HOTLINE

752-1336

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day, but the phone service is available 24 hours a day.

RED EYES, NO PRIZE

I supposedly won $40 on Channel 12's Will C's Red Eye Cinema, but it's been six weeks and I haven't received it yet. C.C.M.

WCTI-TV worked on your problem for much more than six weeks and finally gave you the prize money, though the station was in no way legally bound to do so.

According to a contract between an advertiser and the station, the advertiser was to pay you directly. When you reported that he did not, the station says it tried to prevail upon him to do so with letters, phone calls and visits, and finally with a cancellation of his contract. Hotline wrote him, but received no answer, having been unable previously to reach him by phone. You have your prize, though, and are aware that it is because of the conscientiousness of the station management.

TWO TOO DANGEROUS

Coming out of Reade Circle onto Dickinson Avenue, it's difficult to see your way clear if cars are in the two parking place to the right toward White's Store. I think these two places should be sacrificed for safety. B.S.

City Manager Bill Carstarphen says the Traffic Commission agrees with you. These two places will be removed, probably within a few days, he said.

WANTS COPYRIGHT INFORMATION

I'm trying to copyright four drawings to be blown up for posters and sold nationwide, but no one in Greenville seems to know anything about or where to be informed on copyright. J.P.

Try the librarian at Pitt Technical Institute, and ask for a book on photographic law. Drawings are similar to photographs in the way they are handled. You could also look through some photographic magazines for books dealing specifically with copyright, as photographers often have photographs copyrighted. A soft cover book, "The Photo Marketplace" has a chapter dealing specifically with copyright.

COUNTY CARS ENUMERATED

How many passenger vehicles are owned and operated by the County of Pitt? E.T.

According to County Manager Reginald Gray, Pitt County owns and operates 68 passenger vehicles at the present. Included are one for the county manager, one for the county planner, two for the tax supervisor's office; two for the tax collector's office; one for the electrical inspector, one for the fire marshal, one for the Industrial Development Commission director; 18 for the Sheriff Department, two for the hospital; 17 for the Department of Social Services; 19 for the Health Department, and three for the Mental Health Center.

MERIDA, Mexico (AP) — Hurricane Carmen lost much of its force early today as it crossed the Yucatan peninsula and headed into the Gulf of Mexico, but was expected to regain strength as it moved over open water. Three dead were reported in its path.

At 9 a.m. EDT, the storm's center was just east of Campeche, Mexico, at latitude 20 north and longitude 90 west. Forecasters said Carmen was drifting northward at about 5 m.p.h. and the storm's movements would be erratic for the next 24 hours.

The National Hurricane Center in Miami said Carmen was still weakening and was not expected to start building strength until the center moved out over the Gulf of Mexico late today.

Forecasters said it was too early to say which land areas might be threatened once Carmen reached the Gulf, and marine interests around the Yucatan and southern Gulf of Mexico were warned to be alert for future advisories on the storm.

"We'll have to wait for it to get over the water again and see how much of a system we have before we can think downstream to see if it will threaten people," said Neal Frank, hurricane center director.

Heavy rains were reported over most of the Yucatan Peninsula today, with winds up to 50 m.p.h. reported at Merida, Mexico. Because the storm was moving slowly, the rainfall would continue over the Yucatan possibly into Wednesday. Local flooding was expected.

Stolen Copper Found

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Bureau of Investigation (SBI) agents have recovered about half of the two tons of stolen copper that originally covered the dome of the old state Capitol in Raleigh.

SBI Director Charles Dunn says about 1,500 pounds of the metal was recovered at an unidentified Greenville firm. Earlier, it was reported that about 900 pounds of the copper was seized by agents at a Burlington metal company.

Dunn said both lots of copper were recovered Friday.

No arrests have been made in the case, according to Dunn, but the SBI has "at least two suspects in the case." He said the SBI is continuing the investigation and expects arrests shortly.

The 100-year-old copper, stolen from a Raleigh warehouse Aug. 1, was to be used for souvenir jewelry commemorating the U.S. Bicentennial. A considerable amount of the copper removed from the Capitol dome already had been made into jewelry when the theft occurred.

According to Dunn, 900 pounds of the stolen copper was recovered from Levin Brothers Co. of Burlington. Jack Levin, company official, said last Friday his firm had purchased the metal in good faith and had no idea it was stolen.

Turks Welcome Impartial Probe

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — The leader of the Turkish Cypriots today welcomed the Greek Cypriot call for an impartial investigation of charges of atrocities in Cyprus.

"Of course, we need a lot of inquiries in Cyprus," Vice President Rauf Denktaş told an interviewer.

President Glafcos Clerides' government called for an impartial investigation following the discovery of more than 20 bodies in a mass grave in the Turkish Cypriot hamlet of Maratha.

The Turks said there might be as many as 90 bodies in the grave and that all were Turkish

He made his remarks in a prepared talk to the Lenoir-Caldwell County Chamber of Commerce.

Hunt said the budget should be designed with four principles in mind:

- Maintain a balanced state budget.
- Limit any major new funding commitments.
- Expand funding primarily where services

Expect Controversy Over School Report

RALEIGH (AP) — A 77-page task force report on North Carolina's public schools is expected to spark controversy when it goes before the state Board of Education this week.

The so-called "blueprint for future programming and planning" includes a wide-ranging list of 65 recommendations aimed at restructuring grades 7 through 12.

Some of the recommendations are described as drastic departures from conventional teaching methods and are expected to evoke divided sentiment among Education Board members.

The proposals include a trial run at reducing compulsory attendance laws to the age of 14, permitting a free flow of high school students to community colleges and technical institutions, and allowing adults to enroll in high school courses.

The task force also suggests elimination of grade levels in some instances according to the needs and interests of students and a major revamping of the school financing.

The report represents three months of work by a citizen task force put together by State Superintendent of Public Instruction A. Craig Phillips with the assistance of paid consultant, Dr. Richard Ray of Southern Pines.

In addition to Dr. Ray and other parttime consultants, the task force was made up of 29 persons ranging from high school teachers to former Gov. Bob Scott. It included teachers, school administrators, bankers, businessmen and one labor union representative.

One of the recommendations calls for establishment of selected schools where persons as young as 14 could be allowed to drop out. Presently, state law requires students to remain in school until age 16.

Both state law and community college policy prohibit any persons under the age of 18 from enrolling in the college or technical institute programs without certification that the person has quit school. Another recommendation would wipe this law and policy off the books.

The proposal to eliminate grade levels within certain limitations would be a significant change for some schools, although it has already been done in some school systems.

The proposal calls for offering courses to students "without regard to grade level and in accordance with their needs and interests."

On the financing of schools the task force has called for uniform financing of all units regardless of the wealth of the city or county involved.

Nine schools have been picked for implementation of parts of the recommendations even though the state board has not yet officially discussed any of the proposals.

These "model" schools include Smith High in Greensboro, Concord Senior High and selected units in the counties of Bladen, Bertie, Burke, Alexander, Ashe, Cumberland and Mecklenburg.

Departments And Agencies Report To County Board

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners heard reports from various departments and agencies during a relatively uneventful meeting this morning.

Pitt Memorial Hospital administrator Jack Richardson told commissioners that representatives of the hospital and medical staff have been meeting with representatives of the University of North Carolina medical school, working out details for use of the hospital by medical students at East Carolina University.

He told the board that the "impact of medical education" at the hospital is still an unanswered question at this point, however. He said local hospital officials and members of the medical staff have indicated a willingness, to cooperate fully with the medical education program, but noted that some medical staff members have become "a little irritated" at not being able to find out exactly what representatives of UNC are expecting a need.

Ralph Hall, overseeing the construction of the new hospital for the Board of Trustees of the hospital and for the county board, reported that the "weather has given us a hard time," but noted that "quite a lot of structural steel" has been erected and that about one-third of the steel needed for the project has been delivered.

DETERIORATING

WASHINGTON (AP)—The condition of Army Chief of Staff Creighton Abrams continued to deteriorate and there are signs the general's vital signs are weakening, the Army said today.

Vepco Fossil Fuel Charge Sharply Up During This Month

Vepco's fossil fuel charge took a sharp jump in September to $8.50 per 1,000 kilowatt-hours from the August charge of $6.93 per 1,000 kilowatt-hours, according to George Reel, customer service supervisor at Greenville Utilities.

Reel said that the increase means that an average customer using 780 kilowatt-hours per month will pay $1.22 more in September than in August.

The fossil fuel adjustment charge is based on a three-month cost of coal and oil used in electric power generation, Reel explained. The September charge is based on May, June and July cost of fossil fuel used in electric generation.

He said that, according to a Vepco spokesman, during July coal and oil prices increased over the April costs.

Reel noted that since more generation is required during July, it was necessary to utilize some of Vepco's less efficient generating plants. During the month of July one of the Surrey nuclear units was shut down for repairs and full production could not be made from Vepco's Mount Storm coal plant in the western part of Virginia, he continued.

All of these factors, according to Vepco, produced higher cost of generation from fossil fuels and contributed to the higher fossil fuel adjustment charge for the month of September.

"With the coming threat of coal strikes, which could ultimately mean higher coal prices, plus possible higher crude oil prices in the future, the possibility of fossil fuel adjustment charges being greatly reduced seems most unlikely," Reel said.

Budget-Tightening Guidelines Set By Lt. Gov.

LENOIR, N.C. (AP)—Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt said today "a sharp pencil" will be needed in state government in the months ahead to develop a tight budget and help in the fight against inflation.

He said members of the General Assembly and the Advisory Budget Commission "are already preparing to cope with a tighter budget than we've had for many years."

"I believe that we can develop a budget that will meet our basic needs, and at the same time, will help fight inflation.

—Aid those who are most seriously hurt by inflation.

"There are two areas in which government can operate effectively in this battle against inflation," Hunt said. "It can dampen down demand by not adding to it through government competition. And it can work to increase those goods or services in short supply... housing and health care are critical items."

Hunt noted the 1974 General Assembly set up a new housing finance agency and provided it with $4 million to back up $50 million in bonds. This money would be used to finance homes for lower-to-middle income families.

"The next General Assembly," he said, "will be asked to provide an additional four million dollars to make available to the agency 100 million dollars to put into our state's sagging home building industry."

Hunt said he believes this action "will contribute to the winning of the inflation battle."

Education Designed For Older Women

By SANDRA GITTENS
NEW YORK (AP) — Finding older women to go back to college is not a problem.

The problem is finding enough money for scholarships and innovative programs which eliminate the hassles of reentry, says Elizabeth Cless, director for the Center for Continuing Education and Special Academic Programs at Claremont Colleges, Calif.

Mrs. Cless was recently in New York as a member of a four-member panel to find 50 colleges and universities in which to distribute $50,000 of a special scholarship fund for continuing education of women over 35.

