Testify

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — If they can qualify a final juror, lawyers are expected to start calling witnesses today in the trial of Elmer Wayne Henley, 18, accused in the Houston mass murders.

Henley is on trial for six of the 27 murders of young teenage males killed in a homosexual rape-torture ring in the Houston area. The trial was moved here on a change of venue because of extensive publicity of the case in the Houston area.

Jury selection started last Monday and when District Court Judge Preston Dial recessed court late Friday night, 31 of the 32 prospective jurors had been qualified. After the 32nd is chosen, defense and prosecution lawyers will be allowed to disqualify 10 each. Since the strikes are not announced in sequence, it could be that the two sides would make some duplicate eliminations. If so, the top 12 left on the list will make up the jury. If there are no duplicate strikes, the only 12 left will form the jury.

Dial said Friday he plans to start hearing testimony immediately after the jury is chosen.

Dist. Atty. Carol Vance of Houston said Friday he will start his case with testimony from policemen from the Houston suburb of Pasadena who originally investigated the case. They were telephoned exactly 11 months ago by Henley to say he had shot and killed Dean A. Corll, 33, said to be the leader of the homosexual-murder ring. That shooting later was ruled self defense.

Also called to testify are Rhonda Williams, 15, and Timothy Cordell Kerley, 19. They were strapped to large, wooden "torture boards" when Henley killed Corll, after an all-night sex and drug party.

After Henley's arrest, he and another youth, David Owen Brooks, 19, led police to where the bodies of 27 young men were found buried. Henley has been charged in six of those deaths and Brooks in four. No trial date has been set for Brooks.

If the Conservatives win without support in Quebec, many think the French separatist movement there will flourish again. But if a heavy Liberal vote in Quebec is the decisive factor in returning Trudeau to office, there are predictions that the split between eastern and western Canada will deepen.

Derek King Latest To Fill Ebenezer Pulpit

By KATHRYN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — From the same pulpit where three generations of the Martin Luther King family have preached the doctrines of love and human dignity, young Derek King called on the congregation "to let the Lord take care of vengeance."

Derek Barber King, a 20-year-old ministerial student, preached his trial sermon Sunday only a few feet from where he helped subdue the gunman who killed his grandmother a week ago as she played the organ.

The slim, bespectacled youth is the son of the late Rev. A. D. King, who drowned in 1969, and nephew of the famed civil rights leader and Nobel Prize winner, Martin Luther King Jr., slain in 1968.

"There're going to be some Kings preaching at Ebenezer for generations to come," said Derek's white-haired grandfather, Martin Luther King Sr., who buried his wife Wednesday.

Turning to Derek, who sat gripping the arms of his chair, the powerful old patriarch of the King clan asked his grandson, "Now, Derek, do you want another song?"

The youth nodded and smiled. The Ebenezer Baptist Church choir sang, "Lead me."

Then, stepping up to the pulpit and hunching forward, the younger King preached on, "The Greatest of These is Love."

"Death is running amok in our society," he said. "We tend to rely on vengeance for something we don't understand."

"We have to rely on love to overcome the hurting emotions of the moment," said the youth, never glancing up from his notes. "God will take care of the vengeance."

The doctrine of love preached in the youthful voice was hauntingly reminiscent of the famous sermons of Kking Jr., whose familiar oratorical voice aroused thousands.

As the audience responded audibly to Derek's preaching, the young man relaxed and his voice became stronger.

His grandfather smiled benignly on him throughout the sermon which ended with, "Hold on, hold on, He will fight your battles."

Then Daddy King took the pulpit to say: "I feel like shouting. I'm going to hold it if I can. But I feel like shouting."

Young King's great-grandfather, the Rev. A. D. Williams, preached in Ebenezer from 1896 until his death in 1931.

It was in this church that King Jr. always returned after his role as a civil rights leader brought him international fame. Ebenezer church was a touchstone for King throughout his turbulent career which ended with an assassin's bullet.

"Don't you know I can't live long enough to train Derek to take the responsibility of this great church," said his grandfather. "If he preached like this tonight, and with two more years at Morehouse College and two years at a seminary, where will he be?"

The old church resounded during the three-hour service Sunday night with hymns such as "Amazing Grace," "Precious Lord," and "Softly and Tenderly."

Before young Derek began his sermon, Rep. Andrew Young, D-Ga., and a preacher and former close aid of the late King Jr., prayed:

Lower Speeds Cut U.S. Death Toll By A Third

By GERALD J. TAYLOR
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Lowered speed limits are responsible for reducing the Fourth of July holiday traffic death toll by almost one-third, a survey of law enforcement and safety officials indicates.

While officials in some states reported somewhat less traffic than normal during the 102-hour holiday period, most questioned Sunday pointed to the 55 mile per hour speed limit as the major factor in reduced highway deaths.

"I think we're reducing the number of deaths every month that we have it and can enforce it adequately," said Col. E. W. Jones, commander of the North Carolina State Patrol.

"Speed comes shining through as the major factor," said a spokesman for the National Safety Council. The council predicted that 450 to 550 persons would die over the four-day weekend, which began at 6 p.m. Wednesday.

The death toll for the period was 519, compared with 758 in 1972, the most recent four-day Fourth of July weekend.

The reduced death toll appears "way out of proportion to the relative reduction in miles traveled," said Maj. Richard Lueck of the Minnesota State Patrol. "We can only conclude that the 55 m.p.h. limit is the basic factor."

Highway officials sampled at random by The Associated Press were nearly unanimous in citing reduced speeds as the major factor in the fewer traffic deaths. Some also pointed to reduced travel because of higher gas prices.

States contacted included Florida, Louisiana, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota, Massachusetts, Ohio, North and South Carolina, Connecticut, New Hampshire, New Mexico, Texas, Colorado, Arkansas, Minnesota and Nebraska.

Only Nebraska officials discounted reduced speeds and put the major emphasis on a reduction in travel.

