Ford Asks Cabinet Members, Agency Heads To Stay On Job

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Stressing the need for "continuity and stability," President Ford Saturday asked cabinet members and agency heads to remain on the job, and invited bipartisan suggestions for a new vice president who must be nominated soon.

Ford also met with the National Security Council to review the world situation, and said through Press Secretary Jerry terHorst that he was postponing all scheduled trips at home and abroad. Ford began his first full day as President by rising early, fixing breakfast for himself and one of his sons, taking a short swim and then being driven to the office — almost like any other commuter. He opened the front door of his Alexandria, Va., home shortly before 6 a.m. EDT, clad in baby-blue short pajamas, and look startled to see an array of reporters and camera-men watching from across the street.

TerHorst said Ford and his family would attend church this morning at the Episcopal Immanuel Church-on-the-Hill in Alexandria. He expects to spend the rest of today working in the Oval Office, and hopes for another private evening at home Sunday night.

TerHorst said that Ford has asked the bipartisan congressional leadership, the nation's Republican governors, the cabinet, and his staff and friends to submit recommendations by Wednesday for the vice presidency, and disclosed that the President plans to announce a nomination within a week to 10 days.

Nixon Veiled In Privacy

By RICHARD E. LERNER
SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon's first full day as a private citizen since his fall from the nation's highest office was veiled in privacy Saturday behind the guarded walls of his oceanside villa. The former President drove a golf cart from the adjoining Coast Guard station into the grounds of the Spanish style estate Friday and literally dropped out of sight. Appointments secretary Stephen Bull said the small personal staff which flew here from Washington would "remain as long as we are wanted or needed" but gave no clue to Nixon's immediate plans.

Toro Marine Air Station Saturday when his Air Force jet Spirit of '76 touched down. Some in the crowd wept, others cheered and sang "God Bless America" while waving tiny flags. Nixon said in a brief speech that he did not intend to just sit around in the California sun but intended to continue working for peace and the nation's prosperity. But he gave no hint of his plans for the next few days. When the Marine helicopter landed on the final leg of the trip at the Coast Guard station, the family was met by about 150 old friends and members of the Orange County and San Clemente Republican organizations.

TerHorst announced that NATO Ambassador Donald Rumsfeld will be coordinator of the transition team which is helping Ford assume the duties of the presidency. Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton will act as the team's liaison with the cabinet and the agencies, and former Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton will deal with personnel requirements, terHorst said. The fourth member of the team is defense adviser John O. Marsh Jr. "As you know, every President has his own style," terHorst said.

Donald Rumsfeld To Head Ford's Transition Team
During the cabinet meeting, Ford said he hoped the department and agency heads would attempt to be "affirmative" in their press relations, terHorst said, adding that Ford himself hoped to set the example for them. In addition to the departmental secretaries, the cabinet meeting was attended by members of the transition team, and by Robert T. Hartmann, new counsel to the President; Phil Buchen, a former Grand Rapids law partner; Gen. Alexander M. Haig, the holdover chief of staff; terHorst, and Maj. Gen. Brent Seowcroft, Ford's military aide.

Pope Sends Blessings

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI sent best wishes and blessings to President Ford and "all the beloved American people." "As you accede to the presidency of the United States of America, we assure you of our prayerful good wishes and we gladly invoke upon you and all the beloved American people an abundance of guiding and strengthening blessings," said the text of the telegram released by the Vatican.

Cyprus Negotiations Deadlocked

By United Press International
A cease-fire brought peace to Cyprus for the first time in three weeks Saturday, but Turkey's foreign minister said the Geneva negotiations for a permanent peace on the embat-led island are virtually deadlocked. British army sources on Cyprus said Britain would keep its troop reinforcements and jets on the island because of the problems at the Geneva talks.

Turkish Foreign Minister Turan Gunes stormed out of the negotiations in the morning, insisting that the Greek and Turkish communities on Cyprus have separate representatives. He returned seven hours later and the five negotiators met for three hours. But Gunes said Cyprus President Glafkos Clerides, a Greek Cypriot, had agreed to discuss only "a few very minor modifications" in the island's 1960 constitution.

Britain, Greece and Turkey scheduled another meeting for Sunday, despite Gunes' pessimism. Turkey has demanded that Cyprus be divided into separate regions for the 560,000 residents of Greek origin and the 140,000 of Turkish background. Clerides and Greek Foreign Minister George Mavros oppose the proposal.

The sources on Cyprus said army officials canceled next week's scheduled flights home for the estimated 1,000 troops airlifted from Britain to the Mediterranean island shortly after the July 20 Turkish invasion. Plans to return a Royal Air Force squadron of 12 Phantom warplanes were also canceled, the sources said. The 1960 agreement allowed Britain to keep two sovereign bases on the island. A United Nations spokesman said Cyprus was quiet with no reports of shooting. The first complete halt in fighting since the Turkish invasion came after Greek and Turkish army officials signed an agreement in Nicosia Friday to separate their armies on Cyprus.

Must Decide Fate Of Bills

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford must decide whether to sign or veto a number of bills left lying on the desk of former President Richard M. Nixon, including one that would allow Americans to own gold for the first time in four decades.

The most important of these measures contains the federal appropriation for elementary and secondary education and includes an anti-busing provision considered by many to be the strongest ever approved. The education bill was approved 81 to 15 by the Senate and 323 to 83 by the House — margins that are more than enough to override a veto, although there are no indications Ford would veto the measure.

The bill would forbid courts to order children bused beyond the school second closest to their homes, except where courts ruled that wider busing was needed to protect a child's constitutional rights.

Another major bill on Ford's desk is the one that would let Americans buy and own gold for the first time since the Depression era. This bill is technically a measure to extend United States participation in the International Development Association, but contains an amendment allowing private dealing in gold. The bill is of particular interest to congressmen from states whose gold mines have long since been closed.

Private ownership of gold — except for coin collectors, jewelers and dentists — was banned during Franklin D. Roosevelt's administration to fight the Depression. Proponents of a return to private ownership contend there is no reason now to keep Americans from owning gold if they want it.

Most of the other bills Nixon left for signature by his successor are minor ones. As one of his last acts in office, however, Nixon did veto an appropriation covering farm, environmental and consumer programs.

The four networks said they would begin coverage at 9 p.m. EDT.

While airport personnel frantically searched their key rings, the plane's 36 passengers were evacuated. They slid down the emergency chute into a driving rain. "As the frightened passengers streamed out into the rain,

Angola Independence Pledged

By ERIK VAN EES
LISBON (UPI) — Portugal's military junta Saturday set a two-year deadline for independence of its richest African province of Angola and pledged establishment of a transitional regime there dependent on early cease-fire with guerrilla movements.

It said "as soon as a cease-fire is reached, the Portuguese government will immediately set up a provisional government made up of coalition parties, the freedom movements and all the racial groups, including whites." But it said full independence would not come before 1976.

The junta made no mention of plans for Mozambique or Portuguese Guinea, the other two Portuguese African territories, but it had agreed earlier to recognize the self-proclaimed Guinea-Bissau, and support its admission to the United Nations. The U.N. Security Council scheduled a meeting Monday to approve Guinea-Bissau's membership.

It invited the United Nations to observe the transfer of power. The junta announced the Portuguese government was discussing a cease-fire with freedom movements in Angola as a "vital condition for the success of formal negotiations" for independence.

The overthrow of the dictatorial regime in Lisbon April 25 was triggered by army pressure to end Portugal's colonial wars in Africa. The provisional government in Angola would work out an electoral law than two weeks to build it. Reggie Fountain and the owners of Village Green Apts. paid for the bridge. Anderson approached Lee, director of the Recreation Department about a month ago with the idea of the bridge. "We used to have a bridge there which was put in when the apartments were first built," said Lee. "He took an interest in it and asked us (the recreation department) about it. We assisted him in getting the pilings in and putting up the poles."

Kent Anderson's Green Spring Park Bridge Nostalgia For Old Bridge Led To Building New One

By JOHN LAMBETH
For quite some time, there has been only one bridge across Green Springs Creek creating a long walk just to get to the other side of the creek.

Recreation department, the bridge was rebuilt. "We used to cross the bridge to the park in the evenings. When it was torn down, we had to walk all the way to the other one which took the fun out of it," said Anderson, "So I got to thinking and wanted to do something about it."

Anderson designed the bridge and built a model of it as well. He received help from the Recreation department in placing beam and pilings and did the rest of the work, nailing floor boards and installing railing, himself.

There was a second bridge back of Village Green Apartments but it was torn down after being condemned by the city. Now, through the efforts of a Village Green resident, that bridge has been replaced.

Kent Anderson, a biology graduate student at East Carolina, and his wife missed the old bridge so Anderson made a few calls, talked to a few people and through the owners of Village Green and the Greenville

School Board To Meet

A special call meeting of the Greenville City School Board has been set for Wednesday, August 14 at 8 p.m. in the boardroom of the Central Office at 431 West Fifth Street.

Ford Address On TV Monday

NEW YORK (AP) — Live coverage of President Gerald Ford's Monday night address to a joint session of Congress will be provided by CBS, NBC and ABC radio and television networks and the Mutual Broadcasting System.

Primarily called to review appraisals on unused site owned by the school system, there are also several other items slated for the agenda. Among these will be a workshop session to outline plans for the development of long-range plans. Other agenda items for the special call meeting will be personnel resignations, elections, and maternity leave; the

'The Bicentennial Book--A Greenville Album' To Be A Book To Cherish In Years To Come

Sponsors Sought For Bicentennial Book

"The most complete collection of historic photographs of past life in Greenville ever assembled," is the way Tom Williams describes the scores of photographs used in the soon to be published "The Bicentennial Book: A Greenville Album." The scores of photographs illustrating Greenville's "permanent" souvenir range from ones of the river steamer "Shiloh" to Schultz's "Old Brick Store." To pay for the publication costs of the professionally edited, written and designed Greenville commemorative book, sponsors are being sought in Greenville, says Mrs. Sylvia Wheless, Assistant Finance Chairman. In order to avoid a clutter of advertisements and to make the book a fine collector's and reference item in coming years, Williams says the decision to seek sponsors on the basis of being listed on one page in the book was made. To qualify, a sponsor will need to make a contribution of $200 or more. "This does not by any means preclude interested persons, groups or businesses making lesser contributions as a way of showing their support for what I sincerely feel is a fine book on

Greenville," Williams said. "Anyone making less than a sponsor listed contribution will certainly be recognized in an appropriate manner, even though not receiving listing in 'The Bicentennial Book: A Greenville Album.'" Williams said that photographs are only one important part of the book. "There's many really outstanding articles of local interest and historic value," he said, "features like 'A River Called Tar,' by geologist Stan Riggs; 'How To Trace Your Local Ancestors,' by genealogist Allen Churchill; a collaboration by Claire Pittman, and many more. 'Masquerades and Moonlight Excursions' dealing with entertainment in the 1880's and 1890's; and vignettes of Greenville history from pre-Columbian Indian settlements to 1974; much of it never before published, are just a sample of many excellent articles." An announcement will be made in a few days of the number of copies to be printed. Some will be hard back copies; others will be paper back copies at a lesser price. "But the paperbacks will be sturdily and professionally bound,"

Williams said. "Either edition will be more than a commemorative item. This book will be a collector's item, something for all local people to cherish on their library shelves for all the years to come." Deadline for sponsors to make a $200 contribution and to receive listing of their name or firm in the book is Tuesday, August 13. The people to call for this purpose are: Mrs. Wheless, 756-0722; Joe Gurganus, 752-7173; John Williams, 758-3471; Mrs. Janice Buck, 758-3191; or the Bicentennial Office, 752-1919.

75 Alarms In July

During the month of July, Pitt County Rural Fire Departments answered a total of 75 alarms, according to Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner. A total of 71 of those alarms were actual fires.

The breakdown of fires is as follows: eight houses, 48 buildings, eight automobiles, and one grass or woods fire. Three of the calls were false alarms, and four of the calls were for mutual aid.

Estimated incurred in the fires totaled $231,830, while the fire departments reportedly saved an estimated $312,450 worth of property.

Ayden had the highest number of calls for the month, with 14 recorded.

Mr. Thomas Webb, Insurance President, Died Here Saturday

Mr. Thomas Webb, President of Willard and Webb Insurance Agency, died Saturday afternoon at 1:30 in the Pitt County Memorial Hospital. He was 62. The North Carolina Highway Patrol tomorrow will begin a new program to reduce accidents and combat speed law violations in the state.

Capt. J.T. Jenkins, commander of Patrol Troop A, said the program is designed to provide a more positive approach to accident prevention through the use of a unique speed control measure.

The officer noted the new program is based on the rural collision experience recorded by the Patrol and on the energy crisis.

Capt. Jenkins said the average motorist "corrects his faulty or unlawful practices for a distance of about one mile after observing a patrolman on routine patrol, then will revert to his or her normal driving habits." Referring to this as the "one mile halo effect," the officer said "our plan is designed to extend this 'one mile halo effect' to 20 miles."

Sgt. Titus Martin explained how the speed control and accident prevention program will work in Pitt County.

"Each trooper," he said, "will be issued two reflectorized metal signs, with the wording 'Speed Check Zone'. The 30-inches square signs will be attached to existing highway sign posts in areas of high traffic collision frequency.

"These signs will notify the public that their speeds will be checked and their driving closely observed by one or more Patrolmen during the next 20 miles."

The speed check zone plan will be used both day and night and motorist can be guaranteed that one or more troopers will be patrolling and observing traffic in the designated areas when the warning signs are in place.

"In effect," Sgt. Martin said, "we are forewarning highway users that their driving will be under close scrutiny during a 20 mile stretch of highway."

Both Capt. Jenkins and Sgt. Martin emphasized, however, that the absence of the "Speed Check Zone" signs does not mean that officers are not operating in a particular area. They said Troopers will operate as in the past, without using the new warning signs, also.

Watergate Suit Settled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon's re-election committee has agreed to pay the Democratic National Committee $775,000 in settlement of a civil suit arising from the Watergate break-in, the Democrats say.

The settlement, announced Friday, resulted from an exchange of damage suits by officials of the Committee for the Re-Election of the President and the Democratic committee.

12 Dead In Dual Wreck

MANILA (UPI) — A bus collided with a train at a railway crossing 2 1/2 miles north of Manila Saturday, killing 12 persons and injuring 15 others, police said.

Officials said the bus hit a government-owned Philippine National Railways train bound for Manila, overturned and tumbled into a ditch in the town of Calumpit in Bulacan province.

Setback In Epidemic Control

SAO PAULO (UPI) — State health authorities said Saturday a colder trend in the southern hemisphere winter had dealt another setback to efforts to control a meningitis epidemic which is estimated to have claimed more than 500 lives across Brazil so far.

The state health ministry said five more persons died of the disease Friday in 24 state hospitals in Sao Paulo, Brazil's industrial metropolis of more than 5 million.

Coast Guard Rescues 27

BOSTON (UPI) — The Coast Guard rescued 27 persons from a disabled excursion vessel in Boston Harbor Saturday after she began taking on water.

There were no injuries, a Coast Guard spokesman said, but the passengers were taken to a hospital as a precaution.

Four Coast Guard boats and two helicopters were dispatched to the scene near Long Island in mid-afternoon when the 57-foot Islander reported taking on considerable water and was in danger of sinking.

Israelis Sink Arab Boat

The Israeli navy sank an Arab guerrilla craft off the Israeli-Lebanese frontier early Saturday, according to reports from both sides.

The Israeli command said one of its patrol boats sank a rubber dinghy carrying guerrillas toward northern Israel on an apparent raiding mission.

In Beirut, a Palestinian guerrilla spokesman said the Arab craft was a gunboat and that it opened fire and scored a direct hit on an Israeli patrol boat. He said a second Israeli patrol craft and a destroyer ganged up on the gunboat, which fought a 30-minute battle before it went down.

Prepares For Depression

PETERSBURG, Va. (AP) — Mayor Rennie L. Arnold Jr. has instructed City Manager Lewis Z. Johnston Jr. to prepare the city's financial structure for a great national depression.

In a letter dated Aug. 6, Arnold mentioned "the signs of approaching serious disaster" and said "never in the history of this country have we been faced with such a situation, except prior to the Depression of the 1920s."

Arnold urged Johnson to review all city expenditures now and plan on which programs can be curtailed most easily if an economic disaster should hit the nation.

Soviets Congratulate Ford

Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny sent a congratulatory telegram to President Ford Saturday, hailing his pledge to work for peace and voicing confidence in continued Soviet-American cooperation. Pope Paul VI and other world leaders sent Ford their best wishes.

Podgorny's cable was the first official Soviet comment on Ford's assumption of office.

Ford also sent a message Saturday to Soviet Communist Party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev, less than 24 hours after he was inaugurated. The new U.S. President sent other messages to NATO and leaders of nations around the world.

Ladies Can Fight Bulls

MADRID (UPI) — The Spanish government has given the green light for women to fight bulls, the news agency Cifra said Saturday.

Cifra said a decree by the Interior Ministry will be published in the official state bulletin Monday "authorizing women to perform in taurine spectacles."

Dusenberg Sells For $207,000

FITCHBURG, Mass. (UPI) — A 1929 Dusenberg phaeton was sold Saturday at auction for $207,000, believed the highest price ever paid for a classic automobile.

A spokesman for the Kruse classic auction firm of Auburn, Ind., said a total of 17 autos from the collection of George R. Wallace Jr., a Fitchburg industrialist, brought $512,750. The money raised at the public auction goes toward construction of a new geophysical observatory at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Record Prices For Tobacco

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Tobacco prices soared to record levels this week on markets of the Eastern North Carolina Belt and the South Carolina border North Carolina area.

The Federal-State Market News Service reported that the Eastern Belt sold 30,341,428 pounds for an all-time high average of $97.74 per hundred pounds, up $8.93 from the previous week. Growers placed only 0.8 per cent of the gross sales under the government loan program.

Hopes To Step Up Paroles

RALEIGH (AP) — A study commission wants the North Carolina Prison Commission to step up the granting of paroles to minor offenders in an effort to alleviate the overcrowded prison population.

The commission, headed by Sen. Edward Knox, D-Mecklenburg, recommended Friday that parole be considered for inmates with less than two years active sentences after they have served one-fourth of their term.

Ralph Edwards, state director of prisons, said the proposal would help considerably in reducing the inmate population. The state prisons are now housing 2,000 more than the facilities are equipped to handle.

Vote of Confidence

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A Charlotte resident has embarked on a campaign to get citizens to give President Ford a vote of confidence to make up for the vote he never received at the polls.

When Ford became President Friday, he acknowledged that he was aware he was not chosen by the ballots of Americans. He asked the nation "to confirm me as your President with your prayers."

Alan Wells, president of an advertising agency, decided to solicit a more personal vote of confidence. He has called 100 persons and asked them to send a telegram telling the President, "I confirm my vote for Gerald Ford."

Wells asked each of the 100 to ask someone else to send such a telegram. He hopes that at least 5,000 messages will be sent to the President by Monday.

No Change In U.S. Foreign Policy Under Ford

By JOHN BARTON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger met Saturday with a number of foreign envoys and assured Indian Ambassador T.N. Kaul that he still plans to visit India, Pakistan and Bangladesh in October despite the change in administrations.

Kissinger met individually with Kaul and the ambassadors of Pakistan and Iran. He also met with diplomats from 30 African countries as a group and two of his aides held conferences with other foreign representatives.

In all of the meetings the message was the same, that U.S. policy will not change under President Ford.

Kaul said after his 20-minute meeting that Kissinger "is determined to visit India in the very near future. Final dates will be announced shortly, but the visit is expected to take place some time in October."

He said it was likely that Kissinger also would visit Pakistan and Bangladesh. The trip had been announced prior to Richard Nixon's resignation as president.

Deputy Secretary Robert Ingersoll and Joseph Sisco, undersecretary of state for political affairs, saw some other ambassadors separately.

In one 30-minute meeting, Ingersoll met with the ambassasadors of Australia, Korea, New Zealand, the Philippines, Tiawan and Thailand as a group.

Ingersoll then had separate 15-minute meetings with the ambassadors from Poland and Yugoslavia. In another group meeting he saw the envoys from Buma, Fiji, Indonesia, Khmer Republic, Laos, Malaysia and Singapore. He concluded his visits by meeting the ambassadors from Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, and Hungary, Spain and Rumania.

Sisco met with the ambassadors from Afghanistan, Bangladesh, Nepal and Sri Lanka in one group. In a second group he met with the envoys from Austria, Finland, Ireland, Malta, Sweden and Switzerland. He then had separate meetings with the ambassadors from Cyprus and South Africa.

Ford Assures Israel

TEL AVIV (UPI) — President Ford reassured Israel Saturday that the United States will meet all commitments undertaken by the Nixon administration including long-range American military and economic support, the Israelis announced.

U.S. Ambassador Kenneth B.

Keating delivered Ford's message to Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

Rabin's office said the gist of Ford's message is that "the U.S. promises the Israeli prime minister to meet all the commitments undertaken by the United States towards Israel."

"President Ford especially stressed the continuation of long-range American support in all matters pertaining to Israel's defense and economic well-being.

"The President also mentions that the United States would persevere in the peace efforts in the Middle East.

The command said the rockets killed three civilians and wounded 11 persons, including nine civilians and two Vietnamese airmen. Four F5A jet fighters were damaged, the command said.

Following President Nixon's resignation, Thieu ordered a nationwide military alert against a possible Communist offensive to test the reaction of the new U.S. administration.

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Communist gunners raked a 14-vessel convoy steaming up the Mekong River 43 miles south of Phnom Penh Saturday and sank the Danish freighter Hayan.

The rocket attacks were the first in the Bien Hoa area since June 3, and the first daylight bombardments there since the Jan. 28, 1973, cease-fire.

Port police said two crewmen of the Hayan and a Cambodian rescue worker were injured when the vessel went down, and two seamen aboard another cargo ship, Felicity, were wounded in the Communist attack.

Carson To Oppose Edmisten

RALEIGH (UPI) — As expected, the North Carolina Republican party executive committee Saturday unanimously nominated James H. Carson to oppose Democrat Rufus Edmisten in the November attorney general's race.

In a rather perfunctory session here, the 279-member committee nominated the 39-year-old Carson, who recently stepped down from his seat on the state Court of Appeals, without discussion or opposition.

UPI reporter Paul Vogle said from Da Nang, 370 miles north of Saigon, that fighting there had ground virtually to a halt.

Prior to the nomination, Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr. stated Carson's campaign theme against Edmisten, former aide to U.S. Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., and chief deputy counsel to the Senate Watergate Committee, charging that Edmisten had "not been in touch with North Carolina for some time."

People In Tiny Nixonton, N.C. Bewildered On Nixon Issue

NIXONTON, N.C. (AP) — No one cried. But no one laughed, either. Most seemed slightly bewildered.

Jimmy Riley, a tanned, blond 17-year-old, sat watching Nixon's farewell address. "They ain't doing him right. I think he's the second best president we've ever had, next to Roosevelt," he said.

agree with Mrs. Georgia Harris, 69, who said she still felt "We've got good people in this country. I haven't lost faith in them."

Like most Americans, the residents of this tiny riverside community — little more than a bend in the road and a highway sign — watched the unfolding events in Washington on their television sets Friday and saw the end of Richard M. Nixon's presidency.

Riley, whose major ambition is to start a defensive end for Northeast Pasquotank High School, said he must have missed the new shows on the night that Nixon released the damning transcripts of his June 23, 1972 meeting with H.R. Haldean. He had not heard of what they contained.

But there is an underlying cynicism. "He ain't the only one that's been stealing," said 81-year-old William Preston. "I guess he was just stealing more than the Democrats and they got jealous," was the way Vernon Bright, 61, put it.

Their community was not named for the former President but for a colonial settler. And it appeared that President Nixon's departure from office would have little impact on the lives and the attitudes of those who live here.

Most agreed that Nixon had done wrong. "He would be out because he lied to the people," said Charles Barbour, 47, a retired Navy cook. "But I think he's gone through enough crap without having to go through more."

Butts said he would still vote for Nixon, as he did in 1972, if the "Democrats gave me no alternative. In the future, I guess I'll still vote for the best man."

Nixonton's Pasquotank County precinct voted 324-176 for its namesake in 1972 although most of the people are regis-

"I don't think they've proven anything," he said. "It's just not right." He searched for words and failed to find them. "I can't explain it."

His wife, Lorraine, disagreed with him on the immunity question. "If I committed a crime, I'd have to pay. He should too," she said.

One young black mechanic, however, said he was willing to forgive Nixon, partly because he had never trusted him anyway. "Anyone makes mistakes," said Johnny Butts as he rolled from beneath a truck he was repairing.

Butts laughed drily when asked what the long term impact of Nixon's resignation would be. Would it affect his life? "I doubt it."

Mrs. Harris said she hadn't voted in a long time and didn't think the Watergate affair would change her ways. "I don't really know. I'm not too educated," she said.

Drug arrests mounted as the rock fans openly smoked marijuana and a few pushers circulated in the crowd hawking drugs.

By afternoon, police reported about 50 arrests, and said several persons had been treated for drug overdoses.

The 11 a.m. to midnight concert featured the Allman Brothers Band, the Ozark Mountain Dare Devils and Black Oak Arkansas.

Cabarrus County Deputy Sheriff D.F. Cagle said at one point fans took over the police command post at the track, but were quickly ousted by patrolmen.

Cagle said more than 100 officers were patrolling the perimeter of the track and were not venturing inside where drugs were being used and sold.

"They get a little uptight when we make an arrest, but I guess that's expected when you get this type of group together," said one officer.

Hours before the event got under way, cars were backed up several miles in either direction on highway 49. One lane was filled with hikers enroute to the concert.

Thousands of fans camped overnight around the track in rural Cabarrus County about seven miles northeast of here. Some lined up at water spigots Saturday morning to wash up and brush their teeth.

The rock fans paid $12 in advance for the show and $15 at the gate.

hearing on the appeal of James R. Ladd, who was fired by Morgan as director of the North Carolina Criminal Justice Training and Education System.

Ladd, 27, testified earlier that "a major component of why I was dismissed" was that he did not participate in or contribute to Morgan's campaign.

Morgan, Democratic nominee for U.S. Senate, said that of the more than 500 employees in the Justice Department, only 37 contributed to the primary campaign.

"Did you fire Mr. Ladd for political reasons?" Morgan was asked by Howard Kramer, an assistant attorney general representing Morgan.

"I did not," he replied.

Morgan told the board he dismissed Ladd because he "is incompetent to be the director of the Justice Academy."

Ladd was in charge of getting the proposed academy for training law enforcement officers going in Salemburg.

David L. Jones, state secretary of corrections, testified in Ladd's behalf and commended his abilities. He testified he offered Ladd a job in his department after he was fired as academy director.

The board recessed until a later meeting after hearing six hours of testimony. The date for the meeting has not been set.

Bicentennial Events Planned For Family Day

Many old fashioned and just plain fun activities are being planned by the Recreation Committee of the Bicentennial for the October celebration, Boyd Lee, chairman of the committee, has announced.

There will be a cross-country run for various age groups and a fishing contest using cane poles and worms. A tennis tournament, grouped by age, will be held by the Greenville Tennis Club. Members of Brook Valley and Greenville Country clubs will compete in the tour-

Also planned are a children's football game, a homemade raft race down the Tar, an antique car display, and antique gun display, and an oldest citizen contest.

Pie-eating, sack racing, and similar activities will be held on Family Day, Friday, October 11. For more information about any of these activities, call Boyd Lee at 752-2355.

The Richard Nixon Message

On the whole, there was not much that was "new", or even news, in Richard Nixon's Thursday night message to the people.

True, he resigned the presidency... which is unprecedented historic occasion; but, Americans knew the action was forthcoming many hours before the fact and knowledgeable observers recognized on the horizon earlier in the week.

Some there were who complained the 16-minute presidential address was lacking in specifics in the background of the Nixon resignation. Others may have looked for executive pardons on that occasion, for men who served their president too well.

We submit Mr Nixon's sense of history would allow words of regret, words of sympathy, words of invoking a spirit of national unity, words of encouragement for his successor, and prayers for the future of his country.

It was a prerequisite of history that a resigning president remind his people and the world of achievements during his years of service; and history was not disappointed.

One cannot belittle accomplishments of the Nixon years; nor should history and the people of today overlook the negative elements.

For example: under Mr. Nixon's tenure the White House became a citadel. The "splendid isolation" of the presidency evolved into a barricade which effectively blocked communications and cooperation between the White House and the Congress. At times, the two branches of government appeared to be more as two powers "at war" with one another.

While the conduct of foreign affairs flourished, domestic problems gradually worsened with a vacillating attitude toward possible solutions that only weakened resistance of the national body. None of these conditions contributed to the general welfare.

We submit the occasion of resignation was not one to haggle over the specifics of guilt or innocence in the now notorious Watergate affair. It would denigrate the solemnity and historic import of the occasion. That war must be fought as a separate battlefield.

In spirit Mr. Nixon was noncombative, seeking to replace an accustomed spirit of strife with one of harmony. He did it well.

Summing up, the resignation address was a good one. Mr. Nixon wore the demeanor of a chastened man, his words were conciliatory, his message was a good one.

He did not mention betrayals which his recorded words demonstrated beyond question.

We grieve for the sorrows and humiliation of his family; we feel the strongest kind of sympathy for his friends who served him faithfully (to their sorrow); and we are indignant over the disservices to his country and country-men.

It's a mixed bag; but on balance, the American people came out ahead.

A Pilot Looks Back

By RODNEY ANGOVE
BOLINAS, Calif. (AP) — A pioneer hang glider — he was doing it in 1907 — says he might have been cashing in on the current fad if the post-Lindbergh safety regulations hadn't put him out of business.

Jack Irwin, 82, began making hang gliders out of spruce and rubberized baby diaper fabric simply because he wanted to fly and there was no other way.

"You had a couple of parallel rods, no straps," Irwin said in a recent interview at his home near San Francisco. "You'd hang on by your armpits and run and jump. If you could last eight seconds, you were flying."

"Want to go up, you'd shift your weight back. Go down, you'd hold your feet out ahead. Most flights were 30 to 45 seconds. A few times we'd last a couple of minutes," said Irwin.

Irwin built and sold hang gliders in Auburn, in the Sierra Nevada foothills. Then he graduated to light planes. One of his creations, a restored 20-horsepower spruce and muslin biplane called the Meteorplane, will be in a permanent display at the Oakland Museum this fall.

During the 1920s, Irwin made about 100 Meteorplanes in Sacramento, and shipped parts and kits for hundreds more all over the world. The 240-pound plane cost $1,165 complete, or $365 in a kit.

Paying No Income Tax

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—There are some 40 North Carolinians with incomes over $100,000 per year who pay no state income taxes.

About 10 of those are in the neighborhood of $160,000 to $180,000 per year in personal income, state revenue officials estimate.

The income tax escapes clause comes in the form of a little-known state law which exempts from taxes dividends paid to individuals by North Carolina based corporations on that portion of the dividend based on business done inside the state.

That measure was adopted, officials figure, many years ago to encourage local business and investment in local business.

Revenue experts figure that all told the state is not collecting some $8 million in personal income taxes each year from people who receive such dividends, a number of who have that as their major or single source of income. The majority of these individuals fall in the category of major stockholders in closely held corporations.

Boys and Girls
The state's juvenile training system is moving fully into co-educational programs at all campuses for a really simple reason: boys like girls, and girls like boys.

Corrections Chief David L. Jones said he has talked with a lot of runaways from the systems juvenile centers, and in case after case they told him they broke the rules simply so they would be sent to the Dillion School near Durham.

"There, we had boys and girls together on the same campus, and they could see each other," Jones said.

That idea was pursued by State Bureau of Investigation questioners who found that this was indeed a major cause of rule breaking in the past, and led to the conclusion that having boys and girls together at the training schools will cut down on runaways and other discipline problems.

Officials are convinced that both boys and girls behave better when in the presence of the other sex, display better manners, are happier, and keep themselves cleaner and dress more neatly.

Too Young
The new program at youth centers will also separate the kids according to age, helping in the problems of physical abuse and homosexual attacks which often led youngsters to flee in plain self-defense, Jones said.

There are now about seven children under 10 years old in training schools, and Jones says simply: "I absolutely detest to see these eight and nine year olds committed." He will urge the General Assembly to make it illegal to put anyone in the system who is under 10 years.

More Thefts
Maybe it's the wave of nostalgia sweeping the country, but the state's Department of Archives and History seems plagued with thievery of old things. The agency loaned filmmakers some inkwells, spittoons, and an old Bible when shooting was taking place at the Capitol of a television special on the impeachment of President Andrew Johnson.

Somebody made off with a number of the artifacts. The other day, some young men entered the research room to study original manuscripts dating from the Civil War and beyond; slipped several in a notebook, and strolled off.

Then, the copper from the dome of the Capitol, removed a couple of years ago in a remodeling and since used to turn out distinctive Tar Heel jewelry such as dogwood and pine bough decorations, was raided at the warehouse where stored.

Between 4,000 and 5,000 pounds of the copper, rolled into 150 pound rolls, are missing.

There is still enough copper left to make jewelry for another couple of years, but officials had hoped to keep program going for five years.

Other Editors Say A Borrowing Govm't

(Rocky Mount Telegram)
There has been much complaint about the gigantic national debt of almost $500 billion.

Besides being a shame and a disgrace in itself, it represents overspending by the government and the direct breeding of inflation.

But that is not all, of course. In borrowing the money to pay for the deficit spending and the interest on the accumulated debt, the government works to the disadvantage of private business, thus hurting the economy and breeding still more inflation.

The reason is that business simply can't compete adequately with the government in attracting investment money from the public.

Why, for example, should anyone with a thousand dollars or so settle for the maximum 7 1/2 per cent interest rate which the government allows savings and loans to pay when the government itself offers 9 per cent and higher?

No wonder new deposits in thrift institutions are only about half what they were a year ago.

Similarly, why should anyone take a chance on buying stock in some business firm when he can get such a guaranteed high return on government notes?

No wonder the stock market is depressed. And if a corporation offers its bonds at an interest rate even as high as the government's, that is still not as attractive as having your money tucked away with Uncle Sam.

Getting the government out of its unfair competition with private enterprise for the investor's dollar won't be easy.

The answer does now lie, for instance, in removing the interest limit that savings institutions may offer on deposits.

That would only send borrowing rates for consumers all the higher, which we certainly don't need when the rate on a housing loan is already close to 10 per cent.

The simple—yet difficult—answer is that government must drastically reduce its spending so that there is less and less need for the excessive borrowing that forces interest rates up to such high levels.

But government is apparently not going to cut its wild spending until burdened public demands it.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Now that the school year 1974-75 is approaching, I feel it is time for all citizens of Greenville and surrounding counties to rally in support of its schools. After being a private school teacher for two years and now a public school teacher, I realize how much the public school system has to offer.

Critics would like to say the public schools are getting worse instead of better, but I disagree. They have much to offer in the way of education—college preparatory courses, numerous extracurricular activities, athletics, vocational courses, and, more important, a growing appreciation of all races. The public schools endeavor to offer each student what he needs to live in the world today.

The world is growing and changing and I feel our schools are growing and changing to meet the times. They are trying and we, as citizens, must try too. We must support our educators because they are trained in the special needs of our future leaders. The public schools are fortunate to have such outstanding leadership, and we should listen to their suggestions and respect their judgement. Many schools cannot boast about their leadership qualifications—we can! Therefore, citizens, support your city and county schools so that they will continue to grow, not regress.

What contact I have had with the public school administration so far has proven to me that their sole purpose is the education of the child, not their own personal gains.

The INSIDE REPORT

Rockefeller Is Advocated

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—Powerful political advice is now feeding into the inner office of Gerald R. Ford that only one choice for his own Vice President meets the forbidding requirements of restoring the Republican party and conciliating the nation in its post-Nixon agony.

The Choice: aging (66) but politically vigorous Nelson Rockefeller, who resigned as governor of New York six months ago in the middle of his record fourth term.

The move toward Rockefeller is strongly backed by Melvin R. Laird, Ford's long-time comrade whose vigorous intercession with Mr. Nixon after Spiro Agnew's disgrace almost surely prevented John B. Connally from being named Vice President instead of Ford. Advocacy by Laird, who commands unique respect and attention among virtually all ideological elements of his party, is one of Rockefeller's major assets.

Anti-Rockefeller sentiment is obvious on the Republican party's right wing and less obvious but more important inside Ford's own staff. Nevertheless, Laird and other Rockefeller backers say no other Republican could so well restore confidence in government both here and abroad, and bring new talent into the executive branch rendered so squalid by the Nixon scandals.

Moreover, Rockefeller's age resolves one major political problem for Ford: In picking Rockefeller, Ford would not be naming an heir-apparent. The Ford-Rockefeller ticket would run in 1976. If elected Vice President, Rockefeller would call it quits in 1980 at age 72.

For Ford, whose politics are Midwestern and conservative, Rockefeller opens up the prospect of reviving a truly national Republican party with an anchor in the liberal East from the old and—since 1964—discredited Eastern establishment.

Obstacles to Rockefeller's selection, though significant, are not overwhelming.

The first obstacle is a feeling, no more, within Ford's inner political circle that Vice President Rockefeller would not be a team player and might try to overwhelm President Ford with the notorious Rockefeller staff and Rockefeller money. "What new President would want Nelson breathing down his neck 24 hours a day?" asks one Republican operative.

The second obstacle is undying hatred and resentment of Rockefeller by right-wing Republican fire-eaters. On Monday night, soon after President Nixon's imminent departure from the White House became an accepted fact, several conservative Republican Congressmen dined quietly at the Republican Capitol Hill Club. They agreed that Rockefeller was "absolutely unacceptable" as Ford's Vice President.

