

Death Claims Earl Warren

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The death of Earl Warren, a champion of the Bill of Rights in his 16 years as chief justice, removes a figure indelibly linked to landmark decisions of the Supreme Court in one of its most controversial eras.

Warren, 83, died in Georgetown University Hospital Tuesday night, a little more than five years after his retirement from the nation's highest judicial post. A hospital spokesman said he died of heart failure.

Under his leadership, the court struck down segregated schools, laid down the rule of "one man-one vote" and greatly expanded the rights of the accused in criminal cases.

Tributes came swiftly for the man whose years on the court were marked by criticism, which included demands for his impeachment.

President Nixon, who often was at odds with Warren in their years as California politicians and who criticized many of his court decisions, saluted him as "a partisan for America."

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, named by Nixon to succeed Warren and steer the court toward "strict construction" of the Constitution, said "his contribution was large indeed."

Rosa Parks, the black seamstress whose refusal to give up her seat to a white man started the Montgomery bus boycott, said, "We have lost a great friend to humanity."

Warren was admitted to the hospital July 2, suffering from a heart ailment. It was his second hospitalization in two months.

With him at his death were his wife, Nina, and the youngest of their three daughters, Mrs. Stewart Brien. The Warrens also had two sons.

Only a few hours before, two of the former chief justice's closest associates on the court, Justices William O. Douglas and William J. Brennan, had left his bedside.

A court spokesman said Warren wanted the two to stay, but they felt he was too tired.

Warren served as chief justice from 1953 to 1969 after a political career in which he served 11 years as governor of California and twice sought the Republican presidential nomination.

He was vice-presidential candidate on the 1948 GOP national ticket headed by the late Thomas E. Dewey, then governor of New York. They lost to President Harry S. Truman.

Though he disapproved of outside assignments for members of the high court, at age 72 he took on the additional load of heading the commission to investigate the 1963 assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

One of the Warren court's most acclaimed decisions came in June 1954 when it struck down the doctrine of separate but equal schools for the races.

But the decision Warren thought most important was the "one man-one vote" ruling in 1962 that forced states to reapportion legislative and congressional districts to make them more equal in population.

"Legislators represent people, not trees or acres," he said.

As Alameda County, Calif., prosecutor, and state attorney general and governor, Warren carved out a reputation for being tough on crime.

But the court's decisions under his leadership expanded the procedural protections available to criminal defendants, earning him criticism from law and order advocates.

During his 1968 presidential campaign, Nixon said the Warren court had "strengthened the criminal forces at the expense of the peace forces."

A common thread in decisions of the Warren court was equality—equal schools, equal representation, equal rights.

The court consistently broadened the application of the Bill of Rights.

The decisions plunged the Warren court into controversy, and "Impeach Earl Warren" signs sprouted along roadsides in many parts of the country.

His admirers, however, predicted he would rank as one of the great chief justices.

Warren was born in Los Angeles March 19, 1891, son of a Norwegian-born railroad car repairman and inspector. He served as an infantry first lieutenant in World War I.

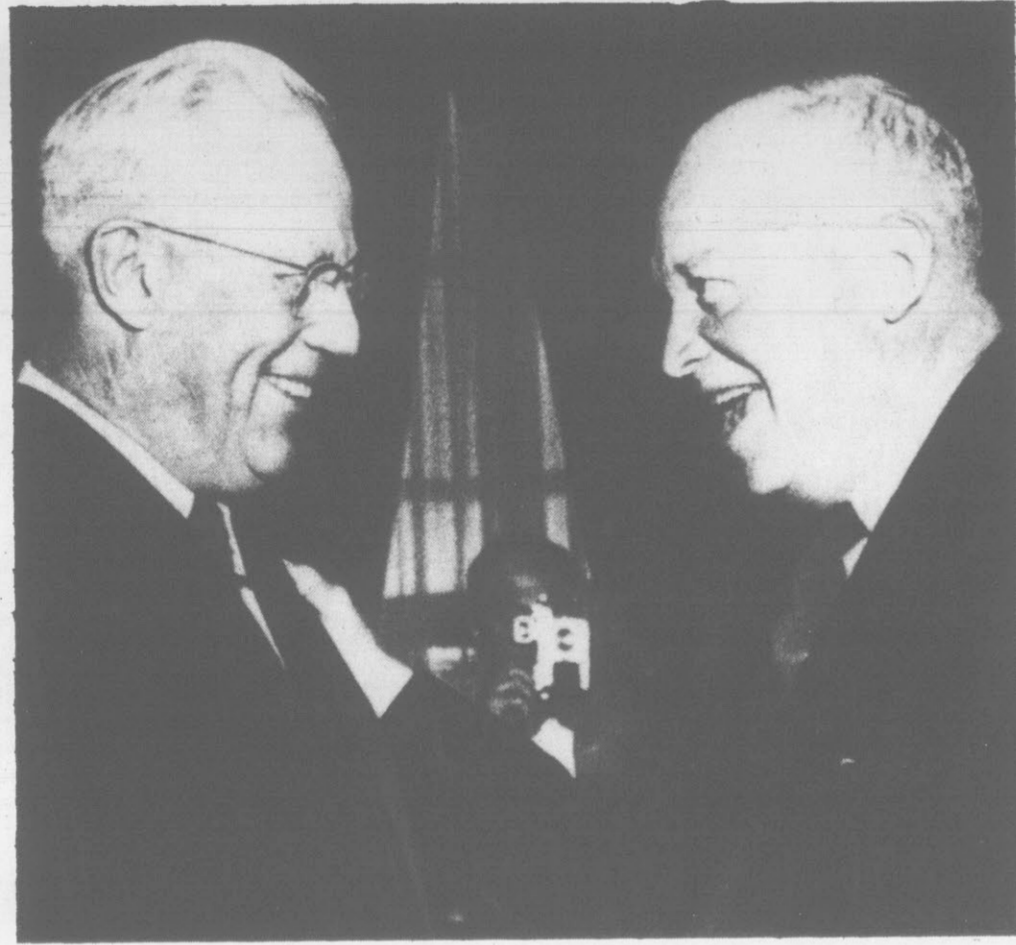

Genial and gregarious, he entered public life as deputy city attorney for Oakland in 1919 and became district attorney in 1925. He was elected governor in 1942 after four years as attorney general.

He was instrumental in swinging the GOP presidential nomination in 1952 to Dwight D. Eisenhower, who as president named him chief justice on the death of Fred M. Vinson.

Nixon, in a statement from the White House, said: "Earl Warren not only rendered outstanding service to our country but he was a distinguished figure in the Republican Party. In all things, he was never a partisan of political advantage, but always a partisan for America."

Justice Thurgood Marshall, speaking on the Black Audio Network, said, "When history is written, he'll go down as one of the greatest chief justices the country has ever been blessed with."

Former Arkansas Gov. Orval Faubus, one of the sternest critics of the school desegregation decision, declined comment.

St. Clair Plays Down Differences Between The Two Transcripts

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's lawyer is playing down differences between the White House account of Watergate and newly released House Judiciary Committee transcripts that quote the President as telling aides to cover up the scandal from Senate investigators.

"I don't believe the relationship with the Senate Select Committee was necessarily relevant" to the impeachment inquiry, said presidential lawyer James D. St. Clair when asked Tuesday why a long passage dealing with the Senate Watergate committee was omitted from the White House transcript of a March 22, 1973, conversation.

"We furnished the tape to the (House) committee, so if they felt it was relevant they could publish it, which they did," he said.

As for other differences between the White House and committee transcripts of eight presidential Watergate conversations, he added: "My experience has been that if you have three people listen to a tape, you get three variations."

John Doar, chief counsel for the impeachment inquiry, said his staff utilized the latest sophisticated electronic equipment in preparing the transcripts and they represented "the best job we can do."

After a full day of listening to testimony in closed session, few members had any comments on the staff study.

Rep. Lawrence Hogan, R-Md., said, "You've got to listen to the tapes. It's still a matter of opinion who said what."

Hogan said he was certain there were errors in the committee transcripts but that he thought they were more accurate than the White House versions.

"There are places where the person transcribing heard the wrong word," Hogan said of the committee transcripts. But he declined to cite an example.

Committee members heard the tapes in closed evidentiary sessions in May, but they didn't get the staff comparison with the White House transcripts until Tuesday, the day it was made public.

In the March 22 passage omitted from the White House transcripts, Nixon is quoted in the committee version as telling aides "I don't give a ---- what happens. I want you all to stonewall it, let them plead the Fifth Amendment, cover-up or anything else," if called before the Senate Watergate committee.

Other differences were less dramatic. It often was unclear whether they represent anything more than simple differences in what transcribers heard.

For example, earlier in the March 22 conversation, there was discussion of the possibility of White House aides citing executive privilege as the basis for refusing to testify before the Watergate committee.

The White House version quoted Nixon as saying former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell was arguing that "now we use flexibility in order to get off the cover-up line."

According to the committee transcript, Nixon said Mitchell was arguing "that now we use flexibility in order to get on with the cover-up plan."

In other cases, the comparison confirmed versions that had leaked from the closed committee sessions.

It confirmed that Nixon's comment about Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt Jr.'s hush money demand was, at one point, "Well for Christ's sake, get it ----" The White House version was, "(Expletive deleted), get it."

In his introduction to a 130-page volume entitled "Comparison of Passages," Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., said the study, which listed the differences side-by-side, "does not draw any conclusions for, or the significance of, the differences."

Payment Was For Legal Fees

By JOHN BECKLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell faces more questioning by the House Judiciary Committee about a $75,000 payment to Watergate burglar E. Howard Hunt Jr.

Mitchell, who approved the March 21, 1973, payment, told the committee Tuesday he did so with the understanding it was for legal fees, not to keep Hunt quiet. He returns to the stand today.

He also said there was no mention of the payment in a phone call he received from former White House Chief of Staff H.R. Haldeman shortly after a March 21 meeting between President Nixon, Haldeman and former presidential Counsel John W. Dean III.

Haldeman's call is a key bit of circumstantial evidence in the Watergate grand jury's indictment of Mitchell and Haldeman, and its naming of Nixon as an unindicted coconspirator in the Watergate cover-up.

Mitchell, charged with perjury, obstruction of justice and conspiracy, agreed to testify only within the narrow area of the $75,000 payment and his general relationship with Nixon.

His terms touched off an hour-long argument over whether the committee should be so limited in its examination of Mitchell.

Nixon counsel James D. St. Clair, who requested that Mitchell be called, has focused his defense on the March 21 payment, attempting to prove it was not initiated by Nixon.

Some Democratic committee members objected to being tied to St. Clair's defense strategy in their questioning of Mitchell.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., quieted the argument for the moment by ruling that the questioning by special counsel John Doar be held within Mitchell's guidelines. But when the time comes for members to ask questions, the dispute is expected to erupt again.

Nine Arrested In Drug Raids

By CARL L. TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Nine Pitt County residents were arrested this morning on drug charges in connection with a state-wide coordinated crack down on drug traffic being carried out today.

The total number of arrests being made throughout the state was not known at press time, although state SBI Director Charles Dunn was expected to make an announcement on the operation later today.

All of the Pitt County arrests were made in connection with the possession and sale of marijuana, while one man was also charged with the sale and possession of MDA.

Arrested from Pitt County and charged with the possession and sale of marijuana were: Perry Streeter Jr., 20, of Winterville, Holly Mimms Streeter, 19, of Winterville, John Eric Ellis, 17, of Ayden, Wilbert E. Rasberry Jr., no age given, of Ayden, Dwight Lamb, 25, of Greenville, Odessa Streeter, 45, of Winterville, Alton Ray Nicholson, 19, of Winterville, Leroy Artis, 20, of Winterville, and Henry Lewis Smith, 18, of Winterville.

Bond was set at $3,000 for all arrested except for Perry Streeter Jr., whose bond was set at $6,000 and who was also charged with the possession and sale of MDA, John Eric Ellis and Dwight Lamb, whose bonds were set at $5,000.

According to Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson, the arrests in the county began this morning at 6:30. Investigation leading up to the arrest reportedly began some three months ago.

This morning's arrests were a combined effort of county and state agents, along with the police departments of Greenville, Ayden and Winterville.

Tyson stated the crack down was a major operation and involved a great deal of drug traffic in the state.

More Pitt County arrests were expected in connection with the case, according to Tyson.

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day, but the phone service is available 24 hours a day.

CRAFTSMAN NEEDS OUTLET

I am new in Pitt County and am wondering if there are any crafts fairs or crafts sales places available for an independent craftsman. G.A.

Three crafts fairs are: the Morehead City one to be held July 13-14; the Albermarle Fair in Elizabeth City, set for Sept. 24-29; and the Rocky Mount one at Tarrytown Mall in November.

Three local stores that buy or take crafts on consignment—and there may be more—are The Corn Crib (Call 756-0716 or 756-0668); the Country Cupboard, to be opened Aug. 1 (Call 756-0954 or 752-2037) and The Mushroom (Call 752-3815).

Pitt County Home Extension Agent Addie Gore also told Hotline about the Albermarle Craftsmen's Guild, a well-established organization which sets standards, offers constructive criticism, and develops contacts for craftsmen throughout Eastern North Carolina. She suggested you contact Mrs. Elsie Edwards at the Chowan County Extension Office in Edenton, and area arts and crafts agent who works directly with stores to place craftsmen's items. She can tell you more about the Guild and other possibilities, Miss Gore said.

INSURANCE DUE—NO COLLECTOR

We have an insurance policy with the Combine Insurance Company. They don't allow us to mail in our premium payments. They always send a representative to collect them. Our latest due date is past and we have seen no sign of a representative. We don't want the coverage to lapse because of late payment, especially when it isn't our fault. D.W.

You should have heard from the Combine Company's main office in Raleigh. Hotline spoke with their administrative head, Clyde Debarr, who indicated he would contact you immediately and give you an address to which you could mail your premium payment. He gave no reason as to why their representative was late in collecting your premium.

DRY ICE—WHERE DO I GET SOME?

I would like to know where I can purchase locally some dry ice. N.J.

There doesn't seem to be a local place to buy dry ice. The nearest place Hotline could learn of is Carbonic Industries, Carbon Dioxide Dept., Box 676, Greensboro, N.C. 27400. This is where the East Carolina Chemistry Department gets its. Bruce Whitaker, Storeroom Manager for the Chemistry Department, said you may be able to place an order with Carbonic Industries and be at the Chemistry Department to pick it up when the regular delivery is made any Monday morning.

Kissinger To Be Questioned

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger makes an unprecedented appearance in a criminal proceeding today, testifying as a witness for John D. Ehrlichman in the plumbers trial.

Ehrlichman's attorneys called upon Kissinger to shake the credibility of a principal prosecution witness, David R. Young, who worked separately in the White House for both Kissinger and Ehrlichman.

Kissinger, just back from Europe where he consulted with NATO allies about President Nixon's Moscow trip, is expected to be under oath for only a few minutes.

A CIA official has testified Young told him Kissinger and Ehrlichman in August 1971 had requested that the agency prepare a psychological profile on Pentagon Papers figure Daniel Ellsberg.

Kissinger, then President Nixon's chief national security adviser, is expected to deny ever asking for such a profile.

The trial is in its tenth day. There also has been testimony that Kissinger was among those in the White House who sought to have Ellsberg's name smeared through leaks of derogatory information to sympathetic journalists.

Ellsberg leaked the Pentagon Papers study of the Vietnam war to The New York Times in June 1971, an incident that led to creation of the plumbers, a special White House investigative unit of which Young was codirector.

Young testified last week in exchange for immunity from prosecution.

The plumbers planned and carried out the Sept. 3, 1971, break-in at the Beverly Hills, Calif., office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist, Dr. Lewis J. Fielding, in an unsuccessful search for Ellsberg's psychiatric records.

Through his approval of the entry, Ehrlichman, 49, is accused of conspiring to violate Fielding's rights. He also faces four counts of lying to the FBI and a grand jury.

