More Than 150 Dead In Yugoslav Train Wreck

By Bosko Mlakar

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Police arrested four trainmen Saturday after an express train roared through a red signal at high speed, jumped the track on a curve and smashed into Zagreb's main station, killing at least 150 persons in Yugoslavia's worst train disaster.

Officials said the death toll could rise to 170 when all the bodies have been recovered. Police said more than 150 persons were injured.

Investigators said the train's speedometer showed the train was traveling at an "excessive and unpermitted speed" of more than 56 miles an hour on a stretch where 31 miles an hour was the limit.

Asked if human error could be blamed one official said: "You could say that."

As the cars careened off the tracks and rammed into the end of the platform the locomotive hurtled on through the station for another 400 yards before slamming to a halt.

Most of the victims were Yugoslav migrant workers returning to West Germany aboard the Belgrade-Dortmund special after their vacation, but other passengers included Turks, Greeks and West Germans, police said.

Police said the train's two engineers, Nikola Knezevic and Stjepan Varga, were taken into custody after being given blood tests for drunkenness. Also arrested were the station duty officer and a switchman.

Police said the train apparently roared through a red signal at the approach to the station. Charges were not immediately placed against any of the trainmen.

Authorities said they were making a thorough investigation of the tracks and the locomotive braking system. The engine barreled into the station Friday night at 60 miles an hour and pushed on for another 400 yards after losing its coaches on a curve.

The worst previous railroad disaster in Yugoslavia was in January, 1964 when 61 persons died in a collision between two passenger trains near Belgrade.

The station of Yugoslavia's second largest city Saturday morning was a horror scene of tangled bodies, bloodstained belongings, and the destroyed hulks of seven of the nine coaches.

Many of the corpses were crushed beneath the cars. Other victims appeared to have been electrocuted when the coaches rammed into the end of the platform and collapsed the trackside pillars, bringing down electric cables.

Greeks Cheer Premier

ATHENS (UPI) — Premier Constantine Caramanlis told hundreds of thousands of wildly cheering Greeks Saturday that if Turkey tries to keep the territory its troops seized on Cyprus it will threaten its own security and world peace.

"The Turks are in error if they believe that they can, without endangering both themselves and world peace, keep what they tore away by violence and malice," Caramanlis said in Salonica in his first public address since returning from exile July 23 to head Greece's new civilian government.

Determination On Tax Case

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) — The government is trying to determine if Phillips Petroleum Co. owes taxes on at least $1.4 million funneled from overseas transactions into a special fund used for political contributions in the United States.

A 1925 federal law makes it illegal for corporations to contribute to candidates for federal office.

Phillips disclosed the existence of the fund Friday night and said it had contributed approximately $685,000 to candidates during the past 10 years.

Hurricane Carmen May Grow

MIAMI (UPI) — Hurricane Carmen aimed its 85 mile per hour winds at little Swan Island Saturday night with forecasters predicting it could increase in size and intensity as it moves into the northwestern Caribbean Sea.

Squalls and gale force winds on the outer fringes of the season's second hurricane spread across the Cayman Islands after battering Jamaica earlier Saturday.

Residents on Swan Island were warned to prepare for hurricane conditions with the center of the storm expected to pass over or near the island Sunday morning.

Bomb Explodes In Belfast

BELFAST (UPI) — A huge bomb exploded in a hijacked panel truck outside the British Broadcasting Corp. studios in downtown Belfast Saturday but caused only minor damage and failed to knock the BBC off the air, the British army said.

It was the second bomb attempt on the BBC Northern Ireland headquarters this year. An earlier bomb wrecked the newsroom but like today there were no casualties.

BBC radio and television programs remained on the air, but a radio sports program was canceled when troops sealed off the building before the bomb exploded. Sports reporters were stranded outside, unable to get to the microphones.

Earthquake Prediction

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — What may be the first step toward eventually predicting earthquakes is being undertaken by scientists and engineers at Pasadena's Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Using the combined knowledge of spacecraft navigation, radio astronomy and geophysical research, scientists, aided by geophysicists from the California Institute of Technology, are developing a system to monitor earth faults.

Gives Up Swim Attempt

TORONTO, Ont. (UPI) — Diane Niad, a 24-year-old student, gave up her attempt early Saturday to become the first person to swim a 64-mile round trip across Lake Ontario.

Miss Niad, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was pulled unconscious from the choppy waters at 6:30 a.m. after swimming 20 hours and 30 minutes.

Sadat Will Step Down

CAIRO UPI—Anwar Sadat will step down as Egyptian premier but continue as president in a government reshuffle that does not signify changes in Egypt's basic foreign and domestic policies, government sources said Saturda.

The sources said Sadat directed First Deputy Premiler Abdel Aziz Higazi to form a new cabinet, which is expected to take over in the second half of September.

Motoring Sniper Kills Three

INDIO, Calif. (UPI) — A sniper firing from the passenger side of his moving auto Saturday killed three persons and wounded six others in a wild spree along 150 miles of lonely moonlit desert highway.

Richard Harold Hicks, 34, a transient whose last known address was Tucson, Ariz., was arrested near Blythe, Calif., on the California-Arizona border shortly before dawn.

Hicks was held for questioning for several hours before he was charged with suspicion of murder.

Authorities at first thought the gunman was a passenger in the car but said later the suspect had slid over to the passenger side of the automobile to fire from a sawed off .22 caliber rifle while steering with his left arm.

The three killed all died of gunshot wounds to the head while they were driving eastward along Interstate 10 between Banning and Desert Center, a 150-mile stretch of Southern California desert.

Hicks was arrested by Riverside County Sheriff's deputy Tom Davidson 23 miles west of Blythe after his car's description was phoned to the sheriff's office.

President Signs Five Bills, Considers Amnesty, Inflation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford signed five bills Saturday, including one which establishes a new agency to improve the purchasing power of the federal government.

The new Office of Federal Procurement Policy is expected to improve the economy, efficiency and effectiveness when the government purchases goods, services and facilities for the executive branch of government. It will operate under the direction of the Office of Management and Budget.

The other bills will:

—Establish the Great Dismal Swamp National Wildife Refuge on the Virginia-North Carolina border. Up to $7 million is authorized to acquire land for the refuge over a three-year period ending in 1978.

—Provide federal grants to states to improve the safety of natural gas pipelines so that they meet government standards. The measure authorizes grants of $1.8 million for fiscal 1975 and $2.5 million in 1976.

—Appropriate $1.5 billion for the government of the District of Columbia to operate in the current fiscal year. Federal payments and loans amount to $379.4 billion and District of Columbia funds provide $1 billion of the total appropriation.

—Appropriate $3.2 billion for several activities of the Department of the Interior, the U.S. Forest Service, Indian Health Services, the Smithsonian Institution, the National Foundation on the Arts and Humanities and related small agencies.

President Ford reviewed confidential proposals on amnesty for draft resisters and military deserters Saturday and took another swat at inflation by urging Congress to delay a federal pay raise.

Ford spent nearly two hours discussing the amnesty question with Defense Secretary James Schlesinger and Attorney General Qilliam Saxbe, who submitted recommendations on the subject at his request.

The proposals were said to recommend requirements for extended periods of nonmilitary service to the nation and a reaffirmation of allegiance in exchange for amnesty.

One White House official said Ford expected within a week to announce his decision on amnesty terms.

But Presidential Press Secretary J.F. terHorst said Ford has made no final decisions.

Rebel Assault In Cambodia

By LYNN C. NEWLAND

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Government troops fighting hand-to-hand threw back an amphibious rebel assault Saturday 12 miles northeast of Phnom Penh in some of the heaviest fighting of the Cambodian war, field reports said.

Reporters said more than 200 rebels were killed in the attack on Prek Tameak on the east bank of the Mekong river. Nine of the dead, including two North Vietnamese, were found inside the garrison, reporters said.

Government casualties were not immediately known.

The advancing rebels crossed the Mekong in 100 small boats and were pounded by navy gunboats, T28 air strikes, and artillery, field reporters said.

A Western military observer said the offensive showed the rebel army was not going to drop off during the monsoon rainy season as in the past.

"There is no such thing as a dry-season offensive and a wet-season lull anymore," he said. "The Communists and the rebels are full go all year long regardless of the weather."

Last year the rebel army tapered off its offensive by the end of July and kept a low profile during the six-month wet season.

In South Vietnam, military officers said Communist engineers have built an all-weather road capable of moving heavy tanks and artillery guns to within range of Bien Hoa airbase, 14 miles north of Saigon.

The road was laid down in light jungle during the height of the Saigon-area offensive of the past two months. It runs through Viet Cong territory from Phu Giao, 32 miles north of Saigon, to Tan Uyen, 22 miles northeast of the capital, the officers said.

The military command ordered daily airstrikes against the road after it was discovered early this week, officers said.

Saigon command spokesman Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien said Tan Uyen was hit Friday by 20 Russian-made 122mm rockets, and Cong Thanh district town, four miles to the southeast, was blasted by six other rockets.

Hien said two persons were killed and two were wounded. He said a sharp clash Friday east of Tan Uyen killed 32 Viet Cong and one government militiamen. Another 24 militiamen were wounded.

Electrical Disruption

Residents of the North side of Greenville and part of the East side were without electrical service from 30 minutes to an hour Friday night when an electrical Greenville Utilities sub-station was put out of service accidentally.

According to Greenville Utilities director Charles Horne, part of a line at GUCO's substation of the intersection of Airport Road and N. Greene Street, fell into a distribution circuit, creating an electrical arc and putting the sub-station out of service.

The wire had been damaged earlier in the week during an electrical storm but the damage had been undetected by GUCO employees, stated Horne.

The damage to the sub-station also threw out a circuit breaker at the intersection of Fourteenth Street and the 264-By-pass, putting the east side of the city without power for 30 minutes.

The incident occured around 8:30 Friday night. Service was restored to the North side of town in about an hour, said Horne.

When the wire dropped, several small fires were started on transmission lines, at the site but they were contained by the fire department, said Horne.

Service to the North side of town was to be discontinued for about an hour this morning starting at 6 a.m., said Horne, so that permanent repairs could be made to the sub-station damaged at the intersection of N. Greene Street and Airport Road.

Woods Stop Runaway Plane

An airplane without a pilot travelled approximately 177 feet and crashed into a wooded area at the Pitt-Greenville airport Saturday afternoon.

The single-engine plane received an estimated $600 in damage.

Owned by Charles B. West III, of E. Mumford Rd., the freak accident occured after West had tried to start the plane by hand, standing on the outside and turning the propeller.

West had tried to start the plane after the craft's battery was not strong enough to turn the engine over. The engine caught after West spun the properller and the plane whipped around, knocking West down and causing him slight injuries.

The plane then headed North and travelled approximately 177 feet before being halted by the woods and with the aid of a bystander, Edward A. Sturgeon of 114C Cherry Court Apartments.

Sturgeon was able to catch up with the plane and cut the throttle on the engine, cutting the motor off.

No other injuries or damage was reported.

Holiday Schedule

All state, county, city and federal offices will be closed tomorrow in observance of Labor Day, always observed on the first Monday of September.

City and county schools will not operate and the administrative offices of each branch will be closed.

The Post Office will operate on a Holiday schedule, a collection will be made from star marked boxes beginning at 3 p.m. and a collection will be made from the main Post Office around 6:05 p.m.

Mail will be posted in Post Office boxes and special delivery items will be distributed.

Faircloth Backs Testimony In Morgan Firing Hearing

RALEIGH (AP)—A Justice Department employe has backed up testimony of a former worker who said former Atty. Gen Robert Morgan fired him because he would not contribute to the Morgan-for-Senate campaign.

Joseph A. Faircloth testified before the State Personnel Board Friday in the case of James R. Ladd who was fired by Morgan June 3 from his position as director of the State Criminal Justice Training and Education System. The board also is looking into the cases of William B. Gibson who was fired July 2 as business manager of the Criminal Justice Academy which the Justice Department is organizing at Salemburg and Ladd's wife who was suspended from her job in the Justice Department. The former employes want the board to recommend that they be reinstated.

Faircloth told the board that he accompanied Ladd to Morgan's campaign headquarters to confer with the attorney general. He said that during their conversation, Morgan explained how to fill out a receipt book for campaign contributions and then "threw it across the table." When Ladd testified about the incident on Aug. 9, he said he felt Morgan was implying he should do some fund raising.

Faircloth said Morgan also mentioned campaign contributions on another occasion when he was conferring with him.

"I go to the legislature and I get you people big salaries and I never see any of it come back," Faircloth quoted Morgan as saying.

Faircloth said he told Morgan he considered himself a professional law enforcement officer and that he did not contribute to any political campaigns.

He said Morgan replied, "It was people like you that caused Watergate."

Morgan had been expected to appear at the hearing to be cross examined by Ladd's attorneys. However he did not show. Instead he sent a letters defending his actions and saying he had already been on the witness stand more than an hour during which he denied Ladd's allegations.

"It has become increasingly apparent to everyone that the real purpose for the former Justice Department employes to pursue these hearings has little relevance to reinstating them in their former position," Morgan wrote.

"These allegations are patently spurious and, in my opinion, they are attempting to use the board and the hearing soley as a forum for expressing personal vindictiveness toward me," he continued.

Jenkins To Recommend

East Carolina University Chancellor Dr. Leo Jenkins has indicated he will make a recommendation to the school's Board of Trustees on Sept. 11 for the person he would like to see appointed as a new vice-chancellor for external affairs.

The position at ECU has been vacant since the death of Gen. John Lang in June, who formerly held the post.

Jenkins states he has several persons under consideration.

The new vice-chancellor would then have to be approved by the trustees and the Board of Governors.

Jenkins had earlier spoke with former Governor Bob Scott about the position, but Scott indicated he considered it for "about 30 seconds" and decided he would never get past the Board of Governors.

Activities Designed For Senior Citizens

Activities planned especially for senior citizens during Bicentennial Week have been announced by Sarah Ashton, chairman of the Senior Citizens committee. Senior citizens will be honored Monday, October 7th.

The day will start with a Dutch Treat Luncheon at the American Legion Building prepared by the American Legion Auxiliary. The luncheon is by reservation.

Only 250 tickets are available at $3.00 each so persons are urged to get theirs early. The last day for purchasing tickets is September 25.

Committee members handling tickets are Sarah Ashton, phone 752-2912, Etta Gill, 758-3915, and Rosa Whitehurst, 752-6475. Host for the luncheon will be Boyd Lee of the Department of Recreation.

Following the luncheon will be a musical program at the American Legion Building from 2-3 p.m. Admission is free.

From 3 to 5 p.m. Senior Citizens will be given bus tours to the Kroger Exhibition Building to view the exhibits and sale booths, and a tour of East Carolina University. Activity buses were donated by the Greenville City School system through Supt. Glenn Cox.

New Zealand Prime Minister Dies

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (UPI) — Prime Minister Norman Eric Kirk, a former ferryboat engineer who led New Zealand's Labor party to its first triumph in 16 years, died of a heart attack Suturday. He was 51.

The government announced Kirk died shortly after 6 a.m. EDT at Home of Compassion Hospital in Wellington.

"His heart had been under strain, but he had shown some improvement during recent days," an official statement said.

"The prime minister had been bright when visited by Mrs. Kirk today and when seen by his doctors earlier in the evening. He suffered a sudden heart seizure and died without any sign of distress."

Deputy Prime Minister Hugh Watt, 62, takes over as head of a caretaker government that will rule until new elections in November, 1975.

Kirk entered the hospital Monday for what members of his staff then said was a rest.

He was also hospitalized in April with a blood clot in a lung after an operation for varicose veins.

Kirk became prime minister in 1972 following the first Labor party victory in 16 years. His government was noted for its liberal foreign policy under which New Zealand recognized China, withdrew its small military contingent from South Vietnam, and vigorously opposed French nuclear testing in the Pacific.

The son of a cabinetmaker, Kirk abandoned school at the age of 12 and worked at odd jobs. He cut shrubs, cleaned trains, and engineered a ferryboat in Auckland harbor.

He won election as mayor of the small town of Kaiapoi in 1953 at the age of 30, and four years later he won a seat in Parliament. He was chosen leader of the then opposition Labor party in 1964 and held onto the post despite two general election defeats. He led the party to a comeback victory in 1972.

Despite his sharp tongue on the podium, Kirk was known for his moderate, pragmatic views in political circles.

He once said "a prime minister should be able to hear what the bloke living next door says and not just what the head of a government says."

Norcott Funeral Home Expands

Gratz and Mattie Norcott of Norcott and Co. Funeral Home, Ayden, announced that the firm has purchased Norman Funeral Home, 1206 Dickinson Avenue in Greenville.

Norcott said that an extensive program of remodeling is nearing completion at the Greenville facility, which gives the firm three area locations with two in Ayden.

Remodeling underway at the Greenville business includes office changes as well as adding garage space, landscaping, and general interior improvements.

Ernest C. Adams Jr. of Greenville, a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill with a B.S. degree in business administration, will serve as assistant manager of the Greenville office. Adams, a 1971 Rose High School graduate, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Adams Sr. of Greenville.

Norcott and Co. Funeral Home was started on Aug. 12, 1948 when the foundation was poured for the original site of the firm's Ayden office at 711 S. Lee Street. The business opened on Jan. 1, 1949.

Norcott Memorial Chapel at 131 W. Third Street, Ayden, was purchased in 1970 as the firm expanded its Ayden operation to serve its membership.

Purchase of the Greenville funeral facility occurs during Norcott and Company's 25th anniversary, it was pointed out.

Norcott, who serves as mortician and manager of the business, is a native of Pitt County and the son of the late Gratz and Rosa Mills Norcott.

He is a graduate of South Ayden High School and the American Academy of Mortuary Science, New York City. Norcott is a charter member, past president, and secretary of the Eastern District Funeral Directors and Morticians Associations of North Carolina.

A charter member of The Pitt County Biracial Committee, Norcott has served on the Good Neighbor Council and as secretary of the Ayden Municipal Board of Elections.

Mrs. Norcott, the former Mattie Macklin of Jarratt, Va., is a graduate of Nash County Training School and L. Richardson School of Nursing in Greensboro.

Currently serving as funeral director and lady attendant, she is a member of the L. Richardson Alumi Association, the Eastern District Funeral Directors and Morticians Association of North Carolina and is former first lady of the Funeral Directors and Morticians Association of North Carolina.

Jasper E. Blount is the licensed funeral director for Norcott and Co. Funeral Home.

Fire Truck Rescued

RALEIGH (AP)—After escaping the scrap heap three years ago, a 50 year-old fire truck will get a new lease on life.

Hubert J. Montague offered last week to sell the old pumper for $300 with the understanding that the buyer would preserve the truck and try to restore its original beauty.

Montague says he hates to see old fire trucks destroyed. He had saved it from the cutter's torch by buying it from a salvage dealer for $300. He said it has about $1,000 worth of brass on it.

A deluge of offers to purchase the old LaFrance pumper followed an Associated Press story about his offer.

"I got a lot of calls from New Jersey, several from Atlanta," said Montague.

But he sold it to Billy Adams, who owns a tractor and implement company in Knightdale, near Raleigh.

"He has the facilities to restore it," Montague said, "and plans to donate it to the Knightdale Fire Department.

Three Year Old Dead In Accident

Pitt County recorded its second traffic fatality of the holiday weekend Saturday morning when a three-year-old Greenville youth was struck by an automobile.

Perry Ebron, son of Mrs. Clara Ebron of 1409 W. Sixth St., was hit when he ran into the path of an auto operated by Virginia Webb Peaden of Falkland around 10:50 yesterday morning.

The accident occured on W. Fifth St. near Hudson Street. According to Deputy Sheriff Charles Stocks, acting coroner, the Ebron child died of head injuries at the scene.

No charges had been filed, while investigation into the accident is continuing, stated Stocks.

According to investigating officers, the youth was returning from a nearby store when he ran into the street on his way home.

Man Killed On Rural Road

According to the Highway Patrol, a Rt. 3 Washington Man was killed early Saturday morning when he was run over by a car on RPR 1777 south of Grimesland.

The victim was identified as Luke Boone, who was killed at approximately 5:20 a.m. Saturday when he was struck by a car being driven by Limmie Lee Cooper of Rt. 1 Grimesland. Cooper was driving south at the time of the accident. He reportedly swerved to avoid hitting Booner, who was lying in the road.

Booner was pronounced dead at the scene. No charges were filed against Cooper.

The death was the first in Pitt County for the Labor day weekend.

More Workers To Be On Jobs After Labor Day

By United Press International

More than 30,000 auto workers laid off because of strikes in allied industries will be back on the job after the Labor Day weekend and workers in other industries were considering contract offers or preparing to return to work during the holiday weekend.

Northern California bus drivers planned to be on the job Sunday after accepting a new contract with AC Transit giving them 65-cents an hour raises. The ratification vote Friday ended a 61-day strike that affected 250,000 commuters in the San Francisco Bay Area.

Negotiators for GM and the United Auto Workers agreed tentatively on a local contract at the automaker's St. Louis, Mo., plant Friday —just two days after union leaders canceled a ratification meeting when negotiations fell through. A second ratification vote in the two-month-old strike was scheduled Sunday.

General Motors officials said nearly 20,000 auto workers idled by strike-related causes should be back on the job next week. However, GM said another 27,000 other employes will still be out.

Chrysler Corp. said 10,000 of its workers laid off by parts shortages will return after Labor Day.

About a third of the 6,000 production workers at A. O. Smith Corp. returned to their jobs at Milwaukee, Wis., Saturday following a three-week strike. A new contract was ratified in meetings Friday night, and a spokesman said most employes should be back at work by Wednesday.

The new contract provides $1.21 an hour in flat wage increases over three years, John Heidenreich, chairman of the joint crafts bargaining committee, said. If inflation continues at the present rate, the cost-of-living escalator clause would make the total wage increase $2.13 an hour, he said.

Wants 30 Day Financial Freeze

By SARA FRITZ

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons Saturday proposed a 30-day freeze on all business financial transactions, followed by a possible selective price rollback if inflation has not ebbed in the next six months.

Fitzsimmons and several other national labor leaders issued pre-Labor Day statements emphasizing the same economic complaint — that prices have risen faster than wages —and calling on the government to devise programs to equalize the sacrifices of labor and management.

The Teamsters president called for a cut in the federal budget, but added that wage and price controls may be the only way to "avoid economic shipwreck."

"Much more is needed in my opinion," he said. "If inflation has not ebbed considerably six months from now, I advocate a contingency plan of economic controls to freeze all business financial transactions in place for a 30-day period. At the end of the 30 days, the Cost of Living Council should then be given the authority to roll back prices where profits have been exorbitant."

President I.W. Abel of the United Steelworkers union suggested a willingness to return to economic controls. He also called on the government to take control of the supply of credit; to enact an excess profits tax and close tax loopholes to provide an additional $30 million in revenue, and to create more public works and public service employment.

"We need some vigorous efforts to halt the rising price level," Abel said. "American labor is less than enthusiastic about price and wage controls, which under the last administration became a straitjacket for wages and a sieve for prices.

"But although we have been critical of the handling of that program, American labor has always pointed out that it is prepared to participate fully in any program that assures complete equality of sacrifice in seeking to overcome our national problem of inflation."

Noting that corporate profits are up 28 per cent, President Jerry Wurf of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes called on President Ford to take some specific steps to equally distribute the hardships of inflation.

"With all due respect," he said, "something more than summits and task forces, rhetoric and cosmetics will be required to avert the most critical economic crisis our country has faced since 1929."

Delegation To China

By NICHOLAS DANILOFF

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A bipartisan congressional delegation headed by Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., left Saturday for a 12-day visit to China designed to emphasize continuity in U.S. policy of detente toward Peking.

The group was seen off from Andrews Air Force Base by Ambassador Huang Chen, head of the Liaison Office of the People's Republic of China, and Arthur W. Hummel Jr., acting assistant secretary of state for East Asian Affairs.

"The purpose of the trip is to underline the continuity of American foreign policy towards China under President Ford," Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., told newsmen.

Humphrey, a member of the delegation who also is a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger briefed the group Friday at the State Department where they were guests of honor at a luncheon hosted by Deputy Secretary Robert S. Ingersoll.

Presidential Press Secretary J.F. terHorst announced the mission on Monday and said it had been agreed to in principle during the Nixon administration.

The visit is to last from Sept. 2-14, and will include stops in Shanghai and Peking. The military jet liner took off at 8:20 a.m. EDT from Andrews Air Force Base.

State Department officials, who said they hoped the group would be received by Premier Chou En Lai and other high-ranking Chinese leaders, insisted that relations between Washington and Peking were "on course."

Reports had emanated from Chinese diplomats in Washington and the United Nations of disappointment in Peking that mutual relations have not improved faster. Taiwan and U.S. support for the Nationalist Chinese remain the main stumbling blocks.

Fulbright, outgoing chairman of the foreign relations committee, headed the delegation amid speculation here that President Ford may eventually name him to replace Ambassador David K. E. Bruce as the U.S. representative in Peking.

N. C. Ports Expected To Show Profit In 74

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP)— Ports Authority director Rae F. Watts has predicted the state ports system will make a $559,000 net profit in the 1974-75 fiscal year compared to a loss of a quarter-million dollars last year.

Watts made the comment at a meeting of the Ports Authority board Friday.

The board accepted Watts' recommendation to shelve plans to build an 800-foot addition to the docks at Wilmington. Watts said the projected cost of the addition had climbed to about $8 million. Only $2.9 had been obtained for the project.

The authority heard a report from the director of the Research Triangle Institute on a study the institute did of the ports system.

RTI director George Herbert said a comment in the study favorable to state ports officials was inserted "to insure the receptivity of recommendations." He compared it to "God and motherhood statements."

How the study was used by state officials has become a source of dispute. The study report was prepared while James W. Davis was executive director of the Ports Authority. He has since been replaced by Watts. It was reported last week that the authority received the study five months ago.

The paragraph favorable to the administration of the ports under Davis read: "In general, it can be said that the North Carolina state ports are well operated. There are many indications that decision-making has been sound, has contributed to continually improving operations at the ports and, thus, has enhanced the future viability of the ports."

Herbert told the Ports Authority that anyone "who has read a copy of the review draft of the report knows that it is necessary to work through 160 pages of detailed research and data and projections before coming to the quoted paragraph."

"Any reader should be able to recognize the paragraph for exactly what it is, a transitional paragraph between several chapters of economic data and seven detailed conclusions and 12 recommendations.

"Such 'God and motherhood' statements are quite common when it is important to insure the receptivity of recommendations of a study team," Herbert said.

Gin Recall

Somerset Importers Ltd. of New York City, at the direction of the North Carolina ABC Board, advised that "all persons who purchased pints (only) of Canada Dry Gin from North Carolina retail package stores between July 5 and Aug. 29, 1974 are . . . requested by the manufacturer to return the containers unopened to the stores for investigation of a possible container defect."

The firm reported that an exchange of the product will be made when the unopened containers are returned.

A spokesman for the firm said that the state ABC Board advised the New York distillery to notify newspapers of the problem in the areas where the product is marketed.

Big Gas Spill Near Lake

MOORESVILLE, N.C. (AP)— Eight thousand gallons of gasoline spilled Saturday near Lake Norman after a tanker truck overturned on Interstate 77 in Iredell County, the highway patrol reported.

A spokesman for the state Wildlife Resources Commission said that apparently none of the fuel had reached the lake. District Seven supervisor G.H. Abernethy said a wildlife agent was sent to the scene to investigate the spill.

Frinks Released From Prison

MAURY, N.C. (AP)—Civil rights leader Golden Frinks has been released from the Greene County prison unit in Maury pending an appeal to the North Carolina Supreme Court.

Frinks, 54, field secretary of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, entered the Maury unit Aug. 21 to begin serving a six month sentence growing out of a racial protest last year. He was taken into custody after the Court of Appeals found no error in his trial.

At Raleigh, Adrian J. Newton, clerk of the State Supreme court, said a stay of sentence had been issued pending Frinks' appeal to the high court. Frinks was released Friday night. He was given the six-month sentence on a charge of blocking a city street during a protest in Chowan County.

Rebellion On Electric Rates?

By The Associated Press

Asst. Atty. Gen. Jerry Rutledge says, "The Utilities Commission is fast becoming aware that the rate payer is close to rebellion" on rising electric prices in North Carolina.

He made the statement to 500 Wayne County customers of the Carolina Power & Light Co. who jammed a meeting room designed to seat 200 in a protest at Goldsboro Thursday.

Rutledge also told the crowd that consumer protests would help limit rate increases granted by the commission.

The Duke Power Co. says it has received about double the usual complaints about bills at its Charlotte office this summer.

Defends Mailing of Letters

RALEIGH (AP)—Insurance Commissioner John Ingram has defending his action in mailing letters at state expense to 2,000 delegates to the Democratic state convention praising them for adopting an insurance plank he backs.

It was estimated the mailing cost upwards of $300.

The convention adopted a plank calling on the legislature to prohibit charging under 25 and over 65 drivers higher auto liability insurance rates because of their age.

Capitol Copper Found

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP)— Jack Levin says 750 pounds of copper which his Levin Bros. Co. scrap recycling operation purchased in good faith, but which was found to have been stolen copper from the old state Capitol dome in Raleigh, was confiscated by the SBI Friday.

Thousands of pounds of sheet copper taken from the dome had been stored in a warehouse in Raleigh two years ago. This was done during the renovation of the capitol and the recovering of the roof. The old copper was to be used to make souvenirs.

Warns Against Tax Cut

RALEIGH (AP)—State Budget Director Kenneth Howard warned a legislative study commission Friday against state tax cuts.

In fact, Howard told the Special Senate Commission on Revenue Laws, which is studying the state's tax structure, that if they want the state to undertake new programs it might be necessary to slice some existing services.

"I don't think the availability figures at the present time augur well for proposals for a tax cut," Howard said.

Recommends No Second Chance

BELMONT, N.C. (AP) — The commander of the North Carolina American Legion, Dr. Samuel L. Shaver, a Belmont physician, has asked President Ford not to give draft defectors a second chance.

He said Friday he had sent this telegram to the President:

"While figuring a plan to give draft defectors a second chance, it would be worthwhile to consider a plan to give those who died for these defectors without hesitation for love of their country a second chance also.

Discouraged On Son's Amnesty

WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP)— Mrs. Virginia Jones, whose war-resister son went to Canada shortly after his graduation from Davidson College four years ago rather than be drafted, is discouraged about prospects for unconditional amnesty.

Mrs. Jones, a member of Families of Resisters for Amnesty, went to Washington with the group Thursday to plead for amnesty with no strings attached. She said in an interview Friday after her return home to Wilkesboro that she thought it would not be granted. To do so, she said, "would be an admission that the U.S. was wrong to go to Vietnam in the first place, and I don't think Washington will ever admit that."

Presses Search

By TIMOTHY BERRY

GUADALAJARA (UPI) — Police pressed their search for the kidnapers of President Luis Echeverria's father-in-law Saturday but the abductors' deadline passed with their demands for $1.6 million ransom and the release of 10 prisoners unmet. Fears grew that the aged man might be dead.

A communique dated last Wednesday, the day 83-year-old Jose Guadalupe Zuno Hernandez was kidnaped, said he would be "executed" by midnight Friday (2 a.m. Saturday EDT) unless the ransom was paid and 10 political prisoners were flown to Cuba. It was signed by the Armed Revolutionary Forces of the People.

The government announced Thursday it would not meet any demands or negotiate with the kidnapers. When the deadline passed Friday night there had been no announcement of any change in this policy.

The kidnapers phoned two newsmen Wednesday to give the location of their ransom note, but police confiscated whatever was found and federal authorities claimed no communiques were received.

On Friday night, a few minutes before the deadline for killing Zuno, the kidnapers phoned the leftwing magazine "Por Que?" in Mexico City and directed reporters to a copy of the note on a park bench in the capital. Por Que gave copies of the note to newsmen.

Steve Koch New Director

Robert Rausch, Director of the Greenville Community Chorus, has stepped down from his position as choirmaster to be succeeded by Steve Koch, Choral Director at Rose High School in Greenville.

Rausch, who is currently Director of Music at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, will instead fill the post of Music Co-ordinator of the Greenville District Methodist Churches.

Koch, who directed the recent production of the plays Oklahoma and Redmill at Rose High and also appeared in the "Summer in the Park" series, has begun his third year of instruction with the Greenville City School System. A graduate of the University of Richmond, he received his Masters of Music Degree at ECU.

Community Chorus rehearsals for the 1974-75 season will begin Tuesday, Sept. 3 at 7:30 p.m. in the Rose High School Gymnasium. Because of the Labor Day Weekend, the first rehearsal will be on a Tuesday. The following weeks thereafter, rehearsals will be held on the usual Mondays starting Monday, Sept. 9 at 7:30 p.m.

Cloud Posed By The Aftermath

The nation, which has faced much agony from Watergate, still has an agony left from the scandal; that is whether or not to prosecute former President Nixon.

Congress, which was moving toward impeachment of Nixon, wants no part of deciding whether the matter should be taken to the courts. That is understandable, since Congress was in the process of doing what the Constitution provides when Nixon's resignation came. After impeachment became moot, the Congress was not in a position to make any determination of the matter insofar as criminal prosecution. That is up to the judicial branch of government.

President Ford could issue a pardon for the former president, but it is not likely that he will do so at this stage. Ford did say in a recent press conference that he felt Nixon should not face further action, but he made no committment on what he would do if the former president were indicted.

"There have been no charges made. There has been no action by the court; there's been no action by any jury, and until any legal process has been undertaken I think it's unwise and untimely for me to make any committment," the president said.

The president, did, however, leave the door open for Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski to take action, saying he has "an obligation to take whatever action he sees fit. . .and that should include any and all individuals."

So the matter of whether the fomer president will be prosecuted appears to rest with Jaworski, and it is an awesome responsibility. Almost no one wants to see Nixon behind bars, but there is a school of thought that the evidence must be heard to clear up unanswerd questions about Watergate, and to clearly establish the former president's involvement in the cover-up.

It is also a matter of concern that others involved in the Watergate coverup are facing trial or have pled guilty to charges.

Our own inclination would be to leave the fallen president alone. At the same time, if such a decision is made, all the available evidence. which doesn't compromise national security, should be made public. If the evidence is overwhelming, it should never be left to appear that Nixon was not prosecuted because the proof was lacking.

State Pays Bills Slowly

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—If you do business with the state, and they owe you money, don't be embarrassed to send along a dunning letter.

It seems you may be in good company. Herb Carter of the state Purchasing and Contract division has determined that there are currently more than $300,000 in bills outstanding, "some of it over a year old."

These are bills for anything from paper to paper clips, sold to state agencies by private business firms through the purchasing division.

Some of the bills are more than a year old, and Carter fears the failure of some state department heads to get their bills paid will hurt future purchasing agreements. "We're losing integrity," he believes. It is not that the state doesn't have the money to pay up—all purchases must be approved beforehand and the money is available for immediate payment.

"I think it just simply is bad management on the part of some state people," Carter said.

