Greenville's Bicentennial Book Goes On Sale Today

The Bicentennial Book: A sale today at Bicentennial Greenville Album was placed on Headquarters according to word.

received from Dr. Thomas A. Williams, editor of the book. Published by Era Press, the paperbacks will sell for $3.95 and the hardbacks for $6.95, the latter going on sale October 4.

The 120 page book is a trip into Greenville's past with an abundance of pictures and drawings of buildings no longer existing and of times slower but perhaps no easier than today. The articles cover such diverse topics as steamboating on the Tar, old fashioned masquerades and minstrel shows, and the railroad's coming to town.

Opening day sales of the book will be held at large tables outside Bicentennial Headquarters at the corner of Ninth and Evans. The public is urged to get their copies early. To reserve hardback copies call 752-1919. Paperbacks will not be reserved.

Paul Dowell has contributed an article on "Greenville's War On Warts," while Claire Pittman tells how "The Whole Town's Burning." David Phelps writes about the area's Indian past; Stan Riggs writes about the Tar River; and Allen Churchill informs the reader how to trace his ancestors.

The book projects into Greenville's future, also, with predictions by Greenville citizens of what the city will be like in the year 2000, the things which will have changed and the things which will be very much the same as today.

Old advertisements have been reproduced along with public notices and town ordinances, quaint now but practical at the time.

Abdel Rahman Khene of Algeria also told the independent Beirut newspaper Al Bayrak he expects Saudi Arabia to acquire 100 per cent control of the Arabian American Oil Co. (Aramco), the world's largest oil-producing firm, before the end of the year.

Ford Asks Congress For Budget Changes

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, acting under a new budget and impoundment control law, asked Congress today to defer or rescind $20.3 billion in federal budget authority as an essential step for reducing spending and holding down inflation.

In a message to Congress, the President said this was the first of a series of deferrals and proposed revisions he will propose.

Virtually all of these initial actions were anticipated in the fiscal year 1975 budget sent to Congress by President Richard M. Nixon, Ford said. Fiscal year 1975 began July 1.

The release of these funds now, the White House said in a fact sheet, would increase government spending by about $600 million in fiscal 1975, by more than $2 billion in fiscal 1976 and even the larger amounts in fiscal 1977 and beyond.

Many of the programs involved call for continuous spending in future years beyond the 1975 budget.

Some of the authorizations involved call for continuous spending in future years beyond the 1975 budget.

"Budgetary restraint remains a crucial factor in our efforts to bring inflation under control," the President said in the message.

"In today's environment we cannot allow excess federal spending to stimulate demand in a way that exerts further pressures on prices," he added. "And we cannot expect others to exercise necessary restraint unless the government itself does so."

The deferrals, totaling $19.84 billion, include the following major areas:

—$9 billion in grants for waste treatment plants construction, which Ford said would be "highly inflationary," particularly in view of the rapid rise in nonfederal spending for pollution control." He said some of the funds now deferred will be allotted on or prior to Feb. 1, 1975.

Living Costs Soared In Report On August

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices soared 1.3 per cent in August as sharp increases in costs of meats, clothing, mortgage interest and medical services led the biggest inflationary surge of the past 12 months, the government reported today.

The leap in retail prices, which works out to an adjusted annual rate of 15.6 per cent, was foreshadowed by near record wholesale price increases over the past two months and virtually assures continued high inflation through 1974.

President Ford's top economic advisers had said Thursday that the economy would remain sluggish at least through mid-1975 with no foreseeable relief in inflation expected in the next six to nine months.

The August increase lifted consumer prices 11.2 per cent above a year ago and further eroded the buying power of American workers.

Real spendable earnings—that is, take-home pay after deductions for taxes and adjusted for inflation—fell nine-tenths of a per cent last month to a level 4.1 per cent below a year ago, the Labor Department said. That was the lowest level since December 1970.

Detailing its price report, the Labor Department said Americans paid more for nearly everything last month with few exceptions. Among them were lower prices for fresh vegetables, fish and some nonfood items, including gasoline which declined for the first time since last September.

In a related development, Chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board told financial leaders attending one of President

Ford's presummit meetings on the economy that there would be no further tightening of the monetary policy that has led to record high interest rates. Burns said, however, there probably would not be a major decline in interest rates—although some small decline is possible—in the immediate future.

WOULD MAKE GUC ELECTIVE

How could Greenville citizens go about making the Greenville Utilities Commission an elective body rather than an appointive one, as it is now? D.S.

City Attorney Dave Reid says the Greenville Utilities Commission is provided for in the city's charter. The charter can be amended only by an act of the N.C. General Assembly.

Historically local legislation is dealt with by the legislators when it has been requested by the governing body of the city of county involved. So you probably would do best to petition the City Council for the proposed change. However, it would not be illegal for you to request the amending of the charter directly of our senators and representatives.

LOSING ON BOTTLES

When I buy a soft drink I have to pay a five-cent deposit. Yet several stores have told me recently they pay only three or four cents for the same bottle returned. I don't think this is fair. D.V.

Spokesmen for all three local soft drink bottling companies say retailers buy bottles from them at five cents apiece, and that they pay five cents for each bottle returned. "If the retailers feel they need payment for the handling of the bottles, that's up to them," said Tom Smith, sales manager for the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company.

All three bottling companies suggested that persons not satisfied with payment by the stores bring bottles to them. Pepsi buys empties of their own brands from 7 to 11 a.m. Monday through Friday; Coca-Cola, from 8 to 11 a.m. Monday through Friday; and Royal Crown from 9 a.m. to noon Monday, Wednesday, and Friday.

KEEP CEMETERIES OPEN LATER

My husband and I have an eight-grave lot in Greenwood Cemetery and we like to keep the grass clipped around the curb. We can do this best in the late afternoon after work. Twice lately we've been asked to leave because the gate was being locked at 5 o'clock—when it's not dark till much later this time of year. Why can't the City keep the gates open later? Mrs. H.N.

"Because of experience with vandalism, we have found it extremely unwise to leave any of our cemeteries open unattended. And unless we're going to pay out Public Works employees overtime to stay beyond their 8 to 5 days, we can't offer this accommodation," City Manager Bill Carstarphen said. "I'm sorry."

Turning Back To 'Orthodox' Second Year

CHAPEL HILL, N.C.

(AP)—University of North Carolina planners are moving in the direction of a sophomore-year medical school for East Carolina university instead of a controversial, unorthodox plan.

It is yet to be determined, however, whether sufficient clinical teaching facilities are available in Greenville to support a traditional second-year program.

Dr. Christopher Fordham, dean of the UNC Medical School and the man overseeing expansion of the ECU program, said in a telephone interview that UNC planners "haven't gotten much interest" in the unorthodox plan. Instead, they are assessing clinical teaching facilities in Greenville with an eye towards a sophomore year.

"A final determination has not been made," Fordham said. He added the sophomore-year program is being discussed by ECU officials and Greenville hospital officials.

The unorthodox plan for expanding the ECU medical school called for it to begin

'Restoration Of Democracy' Claimed CIA Role In Chile

WASHINGTON (AP) — The activities of the Central Intelligence Agency in Chile were aimed at restoring democracy, not at overthrowing the government, according to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

He told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Thursday that the military overthrow of Marxist President Salvador Allende in 1973 was coincidental to the CIA program in Chile.

"Our concern was not a coup in 1973 but elections in 1978," Kissinger said of the spy agency's activities during Allende's three-year regime.

Citing national security, the secretary would not go into details of the CIA's Chile operation and he did not address himself to reports that the agency spent $8 million on actions against Allende.

However, he pointed out that Allende was elected with 36 per cent of the popular vote, just one per cent over the runnerup.

And the secretary of state specifically challenged claims that the Chilean president operated a democratic government.

Once elected, Allende "set about to establish what appeared to be a one-party government and to throttle the opposition," Kissinger said.

Sens. Lowell P. Weicker, R-

Conn., and Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., on Thursday introduced a bill to tighten congressional supervision of the CIA.

They would set up a House-Senate committee to oversee all U.S. intelligence operations overseas and to control the budget of such agencies. It would be similar to the joint congressional committee on atomic energy.

WEST BERLIN, Germany (WNS)—Single working women here have launched a campaign for more and cheaper housing. Their slogan: "Aren't We As Worthy As Animals?" Stop Whining To Parents About Fights

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by The Chicago Tribune

DEAR ABBY: You should have told "Mother of Eight Dolls" to tell the doctor who told her, "The law of averages is in your favor, 100 to one," to go back to medical school for courses in genetics and statistics.

Theoretically, no matter how many children of what sex a couple already have, the odds are very close to 50-50 that the next one will be a girl. Before this couple had had any children the doctor could have predicted that if they went on to have eight children, the odds were 256 to one against all eight being girls.

But that isn't the question the doctor was asked. He was asked, "Of all families that have seven girls born already, what are the odds that the eighth will be a boy?"

In summary, the proper prediction to give this couple, if asked for advice concerning an eighth try for a boy, would be, "The normal odds are 50-50, but in your case there may be other factors causing you to bear only girls, so I would have to say that your eighth child is more likely to be a girl than a boy." SARA K. WEINBERG, CLASS OF 1977
UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

DEAR SARAH: You belong at the head of the class, which is probably where you are. Congratulations.

DER ABBY: Please tell me if I am wrong or right. There was a TV program (a special) I had looked forward to seeing for a long time. I was invited to play cards that night, but declined because I wanted to see it.

About 15 minutes before it was to go on, in came my sister-in-law and mother-in-law! They don't live very far from me, and we see each other quite often. I get along fine with my sister-in-law, but my mother-in-law is a different story.

I said, "I'll fix coffee, but I so want to see a TV program which goes on in 15 minutes. Please stay and watch it with me!"

My mother-in-law said, "Don't bother making coffee, we can't stay." Then she pulled my sister-in-law by the arm and they left.

The next day my sister-in-law called and said, "For a smart woman, you sure are dumb!" Then she laid me out because I didn't just skip the TV program and entertain her and Mom.

I want your opinion on this incident.

BURNING IN BOSTON

DEAR BURNING: I don't know why anyone (relative or otherwise) should drop in uninvited and unannounced and expect to be treated like an invited guest. They should have called first and given you a chance to say, "I'm sorry, but I have plans. How about tomorrow night?"

DEAR ABBY: I am an 18-year old girl who has been married for two years. No kids. (I lost the baby I was P.G. with when I got married, and can't have any more kids.)

Like most couples, Bill and I have our fights, and when we do I call up my folks and mention it, and they drive right down to "rescue" me.

