

Formally Sworn In At Noon

Gerald Ford Now President

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Gerald R. Ford became 38th President of the United States today and told the nation "our long national nightmare is over."
"Our Constitution works," Ford said as he assumed the office of the resigned Richard M. Nixon. "Our great republic is a government of laws and not of men."
At 12:03 p.m. EDT, Ford pronounced the oath of office Nixon was accused of violating in the Watergate scandals.
Ford was President already; Nixon's resignation was delivered at 11:35 a.m. EDT, and with it the powers of office passed automatically to Ford, a plain man who promised plain talk to the nation.

Ford said he would ask to appear before a joint session of Congress Monday night to discuss "my views on the priority business of the nation."
"As we bind up the wounds of Watergate, let us restore the Golden Rule to our political process," Ford said.
He spoke, too, of Nixon, who at the moment of transition was flying over the Midwest on the way home to California and private life.
"May our former President who brought peace to millions find it for himself," Ford said.
Ford said his first speech as President would be no political oration, "just a little straight talk among friends." He said it will be the first of many.
"I assume the presidency under extraordinary circumstances never before experienced by America," Ford said. "This is an hour of history that troubles our minds and hurts our hearts..."
Never before had a president resigned; never before had an appointed vice president succeeded to office.
"I am acutely aware that you have not elected me by your ballots, so I ask you to confirm me as your President by your prayers," Ford said.
While he will make what amounts to a State of the Union Address to Congress Monday, Ford settled into the work of office at once, asking congressional leaders to go from the oath-taking ceremony to meet privately with him.

The East Room ceremony was nationally broadcast and televised. Ford's voice was firm, but there was a quaver when he spoke of the departed Nixon's quest for peace in the world.
Ford promised the nation that quest will continue.
"America will remain strong and united, but its strength will remain dedicated to the safety and sanity of the entire family of man," Ford said.
Chief Justice Warren E. Burger administered the oath of office.
"Are you prepared to take the oath of office as President of the United States?" the black-robed Burger asked.
"I am, sir," Ford replied.
Chief Justice Warren E. Burger was summoned back from Europe to administer to Ford the oath of office Nixon was accused of violating.
"I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of the President of the United States, and will to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

The midterm inauguration was the climax to an event-filled week in which the pressure on Nixon to resign, and the rumors that he would do so, built steadily.
Nixon's announcement on Monday that he had withheld key evidence about his early knowledge of Watergate on political grounds caused even his staunchest supporters to demand his impeachment or resignation.
Ford inherited the leadership of a nation that Nixon said desperately needs to heal the wounds of Watergate. Indeed, the outgoing president said he hoped his departure would speed that process.
"The leadership of America will be in good hands," said Nixon.

One Sentence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon formally resigned today as 37th president of the United States.
The one-sentence letter, delivered at 11:35 a.m. EDT to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, said: "Dear Mr. Secretary: 'I hereby resign the office of President of the United States.'
Sincerely, Richard Nixon."
This was 25 minutes before Ford was to formally recite the oath as America's 38th president.

Many Feel Suffering Is 'Enough'

By CARL TYER

First District Congressman Walter Jones said last night following President Nixon's resignation speech that he will not "be a party to any vindictive action against the President, for I am convinced that regardless of the degree of his guilt, he has suffered enough."
Jones' reaction to the first resignation of a President of the United States was similar to that of leaders of Pitt County in both the Democratic and Republican parties, however, some feel prosecution should not be ruled out.
Jones continued, "I believe I speak for most members of the Congress when I say that to some degree we are all saddened by the circumstances and state of affairs which caused President Nixon to take the unprecedented action of resigning as President of the United States."
"Certainly it is a great act of courage on the part of any man to arrive at such a momentous decision. Tragically as this is, the important thing now should be the total dedication of the new President, the Congress and all Americans in healing what ever wounds might exist at the earliest possible moment, and attempting to create in this country a spirit of bipartisan unity in an effort to move this nation forward to its full potential," Jones concluded.
Other Eastern North Carolina leaders expressed similar reactions towards the President's resignation, some saying it is an "unfortunate occurrence" in American history.
Reaction from Democrats and Republicans alike has been similar.
N.C. Senator Vernon White said this morning, "It is an unfortunate occurrence in our government. I think that justice has been done, the humility of being removed from office is the greatest punishment the President could receive. It is now about time to forget it and rally around the new President and get the country back to a stable economy."
When asked if he felt the former President should be prosecuted further, White added, "I think by-in-large the people think justice has been done."
ECU Chancellor Dr. Leo Jenkins responded to the same question by saying, "I don't think our fore-fathers wanted anyone to be above the law, yet we are compassionate people and we do not run around seeking revenge. It is for the courts to decide, and not the Congress."

Jenkins continued, "I think all America is saddened for the Nixon family, it is a personal tragedy for the family. But it does reveal that America's strength is unique, it does not rest in our capital, but rather with the people."
Jenkins added when commenting on prosecution of the former President, "I believe in America that no one is above the law, we have been accused so long for having a dual type of justice, one for the rich and one for the poor."
Republican reaction in Pitt County came from the GOP District Chairman, Herb Lee of Greenville.
"I think everything has been pretty much said. To me somebody has finally died after they have been suffering from a terminal

Connally Pleads Innocent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally pleaded innocent today to charges of bribery, conspiracy and perjury in the milk fund affair.
Chief U.S. District Judge George L. Hart Jr. released Connally in the custody of his attorney, Edward Bennett Williams, and gave him unlimited travel rights.
No trial date was set. Williams asked and received four to five days to file motions that he said might affect the trial date.
Connally was indicted last week and charged with taking two $5,000 payments from the nation's biggest dairy cooperative, Associated Milk Producers, Inc., in return for his help in getting President Nixon to raise federal milk price supports in March 1971.
He also was charged with two counts of perjury and with conspiring illegally to obstruct justice by covering up the alleged bribe with a phony story.
Connally's one-time friend Texas lawyer Jake Jacobsen, pleaded guilty Wednesday to a charge of bribery and told the judge he had given Connally the two $5,000 payments.

Developers Ask Annexing Of 205-Acre Subdivision

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
A petition by the developers of Lake Ellsworth Subdivision for the annexation of the 205-acre tract, located north of U.S. 264 Business, into the city limits was approved Thursday night by the City Council, effective Dec. 31.
The subdivision, situated some 1,500 feet west of the city limits which is the western boundary of Westwood Subdivision, was petitioned for annexation under the newly enacted Satellite Annexation Law which permits a municipality to take in property that is not contiguous to the city limits upon adequate petition of the land owners.
Action on the petition followed a public hearing on the matter during which no opposition was voiced and during which one resident of the subdivision spoke in favor of the proposed annexation.
Approval of the annexation was made subject to the improvement of streets within the subdivision in conformance with city street standards. The subdivision, it was explained, meets all of the other standards of the city and the developers are aware of corrections that are necessary in the area of street work.
Attorney Fred Mattox, appearing with developer William E. Dansey, told the council that 27 houses have been sold and are occupied at Lake Ellsworth and 33 new units are under construction.
Mattox said that in petitioning now for the annexation, the approval and signature of 100 per cent of the property owners is available but if the matter is not approved now, subsequent changes in property ownership could result in less than the required 100 per cent participation.
Prior to voting on the petition, Councilman Percy Cox said that the board still has the problem of deciding "whether we want to go into satellite annexation." Cox said that problems arose in past years when land was annexed under similar circumstances although not under a defined satellite provision. In the past, annexation action had resulted in the patrol duties of local police requiring them to leave the city limits to get to a new area of the city and Cox said he was worried about in-the-city, out-of-city problems.
Councilman John Howard contended that the people buying lots in outlying subdivisions would like to be in the city and he said that if the satellite law had been in effect in the early 1960's, "then Brook Valley would have been in the city."

Howard said that the satellite law offers a way for the city to annex property containing homes that, under provisions of the law, already meet city standards.
Mattox told the council that the property contains an 11-acre lake. Some two and a half acres of land have been set aside for recreation, it was noted.
In other business, a request by Carroll and Associates, agents for the James L. Evans heirs, for rezoning of approximately 143 acres located south of Pitt Plaza and west of N.C. 43 was approved. The rezoning action followed months of negotiations and meetings between the developers and the Planning and Zoning Commission and City Council.
In requesting the rezoning from RA-20 and Shopping Center to R-6, Office and Institutional, and Shopping Center, the property owners provided two restrictive covenants governing land development as well as a letter pledging that a dam and lake for drainage will be built prior to any non-farming use of the property.

The City Council conducted a public hearing on the request at its July meeting and requested at that time that the city attorney work with the developers in preparing the restrictive covenants and letter concerning the lake development.
The council voted to approve the widening of 14th Street on the east side from Dickinson Avenue to Chestnut Street. The widening, which will provide a turning or storage lane, would result in a 37-foot street width and a taper back to two lanes in the Myrtle Avenue area.
Lloyd Tyndall, a representative of the Corps of Engineers, gave a status report on the Green Mill Run Flood Control Project and proposed Recreational Development Program. Tyndall said that the flood control project, encompassing some 1.9 miles, would involve the Green Mill Run area from Charles Street to Green Springs Park.

The official said that the city has already concurred with the Corps' proposed project but some indication of the city's position relative to the implementation of the recreation plan along the streamway was needed. Implementation of the recreational program would require that the city secure fee title to needed land along Green Mill Run as well as pay 50 per cent of the overall Recreational project cost.
No construction money would be required from the city if the flood control project is pursued without the recreational element and the only city participation involves maintenance and easements.
The Corps representative noted also that both the Elm Street and College Hill Drive bridges over Green Mill Run would have to be modified in order for the flood control project to be government funded.
The council voted to have the Corps of Engineers pursue to channelization project and to delete the recreation program

Nixon Bids A Solemn White House Farewell

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A tearful Richard M. Nixon played out the final acts of a devastated presidency today, bidding sorrowful farewell to his Cabinet and aides, telling them that only a man in the deepest valley can know "how magnificent it is to be on the highest mountain."
Then Nixon and his wife trod a red carpet from the White House to a helicopter waiting on the lawn pad and began their journey to the California home that is the Western White House no more.
One last time, as he stepped into the helicopter, the resigning President waved the two-handed V-for-victory sign he had flashed so many times before from hundreds of political platforms.
And at precisely 10 a.m. EDT, the helicopter rose into the misty Washington morning. His Cabinet and several hundred administration aides heard his East Room farewell, and saw him go.

His successor, Gerald R. Ford, watched the takeoff.
"This house has a great heart and the heart comes from those who serve," the President told his associates, gathered in the East Room of the White House.
With the President, as he received more than five minutes of applause, were Mrs. Nixon, his daughters Julie and Tricia and their husbands.
The chiefs of his shattered administration were there, too: Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger, his Watergate lawyer James D. St. Clair.
"I'm proud of this Cabinet," Nixon said. "I'm proud of our sub-Cabinet. I'm proud of our White House staff."
Tears streaming down his face, he said "how we look to the future."
He read a passage from a book he said he read during his last night in the White House — a story about a young lawyer from New York whose daughter died.

"It was written by Theodore Roosevelt in his 20s," Nixon said. "He thought the light had gone from his life forever, but he went on."
Nixon spoke of the "knocks ... disappointments ... sadness" but said: "only if you have been in the deepest valley can you ever know how magnificent it is to be on the highest mountain."
"We leave with high hopes, in good spirit, with deep humility and with very gratefulness in our hearts," he said.
Not once did he mention Ford by name, and the new president wasn't present.
But outside, Ford and his wife walked side-by-side with Nixon and his wife along a red carpet to a waiting helicopter.
There they watched with tear-filled eyes as the 37th President, with a smile, a hearty wave and a flash of the V-for-victory sign, left the White House for private life.

LOOKING FOR MOBILE HOME TITLE
I purchased a new mobile home in April and paid cash for it. I still haven't received the title. The manager of the sales lot said the forms were mailed to the Dept. of Motor Vehicles on May 5. I've written the Dept. but they say they know nothing of the application yet. Mrs. M.W.

You have your title.
Hotline first discovered that the application for your title was mailed to Motor Vehicles June 20, not May 5. The Department received the application on June 24. The papers were sent from the mobile home lot's main office in High Point, not from Greenville as you were told. The Dept. of MV said it often takes four weeks for applications to be entered in the main computer. When your application showed up on the computer, it took about 10 days for the title to be processed. This has been done and the title has been mailed and received by you.

WHERE ARE MY PICTURES?
I had some pictures taken in March by Olan Mills Studios. I paid part then and finished the entire $51 payment in June. First they said they hadn't received my check; then they said they had and would rush my order through. I still don't have my photos. Mrs. D.H.

Hotline contacted the Studios in Chattanooga, Tenn., and later received a letter saying your order had been rushed through June 27 and should have been processed and shipped, that they did not know what had happened, but would be glad to give you a resitting, a refund, or make pictures from another pose.
Lo and behold, as you were trying to make your decision, your pictures arrived and you say you're quite pleased with them.

MRS. LEROY SMITH TAYLOR JR.

Taylor-Girard Vows Exchanged

BREVARD—Miss Jerry Lee Girard and Leroy Smith Taylor Jr. were married Saturday in the Brevard First Methodist Church. The Rev. Edsel Keith of Greenville, S.C., officiated at the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Harold Addison Girard of Brevard, and the late Mr. Girard. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Smith Taylor of Greenville.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, John Edwards, of Cullowhee. She wore a gown of white swiss embroidery organza fashioned with a fitted bodice and mandarin collar. The fitted bracelet sleeves had a wide flounce cuff and the full skirt had a hemline flounce and extended into a chapel sweep train.

She wore a horsehair braid picture hat accented with white illusion and a silk French flower. The bride carried a nosegay of yellow roses, white daisies and baby's breath.

Miss Virginia Girard was her sister's maid of honor. She wore a gown of yellow dotted swiss with long puff sleeves and a

Mom Will Meet Her Halfway

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a senior in high school. My boyfriend goes to college out of town, so we have been writing to each other regularly.

My mom and I have a communication problem. I mean, I don't tell her a whole lot, although I really don't have all that much to hide. Well, I had a hunch my mother was going into my drawer and reading the letters I got from my boyfriend, so I did something that wasn't very nice. I wrote notes like, "Hi, Mom, what are you looking for?", and I stuck them into the envelopes with my boyfriend's letters.

