Ford Advises Americans To Tighten Belt

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has signaled his readiness to accept congressional cuts in the defense budget while his administration seeks to prune spending by other agencies in the effort to curb inflation.

Ford gave wage earners and bureaucrats the same advice for dealing with the double-digit inflation: tighten your belts, "watch every penny."

Administration aides said that as part of that belt-tightening process, the President would not resist defense spending cuts, which originally had drawn White House criticism.

At his first presidential news conference, Ford reemphasized the drive to economize as his major inflation-fighting weapon, and underscored his opposition to wage and price controls.

" ... Wage and price controls are out, period," the President said.

The nationally broadcast and televised news conference Wednesday was dominated by questions about inflation and about the possible prosecution of Richard M. Nixon in the Watergate case.

Ford said he subscribes to what he described as the general American view that Nixon should not face further action. But he said it would be unwise and untimely for him to make any commitment now on what he will do if the former president is indicted.

He also said he will make the final decision, and does not rule out the possibility of an eventual presidential pardon should Nixon be prosecuted. "It is an option and a proper option for any president," he said.

The President said that to deal with inflation, the administration already has announced plans for a $5.5-billion budget cut during the year that ends next June 30.

Ford said that will ease the strain on the money markets, and in addition "I think it will convince people who might have some doubts that we mean business."

In addition, the administration is collecting ideas from labor, management, agriculture and other areas to prepare for his economic summit conference Sept. 27 and 28, he said.

The approach he spurned was wage and price controls. Ford said he had discussed it with congressional leaders of both parties, that labor and management oppose it, and that it won't happen.

Some Democrats have complained that Ford's budget cutting plans would bear down on domestic social programs. But Ford said he wouldn't spare the Pentagon.

"No budget for any department is sacrosanct, and that includes the defense budget," he said. Ford said he will insist that the nation remain strong militarily.

"But if there is any fat in the defense budget, it ought to be cut out by Congress or eliminated by the secretary of defense," he said. "In the meantime, all other departments must be scrutinized

Thirteen Persons Hurt In Chattanooga Explosion

DOWNTOWN WRECKAGE—Firemen spray the rubble of a downtown section of Chattanooga early today after a blast injured 13 persons.

By BYRON DAVIS
Associated Press Writer

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—An explosion left half a downtown block in flaming rubble early today, injuring at least 13 persons, some of them customers at two night spots which were destroyed. A church and barbershop also were leveled and buildings were shattered two blocks away.

"If this had been a weekend, there would have been a lot of them killed," said Patrolman Don Weller of the nightspots. "There's no way around it."

As it is, Police Chief Jerry Pitts said, "There were no deaths." But flames kept firemen and policemen from entering the building and Pitts said, "After this cools down, we're going to have to go in and research. As of now, we have everyone accounted for."

One policeman on the scene said three bodies were carried from the scene, but no hospitals or funeral homes reported receiving any dead. Of the 13 treated for emergency injuries at Erlanger Hospital, only one was admitted.

There were 20 customers at another nearby restaurant at the time of the blast and one customer said many of them were hurt.

John C. Banks, 73, visiting from Harvey, Ill., with relatives who own the barbershop, was talking with his kinfolk when the building exploded.

"It picked me up out of a chair and slammed me on my chest on the floor and knocked me out," said Banks, who was not seriously hurt.

"I'm sure that it was not a bomb, but I don't know just exactly what caused it," said Fire Chief Harry Jett.

The buildings which were destroyed, as well as most of those surrounding it, are combination business-and-residential structures, most of them old and most of them brick. Generally, the pattern is the same as that of the buildings which were destroyed—businesses on the street level, apartments overhead, some with overhanging balconies.

The blast occurred as Weller was making his nightly rounds in downtown Chattanooga and he was on the scene almost immediately.

"There was fire everywhere. The buildings were just leveled. We just started searching through the rubble," said Weller, 28. "We could hear that little boy crying."

He referred to a child with his mother found about 30 feet back into the rubble. They were among at least five persons who were rescued by police, none of whom was believed seriously hurt.

Near the blast, autos parked in the street were severely damaged by the impact. A pile of bricks mashed a new Cadillac down to its wheel hubs.

All up and down Ninth Street, a main artery in the downtown area, store windows and upper story glass were broken. Across the street from the blast, every window was blown from the front of a three story apartment building, frames and all.

Broken glass also included liquor bottles from several liquor stores in the area. There was no looting as policemen kept spectators at bay.

The blaze was contained in the 200-swath reduced to splintered brick rubble, but firemen still poured heavy streams of water on the fire several hours after the 3:30 a.m. explosion.

"There were three or four people scattered in the street, blown out onto the street, blown out or carried out," said Fire Lt. Herbert Parker, one of the first on the scene.

Hurricane Becky In Open Sea

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Becky and her winds of 100 miles per hour swirled further into the open Atlantic today, and weathermen said the season's first hurricane poses no threat to land.

Becky was centered about 250 miles north of Bermuda and moving northeast.

HOTLINE

752-1336

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day, but the phone service is available 24 hours a day.

NO RED LIGHT—WHO STOPS?

When a stop light isn't working at an intersection, shouldn't the intersection be treated as if it were a four-way stop sign intersection? The other morning after a storm there were several lights out and many people were going on through without even slowing down or stopping. Mrs. W.E.

You are right. According to Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon, if the light isn't working, all motorists should stop and then proceed, yielding the proper right of way. A motorist failing to stop at an intersection where the light isn't working can be given a citation for failing to yield the right of way, says Cannon.

DOES ANYONE TEACH YOGA?

I'd like to know if there's anyone in the Greenville area who teaches yoga? A.B.

Hotline has talked to several persons who practice yoga themselves, but could find no one in Pitt County interested in holding a class. We finally contacted Mrs. Joan Courter of New Bern. She has classes there and says, if 10 to 15 persons were to contact her, she would be glad to organize a class in Greenville. Her phone number is 637-1272; her mailing address Box 883, New Bern, N.C. 28560.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

AGAINST THE LAW

Liz Whalen, president of the Pitt County Humane Society, reports she has received numerous phone calls from persons upset by the Hotline item about whether one can legally shoot a dog owned by another person.

Her research reveals that killing or injuring any animal (except those designated in a hunting or fishing license) violates both civil and criminal laws of North Carolina (G. S. 19A and Article 47, paragraph 14-360 of the Criminal Code.)

If the owner could not be located, another person or organization could bring suit, according to paragraph 19A-2 of the General Statutes, she pointed out.

"If convicted, the person would be subject to a $500 fine and-or a prison term of up to six months, depending on the degree of aggravation," she quoted from the criminal law.

There is also a law making it illegal to discharge firearms within city limits, she pointed out.

Hotline regrets not being thorough enough in its answer to this question.

Apartments In City Are Just About All Full

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

If you have just moved to town, are thinking of coming, or live here and want to move into an apartment, you might have a difficult time finding a new place to hang your hat and call home.

A survey conducted by The Daily Reflector of the major apartment complexes in the Greenville area found only a half-dozen units not already rented—four one-bedroom units in the River Bluff complex and two two-bedroom facilities at Eastbrook.

To make apartment hunters aware of just how rare the half-dozen available units look, compare them with the 1,550 apartments in the 11 complexes contacted.

At mid-morning yesterday, only four of River Bluff's units were vacant. The rent for those one-bedroom facilities, including water and sewer, was $130 per month unfurnished or $188 per month with furniture. That complex's two bedroom facilities (sorry, none available) go for $150 and $160 per month.

Eastbrook, which had rented all but two of its 208 units, charges $205 per month for its unfurnished units and $220 per month for its three bedroom apartments. And those prices include utilities.

Cherry Court, which is full—126 units worth—charges $138 and $190 per month for its one and two bedroom dwellings. Representatives say their complex is the only one in Greenville with sauna baths, attic storage space and trash compactors.

Tar River Estates is filled and no waiting list is kept there like most other apartment managers reported. Spokesmen there said they had to stop taking names because of the great demand. It became impractical.

There are 409 apartments in the Tar River group including $130 per month one bedroom facilities, $150, $160 and $170 per month two bedroom apartments and $195, $255 and $275 per month three bedroom units.

At Kings Row (full, of course) the 108 units include $135 per month (unfurnished) or $165 per months (furnished) one-bedroom

Shortages In Materials

WASHINGTON (AP) — American manufacturers are reporting shortages of 63 raw materials and are predicting further consumer-price hikes unless supplies are increased.

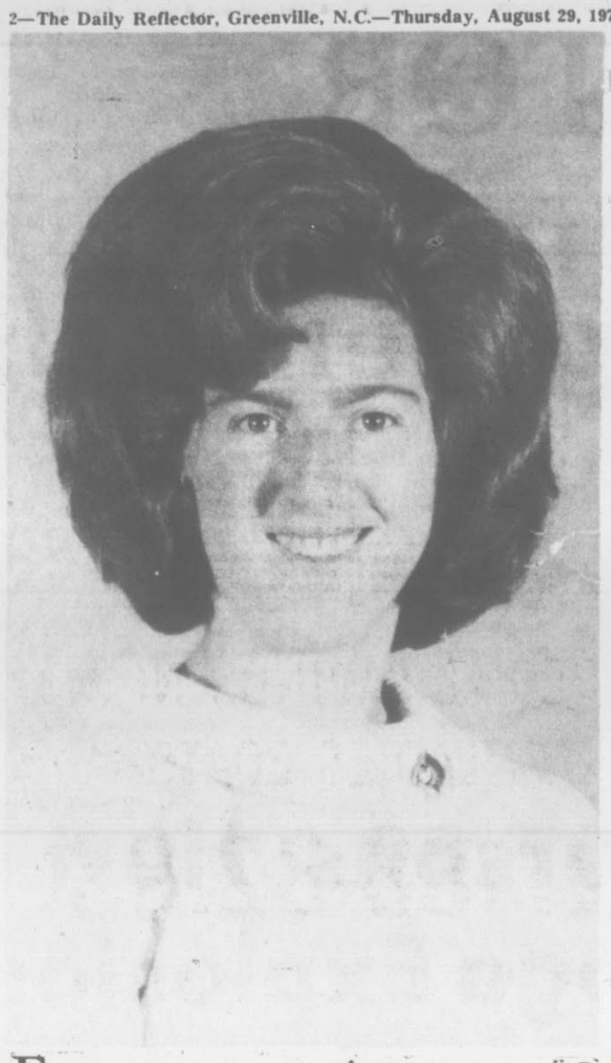

The industrialists blame the shortages on government price controls, safety and antipollution regulations, high interest rates, the energy crisis and growing world demand.

In a survey conducted by the Senate investigations subcommittee, 258 industries replying reported shortages of raw materials, ranging from lime to gold to paper.

A shortage of petrochemicals, the broad category of petroleum-based materials used in manufacturing everything from phonograph records to clothing, was mentioned by 181 industries.

A lack of steel was cited by 106, various types of manufactured steel by 172, plastics by 104, paper by 101, nonpetroleum-based chemicals by 94, aluminum by 74 and copper by 62.

Summing up the manufacturers' responses, the subcommittee said the blame for the shortages must be placed on a general increase in international demand for materials and products; high interest rates and low investment returns; 2½ years of government controls on prices, which made it more attractive to sell overseas; the lack of energy, and government requirements in the environmental and industrial-safety fields.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

The skirt is coming back.

I know this won't choke up women cello players, but it's true. Not only do designers say American women are going to be wearing more skirts and dresses, but the hemlines are going to be longer.

This is bad news in more ways than one. Several years ago, someone figured out as the hemlines go . . . so goes the economy. The longer the hemline, the more acute the depression . . . the shorter the hemline, the greater the country's prosperity.

The way I look at it, with beans at 87 cents a pound I'm stuck with a closet full of blouses.

"What am I going to do with all those short dresses?" I asked Mother.

"Like I always said, 'you can make a skirt shorter,' said Mother. 'But you can't make it longer after it's cut off.'.

"When did you say that?" I asked.

"When you cut off your winter coat."

"Mother! You can't walk around in a coat with a hem so thick you look like you're storing rifles in it."

"So, don't yell at me. You're the one with the closet full of blouses."

"Remember Margaret Shelhaas? I went to school with her and when hemlines dropped in 1947, she made new tops for all of her skirts out of muslin, wore long sweaters and never raised her arms."

"Did it work?"

"No, it was miserable. She couldn't try out for cheerleading, mail a letter, wave good-bye, hang up her coat, or comb her hair in public. She finally dropped out of school."

"Because of fake tops on her skirts?"

"Yes, She was failing everything because she never participated in class by raising her hand to answer anything."

"Maybe hemlines won't get too long and you can just slouch for a few years," offered Mother.

"Oh, they're going to get long all right. Remember the economy in 1900 to 1927 and then how skirts went thigh-high by 1928? And how they went down in 1929, and up again in 1940? From '47 to '54 they were mid-calf and in 1967 hemlines went as high as 30 inches."

I was still discussing the problem with my husband last night at a movie when we saw a young girl lean over the drinking fountain.

"I don't ever remember the economy being that good," I said.

"It wasn't,' he said dreamily. "But when skirts get that high no one seems to care."

GAS SHORTAGE

Fall Dress-Up Look Varies

By United Press International

Dress-up looks for fall will include:

The high waisted Dress. Typical is one in white on white for both day and evening. It is a dress up with jewelry dress. Dress it up with long pendants or drop earrings with matching bracelets.

The short peasant evening dress. Elegantly feminine, it is fittingly accessorized with a lovely collar necklace in a soft tasselled effect. Drop earrings, a circle pin to accept the waistline and you're just about ready to step out. The final touch: twin bracelets, one on each wrist.

The plunging neckline. Bared, sexy and nostalgic. Shimmering fabrics are preferred. And for accents, fabulous drop earrings. The more they look like miniature chandeliers, the better.

The silky body dress. Hugs the anatomy and features disarmingly simple lines. Jewelry to accent includes sparkling chains or a single or multi-strand fill in.

The velvet dinner suit. The epitome of simple elegance, this is perfect dressing for theater going or informal dining. The simple jewel neckline is beautifully accented with the casual elegance of strand upon strand of gleaming chains draped around a gleaming pendant.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. William Edgar Davis of Hamilton announce the engagement of their daughter, Hope Elaine, to Luther Roderick MacNeill of Greenville, son of Mrs. Luther MacNeill of Maxton and the late Mr. MacNeill. The wedding will take place Oct. 12.

The number of weekly newspapers in Georgia increased from 59 in 1869 to 225 in 1890.

Massey-Benton Vows Solemnized Sunday

SNOW HILL—Miss Rebecca Elizabeth Benton became the bride of Carl Anthony Massey Sunday, Aug. 18, in Mewborn's Primitive Baptist Church near Snow Hill.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Franklin Benton of Snow Hill. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Rhem Massey of Farmville.