They live 300 miles away, and by the time they get here I've cooled off and so has Bill, but they make me go home with them to think things over anyway. They treat me like a child—not a grown woman.

They're hoping I'll leave Bill for good because they never wanted me to marry him in the first place. He does run around on me sometimes, but he was only 18 when we got married, and I was the only girl he ever had, so maybe he just has to get it out of his system.

I sure wish my folks would quit trying to talk me into leaving Bill. I really love him even though we fight a lot. I feel like I'm being pulled in two directions.

I'm home now, wishing I was back with Bill. I'll take any advice you can give me.

MISERABLE IN KANSAS

DEAR MIS: If you're being "pulled in two directions" you're asking for it whether you realize it or not.

In responding to your calls, your folks understandably think you're asking for help. But if you really love Bill, quit whining to your parents every time you have a fight and get some professional counseling.

Italian Housewives Find Shopping Changes

By DALE MCADOO

ROME (WNS)—Let the harried, inflation-ridden American housewife, as she trudges her shopping cart up to the supermarket cash register, take heart. Her troubles are as nothing compared with her Italian counterpart in the "supermercato."

A brief report on current market-basket prices here as compared to those of 1964 may be of some comfort as those totals appear at the checkout counter.

An important factor in changing prices in Italy is that 10 years ago there was relatively little supermarket shopping. Back in '64, the Italian housewife would set out in the morning—or better yet, send the cook, if she still had one—to buy vegetables at the greengrocer's, fruit at the fruit stand, beef or veal at the butcher's, pork at the "necineria" or pork butcher's, chicken at the poultryer's, stopping off at the last minute at the baker's to pick up enough freshly baked bread to last her through lunch. The dinner bread would be bought later, when the afternoon's fresh supply was baked, around 4:00 p.m.

In the intervening years, all that has changed. Although the independent, specialized shop is still to be found, lack of cook or maid to run errands plus galloping inflation have taught the Italian "padrona di casa" housewife that you go down the aisle not only on your wedding day but every day thereafter, with the baroque splendors of the church replaced by the rococo magnificence of the supermarket.

This morning, as Signora Bianchi pilots her shopping cart into the fresh vegetable aisle, she will find that tender green beans, which cost 24 cents per lb. 10 years ago, are now selling for 77 cents. The dry beans which cost 34 cents per lb. when her husband was 10 years younger, are now priced at $1.11. Potatoes, once 7 cents per lb., are now 13 cents; tomatoes have jumped from 31 cents to 51 cents; salad greens from 22 cents to 40 cents.

The pattern is less consistent in the canned-goods department. Tomato paste, once 36 cents per lb., is now 76 cents. Canned peas, inexplicably, are still 28 cents for a 1-lb. can, just as they were when LBJ and Barry Goldwater were battling through the long hot summer of '64. Green beans have also remained fairly stable in the tin—33 cents then, 36 cents now. And peeled tomatoes, the kind used for spaghetti sauce, have also stayed at their old price of 31 cents for a 1-lb. can.

The reason for this would seem to be that a decade ago canned vegetables were used less than their fresh counterparts and were, therefore, relatively expensive; common today, as well as reflecting inflation with less sensitivity because of longer-term stockage, they are marked at prices which remained substantially stable.

The same cannot be said of canned fish and meat products. Today, tinned meat goes for a purse-jolting at $1.63 per lb., as compared with the old price of 68 cents and canned tuna has jumped from $1.20 to $1.90.

Prices for fresh fruits, expressed as an average for bananas, pears, apples, apricots, peaches, cherries and melon, have just about doubled, from 30 cents then to 58 cents per lb. now. An extraordinary jump was made by cherries, which went from 31 cents to $1.08.

Little cheer for Signora Bianchi, as for Mrs. Jones across the sea, in the meat department. The best veal has gone from $1.82 to $3.31 per lb.; what is called "family" veal has also increased, up to $2.66 from $1.28. Some comfort there is for those who like rabbit—you can put one in the stewpot for only $1.44 per lb., still up from 84 cents per lb. in 1964.

And it's here in the meat and poultry aisle that Signora Bianchi may smile for the first time: chicken, which used to cost $1.18 per lb., is now only $1.08. Like Cassius, however, the local chicken hath a lean and hungry look, and it is a real challenge to the cook's culinary know-how.

Small eggs, which in most of Italy are also not very good to our taste, are up to $1.04 per dozen from 70 cents. Butter, and very good butter it is, used to be $1 per lb.; now it's $1.46.

Here are some comparative cheese prices, per lb.: fontina, 82 cents, $1.87; Emmenthal, 97 cents, $1.74; Taleggio, 92 cents, $1.62;

Gorgonzola, 83 cents, $1.58. And that is saving the real cruncher for last—Parmesan cheese, without which no pasta dish is conceivable, has gone up from $1.08 per lb. in 1964 to $2.57 today. Actually, the Parmesan price is not so bad. In 1945, at the end of the war, a wheel of Parmesan saved from the retreating Germans was worth about the same as a two-room apartment.

The foundation of the Italian diet, that miracle food known as pasta asciutta, which exists in some 500 or 600 different sizes and shapes, has held fairly firm over the years. Today it averages 26 cents per lb., as against 16 cents a decade ago. The explanation is simple.

If, instead of increasing by 60 per cent, macaroni products had gone up 100, 200 or 300 per cent, as some items have done, there would have been a revolution. There still may be, but that is another story.

Seasonal Chores Are Duplicated In Village

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

If women have any doubt that they've come a long way in the last century and a half, a visit to Old Sturbridge Village in Massachusetts would dispel that doubt.

At the historical village (1790-1840) women wearing costumes depict the myriad daily, weekly, monthly and seasonal chores that early American women performed. Summer preparation of the five residences in the village of 40 historical buildings on 200 acres would bring sweat to the brow. The authentic houses that recreated rural New England village were put on the summer standard again by Mrs. Jane Nylander, curator of textiles and ceramics who uses research from the village library.

Early women had to be concerned with the effects of heat, flies, moths and strong sunlight on their homes in summer, among other things.

For example, there was the bug thing. If one didn't need to use tansy (bitter herbs) along baseboards and at the sink to control ants, one would no doubt need to worry about mosquitoes and possibly making screens "of light frames of the size of lower sashes and covered with millinet" as one publication, "The New England Farmer" was advising women in 1826. Further advice included putting them in place about 5 p.m. and shutting the doors.

Mrs. Nylander puts the cheesecloth screens in one house on the floor during the day as the early women did. And since one had to worry about curtains and draperies fading and had to remove them, closing the shutters to let in air as it kept out heat, that too is done at Sturbridge. Chandeliers often were wrapped in dust bags just as the one at the Towne House Hall "to keep them clean from fly specks and because it would not be used much in summer anyway." In fact, fly specks were such a problem in old houses that pictures, mirrors and frames were covered with muslin, although in 1838 the "House Servants Directory" was advising a method to beat the insects droppings: Paint an essence of boiled leeks or onion on picture and furniture frames to protect them.

As for packing away woolens, an issue of the "American Frugal Housewife" advised brushing, packing, covering them with linen "when little millers which lay moth-eggs begin to appear," and putting them in a dark place.

Fortunate In That Work Begun

It is not surprising that the construction of the new Pitt Memorial Hospital is 60 days behind schedule, considering the amount of rain that has fallen in this area during August and September. We are fortunate, though, because construction of the big facility is at least underway. When bids were received for the new hospital, they were considered staggering. Since then, however, construction costs have continued to sky rocket and it is possible we would not even be able to start construction at today's costs.

Construction Engineer Ralph Hall reported to the Pitt Memorial board of trustees this week that most structural steel has been delivered. "Many plans for other places have gone back on the shelves because costs have doubled and tripled in the past few months," he told the board.

Hospital construction is like everything else in this time of rampant inflation; whatever is done today will be done at a cheaper cost than it will be tomorrow.

Should Make Certain Tragedy Isn't Repeated

An area man was killed in a tragic bombing accident in Rattan Bay of Carteret County.

Charles Michael Harris, a fisheries agent for the Agricultural Extension Service of N.C. State University was in a boat in the area when the practice bombing took place, according to news reports.

It is not our purpose to fix blame here, but military and state authorities should investigate this matter fully. There should be recommendations to make certain that such a tragedy does not occur again.

Count The Children Drive

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—How can state officials accurately draw up budgets and program plans for helping children with special needs when they don't know how many kids there are with special problems, what those problems are, and where the children are located?

The answer is obvious, and many research groups and study commissions over the years have run into that same stone wall.

October, however, may change that major obstacle to a host of state programs, as a statewide Count the Children program is carried out.

At stake are the future lives of unknown thousands of youngsters in North Carolina who rank among those labeled "exceptional." That includes all the talented and gifted with high intelligence levels, the handicapped of all sorts, the retarded, the emotionally unstable—any child whose life and learning need a special boost along the way.

State Census
Theodore R. Drain, director of the division for exceptional children at the State Department of Public Instruction, has been pushing for a statewide census for quite a while.

An original proposal for $250,000 to carry out that count got the axe from economy minded lawmakers, but Drain got $100,000.

There is, Drain admits openly, "no way" that a complete census can be made for that amount of money. But, some intensive counting in certain areas can be made, and the statistics expanded statewide to give a lot better information than now available.

"We've been utilizing for 20 years statistics coming to us from the federal level, and we simply don't actually know how many children with special needs there are in this state," Drain says.

The Count the Children

action in October will come in two related moves.

First, using 10 counties picked by the Research Triangle Institute as being ones from which figures can accurately be projected statewide, state officials from public instruction and the Department of Human Resources, and volunteers from a host of different organizations including Parents and Professionals for Handicapped Children, will scour the county for any person up to 21 years old who falls in the exceptional category. That tally will take all month, with results expected the first of November.

Bring Them In

In mid-October, the state will launch a drive statewide—not just in the 10 selected counties—for all parents who have a kid with troubles to register at the local school superintendent's office. That drive will last two weeks, and will provide a cross check on the census drive. Drain said the registration drive will also provide additional services to his department:

—It will provide an accurate count of numbers of children recognized by their parents as needing special help; of course many children will be missed in this process since they have not been so identified by their parents.

—It will help to identify by name and location a larger number of children needing help.

—It will put local superintendents on notice that there is a specific population—with details as to numbers, identification, and location—who will be demanding services from the local school system.

—It will help to publicize new state laws which requires that all students be given an equal educational opportunity regardless of individual special problems.