Right now she claims there are only five or six colleges and universities around the country which have made available reentry educational planning for women. "These programs," she said, "vary around the country. But any woman can come there and have a pre-admissions advisor. They will find out what she needs, how she can get her degree the fastest, how she can do it within her financial means, within her geographic limitations and her family limitations."

It's a new concept in higher education, she notes, yet money is the crux of the problem. The scholarship, sponsored by a hair products manufacturer, isn't going to go very far, but what Mrs. Cless is hoping for is that other companies will recognize the vast intellectual capacity of the mature woman and "put their money where their mouth is."

"There have been very few scholarships throughout the country for women over 25, primarily because any woman over 25 can usually only go to college part time," she says. "Almost all available scholarships and fellowships are for full time study." Yet, it often takes very little money to get a woman back in school. Most monies are used for either text books, transportation or babysitting, or the combination of the three. Basically, she says, this shows the woman that someone has confidence enough in her to give her some money. It helps her esteem not only with family but with friends, while giving her the self-confidence she needs.

"Obviously, I'm not talking about the woman who is suddenly divorced, or widowed and who has no money. I'm talking about the woman who has a little money of her own, or her husband's, and needs just enough to help out. And this is more effective than any amount of money can be because it says that she is somebody that has potential."

From the various studies she's seen, Mrs. Cless says it has been shown that a woman returning to school does better than before. "Any woman who's been away from school a long time is scared to death and she isn't sure she can compete."

"But," Mrs. Cless adds, "a woman can be Phi Beta Kappa, head of her class and everything else when she's 21; if she comes back to school, without exception she does better. Now we have all kinds of theories about this, but part of it is motivation. When you have the guts to go back to school after the age of 30 you really want to go. And you know what's important and what isn't, and you're not out looking for a husband."

Digressing for a moment, Mrs. Cless sought to bring out an important point. Put simply, she said, a lot of companies by law now must find mature women to fill jobs that require business skills.

"But the women these companies are looking for were not geared in that direction when they were 21. And they need women with a lot of maturity and a lot of judgment. So, if affirmative action is going to work, it means companies are going to have to make an investment and send some of these bright older women back to college to get the particular expertise they're looking for. This isn't going to last forever. There's going to be a generation getting out of college now who will be able to move into it, although they'll have to move in at a lower level."

"But in the next two or three years if companies don't send older women to college they are going to find themselves without government contracts and in courts of law. For some reason or another they haven't thought of sending a woman back to school to get what they want. They make the investment in men, but they've never made it in women."

What can a woman do to help herself? Well, advises Mrs. Cless, she can start by selecting a room in her house for private study, put a "do not disturb" sign on the door, and begin looking at what's available and where. She should find a college or university which is concerned with the woman over 25 and has programs geared to her needs.

"Most colleges that have re-entry programs for women advertise the fact," she says. "Groups like the American Association of University Women or the business and professional women's clubs know where there are programs like this."

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

In theory, juries are formed out of a cross section of people from every walk of life who must simply be registered voters and have transportation to the courthouse.

This is not entirely true. After two months as a justice-seeker, I have found jurors are chosen from people without prejudice, who are compassionate, do not hold grudges when they are hit over the head with a tire iron, can fit the trial in providing it does not conflict with a Tupperware party, can consume and control 23 cups of coffee in a six-hour day, limit their newspaper reading to the comics and who can accept rejection without withdrawal symptoms.

I am the victim of the latter. I don't know if you've thought much about it or not but have you any idea how many defendants do not want a humor columnist on their jury? In eight weeks I was passed by more times than a bakery window with a pregnant fly buzzing around.

The first few times I was "excused" I was a heck of a sport about it. . . laughed, had another cup of coffee and joked, "I don't have to do this for a living. When I overcome my clumsiness, I can steal."

But later, after being rejected time after time, my personality began to change. I shuttled back and forth from decisive and domineering to dependent and weak. Some days I would carry a knitting bag, wear an orthopedic stocking and look maternal and conservative. Other days I would chew gum with my mouth open and say things like, "Lizzie Borden wasn't a bad little girl. She just wanted to go to the orphan's picnic."

When questioned by the court I found I apologized for three children, my address, and was so humble about writing the column that I had a judge believing I wrote it on a brown paper bag en route to Gettysburg.

Later, pure envy set in and I publicly attacked other jurors. It was amazing how compassionate I could be toward a defendant who allegedly set fire to a church and how I knew a prospective juror was a bigot just by looking at him.

Late one afternoon I dragged back to the room for reassignment when a fellow crime-fighter said, "Are you going to write anything funny about jurors in your column?"

So that was it, I had been tried by the press before I had my day in court. Clients were being guarded against the threat of them saying, "Take my wife. . ." and a voice from the jury box giggling. "Please!" Or the prosecutor asking, "Did you in fact take a plane from Minneapolis?" And a juror whispering, "Why? Is one missing?"

I resent deeply the implication that humorists cannot be serious. By rejecting our services we will never get a chance to deliberate in a room so small the mice are hunchback . . . a room so small you have to step outside to change your mind . . . a room so small you have to disconnect the phone to take a shower . . .

Hubby Likes To 'Bathe With Abby'

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-H. V. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: What would you say if I told you that a supposedly sane 50-year-old man refuses to take a bath without your column? If for some reason our newspaper ever quit printing it, I am sure he would rot.

As if this isn't bad enough, he is truly convinced that sometimes his wife tries to destroy the paper before he gets an opportunity to "bathe" with Abby.

Is he crazy, or just eccentric?

APPALLED DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: Neither. He's adorable. Please ask him not to splash. I hate to get my hair wet!

DEAR ABBY: I love my husband, and sometimes I would like to wring his neck.

We have two kids, five and seven, and Joe keeps nagging me for more. He says he "loves" kids. Well, I love them, too, but he is making it very hard for me to raise them right.

If I say no, he says yes. When I tell the kids to go to bed and they beg to stay up later, he says: "Aw, why do you have to be so strict? Give 'em an extra half hour." And he says this right in front of the kids! If I don't go along with him, I am made to look like the mean one.

You always say the husband and wife should be on the same team, but how do you get a husband on your team when he always wants to be the "hero?"

CAN'T WIN FOR LOSIN'

DEAR CANT: Tell the "hero" (and not in front of the kids) that children NEED to know what they may and may not do, and parents who allow themselves to be manipulated are doing their children an injustice. Mom and Dad should make those decisions together and stick with them. Always be fair and just. But firm. That's parental love in action.

DEAR ABBY: I am living at home and my boyfriend, who lives out of state, is on a very limited income, so he has been writing airmail postcards instead of letters. He writes every day.

My mother has been reading his postcards. I am sure of it because she seems to know everything he has written on them. He sometimes gets a little mushy and also writes some short poems which I consider beautiful, but very personal.

I told my mother that I would appreciate it if she would NOT read my postcards, and she said anything written on a postcard could be expected to be read by the mailman and anyone else who handled it.

Abby, I feel that if a person has real character he will not read even a postcard. What do you think? OKLAHOMAN

DEAR OKIE: I think it is foolish to expect that which has been written on a postcard to remain confidential. Suggestion: Give your boyfriend his Christmas present early, and send him some airmail postage stamps.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "EMBARRASSED NOW": My medical experts inform me that Herpes 2 should not (repeat NOT) be classified as a venereal disease. Although it is possible to contract it through sexual relations, it is by no means the ONLY way. No need for you to be embarrassed.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Bank Tells $78.2 Million Loss

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — International pressure for tighter controls on foreign exchange dealings by major banks will likely increase following the disclosure by Lloyds Bank of London that it lost as much as $78.2 million in currency transactions in Switzerland, financial commentators said today.

Lloyds, one of Britain's big four clearing banks, blamed the loss on the manager of its branch in Lugano, Switzerland, and his subordinate in charge of foreign currency dealings.

The bank, which has no connection with the famed insurance syndicate of the same name plus an apostrophe, said the loss did not threaten its solvency. It said tax offsets and insurance could reduce the loss to $44.4 million, only a fourth of the amount of the foreign currency debt that forced the collapse of the Herstatt Bank in West Germany in June and less than the $52 million loss in foreign currency dealings that endangered the Franklin National Bank of New York.

The Swiss Federal Banking Commission said it was investigating to determine whether criminality was involved.

But foreign exchange dealers said mammoth speculative profits and losses have become common in the international money markets, partly because the markets have been allowed to operate with a minimum of government control for the past 18 months due to the abandonment of the fixed rates of exchange supported by government buying and the free floating of currencies within comparatively wide limits.

"Much of the time, the international foreign exchanges operate like a vast gambling casino with none of the central bank authorities able to impose the proper control over what is going on," one business commentator said.

However, American, West German and Swiss banking authorities have recently been calling for more detailed accounting of foreign exchange dealings by banks operating in their countries.

The Western central bankers hold one of their regular meetings in Zurich this weekend, and they are expected to discuss controls. Some central bankers have argued that a return to a system of fixed exchange rates is the only answer to dangerous speculation by banks.

Two Women Helped Capture Armed Man

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Two women, one of them 82 years old, helped capture an armed prison escapee three weeks after he pedaled to freedom on a bicycle, police said.

Dillard J. Haggard, 38, was captured on Monday by Boise police who were alerted after the 82-year-old woman chased him from her kitchen and the other pushed him out of her yard. Authorities said Haggard was armed with a .38 caliber pistol, but never used it.

Haggard, a convicted robber serving a 15-year term, was working on an Idaho Penitentiary detail at the home of Director of Corrections Don Erickson Aug. 13. Officers said he broke into the Erickson's house and stole liquor, a gun and a bicycle, on which he pedaled away.

Early Monday morning Madge Hardin, 82, said she heard someone in her kitchen. Police Sgt. Clinton Bays said Mrs. Hardin yelled at the man to "get out or I'm going after my son-in-law."

"It was a pretty good bluff. The suspect took off running," Bays said. He said Mrs. Hardin doesn't have a son-in-law.

Mrs. Hardin called the police. As they began to search for Haggard, police received a call from Jean Kearney, who reported that a man with a gun had been in front of her house.

"She was worried about her daughter's safety, so she jumped and pushed Haggard over and he fled across the street and hid in the weeds," Bays said. Police found him in the weeds and arrested him.

N.C. Labor Day Traffic Saw 21 Persons Killed

By The Associated Press
Twenty-one persons died in North Carolina traffic accidents over the 3 1/2-day Labor Day weekend, one more than predicted.

The death toll for the year rose to 989, but was 257 fewer than at the corresponding time last year.

The count was kept for 78 hours, from 6 p.m. Friday until midnight Monday. The N.C. State Motor Club had predicted 20 deaths in the period.

Two of the victims were from South Carolina. They were Adam Clark Oliver Jr., 26, of Marietta in Greenville County and Connie Huggins, 19, of Latta in Dillon County. Their motorcycle collided head-on with a vehicle 10 miles south of Yanceyville in Caswell County of north-central North Carolina.

