New State Attorney General Takes Over

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan left office today after introducing his successor, James H. Carson, to the Justice Dept. staff.

Morgan's resignation was conveyed weeks ago in a letter to Secretary of State Thad Eure. It took effect at 8:30 a.m. today.

At 8:20, Carson, in shirt sleeves and carrying a brief case, strode into Morgan's bare office. The former Republican legislator and Court of Appeals judge was appointed by Gov. Jim Holshouser to the post.

Carson and Morgan shook hands and then Morgan escorted him through the department offices, introducing the personnel.

Carson was to meet this morning with the deputy attorneys general who will not be leaving with Morgan.

At noon, Carson was to be sworn at the old state capitol. This evening, he was to be the honoree at a $100 per person fund-raising reception at the Governor's Mansion.

Morgan, meanwhile, is free to pursue his campaign for the U.S. Senate.

Carson faces Democrat Rufus Edmisten in the Nov. 5 general election to decide who will serve the remaining two years of Morgan's term. Edmisten is former special counsel to the Senate Watergate committee and a longtime aide of retiring

U.S. Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C.

Morgan had been attorney general since Jan. 3, 1969.

Carson, who served two terms in the North Carolina House from Mecklenburg County, was appointed last year by Holshouser to fill a vacancy as a judge on the state Court of Appeals.

He resigned more than a month ago and has devoted most of his time to campaigning since, although he said recently that his campaigning would be "severely curtailed" once he assumed office.

Although at this point, he is assured only a brief term, Carson, said he does not regard himself as a "caretaker."

"I am not an interim attorney general," he said. "I am the attorney general."

Carson denied in a recent interview that he plans to fire Charles Dunn, director of the state Bureau of Investigation.

"I have no plans whatsoever to fire him," Carson asserted. Then he added, "I think most of the political people are leaving with Morgan. I think there will be very few changes by me when I go over there....Nobody's neck is on the line."

"I am going to be keeping an open mind as much as possible. I don't see any need to change things overnight."

Carson said he plans to meet with Dunn on Tuesday. "I think it's essential that the two (attorney general and SBI director) have common goals," he said.

Responding to charges by his Democratic opponent, Carson said Holshouser's office will have "no role" in the operation of the Justice Department.

Before accepting the appointment from Holshouser, Carson said he sought and received assurances that he would be free to make his own decisions to operate the department.

"I haven't asked for any assistance" from the governor's office, said Carson. "I don't need any."

Carson has pledged to continue—and in most cases strengthen—many of the programs begun by Morgan, such as consumer protection.

Both Carson and Edmisten were nominated by the executive committees of their parties. Edmisten beat out seven other candidates for the Democratic nomination. Carson, with the support of Holshouser, had no opposition before the Republican executive committee.

Since Morgan had not resigned at the time of the primary elections in early May, the executive committee of each party had to pick its nominee for the November election.

Groundwork Is Begun For 'Economic Summit' Talk

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, his cabinet and key economic aides are beginning to lay the groundwork for a forthcoming Economic Summit Conference to battle inflation.

The President, launching a busy third week in office, also announced he will hold his first news conference Wednesday.

It will be a full-scale televised session, with questioning expected to give him a chance to discuss what his new administration will do about the growing inflation in the nation.

Getting down to details on the economic conference, which is to be held in late September or early October, Ford planned to tell his cabinet and aides today the roles he expects them and others to play in the economic think-tank sessions.

to mandatory wage and price controls. Instead, he is counting on a new Council on Wage and Price Stability to keep an eye on both management and labor and spotlight excessive increases in either prices or wages.

He signed a bill Saturday setting up the new council, which he had called on Congress to enact.

He got support for his anti-controls stand Sunday from three leading businessmen, but a bit of unfavorable comment about the new council from a former economist for former President Richard M. Nixon.

C. Jackson Grayson, who headed the Federal Price Commission under Nixon, said he didn't approve of Ford's calling of an economic summit or of the new President's plans to cut the federal budget.

He said the new monitoring agency might have some influence over wages and prices, but "I am not for the jawboning that is in this monitoring agency. I think that sort of threat to the American economy will actually in some cases increase prices rather than decreasing them."

Medical Class On Hand

Twenty students began their first year of medical school here today as those enrolled in the first-year education program at East Carolina University reported for their first day.

Aides said that the President also will have talks later in the week with academic, labor and business representatives and outside economists on preliminary phases of the summit conference.

Ford has said emphatically that he does not plan a return

The three against re-imposition of controls were Arthur M. Wood, board chairman and chief executive officers of Sears, Roebuck & Co.; O. Pendleton Thomas, president and chief executive officer of the B. F. Goodrich Co., and Frank R. Milliken, president of Kennicott Copper Corp.

Appearing on ABC's Issues and Answers, the three agreed that the country is not heading into a serious recession. "It's a slow-down," Milliken said.

Wood predicted "inflation will taper off toward the end of the

GO ON TO SCHOOL

Is a pregnant woman allowed to attend a North Carolina technical school or community college? I'm wondering if I can attend Martin Tech, as I'd planned to this fall. B.S.

Pregnant women not only are allowed to attend our state's technical institutes and community colleges, they're encouraged to. Responsibility of a family demands job training and educational development, Mrs. Carolyn Mills, Martin Technical Institute registrar, said.

Marital status is not considered, she indicated, and a woman can attend as far into her pregnancy as her health allows. Pitt Technical Institute also welcomes students, pregnant or not, according to Dean of Students George McRorie. Both schools also have programs for high schools students who must drop out of the public school because of pregnancy.

MISSING VOLUME

In the early spring I ordered some books entitled "People Of The Earth" which had 20 volumes from the Grolier Co. in Danbury, Conn. I received the first volume and decided I wanted the entire set. I received volumes three through 20, but not the second volume. I've written the company asking for this volume but have had no response, yet I've been getting my bills. T.O.

Hotline contacted Grolier's Mail Service Division. They stated they would take care of the problem and have the billing stopped until after the volume is mailed to you. Ten days later you still had not received the book, so a second call was placed and the Mail Service Division spokesman indicated the missing book was mailed that day and you should be receiving it within three days.

Also, they can give you a temporary card having your name, address, mother and father's name, etc.—information one must give in order to get a card. Contact the Social Security Office, 758-3121, and they will be glad to help you.

An Uneventful First Day For County Schools

The first school day of a new year was relatively calm, with only minor problems Pitt County school superintendent Ott Alford said late this morning.

Some 11,250 students are expected to attend county schools in kindergarten through the 12th grade, Alford said.

There were "routine problems" on this opening day he noted, which should be cleared away in the next couple of days.

The superintendent noted that students will have a day off from classes Friday, giving school teachers and administrators to iron out any "major problems of organization" that arise during the first few days.

And Monday will be holiday—Labor Day—for teachers and students.

Alford encouraged "all boys and girls to come on and get enrolled" in classes, "but noted some may have to remain on the farms "helping to harvest late crops."

He said in cases where students are forced to help with farm chores for the first few days of school, "teachers and other school personnel will help students take care of anything they missed."

City Schools Open A New Year Tomorrow

Some 5,700 Greenville children will be putting aside summer time vacation and work days to face the annual ritual of returning to school tomorrow morning.

Superintendent of Greenville City Schools Glenn Cox says that all schools will be opening, and that no major problems exist in the readiness of school plants.

"There's still some last minute details at Agnes Fullilove to be taken care of," Cox remarked, "but nothing that will prevent the school's opening."

Tomorrow will be a part time orientation day for all the schools. The schedule will be a take-in at 8:15 a.m. for kindergarten through grades seven, with dismissal time at 10 a.m. For grades eight through 12, take-in will be at 8:45 a.m. with dismissal time at noon. There will be no lunches served in the schools on Tuesday.

Wednesday is the first full day of school. The school day schedule to be in operation is:

- Kindergarten and first grade: 8:15 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.
- Grades two through seven: 8:15 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.
- Grades eight through 12: 8:45 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Lunches will be served in all schools beginning Wednesday.

Practice Mobilization By Israel Said Success

By STEPHEN GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel ended a practice call-up of thousands of military reserves two hours ahead of schedule today. Officials pronounced the exercise a success.

The 24-hour drill was programmed to end at noon. But officials reported things went so smoothly that some of the reservists were sent home after three hours, and a communique announced the operation was finished at 10 a.m.

The exercise began at noon Sunday with an announcement over the state radio and the broadcast of such mobilization code words as "Samson and Delilah" and "Slaughtered Chicken."

Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Mordechai Gur told newsmen the call-up had been "quite a success, much better than we hoped for."

He said the turnout by reservists was "almost 100 per cent," and the exercise almost ended 12 hours after it started because "it went so well."

Gur said the call-up "was very important to us" in case of real war with the Arabs.

The only trouble reported during the exercise was with civilian transport. Radio Israel reported many buses in the cities were mobilized to transport the troops, and long lines formed at bus stops.

The declared purpose of the practice alert, which was well publicized in advance, was to test the reserves' readiness for another surprise Arab attack like the one which caught the government and the military command off guard last October.

It was not known how many of the reserves, estimated to total more than 300,000, were called up. Radio Israel said there were "tens of thousands."

Despite Israeli claims that the operation was entirely peaceful and just for practice, the neighboring Arabs accused Israel of war preparations.

