

Public Criticism Grows Over Pardon For Nixon

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Pardon for former President Richard M. Nixon has brought President Ford mounting criticism and has sidetracked a Vietnam amnesty plan he was to have announced today.

Ford missed his own deadline for announcing terms of conditional amnesty for Vietnam-era deserters and draft evaders because he was focusing attention on Nixon's pardon, aides said.

Now, no time is set for Ford's amnesty decision affecting some 50,000 men.

The President wants more time to consider the complex questions, said Deputy Press Secretary John W. Hushen.

Several advocates of amnesty felt Ford's postponing his decision after the Nixon pardon might lead to a broader, less conditional program for the Vietnam group.

But, Hushen emphasized that Ford has not changed his view that, unlike the "full, free and absolute" pardon he gave Nixon, Vietnam offenders must be judged case-by-case, category-by-category.

Public reaction, meanwhile, was mounting in the first 48 hours after Ford's surprise pardon announcement on Sunday.

The President got a chorus of boos, amid applause, from a crowd of about 500 outside a Pittsburgh hotel where he made a speech Monday morning. There were chants of "no more cover up," and "prosecute Nixon," and demonstrators protesting the Nixon pardon held signs with such comments as: "The honeymoon is over," "Justice Died," and "Why not pardon all?"

The White House switchboard continued to be jammed with calls throughout Monday. The first 3,000 calls Sunday night ran 2 to 1 against Ford's decision, a White House spokesman reported.

By Monday night, however, the telephone sentiment had switched to 50-50, spokesman said.

But, there was overwhelming criticism in telegrams and mailgrams that Western Union estimated would total some 75,000 messages by Monday night. They were running 7 to 1 against Ford's pardon.

In Nixon's home state, the House of Delegates of the California Bar voted 347 to 169 in favor of a resolution which said

Ford's action "violates the principle that all persons stand equal before the law and presents a substantial threat that the confidence of our citizens in the American system of justice will be undermined." Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski said of pardon: "This is a matter that was decided upon by the President on his authority under the Constitution. It was something I didn't participate in."

But, one of his chief aides, Philip A. Lacovara, submitted his resignation because he said Ford's pardon of Nixon "disposes of the question" of the former President's legal status. Lacovara's was the second resignation stemming from the pardon.

Ford's press secretary, Gerald F. terHorst, who quit on Sunday as a matter of conscience and credibility, went back to work on Monday for the Detroit News, where he will now be a national columnist.

'Ford Knew'

NORWICH, Conn. (AP) — President Ford knew the nature of the charges that were to be brought against Richard M. Nixon when he granted a full pardon to the former president, Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott, R-Pa., said Monday night.

The public impression given by reporters was that Ford "was pardoning somebody without knowing the nature of the charge," Scott told a news conference.

"That is not correct, and I hope it finally surfaces. I suggest you ask the special prosecutor why it hasn't been surfaced."

"The President did know. You'll have to pursue this. I'm not going to tell you, but the President did know the specifics involving the investigation of former President Nixon."

Scott said he supported Ford's pardon of Nixon. He called for full disclosure of tapes and documents and letters between Nixon and Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

To end the Watergate controversy, Nixon's "full role in Watergate should be revealed to the American people," Scott said.

"Let them be the judge and I believe they will then understand and approve of President Ford's decision. The President clearly thinks he made the right decision."

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day, but the phone service is available 24 hours a day.

HOTLINE APPEAL

LABOR DEPT. LOOKING FOR YOUTHS

The Manpower Administration of the U. S. Dept. of Labor has requested Hotline's aid in locating two Greenville youths.

The two individuals worked with the Neighborhood Youth Corps two years ago and stopped work without collecting their last pay checks.

The Manpower Administration has tried to mail the two youths their back pay checks, but they have been returned.

Anyone knowing the location of Luther Gay, formerly of Rt. 1, Box 386, Greenville and Shirley Thigpen, formerly of 1307 S. Lee St., Winterville, can give their information to Hotline by calling 752-1336. We will pass the information on to the Labor Dept.

WHAT'S REDEEMING PROCEDURE?

I have some Gold Bond stamps and am wondering how to redeem them, since the redemption store in New Bern has closed. V.M.

You may write the Gold Bond Stamp Co., 12715 State Highway 55, Minneapolis, Minn. 55427 asking for a catalog. In the catalog is information about how to have the items you would like sent postpaid. This probably will be necessary because there are no Gold Bond redemption centers left in North Carolina now, a spokesman for the company said.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

DOG FOUND, SHOTS STOPPED

The Rabies Control Section of the Pitt County Health Department reported this morning that the dog which bit Alan Batchelor was found this morning. The owner said he heard about the appeal only this morning and immediately had his dog quarantined at a local veterinary clinic. The call was in time to prevent today's rabies shot for Alan. Hotline and Alan and his mother thank you, Sir.

INJURED YOUTH GOES TO MEMPHIS

Billy Varner is on his way home to Memphis. Hotline's appeal yesterday for donations to help send the paralyzed youth to Memphis via an ambulance stimulated a bounty of offers, according to the Rev. Willis Wilson.

Wilson states that Billy Varner was placed on an ambulance at midnight last night for a 20-hour trip after $720 was raised. According to the Rev. Wilson, several pilots offered to fly the youth to Memphis but the size of the planes would not allow a medical technician to accompany the group so they elected to take the ambulance.

Hotline and Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church thank the Winterville Free Will Baptist Church, the Baptist Church of Winterville, and the many individuals who made contributions, along with the Greenville Lions Club for their generous offer.

Hunt Believes Certain People 'Do Not Want' Med School Success

N.C. Lt. Gov. James Hunt says he feels there are "certain people in our state who do not want to see" the medical school at East Carolina University succeed, and that they are "continuing to resist its expansion and the addition of a second-year program despite the mandate of the General Assembly that this be done."

"And I would simply say to these people that this school is going to succeed. It is going to expand. It is going to become a full, four year medical school, just as the General Assembly intended," he adds.

Hunt made the remarks last night at a kick-off dinner for the Pitt County Hospital Memorial Gifts Fund Raising Campaign at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

That campaign seeks to raise $1 million over a four-year period to help with extra funds needed to construct the new county hospital.

"And I would hope that the people who have, for so long, opposed the East Carolina University School of Medicine will now, in the wake of the most recent actions of the General Assembly, abandon their opposition and join with us in building the best medical school that we possibly can and putting it to good service for our people," the lieutenant governor added.

Hunt says he believes North Carolinians consider better health care as one of the top problems they face, "month after month, year after year."

And that the problem is twofold, one "the number of doctors per capita is far below the national average" and two, "that the distribution of doctors that we do have is such that people in some areas of the state simply don't have access to good medical care."

"I believe we can do something about this problem, and we are beginning to do so," says Hunt.

"To bring better medical care to those areas of North Carolina now doing without, we are beginning to undertake new and innovative programs using community health clinics, paramedical personnel and new methods of training medical personnel at all levels of proficiency," said Hunt.

To solve the problem of the number of doctors per capita, "We have begun a new, four-year medical school here at East Carolina University that will, in the years ahead, have the capacity to greatly increase the number of doctors entering medical practice in North Carolina," Hunt added.

Prior to Hunt's talk, Harry Leslie, chairman of the Gifts Committee, explained to the gathering why the $1 million is needed to help complete the new hospital which is under construction.

Basically, the lowest contract bid was $1,800,000 above the $11,600,000 available for the construction of the new hospital, says Leslie.

To help make up the difference, the hospital board of trustees appointed a few individuals to the new Pitt County Hospital Memorial Gifts Committee, and charged them with the responsibility of raising the necessary supplemental funds for the additional furniture

Comments Sought As To Green Mill Run Plans

WILMINGTON—The Wilmington District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, has published a draft environmental impact statement on the effects of constructing about 1.9 miles of channel improvement on Green Mill Run in Greenville, from the upper end of Green Springs Park to Charles Street and wants government agencies, industries, special interest groups and individuals to comment on it.

According to the statement the general alignment of Green Mill Run would be kept much the same as it is today with a ten foot wide bottom about three feet deep. The floodway would be a ten foot wide grassed berm, gradually rising on a three to one slope from the natural ground level. The average width across the channel and the floodway would be 70 feet with an average depth of seven feet.

Material excavated from the work site is planned to be removed to Greenville's 30-acre landfill and to other low lying spots along the flood plain to improve it for further use by hiking and biking trails. Tree and shrub plantings are planned for road crossings to create an eye pleasing transition zone.

of North Carolina's pollution control regulations and the Corps of Engineers' construction guide specifications for environmental protection to keep construction site pollution to a minimum.

The Wilmington District seeks comments from now until October 23, 1974, from some 40 Federal, State and local agencies, conservation groups, and all interested persons. After all the remarks are reviewed, the text will be revised and the final statement filed with the Council of Environmental Quality in Washington, D.C.

Copies of the Green Mill Run draft statement are available from the Wilmington District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, P.O. Box 1890, Wilmington, N.C., 28401.

The severance needed for the completion of Reade Circle adjoins the former Collins Pridmore property and contains some 8,719 square feet. The property on the west side of Greene Street contains 2,035 square feet and will allow for the street to be widened.

NEW ART BUILDING—Dr. Wellington B. Gray, Dean of the School of Art (and for the past three years a judge for the Miss America Beauty Pageant at Atlantic City, N. J.), and East Carolina University chancellor Dr. Leo Jenkins inspect the front of ECU's new Fine Arts complex—the Leo W. Jenkins Fine Arts Center—as university workmen move in furniture and fixtures so classes may begin in the 65,000 square-foot building Thursday. The new facility—the first phase of a two-part construction program, cost $1.5 million. Construction began December 13, 1973. Work on a 77,000 square feet addition to the building is expected to get under way in December and require about two years to complete. With the addition of the new three-story second phase, the total art complex will be the most costly building on the university campus—accounting for some $4.25 to $4.50 million.

Teacher Dismissal Upheld By Court

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

U.S. Eastern District Court Judge John Larkins has ruled in favor of the Pitt County Board of Education in dismissing a complaint, September 6, in which a local black teacher charged the board had terminated her employment because of racial discrimination.

Mary E. Jones, who taught fifth grade at Pactolus prior to her dismissal, filed the complaint against the Pitt school board in the Fall of 1971, seeking reinstatement and back pay. In Judge Larkins' order last week dismissing the case, he said the Pitt County Board of Education "demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence that the discharge of the plaintiff and other black teachers was not racially motivated," saying Mrs. Jones was terminated for "just and sufficient cause."

The jurist said, "There is an uncontroverted record of teaching deficiencies on the part of the plaintiff of sufficient magnitude to foreclose her claim that the stated reasons for her release were pretext."

In his order, Judge Larkins noted, "where no discrimination on the basis of race is present, as is true in this case, this court follows a policy of non-interference in the determination of the competency of teachers, and the competency of teachers is not a matter of constitutional dimension."

In his order, Judge Larkins also noted, "the record is bare of credible evidence which would tend to show in the slightest" that the Pitt County Board of Education acted against Mrs. Jones "because of her race or color."

W. W. Speight, attorney for the Pitt school board emphasized, "this decision justifies the Pitt County Board of Education and the Pitt County superintendent's determination to employ the most competent teachers and personnel for the education of every school child in Pitt County, regardless of race or color, and without discrimination."

Commenting on Judge Larkins' dismissal of the case, Pitt County school superintendent Arthur S. Alford said, "I am extremely pleased with the decision. . . since January of 1965, I have appeared in Judge Larkins' court representing the Board of Education on 10 different occasions. And each time, I found him not only concerned about his responsibility to uphold the law, but also sensed a desire on his part to be as understanding as the law would allow him."

The judge's decision, Alford continued, "should be ample evidence that school boards are still in control of the public school."

The school head explained that the U.S. Constitution requires that due process and equal protection be afforded all teachers, "and well it should." But, he added, "after these rights and others have been secured, school boards must be in a position to administer the schools in a fair and impartial manner."

"The position taken by Judge Larkins guarantees this right for local boards."

Alford said "as superintendent, I will continue to recommend to the Board of Education the employment and retention of the best qualified personnel available, regardless of race, sex, creed, or national origin."

Car Bombed

SALISBURY, N. C. (AP)—A State Bureau of Investigation agent was injured seriously today when a bomb made of high explosives shattered his car.

