UN Urges Cease-Fire For Embattled Cyprus

News Briefs

Franco's Condition Serious

MADRID (UPI) — Generalissimo Francisco Franco has overcome acute hemorrhaging and has been allowed to move briefly about his hospital room, his doctors said Saturday.

A medical bulletin said doctors stopped the attacks of blood vomiting which Friday caused the 81-year-old Franco to temporarily delegate power to his designated heir, Prince Juan Carlos.

Despite the improvement, government officials said Franco's condition remained serious.

North Korean Ship Captured

SEOUL (UPI) — The South Korean Navy Saturday captured a 40-ton North Korean ship believed engaged in a spy mission after a 2½ hour fight off the southwestern coast, the Defense Ministry said.

Five bodies were recovered from the North Korean vessel and five more crewmen believed aboard were missing and presumed to have drowned, a spokesman said. Three South Koreans were reported slightly wounded in the clash.

A broadcast by the North Korean Central News Agency called the South Korean claim "sheer fabrication and one more premeditated, wicked plot hatched by scoundrels in pursuance of a foul political aim."

Bomb Explodes On Irish Ferry

BELFAST (UPI) — A bomb apparently planted by the Irish Republican Army exploded Saturday aboard the ferry Ulster Queen less than two hours after it discharged 1,000 passengers arriving from Liverpool, England. There were no injuries.

Police said a caller claiming to represent the Provisional wing of the IRA telephoned a warning after the ship docked at Belfast, saying there were three bombs aboard.

Saudi Investment Discussed

JEDDAH, Saudi Arabia (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon met with King Faisal Saturday to discuss possible Saudi investment of oil revenues in the United States.

The secretary arrived in Jeddah late Thursday on the third leg of his Middle East tour.

Simon visited Egypt and Israel before coming here. He will go on to Kuwait following his four-day stay.

By United Press International

Turkish land, air and sea forces invaded Cyprus Saturday and within hours claimed capture of the capital of Nicosia. The United Nations Security Council called unanimously for a cease-fire.

The fighting, which plunged the Western alliance into its worst crisis since the 1956 Suez invasion, was greeted by a massive diplomatic effort to prevent full-scale war between Greece and Turkey.

The Security Council vote, which called for the restoration of constitutional government in Cyprus, was 15-0. It included both the United States and the Soviet Union.

However, the United States sent warships to the area to stand by to evacuate Americans and alerted American paratroopers stationed in Italy as a precautionary move.

A shaky cease-fire was arranged by United Nations peace-keeping forces, but heavy fighting was reported raging in many other parts of the Mediterranean island.

On Cyprus, President Nicos Sampson, sworn in Monday after President Makarios was overthrown, said in a radio and television broadcast that Greek Cypriots would keep fighting "until we throw the invading Turks into the sea."

In Moscow, the Tass news agency denounced as "an utter fabrication" a report that the Soviet Union had mobilized for the emergency.

And in London, the British Defense Ministry announced Saturday it had begun airlifting 1,000 commandos and armored troops to reinforce the 8,000 British servicemen manning British bases on Cyprus.

The invasion prompted President Nixon to confer with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger at San Clemente.

A Pentagon spokesman said the Soviet Union placed seven of its airborne divisions on alert even before the fighting began but the official Soviet news agency Tass later denied that any alert had been ordered. Russian warships were in the area, however.

Cease-Fire Measures

By BRUCE W. MUNN

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The United Nations Security Council unanimously ordered a cease-fire in Cyprus Saturday and demanded withdrawal of all foreign troops from the Mediterranean island. Turkey and Greece did not immediately say if they planned to obey.

British Ambassador Ivor Richard, credited by U.S. envoy John Scali for engineering the resolution approved 15-0, ended a four-hour meeting Saturday by putting two point-blank questions to the Turkish and Greek representatives:

—Did they intend to abide by the cease-fire?

—Would they, as co-guarantors with Britain of Cyprus' independence under a 1960 treaty, accept the British invitation to start talks immediately in London for the restoration of peace and constitutional government in Cyprus?

There was no reply from either Ambassador Osman Olcay of Turkey, whose air, sea and land troops hit the island early Saturday, or Constantine Panayotacos of Greece, whose 650 officers in the Cypriot national guard were charged with instigating last Monday's coup that overthrew Archbishop Makarios.

Panayotacos said the Greek government told the Turkish ambassador in Athens Saturday that Turkish military operations must be restricted to the Turkish Cypriot enclave in Cyprus. If the Turks continue to occupy Greek Cypriot territory, Panayotacos said, Greece would consider it an act of aggression.

In that case, the Greek envoy said, Athens also would send troops to Cyprus to protect Greek Cypriots as part of its obligation under the 1960 treaty.

Olcay denied the Turkish action was an invasion but said Turkey was merely fulfilling its obligation to protect the independence of Cyprus.

Three members of a rival delegation sent by the rebel regime witnessed the debate from the visitors' gallery after the United Nations refused to accept their credentials.

$8Million Damage In Explosion

DECATUR, Ill. (UPI) — The massive explosion that tore apart the city's rail yards Friday caused an estimated $8.72 million damage to railroad property, officials said Saturday. Two persons were killed and at least 142 injured in the blast.

Norfolk & Western Railroad officials said 460 rail cars were damaged or destroyed and that $4 million worth of cargo was lost in the dawn explosion and following fires.

The estimate does not include losses to other private property, including a new high school gymnasium adjacent to the yards, that was destroyed. The blast shattered thousands of windows and rocked buildings miles away.

Doar Claims Nixon Headed Cover-Up

By HOWARD FIELDS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Special counsel John M. Doar told the House Judiciary Committee that the Watergate cover-up not only involved the crimes of "perjury, destruction of evidence, obstruction of justice" but also a continuing pattern of lies to the American people, it was learned Saturday.

The committee, nearing a crucial vote on whether to recommend impeachment of President Nixon, met in a unique Saturday session to continue examining what Doar describes as "substantial and persuasive" evidence of wrongdoing.

Following the 5½-hour session, Chairman Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., said he now doubts whether the final committe vote on impeachment could be taken next Saturday as he earlier predicted. But he indicated an initial vote on the proposed articles of impeachment could be held before that.

Rodino said the committee will hold an open meeting Monday afternoon to decide, among other things, whether to open the final debate and voting —scheduled to begin Wednesday — to live television coverage.

A partial transcript obtained by UPI of Doar's formal statement to the committee Friday, revealed the statement that the cover-up "required perjury, destruction of evidence, obstruction of justice —all crimes. But most important, it required deliberate, contrived, continued and continuing deception of the American people."

The transcript also quoted Doar as declaring "I say that he (Nixon) directed, made the decision, the President made the decision to cover up shortly after the break-in on June 17, 1972, and that he has been in charge of that cover-up from that day forward." And he added:

"My judgment is that the facts are overwhelming in this case, that the President of the United States authorized a broad, general plan of illegal electronic surveillance and that plan was put into operation by his subordinates."

Burch Comments

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon's political adviser, Dean Burch, Saturday described the House Judiciary Committee impeachment proceedings as one of the "black spots in jurisprudence" and accused the panel's chief lawyers of serving as "hired guns" for the Democratic majorty.

Burch made the comment at a news conference after discussing the impeachment situation with Nixon several times in the past few days.

Count Your Blessings (If You Receive Them)

MIAMI (AP) — A Miami man who says he didn't get the blessings, benefits and rewards he was promised has sued his former church for the return of $800 in donations.

In a handwritten suit filed in Dade County Court on Friday, Hugh McNatt, 42, said:

"On Sept. 7, 1971, I delivered $800 of my savings to the Allapattah Baptist Church in response to the pastor's promise that blessings, benefits and rewards would come to a person who did tithe 10 per cent of their wealth. I did not and have not received these benefits."

McNatt, an electrical worker, declined to say what blessings he expected.

"That's between me and the church," he told a newsman.

Dr. Franklin M. Jacobs, co-pastor of the church, said McNatt apparently was inspired to give the money after hearing the Rev. Dr. Donald Manuel explain to his congregation that "if you honor God with what is rightly His, than He will bless you."

McNatt said he has dropped out of Manuel's church since making the donation and has joined another one.

First Week Prices Down

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Average prices for the first week of flue-cured tobacco sales were down $1.78 from last year's first week in the South Carolina-border North Carolina area.

Gross sales ending Thursday totaled 21,934,488 pounds for an average of $81.74 per hundred pounds. Last year's first week sales totaled 27,222,015 pounds for an average of $83.48.

The Federal-State Market News Service in Florence, S.C., reported grade prices were higher in most instances than last year, but lower quality offerings pulled the average price down.

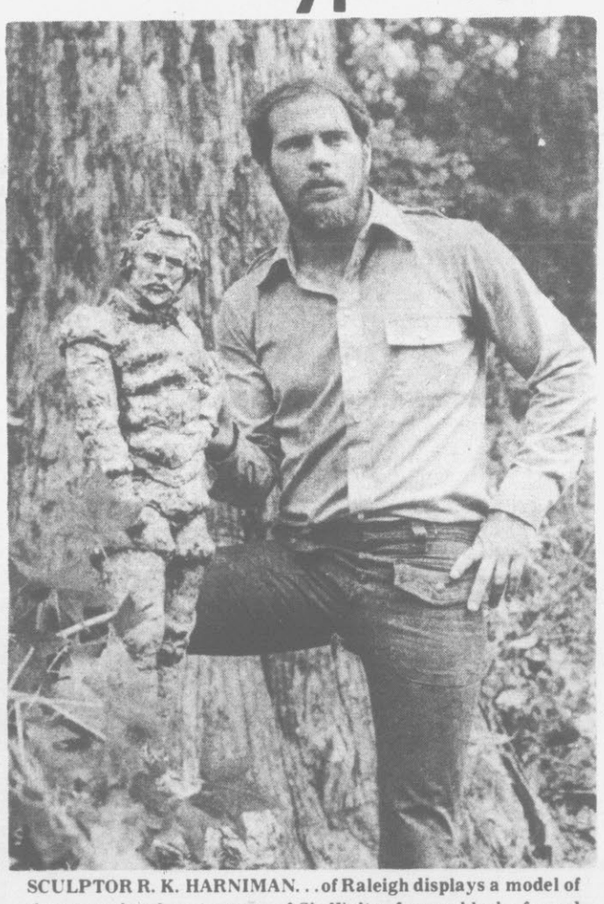
DANVILLE, Va. (UPI)—Chauncey Katrena Douglas, 16, of Greensboro, N.C. has been named Miss Black Teenage World, 1974.

Miss Douglas was crowned Friday night by last year's winner, Rosalette Petty of Hawaii, at the Danville City Auditorium.

Miss Douglas sang the old Billie Holliday song "Good Morning Heartache," in the talent competition.

Statue of Sir Walter Raleigh To Be Carved From Cypress

THE CYPRESS TREE . . . near Bethel, donated by Weyerheauser, is said to be 450 years old. The huge tree was cut Friday morning. (Reflector photos by Carl Tyer)



SCULPTOR R. K. HARNIMAN. . . of Raleigh displays a model of the statue he plans to carve of Sir Walter from a block of wood from the tree.

By CARL L. TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

English explorer Sir Walter Raleigh, who arrived in the new world 379 years ago and was beheaded in 1618, will soon have the honor bestowed on him of having a likeness carved from a tree whose beginning predates Sir Walter's birth.

The initial steps of a project which will eventually result in a 16 foot statue of the English explorer, often associated with the Tarheel state, were taken last Friday in the backwoods of Pitt County with the cutting of a cypress tree more than 450 years old.

The giant cypress predates Sir Walter's arrival in the new world by over 70 years.

The sculptural likeness of Sir Walter will be carved from a six ton section of the cypress tree by sculptor R.K. Harniman, now a resident of Raleigh.

Harniman will work on the statue in the mall of the North Hills Shopping Center in Raleigh beginning next week. He expects to complete it in about four months. When completed, the statue of Sir Walter will tour the state for a year.

The project is the culmination of joint plans by two interested groups in North Carolina, the North Hills shopping complex, and the Weyerhaeuser Company. Weyerhaeuser owns some 650,000 acres of woodland in North Carolina alone.

At the Pitt County site on Friday, two men working with chain saws spent over thirty minutes felling the mighty cypress. The tree was located after an off-and-on two month search by Weyerhaeuser employees.

The type of tree wanted was located in what the Weyerhaeuser company calls its "All Pines" track in Northern Pitt County, a few miles from Bethel.

Weyerhaeuser spokesman Sonny McLawhorn states his company got into the act with the project when they were approached by Mark Pitney, promotion director for North Hills.

Weyerhaeuser is donating the tree, and will deliver it to the shopping center tomorrow afternoon.

The idea of immortalizing Sir Walter in wood was conceived by Harniman. The sculptor approached North Hills, looking for a sponsor for a piece of his sculpture that could commemorate the nation's bicentennial.

North Hills accepted Harniman's idea and approached Weyerhaeuser in hopes of finding a suitable tree for the work of art which will be donated to the state after a one year state wide tour.

Eventually the statue of Sir Walter will stand in Raleigh or in Manteo at the location of the outdoor drama, "The Lost Colony."

Weyerhaeuser looked specifically in Eastern North Carolina for a suitable tree, says McLawhorn, because of Raleigh's historical connection with the eastern part of the state.

The tree cutting Friday was witnessed by Harniman, Pitney, and representatives of the news media.

Cutting of the tree was marked by an informal ceremony, including taking pictures of the tree, the sculptor and his model for the statue.

84th Season of Tobacco Market Opens Monday

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Monday marks the opening of the 84th season on the Greenville Tobacco Market as the 17-market Eastern Belt begins operations under a new grower designation plan.

Opening on the earliest date in recent history, the local market will launch first-day sales promptly at 9 a.m. with two sets of buyers on hand.

First sales tomorrow morning will be at Star-Planters Warehouse (Set I) and Farmers Warehouse (Set II), according to J.N. Bryan, sales supervisor for the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade.

Bryan said that the first set of buyers will be at Cannon's for the second sale on Monday, at New Carolina for the third sale, and at Raynor-Forbes & Clark for the fourth sale. Keel's Warehouse will have the second sale with Set II and New Independent is scheduled for the third opening day sale.

The sales supervisor reported that 820,948 pounds has been allocated for sale tomorrow on the Greenville market while Tuesday's sale, with three sets of buyers on hand, will total an authorized 1,231,422 pounds.

Bryan noted that sales cards for the rest of the marketing season will be available to farmers at each of the local warehouses.

Commenting that each Greenville warehouse will have a sale every day during the season, he added that the local firms have made preparations to insure a smooth opening tomorrow.

Bryan said that the opening day average last year was $84.46 as the market sold 769,918 pounds. During the 1973 season, some 56,425,086 pounds were sold for $50,139,158 in averaging $88.86. The 1973 figures reflected an increase of 9,555,780 pounds and $9,052,877 above the 1973 season, he asserted.

He added that the local market had 32 sales days last season when over a million dollars was paid out. The figure was an increase of five days over the 1972 season.

Commenting on the new marketing plan in effect for this year, the local manager of the Agricultural Stabilization & Conservation Service, Stacy Evans, said that the "farmer has something new for this year in that he designated the warehouse at which he desired to sell his tobacco." Evans said that all but a small fraction of tobacco growers in Pitt County complied with the June 14 deadline for designating the warehouse of their choice.

Evans said that farmers who did not designate during the first schedule will be able to list their warehouse choices during the weeks of July 29 to Aug 2, Aug. 30 to Sept. 6, Sept. 30 to Oct. 4, and Oct. 25 to Nov. 1. Farmers who have previously designated can also change their designations during these weeks, he added.

The official reported that farmers need to bring both the designation card and marketing card to the warehouse when flooring tobacco and he noted that the designation card can be left at the warehouse until sales are completed.

"Generally speaking," Evans continued, "most farmers designated the warehouse where they were accustomed to selling in prior years." He asserted that roughly 85 to 90 per cent of Pitt growers continued to do business with firms they had dealt with in past years.

Evans reminded growers that if they wish to redesignate or lease and transfer their tobacco, they need to bring the designation card with them to the county ASCS office.

Pitt growers this year are required to designate a market within a 100-mile radius of Greenville, the county seat. Designation is required in order for the farmer to be eligible for price support.

Warehouses have a small amount of selling time for undesignated tobacco, it was noted, and it is figured into the total poundage allocation.

Tribute To Dizzy Dean

WIGGINS, Miss. (UPI) — The sports world paid a final funeral tribute Saturday to baseball great Dizzy Dean, who blazed his way into record books with an awesome fastball and into the hearts of fans with his folksy sportscasting.

Noted sports figures and local officials in business suits and shirtsleeved residents of this tiny south Mississippi lumber town packed a little yellow brick church to bid farewell to their friend and hero.

Dean, 64, the son of an itinerant cotton picker who lived the last decade of his life in rural south Mississippi, died Wednesday of a heart attack in Reno, Nev.

Dean's wife of 43 years, Pat, sat beside Paul "Daffy" Dean, brother and teammate of her husband. She wept quietly.

Following the service, a lengthy funeral procession stretched over the 4-mile route to the cemetery. Dean was laid to rest in Bond Cemetery, north of Wiggins.

After an injury that halted his career at age 29 with a record of 150 wins and 83 losses, Dean moved to the broadcast booth. There he attracted the following of millions with his fractured English. Dean punctuated his broadcasts with descriptions of a man "sluding into home" and a batter "fannin in the breeze."

Accidents on Friday and Saturday caused an estimated $2,200 in damages, but resulted in no injuries, according to Greenville Police.

William Earl Daniels of 110 Tyson Street was charged with following too close after investigation of a 12:58 a.m. accident Saturday on Memorial Drive near Third Street. Police reported the Daniels vehicle collided with a car operated by Curtis Lewis Moore of Rt. 6, Greenville. Damages were estimated at $500 for the Daniels car and $600 for the Moore car.

Robert Brown of 1209 Baker Street in Tarboro was charged with failure to keep proper lookout when the car he operated collided with a car driven by Jarvis Roach, Rt. 1, Greenville. Damages were estimated at $150 for the Roach car, and minor for the Brown auto. The mishap occurred at 10:55 a.m. Friday morning at the Waters Service Station Parking Lot on N. Greene Street.

Jimmy Arnold Averette of 2004 Brook Road was charged with failure to see safe movement when the car he operated collided with an auto driven by Helen Ann Monte of Winterville. The accident occurred at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Trade Street at 12:03 p.m. Friday afternoon.

Damages were estimated at $150 for the Averette car, and $350 for the Monte car.

No charges were made following an accident at King's Shopping Center Parking Lot at 1:51 p.m. Friday. Police stated a truck operated by W.D. Barbour of Kenly collided with a parked vehicle belonging to REA Express Agency of Kinston, causing an estimated $175 damage. No injuries were reported.

$50 Million Libel Suit

CONWAY, S.C. (AP) — State Sen. James P. Stevens, D-Horry, has filed a $50 million libel suit against the Myrtle Beach Sun News and its parent company, the Columbia State-Record Co.

The suit filed Friday in Horry County Court of Common Pleas claims that damages as a result of articles published last week in the Sun News and The State concerning Stevens' ownership of property on Georgetown County's Sandy Island.

Stevens claims that the newspapers "circulated certain false, malicious and defamatory statements about the plaintiff by inferring that he had an interest in the development of Sandy Island and that he had an interest in the dredging and filling operations of Sandy Island Development Corp."

Stevens said he has no connection with the Sandy Island Corp., except as an attorney for the firm.

The complaint also alleges that the articles wrongfully insinuated that Sen. Stevens opposed certain tidelands and ethics legislation in the General Assembly because of his interest in Sandy Island.

Woman Kills Children, Husband And Relative In Arkansas Town

SPRINGDALE, Ark. (UPI) — Police today said a woman drove through three cities during the night, stopping at four homes where she shot and killed her three children, ex-husband, one of his relatives and wounded another man.

A 37-year-old suspect was arrested in Fayetteville, Ark., and was jailed without bond. Police said they would charge the woman with all five murders later Saturday.

Springdale police and state police said they believed the woman first shot her two sons, Richard Allen Curry, 14, and Jesse Lee Curry, 11, who were living with her in the Benton County community of Lowell.

The woman then shot her ex-husband, Jimmy Lee Curry, 42, and her daughter, Sabrina Curry, 17, at their Springdale home. Next, according to Springdale police, she killed Joann Brophy, 27, also of Springdale and Curry's half-sister, at the Brophy home.

James Dodson, 46, of Farmington, was shot next, but lived. He was hospitalized in Little Rock.

Sgt. Larry Luker of the Springdale police said the victims all died of multiple gunshot wounds in their bodies and heads.

Luker said police first found the bodies of Curry and his daughter. Witnesses gave a description of a car that was seen leaving the Curry home and police went to the suspect's home in Lowell where they found the two boys. Luker said Jesse Lee Curry was still alive when officers arrived but died later at Springdale Memorial Hospital.

About two hours after police found Curry and his daughter's bodies, they found the body of Joann Brophy in her home.

Fayetteville police located Mrs. Curry's car in the city about 2 a.m. and arrested her, Luker said.

Ship Named For Vietnam Hero

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — The USS Valdez, a 4,200-ton anti-submarine destroyer escort named for a young corpsman who was killed in Vietnam, will be commissioned at the Charleston Naval Base July 27.

Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., will deliver the principle address during the commissioning ceremonies.

The vessel is named for Navy Hospital Corpsman Third Class Phil Isadore Valdez of Espanola, N.M., who was killed in action in 1967.

Valdez, 28, died during helicopter operations near Danang when his platoon came under enemy fire. He exposed himself to constant fire and crossed 75 yards of open area to render medical assistance to a wounded Marine and then carried him to safety, a Navy spokesman said.

Again crossing open ground under fire, Valdez treated another casualty until he was fatally wounded by small arms fire, the spokesman said.

A Surprise In Transcript

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Judiciary Committee members were surprised to learn Saturday that a new White House-edited transcript of a March 22, 1973, conversation shows President Nixon referring to an event that did not occuur until the following day.

Nixon's chief Watergate attorney, James D. St. Clair, gave the transcript to the committee Thursday at the end of his summation of arguments against impeachment. He said the text was excerpted from a tape of a March 22 conversation, which the White House has refused to surrender to the committee under subpoena.

The transcript records a conversation between Nixon and his former chief of staff, H. R. Haldeman. The apparent discrepancy occurs after Haldeman raises the name of convicted Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy.

Haldeman: "Liddy is enjoying—Liddy's in jail—he didn't stay out. He just said I want to start serving my term. And he's at Danbury (federal prison and thoroughly enjoying it. It's a little strange."

President: "That, uh, judge gave him 35 years."

Strikes Plaguing Nation

By United Press International

It was a long, hot day for labor negotiators Saturday as employes of National Airlines, the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power and players in the National Football League remained on strike.

And there was still no progress on heading off the possibility of a nationwide strike against the Bell System.

National Airlines, struck by machinists Monday, canceled all its flights in Boston Saturday. Negotiations were being held in Washington, but there was no sign of movement. The airline has furloughed about 5,500 employes.

In Los Angeles, talks between the Department of Water and Power and union representatives were to resume in the fifth day of a strike by repair and maintenance employes.

On Friday, electric power was cut to an estimated 12,000 homes, apparently because repairs could not be made. DWP said hot temperatures, vandalism and equipment failures contributed to brownouts and blackouts.

Both sides warned homes and businesses could suffer blackouts due to equipment breakdowns if the strike continues much longer.

The stalemate between American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and 750,000 employes dragged on while union negotiators, who rejected a Bell System offer earlier in the week, prepared to poll their membership for strike authorization.

8 Martin County Warehouses To Buy Tobacco This Season

WILLIAMSTON—Eight tobacco warehouses in Martin County are in readiness for the opening of the 1974 tobacco marketing season on Monday.

The Williamston market opens on Monday, with the Robersonville market scheduled to have its opening day on the following day, Tuesday.

Under this year's arrangement, two sets of buyers have been assigned to the Robersonville-Williamston-Windsor-Ahoskie grouping of four markets. One set will cover Robersonville-Williamston, with the other set assigned to Windsor-Ahoskie.

First day sale of the season goes to Williamston, the second day to Robersonville, and after that, tobacco warehouseman Jack Sharp of Robersonville commented, the buyers "will normally be in Robersonville every other day and Williamston every other day."

Sharp emphasized his reference to the word "normally," saying "there are several factors that might change this arrangement as the marketing season progresses."

This year the Robersonville market has a total of six warehouses, one and an additional new firm, the Big Gem Warehouse, owned and operated by J.H. Gray, Sr. and H.H. Pope. Other Robersonville warehouses are Gray's, Red Front and Central Warehouse owned and operated by Vernon C. Hardee, Harry T. Gray and Jack Sharp. The firm of Hardee's Inc. operates Hardee's No. 1 and No. 2 and is owned and operated by Edwin Lee and Jimmy Martin.

Rogers warehouse is owned and operated by C. Urban Rogers, J. Russell Rogers and J. Leamon Barnhill. The second warehouse, the New Dixie, is under the ownership-management of Elmo Lilley, Sr. and Fisher Harris.

12 Warehouses To Sell In Farmville

FARMVILLE—Approximately 387,342 pounds of flue-cured tobacco will be handled on the Farmville tobacco market tomorrow when the Eastern Belt opens at 9 a.m. for the first sale all over Eastern North Carolina.

Twelve warehouses will be bustling with activity in Farmville tomorrow, while soon two new houses will be added to the market to handle the over 32 million pounds of leaf designated for sale in the Farmville market under the new federal selling system.

Louis Williams, sales supervisor of the Farmville market is not speculating on a price that the golden leaf will be bringing in his market.

Farmville's market averaged $89.30 per hundred pounds last year, while the average price on the Border Belt has been falling well below this during the first week of sales this week.

The first sale will begin in Farmville at Bell's Warehouse, where one set of buyers will begin bidding.

According to Williams, a second set of buyers will be brought in for the first two weeks of sales on Tuesdays and Thursdays to take care of the extra poundage designated for the Farmville market this year.

Farmville handled 23,910,000 pounds of tobacco last year, and put on a strong advertising campaign to pick up an extra nine million pounds of leaf that will be sold there this year, under the new designated marketing system which was put into use this year.

Williams says he is expecting a full house at each house in Farmville tomorrow.

Tuesday and Thursday the Farmville market is expecting to handle around 774,684 pounds, according to Williams.

Ocean Village Planned

OAK ISLAND, N.C. (UPI) — Oak Island Village, a $5 million oceanfront condominium community, will be constructed east of Long Beach, John C. Whitaker Jr., president of Venture Management Inc. of Winston-Salem, announced Saturday.

Oak Island Village will consist of nine acres and the low density project will be limited to no more than 80 units clustered in two townhouse complexes and two mid-rise buildings.

Whitaker said the structures will blend into a setting of picturesque oak, yaupon and laurel covered dunes. Owners will have a private beach, private tennis court, heated pool and ample parking.

Estimated prices for condominiums in the mid-rise buildings will range from $61,300 to $71,300 while townhouses will range from an estimated $79,300 to $83,300.

N.C. News Briefs

New Press Ass'n President

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N. C. (AP)—William Snider, editor of the Greensboro Daily News and the Greensboro Record, has been elected president of the North Carolina Press Association, succeeding Sam Ragan, editor and publisher of the Southern Pines Pilot.

Snider was installed at Friday night's banquet highlighting the three day annual meeting which wound up today.

Wallace Carroll, retired publisher of the Winston-Salem Journal and Sentinel, was the banquet speaker. In other elections Friday, James Parker, publisher of the Sampsonian at Clinton, was named vice president, and Mrs. Margaret Harper of the State Port Pilot at Southport, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Tar Heel Minister Arrested

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Rev. Kenneth Cannaday, the minister formerly in charge of religious services for the state Department of Corrections, has been arrested and charged with obtaining money under false pretenses.

He was released later Friday on $2,500 bond. No trial date has been set.

Cannaday, a Methodist minister employed at Central Prison since May 1970, faces an unlimited fine and up to 10 years in prison if convicted.

He was fired from his $15,468-a-year post Thursday after an investigation by the State Bureau of Investigation into his alleged collection and use of approxomately $4,800 from chaplains under his supervision.

Discrimination Backlog

CHARLOTTE (AP)—There is a backlog of 3,000 cases awaiting investigation by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission in North Carolina, a survey shows.

An employe who is fired and complains of discrimination because of race, sex, religion or national origin may wait between six and 18 months before his case is investigated.

Nationally, about half of all complaints are resolved through conciliation. The employer, through the commission, makes up for past discrimination with, for example, a promotion or a pay raise.

Only a few of the cases not resolved by conciliation are taken to court by the commission—230 on the national level since March of 1972. Private citizens file lawsuits in others.

Employment Up On Farms

RALEIGH (AP)—Total nonfarm employment climbed 18,000 in North Carolina in June to more than 2 million, state Labor Commissioner Billy Creel reported Saturday.

The June job total was 52,400 higher than last June as most industries took on more workers after several months of lagging employment, Creel said.

Factory employment was up 6,800 from May's level, but remained 6,800 below last year's total.

Nonmanufacturing jobs were up 11,200, for an increase of 59,200 from last year.

Creel said wage increases brought average hourly earnings of factory workers up seven cents to $3.29 last month.

Leaf Prices A Major Concern

The big Eastern Belt tobacco markets—including Greenville, Farmville, Williamston and Robersonville—open for sales tomorrow morning.

Farmers, warehousemen and buyers will all be facing a new situation this year with tobacco being sold under a designated system. Farmers decided before the markets ever opened where they wished to sell their tobacco and designated the warehouses. As a result the markets are opening very early and with a different line-up of buyers than in the past.

The advantage of the system is that tobacco will be sold in the area close to where it is grown, and no longer will North Carolina growers haul their tobacco to Georgia and other markets for early sales.

How the system will work in actual practice is a question mark, however, and it will not be known whether it will solve some of the problems of the tobacco auction system until it has had a full season of operation.

The new system will be only one area of concern to the tobacco farmer. The other is the low prices which have been paid for the early crop on the South Carolina and Border markets which opened a week earlier.

Farmers down there have been bitterly disappointed with the opening averages which have been below those of last year's. Naturally that has caused concern among our Eastern growers who simply cannot afford prices lower than last year's in the face of wildly increasing costs of growing tobacco. Unfortunately the farmer is paying, or has already paid, the inflated costs of producing the 1974 crop and if the price he receives for it does not measure up, he just has to take a loss.

Once the opening of tobacco markets in Eastern North Carolina was a time of almost holiday atmosphere. The farm family was at last about to receive some cash from the crop which had been nurtured along all summer.

This year, however the mood is one of apprehension. There is the question of how well the new selling system will work. The farmer wonders if his crop will bring him enough money to pay expenses. He has to be concerned that he will even be able to stay in the tobacco producing business.

We are hopeful that the new system will operate efficiently, and we are particularly hopeful that opening prices will be considerably higher than those of the markets to the south. If they aren't, there will be dark times for Eastern North Carolina farming this year.

Rumblings In N.C. Prisons

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Despite the best intentions of people at the top to clean up North Carolina's prison system—especially the youth centers—ominous sounds of trouble inside the walls continue to be heard.

A State Bureau of Investigation probe of problems at Samarkand Manor where some 200 girls between ages 13 and 16 are confined is expected to produce some heavy indictments of the system.

State Rep. Foyle Hightower of Anson is already saying that some of the girls "are leaving Samarkand Manor worse off than when they came."

Inside sources say the problem goes beyond what Hightower fears: beatings, misconduct, homosexuality, and climate of fear built up by inmate leaders.

The SBI has uncovered a prostitution ring operating so openly that girls have been taken off the school campus and into local motels on weekends, inside sources say.

In addition to the Samarkand Manor investigation, state officials are checking out reports of a cigarette blackmarket in the youth centers in which inmates and guards are getting up to a dollar apiece for one cigarette.

Top corrections officials privately admit that the "inmate culture" thing is real: that rehabilitation has little chance in the face of pressure and control from inmate leaders. They also confess that they see little hope for relief from this and the multitude of other problems in the system so long as salaries for custodial personnel remain so low that, as Secretary David L. Jones puts it, "we end up hiring people who can't get a job anyplace else."

In the meantime, top correction officials continue to read the state Bar Association report of several years ago which called for breaking up the juvenile corrections system and moving to community treatment.