Unmarked Cars

The state Highway Patrol is looking at the idea of doing away with the unmarked cruiser, banking on the theory that high visibility is worth more for traffic control than is stealth.

Three Highway Patrol districts are presently experiementing with patrolmen all using the familiar black-and-silver car so that patrol brass can evaluate arrest and enforcement figures compared to other areas where the unmarked cars are still in use.

When the unmarked cars first were introduced, they caused a flurry of criticism from people who thought use of them an "unfair tactic" by patrolmen.

Today, though, high visibility is the goal, and Patrol Commander E. W. Jones says he could "double the strength of the patrolmen on the interstate highways, and still would have motorists persistently and flagrantly violating the speed limit." A one-week crackdown to enforce the 55-mile limit produced 4,500 stops and 1,800 citations on interstate routes.

Raleigh Hill-Climb

State Sen. Lamar Gudger comes from the Asheville hill county, and has always thought of Raleigh as being flatland country.

That is, till the other day when he parked his car at the model and decided to take a leisurely stroll some 15 blocks over to the State Legislative Building for a meeting.

Dripping with sweat and huffing along, Gudger complained, "I never knew there were so many hills this far east."

Ambulance Sign

Ambulances will soon be seen without the traditional cross on them, as new federal regulations call for an emblem called the "Star of Life."

Conflicts developed over widespread use of the cross on ambulances, infringing on use of that symbol by the Red Cross.

All new ambulances are supposed to use the new emblem instead of the cross, and older ones will phase out the cross symbol when repainted.

Child's Life In Whaling

By BARBARA REED

MYSTIC, Conn. (AP) — "Jan. 2, 1887. I am 12 years old today. Our most noted pets that we have are the old cat and a few fat fleas. We are having a skating rink in the cabin...We are printing a little paper called the Spray. It is the ship's daily paper. We set the type ourselves." — From Ship Records, Mystic Seaport.

That's what life was like for a child years ago when many sea captains took their families on long voyages around the world. It was a time that would come once in history — a time that the Mystic Seaport maritime museum is recreating in a unique form.

A children's museum that was once filled with books many children could not understand has been renovated. Now children will be able to see, feel and touch life as it was aboard those early vessels for youngsters of another era.

There are early toys to examine, a bunk to climb into with a porthole that looks out to a diorama sea and clothes to try on that have been made to correspond to early styles.

Basically, the small structure has been outfitted to resemble quarters where children would have lived aboard ship. Surprisingly, it has an air of luxury. A plush, red-hued Oriental rug, for instance, covers the floor.

"The large ships were very often quite luxurious," said Lynn Peterson, who is directing the project as supervisor of group services in the Seaport's education department. "Paneling was frequently inlaid. There were also glass chandeliers. It was really a very opulent time."

The children's shiproom replica is not tied specifically to any one year, but more or less reflects the late 1800s or Victorian lifestyle.

"There was a lot of interest in comfort. That's why we have stuffed chairs, heavy drapes and the heavy clothes. People of that time had strong feelings about what was nice," Mrs. Peterson said.

The museum contents are the result of many hours of research, cutting, sewing and making reproductions of old toys.

"Children kept journals, wrote letters and made newspapers on board the vessels where they lived," explained

Sunday Morning Notes

At an age when most men have quit working and are puttering around in the back yard roses, George Brown and Lee Rowland, veteran local barbers, have moved into a new shop.

With them is Arthur Cherry, who after retiring from 22 years with the city schools, has returned to an old occupation of shining shoes.

Brown has been with the Proctor Barber Shop for 45 years. He began work with Frank Lockamy in 1929 and bought the shop out at the depths of the depression in 1932. Originally from Falkland, he barbered in Bethel and New Bern before coming to the Proctor.

ALVIN TAYLOR

Lee Rowland came to Greenville in 1927 after holding a job in Fountain. In Greenville, he worked at the Star and Sanitary barbershops and finally settled at the Proctor 35 years ago. He is from Halifax County.

Arthur Lee Cherry worked first with the Proctor then with the Star for five years and the Sanitary for 15 years. Then he went with the city schools and retired after 22 years to return to the Proctor.

The shop was originally located in the corner of the Proctor Hotel building at a time when the hotel was considered one of the finest in the east. The shop got its name from the hotel. It stayed on the corner for 20 years during an era when many men got their haircuts on Saturday and the work day often stretched far into the evening.

Twenty-six years ago the shop was moved next door, still in the Proctor building with a modernization of equipment.

It was decided a few months back that a move would be made to a new building which was to be constructed at 222B Cotanche Street facing on the parking lot at Third and Cotanche.

Aid To Dictators

(Wilson Daily Times)

It appears the time is not too distant when a more practical approach will govern our foreign aid programs. We have been giving money and military supplies to countries run by dictators, and Communists.

The foreign aid program could be used to pressure for change. In the coming weeks Congress will consider bills authorizing foreign aid money for fiscal 1975. And we do not consider it necessary to supply money, arms and food to Communist countries or dictatorships.

In this day of the tremendous national debt, of rising cost and leaping inflation it is time to take care of the home fires. "It is a complete reversal of American tradition to provide military support to dictatorships and each year we do more and more," says Rep. Bella S. Abzug of New York.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts argues that the United States should not provide military assistance to any country "with a record of flagrant and consistent repression of its citizens."

Foreign governments most frequently criticized are those in Chile, South Korea, South Vietnam, Brazil, Paraguay and the Philipines.

Sen. Alan Cranston of California has a list of 57 countries he says have dictators or authoritarian regimes and are receiving U. S. assistance. "Besides unwittingly subverting the aspirations of the very people we're supposed to be trying to help, we are undermining our economy by sending billions to such countries."

Frank Church who serves on the Foreign Relations Committee has introduced an amendment to cut off all U.S. military aid to South Korea in protest of the reported abuses of civilians' rights by President Park Chung Hee. Here we are supporting a massive program of military and economic assistance.

You can go on and on naming countries that we are helping of perpetuate a massing program of military and economic assistance.

Then you find arguments to support these countries because without aid they would all go the way to communism.

Well the break has to come and now is the time, especially when we are trying to get this nation on an even economic keel.

The INSIDE REPORT

That Reagan Rebellion

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The principal source of the Republican right's noisy mini-rebellion against President Ford is exposed by this backroom political fact: California Gov. Ronald Reagan's aides were telephoning conservative Republican leaders with remarks critical of the President within days after he took office.

Indeed, much anti-Ford talk by conservatives is traceable, directly or indirectly, to Sacramento. The sharpest critics want not only to shove Mr. Ford rightward but are desperate to breathe life into Reagan's expiring presidential hopes for 1976. Anti-Ford sentiment comes less from the party's mainstream conservative majority than from a fringe of hardcore Reaganites.

President Ford recognizes it as such. Resisting pressure for gestures to the right, he is confident of long-term conservative Republican support if he achieves his major goal: significant budget reduction.

Mr. Ford's difficulties with Reagan began after he became President and, thereby, a menace to the governor's 1976 last hurrah for President. Reagan was unaccountasbly absent during nearly all of Mr. Ford's many vice-presidential campaign trips to California. Although Ford aides claim Reagan was among the six finalists for Vice President, the reality that the governor never had a chance is appreciated—and resented—in Sacramento.

Thus, once Nelson Rockefeller was designated as Vice President, Reagan's operatives were telephoning to commiserate with fellow conservatives about the new President's leftward drift. That was quickly followed by Reagan's remarkable performance during his speaking engagement last Saturday on Maryland's eastern shore for Rep. Robert Bauman, a tough young conservative who is most unhappy with the Ford presidency so far.

Although Bauman's rally was held only an hour's auto ride from the White House, Reagan paid no courtesy call on the highly accessible new President. "I don't understand him being this close and not even saying hello," one top Ford aid told us.

In contrast to his steadfast defense of President Nixon, Reagan in Maryland was short on explicit praise for President Ford and long on implicit criticism (attacking Ford-endorsed health insurance, for example). When Reagan talked abut the "conservative mandate" in the 1972 election, he echoed the theme stressed by the right-wing weekly, Human Events, in its relentless anti-Ford editorials.

Simultaneously, conservative theoretician Kevin Phillips, in his political newsletter, suggested a third party nominating Reagan in 1976—a threat muttered by several conservatives in the House Republican cloakroom before the summer recess.

Such scare talk is not entirely a bluff intended to pressure Mr. Ford. The most dedicated House conservatives, such as Bauman and Rep. John Ashbrook of Ohio, believe that prestigious Senators—Barry Goldwater of Arizona, Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, John Tower of Texas—abdicated conservative leadership by not pressing to block the Rockefeller nomination. The House conservatives now look to Reagan and have not abandoned 1976 presidential hopes for him, either as a Republican or an independent.

This sentiment is largely limited to Ashbrook-Bauman type conservatives—who long ago grew disenchanted with Nixon—rather than the much larger Nixon hardcore.

Even among overwhelmingly conservative Southern Republican state chairmen, anti-Ford sentiment is noisier than it is broad. Nor is it faintly comparable to 1969 anti-Nixon passion there caused by school desegregation activity.

Mr. Ford has been sniped at by Florida's volatile state chairman, L. E. (Tommy) Thomas. But the real power among the Southerners remains Clarke Reed of Mississippi, who feels Rockefeller's nomination breaks the vice-presidential succession and makes it possible to nominate the best conservative for President in 1980.

Mr. Ford's congressional liaison staff similarly has advised him that the right-wing rebellion is narrowly based. Consequently, the President is not inclined to

Strength For Today

IN HUMBLE SERVICE

There is a story about Woodrow Wilson, told by a relative, which reveals an unexpected characteristics of a man who was considered by many to be haughty, reserved, and demanding. The relative was visiting Wilson and his wife about fifteen years before Wilson became president. At that time he was a young college professor. When the relative went to bed in the evening of the first day of his visit, he unthinkingly put his shoes outside of the door to be shined—the usual custom of upper middle class families of the late nineteenth century who had house servants.

Upon awaking the next morning the visitor suddenly remembered that the Wilson's had no house servants. But upon opening the door he found that his shoes had been shined—obviously by the future president himself.

Later on, the relative loved to tell the story of how the president of the United States had shined his shoes, but the always pointed out how this incident revealed the fine spirit of a young man who regarded no task as menial if it added to the comfort of a guest.

It's All In How You Look At It

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — It's all in how you look at it.

A portfolio manager and stock market adviser, John Wright of Bridgeport, Conn., has compiled a list of 1,550 leading American publicly owned common stocks that are available at 30 per cent of their market values of five years ago.

Does this mean there are bargains in stocks? It depends upon your assessment of the future.

If you believe the capitalist system is irrevocably disintegrating before your eyes, says Wright, there would really be nothing left in which to invest.

But if you interpret the low, low prices as a symptom of "an emerging new era of international regulation of money and credit," a period of stability, that is, then you might decide the risks are worth the rewards.

"In which case," says Wright, "There is no time like the present to buy, not sell, the common stocks of blue-chip industrial corporations."

How does Wright personally view the situation? Although he feels a major financial crisis of European origin might possibly severely affect American security markets within the next few weeks, he advises investors to retain investment grade common stocks.

Consumers also have learned that the point of view you take might determine your mood, and vice versa.

Some consumers might exult in learning that the dollar amount of disposable income has been growing this year. In fact, from the first quarter of 1973 through June of this year it has risen at an annual rate of 9 per cent.

But now you have to relate that increase to something else — to prices. Prices also have been rising, of course, and at a faster clip than dollar income. That 9 per cent increase now becomes a 1.5 per cent decline.

The situation becomes clearer when you realize that the measuring stick used, the dollar, doesn't have a constant value. It is true that Americans are earning more dollars, but those dollars are worth less than 1973 dollars.

Homeowners also have learned to view their personal financial position from two perspectives.

By one measure, the rising market prices of homes, those who already own homes have a solid investment, or at least a hedge against inflation. The house they bought in 1970 for $30,000 might be worth $40,000 on the market today.

On paper it all looks nice, but how do you turn the paper into profit if there isn't a market. In many communities houses are advertised at steadily higher prices — without any homes being sold in months.

The unavailability of mortgage money has so dampened the housing market that a good many of those so-called market prices aren't anything of the sort. If there's no market there's no accurate market price.

Approval Of Congress Up

PRINCETON, N.J.,—Public confidence in Congress has increased sharply since April, with 48 per cent of all persons in the latest survey approving of the way Congress is handling its job, compared to 35 per cent who disapprove. In the earlier survey, 30 per cent approved while 47 per cent disapproved.

A major factor in the sharp rise in approval—as indicated by comments from persons interviewed—were the televised sessions in late July of the House Judiciary Committee which reported out three articles of impeachment. These six days of public debate, followed closely by the television audience, were generally regarded by political observers as thorough and judicious.

One respondent in the latest Gallup survey had this to say: "Finally the air is cleared and Congress can go back to grappling with pressing legislation."

In the April survey, the approval rating given Congress was only five percentage points higher than the approval rating given President Nixon at the time, which was 25 per cent, his low mark up to that time.

Most of the criticism levelled at Congress in the April survey fell into three general areas: "playing politics," "foot-dragging" on key legislation, and its failure to override Nixon's vetoes.

Changes Have Come 'Across The board'

The sharp increase in approval between surveys has come about among all major groups in the population and in each region of the nation.

In the April survey, Republicans were 56 to 23 per cent on the disapproval side. Now their vote is fairly close with 38 per cent expressing approval and 45 per cent disapproving.

Democrats, on the other hand, are 55 to 27 per cent on the approval side, while independents also vote favorably on Congress's performance, 46 per cent approving and 38 per cent disapproving.

In the latest and April surveys, this question was asked:

"Do you approve or disapprove of the way the U.S. Congress is handling its job?"

Here are the latest findings compared with those recorded in April:

Congress Job Performance
(Per Cent Approving)

	April	Today	Point Change
National	30%	48%	+18
Republicans	23	38	+15
Democrats	38	55	+17
Independents	27	46	+19
College	33	49	+16
High school	31	48	+17
Grade school	25	43	+18
18-29 years	34	56	+22
30-49 years	32	48	+16
50 & over	27	42	+18
East	25	47	+22
Midwest	28	50	+22
South	34	48	+14
West	37	45	+ 8

The findings reported today are based on a nationwide survey of 1,435 adults, 18 and older, interviewed in person in more than 300 scientifically selected localities in the nation during the period Aug. 16-19.

A Conservative View
Our Man At The U.N., William F. Buckley, Jr.

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

NEW YORK—If the National Book Awards have an Oscar in the classification of "Most Delightful Book of the Year," I have a nomination: "United Nations Journal," by William F. Buckley Jr.

This is not the year's most profound work of non-fiction. It is not the most important book Mr. Buckley will ever write. But if your appetite leans toward pure delight, this is your dish.

Mr. Buckley, the columnist, editor, raconteur, yachtsman, world traveler, lecturer, TV inquisitor, and bon vivant, served from mid-September until mid-December of 1973 as a member of the United States delegation to the United Nations General Assembly. It was rather as if a fox had been elected to the board of the Chickens Alliance.

Why did he accept the post? "It was, I think, the only experience I ever had in pure, undiluted Walter Mittyism. I saw myself there, in the center of the great assembly at the U.N., holding the delegates spellbound as I read to them from Solzhenitsyn, as I described the latest account of concentration camps in Mainland China, as I pleaded the case of the ballet dancer Panov. I would cajole, wheedle, parry, thrust, mesmerize, dismay, seduce, intimidate. The press of the world would rivet its attention on the case the American delegate was making for human rights..."

It didn't work out that way. Mr. Buckley speedily discovered that on a scale of creative values, a U.N. delegate ranks somewhere south of a ventriloquist's dummy. He speaks when he is told to speak; he says what he is told to say; most of the time a delegate sits mute on the ambassador's knee. Mr. Buckley's golden tonsils never were exercised at all.

It might have proved a dreadful experience. My good friend is both actor and satirist, a kind of ham on wry, whose happiest hours are spent in the contemplation of his own mellifluous speech. Buckley mute is Buckley miserable. Instead of fretting at his diplomatic fetters, however, Mr. Buckley passed his time looking at the species he found in the zoo. This journal is a record of his bemused observations.

It was a busy season for the General Assembly. The Assembly never truly does anything. In substantive terms, it does nothing; but it does nothing interminably. During the 1973 session the Assembly had Portugal to kick around, of course, and South Africa as well, but in addition to these familiar pastimes it had the Mideast to play with; it had General Mobutu of Zaire, and it had questions involving Cuba, Cambodia, and Chile. The Assembly also had to suffer a hundred windy speeches on human rights, each of them compounded of high-flown oratory and flatulent hypocrisy, in the fashion of a concerto scored for kazoo.

The American delegate listened gravely to this palpable nonsense, as attentive as Alice to the Caterpillar, and wrote a journal that would have enchanted Lewis Carroll. It is a funny book — not merely funny, chuckle, but often funny, ha-ha — but it is filled with serious insights. Once when the delegate from Portugal was speaking, all other delegations walked out of the hall. This ritual insult "stressed the huge frailty of the General Assembly the overarching paradox." Says Mr. Buckley:

"While as a legislative body, the Assembly is useless, and while as a debating body it is invaluable, it does a great deal of legislating, and absolutely no debating."

If the General Assembly engaged in serious debate, Mr. Buckley suggests, instead of in Punch-and Judy puppitry, the Assembly might justify its existence as a forum in which nations of the world could search seriously for the moral reality of truth. But in this game of charades, the clues lead not to truth but to falsehood instead. "The United Nations," Mr. Buckley concludes, "is the most concentrated assault on moral reality in the history of free institutions, and it does not do to ignore that fact or, worse, to get used to it."

To Overcome Inflation, Pres. Ford Must Lead Down Very Hard Path

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

On inflation, President Ford's choice is between the hammer and the anvil. There simply is no plainless way out.

Any truly meaningful effort to remove the basic causes of inflation is bound to have severe side effects. It will mean an unaccustomed austerity, marked by a diversion of resources from the consumer to the production sidé of the economy.

This, of course, is why Washington has ducked the inflation issue so long. Any major change in government fiscal and monetary policy quickly translates into recession even depression for some segments of the economy. And the hoped-for results can't be obtained between elections. It will take years of restraint to do the job.

President Ford can opt the other way. This means accepting a rising rate of inflation as government policy and devising "adjustments" designed to cushion the impact. Other countries have tried this, but with bitter results.

Soomer or later, these "spiral" policies, with incomes tied to living costs, end up with unacceptable damage to the working class. In South America, they have produced military dictatorships.

Given this hard choice, there is the danger that the Ford White House may elect a highly dangerous policy of drift. His spokesmen have pictured Ford as determined to reject a "cosmetic" approach to the problem. But there is bound to be the temptation to try some sort of middle ground.

Right at the start, Ford pictured himself as an entirely reasonable man, ready to lead by conciliation and compromise. But at this stage, any compromise in the fight on inflation is going to mean a weak fight.

If Ford does elect to make a determined fight to slow the rate of inflation and give the dollar some semblance of stable buying power, he is going to find a lot of the top lobbies in Washington working against him. The opposition may not be out in the open in the open, but it will be there, nonetheless.

Take the banking industry, for example. For some years after World War II, bankers shuddered at the mention of inflation. Their's was an Eisenhower-like devotion to a "solid" dollar. But the 1960s brought a change. The banking industry got caught up in the go-go spirit and there was a race for both loan funds and loans. They found it profitable to underwrite inflation. Any deflation turns some of their "paper" sour.

The same thing goes for a lot of businesses who are over-extended and worried about meeting obligations. And Big Labor, of course, has a big state. It has been and still is a major force in big social programs, such as medical aid, spending in Congress.

From a public relations standpoint, the upcoming Economic Summit was a good move by Ford. It will be a forum he can use in explaining the inflation problem to the public. Also, it will give him a first hand contact with many of the men who will be important in supporting and opposing whatever program he comes out with.

The underlying cause of inflation will be well known to this group. Most agree that long years of sloppy fiscal and monetary policy is at the heart of today's soaring prices. The big spending, the big deficits and the method of creating money and credit to underwrite the policy simply got out of hand.

True, grain and fuel shortages have played a recent part. But they merely put painful bulges in an inflation trend which was well established and pointing the economy toward disaster.

The question facing Ford and the Econoomic Summit is not "what caused the inflation?" but "what, if anything is going to be done about it."

the project director. Information was culled from those sources and put together with the research help of education staff member Patricia Biggins.

There are stuffed gingham cats made from some of the materials being offered commercially today. The same commercial products were used to duplicate early china dolls.

"We hope they will have a fairly long life, but these things are not antiques and can be produced again at little cost," said Mrs. Peterson, adding that much time was spent looking for feathers and cloth flowers to sew onto the large hats worn in the period.

Youngsters will be able to try the hats and other clothing while visiting the museum. A large mirror gives children a look at themselves as they might have been years ago.

Adults will essentially be barred from the museum. They may come into the building with children and watch from a walkway above the cabin room. Guides, however, are on duty to permit youngsters down into the room, where they may sit on the floor and play or explore.

They will be allowed to climb atop a quilt-covered bunk, enclosed by drapes, and look out a unique porthole — it is square and part of historical data unearthed during research.

"Why shouldn't history be fun? So many of the items children see in museums cannot be touched or they fall apart. This idea is every bit as good and, hopefully, more interesting," said Mrs. Peterson.

For most of its existence the Proctor had been a four chair shop, but a few years back the long hair style came into being and finally only Rowland and Brown were left. So it was decided that the new shop would be only a two-chair shop, and that was how it is designed.

Virtually everything is new, however. The building and decorations, barber chairs and wash basins are all new and modern. Only some mirrors and a hat rack were brought over from the old shop for the new Proctor.

Rowland says he likes the new location "better than anywhere I've been." With free parking available the two veteran barbers say they see some new customers, and their long time patrons are still coming.

Eventually, of course, Brown, Rowland and Cherry will all retire for good. They feel that when that time comes a modern barber shop with a going trade will be available to two young enterprising barbers.

conservative appeasement gimmicks being suggested (such as moving up the date for permitting personal gold purchases, and intends to stick to basics: overall budget cuts and strong national defense.

Mr. Ford, therefore, could reverse the performance of his predecessor. Whereas President Nixom made cosmetic concessions to the right while failing to control federal spending, President Ford intends to move leftward cosmetically while truly cutting the budget. If he succeeds, the The Reagan rebellion will soon be forgotten.

SALUTE TO THOSE WHO PUT IT ALL TOGETHER!

Life In An Armed Camp Carries Its Own Perils

The politicians warn that if crime keeps increasing at the present rate, we'll all be living in armed camps. I already do.

I am desperately afraid of burglars, perhaps because of my city upbringing. The first thing I do when I move to a new house is install bar locks on the doors. And, if I have to stay at home alone for any length of time, I pepper the house with booby traps. Imagine my husband's surprise when he came home early from a trip and found peanut butter spread on every doorknob, shin-high wires across every passageway, and a vicious wife, her hatpin shining in the moonlight, as she lunged at him from behind the bedroom door.

But, in spite of all my precautions, we came home from the beach on Sunday afternoon to find a burglar in our house.

I was just reaching to open the door of our bathroom, where we had left the cat overnight, when the toilet flushed. I jerked back my hand. "Oh, pray for Batman's arrival," I whispered to my husband. "Someone's broken in!"

"That's impossible!" he scoffed. "No one would have made it safely over that Jello you spread in front of the door."

"Someone did!" I quivered. "And he's in there now, using OUR bathroom."

"He could have waited," muttered my husband. "Let's get out of here and call the police."

"I am not going to leave my cat and my Robert Redford night light alone with that monster," I objected.

"Robert Redford can take care of himself. That burglar may come out any minute, carrying a gun!" he hissed.

"I'm going in there and get him," I whispered bravely.

"No, I'll go," my husband said. "I'm not going to have a martyr on my hands." He tiptoed up to the door and knocked. "Anybody in there?" he asked.

"He must be sick," I said. "Besides, you don't knock for a burglar. Even Amy Vanderbilt would forgive you for not knocking for a burglar. Go in and get him," I ordered, sticking a rolling pin in his hand.

"Maybe it's my sister," he hedged. "You wouldn't want me to walk in on my sister. It might cause a family crisis."

"What would your sister be doing here?" I retorted. "She doesn't have a key, and she has her own bathroom."

"I'm hungry," he said. "I can't face a burglar on an empty stomach. "Let's go out and eat, and if he's still here when we get back, I'll go in after him."

The toiled flushed a third time.

GAIL MICHAELS

"He's drowning our cat!" I wailed. "Go in and get him!"

"Okay, okay. Pull your pants up! I'm coming in!" shouted my husband.

He threw open the door, and there, on the toilet seat, sat our cat, calmly pushing down the handle—and, as she surveyed the swirling waters with intense interest, the toiled flushed one more time.

"This is what you could call a literal interpretation of the term 'cat burglar,' " my husband sighed, as he pushed past me and started toward the front door.

"Watch out for the Jello!" I cried. Too late.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Sept. 1, the 244th day of 1974. There are 121 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this day in 1939, Germany invaded Poland. It was the beginning of World War II.

On this date —

In 1862, liquor rations were abolished in the U.S. Navy.

In 1923, the Japanese cities of Tokyo and Yokohama were devastated by an earthquake.

In 1946, the people of Greece voted in a plebescite to recall King George II to the throne.

Acceleration Of N.C. Road Construction Said Raleigh Goal

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — The Holshouser administration hopes to dramatically accelerate the slow pace of road construction during its first 18 months in office.

Secretary of Transportation Troy Doby, in an interview, said "there were valid reasons for it (the slow pace). But those reasons aren't valid any more."

A look at department records shows that a complete reversal of current trends will be necessary if the state's first modern Republican Administration is to match the road construction record of its Democratic predecessor.

Statistical comparisons are blurred by changes in accounting procedures and the structure of the department. However, they do show that fewer projects are being built. Money allocated for road construction is sitting in the department's treasury.

Gov. Bob Scott's highway commission, in fiscal year 1969-70, approved bids on more than 130 new road construction projects in the comparable first fiscal year under Gov. Jim Holshouser's Board of Transportation, 69 projects were approved.

In 1969-70, the Scott administration spent $73.4 million on all phases of the state's secondary roads program. In 1973-74, despite four years of inflation, the Holshouser administration spent less: $71.6 million.

This was not due to a shortage of money. Department figures show that during the 1973-74 fiscal year, $10 million was allocated but not spent for the paving of dirt roads in the secondary county system.

Doby said there have been many reasons for the reduction in paving progress on both the primary and secondary systems.

As it took office, the Administration froze spending on all existing projects. Many have since been approved for more work, but some have been "taken down" from the construction schedule.

Then it was forced to reorganize by the passage of the 1973 legislature's highway act. "The Secondary Roads Council didn't really get started until January of this year," Doby said.

Scott's highway commissioners had more flexibility in spending secondary road funds than do the member of the Secondary Roads Council, Doby said. If they ran into a snag on one project, they could switch the funds to another.

The 1973 legislation, he said, gives the priority list legal standing. It is difficult to change, Doby said, and many projects have been halted because of inability to obtain rights of way.

This problem, he said, has been exacerbated by the increased amount of secondary roads money allocated to mountain counties.

The 1973 legislation called for allocation to each county based on two factors: miles of unpaved roads and the difficulty of paving roads in the area.

Since mountain counties' terrain makes paving more difficult, they get more money.

Boby said the mountaineers who live on the dirt road "don't like to give up an inch of their land. They want the road paved, but they want the right of way to take someone else's property.

Most of the unexpended secondary funds, he noted, come from four of the state's 14 highway districts. Two of them are in the western mountains.

In primary road projects, Doby said, the Administration has been spending "every nickel" available to it. But the nickels don't go as far as they did in 1969.

A department specialist, William Ingram, said that since 1967, regarded as a base year for cost computation, paving expenses have risen 225 per cent.

The funds to build roads, Doby said, have not increased at nearly the same pace.

Nonetheless, he said, he expects the figures on road construction to show a different story when the current construction year ends in November.

"The word has gone out to the staff and to the councils. I believe it's sunk in. We're supposed to build roads, and we're going to build roads."

Paralyzed Youths To Attend St. Andrews College

By CAROL B. TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

ROBERT HOGGARD

Buzzy Pierce of Rt. 2, Farmville, Rusty Liles of Farmville, Bill Mizzell of Colerain in Bertie County, and Richard Hudson of near Tarboro are going to St. Andrews College today. All four are wheelchair-bound. They were joined here by Theron Moye, a senior at Ayden-Grifton High School, who plans to go to St. Andrews next year, and by Robert Hoggard, who works in Ayden. Theron and Robert are in wheelchairs, too.

THERON MOYE

All six young men are paralyzed. All except Buzzy and Robert were injured in automobile accidents. Buzzy had polio when he was six months old. A tree fell on Robert when, at 16, he was cutting wood for his family's fireplace.

Ready For College

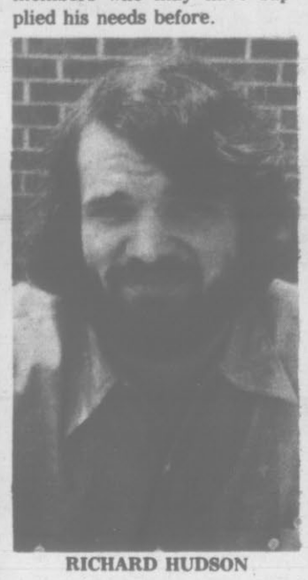
All six men have had extensive rehabilitation counseling. They were accompanied here by Horace Lawrence and Clem Williams, two Vocational Rehabilitation counselors. All are high school graduates, except Theron, who will graduate next June. They are college material, but they have had many interruptions and roadblocks along the way.

BUZZY PIERCE

Buzzy, who got his high school diploma in 1967, after earning much of his education through tutors and by his sister's bringing home his assignments from Belvoir High School, said, "I applied at St. Andrews five years ago. I knew I could do the academic work anywhere, but I have to have a lot of assistance physically. I heard about St. Andrews' plan to have a rehabilitation evaluation center that would provide this assistance. It sounded so great, I applied immediately. In the meantime, though, until the Center was ready, I took a business course at Woodrow Wilson Vocational Center in Fishersville, Va. I didn't and still don't think I'd like business as a career. I've wanted for a long time to be in rehab work, but business might be good to fall back on."

Special Center

The Rehabilitation Evaluation Center to which Buzzy referred is a new facility at St. Andrews. It is a dormitory with special equipment for the severely disabled, including 24-hour nursing care, a counselor, and doctors on call. The whole St. Andrews campus is free of architectural barriers, and each severely handicapped person is assigned an attendant to help him dress or whatever, so he can function away from family members who may have supplied his needs before.



RICHARD HUDSON

Richard Hudson, written up this past summer in The Daily Reflector and in other newspapers via the Associated Press because of his quick adjustment to his parapalegia and for his weight-lifting ability, was in summer school at St. Andrews, as were Buzzy, Theron, and Bill. He is a college junior, having been a student and a track and football team member at N. C. State University at the time of his debilitating automobile accident.

Theron was a football player at D. H. Conley before his auto accident, and he's looking forward to wheelchair football at St. Andrews and weight-lifting, as well. He says he knows he likes St. Andrews because he was there this past summer taking college credit work, even though he is a senior at Conley.

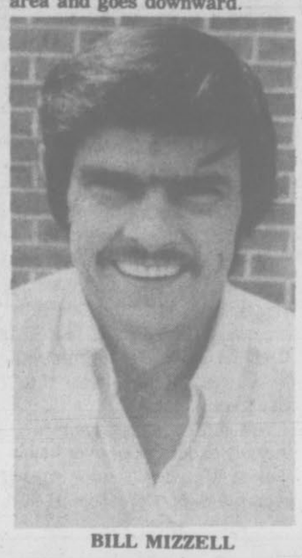
Robert, who's from Robersonville, took a two-year business administration course at Martin Technical Institute and is now trim supervisor at Lisa's Inc. in Grifton. He was recently fitted for leg braces, and hopes to be on his feet at times soon. Richard has these same prospects.

Hopes Higher Lately

Looking at Bill Mizzell and Rusty Liles, Theron, Robert, Richard, and Buzzy say they consider themselves lucky that they got into rehabilitation early after their injuries and knew there was a future, including a good education and a satisfying career ahead for them.

RUSTY LILES

Bill and Rusty both have memories of hopeless feelings. Both are quadriplegics. Their paralysis begins in the chest area and goes downward.



BILL MIZZELL

Bill is divorced and has three children, all of whom live with his former wife. He is 34 years old, an age when few people think of beginning college. "Why not," he says. "I've just found myself and decided I can do something very, very useful. I'm going to counsel other people with disabilities."

He has had more than 20 operations, and recalls when surgeons at Duke told him he would be better off to have his legs removed so he would be lighter for someone to carry. They also refused to recommend him for Vocational Rehabilitation, because he was "little more than a vegetable."

He spent the last two years at Wilson Vocational Center. He recently had a car fitted with hand controls and he is driving to St. Andrews today. He feels he is so self-sufficient that soon he won't have to take up a much-sought-after place in the Rehabilitation Evaluation Center there. He thinks he will be fine in just any dorm. An athlete who lettered in three sports and set a track record at Colerain High, he's looking forward to the numerous wheelchair sports offered at St. Andrews.

Injured while a student at Farmville High School in 1964, Rusty, 26, has had years of being taken care of by his father and grandparents and feeling his "useless" body would keep him forever from using his superior mind. He lived for a while at the Greenville Nursing Center while he attended the Eastern Carolina Sheltered Workshop. For the past two years he has been at the Asheville Rehabilitation Center, not unlike the one planned for Pitt Memorial Hospital. Here he got 18 hours semester hours of college credit.

It was at the Sheltered Workshop that he got the idea for his life's work. "I want to work in rehabilitating prisoners," he said. "I talked to a lot of guys on work release at the Workshop and learned something about what they have to cope with. I think this is a field that would mean a lot to me, and would help people who really need help and improve society in general."

Farmers To Decide On Productions

Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz has said that 1975 feed grain, wheat, and upland cotton programs will have no set-aside requirement, and will provide farmers decision-making freedom to produce for the marketplace.

He stressed there will be no land removed from agricultural production under these government programs.

As the Department stated when announcing the 1974 programs, there will be no conserving base requirement for the duration of the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973 (through the 1977 crop year). Nor will the provision be implemented during the life of the 1973 Act which gives the Secretary discretionary authority to limit feed grain and wheat to a percentage of allotments and upland cotton planted in excess of the base allotment.

The Secretary pointed out that the allotments under programs authorized under the 1973 Farm Bill do not represent a limit on acreage, but are computed only for the purpose of payments to producers should such payments be required. Generally, the allotments for wheat and feed grains represent the number of acres harvested of wheat, corn, grain sorghum and barley based on the estimated national average yield which would result in production equal to estimated domestic and export disappearance in the 1975-76 marketing year.

Also as in 1974, the producers may substitute any non-conserving crop or any conserving crop used for hay or for grazing in order to preserve their wheat, feed grain or cotton allotments and to make them eligible for any payments under the target price feature. Crops for which a marketing quota is in effect are excluded.