The reason is partly ideological but mainly (as one told us) "because of all the things he's done to the party over the years, particularly his refusal to support Barry Goldwater in 1964." Rockefeller's conspicuous rightward trend in recent years was dismissed as a futile effort to appease

THE ESSENCE OF CHRISTIANITY
Many people who confidently consider themselves to be Christians would have a good deal of difficulty in defining Christianity if the question were put to them. Some people consider that Christianity consists primarily of loyalty to a church. Others see Christianity as a set of doctrines. Still others are certain that its essence is the deeply felt mystical experience which it can evoke.

Christianity presupposes the necessity of a church and it is made understandable by

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market will attract a lot of attention during the coming weeks and almost all the interpretations of its activities will refer to it as a barometer of public attitudes.

The upsurge in prices Monday through Wednesday, for instance, was attributed generally to a sense of public relief that the continuing tragedy of Watergate might soon be put into the past, leaving the future unnumbered.

But the question remains: Is the market a barometer of public opinion?

Those who follow the market have understood for a long time the significance of Needham's statement. Exchange figures show that in 1960 more than 60 per cent of all volume was by individuals; at the end of 1973, just 27 per cent.

In 1966-1967 a significant change in the character of transactions took place, with institutions overtaking individuals as the dominant traders. The gap has been widening since then.

The question then is this: Do mutual and pension funds, insurance companies, bank trusts and the like constitute "the public"?

A further investigation of recent trading activity reveals some other items that throw doubt upon the casual assignment of mysterious, mind-reading powers to the stock market: —The portfolio managers of funds and insurance companies have never been seen or heard soliciting the views of the masses who supply them with money. They act completely independently of their public.

—These same institutions have enormous amounts of money with which to trade. They concentrate their attention on a relatively few stocks. Many of these stocks are in the Dow Jones Industrial Average, the best known measure of prices.

As a result, the DJIA has a pronounced tendency toward wider swings than, let us say, five or six years ago. And sharp price changes in themselves attract more attention.

—Many of these institutions have what is called fringe or play money. That is, they have certain amounts ready for quick action on important, market-exciting news, such as a government price report — or a resignation.

So much for the institutions and their role in the "public market." Then there are the speculators of all sorts who attempt to rip off a few points from the characteristically sharp rises and falls.

And there are the short traders, those who put their money on the down side of stocks, hoping to repay shares they have borrowed with shares purchased at a lower price. The difference is theirs.

All these and probably a good many other factors must be considered when you use the stock market as a barometer of opinion or attitudes or belief in the future. If it is the public, it's a strange one, and it acts even stranger.

Visitor Can See Greece Has Changed

I'm a faculty member of East Carolina University. I teach ancient history. I'm doing research in Greece this summer, and I thought you might be interested in hearing about the situation in Greece.

Last night I drove past the Acropolis and it was in darkness. The floodlights that generally illuminate the ancient citadel were off. A war with Turkey is possible. The Greeks fear that their ancient foe will bomb the Acropolis. The Athenian airport, which was closed for five days, was recently opened, but still tourist are reluctant to come to Greece. July and August are the height of the tourist season here, and tourism is the nation's number one industry. It's strange to see not only the monuments in darkness, but the streets relatively empty.

Greece is now a democracy. Several weeks ago the military junta, which autocratically ran Greece, tried to annex Cyprus, and independent republic off the coast of Turkey. The Turks invaded the island. They did not want the Turkish minority on Cyprus to be controlled by Athens. The Turks, whose army outnumbered the Greeks' four to one, were able to land troops in Cyprus and take several towns. The Greek junta, unable to protect the Greeks on Cyprus, was discredited and it fell.

Constantine Karamanlis, a former prime minister, was called in from Paris, where he was living in exile, to form a new government.

The change in Greece is remarkable. Exiles are beginning to return. I arrived on the same plane with Theodorakis, the famous Greek composer, who had been exiled by the junta. Thousands were at the airport to greet him. Melina Mercouri, the star of Never on Sunday, returned yesterday.

For the first time since 1967 the Greeks feel free to talk politics. In the cafes they discuss the situation. Yesterday a Greek told me how much he hated the junta, but that he had been afraid to speak out.

Last summer the military junta had elections. They were supported by an alleged 80 percent of the population. It was widely believed that the elections were fraudulent. Today it is impossible to find anyone who voted for the junta.

While the tone in Greece is democratic, the mood is imperialistic. Practically every Greek wants to even the score with the Turks. Even the children chant, "on the Constantinople." Few Greeks, however, actually believe that there will be war with Turkey. Greece and Turkey are both members of NATO and America simply will not permit two allies to fight one another.

Why did the catastrophe in Cyprus take place? A Greek, a former politician, put it this way to me: "The Americans always knew what the colonels were going to do in advance, but they were too much wrapped up in Watergate to prevent the crisis in Cyprus."

A Conservative View Millions Believed Their President Told Truth

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK
Very well. The wreckage of Richard Nixon's administration is now so nearly complete that further demolition will merely tidy up the ruins. We can begin now to think of Gerald Ford as president of the United States, for this he surely will be.

I write on a Tuesday morning, 12 hours after the bombshell disclosures of Monday night, and I am close to tears. Grown men ought not to weep. I have been covering politics and politicians for more than 30 years, and have seen enough of duplicity to be immune to shock. Nixon's duplicity is almost beyond bearing.

The thing is: I believed him. Millions of other Americans believed him also. When he said, over and over, looking us squarely in the eye, that he had known nothing of the Watergate cover-up until March of 1973, we believed him. It no longer greatly matters. My President is a liar.

He lied to the people, in his public statements. He lied to his lawyers. He lied to the press. On June 23, 1972, just five days after the Watergate break-in, he himself set in motion the cover-up. He himself knew of the Watergate cash. He himself set a pattern of deceit for others to follow.

Why did he do it? His conduct is beyond comprehension. In June of 1972, George McGovern's nomination was assured, which is to say that Nixon's own re-election was assured. Given the political situation at that time, there was no way that Nixon's candidacy could have been fatally damaged. If he had told the people the truth at that time—the whole truth, holding nothing back—the Watergate scandal would have been a nine-day wonder. The campaign could have proceeded on course. But he lied.

One gropes amidst the debris. Monday night's disclosures clear up a few points. More than a year ago, when I was among many persons urging the President voluntarily to release the tapes, I said that his refusal would permit an inference that he had something to hide. All right. He had something to hide. A couple of months ago, I suggested to Mr. Nixon that Bob Haldeman, by not keeping him informed, had betrayed him. The President sharply denied it. At least he told the truth about that. Haldeman had indeed kept him informed. Haldeman did not betray him. The President betrayed himself.

The just-disclosed conversation of June 23, 1972, explains another puzzling thing. We foolish believers kept searching through the later conversations of March, 1973, looking for expressions of presidential amazement and outrage. We found none. It seemed odd, because we were given to understand that he was only then beginning to comprehend the involvement of such aides as Maurice Stans and John Mitchell. We had been led astray; we had been lied to. No wonder he was not amazed that March! No wonder he was not outraged!

The lies, the lies, the lies! My President is a liar. I wish he were a crook instead. Three months ago he gave us a stack of transcripts, and he provided a fine false summary to go with them: "Throughout the period of the Watergate affair the raw material of these recorded conversations establishes that the President had no knowledge of any cover-up prior to March 21, 1973." The sentence is a devious work of art. He did have knowledge of the cover-up: He himself had helped to contrive it.

What a pity, what a pity! Here was a President who got us out of Vietnam, ended the draft, restored a needed conservative balance to the Supreme Court, launched hopeful programs of new federalism, and by his bold overtures to Red China opened new avenues toward world peace. Now the good vanishes in the wreckage of the bad. The swearing-in of Gerald Ford can't come one hour too soon.

A Respite In Political Turmoil Could Assist In Economic Stability

conservatives brought on "by advancing age." All pledged to vote no if Ford should nominate him.

The Vice President ardently desired by this group of irreconcilables is Gov. Ronald Reagan of California—a choice shared by many Republican state chairmen. But most of Ford's political allies regard Reagan out altogether.

Some Ford aides might prefer Elliot Richardson as an Eastern establishment Republican who carries the same advantages as Rockefeller without the stature to eclipse Ford. But partly because 54-year-old Richardson would indeed be an heir-apparent and partly because he was too right too soon about President Nixon, he is less acceptable to Republican conservatives than Rockefeller.

That is the view of one prominent and very conservative Southern Republican—Mississippi state chairman Clarke Reed—who would prefer Reagan first, a Southerner second but finds Rockefeller "acceptable."

Ford is approaching the choice with an open mind, knowing it will be the most important first step he takes. Given the traumatic circumstances of his own accession to the presidency, he will have a remarkable free hand to make it. In that framework, Laird's views are highly important.

Laird is quietly pushing for an end to the politics of exclusion which have dominated the entire Nixon era. That also means a prominent Democrat in the Ford cabinet and a return to government not by public relations but by skilled politicians. Rockefeller as Vice President would complete this contemplated return to rationality.

turmoil. Washington's influence is so great that uncertainties in government become a depressant.

This has been clearly evident as Watergate moved toward the climax. Inflation roared out of hand, the economy turned down and unemployment turned up. Confidence in the future is badly shaken.

President Nixon, target of the storm which has rocked the nation for two years, has had it. The important thing is that president Nixon's going will leave a rough political

As President, Gerald Ford can expect a bit of a breather. He will be deluged with praise and good wishes from just about all sides. But this doesn't mean he will find the Democrat-run Congress in step behind the Nixon policies he has embraced. The stakes are too big. Ideology is involved.

In trying to judge the political future, its' worthwhile to take a look at what was happening in Congress before Watergate became the issue of the day. Democrats were denouncing Nixon even using threats of impeachment, for his refusal to spend all the billions Congress had voted. Nixon was trying to slow spending to cut inflation pressure.

This was the beginning of the power struggle which became so much of a part of Watergate. The Democratic Congress was out to win dominance over the Republican White House. And it was the party's led, by so-called intellectual liberals, which pressed the search for impeachment grounds.

This powerful influence in the Democratic party has tasted blood. And it has two well defined goals to be sought over the next two plus years.

First, it wants to elect a veto-proof Congress in November. If the Democrats can make substantial gains in November as a result of Watergate, this goal may be realized. President Ford would be at the mercy of Congress.

Then, the focus will shift to the 1976 Presidential election. The left wants one of its' own, say a McGovern, or someone they can strongly influence, in the White House. This would mean complete control of Washington. That's the big plum.

This makes the stakes tremendously high. There is no certainty that the Democratic left can pull it off. But there is no reason to think the try won't be made, even if it means more risk to an economy which, many experts say, is dangerously close to brink.

If Washington follows a course of restraint for the next few years, the rate of inflation can be slowed and, over an even longer period, some semblance of price stability achieved. That would set Ford up as a truly tough contender in 1976 for an elected term in the White House.

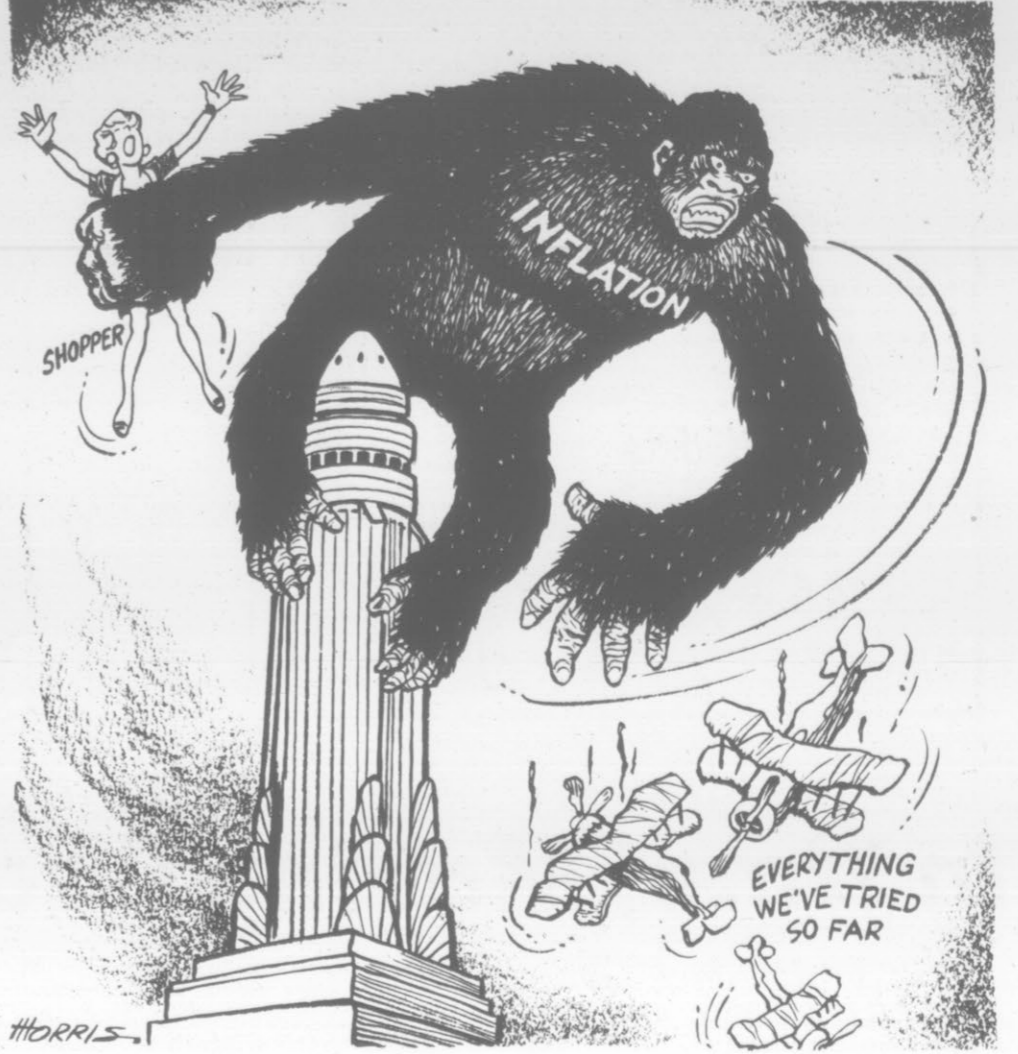

Any policy of restraint will require a high degree of cooperation between the Republican in the White House and the Democrats who run Congress. Action is needed on a broad front.

The budget should be balanced. Restrictions should be placed on the host of federal agencies which make constant trips to the money market. Some system of directing credit to areas of the economy where expansion is essential—tax incentives, for example. Also, there should be some machinery to require key industries to account for price boosts and unions to account for wage hikes.

The first, and only, line of inflation defense today is the tight money policy of the Federal Reserve Board. Even with astute management, this risks business failures and trouble for the financial institutions, including banks.

So, Congress should put partisan political interests aside and focus on national interest. But it has a way of shunning responsibility. That's how we got where we are with inflation.

Add Bike-Riding To A 'Can't-Win' Category

Not too long ago I decided to try out my husband's new French racing bike. I should have known the minute I seated myself that this ride was the supreme mistake. Sitting on the saddle of that bike was like riding bareback on an emaciated camel.

However, being especially adventurous, I ignored that particular form of discomfort and pulled out onto Evans Street. Five second later a car whizzed by. I stopped to make sure that my toes were still there. Since they were, I continued.

Then I got to the Evans Street-264 By-Pass intersection. Now, many drivers in Greenville tend to forget that we cyclists are not armored with a steel frame. I got three feet into the intersection when a car turned right in front of me. I slammed on my brakes. The only problem was that I slammed with my feet, and this bike had handbrakes.

I peeled myself off the pavement and debated whether to turn back, but I figured that riding in the country couldn't be as bad as in the city, so I headed out the Evans Street Extension. Oh, how marvelous it was! Experiencing the sweet smell of unpolluted air and wild honeysuckle! The soft summer breezes! The unparalleled flavor of gnats! The smell and feel of the fresh manure—which I'd just ridden through and spattered all over my legs.

I turned back. But my adventure was not finished. Hardly had I turned my bike around when a nine hundred pound German Shepherd came charging at me full speed.

But my adventure was not finished. Hardly had I turned my bike around when a nine hundred pound German Shepherd came charging at me full speed, with floating eyes and bared teeth. Thinking a change to a higher gear might aid in my getaway, I reached for the gearshift. It was nowhere to be found.

I realized I would have to take my eyes off the road—and Bowser—and look for it. I couldn't tell whether the Wobbling Wonder's wobble was from my shaking or from the inadequacy of the 3/4 inch wide tires, but I put one hand in the middle of the handlebars to steady my Cadillac of the cycles and looked down. There were the gears, about eighteen inches from the ground. Suddenly, there was I—zero inches from the ground, pulling briars out of my nose as I stared into the leering face of the Hound of the Baskervilles.

I turned back. But my adventure was not finished. Hardly had I turned my bike around when a nine hundred pound German Shepherd came charging at me full speed.

I had staggered out of the car and was looking gloomily at the uncooperative vehicle when a passing cyclist stopped to help.

"You know, lady," he said, "You wouldn't have to bother with this type of thing if you rode a bike."

The bike looked like salvage from Armageddon, and I looked like a victim on the losing side. Only fainting twice from loss of blood, I limped back home. Then I staggered into the car and headed for the doctor's. Wonder of wonders—I ran out of gas.

Public Forum

Dear Sir: James J. Kilpatrick's recent column suggesting there is something anti-civil rights about my representation of 10 unions in their suit against the Right to Work Legal Defense and Education Foundation overlooks the major premise of that suit.

The Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959, the so-called "Landrum-Griffin law," forbids interested employers, directly or indirectly, to finance law suits by members against their unions. A number of unions which have been the target of member litigation financed by Right to Work groups received information that the bulk of the financing of those groups came from interested employers and they brought suit to stop the illegal harassment they were undergoing. Mr. Kilpatrick's column suggests no theory upon which employers should have been allowed to do indirectly (i.e., use the Right to Work Foundation to finance suits by members against unions) what they were obviously forbidden to do directly. All the unions are trying to do by their suit is enforce the law exactly as it is written.

If Mr. Kilpatrick's real point is that this provision of Landrum-Griffin in wrong and employers should be permitted to finance suits by members against their unions, that is a matter better addressed to Congress. I would submit, however, that Congress was right in what it did. The whole history of labor relations in this country has been one of getting employers out of union affairs and leaving that to the workers themselves. History has demonstrated this to be sound public policy from the long-past days of the yellow-dog contract and the labor injunction. It seems somewhat ironic for anyone to be suggesting that Landrum-Griffin was too pro-labor, especially in applying so ancient a principle as keeping employers out of union affairs.

I guess the real difference between James Kilpatrick and Joe Rauh is that Rauh believes in labor unions as a force for human dignity and progress and wants to improve them, and Kilpatrick doesn't believe in unions and wants to weaken them. I had to smile a little when Mr. Kilpatrick referred to these 10 unions as Goliaths; one can wonder what Cesar Chavez and his little United Farm Workers, one of the targets of the Right to Work groups, must think of this Goliath reference. I cannot quite smile at his reference to labor goons and bully boys when I think of the record for decency that Leonard Woodcock (UAW), Jerry Wurf (AFSCME), Floyd Smith (Machinists), Glenn Watts (CWA) and the others of the plaintiff unions have built in employer-employee relations.

I have a challenge for Mr. Kilpatrick. I believe that trade unions, like corporations and other large bureaucracies, do have built-in anti-democratic tendencies and that efforts must continuously be made to assist the democratic reform elements in every union. That is why I took up the cudgels for the reform group in the United Mine Workers and that is why I am today working for the reform group in the United Steel Workers and other unions. If Mr. Kilpatrick believes in American trade unions, he will help those of us who have tried to keep them democratic. Or he can go on and continue writing in support of the Right to Work groups who are openly out to weaken and destroy the union movement. I hope Mr. Kilpatrick will join with those of us who seek to build a more democratic and thus more effective trade union movement.

Sincerely,
Joseph L. Rauh, Jr.

Gerald Ford Made A 'Little Talk To Friends'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Following is the text of President Ford's address following his swearing-in Friday.

Mr. Chief Justice, my dear friends, my fellow Americans.

The oath I have taken is the same oath that was taken by George Washington and by every president under the Constitution. But I assume the presidency under extraordinary circumstances, never before experienced by Americans. This is an hour of history that troubles our minds and hurts our hearts.

Therefore, I feel it is my first duty to make an unprecedented compact with my countrymen. Not an inaugural speech, not a fireside chat, not a campaign speech. Just a little straight talk among friends. And I intend it to be the first of many.

I am acutely aware that you have not elected me as your President by your ballots. So I ask you to confirm me as your President with your prayers. And I hope that such prayers will also be the first of many.

If you have not chosen me by secret ballot, neither have I gained office by any secret promises. I have not campaigned either for the presidency or the vice presidency. I have not subscribed to any partisan platform. I am indebted to no men and only to one woman — my dear wife — as I begin this very difficult job.

I have not sought this enormous responsibility, but I will not shirk it. Those who nominated and confirmed me as vice president were my friends and are my friends. They were of both parties, elected by all the people, and acting under the Constitution in their name. It is only fitting then, that I should pledge to them and to you that I will be the President of all the people.

Thomas Jefferson said the people are the only sure reliance for the preservation of our liberty. And down the years Abraham Lincoln renewed this American article of faith, asking: "Is there any better way or equal hope in the world?"

I intend, on next Monday, to request of the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President Pro Tempore of the Senate the privilege of appearing before the Congress to share with my former colleagues and with you, the American people, my views on the priority business of the nation, and to solicit your views and their views. And may I say to the Speaker and the others if I could meet with you right after this, these remarks, I would appreciate it.

Even though this is late in an election year, there is no way we can go forward except together, and no way anybody can win except by serving the people's urgent needs. We cannot stand still or slip backwards. We must go forward, now, together.

To the peoples and the governments of all friendly nations, and I hope that could encompass the whole world, I pledge an uninterrupted and sincere search for peace. America will remain strong and united, but its strength will remain dedicated to the safety and sanity of the entire family of man as well as to our own precious freedom.

I believe that truth is the glue that holds government together, not only our government, but civilization itself. That bond, though strained, is unbroken at home and abroad. In all my public and private acts as your President, I expect to follow my instincts of openness and candor with full confidence that honesty is always the best policy in the end.

My fellow Americans, our long national nightmare is over.

Our Constitution works; our great republic is a government of laws and not of men. Here the people rule. But there is a higher power, by whatever name we honor Him, who ordains not only righteousness but love, not only justice but mercy.

As we bind up the internal wounds of Watergate, more painful and more poisonous than those of foreign wars, let us restore the Golden Rule to our political process, and let brotherly love purge our hearts of suspicion and of hate.

In the beginning I asked you to pray for me. Before closing I again ask your prayers for Richard Nixon and for his family. May our former President, who brought peace to millions, find it for himself. May God bless and comfort his wonderful wife and daughters whose love and loyalty will forever be a shining legacy to all who bear the lonely burdens of the White House.

I can only guess at those burdens, although I have witnessed at close hand the tragedies that befell three Presidents and the lesser trials of others.

With all the strength and all the good sense I have gained from life, with all the confidence of my family and friends and dedicated staff impart to me, and with the goodwill of the countless Americans I have encountered in recent visits to 40 states, I now solemnly reaffirm my promise I made to you last December 6: to uphold the Constitution, to do what is right as God gives me to see the right, and to do the very best I can for America.

God helping me, I will not let you down. Thank you.

TRIPLE-WINGED PLAN ZONES LIVING AREAS

By Gerry Bishop

The living area of the "Metcalf" is separated into a formal living room spanning twenty-three feet and a family room, built at right angles and adjoining a flagstone terrace. This unique arrangement floods each room with natural light and assures a picturesque view from the relaxing areas of the home.

To the side and rear of the family room is the sleeping area, which consists of three bedrooms and ample storage and baths. The master bedroom, with a private bath and double vanity, has two massive closets. The other bedrooms share a second bath, complete with linen closet. In the "Metcalf", each bedroom has a large closet, and even the smallest room is larger than the standard 10' by 12'.

To the front of the home a separate wing features the living room, which is reached through a spacious rectangular foyer. Cross traffic is never a problem in this well-thought out design.

Dining and kitchen areas are designed to the side and rear of the garage in another totally separate wing. This area is reached also through the foyer, but has access to a back door and an entrance to the double garage.

The kitchen is arranged in the corridor style, with built-in range and oven, as well as dishwasher. A laundry area and extra closet are tucked to the side of the kitchen.

Rule number one in the use of a wrench is that it always should be pulled, not pushed.

Rule number two is that a wrench is made for turning, not holding.

It would take this entire page to list the numerous types of

Q. — We have a roof with rolled roofing material on it. Must it be removed before applying a new roof of asphalt shingles?

A. — No. The two general considerations in applying one roof over another is that the framework be strong enough to support the new covering and that there is good anchorage to the new roofing. These factors can only be determined by a personal inspection by a professional.

Q. — I have to replace two broken window panes. Is there any reason why I cannot cut the glass myself?

A. — It takes practice to get the knack of cutting glass accurately. If you have done it before and have succeeded, go ahead. But if that were the case, you wouldn't be asking the question. Before you venture on the cutting project, price the cost of a piece of glass, including the cutting to size. If you still want to do the cutting yourself, practice on some scrap pieces of glass first. And when you cut the glass, see that it is about one-sixteenth of an inch less in length and width to allow for expansion and contraction of the wood as well as glass irregularities. Also, remember that the sash may not be square, in which case the glass must be cut to allow for that.

Q. The leaves on my crabapple tree have large yellow spots. What is causing these spots and how can they be controlled? (T.S., Durham)

A. This is probably the fungus disease called cedar apple rust. Leaves with several spots will most likely fall off in the next few weeks. Most crabapple varieties commonly grown are susceptible. The disease can be controlled by spraying next year with ferbam at two tablespoons per gallon just before and just after bloom. (R.K. Jones, extension plant pathologist)

Q. Is there a convenient way to destroy pampas grass without digging out the roots? (G.H., Weaverville)

A. Try Dowpon. Use one pound in seven gallons of water. Spray to wet the foliage when the plant is actively growing. It may require another spraying three or four weeks later. (W.M. Lewis, extension agronomy specialist)

Q. We have just built a cold frame. Are there any flowers that can be started in the cold frame at this time? (C.R., Winston-Salem)

A. Seed of the following should be planted in the cold frame at this time: Calendula, columbine, English daisy, forget-me-not, pansy, sweet william, viola. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. Last year my onions did not bulb like I thought they should. I planted them in a very fertile flower bed. They grew well but would not form bulbs. (Mrs. C.H., Carrboro)

A. Too much shade was most likely your problem. Onions need open sunlight to produce full-size mature bulbs. I'm assuming that you used onion sets or plants. Seed are fine, but you must start them the previous fall to grow the sets. (George Hughes, extension horticulturist)

In Time, Moving Grows Complex

By DOROTHEA BROOKS
NEW YORK (UPI) — A couple of friends and a taxi cab may be all it takes to move into that first furnished studio apartment, but moving is a job that becomes more complex as possessions multiply.

If you're one of the 40 million

Americans who will be packing up and moving to a new apartment or house this year, at least consider the pitfalls before you tackle the job on a do-it-yourself basis.

Still vivid in this writer's memory many years later is a move "just down the block" conducted by a procrastinating male parent and a reluctant teen-age daughter during the illness of the lady of the house.

The problem here was not the absence of professional help. The movers had been called — and performed well, moving all the "big stuff" from one third floor walkup to another. Father and daughter could easily manage the odds and ends — the fragile lamps not to be entrusted to the movers, the clothing, books, precious fishing gear, all the other miscellanea we had not got around to packing.

A hundred trips, and what seemed like a hundred million stairs later daughter, at least, had a life-time horror of do-it-yourself moving. Let the movers do it, right down to packing the last ash tray, even if you have to do without the new carpet or drapes or both to pay for it.

For some folks, of course, do-it-yourself is necessary and practical. For the most part these are young couples with willing, and strong, young friends, a highly developed sense of organization and not too many possessions — certainly no baby grand pianos, eight-foot sofas or solid oak armchairs.

If you are among them, the professionals offer some tips:

-Backstrain is a very real hazard of self-moving. It takes know-how as well as muscle to move heavy items. Plan how you will handle each item. Use brain rather than sheer brawn. When you lift, use leg muscles, not arms and back alone. Make use of mover's dollies. Even an old carpet can be used to slide rather than lift heavy furniture. Don't pack cartons too heavily. Use small boxes for books, for instance, and china.

-Along with the physical exertion, moving is hard on the nerves. Be sure you are temperamentally suited to handle the job. Make preparations carefully and don't leave too much for the last minute. You need to be cool, calm and collected to get through the many hours of hard work and inconvenience and the unexpected things which are bound to crop up.

-Make allowance for inexperienced help. Evaluate their strength and stamina before getting friends involved. Allow plenty of time. Don't push them, or yourself, too hard. Take rest breaks, but forget the beer or liquor until the job is done. Even if the helpers are good friends, a little gift of appreciation will be welcome.

-Maneuvering a truck or trailer in traffic and into and out of parking spaces can be very tricky — and dangerous. Be sure your driver is up to it.

-Read the truck rental contract carefully, especially the small print. Many rental agreements require that you pay for special licenses that might be needed, local truck fees and repair costs on the equipment if it breaks while in your possession.

-If your move involves distance, be prepared for any eventuality. Carry sufficient cash to cover possible breakdown. Be aware of parking restrictions for trucks and limitations on the routes they can use. If overnight accommodations will be necessary, you may find some motels do not allow trucks.

-Don't forget to look into insurance — on your own property and against the possibility you might cause an accident or damage someone else's property while moving.

-Allow ample time to recuperate from do-it-yourself moving. Many a weekend mover is a Monday morning absentee.

New Service Directory Published, Distributed

The second edition of the Community Service Directory for Pitt County has been published and distributed by the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters.

The Directory, like its well-accepted predecessor, contains information about service agencies which have headquarters in Pitt County. There are more than 30 new entries representing agencies and services added since the publication of the first such directory.

In the directory, services are categorized and then agencies which provide services within that category are listed.

The book was compiled during 211 hours by the Human Resources Committee of the LWV, headed by Peggy Blanchard. The cost of materials for publication of 500 copies of the directory was provided by a $500

Tiny Caribbean Colony Grows

PINE CAY, Turks and Caicos Islands (UPI) — This little British colony southeast of the Bahamas chain had 6,000 visitors during the past winter season, equaling its entire population, according to the regional director of the Caribbean Hotel Association, Liam Maguire.

The colony had a 20 per cent spurt in tourism during the first quarter of 1974, apparently because of publicity surrounding its move to become part of Canada, Maguire said.

The Turks and Caicos Islands, once a major producer of salt for cod processing, has fewer than 300 hotel beds, but will have about twice that many by the 1975-1976 season, Maguire said.

ASSOCIATED TEACHERS

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — Teachers here have formed the Association of Classroom Teachers, an organization which they say will provide "strictly a teachers' voice in negotiations." A spokesman for the new body said she believes it will be more effective than the Alberta Teachers' Association, which includes administrators.

grant from the United Fund of Pitt County, and 100 copies were financed by the League itself. The United Fund also agreed to serve as a referral agency for those seeking services or seeking to render services.

Organizations included in the directory met these criteria: the organization has to be one whose primary goal is to offer service to the public on a non-profit basis; the agency has to have a relatively permanent headquarters where contact may be made; and it must offer services which could directly benefit a person needing help.

A New Service By Vista Team

Volunteer Greenville is a new service that has been established by Vista Volunteers here.

The purpose of the service is to get together the people who can help others with the people who need help, all on a non-paid basis.

According to Mike Hamer and Jennifer Haseltine, VISTA volunteers, the service is functioning well, and a big recruiting push will begin soon—on the East Carolina University campus, at the county fair, and downtown and in shopping centers.

Agencies listed by the two as being in need of volunteers including the Pitt County Social Services Department, the Pitt County Boys Club, Youth Attention, the Moyewood Tutoring Service, the Greenville Nursing Center, Operation Sunshine, the Greenville Recreation Department, the Pitt County 4-H Club, Find and Feed Project of the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters, and the REAL Crisis Intervention Center. Hamer said Volunteer Greenville would probably take one agency at a time for which to actively recruit volunteers, though it can, of course, refer volunteers to these and other service agencies at any time.

Anyone wishing to contact Volunteer Greenville may call 758-5703 days and 758-HELP evenings. The address is 503 E. Fifth St., Greenville.

Vindication For Hog Farm

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — For years A. L. Milner raised hogs on land near downtown Fort Worth despite protests from city officials who said the hog farm was an eyesore that detracted from the city's image.

A jury refused to convict Milner of violating any ordinances and Milner claimed he was a victim of harassment by a motel on a bluff overlooking his hog farm.

But Milner finally sold his property and moved his hogs to a new location.

Ironically, the city now announced that the U.S. Department of Agriculture will construct a school for swine inspectors on the site of Milner's farm.

Provide Hikers With 'Refugios'

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Hikers in the southern Argentine mountain resort area of Bariloche will find scores of well-marked trails that can put them several hours, or days from the nearest civilization.

The most popular trails are dotted with "refugios" or cabins for overnight stays.

ITEMIZE HOUSE TAX DEDUCTIONS

One of the great financial benefits of home ownership versus rental is that you are immediately eligible to deduct a good-sized amount of money from your income tax. As a homeowner, you will generally find it to your advantage to itemize deductions rather than taking the standard deduction.

This is especially true during the earlier years of home ownership. The mortgage interest and real property taxes on your personal residence, when added to other deductible items will usually be well in excess of any standard deduction you could claim. Your home payment may consist of several parts; an amount placed in escrow to pay real estate taxes and fire insurance, FHA mortgage insurance premiums, and an amount applied to reduce the principal of the mortgage. Of these parts, only the interest and taxes are deductible — but that will prove to be a very sizable figure.

If there is anything, we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at LOUIS CLARK AGENCY, 315 Evans Street, Greenville. Phone: 752-4173. We're here to help!

Local Teacher Gave Summer Days To His Students

By CAROL B. TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

students of Richard Wilkerson this summer.

invited all his rising sixth graders to come to school two mornings a week during the summer for special activities that would keep them in touch with what they have learned last year. The boys came two days a week; the girls, two other days. So Wilkerson, for no pay whatsoever, gave his students four days a week through the summer.

"Usually the first month or so of the regular school year is spent just going back over the previous year's material," Wilkerson said. "I'm hoping our summer work will eliminate much of this review."

"Besides I didn't want to lose contact with my students and I enjoy teaching, so why not? The summer has been a wonderful time for us to do a lot of fun things we might not find time for during the school year. By dividing the boys and the girls, I've been able to lead each group in things that interest them most, and have been able to work on a more personal basis, because each group was so small.

"No student has been required to come a single day. We made this point clear in conferences with the parents at the end of last school year. I want it to be a completely voluntary thing on the part of the student. His being here should indicate he wants to be here.

"I've been gratified that every single one of my rising sixth graders has been here some, and many have come on a more or less regular basis, though, of course, almost all have been out some because of other summer activities. Our days are planned so being absent in no way put you behind."

"We're learning math and language arts, but it's in fun ways. We use the newspaper every day, and we do some creative writing, and many craft and sports activities."

Wilkerson has been teaching at Elmhurst since 1971, the year he graduated from East Carolina University. "I love teaching and would never do anything else," he said. "I like the upper elementary age group I have now, too."

He and his wife, the former Carol Barr, are natives of Williamsport Pa. "I love this area, though," he said, "and don't see any reason to leave it."

Besides his special classes, which have cost the schools nothing but the provision of the classroom, he has been doing some private tutoring.

Safety Curriculum For Youngsters Is Readied

RALEIGH—Boyd C. Miller Jr., North Carolina's Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, has announced that the state is developing traffic safety curriculum directed towards reducing the number of traffic deaths and injuries involving pedestrians and bicyclists under 15 years old.

Instruction in traffic safety, on a pilot basis, will commence in selected schools during the fall term this year. Kindergarten through ninth grades in 15 schools within the Asheville, Buncombe County, Greenville City, and Pitt County School Systems will utilize the new curriculum developed by Research Triangle Institute in cooperation with the Highway Safety Research Center of the University of North Carolina, Appalachian State University and East Carolina University.

Eighty teachers from the four school systems have been assisting the prime contractor, Research Triangle Institute and the subcontractors in identifying concepts for teaching children of each grade level in K-9 substantive ways in which to improve their chances to avoid being involved in traffic collisions.

Specific areas in the new curriculum include pedestrian, bicycle, passenger, motorcycle and school bus safety together with preparation for driver education and training.

Commissioner Miller plans to advocate the extension of the new curriculum now under development in preparation for pilot use during the fall, which will be evaluated by the Highway Safety Research Center, into statewide use throughout all schools incorporating K-9 grades. In continued support of these efforts, the Governor's Highway Safety Program is scheduling available state and federal funds to support broad application of the curriculum.

Charles Speed, Highway Safety Program Coordinator for North Carolina, states that the societal problem represented by 2,800 pedestrians and 800 bicyclists killed and injured annually in North Carolina is an intolerable toll which must be substantially improved as part of the State's program to decrease traffic accidents, deaths and injuries.

Following initial workshops conducted in Asheville and in Greenville during the past three months, 80 teachers will be associated for ten days with representatives of Research Triangle Institute, The Highway Safety Research Center and Appalachian State and East Carolina Universities to furnish direct guidance in selecting curriculum guidelines, classroom activities, instructional materials and teaching-learning experiences that are to be embodied in the new K-9 curriculum.