The Cairo magazine Rose el Youssef said the operation was a preliminary to occupation of southern Lebanon.

In Damascus, Al Baath, the newspaper of Syria's ruling Socialist Baath party, repeated the charge that Israel was preparing to launch a new Middle East war. It said Syria was prepared to cope with any surprise attack.

Miss Jean House Is Wed Sunday Afternoon

BETHEL—Miss Jean Clark House of Bethel and Jerry Trumon Gibson of Ayden were united in marriage Sunday at four o'clock in the afternoon in the Bethel United Methodist Church. The Rev. Ellis Bedsworth, pastor of the church, officiated at the ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. William Earl House of Bethel. Parents of the bridegroom are Mrs. William Edison Gibson of Ayden, and the late Mr. Gibson.

Mrs. Robert Harold Staton, organist, and Mrs. Mary Wells Andrews, vocalist, both of Bethel, presented the wedding music. Mrs. Andrews sang "The Lord's Prayer," "If God Left Only You" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a formal gown of silken organza over peau de soie. The bodice was styled with a neckline of Venice lace appliques and an accenting ruffle of Brussels lace. The sheer yoke and the natural waist of lace appliques featured lace ruffles giving a V-effect to the bodice. The long, fitted sleeves were embellished with lace appliques and were edged with ruffles of Brussels lace. The A-line skirt flowed into an attached chapel length train. Venice lace appliques enhanced the front of the skirt which was bordered with a wide ruffle of Brussels lace.

Her headpiece was chapel length mantilla, embellished with lace appliques, attached to a Camelot cap. She carried a cascade of white roses, stephanotis, and miniature carnations.

Miss Allison House, sister of the bride, of Greenville was maid of honor. She was attired in a maize formal gown of flocked nylon over peau de soie. The gown was styled with an empire waist and a halter back. The long shirt fell from the waist ending in a ruffle. Satin buttons and satin ribbon encircling the waist were featured accents on the dress. The butterfly sleeve styled jacket, closing with a satin button, completed the attire. She wore a maize picture hat and her flowers were a nosegay of asters, roses, daisies, and miniature carnations.

Bridesmaids were Kathryn House, sister of the bride, Jackie Carson, Deborah Weeks, Judy Carson and Debbie Purvis, all of Bethel, Hilda Woolard of Greenville, and Mrs. Beth Matthews Craft of Hamilton. Their gowns, headpieces, and bouquets were similar in design and color to those worn by the maid of honor.

Miss Leslie House of Greenville, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a dress fashioned similar to those of the bridesmaids and carried a basket of mixed summer flowers.

Capt. Emmitt Edison Gibson of Fayetteville served as best man for his brother. Groomsmen were Leonard Gibson of Rolesville, brother of the bridegroom, Bob Harrington and Allen Wilson of Ayden. Ronnie Craft of Hamilton, George Booth of Buxton, Kent Allen of Wilson, and Phillip Blackwell of Charlotte.

Mrs. Edward Earl Dennis of Bethel directed the wedding.

The bride is a rising senior in the School of Nursing at East Carolina University.

The bridegroom attended the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and East Carolina University. Presently he is employed at the Ayden Country Club.

Following a wedding trip to Florida, the couple will be at home in Greenville.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. House, parents of the bride, entertained at a reception in honor of the bride and groom and their wedding party in the church reception room.

Festivities honoring the couple and their attendants included a wedding breakfast Sunday, at the Ramada Inn, Greenville, hosted by friends of the bride's family.

On Saturday evening a rehearsal dinner at the Ramada Inn was given by Mrs. William Clayton House, paternal grandmother of the bride, Dr. and Mrs. Michael House, uncle and aunt of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Leedy Goodall and Mr. and Mrs. Winfred Thigpen, great uncles and aunts of the bride.

Following the dinner, Mrs. William Edison Gibson, mother of the bridegroom, and other family friends entertained at a dance in the ballroom.

On Friday, the bridesmaids and close friends of the bride entertained at a bridesmaids luncheon at the Ramada Inn.

Boys In The Girls' Vick-Bryant Vows Exchanged Dorm-Another Vote In Kinston On Sunday

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Indeed the letter from the girls in the coed dorm who protested the presence of men in their bathing and toilet facilities was not put on.

I am a psychotherapist who has counseled college students since 1942, and the bizarre situation they describe is common.

Coed living is creating severe emotional problems for college men and women. Impotence in college men is now a common symptom—the result of a culture that pushes sexual performance. Some girls panic because of sexual pressure; others become overly aggressive.

It is totally unfair to pay for a double room in a girls' dorm and then end up sharing it with a girl and her boyfriend. The only way to escape being an observer to the roommate's sexual activities is to find some other place to sleep.

I have had this same picture from male and female students from every coeducational residential college or university that has been represented in my patient load.

The schools are doing harm and injustice not only to the minority, but also to the students whose vote is regarded as an order by the administration. This is one reason psychiatric treatment of college students has increased in volume. The universities need to hear a voice of sanity. Abby, please take a serious look at this widespread problem.

DEAR CONCERNED: I am looking, but it's sometimes hard to believe what I see. For example, this letter from a Washington (D.C.) STAR-NEWS reader:

DEAR ABBY: I am surprised by the amazing stupidity you exhibit in some of your answers. The most recent deals with those two modest girls in Scripps Women's college, who are offended by the sight of men sharing their sleeping and bathing facilities.

As I understand it, the male 24-hour visitation policy was established three years ago by a majority vote, and is upheld by the college authorities. Any girl who wishes to make other living arrangements can do so, therefore the ladies who are offended have no legitimate complaint.

Your comments were an even greater surprise when you suggest that 98% of the dorm find another place to live! Someone in your profession should be able to offer more practical advice rather than convert the entire dorm into a nursery of two.

I would like to commend that college for having the integrity and maturity to provide its students with their needs—whatever they may be.

Will you publish my letter? Or don't you believe in free speech?

THE GREAT DEFENDER

DEAR DEFENDER: It is my view that if college students want to play house, it's not the business of the college to provide them with bedrooms for that purpose. Let them make their own arrangements—off campus.

I believe that in a WOMEN'S residential college, girls who wish to sleep and shower with men should suffer the inconvenience of applying for a living situation compatible with THEIR lifestyle, even if they are in the majority.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Cal. 90212, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Future Steak May Be Soybeans

By JEANNE LESEME
UPI Food Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Soybeans may be the steak of our future.

They are attracting so much interest already that the U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has just published a bulletin telling home cooks how to prepare, store and serve them.

The bulletin, "Soybeans in Family Meals," deals with dried, canned and fresh, green soybeans and soy products.

Only vegetable-type soybeans should be used for cooking. They are somewhat larger and milder in flavor than field beans, the bulletin says. The field type are used for oil and commercial flour production.

Fresh soybeans are ready for harvest when the pods are bright green and plump. Each pod contains only two beans. The pod itself is inedible and the beans contain a substance that can be somewhat toxic if they are eaten raw or undercooked.

Soybeans are comparable with steak because their protein content is about twice as high as that of meat and fish, about one and one-half times that of cheese, and three times as great as eggs. They also are rich in vitamins and minerals. Soy products such as flour, bean curd, grits, milk, sprouts and the mash or pulp remaining from homemade soy milk also are concentrated sources of protein, vitamins and minerals.

The USDA bulletin contains only 42 recipes but about 200 more are available in "The Proteins-for-Pennies Cookbook" by John Woods (Wyden). Woods is a Texan who grew up in soybean farm country. His recipes range from soups, chili and other main dishes to baked goods and desserts. The best in the last two categories are those with spices and other highly flavored ingredients that help mask a beany flavor.

Two other recently published cookbooks with good budget ideas and recipes are ethnic.

"The Cuisine of Armenia" by Sonia Uvezian (Harper & Row) covers a school of cookery too little known and appreciated in the United States. While lamb is the principal meat, beef can be substituted in most recipes, if desired.

There are many meat stretching stews and stuffed vegetables. Miss Uvezian makes wide use of protein rich nuts and beans and flavorful, highly nutritious cracked wheat. The source list and glossary are excellent.

Among eight new Chinese cookbooks, the one best suited to new cooks and budgeters is "Chinese Cooking for Beginners" by Alice Schryver (Dodd, Mead). Ingredients are relatively cheap and the protein content of main dishes is more in line with Chinese custom than American. The servings of meat, fish, seafood and poultry are smaller than westerners usually demand, or need.

"Better Wines for Less Money" by Nathaniel Korshin (Stein and Day), and "How to Eat Better and Spend Less" by Eddy Rice (Reston) are worth a look if you like wine with meals or have a home garden.

Neither contains recipes. And Korshin's taste in wines may not necessarily agree with yours. But his excellent descriptions of wine types should help beginning oenophiles make up their own minds.

Rice's book contains several valuable charts covering harvesting, usage and storage of herbs, and a planting guide, including midsummer and early

NEW YORK (UPI) — Consumer resistance in the United States and Japan is helping cut the price of frozen fish and shrimp.

Wholesale prices already have dropped sharply on a wide variety of products. The savings are expected to show up at the retail level within the next month or two, say industry spokesmen.

We've never had such a big backlog before, says Henry R. McEvoy, marketing specialist for the National Marine Fisheries Service, Gloucester, Mass.