Five Juveniles Taken In Custody

Five juveniles were taken into custody here last night after they attempted to force open a coin operated newspaper sales rack at Spain's Food Land on Charles Street.

Chief Glenn Cannon said East Carolina University police saw the juveniles attempting to force open the machine and called city officers.

When the city officers arrived the five ran and were caught by city and ECU officers after a short chase.

Adjusting To Electrical Cost

Recently we have been reading reports of firms which are major consumers of electricity using computers to control electrical usage during peak hours.

That no doubt, is something that will be come more and more prevelant as the cost of electricity rises. And it is a good example of how an efficient industrial nation can adjust to a cost which is rapidly getting out of hand.

The problem with supplying electricity has always been that much expensive equipment is needed to take care of peak loads each day. These peak loads come only a couple of hours a day, usually around noon and late in the afternoons when home equipment is being used most. During all the other hours of the day the generating equipment which is there to take care of peak loads is sitting idle or not operating at full efficiency, awaiting the next load situation.

The cheapest way to generate electricity would be to keep the generators running at a constant speed around the clock, but unfortunately there is no pratical way to store the electricity generated in preparation for the peak load periods.

Big users of electricity, however, can shave their usage at the peak times each day when home use is at its highest, and this will help level out the load around the clock. There is incentive to do this since big users pay a demand charge based on the highest amount of electricity used during a 24-hour period.

It takes a computer to search through all the myriad uses of electricity in a huge plant or businesses and determine what can be cut down during the peak hours. Computers are already on the job doing this, and it could mean that power companies will be able to postpone huge investments in expensive equipment for peak hours. This will benefit us all.

More Than A Stunt In Stunning Ocean Flight

Mind boggling air feats have come with rapidity in recent years, but the flight of a U. S. Air Force spy plane from New York to London in one hour and 56 minutes is still amazing.

The flight was made over the weekend for the Farnborough International Air Show, at speeds in excess of 2,000 miles per hour.

More than just a stunt, the flight may be a forerunner of the speed at which commercial airliners will fly to distant points.

The world continues to shrink.

THIS AFTERNOON

Found Spending Abuses

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—The wide variety of state governmental spending abuses and the apparently never-ending source of new questions to ask has convinced some members of the General Assembly probe that agency budgets could be cut 15 per cent across the board and the money wouldn't even be missed.

That would amount to a $45 million reduction of the $3 billion state budget.

Here, in capsule form, are some of the subjects covered in recent weeks by the Governmental Expenditure Study Commission:

Beach Trip—The statewide principals' organization, some 1,500 strong, held a conference at Myrtle Beach, S.C., instead of enjoying the Variety Vacationland. Our result was that state employees got 25 per cent more expense money to cover out-of-state travel as opposed to in-state. The commission seems to agree that North Carolina conferences should be held in North Carolina.

Telephones—The state system costs about $600,000 a year, and best estimates are that misuse by state employees for personal calls is running about $60,000 per year. A random check showed a little-known state agency (Higher Education Facilities Commission) with only six employees had run up a monthly telephone bill of $461.

Learning Institute—The General Assembly cut off funds for the Learning Institute of North Carolina during the 1973-74 fiscal year due to a controversy over activities.

The State Board of Education went around this "legislative intent" by awarding a $60,000 contract for consulting services to the Learning Institute; action which the commission staff found was not illegal, but did "raise the question of whether or not this action was consistent with the intent of the 1973 General Assembly."

Further investigation for the maneuver is ongoing.

Architectural Work—Investigation is underway to determine the amount of state money paid in architect fees for school buildings during the past 10 years, with comparisons of architectural fees and construction costs per square foot for various parts of the state. Similar data is being gathered on other state buildings, all with an eye to checking into use of standardized designs and a state architectural staff.

Bottles Break

Alcoholic Beverage Control—Bottle breakage and shortages amounted to $138,692 in little more than one year. A nine-month period showed $88,481.60 loss due to breakage, but ABC officials said this was due to moving the warehouse, and errors in paperwork. Since the move, breakage is down to $17,844 over a five-month period, and shortage is down to $2,589.80 for the same period; a loss rate of three one-hundredths of a per cent compared to a previous rate of 12 one-hundredths of one per cent. Figures show breakage takes place across the board of brands—high priced and low; shortages appear concentrated on high price brands.

Highway Patrol—Twenty-five fulltime patrolmen are used as "process servers" to enforce insurance regulations and pick up license plates, in addition to using eight to 10 per cent of the time of other highway patrolmen for the same purpose. A high percentage of this work results from paperwork lag, and up to 50 per cent could be eliminated if proper report procedures were used.

After getting behind them the task of organizing and exploring the terrain to see where to aim, the spending commission now shows signs of zeroing in on two major areas of concern.

Staff members have been told to dig up all available information on state commissions of various sorts, most of which have small staffs and perform isolated functions from a host of small offices scattered about. Some legislators believe a number of these can be eliminated.

The subject of consulting services to state agencies will also be intensively studied to find out how much is spent, how much overlaps work already done, and whether the work could be done by state employees rather than outside agencies.

City Of Violent Deaths

By JOE LAPOINTE
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Charley Mathis took off his shoes last week and was shot to death when a friend didn't like the smell of his feet.

It went down on police records as a fatal shooting prompted by "allegedly odiferous feet."

Joe Peoples, 64, tried to stop a man stabbing a mongrel dog on an inner-city sidewalk.

"Shut up old man, or I'll kill you," the stranger said. An hour later Peoples was dead, knifed in the back.

These two cases were among 516 homicides committed in Detroit thus far in 1974, 27 above last year's record pace, police said. There were 751 killings in 1973, an all-time record in this city of 1.5 million that has come to be known as the nation's murder capital.

Slayings involving out-of-towners have been rare, and convention officials say business is up.

A Wayne State University study cosponsored by the city, reveals the typical killer differs little from his victim.

The report, covering about 500 murders in 1972, shows:

More than 75 per cent of murderers were male; two-thirds of the slayings followed a quarrel with a relative or acquaintance; 63 per cent of the murders were committed with guns, often the inexpensive "Saturday Night Specials"; most of those involved on both sides of the gun were black males, with half of them single and 40 per cent unemployed.

"But these conditions are not unique to Detroit," said Dr. G. Marie Wilt, who made the study. "You find them all over the country. The problems are socio-economic."

Police statistics show that of the 432 homicides through July of this year, three-quarters were committed with guns and half of the killers knew their victims.

Why Detroit?

The most popular reasons advanced for the homicide rate — auto assembly line pressure, poverty, and narcotics — are belittled by some experts.

Dr. Wilt says Detroit, with a white-black ratio of about 50-50, differs little from American cities with lower murder rates. She cites dope in New York, factories in Pittsburgh and poverty everywhere.

Dr. Emanuel Panay, a psychiatrist who has studied violent death, says the answer is "simple and obvious. Guns."

"In England, if you get mad at someone you choke them with your hands. The aggressor may lose his temper, but he regains it before he kills his victim."

Dr. Panay said gun-buying increased sharply following the 1967 riot here in which 43 died. He feels there is an upward spiral which is unstoppable without gun control.

Clean Gene Girds Again

CHICAGO—"I have never known a poet," Cicero once remarked, "who did not set a very high value on himself." The observation applies to poet Eugene McCarthy, and in his case the high opinion is widely shared.

McCarthy flew out to Chicago the other day to meet with a number of old friends and political allies. He announced himself a "deadly serious candidate" for the presidency in 1976 as standard-bearer for a new Constitutional Presidency. This is straight McCarthy: He expects to be a serious

Other Editors Say Crime Uncurbed

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Unlike one of his predecessors, Ramsey Clark, Attorney General William Saxbe didn't try to play down the crime situation in this country a couple of days ago when he issued a report on the war against crime. He didn't use sugar-coated words; he simply said that "The nation is in deep trouble in its effort to reduce crime."

It didn't take an official report from the nation's attorney general to inform the public about growing crime; that's evident everywhere we turn, in every newspaper headline. But his words ought to serve as a grim reminder that crime is in fact inundating the country.

Saxbe's remarks were in an address before a conference of big-city police chiefs. "We can now perceive with shocking clarity that we have suffered a severe setback" in the fight to curb crime, he told them.

He noted that the FBI Uniform Crime Reports showed the number of crimes reported to police declined 4 per cent in 1972, the first drop in 17 years. According to the figures, the crime rate held steady for the first nine months of 1973, then soared in the last quarter to 16 per cent more than in the comparable 1972 period.

"The fact is that for at least a brief period we have lost our initiative and are back on the defensive," he said.

What can be done about it? Some views were offered by several police chiefs after Saxbe spoke. They say a major battle in the war on crime may be the fight to overcome public apathy toward solving crimes.

"Police are not the beginning and the end," said Detroit Police Chief Philip Tannian. "All the public has to share in the burden, but many turn and look the other way."

And Police Commissioner Donald Pomerleau of Baltimore said, "Society is on the defensive. In the final analysis, the police can't solve all the problems."

Sheriff Peter Pitchess of Los Angeles County put it more bluntly: "Community apathy poses a significant difficulty in solving crimes."

Saxbe warned that "there is every possibility that crime will inundate us. The nation would then be faced with the prospect of falling apart or devising a national police force in one final effort to restore domestic order. It would be a dreadful mistake to slide inch by inch toward that chasm."

Saxbe said poverty, the diminishing influence of such institutions as the church and the family, and the high unemployment among urban young people of racial minorities contribute to crime. That is only partially accurate. Poverty should not be used as an excuse for crime.

Curing the Depression unemployment and poverty were ways of life but the nation did not experience the rampage of crime such as that which now exists.

candidate, but does not seriously expect to be elected. His purpose is to teach, not to win.

A conflict in schedules kept me from making the McCarthy press conference, but his mere presence in Chicago sent memory rolling back. It was just six years ago that his bid for the Democratic nomination crested and collapsed in the riots of the 1968 convention. McCarthy ordinarily is among the most unflappable of men, but when dozens of his young followers were roughed up by the Chicago cops, he was the angriest man in an angry city. I remember him raging through the littered corridors of the Conrad Hilton Hotel, comforting and embracing his beloved "kids," helping them to escape the shattered convention. It seems a long time ago.

McCarthy's political viability suffers from the "former" syndrome. He is a former member of the House, where he served five terms; he is a former senator from Minnesota; he is a former candidate for the Democratic nomination; he is even a former first baseman at the old Sioux League. He is still a teacher and a poet; and at 58, he is still a very attractive fellow.

There ought to be room in our presidential process for teachers and poets. Off and on through the years, McCarthy has taught economics and political science; he is a teacher now at the New School of Social Research in New York. During the 1968 campaign, his frequent traveling companion was poet Robert Lowell. Once during the Indiana primary race of that year, McCarthy seemed even more aloof than usual from the maddening crowd. Instead of politicking, he was back in his hotel room finishing three poems of his own.