Long Agenda For Council

The City Council faces another long agenda Thursday night as some 29 scheduled items are slated for consideration at the 8 p.m. session.

Items under old business include: appointments to the Board of Adjustments, the Parking Authority, Plumbing Examining Board, and the Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority; a public hearing on rezoning the James L. Evans heirs property;

Public hearing on Canterbury Road Improvements; public hearing on a proposed amendment to the City Code; applications for mobile home renewal permits; a report on the use of the mosquito spraying equipment; and discussion of the proposed Sedimentation Pollution Control Act enforcement program.

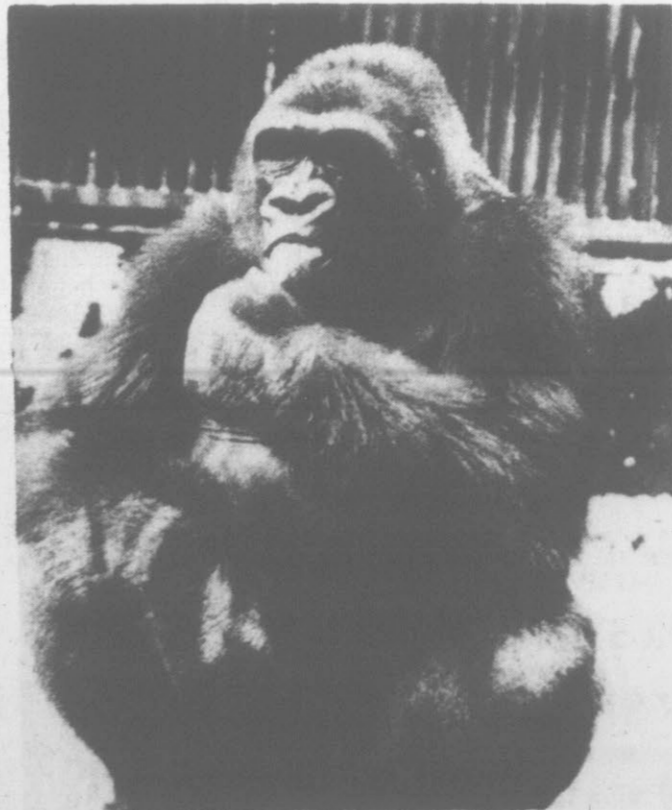

New business items include: a report on the recent bus transportation survey; a proposal by the Eastern Carolina Sheltered Workshop to contract for the option to receive all grades of waste paper; a request for exploratory drilling in the city landfill;

Three applications for pool table permits; an application for a taxicab operator's permit; preapplication for a motorcycle unit; applications for Law Enforcement Assistance Grants; a request by New Directions Inc. for approval of the establishment of a group home for pre-delinquent and delinquent juveniles in Greenville;

A revision in the Police Legal Advisor Contract; application for a mobile home permit; installation of anodes in Green Springs Park; approval of two recommended speed zone revisions; an ordinance prohibiting right turn on red movements at certain intersections;

An amendment to the CBD Urban Renewal Plan; sale of a parcel in Shore Drive; an architectural contract for design services for the proposed Fire Station No. 2; City hall renovation work contract; a request for annexation of Lake Ellsworth;

A request for release of penalties for late listing on tax notices; three requests for refunds; consideration of bids for the purchase of a concrete saw for the Public Works Department; and consideration of street improvement petitions.

No Quorum So No Business

Lack of a quorum kept the Utilities Commission from acting on several matters at the July meeting Tuesday night.

Only Chairman Howard Gradis and Commissioner George Coffman were present for the meeting and no action could be taken on three major items. A special meeting was set for Thursday at noon to take action on the matters.

The commissioners were to consider paying an additional $6,457.38 to G.E. Supply for transformers presently under contract, due to steep cost increases. In return G.E. Supply would agree to an additional three year warranty on the transformers.

Also to be considered was resolving the completion of a sewer outfall to the shell industrial building currently under construction on N.

Greene, and a new gas rate schedule.

In the unofficial meeting Water and Sewer Supt. Wadie Lewis reported that a disagreeable odor and taste in the water taken from the river was being handled with increased carbon and other modifications in the treatment process. The source of the odor has not yet been determined, he said.

Assistant Director Malcolm Green reported that due to the generator failure, VEPCO had requested a five per cent voltage reduction to continue through this morning. It was the second time this year that a voltage reduction had been requested.

The commissioners decided against taking over a water system for a mobile home park on the Belvoir Highway.

Expert Offers Advice On Photographing

EASTON, Pa. (AP) — "What did the photographer do when you had your portrait taken?"

"He tickled Mommy."
That is how one small tot described for his father the fun of being photographed by Herb Snyder, owner and operator of a local studio. While it is Mommy who gets tickled, the ostrich feather also sets off the giggles and invariably produces a smile on the child's face.

In 23 years of business, Snyder has photographed more than 53,000 children and has a reputation for capturing the essence of his small subjects, a success he attributes in part to the measure of child psychology he employs.

Young children may be reluctant to smile for a stranger, especially in new surroundings, says Snyder, who takes time to make his small customers feel at home. Youngsters relax in the reception room where a bevy of toys, a slide and even a swing are available.

When it's time for the portrait sitting, Snyder urges parents and even grandparents to accompany the child into the camera room where he chats with the young children about their favorite TV characters or sports team. For the preschooler, he may operate the "tickle machine," an ostrich feather which descends from the ceiling and can be manipulated by the photographer.

"When parents come to us they are looking for a lively and informal, but artistic portrait of their child," comments Snyder, who heads the Jack and Jill studios. "With modern studio lighting, natural color film and a little bit of psychology, we've been able to meet the challenge."

For the best portrait of your newborn, Snyder suggests waiting until the baby is at least four months old. "We find the child responds well after this age, can raise himself up and has control over his head," he explains.

Snyder's advice to parents who are planning a portrait of their child, includes the following tips:

— Think less. The younger the child, the less clothing is necessary. Babies under six months old look charming with just a diaper; toddlers from six months to one year old photograph well in short pants, or dresses, and bare feet.

— Select informal attire. Casual styles are popular today so there's no need to dress your child in an uncomfortable formal outfit. Wrinkle-proof clothes that fit snugly photograph best. Loose clothing has a tendency to bunch on a seated child.

— Pick a hat. Babies and young girls look attractive with bonnets. If your child has one, bring it to the studio with you.

— Bring a selection of clothes with you to the studio and dress your child there. If your child is involved in an organized activity, he may wish to wear his uniform for the photograph.

— Plan to have the portrait sitting when your child will be most relaxed and alert — usually morning, before an active child has had a chance to tire. Also, mornings are best in warm weather.

— Schedule a portrait sitting for baby after nap and mealtime.

— Bring a couple of familiar toys with you if you are having a baby photographed. For the young infant, it is wise to have a bottle of milk on hand in case he gets restless or hungry.

"I've photographed so many children over the past 23 years, that I've probably had to meet every creative challenge imaginable," says Snyder, who is now photographing the second generation of his clients.

Don't Serve Catfood To Your Family

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: There is something I need to know but I'm too embarrassed to ask anyone else, so I'm asking you: For years I've heard that in order for catfood and dogfood to be sold in grocery stores, it has to be fit for human consumption.

Well, I know that tuna fish is rich in protein, and with regular tuna so expensive, I tried making a casserole with catfood tuna. My family really went for it. I hid the cans so nobody would know what I had done.

My family has been asking me to make that special tuna casserole "like last time," but I'm worried. Is there something in catfood that will harm humans? The price is certainly right, but I don't want to take any chances with my family's health. Please advise me.

SLIGHTLY WORRIED

DEAR SLIGHTLY: I didn't pussyfoot around, I went right to the leading catfood manufacturers, and the word from them is: "Don't serve catfood to humans."

DEAR ABBY: Please don't think this is a stupid question, but can an unwed mother join Parents Without Partners? And if so, how do I go about finding out if there is a chapter near me? Thank you.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I bought a lovely suburban home. I became friendly with a neighbor who taught me a lot about gardening. She and I liked each other. Suddenly my husband became desperately ill. He fought hard to live, but it was terminal. During his illness, this neighbor came over often to cheer me up. After my husband died, my neighbor came over. I told her how grateful I was to her for all she had done, then she said: "May I ask a big favor of you?" Then she asked if I would SELL her a bracelet I had. I told her it was a gift from my husband, and I didn't want to sell it.

Abby, she begged and begged, telling me how much she liked that bracelet, so I finally agreed to let her have it for $150—exactly what my husband had paid for it some 15 years before.

Well, that woman wore the bracelet constantly. Finally, I couldn't bear to see it on her, so I asked her to please, please sell it back to me. At first she refused. Then she said she would—for $500! (It's worth $350 in today's market, but the money isn't important.)

The thought of that greedy woman wearing my memories on her wrist makes me sick. What would you do?

WRONGED

DEAR WRONGED: I'd buy the bracelet back, before she raises the price.

Beauty Salons Now Open For Both Sexes

By HOWARD ULMAN
HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) —
The bouffant and the beard

Connecticut beauty salons now that a federal judge has opened their doors to all sexes.

"It might be fun. You never settled into a chair at a downtown salon.

She was having her hair done

Court Judge Jon O. Newman ruled unconstitutional the section of a state law prohibiting hairdressers from serving male customers. The law allows barbers to cut the hair of both sexes.

In his ruling, Judge Newman noted that hair fashion has changed since the hairdresser law was passed 50 years ago.

"There is now in vogue among some members of the male sex a 'unisex' fashion whereby males desire to have their hair styled and cut longer in some more detailed manner," he said.

Angelo Bermudez, owner of the Michelangelo Beauty Salon in New Haven, said he was concerned the ruling might be "an invasion of privacy."

"I don't think women would like to walk around in rollers and a bleached head in front of men," he said.

Bermudez said he would accept male customers and might do their hair "in a back room."

But most women contacted in a spot survey voiced no apprehension about sharing their domain with men.

"It wouldn't bother me in the least. My husband sees me in rollers and I have a man doing my hair," said Mrs. Enos Arnold of West Hartford, a patron at Nigrelli's Beauty Salon in Hartford.

Charles Nigrelli, the owner, disagreed.

"I will have a separate area for the men to make it comfortable for both sexes," he said.
Other salon owners said they might set up a special time or day for men.

In New York State, either sex may be served by a barber or cosmetologist. But the shop must provide enclosed booths for customers wishing them and requires a storefront sign within. Massachusetts has no prohibition on men going to beauty salons.

Margaret Russo, whose salon in Hartford caters to an older crowd, said "I think the younger girls would love it because they might meet a date."

Some beauty salon owners said men had been asking them for hair stylings for more than a year but were turned away because of the law.

Another salon owner, Pat Bo-rawski, said she didn't think men would take advantage of the new ruling.

"I believe women have their place to go and men have their place to go," she said.

Bruno Utley, a West Hartford stylist, said men could gain from a trip to a salon.

"It would make them look more presentable, instead of walking around shabby and unkempt," he concluded.

USE SAFE METHODS FOR CANNING VEGETABLES
If you have hesitated to can vegetables because of fear of spoilage, remember the organisms blamed for spoilage are just doing what comes naturally. The real culprit is the ignorant, careless, or stubborn not-about-to-use-modern methods person who does the canning.

The most common type of spoilage in canned vegetables is called flatsour. The food may look right and smell right, but has an unpleasant sourish taste.
It is neither fit to eat, nor poisonous. The bacteria causing flat-sour can start growing in vegetables which have stood too long between steps in gathering, preparing, putting into jars and processing. This is particularly true of corn and other starchy vegetables. If necessary to hold vegetables several hours or overnight, they should be refrigerated.

Botulism is another widely misunderstood type of food spoilage. It is by no means confined to canned foods. It has been found in frozen, smoked, and pickled sea foods; dried,

smoked, and pickled meats; pickled meats; pickled beets and also homemade cheese. The invisible-to-the-naked-eye spores of bacteria which cause botulism are harmless until they find their way into an airless space containing very little acid and start growing. Then they give off a deadly toxin. Unless the illness of a person who has eaten the contaminated food is promptly diagnosed and the right antitoxin quickly obtained, the patient may not survive.

The first step in preventing botulism is to use only strictly fresh, sound vegetables. No matter how clean they may seem, wash them as if they were filthy. Then quickly prepare, put into jars and process in a steam-pressure canner for the right length of time at the right pressure. Then you canned vegetables will be as safe as any food can be. But if you still have misgivings, turn the food into a saucepan and let it boil 15 minutes, stirring often, before tasting. Never, never, taste food of any kind to learn whether it is spoiled.

You can make the canning job easier and quicker by collecting all needed equipment, carefully inspecting every jar to make sure the top is smooth (one tiny nick or chip can prevent sealing), and checking instructions ahead of time.
Prepare, pack, and process the food in small quantities.

Weapons Should Be Protected

A news report tells us that an arsenal has been stolen from a California National Guard armory. It was said that enough weapons and ammunition were taken to outfit an army.

Missing equipment included ammunition, eighty M16 rifles, machine guns, grenade launchers and other equipment.

The theft took place in Compton, Calif. and a police sergeant commented, "It is frightening to think that this would fall into the wrong hands. It appears that the theft was a highly organized thing."

It is frightening, indeed, to think that the militant and radical groups in our nation can have such easy access to military weapons. There are too many vile minded people in our society today to allow the possibility of theft of military weapons.

Every military unit—National Guard, Reserve and regular armed services—should make certain that every precaution is taken to make their weapons and ammunition secure. The same should be true for police and other security units which have weapons.

It is easy enough for the militants to get guns as it is. Our security units should not make it any easier.

Breaking Of Window Cause Is Not Certain

The series of assassinations in our nation over the past decade makes security agents especially apprehensive.

So it is not difficult to understand the concern when a window broke in an escort car as Vice President Gerald Ford visited Dallas.

It was first feared that a bullet caused the damage. Then the theory was that a rock or heat broke the window. The experts say we may never know for certain. It was, however, another moment of concern for a nation which has seen so many leaders shot down.

Feels Money Should Be Spent

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—"All the money that comes in will be spent," State Rep. Liston B. Ramsey moaned as he sought to outline where the state stands—and where it ought to be—on the matter of taxes.

Ramsey, an old-line Democrat from the mountain stronghold of Madison County, has watched several administrations wade through their budgets.

He is presently chairman of the House Finance Committee, and from that post can watch closely the collecting process.

He is also a member of the governor's Advisory Budget Commission, which puts him on the inside decision making involving spending.

The only way to put the brakes on accelerated spending, Ramsey believes, is to cut taxes and make changes in the amount of money available "and then let them spend what comes in."

Ramsey believes the state is "top-heavy administratively, with layer on layer of people" and bemoans the fact that state employment rolls keep getting larger and larger.

dustries to encourage them to locate in North Carolina, providing jobs for young wage earners and keeping them at home.

He doesn't want North Carolina to "become a haven for the elderly to come here and use our facilities and hospitals, and cost us more in state revenues."

That tax study commission, made up of members of both houses of the assembly, and a smattering of private citizens, got its charge from State Sen. J. Russell Kirby, D-Wilson, who is also chairman of the senate's Finance Committee.

In brief, Kirby said the study should "strike a blow for the taxpayers of North Carolina" and seek to set up a fair and equitable tax scheme to finance state government.

State Sen. McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, the senate's leading proponent for sweeping tax revision with his chief goal being to do away with the sales tax on food, hiking upper income taxes to take up the loss, is a member of the study group.

Who Pays?

He believes the first order of business is to find out who is paying the taxes, and who is not. The commission adopted Smith's outline of the four basic areas of taxation which the study needs to embrace:

- Who is paying, related to income and assets;
- Possibility of a minimum level of taxation to avoid any escape through loopholes;
- Monitoring by the General Assembly on a regular and recurring basis of the entire tax structure, including deductions, exemptions and levies;
- Comparisons of North Carolina systems to "competing" states in terms of attracting desirable industry and residents.