Agent Albert Stout Jr., 33, of Salisbury was reported still in surgery three hours after the 8:15 a.m. blast at his apartment. Authorities said Stout had internal injuries and that his leg had been severed at the knee.

The blast peeled the top of Stout's car "like you do a sardine can," a police spokesman said.

Salisbury police roped off the area near Stout's apartment and made a door-to-door search. Roadblocks also were set up on the adjacent streets.

Nab Steinbeck With Hashish

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — John Steinbeck IV, writer son of the late novelist John Steinbeck, has been jailed in southern Thailand after being seized with hashish at the Thai-Malaysian border, U.S. officials said today.

The officials said Steinbeck, 28, was arrested late last month while en route from Thailand to Malaysia and was sentenced to one month in jail at Songkhla, about 450 miles south of Bangkok.

Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church was approved Monday night by the Redevelopment Commission as developer for Parcel Z-3, which adjoins the church property and fronts on Dickinson Avenue in the CBA area.

By joint agreement, at the same time the property is conveyed to Jarvis Memorial, the church will convey severances to the Redevelopment Commission on both the east and west sides of Greene Street for completion of Reade Circle and widening of Greene Street.

some 14,000 square feet, is the former Gulf-Peeden property on Dickinson Avenue. Purchase of the tract from the Redevelopment Commission will afford Jarvis Memorial additional parking area.

Commission executive director Joe Laney pointed out that the property conveyance is not an exchange between the Redevelopment Commission and the church but both parties will pay the fair market value for land each is purchasing.

The matter is subject to City Council approval and is scheduled for consideration at tonight's meeting at city hall.

The commission also qualified Ruland Davenport, who owns the Calico Restaurant property on the corner of Evans and Eighth Streets, as a bidder for Disposal Parcel S-10 which adjoins the restaurant property and fronts some 40 feet on Eighth Street.

MRS. ROBERT BRUCE BENNETT

Couple Weds In Friday Ceremony

SALISBURY—Miss Sarah Virginia Ramsey of Salisbury became the bride of Robert Bruce Bennett of Rt. 2, Greenville, Friday at 7:00 p.m. in the First United Church of Christ.

The Rev. Lonnie A. Carpenter conducted the ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented by Ralph A. Bostian, organist, and Jean K. Ramsey, soloist.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Jean Kirk Ramsey and Mr. Jack A. Ramsey Sr., both of Salisbury. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Eddie Bennett Jr. of Rt. 2, Greenville, and the late Mr. Bennett.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white polyester mist fashioned with an embroidered tulle lace bodice, empire waist and bishop sleeves with lace cuffs. The gown has a detachable chapel train.

After a wedding trip, the couple will reside in Boone.

The bride graduated from Boyden High School, Salisbury, and East Carolina University with a B.S.P. degree in medical record science. She is now a registered record administrator.

The bridegroom graduated from Chicod High School and has an associate of arts degree from Lenoir Community College, Kinston. He is continuing his education at Appalachian State University. He served two years in the U. S. Navy and is now in the U. S. Navy Reserves.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride.

Household Hints

You a plan ahead type? Now probably is the time to get moving on homemade Christmas cards—if you make your own.

Invited to a wedding that takes place around two in the afternoon? Should you wear a long or short dress? It's a matter of to each her own on solving the dilemma. You probably won't be out of place with a long dress, but you might feel so in a short dress. The reason? The long dress has become socially acceptable even for brunch events. When in doubt about the wedding ceremony or reception attire, check with the hostess.

Therapist Deals With Patients' Interest

By PATEARLY
Women's News Service

DURHAM—On one worktable sits a tiny treasure chest of popstick sticks painted sky blue.

On another stand bowls of liquid plastic flowers—hardened in a kiln—on wire stems. The flowers come in bright blues, greens, oranges and reds.

Mosaics, ceramic pieces and bas-reliefs on copper plates hang from the wall, along with an assortment of awls, hammers, drills and saws. For the people aged 12 and up who craft these objects the arts and crafts workshop of Duke Hospital is more than a place to sit and relax and create. It's part of a path back to mental health. Many of the projects are pretty and artful but that's not what counts for Jean Crosby, 25, an art therapist who works with some 45 mental patients a day here.

"What I deal with is what interests the patient, the strawberry-blond Ms. Crosby says. "But I don't rate the success of a patient on how pretty his project is, but on his growth mentally and his relationship with others in the workshop."

Working with her are recreation therapist Barbara Yoder, and recreation assistant Barbara Brooke.

Their patients include schizophrenics, neurotics, psychotics and nonmental patients such as those trying to adapt to physical handicaps such as blindness caused by diabetes.

"I have worked with patients who couldn't remember from three seconds ago to now, Ms. Crosby said. "I've worked with others who were blind. What I try to do is help them find something exciting, a joy in life."

Ms. Crosby, a native of Mt. Olive and a graduate of St. Andrew's College, Laurinburg, N. C., has worked in special education at East Carolina University and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, and also with remedial children in Morehead City, N. C. She came to Duke 2½ years ago as one of the few art therapists in the state.

She teaches arts and crafts—including candlemaking, crewel, needlepoint, macrame, jewelry-making and painting. More than skills in these, the prime requisite for an art therapist, she says, is "caring and warmth."

To her mind, these attributes "are more important to this program than anything I could teach."

The Ms. Crosby Yoder and Brooke handle two types of patients: those with minimal or low-key conditions and those who might behave in an erratic, possibly violent way.

Doors are left open for the first group and they can wander out into the corridor if they like. For the latter, the big steel door to the corridor is locked and the only exit is through a door leading back into a mental ward.

"The potential for violence is here," said Ms. Crosby. "But I deal with it before it begins. I've never had anybody attack anybody else."

Asked if she wasn't risking a lot by leaving saws and other sharp instruments hanging on walls, she said she kept a lock-box for the sharpest needles and punches. "I'm aware of exactly how many knives I have, how many scissors, right down to how many needles. At the end of the day I count. If something is missing, we search. Usually you can ask for something and get it back."

On the other hand she sees no point in acting nervous about her patients' access to sharp tools: "People will act the way you treat them," she says. "The thing I have the hardest time dealing with is that doctors can require people to come in here and do something. I'm too in touch with art to think that you can push art on somebody." And art, not just making "busy work," is what Ms. Crosby and her associates help patients aim for. "One thing this room absolutely does not function on are kits or pre-formed crafts. Why should we paint by numbers when we can paint for real—or fantasize."

The making of art engenders a kind of happy chaotic atmosphere in the long, narrow workshop. Projects are displayed everywhere, along with wipe-up rags and tools. A wooden plaque says "God bless this mess."

"A lot of people would be appalled to come in here and see this mess," Ms. Crosby said. "But what they wouldn't see would be all the good stuff that goes with it."

The good stuff includes the newly acquired skill at "string art" by a woman patient who, two weeks after her discharge, demonstrated how to do linear designs of schooners and other vessels on local TV. It includes the fellow who dipped a fish in ink and made 25 pressings on paper before he was satisfied with what is a starkly beautiful impression in black of scales, fins, mouth and eye. It includes a patient's woodcarving of a tree with no leaves, scraggly arms and a gnarled trunk, with an inscription quoting the Japanese poet Shika:

"Here is
The dark
Tree
Denuded now of leafage
But a million stars."

Parents Of 'Homely' Babies Can Learn From This Couple

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: That disturbed young mother who couldn't "love" her baby because it had such a homely nose prompts me to write this.

I recently visited a young (and very handsome) couple who have a nine-month-old baby. No one warned me, so I wasn't prepared for what I saw when they brought her out. She was positively the homeliest baby I had ever seen. Unusually homely!

I was at a loss for what to say, so I just said, "Hi, darling baby!" She smiled, her eyes twinkled and her homely little face lit up as she held out her arms to welcome me as a new friend.

Within minutes I knew the secret of that baby's charm. Her parents treated her as though she were an exquisitely beautiful and beloved treasure by letting her know what a loved baby she was. Consequently, she is exactly what they hold her to be—a beautiful treasure.

Within minutes one forgets that she is not a very pretty baby, because it doesn't really matter. Her personality is sunny, lovable and responsive.

Parents of "homely" babies can learn a lot from this couple. I did.

A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: And I'll wager so did many others.

DEAR ABBY: I have been saddened and amused by the number of letters in your column from people who were upset by the size of their noses. The mother who couldn't love her baby because of its big schnozz hit me hard.

To me, a prominent nose is beautiful. Look at Cleopatra. A little button-nose may be "cute," but give me the beauty and character of a nose that is proud and prominent!

We are all entitled to our own standards of beauty. Why should we let Madison Avenue stereotypes lead us around by the nose?

KNOWS NOSES

DEAR KNOWS: We shouldn't. Which inspires the following limerick:
There once was a beauty named Rose,
A Puritan life-style she chose.
Lechers galore she would show to the door,
Would you say she was saved by her NO'S?
(Edgar Allen Po-Po)

DEAR ABBY: I would like to say something about that young mother who was depressed because she thought her infant daughter was too homely to take out in public. I'm glad you sent that mother to a psychiatrist because she is desperately in need of treatment. If she doesn't take your advice and go, I'm afraid her daughter will be the one to end up on a psychiatrist's couch, getting treated for her inferiority complex.

That is what happened to me. When I was a little girl, my mother drummed into me that I was homely. I grew up believing it. I let myself get fat and sloppy. I never cared how I looked because I thought that I was so hopelessly ugly, nobody could care for me. I also became very promiscuous. That was the only way I could get a boy to pay any attention to me. My self-esteem was about as low as it could get.

At age 17, I had had three abortions, so my mother sent me to a psychiatrist. Meanwhile, she sobbed, "I'll never understand that child. I gave her everything."

My psychiatrist explained that small children believe everything their parents tell them and that my problems began when my mother convinced me that I was homely.

"TWENTY TWO AND NOT HOMELY ANYMORE"

DEAR ABBY: Please print this for the mother who was so "depressed" because her baby had such a large nose. Our first baby was a beautiful little girl. There was only one problem. She was born with "spina bifida"—an open spine.

Our baby is only four months old and she has had, to date, surgery five times.

Abby, instead of this mother looking at her baby and crying because of her large nose, she should be crying for joy and thanking God for having blessed her with a healthy baby. She doesn't know how lucky she is.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

As a writer, one of the first things I look for in a book is the dedication.

Probably because when I write a book I never know who to blame for the whole mess.

There seems to be a pattern in dedications. Serious authors thank their publishers ("Thanks, Al, Nelson, Little, etc.") Those with especially large books thank their typists. Novelists usually list all of their immediate survivors, while the newest breed in the case of Jeb Stuart Magruder publicly thanked his attorney.

With my last book, "I Lost Everything In The Post-Natal Depression," the printers were breathing down my neck and I still didn't have a dedication page.

"It's simple," said my editor. "Just stop and ask yourself why you wrote the book."

"For the money," I said quickly. "With two kids in college and one at home with an overbite is was either than or raise chinillas in my home for profit."

In the final clutch, I always end up dedicating my books to my husband, who stubbornly refuses me permission to use his right name.

Recently, he was faced with the problem of a dedication page for his doctorate dissertation. "Try not to be too sloppy with sentiment," I warned. "I mean, just because I am a devoted, indispensable inspiration to your work..."

He handed me a dedication that had been written by Robert K. Roney. It had been reprinted in the April, 1973 issue of Phi Club.

Girls State

Delegates Give Program At Meet

Girls State representatives Susan Elaine Smith, Renee Annette Ivy and Cassie Deyton presented the program at the meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary held Thursday night.

They reported on the week's activities. Mrs. Etta Gill is the auxiliary Girls State chairman.

Mrs. Sarah Ashton, president, conducted the business session. The group will serve a luncheon Sept. 16 for the Mental Health Association and another luncheon on Oct. 7 for the Bicentennial Senior Citizens Day.

The committee requests all senior citizens interested in attending the luncheon to contact Mrs. Etta Gill or Mrs. Rosa Whitehurst to reserve tickets. Mrs. Ashton requested auxiliary members interested in working on the Oct. 7 luncheon to contact her.

