

Supreme Court Rules, 8-0, Nixon Must Surrender Subpoenaed Tapes, Papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled 8 to 0 today that President Nixon must surrender White House tapes and papers wanted in connection with the Watergate cover-up trial.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, a Nixon appointee, delivered the opinion of the court. "We conclude that when the ground for asserting privilege as to subpoenaed materials sought for use in a criminal trial is based only on the generalized interest in confidentiality, it cannot prevail over the fundamental demands of due process of law in the fair administration of criminal justice," Burger said.

It was not immediately clear how the President would respond to the court's ruling.

In arguments before the court, his lawyer, James D. St. Clair, said the case was "being submitted to this court for its guidance and judgment with respect to the law."

"The President, on the other hand, has his obligations under the Constitution," St. Clair said.

President Nixon promised during a similar dispute with Jaworski's predecessor, Archibald Cox, that he would comply with a definitive ruling of the Supreme Court on whether he had to turn over tapes sought by Cox.

That case never reached the Supreme Court, however, and Nixon and other White House spokesmen have consistently refused to repeat that pledge in the dispute with Jaworski.

At a news conference Monday night, St. Clair again declined under repeated questioning to say whether Nixon would obey a Supreme Court order in the case.

The 8-0 ruling appeared to be about as strong a statement as the court could have made on the subject.

After delivering the opinion, the court recessed until 10 a.m. on Thursday.

Michael Rodak Jr., the clerk of the court, said a decision was expected at that time on an appeal from a lower court order calling for busing of pupils across school district lines for purposes of racial integration in the Detroit area.

The court ruled that the dispute between the President and Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski was subject to determination in the courts, contrary to Nixon's assertion that it was not on grounds it was a dispute within the executive branch.

"It is theoretically possible for the attorney general to amend or revoke the regulation defining the special prosecutor's authority," Burger wrote. "But he has not done so. So long as this regulation remains in force the executive branch is bound by it."

Justice William H. Rehnquist, a Nixon appointee and former assistant attorney general under John N. Mitchell did not participate in the case.

Mitchell is one of the defendants in the Watergate cover-up trial scheduled for this fall, Jaworski wants the tapes as evidence in that trial.

The Supreme Court upheld U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica's finding that "the judiciary, not the President, was the final arbiter of a claim of executive privilege."

The Supreme Court declined to rule on an additional question raised by the President, whether the Watergate grand jury exceeded its authority in naming him as an unindicted co-conspirator in the Watergate cover-up. The court said it had "imprudently granted" the President's petition that it decide this issue, meaning it made a mistake in hearing arguments on the question in the first place.

The court held that Sirica's order was subject to appeal, although normally in such cases an appeal is not in order until the person to whom the subpoena has been addressed has declined to comply with it and has been cited for contempt.

"The issue whether a President can be cited for contempt could itself engender protracted litigation and would further delay both review on the merits of his claim of privilege and the ultimate termination of the underlying criminal action for which his evidence is sought," said Burger.

The Chief Justice read the opinion in full from the bench in a steady, unemotional voice.

Normally only a summary of an opinion is read, but a source close to the justices said Justice William O. Douglas insisted that this opinion be read in full.

A line of spectators began forming around 6:20 a.m., hoping for admission to the session. By 10 a.m., an hour before the justices were scheduled to convene on the bench, the line stretched down the Supreme Court steps and around the corner of the block. The court has about 300 seats for spectators.

Jaworski and a deputy, Philip A. Lacovara, arrived about 20 minutes before the justices convened.

Weyerhaeuser To Build Plant In Lee

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Weyerhaeuser Co. announced plans today for a $17 million wood products plant at Colon in Lee County near Sanford. The plant will be part of a $225 million expansion project in North Carolina.

Weyerhaeuser is the world's largest manufacturer of timber products, with sales last year of approximately $2.3 billion. The company also is in other industries, including homebuilding in Charlotte and Greensboro through its Westminster subsidiary.

In early 1973, Weyerhaeuser announced a three-year, $100 million expansion program in North Carolina, but Gov. Jim Holshouser told a news conference this morning the expansion has been increased to $225 million.

Holshouser said the expansion would occur primarily in non metropolitan areas of the state, where the need for goods jobs is more pressing.

The expansion will create about 750 new jobs, Holshouser said.

The wood products complex in Lee County will provide about 80 jobs in that area. The facility will include two sawmills and a large, sophisticated raw materials sorting and merchandising operation.

The remainder of the expansion will be in the company's large complex near Plymouth.

Holshouser said the expansion was significant because "these investments are designed to make even more efficient use of North Carolina's wood resources."

He said Weyerhaeuser's environmental controls are designed to comply fully with federal and state regulations protecting air and water quality.

Approximately $23 million will be spent on the construction of a recovery boiler to reduce air pollution and recover spent pulping chemicals at Plymouth.

Holshouser noted that of 44 million tree seedlings planted in North Carolina last year, Weyerhaeuser planted 27 million of them.

Weyerhaeuser is based in Washington state.

LOAN-GETTING SEEMS DIFFICULT

I'm 18, single, and working every day, and I want to buy a car. Everywhere I go, they say they don't make loans to single people my age and ask if I have someone to sign for me. My parents are dead and there is no one else. Besides, I feel my age and marital status shouldn't go against me. D.S.

Hotline discussed your situation with Bill Baggett of Wachovia Bank's loan division. He said if the car payment to which you want to commit yourself isn't too far out of line with your income and if your record of repayment is clear so far, he doesn't think you should have any trouble getting your loan. A good rule of thumb, he said, is that you have some down payment saved and that your anticipated monthly car payment not be more than one week's salary. We wish you good luck.

RESTROOM NO LONGER FOR CUSTOMERS

Bailey's Grill at Black Jack has stopped letting customers use its rest room. They keep it locked and say it is for the use of employees only. Is it legal for an establishment that sells food to not let the customers use the rest room? K.P.

A spokesman for the grill says it is regrettable, but the rest room had to be closed to everyone but employees after use of it was abused by a handful of customers.

The grill is classified, not as a restaurant, but as a food stand, so it is not required to provide rest rooms for customers, according to Sanitarian Callie Stocks of the Pitt County Community Health Department's Environmental Health Division. A food stand, he said, is defined in State Health Law as an establishment that prepares and hands out food in single service containers. No seating, reusable dishes, rest rooms or other conveniences for customers are required.

KIT NEVER RECEIVED

On April 21 I ordered a hook rug kit from an address listed on the side of a Kleenex Tissue box. I mailed a check for $9.95 to the company in St. Paul, Minn., but have not heard anything else from the merchandise. Mrs. F.J.

You should have received the kit by now. The Kimberly Clark Co., which produces Kleenex tissues, told Hotline to call Spotts International, the company responsible for the rug offer. Spotts customer relations spokesman took your name and address and found out that the rug had been mailed June 14 but had been returned. They promised to mail your order again to the address you provided.

President's Hopes Of Avoiding Impeachment Suffer New Setback

By JOHN BECKLER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's hopes of avoiding impeachment have suffered a setback on the eve of the House Judiciary Committee's historic debate today.

Rep. Lawrence J. Hogan, a conservative and one of those committee Republicans counted on to oppose impeachment, announced Tuesday he supports impeachment.

Hogan is the first committee Republican to announce he will vote for impeachment. His decision touched off open talk of impeachment in the Republican cloak room.

The debate, beginning at 7:30 p.m. EDT, will be carried nationally on television and radio. A vote on whether to recommend impeachment is expected by Friday or Saturday.

Hogan's announcement triggered a prediction by one GOP member that as many as seven of the 17 committee Republicans may end up calling for Nixon's impeachment.

Converted Car To Use Propane Gas As A Fuel

SOLUTION FOR AIR POLLUTION?—At least that is what Pete Hibbard, an Environmental Health major at ECU had in mind when he converted his car to run on clean burning and pollution-free propane fuel. (ECU News Bureau Photo)

By GEORGE THREEWITTS

ECU News Bureau
Using spare parts and a $33 propane conversion kit, Pete Hibbard, an East Carolina University student from Edenton, has almost eliminated the smelly and lethal fumes that once poured from his car's exhaust pipe. Propane is a non polluting by-product of crude petroleum and natural gas. When used in an automobile it decreases the amount of deadly carbon monoxide by at least 90 per cent. Also the overall maintenance is much less because propane burns cleaner, there by reducing the buildup of carbon on the engine's valves and spark plugs.

But the unique thing about Hibbard's experiment is that it cost only about $50 com- (Continued on page 3)

Civilian Premier Of Greece Sworn

By the Associated Press
Constantine Caramanlis took office as premier of Greece today after the Cyprus crisis toppled the country's seven-year-old military dictatorship. Early congratulations came from Turkey where Premier Bulent Ecevit described Caramanlis as "an experienced statesman who had shown the value he places on Turkish-Greek friendship during his previous service."

Turkey's invasion of Cyprus on Saturday, following a coup by the Greek-led national guard, brought on the fall of the Greek government and recall of Caramanlis from 11 years of self-imposed exile. He replaced resigned Premier Adamantios Androustopoulos.

On Cyprus, newly named President Glafcos Clerides said the return of President Makarios, ousted in the now collapsed coup, "is a question for the people of Cyprus."

Hunting Cheaper Tobacco

MOULTRIE, Ga. (AP) — Tobacco farmers who have been complaining about prices for their crop which they say are too low got some more bad news Tuesday night when they were told that German imports likely will decline.

Farmers in the Georgia-Florida belt were told last year that German imports were expected to show an increase this year.

"The export officials must have given you a tall story," Pieter Bergen, senior economic specialist in the American consulate at Bremen, Germany, told a gathering of farmers here.

Bergen told farmers and business men on a farm tour here that the use of Type 14 tobacco—the type grown in the Georgia-Florida flue-cured belt—actually is declining in Germany because of a price-squeeze.

About 70 per cent of the Type 14 tobacco is grown for export, and in the past about 40 per cent of this has been sold to Germany cigarette manufacturers.

Bergen said American tobacco growers should be careful not to price themselves out of the German market.

He said that because of a high tax imposed on German manufactured cigarettes in 1972, the tobacco companies there are looking for cheaper tobacco from the Orient and other parts of the world.

Greenville Mart Average Dipped

Sales on the Greenville

Tobacco Market topped the one million pound mark Tuesday but the market average dipped from Monday's opening day figure.

The local market sold 1,239,026 pounds yesterday for $1,023,059 in averaging $82.57 per hundred pounds. The market average on Monday was $83.45 although both poundage and money was below Tuesday's allocation.

The Greenville average, although down from Monday, did top the overall belt average which dropped from an opening day $82.75 to $81.93.

Two of the large Eastern Belt markets fell below $80 per hundred yesterday as Rocky Mount posted an average of $78.52 and Kinston reported a $79.12 day.

With 11 of the 17 eastern markets holding sales on Tuesday, Smithfield topped the belt with an average of $84.61 while Clinton had $83.53, Goldsboro $83.48, and Wilson $83.72.

Robersonville opened sales for the season yesterday and posted an average of $81.46 on sales of 388,187 pounds for $316,217.

The Tobacco Market News Service in Raleigh reported that Stabilization receipts were down from Monday and totaled 1,340,111 pounds or some 18.1 per cent of total sales.

The following tabulation, compiled by the News Service, shows the results of Belt activities on Tuesday.

Clothes The Individual Can Appreciate

TAKE A STROLL—For the individual with a mind of her own in clothing, a polyester long skirt and jacket, left, is perfect for spring and summer "special events." Now that there is such a shortage in natural wool and linen, here is a polyester fiber that looks as real as any of the naturals: A pant suit with matching hat, center, is the old look in new material. The positive-negative polka dot pant suit, right, in polyester will be one of this spring and summer's most popular looks. An extra plus, it won't wrinkle at all and is machine washable and packable. (Fashions by Betsey Johnson and Pat Sandler for Alley Cat.)

Advice For The Daughter-In-Law

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: If a man works hard all day, is he supposed to help his wife with the housework? And even pack his own lunch pail?

The wife works, too, but it's light office work. My new daughter-in-law won't even clean her oven. She says it's a man's job. They've been married only ten months and already their apartment looks like something the cat dragged in. You can't find a clean spot to sit on.

I've been married for 32 years and my husband never helped me with the housework.