Given a national rostrum on which to stand, McCarthy would like to lecture his countrymen principally upon

The INSIDE REPORT

The Vietnam Countdown

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Although top strategists here still disagree on the Communist timetable for the next, massive countrywide offensive against South Vietnam, the remorseless political-military warfare now being waged by Hanoi's invaders is having devastating effects with cruelly perfected new tactics.

Despite the success of these tactics, Congress is showing ever more reluctance to finance Saigon's defense, as witness the immense reduction in both military and economic aid requests from the Ford administration. When final action is completed, both will probably be slashed by close to 50 per cent.

The highly probable cut-back in military aid, from $1.4 billion to around $700 million for the present fiscal year, means precisely what it implies—a 50 per cent "decrease in the capabilities" of South Vietnam's army.

What makes these threatened congressional cutbacks so perilous is the steadily increasing aid to Hanoi from both China and the Soviet Union. Precise, computerized figures on this profligate assistance from Peking and Moscow are, of course, beyond the capacity of American intelligence. But experts here nevertheless know for a certainty that 1974 economic aid is "far above" the level of 1973.

That nonmilitary assistance from Peking and Moscow, if continued at present levels for the balance of the year, will exceed total American economic aid by at least two and possibly three times. The Communist economic aid to Hanoi is now estimated at $1.2 billion-a-year rate—three times the economic aid package approved on Aug. 13 by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

As for military help, U.S. officials believe that there is enough ammunition in Communist hands to sustain an offensive at the ferocity levels of the spring 1972 Communist offensive for fully 18 straight months.

Directly matching this combat potential is the alarming fact that Hanoi has now infiltrated 160,000 fresh combat troops into the South since the Jan. 28, 1973, ceasefire. That brings the Communist troop level to an estimated 300,000 today (including perhaps 75,000 native Vietcong troops)—and every single infiltrated North Vietnamese regular is a direct violation of the ceasefire agreement.

But it is the perfectability of Communist tactics, particularly in the peripheral areas where Saigon's control touches or overlaps areas of Communist control, that concerns the Ford administration most.

The tactics are designed to further this strategy: by terror and kidnapping, frighten new settlers sent by Saigon to populate isolated areas, thus rendering the newly settled areas vulnerable to Communist advance.

Statistics now available here tell the story. In the Sonha district of coastal Quangnai province, 130 homes of new settlers were burned to the ground in late

Consumer Is Not An Automaton

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A consumer psychologist has a suggestion for some of those statistic-minded economists who now are pursuing their presidentially encouraged talks of reviewing the causes and solutions of inflation:

Don't assume that consumers respond like automatons. If you admit they act like human beings rather than numbers you won't have to keep repeating that lame excuse: "People didn't act as anticipated."

Prof. George Katona, who for years headed the Survey Research Center at the University of Michigan, challenges some of the bedrock assumptions on which economic thinking rests.

To illustrate, many economists believe that in times of inflation people must be encouraged to save and admonished not to spend. But, Katona says in effect, people already are motivated to do so. They need no encouragement.

Not that they always do save when inflation rages. When the fear of shortages or mistrust in the dollar's value are added to the equation, people might act the very opposite. They rush to buy while they can.

Katona, widely regarded as the founder of consumer surveys as they exist today, related some of his views and findings in a paper prepared for an American Psychological Association meeting in New Orleans last much as legal. During World War II and in 1971-73, he said, it was shown that price controls work only if people cooperate with them.

"Governments are powerless to enforce controls if very many businessmen and consumers disregard them ...

At the present time the psychological climate creates some serious obstacles to dealing with inflation, Katona says. He maintains "there prevails a lack of trust in government," which lowers expectations of overcoming prices.

Fighting inflation, he concludes, "calls for creating conditions in which optimistic and confident attitudes arise rather than expectations of rapidly rising prices."

THE IDLE WORD

Jesus once said that on judgment day all individuals will have to give an account of the "idle" words they have spoken during their lifetimes. Idle words are not necessarily wicked or malicious. Laughing at someone's faith, scoffing at something sacred, speaking cynically about others, or making light of other people's grief—these are typical examples of idle words.

Ordinarily our consciences would alert us if we said something positively wicked and would trouble us deeply if we took liberties with the truth. But conscience might not react to the idle words. Good men have often been aware of this fact and therefore have taken great pains to avoid expression of this sort. For example, the great Frenchman, Fontenelle, said on his deathbed, "I die with the consolation of never having thrown the smallest ridicule upon the smallest virtue." Sir Walter Scott declared, "I have tried to unsettle no man's faith, to corrupt no man's principles, and have written nothing, which, on my deathbed, I should wish blotted."

General Rise In Marketbasket Prices

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Higher prices for everything from peanut butter to pork chops helped push up the family grocery bill again during August, according to an Associated Press marketbasket survey.

The survey showed that the marketbasket has risen 11 per cent so far this year and prices are 14 per cent higher than they were 12 months ago.

The AP checked the prices of 15 food and nonfood items in 13 cities on March 1, 1973, and has rechecked at the beginning of each succeeding month.

The latest check, at the start of the Labor Day weekend, provided little encouragement for consumers.

More than 40 per cent of the total number of items checked went up during August. Eggs were up in every city checked — although they generally were cheaper than a year ago when $1-a-dozen eggs prompted consumers to seek other sources of protein.

Sugar continued its seemingly relentless rise, increasing in 11 cities during August. Pork chops were up in eight cities, reflecting higher prices paid to farmers for their hogs. Peanut butter, which had remained fairly steady in price, went up in six cities last month. Coffee was up in eight cities.

The AP survey showed that during August the marketbasket went up in every city surveyed except Dallas, Tex., where it dropped by a penny or a fraction of 1 per cent. The average increase was 4 1/2 per cent. During July, the AP marketbasket rose in all 13 cities.

On the average, the bill for the marketbasket was 23 per cent higher than it was on March 1, 1973; 14 per cent higher than it was on Sept. 1, 1973; and 11 per cent higher than it was on Jan. 1, 1974.

The Agriculture Department says that food prices will continue to rise during the rest of 1974, but at a slower rate than previously. The department recently upped its estimate of how much the over-all 1974 increase would be, boosting it from 12 to 15 per cent because of the recent drought that damaged the corn crop and is expected to mean higher prices for meat, milk and poultry.

The sugar increases have been the largest in the AP marketbasket. Since last September, the price of a five-pound sack of granulated sugar has risen an average of 143 per cent, jumping from 74 cents to $1.80. The increases ranged from 129 per cent in Boston, where the price went from 79 cents to $1.81, to 202 per cent in Atlanta, where it rose from 64 cents to $1.93 over the 12-month period.

During August, the price of sugar was up in 11 cities, rising an average of 6 per cent, and unchanged in one city. In the 13th city, sugar was unavailable on one of the check dates.

Grade-A medium white eggs went up in all 13 cities during August, rising an average 12 per cent. But in every city except Albuquerque, N.M., they were lower than they were last September, down 19 per cent.

The AP survey covered Albuquerque, Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, Salt Lake City and Seattle.

The items on the checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice, coffee, paper towels, detergent, fabric softener, butter, eggs, peanut butter, tomato sauce, chocolate chip cookies, milk, all-beef frankfurters and granulated sugar.

spring to discredit Saigon's power. The inhabitants were then "encouraged" to move west into regions "liberated" by Hanoi where the Communists suffer grievous shortages of manual labor, farm workers and pack carriers.

One month later, in the Songlo resettlement center, 200 homes were destroyed, 100 civilians killed and 15 wounded.

To the north in Quangnam province—near the port of Danang—the invaders forcibly uprooted more than 10,000 civilians settled there two years ago and moved them west to "liberated" areas as virtual slave labor.

From several refugees who escaped this draconian transfer of population it has been established that the Communist plan called for the abduction of no fewer than 15,000 South Vietnamese civilians, most of them farmers and artisans, from a single district in that province.

This is a repeat, but with perfected tactics, of the very strategy practiced against South Vietnam by Hanoi's invaders before and during the notorious—but unsuccessful—1972 spring offensive. Vastly aiding the Communists, of course, is the absence today of U.S. air power and the fact that Hanoi's troops are more muscular and better-trained than two years ago.

It is no wonder, then, that the U.S. officials most experienced in the long, bloody Vietnam war now give about 50-50 odds that the long-feared next general offensive will come this fall. But even the optimists—a dwindling band—believe that if the offensive doesn't come then, it will be sprung around Easter time next year.

Indeed, the slender hopes of January 1973 have all but disappeared. U.S.-Soviet detente and the dramatic diplomatic opening toward China have neither isolated Vietnam from world political currents nor encouraged a political bargain between Saigon and Hanoi based on military stalemate.

To the contrary, the opposing centers of world Communism seem still bent of fueling Hanoi's lustful conquest of the South, while Saigon's benefactor seems unwilling to fuel its well-established capacity to resist.

Kilpatrick.

the office of the presidency. In this field he was a prophet before his time. Long before Arthur Schlesinger discovered the "imperial presidency," and long before Richard Nixon sank in the swamps of Watergate, McCarthy was warning against the excesses of presidential power. McCarthy is a practicing liberal, and for many years his position was not a popular liberal position. It happened merely to be sound.

McCarthy would also like to talk about the two-party system, whether it is drifting, what it is failing to accomplish. His complaint, as I understand it, is that the machinery fails to offer the people a sufficiently wide choice, and often offers the people no realistic choice at all. If pending proposals for the public financing of federal elections are adopted, the country is likely to be locked permanently into the present two parties. "This is obviously wrong," says McCarthy, "because neither party represents what many Americans want."

Do many Americans want a practicing poet as president? Probably not. Given a choice, they might better accept a former first baseman. In his memoir of the 1968 campaign, McCarthy recalled a comment by Clemenceau, in speaking of the Dreyfus case, "that a country cannot be ruled by its philosophers, artists, or scholars." All the same, Clemenceau added, "it is perilous for it to turn on them, to reject their judgment, to ignore their warnings."

McCarthy's judgments and warnings as to Vietnam went unheeded six years ago. This was the key issue of his New Politics and he has lost that issue now. McCarthy was not even an also-ran in the 1972 campaign, and it would take a powerful suspension of disbelief to suppose that he could be a significant factor in 1976. But the gentleman is far more than a liberal Harold Stassen. As a "serious candidate," he will have some serious things to say, and conservatives and liberals alike will profit from listening seriously to him.

There are lots of ways of finding out. But the easiest way is to just call up a university nearby and ask."

Educators, she says, are looking for women who are interested in a career other than homemaking. These women often add to the college in ways that no young person just coming out of high school can. With older women structuring their own courses and refusing to accept inferior education, Mrs. Cless says, educators are now sitting back and taking notice. "They are showing educators what was wrong with their earlier education, and why."

"It's turning out that our higher education was designed for men, upper class men, and somehow this doesn't fit the pattern of the alive, alert, active middle-age woman," she says. "It didn't fit her even when she was 18."