Commissioner Miller stresses that it is essential to have professional educators develop the program in the same vein that school teachers and administrators who are trained to provide K-9 instruction must be dedicated to applying the curriculum as part of the normal school hours during regular school terms. "Traffic safety curriculum for persons under 15 years of age is a requisite for accomplishing traffic safety in the life styles of children" according to Commissioner Miller.

Bicentennial Clothing Ready

A variety of styles and sizes of costumes may be purchased for Greenville's Bicentennial celebrations at the Bicentennial Headquarters, according to Nancy Whitlow, chairman of Women's Participation committee.

Since items must be presently be ordered from a catalogue, it is suggested that orders be placed before September 15 to insure delivery for the celebration.

Items include calico dresses for adults and children, Gibson Girl skirts and blouses, several styles of gowns in brocade, taffetas, hoops, pantalettes, boys' and men's vests, men's coats, and old fashioned bathing suits for both men and women.

Prices for ladies' dresses begin at $25.50 including bonnets, up to $43.50 for a brocade taffeta gown. Ladies' bonnets and hats are $2.00. Boy's and men's vests range from $8.00 to $11.00.

Some items will be available for immediate purchase at the headquarters. All of the costumes will be suitable for wearing numerous bicentennial functions. Questions concerning costumes should be directed to Nancy Whitlow, 752-1919 or drop by the headquarters at Ninth and Evans.

Keep America Beautiful Restore Old Cars

Text And Photographs By Gail Michaels

Last year Tom Buck got a radiator cap for his birthday. For Christmas he got an upholstery kit for a roadster. Unusual presents? For the average person, yes. But Tom's avocation keeps him from being "average."

Tom, an employee of Union Carbide, is vice president of the Coastal Plains Chapter of the Antique Automobile Club of America. He owns a 1935 Ford truck and is presently restoring a 1931 Deluxe Ford Roadster for his wife, Manolita. He's been interested in antique cars since he was 15; he started with a 1935 Plymouth and has always had two or three since then. Altogether, he's owned about 350 old cars.

Although Tom admires antique cars for their beauty, he's not just interested in the outside. He said, "Some just fix up the cars on the outside while others try to get them as close to the originals as possible. I try to keep it original."

Keeping it original is not easy. "You can hardly find anyone who'll touch old cars," Tom said. "Someone who does restore them will charge a fortune. It's more labor than anything else." So, when Tom acquired his roadster, he decided to make his first attempt at restoring an antique car to authenticity by himself.

To the unknowledgeable the roadster doesn't look like much has been done to it. However, it represents three years of work and loving care. Actually only the finishing touches remain.

Tom bought the roadster from a man in Farmville. "His sons were driving it to ECU. It was in terrible condition. We paid about $1,100 for it and have spent about $3000 total so far."

Depending upon the quality of the restoration, antique roadsters are worth between $3,500 and $8,500. "It's really hard to set an actual price," he said. "It all depends on what it's worth to the buyer. Some of the older cars have sold for above $10,000. But I don't have to worry about setting a price on mine because I don't intend to sell it."

Tom described what restoring the car has entailed. "I had to take the car completely apart. I reused what was usable and replaced what was worn out. Then I put it back together. I chiselled out about 60 pounds of body putty from the inside. That was about all that was holding it together in places. I replaced it with patch panels."

"I also sandblasted the running gear and chassis. In sandblasting you blow sand at the car at high air pressure. It's the only way to completely get all the paint off. Then I repainted it," Tom said, carefully patting the glistening green paint job.

It's easier to find parts than it is to get labor. Tom has quite a collection of parts himself, some donated by friends and some gathered during Tom and Manolita's frequent visits to flea markets and auctions. The car shows, themselves, provide fertile hunting ground. "The summer before last we went to almost every car show and flea market. Especially at the bigger shows participants display all their extra parts. We went up to the National Antique Auto Show last year in Hershey, Pennsylvania, and they had 67 acres of flea market," Tom said.

Tom passed over his collection of Model A Ford models and pointed to an almost full bookcase of catalogues. "Some companies also make replacement parts," he said. "The parts catalogues are divided by the headings Ford and Non-Ford. Certain companies specialize in one particular part. For example, Le Baron Bonney Company of Amesbury, Massachusetts makes the best upholstery."

"Actually," Tom concluded, "it's easier to get parts for a Model A than for a ten year old car. Of course, they're getting more expensive."

He has a number of trophies. "The first trophy I ever got," he recalled, "was for a big old ton and a half flatbed truck. I drove it into the Pitt Plaza Car Show with the radiator spewing over and a crack in the windshield. I got first place for the Roughest Driven."

His latest trophy was a first place in the trucks division for his 1935 truck at the June 22-23 Washington, N.C. car show. This show is the one big annual show for the Coastal Plains chapter. About 20 car owners participated, not all of whom belonged to the Coastal Plains club. The winner of the Best In Show travelled all the way from Columbia, S.C. to compete. His 1929 Ford Pickup has been the recipient of three awards at the most important national competition, that in Hershey.

CONGRATULATIONS OFFERED. . . Tom Buck congratulates C. H. May for winning best in show at the Washington Antique Auto Show. At right is Mrs. May.

Tom viewed the show as an opportunity to solicit new members for the club while he waited to give out the awards. "This is James Langley," he said. "He's got a 1934 Chevy, and I'm trying to talk him into joining us car nuts."

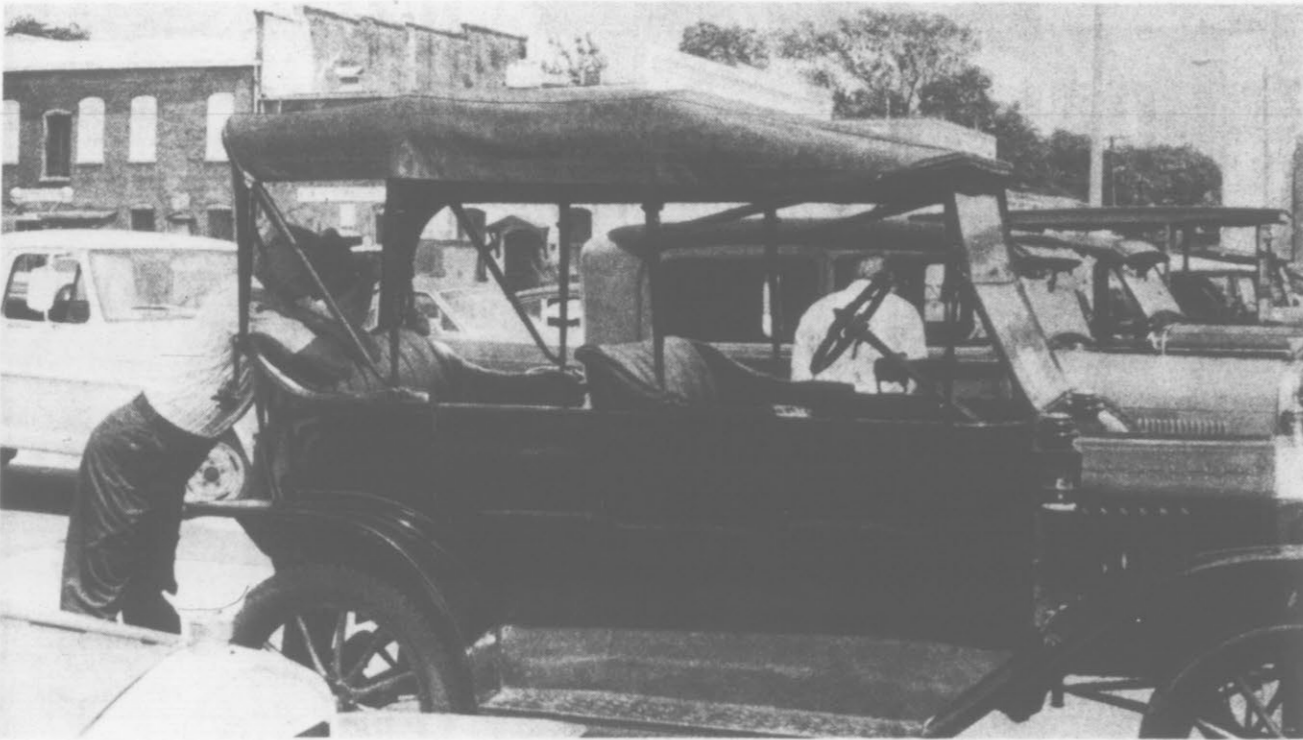

Tom is always seeking new members. When he sees an antique car with which he is not familiar, he inquires about the owner and is often successful in convincing him to join the club. He's quite enthusiastic about the club, not only because of its function as a gathering place for car buffs but also because it involves family "togetherness." The whole family attends meetings and shows.

Tom's only regret about the Washington show was that his roadster was not ready to show. "I really wanted to get it in, but I've been helping a friend restore his truck, and I didn't have time. And I've been a little reluctant to finish it, too," he ruefully admitted. "It's been so much fun working on it that I don't want to see it end. And I'm scared to death that I'll ruin it in the final stages by scratching the paint when I put on the fenders or something like that."

The incalculable amount of love and energy which Tom has lavished upon the roadster makes it inconceivable that he will "ruin" the car in the final stages of restoration. He is thoroughly dedicated to what might be considered his motto, printed on his van's bumper sticker—"Keep America Beautiful; Restore Old Cars."

A TIME TO REST. . . Dewey Harris of Washington leans on his 1914 Ford Touring car during a lull in the auto show activities.

A 1935 FORD TRUCK. . . is proudly displayed by Tom Buck. With him is his wife, Manolita and daughter, Sheryl.

A VERY RARE CAR. . . Julian Jones of Maury sits with friends in his 1936 Ford Phaeton. Jones has restored the Phaeton and two other cars to complete authenticity.

ALMOST FINISHED. . . Buck adjusts the engine of his 1930 Ford Roadster. At the time this photograph was taken, only a few steps remained before the car was ready to show.

To Ford, Inflation Is Enemy No. One

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Gerald R. Ford enters the White House favoring revenue-sharing, a high level of military spending, national health insurance and Nixon-style foreign policy.

He opposes busing, a tax cut now, economic controls and amnesty for draft evaders.

He says inflation is world public enemy No. 1, a threat to peace and order as well as the pocketbook.

These are clues to the man's political beliefs drawn from his recent public statements. Most of them were made as Richard M. Nixon's spokesman, but they are no different from the philosophy he expressed in 25 years in the House of Representatives.

Ford favors optimism and compromise. He became minority leader in the House, where give-and-take is a way of life.

Here is a sampler of his statements since he was picked to be vice president last October:

On foreign policy: "President Nixon has innovated and carried forward a bold and courageous foreign policy that history will credit in due perspective." (June 4)

World trade: "One great responsibility is the need to seek a more open and equitable world trading system. Another is to assure a fair chance in the world's markets.... Trade is essential to consolidate the great strides that we have made in the last five years toward a new world partnership." (July 6)

Isolationism: "There has been a tendency of our people to turn inward ... (but) I cannot imagine that we will withdraw from the world." (July 1)

Military spending: "There are forces in Congress that want to gut it, cut it, reduce it — at the wrong time." (June 5)

Arms reductions: "It is essential to maintain adequate force levels and a technological lead while negotiations continue.... If negotiations fail and the Soviet Union seeks military advantage, the United States must be prepared to increase its forces quickly and effectively." (Feb. 11)

Inflation: "... World's public enemy No. 1. Unless something is done, the cancer of inflation could prove fatal.... A major threat to our free economy and our form of government." Opposed any tax cut and encouraged individuals to curb buying of scarce goods. (April 26)

Economic controls: "Temporarily, they were helpful, but they proved, as they have in the past, to be no long-range solution. (April 26)

"I am opposed to the monolithic government which claims to have all the answers. I prefer to rely on the decision-making power of 211 million Americans, exercising their choices in the market place, and the ability of industry to respond to their needs." (Jan. 8)

Big oil: "Let me here just briefly affirm the administration's belief in the absolute necessity of reasonable profits." (Jan. 31)

Revenue sharing: "Be prepared to fight for it (revenue sharing)." (May 24)

National health insurance: "If we do nothing to provide national health insurance ... we are issuing an invitation to those favoring outright socialization of medicine." (June 26)

Busing: "I feel very strongly that to deal with integrated schools by busing is very superficial and very counterproductive.... (When) individuals can move and live where they want to. That's the basic way to deal with the problem." (July 25)

Amnesty: "Unconditional blanket amnesty to anyone who illegally evaded or fled military service is wrong." (Aug. 5)

Marijuana: "I am not yet convinced we ought to legalize marijuana. (My children) keep telling me that marijuana is no worse than drinking a martini or a scotch and soda." (Jan. 10)

Newspapers: "I ... read the sports page first, 'cause you got a 50-50 chance of being right on the sports page. When you read the front page, the odds are a little tougher." (Jan. 10)

Reporters: "They are seekers after truth. They are motivated by the same emotions that inspire the rest of us — love of country and dedication to what's right." (Nov. 5, 1973)

On the possibility of becoming President: "I think I've had a reasonable training ground and I have no fear.... I'll do the best with the background I have and I have no apologies for it." (May 6)

On Nixon: "I believe the President is completely innocent of all charges, and will remain in office and complete his term." (June 18)

"There just isn't any evidence." (June 14)

"I still believe the President is innocent of any impeachable offense." (Aug. 5)

"I intend to respectfully decline to discuss impeachment matters in public." (Later the same day, after Nixon said new tapes would be damaging)

Nixon: "If I took an oath of office to carry out of the law of the land, I would certainly live up to that oath.... If the law's violated, I think anybody in public office has to carry out his responsibility." (Jan. 10)

Honesty in government: "The more people we have who believe in and practice truth and honesty in their dealings with others, the fewer problems we will have in government." (June 14)

Running in 1976: "I have said many times that I have no intention of being a candidate for any particular office in 1976." (Feb. 18)

First To Use New Blood Test

AURORA, Ill. (UPI) — The Aurora Area Blood Bank says it has become the first blood service group in the nation to use a new test to detect Hepatitis B antigen.

The new technique will cut the risk of patients receiving blood transfusions contracting hepatitis, Dr. James E. Habegger, director of the bank, said.

He said until now, only a very small percentage of hepatitis cases could be detected through testing procedures. The new Asria II test further minimizes the risk, he added.

By BEVERLY WOLTER

The summer draws on, but Indians still whoop, and perish, and settlers vanish into the mysteries of time each week in the nation's longest-running outdoor dramas set in the opposite corners of North Carolina.

"Unto These Hills" at Cherokee and "The Lost Colony" at Manteo continue to attract thousands of tourists, who find in the truth of their stories and realism of their actions a throb of excitement that rarely passes through the television tube's theatrical endeavors.

A past remembered with bitterness and often repeated yet today, and a past lost and unknown but not forgotten are at the heart of the two dramas.

In Kermit Hunter's play at Cherokee, the wrenching tale of the forcible removal of the Cherokee Indians, peaceable and civilized, to Oklahoma is told. In Paul Green's symphonic drama at Manteo the story of the establishment of the first English settlement in the New World is recounted and leaves the spectator forever wondering what happened to the colony.

Besides truth, and some tears, the stories offer humor, excitement, and the thrill of high adventure. They have the kind of action that small boys and little girls, too, delight in.

Both dramas begin early in the history of this nation, Cherokee in 1540 with the entrance of the French explorer, LaSalle, and Manteo with a prologue and an Indian village scene on Roanoke Island in 1584.

For the Cherokee Indians, the entrance of LaSalle represented the first encounter with white men, who for centuries thereafter were to mean misery to them and all other Indians.

The Cherokee story moves rapidly in time from 1540 to a Council of Chiefs in 1811. The chiefs are urged by a northern warrior, the great Tecumseh, to join him in a war against the white men. Persuaded by Chief Junaluska and their sage, Sequoyah, the Cherokees vote to try to live in peace with the white men.

This was their biggest mistake. As earnest of their intentions, they sent picked men to fight with Gen. Andrew Jackson during the War of 1812. At the battle of Horseshoe Bend, Junaluska saved Jackson's life from a Creek Indian who had him at his mercy.

Years later when Junaluska and other Cherokees called on President Jackson to save them from a disastrous treaty that was forcing them to move westward, Jackson turned his back upon them. On the westward march which left 4,000 dead from cold, starvation and pneumonia, Junaluska is said to have declared, "Oh my God, if I had known at the battle of the Horse Shoe what I know now, American history would have been differently written."

The whole story of the Cherokees as told in "Unto These Hills" is one of ruthless, unscrupulous exploitation by the white man, and is made more poignant by the knowledge that thousands of Indians today still eke out a sublevel existence on their largely barren reservations.

There were good white men who took up the Indians' cause, and they too play a major role in the drama.

The drama is not one of unmitigated gloom, in any case, though even its most moving side-plot deals with the self-sacrifice of the Indian Tsali and his sons to save those of their brethren who had fled into the hills.

There is the drama the good old excitement of battle, the delight of a wedding, the broad humor of frontier women, and the visual attractiveness of the stately Eagle Dance.

All the North Carolina outdoor dramas are high on weddings and dances. The Eagle Dance, with an Indian warrior darting and swooping about the stage with winglike structures of feathers attached to his arms, is one of the most commanding.

Like the story of the Cherokees, "The Lost Colony" is a tragic scene, concerned equally with survival but with the drama heightened by the mystery surrounding the disappearance of "The Lost Colony." As the Cherokees move across the stage in their long trek to Oklahoma, spectators know their fate.

But as the colonists also begin their final stage journey, spectators know there is no answer to their ultimate destination.

Like "Unto These Hills," "The Lost Colony" has its special theatrical and dramatic pleasures—the comedy of a homely Indian woman who attaches herself with doglike devotion to a lazy good-for-nothing fellow (who, by the way, is transformed into a man of courage by his New World venture); the pageantry of the court of Queen Elizabeth I; the christening of Virginia Dare, first English child born in America; and, of course, an Indian dance. This one is the Corn Harvest Dance, an acrobatic display around a symbolic pole.

"Unto These Hills" will have a final performance on August 28; and "The Lost Colony" ends its summer 1974 season on August 31.

Lincoln Center Free Events

NEW YORK (AP) — For the first time, Lincoln Center will present an outdoor festival of 50 free performances of musical comedy, dance, cabaret, recitals, chamber music and street theater as "Lincoln Center Out-of-Doors," beginning Aug. 20 and running for 20 weeks.
 The festival is possible because of a $55,000 grant from the Exxon Corp.

A Plantation House Not Far From Greenville

Looking for a peaceful, beautiful place to see that not's far from Greenville? For a round-robin trip of a little less than 100 miles altogether, Bertie County's Hope Plantation (or as it's often called, Hope House), is a dream come true place. And for those who like combining picnicking with sightseeing, there's ample picnic table space under huge old trees at a good viewing distance from the fine turn of the 19th century home. Originally the home of David Stone, Governor of North Carolina from 1808-1810, Hope Plantation has recently been renovated. Several of the original pieces of furniture are in place—efforts are being made to complete furnishing the house with authentic pieces of the period. There's some lovely old china and a good collection of late 18th and 19th century engravings.

Outbuildings are being added, and landscaping is planned that will include native trees to line the long drive from N.C. 308 that leads to the house.

A suggested route is from Greenville to Williamston, on to Windsor. Take the U.S. 13-17 by-pass north around Windsor. About two and one half miles from where the by-pass begins, turn left on N.C. 308. Hope Plantation is less than four miles from this turn-off point and can easily be seen. There's also a large sign at the entrance.

The return trip can be varied by taking 308 to Lewiston, then following N.C. 11 south to Oak City, Bethel and Greenville.

The more adventurous would enjoy returning from Hope Plantation to the bypass, and one half mile south of 308 taking the country paved road that winds at random through rural Bertie County, passing through the settlements of Grabtown, Quitsna and Cahaba before coming out on N.C. 11 just south of Lewiston.

Hope Plantation is open each Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and on Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission fee is $1.00 for adults and 50 cents for children.

A Brief Look At Reviews of Ovid Pierce's "The Wedding Guest"

After Publication, Critics Have Their Day

"You get that feeling, it's no longer yours, it belongs to the public now," Ovid Williams Pierce commented following the publication by Doubleday of his latest book, "The Wedding Guest" on April 12, 1974.

And Pierce added that once a book is published and available to the public, "the author can only patiently and hopefully await the verdict of critics and readers."

In Pierce's case, his fourth and latest novel was a long awaited event by readers who enjoyed his three earlier books—"The Plantation," (1953); "On A Lonesome Porch," (1960); and "The Devil's Half," (1968).

To give an idea of the reception "The Wedding Guest" has received in the four month period since it was published, a number of brief extracts have been compiled from reviews and literary catalogs on the book.

—The Library Journal, May 1, 1974—"Readers who recall Pierce's previous novels, also set in North Carolina, will enjoy this quiet, introspective book, whose graceful, poetic style and superb characterizations lift the above restrictions of a rather commonplace plot. (Agnes Ringer, formerly at Free Library of Philadelphia).

—The Charlotte Observer, 12 May, 1974—"It is perhaps provincial to say that only a Southerner of pre-World War II vintage can thoroughly savor and appreciate "The Wedding Guest," but I feel compelled nonetheless, to say it . . . the reader who can share it, even in part, is at an advantage." (Betty Anne Stanback).

—The Star-News, Washington, D.C., date is not available—"The Wedding Guest" . . . is a moving and sensitive treatment of . . . the people — black and white alike — who must find the answers for themselves . . . These are people bewildered by encroaching interstate highways, sharp changes in a racial balance and attitudes, and the disturbing attitudes of a younger generation . . ." (Roy Martin).

—Greensboro Daily News, Greensboro, N.C., June 9, 1974—"In reading it ("The Wedding Guest") I felt a certain awkwardness in the style: Too many exclamations in the observer's record of his thoughts; a few clumsy sentences; a tendency to over-explain. In the last few sections the story moved more smoothly, holding my interest in several crucial episodes of past and present." (Elizabeth Mann).

—Columbus Dispatch, Columbus, Ohio, June 9, 1974—"Ovid Pierce has written three novels in which he pictures the Old South with truth and grace. Now in "The Wedding Guest" he does the same for the New South. . . the best characters in this book are the blacks. . . not a book many Northerners will comprehend." (MHM) —Canyon Crier, (town unidentified), May 27, 1974—"Mr. Pierce has taken hold of the old-style plantation novel of moss-hung trees, mint juleps . . . and he does it better than anyone in the magnolia prose belt . . . No hog-calling, protest marching, shot-gunnings, or road trips and pore-white-trash like folks who go for George Wallace." (Stephen Longstreet)

—The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C., March 24, 1974—"It is a large canvas with many small figures. It has no towering central hero, no one is without flaws. It is also Pierce's profoundest and grimmest statement. It is not sensational or exploitive. Mr. Pierce couldn't and wouldn't be that."

Sam Ragan, writer, editor, publisher and one of North Carolina's leading literary figures, compares "The Wedding Guest" to the work of an internationally famed Southern writer, the late William Faulkner.

"The Wedding Guest," Ragan remarks, "equals the best of Faulkner in an eloquent interpretation and understanding of the South. His characters are masterfully drawn, and he deals with an aspect of Southern life largely unexplored in fiction. In fact, I know of no other work of fiction which explores in depth the transition taking place in the South, a land where roots are deep but where a rootless society has come about because fewer hands are needed to produce more and more from the soil. . . . "The Wedding Guest" is the novel of the year in the South."

There have been dozens of other reviews of "The Wedding Guest" appearing in practically every newspaper in North Carolina, and in newspapers and journals across the nation.

Considerable attention was given to Ovid's latest novel and to Ovid the man and writer in the newspapers of the New Orleans area.

It was in New Orleans, where Ovid then taught English at Tulane University, that he completed and published his first and perhaps most celebrated book, "The Plantation," in 1953.

On the occasion of a visit to New Orleans not long before the publication of "The Wedding Guest," Ken Weiss of The Times-Picayune of New Orleans, after an interview with Ovid Pierce, wrote: "The death of regionalism, absence of attachment to the land, of identification with place, concerns Pierce, who questions what effect such trends will have in terms of our culture." Later, in the same interview, Weiss commented: "Mass society is dehumanizing and brutalizing and Pierce is concerned with anything that is a further infringement of the individual's identity."

Even a brief analysis of reviews reveals two points of emphasis expressed by reviewers time and again — first, that Pierce is a superb craftsman who lavishes meticulous care on his writing; and second, that as a person and as a writer he possesses an integrity that would never permit him to exploit the possibilities of sensationalism inherent in the racial issues contained in "The Wedding Guest."

The appearance of a new book, however, entails much more for the author than critical reaction. Behind each literary creation there's an untold story of encouragement, advice, and sometimes there's sorrow.

For Ovid Pierce there was the heartbreak of losing an old friend and staunch supporter, Doubleday editor LeBaron (Lee) Barker. Mr. Barker had worked closely with Pierce on all his previous novels and was in the concluding stages of editing "The Wedding Guest" when he died in late 1973.

When "The Wedding Guest" was published this spring, Mrs. Adeline Barker, Mr. Barker's widow, wrote Ovid: "Your poignantly beautiful book touched me deeply. It pointed out to me more clearly than anything else I've read the sad truth about the old South and the new. . . . As a "Wedding Guest" I could have gone on and on listening. Lee would have been proud of it indeed."

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By MARGARET CLARK

A totally new conception in encyclopedias—the first of its kind is now on the reference shelves of the Sheppard Memorial Library.

The new 15th Edition of ENCYCLOPEDIA BRITANNICA includes 30 volumes, over 33,000 pages, 43 million words, 24,000 illustrations. There are almost 1,200 maps and over 106,000 separate articles, ranging up to 240,000 words in length.

The most remarkable thing about the new BRITANNICA 3 is its unique organization. It is divided into three individual reference sections: the PROPAEDIA, the MICROPAEDIA and the MACROPAEDIA.

The PROPAEDIA is a systematic outline of all human knowledge, in one volume. In one million words, it divides knowledge in ten major areas—which, in turn, are divided into numerous subsections. In addition, it's a rich resource for teachers who seek subjects for open classroom or independent study. And for librarians who recognize the opportunities the PROPAEDIA provides for personalized self-education.

The MICROPAEDIA is a treasury of concise, accurate information in ten volumes. Just what you need to look up facts. Numerous cross-references lead interested readers to more extensive coverage.

The MACROPAEDIA is an unrivaled source of in-depth articles in 19 volumes. They probe every fact of our world, our life and our learning. Leading authorities interpret their chosen subjects in more than 4,200 thoughtful and comprehensive essays. Of these, over 2,800 go into detail about particular people and places. The others cover a wide variety of general subjects. Thousands of illustrations complement and clarify the written word. And most articles feature an annotated bibliography of books and periodicals for further study.

With the new BRITANNICA 3, librarians and teachers can help students get to the facts any number of ways. And make ideas stick. Children of average ability can be directed to facts from the concise MICROPAEDIA articles. Others, with more competence, can go to the comprehensive MACROPAEDIA. And advanced students can develop their own self-study programs from the PROPAEDIA.

The new BRITANNICA'S cross-reference—and short and longer articles—meet the needs of virtually everyone. Now one can get at more topics, from more places and in more ways.

... THINKING OF RETIREMENT? . . . Dame Margot Fonteyn, 55, is shown dancing a pas de deux with Rudolf Nureyev from "Le Corsaire" during rehearsal at London's Royal Ballet in 1973. Although she has won acclaim as Britain's greatest dancer after 40 years on the stage, Royal Ballet officials fear she may be thinking of retirement because she has not accepted any dates for the coming fall-winter season with the ballet company in London. Pueblo Pottery At Mint

Thirty-five pieces of Pueblo pottery form an exhibition made possible through the courtesy of Exxon Company, U.S.A., is now on view in the Round Gallery of the Mint Museum of Art. The pottery remains on view through August 25.

Traditional creations of the master potters of New Mexico's pueblos range in utility and artistry from a simple bean pot to a classic "wedding" pitcher.

Reflecting diverse process and decoration, the wares are, for the most part, painted with vegetable and mineral colors before firing—usually carried out in a simple oven.

As a way of encouraging this American native art,

Exxon Company U.S.A. financed this collection of representative pottery which was produced this year in New Mexico pueblos.

HARKNESS SCHOOL OPENS ENROLLMENT
NEW YORK (AP) — The directors of the Harkness House for Ballet Arts have announced plans to open enrollment and charge tuition beginning with the fall 1974 semester.

Until now, the school operated on a full scholarship basis. Enrollment in the fall is expected to increase 150 per cent over the 1974 spring enrollment of 80. Approximately 45 full scholarships will be offered this fall. With the exception of those enrolled in open classes, students must audition.

Old And New In Mint Museum Show

A selection of both contemporary and traditional works forms an exhibition in the Dwellle Gallery through August.

Among the works exhibited is Leonard Baskin's oversized woodcut entitled "Man of Peace"; a colorful gouache by the Japanese artist Kazuko Hosomi on loan from the Uster Corporation of Charlotte; an oil painting by Robert Henri; a Jasper Cropsey landscape; a large full-length portrait of the Duchess of Cleveland by Sir Peter Lely (on loan to the Mint Museum of Art AN American primitive painting by an unknown artist and a group of 19th century watercolors.

Also exhibited on the main floor of the museum are six color intaglios by the American artist Man Ray, from a series entitled "Electro Magic", acquired by the Mint Museum of Art in 1969.

New Ragan Poetry Contest

The second Sam Ragan Poetry Prize will be awarded by Atlantic Christian College's Crucible this fall.

The prize will be given for the best poem submitted for publication in the Fall issue of Crucible. Established in honor of Dr. Sam Ragan, this contest is open to all writers who wish to enter.

All entries must be completely original, must never have been published, and must be typed in manuscript form. Writers should not enter work currently involved in other competitions.

Manuscripts will be accepted through October 1, 1974, only. A check in the amount of twenty-five ($25.00) will be included with notification of the winner. Crucible will receive first publication rights to winning entries as an integral part of the competition, after which all rights will revert to the author.

Only those manuscripts accompanied by self-addressed, stamped envelopes will be returned. Send entries to: Dr. James B. Hemby, Jr., Chairman, Department of English, Atlantic Christian College, Wilson, North Carolina, 27893.

Birdies Let Trevino Fly Into PGA Lead

TRAP SHOOTER—John Schlee hits the ball from a sand trap on the fourth hole Saturday during the third round of the PGA Championship. Schlee, who led at the midway point fell behind charging Lee Trevino after the third round. (AP Wirephoto)

AP Golf Writer

CLEMMONS, N.C. (AP) — Lee Trevino, flashing the form and frolic that made him part of the American legend, chatted and clowned his way to a two-under-par 68 and swaggered into the third-round lead Saturday in the 56th PGA National Championship.

Trevino, his cap pushed back far on his shock of jet black hair, twirling his putter in a familiar, fidgety fashion, joking all the while, put together a 207 total, three under par on the still-wet, doubly-dangerous 7,050-yard Tanglewood Golf Club course.

Lurking just one shot off his shoulder, however, was the menacing figure of Jack Nicklaus and bitterly disappointed Bobby Cole, the slender young man who ranks as pro golf's "other" South African.

Trevino birdied the final hole and Cole made bogey from the ankle-deep rough. That was a two-shot swing in Trevino's favor.

Cole finished with a 71 for a 208.

Nicklaus, the defending champion in this event that serves as the last of the season's four major tests of golfing greatness, missed a golden opportunity to take a share of the lead when he failed on a short birdie putt on the 17th hole.

Nicklaus matched par 70 in the humid, overcast weather and was tied with Cole for second.

Veteran Frank Beard, who twice made eagle two in a wildly erratic round, and scrambling Hubert Green followed at 209, two shots back going into the last round of this chase for a $45,000 first prize. Beard had a 69 and Green, alone in second and just one shot out of the lead when the day's play started, struggled to a 73.

"I've got no excuses," said the fast-talking lanky young man who has picked up three tour titles this season with his unorthodox putting style.

"My putting was off. A lot of bad golf," he said. "Call it choking if you like."

Gary Player and second-round leader John Schlee dropped back to a tie at 210. Schlee, the star-gazer who had led or shared the lead throughout the first two rounds, went to a fat 75 and Player, already the winner of the Masters and British Open and the author of a record matching 64 in Friday's second round, went to a 73.

"Anybody within five shots still can win," warned Player who offered no excuses.

"I really played pretty well. I had three bogeys, two from bunkers and one from the rough. I two-putted an awful lot."

Also just three strokes behind at 210 were Dave Hill, whose 67 was the best round of the day, and Leonard Thompson, Thompson, winner of the rich Jackie Gleason Inverrary Classic earlier this year, had a 70.

Sam Snead, that 62-year-old marvel from another golfing era, lost a shot to par with a 71 and was next at 211. Arnold Palmer, now 44, and still chasing the one big title that has eluded him, matched par 70 and appeared out of it at 217. Johnny Miller, the season's winning money winner was another stroke back after a 72.

Trevino, four shots out of the lead at the start of the day's play, kept the ball in the fairway on the first two holes with his short, flat swing and rammed in 15-foot birdie putts on each.

But he quickly dropped back into the shifting, scrambling back when he double-bogeyed the fourth hole, catching one of the 110 bunkers that dot this long course, still wet from the heavy rains that have drenched it for almost a week.

He got it in a bunker, came out short and three putted.

He parred the next eight holes while the other leaders struggled from pine tree forest to trap to knee-deep rough to near-disaster to miracle saves.

Schlee, Green and Cole all led or shared the lead at one time as they took turns backing off. Cole, a 25-year-old globetrotter who owns the South African Open title but has yet to win in six years on the American tour, shared the lead on three different occasions.

Trevino, however, was far from through.

He pumped a wedge shot to within four feet of the cup and made the putt for a birdie on the 13th.

He took a share of the lead on the next hole.

Trevino got his third shot on the par-five hole about 20 feet below the cup and ran the putt up to the lip of the cup. It hung there while Trevino did knee bends, blew his breath at the ball, then broke into a broad grin when it finally fell in for a birdie.

"Son-of-a-..." Trevino said, ducked his head between his shoulders, clapped his hands over his mouth and glanced in mock embarrassment at the national television cameras. It gave him a tie for the top.

But he surrendered it on the 16th, making bogey from a bunker.

Cole, now led by one. Trevino had to scramble to save par on the 17th, then lashed his second shot only four feet from the flag and made the birdie putt on the 18th, just moments before Cole made bogey on the hole and gave Trevino the lead alone.

Signees Star In Prep Game

A recent Atlanta Constitution headline read: "Gallaher's Stunts Key South Victory." Then, somewhere later in small type, a line reading "Gallaher and Hale are both headed for East Carolina."

The first headline brought grins to the face of East Carolina Coach Pat Dye and his staff. But more important, the second headline about East Carolina stretched those grins into broad, beaming smiles.

The Gallaher is Terry Gallaher, a speedy 170-pound running back-wide receiver from Warner Robins, Ga., who starred in the Georgia High School All-Star game when he caught the winning touchdown pass on a diving stab in the end zone to give the South a 7-0 victory over the North. The Hale is Steve Hale, who is also bound for East Carolina. His pass and Gallaher's catch won the game for the South.

If the heroics of Gallaher and Hale weren't enough to bring joy to the coaches' faces, the fourth quarter play of North quarterback Mike Dross added something. Dross, who has also signed at East Carolina, led the North in a desperation last minute drive which ended when time ran out at the South eight. The big play in the rally was a third down 36-yard passing strike.

While Dross was working his magic, two other East Carolina signees were helping the North stifle South offensive efforts. Gary Dale and Richard Reeves led a solid defense charge which allowed the South only 58 yards net rushing and 85 yards passing including the Hale to Gallaher 37-yard winning pass.

Gallaher, Dross, Hale, Dale, and Reeves are five of 13 Georgia signees set to attend East Carolina in the fall. The eight other recruits include 6-4, 300-pound Kevin Hill, 6-3, 260-pound William Bolt, running back Alexander French, lineman William Johnson, back David Dunford, 260-pound lineman Thomas Gaston, lineman Mark Huston and 240-pound lineman Lewis Morris.

The Georgia signees will join a West Virginia signee along with 13 North Carolina signees set to report to camp Aug. 23.

Killebrew Leads Twins, 5-1

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Harmon Killebrew, Minnesota's aging slugger, delivered the go-ahead run with a sixth-inning single Saturday to help the Twins, behind Bert Blyleven's five-hit pitching, beat the Baltimore Orioles 5-1 in a nationally televised game.

The 38-year-old Killebrew, who is to be honored Sunday in special pregame ceremonies, ripped a Mike Cuellar curveball to center to score Rod Carew, who had led off the inning with a single and moved to second on a walk to Larry Hise. Bob Darwin's single scored Hise to give the Twins a 3-1 edge.

Blyleven, 11-13, struck out eight and walked one.

Cuellar, 13-9, who had beaten the Twins five straight times, gave up a run in the first inning on successive singles by Steve Brye, Carew and Hise.

He was knocked out in the seventh when Minnesota scored two more runs, Hise and Killebrew driving in their second runs of the game with singles.

Blyleven's crackling curve and rising fastball held the Orioles scoreless until the sixth when they posted an unearned run on Boog Powell's single which brought home Rich Coggins, who had reached first on an error by Carew.

The 23-year-old Blyleven has been a hard-luck pitcher this season, losing six one-run games.

hander presented a marked contrast in pitching styles, to the veteran Cuellar, who relies on a mixture of breaking pitches and rarely goes to his fastball.

It was only Blyleven's fourth victory over the Orioles in 12 decisions during his five seasons with Minnesota. Cuellar, who suffered his third straight setback, is now 13-6 against the Twins in his career.

Only in the sixth inning did Blyleven falter. But after giving up Powell's one-out RBI single, he got Don Baylor on a foul pop and Brooks Robinson on a fly ball to end the inning.

Blyleven retired the Orioles in order in three innings and Coggins was the only Baltimore runner to advance as far as third base.