Because of the market-oriented nature of these programs, producers will be studying prices rather than allotment acreages, Secretary Butz said.

TREE SCULPTOR—Anthony Lockwood uses a chain saw as he sculptures a statue of a Scottish golfer from a 25-foot tree trunk at the Kirkbrae Country Club, Lincoln, R.I. The old oak was a strategic obstacle on the sixth fairway at the club. When the tree died the club decided that paying Lockwood to carve out a somber-faced golfer was a cheap alternative to replacing it. (AP Wirephoto)

Young, Black And An Eye For Top

By EDWARD S. LECHTZIN
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT (UPI) — Barbara Whittaker has no intention of becoming just another worker among thousands at giant General Motors.

Ms. Whittaker, 23, knows there's room at or near the top of the corporate hierarchy and isn't bashful about admitting that's where she'd like to be in not too many years.

The combination of being young, black and a woman is a good one at GM these days as the giant corporation actively seeks potential executives from minority groups. GM likes to use her as an example of its efforts, which so far have not produced impressive statistics.

Minorities comprise almost 18 per cent of GM's hourly work force, but less than 9 per cent of the white collar jobs are held by minorities. As of last December, GM employed about 97,000 women, but only 4,300 were in management, professional or technical jobs.

When Ms. Whittaker talks about moving up into the executive ranks, it's not simply a job advancement she's talking about. It could be a way to help other people.

"A large company has the ability to help solve some of the problems our society faces today," she said. "Most of the push toward social change has to come from top and middle management.

"You have to be at the position where you're able to make policy decisions if you want to get anything accomplished. My goal is getting people's heads turned toward doing things, not just talking about it."

Ms. Whittaker says a comment that she'd like to be a GM vice president wasn't made in jest.

"I want to test my potential and I might not want to stop there," she said.

The only thing much higher at GM than the numerous vice presidents is the presidency, a job now held by Edward N. Cole who, like Ms. Whitaker, is a graduate of the General Motors Institute.

In July, Ms. Whittaker became the first black woman to graduate from GMI, the only non-profit, degree-granting educational institution owned by a corporation. At an almost all-male, nearly all-white school she enjoyed the distinction of being the first woman senior class president.

She was only the fourth woman to graduate from GMI in its 54-year history. From the Flint, Mich., campus where she met and recently married David Whittaker, she moved to the Chevrolet Central Office in Detroit while David works as a design engineer with the GM Engineering Staff.

GMI offers its students a five-year work-study program. Ms. Whittaker was sponsored by one of GM's non-automotive divisions — TEREX, which makes off-highway haulers, scrapers, front-end loaders and crawler tractors.

She can operate some of the big equipment despite her 5-foot-2 stature though she admits all she's ever tried to do is drive them. At GMI, she was the first woman to attend a course in engine service.

Being the first to try something can have its problems. Her first year at GMI was the roughest, she says.

"We were different," she said of the few women and blacks in her freshman class. "Once they go to know us though, it wasn't so bad.

"But at first I was a double threat, being a woman and a black."

Some men still might consider her a threat. She's in a hurry to accomplish things and told one interviewer she doesn't want to "wait" for things to happen.

"In most situations people don't have to wait," she said. "Besides, if you take the attitude that the world isn't ready for you, you could wait the rest of your life."

Blind, But Plans 500-Mile Trip

By GEOFFREY MILLER

LONDON (AP) — Mike Tetley, who was blinded during army service in Kenya, plans to return there and cycle 500 miles through wild country.

Not alone. He will be on the back seat of a tandem, with a partner who can see to steer the way.

Tetley, 44, lost his sight while serving in the Kenya Regiment and fighting the Mau-Mau rebels in the '50s.

As he lay in hospital in Nairobi, a Salvation Army officer visited him and gave him a Braille watch.

He came home to England and trained as a physiotherapist at St. Dunstan's, a rehabilitation center for the blind. At the same time he took up tandem cycling.

Now he is going back to Kenya to repay his debt to the Salvation Army. He plans to visit a Salvation Army school for the blind at Thika and demonstrate some of the things a blind man can do — including tandem cycling with a seeing partner.

"I enjoy tandem riding," Tetley said. "I've been doing it for several years now, and wherever I go on my tandem we attract attention.

"I thought that if we attracted notice in Africa, and it got around to the blind boys at the Salvation Army's school, it could do a lot of good."

Tandem cycling has a long tradition among sports for the war-blinded at St. Dunstan's. But this will be the first time anyone trained at the center has embarked on such a long ride.

Tetley has a regular cycling partner in Britain, Dennis Bray. But in Kenya he will be partnered by Edwin Rodrigues, a 25-year-old teacher who will meet him on arrival in Nairobi.

They plan to pedal out from Nairobi and ride 75 miles a day, making their way via Mombasa to Malindi in about six days. The route lies through Tsavo, notorious for man-eating lions.

"The lions stopped the construction of a railway for two years by gobbling up the workers," Tetley said.

"We should run across every form of big game, so I am taking some fire crackers to frighten them off."

Holding Second Photo Contest

Plastic Pipes To Bring Skirl

GLASGOW (AP) — The skirl of the pipes may soon come from plastic instruments because Uganda has banned the export of the African blackwood traditionally used to make the chanter, which produces the melody.

Seumus MacNeill, principal of the Scottish College of Piping, said he has heard plastic pipes in Canada and they "seem to play just as well."

SLATED FOR REPAIR

Metzgar To Be At High School

Doug Metzgar, associate to Christian author and film maker, David Wilkerson, will be at the Rose High School Gymnasium Tuesday and Wednesday.

He is traveling throughout the country promoting the film, The Road to Armageddon, based on Wilkerson's book about insights he says he has received into coming events in America.

David Wilkerson Youth Crusades are based in Dallas, Tex. He is the minister who converted Nicky Cruz in the ghettoes of New York.

Pastor Steve Jones of Greenville invites the public, but especially youth, to hear Metzgar's messages.

GIVE WARNING

DETROIT (UPI) — It's a good policy to let the motorist behind you know when you intend to stop if you're driving in heavy traffic. A few quick taps on the brake pedal will blink the brake lights and warn him of what you're doing.

Preseason Outlook: Sooners No. One

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Oklahoma Sooners, who finished third last season, have been tapped to unseat Notre Dame as college football's national champion.

In nationwide balloting by the 58 members of The Associated Press panel of sports writers and broadcasters, Oklahoma received 23 first-place votes and 976 of a possible 1,160 points.

Trailing the Sooners in the preseason voting were Ohio State, Notre Dame and Alabama. The rest of the Top Ten consisted of Southern California, Michigan, Nebraska, Penn State, Louisiana State and Texas.

"I think it's great to be No. 1, but it puts a lot of pressure on us," said Oklahoma's Barry Switzer, who compiled a 10-0-1 mark last season in his debut as a head coach. "When Playboy picks you No. 1 you don't feel the pressure, but when the writers and broadcasters pick you No. 1 the pressure is really on.

"There's a lot of responsibility involved in something like this and we've got to be mentally mature to handle it. I hope this is just a starting point and we can be No. 1 at the end of the season, too. We've got to play extra hard now."

The Sooners are winding up a two-year probation levied by the National Collegiate Athletic Association for recruiting violations and can not go to a bowl game this season.

Ohio State, which finished second in last year's final AP poll following a convincing 42-21 Rose Bowl rout of Southern Cal, received 14 first-place votes and 907 points.

Notre Dame won the 1973 national championship by eking out a 24-23 victory over Alabama in the Sugar Bowl, but the Fighting Irish were rated third in the preseason poll with 13 first-place votes and 864 points.

Alabama was fourth, just as it was in the final 1973 AP poll, with six first-place votes and 859 points. Southern Cal, the 1972 champion, received one first-place ballot and 752 points. The other first-place vote went to Michigan, which had 586 points.

Southern Cal was No. 1 in last year's preseason poll, while Notre Dame, the eventual champion, was eighth. Oklahoma was 11th.

This year's preseason Second Ten consisted of Houston, UCLA, Pitt, Maryland, Arizona State, Tennessee, Arizona, North Carolina State, Arkansas and Texas A&M.

The final 1973 poll: Notre Dame, Ohio State, Oklahoma, Alabama, Penn State, Michigan, Nebraska, Southern California, Arizona State and Houston tied for ninth, Texas Tech, UCLA, Louisiana State, Texas, Miami of Ohio, North Carolina State, Missouri, Kansas and Tennessee, with Maryland and Tulane tied for 20th.

Offense Trails Defense

Saturday was D-Day minus 14 for the East Carolina University Pirates, and Coach Pat Dye put them through a two-hour scrimmage before a thundershower forced the Bucs from the field.

And even then, Dye was hoping to get back out and do some more work. "We didn't get to run, and I don't like to stop before we've run some," he said. The scrimmage wound up the first week of drills by the Pirates, who open the season on September 14 by playing host to the Falcons of Bowling Green University.

"I don't want to comment on any of the personnel until after we've reviewed the films," Dye said in the locker room. "But it wouldn't take a Philadelphia lawyer to see that the offense is way behind the defense."

"Our execution at times was not that bad," he said of the offense. "We got some good blocks by our backs, and got off a few good runs. But we were not consistant, we didn't have things going well between the quarterbacks and the fullbacks, and we didn't protect the passer. We've got to go a long way in a short time."

Dye was impressed by the punting of Gill Job, who averaged around 40 yards per boot. "I would guess that that was the highlight of the afternoon." There was only one score, a 36-yard field goal by Jim Woody.

"Maybe we can win on the defense and our kicking game, at least until the offense catches up. I hope that the films will show that some of the offensive people did some good things," the coach said.

"We misread the veer a lot. The quarterback and fullback didn't work properly together much of the time. Maybe I expected too much for the first scrimmage, but our pass protection was pitiful. We had men open to catch the ball, but we didn't have time to get it to them."

Injuries, and there have been a couple, mostly to backs, haven't hurt, however. "We have plenty of people who are doing a good job."

Dye did have praise for the first defensive unit. "I was a little worried about the cornerbacks (Greg Pingston and Ernest Madison) but they've come a long ways. If the rest can get any better, they have. (Cary) Godette is just super, a great player, at middle guard."

Dye also sees that there will be some help from some of the incoming freshmen, including two of the area players, Harold Randolph and Willie Hawkins.

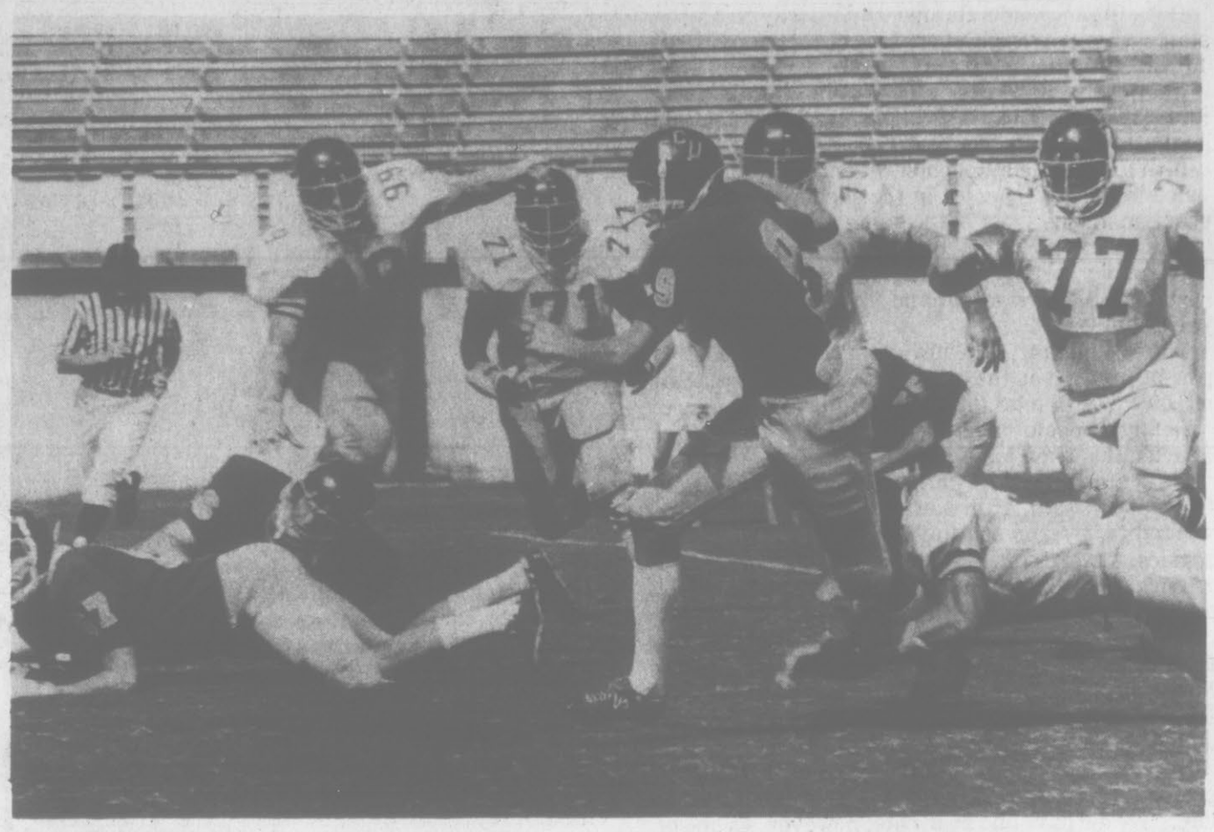
Randolph, a linebacker from Rose, "will be an outstanding player for us," Dye said. "With a little work on the weights, added to the quickness and the natural ability he has, he can be a fine player."

Hawkins, from Conley, helped to spring one of the quarterbacks, Tom Chipok, on a long run, and also did some good running himself. Chipok, too, had some fine moments, despite a fumble at the one yard line.

"We are going to have some help from these freshmen on offense," Dye said. He singled out Wayne Bolt, Lewis Morris, Ronnie Ragland, Ronnie Byrd and Dennis Morgan as frosh who have looked good. "All of them are big, and they'll be good, it's just a matter of how soon."

Dye feels that the Bucs have made more progress in the first week of the fall than they did during the first week last spring. "But we're not ready to play offensively. We had a lot of fumbles out there today, and made a lot of mistakes."

Practice continues twice a day this week.



OPTION KEEPER—East Carolina quarterback Mike Weaver (9) makes some yardage against the second defensive unit during the first full-scale scrimmage of the fall Saturday afternoon. Coach Pat Dye was unhappy with the offensive play, but feels the defense is coming along well. The Bucs have completed one of their three weeks of pre-season practice. Twins Win On Homers

BLOOMINGTON (AP) — Home runs by Tony Oliva and Steve Braun powered the Minnesota Twins to a 6-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox Saturday in a nationally televised game.

Dave Goltz, 7-7, scattered six hits over the first eight innings, but needed relief help from Tom Burgmeier in the ninth as the Twins handed the American League East leaders their fifth loss in the last seven games.

Eric Soderholm's seventh hit in his last eight times at bat, a two-out single in the first inning, drove in Minnesota's first run and Oliva's 369-foot homer made it 2-0 in the third.

Minnesota knocked out Boston starter Dick Drago, 6-8, in the sixth. Soderholm led off with a walk and Braun followed with his home run, a 389-foot line drive into the right field bleachers. Drago retired the next two batters, but after Glenn Borgmann singled, Drago was lifted for Diego Segui, who got Steve Brye to ground out on his first pitch.

The Twins added a run in the seventh on Oliva's RBI single and another in the eighth on Brye's run-scoring double.

Boston's first run came in the fourth when the Red Sox reached Goltz for three consecutive singles. But after Carl Yastrzemski's RBI, Goltz avoided further trouble by getting Rico Petrocelli to hit into a double play and striking out Jim Rice.

Yastrzemski homered to lead off the ninth for Boston's other run. After Rico Petrocelli singled, Burgmeier replaced Goltz and finished up.

Burgmeier came in with a man on first and none out and preserved the victory by getting pinch-hitter Bob Montgomery to hit into a double-play and Doug Griffin to ground out.

The Twins reached Segui for a run in the seventh when Larry Hisle singled, stole second and came in on Oliva's single for a 5-1 lead. In the eighth, Danny Thompson led off with a single and Borgmann walked before Brye cracked his run-scoring double to left-center. Rod Carew was intentionally walked to load the bases, but Segui got Hisle to pop out and Oliva to hit into an inning-ending double play.

Goltz, who has been inconsistent for most of the season, has only one complete game, a 3-2 loss to California in a rain-shortened six-inning contest. He struck out the side in the first, finished with six strikeouts and did not walk a batter.

Closing Eagle Gives Snead 3-Stroke Edge

By TOM SALADINO
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — J.C. Snead, having his best golfing year ever although a non-winner in more than two years, climaxed his 67 Saturday with an eagle on the final hole for a 202 total and a three-stroke edge over Jack Nicklaus after three rounds of the inaugural $250,000 Tournament Players Championship.

Nicklaus, who has only won once this year, carded a 68 for a 205 over the hilly, par-72, 6,883-yard Atlanta Country Club course in the fight which has turned into a two-man battle for the $50,000 top prize.

Snead, 32, and an 11-year tour veteran, again tied the nine-hole course record when he shot the final nine holes in 30 strokes.

He had four birdies and the explosive eagle, which traveled 30 feet from a trap right into the hole and was seen by a national television audience.

Nicklaus, the fourth leading money winner this year, but victorious in only the Hawaiian Open, also shot an eagle in his round. It came on the par-five, 542-yard eighth hole when he dropped in a 65-yarder.

He stayed close to Snead with birdies on three of his final five holes, including the 18th.

At 207 were Homero Blancas and second-day leader Lou Graham. Graham, who blasted consecutive 67s the first two days, struggled to a 73 Saturday.

Blancas had a 69.

Dave Hill was alone at 208 after a 72 in this event which the players are attempting to make into a major tourney along with the Masters, U.S. Open, British Open and the PGA.

A group at 209 included Eddie Pearce, with a 69, Hubert Green, 72, David Graham, 71, Charles Coody, 71, and Brian Allin, 71.

At 210 were Gene Littler, needing $4,000 to become golf's eighth millionaire, and PGA champion Lee Trevino. Littler shot a 69 while Trevino had 71.

U.S. Open winner Hale Irwin was at 216 after a 70 while Masters and British Open champion Gary Player failed to make the cut of 146 Friday as did Arnold Palmer.

Dave Eichelberger, a tour veteran, carded a hole in one on the par 3, 135-yard 13th hole but could manage only a par 72 for a 214 total.

Snead, enjoying his best year on the tour since joining in 1964, has earned more than $100,000 already this year although he hasn't won since Philadelphia in 1972. His best finish this year was a tie for second in the Western Open.

Snead, a nephew of famous golfer Sam Snead, had also tied the nine-hole record in his opening round Thursday when he shot a 64, which also tied the record for 18 holes.

He was one over par through the first nine holes Saturday, including a double bogey on the par 436-yard fourth hole. But he overcame the back nine, scoring four birds and his pressure-packed eagle.

Nicklaus had a bogey and his eagle on the front nine and then registered his only birdies of the day on 14, 16 and 18.

Graham, also a veteran of 11 years on the tour, fought the worst slump of his career earlier in the year before settling down two months ago.

Indians Shock Net Play

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — A pair of young brothers from faroff Madras, India—Vijay and Anand Amritraj—shattered the serenity of the U.S. Open Tennis Championships Saturday with a deadly fusillade that produced two of the three upsets in the men's division.

First, Anand, 22, and the elder, playing on obscure outside court No. 18, polished off 10th-seeded Manuel Orantes of Spain 6-3, 6-4, 6-2—a one-sidedness that stunned even young brother, Vijay.

Vijay, 20, taller, more graceful and a bit more famous, had a bigger and more discriminating audience in the center court at the West Side Club where he won a 2½-hour thriller over fourth-seeded Bjorn Borg of Sweden, 6-1, 7-6, 3-6, 1-6, 6-2.

It was a dramatic match, marked by fluctuating fortunes, which left the bulk of the 14,115 gallery limp from exhaustion.

It also was a big letdown for the sensational 18-year-old Borg—the game's new wonderkid and holder of the Italian and French championships—who battled two sets only to lose in the fifth, double-faulting at match point.

"I was scared," Vijay said afterward. "I knew if I didn't beat him on grass I would never beat him." It was the first meeting of two young men who could dominate the sport for years ahead.

The third upset was scored by Ray Moore from South Africa, who eliminated the bearded Tom Gorman of Seattle, seeded 15th, 4-6, 6-4, 6-7, 6-4, 7-5.

The seeded ranks withstood other assaults but experienced some uneasy moments. Stan Smith, No. 3, bidding to reclaim his position as No. 1 in the world, was hard-pressed for the second day in a row before sidelining Frew McMillan, the two-fisted South African stroker 6-1, 3-6, 7-6, 6-4. The 1972 winner, Ilie Nastase of Romania, clowned and fussed on the grandstand court and his game had corresponding peaks and valleys in a 6-7, 6-1, 4-6, 6-1, 6-2 triumph over Roy Barth of Los Angeles.

Other second-round winners included the 39-year-old Ken Rosewall of Australia, No. 5; Holland's Tom Okker, No. 6; former Wimbledon champion Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia, No. 12; the Soviet Union's Alex Metreveli, No. 13; and Dick Stockton of Dallas, No. 14.

Stockton is a native Long Islander and friends and relatives crowded the clubhouse court to see the hometown boy who gained the semifinals this year at Wimbledon.

Top-seeded Chris Evert and rival Billie Jean King, the Nos. 1 and 2 seeds, played as if in a personal contest to see who could get their jobs done the quicker.

Chrissy, the Wimbledon titleholder from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., erased Helen Gourlay of Australia 6-1, 6-1, but Billie Jean, jealous of her long time recognition as No. 1 among the women, did a game better. She was 6-0, 6-1 over Sharon Walsh of San Rafael, Calif.

Rosemary Casals of San Francisco, No. 6, also advanced to the third round, beating Lana Kloss of South Africa 6-3, 6-4. Britain's Virginia Wade, winner of the first U.S. Open women's title in 1968, is a round behind. Seventh-seeded, she won her opening match over Mona Schallau of Iowa City, Iowa, 6-1, 6-1.

Vijay went into the Borg match a definite underdog although he had thrilled the gallery here with an upset victory over Rod Laver a year ago en route to the quarter-finals.

Borg, with his flowing blond hair and his wicked top-spin forehand, has captivated the imagination of the tennis world during the past two years.

He was a sensation at Wimbledon in 1973, triggering the formation of a Borg teeny-bopper club composed of screaming, shirt-wearing young girls He gained the final of the World Championship Tennis tourney in Dallas this year, losing to John Newcombe, and won both the Italian and French titles.

Last week he became the youngest player ever to win the U.S. Pro Championship at Brookline, Mass., staging unbelievable rallies to beat Kodes and Okker in successive closing rounds.

"I decided to wait and see how Borg was volleying," Amritraj said after the match. "I had no particular strategy."

Brock Gets 94th; Giants Take Win

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Shortstop Mike Tyson's error on Bruce Miller's two-out grounder in the fourth inning allowed the San Francisco Giants to break a 1-1 tie with a pair of unearned runs and beat the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 Saturday.

With the Cards leading 1-0 in the fourth, Gary Thomasson singled off Bob Forsch, 3-4. Thomasson stole second, went to third on catcher Ted Simmons' overthrow and, after Gary Matthews walked, came in to score the tying run on Ed Goodson's single.

Matthews and Goosdon moved up on a double steal as Dave Kingman struck out. Miller then grounded to Tyson who booted it, allowing both runners to score.

The Cards closed to 3-2 in the eighth when Lou Brock led off with a pinch-single, stole second and scored on Smith's single. It was Brock's 94th stolen base of the year as he closes in on Maury Wills' single-season mark of 104 in 1962 and Ty Cobb's 96 in 1915.

Rookie John D'Acquisto, 10-12, survived a shaky first inning to post his first victory since July 21. With two out in the first, Reggie Smith and Ted Simmons singled. Simmons was caught in a run-down between first and second, but before he could be tagged out Smith crossed the plate with the Cards first run.

Thurber In Lead

Karl Thurber shot an opening round 73 to move into the early lead of the annual S.W. Moye golf tournament being held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

The tournament will continue through the weekend and conclude on Monday.

In second place in the championships flight, two golfers are tied. Reynolds May and Frank Hill both shot 76's. Jim Moye holds fourth having shot a 77 Saturday and five golfers,, Ercell Webb, Dorsett Ward, Mike Wolles, Al Ward and Dan McNally are all tied for fifth with scores of 78.

Ed Warren carded a 77 to lead the first flight while Smith Creech and Ken Hite both had 85's to tie for the lead of the second flight. Bill Batchelor Cliff Everett, Jr. leads the fourth flight with an 87.

Cup Race Postponed

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The 12-meter yachts Courageous and Intrepid will have to wait until Sunday to sail a tie-breaking race in the New York Yacht Club's final-trial series to select a defender for this year's America's Cup.

Saturday's race was canceled becasue of the lack of wind on Rhode Island Sound.

Courage and Intrepid each has won four races in the final trials. Friday's race was abandoned because of rain squalls.

The two yachts are scheduled to start the tie-breaking race before noon on Sunday.

The NYYC must name the American defender by Tuesday.

Eagles Stunt Giant Comeback

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Tom Sullivan romped seven yards up the middle for the winning touchdown late in the fourth quarter Saturday, giving the Philadelphia Eagles a 24-21 National Football League preseason victory over the New York Giants.

With reserve quarterback John Reaves at the controls, the Eagles covered 66 yards to top the Giants, who had overcome a 17-0 first-quarter deficit.

Charlie Evans cracked over from the one-yard line at 10:41 of the fourth quarter, putting the Giants in front for the first time.

A crowd of 25,313 watched the Eagles jump to their lead at 1:40 of the first period when Will Wynn intercepted a Norm Snead pass and raced 13 yards for a touchdown.

Eagles quarterback Roman Gabriel then drove his team 78 yards for a touchdown, with Norm Bulaich blasting over from the three after 10:35 of play.

Three and a half minutes later, Tom Dempsey kicked a 35-yard field goal in a Philadelphia drive set up by Willie Cullars' recovery of a Rocky Thompson fumble on the New York 25.

In the second quarter, running back Doug Kotar helped rally New York. With the former Pittsburgh Steeler rushing for 72 yards in 11 tries during the first half, the Giants scored twice to cut the halftime deficit to three points.

Their first touchdown was set up by Spider Lockhart's recovery of a fumble by Philadelphia's Charlie Young. Young had caught a Gabriel pass on the Eagles 42. Kotar did most of the work and scored from the one.

With 6:10 left in the half, New York linebacker Pat Hughes picked off a Gabriel pass which Bulaich had deflected and galloped 58 yards for the score which made it 17-14 at the half.

Thomas Is Recalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Redskins have recalled running back Duane Thomas from waivers but his future role with the National Football League team remained uncertain Saturday.

"We still haven't decided what we're going to do," Coach George Allen said. "We said we're going to make a decision in three or four days and that still stands."

Thomas was placed on waivers earlier in the week after an altercation with an assistant coach. He asked for forgiveness, and the Redskins withdrew the waivers before the 4 p.m. EDT Friday deadline.

If they had not done so, Thomas then would have become a free agent. If he were claimed and the Redskins did not employ the recall procedure, he then would have been available to the claiming team for the $100 waiver fee.

Allen said league rules prevent disclosure whether Thomas had been claimed by any team.

Staub Keys Met Victory

NEW YORK (AP) — Rusty Staub's two-run single in the eighth inning lifted the New York Mets to a 6-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves Saturday.

Staub, who earlier had tripled to drive in a run, connected off reliever Tom House with two outs to drive home Ken Boswell and Bud Harrelson. Boswell had opened the inning with a pinch-hit single and Harrelson had followed with a single to left.

Mike Lum's bases-loaded groundout in the seventh had scored Darrell Evans giving the Braves their first lead of the game, 5-4.

The Braves trailed 4-0 entering the sixth inning but scored three times and added two in the seventh.

Consecutive walks to Darrell Evans and Dusty Baker opened the Atlanta sixth, then New York second baseman Felix Millan missed Lum's ground ball. Evans scored on the misplay, Baker moved to third, and Lum reached second—setting up a two-run single by Craig Robinson.

Ralph Garr doubled to lead off the seventh, then Marty Perez and Evans walked to load the bases and knock Koosman out. Garr's hit was his 200th of the season, making him the first major leaguer to reach that plateau this year.

Rampant Rally Nails Pam Pack, 21-10

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY REELE

Rose High School's Rampants got away to a good start last night, despite the score of the game, a 21-10 win for Rose.

Four early mistakes, letting Washington get away for a 53-yard pass on the first play, setting up a field goal; letting them get away on an 80-yard punt return for their only touchdown, and then fumbling twice in the first quarter in the shadow of the goal posts, made the score of the game a different thing.

The rest of the time, the Rampant offense and defense did the job. Washington got only 50 yards rushing the entire game, and just 102 total offense yards.

The Rampants, meanwhile, cranked out 45 passing and 255 on the ground for a first-game total of 300 yards in total offense, an impressive figure.

Really, it could have been a rout had those first quarter mistakes have been avoided.

"We stuck to our game plan," Coach Dave Bumgarner said afterwards. "We did what we wanted to. We ran our fullback (Doug Paschal, 17 carries, 83 yards) and we got some good passes off (Henry Trevathan, four for 10, 45 yards). Some of them were just dropped, it should be pointed out.

"I think we had a case of first game jitters in the first period, causing those mistakes, but otherwise, I think we played a fine game as the statistics show. I didn't expect to do nearly this well," Bumgarner added.

Rather than singling anyone out, Bumgarner praised the entire defensive unit and the offensive line. "We did have one sour note, however, as one of our defensive players was ejected from the game, and we can't have this." The ejected player, Mike Brewington, brought on the only penalty of the night for the Rampants, a 15-yarder.

Bumgarner praised Trevathan's play selections. "Most of the night, he called his own plays—about 75 per cent of them. Lindberg Morris (20 carries, 116 yards) ran well in the first half, and we found a hole for Paschal in the second."

"And Andrew Newton, who is playing his first year on the varsity, showed some great stuff too," the coach added. Newton, a senior whose previous experience has been on the junior varsity, picked up 42 yards in five carries, including two touchdowns.

"I thought our offense was outstanding, and I didn't think it would be this early. We are far ahead of where we've ever been before."

The Rampants may have set a record in some way. They converted five straight fourth down plays during the game, failing only one the sixth they attempted. That in itself is a tribute to the offense.

We must also compliment the groundskeeping crew of East Carolina University. Ficklen Stadium's turf looks outstanding. Many a golf course would envy it, and it seems almost a shame to play football on it. I doubt that there is a better looking field in the state.

Coach Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys is quoted on Les Strayhorn in "The Sporting News." After Les got away with a 65-yard run with a short Craig Morton pass that beat the Rams, 13-6, and then picked up 57 yards on eight carries, Landry said, "Every time he gets the ball, he seems to explode some place."

And going into Friday night's game with Detroit, Bufffalo's Carlester Crumpler was the leading rusher with 156 yards, with a 4.5 average, third best on the team. He also had eight pass receptions for 64 yards.

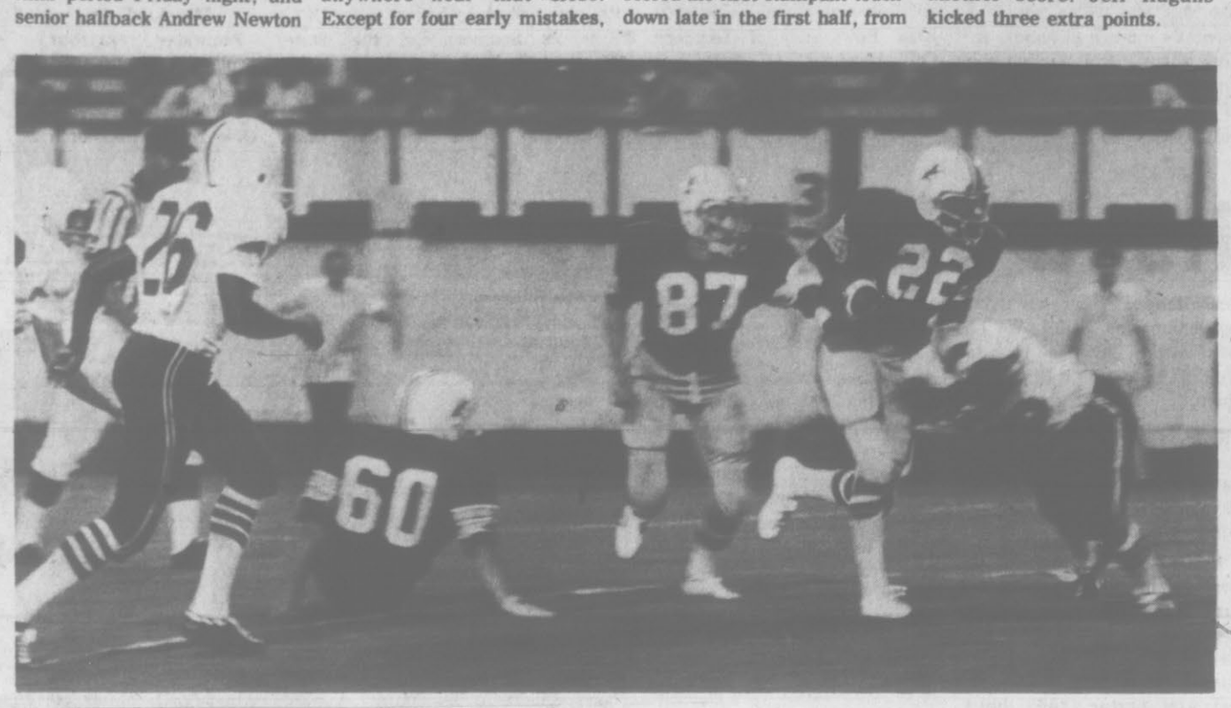
Hard-running Doug Paschal led Rose High School on a long, 97-yard touchdown drive in the final period Friday night, and senior halfback Andrew Newton sped the last nine yards to put Rose into the lead as they finally squeezed past Washington's Pam Pack, 21-10.

But despite the closeness of the score, the game wasn't anywhere near that close. Except for four early mistakes, the Rampants could have been on their way to an overwhelming victory.

Paschal, who ground out a total of 83 yards, 47 of them on the go-ahead touchdown drive, scored the first Rampant touchdown late in the first half, from two yards out.

Newton, after scoring in the middle of the final frame for the score that put Rose ahead, came back with another 29-yard scamper on a longer replay for another score. Jeff Hagans kicked three extra points.



OFF FOR YARDAGE—Rose High School's Lindberg Morris (22) breaks through into the Washington secondary for yardage Friday night. He picked up 116 yards in 20 carries as Rose took a 21-10 victory. Washington's Wayne Matthews (26) comes in at left, while an unidentified player tries for a tackle on Morris. Rose players are Max Joyner (60) and Tommy Joe Payne (87). Washington's scoring, all in the first period, came on a 31-yard field goal by Kenny Rogers and an 80-yard punt return by Wayne Matthews, with Rogers adding the extra point.