The 424 million pounds of frozen fish and seafood now in cold storage is 57 per cent greater than the 270 million pounds on hand a year ago, McEvoy added in an interview here.

Even king and snow crabmeat are in good supply, he said.

Per capita consumption of fish had shot up to twelve and a half pounds during the beef boycott last summer, after hovering around 11 pounds for many years.

This led to increased imports. But when the meat boycott succeeded and prices dropped, U. S. consumers went back to their old shopping habits and supplies began to pile up in warehouses.

McEvoy said only 36 million pounds moved out to stores, restaurants and institutions during the first six months this year, compared with 145 million pounds during the same period in 1973.

McEvoy also said retail prices have remained high partly because of the cost of doing business. Prices are up on everything from boat construction to fishing gear and insurance for fishermen and their vessels.

He emphasized that the decreases will apply only to frozen products. And they do not apply to such frozen items as lobsters, clams and the largest size shrimp, which are used primarily by restaurants and institutions.

He said all fresh fish and seafood remain scarce, and prices correspondingly high. But frozen fillets of flounder, Greenland turbot, whiting, ocean perch, cod and pollock are in good supply and breaded fish sticks are in very good supply. All should be comparatively better buys than they have been for quite a while, he added.

The drop in frozen shrimp prices began in Japan as a chain reaction, says the National Fisheries Institute, Washington, D. C.

The Japanese are enormous importers and consumers of shrimp but even they cut back on imports and consumption when the yen was devalued as a result of the Arab oil boycott and skyrocketing oil prices, an institute spokesman said.

Shrimp earmarked for Japan then became available to the U.S. market instead. This, combined with a big catch during the 1974 season that began in April, dropped wholesale prices to only 92 cents a pound by July for small shrimp, and only $1.40 per pound for medium ones.

Lady Wishes To Drive

OLDBURY, England (WNS)—Doreen Barnett, 39, was not content as conductor of a city bus here. So she spent $100 at driving school and passed her test with flying colors. But then the bus drivers, all male, voted to ban women drivers. "My husband Tony was among the voters," said Mrs. Barnett, who could get a driving job in other cities but won't. "I prefer the bunch of blokes we've got here," she said. "I'll just educate them into seeing this from a lady's point of view."

As a result, many supermarket chains are expected to feature specials on frozen shrimp in coming weeks.

But the dramatic price change is not expected to occur in restaurants, which use mostly large shrimp, because the 1974 catch of this size was not too good.

More Freedom In Using Funds

Greenville will be in line for $7.63 million in federal funds during the next six years, under a law enacted last week.

President Ford signed a bill allocating funds under the Housing and Community Development Act. Some $214.947 million will come to 38 North Carolina cities from the funds.

It is still too soon to determine exactly how the funds can be used but generally they will be to continue urban renewal, neighborhood improvement and housing rehabilitation programs. This has been done in the past with grant and loans for urban renewal programs.

The difference in the new program and those of the past seems to be that the municipalities will have more freedom in planning their programs, just as they do with revenue sharing funds. The city planners will also have an accurate accounting of the amount of money that will be available to them over the six year period. In the past application has been made for individual projects with no certainty that they would always be funded.

Greenville has fared well in this allocation of housing funds; in fact it has fared as well as many cities of much larger population in North Carolina. The reason is that extensive programs have been carried on here in the past and the allocations were based on previous performance by the municipalities.

With $7.63 million available our city should be able plan creatively for improving the areas of Greenville which have not yet been brought up to standard through the various urban renewal and housing programs which have been available. We need to plan carefully for the use of these funds and use them to the greatest advantage.

Most Dieters Would Consider Battle Won

President Ford's physician, Dr. William Lukash, says the president is in fine physical shape.

The only problem the president has is a little extra weight. Dr. Lukash wants the president to cut his calories to drop from his present 200 ¾ pound weight to 195 pounds.

Most dieters we know would consider the battle won, if they dropped to within five pounds of an ideal weight.

NLRB Feels Strain

By CHARLES E. FLINNER
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor unions are girding for a major campaign to organize 1.7 million employees of nonprofit hospitals and nursing homes who will have collective bargaining rights for the first time under a new federal law effective Aug. 26.

They are among the largest groups of workers previously excluded from the jurisdiction of the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB), and the already overburdened NLRB is awaiting their expected mass entry into the ranks of organized labor with apprehension.

"We are not far from the saturation point," Edward B. Miller, NLRB chairman since 1970, said in an interview.

"There are many more cases than our machinery was ever designed to handle."

"For example, an employee fired for engaging in union activity will have to wait today for a minimum of two years to get his job back and his back pay, if the case goes through the entire NLRB process. This is an inequity."

Several AFL-CIO affiliates pushed for the legislation which former President Richard M. Nixon signed late in July extending collective bargaining rights to the employees of nonprofit health care institutions.

Now ready to organize them are the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, fastest growing union in the country; the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union's hospital division, and the Service Employees and Laborers Union.

Miller's agency, with 2,370 employees and a $60 million budget, grinds its way through 30,000 unfair labor charges each year, along with 9,000 employee elections on union representation.

Every working day, an average of 2,000 men and women vote in NLRB elections. An average of 100 unfair labor charges are filed daily, and Miller and the four other members of the board decide an average of six cases a day.

It could be worse. The agency's general counsel staff settles 90 per cent of the complaints out of court before they reach the board.

Nonetheless, the NLRB as an independent government referee of labor-management disputes provides the U.S. Court of Appeals with more business than any other federal agency.

Part of the problem is that the NLRB lacks authority to enforce its decisions, which have no legal impact until an appeals court orders them into effect.

More than two years ago, Miller, in an article in Nation's Business, warned that the NLRB "creaks and groans more and more, and if we don't want to let it fall apart...it's high time for a thoroughgoing overhaul."

A year ago, Miller told an American Bar Association labor group that if it failed to step in and propose reforms, "you will by default be tacitly entrusting to some unknown but predictably inept and partisan politicians the future of the judiciary in the field of your professional expertise."

Miller would like to see the NLRB general counsel take cases directly before "somebody who has authority to enforce it."

Land-Use On Rocky Road

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—The 1974 General Assembly left undone a major piece of proposed land use regulation and management when it passed after long debate the Coastal Area Management Act, but left hanging fire the companion Mountain Area Management proposal.

Both proposals were originally packaged together by legislative managers, then split into two separate pieces in order to achieve the possible—slim acceptance of at least the coastal measure.

The net result now, however, is that the mountain protection proposal is in jeopardy for a number of reasons—the principal one being that there is no state geared up to push for its passage.

Other Problems

A host of other problems will become clear as the 1975 General Assembly begins to tackle its agenda, including the fact that one of the two principal sponsors, State Sen. William W. Staton of Sanford is retiring. Additionally, a host of new lawmakers will be coming into service without familiarity with the background of the land management movement, environmental protection pressures have lost a lot of steam in the wake of the energy crunch, and the likelihood that organized opposition will appear from western Carolina counties.

But the absence of a concerned state agency must assume the most important role in what many consider a shaky position for the mountain proposal.

Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr., has staked himself out as strongly in favor of the movement toward land management, and some expect him to take steps to correct this shortcoming in the near future.

A history of the Coastal Area Management Act helps to spotlight the key work of a governmental agency in securing passage of legislation.

During the 1974 session as the proposal neared floundering, officials from the Office of Marine Affairs as well as their supervisors in the Department of Natural and Economic Development—up to and including Secretary James E. Harrington—jumped into the breach to lobby intensively for the legislation.

Behind the scenes, agency officials zeroed in on the people opposing passage, and politicized long and hard to overcome the organized resistance.

10 Years Ago

But even further back than that—as far back as 1965—the groundwork was being built by state officials; commercial fisheries law revision regarding ownership of submerged lands; sand dune protection laws; dredging equipment registration was required in 1967 to help monitor dredge and fill activities; permits required in 1967 to help monitor dredge and fill

But even further back than that—as far back as 1965—the groundwork was being by state officials; commercial fisheries law revision regarding ownership of submerged lands; sand dune protection laws; dredging equipment registration was required in 1967 to help monitor dredge and fill activities; permits required in 1969 for dredging or putting up signs or buildings in navigable waters, and a study set up aimed at coastal land management legislation.

Continuing the legislative history, in 1971 the legislature approved funds for beach erosion protection, and allowed processing dredging or filling application on coastal wetlands with an eye to regional impact rather than isolated applicants; the study group came back in 1972 with the first Coastal Area Management Act which went to the 1973 General Assembly, which held it over for a series of public hearings across the state and adoption of a new bill which eventually passed in 1974.

Thus, the Coastal Area Management Act is really the result of more than a decade of intense work by state agencies, the General Assembly, and evolution of public policy.

Meanwhile, no similar history of background activity exists for the proposal Mountain Area Management bill, and no significant and central state work is aimed at promoting passage of that measure.

The INSIDE REPORT

New Middle East War?

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—Private word from a top American diplomat to a Western ambassador last week that Israel "has shut the door" to further withdrawal from the Syrian Golan Heights brought this instant rejoinder: "If so, that means war."

The exchange is symbolic of the sudden descent from soaring optimism that marked every step of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's brilliant shuttle diplomacy following the Arab-Israeli war of last October.