Carew, the American League's leading hitter, had three singles in four times at bat and scored three runs. Brye, Hise and Killebrew added two hits apiece in the Twins' 13-hit attack.

Tenace Sparks Oakland Victory

OAKLAND (AP) — Gene Tenace drove in his second run of the game with a seventh-inning double Saturday, breaking a tie and sending the Oakland A's to a 5-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

With the score tied 2-2 and two out in the seventh, Dal Maxvill and Billy North singled and Tenace followed with a double down the left field line, scoring Maxvill from second. North also scored on the play after left-fielder Tommy Harper bobbled the ball for an error.

Vida Blue, 14-9, had allowed Boston only three hits—two of them infield singles—before Dwight Evans hit a fly ball to right-center field which might have been the third out in the top of the sixth, but instead tied the score at 2-2.

The ball fell in for a triple after center fielder North apparently lost it in the sun. Juan Beniquez, who had led off the inning with a single, scored from first and Evans came home when Dick Green's relay throw from the outfield went, past third base.

The A's scored twice in the third inning off Boston starter Reggie Cleveland, 8-11. Green opened with a single to right and went to second on a sacrifice by Maxvill. North walked. Tenace singled home Green, Sal Bando walked to load the bases and Jackson delivered a sacrifice fly to score North.

Boston got its final run in the eighth when Beniquez singled, went all the way to third when the ball was misplayed by Claudell Washington and scored on a sacrifice fly by Rico Petrocelli.

But Oakland came up with an insurance run in the bottom of the eighth when Joe Rudi doubled and scored on a throwing error by Doug Griffin.

Port-Hole-Gang Set For Kids

A ticket drive to establish an East Carolina University football "Port-Hole-Gang" begins Monday at the Pirate ticket office. The idea of the newly formed "Port-Hole-Gang" is to give area youngsters 12-years-old or younger an opportunity to see the Pirates in action this year and at the same time, be a part of a group of youngsters supporting East Carolina athletics.

In announcing the formation of the gang, Director of Athletics Clarence Stasavich said, "we are organizing this group to help young people sit together in one area of the stadium and enjoy college football."

"It will also give the young people an opportunity to show their loyalty to the Pirates by wearing a special 'Port-Hole-Gang' T-shirt."

Under the "Port-Hole-Gang" plan, young people can join the organization for $7 which would entitle them to a ticket to each of five Pirate home games and to a "Port-Hole-Gang" T-shirt to be worn to every game.

"The only concern we have right now," Stasavich said, "is that the area can only handle about 300 people which might create a problem in that there may be a larger demand for membership. Preliminary interest has been very strong."

Stasavich lists the drive for young people as "just another service the University wants to provide to the young people in eastern North Carolina. We hope they will be enthusiastic supporters of East Carolina. By establishing a 'Port-Hole-Gang,' we want them to have the best opportunity possible."

"Port-Hole-Gang" tickets as well as season tickets will be available at the East Carolina Athletic Ticket office beginning Monday.

Allen Scals Indians, 5-1

CLEVELAND (AP) — Dick Allen drove in four runs with a three-run homer and a single and Wilbur Wood became the major league's first 18-game winner, leading the Chicago White Sox to a 5-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday.

Chicago jumped out to an early lead in the first inning when Pat Kelly and Jorge Orta singled in front of Allen's 31st home run of the season.

Cleveland scored a run in the bottom of the first on Tom McCraw's fourth homer of the season.

The White Sox added two more runs in the top of the fourth when Brian Downing doubled to left and scored on Kelly's single. After Kelly stole second, Allen drove in his fourth run with a single to center.

Wood, who has lost 13 games, scattered seven Cleveland hits, striking out three batters and walking one. Dick Bosman, 5-1, was chased from the game in the fourth inning after giving up five runs on nine hits.

Tennessee Wins Senior BR Title

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

Mike Ely's two-out single in the fourth drove in two runs providing the margin and Tommy Pinson hobbled Alabama on three hits to lead Tennessee to a 5-2 win and the Southeast Regional Senior Babe Ruth championship, Saturday.

Tennessee scored three runs in the fourth and added another in the fifth for a 5-0 lead. They opened their scoring in the first with a lone run.

Alabama rallied for a pair in the sixth and had the bases loaded but Pinson bore down and got out of the jam. He set the three Alabama batters down in order in the seventh to win the game.

Earlier in the day, Alabama concluded a 9-7 victory over Florida to move into the finals of the regional tournament. The game had been continued from Friday when it was postponed because of rain. The game was called after five and one third innings and started there Saturday.

Alabama had to work for its win over Florida. 'Bama broke loose for six runs in the first inning but Florida rocked starter Terry Daniels for seven straight hits in the third as they came back with seven runs. That pulled them within one. Alabama had picked up two in the top of the third.

when Florida got a double and a single after the first out in the sixth. The rally was quelled and Alabama held on in the seventh for the win.

Pinson flirted with a perfect game for three innings and went five frames giving up only one hit. He retired the first nine batters he saw but Rocky Kimple slashed a double to right center opening the fourth. He was later tagged out as he tried to score on a passed ball.

Pinson ended up giving up three hits, walking one, hitting one and striking out five. Both Alabama's runs were unearned.

Tennessee started the scoring in the first getting one. Phil Stinson singled to deep short and Wright singled. After Stinson moved up on an out, he scored on Greg Robinson's hit.

Tennessee put men on in the next two innings but left them stranded in the second inning and in the third the runner was caught in a double play.

Alabama's Dann Mathis walked Pat Satterfield in the fourth and Kerry Maxwell slapped an opposite field single. Tommy Cartwright reached on an error to load the bases. Stinson walked forcing in Satterfield and Wright's single to center brought in Maxwell and Cartwright for a 4-0 lead.

Tennessee picked up another in the fifth as George Callis singled and scored on an error on Terry Boyd's grounder. Alabama scored both its runs in the sixth as Mike Williams was hit by a pitch and Mark Pfaff was safe on an error.

Kimple singled in Williams and Mohler got a hit to drive in Harry Crump, running for Pfaff. Pinson retired the three Alabama batters in the seventh himself, throwing out the first, Skippy Mugnier lined out to the box for out two and Williams struck out to end the game.

The series went five days longer than expected as a result of the rain. Seven games were played Saturday and the games were spread out over the past week as teams played as long as the rain and the field held up.

The grounds crew at Guy Smith Stadium did an outstanding job keeping the field playable. The rains seemed to wash it away at times but by the next game, the field was ready to go.

Tennessee will now go on to the national finals to be held in Mattoon, Ill. later this month.

Irish Confirm Six Dropped

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — A prosecuting attorney's report that six Notre Dame football players had been dismissed from school for one year was confirmed obliquely Saturday by the university.

William E. Voor, St. Joseph County prosecutor, said last Thursday no criminal prosecution was planned on an 18-year-old woman's complaint against the six athletes, made several days after an incident on which Voor said there were conflicting reports.

The Notre Dame sports information release on football prospects said: "...Six other players, two of them returning starters, will be absent from the team this fall.

Ross Browner, regular defensive end a year ago, and Luther Bradley, the outstanding strong safety, halfback Al Hunter and defensive end Willie Fry, both returning lettermen, ran afoul of university rules and were dismissed for one year, along with reserve backs Dan Knott and Roy Henry."

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY REELE

The name of East Carolina University may become a little better known on the other side of the Atlantic during the coming months.

And basketball may do it. Former East Carolina cage coach Tom Quinn has left for the Netherlands to coach a team there, and just graduated Nicky White had left to play for a team in the Belgian League.

And now, former center Al Faber had inked a contract to play with a team in the Italian League.

It's been a year since Faber finished his career at East Carolina. In the meantime, he's completed his undergraduate work and done some substitute teaching in the area—as well as keeping his basketball play in tune through playing in local leagues.

In Italy, he'll be playing for the Birra Moreitta team in Chieti, located on the Adriatic Sea coast east of Rome.

"There are 24 teams in the league," Faber said, "and we play about 32 games a year. The season starts in late November and continues until about the middle of May. We play twice a week." He's due to report in Italy on September 1.

Faber got lined up with the Italian team through former Davidson (now Virginia) coach Terry Holland. "I went down there (Davidson) to attend a tryout for an Australian league, and he suggested that I get in touch with Richard Sorkin, an agent in New York. I did, went through a tryout and was picked to make a tour of Europe," Faber said.

About 70 showed up for the tryout and only 10 were picked, joining 14 others previously picked to form two teams of 12 to tour Europe. One went to Holland and the other went to France. Faber, in the French group, played against local teams in that country.

"The coaches of the various teams know we're coming and they come up to scout, looking for players to sign. Only about 13 of us were eventually signed."

Faber compared the teams he played against in France to the average small college team in this country. "My last East Carolina team could have beaten most of them. Each country over there has a league, but with a lot of weaker teams and just a few strong ones."

While some of the countries allow as many as two foreigners to play with them, the Italian League permits only one, so Faber will be the lone non-Italian on his team. "The better teams in each country play at the end of each year for the European Cup, with the best from the other countries, and those Italian teams playing can have two foreigners then, but my team isn't in that group yet."

Faber said that teams are divided into four different divisions, much like the NCAA's Division I, II and III, with the best usually at the top. "My team was a second division team last year, but it and nine others have been brought up to the first division this year with the 14 already in that group, so we won't be that strong."

There will be problems for Faber, who speaks no Italian. "My coach speaks a little English, and some of the players know a little. I've already picked up a few Italian phrases from my first trip, and I expect I'll learn it pretty fast."

But why did he choose Europe? "Well, I like to play basketball and this gives me a chance to do it—to make some money at the same time—and to see part of the world doing it."

'Sam' Gets Look From The Pros

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
CLEMMONS, N.C. (AP) — Pro golfers are smashers, not mashers, says Sam, the golden-tressed, midi-skirted sheriff's deputy.

"I haven't been pinched once," Sam says. "A guy thinks twice before pinching a girl wearing a gun."

Sam's square name is Evelyn Owens. As a Forsythe County deputy sheriff, her job this weekend has been to guard the contestants' door at Tanglewood, site of the 56th PGA Golf Championship.

As Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Gary Player and others stride from the Tanglewood Club lobby, past the dining room and into the locker room, they blink twice.

If they have 20-20 vision, they may blink a half-dozen times. There stands Sam in police brown, a 38-Colt Cobra hanging from her shoulder, a black aerosol can of mace and handcuffs dangling from a wide leather belt.

"Sure, I can use it," Sam says of the revolver. "I had to go through training like everybody else."

Evelyn, named Sam by her fellow officers, is the estranged wife of another deputy. She has been on the force a little more than a year. She was in the wings at a bank robbery shoot-out and once she was part of a posse tracking down a convicted murderer.

"This has been a pleasant assignment this week," she says. "All I have to do is check credentials at the door. I don't know anything about golf. But I've learned a lot about golfers."

Sam, 29, brown-eyed, fair-skinned with blonde hair that falls almost down to her pistol, says she has found most golfers perfect gentlemen. "Some of them kid me when they come by," she said. "They point a finger at me and say 'Bang, bang.' They all seemed intrigued by my gun. I haven't had to use it yet."

"One asked me for my telephone number. A few have asked me out to dinner. I have no personal objections to it. I just haven't had a chance to accept."

Raiders Win, 28-16

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — A pair of touchdowns by rookie running back Harold Hart and the pinpoint passing of veteran Ken Stabler led the Oakland Raiders to a 28-16 National Football League exhibition victory over the Atlanta Falcons at the University of California Saturday.

Hart, a 6-foot, 206-pound No. 11 draft choice from Texas Southern, scored on runs of 20 and 11 yards to cap first-half drives featuring Stabler's passing as the Raiders ran their pre-season record to 2-0. Atlanta dropped to 1-1.

There were no pickets at Memorial Stadium, where the Raiders have a 5-1 record. A crowd of 34,319 attended—possibly reduced by dissatisfaction with the NFL labor dispute and a local transit strike.

Stabler completed nine of 11 passes for 111 yards in the first half.

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — David Pearson and Richard Petty, two iron-nerved veterans, rank as top favorites to capture Sunday's sixth Talladeega 500, a stock car race in which form never holds true.

The two $1 million career winners hold top starting positions for the 1 p.m. (CDT) flag-off—Pearson on the Pole in the Mercury with which he has won four events and nine pole positions and Petty third in a Dodge that has taken him to seven triumphs and the top of the season's money list.

Yet neither has ever won the late summer speedfest at Alabama International Speedway, a 2.66 mile tri-oval where only a week ago A.J. Foyt set a closed course speed record of 217.585 miles per hour in an Indianapolis-type car.

The Talladeega 500, one of the Grand National tour's richest events, has been won four of its five times by drivers who either has never claimed a winner's trophy or who disappeared into obscurity after they got their first one.

Richard Brickhouse won the first one in 1969 and promptly dropped out of the big time. Pete Hamilton did it in 1970, and a year later went back to the short tracks where he now competes for $1,000 winner's purses.

Bobby Allison, who is one of this year's favorites with the other front row position in a Matador, won it in 1971—and most say he's the only legitimate winner still around.

James Hylton, a journeyman driver-mechanic who has never won a Grand National, came out of nowhere to capture the 1972 running—after most of the favorites had dropped out because of tire problems.

Dick Brooks, who like Hylton will be running again Sunday, qualified a castoff Plymouth 21st last year and, late in the race, found himself with a tiger on four wheels.

"This is a race that anybody can win," Brooks said. "All you need is some common sense and a car that has good speed and durability. If you stay with the leaders and let them run themselves out, you've got a chance."

In addition to Pearson, Petty and Allison, other pre-race favorites include Donnie Allison, Buddy Baker and Cale Yarborough. Two darkhorses, Neil Castles and Clifton "Coo Coo" Marlin, also have starting positions at the top of the order.

There are longshots deep in the pack.

In a late afternoon qualifying session Friday, rookie Dan Daugherty of Punto Gordo, Fla., put his Ford in 21st position at 181.780 m.p.h.

And Saturday morning, Jimmy Crawford of Atlanta qualified a Plymouth at 182.178 m.p.h., third fastest of all the starters. He starts 41st.

Ironically, Crawford, an airlines pilot, is driving the same car Brooks used in his moment of glory in 1973.

Pearson won the pole position, his ninth in 13 starts this year, with a speed of 184.926 m.p.h. Bobby Allison, driving Roger Penske's Matador, registered 184.373 mph.

Petty, winner of the circuit's last two 500 mile races, has never won at the Alabama track while Pearson is a three-time winner of the speedway's other 500 miler, the Winston 500 in May.

If the weather is good, as many as 50,000 could watch the event.

Rose's Hit Leads Cincinnati, 5-3

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Rose's bases-loaded, two-out single snapped an eighth-inning tie and the Cincinnati Reds defeated the New York Mets 5-3 Saturday.

The Reds, who stole seven bases in the game, scored the deciding runs with the help of errors by Felix Millan and Bud Harrelson. Millan's error allowed Cesar Geronimo to reach base and, after Dave Concepcion singled, Harrelson misplayed the relay, giving Cincinnati runners at second and third.

Pinch-hitter Phil Gagliano was intentionally walked, loading the bases. After reliever Bob Miller struck out Merv Rettenmund, Rose delivered the decisive hit.

The Mets had tied the score in the bottom of the seventh when Wayne Garrett walked and came around on hits by Millan and Rusty Staub.

Cincinnati had gone ahead with two runs in the top of the seventh. Ken Griffey opened with a double against Tom Seaver, then raced home on Terry Crowley's pinch single. After Rose hit into a double play, Joe Morgan singled, stole second and scored on Tony Perez' single.

That balanced two Met runs in the bottom of the sixth produced on a walk to Garrett, consecutive singles by Staub, Cleo Jones and John Milner and an infield out.

The Reds got their first run in the second inning when they stole three bases. Concepcion singled and stole second. After Griffey walked, Cincinnati pulled a double steal. Then Concepcion scored on an infield out.

Strike Talks Recess After 10 Hour Session

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National football League contract talks broke off again Saturday night, without an agreement, but will be resumed again next week in hopes of ending the 41-day strike.

W.J. Usery Jr., chief federal mediator, told newsmen after the week-long marathon session ended Saturday night: "I am very disappointed we were unable to consummate an agreement. I thought we could have (resolved the dispute) and should have been able to," he said.

Negotiators for the striking players and 26 club owners met for 10 straight hours Saturday, following marathon meetings that began Tuesday.

Wellington Mara, owner of the New York Giants and chairman of the NFL Management Council, speaking of the five straight days of negotiations with the mediator, said: "many issues became more clear, more clearly framed, but the more clearly framed they become, the more difficult they appear."

Mara declined to answer questions on what was discussed relating to the freedom issues, the main thrust of the players' demands.

He did say, however, that the two sides are more than $30 million apart—a figure that the players' union disputed.

Mara said the club payrolls for the regular season have risen more than $17 million this season over last year.

He added that each five per cent of all the money gained by the players comes from individual contract negotiations with less than 15 per cent coming from other sources, meaning collective bargaining by the union, although he did not say so.

"I think that we're getting into a situation that the 15 per cent is getting to jeopardize the 85 per cent," Mara said. "It seems to me a very small tail is beginning to wag the dog."

Bill Curry of the Houston Oilers, players union president, also declined to discuss substantial issues because, he said, of an agreement the association had made with a federal mediator. He said he would not talk to the issues even though the owners apparently had made the same agreement but had violated it.

"I feel substantial progress has been made," Curry said. "There was a lot of hard bargaining."

Ed Garvey, union executive director, said he was "disappointed that the union doesn't have any new agreement. It's a tough battle."

There are indications that the negotiations might not be held next week because Usery will be out of Washington for at least three days, but he said they can take place without him and the dates will be decided either Monday or Tuesday. Usery addresses the American Hospital Association in Chicago Tuesday, then goes to Honolulu for the American Bar Association meeting.

He said that his assistants James Scearce and Louis Sabatino, who were handling the mediation before Usery entered the negotiations two weeks ago, would be in charge while he was away.

Meanwhile, the two parties have formed a subcommittee that will meet next week to work on the issues that were described by Garvey "as working conditions."

In another development, the scheduled weekend meeting of the 26 player representatives was cancelled Saturday because of the day-long talks.

The meeting originally was set for Friday, was postponed until Saturday and then called off had been scheduled to brief the player representatives on the contract negotiations, being held here under the supervision of chief federal mediator W.J. Usery Jr.

Cheerers Honored

Six of Rose High's Varsity Cheerleaders recently won awards for excellence in performance at a camp in South Carolina.

The six cheerleaders, Kim Knight, Lyn Gant, Christie Priestly, Nat Fleming, Beth Cherry, and Kim Vick, all attended Camp Pla-Mor at North Myrtle Beach, S.C., for a cheerleading clinic.

For the first half-week, they won an award for the most spirited group. Then, in competition with 18 other groups, they placed first in pompons, and second place in cheering. They also earned the "Spirit Bell" for the most enthusiastic group during the week, and the Most Congenial Squad Title. The camp was held from July 21 through July 26.

Bad Luck Stalks Perry

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
"You know," observed Orlando Cepeda, "I can still play baseball."
The Boston Red Sox apparently had their doubts during spring training, when they released the 36-year-old slugger. But given a chance recently by the Kansas City Royals, Cepeda is proving the Boston brass — and a lot of other people — wrong.
Cepeda drove in five runs Friday night, pacing the Royals to a 13-3 romp over the Milwaukee Brewers. In five games with his new club, he has seven hits in 23 times at bat and has driven in 10 runs.
Elsewhere in the American League Friday, Chicago beat Cleveland 5-3, Boston defeated

Oakland 6-2, Minnesota tripped Baltimore 6-2, Texas edged Detroit 4-3 in 14 innings, and California beat New York 7-1.
Friday night against Milwaukee, Cepeda helped Royals ace Steve Busby post his 17th victory against nine defeats. He doubled home two runs in the first inning, then slammed a bases-loaded double to drive in three more runs in the third as Kansas City jumped out to a 12-1 lead.
White Sox 5, Indians 3
Consecutive homers by Pat Kelly and Jorge Orta started the White Sox off to four runs in the sixth inning as they handed Gaylord Perry his sixth consecutive defeat.
Perry, 15-7, held the White Sox to two hits until Kelly and Orta led off the sixth with homers to tie the score 2-2. After Dick Allen walked, Carlos May smashed a long double off the center field fence, scoring Allen with the go-ahead run. May moved to third on Bill Melton's single and scored on Bill Sharp's sacrifice fly.

Red Sox 6, A's 2
Juan Beniquez' bases-loaded double keyed a four-run second inning that lifted the Red Sox past the A's in a battle of AL division leaders.
Beniquez drove in two runs and then came around to score on an infield out and an error by Oakland shortstop Dal Maxvill. Doug Griffin drove in the other run in the inning with an infield grounder.
Twins 6, Orioles 2
The Twins grabbed a 6-0 lead with two runs in each of the first three innings and sailed past Baltimore.

Rangers 4, Tigers 3
Mike Hargrove's two-out single in the 14th inning lifted the Rangers to victory.
Jim Sundberg opened the 14th with a single and moved up on a sacrifice. After Lenny Randle flied out and Jeff Burroughs was intentionally walked, Hargrove delivered his game-winning hit.
Angels 7, Yankees 1
Rookie Frank Tanana stopped New York on seven hits while Bobby Valentine drove in three runs with a pair of singles. It was first victory for Tanana, 7-14, in a starting role since beating Oakland May 25. He struck out seven and did not walk a batter.

Norris Guides Secondary

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer
One way to describe a defensive squad is to compare it to an army. An army has several lines of defense each with a specific job but each backs each other up.
It is the same way with a football team's defense. First there is the "front four" or sometimes five. These linemen are the primary rushers. Behind them are three or four linebackers whose job is to guard mainly against the rush but at the same time be ready to cover on a pass.
Behind them are the men who are the last line of defense—the cornerbacks and safeties. Their primary job is to guard against the pass. They also have to be able to come up to help choke off the run and at times are the last men to have a chance to stop a defender from scoring.
At East Carolina, these men are asked to play pass defense but must also be run defenders. Teaching the players who fill these four positions is the job of Lanny Norris, ECU defensive backfield coach.
"In the past, where you had three deep and they were concerned primarily with stopping the pass, there were eight men up front to stop the run. It's not like that any more," said Norris. "We have to spend a good bit of our time working on stopping the run, stopping the option; we're responsible for turning everything back inside to the linebackers and making something happen."

"On the field what we work on primarily is working over and over again against the option, against different things we'll see coming at us and learning how to take on lead blockers, getting rid of the blocker and helping make the tackle."
Norris stressed the point that the ECU secondary is mainly concerned with the pass. That is the weapon that can beat a football team the quickest. The defensive backs work every day on individual and team drills learning what to do in different situations.
East Carolina uses a rotating secondary. This involves rotating the secondary in the direction of the flow of the offense with the ball. "It is a thing of having to work on these things—breaking on the ball, going to it and knowing where to go when you see a thing happen. It is just a thing of doing it over and over so that when it happens in a game, the player does not have to sit and think 'What am I supposed to do?' It comes automatically."
Norris tries to work his defensive backs against the best offensive receivers. That way, they can get an idea of what will be coming at them during the game. Most of the time, the defense will work against the scout team, a squad made of offensive players not on the first two teams and won't be playing during the game, will run the week's opponent's offense against the defense. That way the defense gets a picture of what to expect.

Of course, there will be a difference during the game when everything is full speed with the best of both teams going against each other. Norris likes to work some during practice with the receivers going over their pass coverage.
During the game Norris will probably be in the press box looking down on the field talking with the linebacker or another defensive coach on the sideline.
"What we hope to do is be able to scout the team well enough before the game that we can work on everything they might possibly be against us. We'll be able to make adjustments from the press box and the sidelines during the game according to what they are coming with."
"It could be that we have been rotating a certain way of playing a different depth and they are hitting us with a route that we did not expect so we can make adjustments from what we see in the press box."
The coaches in the press box also try to look at their opponent's blocking scheme and who they are trying to isolate. Still, Norris hopes that his backs can be prepared enough before the game that changes during the game will not be needed.
Norris is also in charge of despending books to scholarship players. "We furnish the books for all the players and that is a pretty big job when you consider there are close to 100 players and you have to be responsible for keeping up with all the books that are turned back in and finding out what is still being used.

"I also work with the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. There was an FCA here a few years ago but it died out. We got one started when we came in the spring. I hope to see it grow this fall. That is something the players and I have done on our own," said Norris.
Since the scholarship for each player includes their books, instead of buying new books every year, the players are issued the books that they will need for the year. The books are used over and over as long as they are required.
The players have to take care of any damages done during the use of the book. The books are issued in good condition and the players are expected to return them in good shape.
Norris also recruits. His main area is around Fayetteville and Lumberton. "We try to encourage a player to come to East Carolina because we feel that it is a good school and that we feel they would be making a good choice to come to ECU. If a player is interested in coming to college to play football that means one of his considerations is what type of program we hope to have."
This fall Norris will have Reggie Pinkney and Jim Bolding, both starters, back but will have to do a lot of work as the Pirates lost three seniors off that defensive backfield corps. But Pinkney and Bolding provide a strong nucleus to start from.

Northrup Makes Quick Adjustment

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
It didn't take Jim Northrup long to get himself acclimated to his new surroundings in the National League.
Purchased by Montreal from Detroit earlier this week, Northrup at first balked at reporting, then showed up in time for Friday night's game at Houston. The Astros wish he had waited a little longer.
All the veteran outfielder did was stroke a game-tying home run in the seventh inning, and a single touching off the winning rally in the ninth as the Expos nipped Houston 4-3.
Elsewhere in the National League, St. Louis opened its East Division lead to 1½ games by defeating Los Angeles 5-3 while second-place Philadelphia was losing 3-2 in 11 innings to Atlanta.

The Dodgers maintained their 5½ game lead in the West when second-place Cincinnati dropped a 4-1 decision to the New York Mets. Pittsburgh thumped San Diego 7-3 and San Francisco shut out Chicago 3-0.
The score was 2-2 in the ninth when Northrup laced his second hit of the game. He moved up on a walk to Ken Singleton and then scampared home on Barry Foote's single. Ron Hunt singled home another run.
The Expos needed that extra cushion because the Astros pushed across a run in the bottom of the ninth on Cesar Cedeño's two-out single. But reliever Don Carrithers nailed down the victory for Dennis Dennis Blair.
Mets 4, Reds 1
Don Hahn scored New York's first run on a double by pitcher Bob Apodaca, and then added a three-run home run as New York stalled Cincinnati.
Apodaca, 4-5, permitted just two hits in seven innings and his fourth-inning double, only his second hit of the season, drove in Hahn.
Braves 3, Phillies 2
Ralph Garr doubled in the 11th inning and then scored Atlanta's winning run on a sacrifice fly by Darrell Evans as the Braves edged Philadelphia.

Giants 3, Cubs 0
Home runs by Gary Matthews and Dave Kingman backed the six-hit pitching of Jim Barr and the Giants shut out Chicago.
Cards 5, Dodgers 3
Ted Simmons' grand slam home run carried St. Louis over Los Angeles, the third straight loss for the Dodgers, NL West leaders.
Simmons connected on the first pitch from Geoff Zahn after the Dodger rookie had walked Joe Torre to load the bases.
Pirates 7, Padres 3
Pittsburgh won its fifth straight, beating San Diego behind Jim Rooker's eight-hitter.
Two errors by Padre shortstop Enzo Hernandez helped Pittsburgh to three runs in the first inning and Rennie Stennett homered in the second.

Jaycees Seek Meet

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—The Greensboro Jaycees want to host the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) indoor track meet at the Greensboro Coliseum Feb. 14-15 as part of a three-way track program.
A Jaycees spokesman said Friday night approval by NAIA directors to complete initial arrangements was expected within a few days.
A state high school meet is planned for Feb. 12-13 and an International Track Association professional meet is set for Feb. 16, also at the Coliseum.

The North Carolina Travel and Promotion Division had issued a $10,000 grant for promotion of the event to the Greensboro Chamber of Commerce. The chamber has turned it over to the Jaycees.
Among supporters of the meet are Dr. Leroy Walker, track coach at North Carolina Central University; Dr. Roy Moore of the North Carolina A&T State University physical education department; and Dr. Herb Appenzeller, Guilford College athletic director and an NAIA director.
The coliseum, with 15,500 seats, was host to the NCAA basketball championship round last March.
Under Walker's guidance, a U.S.-Russia track meet was held in Durham last month.

Tourney Rained On

Divisional finals in the Church Softball League tournament were rained out Friday night.
They will be rescheduled for Monday night at 7:30 p.m. in the National Division, Grace will play Black Jack, while Oakmont takes on St. Gabriel in the American Division. A second game in either or both would follow immediately, if needed.
The two survivors will begin a best-of-three series for the overall league title on Tuesday.

McMillen To Play Italian Ball

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—Tom McMillen doesn't plan to alter his rigorous work play schedule just because he's a Rhodes Scholar.
Rejecting offers by two American pro teams, the 6-foot-11 former University of Maryland star has signed to play in the Italian basketball league while studying at England's Oxford University.
The season opener for his team, Virtus Sinudyne of Bologna, will be Oct. 13. Two days later, the semester begins at Oxford for McMillen's course in politics, philosophy and economics.
McMillen described his scholar-athlete combination as "the best of both worlds," and saw no reason why he couldn't pull it off. He's used to such a pace. While setting the all-time Maryland career scoring record of 1,807 points and being named to numerous all-star teams, McMillen posted a 3.8 grade point average while majoring in chemistry as a pre-med student.

The native of Mansfield, Pa., also served on the President's Council for Physical Fitness and Sports, headed a state commission of student affairs for 22 colleges, and made numerous appearances for charity organizations.
"I'm going to pursue something that really means a great deal to me," McMillen said, "and at the same time I'll be able to maintain my skills in basketball."
McMillen will play 40 league games, on Sundays and Wednesdays, and two or more Cup games. Attorney Donald Dell, a former world class tennis player who negotiated McMillen's two-year contract, declined to reveal the terms but indicated the pay was lucrative.

Dell said both the Buffalo Braves of the National Basketball Association and the Virginia Squires of the American Basketball Association had made "extremely strong offers."
Since he still wants to play pro ball in the United States, McMillen said it would have been much harder to reach a decision to attend Oxford without the opportunity of also playing in Italy.
McMillen's coach will be Dan Peterson, who served five years as head coach of the University of Delaware in 1971, coached the Chilean national team two years, and joined Virtus last season. His assistant is John McMillen, Tom's cousin who played for Peterson at Delaware.

"It's tough competition over there," McMillen said, "so I shouldn't have any trouble maintaining and improving my skills. I still want to play pro ball when I get back. That will always be a challenge for me."
McMillen noted that Bill Bradley has had a successful NBA career after completing his studies as a Rhodes Scholar, adding: "And he only played in a few Cup games in Italy, not in league competition the way I will."

The Gas Savers
Because of the lower rolling resistance of Michelin "X" radials over conventional bias-ply tires, you might get as much as 10% savings over your present gas consumption. This means more miles per gallon of gas. It means extra dollars in your pocket.

WVa Coach Says Team Is 'Best'

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP)—West Virginia University football coach Bobby Bowden says this year's team could be the best he has had at the Morgantown school.

"Physically, on paper, there's more depth at all positions. In my opinion, this football team is better than any I've had," Bowden said in an interview on Charleston television station WCHS.

The Mountaineers have what many observers consider the most talented wide receiver in college football this year in Danny Buggs, but the problem will be getting the ball to him.

Quarterback is the one key position still in doubt, Bowden said. Ben Williams is the number one prospect, but sophomores Kirk Lewis and Tom Loadman are in the running for the job.

To take the pressure off the throwing game, Bowden said he believes the Mountaineers will make use of a stronger running attack. He said Buggs will be used in more running plays.

"What we've tried to do is go out and establish our running game to where you've got to stop us inside," he noted. Bowden said many teams were able to concentrate on stopping Buggs last year because the running game was not strong.

Buggs is "a naturally exciting football player, very daring, believes in his own ability. Anytime he's healthy in a ball game, we would have a chance of winning," Bowden said.

The Mountaineers face a tougher schedule this year than last, but Bowden said that with a healthy team, the team should be able to hold its own.

WVU opens with Richmond, then plays Kentucky, Tulane, Indiana, Pitt, Miami, Penn State, Boston College, Syracuse, Temple, and Virginia Tech.

silver platters; casually selecting a ripe olive from this plate, a fried grasshopper from the next, perhaps a greasy sparerib from the next. He isn't worried that anybody might get in line ahead of him. And he's picky. O my goodness, is he ever picky.

I love to fool a pompous brown trout more than anything in the world. It's like sneaking a rubber grasshopper onto Nero's plate or watching him light up a loaded cigar.

And so quite naturally, I was very happy to see old Nero humself lying back on his couch under that overhanging rhododendron in an almost motionless eddy tight against a big rock. Every once in awhile, Nero would reach out and pluck a cashew from the passing trays—though I really suspect it was a mayfly.

I was there three miles up a public wild trout stream in western North Carolina. It had been raining, and the creek was rising and growing increasingly discolored. It was an ideal time to catch wild brown trout.

I had, in fact, already caught and released a bunch of trout. They were nice, but hardly in the Nero class. I would say they ranged up to the Centurion grade, with an occasional Palace Guard. Nothing exceptional—10 to 12 inch fish.

So, a I said, I was glad to see that dainty, dimpled rise against that big rock. I knew it had to be a sizeable—at least 15 inches—trout and I would have sworn on a first edition of "The Compleat Angler" that it was a brown because he was in the still water towards the tail of the pool.

It was not going to be easy to feed this Nero a loaded stogie. A tongue of current separated us. There was no room to make a backcast. I would have to roll cast about 30 feet across the pool—over the swifter water—and drop the fly under the rhododendron against the opposite bank where the trout was lying in a gently backwater at the base of the rock. If he fly dragged in the current, the trout would ignore it. The fast current between us was moving downstream, but the eddy against the rock was barely flowing upstream. Tricky.

I took my time getting into position. Then I worked out what appeared to be the proper length of line by casting directly upstream. As my line floated past me, I made a side-arm roll cast across the current and the fly whipped across under the rhododendron and lit softly about 18 inches below the trout. Quickly, I threw an upstream mend in the line so that the swift current in the middle of the stream would not drag the fly.

The fly floated slowly against the rock. It seemed like an eternity, but it was only seconds. Then there was a dimple. I lifted the rod tip and felt the surge of a good trout.

The fish pounded against the light leader, trying to get under the rock or into the tangle of trash that had gathered in the backwater. I pressured him as much as I dared, and he came out and shot downstream past me. I played him carefully, then worked him to the net. He was bright gold with large red spots along his heavy flanks; a beautiful fish. I admired him for a few moments, then released him. Now it would be very tempting for me to pass this episode off as typical of the kind of skill I consistently display on a trout stream—and I probably would try if I thought I could get away with it. In actuality, I have probably spooked more trout through bumping incompetence than any three other fishermen in the state. I could get a fly tangled in a tree in the middle of the Sahara, and the occasional trout I do catch is probably mentally defective. But every once in awhile, it all falls into place and fancy becomes fact. It's a small reward, but like Key Lime pie, it's rich and goes a long way.

Fans Stay Away As 'Skins, Colts Play

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

The turnstile count was 21,560. Not at Washington. Not at Baltimore. At both.

Fans stayed away in droves at Baltimore's Memorial Stadium where 6,792 people came to see the Detroit Lions beat the Colts 6-3 in a National Football League exhibition game.

And only 14,768 people were interested enough to watch the Houston Oilers—the worst team in the NFL last year—beat George Allen's Washington Redskins 48-3 at RFK Stadium. If the NFL was worried, it wasn't saying. Jim Kensil, the executive director of the NFL, declined to say anything.

"Any comment on that would have to come from the owners," said Kensil, reached by telephone at his home in New York.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, said, "It's a shame for football."

Dave Wooley's four-yard touchdown strike with six minutes left in the game enabled the Lions to offset a Toni Linhart field goal of 37 yards for the Colts.

Rookie tackle Archie Pearson got to Baltimore quarterback Bob Browinski twice, forcing the Colts to punt from deep in their own territory and helping to set up the winning touchdown.

Rookie quarterback Jim Foote led the Oilers by completing 10 of 16 passes for 206 yards and two touchdowns before leaving the game early in the fourth quarter.

Foote's 42-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Billy Johnson, another rookie, gave the Oilers a 7-0 lead late in the first period.

Tar Heel Outdoors: His 1st Big Battle

by Joel Arrington

Mate Eddie Tabscott had left two lines in the wake of the "Jeanie II" as we steamed toward Ocracoke with heavy seas on our beam. The lines were tipped with nylon jigs and bonito strips.

Both rods bent simultaneously. Eddie yelled "strike" to his father on the bridge and the skipper throttled, but the rods went straight again.

As the boat made its turn to relocate the fish, hopefully wahoo or tuna, the starboard rod bent and the reel screamed against a strong fish. Eddie set the hook and handed the rod to Perry Jenifer, a sports writer for the Fayetteville Times.

Perry will be the first to admit that he has little experience playing large fish. On 80-pound line, it was obvious that this was no little bonito. Our hope was for a giant wahoo or a yellowfin tuna. Jenifer began to pay the price to find out.

We had sailed out of Morehead City that morning with a brisk southwest wind on our stern. Our objective was the 50-fathom curve where fish had been caught in recent days. Ultimately we had worked out to over 100 fathoms, but caught nothing more than a few bonito. The dolphin were gone, grass was scattered and there was little sign of life—few birds and fewer flying fish. We had given up and decided to steam to Ocracoke, spend the night in the harbor and see how the weather was the next day.