Elder J.M. Mewborn of Willow Springs officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of white chiffon and antique crocheted lace over peau de soie. The gown was styled with a scooped neckline encircled with lace and full sheer bishop sleeves cuffed with lace. The skirt flowed softly from an empire waist and fell into a soft fullness ending in the same lace. Her headpiece of imported silk illusion fell from a Camelot cap of Venise lace. She carried a nosegay of pink roses and baby's breath. She wore her mother's antique gold locket.

Mrs. Betty M. Cannon of Ayden, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Jackie C. Harrell of Farmville, Mrs. Debra T. Johnson of Snow Hill and Miss Marilyn Tyndall of Chapel Hill.

The attendants wore formal gowns of pink taffeta overlaid with white dotted swiss designed with empire waists, scooped necklines and sheer puffed sleeves. They wore white picture hats trimmed with pink tulle and carried baskets filled with pink and white daisies.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers were Curtis Ray Massey, brother of the bridegroom, James Cannon, brother-in-law of the bridegroom and Robert Franklin Harrell.

Mrs. Carl A. Massey

Miss Veronica Letchworth presided at the register and Miss Tammy Letchworth presented the guests with wedding scrolls.

For a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride chose a pink and green floral ensemble and a corsage of pink roses.

The bride is a graduate of Greene Central High School and Lenoir Community College. The bridegroom is a graduate of Farmville Central High School and is employed by Farmville Implement Company.

An after rehersal party was held Saturday night for the wedding, party and out-of-town guests. Given by the bride's aunts, the party was held in the fellowship hall of the church.

Mrs. Agnes Pennington served cake and Mrs. Evelyn Raper poured punch.

On Friday night prior to the wedding, the bride was entertained at a bridal party by Elizabeth Pelletier and Luci Ann Pennington.

Mrs. Ira Pelletier and Mrs. Edward Pennington assisted in serving.

Club Program By Mrs. Gulati

Mrs. Umesh Gulati, a native of India, and a Pilot member, presented the program at the regular monthly meeting of the Pilot Club of Greenville.

Mrs. Gulati displayed a collection of imported brass ware and wood carvings. She also gave a demonstration on how to wrap and drape a sari, the native Indian dress.

An added feature of the meeting was a question and answer session held by a Bicentennial speaker committee member, Danny Jacobsen, manager of WOOW radio. His remarks included tentative plans for the Greenville's Bicentennial celebration.

New members initiated into the club were Mrs. Joseph Downing and Mrs. John T. Jenkins. Mrs. Jenkins, formerly of the Pilot Club of Raleigh is a past District VI treasurer.

Mrs. John McCarthy, club president, reminded Pilots of the area workshop which will be held at the Rodeway Inn, in Greensboro on Sept. 28 and 29.

Mrs. Robert Smith, coordinator of Internal Affairs reported on the progress o the sales of the calendar of birthdays, anniversaries, and appointments, which is being sponsored by the club. Proceeds from the calendars will be used to help with community service projects. Mrs. Smith reminded club members that the fund raising campaign reports should be submitted to her by August 31. Delivery date of the calendars will be Dec. 15.

The next meeting of the Greenville Pilot club will be held Sept. 23 at the Ramanda Inn.

Her Broken Beak Breaks Bank

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: We drove 500 miles to attend the wedding of a relative. Our son was to be in the bridal party. The wedding was to take place at 4 P.M. on Saturday. On the Friday night before the wedding, the bride and groom got into a fight and the groom broke the bride's nose so the wedding was cancelled.

What do we do with the wedding gift we were going to take to the church? Who pays for the tuxedo our son rented for the occasion and never got to wear? And how about the motel bill?

I think the bride's parents who invited us here for nothing should help us out. Should we ask them to?

STUCK IN ILLINOIS

DEAR STUCK: That's what you are. Stuck. Stuck for the wedding gift—unless you can return it. You're stuck for sure for your son's rented tuxedo, and you're stuck for the motel bill.

And no, don't ask the bride's parents to help you out. They've got enough trouble trying to comfort a bride with a broken nose.

DEAR ABBY: My husband died very suddenly not long ago. It was a terrible shock as he had been in the best of health and had no warning whatsoever. We had 43 good years together, which is more than many couples have, but somehow, I still feel cheated.

I was in such a state of shock when this happened that my eldest daughter took me to her home where I stayed for three weeks. When I returned to my own home, I was stunned to find that every trace of my beloved husband had been removed. Not one thing belonging to him remained!

My two daughters and one son (all married) took it upon themselves to go through my house and dispose of all their father's clothes.

I broke right down and wept. They tried to explain that they thought they had done me a big favor.

Abby, wasn't it MY right to dispose of my late husband's things in my own good time? Perhaps I wanted some memories of him around.

It's too late in my case, but please print this for others who one day may presume to do what my children did.

CRUSHED

DEAR CRUSHED: Please consider the motivation. They undoubtedly wanted to spare you what they thought would be an agonizing task. But you make a good point. Perhaps they should have asked.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 21-year-old male college student. I am being married in the near future. Both of us would like to have a big wedding and invite our many friends, but the cost would empty her parents' pocketbook.

My fiancee and I feel that the tradition that says her parents must foot the bill for the wedding is entirely outmoded, but I'm afraid her folks would feel hurt if my parents offered to chip in.

As it stands now, my future in-laws feel a bit inadequate alongside my well-to-do-family.

If you can come up with a solution, it would be a most welcome early wedding gift.

DOOMED GROOM

DEAR DOOMED: Why not break with tradition in the interest of common sense? Perhaps your future in-laws wouldn't be as "hurt" as you think if your parents chipped in for the kind of wedding you want. Ask them. If they refuse, go the traditional route, and after you return from your honeymoon, your parents can throw a party for you and all your friends.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MARK: Lose her. She has a "gelt" complex.

U.S. 264: Good And Bad News

First the good news. Bids have been taken for the relocation of the first segment of U. S. 264 between Zebulon and Finch's Mill west of Wilson.

Now the bad news. It's going to be many years, if ever, before U. S. 264 improvements are extended, east from I-95 to Greenville, unless the populace along the route make its needs known.

The bids taken this week are for a 3.5 mile section east of Zebulon. A bypass for U. S. 64-264 is now under construction around Zebulon and it ties in with the four-lane stretch which leads into Raleigh.

Bids will be taken in September for an additional 6.3 miles of improvements on U. S. 264 leading to a point east of Bailey. Right-of-way acquisition is underway for the final section of the project east to Finch's Mill where it will intersect I-95.

All of this work will without a doubt make the trip from Greenville to Raleigh much easier. A five-lane interloop street has been constructed through Wilson which cuts travel time through that city considerably. Then once the planned improvements on U. S. 264 and U. S. 64 are completed the trip from Wilson to Raleigh will be on four laned highway.

But right now nothing is underway for improving and dual laning U. S. 264 from Greenville to Wilson—and plans for four laning N. C. 30-33 from Greenville to Washington have been dropped by the Holshouser administration.

We shouldn't let them get away with it. This area is probably developing as rapidly as any in the state. We are well aware here of the new industries now operating and under construction which are going to call for a better highway link with the state capital. Development is going on in Washington, Farmville and other municipalities on or near to the U. S. 264 route. All that doesn't even include the tremendous phosphate mining development near Aurora which would benefit from the U. S. 264 improvements.

If the east is to develop properly it must have roads comparable with other sections of the state. When you are sitting in Raleigh it is easy to decide to spend the money elsewhere, perhaps where it will do the most political good. In our area, we will just have to make improvements to U. S. 264 a political issue, if that is the only way we can get this essential work done. It may not affect the thinking of the present administration, but it sure can shape the policies of the next candidates who come to us seeking election to the governorship.

THIS AFTERNOON

$1,000,000 Bathrooms?

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Those roadside rest stops along North Carolina interstate highways have raised the hackles of some budget watchdog legislators who literally see millions of dollars flushed down a drain.

"A million-dollar bathroom?" roared State Rep. John E. (Ed) Davenport, D-Nash County, when he learned the cost of the modern day rest stop facilities during a recent meeting of a legislative committee on government spending.

"A million-dollar bathroom? How much is that per seat?" Davenport demanded.

J. A. Saunders, the Department of Transportation man in charge of the program, grimaced at the label, but admitted: "Yes, that's true. They are million-dollar bathrooms, but I hate to see them described as such."

Saunders went on to explain that the cost of the actual bathroom building at rest stops is currently running around $185,000. The remainder of the money goes for landscaping, parking area, etc.

How Much?

But Davenport was not to be put off. Okay, he agreed, let's limit the question to the $185,000 for the actual bathroom building—how much is that "per hole?"

Saunders did a quick breakdown mentally, and put the cost at $20,000 per seat for users of the roadside facilities.

The particular rest stop under fire is a new one just opening on Interstate-40 in Davie County between Winston-Salem and Statesville.

Members of the new spending watching commission headed by State Sen. I. C. Crawford, D-Buncombe County, were outspokenly amazed at the plushness of the rest stop which cost a total of $1,230,747.25.

"There's better concrete on the parking lot and driveways than there is on the road," one moaned, and another complained that the facility goes far beyond the simple, cinder-block structure one would usually expect for a roadside bathroom

"I can't believe the rest of the states are building rest stops of this nature," insisted Davenport, who recalled that recent driving trips elsewhere in the nation did not disclose such elaborate facilities.

Are other such structures planned in North Carolina?

Yes, Saunders confessed. Present plans call for 17 more, and seven are already in use. Additionally, plans call for remodeling or replacing a host of others in the state which are smaller and were cheaper to build in the beginning.

$50 Million

In all, some $50 million will be spent in the next few years on these rest stops, he reported.

The money is from the federal highway fund, and most of the cost is federal dollars. The rest stops are designed to meet federal specifications.

Then came a key question: "Is this money taken out of the regular highway fund! Could this money be used for highway construction instead of bathrooms?" Davenport wondered.

"Yes, sir, it could," Saunders said, "but that is a policy decision to be made by the highway commission . . . and then there are the federal. . ."

Davenport interrupted. He couldn't believe that federal guidelines are being applied nationwide which require such elaborate installations. "This General Assembly has the responsibility to take this thing to Washington if necessary . . . it's the most ridiculous thing I ever heard of."

Saunders also explained that in addition to the installation cost, each rest stop pair (one on each side) requires three fulltime state employes for maintenance, operation and cleanliness. That, he explained, costs $50,000 per year, per site; another million dollars-plus each year.

Members of the committee promised to look further into how rest stop costs could be trimmed.

The Davie County facility breakdown shows $730,347 for sidewalks, driveways, fencing, etc.; $185,232 for the rest room buildings; $49,102 for lights and power; $78,068 for the sewage treatment system; $55,760 for the well and water storage and treatment; $70,383 for picnic tables, shelters, stoves, benches, and a wood deck; and $42,992 for landscaping.

POLITICS In N.C.

Morgan Never Relaxes

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH—"Robert doesn't know how to relax. That's one reason he's so hard to beat politically. He never takes a solitary thing for granted. He leaves nothing to chance."

A friend of many years was talking about Robert Morgan, who had just completed his move from the state's Justice Department. Morgan vacated the huge corner office that overlooks the old State Capitol. He moved out on Monday morning and Republican Jim Carson was sworn in at noon. The office of Attorney General of North Carolina had changed hands—and political parties.

Carson would have the advantage of the incumbent for his November bid against Democrat Rufus Edmisten. Those two men, and their political parties, want this race badly. It wasn't always this way.

Before Morgan came on the scene in 1968 to challenge Democrat Wade Bruton, the attorney general's office was not looked upon as being one of great political importance. Bruton had held the post for 16 or so years, and no one seemed particularly anxious to wrestle it from him.

Morgan defeated Bruton handily, and then proceeded to build his political base. He turned the attorney general's office from one of low visibility under Bruton, to one that rivaled the Governor's office for major news headlines. Morgan championed consumer programs, took swipes at organized crime and the sordid business of dope peddling. He pushed for better training for law enforcment officers, improved the performance and image of the SBI, and criticized state courts for taking too long to try cases.

Morgan's name, always powerful in the East, was suddenly known and respected in Charlotte, Morganton, Waynesville and points West. His popularity was such that his friends pushed him to the brink of the 1972 Governor's race, and fully expected Morgan to run.

Morgan sat in his office in late 1971 and told me: "I look across that yard to the Governor's Mansion and say to myself that that's the worse job up here. I never really wanted it, but sometimes you do what your friends want you to do."

At that time Morgan had pretty much made up his mind to run for Governor. But ending that interview with me, he said: "I'd rather serve in the U. S. Senate."

Morgan, of course, resisted the temptation to run for Governor, though he was totally confident he could win. He ran for the Senate last spring, won the nomination and now goes against Republican William Stevens in November.

Like his friend said, Morgan takes nothing about this race for granted.

"I am now unemployed," Morgan says, "and I plan to campaign for the Senate harder than I've ever campaigned before. I'm confident we'll win, but that doesn't mean we won't have to work hard."

One of Morgan's main areas of concentration now will be to raise campaign money. Another will be to put together an organization in every county that will get his vote out on election day.

He leaves the Attorney General's office with his own party leaders singing his praises.

"His record in the Justice Department is a very positive thing for the state Democratic Party," says Democratic Party Chief Jim

Strength For Today

SELF-CONFIDENCE

It is surprising how much people can do when they think they can. Self-confidence, provided of course that it does not become vanity, is one of the most helpful characteristics a person can possess.

In his book, Sartor Resartus, Thomas Carlyle says, "Alas, the fearful unbelief in yourself." But belief in self is not the only essential belief. The most powerful belief a person can entertain is a belief in God. But even belief in God fails to operate in a person's life if he or she does not have enough self-confidence to believe that God can make them instruments of his will. The highway of life is strewn with the bodies of those who failed because they had no hope in themselves. And many of these people have had outstanding abilities.

To disbelieve in God is heresy; to disbelieve in one's self as an instrument which God will gladly use in the furtherance of his purposes is a hopeless futility which will bring even the most gifted people to defeat.

Honeymoon Wears Thin

One hesitates to say that the honeymoon is over, but let's face it: After three weeks the honeymoon is wearing thin. The rapture cools. Conservatives are asking, what's with Jerry Ford?

When Ford came off the bench to replace the departed Nixon, conservatives looked upon the prospect and found it good. Congressional Quarterly, the highly respected political reporting service, confirmed their expectations. A study of Ford's record in the House justified CQ's introductory headline: "Gerald Ford: A New Conservative President."