I know she saw them because she has been very cold to me lately, but she can't very well say anything about these notes without admitting she was snooping.

Abby, I don't think I should have to hide my things or lock them up. I mean, if a girl can't trust her own mother, who can she trust?

I would really like to have a better relationship with my mother, but I need to know how to get out of the doghouse first.

DEAR SORRY: For opensers you can quit writing "notes" in an attempt to trap and embarrass her. I do not condone snooping, but most mothers who snoop do so because they want to know more about what's going on in the lives of their children.

Apologize to your mother for the smart-alecky notes, and tell her you want to build a better relationship with her. Believe me, she will meet you halfway.

DEAR ABBY: What would you think if you had a relative (a very close one) who told you he was sorry that he couldn't offer you the hospitality of his apartment because he had only one bed, and then you accidentally discovered that the sofa in his living room folded out into a "hide-a-bed"?

DEAR MAD: I'd think that this relative didn't want the pleasure of my overnight company.

Miss Dorothy Mobley Weds Clifford Hearne

RALEIGH—Miss Dorothy Mae Mobley became the bride of Clifford Woodrow Hearne on Sunday, July 28, at 3:00 p.m. at Shaw University Chapel here.

The bride's guardian is Mrs. Cora B. Wilson of Raleigh. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Hearne of Rt. 2, Rockingham.

The Rev. Leotha Debnam Sr. officiated at the double ring ceremony. Soloist Miss Toni Jones was accompanied on the organ by Randolph A. Lockett.

The bride was given in marriage by John W. Carlton. She wore a silk gown of organza over pale pink taffeta that accented the Venise lace trim on the cuffs of the bishop sleeves. A pink satin ribbon formed the raised waist that cascaded down the back. The gown was designed with Venise lace on the front and back of the dress that featured a demi-bell skirt and chapel train.

Her headpiece was a bridal hat of chantilly lace and organza. The pink satin ribbon formed a bow in back. The train attached to the hat was trimmed with butterfly lace. The bride carried a colonial bouquet of feathered pink and white carnations, gypsophilia, entwined with English ivy and streamers, centered with a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Sadie Evans was matron of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Frances McRae of Rockingham, Mrs. Joann L. Hearne of Chicago, Mrs. Claudetta R. Worth of Rockingham, Mrs. Mava M. Ellerbe of Lilesville, Miss Queen E. Bowman of Charleston, Mrs. Cordelia Steele of Rockingham and Mrs. Tampra F. Watkins of Greensboro. Doria Ann Williams of Greenville was junior bridesmaid.

Flower girls were Lisa Thorpe and Michella Debnam of Raleigh.

The bride is a graduate of Bethel Union High School and Shaw University with a B.S. degree in home economics education. The bridegroom is a graduate of Mineral Springs High School and project Transition with the U.S. Army. He is now employed by W.E. Jenkins and Associates, AIA, as an architectural draftsman, Greensboro.

After a wedding trip to Atlanta, the couple will reside in Greensboro.

The Ship Of State On Course

"The King is dead. Long live the King!" That ancient cry once summed up the sense of continuity in government and its spirit is appropriate in these, our times.

The affairs of the Republic are in order. Our laws and their administrators, our traditions and sense of justice have coped with the unexpected and emerged even more firmly etched in the minds of Americans. We are stronger in many ways than before the ordeal which swept a President from office.

It is not inconceivable that in the order of things we "needed" the shock of a wrong-doing administration to revitalize the national sense of morality and to bring even closer the men and affairs of government to "we the people."

The downfall of Richard M. Nixon and his close coterie of friends and trusted aides in positions of unimaginable power was, in retrospect, an exercise in insanity.

The "Nixon team" held all the aces in the 1972 election and chose to go for an overkill . . . turning to the discredited philosophy that the end justified the means.

Accomplishments of the Nixon administration now stand to be forgotten or even undermined by the nature of its sudden and dishonorable end. The memories of cataclysm are bound to overshadow all that went before.

Today, Gerald Ford is faced not only with the task of preserving what he can out of the wreckage, but coping with problems that have grown ever more pressing in the months his predecessor was distracted by his fight for survival.

The new Chief Executive will be handicapped; no doubt about that. He has much to learn about the presidency and the men he will be working with, as well as lacking an intimate knowledge of foreign and domestic affairs. He is fortunate in the strength of the Nixon Cabinet, a team of knowledgeable men to whom President Nixon seemed rarely to turn.

Mr. Ford is also blessed with a reputation of loyalty, personal warmth, close ties with the Congress, and a spirit of determined effort. A showman he is not; nor has he to our knowledge displayed a lust for power and the trappings that go with it.

He is a man who will need the prayers and best wishes of all Americans.

THIS AFTERNOON

From Quilting To Court

By BILL NOBLITT
GASTONIA — It is not at all illogical for a women's organization which once concentrated upon quilting bees, flower arrangements, or pickle recipes to turn energy and attention to court watching.

Mrs. Bess is the prime force behind a budding organization of court watchers in Gastonia, and she hopes to see the action spread across the state.

Already, expressions of interest are pouring in, not only from North Carolina, but neighboring states as well.

The vehicle for pushing this new activity is available in every county—every community—of the state: the Extension Homemakers Association.

There are some 33,000 members of that group which is a non-profit organization operating under the leadership of the home economics extension division of N.C. State University.

"You shouldn't find that surprising. One of the strong points of the Extension Homemakers program is 'citizenship involvement,'" says Mrs. Bess.

Get Involved
"We've decided that women should be active in every phase of life in our communities; that to be well-rounded means to be involved in all aspects of living."

So the grandmother of two, former Girl Scout leader and community worker is now ramrodding a program with the intent of putting the judicial system under citizen scrutiny.

Another women's group, the League of Women Voters, is also getting involved, and Mrs. Bess predicts that shortly other counties besides her own Gaston plus Guilford and Mecklenburg, will get active in court watching.

In just a couple of months, in Gaston, Mrs. Bess has lined up 180 volunteers and is aiming at a one-day seminar at the local community college in which the watchers will get a crash course in how the courts operate, how to behave, what to look for, and how to report.

Once fully in motion by mid-August, reporters will file daily reports with Mrs. Bess covering a wide variety of courtroom activities such as the mood, temperament, patience, punctuality, industriousness, and attention to business on the part of judges, prosecutors, and defense attorneys.

The object is not to zero in on individual cases or isolated problems, but to develop a pattern of overall judicial conduct as to what the courts are—or are not—doing over a period of time. From this activity Mrs. Bess thinks there will emerge information on which to base constructive recommendations for improvement.

Crime Rate
This growing new system was prompted in Gastonia by an alarming increase in crime rates, and public concern over a "system overburdened in defense of the accused, forgetting the victim is the innocent person . . . we should go back to sympathy for the victim," Mrs. Bess explained.

Seeing evidence all about of reduced charges, plea bargaining, laxity in sentencing, Mrs. Bess said it became obvious that a "small minority of people were causing the problems . . . we need to take them off the streets, and announce this as a deterrent to other criminals.

There has been some criticism of the court watching program, some of it from judges, one of whom told a Gastonia newsman that "the only people who are going to be hanged in Gaston County are the judges."

Mrs. Bess terms that attitude regrettable, and said the non-partisan non-political organization is "working to the best interest of our community. Citizens working together can strengthen our criminal justice system . . . and when the court officials understand that we are working for this, they, too, want it accomplished."

Mrs. Bess scored widespread public apathy and dependence on elected officials to do their jobs untended. "Our government is of the people, by the people, and for the people, and it is our duty to let our elected officials know how we feel about issues."

Mrs. Bess, who works with her husband in the real estate business, said any person interested in forming local units may contact her or their local home extension agent. "We have the organization throughout the state to put this thing into action," she said.

The INSIDE REPORT

Betrayed And Deceived

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Gen. Alexander Haig, Jr., the President's chief of staff, was personally shattered last Wednesday when he learned for the first time that the secret tape recording of June 23, 1972, was the "smoking gun" which would unequivocally incriminate Richard M. Nixon in the Watergate cover-up.

Haig was the first of many Nixon partisans to reel before the transcript of President Nixon's June 23 conversation with H. R. Haldeman. The tumultuous anger of the House Republican cloakroom late Monday was matched by silent despair inside the White House stemming from a common source: all had been betrayed and deceived by the President.

Republican Congressmen were outraged that they had been led into Mr. Nixon's defense without being warned of incriminating transcripts yet to come. But late into the night Monday, some of the President's own aides sat at their desks trying to comprehend the betrayal.

What's more, careful reading of the June 23 transcript brought home the final deception: even in admitting he had supplied "erroneous" information, the President's statement Monday attempted to gloss over how totally the transcript incriminated him.

According to sources in close contact with the White House, the weekend decision at Camp David to release the transcript was a matter of necessity. It was calculated that its contents, supplied to the special prosecutor by Supreme Court order, would be public information within three weeks—just before the House impeachment vote. Accordingly, it might be better to put out the information now rather than later.

In fact, the reaction could not have been worse. Mr. Nixon's admission that he had kept information from his own defenders produced pandemonium among House Republicans Monday afternoon and anguish from his 10 Republican defenders on the House Judiciary Committee. Rep. Charles Sandman of New Jersey was steaming; Rep. Charles Wiggins of California was stunned.

The most important undecided Republican, Rep. Barber Conable of New York, jumped off the fence. At midday Monday, Conable—chairman of the House Republican Policy Committee—was advising he would wait until the end of the impeachment debate before announcing his decision. But when he learned a few hours later of the betrayal of the 10 Judiciary Committee Republicans, he determined Mr. Nixon must go.

Yet, that Republican outrage on the House floor was based only on the President's statement—in itself misleading and, therefore, another deception. Conable was angered that the President had failed to inform his defenders on the Judiciary Committee about the June 23 tape recording after reviewing it in May. The President's statement suggests that he had forgotten his attempt on June 23, 1972, to call off the FBI investigation of Watergate and had been reminded only in May 1974, when he reviewed the tape.

But the transcript itself, not yet available to most House members Monday afternoon, (Continued from page 5)

Now A Human Engineer

There is a new science in this country which is called human engineering. The object of human engineering, as I understand it, is to fit human beings into inhuman conditions.

I made this discovery while riding on an airplane from New York to Washington the other day. Seated next to me was a man who was taking very careful measurements of the space between us and then writing it in a notebook. I asked him what he was doing, and he said he was a human engineer, and it was his job to see how many more people he could squeeze on an airplane without doing permanent bodily harm to the passengers.

"We used to have five seats across," he said proudly, "but we've managed to put another seat in each row, and as you can see we can now get six people across."

"How on earth did you do it?" I asked him.

"We cut the center aisle in half. The passengers have to walk sideways, but just think of what the extra seats mean to the company's payroll."

"Which, of course, is all that you're worried about."

"You can bet your sweet whistle on that," he said. "I'm very concerned, though, that there still seems to be room between your knees and the seat in front of you."

"Only about two inches," I said.

"Well, if you take two inches away here and two inches away there, you can put another row of seats on the plane."

"Then my knees should be flush against the seat ahead?"

"Naturally, my dear boy. You can't expect legroom on such a short hop. One more thing, I was wondering how you feel about a reclining seat as opposed to a stationary one."

"I prefer a reclining seat. It gives me a chance to rest a little."

He started writing in his book: "Customers too tempted by reclining chair." (Continued on page 5)

Defeat And A Victory

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The defeat of a man and the triumph of a system of government that has stood for almost 200 years.

That was what some Americans saw in the resignation of Richard Milhous Nixon as President.

The people who voted for him and gave him their loyalty; the ones who vowed their opposition. The historians who ponder the past and predict the future; the politicians trying to gauge the effect at election time.

"No one can rejoice in the events which culminated in the resignation of the President," said Chesterfield Smith, president of the American Bar Association and a frequent critic of Nixon on Watergate.

"We can, however, find comfort in the fact that . . . when our system for the administration of justice was tested — by perhaps its greatest challenge of all time — that system proved equal to the task."

Asked whether Nixon should be subject to civil and criminal prosecution, Smith said, "We do not have time for vengeance. It is the time to come together and the time to go forward."

Yale Law Professor Alexander Bickel disagreed.

"The cloud of Watergate is still hanging and there's nothing we can do about it," he said.

The Rev. Billy Graham, a longtime Nixon supporter who frequently conducted religious services at the White House, said he felt sorry for Nixon and his family.

"His personal suffering must be almost unbearable," the minister said. "He deserves the prayers of even those who feel betrayed and let down. . . . I pray that from this whole painful affair may be reborn a new commitment to God and His law in our national life."

John Cardinal Krol of Philadelphia said, "Thank God we have a system of government where disclosures of improprieties can be made and appropriate remedies taken."

Elizabeth Canty, 38, a Detroit school teacher and a Democrat, "was glued to the TV" during Nixon's nationally broadcast speech. She said, "I don't rejoice in his resignation, but I do find it gratifying to know that under our form of government conduct such as Nixon's cannot, should not and will be not be tolerated. This was what the framers of the Constitution intended and it's most reassuring to see that it works."

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., vice chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, said Thursday's events "reflect an American tragedy of gigantic dimensions."

"Yet, even in the midst of this unprecedented event in our history, we are witnessing an orderly transfer of power which can only serve to restore the confidence of the American people and reaffirm the resilience of our constitutional system. Our task is now to look forward to tomorrow."

The concern for the future crossed party lines.

Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, a Democrat, said, "American political institutions remain strong. I join with all other Americans in wishing

Broad Search For The New VP

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gerald R. Ford plans to launch the same type of broad vice presidential search that led to his own selection 10 months ago. A choice is unlikely until after the new president speaks to the nation tonight and the Congress next week.

Sources close to Ford say he plans to keep the entire Nixon Cabinet and most of the top White House Staff while gradually working in his own people. They will come mainly from his vice presidential staff and a long list of former colleagues in the House.

At the outset, he plans to place primary emphasis on a smooth transition of power within the White House and government before turning to pick the man who will be the nation's second appointed vice president. Ford was the first.

Though Ford associates differ on his prospects, former New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller heads an initial list of 12 vice presidential possibilities. The list is expected to grow as the new president asks the views of a broad spectrum of GOP congressmen, senators and officials.