But those officials are frustrated, they say, upon finding that some communities would rather have their juvenile offenders in state camps—out of sight, and out of mind—rather than housing them, feeding them, and treating them in the community.

Think Tanks

Taking a page from the new trend toward local control of local programs, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, chancellor at East Carolina University, has proposed local "think tanks" to round up ideas and resources to hammer together community plans.

Jenkins thinks eastern North Carolina is "almost the last bastion of clean air, pure water, fine soil, a people with a heritage of decency, industry, respect for their government and law-abiding."

He urged towns large and small to pull their people together in a spirit of "divine discontent" to face up to problems, define responsibility, and establish goals "based on genuine needs of the people."

Lives Were Touched

All across North Carolina—and the nation, for that matter—are people whose lives were touched by the late Henry Belk.

Many of them may never have known that the Goldsboro newspaper editor, in his quiet but insistent way, was affecting their lives. But his efforts and influence in education, his voice in high circles of state government, his editorial policies in the Goldsboro News-Argus reached beyond the circulation area of that newspaper.

Although blind, Henry Belk brought to bear on people and on problems an insight which escaped more sighted men.

His longtime friend Moses Rountree has contacted a host of people whose lives were touched by Belk, and has further researched his life to produce a book called "Henry Belk, Son of Sweet Union." Publication of the book depends on advance sales of at least 600 copies, Rountree said. The Goldsboro News-Argus is sponsoring the advance sale, and if the book is not published, the $8 prepublication cost will be refunded. Checks may be sent to Box 1718, Goldsboro.

New Coalition Clouds Future

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

AMMEN—A new coalition between Jordan, Egypt and syria, a development unthinkable before the Yom Kippur war of last October, now threatens to upset the U.S. timetable for stage two of gradual Israeli withdrawal from its occupied Arab territories.

Instead of focusing the initial phase of stage two on deeper Israeli withdrawal from the Egyptian-Sinai peninsula, as both Israel and the U.S. want, the three principal Arab states—Egypt, Syria and Jordan—are forming a common front for a far more difficult objective. They want to compel Israel to face up now to the toughest of all the territorial issues: return of the Palestinian West Bank of Jordan with its long frontier with Israel proper.

The gradual coalescing of Israel's three principal neighbors, moreover, is being powerfully assisted by leading Palestinians in and out of King Hussein's government. These Palestinians both here in Hussein's east bank kingdom and in the Israeli-occupied west bank of the Jordan River, are quietly pressuring the King to make political overtures to Yassir Arafat, who head the Palestine Libersation Organization (PLO).

That plan has the muscular backing of Syria's President Hafez Assad, now riding high on the strength of the Israeli pullback on the Golan Heights, and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's closest collaborator in the brilliant diplomacy of the past six months.

But there is a terrible danger in the game plan now being drafted by the Arab triumvirate—Hussein, Sadat and Assad. If Israel refuses to play, a new Middle East war by the end of this year is better than a 50-50 proposition, coupled with a drastic reduction of Saudi Arabian oil production from the present 9 million to 3 million barrels a day, threatening another U.S. gasoline famine.

The U.S. plan for stage two of a Middle Eastern settlement is focused on Egypt, with a new Israeli pullback from the desert sands of Sinai to be followed by an Egyptian-Israeli pledge of nonbelligerency. Only after that will Israel feel conficent enough to negotiate withdrawal from the West Bank.

Sadat, however, seems unwilling to risk getting so far in front of his Arab allies. Likewise, Assad and Sadat both know that the crux of the Israeli problem is the West Bank—that to settle Sinai and even the Syrian Golan Heights before Israel shows its hand on the West Bank would be to treat the symptoms but not the disease.

The most remarkable aspect of the developing common front in the quiet pressure of Assad and Sadat on Arafat to let Hussein have the leading role in negotiations with Israel over return of the West Bank. Assad has sent word here that it would be "stupid" to get bogged down over the precise political future of a possible Palestinian state on the West Bank until after Israel withdraws. That amounts to an appeal to Arafat to stay in the background at this stage, an appeal that seems directly at odds with the Soviet buildup of Arafat as Moscow's Mideast ace-in-the-hole.

The pace of this diplomacy is accelerating. Assad sent his foreign minister here two weeks ago to counsel rapproachement between Hussein and Arafat; Sadat is entertaining Hussein in Cairo this week; a meeting of the three foreign ministers is secretly planned for late next month, just before the Arab summit at Rabat, Morocco, in September. The single objective: a unified West Bank position by the three Arab states whose borders all join Israel, with Arafat a symbolic partner.

Thus Hussein has come from Arab outcast to principal actor in the unfolding Arab strategy. He is being discreetly pressed here to give Palestinians more prominent roles in his government, particularly in his palace guard and army, both long dominated by non-Palestinian Bedouins. That would strengthen his plan for a united Arab Kingdom if and when Israel returns the West Bank.

Hussein, however, confronts internal problems. Some of his Bedouin advisers, fearful of an eventual Palestinian takeover, want no part of any future political arrangement that links the Bedouin-controlled East Bank to the turbulent Palestinian West Bank.

But Hussein's far greater problem is what happens if Israel says no to the joint Arab timetable. Then in the words of Prime Minister Zaid Rifai, "Only direct intervention from Washington" can prevent stalemate and deadlock, climaxing in a fifth Arab-Israeli war.

Strength For Today

A GIFT TO GOD

In a college student's Bible is the following inscription written by the student's mother when she gave him the Bible many years ago: "My son, remember this—what you are is God's gift to you; what you make of yourself will be your gift to Him."

This is a very keen observation in that it emphasizes that our main purpose in life is to grow souls. The events of life have importance for us depending on whether they enrich or damage the soul. Yet most people devote their main efforts to striving for wealth, careers, fame, or pleasure, apparently unaware of the fact that life is a proving ground on which we are tried out to see whether or not we are fit for eternity.

The important thing is not what God has given us to begin life with, but what we make out of our endowment, great or little though it may be, and present to Him in recognition of our stewardship.

Sunday Morning Notes

Four people, who visited a local restaurant, each ordered steak.

One of the four ordered the filet mignon. When the steaks came out the man looked at the relatively tiny cut of expensive beef. He compared it with the larger cuts that his friends got.

"I can inhale this," was his comment.

He could, but he shouldn't. It might be injurious to his health.

Pete Ivey of the UNC news bureau says there are 13 basic excuses for getting out of work on most any job.

No doubt, anybody who has ever bossed people has heard them all. They are:

ALVIN TAYLOR

1. That's the way we've always done it.
2. I didn't know you were in a hurry for it.
3. That's not in my department.
4. No one told me to go ahead.
5. How did I know that was different.
6. I'm waiting for an OK.
7. That's his job, not mine.
8. Wait til the boss comes back and ask him.
9. I forgot.
10. I didn't think it was very important.
11. I'm so busy, I just can't get around to it.
12. I thought I told you.
13. I wasn't hired to do that.

That's a very accurate list, but there are also a few modern reasons that could be added.

—It's not relevant

—It doesn't have social value.

—It doesn't turn me on.

And a service station on Memorial Drive is being remodeled. The workmen tossed out an old price sign which had been stored inside.

Other Editors Say Holding Back

(Jacksonville Daily News)

The political symbolism of the joint space flight planned for mid-1975 by the United States and the Soviet Union cannot be discounted. The image of Americans and Russians orbiting the earth while dependent on each other's life-support systems suggests detente in a most dramatic fashion.

Beyond the political imagery, however, are the very practical considerations of the scientific and technological benefits of the joint Apollo-Soyuz project. If this country is to spend several hundred million dollars to put three Americans in orbit to meet two Russians launched from the Soviet Union, we would expect some demonstrable return in terms of science and technology.

Logically, this enrichment would come, from our own point of view, through absorption of Soviet space achievements. Theoretically, Soviet discoveries and techniques should supplement, in some measure, the vast store of information being acquired by American scientistw, engineers and astronauts.

From its earliest days, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration has kept virtually no secrets about its operations while the Russians have been extremely secretive concerning their own space program.

Indeed, the secrecy surrounding the successful orbiting of two Soviet astronauts was in the Russian tradition of being closed-mouth about everything, regardless of its military or security applications. However, there is no excuse when such secrecy is applied to space science in which cooperation is supposed to be the by-word.

It now appears, for instance, that American observers will not be allowed even to watch launching of the Soviet space vehicle that will rendezvous with the American craft. This, of itself, is a minor annoyance, but it reflects a pervasive secrecy policy that seems to preclude any meaningful joint U.S.-U.S.S.R. space cooperation beyond the 1975 showcase flight.

American scientists, for example, would like to establish a joint space monitoring network to keep track of the many satellites now spinning about the earth. The Russians, however, decline to release launch schedules and related telemetry data to Americans.

With the U.S. space program now stretched out as an economy measure, the joint space flight does give NASA some valuable operating experience while gearing up for the Space Shuttle, which is not schedulted for its first test flight until 1978.

Otherwise, barring a major reversal of the Russian policy, the U.S.-Soviet test project promises no technological benefit to this country.

Idea Of 'Restraints' Lingers On

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite some bad experiences with controls, the idea of voluntary wage and price restraints continues to be entertained in business and government circles as a way of combating inflation.

Apparently little support, however, exists for credit controls, even though it is in the borrowing area that the greatest strains currently are being made on the economic system.

In testimony this week before the House Ways and Means Committee, the man most influential in determining the nation's credit policy, Arthur F. Burns, suggested the reimposition of voluntary wage-price controls. Credit controls weren't discussed.

The irony of this is twofold.

First, many critics of economic policy feel that credit restraint by price alone, that is, by permitting interest rates to rise, has failed. As rates rose, demand failed to diminish.

Second, a law already is on the books that would permit the Federal Reserve, of which Burns is chairman, to enforce credit controls or allocate loans by a system other than price.

Activation of the law would be automatic if the President were to determine it was "necessary or appropriate for the purpose of preventing or controlling inflation generated by extension of credit in excessive volume ..."

The authority is contained in Public Law 91-515, signed Dec. 23, 1969, permitting the President to regulate and control any or all extensions of credit.

In commenting on the situation, the brokerage house of Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis claims that credit allocation via cost hasn't worked. The reason, it adds, is clear: "Interest rates have not reached a level whereby the borrower has incurred any real cost."

The payment by a corporation of 10 per cent a year on a bond issue might appear to be costly, the broker explains, but that's only if you overlook the fact that nearly one-half of that is written off by the 48 per cent corporate tax rate.

The remainder is likely to disappear in inflation. That is, the corporate borrower will be paying back in cheaper dollars. Assume a 5 per cent annual inflation rate and the entire cost is dissipated.

In the view of some financial men, consideration of credit controls now may have become an academic rather than a practical exercise. They feel that signs of lessening credit demand soon will appear.

Fish In A Reef Of Junk

By RUTH YOUNGBLOOD

HONOLULU (UPI) — Peeking out of glove compartments and breeding under car seats are the contented tenants of one of Hawaii's most successful housing projects.

Artificial reefs created from wrecked cars have increased marine population by more than 400 per cent.

Dumping cars into the Pacific Ocean two years ago during a cleanup project called the "great automobile roundup" has produced a bumper crop of fish.

Eddie Anderson, a dynamic insurance company executive who headed the project in the face of tough opposition from environmentalists, is a satisfied man today, citing an overwhelming increase in species of fish whose numbers were dwindling dangerously.

Some of these fish are found only in the Hawaiian Archipelago, and were in danger of extinction, Anderson said.

"Before we dropped in the cars, there were 103 pounds per acre of fish in the area of the reef off Waianae and 37 pounds per acre in the area of Maunalua Bay," Anderson said.

Divers found that with the artificial reefs, the Waianae fish count jumped to 2,631 pounds per acre and 1,585 pounds per acre at Maunalua Bay.

"The number of species has more than doubled," Anderson said.

He spearheaded a three-month roundup of abandoned vehicles after convincing Mayor Frank Fasi of Honolulu that the cars could create a breeding ground and home for fish.

"Islanders and tourists have a great appetite for fish and supplies of the most popular ish were rapidly decreasing," Anderson said. "Since the use of automobiles to create artificial shoals has been successfully tested elsewhere, I was convinced this was the way to remove unsightly abandoned cars from the landscape and replenish the fish population."

Environmentalists didn't think much of Anderson's plans. They charged that not only would the cars kill the fish but would poison them for eating and have a dangerous effect on the chemical composition of the water and sediment in the area.

"I had a real fight on my hands," Anderson said, "but the mayor was convinced and within three months 2,000 derelict automobiles were towed to holding sites, processed, loaded on barges and dropped into the ocean at three locations off Oahu in 80 to 160 feet of water. Processing included removal of the battery, all fluids, tires, the engine, transmission, axles and chassis."

With its goal of "more fish for the table and fewer cars to mar Hawaii's beauty", the automobile roundup inspired such support from community groups and the military that the entire operation cost the city nothing. Labor and equipment to collect, process and haul the cars to the reef sites were donated by private individuals and companies as well as the military. The estimated value of the massive voluntary effort was estimated at $97,350.

Later, damaged concrete pipes and old tires were added to the artificial reefs.

It was only a matter of time before Anderson began to hear about the overwhelming results of his campaign. A year later, divers from the state Division of Fish and Game found the

Ambassador Of Goodwill

(The following column was printed in the July 10 edition of the Tabor City Tribune).

By HORACE CARTER

GOODWILL: Occasionally in a lifetime you encounter some one who makes a lasting impression, some times good, some times bad. We had such an occasion during our two weeks tour of Switzerland, the U.S.S.R., Poland and England, and when we got back in town on Independence Day last Thursday, it seemed that perhaps the most outstanding thing prodding my memory was the actions of Les Garner, of Greenville, N.C., with his wife Evelyn.

Les is a wholesaler in Greenville and he carried with him on our People-To-People goodwill tour one of the latest model Polaroid cameras. He had the type that is so new that few around here have seen it at work and apparently no none in those overseas countries had ever seen one. It makes a nice four by four color photograph instantly. You simply snap the subject and at the same moment the picture rolls out the front of the camera and without any further operations, it slowly turns into a sharp reproduction.

Well, the story is that we carried with us to those European countries a considerable quantity of cigarettes, chewing gum, ball point pens, candy and such stuff to give away because we knew that in many areas the people would appreciate these gifts. And, after all, th at was our primary purpose, to create more friendships for our country in those nations and to learn things ourselves.

The gifts were enjoying a fair share of acceptance and success but Les, maybe by accident, decided to make some pictures of various people he met; folks like waiters, waitresses, maids, children on the street, etc. He had to make only a few before he had created a sensation. As soon as he passed out a reasonably good picture to a waitress in a restaurant, she beamed all over and called in some foreign language to her friends around to come see. Then all of them laughed and while they couldn't say "make my picture too' they could point at themselves, stand back in front of Les and make all kinds of motions that left no doubt they were posing for their portrait.

Les began obliging and from that moment on, every place he went a line soon formed and he made photograph after photograph in Zerrich, Leningrad, Moscow, and London. He was swamped in Russia more than anywhere else and, believe me, he left a lot of happy faces in that country.

I don't know how many pictures he made and gave away but it must have run into the hundreds and cost him a pretty penny, but he seemed to be enjoying it as much as the people who were photographed. If anything has ever been done by any one person to create goodwill in the U.S.S.R., Les Garner certainly did during our stay there. People whom he photographed smiled all over when he would show up at the same place a day or so later and having spread the word to others, he would suddenly find the line forming for more of his free pictures.

It's just possible that he made some color photos of folks who never before had even seen themselves in print. Whatever the reason for the furor he created, it left some good impressions of Americans on the minds of a host of everyday people. I kind of doubt that any diplomatic effort by this country, even when it cost our government thousands, served as such a goodwill ambassador as did Les and his camera on that People-To-People tour. He won't be soon forgotten.

More-Or-Less Greatest Civil Righter Of All

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

You could turn the Washington beat into a metaphorical Mesabi Range and never find a story richer in irony than the story of Joe Rauh, the great labor unions, and the National Right to Work Legal Defense and Education Foundation.

Joseph L. Rauh Jr. is one of the most colorful characters in town. He is a big, rangy guy, with the mobile face of an old Shakespearean actor. At 63, he is a top contender for the title of the Greatest Civil Righter of Them All.

Rauh possesses every conceivable credential in the field. His degree, naturally, is Harvard Law. He was a clerk to Justices Auto Workers. For the past 10 years, he has been general counsel for the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights. He is a trustee of that intellectual zoo in Ohio. He is a former chairman of Americans for Democratic Action. He is a life member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

And what has old Joe been up to lately? His major purpose in life just now is to strangle the civil rights of non-union workers. He is bent on destroying a legal aid foundation whose charter is patterned precisely, paragraph by paragraph, upon the character of the NAACP's Legal Defense Fund. He is determined to win a court order directing disclosure of the names of contributors to a private fund. Holy smokes! How come?

This astounding tergiversation has resulted from the tailtwisting and nose-tweeking of the right to work leaders, who six years ago established a fund "to render legal aid gratuitously to workers who are suffering legal injustice as a result of employment discrimination under compulsory unionism arrangements, and to assist such workers in protecting rights guaranteed to them under the Constitution and laws of the United States." As noted, the language was adapted directly from the NAACP's identical fund.

Over these past six years, the Right to Work Fund has managed to make a real nuisance of itself—at least in the eyes of 10 of the largest and most powerful unions in the country. The Fund has involved itself in 50 lawsuits seeking to protect the civil rights of workers. Little by little, against great odds, the Fund is winning some precedents that may give the little guy—the kind of little guy Joe Rauh once fought and bled for—a fighting chance against the brute power of organized labor.

Last year the 10 big unions ganged up, hired Rauh as chief counsel, and brought a suit to drive the Right to Work Legal Foundation out of existence. Their chief weapon, to add to the ironies, is a provision of the Labor Management Reporting and Disclosure Act, one known as the working man's Bill of Rights. This provision prohibits "interested employers" from financing or encouraging lawsuits by workers against unions. Rauh's theory is that the Fund is a mere conduit, a sham or front, for union-busting employers.

A couple of weeks ago, Rauh won a round. He got an order from Judge Charles R. Richey of the U.S. District Court in Washington, compelling the Foundation to surrender a list of 190 employer contributors. Richey is a knee-jerk liberal who has swallowed Rauh's theory whole, that the non-union worker has no civil rights a union is bound to respect. In a ludicrous restriction upon this compelled disclosure, Richey has ordered Rauh not to show the list of contributors to anyone except union officials, labor goons, bullyboys, and other interested parties.

The Fund, of course, is desperately appealing Richey's order. If the disclosure order sticks, the Right to Work Fund would find itself in the same peril asserted by the NAACP when the Commonwealth of Virginia sought a list of its members in 1962. The Supreme Court finally rejected Virginia's demand. It is marvelous, is it not, to find Rauh on the other side of a disclosure issue. What is the old civil righter doing there?

If Rauh and his 10 Goliaths win, there will be no way—no way—for non-union workers to defend themselves effectively against the discrimination, abuse, physical violence, and deprivation of civil liberties emposed by compulsory unionism. Those who truly believe in civil rights will pray that the Greatest Civil Righter of Them All falls flat on his old Shakespearean face.

House Democrats Are Warned Of Impact If Impeachment Is A Flop

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

It's interesting, maybe even meaningful, that some of Washington's political experts now are speculating on what the situation will be if the impeachment campaign fails.

The consensus is that the Democrats would suddenly find themselves behind the eight ball and the Republicans would be in position to gain seats, maybe even capture the House.

The reasoning is that any such anticlimax, after nearly two years of investigations, leaks of scandal and, in fact, national turmoil, would focus bitter resentment on Cohngress. The legislators would be accused of witch-hunting while an energy crisis developed and inflation roared out of control.

Such writers as David Broder and Kevin Philips manage to arrive at about the same conclusions on an impeachment failure, although their own political leanings are different.

Usually, Broder is well abreast of thinking among the anti-Nixon activists. His comments in a recent issue of The Washington Post read much the same as a warning to Democrats that unless they line up for the impeachment vote, their party may face disaster.

"Instead of Republican candidates trying to escape the drag of Watergate and President Nixon, we would find Democratic candidates on the defensive about a 93rd Congress which did little but posture on impeachment for two years and then proved by its own votes that there was no need for the nation to have been subjected to that ordeal," he wrote.

Broder concluded that all that's need to bring about this political reversal "is for the House to exonerate the President" by voting down impeachment.

Phillips notes that there are some odds around that the "bottom will fall out of impeachment." If it does, he observes, a lot of people are going to be trying to compute the cost of trying to impeach the President without proper grounds. As victims of Watergate-included paralysis, Phillips lists housewives, investors and those drawing pensions, all hit hard by inflation.

It's interesting that the "new" political speculation comes at a time when the House Judiciary Committee is ending its investigation and getting down to the task of drawing a bill of particulars against the President.

The effort has been to come up with a solid case of impeachable criminal conduct which would be accepted as meeting constitutional requirements. As things stand today, the committee has failed, unless it has a lot of hard evidence it has managed to keep from leaking.

It can bring charges of operating a sloppy shop against the President. But the question that will trouble many members of the House is whether this constitutes grounds for impeachment.

Barring new evidence against the President, it may be that the Democratic leadership of the House will eventually decide to let the issue lie until after elections. This might involve less political risk than defeat on the floor.

fish populations at the sites quickly increasing, and recent checks revealed the numbers have soared.

The fish breeding and swimming in and out of the car bodies were found to be healthy and good to eat.

"The cars are mostly a breeding ground," Anderson said. "The rate of attrition for young fish is normally very high because of predators. But in a car there are lots of places to hide, like glove compartments and under seats, until they reach a larger size."

Although the cars start deteriorating, coral which forms on them drops to the ocean floor and starts creating another reef. The concrete pipes and tires show little signs of deterioration.

To the editor:

I hope all council members can be present at the council meeting when the widening of W. 14th Street, between Chestnut Street and Dickinson Avenue is considered. The home property of my brothers and myself lies adjacent to W. 14th Street; therefore, we are very interested in the proposed project.

I believe it will be more convenient for the council members to attend the scheduled first Thursday night in August meeting rather than an unscheduled call meeting to be held on some unspecified day next week.

Therefore, Mr. Mayor, I am requesting that you place the widening of W. 14th Street on the August agenda.

The cost of widening W. 14th Street has not been determined. I believe the widening of W. 14th Street was first presented to the council members at the July meeting. Therefore, I think the members need more time to study the matter, and no decision should be made before the August council meeting.

Surviving Traffic Can Be Ultimate Experience

Driving in Greenville is the ultimate experience. It's sort of like Pepsi—your blood is so carbonated by the time you get home that you need to hit the bottle.

I'd always thought that the center lanes with the broken yellow lines on either side were turning lanes. They are in Atlanta—but not on the 264 By Pass. The other day I was sitting there trying to turn into the Winn Dixie parking lot when red corvette came speeding right toward me. By the time it swerved into the other lane, I had bitten off one half of my little finger and chewed the polyurethane coating off my steering wheel. When I recovered from my panic long enough to turn around, I saw the driver in the center lane again, shaking both his fists at me as he steered the car with his moustache. As I got composed enough to again think about turning, a green pick-up pulled out in the lane to pass the car in front of it. Unfortunately, I happened to be beside the car the truck was passing. The pick-up screeched to a halt right in front of my car, and I took advantage of a break in traffic to turn into the parking lot—just as the pick-up's driver got out of his truck, the contents of the gun rack held rigidly in front of him.

I sat in the parking lot in a fetal position from 10 a.m. until 7 p.m. Then I realized that I should have picked up my husband from work at 5 o'clock. I started the car reluctantly and slowly nosed out onto the By Pass.

Just in front of me was a long line of cars, and the highway sounded like a convention of emotionally unbalanced geese. I pulled on by in the far right lane, which was a little bit less congested. When I finally reached the origin of all the confusion, I saw a clear center lane, the turning lane, right?

Wrong. The "fast" lane was the turning lane, at least for the little old lady who sat blocking it, her turning signal blinking slowly as if it was already weary from the ordeal of acting as her messenger.

But the real blame for the traffic pile-up rested with the honkers. The lady couldn't find time to turn because each time a horn blew, she had to locate to and return its acknowledgment of her presence with a smile and a wave.

I finally made it to the deserted courthouse parking lot, encountering only two other upsetting incidences along the way. I sat through three traffic lights at Evans and Tenth, waiting for a Mustang and a bicycle to finish their conversations, and I had to turn from the far lane in to the courthouse because of the Cadillac going the wrong way down Evans. This last caused no real problem because all the other drivers nonchalantly moved into the other lane too.

I drove up to the courthouse door, turned off the car, and ran up the steps. But as I opened the door, a policeman drove up, rolled down his window, and called out, "You've got to move your car."

I looked at the empty parking lot. "I'll just be here a minute—not long enough to bother anybody." "Sorry, ma'am," he said sternly, "But the law's the law."

'Jawboning' Youngsters Found Poor Deterrent To Drug Abuse

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Jawboning youngsters about the dangers of drug abuse doesn't do much good.

"As a matter of fact, it's probably counterproductive and is liable to lead to experimentation," said Dr. Kirkpatrick, assistant director of the Charlotte Drug Education Center.

A survey of drug abuse authorities leads on to the conclusion that among the state's teenagers it is prevalent — in both rural and urban areas.

Other trends on the North Carolina drug scene include an increase in the use of alcohol — which authorities agree is the nation's worst drug abuse problem, and an increase in the use of polydrugs. This is the taking of a mixture of different drugs such as alcohol and barbiturates.

Another conclusion is that use of marijuana has stabilized at a fairly high level.

"Marijuana has become a social drug itself in a wide corridor of our society," said Kirkpatrick. "There is a large percentage of the population using marijuana and it is not confined to the young."

"Marijuana seems to be fairly common throughout all the categories," said Dr. Lionel Kendrick, associate professor of health education at East Carolina University and director of the ECU Regional Drug Program.

James R. Stebbins of Asheville, director of drug education for the Buncombe County Health Department, said "marijuana usage had stabilized as something that a very large percentage of young people will experiment with and that a smaller percentage of young people will become regular users."

But, Stebbins said, "There are many who say that twice as many young people are experimenting with alcohol," contributing to a "tremendous upsurge in teenage drinking."

"Regrettably I think this is somewhat more tolerated by the parents. If we were sensible we would have gained something from our experience with alcohol and learned it is a very dangerous drug," Stebbins added.

"The use and misuse of alcohol is very high among young people, particularly in junior high schools," said Kirkpatrick. "This came as a surprise to the community.

"I think unfortunately a lot of parents feel if a kid is involved with alcohol he's okay," Kirkpatrick said. "He is in a good place. He's safe from the evils of the world. I feel that is naive thinking at the best."

Stebbings called the upsurge in simultaneous use of more than one drug, the so-called polydrug use "very threatening and I think potentially very dangerous." He said this involved the use among young people of a wide range of drugs, many of which they find in their home medicine cabinets.

"A particularly fightening aspect," he said, "is that kids are taking after their parents and using tranquilizers to cope with problems as they grow up."

Kendrick said apparently the drug use of parents results in drug use among their children.

'In other words, when a mother misuses prescribed substances and over the counter substances and has a dependence on barbiturates and tranquilizers, she increases the chances of her children being involved in drug use."

Kendrick said very young children learn about drug use from TV commercials. "They learn that there are chemical solutions to problems," he said. "When they get to age 12 or 13 this has an effect on them."

In an attempt to measure the extent of the drug abuse problem in North Carolina, the North Carolina Drug Authority recently commissioned a private research firm to make a statewide survey.

This survey concluded that among the state's population aged 14 and above there were 143,020 persons who had used marijuana or hashish within the last six months, including 109,480 classified as frequent social and recreational users and 33,540 classified as experimenters and infrequent social recreational users. The survey indicated 132,510 former users—those who had not used the drugs during the past six months.

"From the best indications we can get the overall involvement of students in drugs does not seem to have decreased substantially, said Kendrick. "There has been a shift from one substance to another substance or combination of substances. In our area, there seems to be a reduction in the use of LSD and an increased use of other hallucinogenic substances such as mescaline and MDA—which kids call the 'love drug'." He explained that MDA "gives a real peaceful, tranquil feeling toward other people."

Pointing to national trends which he said are also applicable to North Carolina, Kendrick said "there has been a trend to get involved in the drug scene at an earlier age and staying in it a longer period of time. For example, about two years ago the majority of street drug involvement was between the aged of 15 and 25. Now that pattern is 13 to 30."

Kendrick said indications are there has been "a slight decrease in the use of heroin," but that is it used by all segments of our population."

Hamilton, Where Old And New Blend Harmoniously

Hamilton, 12 miles northwest of Williamston, is a lovely small place that retains its easy going atmosphere without being a dead or dying place.

Not as historic as several other centers of early North Carolina history, it nevertheless has been on the map for a respectable number of years. Incorporated in 1804, Hamilton during the 1800s was a moderately bustling river port. Like dozens of North Carolina river towns, the coming of railroads, and later highways and motorized transportation basically changed its pattern of commerce and industry.

As the time approaches for America's 200th anniversary, there's renewed interest on the part of area residents in research work to confirm or deny familiar legends, and to authenticate and record actual facts.

Hamilton's Darden Hotel is perhaps the best example of this interest. Several years ago, a matching grant was given the Historic Darden Hotel Foundation to carry out research work to authenticate the hotel's history, with an understanding further assistance will be provided once its history has been firmly established. (The hotel will be open to visitors in September).

Oral history has it Darden Hotel was built somewhere around 1820. Reportedly, it was used during the Civil War as a hospital site for wounded soldiers.

With two tall stories, an upper and lower front porch, and a ground level basement set unusually high for this area, the Darden Hotel is a relatively small, but attractive, well proportioned white frame building.

Fort Branch, a Civil War earthenwork fort, is about four miles down river. The fort site is under excavation by archaelogical students from East Carolina University to determine floor plans for buildings once located at the fort. In the summer of 1972 Ft. Branch was in the headlines when a salvage team raised three well-preserved cannon from the Roanoke at this point. Ownership of the cannon was the subject of considerable controversy.

The old cemetery in Hamilton, though not impressive by comparison with ones at Edenton, New Bern or Wilmington, is a quiet, pleasant, woods surrounded resting place of early inhabitants. Several years ago, a local man, Harper M. Peel, had the overgrowth removed and a brick entrance constructed.

On Hamilton's main street—which is N.C. 125 and N.C. 903 jointly running through town, stands an impressive example of a late 19th century house with steep gabled projections, large and small, forming the second story of the house. There's also an interesting semi-circular porch jutting out from the main porch.

The late Justus Everett built this appealing house in the early 1890s. Several of his children were born here before Mr. Everett moved his family to a larger farm house near Palmyra, where a daughter, Mrs. D.B. Harrison, still lives. For a number of years, the Justus Everett house was the home of the late Miss Betty Salisbury. Local people still frequently refer to it as "the Miss Betty Salisbury" house.

Along highways and farm roads that lace the northwestern end of Martin County are several old farm homes dating from the 19th century. Most of these are now abandoned as younger generations have built smaller, more compact brick or frame houses. Despite not being occupied for a number of years, some are surprisingly sturdy.

Two such houses are the Winbury Home and the Old Thompson place, both located between Hamilton and Palmyra

The Winbury Home is near the highway, a couple of miles out of Hamilton. Built about 1830, it was the home of William John Winbury, a corporal in the Civil War. Cpl. Winbury was wounded at Ft. Branch and lost a leg as the result of his wound.

At one time, slave quarters were located in the back yard. They are now gone, and the main house has a front porch that was added in the 20th century. Wide, 40 foot long boards were used in constructing the central hallway of the house.

A few miles from the Winbury House is the Old Thompson House, several hundred yards up a dirt lane from the highway. A distant view of the plain looking exterior belies the once elegant interior. Carved arches in the lower hall, fine old doors, and a magnificent mantle are still in excellent condition. Built by Lewis Thompson, the house predates the Civil War.

Another name for the Thompson home is the "Half-House." The story goes that before or during the Civil War, a big shipment of cotton sent down the Roanoke was lost. The money expected from the sale of the cotton was to be used to complete the two story house. The story seems logical, as the wide hallway is on one side of the house.