The record book disclosed that Ford consistently had voted well to the right of centers. Back in 1960, he scored a perfect 100 percent in support of the conservative coalition in the House. In 1973, his last year in the House, he stuck with the coalition on three of every four rollcalls in which the coalition appeared. Conservatives tended to identify Ford with such delightful if unsuccessful ventures as the impeachment of Justice Douglas. He voted with organized labor on only 19 of 128 key votes in his 25 years in the House.

What has become of the Ford we used to know?

In these past three weeks, our new conservative President has: (1) called for leniency for draft-dodgers, (2) reversed his position on Rhodesian chrome, (3) played footsie with the Black Caucus, (4) nominated Nelson Rockefeller for vice president, (5) plumped for national health insurance, (6) indorsed the Equal Rights Amendment, (7) met with George Meany, and (8) made happy talk with the Teamsters' Frank Fitzsimmons.

On the other hand, he has: (1) vetoed two bad but inconsequential bills, (2) made a couple of gestures toward economy, and (3) chatted with Senator Strom Thurmond and signed a bill with Congressman Philip Crane.

We are reminded of Prince Hal's reaction to Falstaff's bill at the inn: "O, monstrous! Growls! Groans! Expletives deleted!

Certain political realities, of course, have to be taken into account. As congressman from the Fifth District of Michigan, Ford was accountable chiefly to his own conservative constituency. He is now President of all the people. He is also the visible head of the Republican party and its almost certain nominee for president in 1976. If the GOP is to survive as a viable political organism, it has to appeal beyond us Goldwater types. Everyone understands this.

But one would like to say to the new skipper, as he goes veering off to port: Whoa! Easy! Veer to port gently! Let us not jibe; let us tack slowly instead.

Taken one by one, Ford's leftward overtures are not so alarming. Conservatives can live with the choice of Nelson Rockefeller. Closely scrutinized, Ford's remarks on amnesty are not extreme. It makes political sense for this Republican President to smile upon labor, women and blacks. What mars the honeymoon is the collective impact of all these gestures coming at once.

It was not necessary, for example, for Ford to whit it up for the Equal Rights Amendment. The ratification of this consitutional time-bomb is quite simply none of a president's business; it is now the business of the States. Back in 1971, when the House voted on this proposal, Ford was "paired for." Since then, a great many reservations have arisen about the unknown consequences that may develop at law if the amendment is adopted. Ford didn't need to get into this act.

There used to be a comic-strip character—was it in

Public Forum

To the editor:

Many, many people in Pitt County are members of the governing board or involved in some manner with the various agencies supported by Pitt County United Fund. Due to the numerous telephone calls and remarks concerning Pitt County Mental Health Association's being appropriated more money than requested in the 1975 budget, I feel an explanation is in order.

Pitt County United Fund has been paying directly to Carolina United its "fair share" in support of North Carolina Mental Health Association, and the Pitt Chapter in addition has been paying, from non-United Fund monies, the minimum amount ($550) assigned by the State Office. Therefore, Pitt County United Fund is "deleting our support to NCMHA through Carolinas United and will from now on give this support directly through the Pitt County Mental Health Association."

Budget request, $14,222.34. Approved operating budget, $13,362.34, plus $1,699.32 (designated funds for support to State); total approved budget, $15,062. The chapter will no longer pay the assigned amount.

With the United Fund Drive scheduled for the near future, I trust this letter will erase any fear or idea that the local United Fund gave the association more money for its operating budget than was requested. We are grateful for support from the public through the United Fund, and we trust your support will continue.

Ford's Press Debut

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford smiles easily, speaks softly and talks with his hands.

Mostly, that's what Americans learned from watching Ford's television-radio news conference Wednesday.

The big news was that Ford had no big news to announce. For the first time in more than half-a-dozen years, Americans apparently have a President who is willing to hold news conferences for the simple sake of opening himself up for questions on topics of current interest.

That was the original purpose of presidential news conferences — but one never accepted as valid by Richard M. Nixon.

Nixon's press secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, often said his boss viewed question and answer meetings with newsmen as opportunities to communicate what he had on his mind. Ziegler repeatedly rejected suggestions that his boss should be available for questioning regularly, even when he had nothing special to say.

Ford's press secretary, Jerald F. terHorst, says he expects Ford to hold news conferences about twice a month, but not necessarily before live cameras and microphones.

The contrast between Ford's news conference debut and similar appearances by Nixon was pronounced, especially considering the shared setting of the White House East Room.

Nixon used to stand before a blue velvet drape hung from iron pipes. So far as a TV viewer could see, he might have been standing anywhere.

Ford stood before an open door that gave TV watchers a glimpse down the carpeted marble hallway leading from the East Room to the state dining room.

Ford's demeanor under hot TV lights also offered a contrast with his resigned predecessor. Nixon wore make-up and perspired freely. Ford didn't even powder his bald spots and, if he was a bit tense at the outset, he looked cool throughout.

Ford's voice was lowered from the start — even a bit monotonously so and his exchanges with reporters were not only civil but friendly.

Economic Summit's Questions

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In a series of late September conferences, President Ford will seek the anti-inflation views of the disparate elements that make up the economy, the view of "everyone in the country, every part of America."

And in doing so he is bound to find that those views are not in such full agreement with existing policies, mainly those of the highly independent Federal Reserve Board, as was suggested by the previous administration.

The fact is that not all America is united behind Arthur F. Burns, the Fed chairman, who steadfastly — and some say, courageously — adheres to a relatively tight money policy as a deterrent to inflation.

The President will hear highly respected individuals ask in all innocence: How is it that high interest rates have failed to restrain prices, despite the almost theological belief that they do?

And furthermore, why has the nation's housing been sacrificed on that altar? Why have the equity markets been ripped apart for that belief? Why has business been denied capital and forced to borrow from banks?

Even if the answers aren't forthcoming, the President likely will have scored a political if not economic victory because he permitted the previously smothered suggestions, opinions, frustrations of so many to be aired.

The goals of the summit conference scheduled for Sept. 27-28 illustrates the failure of past attempts. It reduces the problem of inflation to the essential considerations:

—To "clarify" the present economic condition of the nation, to identify the causes of inflation, to consider "new and realistic" inflation restraints, to define "hardship areas" needing quick attention, and to develop a consensus.

If these are the questions to be answered, then it is obvious that those now in power feel that little has heretofore been answered or maybe even understood.

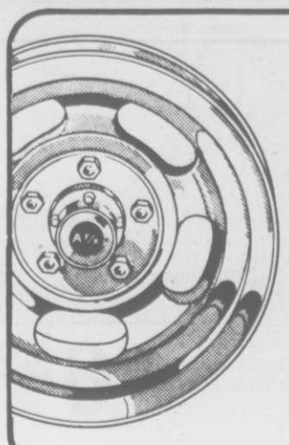

Perhaps the easiest of the goals will be to clarify the present economic condition. On that there appears to be a consensus: the country, the entire trading world, is in a precarious condition because of inflation.

The dilemma facing all these nations is that none of the alternatives open to them is completely desirable. Further inflation might lead to collapse. But needed restraint could put economies into a tailspin also.

Agreement on the causes of inflation will be difficult to achieve, but the discussion itself should be worthwhile. Not everyone is convinced, as the Nixon administration seemed to feel, that excess domestic demand is the culprit.

A large and growing number of academicians, business economists and other observers believe that factors beyond domestic control are largely responsible for rising prices, and that the cure isn't to throw people out of work and depress business.

Father-In-Law Of Mexico's President Kidnaped

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — Police and troops searched through Guadalajara and Jalisco state today for the 83-year-old father-in-law of Mexico's president and the guerrillas who kidnaped him.

Officials would not comment on a report that the kidnapers demanded $1.6 million and the release of "political prisoners" in exchange for white-haired Jose Guadalupe Zuno Hernandez.

The kidnaping on a busy street in the middle of the nation's second largest city was the most daring exploit in a long string of guerrilla activities in Mexico in the past two years.

It put President Luis Echeverria in a tough spot since he has repeatedly said in the past year that the government would not negotiate with kidnapers. The guerrillas have killed several persons when their ransom demands were not met.

The police and the army set up roadblocks at major junctions and on the highways leading out of Guadalajara after Zuno was seized at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday at one of the city's busiest intersections, a few blocks from the Jalisco state goverment headquarters.

Witnesses said four men armed with pistols and submachine guns pulled the old man and his chauffeur from their car, beat the chauffeur to the ground, bundled Zuno into another car and sped away, spraying the area with tear gas.

One report said notes left in various parts of the city identified the kidnapers as members of the People's Armed Revolutionary Front, which kidnaped U.S. Consul-General Terrance G. Leonhardy last year. The state government denied this, but the denial was suspect since state officials issued a false denial of a similar report when Leonhardy was kidnaped.

There was no comment from Echeverria. His wife flew to Guadalajara to be with her family as soon as word of the kidnaping reached Mexico City.

Zuno, a veteran member of the left wing of the party that has ruled Mexico since 1929, was a former mayor of Guadalajara and was governor of Jalisco state in the mid-1920s. He is a retired army general and has held several appointive government posts in the state.

Two guerrilla groups are known to be operating in Guadalajara, apparently independently. They are the Revolutionary Front, which released the American consul-general on payment of $80,000 and the freeing of 30 political prisoners, and the 23rd of September Communist League. The League kidnaped a young millionaire and the honorary British consul on the same day last October, killed the millionaire and released the consul unharmed, although no ransom was paid.

KIDNAPED—Jose Hernandez, 82, father-in-law of Mexican President Luis Echeverria, was kidnaped early today on a street in Guadalajara by four men armed with machineguns. He is ex-governor of the state of Jaliaco and a columnist for a local Paper. (AP Wirephoto)

Long Coal Strike Ends After 11-Hour Session

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 13-month strike at an Eastern Kentucky mine was settled early today after an 11-hour round of negotiating sessions, the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service announced.

The settlement was seen as a symbolic victory for the United Mine Workers, which pressed the strike as a well-publicized campaign to gain a union beach-head in Eastern Kentucky, long a stronghold of small, non-union mines.

The target of the strike was a Duke Power Co. coal mining subsidiary, the Eastover Mining Co. Miners walked off their jobs at the firm's Brookside mine near Harlan, Ky., more than a year ago after voting to leave the small Southern Labor Union and join the UMW.

Details of the contract settlement were not announced by the mediation service, but sources said the terms were similar to other contracts in the coal industry. W. J. Usery, Jr., director of the mediation service, said, "I sincerely hope that this agreement will end the violence and bitterness which has been associated with this strike.

The strike was marred by several shooting incidents, including one last week which prompted mediators to request that the mine be closed.

The stalemate in negotiations at Harlan also threatened to interrupt the UMW's long-delayed national contract negotiations with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association. The present national three-year contract expires Nov. 12.

Stepped-up negotiations in the Harlan dispute were engineered by Usery, who acted as a go-between between UMW President Arnold Miller and Duke President Carl Horn Jr.

The two sides began meeting at 1 p.m. Wednesday, broke for four hours late in the day and reached a settlement at 4 a.m. today, spokesmen said.

The UMW was forced out of Eastern Kentucky in the 1930s when battles between the union and mine operators earned Harlan County the title of "Bloody Harlan."

Says Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt: "I'm a Morgan for Senate man. I plan to campaign for him as much as I possibly can."

Morgan says he leaves the Attorney General's office with the feeling that he accomplished a great deal. His critics say he used it as a stepping stone to higher political office, and charge that his press clippings are better than his actual record.

Morgan has heard the criticism before. Politics has been his life for years. Now he turns his attention to the biggest race of his career, knowing that whatever his record at Attorney General, he made the office one that is coveted by both major political parties.

Keeps Silence On Nixon Study

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski has drawn even tighter the curtain of silence surrounding his deliberations on the case of Richard M. Nixon. While leaving the next move to Jaworski, President Ford has said he will render the final judgment in any prosecution of his predecessor.

In the aftermath of Ford's statements at a news conference Wednesday, Jaworski and his staff not only declined comment but even refused to entertain questions.

Ford told his news conference he subscribes to the view of those who hold that Nixon should be spared from prosecution in the Watergate case that forced him from office.

Despite that, the President said Jaworski "has an obligation to take whatever action he sees fit ... and that should include any and all individuals."

But Ford made it clear that he, as President, would make the final judgment in the case.

"I am the final authority," he said.

Asked if he would consider a pardon for Nixon if legal action were taken against the former president, Ford replied:

"Of course, I make the final decision. Until it gets to me, I make no commitment one way or the other. But I do have the right as President of the United States to make that decision."

The matter of Nixon's status as a potential defendant in the Watergate case was the opening question in Ford's first news conference as President.

Ford clearly expected it. He had in hand for quotation his statement when he took office Aug. 9 that he hoped "our former president, who brought peace to millions, will find it for himself."

Rather than saying directly that he thought Nixon should be spared from prosecution, Ford chose to state his agreement with others who already had expressed that view, which he described as "the general view and the point of view of the American people."

OK $20,010 To Research

North Carolina's Alcholism Research Authority (ARA) has approved a $20,010 application for funds for research into the effect of ethanol on amine metabolites in the rat.

The grant is the fifth approved by the ARA since its establishment by the 1973 General Assembly. The application for the grant was considered along with others at the ARA's meeting in Greenville last week.

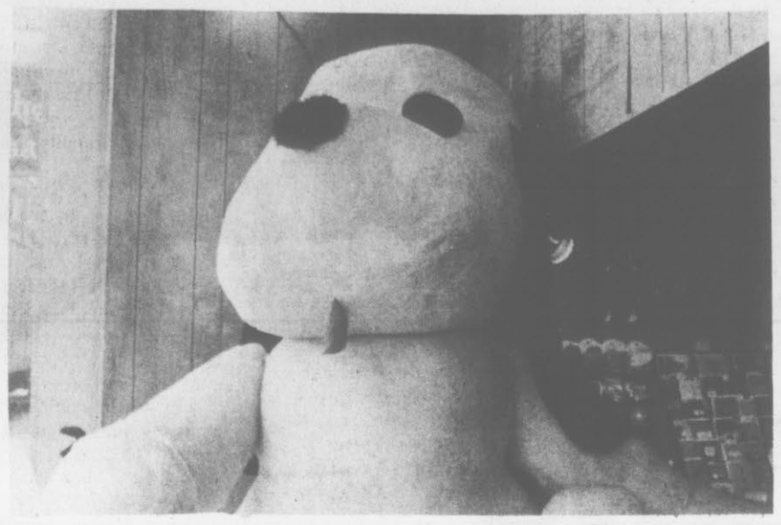

The funds will go to Dr. David Waterbury of the Dept. of Physiology of Bowman Gray School of Medicine at Winston-Salem.

The ARA considered applications totaling $241,020, while approving the despersal of funds totaling $83,810 from their allocated $250,000 budget.

North Carolina's ARA is the only known state supported organization assigned the task of researching the causes of alcholism.

