

Nixon's Chief Of Staff And Ford Confer

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —
President Nixon's closest aide, White House Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig Jr., held a private, hour-long meeting with Vice President Gerald R. Ford today as demands mounted for Nixon to resign.

The meeting in Ford's office was requested by Haig, said Ford's press secretary,
Paul Miltich.
Miltich said the two men "exchanged views on the current situation" but refused to elaborate.

Earlier, "White House sources acknowledged that a presidential resignation remains a possibility."
"Sure it is—all options are open," said one source.
Another agreed, saying that despite Nixon's vow to his cabinet Tuesday that he has no intention of resigning

"the situation is fluid. We don't know what is going to happen."
The sources' comments in interviews reflected the clearly perceptible mood of uncertainty cloaking the corridors and cubby holes where the President's men work.

One after another, Nixon aides responded with a sigh or a shrug of their shoulders when asked what could or would happen next.
Some said they thought the wave of resignation and impeachment demands would subside. Others weren't too sure and privately were glum about the President's chances of clinging to the nation's highest office.

Presidential spokesmen did little to dispell the mood of uncertainty when they stopped short of ruling out a possible Nixon resignation.

Resignation demands mounted Tuesday, especially among congressional Republicans in the mushrooming reaction to Nixon's dual, damaging disclosures Monday that he tried two years ago to thwart a major phase of the FBI's Watergate investigation, and that he withheld this information from Congress and his own lawyer.

Ford Aides Get 'Signal' To Prepare

DETROIT (AP) — Aides to Vice President Gerald R. Ford say he has signaled his staff to make preparations for his assumption of the presidency when and if President Nixon leaves office, according to the Detroit Free Press.

The newspaper said in today's edition that Ford aides, who asked not to be named, said they now feel they have the vice president's authorization to draw up policy and personnel proposals that Ford would have to act on in the White House.

Ford's staff said the mood represented a dramatic shift over the past day, according to the Free Press.

"In the last 18 hours things have changed," one aide was quoted as saying. "He understands what is happening because he is a realist. And because he knows what must be done for the country, he will make sure that he is ready."

Aides contrasted the situation to the orderly transition of power following an election, the Free Press said.

In addition, they said it was different from the ascension of a vice president following an assassination because Ford would want to move quickly to eliminate remnants of scandal from the administration and to restore public confidence, the paper said.

The Free Press said those who would have a key role in helping form a Ford administration include:

Robert T. Hartmann, his chief of staff; former Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird; former congressman John Marsh; L. William Seidman, a Grand Rapids businessman who has become a top organizer of the vice president's office; and Philip Buchen, a close friend and former Grand Rapids law partner of Ford.

The Free Press quoted aides as saying that Ford has been preparing himself in a general way to assume the presidency by studying major problems — especially economics and foreign policy. He was said to be keeping close touch with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and top Pentagon policymakers.

One aide was quoted as saying that Ford realizes his political future following assumption of the presidency would depend on a successful assault on inflation and would make this his top priority.

Deputy Press Secretary
Gerald L. Warren skirted direct answers to reporters who pressed him repeatedly to say flatly that Nixon would not resign.

Finally, Warren said, "He does not intend to resign."
Rather, the spokesman said, Nixon intends to "see that the business of the people continues ... as we move through the constitutional process."

By constitutional process,
Warren said he meant a Senate impeachment trial.

But he dodged questions on whether the "constitutional process" might include invoking the 25th Amendment, which sets procedures for a president to temporarily step aside if unable to carry out the duties of office.

Warren said that when Nixon met Sunday with his closest aides at Camp David, Md., there was no discussion of using the 25th Amendment to install Vice President Gerald R. Ford as acting chief executive until completion of a Senate trial.

But the spokesman confirmed what other White House sources disclosed Monday night — that Nixon again considered during the weekend whether to resign.

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day, but the phone service is available 24 hours a day.

INTERFERENCE RUINED TAPE
I have an expensive stereo set. On this and on my television set, I frequently get interference from what I suppose are CB radioers. Just now I was recording from my stereo onto an expensive tape when I got some of this interference. It destroyed my tape. E.L.

A local amateur radio operator says your interference may be coming from an amateur (ham) radio operator, a citizen's band operator, police car, or a taxi cab. He said there are inexpensive devices which may be installed in both television and stereo sets to eliminate the picking up of radio transmissions. He suggested you write District Engineer, Federal Communications Commission Field Engineering Office, Norfolk, Va. 23501, and ask for "Attachment 3 to Audio Rectification Bulletin."

NEEDS SON'S ADDRESS
My son called June 29 from Fort Belvoir, where he was stationed, and said he was leaving that day for Korea. We haven't heard anything from him since. Can you help me find out how he is? Mrs. P.W.

Your daughter told Hotline your son's name and Social Security number. On the advice of the local Army recruiter, we called the Post Locator at Fort Belvoir and were given his current mailing address.

MAIN ZIP OR NONE?
If you want to send a letter to a large city and don't know the zip code for the particular area of the city, is it better to use the main zip code for the city or none at all? C.B.T.

Use the main zip code for the city, Linda Mills at the Greenville Post Office said. "The first three numbers will get your letter to the proper sectional center," she said, "and once it's at the main post office for the city, someone there will be familiar enough with the city to get it to the proper station, from which it can be delivered."

BEARDS FOR POLICEMEN?
Why can't Greenville policemen grow bicentennial beards? B.G.

Police Chief Glenn Cannon said no decision has been made on whether Greenville policemen may become "Brothers of the Brush," as Greenville men are urged to do. "We're going to hold some discussions soon on the matter," he promised. Police regulations now decree that all officers be clean-shaven.

Pleads Guilty To Bribing Connally

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —
Texas lawyer Jake Jacobsen today pleaded guilty to a charge of bribing his one-time friend John B. Connally with $10,000.

In return, the Watergate special prosecution force agreed to drop the government's seven-count indictment against Jacobsen in an unrelated savings and loan scandal in San Angelo, Tex., and to bring no further charges against Jacobsen concerning matters already uncovered by the

Jacobsen was indicted last week at the same time Connally was named in a five-count indictment charging bribery, perjury and a conspiracy to obstruct justice. Connally is scheduled to enter his plea Friday and has said he is innocent.

Jacobsen promised prosecutors to testify truthfully at a trial if called as a witness.
He is expected to be the Watergate prosecutor's star witness at the anticipated trial of Connally, a former secretary of the Treasury and one-time governor of Texas.

Jacobsen said, in pleading before U.S. District Judge George L. Hart Jr., that he had given Connally two $5,000 payments on behalf of his client, Associated Milk Producers Inc., the nation's largest dairy cooperative.

The money allegedly was given to Connally in return for his help in persuading President Nixon to raise federal milk price supports in March 1971.

Jacobsen was once a close aide to the late President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Legislature Intended ECU Med School Go To Four Years, Says Scott

State Sen. Ralph Scott (Dmorning that the 1974 General Assembly—in passing a bill directing the expansion of the one-year medical school at East Carolina University—intended that the school eventually become a four-year degree granting medical school.

Scott expressed that opinion as he appeared on the "Carolina Today" program aired over television station WNCT-TV.

According to the Senate leader, in his opinion, the Education Bd. Giving Virginia Firm Extra Time To Lease Old Gym

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer
The Pitt County Board of Education yesterday agreed to give the Winslow-Atkins Equipment Company of Hampton, Va., until Aug. 15 to complete an agreement with the board on the leasing of the old Ayden High School gymnasium.

According to Tom Craft, associate superintendent of the Pitt County Schools, a lease was mailed to the company in May to be signed and returned to the board. The lease was to become effective June 1.

Craft said company officials called yesterday and said they were still interested in leasing the building but no reason was given for the delay in signing and returning the lease to the local school office.

Bill McLawhorn, board member of Ayden, stated he felt the company had had ample time to sign the agreement if they were still interested in the building.

"If the company doesn't accept the lease by Aug. 15, I feel the property should be appraised and put up for sale,"

McLawhorn said. "The company has had time to review the lease and return it to us. More than two months of the lease have already expired. We need some action on the part of the Winslow company."

The Town of Ayden approached the school board several months earlier seeking to have the school property turned over to the town for recreational purposes. The town agreed to renovate the property and turn the building back over to the board of education if the town no longer had a need for the facility.

McLawhorn's motion was approved by the board. Assistant Superintendent J. L. Keeter discussed a school health program guide that will be distributed to all county school personnel.

Keeter explained the guide contains state policies on school health; emergency treatment; screening process in the school, such as who does the screening and when it should take place; and job descriptions.

Keeter expressed a need to have at least one certified person at each school to administer first aid in case of an emergency, and Board members endorsed the project.

Keeter told the board that $31,000 had been funded by the state for the local migrant education project that is being held at Chicod Elementary School.

According to Keeter, a total of 84 migrants have enrolled in the program but each session averages only about 40 persons. Attendance is low this year as compared with attendance in past years.

Outstanding comments from the state concerning the local project included: academic areas are well; awards night program good idea; banking program is good; and field trips provide excellent opportunities for the workers to visit places they would otherwise not see.

The central office is also planning an in-school migrant program so that migrant children will receive instruction in the areas of math and reading. The project will cost approximately $20,000. The plan will be submitted to Raleigh for

Garment Workers Have Trouble With Styles

By LYNNE OLSON
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP)—The women at the fashion show watched with avid interest as a model wearing a denim pants suit strolled down the runway, followed later by a girl in a filmy black cocktail dress with a deep V-neck and practically no back.

Seven blocks away, Gum, the biggest department store in Moscow, displayed nothing remotely resembling the fashions the women had seen at Moscow's House of Fashion.

In a top Soviet Newspaper, a reader recently complained to Vyacheslav Zaitsev, the Soviet Union's foremost fashion designer, about the lack of attractive clothes. "Why can't we get 'fashionable' fashions?" she asked.

Part of the problem is that industry — until recently, at least — hasn't produced what the designers created.

An official of the Soviet Ministry of Light Industry recently criticized designers of the House of Fashion, the haute couture of the Soviet fashion industry, and other designers for creating clothes which could not be duplicated by clothing factories. Zaitsev, on the other hand, complained in an interview two years ago that "we send designs to the factories and sometimes don't recognize them as our own when the articles appear."

But today the designers and the Ministry of Light Industry, which governs the Soviet fashion world, claim they're on the road to solving the problem.

Now, fashion houses must work directly with clothing factories in their design of clothes, "taking into account the peculiarities of mass production, technological opportunities, availability of cloth. And decoration," said G. P. Antonova, a ministry official.

And it still remains to be seen whether the frilly, feminine clothes modeled at that recent fashion show will actually turn up in stores a year from now. They can't be purchased at the House of Fashion.

Few attractive things are currently in the shops. A check of several clothing stores and the clothing sections of large department stores revealed a limited selection of dresses and pantsuits, most of which appeared to be designed for plump, middle-aged women.

Despite her problems in getting attractive clothes, the Russian woman has become more fashion conscious and better dressed in the past few years, say Westerners living in Moscow.

Clothes are more colorful and styles more varied, they report. Many young women have rejected the frizzy, dyed hair and heavy makeup of their elder sisters and mothers and opted for long hair and the natural look. Jeans are a more common sight now on the streets. Most of the better-dressed women do not buy ready-made clothes, Westerners say. They either make them themselves or have them made by dressmakers, using patterns or pictures cut out of fashion magazines.

"The material available and the patterns have improved much more than retail clothes," said one American.

Zaitsev said he wants to improve both the quality of clothes on the rack and the fashion-consciousness of all Russians, including men.

"People should be as well dressed when they go to work, as when they go to the theater, concerts or weekend parties," he said in a recent article in Literaturnaya Gazeta (Literary Gazette).

The boyish-looking designer, his longish hair curling softly around his face, admitted that the Soviet fashion industry provides no guidance for women on what should be worn where.

"We keep that information secret, creating grounds for incredible rumors," he said in the article. "For example, young girls are saying that the look to have now is a round face and plucked eyebrows. That's absurd."

He advocated a weekly Soviet television program to advise women what to wear to work, parties and the theater and "what we should renounce in order not to look old-fashioned."

The 26-year-old designer also advocated opening specialty shops or boutiques for young people to help them improve their fashion consciousness.

Zaitsev outlined his ideas in a long interview with several American correspondents at the House of Fashion. Several other designers and a couple of models sat in.

The top designer in a country which frowns on individuals asserting themselves, Zaitsev animatedly pushes individuality.

"Two or three years ago, we admired and idolized French designers," he said, "but in the course of time we have developed and matured. The time of blind admiration of European fashion vanished, and we have come to critical attitudes to their proposals. They're a barometer for us. We check ourselves against them..."

The spring-summer collection, however, shows a definite Western influence, with denim pantsuits, jeans, casual cotton pants and tops for the beach, and flowing chiffon and crepe cocktail dresses.

Zaitsev displays his own style in exuberantly colored long print peasant dresses, with the skirt slit to the waist.

Abby Called On To Explain 'Miracle'

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Your advice works miracles. On June 2, the Philadelphia Bulletin ran the following item, datelined Toronto, Canada:

"The tax department received a letter along with a tax return recently.

"I haven't been able to sleep since cheating on my income tax," the letter read. "Am enclosing my check for $500. If still unable to sleep, will mail you the balance."

The following item appeared on the same day in the DEAR ABBY column in the Washington (D.C.) Star-News:

"DEAR ABBY, I haven't been able to sleep very well. You see, I did a little creative bookkeeping on my income tax by way of 'deductions.' Any suggestions?"

INSOMNIAIC

"DEAR IN: Send the Internal Revenue Service a check for $500. And if you still can't sleep, send them the balance."

Now, that's what I call action!

A.C. ROBIDOUX, DOVER, DEL.

DEAR A.C.: Not really. The letter in my column was scheduled for release on March 22nd. And that's when it ran in Toronto.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has a big mouth. I've heard that he has been blabbing all around the warehouse where he works all kinds of personal things about his sex life.

This is very embarrassing to me because I know all the guys who work there, and I can hardly look them in the eye knowing they know so much about me.

This is enough to make me want to pack up and leave him. Am I wrong?

STELLA

DEAR STELLA: Don't pack until you're sure he was talking about you.

DEAR ABBY: My wife of 20 years has never shown me much affection.

You may say: "All right, some people just aren't the affectionate type," but let me lay this on you. When she and her brother get together, you never saw so much hugging, kissing and pawing in your life. They can't keep their hands off each other.

The other night they both sat squeezed together in one little loveseat, and it was obvious that they had more than a sister-brother relationship going.

I didn't make an issue of it because I didn't know how to. This is something completely outside my experience. Maybe divorce is the answer, but I don't want that.

Please publish this with a workable solution as there must be other readers of your column with the same problem.

PUZZLED IN NEW ORLEANS

DEAR PUZZLED: Don't jump to any conclusions. You could be wrong, and you probably are. Many siblings are overtly affectionate to each other, and they have nothing going except brotherly and sisterly love. Since your wife obviously is capable of responding to affection, initiate some, and see what happens.

CONFIDENTIAL TO KAY: Take your time, and get to know him better. When his true character "crops out," you may witness a crop failure.

COMPANY BRUNCH—Stuffed eggs served with yellow rice and pimiento sauce.

A Simple Menu Is Thrifty Way To Entertain Friends

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor.

Asking friends for brunch is one of the most economical ways to entertain. The menu can be simple. For a main dish you might like to serve Stuffed Eggs with Yellow Rice and Pimiento Sauce. You can offer an aperitif or tomato juice as a starter, accompany the main dish with chutney and biscuits or rolls and end with fruit.

Yellow rice comes seasoned with saffron, which gives it its color, and other flavorings. You can make your own yellow rice by using chicken broth for the liquid in cooking the rice and adding a little minced onion and garlic plus saffron or turmeric — the latter much less expensive than the former. When we tried this we used 1 cup converted (parboiled) rice and it made 4 cups cooked — just right for the 6-serving dish.

One cup long-grain rice yields only 3 cups cooked, so if that is your choice you may want to cook 1 and 1-3rd cups. You will need 1/2 teaspoon powdered saffron or turmeric for 1 cup uncooked rice; stir the saffron or turmeric and the onion and garlic into the boiling broth in which you are cooking the rice.

