Pres. Ford Confident Of Approval

Rockefeller Selected For Vice President

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford today nominated Nelson A. Rockefeller to be vice president, saying the former New York governor will "make a great teammate."

The choice is subject to congressional approval, a virtual certainty. Rockefeller said he was deeply honored at the call to serve Ford and "through him all the people of this great country."

Ford said he was confident Rockefeller will be approved by the required majorities in the House and Senate. "I wouldn't have picked someone who wouldn't be," the President said.

Ford presented Rockefeller in a nationally televised, Oval Office ceremony. Then he took his chosen partner to the White House press room, where Rockefeller, answering questions, said he assumes Ford will be a candidate for election to the presidency in 1976.

Rockefeller, 66, said he had not discussed the political future with Ford. Asked who he thought would be on the ticket with Ford in 1976, Rockefeller replied: "You're way down the road ahead of me."

Formally announcing the nomination, Ford said Rockefeller will be "a good partner for me and I think a good partner for our country and the world."

Then, in the press room, he added: "I think he'll make a great teammate. I think he will be good for the country. I think he'll be good for the world and I'm looking forward to working with him."

At his brief news conference, Rockefeller, a member of one of the nation's wealthiest families, fended off questions about his personal finances, but said he will make whatever disclosures are required in the congressional confirmation process.

He refused to divulge his net worth at the news conference, bluntly telling questioners: "You're not the committee of Congress."

"I will do two things," he said. "I will conform totally with whatever the law requires and I will answer any questions members of Congress feel appropriate."

As for his vast holdings, he said he assumed they would be placed in trust.

Ford said the selection was "a tough call." Rockefeller said the President first contacted him directly Saturday—the day the White House dismissed published allegations that Rockefeller money had financed efforts to disrupt the 1972 Democratic National Convention.

Rockefeller said Ford told him Monday night that he was the choice for vice president.

From the time Richard M. Nixon resigned on Aug. 9, Rockefeller had been rated a prime prospect in vice presidential speculation.

His name and that of Republican National Chairman George Bush dominated the 11-day guessing game. Ford managed to keep his secret until the formal announcement.

Bush said the choice of Rockefeller was outstanding; that "one couldn't find a man of more stature and who possesses more administrative ability."

Following the question-and-answer session with reporters, Rockefeller was to fly to Maine to continue his vacation, going first to Bal Harbor and then to Seal Harbor.

Rockefeller, at Ford's side in the Oval Office of the President, said he came to the job in "very serious times," requiring the closest cooperation between Congress and the White House.

"They also require the dedication of every American to our common national interest," Rockefeller said. He said Ford's dedication and openness already have "reawakened faith and hope" in America.

Rockefeller said Americans have the will, determination and ability "to overcome the hard realities of our times."

"I'm optimistic about the long term future," Rockefeller said.

With that, congressional leaders and the Cabinet, assembled for the nationally televised announcement, applauded the new vice president-designate.

Ford said he made the choice "after a great deal of soulsearching," after considering the advice of members of Congress and Republican leaders around the country.

"It was a tough call for a tough job," Ford said.

Ford called Rockefeller "a person whose long record of accomplishments in the government and outside is well known."

Rockefeller, 66, served 15 years as governor of New York.

Reaction Is 'Favorable'

By The Associated Press
The nomination of Nelson Rockefeller for vice president drew a favorable response from North Carolina State Republican Chairman Thomas Bennett.

"I think it means a genuine effort on the part of the President to try to balance his administration to represent all factions, not only of the Republican party, but of the American people," Bennett said from his Raleigh law office.

"I congratulate Gov. Rockefeller upon his nomination by President Ford to become vice president and will support to the fullest extent the President's selection of him," Bennett added.

"I further call upon all Republicans in North Carolina, particularly the conservative membership of the party, to support the President in his decision to the end that we cannot only unify our party but unify our nation," Bennett continued.

Bennett said, "I think initially, considering the fact that we did not submit Gov. Rockefeller's name as one of those we would desire, there will be some temporary disappointment, and in the final analysis I think that the Republican Party in North Carolina will very definitely unite behind the team of Ford and Rockefeller.

Rep. James G. Martin, 9th district Republican, told the Associated Press, "I think that we are going to have to expect and allow for a rather probing investigation as we have seen in the case of Ford, but I think we are going to have to go through that (confirmation) just as speedily as possible."

"Gov. Rockefeller was one of the names along with Senator Barry Goldwater and Gov. Ronald Reagan that I submitted" to the President, Martin said.

"He is about as well versed as anybody around in foreign policy. He is the one who brought Henry Kissinger to the attention of former President Nixon," Martin added.

"He is on a plain with the President and Kissinger on understanding international affairs and is probably without peer in his understanding of problems in this hemisphere, especially Latin America," Martin said.

Rockefeller's experience in state government will give him that extra background on the needs of the priorities and prerogatives of the states, especially in the field of drug traffic, Martin said.

Bloodmobile Here

Pitt County Blood Chairman Billy Ross reminded area citizens of the two-day Bloodmobile visit to Greenville on Wednesday and Thursday.

Ross said that the hours of tomorrow's visit will be from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. while Thursday's visit will be from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. Both visits are at the Moose Lodge, he noted.

The chairman pointed out that the two-day blood drive is part of an effort to meet a statewide shortage of blood. Some 145 pints of blood are needed daily for North Carolina and Ross encouraged local residents to help make the special visits successful.

The drive is sponsored by the Young Democrats Club in conjunction with a statewide effort initiated by the state YDC.

North Carolina's pioneer alcoholism preventive authority approved four research grants here yesterday, the first to be approved by the new authority which is seeking to find the causes for the disease, which experts say affects one of every 12 drinkers.

A total of $63,000 in funds were approved for four grants which will delve into the problem of what causes a person to be an alcoholic.

North Carolina is the only state in the union which has a state supported body responsible for looking into the causes of alcoholism, according to an Authority spokesman.

The four grants approved yesterday, coming from the $250,000 General Assembly appropriation to fund the Authority, will go to three University of N. C. at Chapel Hill staff members, and one

Three Sought In Slaying Of Ambassador In Cyprus

By The Associated Press
Warrants were issued in Nicosia today for the arrest of three persons in connection with the slaying of the U.S. ambassador to Cyprus, Rodger P. Davies.

Davies was killed during an anti-American riot at the embassy in Nicosia on Monday, and Greek, Turkish and Cypriot leaders expressed shock and abhorrence over the slaying.

The names of the three suspects and further details of the police investigation into the riot were not disclosed in an official Greek Cypriot government statement, announcing the issue of the warrants.

American sources in Nicosia said the U.S. Embassy in the battle-scarred Cypriot capital might be closed temporarily, and an official said unessential files were being burned "to make the job quicker if we decide to go."

But there was no indication from the State Department in Washington of any such action. Lindsay Grant, the embassy's second in command, was flown from a vacation in Scotland to replace Davies.

There were these other developments in the Cyprus situation:

—The civilian government in Greece increased its authority over the military by firing the commander in chief of the armed forces and his eight top officers and replacing them with foes of the ousted military junta.

—Secretary of State Henry A.

Kissinger said Turkey had expressed willingness to negotiate a withdrawal from part of the 40 per cent of Cyprus its troops have occupied.

—Turkish troops that pushed south of Nicosia over the weekend held their positions but made no significant advances. Little fighting was reported Monday.

—The Turks in Famagusta handed over 150 Greek Cypriots to United Nations forces. Most were women, children and elderly men who had been left in the east coast port city when most of the Greek Cypriots fled before the Turkish advance.

—A U.N. economic team said Nicosia was critically short of water, and several parts of the city were without water because of broken pumps.

Davies was killed by sniper fire during a wild, anti-American demonstration by 300 to 600 Greek Cypriots who accused the U.S. government of siding with Turkey.

The snipers were believed to be gunmen from EOKA-B, the Greek Cypriot terrorist force whose aim is to unite Cyprus with Greece and which helped to overthrow President Makarios on July 15.

Although hundreds of the demonstrators broke through the embassy gates and stoned the building and its U.S. Marine guard, an embassy official said bullet holes showed that the shots came from rooftops or balconies of neighboring buildings and the ambassador's second-floor office was clearly the target.

Davies and members of his staff had taken refuge in a corridor outside his office. He was killed by a bullet that went through his office and his secretary's office. Another shot killed a Greek Cypriot secretary who rushed to the 53-year-old ambassador's side.

Ruling Request On ECU Status Is Withdrawn

Roddy L. Jones, chairman of the Board of Trustees of East Carolina University said yesterday that his request for a ruling from the state attorney general's office on the legal status of the ECU medical school has been withdrawn.

Jones indicated that the request was withdrawn because procedural issues raised in the request are being resolved through negotiations between ECU officials and officials of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, and because the question of whether a four-year degree granting school should be developed at the Greenville school should be decided by the General Assembly.

The ECU trustee chairman, in requesting the ruling from the attorney general three weeks ago said, "I would like to know if the legislature intended for there to be a typical two-year medical school program at ECU or if the intent was to make ECU a component branch of the medical school at Chapel Hill. The request also asked who would have charge of spending $15 million appropriated by the General Assembly for a new basis science building at ECU, and for operating the school.

The 1973 Legislature appropriated $7.5 million for a new four-year medical school in the state, but did not specifically say the money should go to East Carolina. The 1974 General Assembly then appropriated another $7.5 million specifically to expand the ECU one-year program by doubling the size of the first year class and adding the second year to the one-year school.

Last month, UNC president William Friday designated UNC Medical School Dean Christopher Fordham to head the planning and expansion at ECU after an accreditation committee said the two-year (Continued on page 6)

Four Grants Approved For Alcoholism Study

North Carolina's pioneer alcoholism preventive authority approved four research grants here yesterday, the first to be approved by the new authority which is seeking to find the causes for the disease, which experts say affects one of every 12 drinkers.

A total of $63,000 in funds were approved for four grants which will delve into the problem of what causes a person to be an alcoholic.

North Carolina is the only state in the union which has a state supported body responsible for looking into the causes of alcoholism, according to an Authority spokesman.

The four grants approved yesterday, coming from the $250,000 General Assembly appropriation to fund the Authority, will go to three University of N. C. at Chapel Hill staff members, and one

East Carolina University staff member.

Grants approved will go to Dr. Robert Mueller of the Dept. of Anesthesiology at UNC for $13,000, Dr. Kenneth Mills of the Dept. of Psychiatry at UNC for $22,000, Dr. Joan Cornoni of the School of Public Health at UNC for $17,000 and Dr. Sam Pennington of the ECU School of Medicine for $11,600.

Formal announcement of the grants will be made today along with specific information of the type of research the researchers will be performing.

The nine member, governor-appointed authority met in Greenville yesterday for its fifth meeting since it was created.

In order to obtain permanent funding, the Authority yesterday endorsed a proposal by a member of the Cary Jaycees that the Jaycees support the introduction of a bill in the next General Assembly which would place a modest surcharge on alcoholic beverages that would provide funds specially for funding the ARA.

The proposal has the backing of two North Carolina Jaycee chapters now and will be submitted to the Jaycee Executive Committee when it meets in September.

The proposal calls for an increase in the tax on alcoholic beverages based on the alcohol content of the beverage, according to Terry Edmonds, of the Cary chapter.

Currently North Carolina is spending over $10 million to support alcohol rehabilitation units in the state, including alcoholic rehabilitation units, state hospitals and community programs.

The ARA hopes to find the cause of the disease in order to set up a preventive program instead of spending so much money on rehabilitation.

FLEAS AT SCHOOL

There are fleas at Belvoir Grammar School. I understand they've sprayed once, but there are lots still there. We mothers are worried, both about the danger to our children while they're at school and the chance of their bringing them home. Mrs. M.C.

Hotline inquired of J.C. Keeter at the County Board of Education about the problem. He said the Maintenance Department has sprayed once, but promised to see that further exterminating was done the same day.

Jimmy Stox of the Pitt County Health Department Environmental Health Division said there is no reason why a thorough exterminating job underneath and throughout the building shouldn't solve the problem before school starts. He said the sand usually found under buildings is "the next best place to a dog" to fleas, and that any entrances to the underside of the building should be closed off to keep dogs and other carriers of fleas out.

WHAT MUST I REGISTER?

I would like to know when I should take my little girl to get her registered for school. She will be going to Pactolus Elementary, I understand. M.L.C.

You may take your child to the school any time between now and Aug. 26, the day your daughter's and all county schools begin classes. Advance registration is urged, a spokesman for the Pitt County Schools said.