Among the group's nine governor-appointed members is Dr. Phillip G. Nelson of Greenville.

California had 73,755 campsites in 1973, says the National Automobile Club.

Greek Cypriots Ask Aid To Refugees

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Greek Cypriot government wants the Security Council to demand that Turkey let the Greek Cypriots driven from their homes by the invasion of Cyprus return and live under the protection of United Nations troops.

The plea was to be made to the council this afternoon at a meeting called at the request of the Greek Cypriots to "consider the grave situation in Cyprus, including the refugee problem." The Greek Cypriots claim that 200,000 of their people are refugees from the nearly 40 per cent of the island that the Turkish invasion force has occupied.

Cypriot Ambassador Zenon Rossides also was going to tell the council that his government would let the U. N. peacekeeping force protect Turkish Cypriots in the Greek area if the Turks would let the U.N. troops protect Greeks in the Turkish area.

The council may also discuss the Soviet proposal for an international conference on Cyprus attended by the 15 council members plus Greece, Turkey and representatives of the two Cypriot communities.

Some council delegates said privately that the proposal could not get the nine council votes needed to endorse it, and they doubted that the Russians would submit a resolution to that effect.

Greece and the Greek Cypriots have embraced the proposal, but Turkey rejected it and demanded a renewal of the negotiations between the Greek and Turkish Cypriots and Turkey, Greece and Britain, the signers of the 1959 independence treaty for Cyprus.

A spokesman for U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said that during his visits to Athens, Ankara and Nicosia last weekend, he noted a gap between the Greek and Turkish positions and did not expect negotiations to resume "in the near future."

The U. N. Command on Cyprus reported the island was completely quiet Wednesday, with not even minor violations of the cease-fire. But the Greek Cypriot government charged that Turkish troops pushed beyond their lines, looted the village of Akhna in the southern part of the island and seized eight Greek Cypriot hostages. The Nicosia government said the Turkish withdrew after U.N. troops intervened.

Warns Food Supply Is Not Keeping Up

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — The world's agricultural production may not keep ahead of its population growth, even with the application of modern technology, the deputy director of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization warned the World Population Conference Wednesday.

Roy Jackson emphasized that in almost 40 per cent of the developing countries, food production has failed to keep up with population growth, and in almost two-thirds of the so-called Third World it has not kept up with the increase in domestic demand.

Consequently, he continued, much of the world has come to rely increasingly on the North American "bread basket," which now supplies more than half the world's wheat and other food grains and about 80 per cent of its soybeans.

But Lester Brown of the Overseas Development Council in Washington, D.C., warned that by being "a supplier of food to the rest of the world," the United States may be put in the position of having to decide who is fed and who starves.

North America is not immune to drought, frost and other vagaries of weather as well as economic and political disruptions, he continued. He expressed doubt that if crops are poor, the United States and Canada could export the quantities of food Asia and Africa need.

AN OFFER HE COULDN'T REFUSE

NUNEATON, England (AP) — A customer, lacking the full price of the auto he wanted to buy, offered Roger Hext a donkey as a trade-in. Hext parked the five-year-old model, called Neptune, in the forecourt of his garage until he could find it a home.

Happily Confess 'Love Is Blind'

By MIKE DUNSTAN
Associated Press Writer

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — A romance that sprouted at a Guide Dogs for the Blind training school will blossom with the marriage of a young couple who confess happily that their "love is blind."

Christell Chistopher, 18, and Rick Ehrler, 26, both blind, met June 23 at the training school.

"I can't believe all this has happened," said Ehrler, elated by his planned wedding on Sept. 21. "I just went down to the Civic Center to get our marriage license, and wow!"

Both insist it wasn't their blindness that brought them together.

"Blindness didn't come into finding each other. We didn't try to find someone who was blind," Ehrler said.

Together they stroll into stores and go dancing, along with their two new guide dogs — Carol, Chris's Labrador retriever, and Fergus, Rick's German shepherd.

"We kind of crack up when we walk together in stores with our dogs or go dancing," Ehrler said. "We both love to go out and do things. Blind people don't have to sit in a corner and sell pencils."

Together, Ehrler and Miss Christopher ski on water and snow, bowl and go camping. "We like to sit and listen to the television, too," Ehrler said.

When she was 5, Miss Christopher was blinded from a blood clot on her optic nerve, brought about when she bumped her head on a toy box.

Ehrler lost his sight in 1969 while in combat in Vietnam.

Sightlessness has been an inconvenience to the pair, but Ehrler says it may have been more of a blessing than a handicap.

"Sometimes I think the guy who made up 'love is blind' is right," Ehrler said, "because you tend not to look at things objectively when you're in love."

Farmville Mart Had $111.18 Day

The Farmville Tobacco Market posted an average of $111.18 per hundred on Wednesday as 338,894 pounds were sold for $376,778.

Sales supervisor Louis Williams said that leaf grades continued to increase in volume yesterday while primings and cutters accounted for a smaller percentage of the offerings than on Tuesday.

More smoking leaf was on the floor for sale Wednesday than on any day this season, Williams reported, and top practical price of $1.12 per pound was paid for leaf, smoking leaf and cutters.

Stabilization did not receive any tobacco on Wednesday's sale.

To date, the Farmville market has sold 12,138,591 pounds for $11,960,572, an average of $98 per hundred pounds.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined broadly in slow trading today, adding further to its heavy losses of the past three weeks.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 3.91 at 662.80, extending its drop since Aug. 7 to more than 134 points.

Losers overran gainers by 5-to-2 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the market was continuing to express investors' frustration with inflation and fears that the coming months would be rugged ones for the economy in general.

Another depressant, they said, was the widespread view that there was little chance of any substantial technical rebound before the approaching three-day Labor Day weekend.

Great Western Financial was the most-active Big Board issue, down ½ at 7⅜. A 117,400-share block traded at 7¼.

Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel, which declared its first dividend in several years Wednesday, was up a point at 19½.

American Family Corp. gained ⅜ to 4½. The company announced plans to buy up to 110,000 of its own shares.

Gold stocks gained slightly, rebounding from a recent slide. ASA, Ltd., picked up 1⅛ to 87⅛; Homestake Mining, ¾ to 52¾; Dome Mines, ¾ to 53¼; and Campbell Red Lake Mines, ½ to 37⅛.

The NYSE's 11 a.m. composite index of all its listed common stocks was down .17 at 36.89.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index lost .12 to 69.78.

The Amex volume leader was Marinduque Mining B, up ⅛ at 2⅜.

Work Monday, Not Wednesday

Greenville Public Works Department Director Mayo Allen says the sanitation division will work Labor Day because of the heavy volume of trash and garbage expected to be accumulated during the weekend.

The Sanitation workers will have their holiday Wednesday, he said. Since this is the day for front yard pickup, trash pickup will be Thursday or Friday. If anyone has not had his trash picked up next week by Friday at 11 a.m., he should call the Sanitation Department (752-4137, Ext. 244) and request a special pickup.

"With the continued support of the public, we can have a clean city and enjoy our holidays," Allen said.

Hearing Appeal By Ben Chavis

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Court of Appeals was to hear arguments today on the appeal of Ben Chavis and nine others convicted on charges growing out of racial disturbances in Wilmington in 1971.

In a 178-page brief filed with the court, defense attorneys contend Chavis and the others were denied the right to a fair and impartial jury in their 1972 trial in Pender County.

The charges stemmed from the burning of a grocery store during racial disorders. Chavis and eight black youths were convicted of burning property with an incendiary device and conspiracy to assault emergency personnel with dangerous weapons.

A white woman, Ann Shepherd, was convicted as an accessory before the fact and sentenced to seven to 10 years. Chavis received a sentence of 25-29 years. The other eight also were sentenced to prison. All are free on bond pending the appeal.

Lines 'Out' By Lightning

Electrical service to several Greenville Utilities customers was discontinued for a short period yesterday because of direct strikes from an electrical storm.

According to Malcolm Green, assistant director of GUCO, three areas served by GUCO had service discontinued from 15 to 45 minutes.

A direct hit on a wire on Ragsdale Drive discontinued service along Elm and 14th Streets, said Green, for around 45-50 minutes, while service in the Meadowbrook area was out for 15 minutes from a separate strike.

A third hit on First Street discontinued service for the Tar River Estates apartments for around 15 minutes also, said Green.

High winds on rural paved road 1764 south of Greenville discontinued service in that area, Green added, and trees 12 inches in diamater were knocked down by a small concentration of winds.

Ford Advises...

carefully so that they don't have any fat and marginal programs are eliminated."

The administration is probing virtually every part of the budget for fat, economic coordinator Kenneth Rush said in an interview.

And Roy L. Ash, director of the Office of Management and Budget, has been trying to hammer out a bipartisan approach to budget cutting.

This would involve agreements in advance between congressional leaders and the White House on where cuts can be made in programs.

Ford's statements about the economy brought a mixed reaction from members of Congress.

Chairman Wilbur Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee said he agreed with the President that wage and price controls cannot be reimposed now. But Mills said it is possible they will be needed in the future.

House Banking Committee Chairman Wright Patman said he didn't share Ford's confidence that voluntary wage and price guidelines would tame inflation, but was willing to give it a try.

On other issues, Ford said:

—Administration economic advisers have suggested that if the economy worsens the government ought to provide more public service jobs. "We will approach this problem with compassion and action where there is a need for it," Ford said.

—His nomination of Nelson A. Rockefeller to be vice president and his statement on amnesty for Vietnam war resisters are not "views that fall in the political spectrum right or left." Ford said, "I don't think I have deviated from my basic philosophy nor have I deviated from what I think is the right action."

—"I will probably be a candidate in 1976." The President called himself and Rockefeller a good team, "but of course the final judgment in this matter will be that of the delegates to the national convention."

—Rockefeller will take over Ford's responsibility of heading the subcommittee of the Domestic Council on privacy and will make a significant contribution to foreign policy formulation.

—A new attitude from Cuba toward the United States and its Latin neighbors could lead to U.S. re-evaluation of its policy. "But before we made any change, we would certainly act in concert with the other members of the Organization of American States," Ford said.

—It is necessary to accelerate Project Independence, the plan originated by Nixon to make the United States independent from imported oil. Ford urged more searching for oil and gas and said the government will expedite the licensing of new nuclear reactors and accelerate research and development in all fields of energy.

Heavy Nuclear Blast Detected

UPPSALA, Sweden (AP) — A powerful nuclear charge was blasted underground today in the Soviet Novaya Zemlya area, Prof. Marcus Baath, head of the Uppsala Seismological Institution, reported.

The explosion was measured at 6.6 on the Richter scale, Baath said. An earthquake with a 7 reading would be a major one.

Undecided On Open Meeting

KNOXVILLE (AP)—Two of the three directors of the Tennessee Valley Authority say they haven't decided whether to open their regular meetings to the public.

The other member, William Jenkins, says the public and news media would be better served if the meetings become open door affairs.

Thus, debate continues over whether the huge governmental agency should place its critical decision-making actions in full view of the people to whom it supplies electricity.

If so, it would be the first time in TVA's 41-year history. The authority serves powers to all of Tennessee and parts of Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, Virginia and Kentucky.

In the last four years, the agency has increased its electricity rates roughly 45 per cent. The rate hikes have prompted harsh criticism from the public and officials in goverment. But TVA maintains the rising cost of coal, anti-pollution equipment and improvement of service necessitate the changes, which are always decided upon in closed-door meetings by the three-member board of directors.

"In my mind, it has come to the point where I feel that the press and the public would be better served if the meetings were open," said Jenkins.

"I haven't made up my mind yet," said Chairman Aubrey Wagner. "We're going to consider it."

Don McBride said he wanted to hear a staff discussion of the issue before making a decision.

The board decides on major programs, policies and activities of the authority. Being a federal agency, its meetings are no subject to Tennessee's open meetings law.

The matter will be taken up formally at the board's next scheduled meeting Sept. 5. However, Lynn Seeber, the agency's general manager, said the issue is not likely to be decided upon at that time.

Radio WGNL Has Problem

Radio station WGNL was unable to sign-on-the-air today due to latent technical difidulties associated with an electrical storm earlier this week.

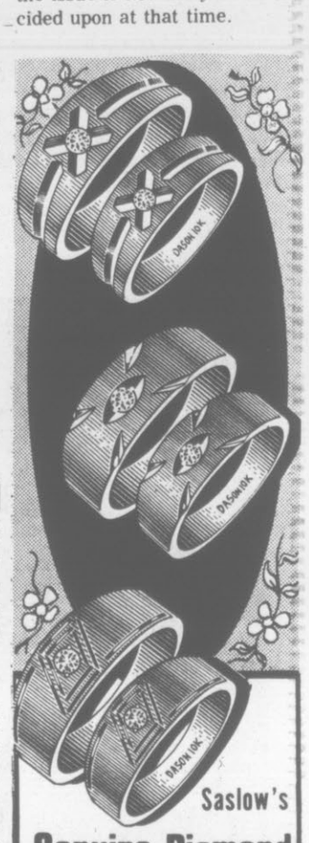

According to WGNL vice-president in charge of operations, John West, the problem concerns an equalized telephone line running from the station's transmitter site on the Stantonsburg Road to the studios located in the Wilcar building on West Tenth St.

West states that Carolina Telephone and Telegraph officials were notified immediately and that they are working on the problem.

According to West, the station should return to its normal broadcast schedule no later than the normal sign-on time of 6:30 a.m. tomorrow.

Rampants Open Season Against Pack

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

Rose High School's Rampants get the jump on most of the other high school football teams in the area Friday night at 7:30 p.m. when they entertain Washington in Ficklen Stadium.

And as the Rampants prepare for the game, Coach Dave Bumgarner is optimistic, but guardedly. The reason for this is the fact that, despite a veteran and strong defense, the Rampants have a young, inexperienced offensive line.

"We have 17 people back who started either on the offense, defense or the specialty teams," Bumgarner said. "But we've done alot of switching around of positions, so a lot of people where they didn't play last year. Mostly we've moved offensive people over to the defense, so our offense will be younger."

While the experience overall is good, Bumgarner notes that the new players have picked up the offense well during pre-season practice. "I'm real pleased so far," he said.

Another plus is the fact that both of the quarterbacks who saw starting action last year, junior Henry Trevathan, and senior Mike Ball, return. "This is one of our most veteran positions, and it really helps out to have someone there who knows what's going on."

The offensive line, at this point, is possibly the weakest part of the team, mainly because of the inexperience. "I hope that we'll learn quickly, in the first couple of games," Bumgarner said. There are only two returning starters, and one of them is slated for backup duty.

Eddie Connolly returns at the position, giving it the best experience. The tight end will be Curt Creech, who played a lot last year, and is rated both as a good blocker and a good receiver.