Ultimate Breakthrough

WASHINGTON—Several weeks ago I wrote about how the supermarkets raise the prices on their cans and boxes so fast that sometimes there are two or three changes in the cost of an item before you get to the parking lot. I pointed out that some supermarkets actually have stock boys chasing your cart down the aisles stamping your packages before you get to the counter, while other stores have their clerks hidden in ambush behind the stacks of Ritz crackers.

But my friend Joe Krell revealed the latest in grocery price warfare the other day. He called me up and asked me to come over, explaining he couldn't talk on the phone. When he opened the door he looked like a nervous wreck.

"Let's walk outside," he said, "the house could be bugged."

We strolled down the street. "Something's happening," he said. "The other day I brought a can of tuna. It was marked 55 cents. I carried it home and put it in the food closet. When I took it out the next day it was marked 63 cents. I thought I had made a mistake in the original price, but to be certain I put it back in the closet. The next day the price on the can read 70 cents."

Now I must say Krell is a very sober fellow and to my knowledge would not make something like this up. He obviously had gotten several cans of tuna mixed up. I suggested this but he shook his head. "No way. This morning I took out the can and it said 2 for $1.50. I'm telling you something's fishy about this."

Krell told me at first he thought it was just the tuna can, but to make sure he started checking other grocery items on his shelves. Sure enough they increased by 2 or 3 cents a day. "Even the stuff I put in the freezer changed price overnight. I bought some steak for $2.50 a pound—the next night, when I took it out to thaw it, it was marked $3.25."

I thought about it. Krell probably was suffering from some sort of hallucination (Continued on Page 5)

Public Forum

To the editor:

Bill Noblitt's informative article in the Reflector on September 10 shed much light on the role of "the Physician Extender". However, E.C.U. supporters are not opposed to the physician extender concept, as the article implied. It is unfortunate that the rural clinic and physician extender ideas have been promoted by E.C.U. opponents as a substitute for a medical school at E.C.U., because those approaches do not eliminate the need for the physician. In fact, such clinics cannot operate in some parts of the state because of the absence of physicians to provide essential consultation and patient record review. So, it is not an "either or" proposition. We need both: many more family physicians and many more of other types of health personnel.

Various E.C.U. educators have assisted in rural health clinic development and have actively supported the principle of rural health clinics and physician extenders. The E.C.U. School of Nursing has provided specialized in-service education to nurses, enabling them to more ably assist physicians in pediatrics and other areas of need. Further, the School of Nursing is in the process of developing a plan to train Rural Family Nurse Practitioners, such as would help man rural clinics. Such nurses are also in very short supply!

In any case, adequate physician backup is essential and, in many rural areas, we do not have enough physicians to provide this required backup and still maintain their regular patient load.

While I certainly cannot speak for all E.C.U. proponents, I commend Mr. Jim Bernstein and his staff of the Office of Rural Health and the North Carolina Department of Human Resources for their concern for and accomplishments in rural health. At the same time, we all know that their efforts are to no avail unless physician backup is available to the rural health clinic.

We intend to educate both physicians and physician extenders.

The INSIDE REPORT

Approaching Cataclysm

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — An incredible secret Israeli request for $4 billion a year in U.S. arms is explained by the confidential estimate given to major American industrialists by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger on Sept. 6: A new Arab-Israeli war "within six to eight months" is a better than 50-50 proposition.

Kissinger told the businessmen that the U.S. would continue to push for a new negotiating phase, but time is running out. Kissinger's top lieutenant for the Mideast, Under Secretary Joseph Sisco, made a similarly bleak report. One industrialist present came away with the strong impression that the Palestine question — the heart of the Mideast dispute — is beginning to look "insoluble" to U.S. policymakers.

With once-hopeful prospects for a Mideast solution deteriorating, Israeli Prime Minister Itzhak Rabin in Washington last week pressed on President Ford his massive military aid package — published here for the first time. Although it definitely will be trimmed, it raises the possibility of a preemptive Israeli strike against Syria which would dangerously draw in both the United States and the Soviet Union.

When fully totalled, Israel's aid demands far exceed the widely-reported $1 billion in immediate "urgent" military supplies plus $1.5 billion a year in military credits for the next five years. Rabin's government also has asked $2.5 billion in military arms to be paid for in cash in each of the next five years.

"Add it all up," one high Pentagon official told us, "and Israel is preparing expenditures, in cash and credit, on military armaments equal to 40 per cent of its gross national product for the next five years. It's totally ridiculous."

Yet, that $4 billion in American arms almost exactly equals U.S. military sales to oil-rich Mideastern countries, led by Iran and Saudi Arabia. Thus, Rabin attempts to tie U.S. aid to Israel to the same level of U.S. arms for the Arabs (though, of course, Iran is neither Arab nor anti-Israeli). Besides, Rabin argues that Soviet military aid to Syria must be neutralized by U.S. aid to Israel.

Both Kissinger and Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger agree in opposing Israel's vast new arms demands on the U.S. No final decision has been made by Mr. Ford, staunchly pro-Israeli as a Congressman (although the administration has tentatively rejected Israel's request for highly sophisticated, late-model American arms, particularly laser-guided "smart" bombs).

Middle East specialists in the government doubt that Mr. Ford, despite his fondness for Israel, will agree to anything approaching the overall Israeli demand. These specialists privately say that Israel already is stronger in relation to the Arabs than at the outbreak of war last October. In that strength, they perceive a growing militarism in Israel which could lead to preemptive operations against Syria, plunging the U.S. into direct Soviet confrontation.

Some highly qualified officials here are now talking about a conditional Syrian decision to move its capital from Damascus, within easy air range of Israel, to Aleppo, far to the north on the Turkish border. That reflects how seriously the threat of Israeli attack, reversing the preemptive Yom Kippur Syrian attack on Israel, is taken in Damascus.

Administration officials are troubled that Israel is trying to gain a military posture of such strength that the U.S. will lose what little leverage it now has in trying to promote compromise.

"They want military autonomy," one high official told us. "But if they get it they won't have to negotiate."

Israeli claims that Syria has broken its Golan Heights truce agreements of last May are taken seriously in the Ford administration. However, the possibility that Israel might react with a preemptive military strike against Damascus ("to teach them a lesson," in the phrase of one high U.S. official) is regarded as totally self-defeating.

More important, from the administration's viewpoint, is the grave worry that a new Arab-Israeli war would have instant Washington-Moscow repercussions. Although neither was directly involved at the start of war last year, both soon became major participants. In the next round, both will be involved at once — with deep, conflicting and potentially calamitous commitments.

Some shrewd specialists want the Ford administration to defuse the powder train by an immediate and drastic cutback in arms aid to both the Arabs and Israel, with Soviet cooperation. That may seem Pollyannish, but it deals (Continued on Page 5).

RUTH

The Biblical story of Ruth is a very beautiful one, and is probably not well known among people who are not regular readers of the Bible.

The story tells how death took the husband and two sons of Naomi, a Hebrew woman who married a Moabite and went to live in that country. Naomi decided to go back home, but urged her daughters-in-law, the widows Orpah and Ruth, to stay in Moab. They would not find husbands in Bethlehem where everything Moabite was hated. According to the story, Orpah, weeping at the prospect of separation, decided to remain in Moab as Naomi advised. But Ruth could not be persuaded to remain. She decided to go with the mother-in-law she loved even though it might well mean a very lonely life.

But of course the story comes out happily in the end. Ruth found an eminently suitable husband in the person of the noble-minded Boaz. The account is in the Bible because the offspring of the marriage was Obed, grandson of David and forebear of Jesus.

India Feels Hunger

BANKURA, India (AP) —

The businessmen of Bankura are waging a quiet battle against starvation among destitute local laborers and thousands of landless peasants driven into town by hunger.

They are operating kitchens that dispense curd bread and lentil soup free or at reduced prices to more than 20,000 persons a day. And they are opening more kitchens in nearby towns.

Landless farmhands and their families are quitting their rural mud homes in this district 160 miles northwest of Calcutta. They crowd the buses or lurch along in the dust with bundles on their heads and babies in their arms.

Thin brown arms stab at the bread spread on flat leaves for the hungry in the middle of central Bankura Street. Several thousand squat in lines for the dole, making shrill cries for more when the man with the soup bucket passes.

Mothers stick food into their babies' mouths. Children eat in quick handfuls. Old men eat in stunned silence.

"It's been six months since we had any work or food," said 32-year-old Mondandra Mandal, who walked 24 miles from his village. "There was farming in the village, but the plants have died because there is no rain."

The chance to find jobs is bleak until the fall rice harvest at the end of October. With government food stocks inadequate and prices on the open market out of reach, businessmen say the food situation will be desperate unless help comes fast.

The situation is the same all over India because of drought and lack of fertilizer. Government food bins are dangerously near the empty mark.

The government has contracted to buy nearly 2 million tons of food grains through December, much of it from the United States. Indian envoys are reported urgently seeking U.S. help to get more.

Air Crash Triggered Reversal

By LES SEAGO

Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE (AP)—A DC9 crash that killed 70 persons last week triggered a sudden reversal in a Federal Aviation Administration policy, a National Transportation Safety Board official has said.

Ed Slattery, public relations officer for the NTSB, said the board has been trying, without success, to convince the FAA of the need for terrain proximity warning devices for four years.

This week, as NTSB investigators probed the wreckage of Eastern Airlines Flight 212 at Charlotte, N.C., the FAA proposed a regulation making such devices mandatory on scheduled airline flights.

"We've been telling them that all along," Slattery declared in a telephone interview. "Until now, they have been saying that they weren't needed."

FAA Administrator Alexander P. Butterfield told a congressional hearing Wednesday that present equipment does provide for safe terrain clearance "as long as proper flight crew discipline" is maintained.

"Unfortunately, there is evidence that this discipline is not always achieved..." Butterfield said.

Slattery said the NTSB has been concerned about a developing pattern of final approach crashes—accidents occurring during the final minutes of a flight, usually in poor weather.

He said the Charlotte crash fit in the pattern, although he emphasized that investigators have not completed their study.

The crash of a Lockheed 101 near Miami last year and a non-fatal accident involving another DC9 at Chattanooga in November were representative of the final approach crashes, he said.

Slattery said terrain warning devices would "salvage a lot of these low approaches that turn into accidents."

Most jetliners are already equipped with radar altimeters, a device that emits an audible warning when a pre-set altitude is reached.

The terrain warning proximity device is a more-sophisticated system that follows the routine signal with an increasingly strident tone and finally a tape-recorded order to "Pull Up!"

The devices cost between $11,000 and $15,000 each, Slattery said.