The Greenville City Schools, which begin classes Aug. 27, request that all new students be registered in advance, too. Mrs. Kay Whitehurst suggested you call the office of the school your child will attend and make the arrangements. If you do not know in which district you live, you may go by the City Schools Administrative Office at 431 W. Fifth St. and learn from the map there.

FEEDBACK

A spokesman for the County Health Dept. has informed Hotline that the small black puppy taken from the Animal Shelter that was being observed for possible rabies infection, has been returned. The puppy was left in the drop box of the shelter some time Sunday night. Dr. F. B. Haar reports he has stopped the rabies series on little Lester Fields, who was bitten by the puppy last week as the puppy has shown no signs of rabies.

Appreciation was expressed to Hotline and all of the news media in Pitt County that aided in the search for the puppy by Dr. Haar and the Field's family.

Pastor Regards Choir As Backbone Of Church

By BARRY HANSON
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The stamping, clapping gospel beat of a 100-voice choir is the lifeblood of his church, says a black Baptist pastor.

At Union Baptist Church, one of the largest black congregations in central Illinois, more than half of the two-hour Sunday service is filled with rollicking gospel songs and blues-tinged spirituals.

"If the black church does not have a vital choir, it almost dries up—dies," says the Rev. Dr. Rudolph S. Shoultz, pastor of Union Baptist. "I wouldn't want to pastor a black church without a choir. I wouldn't be going anyplace."

The choir inspires the pastor to preach and the congregation to listen, he said.

Dr. Shoultz adds, "When the black man was in slavery, he was not privileged to communicate with other workers. They communicated through songs.

"For example, if the slaves were going to have a meeting, they would sing, 'Meeting tonight, meeting tonight, meeting at the old campground.' All the boss man would hear was the song."

He said the music eventually made its way into the black church and developed into a significant part of the service.

At Union Baptist, teens and senior citizens alike take up their hymn books and sing, accompanied by piano and organ.

Church officials said the choir and its style of music has much to do with attracting young people to the church.

"It's really their bag," said Hazel M. Taborn, minister of music.

And Louis T. Jones, a young organist, said, "It's the best part of the service."

Sex isn't what it used to be. At least, public reaction to books on sex and sexual behavior is not what it was 20 years ago.

Today, books on sex and sexual behavior come and go from the bestseller lists without much controversy. Books by David Reuben, Masters and Johnson, the Sensuous Woman and the Sensuous Man, plus their many imitators, have come to be an accepted part of the publishing business. But such was not the case with the Kinsey Reports of 1948 and 1953, which caused a swirl of reaction that reached its peak in August 1953.

Today is the 21st anniversary of Kinsey Day, the day in 1953 when the press revealed what Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey and his associates at Indiana University had found out about the sexual behavior of the female.

His name had become a household word in 1948 with publication of his research report on male sexual behavior. The public and professional reception accorded the Kinsey research was unprecedented in American scientific history.

Within 10 weeks after its publication Jan. 5, 1948, the Kinsey Report on the male reached second place on the list of nonfiction bestsellers. It stayed on the New York Times bestseller list 27 weeks.

Within a few months the Kinsey project was a part of American folklore—the subject of gags, bawdy jokes and good-humored anecdotes.

In the next five years, the book sold 300,000 copies and it was reprinted in six foreign editions.

Kinsey was praised, denounced and ridiculed. His name became sort of a synonym for sex.

Kinsey could not have predicted the controversy and turmoil when he began his research at Indiana University at Bloomington in 1938. He had come to IU in 1919 as an assistant professor zoology and his early research was with insects.

But in 1938 he turned to human sexual behavior and set out to study and classify human sex patterns with the same scientific precision he had applied to his story of the gall wasp.

In July 1938 he interviewed his first subject with the aim of taking a complete sex history that could be broken down into uniform statistical measurement. In the next six months he took 62 histories and in 1939 accumulated 671 more. His first subjects were recruited from among his faculty colleagues, his students and acquaintances.

Gradually, he carefully selected specially trained young men to assist him in the mass interviewing project that was taking shape.

On April 19, 1947, preceding publication of the book on male sexual behavior, Kinsey incorporated his research under the title of Institute for Sex Research, Inc. The institute continues its sex research today with Dr. Paul Gebhard, one of Kinsey's associates, now directing the work.

"I sometimes think that Kinsey's greatest contribution was that he made it possible to talk about sex in the living room," Dr. Gebhard says.

The Kinsey research was developed amid great controversy and in spite of many problems. Suits were threatened, a rural sheriff launched an investigation, a school board dismissed a teacher who had cooperated in obtaining case histories.

The university was pressured to have the Kinsey study discontinued and his ouster from the faculty was demanded.

Unlike the male report published in 1948, the report on the female aroused curiosity and anticipation long before it was ready for print.

In preparation for publication of the book on his female research, Kinsey took more care in explaining his research to journalists and arranged a series of briefing sessions.

He drafted a three-page agreement on the use of his research findings which journalists were asked to sign.

The release date for pre-publication material on the book was set for Aug. 20, 1953, by Kinsey. The date became known around the world as Kinsey Day, or K-Day.

Five national magazines hit the newsstands Aug. 20 with articles on Kinsey's book. Two more were out the next day.

Even with the widespread magazine coverage, perhaps the greatest press impact was to come from newspapers. Many persons estimated it was the largest news play ever to greet a new book. Many papers headlined the story in frontpage streamers. But some spurned it entirely, on the grounds the findings were not fit to print, or constituted advertising.

Time Magazine said that in reporting Kinsey's findings, newspapers revealed as much about themselves as Kinsey did about women.

The New York Times refused to sign the prepublication agreement, used a 1,000-word condensation of The Associated Press story, and put it back on the book page.

The Chicago Tribune reported the news, but in an editorial denounced Kinsey as a "real menace to society."

The Philadelphia Bulletin signed the agreement and sent a reporter to Bloomington, but killed his 3,300-word summary. It told readers it was impossible to present an adequate summary of the findings without giving unnecessary offense.

The San Francisco News left out the story, saying it was adult reading. The Rocky Mountain News of Denver cut out the data on teen-age petting. The Great Bend (Kans.) Tribune got so many protests from religious groups and individual readers that it stopped a series after the first installment.

The Raleigh Times set the type, then decided not to run it, but offered galley proofs free of charge to any reader sending a stamped, adressed envelope.

The London Mirror used three-inch type for a single banner headline: WOMEN. The London Daily Express omitted the report and wrote instead about "our sex-sadden newspapers."

Much of the criticism and reaction came before the book even had been published.

The over-all reaction from the press and from the public to Kinsey's report on the female was almost completely the opposite reaction of the male report. With the male book, there was almost no interest before the book was published, but an overwhelming reaction after publication. With the female book most of the reaction came before publication and interest seemed to fade afterward.

There was praise along with the criticism and Kinsey remained optimistic about the future of his sex studies. Despite financial problems, he went ahead in 1956 with plans for at least 19 major studies.

But Kinsey never was to see the full measure of the acceptance of his work. He died in Bloomington Aug. 25, 1956, at age 62.

Discount Boast Of Bomb Blast

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police and firemen discount a claim by the so-called alphabet bomber that he was responsible for an explosion which wrecked a warehouse.

Authorities said again Monday that the Saturday night blast which injured five persons and caused damage estimated at $5 million was an accident, caused by a load of unstable chemicals contained in a truck parked at the site.

The bomber, who has identified himself in tape recordings as Isaac Rasim, says he is the military spokesman for an organization he calls Aliens of America. He said it is dedicated to fighting for better treatment of aliens.

He claimed responsibility for an Aug. 6 bombing at Los Angeles International Airport which took three lives and for planting another explosive device at a Greyhound bus depot in downtown Los Angeles.

Rasim's most recent communication came on Sunday, when he promised in a telephone call to the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner to continue a bombing moratorium. A day earlier, he said he was postponing plans to set off a bomb in a crowded area on Sunday.

Rasim said he was setting the moratorium because he has drawn public attention to alien problems.

Rasim was dubbed the alphabet bomber because he said he will spell out the name of his organization across the nation "in blood."

He said the first bomb stood for the letter "A," as in airport. The second—disarmed by police after Rasim tipped authorities to its location—was found at an "L" site, a locker at the bus station.

Escape-Proof Prison Wasn't

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Irish prison officials thought a break from the century-old, maximum-security Portlaoise prison was impossible.

But on Sunday 19 men of the Irish Republican Army blasted their way through the prison's double walls with plastic explosives that had been smuggled into them.

It was the biggest jailbreak in Ireland since 20 IRA guerrillas escaped from a jail in Londonderry, in Northern Ireland, in the 1930s but were recaptured quickly.

So far there's no word on the capture of the 19 who escaped Sunday. Troops and police are hunting throughout the Irish Republic and Northern Ireland.

Portlaoise security authorities said a second wave of prisoners tried to follow the 19 through the walls but were driven back by guards firing from the prison roof.

Dublin's Mountjoy prison was the scene of another spectacular IRA breakout last November. A hijacked helicopter landed in the prison yard during exercise period and lifted out three top leaders of the IRA's Provisional wing under the noses of the dumbfounded guards.

Two of the Mountjoy escapees are still free; Joseph Twomey, former chief of staff of the Provisionals, and gunrunner Joe O'Hagan. The third, Kevin Mallon, was recaptured three months later and jailed in Portlaoise. He was among the escapees Sunday.

The 150 IRA men in Portlaoise were moved there from other prisons after the Mountjoy helicopter breakout. Security officials considered Portlaoise, 50 miles from Dublin, to be escape-proof.

The guards there foiled another escape plan seven weeks ago when they found an 80-foot-long underground tunnel dug from a neighboring mental hospital to a manhole in the prison exercise yard.

Find Starving Horses Tied To A Tree

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A pair of saddle horses so starved their ribs stuck out like washboards have been found tied to a tree just north of Charlotte.

The Mecklenburg County Animal Shelter estimates the stallion and the gelding had been left in a patch of woods for almost two weeks with little food or water.

Leaves on nearby trees had been nibbled bare. An empty feedbag lay on the ground. Two plastic garbage cans thought to have contained water were nearby.

The supervisor of the shelter, Harry Overcash, says the horses may have been stolen and hidden.

They are being cared for at the animal shelter. If they are not claimed, they will be sold at auction in about two weeks.

Women Join Forest Fire Fighters

By MIKE STEPANOVICH
Silver City
Daily Press

SILVER CITY, N.M. (AP) — Fighting forest fires is sweaty, back-breaking work, but "it sure beats waiting on tables," says a U.S. Forest Service fire fighter who has handled both jobs.

The professional fire fighter is Linda Day, a 27-year-old mother of twin boys. She's one of only five women, all stationed at the Gila National Forest, who fight Forest Service fires in New Mexico.

"What's the big deal about it as long as we do our jobs," says Mrs. Day, a Reserve, N.M., resident who is part of a five-member pumper crew.

And, says 20-year Forest Service veteran Don Webb, fire control officer for the forest, "The girls have done their jobs as well as the men and we have no adverse criticism."

The crew also includes Molly Thomas, 20, of Island Park, Idaho, and Eva Aragon, 24, of Reserve.

The only woman member of a seven-person fire crew at the Mimbres Ranger Station is Ann Prongay of Edison, N.J., who lives in nearby San Lorenzo and commutes to work daily.

Maryann "Muffet" Foy, 22, of Bayard, N.M., is the newest woman firefighter. She says she got tired of an eight-to-five job at a local bank and went looking for something different.

She wound up recently with a tactical helicopter crew based at Lookout Point.

A spokesman for the Forest Service regional office in Albuquerque said no other women serve on Forest Service fire fighting crews in New Mexico.

He said there are no limits on assignments the female fire fighters are given — "We try to treat everyone just alike."

That means the same rigorous four-day training program and the same daily routine of one-mile run, skipping rope and 70 minutes of organized recreation, such as volleyball or basketball.

Miss Prongay said she was the only woman among 85 men during her training, and "I really felt conspicuous there. Everyone was apologizing to me for profanities or one thing or another."

But crossing the sex barrier hasn't been all apologies, the women said. A number of male fire fighters remain skeptical.

"A lot of guys resent our being fire fighters," says Miss Thomas. "They get uptight about it. They feel threatened."

She is the only veteran among the five women, having worked for the Forest Service in Idaho last year.

Mrs. Day said she thinks "men feel we're competing with them."

And Miss Aragon muttered that "most of the men think we're nurses."

Miss Thomas says the stereotypes are being broken and the women are at least on their way to acceptance.

