

Supreme Court Begins Deliberations

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has begun deliberations — based on 459 pages of briefs, three hours of oral argument and a file including still-secret material — on President Nixon's Watergate claim of executive privilege.

A lawyer for special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski, Philip Lacovara, asked the court in a historic hearing Monday to "explicitly, decisively and definitively" uphold a lower court order directing Nixon to produce records of 64 White House conversations.

But the President's attorney, James D. St. Clair, said the court "ought to stay its hand," at least until impeachment proceedings have run their course in Congress.

St. Clair also continued presenting witnesses in the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment inquiry. St. Clair questioned former Nixon reelection official Frederick C. LaRue in an effort to discredit charges that Nixon approved a $75,000 payment to Watergate burglar E. Howard Hunt Jr.

Meanwhile, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell reportedly agreed to undergo limited questioning by the committee on his role in approving the payment.

The Judiciary Committee also planned to release today its transcripts of eight presidential conversations with an analysis of how its versions differ from those released by the White House.

And in the plumbers trial, John D. Ehrlichman testified he had no idea an illegal burglary was planned when he approved a covert operation to examine Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatric file.

After its 180-minute hearing, the Supreme Court adjourned with no indication of when it will reach a decision.

There was only one reference in the hearing to the secret part of the record that the court has before it.

Jaworski, arguing that the Watergate grand jury had the authority to name the President an unindicted coconspirator in the Watergate cover-up, said the question is important because "it does relate to the relevance of the proof that we are seeking."

"And this gets into, of course, a discussion of matters that are sealed and which I cannot discuss with the court," Jaworski said.

"I understand," said Justice Potter Stewart.

The sealed material includes arguments presented before U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica on the President's motion to quash the subpoena for the tapes and documents.

The briefs in the case include 197 pages from St. Clair, 235 from Jaworski and 27 in a brief by the American Civil Liberties Union, which the court agreed Monday to consider. The ACLU opposes the President's claim.

Eight justices heard arguments and will decide the case. Justice William H. Rehnquist disqualified himself because he is a former assistant to Mitchell, one of the defendants in the Watergate cover-up trial.

Rehnquist's absence raises the possibility of a 4-4 tie. This would uphold Sirica's order without establishing any precedent on the legal questions involved.

It is not known whether the President would abide by a Supreme Court decision against him.

There are a number of ways the court could decide the case. It will thrash out its decision privately and probably announce it within two weeks.

It could decide that Sirica's order was not appealable, thus putting it back into effect without passing on the constitutional questions.

It could hold that the argument is one within the executive branch and thus sealed from court interference by the doctrine of separation of powers. Or it could decide that Jaworski did not prove the material he wanted was relevant. Either decision would strike down Sirica's order.

If the court decides the material is relevant and that the courts have jurisdiction, it must decide the President's claim of executive privilege.

Jaworski has said the conversations covered by the subpoena deal with future testimony by White House aides and with how to handle payments to Watergate defendants.

St. Clair said in court he does not know what they contain.

"How do you know that they are subject to executive privilege?" one of the justices asked.

"I do know that there is a preliminary showing that they are conversations between the President and his close aides," St. Clair said.

He said such confidential conversations of a president would be covered by executive privilege even if they involved criminal matters.

St. Clair noted in his argument that Jaworski has said the subpoenaed material will have a bearing on whether the President is impeached.

"The special prosecutor is drawing the court into those (impeachment) proceedings inevitably and inexorably," he said.

"Well, how far does your point go?" asked Stewart. "Let's assume that a murder took place on the streets of Washington of which the President happened to be one of the very few eyewitnesses ... Would you say he cannot be

May Never Know Why

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Authorities say they may never know what caused a patrol car window to break Saturday, prompting a police report of a possible sniper incident during the motorcade of Vice President Gerald R. Ford.

The Secret Service maintains the window burst because of heat expansion. It was 92 degrees, normal for Texas, and the car's air conditioning was on when the window on the driver's side shattered.

The heat expansion theory is discounted by the Texas Department of Public Safety. Spokesman Jim Robinson says the department believes the window was broken by a rock.

The auto was five cars and a bus behind a limousine carrying the vice president from the airport to a dedication ceremony near downtown Dallas.

The Secret Service took out the window, confiscating much of the glass, Robinson said.

REFUND WENT ASTRAY

I have never received my $50 deposit refund from Village Green Apartments. My two apartment mates and I moved nearly three years ago. J.R.

Mrs. Bill Edwards, wife of the Village Green manager, found a request for a $30 refund to you dated Jan. 5, 1972. She gave this date to Mrs. Fountain at the office of the Rocky Mount owners, who quickly found a canceled check for $30 endorsed with your signature. You say you never saw the check, but that one of your apartment mates must have received and signed it. The $20 difference was noted on the refund request as being withheld because of need for additional cleaning to the kitchen and bathroom. You say you are happy to know what happened, though your purse is no thicker for the knowledge.

REPORT BLIND CORNERS

Why can't the city cut back all the shrubbery that blocks the corners of many streets? We have to run our cars out too far in the street to see if traffic is coming. I think it causes many wrecks. Two blind corners I know of are Fourth and Eastern where a dogwood blocks the view, and Ninth and Cotanche, a hedge. Mrs. S.L.T.

Hotline passed on your report to Police Chief Glenn Cannon, who said the two corners you mentioned would be checked. Persons knowing of other blind corners could be preventing injury and property damage by reporting them to either the Police Department, the City Manager's office, or the City Engineer's office, City Manager Bill Carstarphen said.

INSURANCE PAID—BILLS KEEP COMING

I paid a full year's premium on my auto liability insurance in March, yet I keep getting monthly bills. Is my insurance still in effect? A.C.

A representative of the Royal Globe Insurance Company in Richmond assured Hotline that your coverage is being maintained. He indicated, for some reason, that their billing department had your insurance set up on a monthly installment basis. Your agent in Washington, N.C. told Hotline you had indeed made the full year's payment and that he would contact the company to straighten out the billing error.

Seek Ways To Curb Inflation

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and his top economic advisers are looking toward voluntary restraints as a means of curbing inflation without tax increases or new wage-price controls.

Aides say the President is determined to seek voluntary restraints by the federal government and the public sector to battle inflation, which he considers the nation's No. 1 problem.

Nixon planned to devote much of today to a thorough review of the entire economic situation with his economic advisers, Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said.

Summoned to a morning session at the White House with the President were Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, chief economic counselor Kenneth Rush, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers Herbert Stein, Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns and director of the Office of Management and Budget Roy L. Ash.

White House spokesman Gerald L. Warren disclosed Monday that Rush already has embarked on a campaign of jawboning sessions with representatives of industry, labor and consumer groups to appeal for voluntary restraint.

Warren said Nixon is pursuing "with great determination" a program of restraint in federal spending and reducing the budget wherever possible.

He said the President believes it is necessary "to edu-

Chenault Will Undergo Tests

By BILL HENDRICK

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A Superior Court judge ruled today that Marcus Wayne Chenault of Dayton, Ohio, charged with murder in the slaying of Mrs. Martin Luther King Sr., would undergo psychiatric examination.

Judge Sam Phillips McKenzie ordered Chenault moved to Grady Hospital in Atlanta from the city jail, where he has been held since the slaying June 30.

Chenault's attorney said Dr. Lloyd Bacus, a private psychiatrist, has been asked to examine the accused man.

"It is absolutely necessary, for the protection of the defendant's rights as well as to aid the court, that the examination of the defendant by Dr. Bacus be had immediately," the attorney said.

McKenzie said the evaluation will determine whether Chenault is competent to stand trial, whether he is mentally capable of assisting his attorney in the preparation of a defense, whether he could determine right from wrong at the time of the shooting, and "other pertinent matters relating to the accused's mental capability of standing trial for said offenses, as the case may be."

Chenault is charged with two counts of murder and one of assault in the June 30 shooting of Mrs. King and two other persons during morning worship services at the Ebenezer Baptist Church.

A church deacon, Edward Boykin, also was killed when a gunman rose in the church and began firing pistols wildly. Another woman was wounded.

McKenzie refused a motion from Chenault's attorney to block the Fulton County grand jury's investigation of the incident.

"Under Georgia law mental competency and related issues, if raised, must be raised before the courts and a trial jury if indictments are in fact returned," McKenzie said in the ruling.

Chenault's attorney, Randy Bacote, originally asked McKenzie to stop all proceedings against his client until mental examinations were completed. He modified that motion in an effort to block Dist. Atty. Lewis Slaton's office from proceeding.

Chenault, 23, of Dayton, Ohio, was quoted by police hours after the shooting as saying he came to Atlanta on orders "from his god" to kill Martin Luther King Sr. Police said Chenault told them that black preachers deceive worshippers.

In the motion filed in Superior Court Monday, Bacote indicated Chenault continues to make statements "that he is the biblical Jacob and that he received direct messages from a diety which conspired his alleged criminal acts."

Bacote said that indicated "a need for immediate examination and observation."

Transcripts To Be Made Public

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee is ready to make public its transcripts of eight presidential conversations and an analysis of how its versions differ from those released by the White House.

Release is scheduled for late today.

Many of the differences between the White House and committee transcripts of the Watergate-related conversations already have leaked out of the closed impeachment inquiry sessions.

For example, it was disclosed from the leaked committee transcript of a Sept. 15, 1972, conversation that the President and aides H. R. Haldeman and John W. Dean III had discussed the possibility of retaliating against The Washington Post for its Watergate coverage.

That part of the conversation had been omitted from the White House transcript.

Other differences were disclosed in a series of staff memorandums written for the committee members but which also leaked out.

The committee staff, using sophisticated electronic equipment, made its transcripts from tapes the panel received from the White House and the Watergate grand jury.

In many cases the staff transcripts filled in portions marked inaudible in the White House versions and also included material deleted entirely in the transcripts President Nixon made public April 30.

Most of the differences made known so far involved changes in emphasis rather than substance. None apparently provided definitive answers to such questions as whether the President authorized payment of hush money to Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt Jr.

Release of the transcripts is to be the first step in the disclosure of thousands of pages of evidence the impeachment inquiry staff has presented the

Trudeau's Party Wins Big Vote

By EDITH M. LEDERER

Associated Press Writer
TORONTO (AP) — Canadian voters swept Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's ruling Liberal Party back into power in a smashing victory that gave him a solid majority in the House of Commons, and the prospect of five more years in the office he has held since April 1968.

Complete returns from Monday's general election gave the Liberals 140 of the 264 seats in Commons, a majority of 16. This represented a gain of 31 seats over their showing in the 1972 election.

The other three parties lost ground badly. Robert Stanfield's Progressive Conservatives won 95 seats, a loss of 17. The New Democrats dropped from 31 to 16, and party leader David Lewis lost his own seat in Parliament. The Social Credit party dropped from 15 seats to 12, and one independent was elected.

It was a stunning comeback for the 54-year-old Trudeau. He came within two seats of losing the government to Stanfield in 1972, and only the support of Lewis and the New Democrats enabled him to hold on for 19 months at the head of a minority government. Now he can govern without the support of any other party. Pollsters and political analysts had predicted a tight race, but the Liberals took an early lead in the Atlantic Maritime provinces and wrapped up the election in Ontario, the most populous province.

Inflation, now at nearly 11 per cent, was the big issue. Stanfield proposed a 90-day freeze on wages and prices followed by 18 months of flexible controls. Trudeau argued that controls didn't work in the United States or Britain and wouldn't work in Canada. He said the issue was who could best lead Canada.

In a low-key victory statement, Trudeau said Canada had elected a strong government in an uncertain world. "Canada has come out of this election strong and confident in its future," he declared. "I'm very anxious to get in with the job."

While the Liberals swept the East, the Conservatives maintained their strength in the West, and Trudeau said he regretted this geographical division. He renewed his pledge that federal policies will be applied fairly in the West.

The Liberals have controlled the government since 1963, and this was the third Conservative defeat since Stanfield became party leader.

Redevelopment Group Approves Three Sales

By TOM BAINES

The Redevelopment Commission approved bids Monday night for the sale of two parcels in the Central Business District and one in the Newtown area.

Kirby Boyd, commission real estate officer, said that only one bid was submitted for the June 14 bid opening on Parcel AA-2, the former Fountain Harrington property on Greene Street between Second and Third Streets.

Boyd said that E. Hoover Taft III offered a bid on the property which adjoins Taft's present office building on Greene Street. The tract contains some 11,097 square feet, it was noted.

Ed Rawl and Associates submitted the only bid Monday for Parcel F-5, a small tract at the intersection of Reade Circle and Cotanche Street adjoining the Georgetowne Shoppes parking lot. The parcel contains 2,482 square feet. Boyd reported.