STUFFED EGGS WITH YELLOW RICE AND PIMIENTO SAUCE

6 eggs
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
2 to 3 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 cup finely diced leftover cooked chicken or turkey
1/2 cup minced celery
1/4 cup finely diced sweet pickle
Salt and white pepper to taste

10-ounce package yellow rice

Make the Pimiento Sauce ahead, cover the saucepan and set aside. Shortly before serving, hard-cook the eggs; cut in half lengthwise; remove yolks and mash; mix in all the remaining ingredients except the rice; fill egg-white halves with the mixture; cover and set aside. Just before serving, cook the rice and reheat the Pimiento Sauce. Turn the rice into a shallow 2-quart serving dish and pour over the hot sauce; top with the room-temperature stuffed eggs. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

PIMIENTO SAUCE
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup fat-free clear chicken broth
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon lemon juice
4-ounce can or jar pimiento, drained and diced
Salt to taste

In a medium saucepan over low heat, melt the butter; stir in the flour; remove from heat. Gradually stir in the broth and milk, keeping smooth. Cook, stirring constantly, over moderately low heat until thickened and bubbling. Stir in lemon juice, pimiento and salt. Makes about 2 1/2 cups.

Alternatives Needed In Juvenile System

By LAURENCE MOSKOWITZ
PITTSBURGH (UPI) — At 14, she was pregnant. Her concerned parents obtained an abortion for her.

At 17, she dropped out of high school, ran away from home and moved into a trailer with a married man. Her parents reported her missing.

State police found her and brought her to a child welfare center here.

"We love her," the father said, "but we have no choice."

The parents left the courtroom of Allegheny County Juvenile Court Judge Maurice B. Cohill Jr. in tears.

"This is a tough one," Cohill said after remanding the girl to the county juvenile detention center pending a hearing.

"Either there is no strong father figure, or the parents are too strict," he said. "Either way, it's no good."

"In this case," Cohill said, "the father was too strict."

The juvenile justice system in America is not exactly a well oiled, precision machine, in Cohill's view, but it is not guilty of being as haphazard and arbitrary as its critics charge.

"It's not the judicial system," said Cohill, who is head of the National Council of Juvenile Court Judges, based in Reno, Nev. "The real problem is finding adequate alternatives."

But how, asked Cohill, do you successfully integrate abused or delinquent children into their communities?

Richard Roe, 11, one of the plaintiffs in the suit, was found delinquent in juvenile court for threatening playmates with a loaded handgun.

His 10-year-old brother, Michael A., was placed in the McIntire Welfare Shelter after the court found his mother injured him with a rock and a shoe.

Michael B., 8, was taken to the shelter by police following a visit to his home where they found "the premises littered with human and animal excrement and garbage," the suit said.

Levine said the suit does not question the court's decision to take the children out of their home. Instead, the suit demanded the children be placed in shelters where adequate care could be provided.

"Defendants' continued incarceration of minor plaintiffs without providing treatment and rehabilitation programs," the suit said, "constitutes cruel and unusual punishment in violation of the Eighth Amendment."

Boys Club In Farmville To Close

By CAROL B. TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Farmville Commissioners were told last night that the Farmville unit of the Pitt County Boys' Club will close as of Aug. 15.

"We have about a hundred members," Mrs. Dave Gordon, president, told the Commissioners, "and they're doing great. You really should see the unsolicited testimonies of parents and school principals we have had as to the improvement of the boys who are members since they became part of the Club. We hate it, but we're closing because we do not have a place to meet. We were told by the Pitt County Schools that we could have the old agriculture building on the edge of the school property, but we cannot find a piece of land in Farmville or the immediate area on which to put it."

Also appearing before the Board was Graham Gutting, director of the Greenville Boys' Club unit and William Smith and Gene Cole, the last two directors of the Farmville unit. Smith expressed his regret and told the Board that Farmville, with its fine recreation programs, does not have anything that would meet the needs of "my boys, these low-income blacks."

Commissioner Leroy Redden expressed his regret that the program in Farmville might have to end. Commissioner Sarah Albritton inquired as to the cost of moving the building. "From $700 to $1,000, we've been told," Mrs. Gordon replied.

Water and Lights Department Director J.A. Wooten reported on a meeting attended by him and Commissioners Irving Morgan and W.R. Duke and their wives. He suggested the Commissioners go on record as urging conservation of electricity by Farmville consumers.

It was agreed to include the tiling of a ditch owned by the L.W. Andrews family, that part that is in the city limits, on the list of tiling projects throughout town.

Mrs. Edward King was promised that a ditch next to her house would be tiled as soon as street paving in the area is begun.

Opening of bid on paving projects was set for Aug. 27 at 10 a.m.

The changing of the local livestock ordinance was considered, but no action was taken. The ordinance now forbids the keeping of any livestock within the town limits, but it has not been strictly enforced. A horse owner has appealed that the ordinance be changed. A proposed ordinance would make it acceptable to have any livestock other than swine in town as long as the animals' enclosure is 100 feet from any inhabited dwelling.

Commissioner Duke suggested that the proposed ordinance be amended to say that no more persons could get horses, though those having them could continue to keep theirs.

Attorney Jack Lewis gave the opinion that this would be creating "a separate class" and would not be permissible, though Commissioner Duke said the same idea was used in the town's prohibition of more mobile homes being placed within the town limits.

There was discussion of the changing of traffic signals downtown, but the Commissioners agreed that the state should be contacted and that Division of Highways and local plans should be coordinated before any action is taken.

Condemnation proceedings were begun in order to get an easement across land adjacent to the town's proposed landfill for ditching to drain the landfill. These proceedings call for appraisers to determine the damage, if any, done to the landowners, after Farmville has shown that the easement is necessary.

Approval was given for the payment of $12,907.13 as the third installment on the town's water tank being constructed by the Pittsburgh-Des Moines Company.

Clover Phillips, representing the Marvin Tyson American Legion Post No. 372, appeared asking that the town construct tennis courts in the southern part of town. He suggested they be placed on the H.B. Sugg School property where there are lights provided by the H.B. Sugg Charitable Organization. Commissioner Redden agreed to talk to the Pitt County Schools about the possibility.

Evangelist Points To Founding Ideals

Dr. Hyman Appelman, A Russian-born Jew who has been a Christian evangelist for 44 years, is preaching at Grace Free Will Baptist Church here this week.

Pointing out that America is the only nation started for religious purposes, Dr. Appelman says, "Watergate and all that goes with it is like a boil—an erupting of bad blood in our culture." He said the present methods being used to solve the problems surrounding the Watergate scandal are like "putting a Band-Aid on cancer."

"What Americans need to realize," he stressed, "is that the fundamental wrong with the country is the disregard of God's plans that the founding father held to."

Born in Mogiliev, White Russia in 1907, he and his four brothers were brought by their parents to Chicago in 1914 so they could be educated. He earned his AB degree from Northwestern University and a law degree from DePaul University. He practiced law from 1921 to 1925.

Only in the spring of 1973, Dr. Appelman had 22 Bibles confiscated as he was going into the U.S.S.R. to preach. He said he believes if Americans could see what other peoples are subjected to, they would have a lot more faith in their own country.

Grace Church pastor, the Rev. Chester Phillips, invites Greenville citizens to hear Dr. Appelman nightly this week at 7:30.

Martin Bd. Takes Steps

WILLIAMSTON—Martin County Commissioners at their regular August meeting, on Monday, approved use of space in the former Martin County Hospital building on Liberty Street in Williamston to become office spaces for various agencies. Among those to use the space are the County Health Department, the Tideland Mental Health Association, and an office for the senior citizens agency.

Application was also approved by commissioners to rezone this area so that it will conform to a zoning designation that includes office use.

In other actions, commissioners approved a donation of $500 to the Red Cross, and directed the county clerk to contact the highway department to determine the possibility of reducing road speed limits from Hardison's Crossing to the railroad crossing a mile away, an action requested by residents of the area. Commissioners also approved an overall policy plan for the purchase of new equipment.

Jones Is Set To Impeach $98.53 Day At Farmville

By CARL L. TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

First District Congressman Walter B. Jones of Farmville has joined seven other N.C. congressmen who have stated they will vote for impeachment of the President.

Jones said this morning he has decided in favor of impeachment because of the President's disclosure Monday that he had withheld information and had knowledge of information earlier than he had previously stated regarding the Watergate investigation.

"Few if any members of Congress find any job or pleasure in the situation in which we find ourselves regarding the impeachment proceedings and certainly most of us were surprised and shocked by President Nixon's statement Monday in which he admitted that he had knowledge of certain law violations and obstructions of justice at a much earlier date than he had previously stated," said Jones.

The congressman added, "I have previously stated that if the evidence supports impeachment, that under my oath of office I would have no choice but to vote to permit the Senate to conduct a fair and impartial trial. Certainly the President's statement... as of this moment provides that evidence, to wit a full responsibility of attempting to obstruct justice by the President himself. Accordingly I have reluctantly concluded that I must vote to allow the impeachment process to go forward."

Jones had no comment when asked if he felt the President should resign rather than face a Senate trial.

Demand for pork in 1973 ran three to five per cent above 1972 levels.

Prices were "steady to strong" Tuesday on the Farmville Tobacco Market compared with previous sales, according to sales supervisor Louis Williams.

Williams said that several grades of lugs, cutters and leaf sold for as high as $1.06 per pound yesterday with other grades of tobacco advancing five to six cents per pound compared with sales on previous days.

The sales supervisor said that with offerings continuing to improve in quality, the Farmville market sold 676,892 pounds for $666,928 yesterday in averaging $98.53 per hundred pounds.

Tuesday's average, Williams observed, was some $12 per hundred pounds above the average on the same sales day last year.

To date, the market has sold 5,662,518 pounds for $5,003,753 pounds in posting a season average of $88.37.

Stabilization received only .53 per cent of total sales yesterday, he added.

BALLOONIST KILLED—Wreckage of Robert Berger's balloon is hoisted ashore Tuesday at the Good Luck Point Marina in Berkeley Township, New Jersey. Berger, 46, of Philadelphia, was killed when his helium-filled balloon burst and plummeted into Barnegat Bay. Berger told reporters prior to lifting off he was trying to cross the Atlantic Ocean. He reportedly had never piloted or flown in a balloon. (AP Wirephoto)

The Board of Governors of the University of North Carolina are to present plans to the 1975 General Assembly that would implement the 1974 Legislature's expansion authorization.

Scott expressed concern that "responsible" plans be presented to the General Assembly.

He said too that UNC President William Friday and ECU Chancellor Dr. Leo Jenkins are the "only ones" responsible for planning the ECU medical school expansion and that they are "cooperating" in efforts to develop a meaningful program.

Nixon Can No Longer Govern

In an astounding revelation Monday, President Nixon admitted that he tried to slow the FBI Watergate investigation in 1972 recognizing that he would be protecting his re-election committee.

Moreover, the president withheld the information from the House Judiciary Committee and the courts. "This was a serious act of omission for which I take full responsibility and which I deeply regret," Nixon's prepared statement said.

Nixon said transcripts of the material will be furnished to the Senate. It is a foregone conclusion now that the Senate will be conducting an impeachment proceedings.

"I recognize that this additional material I am now furnishing may further damage my case, especially because attention will be drawn separately to it rather than to the evidence in its entirety," the president said.

The president urged Congress and the public to keep in mind that he did later order Acting FBI Director Patrick Gray to push on with the investigation and that the evidence be looked at in its entirety.

"I am firmly convinced that the record, in its entirety, does not justify the extreme step of impeachment and removal of a president," he said.

Many of Nixon's staunchest supporters did not agree at all. Rep. Charles Wiggins, R-Calif., who defended the president in House Judiciary Committee proceedings, Monday called for the president's resignation.

Rep. Wiley Mayne, R-Iowa, who voted against impeachment said he will now vote in favor of impeachment.

Some other presidential supporters on the committee indicated they were rethinking their positions.

Speculation was rampant Tuesday that the president would resign. This would be the most honorable thing he could do at this stage. All the Watergate problems have been piling up and this latest disclosure amounts to a deceit of the American people by their president.

There is no way that Richard M. Nixon can ever govern the nation effectively again. He can, perhaps, partially redeem himself by stepping down as president and ending this agonizing situation which now grips our government.

Facilities For Treatment

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—The Home of Assurance in Charlotte is a prime example of a community treatment facility which hit upon hard times getting set up—but is now proving its merit in a neighborhood which fought bitterly against it.

The director of the Home of Assurance is Stacy L. Long, and his job is to run the community home in which are housed both state and federal prisoners either on work release programs or awaiting parole.

In its first two years, a total of 112 men have lived in the house. Six have gone back to prison, not for new crimes, but for parole violations and such, Long said.

Long is an ex-convict who has served time in both state and federal prisons on convictions of bank robbery, safe-cracking, and murder. He is now director of United Christian Prison Ministries in addition to the Home of Assurance, and preaches his message to any who will listen.

Plan Hit

When Long first started the effort to locate the Home of Assurance in Charlotte, he had already been secretly keeping prisoners in his home—without complaint. But when his plan to open a neighborhood facility became known, the storm was intense.

Week after week Long fought opponents, including an entire community development association, until he won City Council approval of his plan.

"And today, one of the ladies who was our most outspoken opponent calls up when she is going out of town on vacation and asks us to look after her house," Long said.

Another bitter opponent has since come around with a $228 check collected in her Sunday School class, Long said, and a member of the staff at the Home of Assurance—just released from Atlanta Penitentiary—is serving actively on three committees of the community development association which led the fight against the home.

And recently, Long received the Bar Association Liberty Bell award as Charlotte's outstanding citizen of the year. "And there I was, standing up before 300 people—judges, lawyers, policemen—I used to fight with, and they're all applauding and presenting me an award for community service," he recalls.

So it is only natural to ask the man who has been through the fire for some hints on how to win community acceptance for a neighborhood treatment facility.

You Can't Win

"They could pass all kinds of laws, and say all kinds of things about the need, but as for getting the general public to accept the idea, you can't," Long answered bluntly.

The biggest problem is fear of the unknown—people expect the worst, and build those fears to enormous proportions when they envision a community home of any sort, he said. And the biggest mistake made in locating one is trying to convince the community otherwise.

It took Long five months to get a location in Charlotte. Looking back over that struggle, he has settled on these suggestions:

1. Don't try to get community acceptance before you get a toe-hold. Be real quiet, check the location thoroughly, and check your zoning and health laws to make sure the facility will comply. Then move in.

2. Don't try to make friends; but do try not to make enemies. Keep the home inside and out sparkling clean, first class; and begin going out in the neighborhood and working to improve, clean up, and get acquainted. Then, just let it grow.

3. Caution the people who live there that everybody is watching and waiting for a chance to get us out; we can't afford to make a single mistake and spoil it for all of us.

Most importantly, Long said, get a local board of directors made up widely of community people to help run in facility, and keep everything honest and above-board.

But is there a secret formula for winning community acceptance?

"No. You don't even try. You just go in and make sure you're legal and keep quiet and keep your nose clean. Then, the community may accept you. But never beforehand."

The INSIDE REPORT

A Leaderless Government

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The withdrawal of President Nixon from active control and direction of the government is beginning to worry Republican leaders in Congress almost as much as the tidal wave of impeachment.

Virtually all contact has been severed between President Nixon's congressional leaders and the White House. Indeed, mesmerized by the fatal turn of events since the House Judiciary Committee voted its impeachment articles with overwhelming bipartisan majorities last week, the White House is also dangerously insulating itself from vital decision-making and workaday operations of its own agencies and departments. Only foreign policy seems immune and only because Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has unique standing.

As one high-ranking Republican leader in the House told us: "They have disappeared into the White House bunkers looking for an impeachment strategy that doesn't exist."

The potentially critical loss of administration involvement in non-impeachment congressional business was dramatized last Tuesday on the floor of the House. No Oval Office signal was received on the budget-busting mass transit conference report. The bill, carrying $800 million more for the current fiscal year than the White House wanted, was ticketed for routine passage.

At the last minute, Rep. John Anderson of Illinois, chairman of the House Republican Conference, contacted Rep. Chalmers Wylie of Ohio, a Republican member of the mass transit subcommittee of the House Banking Committee. Together, they decided that a motion to recommit the bill to conference with the Senate might pass. Wylie offered it, Anderson spoke for it and the bill was sent back to conference.