Indeed, a mood approaching black despair has now taken hold in all Arab capitals since Kissinger's last Middle East success—pinning down the partial Israeli withdrawal from Syria's Golan Heights on May 31. Since then, the abrupt change of Presidents in Washington, coupled with U.S. impotence regarding the Turkish-Greek war on Cyprus, has led Israel into bold new diplomatic intransigence.

Although it is far too early to prove them right, the Arabs fear that President Ford, long a champion of Israel as a Republican congressional leader, will be less hardnosed with the Israelis than was Richard Nixon.

Because of his extreme political weakness at home, a desperate President Nixon this year needed diplomatic successes in the Middle East as fast as Kissinger could get them and so leaned hard against Israel. Mr. Ford is under no such pressure.

Moreover, with the 1974 congressional elections only two months away, the President might be understandably reluctant to use two-fisted pressure against Israel this fall.

This at least partially explains Prime Minister Ithak Rabin's new hard line in Jerusalem. Rabin's government has now systematically closed off every bargaining opportunity with the Arabs save one: a second-stage Israeli withdrawal from the Egyptian Sinai peninsula. But that single opportunity has been tightly closed by the Arabs themselves.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat is under overwhelming pressure from other Arab capitals not to make any new withdrawal agreement with Israel, on grounds that the Palestinian issue must be dealt with first. That Arab pressure would threaten Sadat with political overthrow if he went ahead, as he would prefer, with a new Israeli withdrawal agreement.

Thus, Israel's desire to negotiate with Egypt is meaningless. Sadat's hands are tied.

On the other two fronts, Rabin himself is now taking a muscular position: the Golan Heights will remain an inseparable part of Israel; and Israel's "right" to settlements in Judea and Samaria, the west bank of the Jordan River that Israel seized from Jordan in 1967, goes back to "ancient times." In other words, Israel will not make even the token six-mile withdrawal from the river that King Hussein demands as the price of attending the ever more distant Geneva conference.

This stalemate, which many experts believe will lead to a far more dangerous war—bloodier, longer and more apt to involve the superpowers—than last October's, has continued despite the parade of Israeli

Strength For Today

A COVERED SUN-DIAL

The American evangelist, Phillips Brooks, tells the story of an African tribe, who, having received the gift of a sun-dial, immediately built a roof over it to protect the sacred object from the elements. Without realizing it, of course, in their desire to preserve the sacredness of the sun-dial, and in their unwillingness to use it, they had made it worthless.

Some people treat their religion the same way. Religion is to be respected, praised, defended; but not used. It is something to be kept in the church, and not taken out into the world. Like the African tribesmen who built a roof over their sun-dial, people who treat religion in this way destroy it.

A religion that cannot be taken out into the world and used amid its daily problems is a flimsy and useless ornament. The religion that has to be kept under the roof of a church is as useful to men seeking direction in life as is a sun-dial under a roof to men who want know the time of day.

When Everything Goes Wrong

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The trouble with the stock market, said the broker, is that it has fallen under the domination of Murphy's Law, which states that when trouble comes everything that can go wrong does go wrong.

"It is the opposite of St. Paul's idea of everything working together for the good," said Lucien Hooper, vice president of Thomson & McKinnon Auchincloss Kohlmeyer Inc.

What can break the spell? He listed these:

More Arab oil money might come to the market on the theory that the dollar is the best of the world's major currencies.

Rising commodity prices might decline.

"Then we are approaching Labor Day, which often in the past has marked a turning point in economic and investment trends," mused Hooper.

But Hooper and other market men must suspect that another diabolical law holds the market captive. It is the law of broken promises and frustrated hopes. It states that you shouldn't hope because it won't come true.

Market men consoled themselves for many months with the hope that once Watergate was behind the nation the stock market would move forward. It didn't.

Then, brokers waited for inflation to crack. Reports, based more on hope than fact, related to anyone who would listen that food prices were bound to drop.

The Agriculture Department buried that hope with its drought report.

With that news the market took another dive, plunging through the 700-point "barrier" on the Dow Jones Industrial Average like lead through tissue paper, which is about the strength of some blue chip stocks today.

As it begins this week, the market now has very little hope left for any sudden economic changes of sufficient strength to turn it around. Each day the bleak reality settles lower over "the street."

Market men know, for example, that no pronouncement of President Ford is going to dispel the forces that have driven investors from stocks and into the credit market, where their cash earns unprecedented dividends.

These are the forces that also have driven American industry from the stock markets, where some of them can't raise a dime, into the offices of the bankers, who have the money to lend but at devastatingly high rates.

Monetary restraint is chief ingredient of those forces. It reduces the relative supply of money. Interest rates rise, siphoning off funds.

In theory, this high cost of money should discourage spending plans, but it hasn't.

The last faint hope of the summer is likely to expire with another rise in the prime lending rate. Then, the few remaining optimists will begin talking up the year-end rally.

The rest might pray to St. Paul.

Udall Probes Presidential Odds

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic Rep. Morris K. Udall is spending his weekends traveling the country and scouting his 1976 presidential odds. "There's a great vacuum out there," the Arizona congressman said in an interview. "Nobody knows what Kennedy is going to do. It's sort of wide open."

So, more than a dozen weekends so far Udall has set out for some new section of the country to make himself known to local Democrats and size up his prospects.

He said it's too early to tell what they are.

"This is sort of stage one, seeing if the effort is worthwhile, he said.

"I spent two days in New Hampshire and I got a good reception there," he said. "Of course, that's next door to Kennedy."

The name of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts comes up a lot when Udall talks about his exploratory presidential effort. He says that if Kennedy does not seek the Democratic presidential nomination it is open to all comers.

But even if Kennedy does not run, Udall is competing against better-known Democratic prospects and at least two of them already are spending more money and traveling harder than he is.

Sens. Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota have fundraising committees financing heavier travel schedules around the country so they can decide whether to announce candidacies.

Kennedy has said publicly he would like to be president but that doesn't mean he'll run.

Sens. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine and Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota express no interest but such well known names can't be counted out.

All those men are senators and one of the premises of Udall's effort is that there is no reason why a House member with the same legislative background and leadership talent can't be president.

Udall said he believes House Democrats could give him a solid power base if they united behind him because of their influence with local delegate-selecting Democrats across the country.

REP. MORRIS UDALL

He is aware of the difficulty of getting such unity in the criss-cross of Democratic politics, he said.

Tests Ended By Knievel

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (AP) — Stuntman Evel Knievel says he won't launch another test sky-cycle across the Snake River before making his promised Sept. 8 jump.

Knievel watched on Sunday as the second sky-cycle tested in the past year plunged to the bottom of the 500-foot-deep canyon in southern Idaho.

A helicopter later retrieved the craft from the water.

The test firing ended when a parachute malfunctioned at about 2,000 feet. The rocket-powered vehicle nosedived into the canyon.

"The combined cost of both vehicles which have now gone into the Snake River is almost $500,000," Knievel said. "This makes the Snake River the richest river in the state of Idaho. In fact, there is a rumor that all the trout are turning to gold."

The first sky-cycle landed in the canyon last November and was not recovered until last month.

Sunday's launch came without fanfare or advance warning.

A spokesman for the Knievel stunt said a third sky-cycle was being completed in Sacramento, Calif.

and Arab leaders to Washington the past few weeks.

Indeed the Ford administration has not yet finally decided where Israel should next be pressured to move: the west bank, the Golan Heights or a combination of both.

To prepare for another war, Israel is now negotiating with reluctant Pentagon officials for a vast increase in its military arsenal: $1 billion in "urgent" aid, on top of the $2.2 billion sent during the October war, plus a separate package of $1.5 billion a year for each of the next five years.

This is supposed to balance the huge Soviet arms shipments to Syria. But many military experts here feel it would give Israel too much potential for long-run military operations the U.S. would be powerless to stop.

Yet, threatened disintegration of the southern arm of NATO in Greece and Turkey gives new substance to Israel's arms demands. With the U.S., the United Nations and NATO itself unable to stop the Turkish invasion of Cyprus, Israel has gained an important new argument to support its demands for defense against the Arabs.

Only personal intervention by President Ford, convincing Israel that he will not relax U.S. pressure for territorial concessions and that he stands as firmly behind his beleaguered Secretary of State as Nixon did, can now arrest the alarming decline in once bright hopes for a settlement.

FRAMINGHAM, Mass. (AP) — "Sexual intercourse is prohibited, but that's not to say it's not engaged in. We'd be pretty naive if we said that. But it's discreet," says Peter Bishop. He is the acting superintendent of the nation's first coed prison.

"When the prison went coed (in March, 1973), some people saw the institution turning into a 24-hour orgy. But they were laymen's fantasies," Bishop said.

He added that coeducation has brought some problems to the prison, "but they are much more healthy kinds of problems, problems of inter-relationships between men and women."

"If nothing else, this being the most humane way to treat people is still sufficient reason for it, even if the recidivism rate does not change one iota," Bishop said. He noted that no figures have been compiled yet on how many in the coed program have returned to jail.

Found Eight Fire Victims

BERKELEY SPRINGS, W.Va. (AP) — Eight bodies have been recovered from the charred ruins of a downtown hotel, officials said.

Authorities believe a total of 13 persons died in the blaze which destroyed the Washington House Hotel and a number of other buildings here early Sunday morning.