I think a man should take care of the yard, carry out the garbage and maybe paint a little, but the housework, cooking and kids are the wife's department.

Send me some good advice that I can send to my new daughter-in-law. She needs it.

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: Sorry, but I send advice only to those who ask for it. (It's a good policy. I recommend it.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 54, and I am a few years older. He used to be such a refined and gentle man, but lately, he'll fly into a rage for no apparent reason, storming around the house and shouting so the whole neighborhood can hear him. He has even broken furniture and thrown it out the back door in a fit of anger!

He gets into fights with waitresses and salespeople and shouts obscenities at pedestrians and other automobile drivers. Almost every time we walk on the street he gets into a fight with a stranger. His language is foul and, Abby, this man never even used to swear! If I try not talking to him, he gets mad at me for giving him the "silent treatment."

He's been seeing a skin doctor about a rash which seems to be getting progressively worse. What could be wrong with him? Please tell me what to do. I don't know how much more I can take.

END OF ROPE

DEAR END: Your husband's trouble is more than skin-deep. Tell his doctor what you have told me. When a man becomes suddenly hostile, profane and violent, a psychiatrist should be consulted.

DEAR ABBY: I have been a widow for 12 years. I have continued to call myself Mrs. William Smith.

A friend of mine recently told me that this is incorrect; that since there is no longer a William Smith, neither is there a Mrs. William Smith, and I should call myself Mrs. Isabel Smith. Will you kindly set me straight? CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: Your friend needs to be set straight. When you took William's name, you took it for as you as YOU lived (unless you took another husband); not for as long as WILLIAM lived. Socially, you are still Mrs. William Smith. When it comes to signing legal documents, consult your lawyer.

CONFIDENTIAL TO V.S.: Breeding? I like what Jonathan Swift has to say about it: "Good manners is the art of making those people easy with whom we converse. Whoever makes the fewest people uneasy, is the best bred in the company."

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Cal. 90212 for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

will your meter reader, your banker, your preacher, doctor, lawyer or dentist—if they do it. You'll just have to look closely at their curly hair and figure out for yourself: Does he or does he not get permanents in beauty salons—or behind closed doors at home?

In the world of beautifying in many places it's so common for men to get perms that the men no longer have them done on the sly. The females in the salons hardly notice.

The men had to do something with their longer hair, didn't they? When it became unmanageable. But that's not the only reason for their trips to the beauty salons for permanent waves.

New York stylist Paul Mitchell of a place called Superhair says he does about 50 permanents a week on men. He attributes the upsurge in men's perms to the Women's Liberation Movement. He says:

"Guys are more adventurous since women's lib and think if a chick can do it, so can I. Yet, you won't find too many guys admitting their hair's natural wave comes from a perm."

Some men seek out permanent waves to make their hair look thicker. The permanents also help an oil condition.

Mitchell said since most men have naturally oily scalps, the perm lifts the hair off the scalp so it doesn't get greasy-looking as fast.

The perm trend is nationwide, according to Rod Harmon, vice president of Crimpers Salons—in Chicago, Boston, New York City, White Plains, N.Y.

He estimates for the last year something like 12 per cent of the perms are for men. The percentage is on the way up.

The greatest number of male customers are found in the Boston salon—a fact Harmon attributed to the big student population there. Harvard and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in adjacent Cambridge and all those Boston schools.

A major provider of beauty shop supplies, Helene Curtis in Chicago, for the first time is including "techniques for curling men's hair" in its seminars for beauty operators.

A new method in permanent waving gives men more natural-looking effects. One of these is UniPerm, a system that utilizes heat to accomplish its curling chores—similar to the idea of electric rollers.

The system's processed wheat does the curling in just six minutes. A man doesn't need to spend a lot of time.

How much does it cost? At Crimpers in New York, including its Greenwich Village shop, the usual price is $15—that's for a perm alone. Cutting and styling costs more.

And then—if a fellow wants a manicure, a pedicure and a dye or a bleach job, plus a facial and conditioner on his rough elbows, well, the bill goes up and up.

Plus tip.

Firing Stirred Sugg's Wrath

RALEIGH (AP)—State Democratic Party Chairman James R. Sugg has called the dismissal of state Personnel Director Claude Caldwell "an obvious exercise in partisan politics."

In a letter Tuesday to Gov. Jim Holshouser, Sugg said, "Your action in firing professional administrator Claude Caldwell is viewed by many as the opening gun in a pending political blood bath in the ranks of state employees designed to frighten and divide them."

Bruce A. Lentz, who became state Secretary of Administration July 1, announced Friday he was dismissing Caldwell, a Democrat.

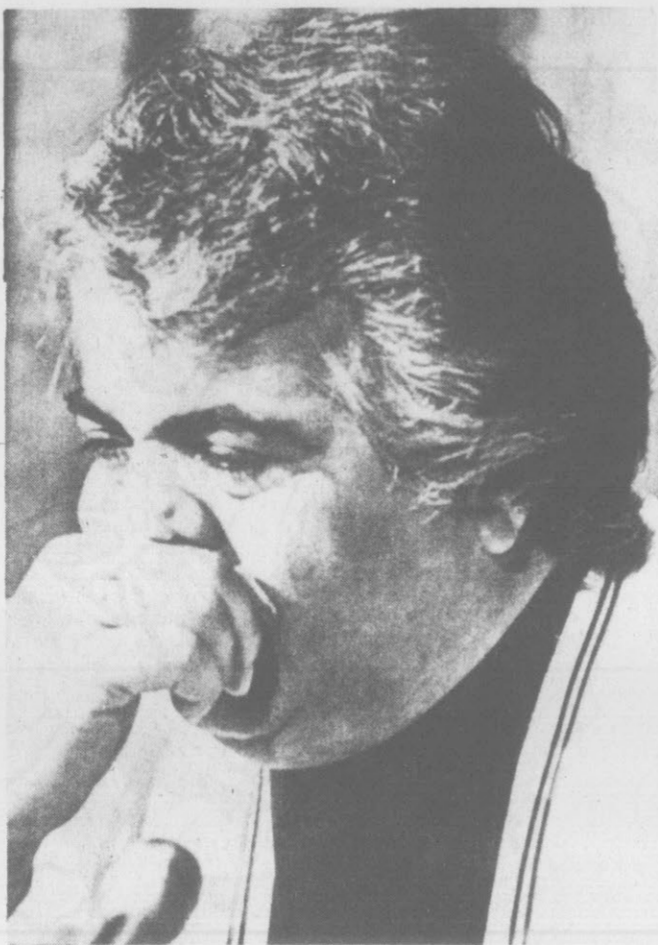

Caldwell is being replaced by Republican Alfred B. Boyles, who was personnel director for the Department of Transportation while Lentz was transportation secretary.

Sugg asked the governor for reassurance that no employee who is competent and who follows the law regarding political activity by state employees be made to feel threatened by "the Gene Anderson wing of the Republican party."

Anderson is Holshouser's top aide.

"You—not Gene Anderson—were elected to the state's highest executive office," Sugg's letter said. "I call upon you to exert positive responsible leadership and restore effective control of appointive offices."

Lentz aroused controversy as transportation secretary by a series of department firings which critics said were politically motivated.

pared to nearly $400 that it would normally cost for such conversions.

"I read an article about fuel conversion in 'Whole Earth Catalog' (an environmental magazine) and bought a special kit for the job," Hibbard said. The converter, tank and a few extra parts totaled about $50.

He attached the device to his 1964 Ford convertible enabling the car, at the flip of a switch, to run on either propane or conventional gasoline. The five gallon propane tank is stashed on the back seat.

Gas mileage with propane is about the same as with conventional gasoline, although the price of propane could vary from as much as 70 to 80 cents a gallon in North Carolina to as little as 15 cents a gallon in Texas.

Hibbard has been working on his project this summer and has completed requirements for a degree in the newly accredited Department of Environmental Health in East Carolina University's School of Allied Health and Social Professions. The ECU Environmental Health program is only the seventh such undergraduate program in the United States to receive full professional accreditation by the National Accreditation Council and the National Environmental Health Association.

Hibbard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren L. Hibbard of Edenton, N.C.

His interest in fuels developed during the gasoline crisis last winter. He began reading about propane, methane and butane gases and because propane was non polluting and the most readily available, he selected it for his project.

But like many environmentalists, Hibbard believes that methane has the most potential as a future fuel source, and he would like to see more research done with it.

Unlike propane and butane which come from petroleum, methane is created by decomposing organic matter. It can be obtained by placing waste material into airtight tanks and drawing off the resulting gases.

For example, a farmer with the right apparatus could heat his home, run his tractor and his automobile with the methane gas produced by his farm animal manures. And the material left after the gas is expelled would still provide a relatively clean and odorless fertilizer.

Hibbard currently considering several job possibilities in the environmental health field, hopes to someday experiment with methane gas, which he believes is an even more abundant fuel source.

Robersonville Sees $81.46 Opening Day

ROBERSONVILLE—Three warehouses in Robersonville sold a total of 388,187 pounds of tobacco for $316,217 on Tuesday, opening day for the Robersonville market.

Prices averaged 81.46 cents per pound, "about what was expected," warehouseman Jack Sharp said. "The average is about what farmers thought they'd get," Sharp added, "because everybody of course knew about lower-than-hoped-for prices on local markets that had opened earlier."

Sharp said "While farmers are not by any means elated over prices, they have become reconciled to the lower prices that primings or lugs are bringing."

The first sale on Robersonville's opening day was at the Red Front Warehouse, with Hardee's and Big Gem Warehouses having second and third sales.

The 388,000 pounds sold, Sharp said, "is short of the 413,000 pounds we're allowed to sell in one day" He said he did not feel this indicated any significant hold-back on the part of farmers. "We're getting in enough tobacco to just about fill our floors for Thursdays sale," he commented, "and we're not pushing to try to get the limit. There's no need to. Most farmers seem to want to go ahead and get their tobacco on the floor rather than to wait."

A young walrus will eat approximately 100 pounds of fish daily.

Robersonville shares with Williamston one set of buyers and will normally have sales every other day during the market season.

Ex-Trooper Has Joined Faculty

James M. Campbell has joined the faculty of the Department of Social Work and Correctional Services, School of Allied Health and Social Professions, at East Carolina University.

Dr. John R. Ball, department chairman, announced Campbell's appointment as an assistant professor teaching in social work and corrections with emphasis in the area of law enforcement.

Campbell, a 1973 graduate of ECU in Corrections, holds a master's degree in Criminal Justice Education from Eastern Kentucky University. Campbell previously served five years as a member of the North Carolina State Highway Patrol. He also served four years as an inspector in the License & Theft Division, N.C. Department of Motor Vehicles. While at Eastern Kentucky University, he served as a Criminal Justice Fellow, School of Law Enforcement, and as a part-time instructor for Kentucky Bureau of Training.

News Chains Plan Merge

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The board of directors of Knight Newspapers Inc. has unanimously approved a preliminary agreement to merge with Ridder Publications Inc., a merger that would create the largest American newspaper group in terms of circulation.

The new group would have full or part ownership of 35 newspapers with a combined daily circulation of about 3.6 million.

Gannett Newspapers, with 54 newspapers and a circulation of 2.3 million, would remain the largest group in number of papers.

Knight Newspaper directors approved the preliminary merger agreement after a meeting with Ridder Publications officers in Akron. Announcement of the approval was made here. Ridder's director had already approved the preliminary agreement.

The name of Knight Newspapers Inc. will be changed to Knight-Ridder Newspapers Inc. The company will be based in Miami.

Shareholders of both companies must ratify the proposal.

Inflation Undercut The Prices

Tobacco sales opened Monday on the big Eastern Belt with averages not quite as high as last year's opening, but still about as expected in view of earlier prices on the Border Belt.

The Eastern Belt posted an opening day average of $82.75, with 13 of the 17 markets reported. Greenville's average for the day was $83.45. Farmville had an average of $83.36, while Williamston's average was $82.99.

Only a few years back these would have been considered fantastic averages for opening day's sales, when the offerings usually consist of lugs and low grade tobacco. In those few years, though, the costs of growing and housing a tobacco crop have shot upward at an unprecedented rate. Inflationary costs this year, alone, have exceeded anything the tobacco farmer has ever known.