But it all went back to those four mistakes in the first period that got the Rampants into a jam.

The first mistake came on the first play from scrimmage. Washington, which won the toss, got the kickoff, and returned it to their 33. Quarterback Ricky Payne then caught the Rampants looking for the run, and hit Chris Jackson all alone up the middle. Harry Pair and Jace Hagans fortunately for Rose, ran him down after a 53-yard gain at the Rampant 15.

There, the defense dug in and held, forcing the Pam Pack to settle for a 31-yard field goal with 9:48 left.

The second mistake came after Rose had been held on its first series after the kickoff. The Rampants had to punt and Mathews hauled it in at the Washington 20, and moved toward the right sidelines. The Pack set up a wall there, mowing down the immediate Rampant pursuers. Mathews then outraced the others the rest of the way, and mistake number two cost them seven points as Rogers converted after the 80-yard scamper for a 10-0 lead after only 3:57.

But there, the game turned. Rose took over and behind the running of Lindberg Morris marched from their own 31 down to the Washington four, where they picked up a first and goal. But on the first play there, mistake number three came along, and quarterback Henry Trevathan fumbled, and Washington's Hunter Poore fell on it, ending the drive.

Rose forced Washington to punt from the one yard line after Mike Brewington had almost gotton Payne for a safety on a blitz, and the Rampants got it at the Pack 34. Ronald Randolph rushed it to the 28, and it seemed the Rose offense was about to finally get something on the board, but mistake number four popped up then as Trevathan again fumbled and Jackson fell on the ball at the 30 for Washington.

Finally, late in the period, Rose got the ball on their own 47, following a punt and an ensuing 15-yard penalty on the tackle.

Rose then started doing amazing things. On fourth and two at the Washington 46, they gave the ball to Paschal up the middle, and he got a first down at the 38. On fourth and two at the 30, Trevathan gave it to Morris off right tackle for three and a first down. On fourth and three at the 20, he pitched it out to Morris around the left side for 13 yards and a first down at the seven, as the Rampants converted three straight fourth down plays.

From the seven, Rose got nothing on the first play, and Morris added five to the two on the second. Paschal bulled his way over on the next play for the score, and Hagans' kick made it 10-7 with just 55 seconds left in the half.

Washington promptly fumbled it back to Rose on the 42, as Jay Chenier recovered. Two nine yard runs, by Trevathan and Morris, and a 12-yard penalty put the ball on the 12, but a field goal attempt from there by Hagans was just wide of the mark as the half ended.

On its second series of the second half, Rose drove from the 50 down to the 13, making good on two more fourth down plays, and amazing five in a row overall, before Washington finally broke the string on fourth and eight from the 18, taking over the ball.

Aided by a 15-yard penalty against Rose, the only one of the night against the Rampants, Washington moved back across midfield, but the defense then closed up and forced a punt that rolled out of bounds at the three as the final period opened.

Paschal streaked up the middle for 12 yards on the first play, then came crunching back for seven on the next. A fumble cost Rose nine yards on the next play, but again Paschal came through picking up 13 yards and a first down at the 26. Trevathan picked up four yards on a sneak, and Paschal added nine more. Trevathan again kept, this time for 14 to the Washington 47. Morris added four and Trevathan picked up 12. Paschal got two, and Morris one before Trevathan hit Curt Creech for eight and a first down at the 20. Rose picked up five more on a penalty, but another fumble cost them seven yards, but they kept the ball. Morris raced for nine yards and Paschal got four for a first down at the nine.

Jace Hagans gave Rose the ball back three plays later, recovering a fumble at the 17. The first play, however, cost Rose 12-yards, but Trevathan called Newton's play again, and he again raced around the left side, this time going 29 yards for the score with 3:00 left. Hagans' kick upped it to 21-10, sewing it up for the Rampants.

Morris finished the game as the leading rusher with 116 yards, 88 of them in the first half. Newton had 42, but carried only five times.

Wheels Fate Told Soon

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Former New England Patriots manager Upton Bell is scheduled to meet with Charlotte city officials next week to discuss terms for moving the Detroit Wheels of the World Football League to Charlotte.

Bell, who has first option to buy the team if it is to leave Detroit, plans to meet with the Park and Recreation Commission to try to negotiate special terms for the use of the city's Memorial Stadium.

The Boston investor is concerned that the 24,000-seat stadium would be too small to be profitable unless he gets special concessions from the city.

Commission chairman Gene Warren sent word to Bell on Friday that the commission is willing to negotiate special terms.

Rumors have flown in the past week that Bell would buy the financially troubled team, winless after eight games, and move it to the North Carolina city.

Former General Motors executive John DeLorean is also interested in buying the club, his attorney said this week. He would presumably leave the team in Detroit.

Wheels owner Erwin Ziegelman said Thursday that no firm deal had been reached with any potential new owner, but that the club is open to offers.

The Charlotte Chamber of Commerce would like to entice professional football to the city and some business leaders hope to get a bond referendum to build a larger stadium.

Bell says he is counting on a new stadium in Charlotte within the next four years, although the city has made no such commitment. He said he believes he can build a successful team that would create a demand and motivate local government or private interests to build one.

He said Friday that he was pleased with the commission's willingness to negotiate special terms for the use of the existing stadium, but could not decide about buying and moving the team until he has a firm agreement with the commission.

Bell has asked to rent the stadium for a flat rate of about $2,500 per game instead of the standard 12 per cent of the gate. That percentage could amount to $20,000 or more per game, depending on the price of tickets and the number sold.

He has also asked for concession and parking rights for the team to provide additional income to make the venture financially feasible.

Bell also said he hopes the commission will allow the sale of beer at WFL games in the stadium. That would open possible promotional arrangements between the team and a brewing company, adding to the team's revenue.

If Bell buys the team, he wants to move it in mid-season and play the last four games in Charlotte. The Wheels are set to meet Houston on Oct. 2; Hawaii on Oct. 16; New York on Nov. 6 and Philadelphia on Nov. 13.

Bell said he would change the team's name to something appropriate for Charlotte.

Brewers Rally To Top Angels

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Johnny Briggs capped a three-run, ninth-inning rally with a run-scoring single Saturday, lifting the Milwaukee Brewers to a 6-5 triumph over the California Angels.

Two home runs by Bruce Bochte and a two-run single by Bobby Valentine had helped the Angels to a 5-3 lead entering the Milwaukee ninth. But Bob Coluccio opened the inning with a single, and one out later, Pedro Garcia singled.

Horacio Pina replaced Andy Hassler and surrendered an RBI single to Don Money. Pinch-hitter Bobby Mitchell singled to score Garcia, and Briggs followed with his game-winner.

Singles by John Doherty and Denny Doyle preceeded Valentine's third-inning hit. Morris Nettles hit a chopper in front of the plate and reached second when catcher Charlie Moore threw wildly past first. Doherty scored and Doyle took third on the play. Then Valentine delivered his two-out single.

Bochte's homers, in the fourth and seventh innings off Billy Champion, gave him four for the season—three against the Brewers.

The Brewers closed to 3-2 in their half of the third on a two-run single by Ken Berry, and added a run in the fifth when Garcia walked, reached third on a pair of infield outs and scored on a balk by Hassler.

Pate Rallies For The Title

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

RIDGEWOOD, N.J. (AP) — Scrambling Jerry Pate, three strokes down at one time, pulled his game together for a comeback that destroyed John Grace's dreams of glory with a 2-and-1 decision Saturday in the 36-hole match play finals of the U.S. Amateur Golf Championship.

The 20-year-old Pate, who has been playing hooky from classes at the University of Alabama for the last week, trailed for 14 consecutive holes before beginning his winning drive on the oak-lined fairways and gently rolling hills of the Ridgewood Country Club course.

The skinny blond won three holes in a row—two with birdies late in the hazy summer afternoon—and closed out the diminutive Grace with a half on the 17th hole. Each made par five.

Pate, who harbors considerable ambition to join the lucrative pro tour when his college days are over, had been behind from the final hole of the morning round until he got untracked on the 14th hole of the afternoon round.

Grace, a short-hitting weekend golfer from Fort Worth, Tex., gave away dozens of yards off the tee and his lack of length began to tell late in the day.

He needed a wood club for his second shot to the green on the 410-yard 14th hole, and pushed it right into the deep rough.

Agility Key For Linemen

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

"There are three things I tell my players as far as what they have to do to play. They have to be agile, they have to have aggressiveness and size."

Those three things are what East Carolina Defensive Line coach Ben Grieb looks for in a prospective defensive lineman and what he tells his players they have to have to play for him. "Those are the three things that I look for when I go out and recruit a player and those are the three things I look for in somebody who is going to play for me" Grieb said.

Grieb also stresses mobility. A lot of the practice sessions are devoted to developing quickness and quick feet. Aggressiveness, he says, has to come from within. Size can be improved on both in season and out. This is done by weight lifting and other body building excercises.

As a defensive line coach, Grieb is responsible for the two defensive tackles and the nose guard. Grieb has Buddy Lowery and Kenny Moore at the tackles and Cary Godette at the nose guard. "We also have three people backing them up whom I count on heavily to play this year: Nick Bullock, Bob Branden and Willie Bryant," said Grieb.

"The way I go about teaching our players to play the three positions is by giving them a lot of work as far as recognition goes of what the offensive man is trying to do to them, and how they can best counteract those actions," Grieb said. "We play what is known as a reading defense and we stress this in practice. We also work quite a bit on basic tackling and how to deliver a blow."

Grieb also has his players working continuously during the season and during the off season in keeping themselves in top shape and to keep them working on their agility.

Grieb has to coach his players how to react to different situations. This not only involves knowing the down and how far the offensive team has to go but what the linemen will do to counteract different blocks used by the offensive lineman.

"If the man over him shows pass, he has to know what to do to overcome the block. If he shows any other type of block then he's going to have to play it entirely by reaction. If he reads double-team he tries to fight the double-team holding his ground; if he sees a reach block he tries to get to the outside.

"The thing I stress is that the offensive linemen are going to tell you exactly where the ball carrier is going. The offensive lineman is not going to have his head going to the wrong side of the play."

Each of the three linemen has a designated area he is responsible for. Any ball carrier coming in their area is their man and they have to make the play on him.

Grieb also stresses aggressiveness. He feels that agressiveness can make up for an incorrect read of a block. Grieb teaches an all-out pass rush. He askes for total aggression on every play.

Grieb will be in the press box during the game helping determine what an offense is doing to get by the defense and what ECU can do to stop the offense. Grieb, along with the other two defensive coaches and Coach Dye decide what changes may be needed during the game based on what is determined in the press box.

Grieb is also in charge of the scouting report. "Our computing center has done a heck-of-a-job in cooperating with us and assisting us in formulating our computer scouting program. It makes the system a valuable tool for us. I did not think I could have it ready by this year but they have done a fantastic job.

"We will take three or four previous games films and break them down to exactly what the team has done on offense. We will have every play and we will break it down and run it through a program. The program will then tell us what their play is on, first-and-ten, what do they do when they are on the twenty yard line coming in; what do they do when they are on the ten yard line going out; what do they do from the right, middle, or left of the field.

"The report will break it into a print-out form saying what the offense does. From this we can break out tendancies like they always run on first down, maybe they pass on first down. We look for obvious tendancies."

From there, the coaches determine what the best defenses will be and then they school the players in what to expect on certain downs from certain areas of the field.

Grieb helps Coach Wright Anderson in helping the athletes in academics. "The purpose of an athlete coming to East Carolina is not to be an athlete, but to make sure he gets his college degree. That is paramount in our minds. All we try to do is provide a vehicle for which we give it to him at a little easier access. They can earn their way through school.

"At the same time, we try to never forget the importance of it because this is what the kid is coming to East Carolina for, to get a degree. I stress that. The degree is going to serve them in good stead for the rest of their lives. Football is going to last four years for most of them; some of them may have a chance to make it an occupation. The degree will serve them for the rest of their lives," Grieb said.

Grieb will help the players with the academics. If they need tutors, he will get them. If they have trouble with a course he will help them get over their problems.

Grieb praised the defensive lineman because they rarely get the recognition of the other players. They are getting hit on every play in some way or another taking a lot of abuse. "Everybody will see a linebacker play a good game but if Buddy Lowery or Kenny Moore or Cary Godette play a great game hardly anybody in the stands would know it.

"It is just a very tough position to play. You have to go get them."

Eagles Seek Fifth Title

By WOODY PEELE

(One of a series)

ROBERSONVILLE—Winning football championships isn't anything new for the folks around Robersonville. In fact, losing one is more unusual.

But never fear, Golden Eagle fans, the Robersonville football team is expected to again be in the battle for the Eastern Plains Conference title.

The Eagles won the crown last year—their first as a member of the 2-A title, after taking three in a row in the 1-A Tobacco Belt Conference. "At least, I think it was three in a row," Coach Noland Respess said. "I kind of lost count. It could have been four."

Nevertheless, Respess expects to field another excellent team this year, despite the fact that only four offensive and five defensive starters (mostly the same people) return.

With just 10 lettermen back, the Eagles don't have a lot of experience. "But we have only nine seniors," Respess said. "The rest are mainly juniors off a real fine junior varsity team from last year and we have a lot of talent there.

"This has been one of the most enjoyable groups I've worked with," the coach said. "We have a lot of potential, and I think we can be better than last year's team. I know we have the best running backs we've had. They have speed, talent and depth."

So Respess expects the Eagles to be in the thick of the Eastern Plains Conference race, along with West Edgecombe and North Johnston. "But I believe that we have the backs to break it," he said. "We're running the wishbone this year, and it's been like a Christmas present to us."

The backfield is a strong one. There are two good quarterbacks, Respess feels, to guide the game. "Jimmy Stalls, our starter, is not quite as quick as we'd like, but he leads the option well, and is a good passer." Backing him up is Reid Bullock, a surprise so far, and freshman Charlie Smith, whom Respess has already tagged for future stardom.

Retruning at fullback is Robin Fowler, an All-Conference choice last year. "He's strong; and exceptional player," Respess says. "He's hurt right now, but we think he'll be ready for our opener." Back-up strength is provided by Danny Rollins, up from the junior varsity.

At the halfbacks is a brother combination, Frankie and Ricky Spruill. "Ricky is the best breakaway threat we've had here since I've been coaching," Respess said. "Both of them have good speed and are quick and strong despite being small. "Both also are rated as good receivers, and will probably handle the kick return chores. "Ricky is the type runner who can go both inside and outside." Backing them up are Donnie Matthewson and Wyatt Daniels.

The receiving unit is also strong, with Ricky Purvis returning at tight end and Jeff Warren, a flanker last year, moving to split end. "Both of them are good blockers and receivers," the coach said. Backing them up are Gregory Bonds at tight end and Junior Griffin at split end.

The line, however, is somewhat of a question mark. "Everyone is new in the interior line except for Neno Hayes, one of the tackles," Respess said. "We feel they have plenty of potential, and will come through quickly in the early games. They are small, but there is real good quickness here."

Joining Hayes at the tackle position is Wayne Davis, while Donnie Brown and Noah Clark (the largest man on the team, 210-pounds) are the guards. Ricky Fowler and converted quarterback Scott Taylor are fighting for the center spot.

Defensively, the Eagles also present some question marks. "I think we have the talent, and they love to hit," Respess said. "But size may be a problem for us. Of our 30 players, only nine or ten are over 170 pounds. Quickness is going to have to offset the lack of size."

The Eagles will run both a fiffty-two and fifty-three defense during the year. Donnie Brown, rated as quick, small, but "outstanding," by Respess, will be the middle guard. Clark, along with Gordon Jenkins, who played some last year, seem headed for the tackle spots, but Wayne Davis is pushing Jenkins.

The ends find Taylor and Sammy Boyd, a sophomore, while Purvis will also see a lot of action there.

"We have one of the best linebackers around in Tony Purvis, a returning starter," Respess said. But he's unsure who'll take the other position. It could go to Fowler, Hayes or Rollins.

In the secondary, he expects to play a lot of people. "Both the Spruills, Warren, Matthewson, Stalls, and Bullock will play alot."

Respess will try to get as many in as possible—both to keep players rested and to maintain the ability of the defense and offense. "We've

Capsule Report

OUTLOOK—Despite only 10 lettermen returning, Coach Noland Respess feels that his Eagles have another shot at an Eastern Plains Conference title. The Eagles have some outstanding backs, and good receivers. If the offensive line and the defense mature quickly, the Eagles might be headed for a fifth straight conference title.

OFFENSE—Wishbone.

SETTING UP A SCORE — Lindberg Morris of Rose High School is smothered by a host of Washington players as he sets up the first of three touchdowns for the Rose High School team Friday night. Doug Paschal scored on a two-yard plunge on the second play after this run, and the Rampants went on to a 21-10 win. Washington's Randy Lamm (66) adds on the tackle, as Rose's Curt Creech (82) watches. (Reflector Photo)

Vets Get Their Lumps

By The Associated Press

The strike-delayed veterans are getting their lumps on the next-to-last weekend of the National Football League's exhibition season.

The visiting Pittsburgh Steelers managed to outlast the Washington Redskins 21-19 Friday night when Skins kicker Mark Moseley missed two extra points during a brutal nationally televised contest.

"It was incredible," moaned coach Chuck Noll of Pittsburgh, undefeated so far in five preseason games. "We took the worst beating I've ever seen. They just physically whipped us to death."

Against Washington, 1-4, the Steelers staggered off the field with injuries to regular guards Sam Davis and Bruce Van Dyke, starting safety Glenn Edwards and reserve linebacker Mark Geffert.

In Miami, the Dolphins, 3-2, triumphed 21-10 against the Green Bay Packers, 3-2, while injuries forced them to bench runner Mercury Morris, safety Jake Scott and defensive tackle Manny Fernandez.

Veteran Dick Himes, a Green Bay tackle, also got hurt.

The Detroit Lions, 1-4, meanwhile, hurt their pride in Buffalo as the Bills, 3-3, rolled to a 28-7 victory with O. J. Simpson scoring twice and gaining 116 yards—100 of them in the first-half alone.

Curry, Player Prexy, Dropped By Houston

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Bill Curry, president of the National Football League Players Association, says the Houston Oilers now have a win-at-all costs program that disregards individual problems.

The Oilers announced Friday that the veteran center had been waived. The announcement said the action was by "mutual consent."

Curry, one of the leaders in the strike of veteran players this summer, said he had to go on waivers or retire and he didn't want to retire.

Curry seriously injured a knee in early season last year and had taken a wait-and-see attitude concerning his future after surgery.

Sid Gillman, Oilers head coach and general manager, indicated Curry's injury was the main reason for the action but he also pointed out the team has three other centers.

"Gillman indicated there's not a place for me and nobody wants to stay somewhere when he feels he doesn't belong," Curry said. "I had to go on waivers or retire and I don't want to retire. I'm not retiring voluntarily."

Curry said by telephone from his home that he was concerned with the Oilers' training camp under what he called the Gillman regime.

"The big problem I see and regret very much — because I have some very close friends on the team — is that it's a situation where winning outweighs any human aspects," he said.

"There is no concern for people whatsoever. It's win at all costs even if people are humiliated and careers are destroyed. I've gotten my Utopian ideas because I've been very fortunate to have been in organizations where they won yet were people-oriented."

The action caused Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFLPA, to take a verbal blast at Gillman, who cut seven other veterans shortly after they arrived in camp for a 14-day "cooling off" period earlier this month.

Bailey's Homers Power Expo Win

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Bob Bailey is getting his second wind.

The 31-year-old outfielder, a $135,000 bonus baby back in 1961 who is now in his 13th major league season, says he's not getting older, he's getting better.

Bailey blasted two home runs as the Expos erupted for a club-record five homers in pounding out an 11-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Friday night.

In 1970, Bailey's second year with the Expos, he batted .287 with 28 homers. He dropped to .251 and .233 the next two years, but bounced back to .273 with 26 homers in 1973.

This year he's batting .277 with 19 homers and 66 RBIs.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh nipped Los Angeles 4-3, Houston edged Philadelphia 3-2, New York beat Atlanta 4-2, San Francisco defeated St. Louis 8-2 and Chicago swept a pair from San Diego 5-1 in 12 innings and 4-3 in 10.

Pirates 4, Dodgers 3

The first-place Dodgers lost a chance to extend their 3½-game lead over Cincinnati in the NL West when relief ace Mike Marshall gave up two singles, a sacrifice fly and Bob Robertson's tie-breaking double in a three-run eighth inning that defeated Los Angeles 4-3.

Astros 3, Phils 2

A standout relief performance by Ken Forsch preserved Houston's 3-2 triumph over Philadelphia.

Forsch came on with runners on first and third and none out in the ninth and protected the one-run margin. He got Dave Cash to hit into a double-play, with Tommy Hutton holding third. Larry Bowa then grounded out, ending the game.

Mets 4, Braves 2

Spot starter Ray Sadecki, hurled his second consecutive complete-game victory over the Atlanta Braves. Sadecki, 6-7, hurled a five-hit 1-0 fictory over Atlanta last time out, and this time he scattered six hits for the victory.

Ted Martinez tripled, scoring New York's first run, then drove in two with a sixth-inning single.

Giants 8, Cards 2

The Giants jumped on St. Louis' Sonny Siebert for five runs in the first inning, three coming on Dave Kingman's 15th homer of the season.

Mike Caldwell, 13-3, was the victor, and tied injured Los Angeles Dodgers lefthander Tommy John for best winning percentage .813.

Cubs 5-4, Padres 1-3

The Cubs outlasted the Padres in a marathon twin-bill that lasted over 6½ hours.

In the 12th inning of the opener, Chris Ward singled and Don Kessinger doubled him to third. After George Mitterwald was intentionally walked, Carmen Fanzone cracked a run-scoring single, Rick Stelmasek tapped a sacrifice fly and Bill Grabarkewitz smacked a two-run triple.

In the second game, errors by Dave Hilton and Derrel Thomas on the same play allowed the winning run in the 10th inning.

Ryan Sets Another Mark

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

California's Nolan Ryan set another strikeout record Friday night but it was overshadowed by the pitching of Minnesota's Bert Blyleven and the hitting of Oakland's Claudell Washington.

The fireballing Ryan fanned nine in pitching the Angels to a 9-2 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers. That gave him 304 for the season and made him the first pitcher in modern baseball to post three consecutive 300-strikeout campaigns.

Meanwhile, Blyleven whiffed 14 Boston batters — a career high — and hurled a four-hitter as the Twins edged the Red Sox 3-2 while rookie Washington celebrated his 20th birthday a day early with three singles, an RBI double and a two-run triple and was given a $2,000 raise as the A's whipped the Detroit Tigers 10-5.

Elsewhere in the American League, the New York Yankees downed the Chicago White Sox 8-5 and climbed within four games of Boston in the AL East, the Baltimore Orioles trounced the Kansas City Royals 9-2 and the Cleveland Indians turned back the Texas Rangers 7-3.

Twins 3, Red Sox 2

Rod Carew, whose fourth-inning error let in both Boston runs, drove in the winner with a sacrifice fly in the ninth following a leadoff walk to Glenn Borgmann and Steve Brye's double.

The game was played under protest by both managers after a leadoff triple in the fourth by Minnesota's Eric Soderholm.

Soderholm's drive to the left field fence was dropped by Boston's Bernie Carbo as he leaped against the fence. Carbo threw the ball wildly past third, catcher Tim Blackwell retrieved it and threw to the uncovered plate, and the ball went into right field while Soderholm trotted home.

Second base umpire George Maloney said Carbo caught the ball, and Minnesota manager Frank Quilici raced from the dugout before Soderholm crossed the plate. The umpires finally ruled that the ball had not been caught but Quilici's appearance negated the run and ordered Soderholm back to third, where he was stranded.

Orioles 9, Royals 2

Baltimore's Mike Cuellar scattered eight hits, including John Mayberry's 21st home run, for his 16th victory. Kansas City starter Bruce Dal Canton walked three men and threw two wild pitches in 1 2-3 innings while catcher Fran Healy committed a passed ball and two throwing errors.

Yankees 8, White Sox 5

The Yankees scored four unearned runs in the seventh inning on one single, three consecutive throwing errors and a sacrifice fly and went on to beat the White Sox for their third consecutive triumph.

Indians 7, Rangers 3

Rusty Torres' first home run of the season, a two-run shot, and Rico Carty's three-run double powered the Indians to victory.

Wildlife Afield: How To Train Dog Owner

By JIM DEAN

I am in the process of being trained by a dog—a young German short-haired pointer to be exact. That's not so bad. I'm told lots of people who purchase dogs must undergo a bit of schooling.

What bothers me is that I think I'm flunking the course. My instructor's name is Pepper. Last night, Pepper informed me that he didn't think it was any of my business where he conducted his business, even if it was on the kitchen floor.

We have been arguing about this matter since Pepper first came to the house some months ago and enrolled me in a course titled "The Proper Role Of A Human Being In The Presence Of A Young Bird Dog."

I maintain—perhaps wrongly—that as a student, I should have a say in how this course is taught. Naturally, Pepper disagrees.

This is not the only point of disagreement. Pepper also claims that he has the authority to "chew" me out anytime he thinks I need it. In fact, he has "chewed" me out so many times that I fear my hands are scarred for life. I have pointed out to him that he has rawhide bones to chew on, but he says he prefers a lighter, milder chew and that my fingers are perfect.

The most embarassing thing that has happened so far concerns my physical conformation. Pepper has been looking me over carefully, and he maintains that I have some very definite flaws. He says I'm cow-hocket and snipy. Which, if I understand correctly, means that I am knock-kneed and have a weak chin. He's also concerned about my nose. He thinks I may not be able to smell a bobwhite quail or a woodcock.

I know I must have been a disappointment to him when we went out for a jaunt on a farm recently. Pepper ranged far and wide, covering a lot of ground, and I had a heck of a time keeping up. He says I'm slow and timid and that if I ever plan to be any good in the field, I'm going to have to increase my range.

Well, shoot, nobody's perfect.

I think Pepper is rather proud of my retrieving, however. The other afternoon, I threw sticks for him in the backyard for at least an hour, and I retrieved everyone of them while he sat there and watched.

I am also rather proud that I have learned where I'm supposed to sleep at night. For a month or so there, I thought I would never get it straight. Unless I am mistaken, I believe Pepper wants me to sleep on the foot of the bed.

It's clear to me that he regards the pillow as his own personal property. At least, that's where he's been sleeping, and he doesn't seems to mind if I sleep at his feet. I'm glad we got that worked out because there really wasn't room for both of us on the pillow.

The other day I asked him if there wasn't something he could do about the fleas, but he didn't seem too interested. Apparently, he thinks fleas are something I've got to learn to live with. Gee, you'd think he'd at least get me one of those collars.

I guess it's really too early to predict what's going to happen between me and Pepper. I even asked my wife Diane what she thought I ought to do.

"I wouldn't worry about it," she said. "They say it often takes two or three years before you can tell. If you haven't shown any promise by then, we'll get rid of you and get somebody else."

Pepper didn't say anything. I think he' still hoping I'll turn out all right.

COSTLY ARGUMENT

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Football coach LeRoy Smith of Kentucky State has learned it doesn't pay to argue with a referee. One time he kicked the dirt in disgust and broke his toe when he lost an argument. Not only that, but his pants split all the way down the seat.

"I had to have the ambulance come and get me," says Smith.

Rogers Going To Get Chance

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Jackie Rogers says he has dreamed of driving a racing car at Darlington Raceway all his life.

He's going to get his chance Monday in the toughest race of all, the storied Southern 500.

"It's an honor just to be starting," he said Friday after placing his Chevrolet in 13th position in a 40-car lineup. "To do well in the race would make it a perfect week.

"Win it? Not a chance. It could only happen if about six of the top starters broke somewhere in the race and left me alone with the lead. Even then, I don't think such luck would hold."

Rogers, 31, of Wilmington, N.C., is no stranger at Darlington, which celebrates its 25th anniversary Labor Day. He worked as a mechanic on cars driven by 1973 Indianapolis winner Gordon Johncock and other top stars before deciding to strike out on his own early this year.

He has done well enough so that he's a leading candidate for rookie of the year honors. A top finish Monday could tip the decision in his favor.

Rogers' speed of 146.763 miles per hour Friday in a Chevrolet, for which he also is the chief mechanic, was the ninth fastest of two days of time trials.

Richard Petty, long an idol of Rogers', captured the front row pole position in Thursday's first qualifying round with a speed of 150.132 m.p.h. The Dodge driver is favored to win.

"I stand in awe of him," Rogers said of Petty. "He's the biggest winner in our sport but he's still willing to lend a hand to beginners like me. I think he's great."

Petty, a Southern 500 winner only once despite his exploits elsewhere, was one of the judges who gave Rogers his rookie test Friday morning. Rogers passed with flying colors.

The top 24 starters for the $151,350 classic averaged well over 140 miles per hour in time trials. The over-all average was expected to drop today with selection of the final 16 to fill a 40-car lineup.

Joining Rogers in the field Friday were Clifton "Coo Coo" Marlin, clocked at 146.592 m.p.h. in a Chevrolet and Bobby Isaac, a 39-year-old veteran who will start 15th with a speed of 146.387 m.p.h. in a Chevrolet. Isaac was one of the drivers for whom Rogers formerly worked.

Fishing Is Good

By HELEN RAY
Pier Fishing

Information received from our sound and ocean piers on Carteret County's Bogue Banks for the past week is GOOD. From the west end of the Banks, Twin Piers reports that flounder weighing 1½ to 2 lbs. are being caught on live shrimp and bloodworms. At this time of the year the "spot" fishermen, using shrimp and bloodworms as bait, are really hitting the jackpot, particularly at night. If, from the shore, you see bunched people silhouetted against the lighted pier railings, you can be sure spot are running! Sportsman's Pier, the east end of Bogue Banks, reports some of the large fall spot appearing in the catches. Spanish mackerel are being hooked using plugs as bait. Flounder runs are fantastic. H. O Baldree, Farmville, N.C., Aand L. C. Liles, Raleigh, are credited with about a dozen each for only a short fishing stint.

Head Boats

Our botom-fishing head boats have had a "wet" week with squally weather, however, these boats can fish in or off-shore to accommodate the weather. The catches vary with red and silver snapper, grunts, porgies, trigger fish, tile fish and groupers on the strings.

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — Southern Colorado State will host the 13th annual National Collegiate Athletic Association Division 2 national tennis tournament June 10-14, 1975, Athletic Director Harry Simmons announced Friday.

The five-day competition will determine the national small college indivdual and team champions. About 50 schools will compete.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Coach Bill Fitch said Friday the Cleveland Cavaliers will open their rookie camp on Sept. 14, with veterans due at the Lakeland Community College base on Sept. 20.

Fitch said the Cavaliers, who played an eight-game exhibition schedule last season, will play just two preseason games this season. Both exhibition games are against the New Orleans Jazz, on Oct. 10 and 11 in Baton Rouge, La.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Frank B. Fuhrer, a 49-year-old insurance man and majority owner of the Pittsburgh Triangles, has been elected president of the year-old World Team Tennis League.

The Triangles said Friday that Fuhrer will immediately replace Chicago Aces part-ower Jordan Kaiser, who resigned.

The election took place in New York by the 16 owners on the WTT's board of governors.

BOSTON (AP) — The Cincinatti Comets and the Boston Astros meet tonight in a showdown duel for a playoff spot in the American Soccer League.

The Astros, riding a three-game winning streak, need only a tie. They have a 9-5-2 record. The Comets have an 8-5-3 record and need a victory to qualify for post-season play.

OPELIKA, Ala. (AP) — Jim Napier of Knoxville was named manager of the year and Nyls Nyman, also of Knoxville, was named Southern League most valuable player in voting Friday by managers and sportswriters.

The honorees were named by league president Billy Hitchcock.

Other individual awards went to Paul Siebert of Columbus, as outstanding pitcher and Mike Buskey of Knoxville was named best hustler.

The Carolina team in the American Basketball Association was sold to a group of New York area businessmen and moved to St. Louis in July.

worked more on the offense this year than usual, and our defense is a little behind, but I think it can catch up quickly."

"The offensive line must come through for us if we are to be successful," the coach said. "I believe we have the people who'll hit on defense, but our secondary might prove a little too eager, and get hurt with the pass. I think these will be the keys to our success.

"We could be one year away from having a great team," he added.

Deny Are Involved

RALEIGH (AP)—Officials of the University of North Carolina and North Carolina State University have denied that their schools are under investigation for alleged violations in the recruiting of All-America high school basketball player Phil Ford of Rocky Mount.

The widely sought Ford narrowed his choice of schools to North Carolina and State before deciding to sign with North Carolina. His recruitment is one of four cases under investigation by the Atlantic Coast Conference, Commissioner Bob James said Thursday. However, James did not name any of the schools involved in the probe.

"The investigation of the recruiting of Phil Ford does not in any way concern the University of North Carolina," said UNC Coach Dean Smith Friday. "I'm certain that it (the investigation) concerns other schools which tried to recruit him."

Frank Weedon, assistant athletics director at State, said, "N.C. State is not under investigation for anything as far as I know. The only thing I know about this (Ford) investigation is what I've read in the newspapers."

According to Richard Hicks, head basketball coach at Rocky Mount Senior High, Commissioner James and an NCAA investigator came to Rocky Mount earlier this summer to discuss alleged violations.

"To my knowledge, there was no recruiting violations committed with Phil," said Hicks. "That has been my position all along, that's what I told Mr. James and the man from the NCAA and that's still my position."

Finally Got Win

By DENNIS MONTGOMERY
Associated Press Writer

DU QUOIN, Ill. (AP) — For half of his life Billy Haughton wanted to win the Hambletonian Stakes, harness racing's premiere classic for 3-year-olds.

It took Haughton 15 tries, but finally he captured the elusive victory Friday behind Christopher T.

"I can't believe it," said Haughton, 50, of Oyster Bay Cove, N.Y. "I really didn't think he (Christopher T.) had a chance to take it."

The brown colt, a longshot at 12-1 unofficial odds, belied his driver's pessimism. He sped past the other 21 horses in 1:58 3-5 to win the 49th Hambletonian and $80,065 of the record purse of $160,150. Nevele Diamond took second, while the 2-1 favorite, Golden Sovereign, placed third.

The race nearly was cancelled as rains delayed the event for two days and officials threatened to move it elsewhere.

Even Christopher T. almost didn't make the field, Haughton said. The colt performed poorly last week at the Horseman's Futurity in Indianapolis, Ind., and Haughton said he wouldn't have entered the trotter in the race.

But owner John Throw, of Mankato, Minn., told him, "We've gone this far, why not go all the way?"

And so they did. "I didn't expect him to win today. In fact, I came into the race with a negative attitude," said Haughton, whose first Hambletonian ride occurred in 1949 behind Crossbow. That trotter didn't even finish the race.

Because of the large field, two preliminary heats were held with a final heat for the top five finishers in the initial races. Nevele Diamond and Christopher T. won the preliminaries.