"That would have been a White House operation for sure, but we never heard a word," Anderson told us.

Likewise, within the administration, cabinet members who have had only one formal meeting with Mr. Nixon since mid-June are steering as clear as they can from asking White House decisions on new policy.

Three cabinet members told us they are spending much of their time outside Washington, concentrating when here on drafting their new budget requests for next year and avoiding contact with top presidential aides inside the White House.

The mood was summed up by one: "I don't even think about impeachment because if I did I might find myself pulling the ripcord and bailing out."

Even in the desperately critical area of the economy President Nixon has been avoiding all but cursory involvement. He has called, a couple of highly publicized but meaningless sessions with big business and private economists. Far more important, however, he has had not one single private huddle with Dr. Arthur Burns, the powerful chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, since Jan. 1. In all that time, Burns has been to the White House only for a few formal meetings of the Quadriad, the government's top-level economic policy body.

Noting the absence of the prestigious Burns at the much-ballyhooed July 11. White House economic session with top industrialists and private economists, Mr. Nixon in an attempt at humor said: "Arthur talks to God" (Continued on page 5)

"By executive order, you may continue to report only to me, your parole officer."

A Do-Nothing Executive

WASHINGTON—The thrust of President Nixon's new economic policy is to do nothing. The Administration's economic advisers have decided that, except for blaming the American people for inflation, it would be much wiser just to sit out the economic storms swirling around the nation and see what happens.

The director of the Economic Office of Doing Nothing is Mr. Chauncey Armageddon and, since he doesn't have much to do, he very kindly agreed to see me in the Executive Office Building of the White House. When I walked into his office he was making paper airplanes from economic reports and sailing them across the room.

"Mr. Armageddon, you must have one of the toughest jobs in the Administration." "I should hope so," he said. "It isn't easy to do nothing about an economic crisis of this proportion. But, fortunately, I've got the full backing of the President. I also have managed to put together an excellent staff of economists who believe in a laissez-faire philosophy."

"What do you do?" I asked.

"Oh," Armageddon

chuckled, "I get you. Well, we do a lot of things. Our main function is to prevent other people in the government from doing anything. For example, when a report comes out that the cost of living has gone up, we immediately contact the departments of Commerce and Agriculture and tell them to do nothing about it. If we see unemployment rising, we call in the Labor people and explain to them why it would be better to ignore it."

"How do you feel about high interest rates?" "We fell very strongly about them. That's why we're not doing anything about them."

"What's your position on two-digit inflation?" "The President is very concerned about two-digit inflation, and he has instructed us to make it one of the highest priorities. He told me personally that if we do nothing about anything it has to be inflation."

"I imagine your office also concerns itself with tax reform."

"We certainly do. If you have tax reform you'll be setting economic forces to work that no one will be able to control. The Administration's position is that if we don't do anything about tax reform we will have made

Parolee Given A Hand

By PATRICI MC CORMACK

UPI Family Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sometimes there's more to a handicap than meets the eye.

Parolees, for example, look like regular persons. But at job application time, their handicap becomes evident. When they answer that question about — ever arrested, ever spend time in jail.

Parolees are being helped with their hidden handicaps by Goodwill Industries of America. The new thrust in Goodwill is based on a pilot project in Cincinnati — showing that Goodwill Industries can fill a gap in services to the parolees.

National Director Dean Phillips described the new horizon during the Goodwill Industries annual meeting in New York.

Phillips said expansion of the parolee program is based on success Cincinnati's director, W. Sharon Floren, had in helping parolees. Floren mixed common sense with psychological basics.

"Quietly, steadily, Sharon Floren has been supplanting the handicap of hostility on the part of parolees with, aptly, goodwill," Phillips said.

For the past 11 months groups of 10 parolees went to Cincinnati's Goodwill classes — each class: four weeks.

"The first problem for the parolees is acceptance of us," Floren said.

"The parole boards handpick each parolee to come to us. Each one knows it is to their distinct advantage to cooperate but in the beginning psychological resistance runs deep."

"At first they demonstrate their hostility to new-found freedom by being as different as people expect them to be," Floren said.

"They wear crazy hats, shirts, pen, that sort of thing. If society thinks they are different, then, that's what they will be."

"For the first week, it looks like Halloween."

Floren and his associates first help parolees to see that the Halloween look isn't going to help them find a place in society.

"We help them to make the decision to change costumes, manners and attitude. They play role-playing, acting-out games. It's put on videotape and played back. The "actors" then are cast in the role of critic.

In one such game, for example, a parolee acts as a personnel manager. A parolee comes in to find a job.

"By placing these people in a different status role in society — even though make-believe, we are helping them to approach such a position in eventual real life," Floren said.

Criticism from parolees' peers include — not being neat, not looking the prospective boss in the eye, poor enunciation and that sort of thing.

"Instead of forcing the subjects back into a shell, the criticism eventually brings out positive attitudes and confidence," Floren said.

"Hey, man, that dude stuff you got on won't do," a critic says. "Gotta be conservative to get this job."

The critic himself a week or two before wore pants and suspenders — no shirt. He was wrapped in a sullen attitude.

Criticism from his peers changed him. And so it goes.

Police are brought in to talk — at the next stage. This includes the parolees dressing in conventional work clothes and coming to work at Goodwill, punching a timeclock.

Other Editors Say Bargain Vacations

(Greensboro Daily News)

Although August doldrums persuade many of us to enjoy distant retreats, listening to the crash of waves on a beach or gazing out at splendid mountain vistas, it all costs money, and usually too much money to enjoy for long.

The federal government, out of consideration for the hard work put in by its high officials in the White House and cabinet, has for years maintained holiday "cabins," some within a weekend's drive of Washington, for which the dignitaries paid very little, compared to resort rates on the open market.

That consideration has apparently ended, however, and the National Park Service, which runs cut-rate hideaways, has decided to turn the buildings over the park staffs. The Congress consented without a murmur, even though members were among the few privileged to use the spots.

So the $25-a-day oceanfront house on the dunes of Cape Cod, where John Ehrlichman three years ago this month approved the Fielding break-in over the telephone, is, this summer, not available to congressmen and Nixon staffers exhausted from Watergate and Washington in general. Nor are similarly inexpensive accommodations on St. Thomas and St. John in the Virgin Islands, in national park areas in Maryland and Virginia, or here in North Carolina, at Cape Hatteras.

The Park Service, will, however, maintain for these important vacationers a lodge in the Grant Teton National Park, where a group can share two trout streams and three houses for a total of $75 a night.

While we don't begrudge our devoted public officials their day of rest, the National Park Service may have unwittingly helped them to understand what the dollar can and especially cannot buy these days, and to act accordingly when they return to the capital.

Strength For Today

THE EARLY CHRISTIAN CHURCH

It is a refreshing experience to read the history of the Christian Church during the first and second centuries. Some of the wisest and noblest men the world has produced were connected with the church at this time. The wisdom of Peter, John, and Paul is acknowledged by all students of the Bible, but few people know that these stalwarts of the apostolic period were followed by a host of great men and good, some of whom died for the faith and all of whom lived a life of simple faith.

example, died a martyr early in the second century. Polycarp suffered martyrdom at Smyrna in 155 A.D. at a very great age. Irenaeus, Bishop of Lyons, wrote about the joy and power of the Christian faith in a manner vivid and compelling even today. Tertullian, about 200 A.D. commended the teachings of Christ to a pagan world in the crisp, racy style of modern journalism.

The lives of these ancient saints prove again that Christ has always been a source of power for those who trust him.

No Magic In A New President

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The removal of President Nixon from office would do little immediately and directly to brighten the gray economic picture that Americans have viewed with frustration for so many months.

Many people are bound to view a new administration as a beginning, and therefore the depressed consumer outlook that shows up regularly in the polls might tend to lift. But the underlying problems won't disappear.

The stock market, to cite an obvious illustration, might put on one of its occasional spasms, but unless the economic facts are there to support higher prices that's all it might be, a paroxysm of excitement that can't be sustained.

It takes money to lift stocks, and that money at the moment is being invested mainly in the credit markets, where interest rates are so high that former stock owners have become bond holders.

A new president won't magically bring order. Inflation doesn't respond to a wave of a magic wand either and it cannot be resolved by edict or plea. World demand for goods still exceeds supply. Bad weather destroys crops. Workers need pay raises. Prices rise.

The jobless rate might rise also, as most economists predict, perhaps to 6 per cent by the end of the year. The recession most likely will run its course. Housing can be expected to stay depressed.

True, a goodly number of people who felt the Watergate matter was a reason to suspend all plans and projections, now will be more inclined to act, and therefore some economic activity might result.

But simply because an individual now feels confident enough to buy the house so long postponed doesn't mean that he'll get the money to buy it. The savings institutions don't have it to lend.

It's the same with business loans. While some executives might decide that a presidential resignation or impeachment is an economic watershed, similar to the end of a major war, and therefore a time to spend and expand, they might not be able to find the funds to do so.

The economy's problems have a very real identity that is not even remotely associated with Watergate. True, many economists believe Watergate has worsened some problems, and may even have caused others. But it isn't the sole cause.

At best, a change might recharge faded hopes, restore pride and confidence, and reinforce the belief of so many Americans that the country can always work out its problems if given the leadership.

Traffic Safety Into Churches

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Traffic safety leaders in North Carolina will take their battle to reduce highway carnage into the state's churches with the obser-vanee of Traffic Safety Sabbath Weekend on Aug. 23-25. Clergymen and lay leaders have been meeting with state Highway Patrol officers in a series of highway safety workshops to get ready for observance of the weekend which will begin at 6 p.m. Friday, Aug. 23, with church bells ringing throughout the state. Gov. Jim Holshouser has issued a proclamation officially designating the weekend. He called on citizens "to give active and loyal support to their spiritual leaders by attending the church of their choice with their families on Traffic Safety Sabbath and by driving with their headlights on Aug. 23, 24 and 25, 1974, to indicate their willingness at all times to driver as their brother's keeper." The governor asked ministers to exercise their "moral and spiritual leadership" to convince their congregations that "driving to prevent accidents is morally right and in keeping with the Golden Rule." "We believe that a combined effort on the part of the religious leaders can cut down considerably on the tragedy of highway slaughter," said Boyd C. Miller Jr., state motor vehicles commissioner. Although Traffic Safety Weekend Sabbath has been observed in North Carolina for several years, the drive to make it effective has been more determined this year than ever before. Before the series of highway safety workshops was held, about 16,000 kits containing highway safety information — including a safety sermon by evangelist Billy Graham — were mailed out to ministers and others. Co. E. W. Jones, commander of the Highway Patrol, has been speaking to each of the workshops, reciting statistics and giving suggestions for safety sermons. "Respect for traffic safety and compliance to its needs merits a higher place in a Christian's code of ethics and personal conduct than that has been given heretofore," he said. Highway Safety Sabbath Weekend is only one facet of a drive to reduce traffic acci-idents that has been carried out under Jones' direction recently. Last week, to dramatize the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit, Jones had patrol cars drive side-by-side for several miles along interstate highways at 55. Traffic behind them was forced to observe the speed limit. Jones credits the 55 speed limit with major responsibility for a reduction of 247 in highway fatalities in the state so far this year. He says if the same rate of reduction could be obtained for the rest of the year, "We could come up at the end of the year with 400 less fatalities."

MUSICIAN DIES

CHICAGO (AP)—Eugene "Jug" Ammons, a renowned jazz saxophonist, died Tuesday after suffering from pneumonia. He was 49. Ammons played with most of the jazz greats, including Dizzy Gillespie, Charlie Parker and Miles Davis.

After, the parolees learn to fill out job applications and to sell themselves during an interview. Instruction centers also on handling telephone manners — to secure appointments.

There also is instruction on interpreting the want ads. They follow up on their job approaches — going to real interviews. Most come back and report on success in that effort. Failures are infrequent. The Cincinnati plan has resulted in 80 per cent of the parolees landing jobs! "I tell my parolees — you only fail when you fail to try," Floren said.

a major accomplishment toward the fight for a stable economy."

"Mr. Armageddon, is there any point that you could foresee where the President might have to do something about the economic state of the country?"

"I can't see anything on the horizon. If we produce more and buy less, then the marketplace will take care of itself. The key to a strong economy is the public's confidence in its leaders.

"Since President Nixon has the confidence of the country, and they know he has neither the time nor the intention of doing anything, the American people will solve their own problems, which is the way it should be. Nobody wants a President to tell him what to do when it comes to such personal matters as inflation, high prices and unemployment."

"Your phone is ringing," I said to Armageddon.

"I know, but I'm not going to answer it," he replied.

"Why not?"
"It might be somebody who wants me to do something about an economic problem, and if I don't take the call I won't have to do anything about it."

and occasionally allows me to talk to him." What Mr. Nixon did not say was that Dr. Burns was not even invited.

Time and again these past few weeks the President has abruptly canceled or postponed one meeting after another with his top aides: Secretary of the Treasury William Simon on the morning of July 30; Secretary of Housing James Lynn on July 24, both rescheduled, and two meetings of his economic advisers last Thursday which still have not been held.

Each of those postponements directly resulted from the President's impeachment battle.

Yet, despite the desperate 24-hour-a-day search for a way out, the impeachment noose continues to tighten. One top-level Republican strategist is talking about "salvaging" some Republicans now leaning toward a pro-impeachment vote, not to prevent impeachment but to make the vote slightly more respectable for the President.

A Southern Democratic leader now sees a better than even chance that the entire Democratic delegations of North Carolina, Georgia and Alabama will end up voting for impeachment. A Northern pro-Nixon Republican counts only 28 Southern Democrats against impeachment from Maryland to Texas.

Thus, no matter how much the President continues to withdraw from the workaday operations of the federal government in pursuit of self-preservation, his search for salvation may be doomed. The coming months, then, will test a novel proposition: whether the American government can run itself without direction from the top.

Brothers Charged

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Two San Antonio brothers have been charged with aiding and abetting Fred Gomez Carrasco in his fatal attempt to escape the Texas State Prison at Huntsville.

Authorities identified the men as Don Michael Colsten, 27, and William Colsten, 34. Bond was set at $100,000 each Tuesday night.

Authorities said the two allegedly "facilitated" the three weapons used by Carrasco and two other convicts in a 10-day holdout at the prison, where they held a total of 16 hostages. Carrasco, accomplice Rodolfo Dominguez and two hostages died in a shootout last Saturday night.

In Austin, Gov. Dolph Briscoe told newsmen he feels Texas Corrections Director W. J. Estelle "did all that was humanly possible" to protect the lives of hostages held by the armed convicts, considering the safety of the state at large.

"With all other Texans I grieve for the two slain hostages and their families. We all prayed that their lives could have been spared," Briscoe said.

Four Accidents Here Tuesday

An estimated $4,350 property damage resulted yesterday in a series of four collisions investigated by Greenville police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 5:15 p.m. collision on Memorial Drive 100 feet north of the Millbrook Street intersection involving cars driven by Jack Thomas of 2902 South Memorial Dr. and Ann Harrell Edwards of 2900 Jefferson Dr.

Police, who charged Mrs. Edwards with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety estimated damage at $1,200 to the Edwards car and $500 to the Thomas vehicle.

Alfred Jerome Hyman of Ayden was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of an 8 p.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard, 112 feet East of the Arlington Boulevard intersection.

Damage was estimated at $1,000 to the Hyman vehicle and $550 to the second auto involved, driven by Robert Alpha Pollock of 106G Cherry Court.

Ronald Ennis of Winterville was charged with improper passing following investigation of a 4:10 p.m. mishap at the intersection of 14th and Spruce Streets.

Police said the Ennis car collided with a vehicle driven by Cassandra Harris of 1502 Spruce St. resulting in an estimated $300 damage to the Harris car and $500 damage to the Ennis auto.

An estimated $150 damage resulted to each of two vehicles involved in a 1:10 p.m. collision at the intersection of Sixth Street and McKinley Avenue.

Officers identified the drivers of the two vehicles involved in the mishap as Steve Calvin Reddick of Route 1, Belvedere and Louise Battle Jenkins of 1009 West Sixth St.

Mrs. Jenkins was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

Leaf Averages Reach $97.22

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Tobacco sales on the Eastern North Carolina Belt Tuesday brought a record average of $97.22 per hundred pounds, an increase of $1.88 from the previous day.