Thus the fact that opening averages this year were under those of last year's opening nags at the tobacco producer. Many experts are optimistically predicting dramatic rises in prices as better tobacco appears on the warehouse floors and buying competition increases. Without a doubt there will be an increase in the daily averages as the better tobacco is sold. What is going to be important to the grower though, is whether the grade-for-grade prices of this year exceed those of last year.

Things apparently didn't go too badly on the opening day of sales. It was an early opening and an entirely new selling system but the sales proceeded in an orderly fashion.

We are optimistic that there will be higher prices ahead on the Eastern Belt, and we like to feel that once the selling season is completed the tobacco farmer will come out with a profit.

Work Will Recall Its Pitt County Origins

An ancient Pitt County cypress tree will be carved into a likeness of Sir Walter Raleigh, the English explorer.

The sculptor R.K. Harniman will carve the likeness from a six-ton section of the 450-year-old tree which was given by Weyerhaeuser Company from the All Pines section near Bethel.

The work will go on in North Hills Shopping Center in Raleigh and the cypress wood will always recall its Pitt County origins.

A New Despair Felt In Israel

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

TEL AVIV—Deep depression over the future has replaced the thin layer of hope here that followed Israel's troop disengagement agreements with Egypt and Syria, leading to top-level private forecasts of another war within six months—and massive despair.

Referring to Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's shuttle diplomacy last spring, one of Israel's highest officials told us with a hint of deprecation: "We appreciate what he did in testing the willingness of the Arabs to negotiate. We would not forgive ourselves if we had not tested. But now everything is going the wrong direction."

In short, at the highest levels of Israel's new-generation government of Prime Minister Itzhak Rabin, it is now taken as gospel that Egypt, instead of concentrating with Israel on a settlement of the Sinai, is trying to force the West Bank issue on Israel.

Egypt's President Anwar Sadat is accused of conspiring with Jordan's King Hussein and Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat to compel Israel to come to immediate grips with the Palestinian issue, regarded by Israel as insoluble at this time. Israel wants to "satisfy itself" that the Arabs really want peace—with implicit recognition of Israel as a permanent fixture in the Middle East—before dealing with the explosive Palestine-West Bank question. Egypt holds the key to that door, as the Israelis see it.

A basic problem, as perceived from this embattled land where the world is viewed through a different lens, is that the West Bank cannot be settled by the salami tactics of successive Israeli withdrawals from the Jordan River. A heavily populated area, the West Bank has no definable military lines. Rabin told us that Israeli withdrawal, if ever, can only come in a single package and only after the prime minister submits his eventual withdrawal plan for specific approval by Israeli voters.

Nevertheless, in anticipation of heavy American pressure, Rabin is now studying this alternative: turning over to Jordan various administrative functions in such West Bank cities as Jericho, close to the Jordan River, as a substitute for territorial with drawals.

That is not close to Hussein's demand for an immediate five-mile Israeli pullback from the Jordan River (well beyond the 16 or more Israeli military outposts along the river) as a downpayment for eventual final settlement.

But Rabin, backed solidly by hawk Shimon Peres, the new defense minister, will not even consider dismantling Israel's military grip on the West Bank until all the Arabs, including Arafat, implicitly recognize Israel's permanent existence.

Despite this standpat front in Israel, the beginnings of an emotional and serious public debate over strategy calling for new and even revolutionary tactics are cracking the surface.

Arie Lova Eliav, a dovish member of parliament, and Prof. Amnon Rubenstein, a noted polemicist published a petition 10 days ago demanding "active, positive and speedy steps" by the government toward new approaches to "the most urgent problem in Israel today"—the Palestine question. "Dodging the problem does not remove it," they said, adding: "We cannot rely on the Americans; we should not rely on the Americans."

What gives this document special importance were the other signatories: three members of the right-wing Likud party, three from the National Religious (Greater Israel) party, five members of the ruling Labor party and an assortment of intellectuals.

One senior member of Rabin's cabinet ridiculed the petition as "naive," and Peres told us the mood throughout Israel is "more to the right"—that is, more hawkish and more intransigent—today than before the Yom Kippur war. Moreover, Peres talks bluntly about his concern over military buildups in Syria and Iraq, fed by Soviet weapons, and the fear that if the present deadlock leads to a new war, Jordan may not stay out as it did last October.

Some of this gloom may be tailored for the American audience, particularly the U.S. Congress with its pro-Israeli bias, and some may be for bargaining purposes with the Arabs in progressively harder negotiations ahead.

Yet, it symbolizes the fact that most of the new cabinet, though far more flexible than Golda Meir's government, (Continued on Page 5)

The Thrill Will Be Gone

WASHINGTON—Safeway Stores has just announced a new pricing policy. It says it will only stamp one price on a box or can of food and will not change the price while it's on the shelves.

While some people consider this a breakthrough in supermarket shopping, there are others who feel this will take the thrill out of grocery buying.

My friend Milton Wallach was highly critical of the Safeway proposal. "The thing I liked about going to a supermarket is that it was like going to a casino in Las Vegas. The big gamble was to get out of the store before they changed the price on you. You only had a half-hour to do it and the excitement for me was running down the aisles pushing my cart, with a stockboy chasing after me trying to stamp my goods with a new price before I got to the checkout counter."

Wallach, who has spent a lot of time in supermarkets, said that in recent months there have been so many prices on food packages you could hardly read the labels.

"I would go into the store and ask the clerk, 'Where are the baked beans you advertised for 40 cents?' He would reply, 'Oh those must be the ones we raised to 55 cents this morning. They were marked down from 62 cents, 57 cents and 45 cents last week. You better get them right away because I think they're going up to 70 cents in 10 minutes.'"

ART BUCHWALD

In his observation Wallach discovered that in every supermarket the manager makes his own decision on what to charge for an item. "I was in one store and I saw a box of crackers with 65 cents stamped on them.

"The manager happened to walk by and saw one of his clerks perspiring. 'Is it hot out?' he asked the boy.

"It's 92 degrees," the clerk replied. "So the manager took out a rubber stamp and marked 92 cents on the crackers.

"At another store the manager kept a racing form at the counter. I had a package of meat in my basket marked $2.80. He stamped it $4.50 and I asked him why. 'That's what the winner in the 5th race at Aqueduct paid yesterday.'"

Every store, says Wallach, has a different method of raising prices. "Some send their stockboys down the aisles every 15 minutes stamping everything they can see. Others have their stampers waiting at key points and as soon as you pass they start stamping everything in your basket. A few get carried away. In one (Continued on page 5)

Detente Avoids Crisis

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

AP Special Correspondent
The smoke won't clear for a while yet, but evidently the Soviet-American detente has paid new dividends.

When a complete assessment can be made, the extent to which the Kremlin resisted temptation to use the Greek-Turkish clash over Cyprus will serve as a measure of how importantly Soviet-American relations now figure in Moscow's plans.

There was a marked lack of the Soviet bombast that accompanied virtually every other crisis that could be regarded as imperiling peace. There was no Soviet rocket-rattling this time.

This cautious approach was the more noteworthy because the Kremlin has always displayed a flair for low-risk gambling in that particular Mediterranean area.

Greece and Turkey constitute a vastly important pivot whose future involves the destiny of the whole Middle East, with all the meaning that region has for the Western world.

The two are of even more critical importance in today's picture than just after World War II, when the strategic and volatile Balkans, Europe's underbelly, were the apple of Joseph Stalin's always calculating eye.

Severely shaken by a Soviet-backed Communist rebellion, Greece by 1947 was in danger of collapse. Turkey was tottering on the edge of economic disaster. Stalin, gambling to win a great deal at relatively small risk, applied heavy military and diplomatic pressure against both nations.

Two events stopped Stalin. First, the Truman Doctrine warned that the United States would resist attempts to subjugate nations by outside pressure or support of armed minorities, and sent massive aid to Greece and Turkey. Second, Communist Yugoslavia's break with the Soviet Bloc closed a border sanctuary and supply channel to the Greek Communist guerrillas.

Today, with all the volatility of the Middle East and the greater importance than ever of its oil, the Kremlin may have had to agonize over whether to yield to temptation. But it was as much on notice from the United States this time as it had been in Stalin's day. To attempt to meddle too directly could have meant gambling with carefully laid plans for internal Soviet development that depend on the detente.

The detente that was born in the 1970s has been a fragile creation that needed to be handled with care. It was shaken in 1972 when the United States mined Haiphong harbor and bombed Hanoi just before President Nixon's first summit visit to Moscow.

It was severely strained again last fall when the United States put its troops around the world on the alert and said the Russians were threatening to land troops in Egypt.

In both cases the Kremlin opted for preserving detente and keeping alive its promise of substantial economic benefits for the Soviet Union.

In this Cyprus crisis, Moscow again seemed sorely tempted. It offered help to Turkey, decreed a limited military alert and blamed "certain circles, in NATO" for the explosion. Yet the evidence seems to be that Moscow argued itself out of getting too obstructive and by and large kept hands off.

Tick Bite Can Be Dangerous

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—When Don Taylor and his family took a walk in the woods surrounding their Bayleaf section home north of Raleigh recently, little did he think he would be scurrying through his files to locate an old news release mailed out by the state's Department of Human Resources—Taylor's employer.

Taylor, chief of the child advocacy program, receives copies of news releases mailed out, as do many state employees in addition to news outlets across the state.

Back in mid-April, Clay Williams, publicist for the health division of Human Resources, had sent out a routine report on the first reported cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever in North Carolina.

In that release, Williams outlined a description of the ticks which can cause the disease, noted that they hang out in woody, brushy areas, and presented details of the symptoms.

The ticks are tiny brown or copper-colored critters about the size of a capital O in a newspaper story. They are ringed by scraggly little legs sticking straight out to the sides, and a pincer-like head for digging in. When gorged with blood, they swell up like a tiny brown balloon.

Two Fatal

So far this year there have been 55 cases in the state, two of those fatal (Wake and Rutherford counties); and of 141 total in 1973, six were fatal.

Taylor said he got a copy, scanned it, decided it might be of interest to his agency since he deals with children—the most likely prospects for tick bites—then filed the release.

Nearly three months later, here is what happened as Taylor describes it:

"My four kids, my wife Lanelle, and I went hiking, and when we got back we discovered some ticks on our clothing, so we searched each other, found a few, and thought no more of it.

"A couple of days later my wife remarked offhandedly that she had found another tick; scratched it out of her hair.

"Then several days later, she began to complain of a headache and some mild fever, and the next day she continued to complain of that, and of just feeling poorly in general.

"That went on for another day, and suddenly we made a possible connection between the ticks and the symptoms of Rocky Mountain spotted fever," Taylor said.

He went to the office, pulled his copy of the news release, and took it home.

"We matched the symptoms—headache, fever, aching joints, and a pink rash showing up on the wrists, palms, and ankles. She had every one of those symptoms."

Early Treatment

A quick call to the family physician resulted in orders to go to the hospital emergency room immediately. Tests confirmed that Mrs. Taylor had Rocky Mountain spotted fever—a disease which is 50 per cent fatal unless caught early and treated properly.

Modern drugs clear the problem up readily, however, and that treatment plus the news release got credit from Taylor for keeping the fever from developing into trouble.

Looking back on the incident now, Taylor said the biggest problem in spotting and treating the disease is putting together the fact that a family member is sick—and ticks are all around.

"We normally just don't think it can happen in our family," he said.

The warm winter and wet summer have produced ideal conditions for ticks this year, and those who have been in the rural areas report an unusually bountiful crop of them.

Most of the 141 cases of the fever reported last year were from Piedmont sections of the state, with the leading counties being Mecklenburg, Cabarrus, Rowan, and Guilford.

The best prevention, experts say, is prompt removal of ticks before they get a chance to bite. Children are especially susceptible, and the ticks concentrate on scalp and ear areas.

It takes a little while for the ticks to find a desirable place on the body, bite painlessly into the skin, dig his head under, and begin to feed on blood.

Strength For Today

HOW IMPORTANT IS GENIUS?

Many of the world's greatest men have had relatively slight intellectual attainments. They were not geniuses, and they knew it and admitted it.

For example, Sir Isaac Newton said that he was able to make his epoch-making scientific discoveries not because of genius but because of unrelenting attention to any problem to which he gave his attention. Probably no man ever thought himself less of a genius than Abraham Lincoln. But he had the ability to see clearly the essence of the problems he faced and the good judgment to take the proper actions. George Washington was anything but a man of great talent. But he did combine sound common sense and an unusual fidelity of character. And he could recognize these qualities in others.