One bid was opened Monday for Parcel D-2, the real estate officer said, located on Ridgeway Street in Newtown. Garris-Evans Lumber Co. submitted the proposal for the 26,400 square foot tract.

Both the Taft and Rawl bids were submitted with plans for parking lot expansion while Garris-Evans proposes to utilize the Ridgeway Street property for outside storage of building materials.

Commissioners accepted the bids, subject to approval by the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the City Council.

In other business, Boyd reported that no acquisitions took place in CBD since the June meeting but six structures were removed. He noted that several more parcels are ready for demolition.

In Southside, one parcel was acquired and 11 structures were removed, it was noted. Dan Sullivan, CBD project manager, reported that three relocations were handled in CBD since the June meeting.

Two families and four individuals were relocated in Southside during June, according to Mrs. Faye Brewington, Southside project manager.

Commissioners approved amendments to both first and second reuse appraisal contracts in Southside and to the first reuse appraisal contract in the CBD area. The amendments will serve to update the contracts to cover changes that have occurred in parcel status since the documents were executed.

The Utilities Commission will meet tonight at 7:30 in the board room of the Utilities Building on Fifth Street.

Kissinger Meets Spanish Leaders

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
MADRID, Spain (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger arrived today for a six-hour visit to initial a declaration of principles on defense cooperation between the United States and Spain.

Kissinger was flying back to Washington this afternoon and said he would appear in court there Wednesday to testify in the trial of former presidential aide John D. Ehrlichman. His appearance was ordered by U. S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell, and Kissinger said he would head the order.

The secretary was driven from the airport to a meeting with Premier Carlos Arias Navarro and then was to confer with Foreign Minister Pedro Cortina, with whom he was to initial the defense agreement.

The pact parallels accords the United States has with its European allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, of which Spain is not a member. It also marks the first step toward renewing the 1970 defense pact under which the United States maintains military bases in Spain. The pact expires next year, and negotiations to renew it begin later this summer.

The secretary of state was also expected to brief Spanish government officials on President Nixon's recent trip to Moscow.

Madrid was Kissinger's last stop on a tour of West European capitals to discuss pressing problems and to assure America's allies that Nixon had made no secret agreements with the Russians.

He came to Spain from London, where he reported "very good" talks with British leaders "conducted in a friendly and constructive atmosphere" and "a complete identity of views."

Bible-Toting Colson To Jail

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House special counsel Charles W. Colson expressed "a deep sense of gratitude" for the American people as he headed off to prison, tooting two Bibles.

Colson, who has spoken publicly of his religious conversion since leaving the White House, appeared to be in a good mood Monday as he left his home in nearby McLean, Va., to begin serving a one-to-three year sentence for obstructing justice.

He said the one thing on his mind was "a great, deep sense of gratitude for the thousands of people who have written to us and called us and the beautiful expressions from people all across the country."

"You really learn that Americans have a very warm heart," he said.

Asked by reporters how he felt, Colson repeated an old Abraham Lincoln joke about the man who was tarred and feathered and about to be run out of town: "If it wasn't for the honor, he'd just as soon walk."

Colson was accompanied by his wife Patty and attorney Judah Best before he surrendered to U.S. marshals at an undisclosed location in Baltimore and then was driven to Ft. Holabird, Md.

He will be confined temporarily at the former Army intelligence training center so he can be available to testify Friday before the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment inquiry.

Colson said his testimony would involve President Nixon but offered no details other than to say he would talk about their relationship, "which was and is very close."

The prison term was imposed last month after Colson pleaded guilty to obstructing justice by trying to influence the outcome of the 1971 Pentagon Papers trial of Daniel Ellsberg.

Israeli Navy Hits Lebanese Coast Areas

By The Associated Press
The Israeli navy shelled three ports in southern Lebanon, sinking more than a score of fishing boats in retaliation for the Palestinian guerrilla raid by sea two weeks ago on Nahariya.

The Israeli military command said it had "numerous indications" that the terrorists were preparing more seaborne attacks. The command said its raid on the ports was intended to "disrupt the preparations and warn against the use of these harbors" by the guerrillas.

Israel said the Monday night attack was "limited in scope," and every attempt was made to avoid injuries to civilians. The Lebanese government reported one casualty, a civilian wounded by an explosion in Sidon.

The Lebanese defense ministry reported 21 fishing boats sunk: 10 at Tyre, 10 at Sarafand and one at Sidon. An Israeli spokesman claimed about 30 sunk, or about 10 in each port.

Sidon, the northernmost target, is 30 miles south of Beirut. Tyre is 20 miles farther south, and Sarafand is midway between.

The Palestine guerrilla headquarters in Beirut said Israeli frogmen blew up wooden jetties at Tyre, but the Israeli announcements made no mention of this.

The Israelis said the attack was made by a flotilla of gunboats but did not say how many. The Lebanese defense ministry said Israeli helicopters also dropped leaflets warning the population against cooperating with the Palestinian guerrillas.

"We are warning you," the leaflets said. "You have the choice between peace or trouble. We know that they are planning additional operations from your harbors. It is up to you."

Lebanon said its coastal artillery returned the Israeli fire and drove the gunboats back. The Palestinians said guerrillas cooperated with the Lebanese army in driving off the raiders.

During the night after the naval raid, Israeli and Arab gunners exchanged fire across the Lebanese border, but no casualties were reported.

The Israeli military command said the Arabs fired a number of Katyusha rockets at the Kerem Ben Zimra farm settlement three miles south of the border and 22 miles inland from the Mediterranean, and Israeli artillery returned the fire.

In the Nahariya raid on June 24, three Arab terrorists who came down the Mediterranean coast by boat killed four Israelis in the coastal resort before they were killed. Usually the Israelis retaliate within a day or two with heavy strikes at guerrilla bases in Lebanon, but this time the strike was delayed for two weeks.

The Israeli navy has made several raids against the Lebanese coast in the past 18 months, reporting each time that Palestinian guerrilla installations were its targets.

In February 1973, Israeli gunboats, helicopters and commandos made a raid on the coast near Tripoli, 112 miles north of the Israeli-Lebanese border. Two months later, Israeli commandos slipped into the heart of Beirut at midnight, killed three top guerrilla leaders in their apartments and blew up a terrorist headquarters and munitions plants.

After guerrillas killed 28 Israelis and wounded 73 in the village of Maalot during May, Israeli gunboats shelled the Rashidiye Palestinian refugee camp nine miles north of the border.

Skeleton Believed To Be Missing American

HERMOSILLO, Mexico (AP) — Sonora state police hope to establish the identification today of a skeleton they believe to be that of U.S. Vice-Consul John Patterson, who was kidnaped March 22.

Lt. Col. Francisco Arellano, state police chief, said he was "pretty sure" the remains found in a dry creekbed about eight miles northwest of Hermosillo were Patterson's. He said he hoped Mrs. Patterson would arrive today to try to make the identification.

Arellano said a gold ring found on one finger of the skeleton carried the initials JLP and AML and it was believed these stood for John L. Patterson and Andra M. Latour, Mrs. Patterson's maiden name.

In Philadelphia, Patterson's sister, Joan Patterson Del Pozo, said her brother's middle initial was "S" and not "L." The U.S. State Department said its records showed "S" as the middle initial.

Arellano said the skeleton was wearing clothing that matched the description of the clothes Patterson was wearing when he was last seen leaving the U. S. Consulate in Hermosillo on the morning of March 22 with an unidentified man.

Arellano said the skull of the skeleton had been fractured, in the front and at the base, "apparently bashed in with a heavy metal object...." There also was a pelvic fracture, believed old.

The body apparently had been buried in the dry creekbed near a dirt path, but recent heavy rains uncovered the remains, Arellano said. The skeleton was found by a man looking for fruit.

It was believed Patterson's kidnaping was the work of leftist Mexican terrorists. But on June 7 Bobby Joe Keesee, a California carpenter and self-styled soldier of fortune, was indicted by a federal grand jury in San Diego, Calif., on charges of planning and taking part in the kidnaping.

Keesee, 40, pleaded innocent in U.S. District Court at San Diego on June 20 and is being held in jail in lieu of $500,000 bail.

Patterson, 31, a native of Philadelphia, arrived with his wife and small daughter at the consulate in Hermosillo, the capital of Sonora, on Feb. 1.

Did Not Know Break-In Plan

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — John D. Ehrlichman testified he had no idea the White House plumbers were planning an illegal burglary when he approved a covert operation to examine the file of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

The former White House domestic affairs chief either challenged or said he had forgotten every single element of the prosecution's case during his testimony Monday in the plumbers trial.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said early today he will appear at the trial Wednesday morning to testify. Speaking to newsmen before leaving London for Madrid to confer with Spanish government leaders, Kissinger said he would head a court order for his appearance, but added: "It would not be appropriate for me to make any comment."

With five hours on the stand behind him, Ehrlichman is to be cross-examined for approximately another two hours today by associate special prosecutor William H. Merrill.

The 49-year-old Ehrlichman and three others are accused of violating the civil rights of Dr. Lewis J. Fielding, a psychiatrist treating Daniel Ellsberg at the time the former Pentagon analyst leaked the Pentagon Papers to the press.

On the stand, Ehrlichman seemed controlled and unshaken by the accusations of conspiracy and lying to the FBI and a grand jury. His trial is in its ninth day.

He gestured confidently and answered questions by speaking directly to the jury of six men and six women.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell, however, found the content of many of Ehrlichman's responses to be lacking.

"This man is not able to answer specific questions directly. He gives very rambling answers," Gesell said in urging defense attorneys to ask detailed questions about the break-in itself.

When the Ellsberg operation was broached, Ehrlichman testified he believed E. Howard Hunt Jr. and G. Gordon Liddy, two members of a White House unit called the plumbers, went to California over the Labor Day weekend in 1971 for a general investigation of Ellsberg's motives and background.

Liddy, Eugenio R. Martinez and Bernard L. Barker also are defendants in the Sept. 3, 1971, break-in.

Ehrlichman said he believed Hunt and Liddy might obtain the Ellsberg information from Fielding, possibly by direct request, although Ehrlichman said that at the time he didn't know Fielding's name or whether he even had an office.

Another possibility, Ehrlichman said, was that as trained investigators Hunt and Liddy might have gone to the Rand Corp., a government-financed research organization in California where Ellsberg worked.

But basically, Ehrlichman testified, "It really did not enter my thought process as to what means they would employ."

In early August 1971, when a codirector of the plumbers, Egil "Bud" Krogh, proposed a special White House investigation of Ellsberg, Ehrlichman said:

"I expressed misgivings about the policy and appearance of people from the White House being out as investigators."

There has been testimony in the trial that Ehrlichman called the CIA in July 1971 to arrange support for CIA veteran Hunt, that he ordered special White House counsel Charles W. Colson to raise $5,000 which went to finance the break-in and that he okayed the Ellsberg burglary just four days before it was carried off.

He testified Monday he had no recall of any of those events.

Rabies Disputed

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Initial studies at the Center for Disease Control have failed to support the diagnosis of rabies in a 4-year-old Mexico City boy, a spokesman said today.

"We don't know what it is," said Dr. Michael Hattwick, chief of Rabies at the CDC. "It's not rabies as we know it in this country, but there are related viruses. Whether it's one of those or not, we don't know."

Dr. Enrique Cifuentes reported Friday that his patient had been cured of the dread disease.

Had his reports been confirmed by CDC investigations, the case would have been the second such documented cure in history.

"Dr. Cifuentes said he did isolate a rabies virus," said Hattwick. "There are several polynucleotropic (meaning to poison the nerves) diseases with symptoms similar to those of rabies."

The CDC is continuing tests on blood, urine and spinal fluid samples, Hattwick said.

"It will be several weeks before we are able to make a specific diagnosis," he said. "Tests are being run here and in Mexico."

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. E.H. Buschman of Bedford, Ind., and Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. McLane Jr. of Greenville.

A program of organ music was presented by James Hiatt.

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of polyester crepe with a chiffon overlay on the skirt and train. The empire bodice was fashioned with a lace overlay, sweetheart neckline and long lace sleeves. The gown was made by the bride. After a wedding trip to Charlotte, the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University and is employed as a department manager with King's Department Store. The bridegroom attended East Carolina University and is employed by Winn-Dixie.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlor.

The wedding cake was served by Judy Buschman and Sue Buschman, sister-in-law of the bride, and punch was poured by the bride's sister, Ruby Lee.

Mrs. Ronald Gregg of Nashville assisted at the register.

The parents of the bridegroom entertained at a candlelight rehearsal dinner at the First Federal party room Friday night.

Miss Linda Buschman, bride-elect of Donald C. McLane III, was honored at a miscellaneous floating shower Wednesday night at the home of Mrs. Edward Holland.