Max Joyner and Mike Murad, both juniors are tagged for the tackle slots. Joe Godette and Gilbert Cox are slated to get the calls for the guards, with Lee Hill, a returning starter from last year, seeing a lot of duty both at the guard and tackle position. Backing up center will be Jordy Whichard and Rocky Butler.

The split end position will go to Tommy Joe Payne, a starter last year. Macon Moye will also see a lot of action here.

Trevathan will probably get the call for the starting job at the quarterback, while Doug Paschal, a hard runner, returns at fullback. The halfbacks will be Ronald Randolph and Lindberg Morris, both of whom were occasional or starters last year. Andrew Newton and William Joyner will also see a lot of play, as will Harry Pair.

"I think our offense will be adequate," Bumgarner said. "When we get experience, it should be much better than last year. If the line goes after people, we'll have no problem. They just need to be aggressive."

The defense will line up again in a four-four. "This is probably the brightest spot of our game," Bumgarner said. "We expected it to be slim when practice started, but our defensive players have really come along."

Phil Gibbs, a transfer from Jacksonville, will handle one of the end positions, while John Mallow will be at the other. "Both are hard hitters," Bumgarner said.

The inside men will be Tim Toates and Danny Harrington, both of whom had experience at other positions last year.

Ron Hunt, a converted offensive lineman, will be at one of the inside linebacker slots, joining veteran Mike Brewington. Jeff Hagans, another offensive starter last year, moves to one of the outside positions, while either Jay Chenier or Butler, who is the only sophomore on the varsity, will be at the other. "We have a number of people who'll be playing at these positions."

Jace Hagans, who saw a little action last year, will be at one of the halfbacks, while Pair will take the other. Moye, who didn't play at all last year, will be the safety. "Again, we have a lot of people backing them up, but most of them are inexperienced," the coach said.

Moye is also slated to handle the punting duties while Jeff Hagans will do the placements and Toates will kickoff. "Earlier, we were worried about the PAT situation, but we feel Hagans will do a good job. It isn't what we had last year in Scott Wolcott, but he should do okay."

Bumgarner looks to Northern Nash and Northeastern to be the strong teams in the conference, but warns that Rocky Mount is always strong and Wilson will be greatly improved.

"We should be right in there too. It really depends on how fast our young men come along, whether we get the breaks, and whether we stay healthy."

Some do pick the Rampants to win it—and win it they must to get a post-season berth. The conference gets only one berth in the 4-A Playoffs this year, and the champ will be the only one going.

Capsule Report

OUTLOOK—Rose returns several good backs, but has moved much of its offensive line to defense, leaving inexperienced people to fill in there. Still, with a little experience, the Rampants could be a threat in the Division I race, which has only one playoff berth open this year. The Rose gridders hope to open up their running game with a little more passing this year, as Henry Trevathan returns for a second year at the quarterback helm.

OFFENSE—Wishbone.

DEFENSE—Four-four.

Schedule—Aug. 30, Washington; Sept. 6, at Farmville Central; Sept. 13, New Bern; Sept. 20, at Kinston; Sept. 27, Jacksonville; Oct. 4, at Goldsboro; Oct. 11, at Rocky Mount; Oct. 25, Northern Nash; Nov. 2, Wilson; Nov. 8, at Northeastern.

Linebacking Tough Job

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

Out of the 22 players that make of the offensive and defensive squads of a football team, the players that have to spread themselves the thinnest are the linebackers.

On any play, they have got to move in to stop a run or drop back to protect on a pass. They have to force a run inside if it is going out and stop it when it goes inside. They have to be able to rush the quarterback but stay back to be ready for a draw play.

They have to be everywhere at once.

What makes a good linebacker? First off, he has to be a good athlete. He also has to have played the position before, be a good tackler, have good hands and speed and strength.

"It takes a unique type of player of play linebacker, it takes a good athlete to play it," said East Carolina Linebacker Coach Frank Orgel. Orgel is in his first year at ECU and even though his job is hard, it is made easier by the players he has returning to this position.

Every one back this year started last year giving the whole linebacking corps a good deal of experience. There are also several players back who although not starters last year, could be this year and will provide good backup to those players who do start.

Orgel works his linebackers everyday on tackling drills and on pass coverage, "because linebackers are first involved with the run but secondly they are involved with the pass. The passing game has gotton to the point where everyone is hitting underneath so you have to have linebackers who can drop back and be able to run with a back coming out of the backfield," said Orgel.

Orgel works his linebackers on the offensive scout team, also, going over inside and outside movement drills so they can get a look at what will be coming at them in that week's game. Orgel also has them work on recognizing check points and what they should do in game situations. They also work on pass coverage.

Orgel knows what a team might run by having studied scouting reports and game films. By knowing what to expect, he can coach his linebackers to do what they can to stop that particular team on each of their opponent's favorite plays.

During the off-season, Orgel is in charge of keeping the players in shape and keeping them on their weight training programs. "When we got here this year, we put in a weight program with the barbell sets and we stress a lot of strength work to build bulk and strength. We work three days a week on the weights and two days on running and jogging.

"Next year, we are going to incorporate a wrestling program with the help of Coach John Welborn. They will be working one group on the weights, one on the mats and one in the agility area. Of course we will switch around so everybody gets to work at each station.

"We had a lot of success with it this year, we had some kinds that jumped up two and three hundred pounds on the bench press and it is encouraging when they can do that kind of weight work," said Orgel.

Orgel also has to oversee the distribution of equipment and management of it, as well as coordinations the work of the managers. "We try to have it organized where we have a manager with a particular coach on the field and each one is responsible for getting the equipment that we need on the field each day. The managers are a big part of the program because they aleviate a lot of problems that you don't have time to worry about."

The managers issue the uniforms to each player as well as the practice wear.

Any time East Carolina linebackers are mentioned one naturally thinks of Danny Kepley. Orgel will also have Butch Strawderman, Billy Hibbs, Gary Niklason and Nelson Strother returning at linebackers. With their experience Orgel's Wild Dog linebackers may be wilder than ever this year.

Short Jump For Matuszak

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

John Matuszak has snuffed out screen passes, counteracted trap plays and smashed through double blocks, but he couldn't come up with anything Wednesday night to stop the wheels of justice.

The Texas authorities may be late, but eventually they'll get their man. Wednesday night, it happened to be the mammoth Matuszak, who made one of the shortest — but most dramatic — jumps in professional football history earlier in the day.

Matuszak, a 6-foot-8, 285-pound defensive giant, found a loophole in his contract with the Houston Oilers and drove through it, winding up in the camp of the Houston Texans of the World Football League where he signed a multi-year contract.

Matuszak, a former Tampa All-American who was the No. 1 NFL draft pick in the 1973 collegiate draft, entered the game early in the first quarter.

"We wanted to serve it (the restraining order) before Matuszak got on the field," Oiler owner Bud Adams said, "but they left the sheriff's office too late to issue it before the game started."

After a defensive series in the second period, Matuszak, escorted by Texans' owner Steve Arnold, walked down the sidelines where he was served the restraining order by sheriff's deputies.

The order side-lined Matuszak for the rest of the game and, according to his lawyer, Gary Koposta, would keep him inactive until a hearing Sept. 5.

Matuszak spent the rest of the game on the bench and watched the Texans beat the New York Stars 14-11, equalling the number of victories he watched the Oilers pick up in 1973.

Elsewhere in the WFL, the Memphis Southmen downed the Florida Blazers 26-18, the Southern California Sun trounced the Portland Storm 45-15 and the Philadelphia Bell beat the Detroit Wheels 27-23.

While the legal battle raged on the sidelines, quarterback Mike Taliaferro guided the Texans to one of their most productive performances of the season, reversing a 43-10 loss to New York last week.

Taliaferro tossed two touchdown passes, the first one going to tight end Willie Frazier in the first quarter.

The game-clincher came early in the fourth period when Rick Eber eluded the Stars secondary and caught a 25-yard touchdown pass all alone in the end zone.

Bell 27, Wheels 23

Quarterback Jim "King" Corcoran gambled and won, dealing the winless Wheels another loss.

Corcoran chanced a pass on a crucial fourth and eight situation midway through the final quarter. And it paid off. He hit running back Claude Watts with an 18-yard pass to set up Jerry Warren's second field goal of the night, which proved to be the game-winner.

Southmen 26, Blazers 18

John Harvey took advantage of an injury to Willie Spencer and started the game, then took advantage of the Eastern-Division leading Blazers, running around them for 137 yards and one touchdown.

Malone Circus Is Ending

WASHINGTON (AP) — Moses Malone has finally signed a contract to play for the Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association, so sources say, ending a three-ring circus that began in Petersburg, Va., this spring, about the time the superstar was about to graduate from high school.

Malone, 19, who lingered on the threshold of indecision for several days before signing a grant-in-aid to attend the University of Maryland, again kept reporters by the hundreds guessing while he considered whether to become the first youth ever to bypass college, going straight from schoolboy basketball to the pros.

Malone, according to an official of the University of Maryland who preferred to remain anonymous, late Wednesday affixed his signature to a lucrative contract offered by the ABA club.

The timing and setting of the signing was every bit as dramatic as the months of maneuvering by hundred of college coaches who had coveted the services of the lean, 6-foot-11, athlete.

The Maryland source said Malone was driven from Washington, D. C., into suburban Virginia for the signing. The reason: Malone is too young to sign a contract in the District, while Virginia's age of majority is 18.

According to the source, Malone was escorted across the state line by Donald Dell, a Washington attorney, and was accompanied by Mrs. Mary Malone, his mother, and an official of the Stars.

Neither Malone nor the Stars' officials were available for confirmation early today, but the ABA scheduled a news conference for 2:30 p.m. today at the Hotel Americana in New York.

It was presumed the signing of Malone would be offically announced at that time and that the young basketball star, compared with Kareen Abdul Jabbar and Bill Walton, would be present for the occasion.

Meanwhile, Jim Bucata, public relations director of the ABA, said Wednesday that Malone would come to New York today "for the final signature" on a contract with the Stars.

"It will be put on in New York," said Bucata. "I don't know at this point whether that means Malone's signature or the Stars' signature."

A short time earlier a source close to Lefty Driesell, the Maryland basketball coach who had recruited the 6-foot-11 Malone to a college grant-in-aid, quoted Driesell as saying Malone had finally decided to sign a contract — estimated by some sources for as much as $3 million — with the Stars.

Bucs Claim 6th In Row

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Ed Kirkpatrick's two-run double in the 11th inning fired the streaking Pittsburgh Pirates to a 3-1 victory over the San Francisco Giants. The win was the sixth in a row for the East Division leaders.

The Pirates took a 1-0 lead in the third on successive one-out singles by Rennie Stennett, Richie Hebner and Al Oliver, with Oliver extending his hitting streak to 21 games. San Francisco tied it in the bottom of the third when Garry Maddox singled, Gary Thomasson walked, the runners pulled a double steal and Gary Matthews sent Maddox home with a grounder.

In Wednesday night's other National League games, the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Chicago 7-6, the Houston Astros edged New York 3-2 in 10 innings, the Atlanta Braves beat Montreal 4-2 and the St. Louis Cardinals downed San Diego 5-1.

Reds 4, Phils 3

Terry Crowley's run-scoring double in the eighth inning carried Cincinnati's redhot Reds to a 4-3 victory over the sinking Philadelphia Phillies.

Darrell Chaney's two-out single brought Crowley, hitting only .239, to the plate to bat for pitcher Will McEnaney. His half-swing hit rocketed between center and right field and Chaney scored from first to give the Reds their ninth victory in the last 11 games, within three games of first-place Los Angeles in the West.

Dodgers 7, Cubs 6

Bill Madlock's pinch-hit grand slam gave Chicago an eighth-inning tie — but Willie Crawford's sacrifice fly in the bottom of the ninth gave the Dodgers the victory.

Steve Garvey's fifth single of the game started the nint and Ron Cey was safe at first when pitcher Oscar Zamora fumbled his bunt. Joe Ferguson sacrificed the runners up a base and Von Joshua was walked intentionally to load the bases before Crawford batted for Bill Russell and hit his game-winning fly ball, giving reliever Mike Marshall the victory.

Astros 3, Mets 2

Cliff Johnson's two-out home run in the 10th inning that powered the Astros past New York was Johnson's fifth as a pinch hitter, equalling Joe Cronin's 1943 American League record and putting Johnson within one of the major league mark of six, set by Donnie Frederick of the 1932 Brooklyn Dodgers.

Braves 4, Expos 2

Ralph Garr belted a two-run triple in the ninth inning, then scored on Marty Perez' single to lift the Braves over Montreal.

Cards 5, Padres 1

Bake McBride hit a tie-breaking two-run single in the seventh inning and Ted Simmons followed with a two-run double to beat the Padres and keep St. Louis within 1½ games of the Pirates.

Lou Brock stole two bases to boost his season total to 91 and singled to open the seventh inning before Reggie Smith and Joe Torre walked to load the bases and set up McBride's hit.

In Wednesday's American League games, it was Detroit 2, California 1; Oakland 3, Milwaukee 1; Cleveland 7, Kansas City 1; New York 5, Minnesota 0; Texas 4, Baltimore 2, and Chicago 3, Boston 0.

Hunter Wins 20th; Perry Gets His 17th

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Catfish Hunter has been a 20-game winner in each of the past three seasons, and Wednesday night the ace right-hander of the Oakland A's joined that select circle once again with a 3-1 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Hunter joined Boston's Luis Tiant as the only 20-game winners in the majors on the strength of a pair of home runs by Reggie Jackson.

Jackson's first homer of the night, a 420-foot shot into the right-center-field bullpen leading off the seventh inning against Jim Colborn, 8-11, gave Hunter a 2-1 lead. Jackson then led off the ninth with his 26th of the year, a booming 450-foot blast to right.

Hunter, 20-10, got ninth-inning relief help from Paul Lindblad and Rollie Fingers in posting his sixth victory in his last seven decisions.

The victory boosted the A's lead in the American League West to 5½ games over the second-place Kansas City Royals.

Elsewhere in the American League, Cleveland beat Kansas City 7-1, New York blanked Minnesota 5-0, Detroit edged California 2-1, Texas tripped Baltimore 4-2 and Chicago shut out Boston 3-0.

Indians 7, Royals 1

Gaylord Perry, 17-9, pitched a five-hitter and Charlie Spikes and Rico Carty drove in two runs apiece for the Indians.

Yankees 5, Twins 0

Pat Dobson, 13-14, scattered seven hits and Thurman Munson homered and drove in three runs as the second-place Yankees pulled within 4½ games of Boston in the AL East.

It was Dobson's second shutout of the season, and the Yankee hurler said he felt he got better as the game went along.