A list drawn up by Ford's staff includes Rockefeller; former Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird; former Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson; California Gov. Ronald Reagan; Sens. Howard H. Baker Jr. and Bill Brock of Tennessee, Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon, Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts, Charles H. Percy of Illinois, Robert T. Stafford of Vermont and Robert Taft Jr. of Ohio; and Reps. Albert H. Quie of Minnesota and John B. Anderson of Illinois.

GOP governors are expected to be added to the list, but associates think Ford is more likely to choose someone he knows well, such as Rockefeller or a congressional associate.

But some Republicans doubt that Ford would pick anyone who has been sharply critical of the Nixon administration, such as Richardson, Hatfield, Brooke, Percy and Anderson. Ford, himself, has talked in the past of the need to broaden the GOP. In 1968, he urged presidential candidate Richard M. Nixon to select a more liberal running mate, such as New York Mayor John V. Lindsay, to broaden the appeal of the minority GOP.

In planning his new administration, Ford secured a promise from Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to stay on. He had developed ties with Kissinger early in his vice presidency.

Last spring, Ford expressed doubts about the political acumen of Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger, but no early change is likely. Secretary of Interior Rogers C. B. Morton might move to a key White House spot.

In the White House, the major survivor will be Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig Jr., at least in the first months of the Ford administration. Ford's first appointment was a new press secretary, Jerald F. TerHorst, Washington bureau chief of the Detroit News. He succeeds Ronald L. Ziegler, last of the original Nixon team.

Key Ford aides would likely move in soon, including his closest political adviser, Chief of Staff Robert Hartmann, and L. William Seidman, a management expert from Ford's home town of Grand Rapids.

Strength For Today

A PERSONAL GOD
Very often people say, "I believe of course in some higher power, but I can't believe in a personal God. With all the other things He has to do, I don't see how God would be interested in the details of my life."

If one grants, as these people do, that God has a general attitude of benevolence toward mankind, then it follows that He must be interested in the details of our lives. Does it lower the dignity of motherhood for a mother to interest herself in the details of a child's life? If the mother has a feeling of benevolence toward the child, then it must follow by the same token the mother must be interested in the details of the child's life. If the mother paid no attention toward these matters, she could scarcely be called benevolent.

If human benevolence leads to a personal interest in other people, how much further and more intently must the benevolent of God lead in the same direction? —by Elisha Douglass

Host Of Charges Hanging Over Nixon

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—Richard Nixon quits the presidency without immunity from prosecution, leaving him vulnerable to a host of criminal charges.

The lead role in bringing an indictment against Nixon after he leaves office would fall to special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski, who said Thursday night there has been no deal sparing Nixon prosecution in exchange for his resignation. Congress could pass a resolution urging that no charges be brought against Nixon. Such a resolution is not binding by law; it only expresses the feelings of members of Congress.

Nixon's resignation may have squelched what little support there was for such a resolution. The chief sponsor, Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., said Thursday night he would withdraw the resolution unless Nixon makes a "full confession" of his involvement in the Watergate and related scandals.

By resigning, Nixon apparently saved himself from impeachment by the House and trial in the Senate. Congress has the authority to proceed with impeachment even though Nixon no longer holds office, but House leaders said Thursday night there is no need to carry it through.

"The House may have to take some action, but the President having resigned, the proceedings will have to come to an end," Speaker Carl Albert said. Nevertheless, Albert and Judiciary Committee members were moving toward a House vote on the committee report detailing the allegations against Nixon.

Gerald R. Ford, upon becoming president, is the only other person who could block the trial of his predecessor.

Ford gave no hint of his intentions. Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-Calif., said, "I know that Jerry Ford would never promise to pardon him as a condition for his resignation."

McCloskey predicted that

Nixon "will be indicted very shortly" but said nothing about the basis for his forecast.

An agreement that Nixon would leave office as the price of immunity seemed a possible option in light of the bargain that led to Spiro T. Agnew's resignation as vice president. Agnew pleaded no contest to a single tax evasion charge and prosecutors agreed not to press other, more serious, charges.

Watergate grand jury named Nixon as an unindicted coconspirator when it indicted his former White House and campaign aides for conspiring to cover up the Watergate scandal and obstruct the original investigation.

The same grand jury remains at work. But legal experts say no indictment could survive unless signed by Jaworski, or if he refuses, by Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe.

Saxbe said on Wednesday the decision to immunize Nixon rests with Jaworski, whose charter of office gives him "full authority for investigating and prosecuting... allegations involving the President." Through a spokesman, Saxbe declined comment Thursday night. Jaworski said nothing about whether he would be influenced by the congressional response to the issue.

But the movement toward a resolution urging that Nixon be spared appeared to have collapsed with Brooke's statement. Ford holds the key to another way Nixon could be spared prosecution. Upon becoming president, Ford has the authority to grant Nixon a full pardon for all crimes in advance even in the absence of formal charges and conviction.

The charges that might be brought against Nixon range across the breadth of scandal that emerged in the two years since the Watergate break-in. Lawyers familiar with the investigation suggest that the most obvious charge would be obstruction of justice, a felony carrying a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Civil rights violations, obstruction of justice, conspiracy, bribery, fraud and tax evasion are among the other charges that could stem from the Ellsberg break-in, the milk fund case, his income tax payments and the disposition of campaign funds by his friend C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo.

Most of the applicable charges are felonies, but as one Justice Department lawyer put it, "with almost any felony, a good prosecutor can find a way to reduce the charge" to a misdemeanor.

Finds Thought 'Repugnant'

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., says, "The idea of a former President of the United States behind bars is repugnant to me."

His remarks Thursday night were made before President Nixon announced his resignation.

Bentsen said justice should be applied equally to all citizens, and the decision on Nixon's immunity from Watergate prosecution will be finally left to the courts.

He spoke at a fund-raising dinner for former Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan, the Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate.

There are a lot of people in the aviation business who are behind the times, and we have to show them that their best interests lie not with the passengers but with the stockholders. expressions of surprise when White House counsel John W. Dean, III described to him the extent of the cover-up were a sham. What Dean revealed had been made known to Mr. Nixon by Haldeman 10 months earlier. That demolishes the White House line that Dean started the conspiracy. Yet, during the nationally televised debate, the 10 Nixon defenders were permitted to go through the fiction of describing Dean as the villain of Watergate who had betrayed his President.

When the scandal broke open in April 1973, the President persuaded Haig to leave the Army and become his chief of staff after assurances that he was personally involved in no wrong-doing. Haig worked with the President on his now repudiated statement of May 22, 1973, putting a national security blanket over Watergate, after being informed by Mr. Nixon that his memory was hazy about details.

When Haig finally learned the full truth a week ago, the President's resignation was discussed, then rejected. Uncomprehending Republican congressional leaders were informed Monday by Nixon defense lawyer James St. Clair that, on the contrary, the President felt what he had done is not sufficient grounds for impeachment and intended to tough it out.

Evans-Novak...

(Continued from page 4) reveals much more: less than a week after the Watergate break-in, Mr. Nixon was deeply involved in the cover-up and aware of all significant facts which did not become public until nearly a year later. That this knowledge could have been forgotten by the President defies credulity.

The June 23 conversations between the President and H. R. Haldeman put in focus the transcripts of March 1973. It is now clear Mr. Nixon's

Watergate Began As A Footnote To Nixon Story

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL, Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Watergate was merely a footnote on the Nixon presidency at first, an aberration in his re-election campaign. But it grew, angrily, into a scandal that stonewalling couldn't hide and presidential power couldn't stop.

While the skeleton of the story was unearthed piecemeal, the full involvement of the Nixon men in the break-in and cover-up was known only to themselves for nine months after five men crept into Democratic party headquarters to bug and pry.

But then, in the incredible months of March and April 1973, the silence was breached and the scandal burst over men in the highest councils of government, finally staining Richard Nixon himself.

The President might have ridden it out, like he did so many other personal challenges, had it not been for his fateful decision in 1971 to activate an unseen taping system designed to preserve every word said while he was in his offices.

Nixon's stubborn refusal to yield those tapes brought the first full-blown cry for his impeachment. And it was the tapes themselves, with their revelations of knowledge and subterfuge, that produced the most damning evidence against Richard Nixon and the men who surrounded him.

Watergate quickly became a code word for scandals that embraced a bewildering catalogue of alleged misdeeds, bringing Nixon's leadership and honesty into question. But it remained the poisonous core. Eventually a grand jury would find probable cause to believe the President was involved in a criminal conspiracy to thwart the Watergate investigation.

Nixon had promised cooperation with investigators, but yielded tapes and documents only when other alternatives had failed. He exhausted every avenue, from ignoring congressional subpoenas to fighting his case in the Supreme Court.

And after the House Judiciary Committee recommended an article of impeachment based on the subpoenas and the Supreme Court ruled against him, Nixon admitted he withheld three crucial tapes, "a serious act of omission for which I take full responsibility and which I deeply regret."

Until then, the President had continually asserted his innocence, battling a crisis of confidence that nibbled inexorably at his public support.

In August 1973, he spoke of a "backward-looking obsession with Watergate." In November, the nation had the spectacle of a defensive President declaring "I am not a crook."

In January 1974, he used the State of the Union message to declare "one year of Watergate is enough," and to assure the nation that "I have no intention whatever of ever walking away from the job that the people elected me to do for the people of the United States."

In his speech of Aug. 15, 1973, Nixon said "the time has come to turn Watergate over to the courts where the questions of guilt or innocence belong."

In the year that followed, 20 people who had worked at his side in the White House, or elsewhere in his administration or his re-election campaign, had pleaded guilty, been convicted or were awaiting trial for criminal offenses. Nine former White House aides, including top lieutenant John D. Ehrlichman, had been sentenced to prison.

The President's actions in the Watergate aftermath were the genesis of the first article of impeachment recommended by the House Judiciary Committee to the full House of Representatives. It said that Nixon "in violation of his constitutional duty to take care that the laws be faithfully executed, has prevented, obstructed, and impeded the administration of justice ..."

The story of the Watergate break-in is too well known to require extensive recounting.

Under the direction of two former White House aides, G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt Jr., five men with CIA backgrounds twice broke into Democratic National Committee headquarters in the plush Watergate office complex. The first entry, on Memorial Day 1972, was to plant bugs and photograph files. The second, on June 17 — when the burglars were arrested — was to correct a transmitter malfunction and to copy more documents.

The burglars were found to have been paid with funds from the Committee for the Re-election of the President, which as a result won the popular acronym CREEP. The mission, according to some testimony, was approved by former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, Nixon's one-time law partner and campaign director. The fruits of the wiretaps went to the committee and, again according to some of the testimony, into the White House.

Charles W. Colson testified that when Nixon learned of the break-in "he was so furious that he had thrown an ashtray across the room at Key Biscayne and ... was just outraged over the fact that anybody even remotely connected with the campaign organization would have anything to do with something like Watergate."

But the June 23 Nixon tape shows he ordered a halt to the FBI's probe of the break-in, didn't want to "second guess Mitchell and the rest." He said later, "I was aware of the advantages this course of action would have with respect to limiting possible public exposure of involvement by persons connected with the re-election committee."

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, with the President at his Florida home, described the incident at the time as "a third-rate burglary." But the chiefs of the re-election committee met in Washington to discuss their moves.

The President insisted from early on, "The White House had had no involvement in this particular incident." In August he said that was confirmed in an investigation conducted by counsel John W. Dean III.

Dean was to say later he conducted no investigation and that he worked overtime to thwart the probe.

In September 1972, seven men were indicted for burglary and wiretapping and conspiracy. Nixon complimented Dean on keeping involvement from the White House by "putting your fingers in the dikes every time that leaks have sprung here and sprung there."

By March, two of the seven had been tried and convicted, the other five having pleaded guilty. Reporters asked few Watergate questions; nothing was volunteered.

But that was to change. On March 23, at a court session convened for the sentencing of the burglars, U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica disclosed a letter from James W. McCord Jr., alleging pressure on the defendants to plead guilty of perjury in the trial and of the involvement of others.

Unknown publicly at that time was that Dean had been telling Nixon the Watergate story, detailing the role that Nixon's aides — including himself — had in paying hush money to the defendants, suborning perjury, and of the planning sessions for the break-in. The President was told of E. Howard Hunt's blackmail demand and allegedly told Dean to meet it.

The tapes showed Nixon ordered Dean to write a general report for the President, a document for public consumption. Instead Dean went to federal prosecutors with his story.

On April 17, Nixon came into the White House briefing room and in a short statement said that on March 21 he had begun intensive new inquiries into the Watergate matter "as a result of serious charges which came to my attention."

The tapes show the feverish activity inside the White House as the scandal began to unravel. On April 30 Nixon announced the resignations of Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst and the firing of Dean. He gave Kleindienst's successor, Elliot Richardson, authority to name a special prosecutor.

In the ensuing days came the public disclosure that White House agents had burglarized the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

On May 22, Nixon issued his most detailed statement to date, confirming what had been revealed in news media earlier; that there were wiretaps in 1969, an intelligence plan including breaking and entering for national security and a special investigations unit known as the Plumbers.

Of Watergate, Nixon said he had no advance knowledge of the burglary and that he never authorized or knew about offers of executive clemency for the defendants.

The Senate Watergate committee hearings began and on July 16, former White House aide Alexander Butterfield disclosed the White House taping system.

Immediately the struggle began as both the Senate committee and the newly appointed special prosecutor Archibald Cox subpoenaed tapes.

Cox won first a district court decision and then in the appeals court. He was ordered to stop his efforts and refused. In the Saturday Night Massacre in October, Richardson and his successor as acting attorney general resigned rather than fire Cox, who was finally dispatched by the country's third attorney general in as many hours.

As telegrams by the thousands flooded Congress in protest, the first impeachment talk began in earnest. Nixon named a new special prosecutor, Leon Jaworski, who picked up where Cox left off. More subpoenas, first from Jaworski, then from House impeachment probers.

At the end of April this year, Nixon responded to a House subpoena for tapes by making transcripts of 46 conversations public.

The impact was stunning, but not in the way the White House hoped. They showed a President concerned with fending off investigations by "stonewalling," or "going the modified, limited hang-out" route. They also showed the discussion of hush money for Hunt and the President's response, "for Christ's sake, get it."