"I don't think the speed limit really has anything to do with it. When there's no traffic, there's no fatalities," a spokesman said. That state's 11 weekend fatalities pushed the toll five persons over the July 3-8 period of 1973.

"We had predicted 15 billion miles would be driven over the holiday weekend—not a substantial reduction in travel (compared to 15.7 billion miles in 1972)," said National Safety Council spokesman Ron Kuykendall.

"Other factors may play a part; people may be taking fewer long highway trips. Maybe parents aren't giving teen-agers the car as much because of high gas prices," said Kuykendall.

"But speed comes shining through as the major factor in reduced deaths," he said.

The National Safety Council says chance of survival in a crash at 50 m.p.h. is four times greater than at 70 m.p.h.

your sternest voice. "You people have lost my wife's bag."

The man looks surprised. "I'm sorry, I'm the pilot of the plane."

There is another official-looking man with a badge on his chest. "Sir," you say, "you people have committed one of the gravest crimes known to tourism. You have lost the luggage of an honest woman. Unless you produce my wife's bag in the next 30 minutes I shall have to report you to the president of your company."

"I'm a customs inspector," the man replies. "Go talk to someone from the airline."

Your wife who is over in the corner twisting her handkerchief asks, "What did they say?"

"I'm narrowing it down," you say. "The pilot of the plane doesn't know where your bag is and neither does the customs service. So it must be someone else."

You are directed to a counter where one lone clerk is trying to cope with a large crowd of angry husbands. It is obviously the lost-luggage counter because all the women are huddled nearby wailing and tearing their clothes.

The clerk, hired for his masochistic tendencies, is smiling as he fills out long sheets of paper taking descriptions of the lost bags.

You get to the counter and ask the stupidest question any air traveler can pose: "Where is my wife's bag?"

The masochist smile "New Delhi, Bali, Rio De Janeiro. It could be anywhere."

"I have a good mind to slug you," you say.

"Oh, would you please?" he says. "Most people just shout at me, but very few of them really hit me."

"I wouldn't give you the satisfaction. What are we supposed to do now?"

"Why don't you go to your hotel and get a good night's sleep? If we find your luggage, we'll have it delivered."

"Suppose it's never found?"

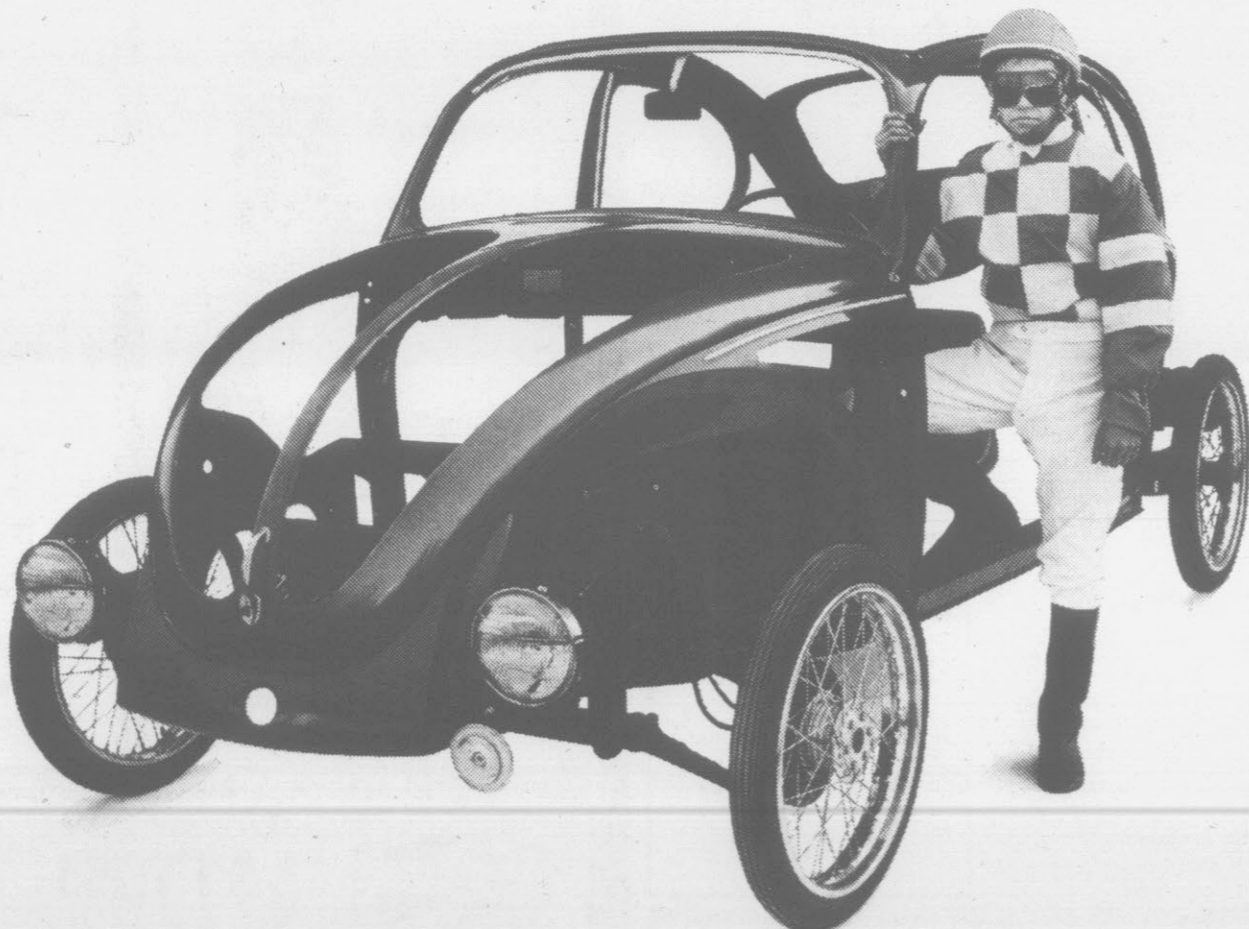

"Then you can come back here and I'll fill out another form."