"I think we've changed a lot of people's minds about what we can do," she said.

What they do, according to Mrs. Day, is "make hose lays, make the initial attack with the pumper crew and follow through with the mop-up stages."

Miss Aragon put it more simply: "We just go out and fight fires. It's part of our routine."

The two men on the pumper crew, Todd Hecker and John Barmory, say they're satisfied with the women's performance.

"I've worked with women fire fighters before and wasn't too impressed. But these three really surprised me," says Hecker, who came to the Gila from Angeles National Forest in California.

Barmory agreed: "The girls put forth a lot more effort and once they get the hang of the job they do better than some men I've seen."

Even Webb, who admits to some lingering skepticism, said the women "really know their stuff. This pumper crew has been dispatched all over the state and they have done a great job. Men couldn't have done any better."

"We don't play favorites," he said. "Women fire fighters must do the job. They must climb the same mountains, fight the same fires and maintain the same conditioning as the men."

That seems to suit the women just fine. "I don't want any breaks. I want to be treated as an equal," Miss Prongay said.

Mrs. Day said she hasn't had any breaks on the fire lines.

"If anything it's harder," she said, "because the women had to prove their ability to the men."

Webb said acceptance isn't the only problem with women crew members.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

For years, the Ladies Home Journal has run a series called, "Can This Marriage Be Saved?" My husband says it sounds like they're refrigerating a leftover, but I love the civilized way in which married people get a chance to express themselves without interruption from one another. So often, one member of the couple dominates the dialogue, thus denying the other mate the chance to speak. It's so healthy in a marriage to talk it out.

As an example of how it works, I'll relate a little situation that placed our marriage in jeopardy a few years ago... the Alarm Clock Incident.

Erma talks first.

"Basically, I'm a light sleeper. I've had to be. Were it not for me, our babies would have floated out of the crib in the mornings. Dogs would have knocked our garbage cans over and made a mess. And the milk would have frozen into quart milk bars outside of our door."

"However, my husband and I planned a trip and he said, 'I'd better set the alarm. With our luck, you'll sack out and we'll miss the plane.'"

"Being a sensible person, I agreed to this. We would set the alarm for six and still have plenty of time to make the plane."

"No sooner had my head hit the pillow than the alarm went off in my ear. I stumbled out of bed, half-crazed for sleep, went into the bathroom and began brushing my teeth. The lump in my husband's bed did not move a muscle. 'Aren't you going to get up?' I asked.

"Are you crazy? It's only 4:30," he said.

"But why did you set the alarm for 4:30?"

"I have to wake up slow," he said.

"I sunk under the covers and stared wide-eyed at the ceiling until the alarm blasted me out of my trance. He reached over, smacked the alarm and said, 'Bug off!'"

"It was 5 a.m. 'Are you some kind of a nut?' I shouted. 'No,' he said. 'I just don't want to be shoved around by an alarm clock. I'll get up when I'm ready to get up.'"

"The snooze alarm went off at 5:15, 5:30 and 5:45. By this time my eyes felt like two burnt holes in a mattress. At six when the alarm went off again, my husband listened to its clang until it rang down. Then he grabbed it, stuffed it in a drawer and said, 'Don't call me. I'll call you!'"

"When I was sure he was awake, I told him as gently as possible that I was going to put him in a home. We began to argue. We argued until we missed our flight. But I forgave and forgot."

Bill's turn to talk.

"There are a few discrepancies in Erma's story... And when he gets a column of his own, you can hear them."

No Dinner At The Captain's Table

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 49, a wonderful man in all respects, and I love him dearly.

I am 43, but I'm told I look a lot younger. Not to brag, but I'm also attractive.

Living in our apartment building is a handsome, 40-year-old Army captain. (He's a bachelor.) My husband travels a lot, and this bachelor told me if I ever got bored or lonely when my husband is away, I should call him and he will invite me over for a gourmet dinner. (He belongs to a gourmet club and loves to cook.)

So far I haven't taken him up on it, but I've thought about it. I've been a faithful wife all these years and have no intentions of being otherwise. I told my husband about this captain's invitation, and he said: "I don't like the idea. It's not that I don't trust you, but I wouldn't trust any man alone with a beautiful woman. Also, I don't want to give the neighbors anything to gossip about."

Abby, shouldn't a woman my age be allowed to do what she wants to do?

ON THE FENCE

DEAR ON: A woman of any age should be allowed to do what she wants to do. However, even though the captain's "gourmet dinner" is 100 per cent kosher, and he has a good conduct medal to match yours, if your husband doesn't like the idea, don't pursue it. If you're lonely in your husband's absence, get off the fence and go with a group. There's safety in numbers.

DEAR ABBY: I've often considered writing to you about this, but then I would think: "It's too silly!" Now, I've had it.

We share a duplex house with two of the warmest, kindest people in the world. They are always so nice. That's the trouble, they are TOO nice!

When the mister cuts his grass, he cuts ours, too. I know this is silly, but it bugs me. I LIKE to cut my own grass! I've told him not to bother, that I would do it in the evening, but then he says: "That's all right. I already have my lawn mower out."

Abby, I've gone out and started mowing my lawn, and he has the nerve to come over, shut my mower off and say: "Now, you go tend your baby, and let me do this." (They have no children and are quite a bit older than we are.)

Abby, I truly like this sweet old neighbor, but he is carrying a good deed too far. How can I tell him?

KEEP OFF THE GRASS

DEAR KEEP: Tell him that you WANT to cut your own grass because you NEED the exercise. Now what warm, kind, sweet old neighbor would deprive you of your exercise?

DEAR ABBY: A reader signed "Angry" asks: "Do I have a right to complain?"

Her question caused me to recall what the late William Ernest Hocking wrote in his Types of Philosophy:

"Anyone can complain, but to see precisely what is wrong is a gift: accurate diagnosis comes from a unique power of vision and indicates the likelihood of an equally unique capacity to remedy the fault."

Abby, you have both!

ARTHUR H. PRINCE

DEAR MR. PRINCE: I liked the quote, but jeepers, what an extravagant compliment! Isn't there enough inflation in the world without adding another swelled head?

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Cal. 90121.

'Instant' News Proves Worth

A weekend series of events appeared to eliminate Nelson A. Rockefeller, former governor of New York as a potential vice president.

But just as quickly, charges against Rockefeller were cleared up and President Ford announced that he still considered Rockefeller a vice presidential possibility.

Not only that, the president said he believed there had been a deliberate attempt to discredit Rockefeller with anonymous allegations.

The Saturday problems developed with an anonymous informer claimed that documents existed concerning Rockefeller's involvement in some 1972 campaign "dirty tricks".

The evidence was supposedly in some missing records which once were in the possession of E. Howard Hunt, Jr.

President Ford ordered the available information turned over to Special Prosecutor Jaworski's office. This started speculation that Rockefeller was removed from vice-presidential consideration.

The special prosecutor's office acted quickly to check on safe deposit boxes where the papers were said to be located and within a few hours reported that nothing was found and the case was considered closed.

Then came the president's statement that he still considered Rockefeller in the running for the vice presidency.

This morning the president announced that Rockefeller is the vice presidential nominee.

It is commendable that these Rockefeller reports were quickly checked out so that he was not eliminated from consideration in this matter. Too often in our history, political campaigns have swung on malicious rumors circulated late in the campaign when it was too late to refute them. The instantaneous nature of news which is available to us in this electronic age has been deplored, but it can also be helpful in setting the record straight. The special prosecutor reacted quickly in this case and Rockefeller was vindicated before the afternoon was over.

Seat Belts And Sanity

The House of Representatives caught the bicentennial spirit last week. In a burst of overflowing resentment, the House turned upon the Department of Transportation just as the colonists turned on old King George. It was a new American Revolution, and it was wonderfully welcome.

Taken by itself, the House action may seem trivial. By a vote of 337 to 49, the House ordered an end to the DOT's maddening requirements that new automobiles come equipped with a seat belt-ignition interlock system. On any scale of values, seat belts rank somewhere down the line from Magna Carta.

Yet the House vote has much symbolic value. The DOT's interlock decree is a classic manifestation of Big Brother government at work. Because some citizens may not yet have encountered the decree in action, perhaps it should be explained that the interlock was invented by the same delirious genius that in times past contrived thumbscrews, the iron maiden, and the rack. The infernal device prevents a motorist from starting his car until a precise sequence of actions has been completed. The device is expensive; it is subject to constant malfunction; it is universally despised.

Why had a benevolent government saddled this imposition upon the people? It is because a benevolent government believes it knows what is best for the people. The government will compel the people to be good. Big Brother is watching over us.

What the House said last week, in language Secretary Claude S. Brinegar cannot misunderstand, was: To hell with Big Brother! The House action, taken as an amendment to an omnibus motor vehicle bill, also would prohibit the airbag, or passive restraint device, now scheduled for mandatory installation in the 1977 model year.

Because of the parliamentary situation, the House amendment may not survive a conference committee. But the Senate happily is in a mood of similar rebellion. On July 31, New York's Conservative Senator James L. Buckley introduced a bill to accomplish substantially the same purpose. It is part of his continuing effort, he said, "to remove the grasping hand of Big Brother government from the lives of American citizens."

Buckley's principal co-sponsor on the bill is Senator Tom Eagleton of Missouri, a practicing liberal who was briefly George McGovern's vice-presidential choice. The two sponsors have been joined by 13 other senators whose philosophies reach across the spectrum. Among those urging that the interlocks be made optional instead of compulsory are such liberal Democrats as Nelson of Wisconsin and Church of Idaho, and such conservative Republicans as Helms of North Carolina and Hruska of Nebraska.

Because of this strong

Other Editors Say Capital Idea

(Greensboro Daily News)

Moving a state capital is no easy affair today, but the last time it was done in Alaska, six people and seven file cabinets took a boat ride from Sitka, the old territorial capital, to Juneau, the current one. Alaskans will vote August 27 to approve or turn down a proposal to move the capital again, to a more central location.

More than 60 per cent of the state's population live in the metropolitan Fairbanks and Anchorage areas, and the new capital, if the voters approve it, would be built from scratch on a 100-square mile stretch of land not far from the two cities. The cost could run anywhere from $110 million to $500 million, but revenue from the Alaska pipeline, which is expected to be flowing into the state treasury in about four years, will amply subsidize construction of the capital.

If and when the idea is approved, voters will be able to select the exact site from among three proposed by a special state committee. A close vote on the proposition is expected.

Juneau, which would surely suffer if the state government were to move away, has never been a satisfactory locale for the capital. It is accessible only by water or air and served by only one airline; it is three time zones away from western villages and two from the center of population; it is rainy, and crowded, and cannot grow substantially. To us, thousands of miles away and with no stake in the matter, the idea of a new capital seems a good one, and the prospect of building a city from scratch an urban planner's and architect's dream.

Public Forum

To the editor:

The staff and patrons at Sadie Sautler School feel very appreciative to the city manager, the police department, and others responsible for the traffic light at the intersection of Fleming, 14th and Tyson Streets.

We feel highly relieved of some of the worries we have had in the past for children crossing the streets, as this is a very dangerous crossway. This traffic light may not minimize the accidents that might occur there in the future, but it does prove to the general public that this is a long delayed need that has been met. Remember! "Accidents don't just happen, they are caused."

School Records Opened

BY BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Parents who might have worried over what their child's school records contained can now remove any doubt.

Public schools records are now an open book, and this should resolve the debates which from time to time have struck in local school units when parents wished to question the contents of those records.

Not only are the records open for inspection, but a hearing process will be guaranteed in which a parent may challenge any information contained in the file and seek to correct or remove anything which might be inaccurate or misleading.

All of this comes about in a provision of the elementary and secondary education funding act approved by President Gerald Ford.

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy provision denies federal funds to any school system that will not give parents the right to look at those official records.

No Problems

"We don't anticipate any problems with this," said William W. Peek, administrative assistant in the Department of Public Education. "It will be, in the long run, very helpful."

State law will not reflect the change as dictated by the federal rule, but Peek says he expects local school boards to draw up policies covering the situation.

In addition, state officials are drawing up changes in the format of the individual student cumulative record materials to facilitate the change in rules.

Before, no person was routinely permitted access to a student's records. Contained in that folder are a variety of things such as test information and results, notes from teachers regarding personal appearance and conduct, disciplinary records, health data, awards and honors, etc.

All of this growing stack of information is passed along from year to year from teacher to teacher.

There has, over the years, been some criticism of the system from those who felt that a child's school work, attitude, and relationship with the teacher can be affected by that record.