In July, the House Judiciary Committee made public its versions of key tapes together with a stunning amount of evidence gathered for its impeachment probe. And later in the month, the committee voted to recommend three articles of impeachment to the full House.

The bipartisan nature of the vote made impeachment a "foregone conclusion," as Nixon himself conceded.

His revelation that he had ordered the FBI's Watergate investigation blunted six days after the break-in — because the probe was leading to the President's men — placed Nixon in grave jeopardy at the Senate trial that would surely ensue.

First-Time Resignation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon's resignation as 37th President of the United States Thursday was the first in the 185-year history of the office.

Eight other times the office had been left vacant, but all by death of the president. Four died of natural causes, and four were assassinated.

But never before had a president left the office voluntarily. Never has one been turned from office by impeachment.

The Nixon administration also stands in history as the first to experience a double resignation — that of a president and his vice president.

Spiro T. Agnew, Nixon's first vice president, resigned on Oct. 10, 1973, shortly before pleading no contest to a federal income tax evasion charge. He was only the second vice president to resign.

Also historically significant is the fact that Nixon is replaced by the first vice president selected under the new 25th Amendment. Before the amendment, ratified in 1967, the line of succession in the absence of a president and vice president would have fallen to the speaker of the House.

Had Nixon not been able to fill the Agnew vacancy under the 25th Amendment, House Speaker Carl Albert, an Oklahoma Democrat, would have become president today.

As it is, the office of vice president may be refilled repeatedly with no need of a further line of succession, barring some major tragedy such as nuclear war.

Gerald Ford Has Penchant For Work And Plain, Straight Talk

By JIM ADAMS

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Rarely eloquent and never flamboyant, Gerald Rudolph Ford is a man with a penchant for work and simple, straight talk.

That's won him immense respect from both sides of the aisle in 25 years of congressional service and nine months as vice president.

Richard Nixon would have preferred a more electric vice president, namely John B. Connally. But Republicans convinced him of useful qualities in Ford: personal likeability, a clean reputation, an unflappable disposition a solid base of party support and a certain gray acceptability to almost everyone.

The Democrats, at first, found an additional reason to support him: they didn't think it likely he would run for President in 1976. Ford said as much himself.

One former Nixon adviser, Harry Dent, noted that "Ford fits the Republican party like a glove."

Ford is an Orthodox Republican. He is also a devout Episcopalian who has attended church regularly throughout his adult life.

Ford's solidarity, whatever it lacks in color, is viewed by leaders of both parties as tailor-made for a nation for a nation yearning for a government it can trust.

"Maybe he is a plodder, as some people here say," said liberal Democratic Rep. Richard Bolling of Missouri, but right now the advantages of having a plodder in the presidency are enormous.

Rep. Edward P. Boland, D-Mass., said, "Jerry Ford exudes the kind of confidence that I hope to see in a President. He could be the kind of President that Harry Truman became."

"The President has to lead by example, displaying the standards, morally, ethically and otherwise, by which most Americans live their lives."

But while Ford promises to lead, so too does he share the habits of the average man.

It is improbable that Americans will find him moving from one large coastal estate to another, for his living tastes are modest. Even when he became vice president, he chose to remain in his same Alexandria, Va., home — unpretentious except for a much-cherished swimming pool in the back yard.

He is an open man, often holding forth with reporters several times a day. And his speechmaking averaged 200 appearances a year as House Republican leader, a pace he kept up as vice president.

Like many men, he opens his morning paper first to the sports pages, eventually skims the whole thing over a modest breakfast of juice and rolls, and is off to work by 8 a.m. or even sooner.

At night he relaxes, even if he's brought work home, with an eye on the television set. His favorites are the detective dramas whose heroes are clean and straight — and who nail their villains through sheer hard work. Like Barnaby Rudge, Cannon and McMillan and Wife.

When he's been in town, he and the family have dined out only occasionally — and then it was standard fare, usually seafood. No fancy French cooking.

If he became President, he told the Senate last fall, he would regularly seek advice from Congress and his cabinet.

And he said he would try to halt the increasing concentration of federal power in the President.

To avoid a Watergate in his administration, Ford said, he would "thoroughly screen and carefully supervise" his top White House aides.

"I would do my very utmost," he testified, "to make sure that they did not violate the law."

Ford set out several other views and promises on his presidency, if it came to that, in response to questions at the House and Senate hearings.

Calling himself a "conservative on fiscal matters, a moderate on domestic affairs and a liberal on foreign policy," Ford said no U.S. combat troops should be sent to the Middle East; he would insist on full enforcement of federal voting rights laws; keep the CIA under close scrutiny and control; and he would keep Henry A. Kissinger on as secretary of state.

He said he would never authorize anyone in his administration to lie under oath and "only in the most extreme cases would I authorize even a temporary lie."

Ford, who spent most of his boyhood in Grand Rapids, Mich., was born with another name, Leslie King, on July 14, 1913 in Omaha, Neb.

His parents were divorced when he was less than a year old and his mother returned to her parents in Grand Rapids, where she later married Gerald R. Ford Sr. He adopted the boy and renamed him.

Ford was a high school senior and a football player working in Bill Skougis' Greek restaurant the first time he met his real father. He was frying hamburgers or washing dishes, he recalls, when a man came in and stood watching.

"Finally, he walked over and said, 'I'm your father,'" Ford says. "Well, that was quite a shock."

Ford was center on the University of Michigan's 1932 and 1933 national champion football teams — and then captain and most valuable player of the 1934 team which was one of the Wolverines' worst.

He got professional offers from the Detroit Lions and Green Bay Packers but chose to study law at Yale, working his way through as an assistant varsity football coach and freshman boxing coach. Sens. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, and William Proxmire, D-Wis., were on his teams.

In March of 1940, he got his first national publicity as the ski weekend date of a New York model featured in a 21-photo spread in Look magazine. He was in 17 of the pictures.

Ford also got his first exposure to national politics at Yale, working as a volunteer in Wendell L. Willkie's 1940 Republican campaign for President.

After World War II service in Adm. William Halsey's 3rd Fleet in the Pacific, Ford went back to practicing law in Grand Rapids and became active in Republican reform politics.

Three years later he was elected to what was to become a 25-year career in the House of Representatives.

Ford's step-father was the local Republican chairman, and Michigan Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg was looking for a fresh young internationalist to replace the area's isolationist congressman.

Ford beat Rep. Bartel Jonkman two-to-one in the Republican primary and then went on to win the election with 60.5 per cent of the vote, the lowest margin he ever got.

He had proposed to Elizabeth Bloomer, a dancer and fashion coordinator, earlier that year, 1948. She became one of his hardest-working campaigners and they were married shortly before the election.

Ford quickly established himself as a Republican team player in the House. He became an assistant GOP whip in just three years and acquired a reputation as an expert on the military budget.

In 1959 he joined a reform coup to replace aging House Republican Leader Joe Martin of Massachusetts with Charles A. Halleck of Indiana. Six years later, Ford took the job away from Halleck.

A group of Republicans who wanted new direction asked Ford to run for the job. He agreed, and with characteristic lack of awe left for a ski vacation with his family.

After the vacation, he returned to Washington for two days of telephoning, buttonholing and cajoling for votes and unseated Halleck by what he cheerfully calls "a landslide margin of 73 to 67."

Ford set out the Republican alternatives the House reformers wanted, and wound up in a running name-calling battle with then President Lyndon B. Johnson.

He called Johnson "Lyndon come lately" and "the number one nervous Nellie in the country." He accused the President of "leading the nation into a dictatorship" and of encouraging crime and a permissive society with his Great Society programs.

In return, Johnson made remarks about Ford's brainpower that still hound him.

"There's nothing wrong with Jerry Ford except that he played football too long without a helmet," Johnson said.

Another time, Johnson said Ford was the only man he knew who couldn't walk and chew gum at the same time.

Above the sniping level, there were substantial policy differences.

Ford and other GOP Leaders shaped Republican alternatives to Johnson's Great Society programs and included local revenue sharing — which Nixon was later to win from Congress — lesser Social Security increases and revision of the war on poverty.

Ford supported Johnson's Vietnam war effort but accused the President of "pulling our air power punch" in the bombing of North Vietnam.

The Republican leader called as early as 1965 for the kind of blitz bombing of military targets around Hanoi and Hanoi that Nixon launched at the end of the Vietnam War.

While supporting big defense budgets, Ford consistently voted in the House to cut federal spending, particularly on programs aimed at rapid social

Betty Ford Looks On Her Family As Plain, Ordinary Americans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Betty Ford used to tell people, "We're just a normal American family."

No vice president's family is "just a normal American family" but the Fords do seem to thrive in a life-style that has a lot in common with other American families.

For starters, the nation's first family lives on an unpretentious street in an unpretentious suburban neighborhood in Alexandria, Va.

The family, which includes three sons and a daughter, also is very close-knit. Ford, according to his wife, is "square."

Their children have never been in a protest march. Their hair is only fashionably shaggy and those who know them say they're not into drugs.

Elizabeth Bloomer Ford, at 55, is a tall, stately woman with high cheek bones and a red-dish-bouffant hair style. The years of political campaigning, pressures and raising four children virtually alone, have left only a few wrinkles around her gray-blue eyes.

A pinched nerve in her neck, the result of trying to open a window in the house 10 years ago, keeps her from the golf and skiing she loves.

But that doesn't keep the Fords from taking an annual Christmas ski vacation to Colorado. It's the only really free time the rest of the family has with Ford, who has spent much of his time over the years on the lecture circuit and campaigning.

The Ford children have never shown a strong interest in politics. Michael, 24, is a second-year divinity student at the Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary in South Hamilton, Mass. He spends his spare time working with "Young Life," an evangelical organization for teen-agers.

Last July, Mike married Gayle Ann Brumbaugh, 23, whom he met at Wake Forest University where both attended college.

Jack Ford, 22, will be a senior at Utah State University where he is majoring in forestry. He plans to get a master's degree in watershed management. Eventually, he may go to law school and work on the environmental aspects of land use.

He spent the summer working as a forest ranger in Yellowstone National Park, just as his father did years ago.

Steven, 18, just graduated from public high school and plans to take a year off before starting college. He expects to spend next year working on a cattle ranch in Utah. He is interested in agriculture and outdoor sports like hunting, fishing and skiing.

Susan, 17, will be a senior at a private boarding school in Bethesda, Md.

She has studied modern dance since the age of eight, and is now taking ballet lessons as well. She tends to a large collection of plants, loves needlepoint and takes care of the family cat, Chan.

All four children have said they feel unusually close to their father. "He never tried to mold us or direct us," said Jack. "He allowed us room to explore for ourselves, to find ourselves."

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina egg markets were generally steady Thursday. Supplies barely adequate, demand good. Weighted average prices for small lot sales of consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby outlets: grade A large whites 59.80, medium whites 49.86, small whites 39.20.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina hog prices are steady to 50 cents higher today. Tops of 37.50-38.50 at Kinston and Lumberton; 37.00-37.50 Rocky Mount; 35.50-36.00 Tarboro and Bethel; 35.00 Salisbury.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina hens: Market unsettled, prices adequate and demand fairly good. Too few sources reporting to release prices.

North Carolina F.O.B. dock broilers: Market steady with next week's weighted average price at 35.76 cents per pound. Supplies adequate, demand good and weights desirable. Estimated slaughter 1,062,000.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market slipped back quietly today in a calm round of profit-taking as the nation marked a change of presidents.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 9.31 at 775.58, while losers held a 3-2 edge on gainers at the New York Stock Exchange.

There was the normal bustle of activity at the opening, but no heavy surge of orders either to buy or to sell, and trading was slow by late in the morning as Gerald Ford prepared to take the oath of office to succeed Richard Nixon in the White House.

Analysts said the traders who bid up prices in the first three days of the week, anticipating Nixon's resignation, were taking profits in an illustration of an old market maxim — "buy on the rumor, sell on the news."

They also noted a lingering unhappiness with the government's report Thursday that wholesale prices soared at a 44.4 per cent annual rate in July.

The only unusual aspect of the session came at the start, when scattered boos greeted the opening bell on the NYSE floor.

A trader on the floor said some members felt the exchange should have delayed the opening in observance of the historic change taking place in Washington.

James J. Needham, Big Board chairman, said, however, "This market should never close" as long as trading is orderly.

Marcos was the NYSE volume leader, up 1/4 at 27 1/2 in trading that included blocks of 65,000 and 20,000 shares at 27. Mobil Oil said a few days ago it planned to offer $35 a share for the Marcos stock it is seeking to obtain a controlling interest in the company.

Most issues showed only fractional changes.

The Big Board's 11 a.m. composite index of all its listed common issues was down .33 at 42.40.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index lost .31 to 78.86. Child World was the Amex's most active stock, down 1 1/2 at 37 1/2.

form the proposed plans.

Tyndall said that the Corps will have a draft of the Environmental Impact Study concerning the project ready in about three weeks for local observation. Following finalization of the study, the city will know in about nine months whether the project is funded.

Petitions calling for the installation of curb, gutter, and paving on VanNorthwick Street from Moore Street to the end, and on Moore from Railroad Street to Legion Street were approved. Estimated cost of the improvements on VanNorthwick Street, exclusive of storm drainage, is $15,791, with the city's share $4,915, while the cost estimate on Moore Street is $19,144 with a city share of $5,910.

Two petitions, calling for installation of curb, gutter, and paving on Dupont Circle from Pinewood Road to Lamont Road, and on Lamont Road, from Pinewood Road to Dupont Circle, were tabled for further study.

The council approved a resolution endorsing the establishment of a family size residential treatment home known as New Directions for pre-delinquent and delinquent juveniles in Greenville.

Tom Reese, a member of the board of directors of New Directions Inc., explained that the purpose of the organization is to establish a community-based service for youths between the ages of 12 and 16 who are alleged or adjudicated delinquent juveniles, and their immediate families.

The City Council, in approving the project, agreed to administer federal and state funds through the city treasury for the operation of the home. City funding is not required but New Directions will raise some $2,770 as matching funds to enable the organization to meet federal and state funding eligibility.