Slattery indicated that such a system might have warned the crew of Eastern's Flight 212 of their low altitude before they touched down in a field more than two miles from the airport.

He said tape recordings of the pilots' conversations during the final moments of flight indicated that the crew did not know they were too low.

"There was no discussion...no concern. It was very routine up until he very end," he said.

N.C. Lawyer-Legislator Issue Raises Little Dust

RALEIGH (AP) — Although several North Carolina lawyer-legislators earn fees from electric power companies, their roles on behalf of the utilities have not stirred as much debate here as in South Carolina. First, Tar Heel lawmakers have no direct role in naming commissioners to state regulatory agencies. Members of the North Carolina Utilities Commission are appointed by the governor.

In South Carolina, members of the Public Service Commission, which regulates utilities, are elected by the legislature. Some critics claim this gives South Carolina lawmakers considerable leverage when arguing before the PSC on behalf of utility clients.

Second, legislators have not represented electric companies in recent rate case hearings. In South Carolina, public clamor over the issue was fueled when three senators argued for substantial increases three years ago.

Finally, the sums paid to Tar Heel lawmakers have generally been smaller than those paid to members of the South Carolina General Assembly. For example, the largest fee paid last year to a North Carolina legislator by either Duke Power or Carolina Power and Light Co. was $12,979. Three South Carolina lawmakers earned more than $20,000 during the same period.

According to records at the State Utilities Commission, North Carolina legislators whose firms received fees from power companies include: —Sen. Fred Folger, whose firm was paid $1,069 by Duke Power. —Sen. William Staton, whose firm was paid $758 by CP&L. —Rep. E. Lawrence Davis, whose firm earned $8,301 from Duke Power. —Rep. Ed Holmes, whose firm was paid $6,025 by CP&L. Rep. Herbert Hyde, whose firm earned $12,979 from CP&L. —Rep. James Long, whose firm was paid $3,425 by Duke Power. —Rep. Ward Purrington, whose firm was paid $2,762 by CP&L. —Rep. James Ramsey, Speaker of the House, whose firm earned $9,893 from CP&L. —Rep. Wade Smith, whose firm was paid $821 by CP&L.

"This is the sort of thing where thou shalt be good," said Ramsey. "But when you try to nail down the thing to specifics and stretch it across the broad spectrum, it's not so easy to determine what's right and what's wrong."

During the last legislative session, the General Assembly enacted legislation allowing power companies to use projected data when making rate increase requests. The bill was considered a plus for the utilities.

Hyde voted against the measure and Davis abstained. Folger, Staton, Holmes, Long and Purrington supported the bill. Each said he voted for the bill on its merits and not because of private practice.

A spokesman for Purrington, now a Republican candidate for Congress, said the representative was not aware his firm had been paid by CP&L when he cast his vote.

Buses Stoned, Students Hurt In Boston Strife

BOSTON (AP) — At least four students were hurt in scattered school bus stonings involving both blacks and whites in a boycott protesting busing integration and racial violence forced cancellation of classes at a white, middle-class high school.

Throughout the school system, attendance continued to inch up from Wednesday's 75 per cent level, school officials said on Thursday.

Scores of policemen sat on doorsteps near South Boston High School on Thursday, their riot helmets beside them. No crowds gathered on the streets, the scene of violent demonstrations when the first school buses arrived under a court-ordered integration plan a week ago.

A school department spokesman said faculty members and administrators were scheduled to meet at Hyde Park High School today, and attempt to gather a group of white and black students to talk out their problems.

The spokesman said the school is scheduled to open again Monday for only one or two grades. Hyde Park, the school's location, is a white, middle-class neighborhood on the southern edge of Boston, a few miles from South Boston.

The school's racial ratio changed from about 80 per cent white, 20 per cent black last year to 50-50 this year.

"I observed kids getting beaten up. I observed a teacher getting hit over the head with a book," said John O'Connor, a history teacher.

After school, teachers met and voted 60 to 10 to ask that the high school be closed today.

In other developments, a group of Neo-Nazis was ushered out of the state "for their own protection" by police after they were involved in a confrontation in South Boston.

A Ku Klux Klan leader from Louisiana said his followers were recruiting members in Boston. City officials said they would oppose any Klan attempts to hold rallies.

On Final Crossing

Albert Payne Winn of 207 Churchill Dr. was one of the persons to make the final Atlantic crossing of the luxury liner France. Winn, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Wilkins B. Winn, was among a group of students from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill who will be going to school in Orleans, France for a year.

Winn, a Rose High graduate, is a junior at UNC-CH. The French Line Wednesday canceled the ship's four remaining trips and sent it into retirement because the crew had refused since last Thursday to let the liner move.

The flagship of the French Line had been scheduled to make four gala crossings before retirement next month.

The government voted last July to stop paying the ship's annual deficit of about $20 million so the four final trips were called off and reservations of more than 6,000 persons were being canceled.

We sought out Thurston, Craven, a friend who works as a chemist for the government on top-secret work. When we told him the story he whistled. "It sounds like they've made a breakthrough on the APPS."

"APPS?" I queried. "Auto-Progressive Price Stamping. It's the ultimate weapon in price-marking techniques," Craven said. "We knew the supermarkets have been doing research in this field for some time. There has been so much human error in marking cans and boxes and packages that they've had a crash program to find ways for the prices to change themselves. But we didn't expect them to develop anything like it until 1979."

Craven asked Krell to bring over the can of tuna. By the time Krell returned and gave it to Craven, the can was marked "Special $1.20."

Craven put it under his microscope. "Hummmn," he said, "just as I thought. It's on a laser-beam cycle. You see the prices are marked with a high ultraviolet ink which disappears and reappears according to the intensity of light."

"All the supermarket has to do is set the laser on a cycle and the price will go up progressively any amount the store wants."

"The only mystery for me is that the prices should only change in the store. They couldn't keep changing in Krell's closet and freezer. Let me ask you this, Krell. Do you have a television set in the kitchen?"

"Yes, of course," said Krell.

"Well, that explains it," said Craven. "The cathode tube is having the same effect on the marked prices as a laser beam. I would suggest you take the TV out of the kitchen."

Craven added, "And one more thing, Krell. I wouldn't talk to anyone about this. If the supermarkets find out you know about Auto-Progressive Price Stamping, your life won't be worth a 1-cent ham-hock sale."

TerHorst, who quit in protest over President Ford's pardon for former President Richard M. Nixon, was honored on Thursday night at a National Press Club reception. He said his only regret is that he didn't stay at the White House long enough to restructure the press office there.

TerHorst returned to the Detroit News as a syndicated columnist.

About 575 persons attended the press club function. TerHorst was presented with a new pipe and stand engraved with the dates he served as Ford's chief press spokesman.

AFL-CIO Delegates Favor Food Tax Repeal

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—Delegates to the state AFL-CIO convention are on record as favoring repeal of the sales tax on food.

They said in a resolution Thursday that it hurts "young and old, rich and poor, black and white." The resolution recommended increased taxes on higher incomes as an alternative.

The sales tax is 3 per cent for the state, and 1 per cent for local purposes in most areas.

State Sen. Cy B. Behakel of Charlotte has said he will introduce a bill to repeal the state sales tax on food.

Also adopted was a resolution favoring agency shops. An agency shop bill was defeated by one vote last year. Through an agency shop, a union serves as an agent for all employees in a bargaining unit and collects dues from employees regardless of union membership.

There were two resolutions favoring the right of public employees to bargain collectively and go on strike. One, however, excluded firemen and policemen from the right to strike.

When it was pointed out that a resolution had been adopted earlier that did not exclude firemen and policemen from the right to strike, the delegates voted to make both resolutions apply to all public employees.

Wilbur Hobby was re-elected president of the state AFL-CIO without opposition.

The three-day convention will end today.

Two amendments to the constitution which were defeated amid controversy at the convention last year were passed with a few grumbles.

The amendment that caused the loudest protest will increase the state organization's share of union dues from 22½ cents a member to 30 cents a member per month. It is about 33 per cent more money for the state office.

The other amendment expands the state executive board from 20 to 25 members, allowing for five ranking vice presidents to be added.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Four cadets in the East Carolina University Air Force ROTC detachment have been awarded Air Force scholarships.

Selection of the four recipients was based on the scores received on the Air Force Officer Qualifying Test, academic achievement, involvement in extracurricular university activities and recommendations from an interview board of Air Force officers.

The four scholarships were awarded to Eugene H. Powell Jr. of Gibson, Glenn L. Harmon of Kings Mountain, and John M. Wright and Robert C. Childs of Fayetteville.

Tutorial Program Held Parents Night

GRIMESLAND — Parents' Night was held Tuesday for parents of students enrolled in the Pitt County Math and Reading Tutorial Program here. Raymond Reddick, principal of G. R. Whitfield School, where the meeting was held, Mrs. Angela Phillips, director of the Grimesland program, and Mrs. Gaynor Mills, director of the overall county program, explained the program. Mrs. Phillips told about the broadening activities undertaken so far, including a trip to the State Capitol and the State Art Museum and a visit to the Greenville Police and Fire Departments. Mrs. Phillips said about 105 children are enrolled in the program. She expressed concern that participation has not been better. She said about 30 parents attended this meeting.

The parents present talked about the need for transportation for children from families who could not provide a way for them to get to and from the program, which is held after regular school hours. Mileage can be paid anyone willing to provide this transportation, Mrs. Phillips said.

Dog Owners Save Buying Big Time

If value means something to the dog owners of Greenville, they will soon be buying out every can of Big Time they can get their hands on.

Big Time has announced that their dog food is equal in every way to the other premium dog foods except in price. Big Time costs important pennies less per can than the nationally advertised premium brands.

Should Greenville pet owners switch to Big Time to save all this money? "That's just good cents!" is the Big Time reply. (ADV.)

World Not On The 'Brink' Says Butz

CHICAGO (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz says he was not serious about eliminating one-half the country's pets when he raised the possibility recently, and he thinks there will be enough food for all Americans and their animals.

"We are not in a food crisis, either in this country or in the world," Butz said today. "There is absolutely no basis for the kind of panic that has been generated in some quarters both here and abroad."

Butz, in a speech prepared for a meeting of the Pet Food Institute, said his earlier remarks about reducing the U.S. pet population as a way to conserve food were made in response to proposals that Americans eat less meat.

As he has repeatedly, Butz said today that farm production can continue to expand if farmers and industry have enough profit incentive to reach out for new techniques. He said those who understand this are not impressed "by the persistent cries of doom" from critics.