The Federal-State Market News Service said demand also continued strong on markets in the South Carolina and border North Carolina area while the price trend was mixed on the Old and Middle Belts.

Most increases on the Eastern Belt were chiefly $1 to $3 per hundred pounds. A few losses were reported for some lower primings and nondescript. Volume of sales remained heavy at most warehouses.

Increases of $1 to $5 were reported for nearly two-thirds of the grades sold on the South Carolina and border North Carolina markets. The practical top price remained at $105 per hundred pounds. Leaf, cutters and lugs showed gains of $1 and $2 in most cases while low primings and nondescript rose $2 to $5. Sales Tuesday totaled 5,917,283 pounds, averaging $101.26, a drop of 24 cents from Monday.

Prices for fair and low quality lugs declined on the Old and Middle Belts. Most priming grades showed increases. About 80 per cent of the offerings consisted of low and good primings and nondescript. Fourteen of the 16 markets in the two belts reported sales totaled 4,102,199 pounds for an average of $86.65, an increase of $1.27 from Monday.

BARBARA LEA, a shy blonde, has been selected as the female lead on the syndicated Porter Wagoner television show. (AP Wirephoto)

Tennessee Girl
Porter's Choice
To Replace Dolly

By CHRISTOPHER CABOT
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE (AP)—When Barbara Lea mailed a photograph and two records to Porter Wagoner in May, she didn't dream she'd get a job interview.

Two days later, she met Wagoner in his Music Row office. Within a month, Barbara Lea had been selected from 4,000 applicants for a female lead on Wagoner's syndicated television show. She was the new Wagoner-mistress of the Wagonmasters band, filling a gap left by Dolly Parton's departure.

"I was working with an IBM key punch computer and writing songs when I heard that Dolly was starting her own band," the shy blonde said last week.

"I guess I wondered if I could even get an interview. And after I was interviewed, I was so nervous about being chosen that I couldn't eat or sleep. In the back of my mind, the dream was there all the time but I never thought it would happen."

Barbara's previous professional experience was limited to two Asian tours with Roy Acuff in 1969 and 1970. She had performed at park concerts and had written and recorded two songs for an independent company—the same two songs she sent to Wagoner.

Suddenly, the farm girl from Putnam County, Tenn. faces a schedule of weekly TV appearances, road trips with the Wagonmasters and regular performances on the Grand Ole Opry.

"I am overwhelmed by the whole thing," she freely admits. "But I just take it day by day. Porter has been a great help. I have confidence in him because I feel that he saw something in me that I might not have been able to see in myself."

Dolly Parton's career began in a somewhat similar way. She traveled with Wagoner's band, singing and recording en route to country music stardom. She now has her own band and road show, but will continue to record duets with Wagoner, as he puts it, "because we have such a big following."

Barbara will not sing duets with Wagoner, that's Dolly's territory. Barbara hopes to carve out her own following.

"When I walk out on stage, I walk out as me because that's how I feel. Really when I go out I don't want people to think, 'Gee, she's the girl taking Dolly's place.' I want them to accept me as me. Dolly and I are different people. All I hope for is people to accept me like they did Dolly. That's all I ask."

"Acceptance requires exposure, and Wagoner is seeing to it that his protegee gets plenty of exposure. She already has recorded six songs with RCA records; two of them she wrote herself. She recently made her debut at the Grand Ole Opry and finished her first road trip with the Wagonmasters.

The first time she saw the new Grand Ole Opry House, she performed on its stage—Saturday night July 20.

"I was scared to death and very, very happy. Happy's not even a good word to use to describe the way I felt."

"I kind of felt like right before a storm when everything gets still. I kind of felt numb."

"But I do love the people and I could feel them accepting me. It makes you just want to do more. I loved it."

Like many of her predecessors on the Opry stage, Barbara grew up on a farm—her family's, near Tennessee's Cumberland Mountains. One of four sisters, she doesn't remember when she first began singing. Later she sang in church and elsewhere, for herself and anyone who would listen.

"I never did think that I would make it, so in high school I thought I'd like to be an airline stewardess so I would travel. But still I sang and picked up a guitar and I learned how to play about five or six years ago. But I never dreamed that anything like this would happen."

"I feel like I'm the luckiest girl in the world. I could use Donna Fargo's title really well right now—I'm the 'Happiest girl in the U.S.A.'"

Charged In 2 Slayings

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP)—Gary Patterson has been charged with two counts of first-degree murder in the shooting deaths of his wife and 5-year-old daughter, police said.

The victims, Linda Patterson, 25, and daughter Erin were found dead in the family's home Monday night.

Mrs. Patterson's body had been riddled with bullets, and her daughter was shot through the head, police said.

Officers reported Tuesday they believe they have the weapon used in the slayings, a .22-caliber target pistol, but have established no motive.

Patterson, 28, was being held in the Gaston County jail without bond.

Police said a man who identified himself as Patterson had called the police station to say that his wife and child had been shot. Patterson was waiting in the home when officers arrived Monday night.

An autopsy has been ordered by city police on the bodies of the victims.

Police Capt. Matthew Crowley said Mrs. Patterson's body was "so riddled with bullets that I wouldn't even make a guess as to how many times she had been shot."

Return Seven True Bills Against Pitt Countian

Seven "True Bills of Indictment" were returned by the Pitt County Grand Jury yesterday charging a 21-year-old Pitt County man with three counts of rape, two counts of first degree burglary, one count of burglary and one count of assault with the intent to commit rape.

Charged was Rufus Alexander Hamilton Jr., 21, of Rt. 3 Greenville, who was arrested by Pitt County Sheriff's deputies on June 20 and charged with breaking and entering, first degree burglary and assault with the intent to commit rape, following a June 18 incident in the county.

The man was later charged by Greenville Police in connection with several rapes in the city dating back to April 6.

According to the indictments, the three rapes allegedly occurred on May 20, March 23 and April 6. The burglary allegedly occurred on April 6, the two counts of first degree burglary allegedly occurred on June 18 and

May 20, while the assault with the intent to commit rape allegedly occurred on June 18.

Hamilton's defense attorney, Milton Williamson, filed a motion in Superior Court Monday to have the man examined for competency to stand trial. The motion was granted by Superior Court Judge Perry Martin.

Hamilton is being held without privilege of bond.

He joins the Symphony on September 1, 1974 and previously conducted Little Symphony concerts in May, 1974.

Dishinger comes to North Carolina from St. Louis, where he has served for two years as Conductor-Music Director of the St. Louis Philharmonic.

Dishinger is also Founder-Conductor-Music Director of the Chamber Orchestra of New York, and is a conducting student of Sixten Ehrling at the Juilliard School of Music in New York.

This summer Dishinger is serving as assistant conductor at the Aspen Music Festival in Colorado, where he will be working with several North Carolina Symphony musicians.

'Middle School' For Williamston

WILLIAMSTON—Designation of the former Williamston High School facility as the Williamston Middle School was approved Monday by members of the Martin County Board of Education. The site will house students of grades seven and eight in the Williamston area. Students of grades nine through 12 will attend the new Williamston High School on the south edge of town, now in the final stages of construction.

Another school site, the Jamesville Township School, will be closed beginning this school year and students who formerly attended that school will now attend the Jamesville School, which houses students from kindergarten through grade 12.

Members of the board approved three major staff positions George James as principal of the new Williamston Middle School; Mrs. Mary Andrews as principal of the Farm Life School; and Mrs. Jarah Nee Bailey of Plymouth as head of Occupational Education for Martin and Washington counties.

School opening day, originally scheduled for August 26, has been changed to August 30. This will be a half day student orientation day with the first full day of school to be on September 3.

Prices were established for lunches at 45 cents for students in kindergarten through grade six, at 50 cents for students in grades seven through 12, and 60 cents for adults.

In other action considered at Monday's meeting, school board members voted to begin procedures that will give the board an additional member for a total of seven members; and amended the school budget to reflect receipt of $27,569 in state funds for occupational purposes.

Date For Planning Meet Is Moved Up

The August meeting of the Planning and Zoning Commission has been moved up from Aug. 28 to Aug. 14 and all business scheduled for the regular agenda will be taken up during the session.

Persons who plan to have an item placed on the agenda should contact either the city engineer or city planner prior to next Wednesday night's meeting.

City Planner John Schofield explained that normally two weeks advance notice is necessary for an item to be placed on the agenda prior to the meeting date but since this an unusual situation, business items will be accepted up to 5 p.m. on the 14th.

Schofield said that the reason for the early August meeting is that the Revelopment Commission needs planning commission approval on an amendment to the urban renewal boundary area prior to a public hearing on the matter scheduled for next Thursday night. The amendment was scheduled for the July planning meeting but the session was not held due to the lack of a quorum.

All business held over from the July agenda will be taken up during the Aug. 14 meeting, it was pointed out.

One Newcomer Appointed To Art Commission

Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr. has named one new member and reappointed four other members of the North Carolina Art Commission.

The new member is Eugene W. Johnston III of Greensboro.

Re-appointed are: Dr. Joseph C. Sloane of Chapel Hill, commission chairman; State Treasurer Edwin Gill and Mrs. George W. Paschal Jr., both of Raleigh; and Dr. Emily Farnham of Greenville.

The commission is involved primarily with the acquisition and disposal of works of art for the North Carolina Museum of Art and with the operations of its various programs and activities.

Johnston is a tax lawyer and associated with several Greensboro businesses, among them Fisher-Harrison Corp. and Guilford Galleries, Inc.

State Increases Interest Rate

RALEIGH (AP)—The interest rate the state of North Carolina charges banks for state funds placed on certificates of deposit went up today from 9 to 9 1/2 per cent.

The higher rate was approved Tuesday by Gov. Jim Holshouser and the Council of State. The rate the state charges banks is based on the yield available on U. S. Treasury obligations. Higher yields on short term U. S. Treasury securities prompted the action.

The state interest rate went up from 8 3/4 to 9 per cent May 1.

Talk Taking A Rodeo To Russia

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Rodeo superstar Larry Mahan is trying to take the rough-and-tumble cowboy sport to Russia.

"Not for the sake of making money, but it would be good for the rodeo and good for the country" to stage the first rodeo in the USSR, Mahan told a news conference Tuesday.

Mahan's attorney, Ted Steinberg, said in Beverly Hills that he is drafting a formal letter to Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin in Washington proposing a rodeo tour in Russia.

The world's largest Mormon Temple is not in Salt Lake City. It is in Los Angeles, just west of Beverly Hills.

Old Builder A Pioneer In Jail Design

By ARTHUR FREDERICK MACHIAS, Maine (UPI) — The old Washington County jail squats on a granite base and its brick walls rise high enough to cover three tiers of cellblocks. It was designed 119 years ago by Gridley Bryant, and that's what makes it significant.

Bryant designed courthouses and jails and other municipal buildings during the 1800s, and his work can be found all over the nation. The Maine Historic Preservation Commission (MHPC) hopes the jail can be nominated to the National Register of Historic Landmarks.

The difficulty is that in making the jail suitable for the 1970s, many of the special features of the building have been removed or altered, and that could mean the jail will be rejected.

"Any large addition to it which was not sympathetic would make it ineligible," said James H. Mundy, MHPC director.

Washington County recently paid $42,274 to have the building's roof replaced. One result was that the cupola was removed. Before that, the cell block windows were changed to glass blocks with the arches bricked up, and the brick cornice at the roof line was covered with a wood cornice.

Now, the county wants to build an addition to the building which will modernize the jail but which at the same time will detract from Gridley Bryant's design.

A consulting engineer was brought in to look over the building and the planned addition.

The engineer, Hiram Bates, said the addition, "even though it may be designed to enhance the appearance of the building as well as providing a functional layout, will however detract further from its original appearance."

The original appearance is what interests historians, and the building, if accepted as a historic landmark, would be eligible for some federal maintenance funds.

"The significance of the building is that it was designed by Bryant," said Earl Shuttleworth, MHPC architectural historian. "He's recognized as one of the pioneering American architects in the design of prison architecture."

The addition would allow the jail to accommodate women as well as male prisoners. The old part of the jail would be used only as a maximum security section.

The sheriff of Washington County, David Clemons, has living quarters in part of the jail, and he likes the old building.

"It's a good jail, but it doesn't meet up to the standards of the day," he said. "Today they want lavatories and flushes in every cell, and this can't happen here because of the stone and brick structure."

"There used to be a cell here for debtors but of course they don't put people in jail for debts now, so we're fixing that part up to use for holding juveniles," he said.

Solar Energy Asserted Key To The Future

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (AP) — Solar energy holds the key to mankind's future energy needs, says M. King Hubbert, an internationally known authority on world energy problems.

Hubbert, a geophysicist with the U.S. Geological Survey, discussed the ecological and human consequences of energy at the opening session Monday of an 18-day course on energy technology.

Engineering and science instructors from 29 colleges and universities are attending the course offered by the Oak Ridge Associated Universities.

Hubbert said solar energy is inexhaustible, poses no safety problems and causes no pollution.

Scientists are developing techniques to make the collection of the sun's heat economically feasible, he added, explaining that solar energy could be converted then to gas or liquid form and distributed via pipelines.

The price of fed cattle has increased over 30 per cent since February 1972.

Drug-Running Yanks Declare They Got Bum Raps

By MATTHEW T. KENNY
MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Except for the steel bars, the compact American wing at Lecumberri men's prison almost resembles a U.S. college dormitory. Its designation in Spanish is "Dormitory O."

English echoes along the pink-walled corridor as the "gringos" wander freely and informally from cell to cell talking out their problems under the bored and distant gaze of a few guards.

What the anxious inmates seek with their daily "jailhouse lawyer" conferences are not the answers to some college test paper or final exam, but rather a new legal approach that will help them to get out of the "Black Palace" as Lecumberri is known.

For most of the 68 Yanks held here those chances appear quite dim. Arrested mainly on charges of running narcotics from South America through Mexico for U.S. delivery, they either have already received stiff prison terms or are waiting sentencing. Forty one American women are imprisoned at Los Reyes women's prison on similar charges.

A few claim they are innocent.

But even those seized at Mexico City International Airport with a pound or more of pure cocaine strapped to their bodies insist as do others that they were tortured with cattle prods and beaten immediately after their arrest.

They accuse Mexican customs agents of forcing them to sign exaggerated confessions of guilt, written in Spanish, which they could not understand.

"A three-sentence oral statement somehow turns out to be three pages long by the time they get through embellishing it," one inmate said.

Their most strident charge, however, is that U.S. narcotics agents—allegedly operating behind the scenes here—are not only directly responsible for their arrests but also in influencing Mexican courts into doling out very tough sentences.

This charge is flatly denied by the U.S. Embassy.

The U.S. embassy said July 24 that the American consulate here as well as in nine other Mexican cities are circulating a pamphlet warning U.S. citizens on the legal dangers of possessing or using narcotics in this country.

"Many Americans mistakenly believe that Mexican laws and enforcement practices are less severe than in the United States," the pamphlet says.

"This is not true...Once a person is arrested on narcotics charges, under Mexican law, he may wait for up to one year before being brought to trial. Judicial handling of narcotics violators is severe.

"Penalties for possession (including marijuana) may result in sentences of up to five years, while trafficking and importation carry sentences of up to 13 years. There is no bail as we know it for narcotics violators."

Announcement of circulation of the pamphlet came in the wake of a 13-day so-called hunger strike, which ended July 22, by the 68 Americans and 7 Canadians held at Lecumberri on narcotics charges and 41 American women held at Los Reyes women's prison.

The strike was in protest against their allegation that U.S. narcotics agents are operating behind the scenes here—with the permission of the Mexican government—and playing a key role in the current wave of arrests of Americans.

The imprisoned Americans believe that if they had been arrested in the States they probably would receive far easier sentences and possibly only probation in case of a first offense.

The office of the Mexican Attorney General has denied the Americans' charges of torture and brutality.

It has also indirectly denied any American intervention by stating that all persons arrested on narcotics charges are sentenced strictly according to long-prevailing laws.

"Most of the Americans don't deny trafficking in drugs. Here are some of their stories of arrest and imprisonment:

Dean Brown, 32, in "the concert business" in San Francisco, was arrested July 17, 1973, at Mexico City's swankiest hotel shortly after returning from a trip to Bogota with Robin Marie Worthington. She was seized at the airport with a kilo (2.2 pounds) of cocaine. "I wasn't carrying anything but they planted one-half gram of cocaine in my belongings when they searched my room," Brown said. Both were sentenced April 25 to seven-and-a-half years. Brown drove here from California in a Rolls Royce. "The judge tried to get it, but I've got it stashed away until I get out."