Other action included: appointment of Pete Hargett to the Parking Authority to fill the term of George Lautares who has resigned; dropping of second alternate on the Board of Adjustments rather than naming another alternate to replace Howard G. Porter who was appointed earlier as a regular member;

A decision to appoint at the next meeting a replacement for a member of the Planning and Zoning Commission who asked to be removed from the board; tabling of consideration concerning a City Sedimentation Pollution Control Ordinance until further action by the County Commissioners; approval of requests for renewal of mobile home permits by William

L. Johnson for a mobile home located on S. Memorial Drive, and by Mrs. Queenie Boyd for the home located on S. Greene Street;

Instructing City Attorney David Reid to draw up an ordinance amending the City Code relating to pool room regulations and permit authorization; extension of pool table permits for John Earl Bridges for a pool table at 409-A Bonner's Lane, for The Happy Store to place a table at 514 Watauga Avenue, and for The Ice House to operate six pool tables at 220 E. 14th Street;

Approval of an application for a mobile home permit by ISO AERO as an office for a flight training school; granting of taxicab operator's permit to Leroy Staton Jr.; and denial of a request by Lennie Lee Council for a taxicab operator's permit.

The council also approved the sale of Disposal Parcel D-2 in the Newtown Renewal Area of Garris-Evans Lumber Co. for $6,626. The company will use the property, bounded on the west by Ridgeway Street, on the north and east by land owned by the Housing Authority, and by land owned by Garris-Evans on the south, for storage of building materials.

A resolution authorizing the Greenville Utilities Commission, in cooperation with Pitt County, to prepare a Sewer Facilities Planning Report as a prerequisite for future Environmental Protection Agency grants on sewer facility construction was approved with council members Cox and Mrs. Mildred McGrath voting against the action.

The agreement between the city and the Kroger Co. for lease of the Kroger building on Greenville Boulevard for a fee of $1 per month was approved. The building will be used by the Bicentennial Committee.

Other action by the council involved: adoption of the Joint City-County Planning and Zoning Commission's rules of procedure; receipt of the annual report of the Joint City-County

Planning and Zoning Commission; approval to change the name of Stafford Road to Staffordshire Road;

Scheduling of a public hearing on the rezoning of Windy Ridge Subdivision; approval of Traffic Commission recommendations calling for removal of parking on Fifth Street from Maple to Elm Street, removal of parking on Fifth Street from Greene to the railroad, the amendment of the City Code to increase the bicycle registration license fee to $1 effective Jan. 1, 1975, amendment of the City Code to prohibit parking in delineated bike lanes, and reversal of the stop signs on Ward Street at Davis, Tyson, Ford, Hudson, and Cadillac Streets;

Approval of holiday pay for 26 employees of the Fire Department Combat and Rescue Divisions for holidays worked during 1973-74 totaling $4,257.92;

Authorization to dispose of city-owned property located on S. Wright Road between Jefferson Drive and E. Wight Road;

Acceptance of high bids for the sale of surplus city vehicles and equipment;

Waiver of privilege licenses for the Greenville Jaycees and the Greenville-Martinborough Lions Club;

Release of taxes and penalties for Bilbro Wholesale Co. and refund of a building permit fee to Tipton Builders; and Reminder of a special meeting of the council on Aug. 15 at 8 p.m. for the purpose of holding a public hearing on proposed amendments to the CBD Urban Renewal Plan.

The council also followed a recommendation by Mayor Eugene West that City Manager Bill Carstarphen be allowed to work out a policy with city department heads concerning the participation of city employees in the growing of beards and mustaches for the bicentennial celebration. Carstarphen suggested that employees be allowed to participate, with the exception of fire and police personnel who would be allowed to grow mustaches.

He's More Famous Than The Bear

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer
TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — There are people in Alabama who insist that Red Farmer is a bigger name than Paul "Bear" Bryant.

Farmer is a race driver, one of the best ever to suit up in sportsmen competition. Bryant's forte is college football, the University of Alabama variety.

In addition to red hair, which Bryant doesn't have and Farmer does, the race driver has a few other things going for him that the football coach doesn't.

Like victories. Farmer, in his 25th year of competition, can look at 525 winners' trophies. Bryant has 241. Farmer works, at age 45, only when he feels like it. Bryant's time is more in demand.

Farmer takes only an occasional fling at high speed Grand National stock car racing. And he's at Alabama International Speedway this week as an entry in Sunday's Talladega 500.

He and some 55 other entries in the $147,000 race waited out another day of rain Thursday that forced a change of scheduling for today.

The first 40 starters in the 50-car lineup were up for grabs beginning at 10 a.m. Also to be qualified were starters for a 100 mile race for baby grand cars and a 200 miler for bigger touring cars, both scheduled to be run Saturday.

Farmer was not expected to be a contender for the front row pole position—or a start in the top 10, for that matter.

"There are too many good cars and good drivers out here for me to figure strongly in the qualifying," Farmer said Thursday.

Like Richard Petty, a $179,805 winner this year and well into the second million of his prize money career; like Cale Yarborough, already with $167,708 in the kitty; and David Pearson, a three time Alabama winner.

Petty put his Dodge into victory circle at Pocono, Pa., last Sunday for his second 500 mile victory in a row. Yarborough, in a Chevrolet, is the season's top race winner, with eight, and is right behind Petty in championship points. Pearson's Mercury, always at its best at Talladega, has won four times.

Other front row contenders were Bobby Allison, making another start in the American Motors Matador; Donnie Allison in a Chevrolet, and Buddy Baker in a Ford.

Farmer will drive a Ford, somewhat heavier and more powerful than the Ford sportsman car he usually handles in sportsman short track events.

The 25-year veteran lives at nearby Hueytown and seldom races more than 150 miles from home. Most say his yearly income runs close to $100,000—or about equal to what Bryant is drawing in football.

There has been talk in Alabama that Bryant might be retiring to the comparatively low pressure job of full time athletic director.

When does Farmer expect to hang up his helmet?

"When I start to lift my foot off the accelerator because I'm scared, I'll quit racing," he answers. "When I become satisfied with second place or plain don't enjoy racing, I'll give it up."

Rookie May Get Their Last Shot

By The Associated Press
All those marginal rookies and free agents who have been riding high for the past few weeks may be singing their swan song this weekend.

The National Football League appears — for the first time since March — to be on the verge of getting down to serious business on the field as well as at the bargaining table.

All 26 NFL player representatives have reportedly been summoned to Washington for a meeting. It is not certain when a meeting off all player representatives could take place, but reports were the meeting was called to vote on a new contract offered by the owners.

But Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, denied that and said it's just to reassess the NFLPA's demands in the 40-day strike. And the NFL Management Council confirmed that it has offered no new contract proposal.

If it turns out that the dispute is, indeed, on the threshold of being ended, near-capacity or full houses may be the order of the day a week from now when NFL teams swing into the third week of pre-season play.

But for now, it'll still be more empty seats than full ones in most of the parks. Baltimore and Washington will find out just how empty — or full — tonight.

The Colts open their exhibition schedule against the visiting Detroit Lions, who will start Bruce Arthur at quarterback. Arthur, who played at the University of Toledo, was out of football last season. The Colts will counter with Tom Pierantozzi, who spent his 1973 rookie season on the inactive roster after playing in one pre-season game.

The Redskins, who played their first pre-season game a week ago before 16,403 fans in 54,374-seat RFK Stadium, host the Houston Oilers.

And Washington's game may not be the only one in town. Fans may get an opportunity to see plenty of veterans from the Redskins and other teams — playing touch football outside RFK Stadium in a parking lot. "It will be free and a lot better than the game inside," one striking player observed.

The NFL is extending its policy of giving refunds to exhibition ticket holders on a week-to-week basis, depending on the progress of the negotiations.

On Saturday, Atlanta plays Oakland at Berkeley, Calif., Philadelphia is at Cincinnati, New Orleans visits Miami, St. Louis faces Green Bay at Milwaukee, Minnesota is at Denver, Los Angeles hosts Dallas and the New York Jets play at San Diego.

Division Finals Slated Tonight

The Church Softball League's two divisions are scheduled to move into the finals tonight with the two teams in each meeting for the right to clash for the City Championship.

Last night, despite rain, Grace defeated People's Bible, which had beaten University-Mt. Pleasant in the National Division. They will now meet Black Jack for the tournament title. In the American Division, a meeting between Oakmont and St. Gabriel had already been set up by previous games.

The two divisional battles are set for tonight at 7:30 p.m., with second games, if needed, to follow.

That will set the stage for the City Championship between the two winners next Tuesday night.

In the opening game last night, People's took a 10-8 win over U-MP. People's pushed over four in the first, and then added four more in the second to just about wrap it up. They scored the two fateful runs, however, in the sixth, when M. Potter hit a two-run homer.

U-MP came up with three in the first, one in the third, and four in the seventh to nearly pull off a rally, but it fell short.

Then, in the second game, Grace nipped People's, 9-7, to move into the finals. People's jumped ahead with five in the first, but Grace came back with one in the second and three in the third. They added two more in the fourth to take a 6-5 lead, but two by People's in the bottom of the frame returned the lead to them. It stayed that way until the seventh, when Grace came up with three more to move ahead, this time for good.

Freedom Issue Roadblock

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The freedom issues, which have been the bulwark of the players' fight for more than a year and a half, remain the central argument of the National Football League labor dispute.

The NFL commissioner's role, a key issue, has become the major obstacle in resolving the contract hassle between the union and the owners and ending the 40-day strike, it was learned.

Several of the owners are willing to limit the authority of the commissioner, which has been a major demand of the union, but apparently a majority of the 26 are not willing to go along with the proposal.

Representatives of the striking players and the club owners were scheduled to meet jointly today with the federal mediator in an effort to solve their contract differences.

In another development, player representatives of the 26 teams were called to Washington and are expected to meet, possibly as early as Saturday, to vote on a new contract offer. Meetings were held separately all day Thursday, but W. J. Usery Jr., the chief federal mediator, could not bring both sides together as was planned after a marathon meeting the day before.

"We will make every effort so that an agreement can be consummated tomorrow," Usery said following a day which began for him at 8:30 a.m. and ended shortly after 10 p.m.

"We are hopeful but not necessarily optimistic. There are lots of issues ... lots of differences."

The NFL Players Association has demanded that the commissioner, who the union says is paid by the owners, be removed as the arbitrator.

The players said they want impartial arbitration for day-to-day grievances while allowing the commissioner to concern himself with such matters as gambling and moral turpitude.

The owners, it was learned, have steadfastly stood by the commissioner's full authority.

Meanwhile, veterans continued to trickle into training camps across the country, except in Hiram, Ohio where 13 Cleveland Browns' veterans went the other way.

Frank Pitts, Browns' player representative, said the players made the move themselves, without pressure from the union.

Cleveland Owner Art Modell, informed of the mass walkout, said, "I am saddened to learn that 13 young football players on my team have surrendered to the pressure put on them by the striking veterans decided to leave training camp."

In Miami, star safety Dick Anderson and two others returned to the fold, giving the Dolphins 34 veterans, 13 of them starters, in camp.

Defensive backs Mel Renfro and Cliff Harris and center John Fitzgerald, all starters, were among four veterans who reported to the Dallas Cowboys. Punter Spike Jones and linebacker John Skorupan, also starters, joined two other veterans in reporting to the Buffalo Bills. And defensive lineman Joe Jones, a three-year veteran, reported to the New York Jets' camp.

Richards Tops Local Swimmers

Kevin Richards of the Greenville Swim Club capped off an undefeated season by winning five first places in the recently completed East Carolina Swim League Championships held at Minges Natatorium.

Competing against swimmers from Kinston, Tarboro, Goldsboro, Wilson, and Jacksonville in the 11-12 year old age group, Kevin won the 100 yard freestyle in 1:05.3, the 100 yard butterfly in 1:13.9, the 100 yard backstroke in 1:13.0, the 200 yard individual medley in 2:38.6, and the 50 yard freestyle in 0:29.6. In addition he helped the Greenville Swim Club Relay Teams to two second place finishes. When questioned concerning his Mark Spitz-like performance Kevin replied, "I had good coaching from Tom Adams (G.S.C. Coach) and Coach Ray Martinez (of the Raynez Swim Camp) and I worked hard."

Kevin had also completed the G.S.C. dual meet season undefeated, winning all first places in the backstroke, freestyle, and butterfly. He finished the season by competing in the E.C.S.L. Championship 18 and under events finishing 7th in the 200 yard backstroke, 8th in the 500 yard freestyle and 8th in the 400 yard individual medley, helping the G.S.C. to a fifth place team finish.

Kevin's brother, John, competes in the 13-14 year old age group while his younger sister

Kevin Richards Anne swims in the 10 and under age group for the G.S.C.

Seniors Delayed

Once again, rain postponed the Senior Babe Ruth Southeast Regional tournament which had finally moved into the last round of games.

Thursday, Alabama was to meet Florida with the winner to meet Tennessee in a second game for the championship. If Tennessee had lost that game, a third game would have been played today.

But the rain forced the schedule to be moved up so that the first game was to have begun at 10:00 a.m. and the second at approximately 12:15 p.m.

Alabama and Florida have both lost one game in the double elimination affair. The loser of their game would be sent home.

Snead, Nicklaus Chasing Trio

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
CLEMMONS, N.C. (AP) — How many shots can a tournament golfer hit in anger before the reservoir runs dry?

"There's a limit," Sam Snead said 10 years ago. "A man has only so many tournaments and so many shots in his system. Jack Nicklaus started so young. He will burn himself out before he's 30."

This prediction came home to roost for the 62-year-old hill-billy wonder today as Snead and the great Nicklaus found themselves tied at 69, just one stroke off the pace going into the second round of the 56th PGA Golf Championship.

Nicklaus not only has not burned himself out but has amassed 14 major titles — an all-time record, and at 34 appears only to be getting his second wind in the game.

And old Sam himself is a living contradiction of his own thesis — still a masterful shotmaker and a PGA title threat after 84 tour victories and 40 years on the tough professional circuit.

"I guess it all depends on whether you can keep on liking the game," Snead acknowledged embarrassedly. "I'm still playing because I keep at it. I love the game. You've got to say the same for Jack."

The sweet-swinging veteran out of Hot Springs, Va., and the brute strong Nicklaus were the key personalities as a logjam emerged from the opening round of the pros' private house party with three men tied at two-under-par 68, Snead and Nicklaus bunched with four others at 69 and 10 bracketed at even par 70 — only three shots blanketing 19 competitors.