Mrs. Linwood Stoneham was assisting hostess.

The honoree was remembered with a corsage of yellow roses to complement her white and blue dress.

Miss Buschman was remembered with a gift from the hostesses.

Their Ignorance Was Very Costly

HUDDERSFIELD, England (WNS) — Arthur Sykes, 42, loved to spend every evening at the local pub. Lonely at home, his wife Joyce got hubby to spend evenings with her by turning their house into a pub without a proper license. After midnight they found more than 60 people dancing and drinking. The Sykes pleaded in court that they did not know they were breaking the law, but the judge fined them $5,800.

AYDEN—The Little Creek Free Will Baptist Church was the scene of the wedding ceremony of Miss Nancy Carol Cahoon and Harry Lee Shirley Saturday, June 29, at 3:00 p.m.

The Rev. David C. Hansley performed the double ring ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented by Ralph Bowers, organist, and Greg Tripp, soloist.

The gown was fashioned with a transparent yoke of English net, wide cuffed sleeves and an empire bodice overlaid with peau de ange chantilly lace. The lace extended down the front of the gown forming a redingote effect. A detachable chapel train fell from the waist and was accented with matching peau de ange lace.

Her mantilla was of matching lace and flowed into a full chapel length train. The mantilla was attached to a white Camelot cap of lace and pearls. She carried a white satin and lace covered Bible centered with white carnations, mums and yellow baby's breath.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

A group of fourth graders in Washington were given a First Aid quiz recently and their answers revealed something I always suspected . . . children under 12 are not only injurious to your mental health, they can fix it so you can visit that big utility room in the sky sooner than you planned.

These are just a few of their "home remedies."

For head colds: Use an agonizer to spray the nose until it drops in the throat.

For nose bleed: Put the nose lower than the body.

For snake bite: Bleed the wound and wrap the victim in a blanket for shock.

For fractures: To see if the limb is broken wiggle it gently back and forth.

For fainting: Rub the person's chest, or if it is a lady, rub her arm above the hand.

For asphyxiation: Apply artificial respiration until the victim's dead.

The over-simplification of treatment has never failed to amaze me. Several years ago our son announced he wanted to be a baby-sitter.

Frankly, I couldn't trust the kid to turn off the sprinkler, so I summoned him to the kitchen one day and said, "What do you know about babies?"

"What's to know?" he shrugged.

"For openers, what would you do if the baby swallowed a coin and started to choke?"

He thought a moment, "What denomination?"

"What difference does that make?"

"If it was a quarter, I'd go for it, but a penny, I'd just write it off."

"Forget the money. Just say it choked on a banana."

"Then I'd never give it another banana again."

"I know that! But assume you had and it is choking."

"I'd get the vacuum sweeper nozzle and suck it out."

"Where did you, in all of your life, get such a hare-brained, stupid, idiotic idea like that?"

"From you. You used a sweeper nozzle when I stuck a piece of popcorn in my ear once. And don't worry, Mom. After all, I am 11 years old."

If any fourth grader has a cure for curing 11-year-olds, I'll listen.

Wife Complains, Husband Quits

DEAR ABBY: Perhaps mine is a unique problem, yet I think not. My wife complains constantly that I never do anything around the house. She says: "The people next door work together, painting, gardening, etc. and their place looks great. You never do a thing to do is play golf, or bring home extra work from the office." And she is right.

The reason I never do anything around the house is this: I once brought some paint home to paint a room, and she criticized the color. I started to work in the yard and she said: "Quit that—you are making a mess!" Frankly, no matter what I do, she finds fault with it. The golf course is pleasant and quiet. And when I'm doing work I bring home from the office, at least she doesn't yell at me.

I have complimented her on her cooking, the way she looks, her housekeeping, and everything I can think of, but she never even says: "Thanks."

I doubt if this could be of any help to me if it were printed. However, there must be other readers who could improve their family relations immensely by just learning to express a little warm, sincere appreciation. Thanks.

A GOLF WIDOW'S GOLFER

DEAR GOLFER: I score your advice a birdie after a good recovery from a common marital trap!

DEAR ABBY: Am I being unreasonable? My husband's part collie dog is 19 years old. He is deaf, and nearly blind, can hardly use his back legs, and has lost control of his bowels. I have to clean up after him all the time. He whines, cries and barks during the night and I have to get up and let him out.

My husband is a sound sleeper and nothing disturbs him. I have begged him to take this dog to the vet to be put to sleep, but he says: "No! I suppose when I get sick you will want to put ME to sleep, too."

Abby, this is my second marriage and I want it to last, but I have had it with this dog of his.

I know if the dog could talk, he would beg to be put out of his misery. Please advise me.

DOG TIRED

DEAR TIRED: I'm with you. It's cruel to let the animal suffer. If your husband insists that you are wrong, get the vet's opinion. I'll bet he votes with us.

DEAR ABBY: I was recently married. My husband and I invited 200 people to our wedding reception; 140 said they were coming, so we put all the money we had into this wedding reception. Only 55 showed up. After the reception, my husband and I went to a local bar for a drink. About 30 of the people who accepted but didn't show up were at this bar. They gave us some money (with no cards) as a "wedding gift." We took it because we were so broke.

I think we should write thank-you notes to the people who handed us money, go to the bar, and hand them the thank-you notes just like they handed us the money. My husband thinks if we do this, we will be as ignorant as they are. I think we are being nicer to them than they deserve by thanking them at all.

What do you think? HURT

DEAR HURT: Since you weren't sufficiently "hurt" to refuse their gifts, you should acknowledge them properly—in writing, and through the mail.

Policy Could Stifle Debate

A considerable number of opinions are being voiced these days about whether the UNC Board of Governors new guidelines for chancellors is a muzzle regulation.

Some observers believe that it is perfectly all right to stifle the ideas that our state's university chancellors can offer to our citizens.

We are happy, though, to see that The Charlotte Observer views the proposed regulations as "reaching too far."

The Charlotte Observer was commenting on policies for "senior administrative officers" of the university system which the board is now considering.

A regulation, widely recognized as aimed at Dr. Leo Jenkins would limit chancellors on speaking out against policies adopted by the board. The Charlotte Observer saw the policy as "likely to stifle open debate and free speech within the university system. "They also could shorten the stature of future administrators of the university system; not only the chancellors, but also others in administrative positions."

The newspaper said it felt Dr. Jenkins has crossed the proper bounds by personally lobbying with legislators more than once. "But apart from that, we do not think he should have been forced to stay silent publicly on matters he thought were important to ECU and the eastern part of the state. He believes strongly in his institution, and he readily takes a position on matters important to North Carolina."

Well, The Charlotte Observer, like many major newspapers of the state, has often opposed Dr. Jenkins. It would have been easy for that newspaper to simply support the Establishment position on this muzzle policy. Instead it has taken a position against a policy that would suppress fresh ideas, and we think that is commendable.

North Carolina pays well to get some of the best minds in higher education to head up its universities. Under any circumstances these men should be free to make their thoughts known to the people of our state who, after all, pay for the entire system.

We don't need a Get-Jenkins or Get-Anybody-Else policy hanging over the state's university system. We do need more new and creative ideas and the Board of Governor's policies should be designed to encourage free comment—not stifle it.

Savings Won't Be Noticeable

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—To the average taxpayer, the goals of efficiency in state government spelled out by Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr., in a recent progress report will hardly be noticeable.

In the first place, claims of millions of dollars in savings in various departmental operations are generally offset by "increased services."

Secondly, no real economies can be brought about unless and until some drastic reductions are made in numbers of state employees on the payroll.

The Efficiency Study Commission which last October spelled out its recommendations took note of the employe situation in the first paragraph of its report:

"State expenditures have more than doubled in the last 10 years. . . . The number of full-time state employes, excluding public school teachers, rose from 42,000 to 69,000. . . . an alarming increase in government cost, coupled with a tremendous expansion of services."

Since that report was written, state expenditures increased again—tripling in the last 10 years, with the current fiscal year budget hitting $3 billion.

More Employes
And the numbers of employes continued to climb, despite a recommendation from the Efficiency Study Commission that about 3,000 job vacancies were on the books, and had been for more than 90 days, and ought to be eliminated.

Since October, however, the number of vacancies had increased to 6,000, and the total number of state employes authorized still stood at 69,000.

Actually on the payroll are 62,383 state employes. Salaries, fringe benefits, and related employe costs make up between 60 and 70 per cent of the total state budget; thus, knowledgeable experts argue that no real savings can be brought about until this area is attacked.

In addition to the outright costs of employes, other areas of the state budget also increase in proportion to numbers of workers: things like paper, desks, number of cars, miles driven in them, various supplies and equipment, etc.

Still, sources in the governor's office said the progress report doesn't mention numbers of employes because the subject is just too complex.

"We're still trying to get a handle on it. We really don't have any knowledge in this area, largely due to the decentralized nature of state government. It's really incredible, but we just don't have any way to really find out how many employes there are who could be trimmed in various offices," this source said.

And despite recommendations to trim back, the governor's budget for this fiscal year makes no note of efforts in that direction. It calls for continued expansion in numbers of employes, setting up nearly 2,000 new positions to be filled this year.

Dollars Go
On the other iffy part of the governor's view of governmental efficiency—what happens to the money saved—the progress report just completed takes great care to note that the money saved is going to three places:

First, a part is reverted to the state treasury, "allowing departments in some instances to reduce their budget requests to the next legislature, but not all of the dollars saved will be reverted," Holshouser said.

Part is used and will be used to "improve and expand the services provided by a particular department," and another part will help state government "cope with ever-rising costs and expenses—with inflation," the governor said.

In his report, the governor gave a concrete example of how saved money is used. "We've already replaced 180 standard-sized cars with compacts. From the savings. . . we were able to buy another 20 compact cars. In other words, we got 200 cars for the price of 180," Holshouser said.

Other examples are scattered throughout the report, with references by the governor to various agencies "achieving a better level of care," or to a department being able to "avoid having to go to the legislature and ask for several million dollars for a new building."

Thus, governmental observers say privately, that $52.5 million in saving brought about by efficiency is not likely to be put back into the taxpayer's pocket-book.

Nixon Warned To Obey Court

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—Just before leaving for the Moscow summit, President Nixon received this stern warning from an important Democratic ally in Congress: the most dangerous thing you can do is defy a ruling of the Supreme Court.

Such hardboiled realism from Capitol Hill conflicts with the view inside Mr. Nixon's inner circle, where outright defiance of a Supreme Court ruling to hand over subpoenaed tape recordings is considered a viable option. The warning duplicates advice by Vice President Ford and House Republican John Rhodes, but Mr. Nixon often seems more attentive to conservative Southern Democrats than his own Republican leadership. Thus, hearing the warning personally from a pro-Nixon Democrat could profoundly influence Mr. Nixon's decision.

The President received that advice because, threatened with impeachment, he uncharacteristically keeps in touch with key congressional supporters—particularly Southern Democrats. On the eve of his trip to the Soviet Union, he telephoned one such Congressman whose support is essential to Mr. Nixon's survival. The President's big question: How am I doing?

Much better, he was told. But, the Congressman went on, don't get yourself in contempt of the Supreme Court. In other words, if, following tomorrow's (July 8) hearing, the court orders Mr. Nixon to turn over tapes subpoenaed by special prosecutor Leon Jaworski, obey that order. Otherwise, it was implied, you may well be impeached.

Mr. Nixon replied that he fully intended to avoid winding up in contempt of the Supreme Court—a somewhat ambiguous answer which reassured his congressional supporter. Although Mr. Nixon sometimes gives replies in private conversation intended more to placate his questioner than reveal his intentions, the warning from Capitol Hill may push him toward compliance—even a recalcitrant, sluggish partial compliance.

Unreconstructed McGovernism Lives

While national chairman Robert S. Strauss's brilliantly conceived telethon last weekend was netting an estimated $4.5 million for a Democratic party seemingly reborn in unity after the debacle of 1972, McGovernites were demonstrating in two unlikely states—conservative Nebraska and Scoop Jackson's Washington—that they are alive and unreconstructed.

In the closing hours of last weekend's state convention at Norfolk, Neb., after more than half the delegates had gone home, the McGovernites won approval of unconditional amnesty for Vietnam draft-dodgers and civil rights for homosexuals (though endorsement of legalized marijuana failed narrowly). Approval of the amnesty and homosexual proposals after most delegates had left duplicated the script followed at the Maine state convention a month earlier.

The hoary technique of coming early and voting late barely failed last weekend at Richland, Wash., where Sen. Henry M. Jackson's forces beat down unconditional amnesty by only seven votes. However, a Jackson-opposed platform plank opposing further construction of nuclear power plants was approved.