You return to your wife. "Well," you say, "it's no problem. They know exactly where the bag is and you'll have it in the morning."

This calms her down until we get to the hotel. Then you make a mistake. As she's crawling into bed you ask, "Where's your nightie?"

And she lets out a scream that can be heard all over the roofs of Paris.

Presenting the 84 mpg Volkswagen.

Since all the car manufacturers are conducting their own mileage tests these days, we at Volkswagen thought we'd conduct one too.

So we modified our body—and our engine. And, of course, we got someone who didn't weigh much to drive.

Lo and behold, we got 84 miles per gallon! Ridiculous? Nobody normally drives like this? Of course. That's precisely our point.

Nobody normally drives like most of those tests you're seeing.

Volkswagen: An honest 25* miles per gallon.

Freak Accident Results In Death

WINTERVILLE—A 4:50 p.m. accident, 3.6 miles east of Winterville on the County Home Road, took the life of one man Sunday investigators reported.

Pitt County Coroner and Medical Examiner E.W. Harvey identified the dead man as Leonard Green, 39, of 503 Darden Dr., Greenville. Green died of head injuries, Harvey reported.

Highway Patrolman G.L. Swanson said Green was a passenger in a car being driven by Chester Corey Jr., 30, of 402 Darden Dr.

According to the Patrolman, the Corey car, traveling north on Road 1725 struck a utility pole that had partially fallen across the highway. The end of the pole went through the right front window, hitting Green in the head, killing him.

Investigators said heavy rains had caused a utility pole, set in a ditch bank on one side of the road, to start to fall. The weight of that pole and of a guy-wire attached to another pole on the opposite side of the road caused the other pole to give way also.

It was one of the fallen poles that the Corey auto collided with.

Harvey, who said Green's death was ruled accidental, reported that Corey was charged by officers with driving without a license and having a fictitious license.

Died In Saturday Accident

Robert Francis McLawhon, 85 of Berkley Rd., was killed in a two-vehicle collision about 7 p.m. Saturday south of Greenville on N.C. 43.

Pitt County Coroner E.W. Harvey said McLawhon, the driver of one of the two vehicles involved, apparently stopped for a stop sign at the intersection of N.C. 43 and rural paved road 1745, then pulled out into N.C. 43 and into the path of a truck driven by Prince A. Buck, 57 of Route 1, Vanceboro.

McLawhon was killed, while Buck, his wife and son were injured in the crash.

Harvey ruled the traffic fatality as accidental.

Two Named To Group

Seven business education students at East Carolina University have been initiated into the ECU chapter of Pi Omega Pi honor society in business education.

To be eligible for membership, a student must have at least a 3.2 academic grade point average in business subjects and a 3.0 overall average.

Dr. Frances Daniels, chairman of the ECU Department of Business Education and Office Administration, is the chapter's faculty advisor.

Names and home addresses of the seven new members include: PITT COUNTY, Greenville—Lloyd Wesley Johnston Jr., junior, 1113 S. Overlook Drive, 1971 graduate of Rose High School; Grimesland—Diane M. Mills.

Charged In Accident

Namond Brewington Jr. of 801 Ward St. was charged with failing to keep proper lookout while backing following investigation of a 2 a.m. collision here today on Fifth Street 60 feet West of the Latham Street intersection.

Officers said the Brewington car collided with a vehicle driven by Mark Wayne Streeter of 1211 Battle St. causing an estimated $700 damage to the Streeter car and about $250 damage to the Brewington vehicle.

Impeachment, Vetoes Make Congress Unsure

By JOE HALL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress returns this week from its July Fourth recess hoping to improve soon on its meager 1974 legislative record.

But renewed threats of vetoes by President Nixon and the uncertainties of the impeachment inquiry make it unclear what major bills can be passed in the rest of the session.

So far the only major measure enacted was the one raising the minimum wage from $1.60 to $2.30 an hour.

Congress also has sent to the President an important budget reform bill designed to give it a much firmer grip on federal spending. He is considered certain to sign it.

Several other measures are nearing final congressional action but face big question marks.

Senate-House conferees weeks ago reached final agreement on a bill transferring the program of legal services for the poor to an independent government corporation.

The House passed the compromise version, but the Senate hasn't acted on it.

Conferees also have finished work on a $24 billion grade and high school aid bill except for one embittered subject—busing. They may resume their sessions this week but another veto is threatened on this.

Both the Senate and House have passed a $10 billion omnibus housing bill. The conference on it is scheduled to begin Tuesday.

The Senate passed in April a broad election campaign financing bill and a House Committee has just produced a much more limited version.

Whether the House will pass its committee's bill and whether the differences could be reconciled in a conference are uncertain.

Nixon has been pushing hard for Senate action on his trade bill, which passed the House last December.

However, the House included in it a provision unacceptable to the President which would deny trade concessions to Russia unless the Soviets liberalize their emigration policies.

Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., of the Senate Finance Committee says his panel will try to draft its version of the legislation soon. However, the Soviet provision appears to have just as much support in the Senate as it did in the House.

Democratic leaders would like to improve the record of the 93rd Congress by pushing through national health insurance and tax reform bills in the remaining months of the 1974 session.

But chances appear slim since neither branch has acted so far in the two fields, although committee hearings have been held.

Sponsors concede there is no chance if the House votes to impeach the President and the Senate conducts a trial. This would push aside all major legislation, they say.

Road Work Scheduled

A 5.9 miles long section of N.C. 118 in Pitt County is scheduled for resurfacing, and bids for the project are scheduled to be opened in Raleigh on July 23.