"The world is not on the brink of chaos and famine, and neither are America's pets," Butz said. "We are certainly not to the point where we need to get rid of our household pets or remove meat from our diets."

Butz, in a speech prepared for a meeting of the Pet Food

Institute, said his earlier remarks about reducing the U.S. pet population as a way to conserve food were made in response to proposals that Americans eat less meat.

Once it was called... Courting

Amy and George are going together.

Don't ask George if he's courting Amy. He wouldn't know what you're talking about. Nobody courts any more. They go together.

And there are significant differences. A couple of kids going together do not necessarily have marriage as their objective. They just may have found that afternoons like this one are more delightful when you're with someone you like.

The vital prerequisite for going together is to have a sense of values, a set of standards, that will help you make and keep this a wholesome relationship. Religious education, the moral and spiritual principles fostered by our churches—these are the keys to meaningful relationships throughout life.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina egg markets steady Thursday, supplies adequate, demand good.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—Corn prices were steady to strong and oats and barley steady at North Carolina's leading grain markets Thursday. No. 2 yellow shelled corn 2.85-3.13, mostly 2.85-2.90 in the East and 3.25-3.30 in the Piedmont. No. 2 red oats 1.60.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina hogs trending 50 to 75 higher. Kingston and Lumberton 35.00-36.00; Tarboro and Bethel 33.00-33.50; Salisbury 35.00; Wilson and High Falls 34.00.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market slipped out of its recent climbing pattern today when a prime rate cut it evidently had been looking for failed to materialize.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 9.16 at 664.89, although gains and losers overall were closely balanced on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow had climbed some 47 points over the four previous sessions amid spreading enthusiasm over a softening in short term money rates.

Along the way, hopes apparently built up for a reduction today in the prime lending rate by New York's First National City Bank, despite the fact that most experts were warning any such expectations were probably premature.

Prices opened firm today, then began sliding when Citibank announced it would hold its basic charge on loans to large corporations unchanged at 12 per cent for the coming week.

The underlying problem of inflation, meanwhile, was underscored again when the government reported this morning that consumer prices rose in August at their fastest rate in a year.

Pan American World Airways was the Big Board volume leader down 1/4 at 2 1/2 as a 292-300-share block changed hands at that price.

Blue-chip and glamor issues were broadly lower, with IBM down 1 1/4 at 169 1/4; Texas Instruments, off 2 1/4 at 64 1/4; Du Pont, down 2 1/4 at 118 1/4; and Eastman Kodak, 1 1/2 lower at 74.

The NYSE's 11 a.m. composite index of all its listed common stocks was down .31 at 36.32.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was up .20 at 66.29, however.

K-Tel International slipped 1/2 to 2 on the Amex. The company said a loss in the fiscal fourth quarter ended June 30 was expected to cancel the profits of the previous three quarterly periods.

Parking Meters To Be Removed

HICKORY, N.C. (AP)—The City Council has voted to remove meters from downtown Hickory. It will be an attempt to attract more shoppers.

Merchants say the idea has worked in nearby Newton and in Statesville. The two-hour free parking is effective Nov. 15. It will mean a loss of about $25,000 a year in revenue.

Only Alderman Ralph Starnes voted against removal. He said the city will have to buy another police vehicle, and hire another person to ticket cars parked more than two hours.

Under the proposal, students would have spent two or three years at ECU, then spent most of the next two years in the second and third years of the UNC medical program in Chapel Hill. They would have returned to Greenville for the final year of medical school which would have been followed by residency in family practice at Greenville or another regional center.

The plan encountered opposition from ECU Chancellor Leo Jenkins and several ECU backers in the General Assembly.

Farmville Leaf Prices Steady

FARMVILLE—Prices remained steady on the Farmville Tobacco market yesterday.

According to Louis Williams, sales supervisor, the demand continued strong for leaf and smoking leaf grades. Lead grades accounted for most of the sales.

There was a sizable increase in nondescript grades as compared with previous sales days. Top price paid was $1.20 per pound for some cutter and leaf grades.

"Quality as a whole was not as good as previous sales days," Williams said.

The market sold 338,347 pounds of tobacco for $375,967, for an average of $1.11.12 per hundred pounds.

To date, the market has sold 18,189,282, for $18,674,554, for an average of $1.02.67 per hundred pounds.

Scores Died In Hurricane

By CHARLES GREEN
Associated Press Writer

GUATEMALA (AP) — Reduced to a tropical storm, Hurricane Fifi headed into southern Mexico today leaving at least 60 dead in northern Honduras.

The Honduran National Emergency Committee said ham radio reports that could not be confirmed indicated about 200 persons were killed or missing.

All of the dead reported were in Honduras, which the hurricane lashed on Thursday with 110-mile-an-hour winds and gusts up to 140 m.p.h.

The storm slammed into Belize (formerly British Honduras) on Thursday night and at midnight was over north central Guatemala. The Miami Hurricane Center said its winds had dropped to 60 m.p.h. and "it is expected to gradually lose identity later today as it continues westward into southern Mexico."

The populated area hit hardest apparently was around the Honduran town of Ceiba, on the Caribbean coast. The national emergency committee said 41 persons were killed there.

The committee said 12 more of the confirmed dead were children who were swept away by a flash flood in the small inland town of Progreso.

Guanaja, a small town on an island off the Honduran coast, was reported 80 per cent destroyed, and the town of Roatan, on a neighboring island, was about 40 per cent destroyed, officials said. But most of the inhabitants were believed to have been evacuated before the storm struck.

The U.S. Air Force ordered two small planes and two helicopters from bases in Panama to Honduras for a damage survey. The U.S. embassy in Tegucigalpa, the Honduran capital, said American relief planes were expected with generators, food, medicine, clothing and other supplies.

"The problem appears to be mostly that of hungry and homeless people," an embassy spokesman said.

Estranged Wife Set Self Afire

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Mrs. Bette Moore, 43, estranged wife of State Sen. Herman Moore, set fire to herself Thursday night after calling a radio talk show producer and telling him of her intentions, Mecklenburg County police reported today.

Memorial Hospital reported her in critical condition this morning. County police said she had burns "on the majority of her body."

Police said Mrs. Moore's mother found her in the driveway of the Moore home with her clothing on fire and was dousing the flames when police and an ambulance arrived shortly before 11 p.m.

J. R. Withers, producer of the Lacey Listens show, who screens all telephone calls from listeners before they are aired, said Mrs. Moore did not go on the air. He said she had talked with him before and he "knew immediately who she was. She has a distinctive voice."

Withers said Mrs. Moore told him "life had lost all its meaning" and she called because she "just wanted to tell you what she planned to do."

Withers said Mrs. Moore told him she had doused herself with charcoal lighter fuel and was "positively reeking with it" as they talked.

He tried to dissuade her and put her on hold while he telephoned police. Withers said he heard the telephone drop, then called police a second time and also summoned an ambulance after which the Moore phone was hung up.

Sen. Moore, who was in Raleigh Thursday night, returned home after informed of the incident.

Health Care Report Slated

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina will conduct a Healthcare Report and luncheon at the Greenville Moose Lodge Thursday, Oct. 10 at 10 a.m.

Seven other meetings will be held in other North Carolina cities.

Thomas Rose, president of Blue Cross and Blue Shield, said there is much we can learn about the kind of health care people want from discussion with health leaders and interested citizens throughout the state.

"We want to see a health care system in our state that is second to none," Rose said. "But to attain that ambitious goal will require working together and sharing ideas to achieve a clear understanding of all the issues facing us."

NoloContendere Pleas Accepted

WASHINGTON — Nolo contendere pleas were accepted in U.S. District Court here this week from six persons indicted under charges stemming from a crackdown on a major auto theft ring.

A spokesman for the U.S. District Court said this morning in Raleigh that the federal judge accepted the nolo contendere pleas and continued all of the cases until Oct. 15.

The spokesman said that pleas were accepted from: Leslie Thomas Dixon of Greenville (First Count); Riddick Slade Woolard of Ayden; Ruben Carroll Stroud of Kinston (First Count); Johnny Boykin of Walstonburg (First Count); Lewis Stocks Jr. of Greenville; and Hugh Allen Stox of Greenville (First Count).

Rodney Black of Baltimore, Md. entered a guilty plea to his charge of transporting a stolen motor vehicle. His case was also continued until Oct. 15, the spokesman reported.

Several of those who entered guilty pleas still face court action on other counts of indictment.

Those entering pleas this week were among some 24 persons indicted for their alleged involvement in the receipt, concealment and sale of stolen motor vehicles. All are slated for the Oct. 15 federal court session.

Closings To Take Longer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department said today it will probably take longer to close all flue-cured tobacco sales than indicated earlier this week when officials said the sales were expected to end by Oct. 31.

On Wednesday the department announced it had adopted a selling schedule recommended by a flue-cured advisory committee and said that sales "will be ended by the end of October" if the timetable was followed.

But Homer F. Taylor, deputy director of the tobacco division in the department's Agricultural Marketing Service, said today it is "very likely" to take a little longer, although the Oct. 31 closing still is a possibility.

Taylor said there was no way to determine precisely how much longer flue-cured sales might require but thought they probably could be wrapped up by mid-November at the latest.

"They're not going to close the markets until farmers have a chance to sell their tobacco," Taylor told a reporter.

The plan calls for flue-cured type 14 sales to be closed down by Sept. 23 in Florida and Georgia. Sales then will be concentrated in South Carolina, North Carolina and Virginia, officials said.

Pirates Seek To Snap E. Tenn. Jinx

Reggie Pinkney

One would think that after a victory over a team that you had never beaten before, a coach would be pleased with his team. And this past Saturday, East Carolina downed Bowling Green, 24-6, rolling up 337 yards.

Those 337 yards rolled up on the ground by the Bucs vaulted them into 14th place nationally in rushing, and into the Southern Conference leadership in that category.

But Coach Pat Dye wasn't happy as he watched the Pirates go through their workouts for this Saturday night's 7:30 p.m. game in Ficklen Stadium with East Tennessee State University.

And oddly enough, East Tennessee is another team that the Pirates have never beaten. In five previous meetings, the best the Bucs have gotten away with is a 6-6 tie the first year the two played. Since then, in a series which ended in 1970, the Bucs have lost 34-20, 17-7, 7-0 and 10-0.

"Tuesday it rained hard and I thought that this hurt our practice," Dye said. "But on Wednesday, we were just going through the motions. And if you are going to have a good team, you have to approach practice as if you are going to get better every day. So far I haven't seen this. In fact, I think that in some cases, we've gone backwards."