The knee-deep rough and rain-soaked greens of the 7,050 yard Tanglewood course could scatter the traffic snarl today.

But Nicklaus' stock as a probable repeater soared after the opening round, which saw South Africa's Gary Player stumble to a 73 with a double bogey on the finishing hole.

The tournament leaders, at 68, are hefty Ray Floyd of Miami, who skipped four of the last seven weeks on the tour because of his wife's pregnancy; caustic Hubert Green of Birmingham, Ala., and star-gazer John Schlee, who is sure his destiny is determined by the signs of the Zodiac. He is a Gemini.

Hobnobbing with Snead and Nicklaus, one shot back at 69, are Bobby Cole of South Africa, Tom Watson, Leonard Thompson and rookie Eddie Pearce, the last a native of Tampa, Fla., who played under an Arnold Palmer scholarship at neighboring Wake Forest College.

Palmer, 44, still believing he can win the only major title that has evaded him and thus end a 10-year drought of major victories, took a large section of gallery on a rain-dampened tour of the scenic course and bogeyed the last hole for a 72.

Johnny Miller, the season's leading money winner, bogeyed the final hole and shot 71, where he was tied with seven others, including Chi Chi Rodriguez and former PGA winner Dave Stockton.

Bobby Nichols, the new Canadian Open champion, and Gay Brewer, Jr., were among the 14 in Palmer's bracket at 72. Player, Lee Trevino, England's Tony Jacklin and former Masters king Tommy Aaron were in a list of 15 who shot 73. Tom Weiskopf had a 75.

TIED FOR THE LEAD—Hubert Green, winner of three golf tournaments this year, chips onto a green Thursday during the first round of the PGA Tournament at Tanglewood near

Winston-Salem. Green, along with Ray Floyd and John Schlee, is tied for the first round lead with a two-under-par 68. (AP Wirephoto)

Sharks Attack Hawaiians

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Coach Bud Asher said he knew all along that Eddie McAshan would be a great quarterback for the Jacksonville Sharks.

And Sharks' owner Fran Monaco agreed, calling McAshan "another Johnny Unitas," after the rookie from Georgia Tech led Jacksonville to a pair of fourth quarter touchdowns and a 21-14 victory over the Hawaiians Thursday night in the World Football League's nationally televised game.

McAshan sat clutching an injured knee after the contest, but smiled through the pain and gamely predicted he will play against the Florida Blazers in Orlando next Wednesday.

"It doesn't hurt nearly as bad when you win," he said. Doctors will evaluate the injury in a day or two but believe it is only a bad sprain.

He suffered the injury after he dived the final yard for the winning touchdown with 20 seconds left on the clock. Going for a meaningful action point, McAshan went back to pass and was smacked by two Honolulu linemen.

Twice in the fourth quarter, he drove the Sharks 80 yards to touchdowns, hitting four key passes and sweeping both ends on option runs.

Another rookie quarterback, Reggie Oliver from Marshall University, led Jacksonville, now 2-3 on the season, most of the first half. He completed six of seven passes but could only set up a pair of field goals of 22 yards and 35 yards by Grant Guthrie.

Meanwhile, Norris Weese of Honolulu, the league's leading passer, took advantage of Sharks mistakes — a fumble at the 10 and a short punt that was returned to the Sharks' 42 — for a pair of touchdowns. The loss brought the Hawaiians record to 1-4.

The crowd of 43,869 was overjoyed at the winning finish after three last-quarter losses. Sharks' officials wouldn't say how many of the spectators came in free, but reliable reports were that 18,000 complimentary tickets were distributed to young baseball and football players.

Wheels Rolling To Charlotte?

DETROIT (AP) — Owners of the World Football League Detroit Wheels are considering selling the team to a Charlotte, N.C., group which would move the team there.

"They have been talking to us and I'm sure the matter will be discussed," said David Pollack, chairman of the Wheels' executive committee.

The committee was to meet today to discuss the matter. The sale price is $2 million, Al Ackerman of WXYZ-TV said Thursday night. He said he learned from reliable sources the Wheels were in contact with the North Carolina group because of continuing financial troubles.

Ackerman said "terms are the North Carolina group will pay $500,000 in cash and the rest in equal installments over the next five years."

"There is still a lot of sympathy among the owners to keep the club here," Pollack said. "Four or five or six people are talking about buying it and keeping it here."

"At a meeting at the Wheels' office July 28, 22 of the 33 shareholders were told the club had $280,000 in bills and the corporation was practically out of cash," Ackerman said.

"They also were told it would be impossible to attain an average of 15,000 fans to Rynearson Stadium at Ypsilanti for the games because of the distance (some 35 miles west) from Detroit.

"The only way to solve the crisis was to sell the club," Ackerman said the move would be made before the season ends.

The Wheels have lost all five games so far, including a 28-22 loss to Birmingham Thursday, and have averaged 12,600 spectators for two games.

They had tried to get approval to play at Tiger Stadium in Detroit — where the Lions of the National Football League play — but were turned down. The Lions, who lease the stadium from baseball's Detroit Tigers, are moving to Pontiac some 35 miles north in 1975 and the Wheels felt they could capitalize on the move by providing a true Detroit team.

They settled on Rynearson, the home field of Eastern Michigan University. The former head coach at EMU, Dan Boisture, is now head coach of the Wheels.

Ozark Has A Magic Formula For Pennant

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Manager Danny Ozark of the Philadelphia Phillies has the National League East championship race all figured out.

The Phillies moved to within one-half game of first place St. Louis Thursday night, nipping Chicago 2-1 for their third straight victory over the Cubs. Afterwards, Ozark analyzed his club's situation.

"All we have to do is what we did today, yesterday and the day before," said Ozark.

And what would that be, Danny? "Win," he said. "Forget about the other guys. Just keep winning. Eventually, we'll get to where we're supposed to be."

That seems to be exactly the strategy being employed by the hard-charging Pittsburgh Pirates, who moved to within 3½ games of the top by defeating the New York Mets 4-3.

Elsewhere in the NL Thursday, Montreal trimmed St. Louis 3-2 in 13 innings and Atlanta shut out Houston 1-0. San Francisco, San Diego, Los Angeles and Cincinnati did not play.

Philadelphia's victory was the fourth straight and fifth in six games for the second place Phillies, who kept the pressure on front-running St. Louis. It was not, however, easily accomplished.

Ron Schueler of the Phillies and Chicago's Bill Bonham were tied at 1-1 in the seventh inning when Mike Anderson walked, stole second and reached third on a wild pitch. Then with two out, Dave Cash bounced a grounder up the middle that hit the seam of the artificial infield and skipped past shortstop Don Kessinger for the winning hit.

Pirates 4, Mets 3

Richie Zisk's ninth inning home run gave Pittsburgh its victory over New York and completed a three-game sweep for the Pirates, who've won four straight.

Zisk connected against Jon Matlack for his 12th homer of the season and made a winner of Jerry Reuss, who pitched a six-hitter.

The Pirates come from behind, wiping out an early 3-0 Met lead by scoring three runs in the fourth inning.

Expos 3, Cardinals 2

The Cardinals and Expos struggled into the 13th inning before Hal Breen's bases-loaded, two-out, pinch single broke it up and gave Montreal the victory.

Bob Bailey opened the Expos'

13th with a single and moved up on a sacrifice. Walks to Ron Woods and Barry Foote sandwiched around a strikeout, loaded the bases and set the stage for Breen's winning hit.

Braves 1, Astros 0

The best pitching job of the night went to Atlanta's Ron Reed, who shut out Houston on three hits.

Reed outduelled the Astros' Dave Roberts, who surrendered the game's only run in the sixth inning when Marty Perez and Darrell Evans hit consecutive doubles to open the inning.

Rudi Sparks Oakland Rout

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Joe Rudi knocked in five runs with two singles, a double and a home run Thursday night to lead the Oakland A's to a 10-2 rout of the Texas Rangers and embellish his flashy offensive figures.

"Baseball people know he's a solid player, although I've heard he's underrated," said Oakland Manager Alvin Dark.

"It doesn't worry me about the lack of publicity," said Rudi, who is hitting .310 with 72 RBI and 13 home runs.

In the other American League games, the Milwaukee Brewers stopped the Boston Red Sox 5-3; the California Angels stopped the Chicago White Sox 6-4; the Detroit Tigers nipped the Cleveland Indians 4-3 and the Minnesota Twins beat the Kansas City Royal 3-2 in 14 innings.

Jesus Alou also had a good night for the A's. He opened the game with a first-pitch home run and added two singles, driving in two other runs. The homer was Alou's first of the season.

Jim "Catfish" Hunter breezed to his 16th victory against nine losses, scattering nine hits.

The A's bombarded young David Clyde with an eight hit attack in the four innings the young lefty lasted. Clyde is now 3-8.

Brewers 5, Red Sox 3

Don Money's double keyed a four-run third inning as Milwaukee whipped Boston to snap a string of six straight complete-game victories by Luis Tiant, 17-8.

The Brewers had lost eight of their past nine starts, including three to the Red Sox.

Angels 6, White Sox 4

Doug Howard singled to drive in the tying run, then scored on Ellie Rodriguez' single in a three-run eighth inning that carried California past Chicago.

Tigers 4, Indians 3

Jim Nettles singled home one run and two more runs scored on consecutive errors by pitcher Tom Buskey and first baseman Tom McCraw as Detroit rallied in the ninth inning to beat Cleveland.

Twins 3, Royals 2

Tony Oliva drove in a run with a sacrifice fly in the 14th inning to lead Minnesota over Kansas City. Rod Carew opened the 14th with a single and moved to third on a one-out base hit by Larry Hise before scoring on Oliva's sacrifice fly off relief pitcher Joe Hoerner.

Baseball To Look Into Expansion

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "We don't want to rush into expansion," said National League President Chub Feeney, "but we want to be ready."

As the first step toward getting ready, Feeney announced Thursday at the conclusion of baseball's summer meetings that he had been instructed by the league to appoint a committee to prepare an expansion plan for the league's study in time for the winter meetings at New Orleans in early December.

Reportedly, expansion will take place in time for the 1976 season, with New Orleans, Seattle, Toronto and Washington, D.C. being admitted — the first two cities into the American League and the other two areas into the National League.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, American League President Lee MacPhail and Feeney all agreed that expansion was inevitable — the majors have not expanded since 1969, a huge gap in comparison with other big sports — and that it will be done "in concert," instead of unilaterally as was done in the early 1960s.

In 1961, the American League admitted California, approved the move of the Washington team to Minnesota and awarded a new franchise to Washington. The National League, however, waited a year before adding teams in New York and Houston.

Kuhn definitely ruled out expansion for 1975 and said, "Beyond that, who knows. We are going to expand, without putting a timetable on it."

MacPhail, in his first year as league president, recently expressed the opinion that baseball was not yet ready for expansion. He reaffirmed his position Thursday, explaining, "Every time you expand, it takes time to catch up. I think we are catching up now (to the caliber of play before the last expansion in 1969)."

The American League, however, apparently did not go along with MacPhail's opinion, and took a step toward expansion even before he took office and before its National League brethren, by forming a planning committee on the matter last year.

Much Of Nixon's Tenure Spent Fighting Congress

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, the first 20th century chief executive to serve with his party never in control of Congress, spent much of his tenure fighting with congressional Democrats over the Vietnam war and domestic spending.

More often than not, Nixon won.

The Senate, whose substantial

Democratic majority included most of the party's major national figures, battled the Republican President repeatedly. The House more often supported him.

Only after the October 1973 ouster of Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox did House Democrats move against Nixon, launching the first formal impeachment proceeding against a president since the 1868 move against Andrew Johnson.

By mid-1974, the drive for impeachment completely overshadowed other aspects of Nixon's relations with Congress.

Many Republicans, fearing a GOP disaster at the polls in November, set themselves at some distance from the embattled White House.

Even GOP conservatives, Nixon's most solid line of support, became critical when the President signed a bill to create an independent government corporation to provide legal services for the poor.

Earlier, most GOP members had stood loyally behind Nixon on both domestic and foreign matters.

In the area of national security, Nixon won support during his term for expensive new weapons systems, and warded off measures to force U.S. withdrawal from Indochina until he had done it himself.

In the last year, however, Congress forced a halt in U.S.

bombing of Cambodia and enacted, over Nixon's veto, a far-reaching measure curbing presidential powers to commit American troops abroad.

In contrast with the vast flood of new domestic programs that marked the previous Johnson administration, Nixon pushed very little domestic legislation through Congress.

A major exception was a $30.2-billion revenue sharing program enacted in 1972 under which federal funds are returned to state and local governments.

Nixon's other major domestic proposals, reform of the welfare system and a vast restructuring of the federal bureaucracy, were rejected by Congress.

But congressional efforts to override Nixon's vetoes of spending bills he considered too costly, especially for health and education, generally failed as enough Republicans and Southern Democrats backed Nixon to prevent his foes from mustering the needed two-thirds majorities.

Nevertheless, the federal deficit soared and the administration and Congress blamed each other.

An 18-month effort to create new congressional machinery to deal with the budget was completed in July 1974. Nixon signed the measure into law even though it restricted his authority to impound appropriated funds.

Despite partisan division, Congress gave Nixon power to impose wage-price controls, an option he exercised in August 1971 after saying earlier he did not want such power.

Members of Congress also backed most of President Nixon's short-term, emergency efforts to deal with the energy shortage during the Arab oil embargo that began in October 1973.

However, the major piece of emergency energy legislation proposed by Nixon never became law.

Nixon vetoed one version because he objected to inclusion of provisions on crude oil prices, unemployment compensation and federal loans to householders and small businesses.

A few days later Nixon submitted a second version of the bill. However, the energy crisis eased and the administration eventually said it did not need the legislation.

Two major pieces of tax legislation were enacted during Nixon's first term: A $9.1 billion tax reform bill in 1969 and a $15.8 billion tax cut in 1971.

Other legislation enacted during Nixon's tenure converted the Postal Service into an independent corporation and lowered the voting age to 18.

Congress also enacted a campaign reform bill that resulted in 1972 in the most complete disclosure ever of campaign financing at the national level.

In four bills, each bigger than the administration wanted, Congress also raised Social Security benefits some 65 per cent and hiked payroll taxes to cover increased costs.