In the final race, Anvil surged into the lead at the quarter with Christopher T. fourth behind Sing Away Herbert and Nevele Diamond.

Under the whip of two-time Hambletonian winner Stan Dancer, Nevele Diamond captured the lead midway through the race and held on until the homestretch.

Then Christopher T. began his move from fourth to win by a length and one-half. At the finish, Nevele Diamond tired and fell to seventh as Stock Split, Anvil, Golden Sovereign and Sing Away Herbert followed Christopher T.

The final results, which were decided by the trotters' performances intheir two heats, were Christopher T., Nevele Diamond, Golden Sovereign, Stock Split and Keystone Gabriel.

Kurds Newest Refugee Group

By JONATHAN BRODER
Associated Press Writer

PAVEH, Iran (AP) — The newest refugees in the Middle East are the Kurds, fleeing by the thousands into western Iran to escape what some call a systematic Iraqi campaign to eradicate the Kurdish minority.

About 80,000 Kurds already live in a dozen squalid camps along the central Iraqi-Iranian frontier. Hundreds more slip across the border every day, according to relief officials.

"The Iraqi soldiers can't win against our guerrillas, so they are destroying the Kurdish civilians," said an elderly Kurd at the refugee camp near Paveh.

The 70-acre tent complex on the slopes of Mt. Sariask holds 13,000 refugees, mostly children, old people and women. There are few men of fighting age, and the women say their men stayed behind to battle Iraqi soldiers and jets.

Heavy fighting has been reported between the Iraqi military and the Kurdish Pesh Merga guerrillas since negotiations on an autonomous Kurdish state within Iraq broke down last March.

About 2 million of Iraq's 10 million people are Kurds, a militant ethnic group concentrated in northern Iraq.

At the camp hospital here, several Kurdish guerrillas lay recovering from wounds suffered across the border.

Lt. Hassan Ali, a guerrilla commander, said he was wounded but escaped with three other guerrillas after an Iraqi division captured his village. He vowed to return to fight.

Almost all those in the camp, however, are civilians who made it to the border by foot or on donkeys. Some fled in carts or battered old cars. One group told how they fled their homes in northeastern Iraq at night to escape Iraqi air attacks.

They said they trekked for 10 nights over jagged granite mountains to sanctuary in Iran, leaving behind almost everything they own. Scores of their companions were caught by Iraqi army patrols and killed, they said, while others died of exposure in the mountains or drowned trying to cross fast flowing rivers.

Many who made it have smashed bones and scorched flesh. They now face new problems typical to refugees, including dysentery, exhaustion, exposure and the possibility of cholera.

"The Red Lion and Sun (Iran's Red Cross) is trying to keep the camp as clean as possible. They've given us chlorinated latrines, water and fresh food every day," said Dr. Umbaid Mougarak, the camp's chief medical officer and a Kurdish refugee.

But Mougarak said conditions will deteriorate severely with the coming of winter. "The snows fall in November, and already at night the temperature drops to almost freezing," he said.

Relief officials said the Iranian government was building winter housing for 20,000 refugees but that the project is not expected to be completed until the spring.

Turkish Crackdown On Bared Breasts Issue

By NICK LUDINGTON
Associated Press Writer

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Turkey's conservative justice minister, a former Moslem priest, is conducting a personal no-breasts-bared crackdown on public sex "to break the backs of those who lead youth to get drunk on lust."

Justice Minister Sevket Kazan has targeted books, newspapers, magazines and films. He set up a special government office to paint small black bands on bare breasts and bottoms in imported publications.

Kazan has the blessing of his National Salvation party, junior partner in Premier Bulent Ecevit's coalition government.

Last week he hauled into court the weekly, Yanki, because it illustrated a critical article about his efforts with a picture from a German magazine. Kazan's censors had brushed black bands on the nude backsides of seven women, but he charged the magazine with printing pornography anyway.

Gunaydin, a mass-circulation daily usually top-heavy with flesh, regularly gets in trouble with Kazan's prosecutors. Editor Necati Zincirkiran has asked that Kazan resign because "Turkey is not in the Middle Ages."

Kazan's prosecutors have overruled the seal of approval of Turkey's film censor board and banned three imported films this year. One, a tame Italian epic called "Duel on a Love Bed," was halted in the midst of an afternoon showing.

Ecevit, leader of the Republican People's party and a poet with liberal views, has cautioned his coalition partner against "overzealousness," a warning obviously pointed toward the justice minister.

A radical religious party that appeals to the devout Moslem beliefs of Turkey's peasantry, National Salvation advocates return to the strict Islamic moral code, which kept women veiled and segregated until Kemal Ataturk formed the secular Turkish republic and passed modernizing reforms in the 1920s and 1930s.

Ecevit is Ataturk's political heir and is uncomfortable with his partners, but he needs them to maintain his majority in parliament.

National Salvation has seven ministers in Ecevit's 25-member cabinet, also controlling the Interior Ministry, which administers the board of censors.

Argentina Horses Go From Stable To Table

By HENRY S. ACKERMAN

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Argentina's fabled horse herds have been disappearing into Japanese sukiyaki and Belgian brochettes, but the government has moved to impose some controls.

According to official figures, the country's horse population dropped from 10 million in 1950 to about two million. At that rate, horses would be extinct here in a decade, some authorities say.

Meat packers contest those figures and argue that unnecessarily harsh controls deprive the government of a rich source of income. They say new measures will cut the trade in horsemeat by 75 per cent.

In 1973, Argentina was the world's major exporter of horsemeat, selling 55,000 tons for $43 million. This year the quantities are much lower, but the price is almost double — up to $1,400 a ton.

The Japanese bought almost half of the export last year, using it as a beef substitute and grinding it into sausages. Belgian specialty shops sold 14,000 tons in 1973, largely to heart patients and gourmets.

An oldtimer in the meat industry says the taste for horsemeat comes from Napoleon's disastrous Russian campaign. Starving troops had to choose between their mounts or their saddles.

People have eaten horsemeat ever since in France and Belgium. A generation ago, Dutch workers were eating thin-sliced smoked horsemeat rolled into sandwiches before World War II.

A healthy demand is growing for horsemeat in other countries, not only as a poor second to beefsteak, but also because many like its lean texture and sweetish taste.

In Argentina, where sirloin steak is the staple, there is virtually no market.

Since there is no local supply problem, authorities say, scant records are kept on slaughters, and many congressmen grew suddenly alarmed.

New regulations say no horse may be killed if it is less than 12 — or 15, in some cases — years old or unless it is sick or lame. New rules are under preparation to limit slaughter even more.

"Somewhere down the line the government has to realize that horses have a commercial value," said one major exporter.

As the system works, horse buyers in jeeps survey farflung ranches and round up animals at about $250 each. When enough are assembled, they are trucked to slaughter houses, inspected for fever and then dispatched, one at a time, with small pistols firing drug capsules.

The hair is sold separately. Bones and hoofs are ground into tallow. Blood is dried for fertilizer. And chilled, plastic-wrapped meat is shipped off to market.

Some knowledgeable stockmen challenge the government's premise. Said one: "No one has good figures on the number of horses in Argentina, not even the government.

Colorado River Water Essential To Farmers Of Dry Mexicali Valley

By TOM WELLS
Associated Press Writer

MEXICALI, Mexico (AP) — The Mexicali Valley is a hot, dusty place where only snakes and other desert creatures can survive without water brought in by canal from the Colorado River.

It takes a hardy person to withstand the frequent 130-degree temperatures, swirling dust and winds coming off the Sonora Desert that kick up stinging sand and leave lips dry and cracked.

Juan Virreal, 44, is one of perhaps 200,000 peasants living in the triangular-shaped valley whose base hugs the California border and whose apex to the south touches the Gulf of California.

Virreal leaned against a tree, closed his eyes against the dazzling brightness of the sun and wondered if he could wait three or four more years for the wonderful fruit of diplomacy to blossom.

The United States has agreed to build a $67-million desalting plant in Arizona to prevent U.S. salt contamination of the Colorado River from further injuring Mexicali Valley fields and pastures.

The plant will not be finished at least until 1980. The United States, in the meantime, is sending low salinity water to the Mexicali Valley from U.S. water storage areas.

But Mexican authorities say it will be at least three or four years before good water will be able to cleanse the valley of the salt, which is visible up to six inches deep in the earth.

"Three or four years is a long time to wait when your belly is rumbling from hunger and you'r having to borrow money from the bank just to buy the family some beans," Virreal said.

"What can we do but wait. Sometimes the families here eat only one meal a day. We were not poor before the salt came. We ate three good meals a day. Now the children sometimes cry because there is not enough to eat.

"If it were not for the government banks we would be finished. They at least loan us money for seeds and to buy beans and tortillas to keep us alive."

Virreal, like most of the other farmers in the Mexicali Valley, lives on a government-awarded collective farm, called an ejido, on which each family uses up to 44 acres.

Government officials and businessmen say the Mexicali Valley's farmers once did well by Mexican standards.

"It wasn't unusual for a family to make more than $8,000 a year and to buy a new car every four or five years," said one official. "Many of them would have refrigerators and televisions, but now they owe a lot of money to the banks and can't even get money to put a new roof on the house."

Government officials say that insects and poor prices for crops have also meant economic hardship to the valley's farmers.

The salt problem began in 1961 when crops started failing, officials say. The neat rows of cotton were interrupted by grayish areas where nothing would grow. The barren spots grew larger the next year, and the cotton did not grow as tall as before.

Government chemists were called in to test the soil. They found a high concentration of salt.

Tests of the water in the canals coming from the Colorado River showed salinity had increased from the normal 850 parts per million to about 3,000 parts per million. Sea water is about 35,000 parts per million.

FWB Meet On Tuesday

MOUNT OLIVE—Mount Olive College announced today that an organizational meeting of Free Will Baptists in Pitt County has been scheduled for Tuesday, at 7:30 p.m., in the First Free Will Baptist Church in Greenville.

The purpose of this organizational meeting is to plan the 12th annual Pitt County dinner as a means of supporting Mount Olive College. The annual dinners of Free Will Baptists began in 1963 and have been the source of more than $500,000 in gifts during the past eleven years. In addition to financial support, the dinners provide the College with an opportunity to report directly to approximately 33,000 church leaders across Eastern North Carolina.

Each Free Will Baptist church in Pitt County is requested to appoint a Mount Olive College Committee which it will send to the organizational meeting.

For further information about the dinners, please contact: David C. Hansley, Mount Olive College, Mount Olive, N. C. 658-2502.

INTERESTING FACTS

Here's quite an oddity. There was once a king of England who could NOT speak English!

He was George I who was born and brought up in Germany and never learned to speak English even though he became king of England in 1714 and remained king until 1727.

He didn't attend government meetings because he couldn't understand what was being said! He left the running of the nation to his ministers, thus instituting the first real cabinet.

And, here's another interesting fact. . .or rather we should say EXCITING fact. Today's interest rates are high and when a loan assumption comes along it pays to look twice! Pay the equity and you can merely take over the monthly payments on this 8 per cent interest loan. Well-kept, 3 bedroom brick home with 2 full ceramic baths, living room, kitchen with dining area and large den combination. Garage, stove and dishwasher. Nice corner lot on 601 Edgewood Drive in Ayden.

Whaley-McLawhon Vows Exchanged On Saturday

AYDEN—Miss Debra Jean McLawhon became the bride of Michael Warren Whaley in a double ring ceremony Saturday at 3 p.m. in the First Baptist Church of Ayden.

The Rev. Gilbert G. Mister officiated at the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Meakin Earl McLawhon and the late Mr. McLawhon. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Warren Whaley of Beulahville.

A program of wedding music was presented by Miss Mitzi Corbett of Ayden, organist, and Mrs. Shirley Lassister of Greenville, soloist.

The chancel of the church was centered with a fifteen branch candelabrum and jade greenery. Two nine branch tree candelabra were used on either side and were filled with jade greenery, white gladioli and chrysanthemums. Honor pews were marked with white satin ribbons. The couple knelt for prayer on a white prie dieu.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Jessie Earl McLawhon. She wore a formal length gown designed by Alessandro of white organza. The gown featured a Victorian neckline of antique white lace edged in ruffled crocheted lace. Ruffled lace also trimmed the bodice and long Bishop sleeves. The full skirt was bordered in a wide panel of antique white lace edged in ruffled organza and extended into a chapel train. She wore a fingertip veil of illusion edged in a tiny antique lace border attached to a Camelot headpiece. She carried a Bible centered with white orchids, satin streamers tied with tube roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Brenda Gray of Bon Air, Va., was her sister's matron of honor. She wore a formal length gown of maize voile flocked in tiny white flowers. The gown featured a square neckline edged in ruffled voile. The gown featured a square neckline edged in ruffled voile. The short pouf sleeves were also edged in the same fabric.The semi-fitted waistline was encircled with a tiny moss green belt with long streamers. She wore a maize braid garden hat trimmed in maize illusion and carried a colonial nosegay of yellow daisy chrysanthemums, white baby's breath and satin streamers.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Sue McLawhon of Wilmington, Mrs. Judy McLawhon of Wilmington, both sisters-in-law of the bride, Miss Linda Whaley of Beulahville, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Mary Jo Higson of Greenville and Miss Susan Carraway of Fountain. They wore formal length gowns of maize voile flocked in tiny white flowers. The gowns were designed with square portrait necklines edged in the ruffled voile. The short pouf sleeves were edged in ruffled voile and the semi-fitted waistline was encircled with a tiny moss green belt. They wore maize braid garden hats trimmed in maize illusion with a cluster of silk daisies. They carried colonial nosegays of yellow daisy chrysanthemums, white baby's breath and satin streamers.

Miss Paul Whaley of Beulahville, sister of the bridegroom, was flower girl. She wore a formal gown of maize voile flocked in tiny yellow designed with a square neckline and short pouf sleeves. She carried a nosegay of yellow daisies, chrysnathemums, baby's breath and satin streamers.

Warren Whaley was his son's best man. Ushers were Clay McLawhon of Wilmington, brother of the bride, Ronnie Williams of Beulahville, Kim Decker, Steve Higson and William Brown, all of Greenville.

Mrs. Edna Smith of Ayden directed the wedding.

After a wedding trip to Carowinds, the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride is an employee of Fieldcrest Mills and the bridegroom is a senior at East Carolina University.

An after-rehearsal party was held Friday night in the fellowship hall of the church.

Miss Waldrop Is Wed

BLOUNT'S CREEK—Miss Edna Harris Waldrop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Edmund Waldrop of Greenville, and Whiting McIllhenny Toler, son of Mrs. J. Reynold Toler of Washington and the late Mr. Toler, were united in marriage Saturday at 11 a.m.

The Rev. Lawrence Patrick Houston, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Greenville, officiated at the private outdoor ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Toler are both graduates of East Carolina University with B.S. degrees in art education. Mrs. Toler taught art in the Greenville City Schools system last year. Mr. Toler teaches art at Washington High School.

Woman's Group Will Meet Thurs.

The Christian Woman's Temperance Union will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. L.B. Tucker, 1611 S. Elm St.

The devotional theme is "Is It Nothing To You." The program theme is "New Horizons In Awareness."

Engagement Announced

MISS CECILIA ANN ROBERSON. . .is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Ray Roberson of Robersonville, who announce her engagement to Freddy Glen Parrish, son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Parrish of Goldsboro. The wedding will take place Nov. 23.

Joyce Bullock Weds In Stokes Saturday

STOKES—Miss Joyce Bullock and Robert Alpha Pollock were united in marriage Saturday at 4 p.m. in the Stokes Baptist Church.

The Rev. Edgar Bunch of Windsor officiated at the double ring ceremony.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Ann Powell of Williamston, cousin of the bride.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Ottis Bullock of Stokes. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. William Alpha Pollock of Kinston.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white silk organza over satin accented with lace and satin ribbons at the waistline. Her chapel length veil of bridal illusion was attached to a crown accented with lace ad satin ribbons. She carried a single red rose.

Bridesmaids were Miss Annette Roberson, niece of the bride, and Miss Janice Bullock, sister of the birde. They wore gowns styled identical to that of the honor attendent. Their gowns of yellow polyester featured skirts of floral pattern illusion over yellow polyester. They carried nosegays of yellow and white pom pons and pink carnations.

Mr. Pollock served as his son's best man. Ushers were Walter Harris of Greenville and Harold Chamlee of Kinston, cousin of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Alice Roberson, sister of the bride, directed the wedding and presided at the guest register.

The bride attended Pitt Technical Institute and is a nurse at Pitt Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom attended the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and is employed by Prepshirt, Inc., of Greenville.

Following a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Greenville.

Wedding Invitation

Mr. and Mrs. Mack Dixon Sr. invite you to attend the wedding of their daughter, Sylvia Rose, to Michael Lewis White Sunday afternoon at three thirty at the Black Jack Pentecostal Free Will Baptist Church. A reception will be held immediately following the ceremony.

President Ford Has His Own "Rosemary Woods"

Ny CHARLOTTE SLATER

WASHINGTON (WNS)—Mildred Leonard sits opening President Gerald Ford's personal mail, the confusion of a two-week-old Administration piled on her desk in paper form.

She has to sort out letters from true, old-time friends. "But I don't know how I'll ever get these over to him in the other building," she says, shaking her head.

Miss Leonard—no one calls her Millie—is the Rose Mary Woods of the Ford Administration. She has been Mr. Ford's personal secretary for 23 years and sits in the Executive Office Building in what used to be Mr. Ford's office as vice president.

Her boss spends most of his time across the street in the White House, even though his "things" are still adjacent to Miss Leonard's office.

Rose Mary Woods had the title "executive assistant." Miss Leonard is presently a "personal assistant," but she doesn't have any idea what her eventual title might be. "I could be first vice president in charge of arranging haircuts for all I know," she says without the least show of concern.

Rose Mary Woods was well-known for her fierce loyalty to former President Nixon and her equally fierce temper.

Miss Leonard is obviously loyal to President Ford. She has a simple faith in the goodness of her boss. How far would she go to protect him in a bad situation?

"Mr. Ford would never ask me to do anything wrong," she says, much as someone would state a fact like "the sun will rise tomorrow."

"Besides," she adds, "I've always been the type to say I'll jump off that bridge when I come to it."

Solid, reliable Mildred Leonard. She's not one of your belly-laughters, but she does have a quiet sense of humor.

She gives a combination grimace and silent chuckle if you ask whether she has a heavy foot a reference to Rose Mary Woods' supposed erasure of tape portions.

Miss Leonard was in an auto accident August 8 and still hasn't filed an accident report. "They may give me life for that," she says with another of those silent chuckles.

Mostly, she's a blend-into-the-wall type,—unassuming, nervous to the point of shaking when talking to the press, beige pantsuit with one button missing.

Asked if she minds giving her age, she answers, "Yes." Period.

"I don't know why you would want to talk to me," she says. "I've just worked for Mr. Ford for 23 years and that's the story of my life, right there. I've never felt the glory of his offices should reflect on his staff. We're just here to work. That's all I'm interested in."

Miss Leonard hasn't even presumed to go over to the White House to take a peek at the offices surrounding the Oval Office where she probably will be located. Too much work to catch up on. She thinks Miss Woods has moved out of the secretarial office, but she doesn't know for sure. She has had no communication from Miss Woods.

Miss Leonard moved to Washington in 1951 from Spokane, Wash., to be near relatives. She heard about a secretarial opening in the office of Rep. Gerald Ford, applied, and got the job. "I guess I was just lucky," she says.

"People were talking even then about the fact that he looked like presidential material, and I agreed. But, of course, I never dreamed I would be with him long enough for that assessment to mean anything in my life."

Her duties have changed over the 23 years since then. She used to do everything from taking dictation to ordering airline tickets to handling Mr. Ford's bill-paying. Now, she says, her main duty is keeping things organized and having a good memory.

"I haven't taken dictation for so long I can't remember my shorthand," she says. "He's too busy to sit around giving dictation now, anyway, I do type up the letters for his personal signature.

It's easier for me to do it myself than try to explain to someone else the things he would like to say and the words he would use. After 23 years, I'm pretty familiar with her vernacular."

Miss Leonard's apartment in Washington has a direct line to the President. But she isn't very impressed by this fact. It's all part of her job.

"It's not that I discount any of the offices he has held.

"Certainly not the present one," explains Miss Leonard. "But to me, he's just the same fine man I started working for all those years ago."

Surprise Party

Janet Brown Is Bride Of Bruce Gay Jr.

FARMVILLE—Miss Janet Carol Brown and Bruce Richard Gay Jr. were united in marriage in a ceremony Saturday at 3 p.m. in the Farmville First Christian Church with the Rev. J. Robert Parvin officiating at the double ring ceremony.

The background of the church was decorated with two brass tree candelabra with white cathedral tapers enhanced by standards of greenery. An arrangement of white bridal flowers was placed at the altar and the prie dieu where the couple knelt for prayer was enhanced with greenery.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Dixon Brown of Farmville and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. John Edward Relyea of Walstonburg and the late Mr. Bruce Richard Gay.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore her sister's gown of white angelskin peau designed with a high ruffled neckline edged in floral Venise lace. The cuffs of the Bishop sleeves and the bodice were trimmed in Venise lace. The full skirt which extended into a chapel train was edged in a flared ruffled flounce and trimmed in lace. Her chapel length mantilla of silk illusion was trimmed in Venise lace and attached to a tudor cap of angelskin peau. She carried a bouquet of tropicana roses, white carnations, daisies and gypsaphelia. She wore a gold locket, a gift she received on her 16th birthday.

She wore a formal length gown of flocked organza over taffeta. The nile background with floral tones of apricot and green featured a V-neckline outlined with an organza ruffle and full length Bishop sleeves. The A-line skirt was banded at the empire waist with nile satin centered at the waist with a bow and streamers.

Miss Keith Ann Gay of Walstonburg, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Patricia Pierce of Farmville, were bridesmaids. They wore gowns fashioned like that of the honor attendant. They wore headpieces of carnations and daisies tied with apricot streamers. The matron of honor carried two long-stemmed white carnations and a long-stemmed tropicana rose with white ribbon. The bridesmaids carried one long-stemmed white carnation and one apricot carnation tied with white ribbon.

John G. Gay of Jacksonville, uncle of the bridegroom, was best man. Groomsmen were Larry Griffin of Raleigh, brother-in-law of the bride, Sammy Gay of Walstonburg, cousin of the bridegroom, Carl Turnage of Farmville and Archie Sherrill of Walstonburg.

The mother of the bride wore a full length ensemble of deep rose knit and matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a full length gown of pale blue polyester with long sheer sleeves and matching accessories. Both mothers wore white glamelia corsages.

The bride is a 1973 graduate of Farmville Central High School and has completed on year of study of Lenoir Community College.

The bridegroom attended North Carolina State University and graduated from Lenoir Community College with a degree in electronics. He is with Terminal Communications of Raleigh.

The couple will reside in Raleigh.

Following the rehearsal Friday night, a rehearsal dinner was given in the fellowship hall of the church by the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Relyea, Mr. and Mrs. David Jones, aunt and uncle of the bride.

Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Francis Harper of Kinston, aunt and uncle of the bride, Miss Nancy Lang of Farmville presided at the bride's book. Mrs. John Gay of Jacksonville, aunt of the bridegroom, served cake, and Mrs. Marshall Lucas of Lucama, aunt of the bride, poured punch.

Good-byes were said to Mr. and Mrs. David Jones, aunt and uncle of the bridegroom.

Engagement Announced

MISS ETHEL DIANE ROUSE. . .is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Ray Rouse of Rt. 1, La Grange, who announces her engagement to Garry Edward Oakley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lee Oakley of Rt. 1, Winterville. The wedding will take place Nov. 28.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

If the bullentins and memos issued on the first day of school were laid end to end, the entire world could be paper trained in two hours.

There's a bulletin on when to read bulletins. . .memos on school policy for defacing a locker. . .and forms for faculty leave of absence in which a pregnance requires ten months advance notice.

But what is really needed is a program identifying who is who. How do you tell the students from the faculty? The volunteer parents from the drop-outs? The cooks from the coaches?

Here are a few guidelines:

New principal: Always has the look of a man who has just taken a harsh laxative. Spends the entire day in the halls wondering why the bells are ringing every five minutes. The new principal never has lunch as he doesn't know where the cafeteria is and is too embarrassed to ask.

Assistant principal: Usually found outside of the restroom doors sniffing for smoke and eyeing students suspiciously and demanding, "Does it take two of you to go to the restroom?"

Guidance counselor: For the first three weeks of school he cowers under his desk in the fetal position with his hands over his ears and whimpers, "A day in Girls Phys Ed won't hurt him. They don't take showers till next week anyway. Besides, you promised me no more changes. . .no more. . .no more. . .you promised. . ."

Teachers: Bitter from in-service training on Labor Day, they are easy to spot. They tend to band together for protection, never offering a greeting but simply muttering, "Do you believe this? A two million dollar school and no chalk?" They are often identified by their cars which are held together by rust and must idle the motor all day in order to run in the evening. Their wives (or husbands) have the second car which doesn't start at all.

Custodian: There is a bongo monkey in the trees of Africa that is call the illusive bongo becuase he is rarely seen by man. Next to the custodian he is an exhibitionist.

Most of the school year he is just a voice over the intercom. When a teacher consults his expertise on a room that is too hot he will advise, "Open a window."

School secretary: She is generally behind the desk in the main office and is noted for her ability to answer a question with a question. Example, "Where should I go this period?" Answer, "Where are you supposed to be?" "Is this where I bring this note?" Answer, "Is this where you were told to bring it?" "Could someone saw off my lock?" Answer, "Did you forget your combination?"

She's 71 And Still Yearns

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: This is my second letter to you. Please answer me. I am beginning to think that maybe you thought I must be joking. I wrote to ask where a 71-year-old woman could go to get silicone implants in her breasts. I hope you won't think I am crazy. I assure you, I am not.

I have a very nice figure, but have worn a padded bra for 50 years and I am yearning to have the real thing. I have the money, and don't see what I have to lose. I am vain. I admit it, but what is wrong with a woman my age wanting to fulfill a lifelong dream?

I don't have a husband to boss me around, so there's no problem there.

Please answer soon, and don't wait unti I'm 80 years old. I think 71 is about as old as one should wait for an operation like that. I live in a small town in Georgia, but it would be no trouble to get to Atlanta. SERIOUS IN GEORGIA

DEAR SERIOUS: Talk to your own physician and ask him to recommend a plastic surgeon. Or, write to the Georgia State Medical Society in Atlanta and ask them for a list of board-certified plastic surgeons. And lots of luck, lady.

DEAR ABBY: Is this a serious problem? I am married to a man who wants me to tie him up, spank him, humiliate him, and treat him like a "slave" when it comes to love-making.

We have fought, argued and even separated over this several times because I refuse to go along with his crazy ways. It seems abnormal to me. Or am I just not with it?

Otherwise he is a good husband. He doesn't run around, drink or curse. And he is an elder in the church.

I don't want to talk to a doctor about this because I'm afraid he might have my husband locked up.

Have you ever heard of anything like this before?

END OF ROPE

DEAR END: Yes, I've heard of it. The cardinal rule in love-making is: "Anything that goes on in the privacy of one's bedroom is all right as long as it's agreeable to both parties."

Some mates will agree to participate in such bizarre games. But if you don't want to, your wishes should be respected.

DEAR ABBY: I am an attractive 59-year-old widow. Although I'm in comfortable circumstances and have never had to work, I am far from rich.

I am seeing a very nice man who has started to talk marriage. He is 64 and divorced. All he says about his circumstances is that he is "retired and quite well off," and judging from the way he lives and spends money he probably is, but how can I be sure?

Don't get me wrong, Abby, I am no gold-digger, but I don't want to marry anybody unless I am sure that I'm bettering myself.

How do I get the facts without giving him the impression that I am interested in his money?

LAKE FOREST LADY

DEAR LADY: What's wrong with asking the gentlemen to lay all his cards on the table, and offering to do the same?

If you're still not satisfied, ask your lawyer or financial advisor to check him out. (P.S. And if he's trying to "better" himself, doesn't he deserve the same right?)

DEAR ABBY: Can't resist commenting on the letter from "Serious about him."

A long time ago I heard this saying regarding the search for perfection: "For years I searched for the perfect woman. Finally I found her....but she had only one fault. She was searching for the perfect man." NOBODY'S PERFECT

DEAR NOBODY'S: It couldn't have been love; if it were, each would have thought the other was perfect, for perfection (like beauty) lies in the eye of the beholder.

White Elephant Sale Is Planned

President Barbara Woods reported on the Leadership Seminar held in Charlotte last weekend. Also attending the seminar were Louise Spain, Mildred Hecker and Barbara Zickerman.

The main purpose of the meeting was to finalize plans for a "white elephant sale" to be held Sept. 7 from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. at the Elm Street Recreation Center.

Proceeds from the sale will be used for activities for mentally retarded adults, a group which meets at the recreation center once a week.

Anyone wishing to make donations for the sale may do so by calling Mrs. Barbara Woods, 756-6917.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Zickerman.

MISS SOUTH CAROLINA. . .Miss Cheryl Sue Von Lehe will compete in the Miss America pageant Saturday night.

Miss Cheryl Sue Von Lehe, neice of Joseph E. Johnson of Greenville, will represent South Carolina in the Miss America Beauty Pageant scheduled for Sept 7.

Miss Von Lehe, recently crowned Miss South Carolina 1975, has won other honors, including Miss Charleston 1974, South Carolina Grape Queen and Miss Azalea.

Her talent for the Miss America pageant will be the same as her talent in the South Carolina contest when she sang "Oh Babe, What Would You Say."

She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. D.P. Voh Lehe of Charleston, S.C.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson attended the Miss South Carolina pageant held in Greenville, S.C., recently.

Adele Grier and Layne Burrus will be married on Nov. 9 in the First Presbyterian Church of Greenville.

The couple met while attending Atlantic Christian College. Adele graduated from East Carolina University with a BSP degree in social work and a minor in child welfare last July.

Layne received an associate degree in art from Miami, Fla., Day Junior College before transferring to AC. He received his B.S. degree in Commercial Art from AC in August, 1973, and is presently employed with Greene Printing Company in Charlotte.

When 175 young ladies from across the state make their formal bows to society in Raleigh Friday, it will climax a summer of social activity which began in early July.

Local debutantes include Amy Louise Everett of Bethel, Paula Garde Arthur, Lois Ann Brown, Ariane Michele Clark, Peggy Sears Corbitt, Deborah Walston Webb and Kathryn Oliver Whichard, all of Greenville.

It will be a busy weekend for the girls, their families and marshals. Activities begin with registration on Thursday and end with a formal dance Saturday night.

Couple Exchanges Vows In Saturday Ceremony

St. Paul's Episcopal Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Linda Lucille Kiel and Gene Ray Brees Saturday at 5 p.m.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Kiel of Raleigh and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Brees of Lansing, Kan.

A program of wedding music was presented by Sharon Irwing of Greenville, organist, and David Hodges of Erwin, soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was escorted by her father. She wore a formal length gown of maracaine jersey designed by pandora. The gown featured a high fitted neckline encircled with pearl and crystal beading. The long full sleeves were styled with fitted cuffs and pearl and crystal beading outlined the fitted midriff. The softly gathered skirt extended into a chapel train.

She wore a formal length illusion mantilla edged in Venise lace and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of daisies and yellow roses accented with baby's breath.

Mrs. Jo Pennington of Greensboro was matron of Honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Pamela W. Smith and Mrs. Lynn H. Barrow, both of Charlotte and Miss Debbie Conklin of Greenville.

The attendants wore formal length gowns of doeskin fabric of aloha print with a golden yellow background with pastel flowers of pink, purple and green. They carried colonial nosegays of daisies and wore leis of baby's breath in their hair.

Mrs. Jean Conklin was mistress of ceremonies.

After a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va., and Virginia Beach, Va., the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University with a B.S. degree in social work and M.A. degree in child development and family relations. She is currently employed as a juvenile evaluation counselor for the Division of Youth Development at Richard T. Fountain Reception and Diagnostic Center.

The bridegroom is a student at East Carolina University.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. Mrs. Pam Lopez and Miss Debbie Brees, both sisters of the bridegroom, Mrs. Shirley Pate, aunt of the bride, served cake and poured punch.

An after rehearsal party was given by the bride's parents Friday night. They were assisted by the bridegroom's parents.

The party was held at the Greenville Moose Lodge and music was furnished by the South Sound combo of Greenville.

Miss Rebecca Mohle Weds Harold Lloyd Mills

The marriage of Miss Rebecca Sue Mohle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Mohle of Ayden, and Harold Lloyd Mills Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Lloyd Mills of Greenville, was solemnized in a ceremony Saturday at 3 p.m. in the Ayden United Methodist Church.

The Rev. L.T. Wilson performed the double ring ceremony.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Corabob Turnage, organist, and Miss Kathy Wilson, cousin of the bridegroom, and Miss Carolyn Keller, soloists. Miss Wilson sang "More" and "One Hand, One Heart." Miss Keller sang "The Wedding Prayer."

The chancel of the church was centered with a fifteen branch candelabra and jade greenery. On each side were twenty branch candelabra filled with gladioli, mums, daisies and jade greenery accented by standards of jade greenery.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of white peau de soie designed with a high neckline and sheer yoke of Rosepoint chantilly lace. Matching lace trimmed the sleeves and cuffs of the full Bishop sleeves. Panels of lace encircled the hemline and attached chapel train. Her fingertip tiered illusion mantilla edged in chantilly lace was attached to a Camelot headpiece of chantilly lace and seed pearls. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink miniature roses, white carnations, tube roses, baby's breath and greenery.

Mrs. Judy Ashcom of Jacksonville, Fla., sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a floral yellow chiffon over yellow taffeta dress in a princess style with a squard neckline and puff sleeves that were cuffed above the elbow. Her headpiece was composed of satin ribbon and illusion and she carried a nosegay of hot pink miniature carnations and baby's breath with satin ribbons.

Miss Martha Bright of Ayden was maid of honor. She wore a dress of pink floral chiffon over pink taffeta styled identical to that of the matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were Miss Diane Carr of Wilson, Miss Suzie Cribb of Roanoke Rapids, Miss Carolyn Keller of Cerro Gordo, and Miss Carolyn Mills of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom.

They wore dresses styled identical tho those of the honor attendants in alternating colors of pink and yellow floral over taffeta. Their bouquets were identical to those of the honor attendants.

H. Lloyd Mills was his son's best man. Ushers were Tom Osswald, Mike Langston, Jimmy Salisbury, Sam Mills, brother of the bridegroom, all of Greenville, and Chuck Mohle of Ayden, brother of the bride.

The bride's mother wore a formal length gown of mint green chiffon designed with a V-neckline and accented at the waist at sleeves with braid and green jewels. The bridegroom's mother wore a formal length gown of apricot polyester with an inset cummberbund at the waist. Both mothers wore orchid corsages.