The First Division meeting will be held in Williamston Oct. 6 at 2 p.m. in the fellowship hall of the Piney Grove Church. Members planning to attend should notify Mrs. Ashton by Sept. 25 for reservations.

Miss Annie Turner distributed new yearbooks. Mrs. Mattie Tucker modeled her Bicentennial ensemble.

Refreshments were served by Margaret Register and Mrs. Ashton assisted by Sallie Reagan.

Marriage Announced

Mrs. Rosa Ma. Valazquez Montes and Carlos Montes Harra of Mexico City, Mexico, announce the marriage of their daughter, Linda Espinoza Valazquez, to Frederick Lee Frazelle, son of Mrs. Eleanor F. Frazelle of Indianapolis, Ind., on July 20. The couple will live in Puebla.

Delta Kappan. Mr. Roney wrote, "This study is entirely a product of the writer's own effort. From its conception to its conclusion he was the only one who really understood the value of his research. To the chairman of the committee must go this researcher's gratitude for his assistance without which the project could have been completed six months earlier. The other members of the committee distinguished themselves only by picking at minute details and harassing this researcher to the very end."

"Special note should be made here that this writer has succeeded despite a nagging wife, three quarrelsome, spoiled children, and parents who quit supporting him many years ago when he reached age 18."

"This study, therefore, is dedicated to the pretty, nameless librarian who helped the writer locate many books and articles including the library's only copy of Volume XII of Research in Education which the chairman of the history department has had checked out since Feb. 18, 1963."

"If you're going to name names," I said, "call me, Ethel."

Reaction To Pardon Of Nixon Takes Strange Turns

TELEGRAMS AT THE WHITE HOUSE—Telegrams and mailgrams are stacked on a table Monday in the White House mail room. The telegrams are in reaction to President Ford's announcement Sunday of an unconditional pardon for Richard Nixon. (AP Wirephoto)

Nixon Reportedly Will End His Career In Law

By STEVE LAWRENCE
Associated Press Writer
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon's lawyer says the former president is ready to write an end to 35 years as an attorney.

Nixon's lawyer, Dean Butler of Los Angeles, told newsmen on Monday that Nixon would resign soon from the California bar, which is gathering evidence on Nixon's role in Watergate for possible disciplinary action.

Nixon is also a member of the New York bar, and Butler said Nixon also plans to resign from that organization.

Nixon's decision probably means the California bar will not pursue its investigation of the former president. Bar President Seth Hufstedler said the bar seldom recommends that the state Supreme Court reject a resignation.

Butler's announcement came two hours before the California bar's House of Delegates overwhelmingly condemned President Ford's pardon of Nixon for crimes he may have committed in the White House.

Butler denied that Nixon's pending action is designed to avoid disbarment or suspension from the practice of law in California.

"It is a decision he made some time ago — that he would not engage in the practice of law," Butler told newsmen.

Butler did not say when the resignations would be submitted, but Hufstedler said Nixon was preparing a resignation from the California bar and "it would be submitted promptly."

Delegates to the California bar's annual convention approved, 347 to 169, a resolution condemning the pardon announced by Ford on Sunday.

It said in part, "This action violates the principle that all persons stand equal before the law and presents a substantial threat that the confidence of our citizens in the American system of justice will be undermined."

The bar's board of governors refused to allow delegates to vote on a portion of the resolution which urged that the investigation of Nixon continue.

Nixon spent Monday at the Palm Springs estate of Walter H. Annenberg, U.S. ambassador to Britain. The former president's valet said Nixon was in good spirits and was working on his papers.

Two People Injured In Three Accidents

Two persons were reported injured and an estimated $1,725 property damage caused in a series of three traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville Police Monday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted when cars driven by Marjorie Dilda Brown of 2700 Jefferson Dr. and Willard Calhoun Hill of Route 3, Mount Olive collided about 1:35 p.m. on Memorial Drive 400 feet North of the Dickinson Avenue intersection.

Police, reporting that Mrs. Brown was injured, estimated damage at $300 to the Brown car and $800 to the Hill auto.

Hill was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Linda Kay Conner of Route 5, Durham was charged with following too closely following investigation of a 7:40 p.m. mishap on U.S. 264, 10 feet East of the Charles Street intersection.

Investigators said the Conner car collided with an auto operated by Barbara Dixon Tyson of 1409 Greenville Blvd.

Investigators said the Conner car collided with an auto operated by Barbara Dixon Tyson of 1409 Greenville Blvd., causing an estimated $300 damage to the Tyson car and $250 damage to the Conner vehicle.

Reuben David Lowe of 100 Dogwood Dr. was reported injured when the bicycle he was riding collided with a car driven by Martina Joyce Priddy of 300 South Summit St., about 4:20 p.m. at the intersection of Elm Street and Oakview Drive.

No charges were made by investigators who set damage to the bicycle at $75. No damage resulted to the Priddy car.

Dim Future For Men Of Texas

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Drs. R.L. Skrabanek and W.K. Upham of the department of sociology and anthropology at Texas A&M University estimate that Texas will have nearly 13 million residents by 1980.

The professors said by that time women will outnumber men by 410,000.

By The Associated Press
A National Committee to Impeach President Ford is being formed in California, two Ohio ministers have called for a special presidential election and an estimated 2,000 persons demonstrated in Wisconsin.

The moves came as continuing reaction to President Ford's full pardon for former President Richard M. Nixon for federal crimes he may have committed while chief executive.

In North Dakota, a county judge freed two men he had sentenced to jail as an act of clemency "in response to the pardon given Richard Nixon by Gerald Ford...."

Judge Kirk Smith said in open court at Grand Forks that "it is the intention of this court to commute any unserved jail time and unpaid fines in the above cases and they are therefore set free."

John L. Smith, 29, Manvel, N.D., was released with 50 days to go on a 75-day sentence for driving while under the influence of alcohol and failing to appear in court. He also escaped a $225 fine.

Also set free was John M. Kleinsasser, 20, of Grand Forks, who had three days to go on a 15-day sentence for a traffic violation.

Judge Smith said he took the action as a personal response to the Ford pardon, "not in agreement or as an opposition."

Ex-prisoner Smith's reaction: "It's lucky for us there's good old President Ford."

Arthur M. Schaffer, a professor of constitutional law at Western State University and former assistant district attorney in San Francisco, and Larry Schwartz, history professor at San Diego City College, said on Monday they are forming the impeachment committee.

Schaffer termed the pardon "the ultimate coverup, attempting to foreclose any investigation, indictment or trial of Mr. Nixon."

Schaffer and Schwartz both were active in the American Civil Liberties Union campaign for the impeachment of Nixon.

They accused Ford of obstructing justice by pardoning Nixon and of destroying evidence through the agreement which gives Nixon ownership of the Watergate tapes and allows him to destroy them after five years.

In Cleveland, Ohio, the Rev. Richard A. Carley and Paul E. Johnson termed the pardon "a skin graft over a cancer" and called for a special presidential election.

"Ford thinks Watergate will go away, but we are far from that," said the Rev. Mr. Carley, executive presbyter of the Presbytery of the Western Reserve of the United Presbyterian Church of the U.S.A. and the Rev. Mr. Johnson, associate presbyter.

The Rev. Mr. Carley told Ford in a telegram that a special election was needed to restore the people's trust in the Ford administration.

The Wisconsin demonstrators, who marched around the state Capitol at Madison in protest of the pardon, also called for amnesty for Vietnam war draft evaders, a token memorial for the overthrown Allende government of Chile and an anniversary memorial for the Attica, N.Y., prison riot.

EmergencyRate HikeFor Vepco

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—The North Carolina Utilities Commission has approved 71 per cent of a temporary emergency rate increase that Vepco had sought from its state customers, a company spokesman said.

The rate relief amounts to $3.1 million of the $4.4 million requested, a Vepco spokesman said.

Vepco goes before the commission in December to seek a $6 million permanent hike.

Arrest Man On Assault Charges

Jerome Sneed, 20, of 307 Contentnea St. was arrested on assault charges and lodged in the Pitt County jail following investigation of a cutting incident here last night in Downtown Greenville.

Chief Glenn Cannon reported the cuttings occurred about 11:30 p.m. in an alley off Fifth Street, near Five Points, near a local night spot.

Taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of wounds received were Kenneth Peterson, 28, of 1019 East Wright Rd. and Donald Morse, 24, of 112B North Jarvis St.

Neither of the two men was admitted. Both were released following treatment.

Riddick Speaks To Garden Club

Henry Riddick, of the Agriculture Extension Service, presented the program at the meeting of the Merry Tillers Garden Club of Welcome Wagon held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. John McConney.

He discussed fall activities in the garden and lawn which could eliminate problems in the spring. He reminded members of the informative booklets available to the public at the Extension Service office.

Mrs. Thomas Martin, club president, conducted the business meeting. She reminded members that the October meeting would be scheduled a week later due to Bicentennial activities.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. McConney and Mrs. James Black.

Not The Wisest Ford Decision

The blanket pardon extended Richard Nixon by President Ford was an unfortunate, unhappy and damaging decision.

To begin: it did not resolve the Watergate nightmare, instead the mess was resurrected and the new administration has become involved in it. The pardon casts a shadow over the nation's processes of justice... past, present and future. We haven't begun to witness the dissatisfaction and protests that will be engendered.

Then there's the matter of leaving a door open for Nixon to argue he was the victim of Watergate and related crimes against America. There has been no "confession" on his part and the evidence has not yet been fully collated for presentation to a jury for its verdict... and now, will never be.

In short, more than mercy toward the ex-president and his family is involved in the pardon; and more people than have been tried or indicted for their wrong-doing in the Nixon administration are affected. Public confidence in our system of justice and law enforcement is not exactly at a peak, in these times; and Mr. Ford has added fuel to those doubts.

Mr. Ford is a longtime admirer and friend of Richard Nixon. The relationship dates well back before the Kennedy-Nixon race, and ties between the two must have been immeasurably strengthened when the House Minority Leader was tapped for the Vice Presidency.

It is reasonable to assume those bonds also played an important part in swaying President Ford toward the blanket pardon. Any warm-hearted man would be similarly influenced.

There was a time when Mr. Ford was inclined to let "due process" decide the Nixon fate.

We would have felt greater reassurance if that earlier inclination had prevailed.

THIS AFTERNOON

The Physician-Extender

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—While critics contend that the state's rural health center program will only provide second-class care for people who can't get a "real doctor," sufficient grassroots support has been found to justify nine such health centers across the state this far.

One of the principal rules in determining where one of the health centers will be located is strong showing of community support.

Three most recent additions to the list of small communities building rural health centers illustrates the commitment of the people there to back such an operation:

—In Harrells, a town of 300 people at the southern end of Sampson County, over 75 letters of endorsement by church, civic, business, and citizens displayed that community's intention to support the clinic; two nurses have been recruited and trained; local funds will be raised to match state money, and the new clinic will open next March.

—At Bladenboro, when the town physician died and was followed by a short-term doctor under contract with the National Health Corps who has since left, the people recognized the difficulty of finding and keeping doctors. A local nurse agreed to train as a family nurse practitioner, while the National Health Service Corps provided services until the clinic could be established.

With that interim measure, the community is now readying a full-service health clinic to be available by the middle of October.

—In Atkinson (Pender County), the physician retired 12 years ago, and the closest doctor is 20 miles away, as is the hospital. Citizens recruited a family nurse practitioner and two Burgaw doctors provide backup care, and a fund drive this month is to raise $10,000 locally as the community share of building a clinic—which should open next March.

Last week, state officials announced location of a clinic in Westfield, a small Surry County community.

So intent were the people in that town on getting health care that a part-time clinic was being operated in a converted recreation vehicle, and a fund drive for $10,000 produced gifts and pledges of $16,000. Jack George, a community leader, resigned his job as president of the fire department to devote full time to the clinic effort, and that recreation vehicle will continue in service with a practitioner on hand until a new clinic building is completed next January.

Trained Staff
Basically, the way the rural health centers operate is that a full-time "physician's extender" be on hand—either a family nurse practitioner, physician's assistant, or other trained para-med.

A regular physician is associated with the clinic, and visits when possible. Meanwhile, close contact is kept by telephone. The para-med is qualified to handle routine medical situations; can contact a physician when advice is needed; and can determine when the patient needs to see a physician or go to a hospital.