Also, critics have argued that a child's future—whether he gets into college or not, eligibility for scholarships, and so on—can be affected by that record.

And teachers, like all people, can make mistakes which if not corrected could hurt a child, the critics argue.

Protect Data

Teachers, on the other hand, have maintained that they, as professionals, are equipped and trained to use the notes and the test scores in the proper ways, while parents were not "technically able" to interpret the information.

Resulting from that situation, there have been a number of conflicts between parents and school administrators over the years, and school officials note that these were generally settled through negotiation without the need for court action. Court relief has been sought in other states.

Under the new law, a parent or guardian may simply go to the school principal and request permission to inspect the cumulative record folder of his child. Only the parent or legal guardian may do this, and the file will not be open to others.

"If any problem results from this procedure," Peek said, "the parent can go to the board of education to see that policy is developed."

If, on inspection, the record is found to contain information which the parent believes to be wrong or misleading, he can ask the principal to initiate proceedings to remove or correct that material.

In addition, the new law requires that all administrative records of the public school system be open for public inspection.

The Snakepit In Cyprus

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The Ford administration has clearly supported basic Turkish demands in the tragic, potentially disastrous Cyprus crisis for a reason fundamental to U.S. self-interest: Turkey is far more important than Greece as the eastern anchor of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

Indeed, top U.S. strategists are studying the implications of withdrawing tactical nuclear weapons and other NATO military defenses from Greece, now severed from NATO's military organization. If Greece stays out of NATO's military arm, those NATO weapons must either be yanked out or a radically new bilateral agreement between the U.S. and Greece must be negotiated.

In either case, the irony is exquisitely painful. Ever since the military coup d'etat in Athens delivered total power to a band of politically primitive army colonels in 1967, U.S. policy underwriting that military junta has been based on one consideration: preserving Greece as NATO's anchor in the Eastern Mediterranean at whatever political cost.

Throughout that period, Turkey, though far more important, was on NATO's and Washington's backburner, despite its legitimate claims for a better deal on behalf of the Turkish minority in Cyprus. At the time of the last Cyprus crisis, in Lyndon Johnson's administration, a Turkish appeal for American support was bluntly treated: if you start anything, President Johnson warned in a secret telegram, you are on your own. The Turks considered that an insult and have never forgotten it.

Now, the U.S.—with NATO—is paying the price for that long record of semineglect. When the tottering Greek military dictatorship tried to save itself by a jingoistic foreign adventure, contriving the ouster of Archbishop Makarios as President of Cyprus, the Turks made their move.

Backed by overwhelming military superiority over Greece and only 40 miles distant from the embattled island (contrasted to 500 miles between Athens and Cyprus), the Turks are in position to enforce their demands. Only American political influence stands between Ankara and its new demand for a self-governing Turkish-Cypriot stronghold (which in effect would be run from Ankara).

But American political influence is a sometime thing in Ankara. Already embroiled in a bitter dispute over Turkish poppy (opium) cultivation, the U.S. has little capital to spend as an inducement for Turkish moderation. Unanimous House passage this week of an amendment to the foreign aid bill, eliminating all U.S. aid to Turkey unless poppy cultivation ends, scarcely serves American diplomacy in Ankara.

Far more important, Washington knows that to push Turkey too hard could conceivably push Turkey, now under a left-leaning government, right out of NATO—a catastrophe of far larger dimension than Greece's exit this week.

Thus, Washington is now close to being the "pitiful, helpless giant" Richard M. Nixon once warned against. If the Turks, grown greedy by their military successes on Cyprus, should decide to gobble up the whole island, there is little the U.S. could do beyond blockading Cyprus to keep out seaborne reinforcements.

Anything more than that would inevitably involve the Soviet Union. Up to now, there is unanimous agreement both in the administration and foreign embassies here that Moscow is quite content to stand by and watch quietly as the Western defense alliance crumbles in the Cyprus snakepit.

Whether NATO will ever be put back together again is questionable. Key Turkish politicians told us in Ankara last month that "American power is declining." World power today, they said, is measured not in strategic nuclear missiles but in oil. Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit told us Turkey must look for new political and economic arrangements with the Arab oil states and Eastern Europe.

Accordingly, shaky U.S. attempts to keep Turkey as its most essential eastern NATO partner and the only NATO member bordering Russia could end with the same disaster that has followed Washington's tireless effort to make Greece safe for NATO. That would be

Slow Progress Against Poverty

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's effort to reduce poverty is another victim of the slower economic growth and high prices that have prevailed so far in the 1970s.

Completing a study on disadvantaged Americans, The Conference Board stated that while the number of poor has fallen to 23 million from 40 million in 1960, recent progress has slowed perceptibly.

"While the record is not unimpressive," said Fabian Linden, director of consumer economics for the nonprofit research organization, "the fact is that most of the gain was accomplished in the early and mid-sixties."

At least since 1968, he said, the number of poor has been decreasing more slowly, partly because the poor who remain comprise the hard core of the problem.

What makes the situation even more difficult to resolve today is the changing nature of poverty. While the percentage of elderly at the poverty level has declined, a greater proportion of children are included in the category.

In many instances, said Linden, these children are members of families headed by women who, if they are to fulfill their motherly duties, do not get jobs.

"In the early 60's the heads of some two-thirds of all poverty families did some work for at least some portion of the year," he said. "Now that ratio is only about one-half."

Who are the poor? Using government estimates, the Conference Board listed those persons living alone with incomes of less than $2,300 a year, as it did six-member families with incomes of $6,000.

The precise definitions are the result of an elaborate matrix which classifies families according to size, sex of household head, and many other variables. A "poverty threshold income level" is then established.

These are some of the findings:

—Poverty is most widespread among the aged — despite a decrease — and among blacks, people with modest schooling, and households headed by women.

Nearly one-third of the country's black population is poor, with the figure jumping to 40 per cent for blacks over

WITHTANDING PROSPERITY

In his life of Alexander the Great, the Roman historian, Plutarch, maintained that Alexander and his associates were corrupted by the opportunities for wealth, debauchery, and vice which their military victories made available to them. The result was that Alexander died as the result of a drunken debauch and the huge empire which he had conquered fell apart.

There are many men like Alexander who cannot stand prosperity. One of the marks of true worth is to take good

Rural Roads Poor

RALEIGH (AP)—An organization of highway contractors has issued a report saying that 40 per cent of the rural roads in North Carolina are "intolerable" by federal standards.

In addition, the highway businessmen said, the state has 1,222 bridges in need of repair.

The report was issued by The Road Information Program (TRIP), sponsored by the roadbuilding industry. The contractors would profit from any state program to inject more money into road improvement.

The TRIP study used information from federal and state road agencies, it said.

TRIP said the poor condition of the roads was contributing to higher food prices since it made getting produce to market more difficult.

It estimated that $1.4 billion would be needed to bring the roads up to the standards road-builders would like to see.

Greenville Moose Work Wins State Ass'n Honor

Members of the Greenville Moose were informed by their secretary, Ed Baldree, last night that their lodge won the State Association's first place award in the field of civic affairs at the annual convention held in Charlotte over the weekend.

Further honors were accorded the Greenville lodge by elevation of three of their members, A. W. Diehl, Garland Beddard and John Simonowich to the Fellowship Degree for extraordinary service to their lodge and the fraternity.

Eighteen members of the Greenville lodge attended the state convention, which was described as well-attended by most of North Carolina's lodges.

The 1975 convention is at present scheduled for Raleigh; and the mid-year meeting site still undecided, with Greenville being among those under consideration as host city.

Other business of the Monday's lodge meeting included a report by chairman Don Ederly on the Family Day held last Wednesday. Ederly said the event was attended by an estimated 700, and he expressed his appreciation for assistance in success of the games and entertainment provided the children. His committee's next program will be a dinner-dance on the 24th of this month.

Civic Affairs chairman Roy Thompson reminded his committee's next project would be a clothing drive in October. The work of Thompson's committee during the quarter ending July 31 received a rating of "Excellent" from Mooseheart Director Earl Horton.

Greenville lodge members attending the state convention were Gov. Jack Morgan, Jr., Gov. James Fleming, Past Gov. Garland Beddard, Prelate William Shaw, Trustee Wilbur Murphy, Sec., E. M. Baldree, Roy Thompson, Thomas Jamieson, Ed Moore, William Carr, Robert Knapp, John Simonowich, A. W. Diehl, Richard Barnes, Leon Singleton, Don Ederly, Gordon Turner and James Harris. All of them were accompanied by their wives.

Stepdaughter Charged In Hostage's Murder

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP)—A sailor and his 16-year-old stepdaughter have been charged with murder and kidnaping in the slaying of a woman taken hostage in a bank robbery, authorities have announced.

Police did not disclose what led to the arrest of Marcus Schrader, 33, on Sunday and of Debbie Brown, 16, on Monday.

They were charged in the death last Friday of Sheryl Potter Boyd, 19, of Jacksonville, a bride of eight months. Authorities said she had been shot through the right eye. She had been held hostage during the robbery of a branch of the North Carolina National Bank in this city of 17,000 near Camp Lejeune, a Marine base on the lower North Carolina coast.

Police said she had been shot with a .45-caliber weapon. Police Maj. Troy Shivar said a pistol of that caliber was found in Schrader's home during his arrest. Shivar said a ballistics test was being made in an attempt to determine if the weapon was used in a similar bank robbery-slaying seven months ago.

Schrader is a medical corpsman who has been in the Navy 16 years. He and the stepdaughter, one of five children in his family, were arrested at their home near Swansboro, 20 miles east of Jacksonville. They were put in the Onslow County jail in Jacksonville.

The bank, with headquarters in Charlotte, has offered a reward of $5,000 for information leading to arrest and conviction.

The body of Mrs. Boyd was found behind the wheel of her car in a shopping center two miles from the bank. Police said they believe she was abducted shortly after she dropped her husband off at his job Friday afternoon.

In the earlier case, Tasca Virginia Rader, 23, of Jacksonville, was abducted, forced to participate in a bank robbery in Jacksonville, and then shot in the forehead and thrown in a ditch. Police said their records show that in both incidents the robber wore a green and white ski mask and light-colored jeans, that a .45 caliber pistol was believed to have been used, and that both holdups occurred between 1 and 2 p.m.

Shaw Col. . .

Rather, they ascribe it to Ford's feeling that it is now time for the nation to end painful divisions.

Ford told correspondents aboard the presidential jet returning from Chicago that "you can't talk about healing unless you're going to use it in the broadest context."

Eyebrows were raised by his use of the phrase "broadest context" in the news conference and his appeal in the speech for forgiveness and rehabilitation of all casualties of all conflicts that are past.

Some wondered whether Ford has in mind an amnesty of sorts for Nixon and other figures in the Watergate tragedy.

Ford's aides brush aside the question by referring to his statement during last year's vice presidential confirmation hearings that the nation wouldn't stand for immunity or pardons for Watergate principals.

But the question remains.

Kilpatrick. . .

(Continued from page 4) bipartisan support, Buckley and Eagleton intend to offer their bill this month as a floor amendment to a pending public works bill. It will be a popular amendment, commanding the same overwhelming vote in the Senate that Congressman Louis Wyman's amendment commanded in the House last week. If all goes well, motorists may soon regain a measure of personal freedom. Hallelujah!

Both Buckley and Eagleton have made it clear that they do not oppose requirements having to do with product safety as distinguished from personal safety. In the manufacture and sale of automobiles, as in other fields of interstate commerce, the legislative power of Congress surely extends to the prevention of invisible hazards. Big Brotherism is something else.

"If freedom is to have any meaning in this country," Eagleton said, "it certainly must encompass the right of an individual to lead his life as he sees fit, so long as it does not interfere directly with the similar pursuit by others."

On that vital principle of a free society, conservatives and liberals alike can find many areas of agreement. Wiping out these infuriating interlocks as a compulsory requirement is only a first step. Plenty of other steps remain.

Big Cutback By Duke Power Co.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Duke Power Co., the nation's sixth largest utility, is cutting back its construction program by almost $1.5 billion during the next five years.

The reduction was authorized at a special meeting of the utility's board of directors Monday.

Duke President Carl Horn Jr. said that much of the company's construction program has been rescheduled primarily because of critical conditions existing in financial markets.

Horn said that delay of construction and reduction in immediate capital requirements will not affect the need for rate increases now pending before the utility commissions in North and South Carolina. He said these increases are based on the cost of plants and equipment already in service or which will be in service when the rate decisions are rendered.

"Duke has thoroughly investigated all available means of financing," Horn said, "and is convinced that it is impossible to raise the huge sums needed to maintain the former construction schedule."