After a wedding trip to western North Carolina, the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride will complete her B.S. degree in nursing at East Carolina University in February. The bridegroom has a B.S. degree in business education from ECU and will receive his master's degree in education from ECU in February. He is currently serving as a retail-marketing instructor at Wilson County Technical Institute.

The appointed table was centered with an an arrangement of snapdragons, mums, daisies, gladioli and greenery.

Mrs. Ed Gagnon, aunt of the bride, served cake, and Mrs. Jamie Wilson, aunt of the bridegroom, poured punch.

A rehersal dinner was held Friday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Edwards for the wedding party and out-of-town guests.

Hosts and hostesses included Mr. and Mrs. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. H. Lloyd Mills, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Taylor, Mr. and Mrs.C.M. Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hartsell and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Broughton.

Soup-And-Sandwich Suppers Fit Into The Budget Well

By CECILY ROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Soup-and-sandwich suppers fit into budgets. In warm weather the soup may be chilled. For the sandwich we like the latest version of a "hero" — a savory topping of cheese, hard-cooked eggs, pimiento-stuffed green olives, green pepper, onion, catchup and mustard mixed together and spread over halves of crusty Italian bread.

The loaf is cut lengthwise, buttered and toasted under the broiler until hot through and lightly browned, then spread with the cheese mixture and garnished with sliced tomatoes and more olives. The hot bread and the cool topping make delightful eating. For dessert, all you need is fresh fruit.

CHEESE AND OLIVE HEROES

1-3rd cup catchup
4 teaspoons prepared mustard
2 tablespoons minced onion
½ cup minced green pepper
Sliced pimiento-stuffed green olives
2 cups (½ pound) grated (medium-fine) cheddar Cheese, slightly packed down
2 hard-cooked eggs, finely chopped
Medium-long loaf crusty Italian bread
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, soft
1 or 2 tomatoes, sliced

In a medium mixing bowl with a fork or spoon mix together the catchup, mustard and onion; add the green pepper, ½ cup sliced olives and the cheese and mix well; mix in the eggs.

Cut the bread in half lengthwise; spread each of the cut sides with 1 tablespoon of the butter; broil until hot through and buttered surface is lightly browned. At once spread one-half of the cheese mixture over buttered surface of each half of bread. Arrange tomato slices over cheese; dot with extra sliced olives. Cut each of the bread halves into 3 portions and serve at once.

Makes 6 servings.

OTHER WAYS TO USE CHEESE-OLIVE MIXTURE

to make canapes, shortly before serving spread bread rounds or crackers with the cheese-olive mixture; garnish each with a slice of pimiento-stuffed green olive.

To make open sandwiches toast split English muffins and spread the cut surface of each half with the cheese-olive mixture; dot tops with slices of pimiento-stuffed green olives; serve at once.

Excess Of Anything Can Be Harmful

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Eating too much of anything can be harmful to your health. So can drinking too much.

Overweight and alcoholism are only part of the hazard. Many popular foods, beverages and seasonings contain potentially dangerous elements. Consumed in moderation, they usually are harmless. Eaten or drunk in excess, they are poisonous.

For instance, oxalic acid occurs naturally in rhubarb, spinach, beet leaves, tea and cocoa. But you would have to eat nearly nine pounds of rhubarb stalks to get the lowest recorded fatal dose. (However, rhubarb leaves are highly toxic and several fatalities have been reported as a result of eating them.)

Poisonous lycopene occurs naturally in tomato juice, yet you would have to drink a half gallon daily for several years to reach the danger point.

Sulfur in Foods

These facts were gathered by a National Research Council subcommittee to point out the importance of a balanced diet.

The council was organized in 1916 by the National Academy of Sciences to give American scientists and engineers greater participation in the academy's work.

The subcommittee accumulated enough information to fill a thick book. "Toxicants Occurring Naturally in Food" says natural sulfur compounds are present in more than a dozen common foods: garlic, onions, chives, cabbage, brussel sprouts, cauliflower, radishes and turnips, among others. They are also found in horseradish, mustard seeds and several plants used as cattle feed.

Remember old-fashioned preserving recipes that called for bitter almonds or peach or apricot kernels? Cyanide is in all three. Records show people have been poisoned by eating the nuts or kernels. But they can be used safely to make almond extracts, liqueurs, cordials and almond paste.

Toxic Levels Low

Nutmeg is an hallucinogen. Very high dosages of it can cause liver damage or death. A dangerous dose, according to the report, is five to 10 grams, or about two and one-half to five teaspoons.

The report often emphasizes that levels of toxic substances are extremely low in common foods. It said no one who eats a balanced diet of different foods and no extraordinary amounts of any one food is likely to be endangered.

Ex-Cons Find Jobs In Connecticut Prisons, Jails

By DAN HALL
Associated Press Writer

HARTFORD CONN. (AP) — Ruben Jimenez. Age: 36. Background: heroin addict in Spanish Harlem at 14; convicted "27 or 28 times;" imprisoned 12 years. Occupation: correctional officer.

Jiminez is one of a small, controversial new breed of guards and counselors in Connecticut prisons and jails.

A former addict with a 16-year history of heroin use interrupted only by prison terms, he broke the habit after his last arrest. Only a few months later, at the maximum-security prison in Somers, he founded the state prison system's first autonomous drug rehabilitation center.

Since 1969, about 25 former inmates have followed similar paths to Correction department jobs in what Commissioner John R. Manson calls a unique step from behind bars directly into positions of authority.

Only two have lost their jobs. Jiminez says one was fired because his job performance worsened consistently. The other suddenly stopped reporting to work.

Another two dozen of the 1,000 department employes have conviction records but came from other jobs.

The list of ex-cons on prison and jail staffs includes a deputy warden, correctional officers and counselors to addicts, inmates and parolees. Among them are:

—Dennis Guay, a computer programmer with a college degree who beat his wife's sister to death with a bowling pin in 1963. His life sentence was commuted to eight years after he set up two educational programs for fellow inmates. Now he's a deputy jail warden.

—Warren Kimbro, a former Black Panther lieutenant charged in 1969, along with National Chairman Bobby G. Seale, with murder in the death of a Panther underling. Kimbro admitted firing the first of several shots into the victim. Seale denied complicity in the crime and his trial ended in a hung jury. Kimbro went on to create several inmate programs and now runs a halfway house for former addicts.

—Joseph Falso, also a heroin addict with a 12-year prison record. He learned institutional cooking while in the Somers prison, and with the help of his prison teacher won a job as food supervisor and counselor at a drug-rehabilitation center.

The hiring of ex-cons coincided with the opening of new educational and drug programs in the department, many of them shaped by inmates themselves.

"We had so few dollars we were forced to spread the budget as well as we could for staff, then beat the bushes for inmates," Manson recalled. First the inmates worked as volunteers, then they became paid employes.

The commissioner emphasized that he never set a goal of hiring former inmates. Each one proved his qualifications while in prison.

"He hasn't just served time, but he's been part of the (rehabilitation) service," he said. "I don't think we've ever hired an ex-con just because he was an ex-con."

One result of the program, however, was that both inmates and employers saw proof that criminals "can make it," he added.

Both Manson and the ex-cons working for him agree a background in crime and imprisonment are of little if any benefit to former inmates dealing with other criminals. One exception is the ability of former addicts to help others shake the habit.

Jiminez, a dynamic, dedicated and disarming man, shows how a toughened criminal can make the conversion, Manson said.

Born into a Spanish-speaking ghetto on New York's West Side, where heroin was a household word, the young addict was caught during a burglary at age 16 and imprisoned at Riker's Island for three years.

Jimenez said the term did little for him except to keep him temporarily off heroin. He later was arrested 32 times, all for nonviolent crimes to obtain more narcotics.

His marriage was a failure, ending in separation six years ago, he said.

Following his last conviction, he and other addicts in the sprawling Somers Prison were allowed to set up inmate-run Empathy House inside the walls.

In 1972, he helped open the department's minimum-security drug center on an isolated, wooded hilltop in Portland.

Jimenez now lives about 25 minutes away in Old Saybrook. This year he was promoted to the $9,000-a-year job of correctional officer, the classification that includes guards at maximum security centers.

A frequent adviser to the commissioner, Jimenez supported a decision six months ago to require former addicts working as state counselors on the street, where drugs are easily obtained, to submit to a periodic urine analysis to make sure they have not lapsed into their old habit.

Manson said Jimenez told him, "Those will be the terms and they (the counselors) will understand because they realize the rest of the department will suffer if they get in trouble."

Hiring ex-cons like Jimenez, particularly as guards or prison supervisors, has met resistance from guards who have been on only one side of the bars.

Michael Ferrucci Jr., the leader of one union which represents guards said: "we don't think former inmates should be placed in positions of security like police departments and correctional centers."

He said it's "just a matter of nature" that security is threatened and employe moral suffers.

Manson, asked about the complaint, pointed out that most former inmates hold non-security jobs such as aides and counselors, but he conceded the number in all categories will be increasing.

Ferrucci, executive director of the statewide council of the American Federation of State, County and municipal Employes, AFL-CIO, said his union supports all other efforts to find jobs for released inmates.

Declare Assests Before Leaving

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — People leaving Kenya for good and hoping to settle overseas are being asked to declare all their assets, according to a Central Bank directive.

The directive requires all banks in Kenya to declare all the assets of customers wanting to leave the country before any application to transfer money out of Kenya is made to the Central Bank.

NOW HE KNOWS WHAT IT'S LIKE

LONDON (AP) — Challenged to sample rush-hour conditions on the subway, London Transport chairman Sir Richard Way spent 21 minutes being jostled on a commuter-jammed platform.

The chairman, who said he uses the subway but not at rush hours, conceded: "It does look a little crowded."

Arabic Example Of The Great American Dream

By FRANK N. HAWKINS JR.

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — Well past midnight, the DC-9 smoothly touches down at Khartoum airport, unmarked except for the green stripe on the tail and the name Omaria in gold letters on the side. Two limousines are waiting.

A stocky Arab with twinkling eyes, his white robes flowing behind him, descends the ramp followed by American and Arab aides in Western business suits.

The man in robes is Adnan Khashoggi, a self-made multimillionaire from Saudi Arabia, the brains and driving force behind the Arab world's first multinational conglomerate, Triad.

His name is not yet a household word. But he jets around the world in his private DC-9 and sees heads of state, juggles high finance and enjoys all the comforts and life style of the rich.

The scene here is repeated several times each week as Khashoggi, 38, jets from continent to continent building an empire and carrying the message of free enterprise with evangelistic zeal.

Pilots of his luxuriously fitted plane estimate Khashoggi travels an exhausting 40,000 miles or more each month, visiting his various offices, homes and investments from Walnut Creek, Calif., to Phoeni1 to New York to Paris to Geneva, London, Beirut, Riyadh, Jeddah, Brazil and Indonesia.

"He practically lives on the plane," says one Khashoggi follower. That's not so hard. In the rear is a thickly carpeted bedroom that can sleep four and a full bath with shower. Forward is a wood-paneled office with telephone and wardrobe. In front of that, behind the flight deck and kitchen, is a living room seating 14 with a videotape television system.

Khashoggi has two full-time American flight crews of two men each. The plane costs nearly a million dollars a year. It frees him from the restrictions of commercial airline schedules. Often he works during the day and flies at night.

Stopping in Khartoum for a few hours to check on his latest investments, Khashoggi visited a $200 million oil refinery and a $300-million cattle ranch, meatpacking and food-producing complex.

Then he was off to Riyadh, then back to Beirut where his five children go to school and his lovely English born wife Soraya, 27, makes her headquarters. Although the children are learning Arab culture and history as well as English, French and Arabic there, Mrs. Khashoggi says she doesn't regard herself as a Beirut resident. She says she lives wherever she happens to be.

Although Mrs. Khashoggi travels with her husband often, she has a growing reputation in Beirut as a professional photographer.

Khashoggi himself has been mistakenly identified with Arab oil money. Virtually unnoticed, he has become one of the largest private entrepreneurs in the Middle East.

Khashoggi got his start as a student at Chico State College in Northern California in the 1950s. His father, the personal physician to the late King Ibn Saud, sent him $10,000 to buy a car similar to those other Arab students had. Instead, Khashoggi put the money in the bank.

"It's all memories now," he said in an interview on the flight from Beirut to Khartoum. "I had a contractor friend who told me about the tax advantages of leasing equipment. I got into that and the heavy truck business. I started marketing trucks in Saudi Arabia during summer holidays."

heavy duty trucks, with large heavy tires and double radiator engines, were well-suited for hauling multi-ton loads through hot Arabian deserts. Khashoggi did so well with his investment that he eventually bought Kenworth, the company which made the trucks.

With this success, Khashoggi broke off his education and went home. He became the well-paid representative for a number of American firms including Lockheed, Raytheon, Litton Industries, Teledyne and others, including Rolls-Royce of Britain and France's arms export agency, Sofna.

Khashoggi's private wealth has been reliably estimated at $80 million, but when asked about this he says with a smile, "I don't owe anybody any money and I enjoy an element of mystery. So let your readers guess."

As a private entrepreneur, Khashoggi is driving to bring capitalism and free enterprise to the Arab world where royal and socialist governments control most of the wealth.

Whim Gin Returns To Remote Regions

GENEVA (AP) — The whim gin, the ancient horsedriven village power gear, has been rediscovered and re-designed for use in remote regions of the developing world — on an initiative by the United Nations Narcotics Division.

It said the idea arose in connection with the international effort to make growers of opium and other narcotic plants change over to harmless crops to help fight drug trafficking and dependence throughout the world.

Most opium growers, particularly in Southeast Asia, live in isolated areas without roads or power supplies and work their poppy fields with primitive gear, says the division, which runs crop replacement projects financed from the U.N. Fund for Drug Abuse Control.

The division says most poppy growers would like to change to planting grains or other crops but are too poor to afford the equipment that is required today to make it more profitable than growing poppies.

Thinking about the kind of machinery that could still be within their means one veteran of the division remembered tales about the old whim gin European farmers once used for milling, grinding and threshing wheat.

Long ago replaced by diesel engines and electric motors, the whim gin essentially is a horizontal bar pulled around in a circle by a harnessed horse and driving the gear fixed to the ground in the center. In more ancient times the bar was pushed or pulled by prisoners or slaves.

The division says it took months of searching in many countries to discover a genuine model still in operation — in an old farming village near the town of Bialystok in Poland.

SETTLING DOWN FOR THE RIDE. . .Here passengers settle down for the ride out of Greenville as others come into the car. A conductor, in checked shirt and hat, adjusts a seat.

Train Ride Provides A Day Of Fun And History

For several hundred people, time turned around last Sunday August 25, and took a trip forty years into the past.

The time machine carrying those people back to the thirties and forties was the Southern Railway's steam engine No. 4510, a big green and gold smoke belching monster pulling a string of passenger cars on one of the Southern Railway's many steam fan trip specials.

The trip began in Norfolk, Va. Saturday. The run from Norfolk to Greenville was sponsored by the Old Dominion Chapter of the National Railway Historical Society (NRHS). Sunday's run from Greenville to Greensboro was sponsored by the East Carolina branch of the NRHS.

The train used the tracks of the former Norfolk and Southern road. The tracks are now used only for freight traffic. Riders and railfans could board the train for varying distances along the route.

No. 4501 pulled out of Greenville at 9:00 a.m. Sunday morning, and the first stop was in Farmville. When the train got to Wilson a diesel had to be hooked up to provide air brakes after a compressor became inoperative on the steam engine. The resulting two hour delay added to the thrill of the day.

Passengers rode the train for different reasons but most said that their interest came from not being able to ride old trains. Some had never ridden a train before and this gave them their first chance.

Butch Ricks, of Greenville took his two young sons on the trip to "experience some of the excitement of the past. This is new to everyone." Ricks' father worked for the railroad for 45 years.

Another Greenville resident, Joe Jenkins, took his son, Joey. Why did Joey like the train? "Its fun," he said. One lady rider was overheard to say that the excursion was one of the most exciting things to happen in Greenville in a long time.

W. Graham Clayton, president of the Southern Railway, brought his own passenger car along. He rides the train on many of 4501's trips over the system's rails.

"We run steam excursions all summer on the road," he said.

"We do it as a community service. People like to see what trains were like fifty years ago. It is also a good history museum, because steam built the country. Kids can't often see a steam engine otherwise," Claytor said.

The president pointed out that the train runs continuously through the summer and into the fall, stopping only around Thanksgiving to be cleaned and overhauled. Then in March, the train pulls out onto the rails again for more trips.

The 63 year old engine itself is a classic. It was built by the Baldwin Locomotive Works of Philadelphia in 1911. It was the first of the 2-8-2 Mikado type delivered to the Southern. The 2-8-2 refers to the wheel arrangement of the two lead wheels, eight driving wheels and two trailers. 4501 was first used in freight traffic, then later retired to fan trip passenger service.

4501 is typical of several "Mikes" the Southern had between World Wars I and II. Those used for freight service were a standard black but those used on passenger trains were painted green, gold, silver and red.

Will 4501 come back to Greenville in the future? Claytor thinks so. "We had tremendous results. We have had more people on this run than on many others."

TWO MEN. . .study the boiler of Southern Railway Engine 4501 as the massive locomotive rests at a Norfolk Southern siding in Greenville. The 63-year-old 2-8-2 Mikado engine, which weighs in at 272,900 pounds, was first placed into service in 1911.

AFTER A DAY'S WORK. . .two of the train's drivers (or wheels) stand motionless on the track. A total of eight drivers pull the heavy weight of the train.

KKK Is Still Recruiting, But Burns Few Crosses

By BILL CRIDER
Associated Press Writer

CAMPTI, La. (AP) — "Welcome to Klan Country," the big sign said. And there beside U.S. 71, on a rented meadow three miles north of Campti, the Ku Klux Klan was hustling for new recruits.

Blacks and Jews and intellectuals, liberals, skeptics and their ilk need not apply.

The sun had slipped behind the green hills of central Louisiana but the day was still bright. Most cars whining along U.S. 71 zipped right on by the KKK sign and the ominous hooded figure beside it.

"People don't come until after dark," shrugged state grand dragon John W. King, a Winnfield lawyer. "They don't care to be seen at a Klan rally."

He said that's because the Klan is famed for clandestine terrorism, murder, whippings and fire to impose its version of law and order—and word hasn't gotten around that times have changed.

The bloody image often repels potential members whose politics may lie just south of Attila the Hun's but who balk at violence — it appeals to what King calls the "nitwits, wild men and radicals."

"But the haters pass right on through," King added. "They don't stay long."

This peaceful dragon is state commander for the United Klans of America, Inc. (UKA), richest and most visible of the 15 separate and jealous Klan groups known to the FBI.

The encampment seemed remarkably well protected. It was patrolled by 10 armed men wearing gray military uniforms, boots, black helmets.

Each man's belt bore a holstered pistol. A two-foot billy club dangled beside it. Two troopers carried M-1 carbines with banana clips curved beneath them.

King, wearing coveralls, was fiery-faced and sweating hard from the unaccustomed labor of helping deck the grassy field with props for his "Americanism Rally."

They included:

—A 30-foot-tall wooden cross, wrapped in burlap and soaked with diesel fuel, to be lighted later; plus a four-foot cross made of lead pipe, perforated like the burners of a gas stove. Fueled by a tank of butane, the small cross flamed near the fence gate, beside the floodlit welcome sign.

—An 18-wheel flatbed truck as a platform for musicians and speakers. Microphones stood on it, flanked by American and confederate flags. Strings of electric light bulbs dangled from temporary poles.

—An old Army tent to shelter a concession stand, where Klan women sold soft drinks, sandwiches and slivers of cake; two smaller tents for rank and file workers.

—Two portable outhouses.

—Two large and luxurious motor homes, one for King, the other for Robert Shelton of Tuscaloosa, Ala., the UKA's imperial wizard.

Keeping tabs on the UKA and other Klans used to involve millions of FBI dollars and hundreds of agents and informers. But except for a militant klavern here and there, FBI spokesmen say things have been routine since 1971.

The FBI says membership in the Klans has declined considerably since 1971 but numbers of Klan organizations continue to be involved in attrocities denying others their constitutional rights. The FBI estimates that United Klans of America, the largest group, has a membership of 1,700. In 1972, they estimated it at 3,200.

Actually, Klans were never very secret to the FBI or interesting to police.

By dark nearly 200 cars and pickups were parked on the field but over half left when a rainstorm struck.

About 100 spectators stuck through two hours of speeches resembling fundamentalist preaching, condemning racial integration, new math, communism — Jews. Antisemitism got more space than blacks.

"The Jews are the antiChrist!" cried Shelton. "People say Christ was a Jew. He was not. Show me anywhere in the old King James Bible where it says Jesus Christ Was a Jew!"

Our country was founded by men with names like Hamilton, Adams and Washington, said Shelton, and he mourned today's "Kissingers, Schlesingers and Goldsteins."

At the end, 23 hooded klansmen in white satin robes waved torches in a ritual, then lit the big cross. It was not particularly spectacular; rain had diluted the diesel fuel.

Not many heeded King's pleas to stick around and sign on.

"If you're interested in talking to us about the Klan, we're here to do it and we're not in any hurry to leave," he called.

But it was around midnight. The exodus continued.

"We are planning to change our style," King told a newsman while unplugging his public address system. "We're going to hold meetings in motel banquet halls, places like that, instead of out in fields."

Cynical FBI agents, who suspect that money is the root of most Klans, say leaders have nothing against the affluent, either, but that any member will do.

the UKA plainly has enough money flowing in to pay Shelton $15,000 a year and provide him with a motor home nearly as big as a Greyhound bus to travel from klavern to klavern, coast to coast.

He claims klaverns in almost every state.

Proof that the UKA had yankee klaverns came when five men identified by the FBI as "UKA affiliates" were arrested on a charge of bombing 10 parked school buses during integration troubles at Pontiac, Mich., in 1971.

Shelton says the UKA is financed by a monthly assessment of 50 cents a member, paid to the national UKA from whatever dues are imposed by the local.

No other Klan of the 15 seems prosperous, though James R. Venable of Stone Mountain, Ga., claims over 100,000 members for his National Knights. Shelton is among those who doesn't believe it.

"They're all paper tigers," he scoffed. "Anybody can set up a Klan. But I doubt if all the other Klans could muster in total membership what we have in just two Louisiana parishes."

Auto Assembly Plant In Kenya

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — British Leyland plans to set up a $9-million auto assembly plant in the central Kenya town of Thika, 30 miles from here.

The plant, being set up in conjunction with the local auto firm of Cooper Motors Corp. Ltd., will assemble 1,500 trucks, buses and other vehicles once it goes into production in 1976. The project is designed to cut the import of foreign-made vehicles.

Outwitted By Stray Sheep

MERTHYR TYDFIL, Wales (AP) — Stray sheep, a menace to Welsh drivers and gardeners, are proving smarter than the authorities. They roll across restricting cattle grids and took only two weeks to crack "sheep-proof" garbage bins. "We are up against a very sophisticated animal," said Welsh undersecretary Ted Rowlands.

ARCHES ACCENT BRICK VENEER OF THE "MONDANO."

GARAGE DOORS ADD DETAIL TO SPANISH DESIGN

By Gerry Bishop

Providing a pleasing contrast to the basic rectangular plan, Spanish arches accent the brick veneer design of the "Mondano" and create a shaded porch area.

Economy of space and inexpensive materials is stressed in the layout, creating a functional and pleasing home without high cost and seldom-used extras.

The living room lies to the right of a small foyer that opens into a hall area providing access to the sleeping wing and to the basement.

The three bedrooms lie to the left of the foyer and include large closets. A full bath is shared by the two smaller bedrooms, while the master bedroom has a half bath and shower of its own.

The L-shaped kitchen is large, including dining space and exiting to a patio for outdoor eating and living.

Extra storage is provided behind the double garage. The key to expansion of this charming home is the full basement which can be finished out completely to provide a family room or additional bedrooms, or which can be left partly finished to accommodate hobbies or more active sports and recreation.

Theft Insurance Isn't Simple

By DOROTHEA BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Every 13 seconds, a burglar steals someone's property. Every 45 seconds a home burns. No one expects such disasters but most homeowners insure against them anyway. It's a comfortable feeling to know you're protected.

But are you?

"Insurance is only the first step. Unless you are prepared to give an accurate description of your property losses, you risk denying yourself full benefit of the insurance you buy," warns Robert R. Buell, vice president of Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies.

Essential to proper insurance protection, he says, is an inventory of personal property.

Of course, you'll remember the big things —the piano, the elaborate stereo system, the antique piece you scrimped and saved to buy. But what about the myriad other possessions — the books and records and linens, kitchen and dining ware, the new slipcovers, the children's things...

As a test, take just one room of your home and try to list from memory everything in it. And then try to remember when it was purchased, and at what cost.

You can't do it. And if you can't do it in the event of fire or theft, you'll almost certainly suffer loss. Inventorying is the better way, and the sooner you start, the better. Once you have a basic inventory, it's just a matter of habit -remembering to enter purchases as they are made.

Buell says to be a complete description of all property owned, an inventory should include:

..Type of property.

..Make, model, size and color.

..Date of acquisition.

..Original cost.

..And, in case of theft, the location of personal identification markings, such as "Operation Identification" numbers.

The inventory, Buell says, has three important uses. It helps people remember the property they have, it helps establish actual cash value of the property, and it gives police a tool in recovering and returning stolen property and in convicting the thief.

"Most insurance companies," according to Buell, "base payments for property losses on an item's actual cash value — the replacement cost at date of loss, minus an amount for depreciation."

While insurance companies will try to help, he said, it is up to the policyholder to establish the age and replacement cost of the item. If he can't, the values can only be estimated and that could result in recovery of less than actual cash value.

Buell suggests an inventory should include also the account numbers of all credit cards, along with information on where loss should be reported, and receipts to document the value of unusually expensive items.

The inventory should be updated regularly, and a copy of it should be kept in a safe deposit box or other safe place away from home, where it won't be destroyed by fire should one occur.

While the property inventory will be a big help in expediting insurance claims for easily replaced property, Buell said, other steps should be taken to protect and expedite claims for items that, because they are unique, have no easily calculated actual cash value.

Owners of items such as jewelry, furs, paintings and antiques, he said, should take these additional steps:

..Have the items appraised in writing by an expert.

..Photograph the items.

Buell says a stated amount of coverage for personal property —usually about half the amount of insurance on the dwelling — is included in Homeowners' policies, with certain limits on certain items. Unusually expensive and unique items also may be insured under the same policy, he explained, as "scheduled items." Each such item and its value is stated in the policy, leaving little question about the amount paid in case of loss. These policies also include "off premises" coverage against property losses that occur away from the home; for example, luggage lost while traveling.

He recommends, "Add up the total actual cash value of all property owned, to make certain your insurance policy's personal property limit is adequate."

Acquired a little at a time over the years, our possessions may not seem very valuable. But try to replace them all at once and the value of even a modest household will surprise you.

Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. Can Burford's Chinese Holly be used as a hedge plant? (C. T., Carrboro)

A. Yes. It can be sheared and shaped very much the same as abelia, ligustrum, and photinia.

Q. If I save tomato, squash and green pepper seed from this year's garden will they be usable in 1975? (Mrs. R. P., Charlotte)

A. They could be, but I don't recommend that a gardener try to save seed from one year to the next. The small cost of seed does not justify the time needed to extract and care for the seed properly. Also, you run the risk of carrying over soil-borne diseases. (George Hughes, extension horticulturist)

Q. When should a person add a wetting agent to an insecticide spray? Please tell me what to use, when to use it and how. (H. L., Winston-Salem)

A. As a rule, a wetting agent is included in all spray material formulations. However, certain types of water require more. Also plants with a waxy leaf such as cabbage, broccoli and onions need additional wetting agents. Commercially, there are many wetting agents available. It is essential that these be compatible with the insecticide. In the home garden a teaspoonful of liquid household detergent such as Joy or Dreft may be used in each gallon of water. (H. E. Scott, extension entomologist)

Q. Is there such a thing as a "James" grape? I remember as a child a vine referred to as James, but I can't find a source of vines. (H. G., Windsor)

A. There is a very old, dark colored muscadine variety called James. Many people refer to all dark muscadines as James. Many of these were seedlings and very different from the original variety. I have no idea where you could purchase a James. Other good dark varieties available include: Hunt, Albemarle and Noble. (Joe Brooks, extension horticulturist)

Here's the Answer

Q. —I intend to cover our backyard patio with fiber glass roofing. Can you tell me what size wood to use for the rafters of the framework?

A. — Generally, 2 by 6 rafters, with a 2 by 8 rafter support at the lower front where the 4 by 4 posts are located. But you would be unwise to buy any material until you find out what the local codes are for that type of construction. The codes will even specify how the wood is to be attached. If you take a chance and build the roof without investigating, you might have to take it down at a later date.

Q. — I'd like to use textured paint on one wall of my den. Someone has told me it's not a good idea because the wall can never be made smooth again. Can't it be sanded smooth if I want to change it in a few years?

A. — The advice you received was good. The wall might be made smooth again with an electric sander, but it would be a long, tough job and you'd probably regret you ever started it. Most persons who use textured paint are satisfied with the result.

Q. — Can I apply plywood directly over a plaster wall?

A. — Yes, but the wall must be level to get a good result. If it is not level, you will have to put up furring strips first. In the first instance, the plywood is nailed into the studs behind the plaster. In the second, the furring is nailed to the studs, and the plywood nailed or glued to the furring strips.

Q. — Should varnish be heated before being used.

A. — It isn't necessary, but warming it helps it to flow easier. This should be done by placing the can in a pot of warm water. Don't warm it over an open flame.

ON THE HOUSE

Knowing and understanding real estate terms can avoid misunderstanding in making preliminary decisions based on newspaper advertising and initial discussions.

If you know precisely what is meant, rather than having a general impression of the definition, you need not waste time looking at property that doesn't meet your needs. By request, Jon Hill, a project director of the Branigar Organization of Oak Brook, Ill., sent along a checklist of the most common terms:

—Primary Housing: Housing designed for permanent residency.

—Single-Family Detached Housing: Single-family dwelling which stands unattached from any other residential structure on a plot of land.

—Multi-Family Housing: Housing designed to accommodate more than one family with separate and distinct living units under one structure.

—Condominium: An individually-owned cube of space in a multi-unit structure. When you purchase a residential condominium you acquire individual and absolute title to an interest in all common areas of the building and the land on which the building stands.

—Townhome: A type of multi-family housing in which you own the land that your unit is located on. The units may be built in clusters, generally resembling a large single-family detached home.

—Quadraplex: Four living units put together in one building surrounded by common-use grounds, such as sidewalks, driveways, landscaped areas.

—Amenities: Facilities and services that provide comfort and conveniences for community residents, and may include such facilities as a clubhouse, pool and tennis courts.

—Greenway: Open space, such as parkways, prairies or woodlands that are an integral portion of a community.

—Density: This refers to the number of living units per acre. There is a trend in today's market to consolidate housing in a community to achieve maximum open space, parks and greenways. The lower the density, the fewer housing units per acre.

—Planned Unit Development (PUD): A housing community with the following characteristics: dwelling units grouped into clusters, allowing an appreciable amount of land for open space; a mix of housing to include single-family detached, townhomes or apartments; higher densities than conventional single-family developments of the same acreage; and often part of the land used for nonresidential purposes, such as shopping and employment centers.

—Cluster Concept: Cluster is a way of planning and developing land that groups houses rather than spacing them regularly along gridiron and curvilinear streets. The remaining area is combined into common open space for the use of all residents.

—Satellite Community: A self-supporting, independent community developed within a metropolitan area.

—Homeowner's Association: An organized group of homeowners responsible for the conduct of the community's day-to-day operation.

—Property Report: Any developer selling subdivisions of 50 or more lots through interstate commerce must register with the Housing and Urban Development Office of Interstate Land Sales Registration. The report provides factual information about the land and is available on request from the developer.

WRONG PRICING LOGIC

If you try to sell your home yourself, how do you set a realistic price? Most people base their price tags on the only facts known to them: original price, cost of improvements, and hoped-for profit. Then they adjust to bring their figure in line with what they think similar homes are bringing. Sounds reasonable but three of the basic facts are irrevelent, and the fourth is highly dubious.

The original price, improvements and hoped-for profit only determine whether you gain or lose, but they have nothing to do with the right price to produce a sale. Prices of other homes may give you some clue to the market, but most of the time you only hear the asking price. If it's not a realistic price, it won't be the selling price.

How then do you set a realistic price? By consulting a local Realtor whose business it is to know how much property can bring and will bring. His knowledge of the market is invaluable.

how to save on your electric bill . . .

It makes good sense to use electricity more efficiently, saving wherever you can, and assisting in the conservation of natural resources. For example, you can help your air conditioner do its job more efficiently by following these suggestions:

• Whenever possible, run the fan without using the cooling portion of your unit.

• Place the thermostat on the highest comfortable setting. For each degree you raise the air conditioner thermostat, you can save at least five percent on the cost of operation.

• Check the filter periodically, cleaning or replacing it as necessary. A dirty filter makes the air conditioner work harder to do the same job.

And . . . there are other things you can do to make your home more comfortable this summer. For instance:

• Turn off unnecessary lights or appliances, such as television sets, which produce heat — particularly range cooking units when not in use. Use an exhaust fan above your range.

• Keep windows and outside doors closed.

• Save your "moisture producing" activities, such as showering and laundry, for cool early mornings or late evenings. If possible, use a bathroom exhaust fan.

• When outside temperature drops below the temperature inside, open your windows to let heat escape. Close your house tightly during the hottest part of the day. You should also keep out solar heat by closing blinds and draperies of windows exposed to direct sunlight.

• Just as insulation saves on your heating bill by keeping warmth in, good insulation also pays summer dividends by keeping heat out.

Drive-In Church Convenient For Handicapped

By JOHN C. BRADEN

LENEXA, Kan. (UPI) — When the Rev. Dr. Forrest Haggard first thought of a drive-in church, the other ministers in the area rejected the idea. One even said only the crippled or otherwise unfit would come.

"He was right," Dr. Haggard said, smiling.

But that was what the Christian Church minister had in mind, so he went right ahead.

That was 20 years ago, when Dr. Haggard's regular church had only 50 members meeting in the Kansas City suburb of Johnson County.

"We were a small group that needed exposure to be accepted in the community," he said. "We thought this idea would do it."

Now Dr. Haggard is senior minister of the 1,600-member Overland Park Christian Church, housed in a modern brick facility in Overland Park, Kan.

"At first we met with a lot of skepticism," Dr. Haggard said. "One minister even said it would be sacrilegious."

The churchman shook off the doubters and went ahead with the drive-in project. His church has sponsored services at the Fox 50 Drive-In in nearby Lenexa every summer since Easter, 1954.

Dr. Haggard said the drive-in opened the church to many people who previously had been unable to attend for various reasons, both physical and psychological.

"People who are handicapped or have a deformity don't have to walk or move," he said. "People who are afraid of crowds can stay isolated and retain their anomymity."

In addition the drive-in congregation includes those who would not go to "regular" church merely because they do not want to get dressed up.