James Ridley Douglas, of Austin, Texas: "I was carrying half a kilo of coke (cocaine) from Colombia when arrested at the airport here Aug. 30, 1973. The cops said they'd let a girl—Rebecca Jo Ritters, also from Austin—go if I signed a statement, which I did. But they arrested her, too, and we have still not been sentenced. And the cops took half of the coke for themselves. The U.S. government is using us as scapegoats—we're not big time narcotics operators. We want a congressional investigation of the U.S. embassy here."

William (Billy Joe) Smith Jr., 28, of Honolulu, a theatrical booking agent, was arrested March 28 at the airport with a friend in the "jewelry business" from Dallas, Tex., who asked not to be identified.

Smith was wearing a girde containing 28 ounces of cocaine from Colombia which he said he was to deliver in Monterey, Calif. Both men are Vietnam veterans. Smith's friend, 32, who denied any connection with drug smuggling, served two hitches in Vietnam and spent three months in a prisoner of war camp.

Smith: "I was roughed up, slapped around, had a cattle prod in the groin, but I refused to sign my name to any statement. I only printed it which is not legal. I've given a lawyer $8,000 and have seen him only twice, with no results. I've lost my mortgaged house. My wife has had a miscarriage. I have no money. I have no idea when I'll go to trial. I just don't know what to do."

Friend: "They put me in a shower, doused me with water, then started working on me with a cattle prod. I've been a prisoner of war, but I decided these guys were going to kill me, so I signed a confession but later disavowed it. We've been here four months and don't know what's going to happen."

Michael Heinichen, 30, a photographer from Kingsville, Texas, was arrested at the airport with his girl friend, Laura Katzman, coming from Bogota, Colombia. "We had a kilo of cocaine between us. We were sentenced June 15, 1974 to seven and a half years each. She's at Santa Marta.

"We both were coerced into making statements. We weren't allowed to contact the U.S. embassy. We don't speak Spanish. There is no judicial system here. First, when you're arrested, there is no law; then later it's all law. There is no logic. Laura and I are trying to get married. I took three blood tests. On the first two they insisted I had syphilis. Then they said the last one came out okay. But the required X-rays and photos have still not come out. This is pretty typical of the way things are."

Robert Lee Gallon, 22, San Diego, Calif.: "I was arrested Dec. 9, 1972, in Mexico City. I was on vacation, driving my camper. I was with two American girls, Linda Elizabeth Quintero of San Diego and Jan Caskey of Florida. I picked up a Mexican hitchhiker. A few minutes later I was stopped by two plainclothes agents. They didn't find anything on me but they found 20 grams of marijuana on the Mexican.

"I was charged with possession and transportation of marijuana, as were the Mexican and the girls. We waited a year and a half to get sentenced. We each got three years and six months. But bail for each of the Americans was set at 200,000 pesos ($16,000), whereas the Mexican's was one-sixth of that. In other words, it would cost the three of us $48,000 to get out. If you get bailed, you are immediately deported. So, here we are."

Pick up the pasta with the golden glow. And save yourself some silver.

That deep, rich, golden color you'll find in every strand of Skinner spaghetti is a sure sign of quality. It tells you that Skinner is made from 100% Amber Durum Wheat Semolina, the one and only ingredient recommended by the Wheat Flour Institute for making the finest pasta in the world. That's why Skinner looks better, cooks better, tastes better. Most other brands mix Amber Durum Semolina with less costly wheat ingredients that aren't quite as good. And what they end up with is a paler, lower quality pasta. Of course, top quality ingredients cost a little more. So you usually pay a few extra cents for Skinner spaghetti. But right now you can buy the pasta with the golden glow and save a little silver, too. Just clip the coupon below and take it to your grocer for a dime's savings on any 12-ounce package of Skinner spaghetti. It's your golden opportunity to taste the difference quality can make.

Study Airport Debris For Clues In Bombing

By DAN BERGER
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Authorities are inspecting heaps of debris in an effort to determine who placed a bomb that killed two persons and injured 36 at Los Angeles International Airport.

Federal aviation officials said the explosion on Tuesday was believed the largest ever to hit an airline terminal in the United States and the first to kill anyone.

The blast apparently occurred inside one of 20 public, coin-operated wall lockers in the Pan American World Airways section of the International Carriers Terminal, police said.

Officials said they could conceive of no motive for the explosion and had no leads. They ruled out, for the moment, the possibility that radical groups were involved.

Two months ago, a blast ripped apart the Los Angeles headquarters of the state attorney general. A letter signed by the radical Weather Underground claimed credit.

William A. Sullivan, special agent in charge of the FBI office here, speculated that the person who planted the bomb which exploded on Tuesday "may have wanted to take it on a plane" but was frustrated by tight security at the terminal entrance.

Officials said there was no warning of the blast, but afterward some other airlines received false bomb threats.

Several flights were canceled or rerouted and one Pan Am flight, to Hawaii, was detained immediately after the blast. Airport operations were back to normal seven hours later.

The explosion killed Harper Glass, 64, of Inglewood, a sky-cap who was walking past the bank of wall lockers, and Leonard Hsu, 47, of Los Angeles, a Pan Am employee.

Among the injured was the Rev. Rhett Patrick Shaughnessy, who had a leg amputated. Sixteen other persons were hospitalized.

"The first thing I saw was an orange flash and then I heard a noise that was unbelievable," said John Rich, an Pan Am service representative who was standing behind a wall six feet away.

"I hit the floor and didn't move for about two minutes. When I got up, all I could see was gray smoke and some people lying on the floor."

By DENNIS MONTGOMERY
Associated Press Writer
CENTRALIA, Ill. (AP) — Coal companies and miners will begin new contract negotiations some time this month, with each side hoping to sidestep a nationwide strike like the one that shackled the industry three years ago.

"A lot of people have said that it's all but inevitable that we'll have a strike," Phillip Sparks, a spokesman for the 120,000-member United Mine Workers, says.

"But I think it's still too early to tell. Our opinion all along has been that the questions aren't going to be ones that can't be solved if both sides bargain in good faith."

But some UMW officials have already accused the companies of foot dragging. They say the issues are so numerous and complex the talks should already be under way if a pact is to be agreed upon by the time the current contract expires Nov. 12. No date for the first session has been set.

Approved in 1971 during wage and price controls, the current contract is a source of bitter frustration for the miners. It provided pay hikes of $3 a day for the first year and $2 in each of the next two years.

But last year inflation increased by 8.8 per cent and the $2 hike of 1974 amounted only to a raise of only 8.2 per cent. So, by the union's reasoning, the miners actually took a .6 per cent cut. Meanwhile they've watched with envy the signing of attractive pacts by auto and steel workers.

The last time the miners went to the mat there was a 44-day strike that idled 100,000 miners in 25 states. The walk-out caused railroad layoffs and a coal shortage in the utility industry. When it was over, the miners had a contract that boosted top wage scales from $37 to $50 per day and doubled the 40 cents per ton royalty paid by the companies to the miners' retirement and medical fund.

The miners say their priorities for the new contract are:

- A pay hike. Some miners are talking about a top of $72 a day.

- A cost of living escalator pegged to the rate of inflation. It would be the first such escalator in UMW history.
- Sick leave. Miners are now entitled to none.
- A substantial increase in the 80 cents per ton royalty to finance dental and eye care plus pension improvements.

Mine owners, represented in the bargaining by the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, declined comment on contract items.

"It would appear that we are negotiating in the newspapers," explained Bob Vines, a spokesman for the operators.

But in other forums the coal companies are talking of hard times when strict new federal air pollution guidelines and land reclamation standards for strip mining become effective.

The industry says one-third of the nation's coal will be unusable with next year's air quality regulations.

Sparks says industry figures show production approaching record levels — about 620 million tons in 1974 — and owners are "going to have to give a piece of the pie to the men who mine the coal."

He says that if anything, demand will increase.

No Charge In Pistol Mishap

No charges were brought by officers who investigated a shooting mishap at 507B Darden Dr., reported at 4:15 p.m. yesterday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Gerald Ward of 507A Darden Dr. told police he was in the process of cleaning a pistol when the weapon discharged.

The bullet went through the wall of the kitchen at 507B Darden Dr., struck a cabinet in the room and fell to the floor.

Charlie Wooten, who lives in the 507B Darden Dr. dwelling reported the incident. He was not at home at the time of the shooting.

Phone Rates Hearing Set

RALEIGH (AP)—The state Utilities Commission has set a hearing for Sept. 18 on the request of Southern Bell Telephone Co. for an interim rate increase of 3.5 per cent.

The commission also announced Tuesday that it will hold a hearing Feb. 18-21 on Southern Bell's overall request for a rate hike of 21 per cent. It would cost North Carolina customers $62 million, with $9.5 million coming from the interim rate hike.

At the same time, the commission set for hearing Jan. 5 Bell's application for an increase in interstate long distance tolls, WATS charges and inter exchange private lines. All telephone companies in the state were invited by the commission to participate in connection with this application.

The commission expressed the opinion that "differences between toll rates charged by Bell and other North Carolina companies is undesirable and would lead to operating problems, resulting in discrimination and inequities if the prices of these services between the points are not uniform."

Railroads Can Increase Rates

RALEIGH (AP)—Railroads operating in North Carolina can proceed with plans to increase their rates on shipments within the state by about 4 per cent.

The state Utilities Commission issued an order Tuesday approving proposed rates filed by the Southern Freight Tariff Bureau on behalf of the railroads.

The commission said it had found that the request is "just and reasonable" and "necessary to afford the railroads a fair return on their property" in North Carolina.

The railroads offered evidence at a hearing several weeks ago that they were losing money on their operations in the state.

approval. Keeter said that funds for the Title I project for the coming year had been cut 15 per cent from last year's figure.

"However, the cut was expected and we feel with careful planning the program will not be hurt," Keeter said.

John McKnight was named to serve as director of testing and evaluation for Pitt County Schools. McKnight, currently serving as principal of Sam D. Bundy School in Farmville, will be given a year's leave of absence to serve in the capacity as testing director. He will be replaced by Mrs. Edith Warren for the year.

Also given a year's leave of absence was William B. Moore, principal of Falkland Elementary. Moore will serve as pastor of a Philadelphia, Pa., church.

The board approved Moore's request but stated that in the future, the board would generally not look with favor upon leaves of absence that were not school-oriented.

Mrs. Sue Branch was named to receive inservice training in reading which was made possible by a Right-to-Read Grant the school board has received.

Craft discussed the free and reduced lunch schedule for the coming year as set up by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Craft told the board the Grimesland School property would be up for sale Friday at 11 a.m. and the opening bid would be for $6,386.75.

The board also approved 11 teaching positions in the areas of art and music; four physical education teachers; a school psychologist, a social worker and three guidance counselors to serve Grifton, Chicod, and A.G. Cox Schools; two occupational teachers for Ayden Grammar, one at Chicod, one at Stokes-Pactolus, and one at Farmville Middle School; the 26 school secretaries and bookkeepers be placed on an annual employment basis with an option of ten and one-fourth months or 11 months employment; the transfer of Mrs. Janie Manning from Title I to a state position wherein Mrs. Manning will give leadership in reading in grades K-1.

Administrative Assistant John Taylor discussed the establishment of district Title I Advisory Councils. According to federal regulations, the councils should be set up in each county with a majority of the members being parents of children who participate in the Title I program. Board members instructed Taylor to work with the school principals about forming the councils. He will report his findings at the next board meeting.

Board members denied a request that soft drinks and snacks be sold at the local high schools. Supt. Alford told the board that such sales would conform to state guidelines and that he personally had no objections to the sale of drinks and snacks. "According to state regulations, schools are allowed to sell drinks and snacks so long as the school lunchroom program is not adversely affected," Alford said. "I have no objection if the sales area is located away from the lunchroom area and takes place after the last lunch is served at the school."

Mrs. Donna Ware, lunchroom supervisor, expressed opposition to the idea of having snacks and drinks on sale.

In a letter to the board, Mrs. Ware stated she felt the students would save their lunch money to purchase "junk" food instead of eating a well-balanced and nutritional meal in the lunchroom.

"Often the lunch at school is the only good meal a student receives each day," Mrs. Ware stated. "I feel it is our responsibility to teach the children to eat well balanced and nutritional foods. Profits from the vending machines would help the athletic program but I feel it would not help the students nutritionally."

Mrs. Ware said that Pitt County has one of the finest lunchroom programs in the state and she would not like to see the program adversely affected.

The board agreed that the Grady-White Boats dealers from Maine to Texas are in Greenville today for the annual G-W boat show and dealer meeting.

Some 85 to 90 dealers were expected to be on hand for the annual activities which began on Tuesday and conclude tonight with a dinner and awards program.

On Tuesday, the round of events began for the dealers with a luncheon, followed by the

The dealers had the opportunity today to tour the National Boat Works plant and tonight will attend the annual awards banquet at the Candlewick Inn. During the banquet, the top dealers will be cited for sales excellence.

Grady-White is introducing three new boat models this year and they were available for dealer inspection and testing during the two-day program.

Virginia, Tennessee Take Sr. Ruth Wins

TAGGED OUT—Montreas Expos Mike Jorgenson is tagged out at second base by St. Louis Cardinals Ted Sizemore during second inning action Tuesday. The Cards won the first game of a double header 5-4.

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

Remember that slogan on the salt container, "When it rains it pours?" That is now getting a little bit old.

Yesterday for the third day in a row and for the sixth in seven days it rained. The precipitation wanted so long has now worn out its welcome, especially with the director of the Sr. Babe Ruth Southeast Regional tournament.

Rain washed out Monday's game but held off just long enough Tuesday to get two games completed and better than half of another out of the way. Virginia eliminated North Carolina's champs, 8-3. Tennessee beat Georgia in two games-rain stopped the game after two innings-and Alabama was leading Florida in winner's bracket game, 4-3 after five and a half frames.

Today, four games were hoped to be played starting at 1:00 with the conclusion of the Alabama-Florida game.

Virginia 8
North Carolina 3

Virginia banged out five hits in the top of the third driving in six runs and Pitcher Joe Claxton allowed just two North Carolina batters to reach base in the remaining four innings as Virginia took an 8-3 decision.

The loss was the second for NC and they are through for the tournament.

Virginia had taken a 1-0 lead in the top of the first. The first three batters for Virginia in the third got hits and with run scoring singles by Marty Moore, Jerry Crain and Steve Vansdale rallied for six runs.

NC scored their runs in the bottom of the third as Robbie Bennett slapped a bases loaded single driving in two runs and another came over on an error on the play.

North Carolina used three pitchers trying to check Virginia but only the last, Herby Russ was effective allowing only one run and three hits.

Tommy Cartwright's bases-loaded double in the first highlighted a seven run burst as Tennessee ran away with a 10-5 win over Georgia sending Georgia into the losers bracket. Cartwright's double drove in three runs and Tennessee added four more on another hit and an error. Tennessee picked up another in the fourth as Terry Boyd singled in Phillip Stinson. Georgia rallied for four in the sixth aided by a three run homer by Stan Treadway, his second of the series.

In the third game, Alabama had just taken a one run lead, 4-3, when the game was called as conditions became just too bad for further play. The game was to be resumed today where they left off with Florida coming to bat in the last of the sixth.

Wheels Looking For Win

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Revenge is always a nice incentive for a football team, which means Detroit's Wheels should have plenty of it going for them tonight.

"We need a victory badly," Coach Danny Boisture says of his Wheels, "and it might as well be Birmingham."

The Wheels, still smarting from their 21-18 loss to the Americans a week ago, are seeking revenge—as well as their first World Football League victory—in a rematch in Birmingham tonight.

In other WFL games tonight, Houston is at Portland, Memphis goes to Philadelphia, New York visits Southern California and Florida is at Chicago. The Hawaiians take on the Sharks in Jacksonville Thursday night.

Birmingham, one of only two undefeated teams in the new league, will be after its fifth victory with the status of quarterback George Mira still in doubt...not that his absence has hurt that much.