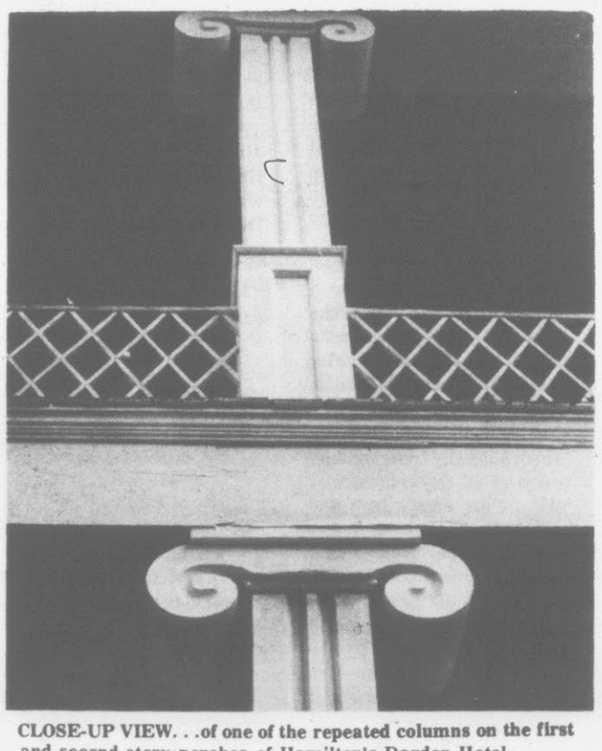
These are but a sampling of interesting old buildings and houses in the Hamilton area. The Everett home on the northwestern edge of Hamilton is a beautiful, well-maintained home with a magestic lawn sweeping up to the house. South of Hamilton is the large Sherrod House, which until recent times boasted a superb grove of oaks.

Until a few decades ago, the old town pump stood squarely in the middle of the street where N.C. 125, leading to Oak City, branches off N.C. 903. For many years, the rambling Slade-Rhodes Mercantile store was an active trading and social center for Hamilton, even after World War II.

In the early 20th century, the Hamilton Manufacturing Company turned out sturdy overalls of the type fashionable among American farmers.

Near the now closed Hamilton Grammar School is St. Martin's Episcopal Church, a small white chapel almost hidden by towering magnolias and shrub. Old tombstones surround the small churchyard.

The Hamilton area may not abound in what history buffs would term priceless architectural gems. Yet it's an area that conveys a blend of the old, the turn of the century, the 1930s, and today in an atmosphere of rural quiet and old South friendliness. An enviable record for any area.



CLOSE-UP VIEW. . .of one of the repeated columns on the first and second story porches of Hamilton's Darden Hotel.

TWO MILES FROM HAMILTON. . .is the sturdy Winbury House, built circa 1820 to 1830. The front porch on the now unoccupied house is a 20th century addition, as is the tin roof.

DARDEN HOTEL. . .in downtown Hamilton is being restored by a local foundation. A simple, handsome building, it was built about 1820 and has been kept in fairly good condition through the years.

FAMILY ROOM WITH BAY WINDOW AND FIREPLACE HELPS CREATE WARMTH OF "WESTBROOK"

TRADITIONAL LUXURY IN FIVE-BEDROOM HOME

By Gerry Bishop

This traditional home combines the luxury of space with the convenience of a sundeck, a covered patio, fireplace, bay window and the comfort of the center hall traffic flow to create warmth and charm on any city or rural lot.

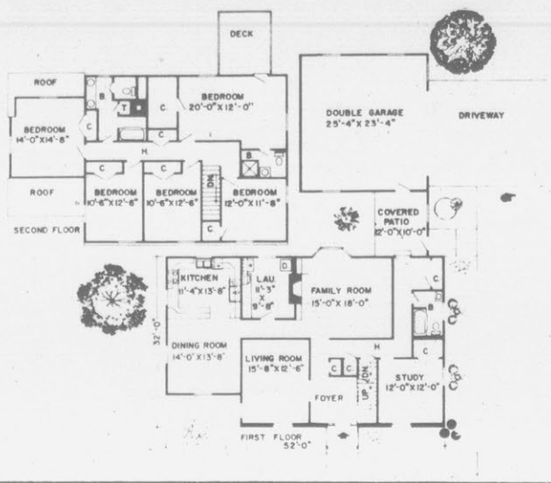
A large foyer directs traffic directly to the living room or to the family room and kitchen area. Traffic also can be directed instantly to a ground floor study. Closets in the foyer and hall areas provide storage for visitor's wraps or family outside wear.

A large U-shaped kitchen allows room for the entire family to help prepare meals to be served in the spacious dining room. A laundry room adjacent to the kitchen provides added convenience.

Expanding the living space on the first floor is a family room with bay window and wood-burning fireplace and a study, built with its own closet, that could be come a sixth bedroom. Near the study is a complete bath. Another large closet gives extra storage near the rear entrance, which exits to a covered patio leading to a double garage.

The second floor of this expansive home contains five bedrooms. The master bedroom has a large walk-in closet, a bath with shower, and a private entrance to a sundeck. Four other bedrooms, each with its own closet, share compartmented bath. Two sinks and a separate tub alcove allow for increased use of a single bath.

Stone front and shutters complete the traditional exterior of the "Westbrook."



Size: 1,580 sq. ft. first floor; 1,412 sq. ft. second floor; 1,216 sq. ft. basement; 624 sq. ft. garage.

Over-all dimensions: 52 ft. by 32 ft.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — The metal flashing around one of the vents on our roof appears to have a gap in it between the bottom of the vent and the roof, which is composed of asphalt shingles. We haven't had any leak in the house, but I think I should fix it before we do. How do I make the proper repair?

A. — In nearly every case, all that is required is to apply a generous coating of roofing cement to the damaged area. However, if the flashing is in bad condition and appears to require replacing, get a new flashing collar. Tell the lumber yard, roofing or other dealer exactly what it is to be used for. There are a number of products on the market for repatching such areas (aside from roofing cement), including one that calls for covering the gap with a piece of fiber-glass fabric and then applying a patching compound.

Q. — The wood shingles on the walls of our fairly new house have never been treated. I want to apply a wood preservative. Can it be obtained in colors?

A. — Some types can. There is enough pigment in the preservative to provide a color, but not so much as to hide the wood grain.

Q. — I often see the term "Work triangle" in reference to kitchen arrangements. What does it mean?

A. — It refers to appliance placement. The three main appliances — the refrigerator, sink and stove — should form a triangle whose sides total no less than 12 feet and no more than 22 feet. When the triangle is this size or close to it, so the scientific studies say, there is a minimum amount of walking required of the person preparing the meals.

Q. — I intend to put up fir plywood sheets in our attic. I'd like to put a first coat of paint on the plywood before it is installed, then apply a second coat later. Can I use a latex paint?

A. — While it can be done, using a first coat of latex paint may raise the grain and make it dificult to cover it with a second coat. Instead, apply a first coat of a sealer made especially for controlling the wild grain of fir plywood. Use the white sealer, intended for use under paint, rather than the clear sealer, intended for use under varnish, lacquer, shellac and the other transparent coatings. This white sealer will prevent the grain from showing through and thus enable the final coat to "take" nicely.

(The techniques of varnishing, lacquering, shellacking, bleaching, staining and paint removing are explained in Andy Lang's helpful booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," available by sending 30 cents and a long, stamped self-addressed envelope to Know How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743.)

Here's the Answer

BY ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

When a door in the house refuses to close or does so with great reluctance, it's usually because it is sagging. This condition is often neglected for years, especially when it is possible to close the door by using a little upward pressure on the doorknob.

This nuisance is tolerated even though other repairs around the house may be undertaken without much delay. It can only be assumed that the neglect is the result of a belief that only a professional can solve the problem. Actually, you can handle the repair in most cases without any special skill if you know what causes sagging.

The most common cause is one or more loose hinges. Since a loosened hinge may not be too noticeable, it often can be detected only if the door is opened and closed several times while the examination is being made. If there is even the tiniest fraction of an inch movement, it means either immediate or future trouble. A doublecheck test is to insert a screwdriver blade into each screw and turn it clockwise. If the screw moves the slightest bit, it is not as tight as it should be to insure against sagging.

Retightening a screw with a screwdriver is not sufficient. It probably will become loose again after a short time. The best solution is to remove the screw and fill the hole with wood putty, plastic wood or, for a short-time repair, steel wood. When the putty or plastic wood has dried, reset the screw. If you use steel wool to get a temporary result, the screw can be redriven immediately.

If you have determined that all the screws and hinges are tightly in place, it may be that the lower hinge leaf on the door jamb may need to be shimmed. Take out the screws that hold the leaf in place. Put a thin piece of wood or cardboard under the leaf and reset the screws, which should go through the shim. If this lifts the door a little and it works better than before, but still not perfectly, try using an extra thickness of shim. In occasional cases, the upper hinge plate has to be reset. This means deepening the mortised area under the plate, using a sharp chisel and working very carefully. When the plate is returned to position, it will set deeper into the wood.

Keep Records; You Might Move

By DOROTHEA BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — You may buy a house planning "never to move again" but you should keep records as if you might move tomorrow.

Actually, the average homeowner in the United States keeps a house for only 12 years before selling it and moving on so, in a lifetime, might own several houses.

When you do sell, whatever the reason, a new job, the need or the desire for a bigger, or smaller, or just a different house, unless you know how to keep taxes on your "profit" at a minimum, you could lose a lot of the investment you thought was a hedge against inflation, Citibank warns.

"From the day you buy a house, keeping records for its eventual sale will guarantee you a fair sale price and a fair tax break," Citibank says.

If, for example, you bought a house for $18,000 and 10 years later sell it for $27,000, you have made a profit of $9,000. This "profit" actually can be reduced substantially, even eliminated —if you have the records to prove certain expenditures.

Keep a File

You can, of course, subtract your closing costs of 10 years ago; for title search and insurance, lawyers' fees, bank appraisal, mortgage and deed recording and other expenses of purchasing the house. Also deductible are costs of selling such as broker's fee, legal fees, advertising, costs of painting and fixing up for the purpose of selling (done within 90 days before house is actually sold and paid within 30 days after.)

But you also can subtract for all the improvements made over the 10 years. It is here that proof is most important - and most difficult to establish if records have not been kept.

If you are buying a house, set up a simple book in which housing expenses are listed by date, purpose, supplier and cost, and keep a file of supporting bills, checks, etc.

If you already own a house, set up a current system and work back through check stubs, receipted bills, etc. to reconstruct expenses for any years you have missed. The longer you wait, the tougher the job and the more likelihood you will miss important deductions.

Time to Sell

Citibank advises while you can't deduct for normal maintenance, keep those records, too. "Sometimes, what seems to be maintenance can be credited as an improvement; your lawyer or accountant will sort this out."

For example, house painting is maintenance. Suppose, however, the house had seven coats of exterior paint, all chipping away in spots. If you installed new siding, or removed all seven old coats and applied two fresh ones, it might be a deductible improvement. To replace a window because a frame has rotted is maintenance. But to substitute storm windows is an improvement. A new kitchen stove is maintenance; a sizeable kitchen overhaul an improvement.

When the time comes to sell, Citibank explains:

"Suppose you have a net profit —total profit less deductions for costs of buying and selling and capital improvements —of $5,000. You pay a capital gains tax on this —at half your regular tax rate, up to 25 per cent. For any amount of gain over $50,000, the rate could go up to 35 per cent. If you owned the house less than six months, any gain would be taxes as ordinary income.

"If you buy another house, co-op or condominium within one year before or after the sale, the tax on all or part of your gain is postponed. You have 18 months if your new home is being built for you, but it must be started within the year.

"You may buy and sell as many times as you like during your lifetime and keep deferring the tax if you meet all the requirements. But each house must be primary -not a second or vacation home.

"In the case of your death, your heirs don't owe any tax on your profits. And since the first $60,000 of an inheritance is not taxable, they might not owe any federal tax if your taxable estate is under that amount.

"If you are going to sell your home at retirement, try to wait until you are over 65," Citibank advises. "Then you can choose, once in your lifetime, not to be taxed at all on the profit, if the 'adjusted' selling price is $20,000 or less. If more, you are forgiven part of the gain. You must have lived in the house five years over an eight-year period."

The longer you have a house, especially in these days when inflation boosts housing values dramatically each year, the bigger your so-called profit and the more important record of your deductible costs.

Start keeping records now.

Police Train For Quarrels

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Local police are taking a new approach to potentially explosive family arguments and domestic squabbles.

Under a police planning division recommendation, specially trained police officers will respond to domestic disputes.

"In some cases we keep responding week after week, month after month to the same home," said Gregory Burns, a planning official for the local police department. "Eventually something is going to explode and somebody is going to get killed. Maybe a cop."

The police teams will be called in to handle mainly nonviolent cases, to settle down the participants and refer them to long-term counseling if needed, a spokesman said.

The spokesman said the guiding philosophy of the program will be to reduce the number of arrests stemming from domestic fights and divert troubled families away from the criminal justice system to other social agencies.

U.S. milk production for 1972 was about 1.5 per cent above that of 1971.

N.C. State University Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. What do you think of putting newspapers between rows of vegetables to keep down weeds? (R.T., Greensboro)

A. I think it's a good idea. (George Hughes, Extension horticulturist)

Q. We have white mildew on our enonymous shrubs. What can we spray them with? (T.B., Wake Forest)

A. Your enonymous probably has powdery mildew, a common disease of this ornamental. Spray with dinocap (Karathane), benomyl (Benlate) or sulfur. Use at rates suggested on the label. Repeat every 7 to 10 days until disease disappears. (R.K. Jones, extension plant pathologist)

Q. Our phlox has finished blooming. Should we cut away the old flower heads? (Mrs. B.C., Clemmons)

A. Phlox will flower a second time this fall if not allowed to go to seed. By removing old flower heads, you will help plants to conserve energy for new growth and root development. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. I have trouble with poison ivy and honeysuckle around my fruit trees. Will 2, 4-D hurt the trees? If so, what can I use? (C.D., High Point)

A. It's safe if you use a shield over the sprayer nozzle. You need to direct the 2, 4-D on the poison ivy and honeysuckle. A little 2, 4-D on the mature bark of the trees would be okay, but be careful. (Carl Blake, extension agronomist)

Real Estate

REALTOR

PRINTED FORM FOLLY

In any real estate transaction you'll normally find printed forms used in the area of sales contracts, deeds, mortgages, and leases. Ever wonder why any layman can't use printed forms himself and save the fees of an attorney, Realtor, or lending institution?

A typical legal stationery store will have dozens of varieties of leases, deeds, and mortgage forms, but which is the right one for your situation? These printed forms are only a starting point. It's what goes into the blanks, what is crossed out, and what is added that gives you the value, security, and protection that you are paying the experts for.

how to reduce your air conditioning costs.

You can help your air conditioner do its job more efficiently by following these suggestions.

- Whenever possible, run the fan without using the cooling portion of your unit.
- Place the thermostat on the highest comfortable setting. For each degree you raise the air conditioner thermostat you can save at least five percent on the cost of operation.
- Check the filter periodically, cleaning or replacing it as necessary. A dirty filter makes the air conditioner work harder to do the same job. Regular cleaning will also cut down on repair bills and costly energy waste.
- When outside temperature drops below the temperature inside, open your windows to let heat escape. Close your house tightly during the hottest part of the day. You should also keep out solar heat by closing blinds and draperies of windows exposed to direct sunlight.
- Just as insulation saves on your heating bill by keeping warmth in, good insulation also pays summer dividends by keeping heat out.

Girls Now Match Boys In Crime Field

By GEORGETTE WAGNER

CHICAGO (UPI) — Girls in their teens cheat, shoplift, use drugs and sell marijuana just about as often as teen-aged boys. They also fight, rob, carry guns and knives and use them.

That is one finding of a three-year study on juvenile delinquency by the Institute of Juvenile Research. More than 3,000 Illinois teen-agers were interviewed.

"Shoplifting has increased among teen-aged girls. Strong arming has increased. Fist fights. Carrying a weapon. Gang fights," said Patricia Miller, survey director.

"No one has ever found the amount we found which leads us to believe there has been a dramatic jump."

Increased female juvenile delinquency is not confined to Illinois. The FBI Uniform Crime Report shows serious crime committed by girls under 18 has increased 306.1 per cent since 1960. The increase for teen-aged boys was 81.6 per cent.

Police blotters say the same thing more graphically. Recently a 16-year-old Illinois girl knocked her teacher down a flight of stairs. A teen-aged girl, enraged at a schoolmate, stabbed her. Two girls last winter strangled another girl with a wire cord.

But this increase in juvenile delinquency has not occurred among male adolescents, according to Dr. William Simon, the institute's director of sociology and anthropology programs.

"The population grew. So there are more people out there doing things. But if you compare statistics over a 20-year period, those for boys haven't changed," he said.

The Illinois study was not concerned especially with female adolescents, but tentative findings appear to shatter some timeworn stereotypes.

"There is no basis to the image of a female delinquent...as someone very committed to a role that is self-destructive. She feels no less adequate. Her self-esteem is no lower," Miss Miller said.

Youthful offenders are just as likely to come from affluent or hard-pressed families and from suburbs and farms as from cities.

"There is virtually no pattern in socio-economic status," Miss Miller said.

"Anyone who thinks he can buy immunity from his type of residence is kidding himself," Simon said. "Also family variables have little effect. In a curious way, it is a lot more accidental than that."

The study found one striking difference between male and female adolescents involved in more violent acts such as fist fights, using a weapon and robbery. Teen-aged boys fought more often than they robbed or used a weapon. The number of girls using their fists equalled the number who committed a robbery or used a weapon.

"Godspell' Cast On Kay Currie's TV Show

Members of the Kinston Summer Theater who will be performing in a forthcoming presentation of "Godspell" will be the featured guests on Kay Currie's "Hospitality House" today at noon over WITN television, Channel 7.

The first group in North Carolina to perform the famed religious rock musical based on the Gospel according to St. Matthew which had a successful four season run on Broadway, the Kinston summer players will be giving six performances. These will be nightly at 8 p.m. beginning August 1 and continuing through August 6, with a Sunday matinee performance at 2 p.m.

"Godspell" is being staged at the Kinston Recreation Department Center in Emma Webb Park. Admission is $1-.00 for students and $2.00 for adults.

The show's director, Oran Perry, the ten members of the cast and a combo of five musicians will all be on Kay's Sunday show. They will sing five numbers from "Godspell,"—"God Save The People;" "Day by Day;" "Bless The Land My Lord;" "We Beseech Thee;" and "Turn Back, O Man."

Other events on "Hospitality House" include an appearance by Mike Bateman and Johnny Marsh of Bath, president and show director of the Al-Pam Club; and vignettes from famous actors in which they tell how they stopped smoking. Of interest to those who love to cook will be directions on how to make crepe suzettes.

Today's "Sunday In the Park" will have on hand a large number of young band musicians representing all sections of eastern North Carolina.

At 7 this evening, on the grassy slope between Third and Fourth Streets east of Reade Street, four bands made up of students from the East Carolina University Summer Music Camp will be performing. They are students selected from the 340 students attending the annual summer camp.

The quartet of bands are being identified by color—a Purple Band, A Green Band, a Red Band, and a Blue Band.

Conducted by Dr. George Knight of the ECU School of Music, the Purple Band will play three pieces—Gordon's Dramatic Overture; Osterling's Beguine Festival; and Newley's Gonna Build A Mountain.

The Green Band is to be conducted by Edward Jones of Woodbridge, Va. Four selections are listed for this band's performance: March of the King's Trumpeters, Lully; Whitney's Thendara Overture; Walters' Civil War Suite; and Latin Holiday by Ployhar.

The Red Band, whose conductor is Ray Haney of Elizabethtown, is scheduled to play three selections—Fillmore's The President's March; Johnson's Niagara Overture; and Joplin's The Entertainer.

Four compositions are listed for performance by the Blue Band, conducted by Herbert Carter of the ECU School of Music and director of the summer camp. The quartet of compositions are: American Overture for Band, Jenkins; Persuasion, Sammy Nestico; and two march numbers, Little English Girl, Della Cese, and Colonel Bogey, Alford.

Luther Gillon, woodwind instructor in the camp from Charlotte, will play the alto saxophone solo in Persuasion.

Like all of the "Sunday in The Park" series, there is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend. People are encouraged to bring folding chairs, blankets, etc., to make themselves comfortable while listening.

Under the auspices of the Greenville Recreation Department, the series is directed by Stuart Aronson. The North Carolina Fine Arts Council has provided financial support with a $2,000 grant.

In the event of rain, the four bands will perform at 8 p.m. in Wright Auditorium on campus.

Young Water Performers To Be At Plymouth

On Saturday, July 27th and again on Sunday, July 28th, lovers of water sports will have an opportunity to watch a team of eastern North Carolina young men and women perform.

Beginning at noon on each of these two days, members of the Al-Pam Ski Club will be featured in a summer water show on the Roanoke River at Plymouth in the dock area behind the stores on Water Street.

The group will be showing their skill in different styles of skiing, including speed skiing, barefoot skiing, and pyramid skiing. There will also be the added excitement of one of the most breathtaking of all water sports—the use of a flat kite to let a skier soar airborne above the water.

Now five years old, the Al-Pam Ski Club has 26 members from several eastern communities—Bath, Pantego, Greenville, Washington, Farmville, Goldsboro, Williamston and Wilson. Bath is their regular meeting place. On the broad river waters of North Carolina's oldest town, they work at perfecting their water sport skills.

Al-Pam has been in existence for about five years. Mike Bateman is president of the club. Johnny Marsh is the club's show director.

"Our people range in age from 13 to their early 20s," Johnny noted, "but we're open to people of any age who would like to join us and we'd be happy to have some older people take part in our activities."

The 26 boys and girls currently active members and their home towns are: Bath—Byron Midyette, Doug Hightower, Tim Midyette, Beth Swindell, Beverly Slade, Denny Marsh, Ray Lewis, Devonda Shoemaker and Johnny Marsh; Pantego—Lisa Respess and Gayle Liverman; Greenville—Helen Fleming, Catherine Garrett, Amy Clifton, Rebecca Eure and Walter Mann; Washington—William Woolard, Mike Bateman, Robert Woolard and Lalla Hodges: Farmville—Beth Turnage; Goldsboro—Ginny Carroll; Williamston—Benny Hopkins; and Wilson—Frankie Rice and Carrol Shealy.

Following the two day appearance in Plymouth, Johnny said future plans, now tentative but hopefully to be firmed up soon, will include a show at Bath on August 17, one at Leechville (a few miles east of Belhaven) on the Sunday before Labor Day: and at Columbia on Labor Day, Monday, September 2.

The group has also made arrangements with Dr. Ralph Steele of East Carolina University to incorporate a special program for handicapped children into the August 17 Bath show. This will include giving these children rides.

There will be a small admission fee for the Plymouth show. Johnny noted that most of their shows are free of charge, and that members of the club are always delighted to have the public watch them perform.

Television viewers can also see members of the club today on Kay Currie's "Hospitality House" beginning at noon over WITN-TV, Channel 7.

LOTS OF FUN AND THRILLS. . .are provided by the young water enthusiasts who are members of Al-Pam Ski Club. Here, spectators watch skiers get into a pyramid formation at a recent show held in Belhaven. The club will perform in Plymouth on July 27 and July 28. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By JUDITH M. THOMPSON

Making It: A Guide To Student Finances is essential reading for prospective students and their parents and for those students already enrolled who are faced with skyrocketing tuition costs and living expenses. Written by undergraduate and graduate students who have experienced themselves the problems of making money while going to college, this book tells students how to evaluate their talents and acquire skills for term and summer work. In each case the advice is based on firsthand experience in universities large and small, urban and rural, throughout the United States.

Making It gives detailed information on sourced of special funds available from government programs, unions, church organizations, private foundations and business corporations. Comprehensive coverage of scholarships, grants, loans, work-study programs and lists of hard-to-find data covering financial aid programs available to minority groups are also included in Making It: A Guide To Student Finances.

One of the newest and most innovative books to come out for young people is Donna Lawson's If You Can't Go Naked, Here Are Clothes to Sew On Fast. This book simply "shows how to get good-looking clothes on your back quickly, easily at little expense." Shows is the key word, for this book shows the reader how the designs work by using many illustrations instead of explanations, which by their nature are confusing.

Speed and simplicity are the keys to the designs. Fabric selvages are utilized as finished edges whenever possible. Buttonholes, snaps, hooks and eyes and zippers eliminated. In their place sashes, ribbons, and all kinds of ties are used for closures. All the garments are made with as little sewing as possible. Many of the patterns are wrapped and then pinned or tied to keep them on the body. When seams are used they are kept to a minimum. Sometimes a whole garment is made using just one seam.

If You Can't Go Naked, Here Are Clothes To Sew On Fast is meant to show that sewing is a relaxing, pleasant and creative experience. No one will use the book without experiencing a great sense of creativeness.

For camping enthusiasts, whether beginner or experienced, Sheppard Library has a new book that will answer all your questions plus some which have not yet occured to you. The Joy of Camping by Richard W. Langer is unique in being the first book to teach the camper not only how to relax and enjoy the outdoors but also how to preserve its natural beauty. A full section is devoted to learning to feel at home in the woods.

—A Review—

The Pleasures And Pitfalls Of Looking Back

My Days—A Memoir. By R.K. Narayan, 186 pps, $5.95; and After The Gay Good Time. By Tony Buttitta, 173 pps. $7.95. New York, 1974. The Viking Press

Books of reminiscencies and recollections can be refreshing, entertaining reading. In the case of these two books, the authors are no longer young men, and have at their disposal years of living to draw on. Narayan's My Days—A Memoir, as the title implies, covers events from his own life. Buttita's book, subtitled Asheville—Summer of '35, A Season with F. Scott Fitzgerald is a chronicle of contacts and conversations with the novelist at the time Fitzgerald lived in Asheville.

Narayan, frequently referred to as India's greatest writer, has written ten novels and several hundred short stories in addition to extensive writings as a newspaper columnist and reporter, and as editor of literary magazines.

My Days is more than a personal memoir. It is a miniature biography that also reveals much about the landscape of the Indian subcontinent, and gives succinct insights into the characters of Narayan's friends and associates—Indian, British and American.

Rare is the writer who can reach back over the years to recapture the events of childhood and adolescent years, investing them with a special touch of youthful magic. This Narayan does admirably, transforming ordinary incidents into memorable experiences that become universal expressions of all boyhoods.

Remembrances of his early years of struggle, his happy but not confining marriage, the joys and tribulations of being a father, the despondency he fought to overcome following the untimely death of his wife—all these are told with quiet understatement and dignity. This is a book both tough and tender, and one feels, absolutely honest.

At a banquet to discuss a movie based on a Narayan story, India's Viceroy Lord Mountbatten asked Pearl Buck to tell him about the story of the film. The formidable writer stammered, then, Narayan relates: "She turned to me. 'Narayan, you tell the story.'

"I would not open my mouth. Dammit, I had taken eighty thousand words to tell the story. . . .Press announcements had given Pearl Buck credit for writing the screenplay, and it was said that she had been paid in advance of twenty-five or two hundred thousand dollars, and I was not going to help her out now. . . .I must admit I enjoyed her predicament."

Narayan also used this occasion to take one of his typical swipes at official frivolity, remarking that for a viceroy to be asked to promote a movie "seemed absurd."

My Days—A Memoir is totally absorbing reading that effectively reveals the essential qualities of a gifted man whose life style has been based on old fashioned virtues.

Tony Buttitta's detailed account of his brief friendship with F. Scott Fitzgerald is a curious bag of recollections resurrected from notes entered on the margins of books, on memory, and some research.

Early in the pages of After the Good Gay Times, Buttitta sets the tone of the uneven relationship between himself and the object of his devoted note-taking.

" ' Who are you?' " Fitzgerald asked at their first meeting, where Buttitta had helped Fitzgerald find a place to urinate against a garden wall in Asheville. " 'Nobody,' " Tony Buttitta aswered.

This human door-mat attitude permeates the whole book, and for this reader it's disconcerting. It's an attitude totally unwarranted—because Buttitta on his own is a capable, informative writer.

By far the most interesting person in this nostalgia-tinged account of life in Asheville in the mid-thirties is the fashionable prostitute Lottie, whose "charms were available only to guests of the luxury hotels."

Lottie becomes allied with Buttitta in efforts to salvage something worthwhile from the tattered ruin of Fitzgerald's life at this critical period.

According to Buttitta, Fitzgerald harbored a strong streak of racism. Consequently, when Lottie informed Fitzgerald that she was three-quarters white and "one-quarter colored," Fitzgerald reportedly "let his face drop in his hands like he was about to bawl. He mumbled something like this over and over: 'Oh, God, what's happened to me? What's happened to me ?' "

Despite some illuminating quotes from Fitzgerald on his personal convictions and attitudes as a writer, too much emphasis and space is given to trivia. There's a limit on what we want or need to know about anybody's bathroom, eating, and drinking habits—eventually it galls.

Perhaps Tony Buttitta will now turn his considerable writing talent to something that will reflect his own thinking. It would be interesting to see what he can do outside the shadow of a famous subject.

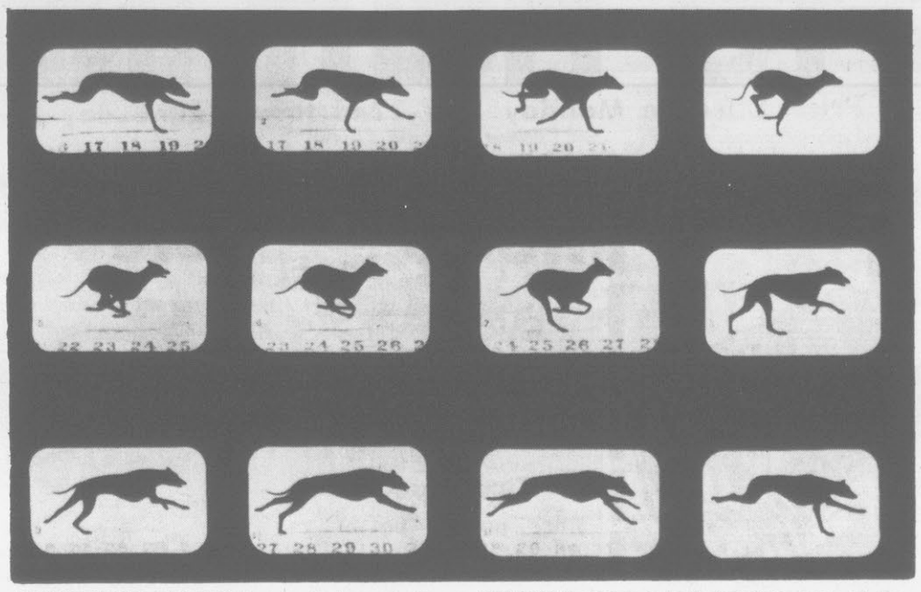
HOME FOR A LITTLE WHILE. . .Greenville's Johnny Collins, III, young star of films and television, is home again visiting his mother, Mrs. Ruby T. Batchelor. One of the movies in which Johnnie has appeared, "Scream, Pretty Peggy," starring Bette Davis, will be aired over ABC Television, Channel 12 on Wednesday night beginning at 8:30 p.m.

Muybridge Show Opens Today



GREYHOUND RUNNING. . .a photo made by Eadweard Muybridge in 1897 and published in Attitudes of Animals in Motion (1881). This picture is included in the exhibition entitled "Eadweard Muybridge: The Stanford Years, 1872-1882," which is scheduled to open at the North Carolina Museum of Art July 21. (Photo courtesy of the Stanford University Museum of Art.)

Because of a California governor's conviction more than 100 years ago that a race horse had all four feet off the ground at some point in its stride, the motion picture industry was born.

Just how the belief led to the reality of the movies is demonstrated in an exhibition entitled "Eadweard Muybridge: The Stanford Years, 1972-1882," that will open today at the North Carolina Museum of Art. The North Carolina Art Society will host a reception open to the public at 4 p.m. The exhibit will be on view through Sept. 1.

It was Muybridge's pioneering studies of motion, particularly of animals, and his invention of a "zoopraxiscope," a primitive movie projector, that led to the sophisticated motion picture camera and projector of today.

The exhibition will include some of the 100,000 photographs of animals and humans in motion that Muybridge published in 1887 in a volume called, "Animal Locomotion."

Dansorama At Wrightsville

Wrightsville Beach near Wilmington will be the scene of a Dansorama beginning today and continuing through Wednesday, July 24.