Emphasis in restructuring the tax system ought to be on attracting industry, the study group agreed, and the consensus is that the question boils down to whether the state will get "sewing-room industries" or high wage industries.

Poppy War Is Dangerous

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
ANKARA, Turkey—Despite confrontation of potentially tragic dimension between Turkey and the U.S., Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit pledged in an exclusive interview here to "keep anti-American reactions within limits" if Congress terminates U.S. aid in reprisal for renewed poppy-growing in Anatolia.

Ecevit, the left-leaning intellectual who translates Ezra Pound and once audited a Kissinger course at Harvard, has been carefully briefed on congressional aid threats by hard-driving American Ambassador William B. Macomber.

Those threats, running the gamut from conservative New York Republican James Buckley to liberal Democratic presidential hopeful Sen. Walter Mondale of Minnesota, stem from Ecevit's decision to resume poppy-growing after a two-year ban. The ban was imposed under extraordinary U.S. pressure to ease an American narcotics or hard-drugs epidemic.

million a year) and about $55 million in economic aid. The danger of infuriated Turkish response to U.S. pressure is evident from recent history: an attack on former Ambassador Robert Komer's limousine five years ago by anti-American left-wing students.

Ecevit draws support from these same liberal forces. Some Western experts here believe that with U.S.-Soviet detente in full bloom, Ecevit may be coming under subtle leftist pressures to begin modifying the special U.S.-Turkish relationship. The poppy war could be a harbinger.

If so, Ecevit disguises it. To the contrary, he told us in his parliamentary office that "the U.S. link is indispensable." Indeed, he said, a decision not to resume poppy planting would itself have led to virulent anti-Americanism (a thesis of dubious validity).

Yet, Ecevit is clearly aiming at alterations in Turkey's foreign policy. No Turkish government, he told us, can afford to appear "submissive" to a bigger ally. Some senior members of his government feel that in the past, particularly during interludes of covert army domination such as 1971, Turkey was indeed "too submissive" to the U.S. Ecevit now courts closer ties with the Arab world, with Europe, both East and West, and with the underdeveloped world.

Some U.S. experts claim that elimination of the Turkish poppy (source of raw opium) is the main explanation of a dramatic 50 per cent decline in the number of U.S. heroin addicts to an estimated 250,000 today. Turkish farmers have sold poppy oil and seed for generations in legitimate trade; the underworld reaped millions in illicit opium profits.

Ecevit's decision to permit new plantings by impoverished Turkish farmers comes as his political fortunes are finally rising after a shaky start six months ago. It was not only a popular decision; it had been virtually pledged by all candidates in last fall's election.

Yet, it now has triggered an escalating U.S.-Turkish crisis, with the U.S. accusing Ecevit of breaking the planting-ban "agreement" made by the 1971 army-dominated government and the Turks angrily saying the U.S. cannot dictate their domestic economic policy.

Start overtones derive from Washington's dependence on its NATO alliance with Turkey for indispensable gathering of highly classified military information from across the Soviet border. There are no fewer than 25 joint Turkish-American bases. Nevertheless, the congressional target of reprisal is U.S. military aid here (now running at $35 million a year) and about $55 million in economic aid. The danger of infuriated Turkish response to U.S. pressure is evident from recent history: an attack on former Ambassador Robert Komer's limousine five years ago by anti-American left-wing students.

Ecevit draws support from these same liberal forces. Some Western experts here believe that with U.S.-Soviet detente in full bloom, Ecevit may be coming under subtle leftist pressures to begin modifying the special U.S.-Turkish relationship. The poppy war could be a harbinger.

If so, Ecevit disguises it. To the contrary, he told us in his parliamentary office that "the U.S. link is indispensable." Indeed, he said, a decision not to resume poppy planting would itself have led to virulent anti-Americanism (a thesis of dubious validity).

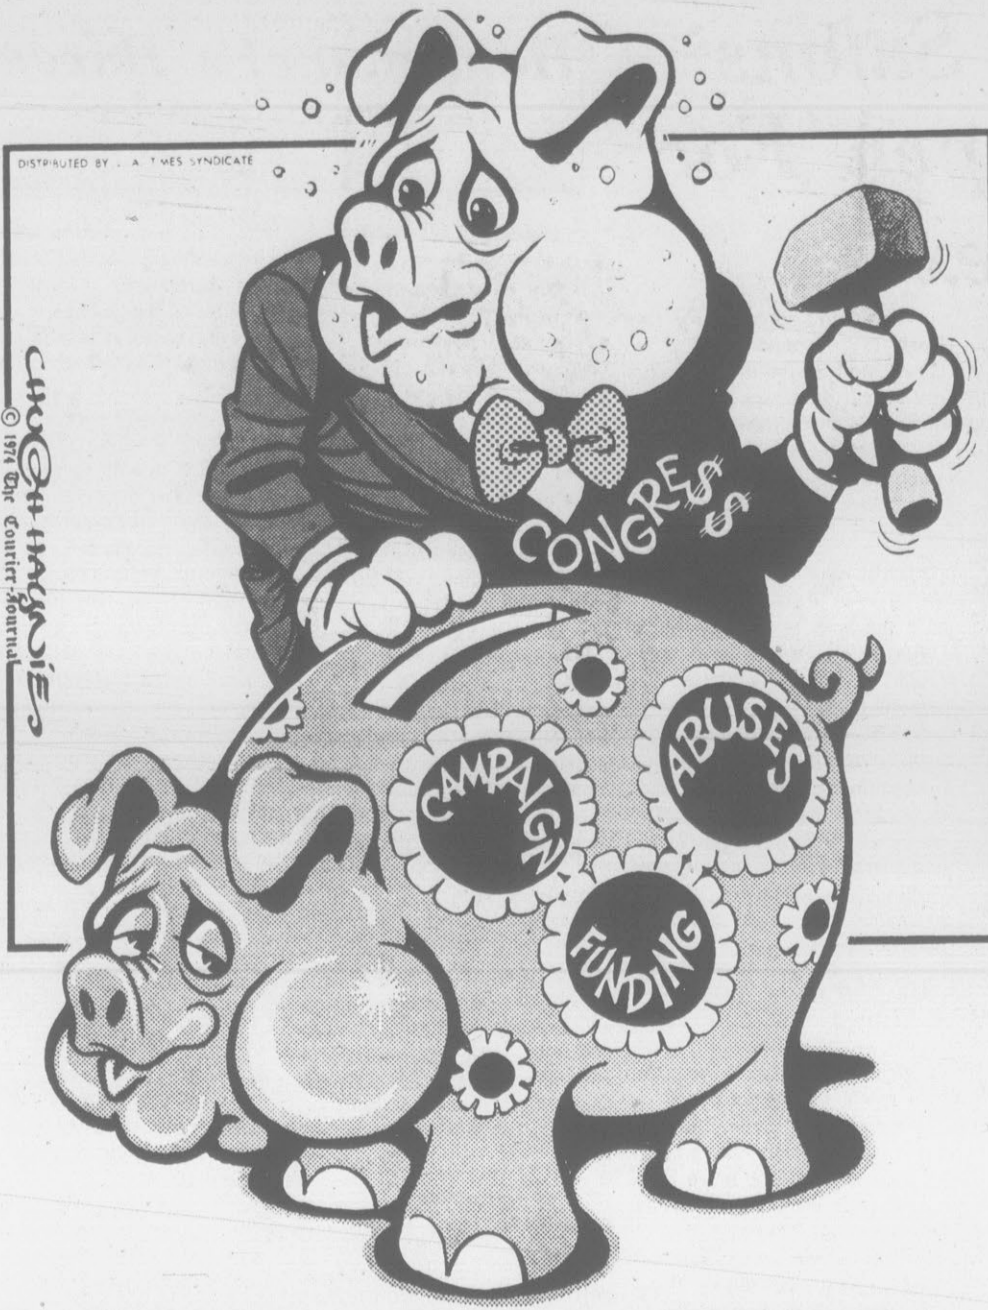

Yet, Ecevit is clearly aiming at alterations in Turkey's foreign policy. No Turkish government, he told us, can afford to appear "submissive" to a bigger ally. Some senior members of his government feel that in the past, particularly during interludes of covert army domination such as 1971, Turkey was indeed "too submissive" to the U.S. Ecevit now courts closer ties with the Arab world, with Europe, both East and West, and with the underdeveloped world.

Ecevit, a new-look Turkish leader of charm and poise, absolutely ruled out any negotiations with the U.S. on the poppy war as "an infringement of our sovereignty." That dramatizes the developing split with the U.S. which claims the 1971 poppy deal was an "agreement," tied to special economic aid for poppy farmers, that can't be broken unilaterally.

Ecevit told us he would cooperate with the U.S. or any international consortium to police the new poppy crops and keep opium out of the hands of underworld dealers. Knowledgeable Westerners scoff at this as unworkable, and they are probably right.

The prospect of the U.S. Congress fanning the flames of Turkish chauvinism by eliminating aid is ominous. Some Turkish politicians believe President Nixon himself may turn against Turkey in his political writing for popular acclaim, but that seems highly unlikely.

The Football Strike

WASHINGTON—As if the United States did not have enough trouble, the National Football League players have gone out on strike, and there is a possibility that none of the veterans will be there for the kickoff in the fall.

Although the disputed issues have to do with wages, discipline and the power of the football commissioner, the main problem is automation.

A professional football player, Bronco Beaulandovich, told me, "The owners are trying to cut down the number of men on the field. They maintain you don't need 11 men on a side to play a game. They claim they now have computers that can kick, pass and block in one-tenth the time it now takes a man to do it. But what they don't say is that if you cut down the number of men on a team you run great safety risks. A computer can't protect a quarterback like a human being.

"The football owners are trying to save money on the payroll at the expense of our jobs. We're not going to stand for it. The rules say you have to have 11 men on a side and we're going to stick by it."

Horace Maldabeth, a football owner who has been negotiating the contract, told me, "There has been too much featherbedding on football teams, and it is no longer economically feasible to maintain all those players on the field. We've done studies to show that the guards can be easily replaced by machines. The ends do nothing but stand around all day, and the football union refuses to let tackles touch the ball. Unless we use new technical methods and update the job rules, we can't stay in business."

Maldabeth showed me a computer that was programmed to do almost everything a player could. "We can put one of these at each goal line and play a full hour's game in 10 minutes. These computers can produce twice as many touchdowns, fumbles and intercepted passes as any team in the league. Why should we keep men on the payroll when they add nothing to the game?"

ART BUCHWALD

"But don't computers take some fun out of the game?" I asked.

"Possibly, but our concern is profits. How can we explain to our stockholders that we are paying 11 players when five could do the job?"

Maldabeth continued, "Don't forget, we're not talking only about the 11 men on the field. There are also 29 on the bench doing absolutely nothing. No football team can afford to have 29 players sitting on their duffs hiding their heads under blankets."

"Aren't the players worried about job security?"

"We're willing to work that out. We will guarantee the union that no active player will be fired from his job because of automation. But if he gets injured or plays out his contract, then he cannot be replaced by another man. I can't think of anything fairer."

Maldabeth said that he wasn't thinking just of the players but the fans as well. "Football costs are skyrocketing, and if they continue we may have to eliminate a quarter of the game. By automating, we are guaranteeing the best possible contest at the best possible price. If we can give General May Be Next Gov.

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—Retired Gen. William C. Westmoreland could become South Carolina's first Republican governor in 100 years—if he survives a primary election July 16.

Should Westmoreland be nominated in this first statewide GOP primary in South Carolina history, many political observers give him a better than 50-50 chance of defeating the Democratic nominee.

What makes it tough for the former Army chief of staff is that no more than 35,000 of the state's 911,000 registered voters are expected to mark GOP ballots. Most of these will be long-time Republicans.

Many are supporting state Sen. James Edwards, an oral surgeon from Charleston who has been active in the party since 1964. Some GOP leaders consider the general a Westy-come-lately who is attempting to take advantage of his military reputation and his recognition factor in this Deep South state, which has a habit of putting uniformed leaders on pedestals.

South Carolina voters must declare whether they want a Republican or Democratic ballot. There are few Republicans running in county races, so those who want a say in local government will ask for the Democratic slate. This group will probably include some Westmoreland supporters who think they'll have a chance to vote for him in November.

Edwards is counting on a lot of this kind of thinking to reduce the vote for the general.

Westmoreland is spending most of his campaign money for literature and expenses of traveling across the state in his face-to-face, one-on-one approach. His isn't into paid television, as have many other gubernatorial candidates, and hasn't purchased newspaper advertisements.

Edwards has several TV spots aimed at becoming better-known by voters in the upper part of the state, where he is unfamiliar and where the general seems to be at his strongest. The state senator also appears at all political rallies, using to the fullest his strength as a public speaker.

Westmoreland is not at his best in the oratory arena, taking a couple of hundred votes to answer each short question. He is prone to speak in cliches.

He tops Edwards in the face-to-face campaigning through the shopping centers and downtown malls and the main streets of the rural communities. Most voters recognize the general, often stop him for a chat and some remind him they served under him in Korea or in Vietnam.

There is small difference between the political philosophy of the two candidates, prompting Edwards to say, "You can't debate a man who believes the same way you do."

Although Edwards has shielded away from the issue, several Democratic gubernatorial candidates have criticized Westmoreland for never having voted in an election.

The general answered: "as an Army career officer it was necessary to be non-partisan. Now that I have retired, I can become active in my home state politics."

Edwards, now serving his second year in the legislature, said he understands how state government works, something Westmoreland does not.

The general said during his years in the Army "I served in positions that covered the

Public Forum

To the editor:

If the County Commissioners and citizens of Pitt County would ask themselves the following questions, they would be ashamed at the reduction of the Sheriff Department's budget.

Would we work from 10 p. m. till 6 a. m., sleep a few hours, be in court by 9:30 a. m., get out by 5:30 p. m. (if you're lucky), be in school by 7 p. m., out by 10 p. m. and back on the job by 11 p. m.—five days in a row? (Oh, I know you don't have to go to school, but how in the world do you think Pitt County keeps up with all the technical advances?)

How would you like not being able to spend a few free hours with your family during regular shifts, not to mention holidays? I could continue giving examples of sacrifice these dedicated men make every day, but I think you get the general idea. If these men weren't so dedicated, we'd be in a mess, because they sure don't make enough to pay them for their time and dedication.

I think it is a shame the Commissioners couldn't see this when they cut the funds to hire four new deputies. I hope they're so immortal they'll never need the services these men provide.

One last question: How would you like to leave home every day knowing you could be killed by doing your duty, trying to protect the citizens of this county?

Strength For Today

STATE OF MIND COUNTS
King George the Fourth of England once sent word by a messenger to a high dignitary of the church that he desired to partake of the sacrament. But the servant dawdled and delayed and as a result did not get the message to the churchman in time for him to meet his appointment with the king. When he arrived late, he found the monarch to be much irritated. And when, in the explanations that followed, it appeared that the delay was caused by the servant, King George was so thoroughly aroused that he gave the servant a verbal dressings down and fired him on the spot.

Then the king asked the clergyman to perform the sacrament. To his surprise the clergyman refused, saying that the king was in no mental state to participate in a holy rite. Under the circumstances the clergyman might have suffered for this presumptuous act, but instead King George said quietly, "You are right." He recalled the servant, restored him to his position, and then, in a much different frame of mind, received the sacrament.

Consumer Survey Not Necessary

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—The surveys of consumer sentiment suggest that you are mired in pessimism about the economy and entangled in a dilemma over how to handle your personal finances.

You might say it doesn't take a survey to convey this truth to you—that you could pick up the same results in a few minutes at a supermarket checkout counter. Quite likely you are correct.

But it is the professional surveys, by the Survey Research Center at the University of Michigan, by Sindinger & Co. of Swarthmore, Pa., and by The Conference Board which have the wider audience.

The surveys show, among other things, that you the consumer are struggling to make up your mind about whether to remain entrenched, saving what money you can, or to spend now to avoid still higher prices later.

During past periods of consumer pessimism, the Survey Research Center explains, opinions about spending also were unfavorable. People became aware that the rainy day might be just around the corner, and they saved for it.