The N. C. 118 resurfacing project calls for a new sand asphalt surface to be laid on the 20-foot wide roadway from Grifton to the Pitt County line. The project also calls for resurfacing of N. C. 118 from the Pitt-Craven County line to the N. C. 43 intersection. That portion of the project includes 10.8 miles of highway.

The project is scheduled for completion about December 1.

Revival Set

The Rev. Tyrone Turnage of Greenville will hold a revival at Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church near Saratoga this week.

The services are at 7:30 each night, with various choirs participating. The public is invited, according to the pastor, the Rev. G. McDaniel.

Sadat's Daughter Is Bride

CAIRO (AP) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's 16-year-old daughter Noha has married Hassan Sayed Mariei, the son of a leading politician.

After a private wedding ceremony Sunday, the couple attended a lavish reception at Sadat's seaside villa near Alexandria. Among the 1,500 guests were Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis and former Libyan King Idris Senoussi, according to the newspaper Al Ahran.

The bridegroom, a businessman and graduate of the American University of Cairo, is the son of Sayed Mariei, former head of Egypt's only authorized political party, the Arab Socialist Union, and now a senior United Nations official.

The Sadats' eldest daughter Lubna, 19, was married in January.

Good-byes were said to Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Uzzell of Goldsboro.

After a wedding trip to Sea Island, Ga., the couple will reside in Raleigh.

The bridegroom is a senior majoring in engineering operations at N.C. State University and is a member of Mu Beta Si fraternity. He is employed part-time by Big Star Foods, Raleigh. The bride is a junior majoring in medical technology at N.C. State University.

After the rehearsal Saturday evening, the parents of the bridegroom entertained at a dinner honoring the couple and their wedding party at the Ramada Inn, Greenville.

The bride was dressed in a white gown of dotted swiss with pastel flowers complemented by a wrist corsage of white carnations and pink roses.

The bridal couple remembered their attendants with gifts.

St. Clair has told the court that if Sirica's ruling is allowed to stand "it could no longer fairly be contended that the President of the United States is 'master in his own house.'"

But the American Civil Liberties Union, in a brief supporting Jaworski, said "it is equally true that if the special prosecutor cannot obtain evidence necessary and material to a criminal proceeding ... the judicial branch is not master in its house."

Both sides discussed in their briefs the landmark 1952 case in which the court struck down government seizure of steel mills, an action the late President Harry S. Truman had said he must take to insure continued production for the Korean War.

"The touchstone of that holding was that President Truman's action ... exceeded all express and inherent powers of the presidency," said St. Clair.

"In contrast, President Nixon's action ... is based squarely on the Constitution."

Jaworski argued the Truman case demonstrated that the courts have "final authority to determine whether even the highest executive officials are acting in accordance with the Constitution."

'Business As Usual' In Dolphin Rookie Camp

By RICHARD CARELLI Associated Press Writer MIAMI (AP) — "Everything is business as usual," said Miami Dolphin Coach Don Shula as he began assessing the football talents of about 40 rookies and two non-regulars assembled at the training camp of the National Football League champions.

Bombers Win Shutout

Leon Johnson fired a one-hitter and got late support from his teammates as the Belvoir Bombers downed Hamilton, 4-0. Johnson struck out five and walked three in seven innings, and allowed only two runners as far as second base. The Bombers scored all they needed in the fourth inning when Rufus Walston singled, moved up on a singled by J.C. Daniels, and scored on Larry Dixon's double. For insurance, they scored three more in the seventh. Dixon walked to lead off the inning, then was chased around by successive singles by Bill Savage, Jeff Daniels, and Robert Johnson. Bobby Short singled to score Savage, and Walston singled to bring Daniels home.

Jollie and St. Peter's played to a 2-2 deadlock in semi-pro action yesterday before the rains came in the seventh inning. St. Peter started the scoring in the third when J. Blount walked, L. Telfair singled, and C. Sneed reached on an error to score Blount. Jollie got the run back in the bottom of the fourth when B. Bateman walked, and W. Hardee singled. C. Coburn reached on a fielder's choice to get Bateman at third, but E. Coburn singled to score Hardee. Jollie took the lead in the bottom of the sixth as R. Parnell reached on an error and stole second. B. Bateman singled to score Parnell. St. Peter got the tying run before the rains came in the seventh. M. Smith was hit by a pitch but was caught in a rundown when J. Blount singled. L. Telfair singled and C. Sneed grounded into a fielder's choice to score Blount. The remainder of the game will be played at a later date, with the second game of the scheduled doubleheader to be played at an announced date.

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — California Lutheran College, host for the Dallas Cowboys' training camp, have succeeded in obtaining a court order to keep striking National Football League players off its campus to prevent possible trouble.

Attorneys for the college, after a day-long effort, obtained a temporary restraining order from Superior Court Judge Marvin H. Lewis late Sunday night. The order prohibits members of the NFL Players Association from picketing on the campus grounds. The order requires that pickets must stay in a certain area. In dispute is whether one street involved that either borders or cuts through the campus is a public thoroughfare or a campus street.

Johnson's Round Trip Helps White Sox Beat Detroit, 3-1

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
Being sent to the minors was a good thing for Bart Johnson but his return to the majors could be even better for the Chicago White Sox.

"I was disappointed, but it was probably the best thing for me to have and you can't develop consistency that way," Johnson said Sunday of his banishment to the minors after speeding two full seasons and parts of three others with the White Sox.

"He could be the man we need to go all the way," Manager Chuck Tanner chortled after Johnson, a 6-foot-5 right-hander who was recalled Friday, fired a two-hitter and beat the Detroit Tigers 3-1.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Cleveland Indians trimmed the California Angels 6-2, the Boston Red Sox snapped a five-game losing streak by defeating Kansas City 5-3 after the Royals took the doubleheader opener 11-9 in 10 innings, the Baltimore Orioles beat the Oakland A's 4-1, the Milwaukee Brewers downed the Minnesota Twins 8-5 but dropped the nightcap 5-3 in 11 innings and the Texas Rangers edged the New York Yankees 3-2.