Under the revised schedule, the two units of McGuire Nuclear Station near Charlotte, previously planned for operation in 1977, have been rescheduled for 1978 and 1979.

The two units of the Catawba Nuclear Station near Rock Hill, S.C. will become operational in 1981 and 1982, two years later than originally planned. Except where needed to protect work already done, construction at Catawba will be discontinued temporarily, a Duke spokesman said.

The start of construction on Perkins Nuclear Station in Davie County, N.C., and Cherokee Nuclear Station in Cherokee County, S.C., has been moved back two years, with completion dates for the six units now ranging from 1983 to 1989, the spokesman said.

"We estimate the revision in schedule will reduce capital expenditures by about $150 million through 1975 and result in a total capital reduction of almost $1.5 billion through 1979," Horn said.

TVA Rates May Go Up

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—The Tennessee Valley Authority has hinted that another rate increase may be in the near future because of increased coal prices and low coal stockpiles at key power plants.

A TVA spokesman announced Monday that the agency has signed a new 3½ year contract for coal at a record $20.21 a ton. Under the contract, Indian Creek Mining Co. will increase its deliveries from 2,000 tons a week to 5,000 tons.

"Add that to an estimated 500,000 to 600,000 tons delivery loss this week brought on by the miners' memorial holiday," the spokesman said, "and you have the kind of situation that will show up on the computers when they provide answers on the need for further coal escalator clause increases in September and October."

The TVA recently adopted a rate escalator system based on the cost of coal and the first 3.6 per cent rate hike under the system took effect Aug. 1.

The memorial holiday, called by the United Mine Workers in honor of miners killed in accidents or disabled by occupational hazards such as black lung disease, began Monday and continues for five days.

The holiday caught TVA with coal stockpiles reduced to a 56-day supply.

The Kingston Steam Plant west of Knoxville has but a 15-day supply the agency said.

Rains Failed Farmville Leaf Boost Corn Prices Steady

WASHINGTON (AP)—Recent rains have failed to promote significant improvement in the nation's sun-parched corn crop, the Agriculture Department says.

Officials said Monday that more rain is needed in drought-stricken corn states to rebuild soil moisture supplies and boost corn production materially.

Rainfall and temperatures this month have been favorable enough to sustain a recent corn production estimate pointing to a 1974 corn crop of 4.97 billion bushels, down 12 per cent from the 1973 harvest and far below indications earlier this year, officials said.

In an analysis described as a "quick mid-month review," the department said "rainfall during the first half of August over much of the Plains and Corn Belt states apparently did not promote significant gains in corn production, although soybeans could benefit from the moisture."

The latest soybean crop production estimate from the department projected this year's yield at 1.31 billion bushels, down 16 per cent from last year.

Prices were steady Monday on the Farmville Tobacco Market with the exception of a few grades of primings that brought higher quotes, according to Louis Williams, sales supervisor.

Williams said that with offerings consisting primarily of cutter and leaf grades, top price paid was $1.11. The volume of primings was heavier than on the previous sales day, he reported.

The Farmville market sold 342,888 pounds Monday for $372,261, an average of $108.57. For the season, the market has sold 9,138,004 pounds for $8,666,351 in averaging $94.81.

Williams said that for the third straight sales day, Stabilization did not receive any tobacco on the Farmville mgt.

In Oxnard, Calif., Walter Brennan was reported to be steadily improving at St. John's Hospital where the actor, 81, is being treated for emphysema.

ECU Ruling...

school at ECU would have to develop under the accreditation of the medical school at Chapel Hill.

One of the major issues raised by Jones' request for a ruling by the attorney general still remain unresolved—whether the UNC medical school has complete control of the ECU program or is to merely direct the program.

ECU officials seem to agree that the only way a two-year medical school can be developed is as a "component" of a degree school under the guidelines established by the Liaison Committee on Medical Education which represents the American Medical Association and the American Association of Medical Colleges.

"The program for a two-year school has to be under an accredited four-year school," Dr. Ed Monroe, vice-chancellor for Health Affairs at ECU commented. "There's just no way to have a program like this not under a four year school and the accrediting guidelines specify this."

But he emphasized, "that doesn't mean that it can't be given some local autonomy and decision-making authority. That's of no concern to the accrediting people."

"The interpretation of the relationship is up purely to the parent school (in this case, the UNC School of Medicine)," Dr. Monroe added, "the only way, under the accreditation guidelines, that an independent medical school can be developed is to be authorized to go on to four-year status."

"You can operate a two-year program as an interim operations... but until a four-year program is authorized, we have to be under Chapel Hill." The ECU official added, "If that's what the people want (a four-year school at ECU), that's what the people are going to have to see is done."

Congress Approves Agency To Monitor Price, Wage Hikes

By JOE HALL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—Both the House and Senate have passed a bill embodying President Ford's first big legislative request: Authority to set up an agency to monitor price and wage hikes.

The House on Monday cleared the measure, 379 to 23, and the Senate followed suit a few hours later, 83 to 3.

The two houses now must hold a conference to reconcile the relatively minor differences.

Sen. John J. Sparkman, D-Ala., Senate manager of the bill, said he was sure a compromise version would be sent to the President before Congress leaves on a late summer recess at the end of the week.

The legislation contains no powers to re-invoke price and wage controls.

Some Democrats said they doubted strongly whether the bill would do anything effective about controlling inflation.

But Sparkman argued that Congress should honor Ford's request and at least let him give the monitoring agency a try.

In the Senate several Democrats tried to beef up the measure with an amendment giving the President powers to delay price or wage increases for up to 90 days. This proposal was defeated 50 to 34.

The agency would be called a Council on Wage and Price Stability under the Senate measure, while the House version would name it the Cost of Living Task Force.

It would be set up in the White House with eight members and four advisers, all named by Ford.

The agency would conduct public hearings on inflationary problems; receive reports on prices, wages, profits, costs and sales; focus attention on the need to increase productivity; seek to improve collective bargaining and encourage price restraint, and analyze demand and supply in various sectors of the economy.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., tried to add to the Senate bill a rider directing Ford to make cuts of up to $10 billion in the current fiscal year's $305 billion budget submitted by former President Richard M. Nixon.

He conceded it would be hard to do this but declared the "raging inflation" demanded nothing less.

However, several senators strongly opposed the proposal, declaring it would encourage presidential impoundments and let Ford set spending priorities.

The amendment was beaten, 58 to 28.

Ford spoke out on the inflation issue in a speech to the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Chicago on Monday, declaring: "I will not hesitate to use the veto to control inflationary excesses."

He referred in the speech to a bill increasing veterans' educational benefits 23 per cent, saying he approved education for veterans but then adding:

"Your government is constrained by another consideration: We are all soldiers in a war against brutal inflation."

Art Left By Bomb Threat

HARROGATE, England (AP)—Frank Bowers returned home with his four children after a week's vacation and found somebody had drunk two bottles of his whisky and a bottle of his gin.

In exchange the mysterious intruder left four oil paintings and eight big murals—including a Disney cartoon in a bedroom, large abstracts in the dining room and master bedroom, two nudes in the bathroom and Superman going "zap" in another bedroom.

"I don't know who's done this, but it's a fantastic job," Bowers, 36, said on his return Monday. "I'm leaving them as they are. The kids won't even let me rub out the nudes in the bathroom."

Bowers, who is separated from his wife, added that one of the paintings was unfinished. "I would willingly pay the artist a few quid (pounds) if he would come back and finish it off," he said.

Four public buildings were the targets of the threats Monday. As in all of this summer's threats, they were searched and found free of bombs.

The Administration and Albermarle buildings, housing dozens of state agencies, were evacuated at 3 p.m. while security police searched for bombs.

Holshouser, whose office is in the Administration building, continued his meeting at another site. Employees returned to those buildings at 4 p.m.

The Wake County Courthouse and the Wake Memorial Hospital were also hit by threats. The courthouse was evacuated but the hospital was not. No bombs were found at either place.

Paladins Top Challenger

(One of a series)

There is an outstanding chance that the Southern Conference football championship will stay in Greenville this fall—but whether it's Greenville, North Carolina or Greenville, South Carolina, is a question that is still to be answered.

If it goes to Greenville, South Carolina, it will be because Art Baker has worked a two-year miracle at Furman University, bringing that team its first title in football in the conference.

A couple of years ago, former coach Bob King turned in the first winning record at the school since it had decided to de-emphasize football, and suddenly it was decided that a re-emphasis was what was wanted. But the next two years saw a decline in the record to 5-5 and 2-9 and King resigned, with Baker taking over.

He went out and hit the recruiting trails, bringing in a fine group of freshmen, and firing up those already there. The result was a 7-4 record, and a 3-3 Southern Conference mark. Only 19 points in those three losses separated them from the conference crown, and their worst defeat was 14-3 at the hands of East Carolina, the eventual champ, who bombed out everyone else in the league.

It came as somewhat of a surprise, and it earned Baker co-coach of the Year honors in the Southern.

Baker has again been on the recruiting trails, and has what he calls "possibly an even better group of freshmen." Add these to the talent he already has, and some observers are picking the Paladins to wear the crown they just missed in 1971.

Still, Baker insists that it will not be an easy job. "The task looks to be more difficult this year," he adds, because people are not going to be taking Furman lightly.

"Our players are going to have to realize that things are not going to be as easy this time around," Baker continues. The Paladins appear better on paper. Their losses were not major. The biggest loss may be kicker Al Standiford, but Baker believes that Furman can find a replacement.

There is a good sized list of returning lettermen, among them Furman's bona-fide line, where all but two graduated. There is also a lack of experience in the defensive line, and only one of the three receivers is back—Steve Hall, who is covering from tight end to split end.

"I think our big strengths are going to be our team unity after a fine year, and the fact that we know we have a tougher schedule, and that a lot is expected of us," the coach said. "We also have a fine leader in Whitehurst, who is an exciting young man. We can depend on him."

Baker also looks to "strengthen from the Perone-led secondary." "We'd like to keep the momentum of last year going," he added. If he does, he might be wearing the Southern laurels come late November.

Joining the quarterback in the backfield will be a number of people who can make the ball move. "Our quarterback situation is excellent," Baker said. "And we have more stability at fullback." Transfer John Payne and Ike Simpson are the top candidates to start, and Randy Mahaffey adds top depth.

At the tailback slot, Robinson is a proven runner, and with Harry King improved and Andy Gross experienced, this could be the most solid position on the field.

Flanker, however, is a question mark. Norman MacDonald is the leading candidate. At split end, Hall leads the way, showing improved speed and ability. Ken Brown, a freshman, might challenge. At the tight end, Richard Goodpaster, a converted tackle, held the spot during the spring, but again a freshman, Brette Simmons, might move in.

In the interior line, Jeff Holcomb, rated the best blocker, and Bobby Beaird return at the tackle spots. But the guard position has little experience. John Forbes, a transfer, and sophomores Tim Kennedy and Mark Schmidt all played a lot during the spring, but the spot still remains questionable. Robbie Caldwell brings experience, but is coming off an injury, at center.

Across the way, with Perone leading the secondary, that phase of the defense looks outstanding. Jimmy Griffin, Curtis Boyd and Mark Mosher have all come through under game pressure and John Brocard and Ronnie Byrd have experience.

At the ends, Bill Anderson, rated one of the best in the league returns. Tommy Marshall may grab off the other spot. At the linebackers, there will be improvement too, with Larry Anderson and Steve Wilson returning after "great springs."

The problem, however, is at nose guard. Ted Perry ended the spring there, but two freshmen, Bobby Church and Frank Moses are seen as likely starters. The tackle spots are stronger. Tony Cox, Stan Walker and Bruce Williamson all have experience, and transfer Rick Yocke may also help.

Monday night by beating Roscoe Tanner, 3-6, 7-6, 6-4. The two are former collegiate rivals, Ramirez having played for Southern California and Tanner for Stanford.

Meanwhile Dibley, seeking to defend his singles title at the $50,000 Eastern Lawn Tennis Open at South Orange, N.J., was beaten, 6-3, 6-3 Monday afternoon by Brian Gottfried, a U.S. pro who said he has "been playing pretty well lately."

Third-seeded Tom Gorman withdrew from the Eastern because of a back injury. The tournament's two top seeds, Wimbledon champion Jimmy Connors and Russian Alex Metreveli, were scheduled to begin play today.

Connor's fiancée, Chris Evert, also a Wimbledon champion, was set to open play today against Kristy Pigeon in the $30,000 Women's Grass Court Championships at Newport, R.I. Second-seeded Olga Morozova of the Soviet Union also was to begin play today, against Australian Cynthia Doerner.