This behavioral pattern helped explain in part the curious proliferation of bank outlets on almost every corner in some areas of cities while outlets of almost every other sort were complaining about poor business.

As anyone knows who has seen his favorite restaurant dispossessed by another pennant-waving, gift-giving savings bank, that tendency still persists. But it is being offset to some degree by the buy-in-advance psychology.

In May, for example, the Survey Research Center found that 40 per cent of respondents said it was a good time to buy large household goods, while only 22 per cent said it was a poor time to buy.

The percentages do not total 100 per cent because some respondents answered "don't know" and others gave answers that fit neither yes or no categories.

Behind the buy-now thrust is the growing cynicism of many Americans who feel that little economic good can come to them by practicing the old-fashioned virtue of thrift so long as prices continue to rise. And they believe they will rise.

A widespread lack of faith in government combines with the sense of hopelessness about inflation to produce the pessimism that is so commonly reported now by the surveyors.

Russians Up Subs

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Russians may have started dismantling some of their 210 old intercontinental ballistic missiles as a possible first step toward increasing their fleet of submarine-based missiles.

Pentagon spokesman William Beecher declined Tuesday to discuss the status of Soviet SS7 and SS8 ICBMs, but other sources said there are signs the Russians may be taking them out of operation.

The 1972 U.S.-Soviet SALT agreement on limiting offensive weapons permits the Russians to trade in the 210 old ICBMs, built more than 10 years ago, for the same number of modern submarine-launched missiles.

If the Soviets dismantled all these ICBMs, they could increase their ocean force to a total of 950 missiles in 62 submarines.

Under the SALT I agreement, the United States was allowed the option of dismantling 54 old Titan ICBMs and trading them in for more submarine missiles.

But this country has not done so, leaving the U.S. total of submarine-launched missiles at 656.

To date, the Russians have not developed separately targetable multiple warheads (MIRVs) for their submarines.

Meanwhile, the United States is well along in conversion of most of its 41 missile-firing submarines to Poseidon missiles, each with 10 to 14 relatively small MIRVs. So far, 28 have been completed or are undergoing conversion. The last three subs to be converted are provided for in this year's defense budget.

The United States also is moving toward construction of 10 new Trident supersubs with missiles of up to 6,500 miles in range.

One of major issues in South Carolina—the reinstatement of the death penalty—put Edwards and Westmoreland on the same side.

The general called for capital punishment when murder is committed in the process of a felony or when a law enforcement officer is killed. Edwards supported reinstatement of the death penalty.

Both Edwards and Westmoreland have called for repeal of the state's 4 per cent sales tax on food and drugs. Both said the state expenditures could be met without any additional taxes.

On inflation, Edwards has said "it is caused by government giving large groups all the essential requirements they need without requiring anything in return. The United States has lost its will to achieve and its belief in the work ethic. We must get back to the fact that people have to work to achieve their dreams."

Westmoreland has said, "the government must take drastic economic steps now and reduce spending. Business as usual is not the answer."

Ayden Board Okays Advance To Contentnea Sewage District

AYDEN—The Ayden Board of Commissioners Monday night agreed to pay $1,000 to the Contentnea Metropolitan Sewage District until funding for the project could be received from state and federal funds.

Dr. Elliott Dixon, a member of the Ayden board of commissioners and the Contentnea Metropolitan Sewage District, told board members that the group would need some funds to operate until they could be funded through the district and that each of the three participating towns—Winterville, Ayden and Grifton—would be asked to advance $1,000 each toward the project. At the time that state and federal funds are received, each town will be credited for the money they paid in advance.

Commissioner Dixon explained that the Metropolitan Sewage District board members were sworn in June 28 and that Don Russell, Ayden town manager, was appointed a member-at-large for the group.

The Ayden board heard from two citizens, Kermit Dixon and Issac Allen, concerning the drainage problem in Kennedy Estates Subdivision.

Dixon told the board that he had been promised for five years that the problem would be corrected and that the board had done nothing to date.

Russell advised the two men that work had been done in the subdivision last year and with the grade already placed on the streets that it would be impossible to completely eliminate the problem.

Mayor Ross Persinger thanked the men for coming before the board and told them that the town would check the problem again and see if something else could be done.

The town adopted a resolution to have a police information network installed in the police department on a trial basis.

The board also raised the monthly garbage collection fee from $1.50 to $2.

Town Manger Russell told the board he had sent the annual firemen's certification report to the State Insurance Board.

Board members adopted an ordinance to bring the personnel pay plan within federal regulations.

The preliminary assessment resolution on Mill Street was approved. This is the first street the town has paved under a new act which allows municipalities to pave streets in the public interest without having to obtain a petition from property owners.

Winterville Board Approves Rezoning; Looks To Annexation

WINTERVILLE—The Winterville Board of Aldermen Monday night approved rezoning approximately 12 acres of land from agricultural-residential to industrial.

The property, located on secondary road 1714 east and secondary road 1713 north and to the Seaboard Coastline Railroad west, is owned by V. T. Corey. It was reported that 100 percent participation was received from property owners concerning the annexation of the north side of Cooper Street. No action was taken on the annexation but the target date for annexation of the property into the town limits was set for Jan. 1, 1975.

The board heard several complaints concerning the new garbage regulations, including the fact that no 50-gallon drums can be used as garbage cans and that the cans must have lids. Cans that are not covered will not be picked up by the garbage department.

Town Clerk Elwood Nobles reported to the board that the town is now using the new county landfill located off Allen Road.

The town accepted a state grant in the amount of $98,422 from the Clean Water Bond Act. The money will be used toward construction of a 500,000 gallon elevated water storage tank and necessary fittings to connect to an existing eight-inch water main.

Also planned in the project is a 500-gallon-per-minute well with necessary fittings to connect into a six-inch water main.

Bills for 1974-75 privilege licenses have been mailed, according to Nobles.

Replace Police Car

GRIFTON—The Grifton Board of Commissioners last night approved the purchase of a 1973 Dodge car to be used by the Grifton Police Department.

The vehicle, formerly owned by the State Highway Patrol, will replace an older car now used by the local police department.

Board members approved an advance loan of $1,000 to the Contentnea Metropolitan Sewage District. The district asked for funds to operate until it begins receiving money from state and federal grants. The towns of Winterville and Ayden were also asked to advance $1,000 each until other funding is received.

The superintendent of utilities was given permission to fence in part of the town dump to be used to house stray dogs.

Board members heard reports from Mrs. Catherine Condon on the library and police activities; John Coward, building inspections; and Gene Coley, utilities.

Bad Taste In Water

The Greenville Utilities Water Department is coping with a slight change in the taste and odor of Greenville's water supply. Water and Sewage Supt. Wadie Lewis said.

The change in the water was noted several days ago, and aeration and use of carbon pellets were increased to rid it of this "flavor." Some of the affected water still may be in the aerial tanks and in pipelines, but it should be gone soon, Lewis said.

"Rocky Mount and Tarboro are having the same problem," he said. "The condition is noted during times when the weather is hot and the river water is low. It's probably just that more "bottom water" gets into the system."

Bacterial content is closely monitored, of course, and this different-tasting water is in no way harmful to those who drink it, Lewis said.

No Action Is Taken

WILLIAMSTON—Martin County Commissioners met Tuesday night for additional discussions on the county's 1974-75 budget. The special meeting, held as a public hearing on the budget, had no interested citizens attending.

No action was taken on a budget decision, and commissioners are scheduled to meet again on Thursday night to continue work on shaping up the county's budget.

Picket Shooting Is Termed 'Ambush'

By MARIA BRADEN
Associated Press Writer
HARLAN, Ky. (AP) — The president of the United Mine Workers (UMW) has said the disturbance in which a picket was shot at an Eastover Mining Co. operation in Harlan County "was clearly an ambush of a lawful picket line."

State Police arrested a Harlan County man Tuesday in connection with Monday night's shooting at Eastover's High Splint mine. The mine remained closed and no incidents were reported as picketing continued Tuesday and Tuesday night. Pickets were expected to return today.

Orville Nolan Jr., 23, of Verda is charged with shooting and wounding with intent to kill in Monday night's disturbance. Nolan is free on $3,000 bond and no hearing date has been set.

He is charged in the shooting of Miniard Turner, 66, of High Splint, who was reported in satisfactory condition at the Harlan Appalachian Regional Hospital.

About 25 pickets closed the mine at High Splint on Monday morning to show support for UMW strikers at Eastover's Brookside mine, state police and UMW sources said.

The miners at High Splint are represented by the Southern Labor Union (SLU).

Mic Messer, president of the UMW local at Brookside, said no incidents were reported during the day and that workers reporting for the 11 p.m. shift at High Splint also honored the picket line.

Messer told all but six men to go home, he said in a sworn statement to state police. Four of the remaining pickets were Brookside miners, one was from a mine at Glenbrook, and the sixth was Turner, a retired pensioner living in High Splint. About 11:30 p.m., Messer said, a man approached in a car, saying he was an Eastover employee and was going to cross the picket line.

Messer saw a pistol in the car and stepped back, but Turner stepped up to the car and began to tell the occupant the advantages of belonging to a union, according to Messer's statement.

Messer said he then heard three or four shots and Turner fell to the ground.

State police say, however, that Nolan said he had put his car in reverse to leave when Turner opened the door, cut his left shoulder with a knife and tried to pull him from the car.

An exchange of gunfire occurred, state police say, in which bullets struck Turner twice and Nolan's car five times.

Messer said the car then crossed a one-lane bridge to the High Splint mine and gunfire began from company property, lasting about 20 minutes.

UMW President Arnold Miller said Tuesday that "union men who worked in the High Splint picket last night said they hadn't heard automatic weapon fire since they served in World War II."

"This act was clearly an ambush of a lawful picket line," Miller's statement said.

Miller noted he had warned the president of North Carolina's Duke Power Co., Carl Horn, last week of possible violence because of growing rumors of strike breakers at Eastover, a Duke subsidiary.

The union president said Horn replied that "Eastover Mining Co. can control its employees and they are under strict orders not to commit any acts of violence."

State police said the only firing Monday night occurred while the men were still across the bridge from company property.

Meanwhile, Nolan obtained warrants for Turner's arrest on a charge of malicious cutting and wounding and Messer's arrest on a charge of shooting into an occupied auto.

Norman Yarborough, president of Eastover, has not been available for comment.

Eastover's High Splint mine continued to operate after miners at its Brookside facility went on strike in July 1973.

The Brookside miners voted for representation by the UMW rather than the SLU, but the UMW has been unable to obtain a contract with Eastover.

Tall Folks Air Woes

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bruised heads, knees and feelings are daily hardships. They avoid aisle seats in theaters. They shop by mail or spend exorbitant amounts of money for clothes and shoes.

They are tall people in a world designed for the mythical average person.

Some 250 members of Tall Clubs International are gathered here to discuss such problems eye to eye with other women 5-foot-10 or taller and other men at least 6-2.

Boosting the self esteem of the tall people is a main function of the clubs, which claim 3,000 members in 68 United States, Canadian and European chapters. They were founded 28 years ago.

"We came together first for social reasons and tried to be a comfort to each other," Ray Jones, a 6-6 General Services Administration engineer from Philadelphia, said at the convention opening Tuesday. The meeting runs through Sunday.

"We get some girls and guys who have been social outcasts for years because of their height. As a minority of 3 percent, we have some problems but we're making progress."

"We lobbied bedding manufacturers to point out the need for king-sized and extra-long beds for comparable prices and that is being remedied," he said. "We also would like General Motors and other car manufacturers to put more leg room in their cars. Now people have to modify the front seat so it will slide back further, or they just suffer."

At the urging of the Tall Clubs, Jones said some airlines now let passengers reserve seats next to emergency exit doors where there's an extra foot of leg room.

"But clothes are the main problem," said Winnie Heinson, chairwoman of the convention's beauty pageant.

"We can't shop like a regular person," she said. "Trying to find a 14 narrow shoe is nearly impossible. We would like to be able to buy less expensive things."

"I was a skinny kid and wore T-shirts when I went swimming," Jones recalled. "I told the other kids I was afraid of getting sunburned, but I was hiding my ribs. They called me things like 'bean pole' or 'the fat spear.' I could not accept the fact that I was extremely tall and slender."

UNC Med School Grant

CHAPEL HILL (AP)—The University of North Carolina Medical School has received a federal grant of $1,086,686 under a recently expired health manpower act.

The funds represented the final allocation under the Comprehensive Health Manpower Training Act of 1971 which set up a three-year program to expand enrollment in medical schools. Legislation that would continue the program is pending in Congress.

Dean Christopher Fordham of the UNC Medical School said the grant is now built into the school's operating budget and he is hopeful Congress will renew the program.

Ray May Get New Hearing

MEMPHIS (AP)—An evidentiary hearing may get underway Sept. 30 for James Earl Ray, who is serving a 99-year prison sentence for the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert M. McRae Jr. said Tuesday Sept. 30 would be an "appropriate date" to begin the hearing which could lead to a new trial for Ray.

The hearing would be to determine whether Ray will be pressured into pleading guilty in 1969 to the assassination of the civil rights leader. King was shot on April 4, 1968, as he stood on the balcony of the Lorraine Motel in Memphis.

Ray claims his attorney at the time, Percy Foreman of Houston, Tex., and Alabama author William Bradford Huie pressured him into entering a guilty plea to enhance the sales of Huie's book on King's death.

Ray said he assigned 60 per cent of the book's royalties to Foreman as payment of his legal fee.

If McRae finds that Ray's claims are valid, then the judge would order a new trial.

McRae said earlier the hearing might not be held until sometime in October, but in a letter to the attorneys, he said he had given more thought to the date and decided on Sept. 30.

"However, in this regard, I am not fully aware of the time counsel will need to prepare for the hearing," the judge wrote.

McRae set July 19 for filing motions and affidavits in the case, and tentatively set Aug. 22 or Aug. 23 for a hearing on the motions.

Ray's attorneys plan to ask the judge this week to reconsider his ruling that attorneys cannot subpoena witnesses outside a 100-mile radius of Memphis. If McRae increases the limits, it will mean Ray's attorneys could issue subpoenas for Foreman and Huie.

Robert I. Livingston of Memphis, one of Ray's attorneys said Tuesday he could see no reason why Foreman or Huie would not appear in court voluntarily "to defend their honor" against Ray's claim if McRae stands by his ruling.

CP&L Says In 'Crisis'

RALEIGH (AP)—Carolina Power and Light Co. President Shearon Harris is scheduled to continue his defense before the state Utilities Commission today of his company's requested 21 per cent rate hike.

The North Carolina Utilities Commission opened hearings Tuesday on the $48 million request with Harris' testimony that his company is facing a financial "crisis situation."

CP&L requested the increase in October 1973 and a 10 per cent interim increase has been in effect since January.

Harris said the increase was necessary due to the "seriously deteriorated financial condition of the company and the certain prospects that this condition will worsen unless the proposed rates and fossil fuel clause are allowed in full."

In testimony prepared for the commission, Harris cited rising costs and higher risks as reasons investors were shying away from utilities investments.

"The volatility of the fuel market is a risk factor that undoubtedly influences potential investors in electric utility equities," Harris said.

Harris said rising construction costs, the cost of capital, environmental expenditures and increases in fossil fuel prices have all helped create the "crisis situation."

The average bill for a CP&L customer in 1973 was $18.61. That would rise to $27.29 if the increase is approved. The average price for July 1974, including fuel price hikes, is $26.74.

The increase is being opposed by several groups, including the North Carolina Consumers Council and the North Carolina Textile Manufacturers Association.

CP&L serves more than 633,000 customers in Eastern and Central North Carolina and the Asheville area.

The first international prize fight was held in St. Louis in 1869 with America's Mike McCool beating England's Tom Allen in a bare knuckles contest.

Believe Body Is Diplomat

HERMOSILLO, Mexico (AP) — Mexican authorities say a shattered pair of glasses has aided in affirming that a skeleton found near here is that of kidnaped U.S. diplomat John S. Patterson.