Tigers 2, Angels 1

Home runs by Ed Brinkman and Al Kaline powered the Tigers to victory behind the six-hit pitching of Mickey Lolich, 16-15.

Brinkman's lead-off homer in the eighth tied the game, then Kaline's 10th home run of the season into the upper deck in left field off rookie Frank Tanana, 9-16, untied it.

Rangers 4, Orioles 2

Home runs by Toby Harrah and Jim Fregosi powered Texas over Baltimore.

Harrah's blast, his 18th, tied the game at 2-2 in the second inning. Jeff Burroughs doubled home the tie-breaking run in the fifth, then Fregosi led off the sixth with his 12th homer of the season.

The run batted in boosted Burroughs' season total to 106, tops in the majors.

White Sox 3, Red Sox 0

Bart Johnson blanked Boston on four singles, Bill Sharp homered in the fourth inning and Bucky Dent drove in a pair of runs with a bases-loaded double in the eighth.

National League scores: Pittsburgh 3, San Francisco 1 in 11 innings; Houston 3, New York 2 in 10 innings; Cincinnati 4, Philadelphia 3; Atlanta 4, Montreal 2; St. Louis 5, San Diego 1, and Los Angeles 7, Chicago 6.

Pearson Seen As Pole Sitter

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — If everything goes as expected, David Pearson should win the front row pole position for the 25th running of the fabled Southern 500 stock car race.

The odds favored the 39th-old millionaire driver in today's first round of time trials simply because he's the most consistent pole sitter in recent stock car racing history.

Pearson already has won 10 of the top berths during the current campaign, and he's particularly good at the two-lap qualifying dashes at ancient Darlington International Raceway.

He holds the modern lap speed record for the mile and three-eighths oval, an impressive 153.463 miles per hour, set in April of last year. The mark, in fact, is so impressive that track officials offered a $1,000 bonus to anyone who could beat it in today's runs.

The first dozen spots in what will become a 40-car starting field for the $151,350 Labor Day race were to be decided in initial trials. Other qualifying sessions Friday and Saturday will fill out the field.

In addition to Pearson, other favorites for up-front starting berths included Buddy Baker in a Ford, Richard Petty in a Dodge, Cale Yarborough in a Chevrolet and Bobby Allison in a Matador.

Pearson, who wheeled his Wood Brothers' Mercury to victory in a 400 miler in Michigan last Sunday, ranks third in Nascar's money totals going into Monday's race.

The greying, 15-year veteran, still looking for his first Southern 500 triumph, already has accumulated $159,315 in prize money in only 14 starts.

Petty leads the money parade with $209,425, with Yarborough in the runnerup spot with $177,693. Petty and Yarborough, however, have made 22 starts this year.

Pearson, who started in the pole position for his win at Michigan, says being at the head of the pack at the flag-off is no guarantee of winning the race.

"But you gotta start somewhere, and the pole position gives you a little running room until things settle down," he said. "I don't like to be stuck too far back during the first few laps. You can get into trouble without even trying."

Dye Pleased With Practice

Head football coach Pat Dye said after surveying the results of Wednesday's light practice sessions that he simply liked what he saw.

"I'm real pleased so far as to what I've seen in shorts," said Dye. "Our quarterbacks have been executing much better than in the spring, the offense is further ahead than we expected and the learning process is in.

"The work now will come in straightening out some blocking problems."

Dye said that his "Old People" looked improved and that some freshmen have ability and will be able to help the team. But a lot more will be told today when the pads go on at 4:30 and the hitting begins.

It'll be a matter of how well they react to hitting," said Dye. "And a lot of these young people we have will have to come through for us to have depth."

Among the young people Dye said were performing well are running backs Willie Hawkins, D.H. Conley and quarterbacks Mike Weaver, Tom Chipok and Steve Hale and linemen Wayne Bolton, Lewis Morris, Ronnie Ragland, Ronnie Byrd, Avery Hilliard and Dennis Morgan.

Though the "Young People" will provide depth for the Pirates this season, it is those famous "Wild Dogs" that Dye said should be able to play with anyone.

"They are chompin' at the bit to get at some people," said Dye. "They have looked great so far in all phases as a unit.

"A freshman would have to be a special person to crack that lineup."

Dye said also that the defensive secondary had shown the most improvement of any defensive aspect, namely Greg Pingston, Ernie Madison, and freshman Milton Brown.

Hostage Cypriot Turks Waiting For Uncertain Fate From Greeks

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

PAPHOS, Cyprus (AP) — In the Turkish quarter of this coastal town, the men in the coffee shop talk of fleeing north to the Turkish lines 50 miles away.

"If we were permitted to go, we would not hesitate to go immediately to be in safety under the Turkish forces," said the high school music teacher. He didn't want to give his name for fear "of being taken off to prison like the 29 Turkish policemen from this quarter."

The English teacher said they handed in their guns to United Nations troops after surrendering because they ran out of ammunition. But he said that when peace negotiations broke down, they were at the mercy of the Greek Cypriot soldiers, most of them irregulars.

He said that the Greeks smashed in their doors and shop windows with rifle butts and fired machine guns through the quarter, killing seven persons. One was a 3-year-old child who died with more than 30 bullet wounds, he claimed.

The people of the quarter — others joined in the story — were taken to the soccer field for questioning, while "looters went through our houses taking what they could carry off. Radios, television sets, money, jewelry and gold."

"Now, we are hostage," said a baby-faced municipal clerk with no office to go to. "Everyone is frightened of what will happen. They keep asking when the Greeks will kill us. Why are they waiting?"

Paphos, 99 miles from Nicosia on the dry southwest side of Cyprus, has 10,000 Greeks and 3,000 Turks living apart in mutual suspicion. Since the Turkish invasion of northern Cyprus, the city has been shelled by a Greek gunboat, bombed by Turkish planes and hit by mortar and artillery fire.

Since the fighting ended almost two weeks ago, most of the people living in the narrow streets of the Turkish quarter have moved away from the Green Line separating the two communities and clustered protectively around their mosque, where a Greek soldier sits outside.

The mosque is closed. The men in the coffee shop say the Greeks stole the carpets and looted all the religious objects and the priest has not been allowed to return from his village.

Unlike many villages, there is electricity and water and the four wholesale grocers are permitted to bring food to the market. Food is plentiful at the moment, but money is getting scarce because there is no work.

The Greeks let shepherds tend their flocks, but others are not allowed to visit their lush flower and fruit gardens on the outskirts of town.

Telephone service has been disconnected for more than a month. Schools cannot open because most of the teachers did not return from their vacations, and the classrooms are full of refugees.

The small hospital has no doctor; it is run by medical students from Turkey who were vacationing on the island and were stranded by the fighting. The Greeks admit serious cases to the hospital in the Greek Cypriot quarter.

'Star Of Life' On Ambulances

"In the future, all new emergency medical vehicles will be identified by the "Star of Life" — a six-barred blue cross which has been adopted by the U.S. Department of Transportation as the identifying symbol for rescue vehicles.

The emblem replaces the traditional four-barred cross which has been displayed on most ambulances in the past.

The change was made after the American Red Cross indicated that the use of "a cross . . . Omaha orange (or other four-barred crosses) . . ." might violate a Congressional grant to the Red Cross to exclusively use this emblem.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, as a result, has adopted the "Star of Life" which clearly and distinctly identifies an emergency care vehicle or ambulance.

"STAR OF LIFE"

The "Star of Life" has already been identified by the medical profession as a medical Association.

Officials noted, however, while new vehicles will bear the new symbol, older vehicles will not be required at present to change their emblems but are encouraged to do so.

SHP Plans For Holiday Safety Push

The Highway Patrol will place special Labor Day weekend emphasis on pedestrian safety and detection of the drinking driver, according to Division Five First Sergeant T.M. Martin of Greenville.

Martin said that, as a part of the department's special emphasis program for the holiday weekend, all District Five personnel will be on duty and all speed timing devices will be in operation.

Personnel throughout the district will concentrate on detecting the drinking driver, speed violators and the driver who is operating his vehicle while fatigued, especially after midnight, the spokesman noted.

Martin reported that line patrol and selective enforcement will be devoting principal enforcement efforts to violations predominant in accidents on a selective basis at the time and places where such violations are occurring.

Troopers, he continued, will be encouraged to stop, check and take enforcement action, if warranted, on as many dangerous moving violations as possible.

Troopers will also be encouraged to stop all pedestrians if they are in violation of the law and to take enforcement action.

Martin, noting the high number of pedestrian fatalities, said the law stipulates that, "It shall be unlawful for pedestrians to walk along the travel portion of any highway except on the extreme left hand side thereof, and such pedestrians shall yield the right-of-way to approaching traffic."

Renoir Painting Has Disappeared

DETROIT (AP) — U.S. Customs agents are searching for a Renoir masterpiece which disappeared somewhere on its way between London and its owner in Minneapolis.

Investigators said the transatlantic air passage took less than a day. But more than a week elapsed before the carrying case in which the Renoir was shipped reached its destination.

The painting, an oil known as "The Lady in a Flowered Hat," is valued by its owner, Minneapolis attorney Samuel Maslon, at more than $100,000. He said it is insured for $150,000.

The carrying case in which the painting was packed left London on Wednesday, July 31, and arrived at Detroit's Metropolitan Airport about 5:30 p.m. on the same day aboard a Pan American World Airways flight.

The canvas, measuring 12 inches by 16 inches, was to be transferred to a Northwest Orient Airlines plane for the final leg of its journey to Minneapolis.

Authorities said the crate apparently remained at Metropolitan airport until 3 a.m. the next day.

The carrying case arrived at Minneapolis' Wold-Chamberlain International airport on Aug. 1 and was held in a "bonded" area for a week before being delivered to Maslon, investigators in that city reported.

Following prescribed procedure for costly imports, customs officials were present in Maslon's apartment when he opened the case on Aug. 8 and found it empty.

Customs officials at Metropolitan declined to speculate where and when the painting was removed from its carrying case.

They also were reluctant to discuss the delay or say how they handled the carrying case.

Maslon said he had sent the painting to London for possible sale at Christies, a world renowned art auction house.

Maslon said the painting had not been sold and was being returned to him.

The Argentine Automobile Club was founded June 11, 1904.

Rains In Midwest Were Too Little And Too Late

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Too little, too late.

That's the consensus about the recet rains that fell in the Midwest.

The experts say the moisture may help the soybean crop, but it's too late to do much about corn. Soybean and corn are two major grains used to feed dairy cows, chickens and beef cattle. If the price of feed goes up, so does the price of milk, poultry and meat.

No one is really sure exactly how much supermarket prices will rise, or when the boost will hit. The government already has upped its estimate of 1974 price increases, saying that at the end of this year, food will cost about 15 per cent more than it did in 1973. Earlier, the officials estimated a 12 per cent jump this year.

Americans may get a helping hand from Europe.

Petrus Lardinois, agriculture commissoner of the European Common Market, announced on Wednesday that the market will reduce purchases of U.S. corn and other feed grains by about 10 per cent in the coming year, leaving a greater supply for Americans.

"We think that when you have to cut back in your own consumption, especially of corn, that it is normal that we try also to do in our agricultural policy about the same," said Lardinois, who was in Washington, D.C., at the invitation of Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz.

The next government crop report isn't due until Sept. 11. The last report, issued on Aug. 12, said that the corn crop would be about 4.97 billion bushels, 12 per cent below last year's harvest.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture said Monday that a special midmonth review of the situation showed that rain during the first half of August "did not promote significant gains in corn production although soybeans could benefit from the moisture."

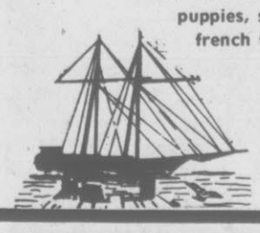

State and regional officials contacted in an Associated Press survey agreed, adding that the rain might help prepare the soil for fall wheat planting.

A spokesman for the Missouri Department of Agriculture said farmers in 20 counties have applied for low-cost federal loans because of damage to crops.

Neal Gunkel, assistant to the Illinois agriculture director, said rains have helped the soybeans — which are planted and harvested later than corn. But he predicted that the yield would be 15 per cent less than last year.

Reports from Iowa, the nation's top corn producer, showed earlier that more than half the crop was destroyed in some areas and officials said the rain came too late to help farmers recover.

Raymond, Hancock of the Kansas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said the rain would help the 1975 wheat crop which will be planted this fall and needs soil moisture to enable the seeds to germinate and grow through the winter months.

Nixon Said Holding Up

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Friends of former President Richard M. Nixon report he is preoccupied with legal problems but is holding up well physically and mentally in his virtual seclusion at San Clemente, the Los Angeles Times says.

The assessment of Nixon's private life in the Times account is based on statements from several persons who have been in contact with Nixon since his resignation. Most of the sources were not identified.

"Every one I've talked to says that Mr. Nixon is on top of things and that he is assessing his problems realistically," said Herbert G. Klein, former Nixon communications director who is now a Metromedia, Inc. executive.

"He has a lot of personal decisions to make — about what real estate properties to keep and other such matters," another friend was quoted as saying.

The Times account cited two basic problems for the former chief executive — his financial situation and the legal problems confronting him as an outgrowth of the Watergate case.

One source said the former president spends about $10,000 a month for mortgage payments, staff salaries and legal expenses, not counting personal living expenses.

Others who have talked to former Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler, who is staying in a rented house near the Nixon estate, quote him as saying Nixon "is coming along fine."

University Gets Aiken's Papers

BURLINGTON, Vt (AP) — Sen. George D. Aiken has turned over more than 60 file cabinets of his personal papers to the University of Vermont.

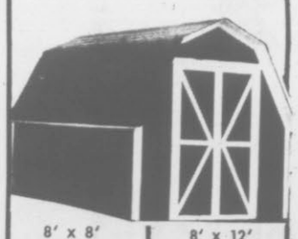

The Vermont Republican, who will retire later this year, said the papers date back to when he first became a senator in 1940. He said some items were deleted because they dealt with personal difficulties of his constituents and have no historical value.

The university plans to create a $250,000 fellowship in the name of the Senate's senior member. Aiken plans to spend January and February at the school making tape recordings of his experiences and meeting with students.

Aiken, 82, began his public career in 1920.

'College Crunch' For Soviet Youth Keyed To Exams

By LYNNE OLSON
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — "I haven't done much of anything since June," Valery said wearily. "I've spent all that time — well most of it — cramming for exams."

Like hordes of other 1974 Soviet high school graduates, Valery was preparing for a crucial series of tests, administered nationwide in August, which determined whether he would be allowed to embark on a higher education.

For 940,000 students, the pressure-ridden exams in four or five subjects, culminating 10 years of study, ended in triumph. Those students — about 20 per cent of the high school graduating class — were admitted to beginning studies at the Soviet Union's 845 universities and institutes.