A family type dance event, registration begins today at 3 p.m. and ends at 6 p.m. at the Blockade Runner Motor Hotel.

Federal Judges Claim $40,000 Income Not Enough

By CHARLOTTE MOULTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Many of the nation's federal judges, who make $40,000 a year and can retire on full income, are complaining they cannot manage in this time of rapacious inflation. Some are leaving the bench to get back into lucrative private practice.

There's also concern that a freeze on the salaries of U.S. district judges may chill hopes of the judiciary to keep the best available talent on the bench.

Five judges have resigned since the Senate voted 71 to 26 last March against raising salaries for congressmen, the judiciary and other high bureaucrats.

Despite a 30 per cent increase in the cost of living in the last five years, the lawmakers shied away from raising their own pay in an election year, thus depriving judges and others of an increase. Judicial salaries are where they were in 1969.

Leading figures of the bench and bar feel that resigning a judgeship for a lucrative spot in a law firm whose cases the judge has been trying does not enhance the public image of the federal judiciary.

"They shouldn't be shopping around with people who have practiced before them," Chesterfield Smith, president of the American Bar Association, said recently.

Retired Supreme Court Justice Tom C. Clark, who shares leadership of a committee that is supposed to inform Congress on this subject, told UPI the wide gap between lawyers' and judges' salaries "does impinge on the independence of judges."

"The image of justice is just as important as justice itself," Clark said. "What people think of the courts is going to have a direct bearing on what the courts do. If they see judges going off —going into firms —it will leave a bad impression."

Clark said a good lawyer's bottom price for courtroom work is $50 an hour. In metropolitan areas it goes as high as $100. Figuring six hours a day in court, plus work before and after, the pay is pretty good.

Clark and Smith believe the threat to judicial excellence is not so much in resignations as in the difficulty of attracting topflight lawyers to the bench.

These twin problems, and Congress' refusal to consider them, have moved some judges to express themselves in forceful terms. They especially were pained by a statement of Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana on the Senate floor that "there are hundreds of lawyers waiting to take the places of the members of the judiciary who are complaining so much and who have been putting on such a tremendous lobby."

Judge John Minor Wisdom of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, one of the nation's most respected jurists, wrote Mansfield deploring what he termed the senator's "contemptuous reference."

"In a few days you were influential in reducing the incentive to become a federal judge to the point where it will be difficult to attract good men to federal courts," he said.

Chief Judge Charles B. Fulton of the District Court in Miami recalled in a letter to Chief Justice Warren E. Burger's administrative assistant the suggestion of a columnist that "in these days of distrust and crisis the only thing that is holding the country together is the judiciary."

"It begins to look like both the administration and the Congress are willing to scuttle the judiciary," Fulton wrote.

District Judge Arnold Bauman of New York, who is leaving for private practice in August, said federal judges "do not assume their offices for a limited period anticipating their return to private life and lucrative pursuits ... their problems are unique and require special consideration."

Bauman said when he was appointed he expected to serve the rest of his life but because of inflation and congressional inaction he was forced to resign.

The pay of congressmen and judges is tied because of the peculiar system for recommending increases. This job is done every four years by the Commission on Legislative, Executive and Judicial Salaries, whose members are appointed by the President, the chief justice, the speaker of the House, and the president of the Senate.

New appointees have looked to this system to keep salary levels abreast of the rise in the cost of living. The commission in 1973 recommended a 25 per cent pay hike to bring district judges up to $50,000 and circuit judges to $53,000.

Commission Chairman Arch Patton has emphasized that federal judges are paid full salary on retirement and do not contribute 8 per cent for a pension as other federal employes do. Patton said this 8 per cent "has a career value as spendable income approximating $250,000 when compound interest is applied...."

One of the resigning judges responded that this sum is of little assistance to a younger man trying to send his children to college.

Sen. Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., chairman of Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee, is holding further hearings with the idea of revising the present system. It has been suggested that recommendations be made every two years instead of four and that the law be changed to link judicial pay increases to the cost of living.

Coffee Has A Tradition

NEW YORK (AP) — We discuss it, dote on it, and delight in it. A "break" for it is an American institution. Some people can't even speak before they have it. We take pride in making it perfect, even though some of us boil it, spoil it and discard it in dismay.

It's coffee, of course, and for millions of us it's as important as breathing. But there's more to coffee than just the making and drinking. It actually has a history all its own, researchers at Melitta, a filter coffeemaker manufacturer, have found.

...The exhilarating effects of coffee were first discovered by an ancient goatherd who discovered his goats blissfully prancing about after munching on coffee leaves.

...When coffee was introduced in Western Europe, religious fanatics deemed it "the invention of Satan." According to them, people who indulged in the beverage were playing havoc with their souls.

...Pope Clement VIII was so tantalized by the taste of coffee that he baptized it and made it the official Christian beverage.

...In Turkey one clause of the ancient wedding vows required that the groom always provide his bride with coffee. If he neglected this matrimonial order, it was grounds for divorce.

...The popularity of coffee in America was greatly enhanced after the Boston Tea Party, when it was considered disloyal to drink tea, which up until that time was the favored beverage.

...It requires about 2,000 hand-picked coffee cherries to provide enough beans for one pound of roasted coffee.

...The first coffee street vendor in America was a woman. Dorothy Jones sold her home-brewed coffee in the streets of Boston in 1670.

...It is not true that coffee is never grown in the United States. There are actually a few pampered coffee shrubs thriving among the towering skyscrapers of New York City's Wall Street.

...Perhaps the strangest coffee-break occurred when Stanley came across explorer Dr. Livingston in the wilds of Africa, and greeted him with "Dr. Livingston, I presume." The doctor casually replied "Just in time for coffee, Stanley."

...Coffee has been a theme in many popular songs, but the most famous composer to glorify the beverage was J.S. Bach, an avid coffee drinker, who, in the 18th century, wrote "The Coffee Cantata" as an entertainment for the opening of a friend's coffee house.

Ellis Single Gives Cleveland Tribe Victory

BLOCKADE AT HOME—Montreal Expos' catcher Barry Foote tags San Francisco Giant Bobby Bonds before he can reach home plate with the tieing run in ninth inning of game today. Bonds was trying to score from first on double by teammate Gary Matthews. Expos' Mike Jorgenson made perfect peg of shortstop Pepe Frias who relayed the ball to Foote for the big out. CLEVELAND (AP) — John Ellis drove in five runs—two of them with a game-winning single in the ninth inning—to give Cleveland a frantic 10-9 victory Saturday over the Oakland A's, but the Indians' catcher still wasn't very happy.

"I was responsible for the game-tying run," Ellis said, looking back to the eighth inning. The Indians held a 7-6 edge when Ellis threw the ball into the outfield on Reggie Jackson's steal of third base. Jackson continued home to knot the score.

"He had no business stealing third," Ellis muttered. "If my throw was good, I would have had him."

Then he turned to happier matters—the 2-2 pitch he slapped over second to win the game.

"It was a fastball I hit," Ellis said. "I hit fastballs all day. That hit was much more satisfying because of my error in the eighth."

Ellis said losing the lead disturbed him, but added: "At least we didn't lay down out there."

"This was quite a baseball game," said Oakland Manager Alvin Dark. "This is the kind of game that brings the fans back to the stadium."

The Indians had taken an 8-7 lead in the bottom of the eighth inning of the nationally televised game on Oscar Gamble's sacrifice fly but run-scoring hits by Angel Mangual and Bert Campaneris in the ninth inning vaulted Oakland in front.

In the bottom of the ninth, Rusty Torres led off with a single and, when first baseman Joe Rudi made a wild throw on Frank Duffy's bunt, the runners wound up on second and third.

Rollie Fingers, 7-3, bore down and got George Hendrick on a foul pop-up, struck out Charlie Spikes. But Ellis punched a single to right-center for the tying and winning runs.

The Indians, on the strength of two-run homers by Ellis and Spikes, jumped to a 6-0 lead against Ken Holtzman after three innings.

The A's closed the gap to 6-2 in the fifth on Claudell Washington's two-run single. The Indians made it 7-2 in the bottom of the fifth on Ellis' run-scoring single.

But in the sixth, Oakland chased Indians' starter Fritz Peterson, with Bill North's solo homer, Gene Tenace's two-run shot and Ted Kubiak's run-scoring single, then the A's tied it in the eighth when Reggie Jackson doubled, stole third and continued home on Ellis' wild throw into left field.

Ellis hit his seventh homer of the season with Spikes on base in the second inning to give the Tribe a 2-0 edge.

The Indians made it 6-0 in the third. Ellis scored on Buddy Bell's double and Jack Brohamer, who singled, scored on Frank Duffy's double. Spikes followed with his 13th homer of the year.

In the eighth inning, the Indians took the lead back when Bell reached base on a fielder's choice. Tom McCraw bunted safely down the third base line and Bell, who made it all the way to third on the hit, scored on Gamble's fly ball.

But Oakland rebounded for a one-run lead in a frantic top of the ninth inning. Dick Green led off with a single and pinch-runner Herb Washington stole second base.

Claudell Washington was ruled out for interference when his bat hit the ball twice. But Mangual came through with a game-tying double to center.

Bill North was intentionally walked but Campaneris wrecked the strategy with his single to left. A good throw home might have gotten Mangual but John Lowenstein threw the ball way over the plate.

Jesus Alou followed with a smash off Bell's glove. But the third baseman recovered and threw to second trying to get Campaneris. On the play, North tried to score from third but second baseman Jack Brohamer chased him down and nailed him along the third base line.

Pirate SID Resigns

John Evenson, the Director of Sports Information and Promotions at East Carolina University for the past year, has resigned his position effective August 18, 1974.

In making the announcement, Athletic Director Clarence Stasavich said: "We regret very much to learn that John will be leaving our staff. He has done an outstanding job in organizing the sports information office and in working with the media to assure access to information on our program.

"We wish him well for the future and we will continue to follow his young career with interest."

John Evenson

Evenson said, "Leaving East Carolina was a long and tough decision for me. I would especially like to thank Coach Stasavich who gave me the opportunity to reach sports information work on the Division I level while still very young. I will always respect Coach Stas and consider him a valuable friend and advisor.

"The biggest regret I have is leaving the athletes at East Carolina," Evenson said. "I have never worked anywhere in athletics where the players themselves were more helpful and friendly. Regardless of sport, the athletes at East Carolina are super people."

Stasavich said East Carolina planned to launch an immediate search for a successor.

Evenson said his future plans would be announced in several weeks.

Jessen Surges Into Ladies Lead

By JERRY LISKA
AP Sports Writer

LA GRANGE, Ill. (AP) — Ruth Jessen, a semi-retired pro who has played only four competitive rounds in three months, surged from the pack with a one-under-par 71 to grab the 54-hole lead by a stroke Saturday in the wide-open U.S. Women's Open Golf Tournament.

Miss Jessen, competing only because of a $1,000 sponsorship from her Pinetop Country Club near Phoenix, Ariz., popped into the lead from four strokes off the pace as disaster hit the trio of 36-hole leaders.

Of the halfway pacesetters, Carol Mann faltered for a 77, amateur Debby Massey slumped to an 80 and Kathy Ahern ballooned to an 81.

Thus Miss Jessen, a 19-season pro whose best previous Open performance was runnerup in the 1964 championship, moved into Sunday's final round with a three-over-par total of 219, a stroke ahead of JoAnne Carner, Sandra Spuzich, and Sandra Haynie.

Mrs. Carner, the year's No. 2 moneywinner, also shot a one-under-par 71, while Miss Spuzich matched par 72 on the tricky La Grange Country Club course.

Homer Lifts Expos To 3-2 Win

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bob Bailey's 13th home run of the baseball season, a ninth-inning leadoff clout, triggered a two-run burst and boosted the Montreal Expos to a 3-2 victory Saturday over the San Francisco Giants.

Bailey's tie-breaking homer off rookie Ed Halicki, 0-2, ended the Giants' modest three-game winning streak. It was the fifth victory in the last seven games for the Expos.

Mike Jorgensen followed with a single, Randy Moffitt replaced Halicki, Barry Foote sacrificed Jorgensen to second, he took third on Pepe Frias' single and scored on pitcher Dennis Blair's sacrifice fly.

Gary Matthews' one-out homer, his 10th of the year, in the seventh inning off Blair, 5-2, had lifted the Giants into a 1-1 tie. Matthews also doubled for the Giants' final run in the ninth.

Montreal scored its first run in the fifth. Blair led off with a single, went to second on Larry Lintz' sacrifice and scored on Ken Singleton's two-out single.

Healy's Single Breaks Medich's Bid In Ninth

NEW YORK (AP) — George "Doc" Medich of the New York Yankees pitched eight innings of no-hit ball Saturday before Fran Healy led off the ninth with a clean single, and wound up with a two-hit, 6-2 victory over Steve Busby and the Kansas City Royals.

Medich struck out three and walked two.

Until Healy ripped a line single up the middle and Richie Scheinblum followed with a double down the right field line, Medich had benefited from a judgment call by the official scorer on a third-inning fly ball that fell between two New York outfielders and was called an error.

After Scheinblum's double, Medich, 12-7, wild-pitched Healy home and Scheinblum scored on Amos Otis' grounder.

With one out in the third inning, George Brett hit a routine fly ball to medium left-center field. Centerfielder Elliott Maddox and left fielder Roy White converged on the ball with Maddox calling for it.

At the last instant, however, Maddox suddenly backed off and Brett reached second base. It was ruled a two-base error against Maddox.

It was the fourth straight victory for Medich, but the ninth-inning runs ended a personal 24-inning scoreless streak.

Angels Slide Past Orioles, 2-0

BALTIMORE (AP) — Nolan Ryan scattered five hits and Frank Robinson scored one run and drove in another, leading the California Angels to a 2-0 victory over the Baltimore Orioles in the first game of a Saturday twi-night doubleheader.

Ryan, 12-9, the major league strikeout leader, fanned eight Orioles—raising his season total to 201—and walked only one batter.

Wayne Garland, 3-3, who pitched eight innings of no-hit ball against Oakland last Monday night only to lose 6-4, started his own downfall against California in the fourth inning when he hit Robinson with a pitch.

Robinson moved to third on a single to right by Joe Lahoud and came home on John Doherty's fly ball to center field. The Angels scored again in the ninth on Dave Chalk's single, a sacrifice and Robinson's double.

Ruth Stars Beaten, 18-1

WILMINGTON—Greenville's 14-15 year old Babe Ruth All-Stars, after being rained out Friday night, might just as well have been Saturday as they were shelled by host team Wilmington, 18-1, in the State tournament here.

Greenville's only run came in the first as Steve Manning singled went to second on a wild pitch and scored on an error.

Wilmington roared into command in the bottom of the frame on a grand slam homer by Dennis Capps who later hit a three-run blast in the third.

Greenville was scheduled to play in a 5:30 p.m. game yesterday against Concord which lost to New Bern in the opening round.

No other information was available on the double elimination affair.

Redbird Rally Breaks String At Seven Games

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Tim McCarver drilled a two-run, two-out, bases-loaded single in the bottom of the ninth inning, capping a three-run rally that gave St. Louis a 6-5 victory over Houston and snapped the Cardinals' seven-game losing streak.

The Astros had taken a 5-3 lead with a four-run eighth. But in the ninth, Luis Melendez tripled and scored on Lou Brock's grounder.

Jerry Davanon then walked, Bake McBride singled and, with two out, Don Wilson replaced Mike Cosgrove, 5-1. He walked Joe Torre, loading the bases, then McCarver came through with his single to right.

Roger Metzger's single, Cesar Cedeno's double and Bob Watson's single tied the game 3-3 for Houston in the eighth, then the Astros loaded the bases on two walks.

Tommy Helms singled off Rich Folkers, breaking the tie, and Al Hrabosky forced in the final run of the inning with a bases-loaded walk to Greg Gross.

The Cardinals had taken a 3-1 lead in the sixth inning on doubles by Reggie Smith and Torre plus Mike Tyson's single.

A double by Brock and a single by Davanon gave the Cards a third-inning run; but the Astros tied it in the fourth on a single by Watson and a two-out RBI single by Doug Rader.

Karl Rides 68 Into Share Of B.C. Lead

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — Hometown hero Richie Karl, who grew up just across the street from the golf course, charged into a share of the lead Saturday with a 68 in the third round of the $150,000 B.C. Open.

Karl, now an assistant pro at the host En Joie Golf Club when he isn't playing the tour, had a 205 total, eight under par. He was tied for the top spot with Curtis Sifford.

Sifford, a 32-year-old nephew of old pro Charley Sifford and the second-round leader, scrambled to a one-under 70 in the mild, breezy weather.

"This is my bad round," said Sifford, one of the few blacks on the pro golf tour. "I got it out of the way. I got my choking round out of the way."

Veterans John Schlee and Australian Bruce Crampton were two shots off the pace at 207. Schlee's 65 represented the best round of the tournament while Crampton got in with a 70.

"I know I can win," said Crampton, winner of 14 American tour events. "I don't know if Richie knows he can win. We'll find out tomorrow."

Neither Karl nor Sifford has ever won on the tour.

Another pair of non-winners—Tim Collins and Mark Hayes—were at 208, each with a third-round 72.

Most of the game's top names skipped this tourney, which immediately followed last week's British Open.

Hubert Green, the defending champion here was an exception, but he failed to qualify for the final two rounds.

Karl, 29, has played part time on the tour for four years but has not yet come close to winning. For his 10 previous events this season—only one since March, he has an official money winning total of $256.38.

Karl has played this 6,804-yard layout since he was 6 years old—"It's a good neighborhood to grow up in and playing golf, well, your mother always knew where you were"—and is seeking to become the first host pro to win a tour title since Earl Stewart captured the Dallas Open in 1960.

The pressure of playing before the hometown gallery doesn't bother him, he said. "There is no pressure," Karl said.

"I grew up across the street. If I don't know the golf course, who does? I have made up my mind to play the course, not the gallery."

Karl birdied the first hole from 15 feet, wedged to three feet for birdies on two par-fives and punched a short iron to within six feet for a birdie on No. 11.

His only bogey came on the 12th when he drove under a tree and couldn't reach the green in regulation.

Sifford scrambled all day—"I was lucky to get out of it with what I did," he said—and regained a share of the lead with a 20-foot putt for a birdie on the par-three 14th hole.

Players' Arrival Marks Start Of All-Star Game Preparations

Next Saturday night high school football stars from all across the state will be battling in the 12th annual Boys Home All-Star Football game set for 8:00 in Ficklen Stadium.

The sixty players and six coaches will be arriving today for a week of preparation for the classic. Their schedule will begin with introductions, a skull session and a light workout late this afternoon.

Following the practice, the players and coaches will be treated to a swimming and a cook-out at the Tar River Estates pool.

Each day's workout schedule calls for two practices each day-one in the morning and afternoon. The sessions will be held on the East Carolina practice fields and the soccer fields.

On Friday night, the player's banquet will he held at the Candlewick Inn at which time the Bryant Powell award will be presented to the player who displays the best character and attitude during the week of practice as chosen by the players.

The award is given in memory of the first young man from Boys' Home selected to play in the Boys' Home game. He later was killed in action in Vietnam while serving in the U.S. Marines. The award is presented by the Greenville Jaycees.

Some of the dignitaries expected to attend the game will be the new Miss North Carolina Susan Griffin. The Marine Band from Camp Lejeune will provide the halftime entertainment.

The coaches for this year's game bring an impressive record with them. The North coaches headed by John Morris of Reidsville has a combined record of 215 wins, 89 losses and eight ties. Morris will have Herb Goins of Northern High in Durham and John Rackley of Ashe Central in Jefferson as his assistants.

John Daskal of Reid Ross of Fayetteville and his assistants Tom Brown of Maiden High and Bob Lewis of East Bladen in Elizabethtown hold a combined record of 168-70-8.

Of the 60 players on the two rosters, 58 are going to college with only two undecided as to where they will go. Forty of them, have signed grants-in-aid for their respective schools. Six players were given All-State honors, four were Shrine Bowl participants and nine were selected to the Prep All-America team by Coach and Athlete Magazine. One player is a Morehead Scholar.

The North averages 198 pounds while the South weighs in at 196.

East Carolina has eight future players in the game. N.C. State and Appalachian each have six. Western Carolina has five and UNC-CH, Clemson, Chowan and Elon all have four.

The game is sponsored each year by the North Carolina Jaycees and hosted by the Greenville Jaycees for the benefit of Boys Homes of North Carolina.

Wood Wins 16th Beating Brewers

CHICAGO (AP) — Wilbur Wood, with help from Bucky Dent's bat, hurled the Chicago White Sox to a 3-2 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Saturday, winning his 16th game of the season, tops in the major leagues.

Dent's single with two out in the seventh broke a 2-2 tie and scored Carlos May with the winning run.

The knuckleballing Wood went the distance and gave up seven hits. He fell behind in the fifth, however, when Milwaukee got a pair of runs on two hits. Bob Coluccio, who got to first base on a forceout, and Pedro Garcia, who walked, both advanced on a wild pitch by Wood, then scored on Robin Yount's single.

The White Sox, who had opened the scoring in the second inning on Ron Santo's RBI single, tied the score on Dick Allen's solo homer in the sixth off loser Clyde Wright, 8-12. It was Allen's 25th of the baseball season, tops in both leagues.

Medich Wanted Shutout

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "I'm disappointed at losing the no-hitter, but I'm more disappointed at losing the shutout. I thought after eight innings I pretty well had it."

That was George "Doc" Medich's reaction Saturday after holding Kansas City hitless for eight innings, only to finish with a two-hitter in the New York Yankees' 6-2 victory over the Royals.

The slim crowd of 11,050 cheered Medich when he took the mound in the ninth inning, but it didn't take long for their roars to turn to groans.

Fran Healy, ninth in the Kansas City batting order, hammered Medich's first pitch on a sharp line to center field for a clean single.

"It was a fast ball on the inside part of the plate about belt-high," Medich said. "I'd throw the same pitch to Healy again. But I'd choose a different spot. I was trying to get it a little higher than I did."

The next batter, pinch-hitter Richie Scheinblum, ripped a 2-2 pitch—"a fast ball up and in," Medich said—down the right field line for a double and the runs—snapping Medich's personal scoreless string at 24 innings—eventually came in on a wild pitch and an infield out.

"I was kind of deflated after Healy's hit," the tall, 25-year-old right-hander admitted. "I was kind of charged up in the ninth inning, but I was also trying to keep my composure.

"On the other hand, I was also relieved when Healy got the hit. I know that's a trite saying and most pitchers say that, but it's true. I was relaxed after that."

Healy had mixed feelings.

"You never want anybody to throw a no-hitter against you," said the Kansas City catcher. "But, on the other hand, I can feel sorry for him because I caught Steve Busby's two no-hitters and some other near ones and you can almost feel the anguish when they're broken up."

Medich said he was aware of his no-hit bid "from the first inning on. I know how many hits I've given up, plus it's on the scoreboard. No one talked to me on the bench, but they don't talk to me during a game anyway.

"Still there's a considerable amount of tension. When I came off the field after the seventh inning, all the people were cheering. That was just like a reminder.

"And as you get closer you start fantasizing. It's really weird. Your mind kind of plays tricks with you. You think you might get a raise, things like that, and every inning you keep telling yourself you're three outs closer."

It was Medich's fourth straight complete-game victory and gave him a 12-7 record, but he's going to spend the three-day All-Star break next week fishing off Long Island.

"I have to say I was disappointed in not being picked for the All-Star team," said the third-year medical student at the University of Pittsburgh, "because Pittsburgh's my home town and I live 10 minutes from Three Rivers Stadium. But my statistics aren't as good as the guys who were picked so I've really got no complaint."

Sluggers Win; KFC In Finals

Regular season Purple Division champs, the Little Sluggers completed their sweep of the division's tournament Friday night with an 18-3 rout of Parker's while Kentucky Fried Chicken moved into the finals of the Gold.

The Sluggers, undefeated through the tournament, only needed the one game to wrap up the title. KFC, however, will meet Sunnyside Eggs, the only team KFC has lost to this year for the championship Monday. KFC rolled over Pier 5 by almost the same score as the Sluggers, 17-3.

The Sluggers started the scoring off with the first batter. Gibson smashed a homer and the Sluggers added two more in the first. Parkers got a pair in their half of the first but they were shut out until the last inning when they got their other run.

The Sluggers picked up five in the second and with six in the third they had it all but wrapped up. Cox hit an outside-the-park homer in the fourth as the Sluggers added three more tallies. Their final run came over in the fifth.

Like the Sluggers, KFC established a lead early. They ran up an 8-1 advantage after the first two frames and after Pier 5 got one in the third, KFC scored three to lead 11-2 after three.

KFC scored once more in the fourth and fifth, three times in the sixth and once in the seventh. Pier 5 picked up its other score in the sixth.

The winner of Monday night's game will play the Sluggers for the City championship in a best-of-three series, July 24.

Camp Not Only For Players

By WILLIE PATRICK
Special To The Reflector

While watching his "Dudes in the Red Shorts" run drills, Dennis Webb shook his head and smiled a wistful smile.

"I just wish I had more kids here," said Webb, athletic director and head football coach at Sussex (Va.) Central High School. "There is a lot a person can get in return from a football camp like this. . .and the return my kids get could be greater than anyone else's."

Webb's charges, numbering 17 strong, were taking part in an afternoon teaching session at the Pat Dye Football Camp last week, which ran at East Carolina University. Among the most important aspects of the teaching process is the proper execution of the Wishbone offense, which the Pirates plan to introduce this season. Nicely enough, Webb said that he planned to do likewise in the fall.

"I ran the offense some years ago, but have used an "I" lately," said Webb. "So, basically our philosophies are the same.

"This camp has a big-time atmophere. . .I want to learn and I want my kids to learn here because the coaching staff is teaching what is important to winning football games."

The Sussex group makes up a part of the 71 campers that are registered, according to Watson Brown, camp director. The group's schedule included two on-the-field and one film session per day, plus a number of other recreational activities.

One of the smallest campers (in physical structure, anyway) was Bobby Arnold, a 10-year-old, 65-pounder from Lebanon, Tenn. He and five others in the "Little Guys" category including 4-3, 55 lb. Brett Dye said that their size didn't seem to make any difference and that they were having fun.

"We little guys have fun by ourselves," said Arnold, stretching his 4-feet-3 frame. "But the bigger guys are pretty nice to us."

From Arnold to Ernie White, a 6-5, 281-pounder from Sussex, the opinions expressed by the campers were pretty much the same, in that the coaches didn't mind taking extra time giving individual attention to the campers. And like the variety of people at the camp, Arnold and White had their own special ideas about what was most important to them at camp.

"It's helping me get in shape," said White, referring to the blocking drills and other practice aspects. . .after all, I may just get a chance to come to college someday."

"The coaches help us out in their spare time," said Arnold. "And they always have us something to drink after practice."

No matter what the size, opinion or origin, the participants at the "Pat Dye Football Camp" were having fun. For many, it was the first look at a "big-time atmosphere" surrounding a college and for all, it was a priceless opportunity to learn football skills from the Pirate coaching staff. At least that's the way the critiques read.

Nobis, Brezina Report To Camp

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP)—Starting linebackers Tommy Nobis, a former all-pro, and Greg Brezina headed a small group of Atlanta Falcon veterans who reported to camp Friday while some of their teammates were walking a picket line.

And the leader of the striking group suddenly found himself the property of another team when the Falcons announced that eight-year cornerback Ken Reaves had been dealt to the New Orleans Saints as part of a four-man trade.

Reaves and nine other Falcons set up the picket line only moments before an assistant coach summoned the defensive back for a meeting with Coach Norm Van Brocklin.

"It's always somewhat of a shock," said Reaves, adding that he had an inkling a trade might be in the works. "Being player representative is a hazardous job. I knew that, and I accepted the risk."

Van Brocklin, one of the founding fathers of the National Football League Players Association that struck pro football July 1, immediately denied the trade had anything to do with Reaves' work in the labor movement.

"The timing looks bad," said Van Brocklin. "It looks like a hatchet job. But I assure you it is not intended that way and is totally unrelated to the labor movement."

However, Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFLPA, charged that Reaves was traded "because of his labor activities. He stood up to Van Brocklin so he had to go. It's outrageous."

Meanwhile, Falcons' owner, Rankin Smith echoed Van Brocklin's remark about the timing.

"There's no way we'll come out . . . public relations wise," Smith said. "But we'd be a fool if we didn't make a trade to help us, and we think we did."

The trade also included guard Andy Maurer, who had said during the winter he wanted to be traded. The Falcons got former Georgia All-American Royce Smith—a guard—and linebacker Dick Palmer from the Saints.

Reds Beat Chicago, 4-1 But Fail To Gain Ground

By The Associated Press

A sore-armed pitcher helped Cincinnati to its 4-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs Friday night, but a Los Angeles hurler with a pain in the neck kept the Reds from gaining ground on the National League West Division leaders.

Jack Billingham, troubled with stiffness in his right shoulder since spring training, struggled to gain his 10th triumph of the season.

He lasted until the Chicago sixth inning before Pedro Borbon relieved and finished the game with four innings of two-hit ball.

Bill Plummer and George Foster each drove in two runs to pace Cincinnati's 13th victory in 16 games. The hot streak has brought the Reds within 6½ games of the Dodgers, but stiff-necked Doug Rau beat the Philadelphia Phillies to keep the margin from dwindling further.

Unlike Billingham, Rau didn't suffer much before the game. But he wasn't around at the finish. Mike Marshall was, as he has been in most Los Angeles games this season.

It was the second time Rau and Marshall combined for a 4-0 decision. They beat the Expos by that score on April 28.

Mets 4, Padres 2

Jerry Grote had two hits and drove in two runs to back Jon Matlack's five-hitter and lead New York past San Diego.

Padres second baseman Horace Clarke opened the way for four unearned Mets runs to score in the sixth inning, when he muffed Rusty Staub's ground ball.

Clarence Gaston's sixth home run of the season gave the Padres a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning.

Giants 6, Expos 2

Gary Matthews hit two-run singles in the third and fifth, while Mike Caldwell and Randy Moffitt teamed for a six-hitter to carry San Francisco past Montreal.

Pirates 2, Braves 0

Ken Brett pitched a five-hitter and drove in one run with a fifth-inning sacrifice fly, highlighting Pittsburgh's sixth consecutive victory.

All-time home run king Hank Aaron started for the Braves after a three-game absence due to a knee injury, tying Ty Cobb's major league record of 3,033 games played.

Astros 5, Cards 1

Houston's Lee May drove in three runs with a single and his 17th home run of the season and Tom Griffin raised his record to 11-3 with a 7 2-3 inning performance to beat St. Louis.

Joe Torre drove in a run with a fourth-inning triple for the Cardinals, who suffered their seventh consecutive loss and 13th in 14 games.

National League scores: Los Angeles 4, Philadelphia 0; Cincinnati 4, Chicago 1; San Francisco 6, Montreal 2; Houston 5, St. Louis 1; Pittsburgh 2, Atlanta 0; New York 4, San Diego 2.

American League scores: Cleveland Indians 4, Oakland A's 0; Kansas City Royals 5, New York Yankees 4; Minnesota Twins 7, Detroit Tigers 5; Boston Red Sox 3, Texas Rangers 1, and Chicago White Sox 7, Milwaukee Brewers 3.

Unser, Foyt Favored

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

CAMBRIDGE JUNCTION, Mich. (AP) — Bobby Unser and A.J. Foyt were favored to capture the front-row starting positions today in qualifications for Sunday's 200 mile Indianapolis-car race.

Butch Hartmen, Foyt, Wally Dallenbach and Unser also were among top contenders for favored berths in time trials to set a field for a companion 200-miler for United States Auto Club stock cars.

The first of Sunday's two races is for the red-hot championship drivers. Officials of Michigan International Speedway say a sellout crowd of 55,000 is possible.

The lineup for the championship race, scheduled for a payoff of $70,795, will be limited to the fastest 26 qualifiers from about 30 entries.

Thirty-six drivers will start the stock car event, including several from the championship half of the twin bill. The stock car purse totals $38,675.

Bobby Unser, a noted speed record-setter last year, posted Friday's top practice lap, 196.19 miles an hour, in the same Olsonite Eagle he drove to runnerup finishes behind Johnny Rutherford in both the Indianapolis and Pocono 500s.

Foyt, who captured the pole position for two of the United States Auto Club's three 500-mile events, was clocked at 192.51 m.p.h.