Moreover, Jackson will not enjoy the total control of his state's delegation to the Kansas City midterm convention in December that he had at Miami Beach in 1972. Jackson's forces claim 22 out of 30 delegates elected, but McGovernites say they have 10 delegates and that four others will vote with them on policy questions at Kansas City. In Nebraska, an estimated 8 of 13 delegates are McGovernites well to the left of Gov. James Exon and most other Nebraskans.

These two latest state conventions provide new evidence that Kansas City, though more moderate than Miami Beach in 1972, will contain substantial McGovernite strength and cannot be easily controlled by Strauss and the regulars.

Strength For Today

FREE WILL
Whether human beings have free will or whether the course of their lives is determined by outside forces is a philosophical and theological question which has been argued since the days of the ancient Greeks. Perhaps the truth lies somewhere in between, as suggested by that old saying, "There is a destiny that shapes our ends, rough hew them though we may." Florence Nightingale expressed this approach well when she commented on the course of her life: "I am a person of very ordinary ability who has been led by God in strange and unaccustomed paths to do in his service what is done in me. An if I would tell you all, you would see how God has done all, and I had done nothing. I have worked hard, and I never refused God anything."

"God has done all. I have worked hard. I have never refused God anything." This may be the answer to the riddle of determinism. God does all, but we must work hard and refuse him nothing.

Bad Bill Necessary

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

The Senate performed an act of rough but regrettable justice on June 24, when it voted 82-9 to provide emergency loan guarantees for livestock producers. This was a bad bill. It was also necessary bill. Our governmental masters ought to learn something from this melancholy experience, but they probably won't.

The bill provides a federal guarantee for repayment of 90 percent of ten-year loans up to $350,000 made during the coming year to bona fide livestock producers. No direct subsidies are involved; borrowers themselves must pay normal interest. It is impossible to predict what the guarantee may cost the taxpayers. If markets stabilize, losses may be small. If chaotic conditions continue, this could cost us a bundle.

The bill is a bad bill for all the reasons advanced by Senators James L. Buckley of New York and Jesse Helms of North Carolina. Both senators have large rural constituencies. Both demonstrated a rare political courage in speaking against the measure.

"I vote against the bill," said Buckley, "because it continues the precedent of government propose that I believe to be dangerous and which I voted against in the case of Lockheed. Second, it will serve artificially to channel scarce credit to one sector of the economy at the expense of others, such as housing."

"There are several reasons," said Helms, "why in good conscience I cannot vote for this bill. The first, obviously, is the precedent it would set. Second, is the very real possibility that despite the best efforts to police its operation, this loan guarantee program could be misused and abused, thereby costing the taxpayers millions—perhaps billions—of dollars."

These are valid reasons. If it were not for other compelling circumstances, these would be convincing reasons.

Other Editors Say Balance Of Power

(Rocky Mount, Evening Telegram)

In a thoughtful article entitled "The Veto: Key To Effective Government," which appeared in the June issue of The Reader's Digest, Melvin Laird, former Secretary of Defense and chief domestic adviser to President Nixon, discusses the importance of the presidential power to veto legislation passed by Congress.

Laird speaks from his wealth of experience, both in the executive branch and as a congressman from Wisconsin for nine terms.

In his view, the veto is "the sole constitutional power a President has to prevent hasty or ill considered laws."

It is a positive tool of presidential leadership conducive to more reasonable and workable legislation.

It can save tax money and curb the passage of unwise legislation which might otherwise become the law of the land during a rush of majority enthusiasm, untempered by judicious consideration. Congress always has the final legislative word, of course, since it can pass a bill over a presidential veto by two thirds vote in both houses of Congress.

Some see the Watergate backlash as an opportunity to elect a "veto proof" Congress in the November elections.

Any such development which would, for a time, cripple the President's leadership ability and disrupt the balance of power between the executive and legislative branches would not be in the interest of good government.

Many of the institutions of government are under severe attack. As Laird observes, it is imperative at such a time that the American people "remember the solid record of accomplishment that our form of government—including the veto power—has achieved."

It is not a time to jump on some ill-conceived bandwagon aimed at undermining the constitutionally-granted and fundamental powers of the presidency.

Thrift Banks Future Uncertain

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP BUSINESS ANALYST
NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's thrift institutions think they're getting a raw deal from their big competitors, the commercial banks, and to some extent also from the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Federal Reserve.

The troubles have been developing for many months, but they are now coming to a head over the thrifts—savings banks and savings and loan associations—feel is a direct threat to their very existence.

The immediate issue is whether the holding companies that operate commercial banks should be permitted to offer millions of dollars of debt securities in small amounts, with floating interest rates.

The thrifts claim such offerings are aimed at attracting the holdings of individuals who ordinarily would keep their cash on deposit with them, at interest rates higher than available at commercial banks.

The thrifts, whose deposits supply the basic support for the home mortgage market, claim they already are in poor condition as matters stand, and cannot fulfill their role in the housing market.

The nation's mutual savings banks, for example, suffered a net deposit outflow of more than $900 million in April and May because of what they consider to be unfair regulatory restraints on their competitiveness.

They claim that the one-quarter interest rate advantage they enjoy over commercial bank savings accounts is hardly enough of an inducement to savers. They want broader service powers, such as the right to offer checking accounts.

When Citicorp, parent of First National City Bank, announced plans to offer corporate IOUs in denominations of $1,000, with interest at 1 per cent over the average rate of Treasury bills, the thrifts were alarmed.

They fired off letters of protest in every direction—to the head of Citicorp, the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Such activity by a commercial bank, they stated, was aimed at attracting the very customers that support the thrifts.

Norman Strunk, executive vice president of the United States League of Savings Association, said the offering "is a flagrant attempt to circumvent Regulation Q, establishes a dangerous precedent, and poses a serious threat to the stability of our nation's savings markets."

Easier, But Still Tougher

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has made it easier to sue newspapers than it has been for the last three years, but tougher than it was before that.

This is the view taking shape as libel lawyers study a complex decision handed down by the court June 25 in the case of a Chicago lawyer.

The lawyer, Elmer Gertz, sued because of an item in the John Birch Society publication American Opinion which described him as a "Communist-frontier" among other things.

A jury awarded Gertz $50,000 in damages, basing its verdict in part on an Illinois law which makes it "libel per se" to call a person a Communist.

Many states have such laws, providing that certain statements about a person are so opprobrious that if a publication makes them falsely, the person is entitled to damages without proving that the publication was negligent or that he was harmed.

U.S. District Judge Bernard M. Decker took a second look at the jury's decision in the light of previous rulings of the Supreme Court.

The court ruled in 1964 that public officials who sue for libel must prove that the item of which they complain was published in the knowledge that it was false or with reckless disregard of whether it was true.

In 1967, the court said this same rule should apply to "public figures." These are people who, although not public officials, are involved in public controversy. An example would be Angela Davis.

Gertz was neither of these, but Decker and the U.S. Circuit Court in Chicago decided the standard should apply to him anyway because the subject of the article — a supposed conspiracy to discredit police forces — was a matter of public interest. On this basis, they erased the jury's verdict.

The circuit court cited a 1971 decision of the Supreme Court which extended the tougher standard for libel suits to cover publications about issues of significant public interest, without regard to the prominence of the person allegedly defamed.

Gertz appealed. The Supreme Court, in a 5-4 decision, reversed the circuit court and erased its own conclusions in the 1971 case. It held that private individuals must prove only negligence, but they must prove that in order to collect damages for harm suffered by the libel. They must also show that they actually were harmed, although not necessarily financially. The harm could be loss of reputation.

The decision wiped out the traditional "no fault" or "per se" kind of libel. The effect on Gertz was that he no longer had to meet the same stiff requirements as a public official or public figure to sue American Opinion. But he did not get the $50,000, because at least part of it had been awarded without any finding of fault. Thus, the case was sent back to the district court for another trial.

The effect on other private individuals who might wish to sue newspapers also is a mixed bag.

Mass Murder Trial Underway In San Antonio With Confession

By JIM BARLOW
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — "I killed several of them myself with Dean's gun and helped him choke some others. Then we would take them and bury them in different places."

So reads a statement Elmer Wayne Henley, an 18-year-old high school dropout, gave police after his arrest in connection with the slaying of 27 young men in the Houston mass murders case.

The statement, taken last Aug. 9 by Sgt. David Mullican of the police department in the Houston suburb of Pasadena, was read into the court record Monday as testimony started in Henley's murder trial, being held here on a change of venue. Henley is charged with six of the slayings.

As the jury of six men and six women listened, Dist. Atty. Carol Vance read the statement in which Henley told of being paid $200 for each teen-aged male—many of them his friends and neighbors—he procured for Dean A. Corll, 33, who has been described by police as the leader of a homosexual torture and murder ring.

Henley said in the statement he gave Mullican that he helped kill and bury at least six of Corll's youthful victims.

Henley was arrested last Aug. 8 after he phoned police and told them he shot and killed Corll following an all-night sex and drug party at Corll's home in Pasadena. Corll's slaying was ruled self-defense.

Another youth, David Owen Brooks, 19, has been charged in four of the 27 deaths. Brooks' trial date has not been set.

Mullican and Pasadena policeman J.B. Jamison testified that Henley told them about the slayings and led them to 27 bodies, six of which remain unidentified. Their testimony came after District Court Judge Preston Dial denied 30 objections by defense lawyer Will Gray.

The bodies were discovered in a Houston boat shed, a wooded area near Lake Sam Rayburn in East Texas and on the beach at High Island.

Henley said in his statement to Mullican that he was introduced to Corll by Brooks when he was 14.

"Dean told me that he belonged to an organization out of Dallas that bought and sold boys, ran whores and dope and stuff like that. Dean told me that he would pay me $200 at least for every boy that I could bring him and maybe more if they were real good looking."

Henley said he refused then. But he said a year later he helped Corll lure a teen-ager to the Corll apartment and trick

President named a long-time government physicist, Dr. Harold M. Agnew, as chairman.

Mr. Nixon appointed Agnew over protests from Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who agrees with distinguished experts on the committee that the chairmanship should have gone to a nongovernment member. Kissinger's personal choice: John A. McCone, former head of the Atomic Energy Commission and the Central Intelligence Agency who is now a private citizen in California.

The President's selection of Agnew, for years head of the government's Los Alamos nuclear laboratories, was pressured by Roy Ash, head of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB). Long a friend of Agnew, Ash persuaded Mr. Nixon to make him chairman despite protests from Kissinger and some members of the committee. The outgoing chairman, John J. McCloy, could criticize the government's nuclear policy without having to worry about keeping government funds flowing to Los Alamos.

Critics of the Nixon administration's nuclear weapons policy believe Agnew's selection was designed to give the White House extra leverage on the work of the citizens' committee, helping block committee recommendations that might be contrary to White House policy.

It does not open up any new subjects for which a person can sue. Instead, it makes the burden of proof on him harder than it was before 1971, although easier than it has been since then.

The first word that the court had erased the protections to newspapers provided in its 1971 ruling dismayed many newspaper lawyers. But one, after studying the opinion, said, "if the court sticks to requiring a showing of fault, I think we'll have no trouble living with this."

The "reckless disregard" test still will govern in the case of private individuals suing for punitive damages — or money awards designed to punish the publisher of the libel rather than to redress the harm done the libeled.

To sum it up, the newspaper which innocently publishes a falsehood about a private person, even though taking precautions to be accurate, no longer need fear being forced to pay up simply because of the fact of publication. But, on the other hand, the private individual who wants to sue for his actual damages need no longer prove that the newspaper either knew the statement was false or recklessly disregarded whether it was.

"Then a day or so later I found out that Dean had killed the boy," Henley said in his statement. Henley said that before killing the youth, Corll had homosexually raped him.

"This was the start of the whole thing," the statement said. "And since then, I have helped Dean get other boys, I

Wind Up Preparation

ZVESDGORODOK, U.S.S.R. (AP) — A team of American astronauts wound up nearly three weeks of work with Soviet cosmonauts today in preparation for the Soyuz-Apollo flight just a year away.

Seated at the foot of a green-painted Soyuz training model at this space training center, Brig. Gen. Thomas P. Stafford, Apollo commander, said, "We're all looking forward to flying it."

Soviet authorities invited American correspondents to visit the center, about 20 miles northeast of Moscow in an area normally closed to foreigners, and talk with the spacemen.

Besides learning about each other's spaceships, the joint training sessions also are devoted to language and tasting each other's space food.

How is Russian space food? "Like ours," replied Donald K. Slayton, docking module pilot. "Some of it's good and some not so good."

Evening Program

The East Carolina Sheltered Workshop has started an evening recreation program for its overnight clients.