Jesus was once asked by his disciples to give them more faith. He replied in substance; You do not need more faith, what you need is to use the faith you have. It may be only the size of a mustard seed, but if you give it a chance to grow, it will achieve results.

Family Autos Survived Crisis

By JOHN CUNNING

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — It takes more than an energy crisis to make Americans permanently change their lifestyle.

That is one conclusion you might draw from a study by The Conference Board that shows plans to vacation by automobile are back to where they were before the energy scare, after a sharp decline for a few months.

Moreover, automobile sales now show signs of improving, if not immediately and sharply then gradually and over the longer term. Appliance sales seem to have survived the crisis. And the desire for air conditioning seems stronger than that for conservation.

But major changes do seem to have taken place in industry, the most significant probably the realization that enormous and costly amounts of energy are wasted every day.

For the first time ever, thousands of companies have conducted energy audits during the past few months. Energy managers were appointed, and many of them discovered fuel being used as if it cost nothing.

Recycling of heat has assumed great importance. The production facilities of many companies generate considerable heat that customarily is vented outside, while separate and expensive systems are used to heat offices.

Consultants report that on almost every assignment they find obvious misuses of energy, the result of practices dating to when fuel was considered cheap, available and of little consequence.

Combined with environmental pressures, the energy crisis also spurred recycling of some products.

For many decades it was assumed without question that "virgin is best," meaning that anything from wool to steel was better if made from new rather than reused raw materials.

While this might remain so in some instances, virgin raw materials don't always produce the best product for the price.

The Aluminum Association states, for example, that used aluminum can be recycled back to ingot for less than 5 per cent of the energy required in producing the original.

Another change that appears permanent is in the automobile industry, where millions of vehicles now are being produced and sold on the basis of fuel economy rather than style or luxury.

In fact, the most intense competition among car-makers is in the miles-per-gallon race, whereas just a few years ago the battle was in terms of horsepower.

What all this seems to say is that Americans understand anything when it's stated in terms of money. But if the Conference Board is correct, it doesn't seem to apply to vacations.

Celanese Corp. Hikes Dividend

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The Celanese Corp., fibers and chemical producer with facilities in Charlotte, has raised the common-stock dividend 20 cents a share, making it 70 cents a quarter. It did so Tuesday after reporting sales of $411 million dollars and income of $20 million in the second quarter, both the highest in its history.

Sales were 24 per cent higher than in the quarter year ago, and income 44 per cent higher.

Buchwald . . .

(Continued from page 4) store I was wearing white shoes and one of the lads had stamped $2.50, $4.50 and $6.50 on them. I complained to the manager who apologized and gave me a free can of white shoe cleaner which was marked 67 cents, 89 cents and $1.50."

Occasionally Wallach says there is a slip-up and he'll find a package that doesn't have a price on it at all. "Last week I was in a supermarket and I found a box of blueberries that some price stamper had missed. I asked the man at the counter how much it was. He didn't know and sent me to the manager. The manager called up his broker and said, 'How much is IBM selling for today?' The broker told him 212, and so the manager stamped -2.12 cents on the box."

Wallach feels Safeway's new one-price policy will discourage people from going to the supermarket. "Buying food is the biggest numbers game in the country," he said. "The average American still gets his kicks from trying to guess what a can of tuna is going to cost him. If you can buy a can of tomato paste 15 minutes before the price goes up on it, your day is made. You may win some and you may lose some, but at least you had fun playing the game."

"If Safeway takes the gamble out of grocery buying, many of its customers may decide the hell with it and go back into the stock market again."

This may be understandable, but the demand for a new strategy by the Eliav-Rubenstein group shows it is not universal. The hard fact remains: if Israel does not take risks for peace, another war is likely, making settlement even more remote than it is today no matter who emerges the winner.

Rattlesnakes will not attack a man unprovoked and will very often slither away rather than chance a human encounter.

Law Assists Archeology

By GEORGE GUDAUSKAS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Almost unnoticed, the nation's archeologists have been armed with what they consider an all-important new tool in making sure that "significant portions of America's past will be recorded for future generations."

The tool is in the form of a law known as the Archeological Conservation Act. It provides that up to one per cent of the funds earmarked for proposed federal projects — buildings, highways or dams, for example — may be earmarked to recover, protect and preserve threatened archeological treasures.

The measure was signed by President Nixon earlier this spring after it swept through Congress with overwhelming support.

Until now, the National Park Service, which largely oversees such projects, had to make a special request for funds with resulting delays and uncertainty. They also frequently depended on agreements worked out with project managers, often the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Archeologists said the old law, the 1960 Reservoir Act, was effective as far as it went but that it did not go far enough.

A prime mover in the campaign for the new law was Dr. Charles R. McGimsey III, director of the Arkansas Archeological Survey and president of the American Archeology Society. The bill was introduced by Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, and Rep. Charles E. Bennett, D-Fla.

McGimsey said the new approach "opens up whole new avenues of cooperation between federal agencies and archeologist" because the agencies will be able to comply more readily with new environmental standards and archeologists can become involved more quickly in planning such projects.

It provides, he said, "for a concerted and comprehensive method of seeing that the significant portions of America's past will be recorded for future generations." But he also warned his colleagues not to become too optimistic.

"Don't get the impression that archeology is going to be handed funds on a silver platter or that our work (to preserve important artifacts) is over," McGimsey said. "It has only begun."

While not actually forecasting problems with federal agencies involved, he said "We must help agencies discern that it is in the public good and ultimately to their good to accept their responsibilities under the act."

McGimsey said archeologists also must see to it that the money actually is provided since the law only authorizes such outlays.

"It should be a real challenge," he said.

Others in the field share his view. While praising the new law, Dr. Clifford Evans, Chairman of the Smithsonian Institution's Anthropology Department, said his department, the ultimate repository for most such materials, could be buried under them.

"If you're going to protect national patrimony, then you have to do something in terms of study and exhibition," Evans said, a point also made by McGimsey.

Evans said he favored having the states retain such materials, although the Smithsonian already has started planning how to do the job if the states don't. The plans, he said, include construction of a 10-story building in the Washington area.

Rex L. Wilson, consulting archeologist for the Park Service and chief of its interagency services, doesn't see the problem as being so serious. He said that anyone contracting to preserve such materials also would be expected to "make proper disposition" of them.

"This is inherent in this whole business," he said.

Wilson said it also was possible such materials could be studied and then reburied in sites clearly marked for future archeologists.

Jack R. Rudy, the Park Service's senior archeologist, said colleges and universities generally lack adequate storage area and must expand their facilities. But if they don't, he added, the Smithsonian by law is the ultimate repository for finds on federal property.

The Smithsonian's Dr. Evans said the Institution was aware of its responsibilities and had begun planning because it was aware that "the Park Service doesn't want to go into the museum business of storing collections."

Other problems also have cropped up under the new law. One is whether there are enough archeologists to go around. Rudy did not consider the question critical. But Wilson said there will be a need to "get more people involved in archeology" because of a growing emphasis on preserving the nation's past.

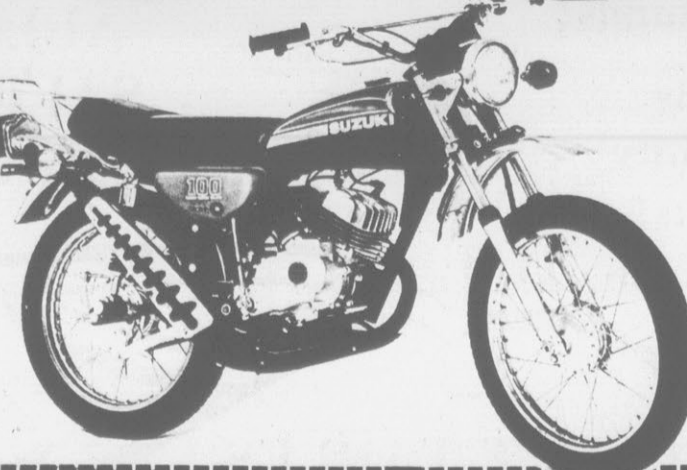

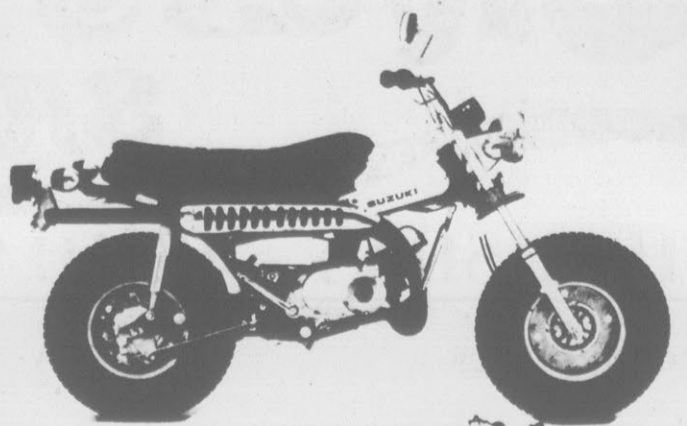

Evans said the new law will give salvage archeology "a permanency, a respect" that never had before. "If this bill hadn't gone through with the guaranteed funding," he continued, "the archeology (retrieval) would have been lost."

Report A Good Tourist Image

NEW YORK (UPI) — A recent Louis Harris Associates survey made on behalf of the Israeli Ministry of Tourism disclosed that 45 per cent of the American tourists to Israel in the past five years were Christians while 51 per cent were Jewish.

The survey also showed that Israel had a good image among potential tourists in all areas except security.

The results of the survey were disclosed at a lunch honoring Amram Zur, returning to Israel after almost six years as North American representative for the Ministry of Tourism, during which tourism from the U.S. exceeded one million persons and earnings from U.S. tourism was well above $300 million.

PLANS A TRIP—Howard Rice, 20, works on his sailboat, Karsey Gril, he hopes will serve him well on a proposed 30,000-mile round-the-world sailing adventure. He plans to shove off September 1. He will have only a radio receiver for time and weather reports and a beacon locator, a homing device should he encounter trouble. The craft is eighteen-foot-six inches long. (AP Wirephoto)

Aged Sycamore Is In The Way

By GEORGE BECKER RIVER EDGE, N.J. (UPI) — Twentieth-century traffic is about to drive right through a bark-encrusted piece of history in River Edge, N.J.

Sometime this month, after four years of planning and squabbling, the Bergen County Public Works Department is expected to chop down a sycamore tree whose shade has graced this area for the past 250 years. Stating the step is irrevocable, the county and borough say it must go to ease traffic tieups at one intersection.

However the tree's owner and the county historical society contend that traffic could be unsharped through an alternate plan that, most important, leaves the sycamore alone. And they say, if only more support had been voiced earlier, things might have been different. "But once the county has it in their mind" to do something, says Toni Nigito, whose husband owns the property upon which the tree still sets, "nobody can stop them, not even God."

Mrs. Nigito isn't about to climb the tree and block its destruction at this point in her struggle with engineers and freeholders. Her husband's been paid for the tree, which she says is worth $25,000, the property has been condemned, the plans have been drawn and the state has appropriated $100,000 for the project.

One day trucks and buses will be able to more easily make the turn at the intersection of Midland Avenue and Kinderkamack Road. Backups will be eased at the light.

Yet to Mrs. Nigito the central issue remains: must it be done at the expense of the tree, which has a six-foot diameter and stands along Midland Avenue, less than 10 feet from the curb?

Yes, say borough officials, who hasten to add that ecology hasn't been overlooked. The intersection will be widened, and a row of saplings will be planted so that, in the words of borough Clerk Angela Grillo, "in time the effect of what we're doing will be better."

"There will be more green, more shade, more oxygen-producing leaves than from the sycamore," she says.

Mrs. Nigito can barely conceal her outrage at the scheme, drawn up and approved she says over an alternate approach devised by a civil engineer hired by her husband that would move the light a bit as well as save the tree. To advance her cause, she telephoned the federal Environmental Protection Agency in Washington and was told it was powerless to intercede because the tree had not been designated an historical site. She says, moreover, the county board of freeholders agreed to hear her complaint, buy after arriving early for a meeting, she learned the session was already over.