The General Assembly has set up a budget of $1.5 million for the rural health center program which operates under the Department of Human Resources.

Fees charged by the clinics are supposed to make them self-sustaining once established.

Legislative critics of the program complain that such an effort only provides second-class health care, and often duplicates services already available in many communities through local health departments.

Especially outspoken in criticism were legislators favoring the medical school at East Carolina University, who felt that funds devoted to rural health clinics would be better spent raining more doctors.

State officials backing the health clinic system, however, counter critics by noting that using para-medics in the clinics cuts the time lag in getting a trained person to handle community health problems considerably, since it takes eight to 10 years for a physician to be trained.

Additionally, they point out that many of the extremely isolated and small communities in which the clinics are being established would probably be unable to attract a physician under any circumstances.

The INSIDE REPORT

Haig Crisis Shaping Up

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—An urgent feeling by President Ford's closest aides that Gen. Alexander Haig must be removed as his chief of staff soon—perhaps immediately—hit fever pitch in two backstage developments last Thursday.

Development No. 1: Haig entered the Oval Office with a commission for Mr. Ford to sign nominating Pat Buchanan, Richard M. Nixon's longtime political adviser and speechwriter, as ambassador to South Africa. Despite Haig's fervent arguments, the President delayed his decision.

Development No. 2: The General Services Administration was instructed by Haig deputy Jerry Jones to move furniture into two Executive Office Building suites next door to the White House for two ex-Nixon aides now in San Clemente: Room 352 for ex-press secretary Ron Ziegler; Room 348 for ex-appointments secretary Steve Bull.

Mr. Ford's own aides were thunderstruck. They view Buchanan as the symbol of bloody-nose Nixon politics who undercut Mr. Ford as Vice President and who now should be removed from government, not promoted to an embassy. As for Ziegler, he is the bad old days incarnate who, they vow, will never be permitted to return to White House premises even to clean up files.

Haig's successes in the vicious rivalry now swirling around the Oval Office have led the thin line of totally loyal Ford aides to a grim conclusion. "The White House staff run by Haig is still functioning in the interests of Richard Nixon and the walking wounded of a lost war," one Ford man told us.

That interpretation makes suspect Haig's private recommendation to the new President for leniency to the old. Though their concern for Mr. Ford may distort their view, these aides believe Haig must share responsibility for inaccurate information given Mr. Ford a month ago that special prosecutor Leon Jaworski had agreed the White House tapes were Nixon's legal property.

If Haig indeed has put Nixon and his former aides above an undivided allegiance to President Ford, it is indefensible. Beyond residual loyalties, he is also playing the politicized general—warning of right-wing Republican discontent, fighting the President's position on Vietnam amnesty, undercutting Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger.

Even Haig's roughest critics concede his uniquely indispensable service to the nation in facilitating Nixon's resignation, thanking heaven it was Al Haig rather than Ron Ziegler to whom Nixon gave unprecedented power. That is why Mr. Ford and his aides publicly and genuinely praised Haig in the early transition period. But these same aides now insist Haig must go.

Having served as de facto President in the final months of Nixon's agony, Haig continued to wield awesome power—greater than many past Presidents—after the Ford succession. In his early days as President, Mr. Ford signed the commission for one presidential appointment given him—Nixon style—by Haig with no Ford man even knowing it. That Haig was fulfilling a commitment to his old boss is no excuse.

One incident a month ago convinced some Ford aides that Haig was not in tune with the new President's own interests. He failed to warn Mr. Ford that six hidden microphones, though disconnected, remained in the Oval Office, theoretically a potential for bugging the President. They were not removed until a week after Mr. Ford's Aug. 12 pledge there would be no more electronic eavesdropping in the White House.

On a more trivial level, Haig ignored Mr. Ford's desire to replace portraits in the cabinet room of Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson (Nixon favorites) with Abraham Lincoln and Harry Truman (Ford favorites) until brought to his attention a third time.

Coincidentally, Lincoln and Truman were Mr. Ford's models in post-war amnesty grants. When Haig learned belatedly enroute to Chicago (Continued on page 5)

Strength For Today

THEOLOGY AS EXPERIENCE

Some people are irritated by what they consider to be the complexity and irrelevance of theology. This is an unfortunate attitude. Theology is a man-made attempt to express what great groups of people have already experienced. Creeds are simply the distillation of this experience. It is often assumed that churchmen made the creeds, and by teaching them to people fashioned their beliefs. Actually, however, creeds were written when such vast numbers of people had certain common experiences that a need arose to have these experiences expressed in understandable terms. When people protest against theology, it is generally because they are irked by expressions they do not understand, and usually their lack of understanding arises from a lack of experience.

Those who have found God do not find it hard to follow the thought and speech of anyone who describes and explains the experience. by Elisha Douglass

Death On Sunday Night

Every September brings from the FBI its Uniform Crime Report. The tabulated figures are mutely assembled, row on row, as neatly as troops, a silent as tombstones. With orderly precision they tell of disorder, violence and death. Permit me to speak of one figure only: 127.

That is the number of local, county and state law enforcement officers who were slain last year in the line of duty. It was the highest annual figure ever recorded.

Director Clarence Kelley's report is a bloodless, faceless, computerized affair. Every drop of emotion is drained away. No trace of drama remains. Out of the punchcard correlations, certain composite images emerge, but the images do not speak to our senses: We do not hear the shots, or smell the danger, or see faces contorted in fear or rage. We have only the silent tabulations.

Over the past ten years, 858 officers have died from criminal action. Of these, 613 have died from handguns. For no particular reason that presents itself, Sunday nights are the most dangerous nights, and the hours between 10 p.m. and 2 a.m. are the most dangerous hours. Most officers are slain in robbery pursuit or in attempting other arrests. Last year saw 29 officers killed in responding to "disturbances calls." It is a shocking reflection on our violent society that 25 policemen were killed as they made routine traffic steps.

The composite image of the dead officer indicates that he was white (10 percent were black, 3 percent other races); that he was in his late twenties or early thirties (median police service, five and one-half years); and that he most probably died on regular patrol duty in his squad car. But of the 127 slain last year, eleven actually were off-duty at the time. (Continued on page 5)

Buckle Up The Kids

By EDWARD S. LECHTZIN
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT (UPI) — Parents who allow their children full freedom in a car could be making a serious—and perhaps fatal—mistake.

The statistics say that 1,000 children under age five died in auto crashes last year while an estimated 155,000 received significant injuries. How many escaped injury because they were safely secured in car seats is not known.

One of those children who won't become a statistic is Gregory O'Garr who is less than one year old and lives in Manville, R.I. His experience can do a lot more than a mass of statistics to convince parents of the need to buckle up their children.

"We were recently involved in an auto accident in which we were hit from behind by an auto going at a high rate of speed," his mother, Betty O'Garr, recalls.

"The impact was such that our car was forced across three lanes of traffic and turned to face oncoming traffic."

"Our car was rated a total loss. Gregory received only a minor injury," she said.

Gregory was riding in a General Motors Infant Carrier, only one of two on the market in which the child faces rearward while lying in the carrier.

"If I had been holding him or if he had been in a front-facing seat, the results would have been fatal," Mrs. O'Garr said.

Dr. James Gregory, administrator of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), says there will be a tragic and inevitable rise in crippling and disfiguring injuries to children unless parents realize that without proper crash protection their children's lives are truly at stake.

The vast majority of infants and small children usually receive less protection in a car than the week's groceries which are wedged tight so they won't shift.

A mother who thinks she can prevent a child from being flung forward by extending her arm across a chest while braking can't possibly protect the child in a crash.

For the infant, the most common spot in a car is in its mother's arms or on her lap. Usually a secure place for a child, in a collision, a child sitting on an adult's lap could be crushed against the dashboard.

Even if the adult is wearing a combination lap and shoulder belt, the child can be wrenched from the arms by collision forces. Never use a seat belt to restrain both an adult and a child seated on a lap since the weight of the adult would press down on the child's stomach in a crash.

The safest thing for a child and the parents in a car is a restraint system that secures the child. But in some cases, the restraint system has been as dangerous as having nothing.

The NHTSA has often been criticized for not requiring stricter rules for the many child seating systems on the market. It has proposed new standards, but they are not scheduled to take effect until September of 1975 and may even be delayed further.

The proposed revision of Standard No. 213 would apply to all devices used to transport children in motor vehicles. In addition to car seats, the (Continued on page 5)

Too Little Saved For Future

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans aren't saving enough to finance the nation's future and the consequences could be absolutely appalling, "literally incalculable," according to the findings of a study just released.

It could lead to further urban congestion and decay, say the researchers who put the study together. It could mean failures of small- and medium-size businesses, the encouragement of industrial oligarchy, and more power shortages.

The dismal tale gets grimmer. It could very well mean that ecological and environmental programs will be aborted for lack of funds.

It could mean "high unemployment. It might mean chronically depressed stock prices.

Millions of Americans dependent upon private pension plans might find their resources drained away. Health and educational services might have to be curtailed. Living standards might fall. These, says the New York Stock Exchange, are some of the implications of a developing capital shortage, a shortage that already is forcing business to curtail expansion.

In fact, all these consequences are to some extent already with us.

"A capital shortage is no longer merely a threat for the future, but a fact of the present," said James J. Needham, chairman of the Big Board, where prices of stocks are at their lowest in four years.

This is how the situation stacks up between now and 1985, say the economists and researchers at the exchange: Sources of funds: business savings, $2.923 trillion, personal savings, $1.109 trillion, for a total capital resource of $4.032 trillion.

Uses of funds: gross private domestic investment, consisting mainly of spending for industrial plant and equipment, and residential construction, $4.503 trillion; federal deficit financing, $42 billion; state and local government financing, $30 billion; federal credit agency borrowing, $103 billion.

A quick calculation shows a need for $4.678 trillion of capital and a likely availability, under present attitudes and laws, of only $4.032 trillion, or a shortage of $646 billion. And that's conservative, the exchange maintains.

The detailed report, which was the basis of a speech Needham prepared Monday for the Economic Club of Detroit, is the big gun in an exchange offensive to defeat the capital shortage problem.

As Needham said in his prepared remarks, "We have become literally obsessed by the need for identifying the scope and implications of this problem before it becomes too late to do anything about it."

Opening New Harris Market

Ayden—Harris Super Markets Inc. of Greenville announced the grand opening Wednesday of the firm's newest food facility, located at 1104 W. Third Street here.

Durward M. Harris, president, said that joint ribbon cutting ceremonies at the new Harris Shopping Center for the super market and Big Value Discount Drugs, which adjoins the food store in the complex, will be held at 2 p.m.

He noted that Ayden Mayor Ross Persinger is expected to be on hand for the ribbon cutting.

The new Harris Super Market, with over 19,000 square feet of space, will be similar in operation to the current Harris food stores and will incorporate modern features in all departments. He noted that the facility will offer fully equipped and stocked meat, produce and frozen food sections as well as other standard food store features. The new store will not have a delicatessen as is incorporated in the E. Tenth Street store in Greenville.

The official said that a 100-car parking lot has been included in the shopping complex for the convenience of customers at Harris Super Market and Big Value Discount Drugs.

The food store and Big Value Discount are located on a 5.6-acre tract, Harris said, and other stores will be added to the shopping complex. He indicated that a bank is planning to locate there soon.

Opening of the Ayden store will give the Harris chain six stores in operation including four in Greenville and one in Bethel. A seventh store is under construction in Tarboro and is scheduled for opening in November.

Store hours at the new business will be Monday through Thursday from 8 a.m. until 7:30 p.m. and Friday and Saturday from 8:30 a.m. until 8 p.m. Harris Super Markets Inc. are owned by Durward and S. Ed Harris of Greenville.

Big Value Store Will Be Opened Wednesday

AYDEN—Jack Tyler of Big Value Discount Drugs, Greenville, announced that ribbon cutting activities Wednesday at 2 p.m. will mark the formal opening of Big Value Discount at 1102 W. Third Street here.

Tyler, pharmacist in charge of the new Walgreen agency, said that in addition to Ayden Mayor Ross Persinger, two officials of Walgreens will be on hand for the formal opening. The officials are P. H. Ledford, franchise development specialist from Dunn, and H. L. Vaughn, southeast regional manager of Tucker, Ga.