The six-week program is being coordinated by Sheila Brothers, a rehabilitative and therapeutic recreation major at East Carolina University. The activities have included nature walks, picnics, movies, basketball, arts and crafts, music and competitive games. Miss Brothers chose to do her fieldwork at the Workshop in an effort to initiate a recreational program that could be carried on with the assistance of the administration, she said.

The Workshop provides a daily program enabling handicapped persons to learn semi-skilled and skilled vocations.

In April, 1776, North Carolina became the first colony to empower its delegates to the Continental Congress to vote for a Declaration of Independence from Great Britain.

Research Tour Set July 15-18

The 1974 Research On Wheels Tour will be held July 15-18.

The tour consists of several stops throughout the tobacco producing areas of North Carolina to show soil fumigation, nematode, integrated disease control, and variety evaluation tests.

The tour will begin with a welcome dinner on Monday in Pilot Mountain. Tuesday stops include Surry, Stokes and Person Counties with a tobacco "pow-wow" that night. The tour plans to visit tests in Granville, Franklin, Edgecombe, Greene and Lenoir Counties on Wednesday.

A pig-picking will be held Thursday in Lenoir County for participants of the tour. Visits will be made in Lenoir, Sampson and Johnston Counties.

According to Kenneth R. Bateman, assistant agricultural extension agent, it is not necessary for participants to

Acting Supervisor

J.T. Little Jr., chairman of the Pitt County-City of Greenville Airport Authority, announced the appointment by the Authority of Ed Lee as acting airport supervisor.

Lee replaces Jim Darden who served as manager of the airport for the past ten years. Darden will now devote his time to his flight school at the Pitt-Greenville Air Service and his other personal interests.

Little emphasized that the Pitt-Greenville Airport is again at a point of anticipated growth and development. He noted that Wheeler Airlines has been very successful with its Greenville operations and expects to increase its service soon.

There are also other plans for further improvement of the airport to handle the expected increase in air traffic from the industrial growth of the area, he said.

Little said that Lee will "play an important part in the orderly growth and planned development of the airport."

Marketing Cards Are Being Issued

With flue-cured tobacco markets soon to open, marketing cards are now being issued by county ASCS offices. Growers are reminded that a marketing card is an official document and should be treated accordingly.

"It is very important that the sales entered on the card be only for tobacco grown on the farm for which the card is issued," stated Stacy J. Evans, Pitt County executive director of the Agricultural Stabilization Service.

Marketing cards for flue-cured tobacco are issued only for farms with marketing quotas. Space is included on the back of the card for recording sales as they are made. Legal action can be taken for using a marketing card for sales of tobacco not grown on the farm for which the card was issued.

Marketing quota penalties will be imposed for sale of tobacco in excess of 110 percent of the effective farm marketing quota shown on the card or for sale of tobacco without a marketing card.

Producers with tobacco in excess of their quota may be able to market it by leasing additional quota. County ASCS offices have full information on this procedure.

"At the same time that we are cautioning growers about misuse of marketing cards, we want to be certain the poundage balance is correct," Evans said. "It is a whole lot easier to correct a mistake immediately than to try to catch up with it weeks later."

But a couple of pertinent proverbs come to mind: Who calls the turn must pay the piper. As you make your bed, so you must lie in it. Who sleeps with dogs wakes up with fleas.

In the case of the livestock producers, government made this mess. In simple justice, it is now up to government to clean up the mess if it can. By interfering with normal marketing operations, through such fiascos as the Soviet wheat deal and the on-again, off-again price controls, government threw the market into turmoil. The government's purpose, presumably, was to improve foreign relations, and to protect consumers from rising food prices. Well and good. The purpose was fine, but the results were disastrous.

During the brief Senate debate, Minnesota's Senator Walter Mondale cited the entirely typical example of a cattle feeder from Blue Earth, Minn. He bought 44 steers last September at $395 per head. He spent $215 per head on feed and labor, making a total investment of $610. He sold the steers on April 8 for $471 per animal, for a net loss on each steer of $139. Multiply that experience by several million head of cattle, and the sum is catastrophe. Wyoming's Gale McGee puts the loss to livestock feeders in the past 10 months at $1.5 billion.

Governmental tinkering has staggered not only the livestock producers but other farmers also. Hog prices have dropped 43 percent since January. Chicken, turkey and egg producers face real threats of bankruptcy. A farmer in London, Ohio, recently wrote the Springfield Sun: "On Feb. 24, 1974, wheat at our local elevator was $6.62 per bu. We were then paying 57 cents per loaf of cracked wheat bread. On May 24, the price of wheat was $2.98 per bu., a 60 percent decline, and we were still paying 57 cents a loaf. I wonder what it would cost if we gave the wheat away?"

Buckley and Helms are right: The guaranteed loan bill is a bad bill. It sets a precedent—or at least adds to precedents—that no conservative can view with applause. But governments, like individuals, ought to be liable for the harm they do. When the roll was called up yonder, reluctantly and resentfully, I would have voted aye.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, hovering uncertainly at its lowest level in several years.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down .70 at 769.87, but gainers maintained a 6-to-5 lead over losers in relatively active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Prices opened on a firm note, with the Dow climbing more than 5 points in the session's first-half-hour in what analysts described as a typical technical rebound after a steep decline on Monday.

But brokers said it appeared continuing concern over record high interest rates and surging loan demand snuffed out the upswing quickly.

Monday's selloff in the face of those cost-of-money worries left the Dow and all the other popular averages at their lowest closing points since 1970.

Louisiana-Pacific led the Big Board's most-active list, down 1/4 at 12 1/2. A 120,000-share block traded at 12.

Capital Mortgage Investors was down 1/2 at 6. The real estate investment trust reported sharply lower second-quarter earnings.

Gold added to their broad gains of Monday. ASA, Ltd., was up 1/4 at 83 1/2; Homestake, 1/2 at 44 1/2; and Campbell Red Lake, 1 to 36 1/4.

The NYSE's 11 a.m. composite index of all its listed common stocks showed a .17 gain at 42.42.

On the American Stock Exchange, Williamhouse-Regency was the volume leader, unchanged at 4 3/4 in a 260,000-share block trade.

The Amex' market-value index was off .40 at 75.34.

Moose Takes City Crown

Cinderella, you've got nothing on the Moose.

They ended the regular season tied for fifth place, and subsequently lost the toss for fifth to put them in the cellar. They lost ten games, and won only five before tournament time.

Today they're City Champs. Ricky West's robbery of a Patrick Wilson's shot to center field in the third inning held the Optimists to one run instead of four, and gave the Moose a 5-1 win and the City Little League Championship.

West's catch came with two out in the inning after the Optimists had already picked up one run. Billy Dough walked, moved up on Jim Kernan's single, and reached third with Glen Moore's two-out single. Wilson hit his shot to center field where West reached over the fence to rob the home run and get pitcher Ashley Taylor out of a big jam.

The Optimists only got two baserunners for the remainder of the game, as well as only one hit, that in the sixth inning.

The Moose scored in the bottom of the first when Taylor led off with a double. He came around on an infield out and West's single. After the Optimist run in the third, the Moose took the lead for good when West walked after Mark Sasser reached when he was hit by a pitch. Sasser moved to third on a wild pitch, while West moved to second when David Carroll walked to load the bases. After a strikeout, Dwayne Allgood rapped into a fielder's choice to nail Sasser at the plate and still leave the bases loaded. David Vaughn rapped into an infield error to score West from third.

The Moose came up with two more in the fourth when Sasser singled, West doubled, and Carroll doubled to score both men. Their final run came in the fifth when Allgood reached on an error, moved up on Vaughn's double, and scored on an infield

Chicago Charities May Suffer As Result Of NFLPA And Stars

By JOE MOOSHIL
AP Sports Writer

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — The organized charities of Chicago could become the first casualty of the warfare between the 26 club owners of the National Football League and their striking veteran players.

The College All-Star Game, played under the auspices of Chicago Tribune Charities, will be canceled as of 4 p.m., EDT, Wednesday, the sponsor vowed Monday, unless the warring sides agree "to allow the game to be played without interference."

The cancellation threat followed the refusal of the All-Stars to practice unless the NFL Management Council, bargaining unit for the owners, and the NFL Players Association resume negotiations.

"No negotiations, no practices; no contract, no game," the All-Stars decided Monday after a 40-minute meeting.

And the executive director of the Chicago Tribune Charities, Luke Carroll, replied: "... unless an arrangement is worked out within 48 hours to allow the game to be played without interference, we shall be forced reluctantly to cancel."

The All-Star game, with the reigning Super Bowl champion Miami Dolphins scheduled to play the cream of the 1974 rookie crop this year, has been played every year since 1934 with $3.2 million raised and distributed to charity.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFLPA, called the All-Stars' decision "a great step forward by some men who are in a tough position ..."

Garvey said he had not been contacted by the federal mediator who conducted earlier negotiations, but "we are willing to go back to the table if the federal mediator wants us."

Meanwhile, John Thompson, the executive director of the NFLMC, said he had been asked earlier Monday by the federal mediator to resume talks and was willing to do so. Thompson said he didn't think the mediator had been able to contact Garvey.

Picketing by the NFL veterans—already going on at training camps for the Dolphins, Dallas Cowboys, Houston Oilers, and San Diego Chargers—was scheduled to start today when the New York Jets, New York Giants, Philadelphia Eagles and Green Bay Packers open their rookie camps.

Jim Finks, representing the NFLMC, and Garvey were key figures in talks which led to the All-Stars' decision. Garvey had met with the college players Sunday night for about two hours and Finks talked with them for about 50 minutes before their Monday meeting.

Finks reportedly left in tears after hearing of the players' decision and made himself unavailable for comment.

After the closed All-Star meeting, Dave Casper, a Notre Dame tight end bound for the Oakland Raiders, read a statement that said: "We the All-Stars, in light of the difficult situation we've been placed in, with a majority vote, will honor the picket lines by not practicing, until management and the National Football League's Players Association begin serious negotiation.

"We furthermore will refuse to play the All-Star game itself until a signed agreement is in effect."

"We'd like to play the game but not under these conditions," Casper said later. "Instead of people putting pressure on us, we decided to put pressure on them. We're not taking sides, we're in the middle of the road."

Dave Gallagher, a defensive lineman from Michigan who has signed with the Chicago Bears, said: "Casper was a big influence in the voting. Neither side had a decided effect on us. It was Casper's idea." Some players were unhappy with the decision and at least two reportedly voiced their objections to All-Star Coach John McKay of Southern Cal.

McKay said he would go on with a scheduled players' meeting Tuesday morning and a practice session Tuesday afternoon.

"This is like World War II," the Southern Cal coach said. "I've never heard so many rumors. No, I was not consulted when they (the All-Stars) took their vote. I didn't go to the meeting and had no intention of going to it."

"I have a feeling negotiations will start soon ... I'm going on that assumption. Even if we practice and Miami doesn't show, there wouldn't be a game anyway," McKay said.

Miami Coach Don Shula, in learning of the developments, said simply, "We'll have to wait and see what happens." He said he would continue practice sessions for rookies.

Meanwhile, two more Dolphins' veterans crossed picket lines in Miami and joined practice—offensive tackle Willie Young and wide receiver Charlie Wade, both on the taxi squad last season.

In the Dallas training camp at Thousand Oaks, Calif., four rookies left camp voluntarily. Coach Tom Landry said: "The attrition is about normal. When you get to two-a-days (practices), you find out quickly just how badly you want to play football." However, two of the rookies said they left camp because of the strike.

In Buffalo, O.J. Simpson, the NFL's most valuable player last season, said he will picket with the veterans Friday when the Bills open training camp.

In New York, Jim Kensil, an aide to NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, said cancellation of the charity game could cause Knotty legal problems.

"We have a contract with the charity, and our obligation as a league is to provide them with players. When the players signed their contract, they were obligated to play in the game."

Kensil also said the contract with Chicago Tribune Charities stipulates that if the players refuse to play in the game, they may not participate in any other preseason games. He said he was not sure, however, if the rule would apply in this situation and declined to discuss what he called the complex legal problems involved.

He said there is nothing the NFL "can do if the Trib wants to unilaterally cancel."

The players' vote and the reaction by the Chicago Tribune Charities dealt the NFL a serious blow as the fledgling World Football League prepared to launch its initial season Wednesday night.

John Thompson, executive director of the NFLMC, said the owners would be willing to discuss modification of the reserve and option clauses and the Rozelle rule, all at issue.

Messersmith Pitches Victory

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

"My record doesn't indicate how well I've pitched," says the Dodgers' Andy Messersmith, who happens to have a pretty fair record of nine wins, two losses and a 2.12 earned run average.

He'll get no argument from the Philadelphia Phillies, who were handcuffed 4-0 on just three hits Monday night before a national television audience. Messersmith did not allow a base hit until the sixth inning.