Mrs. Nigito says her frustration increased when some 250 residents of a nearby community "stormed their borough hall and got results" over plants there to do away with an aged sycamore. In contrast, she says, few of River Edge's 12,800 residents joined her cause until it was too late.

"I did everything I could except stand on my head," Mrs. Nigito says. "Nobody came to my aid until the 'horse was out of the barn.'"

Plan Traffic Tie-Up

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — The state Highway Patrol expects to create traffic jams along Interstate Highways 40 and 85 in Guilford County this weekend as part of a crackdown to enforce the state's 55 miles per hour speed limit.

Sgt. R. G. Potts of the Guilford patrol division, said the program will work like this:

"We're going to drive two patrol cars abreast on a 10-mile stretch of I-85 and I-40 and somewhere within this 10-mile stretch we're going to see how far cars back up."

"If we see that they're backed up like we think they're going to be, we'll know that cars are running over 55 miles an hour to catch up."

Potts described the "traffic blocks" as one way to "retrain" drivers to obey the speed limits.

If that's not enough to serve as a speed reminder, he said that beginning Monday for seven days, the patrol will station a car every 10 miles on interstate system "with radar and VASCAR and be out there strictly to enforce this 55 mile per hour speed limit."

A spokesman for patrol headquarters in Raleigh said the program is not statewide, but a local effort by the Guilford patrol unit.

Potts said the crackdown is a result of motorists ignoring the new speed limit, particularly on the interstates.

"The colonel (E.W. Jones, patrol commander) and the governor want the speed limit enforced," Potts said.

Officers Are Elected At Demo District Meet

Lorimer Midget of Elizabeth City was elected permanent chairman of the Democratic district convention held in Washington, N.C. last weekend, according to Pitt County party chairman Henry Oglesby.

Midget has held the position since 1948.

Other persons elected to party positions at the meeting were: W.R. Robinson Jr. of Washington as a member of the state convention committee on permanent organization, rules and order of business; Dr. J.H. Horton of Chowan County as a member of the biennial state convention committee on credentials and appeals; Oscar Waller of Kinston as a member of the council of review; James W. Copeland Jr. of Murfreesboro as a member of the state legislative policy committee and Robert W. Hutchinson of Plymouth was elected a member of the state delegate nominating committee to name delegates to attend the mini-national convention in Kansas City in December.

Mrs. Patty West of Edenton and Senator Livingston Stallings of New Bern were elected to attend the mini-convention from this district, according to Oglesby.

Decree Five To Die As Spies

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The Seoul district criminal court sentenced five civilians to death today for espionage on behalf of North Korea and plotting an uprising against President Chung Hee Park.

Three other civilians were sentenced to life imprisonment, and 24 were given terms ranging from one to 15 years.

Nineteen persons now have been sentenced to death this month for antigovernment activities, but five sentences were commuted to life imprisonment.

No Injuries In Collisions

An estimated $2,150 property damage resulted here yesterday from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a three car collision about 1:10 p.m. on U.S. 264, 102 feet East of the Hooker Road intersection.

Drivers of the vehicles involved were identified as Charlotte Cleatwood Flanagan of 215 Belvedere Dr., David Savage Brown of 103 Scott Dorm and Charles Larue Broome of 102 Kenilworth Dr.

Police, who charged Broome with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $1,000 to the Brown car, $100 to the Broome auto and $50 to the Flanagan vehicle.

Ronald G. Turgeon of Route 8, Concord was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of an 8:30 a.m. collision at the intersection of Tenth Street and Greenville Boulevard.

Investigators reported the Turgeon car collided with an auto driven by Mary Adams Peaden of Azalea Gardens, causing an estimated $400 damage to the Turgeon car and $600 damage to the Peaden auto.

No injuries were reported in either of the mishaps.

Camp Open To Diabetics

Diabetic children, aged seven through 15, from throughout North and South Carolina will attend the Carolinas Camp for Diabetic Children at Eagle's Nest Camp in Pisgah National Forest near Brevard.

The camp is co-sponsored by the North and South Carolina Diabetes Associations and has a staff of approximately 23 physicians, nurses, and dietitians from Duke University Medical Center.

The camp is planned to provide meaningful and enjoyable experiences for the diabetic child and to teach him to better manage and live with his diabetes.

Of the 100 campers, approximately one-third need to attend on donated camperships. Anyone wishing to provide a full ($225) or partial (any amount) campership should make a check payable to "Camp Fund" and send it to the N.C. Diabetes Assn., 408 N. Tryon St., Charlotte, N.C. 28202.

Anyone who wants his child to go to this camp Aug. 4-17 should call Mrs. Betty Goodson, the Diabetes Teaching Nurse at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Burlington Ind. Earnings Rose

NEW YORK (AP) — The Burlington Industries textile chain has reported increased sales and earnings for its third quarter and for the nine months ended June 29.

Net earnings for the quarter were $27.54 million or $1.01 per share. This compared to $22.93 million or 85 cents per share for the similar quarter last year. Net earnings per share increased 18.8 per cent.

Consolidated net sales were $617 million, an increase of 10.5 per cent over the $558 million a year ago.

For the nine months, net earnings were $79.6 million or $2.92 per share. Earnings for the similar period last year were $59.3 million or $2.20 per share.

Consolidated sales for the latest nine months were $1.75 billion compared with $1.56 billion.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—On North Carolina egg markets prices were slightly stronger on large and steady to weaker on medium and smalls. Supplies barely adequate, demand good. Weighted average prices for small lot sales of consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby outlets: Grade A large whites 59.65, medium whites 50.39, small whites 39.34.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—Hogs: Market steady. Kinston and Lumberton 35.50-36.50; Rocky Mount, 34.50-35.00; Salisbury, 35.00; Tarboro and Bethel, 33.50-34.00.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina F.O.B dock broiler: Market steady today with this week's F.O.B dock average at 34.71. The market for next week is unsettled.

Supplies adequate and demand good. Weights desirable. Estimated slaughter today 1,086,000.

North Carolina hens: Market steady with a firm undertone noted for next week on heavy type hens. Supplies adequate and demand fairly good. Heavy hens at farm, eleven, F.O.B plants 13.5 to 14.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market was narrowly mixed today, registering no perceptible investor reaction to the Supreme Court decision ordering President Nixon to turn over 64 tapes in connection with the Watergate case. The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down .55 at 797.17, and gainers and losers were almost exactly in balance on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was moderate. Brokers reported no apparent pickup in trading activity when the unanimous decision by the high court was announced.

Citicorp was the most active NYSE issue, down 1/4 at 35 1/4. The bank holding company's much-discussed offering of $650 million in floating rate long-term notes was put on sale today.

Glamours were mostly lower, particularly in the drug group. Upjohn was down 1 1/2 at 76 1/2; Merck, 2 at 74; Schering-Plough, 1 1/2 at 60 1/2; and Syntex, the American Stock Exchange volume leader, 1 1/4 to 38 1/2.

Continental Copper & Steel, which doubled its dividend, gained 1/2 to 9 1/4.

Fairchild Industries advanced 3/4 to 6 after the company posted sharply higher second-quarter earnings.

The NYSE's 11 a.m. composite index of all its listed common stocks was down .15 at 44.19.

The Amex' market value index was up .09 at 80.34.

Valmac Industries fell 2 1/4 to 11 1/2 in active trading on the Amex. The company estimated sharply lower earnings for its most-recent quarter.

Says Nixon Will Not Watch TV

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon will watch none of the televised impeachment debate tonight by the House Judiciary Committee, Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler announced in advance.

Last year Ziegler insisted Nixon watched none of the televised hearings of the Senate Watergate committee. Months later Nixon acknowledged he had taken an occasional peek.

Arrested As A Public Drunk

Ray Jones, 42, of Greenville was charged with public drunk and possession of a controlled substance about 2:20 p.m.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Jones was taken into custody at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Ridgeway Street by officers who found a small amount of marijuana in his possession.

Bond for Jones was set at $500 on the drug-law violation charge and $50 on the public drunk arrest.

Rights Wrong To Harry Wright

TRENTON (AP) — The New Jersey Supreme Court has ruled that Harry Wright's "Write-in-Wright" election campaign by voters who wrote in Wright's name is invalid because voters wrote only "Wright" without a first name.

A trial court judge had ruled that there was no way to be certain that those voters meant Harry Wright, rather than one of the eight other Wrights in the small Sussex County community, even though all the others said they didn't want the job.

Urges Calling Off 'Ordination' Plans

NEW YORK (AP) — The Episcopal Church's presiding bishop, the Rt. Rev. John M. Allin, has appealed to participants in a planned irregular ordination of women to call it off. The church does not permit ordination of women as priests. In individual telegrams sent Tuesday to the three bishops and 11 women involved, he urged them to cancel next Monday's ceremonies in Philadelphia.

"For the sake of the unity of the church and the cause of ordination of women to the priesthood, I beg you to reconsider your intention..." he said in separate telegrams to the women.

He said they should not take the step "before the necessary canonical changes are made." Proposals for such changes have been turned down by the last two triennial conventions of the church.

Bishop Allin, interrupting his vacation to deal with the matter that has stirred a furor in the 3.1-million-member church, also pleaded with the three bishops "to reconsider your decision" to ordain the women.

Garvey Leads National In 7-2 Victory

By DICK JOYCE
AP Sports Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — For some it was a busman's holiday. For a busman's son, it was a dream come true.

"The seeds were planted when I was four, five and six," said Steve Garvey of the Los Angeles Dodgers, named the Most Valuable Player in Tuesday night's All-Star Game after leading the National League to a 7-2 victory over the American League.

"My father drove the team bus for the Dodgers in spring training and I got to know them all—Gil Hodges, Carl Furillo, Roy Campanella, Don Drysdale and Sandy Koufax.

"They all were All-Stars and I always hoped that someday

I'd be one. Gil Hodges was my idol and here I was playing his position in the All-Star Game."

Garvey's name didn't even appear on the computer ballot for this 45th All-Star Game, but the nation's fans responded with more than one million write-in votes to make him the starting first baseman.

Garvey responded to that by delivering two key hits and a sparkling defensive play during a full nine-inning stint as the National League continued its dominance over the American, winning its 11th game in the series 12-1. The NL now leads the series 26-18-1 after being behind 12-4.

Five NL pitchers held the American to four hits, causing losing Manager Dick Williams to lament: "You can't do much with four hits."

Gaylord Perry, starting pitcher for the AL, retired the first five NL batters before Garvey singled in the second. Dodgers teammate Ron Cey then drove in Garvey with a double.

In the third inning Garvey made a brilliant backhand stab of Bobby Murcer's hot grounder to end the inning.

The AL already had two runs in that inning and two runners on base.

In the fourth, with the Americans leading 2-1, Johnny Bench and Jimmy Wynn, another Dodger, singled. Garvey doubled in one run and Wynn later scored on Cey's grounder.

And although it was not obvious then, Garvey, playing despite an ear infection, had done in the American League.

Joe Garvey, who drives a bus in Tampa, Fla., and his wife were among the standing-room only crowd of 50,706 at Three Rivers Stadium to see their son.

Asked if he contributed any write-in ballots, the elder Garvey beamed: "I'd say the family contributed a couple of hundred. We weren't going to come here. Instead we were going to Atlanta next weekend so we could see three games. But I told my wife that we only live once, let's go."

It was one of the best trips the Garveys ever took.

In the AL dressing room Williams said: "With a group like that—Cey, Garvey, Wynn and Mike Marshall—that's probably why the Dodgers are where they are."

Marshall pitched the last two innings, after strong performances by Messersmith, Ken Brett, Jon Matlack, and Lynn McGlothen. Brett, the only Pittsburgh Pirate on the squad, was credited with the victory after working the fourth and fifth innings.

Luis Tiant, who allowed two runs in the fourth inning, took the loss. The Nationals added an unearned run in the fifth on Joe Morgan's sacrifice fly, scoring Lou Brock who had singled, stolen second and moved to third on catcher Thurman Munson's error.

Reggie Smith homered in the seventh to make it 5-2 off Jim Hunter, and Don Kessinger's triple in the eighth was the key blow as the NL made it 7-2.

The AL scored twice in the third inning with Dick Allen driving in one run with a single. The Chicago White Sox first baseman arrived less than 45 minutes before game time.