Two weeks ago, rookie quarterback Matthew Reed replaced the injured Mira and helped bomb Memphis into submission 58-33. Last week in Detroit, Reed swept in for a nine-yard touchdown run with 2:12 to play, giving the Americans an 18-14 victory. He'll probably start again, although Mira is expected to be able to play if needed.

The Storm is also winless while the Texans, with a rugged defense that leads the league, have split their four games. But it's Houston Coach Jim Garrett who's doing the moaning.

"Maybe instead of calling us Texans, we should be the Houston Red Cross," Garrett said of his injury-riddled club.

Mike Taliaferro, a 10-year veteran of the National Football League, was the starting quarterback in a season-opening loss to Chicago. He was injured early in the game. Don Trull started in the Texans' second game, but he suffered a shoulder injury and another veteran, Harry Theofilides, took over.

Then Theofilides was hurt in the club's third game and rookie David Mays directed last week's 7-6 victory over Florida.

Taliaferro is expected to start against the Storm. Trull and Theofilides still have sore arms.

Rookie Ken Johnson will be at quarterback for Portland, and he's just off the injury list. He broke a finger on his throwing hand prior to the Storm's season opener a month ago.

"My timing feels good," said Johnson, expected to run the option more than Greg Barton, who had been inconsistent in the four Portland losses. "Being out for 4½ weeks isn't as if you have to start from scratch," Johnson added.

Philadelphia's Bell must contend with running stars John Harvey and J.J. Jennings of Memphis, Nos. 2 and 3 in WFL rushing and the main reason the Southmen have the No. 1 offense with an average of 375.5 yards a game.

The Stars dropped their first two games but since then have won two with some pretty fancy footwork of their own. New York is No. 2 in WFL offense with Bob Gladioux, Andy Huff and even quarterback Tom Sherman handling the rushing chores. It should be primarily a ground-oriented game featuring that trio and Kermit Johnson of the Sun.

The unbeaten Fire, sharing the Central Division lead with Birmingham, has averaged 31 points a game behind the passing of Virgil Carter. But the Blazers, 3-1 and first in the East, have allowed only 7.8 points a game.

Wide receiver Jim Scott is Carter's main target. He leads the WFL with 23 receptions for 283 yards while Mark Kellar is No. 1 in WFL scoring with 57 points.

Billy Hobbs, Larry Grant-ham, Miller Farr and Rickie Harris head a Florida defense that has given up only four touchdowns.

Back To Pebble Beach

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The PGA Championship will return to the West Coast in 1977 for the first time since 1946 with play scheduled for the Pebble Beach Golf Links, Del Monte Properties officials announced.

Del Monte officials said Tuesday that PGA President Bill Clark notified them from Clemmons, N.C., that the 59th annual PGA championship will be played at Pebble Beach.

The last time the event was played on the West Coast was in 1946 in Portland, Ore.

The 1972 U.S. Open was played at Pebble Beach, one of several golf courses in the Del Monte forest. The ocean-side course on Carmel Bay also has been the site of three U.S. Amateur championships and is one of three courses used in the annual Bing Crosby National Pro-Am.

Bob Menne probably will be listed in the 1975 PGA tour book now that he has won the Kemper Open golf tournament. He's unlisted in the 1974 book.

Bench Homer Lifts Reds Past Dodgers, 6-3

AP Sports Writer

Johnny Bench walked up to the plate thinking "home run" all the way. Then he translated his thoughts into action.

Bench hit a two-run homer in the 10th inning to carry the Cincinnati Reds to a 6-3 decision over the Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday night and make the National League West race a little more interesting.

"We won tonight, now we have to win tomorrow night and then get about six more," Cincinnati's All-Star catcher said after the Reds but the Dodgers' lead to 6½ games. "It's going to take a lot for us to catch them. Even if they split the games they have left (the Dodgers have 51 remaining), we'd have to play .700 ball."

Elsewhere in the National League, the St. Louis Cardinals took a doubleheader from the Montreal Expos 5-4 and 9-4; the Houston Astros blasted the San Francisco Giants 13-4; the Atlanta Braves stopped the San Diego Padres 5-2; the Philadelphia Phillies hammered the Chicago Cubs 8-3 and the Pittsburgh Pirates nipped the New York Mets 9-8 in 11 innings.

Cards 5-9, eXpos 4-4

Mike Tyson's two-run triple highlighted a four-run rally in the fourth inning that carried St. Louis over Montreal in the first game of their doubleheader. The Cardinals scored seven runs in the third inning of the second game to complete a sweep.

Astros 13, Giants 4

Left fielder Gary Matthews dropped Tommy Helms' liner for a two-base error and Houston rallied for three unearned runs in the sixth inning and went on to beat San Francisco.

Milt May's one-out single and a two-out single by Doug Rader started the rally. Matthews then dropped Helms' liner and both runners scored, breaking a 3-3 tie.

Braves 5, Padres 2

Home run king Henry Aaron drove in four runs with two homers and right-hander Phil Niekro hurled Atlanta past San Diego.

Aaron, who passed Babe Ruth's record 714 homers in April, tagged his 14th and 15th of the season, raising his all-time record to 728.

A single by Ralph Garr and a walk to Darrell Evans set up a three-run homer by Aaron in the third inning and he opened the sixth with another.

Phillies 8, Cubs 3

Pirates 9, Mets 8

relson in the 11th inning and later scored on an error by pitcher Tug McGraw to help Pittsburgh beat New York.

American League scores: Boston 6-6, Milwaukee 3-0; Cleveland 9, Detroit 7; Baltimore 4, New York 1; Kansas City 17, Minnesota 3; Texas 1, Oakland 0 and Chicago 12, California 2.

Spaniard Offers New Line

By JOHN SHURR
Associated Press Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Defending U.S. Clay Court champion Manuel Orantes of Spain has a new twist on an old saying that goes: "It's not whether you win or lose, it's how you play the game."

Moments after he outclassed Humphrey Hose of Venezuela on Tuesday, 6-2, 6-0, Orantes commented about his No. 4 seeding in this year's tournament.

"It's not important where you're seeded," he said. "It's whether you win."

"Everybody's very tough this year so it doesn't matter whether you're seeded No. 1 or 2," the handsome Spaniard added with a smile. "You have to beat em all."

Orantes may not have to beat every entry in the field. But to advance to the finals from the lower bracket he must face Wimbledon singles champ Jimmy Connors and Guillermo Vilas of Argentina.

Connors, of Belleville, Ill., is the top seed and Vilas is sixth behind No. 2 Ilie Nastase of Rumania and third-ranked Bjorn Borg of Sweden. Nastase, who arrived in Indianapolis on Tuesday, is scheduled to play for the first time today.

Orantes, however, is always a favorite in clay court competition. "I learned how to play on clay," he explained. "I come from Barcelona where we have nice weather year around so I feel very much at ease on this kind of court."

And at ease he definitely was in the match with Hose. Spectators and other players around the Indianapolis Tennis Club stadium court applauded Orantes' expertly placed volleys throughout the contest.

Earlier in the day, the female half of the Wimbledon singles love duo, petite Chris Evert, completely devastated Helle Sparre of Denmark, 6-0, 6-0.

Miss Evert, the top women's seed and two-time Clay Court titlist from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., lost only five points in the first set while fiance Connors watched nearby. Connors had the day off after winning a tough match Monday night.

The No. 2 women's seed,

Julie Heldman of Houston, had difficulties getting her game going against Joy Schwikert of Los Vegas, Nev. Miss Heldman lost the first set 7-5, then gained momentum for the last two, 6-0, 6-1.

Terry Holliday of La Jolla, Calif. the No. 5 women's seed, needed three sets to defeat Sally Greer of Miami, Fla., 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

Mexico's Raul Ramirez, seeded No. 5 in men's competition, won his first-round match against Sherwood Stewart of Redlands, Calif., 6-2, 3-6, 6-4.

Unseeded Bob Lutz of San Clemente, Calif., who finished second in last week's Western Open at Cincinnati, downed Nick Saviano of Los Altos, Calif., 6-3, 6-2.

Player Confident As He Begins '74 PGA

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

CLEMMONS, N.C. (AP) — "I'm confident—but very respectful," Gary Player said. "I'm having probably the best year of my career," the gritty little South African added. "I've played very, very well this year, and that has to give you confidence."

"But in a tournament of this caliber, where you have so many great players competing, it's almost impossible to say that this man is going to win or that man is going to win."

"You have to be lucky. You have to be playing well, of course. But you have to have fortune on your side, too. You have to hole those crucial putts, make a great sand shot at the right time, get the right bounce on the fairway."

"While I'm confident, I have to respect the field, too."

Player, already the winner of the Masters and the British Open championship this season, made the comments before teeing off today in a practice round for the 56th PGA national championship.

The tournament—the fourth and last of the world's major annual events—begins a 72-hole run Thursday on the wet and soggy, 7,050-yard, par 70 Tanglewood Golf Club course.

The layout has been inundated by more than seven inches of rain in the last four days, and more showers are forecast through Saturday.

"It's unfortunate, of course," Player said. "The course seems to drain very well, however. The rain has made the rough much more severe. I like that. I think that a bad tee shot that goes in the rough should be penalized just as much as a poor putt should be penalized. It makes it a much more fair test of golf."

Player, who has won twice and collected almost $100,000 in a couple of brief swings around the American tour this season, ranks as a co-favorite for the title, along with defending champion Jack Nicklaus.

But he admits he isn't quite as excited about it as he could be.

He led through the first two rounds of the U.S. Open and seemed destined to win that one, too. But he faltered in the last two rounds.

A victory there would have given him a sweep of the first three of the game's Big Four titles. It would have given him a shot at the never accomplished Grand Slam.

"That would have been something altogether different," Player said. "I only came to this country four days ago. That's not much time to get over the long plane ride, the time change and everything."

"If I'd won the U.S. Open, I'd have come two weeks early."

"Of course, you don't have any trouble getting up for a major tournament. They have a special flavor of their own. I'd rather win one major championship than 20 other tournaments."

Old Men Still Have A Lot To Say In AL

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

You're excused if you closed the books on Juan Marichal and Orlando Cepeda, whose glory days are long past. But the veteran pitcher and the old slugger aren't quite through yet.

Marichal, who has spent most of the last two months on the disabled list, hurled seven innings of two-hit baseball Tuesday night as Boston blanked Milwaukee 6-0 to complete a doubleheader sweep over the Brewers. The Red Sox took the opener 6-3.

Meanwhile, Cepeda, who was cut by Boston in spring training and was languishing in the Mexican League until last week, showed up in Kansas City and ripped a pair of singles in the Royals' 17-3 romp over Minnesota.

Elsewhere in the American League Tuesday, Cleveland outlasted Detroit 9-7, Baltimore trimmed New York 4-1, Texas shut out Oakland 1-0 and Chicago battered California 12-2.

Marichal, 35, went before Diego Segui came on to complete the three-hitter. Dwight

Evans, who singled home the deciding run in the first game, drove in four more in the nightcap, three of them on a homer.

Meanwhile, Minnesota couldn't control Kansas City, which collected 19 hits. Amos Otis drove in four runs with a homer and a double but the most intriguing part of the attack were a pair of singles by Cepeda, who drove in two runs in his return to the big leagues.

Rangers 1, A's 0

Ferguson Jenkins limited Oakland to two hits and shut out the A's for his 15th victory in 25 decisions.

Expansion May Be Coming To Majors

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The expansion boom that has marked nearly every major sport in the past few years has been noticeably absent in baseball — and perhaps the major leagues now are ready to do something about it.

Expansion was expected to be one of the important topics of discussion as the major league owners began their two-day summer meetings today. Although there was no proposal for expansion talk at the sessions, "It doesn't mean that expansion couldn't come soon," one league official said.

When expansion does come, probably for the 1976 season, the cities most likely to be awarded franchises are Seattle, Toronto, New Orleans and Washington, D.C.

Seattle was one of the four cities included in baseball's last expansion, in 1969, when the major leagues jumped from 20 to 24 teams. Seattle was joined in the American League lineup five years ago by Kansas City, while Montreal and San Diego were added to the National League.

That year also saw the introduction of divisional play, with the American and National Leagues each split into East and West Divisions, with six teams in each sector.

However, Seattle lasted only one year. The team went bankrupt and was sold for $10.8 million to a group that relocated the franchise in Milwaukee in 1970.

Later, however, the American League promised Seattle it would receive a franchise no later than 1976. When Seattle rejoins the league, it will play in a domed stadium now under construction.

New Orleans, which also likely will join the American League when the majors' next expansion is completed, also has a domed stadium under construction, the Louisiana Superdome. It is scheduled for completion next year.

Washington, like Seattle, formerly was a member of the American League. But in 1972, the franchise was shifted to Texas. Since then there have been discussions of some teams scheduling games in the nation's capital, but so far nothing has been done on the matter. The answer, instead, is expected to be an expansion franchise. When Washington is admitted back into the majors, it likely will be in the National League, not the American.

Toronto would be a natural for the National League, especially in the East Division, joining its Canadian rival, Montreal.

Before discussing expansion, however, the major league executives had other matters on the agenda. They included a proposal to increase the number of teams qualifying for the post-season playoffs from four to eight, a desire by the Chicago White Sox to replace Milwaukee in the American League East with the Brewers being switched to the West, and discussion of the new central scouting bureau in which 17 teams are participating.

Orioles 4, Yankees 1

Three New York errors helped Baltimore to three unearned runs and moved the Orioles past the Yankees.

Grant Jackson shut off a late threat to save the victory for Baltimore which was out 11-8 but took advantage of the loose New York fielding for the victory.

Paul Blair singled home two of the Oriole runs but errors by Bill Sudakis and Dick Tidrow in the first inning and Sandy Alomar in the seventh gave Baltimore the edge.

White Sox 12, Angels 2

Ken Henderson rapped three hits including a bases-loaded triple that capped a seven-run second inning as the Chicago White Sox thumped the California Angels.

Henderson opened the second inning by drawing a walk and eventually scored on a single by Carlos May and a double by Brian Downing.

Indians 9, Tigers 7

John Ellis ripped five hits including a home run and Cleveland wiped out a five-run deficit to overtake Detroit.

John Lowenstein's seventh-inning homer snapped a 7-7 tie and Buddy Bell singled home another run, moving the Indians to the victory.

Rumors Flying About Crowd Drawing Methods

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Tonight in Philadelphia, the Bell will host the Memphis Southern in a World Football League game. A crowd of 30,000 is expected, but it's anybody's guess how many of those will be paid admissions.

The rookie league has been rocked by reports of "papering the house" with free admissions to its games — most notably Philadelphia, which claimed over 120,000 spectators for its first two home games when in fact only 20,000 had paid for their seats.

So the surprising, often amazing claims of attendance in the WFL's first month have become suspect. After boasting an enthusiastic reception, the WFL has been sent running for cover.

Over-all, five of the 12 teams, responding either independently or directly to Associated Press inquiries, said they had given away 158,000 free tickets to their home games. Assuming that none of the other seven league teams gave tickets away, the paid attendance for the league's first 24 games is 563,000 or an average of 26,000.

Bell Executive Vice President Barry Lieb admitted his club gave the extraordinary number of tickets away. Only 13,800 of the home opening 55,534 admissions were paid; just 6,200 of the 64,719 paid for the nationally televised game against New York two weeks ago.

"We just had to do it or we would have been a joke," Lieb said. "I admit we lied to everyone. What can I say? I never thought the figures would come out."

But they did come out, as they have in a number of other places — to a lesser degree — around the league. And the reaction of people around the circuit has been surprise, shock and dismay.

"God, this really hurts," said Southern California Sun General Manager Curly Morrison. "Why in hell would they do something like that? It's bad. It didn't serve any purpose to inflate the gate."

League President Gary Davidson said that the league's initial policy had been for each team to announce only a turnstile count and not divulge paid attendance.

Davidson added, "The thing I resent is that the management in Philadelphia misled the public," and acknowledged the WFL's reputation had been damaged.

The Jacksonville Sharks disclosed that the announced attendances of 59,112 for its TV opener and 46,780 two weeks later had been overstated, saying that a total of 44,000 had been admitted free and 2,000 half-price tickets had been sold to servicemen.

The general manager of the Southmen, Leo Cahill, said his team's giveaways go only to "people that have to get them" although he wouldn't specify how many "have tos" there were in Memphis.