Johnson allowed a home run to Norm Cash in the second inning, struck out nine and retired 20 batters in a row before Mickey Stanley singled in the ninth.

Indians 6, Angels 2
Home runs by John Ellis, George Hendrick and Oscar Gamble in the eighth inning powered the red-hot Cleveland Indians and Jim Perry over the hapless Angels.
Royals 11-3, Red Sox 9-5
Dwight Evans' sacrifice fly and Rico Petrocelli's pinch RBI double in the eighth inning enabled the Red Sox to end a five-game losing streak in the second game. The wild opener was marked by 32 hits, 12 walks and six errors. Hal McRae and Fran Healy drove in winning 10th-inning runs for the Royals with a single and sacrifice fly.

Orioles 4, A's 1
Paul Blair and Don Baylor slammed home runs for Baltimore in support of Dave McNally's five-hit pitching.

European Swim Prospect Tops New Group Of ECU Signees

GREENVILLE, N.C.—Tomas Palmgren, a versatile all-around swimmer from Helsinki, Finland highlights a group of three solid prospects who will attend East Carolina on swimming grants, according to head coach Ray Scharf.

Palmgren, boasting solid times in the backstroke, butterfly and breaststroke, is viewed by Coach Scharf as a "very capable swimmer in anything from the 100 to 1500 meters in each of the different strokes. He is a very valuable addition because he is a good all-around swimmer and is still very young."

Palmgren is the first European swimmer to enroll at East Carolina. He wrote East Carolina about his swimming prospects earlier in the year. Palmgren will major in business education and computer science. Joining Palmgren on the signee list are two North Carolina swimmers viewed by Coach Scharf as "front line prospects" for the Pirates. Both swimmers, Derek Johnson and John Duncan, come to East Carolina from Raleigh but represent different programs Johnson, a freestyler with good potential in the individual medley, swam for Garner High School near Raleigh. He is rated as a promising sprinter (50 and 100 free). Johnson, a 5-11, 175-pounder, was a Morehead Scholarship nominee this past year.

Duncan, boasting "good size" for a swim prospect, will be counted on to help East Carolina primarily in the butterfly and individual medley. He also has solid performances in the freestyle events. Coach Scharf says "John has what I like to see in young swimmers—potential, ability and the desire to improve. He is coming from Broughton High School which in the past has not been particularly strong in swimming."

Duncan was voted the outstanding swimmer in the AAU short course state championship competition. He won three different events.

The addition of Palmgren, Johnson and Duncan bring the total number of swim signees to six. Scharf expects 15-25 new candidates this winter including walkons. Three previous signees, Charlotte's John McCauley and Gary Pabst and Allan Clancy of New Jersey, all earned All-America honors during their prep careers.

East Carolina has won eight consecutive Southern Conference swim titles including an unprecedented sweep of all 18 events in 1973-74.

The Worry Clinic Sales Gimmick Raises Money

Ben offers a superb plan for school and church groups that wish to raise money. It is far superior to coaxing reluctant prospects to buy unwanted magazines or even boxes of candy and crates of oranges. So make your plans at once.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE A-679: Ben Mitman has several children in grammar and high school.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "haven't you been asked at various times to buy candy or subscribe to magazines or purchase other items to help a high school band?

"Well, I suggest a better plan which you might pass along to the millions of readers of your column.

"For my son Eric is in the Senior High School Band at Avon, Indiana.

"And the Avon Band Boosters developed a 'Birthday Calendar.'

"It was a large wall calendar about 21 by 11 inches.

"And you could insert the name of any friends or relative on the date of their birth or wedding anniversary, for a mere 25 cents apiece.

"I hurriedly recalled about 30 birthdays, which I ordered printed in the spaces below the correct days of each month on which they occurred.

"At the top of the various days of each month, you could also insert the meeting day for various clubs, like Optimist, which thus had its name atop every Wednesday in all 12 months.

"Church, fraternity or sorority and school vacation periods were listed at the top of the exact day on which each was scheduled.

"The Band Boosters also sold 30 small ads at the top and bottom of the calendar and included a splendid picture of the 60 members of the Avon Band, plus its Color Corps.

"After the calendars were printed, you could purchase them for $1 apiece and thus use them for gifts or Christmas greetings.

"And I find that they are far more popular, as well as much more useful, than a mere box of candy which high schoolers try to sell to raise money for their school projects.

"Now would be an ideal time for a school to begin developing such a calendar as a money-raising project for next year.

"Maybe in larger cities the price could be raised to 50 cents for each name you'd wish to insert on the appropriate birthday date.

"But I find that people relish this type of calendar far more since it is useful all the year around and reminds them of the important date or birthdays they wish to remember."

Scouts, Note Well
This "Birthday Calendar" is also an excellent gimmick for use by church organizations, Boy and Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls.

Mrs. Crane and I are often approached by high schoolers to buy magazines or candy or crates of imported Texas and Florida Oranges.

Yet we already have too many magazines at our house, so Mrs.

Country Music Special Waiting For Just A Few Dollars More

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — For the want of $40,000, about the cost of a 60-second network commercial in prime time during the summer, the making of a public TV special on country music has ground to a halt.

But Bob Shepherd, general manager of station WDCN in Nashville, Tenn., remains highly optimistic the station's $109,000 video project, "From Out of the Hills: An American Legacy," will survive.

He says he's just waiting now for word from a major public TV station — he declined to say which — on whether it'll put up $20,000 worth of editing and technical aid to help on the one-hour show.

If that happens, he says, WDCN will somehow try to scrape up the $20,000 balance for its program, intended both as a national special on the history of country music and the pilot for a 13-part series.

"We've shot about 85 per cent of the show, but we just aren't able to go to the editing room because we've run out of money," he says.

The situation is the classic case of a small station with a big dream and a minuscule budget — compared to big-city stations — for programming.