Now Jenifer was onto a powerful fish. We speculated that whatever it was had to be fast. That was our first mistake, because when we made the turn to fish over the spot where the strikes occurred, the baits had slowed and settled. That was when the strike came.

An hour and ten minutes later, with raw, open blisters on his reel hand, Jenifer defeated a 60-pound blackstrip shark.

It was cruel initiation for a first-time offshore fisherman, but Jenifer never complained.

"It was quite an experience," he said later. Why the angling fraternity turns its collective nose up at a large shark and rejoices over a tuna that may weigh less and fight less tenaciously, is a mystery to me.

Of course, there is no argument where taste is concerned, but I fail to see the real difference. Blacktip shark is simply great on the table. I can say that now after trying some of Jenifer's. The meat is firm, white, delicate and slightly sweet. In fact it tastes much like eel, but has a different consistency. There must be 20 pounds of chunks in my freezer, but that is not likely to last the summer.

Very few fish from our sea and sounds are inedible. Some are better than others, sure, but a scandalous number of fine fish are thrown back or left to rot in the sun. Marlin are the prime example. Smoked marlin and sailfish are simply superb. All the common sharks are good. The spiny dogfish or sand shark is excellent and plentiful.

Once you get it filleted and skinned no one knows the difference but you. Tell the guests it's cobia. They'll love you for it.

Brophy Is New Coach

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—A former member of the Eastern Hockey League, John Brophy, was named Friday as head coach and player personnel director of the Southern Hockey League's new Fayetteville Aresenal team.

Brophy's 20-year playing career included stints with the Jersey Devils and the Long Island Ducks. Last year, he was appointed head coach of the North American Hockey League.

Brophy's appointment was announced by Southern Sports, Inc., owners of the Fayetteville franchise.

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Tony Bartirome and Bobby Del Greco, who grew up as boyhood pals in Pittsburgh and once played for the Pirates, have been reunited on the club. Bartirome is the team's trainer and Del Greco pitches batting practice.

Sports Briefs

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Celtics open their pre-season training camp Sept. 18 at the Massachusetts Maritime Academy at Buzzards Bay.

The National Basketball Association champions will check in for physicals then before beginning their scheduled two-day practice sessions, which continue through Sept. 27.

The Celtics have their first exhibition game of the season Sept. 28 against the Denver Rockets in Asheville, N.C.

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—John Brophy, a long-time veteran of minor league hockey, has been named head coach and director of player personnel for the newly-formed Fayetteville Arsenal of the Southern Hockey League.

During his 20-year playing career, Brophy was a member of the Jersey Devils and the Long Island Ducks of the Eastern Hockey League. Last year he was appointed head coach of the Long Island Cougars of the North American Hockey League.

Brophy's appointment was announced Friday by Southern Sports Inc., which owns the Fayetteville franchise.

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP)—Arkansas State University and Memphis State University have signed a contract to meet in football Sept. 27, 1975 at Memphis Memorial Stadium, school officials said Friday. The contract renews a 31-game football rivalry dating back to 1914. ASU holds a 17-122 edge in the series.

The two teams last clashed in Memphis in 1957. The Tigers won that one 34-0.

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—The Portland Storm acquired Benjamin Mayes on waivers Friday from the Jacksonville Sharks of the World Football League. He was expected to join the WFL club today.

Mayes, 28, a two-year pro veteran, played with Buffalo and Houston of the National Football League, leaving the NFL in 1970.

At 6-foot-5 and 255 pounds, Mayes plays defensive end or defensive tackle. He graduated from Drake University.

PHOENIX (AP)—Goaltender Ray Reeson, with the Central League Albuquerque Six Guns last season, was signed to a two-year contract Friday by the World Hockey Association's newcomer Phoenix Roadrunners.

Reeson, 29, finished with a 3.70 goals-against average in 56 matches with Albuquerque last season, said Roadrunners president Bill MacFarland in announcing the signing.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—England's Graham Hill, Brazil's Emerson Fittipaldi and Sweden's Ronnie Peterson were named Friday to represent Formula One road racing in the International Race of Champions.

BLUE MARLIN—Victor Hudson, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.H. Hudson of Greenville, caught this 74½ pound blue marlin off Cape Hatteras recently. The fish took him 25 minutes to land.

MARKET CLIMBS, THEN LOSES GROUND—The Dow Jones industrial average closed at 777.30 Friday, up 24.72 from the week before. The Associated Press average closed at 243.1, marking an increase of 8.2 over the same period. The market opened the week on the upswing, then roared ahead as Wall Street speculated on Richard Nixon's resignation. Following the old adage "Buy on the rumor and sell on the news," the market indicators lost ground when it was announced that Nixon would in fact leave the Presidency. Analysts say the market rose in expectation of the change in the White House because investors feel stability will aid the economy. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Morality Is A Confused Issue In North Carolina

By CATHY STEELE ROCHE
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — You can't legally buy a mixed drink in North Carolina. Yet you can buy beer served by topless waitresses, watch women in G-strings gyrate on your table and pay for sexual pleasure in massage parlors.

North Carolina is the only state east of the Mississippi which does not have mixed drink sales, but topless clubs and massage parlors are tolerated in cities across the state. Pornographic book stores and X-rated movies are common and state officials complain they have no viable criminal statute to regulate obscenity.

It is not clear why the citizens of this Bible Belt state wink at lewd shows, but march doggedly to the polls to vote against liquor. Liquor-by-the-drink was defeated by a 2 to 1 margin in a statewide referendum last November. The measure carried in only three of the state's 100 counties.

North Carolinians must drink beer or tote their own liquor to restaurants and clubs in brown paper bags and buy set-ups. One leader of the antiquator forces explained the paradoxical attitudes pragmatically. Coy Privette, head of the Southern Baptist-dominated Christian Action League, said: "Liquor laws we can influence locally, and obscenity and pornography have been federal."

Privette and his army of Baptists have succeeded in convincing legislators that they face certain political damnation if they allow demon rum sold in glasses instead of bottles. The legislature has felt less compelled to crack down on bare breasts and dirty movies and the result, prosecutors complain, is one of the most liberal obscenity laws in the nation.

The 1974 General Assembly passed a law that enforcement officials say has made convictions in pornography and obscenity cases nearly impossible. The law defines what is considered obscene, but it requires that there be a court finding that material is obscene before an arrest can be made.

Wake County District Attorney Burley Mitchell said that under the law, a dealer or movie operator cannot be liable for criminal prosecution unless he displays the material after it is ruled obscene. He said that, in effect, the law ties the hands of prosecutors because a dealer can change his film or get a new supply of pornography after a particular item is ruled obscene.

"In effect we have no real criminal law against obscenity," Mitchell said. Community attempts to ban toplessness were vigorous at first, but were constantly frustrated in the courts, and have since dwindled. State courts have ruled repeatedly that barring the breasts is not a violation of North Carolina's indecent exposure law, which prohibits display of "private parts."

Local officials have been advised by city attorneys that state law has preempted the field and local efforts to ban toplessness are unlikely to be upheld on appeal. Charlotte, a commercial city of 300,000, is the center of North Carolina's night life, but topless shows and semiclad waitresses also moved into more conservative towns such as Raleigh, Winston-Salem and Greensboro.

Fayetteville, home of the Army's sprawling Ft. Bragg, has taken to toplessness along a 10-mile strip of beer joints, quick order restaurants and massage parlors. Topless bars, massage parlors and pornographic book stores also abound in a garish two-block area of Hay Street in the downtown area.

Street walkers and their pimps frequent Hay Street, catering to the pleasure of the soldiers who crowd the district nightly. Although prostitution is illegal, the penalties are generally light and police find it difficult to control.

Charles Dunn, director of the State Bureau of Investigation, said the world's oldest profession is thriving in North Carolina, especially near military bases, in the cities and around some truck stops. Prostitutes can rake in as much as $800 to $900 on a good night. Prices range from $20 to over $100.

Dunn complained about the lack of public interest. "In the past, many people looked at prostitution as a community problem and sought to remove it. Today they turn away from it and attempt to ignore it," he said.

Under North Carolina law, prostitution is a misdemeanor, punishable by up to two years in prison or a fine, or both. "Generally a conviction will mean only a small fine for the prostitute, who can more than make it up in one night," Dunn said.

"Hand relief" is legal at dozens of massage parlors in most places across the state. The North Carolina legislature in 1973 rejected a bill to prohibit the practice. Another bill to regulate massage parlors was killed in the 1974 session.

These votes were cast by the same men who refuse to be counted in favor of liquor by the drink. North Carolina is not without vice, but most observers agree it is likely to be without cocktails for a long time to come.

The lack of lucrative mixed drink sales is reflected in the quality of most topless bars. Few can afford live bands and most dancers bounce their bosoms to canned juke box tunes. The smell of beer and stale tobacco hangs over tables crowded around small dance floors. Only the largest places have proper stages and attempt topless revues.

Most feature two or three tired looking girls shuffling amateurishly around the floor. Many of the dancers double as topless barmaids, hauling pitchers of beer between numbers. Some edge a breast close, hoping for a better tip.

In Havelock, a small eastern North Carolina town at the gate of the Cherry Point Marine Air Station, roadside topless bars are found in small cinder block buildings. The Marines frequent these and an X-rated movie in the community of about 5,000.

Outside the military towns, a large proportion of the topless club clientele consists of traveling salesmen and other transients. If they get bored with just watching, customers can move on to massage parlors.

State Sen. Robert J. Barker, unsuccessful sponsor of the anti-massage parlor bill in the 1973 legislature, said, "I'm just about ready to give it up. I think it's impossible to get it through." Barber says the rejection is partisan, that the bills to regulate massage parlors were killed because their sponsors were Republicans.

Some cities have taken action against massage parlors and have managed to regulate their activities or force them out of town. Charlotte adopted an ordinance several years ago forbidding persons of the opposite sex to massage each other.

The parlor moved outside the city limits, into the county, where they are flourishing. The State Supreme Court recently upheld a similar ordinance in Fayetteville that threatens to restrict the parlors around Ft. Bragg. A Wake County ordinance pushed massage parlors out of the Raleigh area. Forsyth County, which includes Winston-Salem, made hand relief illegal.

Jacksonville, home of Camp Lejeune Marine base, has a local ordinance prohibiting massages by the opposite sex, but prostitution in the area is widespread. Most of the girls around the base work with pimps, but a few walk the streets near the beer joints in the downtown area.

Girls arrested in Jacksonville usually must pay a fine and court costs and are put on probation. Police Chief C. R. Cook said they usually leave town for a while, then return when the heat is off. "They go off to Fayetteville for a while, then come back here," Cook said.

The police chief said he thinks prostitution should be declining. "There are so many loose women around they don't need much prostitution," he said.

Privette of the Christian Action League disagrees with the chief. "People are not coming to North Carolina for liquor and loose women," he said. He argued with the contention of business leaders that lack of mixed drink sales is hurting the state's tourist business, especially conventions.

Privette, who disapproves of topless dancing, said, "I do not think it's conducive to the strengthening of moral standards. Where are we going to stop at on this thing?" He said the league has named a task force to study pornography and obscenity.

The task force will find that citizens can see and read almost anything they please and can buy almost any pleasure but that served in a glass. Privette's crew will discover that massage parlors continue to operate unfettered in many areas, including Greensboro and Durham. But the league may find it difficult to raise passions as they did in the liquor campaign.

A Durham newspaper reporter wrote a story detailing the practice of local massage parlors. The story brought little citizen reaction. Before the U.S. Supreme Court decision on abortion, North Carolina had one of the two or three most liberal laws in the nation. The decision necessitated very little change in the state's law.

Hospital abortions were common before the ruling and several abortion clinics have opened since. North Carolinians are hard pressed to explain their state's contradictory attitudes.

Proponents of liquor by the drink made a strong case that it would benefit the state economically, drawing large hotels, better restaurants and conventions to North Carolina. Civic leaders and businessmen feel commercial development is stifled by the lack of mixed drink sales.

The only explanation offered by most persons is a reminder that North Carolina is a Southern Baptist stronghold and that demon rum is perhaps the oldest enemy of that church.

GM Announces Price Increase

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors has scheduled an average $500 price increase on new model cars and trucks, a 10 per cent boost that makes it the largest introductory increase in the industry's history.

Analysts say more increases are expected as long as inflation continues, bringing the under-$3,000 automobile ever closer to extinction.

GM announced on Friday the increase would take effect when 1975 models go on sale in September. The announcement said 1975 model car and truck stickers will carry an average 9.6 per cent increase — about $480 — on the base price, including $130 for emission control equipment. Tacked on to that will be a $20 boost in shipping charges.

The company would not give a by-model breakdown on the increases, but its least expensive model, the subcompact Chevrolet Vega, would sell for $2,800 without options if it carries the average increase.

With options, state and federal taxes and dealer preparation charges, most Vega buyers could easily pay more than $3,000.

The new model increase compares with an average $73 boost GM put through on its 1974 models last September. The previous industry record for introductory price increases was an average $206 per vehicle in the fall of 1970.

Ford Motor Co. has said prices on its 1975 model cars and trucks will go up an average eight per cent, or $418.

Install New Speed Radar Unit Included In Publication

Motorists in Pitt County and in other areas of the state who find it difficult to obey speed limit laws will find it much more difficult now to elude detection since a new radar unit has been put into service by the State Highway Patrol.

Highway Patrol Troop A commander Capt. J.T. Jenkins said the new radar unit, unlike older models in use by the Patrol, can be operated from a moving vehicle to check the speed of oncoming cars. "The trooper doesn't have to be parked beside the road to check for speeding violators," the Troop Commander emphasized. The new radar unit, is named the MR7 Moving Radar. It can be used in the conventional manner from a stationary position just as the older units in the Patrol's arsenal of weapons against speeding violators.

But the thing that makes it an outstanding tool, Capt. Jenkins emphasized, is the fact that it can be used to check the speed of oncoming vehicles from a moving Patrol car. "It allows a Patrolman to effectively carry on normal patrol car functions while still patrolling for speeders."

A special velocity tracking circuit in the unit "searches out" and locks to the speed of the patrol car, then subtracts the police vehicle's speed from the closing rate of the oncoming "target" car.

The speed of the car being checked is then displayed on a visual digital readout panel. A tone alarm also signals the officer when a car is clocked in excess of the speed pre-set by the officer according to the speed zone in which the Patrol car is working.

The new radar unit will be used in conjunction with the Patrol's other speed checking devices, such as the older radar units and their inventory of VASCAR speed checking devices, to enforce the state's speed limit laws.

Sophia E. Knight, a rising senior at North Pitt High School, has been selected to appear in the eighth annual edition of Who's Who Among American High School students, 1973-74, the largest student publication in the nation.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O.D. Knight of Bethel. She is a member of the Student Government Association, Student Task Force, Senior Council and Library Club.

In addition to having her biography published in the book, Miss Knight will also compete for one of 10 scholarship awards of $500 to $1,000 funded by the publishers and will be invited to participate in the firm's annual "Survey of High Achievers."

She plans to attend A & T State University at Greensboro upon graduation from high school and will major in health and physical education.

BETTER WATCH OUT. Highway Patrolman John Brooks checks the speed of cars on a Pitt County highway with new radar placed in service by the Highway Patrol recently. The unit, which displays the speed of oncoming vehicles on a visual digital display panel sitting on top of the dash in front of the officer here, can be operated from a moving patrol vehicle to monitor the speed of cars meeting the officer's vehicle.

RON BROWN

Veterans To Get Help Of VA 'Man On Campus'

The Veteran's Administration has appointed Ron G. Brown, a native of Selma, as the VA's new "man on campus" for East Carolina University and Pitt Technical Institute.

Brown assumed the new position Aug. 5. In his new job Brown will provide personalized service to veterans receiving educational assistance benefits under the GI Bill. The new program was announced in May by the VA. Each college in the nation will have a VET-Rep on campus or will have access to a traveling VET-Rep from a nearby college on a regular schedule.

There are 35 such representatives in North Carolina. Brown, who joined the VA in June of this year was one of 1,327 VET-Reps hired or assigned from within the VA for the positions. Priority was given to Vietnam era veterans who have experienced campus life.

Brown received orientation at the VA regional office in Winston-Salem and returned July 20 to Greenville from an intensive two-week course conducted at West Georgia College in Carrollton, Ga., for Vet-Reps from the 13 southern states.

VET-Reps will be prepared to resolve individual payment inquiries. He is expected to eliminate many payment delays caused by change of address, dependency status, or a change in school courses.

Brown can be reached through the Registrar's office at ECU until a permanent office is established.

He is a Vietnam era veteran, having served in the U.S. Army from 1969, including 27 months in South Vietnam.

He entered East Carolina University in Sept. 1970 and received an AB degree in February of this year. Prior to joining the Veteran's Administration Brown worked

Couple Weds In High Noon Rites

MRS. JOHN PATRICK EXUM

KINSTON—At noon on Saturday, Mrs. Emily Nelson Riley of Grifton and John Patrick Exum of Kinston were married in a private ceremony at St. Mary's Episcopal Church. The Rev. Wallace Irving Wolverton Jr. and the Rev. Clifton Daniel III performed the double ring ceremony.

Miss Loede Brooks Harper of Grifton was maid of honor. Serving as best man was W. Wilson Exum, the father of the bridegroom.

Josiah Cull II, brother of the bridegroom, and Charles Francis Sugg Jr., cousin of the bridegroom, both of Snow Hill served as ushers. Other groomsmen were Riddick Madison Lamm Jr. of Asheville, John Buchanan Adams Jr. of The Plains, Va., George Edward Monk Jr. of Charlotte and William Splane Page Jr. of Wilson.

Mrs. Exum is the daughter of Mrs. Richard Alonzo Nelson of Grifton, and the late Mr. Nelson. Mr. Exum is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Wilson Exum of Snow Hill.

The bride is a graduate of St. Mary's Junior College and East Carolina University. She teaches at Arendell Parrott Academy. The bridegroom is a graduate of Wake Forest University and the Wake Forest University School of Law. He is an assistant district attorney for the Eighth Judicial District.

Following the ceremony Mrs. Richard A. Nelson entertained at a reception at her home in Grifton.

On Friday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. McLawhorn III, Mrs. Julia L. Morrisey of Raleigh, Mr. and Mrs. Del Stickle of Durham, John H. Linton of Buies Creek, Mrs. Thurman J. Williams of Grifton and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald D. Anderson of Danville Va., hosted a dinner for the wedding party. After dinner, Mr. and Mrs. W. Wilson Exum honored the couple with a formal dance at the Kinston Country Club.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple will reside in Kinston.

Woolard-Sumerlin Vows Solemnized

Miss Marilyn Ann Sumerlin became the bride of Herbie Ray Woolard Friday night at eight o'clock in the Parkers Chapel Free Will Baptist Church.

The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Harley Brown assisted by the Rev. Walter Sumerlin, brother of the bride. A program of wedding music was presented by the Rev. Phil Cooper who sang "More" and the "Wedding Prayer."

The chancel of the church was centered with a fifteen candelabra filled with greenery. On each side was a nine branch tree candelabra filled with white gladioli, yellow mums, pom poms and palms. The couple knelt for the benediction on a white prie-dieu.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Marion Sumerlin of Rt. 5, Greenville, and Mrs. Hettie

Rae Woolard of Rt. 5, Greenville, and the late Mr. R. P. Woolard.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was dressed in a formal length white organza gown fashioned with a high neckline encircled with re-embroidered lace. Panels of lace edged in ruffled organza extended from the shoulders to the empire waistline. The long full sheer sleeves featured ruffled cuffs banded in matching lace. The modified A-line skirt was accented with borders of re-embroidered lace. Tuffed organza and lace edged the hemline and attached chapel train.

Her bouffant illusion veil was attached to a Camelot headpiece trimmed in re-embroidered lace appliques to match the gown beaded with pearls. She carried a cascade of carnations, pom poms and stephanotis. The maid of honor was Sally Sumerlin of Rt. 5, Greenville, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Kay Warren of Robersonville, twin sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Nancy James of Rt. 5, Greenville.

The attendants wore formal length gowns of yellow polyester crepe with an overlay of yellow chiffon attached at the empire waistline. White lace accented the empire waistline. Their headpieces were white bows with white streamers and they carried nosegays of daisies with yellow bows. The mother of the bride wore a mint green polyester crepe dress, white accessories and a white carnation corsage. The mother of the bridegroom selected a light blue polyester crepe ensemble with white accessories.

Mrs. R.F. Sumerlin, grandmother of the bride, was presented a white carnation corsage.

Carlton Woolard of Rt. 5, Greenville, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Dean Jackson of 1 tablespoon butter, soft

1/2 cup finely chopped walnuts
1/4 cup flaked coconut
1/4 cup packed light brown sugar
1 1/2 cups granulated sugar
1 1/4 cups unsifted flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
3/4 teaspoon salt
1 egg
1 pound and 14-ounce can fruit cocktail, thoroughly drained

Spread the butter over inside of a 6-cup ring mold. Stir together walnuts, coconut, brown sugar and 1/4 cup of the granulated sugar; firmly press over buttered inside of mold. Thoroughly stir together flour, baking soda and salt. Beat together well the egg and remaining 1 cup granulated sugar. Reserve 1/2 cup of the drained fruit cocktail; stir remaining fruit cocktail into egg mixture. Add flour mixture and stir until completely moistened. Bake in a preheated 300-degree oven 1 hour and 20 minutes. Cool on wire rack for 10 minutes; invert on serving plate. If some of sugar mixture sticks, remove it with a small metal spatula and press it down in place. Serve warm with whipped cream and garnish with reserved fruit cocktail. Makes 8 to 12 servings.

Sorority Year Planned At Meet

The Alpha Nu Chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa Sorority began their year Wednesday with an executive board meeting for organizational purposes at the home of the new President Ann Byrd.

Plans for the coming year were discussed including highlights of the Southeast Regional Conference held in Louisville, Ky. in late July.

The conference, attended by Mrs. Byrd and Mrs. Faye Dempsey, will be the topic of the September meeting to be held at The Fiddlers Three Restaurant Sep. 5 at 6:30 p.m. Mrs. Byrd announced that the International Alpha Delta Kappa Convention is scheduled for July 13-17, 1975 in Los Angeles, Calif.

Other officers of the sorority are: Treasurer, Anne Hardee; Recording Secretary, Pat Bozman; Corresponding Secretary, Shirley Moore; Historian, Barbara Parker; Sergeant-at-arms, Barbara Tyson and Cotten Smith; Chaplains, Sarah Perkins and Jean Wilson; Parliamentarian, Evelyn Finch; and Past President, Alya Ray Taylor.

hang out on the bumper of our car is the answer to all our frustrations. But until tempers settle down, I think I'll stick with my bumper that reads, "DRIVE DEFENSIVELY. BUY A TANK."

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

The other day I pulled up to a traffic light and observed the car in front of me.

There must have been eight stickers in the window proclaiming stands on controversial issues, plus four bumper stickers that provided ultimatums from "LOVE IT OR LEAVE IT!" to "SAVE PRECIOUS AIR. STOP BREATHING."

"What kind of car is that?" asked my son.

"It's a 1974 Opinion," I said. The bumpers of American cars have not only become billboards for every social ill you can think of, some of them are getting downright ugly.

It all started off as a happy showcase for a sticker that said simply, "SMILE" or "HAVE A GOOD DAY." You could tear the fender off a car with a "SMILE" or "HAVE A GOOD DAY" and really feel rotten about the accident.

But a strange hostility swept over me the other day in the church parking lot. I actually raced a car to a parking space with a bumper sticker that read, "VOTE NO FOR THE SCHOOL LEVY."

Wearing your emotions on the rear end of your car can create some problems. A friend of mine found herself recently behind a car that had sat through two traffic lights. Finally, on the third green, she honked her horn. The driver came back and said, "So you think he's guilty, do you?"

"Who's guilty?" she asked. He pointed toward his bumper sticker. "Your president. I purposely put 'HONK IF YOU THINK HE'S GUILTY' on my bumper just to see you people face to face."

My friend was so angry she rushed out and bought a bumper sticker, "DON'T BLAME ME. I VOTED FOR MCGOVERN," and another one beside it that read, "HONK IF YOU WANT A PUNCH IN THE MOUTH."

Frankly, I think the whole thing is getting out of hand. I saw a man with a bumper sticker that read, "THIS IS A MAFIA STAFF CAR" cut right in front of another car with a sticker that read, "STICK IT IN YOUR EAR, FELLA." I even found my husband the other night in the dark garage putting a bumper sticker on our son's car that read, "THIS CAR SHOULD BE CONDEMNED."

I don't know where it is all going to end. Maybe letting it all

Miss Cheryl Berry Weds Jerry Stephen Cribbs

RICHMOND, Va.—Miss Cheryl Lynn Berry and Jerry Stephen Cribbs were united in marriage Saturday at 3:00 p.m. in the Pinehurst Baptist Church here by the Rev. James Oliver Weaver.

A program of wedding music was presented by Elsie Mae Weaver, organist, and Cary Stephen Koch sang "Father Of Heaven," "Take Me To Thee For Thine Own" and "Alleluia, Amen."

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Donald Berry of Richmond, Va., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Lacy Cribbs, Sr.

The bride wore a formal length gown of ivory silk organza over peau de soie with re-embroidered alencon lace trim, full bishop sleeves and empire waistline. Lace appliques with seed pearls and iridescent trim enhanced the waistline, neckline and sleeves.

Her cathedral length veil of silk illusion was attached to a lace and silk organza caplet with beadwork to match the dress. The bride's Bible was covered with ivory lace with an arrangement of red and white sweetheart roses and streamers.

Mrs. Patrick Joseph Kennedy, III, of Richmond, Va., was the honor attendant. She wore an old-fashioned red and white gingham dress with white embroidered roses and lace trim. She wore a white picture hat trimmed in red and carried two long-stemmed red roses and a white rose with streamers.

Bridesmaids were Miss June Frances Laine of Richmond, Va., and Miss Shelia Ann Marlowe of Greenville, N. C. Their dresses and hats were identical to that of the honor attendant. They carried a single long-stemmed red rose with streamers.

James Lacy Cribbs, Jr. of Emporia, Va., brother of the bridegroom, was best man and ushers were James Ralph Kennedy of Raeford, N. C., and John Paul Berry of Richmond, Va.

MRS. JERRY STEPHEN CRIBBS

The couple will reside in Clinton.

They are both graduates of East Carolina University and will be employed as public school music teachers in Sampson County.

Following the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a reception in the fellowship hall of the church.

A rehearsal party was given by the parents of the bridegroom and Mrs. Boyce Vernon Cox, Sr. of Winterville on Friday evening in the fellowship hall of the church.

Informational Coffee Held

An informational coffee, sponsored by the Greenville Junior Woman's Club was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. David Pressel.

The purpose of the coffee was to acquaint area women with the work of the club.

Mrs. Arthur Brock, membership chairman, gave the welcome and introduced guests. Mrs. Matt Gustafson, president, and Mrs. John Harris, Public Affairs Department chairman, spoke about the club's civic project and organization.

Mrs. Jan Vincent, Arts Department chairman, and Mrs. W.M. Collier, second vice president, discussed ways and means projects.

Guests included: Mrs. Wetzel Smith; Mrs. Michael Baxter; Mrs. Steve Condra; Mrs. Henry Riddick; Mrs. Ronald H. Sessoms; Mrs. Jerry Lichtefeld; Mrs. Jim Rider; Mrs. David Douglas; Mrs. Lester L. Everett Jr.; Mrs. Manly Congleton; Mrs. Richard Pike; Miss Vickie Little; Mrs. Tommy Langston; and Mrs. Edward Askew.

Give Entertainers Undivided Attention

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: The incident was as follows: I recently attended a lounge show. (The entertainers were friends of mine.) Since I had seen the show before, I decided to read a book and listen to the performance at the same time. (I have extraordinary powers of concentration, and am capable of doing many things at once. Frequently, I will watch TV, listen to the radio, and read.)

My friends who were performing interpreted my reading during their show as an act of rudeness. I meant no offense, but I have been severely criticized for this.

What are your thoughts? VEGAS

DEAR VEGAS: I agree with your friends. Even though you may be able to read and listen at the same time (and had already seen the show), the others in the audience, and the performers, might get the impression that you were bored.

In the future, demonstrate your "extraordinary powers of concentration" at home, and give live entertainers the courtesy of your undivided attention.

DEAR ABBY: We live in a small town and have always belonged to the Presbyterian church.

Our daughter is going to be married and wants a church wedding, so we went to our minister to discuss the wedding plans with him.

When our daughter told the minister that she wanted two special love songs sung at her wedding, he said: "I will not allow love songs to be sung in MY church!" (Get that, Abby: "HIS" church.)

Does he have the right to dictate what kind of songs will be sung at our daughter's wedding? Rush your reply, UPSET

DEAR UPSET: To quote from the rules of all United Presbyterian Churches in the U.S.A.: "The Christian marriage ceremony is a service of worship before God, normally conducted within the house of God. Reverence shall be expected on the part of all present, and the service shall be under the sole direction of the minister. Such music as accompanies the ceremony should direct attention to God, Who sanctifies marriage, and special care should be taken to assure that it is suitable and reverent."

Even though some ministers will bend the rules a little in order to accommodate some parishioners, not all will, so if your minister chooses to go strictly by the book, he is within his rights.

DEAR ABBY: I met a man while on my vacation and we hit it off beautifully together. (I'm divorced and so is he, and we have a lot in common.)

The last time we were together, he made a remark about women who wear wigs. (He didn't like them.)

Abby, I was wearing a wig (and had worn one every time we were together), but he didn't know it.

He is coming to visit me, and I don't know whether I should let him see me without my wig or not. My wigs do a lot for me so I very seldom go without one.

I don't want to spoil my chances with this man, but I can't fool him forever. MY SECRET

DEAR MY: Maybe he's subtly trying to tell you that he's flipped his wig for you, and he wishes you'd flip yours back into the wig box. You'd be wise to let him see you without it. That way, if your relationship ever develops into something more serious, he can't say you deceived him.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Cal. 90212, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Branch-Goodson Vows Spoken in Ceremony On Saturday

Miss Valerie Lynn Goodson and Bernice Cleveland Branch Jr. were united in marriage at four o'clock in the Memorial Baptist Church here Saturday. The Rev. Norman C. Bennett, pastor of the church, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Charles Edward Goodson and the late Mr. Goodson. Mr. and Mrs. Bernice Cleveland Branch are the parents of the bridegroom.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Sharon Irvin, organist, and Sammy Pittman, who sang "One Hand, One Heart", "We've Only Just Begun" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, John Dorsey Tyndall, the bride wore a formal length gown of white organza designed with a portrait neckline with a flared self-ruffle edged in a floral Venise lace. The long fitted sleeves featured deep cuffs trimmed with lace and satin ribbon finishing with a single silk rose and streamers in the back. The modified A-line skirt, which extended to an attached chapel train, was edged in a flared ruffled flounce with lace.

She wore a formal length illusion veil bordered with Venise lace to match the gown and was attached to a Camelot headpiece of lace and pearls. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white butterfly roses, baby's breath, phalaenopsis orchid and white satin ribbons.

encircled the Victorian neckline and cuffs of the long, sheer sleeves. The empire waistline was accentuated by the lace and ribbon trim. The hemline featured a ruffled flounce in the crystal chiffon. Mrs. Tyndall carried a lace parasol slightly covered with painted miniature carnations showered with baby's breath and tied with narrow blue satin streamers to match her dress.

Bridesmaids were Miss Brenda Branch and Miss Linda Branch, twin sisters of the bridegroom, Miss Chris Wilkerson, Mrs. James Harvey Ward, Miss Pam Turnage, and Mrs. William Lynwood Byrd Jr., all of Greenville. They wore dresses and carried lace parasols identical to that of the honor attendant.

Bernice Cleveland Branch served as the son's best man. Groomsman were Cecil Bilbro, Mark Tipton, John Finch, Don Mills, Chico Clark, all of Greenville, and Milton P. McLamb Jr. of Clinton, cousin of the bridegroom.

The couple left for a wedding trip to Florida. For traveling the bride changed into a light blue ensemble and wore the orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of Hardbarger's Business College, Raleigh, and is employed by East Carolina University. The bridegroom received his degree at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He is associated with Branch Tire and Marble Co.

The couple will reside in Greenville.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mrs. Goodson entertained at a reception in the church fellowship hall. Dr. and Mrs. Robert L. Summerlin, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Goodson, uncles and aunts of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Castellow greeted guest.

Mrs. Harold Smith presided at the bridal register.

Assisting in serving were Mrs. Bobby Floors, Mrs. Elwood Goodson, Mrs. Bernard Goodson, Mrs. James R. Eldridge Jr., Mrs. Kermit Nobles, Mrs. Curtis J. Flanagan, Mrs. Milton P. McLamb, aunts of the bride and bridegroom. Mrs. Ruland W. Davenport and Mrs. Floyd Phillips.

Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Lester Branch and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Johnson, aunts and uncles of the bridegroom.

Following the rehearsal, Mr. and Mrs. Bernice Cleveland Branch entertained the wedding party, relatives, and out-of-town guest with a dinner at the Candlewick Inn.

Marriage Announced

The wedding of Mary Craddock and Kenneth Earl Adams took place Saturday at 2:00 p.m. in the Bethel United Methodist Church, Bethel.

A private ceremony was held with the Rev. Ellis J. Bedworth officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Brooks of Farmville were the only attendants.

Star Recorder Night Held By WOTM Chapter

Women of the Moose, Greenville Chapter No. 1308, observed Star Recorder night Thursday at a meeting at the Moose Temple.

Two new members were enrolled, preliminary plans for the flea market were discussed and a group of visitors from Washington were welcomed.

Mrs. Earline Coghill, chairman of the Star Recorder Committee, was in charge of the program. She introduced Mrs. Molly Harris, chapter recorder, who spoke on the duties of a recorder and the requirements for becoming a star recorder.

Greenville Chapter members who have attained this honor include Mrs. Coghill, Mrs. Harris, Mrs. Josephine Dees, Mrs. Betty Flake, Mrs. Marga Ross, and Mrs. Margaret Cannon.

Mrs. Hollie Simonowich, chairman, told the group that Saturday, Sept. 28, has been set for the flea market. This fundraising project is a joint venture of the WOTM and Greenville Moose Lodge No. 885.

She urged the co-workers to begin gathering items around their homes for sale at the Flea Market. "Trash items around your house," Mrs. Simonowich pointed out, "could well be a treasure for someone else."

Mrs. Irma Wolf and Mrs. Barbara Wooten, both of Greenville, were enrolled as new members.

Mrs. Ronnie Williams, senior regent, headed the visitors from Washington Chapter No. 1187, WOTM.

The group included: Mrs. Mary Lou Lewis, recorder; Mrs. Doris Asby, ritual director; Mrs. Shirley Rouse, publicity chairman; Mrs. Janice Williams, hospital chairman; Mrs. Mary Lou Sheppard, Mooseheart chairman; Mrs. Ruth Fisher; Mrs. Shirley Shea; Mrs. Ruby Bennett.

Miss DiAnne Watson Weds Howard F. Hadley

RALEIGH—The Dinwiddie Memorial Chapel at Peace College was the scene of the wedding of Miss DiAnne Elizabeth Watson and Howard Forbes Hadley in a candlelight ceremony Saturday at 2:00 p.m.

The Rev. Rudolph H. Hodge of Raleigh officiated at the double ring ceremony and was assisted by Milton Hadley of Atlanta, Ga., cousin of bridegroom. A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Ruth Hafley, organist, and Mrs. Gloria Perry, soloist.

The chapel was decorated with standing baskets of pink snapdragons, baby's breath, tube roses, chrysanthemums, palms and candelabra.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lee Watson of Raleigh and Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Wood Hadley of Greenville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white gown of silk peau de soie, alencon lace and silk organza, designed on the empire silhouette. The empire bodice featured a silk organza yoke, outlined with appliques of alencon lace, hand sewn with sequins and seed pearls, topped by a lace wedding ring neckline and long fitted sleeves. The front skirt was appliqued with re-embroidered alencon lace appliques and extended to a chapel train.

She wore a full length mantilla of French illusion bordered and appliqued with matching alencon lace. She carried a nosegay of white butterfly roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Mrs. Joseph Volpe of Seattle, Wash., sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. Maid of honor was Miss Debra Holladay of San Juan, Puerto Rico, cousin of the bride. Bridesmaids were Miss Connie Rogers of Hyattsville, Md., Miss Michelle Frazier of Columbia, S.C., both cousins of the bride, Miss Faye Senter of Raleigh.

The attendants wore formal length flowered voile gowns with shirred bodice, full skirt and a capelet with a deep ruffle. They carried nosegays of pink roses, yellow daisies, purple statice and baby's breath. Miniature bride and bridegroom were Jean and Bobby Frazier of Raleigh, cousins of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a formal length off-white knitted gown and long-sleeved jacket with matching accessories. The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal length emerald green gown of matte jersey with long sleeves and matching accessories. The maternal grandmother of the bride was attired in pink and the paternal grandmother of the bridegroom, in blue.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Ricky Frazier and Randy Frazier of Columbia, S.C., cousins of the bride, and Cliff Fleming of Greenville. Junior ushers were Kirk Rogers and George Pierce, both of Raleigh, cousins of the bride.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Edd K. Roberts of Raleigh. For traveling the bride changed to a pants ensemble.

After a honeymoon in Mexico the couple will reside in Raleigh.

The bride attended Peace and is a graduate of East Carolina University where she also earned her Master's degree. She is a teacher at Wiley Sixth Grade Center. The bridegroom is attending North Carolina State University and is architectural designer and draftsman at Colonial Building Co., Inc.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was given by the bride's parents at the Raleigh Country Club. Piano and organ music was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Sophia Johnson.