"The game starts at 8:30. And game time is on time," said Allen, who has a history of absences and tardiness and left here after 2½ innings.

Braves' Management Names King To Post

By GARY MIHOCE
AP Sports Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Clyde King was named interim manager of the Atlanta Braves today, replacing Eddie Mathews, who was fired last Sunday.

King, 50, has been a special assistant to Braves Vice President Eddie Robinson since November, 1972. King formerly managed the San Francisco Giants. He led the Giants to a second-place finish in 1969, but was fired on May 23, 1970 when the Giants got off to a slow start.

The announcement was made both in Pittsburgh, site of Tuesday night's All-Star Game, and in Atlanta. In a statement released through the Braves here, Robinson said that King "knows the young players in our organization better than anyone else. I feel he's the logical one to take over and guide and evaluate our team for the remainder of the season."

Mathews was dismissed after the Braves lost four straight games to the Pittsburgh Pirates last weekend. The losses dropped the Braves into fourth place in the National League West, 14 games behind the first-place Los Angeles Dodgers.

King managed 11 seasons in the minor leagues after pitching for seven seasons in the majors with the Brooklyn Dodgers and Cincinnati Reds. He was used primarily as a reliever pitcher. He had a lifetime record of 32-25.

King's selection followed a surprise statement by Braves' superstar Hank Aaron that he would accept an offer to manage the club "simply because there are no black managers in baseball."

Following Aaron's comment Tuesday night, Braves' owner Bill Bartholomay said, "Tonight is the first time I've had any idea that Hank is interested in a managerial career."

However, Aaron was bypassed for the managerial job. But he managed to put the Braves' management in an awkward position.

Choosing Players Will Be South's Major Problem

As of right now the only major problem the South coaches have come across in their preparation for the 12th Boys' Home All-Star game has been in trying to decide who might be starting Saturday night.

"We're trying to get 15 offensive and 15 defensive players. We can start anybody when you get right down to it," said South head coach John Daskal. Daskal said that at several positions there are more than just two players. The South has three runningbacks, three wide receivers and three guards and the eventual choice will be difficult.

"We are really pleased so far. The players have been super and it is not difficult for them to adjust. We have a real good rapport," said Daskal.

Several players have impressed the coaches on the defensive side. "We are pleased with Robert Pickens (Myers Park, Charlotte)," said assistant coach Tom Brown. Brown is working mainly with the defense. "Overall we're experimenting putting people in key positions and moving them around. It may be harder to learn the defense because there is no stunting and the linebackers can't blitz. So everybody has to charge straight up," said Brown.

Pickens was put at nose guard, the lineman head up the offensive center, during Tuesday's practice and gave a surprisingly good performance. The coaches have also tried Bobby Faulk of Sanford and Robert Mason, Gastonia at nose guard with very good results.

The South will be using a 5-2 type defense.

They have some overlap in their offense basically running from a power I and a standard I. The power I uses three running backs. "The only difficulty they have is learning all the stuff," said Daskal. "The backs are the ones having to make the most adjustment." Thomas Summer and Johnny Walker have impressed the coaches at these positions. At quarterback, the South has been using Marvin Moss and Marvin Potter. Ayden-Grifton's Milton Brown has impressed them at wide receiver.

All three coaches said they expect a good game. All praised the Jaycees and East Carolina's Pat Dye for the help that the Players and coaches have received.

The 12th annual game will be played Saturday night in Ficklen Stadium at 8:00 p.m. Tickets for the game, which are $2.00 ad-

Carew Crying Sour Grapes

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The All-Star Game is no fun for Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins, who says that if he can't get the playing time he figures he deserves, he'd rather stay home.

"Next year, I'm just going to ask to have my name not put on the ballot. I don't think I want to come to the All-Star Game any more," the American League's starting second baseman said after playing only 2½ innings in Tuesday night's 7-2 loss to the National League.

Manager Dick Williams said he removed Carew because he thought the infielder had been banged up in a third-inning slide at second base.

"I'm not going to take a chance on injuring someone else's player," Williams said.

Carew, leading the major leagues with a .382 batting average, said he was okay and would have liked to play longer.

"It's the same every year with me," he said. "I'm not trying to rap anybody, but why should I make the trip to the All-Star Game when they lift me after two or three innings?"

POTVIN WINS CALDER
MONTREAL (AP) — Rookie defenseman Dennis Potvin of the New York Islanders of the National Hockey League has won the Calder Memorial Trophy. The cup is awarded annually to the player chosen as most proficient in his first NHL season. Potvin set two records for a defenseman by getting 17 goals and totaling 54 points for the Islanders.

Toronto Hosts Canadian Open

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
PORT CREDIT, Ont. (AP) — Arnold Palmer returns to the scene of his first victory—now almost 20 years back—and Tom Weiskopf returns to the site of his last triumph, in this week's $200,000 Canadian Open Golf Tournament.

Palmer and Weiskopf head a strong field of 150—almost all of them tour-toughened American stars—arrayed for the Thursday start in this national championship that offers the winner $40,000 and a spot in the four-man field for the World Series of Golf.

Only a handful of the name players are missing as the tour moves into its most lucrative portion of the schedule.

In the next eight weeks, more than $1.8 million in prize money will be at stake, and the big guns of the game, many of whom haven't played in the United States since the American Open, are moving back into action for a shot at the big money events.

The field also includes Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Johnny Miller, five of the year's top 10 money-winners and a dozen players who have won American tour titles this year.

The major absentees are Masters and British Open champion Gary Player, at home in South Africa, U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin, veteran Billy Casper, Hubert Green, Jerry Heard and Buddy Allin.

Miller, the season's top winner with $204,000 in prize money and five titles, remains a questionable starter on the eve of the 72-hole event. His wife is expecting their third child momentarily.

The 44-year-old Palmer scored the first of his 61 North American victories in the Canadian Open in 1955. Although he hasn't won in almost two years, he played some of his best golf of the period in his last three starts.

Weiskopf is the defending champion. This was the last of his official tour titles in 1973.

Other standouts include 1974 winners Jim Colbert, Rod Curl, Bob Menne, Allen Miller, Bobby Nichols, Leonard Thompson, Tom Watson and Richie Karl, winner of last week's B.C. Open.

Other include Australian Bruce Crampton, rookie Ben Crenshaw, John Mahaffey, Larry Wadkins, Forrest Fezler, 62-year-old Sam Snead and Canada's best player, George Knudson.

The site is the 6,788-yard, par-70 Mississauga Golf and Country Club course in suburban Toronto.

Church League Season Ends; Black Jack, Grace Tie

Three ties resulted after the final games of the Church league season which wound up last night. One tie was for first place, one for third and the other for fourth.

Oakmont won the title in the American Division for the second straight year beating St. Gabriels 16-3. The two teams were tied for first going into the game.

Both Black Jack and Grace won to end up co-champs in the National Division. Grace will be seeded No. 1 in the tournament having beaten Black Jack twice in the season.

Presbyterian won 5-3 over First Christian to pull into a tie with Trinity at 9-10. Trinity will be fourth winning a coin toss. In the other tie, Memorial beat St.

James to tie them at 12-7. St. James will be third having won a coin toss also.

In the other game of the night Immanuel took third place in the National division beating Arlington St. 24-7.

At field 1, Immanuel pushed over six in the first to start their rout. Butch Ricks had a home run in the first for Immanuel. Hal Cannady had one in the third.

Grace shut out Mt. Pleasant, 20-0 getting the only run they needed in the first. They added four in the second and two in the third. U-MP got only four hits in the game.

Black Jack rounded out the night with a 9-5 decision over People's. Black Jack opened the scoring with three in the second and made it 6-0 in the third. Peoples pulled within two by the fifth and cut the gap to one, 6-5 with one in the sixth. Black Jack got a pair in the sixth to insure the win.

Memorial beat St. James on a five-run rally in the fifth. That broke a 2-2 tie and Memorial held off St. James in the sixth and seventh for the win.

Presbyterian rallied for three runs in the top of the seventh to beat Christian, 5-3. Christian pushed over one in the bottom of the seventh but could not get any more. The win threw Presbyterian into a tie but they ended up in sixth place, just where they would have been if they had lost.

Oakmont made sure they had

St. Gabriel with four runs in the first frame of the last game at Evans II. Oakmont added three in the second and rallied for seven in the sixth to run away with the victory.

The church league tournament opens Thursday night. In the National division, Peoples meets First Free Will at 7:30 on field 2. Immanuel faces U-MP in the second game and Black Jack takes on Arlington St. in the nightcap.

At field one, Memorial meets Trinity at 7:30, Presbyterian goes against St. James at 8:30 and First Christian plays St. Gabriel at 9:30. Grace and Oakmont draw byes in the first round of the double elimination tourney.

ward position. "I haven't talked to Hank since Saturday night," said Bartholomay. "Our relationship is such that the next time we talk we'll discuss the issue."

Aaron, who has said repeatedly he wasn't interested in managing, revealed his apparent turnabout in the National League clubhouse after playing three innings of his 23rd and final All-Star Game.

He said he was moved to comment on the matter because of published reports quoting Aaron's remarks after the National League's 7-2 All-Star victory.

"It's an exciting possibility. It's exciting that he would consider managing. In the past he's rejected that as a future possibility," Bartholomay said.

Though Pittsburgh area civil rights groups picketed before the game to protest the absence of black managers in baseball, Aaron said that did not influence his statement.

"I didn't even know there was any picketing," he said. Asked to name some blacks who might make good managers, Aaron mentioned Frank Robinson, Maury Wills, Jim Gilliam, Larry Doby and Bill White.

"Like I said, there are many blacks more qualified to manage than me," Aaron said. "And I really don't care about managing. But like I said, if they offered me the job, the way things are, I'd be almost compelled to accept."

"There are lots of qualified blacks who are more qualified to manage than I am," he added, "but if the job were offered to me I would definitely have to think twice."

Aaron was asked whether he felt his statement had placed the Braves in an awkward position.

"I hope not. I'm not trying to put anybody in a difficult position," he said. "But I think that it's just common courtesy that if they mentioned my name, I should have been offered the job."

Celtics Could Be Reclaimed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two businessmen could reclaim the Boston Celtics under terms of a federal court jury decision in a breach of contract suit over sale of the National Basketball Association team to its present owner.

The jury awarded $4.2 million to Harold Lipton and Irving Levine, deciding that Celtics owner Robert J. Schmetz broke an oral agreement made when he purchased the team from them in May 1972.

Lipton, an attorney, and Levine, a business consultant, bought the Celtics in April 1972 for $3.7 million but were forced to sell the club when the NBA Board of Governors refused to approve the purchase.

The sale to Schmetz, who also owns the World Hockey Association New England Whalers, was for the same amount.

Levine and Lipton paid for the club, but included an oral agreement for an additional $250,000 payment and an option allowing the two businessmen to repurchase half of the Celtics' stock.

The suit by Lipton and Levine contended they never received the $250,000 and Schmetz refused to honor the repurchase agreement.

The jury verdict Monday in the court of U.S. District Judge Manuel Real came after an eight-day trial gave Lipton and Levine $3.42 million in compensatory damages, $500,000 in punitive damages and the $250,000 plus interest.

But attorney Frank Rothman, who represented the two, said Tuesday that because the jury decided fraud was involved in the breach of contract.

Records Go On Line Tonight

By HOWARD SINER
AP Sports Writer
The rookie World Football League, plunging into the midst of its third week, will have four teams battling tonight to hang onto their unbeaten records. At least one is likely to fail.

A pair of undefeated teams—the Birmingham Americans and the Memphis Southmen—are matched in a WFL version of a "showdown" game.

"They have a fine quarterback and two of the better running backs in the league," said Birmingham head coach Jack Gotta about the Southmen—the WFL scoring leaders with a 25-point per game average.

Quarterback John Huarte, who has 22 completions in 37 attempts for 342 yards, leads Memphis. Running back J.J. Jennings has a total of 170 yards rushing for the Southmen and John Harvey has 85 yards.

But quarterback George Mira, the latest WFL Player of the Week, has completed 22 of 44 passes for 299 yards for the Americans. His top receiver is Dennis Homan with six catches for 144 yards.

In other games tonight, the unbeaten Chicago Fire plays the Portland Storm, the undefeated Florida Blazers meet the Houston Texans and the Southern California Sun faces the Jacksonville Sharks.