But there were thousands of others who either failed or did not score high enough to compete with other applicants at the institutions which they hoped to attend.

It's the college crunch — Soviet style.

A recent Soviet educational study said that on the average, higher schools accept one of three applicants, but the Ivy League schools of the Soviet Union, such as Moscow State University and the University of Leningrad, and some prestigious institutes and art schools have a much higher turn-down rate.

For those who are not admitted to higher schools, as the magazine Moskva put it, the experience is a "catastrophe of life."

Soviet students start preparing for the entrance exams as early as three years before they actually take them, the magazine said.

"They do not imagine any other way for themselves," Moskva soberly concluded. "Not all of them know what speciality they will study but they have taken the institute for granted. Parents hire teachers for them who, in their opinion, know every question usually asked at the entrance examinations."

The exams, most of which are given orally over about a two-week period, are more important than the American college board tests because they're the prime criterion for college admission.

Komsomolskaya Pravda, a Soviet youth newspaper, has been critical of the exam process, claiming it "sometimes hampers the possibility to give an objective assessment of the knowledge and capability of young people entering institutions."

In an effort to overcome this problem, a new set of entrance regulations was issued two years ago demanding that students' high school grades and evidence of their work and "conscientiousness" be taken more into account.

The high school admission squeeze stems partly from the fact that the Soviet Union has taken such giant strides in making higher education, previously a privilege of the rich, available to many more of its people.

As a result, young people's expectations that they will go to higher schools have risen accordingly.

For the past few years, the Soviet Union has been trying to persuade some of its young people to opt for a job after secondary school graduation rather than try to go on to a higher school.

But, like their American counterparts, Soviet youth are increasingly shying away from the blue-collar or manual jobs and yearn for the prestige and the expected good employment won through a higher education diploma.

About half of the 4.6 million persons studying at higher education establishments do have jobs, attending classes in the evening or by correspondence. By Soviet law, they are given time off from their jobs to study and take examinations.

Of the 845 higher education institutions, only 62 are universities, a third not more than 10 years old. The remainder are highly specialized institutes, which concentrate on one of hundreds of fields, from mechanical engineering to languages to cinematography.

But even the universities are professional schools by American standards. With strong emphasis on sciences and technology rather than on general and broad scholarship and learning.

The intense desire for higher education has spawned a wide variety of abuses in the application procedure. The Soviet press is constantly critical of the use of political power and connections by parents to gain special privileges for their children.

Because tuition and dormitory lodging are free, students aren't hampered as much by finances in getting an education in the Soviet Union as they are in some countries.

About 75 per cent also receive a government stipend, ranging from 40 rubles upwards, but in most cases, it's not enough to cover all expenses. Most students still receive money and food packages from their parents.

Despite official Soviet insistence that education is equally available to all, the majority of higher education students are children of white-collar workers made up 59.6 per cent of the total number of students, despite the fact that group comprises only about 21 per cent of the population.

No Winning Bill Fight

LOUISBURG, N.C. (AP) — The electricity is back on at the Louisburg Bus Station after terminal operator Larry Joyner gave up his fight with City Hall.

Joyner paid his $158 electric bill for July Wednesday — plus a $100 dollar deposit for a new meter.

Joyner, 28, ordered town officials to remove his electric meter Monday, leaving the bus station in the dark and shutting off the air conditioner.

He was protesting electric bills he said had soared from an average of $60 a month to $90 in May, $132 in June, and $158 in July. Joyner said the meter must have been wrong.

"This is the type of thing you're not going to win in. I had hoped to get some action out of them and the town administrator admitted there is a possibility that something may be wrong," Joyner said.

Joyner added that his decision to pay the bill and the new deposit was because of a lack of support from other businessmen.

Meanwhile, a town official has ordered calibration tests for the bus station meter.

Worry Clinic

Girls Acquire Strategy Skill

Sexual differences depend both on heredity as well as acquired education. Women excel men in use of words, for males are more interested in things than in people! Cosmetic aids are part of the acquired psychological strategy of women.

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

CASE B-628: Larry N., aged 28, is a high school math teacher.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "is it an inborn factor that makes girls spend so much time on their personal appearance?

"They follow the ads regarding shampoos and cosmetics, and are usually late for a date, due to wasting time on nail polish and other show-off adornments.

"Narcissus was depicted as a male who was too fond of his own image, but I think Narcissus must have been a homosexual. "For he acted far more like a girl than a boy!"

Sex Differences

Psychological tests show that girls are more interested in people, while boys are more preoccupied with things.

Thus, girls develop language skills while boys are more attentive to mathematics and mechanics.

"But, Dr. Crane," you may protest, "why do some girls then enter engineering school or study to be chemists, if those are basically masculine realms?"

And the answer lies in the last 2 words of the above line, for smart women often decide that the best way to get a husband is not to attend a popular Liberal Arts College, where coeds may outnumber male students 2 to 1.

Instead, they figure the batting averages are far more favorable at Purdue, M.I.T., and other professional schools where boys outnumber girls possibly 10 to 1.

Besides, some girls have a sexual inferiority complex, so shun being compared with the pretty members of their own sex.

"But if I can get into a men's college," they often will frankly admit to us psychiatrists, "then I may rate a lot of attention from the boys even if I'm not a stunning beauty queen."

Another reason why some girls barge into men's sports and masculine occupations, is the fact they may have grown up with several brothers but no sisters.

So they feel more comfortable with men and are also more understanding of how to motivate the male sex.

But a basic reason why girls excel in languages, and are usually better Applied Psychologists, is their inferior physical strength.

Girls thus are much like the younger of 2 brothers in their psychological outlook.

That 2nd brother comes on the family scene where the older boy is stronger and thus can dominate by sheer muscular strength.

So that younger brother soon resorts to psychological strategy to get toys and concessions from his stronger sibling.

Thus, he sheds crocodile tears, till his harassed mother rushes to his rescue and says:

"Junior, your little brother is just a baby while you are a BIG boy! So let him play with your fire truck a little while."

Grudgingly, Junior may accede to the urgent request of Mamma, but he meanwhile resents the glib way in which that younger brother can talk his way to success.

It's the typical contrast of the Biblical Prodigal Son with his quiet, introvertive older brother.

Well, girls likewise learn that they usually can't out-muscle their brothers, so they must resort to verbal skill, coquetry and clever psychological strategy, of which cosmetics are a part.

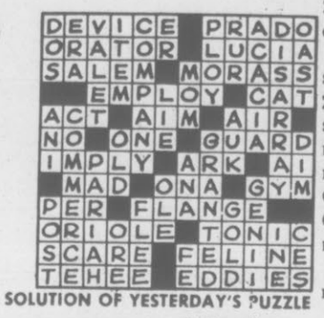

So send for my booklet "Sex Differences Between Men & Women," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Opened Road Work Bids

RALEIGH—Bids were opened here yesterday for the first section of a 13.5 mile link of relocated U.S. 264 between Zebulon and Finch's Mill, west of Wilson.

Low bidders for the first section—a 3.5 mile link east of Zebulon—were Barnhill Construction Co. of Tarboro for the roadway, with a bid of $2.46 million; and for structures, the C.G. Tate Construction Co. of Concord with a bid of $1.16 million.

Completion date for the new roadway is December 1, 1976.

Bids on two other sections of the U.S. 264 relocation project which will add 6.3 miles of improved highway, will be taken in September. That section will take the project from East of the N.C. 58 intersection to a point East of Bailey.

Right-of-way acquisition was authorized in July for the final 5.5 miles section of the project, from N.C. 58 to Finch's Mill where I-95 will intersect the new roadway. The present schedule calls for contracts to be let for this final section in mid-1977.

Davidson College To See 338 Freshmen

Davidson college will enroll 338 freshmen on Sept. 11, representing 25 states. Among the 338 students will be Sarah Tilton Wilcox of 239 Windsor Road, Greenville.

The 1974 freshman class was selected from the largest number of applicants ever to apply to the college, which numbered 1,400.

The percentage of men applicants increased 19 per cent and women applicants 57 per cent, according to a spokesman for the college.

The class of '78 includes 247 men and 91 women.

Sixty-two per cent of the men and 70 per cent of the women ranked in the top tenth of their high school class academically.

In high school, 24 members of the freshman class were president's of their class, 24 president of their student body and 24 editors of their yearbook or newspaper.

Seventeen women and 155 men earned varsity letters in sports and 36 were captain of a varsity team.

States sending the most number of freshmen to Davidson include North Carolina with 107, Georgia 48, Virginia 37, South Carolina 25 and Florida 23. Twenty other states are represented in the class, mainly in the eastern U. S.

Credit Cards To Be Tried

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — The New Jersey Turnpike Authority says it will experiment with the use of credit cards to speed up the lines at its toll booths.

Card users would insert them into computer slots at toll booths. The computer would note the entry and exit points, tally the total charge and bill the patron once a month.

'Experiment' Cost His Job

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The city Civil Service Commission has upheld the firing of a policeman who said he "smoked marijuana as an experiment to become a better officer."

James E. Ireland, 36, a five-year veteran, had appealed his March 11 dismissal for conduct unbecoming an officer and incompetence after he admitted he smoked some confiscated marijuana.

He said he decided to smoke it "to understand the drug problem more and to understand the effects."

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♥

Declarer used his assets to best advantage, combining two chances, and brought home a contract that would have failed had he exhibited less care.

South had a classic two no trump response—a perfectly balanced hand of opening bid strength and stoppers in all the unbid suits. Since North had some help in all suits, he chose to raise to three no trump rather than rebid his spades.

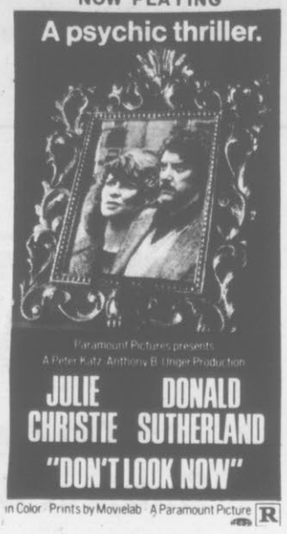

West was looking at an entryless hand, so he decided to spurn the lead of the fourth best from his long suit in the hope of hitting his partner's suit. This proved to be a wise maneuver, for a diamond opening would have presented declarer with a gift trick in the form of dummy's jack, and the timing to develop his suits.

Declarer covered the opening lead of the jack of hearts with dummy's queen to guarantee him a second trick in the suit. East played the king and declarer's ace won. The opening lead bid nothing to reveal which defender held the length in hearts. If it was West, declarer needed first to drive out the ace of clubs; the spade finesse could later be taken safely into the East hand. However, if East held the long hearts, it appeared that declarer would have to guess in which suit he held an entry.

A study of the position revealed that declarer could combine his chances in the black suits. At trick two, he crossed to the king of spades and then led a low club from dummy. East could not afford to rise with the ace, for that would give declarer three tricks in the club suit, so he played low and declarer's queen won.

With a club trick in the bank, declarer shifted his attention to spades, taking a deep finesse of the nine on the second round to assure four tricks in the suit. East won and cleared hearts but declarer now had nine running tricks.

What if West had won the queen of clubs with the ace and cleared hearts? Declarer would first have played for a 3-3 club split and, if that failed to materialize, he would still have been able to fall back on the spade finesse.

VEPCO Surcharge Plea Spurs Commission Study

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—The Virginia Electric and Power Co.'s request for a emergency surcharge to produce an additional $127.3 million annually has spurred the State Corporation Commission to initiate a study of the company's operations.

A spokesman for the commission which regulates Virginia's utilities said here Wednesday the SCC investigation is considered necessary in advance of a scheduled Sept. 13 hearing on the utility's request.

"The purpose of the investigation will be to determine if all current costs of operation are reasonably necessary and if all currently planned construction is reasonably required to meet Vepco's obligation to serve the public," the spokesman said.

The spokesman added that the SCC considers the investigation necessary in view of increased costs of operation and Vepco's construction program, "both of which are causing higher monthly rates to electric customers."

The disclosure of the commission's decision came in an order setting forth procedures for the September hearing.

The SCC said it's likely the probe will take some months to accomplish and won't delay its action on Vepco's surcharge request.

But some of the findings gleaned from the study could have an affect on the second phase of Vepco's application when the utility seeks to include any temporary increase granted into a permanent structure, according to the commission spokesman.

Procedures for the Sept. 13 hearing were set forth at a conference earlier in the week with attorneys for Vepco, the attorney general, counsel for major industries and commission counsel.

The SCC said it decided to go beyond the requirements of the law at the September hearing in order to permit public attendance and scrutiny of the commission's investigative procedures.

The law requires only that the commission be satisfied that an emergency exists and a full investigation of the application could not be accomplished within 90 days, the SCC said.

Suspect 'Something' Wrong In Soyuz Flight

By ROGER LEDDINGTON
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — The two Soyuz 15 cosmonauts are back on earth, and Tass said today they are in good health after completing their mission. However, some observers believed something went wrong because the flight lasted only two days.

The Soviet news agency reported that Salyut 3, the space laboratory that Soyuz 15 approached but did not link up with, is continuing to orbit the earth "according to the preset program." It was sent up on June 25, and two cosmonauts from Soyuz 14 spent two weeks aboard it last month.

Soviet announcements after Soyuz 15 was launched Monday night indicated that cosmonauts Gennady Sarafanov and Lev Demin would dock with Salyut 3 and go aboard the space lab to work as the Soyuz 14 men did. Their return without docking could be an indication of trouble either with the Soyuz ship or with the Salyut, foreign experts said.

Tass gave no indication that anything went wrong.

"After completing work in space," it said, the Soyuz 15 crew landed at 11:10 p.m. Wednesday — 4:10 p.m. EDT — about 30 miles from Tselinograd in Kazakhstan, Soviet Asia.

Tass said Sarafanov, the 32-year-old pilot, and Demin, the 48-year-old engineer, carried out "scientific-technical experiments for developing the processes of maneuvering and rendezvous with Salyut 3 station." It added that techniques for the handling of night landings of spaceships also were developed.

Earlier announcements said the crew made many approaches to the space station but did not indicate whether Sarafanov tried to link up to it.

It was also assumed that the cosmonauts were testing equipment to be used in the joint Soviet-American space flight next July, in which a Soviet Soyuz ship and an American Apollo will join up in space to develop rescue procedures. But James C. Fletcher, administrator of the U. S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration, denied this.

Such a linkup has not been possible previously because the Soviet and American spacecraft did not have compatible docking equipment. Fletcher said the Russians told NASA that neither Soyuz 15 nor its predecessor last month had the docking mechanism to be used on the Apollo-Soyuz flight next year.