The facility here will have a restaurant, a new feature for Big Value Drugs, as well as a prescription department and will carry the general line of Walgreen products. Tyler said that the new store will also have a gift department offering an assortment of art objects and other articles.

He said that Big Value Discount Drugs will be offering Greenbax Stamps at the store here, as well as at the Greenville business. Stamps had not been offered before in the Greenville store.

Tyler said that the store here is fully carpeted and air conditioned, with some 6,000 square feet of floor space.

In addition to Tyler here, Robert Lee Tripp will serve as pharmacist assistant and Miss Lucille Jones will manage the restaurant with assistance from Miss Donna Jenkins, Mrs. Nina Russell, and Mrs. Daisy Ingram. Other employees include Mrs.

Edna Smithson, Mrs. Lena Phillips, Mrs. W. F. Braswell, and Miss Vickie Gaskins who will work part time.

George Williams is pharmacist in charge of the Greenville store and and Mike Adams is assistant pharmacist. Front manager at the store is Dennis Warren and Mrs. Mary Foley and Mrs. Claro Oliver assist.

Tyler opened Big Value Discount Drugs here on E. Tenth Street in 1967.

Pat Dye Speaks To Local Moose

Football coach Pat Dye talked about his ECU team and its prospects last night before the Greenville Moose, summing it all up at the end, "There's just no way to know what will happen next Saturday night, we can only play our best and then start planning for the next game."

Dye reminded that the ECU Pirates are at their critical time of the year, pointing out that football is virtually a year-round program and to him, preparation is the name of the game.

He told his listeners that pre-season injuries had been a blow, and "we can't win the big games without depth; so we're going to see alot of young people going into action." Dye suggested that if the still inexperienced youngsters can be brought along, it'll mean a lot in the conference schedule.

Among the freshman, he said, "there is some good material that will be heard from after they've built up some experience and matured as players."

Business matters taken up by the lodge included last-minute recruiting by Sports activity chairman Tom Broadrick for organizing an entry in the Industrial Bowling League;

The announcement by Civic Affairs Chairman Roy Thompson that the lodge was going to assist the Eastern Carolina Workshop in its collection of paper for recycling; and an early announcement by Thompson that a teen-age dance was scheduled October 19 with music by "The Band of Oz".

Governor Jack Morgan announced lodge facilities would be made available to the school system for student hearing tests to begin September 16.

And, John Simonowich, acting chairman for the Flea Market project reminded members to begin assembling items that could be sold on September 28.

Disarming Guard Guns

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has ordered the firing mechanisms of M16 rifles and other small arms transferred from National Guard armories around the country to local police stations to discourage theft of the weapons.

Spokesmen said Monday that the urgent order calls for the transfer by Sunday.

Weapons have been stolen from National Guard armories in a number of states. Over the July 4 weekend, burglars made off with about 100 M16s, seven machine guns and other weapons from the armory in Compton, Calif.

National Guard officials said they don't know if the thefts are being made by persons who resell the weapons or by radical political groups.

The new regulations require that the firing mechanisms from the weapons be taken to other police or military facilities which do not store the same type of weapons. They also call for more frequent checks of the weapons and tighter controls while they are in use.

Cabarrus Seeks Curb On Any Rock Concerts

CONCORD, N.C. (AP)—The Cabarrus County commissioners have asked the county attorney to draft an ordinance either preventing or controlling rock concerts such as the one staged last month at the Charlotte Motor Speedway.

The request was made at the end of a commission meeting Monday, at which county officials urged restrictions on future concerts.

After the commission meeting, Chairman Glenn Hawkins indicated that such an ordinance would probably be approved at a later session.

"Everything we predicted before hand came true," Hawkins said.

More than 200,000 persons attended the August Jam rock concert Aug. 10. County officials claimed the gathering produced unsanitary conditions, drug abuse and other illegal activity.

"Our evaluation of the August Jam and its promotion is that it was a public health menace and a threat to the citizens of Cabarrus County," said Health Director Albert Klimas.

"In view of the acts which took place at the August Jam, we wish to recommend in the public health interest of our citizens that an ordinance be enacted to prohibit rock concerts or similar events," he said.

In Charlotte, Stan Kaplan, one of the concert promoters, denied the allegations.

"There were no problems," he said. "I was at the speedway and I know."

Neither Kaplan nor any other promoters were at the meeting. During the meeting, Klimas charged that the promoters were "totally irresponsible" and failed to notify officials on the number of rock patrons expected.

Kaplan admitted that attendance was higher than his 130,- 000 estimate, but said the promoters met all safety standards.

Hospital Director Robert Wald said he turned over unpaid accounts and expenses totalling $13,137.53 to hospital attorneys.

Pardon Praised By Holshouser

LAKEWAY, Tex.(AP)—Gov. Jim Holshouser of North Carolina has praised President Ford's pardon of former President Richard Nixon as "proper and timely" and said it would save the country "the expense of a trial."

Holshouser said this in a statement issued Monday at Austin, Tex., where he was attending the Southern Governor's Conference.

"Now is the time to do it and save the country the expense of a trial and the former president the agony of a trial," Holshouser said.

All child restraint systems would be subject to dynamic (in-motion) crash tests instead of the presently prescribed static tests. The restraint systems would have to protect a child from injury from a frontal impact at 30 miles per hour or a side or rear impact at 20 m.p.h.

If the original safety standard that went into effect in April of 1971 removed most of the grossly unsafe child car seats, the new standard could take off some of those that meet the current standard.

In a request to the NHTSA, GM asked for a change in the new law because it claimed that neither of its safety devices could meet the new standard. GM said both would have to be completely redesigned without any evidence they'll be improved.

In the 34-page comment, GM said there was no way the present infant carrier could meet the proposed safety standard which says a child's head cannot move more than 18 inches from the vehicle's seat back. In the infant carrier, the child faces rearward and its head already is a greater distance from the seat back in normal riding conditions.

Consumers Union, publishers of Consumers Reports and one of the most thorough testing groups, found in recent tests that four child restraint systems rated "not acceptable" in its most recent tests fully comply with existing standards.

(Continued from page 4) for the Aug. 19 VFW convention that the President would propose amnesty, he protested and prophesied—inaccurately—that the veterans would boo him. Since then, Ford aides charge, Haig has funnelled anti-amnesty sentiment into the Oval Office and overemphasized the strength of protests from the Republican right.

They also believe Haig worked up Mr. Ford about Secretary Schlesinger's safeguards against military takeover during the changing of the Presidents. They say Haig, indignant over criticism of the military, was the angry one—not the President. Detailed memos from Haig's staff suggesting what Mr. Ford should say and do every hour of the day, a system built by H. R. Haldeman for Nixon, are viewed as "insulting and demeaning" by one Ford insider. These memos reach the President just before an event, somehow bypassing veteran Ford aide Robert Hartmann until too late.

Hartmann and a handful of Ford men simply cannot compete with the Haig system. Thus, they feel President Ford must cut loose Al Haig. "Until that happens," one aide said, "the President will be the Prisoner of Zenda in his own house."

Frog Ranks In A Decline

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Science fiction buffs can relax. There's no danger of frogs taking over the world, at least in the next few years.

In fact, government officials and businessmen who buy and sell frogs for laboratory dissection say the number of croakers in the United States is decreasing so fast that they may soon become an endangered species.

"We don't know exactly why the number of frogs is declining, but we know it's happening all over the country. If it continues within the next few years the frog could be an endangered species," said Ruth Hine, chairman of the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources Committee on Endangered Species.

Another state conservation official, Al Schwenn, said the increasing use of pesticides by farmers and "over-harvesting" by people who sell frogs are the main threats to the amphibian. Some states have already banned the harvesting of frogs.

Turn Lilliston loose on your peanut crop —
Count on the highest possible harvest returns

Lilliston 1500 Peanut Combine

It has been called as near perfect a machine as ever built. Few implements of any kind anywhere have been as effective, as versatile, as dependable as the Lilliston 1500. That's why there are far more of them picking the world's peanuts than any other combine made.

Sixty-four years of peanut production experience are squarely behind this world-famous Combine. Proof enough that it will pick better, work more dependably, last longer and trade higher—a combination that can only build bigger profits for you.

Lilliston 6000 Hi-Cap Peanut Combine

Here is a completely new dimension in peanut combining, a working concept that goes far beyond anything else operating in peanuts today. The capacity of the Hi-Cap 6000 is massive. In many conditions the 6000 will harvest at twice the speeds of conventional units.

Besides being engineered for greater harvesting capacity, the Hi-Cap lowers pod damage and produces superior cleaning. This is the big one—the super harvester—first, fast and in all ways superior to any other harvester in the field.

Notre Dame Wins, But Loses Two More Of Their Top Players

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — Ara Parseghian called it "a test for us to see how much damage was done through all our losses." His Notre Dame team, reeling from the loss of eight potential starters, survived the test Monday night with a 31-7 nationally televised football victory over Georgia Tech, but lost two more front line players in the process.

Running back Art Best was sidelined with a broken jaw and linebacker Sherman Smith left with torn ligaments in his left knee as problems continued to mount for the defending national collegiate champions.

Despite it all, Parseghian said, "I think we're going to be a pretty solid team. We'll get better as the season progresses."

The Irish, ranked No. 3 in The Associated Press preseason poll, were forced into a comeback role when Tech methodically marched 68 yards to score after the opening kickoff.

Notre Dame cashed in a fumble recovery at the 14 for the tying touchdown, went ahead on freshman Dave Reeve's 22-yard field goal and established control with a goal line stand that closed the door on Tech's last chance to regain the lead.

Tom Clements, a brilliant quarterback, then picked apart Tech's secondary with six pass completions for 83 yards in a drive that produced a touchdown in the final minute of the half for a 17-7 Irish lead.

Notre Dame spoiled the coaching debut of Pepper Rodgers, who left UCLA last year to return to Tech, where he once played quarterback.

Rodgers had said earlier that Tech "didn't build its football reputation by beating Notre Dame." He said Monday night, "They're too good for us. I didn't schedule them. I never would have."

After Tech's 7-0 lead on an eight-yard scoring pass from Rudy Allen to Jimmy Robinson, Notre Dame drew even when Wayne Bullock slashed over from the two following a fumble recovery at the Jacket 14.

Technical Aids Americans

By BOB CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) —

If Alexander Belov never sees another American basketball official, it may be too soon.

The husky blonde from Leningrad led his team to the brink of victory over the United States Monday night only to have his frustration with the officials get the better of him.

He threw the ball at the ceiling with 57 seconds left, earning a technical foul. It was his fifth infraction of the night, and it forced him to sit on the bench and watch the American collegians hang on for a 67-66 victory.

It was the fourth win in five games for the Americans. The six-game tour ends in Largo, Md., tonight.

Belov was the leader as the Soviets whittled away a seven-point American lead in the second half.

The Russians say he is 6-foot-6 and weighs 209 pounds. He looks bigger. He has deft inside moves; he rebounds, and he brought the ball up court against the Americans.

A Belov lay-up with two minutes left gave the Soviets their final lead at 65-63. Then David Thompson tied the score for the Americans with a pair of free throws.

Thirty seconds later Belov stole the ball from American Phil Spence and was about to shoot a lay-up when the whistle blew. The two American officials said Yuri Pavlov was pushing against Thompson.

Belov blew up and whipped the ball toward the Greensboro Coliseum ceiling. Referee Irv Brown was making the "T" sign before the ball hit the ground. The call sent everyone scurrying for the international rule books.

While the teams waited on their benches, it was decided that Belov was out of the game with five fouls, but Thompson would shoot only the two free throws coming to him under international rules for Pavlov's foul.

Thompson sunk both, to give the Americans their final points. Pavlov managed a free throw with 34 seconds left but missed the second which might have tied the game.

Thompson was the game's high scorer with 24 points. Belov had 20.

In the locker room afterward, Belov was still fuming. Asked if he spoke English, he replied "No."

Zahn Helps Dodgers Along

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
Geoff Zahn, a 27-year-old rookie with the Los Angeles Dodgers, pitched a four-hitter for the first complete game of his major league career, stopping the Atlanta Braves 4-1.

Fred Norman, a 32-year-old veteran of 14 seasons of organized ball, made his first start since Aug. 18 and allowed just four hits before leaving the game after being hit by a line drive in the sixth inning in pitching the Cincinnati Reds to an 8-3 triumph over the San Diego Padres.