Monday fourth-seeded Julie Heldman eliminated unranked Carrie Meyer of Indianapolis, 6-3, 6-3 and sixth-seeded Gail Chaffreau of France beat Californian Laurie Tenney, 6-4, 6-2. But fifth-seeded Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia was upset by Briton Jackie Fayer, 6-2, 6-1.

Ashe beat Joachim LoyoMayo of Mexico, 3-6, 6-3, 7-6, winning the final-set tiebreaker game, 8-6. Patrick Cornejo of Chile ousted Alexander, 7-5, 6-2.

White Sox on three hits until the eighth when his arm stiffened and he needed help from Segui after Chicago scored its only run on a walk and singles by Pete Varney and Bucky Dent.

George Scott hit a second-inning homer and Billy Champion and Tom Murphy made it stand up with a six-hitter. Scott's 10th homer of the season, a drive that curled around the right-field foul pole, was one of only four Milwaukee hits off Vida Blue.

Murphy replaced Champion when Bert Campaneris led off the eighth inning with a single and recorded his 15th save.

Bob Darwin slammed a three-run homer off Sam McDowell in the first inning and Joe Decker scattered six hits, including Graig Nettles' first home run since July 9.

Marshall Snaps LA String

By BRUCE LOWITT

Baseball's premier short man went very, very long. And one of baseball's little men came on very, very big.

Mike Marshall, who usually spends an inning or two mopping up victories for Los Angeles, stayed around for six on Monday and single-handedly mopped up the Chicago Cubs as a pitcher, a hitter and, finally, a gambling base runner to give the Dodgers a 12-inning, 8-7 victory.

Joe Morgan mopped up Philadelphia, period. He crashed two home runs, a three-run blast in the second inning and a grand-slam in the third, as the Reds mangled the Phillies 15-2.

In Monday's other National League games, the San Francisco Giants beat Pittsburgh 5-3, the Atlanta Braves belted St. Louis 11-6, the Houston Astros edged New York 2-1 in 11 innings and the Montreal Expos defeated San Diego 7-4.

Marshall's play was crucial in helping the Dodgers snap their six-game losing streak and remain 2½ games ahead of the Reds in the West Division.

He led off the 12th inning with a single and moved to second on a bunt. Then Rick Auerbach hit a slow roller down the first base line. Catcher Steve Swisher and pitcher Oscar Zamora both went for the ball. While Swisher made the play at first, Marshall kept coming around from third base to cross the unguarded plate.

Reds 15, Phillies 2
Morgan's first homer gave

Cincinnati a 5-0 lead, then he unloaded his first career grand slammer in nine-run third.

"Actually I hit my first grand-slam in old Crosley Field here in Cincinnati as a rookie with the Houston Astros, but Frank Robinson crawled up a fence and robbed me," the 5-foot-7 Morgan grinned.

Giants 5, Pirates 3

Dave Kingman hit a tie-breaking double in the ninth inning—a liner down the third base line which Pittsburgh Manager Danny Murtaugh insisted was foul—then scored on Ron Bryant's single in the Giants' victory over the Pirates.

Braves 11, Cardinals 6

Two-run homers by Hank Aaron and Darrell Evans and a pair of two-run doubles by Marty Perez powered the Braves past St. Louis, wrecking Claude Osteen's debut with the Cardinals.

Aaron's 730th career homer and 17th of the year came off Osteen in the third inning. Osteen has given up 14 of Aaron's homers, more than any other active pitcher.

Astros 2, Mets 1

Milt May drove in Houston's tying run with a sacrifice fly in the ninth inning, then singled home the winner in the 11th to beat Tom Seaver and the Mets.

Expos 7, Padres 4

Montreal's Barry Foote drove in two runs, one with a tie-breaking homer that triggered a three-run seventh inning and beat the Padres.

In the American League, it was Milwaukee 1, Oakland 0; Boston 6, Chicago 1; Minnesota 6, New York 2, and California 1, Detroit 0.

Plan Didn't Work Out Second Time Around

Chicago Manager Chuck Tanner gave the Boston Red Sox his best 1-2 punch right off the bat Monday night but Bill Lee and Diego Segui saw to it that not much punch at all came off the White Sox' bats.

Remembering back to May 31, when he had sluggers Dick Allen and Bill Melton batting in the 1-2 spots and they delivered consecutive third-inning homers off Lee for all the runs in a 3-2 Chicago triumph, Tanner tried it again.

This time, they managed only a single apiece and Allen ended Chicago's only real threat with a double-play grounder in the eighth inning as the Red Sox rolled to a 6-1 victory and stretched their lead in the American League's East Division to five games over idle Cleveland.

Elsewhere, the Milwaukee Brewers nipped the Oakland A's 1-0, the Minnesota Twins whipped the New York Yankees 6-2 and the California Angels blanked the Detroit Tigers 1-0. Baltimore, Kansas City and Texas also were idle.

Lee and Segui combined on a five-hitter. Lee blanked the White Sox on three hits until the eighth when his arm stiffened and he needed help from Segui after Chicago scored its only run on a walk and singles by Pete Varney and Bucky Dent.

Decker finished with a four-ish, retiring the last 11 New York batters after a one-out walk in the sixth.

Angels 1, Tigers 0

Frank Tanana hurled a six-hitter for his second straight shutout and the Angels edged the Tigers on Winston Llenas' bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the ninth inning.

Detroit rookie Fred Holdsworth matched scoreless innings with Tanana until the California ninth.

National League scores: Los Angeles 8, Chicago Cubs 7 in 12 innings; Cincinnati 15, Philadelphia 2; Atlanta 11, St. Louis 6; San Francisco 5, Pittsburgh 3; Montreal 7, San Diego 4; Houston 2, New York Mets 1 in 11 innings.

His first coaching assignment, Cannon had wrestling and track experience while at Frederick. He is married to the former Carol Carter of Portsmouth, Va.

In A Capsule

Outlook—The Paladins have the spirit to win the championship this year. They are strong at quarterback and the running backs. They may have the best secondary in the league. But they'll be depending on a number of freshmen and sophomores to do the job, and facing five Southern foes in the first six games won't help. Also, the conference foes won't be expected the Paladins to play dead—they'll have to play to win it.

Offense—Pro set, with flanker and split end.

Defense—Five man front, two linebackers, and four in the secondary.

Schedule—Sept. 14, at VMI; Sept. 21, Presbyterian; Sept. 28, William & Mary; Oct. 5, at Richmond; Oct. 12, EAST CAROLINA; Oct. 19, at East Tennessee State; Oct. 26, Wofford; Nov. 2, at Appalachian State; Nov. 9, Lenoir Rhyne; Nov. 16, The Citadel; Nov. 23, at Wake Forest.

Ramirez Wins Buckeye Title

By The Associated Press

The bids of Mexican Raul Ramirez and Australian Colin Dibley for U.S. tennis tournament titles are over—Ramirez winning a $9,000 first-place check and Dibley being upset on the opening day of a tourney he was trying to win for the second straight year.

Ramirez, 21, won the men's singles crown at the $50,000 Buckeye Tennis Championships at Columbus, Ohio, Monday night by beating Roscoe Tanner, 3-6, 7-6, 6-4. The two are former collegiate rivals, Ramirez having played for Southern California and Tanner for Stanford.

Rocket Dragster Sets Records

WENDOVER, Utah (AP) — A rocket dragster powered by hydrogen peroxide broke four world records Monday on the Bonneville Salt Flats.

The Pollution Packer, fueled by the pollution-free fuel, hit an average speed of 181.341 miles in 4.963 seconds from a standing start over a quarter-mile course.

Vern Anderson, 35, of Minneapolis, broke both the time and speed records in the standing quarter-mile and the standing half-kilometer. The run also gave him the corresponding national records.

It was the first time a rocket-powered car had attempted to break records on the salt flats.

The vehicle is expected to go after the standing mile and kilometer records today.

The chemical reaction that powers the rocket car produces only water and oxygen. The Pollution Packer is powered by a 90 per cent solution of the substance.

The run went smoothly except for a near-rollover at the end of the run, when Anderson's car swerved nearly out of control coming down from speeds of between 390 and 430 miles per hour.

The Southern California Timing Association clocked the runs, in which Anderson also set national records. In the half-kilometer, the vehicle reached an average of 203.536 m.p.h. in 5.4925 seconds.

This means the car was going in excess of 400 miles at the end of the course and would have, from a dead stop, passed a car going by at 200 miles per hour.

Anderson broke records set by Dave Anderson, who died last March when his car crashed during competition in Charlotte, N.C. Though not related, the Andersons attended the same high school in Minneapolis and were good friends.

Later Monday, Bill Snyder, 54, a Minneapolis businessman, drove a Falcon Ranchero powered by a Thermo King diesel engine, to set eight additional records through the quarter-mile and one-mile speed traps.

Softball Event Holds Opening

The Greenville Invitational Softball Tournament got underway last night with eight games played at Evans Park.

Winners in the first round of play included Kentucky Fried Chicken, the Little Sluggers, Carolina Dairy, Lancaster and Daniel Construction of Greenville; Bank of North Carolina of Farmville; Marco Hi-Fi of Williamston; and Diamond Jim's of New Bern.

Play will continue tonight in the double elimination tournament, which is scheduled to wind up on Sunday.

The Little Sluggers took a 10-7 win over Grace Free Will Baptist, rallying from a 7-5 deficit after four innings to win it.

Bank of North Carolina downed Shirley's Barber Shop, 4-3, in a 10-inning contest. NBC rallied from a 3-1 deficit in the seventh to tie it up and force the extra frame.

Carolina Dairy outlasted RCN of Vanceboro, 12-11, in a slugfest, closing off a four-run RCN rally in the final inning of the game.

Marco's downed Northside Seafood of Greenville, 7-6, breaking a 6-6 deadlock in the bottom of the seventh for the victory on a two-out bases loaded error.

Kentucky Fried Chicken bombed the Moose Lodge of Washington, 15-2, in the widest spread of the night. The rout included a six run fourth and another six-run outburst in the sixth.

Lancaster picked up a 14-4 win over Morgan Printers. Lancaster pushed over six in the first to wrap up the victory.

Daniels took a 6-5 win over Parkers' Barbecue, coming up with two runs in the top of the seventh to pull it out.

Diamond Jim's downed Den-Ray of Greenville, 9-3. Diamond Jim's held Den-Ray scoreless until the fifth, and by then they had built up a 4-0 lead, added two in the sixth and three in the seventh.

Sailing Means Much To Hood

By PETER BREWER
Associated Press Writer
MARBLEHEAD, Mass. (AP) — "Ships are but boards," said the bard, "sailors but men."

Shakespeare, however, never envisioned America's Cup sailing where the ships are metal marvels, the men princes of competitive sailing.

But he would have understood how the sails of these majestic 12-meter cup contenders can mellow and become sleek and improve with age. "Particularly ours," said sailmaker Ted Hood, grinning.

Hood is a kind of renaissance generalist of sail racing, designing and building sails and boats and then making them perform. He has been in on every America's Cup competition of modern time.

This time he is making sails for Courageous and Mariner, the two new aluminum 12-meters. For Courageous, he has cut and recut a mainsail of the controversial new Kevlar sailcloth.

But he notes that Courageous also carries two other mains that were used by the cup winner four years ago—Intrepid.

"As a sailor I think they should spend more on sails," said Hood. "If they have a boat that cost over a million dollars, they're spending less than 5 per cent on sails."

That's a layout of up to $45,000 for sails, which is still a good bit more than most yachtmen spend for an entire boat.

The new aluminum 12s, along with the renewed wooden defender Intrepid, are aiming for the right to defend the old silver mug beginning Sept. 10 off Newport, R.I. The Australians with Southern Cross and the French with France hope to take it away.

But the current preliminary trials are in many ways more intriguing, demanding and frustrating as the contenders race against each other, make desperate changes, practice relentlessly—and scheme.

Hood has many responsibilities that tug at his time, but when it comes to sails for a cup contender he moves to the loft floor with his crew, measuring, lining up, marking, cutting and watching all the details.

"Kevlar is the closest fiber to metal," he said. "It's light but stronger than steel. It was developed for auto tires."

Sailmaker Hood is not exactly sold on Kevlar. He calls it "exotic. It needs a couple of years of tests. If they want it, we'll make it, but we don't recommend it."

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — A team of young baseball players from Kao Msiung, Taiwan, enters the Little League World Series this week seeking a fourth consecutive title for the Asian island.