"Sure I was thinking of a no-hitter," he said. Then he added with a smile, "I was thinking no-hitter in the third inning. I always try to pitch a no-hitter. Let me see ... I've been trying for 17 years, since I pitched one when I was 11 years old."

Elsewhere in the National League, the San Francisco Giants trimmed the Montreal Expos 5-4 in 10th inning, the Atlanta Braves blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-0, the New York Mets edged the San Diego Padres 2-1 and the Houston Astros defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 4-1.

Chicago and Cincinnati were not scheduled.

In his last nine games, Messersmith has allowed just six earned runs for a minuscule 0.74 earned run average. He won five and lost one in that span, and the lone defeat was 1-0 on an unearned run.

Despite his success, Messersmith says he hasn't changed all that much from last season, when he was 14-10 with a 2.70 ERA.

Giants 5, Expos 4
Relief pitcher Randy Moffitt tripled home the winning run in the 10th inning for the Giants after leadoff man Mike Phillips had reached first on an error by Expo second baseman Larry Lintz.

Braves 5, Pirates 0
Atlanta's Max Leon, 1-2, making his first start of the season, blanked Pittsburgh on six hits, and the Braves took advantage of errors by Pittsburgh second baseman Rennie Stennett and left fielder Willie Stargell to score four unearned runs in the fourth inning.

Mets 2, Padres 1
Harry Parker and Bob Miller combined on a six-hitter and the Mets defense came up with three double plays in stopping the Padres.

Astros 4, Cards 1
Doug Rader smashed a two-run homer on an 0-2 count in the fifth inning to help Houston's Tom Griffin post his 10th victory of the season.

American League scores:
Kansas City 5, Boston 0; Minnesota 6, Detroit 2.

All Baker Wants Is A Chance In The NFL

MIAMI (AP) — As if in unison with professional football rookies across the nation, Mel Baker surveyed the Miami Dolphins' training camp and proclaimed, "All I want is a chance to show what I can do."

"I think I have the talent. It's up to me now to show them ... to do my thing," said the prospective wide receiver.

Baker, 23, who lives in Houston, thinks he can earn a spot on the defending Super Bowl champions. His chances are not hurt at all by a players' strike that ultimately could end in an abnormally high number of rookies landing spots on NFL squads.

"I first noticed Mel in our rookie camp last March," said coach Don Shula. "He showed some good speed and agility. He's got good size and appears able to catch the ball."

Baker, picked in the eighth round of the National Football League, was disappointed he wasn't picked higher.

"I think coming from a running team (Texas Southern in the Southwestern League) hurt me," he said. "My college credentials weren't as good as some of the guys picked ahead of me.

"But I'm here to show everyone that maybe I should have been picked ahead of some of those guys."

Baker was chosen to the all-conference team last year, despite only 19 receptions.

In a speed test Monday, he covered 40 yards in 4.3 seconds, a clocking which had Dolphin coaches checking their stop watches and smiling.

Minutes later, he ran another 40. In the Dolphins' first match race of the year Baker took on Olympic sprinter Rey Robinson of Florida A&M, a free agent and prospective wide receiver. Baker won by two strides.

Receivers who can block are a Shula trademark. He demands it. "Anybody can catch a ball," he screamed at an erring rookie, "but we want receivers who can hit."

TERMITES OR ANTS?

Don't be half sure. Call a professional pest control operator for an inspection today.

The potential damage to property from termites can exceed the damage from tornadoes, hurricanes and fire. This is why termite protection is as important as a homeowner's insurance policy.

Later, Shula added, "We're always looking for young people who will eventually be No. 1 but with Paul (Warfield) gone next year (to the World Football League), we'll need another receiver."

Baker, a 6-footer whose muscular 185-pound frame seems that of the classic receiver's mold, wants Shula to look no farther. "It's a long way back to Texas," he said.

Mom Persuaded Malone To Md.

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—An uncle of the highly sought high school basketball star Moses Malone indicated Monday that the player was convinced to go to Maryland by his mother.

In a telephone interview published in the Columbia, S.C., Record Monday, Charlie Hudgins of Petersburg, Va., also denied being offered money by Clemson University to help secure a car for his nephew as an inducement to sign with the Clemson Tigers.

Hudgins was quoted in the Record as saying Mrs. Malone convinced her son to accept Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell's offer. "I don't think everything's known. Moses did not want to go to Maryland, but Lefty Driesell got close to her, and there was just no changing her mind. She was helped to get a better job, which may have made up her mind," he said.

The uncle also said: "I want to clear this thing up. I have received reports that I got offers from Clemson, New Mexico and Oral Roberts, but none of it is true."

He said he never told anyone of illegal efforts to get him to influence Malone.

Farmville Takes SBR Victory

Farmville scored single runs in each of the last four innings to take a 4-1 victory over University Kiwanis in Senior Babe Ruth League action last night.

Farmville took the initial lead in the third when Jeff Cobb rapped into a fielder's choice, and came around on a single and two errors. They got their second run in the fourth when Marty Hobgood walked, stole second, reached third on an error, and came home on an infield out.

Their final two runs came in the fifth and sixth innings. Cobb reached on another fielder's choice, stole second, and scored on Tony Oakley's single. In the seventh, Hobgood singled, moved to second on a passed ball, stole third, and came home on a catcher's error.

UK's lone run came in the top of the seventh inning. Al Salisbury singled, Greg Sasser singled to move Salisbury up, and a pitcher's error brought Salisbury all the way from second.

Rookie Really Understands Strikes; Works With AFL-CIO

By RON BRACKEN
Centre Daily Times
Written for Associated Press

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — If there is one thing which Doug Allen understands more than football, it is strikes.

If you're confused by the issues involved in the National Football League players' strike, you're not alone. Allen doesn't completely understand them, either.

Allen was a star linebacker last season on Penn State's unbeaten, untied football team. He was a second-round draft choice of the NFL's Buffalo Bills.

Since Allen was graduated in December, he has worked for the AFL-CIO in Harrisburg, Pa., using his degree in labor relations.

Despite his labor education and his AFL-CIO experience, Allen admits he's confused by the NFL-Players confrontation.

"As I see it," Allen says, "the Players Association is caught in a bind. It's trying to act like a tough, unified, militant union like the Steelworkers, the Auto Workers or the CIO in the 1930s."

"They're trying to come up with an individual solution to a fantasy world problem. Most pro sports are more or less a diversion to most of the guys. They know that the average career is something like four or five years."

Another problem, he says, is communications: "It's tough to communicate when you have a bargaining unit which is spread out all over the country, and only has a few thousand people involved. And that number changes from year to year."

"And what's more, the Players Association has never acted like a real union. It can't until it eliminates the individual contract. Until that happens it won't be like the steelworkers, who say they're going to shutdown the plant."

Allen says the rookies are in a tough position, caught between the Players Association, which has to keep the rookies out to make the strike effective and the rookies' desire to make the team.

"... And there's something else to consider," he adds. "A lot of rookies who got bonuses for signing are under obligation to report ... on time."

"If they don't, the club is not legally obliged to pay the bonuses. Quite a few of the rookies who got bonuses have already spent all or part of it, which means if they don't report to camp, they'd be forced to pay back money they're already spent. It puts us between the rock and the hard place, especially the ones who are married and have a family."

Allen notes that the position of rookies is even more uncomfortable, since they don't belong to the union. Rookies aren't admitted to the Players Association until they make the team.

Allen adds, however, that his sympathy is with the union.

It's the only game in town at the moment—but how good is the game and who's going to be there to find out? Thousands of fans in Philadelphia, Orlando, Birmingham, Chicago and Memphis will find out Wednesday night, when the World Football League begins play.

And the rest of the country will find out Thursday night, when the league plays its first televised game.

Without so much as one exhibition game under its belt, the new league is challenging the established but strikebound National Football League for the fans' attention and ticket money.

With a brand-new gold-and-orange ball and both new and old players, Gary Davidson, president of the league he was only dreaming about less than a year ago, predicts attendance exceeding 40,000 at some games.

Davidson created the American Basketball Association in 1967 and the World Hockey Association in 1972. Both of them, regarded by many as stepchildren to the older, entrenched leagues, are still struggling for fans and stability. Franchises sometimes seem to shift or die as often as the wind.

Now comes the WFL. It's sort of like 1960 revisited. That's when the American Football League was born.

After about five years of gasping for breath, the AFL suddenly became for real when one of the three major television networks dumped $38 million into it for a five-year contract. Two years later, the AFL was able to force a merger with the NFL.

The WFL has a TV contract, too, but hardly as lucrative. It's reportedly worth about $1 million, provided by TVS, an independent network which will televise one game each Thursday night to local stations around the country.

A few NFL veterans jumped this year to the new league and the WFL did sign a few promising stars in the collegiate draft.

The league is banking on making it through this first season. In 1975, Larry Csonka, Craig Morton, Calvin Hill and Daryle Lamonica and other NFL stars will vault to the WFL. For now, though, the WFL will have to make do with some ex-NFL players coaxed out of retirement, a number of NFL players, mostly reserves, who played out their contracts, some Canadian Football League imports and a crop of collegiate rookies.

Wednesday night's games are the Portland Storm at the Philadelphia Bell in John F. Kennedy Stadium, the Honolulu Hawaiians at the Florida Blazers in Orlando's Tangerine Bowl, the Southern California Sun at the Birmingham Americans in Legion Field, the Houston Texans at the Chicago Fire in Soldier Field and the Detroit Wheels at the Memphis Southmen in Memorial Stadium.

The WFL is tossing some innovations at the fans, many designed to open up the game, which disgruntled NFL fans say has become an exercise in punting, place-kicking, running and futility.

Rather than try to buck the NFL on Sundays, or the colleges on Saturday, the WFL decided to jump into the vacant evenings.

They'll play on Wednesday and Thursday nights up to Nov. 29, date of the World Bowl championship game in Jacksonville, Fla.

Perry Loses Bid For 16th; Oakland Wins In 10th, 4-3

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

"It's all over."

The speaker was Gaylord Perry and those three little words told the whole story of Monday night's heartbreaking 4-3 10-inning loss to the Oakland A's after the Cleveland Indians' right-hander came within two outs of tying the American League record of 16 consecutive pitching victories.

Elsewhere, the Baltimore Orioles nipped the California Angels 6-5, the Kansas City Royals blanked the Boston Red Sox 5-0, the Minnesota Twins downed the Detroit Tigers 6-2, the Milwaukee Brewers edged the Chicago White Sox 6-5 in 12 innings and the New York Yankees trounced the Texas Rangers 12-5.

"It's all over."

There wasn't much else a dejected Perry could say. He blew a 3-2 lead with one out in the ninth inning when Joe Rudi tripled and Gene Tenace, who had tagged him for a two-run homer in the second inning, delivered the tying run with a sacrifice fly.

Perry allowed six hits, struck out 13 and walked only two, but one was to pinch hitter Pat Bourque, leading off the 10th. Pinch runner John "Blue Moon" Odom got around to third on a sacrifice and an infield out and designated hitter Claudell Washington, a 19-year-old rookie starting his first major league game, drilled a slider through the left side of the Cleveland infield for a single and the winning run.

It was Perry's second loss and his first since opening day. Perry was trying to match the 16-win record set by Walter

Johnson and Smoky Joe Wood in 1912 and equaled by Lefty Grove in 1931 and Schoolboy Rowe in 1934.

Orioles 6, Angels 5
Baltimore erupted for five first-inning runs and used Wayne Garland's 4 1-3 innings of hitless relief to send the skidding Angels to their ninth consecutive defeat and eighth under Manager Dick Williams.

Royals 5, Red Sox 0
Steve Busby shut out slumping Boston on three hits and Tony Solaita slammed a three-run double.

Twins 6, Tigers 2
Eric Soderholm's two-run homer highlighted Minnesota's four-run second inning against Woody Fryman. That was enough for Bert Blyleven, who checked the Tigers on seven hits. Brewers 6, White Sox 5

Mike Hegan's two-run pinch homer in the 12th inning off reliever Stan Bahnsen lifted the Brewers to victory.

Yankees 12, Rangers 5
Chris Chambliss ripped a three-run double, Bobby Murcer drove in three more with a homer and an infield out and Dick Woodson pitched 5 2-3 shutout innings of relief for New York.

National League scores: Los Angeles 4, Philadelphia 0; Houston 4, St. Louis 1; San Francisco 5, Montreal 4 in 10 innings; Atlanta 5, Pittsburgh 0; New York 2, San Diego 1. Chicago and Cincinnati were not scheduled.

The Winds Of England May Decide British Open

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

LYTHAM ST. ANNE'S, England (AP) — The wind whips in from off the Irish Sea, filling the air with a pungent salt spray. It blows and blows. The gusts gambol across the dunes.