On Friday at noon, Mrs. Raymond Rogers of Hyattsville, Md., and Mrs. Bobby Frazier of Raleigh, aunts of the bride, entertained the bride and her bridesmaids at a luncheon at the Raleigh Country Club.

On Friday evening an after-rehearsal party at the Velvet Cloak honored the bridal couple, members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests, hosted by Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Hadley, Mr. and Mrs. Jake Hadley, Mrs. G.B.W. Hadley and Mrs. Morgan Fambrough of Greenville.

Couple Exchanges Vows In High Noon Ceremony Saturday

RALEIGH—At high noon Saturday, the wedding of Miss Paula Jon Greger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Greger of Raleigh, and Linwood Stanley Ferguson was solemnized in Benson Memorial United Methodist Church here.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E.L. Ferguson of Greenville.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Brian Gentle.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory gown of imported silk organza and alencon lace clustered with seed pearls. Her dress was styled with a Victorian neckline with lace overlay on a fitted bodice, lantern sleeves and an A-line skirt with lace down the center front to a scalloped hemline and a chapel train enhanced with lace motifs.

Her fingertip veil of silk illusion was attached to a matching lace Juliet cap. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Fred Fuller III of Rocky Mount. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Stephen Phillips of New Bern, Miss Dianne Lucas of Asheboro and Miss Jo Ferguson and Miss Jane Ferguson, sisters of the bridegroom. The attendants wore apricot gowns of chiffon with matching picture hats. They carried bouquets of talisman roses, baby's breath and yellow pom poms with matching streamers.

The flower girl was Miss Teresa Telez of Raleigh. Her dress was similar to that of the other attendants and she carried a basket of mixed flowers.

Ushers were Fred Fuller III of Rocky Mount, Keith Vance of Greensboro, John Farrow Jr. of Raleigh, Tony Whitehurst of Greenville, Boyce Johnson of Bethel, Ronald Greger and Brian Greger of Raleigh, brothers of the bride.

The bride's mother wore a full length dress of yellow chiffon with corsage of white orchids. The mother of the bridegroom selected a full length mint green dress with a corsage of orchids.

The brides' parents entertained at a reception at the Women's Club.

After the wedding trip to the mountains, the couple will reside in Greenville. Both are attending East Carolina University.

Clothes Identify Career

NEW YORK (AP)—A clothing revolution is taking place in hundreds of American businesses. The firms involved call it coordinated clothing or corporate identity apparel — they never call it uniforms. But what they are talking about is generally known as "career apparel."

A typical female career apparel outfit includes skirt, pants, tunic, blouses and dresses, all in the company's colors and sometimes inscribed with the company's logo. Accessories such as jewelry, scarves, handbags and hats can also be part of the ensemble.

A man's outfit consists of a blazer, several pairs of coordinated slacks, matching tie and several shirts.

press. Another savings to employees is that when cleaning and maintenance costs are incurred they are tax deductible, the institute says.

Clothes competition, with one employe trying to outdress the other and spending more than he can easily afford to keep up is also avoided by the use of company-supplied outfits, Wolfe points out. Still, he adds, there is little fear of regimentation.

"Employees are encouraged to mix and match the different pieces of an ensemble in order to maintain a sense of individuality," he says. As one employe of an apartment selecting service in Dallas explained, "I wear these clothes off the job sometimes. Nobody ever guesses I'm in uniform."

its recruiting efforts and a 20 per cent decline in employe turnover.

Fabric used for the apparel must be durable to stand up under everyday working conditions and must be economical for employes to maintain, Wolfe notes. Skirts, pantsuits and blazers are primarily made of 100 per cent polyester double knits that are completely washable. Shirts and blouses are generally made of polyester blended with rayon or cotton fabrics that are permanent

Orchestra Can't Play A Note

COPENHAGEN, DENMARK WNS—Anna Jonsson, conductor of the Bentravato Sinfonia Orchestra here, admits that she cannot read music and that none of the all-feminine group can play a musical instrument. "We get together only to exchange the glorious sounds of conversation," she said. "We selected this name for our group because musicians have a reputation of being cultured."

by Rosalie Trotman

A group of six varsity cheerleaders from Rose High School recently attended a week-long cheerleading clinic at Camp Pla-Mor, North Myrtle Beach, S.C.

Participating were Natalie Fleming, Beth Cherry, Kim Knight, Lynn Gantt, Christie Priestley and Kim Vick. They represented Rose as one of 18 squads attending.

Throughout the week, they learned a pom pom routine. Each day the girls learned cheers and were evaluated. On the fourth day of camp, a spirit bell was given to the girls for displaying the most spirit during the first part of the week.

On the final day of camp, the girls competed in final competition and received second place in cheerleading and first place in pom poms. The spirit bell was awarded to Rose for displaying the most spirit during the entire week.

The 18 squads voted on the squad they liked best—Rose received a plaque as the most congenial squad.

Two Rose High School students will be featured in the eighth annual edition of "Who's Who Among American High School Students, 1973-74."

Selected were Kimberly Kay Knight and Cynthia Jane Anderson.

Students from over 20,000 public, private and parochial high schools throughout the country are recognized for their leadership in academics, athletics, activities or community service in the books.

A member of the cheerleading squad, National Honor Society and the N.C. Student Academy of Science, Kim has also served as a representative to Girls State. She will be serving as secretary-treasurer of the senior class and the cheerleading squad.

Her parents are Dr. and Mrs. C.B. Knight of 112 Oxford Rd.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lynden E. Anders of 2108 Southview Dr., Cynthia is a member of the Kidettes Club and Trinity Free Will Baptist Church.

In addition to having their biographies published in the book, Kim and Cynthia will also compete for one of 10 scholarship awards to be funded by the publishers and will be invited to participate in the firm's annual "Survey of High Achievers."

French Declare War On Films

PARIS, France WNS—Mothers For Peace have declared war on American cowboy films. "Children learn to love guns because they see historical cowboy films that are phoney," proclaimed Francoise Riviere, secretary of the movement. The laides' campaign reports that guns of the period weighed almost five pounds, and were carried in "baglike holsters." Said Mme. Riviere, "The fast-draw was impossible. The heavy gun had to be held in both hands, emitted great clouds of powder that prevented proper aiming, and was inaccurate, to say the least." The mothers are hoping to get French stars to make accurate movies "that will send cowboys back where they belong—to the peaceful cows."

Man Takes Prison Route

SHEPPEY, England WNS—David Hawkins, principal of a coeducational school here, was upset to learn that his daughter Joanne, 9, must go to an all-girls school because the co-educational schools are full. "I will go to prison before I will allow my daughter to attend a single-sex school," he told the local education committee. Said his daughter, "If I am not at school, I shall use my spare time visiting Daddy in prison."

King-Moody Vows Solemnized Saturday

Our Redemer Lutheran Church was the scene of the Saturday wedding of Miss Marilyn Frances Moody and George Leslie King.

The Rev. Graham Nahouse performed the double ring ceremony at 2:00 p.m. A program of organ music was presented by Mickey Terry. Jim McCluskey rendered an original guitar solo written for the bridal couple.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Moody of Winston-Salem, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a dress of doeksin with an organza overlay fashioned with an empire waistline and long full sheer sleeves. A satin ribbon accentuated the empire waistline. She wore an elbow length veil of illusion attached to a white satin ribbon and carried a bouquet of white carnations, yellow miniature roses and blue baby's breath.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Cecil P. King of Greenville. Miss Cheryl A. Moody of Richmond, Va., sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She was dressed in a yellow crepe dress and carried a nosegay of white, blue, melon, fuschia and lavender flowers.

Bridesmaids were Miss Lynda Lee Stine and Miss Julia Cleveland, both of Greenville. They wore melon princess style dresses with puffed sleeves and scooped necklines. The neckline and the cuffs of the sleeves were accented with white trim. They carried nosegays identical to that of the honor attendant.

Mickey Longnecker of Greenville was best man and ushers were Mike Damone, Jim Werdal and Jim McCluskey, all of Greenville.

After a wedding trip to the Shenandoah Valley in Virginia, the couple will reside in Greenville.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given by the bride's parents at the church.

Couple Weds In Double Ring Ceremony Saturday Afternoon

GOLDSBORO—In a double ring ceremony Saturday at 5:00 p.m., Miss Nora Wilma Spence became the bride of Bythal Hill Bostic Jr. The ceremony was conducted in the First Baptist Church by Dr. Leon Smith.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Maurice Bailey of Goldsboro and Mr. Zeno Baker Spence Jr. of Goldsboro. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Bythal Hill Bostic Sr. of Goldsboro, and the late Mr. Bostic.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents wore a candlelight wedding gown in satapeau and peau d'ange lace. Lace formed the high neckline, camisole bodice and lantern sleeves. A lace ruffle encircled the demi-bell skirt and chapel train.

Her candlelight veil was chapel length in nylon illusion bordered with peau d'ange lace and attached to a Juliette cap of matching lace. She carried a bridal bouquet of white orchids and roses.

The bride will be graduating from East Carolina University this fall with a degree in fashion merchandising. The bridegroom attended Atlantic Christian College and served in the U.S. Navy for five years. He is presently managing Credit Bureau Incorporated Collections, Miami, Fla.

The honor attendant was Mamie Spence of Goldsboro, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Valerie Bailey, sister of the bride, Edna Edwards, cousin of the bride, Juanita Mansour, all of Goldsboro, Mrs. Edward Spence of Winston-Salem, sister-in-law of the bride, Gail Porter of Greenville, Mrs. Mike Westbrook of Hillsborough, and Mrs. Nigel Bevan of Wilmington.

Jackie Bostic of Little Switzerland, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Edward Spence of Winston-Salem, brother of the bride, Bryan Rollins of Greenville, uncle of the bridegroom, Russell Bostic of Beulaville, Mike Smith of Wilson, George Nowell of Raleigh, Chip Earnhardt of Greenville, and Chuck McKeiver of Miami, Fla.

A program of organ music was presented by Gordon Flesher of Goldsboro, and Mrs. Chip Earnhardt of Greenville, vocalist, sang "Wedding Prayer" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Pittman entertained at a reception in the Gilmer Cross Memorial Fellowship Hall of the church.

Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Snypes, Mr. and Mrs. Henson Barnes and Dr. and Mrs. Matthew Delbridge.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Miami, Fla. Pre-nuptial events honoring the bridal couple included a rehearsal dinner held at the Walnut Creek Country Club Friday night given by the bridegroom's family.

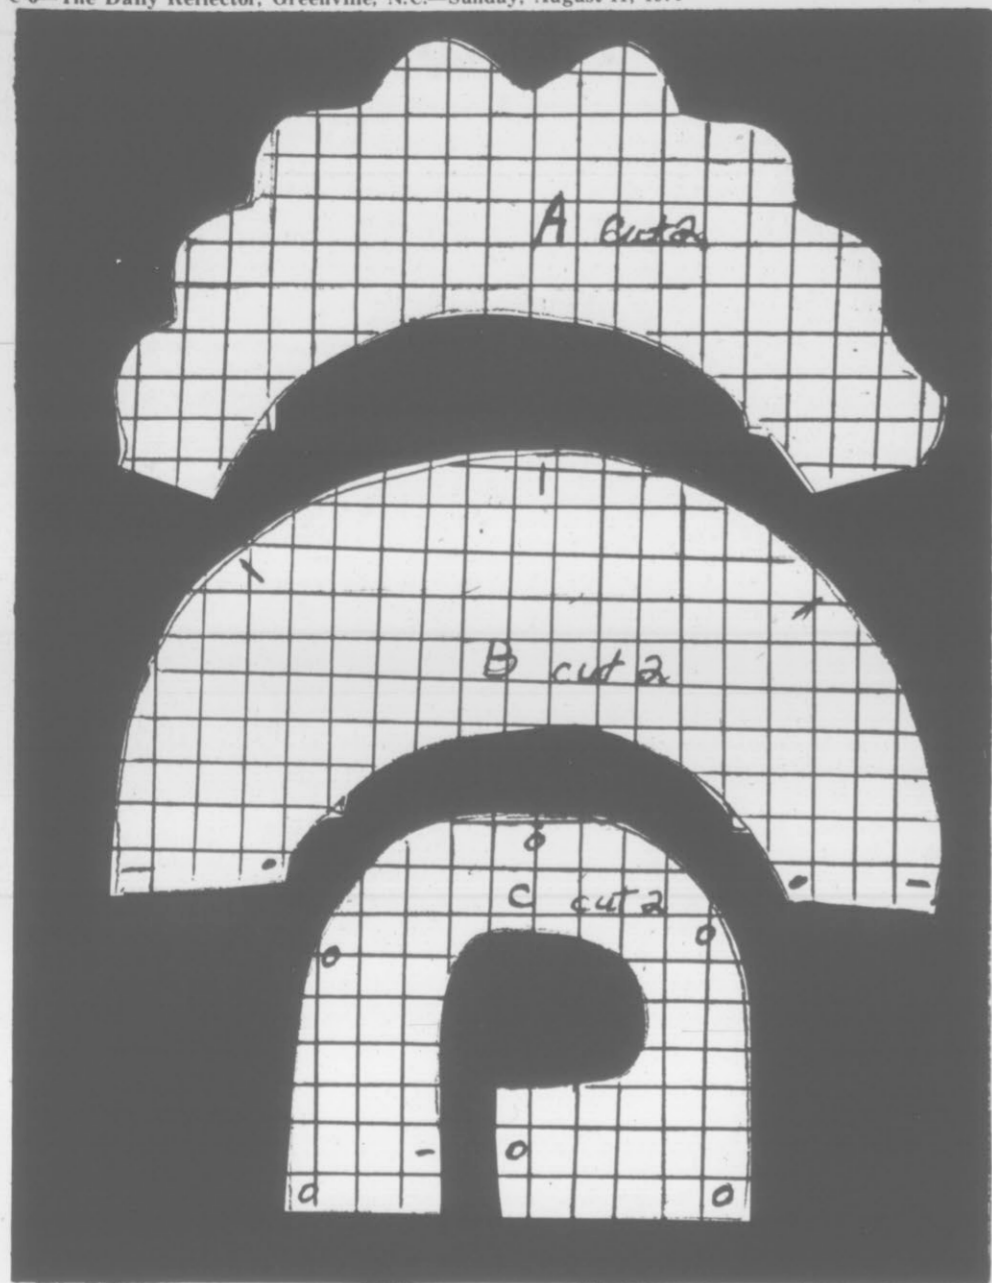

Following the dinner, a dance was held at the country club featuring the In Crowd honoring the wedding party, relatives and friends. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Ed Mansour, Mr. and Mrs. Minson Edwards and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bailey.

Mrs. Thomas Snypes was hostess for a bridesmaids luncheon held Friday at Wells Town Squire.

On Wednesday, a cocktail party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Zeno Spence honoring the bridal couple.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus Davidson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merlee Bennett of Rt. 1, York, Ala., announce the engagement of their daughter, Maudie Lee, of Greenville, to William Joe Tom Lee Davidson of Lawrenceburg, Tenn. The wedding will take place Sept. 14.

Bicentennial Bonnet Pattern Instructions

Pattern instructions for a Bicentennial bonnet are as follows:

Transfer pattern to paper. Each small square equals one inch. The pattern allows 1/8 inches for seams. Materials needed include one yard of 36" wide material, thread, interfacing for a brim A and for B, six buttons.

Place pattern on fabric in line with grain of fabric. Cut 2 each of pattern pieces A, B, and C. If fabric tie is desired, cut 4 pieces 4 in. wide and 25 in. long. Cut one piece interfacing for A and one piece for B.

Sew interfacing with machine baste stitch to wrong side of pieces A and B with 1/8" seam allowance.

Sew together 2 pieces A, with right sides together, leaving matched edge open. Clip seam turn, press. Scalloped edge may be finished with trim or several rows of top stitching.

Join together 2 pieces of B, right sides together, leaving matched edge open. Clip, turn, press.

With right sides together join matched edges of A and B. Trim seams, press.

Fold under and press 1/8" seam allowance on both pieces of C.

Pin or baste wrong sides together. Stitch on right side of fabric around all edges 1/8" from edge.

Make 5 button holes in pieces B, 1 in C, where lines indicate. Add buttons to piece C at the circles.

Forced Marriages Bring Sentence

ATHENS, Greece WNS—Petros Novaras, 29, made the mistake of courting two girls at the same time, Despina Ionadi in Athens and Vassiliki Chioti in Lamia. The poor fellow wanted to remain a bachelor, but Vassiliki's mother bullied him into marrying her daughter. The honeymoon was barely over when Despina's mother made him marry her daughter, too. He was arrested for bigamy during his second honeymoon. Now the judge has sentenced Petros to eight months of future bachelor existence—in jail.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Editor

For a jellied salad that won't make any real dent in the food budget, you can use canned beets as the base with a little aromatic bitters added for piquancy. This salad looks attractive, serves eight or nine and is delicious offered with its easy-to-prepare creamy dressing.

JELLIED BEET SALAD

- 1-pound can diced beets
- 1 envelope plus 1 1/2 teaspoons unflavored gelatin
- 2 chicken bouillon cubes
- 1/4 cup distilled white vinegar
- 1/4 cup minced onion
- 1 tablespoon aromatic bitters
- Salad greens
- Small onion rings
- Horseradish Dressing, see below

Drain beets and reserve. Add enough cold water to the beet juice to make 1 3/4 cups; pour into a medium saucepan; sprinkle with the gelatin and allow to soften — about 5 minutes; add the bouillon cubes; stir over low heat until gelatin and cubes are dissolved. Remove from heat. Stir in 1 cup cold water, the vinegar, onion and bitters; chill until slightly thickened, stirring several times. Fold in beets. Turn into a 5-cup mold or nine 1/2 cup molds or custard cups. Chill until firm. Unmold by dipping into lukewarm water and surround with salad greens; if desired garnish with small onion rings. Serve with Horseradish Dressing. Makes 8 or 9 servings.

Horseradish Dressing: Stir together 1/2 pint commercial sour cream, 2 tablespoons undrained white or red bottled horseradish and salt to taste.

Call it thunderbolt or flame stitch, this zig zag pattern borrowed from Italian bargello needlework is showing up in women's wear this fall in a big way. It's in sweaters, two piece dresses and pantsuits.

Series In 6th Season

CHAD EVERETT

With the high mortality rate among TV shows today, it's always surprising to find a show going into its sixth year of production. Such is the case with "Medical Center", seen weekly on CBS. In a recent interview, the star of the series, Chad Everett, talked quite freely and frankly about the reasons for the show's continued success.

"As far as what we are doing," he said, "I think we're just trying to stay up with what's going on, and if we attempt to reflect everything that's happening in the world today, we'll never run out of story material. Then too," Chad continued with that Joe Gannon seriousness that's hypnotized viewers for years, "we try to think of the show as a mosaic, that each script reveals another piece of the mosaic. We intentionally started out with no biography of Gannon because we didn't want to restrict our authors with story ideas."

Looking back over the years, "Medical Center" has consistently had one of the most impressive lists of guest stars of any show on television. When asked about this, Chad replied thoughtfully, "You know, this is a big part of what's kept us on. As far as I'm concerned, the whole game of acting is reacting; bring in an interesting character, bring in a talented star, and I get to have histrionic intercourse with that person. What's more, it's always different. I guess it's like the beginning of a new day."

'Chicago' TV Special Slated Friday Evening

One of contemporary music's top groups, Chicago, will star in a television special on the ABC Television Network, Friday, August 16 (8:30-9:30 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12. "Chicago: Meanwhile Back at the Ranch," sponsored by Dr. Pepper, was announced recently by Edwin Vane, National Program Director for ABC Entertainment. Joining the eight-man supergroup known as Chicago, will be silver-haired country singer, Charlie Rich, who has the number one country hit record, and four albums in the top LP charts, and Canadian singer Anne Murray, whose single, "You Won't See Me," is No. 9 on the charts.

"Chicago: Meanwhile Back at the Ranch" will be taped at various locations in Nederland, Colorado, on the famed Caribou Ranch owned by Chicago producer James William Gueric. In addition to providing the visual delight of the wide open spaces, the ranch also has some of the best recording and studio facilities in the country. In addition to Chicago, many top stars of the magnitude of Elton John and the Beach Boys have recorded there. For the band, the ranch is a home, office and playground. Each of the members of the group has resided there.

In the last few years, Chicago has enjoyed an international audience for their recordings and live concert engagements. Initially, their sound was described as big - band, jazz - rock, brass. Today, the only term needed to describe their sound is their name: Chicago.

The ABC special combines the best of today's music with the thrills, chills, laughs and excitement of the days of the silent western films. Ann Murry will play the part of a villainous young woman out to gain control of the Caribou Ranch from the members of Chicago. Charlie Rich portrays "Silver Fox," a very mysterious stranger.

"Some say we're controversial," Chad grinned, "I'd like to think the controversial subjects have set us apart from other medical series. Really, I don't think we've ever thought of competing with another show as much as we have tried to do the best we can with what we've had."

NURSE HOT LIPS — Keeping things in perspective, Loretta Swit, who portrays the shapely but stuffy nurse, Hot Lips, on "M-A-S-H," which goes into its third season this fall on a new day, Tuesdays (8:30-9 p.m.) on Channel 9-11, strolls in the surf at a California beach with her two Pekingese.

An Hour Of Donald Duck Sunday Night

Few animated actors from Disney's stable of cartoon characters are better known than Donald Duck — that irascible web-footed wonder who recently celebrated his 40th birthday.

For those who haven't been introduced to the sailor-suited duck — and it's difficult to believe that anyone hasn't been — "The Wonderful World of Disney" gladly does the honors Sunday evening, August 11, on Channel 6-7, when the pesky little bird is featured in an animated hour of merriment about the great out-of-doors.

Entitled "The Ranger of Brownstone," the show actually concerns a bunch of zany bears who roam the forest stirring up trouble. But where there's trouble, there's Donald.

In keeping with today's trend of ecology and conservation, one of the six classic Disney cartoons that comprise the show features a bear that seeks refuge in Donald's cabin during the hunting season, but only manages to ruffle Don's feathers. In another of Don's adventures he loses control of his flash camera and momentarily blinds a mountain lion. The bewildered cat dashes helter-skelter through the Grand Canyon knocking over rock spires and overhanging cliffs. When the dust settles, Donald is amazed to see the gaping wonder completely filled in.

Don's knack for getting into mischief began in 1934 when Walt Disney featured his newest character in the Silly Symphony short, "The Wise Little Hen." Since that time he's appeared in more than 100 cartoons, five full-length films, and is a regular troublemaker on the "World of Disney."

Though Donald is a comic strip hero in nearly 50 nations around the world, fame hasn't gone to his head. He still remains as quick-tempered as ever, for Donald isn't one to contain his emotions. His charm stems from his squawking personality because audiences understand his everyday frustrations. He is the champion of the meek and it's pure fun to watch Donald get even after he's been wronged.

Perhaps the most identifiable characteristic of the duck is his voice, and it was created by onetime entertainer Clarence Nash.

Donald Duck is truly a cartoon legend who has made us all laugh throughout the year's we've known and loved him.

FBI INVESTIGATES — Sybil Scotford (left) as Barbara Saunders, a secretary in an art museum, is questioned by Inspector Lewis Erskine (Efrem Zimbalist Jr.) regarding the theft of a priceless religious relic in "Fool's Gold" on "The FBI" Sunday, August 11 (7:30-8:30 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12.

Story Of 'Burma Surgeon' Retold

"The Burma Surgeon Today: The Story of Dr. Gordon Seagrave" — an account of a remarkable American, a one-man Peace Corps for 40 years without Government aid — will be presented on "CBS News Retrospective" Sunday, Aug. 11 (6-7 p.m.) on Channel 9-11.

"The Burma Surgeon Today," expanded from the original 1961 broadcast on "The 20th Century" on the Network, is a filmed interview with Dr. Gordon Seagrave, a man who dedicated his entire life to a small hospital in northern Burma, one which he himself helped to build in the early 1920s.

The broadcast shows the daily life and routine at the Namkham hospital: Dr. Seagrave examining patients, working in the operating room, teaching his staff. In one dramatic sequence, the doctor performs a Caesarean section and, with the help of his nurses, succeeds in saving the lives of the mother and child.

CBS News Correspondent Peter Kalischer traveled to Namkham to interview the doctor. He says, "We found Dr. Seagrave, old and in poor health, but going about a schedule of daily tasks which would flatten a 21-year-old. He was in fine spirits, relieving pain, chatting and teaching all the time, deeply concerned about every patient who came to him for help."

Dr. Seagrave was born in Burma, where two of his great-grandfathers had come as missionaries in the 1830s. "My ancestors were all either preachers or schoolteachers," he says, "but I was determined I was going to be a doctor, and it didn't matter to me what part of Burma I went to, just so I was serving Burma."

On the broadcast, Dr. Seagrave tells of returning to Burma from the U.S. in 1922, fresh from medical school at Johns Hopkins in Baltimore, Md., and with almost no instruments except some he'd found in a wastebasket in a hospital where he interned. He was unable to find anyone to assist him in that remote region, and he knew it was out of the question to train doctors, so he began training Burmese women as nurses. In 40 years at Namkham, he trained 700 of them.

Dr. Seagrave also talks about his experiences in World War II — the Japanese invasion, the march out of Burma with General "Vinegar Joe" Stilwell, the fight back and the bitter-sweet taste of victory: his hospital in ruins, bombed out by the U.S. Air Force during the Japanese occupation.

HOME OFFICE

Whether it's writing letters and paying bills or taking care of club committee chores and maybe even doing homework for those adult education classes, keeping a home running smoothly can involve lots of paper work. Headquarters for these chores in days gone by used to be the library or the study, but it really doesn't require a room all to itself. A corner or a wall area, with the necessary writing space and storage compartments, can make the most efficient office at home.

To Rebroadcast 'Jane Pittman'

Cicely Tyson stars in the title role that won her an Emmy Award as "Actress of the Year in a Special," in "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman," the two-hour drama honored by the Television Academy as the "Outstanding Special" of the 1973-74 season, which will be re-broadcast Sunday, Nov. 3 (7:30-9:30 p.m.) on Channel 9-11.
 Xerox Corporation, represented by Needham, Harper & Steers, will again be the full sponsor of the drama special.
 The broadcast won a total of nine Emmy Awards and was acclaimed by critics across the nation when it was originally presented on the Network on January 31, 1974.

Johnny Carson Logs A Lot Of 'Tonight' Hours

There are few performers ... if any ... who have had more television exposure than Johnny Carson.
 Carson, who in October will celebrate his 12th year with NBC's "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson" (Monday-Friday, 11:30 p.m. - 1 a.m.), has completed over 3,000 90-minute programs since taking over as host.

 Each week, except when he is on vacation, Carson tapes six hours of programming, and he appears on "The Weekend Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson," a repeat 90-minute show.

Johnny is seen by millions of viewers for seven - and - a - half hours a week. In early days of TV, shows were filming 39 new episodes a season. Johnny surpasses that exposure in less than six weeks.

Where many shows take a hiatus, the "Tonight Show" continues to tape 52 weeks a year. Carson's vacations are really not vacations; when not appearing on the "Tonight Show," he performs in Las Vegas and makes personal appearances around the country.

Many performers do a weekly show, running from 60 to 90 minutes in length, but Johnny is on four nights a week (a guest host takes over one night a week), giving him a vast amount of time on the air.

There are show hosts who principally do introductions but on the "Tonight Show," Johnny is involved with every guest.

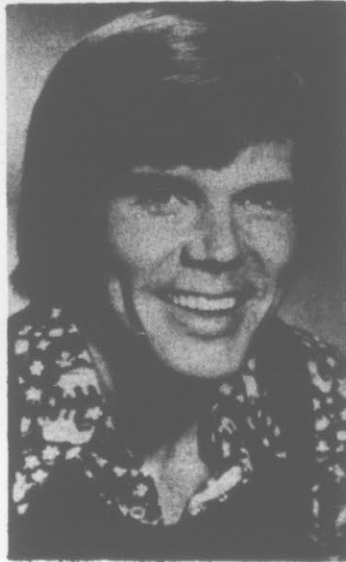

"After so many years on the show," Carson points out, "taking off one day a week helps keep me fresh. A lot goes into a 90-minute show. You have to know what each guest can talk about, do a lot of reading and be as current as today's headlines in order to be able to converse with any variety of guest."

"I think a four-day week for this type of show is necessary," Johnny adds. "It's not possible to do great shows every night unless you take sufficient time to unwind and 'get fresh.' I don't know who has been seen on television as much as I have but we are logging a lot of hours."

If you just take the figure of 3,000 shows, that means the "Tonight Show" has presented over 4,500 hours of entertainment.

Can anyone match these numbers?

Including the weekend show.

GUEST HOST—John Davidson will be sitting in for Johnny Carson on "The Tonight Show" during the week of August 12-16.

Ball Park Espionage Unfolded

The secret language of baseball, including an on - the - field espionage system which transcends the prosaic pilfering of coaches' signs, will be the theme of "The Baseball World of Joe Gargiola" August 12 (8-8:15 p.m.) immediately preceding Monday Night Baseball on Channel 6-7.

This edition of "Baseball World" will examine the ingenious ways sign-stealing has been conducted in major league ball parks over the years.

Former manager Birdie Tebbetts and ex-pitching star Bob Buhl, two of the classic "spies" of bygone years, will join Joe Gargiola in revealing how scoreboards, towels, varying voice tones and ball players operating out of the bleachers all contributed to feeding batters information and what kind of pitch was being served up next.

Buhl, the former Milwaukee Braves righthander — super spy as people around ball parks were wont to call him — is filmed sitting in the bleachers, armed with binoculars; just the way he used to do it during his days of ball parks espionage.

GEER IS GUEST— Will Geer guest stars as a sinister professor of anthropology in the "Hexed" episode of "Medical Center" to be rebroadcast Monday, August 12 (10-11 p.m.) on channels 3N-9-11.

Experience In Army 'Turned On' An Actor

Bill Macy who plays the role of Walter Findlay, Maude's always loving, often-misunderstood, fourth husband, admits to being 'turned on' to show business while he was serving in the United States Army Amphibious Engineers. He was assigned to produce some PX shows and, from then on, he performed whenever and wherever possible.

When he was discharged from the Army in 1946, Bill says the next three years were spent "floundering, searching for myself" for three years, finally enrolling in a dramatic workshop. When he asked his instructor, "What is acting?" he was told to attend classes for six months and he would "either love it or hate it." Macy loved it, and the following year he enrolled in the School of Education at NYU. He performed in the NYU Drama department productions for four years under the direction of Albert Quinton and in Public Theatre in New York with Joseph Papp. His first professional role was a walk-on in the Brecht play "The Jewish Wife" at the Alhambra Theatre for $1.50 a week.

In 1966 when Macy was appearing in "America Hurrah" he first came to the attention of Norman Lear, executive producer of "Maude," who saw the play and sent a congratulatory note to Macy. The following year Lear was in New York and attended the theatre with actress Beatrice Arthur. The play was "The Cannibals" and Macy appeared in it. In 1969 Macy appeared in "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little" with Julie Harris. When he learned they were taking the play to Hollywood, he got in touch with Norman Lear. Lear cast him as a policeman in one episode of "All in the Family" and created the Walter Findlay character with Macy in mind.

Bill is 5'10" tall, with black hair and brown eyes. His permanent home is Manhattan and he is a native of Revere, Mass.

Seek Spot For Don Rickles

CBS-TV is taking another flyer on Don Rickles, having signed the nightery insult comic to a program development deal aimed at finding the right away to use him on the tube.

Rickles will make up to four specials for the web which may be tested in varying time period locations, including the late-night 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. slot, but the main aim is to find a primetime spot for the project. Rickles is partnered with Paul Keyes, former producer of "Laugh-In," in the project and its expected the partners will supply two primetime Rickles specials as well — one this year and one next.

The airing of Rickles in the latenight period, if and when, will be on a preemption basis for a given night. CBS has no intention of changing its latenight theatrical movie policy, having informed its affiliates at its recent convention that it had films already on hand to last until 1976.

Andy Griffith Turns 'Heavy'

Remember Andy Griffith, the kindly, gentle soft-spoken sheriff of Mayberry? Well, forget him! As far as Andy is concerned, that man is long gone. The proof is Griffith's latest role in "Pray for the Wildcats," a special two-hour "Tuesday Movie of the Week," August 13 (8-10 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12.

"The character I play in 'Wildcats' is about as far removed from Sheriff Andy as a pussycat is from a rattlesnake with a sore fang," muses Griffith, his North Carolina country accent still easy on the ears.

The role is that of a ruthless business executive who coerces three men into taking a motorcycle trip down the Baja Peninsula. During the trip, Griffith deliberately causes the death of a young girl and boy after being rebuffed by the girl, plays each of his associates against the other, and eventually tries to kill one of them.

CARROLL BAKER stars as movie queen Rina Marlon in the film adaptation of Harold Robbins "The Carpetbaggers" on the "ABC Monday Night Movie" Aug. 12 (9:00 p.m. to midnight) on Channel 3W-5-12. Startling guests at a Banquet, Rina leaps from table to chandelier and practically kills herself in the process, in this story of industrial intrigue and Hollywood of the Golden '30's."

Novel Now A Film

"The Carpetbaggers," based on Harold Robbins' best selling novel, with a cast that includes Carroll Baker, George Peppard, Alan Ladd, Bob Cummings, Martha Hyer and Elizabeth Ashley, airs as "The ABC Monday Night Movie" on the ABC Television Network, August 12 (9 p.m.-midnight) on Channel 3-5-12.

Played against backgrounds of industrial intrigue and the Hollywood of the "Golden '30s," this is the story of Jonas Cord, Jr. (George Peppard), who inherits his father's chemical company and soon blazes a trail of conquests in the business world as well as with women.

Cord is bitter over the marriage of his father to Rina Marlow (Carroll Baker), a woman he had planned to marry himself.

She adds to his bitterness by leaving after his father's funeral as does Nevada Smith (Alan Ladd), Jonas' boyhood mentor and idol.

Scriptwriter Started Slow

Veteran scriptwriter and Emmy Award winner John McGreevey, who wrote "A Serious Girl," the first episode to go before the cameras for NBC Television Network's new fall series, "Lucas Tanner," starring David Hartman, vividly recalls the discouragement he experienced during his days as an aspiring writer.

"Lucas Tanner" will be colorcast on NBC-TV Wednesdays, 9 to 10 p.m., starting in the fall.

"I was convinced I'd never make it," he says. "I was writing in my spare time while holding down a job with television station KTAR in Phoenix. I was five years out of college and hadn't sold a thing. I almost gave up the idea."

Telly Works, Plays Hard

ON THE MOVE — "Kojak" (Telly Savalas) gets ready to swing over to Sunday night on CBS when "Kojak" begins its second season. Slated for the 8:30-9:30 p.m. time slot—CBS' new season will premiere in September.

Telly Savalas' philosophy is "work hard play hard." The Emmy Award winning star of "Kojak," beginning its second season in September on the CBS Television Network, recently demonstrated this philosophy by taking his entire cast and crew on an unprecedented, all-expense paid, three-day vacation to Las Vegas following completion of their first season.

The group was also treated to an evening with the glamorous Ann-Margaret, as member of her nightclub audience. After the show, the gallant Telly rushed backstage to convey his and his guests' appreciation for a great performance.

Although new to the sport of golf, Savalas has become an avid golfer and couldn't turn down the chance to play a round... of golf... on one of the lush, sun-filled Las Vegas courses. By the way, he's become quite good; he recently won first prize in a celebrity golf tournament.

Unique Movie In A Prison

A compelling shocking story and a unique movie location gave director Tom Gries, his cast, crew and some of the most unusual extras in television history a memorable filming experience.

Truman Capote's "The Glass House", a made-for-television film which will be seen on "The CBS Late Show", Wednesday, August 14 at 11:30 p.m., in Channel 9-11, was filmed entirely within the walls of the Utah State Prison, near Salt Lake City. The film realistically chronicles a tragic power struggle among inmates of a state prison.

"This movie was not filmed like most other made-for-television films and it will not look like others, either," says Tom Gries. "The crew kept teasing me, saying I was filming a feature film and not a television broadcast. That was true. I generally work with about 16 cameras setups per day on a television project to fit in with production schedules and budgets. This film required an average of 33 new setups each day. I think our maximum was 43 or 46 — an unusual number of anybody's standards".

Few things in life worry a Volkswagen.

Rising gas prices worry a Volkswagen? The VW Beetle gets about 25 miles to a gallon. So it costs its owner a lot less per mile than big cars do. Even if the price of gas does go up, a Beetle won't develop an expensive drinking habit.

'Alfred The Great' Friday

David Hemmings and Michael York star in a drama of the desperate times and fierce battles that led to the unification of England, in "Alfred the Great," to be seen on "The CBS Thursday Night Movies" Thursday, Aug. 15 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 3N-9-11.
 Hemmings portrays Alfred, the younger brother of a weak, disolute king whose realm is only a tiny corner of England. Consistently beseiged by pagan forces from the continent led by Guthrum the Dane, the tiny factions of England are unable to unite into one powerful force. Alfred, an extra-ordinary warrior, lives in the shadow of his brother and in fear of his own enjoyment of battle.
 The king's death put Alfred on the throne, and in the throes of making an agonized decision to fight the pagans. Taunted by the enemy who holds his family captive, and torn by the disunity among his own nobles, Alfred decides to do battle.

Aaron Will Be Grand Marshal

Atlanta Braves star Henry Louis "Hank" Aaron, baseball's all-time home run king, has been named grand marshal of the 1975 Tournament of Roses Parade in Pasadena, California, to be colorcast on the NBC Television Network New Year's Day.
 Aaron is the only baseball notable to be selected as grand marshal — and the second sports figure; golf great Arnold Palmer had the honor in 1965.
 Aaron and his wife, Billye, will lead the five-and-a-half-mile parade, and also will be guests of honor at the coronation of the Rose Queen, the Kickoff Luncheon, and the Rose Bowl football cassis on New York's afternoon.
 On April 8, Aaron broke Babe Ruth's lifetime home run record when he hit no. 715 in Atlanta. He recently set another standard, breaking Ty Cobb's record of participating in the most games in any sport when he appeared in game no. 3,034.