The victories left the Dodgers 3½ games ahead of the Reds in the National League West race.

Elsewhere in the National League, Chicago beat Pittsburgh 9-4, Philadelphia blanked St. Louis 2-0, San Francisco topped Houston 8-6 and New York defeated Montreal 7-1.

Dodgers 8, Braves 1
Of the four Atlanta hits off Zahn, only one was hit really well, a double by Dusty Baker down the left-field line in the fourth inning.

Steve Garvey belted a two-run homer and Ron Cey had a three-run blast to pace the Los Angeles attack.

Reds 8, Padres 3
Cincinnati took an early 2-0 lead, but consecutive homers by Rich Morales and Johnny Grubb in third inning put the Padres in front 3-2.

Home runs by Tony Perez, his 24th, and Dave Concepcion, his 11th, highlighted a four-run fifth inning outburst for Cincinnati.

Cubs 9, Pirates 4
Jose Cardenal and Andre Thornton blasted homers for the Cubs, and Dave LaRoche came on in the eighth inning to preserve the victory for Steve Stone, 7-5. When LaRoche was summoned, the Cubs were nursing a 6-4 lead and Pittsburgh had the bases loaded.

Phil's 2, Cards 0
The Cards failed to take advantage of Pittsburgh's loss and remained 2½ games behind the Pirates in the NL East by losing to Philadelphia 2-0 as Jim Lonborg fired a two-hitter.

Lou Brock failed in his effort to record his 104th stolen base of the season and tie the all-time record held by Maury Wills.

Giants 8, Astros 6
The Giants broke a 3-3 tie with five runs in the eighth inning. Tito Fuentes drove in the tie-breaking run with a single, Gary Matthews belted a two-run double and Dave Kingman closed out the surge with a two-run triple.

Mets 7, Expos 1
Ray Sadecki scattered eight hits and contributed a run-scoring single to a four-run fourth inning for the Mets. Dave Schneck had a two-run single in the fourth and Bud Harrelson drove in the final run of the inning with a single.

American League scores:
California 4-3, Texas 1-5; Cleveland 7, Detroit 1; New York 6, Boston 3; Minnesota 3, Chicago 1; Baltimore 6, Milwaukee 5 in 11 innings and Oakland 3-7, Kansas City 0-0.

Yankees Down Boston; Take One Game Lead

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Usually a tough town for the Yankees, Boston was a nice place to visit Monday night as New York beat the Red Sox 6-3 and took a one-game lead in the American League East pennant race.

"I knew we'd win a game here some day," said New York Manager Bill Virdon after the Yankees snapped an 11-game losing streak at Fenway Park.

The victory was the Yankees' first in Boston since July 31, 1973 and only their second there in 22 appearances since the 1972 season.

The Baltimore Orioles also won at a crucial moment, beating the Milwaukee Brewers 6-5 in 11 innings Monday night. The victory boosted the Orioles into a second-place tie with Boston in the hot East race.

In the other American League games, the Oakland A's took a doubleheader from the Kansas City Royals, 3-0 and 7-0; the California Angels beat the Texas Rangers 4-1 in the first game of a doubleheader before losing the second 5-3; the Cleveland Indians downed the Detroit Tigers 7-1 and the Minnesota Twins defeated the Chicago White Sox 3-1.

Chris Chambliss and Elliott Maddox each drove in two runs, helping New York beat Boston.

George "Doc" Medich, 18-12, was the winning pitcher with eighth-inning relief help from Sparky Lyle. Medich gave up two runs in the inning, one on a homer by Carl Yastrzemski, before Lyle came to the rescue.

Orioles 6, Brewers 5
Bobby Grich singled with two out in the 11th inning and eventually scored the winning run on a wild pitch by Tom Murphy, giving the Orioles their victory over Milwaukee.

The Brewers tied the score at 5-5 on Darrell Porter's grand slam home run in the ninth inning off Reynolds.

A's 3-7, Royals 0-0

Vida Blue hurled a two-hitter and Catfish Hunter a four-hitter, pitching Oakland to a sweep of their twin-night doubleheader against Kansas City. The sweep moved the A's 6½ games ahead of Texas in the American League West.

Blue, 15-14, struck out five and walked only one, while Hunter posted his sixth consecutive victory and raised his record to 23-10.

Angels 4-3, Rangers 1-5
Chuck Dobson, stopped Texas on seven hits in pitching California's first-game victory. Roy Howell's first major league home run triggered a three-run Texas rally in the fourth inning and the Rangers went on to beat California in the second game.

Indians 7, Tigers 1
Oscar Gamble's first-inning, two-run homer triggered a three-run rally and Dick Bosman pitched a three-hitter to lead Cleveland over Detroit.

Twins 3, White Sox 1
Home runs by Harmon Killebrew and Steve Braun in the eighth inning powered Minnesota over Chicago.

PLEASANTON, Calif. (AP) — Heavyweight champion George Foreman broke camp without breaking any heads.

"He's coming" around good. He's in great shape, but I'd like to see him punching more," said Henry Clark, one of Foreman's sparring partners, after the final workout here Monday.

"He's mostly just been playing with us," added Clark, himself a ranking heavyweight. "When George is really punching, he's knocking people out."

Foreman's manager, Dick Sadler, had an answer: "I'm saving him for Muhammad Ali. Our last fight, we started with six sparring partners and ended up with just two because George wore them out."

The champion and his party of 20 were scheduled to fly from San Francisco today, stopping in Chicago to transfer to a flight to Paris. Foreman will resume training Thursday in Kinshasa, Zaire, site of his Sept. 24 title fight against Muhammad Ali.

Foreman left here weighing about 230 pounds, and Sadler predicted he'd weigh 225 or less Sept. 24.

The championship fight is scheduled at 3 a.m. Zaire time, which will somewhat beat the equatorial heat of Africa and put it in prime time for U.S. theater television showings.

Tiger Girls Win Match

WILLIAMSTON—Williamston High School's girls' tennis team opened its season yesterday with a 4-2 victory over Farmville Central.

For the Lady Jaguars, it was their second loss in as many outings.

Williamston captured three of the four singles matches, then split the doubles to win the match.

Williamston will play host to Tarboro on Wednesday, while Tarboro hosts Farmville Central on Monday.

Summary:
Nancy Sharpe (W) defeated Beth Turnage, 3-6, 6-1, 6-1.

Jennifer Counterman (FC) defeated Paula Godard, 6-2, 6-7, 6-3.

Beth Brandon (W) defeated Nora Baker, 6-2, 6-4.

Nancy Williams (W) defeated Sandra Stoddard, 6-2, 6-1.

Turnage-Counterman (FC) defeated Sissy Taylor-Amy Hardison, 8-5.

Brandon-Sharpe (W) defeated Anderson-Davenport, 8-1.

While things have looked bad for the past two or three days in practice, Dye rests on the hope that suddenly the team will turn around. But Dye also kept a thought in mind. He said, "Football games are not won on Saturdays, but through the week in preparation."

"I don't know. I'm not giving up, but there's nothing encouraging to talk about. I just didn't see anything on the field good to talk about. There's an awful lot going on right now with school opening, and it's tough to keep their minds on the game."

The Pirates are now into the final stages of preparation for Saturday night's opener against Bowling Green at 7:30 in Ficklen Stadium. Bowling Green presents a distinct challenge in that no Pirates team has ever beaten a club from the Mid-American Conference.

Game captains have been elected for Saturday. The offensive team captains will be Don Schink and Vic Wilfore. The defensive team captains will be Danny Kepley and Kenny Moore. The specialty teams captain is Mike Cruise.

2nd PRIZE
$10.00

CONTEST RULES

1. Thirty-two football games are placed in the ads on these pages. Pick the winner of each game (not the score) and write the team name opposite the advertiser's name on the entry blank. The entrant picking the most correct winners each week will be awarded $15.00. Second place $10.00.
2. Pick a number which you think will be the most number of points scored by both teams in any one of the week's games listed and write your answer in the space provided on the entry blank. This will be used to break ties. In the event of a further tie the money will be equally divided between the winning entrants.
3. Only one entry per week per person. The contest is open to all except employees of The Daily Reflector and their immediate families.
4. Entries must be in The Daily Reflector office not later than 5:00 p.m. Friday or post marked not later than Friday p.m. Address entries to: "FOOTBALL CONTEST", P.O. Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. (Reasonable Facsimiles also accepted)

DUNKEL COLLEGE FOOTBALL INDEX

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

Hurricane May Up Sugar Prices

By DON KENDALL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sugar cane losses inflicted by Hurricane Carmen may further increase record-high consumer sugar prices, government experts say.

The Department of Agriculture has launched a special survey of crop damage in Louisiana, which bore the brunt of the storm. Initial loss estimates ranged up to 75 per cent of the crop.

Don Paarlberg, the department's director of economics, said the storm losses could produce a substantial further impact on sugar prices, depending on the extent of the damage. Sugar prices already have soared this year because production has not kept pace with world demand.

A five-pound bag of sugar that cost American shoppers 85 cents last January costs around $2 today.

Although the Louisiana and Florida cane-growing area had been expected to produce less than 1.8 million tons of the 12.5 million tons of raw sugar needed by U.S. refineries this year, an expected decline in sugar production from beet sources magnifies the importance of the cane-growing region hit by the hurricane.

Last month the department estimated sugar cane production for the year would increase four per cent while, at the same time, beet production was expected to drop eight per cent.

Thus, the Louisiana losses would reduce the expected rise in cane production, causing prices to rise further and providing the opponents of sugar import quotas with further arguments to suspend the restrictions.

The possibility of quota suspension was raised several weeks ago by Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, and the Louisiana storm may speed a decision on whether to open the U.S. door to more foreign sugar.

Trusted To Erase Bias

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—The federal government has told Charlotte that it trusts the city to end any job discrimination in municipal employment without federal intervention.

The Equal Employment Opportunities Commission made Charlotte the first Southeastern city, and one of the first in the nation, to enjoy such status.

In turn, Charlotte pledged itself Monday to a voluntary, active effort to hire and promote women and blacks on an equal basis with white men in city jobs.

City officials and the regional director of the commission, D.L. Hollowell of Atlanta, signed an affirmative-action commitment.

They agreed that the city, not the commission, will be the first place where complaints of municipal job discrimination are investigated and solutions sought. However, decisions on complaints still will be reviewed by the commission, and may be changed by that agency.

Perhaps the single most difficult play in bridge is selecting the winning opening lead. In fact, a whole book has been devoted to this one topic—and with good reason. To a certain extent, it is a shot in the dark. Yet, there are inferences—both negative and positive—to be drawn from the auction. It is vital to act on these, for often you are given no second chance to defeat the contract.

This hand was dealt in a match of the Spingold Knockout Team Championship at the American Contract Bridge League's Summer Nationals held in New York this past July. The auction was simple enough, and at first glance, appeared to offer little clue to the opening lead. South opened the bidding with one no trump and North raised to game.

Sitting West was William Passell, a bridge teacher living in Yonkers and one of the best players on the East coast. Obviously, he held most of his side's strength, but equally obvious was the fact that none of his suits appeared to be a likely source

Worry Clinic Hostility Due To Successes

Opal knows how to motivate students and thus give teenagers tested techniques for solving their critical social problems. But as Opal grows more popular, she will begin to feel the same veiled hostility that Dr. Peale receives:

Unconscious But Find Girl 'Alive'

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—Almost two months ago, 12-year-old Jolene Kennedy was pronounced dead after an automobile accident. Doctors prepared to remove her kidneys for transplanting, but discovered signs of life.

Monday, she left a hospital and went home.

Doctors say her arms and legs are paralyzed, she is partially or totally blind, and about all she can do is breathe under her own power. She is able to open her eyes and blink them but her father, Dr. Joseph B. Kennedy, said other physicians have offered him no hope that Jolene will regain more brain function from her head injuries.

Her father says that by medical definition Jolene is unconscious, unable to react purposefully in any consistent way. But he adds that he believes he has seen "signs of conscious behavior, blinking of her eyes," in response to a hand on her shoulder or a question whispered in her ear.

"I believe God must have brought her back for a purpose," he said as he lifted the thin girl onto a wheelchair, tucked a rag doll under her arms, and wheeled her to an elevator. Also in the elevator were a suitcase with Jolene's belongings and a "Hang In There" poster her father had kept taped above her bed.