"We know who all of them are (the dead)," said R. Randall Hall, the assistant state fire marshal. "At least we have the names of those who should have been in the rooms, but we won't make positive identification until we get them all out."

Rescue workers spent Sunday night searching for bodies and for clues to what may have started the pre-dawn fire in the four-story structure, believed to be about 75 years old. Damage was estimated at $400,000.

More than 100 firemen from West Virginia, Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania fought the fire.

Six firemen, one observer and two hotel guests were given emergency room treatment at Morgan County War Memorial Hospital, officials said. Another firemen and six guests were admitted to the hospital, but two of those were released later Sunday.

J. Richard Hawvermale, Berkeley County planner, said 23 persons were in the building at the time the fire broke out and 10 made it out safely.

Frinks Moving To Prison Unit

MAURY, N.C. (AP) — Veteran civil rights leader Golden Frinks is in jail again, this time to serve a six-months sentence growing out of a racial protest last year.

Frinks, 54, state field secretary for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, has been to jail many times as a result of his civil rights activities.

He was taken into custody again last Wednesday after an appeals judge ruled he could find no error in Frinks' latest conviction—for blocking a city street during a protest in Chowan County.

He was brought to the state Department of Correction's processing center at Maury in Greene County. He will be transferred to another prison unit to serve out the term, the longest he has ever received.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market continued lower today, getting no relief from inflation and high interest rates.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 10.56 to 676.24, and losers outnumbered gainers 634 to 368 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was quiet. Volatile golds fell with the market in response to lower prices in European markets.

News that First National Bank of Chicago planned a prime-rate announcement later today helped depress the Dow. The bank's current prime is 12 per cent.

F.W. Woolworth Co., a blue-chip stock, off 1/4 at 11 3/4, reported a decline in second-quarter earnings from 45 cents a share to 38 cents a share. The company blamed higher interest rates, claiming an increase in interest charges of nearly $12 million over the first six months of 1973.

Homestake Mining, the Big Board volume leader, declined 4 1/4 to 56 3/4.

Among the blue chips, International Paper was up 1/2 to 41 1/4; Union Carbide, was off 1/4 to 41 1/4; and General Electric was unchanged at 35 1/4.

The NYSE's 11 a.m. composite index of all its listed common stocks was down .14 to 37.41.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index showed a .07 loss at 71.61.

The Amex volume leader was Texas International, down 1/4 to 3 1/2.

School Bd. Will Meet Tonight

The regular meeting of the Greenville City School Board will take place tonight beginning at 8 p.m. at Agnes Fullilove School.

The meeting, normally held the third Monday of each month, was delayed one week for the month of August.

"WE'RE ON THE ENERGY TEAM!"

"I'm conserving energy in the home."

Housewives throughout America are helping use the nation's energy supplies wisely by using appliances more efficiently... cooking more efficiently... turning off unnecessary lights. People at home, along with conscientious motorists and other savers, are making available energy go further than last year.

"I'm drilling more oil wells."

Based on the early months, about 9% more oil and gas wells already have been completed this year than last. And about 25% more oil rigs are active. In a couple of years, oil companies will be able to refine a lot more products. But demand continues to grow.

There's still a big job to do—let's keep working together.

Miller Wins Sixth Title

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — "I've really been in contention, in position to win, seven times this year — and I've won six," Johnny Miller said.

"You shouldn't win more than one out of three.

"It's a joke, really, a joke." But Miller, who scored his sixth victory of the season by a record 19-under par score in the rich Westchester Golf Classic, was dead serious Sunday when he said he would skip next year's PGA national championship if he is not allowed to use his regular tour caddy — Andy Martinez. "If I can't use my caddy, I definitely will not play in the PGA," Miller said after his final round 67, five-under-par, had provided him with a two-stroke victory over journeyman Don Bies, with Tom Weiskopf and Jack Nicklaus once against frustrated, successful challengers.

Miller's 269 total was a record for the 6,614-yard Westchester Country Club course. He collected $50,000 from the total purse of $250,000, pushed his leading money winning total to $255,567 and, with six titles, has won twice as many tournaments as any other player on the tour this season.

Decision Expected Soon

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—A World Football League promoter says a decision may come this week on a franchise for Charlotte. However, major hurdles remain before the matter is settled.

Like money. And a stadium. The WFL has flirted with Charlotte for months, first with hints that the old Toronto franchise might be moved here and lately with prospects of another club, possibly the Detroit Wheels.

The league swains have generally found Charlotte a coy prospect, willing to offer little more than an aging 24,000-seat stadium and good will.

Last Friday, promoter Upton Bell met with Mayor John Belk, one of several recent meetings between league and city officials. Afterward, Belk said the city would consider reducing stadium rental costs and allowing a club to operate concessions.

"Anybody that would bring a team here would be good for Charlotte," Belk said. However, there was no indication that Belk, one of the wealthiest men in the city, or any other Charlotte businessmen were willing to invest heavily in the fledgling league.

Earlier, Bell had indicated he wanted local investors to put up about $400,000 for the franchise. After Friday's meeting, he told reporters he might seek investors from outside the Charlotte area. He added a decision on locating might be reached within a week.

A suitable stadium also remains a problem. Memorial stadium seats some 24,000, hardly enough for a money-making pro football operation. However, Bell and WFL officials have indicated that they might settle for a season or two in that stadium if they could receive a firm commitment on a new facility.

The Chamber of Commerce has appointed a committee to look into a new stadium, but Chairman Richard Thigpen Jr., says its recommendations will not be ready until around Christmas.

Estimates on the cost of a new stadium have run as high as $50 million.

"Somebody has to stand up as either an owner or as a partnership and there has to be something definite about a stadium before arrangements can be finalized," said Max Muhleman, WFL vice president.

Earlier this year, league officials discussed moving the Toronto franchise to Charlotte after the Canadian government's decision to restrict foreign sports encroachment.

However, the franchise wound up in Memphis, which had a 50,000-seat stadium.

League officials are hinting that if Charlotte passes up the chance for a team now, there might not be another opportunity. At least not at the current price.

"After this year it would be less likely for anyone to offer to bring in a team and play in a small stadium because the initial franchise cost would be much higher," said WFL Commissioner Gary Davidson.

This year a WFL franchise can be bought for less than $1 million, the league says. However, if the WFL is successful, the price could go up to $4.5 million. Some National Football Team franchises have sold for $16 million.

Bombers In Finals

Belvoir's Bombers moved into the finals of the semi-pro playoffs yesterday as they shut out Jollie, 4-0, on a two hitter by Leon Johnson.

Belvoir pushed over two in the first for all they needed and added one in the third and one in the sixth. Rufus Walston and Johnson each had two hits for Belvoir.

The Bombers will play the winner of the game between Hamilton and St. Peter for the championship.

Citadel Evaluating Heavily

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

"When you're 3-8, you do a lot of evaluating," Coach Bobby Ross said at the start of spring practice at The Citadel. So he and his staff did a lot of evaluating during spring practice.

They did more evaluating during recruiting. They have learned a lot about their personnel after a full year at the Charleston military school. They have recruited bigger, faster football players.

But it isn't likely to raise the Bulldogs out of the lower division of the Southern Conference—at least this year. Some people, in fact, feel they'll be fortunate to climb above seventh or eighth.

"There is no doubt that we're going to have a better team," Ross said. "But there is some doubt what this means in wins and losses. Our schedule is tougher, and the league keeps getting stronger."

"It will be comforting to go into the season knowing we'll have more experience and size, and a little more depth. I hope we can avoid a repetition of the injuries that killed us last season."

Ross emphasized that The Citadel must stay injury-free, must learn to win on the road, and must get over having to start 10 sophomores.

"We have the opportunity to better physically line up with our opponents this fall," he said. "Last year we had to rely on spirit, and attitude. This year, we are more physically capable."

The Citadel will return 10 offensive and seven defensive starters—at least as far as the terback in the spring, and threw two touchdowns passes to split end Mike Reiley during the final scrimmage. However, he'll move to running back in the fall drills, while Dotson, a quicker runner, resumes his quarterback slot from last year.

Doug Johnson had moved to the flanker position, while Preston Robinson, a sometime starter last year at guard, has moved to a tackle position, joining Parrish. Larry Horne replaced Brooks at a guard spot during the spring when the latter was hurt, and may have earned a starting position. Snow returns at the other guard spot, while Driggers will be the center.

Joining Dotson behind the line will be Andrew Johnson and Lanning. Johnson, who recovered from a early season injury, rushed for 537 yards on 90 carries and scored six touchdowns. Against Davidson, he carried for 240 yards on 37 carries, and showed he'll be an outstanding candidate for All-Conference honors.

The question mark on offense was the passing game. The Bulldogs could hit on only 81 or 202 passes. "The passing game looked improved in the spring. Dotson can throw and we have some young players who showed they can catch the ball," Ross said.

Defensively, The Citadel returns end Ellis Johnson, end Randy Johnson, linebacker Kemble Farr, linebacker Brian Ruff, halfbacks Chip Dellinger and Billy Long, and safety Bobby Spearman.

Ruff led the team in tackles, fumble recoveries and interceptions, and didn't even start until the fourth game.