Rutherford, looking for his fourth straight USAC triumph, had to prove to officials he could extricate himself quickly from his car's cockpit, despite his left leg being in a cast. He broke the leg last week in crash.

Cleveland Blanks A's On Bosman's No-Hitter

By The Associated Press

Cleveland's Dick Bosman was perfect throwing to the plate but imperfect throwing to first base and that one imperfection cost him a chance to be absolutely perfect Friday night.

Making only his fifth start of the season, the 30-year-old right-hander threw 79 pitches to the plate against the Oakland A's and 60 of them were either strikes—he fanned four—or resulted in outs. Bosman also threw twice to first base and one of them was high, glancing off the glove of Tom McCraw for a two-base error.

The miscue cost Bosman a perfect game and he had to settle for a no-hitter as the Indians snapped a sixgame slide and Oakland's sixgame winning streak by defeating the world champion A's 4-0.

Bosman wasn't discouraged with his narrow miss at what would have been the 11th perfect game in major league history:

"This has got to be the biggest thrill of my life."

Red Sox 3, Rangers 1

Luis Tiant scattered eight hits and Boston took advantage of four Texas errors. Tiant set down the first 12 Rangers until Mike Hargrove doubled to lead off the fifth inning and scored on Jim Spencer's single.

Orioles 5, Angels 4

Don Baylor's home run in the 10th inning enabled Baltimore to end a four-game losing streak after the Orioles had wasted a 4-1 lead. A sacrifice fly by Tommy Davis and a single by Baylor in the first inning accounted for two runs and California starter Dick Lange was chased in the third when run-scoring singles by Brooks Robinson and Earl Williams put the Orioles ahead 4-1.

Denny Doyle homered for the Angels.

Royals 5, Yankees 4

Amos Otis slammed a three-run homer off Sam McDowell with two out in the fifth inning and John Mayberry followed with a solo shot, powering Kansas City to a 4-1 lead. The Royals picked up what proved to be the winning run in the ninth on Fran Healy's single, Fred Patek's double and Jim Wohlford's infield hit.

White Sox 7, Brewers 3

Ken Henderson drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a double as Chicago rolled to its fifth straight victory. Bart Johnson picked up his third triumph in as many decisions since his recent recall from the minors but needed help from Terry Forster in the seventh.

George Scott and Darrell Porter homered for the Brewers.

Twins 7, Tigers 5

Rod Carew singled home one run and had three hits and Larry Hisle doubled home two runs, propelling Minnesota over the slumping Tigers. Dave Goltz, who was greeted by Bill Freehan's three-run homer when he relieved Vic Albury in the first inning, hurled 7 1-3 strong innings to earn the victory.

Intrepid Back In Cup Trials

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The defending America's Cup champion Intrepid—disqualified in its latest yacht race due to a collision—was to make a delayed return today to the U.S. observation trials.

Intrepid, leading all contenders with an over-all record of 10 victories and four defeats, was unable to race Friday because archrival Courageous bowed out with minor equipment trouble.

Courageous, with an 8-4 record in the preliminary and observation trials, damaged a metal fitting—the backstay crane—near the top of its mast as it prepared in high winds for the trial competition.

The race on Rhode Island Sound was postponed for 24 hours.

The aluminum Courageous leads the fight to oust the Intrepid and become the U.S. entry in the Sept. 10 America's Cup racing series.

The postponement followed the collision Thursday between Intrepid and the Valiant, winless in a total of nine other trial races.

The New York Yacht Club's racing committee officially ruled that Intrepid had not hailed properly for the right of way before its stern ripped a six-inch gash in Valiant's starboard side amidships.

Valiant had actually defeated Intrepid by 28 seconds following the collision. But the outcome was under dispute temporarily because the skippers of both yachts filed protests about the accident.

BIKE RIDERS REPEAT

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Bauer and Jeanne Azzarello have won the Pepsi-Cola bicycle marathon in Central Park the past two years. Bauer, a 33-year-old Bayville, N.Y., linotypist, covered 430 miles in 24 hours. The 23-year-old Miss Azzarello of Flushing, N.Y., pedaled 225 miles.

Special gold medals went to two members of the U.S. Military Academy team, Bryan Clowes of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Chesley Harris of Atlanta.

Eddie Ford, son of Yankee coach Whitey Ford, hit .296 in 46 games for Bobby Richardson's South Carolina baseball team this spring.

PARTS WITH A WOOD

HOUSTON (AP) — During the first round of the Houston Open, golfer Chi Chi Rodriguez spotted 11-year-old Greg Norton sitting in a wheelchair with both legs heavily bandaged. Rodriguez walked over to Greg, posed for a picture, then handed the boy his number four wood.

Greg nearly lost his life in a fire several months ago.

Bosman Wanted Low Scoring Game

By RICHARD BILOTTI
AP Sports Writer

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Indians' pitcher Dick Bosman is a goal-setter...and in some cases an over-achiever.

"I always set goals for myself," the 30-year-old right-hander said. "Tonight my goal was to go out there and pitch a low-scoring ballgame and go the distance."

Bosman's goal-setting turned into a pot of gold Friday night when he tossed the first no-hitter of his 11-year career, beating the Oakland A's 4-0.

The only man to reach base was Sal Bando, who made it to second on Bosman's throwing error in the fourth inning.

"This has got to be the biggest thrill of my life," Bosman said as his teammates poured beer over his head. "I always knew I had it in me, and tonight I finally got it."

"Johnny (Ellis, the catcher) kept me down all night," Bosman said. "I told him before the game to get on his belly if he had to, to keep me down. He did a great job."

The error in the fourth inning didn't bother him, Bosman insisted. "I had to stay in there and pitch. My slider was working well and my fastball was sailing and sinking."

Bosman said it was very quiet on the bench and, even though he was aware of the 24,302 fans roaring with every pitch he made in the final two innings, he never broke his concentration.

"It was all between Johnny and me," he said. "I had to concentrate. When I got to the mound all I saw was Johnny's fingers and the glove...I shook a little bit when I was warming up in the ninth..."

The Oakland squad took Bosman's no-hitter as just another loss.

"I tapped him and wished him good luck," Jackson said of his action running off the field at the end of the eighth inning. "I did it because he's a nice guy. He's always been a nice guy.

"He made good pitches. I've never seen him pitch this well before. He had great stuff, so I give him credit..."

Ruth Museum Finally Open

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Babe Ruth Birthplace Shrine and Museum, honoring a native son who gained nationwide acclaim through his baseball prowess, is finally open for public inspection.

The project to restore the slugger's homestead, which was scheduled for demolition in 1967, was an uphill battle and in recent years there were several premature pre-opening ceremonies.

But on Friday, memorabilia from Ruth's storied career went on display after brief ceremonies on the sidewalk outside the rowhouse where Ruth was born in 1895.

Among those in attendance were Ruth's widow, Claire; his sister, Mrs. Mary Moberly; Gov. Marvin Mandel of Maryland, and Mayor William Donald Schaefer of Baltimore.

Yet another ceremony is scheduled for July 29, when the formal dedication will be made in the presence of various baseball luminaries including Hank Aaron—who this season broke Ruth's record of 714 lifetime home runs.

Mandel, who said that as a youth he was once given an autographed baseball by Ruth, told the crowd that the Hall of Fame player "was not only a legend but also an inspiration to all youngsters."

Ruth's home run ability and his magnetic draw at the turnstiles is credited with helping to save the sport after it reeled under the Chicago Black Sox scandal of 1919. Before turning slugger, Ruth also won 94 games as a pitcher.

Prominently displayed just inside the entrance of the museum are life-sized wax figures of Ruth, who died in 1948, and a young autograph-seeker.

The stairway is lined with baseball bats, and plaques commemorate Ruth's 714 homers, listing the date each was hit and the name of the opposing pitcher.

For a $100 donation, sponsors may "purchase" one of the home runs and have his name permanently listed alongside it on the plaque.

Wildlife Afield: Bass Now Get More Attention

By JIM DEAN

It's amazing what's being done to the largemouth bass. For years—as Rodney Dangerfield is fond of saying—"he didn't get no respect."

Well, some people are saying that this has changed, and to some extent it has. All of a sudden, the bass has become the object of a complete Madison Avenue scrub job. People are concerned with his image, his health, his ancestry—even his sex life.

What's happened is that the bass is getting plenty of well-deserved attention at long last, but I'm still not sure he's getting his share of "respect."

To me, it seems as though somebody had hatched a massive plot to bring the bass out of the pool room (where he belongs) and into the polite confines of the parlor.

It's like Robert Mitchum playing the role of Jay Gatsby, or putting Rocky Graziano in a Dewer's Scotch profile.

I've always thought of the largemouth bass as a bar-room brawler. He's got a big mouth and a pot belly. If a bass wore clothes, he'd wear jeans and a t-shirt with a pack of butts rolled up in the sleeve. He'd have a scar on his cheek and "Hard Luck" tatooed on his fins.

In years past, the capture of a bass on hook and line was always a matter of considerable doubt. When you hooked a big one, it was a free-for-all and nobody took any bets. Bass fishing was pure sport.

But more and more, the "sporting" aspects of bass fishing are being watered down and replaced with efficiency and competition. In recent years, the largemouth bass has gained a tremendous following. There are new clubs and magazines. New boats, new tackle, and new techniques have been developed. As far as I'm concerned, this is great and long overdue.

Unfortunately, some new attitudes have arisen—fostered largely, I believe, by the growth of tournament bass fishing. It's not that tournament fishing is necessarily bad, but it does seem that the "fish-for-cash" concept has sparked a philosophy that puts more value on quantity than quality.

With the aid of new knowledge and equipment, bass fishermen—both pro and amateur—have become super efficient. Let's face it, bass are easier to find, easier to fool and a darn sight easier to land. To many anglers, a five-pound bass is no longer a rare catch worthy of pride. Such a fish rarely ever slips the drag on a pool cue loaded with 20-30 pound test line, nor is he permitted to jump.

One or two good fish a day are no longer enough. Now, many think it takes a whole stringerful of whopper bass to get any recognition (or win any money). And don't hand me that custard about releasing fish alive. Darn few amateur fishermen do it. They usually keep as many as the law allows. As for the pros, in most tournaments no effort is made to keep fish alive. In some of the bigger tourneys, live wells are used and fish are released, but survival figures are low in many cases.

As I said before, the problem doesn't lie with the new equipment or techniques. It's a matter of attitude. When a fisherman is no longer thrilled at catching a five-pound bass, something is wrong.

When a fisherman keeps an entire limit of fish merely to prove angling prowess or to collect a fistful of dollars in prize money, something is dreadfully wrong.

Behind all this lurks the disturbing possibility that this increased pressure might lead to over-fishing. There is a growing concern among some experts that fish populations in some lakes might be significantly depleted unless more fishermen release most of thier bass as soon as they are caught.

Then there is that matter of respect. It hardly denotes respect to treat a bass as a pawn in a skill contest or as a product that can be bought and sold like so many bars of soap.

Along with the new tackle and techniques, we may need to adopt a new morality about bass fishing. After all, "sport" fishing is still the name of the game. Isn't it?

Cannonade took the Kentucky Derby but finished third in both the Preakness and Belmont.

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — "Leading is nothing new to me," Curtis Sifford said. "I just haven't won.

"But I'm going to win this one."

Sifford, a 32-year-old nephew of old pro Charley Sifford, offered the observation after his four-under-par 67 had broken a massive logjam of players and staked him to a one-stroke lead Friday in the second round of the $150,000 B.C. Open Golf Tournament.

Sifford was one of the last players to finish on the windswept, 6,804-yard En Joie Golf Club course and he was tied with four others until he chipped to four feet and made the short birdie putt on his 17th hole.

That got him in with a two round total of 135, seven under par, and dropped Don Iverson, Bruce Fleisher, rookie Mark Hayes and Tim Collins back into second at 136.

Iverson, Fleisher and Hayes all shared the 18-hole lead and ll had 70s in the gusty winds. Collins, who has made the cut only twice before this year, birdied his last two holes for a 67.

None of the five leaders has ever won a regular tour title. All face the problems of the Monday morning qualifying rounds.

Australian veteran Bruce Crampton had the day's best round, a 66 that included a bogey on the final hole, and was tied with four others at 137, just two shots back in the chase for a $30,000 first prize.

He was tied with Lee Elder, Forrest Fezler, Mike Wynn and Richie Karl, an assistant pro at the host club.

Hubert Green, the defending title-holder and a three-time winner this season, was one of the few top stars to play in this event that immediately follows the prestige-laden British Open. He failed to qualify for the last two rounds, shooting a 151 total.

Fall Season Starts Labor Day

RALEIGH—The first half of this fall's split season on doves will open at noon on Labor Day, Monday, September 2, according to an announcement made here today by the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission.

The first half of the split season on doves will last from September 2 through October 12, while the second half of the season will be from December 14 through January 11. Doves may be hunted each day— except Sundays— during these split seasons from noon until sunset.

"Opening the season on a Monday represents a minor change from past recent seasons," said Frank Barick, chief of the Division of Game. "Last year, for example, we opened the season on a Saturday, but this year the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service gave us a framework that made Labor Day the best choice for an opening day. Since it's a holiday, it should work out fine."

As in recent years, the daily bag limit for doves will be 12, with a possession limit of 24.

The Wildlife Commission also adopted seasons on rails, gallinules, woodcock, common snipe and sea ducks.

In tires, it's not the price you pay. It's how often you pay it.

This steel-belted Radial Tire carries the Michelin Warranty* for 40,000 miles on the original tread. (Many owners get much more.) Puncture resistant Michelins give precise steering, and smooth driving comfort. So stop in and start saving today.

40,000 MILE WARRANTY

*Michelin's Warranty for X Radial Highway Passenger Tire shown here covers tread life, normal road hazards (excluding reparable punctures) and defects in workmanship and materials for 40,000 miles, when tire is used on passenger vehicles in normal service in continental United States, except Alaska. Credit or refund (at Michelin's option) is equal to current actual selling price multiplied by percentage of warranted mileage not run on tire.

Think Radial... and Look to the Leader

MICHELIN

The Gas Savers

Because of the lower rolling resistance of Michelin "X" radials over conventional bias-ply tires, you might get as much as 10% savings over your present gas consumption. This means more miles per gallon of gas. It means extra dollars in your pocket.

Post Billboards For Enjoyment

By DAN HALL

WESTPORT, Conn. (AP) — Tired of billboards that tell you to buy something? Relief is coming to some Connecticut cities in the form of huge, colorful paintings posted just for enjoyment.

Artist Ann Chernow has won a state grant to provide billboard sized enlargements of paintings by herself and two other artists.

"For years I've been concerned about the growing blight of the environment and was frustrated about being able to do nothing," said Mrs. Chernow, 38.

Using a $2,000 grant from the Connecticut Foundation on the Arts, Mrs. Chernow and a Stratford sign company are working together to put art on public display near bus stations, community centers, any place where people congregate.

The plan never has been tried on a multicity scale in the United States, Mrs. Chernow said in an interview. Huge paintings have been done on city buildings in New York City and elsewhere but they cannot be changed as signs can.

The first paintings will be posted on existing 6-by-12-foot billboards on inner-city buildings in five state locations, she said.

The artists and sponsors donate much of their time and expense to the project under terms of the grant.

Mrs. Chernow hit on the art-for-all idea while working on paintings for her current one-person show at the Silvermine Guild, where she teaches. She also instructs at Norwalk Community

Artists Paul Camacho of Easton and Ben Johnson of Bridgeport will work with Mrs. Chernow, producing a wide range of styles and subjects in the billboard show.

Johnson, who is black, uses black themes, often in silhouette, while Camacho specializes in color abstraction. Mrs. Chernow's work uses light colors to deal with representational subjects, often with a witty touch.

If the project succeeds, Mrs. Chernow hopes to interest more business in donating advertising space to brighten inner-city areas with art.

Tar Heel Coast Eroding 5 To 12 Feet Annually

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's coastline is eroding an average five feet per year, and as much as 12 feet annually in some areas, the new Coastal Resources Commission has been told.

In places where the beach is eroding quickly, the ocean would come 60 feet inland in five years, Dr. Jay Lingfelder of North Carolina State University told the commission Friday.

"And you know as well as I do how many residences are within 60 feet of the beach," Lingfelder said.

He also warned of coastal area movement, caused of shifting sand and erosion, and urged the commission to consider designating "zones of migration" especially near inlets. He said caution should be exercised in allowing development in such areas.

The commission, created by the 1974 General Assembly's passage of the Coastal Area Management Act, ended its first two-day meeting with a series of briefings on coastal economics, environment and geography, and a discussion of proposed land use planning guidelines.

Charles Liner of the Institute of State Government discussed the effects of real estate development along the coast. He said one of the major reasons planning is needed is because "the (real estate) market cannot develop a socially acceptable allocation of the land's resources."

The commission received a draft of land use guidelines prepared by the Office of State Planning. The 15-member panel decided to review the guidelines and asked that they be reviewed by other governmental agencies. The commission will add its own recommendations at its next meeting, Aug. 13-14 at Wilmington.

There also was a discussion of the designation of interim areas of environmental concern. The commission will study the possibility of giving such designation to low and high tidal marshland, frontal dunes, beach erosion areas, coastal inlet land, open coast flood hazard areas, beaches and estuarine waters.

The Department of Natural and Economic resources will hold public hearings in the coastal counties next month on the proposed areas of concern.

The commission's responsibilities include approval of land use planning activities and plans

. . . Tobacco Market

Carlton Dail of Cannon's Warehouse said that no significant problems have been experienced in preparing for the upcoming season but he noted that the tobacco is "coming in a little slow right now" with the farmers operating on a busy schedule.

Asked about the new designation plan, Dail noted that there are "always people who don't understand a new system" and there are "always some drawbacks," but he reported that the plan has not caused any unusual trouble.

Dail said that farmers have to bring three cards with them to the warehouse: the booking, designation and sales cards. The warehouse keeps the booking card until the tobacco is sold and designation cards can also be left at the warehouse, he added.

He said that the Border Belt opening earlier than the Eastern markets, local farmers have had a chance to see how the situation is developing average-wise.

Noah Raynor of Raynor-Forbes & Clark said the low Border Belt prices in the first few days of sales have upset farmers here and he noted that the warehouse has had some calls from growers who would like to take their offerings off the market.

He said, however, that tobacco was "coming in real good for Monday's sale" with trucks lined up outside waiting to unload.

No problems have turned up at Star Planters Warehouse in preparing for the opening sale, according to Harding Sugg. He said that there are always a "few that are ready and a few that are not" but basically things have gone smoothly.

Sugg said that he has not had a chance to talk with many farmers about the Border prices "but I'm sure that nobody is happy with the prices down there."

A Rt. 2, Vanceboro grower, Herbert Willis, said this will be his last year in tobacco and he cited the increasing costs in all aspects of tobacco production as making it harder each year for the farmer to make a living.

Willis said he has harvested about two-thirds of his total crop already and the new designation plan has had little effect on his schedule since he has "been selling here for years and years, anyway." He said he is "satisfied for the time being" with the new plan.

Noting the low border prices, the grower said, "I certainly hope it doesn't continue the way it has been" and he added, "from what I've seen, it's going to run some farmers out of the business."

Willis said that, "Last year I sold my tobacco for more money than I ever have before but it cost a lot more to grow." In addition to labor problems, his production costs have gone up 40 to 50 per cent in some areas, he noted.

Willis, who farms with his son, said that he has roughly 2,500 pounds on the floor for Monday's opening sale.

Ed Yancey, Pitt Agricultural Extension chairman, said that, "based on comments . . . from farmers, the quality looks good." He said, however, that yield wise, poundage will be under 1973 "but I do think we will come close to making base poundage."

Yancey said that "we're running a little behind in rainfall" and termed May and June precipitation as normal while July has been much drier. He added that the "rain wasn't spread out as much as we would have liked."

"It looks like a good quality tobacco from what I've seen," the chairman contended. "We might have a better quality on opening day than last year."

A RECORD PRICE. . .of $185,000 was realized recently for this Benin bronze figure of a flute player. The Nigerian figure, 25 inches high, probably dates from the period 1550-1600. Sold by Sotheby's of London, the price paid represents a new record for a work of primitive art. (AP Wirephoto).

Caldwell Dismissal Shocks Phillips

RALEIGH (UPI)—State Supt. of Public Instruction Craig Phillips Saturday expressed shock and disappointment over the dismissal of Claude E. Caldwell as director of the Office of State Personnel.

Caldwell, who has held the post since August, 1965, was asked Friday by Secretary of Administration Bruce A. Lentz to turn in his resignation.

Lentz said Alfred B. Boyles, who served as director of personnel for the Transportation Department, would succeed Caldwell on Aug. 1.

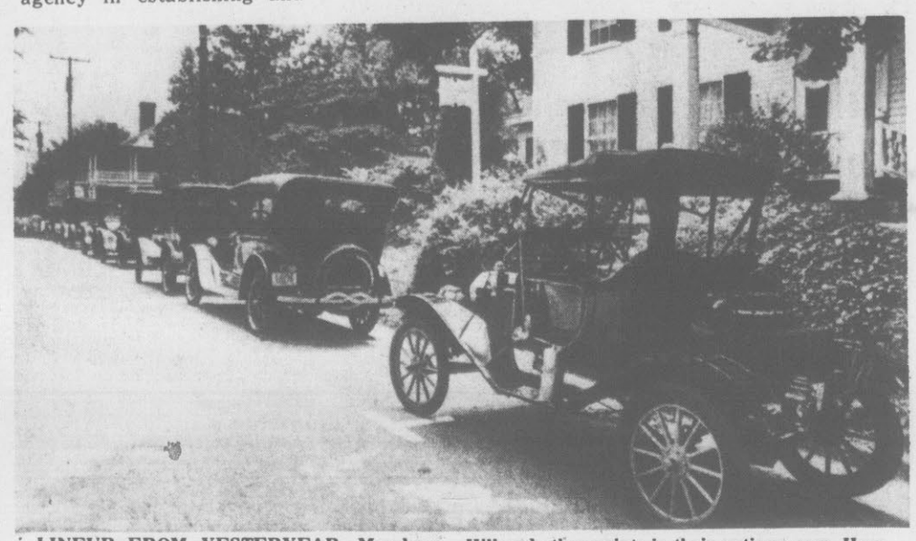
Phillips, attending a conference of assistant school superintendents in Wilmington, said in a statement released from his Raleigh office that "I am shocked and disappointed over the unexpected dismissal" of Caldwell.

"Claude Caldwell, trained as a professional personnel expert, has rendered great service to North Carolina in his chosen career since coming to state serivce in 1956," he said.

Phillips said Caldwell was instrumental in acquiring new federal funds for the state school system and "has worked closely and professionally with our agency in establishing and maintaining a key management personnel operation."

Phillips said Caldwell was recognized throughout the nation as an expert in this field.

Lentz was out of town and did not comment on Caldwell's forced resignation but an aide, Charles Sutton, said Lentz "felt like" the office of personel "could be improved."



LINEUP FROM YESTERYEAR—Members of the North Carolina Horseless Carriage Association have been drawing attention this week as they toured Raleigh, Durham, Chapel Hill and other points in their antique cars. Here the cars are lined up on a street in Hillsborough. (AP Wirephoto)

Shearin-Davidson Vows Said Saturday Evening

ROCKY MOUNT—The marriage of Miss Deborah Ann Davidson and Steven Astor Shearin was solemnized in the First United Methodist Church here Saturday at 5:30 p.m.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Christian White. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Patsy Marshburn, organist, Miss Glenda Alford, soloist, and Walter Cooper, trumpeter.

Parents of the couple are Joyce Currin Davidson and Mr. John Calvin Davidson, both of Rocky Mount, and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Wilson Shearin, Sr., also of Rocky Mount.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her brother-in-law, Donald Richard Leonard Jr. She was wearing a formal gown of silk organza over peau de soie. The French tucked bodice, centered with tiny buttons and outlined with an overlay of scallop peau de ange lace,was fashioned with a rolled ring collar and the Juliette sleeves ended in deep split cuffs scallop edged. A crush bow re-embroidered with pearls marked the lifted waist which was encircled with wide satin sash-belt accented with a back bow. The A-silhouette skirt with deep inverted pleat framed with scallop lace and bordered at the hemline, extended into a built-in train which flowed chapel length.

Her cathedral length veil of French silk illusion, peau de ange lace, was attached to a lace covered Juliette cap embellished with pearl embroidery which held her double fingertip blusher veil. The bride carried a cascade of roses, orchids, stephanotis, baby's breath and English ivy.

The honor attendants were Miss Donna Alesia Davidson and Mrs. Dorothy Davidson Leonard both of Rocky Mount, sisters of the bride. Who is faster than a speeding bullet?

Able to race locomotives?

Leap tall buildings in a single bound?

A teenage driver, that's who.

I don't know if a parent ever gets over their children driving but I tried. For a couple of years after the second one had gotten his license, I had to be heavily sedated and blindfolded before I would get into a car. A few weeks ago when it appeared by vehicular DTs were under control, another child came to me and uttered the five words that strike terror in the hearts of parents everywhere, "I'm 15 and a half."

As I told my husband, "I can't go through it again. I'm young yet. I want to live. I want to see the sun set over McDonalds. . .the bottoms of my cooperware shine. . .the bathroom scale stuck on 113. . .I want to dance and sing and laugh. Don't you understand? I can't go through another teen-age driver."

We found the solution to our problems in the yellow pages. . .a driver's school called Kamikazee Driving Academy.

"Our teachers are all top men," said the director, "We get a lot of applicants for instructors, but we scoop the cream off the top. Had a bullfighter in here for a few weeks. Poor devil just couldn't take the pressure. A lot of veterans apply. They think they've conquered fear, but they can't hack it two days. Where's your son?"

He was in the car holding the cigaret lighter in the air and shouting, "Is this a spark plug?"

"I'm going to assign Mr. Willard to your son," he said. "He's a veteran of 153 missions and is credited with saving the lives of more than 200 pedestrians, 15 statues, 8 fire hydrants, a dog asleep on the steps of a library and a boy scout who was being helped across the street by an old lady."

Mr. Willard appeared in a green beret, a jumpsuit and parachute boots. "Mr. Williard," I said, my eyes glistening with tears, "I consider you the bravest man in the world. How do you climb inside everyday with these amateurs."

His eyes never left the floor as he mumbled, "I am immortal. I am immortal. I am imm. . ."

"It's all right, Jim," said his supervisor softly. "You've only got 18 more combat missions before R and R."

My son inserted the key in the glove compartment door and shouted, "Is this where I put the key? I know how to drive. I just have to log some hours."

As the car took off I will never forget Mr. Williard's stricken face if I live to be a thousand and his whimpering, "I am immortal. I feel a little sick, but I am immortal. . . ."

Fashion Notes

By United Press International

The first embroidery machines were brought to America by the Swiss-born Alphonse Kursheedt. So reports the Embroidery Council of America, observing its 100th anniversary.

The fur scene for women takes on new dimensions for fall, with the demise (well, almost) of the standard double-breasted, notched collared fur. Longhairs such as lynx, fitch, opossum, Norwegian and red fox, muskrat and raccoon vie for attention with the more luxurious minks and sables.

Designer Pauline Trigere always has made capes part of her collection each season. For fall and winter, she produced a dramatic cape in obviously costly rhinestone studded platinum mist mohair. It prompted one fashion show onlooker to say, "Pauline probably will end up wearing it herself if she can't get anyone to buy it."

Cooking Is Fun

PUNGENT CHICKEN WINGS

- 1½ pounds broiler-fryer chicken wings (8 to 10)
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- 1½ teaspoons five-spice powder
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 tablespoon peanut oil
- 2 tablespoons dry, medium or sweet sherry
- ¼ teaspoon dried hot red pepper flakes
- 1 tablespoon minced fresh ginger root
- 1 star anise
- ½ cup soy sauce
- ½ cup water

Wash wings, drain and dry; cut each into 2 or 3 parts (depending on whether tips are attached) at joints; do not use tips in this recipe. In a medium saucepan stir together the cornstarch, spice powder, sugar, oil and sherry until blended; stir in all the remaining ingredients except the wings. Bring to a boil, stirring; mixture will thicken slightly — this will help it cling to the wings. add the wings and bring to a boil; cover and simmer until tender — 15 to 20 minutes. Remove wings from sauce and serve hot or let wings stand in the sauce, off heat, and reheat when needed; leftover sauce may be refrigerated and reheated with halved hard-cooked eggs and served with rice. Or let stand until cool; remove wings, cover and chill; strain sauce into a small square container; cover and chill — it will jell. Serve wings cold. To use sauce when needed, scrape film of fat from top, turn out and slice or dice; garnish cold sliced roast turkey or chicken or cold cooked or raw vegetables with this pungent jelly. Wings make 6 or 8 appetizer servings.

Local President At Convention

LOCAL AND INTERNATIONAL PRESIDENTS IN MIAMI BEACH—Mrs. Juanita McCarthy, president and official delegate of the Pilot Club of Greenville, N.C., at right above discusses with Mrs. Phyllis Manning, the new Pilot International President, upcoming plans for reaching new horizons in civic-service projects. Mrs. Manning, of Flagstaff, Ariz., was installed at the conclusion of the recent 53rd International convention at the American Hotel in Bal Harbour, Fla. She heads some 18,000 professional and executive women from six countries and will lead their activities this year.

Specialist Trains Parents

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Some children may not pay attention to their parents because the parents are not listening to them, says a specialist in parent training.

Mothers and fathers have created a vastly improved family atmosphere through "active listening," according to Asst. Prof. Frank Baskind, who teaches social-work education at Southern Connecticut State College.

The objective is to encourage youngsters to express their feelings and then work out a solution by themselves rather than forcing a decision on them, he said.

Active listening is the theme of a program Baskind conducts called Parent Effectiveness Training — PET — created by clinical psychologist Thomas Gordon.

The program, once considered a revolutionary concept by some, is now offered in many parts of the country. One of the courses opened recently in Cheshire.

"Active listening does wonders in keeping a child talking," said Mrs. Daniel Johnson, a West Haven parent who took the course and now is preparing to become an instructor.

"You don't think it is going to work but pretty soon the child will begin to tell you what is really on his or her mind," she said.

During the eight-week PET course, parents are shown how to paraphrase their children's comments at critical times to learn if they understood them correctly.

One example used in a workshop involves a mother who has become desperate because her young son refuses to try to sleep at night. Fighting anger and frustration, she sits on his bed and tries to show she wants to understand.

The boy finally reveals that for months he had feared he would stop breathing and die in his sleep at any time. With that knowledge, the mother is able to put him at ease with the truth.

Baskind said the PET approach to resolving conflict avoids either uncompromising discipline or permissiveness so that neither the children nor the parents feel they have lost out.

Mrs. Anthony Ingersoll of Madison, who took the course and now has returned with her husband, said: "I find I am nicer to them, they are nicer to me. They are nicer to each other, too." She added: "Active listening has helped me with my relationship with my husband, my mother-in-law and myself."

Reader Has Pet Peeve

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have a pet peeve. There are parking places marked "For handicapped only" near some stores and office buildings as an accommodation for those who have difficulty getting around.

Although I am handicapped, I can still drive, but more often than not, those "reserved" parking places are taken by people who are not handicaped, but are too lazy to park elsewhere. I have seen them jump in and out of their cars while I hobble along on my crutches trying to hold some packages in my arms. If you think it's easy—try it sometime!

ANGRY

DEAR ANGRY: I don't blame you for being angry. Next time, speak up. You'll feel better, and it might penetrate.

DEAR ABBY: I wrote to you because I thought I had V.D. I never thought you'd answer my letter, but you did. After I got your letter, I took your advice and went to a clinic and got a blood test. I could hardly wait until I got the results.

Well, I called up the clinic and they told me the results were negative! Abby, I don't think I have ever been happier in my life.

I hope other people who suspect they have V.D. don't wait as long as I did to take a test. I am a married man, which made matters worse.

After I got the results, I promised myself that I would never let myself get into a spot like that again.

God bless you, Abby.

LUCKY IN N.J.

DEAR LUCKY: V. D. is still one of our most serious health problems. I hope this reminder will serve to jar others into acting. Those who can't afford a private physician can get FREE and confidential examinations and treatment through their county health departments.This includes minors.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a radiologist. He's a wonderful husband and an excellent provider, but he has some peculiar ideas.