In Portland, a Storm spokesman said firmly, "We have nothing to hide around here and we don't want to give anyone the indication that our figures aren't correct."

The Florida Blazers announced nearly seven thousand over the official paid figure of 18,265 for their home opener, while the New York Stars and Chicago Fire acknowledged giveaways of between 1,000 and 2,000 for their games.

Oakland's Blue Hospitalized

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — An electrocardiogram test on Oakland A's pitcher Vida Blue may have revealed an irregularity in his heart beat, a team spokesman admitted early today.

"All the information I have is what I gave in the press box," Bank said. "The doctor is not releasing any word until he can get the EKG from New York from July 11. He wants to compare it with the test he had Tuesday."

"Vida is resting comfortably and doctors are, of course, running other tests," A's manager Alvin Dark said. "We just don't know how serious it is."

Blue was scheduled to pitch Tuesday night but Blue Moon Odom took his place.

"The left-hander complained of chest pains in Minnesota Monday night and was taken to Baylor Hospital here Tuesday morning."

Robert Fulton, the A's director of public relations, reached at his Oakland home, said, "Our traveling secretary called me before the game (Tuesday night) and said Vida had had an EKG (electrocardiogram) and it was supposed to have shown an irregular heart beat."

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (AP) — Sam Basile faced just 23 batters and fired the first no-hitter in New Westminster Frasers' history Tuesday night as the Frasers swept a Northwest League baseball doubleheader from the Portland Mavericks.

Basile was almost letter-perfect, allowing just two runners to reach base as the Frasers took the second game of the doubleheader 6-0. Ed Cervantes walked for Portland in the first inning and Cliff Holland made it to first on a throwing error by shortstop Larry Pearlman with only one out remaining in the game.

Wolfpack Coach Norman Sloan and 10 State players will meet the national teams of the Philippines, Taiwan, Thailand, Hong Kong and Japan, beginning with three games in Manila Aug. 10-12.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates have optioned reserve catcher Chick Brinkman to Charleston of the International League to make room for catcher Mike Ryan.

Ryan, who was reactivated Tuesday, had been on the disabled list since July 9 with a back injury. The Pirates purchased Brinkman from the Chicago White Sox after Ryan was injured.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jimmy Powell, a 6-foot-5 forward from Middle Tennessee State University, has signed to play for the Philadelphia 76ers of the National Basketball Association, the club announced Tuesday.

Powell, a native of Morgan, N.C., and an eighth-round draft choice, averaged 14.8 points a game last season as a collegian.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Don "Big Daddy" Garlits and "TV" Tommy Ivo will race their Top Fuel dragsters in best-of-three matches both today and Sunday in the Dixie Classic Drag Championships.

There will be a similar format in Pro Stock between Ronnie Sox and "Dyno" Don Nicholson on the one-eighth mile strip at the Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Richmond To Name Sloan Cage Coach

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—The University of Richmond was expected to announce today the signing of Carl Slone of George Washington University as the Spiders' new head basketball coach.

Slone, who confirmed Monday that he will sign a four-year contract with Richmond, has been head basketball coach at George Washington for the past

Slone, a 36-year-old native of Williamson, W.Va., graduated from Richmond in 1960 after playing four varsity seasons.

He coached for seven years at Virginia high schools before entering college coaching in 1967 as an assistant at William and Mary.

He spent two years at W&M before leaving to become asstant to Wayne Dobbs at George Washington in 1969.

He took over as GW head coach a year later when Dobbs resigned, inheriting a team that had won only five of 24 games in 1969-70.

The Colonials had 11-14 records during Slone's first two years as coach, but improved to 17-9 in the 1972-73 season and had a 15-11 mark last season.

Slone had been a prime candidate for the Richmond job for weeks, and became the front-runner when two other leading prospects, Tulane's Charles Moir and Randolph-Macon's Paul Webb, withdrew from consideration.

Richmond, runner-up for the Southern Conference championship last season, has been without a coach since Lewis Mills resigned June 4 to become assistant director of athletics at Virginia Commonwealth University.

The Spiders were 16-12 last winter — their first winning season since the 1957-58 club, on which Slone was a star forward, posted a 14-12 record.

Roswell Garst Again Inviting Soviet Specialists

EDITOR'S NOTE — Roswell Garst, who sees himself as a pioneer of U.S.-Soviet detente, is once again inviting Russian agricultural specialists to his Iowa farm. Sharing food production knowledge, he says, will show the way to world peace.

By GORDON HANSON
Associated Press Writer
COON RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — Roswell Garst chuckles noiselessly when he recalls telling Nikita Khrushchev: "You know, for a peasant, you're a damned poor horse trader."
Garst, now 76, expected an argument. But the Russian premier responded with a grin.
That visit 15 years ago was part of the pioneering role Garst believes he played in the development of detente between the United States and Russia.
Today the tenacious Garst is again dealing with the Russians and telling them how to farm better. Since 1972, he's sold the Soviet Union 1,300 tons of hybrid grain sorghum seed. He's trying to convince the Russians that hybrid grain sorghum will grow well in cold, northern Russia.

Garst remains gregarious and vocal despite removal of a cancerous voice box in 1963. Now he speaks by nuzzling a battery-powered device into the deep folds of his throat. As he slowly exhales, his thoughts pour out in a flat, metallic monotone.
"I turned what might have been a tragedy into a damned nuisance," he said, lifting the clasp on his bolo tie and exposing a dime-sized hole at the base of his throat, through which he breathes.
Garst began trading with the Soviet Union, he said, "because I thought there should be more communication between the two countries." He packed his order book and went to Russia and Romania in 1955, and sold about $1 million worth of hybrid seed corn.

Hybrid seed corn had been a passion with Garst since 1930. Convinced that it would produce greater yields than the old open-pollinated corn, he and a friend founded Garst & Thomas Co., now one of the world's largest hybrid seed corn operations. Garst toured the Midwest in the 1930s, convincing farmers to switch to hybrid seed corn. He was just as convincing with the Russians in 1955.
The trading venture reached an apogee on Sept. 23, 1959, when Khrushchev, his wife, daughters and an entourage of hundreds visited the Garst farm a mile east of Coon Rapids.

They came to view what Communist nations considered unorthodox farming methods that might bolster their flagging agricultural efforts.
Khrushchev was deposed in 1964 and died in 1971. "I never went over to Russia nor corresponded with anybody during that period," Garst explains.
"I wouldn't have wanted to go to the Soviet Union and not see Mr. Khrushchev after he had been demoted. It would have been embarrassing to him and to the people who demoted him."
But in 1972 he urged Russia's agriculture minister, Vladimir Matskevich, to take a refresher course in American farming methods, and the minister accepted the invitation.
"I've entertained delegations from Chile and the Soviet Union in the same day," Garst says of his current efforts. "I don't care about their politics or their religion. All I want to do is help people who want to learn."
He said delegations that flock to his central-Iowa farm to view his farming methods "all have one thing in mind: they want to eat better."

Garst delights in receiving agricultural delegations of any size.
"I have a 17-year-old boy coming here. His father is the best geneticist in Hungary. The boy wants to take a peek at American agriculture and mechanization."
"We have them all the time. The Germans are coming soon and a French delegation."
His prevailing concern, he says, is that agriculture can't provide sufficient world food unless backward nations are taught modern farming methods and have access to hybrid seeds with their special growth characteristics.
Garst admits to being outspoken. "I'm always giving advice to someone."
Khrushchev was no exception. Garst discussed keeping farm land in good shape by heavy fertilization, not crop rorotation. But he also talked politics with the former Russian premier. That's when he made the "poor horse trader" remark.

"I then pointed out to him that the U.S. was spending 10 per cent of its gross national production on armament. I pointed out that we had at least twice as great industrial productivity as the Soviet Union. I said if he was going to compete with us in armament, he had to spend 20 per cent of Russia's gross capacity."
"He countered: 'How would you like to have American air bases surrounding your country?'"
"I said about as follows: 'I think you ought to be amused. Besides, you are making great progress ... and in my opinion, our maintenance of air bases is a waste of American funds and energies.'"
"He didn't argue. He only said: 'I never had anybody suggest that it was foolishness before, but you make a pretty good case of it.'"

Garst isn't a big man physically, perhaps 5-feet-10, but he's the most important man in Coon Rapids, a Corn Belt town of 1,381 persons.
He greets visitors at the door to his modern office, part of the mainstreet headquarters of the sprawling Garst & Thomas Co.
Garst's thinning, defiant gray hair, rumpled shirt and beltless trousers hitched high by suspenders are misleading. His hawklike features are age-softened, but he retains a tempered, imperious manner and an air of confidence that he is equal to any meaningful challenge — such as coexistence with Russia.

Garst and his wife, Elizabeth, 78, live in a five-bedroom, white frame home surrounded by huge vegetable, flower and shrub gardens. Their 15 grandchildren once flocked to a shaded swimming pool near the house, but they're grown now.
Garst sees agriculture as a means "of showing the way to world peace."
"I tell people that a hungry dog is dangerous, but a well-fed dog is lazy. The same general thing is true of people."

Goldfish Enjoy Watery Luxury
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Fish gotta swim, but nowhere does it say they gotta swim in luxury. Nevertheless, there are some select goldfish that reside in aquatic splendor.
These fish, known as "The 100" of underwater society, dart around in a 50-foot pool off the lobby of the Crown Center Hotel here. The pool, adorned with Egyptian papyrus and water iris, is at the base of a 60-foot-high waterfall that plunges through a tropical garden.

How Tar Heel Senators, Representatives Voted

By ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON—Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes July 25 through July 31.

HOUSE
STRIP MINING Passed, 291 for and 81 against, a bill setting tough federal regulations on the operation of strip mines.
 The bill (H.R. 11500) now goes to conference. In part, it requires that strip-mined land be restored to approximate natural contours, forbids strip mining of land too steep to be restored and authorizes federal funds to pay for land reclamation.
 Supporters argued that government regulation will force strip mine operators to protect the environment.
 Opponents argued that strict regulation of strip mining will trigger higher coal costs and, thus, cause increased dependence on imported oil.
 A few members voting against argued that the bill was too

 Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L.H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Wilmer Mizell (R-5), Richardson Preyer (D-6), Charles Rose (D-7), Earl Ruth (R-8), James Martin (R-9), James Broyhill (R-10) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "yea."
 Rep. Ike Andrews (D-4) did not vote.
MASS TRANSIT Sent back to committee, 221 for and 181 against, the conference report on a bill to make federal operating subsidies available to debt-plagued urban transit systems.
 The bill (S.386) would have made available $800 million over an eleven-month period. The effect of voting to recommit the bill was to kill it.
 Those voting to recommit argued that too much of the money would go to large cities, like New York. They also argued that the subsidies would encourage transit companies to operate at a loss, in order to qualify for the money. Rep. Bill Frenzel (R-Minn.) said the bill "resembles a plan to drain the ocean to save a drowning man" and removes "incentive for local transit authorities to hold costs down."

 Those voting against argued that hard-pressed transit companies need immediate relief. They said that boosting mass transit ridership will ease energy shortages.
 Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Mizell, Preyer, Ruth, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "yea."
 Rose voted "nay."
NUCLEAR AGREEMENTS Passed, 194 for and 191 against, an amendment to increase Congress' control over international nuclear agreements, such as those recently negotiated with Egypt and Israel.
 The amendment strengthened language in H.R. 15582 dealing with Congress' role in overseeing the sale of reactors or nuclear fuel to foreign powers. The original language permitted Congress to disapprove nuclear agreements. The amendment changed that to require approval in the form of an act of Congress.

 The overall bill was later passed and sent to conference.
 In supporting the amendment, Rep. Bob Eckhardt (D-Texas) said, "The only way to control the power to export nuclear potential... is simply to say that before it is done Congress must act affirmatively."
 Opponents argued that the amendment infringes on the Executive's constitutional powers and hinders the U.S. role in promoting peaceful uses of atomic power.
 Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Mizell and Broyhill voted "yea."
 Preyer, Ruth, Martin and Taylor voted "nay."
 Rose did not vote.
SENATE
CONSUMER AGENCY Rejected, 56 for and 42 against, a move to close debate and force a vote on the bill (S. 707) to establish the Agency for Consumer Advocacy, formerly called the Consumer Protection Agency.

 The agency would have broad powers to intercede on consumers' behalf with businesses and federal agencies.
 In rejecting the cloture petition, the Senate voted to delay a vote on final passage. The cloture move fell ten votes short of the two-thirds majority needed under Senate rules to close debate.
 Senators voting to close debate argued that consumers need a "strong voice" in government. Sen. Harrison Williams (D-N.J.) said, "For five years we have discussed, debated and analyzed every section of the bill... The longer we delay final action, the longer we deny consumers the right to have an advocate."
 Most of those voting against oppose the bill because they fear it would create an unnecessary bureaucracy bent on harrasing businesses and government agencies. Sen. Carl Curtis (R-Neb.) said, "It will be one more agency to throw roadblocks."

 A few senators voting against, however, said they support the agency, but were not yet prepared to close debate. One of them, Sen. Lawton Chiles (D-Fla.) said, "I will vote for cloture when it becomes apparent... that a filibuster is in progress."
 Sens. Jesse Helms (R) and Sam Ervin (D) voted "nay."
EMPLOYEE PROTECTION Passed, 66 for and 24 against, an amendment guaranteeing federal assistance to juvenile correction workers whose jobs are affected by changes in federal juvenile delinquency programs.
 The amendment was attached to a bill (S. 821) calling for upgrading various federal programs for rehabilitating juvenile offenders. The bill was later passed and sent to the House.

 Under the bill, some juvenile facilities and programs may be phased out. In part, the amendment called for retraining of displaced employees. In passing the amendment, the Senate voted to change language that would have made states responsible for enacting employee protection programs.
 Supporters argued that displaced employees deserve federal guarantees.
 Opponents argued against unnecessarily interjecting the federal government into correctional administration, an area of traditional state and local control.
 Ervin voted "yea" and Helms voted "nay."
CRIME DEVICE EXPORTS Rejected, 21 for and 73 against, an attempt to table an amendment that prevents the export of U.S.-manufactured police equipment to the Soviet Union and other totalitarian countries.
 After rejecting the tabling motion, the Senate voted to attach the export ban on crime devices to S. 3792, a bill dealing with the Secretary of Commerce's export control authority. The overall bill was later passed and sent to the House.

 The ban follows recent disclosures that sophisticated U.S. crime equipment had been scheduled for display at a Soviet trade exhibition.
 In supporting the tabling motion—which would have killed the export ban—Sen. Robert Packwood (R-Ore.) cited difficulties in determining which nations are totalitarian, and said that some U.S. allies might be denied U.S. crime equipment under the ban's provisions.
 In opposing the tabling motion, Sen. Henry Jackson (D-Wash.) argued that American technology should not assist "any nation that engages in repressive police practices."
 Helms and Ervin voted "nay."

'Last Chance' For 937 Jews Was Disaster

EDITOR'S NOTE — Henry Kissinger might not be alive today if he had sailed in 1939 aboard the St. Louis. But he left Germany on another ship shortly before and escaped the terrible fate of many of the St. Louis' unwanted passengers.

By EVE SHARBUTT
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It was May 1939 when 937 Jews bought what they thought was a chance to live.

They purchased visas for Cuba and passage from Hamburg to Havana aboard the luxury liner St. Louis. Some of them had already been in concentration camps. Others had been pushed to the brink of madness by months of hiding, weeks of terror.

Cuba turned the ship back after unloading a handful of mysterious, privileged passengers. The United States refused them entry. After 40 days, the St. Louis turned back toward Europe. England, France, Belgium and the Netherlands finally agreed to take a quarter of the passengers apiece. But it was the eve of the war. The three continental countries were soon to be occupied. When the holocaust ended, only 240 passengers from the St. Louis had survived.

Gordon Thomas and Max Morgan Witts, former British Broadcasting Corp. producers, interviewed many of those survivors and some St. Louis crew members. The result is a book, "Voyage of the Damned," documenting Nazi propaganda efforts and espionage as well as corruption in the Cuban government at the time.

Thomas, a bearded man who says, "This is the only book I've ever been emotionally involved in," is the author of 18 books. With Morgan Witts, he writes about people under stress.

Some survivors just couldn't talk about it, even today, he said.