The drive-in churchgoer enters the "sanctuary" passing a sign advertising "M-A-S-H and "The Laughing Policeman." At what is normally the ticket booth he is greeted by the minister and given a mimeographed program and a foil-covered paper cup containing a wafer and grape juice for Communion.

The Rev. Russell E. Money, assistant minister, refers to the cup and foil arrangement, saying, "It took some doing to come up with that. It just shows if you think something is worthwhile, you do it."

Inside, automobiles begin to gather, facing the giant screen. More than 80 cars finally arrive, and church members show some of the same reluctance to be in the front row as in a conventional church.

A woman in curlers in one car exchanges a greeting with three elderly women in a nearby vehicle.

At 8 a.m., recorded organ music comes through the theater sound system and out the speakers hanging on the doors of each car.

One of them turns out to be the minister, this week the Rev. Money, wearing a short-sleeved shirt, necktie and sunglasses. He stands on a platform atop the building, shielded from the blazing sun by a patio umbrella. Behind him is a tall aluminum cross.

He conducts a regular church service, including hymns, prerecorded by the Overland Park church's choir especially for the service. The congregation on wheels appears more inclined to listen than to sing the hymns. There is a greater participation during The Lord's Prayer.

When the deacon arrives at each car with a yellow coffee can for the offering, he greets each member with a smile and a "good morning", unlike the plate passing in more orthodox churches.

Dr. Haggard got the idea for the outdoor services when he stopped in a small town in Nebraska in August, 1953, on a Sunday morning.

"I don't even remember the name of the town," he said. "I saw this little sign at the drive-in about the services and pulled in."

He said the Lutheran congregation there had used the drive-in because their regular church had been damaged by fire.

"We began our services that following summer," Dr. Haggard said.

The minister said services have been held there during the summer months ever since, even though the theater has changed hands several times.

"We started on the roof of the concession stand. However, that was difficult to maintain," he said. "When it rained, you got sopping wet."

The answer to that was to build the small structure at the base of the screen, stringing wire to hook into the theater sound system. During bad weather the minister preaches through a window in the building.

Serves Vets On Campuses

Allan J. Jones, husband of the former Elaine Whichard of Greenville, has been selected as the Veteran's Administration's "Man-On-Campus" for Lenoir Community College in Kinston.

Jones joined the VA in 1974 and will also serve veterans attending Craven County Community College in New Bern.

Vet-REPS have been placed on most college campuses across the country and act as a liason between veterans and the VA in trying to iron out problems relating to veterans benefits.

Jones attended Lenoir Community College and received his under-graduate degree in Psychology from East Carolina University. He is also a Vietnam-era Army veteran, serving from 1967-70.

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's full moon brings you an urge to make many changes and to improve relations with your co-workers. You can easily find the ways and means to have increased harmony in the future. Become more optimistic.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Isolate yourself for a short period of time and think over what should be done in the future to make your life more fruitful.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A fine time to get in touch with good pals and arrange social affairs for the future. You can now gain a difficult objective.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make certain you carry through with promises you have made to others. Don't make any changes without the approval of others.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Ideal day to get together with a congenial and go to new places and get a new outlook on life. Use care in motion.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) If you handle practical affairs in a wise way, you can soon have greater abundance. Show that you are an alert and clever person.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Come to a fine understanding with one who has opposed you in the past. Some time spent in cultural activity is fine tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Much can be done today in the way of improving your surroundings. One who has been helpful in the past now needs your help.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Your creative ideas are fine now so work on them and make yourself better respected. Be sure to take care of your health.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Others have not been treating you as well as you would like, but it could be your fault. Stop scowling and smile.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) It may take you longer to convince others about a new idea you have, but being patient will bring excellent results now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan a better way to a handle a pressing monetary responsibility. Don't hesitate to obtain advice from financial expert.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan how to entertain congenials in the future. Engage in amusements and hobbies you enjoy. Don't neglect health treatments.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will develop strong hunches at an early age and will be able to sense what others are thinking. Be sure to supervise the playmates or your progeny could take the wrong road and ruin the fine promise here. There is ability to take ideas and whittle them down to a practical level.

Commission Plans A Funding Package

Project requests for Coastal Plains funding for FY-75 will be submitted through the Lead Regional Organization, which is the Mid-East Commission. The project will receive a regional evaluation and priority before consideration of the State Project Package.

During the recent months the Governor has made a strong effort to move the decision process in North Carolina closer to the people by more involvement of the Lead Regional Organizations and elected local officials. This philosophy will be continued in the development of the State FY-75 Project Package for the Coastal Plains Regional Commission.

A copy of the guidelines for the project may be obtained from the North Carolina Office of Intergovernmental Relations. The guidelines should be followed and requested information on each project should be provided. Inadequate information might jeopardize a project in the review process.

Since the Regional Project Package needs to be in Raleigh by October 1,, it is essential that projects be submitted no later than September 1. This allows only two weeks to follow up on questions on potential problems, establish regional priorities and develop a final Regional Project Package.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1974

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Refuse to allow yourself to get upset by what you can't help. Instead of fretting, seek peace and harmony from people and places that have a tranquil effect upon you. Do chores quickly, then enjoy recreations.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Build up your inner forces so you can handle problems wisely. Avoid one who wants you to do menial work you detest. Enjoy social in p.m.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Enjoy good friends you really like to relieve tensions. Get into that group affair that could prove most lucrative as well as enjoyable.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Come through with the promises you have made to others, especially higher-ups. Show intelligence in handling some credit matter. Raise your level of consciousness.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Find the right new ideas and persons who can inspire you to greater activity and greater prosperity. Use more modern methods and get better results.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get responsibilities performed conscientiously and the results will be fine. Don't argue with your romantic interest, or there is a fight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Clear up any questionable points you may have with partners. Then enjoy recreational activities. Take no chances with one who is a poor risk.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Do only what is necessary about work and then out for fun to relieve tensions. Avoid partner who wants you to do some annoying job.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan early for social life or sports you want to enjoy later in the day. Take no chances. Gentility is the keynote now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Handle worldly matters wisely and you win approval of bigwigs, keep out of trouble. Avoid one who wants to con you into something.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Handle transportation and communication matters cleverly. Keep an eye on your wallet or purse today. Avoid one who is a troublemaker.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take care of confusing matters and clear the slate for more interesting outlets in the days ahead. Use good common sense. Hunches are apt to be faulty today.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make your appearance more attractive and then be off to the social events that can bring the results you want, business or personal. Don't talk too much. Listen.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have a tendency to get into trouble early in life, but will be very quick to get out of it, so be sure to give the finest education possible and teach to control the temper. Then even adults will ask your youngster for suggestions in times of emergency. Start religious training early. Sports are a must here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Four Dances And A Country Music Concert Scheduled For Greenville

October Days Are Set For Bicentennial Music

O. B. Mc'Clinton

Sue Richards

Jerry Reed

The sound of music and dancing feet will be in the air when October comes to Greenville. As part of the town's bicentennial celebrations, a number of dances and concerts are scheduled when Greenville's 200th birthday party gets into its final stages.

Mrs. Betty Owens, chairman of the Bicentennial Entertainment Committee, has announced that tickets are now on sale at the Bicentennial Headquarters on the corner of Ninth and Evans Streets, (Tel. 752-1919). She urges all persons interested in getting tickets to do so at the earliest possible moment, as each event is to be limited to a predetermined number of tickets.

Dances and concerts planned to date are:

—The "Bi-Cen-Tenn Hop," 8 to 11 p.m., Saturday, October 5, to be held at the Elm Street Gym. This dance is to be open only to persons 13 to 19 years of age. Music will be provided by the "Glass Moon" Band. Tickets are $1.25 per person, or $2.00 per couple.

—Country Music Concert, Monday, October 7, Minges Coliseum. Beginning at 8:00 p.m., this Shower of Stars" country music concert is to be one the largest ever held in North Carolina. Scheduled to run (one show only) for more than three hours, a host of well-known names in country-western music will be on hand: Tom T. Hall, Jerry Reed, Peggy Sue, Johnny Russell, O. B. Mc'Clinton, Sue Richards, George Morgan, Sonny Wright, Little Roy Wiggins, Gary Sargents, and Charlies Harrison. These singers will be backed up by three full bands. Advance tickets are $5.00 each, and at the door will cost $6.00 if any are still available at that time.

—Rock and Roll Dance, Tuesday, October 8, beginning at 8:30 p.m. and lasting until. For this event, two bands: Bill Deal and the Rondells, and Maurice Williams and the Zodiacs will provide continuous music. Tickets, limited to 500, will be sold to couples only at $6.00

—Friday, October 11, 9 p.m., National Guard Armory, the Bicentennial Costume Ball. Music for the "dressy" event of the season will be provided by "Miami". Tickets are available at $6.00 (couples only). The Entertainment Committee is urging all who attend to come dressed in their historical costumes.

—Saturday, October 12, Greenville Moose Lodge, 8:30 p.m. This closing event of the Bicentennial Dance and Concert Festival will be a Big Band Era Dance with the Jett Rollo Orchestra, one of the old Glenn Miller bands, providing the music. Only 300 tickets (for couples) are available at $10.00.

Attendance at the Rock and Roll Dance, the Bicentennial Costume Ball and the Big Band Era Dance will be limited to adults only, and no single tickets will be sold.

Mrs. Owens noted that it is hoped there will be capacity attendance at all these events, as any profits realized from the concert-dance series will be applied to the cost of other events held for the public for which no charge is being made.

Duke Archaeologists Uncover Pattern Of Jewish Movement

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI)—Duke University archaeologists are uncovering a "striking picture of the transfer of Jewish populations to Galilee after the wars with Rome," in excavations at Meiron, Israel, according to a leader of the group.

Dr. Eric Meyers, the leader of a joint excavation party that has been working in the area for three summers, says the archaeologists are working to verify accounts of fortifications that were written by Glavious Josephus, a 1st century warrior and historian who commanded northern Galilean forces in 66 A.D. during the first revolt of Jews against Rome.

Meyers said this season's dig is "spectacular from the point of view of archaeology."

Two unique towers were uncovered this summer in Meiron's upper elevations, not far from an old synagogue atop the hill that was a target last year of another group of Duke student archaeologists.

Meyers says the discoveries this summer in the tower area "raise the distinct possibility that Josephus himself could have fortified Meiron shortly before the 1st century revolt."

Pottery and coins from within and outside the fortified tower indicate the area's use from early Roman times to the middle ages and add further to the conjecture, Meyers says.

"Soundings we made last summer against the eastern wall of the synagogue revealed segments of an adjoining room or building which is contemporary with the ancient facade of the synagogue, and the building itself, cut from bedrock."

Not far from the ancient house of worship, the archaeologists discovered the base of an obviously more-ancient fortified area and tower, as well as the remains of residential and industrial structures.

In Meiron's lower-city area, at the bottom of the hillside on which the village rests, this summer's excavations also included two ancient long dreidup cisterns.

One of them, near a terraced courtyard, is the focus for exploring a larger, early industrial area with residences, Meyers says. Evidence from sealed deposits there indicate some ancient inhabitants of Meiron made their livlihood from olive oil, and industry famous in the Talmud.

About 30 per cent of the more than 500 coins recovered this summer in the dig date to the 1st century B.C. Others date from the Roman era on to the time of the Crusades.

"There is no other Jewish village in upper Galilee so undisturbed, so available as Meiron," says Meyers. "No area provides archaeologists and historiants so vivid and dynamic a picture of the ancient world of rabbis.

"It's importance for understanding life during Talmudic times and the background of Jesus' life in Galilee cannot be overestimated despite the reconstruction that needs to be undertaken there," he says.

Septober Festival

The Septober Festival (named that because it takes place during September and October) at Pleasure Island, Carolina Beach, begins this year on Labor Day and continues through October, with activities centered on three day week-ends—Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The eight week festival will feature singing, dancing, golf, fishing, surfing, crafts, golf, auctions and a flea market.

The schedule of events show:

—September 2, a Labor Day kickoff.

—September 6, 7, 8: Beauty contest, gospel sing, square dance and clogging exhibition.

—September 13,14,15: Military Appreciation Days, with a drum and bugle corps, a free street dance, and a display and demonstration of military equipment.

—September 20, 21, 22: Boat and fishing tackle display, antique car show, dune buggy and four-wheel-drive demonstrations, and a fish fry.

—September 27, 28, 29: Pleasure Island Amateur Invitational Golf tournament and a miniature putt-putt event. (Registration and payment of fees required. Trophies and prizes to be awarded).

——October 4, 5, 6: Arts and crafts show, with demonstrations and prizes, baby contest (minimum weight of entrants 200 pounds), a womanless wedding, a dance medley, and a bake and cotton candy sale. A barbeque will be held by the Lions Club at the Blockade Runners of Confederacy Museum.

—October 11, 12, 13: Antique auction, flea market and fish fry.

—October 25, 26, 27: Surfing contest, and the Septober "Buccaneer" Ball.

Also, on November 23, a Fishing Tournament Banquet will be held with trophies and awards to be presented to contestants entering in the period September 2 to November 16.

ECU's Karen Campbell Had Music Scholarship

Karen Campbell, an East Carolina University student, the daughter of Mrs. V. M. Campbell of Belmont, attended the 1974 Eastern Music Festival (EMF) this summer on a scholarship provided by the National Federation of Music Clubs. Funds for the scholarship were matched by EMF, a six-week institute held annually on the Gilford College campus in Greensboro.

Ms. Campbell, a string bass player, studied with EMF principal faculty member Thomas Brennand. Brennand, who performs with the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra during the year, commented that "Karen is a natural musician and is able to learn new things very quickly." She also plays the piano, recorder, and flute.

A graduate of the North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem, Ms. Campbell is a rising sophomore at East Carolina University. While in residence in Greenville, she worked as a disc jockey for WECU Radio. She is also an avid swimmer and served as a lifeguard while at EMF.

At the Festival, Ms. Campbell participated in the student orchestra, rehearsing six days a week and performing weekly.

"The Eastern Music Festival has been the most musically rewarding and intense six weeks of my life as well as very personally fulfilling," said Ms. Campbell.

Artrain To Visit Washington For Five Days

When the Artrain comes to Washington on Friday, September 20 for a five day stay through Tuesday, September 24, it will bring in its wake a whole bevy of local relevant art activities.

Artrain, a traveling art show on wheels, has received enthusiastic welcome and attendance wherever it has traveled. Originally conceived in the state of Michigan to take art to the rural parts of that state, it became so popular that the scope of its travels were extended to include a Rocky Mountain Tour followed by the current Southeastern Tour of which Washington will be the last stop. An expensive proposition, putting Artrain on tour has helped materially in defraying the costs connected with the venture.

A brief survey of what visitors can see in the interior of Artrain are: In the first car, an exhibition, "A Vision of Creativity." A slide show reviews andcompacts history of artistic creativity. In this same car, mirrored chambers enclose art objects from Egyptian, African and Oriental cultures, on loan from the Detroit Institute of the Arts.

"A Vision of Man" is shown in Car two and includes a slide program on the pioneer work of modern art, followed by three dimensional boxes detailing factors of point, plane, color, line, texture and mass.

20th Century painting, sculpture and the crafts will be on display in the third, or gallery car. The works shown in this gallery are on loan from national, regional and local museums and artists.

Next is the studio car where artists from Artrain and local areas will demonstrate various arts and crafts.

Other exhibits and festivities will utilize the space around the train. The Seaboard Coast Line railroad station, which is being remodeled and converted, will also be in use for the five day event.

Considerable coordination for Artrain's visit and connected local activities is required for each place visited. In Washington, those on the committee include Louise Lane and Sue Loy, co-chairpersons; Bruce Beasley, activities; Tom Vann, site coordinator; Mary Alice Chapin, education; Jill High, hostess and guides; Alice Stallings and Kay Currie, publicity.

When the door to Artrain open on Friday, related activities scheduled to be in readiness for the public include:

—Art and Crafts Demonstration on Friday, Saturday and Sunday;

—WITN Art Collection Exhibit, at WITN-television station (across the river in Chocowinity), Monday and Tuesday, from 2 to 5 p.m.;

—Sunday In The Park, Sunday afternoon, 1 to 4 p.m., Stewart Park along the Pamlico River. For this event, plans are to have about 15 performers providing continuous entertainment in song and dance. Also, a chicken dinner on the grounds at $2 per person will be served from noon til 2 p.m.

—Student Art Show, to be held in the old Belk-Tyler Store in downtown Washington.

—Art Game. This exhibit will feature special works by 50 local and regioaal artists.

—Artist-in-Residence. Warren Chamberlain of Farmville, a retired faculty member of the East Carolina University School of Art, will be in Washington during the Artrain visit to give art lessons to children in the public schools and also to give demonstrations at the Artrain site.

Artrain hours in Washington will be from 4 to 9 p.m. Friday; from 10 a.m. til 6 p.m. Saturday; from noon to 8 p.m. Sunday; and from 6 to 9 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday.

The train will be located along Gladden Street between Main and 3rd Streets, two blocks from Bridge Street (which is also U. S. 264, 17 and N. C. 33).

There is no admission charge to see the Artrain exhibits or to watch any of the demonstrations. There will, however, be a donation box at the end of the studio car where persons can make contributions to help defray expenses.

THE ART TRAIN. . .has a red caboose bringing up the rear of the train. This serves as an office for the Artrain staff and for the local community committee.

POTTERY FACILITIES. . .on the Artrain Studio are sufficient to handle demonstrations of pottery making and other art forms with space for eager young spectators to watch the proceedings.

Emily Farnham Reappointed

Dr. Emily Farnham, professor in the School of Art at East Carolina University, has recently been reappointed to the North Carolina Art Commission, governing body of the North Carolina Museum of Art. The reappointment was made by Governor Holshouser, and is for a six-year term to last until July 1, 1980. The commission serves under the direction of Grace J. Rohrer, Secretary of the Department of Cultural Resources.

Other members of the commission are Dr. Joseph C. In The 14th Issue Of Tar River Poets Published At ECU

Sixty Tar Heel Poets In New Volume

Sixty North Carolina Poets (Featuring Robert Waters Gray). Vernon Ward, Editor, Frank W. Motley, Guest Editor. Greenville, N.C., East Carolina University Poetry Forum Press, 1974. 84 pps, illustrated, $2.00

This 14th volume of small poetry books published as part of the continuing "Tar River Poets" series is one of the larger issues and is the most representative to date both in the number of poets and the scope of work contained.

Such broadness of coverage in a collection of poetry could invite disaster. Such is not the case here. While there are indeed a few poets among the 60 who stand several notches above others, there's a liberal sprinkling of fine poems—with even more good lines in otherwise undistinguished poems.

Since the idea of this reviewer is to give the reader a fair notion of what to expect in this new volume, there's no better way to do so than to cite some lines that are evocative of the expected pleasures of poetry.

Robert Waters Gray, this issue's featured poet, is a relatively young (30 years old) poet. A native of Olney, Maryland, Gray now teaches English at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

Represented by ten poems, Gray's work reflects his sensitivity in equating nature with human emotions. "Old footsteps on worn stairs—do not warp wood. . .," and, "The storm will not destruct at sea—it creeps in gentle waves from room to room—until each one is paralyzed." (Both quotes from "Anxiety").

The images here are sure and firm. In a fine short poem, "Comfort," the concluding lines is a simple, unpretentious promise made poignant and innocent by a child-like quality stated in an offer of love: "I offer you nothing but space—to sleep on a windy board—beside me with nothing—but love for a comfort."

Moving to other poets (surely it is coincidence the 60 are equally divided between men and women poets), there's any number of lines, verses, and a few complete poems that move with the rightness of meaning and phrasing.

Consider these: ". . .I knew no father—who said things right—or repaired broken sighs,—and somehow I know—so little for the loss. . ." ("I Knew No Father, Dwight W. Pearce); ". . .Why this absorption—with the contingent?—Why squander time—metering fragments—of other men?. . ." ("Found Poems - V" by Ruby Shackleford); A comic comment on women in our times: "Grandma bought a wig—She put it on her head.—'Lawsy mercy, look at me!—Need a mini-skirt,' she said. . ." ("Highfalutin Grandma" by Mary Lagle); two meaningful lines on anger versus patience and kindness ". . .In the time it takes to kill a man—soft words can mend a broken soul. . ." (untitled poem, Scot Hinson).

And what about these three very brief lines to paint an economical vision of nature? ". . .And star-fed,—the rain drops—to cornstalks,. . ." ("Jack Man—Before Altar" by Hazel Ford Durkee.) Another fine image is contained in the last four lines of Harold Odell Brickell's poem, "Tar River:" ". . .Ugly changeling—Ever seeking to be—Beautiful Pamlico—On the way to the sea."

A simple, gentle philosophy of life is implicit in the second half of Don Spence's "Backward Glances." ". . .Tommorrow, if I forget,—someone will remind me—that a smile—and a tear—and a wish cast to the wind—is worth yesterday—all over again."

These few quoted lines, though revealing something of the level of excellence of many of the poems in Sixty North Carolina Poets, cannot begin to do justice to this little book.

Editor Vernon Ward, in the forward, states his own reaction to the 107 poems published in this anthology, a reaction that will likely be shared by other readers. ". . .for one reason or another," Ward writes, "I like every poem in this book: one for lyrical beauty, another for poignancy; for humor; for plainness; for imagery for idea; for subtle symbolism; for whatever it is that turns human experience into verbal art."

And it is that "whatever it is" factor, the undefinable spark in word and phrasing "that turns human experience into verbal art" that is ultimately the strength of this volume of poetry.

Reading these poems, time and time again the reader will discover passages of deeply felt experience and splendor of imagery that sustains poetry as the purest music of the human imagination.

37th Annual N.C. Art Show Details

A prospectus announcing the 37th Annual North Carolina Artists Exhibition at the North Carolina Museum of Art has been mailed to some 2,000 artists.

The competitive exhibition will be held Nov. 14-Dec. 29, with works to be submitted to the museum for judging between Tuesday, Sept. 10, and Friday, Sept. 20.

Merit awards and purchases will be made.

The merit awards will consist of gold, silver and bronze medals and three honorable mention ribbons.

The North Carolina Art Society and the museum sponsor the exhibition. The Society, North Carolina National Bank and Rauch Industries, Inc., of Gastonia, will offer purchase prizes.

The judges will be: Thomas N. Armstrong III, director, Whitney Museum of American Art, New York; Robert M. Doty, director Akron Art Insitute, Akron, Ohio; and Una Johnson, former curator of prints and drawings, Brooklyn Museum

The competition is open to native North Carolinians, to persons who have lived in the state for 12 months immediately preceding October, 1974, and to non-residents who have lived in North Carolina for a period of at least five years.

Any artists interested in the competition who do not receive the brochure should send inquiries to: N.C. Artists Competition, North Carolina Museum of Art, Raleigh, N.C. 27611.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By LOUISE WILKERSON

INSIDE STORY is the newest report on the scandals of Washington, including both tales of momentous political episodes affecting the highest level of government, and tawdry hotel-room exploits of well-known figures. The author is Brit Hume, the young reporter who helped Jack Anderson to dig out these stories, and who became famous because of an interview with Dita Beard which broke open the ITT case and exposed Mitchell, Kleindienst, etc. Hume tells also of how he got the goods on cartoonist Al Capp, who molested coeds while touring the campuses to lecture on morality, and of Randy Agnew and a male hairdresser. In this entertaining book Hume gives us revealing pictures of Washington personages and the colorful Jack Anderson himself.

Renowned psychic Susy Smith of HOW TO DEVELOP YOUR ESP has written a new book dealing with life after death. Armed with startling evidence and examples of beyond the grave communication the author attempts to explicate the mysteries of the hereafter. There are chapters on astral adventures, deathbed visions, automatic writing and voice phenomena, amplified by authentic case histories. The author works at the Parapsychology Laboratory at Duke University, and has traveled and lectured extensively.

MAGIC, MYTH AND MEDICINE by John Camp is a fascinating book which examines folk medicine from many countries, traces its origins and development and describes its surprising survival into this scientific and computerized age. Believing that disease was a punishment from God for sin, our ancestors tried to circumvent illness by wearing charms, using rites etc. Whatever reason is given for being ill, a vast body of preventive and therapeutic folk medicine has evolved through the centuries. Many of these "cures" have a scientific basis and are worth far more than many people imagine.

The story behind SPINDRIFT a true account of a haunting, by Jan Bryant Bartell, is an eerie one. It started out as a search for an apartment, changed to a ghost hunt, became a deeper spiritual search that led through the occult philosophies and concluded with Jan Bryant Bartell's death a few weeks after she had completed this manuscript, which recounts her experiences. Although it often reads like a Gothic novel, it is the actual account of unbelievably frightening occurrences.

Library Film Program

Two films totaling 24 minutes showing time are on schedule for the inaugural program of Children's Autumn Films to be held in the libraries of Greenville.

The first is a Disney production, A Lady of the Light, the story of a lighthouse keeper with a novel idea on solving the problem of his lonely young daughter who longs to receive mail. In color, the film runs for 19 minutes.

Show times for the children's films are: Carver Library, 4 p.m. Tuesday; Children's Library (basement of Sheppard Library), 4 p.m. Thursday; and Friday, 4 p.m., East Branch Library.

There is no admission charge and all elementary age school children are invited to attend a showing at one of the three libraries.

MISS NORTH CAROLINA — Susan L. Griffin of High Point, N. C. will represent her state in Atlantic City at the Miss America Pageant on Saturday, Sept. 7. North Carolina Television viewers will be able to cheer Susan on when NBC televises the finals in full color on Channels 6-7, at 10 p.m.

High Point Beauty To Represent N.C.

Ask anybody in High Point who their number one gal is these days and, without a moment's hesitation, they'll answer with a tremendous amount of pride, "SUSAN!" Rightly so, because this beautiful blue eyed blonde is the first representative from High Point to be crowned Miss North Carolina.

Susan Lynn Griffin, 22 years old, is a life long resident of High Point and was graduated from High Point Central High School. After graduation she attended Milligan College in Tennessee and she is now a legal secretary for the law firm of Morgan, Byerly, Poat and Herring.

In the talent competition of the Miss North Carolina Pageant, Susan sang the Rodgers and Hart ballard, "With a Song in My Heart," which received a rousing ovation from the crowd packed in Ovens Auditorium in Charlotte. She plans to use her $2,500 in scholarship awards to study voice at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Susan was a voice student of Howard Coble of Wesley Memorial Church in High Point for several years and she has been singing since she was a child. She's performed at many civic meetings in High Point, guest starred at the Miss Goldsboro Pageant and the Miss North Carolina-USA Pageant, a preliminary to the Miss Universe Pageant just one week before she was chosen Miss High Point.

As far as the state-wide pageant was concerned, Susan's only apprehension was about the swimsuit competition, but she attributes that to a woman's natural reluctance to "parade around in a swimsuit."

When asked about the question - answer segment of the Miss America competition where so many of the nation's most striking beauties literally fall intellectually on their flawlessly made-up faces, Susan says, "I just hope they don't get into my feelings about Women's Lib because that question has been so overdone!

"A woman is meant to go along with a man and to help him but not allow him to run over her any more than she would allow another woman to take advantage of her," she says.

New Lincoln Portrayal

Hal Holbrook as "Sandburg's Lincoln" stars in a different and penetrating portrayal of Abraham Lincoln and his often tragic family life in the first of six one-hour Wolper Productions television dramas based on Carl Sandburg's epic biography of Lincoln, Friday, September 6, 10 p.m., on Channel 6-7.

The oft-honored George Schaefer produced and directed the historical dramas over a 51-day shooting schedule that reveal lesser known facets of Lincoln's personality and character gleaned from Sandburg's epic six-volume work.

David L. Wolper, an avid collector of Lincoln memorabilia and television's leading documentatian and producer of historical dramas initiated and guided the project for his Wolper Productions.

The series will be released over a two season period, the sixth segment to be colorcast in April 1976, well in the nation's bicentennial celebration.

The premiere episode, "Mrs. Lincoln's Husband," written by James Prideaux, examines the close-knit relationship of the Lincolns during the White House years.

The script depicts the saddening loss of the Lincoln's, Willie, 11, at a time when the President is aware of an aggravating undercurrent of gossip that his Southern-born wife, Mary, is leaking military information to the Confederacy. Her son's death and snubs and vicious rumors challenging her loyalty trigger an emotional upheaval. And when Lincoln learns that a Senate committee is condicting secret hearings into his wife's extravagance and reportedly treasonous conduct, he bristles with anger. He pays a surprise visit to the committee to finesse a possible political attack on his bereaved wife.

The scripts avoid re-enactment of the more familiar events of Lincoln's career—the debates with Stephen Douglas, the Gettysburg Address, the assassination at Ford Theatre—but will probe behind the scenes, says Wolper, adding:

"Lincoln the Giant enthralls and fascinates us.

LIFELIKE LINCOLN—Hal Holbrook stars as Abraham Lincoln in "Mrs. Lincoln's Husband", the first of six specials on "Sandburg's Lincoln" to be colorcast on NBC-TV Friday, Sept. 6 (10-11 p.m.). The specials will be presented over a two-year period in celebration of America's Bicentennial.

20 Years Of Bert Parks

It has been two decades since Bert Parks introduced the classic "There She Is . . . Miss America", yet he can remember his first pageant vividly. "I was hired originally on a one year contract," he recalls, "I must be doing something right, because here I am 20 years later back in Convention Hall."

Bert wholeheartedly enjoys his close identification with the Miss America telecast, which is consistently one of the most widely viewed specials of the year.

"I can't remember anyone else in television who has been fortunate enough to have had a 20-year-run in any other special event," says Bert. "I am pleased that the Miss America Executive Committee has entrusted me with this American tradition for all these years."

A stroll with Bert . . . whether it is in New York, Chicago, Miami or San Francisco . . . is an experience. People shout greetings to him as if he were an old friend while others address him good-humoredly as "Mr. America."

Bert explains the friendly greetings this way: "I've been on television since 1948 with 'Stop the Music.' It would be very difficult for anyone not to be exposed to me at some point in their life."

DECORAMA

By:

R.H. McLawhorn, Jr. — Ray Rouse

COLOR

Color is the magic that can make a room yours. It can express your exuberance or your serenity, say that you are lively and lighthearted or quiet and dignified. It can also solve a number of plain, ordinary decorating problems. It can make a small room look larger, cover up architectural defects, make a tired old room look fresh and new again. It's the best and cheapest decorating tool ever invented, but it's not a foolproof bonanza. You have to know how to make the most of it.

You can add color to your home with carpet from our wide variety. You are bound to find many to suit your decor, whether it is for home or business. Eastern Carpet Inc., 602 West Greenville Blvd., Greenville. 756-1944. "Where There's Always A Sale." "Carpet is our Business, Not a Hobby."

LED TO TV

Sally Stark of "Love of Life" originated the role of Joan in the off-Broadway musical "Dames at Sea" with Bernadette Peters. It led to her television role.

A VERY MODERN STORY—Ali MacGraw and Richard Benjamin are young lovers in a very modern love story in "Goodbye Columbus," the film version of Phillip Roth's novel coming to television on the "ABC Sunday Night Movie," September 1, (8:30-10:30 p.m.)

'Goodbye, Columbus' Airs On Television Sunday Evening

"Goodbye, Columbus", the unusual contemporary love story that introduced Richard Benjamin and Ali MacGraw to the screen, will be shown on "The ABC Sunday Night Movie" Sunday, September 1 (8:30-10:30 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12.

Based on Philip Roth's best - selling novella, "Goodbye, Columbus" also stars Jack Klugman and Nan Martin, and introduces Michael Meyers.

Critics hailed the arrival of the two stars: Judith Crist called Benjamin "a young man with wit and intelligence and sense of self-appraisal;" Charles Champlin of the LA Times referred to Miss MacGraw as "one of the most welcome newcomers in a long time." (Michael Meyers, who has chosen to concentrate on his work as a doctor rather than make another movie, has recently re-emerged as a sparkling storyteller on ABC's "Jack Parr Tonight.")

In "Goodbye, Columbus" Neil (Benjamin) a young librarian with no discernible ambition, meets the beautiful Brenda Patimkin (Miss MacGraw) at a country club and develops an ambition — her.

Fortunately for him, she is interested, too, and after their first date, introduces him to her brother Ron (Meyers) and her parents (Klugman and Miss Martin) at a dinner in their home. Her mother is also interested in the relationship, but for a different reason; she's convinced Neil is not worthy of her daughter.

Neil and Brenda grow closer together — she confesses that she could fall in love with him — and, when they leave a very dull party, their affair — at her suggestion — becomes intimate.

Rock Hudson A 'Bad Guy'

The handsome television star was attired for his role as charming bad guy Claudio Manton, a character he played in a segment last season. Hudson reprises the role in the "Cross and Double Cross" segment of the "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie" colorcast of Sunday, Sept. 1 (8:30-10:30 p.m.) on NBC.

In the two-hour drama, Commissioner McMillan assumes Manton's identity to learn about the arrival of an international gold shipment from a seductive villainess, played by Rhonda Fleming.

Nancy Yells At Her 850 Plants

Nancy Walker, the petite actress who plays Mildred, the wisecracking maid on NBC Television Network's "McMillan & Wife" series, has found a successful method to make plants grow.

At her Studio City home in suburban Los Angeles, Miss Walker has two hillsides with 850 plants that she put into the ground with her own hands.

When not in New York visiting her daughter or doing commercials or "McMillan & Wife," she finds a great deal of joy in gardening. But there was a time when her plants caused her a lot of frustration.

In the beginning she weeded and watered the plants, and for weeks nothing happened.

"One day I went out there and hollered my head off," she recalled. "My husband thought I had lost my mind. I said things like, 'You eat like kings, you get the best of care and what are you doing for me?'"

Nancy's rampage paid off; three days later plants were popping up all over the place.

"I still yell at them," she admitted. "I do it because I think a lot of plants take you for granted."

But friends, as well as her husband, David Craig, will tell you, any yelling the affable actress does is only done to plants.

TASTES ALIKE

Greer Garson, who played Queen Mary, mother of King Edward VIII and his successor, King George VI, on the "Hallmark Hall of Fame" special, "Crown Matrimonial," once met King George. "He said his favorite Greer Garson movie was 'Random Harvest.' It's mine, too," she said.

Oakland's Double 'O' Is The Only Original

Since the very first Oakland Raider football game 15 years ago, Jim Otto has been proudly wearing his double "O" jersey number. He is the Oakland offensive team captain and the only remaining original Raider.

In all the years of the AFL, Jim Otto was the only man to have ever been chosen all-league center. With that distinction, it was no great surprise that Otto was selected on the Hall of Fame's AFL All-Star Team of the Decade.

Otto's value to the Raiders goes far beyond being an all Pro time and time again. A player's worth is not only in his talent, but in his ability to resist injury and play often. There are many all Pros who look good on paper but actually contribute little to the team effort because of the games they miss. This is not the case with Jim Otto, who has now started 196 consecutive games and shares the NFL record with teammate George Glanda.

Otto is a dedicated team player with tremendous pride in himself and the Oakland Raiders. In looking at the Miami Dolphins, Otto believes they won the Super Bowl twice because the players were dedicated and disciplined.