MARK AND SUZY

Mark Spitz and his wife Suzy guest-star as a married couple faced with an emergency in "Quicker Than the Eye," an episode of NBC Television Network's "Emergency!" now in production.

PENNY FULLER — Stars as Sgt. Ann Neal in "Ann in Blue," on the comedy series "Just For Laughs," Thursday, August 15 (8:30 9 p.m.) on Channel 3-5.

Ironside Starts 8th Year

"Ironside" starts its eighth season with a new executive producer, new story plans for one of its four cast regulars and new living quarters for another. Raymond Burr continues to star in the series as former San Francisco Police Department detective chief Robert T. Ironside, on Thursday (9-10 p.m.).
 The new executive producer is Joel Rogosin, who was one of the series' three producers four years ago. He also produced the medical segments of the widely acclaimed series, "The Bold Ones."
 Returning as co-stars with Burr will be his regular team, Don Galloway as Det. Sgt. Ed Brown, Don Mitchell as Detective Mark Sanger and Elizabeth Baur as Officer Fran Belding.
 The new story plans call for the Mark Sanger character — who has evolved from tough juvenile to Ironside's aide to neophyte detective — to go on to law school, pass the bar exam and, with a future that promising, get married.

Documentary Cites Inflation Problem

Spiraling inflation is eroding the income of American families and ABC News investigates the causes and alternatives in the documentary special, "ABC News Close-Up on Inflation," airing Friday, August 16 (10-11 p.m.) on Channel 5-12.

Av Westin, ABC News Vice President and Director of Television Documentaries, said in making the announcement: "We will spell out for viewers the key factors that are fueling inflation and the tough choices ahead. The program will combine a graphic lesson in basic economies with an investigation of practices that led up to today's conditions. We also will examine the paradox of high unemployment in a time of mushrooming prices, described by some economists with a new word—stagflation."

Late last year political leaders predicted that inflation would decline. Instead, it has worsened. ABC News asks: Why?

In searching out the answers ABC News Correspondent Ann Medina, co-producer of the program, has questioned economists and leaders in government, business and industry. They include President Nixon's chief economic adviser, Kenneth Rush; Paul Samuelson, can be done in the future to halt the runaway rise in prices and what the social and economic consequences would be. Ann Medina will narrate this program. (60 min)

Film From England

A boy is trapped underground with an unexploded World War II German mine in the suspense-adventure film from England, "Countdown to Danger," which will be rebroadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival" Saturday, August 17 (1-2 p.m.) on Channel 9-11.

While vacationing on the island of Alderney, the boy accidentally falls through a rotting roof into an old German mine store and is trapped. Attempting to free himself, he dislodges a mine which begins to tick ominously. When his young friends learn of his plight, they try to locate a bomb-disposal officer who, unfortunately, is vacationing on the island of Guernsey.

When the officer eventually arrives, he opts to let the boy disarm the mine himself. Success appears to be achieved until a critical situation is encountered, and a desperate gamble must be undertaken.

"Countdown to Danger" was written and directed by Peter Seabourne for Wallace Productions, Ltd.

Burr Tillstrom's Kukla, Fran and Ollie with Fran Allison are hosts of "The CBS Children's Film Festival."

'GO' AT THE BAKERY— Chef Louis Szathmary shows how he prepares a meal for The Bakery, the famous restaurant in Chicago, on "GO" program Saturday, August 17 (12:30-1 p.m.) on Channel 6-7. Renowned Conductor Arthur Fiedler of the "Boston Pops" compares the chef's work to that of leading an orchestra.

Special Preview Of TV Saturday

The Hudson Brothers will be the hosts of "CBS Socko Saturday," half-hour preview special of the new, diversified look in entertainment combining educational and informational programming on Saturday mornings on CBS-TV in the new season. The special will be broadcast Friday, September 6 (8-8:30 p.m.) on the Network.

The program will feature segments from "SHAZAM", the live-action series derived from the famous saga based on the Captain Marvel character; the "Harlem Globetrotters Popcorn Machine," a fast-paced live-on-tape half-hour that will present 9 of the world famous Harlem Globetrotters, plus the added attraction of Rodney Allen Rippey; "Valley of the Dinosaurs," an animated half-hour series featuring a sophisticated family of today accidentally lost in a valley where their own Stone Age counterparts were thriving in a primitive surrounding; "U.S. of Archie," a half-hour innovative look at American history as seen through the eyes of the popular characters of Archie, Jughead, Reggie, Veronica and their friends; "Patridge Family: '2200 AD,'" featuring the voices of most of the original cast and taking one of America's favorite family singing groups and placing them in the year 2200; and, finally, a segment from "The Hudson Brothers Dazzel Comedy Hour", the live-on-tape series starring the three brothers in music and comedy conveying value-related messages.

Real Life Is Like Her Role

Audrey Landers has just had her 18th birthday in real life, and recently passed the 18 year mark in her role of Heather Lawrence in NBC Television Network's daytime drama series "Somerset" (Monday - Friday, 4-4:30 p.m.) on Channel 6-7. There's also another parallel in the real and the fictional lives of Audrey. In "Somerset" she plays a young girl who has just become a nurse's aide; in real life she often works as a volunteer aide in nursing homes.

"Many people don't have patience with old people. I like talking to them. They have so much to offer that no young person really knows about," the actress says.

In spite of her busy acting career and volunteer work, Audrey finds time for her pet hobby, writing poetry and songs. She carries a little notebook with her that contains her old poems, and adds to them. "It's like a diary," she explains, "it tells really more about my emotions than about what actually happens to me."

'Sierra' Filmed In Parks

NBC Television Network's new outdoor adventure series, "Sierra," is expected to do for the National Park Service Rangers what the network's "Police Story" and "Adam-12" have done for police work, and "Emergency!" for paramedics and hospital emergency service units.

"Sierra," will be filmed entirely on location in cooperation with the National Park Service. Though it will be shot principally in Yosemite National Park, Calif., the setting of "Sierra" will be representative of all national parks.

The National Park Service differs from the National Forest Service in that the former is mainly involved with reaction, the latter with a national resource and how to preserve it.

Each episode of "Sierra" will show how the dedicated men and women of the Park Service experience a great deal of adventure. Among other things, they work with Navy helicopters in mountain rescues; train at the Scripps Institution of Oceanography (La Jolla, California) in diving; and learn about rock and mountain climbing. They are also involved in law enforcement but it is not heavily emphasized. Their idea of law enforcement is enlightened and far from arbitrary; they know how to explain the reasoning behind the rules as they enforce them.

Although each episode is fictional, the shows will re-create actual situations that rangers and tourists experience. Starring as rangers are James G. Richardson, Ernest Thompson, Jack Hoga, Mike Warren and Susan Foster.

ADDED AWARD

Rebecca Ann King, Miss America of 1974, who will crown her successor at the climax of the 54th annual Miss America Pageant on Sept. 7, is the first titleholder to have won a $15,000 scholarship award along with her crown. She'll also earn about $60,000 in fees during her year-long reign.

Quiet Walt Alston Is A 21-Season Manager

The year was 1953: the date was the 24th of November, and the press release which first announced Walt Alston as the manager of the Dodgers was short and to the point: "Walter Emmons Alston was named manager of the Dodgers today. Alston, was born on December 1, 1911, at Hamilton, Ohio, now lives in Oxford, Ohio."

Today, 21 baseball season later, Walter Alston remains as the manager of the Dodgers. Alston's accomplishments have stamped him as one of the most successful manager of all times. Only two men — Connie Mack (50 years with the Philadelphia Athletics) and John McGraw (31 years with the New York Giants) — managed one club for a longer period of time than Alston. Only eight men have managed clubs for more than 20 years — Mack, McGraw, Bucky Harris (29 years), Casey Stengel (25), Bill McKechnie (24), Joe McCarthy (24), Leo Durocher (24) and Jimmy Dykes (21).

Walt has been the manager of all four World Championship teams in the Dodger history (1955, 1959, 1963 and 1965) and he has managed six Dodger teams to pennants. Only four managers in the history of Major League baseball have won more pennants and only three have won more World Championships.

At the end of each season Walt, still as talkative as ever, signs a one year contract and goes back home to Ohio where he raises some corn, potatoes, shoots a little pool and sits out the winter.

He is surely among the most patient of men, but Alston has been known to get a bit 'physical' when the situations demands it.

Walt and his colorful Los Angeles Dodgers will be seen on the evening of August 12, at 8:15 on Channel 6-7.

The Dodger pitching coach is equally impressive but a bit more vocal than the team's manager.

If you ask Charles Dwight (Red) Adams to comment on his role as the pitching coach there is a good chance that you will receive a light-hearted answer. "They say that if you want to be a good singer you should hang around good singers," says Red. "If you want to be a good pitching coach you should hang around good pitchers."

Red Adams never takes himself too seriously. He goes sly. He goes about his job, however, with a very serious attitude. Adams' success in accomplishing his duties is reflected in the statements of the Dodger pitchers. "He's the best thing that ever happened to my career," says Don Sutton. "He's so unappreciated except by the people who work for him."

Red says his formula as a pitching coach is one of fundamentals. "I read something once that I firmly believe in," he says. "It was that a good coach is someone who doesn't make an opponent out of his student. Three words are important: flexibility, communication and common sense. I also feel," concludes Red, "that it's very important to acquaint myself with each player as a person as well as a pitcher."

WALT ALSTON

Stargell Setting Baseball Records

Willie Stargell, leftfielder for the Pittsburgh Pirates, had his best year in baseball during the 1973 season. He finished second in the Most Valuable Player voting and he led the majors in home runs (44), Runs - Batted - In (119), 43 doubles and a slugging percentage of .646. According to figures compiled by the Sporting News, he also led the majors in game - winning - hits (28). He returned to leftfield on Opening Day of the '73 season and played all of his 148 games there after playing first base the second half of the '72 season and during spring training.

Playing on stronger legs than ever before, he has now set pro career highs for games played (148) and runs scored (106). This amazing lefthander has never gone more than two games without a hit and his batting average has remained around .300 so far this year. Willie became the All-Time Pirate home run leader last July, when he hit home run No. 302 off of San Diego's Steve Arlin, surpassing Ralph Kiner's record, and he set a club record for most extra - base - hits in one season with 90 hits.

Willie is married to the former Dolores Parker and they are the parents of three children ...

Chirkinian A Real Pro In TV Golf

To the professional golfers on the PGA Tour, Frank Chirkinian is often referred to as "Pro".

Although Chirkinian doesn't travel the circuit, he has won the admiration of those who do for his knowledge of the sport and, especially, for his presentation of golf on the CBS Television Network with a crisp, up-to-the-minute flair.

The Sammy Davis Jr. Greater Hartford Open, to be presented on the Network Saturday, August 17 (4:30-6:00 p.m.) and Sunday, August 18 (4:00-5:30 p.m.), on Channel 3N-9-11 will doubtlessly be no exception.

Chirkinian, who has the mental reflexes of a linebacker in football, has no time for leisurely planning while covering golf, not when he must instantaneously choose which of many images on the monitors in the Network mobile unit is to appear on millions of home television screens at any given moment.

MUSICAL GUESTS—The incomparable Pointer Sisters, who blend a wild mixture of Andrews Sisters camp with finger-snapping rhythm perform "Chainey Do", "Fairy Tales", "Salt Peanuts", and many more when they appear on public television's new popular music series, "The Boarding House", Wednesday, August 14 at 9:30 p.m. on Channel 25, UNC-TV.

'The Godfather' To Be Viewed On TV Screen

"The Godfather", starring Marlon Brando — the number one box office attraction of all time and winner of three Academy Awards including Best Picture and BEST Actor of 1972 — will have its world television premiere on NBC-TV this November.

The 1972 Paramount Pictures release, which also won an Oscar for its screenplay by Mario Puzo and Francis Ford Coppola (based on Mr. Puzo's novel), will be broadcast over two evenings.

"The Godfather" is the most important recent motion picture release never to have been shown on television," Robert T. Howard, President of the NBC Television Network says. "It has been the subject of intensive pursuit by all three television networks, and we are absolutely delighted to announce that it will join the other super-block-busters that will have their home-screen premieres on the NBC Television Network."

The New York Times called "The Godfather" one of the most "moving chronicles of American life ever designed within the limits of population entertainment." The film earned Best Supporting Actor nominations for three performers — Al Pacino, James Caan and Robert Duvall — as well as a Best Director nomination for Coppola. Oscar nominations also went to Nino Rota for Best Original Dramatic Score and Ann Hill Johnstone for Best Costume Design.

Brando received the Academy Award for his moving and memorable portrayal of Don Vito Corleone, head of a large and powerful underworld family. Pacino and Caan appears as his son, Michael and Sonny; Duvall portrays Tom Hagen, friend and counselor of the Corleones. Also in the cast are John Marley, Diane Keaton, Richard Castellano, Sterling Hayden and Richard Conte.

In the most recent Variety compilation of all-time box-office champions, "The Godfather" headed the list with more than $85,000,000 in domestic rentals.

The overwhelming favorable critical reaction to the film included comments: "In its blending of new depth with an old genre, 'The Godfather' becomes that rarity, a mass entertainment that is also great movie art" (Time magazine); "the miracle of make-up has transformed the sinewy, athletic Brando into a man of 65, and the genius of the actor has done the rest... the film... glitters with good acting" and offers "a whopping sundae of suspense, melodrama and American mythology, topped by a matchless performance by an American master (Newsweek magazine); "an extraordinary achievement: a new classic in a classic American film genre" (The Washington Post).

Al Pacino was named the Best Actor of the Year by the National Society of Film Critics, and Robert Duvall was honored as the year's Best Supporting Actor by The New York Film Critics.

The Directors Guild of America selected Francis Ford Coppola as the Best Director of the Year, citing his work on "The Godfather" as 1972's most outstanding directional achievement."

On the international scene, Al Pacino was named the winner of Italy's David Donatello Award for his performance in "The Godfather" and Albert S. Ruddy was the recipient of the David Donatello prize as Best Foreign Producer of the Year.

Bicentennial Narrators

Alan Alda, Joseph Wambaugh, Ted Knight, Rosalind Russell and the Rev. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale will appear in and narrate the "Bicentennial Minutes" during the week starting Sunday, Aug. 11 on Channel 9-11.

Alan Alda will appear in and narrate the "Minute" on Sunday, Aug. 11. Thomas Jefferson retired from law after conducting over 100 cases a year. His most famous argument before the court pleaded a slave's rights — even though Jefferson owned over 100 slaves himself.

The "Minute" of Monday, Aug. 12, is narrated by author Joseph Wambaugh. On that date two centuries ago, a coppersmith's apprentice set upon a New York City nightwatchman in order to steal his club.

Ted Knight narrates the "Minute" on Tuesday, Aug. 13, relating how a reward of 10 pounds was offered in New York for the whereabouts of two sailors who had murdered their captain and stolen his ship. They were never captured, probably having fled to the West Indies.

Rosalind Russell appears in and narrates the "Minute" on Wednesday, August 14. The Sea Nymph sailed from Charles Town, S.C., for Philadelphia, carrying the American Company of Comedians. The actors had presented the first American performance of "Julius Caesar" by William Shakespeare.

Dr. Norman Vincent Peale narrates the Thursday, August 15 "Minute." On that date in 1774, the Rev. Samuel Peters of Hebron, Conn., a known Tory, was suspected of sending inflammatory letters to Parliament. Threatened with being tarred and feathered, only the appearance of his friends saved him.

Guest narrators and details of the Friday, Aug. 16 and the Saturday, Aug. 17 "Minutes" will be announced shortly.

Stevenson To Quit M-A-S-H

McLean Stevenson has signed a three-year personal services contract with NBC-TV which includes the development of new projects, it was announced today by David W. Tebet, Vice President, Talent, NBC-TV.

Negotiations were handled by Stevenson's personal manager Gene Lesser and the William Morris Agency. The contract calls for Stevenson's services as a performer, and in development projects for McLean Stevenson Enterprises, Inc., which includes made-for-television movies, specials and half-hour series projects.

Stevenson is now completing his third, and final year, on the TV series M-A-S-H. The NBC contract takes effect at the end of the 1974-75 season.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR BURT BACHARACH

Do you ever worry about losing your touch as a composer?—M. Reilly, Winnetka, Ill.

● Yes, as a matter of fact, I do. I'm doing well now, but my song-writing talent might run dry one of these days, and I want to have something to fall back on. For the past few years, I've wondered what kind of business I should enter. My profession, which puts me on the road a great deal, involves eating out a lot. So I thought it would be a good idea to invest in some restaurants. Right now I have two, on Long Island in New York. And I recently built a motel next to one of them.

FOR ROSEY GRIER

I read that you prefer needlepoint work to poker. Is that true?—M. T., Visalia, Calif.

● I usually combine the two. While I'm waiting for my buddies to play, I do needlepoint. They used to get mad because they said I delayed the game. Actually, it gave me time to think. When they figured this out, and saw the good hands I was getting, some of them started doing needlepoint too.

FOR JAMES B. IRWIN, former astronaut

Did your trip to the moon have something to do with your decision to start the High Flight Foundation, the religious organization to which you are now dedicating all your efforts?—John Dailey, Austin, Texas

● Yes. After my journey to the moon I believed I heard God saying to me, "I have taken you this far, Jim. Now I want you to go farther." I interpreted that to mean I should go farther toward heaven in a spiritual way.

FOR CATHY RIGBY, gymnast

I have often heard that after using parallel bars, etc., you became as strong as a bull. True?—Susan Marsh, Albany, N.Y.

● Heaven forbid! A small calf maybe, but I'd prefer not to be likened to a bull!

FOR JOHNNY CARSON

How much of your monologue is memorized and how much is ad-libbed?—Alan Brown, Steens, Miss.

● I have no script on the "Tonight" show, so my monologue is all ad lib in that sense. Actually I prepare it just before going on the air and have it in my head when I appear on camera.

FOR JACK LORD

Why do you think "Hawaii Five-O" has managed to stay on top so long?—J. Steed, Van Nuys, Calif.

● We're going into our eighth year because of a combination of things: the caring of the creator-producer Leonard Freeman, who died recently; the caring of myself, who had to take over many of the functions Leonard performed; plus the fact that we're 3,000 miles away from the network and have greater autonomy to do the things we want.

FOR JACK NICKLAUS, pro golfer

Arnold Palmer seems to be having a problem with his game. Have you tried to help him?—Don Miller, Chicago, Ill.

● Arnie's problem is mental. He has it fixed in his mind that he's having trouble. We all go through that, but Arnie is going through it longer.

FOR RONA JAFFE

Why haven't you ever married?—Becky Weldon, Clearwater, Fla.

● It's surprisingly simple. I didn't love any of the men who asked me to marry them; and the ones I loved never asked. I'm still old-fashioned enough to believe that without love there's no reason to get married.

FOR CHER BONO

Are your fingernails natural or artificial?—Monica Wenner, Nicollet, Minn.

● They're real. Keeping them is not easy—I have to be very careful. I really don't take any special vitamin or apply any special treatment. I'm just careful how I use my hands.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

I know Vanessa Redgrave is politically active, but what about her sister Lynn?—N. M., Coos Bay, Ore.

● Lynn Redgrave doesn't have any political leanings or ambitions, and the fact that her sister does has no effect on their relationship. The two sisters are very close and, according to Lynn, when they meet and talk, there is so much else to discuss—such as their respective acting careers—that they ignore the political scene. Also, they feel it's wise to keep off a subject that might result in an argument. By the way, Vanessa ran for Parliament in the recent British election—and was beaten very badly.

Hugh O'Brian:

How a Week in Deepest Africa Changed My Life Forever

By Hugh O'Brian

One lazy Sunday afternoon back in 1957, I read an article in "The Saturday Review" written by Dr. Albert Schweitzer. It so impressed me that I wrote him to ask if I could visit him in Africa. About three weeks later I got a cable inviting "Dr. O'Brian and party." I don't know what made him assume I was a doctor, but I wasn't about to knock the only chance I thought I might have to see the famous humanitarian.

A short time later I landed in Douala, Africa, where I was met by a German doctor wearing a pith helmet. He took me on a short flight in a single-engine plane to a grassy airstrip near Lambarene, where we transferred to a native dugout canoe. From there, in tropical heat that reached 115 degrees, we paddled upriver. Besides the doctor and myself, there were six oarsmen, all wearing bandages on various parts of their bodies. They were lepers who contributed their efforts to repay Dr. Schweitzer for treating them.

We had to paddle upstream about a mile past the clinic, which was on the other side. Then we cut across the river, paddling like mad against the current. As we approached the hospital, I could see an old man in a white outfit moving slowly and deliberately down the hill. It was Dr. Schweitzer.

The next week was the most impressive of my life. I ate every meal with Dr. Schweitzer and his staff in the combination recreation hall-dining room. After each evening meal, Dr. Schweitzer and I spent an hour or more talking.

The first night, after he talked about half an hour, he was very tired. No wonder. He'd gotten up at six o'clock in the morning, as he did every day. I told him that I feared I was taking too much of his time and suggested we continue our discussion the next morning. Dr. Schweitzer said, "Nein," and then added, "I am very old and you are very young. You have lots of time left. I don't."

What impressed me most, and what influenced me so much, was the Doctor's total preoccupation with his work, his lack of interest in any luxury, his passion for people and his ability to make the most out of every moment of the day. His appreciation of time itself was fantastic.

Most people who are in show business, actors in particular, are involved in charities and give many hours of time. They do benefits, give money, lend their names. But because most charities have large national offices, there is often something impersonal about them. After watching Dr. Schweitzer I decided I wanted to create something for which I was solely responsible, some worthwhile project that depended on my energy. It was the Doctor's preoccupation with youth that spawned the idea that eventually led to the Hugh O'Brian Foundation, which is dedicated to seeking out, stimulating and rewarding the leadership potential in young people.

Every year I sponsor a leadership seminar attended by about 70 boys and girls, at least one from each state, plus

"Since I met Dr. Schweitzer I have become more aware of the soul, of the force called God, of a life-giving energy. It is hard to describe, but religion means more to me now than before."

ten from outside the U.S. [Editor's note: Except for occasional and irregular contributions from others, Hugh O'Brian pays for this himself. All high school sophomores are eligible. The final selection is made by the National Association of Secondary School Principals in association with the United States Jaycees. For further information, write the Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation, c/o United States Jaycees, Box 7, Tulsa, Okla.]

There is always a different theme to these weeklong seminars. In 1968, for instance, it was to teach the basic principles of the democratic process. Half of the boys and girls went to the Democratic convention in Chicago. The other half to the Republican convention in Miami. In 1969 they attended a seminar on oceanography in Miami. From 1970 to '73 they went to Cape Kennedy to learn about space. In 1974 it was a leadership seminar on government, held in Washington, D.C.

Dr. Schweitzer, who gave up a lucrative practice when he went to Africa, and who inspired other doctors and nurses to do the same, also convinced me that I should put something back into the profession that gave me so much. That's why I started the yearly acting awards at UCLA.

These are but a couple of the more easily described results of my pilgrimage to Dr. Schweitzer. There were other benefits.

When I first became successful in Hollywood, it was easy to be part of the "Hollywood scene"—big house, expensive cars, the works. After I came back from Africa I began to see that I could live comfortably without being a status symbol. Today I am satisfied with my 1963 convertible. I have a house that is comfortable, but not exactly luxurious. I have a part-time housekeeper and a secretary who comes in when I need her.

"Time," Dr. Schweitzer said, "is the gift of life. Use it carefully." I suddenly found more time for my aunts, who were getting older, for my brother and his family. I spent more time alone. I haven't exactly become a hermit, but where at one time I couldn't appreciate an evening without a girl—when a relationship was meaningless unless it was physical—I now see a lot of girls who are just good friends.

Ellen Blume Graham

"Dr. Schweitzer convinced me that I should put something back into the profession that gave me so much."

Even my attitude toward marriage has changed. If I had not met Dr. Schweitzer, if I had not learned how devoted he and his wife were to each other, I would probably have gotten married a long time ago and just as probably would have divorced not once, but maybe several times. Now I realize what a marriage is really meant to be, and I am determined not to make that permanent commitment unless I find a woman without whom I simply can't live. That's the kind of companionship I'm still looking for and still believe I will find. So if I haven't made a girl happy by now, at least I haven't made a girl unhappy either. I think that is some kind of achievement.

Dr. Schweitzer's religion has left a mark on me, too. As a child I used to go to church regularly, but I enjoyed it mostly because of the association with my parents and with other kids. It was a social sort of thing. Since I met Dr. Schweitzer I have become more aware of the soul, of the force called God, of a life-giving energy. It is hard to describe, but religion means more to me now than before.

When I stepped into the dugout canoe for the trip back downriver, Dr. Schweitzer came to the water's edge. His last advice to me was that I should do whatever I could to motivate young people; to try to do whatever I could as an individual, no matter how small, because he firmly believed that individuals could eventually move mountains.

He certainly proved it.

What's newfangled about Pringle's Newfangled Potato Chips?

Everything! They're fresh and unbroken. They come crackling fresh and stay that way—even after they're open! They fit in cupboards—without squashing. And, made a new way, they're perfectly shaped so a big bagful fits inside this newfangled crushproof canister!

Pour out a bowlful and chomp into the most tantalizing taste in the whole crunchy world.

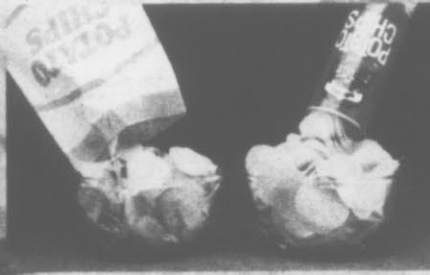

Made a newfangled way from dried potatoes.

Airtight pull-tab top and plastic lid assure lasting freshness.

Perfectly shaped, they're snugly stacked to reach you unbroken.

Surprise! The canister holds as many chips as this bag!

Single pack (4.5 oz.) or twin pack (9.0 oz.) . . . in shelf-size canisters.

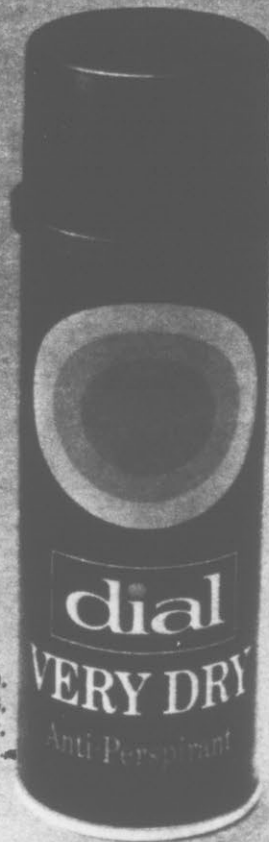

Do You Understand the Dark World Of Dreams?

Right Guard calls itself anti-stain. Sure promises to keep you drier. Arrid says it isn't sticky.

This one does it all.

An anti-stain, anti-wetness, anti-sticky, anti-perspirant.

Some anti-perspirants promise to help keep you dry. Some tell you they feel nice when they go on. Others say they are anti-stain. Now Dial Very Dry does it all. An anti-stain, anti-wetness, anti-sticky, anti-perspirant.

New Dial Very Dry.

True or False: Women's dreams differ appreciably from men's dreams.

(See number 4)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. If most of your dreams are unpleasant, it's a sign you're neurotic.
 2. Daytime dreams — such as those occurring during an afternoon nap — tend to be entirely different from nighttime dreams.
 3. The younger you are the more you dream.
 4. Women's dreams differ appreciably from men's dreams.
 5. It's perfectly normal to have nightmares.
6. If you really want to know what you have dreamed, you must record it as soon as you wake up.

ANSWERS

1. False. Unpleasant dreams are par for the course, and perfectly normal. A study of the dreams of more than a thousand men and women college students showed that only about one dream out of four was pleasant. And an appreciable percentage were downright fearful.

2. True. Studies at the University of California show that daytime dreams tend to be uninteresting, so-what productions, short on action and excitement, and with tedious and commonplace scenes and happenings. Nocturnal dreams were found to be much more bizarre, emotional and romantic, more action-packed.

3. True—as evidenced by studies, conducted by a team of University of Florida dream researchers, which show that the younger you are, the more time you spend dreaming. By the time you reach adulthood, dream time has tapered off sharply—with the result that you dream only about half as much after you leave your teens as you did as a young child. When adulthood is reached, dream time stops diminishing and becomes more or less constant.

4. True. A psychological study based on 500 male and 500 female dreams has shown that "the contents of the dreams of men and women are quite different, and that while women frequently dream about being indoors and in familiar surroundings, . . . men's dreams are more adventurous and feature more physical activities." Fifty percent of the aggressive encounters in men's dreams featured brawls, fisticuffs and similar acts of violence. However, a study of boys and girls of high school age found that, contrary to expectations, many girls expressed more aggression in their dreams than boys. It was concluded from this that "girls can be as or more aggressive than boys when they are permitted to be so."

5. True. Nightmares are something that happens to most people now and then. In one study of a college-student population, for example, it was found that 86 percent experienced nightmares. Frequent repetition of this type of dream, however, may occur in connection with deep-seated emotional conflicts.

6. True. As Miami University psychologist Dr. Alvin R. Mahrer, who has made a special study of dreams, observes, "Using a tape recorder next to my bed, I am often surprised by the differences between what I later think I had dreamed and the actual content of what was recorded." His advice: Record a dream as soon as possible, describing in detail every thought and idea that occurred during the dream, especially during moments of peak feeling. Incidentally, dream studies show that the more abruptly you awaken, the more vividly you'll remember what you were dreaming about. A gradual awakening tends to make a dream become fuzzy.

To the 56,000,000 people who smoke cigarettes.

A lot of people have been telling you not to smoke, especially cigarettes with high 'tar' and nicotine. But smoking provides you with a pleasure you don't want to give up.

Naturally, we're prejudiced. We're in the business of selling cigarettes.

But there is one overriding fact that transcends whether you should or shouldn't smoke and that fact is that you do smoke.

And what are they going to do about that?

They can continue to exhort you not to smoke. Or they might look reality in the face and recommend that, if you smoke and want low 'tar' and nicotine in a cigarette, you smoke a cigarette like Vantage.

And we'll go along with that, because there is no other cigarette like Vantage. Except Vantage.

Vantage has a unique filter that allows rich flavor to come through it and yet substantially cuts down on 'tar' and nicotine.

Not that Vantage is the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette. (But you probably wouldn't like the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette anyway.)

The plain truth is that smoke has to come through a filter if taste is to come through a filter. And where there is taste there has to be some 'tar.'

But Vantage is the only cigarette that gives you so much flavor with so little 'tar' and nicotine.

So much flavor that you'll never miss your high 'tar' cigarette.

COOKBOOK

By Marilyn Hansen Food Editor

You may be on a holiday, but your family's appetites aren't! Here's a collection of simple recipes that can be turned out quickly so your own leisure time can be at a maximum.

Great Outdoor Recipes for Boat, Camp or Backyard

Warm-Up

1 can (10½ ozs.) tomato soup, undiluted
1 can (10½ ozs.) beef broth, undiluted
1 cup water
½ cup vodka*
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
¼ teaspoon hot-pepper sauce

1. Combine all ingredients in saucepan. Heat just to boiling, stirring occasionally. Serve in mugs. Makes about 4 cups, 4 servings

*Variation: Omit vodka; increase water to 1 soup can.

Editor's note: One of my doctor friends loves to mix up soups on his 30-foot cruising sailboat. This "Warm-Up" is his choice to chase the chills on a cold, damp morning.

CHICKEN-IN-A-ROLL

2 cans (5-oz. size) boned chicken or turkey
1 jar (5 ozs.) Neufchâtel cheese spread with pimientos, room temperature
2 hard-cooked eggs, finely chopped
1 cup finely chopped apple
¼ cup sweet-pickle relish
¼ teaspoon onion salt
6 individual hero rolls

1. Drain broth from chicken, reserve. Chop chicken.
2. In medium bowl, gradually blend reserved broth into cheese. Stir in chicken, eggs, apple, pickle relish and onion salt.
3. Cut a thick slice from one end of each roll; hollow out soft center. Fill each hollow Food ideas to charm captain and crew: steaming mugs of "Warm-Up," tempting "Chicken-in-a-Roll," a plate of "Spaghetti With Clam Sauce" and the "Day's Catch" with a special sauce.

Bill Holland

The Fisherman's Catch, The Family's Meal

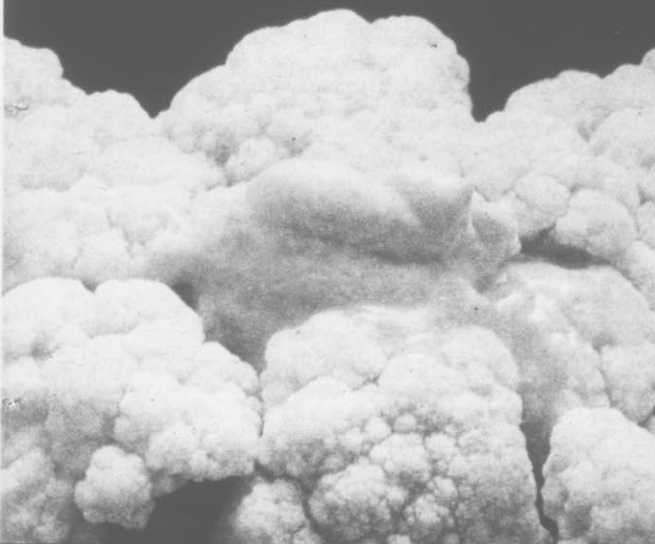

with about 1/2 cup chicken mixture. Wrap in foil or plastic film and refrigerate, if not serving immediately. Makes 6 sandwiches

Editor's note: This recipe was given to me by a woman who does a lot of boating and fishing with her airplane-pilot husband. She finds the rolls easy to eat in-the-hand.

Let Parkay speak to you delicately on broccoli.

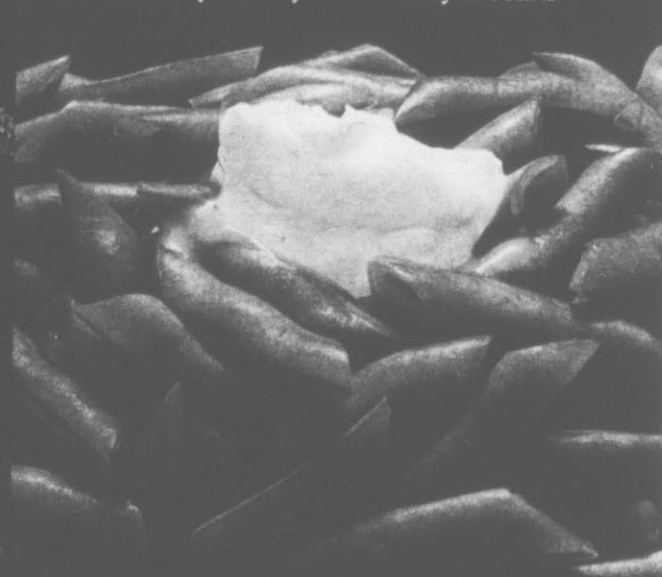

Tastefully, mingled with cauliflower.

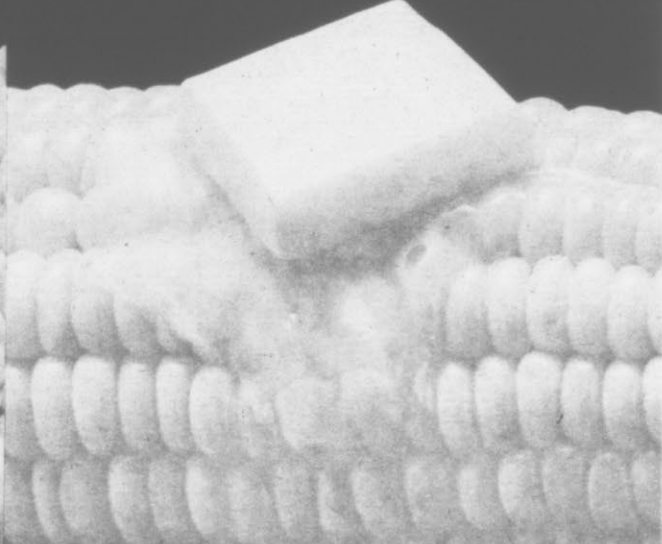

Softly, spread over bread.

Let it speak to you smoothly in beans.

Sweetly, melted over corn.

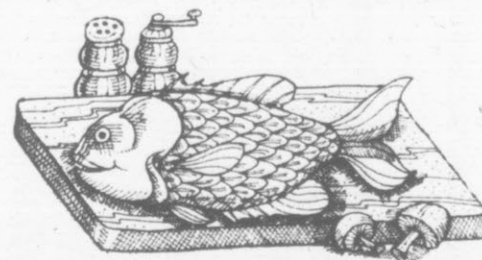

Parkay Margarine from Kraft.
The flavor says butter.