The major thing the show has going for it, says Shepherd, is the cooperation of Nashville's well-known country music community and WDCN's ready access to some of the biggest names in country music.

"Our entree to them was our promise of strict authenticity, that wouldn't jazz it up," he said. "It'll be in every sense a documentary. It'll be strictly Americana, strictly the evolution of country music."

He said the show already has filmed performances of Roy Acuff, Minnie Pearl and Barbara Mandrell at the revered former home of the Grand Ole Opry — Ryman Auditorium — and Roger Miller at a record session.

In addition, he said, it also has on film interviews with Miss Pearl, the late Tex Ritter and Miller, and hopes are strong Earl Scruggs, Johnny Cash, Chet Atkins and Eddie Arnold will join the list.

Although the special was begun on $15,000 raised by the Junior League of Nashville, he said, WDCN failed to get foundation funds "because it's not esoteric enough, I guess, for foundations."

Ironically, although Nashville abounds with major record companies, WDCN avoided trying to tap their corporate tills because of the national policy that public TV shall have no commercial ties.

Parents' Group Meets Tuesday

The Parents of Children with Problems meets at Pitt Technical Institute, Room 10, Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Speaker for the evening will be Mrs. Adelaide Dunn, a nurse-social worker with the ECU Development Evaluation Clinic. A film entitled, "Kids, Parents, and Pressure" will be shown. All parents of exceptional children are invited.

FORCAST FOR TUESDAY, JULY 9, 1974

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Although you may run into some minor problems developing a plan, you find that some persons are willing to listen to your ideas and give you a helping hand in gaining them, especially where vocational matters are concerned.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A letter may be annoying but a good conversation with one at home can bring fine results, so state what is on your mind. Be alert.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan to be with good friends but avoid a quarrel about money that could prove dangerous now. Attend a group gathering tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make sure you are efficient today since higher-ups could be in a bad mood and you could lose much. Avoid one who bickers tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Instead of fretting about what cannot be helped, get busy and develop new ideas. Obtain data you need from a newcomer.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Handle business and personal matters of importance. Your hunches are fine, so be sure to follow them. Attend the social tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Know what your true position is with associates, but don't involve yourself if an argument is brewing between co-workers.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Although your work load seems astronomical, tackle it and it soon dwindles to nothing. Be sure to take health treatments.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Social avenues are best now for building new friendships and avoiding worrisome tasks that can best be taken care of later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Home affairs are most important now so postpone new arrangements with associates for the time being. Be more understanding.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make appointments you have been postponing and be on time. Then become more efficient at routines. Take it easy tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handling financial duties is most important now, so persevere until you get the right results. Keep nose to the grindstone.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Anything of a personal nature can be taken care of with true efficiency now. Tomorrow is a better time for handling home affairs.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those rare children with true psychic powers and should be treated with kindness and understanding so that he or she can become stronger. There is much artistic ability here as well as fine business cunning. Send to the right schools where discipline is stressed.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

What action do you take?
A.—Pass. Although you have a fair hand, you have no safe action because any new suit bid would be forcing. Thus, you might be pushing partner into a corner and forcing him to bid three hearts on a weak five-card suit. To enter the auction with a new suit, you need close to an opening bid. Your wisest course is to pass and hope partner can reopen, in which case you might take some action to describe your strength.

3 ♦ Pass 3 NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Four spades. Your hand is not strong enough to insist on slam, but some forward-going move is indicated. The fact that you took time to bid a minor suit and then removed partner's game bid to four spades, shows a good six-card suit and interest in slam if partner has the necessary controls in the side suits.

Q. 3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AQJ54 ♥9 ♦A872 ♣1054

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 3 ♣ Pass
3 ♦ Pass 3 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Despite the fact that you have shown mere preference with a not very robust hand, partner seems interested in big things. Do not make the mistake of bidding three no trump—partner could have done that himself if he only wanted to get to game. You should confirm your good support for partner's first suit by bidding four diamonds.

Q. 4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠10954 ♥Q763 ♦K9 ♣A76

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Dble. ?

What action do you take?
A.—Redouble, then support spades at your next turn. Your hand is worth about 11 points at a spade contract, and that is the recommended method to describe such a holding.

BIG SPENDERS
HONG KONG (UPI) — Tourists visiting Hong Kong during 1973 spent $480 million, a six per cent increase over 1972 and more than enough to offset the colony's trade deficit.

Load Limits For Old Aurora Road

RALEIGH—As of July 2 Preliminary load limit warning signs have been posted on SR 1123 (Old Aurora Road) in Beaufort County. Preliminary load limit warning signs are posted prior to the setting up of established load limits.

C.W. Snell, Division Engineer for Division 2, said that standard 13,000 pounds per axle signs would be posted on the road in Beaufort County. Effective date of the 13,000 pounds per axle load limit signs will be July 8, 1974.

Crane tells the girls she'd rather donate the money than subscribe to an unwanted magazine, on which the school maybe gets a $1 commission.

But a "Birthday Calendar" is far more useful and pays dividends throughout the entire year.

Ben Mitman, for example, also has 3 daughters in different colleges, so he gives each one a calendar on which her own name appears at the appropriate date on the month of her birthday.

He passes others around to friends, whose names he has inserted at the proper dates of their birthdays or wedding anniversaries.

So he not only paid for some 30 inserted names, but then was a good customer for the completed calendars, too.

All you young people can thus see the greater salability of this type of product vs. the magazines you now try to coax reluctant rooters to buy!

For you get money for the inserted names and then can also sell many finished calendars at $1 apiece!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Is N.C. Learning Watergate Lessons?

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — One would think that, even in Raleigh, the lessons of Watergate would be deeply etched on the minds of North Carolina political leaders.

But there is disturbing and mounting evidence that such is not the case.

—Item: Bruce Lentz leaves the Department of Transportation to become Secretary of Administration. In an interview, Lentz is obviously less than enthusiastic about the change. He admits he has regrets about moving, but says he isn't going to talk about them.