Sonora Atty. Gen. Miguel Angel Cortes Ibarra announced late Tuesday that evidence gathered from the shallow gravesite in a rain-washed arroyo left no doubt as to the identity.

Patterson, 31, of Philadelphia, vanished after leaving his office at the American consulate and getting into a car with an unidentified man on March 22, less than two months after he was assigned here as vice-consul.

Within hours, a note demanding $500,000 ransom for his release was found under the door of the consulate.

Patterson's wife, Andra, said she made several attempts to pay the ransom, raised privately, but was unable to make contact with the abductors. The Pattersons had a small daughter.

Positive identification of the broken spectacles came from Antonio Del Pozzo, a brother-in-law of Patterson's wife. Del Pozzo, an employe of a Rome tourist agency, said he had ordered the glasses especially for the diplomat.

The glasses and a U.S. government-issue pen were recovered as police probed the gravesite discovered Sunday by a farmer picking fruit. The remains had been washed up by weekend rains, investigators said.

Doctors had not made a final determination from medical and dental records, but authorities said a preliminary autopsy and comparisons with Patterson's health records matched characteristics of the remains. Cortes and Sonora Police Chief Francisco Arellano Noblecia said they regarded confirmation by medical examiners as little more than a formality.

American consular officials insisted, however, that identity of the missing diplomat had not been firmly established and they could make no comment until this was done.

Authorities at first believed Patterson had been kidnaped by Mexican leftists, but the American FBI later arrested self-styled soldier of fortune Bobby Joe Keesee on charges of planning and taking part in the kidnaping.

Keesee, 40, pleaded innocent. He is being held in lieu of $500,000 bond in San Diego, Calif.

Search Is Abandoned

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A search along the west bank of the Mississippi River for two bodies allegedly buried there was abandoned Tuesday afternoon.

Officers said they are now looking for certain persons who are supposed to know the two victims.

A Georgia prisoner told police he had robbed and murdered the men and buried their bodies beside the river on June 30.

The search may be resumed if additional evidence is found, authorities said.

Larry James Mauldin, 40, led officers to the area near the Greater New Orleans bridge. No bodies were found.

The Cobb County, Ga., sheriff's office brought Mauldin to New Orleans Monday night. He was being held in Georgia on charges of kidnaping, sexual assault on a juvenile and escape.

He had told Georgia police that after murdering the two men he went to Marietta, Ga., where he was arrested.

He was living in a New Orleans suburb when he met the unidentified victims, he said. He had escaped from a prison at Waynesville, N.C., before coming to New Orleans, prison officials said.

FLUSHED BY SUCCESS

HULL, England (AP) — Dennis Bateson, 23, who formerly flushed 2,000 toilets a day as tester at a bathroom equipment factory here, has been promoted to the position of junior foreman.

Bateson was known as Britain's top chain puller and had held his previous post for two years. Now the company reports having trouble finding a new man for the flushing job.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina egg markets were stronger Tuesday. Supplies barely adequate, demand good. Weighted average prices for small lot sales of consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby outlets: Grade A large whites 53.65, medium whites 47.30, small whites 36.43.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—Broiler market steady today with the F.O.B. dock price at 37.48 cents per pound. The undertone is weaker for next week. Supplies are ample and demand fair. Weights mostly desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers today 1,110,000.

N.C. Hens: Steady on heavy types. Supplies ample and demand fair. Heavy hens at farm 08 cents per pound.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—Not enough on offer to establish a trend. Kinston and Lumberton, 38.00-39.00; Tarboro and Bethel, 35.50-36.00; Salisbury 36.50.

NEW YORK (AP) — Investors pushed stock prices marginally higher on technical factors today, brokers said.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 1.72 at 774.01 in light trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Advances led declines 555 to 419 among 1,430 issues traded. Despite the gloom over high interest rates, liquidity problems, and the general economic climate, brokers say some investors are being attracted into the market by the low prices of many stocks. Most stock indexes are at a 3 1/2 year low.

"While stocks are probably the cheapest things around just now, there are other vehicles with higher safety and greater returns," said Ronald Copper of W.E. Hutton & Co., who called this analysis "the same old story." NLT Corp., an insurance holding company, topped the Big Board's volume list, dropping 1/2 to 12 3/4. British Petroleum gained 3/8 to 8 3/4 while Black & Decker fell 5/8 to 30 1/2.

Walt Disney Productions, delayed in opening after the company announced second quarter earnings of 43 cents a share versus 47 cents, moved 2 1/2 higher to 35 1/2. Brokers said investors believed the dip would be worse.

Texas Instruments fell 2 3/4 to 85 1/2, while Avon Products skidded 2 to 40. On the bright side, Skyline Corp., mobile-home manufacturers, gained 1 to 13 3/4.

Combustion Engineering, announcing $17 million in new orders, fell 1/2 to 37.

Golds moved lower with ASA, Ltd., down 2 1/2 to 81 3/4; Campbell Red Lake, off 1 3/4 to 35 1/2; and Homestake Mining, off 1 1/2 to 43 3/4.

On the Amex the most-active stock was Imperial Oil A, up 1 to 28 3/4. At 11 a.m. the Amex market-value index was ahead 60 to 75.39.

The Big Board's composite index at 11 a.m. was ahead .10 at 42.50.

Transcript Differences Are Played Down

Doar also emphasized that committee members would have to make the final decision on the significance of differences and on which version to accept. Members are scheduled to begin debating next week whether there are grounds to impeach President Nixon.

Release of the transcripts was the first step in scheduled disclosure of thousands of pages of evidence the committee has received from its impeachment staff. More material is expected to come out by week's end.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler called release of the transcripts "a hyped public relations campaign."

He said the committee should release "the full body of evidence all together, all at once, and not in piecemeal fashion."

The committee transcripts were drawn from tapes of conversations Sept. 15, 1972, Feb.

28, March 13, two on March 21, March 22 and two on April 16, all in 1973. Those were the only cases in which the committee had tapes covering conversations included in the White House transcripts released April 30.

In a nationally televised speech April 29, the President disclosed he was releasing edited transcripts of 43 conversations he had with aides about Watergate.

"They include all the relevant portions of all the subpoenaed conversations that were recorded," Nixon said. "All portions that relate to the question of what I knew about Watergate or the cover-up and what I did about it."

They were Nixon's response to a Judiciary Committee subpoena demanding tapes of 42 conversations. The committee refused to accept the edited transcripts as compliance with its subpoena.

WATERGATE COMMITTEE
Both versions showed Nixon and his staff early in 1973 regarded the Senate investigation, to be headed by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., as a partisan Democratic effort to embarrass the Republican administration.

During the Feb. 28 conversation, White House counsel John W. Dean III suggested Ervin was "merely a puppet for (Sen. Edward M.) Kennedy (D-Mass.) in this whole thing."

A few moments later, Nixon was quoted as saying, "Yeah, I guess the whole Kennedy crowd is just laying in the bushes waiting to make their move."

resign as a top aide to President Eisenhower. Adams had been accused of accepting favors from Boston industrialist Bernard Goldfine.

Nixon said he thought Adams had been mistreated and he didn't want the same thing to happen in the Watergate matter. For that reason, he said that he wanted them "to stone-wall it."

Then he added that "I would prefer ... that you do it the other way," an apparent reference to offering Ervin the Dean report.

Ervin commented that the March 22 conversation reflected the White House plan "to pretend in public to cooperate, but at the same time to do everything possible to obstruct and impede the committee's investigation."

Watergate committee member Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., said: "The sad part of this is that this is the period in which the President has said that he was leading a quest for the truth" about Watergate. "This language is not language which leads to a quest for the truth."

He added, "They adopted a stance of public cooperation and private footdragging. These transcripts tend to reinforce what we already knew."

The first reaction of Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, on reading the President's words was a terse, "Good Lord!" He then said only, "It speaks for itself. What else can I say."

There were differences in emphasis between the two versions of March 21 discussions of Hunt's demands for money.

In the White House transcripts, Nixon said Hunt "might blow the whistle and his price is pretty high, but at least we can buy time on that, as I pointed out to John."

Bound Over On Rape

A Rt. 3 Greenville man was bound over by District Court Judge Robert D. Wheeler Monday to Superior Court when probable cause was found on a rape and other charges.

Rufus Alexander Hamilton Jr., 21, of Rt. 3, Greenville was bound over on one rape charge, a charge of first degree burglary, burglary and breaking and entering and assault with the intent to commit rape.

A bond of $10,000 was set on the charge of assault with the intent to commit rape, while no bond was allowed on any of the other charges, according to the Superior Court Clerk.

Hamilton was arrested by the city police department on June 20 and charged with rape in connection with two instances in the city, on May 20 and March 23.

He was also charged by Pitt County Sheriff's deputies on a charge of first degree burglary and assault with the intent to commit rape after an incident in the county in June.

Suddenly the runs are coming for the New York Yankees. The Yankees, who scored only 19 runs in 11 games a while ago, have erupted for 45 in their last five starts, including Tuesday night's 8-2 pounding of the Kansas City Royals. Manager Bill Virdon said he doesn't know why, but added, "Whatever it is, I'd keep doing it. "But really, this is closer to what we should be doing," Virdon said. "They say everything evens up ... I'd settle for leveling off—nine or 10 hits a game, plus some runs."

Elsewhere in the American League, the Boston Red Sox nipped the Texas Rangers 2-1, the Milwaukee Brewers edged the Chicago White Sox 6-5, the Minnesota Twins trimmed the Detroit Tigers 3-2 in 11 innings, the Oakland A's blanked the Cleveland Indians 7-0 and the Baltimore Orioles beat the California Angels 3-1.

Red Sox 2, Rangers 1
Luis Tiant and Jim Bibby hooked up in a basic, old-fashioned pitching duel in Boston, and Tiant came out on top.

Bibby, the Texas Rangers' hard-throwing young right-hander, fired a six-hitter but it wasn't good enough as Tiant allowed just four hits in pitching the Red Sox to victory.

Brewers 6, White Sox 5
Big George Scott drove in four runs for the Brewers, finally winning the game with his ninth home run of the season leading off the ninth inning. Earlier, Scott three times had driven home rookie Robin Yount.

Jorge Orta belted a three-run homer for the White Sox.

Twins 3, Tigers 2
Harmon Killebrew drove in the winning run in the 11th inning with a single off Detroit relief ace John Hiller.

The Tigers, who suffered their fourth consecutive loss, had tied the score with two out in the ninth on Bill Freehan's RBI single.

Orioles 3, Angels 1
Boog Powell drove in two runs and Mike Cuellar and Bob Reynolds combined on a four-hitter for the Orioles, who moved into a flat-footed tie with Cleveland for first place in the AL East.

It was the fourth consecutive victory and seventh in eight games for the Orioles. The Angels have lost 10 in a row, including nine since Dick Williams took over as manager.

A's 7, Indians 0
Jim "Catfish" Hunter spun a three-hitter for his second successive shutout, raising his season's record to 12-8 and boosting the first-place A's lead over Kansas City in the AL West to 4½ games.

Joe Rudi drove in three runs and Reggie Jackson two for Oakland, while Pat Bourque hit his first home run of the season.

National League scores: Cincinnati 8, Chicago 5; Los Angeles 8, Philadelphia 4; Pittsburgh 5, Atlanta 4; Montreal 5, San Francisco 4; Houston 5, St. Louis 2, and San Diego 5, New York 4.

WFL Makes Premiere

By F.T. MACFEELY
Associated Press Writer
JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The debut showcase of the World Football League—its first televised game—matches the New York Stars against the Jacksonville Sharks Thursday night in the Gator Bowl.

The game, starting at 9 p.m., EDT, will be carried by about 100 stations put together by the TV network. The Jacksonville area will be blacked out since the expected crowd of 40,000 will be well short of 70,000 capacity.

Since the WFL is plunging into league play without the benefit of preseason shakedown games, TV viewers probably will find things a bit ragged in comparison with the National Football League play they are used to.

But New York Coach Babe Parilli said: "I don't think the fans will see a pair of disorganized teams. We've practiced five weeks and played a couple scrimmage games." Sharks Coach Bud Asher feels much the same, although his team played only one scrimmage game and lost it to the Birmingham Americans.

"We have a sound game plan and have gone into extensive planning for this game," Asher said. "They (the Stars) are supposed to be the best in the league and we'll be out to beat No. 1."

Jacksonville's starting backfield will have a home-area flavor. Kay Stephenson, who quarterbacked the University of Florida Gators and later the San Diego Chargers and Buffalo Bills of the NFL, will be the arm.

New York features a group of former NFL New York Jets, including George Sauer, Gerry Philbin and John Elliott.

Tom Sherman, formerly of the New England Patriots, will quarterback the Stars.

Oakmont Holds Church Lead

Oakmont Baptist kept its half-game lead over St. James by winning their game with Trinity, 17-8, in Church League Softball last night.

In other action: Memorial Baptist downed St. Gabriel, 12-6. St. James blasted First Christian, 19-2. People's defeated Arlington, 10-3. First Free Will Baptist was shutout by Black Jack, 18-0, and Immanuel defeated University-Mt. Pleasant, 16-6.

On Field One, U-MP jumped to a quick one run lead in the first inning, only to see Immanuel score four in their half of the inning. U-MP took the lead back at 5-4, but was left behind by three more Immanuel runs in the bottom of the third. Immanuel added two in the fourth, six in the fifth, and one in the sixth. U-MP came up with one more run in the fifth.

In the second game, Black Jack got all they needed with six in the second, including a homer by Dixon. Colson homered in the third inning to highlight a three-run third inning. Black Jack added three more in the fourth, and six in the sixth.

People's Bible Church took a 2-1 lead in the bottom of the second inning of their game and added four runs in both the fourth and fifth innings. Arlington added two runs in the fourth.

On Field Two, St. James scored seven runs in the first inning, added one in the second, nine more in the third, and two in the fourth. First Christian scored their two runs in the fourth.

Oakmont fell behind 4-3 to Trinity before adding five runs in the second inning. They then got one in the third, three in the fifth, and five in the sixth. Trinity one in the third and two in the fifth.

St. Gabriel led Memorial Baptist 5-3 after four innings before the Baptist erupted for three runs in the fifth and six in the sixth. St. Gabriel added one more in the fifth.

Teams Advance

Piggly-Wiggly, Coca-Cola, and Beltone, all picked up wins in the second round of the Ladies' League softball tournament at Guy Smith Stadium last night.

Piggly-Wiggly had the easiest game of the evening, taking a forfeit victory from the Daily Reflector, thus eliminating them from the tournament. Coke scored seven runs in the first inning of their game with Dixie Sales, and stretched it to a 15-3 victory. They added two in the third, four in the sixth, and two in the seventh, including a two-run triple by S. Kelly.

Dixie Sales scored one run in the third and two in the seventh. Beltone jumped out to an early lead to defeat Little Mint, 16-3. They scored one in the second, got a grand slam home run from Taylor for four in the third, added one in the fourth, scored nine in the fifth, including a triple by Dempsey, and one in the sixth.

Little Mint scored two runs in the fourth, and one in the sixth, including a triple by L. Tripp. Thursday night, Piggly-Wiggly will face Coke in the loser's bracket, and the winner of that game will face Little Mint in the following game.

LYTHAM ST. ANNE'S, England (AP) — He's golf's globe-trotting gauch, winner of more tournaments than any player who ever lived, and he's teeing it up again in the British Open. 26 years after he made his debut at Muirfield in 1948.

His career has spanned three eras which have covered the titles of Henry Cotton, Bobby Locke, Ben Hogan, Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus.

He thinks Sam Snead is the greatest.

"How can you compare anyone with Sam Snead?" Roberto de Vincenzo of Argentina said Wednesday as he prepared to tee off in the 103rd Open at Royal Lytham and St. Anne's.

"Sam began winning tournaments in 1938. Now, 36 years later, he still wins tournaments. He still holds his own with the best of the kids," De Vincenzo said.