Unemployment compensation coverage was extended in 1970 to 4.7 million additional workers and a comprehensive bill was passed to protect the health and safety of workers.

However, Nixon was able to block by veto a 1973 bill that would have provided the first increase in seven years in the federal minimum wage, from the current $1.60 an hour to $2.20 an hour.

Nixon's first four-year term was marked by repeated battles with Congress on defense and Vietnam, with Nixon emerging as the eventual winner virtually every time.

In 1969, a bipartisan group of senators launched the first major challenge in years to Pentagon spending, culminating in a battle over Nixon's proposal to protect U.S. missiles with a multibillion-dollar Safeguard antiballistic missile (ABM) defense system.

Senate critics of the ABM, charging it was too expensive and wouldn't work, failed on a 50-50 tie vote to slow its development. Eventually, the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) agreement between the United States and the Soviet Union resulted in a cutback in the ABM system.

In the spring of 1970, Nixon's dispatch of U.S. troops into Cambodia sparked efforts to force withdrawal of U.S. forces from all Indochina.

By the end of the year, the Senate won House concurrence in the first enacted limits on the U.S. role in Southeast Asia, a flat ban on U.S. combat troops in Laos and Thailand and restrictions on U.S. aid to Cambodia.

Three times in 1971, the Senate overcame the Nixon administration's opposition and passed measures calling for total U.S. withdrawal from Indochina.

Each time, aided by a friendly Democratic leadership, the administration won in the House.

In the election year of 1972, however, U.S. withdrawals from Vietnam accelerated and Senate support for forcing withdrawal ebbed. Two more end-the-war amendments passed the Senate, only to die in the House, before the Senate voted 45 to 42 in September against withdrawal.

But the Senate did pass that year, over strong administration objections, the first resolution to limit presidential war powers. It, too, died in the House.

In 1973, when the Vietnam peace agreement was followed by continued U.S. bombing in Cambodia, congressional majorities moved to end it.

With House support for such a move nearing the two-thirds needed to override a presidential veto, a level already reached in the Senate, President Nixon bowed in late June and agreed to an Aug. 15 cessation of all U.S. military activity, in, over or off the shores of Indochina.

Similar provisions were than routinely added to later bills.

In the fall of 1973, as Nixon fought to get out from under the Watergate cloud, the Senate and House passed the historic war powers limits, then mustered the needed two-thirds majorities to write it into law over his veto.

'Unknowns' On The Ford Staff

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gerald R. Ford's closest advisers are his close friends from a quarter century in the House and his obscure, hard-working vice presidential staff.

The only ones who held prominent positions in the Nixon administration are former Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird and White House aide Bryce Harlow, a top presidential assistant in both the Eisenhower and Nixon administrations.

Ford generally has operated on his own, relying less on his staff than his predecessors in the vice presidency.

While traveling outside Washington as vice president, he often was accompanied by only a single military aide and his press secretary.

The top members of his vice presidential staff are Robert Hartmann, a 57-year-old former newspaperman who has been chief of staff, and L. William Seidman, a 53-year-old management consultant who joined his staff earlier this year.

Hartmann, who joined Ford's staff shortly after Ford became House Republican leader in 1965, is more of a political adviser than operating staff chief.

Laird, who was a member of the House before President Nixon named his secretary of defense, served with Ford on the House Appropriations Committee and helped Ford win the GOP leader's job. As chairman of the House Republican Conference, Laird was one of Ford's key lieutenants in the Republican leadership of the House.

Considered one of his party's most skilled backroom operators, Laird also was influential in President Nixon's choice of Ford to succeed Spiro T. Agnew as vice president.

Laird took a top White House post after the resignations of H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, but left less than a year later, reportedly because Nixon wasn't heeding his advice.

Although he has never actually been a member of Ford's staff, Laird has been one of Ford's advisers as vice president.

Harlow, who was President Dwight D. Eisenhower's chief congressional liaison man, has been a Washington lobbyist for Procter & Gamble between White House stints. He, too, left Nixon's staff earlier this year.

Like Laird, he has been a close adviser to Ford even though he has never served on Ford's staff.

Besides Laird, two other former House members who helped Ford win his House leadership post have long been considered close to him.

They are Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., and former Sen. Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y., who lost his seat in 1970 to Sen. James L. Buckley. Buckley was aided by the White House because Goodell had opposed the President on key issues.

Another former House member close to Ford is former Rep. William Cramer, R-Fla., who lost a 1970 Senate bid. A strong conservative in the House, Cramer has been active in keeping alive parts of the anti-poverty program.

Besides Hartmann and Seidman, key Ford staff members include:

—Press Secretary Paul Mitchell, 54, a former newspaperman with Michigan's Booth newspapers. A pleasant, hard-working man, he has been Ford's press aide since 1966.

—National security aide John O. Marsh, 47, a former Virginia Democratic congressman and another alumnus of the House Appropriations Committee. He was serving as an assistant secretary of defense when Ford tapped him as a military and foreign affairs adviser.

—Philip Buchen, 58, Ford's former Grand Rapids, Mich., law partner, and a close political adviser. Ford assigned Buchen to serve as director of a task force on the right of privacy, the only specific task Nixon assigned him new vice president.

—Richard Burress, 51, an ex-FBI agent and former chairman of the Renegotiation Board, has been serving as Ford's chief legislative liaison man.

NEW PRESS SECRETARY—Gerald Ford named Gerald F. TerHorst, Washington bureau chief of the Detroit News, as the new White House press secretary late Thursday. TerHorst, 52, shown in his office after the announcement, was the first appointment made by Ford after President Nixon announced that he would resign. (AP Wirephoto)

Find Peace Far From N. Ireland

By GALE TOLLIN
Associated Press Writer

WASECA, Minn. (AP) — He was a bright boy when he came to the United States a month ago, pleasant, smiling and mannerly. His analysis of the strife in his Northern Ireland homeland may have been the result of the oversimplification of youth or the experience of war.

"The Protestants want Ireland all to themselves. And, the Catholics want Ireland all to themselves," he said.

Stephen Shearer will return to Belfast soon as the same pleasant, red-haired and mannerly 11-year-old as when he left, but with the carefree buoyancy acquired on a farm 5,000 miles from home.

When he arrived to spend the summer with Roy and Marcie Lukken he stayed in the house a lot, close to others. He didn't like to go to bed at night and he sometimes slept poorly. Mrs. Lukken thinks maybe Steve was afraid of the dark.

Stephen isn't that way, now. He roams happily about the farm — in the yard, under the trees, around the machinery, through the rows of test plots of hybrid corn. He romps with the Lukkens' Dachshund, Suzy. He meets people politely, joshes those he has come to know well, and laughs uproariously when he is the perpetrator, or butt, of a tease.

Much of the time he clasps a gift slingshot. Young Stephen, from a land where bombings and killings have terrified children, doesn't use the plastic slingshot to kill birds or animals.

Tin cans are Steve's only targets. His neighborhood in Belfast hasn't had a great deal of trouble compared with other parts of the city. The Shearers and most of the people in their neighborhood are Protestants. Three Catholic families live on the same street but, Steve says, "We get along fine."

The Lukkens and their friends who've helped entertain Steve have made it a point not to bring up the strife in Ireland. In his six weeks in the United States, the emphasis is on fun, fresh experiences and new friends.

"We've wanted to stress the good, the happy," says Lukken, 27.

Steve, chosen for the visit by having his name drawn from a hat at school, was one of 120 children from Belfast who flew into Minneapolis-St. Paul June 28. Half were Roman Catholic; half were Protestants. They were met at the airport by the families selected as their hosts, and were taken to town and country homes in Minnesota, the Dakotas, Iowa and Wisconsin.

The project was initiated by Sarah Hughes, a Belfast woman who wanted to give Northern Ireland children a chance to see that Protestant and Catholics could live in peace. Her son David, 10, and Irene Hill, 9, had come to the United States last summer and now attend school in Fargo, N.D.

The sponsor of the project was the Hibbing, Minn., Rotary Club. That group, other Rotary clubs, other organizations and individuals collected and donated money for transportation. The host families bear the costs of boarding the children.

Perhaps.

For it seems to us that we have the kind of car you want. One that skimps on gas without skimping on quality. And frankly, we think you'll be more willing to look at one if we lowered the price. When you do, you'll discover a car that got 31.3 mpg in a cross-country test certified by the U.S. Auto Club... a car that comes loaded with "extras" as standard equipment. The Worry Clinic Ignorance Is A Root Problem

Note Mary's challenging church insurance project. For its help vaccinate parents and children, husbands and wives, plus teenage sweethearts against unwise decisions. It is a superb form of smart "home missionary" strategy. Imitate it!

By GEORGE W. CRANE Ph.D., M.D.

CASE B-611: Mary B., aged 32, is an active church worker. "Dr. Crane," she began, "we decided to schedule a church 'Worry Clinic' at our Methodist Church in Covington, Indiana. "For even the best regulated families have a lot of problems, either between husband-wife, parents and children, teachers and pupils, or teen-agers and police officials. "So our Fountain County

Mental Health Association became the sponsor of this continuing seminar that ran from 1 till 7 P.M. "You had mentioned that many other churches in previous years had patterned after your newspaper 'Worry Clinic,' so I felt you'd enjoy knowing that we are also joining the band wagon."

Worry Clinic Bravo to all such church and school "Worry Clinics." Most of the unhappiness, disease and criminality results from ignorance. "The truth shall set you free," Christ stated. And most people of reasonable I.Q. can solve their own problems, without costly psychiatric seances, if they will verbalize their worries and then join in group discussions of solutions thereof.

When I was teaching psychology at George Washington University in our national capital, I was constantly asked to address church and parent-teacher groups about marriage and family problems. Although we psychologists had many effective answers to such human difficulties, you then had to go the college to learn them. But in those days, not more than about 10 per cent of people ever entered college!

Which meant that 90 per cent of our American population were left to blunder around in domestic discord, family feuding with children and other social dilemmas. So I fretted at the failure to vaccinate Americans against divorce, delinquency, school dropouts and neuroticism. Coming from generations of school teachers and clergymen, I was naturally concerned at this massive lack of helpful communication between medico-psychology and the general public. In those days, we didn't have talking radio or TV. And magazines reached only a limited slice of the population, for a circulation of 1,000,000 was then huge of magazines. So I decided that the newspaper is the BEST avenue to help vaccinate people against unnecessary medico-psychology ailments. By this time, I was back at Northwestern University, directing our Psychology Lab and teaching on our Evanston Campus. Since there was then some hostility between medicine and psychology, I decided to supplement my Ph. D. by exchanging my daytime teaching at Evanston so I could lecture to night psychology classes on our downtown campus in Chicago. That let me still earn a living, while I meanwhile went to N.U. Medical School for 4 years and then interned at Wesley Hospital. Equipped with both my Ph. D. and M.D., I then launched this "Worry Clinic."

Literally millions of you readers have been helped to avoid marital and social or parent-child unhappiness as a result of this daily newspaper column, plus the millions of booklets offered in connection herewith. For your church and school "Worry Clinics," you will find many of those booklets ideal, such as the "Tests for Parents," "Tests for Husband and Wife," "Compliment Club" project, etc., so imitate Mary's church "Worry Clinic."

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

'Giants' Among Coastal Rocks

By KENNETH FRANCKLING NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Tourist note: giants seen coming out of rocks along picturesque Ocean Avenue won't attack.

More than 50 large-scale sculptures representing a cross-section of leading contemporary artists will be popping up in unexpected places all over Newport this month through mid-October — on the waterfront, in urban malls, along the rugged seaside and on the grounds of two famous mansions of America's Gilded Age. "We are trying to reflect the growth of changing urban scenes and what is happening in civic art today," said William A. Crimmins of Middletown, promoter of the "Monuments" exhibition. "There is already enthusiasm generated as far away as New York and Rome. People in Italy are talking about it."

The works being gathered from private collections by Samuel Bunter, noted Princeton University art professor, run the gamut of 20th century sculpture trends.

Christo — who gained national fame for wrapping a building in foil and plastic sheeting — will "wrap" King's Beach on Ocean Avenue by covering the water with polypropylene plastic tailored to the shoreline and anchored by cable. "It floats somewhat and will interact with the waves and wind. It is a happening because it takes time to construct and people can help," Crimmins said. "They can watch it and really get involved doing it." The heavy pieces, made of Cor-Ten steel, have been chosen for exposed areas and are basically vandal-resistant, he said.

More delicate works needing protection, including 10 major pieces by the late David Smith, will be on display at the Elms and Chateau-Sur-Mer mansions under guard.

Providence artist Richard Fleischer is already supervising the removal of sod in a 125-foot circle on the lawn of Chateau-Sur-Mer for his work "Sod Maze."

Loam and sod will be reset to create a living, permanent sculpture which will look into the ripples in a pond when a pebble is dropped.

Crimmins said planning is underway for the second biennial exhibition to be held in 1976, at which more emphasis will be focused on younger artists, with many of the works being built on site.

The upcoming exhibition will open Aug. 16 with a symposium of artists and critics in historic Newport Casino. The biggest impact on tourists will be finding art works where they are least expected. "That's the effect you want," said Crimmins. "You're driving down Ocean Avenue and there are these huge sculptures along the water coming out of the rocks."

Going Back To Bedroom Basin

CHICAGO (UPI) — Single and double bowl vanity wash basins are becoming increasingly popular installed in the bedroom, the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling information bureau reports.

The bureau said the bedroom basin is a trend back to great grandmother's china bowl and watch pitcher.

SWEET STATE

CHICAGO (UPI) — Illinois is the leading candy making state of the Union, the National Confectioners Association reports.

The state accounts for 32 per cent of natural sales with production of more than 1.2 billion pounds of confections.

Would Abolish Term 'Aged'

CHICAGO (UPI) — The term "aged" ought to be abolished, says Dr. William Gellman, research director of the East Seals Society.

Gellman told the Chicago Dental Society the term was "a stereotyped meaning with negative connotations."

Age 60 to 70 should be referred to as "late middle age," he said, and beyond 70 as "maturity."

No Explaining 72-Mile Run

LA FERRE, France (UPI) — French army Brig. Albert Bonaventure ran 72 miles from the village of Suipes to his artillery regiment's headquarters here in 11 hours 30 minutes. En route he ate two normal military ration meals, two hard-boiled eggs, a sausage, 50 sugar lumps and two pounds of oranges. He didn't say why he made the run.