Waiting in the lobby of Baptist Hospital was Jolene's older sister, injured in the same accident. She, too, was leaving the hospital. Her left leg was in a cast, but otherwise she was all right.

Jolene was taken home in a van to Thomasville, 18 miles southeast of Winston-Salem.

A room has been prepared in the home as a nursing place for Jolene. Dr. Kennedy has hired a woman to take charge of the intravenous feeding. His sister and mother, both registered nurses, will help take care of her.

High Ratio Of Spies Involved

BONN (UPI) — Nearly 40 per cent of the personnel of East European embassies in West Germany are members of intelligence organizations, according to a report published by the Federal Office for the Protection of the Constitution.

The report on Communist espionage activities came out shortly after Chancellor Willy Brandt stepped down following the discovery of an East German spy among his personal staff.

Pragmatic Teachers
"Motivation" is the keynote of all successful teaching, as well as salesmanship of commercial products, too.

And motivation involves "packaging" your ideas in a practical manner so the pupils or customers will see how they can immediately make use of those suggestions or gadgets.

Dr. William James, pioneer American psychologist at Harvard, always stressed this need to make education practical (pragmatic).

Which is also why I try to bring college psychology down from the stratosphere to terra firma, where we can capitalize on all such helpful devices for happier living.

Thus, this "Worry Clinic" serves much as the laboratory courses in chemistry or physics, for it shows you how to experiment and prove many of the classroom axioms that are often phrased in big words (polysyllables).

Interestingly enough, many of you teen-agers who become enthusiastic about psychology as a result of reading this column during high school, then report to me that college psychology lectures are often dull and impractical.

"Dr. Crane," many of you report, "some of our psychology professors try to belittle your 'Worry Clinic' as merely newspaper sensationalism.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Morning brings you a good chance to put across interesting ideas with beneficial results. Then take it easy and don't try to change conditions since unpredictable, dramatic events which can be helpful occur on their own and you'd be wise not to interfere.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) One at home can now give you the assistance you need, then you can quietly watch conditions work themselves out. Handle basic duties early.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Forget dull work awhile and enjoy good friends who have interesting data for you. Take any annoying co-worker in your stride. Save more money.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you stop spending so much for fun, you find you have more for more practical things you need, and also a more optimistic attitude for the future.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You have excellent ideas and can easily make progress in productivity and improve relations with bigwigs. Don't start any arguments at home. Do something thoughtful for mate.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Keep outside appointments, otherwise you won't have much luck with secret matters. Forget any past experience that depresses you and expect a more ideal future.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Handle pressing matters now. Entertain some and gain approval of others. Show you are a person who can be trusted.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Listen to bigwig's ideas since yours could be off base right now. This will be time well spent in the long run.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study more so you can reach highest aims. A good friend gives you the lowdown on some important matter, so listen carefully.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Good day to get into those career tasks that will impress bigwigs, gain you support you want and need. Don't waste time with a gossip.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A partner wants to keep you working at something you don't like, so plan how to change matters. Do only what is necessary.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Keep rooted to your work and gain fine benefits. Then you feel more stable, knowing you are not going off on tangents. Make good future plans.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Discuss with partner how to get future projects working successfully. Plan for better recreational and social activities within your budget.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be conscientious and persevering as a worker but will be apt to tire easily. Therefore give careful attention to health and diet early. Then the chart becomes successful, but otherwise this child could develop into a dilettante who accomplishes little. Give good spiritual training while young and be sure companions are right from early childhood. Some musical ability, too.

Governor Proud Tennessee 'Genesis Law' Ruled Invalid Of Peoples Day

LAKEWAY, Tex. (AP)—Gov. Jim Holshouser of North Carolina is proud of the "People's Days" and "People's Tours" developed under his administration.

"After the very first one, I was convinced that it was one of the best things I could do during my term as governor," Holshouser told the Southern Governors' Conference in a prepared talk Monday.

The North Carolina governor said the program has helped "a great deal to re-establish the people's confidence in state government in North Carolina."

Holshouser told his fellow governors that on "People's Day" he goes to a large city or center of population where people can meet with him to discuss problems.

On the "People's Tour," he said, "we move about less heavily populated areas of North Carolina, following a pre-arranged and publicized schedule. At country stores, shopping centers and other gathering places, I see as many people as time allows."

"By hearing directly from the people the things that are on their minds, I feel I am much better able to do the job they elected me to do," Holshouser stated.

He said that "in many ways, we've cut through red tape to help people receive what they deserved, whether it be emergency medical treatment, food stamps or removal of mud that was blocking their road. I even helped one couple get married by serving as a witness at their wedding during a People's Day visit to their hometown."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Tennessee's 1973 "Genesis Law," which rekindled memories of the John Scopes monkey trial and decreed that the Adam and Eve theory of man's origin be spelled out in textbooks alongside the theory of evolution, has been held unconstitutional.

Nashville Chancellor Ben

Cantrell ruled Monday that the celebrated law is an act "respecting the establishment of religion" and thus runs counter to the constitutional doctrine of separation of state and church. The Tennessee Legislature passed the ballyhooed bill in 1973, specifying that all biology textbooks in the state's public schools must give equal consideration to all theories of creation of man.

Cantrell ruled that the legislature attempted to place the Biblical account of man's creation and the world above other theories. By so doing, he said, the law gives a preference to religion and violates Article I, Section 3 of the Tennessee Constitution.

Prince Taking 'Copter Course'

LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles, already a qualified aircraft pilot, has begun a 3½-month course to learn to fly a helicopter.

The 25-year-old heir to the British throne was up for a half-hour flight Monday at the fleet air arm's headquarters at Yeovilton in southwest England.

The helicopter course includes 38 hours of dual flying, 15 hours solo and 53 hours of ground training. The ground training includes a dunking in a simulated cockpit during which Prince Charles will have to free himself from a harness and escape through a window.

Tallest Falls In Venezuela

CARACAS (UPI) — Angel Falls, at 3,296 feet the world's tallest, was discovered in the interior of Venezuela in 1937 by an American bush pilot, Jimmy Angel, after whom it was named.

Angel had crash-landed his single-engined plane in a swamp on a plateau above the falls.

Fire Loss Of $500,000

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP)—A loss of about $500,000 was estimated in what was called the worst fire in Myrtle Beach in three years.

Just before midnight Sunday, firemen were called to the Hawaiian Village Lounge and Restaurant. "The fire had engulfed the structure and the roof in the rear had been burned through," Fire Chief Fernie Faulk said.

The fire was brought under control in about two hours, Faulk said, but it had destroyed the building. "Our efforts were hampered by the wooden shingles on the building and by the flammable decorations inside," he said. Firemen were called back to the scene several times Monday to further douse smoldering ashes.

Faulk said the restaurant wasn't open Sunday and wouldn't comment on the possibility of arson. Cause of the blaze was still under investigation.

Two firemen suffered minor cuts and another fireman sprained his back while fighting the blaze.

Marion Cannon of Myrtle Beach and Jack Shaw of Greenville, S.C., owned the building. The adjacent Hawaiian Village Motel was not damaged by the fire.

Student Named To Who's Who

She is the daughter of CW02 (Ret.) and Mrs. Preston Knox of Rt. 3, Greenville.

Students from over 20,000 schools throughout the country are recognized for their leadership in academics, athletics, activities and community service.

Less than three percent of the junior and senior class students nationwide are awarded this recognition.

She is active in the Drama Club, Thespian Society, 4-H Club, Red Cross Club and was active in her church group. She won an award for scholarship during the 70-71 school year.

She hopes to attend East Carolina University in the fall of 1975.

the ruling. Cantrell held that to make textbooks include all theories of man's creation would be "impossible." He said full compliance with the law would result in "a significant body of scientific thought and knowledge" being "effectively excluded from basic school texts."

Franco Ends A 24-Day Holiday

MADRID (AP) — Gen. Francisco Franco has returned to Madrid from Santiago de Compostela, ending a 24-day summer holiday.

The 81-year-old chief of state is scheduled to preside at a meeting of his cabinet next Friday. It will be his first official act since he took back power from Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon.

Power was transferred to the prince after Franco's hospitalization in Madrid July 9 with an attack of thrombophlebitis.

pliance with the law would result in "a significant body of scientific thought and knowledge" being "effectively excluded from basic school texts."

"...in light of the administrative impossibility of including all other theories," Cantrell said, "it seems to the court that the General Assembly by this provision is saying to the textbook commission in rather clear terms: 'We don't care what other theories are included, just be sure the Genesis account gets equal time.'"

"This legislative singling out of an admittedly religious writing for inclusion in state textbooks is inferential of an essential sectarian, religious purpose underlying this public act."

The law also forbids the teaching of "occult" or "satanic" theories and includes a disclaimer saying all the theories—with the exception of the Genesis Adam-Eve account—are not fully founded on scientific fact.

"The reader of the textbook is thus encouraged by the act to infer that the Genesis account is a literally true and factual account..." Cantrell ruled. Scopes, a biology teacher, was convicted in 1925 in Dayton, Tenn., of teaching the theory of evolution of man, which at that time was against the law. The theory holds that man evolved from the ape.

Scopes was fined $100 in what became known as the famous "Monkey Trial" but the state Supreme Court overturned the penalty on a technicality, thus preventing an appeal to federal courts. Scopes never again taught school.

It wasn't until 1967 that the Tennessee Legislature repealed the anti-evolution law.

More Learned About Fabled Inca City

By JUAN TAMAYO
NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — Machu Picchu, the fabled Inca city high in the Peruvian Andes, was indeed populated by high priests and beautiful maidens brought from all over the empire, a Yale researcher says.

Dr. Andrew R. Mayrer, a Yale medical student who graduated this spring, gathered evidence from 83 skeletons unearthed from caves around the city by Hiram Bingham, who discovered the ruins in 1911.

Bingham, a Yale archeologist who later became a U.S. senator from Connecticut, found the ruins under a dense cover of foliage high in the upper reaches of the Urubamba River. The skeletons brought back from his many expeditions to the area had been stored, almost forgotten, in Yale's Peabody Museum since 1912.

Mayrer, in his study of the remains, determined 56 skeletons were female, 21 were male and six were too young to determine.

The breakdown, he said, supports the theory that Machu Picchu was a religious center for the hamlets of the region, populated by a handful of high priests and many women brought there to be their servants.

Mayrer also found the majority of the skeletons had been buried in caves sitting down with their arms crossed upon their breast, a position he said was usually reserved for high officials of the Inca empire.

Some of the female skeletons, he said, showed the oblong skulls typical of coastal Indians, leading to the assertion they had been kidnapped or brought voluntarily to Machu Picchu to serve the high priests.

Mayrer said the coastal Indians could not have been born in Machu Picchu because the 10,000-foot altitude reduced the fertility of the coastal Indians.

The Inca empire at one time stretched down the west coast of South America, from Columbia to the northern sections of Chile and Argentina.

Mayrer's study, which concentrated on diseases whose effects were visible on the bones, failed to confirm or deny the theory that syphilis was brought to the New World by Spanish sailors

The study said some of the bones showed signs the persons may have suffered from congenital syphilis —transmitted by their parents rather than through contact—but no definite conclusions were reached.

The bones of persons believed to have died between 1200 and 1550 A.D., also showed "occupational diseases" were common even then and that dental illnesses were so serious in some cases they may have resulted in death, he said.

The women, who according to experts spent most of their time weaving, showed a tendency to have an arthritic condition in the vertebrae behind their chests, apparently as a result of their work.

Nearly all the skeletons also showed another arthritic condition in the mid-lower back, presumably because of the steep carrying and farming made necessary by the mountainous region.

Mayrer reported while he saw no specific signs of nutritional diseases, dental problems were widespread, and some cases probably caused death through secondary infections.

The teeth of the lowland Indians, who would have had access to fish, showed less deterioration than those from highland Indians, whose main diet was corn and potatoes, he said.

Broken or displaced bones were quite common among Machu Picchu dwellers, he said, and one woman appeared to have had a dislocated lower jaw that never healed.

One man apparently lived most of his life with his head twisted to one side, a condition that could have been caused by improper "cradle board" flattening of the back of the skull, a cosmetic procedure used by Indians on their children.