Dye did feel that the first team defense, the "Wild Dogs," have worked up to par this week, but the second unit, which is composed solidly of freshmen "looked like they were back in high school or junior high school," Dye said. "There was just no discipline. They don't appear able to push when tired."

Earlier in the week, Dye had noted that the freshmen (he played 21 against Bowling Green) had done a good job in the game. "I've always thought that if a dog is going to bite, he'll do it as a puppy," he said in reviewing the game. "We had some to bite Bowling Green."

But this week, the "Puppy Pack" has been more or less toothless. "If they don't pick up in practice, they're not going to play on Saturday night."

The same was true for the offense—as far as how they looked during drills to midweek. Last week, the Bucs failed to catch a pass in eight tries. So some work has been put on that this week. "But it doesn't seem to have done any good," Dye said. "The receivers are not running their patterns at full speed, the passing hasn't been sharp and the blocking in the line hasn't held up. And we coaches have been standing around letting them get away with it—and that's the worst of it."

The Bucs will go roughly with the same lineup they used last week in their win over Bowling Green. Mike Weaver will handle the quarterback duties, where he rolled up 85 yards on the ground. Ken Strayhorn rushed six times for 78 yards, a 13.0 yard average, and Don Schink picked up 67 yards.

In all, ten men carried the ball against the Falcons.

There might tend to be some confusion in the game Saturday, since East Tennessee is known as the "Buccaneers," one of the alternate names of the Pirates.

The Bucs—East Tennessee's—come into the game with an 0-2 record. They lost to another Southern Conference team, Appalachian State, 16-7, then bowed to Carson-Newman, 17-7. East Tennessee runs a split-back veer offense. "They haven't been able to put things together consistently," Assistant ECU Coach Watson Brown said. "They've run for 30 yards on one play, and then lost 20 on the next. They are very young offensively, just about all freshmen and sophomores. But they have a lot of speed in the backfield."

The backs are Pierre Harshaw and Bob Hardy. Harshaw has picked up 139 yards in 22 carries, while Hardy has rushed 13 times for 77 yards. Their quarterback is Eddie Rich, and he is more of a threat to run than pass according to Brown. "He's not an exceptional thrower, and I think they'll run the ball against us if they can."

But they do have good receivers in split end Bo Howard, rated by Watson as real quick and fast. "They have another big receiver in 6-2, 200-pound Ron Hilman, who was All-Conference at tight end. He's got real good hands, but he's not real fast."

On defense, it's another story. "They have nine back from last year. They are not real big, but they're very aggressive. They have one of the best middle guards we'll see in Herman Sanders, and they have two good linebackers in Andy Whetsel and Pee-Wee Brown."

"Their defense has played a lot of the time; they've had to try and win with their defense. Their coach, Roy Frazier, is a real good defensive coach, and he'll remind a lot of people of Sonny Randle: he's outgoing and fiery."

All of the Pirates are expected to be ready to play in the game, although freshman Bill Leitch

Weaver Gave One Answer

Mike Weaver answered one of the big questions surrounding the East Carolina University football team Saturday night.

Weaver ran the Pirates' new offensive attack, the Wishbone, for 377 yards and a 24-6 win over Bowling Green. And though it looked like Weaver was near-flawless in his execution from the sidelines, Weaver admitted that if the attack was going to be more successful, he still had a lot of work to do.

"I just missed too many reads," said Weaver. "I set a goal for myself to not miss any reads, and I just missed too many."

The "Reads" Weaver referred to is in effect the action taken by the last man on the defensive line of scrimmage. Unblocked, the man has to commit himself to an inside or outside route. Hopefully, the quarterback will take the other route. And the first thing Weaver said he has to continue working on in this area is "getting my head to see that tackle immediately. That's what it takes to get the offense down pat."

The 6-2, 170-pound sophomore from Williamston, N.C., hasn't had as much trouble getting the offense down pat as some competitors. Weaver ran the offense in high school, and with the coming of Pat Dye and the Wishbone, this season's start has been like a resurrection of sorts.

"I really hated that offense we ran last year," said Weaver. "But with the Wishbone, you can do your own thing."

Weaver also noted that, yes, there are a lot of comparisons that crop up between himself and the departed Pirate quarterback of the last three seasons, Carl Summerell. As all comparisons of that nature can be sometimes unfair, Weaver said there wasn't really that much to compare.

"If we ran the same offense, had the same defense, and used mostly the same people, you would expect comparisons," said Weaver. "But this is a new era, like they say."

"Anyway, you better believe it would be tough to fill in for the Southern Conference Football Player of the Year, Athlete of the Year, and all that. But Carl isn't here, the offense and defense difference are here, and the past is the past."

While the "past is the past," as Weaver said, it was at the same time hopes of the future that made him want to start playing football back in Williamston.

"In junior high school and before that, we always had those pick-up games next to where the varsity was practicing," said Weaver. "And those varsity guys, some that were pretty good, would come over and watch when they got finished."

"When they did that, you really wanted to rock somebody's jaw, because when you did they'd always say 'Nice going' or something like that."

After moving to East Carolina, Weaver said there was another guy already playing for the Pirates who provided a lot of those "Nice going" words.

"Carl was like a brother to the other quarterbacks," said Weaver. "He never seemed to get tired of answering the dumb questions we would ask."

"Really, if we had a problem remembering plays... or anything off the field, Carl would help us out. He was really amazing."

Weaver, after further reflection on Saturday's game, said the Pirates' seemingly abrupt turnabout from practice sessions that were marked with despair was partially a result of simply getting to play somebody other than another Pirate team.

"I think everyone was tired of practice in general," said Weaver. "Knowing you have a game instead of scrimmage on Saturday makes things a lot nicer."

Weaver did some nice things, including 85 yards rushing, that made head coach Dye comment: "Weaver will bring fans a lot of exciting football in the years to come."

The quarterback is making footprints of his own. But that is what you have to do when you are the first leader in a new era.

Aycock In Loss

WILSON—Wilson Junior High School rolled to a 22-0 victory over E. B. Aycock Junior High School yesterday. It was the first game of the season for the Phantoms.

Rose was unable to get their offense moving in the game, and didn't even get their hands on the ball in the third quarter as Wilson controlled the ball the entire period.

Wilson pushed over two touchdowns in the first period of the game. Bert Ferrell scored the first on a 12-yard run and Linwood Ellis ran over the two-point conversion for a 8-0 lead.

Then, later in the period, Ellis got away on a 40-yard run for the second score. He again picked up the PAT to up the lead to 16-0.

The other Wilson score came in the second period. Ellis scored that on a three-yard run.

Aycock's best threat came when a pass interception was returned for a touchdown, but was called back because of a penalty.

Aycock will play host to Goldsboro on Thursday.

Rampant Cubs Thrash Kinston

Rose High School's junior varsity evened its record at 1-1 yesterday as they rolled to a 28-0 victory over Kinston's Baby Vikings.

The Rampant Cubs had little trouble with Kinston, which was losing its second game in three starts.

Rose grabbed the lead in the first period, when Mike Brown went into the end zone from three yards away, giving Rose a 6-0 lead. A rush for the conversion was stopped short.

It stayed 6-0 until the third period, when Rose again pushed into the end zone. This time, it was Leonard Williams who did the honors, scoring from the four. He added the two-point conversion for a 14-0 lead.

In the fourth period, Ocalas Randolph intercepted a pass to set up the third Rose touchdown. That came on a six-yard run by Williams. Randolph then took a pass from David Middleton for the PAT and a 22-0 lead.

The final score came when Jim Kittrell recovered a fumble in the end zone. A pass for the conversion failed.

Rose rolled up 192 yards in offense while holding Kinston to 63 yards.

The Cubs will travel to Jacksonville next Thursday for a 7:30 p.m. game.

In exhibition matches, Rose split 1-1 with Goldsboro. Cassie Deyton beat Lisa Hajjar, 8-6, but Cooka Garrett lost to Pickette Griswald, 10-8.

The next Rampant outing will be on Tuesday, when Rose travels to Kinston for a 3 p.m. match.

Three Tied In First Pickings

That first week of the football season is always a tricky one. You never know quite what to expect. And our panel of experts proved it last week. The best record came from three different people—Tom Baines, Jack Whichard (both of whom picked the same slate) and this writer. Each of us posted a 7-5 record.

Diane Allen and Joe Jenkins, our two new members, both came out with 6-6 results, while George Holland started with a 5-7 mark.

This week, we all promise to try and do better. Before we begin, there's a look at the high school slate. Last week, we posted a perfect 6-0 record, bringing our mark for the year to 15-1.

This week, there are a number of interesting games, as the Eastern Carolina Conference has another full slate of games.

Farmville Central will be playing host to Southern Nash. The Firebirds have shown that they can put some points on the board. Farmville Central's defense has been tough, however, and their offense is getting together. We'll stick with the Jaguars to win this one.

Southern Wayne is at Greene Central. The Rams came through with wins in their first two games, but apparently there is nothing around like the tough Saints of Southern Wayne. Southern is favored here.

Ayden-Grifton visits Conley in a cross-county game that will draw a lot of attention. The Chargers will be coming off their mauling by Southern Wayne, while Conley is coming off a win. They too have already played the Saints, and weren't beaten as bad. That could be a psychological advantage for the Vikings, but the Chargers get our vote to win.

Finally, in the league, winless Eastern Wayne visits North Pitt. The Panther defense has been showing up better and better, but the offense hasn't gotten cranked up yet. Eastern hasn't shown much either, but they have a much larger team. It's a game that could go either way, but because of the numbers we've got to pick Eastern.

Williamston will be playing host to Murfreesboro, looking for the third straight win in Tigerland. The Tigers appear to be off and rolling, and Murfreesboro has had some problems. We'll go with the Tigers to win again.

Plymouth visits Robersonville. Plymouth was off last week, while Robersonville was bowing to Williamston. The Plymouth team, however, has picked up two good wins, and they look strong. We'll give them the nod over the Eagles.

Now, a look at the panel of experts picks of the week.

First, Rose will be coming off its one-point loss to New Bern against winless Kinston. The Vikings could put it all together if Rose has a breakdown. Mistakes have been costly to Rose all year, and could prove so again. However, the panel is unanimous. Rose is the choice down the line.

The Pirates of East Carolina are looking for their second straight win, as they host East Tennessee, a team the Pirates have never beaten (there has been one tie). Again, the panel has no doubts. East Carolina gets all six votes to win number two.