"Ben Hogan was a great golfer, but he stopped too soon. I rate Sam Snead the best because of his many victories over so long a span. Golf may never see anyone like him."

Did He Or Didn't He; Only Marshall Knows

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Today's Quickie Quiz, sports fans, is a multiple-choice question that's really not a multiple-choice question.

Q: Mike Marshall (a) did, (b) did not, pitch in the Los Angeles Dodgers' 8-4 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies Tuesday night.

Even the class dunce knows there's only one answer to that. Of course Marshall pitched ... for the 58th time this season. But don't get the idea the Dodgers' relief ace is over-worked.

"He had a day of rest," explained Manager Walter Alston. Elsewhere in the National League, the Cincinnati Reds outslugged the Chicago Cubs 8-5, the Houston Astros beat the St. Louis Cardinals 5-2, the Montreal Expos edged the San Francisco Giants 5-4, the Pittsburgh Pirates nipped the Atlanta Braves 5-4 and the San Diego Padres shaded the New York Mets 5-4.

Reds 8, Cubs 5
The Reds smashed six home runs, including a three-run shot by George Foster in the sixth inning after five solo shots in the first three innings—Joe Morgan in the first, Tony Perez and Cesar Geronimo in the second and Dan Driessen and Johnny Bench in the third. The first five all came off Steve Stone. Rick Monday and Jose Ardenal homered for the Cubs.

"They didn't pick on any one pitcher," sighed Stone. "They hit them all."

Astros 5, Cardinals 2
Lee May hammered two home runs and Dave Roberts fired a six-hitter as Houston handed St. Louis its fourth consecutive setback.

The Cardinals staked John Curtis to a 2-0 lead in the first two innings, but May smashed his first homer in the bottom of the second and Curtis was chased in the fourth when the Astros scored twice more.

Expos 5, Giants 4
Tim Foli's two-run single capped a four-run third inning for Montreal and Mike Jorgensen homered in the fifth for what proved to be the winning run.

Winning pitcher Dennis Blair started the uprising with a single off loser Tom Bradley.

Pirates 5, Braves 4
Manny Sanguillen's two-run double keyed a four-run fourth inning outburst that helped Ken

Brett to his 11th victory. Brett, who is known as much—if not more—for his hitting than his pitching, set up what proved to be the winning run with a hit-and-run single in the seventh.

Padres 5, Mets 4
Fred Kendall drove in three runs with a double and single and Dave Roberts socked a two-run homer for San Diego.

The Padres built a 5-1 lead and then withstood a three-run homer in the ninth by New York's Ron Hodges.

American League scores: Oakland 7, Cleveland 0; Baltimore 3, California 1; Boston 2, Texas 1; New York 8, Kansas City 2; Minnesota 3, Detroit 2 in 11 innings; Milwaukee 6, Chicago 5.

U-Kiwanis, Ayden-Grifton Get Sr. Babe Ruth Wins

University Kiwanis scored two runs in the first inning, and added eight the rest of the game to defeat Taff Office Equipment, 10-0, in the first game of the Senior Babe Ruth League doubleheader last night.

The second game, between Fire Fighters and Farmville, ended in a 3-3 tie after 12 innings. U-K got all it needed in the first inning when Steve Fuchs singled and stole second. Greg Sasser walked, and Ken Tetterton walked also to load the bases. A passed ball scored Fuchs from third, moving Sasser up. He later scored on another passed ball.

They added one in the second when Sasser walked again, and came around on an error and a single by Tetterton. Three more crossed in the fifth inning when Tetterton led off with a walk, moved to second when Doug Causey reached on an error, moved to third on a passed ball, and scored on an infield error. Causey, moving right behind Tetterton, scored from third when Bobby Sasser singled. Rick Harrell walked, moved to second on the error, went to third on Sasser's hit, and scored on a passed ball.

U-K added two runs in both the sixth and seventh innings. Tetterton was the winning pitcher, allowing only three hits, and striking out seven. Farmville took the initial lead in the second when Eddie Horne tripled and scored on Marty Hobgood's single. Hobgood came around on two stolen bases, and David Joyner's double. They added their third run in the sixth when Norris reached on an error, and scored on three different errors in the infield.

Fire Fighters got all their runs in the fifth. Clennel Streeter got a two-out walk, moved up on Greg Coward's single, and scored on Danny Norris' single, with Coward moving to third. Coward eventually scored on a catcher's error, with Norris taking second. Norris took third on Keith Gould's single, and scored on a first baseman's error.

Sneed, Nevil Among Favorites

BETTENDORF, Iowa (AP) — Ed Sneed and Dwight Nevil and sentimental favorites Sam Sneed, Sam Adams and Jim Jamieson share the favorites role for the Quad Cities Open Golf Tournament.

The 72-hole chase for the $20,000 first prize opens Thursday over the Crow Valley Golf Club's 6,501-yard course. The par-71 layout features heavily trapped, small greens.

The tournament, started as a satellite event in 1971, was held in the fall previously and was plagued by cold and rainy weather, but was given the prime July date this year when the Robinson, Ill., Open was dropped from the tournament schedule.

Most of the game's major luminaries again will be absent from the tournament that was elevated to a $100,000 event two years ago.

Sneed rates a favorite tag on the strength of his victory last week in the $125,000 Milwaukee Open, where he won easily with a 276 total, and Nevil on the strength of previous strong showings over the Crow Valley course. Nevil finished second here a year ago as Adams won with a 268 total.

AN ACCREDITED MANAGEMENT ORGANIZATION

Regulation Senate Passes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has passed and sent to the House a bill creating a federal agency to regulate U.S. amateur sports.

The legislation, approved Tuesday on a 62-29 vote, included an amendment by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., stipulating that sports disputes be handled through binding arbitration.

Under the bill, a five-member independent U.S. Sports Board would be set up with broad authority to issue and revoke charters of nonprofit organizations and governing bodies.

An organization chartered as U.S. Sports Association would be the domestic governing group over not more than three sports. It would become the official sanctioning body for any competition directly related to qualifying athletes for international events, including national championships or Olympic trials.

Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., floor manager for the bill, said that if a sports organization did not agree to arbitration and had acted unfairly, the sports board could revoke its charter.

Tunney said the measure would "begin to break the stranglehold that the massive sport bureaucracies have held over amateur athletes for 70 years in America."

Olga Korbut Doesn't Understand Women's Lib

Editor's Note: Olga Korbut, the Soviet gymnast who won four gold medals at the World Games last year, completed a tour of the United States Tuesday night with an exhibition in St. Paul, Minn. She was interviewed on the eve of her final exhibition by Alisa Kopytov, a secretary of the Minneapolis bureau of The Associated Press. Mrs. Kopytov speaks fluent Russian and talked to Miss Korbut without the aid of an interpreter.

By ALISA KOPYTOV
Of The Associated Press
ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Olga Korbut, the 19-year-old Soviet gymnastics star, shrugged off questions about women's lib Tuesday and indicated she didn't really understand what it was all about.

Anyhow, Miss Korbut said, she had "no time for politics" in her busy, athletic life.

Miss Korbut, winner of four gold medals at the 1973 World Games, met reporters in St. Paul Tuesday night as she and her team wound up a two week exhibition tour in the United States with a performance here.

She said audiences in the United States have been warm and friendly, similar in that respect to the people back home.

Was there anyone special in those audiences in the Soviet Republic?

"Boy friends?" laughed the 4-foot-10, 83-pound blonde. "I have many friends."

"My love," she added, "is gymnastics. I will continue as long as my performance brings happiness to people."

Miss Korbut said she practices up to four hours a day. "I perform," she said. "I don't concern myself with such matters (women's lib) while I perform."

Miss Korbut said she admired the American style of gymnastics and found unique elements in it. She liked the different choreography and "the well produced individual movement."

She added, however, that she felt the American composition of movements sometimes lacked fluidity.

US Cagers Down Cuba

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Coach Gene Bartow said the United States couldn't afford to look ahead to Yugoslavia and proved himself a prophet when the Americans had to battle hard to down Cuba 83-70 in the World Basketball Championships.

Bartow, sitting with his team in the still-darkened Roberto Clemente Coliseum 45 minutes before the game with Cuba Tuesday night, wasn't prepared to look ahead to the Saturday-Sunday clashes with defending champion Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union.

Yugoslavia beat the Russians 82-79 a couple of hours earlier leaving the Americans and Yugoslavians as the only unbeaten teams.

"This is the only game I'm worried about," said Bartow of Cuba. Cuba battled the U.S. on nearly even terms for the first half. The lead changed hands twice before the Americans finally forged a 47-41 halftime lead on two straight long shots by Luther Burden of Utah and a basket by Eugene Short of Jackson State.

An unusually poor shooting performance by flashy guard John Lucas of Maryland against Cuba's zone was a big reason for the tight score. He made only four of 13 field shots in the first half, and starting forwards Gus Gerard and Tom Boswell were equally frustrated with identical two for seven shooting totals.

The breaking point came early in the second half when 7-foot Richard Kelley of Stanford blocked a shot, stole the ball and grabbed a rebound on three successive plays.

Kelley threw three long passes to Lucas for layups. The three scores shot the U.S. ahead 67-54 and Cuba never rallied.

Attempting To Tie Henley In To Assortment Of Torture Weapons

By JIM BARLOW
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The prosecution today attempts to tie the 18-year-old Elmer Wayne Henley to an assortment of items used in a homosexual torture and murder ring in which 27 teen-agers died.

Henley is on trial for six of those murders. The state expects to call scientific witnesses today to link physical evidence to Henley.

On Tuesday, the jury gazed at a plywood "torture board," 8 feet long and 3 feet wide, to which the victims were handcuffed.

Also brought into the court this week was a wooden "body box" which, according to Henley's statements introduced at the trial, was used to conceal young men being taken to one of three burial sites where the 27 bodies were discovered last August.

The introduction of the evidence came both during and after the testimony of Sgt. David Mullican, a detective with the Houston suburb of Pasadena whose efforts resulted in Henley's indictment.

Defense attorney Will Gray was overruled on more than 125 objections since testimony in the trial began Monday.

Henley called Pasadena police last Aug. 8 to tell them he had shot and killed Dean A. Corll, 33, the man police say was the leader of the torture-murder group. Police have also charged David Owen Brooks, 19, with four counts of murder in the slayings. No trial date has been set for Brooks.

In a written statement given to Mullican, Henley admitted killing six of the 27 youths. And in oral statements while he led officers to the bodies, Mullican said Henley told details of the killings.

Mullican said youths lured to Corll's home were tricked into donning handcuffs, then tied to the torture board and stripped.

"Henley said they were handcuffed to the board and sometimes to a wall with their mouths taped with adhesive tape so they couldn't make any noise," Mullican said.

Henley told of forms of sexual torture, Mullican testified.

Most of the victims died shortly after they were strapped to the board, Mullican said Henley told him; but one youth, William Ray Lawrence, 15, stayed alive longer. Lawrence, a neighbor of Henley's, is one of the six youths Henley is accused of killing.

"Billy Lawrence was kept about three days because Dean Corll particularly liked him," Mullican testified. "Henley said that Lawrence was kept for about three days chained to the board."

Mullican's testimony came under attack by defense lawyers who claimed that many of the incriminating statements testified to did not come up during a pretrial hearing last January in Houston.

Opponent Claims Fault Exists Along Site Of Proposed Plant

SURRY, Va. (AP)—A geologist was expected to testify before an Atomic Energy Commission hearing board here today in response to an allegation that a geological fault exists near the Surry Nuclear Power Plant.

June Allen of the North Anna Environmental Coalition, which opposes Virginia Electric & Power Co.'s plans to build four nuclear reactors on the North Anna River, testified Tuesday at the AEC board's hearing on a proposal by Veeco to build two more nuclear reactors at its Surry plant.

Mrs. Allen said she understood a Hampton Roads fault exists near the Surry plant, and an AEC geologist was to appear at the hearing today to discuss the allegation.

At a recent hearing by the AEC's advisory board, a Veeco geologist testified that the closest fault to the Surry site was south of Richmond.

The hearing was to conclude today with AEC lawyers cross-examining Veeco witnesses on their testimony about the environmental effects of the two additional units.

Mrs. Allen also asked about the ability of the soil to support the foundation at the plant, but a Veeco witness said to prevent the possibility of the soil at Surry liquifying under stress, it would be removed, replaced with more stable material and compacted to meet AEC requirements.

David Favre of Newport News, attorney for the New York-based Striped Bass Fund, told the hearing board Tuesday that construction of two more nuclear power units at the Surry plant could be the "straw that breaks the camel's back of the James' River.

Favre said an assessment of the impact of the addition of two units at the plant, where two nuclear units already are in operation, did not consider environmental stresses already present on the river.

He pointed to an increasing number of fish kills in the James in recent years and increasing pollution of the river, from which cooling water for the nuclear power plant is taken.

"We feel that any impact on the river...is such that it is not acceptable...at this time," Favre said. "There are many sources of pollution and stress on the James."

An expert witness for Veeco testified that the likelihood of the impingement of large numbers of fish where water is brought into the cooling system "is highly remote."

On another matter, an expert witness for Veeco testified that the company is committed to a "as-low-as-practicable" philosophy, below AEC-allowed levels, of normal yearly releases of radiation.

A Veeco witness also testified that through a new cooling system, the flow of heated water to the James River from the first two Surry nuclear units will be decreased 1.4 per cent.

Thermal pollution has become a major concern of environmentalists since Veeco announced it planned to add two more units at Surry. The first two units raised the water temperature in the river by as much as 12-14 degrees when it was used for cooling.

Dutch Embargo Ended By Arabs

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The Arab oil ministers today lifted their nine-month-old embargo against the Netherlands and then began discussing plans to invest $500 million of their vast new wealth in industrial projects.

The decision to end the embargo was taken 15 minutes after the opening of a meeting of the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries—OPEC.

A spokesman said the decision was unanimous. Algeria had already broken ranks and announced after an OPEC meeting in Cairo last month that it no longer would observe the embargo.

Replying to a newsman's question, the spokesman said the ministers had no plans to discuss reimposition of the embargo against the United States as Palestinian leaders suggested during an Arab League defense council meeting a week ago to ways to counter Israeli raids on Lebanon.

Commenting on the decision regarding Holland, Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani of Saudi Arabia said, "All the members were convinced the Dutch government's attitude toward the Middle East had changed and lifting the embargo was imminent." Egyptian and Algerian sources said before the conference they would try to convince other Arab states there was no longer any reason to maintain the boycott against Holland.

Dutch diplomats have been engaged in a sustained effort in recent months to get the Arab oil producing states to change their mind on the embargo.

Despite the ban, oil has continued to flow regularly into Rotterdam, a refining center for northern Europe. Consumers in Holland have experienced little inconvenience.

The embargo was declared last October 14 against the United States and the Netherlands during the fourth Arab-Israeli war, at the same time that Arab oil production was curtailed to reduce the supply to the rest of Western Europe and Japan. The Arab states charged that the Americans and the Dutch were supporting Israel, and they hoped the curtailment of the supply to other nations would force them to put pressure on the United States.

Iraq, meanwhile, accused Saudi Arabia of trying to destroy the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) by its insistence on lowering oil prices to please the United States.

Inflation Work Not Jawboning

WASHINGTON (AP) — His White House meetings with business and labor representatives, intended to focus the attention of "every responsible sector of society" on inflation and other economic problems, haven't amounted to "jawboning," economic coordinator Kenneth Rush says.

Jawboning would imply the administration was trying to head off specific price or wage hikes, Rush said Tuesday.

"In no case have I gone to a particular industry and said 'don't increase your price,'" he told reporters after meeting for 1½ hours with President Nixon, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon and other economic advisers.

Rush said Nixon will meet Thursday with some 19 top business leaders and 12 economists in a new effort to combat inflation. He said the session may be the first of a series involving the President.

No labor leaders have been invited to the meeting, Rush said, although he indicated they could be included in future meetings.