One moment, the sun shines. It is hot and still. The next moment, without notice, the squalls move in. They are capricious, bone-chilling.

The fairways are narrow and so bumpy they look like a graveyard for dinosaurs. When the ball hits one of the small hillocks, who can tell which way it will bounce. Dandelions grow ankle-high. The bunkers, originally constructed by animals as protection against the elements, are myriad and murder.

Such are the hidden perils on the Royal Lytham Links, scene of the British Open Golf Championship, which begins Wednesday.

"It's two different games," said Hale Irwin, the new U.S. Open champion. "American golf and British golf—they're not related."

"In the United States, we play courses that are immaculately manicured. We almost always have a visible target. When we hit a ball we have a pretty fair idea of where it is going and what it will do when it gets there.

"Not here. The course is largely in its primitive state. The targets are hidden. With all those mounds on the fairways, you can hit a perfect shot and not know how the ball will bounce. And there are always the elements—you play the wind and the rain, as well as the course."

Irwin is one of 156 who will tee off in the 103rd British Open Championship over the aged course, built in 1886 and hardly changed over the years.

TV Debate

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP)—Commissioners from 11 college athletic conferences are attending a five-day meeting which opened Monday with discussion of television coverage of basketball.

Two major producers, Eddie Einhorn of T.V.S. and C. D. Chesley of the company bearing his name, appeared before the meeting of the Collegiate Commissioners Association.

The commissioners also considered changes in the constitution, but no final action was taken.

Nicklaus, Trevino Agree Bounces Could Cause Golfers Anguish

By RONALD THOMSON
Associated Press Writer

LYTHAM ST. ANNE'S, England (AP) — Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino agreed today that Royal Lytham sets up "funny bounces" that can drive a golfer to despair in pursuit of the British Open Championship.

As light rain fell over the 6,822-yard links beside the Irish Sea, Nicklaus announced his personal scenario for the 72-hole test beginning Wednesday.

"I want to get a solid lead in the first round—and just stay there, out in front," he said. "But those funny bounces are something to worry about."

Trevino, who remains a favorite with the British golf fans, was in his breeziest form in advance of the title chase over the uncompromising par-71 layout.

"It's true," Trevino said. "The ball does bounce a little crazy at times out there."

The wind crashing in from the sea in this northwest corner of England has something to do with it. But in addition, Royal Lytham has built-in problems for even the average golfer—thick rough, tough traps and blind holes.

Nicklaus, 34, seeking his third British Open Title in the 103rd year of the championship, was listed by Britain's legal bookies as the 5-1 favorite among 156 players.

Gary Player of South Africa was second choice at 8-1.

Johnny Miller, thin blond sensation of the 1974 U.S. tour, also was listed at 8-1. Trevino was rated 10-1 and Tom Weiskopf, the defending champion, was at 12-1.

Weiskopf was nursing a hairline fracture of his left thumb and said the injury was a bit painful although not serious.

"This is a great course," said the rangy Weiskopf, "better than Troon or St. Andrews." Hale Irwin, surprise winner of the U.S. Open at Winged Foot, played a couple of cautious practice rounds and said:

"I think I'm close to playing well. This is a course that demands good driving. As it happens, I'm not driving too well right now."

The winner of the four-day tournament, listed brashly by the British as "The Open" as though no other such championship exists, will earn $13,200.

That's small money in comparison with the United States where the purses range much higher. But there's prestige beyond cash in taking the British title.

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Browns' football training camp opens Sunday and the Browns have eight remaining veterans to sign plus the players' strike to worry about.

Browns owner Art Modell said Monday that John Demarie and Bubba Pena both signed multiyear contracts, leaving eight veterans unsigned.

Demarie, who begins his eighth season with the Browns, underwent surgery for a torn shoulder muscle during the winter. Pena underwent knee surgery last summer after he was injured in a preseason game. He begins his third season in a Browns uniform.

The Worry Clinic

A 'Goose Quill' Carries Impact

Enid can zoom her influence on Congress 10,000-fold by using the newspaper tear sheet method below. For "Men wearing rapiers are afraid of goose quills," said Shakespeare. One newspaper page beats a bushel of postcards or personal letters!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

CASE A-680: Enid G., aged 28, runs a small flower shop. "Dr. Crane," she confessed, "I never went to college so I have always had somewhat of an inferiority complex. "But I have made a fair success of the floral business. "However, I get irate at many of the nuisance taxes and other stumbling blocks that Congress places on us small employers. "For example, 3 of my friends who operated retail businesses, have finally sold out. "They now have taken salaried jobs with big factories, saying it is much easier and more profitable to put in an easy 40 hours on a big corporation's payroll than to face the headaches of running their own business and then being forced to fill out government forms and collect the taxes from their employees.

"Dr. Crane, I often would like to tell our state legislators as well as Congress how I feel. "But I am a poor writer. "Yet I occasionally read newspaper editorials and columns which voice my ideas perfectly.

"How can I help get more of their sound business gumption into our legislatures?"

Enid minimizes her own intelligence, as well as her skill in presenting ideas.

For you will note that her comments to me are very well expressed.

Remember, you don't need to be a political scientist nor nationally known writer, to wield tremendous "print pressure" on Congress.

So follow these practical ideas to add weight to your views:

(1) Send a brief (150-word) letter to your local newspaper editor, making terse, specific statements about your views.

Use the booklet below to "package" your ideas in a striking, attention-attracting format.

For "eye-appeal" is worth half the battle nowadays regarding printed matter.

(2) If your editor then prints your letter, as he likely will, tear out the entire page (not just your clipped letter).

Mark your letter in red or green pencil.

Then enclose that full page in an envelope, addressed to your U. S. Senators and Representative.

Add "Senate Office Building" or "House Office Building" at Washington, D.C. 20515.

Remember, your letter will gain far more weight if you leave it on the full newspaper page! For it then partakes of the greater prestige of the daily newspaper!

For it thus means 10,000 or 1,000,000 voters back home have seen it!

And politicians are moved by newspaper tear sheets far more than by personal letters!

The latter often come in by the bushel so the Congressman usually never sees them, for his office girls scan them.

But his assistants don't fail to lay a newspaper page before him!

"Men wearing rapiers," said Shakespeare, "are afraid of goose quills."

Which means that the pen (typewriter or linotype) is mightier than the sword.

The President, Governors and Legislators snap into action when newspaper publicity involves them.

And a newspaper averages over 3 readers per issue, so a local paper of but 10,000 circulation has about 35,000 readers!

Send for my booklet "How to Write Salable Copy (& Letters)", enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Andy Williams Philosophical After Half-Million Dollar Loss

By BOB THOMAS Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I don't know anyone in show business who has enough financial know-how to make wise investments. We simply have to take other people's advice. And this time we all were duped."

Singer Andy Williams was reflecting philosophically on his $538,000 investment in an oil swindle that lost millions for entertainment figures as well as leaders of the business world.

He pointed out the financial vulnerability of stars who make big money in a brief period.

"When a performer made a big bundle and faced paying 80 per cent in taxes, he got frantic," said Williams. "He never knew when the money would stop coming in."

"Naturally he looked for ways to keep some of the money."

Williams was speaking of times before the tax was limited to 50 per cent of earned income. Then the business agents and financial advisers of the stars recommended tax shelters.

One of the most attractive of such investments seemed to be the Home-Stake Production Co. of Tulsa, Okla.

Late last month, it was disclosed that Home-Stake was an elaborate, high-powered swindle. Its list of investors included Jack Benny—$300,000, Liza Minnelli—$231,000, Bob Dylan—$78,000 and Barbra Streisand—$28,500.

Most of the victims had never seen the oil wells that were supposed to save their highly taxable earnings. The stars relied on the advice of their investment counselors.

"My people looked into it thoroughly, even made trips to oil fields in Caracas," says ballad singer Bobby Gentry, who invested $98,000 in Home-Stake. "An independent accounting firm even made a report on the company. It was a highly sophisticated operation."

"How do you guard against being taken again? How indeed! Everyone believed in it."

What can performers learn from the Home-Stake fiasco? "I've known for quite a while that there are no good tax shelters left," said singer Williams, "not unless you want to take a lot of risks."

"In the days of high tax rates, we used to say we would be satisfied to be a 50-50 partner with Uncle Sam."

"Now that there is a 50 per cent limit on earned income, you might as well pay the taxes and not look for shelters."

Williams added that his losses will not be too great if the Internal Revenue Service allows the tax write-offs to remain.

"But I've heard the IRS may disallow the deductions on the basis that the money wasn't put into the ground," the singer said.

"If that happens, I'm going to be singing 'Moon River' a little more."

The bidding:
South West North East
1NT Pass 3NT Pass
Pass Pass

Opening lead: Seven of ♣ South took elaborate precautions to keep the danger hand off lead and was well rewarded when he brought home a game that would have failed with less thoughtful play.

The auction presented no problems. South had a balanced hand of 16 points, so he did not consider any bid other than one no trump. With 10 points in high cards and his length in the minor suits, North saw no reason to look for a contract in any other strain, and his lead to game closed the auction.

West made the textbook lead of his fourth-best spade, and the nine from dummy fetched East's queen. Declarer made his first good play when he allowed the lady to win the trick. He was giving up nothing, for his combined king-jack still constituted a certain trick in the suit. East had nothing better to do than continue spades. West won the ace, and returned the ten to force out declarer's king. On this trick, East discarded a diamond.

Declarer now had seven tricks in top cards, and the club suit was the only place to develop the two tricks he needed. The play to this point had shown that West still had two good spades, so it was imperative to keep him off the lead. Declarer could afford to give up two club tricks to East if necessary, for he needed only to establish two extra tricks in the suit, but he could not afford to have West win a club.

Thus, the play in the suit became automatic. Declarer ran the nine of clubs. East won the jack and shifted to a heart. Declarer won, cashed the ace and queen of diamonds, and led a club to the queen. When this held it was a simple matter to cash the ace of clubs, picking up West's king, and so make four club tricks for an overtrick.

Note that if declarer had won the first trick with the king of spades, he would have been defeated, for East would have a spade to return after winning the jack of clubs, and West would have scored four spade tricks. Also, had declarer finessed the queen of clubs on the first lead of the suit, West would have been able to win the third club and take his spades to set the contract.

Customs Surcharge Overstepped Bounds

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. Customs Court has ruled that President Nixon overstepped his authority in ordering a 10 per cent surcharge on dutiable imports in 1971. It said the government must refund $500 million to importers.

A Justice Department official says the decision probably will be appealed.

A special three-judge Customs Court panel ruled unanimously on Monday that in imposing the surcharge Nixon "used a power beyond the scope of any authority delegated to him by the Congress."

The surcharge, designed to reverse an unfavorable balance of payments with foreign nations, was part of Nixon's Phase I economic controls and remained in effect four months.

"Neither need nor national emergency will justify the exercise of a power by the Executive not inherent in his office nor delegated by the Congress," wrote Chief Judge Nils A. Boe in the main opinion.

The government has 60 days in which to file an appeal with the Court of Customs and Patent Appeals in Washington. No refunds would change hands until such an appeal is ruled on.

The surcharge was in effect from Aug. 16 to Dec. 20, 1971. It was lifted after a number of foreign countries agreed to currency adjustments that would help the United States with its balance of payments problem.

It was the Yoshida case which was decided on Monday.

Although importers successfully protested to the government that they should be allowed to pass on the cost of the extra duty to consumers, the importers do not appear to be under any requirement to similarly pass along to consumers the refunds they may get, a Treasury Department spokesman said.

Nixon Narrows Choice For New Veteran Head

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has narrowed his search for a new veteran's administrator to four possible nominees, whose names are being circulated among veteran groups by White House aides, sources say.

One knowledgeable administration official singled out Earl Brian, a 32-year-old Vietnam veteran and associate of California Gov. Ronald Reagan, as the current White House favorite.

But the officials said Brian's chances for nomination could be reduced by opposition from key House and Senate Democrats—a possibility confirmed by congressional sources.

A White House spokesman said Nixon hopes to announce soon a successor to Donald Johnson, who resigned amid a controversy over delivery of veterans services and benefit checks.

One source said veterans organizations were told in early June that announcement of Nixon's decision was imminent. But the timetable apparently was thrown off by Nixon's travels overseas during the past four weeks.

The White House spokesman would not discuss details of Nixon's search for a successor to Johnson, other than to say the matter is receiving the President's personal attention. According to several sources, however, this list of four names has been circulated among veterans organizations:

—Brian, who headed California's Education and Welfare Agency before running unsuccessfully this year for the Republican nomination for Democrat Alan Cranston's Senate seat.

—Lt. Gen. Leo Benade, a Pentagon personnel expert due to retire in August as deputy assistant secretary of defense for manpower.