"When you join the administration, you join a team and the governor is the captain of the team. When he asks you to do something, you do it," he says.

—Item: A key cabinet member in the Holshouser administration, speaking off the record, admits that he sharply disagrees with a new policy being promulgated by the governor. The policy is wrong, he believes, and will make crucial state services less effective. He fought against it right up to the time the governor decided to publicly adopt it.

Since that time, the official has said nothing publicly against the policy, because he is a good team player. In fact, when reporters ask him about it, he praises the policy, despite his personal beliefs.

—Item: The University of North Carolina Board of Governors are about to adopt a policy restricting what campus chancellors can say in public.

If the new rules are adopted, a chancellor cannot publicly disagree with promulgated board policy unless he first "discusses" his statement with the president of the university and the chairman of the board.

Chairman William Dees sees nothing wrong with this. "We're interested in harmony," he says. "Am I crazy to think this is the way the world is run?"

Unfortunately, Dees' perception of the way the world is run is quite astute. The daily dispatches from Washington prove that.

Watergate and the ensuing coverup were both the work of good team players whose highest moral priority, apparently, was loyalty to their chief.

They were simply applying the principles that America had taught them on their football teams, at Disneyland, and in their law firms and advertising agencies.

They — and perhaps we in North Carolina — had lost sight of one of the ideas upon which this nation was founded.

200 years ago, it was hoped that America would be a nation of free thinkers, expounding their ideas regardless of the consequences.

From a crucible of free-wheeling debate would emerge the best ideas and the best policies, just as the crucible of the free market produced the lowest prices and the best products.

This principle is being lost in the economic sphere as a corporate society rewards the company man.

It may also prove impossible to preserve it in the political marketplace. But if it does, we will be the poorer for its loss.

Rodman Elected

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — Edward N. Rodman of Washington, N.C., was chosen president-elect Saturday of the North Carolina Bar Association.

Rodman, 48, will hold the post for a year before automatically becoming president of the statewide association of lawyers. He was elected at the concluding session of the association's 76th annual meeting.

Rodman is a Beaufort County trial lawyer and son of a former state Supreme Court justice.

"If our system of government, based on personal freedom, is to endure, it will be up to members of the bar to lead in the fight for its survival."

Association members enacted resolutions Saturday committing the association to "a continuous effort to develop a statewide system of legal services for the poor" and giving tentative endorsement to proposed changes in the rules of appellate procedure.

The Bar Association presented a Special Award of Merit to Raleigh newsman Bob Farrington for his journalistic contributions in the areas of government, commerce, legal and public affairs.

Farrington is a correspondent for a number of television and radio stations throughout North Carolina and until recently was news director of radio station WPTF in Raleigh.

Bar Association members also paid tribute to U.S. Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. The association said it has purchased the desk in Ervin's Senate office for his personal use after he retires when his term ends in January.

Walter F. Brinkley of Lexington, the new president of the association, characterized Ervin as "simply the greatest."

He said Ervin, chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, "has done more to bring honor to the legal profession than any other individual during the past year."

Ervin then told the lawyers,

Farm Tips

By Dr. J. W. Pou
Agricultural Specialist
Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., N.A.

Safety and prevention of losses by evaporation are two of the key considerations in storing gasoline and other fuels on the farm, according to North Carolina State University extension specialists.

While storing fuel is nothing new for many farmers, apparently much more of it will be done this year due to the fuel situation and the agricultural provisions of the National Fuel Allocation Plan.

Safety is the first thing to consider in setting up a fuel storage facility. If an above-ground tank is being used, it should be at least 40 feet from the closest building for both gas and diesel fuel.

Where underground tanks are used, they may be located within a foot or two of a building. The pump from this tank should be painted red and labeled as to whether the fuel is diesel or gas.

Evaporation losses can be large unless proper storage is installed. Underground tanks are best because the temperature stays low and evaporation is slow. The above-ground tanks will lose fuel in varying amounts, depending on how they are set up.

Color is important. The reddish-brown tank that is commonly used — or those of other dark colors — will lose 6 to 7 percent a month. That's about four gallons from a 55-gallon tank.

Painting the tank with a light, reflective paint and locating the tank in the shade will help. A shaded 55-gallon tank loses only 1.4 gallons or 2.6 percent a month. If that shaded tank has a pressure relief valve, the loss may be cut to less than a gallon a month.

Evaporation is less with diesel fuel. However, there are other problems. For example, water settles slowly in diesel fuel. It would be desirable to wait a day or two after filling the tank before using any of the fuel, to allow the water to settle.

Set the tank so accumulated water and dirt can be drained off about once a year.

Shading above ground tanks reduces gum deposits and helps keep moisture from condensing in the tank. Diesel fuel may be stored up to three months without risking serious quality loss.

Gasoline shouldn't be stored that long. In over-heated tanks, gum deposits will build up if gasoline is stored for over a month.

Fuel to operate grain dryers will be much more expensive this fall and could be in tight supply, making conservation and wise use of fuel high priority items on most farms.

North Carolina has another large corn crop in the making. Many growers, particularly those in the large grain growing eastern area, try to harvest as early as possible to avoid loss to weather damage resulting from tropical storms. This corn has to be artificially dried to avoid spoilage.

John Glover, extension engineer at North Carolina State University, has suggested the following points to assist farmers in drying their grain properly and conserving fuel in doing so.

—Let the grain dry as much as possible in the field. Waiting a few days to harvest grain could make the difference between drying or spoilage when fuel is critical. Corn harvested at 30 percent moisture has 11.6 pounds excess water per bushel above 15.5 percent while 22 percent moisture has only 4.6 pounds excess water per bushel.

—Keep drier burners adjusted for peak combustion efficiency.

—Adjust burners to reduce or eliminate cycling. If the thermostat or humidistat is constantly turning the burner off and on, fuel is often wasted during ignition.