"Four of those people who were children on the ship had things burned into their minds. When they finally made their way to the promised land, and met indifference ... They're not able to erase the past from their minds, but the whole thing has built up a crisis of identity," Thomas said.

Promoting the book in the United States, Thomas has traveled for eight weeks, lecturing mainly to Jewish groups.

"Anti-semitism is still pretty rife in this country. I had a number of telephone calls from the Bund, and I consider that a verbal, insane tip of a dangerous iceberg."

Most people, he added, are saying "Why make us feel uncomfortable."

"I say we need to be made uncomfortable. Do you know there are people picnicking on the grass at Dachau today?"

"In Boston, a professor asked why I was going to San Francisco 'to talk to those WASH-oes'. I wasn't too sure who he meant. But he said it stood for 'White Anglo-Saxon Hebrews.' I thought that was harsh until I noticed how bland and indifferent some audiences were."

A generation has passed since Adolf Hitler's Third Reich systematically murdered six million Jews. Vivid memories haunt those who survived. "But others see six million and holocaust as convenient labels," Thomas said. "They find them 'megadeath' and meaningless. "They're a convenient way to assuage guilt without doing anything. We don't see individuals any more."

Thomas is not Jewish. He is Welsh, born, as he tells it, in a cemetery where his grandparents were caretakers. He calls himself "a Celt who could swim" because he resides in Ireland.

"I'm also not, as I've been called by fanatics, 'a Jew lover.' I love Jews in the way I'm in love with the human race. But I believe that what this book says is that all this could happen again. The seeds are here."

Thomas and Morgan Witts wrote their book from millions of words of research.

"We spread it all out on the floor, sift through and write. We've been called literary detectives. We like that terminology."

Previous joint efforts were "The Day the World Ended," about a volcanic eruption in Martinique; "The San Francisco Earthquake," and "Shipwreck," about the Morro Castle.

During his American tour, Thomas visited two women survivors of the St. Louis in New York.

"They're estranged from their mother, and I brought them news of her. She lives in Germany alone, she's 70, a thin woman with many illnesses. She is still a German first, after all she has been through. But she says her neighbors aren't happy when she recalls wartime years.

"They don't bloody care that I can't forget," she told me. So perhaps now the daughters and mother will communicate again."

His favorite anecdote about the St. Louis is this: "If another ship had been turned back to Germany just before the St. Louis sailed, Henry Kissinger wouldn't be with us today."

"It's a lonely job being a missionary," Thomas said. "People tend to boil you in their bland indifference. It's hard for me to understand. Anger I can deal with. But indifference sows seeds for another 'Voyage of the Damned.'"

Plan Black Arts Event In Lagos

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — At least 71 nations have registered to participate in the second World Black and African Festival of the Arts and Culture, to be held here in the fall of 1975.

A government announcement said, however, only 15 countries have so far paid the required $10,000 registration fee.

Music Taken To All The People

By JAMES WARD
BONN (UPI) — Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia's audience sport diamonds and furs, but Volker Wangenheim takes his Beethoven Hall orchestra out of the concert hall into the streets, factories and hospitals.

As the taxpayers finance Bonn's largest symphony orchestra, they ought also be able to listen to it, says the 47-year-old conductor and music teacher.

"For me, it's a mortal sin to play only for the super-elite," Wangenheim said in a hurried interview sandwiched in between rehearsals and performances.

"I don't want to sound high-handed, but if the people cannot come to us, then we must bring music to them," he said.

"After all, we spend a fair amount of the taxpayers' money."

In return for this, Wangenheim and his 100-member orchestra go into the streets to woo workers, housewives, students and children.

The taxpayers love it, and him. All this in Bonn, capital of West Germany, the home of parliament, center for the diplomatic corps and the birthplace of Beethoven, Germany's greatest composer.

Recalling a concert inside the vast Mehlum electronics factory last year, he said: "They stopped all machines and closed the doors while we played with workers standing around. The acoustics were surprisingly good."

Wangenheim has taken his musicians inside a psychiatric clinic to give patients a chance to hear live music.

"It was a very strange and moving experience," he said. The Bonn housewife is another target for the restless conductor and his orchestra.

"Usually we hold concerts inside a large bank at 5 p.m., when the shopping rush is over," he said. "You would be surprised how many women look in, shopping bags in one hand, kids in the other, to hear a piece of music before going home to prepare the dinner."

"It's not important how long they stay or what they hear, as long as they go home and talk about it or perhaps recognize the piece next time it's played over the radio."

Wangenheim's concerts for children—consciously styled on those pioneered in New York by Leonard Bernstein, have become an institution in Bonn, although he started off on the wrong note.

"We made the mistake of inviting children of all ages," he recalled. "That did not work. There is greater difference between a child of 8 rustling chocolate wrappers and one of 18 shyly holding hands with his girl friend than between 18 and 80."

Now Sunday mornings are reserved for children aged 8-12 and their parents. Concerts for older children are performed separately.

"We'll play a piece of program music — Ravel's 'Bolero' or Mussorgsky's 'Pictures at an Exhibition'—and nail up pictures on the wall to explain what it is all about."

New Words, Terms For Dictionary

By H. D. QUIGG
UPI Senior Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Better not tell this to one of your fuddyduddy friends —there might be an explosion—but the word "irregardless" is in the dictionary. Honest.

So is TGIF. This is a useful entry. It's the abbreviation for "Thank God It's Friday."

Among many other included abbreviations are ZPG, "Zero Population Growth," and, if anybody cares, AFPIS — "American Federation of Information Processing Societies." Also, FZS — "Fellow of the Zoological Society."

"Irregardless" finally made it (lexicographers have got to keep up with the language) but it is labeled "substandard." And the definition is: "irregardless adv (prob. blend of irrespective and regardless) nonstand: Regardless."

These choice items were dredged by a browse through the eighth Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary, published by G. & C. Merriam, the venerable word brokers of Springfield, Mass.

"New," incidentally, is a word hard to resist putting in the title of a dictionary — irregardless of who the publisher is.

You can learn in this new (year-old) book that "Ms." is an abbreviation used "when the marital status of a woman is unknown," that she might be wearing an afro ("having the hair shaped into a round bushy mass") and could possibly be a groupie ("a female fan of a rock group who usually follows the group around on concert tours").

From the world of drugs now comes "smack" (origin unknown) slang: Heroin. And "bummer slang: An unpleasant experience (as a bad reaction to a hallucinogenic drug)."

"Language is continually changing," says David R. Replogle, Merriam president, "and never more so than in recent years. Today we are witnessing a groundswell of new movements and new ideas that began in the 1960s. Their contribution to the language has been enormous.

"In other years, new words came from the areas of technology and science and such interests as urban development and ecology. Today they come from young people, from the black experience, fashion and entertainment, sports, and much more."

Among popular new words are "ego trip" — an act that satisfies and enhances one's ego — and "trendy" — very fashionable and up to date.

A "folk mass" is a mass where traditional music is replaced by folk music. A "chopper" is a customized motorcycle. "Juvenocracy" is a state ruled or greatly influenced by youth.

Of course, a "suicide squad" is a special squad used in kickoffs in football. And an "enduro" is a long race stressing endurance rather than speed.

And then there's "splash-down," a new one that already is growing gracefully old. Thank goodness, NASA has had no unpleasant ... ah, well, no bummers.

Caller Brought Flowers, Gun

LONDON (AP) — The front doorbell sounded in the apartment building where Cynthia Mango lives. "Flowers for madam," said a voice on Mrs. Mango's intercom. She opened the remote-controlled door but, when her caller arrived at the apartment, she found him armed with a gun as well as flowers. He escaped with jewelry worth $115,000.

Wants Regular Working Hours

LONDON (AP) — Maureen Colquhoun and five other MPs have signed a motion urging establishment of regular office hours for House of Commons sessions. Mrs. Colquhoun, a Labor member, said she wants to get home in time to cook her husband's dinner. One MP suggested that if Mrs. Colquhoun couldn't stand the Commons pace she should return to the kitchen.

The Worry Clinic Deserving Of Doctorate

Malcolm finally got the much desired D.D. degree in California. But it wasn't until this column put the "heat" on seminaries that they began to quit using the honorary D.D. as a political bribe, as outlined below!

By GEORGE W. CRANE Ph., M.D.
CASE B-606: Malcolm R., aged 48, is now a famous city pastor.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I was at Garrett Biblical Institute when you lectured there. "And I joined the rest of the audience in vigorous applause when you said seminary students should get a doctor's degree upon graduation. "President Horace Smith later told you that Garrett wasn't chartered to offer earned doctorates, but you urged him to amend his charter and offer the D.D. as an earned degree.

"Well, he never made any attempt to follow your suggestions. "But we seminarians appreciated your saying that physicians get an M.D. and dental surgeons a D.D.S., with no more college training than seminary graduates.

"For we put in 4 years at Liberal Arts Colleges, then 3 more years in graduate school. "You told Dr. Smith that if he felt we should serve a pastoral internship for a year, add that to the requirement, but you steadfastly claimed seminaries were doing their graduates a gross injustice.

"For, after 3 years of graduate study, we then obtained only a bachelors degree (B.D.) and that isn't a prestige conversational 'handle,' as you explained.

"Well, Dr. Crane, at your constant urging, you must be happy to realize that seminaries are now awarding doctoral degrees.

"It has taken 20 years of your vigorous newspaper challenges of the seminaries, but at last clergymen are getting a doctorate.

"The California Graduate School of Theology really put a burr under the saddle of other seminaries.

"For it not only offered a doctorate for 3 years of graduate theological study.

"But agreed to honor any B.D. granted by other seminaries and with one year's additional attendance at seminars to add the D.D. or a similar doctorate."

Seminary Politics
A generation ago, seminaries restricted their honorary D.D. to certain distinguished former graduates who fulfilled these criteria:

- (1) The D.D. recipients had married the bishop's daughter or otherwise had established political leverage with the seminary;
- (2) They had persuaded some wealthy parishioner to bequeath $100,000 to the seminary or to endow a "chair" thereat; (3) They had invited the president of the seminary and/or other key faculty members to be guest sermonizers in their large city pulpits.

Obviously, these clergymen who obtained the D.D. by one or another of those standard techniques, were usually pretty shrewd operators.

But often no more deserving of a D.D. than dozens of their equally distinguished classmates.

Alas, when I began urging in this "Worry Clinic" that all 3-year seminary graduates be granted the D.D. as an "earned" doctorate, just like the D.D.S. or M.D., those clergy who had wangled their D.D. previously, were quite cool to my idea!

And you can see why! But a doctorate is a "handle" that testifies to the clergyman's 7 years of academic training and thus sets him apart from some emotional sects with preachers who never finished high school. (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

RAH! RAH!
ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — A 94-year-old tradition will end this fall—the University of Michigan will have a coed cheerleading group for the first time. Pom-pom girls will join the previously all-male contingent, mostly gymnasts and divers.

TV 'Premiere Week' Planned Begin Sept. 9

By JAY SHARBUTT AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Unless impeachment debates change planned schedules, all three TV networks will hold "premiere week" — the start of the fall TV season — the week of Sept. 9 amid much ballyhoo and drumbeating.

Excluding ABC's "NFL Monday Night Football" show, 62 evening programs are in the new season. Of these, 25 are new.

CBS has five new shows and NBC and ABC 10 each. According to network spokesmen, only two won't start during "premiere week."

Those shows, both on ABC-TV, are "Nakia," an hour-long action-adventure series about a lawman of Navajo heritage, and "The Sonny Comedy Revue," starring Sonny Bono, but not Cher, who has left him. "Nakia" debuts Saturday, Sept. 21 and the Bono show Sept. 22.

Another ABC series, "That's My Mama," a half-hour situation comedy about a black family in Washington, D.C., is the only new show getting a jump on premiere week. ABC says it'll air Sept. 4, a Wednesday.

Lady cops, whose ranks are swelling on big-city police forces, will make a limited dent in this season's law-and-order gang on TV.

Premiere week features two of the breed — "Christie Love" on ABC and "Police Woman" on NBC. The shows respectively star Teresa Graves and Angie Dickinson, both as undercover detectives.

Another NBC series, "Amy Prentiss," a feature Jessica Walter as a police lieutenant in charge of male cops. The show replaces the "Hec Ramsey" segment on NBC's "Sunday Mystery Movie" quarter, but NBC says it doesn't know yet if Lt. Prentiss will report for duty Sept. 15.

Only two new shows — CBS' "Roda," a spinoff from the "Mary Tyler Moore Show" and NBC's "Born Free" — are on the Monday schedule during television's big week, and no new series will appear Tuesday nights.

The week's real rush of new series starts Wednesday, Sept. 11, with "Sons and Daughters" and "The Manhunter" on CBS; "Little House on the Prairie," "Lucas Tanner" and "Petrocelli" on NBC and "Christie Love" on ABC.

On Sept. 12, NBC's "Sierra" and "Movin' On" shows and ABC's "Paper Moon" and "Harry O" series will debut as regular programs.

CBS' new offering for Friday the 13th is "Planet of the Apes." NBC will provide "Chico & the Man," "The Rockford Files" and "Police Woman" as its new-show fare that night, while ABC is offering "Kodiak," "Texas Wheelers" and "Kolchak: The Night Stalker."

On Saturday, Sept. 14, the new regular shows kicking off are "The Paul Sand" show on CBS and ABC's "The New Land" series, to be joined a week later by "Nakia."

The only blockbuster movies in the premiere week lineup are the film version of "M-A-S-H," aired by CBS Friday night, Sept. 11, and "Kluge," starring Jane Fonda as a prostitute and Donald Sutherland as a detective. NBC says it'll show that film Saturday Sept. 15.

Early Abortion Policy Advised

VICTORIA, B.C. (AP) — Canadian Health Minister Dennis Cocke wants doctors to work with the government in eliminating late abortions.

Cocke told the B.C. Medical Association annual meeting hoped to stop abortions beyond the 14th week of pregnancy, except in situations where the mother's health is seriously in danger.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If properly attuned planetarily, you find you can handle financial matters most intelligently today. Make plans for the future.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she must be taught to complete whatever has once been begun, otherwise there will never be any real success in this lifetime. Give as fine an education as you can, since your progeny will become a persevering and studious person. Teach how to come to decisions quickly. Religion is a must.

The bidding:

Opening lead: King of ♦

Have you ever dreamed of playing on some of these championship teams that you are always reading about? Here's your chance to test your playing technique against two experts. We will give you a slight edge by allowing you to look at all four hands as you attempt to bring home a close game.

At this vulnerability, South's opening bid of four hearts meets with our approval. It is in keeping with the Rule of Two and Three, which requires that a player be within three tricks of his contract when preempting if he is not vulnerable.

Obviously, if the spade finesse is going to succeed, you have no problem. Therefore, you must plan your play on the basis that the finesse will fail, in which case you are in danger of losing a spade, two diamonds and a club. Your first move should be to duck the king of diamonds to keep control of the suit. If West shifts to, say, a trump at trick two to try to cut off dummy's diamond ruff, you can set up a second spade trick while the ace of diamonds prevents the defenders from cashing a second trick in that suit. However, West continues with a diamond. Your goal is to avoid a second diamond loser—the only question is how to accomplish this.

If you draw trumps and take the spade finesse, the defenders will be able to cash the setting tricks in the minors before you can take a discard on spades. If you lead a club, the defenders can bring about the same position by winning the trump and returning a spade, eliminating the possibility of a diamond ruff.

The winning play is not easy to spot. You have to preserve communications between your hand and dummy, and the only way to do this is to lead the queen of spades at trick three! East cannot afford to duck, for then the defenders' spade trick will vanish. But after he wins the king he cannot make a damaging return. You still have a trump in dummy to take care of the third round of diamonds, and if the defenders shift to a trump you can extract all their trumps and then take a discard on a high spade. No matter what they do, they can take no more than three tricks.

If you found the winning play, I'd be proud to have you for a teammate.

Rain Forest Is Not For Crops

BRASILIA (UPI) — A recent study published by the Brazilian Enterprise of Agricultural Research (EMBRAPA), has discredited the long held notion that Brazil's Amazonian rain forest was extremely rich in agricultural potential.

In a study commissioned by the government, EMBRAPA concluded, "the common denominator of the several ecological parameters that comprise the 1.8 million square miles of the Amazonian rain forest, is the extremely low fertility of the soil, which would turn any agricultural venture in the area disadvantageous"