Introducing Planters Ultra your checking account

Ultra Checking is a new kind of checking account. It's designed to save you time, money and several trips to the bank each month.

It's the most advanced checking account in North Carolina because it offers you more extra services than any other bank around.

First of all it offers you a different statement. (On the right.) It helps you balance your checkbook in a flash.

All your checks are listed numerically (1) so you can check them off quickly and the ones that are missing (2) are easily identifiable. Just look for the (*).

With Ultra Checking, a lot of your banking transactions can be made without you. Automatically. Loans can be paid off (3), deposits can be made through Sav-O-Matic and so on.

And just so you can see how you wind up each banking day, we even give you a daily bank balance record (4).

That covers the time factor. But PNB's Ultra Checking also covers the money factor.

As good as our Cash Guarantee Account was, it couldn't hold a candle to our new service. Check Credit (5).

Now, you can still write checks for more than you have in the bank, but with a Check Credit loan you can get a lot more out of it than before.

For instance, as soon as your credit line is approved you can also get a flexible interest rate, depending upon your qualifications.

With Check Credit you really get a Simple Interest Loan (6) because you only pay for what you use, only as long as you use it.

You can borrow from your account automatically in increments of $100 at a time, or in any amount you specify. Or you can ask for a specific amount to be transferred to your checkbook. With advance notice, we'll give you a check loan down to the penny.

One way or another, Check Credit makes it possible for you to pay less interest than before.

It saves you a penalty charge for bounced checks because when you write a check you can't cover, we cover it for you.

When you put it all together, Planters UltraChecking has all the things a good checking account can offer you along with some things only an advanced checking account can offer you. See a PNB banker today, because after this you won't ever have to see him again. Well, hardly ever.

Sagging Sox Hold Lead

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Boston bats were ailing and the faltering Red Sox managed a grand total of five hits — two of them bunts — in dropping a doubleheader to the surging Baltimore Orioles by twin 1-0 scores.

However, the Sox held onto first place in the American League's East Division by one game over New York Monday when the Yankees split a twin bill with the Milwaukee Brewers, winning the opener 3-1 but dropping the nightcap 3-2. Baltimore is only three games out.

Elsewhere, Chicago's Wilbur Wood became a 20-game winner for the fourth year in a row as the White Sox rallied to beat the Kansas City Royals 6-4 in 10 innings, the Oakland A's edged the California Angels 6-4 and the Minnesota Twins trounced the Texas Rangers 9-3. Cleveland and Detroit were rained out.

The Orioles stretched their longest winning streak of the season to six games and extended Boston's slide to five in a row when Ross Grimsley hurled a three-hitter in the opener — Bobby Grich's fourth-inning homer off 20-game winner Luis Tiant was the only run — and Mike Cuellar went him one better by firing a two-hitter in the nightcap.

Paul Blair's bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the third inning enabled Cuellar to outduel Bill Lee.

Yankees 3-2, Brewers 1-3

The Yankees equaled their longest winning streak of the season at six games by taking the opener behind Rudy May's four-hit pitching, but the Brewers built a 3-0 lead in the nightcap on an RBI single by ex-Yankee Mike Hegan and Tim Johnson's two-run single and held on behind Tom Murphy's clutch relief pitching.

In the New York ninth, Ron Blomberg's single and Roy White's double put runners at second and third with none out. But Elliott Maddox flied to short center and, after an intentional pass to Bobby Murcer, Graig Nettles fouled out and Lou Piniella grounded to second, where Pedro Garcia made a diving stop.

White Sox 6, Royals 4

Wood survived a 13-hit Kansas City attack and became the first White Sox pitcher ever to win 20 games four years in a row. Jorge Orta's two-run double in the 10th inning provided Wood's triumph after a two-run pinch double by Ron Santo capped a three-run rally in the eighth that erased a 4-1 Kansas City lead.

A's 6, Angels 4

Home runs by Reggie Jackson and Joe Rudi highlighted Oakland's and increased the A's lead in the AL West to 8½ games over Kansas City and Texas. Frank Robinson and John Doherty homered for California.

Twins 9, Rangers 3

Joe Decker pitched a six-hitter and Eric Soderholm, Craig Kusick and Tony Oliva homered for Minnesota. Toby Harrah hit his 19th homer for Texas. Seven of them have come against the Twins.

D. H. CONLEY VIKINGS—Members of the D. H. Conley High School football team are, first row, left to right: Timmy Stephens, Nuggie Worthington, Donnie Cox, Curtis Clemons, Tim McClanahan, Ricky Phillips, Trent Knight, Clifton Clemons, Edward Clemons, Jonathan Waller; second row, David Bates, Lennox Green, Randy Adams, John Buck, Charles

Pittsburgh Sweeps Pair

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The Pittsburgh Pirates' 7-4, 11-1 Labor Day sweep over Philadelphia left some bad feelings among a couple of the Phillies.

"We're going to get even," vowed Philadelphia second baseman Dave Cash, who was struck in the batting helmet by a pitch during the eighth inning of the nightcap. "And if nobody else on this team will throw the ball, I will."

Kison said the pitch to Cash, a fastball, slipped from his hand because of a chronic blister on his middle finger. He said he talked briefly with Cash after the game and that Cash didn't indicate any anger.

Elsewhere in the National League, San Francisco beat Los Angeles 5-3, Houston edged Cincinnati 4-3, Atlanta swept a pair from San Diego 8-2 and 4-0, and Montreal at St. Louis and New York at Chicago were rained out.

Pittsburgh's victory boosted its lead in the NL East to 2½ games over St. Louis, which was rained out.

Willie Stargell had two homers, a double, two singles and drove in five runs in Monday's doubleheader. Pittsburgh outfielder Richie Zisk's grand slam homer highlighted the nightcap. It was his third homer in five games.

Jerry Reuss scattered eight hits in notching his 15th victory in the opener, while Bruce Kison and Ramon Hernandez combined on a three-hitter in the second game.

Mike Schmidt hit a three-run homer for the Phils in the opener. It was his 34th homer of the year, tops in the majors.

Astros 4, Reds 3

Doug Rader's sixth-inning homer, his 15th of the season, turned out to be the winning run for Houston and prevented the Reds from gaining ground on the Los Angeles, which retained its 3½-game lead in the NL West.

After Rader's homer gave the Astros a 4-2 lead, the Reds nearly tied the game in the seventh. Pate Rose and Joe Morgan singled, and both runners moved up when Gross misplayed Morgan's hit. Johnny Bench then doubled to left, scoring Rose, but Morgan was thrown out at the plate.

Giants 5, Dodgers 3

Two-run homers by Ed Goodson and Chris Speier in the sixth inning and a solo shot by pitcher Jim Barr in the seventh powered the Giants to victory.

Barr, 11-8, scattered seven hits in addition to belting his first career home run.

Braves 8-2, Padres 2-0

Two home runs by Dave Johnson and one apiece by Darrell Evans, Ralph Garr and Dusty Baker powered Atlanta to its sweep as Phil Niekro pitched a four-hitter in the opener and Ron Reed a three-hitter in the nightcap.

Johnson and Evans homered in the opener, while Johnson, Garr and Baker each blasted home runs in the second game.

Vikings Could Be Threat

By WOODY PEELE

(One of a series)

HOLLYWOOD—Despite the fact that they waded into Eastern Carolina Conferences waters quite early, the D. H. Conley Vikings are looking for improvement—and they feel that with a few breaks, they might even have a shot at one of the two playoff berths the league gets.

The Vikings open their season Friday night against Southern Wayne, the team picked by just about everyone to walk off with the Eastern Carolina title. Except for these two schools, all the rest play their lone non-conference game the first night out, getting some type of test before jumping into the league race.

"We've got a good nucleus," Coach Chuck Dunn said. He's got 11 lettermen back from last year, and nine of them were starters. "It gives us a good group to work with, and we've got some promising newcomers. Right now we need competition real bad to find out just what we can do."

Dunn expects his defense to carry the team for a while. Most of the newcomers are on the offensive unit, and will have to pick up some experience.

"We're pretty experienced on defense, except for the secondary," Dunn said. The Vikings run a six-two formation when the other team has the ball, throwing in variations from time to time.

The ends, both new to the varsity are Edward Clemons and Randy Adams, while Ben Payton, a letterman, and Lennox Green, up from the JV, will be at tackle. Barry Purser, a returning starter and Lionel Streeter, another veteran, will anchor the guards. "I feel like our line is capable of getting the job done on defense," Dunn said.

Keith Gould and Calvin Hawkins both return to their linebacking positions, giving good experience there. "They are as good as there are anywhere in this league," Dunn said.

The secondary has only one veteran back, halfback Wayne Cox, both newcomers, while Ricky Phillips, a letterman, will be at safety.

"We're kind of thin in the offensive line, and this has been our biggest problem," Dunn said. The Vikes run from variations of the I formation.

"We have some people who've played before, but we are trying to develop as many people as we can so that we can have two platoons and now have Edwards will handle the split end position.

"I think our passing game will be improved," Dunn said. "Our quarterback was a sophomore last year, so he's had a year of experience. He has more confidence in himself, and we have the boys who can catch the ball."

Joey Baggett is the returning quarterback, and he's been joined in the backfield by fullback Gould, a converted offensive tight end; and Hawkins, who ran fullback last year. The flanker will be Randy Adams.

"We won't have the speed we had last year with Willie Hawkins, but I think Calvin can do a good job for us," Dunn said. "He's got a lot of speed. When our offensive line comes around, I think our running game will be solid. We have more depth in the backfield too, and this will help us."

Actually, Dunn probably has more depth—period—than ever before. The largest number of people showed up this year for the team in the short history of the sport at Conley. "We hope to be able to play more people too, giving our starters a rest to keep them as fresh as possible," the coach said.

While he believes that Southern Wayne is the team to beat in the league, he also thinks that Farmville Central will be strong also.

"If our guys come around soon enough and we stay healthy, I think this could be our best season ever. And I think it's a definite possibility that we could be in the battle for a playoff berth," Dunn said.

people going both ways. But we've had some people getting out late, and they're not in shape yet—this hurts our plans."

The center right now is Joel Dunn, while Billy Langley and Jeff Riggs will be at the guards. All three lettered last year. Purser, along with Willie Maye, a newcomer, are the tackles. Buck will be at tight end, while either Clemons or Cleveland

Scary Ride For Cale's Victory

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Cale Yarborough has won the famed Southern 500 mile race for the third time in his career, and he admits it was one of the scariest rides of his life.

"I don't think any sensible man can drive this race track, under conditions that prevailed in this race, without feeling a little fear along the way. I did and every man out there did," he said.

Yarborough, who lives in a Southern-style mansion only 13 miles from weatherbeaten old Darlington Raceway, drove his Chevrolet through a maze of wrecks Monday to become only the third man in history with the storied stock car event three times.