—Richard Roudebush, a former Indiana congressman who became deputy VA administrator after losing a 1970 bid to unseat Democratic Sen. Vance Hartke.

—And Navy Admiral Isaac Kidd, now commander of the Navy Materiel Command.

Jones To Be Speaker Love More Important

WILSON—Dr. Bob Jones, chancellor of Bob Jones University, Greenville, S.C., will be the featured speaker at a banquet for alumni, students and other friends of the university to be held in Wilson Friday, July 19.

This is one of 37 banquets scheduled throughout the United States this summer.

The Eastern North Carolina banquet will be held at the Wilson Christian School, County Road 1158 and 1157 intersection at 7:15 p.m.

In charge of local arrangements and reservations is Miss Jerri Connelly, 606 E. Ninth St., Greenville, N.C., telephone 758-0983.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Dr. Benjamin Spock says he grew up "afraid of parents, teachers, barking dogs and babies" and is glad to see the current crop of youngsters can't be intimidated.

The famous baby doctor said today's parents have learned that love is more important than punishment in creating good character.

"Children by themselves want to grow up to be like their parents," he said in an interview. "Parents learned to have trust in their children and they didn't have to intimidate them."

Stokes Honors

STOKES—Students at Stokes Elementary School who made the honor roll for the entire school year have been named by Principal Matthew Lewis.

Students qualifying include: David Purvis, Michelle Gilbert, Annette Leggett, Gentry Sneed, Alfred Braxton, Michelle Ward;

Gay Singleton, Patty Roebuck, Woody Leggett, Peggy Hayes, Felicia Gilbert and Jane Harrison.

Disturbed Children Are Facing Eviction

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP)—Seven emotionally disturbed children undergoing training in a special state program face eviction from a 26-room mansion because of what a town official says is an effort to beat the state.

C.A. McLaughlin, a member of this resort community's town council, said in an interview he resented the state Department of Human Resource's decision to create the pilot program in Southern Pines for its new "family-style" training program for disturbed youngsters.

McLaughlin was a leader in the council's move to oust the children from Duncaig Manor, a 17-acre estate donated to the state by Constance M. Baker of Stuart, Fla. Mrs. Baker once used the estate and its palatial mansion as her summer home.

"We're after the state agency for ignoring our ordinance. They are trying to use the kids to get us to change our ordinance. Where do we stand when anyone can come in and break our ordinance?" McLaughlin said.

The ordinance is a zoning regulation that allows hospitals, sanitariums and other specified institutions to operate. It specifically excludes any type of institution not mentioned.

A children's training center was not mentioned in the ordinance, but state officials contend they were given approval from Southern Pines authorities before accepting Mrs. Baker's donation. One of those who approved the center's creation was Mayor Earl Hubbard, who since has voted with the majority of the council to force closing of Duncaig Manor.

The center opened in October 1973. A month later it was told by the Southern Pines Zoning Commission that it was in violation of the institutional ordinance.

That order followed complaints from at least two affluent citizens who live in the Duncaig Manor neighborhood. They have objected to the presence of the disturbed children.

One of the complaining citizens, Clyde L. Sullivan, operates a horse farm near Duncaig Manor. He has been a frequent critic of the center, but when he was contacted recently and asked for an explanation of his stand, he hung up the telephone.

An appeal of the closing order was denied by the town council and the center now faces an Aug. 27 eviction notice. That order is subject to a civil suit filed by Mrs. Baker in U.S. District Court challenging the legality of the ordinance. A hearing on the suit will be held in Greensboro Aug. 1.

Cecil Brown, director of the center, said the children admitted to Duncaig Manor undergo specific screening before their acceptance. He said the children, who range in age from 8 to 18, have problems of an emotional nature but do not require confinement in a restrictive institution.

"They may be hyperactive, withdrawn, aggressive, but we don't have any aggressive in the sense that they are dangerously aggressive," Brown said.

"For the most part they are having trouble getting along in the school system, getting along with their parents or any number of other reasons. But it's generally a matter of not being able to cope with the pressures of society," he said.

He added, "We've never had any reports of trouble."

Chief Is Charged

GIBSONVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Five men, including former Police Chief Donald Bindyke, now have been charged in the alleged attempt to firebomb the automobile of Harold Younger, mayor of this Alamance County town.

The bomb, described in a warrant as a jar containing gasoline and a lighted fuse, was thrown at the mayor's car June 10 but did not explode.

Bindyke, 49, was fired June 24 after asking the town council to back him in a dispute with some citizens.

He was arrested Monday and placed under $5,000 bond on a warrant alleging that he conspired with former police Sgt. Steve Montgomery, 22, and Gregory Zane Moon, 19, to "willfully and maliciously attempt to damage" the mayor's 1967 model car with an incendiary device.

Montgomery had been arrested last Friday while vacationing in Morehead City. He first was charged with aiding and abetting in the use of an incendiary device but the charge was amended Monday to conspiracy.

Moon also was charged Monday with conspiracy. He had been arrested last week on a charge of malicious use of an incendiary device.

Given Promotion

CHARLESTON, S.C.—Cadet Marion Ernest Taylor Mosier of Greenville, N.C., has received a promotion within the South Carolina Corps of Cadets at The Citadel for the 1974-75 academic year.

As a senior, he will hold the rank of first lieutenant and will serve as provost marshal on the Fourth Battalion staff.

Cadet Mosier is enrolled in the Navy ROTC program and majors in history at the military college.

Last year he was one of 14 students to gain coveted membership in the Junior Sword Drill, a precision saber unit.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D.W. Mosier of Rt. 1, Greenville, N.C.

CIA Interference Charged After Ex-Agent Writes Expose Of Group

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — An American Civil Liberties Union lawyer says the CIA meddled in the personal affairs of an ex-agent who has written what he says is an expose of CIA's Latin American operations.

Melvin L. Wulf, an ACLU lawyer who has corresponded with the former agent Philip B.F. Agee, said Monday night: "CIA tried to interfere in the settlement of the separation proceedings with his wife, to make it difficult to reach a settlement."

Wulf said he thought the CIA intended to lure Agee back to the United States, where the CIA could go into court in an effort to prevent disclosure in his book of secret information. Wulf is representing two former intelligence officials now in a court battle with CIA over publication of secret information in their book.

John Greaney, assistant general counsel for the CIA, refused to comment on Wulf's remarks Monday night.

The CIA has described the Agee affair as a threat to its Western Hemisphere operations. An official source has said that when CIA learned of three trips the former agent made to Cuba since becoming disenchanted with the agency, a review was made of what Agee knew and defensive measures were taken to terminate projects and move undercover persons or arrangements in Latin America.

The official source said it was presumed the ex-agent was forthcoming in Havana. But there was no indication that CIA had evidence that any secret information was given the Cubans.

Agee, 39, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview Monday from Great Britain that he has completed a 200,000-word manuscript describing

"what we did in Latin America, why we did it."

Wulf said the Penguin publishing house in London was planning to print the book this fall.

Agee worked as a deep cover agent for CIA in Ecuador, Uruguay and Mexico from 1960 to 1969, when he resigned, according to a source outside government who has corresponded with him.

Agee said former CIA director Richard Helms "sent a man over to visit me in 1971 in Paris. He wanted to know what was going on." Agee would not discuss other incidents.

Agee on Monday would not talk about details in his book but said the CIA's role in Latin America is to keep insurgent movements below a level requiring the United States to send in troops.

"What we did in Latin America and what we do in so many other countries of the third world is similar to what the United States did in Vietnam," Agee said. "But it is on a lower level; it is not visible."

"It is all under the rubric of counterinsurgency," he said. "The agency's job is to keep the level of insurgent activity below the point which requires sending in troops as we did in Vietnam and the Dominican Republic."

Agee said this "has the result of strengthening minority governments, which perpetuate great wealth for a few and widespread poverty. It has the result of strengthening injustice."

Agee said he had written the book because "I decided the American people should know what we do and make a more conscious decision as to whether they want to continue it."

Marijuana Arrest

James Alvin Little, 17, of 110 Woodside Dr. was arrested about 1:45 a.m. today on charges of selling and distributing marijuana, according to Chief Glenn Cannon.

According to the official, Greenville police took Little into custody today in connection with a Saturday incident.

Bond for Little was set at $500 pending disposition of the case in court.

Zone Group Will Meet

The Joint City-County and Greenville Planning and Zoning Commissions will hold a special call meeting Wednesday night to consider business that was not acted upon at the June session.

Items scheduled for consideration by the joint board include: adoption of rules of procedure; an amendment to the zoning ordinance; the annual report; Sediment Control Ordinance; zoning amendment which would raise rezoning advertisement fees; and rezoning of Windy Ridge Subdivision from RA-20 to R-9.

The Greenville board will discuss a revised preliminary plat of River Hills Estates, located on the Washington Highway across from Pinewood Memorial Gardens, and the final plat of Windy Ridge Subdivision.

No official action was taken on agenda items at the June 26 meeting since a quorum was not present. The regular July meeting of the planning boards will be on July 24.

Improvement Course Helped Newest Dragon

By PAUL RECER
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Dimmie Johnson, elected a Grand Dragon of the Ku Klux Klan at 19, says he owes it all to a Dale Carnegie personality improvement course.

Johnson, a Houston machinist, said the course "has really helped me in the Klan work. I've shown a great improvement."

He was elected Grand Dragon of the Texas Fiery Knights of the Ku Klux Klan at a meeting Sunday in Dallas. Johnson beat out two other men for the No. 2 post in the Fiery Knights behind Imperial Wizard Scott Nelson of Houston, who estimates membership at 200.

Johnson said he has been in the KKK about a year and is anxious to use his new position to improve the image of the organization.

"Our major problem in public relations is the image of the Klan," he said Monday in a telephone interview.

"We're trying to stay away from this violent sort of thing. Every now and then we get somebody in who wants this violence thing, but I don't know anybody in it now who believes that way, although we're not going to be pushed around by other people."

He said he joined "because I'm a white racist and I believe in the separation of the races and I believe the Klan is the best way of achieving that goal."

Johnson said he's the only member of his family in the Klan and his parents "are not used to the idea."

Johnson, a bachelor, said his active membership in the Klan hasn't affected his personal life, but he said, "I don't find many girls who think as I do on this. A girl won't expand on racist ideas as readily as a man will."

He said some Klan members have had trouble with employers, but he said there's been no noticeable effect at the sheet metal firm where he works.

"I'm planning on running for political office one day, probably as a state legislator," he said. "I don't know if the Klan will help or not."

Tanaka May Be Ousted

TOKYO (AP) — Pocketbook issues were cited today as the major factor in the setback for Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka's ruling conservative party in the senatorial elections Sunday.

Although it was much too soon for solid developments in the factions of the Liberal Democratic party, there was speculation that there might be a move to replace Tanaka as party leader and prime minister.

Still unofficial results from the election of half the membership of the House of Councillors of the Diet gave the Liberal Democrats 126 seats, just half the total in the upper chamber and a drop of eight from their previous holding.

Although the upper house can only delay legislation and the legislative power lies in the lower house where the government has a big majority, it was the first time since 1959 that the ruling party had won less than half the seats at stake in an upper-house election.

It was expected that some of the seven independents elected would join the Liberal Democrats to give them a majority, but this did nothing to reduce the embarrassment of the prime minister. Tanaka, although not a candidate himself, conducted a strenuous campaign on behalf of the party, and the outcome was seen as a sharp rebuff to his leadership.

Asahi Shimbun, Japan's largest newspaper, said it "appeared unavoidable that the prime minister's leadership ... will diminish, making it difficult for him to get the party moving along with him."

The voting for the Liberal Democratic party presidency is not scheduled until next spring, and the intervening months could improve the prospects for a second three-year term for Tanaka.

The prime minister told a news conference that despite the election setback, the government will not ease the credit squeeze it ordered to slow inflation.

Shelter To Be Opened

The new Greenville Animal Shelter will be formally opened on Wednesday at 11:30 a.m. by Mayor S. Eugene West and animal control officer Jim Swinson.

Miss Evelyn Beasley, treasurer of the Pitt County Humane Society, said that the public is invited to attend the opening ceremonies, which will take place at the animal shelter facility on Cemetery Road in east Greenville.

She noted that a free buffet lunch will be served to all present by members of the Humane Society.

The animal shelter, designed by City Engineer C.A. Holliday, includes 20 stalls with attached run space and office, storage, and bathing facilities.

According to Holliday, the present structure is built for future expansion if necessary. Building contractor was Chapin Construction Co., with the preliminary and finishing work done by city employees.

The new shelter will house stray animals which will be cared for until claimed by their owners or adopted. Volunteers from the Humane Society plan to assist Swinson in the care and feeding of animals at the facility.