Other consensus picks find Delaware over The Citadel; Furman over Presbyterian; Virginia over William & Mary; Duke and South Carolina rated a toss-up; North Carolina over Wake Forest; Appalachian State over Davidson; Vanderbilt over VMI; N. C. State over Clemson; Maryland over Florida; and Tennessee over Kansas.

Decision On Wheels Today

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The Houston Texans and Detroit Wheels, two of the financially troubled franchises in the World Football League, both hope to move to greener pastures in the immediate future.

But how immediate is not known, and how much greener remains to be seen.

The Texans were all set to move to Shreveport for next Wednesday's game against Memphis, but State District Court Judge Arthur Leshner issued a temporary restraining order in Houston Thursday compelling the team to play next week's game in the Astro-dome.

Meanwhile, there were indications the Wheels might be shifted to Charlotte today.

Upton Bell, a former executive with the New England Patriots of the National Football League, has shown an interest in purchasing the Detroit club and moving it to Charlotte, and had told the local Park and Recreation Commission he would reveal his plans by today.

If Bell doesn't move the Wheels to Charlotte, the WFL might, according to a report in the Charlotte News.

That report quoted Tim Grandi, assistant to WFL Commissioner Gary Davidson, as saying, "We are hoping for a favorable answer from Bell. There are indications that he is very close to taking the team to Charlotte. But the possibility does exist that the league would make the move if he does not ... the city is considered a very favorable location."

L.A. Frey and Co., a New Orleans meat products firm which markets hot dogs and other packaged meats, sought the court order preventing transfer of the Texans' game against Memphis, contending that such action would damage a ticket promotion it is sponsoring.

The Texans — playing without head coach Jim Garrett and regular quarterback Mike Taliaferro — were beaten 42-14 by the Birmingham Americans in a nationally televised game Thursday night.

Garrett was suspended Thursday by Commissioner Davidson for "conduct detrimental to the league" and Henry Lee Parker, the WFL's director of operations, served as interim coach.

Garrett denied any detrimental action, including a report that he had urged the team's players not to go along with the proposed move to Shreveport.

Davidson said he would hold a hearing on the matter today.

Taliaferro, meanwhile, said before Thursday night's game, "For personal reasons, I will not be able to go to Shreveport." He was promptly suspended by Parker, who used David Mays and D.C. Nobles at quarterback against Birmingham.

Don Baylor opened the scoring, smashing the first pitch of the fifth inning from Rudy May, 6-4, far over the fence for has been hospitalized for a bruised kidney and will not suit up Saturday. He's expected to be in the hospital for about a week for observation.

At least one ECU record will be on the line in the game. Placekicker Jim Woody has kicked nine career field goals, tying the mark of Ricky McEster. His next three-pointer will establish a new mark.

Coach Jim Brakefield may be speaking slightly tongue in cheek when he says Saturday's Southern Conference football opener for his Mountaineers at Davidson will be important because the Wildcats "have had plenty of time to prepare for us."

That's because the game is the first of the season for Davidson, where Ed Farrell is making his debut as coach, but it's likely he'd rather be in Brakefield's position of having already played and won two nonconference encounters.

"They have some of their top players back from last season and we will have our hands full," says Brakefield.

The game, the only one Saturday matching two conference foes, sends Appalachian sophomore quarterback Robbie Price against Davidson's David Harper, who led the league last season in both passing and total offense. Price accounted for 194 yards in total offense, 130 of it on the ground, and scored twice in Appalachian's 16-7 victory over East Tennessee and 18-7 decision over Middle Tennessee. Harper last year passed for 1,886 yards and had 1,699 yards in total offense.

Three other conference teams go on the road Saturday afternoon to face favored nonleague opponents—William and Mary's Indians, 1-1, to Virginia; Virginia Military's Keydets, 1-0, to Vanderbilt; and The Citadel's Bulldogs, 1-0, to Delaware.

Playing at home Saturday night will be East Carolina's two-time conference champion Pirates, 1-0, against East Tennessee and Furman's Paladins, 0-1, against Presbyterian.

Richmond's Spiders, 2-0, are idle this weekend. Despite the efforts of both coaches to play down their own part, the William and Mary-Virginia game is being looked on as a grudge match between the Indians' Jim Root and the Cavaliers' Sonny Randle, who twice beat Root-coached teams while Randle was at East Carolina.

William and Mary has exhibited mostly a ground game in a 49-7 defeat to Mississippi State and a 17-6 victory over Wake Forest with quarterback Bill Deery running for 202 yards and tailback Doug Gerhart for 130.

In a 35-28 defeat at Navy last week in the Cavaliers' opener, Virginia quarterback Scott Gardner passed for 264 yards and ran for 15 as he rallied his team from a 35-7 deficit in the last quarter. Gardner leads the Atlantic Coast Conference in total offense.

"It's a big, big game for William and Mary and certainly it's a big, big game for the University of Virginia," says Randle. "I'm hopeful that our players will play it that way."

Root says he has great respect for Virginia's defense despite the 35 points Navy scored.

"I know for a fact you can straighten out a lot of things after an opening game. We did it and I know they're going to have some different people starting Saturday," says Root. UNDATED 250 Sou Kfc Football Take 2: Root.

VMI took advantage of five fumbles and a pass interception in a 7-0 upset last Saturday over Furman without really opening up on attack in the college quarterbacking debut of senior Tony Farry.

"We were playing conservatively with a brand new quarterback and we didn't want to get sloppy with the football," says Keydet Coach Bob Thalman. "Tony got that first game under his belt. We'll open it up more in the future."

Andrew Johnson took over the league lead in rushing with 119 yards in The Citadel's rain-soaked 6-0 victory over Presbyterian, but Coach Bobby Ross feels his secondary still has to be tested because of the bad weather.

"Delaware threw the ball more in their first game than they've ever thrown it before," says Ross of the Blue Hens' 14-0 triumph over Akron. "Delaware is big and strong," and they have good speed at the skilled positions."

Coach Pat Dye says East Carolina's defense had "some big, big plays on defense" in a 24-6 victory over Bowling Green. These included three fumble recoveries and three pass interceptions.

But he's concerned about 134 yards in penalties and says "correction of those mistakes and better execution is the big need against East Tennessee."

Furman Coach Art Baker says Andy Goss, who had 78 yards against VMI, may start in place of Larry Robinson against Presbyterian.

"If we're going to win this year, we're going to have to hold onto the football," says Baker. "We can't turn it over that much and expect to win." But he adds that the Paladins are "gonna come back and be a good ball club."

Orioles Take Eastern Lead

By KEN RAPPOPORT

The Baltimore Orioles' 7-0 rout of New York Thursday night gave the Orioles a half-game lead over the New York Yankees in the American League East.

Dave McNally pitched the Orioles to their 18th victory in the last 23 games as the Yankees, after a recent surge, lost their third straight game to the Orioles.

The Orioles' pitchers gave New York just four runs in the three-game series at Yankee Stadium. McNally gave the Yankees only three hits.

In the other American League games, the Detroit Tigers defeated the Boston Red Sox 3-1 and the Kansas City Royals defeated the Oakland A's 4-3 in 10 innings.

In the National League, the Pittsburgh Pirates whipped the St. Louis Cardinals 8-6; the Chicago Cubs turned back the Philadelphia Phillies 7-4; the Los Angeles Dodgers bombed the San Diego Padres 11-2 and the Cincinnati Reds trimmed the San Francisco Giants 8-4.

McNally, 16-10, stifled the Yankees on three singles in winning his fourth consecutive game and eighth in 10 decisions since July 31. It was the second shutout for the Orioles in the three-game sweep.

Don Baylor opened the scoring, smashing the first pitch of the fifth inning from Rudy May, 6-4, far over the fence for

Tigers 3, Red Sox 1
Vernon Riffe pitched two-hit ball for seven innings in his first major league start and Al Kaline closed in on 3,000 lifetime hits with a run-scoring single, lifting Detroit over Boston. The Red Sox' loss left them in third place, three games behind the Orioles.

Royals 4, A's 3
Amos Otis singled home the tie-breaking run in the 10th inning, giving Kansas City its victory over Oakland. The loss reduced the A's lead in the American League West to 4½ games over the idle Texas Rangers.

Pirates 8, Cardinals 6
Willie Stargell hit a two-run double and Richie Hebner added a three-run homer, keying a seventh-inning rally that lifted Pittsburgh over St. Louis. The victory moved the Pirates within a half-game of the first-place Cardinals in the National League East.

Cubs 7, Phillies 4
Ron Dunn drove in three runs and drilled three doubles and Bill Madlock knocked in two runs and collected three hits, leading Chicago over Philadelphia.

Dodgers 11, Padres 2
Steve Yeager smashed a three-run homer and Don Sutton and Mike Marshall combined on a six-hitter, leading Los Angeles past San Diego.

Reds 8, Giants 4
Johnny Bench lashed a three-run double in a six-run, second inning and Cincinnati went on to an easy victory over San Francisco.

Petty Favored At Wilkesboro

NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — Eight starting spots were up for grabs today as time trials were scheduled to begin for Sunday's 14th annual Wilkes 400 stock car race.

Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C., was a sentimental favorite for both the front row starting position and the 250-mile race, which carries a $39,455 purse.

The veteran Dodge driver has won 11 times in the 27 major races at North Wilkesboro (no body else has won more than twice) and has the best Grand National track record of the season.

Petty has won 10 races this year, pocketing $232,690 in winnings. Cale Yarborough has won nine races and collected $203,938. He trails Petty by 543 points in the overall point race and is Petty's stiffest competitor for the national championship.

David Pearson, who has won five races this year, is 2,280 points behind Petty and is a distant third in the point standings.

Petty, Yarborough and Pearson have won 24 of the 25 races this year, with Bobby Allison winning the other race.

The 37-year-old Petty attributes his success at the North Wilkesboro track to luck. "Nothing is right at this track except our luck on it," he quipped.

"The backstretch is uphill, and the frontstretch is downhill," Petty said. "If you gear right for the backstretch, your engine over-turns on the front. If you gear right for the front, you bog down on the back. And the turns are different. If you get the chassis set right for one turn, it's wrong for the other turn."

Asked why he had been so successful on the five-eighths of a mile banked asphalt track, Petty replied: "You set up the car different from any other track in the world. You try to hit a happy medium on the gearing and the chassis, and after that it's up to the driver."

"I'm not knocking the track," Petty continued. "I'm sure it's a great show for the fans. But it's not easy."

The remaining 22 starting positions for the 30-car field will be filled Saturday.

Mazda lowers its prices on all piston-engine cars.
(Do we know something other car makers don't?)