SPAGHETTI WITH CLAM SAUCE

- 4 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1 teaspoon Italian seasoning or oregano, crushed
- 2 cans (10 3/4-oz. size) tomato soup, undiluted
- 1 cup water
- 1/4 teaspoon hot-pepper sauce
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
- 3 dozen small raw clams, scrubbed
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/2 lb. spaghetti, cooked

1. In 2-qt. saucepan melt butter; add onion and Italian seasoning. Cook, stirring, 5-8 minutes, until onion is tender.
2. Stir in soup, water, hot-pepper sauce and garlic powder. Heat to boiling, stirring. Reduce heat and simmer uncovered 10 minutes to blend flavors; stir occasionally.
3. Meanwhile, place clams and 1/2 cup water in large covered skillet or saucepan. Heat to boiling. Cover and let boil until clams steam open; drain. Add clams to sauce. Serve with spaghetti.

Makes about 3 1/2 cups sauce, 4 servings

DAY'S CATCH

- 2 lbs. fresh fish, cleaned (bass, trout, etc.)
- Cornmeal
- 4 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 can (10 3/4 ozs.) mushroom soup, undiluted
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 tablespoon ketchup
- 2 teaspoons parsley flakes
- 1/2 teaspoon dillweed
- Hot cooked rice

1. On waxed paper, lightly coat fish with cornmeal.
2. Heat butter in skillet until hot but not smoking. Add fish and cook over medium-high heat until fish is browned on both sides and flakes easily when tested with a fork. Remove to serving platter, cover with foil to keep warm.
3. In same skillet combine golden mushroom soup, water, ketchup, parsley flakes and dillweed. Heat, stirring to loosen browned bits. Pour into sauceboat, serve with fish and rice.

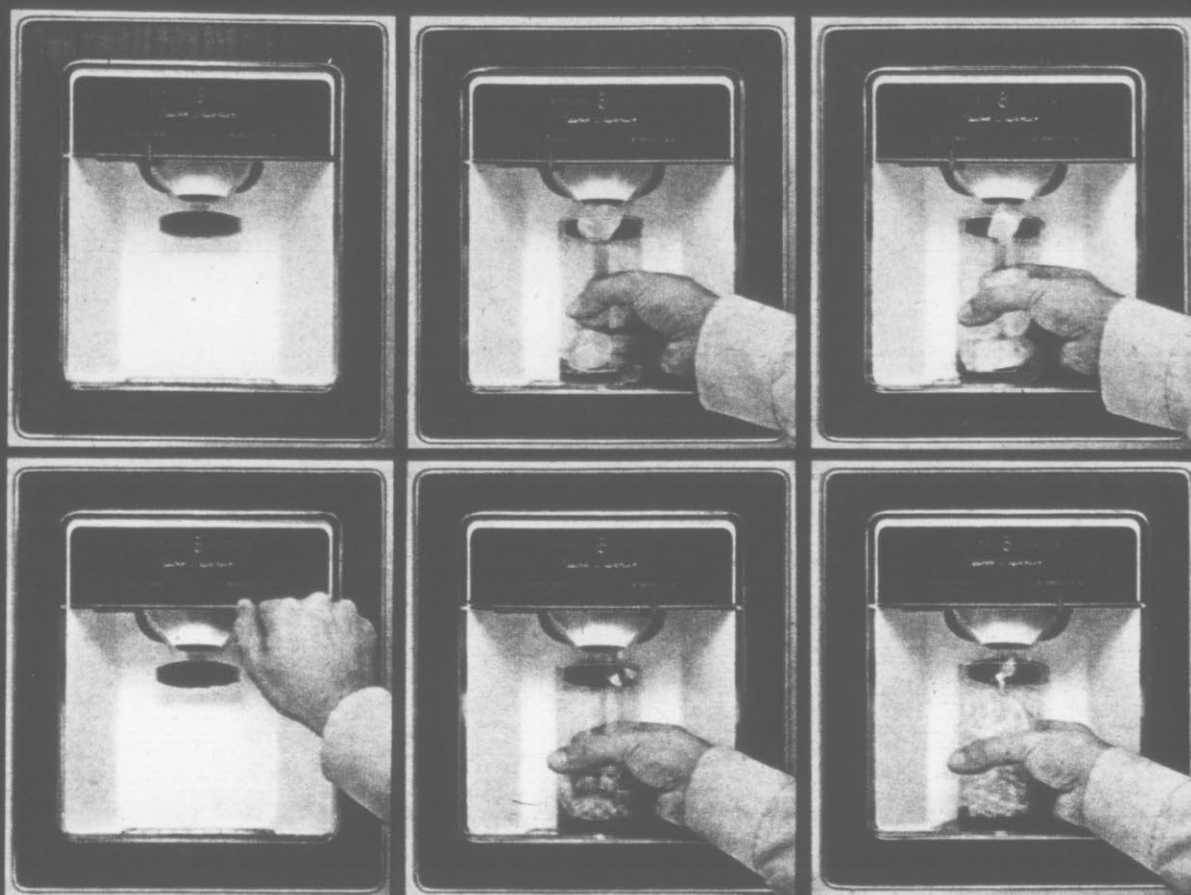

Makes 1 3/4 cups sauce, 4 servings

Editor's note: We found that cornmeal is a favored ingredient in fish-frying on the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

Meat 'n' Potato Skillet to Satisfy Outdoor Appetites

Bill Holland, Camp Stove by Coleman.

A tempting trio for camping buffs: "Camper's Mix-Up Stew," "Meat 'n' Potato Skillet" and "Piney-Blue Pancakes."

CAMPER'S MIX-UP STEW

- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 teaspoons chili powder
- 1 can (12 ozs.) luncheon meat, cubed*
- 1 can (16 ozs.) pork and beans in tomato sauce
- 1 can (14¾ ozs.) elbow macaroni and cheese
- ½ cup sliced ripe olives

1. Heat butter in medium saucepan until melted. Stir in chili powder and luncheon meat. Cook, stirring, until meat is lightly browned.

2. Stir in pork and beans, macaroni and cheese, and olives. Heat to boiling; stirring occasionally. Makes about 5 cups, 4 servings

*Variation: Substitute 1 lb. frankfurters cut in 1-inch pieces for luncheon meat. This is a child-designed recipe, for a little cook to make with adult supervision.

MEAT 'N' POTATO SKILLET

- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1 lb. ground beef
- 1 can (11 ozs.) Cheddar cheese soup, undiluted
- 1 can (16 ozs.) cut green beans, drained
- 1 can (16 ozs.) small whole potatoes, drained
- 1 can (8 ozs.) stewed tomatoes
- ½ teaspoon basil leaves, crushed*

1. Heat vegetable oil in large skillet until hot, but not smoking. Add ground beef and cook until it loses its red color, breaking up with large cooking spoon. Pour off fat if necessary.

2. Stir in all remaining ingredients. Heat to boiling, stirring occasionally.

Makes about 5½ cups, 4-6 servings

PINEY-BLUE PANCAKES

- 1 pkg. (13.5 ozs.) wild-blueberry muffin mix
- 1 can (8 ozs.) unsweetened pineapple in juice
- Water
- 1 egg
- Vegetable oil
- Maple-blended syrup
- Confectioners' sugar
- Butter, margarine or whipped topping
- Crisp cooked bacon, optional

1. Following package directions, drain and rinse blueberries; set aside.

2. Drain pineapple; saving juice. Combine pineapple juice with enough water to make ¾ cup liquid. Add egg to liquid in measuring cup, beat with fork.

3. In medium bowl (or in rinsed-out milk carton) combine pineapple juice-egg mixture and muffin mix. Stir with spoon until just blended. (Batter will be slightly lumpy.)

4. Fold in drained blueberries lightly. In hot, lightly oiled skillet, cook 16 small pancakes, using about 2 tablespoons batter for each. Keep warm.

5. Brown pineapple slices lightly in same skillet and serve warm with pancakes.

6. Serve pancakes with syrup, confectioners' sugar and butter, as desired. Great for a special breakfast with crisp bacon or alone for dessert!

Makes 4 servings

CRISP-FRIED FISH WITH TARTAR SAUCE

1 can (10½ ozs.) cream of celery soup, undiluted ½ cup pickle-relish sandwich spread
2 teaspoons lemon juice

Elizabeth Gee

Serve it simply in the backyard: "Crisp-Fried Fish With Tartar Sauce" and "Summer Vegetable Medley."

Your baby's first foods should be plain and simple.

When your baby nears his first month, his world begins to broaden. Eyes begin to follow light . . . tiny fists unfold . . . as he discovers the world around him.

And soon it's time for one of the most unique experiences of all . . . the introduction of solid foods.

It's important that your baby begin on the simple foods. Traditional starters are single-grain cereals . . . one-fruit juices . . . plain strained meats. They'll make up the basic diet for your baby, not only helping to provide adequate nourishment, but also helping to broaden his tastes.

Keeping to the simple varieties at the beginning is important, too, in helping you and your doctor note any unusual reaction to certain foods.

How do you know your baby is ready for solids? It depends on individual needs and your doctor. Now the question is, which food will be used as a starter? For most babies, it's cereal.

Starting with cereal. Gerber single-grain cereals are excellent choices. They have an especially smooth texture. And the flavors are pleasantly bland, the way babies prefer them.

Rice and Oatmeal are the traditional cereals recommended. Like all Gerber dry cereals, each is enriched with iron, thiamin, and other important B-vitamins.

When first introducing cereals, it's a good idea to make the mixture quite soupy (4 or 5 tablespoons of milk or formula to 1 tablespoon of cereal). As baby gets used to the mixture, you can gradually make the cereal thicker.

Meats provide important protein. Simple strained meats are the best starting meats. And Gerber meats are high in the body-building protein that your baby needs during his first year—his fastest year of growth.

Gerber meats are lean and moist. They're processed the Gerber way to retain natural juices and lower the fat level, when necessary.

Time for variety. Your baby's interest in food at 6 months is likely to be higher than it will be at one year, so this is an ideal time to introduce him to a variety of foods.

Let your baby try one new food at a time. Small portions at first, then gradually increase the serving. And if you serve the new food at the beginning of a meal, when he's hungry, he'll probably be more ready to accept it.

Work for a balanced daily diet, including milk and milk products; meat and other protein foods; vegetables and fruits; cereals.

Feeding tips. Should you heat the baby food? Unless your baby likes it that way, it's not necessary. Try warming vegetables and meat, serve fruit and dessert at room or refrigerator temperature. Fruit juices should not be heated; it might destroy the Vitamin C.

Remember, too, that at the beginning, your baby will probably not be eating a full jar of food. So when you don't expect to use it all at one feeding, transfer the portion to be fed to a serving dish. Cover and refrigerate the unused portion. Try not to feed your baby directly from the jar.

And do relax. These are the times when your baby will form associations with food that will stay with him all his life. When mealtime is a happy sharing time, your baby will have a feeling of security and belonging.

Babies are our business...
Gerber Products Co., Fremont, Mich. 49412

Gerber

1 egg
1 lb. fillet of flounder, sole or perch
¾-1 cup finely crushed packaged herb-seasoned stuffing mix
¼ cup vegetable oil

1. Make tartar sauce: In small bowl combine 1 cup soup, sandwich spread and lemon juice; chill.

2. Combine remaining soup and egg in shallow pan. Beat lightly with fork. Dip fish in egg mixture then in stuffing mix.

3. Using a large skillet or two 10-inch-size skillets, brown fish in oil; cook until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serve with tartar sauce. Refrigerate any leftover sauce.

Makes 4 servings, 1½ cups sauce

SUMMER VEGETABLE MEDLEY

4 slices bacon
1 cup thinly sliced carrots
1 cup thinly sliced onion
¼ teaspoon thyme or oregano leaves, crushed
1 can (11 ozs.) tomato bisque soup, undiluted
1 lb. zucchini, cut in ¼-inch slices (about 4 cups)
1 teaspoon vinegar
Few twists freshly ground black pepper

1. Cook bacon in skillet until crisp; remove and crumble. Pour off all but 2 tablespoons drippings.

2. Add carrots, onion and thyme to drippings. Cook, stirring frequently, 8-10 minutes, until just tender.

3. Stir in soup, zucchini, vinegar and pepper. Heat to boiling. Reduce heat; cover and simmer about 10-12 minutes, or until vegetables are tender. Stir occasionally.

4. Just before serving stir in bacon.

Makes about 4 cups, 4-6 servings

SHOW-OFF ICE-CREAM CONES

As needed:
Sugar cones
Ice cream
Strawberry jam
Chocolate topping
Honey
Walnuts, coarsely chopped
Whipped topping, from Aerosol can or squiggle container
Sugar-wafer cookies, chocolate-covered wafer-stick cookies, chocolate-covered marshmallow cookies
Maraschino cherries, optional

1. Fill cones with 1 scoop favorite ice cream. Top with 2 teaspoons strawberry jam, chocolate topping or honey. Quickly sprinkle with walnuts. Top with a generous rosette of whipped cream; add cookies of your choice at a jaunty angle. Finish off with a Maraschino cherry if desired. The whole idea is to work quickly, handing each cone out as it is finished!!

The World's Most Elegant Breakfast: Eggs Benedict

Elizabeth Gee

For pampered people: Frosty orange juice in giant goblets and perfect "Eggs Benedict" beckon the summer sleepyhead.

Whether you've made this recipe before or you're a novice, you'll love our super-easy recipe for "Blender Hollandaise Sauce." It makes the whole production fun!

EGGS BENEDICT

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
4 pkgs. (8-oz. size) sliced Canadian bacon
Water
2 tablespoons vinegar
8 eggs
4 English muffins, fork-split and lightly toasted
Blender Hollandaise Sauce (recipe below)
4 sprigs parsley

1. Heat butter in electric skillet until melted. Sauté Canadian bacon slices in hot butter until lightly browned on both sides. Place on foil, cover and keep warm.

2. Poach eggs: Pour off fat from electric skillet, wipe clean with paper towel. Pour in water to depth of 1 inch, add 2 tablespoons vinegar to water. (The vinegar helps solidify the egg white.) Heat water to simmer, with bubbles rising and breaking just below surface.

3. Break eggs one at a time into the simmering water. (The fresher the eggs the higher and prettier the whites will be.) Baste eggs gently with simmering water, using large spoon. Cook until whites are firm, yolks soft.

4. Lift eggs gently from water with slotted spoon, draining liquid off eggs and blotting them with paper towel.

5. Meanwhile arrange Canadian bacon slices on toasted English muffins. Place 2 halves on each heated plate. Top each with a poached egg. Spoon a little Blender Hollandaise Sauce over each. Garnish with parsley. Serve at once. Makes 4 servings

BLENDER HOLLANDAISE SAUCE

3 egg yolks
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Dash salt
2 drops Tabasco sauce
½ cup (1 stick) butter or margarine

1. Place egg yolks, lemon juice, salt and Tabasco in warm blender container. Turn motor on and off at medium speed, just to blend.

2. Heat butter in small saucepan until bubbling and very hot.

3. Remove blender cover, turn motor to high speed; drizzle in hot butter slowly until all is added. Turn off blender. Serve warm. Makes about 1 cup

TIPS FOR PERFECT HOLLANDAISE

1. Yes, this is the same hollan-daise sauce that is traditionally painstakingly prepared over simmering water in a double boiler. As you can see, this electric-blender method makes slow hand beating unnecessary. 2. To keep Blender Hollandaise warm, set blender container in pan of warm water. Just before serving, blend again to freshen.

Senator Lloyd Bentsen

The Dark-Horse Texan Who Wants to Be President

Lloyd Bentsen does not believe in playing coy. Barely past the half-way mark of a freshman term in the U.S. Senate, the tall, tanned Texan looks, talks and acts like a presidential candidate. He even has a $365,000 campaign treasury to nurse the inclination.

"Am I testing the waters?" he tells those who ask him. "Sure I am. Would I like to be President of the United States? You bet!"

It is a dream that most Washington insiders would have hooted at three and a half years ago when the 53-year-old Democrat entered the Senate with a reputation as an arch-conservative. But no one is laughing these days. The advance notices were quickly cast aside when Bentsen began lining up against Senate filibusters and even supporting end-the-war legislation. Hard work, moderate political stances and a striking ability to get opposing camps together mark his style.

Bentsen—whose wife is called B.A. (for Beryl Ann)—was first elected to the House back in 1948 at age 27. He was the youngest freshman in that class, thanks to a campaign that openly borrowed its slogans from John F. Kennedy's first congressional race two years earlier. The energetic Texan served three terms as a protégé of Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Texas), then went back home, where he made himself a Houston millionaire as head of a financial conglomerate called Lincoln Consolidated. He decided to run for the Senate in 1970 because "I want to be remembered for something besides my bank balance."

The reentry began with a bruising primary battle against the liberal Democratic incumbent, Ralph Yarborough. Bentsen, a close associate of Lyndon B. Johnson and John B. Connally from earlier days, won narrowly, but the campaign, he confesses wryly, left many voters thinking of him as "somewhere to the right of Attila the Hun."

Headed back to Washington, Bentsen hired a consulting firm at his own expense to study some of the most smoothly run Senate offices and help him organize his own. It is regarded as a model of efficiency.

Bentsen woke up the Senate establishment in 1972, when he led the fight against a speedup of the Trident submarine system and did his homework so well that he very nearly won. More recently, he won high marks for his work in getting pension-reform legislation through the Senate, where it had been bogged down for years in a jurisdictional squabble between rival committees. Those who worked with Bentsen say his grasp of the technicalities of pensions was amazing.

Liberals still regard Bentsen warily. He hotly opposes school busing. He helped fight off a "windfall profits tax" on oil companies. But Senate elders are highly impressed. "When we're up against him, we know we have to work," says Senate GOP leader Hugh Scott. "He's a heavyweight." Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield has been speaking of Bentsen as presidential timber for months.

Bentsen is still a very dark horse. A Harris poll in January indicated that no more than two percent of the nation's Democratic voters know who he is. But that doesn't bother Lloyd Bentsen. It's the same percentage that Texans gave him in 1970 when he first announced his candidacy for the U.S. Senate. Sometimes, he says, it helps to have "a new face."

WILL THIS TALISMAN BRACELET BRING YOU GOOD LUCK?

For ages past the tribes of Kenya have thought so.

ORIGINALLY created with intricately knotted elephant hair, these bracelets were thought to inherently possess good luck and were often given by tribesmen to hunters after a successful elephant hunt.

Later, made in multi-strand gold, silver and copper wire, they became talismans of good fortune for either sex in finding a mate . . . getting and keeping good health . . . and success in any enterprise.

Can you solve the riddle of its ancient design?

The first question people will ask you about this Talisman bracelet is, "How do you take it off?"

When you mysteriously slip it off your wrist, you'll be asked more:

Is it all one piece of wire? Where does it start . . . where does it end? Does it really give you good luck?

And why have elephant hair styled bracelets suddenly become so overwhelmingly desired?

As old as Africa . . . as new as today!

Based on the original ancient design from the tribes of Kenya, these bracelets have been re-created in 5-strand copper, silver-plate and gold-plate wire. These handmade bracelets have an untamed, sophisticated look that is sure to attract attention wherever you go.

One of the most ingenious features of these unusual bracelets is that they're completely adjustable and look as well on men as they do on women.

At last at a price you can afford!

Only wearing these bracelets can show you how superior they are to any elephant hair bracelets you've yet seen.

The handmade feeling . . . the unusual knots . . . the way each bracelet adjusts . . . the mystery of its design can only be experienced by actually wearing one of these bracelets. The good luck is not guaranteed, but complete satisfaction is.

Please compare them with the $40 . . . $50 . . . and $100 elephant hair bracelets you've seen. Unless you feel these Talisman bracelets are superior, return for no cost.

Only $3.98 for the copper, $4.98 for the silver-plate, $5.98 for the gold-plate— or $11.95 for the entire collection.

Please rush me the following Talisman Elephant Hair Styled Bracelets on no-risk, 10-day trial. If not delighted, I may return for full refund.

- Copper at $3.98 each.
- Silverplate at $4.98 each.
- Goldplate at $5.98 each.
- Entire collection $11.95.

Sports Mini-Profile

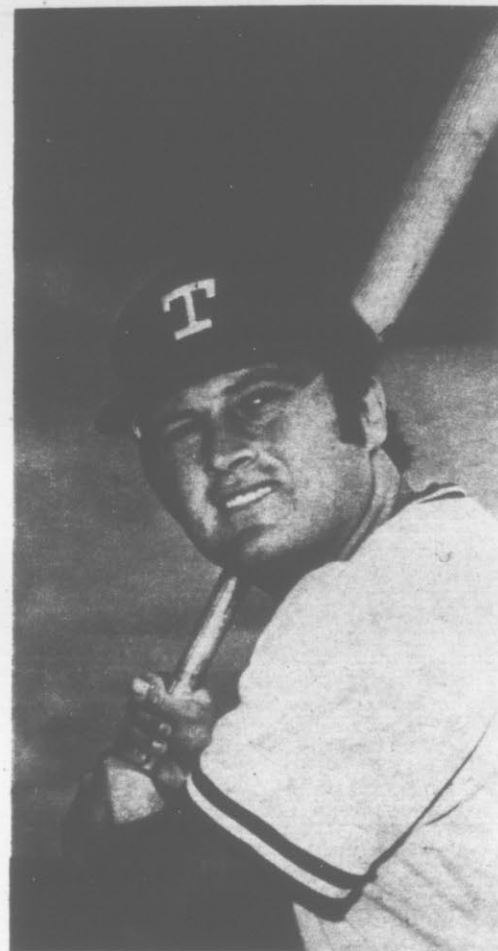

Jeff Burroughs of the Rangers: Henry Aaron—Watch Out!

© 1974 R. J. REYNOLDS TOBACCO CO.

Would he walk
a mile for me?

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

When Jeff Burroughs of the Texas Rangers blasted 30 home runs (including three grand slams in ten days) in his first full major-league season last year, people began to take notice. And this year, as he continued his strong home-run pace and was batting over .300 at mid-season, it became clear that here was a budding superstar. Manager Billy Martin says the 23-year-old Burroughs has the best chance of any current player to surpass the one-season homer record of 61, and some baseball buffs have expressed the opinion that he can eventually catch up to Henry Aaron's all-time homer total. Burroughs says, however, that such speculation is premature. . . . Burroughs is also a golfer. He teamed up with Denver football player Bob Anderson to win the American Airlines Golf Classic last spring. His manager allows him to play golf during the regular baseball season provided he finishes before noon. (Ted Williams, former manager of the Rangers, used to fine his players $1,000 if he caught them playing golf during the baseball season.) . . . Burroughs, who comes from Long Beach, Calif., was baseball's No. 1 draft choice in the 1969 selections. He batted .358 during his first minor-league year in Wytheville, Va., before moving up the ladder. . . . Burroughs' teammates felt he would have hit 40 circuit blows last season except for the fact that the Rangers' park has strong winds blowing in from right field, which cause long drives to fall into outfielders' gloves. This year, the right-field fence was moved in ten feet. Burroughs insists it wasn't done as a special favor for him. "It makes things fairer for all power hitters," he says. "Also, fans like to see more home runs hit by players on both sides, so it creates more spectator interest."—By Barry Abramson

One of Nature's most richly colored trees....

ROYAL RED MAPLE

REG. $1.50 ea.

Now only $1.00 ea.

- GROWS MOST ANYWHERE! (3 for $2.75) (6 for $5.00)
- WONDERFUL SHADE TREE! (9 for $7.25)

One of Fall's most richly colored trees is the beautiful RED MAPLE (Acer rubrum) with its brilliant scarlet colored leaves.

In spring the tree is loaded with delicate small red flowers. In summer, the bright green leaves of the RED MAPLES will give you loads of wonderful shade. A very majestic and beautiful shade tree that will give you years of proud satisfaction. Excellent as a lawn or street tree. A fairly fast growing tree. You receive strong, heavily rooted hand selected 2 to 4 foot collected trees. An ideal transplanting size.

Why be satisfied with ordinary-sized strawberries when we guarantee you can have these extra sweet...

EXTRA HUGE STRAWBERRIES NEXT SUMMER!

The last time you picked strawberries — or bought them — how many did it take to make a quart? Eighty? One hundred? More? Regular strawberries are so small — most people lose count! But with this hardy variety, you can expect quarts FROM JUST 30 STRAWBERRIES! And these extra-sweet berries, Giant Robinson, are highly disease resistant, they ripen very fast, plus they produce lots of new runners to give you a bigger patch every year! How wonderful big strawberries are for jams, freezer, fresh desserts for months! You receive strong, healthy plants with well developed crowns and roots. Cannot be shipped to Arizona.

- (50 for $ 3.75)
- (100 for $ 5.95)
- (200 for $10.95)

CAUTION!

The most frequently noted "complaint" on these marvelous berries is that most people just didn't think to order enough! Honestly, you will want at least 50 of these plants to start — even for smaller patches.

Two BONUS Offers For You

If you order $5.00 or more of plant values, you can buy a beautiful BURNING BUSH (reg. $1.50 value) for 50¢! Burning Bush has thick green summer foliage, flaming red fall leaves.

Order $7.50 or more and you can buy three WHITE BIRCH TREES (reg. $2.50 value) for only 75¢. "Paper-white" Birch is one of the loveliest ornamental trees.

(Sorry — Only one of each bonus per customer). Burning Bush cannot be sent to Arizona.

ACTUAL SIZE!

Biggest strawberries most folks have ever seen: dark red, very sweet — yet firm. All purpose — freeze, jam, eat 'em fresh!

FULL GUARANTEE

All items guaranteed to be of high quality, and to arrive in good healthy condition or purchase price will be refunded. Return SHIPPING LABEL ONLY — you may keep the items. (One year limit).

Treat Him At Home With Veterinarian's Medication

Veterinarians have used SULFODENE to treat dogs' skin troubles. In 9 out of 10 cases tested, results proved remarkable. Why? Veterinarians explain dogs' skin is thinner than humans' and germs that attack dogs' skin are different from human bacteria. SULFODENE helps destroy these dog germs. Just pat it on. It's painless, won't sting or stain. Also use SULFODENE SHAMPOO. It's specially medicated to remove scales and help keep dog's skin healthy. Both available wherever fine pet products are sold.

"Flying High"

SPRING
"Beguiling Buttercup"

Collectors are amazed at the incomparable beauty of these Gorham porcelain masterpieces. "The Four Seasons of Young Love". They compare in size and quality with figurines selling for triple our price and are much more limited than famous Hummel figurines.

Each superb figurine is individually hand painted on the finest quality porcelain, each is approximately 8" tall and each captures fully the Rockwell charm and whimsy.

Special Price and an Extra Rockwell Bonus!

The regular price for the set is $300 and the single price $85. In this special offer you may buy the set for only $225—a savings of a full $75. A single figurine is only $75—a savings of $10.

As a special bonus we are including FREE with any order of these figurines a fabulous 12" x 9" 208 page Norman Rockwell book with over 500 Rockwell illustrations, many in full color. Quantities are strictly limited so please order early.

CERTAINLY 1974 is the year of the streakers! And, of all people, it's Norman Rockwell who has captured all the spirit and the essential innocence of this latest American phenomenon. Rockwell immortalizes streaking forever—in the purest commemorative china.

This is THE collector plate that's streaking its way to becoming the most important limited edition issued this year, and would you believe it—Rockwell, prophet that he is, painted our 1974 "Streakers" over 50 years ago! This charming painting first appeared on the cover of the Saturday Evening Post way back in 1921—and it was called the "Old Swimming Hole". You can see Red in the lead, with shirt a-flying, and the Alfalfa type freckle-faced lad tied for second place along with his dog, while bringing up the rear is their chubby friend with cheeks aglo a-huffin and a-puffin.

A First Edition Work of Incomparable Beauty

This first edition is produced in an extremely limited quantity on Gorham's finest china. Rockwell's art is faithfully rendered with all its vibrant colors and warmly human details with the rim hand painted and hand rubbed with 24KT gold. Each plate, of course, bears the famous Rockwell signature.

Significant Investment Potential and a Wonderful Gift

Collectors have been quick to recognize the potential of anything by Rockwell. The Rockwell/Gorham "Butter Girl" plate issued last year at $14.95 sold out in a few short months and now brings up to three times the original price. This lovely plate is sure to be sold out fast too and when the limited quantity produced is gone, there will be no more. So please order early while our supplies last.

Delightful Special Bonuses

As a special Free Bonus when you order the Streakers plate we are including as a gift from us to you, "The Streakers" record. This popular country-western song by Ray Stevens is now No. 1 on the charts and was pressed exclusively for Joy's—a perfect gift for your favorite youngster or a fun conversation piece for you. Also included at no extra cost is a 208 page Norman Rockwell book with over 500 illustrations, many in full color. And also free is the famous Joy's Monthly Newsletter that has photographs and gives important information on collectibles.

NORMAN ROCKWELL "STREAKER" FIGURINE TOO!

For the 100% Streaker enthusiast, this splendid "Streaker" porcelain figurine is a must. Each is hand painted and only $26.00 while limited quantities last. Also included with each figurine is "The Streakers" record and the 208 page Norman Rockwell book.

What in the World!

MONROE LOOK-ALIKE
Is she Marilyn's daughter?

Janet Raymond believes she is the daughter of the late actress Marilyn Monroe. Janet, 21, is an orphan. She was born in a Los Angeles hospital during the same period that Marilyn was an appendectomy patient there. According to sources, Miss Monroe's appendix was not removed. Peter Lawford, a very close friend of Marilyn's, has met Janet and is amazed at her strong resemblance to the star. Ironically, Janet even won a Marilyn Monroe look-alike contest a few years ago. She was also interviewed on an ABC-TV special, "Marilyn Remembered." For Janet, however, the resemblance is not much help. There isn't any way she can prove she is Marilyn's daughter. Janet, who worked as a secretary in Santa Monica Hospital, is a member of the Screen Actor's Guild and is determined to follow Marilyn's path to stardom.

Roger Williams has sold well over 15 million albums since his first hit, "Autumn Leaves," in 1955. Despite his vast success he still practices 10 to 12 hours a day when he is at his home in Encino, Calif., and two to three hours a day when he is on the road. "If you want success and all that goes with it, you must be prepared to pay a high personal price. For me, the price is discipline. I apply this same discipline to other factors of my life," says the 49-year-old Williams. "I still weigh the same as I did in high school. Discipline has me jogging two miles every day when I am home, and one hour in my hotel room, in one place, when I am on the road. This requires strong personal discipline. But it is the only way I know of attaining success. Practice and being in good physical condition." Williams, who has performed all over the world, has missed only one performance—when he was snowbound at an airport.

HANK AARON
His legs were rubbery

QUOTE: When Hank Aaron hit home run number 715, breaking Babe Ruth's record, "he remembered only his relief that it was over with, and the vague happiness that a weight 'like a stove' had been lifted from his back, and that his legs seemed rubbery as he took the tour of the bases, the Dodger second baseman and shortstop sticking out their hands to congratulate him. 'I don't remember the noise,' he said, 'or the two kids that ran on the field. My teammates at home plate, I remember seeing them. I remember my mother out there and she hugging me. That's what I'll remember more than anything about that home run when I think back on it. I don't know where she came from, but she was there. . . ." From "Hank Aaron: One for the Record," by George Plimpton (Bantam Books, $1.50). UNQUOTE.

HOME REMEDY

Dogs have been prescribed as "home psychiatrists" for depressed people.
—News item

You need not lie upon a couch
For this psychiatrist
And answer questions human sorts
Would probing insist.

This "home psychiatrist" of course
Might lie down by your side
And asking not a thing of you
There calmly abide.

Or else he might look up, warm eyed,
And seem to understand,

And maybe paw your sleeve a bit
Or even lick your hand.

He might relax, relaxing you,
And go to sleep, lie still.
Of this, however, be quite sure:
He wouldn't send a bill.

Television opens many doors—most of them on refrigerators.

You have to be careful of little old ladies. One time I finished a rather long talk and this sweet little thing came up to me, put a gloved hand into mine and said, "Mr. Orben, has anyone ever told you you're a fascinating speaker?" I said, "No. No one ever has." She said, "Then whatever gave you the idea?"

On a recent trip to see my son and daughter-in-law, I slept with one of my grandchildren, Tony, age five. He said, "Isn't this a nice soft bed, Grandma?" I said, "Yes, it is." He then replied, "That's because it's been jumped on a lot."

Easy Care NO-IRON NON-SNAG KNITS!

And Take a Good Kick at Inflation!

Haband first introduced these miracle two-way Knits more than 3 years ago at the shocking low price of 2 pairs for $19.95. Now, even though the price of 100% Polyester has more than doubled in the last 12 months (polyester is a petroleum derivative), Haband has you protected for this one last 2 for 19.95 offer!

Deluxe Executive Knit Slacks!

You have seen 100% Polyester knits for over $20 a pair! This year you'll see them for even more, and wonder who's got the money to afford them. These Haband Slacks might be the answer: They always look fresh, never need ironing. The heavy two-way knit means two-way fit, and that means Double Value: More comfortable full fit in seat, crotch and thighs but also a trim straight look that never bags or droops.

Slim, are you still our good navigator?

Yep. Straight ahead, Chip.

Straight ahead, he says!

As if there's any place to turn off.

It's all up or down an' getting narrower!

This road leads to nowhere!

Hey, I think I see a cabin ahead!

Yessir. And this road dead-ends right here.

But I'll take some rails out of my fence so you can turn around.

Fine.

I'm sorry I missed the turn but it's only four miles back.

Only, four miles? Wow!

You fall asleep again, Slim, and you've had it!

Hey! He really is asleep!

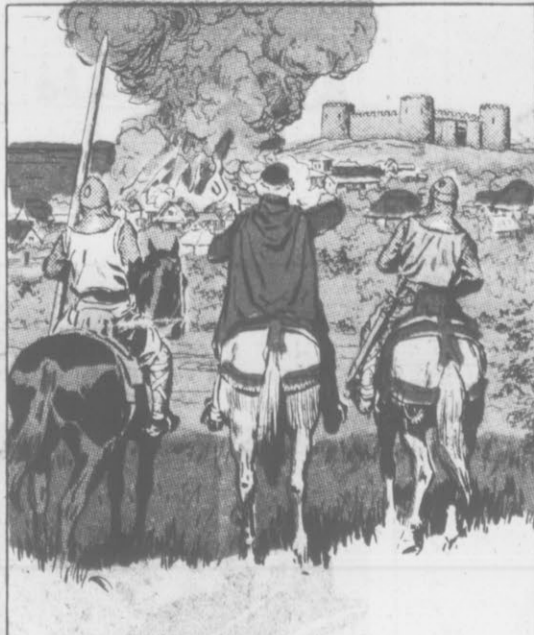

Poor overworked Slim! He needs this vacation all right!

Our Story: SIR ARNOLD RETURNS, PROUD THAT HE HAS TAUGHT THE UNRULY TOWNSPEOPLE A LESSON. HE IS RECEIVED IN SILENCE, BUT HE DOES NOT CARE. HE HAS DONE HIS DUTY.

IN THE CROWDED FORTRESS, HECTOR RECEIVES THE TENDEREST OF CARE WHILE ARN, WHO FOUGHT WITHOUT A SHIELD, HAS A BROKEN ARM SET.

LORD GILFORD, RETURNING FROM A VISIT TO HIS FIEF, SEES THE SMOKE RISING FROM THE TOWN AND FEARS A VIKING RAID OR THE RETURN OF THE SAXONS.

ON LEARNING THE TRUTH, HE SUMMONS ARNOLD: "WHY DID YOU BURN HALF THE TOWN AND SLAUGHTER HALF THE CITIZENS, AND WHY DID YOU LEAVE MY SON HECTOR TO THE ANGRY MOB?" "IT IS MY DUTY TO PROTECT THE CASTLE, MY LORD." THE GOVERNOR'S EYES BLAZE: "GET OUT!" HE WHISPERS.

"FAREWELL, SIR ARN. I RIDE TO CAMELOT TO BECOME A KNIGHT OF THE ROUND TABLE AND SERVE KING ARTHUR." THE PAIN OF HIS BROKEN ARM MAKES ARN SHORT TEMPERED: "KING ARTHUR HAS BETTER MEN THAN YOU IN HIS STABLE," HE SNAPS.

A DAY OF VIOLENCE COMES TO ITS TRAGIC CLOSE, AND TWO YOUNG LOVERS ARE RECONCILED. THE PRICE OF ROMANCE SEEMS EXCESSIVE.

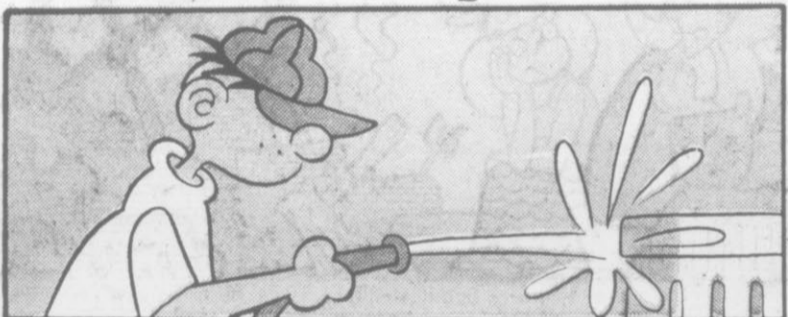

SIR ARNOLD MOUNTS HIS WAR-HORSE AND RIDES TOWARD CAMELOT, NOBLE TO THE LAST.

ARN IS IN DESPAIR, AS HIS JOURNEY HOMEWARD SUFFERS ONE DELAY AFTER ANOTHER. WILL LYDIA STILL WAIT FOR HIS RETURN? DOES SHE REMEMBER? NEXT WEEK - The Coast of Thule

PLACE a total of 15 toothpicks before you on the table. Now, challenge a friend to see who will be forced to pick up the last toothpick if each of you, taking turns, picks up from one to three pieces.

If you know the secret, you can win every time as follows: Count each piece your opponent picks up and in your turn try to pick up the second, sixth and tenth pieces.

The holder of toothpick number 10 has the game won, for if his opponent takes one, he takes three; if his opponent takes two, he takes two; if three, he takes one, in each instance leaving the last and losing toothpick.