The Philadelphia Bell hosts the New York Stars Thursday night in a nationally televised WFL game and Chicago—with three days of rest—plays the Hawaiians in another contest Sunday at Honolulu.

The Fire, tied with Birmingham and Memphis for the Central Division lead, will help winless Portland open its home season.

Chicago features quarterback Virgil Carter—33 of 62 for 371—and receiver James Scott, the WFL leader with 14 catches for 134 yards.

The Blazers are the other unbeaten WFL team, led by quarterback Bob Davis and runners Jim Strong and A.D. Whitfield.

Winless New York, with the leading WFL offense and the second leading defense, will try to get untracked against Philadelphia.

Clinic Set

East Carolina head basketball coach Dave Patton will hold another free clinic Saturday, July 27, for boys in grades 1-6. The clinic is free. Two more clinics will be held on the following Saturdays. Boys will be chosen to form the Pirates. They will return in the fall to practice and during the basketball season, they will play during the halftime of the ECU games.

Aide Says Haldeman Almost 'The Other President'

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — "Haldeman was the alter ego. Haldeman was almost the other President. I can't emphasize that enough."
Thus did former White House aide Alexander P. Butterfield describe the role of H.R. Haldeman to the House Judiciary Committee, according to testimony the committee released today.

Butterfield, who first publicly disclosed the existence of the presidential tapes, was the first of nine witnesses who testified before the Judiciary Committee in its impeachment inquiry.

Part of his testimony was devoted to a catalog of often petty details of White House house-keeping, such as "whether or not the curtains were closed or open," that he said drew the President's attention.

The committee released Butterfield's testimony in a volume that also included that of former Nixon campaign aides Paul O'Brien and Frederick C. LaRue. O'Brien and LaRue were involved in arranging the payment of legal expenses for Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt Jr.

Butterfield, now head of the Federal Aviation Administration, spent nearly nine hours testifying in closed session, during which time he described in detail the President's work habits and his relationships to his staff.

He made it clear that the closest staff man to the President was his staff chief, Haldeman.

"Haldeman was his right-hand man," Butterfield told the committee. "He counted so heavily on Haldeman's presence, on Haldeman being at the other end of telephone within reach when he buzzed."

At one point, committee associate counsel Albert Jenner asked: "During all your time at the White House, Mr. Butterfield, and to the extent of your personal knowledge, no guessing, was there ever any occasion that came to your knowledge of Mr. Haldeman withholding any information from the President?"

"No, sir, never," replied Butterfield.

Later, James D. St. Clair, Nixon defense lawyer, asked Butterfield:

"But you really are not in a position to speak with any degree of personal observation as to what Mr. Haldeman said or didn't say to the President, isn't that right?"

"I would tend to disagree with you," replied Butterfield. "I think I was in probably the best possible position. However, I do agree with you that I didn't actually observe."

Nixon's first day in office until March 14, 1973. Among his duties was insuring the smooth operation of the President's day.

He described a typical presidential day as beginning at 8:15 a.m. with a reading of the daily news summary. At 8:35, the President would buzz for Hal-dem. "It was always his habit to buzz for Haldeman when he finished the news summary and he would stay in for about 30 to 35 minutes," Butterfield testified.

"Then perhaps Henry Kissinger would come in from 9 to 9:25," he added. Haldeman and Kissinger were in and out of the President's office throughout a typical day, Butterfield said.

Nixon's work day normally would end at about 7:30 p.m., except for an average of about two nights a week when he would have his dinner in his office in the Executive Office Building.

Asked about Nixon's concern with details of the White House operation, Butterfield gave the following examples:

"... whether or not the curtains were closed or open, the arrangement of state gifts, whether they should be on that side of the room or this side of the room, displayed on a weekly basis or on a monthly or daily basis ...

"He was deeply involved in the entertainment business (for state dinners), whom we should get for what kind of group, small band, big band, black band, white band, jazz band whatever. He was very interested in meals and how they were served ...

"He was interested in who introduced him to guests and he wanted it done quite properly ...

"Guest lists were of great interest to him. He did review all the guests lists very carefully and no one would put someone on a guest list or take some one off a guest list as a rule without going to the President. He was interested in knowing how many Republicans or Democrats were on the list, he would review it for that. Too many or too little—it always got his personal view—how many from the South, East, West, North regions of America, how many blacks, how many ethnics, how many labor union members might be invited; is this an appropriate event for labor members? Who are the reporters, the press people invited to this—he would review all of these lists personally and approve them personally."

No Mourning; The Flag Stuck

XENIA, Ohio (AP) — City officials received a number of calls asking about an important death when the flag at City Hall fluttered at half-staff on a recent morning.

The officials explained there was no death involved. The rope used to raise the flag jammed on a pulley when the standard was half-way up the pole.

Sunken Ships Attract Fish

HERNE BAY, England (AP) — Wrecks of ships sunk in the English Channel during the Second World War are providing good fishing for anglers. Five fishermen in two dinghies located one of the wrecks, which serve as a gathering place for fish, and returned with 650 pounds of prime cod.

The carp is among the comparatively few fish capable of making vocal noise.

Church Youth Planning Record Prices 2 Weeks Of Adventure 'Not Enough'

TENSIONS IN THE U.N.—Zenon Rossides, permanent representative to the United Nations from Cyprus, gestures while calling for the U.N. to enforce the ceasefire in Cyprus as Osman Olcay, his Turkish counterpart listens at right.

Youth of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church are now finalizing plans for two special adventuring and exploring weeks in August.

"Try The World Out," a camp experience for rising fifth, sixth, seventh, and eighth graders will be held at Camp Rockfish Aug. 12-16.

The Excursion, a week of tent camping in the Shenandoah National Park, will take place Aug. 19-23 for youth who are in the seventh through 12th grades.

Camp Rockfish, a United Methodist Camp located on Lake Upchurch near Fayetteville, will be the setting for the "Try The World Out" week of Christian Outdoor Education. Within the plan for the week are the following activities: swimming; canoeing; rafting; watermelon eating contests; ice-cream making; volleyball; camp singing; and campfires.

The camp program will be under the direction of Rev. John Farmer, associate minister at Jarvis Church. The camp staff includes Mrs. Peggy Farmer.

Most Of Loot Was Returned

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Almost all of the $12,000 loot including an $8,500 diamond bracelet taken in the burglary of the home of Atlantic City's Mayor Joseph F. Bradley Jr. has been returned by mail.

"I couldn't believe it," said millionaire Bradley on Tuesday after the package was delivered by a postman to the City Hall office.

Susan Moye, Mrs. Catherine Walton, and Laura Bruce Hadley. This experience is open to youth of the church and the community. Names may be added to the list of campers at the church office prior to July 29.

The Excursion, an experience for the Youth Fellowship will begin Aug. 18 at 10:00 p.m. when the group will leave for a week of tent camping in the Shenandoah National Park.

The Excursion will include a one-day trip into Washington, D.C., in addition to trail hiking, horseback riding, campfires, and worship experiences. Persons may sign up in the church office until Aug. 5.

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Association of Private Detectives has pleaded "no contest" to charges of failing to report its lobbying expenses.

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP) — Prices on the Georgia-Florida flue-cured tobacco market climbed to record levels Tuesday while farmers maintained that they aren't getting enough money for their leaf.

Some farmers refused to sell their crop, claiming that they would not make a profit at the offered prices because of a sharp increase in the cost of production. However, protests were scattered and mostly verbal.

At Quitman, a group of farmers threatened to block sales. But after a discussion, they allowed auctions to continue and none rejected bids.

The Federal-State Market News Service said the average price Tuesday for 100 pounds was $92.47 compared to $91.94 Monday. Growers have insisted they need $100 and more per hundredweight.

The market news service said 5,766,675 pounds were sold on the belt Tuesday and brought $5,332,174. Better quality leaf topped out at $97 per hundredweight.

For the season, the belt had sold through Tuesday 39,650,536 pounds at an average of $88.04 for $34,906,704.

Rep. Bill Stuckey, D-Ga., called on the House Committee on Agriculture and Forestry Tuesday to investigate the tobacco situation.

"I don't intend to imply that the Department of Agriculture is in collusion with the tobacco purchasers," Stuckey said. "However, the determination of the secretary (Earl Butz) to remove the acreage allotment has alarmed me no end."

Great Guitars For Musicians By Craftsman

CRAFTSMAN'S SHOP—J. W. Gallagher examines one of his hand-crafted guitars in his cluttered Wartrace, Tenn. shop. (AP Wirephoto)

By CHRISTOPHER CABOT
Associated Press Writer
WARTRACE, Tenn. (AP)—
Behind every great musician
there are great instruments.
J.W. Gallagher makes such instruments — guitars —
painstakingly, with consummate craftsmanship.

In the decade since Gallagher covered his cabinet making business to guitar production, he has made at most 700 of the instruments.

The select list of Gallagher guitar owners reads like a page from a musical Who's Who:
Grand Ole Opry and "Hee
Haw" star L.M. "Grandpa"
Jones, blue grass guitarist Doc
Watson and his brother Merle, rock singers Neil Diamond and Steve Stills, folk singer Peter
Yarrow, formerly of Peter,
Paul and Mary, to name a few.

"We're a small business and will probably stay small," Gallagher says. "We rely on word of mouth and the quality of our guitars. They really sell themselves. We're back-ordered about a year."

"I never learned to play one myself. Each New Year I used to make a resolution that this year I'd learn, but I never did.
Now, I make a resolution not to learn and have no trouble keeping it."

Nevertheless, Gallagher certainly knows how to build guitars, and his cluttered shop is a monument to his ingenuity. He designed and built virtually every tool he uses. There are special tools to steam fit and shape rosewood and mahogany sides, gadgets to plane and fit hardwood necks, special saws to cut slits for frets, and dozens of clamps to glue guitar parts together.

Gallagher, 59, and his 29-year-old son, Bill, employ two craftsmen, Martha Norvell and

Gary Gross work mainly on sound box construction. They mould the sides and shape the backs and fronts, delicately fitting a herringbone inlay along the boarders.

Gallagher himself fits and installs the necks, a procedure in which a delicate joint must be strengthened to hold the pressure of taut steel strings.

A finished Gallagher guitar has Indian rosewood or mahogany sides and back, a European spruce front, bordered with German herringbone in-lay. The neck is either rosewood or mahogany with an African ebony fingerboard. The nickel-silver frets are hand fitted and shaped. Bridge saddles and nuts are ivory.

"Materials are becoming harder to get and more expensive," Gallaghe says. "But you've got to use the best available if you're going to make good guitars. You really can't skimp."

In his shop last week, Gallagher showed off what he called his "ultimate guitar."

The basic construction was the same as his more expensive models. But around the entire sound box Gallagher had inlaid rainbow-colored strips of abalone shell. The neck was hand carved in an ornate flower pattern. The finish glowed.

"I let Merle Watson use it and he said he loved it. But then someone told him that it was priceless and he said he was too afraid to use it anymore."

"Inlaying that abalone shell was the hardest part. It comes in about half inch lengths, so hundreds of the strips had to be fitted exactly together. I had to do the whole thing under a magnifying glass."

The regular Gallagher line includes a six-string series, 12-string, folk and concert guitars.

"I don't like to brag about
'em. I'd rather let someone else do it or let them speak for themselves," he said. "But, of course, I wouldn't make them if I didn't believe they were the best guitars in the world."

Before Moving, A Lichen Test

LONDON (AP) — Jack Laun-don, secretary of the British Lichen Society, recently moved, but not before checking the lichen on tombstones in a cemetry near his prospective new residence.

Excessive sulphur dioxide in the air quickly kills lichen and Laundon said the growth's condition is an effective measure of local pollution.

Charcoal briquets are made by converting forest industry by-products under very high heat. They are then pulverized, mixed with other ingredients to improve quality, pressed hy-draulically into pillow shapes, dried and packaged.

Took The Water 'On Vacation'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) —
When Franklin County officials failed to pay a water bill, the City of Columbus shut off water to the county Auto Title Building.

After employes complained,
it was found that the water bill,
for $36.84, was among unfinished business on the desk of a worker who had gone on vacation. A flurry of phone calls got the water service restored.