Not only that, he became only the second man to win it back to back.

He was one of five pre-race favorites among the 40 starters in the silver anniversary event, and he was the only one of them to go the distance.

Wrecks that destroyed half a million dollars worth of machinery felled such worthies as $1.75 career winner Richard Petty. David Pearson, Bobby Allison and Buddy Baker. All except Pearson are former winners.

"I have never seen anything like it in the 15 years I have been racing," the squat, 35-year-old Yarborough said. "It was like a demolition derby out there, and I was either just behind it all, or beside it or in it."

"Everytime I got a little running room, somebody was spinning out and wrecking just as I came up with them. I'll guarantee somebody up there was looking out for me. It had to be the good lord."

Yarborough completed the 367 laps around the narrow, bumpy mile and three-eighths oval more than a lap ahead of second place finisher Darrell Waltrip, a second year man who also drives a Chevrolet.

Ten yellow caution flags, consuming 104 laps, slowed the pace to a crawl while track workmen cleaned up the debris. Thus, it required Yarborough 4 hours and 30 minutes to go the distance, for an average speed of only 111.07 miles per hour.

Third place went to David Sisco in a Chevrolet, fourth to Dave Marcis in a Dodge and fifth to James Hylton in a Chevrolet. All were many laps behind the leader.

Yarborough's victory carried him past Petty in a red hot battle for the Winston Cup Grand National championship. Yarborough is seeking his first title. Petty already has won it four times.

Yarborough agreed some of the other drivers wouldn't move over when faster cars came up behind, but commented:

"Some of the veterans need to be talked to, not the younger drivers. The older drivers were the ones I had the most trouble with."

Yarborough's victory carried him past Petty in a red hot battle for the Winston Cup Grand National championship. Yarborough is seeking his first title. Petty already has won it four times.

Hill Captures Moye Tourney

Frank Hill broke out of a two-day tie to take the 22nd Annual W.S. Moye Memorial Golf Tournament beating Mike Wooles by five strokes.

Hill had been tied for third place in the championship flight during both the first two rounds. Hill broke away during yesterday's final round to take the title. Wooles beat Dorset Ward in a playoff for second as Wooles birdied and first playoff hole.

Wooles rallied out of fifth place on Sunday to take second.

Bob Abbott won the first flight shooting a 241. Ed Warren, the leader in the flight on Saturday and Sunday fell a stroke back at 242 for second.

Smith Creech regained the lead in the second flight and held it to win with a 258, three-day total. Ed Tipton fell out of first place into second with a 260.

Tom Hicks won the third flight and Wallace Wooles took second. Hicks won by a single stroke over Wooles shooting a 258.

Cliff Everett, Jr. won the fourth flight with a 278 beating Gary Pegram who won a playoff for second on the first extra hole. Everette was the only player to lead his flight all three days.

Bombs Decide Oakland's Win

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A pair of passing bombs — one which connected and one which didn't — for all practical purposes decided Monday night's National Football League pre-season game between the Oakland Raiders and the San Francisco 49ers.

Oakland emerged with a 20-19 victory, thanks to a 74-yard scoring strike from Ken Stabler to Cliff Branch that turned things around. An unusual drop of a Steve Spurrier bomb by Gene Washington late in the game proved costly to the 49ers.

As a result, the Raiders take a 4-1 pre-season record into Saturday's Berkeley clash with the New York Jets. The 0-5 49ers host the Los Angeles Rams Sunday.

For a while, upset seemed a possibility. A stout San Francisco defense smothered Stabler and a pair of Tom Wittum field goals gave the 49ers a 6-0 lead late in the second period.

Stabler then uncorked his bomb to Branch, who grabbed the ball on the San Francisco 36 and outraced cornerback Bruce Taylor to the end zone. George Blanda's conversion made it 7-6 at the half.

Stabler completed 13 of 21 passes for 181 yards.

There also was sort of NFL neighborhood battle Sunday, with Cleveland beating Cincinnati 21-17 on Billy Pritchett's two-yard touchdown run with 30 seconds left in the game at Columbus, Ohio.

A key play on the drive that led to the winning touchdown was Don Cockroft's pass from punt formation on a four down with 10 yards to go on the Cleveland 48 yard line.

The loss was the first in five games for Cincinnati and left Pittsburgh, 5-0, as the only unbeaten team in exhibition play.

Denver and Los Angeles are tied with Cincinnati for the second best record.

Denver beat New England 27-26 Saturday night on a one-yard touchdown plunge by reserve quarterback John Huftnagel in the final quarter.

James Harris, also a sub quarterback, passed for two fourth-quarter touchdowns as Los Angeles beat San Diego 30-16.

In other Saturday action, Minnesota beat St. Louis 14-10; New Orleans downed the New York Jets 24-7; Philadelphia edged the New York Giants 24-21; Atlanta topped Baltimore 23-7; Dallas defeated Kansas City 25-16; and Houston trounced Chicago 37-20.

Americans Eke Out 8-7 Victory

By HOWARD SMITH
The Birmingham Americans kept their World Football League unbeaten streak alive, but just barely, Monday night, pulling out an 8-7 squeaker over the Florida Blazers.

"We knew they were strong finishers," moaned Florida Coach Jack Pardee after watching reserve quarterback Matthew Reed lead the Americans on an 80-yard scoring drive in the fourth quarter.

Reed, in relief of starter

George Mira, kept the winning drive rolling with a 10-yard pass to Al Jenkins and an 11-yard keeper. He tied the score on a two-yard keeper and then rifled a pass to Jim Bishop for the decisive action point. It was Birmingham's ninth victory and the fifth time they have rallied late in the game to win.

Elsewhere in the WFL, the Chicago Fire defeated the Southern California Sun 32-22; the New York Stars downed the Philadelphia Bell 24-16; the Memphis Southmen beat the Jacksonville Sharks 16-13; and the Portland Storm topped the Detroit Wheels 18-7.

Chicago 32, Southern Cal 22
Virgil Carter completed 16 of 30 passes for 232 yards and four touchdowns as the Fire raised its record to 7-2. Rookie Mark Kellar rushed for 118 yards on 30 carries for the winners.

New York 24, Philadelphia 16
Tom Sherman threw for two touchdowns and ran for a third as the Stars picked up their sixth victory in the last seven outings. Former Notre Damer Bob Gladieux rushed for 161 yards on 28 carries for New York.

Pirateers Are Named

Dave Patton, first-year head basketball coach at East Carolina University, has announced the 1974-75 "Pirateer" basketball team. The selections follow a four-week clinic for kids in grades one-six held by coach Patton and his staff.

The individuals selected for the team, which will perform ballhandling tricks and play games before and during halftime of the ECU Pirate games during the coming season.

The coaching staff picked the team as follows:

Closed Drills For Pirates

The real grind period is here for the East Carolina University football team. This is the week that the players are being put through their toughest drills in preparation for the opening game. Coach Pat Dye said his Pirate club will have long, tough practices twice each day this week and then things will begin to slack off by the weekend.

Offensively, the team is improving each day, according to Dye. "Our offensive execution," said Dye, "is better at times. But we still lack consistency." On the defensive side, Dye continues to be extremely pleased. "Our front line and linebackers are just a super group of players," commented Dye. "Some of those fellows are getting better and any early success is going to depend on how they play. Our secondary (four sophomores) has just come miles since the spring. They appear to be ready to play."

The team has been hit by a mild case of the flu. Some six to eight players are out of practice with the bug. Most notable in the group is starting quarterback candidate Mike Weaver.

Two injuries have occurred. Gary Dale suffered a pinched nerve in his neck during a specialty period of work yesterday. Steve Mulder is in the hospital with what is thought to be a bruised kidney. The returning time of each player is unknown.

Also, two freshmen recruits have quit the club. Richard Reeves of Macon, Ga. (6-0, 218, lineman), and William Johnson from Athens, Ga. (6-1, 185, lineman) have dropped off the Pirate group.

Coach Dye has announced that all practice sessions from now until the first game will be closed. Dye hopes the public will understand the situation and would appreciate all cooperation in this matter.

Opening Practice

East Carolina University's new head soccer coach, Curtis Frye, has scheduled his first practice for this afternoon on the ECU soccer field.

Frye, named last month to succeed Monte Little, who will concentrate on baseball, said he was optimistic about the start of his first reign at East Carolina and his confidence seemed to be well founded.

"Brad Smith, a fullback-halfback, will provide a lot of fireworks for us this season," said Frye. "And he will fit in with the new coaching philosophy of East Carolina University Soccer."

The Pirates, who open Sept. 19 in Greenville against Atlantic Christian College, will be an "all offense or all defense" type club. "When we have the ball, everybody is on offense," said Frye. "When we don't, everyone is a defensive player. No more platooning of the sort will be seen in East Carolina University soccer."

Frye said a meeting was to be held at 10 a.m. this morning for all prospective players, and the first-year mentor said he should have about 30 persons coming out for the team. Twenty-four of these players are returnees from 1973.

DID HE CATCH IT?

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) —

Coach Mike Sterner of Southwest Minnesota's football team can make his team laugh when he talks about a fair catch incident.

The funniest moment in football, says Sterner, came when "A defensive back put his hand up for a fair catch and his pants fell to his ankles."

his fault. I'm the one running the show and it is my responsibility when there is a decision like that to be made."

Dye bases his decisions on what has happened on previous occasions during a game. "I'm a conservative coach, I'll say that, I'm not a believer in taking a lot of chances. I believe in winning the sure way and that's blocking and tackling and playing sixty minutes."

Dye tries to rehearse with his staff every possible thing that could come up in a game during practice. They may not work on a particular thing a lot, still the Pirates will have been exposed to the situation and know how to react to an unexpected situation.

After a game, one of the first things Dye looks for in studying the game films is effort. "That's what wins ball games is effort. I may be the most brilliant coach in the world strategically, technically and fundamentally but if you don't get great effort from your players, you are not going to win the big games. So effort is the first thing you look for."

Dye looks also for execution, not breaking signals and blocking and tackling.

Dye has set many long range goals for the football team. Dye wants the program to grow and improve each year and be competitive with all the teams on the East Carolina schedule. He has done a lot of work in the few months he has been at East Carolina and has a lot more work ahead of him. This year should be another great year for East Carolina football.

Lady Pilot In Hurricane Eye

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Judy Neuffer looks at herself as a woman who has been in the right place at the right time, twice.

The first was when the Navy opened flight training to women.

The second came on Sunday when she was in the pilot's seat of a Navy P3 weather reconnaissance plane which penetrated the eye of Hurricane Carmen, with its winds of 175 miles per hour.

The 25-year-old lieutenant from Wooster, Ohio, thus became the first woman pilot in naval history to fly into a hurricane's eye.

"I didn't know what to expect, but I think I can honestly say I didn't feel fear," she said. "I have lots of confidence in the aircraft and in the crew. They know their job and they know it well."