"The team that wins the most is a team who thinks they are all equal and they all work together for means to an end. That's the Super Bowl victory at the end of the season," Jim said.

When questioned about the Oakland Raiders as a unit, he responded, "Actually I'm very happy with my teammates. We are a winning team because of the type of people we have playing for us. I feel the reason we haven't won the big one was through freak mistakes and fluke things that have happened."

"I'm kind of straight," replied Jim. "I'm just a little different type person, that's all.

"There is a gap between myself and some of the younger players. But as far as my playing ability is concerned, I don't feel there is any gap at all.

"When I sit down with some of my teammates and talk, there is definitely a gap. I can see it, and I'm sure they are aware of it because of the way I am. They'll tease me about it because of my pride in the club and my pride in my uniform.

"For instance, this last Christmas, I had a picture taken with my family for a Christmas card. It was a picture of me in my uniform, my son in a uniform exactly like mine, my wife holding a Raiders pennant and my daughter holding her pompom. She's a cheerleader.

"I just explained to them that I'm proud of my uniform and a lot of my friends don't have a picture of me in my uniform. This was an opportunity, not only to give them a picture of me in my uniform but also a Christmas card of my entire family.

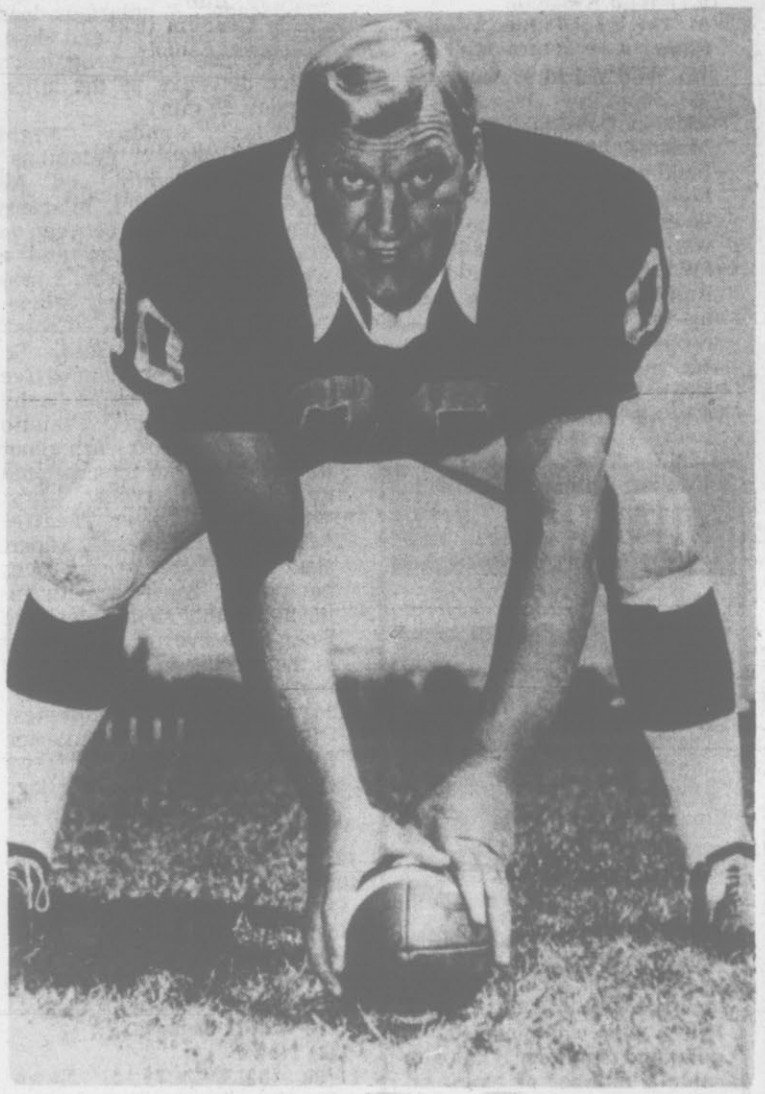
Iron Man Otto, who has been tagged a living legend of pro football linemen, is getting geared up for another campaign in the trenches.

"I'm ready to play," Jim proclaimed. "I feel I can make it this year and I feel the Raiders have an outstanding chance of going all the way."



Jim Otto, All Pro Center and Offensive Captain for the Oakland Raiders, will lead the Raiders against the San Francisco 49ers. The game will be broadcast from Candlestick Park in San Francisco, Monday evening, September 2, at 9 p.m. on ABC-TV.

A lower price. $2995*.

That's right. This is the Mazda that got 31.3 mpg in a cross-country test certified by the U.S. Auto Club. We couldn't think of anything to add to it, for it already comes with so many "extras" as standard equipment. So we lowered the price $131. It was a great buy before. Now, it just might be the best buy of the year.

Speculate On Tale Of 'Mrs. Sundance'

"A reward of $10,000 in Gold Coin Will Be Paid by the U.S. Government for the Arrest and Detention of Etta Place, Alias Etta Johnson, Alias Mrs. Sundance - Wanted for Robbery, Treason and Other Acts against the Peace and Dignity of the United States."

Thus read the wanted posters on post office walls across the country in 1908.

No one actually knows what happened to Etta Place, the widow of the Sundance Kid. The books of the Pinkerton Detective Agency are still open on the case, and it is intriguing to those interested in western lore to speculate about Etta. Such a speculation is dramatized in "Mrs. Sundance," airing on the ABC Television Network's Tuesday Movie of the Week, with Elizabeth Montgomery playing the title role.

20th Century-Fox Television producer Stan Hough, a western buff, assigned Christopher Knopf to write a screenplay and their combined efforts will be seen TUESDAY, SEPT. 3 (8:30-10 p.m.).

Etta Place was a teacher when she met the Sundance Kid, as told in the hit motion picture, "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid," which starred Paul Newman and Robert Redford as the wanted outlaws. They fled to Bolivia, where the pair was killed by the Bolivian constabulary and Etta, as far as can be determined, was never heard of again.

Avers Stewart Is 'Greatest'

"It's like going to school every day."

That was the reaction of Andrew Prine to his first opportunity to work with veteran star James Stewart in an episode of "Hawkins" ("Candidate for Murder,") airing SEPT. 3 on CBS.

"Stewart has to be the greatest actor alive today," Prine enthused. "He can do it all — heavy drama, comedy, westerns, and he never wastes a word or a gesture."

Prine, a generation younger than Stewart, is no slouch as an actor himself. He has spent most of the last two years in Spain making movies and returns there this spring to star in a syndicated western series, "Tenderfoot," which he owns a piece of, along with producer - director John Peyser.

EARLY STARTER

James MacArthur of "Hawaii Five-O" made his acting debut at 8, worked regularly in summer stock thereafter, but didn't regard acting as a future career until 16.

Martin, Lewis In Old Comedy

Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis, when they were still a young comedy team without separate careers, star in "Sailor Beware," which will be presented as the "CBS Tuesday Late Movie," September 3, (11:30-1:30), on Channel 9-11.

The 1952 movie also features the then-unknown Vince Edwards.

When the movie first opened, the New York Times critic noted: "Whatever it is that Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis have that makes people howl with laughter and toss with rocking frenzy in their chairs, there must be plenty of it in their new picture. This coolly objective reviewer is duty bound to report that people were doing plenty of both."

In "Sailor Beware," Dean and Jerry play two misfit midshipmen, with Jerry passing a physical despite the fact that his blood is clear and his heartbeat doesn't register. (He also proves his unseaworthiness when he pulls the plug from the bottom of a boat when told to bail it out, and sits on top of a submerging submarine.)

Dean does his best to help his hopeless shipmate although songs and lovely ladies keep distracting him, and the only real loser is the United States Navy.

All-Star Game Pact Signed

The National Broadcasting Company has entered into a three-year agreement for television coverage of college football's East-West All-Star Game, it was announced jointly today by Carl Lindemann Jr., Vice President, Sports, NBC-TV, and Robert W. Murphy Jr., Executive Director of the East-West All-Star Game.

The Golden Anniversary contest in this long-standing collegiate football series, which began in 1925, will be played Saturday, Dec. 28, at Stanford University Stadium and colorcast at 3:30 p.m.

RICHARD BURTON stars as a treacherous crook who executes a masterful heist and then tries to kill one of his henchmen, in "Villain" to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Thursday Night Movies" Sept. 5 (9-11 p.m.) in color on CBS-TV.

Trapped Man Is Movie's Story

A man trapped after hours in a department store that is patrolled by vicious dogs must devise ingenious ways to outwit them and make his way to safety in "Trapped," the "Wednesday Movie of the Week," September 4, (8:30-10 p.m.), on Channel 3-5-12.

James Brolin, who plays Dr. Kiley on ABC's "Marcus Welby, M.D.," stars as Chuck Brenner, the man trapped in the store, with Susan Clark as his ex-wife, Elaine, and Earl Holliman as her new husband, David Moore. Robert Hooks plays Sgt. Connaught, a police officer whose help is sought in finding Chuck, and Tammy Harrington plays Carrie, the daughter of Chuck and Elaine.

After telling Elaine and Carrie that he'll meet them at the airport after he buys a doll for the girl, Chuck is mugged and left unconscious in a department store rest room. When he comes to, he discovers that the place is closed and guarded by trained killer dogs. Once the dogs catch Chuck's scent he becomes their prey.

Trilogy Of Comedy Specials

Dick Sargent and Julie Newmar, Barry Nelson and Barbara Rush, and Jack Cassidy and Julie Sommars star in three separate stories—based on envy, lust and sloth—constituting a 90-minute comedy special, "Fools, Females and Fun," to be colorcast on Wednesday, Sept. 4 (8-9:30 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

First of the trilogy is "What About That One?", in which Sargent is an account executive who wants everything a co-executive seems to have, including his top client, the beautiful Carla (Miss Newmar). Brooke Bundy co-stars as his wife, and Robert Hogan is "J.C.," the co-executive.

"Is There A Doctor in the House?" stars Nelson as the middle-aged Dr. David and Miss Rush as his ambitious, do-gooder wife, Karen, who is involved with raising funds for a research center to be headed by Dr. Steven (Sam Melville). During a weekend ski trip with Dr. Steven and his wife, Susan (Jaclyn Smith), Dr. David seems to have a perfect rendezvous worked out for him and Susan when Dr. Steven and Karen must return to town. But little doesn Dr. David know that Dr. Steven and Karen have a scheme of their own.

In the final comedy, "I've Gotta Be Me," Cassidy stars as a Las Vegas singer who takes a chorus girl (Miss Sommars) on a jaunt in his expensive car to Palm Springs.

'Darrow' Hooked Henry

"I fell in love with the play," said Henry Fonda. "I had to do it. Darrow is a great character, and it's a challenge to do a play about a man as fascinating as that."

That's the simple reason why Fonda accepted the role which he made famous on stage and which now comes to television — when "IBM Presents Clarence Darrow," is colorcast next week on Wednesday evening, September 4, (9:30-11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

The play came to Fonda by mail.

"I didn't know about the project," he said. "The script came un-announced in the mail. It spans 30 years in Darrow's life. It captivated me. I had to go with it."

A few days later he called producers Mike Merrick and Don Gregory and said, "You've got me."

Normally a producer or writer will submit properties through an actor's agent, but Merrick and Gregory chanced the direct approach.

Such an approach might have been better on at least one occasion in Fonda's career. This was in connection with Edward Albee's "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?"

"He wanted you to do this play but we turned it down," an agent had told Fonda. "It'll never run. There's nothing to it except a husband and wife fighting each other."

Albee later indicated he had written the play with Fonda in mind. Fonda was as upset as Albee over the course of events.

The television version of "Clarence Darrow" is a bit shorter than the stage play, running 78 minutes instead of 100. The settings are the same with one difference: the stage is six feet longer.

"'Clarence Darrow' is a play, not a reading or a concert," said Fonda. "It is written as a dialogue, not a monologue." In the play, Darrow addresses different individuals who are not seen or heard

FONDA AS DARROW—Henry Fonda brings his highly praised stage performance as famed trial lawyer Clarence Darrow to television when he stars in the 90-minute special, "IBM Presents Clarence Darrow" on Wednesday, Sept. 4 (9:30-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

Memories Of A Trip ToRussia

When my husband and I left last March for the Soviet Union to spend six weeks filming the Bell System Family Theatre's "Peggy Fleming Visits The Soviet Union" special, we had no idea what we were getting into. We were ready for cold weather, which was just as well, since temperatures frequently dropped as low as thirty below zero, and we were prepared for the language barrier — in fact, Greg, my husband, had taken a two-week crash course in Russian — but there were a lot of things we simply couldn't anticipate.

When "Peggy Fleming Visits The Soviet Union" encores on Thursday, Sept. 5, (8-9), on Channel 6-7, you'll see an elaborate skating number on the frozen Bay of Finland. What you won't see or hear is cracking ice. Despite the fact that it was so cold out there I shouted involuntarily every time I had to take my coats off to skate, the ice was melting as a result of a warm snap that had preceded us by a few days. We had trucks and buses full of people half a mile out on the ice, and we skated, smiling bravely, to the accompaniment of groans and cracks from the ice beneath us. If we look a little tense from time to time, you'll know why.

SKATING IN RUSSIA—Peggy Fleming stars in the "Bell System Family Theatre" special, "Peggy Fleming Visits the Soviet Union," which was filmed entirely in the U.S.S.R. with several popular Russian performers. It will be colorcast on Thursday, Sept. 5 (8-9 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

I was afraid we were walking into another disaster when it came time to film with the Moscow Ice Ballet. I had only one day to prepare. There were few rehearsals. I didn't really have time to meet the members of the Ballet until the evening of the performance.

To make matters worse, their rink was small, and the lighting was much different, making it difficult for me to "read" the surface of the ice.

But the members of the Ballet came to the rescue. They all knew me from my Olympic performances. They were so friendly and helpful, and made me so welcome, that I lost all my fear right away. When we began to skate together, it was just like working with old friends.

But despite cracking ice, strange rinks, and lots of falls from surfaces that were really too rough to skate on, my most vivid memory of the trip is one of smiling faces — Russian people who remembered me from the Olympics, and went out of their way to make me feel at home. The weather may have been cold, but my memories of Russia are warm indeed. Without the warmth and cooperation of the Russian people, "Peggy Fleming Visits The Soviet Union" could never have come to be.

A 2-Part Toma Presentation

Assuming the identity of a well-known stunt driver with a criminal record, Dave Toma becomes the "wheel man" for a sophisticated gang planning a multi-million-dollar bank robbery in Part I of "A Time and Place Unknown," first episode of a two-part action-suspense drama on the "Toma," Thursday, September 5 (10-11 p.m.). Part II will air Friday, September 6 (10-11 p.m.).

When hoodlum stunt driver Jim Androtti is killed Dave and Inspector Spooner succeed in keeping his death a secret, hoping that the gang leader, Ralph Connell, who has lost his driver, will attempt to enlist Androtti. The plot works.

Ex-Golddigger In Serial Role

Lee Crawford, once a dancer with "The Golddiggers," those gorgeous gals who charmed their way past Dean Martin into their own show, is now one of the popular actresses appearing regularly in "The Young and the Restless." This highly successful daytime serial is seen Monday thru Friday, 12 to 12:30.

Miss Crawford portrays Sally McGuire, the hostess-owner of Pierre's, a nightclub - restaurant that is the regular gathering spot for other series characters.

John Davidson Is 'Palladium' Host

"The Hollywood Palladium," a variety event special spotlighting John Davidson as host-anchorman, will be colorcast on NBC-TV Friday, September 6 (9-10 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

There will be 15 top acts, utilizing nine different stages at the famed Hollywood Palladium. In addition to Davidson, the acts include Arturo, Lizi and Charley Charles, Al Green, Gabriel Kaplan, Krasavina and Fedin, The Lockers, Loggins and Messina, The Pointer Sisters, Sly and the Family Stone, The Smothers Brothers, Swing, Richard Thomas, The Untouchables, and Mark Wilson. The acts were taped using the full 360-degree scope of the Palladium, before an audience of 800. Ed Begley Jr. and Valri Bromfield serve as floor reporters.

Loggins and Messina offer "Listen to a Country Song," The Smothers Brothers perform "Poor Wandering One," by Gilbert and Sullivan, Tom offers "Dueling Banjos," and Davidson sings "I Won't Last a Day Without You."

Next is the Groucho Marx tribute. The Lockers then do a specialty dance number, "Jungle Boogie," magician Mark Wilson presents the cosmic ray illusion, and Richard Thomas (star of "The Waltons") recites "Casey at the Bat," with The Lockers doing a dance interpretation of the baseball classic.

Krasavina and Fedin, in their first professional appearance since leaving the U.S.S.R., do one of their clown acts (they were formerly with the Moscow Circus), followed by Al Green singing "Still in Love" and "Call Me."

A new dance group, Swing, dressed and dancing in the style of the big-band era, perform "Opus One." The show concludes with unicyclists Lizi and Charley Charles doing their act, as Sly and the Family Stone offer "Shadrack" and "I Want to Take You Higher and Higher."

Marvin Gaye's One-Man Show

Marvin Gaye will be presented in a one-man show on "The Midnight Special" (1-2:30 a.m., in color), following the Friday, Sept. 6, presentation of "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson."

Gaye, one of Motown Records' most popular recording artists, is making his first appearance on NBC-TV's late-night music series.

Segments of the 90-minute program were taped at a concert in Braves Stadium before 35,000 people in Atlanta, Ga., and at Gaye's home in Washington, D.C.

Focus On Paramedics

"GO" will start is second season on NBC-TV with a program about the work of the paramedics in the Los Angeles Fire Department Saturday, September 7 (12:30-1 p.m.). The series is aimed at 8-to 14-year-olds, but has been recommended by critics for the whole family audience.

Hosts for the opening show are Randolph Mantooth and Kevin Tighe, who star as paramedics in the NBC-TV action series, "Emergency!" They explain the operation of the paramedic units and guide viewers as actual paramedics do their work. Fireman-paramedics Al Knight and Ed McFall are shown as they go about both of their duties.

The firefighting and rescue equipment are explained as they are used during a fire. Also, in simulated sequences, paramedics show how they attend a heart attack victim, and a boy injured while riding a bicycle.

The show was taped by the PCP-90 mobile tape cameras in Los Angeles. Rift Fournier was producer-director-writer.

FORMER PILOT

William Conrad, who plays the title role in "Cannon" was a fighter pilot in World War II.

Dickens Classic Slated

Four acclaimed British performers—Margaret Leighton, Robert Morley, Anthony Quayle and Andrew Ray—will have key roles in "Great Expectations," the two-hour special based on the Charles Dickens classic which will be colorcast on the NBC Television Network during the 1974-75 season.

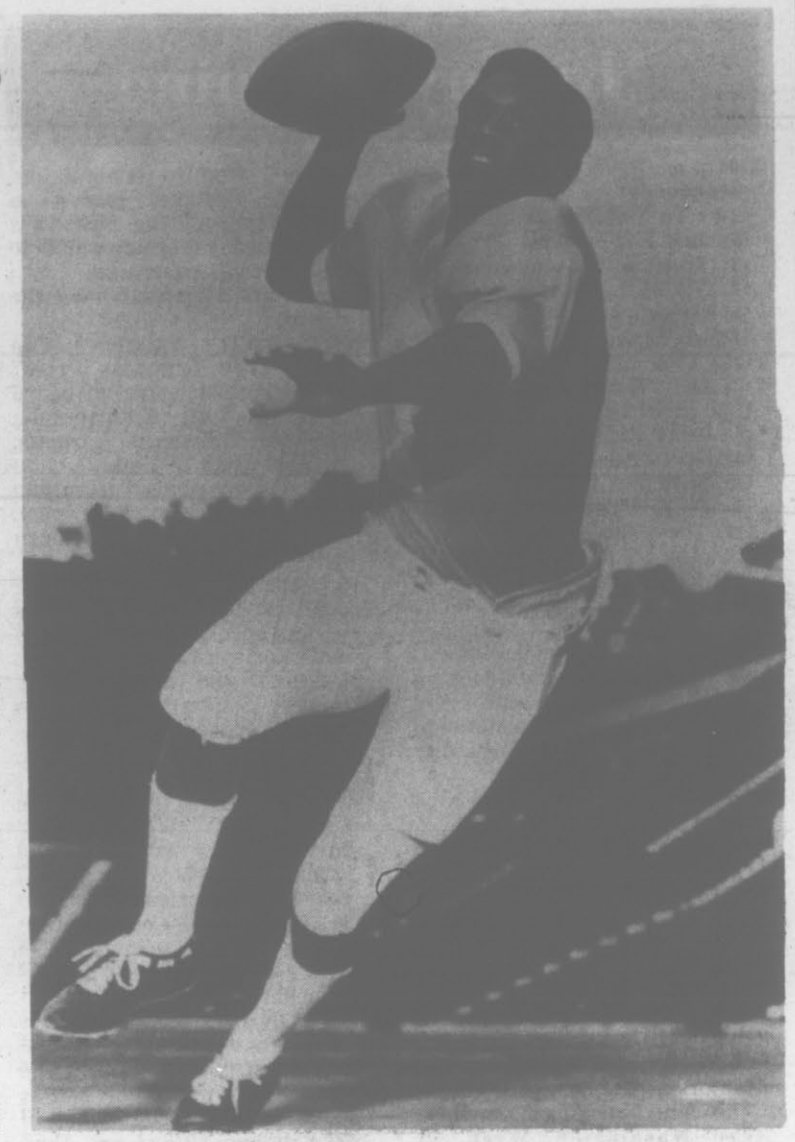
Academy Award winner Freddie Young will be director of cinematography for this "Bell System Family Theatre" drama with music starring Michael York, Sarah Miles and James Mason. Robert Fryer is the producer; Joseph Hardy, the director.

Miss Leighton is to appear as Miss Havisham, the eccentric, lonely lady who can never forget being jilted at the altar. She teachers her lovely ward Estella (Miss Miles) to break men's hearts.

Morley will portray Uncle Pumblechook, a prosperious friend of the family who constantly offers platitudinous advice during the childhood of the orphaned Pip (York).

Quayle is cast as Mr. Jaggers, a lawyer complyed by the convict Magwitch (Mason) to provide for Pip's future.

Ray will play Herbert Pocket, related to Miss Havisham, who becomes Pip's roommate in London and is eventally helped by Pip.



CONDREDGE HOLLOWAY, The Artful Dodger of college football, moves into his senior season with firmly established credentials as one of the nation's outstanding quarterbacks and a bona fide Heisman candidate. He will lead the Tennessee Vols and their new veer offense against the Bruins of UCLA Saturday, Saturday, Sept. 7, at 4:00 p.m. on ABC-TV.

Holloway To Show His Stuff

Tagged the most exciting quarterback since Fran Tarkenton to play in the Southeastern Conference, Condredge Holloway will launch what should be his greatest season, Saturday, September 7, when the college football season gest underway. Holloway will lead the Volunteers of Tennessee against the Bruins of UCLA on ABC-TV at 4 p.m.

Tennessee will be unveiling their new offense, the veer, against the Californians. The Veer's execution will rest largely on the multiple talents of Condredge Holloway, whose sure instincts complement his skills as a runner and passer.

Statistically, Holloway's figures add up to impressive evidence that he richly earned the Southeastern Conference all-star quarterback slot. He completed most of his passes, some of which went for touchdowns and only a minute percentage fell into enemy hands.

Alabama's Paul Bear Bryant declared that Holloway "has more moves and is harder to get hold of than any back I ever saw."

To really understand the impact of Holloway on UT Football, you need to see him in action. But even the viewing of fantastic plays and unbelievable maneuvers paints a shallow picture of Holloway's true value to the Tennessee football team. It makes no allowance for the intangibles of confidence and leadership he provides. This ability to rally his team's forces under intense pressure is a rare quality possessed by only a handful of athletes, and it is the one characteristic that sets them apart from all the others. Condredge Holloway has it in abundance.

Archie's Gang In New Roles

Those popular characters Archie, Jughead, Reggie, Vernoica and the rest of the kids return in a half-hour innovative look at American history on Saturday September 7 (12-12:30) on Channel 9-11.

Archie and his friends, as part of the series, don accountrements and trappings of the period and describe and highlight outstanding historical events in which children played or could have played a significant role. Among other objectives are to show the need to continued reaching for democratic ideals and the need to protect individual rights and freedom of all. Musical numbers from "Yankee Doodle Dandy" to original compositions of relevant value will be presented each week. "U.S. of Archie" is a Filmation Associates production.

MUSICAL TEAM

Two of the most illustrious names in modern music have teamed up to provide the original lyrics and score for "Give Me Liberty." Hal David has written the words establishing the program's theme and Michael LeGrand has scored the film.

Camera To Report On America's Cup

"America's Cup 1974: The Grandest Prize," A CBS Television Network special featuring exclusive on-board coverage of Courageous, Mariner, Valiant and Intrepid in this year's highly competitive Amrica's Cup siling trails off the coast of Newport, R. I., to select the American defender, will be presented Friday, September 6 (9-10 p.m.).

The America's Cub racing takes place all summer, not only to select an American defender but a foreign challenger as well, leading up to a sail-off between the two top boats. "Ameica's Cup 1974: The Grandest Prize" is a preview of that sail-off, the story of the fierce competition and the final selection of the superior contestants.

This year, the foreign challenge is perhaps the best-planned in America's Cup history. The Australians have arrived with two 12-meter boats, the aluminum-hulled Southern Cross and Gretel II, and a crew of 40 which has been training for over a year in Perth, Australia. The French sponsoring the boat France, have a lean, tough crew that has been racing off the south of France for much of the last two years.

Four top American skippers, featuring on the broadcast, are vying for the right to defend the America's Cup. They are Bob Bavier, epitome of the Eastern yachting establishment, aboard courageous; Gerry Driscoll, a Californian determined to beat the Easterners at the Helm of Intrepid, twice defender of the America's Club; George Hinman, veteran ocean racer of Valiant, who has been involved in the America's Cub either as skipper or on the selection committee since 1958; and Ted Turner, skipper of Mariner, a brash young 35-year-old helsman.

In "America's Cup 1974: The Grandest Prize," viewers will be "on board" Courageous, Mariner, Valiant and Intrepid in actual competition, and will be eyewitness to the drama of tense starts, foul-ups, split-second timing, brilliant maneuvering and disasters.

David's Day At 'Expo'

The guiding star of North Carolina State University basketball fortunes, David Thompson, will lead the United States College All Stars against the USSR's National team at 2-4 p.m.

Saturday, September 7 on the ABC Wide World of Sports.

Having made everybody's All American team in both his sophomore and junior years, Thompson is considered by many (such as Coach Fred Schalus of Purdue) one of the ten best basketball players in the world, professionals included. He does it all: consistent shooter, expert ball-handler, superb passer, and amazing leaper with the moves of a belly dancer. He plays defense as well as he plays offense. Few will forget Thompson's incredible antics on defense in the NCAA semi-finals game against UCLA.

Thompson could have signed a seven figure pro contract at the end of his sophomore season; but like Bill Walton of UCLA, he chose to return and seek a NCAA title. After State won the NCAA Championship in March, sports-writers were quick to start predicting Thompson's move to play for pay. They believed Thompson's mission at State had been completed and that there are enough differences between Thompson's background and Walton's to assure that both pro basketball and the money it offers would mean more to the North Carolinian than the Uclan. Whereas Walton being from an upper middle class family in San Diego had considered foregoing the pro game for more idealistic aims; Thompson grew up in rural North Carolina poverty and should be eager to be on the payroll.

These sportswriters were dead wrong, because they don't know the real David Thompson. Although Thompson was raised in poverty at the foot of the Appalachian mountains near Shelby, he is a young man rich in character. He feels a tremendous obligation to the N. C. State fans which goes back to State's one-year probation for recruiting violations involving him. He felt he was subjected to what he called, "embarrassing and unjust criticism."

At the top of the door in his room as a headline clipping out of the campus newspaper, the "Technicians," which reads, STATE PLACED ON PROBATION FOR RECRUITING VIOLATIONS.

"Everytime I walk through that door" said Thompson, "it is a reminder for me to play that much harder everytime I take the court. . . I owe that to the fans."

Following a State victory more than 200 fans waited patiently outside the door in freezing weather for a chance to get Dave's autograph.

NCSU LEADER — North Carolina State's incredible David Thompson will lead the United States College All Stars against the U.S.S.R. national team Saturday, September 7, at 2 p.m. on ABC's Wide World of Sports. The game will be televised live from Expo'74.

Music Variety Special

Andy Williams will star in a one-hour music-variety special emphasizing the very latest happenings in the entertainment world and related areas — to be colorcast on Saturday, September 7 (9-10 p.m.) on Channel 6-7. The special will be a pilot for consideration as a possible NBC-TV series.

The program will originate from the Uris Theatre in New York City before an audience of over 2,000.

In addition to hosting the show, Williams will sing several songs and introduce various major acts which will reflect the very latest that is happening on the entertainment [illegible] country.

Andy's association with NBC-TV began in 1962 when he signed to do the weekly "Andy Williams Show" which flourished for five years. The series won a total of four Emmys before it ended in May, 1967.

Andy continued as an NBC-TV star during the following years with a series of top-rated specials. He also continued making records, winning a total of 17 gold albums which are awarded for sales of a million dollars or more.

Williams began his career together with his three brothers who were molded into a singing group by their father in Wall Lake, Iowa. They soon had their own radio show in Des Moines, Chicago and Cincinnati.

The success of the Williams Brothers — Bob, Dick, Don and Andy — continued to grow when the family moved to Los Angeles. In 1946 the brothers teamed with Kay Thompson to form what was to become one of the most successful nightclub acts in all of show business.

GOING TO THE PAGEANT — Rebecca Ann King, Miss America of 1974, will perform as well as crown her successor, and Bert Parks, for the 20th successive year, will be the master of ceremonies at the annual Miss America Pageant, to be colorcast live from Atlantic City, N. J., Saturday, Sept. 7 (10 p.m. to 12 midnight) on NBC-TV.

Phyllis, Terry Will Co-Host

Phyllis George, Miss America of 1971, and Terry Meeuwsen, Miss America of 1973, will be the co-hosts of the 54th annual Miss America Pageant to be colorcast live from Atlantic City, N. J., from 10 p.m. to midnight on Saturday evening, September 7, on Channel 6-7.

They will team up with Bert Parks, previously announced, who will serve as master of ceremonies of the event from Convention Hall for the 20th consecutive year.

Lucille Ball Looking To Specials Next Season

Lucille Ball, the animated redhead with a unique knack for reducing the most sober situations into hilarious shambles, will not return this season in her half-hour television series, "Here's Lucy." Her genius, however, will not be lost to television, since she has agreed to star in a number of specials on CBS-TV.

In announcing her plans for next season, Miss Ball said, "I am extremely happy to continue my long and successful association with CBS. I always like a change of pace, and doing specials next season will give me a chance to try some exciting new ideas I've been working on for some time."

Miss Ball, now a colorfully wrapped bundle of energy, was unable to walk for three years. She lost her first chance at a career and had to start over from scratch when she learned to walk again. Shortly after she started modeling in New York, she contracted pneumonia with severe complications and was bedridden for eight months. It took three years of convalescing before she regained complete control of her legs.

Ironically, in 1941, Miss Ball got her first big Hollywood break playing a showgirl who became paraylzed in "The Big Street," adapted from a Damon Runyon story.

Miss Ball, born in Jamestown, N. Y., is the daughter of a mining engineer and her mother was a concert pianist. She left home when she was 15 and enrolled in a New York dramatic school where she was told she had no future in show business.

Taking the challenge, Miss Ball went out on her own and landed a chorus job in the road company production of Ziegfeld's Rio Rita." She was fired after five weeks, got and lost three more chorus jobs, then turned to modeling. Then came the near fatal bout with pneumonia.

Nearly four years later, Miss Ball decided to take another crack at modeling, this time with more success. Magazine and billboard advertisements attracted Eddie Cantor's attention and he gave Miss Ball her first Hollywood role in his "Roman Scandals."

For awhile she did bit parts at Columbia and Paramount, finally getting an RKO contract and a substantial role in "Roberta."

Arnaz and Miss Ball formed Desilu Productions, Inc., in 1950 to handle their joint business ventures.

On July 17, 1951, just before the debut of the "I Love Lucy" series, the couple had their first child, a daughter, Lucie Desiree. Their second, a son, Desi IV, was born Jan. 19, 1953.

The "I Love Lucy" series completed filming in 1957, after which Miss Ball and Arnaz made a limited number of special one-hour shows which were broadcast through 1959.

Miss Ball married comedian Gary Morton on Nov. 19, 1961, and they live in Beverly Hills.

Our Story: PRINCE ARN RETURNS FROM HIS LONG ABSENCE AND THE ROYAL FAMILY OF THULE ARE ALL TOGETHER ONCE MORE. ARN TELLS OF HIS ADVENTURES, AND VAL APPROVES HIS SON'S SELF-RELIANCE. ALETA WORRIES ABOUT HIS RECKLESSNESS, WHILE GALAN SO ADMIRES HIS BROTHER.....

.....THAT HE, TOO, SALLIES FORTH IN SEARCH OF ADVENTURE, GETS LOST AND HAS TO BE TRACKED DOWN WITH THE HOUNDS.

ARN AND LYDIA HAVE TO MAKE UP FOR THEIR LONG SEPARATION AND SPEND ENTIRE DAYS TOGETHER. THEY BOTHER NO ONE.

NOT SO THE TWINS.... THEY TRY TO TURN ARN'S HOME-COMING INTO A LONG MISCHIEVOUS HOLIDAY, BUT ARE SENT BACK TO THEIR STUDIES.

IT IS A TIME OF PEACE AND PLENTY IN THE KINGDOM OF THULE, SO THE KING AND PRINCE VALIANT GO HUNTING TOGETHER. THEIR PATH LEADS THEM TO THE EASTERN BORDER OF THE KINGDOM.

"GREETINGS FROM HALP ATLA, KING OF THE INNER LANDS, TO AGUAR, KING OF THULE! HE ASKS YOUR HELP IN SAVING HIS KINGDOM FROM THE GIANT KARAK, WHOSE POWER STRIKES TERROR IN THE HEARTS OF ALL WHO OPPOSE HIM."

BULLETIN BOARD

● FLOOR SHOW! Stack a big pile of books on the floor. Fluff up a tissue and place it atop the books. Now, standing on one leg, hands behind back, bend down and pick up tissue in your teeth. Next, remove one book and repeat, etc.

● Challenge: Make up a sentence using only one vowel. Example: These three sewers need new needles. Use as many words as possible.

● Decode and compute rapidly, if you can: TOT WICES EVEN TYAD DNINE.

Now, ask someone to hold the tip of your first finger. Bend your middle finger so that the forward loop slips from the end, at which instant the band jumps free of your first finger and is suspended from your middle finger (figure D).

HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1. Hatbow is different. 2. Hat is different. 3. Mat is missing. 4. Collar is missing. 5. Dog's ear is different. 6. Dog is repositioned.