Rush said that during Nixon's meeting Tuesday with Simon and economic advisers, they talked about making new cuts in the 1975 federal budget in addition to the $5 billion they already hoped to trim.

He also said they considered proposals to help public utilities that are in financial trouble. He indicated some special assistance may be needed to help utilities expand to meet growing power needs. But it was clear from Rush's remarks that Nixon and his economic advisers did not come up with any fresh proposals to deal with inflation. He said inflation "is not something the government can just by turning off a switch do away with ..."

In another economic development, Simon leaves Thursday on a two-week trip to the Middle East and Europe, including stops in Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Israel, Germany, France and England.

A major purpose of the Middle East stops will be to engage the oil-producing countries in talks on how to invest their surplus oil earnings.

Air Fares To Climb Further

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Air fares between the United States and Europe, already scheduled for a 5 per cent hike in August, appear likely to climb still more on Nov. 1.

Forty airlines in the North Atlantic traffic conference of the International Air Transport Association tentatively agreed

To Attend Congress

Jeffrey Johnson of Fountain will attend the State 4-H Electric Congress in Wilmington July 15-17. He will be one of 175 4-H'ers at the meeting.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Johnson of Fountain. Johnson was selected on the basis of achievements in the 4-H electric project.

During the conference, the delegates will hear project reports, view electric demonstrations and exhibits and tour the USS North Carolina Battleship and local Wilmington beaches.

The highlight of the congress is the selection of a state winner and eight territorial winners and eight territorial runners-up in the 4-H electric project.

The Congress is sponsored by Carolina Power and Light Company, Duke Power Company, Nantahala Power and Light Company, Virginia Electric and Power Company and the Westinghouse Educational Foundation, in cooperation with the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service.

Oil Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon heads for the Middle East next Thursday for a series of talks concerning the price and production of oil.

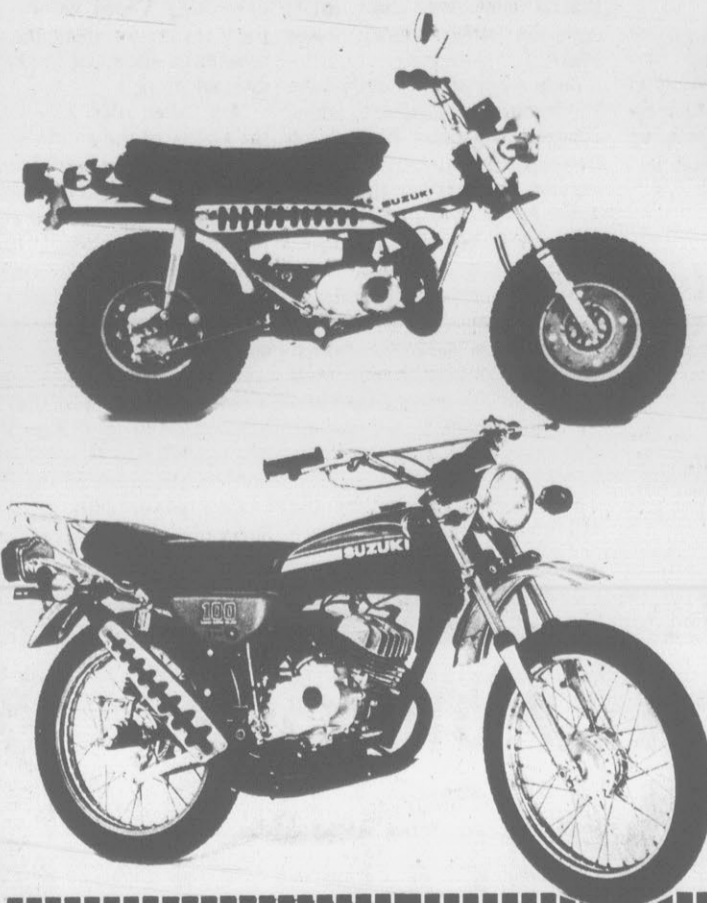

"The whole trip is energy-oriented ... petroleum production and marketing and certainly the price," said a spokesman.

Computers Help Search For Docs

By PATRICK O'KEEFE
Greensboro Record
GREENSBORO (AP) — Using techniques akin to computer dating services, two relatively new operations are helping stem the doctor shortage in North Carolina.

The first is a "physician search" program launched recently at the University of North Carolina School of Medicine. The second is a commercial doctor recruiting firm, the Corson Group, which has just set up its Southeastern and Mid-Atlantic regional office in Charlotte.

Both operations feed data about physicians and about communities needing doctors into a computer, then match them up. A neurologist willing to locate in a small city is matched with a small city looking for a neurologist, and so forth. Communities and hospitals are cast in the role of "wooing" the prospective doctors, who, typically, will have to choose among a number of "suits."

"Many communities have said all they wanted was a chance — just a chance — to talk to prospects," said John Payne, associate director of the division of education and research in community medical care at the university. "We want to give them as many candidates as possible."

Payne directs the physician search program, which was started by Glenn Wilson, associate dean of the same division.

So far as the American Medical Association knows, school spokesmen say, the Chapel Hill program is the first of its kind sponsored by an American medical school.

Payne and his staff mailed out 4,225 packets to first, second and third-year residents in hospitals from Baltimore to Miami and as far west as Arkansas. Each packet had a personal letter, a reply card, a state map, the glossy illustrated book, "The Goodliest Land," and a pamphlet about five North Carolina doctors, some urban, some rural.

UNC-CH has been concentrating on reducing the doctor shortage mainly in rural areas and especially in eastern North Carolina. Program staffers are elated over the return rate of the packet mailings, about 13 per cent. "Considering the kinds of places we're recruiting for," said one, "every single reply is a bonus."

The Corson Group too has undertaken to find doctors for rural areas, though its percentage fee operation makes it more lucrative to place high-priced specialists in urban locales.

The Corson Group does not consider itself in competition with the UNC-CH program.

"They are working on new graduates," said Robert Corson, the firm's president, in a telephone call from his New York headquarters, "whereas our efforts are to attract established practitioners from other areas."

Portuguese In Cabinet Crisis

By FENTON WHEELER
Associated Press Writer
LISBON, Portugal (AP) —

Portugal's 2 1/2-month-old revolutionary government was in deep crisis today after the collapse of the civilian cabinet and a rebuff to President Antonio de Spínola from the young officers who brought him to power.

Premier Adelino da Palma Carlos quit, saying the military would not give him sufficient power to govern effectively. He was followed out of office by Vice Premier Francisco sa Carneiro, Economics Minister Vasco Vieira de Almeida, the defense minister, Lt. Col. Mario Firmino Miguel, and Interior Minister Joaquim Jorge Magalhaes Mota. All are considered moderates.

A government spokesman said the remaining 10 ministers — six of them Socialists and Communists — probably would remain in office, but earlier in the week the leftists criticized Spínola for giving new appointments to several members of the authoritarian regime overthrown April 25.

Meanwhile, informed sources reported that the 21-member State Council, holder of ultimate authority in the regime, had turned back Spínola's ef-orts to solidify his own position by advancing the presidential election from next spring to the coming fall.

The sources said most of the votes against Spínola's request came from representatives of the Armed Forces Movement, the organization of young officers that staged the April revolution and then tapped Spínola to be the front man.

This rebuff and the council's unwillingness to enlarge the premier's powers indicated the young officers were not prepared to relinquish their authority.

Palma Carlos reportedly argued that he did not have enough power to resolve disputes between the moderates and leftists that were paralyzing the cabinet. A government spokesman said the State Council agreed to give the premier some additional powers, but he did not find these sufficient.

The departure of Economics Minister Almeida could jeopardize the economic and social program the 42-year-old liberal banker announced last Friday to combat mounting inflation, lagging production, unemployment and labor unrest.

Sonny, Cher In Fight Over Home

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sonny and Cher Bono are haggling over a property settlement involving their 22-room mansion in Holmby Hills, valued at $1.3 million.

The haggling comes in advance of the couple's divorce proceedings, which are expected to reach court in September.

Cher, 27, contends she bought the house from Sonny for $450,000 — and she has a memorandum of agreement bearing his signature to back it up. Sonny, 39, contends he got a court restraining order to keep her out.

Cher said she took possession of the house during Sonny's absence Monday night. She said she was accompanied by David Geffen, her frequent escort in recent months, a security guard, a governess for her daughter, Chastity, and her secretary.

Sonny said through a spokesman that Cher had taken the house and he could not get back in because of the guard. He moved into a Beverly Hills hotel.

The spokesman said Sonny had a restraining order to keep her out of the house. He said Sonny planned to go into court to settle possession of the house.

Of the 18 departments, Eastern Pines was the most active during the month, reporting to six alarms.

Governor Names State Coastal Resources Commission Members

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Gov. Jim Holshouser has named 10 Democrats and five Republicans to the new North Carolina Coastal Resources Commission.

In a statement Tuesday, Holshouser announced the names of the 15 member commission created to administer the 1974 Coastal Management Act.

Of the 15, 11 were nominated by local governments and four were directly chosen by Holshouser.

The governor is allowed direct selection of only three members, but a clause in the act gives him the power to make a free selection when a county or local government fails to nominate anyone.

The city of Havelock sent no nomination and Holshouser used the opportunity to appoint a Havelock conservationist, Dr. Gene Huntsman.

Holshouser picked the 11 nominated members from a list of more than 200 names submitted by towns and counties to represent several interest groups in coastal land use.

The commissioners are: Frank Furlough Jr. of Columbia in Tyrrell County, A Democrat, nominated by his home county and represents the commercial fishing industry.

Students Design New Playground

By CAROL B. TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
R.E.A.P.'s going to reap the fruit of the efforts of many Parks, Recreation, and Conservation students here soon.

According to Carol Smith of Fountain, a senior PRC major at East Carolina University, a playground tailor-made for the children who participate in the Development Evaluation Clinic's Remedial Education Activities Program (R.E.A.P.) soon will be finished.

Miss Smith has been the one to actually see to the construction and grounds preparation for the play area, but many other students did the investigation of feasibility, designing of equipment, and cost analysis, she said.

Dr. Tom Johnson's beginning Recreation Class has helped out with the painting and placement of the equipment, also, she added. She named several businesses and organizations that have contributed to the project.

"The Greenville Pilot Club and the Pitt County Association for Retarded Children donated a major part of the cost of the project," she said. "And Jack Farrior of Farmville has done wonders for us. He has redesigned much of the equipment, making it safer and less expensive to build. And now he is building it for us."

The playground will be at the Development Evaluation Clinic on Charles Street here and should be in use later this summer. R.E.A.P. Director Skeet Creekmore said this is the first play equipment specially designed for perceptually impaired children in Eastern North Carolina. "It will be a model for the N.C. Developmental Day Care Centers," he said. "Directors of these centers will come here from all over the state to learn how to construct their own at home."

Pieces of equipment to be used include a sandbox, artificial hills, tether ball, a "tunnel," a climber, a balance beam, an observation hut, swings, and a "bridge." Each has specific purposes in the development of perceptual skills, body awareness, and physical abilities, as well as fun for the children who will use it, Miss Smith said.

The playground will be at the Development Evaluation Clinic on Charles Street here and should be in use later this summer.

R.E.A.P. Director Skeet Creekmore said this is the first play equipment specially designed for perceptually impaired children in Eastern North Carolina. "It will be a model for the N.C. Developmental Day Care Centers," he said. "Directors of these centers will come here from all over the state to learn how to construct their own at home."

"The neatest thing about this whole project is that it's the result of tremendous community and university cooperative effort," he said. "And it will continue to be. Even as the children learn and have fun on this play equipment, students and community volunteers will learn about and from them, too."

Sealtest Told Proposal Illegal

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Milk Commission said Tuesday a proposal by Sealtest Foods to alter the way dairy farmers are paid for milk sold in South Carolina would be illegal.

A group of Western North Carolina dairy farmers said Sealtest was trying to force the change on them.

Under commission regulations, when milk is produced in North Carolina and sold in another state, the producers and processors split evenly the difference between the North Carolina producer price and the producer price in the other state.

John McLean of Hendersonville, president of the Asheville Sealtest Producers Association, told the commission Sealtest wants to split the first 20 cents of the difference between the prices evenly with the producer absorbing all the difference above that figure.

But commission attorney W. C. Harris Jr. told McLean and those accompanying him that the commission was powerless to do anything about Sealtest's threat to find another source for the milk produced by association members and now sold in South Carolina unless they agree to the change.

Bill Phelps of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation urged the milk commission to "take some action to eliminate this economic threat."

"It is a threat, a direct threat," he said.

The commission discussed setting a public hearing to change the regulation on producer prices on milk sold outside the state. Harris suggested the possibility of changing the regulation so the producer would receive the price paid producers in the state where the milk is shipped.

McLean, however, was not ready to support a request for a public hearing.

After the meeting, he said 40 to 45 per cent of the milk produced by his association is sold in South Carolina. He said the association is composed of about 125 producers in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Tennessee.

Two Hurt In Wrecks

Two persons were reported injured in one of two traffic collisions here yesterday that resulted in an estimated $1,400 property damage.

Police said Daniel Russell Early Sr. of 1003 Taylor St. and Robert James Page of 1510 Myrtle Ave. were hurt when the cars they were driving collided about 12:34 p.m. at the intersection of 14th and Chestnut Streets.

Officers, who charged Early with failing to yield the right of way, estimated damage at $750 to the Early car and $350 to the Page vehicle.

An estimated $150 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 7:12 p.m. collision on the Evans Park road 500 feet East of the Hooker Road intersection.

Investigators identified the drivers involved as Georgia Brickhouse Potter of 1407 Polk Ave. and Joseph Edward Baker of Route 1, Greenville.

Baker was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Missionaries To Hong Kong

Lewis Shelton Gore Family

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Shelton Gore have been appointed missionaries for the Pentecostal Holiness Church to Hong Kong. They will be leaving Greenville Sept. 1 for Hong Kong. The Gores have been teaching in South Boston, Va., for 11 years. They have two sons, Billy six, and David three. Mrs. Gore is the former Betty Jean Hoell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Hoell, of Greenville.

Track Is Just Longer Than Name

LAHAINA, Maui (AP) — The Kaanapali-Lahaina and Pacific Railroad is Hawaii's only operating railroad — and its track is just a little longer than its name.

The railroad runs through 6½ miles of sugar cane fields and skirts the ocean on the western coast of the island of Maui, Hawaii's valley isle.

The train—a diesel-fired steam engine and two coach cars—serves as a tourist attraction for this resort area. But at the turn of the century, a similar train running on the same track was used to haul sugar cane from the fields to a refinery, a job now done by trucks.

Since the "Sugar Cane Train" is Hawaii's only representation of the railroad era, tourists aren't the only people who use it. Many Hawaii families bring their children to ride and experience what was once a fashionable mode of transportation. For the cost of a $2 ticket, the children can hear the clanking of the rails, feel the bumping and jerking in the cars, and smell the steam that can only be created by a train ride.

"Myrtle" is the train's No. 1 engine. Another steam engine, "Anake," is used for a back-up. These two were built in 1943 for a limestone quarry in Ohio. They were refurbished in Pennsylvania and shipped to Hawaii. The train makes five round trips each day — six days a week.

Made All 'A' Marks

GREENSBORO—Miss Mary B. Wall, a home economics education major, daughter of Mrs. Wesley E. Bland of Rt. 1, Grifton, is one of 261 students at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro who made all A's on courses completed during the second semester which ended recently.

Altogether, four other UNC-G students from Pitt County attained the dean's list during the second semester.

They are: Miss Margie D. Cox, a health education major, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton D. Cox of Rt. 3, Ayden; Miss Jonnie L. Cassick, a music major, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Cassick of Rt. 1, Greenville; Miss Linda C. Shearin, math major, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Howard Shearin Jr. of Greenville; and Miss Janet L. Tippett, child development and family relations major, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold P. Tippett of Greenville.

Can't See Marked Cards

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Nigel Richards can't depend on marked cards or secret signals when he names the card a person picks. The 16-year-old magician is blind.