She also was helped by the commanding officer of the four-engine turboprop jet, Cmdr. Dick Sirch, an experienced hurricane hunter who supported her and briefed her on what to expect.

Sirch said she compares well with other new pilots.

"Basically, she did a super job," he said.

"When I found out I was getting a woman pilot, I expected a tomboy or a woman's libber. This is just a young lady who seriously wants to be a pilot. She knows she's being observed as a new breed, so she makes an extra effort to do as well as she can."

Lt. Neuffer has been in the Navy for four years since grad-

Arrested In 1968 Killing

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—A 32-year-old nurse's aide, who police say had been suspected for "some time," has been arrested and charged with murder in the death of a 5-year-old girl who disappeared from her home six years ago today.

Clarence Madison of Richmond was arrested near his home Monday and charged with murder in the slaying of Mary Elizabeth Wright, police said. At the time of the slaying, Madison lived two blocks from the girl and her parents.

The girl's nude body was found in a wooded area about one-half mile east of Byrd International Airport less than 10 hours after her disappearance.

A medical examiner said then that the girl died as a result of severe multiple internal and external injuries caused by a blunt force and that she had been sexually assaulted.

Det. Ronald C. Wells, assigned to the case two years ago, said officers arrested Madison after receiving some additional information. Wells declined to say what that information was.

The dead girl's parents later moved from the area after the father, Alan Kent Wright, was graduated from the Medical College of Virginia.

After living in Charleston, S. C. for some time, the couple separated. Police said they knew only that the mother was living in North Carolina. Wright, who lives in Urbana, Ill., was visiting here Labor Day weekend and learned of the arrest.

Madison was being held today in Henrico County jail under $25,000 bond. He was scheduled to appear in court at 1 p.m. today.

The slaying is one of the oldest cases that Henrico County police still have open, a spokesman said.

Will Create New Pollution Problem

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—The director of a federal study on auto pollution says catalytic converters on many 1975 cars will cause a pollution problem of their own by producing emissions of sulfuric acid.

John Moran said in an interview Monday studies have shown that the converter-equipped cars give off .05 grams of sulfuric acid per mile in a fine mist from the exhaust systems.

The converters will be standard equipment on about 70 per cent of the new model cars to comply with federal rules limiting emission of carbon monoxide and other pollutants.

The Environmental Protection Agency is spending $3.5 million on a study of auto emission problems.

A warning about the sulfuric acid problem was made last November. Since then, Moran and his colleagues have been testing prototype vehicles with the new converters.

He said the studies confirmed that cars without converters give off no sulfuric acid.

Moran added the sulfuric acid emissions could develop into a health hazard in two years. It would affect persons with existing respiratory ailments who live in areas having high vehicle density such as freeways and shopping centers.

The Environmental Protection Agency does not require the converters, Moran said, but it has forced auto manufacturers to build cars that meet air quality standards passed by Congress in 1970.

Morgan noted that on the bright side the tests indicate there will be no problem with emissions of palladium and platinum, two of the materials used in the converters.

According to Moran, all General Motors cars and most other American models will have the converters this year.

The converters change carbon monoxide and other hydrocarbons to water and harmless gases. But they apparently also cause sulfur and water in gasoline to combine with oxygen to produce sulfuric acid.

"We got into this fix because those of us in the research community looked only at reducing the level of pollutants already in exhaust fumes and did not look at the entire question and determine what side effects the catalytic converters might have," Moran said.

He pointed out that "normal, healthy people will not be affected" by the concentrations of sulfuric acid involved.

Report Investigation Of Legislator's Campaign

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—State Rep. R.C. Soles Jr., D-Columbus, said Monday that his campaign activities were investigated by the State Bureau of Investigation, the Fayetteville Times reported.

However, Soles denied allegations by two Columbus County businessmen that he threatened them with 24-hour police surveillance if they failed to support his candidacy.

The Times reported Saturday that the SBI had investigated Soles' campaign activities. The newspaper said a confidential SBI report contained charges by the businessmen that Soles threatened them with surveillance by the county police.

A Times spokesman said Monday that the newspaper had sworn affidavits from the businessmen detailing their charges.

The county police department was created by legislation cosponsored by Soles, Rep. Jimmy Greene, D-Bladen; Rep. Graham Tart, D-Sampson; and Sen. Arthur Williamson, D-Columbus.

Soles, of Tabor City, told the Fayetteville Times on Monday that he gave the SBI a "thorough and complete" statement concerning his dealings with the businessmen.

The investigation was part of a broader SBI probe of the May 7 primary in Columbus County.

The legislator claimed the charges were fabricated because of ill feeling between him and the two men, who supported other candidates in the primary.

Soles said his father, Mayor R.C. Soles Sr. of Tabor City, was the only witness to his discussion with the men. However, they claim that another person heard the alleged threat and has given statements to state investigators.

The businessmen contend Soles forced them to remove posters of opposing candidates from their establishments.

One of them quoted Soles in the affidavit as saying: "You either put my posters up and give me support, or I'll break you. I'll make it so hot for you that you won't be able to sleep at night."

The Times said the affidavits are part of a 34-page, single-spaced confidential SBI report of election irregularities in the county's spring primary.

Two New Story Times Planned

Two new story times for preschool children in Greenville have been announced by Children's Librarian Mrs. Kay Taylor.

The new story times are on Wednesdays at 2:30 p.m. and on Thursdays at 11 a.m. These times are in addition to the usual Wednesday 11 a.m. story times already established.

Parents may choose any of the times convenient for them to bring into the story hour sessions.

The expression "crazy as a loon" arises from references to the loon's call as wild, uncontrolled laughter.

In The Red

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A telethon to raise funds for North Carolina Democrat candidates and a handful from South Carolina wound up $2,183 in the red.

It was aired over a channel 36 UHF station, WRET-TV of Charlotte, from 8 p.m. Saturday to 2 a.m. Sunday.

If the six-hour telethon had shown a profit, the money was to have been divided among the candidates who participated.

The Mecklenburg County Democratic chairman, Harvey Diamond of Charlotte, said the telethon was a success because "pride and party unity, not fund-raising, was the goal."

He said, "We feel no shame at all. I think we'll probably do it again."

Diamond said the telethon raised $3,787 in donations, while the break-even point was $5,970. The party spent $4,750 for air time and the rest for publicity.

A Marketable Skill Is Needed

Before Elaine was through her first year at Business School, 3 large firms were vying to get her to come to work for them. And at a splendid salary! For such graduates receive a marketable skill," still not offered by most Liberal Arts colleges!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

CASE B-632: Elaine F., aged 18, wonders about college.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "my parents want me to go on to college."

"But they can't afford to send me there for more than a year or two."

"So how can I obtain the most for my money, if I decide to make further training?"

Marketable Skill

The fundamental purpose nowadays in college is to furnish the students a marketable skill.

When I was invited by H. D. Buckingham to address his students at the National College of Business, he said:

"Dr. Crane, I feel that teaching a marketable skill is the basic purpose of modern education."

That goal appeals nowadays to students and especially to their parents.

For in past years, students graduated from 4 years of Liberal Arts college, often at a cost of $12,000 to $20,000, yet had no "marketable skill" with which to pry loose a good position.

If you high school graduates thus want to get the most for your college tuition, then enroll in a Business College, where you can gain a splendid marketable skill via your one-year or two-year diploma.

For Business Schools, like Medical, Dental, Law and Engineering Colleges, graduate you with the ability to take a good job and immediately bring home a good pay check.

Nowadays, tens of thousands of Liberal Arts graduates, holding a B.S. or A. B. degree for 4 years of college, still can't get work.

Indeed, a recent educational survey showed that thousands of Ph.D. graduates are still looking for suitable positions.

Yet graduates of Business

Schools are in such demand that offices and factories, hospitals and radio as well as TV, newspapers and large commercial firms are vying to get the graduates.

In fact, a recent survey showed that every school graduate of a Business School has from 5 to 10 offers of well paying positions awaiting the moment they receive that one-year or two-year diploma.

My wife thus took one-year at Business College and has been of far more value to me as a result, than because of all her later courses at Northwestern University, New York University and Indiana University. Why?

Because such graduates have been taught Business Law, now not even mentioned in the 4-year Liberal Arts requirement for the B. S. or A. B.

Business College grads also understand bookkeeping and accounting, so Mrs. Crane always prepares my income tax returns.

They likewise get Applied Psychology, still not taught in a majority of Liberal Arts Colleges! Imagine such Liberal Arts Myopia!

Public Speaking is also a vital course in Business Schools, as is Computer Systems operation, salesmanship and advertising. Even Charm Courses make the Business School grads excellent as hostesses or receptionists for all types of business and professional offices.

So the best educational investment for one or two years is now in a good Business School! Send for my "Vocational Guidance" booklet, enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents, for it familiarizes you with college entrance exam formats.

Ed Asner Goes Back To Drama After Comedy

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP)—Edward Asner playing a suicidal cop?

The notion will perhaps boggle the minds of TV watchers who know him only as Lou Grant, Mary Tyler Moore's gruff boss with a soft heart.

Asner appears Sept. 10 as a policeman facing the grim prospect of retirement on the season's opener of "Police Story."

Offbeat casting? So it seems. But the actor played a tough cop in the pilot film that started the "Police Story" series.

Before becoming a regular on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" four years ago, he did almost nothing but drama in films and television.

This week Asner was working on yet another series, "Rhoda." That's the spinoff of the Moore Show, with Valerie Harper cutting out of Minneapolis-St. Paul for a career and husband in New York.

Between rehearsals, Asner talked about his dramatic flyer—and his life with Mary.

"I play a man who is faced with a common problem nowadays: he has done the same job for 20-25 years and the day approaches when he's got to quit," said the beefy actor. "He begins to worry about two things: 1. His age; 2. The fact that he isn't doing his job very well—something that is impressed upon him by his young, impertinent partner."

He sees what has happened to friends of his who have retired from the force. There is Scott Brady, who is running a beat-up bar. And Tom Drake, who has become a wine south of the border. The cop doesn't like facing that kind of a future, and there is an abortive suicide."

Oddly, it was a police role that helped him land his position as newsroom boss on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show."

He played a bumbling chief of police in an Erle Stanley Gardner film that was aimed at a series for 20th Century-Fox.

Mary's husband and producer, Grant Tinker, was an executive at the studio and remembered Asner when casting for the Moore series.

Unlike some actors who have grown restive in series, Ed Asner is happy with his lot.

"Do I find the series wearing? Amazingly enough, very infrequently," he said. "Maybe I had a lobotomy or something, but the show still generates a great deal of pleasure."

Ed Asner was born 44 years

Chased Car For 9 Miles

CHARLOTTE (AP)—One of two young hitchhikers was wounded by a police bullet and three police cars were wrecked in a nine-mile chase that reached 95 miles an hour Monday.

It began when police spotted a car fitting the description of one whose driver reportedly had failed to pay for $2 worth of gasoline.