However, American astronauts training in the Soviet Union during the Soyuz 14 mission said at the time that they were briefed on the flight, and Soviet spokesmen said then that its main purpose was to test techniques and hardware for the joint effort.

Missing Child Found Unhurt

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — A 2-year-old toddler missing from her home for about five hours was found unharmed Wednesday night.

Darby Crumpler was cold, wet and muddy as a result of a severe thunderstorm that battered the area while the child was lost.

Deputy Gurney Moore of the Randolph County Sheriff's Department said the little girl wandered from her home near Level Cross about 5 p.m. and was found about 10 p.m.

About 300 persons joined in the search which ended when members of the Ashe-Rand Rescue Squad discovered the child in a heavily wooded area about a quarter of a mile from her home.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Crumpler.

The deepest vertical shaft in the United States is in the Kennedy Mine in California's Amador County.

More Bicycles Seen This Fall

In view of the energy crisis and higher fuel costs, "there will be more bicycles going to and from schools this year than ever before," and "it is the responsibility of both the cyclist and the motorist to observe the rules of the road and to help prevent accidents," Chief Glenn Cannon said today.

The Greenville police Chief said drivers should be aware of all cyclists, but particularly those youngsters going to school. Bicycle safety can't be a sometimes occupation. Youngsters and motorists must both be aware of their responsibilities."

Emphasizing the dual responsibility, Cannon said "cyclists and motorists are both at fault," for not observing safety rules. "We need serious improvements in our safety education programs, and not just in schools, but for adults as well."

The official suggested cyclists should inspect their bikes regularly to make sure they are in proper working order and suggested a dozen other "rules of the road" essential for improved bicycle safety.

"Obey all traffic regulations, signs, signals and markings. . .bicycles should be driven as safely as any road vehicle, Cannon said, adding that all local ordinances pertaining to bicycles, such as registration and licensing should be observed also.

Bicycles, he said, should "keep right. . .as close to the curb as practical, and driven with traffic, not against it. . .in single file." He, too, suggested that bicycle riders should watch out for drain grates, soft shoulders and other road hazards that might cause a rider to spill, and "watch out for car doors opening and for cars pulling into traffic.

"Don't carry passengers or packages that interfere with your vision or control, either," the chief warned. "A good rule is one person, one bike, unless it's a tandem cycle," he suggested. "Use carriers or baskets for packages."

The chief said cyclists should never hitch a ride on a truck or car and should be extremely careful at intersections, especially when making a left turn. Most accidents happen at intersections, he said, and if traffic is heavy "get off and walk your bike with pedestrian traffic."

Other rules to follow, he said, are "use hand signals to indicate turning or stopping," and "protect yourself at night with the required red rear reflectors and headlights."

According to the chief, "drive your bike defensively. . .watch out for the other guy. . .observe the car in front of you and the one in front of him. Leave yourself room and time to take defensive action."

Revival Will Mark Paying For Building

In celebration of the payment of the last bonds on the church building, the Greenville Church of Christ on East Greenville Blvd. at Emerson Rd. will hold a three-day revival Friday, Saturday, and Sunday.

The Rev. C. E. Mannon, minister of the Laurel Hill Church of Christ of Radford, Va., will be the speaker for the services which will be at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday and at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday.

The Greenville Church of Christ first began meeting in July of 1961 in the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Merritt. From October, 1961, until November, 1962, the church met in the Rotary Building. Construction of the present building began on September 3, 1962. The building was dedicated on November 22, 1962, while the Rev. Mannon was serving as minister for the church. On September 1, almost exactly 12 years after construction on the building was begun, the last bonds on the building will be due for payment. That day has been set aside as Homecoming Day for the Greenville church. All former members and friends are urged to attend the services on that day and celebrate the making of the final payment on the building.

"BLESS HIS LITTLE POINTED HEAD, THAT'S AN ORDINARY CIGARETTE HE'S SMOKING!"

New Blacksmiths Called "Dandies"

By STEWART POWELL

SUNAPEE, N.H. (UPI) — Joe Tucker was a craftsman back when they used to call it making a living and the crusty blacksmith won't let you print what he thinks about some of the Johnny-come-latelies.

"Dandies," he says between blows on the anvil. "I don't want to say something bad in the newspaper about them."

Tucker, 68, has beenworking wrought iron since he was 14.

"You're got to sacrific," he says. He's never shod a horse but since 1920 he has hammered dull wrought iron into everything from cemetery gates to fancy chandeliers.

He wears his work on his face, black soot penciled into the wrinkles beneath a dusty leather hat. He has attended the annual New Hampshire Craft's Fair here since 1941 and he's seen some changes he doesn't like.

Tucker calls himself a lay preacher and he slips his sermons between rhythmic hammer blows on his dented black anvil.

"You want to know what's wrong with Americans?", he says not waiting for a reply. "If anything becomes expensive, we cheapen it with plastics. I can't even buy a good piece of wrong iron anymore. They just don't tool it like they used to."

Tucker has trouble understanding many of the long-haired craftsmen that eke out a living working on new fangled crafts. One wood worker had laid out a pine log at the foot of a mountain to work it gradually into a dugout canoe. "For the love of art I couldn't cup up a log for a canoe," Tucker says. "You ought to leave it the way it is."

Tucker has trained men on the forge during his longer career and is unhappy they have moved on to other things.

One works at a nearby machine shop.

"I taught four guys on the forge. How many do you think are working at the forge today?" He gestures with his hand. "Zero."

"They want to make money at blacksmithing. At the forge you don't make money, you make a living."

Tucker and other oldtimers at the 41-year-old fair recalled the days when craftsmen would gather each year, live together and work together.

Miss Julie Engel, who says she is "retirement age," was a volunteer at the first craftsman fair in 1932, selling the wares of others.

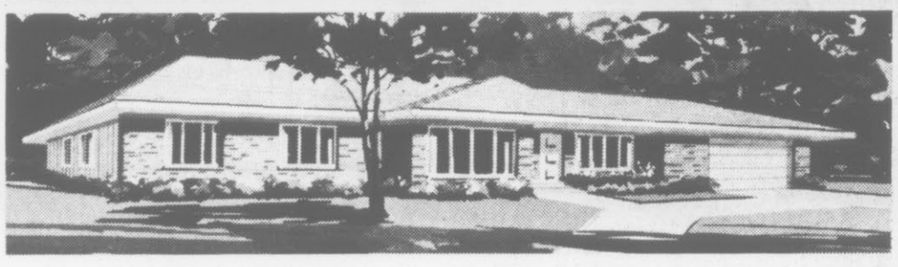

"Many of them came and worked their craft to pay taxes, put a new roof on a building, that sort of thing. Most of them had learned what they were doing from parents or grandparents," she said.

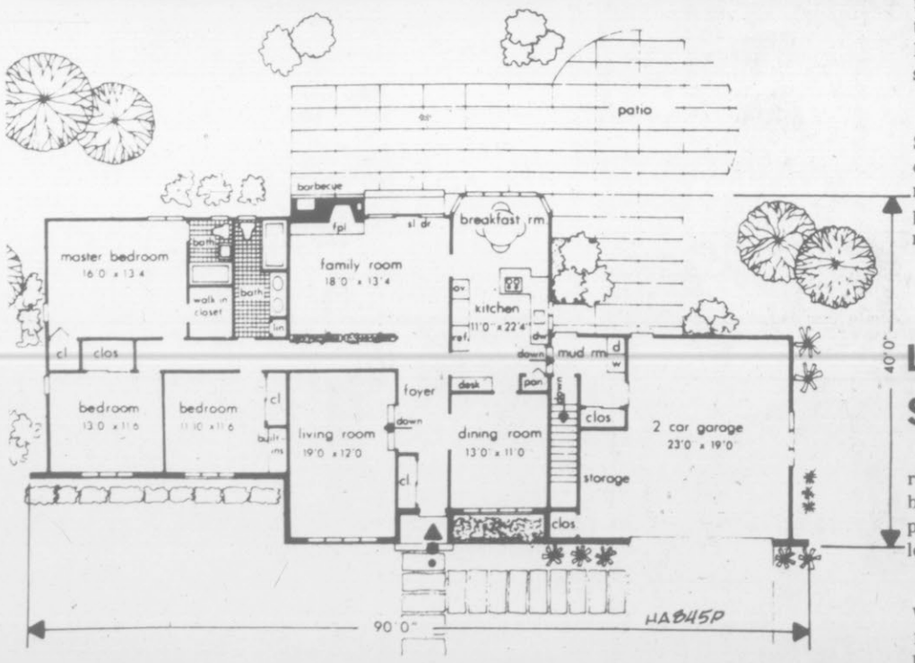

She welcomes new interest in crafts by the young but said, "In the first years you had more cooperation. Everyone was interested in the other fellow. In those days you lived together for the week of the fair and got to know each other."

Now many of the 94 craftsmen display at the fair because it's good business, a chance to reach the estimated 30,000 visitors who come from surrounding tourist areas.

"Naturally the money side of it is more predominent in their mind," says Miss Engel. "The older craftsmen, like in furniture, were willing to give that last rub. We're in so much of a hurry now."

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

LONG, LOW, DISTINCTIVE, RAMBLING, the exterior of this home bespeaks the luxury and comfort which predominate the interior. The full center hall layout gives access to every room. To the left of the foyer, down two steps, is the sunken formal living room. To the right is a separate formal dining room. To the rear is the kitchen and family room, both of which occupy a panoramic view of the rear. A massive brick fireplace is optional. The three bedrooms are large, with abundant closet space. Architect Samuel Paul, 107-40 Queens Blvd., Forest Hills, N.Y. 11375, has designed Plan HA845P with 2,589 square feet. Anyone interested in knowing the price of the blueprint must send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a reply.

Bobcat Kitten Is Hitchhiker

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Rufus, a bobcat kitten, spent a few days in the children's zoo here before his owner discovered his whereabouts.

Rufus crawled out of his owner's car at a grocery about 40 miles from here, climbed into another car and hid. When the second car was driven here, Rufus decided to move on and some children found him.

Dr. H.S. Banton Jr. of Union Springs, Ala., heard about the contribution to the zoo and recognized his missing pet. Zoo personnel said Rufus seemed to recognize Banton.

Leaf Exporters Sign A Pledge

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Representatives of a group of tobacco exporters have signed a pledge not to buy non-auction leaf.

This announcement came Wednesday from executives of 18 principal members of the Leaf Tobacco exporters Association who represent about 45 per cent of the buying power on flue-cured tobacco auction markets.

The firms, mainly independent dealers in world trade, agreed they would not buy tobacco except that which had been graded by government graders and sold on regularly designated auction markets.

TWUA Wins Vote In Stevens Plants

ROANOKE RAPIDS, N. C. (AP) — Employes at seven J. P. Stevens and Co. plants have given the Textile Workers Union of American, AFL-CIO, its first major victory in 11 years of attempts to unionize the nation's second largest textile firm.

Workers at plants in the Roanoke Rapids area voted 1,685 to 1,488 Wednesday for TWUA representation.

North Carolina AFL-CIO President Wilbur Hobby hailed the outcome. "I say it's a great day in Dixie — a new day in Dixie," said Hobby. "J.P. first, the textile industry second, and then the whole South."

The union views the victory as pivotal in its campaign to organize the textile industry across the South. At present, unions barely have a toehold in industry below the Mason-Dixon line, mostly at small, independent textile mills.

Harold D. McIver, Southeastern coordinator for the AFL-CIO's Industrial Union Department, said, "This vote paves the way toward ending the low wage conspiracy in the South."

McIver said 72 votes, not enough to alter the outcome, were contested. He said more than 3,000 employes were eligible to vote in the Roanoke Rapids area election conducted by the National Labor Relations Board.

"The vote represents a well planned drive and the awakening of J. P. Stevens workers," McIver said. "Stevens workers have finally revolted against the company's economic exploitation and total disregard for workers' rights."

In Greenville, S.C., Paul Barrett, public relations director for Steven's manufacturing division, said the company had no comment.

The TWUA's attempt to organize Stevens workers in the Roanoke Rapids area in 1965 failed. The NLRB later ruled that the company engaged in "an anti-union campaign marked by flagrant unlawfulness."

In a 1966 decision, the NLRB ordered Stevens to reinstate 71 workers fired for union activities and said the company fought the organizing drive with "wholesale illegal firings, spying upon employes' union activities, threatening reprisals, stimulating other employes to anti-union activity, and intimidating employes for giving statements to the NLRB."

Abe's Portrait Back On Mantel

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — A brooding portrait of Abraham Lincoln has been returned to its setting over the mantel in the State Dining Room at the White House on orders from President Ford.

The portrait by George P.A. Healy, which shows Lincoln resting his chin on his hand, was removed to a less prominent location in the East Room during the Nixon administration.

Plywood Mills Closing In Cost-Prize Squeeze

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Nine plywood mills have closed or will close at least temporarily and another 25 have curtailed production in a cost-price squeeze that appears to be sweeping the industry.

Some 2,500 plywood mill employes have been thrown out of work, most within the past week, and another 1,500 are on less than a full work week, says Bronson Lewis, executive vice president of the American Plywood Association.

Lewis and other plywood officials say the reasons for the industrywide depression are the slump in home building and the high price of logs.

So far, the closures have struck primarily at mills in the Pacific Northwest, but "a few mills have gone down in the South" and more cutbacks there are expected, Lewis said in an interview Wednesday.

He said that nationwide plywood production is 30 per cent below normal.

One of the biggest closures involves the worker-owned Ft. Vancouver Plywood Co. in Vancouver, Wash. Directors of that mill, one of the largest cooperative plants in the Northwest, voted on Monday to shut down on Friday for an indefinite period, laying off 365 employes.

Lewis and a spokesman for the Simpson Timber Co. said closures have already halted production at Linnton Plywood Association, Portland, Ore.; Oregon-Washington Plywood Co. mills in Garibaldi and Klamath Falls, Ore.; Stevenson Co-Ply, Stevenson, Wash.; Multnomah Plywood, Multnomah, Ore.; and Simpson mills in Shelton and McCleary, Wash., and Albany, Ore.

Lewis, who says his American Plywood Association represents 150 of the nation's 190 plywood mills, says the federal government is primarily to blame for the slowdown in housing construction.

"My God, if they can go to the moon they ought to be able to generate enough housing starts so they can take off on their housing rocket," he said.

Lewis said one way the federal government can give the housing industry a shot in the arm is to lower the interest rate it pays on Treasury notes. He said the government is currently paying American investors higher interest on government notes than can be paid by savings and loan institutions, which generate most housing money.

Lewis said Oregon is the nation's leading plywood-producing state, accounting for 46 per cent of total production. Washington is second with 12 per cent. Southern mills, primarily in Texas, Arkansas, Mississippi, Alabama and Virginia, account for 30 per cent.