For example, when we go out for an evening, he orders a vodka martini with eight olives. If for some reason he doesn't get the eight olives, he cancels the order and asks me to leave with him, which is very embarrassing.

This is not the worse of it. If he gets the olives, one by one he puts them in his nose and sniffs out the juice. He claims it clears his sinuses.

I don't mind when he does this at home, but when he does it in public, I want to crawl into a hole.

He doesn't have any allergies or sinus trouble, so I can't see the sense of this. Should he find a psychiatrist?

RADIOLOGIST'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Yes, but he should find one who drinks martinis with a twist of lemon so they won't fight over the olives.

Pamphlet Available On Buying A Used Sewing Machine

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 25 cent pamphlet from the U.S. Department of Agriculture extension service can save you time and trouble if you're thinking of buying a used sewing machine.

The publication by clothing specialist Virginia Ogilvy tells where to look for used machines and how to check them before you buy.

Before you decide between a used or a new one, consider your sewing needs. Do you want a simple machine for family mending? A learning machine for someone first starting to sew?

Ms. Ogilvy recommended a straight stitch type for beginners and those who sew infrequently. A zigzag stitch machine is more expensive, but it may be a better value if you sew a lot of stretch fabrics and knits. It's also good for "blind" hemming, overcasting seams, mending and decorative stitches and straight stitching.

The least expensive probably is an old-fashioned treadle, Ms. Ogilvy wrote. It is simple to operate and to clean but parts might be hard to get, especially if it uses long shuttle bobbins.

Portable electric machines represent good value if you're short on storage space.

Before you buy any machine, look for dents or scratches, check for missing parts and signs of wear.

Ms. Ogilvy advised carrying fabric and thread when shopping so you actually can operate the machine. Make sure the machine is easy to thread and that the bobbin is easy to remove and return to place. Decide if the foot or knee control is comfortable and easy to operate.

Baseball Classic Set

LOOK FOR THE SILVER LINE UP — It will be there at Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh, Tues., July 23, when the 25th year NBC telecasts Major League Baseball's All Star Game (8 p.m.). The game's Silver Anniversary year on NBC-TV will be broadcast by Joe Gargiola (l), Tony Kubek (c), and Curt Gowdy, who is celebrating his 25th year as a broadcaster of Major League Baseball. The trio of NBC-TV's veteran baseball announcers will broadcast the Mid-summer Classic to audiences in the continental limits of the United States, Hawaii and Alaska, and, via satellite, to numerous overseas sites.

Major League Baseball's 45th All-Star Game, featuring the cream of both the American and National League crops, will be presented in prime time Tuesday evening, July 23, beginning at 8 p.., from Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium on Channel 6-7, begining with Joe Garagiola's humorous "Baseball World."

Produced and directed by Don Ellis, written by Frank Slocum, and hosted by Joe Garagiola, this particular "Baseball World" takes a humorous look at some of the game's most colorful nicknames, as well as — through Joe's eyes — the kinds of plays that are sure to keep players off All-Star teams.

No other sport has had the unique nicknames for players that baseball's had throughout its history.

Nicknames, often coined by bullpen crew members jast passing the time, are depicted in one segment by animated cartoons prepared by NBC by Perpetual Motion Pictures, Inc.

The "Soup to Nuts Team," for instance, features the likes of "Noodles" Hahn, "Cracker" Schalk, "Oyster" Burns, "Turkey" Donlin, "Catfish" Metkovich, "Pickles" Dilhoefer, "Strawberry" Bernhard and "Pretzels" Pezzullo. And for condiments, how about "Salty" Parker and "Pepper" Martin?

While talking about the art of fielding, Joe says: "We all know the right way to make the play, but during the course of the season we see many examples of the right way NOT to make the play . . . such as a first baseman waving his catcher off a foul pop both are chasing, saying he's got it — then letting it drop."

Then, at 8:15, let the game begin! This midsummer classic has been carried continuously by NBC-TV since 1950, making his the 25th anniversary year of NBC coverages.

Red Schoendienst's dramatic 14th-inning home run off Ted Gray gave the Nationals a 4-3 victory in the initial telecast — July 11, 1950, from Comiskey Park in Chicago.

The National League increased its All-Star margin over the American League to 25-18 last year (one game ended in a tie) with a 7-1 triumph at Kansas City.

Home runs by Bobby Bonds of San Francisco, Cincinnati's Johnny Bench and then - Dodger Willie Davis highlighted the senior circuit attack.

The tide has definately turned against the American League since the All-Star Game has been televised.

Going into that 1950 contest, the junior circuit held a 12-4 advantage over its rival league. But in front ot the cameras the Nations have a 21-6 edge.

NBC Radio has also had a long standing alliance with the All-Star Game, having broadcast the first classic ever played — July 6, 1933 at Comiskey Park, where 17 years later NBC-TV cameras captured all the excitement in the first extra-inning All-Star Game.

Nine members of that 1933 American League team are in the Hall of Fame.

Around World In 80 Days

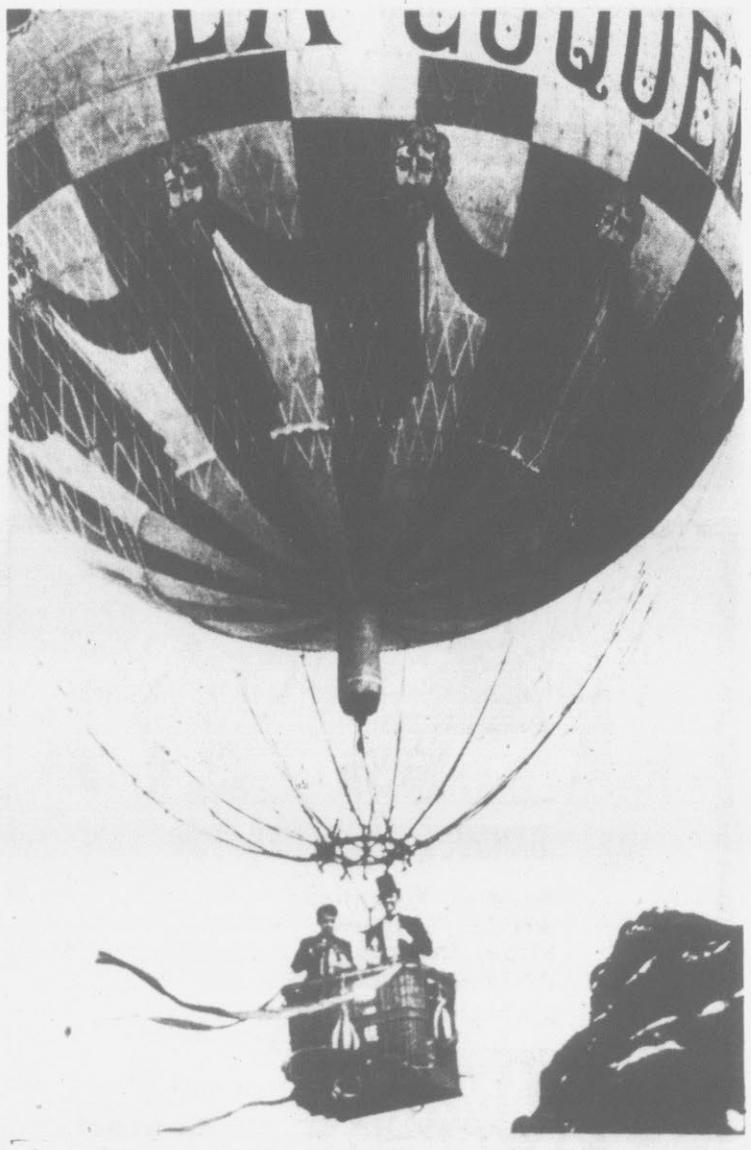
When Jules Verne's fictional hero, Phineas Fogg, made a trip around the world in 80 days in the novel, the world of 1872 smiled indulgently and wondered when writers would come down from their perches in the clouds and get a bit closer to reality.

And then, when newspaperwoman Nellie Bly accomplished the same feat in 72 days, six hours and 11 minutes in 1889, the world was startled out of its horse-and-buggy complacency and started a race against time which appears to have ended only with the recent achievements of spacecraft.

The present world record for a man-piloted trip around the world in a regular commercial vehicle was established in 1961 when Max Conrad did it in a light plane in eight days, six hours and 30 minutes.

Since then, of course, spacecraft — man piloted or otherwise — have done it in less than two hours, so the public is no longer thrilled by the accomplishment. But in the Mike Todd production of "Around the World in 80 Days," the feat is looked upon with nostalgia rather than surprise.

David Niven stars as Philneas Fogg and Cantinflas as his man Passepartout.



UP AND AWAY — David Niven (right) and Cantinflas portray daring travelers journeying around the world on a wager, in "Around the World in 80 Days," film version of the Jules Verne classic being telecast on "The CBS Friday Night Movie" July 26 (8-11 p.m.) on channel 9-11.

RIDES AGAIN — The Silver Ghost rides again. Robert Powell plays Mr. Rolls, one of the creators of the fabulous Silver Ghost automobile which made the name Rolls-Royce famous. Masterpiece Theatre presents "Mr. Rolls and Mr. Royce" Sunday, July 21 at 9 p.m. on channel 25 UNC-TV.

Mr. Rolls And Mr. Royce Featured Sunday Night

The story of the founders of the Rolls-Royce automotive dynasty, Charles Rolls and Frederick Royce, will be presented on THE EDWARDIANS Sunday, July 21, at 9 p.m. on Channel 25 UNC-TV.

The autobiographical drama "Mr. Rolls and Mr. Royce" focuses on the period between 1902 and 1910 when Rolls, the son of an English lord and Royce, owner of a small electrical shop in Manchester, worked to develop the famed Silver Ghost. The Silver Ghost by Rolls-Royce made automotive history and the enthusiasm generated by this engineering triumph propelled Britain into the automotive age.

In 1902, Rolls, an automotive dealer, was spending much of his time repairing faulty vehicles and Royce was grumbling about the appalling workmanship on the new car he had recently acquired. Their meeting, in a hotel dining room in Manchester, marked the beginning of a disparate partnership. Royce was an inveterate worker while Rolls was a racing driver, a balloonist, and a dedicated aviator. There was inevitable friction as these two men struggled against financial difficulties to build the Silver Ghost. Finally, the first Silver Ghost was produced and achieved amazing trial results. By this time Rolls has quarreled with Royce and resigned from the firm to devote his energy to airplanes. Rolls was killed in 1910, the first English airman to die while flying in England.

Rolls-Royce Ltd. lent their 1907 Silver Ghost, probably the most valuable car in the world, to the BBC for the filming of "Mr. Rolls and Mr. Royce." It is estimated that the car, which can still travel at around 35 m.p.h., is worth at least $250,000. The Silver Ghost, which is licensed and roadworthy, was driven through rain and mud during scenes in "Mr. Rolls and Mr. Royce." A small desk-size model of the Silver Ghost from the Royal Automobile Club, which is also used in the film, was insured for $5,000 and closely guarded.

Michael Jayston plays Mr. Royce and Robert Powell is cast as Mr. Rolls. The screen-play was written by Ian Curteis and directed by Gerald Blake.

Acting Is 'Icing' To Rodeo Star

Slim Pickens, a familiar western hayseed who, 24 years ago, decided that rodeo clowning wasn't all he wanted and turned to films, has a featured part in "Bristle Face" a motion picture adventure-comedy to be shown in two parts on "The Wonderful World of Disney," Sunday evenings of July 21 and 28, on Channel 6-7.

"Had I started out in pictures instead of rodeo work," declares the lanky cowpoke in a slow drawl, "I'd have called myself 'Easy Pickens,' instead of Slim Pickens."

As the story goes, when Slim at age 15 joined the rodeo as a broncbuster and clown, he was advised to change his name from Louis Bert Lindley, Jr. "I was told, 'Boy, why don't you call yourself Slim Pickens 'cuz it's got a nice sound to it and that's all you're gonna get.' So I did and the name hung on."

He went on to explain, "Rodeo performing was rough work. I mean I was walking around with broken bones all the time. I've got nothing but used parts on my body. Hardly anything is original. And compared to that life, acting is like lickin' icing off a cake."

Pickens made his motion picture debut in 1950 in an Errol Flynn adventure called "Rocky Mountain."

TV Magazine Series Slated

COLOR IN ACTION

Color is your available miracle in home decorating. It waits as close by as the paint store and the fabric counter for you to put its matchless power to work. Its powers are practically limitless. It can raise the architectural proportions of a room, increase the apparent size of space, lower a ceiling and paint out an eyesore. Conversely, it can glorify a maverick, call attention to detail, divide space, and furnish excitement where there is none.

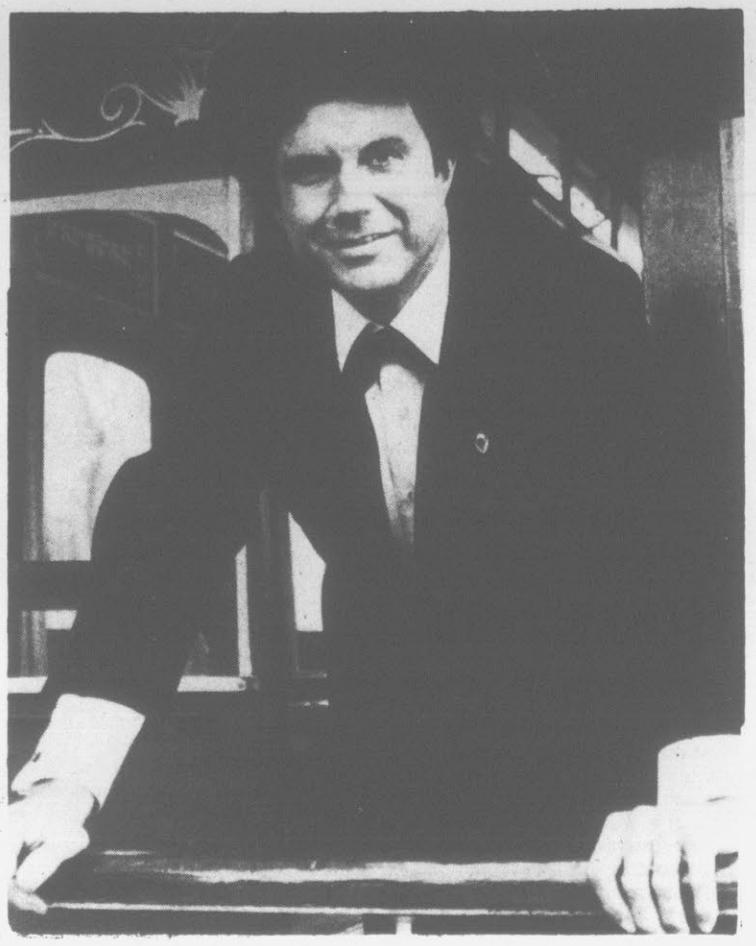
ACQUIRED FOR TV

Two recent theatrical box-office successes, "The Day of the Dolphin," starring George C. Scott, and "Westworld," starring Yul Brynner, have been acquired for telecast by the NBC Television Network.



WISHFUL DREAMER—Cliff Robertson portrays Johnny Nolan, a father of two children who fights his failures with drink and dreams, in "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn", the first segment of "NBC Double Feature Night at the Movies" to be colorcast on Monday, July 22 (8-9:30 p.m.) on channels 6-7.

Double Feature Program

Cliff Robertson and Diane Baker, and Ernest Borgnine and Della Reese star individually in two 90-minute films, "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn" and "Twice in a Lifetime," to be colorcast on "NBC Double Feature Night at the Movies" Monday, July 22, (8-11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

In "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," starting at 8 p.m., a family of four fights poverty and alcohol: the mother scrubbing floors to put food on the table; the father fighting his failures with drink and dreams.

Katie's oft-married sister, "Sissy" (Miss Malone), wants to help, but her questionable marriage arrangements cause Katie much grief. A hand of friendship is extended to Katie by Officer McShane (Olson), who tries to suppress his feelings for her because of her love for her husband.

The central chracter is Francie, whose love for her father blinds her to his weaknesses. These are hard times prior to World War I and the old Brooklyn tenenments are at their worst. Francie clings to the one thing that allows her dreams to soar beyond the scars of reality — a large tree which grows just outside their apartment.

Martin, Mitchum Play Deadly Game

Dean Martin and Robert Mitchum star as men involved in the violent aftermath of a poker game in "Five Card Stud," "The ABC Monday Night Movie" on Channel 3W-5-12.

Co-starring are Inger Stevens, Roddy McDowell and Katherine Justice.

A high-stakes stud game is underway late one night in a Rincon, Colorado, saloon in 1880, when a stranger in the game is caught cheating. Gambler Van Morgan (Dean Martin), one of the players, tried to prevent bloodshed, but is knocked out. The other five players lynch the cheat. The next day, Morgan drifts on to Denver.

Not long after, gold is found in Rincon, and among those flocking to the town are the self-ordained Rev. Rudd (Robert Mitchum), a preacher with a Bible in one hand a d a gun in the other.

Library Focal Point In Drama

A search for the killer of attractive young women centers on the library of a small town in England. Suspicion settles on the librarian, her hostile boarder, her two assistants, and two patrons of the library, an elderly man who is a daily visitor, and an American GI, in "File It Under Fear," an original 90-minute mystery drama to be presented on "ABC Wide World of Entertainment," Monday, July 22 (11:30 p.m. - 1 a.m.) on Channel 3-5-12.

GUEST STAR

Oscar winner Shelley Winters is the guest star in the first drama to be filmed for the 1974-75 season of NBC-TV's "McCloud," starring Dennis Weaver.

LEAP INTO DANGER — Shaft (series star Richard Roundtree) finds himself on dangerous ground when he uncovers a group of crooked policemen, in "The Cop Killer" episode of "Shaft" Tuesday, July 23 (9:30-11:00 p.m.) on channel 9-11.

Maharis Plays On 'Shaft'

Not all cops are good guys, and it's Shaft's hard luck to get involved with police corruption on a scale that includes the frame-up of a black officer, plus theft and bribery, in "The Cop Killer" on "Shaft" Tuesday, July 23 (9:30-11 p.m.) on Channel 9-11. Guest stars are Darren McGavin and George Maharis in the script by Ken Kolb, directed by Lee Philips.

After testifying before a police crime commission, patrolman Jerry Tyler is charged with assault and extortion in the beating of a showgirl at a club managed by suave Wally Doyle.

Seeking proof of a frame-up, Shaft persuades Lt. Rossi to transfer to Tyler's precinct, where Rossi hears of a car-theft ring operating out of Doyle's club with police protection.

When Rossi is gunned down in the street, Shaft realizes he's on dangerous ground but, even though warned from further inquiries by tough Capt. Owen Brewster, he decides to join the car thieves to get evidence of who is in charge.

Maharis plays the part of Wally-Doyle, the tough leader of a car-heisting operation. New York born Maharis got his initial break in television with Wally Cox on the "Mr. Peepers" shows.

In rapid succession, he appeared in "Naked City," "Studio One" and "Goodyear Theatre." He showed such promise that MGM tapped him to test for the role of Rocky Graziano in "Somebody Up There Likes Me." However, the part went to Paul Newman.

The experience prompted him to stay in Hollywood, and after numerous television and stage appearances, he catapulted to national prominence in the television series, "Route 66."

He has had feature roles in the motion pictures "Exodus," "The Satan Bug" and "Quick Before It Melts" to name a few; and has guest starred in most major television series.

Bachelor Maharis is an accomplished oil painter, being one of three artists who executed murals for New York's Lunt and Fontaine Theatre.

Tuesday Weld On 'Late Show'

"Glamour is in the mind," says Tuesday Weld. I'd rather be exciting than glamorous, which I define as artificial. Excitement, now, is different — it means something!"

COLORFUL DRAMA — Robert Stack and Elke Sommer star in "The Corrupt Ones," colorful drama of a two-fisted adventurer confronted by a series of dangerous events in Macao and Hong Kong, on "The CBS Late Movie" Wednesday, July 24 (starting at 11:30 p.m.) on channel 9-11.

Futuristic Movie In 'Project X'

Christopher George stars as a man of the 21st century tricked with drugs into believing that he is living in the 1960s in "Project X," a futuristic drama makind its television premiere on "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," July 21, on Channel 3W-5-12.

Producer-director William Castle, describing the film, has said, "From the time we started work on 'Project X' we had the future breathing down our necks and science stepping on our heels."

What Castle referred to are the innovative film techniques and story ideas that seemed unique when his 1968 movie was begun, but became newspaper headlines during the filming.

For instance, special sequences provided by Hanna-Barbera Productions included the first-time-on-screen use of "liquid crystals," which Life Magazine said, "may in time help explain how we see and touch and think."

There are also scenes involving cryobiology, the science of freezing humans for subsequent revival, and even before the scenes were filmed, newspapers carried the story of the first reported freezing at death.

BURTON TO STAR

Richard Burton will star as Winston Churchill in the Hallmark Hall of Fame's presentation of "The Gathering Storm," a 90-minute drama based on the first of Churchill's memoirs of World War II. The locales will be as authentic as the story—10 Downing Street, Blenheim Palace and Chartwell are some of them.

Guiness Records Special

Talking, knitting, marrying, jumping, throwing, smoking, having children and being struck by lightning.

The people who hold individual world records in these and many other highly specialized areas of human endeavor are gathered together to appear in the remarkable comedy special, "David Frost Presents the Guinness Book of World Records," on "ABC Wide World of Entertainment," Wednesday, July 24 (11:30 p.m. - 1 a.m.).

David Frost stars as host of the 90-minute comedy special based on the famed reference book.

His guests include Debbie Reynolds, who wears the world's most expensive tiara, bearing diamonds in the carat weight of 250 and valued at between four and five million dollars.

Frost, who owns the record for trans-Atlantic passenger travel by commercial aviation, teams with New York football Giants' quarterback Norm Snead in an attempt to establish an American distance mark for throwing a raw egg. The trick, of course, is to catch it unbroken.

This segment was taped at the Giants' training base at Roosevelt Stadium, Jersey City, N. J.

Comedian Henny Youngman, playing the world's smallest violin.

Forest ranger Roy C. Sullivan, who tells how he was struck by lightning five times.

Glynn de Moss Wolfe, the world's most married man with 19 trips to the altar, the first at the age of 18. Now 65 and unmarried, he admits that he soon will wed again, possibly to one of his previous wives.

Hubert Wolfstern, whose full name is 666 letters long, so long that he often forgets it.

Don Koehler, the world's tallest man at eight feet-two inches, who tells about his romantic life and his unusual method of driving a car.

Simon Argevitch, the world's champion smoker, who attempts to better his mark of 13 cigars at one time. And he does it while whistling.

Gwen Matthewman, world's champion knitter, who produces 614 garments in one year at an average speed of 108 stitches per minute, enough to denude 57 sheep. A representative flock of sheep is paraded on stage to illustrate the enormity of her record.

The world's fastest talker, Dr. Charles Hunter, who speaks more than 380 words a minute, attempts to break that record reading from "Hamlet," in a segment taped in England.

Mrs. Maria Gabrielli, the world's most prolific mother with 32 children, the oldest 37 and the youngest four, is interviewed in a segment taped in Brazil.

DEPICTS EVIL—Bette Davis stars as Mrs. Elliot, the mother for a famous sculptor who is absorbed in depicting evil both in his work and in real life, in "Scream, Pretty Peggy", on Wednesday Movie of the Week, July 24 (8:30 p.m.) on channels 3W-5-12.

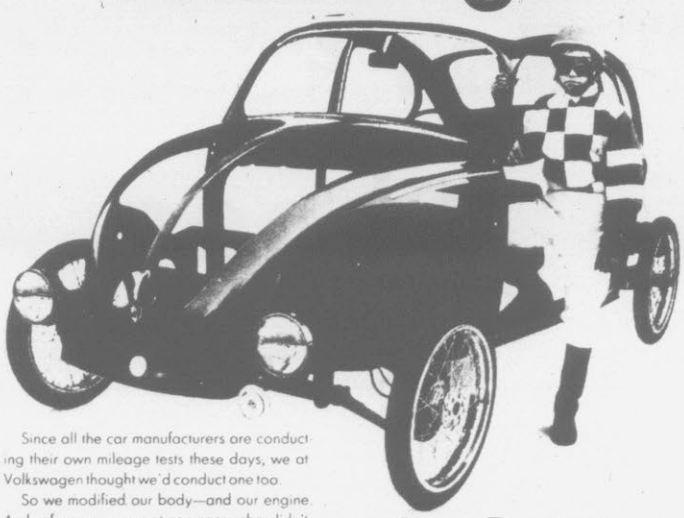
Presenting the 84 mpg Volkswagen.



Since all the car manufacturers are conducting their own mileage tests these days, we at Volkswagen thought we'd conduct one too.
So we modified our body—and our engine. And, of course, we got someone who didn't weigh much to drive.
Lo and behold, we got 84 miles per gallon!
Ridiculous? Nobody normally drives like this? Of course. That's precisely our point.
Nobody normally drives like most of those tests you're seeing.
Volkswagen. An honest 25* miles per gallon.

Nureyev Would Accept Role In A Musical Film

CAVETT'S SOLE GUEST—Premier ballet dancer Rudolf Nureyev (left) is the sole guest for 90 minutes on "The Dick Cavett Show", a "Wide World: Special" presentation on Thursday, July 25 (11:30 p.m.) on channels 3W-5-12.

Rudolf Nureyev says he would indeed appear in a non-classical American musical film if a role in such a production was offered to him. The premier danseur has been a guest performer for the great ballet companies of the world — in England, France, Denmark, Canada and Australia.

Nureyev confesses his "fondness" for American movie musicals such as those that have been choregraphed by Jerome Robbins during his 90-minute appearance on "The Dick Cavett Show," a "Wide World: Special" on the ABC Television Network Thursday, July 25 (11:30 p.m. - 1:00 a.m.) on Channel 3-5-12.

When Cavett suggests that his decision to accept such a role might be considered a "comedown" among his devotees, Nureyev replies, "I don't think I'd consult them," and received thundering approval from the studio audience.

Nureyev's arrival on stage was also greeted by thunderous and lengthy applause that led Cavett to say, when it finally subsided, "That s more than Mike Jagger gets."

In a film clip, Nureyev is seen dancing in "Romeo and Juliet." Another film clip, shown for Nureyev's critical appraisal, spotlights Fred Astaire, a dancing star in another idiom, in the movie, "Let's Dance." "He strikes me as a genius," says Nureyv.

He also rates other dancers, among them Margot Fonteyn and Martha Graham. Then too, he discusses the Russian dancer, Panov, who recently received permission after a long period of denial, to emigrate to Israel.

Cavett asks how anyone new to the dance can learn to appreciate ballet. Nureyev replies: "Try to enjoy it . . . it can't come with the first performance . . . see more contemporary and complicated ballets . . . then move on to modern dance."

Nureyev tells of an unusually excited audience in the midst of a recent performance in Milwqukee: "I hear strange sounds. I don't quite understand what it is. Then I see streaker . . ."

Actress Likes Psychic Field

Janice Lynde, who plays Leslie Brooks on "The Young and the Restless," is a devotee of psychic phenomena — extrasensory perception and the like.

She's also an avid reader, enjoys knitting, playing tennis and dancing.

A native of Houston, Texas, Janice began studying music early in life with the goal of becoming an opera singer. She continued her musical studies at the University of Indiana and later became a soloist for Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians.

Gradually, her ambition shifted to acting and she won her first major role in the national company of "Butterflies Are Free." She has appeared on Broadway in the rock musical, "The Me Nobody Knows," and in "Applause."

A Royal Incident Is Retold

The date was December 11, 1936. All over the world people sat crowded around their radios as the voice of Sir John Reith, head of the BBC said: "This is Windsor Castle. His Royal Higness, Prince Edward."

With thie brief introduction, the other voice came through: "At long last . . ." Minutes later the short speech ended with "God Bless You All. God Save the King."

The history-making incident in which King Edward VIII renounced the British throne to marry the twice-divorced American, Wallis Warfield Simpson, will be re-enacted on "Portrait: The Woman I Love," Friday, July 26 (10-11 p.m.) on Channel 5-12.

The sequence covered in the hour special program dramatizes the first meeting between Mrs. Simpson and the Prince of Wales, through the days when he endeavored to persuade Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin to allow a morgnatic marriage, and finally his irrevocable decision to abdicate.

Faye Dunnaway, one of the top stars in motion pictures, makes her debut on commercial television as Wallis Warfield Simpson opposite Richard Chamberlain as King Edward VIII.

Miss Dunaway, before production began on what has been called "the love story of the century," read every word she could find about it.

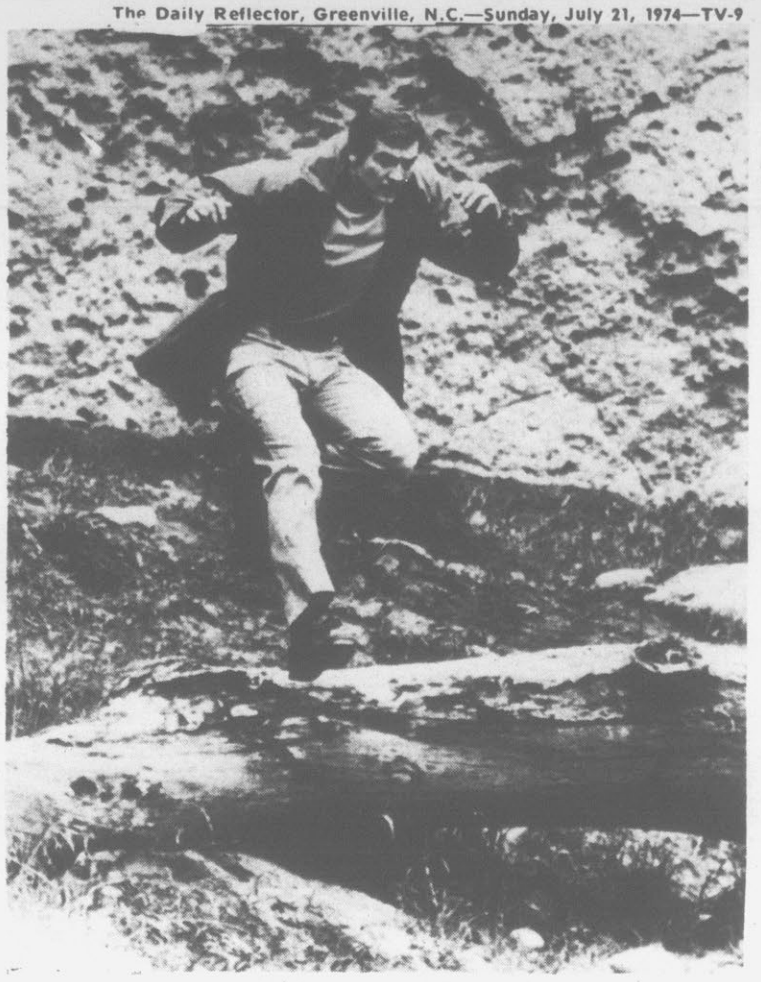
"Mrs. Simpson was a woman of great vitality, with great wit," she says. "I find her a verv sympathetic character. She had a kind of backbone, a cutting through of conventions, that was remarkable. She was an ambitious woman of good family but not wealthy."

One bond between Faye and Wallis is their southern backgrounds. Southern girls are brought up to please and interest a man," she points out.

"Think of her meeting the Prince of Wales, the most eligible bachelor on earth who was soon to be king. If the King of England said he wanted to marry you, are you going to argue?" she asks.

"However, Wallis did. I think she was completely sincere when she begged him not to abdicate."

Faye's resemblance to Wallis Simpson in her role is startling.



ESCAPES — Steve Austin (Lee Majors) escapes from outlaws while on a mission in the Himalayas, in "The Coward" on "The Six Million Dollar Man," Friday, July 26 (8:30-9:30 p.m.) on channel 3-5-12.

Leon Russell At Midnight

Executive producer Burt Sugarman has scored a major musical coup in signing Shelter Records superstar Leon Russell to star in a very special two-part, three hour "Midnight Special" to air consecutively July 26 and August 2 on Channel 6-7. This marks Russell's first major television appearance in over four years.

"The Leon Russell Midnight Special" featuring Russell's Gap Band was taped on location at his home and recording studio in Tulsa, Oklahoma. The gravel-throated, wild-eyed host of "Midnight Special," Wolfman Jack, talks with Russell during the show about the formation of his new Gap Band.