The 28th annual tourney was scheduled to begin today with a first-round doubleheader. Kao Msiung faced New Haven, Conn., in the opener, while a team of U.S. military and diplomatic children from Athens, Greece, opposed Talmadge, Ohio, in the second game.

The other four teams in the series play Wednesday. Victoria, British Columbia, meets Red Bluff, Calif., and Maracaibo, Venezuela, faces Jackson, Tenn.

The championship final is scheduled for Saturday.

In seven of the past eight years, the Far East representative has gone on to win the finals in this central Pennsylvania city. For the past three years, Taiwan teams have dominated their opponents.

NEW YORK (AP) — JoAnne Carner is the top winner on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, winning $68,469 so far in 1974.

BOSTON (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Frank Freedman has denied a restraining order sought by the New England Colonials of the Atlantic Coast Football League to prohibit players under contract to the team last year from jumping to the World Football League.

Freedman said a delay would do no irreparable harm, in refusing to issue the order on Monday.

The Colonials last week filed a $4.2 million damage suit against the WFL in U.S. District Court, charging violation of the Sherman Act and contractual agreements between the team and its players.

Dolphins Easily Win Rematch Of Champions

By JOHN R. SKINNER
AP Sports Writer

MIAMI (AP) — The uniforms were the same and so was the result, but the Super Bowl it wasn't as the Miami Dolphins defeated the Minnesota Vikings 21-9 in a National Football League exhibition game.

Both coaches admitted their clubs weren't playing Super Bowl-quality ball in Monday night's game.

"They didn't do all the things tonight they did in the Super Bowl," said Miami Coach Don Shula, whose team won last January's title confrontation 24-7. "Our team didn't, either."

Minnesota boss Bud Grant didn't get his veterans into camp until the players' strike moratorium began last Wednesday, while 34 of 48 Miami veterans reported early.

"The Dolphins were sharp," said Grant, adding that his veterans tired in their first-half of workout and made execution errors.

"Those two reverses they ran were excellent," said Grant of a 58-yard scamper by Mel Baker and six-yard touchdown run by Nat Moore for the final Miami score of the game. "We haven't even given reverses to our players yet."

Both coaches went to their benches in the second half after fullback Larry Csonka had put the Dolphins ahead 14-0 on touchdown runs of one and 25 yards.

Minnesota, which didn't get past midfield in the first half, responded with a 27-yard field goal by Fred Cox and one-yard touchdown run by Dave Osborn behind the second-half play of rookie quarterback Mike Wells.

Wells, who completed seven of eight passes for 56 yards and ran five times for 37 more yards, left the game midway through the final quarter with a sprained right knee. Grant said the seriousness of the injury wouldn't be known until tests are taken in Minnesota.

Dolphins running backs Csonka and Jim Kiick, who will play in the World Football League next year and hadn't entered camp until Wednesday, ran 16 times for 61 yards and 25 yards in eight carries, respectively. Kiick caught a 20-yard pass from quarterback Bob Griese and ran it another 24 yards.

Neither appeared bothered by some booing from the Orange Bowl crowd of 58,144 when they were introduced before the game.

The Dolphins had to refund money to 4,500 ticket holders unhappy about the players' strike and the game turnout count was only 58,144 in the 80,000-seat Orange Bowl.

Aaron Knocks 730th Homer

ATLANTA (AP) — Hank Aaron and Darrell Evans each blasted two-run homers and Marty Perez had a pair of two-run doubles to lead the Atlanta Braves to an 11-6 National League baseball victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Monday night.

The loss broke a four-game winning streak for the East Division-leading Cardinals and ruined Claude Osteen's pitching debut.

The Cardinals jumped off to a big lead by scoring five runs in the third off a double by Mike Tyson, and singles by Lou Brock, Ted Sizemore, Reggie Smith, Joe Torre and Bake McBride.

Aaron got his homer in the Braves' third. It was the 730th of his career and 17th of the season.

Paced by Perez's first two-run double, the Braves had four runs in the fourth and chased Osteen, then got three runs in the fifth, the key blow again being a two-run double by Perez.

Evans' homer, his 14th, came in the seventh off Sonny Siebert, the fourth St. Louis pitcher.

Osteen, recently traded from Houston, said he was happy to be with St. Louis.

"No more than I was pitching in Houston, I'm surprised anybody knew where to find me," he said. "Only time I've been to the mound in the last 21 days was on a muddy field during an exhibition game at Oklahoma City."

"I didn't know what was going on," he said. "At first they told me they wanted to go with a four-man rotation, but then it was obvious they had no use for me at all. So, I wasn't surprised at all that I was traded. It's good to be with a contender."

Owners, Players Still Have Big Differences

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League Players Association strike entered its 51st day today and the toughest negotiating appears to lie ahead for the players and owners.

John Thompson, executive director of the NFL Management Council, bargaining arm of the clubs, said Monday the owners and the Players Association still have substantial differences.

"I wish I could say I was optimistic," said Thompson, looking somewhat worn after the latest round of negotiations which ended Saturday with a new offer from the players—which was immediately rejected by the owners.

Thompson said there are about 10 issues still separating the two sides but described them as the "toughest, gut issues," in the conflict.

One major area of disagreement remains the length of the contract. The players' last offer was for a short pact running only for the duration of the 1974 season and expiring Jan. 31. The owners, obviously, would prefer a longer term.

"We seek a long-term contract so that we can settle the game and return normalcy to it," said Thompson. "Frankly, we think the game can't stand another year like we've been going through. It has had a substantial impact on the economy of the game."

Thompson said the strike had cost the owners approximately $500,000 in pre-season income.

"Before negotiations began," said Thompson, "our individual player contracts were up an average of 35 per cent because of the emergence of the World Football League. That is an estimated $17 million more than one year ago for regular season payrolls. That money, going directly from the clubs to the players, makes it difficult to meet the union's collective demands. The strike itself has reduced income and increased the money gap."

In another area, the players claimed to have dropped demands on the controversial Rozelle Rule, which permits Commissioner Pete Rozelle to set compensation for a club losing a player who plays out his option and moves to another team.

"We do not consider their proposal a compromise or a concession," said Thompson. "They could come back at us Feb. 1 or as soon as the contract ends. The players still do not accept our system and that is an integral part of our system. They say they will continue to seek total elimination of that rule in the courts."

What makes the bargaining so difficult, said Thompson, is a mutual distrust by both sides for each other. "It's unfortunate, but real," he said. "We have to share in that guilt."

Dick Allen of the Chicago White Sox began the 1974 baseball season with a .299 career average for 1,363 games.

East Germans Unveil Threat

VIENNA (AP) — The East

Germans, expected to be the dominant force in the European Swimming Championships which run through Sunday, unveiled a new weapon in Monday's races at the Stadionbad Pool.

Carla Linke, a 14-year-old blonde who is a relative newcomer to world class swimming, broke the world record for the women's 200-meter breaststroke in morning qualifying heats, then lowered it once more in capturing the finals.

The tall, slender Miss Linke broke the mark of 2 minutes, 37.89 seconds by taking her qualifier in 2:37.44, then smashed her own record by a whopping 2.45 seconds, winning the evening finals in 2:34.99.

Miss Linke showed little emotion after her remarkable performance.

"It was a good swim," she said, with barely a trace of a smile. "Everything went well, everything was perfect."

Not to be outdone, Kornelia Ender, East Germany's best known star, lowered her own world record in 100-meter freestyle by winning the final in 56.96 seconds. Her previous mark was 57.51.

Another East German, veteran Roland Matthes, didn't break a record but easily won the 100-meter backstroke final in 58.21.

Ulrika Tauber had started the East Germans off with a record 2:18.93 in winning the 200-meter individual medley Sunday.

Among the others in this 26-nation competition, Peter Nocke gave West Germany its first individual gold medal Monday by winning the men's 200-meter freestyle in a European record time of 1:53.10, less than one-half second off American Mark Spitz' world standard of 1:52.78.

Roger Pyttel of East Germany, who set the old European mark of 1:53.97 last year, finished fourth.

Top qualifiers in the 100-meter breaststroke were Nikolai Pankin of the Soviet Union, 1:06.13, and Bernard Combet of France, 1:06.39.

David Wilkie, Britain's top swimmer and the world record holder at 200 meters, failed to qualify for the final. He stopped swimming after traveling only a few yards, thinking it was a false start. By the time he picked up again, he was unable to catch up with the field and finished last.

The Worry Clinic Frothy Fringe Goes To Pieces

Bob's experience as a Senate Page in Congress, is illuminating. Not his disgust with the social climbers who try to adopt new words like "crunch" and "play" just to show off! Some professors also try to freeze" out the laymen via jawbreaker terms!

By GEORGE W. CRANE Ph.D., M.D.
CASE B-620: Bob D., aged 17, recently served as a Senate Page in Washington, D.C. "Dr. Crane," he informed me after he got home, "I was disgusted by the amount of profanity that I heard from these famous men.

"And it is surprising how many of them drink whiskey even to the point that they smell like a tavern and stagger down the corridors!

"Their staff members are also ridiculous in their eagerness to use any new term such as 'crunch' or 'play' or 'crisis.' "In your column you often mention how teenagers will adopt smoking or beer drinking, just to seem ultra modern.

"Well, Dr. Crane, in Washington, they fall over themselves trying to slip those 3 words into every paragraph!

"For they seem to think they are ultra modern leaders if they can climb on any new band wagon before the folks back home do so."

The "Crunch" Crowd
Social climbers are obsessed with a desire to join the pace setters in adopting new fads before the majority climb on the band wagon.

They have a mania to attain the spotlight by being the first to introduce a new hat or frock, spout newly coined slang or take dope, smoke cigarettes and shock their staid associates by other deviations from the normal code of behavior.

In the seminars a few years ago, some of the professors also wished to gain similar notoriety so they claimed that "God is dead."

The anti-establishment greenhorns are likewise in this group, as are many of the headline hunters that still try to follow Jane Fonda.

Dr. Robert H. Gault, mentions in his textbook, "Social Psychology," that there are millions of "psychically unstable" people in society.

They may have a high I.Q. and even be college graduates, yet they belong to the frothy fringe of Americans who go to pieces under stress.

They deviate markedly from the wise old maxim that states: "When the going gets tough, the tough get going."

Opening lead: Queen of ♠

Don't let an apparently easy looking hand lull you into a false sense of security. The quirks of distribution can wreck even the most secure contract if declarer doesn't pay due care.

South's hand might not quite measure up to the textbook requirements for a forcing two bid, but his hand was so strong distributionally and so rich in controls that he felt those factors made up for any deficiency in high cards. When North could support his second suit freely, South jumped straight to slam.

West led the queen of clubs, and declarer started thinking in terms of an overtrick. He won the king of clubs and ace of diamonds. The fact that East showed out didn't faze him to a great degree. Next came the king and ace of spades. When West ruffed, Declarer's predicament dawned on him. He could discard a club on the ace of hearts, but he had only two trumps in dummy to ruff his three losing spades, so he ended up down one.

with their 5-year-old classmates.

For they have an insatiable hunger for the spotlight. As grownups, they then are pathetically eager to show off their new esoteric lingo, understood only by the elite.

Even in my own fields of psychology, we always encounter a number of professors who can't resist using 5-syllable words when a 2-syllable would suffice.

The most violent critics of this column, for example are some of those psychology professors who say:

"That awful Dr. Crane! He is debasing the prestige of scientific psychology by using short words and oversimplifying human problems!"

Taunting these verbal four-flushers, I reply that they:

"Obfuscate the proposition by polysyllabic circumlocutions."

That's why students take 4 years to acquire the college degree that the Army instructors showed could easily be obtained in 3 years!

Congressional faddists that Bob describes are afraid of such practical terms as "gumption" and "tax reduction."

But the three brothers — Bill, 24, Mark, 22, and Brett, 21 — never were fazed. Bill says that's because they've always found something to laugh about, usually themselves.

The brothers started their career in their early teens and also started slipping fast comedy bits into their soft-rock music act.

Alas, when they landed their first record contract in 1968 and went on tour, the comedy caused problems. Bill says they should stick to music, but the brothers couldn't help gagging it up.

"We've always cracked each other up, but there were many times we didn't crack anyone else up," said Bill. "We'd say something and thought it was hilarious.

They went back on the road, but fiscal disaster followed. One record company flew them from Los Angeles to New York to play at a bash, but the bash was cancelled for reasons unknown, he said.

"The company wouldn't fly us back," Bill said. "And we only had $50 between us."