We have often written about the inadvisability of taking a finesse when there are alternative lines available. However, on occasion it can be right to take a finesse that apparently stands to gain nothing.

Looking at all the hands, the best contract for North-South is six clubs played by South—played by North it might be defeated with a diamond lead. Since there was no way to get to the perfect spot because of the opening bid, six hearts by South was as good a contract as any and was bolstered by 100 honors.

With no really good lead, West made the mildly deceptive attack of the eight of spades. Declarer won in dummy with the king, drew three rounds of trumps ending in dummy, and took the diamond finesse. Unfortunately West held the king, and since South could not avoid losing a club trick, he was down one.

Declarer blew the contract with his play to the very first trick. Despite the fact that he held a singleton spade, he should have finessed dummy's jack. The play cannot possible cost for, if the finesse fails, declarer can discard two clubs on the ace and king of spades, and he would still be on a diamond finesse for his contract.

In this case, however, the spade finesse wins. Now declarer can draw trumps, discard two clubs on the high spades and take the diamond finesse for an overtrick. This seemingly useless spade finesse actually increases declarer's winning possibilities by 50%. Whereas the diamond finesse is strictly an even money proposition, declarer builds the odds in his favor 3:1 by playing for one of two finesses—either the diamond or the spade—to win.

Thornsby. . . Nixon's Cabinet Among The Most Changeable In American History

UM...AND YOU'VE GOT A SEE-THROUGH MIND!

By MIKE SHANAHAN Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — Only in small part because of Watergate, President Nixon's Cabinet was among the most changeable in American history. Nearly two dozen men came and went as political heads of the vast federal bureaucracy. Not one among the original Cabinet survived Nixon's term in office. Except for Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, none among the present cabinet could claim to be a confidante of the President. Four former cabinet members either pleaded guilty or were indicted on Watergate-related charges, among them two attorneys general. Another attorney general, Elliot L. Richardson, resigned rather than carry out a presidential order to fire the special Watergate prosecutor. Other presidents have looked first for aides to their White House offices, but none so exclusively as Richard Nixon. Before he was engulfed by Watergate, the President tried repeatedly to draw even more power toward the White House at the expense of his cabinet. When his attempts to form a super-Cabinet, a kind of administrative umbrella for domestic affairs, met a stone wall in Congress, Nixon made many changes by simple executive order.

One Cabinet man, then-Treasurer Secretary George Shultz, was given the additional title of presidential assistant. Frequently, cabinet officers were left to answer to Congress and the public for policies they had little or no part in forming. Former Secretary of State William P. Rogers and former Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird, two of Nixon's oldest friends, went time after time to Capitol Hill to testify on administration policies in Indochina. Both counseled privately against the widening of the war and other policies they were forced to defend publicly. Even as Nixon concentrated his own power and those of White House assistants, he sought through revenue sharing to disperse federal services for the states to administer. The effect was the same: Less influence, power and prestige for federal departments dealing with domestic problems. Some cabinet members like former Michigan Gov. George Romney, left in simple frustration; others were shuffled to different posts within the administration. Richardson, for one, held three separate cabinet jobs. When Nixon took office in 1969, he chose men he knew well, old friends he felt he could trust. There was Rogers, remembered as a reliable ally from their days together in the Eisenhower administration. There was John N. Mitchell, the enigmatic and reclusive New York bond lawyer, partner in the same law firm Nixon joined between runs for political office. Mitchell, since resigned as attorney general, was found innocent by a New York jury of influence peddling in the Vesco case. Other charges are pending. Another with close personal ties in those early days was Robert H. Finch, the California lieutenant governor who became secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Finch and Romney represented the moderate bloc of the Republican party. Neither became a powerful influence in Nixon's first term. Instead, Nixon encouraged White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman and domestic affairs chief John D. Ehrlichman to restrict access of Cabinet officers to the Oval Office. Denied the chance to influence Nixon, most Cabinet members found themselves blocked from making policy for their departments. The dramatic symbol of Cabinet frustration in the first Nixon term was former Alaska Gov. Walter J. Hickel, who served as Interior secretary. In a letter in May, 1970, Hickel said he thought the President was alienating young people, in part through his Indochina policies. Hickel also complained that cabinet members were denied regular access to the President. Four months later Hickel was fired, in person, by the President. Within a few days of Nixon's re-election in 1972, Cabinet members were startled to find written orders to prepare standby resignations for the start of the second term. Lower-level White House and executive department officials were included in the order. But some members of the cabinet took the demand as a direct insult to their abilities and record in the first Nixon administration. As the second term began, there were major shifts. The most important was Richardson's appointment as secretary of defense succeeding Laird, and the naming of Caspar Weinberger as secretary of HEW. A novel appointment in the second Nixon term was "hardhat" union leader Peter J. Brennan as secretary of labor. Brennan, a Democrat, had led angry construction workers supporting President Nixon's Vietnam policies on a march through the streets of New York City. He was only the second union leader ever to serve as labor secretary. As the cascading Watergate investigation drew more and more on Nixon's time and energy, members of his second-term Cabinet found themselves ironically free to act without fear of White House interference. The resignations of Haldeman and Ehrlichman gave some cabinet members an independence previously unknown. The best example of that was Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger, who staked out a position of power within the administration equalled only by Kissinger.

N.C. Congressmen Express Hope And Confidence In Gerald Ford

By VAN VANUCH
Associated Press Writer

"Let us rally behind our new President and pull together in an effort to bind up the nation's wounds and solve its pressing problems."

That concise, hopeful remark by 11th District Democratic Rep. Roy Taylor summarized the feelings of North Carolina's conservative congressmen toward the resignation of President Nixon.

Grim to a man, the lawmakers expressed sorrow over Watergate, confidence in Gerald Ford, and hope.

Rep. Ike Andrews, 4th District Democrat, recalled, "A little known hymn is entitled, 'We are living, we are dwelling in a grand and awful time.'"

"Tonight, hopefully, the awful tragedy of Watergate is largely behind us, and ahead is a grand opportunity for a new president and an embattled Congress and people to call upon each other for a renewal of faith in America."

The dean of North Carolina's congressional delegation, Rep. L.H. Fountain of the 2nd District, said, "Certainly there is no joy in the resignation of the President."

tion might have on the Republican party, but, "I don't anticipate at this point that it would have any pluses or minuses. Under the circumstances, it is better to have an orderly transition instead of the trauma of further debate."

Freshman Rep. James G. Martin, a 9th District Republican, said he believes the country can prosper under Ford.

"The agenda before our nation—inflation and federal deficits, the energy crisis, the maintenance of world peace and the overriding need to restore self confidence—is critical."

"I firmly believe that Gerald Ford can, as President, bind the wounds we have inflicted upon ourselves in the course of the sad events which have led to his assumption of the highest office in the land.

"The President's announcement has to be one of sadness," said, third-term Republican Rep. Earl Ruth of the 8th District.

"Even his enemies must feel compassion for him and his family," Ruth said. "I hope history remembers him for his accomplishments and not just for the circumstances of his resignation."

Rep. Walter Jones, 1st District Democrat, said, "Certainly it takes a great amount of courage on the part of any man to arrive at such a momentous decision. In this connection, I do not intend to be a party to any vindictive action against the President.

"Tragic as this event is, the important thing now should be the total dedication of the new President, the Congress and the American people in healing whatever wounds might exist at the earliest possible moment, in attempting to create in this country a spirit of bipartisan unity to move this nation forward," Jones said.

Congressman David Henderson also said he would not be part of any attempt to prosecute the President in the courts.

"I am not interested in imposing upon him any punishment or retribution beyond what he has suffered in giving up under fire the most prestigious office in the world," said the 3rd District Democrat, serving his seventh term.

Former major league baseball pitcher Wilmer Mizell, a Republican, praised Nixon.

"Richard Nixon has served this nation faithfully and well throughout his long and often brilliant career," said the 5th District lawmaker, serving his third term.

"The personal and national tragedy through which the President and we have passed should never be allowed to overshadow his outstanding accomplishments in the interest of world peace and domestic progress. His decision to leave office now, like so many major decisions he has made in the past, serves the best interests of the nation."

Democratic Rep. L. Richardson Preyer of the 6th District said Nixon's action saved the country from a "period of potential leaderlessness. However difficult it was for him, it was the right decision for the country."

Rep. Charles Rose, 7th District Democrat, could not be reached for comment. Sen. Sam Ervin Jr., chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee, said he would have no comment.

ECU Student Affairs Dean National Award Recipient

Admiration And Relief Seen Abroad

By The Associated Press

The dominant reaction around the world in the hours after Richard M. Nixon closed the curtain on his presidency was admiration for the American democracy and relief that uncertainty in Washington was over.

In some troubled corners of the globe, leaders voiced apprehension for the fate of policies Nixon had championed. But most were confident that Henry A. Kissinger, to continue as secretary of state in the Gerald R. Ford administration, would assure the continuity of Nixon's foreign initiatives.

Many governments — including Britain, West Germany, Mexico and Brazil — ducked official comment on what they termed "internal matters of the United States."

In Saigon, President Nguyen Van Thieu ordered a military alert throughout South Vietnam in fear the Communist command would take advantage of Nixon's resignation to launch a general offensive.

In Egypt — which more than any other Arab state put its trust in the Nixon administration to end the Middle East crisis, and where last spring Nixon was greeted as a national hero — the press carried stories about Nixon under black banners, a usual sign of mourning.

Israeli leaders refused comment, but government insiders said Premier Yitzhak Rabin is confident that Kissinger will continue his effective foreign policy.

Officials of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization privately expressed relief and confidence that Ford would inject the coherence and decisiveness they said was lacking under a beleaguered Nixon.

Millions of Europeans stayed up into the small hours of the morning to watch Nixon's address, relayed by satellite to 13 European countries. Evening programming was thick with Nixon retrospectives and analyses of his career.

"As friends of the American people, we are glad this nightmare is over," said Norway's Premier Trygve Bratteli.

The Dutch government viewed the resignation as an affirmation of democracy as a form of government.

"What is important is the democratic process which led to this resignation — a process which upheld the equality of each citizen before the law," a government statement said.

There was no word from Peking, but the Japanese news agency Kyodo said Chinese leaders were hoping the resignation would not affect China-U.S. relations.

"What should happen has happened," declared Japan's Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka.

The Soviet and East European media gave only brief announcements that Nixon — warmly welcomed in Moscow only 44 days earlier — had resigned. No reasons were given.

The Cuban news agency Prensa Latina announced Nixon's resignation with a bulletin and termed it his "political death."

S. RUDOLPH ALEXANDER

The associate dean of Student Affairs at East Carolina University has received a high national award for the outstanding annual lecture and entertainment programs presented on a university campus.

S. Rudolph Alexander received the annual "Drew Pearson Award" from the International Platform Association at its convention July 29-August 2 at the Sheraton Park Hotel in Washington. The award recognizes the American university or college program chairman who in the opinion of the association displays the best entertainment program during the year.

Alexander, in charge of student activities and programs at ECU and also a member of the IPA, said the award is a high compliment to East Carolina University.

"It recognizes the outstanding programs that we are presenting at ECU," he said, displaying the wooden mallet that he received from Mrs. Drew Pearson at the convention banquet. The mallet, a replica of a medieval stone mason's hammer, is carved from the wood of a dogwood tree from the Drew Pearson farm.

are Ted Mack, Lowell Thomas, Art Linkletter and Victor Borge and its membership includes Walter Cronkite, David Brinkley, Ralph Nader and President Richard M. Nixon and other well known personalities.

Among those who visited the ECU campus during 1973-74 were John McCook Roots, Erich Segal and James Dickey. They appeared under auspices of the ECU Artists, Lecture and Film Travel Adventure Series.

Alexander, who says he considers the award an honor to the university rather than to himself personally, has been in charge of student activities at ECU since 1962 and is responsible for arranging the entertainment on campus each year. He is also director of the new $3 million Mendenhall Student Center which opened August 1.

Pearson, prior to his death, was active in the development of the association and it was under his leadership that the IPA gained international status.

The IPA is comprised of speakers, journalists and people in the entertainment professions. Among its officers

Gas Siphon Is Ruled 'Hazard'

BOSTON (AP) — The state fire marshal has asked stores to halt the sale of the Gas Better Siphon, which fire department chemists have labeled "hazardous and lethal."

Joseph G. Snider said the device, manufactured by R.P. Products Inc., of Raleigh, N.C., was a fire hazard if stored in a garage or cellar. He said department chemists also found that it could splash the user with gasoline during the siphoning process.

Reports Parked Car Is Robbed

An estimated $100 in cash and a portable radio-tape player were reported taken from a car parked at 1120 West Fifth St. last night.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Father James Francis Butler of Ahsokie reported at 9 p.m. yesterday that a wallet containing $100 in cash and several credit cards, as well as a radio-tape player, valued at $50 had been taken from his car. The vehicle was parked behind St. Gabriel's Catholic Church at the time of the theft.

Investigation of the incident is underway.

Another veteran lawmaker, Rep. James Brophy of the 10th District, largely agreed with Fountain.

"While recent events have been unsettling to all of us, I believe they reaffirm that this is a nation of laws and not of men," he said.

"And, I believe that the orderly transition of power and responsibility from Mr. Nixon to Mr. Ford will bear witness to the remarkable strength of our system of government," said the six-term Republican.

Brophy said it was too early to assess the effect the resigna-

Something wonderful happened yesterday. I was walking in Grandma's garden, feeling a great sadness that she would never again walk there with me. Her favorite flower, the creamy-blossomed yucca, stood out delicately against the blue sky, breaking my heart with its loveliness. A yellow bee trembled over it a moment, then settled on a pearly petal. Bright-hued blossoms waved in the gentle breeze, pond ripples sparkled in the sun, and for one golden instant, I felt her presence. A prayer she'd taught me years ago came to my lips, "Grant me, God, eyes of the Spirit to see, in the beauty of Your world, reflections of infinity."

I thought of how clearly Grandma had seen God's goodness. Her love of God and devotion to His Church had shone in everything she said and did.

Because of her devotion I too felt God's love all about me. I knew then and there that I would never be lonely again with the Church to sustain and guide me.