Tackle Mike Dean, an alternate last year, is back to start this year, but is the only interior lineman with experience. Those who might get the guards and tackle job are Chuck Damon, Cary Vick, Rod Fry, David Sollazzo and Steve Harvey.

Billy Cannon and Ron Shelley also started sometimes at end, while Cecil Leedy got some experience at linebacker until he was hurt. Dellinger, the left defensive halfback, was injured in the spring, and Tony Kimbrell played there most of the rest of the time, and will challenge for that spot this fall.

Ralph Ferguson, a reserve defensive back last year, and the Bulldogs' kick return specialist, could end up with a starting secondary position, and an incoming freshman might also wind up there.

As far as the kicking game is concerned, Dontson handled the punting duties last year, and will continue to do so. Paul Tanguay will probably handle the placements and kickoffs.

The Citadel is bigger, they have more speed, and they have a year behind them in their current program. But whether they've come along enough to be a threat in the Southern still must be proven.

Vets Will Start For Cincinnati

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

The veterans will be back on the field tonight in what Cincinnati Coach Paul Brown considers sort of the second phase of a three-pronged season for the Bengals.

The Cinderella team, which last year turned a disastrous start into a Central Division crown in the American Football Conference, has won all three of its pre-season games this year—using primarily rookies. "I don't attach any importance to that record," said Brown, whose Bengals will take on the Detroit Lions, 1-2 this far, in tonight's nationally televised game.

For Brown, it's the beginning of "Bengals: Phase II," which will prepare the team for the start of the regular season in two weeks.

"We know everybody was short-handed and in the same boat earlier. The important aspect about those games is that we found some new people who are going to play for us," Brown said.

Brown said his Bengals now "have reached the point where we have to play the people we want in the lineup for the opener." A crowd of 50,000 is expected at Riverfront Stadium in Cincinnati for the 9 p.m., EDT, start.

In Monday's other exhibition games, the Chicago Bears play the Colts in Baltimore, and the Houston Oilers host the Atlanta Falcons.

The Minnesota Vikings crushed the Buffalo Bills 32-13 in Sunday's only exhibition game.

In Saturday exhibition action, Pittsburgh beat the New York Giants 17-7. Washington downed Cleveland 20-17. Denver defeated Green Bay 31-21, the Los Angeles Rams romped over Miami 31-13. New Orleans beat Dallas 16-7. Kansas City rolled over San Francisco 26-7. Philadelphia dumped Oakland 25-14, and New England beat San Diego 23-14.

In Sunday's action, quarterback Bob Berry threw a pair of touchdown passes in the third quarter and Minnesota's aging defense shut off a powerful Buffalo running attack, led last year by O.J. Simpson.

Berry, a reserve behind Fran Tarkenton, teamed with John Gilliam on a 44-yard scoring pass and Ed Marinaro on a 25-yard toss that gave the Vikings a 25-13 lead after three quarters. Berry, a 10-year veteran, completed 17 of 27 pass attempts for 228 yards.

Buffalo's O.J. Simpson, who set an NFL rushing record of 2,003 yards in 1973, gained 18 yards in seven carries for the Bills.

Malone Question Still Unsettled

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — The tug-of-war over Moses Malone continues, a week before the 6-foot-11 basketball star is scheduled to start classes as a freshman at the University of Maryland.

Working against a Sept. 1 deadline of the American Basketball Association, the Utah Stars have offered Malone a contract described by an ABA source as worth more than $1 million.

An early decision of the immediate playing future could be forthcoming this morning at Malone's home in Petersburg, Va.

An ABA spokesman said James Collier, new president of the Stars, was to meet at the Malone home along with Arnie Ferrin, the Utah general manager, and Morris "Bucky" Buckwalter, the team's director of player personnel.

Neither Malone nor his mother were available for comment Sunday night, but the Richmond Times-Dispatch quoted a friend of the family as saying that Malone told him, "I'm going to sign with the Stars."

The Utah officials conferred with Malone and his mother on Saturday, at a meeting also attended by two coaches from the Petersburg High School team Malone attended last year, and Howard White, an assistant to Maryland basketball coach Lefty Driesell.

Ferrin told The Associated Press, in a telephone interview from a Petersburg motel, that on Saturday night Buckwalter had driven to College Park to show the contract to Driesell.

Late Sunday night, before departing in his car for Petersburg, Driesell charged that the pro team was "not dealing in good faith" and was taking advantage of Malone.

Jim Kehoe, Maryland's athletic director, contended the Stars were going in "by the back door—secretly, with subterfuge and deceit—to prevail upon a high school graduate in this way."

But Ferrin argued that the Stars were indeed operating in good faith by showing the contract to Driesell in advance. "I wonder," Ferrin added, "if the schools who recruited in opposition to Maryland were shown all the tools in advance, the way we did. I didn't hear any charges of bad faith from those who lost out to Lefty."

Kehoe urged that the contract be scrutinized by an impartial observer to protect Malone's rights, and Ferrin said he agreed.

Driesell signed Malone to a national letter-of-intent after a long recruiting battle. The Terps have risen to prominence under Driesell, finishing as the No. 4 team last season, and supporters were hopeful Malone eventually would lead them to the national title.

According to Driesell, the proposed Utah contract would be for four years at $100,000 a year.

The 18-year-old also would receive a $25,000 bonus for signing and another $25,000 when he reported to training camp. In addition, his mother would be provided a home and $500 a month income.

Driesell said there was also an education clause, which the ABA spokesman described as the $60,000 fund to pay for any college work that Malone pursues in the future.

Sadecki Powers Mets Past Atlanta By 1-0

ATLANTA (AP) — It may have been a while since he had one, but Ray Sadecki says he always thinks "shutout."

The veteran Mets left-hander hurled a five-hitter and slammed in the game's only run Sunday as New York edged Atlanta 1-0.

"Sure I was thinking shutout in the ninth," said Sadecki, now 5-7. "I always think shutout. I think shutout at one-third of an inning. I really can't remember the last time I had a shutout, but I'm sure I've had a couple since I've been with the Mets."

The former St. Louis Cardinal's pitching rang down the curtain on a six-game winning streak for the Braves, who had taken 13 of their last 15 games.

For the Mets it was the end of a long dry spell—their first victory over Atlanta after eight straight losses this season.

Yogi Berra, the Mets' manager, said, "That was a hell of a game Ray pitched. He threw 20 pitches in the first inning, but only 94 for the entire game."

One of the five hits Sadecki surrendered was picked up by home-run king Hank Aaron in the ninth, a harmless single.

"When Hank Aaron was announced as a pinch hitter in the ninth and pitching coach Rube Walker came out to talk to me, I asked Rube, 'Who is this guy? Where did they get him? Do you know anything about him as a hitter?'" Sadecki joked.

"Seriously, I was trying to get the ball away and down against Aron—away, first, and down, second. If I couldn't get it away and down, I wanted to get it away and up. How do you pitch around a guy like Aaron?" Sadecki asked.

Vic Correll in the second, Dave Johnson and Leo Foster in the seventh and Paul Sasanova in the eighth were the others who got hits of Sadecki.

It was definitely the pitcher's night. He struck out four, three in the seventh, and walked two. In the fifth he hit a line-drive single to right, scoring teammate Jim Gosger.

Get A Scorecard To See Who's On Scoreboard

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

It's getting to the point these days where who's on the field isn't as important as who's on the scoreboard.

"It makes us want to win all that much more when we see the Reds' scores up there on the board," said Los Angeles slugger Jimmy Wynn after the Dodgers walloped the St. Louis Cardinals 9-3 Sunday to stay 2½ games ahead of Cincinnati in the National League West.

And what the Cardinals saw on the scoreboard was something equally challenging—and frustrating. They saw Pittsburgh beating San Diego 4-1 and 10-2 and saw themselves falling out of first place in the East, one-half game behind the Pirates.

"It's still early," insisted St. Louis Manager Red Schoendienst. "What do we have — 34 more games? I've said all along this thing is going to go down to the final week, maybe even the final day."

In Sunday's other National League games, the New York Mets nipped Atlanta 1-0, the Cincinnati Reds defeated Montreal 3-1, the Houston Astros blanked Philadelphia 5-0 and the San Francisco Giants beat Chicago 4-3.

Ron Cey led the Dodgers' 14-hit attack with a two-run homer in a five-run first inning and followed Wynn's two-run double with an RBI-single in the sixth.

Pirates 4-10, Padres 1-2

The Pirates walked all over San Diego in their stroll into first place. They drew two bases-loaded walks in the 12-inning opener, one of them Al Oliver's that broke a tie, and battered 10 Padres pitchers with 26 hits in the sweep.

Ed Kirkpatrick hit a tie-breaking two-run single in the second game's three-run seventh inning, then Manny Sanguillen hit a three-run double in a six-run ninth that locked up the Bucs' fourth straight victory.

Mets 1, Braves 0

Ray Sadecki singled for a run and gave up five Atlanta singles — none of them worth a run — in the Mets' victory that halted a six-game winning streak for the Braves.

Reds 3, Expos 1

Ken Griffey hit a pinch-single leading off the eighth inning, then stole second and dashed to third on catcher Barry Foote's wild throw. Terry Crowley, batting for pitcher Clay Kirby, walked and was replaced by pinch-runner Joe Morgan, who promptly stole second.

Pete Rose then singled to right for two runs. He later scored on Dan Driessen's sacrifice fly.