Tells How Boy Tamed Elephant

"Black Mountain," a joint Soviet-India production relating the exciting story of a wild elephant captured by villagers near his jungle home, will be rebroadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival" Saturday, July 27 (1-2 p.m.) in color on Channel 9-11.

When a terrible drought visits the jungle, many elephants in the herd suffer and die. After one pachyderm runs wild through the village, the people build a giant trap then teach the captured animals to work for them — all but Black Mountain, separated from his mate and to calf.

A boy, Manu, manages to tame the proud elephant, and they become great friends. When Black Mountain saves the village from another crazed elephant — his own offspring, whom he kills — the villagers set him free.

"Black Mountain" is a co-production of the Tsentrnauchfilm Studio and the Society of Children's Films of India.

Burr Tillstrom's Kukla, Fran and Ollie with Fran Allison are hosts of "The Children's Film Festival.

The quality has always come through.

HOSTING THE TOUR—NBC News reporter Kathy Macklin hosts the "GO" program Saturday, July 27 (12:30-1 p.m.), which offers a behind-the-scene look at the overall network television operation via a tour of NBC. "GO" will air on channel 6-7.

'Go' Gives Look At Network Roles

"GO" takes a behind-the-scenes look at how a television network functions on the program of Saturday, July 27 (12:30-1 p.m.) Taping by the special mobile cameras was done at the NBC Studios in New York and Burbank. Some of TV's top personalities were caught by the cameras—Johnny Carson, Redd Foxx, Demond Wilson, John Chancellor and Art Fleming.

Home viewers will see a part of the warm-up which takes place in the Burbank studio where "Sanford and Son" originates. They also will be taken on a tour of the set for "The Flip Wilson Show" and will see how the scenic designers meet their weekly problems.

Turning to news, the program shows how the vast news-gathering apparatus of NBC operates with its hundreds of far-flung employees contributing to nightly newscasts. The Telestar Communications satellite is also explained.

Cameras then pick up some of the action involved in coverage of such sports as baseball, hockey and football.

Exploration of game programs shows the behind-the-scenes preparations for "Jeopardy," with its host Art Fleming. Finally, Johnny Carson is seen arriving at the NBC Studios in Burbank to prepare an edition of "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson."

Host of this "GO" Program is NBC News correspondent Catherine Mackin.

In Special

Multi-talented Ann-Margaret will run the gamut from contemporary rock opera to a bygone movie era when she stars in a special on NBC TV during the 1974-75 season. This will be her third special on the network in three consecutive seasons.

"Ann-Margaret Olsson," her maiden name, will be the title of the show which will be taped in London early in August. Ann-Margaret is currently in England for the starring role in the film version of "Tommy."

Her husband, actor Roger Smith, and Allan Carr are executive producers of the one-hour special, and guest stars will be announced at a later date. Carr said that one of the program's elements will have Ann-Margaret dancing to the "Pinball Wizard" number written for the rock opera, "Tommy." She will also appear as the "Pin-Up Queens of the 1940's" — Rita Hayworth, Betty Grable and Esther Williams, performing in a water ballet during the segment devoted to Miss Williams.

Educators Advise On 5 Scripts

Hanna-Barbera Productions, in cooperation with CBS and ABC networks, has completed arrangements to work with 11 educators who will advise writers in the development of scripts with teaching values for five series debuting for 1974-75.

Dr. Gordon L. Berry, Assistant Dean, Graduate School of Education, UCLA, heads a panel of advisors assigned to CBS's "The Valley of the Dinosaurs." Other members of the panel are Dr. James Sackett, an archeologist and anthropologist; Dr. Nina Byers, a physicist; Dr. Norma Fesback, specialist of early childhood education; Dr. Thomas Labelle, specialist of cultural foundations of education.

Dr. Tom Robischon advises on ABC's "Yogi's Gang." Dr. Robischon is a specialist in philosophy and philosophy education.

Anthropologists scheduled for ABC's "Korg — 70,000 B. C." are Dr. Ian Tattersall, department of antropology, New York Museum of Natural History; Dr. Charles Kraft, a specialist of pre-literate religions; Dr. Chrles Rozaire, of the Los Angeles Museum of Natural History; and Dr. Heath Taylor, who serves as on-set production consultant.

Dr. William Hooks, of the Bank Street College of Education, will work on ABC's "Devlin."

The late Dr. Haim Ginott, author of "Between Parent and Teenager" and "Parent and Child," previously had consulted on ABC's "Super Friends."

The five shows are part of fourteen Hanna-Barbera series debuting this fall on network TV.

Surveys Role As Private Eye

James Garner, who will star as private investigator Jim Rockford in the new fall series, "The Rockford Files," describes the show this way: "We don't make the police look bad or stupid. But Rockford has to work on his own.

"He is a man who cares about people. He will tell someone they have to pay him $200 a day and expenses and ends up doing it whether they can afford it or not."

Byron Nelson Plans Limiting Golfcasts

Under the terms of a new agreement with ABC Sports, all-time golfing great Byron Nelson, an expert commentator for ABC Sports since 1966, will limit his participation in future golfcasts to the world's major tournaments—the U.S. Open, the British Open, the PGA Championship and the Tournament Players Championship—it was announced today by Roone Arledge, President of ABC Sports.

Nelson, who is 62, will be ABC Sports' Senior Expert Commentator for these world-renowned golf tournaments, as well as for the tournament named in his honor, the Byron Nelson Classic, when that event is televised.

The new agreement begins January 1, 1975. During the remainder of this year, Byron Nelson will be expert commentator for ABC Sports' coverage of golf events including the PGA Championship and the inaugural Tournament Players Championship.

At his home on the Fairway Ranch in Roanoke, Texas, Nelson said that he had made his decision to limit his broadcasting activities, "just to be able to stay home more. I feel I've worked as hard as anyone could," he said, "and, frankly, I've been tired out from all the traveling.

"At my age, if I'm going to be able to find some time for other things I consider to be important—like just playing some golf with my friends—I'm going to have to slow down."

Nelson said, "I am very grateful for having had the opportunity to work for Roone Arledge and ABC Sports and with my friend and colleague, Chris Schenkel. The experience has been a very good one for me, and I am looking forward to the golf telecasts I will be working on next year."

Commenting on Byron Nelson's decision to limit his television commitments, Roone Arledge said, "It is with considerable regret that we will be losing Byron's expertise on a number of our golf telecasts, but we respect his decision and we are certain that he will continue to do excellent work for us on the major tournaments in years to come.

SIGNED FOR DRAMA

Glenn Ford has been signed to star in "Something in the Air," an "NBC World Premiere" drama to be colorcast during the 1974-75 season on the NBC Television Network.

Beauty On The Course

In 1972, Golf Digest magazine named Laura Baugh its "Most Beautiful Golfer," for obvious reasons.

In 1974—only her second year on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, many followers of the circuit are wondering if she won't soon be in line for "Player of the Year" honors.

Laura Baugh is one of the leading women golfers who will be seen on Sunday, July 21 (4:30-6:00 p.m.) when ABC Sports provides exclusive live television coverage of the 1974 U.S. Women's Open Golf Championship from La Grange Country Club in La Gange, Illinois.

At La Grange, Laura will be looking for a chance to break into the top ten in the 1974 earnings column.

She had to wait until her 18th birthday to qualify for the LPGA tour, but in the one year she has been on the circuit, Laura has become well-known not only for her golf prowess, but for her good looks and personal charm.

She tied for first in her first tournament ever at Atlanta, and tallied more than $15,000 in prize money during 1973, when she was named Rookie of the Year.

On the 1974 circuit, she has upped her earnings to $22,201, and ranks 11th in this year's standings among Ladies Professional Golf Association money-winners.

An enthusiastic and durable golfer, Laura Baugh has played in 13 tournaments this year, skipping only one event on the tour.

TALKS WITH PRO — ABC Sportscaster Frank Gifford talks with pro golfer Susie Berning, two-time U. S. Women's Open defending Champion and the winner of three Open victories. Frank Gifford and Susie Berning will both be on hand for ABC Sports' exclusive live coverage of this year's U. S. Women's Open, Sunday, July 21 (4:30-6:00 p.m.) on channel 3-5-12.

Leonard Joins 'Eye On Sports'

Broadcaster Lee Leonard has been signed to do editorial commentary and location features for the "Eye on Sports" segments on "CBS Sports Spectacular," broadcast Sundays (3:30-5:30 p.m.).

Leonard begins his assignment immediately. His addition to the on-air staff of commentators is in line with the program's expanded format, putting more emphasis on diversified coverage of events, sports news and commentary.

Since September 1972, Leonard has been co-host of the Sunday night "Sports Extra" program on WNEW-TV, New York City.

Prior to that, for two years Leonard was sports editor for the 10 p.m. news on WNEW-TV. From 1965 to 1969 he hosted the daily "Lee Leonard Show," a three-hour telephone talk-and-interview program on WNBC radio in New York. At the same time, he hosted "Monitor." He was also host of "It's Academic," a television quiz show in New York City.

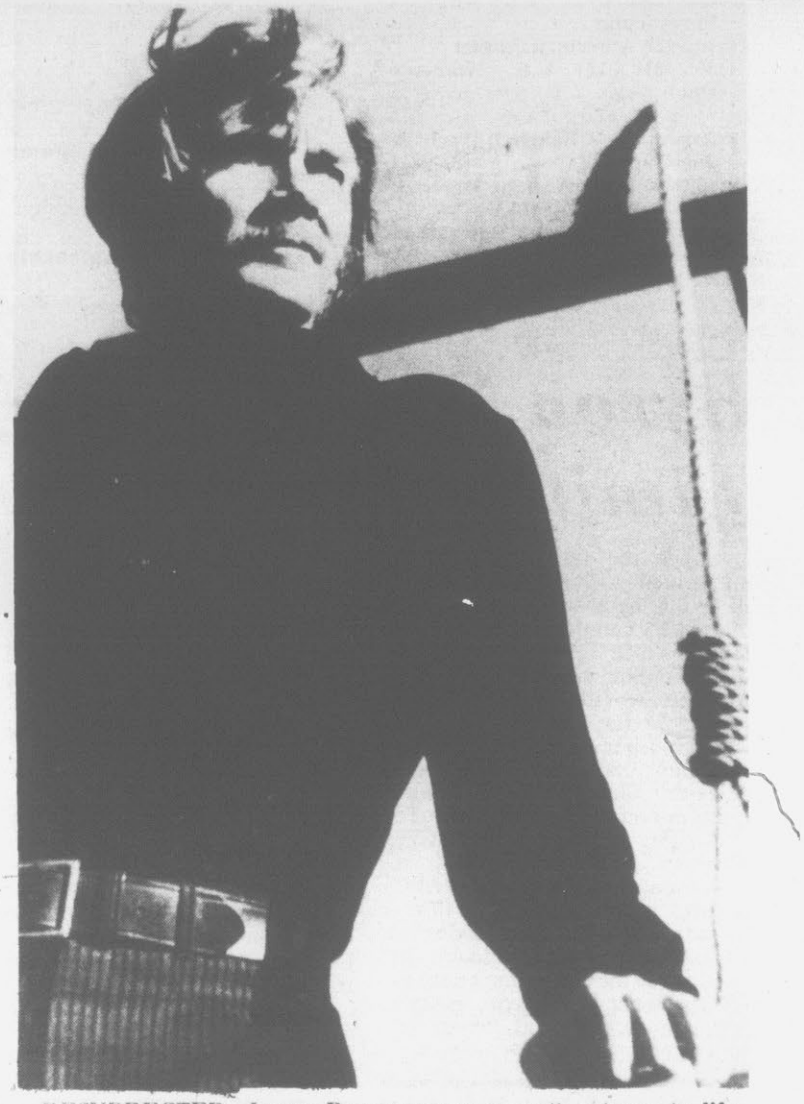
'Emergency' Crew Is Too Busy To Be Bored

"It took a crew of 10 to 15 men to insure the safety of the stunt men and the other crew members. We rigged a huge 1000-pound electric sign to look like it had broken away from a building during installation."

Some of Lopez's men handled ropes making the sign swing, others had guidelines which kept the sign from going too far. A stunt man playing an injured installation worker had to appear as though he were suffering from a broken arm.

Long shots of the "victim" and the two paramedics (Kevin Tighe and Randolph Mantooth) were shot on the outside of a seven-story building in Long Beach. Close-ups of the actors were filmed against a fake brick wall in a studio, but the 1000-pound sign was the same one used in the exteriors. The job of the special effects men was complicated by the necessity of having the shots done outdoors match the ones in the studio so they would look the same to the viewing audience.

When making feature motion pictures, time allows a great many retakes. "Emergency!" is done is six days, so the crew must be fast as well as skillful.



RESURRECTED—James Devlin (Steve Forest) returns to life hours after he has been unjustly hanged and pronounced dead in "The Hanged Man", the "ABC Suspense Movie" on Saturday, July 27 (8:30 p.m.) on channels 3W-5-12.

Bert Parks To Sing It Again

Bert Parks introduced the traditional "There She Is. . . Miss America" at the 1955 Miss America Pageant.

On Sept. 7 he will sing it for the 20th successive time when NBC-TV colorcasts the 54th annual Miss America Pageant live from Atlantic City, N.J.

ADAPTATION

Arthur Miller has adapted for television his powerful Broadway play about people searching for truth, "After The Fall." The production, starring Faye Dunaway, Christopher Plummer and Bib Andersson, will be seen on NBC-TV during the 1974-75 season.

Portray Kennedys In Missile Crisis

President John F. Kennedy and his brother, then Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, will be portrayed in the ABC Theatre production, "The Missiles of October," which airs on the ABC Television Network, Wednesday, Dec. 11.

The casting of these two pivotal roles in the reenactment of the tense drama which brought the world to the brink of a nuclear confrontation, was announced today by Edwin T. Vane, Vice President and National Program Director, ABC Entertainment.

William De Vane, who plays President Kennedy, bears a striking resemblance to the Kennedy family, and portrayed Robert Kennedy in the successful off-Broadway spoof, "MacBird." He recently was seen as Capt. Sandberg, one of the defense attorneys, in the ABC Theatre production, "Judgement: The Court-Martial of the Tiger of Malaya — General Yamashita." DeVane is well known on the New York stage and appeared in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," and in several Joseph Papp productions for the New York Shakespeare Festival.

Martin Sheen, who will play Robert Kennedy, received an Emmy nomination this past season for his title role in "The Execution of Private Slovik." Also this past season, Sheen starred in the award-winning "The Catholics." Sheen first won critical acclaim for his Tony-nominated role as the son in the Pulitzer Price-winning play, "The Subject Was Roses," which he later recreated on the screen. Sheen also gained wide praise for his performance in "That Certain Summer," an ABC "Movie of the Week."

"The Missiles of October," reunites the Peabody Award - winning creative team which produced the "ABC Theatre" production, "Pueblo."

ON BROADWAY

Albert Salmi, who will co-star in the new series "Petrocelli," starred as the innocent cowboy in the Broadway hit, "Bus Stop."

WORDS ASSOCIATION

Claude Akins, who stars in the 1974-75 season series "Movin' On," majored in speech at Northwestern University.

FOR LETITIA BALDRIGE, public relations executive and former social secretary to President Kennedy

How long did you go to secretarial school and what did you get out of it?—Roberta Rich, Lansing, Mich.

● I went to stenotype and typing secretarial school for all of two months, but I finished a year's course in those two months. I had two college degrees and didn't want to hang around secretarial school all that long. I took private lessons and worked on my typing and shorthand from 8 a.m. until midnight seven days a week for two months. I finished and went to work in Paris. My advice is, no matter which type of shorthand instruction you choose, work terribly hard at it and get it over with. Then you have tools to use forever, in your career and in your homelife, too.

FOR LORNE GREENE

How old were you when you turned gray?—N. Fourman, Fayetteville, N.C.

● Twenty-four. It runs in my family. My mother was 22 when she turned gray.

FOR TOM HEINSOHN, coach of the Boston Celtics

Does it bug you when people say you look like Ernest Borgnine?—J. J. Murphy, Austin, Texas

● Not at all. He played Vince Lombardi on television. Someday I may play the title role in "The Life of Ernest Borgnine."

FOR H. STUART KNIGHT,
director of the U.S. Secret Service

I was surprised to read that Secret Service men are still guarding John F. Kennedy Jr. Do you also guard Jacqueline Onassis and Caroline Kennedy?—M.T. Davidson, Utica, N.Y.

● Public Law 90-608 provides for the Secret Service to protect the widow of a former President until her death or remarriage, and to protect the minor children of a former President until they reach 16. At this time John F. Kennedy Jr., is the only child of a former President receiving protection from the Secret Service.

FOR DORIS DAY

What does your organization, Actors and Others for Animals, tell people to do about movies that show pain or death inflicted on animals?—John Thompson, Durham, N.C.

● We urge people to boycott films that inflict pain or death on animals for purposes of "entertainment." They may obtain a list of these films from the American Humane Association. We also urge them to write to their state representatives demanding legislation that would prohibit the showing of films in which animals are deliberately killed or harmed for the purpose of making a movie.

FOR DAN ROWAN

I understand that you are a diabetic. If you were to go into shock away from home, how would people know what the problem was?—A. Casey, Allentown, Pa.

● I wear a bracelet with the Medic Alert emblem on one side and medical information on the other. There is also a phone number that can be called to get additional computerized information about my ailment. Medic Alert is in Turlock, Calif. Their bracelets are worn by all sorts of people with allergies and other hidden medical problems.

FOR RICH LITTLE, impressionist

I am a fan of yours and do 70 impressions. How many do you do?—Frank Gillespie, Reseda, Calif.

● I do 130.

FOR DONNA FARGO

Your song, "Society's Got Us by the You-Know-What," sounds like a political statement. Is it?—M. M., Millwood, N.Y.

● Well—I don't like to get involved in politics, even though I'm normally a Democrat. I don't want to influence the way people vote, because I don't think I know enough about politics to do that. As for the song—I think it's our own fault if we allow society to get that kind of grip on us. We ourselves are responsible for the predicaments we get into.

FOR LORETTA SWIT,
*"Hot Lips Houlihan" in "M*A*S*H"*

I read that you were picked for your "M*A*S*H" part while playing Agnes Gooch in "Mame." How did this happen?—H. J., Easton, Pa.

● I couldn't believe it either, but the two characters do have a lot in common. Both are repressed and trying to hide from life. Both are up-tight and straitlaced—then when the barriers are down, they go bananas. Both have great capacity to love, and both are frustrated.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

Is it true that Glenda Jackson has announced her retirement from movies? My girl friend says she has—but I can't believe it.—S. James, Waterbury, Conn.

● Your friend is wrong. Glenda Jackson did make the statement she was thinking of quitting to become a social worker, but even then she was preparing to start work in a new film, "The Maids," in Rome. Her unhappiness was over her belief that roles for women in their late thirties and forties are limited, and that this means she has an uncertain future. Miss Jackson, 37, has won two Academy Awards for Best Actress within five years—in 1970 for "Women in Love," and this year for "A Touch of Class."

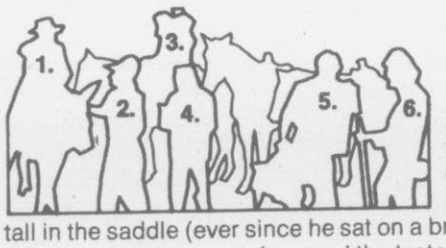
Can you spot the Camel Filters smoker?

©1974 R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.



Almost everyone at the corral today has a gimmick. Find the one who doesn't. 1. No. He's Brandon Kowz. Gimmick: Rides tall in the saddle (ever since he sat on a branding iron). Smokes "Quick Draw" cigarettes—one draw and the taste is shot. 2. No. He's Sid E. Slicker. Outfit is his gimmick: He looks like something that fell off a wedding cake. 3. No. She's May Aiken Bach. Buys every camping gimmick made. Even her horse opens up into a sofa. Tried an orange-flavor cigarette, but didn't know whether to smoke it—or squeeze it into her drink. 4. Nope. He's Harry Decamp Kunsler. Wears gimmick on back, especially during hunting season. Was later attacked by a moose—who couldn't read. 5. Right. He goes back to nature to get away from the fads and gimmicks. Likes his cigarettes natural and honest, too. Camel Filters. No nonsense. All flavor. 6. No. He's Tim Berwulf. Gimmick: "Expert" tracker. He once followed tracks into a cave—and shot a train.

Camel Filters. They're not for everybody (but they could be for you).

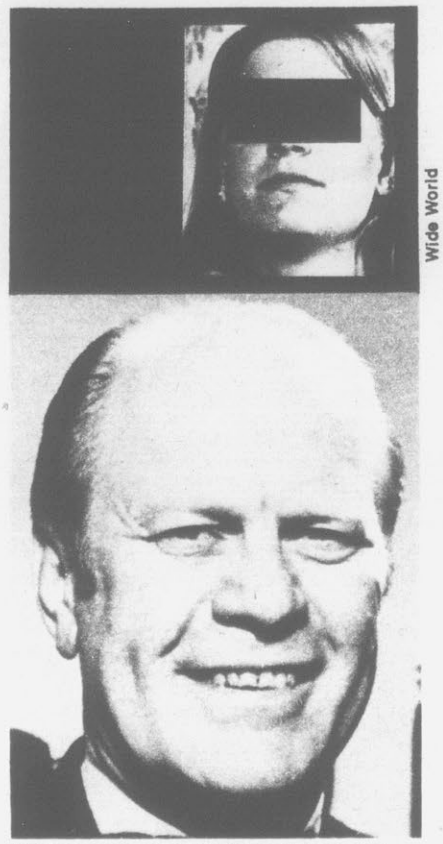
Special Report:

How "Kidnap Fever" Is Rocking Washington

By Frances Spatz Leighton



Wide World

"Kidnap threats have been directed at the Vice President's 16-year-old daughter Susan. . . ."

Quietly, all over Washington, our nation's leaders and their families have been changing their life-styles in the wake of the publicized Hearst, Getty and other kidnappings. Here is one Washington writer's exclusive—and disturbing—report.

"We're living in the age of the kidnapper." "It's getting unsafe in the U.S. to travel at any speed, in any vehicle." These are some of the comments on Capitol Hill concerning the security of our national leaders and their families. "If this keeps on, we'll be living in an armed camp," commented another.

Recently, from a trustworthy congressional source, FAMILY WEEKLY learned that kidnap threats have been directed at the Vice President's 16-year-old daughter Susan, the youngest of his four children and the only girl.

"The threats were definitely the product of a sick mind," said the congressional leader, who requested that he not be mentioned by name. "They were sent by persons trying for the most dramatic gesture they could think up at this time, when all eyes are on the Vice President as the possible next President."

As a result of this danger to the second family, an addition was recently tacked on to the 1974 Supplemental Appropriations Bill turned out by the Treasury, Postal Service and General Government Subcommittee of the House, and quietly signed into law by President Nixon on June 8.

Congressman Tom Steed (D-Okla.), chairman of the appropriations subcommittee, said that about a quarter of a million dollars will be spent guarding Susan and her brothers. Says Steed, "This figure is flexible, and if the girl and her family do a lot of traveling, it could be much more."

The rest of the $2.75 million increase in Secret Service funds will be used mainly to increase the protection of foreign embassies and their occupants.

In an exclusive interview, Representative Steed added: "There are 40,000 names on file of persons who want to do harm to national leaders. It is a manifestation of the violence that is typical of this time in history. This is an age in which people in the limelight become symbols that certain kinds of minds want to destroy."

Vice President Ford, on the advice of the Secret Service, has canceled various picture stories that had been planned around Susan, and she has been told to keep a low profile.

This is a sad state of affairs for a happy-go-lucky girl who loves people and loves roaming around. She worked at the White House all last summer, helping sell the White House "Guidebook" to tourists. If she works again this summer, it will be in a subdued and carefully guarded way.

All around Washington, there is a bit of the feeling of an armed outpost. Visitors to the Capitol Building and the offices surrounding it may not realize that the jovial tourist-type character tagging along with their group is a Capitol policeman in plainclothes. "We can't run a police camp," says Sergeant at Arms Ken Harding, chairman of the Capitol Police Board, "but we are doing everything we can think of to protect the life and limb of all citizens. We are aware of the political climate, and though we can't send Capitol police roaming the country to protect our leaders, we do have a close relationship with all other law-enforcement people across the country, even when a threat is made against a congressman in his home district as far away as Los Angeles."

What's to be done?

There have been a lot of suggestions. One is that there be a pool of Capitol police a congressman can call on when he feels threatened or endangered as he ventures away from his office on Capitol Hill. Something like a secretarial pool. At this moment, protection of congressmen stops the moment they step off the Capitol grounds.

Senators and congressmen who have young children, people like Sen. Daniel K. Inouye (D-Hawaii) and Congressman William Stanton (R-Ohio), are especially concerned over the climate of fear. Inouye, who gained fame, as well as an avalanche of vitriol, as a Watergate committeeman, had to tell his nine-year-old son not to answer the phone anymore.

And Bill Stanton, who was proud a few years ago when his wife collaborated on a cookbook with another young congressional wife, now says, "We no longer even tell where our little six-year-old daughter goes to school."

"This is an age in which people in the limelight become symbols that certain kinds of minds want to destroy."

He also told FAMILY WEEKLY: "We now have security for her on her way to and from school. We don't like it, but it's a fact of life." His wife's cookbook, "Meals for Moppets," contained the pictures of his children and those of Sen. Mark Hatfield. Says Stanton, "If the book were being put out today, we wouldn't permit pictures to be taken. It's just a precaution. I hope things will change and that we'll no longer need this kind of blackout."

All kinds of ideas are being talked about for protecting government officials and the general public. One protective idea is a telephone book with addresses omitted. "If you want someone to have your address you can give it to him when you talk to him on the phone," says a law official, who points out that when Patricia Hearst was kidnapped, a University of California student directory was found in a public lobby open to her name, address and phone number.

Congress is currently in a state of agitated confusion over how to deal with the kidnapping threat that hangs over every person of wealth or fame.

As a result of the Hearst case, Rep. James M. Collins (D-Texas) has introduced a bill that would make it an offense to accept "the fruits of kidnapping." This would have included—had the bill been law at the time – the $2-million Hearst food giveaway. If passed, HR 13302 would impose a $1,000 fine, a year's imprisonment, or both, for benefiting from a kidnapping.

On the Senate side, two men, Sen. Roman Hruska (R-Neb.) and Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.), have introduced a bill that would restore the death penalty in cases of kidnapping that resulted in death to any victims.

The bill—S1401—has passed the Senate and at this writing awaits action in the House. Strangely enough, Sen. Edward F. Kennedy, who has much to fear from kidnappers and who faces danger every day, voted against the bill. And for a very interesting reason. As Senator Kennedy explained it, if a hijacker, say, had already killed one man and was in danger of being caught, he might go ahead and kill all his other hostages because his own death would already be a certainty.

Incidentally, Senator Kennedy's personal protective burdens will be intensified this summer because of his promise to his niece, Caroline Kennedy, daughter of the late President, that she will have an intern's job in his office. Already the word has gone out that pictures are to be strictly limited, if not forbidden.

Caroline, at 16, no longer is entitled to Secret Service protection as her younger brother, John Kennedy, Jr., is. Sixteen is the cutoff date for the Secret Service to protect children of past Presidents. But you can be sure that as long as she is working in the Senator's office, Capitol Hill police will keep an eagle eye on her.

I got this reaction when I called one congressman's wife about the kidnap scare:

"Please don't use our name. Our children are the only thing we have in the whole world that we care about. We don't want any kidnappers to know that we are afraid. But we have every possible device to protect our home. Please, don't print our name."

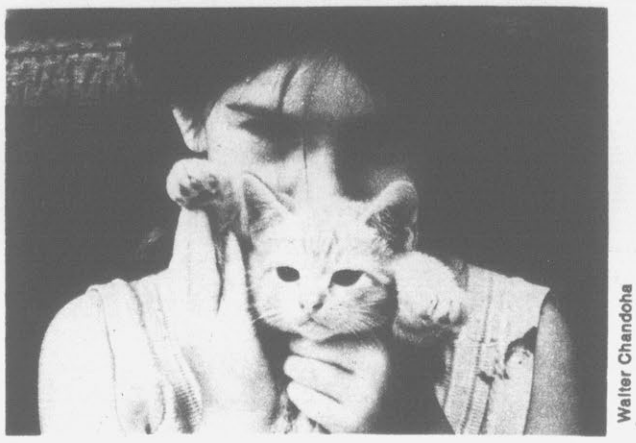
What Makes Children Tell Lies?

(And How Should Parents React?)

By Julie Hallett



Walter Chandoha

"All kids tell lies. Not just some, all. And when they do, parents usually react in the same way."

A friend of mine, now a grown man, tells this story:

"It was in sixth-grade gym class. My friend and I were given the assignment of putting away the gym equipment during noon hour. Finding ourselves alone in the gym, we began horsing around. One of us got the bright idea of lowering one of the wooden climbing poles from the ceiling. One of us hung on the pole while the other pulled it up and down via the pulley system. All of a sudden—snap!—the pole broke!... Luckily, no one was hurt. But how to explain the broken pole?

"We made up what seemed to us a plausible story. We told the teacher that a man wearing a mask and a black cape had suddenly dashed in through the side door, lowered the climbing pole from the ceiling, broke it, then ran back out.

"It seemed so logical! And, after repeating the lie a few times, we were half-convinced that it really was the truth!"

All kids tell lies. Not just some, all. And when they do, parents usually react in the same way. They get angry.

But the truth is, telling lies is a normal part of growing up. And, even if you as a parent have to count to ten, it's worth listening calmly, because it just might be that, while it seems like a lie, what your child is really trying to tell you is a deeper kind of truth!

"Look, Mommy—I Am Me!"

Many children begin to lie before they're even able to talk. Take Tommy, for example. He was midway through potty training when he had an accident on the living room rug. When his mother came in and saw what he had done, Tommy pointed to the dog.

Does this mean that Tommy, though still a toddler, is already going astray? Not at all. Tommy's chief motive, of course, is to try to escape a scolding. But he is also saying that he is a separate, distinct person with thoughts and ideas that haven't been programmed by Mother. He is saying, "You are always telling me things that I have to accept at face value; now let's see if you will accept things that I tell you."

These first testings of mental independence may be just as important to the child as are his first faltering attempts at physical independence.

A neighbor of mine has a little girl, Dotty, who (like most little girls) loves to play at her mother's vanity. One day she accidentally spilled a bottle of her mother's most expensive perfume on her dress. Using a four-year-old's logic, Dotty came up with an ingenious way to destroy the evidence: She took a pair of scissors and neat-

ROD CAREW:

Meet the American League's Best Hitter

Rod Carew, the American League's best hitter, used to be known as "baseball's angry man." He rarely communicated with his teammates, carried a perennial chip on his shoulder, and was always threatening to quit the game and go home. Carew's behavior was conditioned by his belief that he was the victim of racial discrimination and was scorned because he was a foreigner who spoke English with a heavy accent. . . . Carew was born on a train in Panama. He grew up in poverty, first in Panama and later in New York City. He found school difficult because of his poor English but discovered his future career when he joined a sandlot ball team and showed great natural talent. The Minnesota Twins gave him a tryout, and signed him. But his experiences in the Florida State League, where he felt he was suffering from racial slurs, nearly made him quit. . . . Carew came up to the Twins in 1967 and has established a brilliant record. He has been on the All-Star team every year, has won his league's batting championship three times, has the highest lifetime batting average among the league's active players, and is continuing to be a top hitter this season. He's also one of the game's best base runners and last year pilfered 41. . . . He's also lost that chip on the shoulder and become more outgoing. The fact that his teammates on the Twins regard him as their indispensable leader has helped dissolve his moody spells. At 28, Carew is now at the peak of his career.—By Barry Abramson

The Doctor Lets You In

Why TB Has Not Been Conquered

"Tuberculosis is dead," you hear proudly proclaimed. Don't you believe it! TB is not dead. Of the infectious diseases, it is the leading cause of death. There are almost 33,000 new cases a year in the U.S.—with New York City residents being the worst afflicted. So TB is still here—but its treatment has changed drastically. Fresh-air sanatoriums—the treatment of decades ago—are no longer necessary. Unless it is acute, TB can be treated in any general hospital on an outpatient basis. And while bed rest and isolation are not necessary, taking medicine is lifesaving. A new anti-TB drug, Rimactine (Ciba) or rifampin, has the fewest side effects. Other drugs are ethambutol (Myambutol), PAS, isoniazid and, in acute cases, streptomycin. . . . The reason TB is such a hardy disease is because the TB germ can lie dormant in the body for decades—then become active when resistance is low. This is also the reason it is more active in older people—they have carried it longer. . . . How do you diagnose TB? Through chest X rays and tuberculin skin tests. The deciding test is finding the TB germ—called a mycobacterium—in the sputum. TB's symptoms are weight loss and coughing.