An Eye Kept On Spending

By CHARLES FLINNER WASHINGTON (UPI) — The way the government figures it, Sam Sixpack is an average American blue collar or clerical worker who spends 55.6 cents out of every $100 he earns for haircuts.

Mrs. Sixpack spends 22.3 cents of every $100 on seamless nylon hose.

Together, they spend 86.4 cents of every $100 for steak, 11 cents for bananas and $5.18 for food away from home, including 84.4 cents for snacks. Out of the same $100, the baby sitter collects 32 cents, college tuition takes 33 cents and bowling fees 33.5 cents.

The government says this is the way we live and spend our money — and then adds "maybe."

These expenditures and hundreds of others by "Sam Sixpack" are reflected in the government's Consumer Price Index (CPI), which is closely watched as a key to the nation's economic state.

In 1967, $100 would buy $100 worth of goods at then prevailing prices. Today it takes $144 to buy the same goods.

There are some problems, however, with this statistical portrait of America: Sam Sixpack represents only 45 percent of the nation's population, and American buying patterns have changed.

To resolve the problem, the government's Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) has asked Congress to provide funds to devise a second index covering 80 percent of the public, not just blue collar and clerical workers.

The Bureau already is working on the second problem. It is trying to find out how Americans spend their money and where, with an eye to revising the present cost of living index.

We now live in a world of long hair, trash mashers, panty hose, fast food restaurants and cars with fancy standard equipment once considered accessories.

We also shop for our goods and services at discount houses, suburban shopping centers, convenience stores and mail order houses.

"We've changed our shopping habits but those changes have not been reflected in our statistical portraits," according to Julius Shiskin, Commissioner of Labor Statistics.

That's why the government is spending $38.7 million to overhaul the Consumer Price Index, as required by law every 10 years. The new revision is scheduled to be completed in April, 1977.

Is the revision really important? Workers think so: About 800 thousand United Auto Workers received wage increases in June because their pay is linked to the cost of living to protect them against unreasonable inflation. The increase came to 13 cents an hour at Ford, Chrysler and General Motors.

Aluminum workers covered by a contract negotiated by the United Steelworkers got 44 cents an hour more in March and another 13 cents an hour in June because of an increase in the price index.

Shiskin believes that more than 5.1 million Americans are covered by wage contracts tied to the price index. The number is increasing steadily and the concept now is being applied to some pension plans.

"Some 46 million persons now find their incomes directly affected by the index," Shiskin said. "Included are almost 29 million Social Security beneficiaries, about 2 million retired military and federal civil service employees and survivors, 600 thousand postal workers and about 13 million food stamp recipients."

Also affected by the index, he said, are the 24 million children who eat lunch or breakfast at school under the National School Lunch Act and the Child Nutrition Act of 1966.

Because so many Americans have a stake in the index, every care must be taken to make sure it is a reasonably accurate reflection of normal spending habits.

"At present," Shiskin said, "a one per cent change in the index can trigger an increase of more than $1 billion in income under various escalation programs. An error of only one-tenth of one per cent can thus lead to the misallocation of more than $100 million."

Pan Am Marks Anniversary

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pan American World Airways marked the 35th anniversary of the inauguration of transatlantic passenger service to Europe on June 28. The inaugural flight by the "Dixie Clipper," from Long Island to Marseilles, took a total of 42 hours and 10 minutes (29 hours and 20 minutes flying time) via the Azores and Lisbon. Today's jetliners fly almost four times as fast—up to 600 miles per hour. The lowest roundtrip fare in 1939 between New York and Paris was $675. The fare now is as low as $314 in the winter months and $427 during the summer.

Cycle Safety Course For Driver Educators

By GEORGE THREEWITTS
ECU News Bureau

"Get your speed up. Put pressure on those pegs. Those pegs give you control," yells Dr. Alfred King, coordinator of the East Carolina University Traffic Safety Center. Dr. King is teaching motorcycle safety to high school driver education teachers.

Using an electric bullhorn, King walks casually amid the flurry of bright red, blue, orange and metallic colored cycles encouraging the class of 15 men and women riders to practice the fundamentals of motorcycle maneuvers and safety.

He frequently calls for a rider to sound his horn, switch on his lights or come to a halt. Often the beginning rider hesitates and fumbles in selecting the correct switch or chokes the machine off when making a quick stop.

"This is one of the problem with beginning riders," Dr. King said. "They are not familiar with the machine and are unable to react quickly in a hazardous situation."

The East Carolina University motorcycle course began for the first time this summer as part of the curriculum offered by the ECU Traffic Safety Center. The center is responsible for training driver education teachers in Eastern North Carolina.

The program is primarily an on-cycle beginning rider course that stresses safety in operation along with some maintenance.

The 30 driver educators and prospective driver education teachers enrolled during the two, four week sessions will in turn implement motorcycle safety instruction in the local high schools. King hopes to open the course to all ECU students next fall.

"We think that through this program, we will be able to provide instruction for students who have not been able to get this kind of instruction from the dealers after they have purchased a cycle."

"When I bought my first cycle about three years ago, the only thing that came with it was a set of keys."

"That is why this type of instruction is important, especially when you consider that the majority of accidents involve riders with less than 6 months experience," he said.

The Motorcycle Safety Foundation is supporting the program with a grant of $4,158.

Airline To Ask Landing Rights

TEL AVIV (UPI) — El Al Israel Airlines will seek landing rights in five additional U.S. cities on the basis of a joint agreement between the United States and Israel, an airline spokesman reported.

In addition to New York, El Al wants landing rights in Los Angeles, Miami, Philadelphia, Boston and Chicago, the spokesman said. He said the carrier has been negotiating with the U.S. government for these rights since 1966.

He said discussions between the two governments on additional landing rights had stagnated until the recent Nixon visit when a joint statement said both governments would foster tourism between their countries.

The Worry Clinic Nothing 'Free' To Taxpayers

John Myers was a successful farmer, then a banker before he ever entered politics. We need more of such men, for lawyers are too numerous in Congress!

Gy GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE A-646: U.S. Congressman John Myers (Inc.) was a farmer, then a banker before he entered politics.

That's a splendid background from which Democrats and Republicans should nominate more men for Congress.

"Last fall," he said, "my office received almost 18,000 replies from a questionnaire mailed throughout my district."

"It solicited the opinions of voters on the major issues before our country?"

The 8th question asked: "How would you instruct me to vote?"

"(a) To increase taxes to pay for new or expanded programs we'd like to have."

"(b) To increase the national debt to pay for such programs."

"(c) Against such programs to avoid increasing taxes or the national debt."

Congressman Myers has a district that includes cities up to about 100,000 population and also typical Midwestern farm land.

It includes a state university at Terre Haute, plus several private colleges.

Here's the final tally of his 18,000 replies to that triple query:

- (a) 14 percent
- (b) 7 percent
- (c) 79 percent

In every large metropolis, where inner city and welfare recipients tip the scales at the ballot boxes and constantly demand more free aid, the vote at (a) would doubtless have run possibly up to 50 percent.

And if it had not been for the university cities, where professors have little or no practical experience in running private stores, farms or factories and thus clamor for more and more federal boon-doggling, that 14 percent figure at (a) would have been cut in half.

For there is a distinct cleavage among voters, based on whether they obtain their living from taxes or by their own creative, private business and professional efforts.

For example, a doctor in private practice, as well as a farmer, retail merchant, barber, baker or member of a labor union, are NOT getting paid via taxes!

So the "taxpayers" are much less likely than the "taxeaters" to clamor for more free aid from Uncle Sam or their state governors!

Since Congressman Myers has a very typical type of district, that 79 percent figure against more boon-doggling should alert

Democrats and Republicans in Congress. Congressman Myers himself is a good exponent of "Horse Sense" and that's the greatest need in all legislatures!

prevent the compulsory (mandatory) requirement on new cars that seat belts must be in use or the cars will not start. Seat belts save many lives, adds Congressman Myers, "but forcing people to use them is wrong!"

Big Brother at Washington needs to get his knuckles rapped soundly on many other invasions of the rights of private citizens.

So send for my booklet "How to Save Our Republic," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

Encourage its discussion by offering debate and essay prizes thereon at your local schools!

For far too many liberal college professors have been brainwashing the oncoming generation AGAINST our "free enterprise" system and in favor of increased boondoggling that will destroy our Republic!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JULY 25, 1974

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day finds you able to work out problems with others and you can easily get the results you desire. But unless you are very cooperative and diplomatic you could run into much opposition.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You know what associates expect of you but you think you can do it better your way, which could lead to trouble. Be logical.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You can accomplish a great deal in the morning but later you are apt to be rude to others, so think before you speak. Be kind.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You can have lots of fun with friends during spare hours but don't neglect your duties. Listen to what associates have to say.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) The early morning is best time to make any improvements to your home. Be careful not to spend too much for amusements.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) If you have conferences with members of your family make sure you control your temper. Show more affection than you have in the past.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Analyze your financial position early in the day but don't confide in an untrustworthy person. Do something kind for loved one.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Morning is best time to come to right decisions where important matters are concerned. Try to please allies by being cooperative.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan what it is you really want out of life and then talk with experts who can help you attain your aims. Strive for happiness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Take time to study the best way to improve your career. Hasty action could hurt the feelings of a sensitive friend. Use caution.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Expressing your talents before higher-ups is a wise thing to do now. An out-of-towner can give you the backing you need now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Keep busy obtaining the data you will need to put through a project you have in mind. Don't let anyone waste your time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Attend to your responsibilities ahead of you and discharge them efficiently and wisely. Forget running off on any tangents.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will appeal to almost everyone and will be very popular, but you need to screen playmates well so your progeny is not influenced by those on the opposite side of the fence. Teach to be respectful of others and to work in a precise and conscientious way. Don't neglect religious training.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE

Walter Jones Took Cruise On Sequoia

WASHINGTON (AP)—All seven Democratic U.S. representatives from North Carolina were invited to go on a cruise down the Potomac this week on the presidential yacht Sequoia. Four declined, citing prior commitments, two made the trip Monday, and Rep. Charles Rose first accepted and then changed his mind.

Rose said such a trip would be ill-advised so near a House Judiciary Committee vote on impeachment. No congressman from North Carolina is a member of the committee.

Reps. Ike Andrews and Walter Jones were among the Southern congressmen who made the trip. The two North Carolinians said there was nothing improper about such outings, and that presidents have traditionally sponsored them to foster relations between the executive and legislative branches.

President Nixon was not abroad for Monday's trip or for other recent cruises with congressmen. Members of his congressional liaison team were the hosts for the social gathering at which the congressmen said Watergate and impeachment were not mentioned.

Last month, Reps. Jim Martin and Earl Ruth went on a similar cruise, and another North Carolina Republican, Rep. Jim Broyhill, did so last week. "I didn't think there was anything improper at the time, and I still don't," Martin said Tuesday.

Reps. Ike Andrews and Walter Jones were among the Southern congressmen who made the trip. The two North Carolinians said there was nothing improper about such outings, and that presidents have traditionally sponsored them to foster relations between the executive and legislative branches.

Show People Thanked Police

NEW YORK (AP) — The stars of a half dozen Broadway shows including Hermione Gingold, Lynn Redgrave, and Joan Hackett personally have told New York policemen their work is appreciated.

The theater personalities stopped by the Midtown North Precinct Station Tuesday afternoon to thank the officers for cleaning up the area and making it safer for theatergoers and workers.

"I haven't played here since 1967, and then I was kind of scared," said Miss Redgrave. "I've noticed a huge, huge difference."

Opening lead: Queen of ♠ Bridge becomes a relatively easy game when the position of virtually every honor card is known. Observe South's technique in bringing home a close four heart game.

Despite the fact that he held a relatively good hand, South contented himself with an overall of two hearts because of the vulnerability. However, after North made a well-judged raise to three hearts, the fact that he held relatively few losers convinced South that he would have good play for game.

West led the queen of spades and continued with the jack, declarer ruffing. Once West had shown up with two spade honors, it was likely that East held every other missing high card for his opening bid, so declarer's task of avoiding three losers in the minor suits became that much easier to achieve. He could accomplish that either by dropping the queen of diamonds in two rounds, or by endplaying East. To prepare for the latter possibility, declarer entered dummy with the jack of trumps and ruffed another spade, this time with a high trump. A trump to the queen drew both the defend-