Yankees Find Pitcher; New Life In Race

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

Unknown pitcher Larry Gura struck another blow for the underdog and the New York Yankees had a new pitcher and a pennant race.

"If you can't beat the best you're hurting anyway," said Gura after Graig Nettles' run-scoring single in the ninth inning knocked off the California Angels 2-1. "So you might as well find out right away what's gonna happen."

The triumph, the Yankees' fifth straight, placed them five games behind the front-running Boston Red Sox in the American League East.

Elsewhere in the AL, the Oakland A's blasted Boston 7-0; the Detroit Tigers shaded the Texas Rangers 6-5; the Minnesota Twins tripped the Baltimore Orioles 5-1; the Kansas City Royals blanked the Milwaukee Brewers 2-0, and the Chicago White Sox took a pair of 8-5 games from the Cleveland Indians.

Gura, called up from Syracuse in the International League a week ago, was making his first American League appearance. He had spent much of his career in the minor leagues with Tacoma and Wichita and parts of four seasons with the Chicago Cubs in the National League.

Twins 5, Orioles 1

Ross Grimsley gave up hits in only one inning — the sixth — but that was too much for the Baltimore pitcher and the Orioles.

A bases-loaded double down the left-field line by Larry Hise ended a no-hit bid by Grimsley, and the Baltimore starter was gone before the inning ended.

Oakland 7, Boston 0

Manager Alvin Dark would love to let Ken Holtzman work once a week, if he can pitch a five-hitter each time out.

In an unusual move, Dark gave Holtzman six days off before taking on the Red Sox, who wouldn't mind if the Oakland left-hander rests whenever the A's hit town.

Tigers 6, Rangers 5

Gene Lamont hit a two-out game-tying home run in the bottom of the ninth inning, then Ron LeFlore doubled and Gary Sutherland singled him home, sending Detroit past Texas.

Steve Foucault, 6-7, who took over in the sixth with a 5-2 lead, was the loser. The victory went to reliever John Hiller, 15-8.

Royals 2, Brewers 0

Orlando Cepeda's tie-breaking ninth-inning single pushed a pitching duel into Bruce Dal Canton's victory column.

One-out singles by Amos Otis and Hal McRae chased Milwaukee starter Kevin Kobel, 610, who brought a three-hit shutout into the inning.

Chicago 8-8, Cleveland 5-5

Jorge Orta ripped four singles, two of them during a six-run third inning that carried the White Sox to a second-game victory for a sweep of their doubleheader against the Indians.

Chicago took the opener with

Housing Feels Money Squeeze

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Contractor John Mixon of Trimble, Mo., usually builds about 30 new houses a year. Right now, he doesn't have a single home under construction.

Mixon is caught in the tight money squeeze that has hit buyers, builders and bankers and caused some industry sources to forecast that Americans will have to change their way of life.

The Commerce Department reported recently that the number of new houses started in July was the smallest in more than four years. At the same time, the government raised the maximum allowable rate on federally insured home loans to a record 9.5 per cent.

An Associated Press survey showed that mortgage rates vary from area to area, depending on state laws. The amount of money needed for a down payment also varies, up to 40 per cent in some regions. Throughout the country, however, available houses are more expensive and loans are harder to get.

Mixon says there is very little construction going on right now. "There's not much point in even giving a prospect a price estimate on a house he wants to build unless he's got the financing pretty well lined up," he said.

Bankers say they don't have money to loan. They say deposits are down because investors can get more interest by putting their money in things like treasury notes than they can from savings accounts.

James T. Lynn, secretary of Housing and Urban Development, said on Sunday that the report that housing starts slipped to just under an annual rate of 1.34 million units in July, 16 per cent below June and the lowest figure since 1970, was disheartening.

Arthur Rheingold, a 32-year-old attorney with the New York State Public Service Commission, is one of the would-be home owners affected by the shortage of mortgage money. Rheingold makes "over $30,000" a year. His wife works as a graphic artist and together they have what Rheingold calls a "healthy" income. Since their marriage five years ago, they have rented the top two floors of a two-family house.

They spent six months searching for a home of their own and found one they liked — a $50,000 townhouse. The first bank they tried wouldn't give them a mortgage. "They wouldn't even consider it," Rheingold said.

The second bank finally agreed to a 25-year, $38,000 mortgage at 8½ per cent. A loan officer at the bank told Rheingold it was the first mortgage he had seen all year.

Rheingold was lucky; he got the money. Tom and Jane Sisolak have been looking for a house in the Fort Worth, Tex., area since spring. But they have been unable to find one they can afford or a mortgage at a rate they can pay. The Sisolaks, who are in their early 30s and have been married seven years, are still living in an apartment.

Walter Nolte, president of Carriage Estates Co., an Indianapolis, Ind., construction firm, echoed several bankers and builders when he said people are simply going to have to change their way of living.

"I think we're approaching the day when a young family no longer will be able to afford a single residential home," said Nolte. He predicted more people would buy condominiums. "That's not what the young buyers want," he said, "but it's all they can afford."

Fifteen Die In Accidents

By The Associated Press

Weekend traffic accidents in North Carolina claimed the lives of 15 persons, bringing the 1974 highway death toll to 952, compared with 1,197 during the corresponding period a year ago.

Leroy Everett Jr., 34, of Wilmington was killed Sunday when he was struck by a car while lying in a street inside the Wilmington city limits.

Ernest Eugene Faulkner, 73, of Henderson, died Sunday when his car ran off N.C. 43 near Greenville and overturned in a ditch.

Edmond D. Reece, 18, of Winston-Salem, was killed Sunday on N.C. 109 near Thomasville when his car left the road and overturned.

Curtis Allen Duke, 25, of Kingstree, S.C., and Paula Baker Dixon, 23, of Raleigh, were killed Saturday night when their car hit a utility pole in Atlantic Beach.

A two-car wreck Saturday on U.S. 1-A south of Sanford killed Sammy R. Smith, 19, of Lillington, and Rachel S. Hardy, 23, of Cameron.

Killed in other accidents were:

- Ida Narron Hocutt, 49, of Raleigh.
- Ernest Anthony Bruce, 22, of Greensboro.
- James Clarence Martin, 54, of Sanford.
- Latham Whitaker Williams, 45, of Rocky Mount.
- Hal Dickson Tedder, 22, of Whiteville.
- Samuel Lewis Tatum, 18, of Roseboro.
- Alvin Ray Myers, 44, of Thomasville.

Polarizing Fear Voiced

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Dallas Herring, chairman of the state Board of Education, says North Carolina's schools face a "grave danger" if business management-type policies polarize teachers and administrators into separate camps.

"I think the whole idea of management in education is irrelevant and wrong," Herring told a weekend meeting of the North Carolina Association of Classroom Teachers. The association is a division of the North Carolina Association of Educators.

Herring's remarks were in philosophical disagreement with the positions supported by A. Craig Phillips, state superintendent of public instruction.

Herring has previously said school teachers are professionals and should not be "managed as industry manages its assembly lines."

The remarks were the latest in a series of vocal differences between Herring and Phillips. Contacted after the speech, Phillips declined to comment on Herring's statements.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
© 1974, The Chicago Tribune

Q.1—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K76 ♣KQ882 ♦3 ♠A43
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♠ Dble. Pass 2 ♠
Pass Pass 2 ♠
Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. It is unsound tactics to contest the auction any further. Partner has little or nothing, for with any values he could have bid again over two spades. In addition, he might have only a four-card club suit.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AK1087 ♥J2 ♦AK943 ♣7
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Our choice is a jump shift to three diamonds. It is true that two diamonds, a change of suit by responder, is forcing and, therefore, might be considered a proper bid. However, our experience shows that failure to jump now, thus showing a strong diamond suit, could lead to later complications.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q854 ♥Q ♦QJ10652 ♣A8
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass 1 ♥ Dble. Pass ?
What do you bid?

A.—Three diamonds. Considering your previous pass, a jump response to the double is indicated. For the moment you should prefer diamonds to spades. Though the jump is not forcing, if partner bids again, you can introduce spades, conveying the message that your second suit is a rather scraggly four-card suit.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠QAKQJ1076 ♦Q54 ♣K2
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass Pass ?
What do you open?

A.—While an opening bid of one heart is technically correct, our vote is for four hearts. Partner's pass rules out any hopes of slam, and since our defensive values are limited, the preemptive opening might shut out an opposing spade contract.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠9 ♥QJ63 ♦KJ52 ♣A965
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass
2 ♠ Dble. Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Pass. Partner's double on the second round is for penalties—he could have doubled one spade had he wanted to hear from you. Your substantial values will come as a pleasant surprise to partner, so you can look forward to a handsome profit.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠10762 ♥AQ6 ♦AKQ1095
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Three diamonds. A slightly aggressive call, but your hand rates to produce seven tricks and you should encourage partner to bid again if he has reasonable values. Two diamonds is far too conservative. We would not quarrel strongly with a reverse bid of two hearts, which pinpoints the weakness in the black suits.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠J2 ♥AQ85 ♦AQ10 ♣AQJ10
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠
Dble. 3 ♠ Pass Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. There is no point in flogging a dead horse. You have already shown a strong hand by opening the bidding and then doubling at your second turn. If partner had enough to guarantee you safety at the four-level, he should have bid at his last turn. (Yes, we do not like passing 20 points, but...)