Mayers said the average age at the time of death was 32, and the Indians tended to be slightly taller than the present residents of the area.

Archeologists believe Machu Picchu was abandoned in the mid 1500s after the last Inca—the title for chief of the empire—threw himself off a nearby cliff when he learned Francisco Pizarro had conquered Cuzco, the capital of the empire 60 miles away.

There's Still Gold In Those California Hills

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — There is still lots of gold in the hills of California's Mother Lode country, but it probably will stay there because the real estate on the surface is more valuable than the precious metal underneath.

William B. Clark, a geologist with the California Division of Mines, recently studied the prospects for a new gold rush in the wake of rising gold prices and proposed end to the ban on U.S. citizens owning gold.

"When the price rose to more than $100 per ounce, there began to be a renewed interest in a number of California's old gold-mining districts," Clark said. The state at one time had tens of thousands of mines and prospects scattered over more than 400 districts.

"Although sporadic exploration shows that various gold-mining districts in California are coming to life, some of the best-known and most productive districts of the past are idle," Clark said. "The chances are slim that the mines in them will ever be worked again."

He explained that surface traces of many of the deep Mother Lode mines are now "covered by housing subdivisions."

"Land values have increased so much in these districts that the mine properties are worth far more as real estate than as sources of gold," the geologist said.

Other once-thriving gold rush mines, such as those at Columbia, Bodie, Shasta, Johnsville and Coloma, are now parks or recreation areas, not open to new mining.

"Although the price of gold is high, and there is renewed interest in the gold districts of California, the future of gold mining is in this state, if there is a future at all, remains cloudy," Clark said. "It appears that land in many or most of the gold districts will continue to be more valuable for uses other than gold mining."

Clark notes that there always will be room for the amateur prospector, the weekend gold panner and scuba diver. Their occasional strikes keep touching off treasure hunts for an undiscovered bonanza.

Last fall a gold-seeking diver brought up a 25-pound gold-quartz nugget from the Yuba River near Downieville. The rock is estimated to have $22,500 worth of gold in it and to be worth considerably more as a museum piece.

Earlier in 1973 another amateur prospector checked in with a 28-ounce nugget.

Clark said that, ironically, there is not much market for raw gold ore. The U.S. Mint no longer purchases it, and "many of the buyers that were formerly licensed" no longer are in business.

So, while small scale gold prospecting and weekend panning will continue to be popular hobbies in California, the state geologist says the 1974 or 1975 gold rush is off.

Fertilizers Still Short

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Fertilizer supplies are limited this year and what is available is at a high price, according to Dr. Charles Welch, soil chemist for the Texas Agriculture Extension Service.

"Special formulations of fertilizer are almost nonexistent," Welch said. "Producers often must buy a complete fertilizer (one with nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium) regardless of whether they need all three nutrients."

"And the percentage of active ingredients also is being reduced in many instances so that it takes a larger volume of fertilizer to provide the necessary nutrients. This means increased transportation and handling costs."

U.S. fertilizer production was up six per cent during the year ending June 30, but the amount sold was up between 15 and 20 per cent. This means inventories are low at the retail level as well as at the manufacturing point.

Untapped Fuels Said Waiting

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Dr. John D. Ridge, head of the mineral economics department at Penn State University, says there are vast untapped mineral and fuel resources beneath the continental United States.

Ridge proposes that regularly spaced exploratory holes be drilled across the nation to find the oil, coal, gas and other fuels. He estimates the cost at $3 billion, but he says that would be repaid many times over in the fuel found.

Nuclear Power Plants Coming

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission says that electric utilities have announced plans for 21 new nuclear power generating plants since the first of the year.

The AEC says there are in this country 45 plants already licensed for operation, 2 others authorized to operate, 60 under construction and 105 for which reactors have been ordered.

Request N.C. More Than Triple Its Aid

RALEIGH (AP)—A request that the state more than triple its support of private schools during the 1975-77 biennium has been made by the North Carolina Association of Independent Colleges and Universities.

The request was contained in a letter from Dr. Arthur Wenger, chairman of the 39-school association and president of Atlantic Christian College, to the University of North Carolina Board of Governors.

Wenger asked the board to include a $23.6 million increase in state support for private colleges and universities in its biennial budget request to the General Assembly.

The program committee and budget and finance committee of the Board of Governors will consider the proposal Thursday.

The association proposal blames the declining enrollments of private colleges on their high tuitions, compared with those of state supported schools. The increase in support would be used to provide a $400 direct tuition grant to every North Carolina student in private colleges in 1975-76 and a $600 tuition grant the following year.

"We think this program will help turn that (the decline in enrollment) around," Wenger said. "We have had a slight decline even with the money we've been getting."

The Maine state motto, "Dirigo," means "I lead."

Offer Course In Investing

A non-credit evening course in securities and investing will be offered by the East Carolina University Division of Continuing Education beginning October 15.

The course will meet Tuesdays through December 3 in the campus Rawl Building, 7-9:15 p.m.

Lawton Nisbet, vice president and branch manager of the Greenville Interstate Securities Corp., will instruct the course. Advance registration is required. Further information and registration materials are available from the ECU Division of Continuing Education, Box 2727, Greenville, or telephone 758-6143.

SMYRNA, Ga. (AP) — It's tough to be a pilot when you're too young to use a razor blade.

Right now, that seems to be Stephanie Perryman's only handicap. The 5-year-old Smyrna youngster already has been proclaimed the youngest member of the National Free Flight Society's Hall of Fame.

In competition this August she picked up the national championship against 30 competitors in the under-15 age group for her skills at flying the rubber-band driven models which she builds herself. In May, she won the Southeastern championship for the second straight year.

Stephanie's career in aviation was launched by her grandfather, George Perryman, a Lockheed design engineer and the southeastern vice president for the Academy of Model Aeronautics.

Perryman's 300 trophies represent 36 years of competition in the National Model Airplane championships. His professional insights from designing wind tunnel models led to the Gollywok, a plane Stephanie kept aloft ten minutes and 35 seconds in the Jacksonville, Fla., regionals.

Stephanie, a Montessori student, carefully follows grandpa's plans and glues each tiny piece of balsa wood to the frame.

"I like putting in the wing ribs best," she says. "You glue these sticks to the waxed paper over the plans so the glue won't stick to the plans."

She doesn't cut out her own pieces though. "I'm not allowed to use the razor blades because I might get cut," she explains.

As the model nears completion, a cover of Japanese tissue is applied. Then she dopes color designs on the wing tips and propellers.

Stephanie has been a model aircraft "engineer" about two years now, but she only entered competition a year ago. Her first contest flight lasted four minutes and five seconds, and her national contest trial managed five minutes.

Luck has a lot to do with winning, Perryman says. The windy conditions at the Lake Charles, La., nationals cut into the flight time, just as a hot air current boosted her craft to over ten minutes at Jacksonville.

Perryman has designed four models for Stephanie and the recent record flight of the Gollywok impressed a model plane manufacturer enough to buy rights to the plane's production.

"We're sort of buddies," he says about his young flyer. The two are planning to enter the Mach Model Contest at Huntsville, Ala., later this month.

She says she has made many "big friends" at the competitions and wants to be a professional model flyer when she grows up.

It appears only the razor blades are standing in the way.

Closed Meet By Utilities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon and other federal officials are scheduled to meet here Wednesday with state public utility commissioners in a session that could lead to higher electricity rates for consumers.

There has been no public announcement of the meeting, but a Treasury source confirmed Monday that it is scheduled.

It will be closed to the public and the press, despite protests by consumer groups that it is wrong to hold a secret meeting on a matter that could lead to higher electrical costs.

"The government will discuss financial problems facing the electrical utilities industry and will encourage them (public utilities commissioners) to expedite the pass-through of higher costs," said the source.

Administration officials, led by Simon, have said repeatedly that the nation's electrical utilities are unable to get rate increases fast enough from state public utilities commissions to cover their rising costs of operation.

Simon has said that as a result, public utilities are short of investment capital to meet future energy needs.

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., told the Senate Monday that President Ford's pardon to former President Richard Nixon could return to haunt the President if he seeks reelection in 1976.

Ervin told the Senate Monday that if Ford runs for a full term in 1976, the pardon will cause Watergate to be injected into the campaign "by those who believe that granting of the ill-timed pardon indicated President Ford's lack of capacity to exercise wisely the awesome power vested in the President by the constitution."

Ervin said in a five-page statement read to the Senate that the Nixon pardon "continues the (Watergate) coverup operation."

He also said the pardon will deny the public "the full nature and extent of Mr. Nixon's personal involvement in these unhappy tragedies."

The pardon, he said, "was inexpedient, incompatible with good government and sets a bad precedent for the future."

Ervin, who was chairman of the Senate committee that investigated the Watergate and related scandals, said Ford "obviously issued the pardon in the hope that such action would relegate the Watergate affair to the past. Believe me, this is a false hope."

"Instead of relegating the Watergate affair to the past, the pardon makes certain the Watergate affair and President Ford's effort to exempt Mr. Nixon from legal responsibility for it, will be injected into the next presidential campaign."

Looking on from the Senate president's seat as Ervin spoke was his Republican Tar Heel colleague, Sen. Jesse Helms, who was presiding in the absence of a vice president.

A Helms aide said he would have no comment on the pardon granted Nixon.

"I do question most seriously the wisdom of President Ford thwarting the due processes of law by granting a pardon before Mr. Nixon was indicted, tried and convicted," Ervin said.

"Pardons are for the guilty—not for those who profess their innocence," he said. He added that the question of whether acceptance of a pardon constitutes a confession of guilt could occupy constitutional scholars for generations.

Ervin said the pardon raises "agonizing" questions about Nixon aides who have gone to jail and still face prison terms for their crimes.

"Does President Ford intend to grant general amnesty to all of these Nixon aides or is he accepting the theory that the legal responsibility of the occupant of the office of President is insignificant when compared to that of his underlings?"

Will Tow-Away Cars In Alleys

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon warned today that any vehicles found illegally parked in Downtown Greenville alleyways will be towed away at the owner's expense.

According to the official, complaints about such illegally parked vehicles blocking alleys in the downtown area have been on the increase recently.

He said alley ways must be kept clear for use by Fire Department and other vehicles. Blocked alleys, he indicated, would hamper firemen responding to fire calls in the downtown business area.

TERMITES OR ANTS?

Don't be half sure. Call a professional pest control operator for an inspection today.

The potential damage to property from termites can exceed the damage from tornadoes, hurricanes and fire. This is why termite protection is as important as a homeowner's insurance policy.

Introducing Planters Ultra Checking. How does your checking account stack up against it?

Ultra Checking is a new kind of checking account. Its designed to save you time, money and several trips to the bank each month.

Its the most advanced checking account in North Carolina because it offers you more extra services than any other bank around.

First of all it offers you a different statement. (On the right.) It helps you balance your checkbook in a flash.

All your checks are listed numerically (1) so you can check them off quickly and the ones that are missing (2) are easily identifiable. Just look for the (*).

With Ultra Checking, a lot of your banking transactions can be made without you. Automatically. Loans can be paid off (3), deposits can be made through Sav-O-Matic and so on.

And just so you can see how you wind up each banking day, we even give you a daily bank balance record (4).

That covers the time factor. But PNB's Ultra Checking also covers the money factor.

As good as our Cash Guarantee Account was, it couldn't hold a candle to our new service, Check Credit (5).

Now, you can still write checks for more than you have in the bank, but with a Check Credit loan you can get a lot more out of it than before.

For instance, as soon as your credit line is approved you can also get a flexible interest rate, depending upon your qualifications.

With Check Credit you really get a Simple Interest Loan (6) because you only pay for what you use, only as long as you use it.

You can borrow from your account automatically in increments of $100 at a time, or in any amount you specify. Or you can ask for a specific amount to be transferred to your checkbook. With advance notice, we'll give you a check loan down to the penny.

One way or another, Check Credit makes it possible for you to pay less interest than before.

It saves you a penalty charge for bounced checks because when you write a check you can't cover, we cover it for you.

When you put it all together, Planters Ultra Checking has all the things a good checking account can offer you along with some things only an advanced checking account can offer you. See a PNB banker today, because after this you won't ever have to see him again. Well, hardly ever.