The Diet Watch

How to Track Your Snacking Pattern

An interesting experiment has been going on at the University of Pennsylvania Hospital Diet Clinic. Each diet-clinic patient acts as his own detective, tracking down and keeping a record of when he snacks: while talking, reading, cooking, watching TV—even while standing, lying down or sitting. The detective work reveals some surprises to the patients. One housewife discovered she was a habitual "afternoon eater," at the refrigerator every few minutes. Her solution: She now saves her morning shopping for afternoons, and that keeps her away from home. Another woman found she was an after-dinner kitchen snacker, so she now stays out of the kitchen after dinner, even washing her dinner dishes in the morning. By noting down the circumstances during which you snack, you can identify your vulnerable situations and deal with them better.

OTTO PREMINGER:

My Advice to Oldsters

Pictorial Parade

"Older people should stop fighting change. I'm older, but I think most changes are for the better. Older people keep claiming to remember how much better things were in their youth. Nonsense! Take, for example, all the complaints about the obscenity around today. All that obscenity really reflects is more freedom, and in the long run that's for the best. Older people complain about the ideas of youth. But what's wrong with young people saying they don't want to fight in a war? If there is a war that people don't believe in, and they say so, that's for the better. Just look around at the changes that younger people bring to life with their new ideas, and you get new enthusiasm. Older people should start enjoying the changes taking place instead of grumbling about the way it used to be." Otto Preminger, 67, is directing his latest film, "Rosebud."

People and You

Do Poor People Have More Friends?

If you enjoy watching "The Waltons," you're involved with the current nostalgia fad that shows the Depression years as a time of great human warmth. Though most nostalgia about any era is unrealistic, the family-friend warmth idea connected with poverty may actually be true. A study of 4,500 modern families' leisure habits shows that to this day poorer people regularly out-socialize more prosperous families. The poor very frequently drop in on their neighbors, relatives and friends for an informal visit of helping out, TV watching or just sitting around; and they definitely keep closer overall visiting contact with their relatives than does the average prosperous person. People with good incomes drift away from spending time with friends and kinfolk toward leisure activities that must be bought and paid for—bowling, golf, trips, restaurants, movies, etc. It's true that purchased entertainment is often interesting and fun. But the old idea of spending time with friends still satisfies a basic human need.

What the Experts Don't Tell You About Eating

True or False: The manner in which you eat provides a clue to your sense of security. (See number 3)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. How good food tastes to you depends on where you live.

2. Rewarding a child for good behavior with a piece of candy or something sweet is more effective than praise.

3. The manner in which you eat provides a clue to your sense of security.

4. Your ability to enjoy food is related to your ability to enjoy life.

ANSWERS

1. True. Studies at Colorado State University have demonstrated that our ability to appreciate the various tastes of food varies markedly with the altitude. The investigation showed that our taste functions best at sea level. The researchers found that there is a significant difference in the ability to taste between sea level and 5,000 feet. Strangely, however, no significant difference results in going from 5,000 to 10,000 feet.

2. True. According to university studies in which children performed under three reward systems: social rewards (praise, special privileges—such as getting to stay up later—etc.), edible rewards and no rewards. Findings: Edible rewards achieved the best results, with candy being "the most effective reinforcer."

3. True. A psychological study of food habits shows that when there is an especially esteemed piece of food on your plate (the topping on a dessert, for example), whether you save it for last or consume it right away is highly suggestive of how insecure you feel. Eating it immediately, before anything else, is associated with an underlying feeling of anxiety—a fear of losing something. The more secure person is apt to reserve the esteemed tidbit for last.

4. True. Consensus of studies shows that the enjoyment you derive from eating is a pretty accurate barometer of how much enjoyment you get out of life. Interestingly, the mental loss of appetite—called anorexia nervosa—is chiefly caused by "dissatisfaction with the life situation in general."

What Does It Feel Like to Create Today's Music?

By Loraine Alterman

CARLY SIMON

"I don't write songs for the public. I write them for myself. I write them out of little ideas that come into my head during the day. For instance, I started to write a song about being a little girl and standing in the doorway and listening to my parents' and their friends' conversation. As a child I was thinking, 'How safe they are, how sure of themselves the grown-ups are and when I get to be their age, I'll be sure of myself, too.' But really, it's the penny-candy syndrome. You think, 'I just can't wait until I have enough money to get 100 sticks of penny candy,' and then when you are able to afford it, it makes you fat or it puts cholesterol in your blood or you don't want it any more. It's just that whole thing about growing up and being grown up myself and having a little girl standing in the door. It happened just the other night. She was looking with such awe at me being one of the grown-ups and I was sitting there thinking, 'I feel so uncomfortable, so shy and so unsure of myself.' And all the songs kind of come out of an experience. I don't consciously want to put a message across. If it happens, it happens. I guess there are some people who sit down and say, 'All right, I want to write a hit single. Let's see, what's a big item at the moment?' But I've never worked like that."

"I guess there are some people who sit down and say, 'All right, I want to write a hit single. Let's see, what's a big item at the moment?' But I've never worked like that."—Carly Simon

BO DIDDLEY

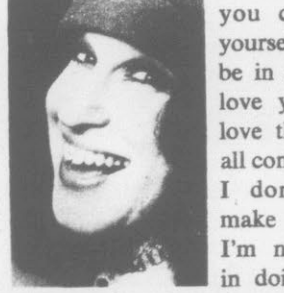
"They say a boy is grown at 21. He ain't. He's just beginning to learn some sense. The reason I can speak this way is because I've been 21, too. And I know what happened coming up. I thought I was the smartest little dude around. I thought I had all the answers—but right now I'm still learning stuff every day. So it's impossible for you to know it all. On the other hand, parents should listen to rock music before they knock the sound. Don't sit at home and look at TV. Get off the dead hind parts, put on something, and if you go to a place where the kids go, the kids ain't going to refuse you. If the parent says, 'I'm the parent of a kid who comes in here all the time and I just wanted to see what they're doing,' it's better than coming dragging the police behind you. I think we would have a little better thing with the kids and older people."

DON McLEAN

"I plan to be in music for much longer than most of the people who are around now, but I don't plan to be in it in a way that places me in a historical period as part of a group or as part of a series of individuals that helped shape a certain kind of music. This is partly because of my own unwillingness to be involved in any kind of society. It's partly also because I lack a concrete musical style. I don't fit into the rock 'n' roll thing. I don't fit into folk music. I don't fit into pop music. Sometimes I lament that. I really love Chuck Berry and all those songs he does. They sort of sound alike, but he can afford to make them all sound alike because they sound so good. James Taylor has that. He has a style of his own, and so does Dylan. I lament the fact sometimes that I don't have it. On the other hand, I also have the chance to experiment and do what I want because people don't expect any one thing of me. Therefore, when they get something, they're surprised. One of the things that is really wrong with the experts on all levels of the arts, especially in pop music, is that they are unwilling to look backward. We must always have one eye on the past and one eye on the future in order to make the present more substantial. If I did anything in my life, it would be to get that point across so that people would not be hung up on this notion of constant newness."

BETTE MIDLER

"This isn't what I want my career to be, but what the fates do to me and what and where my audiences carry me. It's something that you can't do by yourself. It has to be in concert—they love you and you love them back; it all comes from that. I don't want to make a movie and I'm not interested in doing a play. I want to work out all the things I have to say within the framework of the music. My show is a show, not an act, and there's a very subtle difference. An act is not as honest as I'm trying to be. What I do is very theatrical but it's also very musical. There are some places that I haven't been to with it yet. You see, I am 'Miss M,' and that is one point that is both a drawback and an advantage. Some people come only to see 'Miss M'—the image of Bette Midler—not the real Bette Midler. Some people come to see Bette Midler and wish 'Miss M' would take a dump. But I feel that it's all one. I want people to understand that all the songs and all the experiences and all the glitter and all the words all come from me, from one person, from one personality. And that's what I have created. That's the way I express myself. I can't paint and I don't write very well, so that is the expression of me. And I have other things that I want to say and I will be expressing myself until I run dry."



RANDY NEWMAN

"Writing is always hard work, no matter how fast it comes. I mean it's something to put yourself in a room with nothing there and come out with something. Some good songs come real fast, but a lot of times they don't and I'll work over them. I throw out more and more songs because it gets harder, not easier. I really hate to write. It's harder than performing. I mean performing you're there and it's done and you don't have to listen to it, think about it. Writing, you can't stop thinking about. When I work on something, I can't turn it off. I wish I disciplined myself to work a certain number of hours a day. I've made lists for myself, schedules, all my life. Tolstoy did that from the time he was 15 until he was 80. He'd make lists of ways he was going to improve himself, but he never followed one of them. I did my own lists before I knew he did it, but I've never been able to follow them either. I'd like to be able to sit right down and work on schedule. When I have to work, I do. I very rarely have gotten up in the middle of the night with an idea and felt it was worthwhile the next day. I don't know how the ideas start; but then if I knew, I could do it all the time. I think writers are the craziest people in the whole entertainment thing. There's nothing concrete about it. Things change from under you. You think something's great and then later it sounds terrible to you. I can't listen to anything I do."

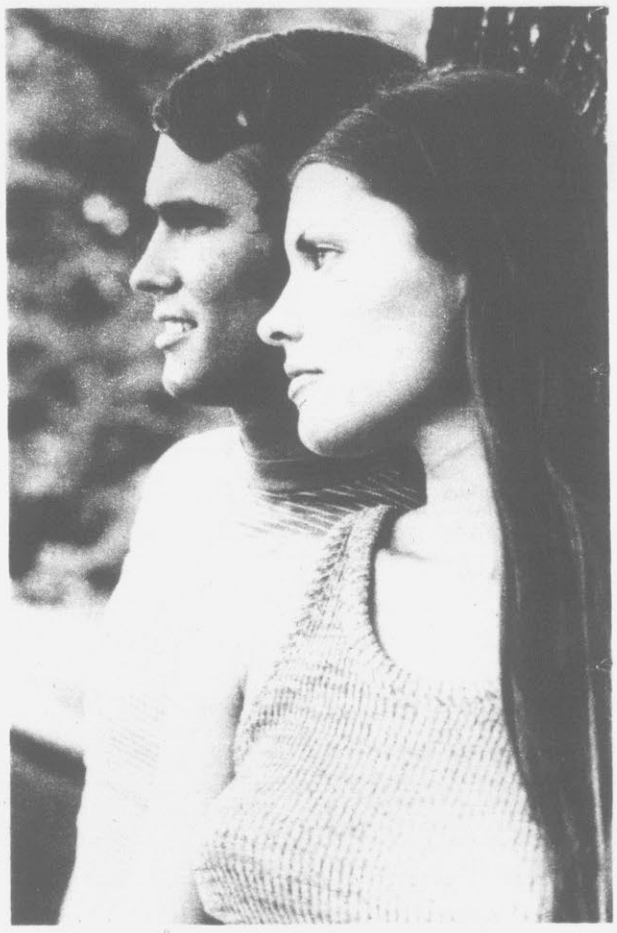
YOUR NERVES CAN CURE THEMSELVES

once you learn how to de-sensitize them, this doctor's ingenious new way...



If You Suffer From A Single One Of These Torturous Symptoms Of Nerves, Tension Or Chronic Anxiety, THEN THE FACTS BELOW MAY BE THE MOST IMPORTANT YOU HAVE EVER READ IN YOUR LIFE!

Because they reveal, for the first time, how your nerves have tricked you into the following mental symptoms:

constant nervousness and over-irritation... indecision... depression ...loss of confidence in yourself and others... feelings of unreality... overwhelming obsession with one or two horrible thoughts...

a hopeless feeling that your entire personality is coming apart... that your identity is dissolving... or that you may be helplessly drifting into a nervous breakdown!

And—equally as bad—how your nerves have tricked you into the following physical symptoms:

chronic fatigue, that starts in the morning, and grows worse as the day goes on...

"missed" heartbeats—"racing" heart—palpitations—or sudden sharp pains under the heart...

sweating hands—or "pins and needles" in either your hands or your legs...

"churning" stomach... nausea... choking feeling in the throat... inability to take a deep breath... tight band of pain around the head..."ready to jump out of your skin"... strange tricks of vision ...weak spells... insomnia, that goes on night after night after night...

hand shaking... panic spasms... knots in your chest... dizziness... difficulty in swallowing... vomiting... and all the other physical tortures that turn your life into one continuous hell!

And Every One Of These Nervous Symptoms Can Be Controlled... And Then Diminished ...And Then Eliminated—OFTEN BY AS LITTLE AS THIS ONE SINGLE INSIGHT INTO THEIR HIDDEN CAUSE!

And that insight is this:

If you suffer from any of the nervous symptoms listed above, then you must understand at once that your nerves are not ill... they have not deteriorated... they have not lost their true physical health in any way! What has happened to them instead is that they have simply become OVER-SENSITIZED..."rubbed raw" by too much outside irritation ...and are now ready to discharge the emotional and physical symptoms of panic at even the slightest thing that goes wrong!

Thus, the depression... indecision... loss of confidence and all the other emotional symptoms you feel are all caused by OVER-SENSITIZED nerves! And the churning stomach... palpitating heart... never-ending headaches and all the other physical nervous-symptoms you feel are—again—all caused by OVER-SENSITIZED nerves!

And therefore the way to treat ALL these symptoms is NOT with drugs... NOT with shock... NOT with medical formulations or hospitalizations at all! The way to treat these nerves is to change the poisonous-thoughts that are rubbing them raw!

And this is done (as proven by this internationally-famed physician on thousands of patients) in four simple steps! The first of which stops nervous symptoms (both physical and emotional) from multiplying from that moment on! The second of which serves to tranquilize and quiet down those over-sensitized nerves far more powerfully (and permanently) than any drug a pharmacist could ever give you!

The third of which lets you stop fighting those symptoms (which only intensifies them in an ever-increasing spiral of sheer torment), and—instead—leave them alone in an ingenious way that lets them start healing themselves!

And the fourth of which—the great reward—brings you slowly-but-surely back to the person you used to be! With a new, enduring feeling of control and confidence that nothing can destroy! So much so that this doctor actually comes right out and states bluntly: "The advice given here will definitely cure you, if you only follow it"!

WHAT OTHERS SAY:

"... helped me so much and released me from the particular hell I have been living in since my breakdown six years ago."

"I think of Dr. Weekes with admiration and deep gratitude, as I am sure thousands of other people are doing."

"I am amazed at the progress I made in such a short time."

"It would be no exaggeration to add that your book saved my life."

"The method you give for cure of nervous conditions is so effective—and so simple—I cannot think why nothing remotely like your system has been suggested to me."

"The great reassurance you give about the distressing physical symptoms of a disturbed nervous system is one of the greatest benefits to be derived from your book."

"You cannot possibly imagine what a relief it is to be able to view life normally again, instead of fear-panic all the while."

"I cannot describe the emotion I felt to find, at last, someone who really understood the problem, and to hear her say the condition can be cured. ..."

"I would like you to know that my nervous condition has so greatly improved through the advice gleaned from your most precious and invaluable book ... that all symptoms have now disappeared and I rarely need Librium or sleeping capsules."

"My physician is amazed at my progress and of course I showed him your book which he borrowed and read thoroughly and is now recommending to other patients."

"My wife has made a vast improvement since using your book and now feels for the first time like getting away from the hospital altogether. I'm sure if she had had your treatment in earlier years she would never have had to go into the hospital at all."

WHAT THE PUBLISHER SAYS:

HOPE AND HELP FOR YOUR NERVES has sold over 250,000 copies and has been endorsed by medical and mental-health associations throughout the world. Millions of Americans have heard Dr. Weekes on television and radio shows and have read excerpts from the book which recently appeared in Reader's Digest. If you are one of the many whose nerves are on edge and who sometimes feel panic and don't know why, this remarkable book was written for you.

In Fact, Case History After Case History Proves That Cure May Be So Dramatically Quick That Your Friends And Family Will Beg You To Tell Them Your Secret!

Once again, it doesn't matter what physical or emotional symptoms you are now suffering from... how "deeply entrenched" they are... how long you have been plagued by them... how "old" or "weak" or "out-of-control" you may feel today! Here is specific, step-by-immediate-step advice that will (again to quote directly from the doctor) "banish every unwelcome sensation and regain peace of mind and body"!

For example:

The two-minute self-treatment (you perform one ingenious little action with your chest) that ends sudden panic seizures on the spot—including all their side effects such as dizziness, pins and needles, involuntary stiffening of the joints, inability to breathe, and all the rest.

That "lump in the throat that won't go away"—how to banish it in minutes ... and enjoy eating any food you wish to once again!

Physical weakness—perhaps the most dreaded of all symptoms—and (surprisingly) perhaps the fastest of all to banish!

How to deal with the twin monsters of fatigue and guilt! And leave behind emotional exhaustion... morning depression... thoughts that once raced around and around in your mind without cessation! (And leave them all behind—for good!)

Why so many patients who tried these simple techniques actually came out of their nervous sicknesses as far finer and stronger people than they ever were before!

How to recover from chronic tension caused by an insoluable problem! The only sane way to overcome it! How to avoid unnecessary suffering, for both yourself and others! And, perhaps, actually turn your worst defeat into crowning success!

The surest and most permanent way to cure obsessions!

How to tap the forces of Nature, every morning, that are just waiting to cure you!

How to bring happiness back into your everyday life! Not by waiting for some great event or reward... but simply by developing the eyes to see joy in the little things all around you!

And—the final goal: How to develop the kind of nervous control that automatically turns panic off the instant it starts! That frees you forever from "nerve-crutches" such as drugs or alcohol! That lets you pick up your life again from the point where over-sensitized nerves forced you to abandon it, with absolute confidence that you now have the poise and self-possession to accomplish the goals you have always wanted!

Already a best-seller in nine foreign nations, as well as the United States! Read it from cover to cover. We take all the risk! Fair enough? Why not send in the coupon—TODAY!

This is NOT a textbook! NOT a study manual! There are no lectures—not a single "blue-sky" theory to ponder over anywhere!

Instead, for the first time; here are revolutionary new breakthroughs that HELP YOUR NERVES DE-SENSITIZE THEMSELVES... 'skipping' or 'racing' heart... pins and needles in hands or feet... even nausea, shortness of breath, chest and stomach pains, weak spells, and never-flagging insomnia! And much, much more!

All these—gone! For just a few short moments a day!

Children's Lies

ly snipped the perfume-stained area out of her dress.

French psychiatrist Marcel Eck—who has made in-depth studies of why children tell lies—says that it's part of a child's development to "test" adults to see whether or not they believe him. This continues, according to Eck, long after the child has learned to distinguish between reality and make-believe. The lie may sound like wishful thinking ("My daddy's so rich he has ten cars and two airplanes"); or it may be an attempt to tell you what the child thinks you want to hear ("My teacher says that I've done so well that she's not going to give me a report card this term"). Underneath it all, he's testing his ingenuity and logic against yours.

The "Cherry Tree" Syndrome

It's usually at about age seven, says Dr. Eck, that a child becomes concerned with the "evils" of lying. Suddenly little Susie or Jimmy will become more consistently and literally truthful than he has ever been before—or is likely to be again!

Some experts call this the "cherry tree" syndrome—after the famous story of George Washington and his "I-cannot-tell-a-lie" reply. All children have heard this story. The implication is that, once having confessed to chopping down his father's favorite tree, George attained instant amnesty. Not only was all forgiven, but somehow (at least in the minds of children) George's truthfulness led to his becoming a great hero and "Father of His Country."

At any rate, it certainly is true that most children look upon telling the truth as a protection from punishment. ("I told you the truth, so you're not allowed to touch me!") Truthfulness begins to be pushed to extremes: The child who becomes a tattletale; the child who gives his mother a withering look every time he overhears her giving an insincere compliment or a polite excuse.

As the child gets a little older, the super-honesty wears off and the old testing resumes—except now he's likely to be better at it than he was at age six.

"But How Can I Be Sure My Child's Lying Is Normal?"

Family counselor and psychotherapist Selma Miller says that problem lying is usually not a matter of an isolated lie or two, but of so much lying that it's a real characteristic of the child.

The most important thing for a parent to realize is that honesty in a child does not happen automatically or all at once. "Real respect for the truth," she says, "develops gradually—and not out of fear, but out of a sense of being trusted." To help maintain a good climate of mutual respect and trust in a family, Mrs. Miller suggests these simple guidelines:

1. Whenever possible, try to get a handle on the underlying source of a persistent lie. For example, suppose little Lucy keeps claiming she "lost" her 25 cents allowance, even though her parents know this isn't likely. The parents could hurt little Lucy by calling her a "liar." But that wouldn't answer the child's real problem—namely, that she is misspending her money, or that she feels she needs more than 25 cents a week.

2. Help make it easy for a child to admit when he or she has lied; if he's scared, he'll just tell more lies to cover up the first one.

3. Tell him that it makes you sad when he lies, that it's a letdown and a disappointment. Give him a chance to empathize. ("What if I told you I had a present for you and really didn't. . . .")

4. Yes, go ahead and drag out that old story about the boy who cried wolf—and how, in the last analysis, it's he and not you who'll suffer from a poor credibility rating.

5. Ask yourself why a particular lie might have gotten you so upset. Was it all because you were concerned for his safety or his morals—or could it have had to do with the fact that he flouted your authority, or put one over on you and made you feel foolish? It's normal to feel this way, but it can make you overreact.

What in the World!

BILLIE JEAN KING
"I plead honesty"

QUOTE (from Billie Jean King): "I got pregnant in late February, 1971. . . . I took the usual tests and when they came out positive, there was absolutely no question about what I would do. We [Billie Jean and her husband Larry King] agreed on an abortion from the beginning and there was very little thinking about the morality involved in our decision. If that sounds shocking, all I can do is plead honesty. I mean I did believe strongly that inexpensive, legal abortions ought to be available to every woman, and since I was only about a month pregnant I didn't feel I was killing a life or anything like that. But the real reason for my decision was that I also felt it was absolutely the wrong time for me to bring a child into the world. Even though Larry and I had been married for five and a half years, we'd been living a strange, disjointed life and I felt we needed more time together by ourselves to see where our relationship was headed. I was entering a period of great change in my life, personally and professionally, and under the circumstances, I felt it wasn't proper to start a family." From "Billie Jean," by Billie Jean King with Kim Chapin (Harper & Row, Publishers, Inc., 6.95). UNQUOTE.

Mental illness may be a chemical problem. So says Dr. Ronald R. Fieve of Columbia University who has developed a new method of treating the illness. He prescribes lithium carbonate, a salt commonly found in mineral springs. One of his most successful patients has been playwright and director Joshua Logan. Formerly a manic depressive who sprang from low to high moods in a matter of hours, Logan ("Annie Get Your Gun," "South Pacific," etc.) says now he is "never distracted by what used to make me either depressed or elated. Now I'm the same all the time." Logan is one of approximately 26 million Americans with severe mental illness who are forced to seek medical help during their lives, according to a study by Dr. Gerald Klerman, M.D., a professor of psychiatry at Harvard.

LEG ART
A new twist

"Who says these are women's legs?" That is restaurant owner Bob Rowan's standard answer when he is accused by feminists of being a sexist. Rowan decided on the shapely table legs after he and his two partners in the What This Country Needs restaurant in San Francisco put their heads together and came up with the legs as a gimmick. "Each leg is hand-carved. No two are alike," adds Rowan. In fact, the owners have taken great pains not to discriminate against anyone. The table legs come in all colors: black, white and yellow.

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

CHECK OFF

For everything my wife has talents
Except to make a checkbook balance.
It's not addition or subtraction
That causes such dissatisfaction,
It's leaving out where money's gone to;
That is, in stubs, what checks were drawn to
And what amount—which fact not known
Makes balancing quite hard, I own.

So till the bank's next statement comes
There's naught to do but twiddle thumbs.
And here's what chiefly rankles, sours:
The checkbook's not my wife's. It's ours.

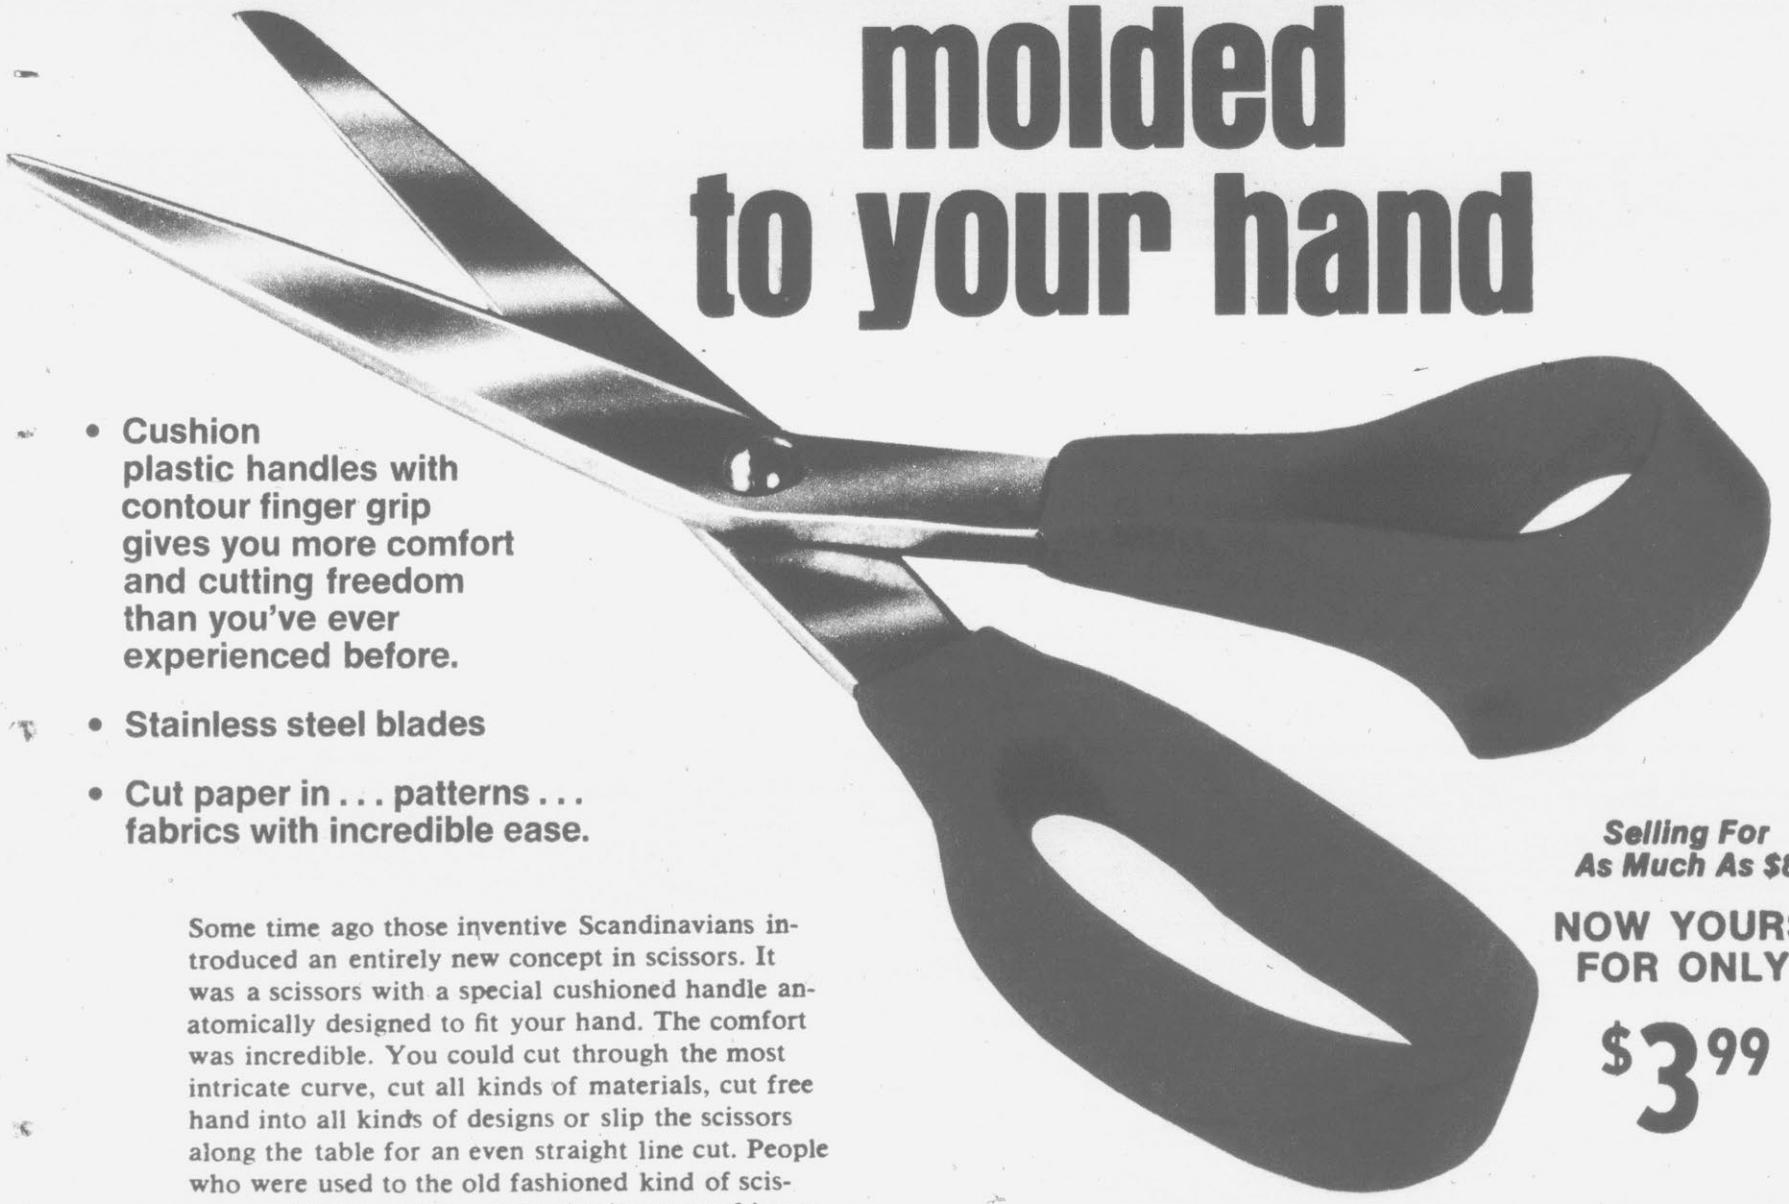
Famous Scandinavian Design Scissors

The Scissors that are molded to your hand



- Cushion plastic handles with contour finger grip gives you more comfort and cutting freedom than you've ever experienced before.
- Stainless steel blades
- Cut paper in . . . patterns . . . fabrics with incredible ease.

Some time ago those inventive Scandinavians introduced an entirely new concept in scissors. It was a scissors with a special cushioned handle anatomically designed to fit your hand. The comfort was incredible. You could cut through the most intricate curve, cut all kinds of materials, cut free hand into all kinds of designs or slip the scissors along the table for an even straight line cut. People who were used to the old fashioned kind of scissors couldn't imagine a pair of scissors working so efficiently and so effortlessly as this new design. Seamstresses and anyone who needed them knew they had discovered a secret. But originally these scissors cost much, much more. In fact, even today you can find this design selling for $8.00 or more in fine stores. But now we've created this same design at a fantastically low price. "Shear Joy"! It's got the familiar orange, cushion soft, plastic handle, the stainless steel blades, weighs only 3 ounces, and they're 8¼" long. If you thought there was nothing glamorous about a pair of scissors then wait until you've tried these. At this new low price you can't afford to be without them. Order now. If they are not shear joy, simply return for full money back.