Q.8—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A1074 ♥Q1052 ♦6 ♣8762
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♥ Pass
2 NT Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Four hearts. By promoting your heart honor 1 point, you are maximum for your raise. Partner has shown additional values by bidding again, and you owe him the courtesy of expressing confidence in his bidding and playing—would he have returned to three hearts without the queen.

Boat Hull-Defects Warning Is Sounded

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP)—Owners of plywood-hulled boats manufactured by the Broadwater Boat Co. of Mayo, Md., have been urged by the Coast Guard to have the boats inspected for possible hull damage.

A Coast Guard spokesman said in a notice over the weekend that this year there have been nine sinkings, one involving fatalities, traced to "hull failures" of Broadwater boats.

Three Newport News men died after their Broadwater boat sank in the Chesapeake Bay in early April, the spokesman said.

The notice asks that the owners of 25, 27, 29 and 31-foot boats built by the company check their hulls for "cracking, hollows, loose screws or layers of wood coming apart" about nine feet from the bow.

Cmdr. James A. Kearney of the 5th Coast Guard District here said there are about 200 Broadwater boats registered in Virginia, 500 in Maryland and slightly fewer than 200 in North Carolina.

Waterway Is Blocked

PORT ROBINSON, Ont. (AP)—Officials say the St. Lawrence Seaway may be blocked for two weeks while the wreckage of a bridge is cleared from the Welland Canal. Passage of more than 150 ships through the waterway may be delayed.

The American freighter Steelton rammed the bridge five miles north of Welland, Ont., early Sunday. The 120-foot-high structure and one of its two 300-ton counterweights plunged into the canal which connects Lake Erie and Lake Ontario.

The other weight smashed into a roadway, sending tremors through surrounding homes. The bridge master was injured and a member of the Steelton's crew suffered shock.

A seaway spokesman said it was the worst accident in the 43-year history of the canal. He said it might take two weeks to clear the wreckage from the 192-foot-wide channel.

The only other water route between the lakes is a branch of the Erie Barge Canal. But it can only handle small pleasure craft and barges towed or pushed by trucks.

Malcolm Campbell, director of the St. Lawrence Seaway's western region, said normally about 24 ships a day pass through the Welland Canal in the summer. Traffic has been halved in the past month by a strike of ship engineers and deck officers.

The Coast Guard spokesman said planking splits on the boats are "believed to result from a combination of factors, including the way the boat is built, handled, maintained and stored."

When stored, the hulls rest on the cradles "at a particularly vulnerable point," the Coast Guard said.

Kearney said Broadwater has been manufacturing about 400 boats a year for the past 20 years, all of which have been "basically the same line."

Broadwater officials could not be reached for comment over the weekend.

Noted Pioneer Aviator, Inventor Died Saturday

NEW YORK (AP) — Major Alexander P. de Seversky, pioneer aviator whose wartime inventions were instrumental in buoying United States air power in World War II, is dead at 80.

De Seversky died Saturday of a respiratory ailment at Memorial Hospital here.

In addition to being a zealous proponent of strategic air power, de Seversky was a major inventor whose work included design of the P-35 fighter and its modification, the Thunderbolt.

For the project, President Franklin D. Roosevelt presented de Seversky with the Medal of Merit — the highest wartime honor for a civilian.

In another major development, de Seversky worked with Dr. Elmer Sperry Sr. to lay the groundwork for all gyroscopically stabilized flight instruments, which made the automatic pilot possible.

De Seversky was born in Tiflis, Russia, and was introduced to flying by his father, a sportsman-pilot. Graduating from the Military School of Aviation, de Seversky flew his first combat mission for the Russian Imperial Navy in 1915 and was downed by enemy fire.

Although he lost his right leg on the mission, he later returned to combat to fly another 56 missions, bringing down 13 aircraft.

De Seversky came to the United States in 1918 and worked as an aeronautical engineer and test pilot for the U.S. government. He was natural-

Butane's Blast Charred Trees

PETAL, Miss. (AP) — Charred tree trunks poking through dense gray smoke gave mute testimony to a butane explosion and flash fire that officials said was caused by a faulty valve on an underground storage cavern.

Sheriff's officials said the valve allowed butane to escape and the heavier-than-air gas was ignited, possibly by a pilot light on a water heater at the firm, Enterprise Products, located north of this residential and industrial suburb of Hattiesburg.

About 3,000 persons were evacuated after the explosion which rocked the area, throwing people out of bed and breaking windows in homes and commercial buildings up to seven miles away. No serious injuries were reported.

ized in 1927.

In 1921, de Seversky developed in-flight fueling techniques and later invented the first fully automatic synchronous bombsight. The bombsight patent produced $50,000 and he formed his first company, Seversky Aero Corp.

Later he became known as author of "Victory Through Air Power," subsequently filmed by Walt Disney, which he wrote to dispel apathy in the face of Nazi strength.

At the time of his death, de Seversky worked daily as president and chairman of the board of Seversky Electromat Corp.

A Russian Orthodox funeral service was planned Tuesday at Frank E. Campbell funeral home here.

Operating profits for milk processors in North Carolina have slipped gradually since 1965, and processors say the situation looks gloomier for the future.

"The processing business right now is pretty much of a nonprofit operation," said D. W. Green, general manager of Biltmore Dairies. "Every mail brings announcement of new price increases."

Records on file at the State Milk Commission show that operating profits after taxes for processing plants in North Carolina slipped from two per cent in 1965 to 1.1 per cent in 1972.

Operating profits before taxes amounted to 4.1 per cent in 1965, 3.8 per cent in 1966, but fell to 2.3 per cent for the third quarter of 1973, commission records show.

Like virtually every industry, the dairy products business has been hit by sharp increases in the cost of raw materials and fuel to distribute their products.

According to Green, the price of liquid sugar has nearly doubled in the last year and there are indications that it may go up again. The cost of materials for producing gallon milk jugs has shot up nearly 70 per cent since last year, and motor oil for delivery trucks has doubled.

The price that processors pay farmers for raw milk is set by the milk commission. However, the price that processors charge their wholesale accounts is not fixed, and neither is the retail price which housewives must pay.

The commission requires that grocers do not sell their milk below cost, although such less sales are not uncommon on other foodstuffs.

The price which supermarkets and other wholesale accounts pay for their milk is somewhat obscured by the rebate system, under which volume milk purchasers receive refunds from the processors.

The grocer's cost, which is the minimum he can charge for his milk, is adjusted to reflect the rebate.

According to Grady Cooper Jr., commission executive director, the amount of the rebates is not standard among all distributors.

However, one processor official said major dairy product companies confer on the size of the rebates. "There are quite a bit of negotiations between dairies serving these (wholesale) accounts," said one official. "We have to meet, say Sealtest's schedule."

Until June 1973, processors were required to submit their rebate schedules with the milk permission and their competitors. However, that requirement was suspended, Cooper said. One commission member said the requirement proved meaningless, and there were suspicions that some dairies were paying greater rebates than they were reporting.

Mrs. Lillian Woo, president of the North Carolina Consumers Council and a commission member, said rebates paid by at least one processor jumped more than 100 per cent after the reporting requirement was eliminated. She would not reveal the name of the processor.

'Excellence' Project Report Due On Oct 17

A conference on Oct. 17 at East Carolina University will culminate a two-year "pockets of excellence" project envisioned and initiated by ECU Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins to indicate directions for a better way of life for the region.

In inviting community, business and educational leaders, Jenkins said the conference "represents an important facet of the efforts of the past 15 years and longer, during which time resources of East Carolina University have been utilized in a constant effort to effect economic, social and cultural growth."

In 1972, with a $25,000 grant from the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation, ECU engaged itself "in seeking out in the world achievements of superior calibre, or 'pockets of excellence,' which have implications for the development of our area," Jenkins said.

Project consultants and investigators submitted proposals and carried out in-depth studies throughout the world.

The reports of these highly-trained investigators will be presented at the conference which is scheduled in the new facilities of the East Carolina University Regional Development Institutes (RDI).

Some of the studies which will be reported in detail include "Lekoteket (Play Library) in Physical and Emotional Health," studied in Sweden by Miss Ruth Lambie, Assistant professor of Home Economics, ECU; "A History-Oriented Reading Program for Disadvantaged Youth," studied in Louisiana by Dr. William H. Cobb, assistant Professor of History, ECU; "Innovative Programs in Health Care Education," by Dr. Vance E. Hamilton, Community Development Specialist, N. C. State University; "Industrial Training in England" with emphasis on career education, by Dr. James H. Bearden, Dean, the School of Business, ECU; "Leisure Industry Patterns of the Southwest," H. O. Edwards, Jr., of the ECU Regional Development Institute.

Investigations such as James Houlik, Assistant Professor of Music, ECU, studied non-profit concert booking methods in Amsterdam, The Netherlands; Dr. James A. McGee, Director, Coastal Resources Center, ECU, studied oyster and eel culture in Japan; Dr. Robert W. Williams, Associate Vice President for Academic Affairs, University of North Carolina, studied potential markets for North Carolina eels in western Europe, the British Isles and Scandinavia.

Afternoon sessions of the day-long conference will be devoted to group sessions for in-depth discussions of particular fields of interest covered in the project.