—Keep obstructions away from fan, and keep trash cleaned out of drier that can obstruct air or grain movement.

—Stop drying at a little higher moisture content and use aggressive measures.

Controlling leafspot in peanuts is a necessary management practice in order to produce high yielding peanuts. Without control of this leaf-disease, it is impossible for a peanut plant to grow and maintain its fruit. There are several fungicides now in the market that will adequately control this disease, among them are Benlate, Bravo, Du-Ter, Kocide, Copper-count, Fungisperse, Microspense and Copper-Sulfur.

But not even the best of chemicals will do the job unless applied properly. When using a spray, be sure to have enough pressure on the nozzle (50 to 60 psi) and enough water (10-20 gal.) to acre to get a good coverage. When using a dust be sure to adequately cover the plant.

When spraying for leafspot, observe foliage for insects and apply control measures when damage is being done.

The peanut crop is still two to two and one-half weeks behind a normal season so it is very important that we keep the vines in excellent condition right up until digging. To control excessive vine growth Kylar-85W should be used. This should be applied when the distance between vines are not more than 12 inches up until the time the vines meet in the middle.

Pesticide users are reminded to take extreme caution when applying any type of pesticide. Read the label and make sure that the chemical selected will do the intended job. Wear protective clothing when applying and observing the re-entry period into the field after application. Read the label, it may save your life.

Lillian Woo Is Milk Commissioner

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Lillian Woo, president of the North Carolina Consumers Council and an outspoken critic of state regulatory agencies, has been named to the state Milk Commission.

Her appointment was announced Sunday by Gov. Jim Holshouser, who also named Martin Pannell, a Newton lawyer, to the seven-member commission.

Mrs. Woo and Pannell each will serve until June 30, 1977. They replace W. Archie Blount of Winston-Salem and George Tisdale of Asheville, whose terms have expired.

Mrs. Woo and Pannell will be among five members of the commission representing the public. The others represent the milk industry.

Mrs. Woo and Pannell will be sworn in at a commission meeting Tuesday in Raleigh.

Mrs. Woo's appointment was something of a surprise, since she is a registered Democrat and has consistently attacked the Milk Commission and the industry itself.

A year ago she accused the commission of being the "errand boy for industry-conspired collusion and price fixing."

She said in an interview that her appointment "does not mean that I will be leaving the Consumers Council. I will still be active as a public advocate in other areas."

Mrs. Woo, who holds a masters degree in economics, said she believes it is time to work for changes in the dairy industry "from within."

"We have seen in the past two years that our appearance on behalf of the farmer and consumer and the suggestions we have made have not been adopted in any way. We have been given a courteous hearing, but certainly not serious consideration," she said.

Is It Charity Or Is It Sin?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Le Roy and I have been married for 38 years, and during that time I have had proof that he cheated on me with 33 different girls. I suspected 14 others, but never had proof. I thought maybe time would slow him down, but it hasn't.

Last Sunday, Le Roy spent the whole day in his pickup truck hauling this girl's stuff from her apartment to a trailer court. He didn't make it home until midnight.

Abby, I'm a good Christian woman who loves the Lord. I told Le Roy I thought it was a sin for him to work on Sunday, but he said it wasn't work, it was an act of charity to lend a helping hand to a person in need.

This girl is not in need of anything but prayers, and I've been praying for her. I have also been praying for Le Roy.

Please ask your readers to pray for these two sinners, and tell me if you think Le Roy worked last Sunday, or was it charity? A CHRISTIAN

DEAR CHRISTIAN: Let's say it was charity on his part, and work on hers.

DEAR ABBY: A girl friend of ours (I'll call her Molly) is scheduled to get married in two weeks. She met the guy three months ago and has seen him only twice since. (He's in the service.) Molly is a bit of a screwball. She's 23 and he's 24. Nobody we know has ever met him. Molly is planning everything herself. Two other girls and I want to give her a shower, but I honestly don't think there is going to be a wedding. (Neither does anybody else.) Molly is a swell kid with a heart of gold, but she's done a lot of really nutty things, and we don't want to go to the expense and work of making a shower for her if the wedding never takes place.

She's not pregnant. We'd just make it a general shower. Please advise me so I can show it to the other two girls who are as puzzled about this as I am. MOLLY'S FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Since there seems to be a question as to whether there will be a wedding, skip the shower. If Molly gets married, give her a gift and your best wishes at the wedding—and shower her later.

DEAR READERS: If you like contemporary poetry, get "America," a powerful and beautifully written and illustrated little volume by Jim Kavanaugh, in which he captures the idealism of the 40's, the pride of the 50's, and the disillusionment of the present. ("I love you, America, but not like I use to.")

I've given ten copies as high school and college graduation gifts and was thanked in superlatives by each recipient. It's only $3.95. If your bookstore doesn't have it, write to Karo Communications, 9010 Reseda Blvd., Northridge, Calif. 91324.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "Can't Believe It" In Kenosha: It's true. Maria Echeverria, wife of Mexico's president, announced that 35,000 pawn tickets worth $800,000 were being redeemed from national pawnshops, at no cost to the women who held them, as a government gift for Mother's Day. So thousands of Mexican women got their sewing machines, blenders and other household appliances out of hock free of charge. Iy, yi, yi!

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclosed stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

If you want a better car, you couldn't pick a better time to buy it.

Olds Cutlass S

Oldsmobile dealers are more anxious than ever to stir up business. They are in a generous mood for a couple of reasons. First, the 1974 model year is drawing to a close. So your Olds dealer can offer you especially generous year-end savings now—on compact Omega, mid-size Cutlass, family-size Delta 88 or luxurious Ninety-Eight or Toronado. Second, used cars are in short supply, particularly mid-size and full-size models. So your Olds dealer can offer you a very attractive trade allowance. Your savings may never be greater than now. All in all, you couldn't pick a better time to see your Oldsmobile dealer.