When it ended, 26-year-old Eric Marcel Ford of Charlotte was placed under bond of $200,000 bond on charges of kidnapping the hitchhikers, larceny of gasoline, various driving charges, possession of heroin and possession of a needle and syringe.

The hitchhikers, Andre Sharp, 14, and Bruce Anthony Broome, 16, both of Charlotte, said they begged Ford to let them out when the chase began, but he told them to "shut up and lay down."

Sharpe was hit by a bullet but not seriously injured.

Broome slumped in the front seat holding the driver's month-old puppy.

Part of the chase was at 90 m.p.h. in downtown Charlotte.

ago in Kansas City, Kan., went to school there and at the University of Chicago. He worked in Chicago theater, with two years out for Army service in France and played on and off Broadway until 1961, when he emigrated to Hollywood. His luck was uneven.

"The year before I played Mary's show I earned $50,000 in TV and films," he recalled. "But that came on the heels of my worst year, when I made only $17,000."

"That was a rough year. We had just moved into a new house, and we couldn't sell the old for five months. Then came the rains of 1968, and the back slope fell off my lot."

"Twice I looked in the Sunday want ads to see if I could find some kind of work—and I got sick."

"A lot of the ads were training programs, which wouldn't welcome an aging actor. What else could I do—go back to my earlier jobs, like metal finishing?"

He persisted, borrowing money from his agent to support his wife, Nancy, and their three children. Finally his luck turned sweet again.

How long will he continue with "The Mary Tyler Moore Show"?

"Unless somebody gets me mad, I see no reason to leave," he remarked. "We're doing some of the best writing in America on our show."

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1974

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Richter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Matters that have been long pending are still not ready for action, fine new opportunities now drop into your lap which give you the chance to build new success by accepting and using them.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) One at home is not very helpful to you today, but an associate is. Some new aspects of life should be heeded now. Avoid time-waster.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Stick to own work and get it done right, then steer clear of one who annoys you. Drive with utmost care. Keep an eye on your wallet when shopping.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get into creative, happy matters and forget the monetary ones for the time being. Not a good day to get in touch with a money expert, anyway.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You are not thinking as clearly as you should today, so listen to bright ideas that can give you. Forget the personal and concentrate on business.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't pout, but do something constructive about problems—be active. Contact those who can give you backing for some worthwhile project. Have fun at home tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Investigate facts and figures of some situation well, then you handle it wisely. Study financial structure of your life. Avoid pals pretty much who want to be sociable just now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Your ideas are fine. You can have excellent rapport with others, but keep out of the way of an irate higher-up. Sociable p.m., but avoid business people.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Starting some new project before you are fully prepared for it could be bad now. Enjoy romance with mate and don't go seeking new thrills.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get together with fascinating new friends and plan the future with them. Don't get into the business side of things until later after you get into their good graces.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you want to improve harmony at home, steer clear of one who is a troublemaker. Find the right new articles to add to your home and improve its efficiency.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Your new ideas will make your job easier and more profitable, so work on those during day. Plan time for home and family in p.m. Get out of rut.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get rid of responsibilities and pay important bills, starting work early. Make plans for any kind of travel that is important to your welfare.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will like to be with one person and then another and start one project and jump to another, so be sure to teach early to be more consistent and to finish whatever is once started. A brilliant mind here of a scholastic bent, so find out early what the true forte is and send to right schools for thorough education in such. Schools Got The Surplus HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—The Marshall Space Flight Center said today that more than $12 million worth of excess technical and electronic equipment has been permanently transferred to 53 universities in the past few years.

The equipment, used in space-related projects, ranged from basic technical items, such as oscilloscopes and voltmeters, to multimillion dollar computer systems.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare donated the items to the schools, which in many cases were using them to conduct research projects for the space center.

Some schools that recently received technical items were the University of Alabama, Auburn University, Clemson University and Alabama A&M.

The University of Alabama, at Tuscaloosa, is using its $3 million computer in its aerospace and environmental courses and other studies. Another $3 million system is being used for computer education at Alabama A&M at Huntsville.

Auburn received a $125,000 analog computer and a $40,000 control computer. Clemson was given a $264,840 computer system.

A young Georgia team captained by Steve Goldberg won the Spingold Team Championship, premier event of the American Contract Bridge League's Summer Nationals held in New York during July. In the final, they defeated by 3 international matchpoints, a team led by internationalist Lew Mathe of Los Angeles.

For three quarters, the winners dominated the match, leading by 63 IMPs with 16 boards to play. Then Mathe took control and began to manufacture gains out of nothing and when this last board had to be played, he had cut the deficit to 14 IMPs.

When South's jack of clubs is played, West must keep three spades, so he is forced to discard the queen of diamonds.

Dummy's six of spades is sluffed, and South tucks West in with his ace of diamonds.

West must lead a spade.

North's queen is finessed and the ace of spades and king of diamonds take the last two tricks—making six-odd.

Coal Contract Talks Underway

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United Mine Workers and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association open negotiations today in an effort to reach agreement on a new industry-wide contract before the present three-year pact expires Nov. 12.

The miners have traditionally followed a "no contract, no work" policy.

UMW President Arnold Miller, who met with President Ford on Labor Day, has promised "hardheaded bargaining" to get "everything we can" in the new contract.

A White House spokesman said Miller's meeting with the President covered mine safety, the problems of black lung disease and the impact of inflation on the nation's miners.

Today's negotiating session was expected to be recessed quickly so industry bargainers could have a chance to study union proposals for a new agreement covering 115,000 miners who produce about 75 per cent of the coal burned by steel mills and power plants.

Details of the union's proposals have not yet been released, but spokesmen have said the package is broad enough to allow UMW negotiators plenty of bargaining room.

But while some areas are open to bargaining, the industry team is expected to face hard union positions on certain issues that will form the core of Miller's proposals. Among them are:

—Wages. Because of inflation, Miller wants wages advanced from the present $42.50-$50 range. He feels industry can afford higher pay now that coal prices are soaring with the energy crunch. The union also wants an escalator clause to cope with rising consumer prices.

—Mine Safety. The UMW wants to broaden and clarify the rights of mine safety committees to shut down mine sections when conditions are considered unsafe.

—Job Bidding. The union wants promotions strictly on the basis of seniority, while industry prefers a qualifications system. This could be one of the stickiest issues, as promotions have been one of the most frequent causes of wildcat strikes that plague the mines.

Additional prime issues will be streamlined grievance procedures, sick pay (the miners currently have none) and increased per-ton royalties paid by the companies into the miners' Welfare and Retirement Fund.

If talks bog down on any of these key points, or if the package presented to the miners for ratification does not treat them to the satisfaction of the increasingly militant members of the UMW, the chances of a lengthy strike after Nov. 12 increase sharply.

French Aircraft Sales Drive Felt By NATO

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense officials say the French government is putting "staggering pressure" on four NATO countries as they decide whether to buy a new French or U.S. jet fighter.

At stake are contracts potentially worth billions of dollars, prestige and influence in Europe, large numbers of jobs in two ailing economies, and each nation's hope for balance-of-payment benefits.

The Netherlands, Belgium, Norway and Denmark are to buy about 350 planes to replace aging U.S.-built F104 Starfighters.

The French entry is the Mirage F1M53, while the United States has two candidates, both lightweight fighters competing also for selection by the U.S. Air Force. The U.S. planes are the YF16, built by General Dynamics Corp., and the YF17 of the Northrup Corp.

A struggle for this business has intensified on both sides for months.

For the United States, a decision for the U.S. plane could reduce the cost of up to 600 lightweight fighters for the U.S. Air Force by permitting a wider spread of production and development costs.

It also could open the way for sales to other NATO countries.

For France, a decision for the Mirage would help stave off unemployment in its aircraft industry and overcome balance of payments problems growing out of high import prices for fuel and other goods.

Late last week, the French foreign ministry invited defense ministers of the four countries to Paris on Sept. 8.

Pentagon officials said the French have persistently emphasized to the four countries that, like France, they are small European nations who should stand with France against dominance by the United States.

There also have been reports of strong French economic pressures, including warnings to Belgian businessmen that they would lose French orders unless the Mirage was purchased.

U.S. authorities close to the situation say Belgium leans toward the Mirage, but that informal indications are that the Netherlands, Denmark and Norway favor a U.S. plane.

Synthetic Oil Sales Growing

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — A small petroleum firm is promoting a new "super" synthetic motor oil for autos it says can last up to 10 times longer than conventional lubricating oil.

Pacer Petroleum Co., of Houston, Tex., says its sales are "growing like weeds." But Detroit's Big Three auto makers say they aren't ready for an oil change. They are making tests of their own, however. And they are interested.

Pacer's Sol Levy says cars using the firm's EON E-11 synthetic oil can go 40,000 miles between oil changes. U.S. auto makers recommend conventional oil changes every 3,000 to 6,000 miles.

Levy also says E-11 provides better protection for engine parts, causes less engine wear and results in better fuel economy than petroleum oils.

However, E-11 sells for $5 a quart, compared with less than $1 a quart for conventional oil.

But Levy says in the long run it is less expensive because E-11 users buy one-tenth as many quarts over 40,000 miles of driving.

Outside the auto industry, synthetic oils are not new. Germany developed them during World War II and the aircraft industry has used them for years.

About a half dozen companies market such oils. Pacer is the first to offer the product nationwide for auto owners.

Levy estimated more than 250,000 cars now use the product, and the company expects $6 million in sales this year.

"It's just unbelievable the way it's taken off," he said.

Pacer is advertising heavily in Detroit, a market which can make or break a new auto product. Ads plug E-11 as the oil used in Houston police cars and boast the oil "never needs to be changed."

The auto makers, while not rejecting Pacer's claims outright, express skepticism about the "super oil." They say synthetic motor oil needs more testing before the firms can either reject or recommend it for use in their cars.

Broken Glass Pierced Chest

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—A playful chase proved fatal to a 13-year-old Charlotte boy when he fell through a glass storm door at his home and broken glass pierced his chest, police said.

Terry Randall Sparnell was dead on arrival at Charlotte Memorial Hospital.

A neighbor told authorities he thought the youth was chasing his 14-year-old brother, Robbie Sparnell, who went outside the house through another door.

The victim was the son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Sparnell, who were visiting relatives in Spartanburg, South Carolina, at the time of the accident. The boys were staying at home with their 20-year-old brother, Gene Sparnell, who had left the house temporarily when the accident occurred.

Driver Charged In Car Mishap

Wilbur Ray Eubanks of 1212 Red Banks Rd. was charged with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident following investigation of a 5:10 p.m. mishap here yesterday.

Officers said the Eubanks vehicle collided with a car driven by Belinda Faye Suggs of 604 Howell St. at the intersection of Hooker Road and Cozart Street causing an estimated $200 damage to the Eubanks vehicle and $100 damage to the Suggs auto.

One passenger in the Eubanks car was reported injured.