Their big break came — and went — in early 1973 when they met pop music star Elton John, whom Hudson said liked their style and wanted to produce an album recorded by them in England, a deal that fizzled.

But prior to leaving for England, he said, they'd met Chris Bearde, producer of the old "Sonny and Cher" show, and auditioned for him.

Bill Hudson recalled that an audition before Blye left them feeling fame and fortune were not imminent.

Hudson Brothers Kept Running Into Disasters

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — The Hudson Brothers are riding high now with their summer music-comedy show on CBS. But to hear Bill Hudson tell it, their climb from obscurity was more like riding the crest of a slump.

Found Tool Kit Of Prehistory

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — A University of California scientist believes he has identified the earliest "tool kit" used by prehistoric man as long as 2.5 million years ago. The tools were found by anthropologist Glynn Isaac in the same area of Kenya, Africa, where Richard Leakey last year unearthed a human skull believed to be 2.6 million years old.

Corn Syrup Substitute For Sugar Explored

DIAL

By BARBARA WASHINGTON
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Rapidly mounting sugar prices have caused some major Georgia manufacturers to explore the possibility of a "high fructose" corn syrup substitute.

Mrs. Jones said more bottlers across the country would use high fructose corn syrup if it were more readily available. Weldon Dupree, production manager at A. M. Braswell Foods Co., in Statesboro, Ga., which makes jams and preserves, said they were using the high fructose corn syrup for the first time.

And George Casey, the production manager at Aristocrat Ice Cream Co. in Atlanta said the corn syrup derivative "has not been proven satisfactory for us in the ice cream business."

"It does not have the sweetening power of the cane sugar," said Casey. "It has more body, but I would not highly recommend it."

H. A. Bendizen, president of Clinton Corn Processing in Clinton, Iowa, a division of Standard Brands, said increasing demands for the high fructose product has led to expansion plans for his company.

"We have another expansion underway," said Bendizen. "We have been oversold and expanding since our first plant went into operation in 1969."

Due to the current drought in the midwestern corn belt, the processing company president said "raw material costs are up."

However, Bendixen said the high fructose corn syrup has the long range potential of making the United States independent of other countries for sugar. "We are not trying to put the sugar people out of business," he said. "But we are nibbling at their growth."

"The corn syrup substitute looked very good when you were talking about corn coming down to $2.27 a bushel," said Ratajczak, "but now corn will be about $5 a bushel and remain so for the next five or six months."

The economist predicted that the savings in high fructose corn syrup would "be eliminated with the rise of corn prices and sugar will become more feasible."

"The use of fructose will be limited as far as candy is concerned but in bakery products it will be used a little more," said Jenkins.

Cigarette-Smuggling Is Easy And The Profit-Margin Large

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer
HARRISBURG (AP)—With no federal law against it and each state acting individually, cigarette smuggling has become a gold mine, says the president of a new multistate organization formed to stop the crime.

Landau, whose bureau takes in some $230 million a year in cigarette taxes, estimates Pennsylvania loses $25 million a year due to cigarette smuggling.

The new group plans to petition the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration for funds to hire experienced officers and purchase equipment.

Landau says informants would be hired to learn of bulk purchases in North Carolina. The enforcement agencies then would follow the shipment to its destination, with the aim of identifying the purchaser.

Cannot Supply Jars And Lids

By LEE MITGANG
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A worsening shortage of tin plate and soda ash has made still another consumer product hard to get: Canning jars and tin lids.

The shortage is especially pressing this time of year as many parts of the nation are in the midst of harvest time or near it. Manufacturers of the jars and tin lids, including the two biggest, Ball Corp. of Muncie, Ind., and Kerr Glass Manufacturing Corp. of Los Angeles, say they are being besieged by angry customers from every state wondering why their stores have run out of canning jars.

Alcoa To Halt Its Production Of Foil

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Forty-three years after it started making household aluminum foil, the Aluminum Co. of America has announced it will stop production of the shiny wrap by Dec. 31.

Other major household foil manufacturers said they would continue production. It was too early to tell what effect Alcoa's action would have on the price of foil.

Alcoa said it was stopping production of Alcoa Wrap, Wear-Over Foil and private label brands for supermarkets and other retail stores because of a shortage of aluminum, not to divert the available aluminum into more profitable items.

Alcoa, which produces about 20 per cent of the household foil sold in the U.S., said it will continue to make heavy-duty foil for use by institutions and restaurants.

W.A. Kerr, president of Kerr Glass, says he has heard reports of black markets in at least four states—Utah, North Carolina, West Virginia and Georgia.

Because of rising food prices, unprecedented numbers of Americans are canning their own peaches, pears, apples and berries. In fact, Kerr says demand for canning jars and lids has grown some 170 per cent this past year.

Part of the reason is higher taxes imposed by the government. Reynolds, which sells household foil under the names Reynolds Wrap and Diamond Foil, and Kaiser, which markets aluminum foil for private-label brands, said they would continue production.

BEARING THE HEAT—Heat's a hard thing to bear and this hairy fellow from the far North can only beat the heat by lounging in his rocky home at Tokyo's Ueno Zoo and dream of cooler days.

REDDING, Calif. (UPI) — The 120-foot-high Burney Falls Memorial State Park north of here once was called the eighth wonder of the world by Theodore Roosevelt.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Members of the Charlotte Greek-American community are donating blood for refugees in Cyprus.

AUGUSTA, Mich. (AP) — A 19-year-old teller was shot to death by a shotgun-wielding robber on her first day at work at a branch bank.

WITNESSES and authorities gave this account: Connie Adams of Plainwell, Mich., a college student working as a summer employee, was approached by the bandit Monday afternoon and was filling a bag with money when the alarm at the Augusta branch of the Industrial State Bank went off.

The robber shot Miss Adams in the face. Then he calmly reloaded his shotgun and repeated his demand for money to another teller, who handed over an unknown amount of cash.

Giving Blood To Cypriots

It was announced that 260 telegrams had been sent to President Ford, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and the North Carolina congressional delegation, urging them to support a July 20 U.N. resolution calling for a cease fire, withdrawal of foreign armies and the return of an independent government in Cyprus.

Robber Kills Bank Teller

It was not known who sounded the bank alarm. While Monday was Miss Adams' first day at the Augusta branch, she had worked previously at other locations of the bank.

Democrats Again Back To Old Hair-Pulling Strife

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — After two years of trying to settle their reform controversy, Democrats are back to the same kind of hair-pulling strife which tore the party apart in 1972.

Probably the last chance to salvage the party's reconciliation effort in time for the 1976 presidential year will come this December at the first mid-term Party Conference, a miniaturized version of the national convention.

It may be too late to restore unity for this year's elections in the wake of a walkout by blacks, women and white liberals from the final meeting of the Democratic Charter Commission on Sunday. They charged that party "regulars" were bent on an item-by-item overhaul of reform efforts.

The disenchanted reform wing left threatening to retaliate in the fall by withholding support from some Democratic candidates.

Although the party regulars outvoted the more avid reformers by three to one at the commission's closing session in Kansas City, the balance will be much closer at the conference in December.

Ironically, the blowup which derailed party chairman Robert S. Strauss's unity campaign was brought on by efforts to push through modifications he felt would avert just such a split.

The Strauss-backed changes were aimed at giving the reformers some of what they wanted but not enough to alienate the regulars who are still smarting over the McGovern Commission rules that kept many of them from the 1972 convention in Miami Beach.

But once the rollback got started and the regular-labor-conservative bloc saw how much muscle it had, Strauss's lieutenants lost control and were unable to stop it.

The break-up of Strauss's rapprochement began over an article designed to open up the party and which contained the ghost of the 1972 quotas.

The black members protested when the regulars began chipping away at this article. The Kansas City commission voted to report four alternatives to the mid-term conference which must now make the painful choice.

The alternatives range from required quotas to virtually no requirement to encourage minority participation.

The more moderate members wanted to report the draft charter to the December conference as it then stood.

But the labor forces, encouraged by their strength and angered by black and liberal threats of a walkout, pressed on. First they knocked out a plank that would allow the national party to "establish criteria for participation in the Democratic party."

Then they introduced an amendment that would have stricken, among other things, the ban on the unit rule which allows a majority of a delegation to cast all of the group's votes.

This is what brought the walkout, and with less than a quorum remaining, chairman Terry Sanford was forced to adjourn the meeting, saying the charter as it then stood would be forwarded to the December conference.

What Strauss has to do between now and December is either to take sides and let the losers take a walk or try to restore the fragile spirit of compromise.

An indication of his course came Monday when he called the walkout a publicity tactic by the black who led the move, California Assemblyman Willie Brown Jr.

The Democrats would be in dire trouble without the coalition of labor, blacks, liberals, the women's movement, the intellectual community and the various other groups which traditionally have formed the national party.

These divergent elements have been allies since the reign of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Now they are split over reform and over the power which reform rules can give or take away.

Arrested On Various Counts

A 22-year-old Rocky Mount man was arrested here early today on charges of assaulting a police officer, public drunk and damage to city property.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Rouse allegedly hit an officer with his fist and knee as the officer attempted to remove him from his van which was stopped in the travel portion of U. S. 264 at the Plaza Drive intersection about 1:55 a.m.

Rouse also allegedly knocked the officers pistol from his holster damaging the weapon, Chief Cannon noted.

Rouse was jailed under a $300 bond.

Cool Reaction

TORONTO, Ont. (AP) — Representatives of American draft evaders and deserters living in Canada have responded coolly to President Ford's offer of "earned re-entry" for the exiles.

The President's offer was "no way to establish a reconciliation," said Gerry Condon, 27, a deserter from the Green Berets and managing editor of the war resisters' magazine Amex-Canada.

"Many people want to go back very badly, including myself, but we don't want to go back under conditions like this," he said.

Ford told the national convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Chicago on Monday that he would "throw the weight of my presidency into the scales of justice on the side of leniency."

In a major policy shift from the Nixon administration, Ford proposed a program of "earned re-entry," presumably some form of public service in lieu of prosecution, for the estimated 50,000 exiles.

But the president stressed that he rejected blanket amnesty. "I reject amnesty and I reject revenge," he said.

Condon said the president had taken "a very tough stand. ... It's just asking for another pound of flesh from people who resisted a war they felt was illegal and immoral."

He estimated 25,000 Vietnam exiles are living in Canada.

D.E. Charles Knight, 28, a member of the U.S. National Council for Universal and Unconditional Amnesty, said Ford's position was "what we refused in January, 1972."

Manual Labor Will Get New Emphasis

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors is apparently bowing to criticism of its highly automated Vega assembly line by emphasizing more manual labor in planned 1976 production of a new mini-Chevrolet.

The swing back to more manual labor appears designed to stem any new outbreaks of "blue-collar blues" which plagued the Chevrolet Vega assembly plant at Lordstown, Ohio, two years ago.

At the same time, however, GM will be using more robots on underbody subassembly operations in an effort to keep assembly lines relatively error-free.

Officially, Chevrolet has yet to acknowledge the company will build the mini-Chevy.

But the trade newspaper American Metal Market said on Monday it had learned Fisher Body division's Grand Blanc plant will build the underbody line for the new car and will employ 22 robots.

The 22 programmable industrial robots would be the largest number in any single system at GM outside of Lordstown. Ford is the automotive leader in use of robots with about 35 at its Kansas City assembly plant.

About 200,000 of the tiny cars, which will be roughly two-thirds the size of a Vega, will be assembled at GM's Wilmington, Del., plant starting next summer, the trade paper said.

Many observers believe that GM, by relying on more manual labor, not only will eliminate "blue-collar blues" problems, but also will be able to get into production with a lower initial capital investment and a quicker return of money.

Fugitive is Now Outlaw

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Ralph Ellerbe, who sawed his way out of the Cumberland County jail last Friday with three other men, has been declared an outlaw.

Under North Carolina law, anyone declared an outlaw may be killed if he resists arrest by any law enforcement officer or citizen.

Ellerbe, facing a total of 65 years on various robbery convictions, was in jail awaiting transfer to a federal prison.

Another escapee, John Costner, also remains at large.

Two other men, Ernest Wood and Charles Burke, were captured soon after they fled the jail.

Judge Hamilton H. Hobgood assigned outlaw status to Ellerbe on Monday at the request of Dist. Atty. Jack Thompson, who described the 19-year-old man as dangerous.

The prisoners used a hack saw to cut through an air conditioning duct in their cell, deputies said.

They crawled through the duct to a third-floor courtroom, went downstairs to the basement, and then walked out of the building. The jail is on the fourth floor.