"You never can tell when something could go wrong and show up in front of people," says the Fort Lauderdale youth.

But he says he really has an advantage over sighted magicians.

"They have preconceived ideas and think that everything is done with secret compartments," he says. "I had to start from scratch. It really is slight of hand."

Richards refuses to divulge any of his secrets, but he says he can do any kind of card trick and most conventional tricks such as cutting and restoring ropes and producing a string of handkerchiefs from a pocket.

Richards, who performs at parties, admits there are a few magical tricks he still has to perfect. However, he says there isn't one that his blindness prevents him from doing.

"I just have to get over my stage fright," he says. "I'm always afraid of fouling up somewhere."

Richards, an outstanding math and science student, says he became interested in magic when a friend told him about a man who could make things disappear.

"I know things can't just disappear because Newton's law says that matter can neither be created or destroyed," he says. "So I decided I could do it myself."

Roll Calls Are Reported

By ROLL CALL REPORT—Here's how area Members of Congress voted recorded on major roll call votes June 27 through July 3. The Senate recessed for the holidays on June 28.

HOUSE

IMPEACHMENT INQUIRY—Rejected, 207 for and 140 against, a move to suspend a House rule that guarantees each member of the House Judiciary Committee at least five minutes for interrogating witnesses at the committee's impeachment inquiry.

Because the motion was brought up under a technical parliamentary procedure, it needed a two-thirds majority. It fell 25 votes short of the margin needed for passage.

In rejecting the motion, the House voted to grant five minutes to each member of the committee to question each witness.

Supporters argued that suspending the five-minute rule would have speeded the impeachment inquiry. They said members would have had the right to submit written questions through committee lawyers, thus eliminating duplicative questions.

Opponents argued that the House should not divert the rights of committee members simply to expedite the inquiry. They said five minutes of questions would help members get out the facts and lead to a fair inquiry.

The vote was viewed as an early, but far from conclusive test of impeachment sentiment. Retaining the five-minute rule, some members felt, would aid the President's effort to vindicate himself.

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L.H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Richardson Preyer (D-6), Charles Rose (D-7) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "yea."

Reps. Earl Ruth (R-8), James Martin (R-9) and James Broyhill (R-10) voted "nay."

Rep. Ike Andrews (D-4) and Wilmer Mizell (R-5) did not vote.

COMMITTEE REFORM
Tabled, 242 for and 163 against, a move to bring to the floor H. Res. 988, a resolution to reform the House committee structure.

H. Res. 988 was sidetracked several weeks ago by a secret vote of the House Democratic Caucus. In moving to table the motion to force consideration, the House voted to continue delaying a major overhaul of committee jurisdictions. The last major restructuring was approved in 1946.

The resolution would eliminate overlapping jurisdictions of the 21 standing committees. In 1973, for example, 14 committees conducted hearings on energy-related matters.

The move to force consideration came on a technical parliamentary issue of privilege, so debate dealt only with parliamentary procedures.

Those voting to table argued that the move was out of order and violative of House procedures, but many of them also may be opposed to the reform proposal.

Those voting against wanted to force the House to consider the reforms.

Jones, Fountain, Hederson, Andrews, Rose and Taylor voted "yea."

Mizell, Ruth, Martin and Broyhill voted "nay."

Preyer did not vote.

ABORTIONS Rejected, 123 for and 247 against, an amendment to prevent the use of federal funds for abortions, family planning and contraception.

The amendment was offered to a Labor and Health, Education and Welfare appropriations bill (H.R. 15580), that later was passed and sent to the Senate.

In rejecting the amendment, the House voted to continue federal programs that support family planning and to provide Medicaid to poor women seeking abortions.

Supporters argued that the unborn's right-to-life must be protected. Rep. Lawrence Hogan (R-Md) said, "If you are opposed to abortion, you will support the amendment."

Opponents argued that the amendment would discriminate against the poor and destroy successful family planning programs. Rep. Robert Gaimo (D-Conn.) said the amendment would "deprive poor people from the services which you and I and everyone else in these United States can enjoy."

Mizell and Ruth voted "yea." Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Preyer, Rose, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "nay."

WORK SAFETY Passed, 201 for and 194 against, an amendment to exempt small businesses—those with 25 or fewer employees—from enforced compliance with the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970.

The amendment was attached to a bill appropriating funds for Labor and HEW (above).

The amendment's effect is to give small businesses and farmers more time to comply with the work safety standards established in the 1970 safety act. Under OSHA's provisions, violators are fined without warning.

Supporters argued that the added time will allow Congress to eliminate flaws in the enforcement provisions of the safety standards. They said the flaws have hit small businesses the hardest.

Opponents said that small businesses should be forced to comply because they have the worst work-safety records. Rep. Neal Smith (D-Iowa) said, "Smallness is not synonymous with safety."

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Mizell, Preyer, Rose, Ruth, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "yea."

SENATE

MEDICAL RESEARCH
Passed, 72 for and 14 against, a conference report safeguarding the rights of human subjects of biomedical research. The bill creates a commission to implement the safeguards and provides federal loans to needy medical researchers.

The conference report (H.R. 7724) then went to the House, which passed it and sent it to the President.

The safeguards are designed to prevent abuses such as occurred in syphilis studies in Tuskegee, Ala., where in the name of medical research syphilitic persons were denied treatment.

In supporting the conference report, Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.) said, "this legislation is a major step forward in the protection of human research subjects."

Opponents argued that the safeguards are too weak because they do not cover subjects whose religious beliefs might be abused and do not prevent research on live fetuses.

Sen. Sam Ervin (D) voted "yea." Sen. Jesse Helms (R) voted "nay."

Garden Complex Set In Norfolk

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—An Atlanta developer and city officials have announced plans for a $100 million domed garden complex that will house a 17-acre amusement park in the heart of this Tidewater city.

Also included in the project, tabbed Norfolk Gardens, will be a shopping center enclosed in a geometrically designed structure with a 300-square foot transparent dome on the center of the roof.

The exterior walls also will be transparent.

City officials and the developer, Maurice D. Alpert of Atlanta, said Monday they expect about 1.3 million visitors during the first year of operation, hopefully 1978.

Norfolk has agreed to build the facility and develop the land in a memorandum of understanding between Alpert, president of International City Corp. of Atlanta, and City Manager G. Robert House.

To finance the city's share of the project, a newly formed Public Recreation Facilities Authority would float for $50 million to $70 million in revenue bonds.

International officials have agreed to spend from $20 million to $30 million on amusement rides, stores and entertainment.

The city also agreed in the memorandum to provide a $20 million elevated railway that would be ready for operation when Norfolk Gardens opens.

The California Department of Fish and Game says its hatcheries annually produce 30 million fish, from trout to channel catfish, to stock the state's lakes and streams.

The Worry Clinic Language Is A Tool Of Brain

Dean Agee's journalism students learn how to employ the tools of the brain with precision. Even President John Adams made 2 errors in the sentence quoted below. Avoid 20 of these common errors, and you'll speak better than college graduates!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE A-681: Warren K. Agee is the noted Dean of the U. of Georgia School of Journalism.

He and some of his professional colleagues entertained me on my last lecture trip there.

We discussed the newspaperman's concise style and use of short words.

Plus the many grammatical and typographical mistakes that still occur.

Even President John Adams was guilty of such, for notice his quotation, recently used in an ad by Copley Newspapers:

"None of the means of information," said Adams, "are more sacred or have been cherished with more tenderness and care by the settlers of America than the press."

"None" is a contraction, meaning "Not one."

So "None" should not be followed by "are" but by "is" and the "have cherished" should be "has cherished."

"None" thus requires a singular verb!

Yet that error is still made by many school teachers and radio announcers.

They also err in saying "real well" when they mean "very well."

"But, Dr. Crane," you may protest, "isn't correct use determined by the majority?"

"For 'ain't" is now included in the dictionary!"

A majority vote does NOT determine correctness, right nor justice!

Pontius Pilate succumbed to that political error when he let a propagandized courtroom vote 100 per cent to send the innocent Christ to Calvary!

And that same mistaken notion about "majority rule" explains why Chief Justice John Marshall said our Republic differs from a democracy as "order" differs from "chaos."

Words are the tools of the human brain so they need to be employed with precision and exactness!

All skilled craftsmen realize that a hatchet or ax may, as a matter of necessity, be used to smooth a tree trunk into a 6" x 6" post or a table top.

But saws or a carpenter's plane are the more precise tools. Same applies to our spoken and written language.

Slang and profanity also are crude stop-gaps to let teenagers avoid the precise thinking that a literary craftsman demonstrates.

"The party was swell," a gushing coed may exclaim.

"The food was also swell. And the music was swell, too."

"So we all had a swell time."

and write correct English by sending for my booklet "How to Raise Your Child's School Marks," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, address envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Most players are familiar with the effectiveness of a holdup play at a no trump contract. They do not always realize that this maneuver can produce similar results in suit play.
North and South conducted a logical auction to reach a good heart game. Once North supported hearts, South's hand revalued to almost a full opening bid. Since there was no point to dilly-dallying, South leaped directly to game.
West led the king of spades and, on the theory that aces were made to capture kings, South won and drew trumps in two rounds, ending in his hand. The jack of clubs was led and passed. Unfortunately, East won the king and was ungracious enough to return a spade. West took two spade tricks and then shifted to a diamond, allowing East to score the ace for a one-trick set.

Says Ban Outdated

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexican President Luis Echeverria says the 14-year-old blockade of Cuba should be lifted because the Communist island nation no longer wants to export revolution.

The embargo was imposed by the Organization of American States in 1962 on the regime of Premier Fidel Castro. Mexico is the only Latin American country that did not break with Cuba after the OAS order.

Warns Of Strangers

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Charles Dunn, director of the SBI, says sexual attacks on eight young North Carolina girls by the use of the same ruse makes this the time to reiterate: Beware of strangers.

The girls have been raped or otherwise abused since November after going with a man who offered them $5 to help him find a lost dog.

Police have prepared a composite drawing of a man from the girls' description. Authorities are not sure if one man is responsible. The girls have described their assailant as between 20 and 25, stocky, about 5 feet 8, with medium-length dark hair and neat sideburns which extend about one-half inch below the ears.

Little Change In How Women Are Depicted

By C.G. McDANIEL
AP Science Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — A Loyola University psychologist says he has found that the women's rights movement has had virtually no effect on the way women are portrayed in magazines and children's books.

Dr. John D. Edwards said Monday he had three students survey magazines in the university archives to find out how many women authors appeared and what they wrote about and to find out how women were portrayed in magazine fiction and children's books.

He said the purpose was to determine the effect of the women's liberation movement.

The conclusion: "The role of women in certain publications is very narrow and has not changed over time," Edwards said.

But he added that the media reflect what is happening in society and usually lag behind, so that as the position of women changes their image will change.

Edwards' students, Gale K. Stolz, Gary Hicks and Sharon Gaik, each did one of three segments of the study.

One surveyed nearly 4,300 articles in three magazines—Reader's Digest, the Atlantic Monthly and the Partisan Review—from 1940 through 1970, checking the number of male and female authors and their subjects.

Contrary to expectations, there was no increase in the percentage of women authors through the period, Edwards said. And the percentage never exceeded one-fifth of the total—"an indication of the extent to which male domination of magazines still exists," he said.

Another portion involved the image of women in magazine fiction in 1957, before the movement started, and in 1972.

The magazines studied were Ladies Home Journal, McCall's, Good Housekeeping, The New Yorker, the Atlantic, Saturday Evening Post and Harper's.

Edwards said it had been expected that there would be a difference in occupational images of the women characters, but in fact there was a slight rise in the percentage of housewives portrayed.

Women's magazines showed a slight rise in working, non-married women, while general interest magazines showed a slight decrease.

The smallest category in the fiction studied was always the married, working woman.

The third portion of the study involved a survey of 30 books for children for 1960-64 and 1968-73, randomly selected from the nonfiction list by a public librarian.

While the percentage of women as "occupational models" in these books increased between the two periods, Edwards said the study found no difference in the average prestige level of jobs held by men and women at either time period.

Take Wife On This Vacation

By STEVE MOORE
Associated Press Writer
WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, Mont. (AP) — There's at least one way to float Montana's scenic Smith River twice.

Take your wife the first time. She'll understand then why you want to go again.

I did it, and now have carte blanche approval for another trip next summer. But my wife wants to go again, too.

I billed the trip as a respite from the household chores and a chance to get away from children, bill paying, shopping and whatever else a housewife does. It was that and more.

The four-day float down one of the region's premier waterways began northwest of here in the rolling grassland cow country of Central Montana between the Big and Little Belt mountain chains, skirting parts of the Lewis and Clark and Helena national forests before ending about 30 river miles downstream.

The 110-mile road trip to the starting point was highlighted by sightings of a golden eagle, trophy-sized antelope and coyotes. Barely three hours after leaving, our Helena guide eased the two rubber rafts into the water, chilled and high from the spring runoff.

"We'll stop a couple hours downstream for lunch," said Richard Fryhover, who chaperoned the trip and cooked for the seven floaters.

The 10-man raft I was clumsily trying to steer finally went its own way, somewhere behind the 14-man boat Fryhover skillfully pushed downstream.

The Smith is wild trout water, replete with rainbow and browns which soon began coming to our hodgepodge of fly offerings despite the high-water conditions.

"This is something," said Craig Petty. He had just hooked a pan-sized rainbow after barely five minutes of instructions in the art of fly casting.

Before sitting down for a lunch of fried chicken, hot noodle soup, bean salad and chips, the 19-year-old fisherman had snagged a half dozen rainbows.

The river starts as a mere trickle near the once-booming mining camp of Castle, not knowing really which way to flow until it turns north and heads past the historic site of Fort Lupton. Over a 90-mile trip to its confluence with the Missouri River southwest of Great Falls, the Smith winds its way through limestone cliffs rising 200 feet above the water, marked by wind and water abrasion and dotted by scores of swallow nests.

The first camp was under some of the cliffs and just across from a waterfall gurgling from a mountainside so heavily forested you could barely see where a miner once scratched out an existence.

There is little evidence of mankind along much of the Smith. Wildlife abounds. Floaters spotted deer, otter, beaver, a porcupine, eagles, falcons and hawks along the way.

Most of the actual floating was done between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. The nights were leisurely; the mornings even more so. Fishing was never more than 25 feet from the tent.

District Court

Judge J.W.H. Roberts disposed of the following cases on July 1, District Court.

John Gatlin, 1114 Ward St., possession of marijuana, 6 months jail suspended pay $50 and cost, probation 4 years, reimburse State for counsel fees allowed.

Maso Worrell, 405 Walnut St., Farmville, worthless check, 30 days jail.

Teresa Brown Cherry, 103-B Cherry Court, no inspection, prayer for judgment continued on payment of cost.

Johnny Lee Small, 518 Tyson St., driving under the influence, 6 months jail suspended pay $100 and cost, surrender drivers license 12 months.

Plum Whitley Jr., Vanceboro, assault, nol pros with leave.

Display Of Art Work

Art work in various media by Janet Marie Whitley, senior in the East Carolina University School of Art, is on display in Rawl Building through July 12.

The exhibition includes lithographs, silkscreen and collagraph prints; silk-screened and block-printed textiles; and several sculptural macrame wall-hangings.

Miss Whitley is a candidate for the BA degree in art with a major in printmaking and a minor in textile design. She is a member of Phi Kappa Phi honor society, and plans to continue her art studies in graduate school upon graduation.

She is the daughter of Floyd W. Whitley of 1308 Tarboro St., Rocky Mount.

To Make Appearance

Noted science educator Harry Wong will give a multi-media presentation at East Carolina University Thursday, July 11, at 10:30 a.m.

His appearance at ECU is sponsored by the National Science Foundation and is scheduled for McGinnis Auditorium. Interested persons may attend free of charge.

Wong is the developer of the science curriculum "Ideas and Investigations in Science" which is being studied by 34 teachers from North Carolina and six other states as well as Ontario, Canada.