Perhaps.

For it seems to us that we have the kind of car you want. One that skimps on gas without skimping on quality. And frankly, we think you'll be more willing to look at one if we lowered the price. When you do, you'll discover a car that got 31.3 mpg in a cross-country test certified by the U.S. Auto Club... a car that comes loaded with "extras" as standard equipment. In short, you'll discover a car that was a great buy at the old price. And a sensational buy today.

New Subpoena May Hasten Nixon Health Decision

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new subpoena for Richard M. Nixon to appear in the Watergate cover-up trial is likely to hasten an official opinion on the former president's health.

Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski issued the subpoena for Nixon to make himself available as a prosecution witness on Oct. 1, the day the trial is to start, a spokesman said Thursday.

It was served by FBI agents at Nixon's San Clemente, Calif., estate at 8:50 p.m. EDT on Thursday.

Nixon, meanwhile, issued a claim of executive privilege in a move to keep his tape recordings from use in two civil suits stemming from the Watergate break-in.

Unlike an earlier subpoena issued by lawyers for cover-up defendant John D. Ehrlichman, the new summons for Nixon is likely to make an early issue of Nixon's health.

Ehrlichman is seeking Nixon's testimony on the alleged cover-up, but the defense is unlikely to begin its case until late October or November.

Jaworski needs Nixon's testimony early in the trial, sources familiar with the case said on Thursday.

The prosecutors need the former president to authenticate more than 30 White House tapes which they plan to play for the jury. The tapes include many conversations between Nixon and cover-up defendants.

Before the tapes can be admitted as evidence, someone must testify to their accuracy as recordings of real conversations. According to two lawyers not directly involved in the trial, in past criminal trials the only persons who can do that are those who joined in the conversations or at least were present when they took place.

In addition, lawyers say Nixon is probably the only one who can testify whether the tapes were tampered with in any way because he personally dictated who would have access to them as the Watergate investigations

Nixon, reportedly planning to enter a hospital next week, is suffering from a blood clot disease called phlebitis. His lawyer, Herbert J. Miller, has acknowledged the former president has shown "serious signs of strain and physical fatigue."

Miller, as he has done in an unrelated civil suit in California, is expected to ask U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica to quash the subpoenas seeking Nixon's testimony.

A legal clerk to Sirica, Todd Christofferson, said on Thursday that in cases where a defendant's or a witness' health is in question, the judge usually appoints a doctor to make an independent examination.

Christofferson said no decision has been made by Sirica on that yet, but the subject is likely to come up at a meeting between the judge and prosecution and defense lawyers next Tuesday.

Meantime, Nixon issued his executive privilege claims to quash subpoenas for the tapes in a civil suit filed by a Democratic party official whose Watergate office was bugged and in a suit by the Democratic National Committee against Watergate burglar James W. McCord. McCord had sought the tapes for his defense.

Cigarette Price Hikes Seen A Gradual Trend

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A tobacco expert says that any cigarette price increase resulting from the inflationary costs of the 1974 tobacco crop will probably be gradual over a two-year period.

John H. Cyrus, tobacco marketing specialist for the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, said Thursday increased production costs at the factory level "could have more immediate effect on retail cigarette prices than the record prices being paid for the 1974 crop of tobacco."

Tobacco prices this season have averaged more than $100 per hundred pounds. Some choice grades have brought $150.

Despite this, growers are not going to make "big gains in net profits because of the extremely high costs of production," Cyrus said in an interview.

"The 1974 crop is the most expensive they have ever produced," he added. "This is due to several factors—fertilizer, oil and fuel for curing tobacco, and tobacco twine. In fact, the cost of all supplies for production is up in comparison with a year ago."

Cyrus pointed out that tobacco companies keep large inventories on hand so that tobacco can age one or two or three years. The cigarettes being produced now contain tobacco mainly from the 1971 and 1972 crops. Some grades from the 1973 crop are also being used, he said.

The retail price for a pack of cigarettes ranged from 35-45 cents in North Carolina to 75 cents in some states. There is an eight-cent federal tax nationwide on each pack, Cyrus said state taxes range from a low of two cents per pack in North Carolina to 21 cents in Connecticut.

North Carolina is the nation's largest producer of flue-cured tobacco.

Cigarette bootlegging from North Carolina has become an increasing problem.

"The bootlegging is brought about by the extremely high taxes in other states," Cyrus said. "Bootlegging could be curbed by adjusting the tax rates in states where cigarettes are going."

Two Persons Hurt In Three Accidents

Two persons were reported injured and an estimated $2,965 property damage caused in a series of three traffic mishaps here yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 5:20 p.m. collision at the intersection of Cotanche and Reade Streets involving vehicles driven by Edwin E. Rawl of 1048 East Rocksprings Rd. and Mary Staton Gorham of Route 1, Farmville.

Police, who estimated damage at $2,200 to the Rawl car and $200 to the Gorham auto, reported Gorham was injured in the collision.

Gorham was charged by police with failing to yield the right of way.

An estimated $200 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 9:03 a.m. mishap on Fourth Street, 190 feet west of the Holly Street intersection.

Officers, who made no charges, identified the drivers involved in the mishap as Cora M. Wilson of 112B Stancil Dr. and Ann Beam Sneed of 209 Churchill Dr.

Norma Knapp of Jarvis Dorm was injured when the bicycle she was riding collided with a car about 7:05 p.m. on Tenth Street just West of the College Hill Drive intersection.

Julie Arrives At San Clemente

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Julie Nixon Eisenhower has arrived here to visit her ailing father, former President Richard M. Nixon.

Mrs. Eisenhower flew from Washington to El Toro Marine Corps Air base on Thursday night aboard a government courier jet. Her husband, David Eisenhower, remained in Washington.

It was the first time Mrs. Eisenhower has seen the former president since he left Washington on Aug. 9. It was not known how long she would remain.

Mrs. Eisenhower said earlier this week that her father would enter a hospital soon because of a new flareup of his phlebitis.

Principal Jim Allen has chosen a group of staff members to advise him on school issues. One of the changes made with the help of the group has been to have homeroom after second period classes.

North Pitt has five student teachers this quarter. They are: Miss Ruth Ann Copley of High Point, a French major at ECU; Miss Julia Oliver of Greenville, a home economics major at ECU; Miss Jeanie Knight of Norfolk, home economics major at ECU; Miss Katie Moore of Greenville, home economics major at ECU; Miss Sherry Dixon of Greenville, a business education major at ECU.

Mrs. Connie Hackney of Washington showed slides of a recent trip to Africa to Miss Garrenton's social studies classes Friday.

Students who are interested in playing with an instrumental group should attend an assembly to be held soon for the purpose of discussing this new program.

Annuals will go on sale Monday, Sept. 23, at a cost of $8 each plus tax.

Each week, North Pitt Notes will include a biography of one or more staff members. This week we have chosen Mrs. Marian Jones.

A native of Norfolk, Va., Mrs. Jones teaches business at North Pitt. She attended N.C. Central Declarer pieced together various clues evident in the auction and defense with the skill and patience of Sherlock Holmes, and his deductions would have done honor to that famous sleuth.

North's reopening double could have been made on slighter values, so he felt obligated to show that he had a full opening bid by raising his partner to two no trump. South gave full weight to his intermediate cards and the fact that his hand might actually be better than it was because he was over the opening bidder, and went on to an optimistic game.

West led his lowest diamond, and declarer captured East's queen with the ace. Seven tricks were now there for the taking, for the jack ten of diamonds guaranteed a second trick in the suit. If clubs broke 3-2 and East held the queen, a finesse in that suit would produce the two additional tricks South needed for his contract.

Before committing himself to that line of play, declarer decided to see what he could learn about the unseen hands. From the opening lead, it appeared that the diamonds were divided 4-4, and this suspicion was reaffirmed when South returned a diamond at trick two, East won the king and played another diamond, while West followed with the three and four. Declarer's next move was to cash two high hearts, and on the second round East discarded a spade.

Declarer donned his thinking cap, for East's discard had been most revealing. Since East had opened in a four-card suit, he surely could not hold a higher-ranking five-card suit. Yet he was marked with eight cards in spades and clubs, for he held only 5 in the red suits. If declarer's deductions were correct, East had to have four or five clubs, so a simple finesse in clubs would not be good enough to pick up the suit.

Suiting the deed to the thought, declarer proceeded to cash the king of clubs and, when no honor appeared from the West hand, continued with a low club to the nine. His analysis was vindicated when West failed to follow. It was now a simple matter of cross to dummy's remaining heart honor and repeat the club finesse for a well deserved game.

Lumberman Look To Middle East Sales

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Southern lumbermen are hoping to boost their sagging industry with exports to the Middle East, which is rich in oil, but poor in wood products. "Almost without exception, these countries are prepared to upgrade their living standards,"

Fire Engine Now All His

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Alexander Leslie went to a recent police garage auction to buy a motorcycle. He drove away in a 1941 fire truck.

"I paid $357 for it, which was $50 more than anybody else bid," said Leslie, a 20-year-old college student.

"I figured it would be a sound investment and, besides, I just liked the thing."

The International Harvester fire engine is complete with two rolls of black hose, a functioning shiny chrome siren and emergency lights.

The truck had been used by the Buffalo Fire Department until two years ago for battling grass fires.

Owning a fire truck can have its moments, Leslie said.

"Last week it caught on fire," he said. "It was only the insulation around the battery cable, and the fire was out by the time fire fighters arrived."

"They thought I had responded to the call and it took some explaining to convince them that my fire truck was on fire. They said it was the most interesting call they had had all night."

Arabia from Mobile, Ala., last month. The association officials hope the shipment is the beginning of a trend of lumber exports.

yet cannot produce much timber," said a spokesman for the Southern Forest Products Association.

"For paper, for housing, for many other wood uses, they will be a growing market," he added.

A couple of years ago, lumbermen in the South could sell every two-by-four they could cut. But orders for house-building materials have declined 45 per cent in the past three months, according to the SFPA.

The spokesman said nearly 2,000 sawmill employees have been laid off.

The U.S. Commerce Department says the most important factor in America's increasing trade deficit is the dollar outflow for oil. SFPA officials say they hope to retrieve some of the money spent in the Middle East and help their industry by selling wood products to the Arabs.

They are encouraged by the departure of a freighter loaded with prefabricated house-building components for Saudi Arabia.

'Old Believers' May Have Found Home In Alaska

By W. ROBERT WELLER
Associated Press Writer
NIKOLAEVSK, Alaska.
(AP)—They've traveled almost around the world in search of a place to practice their religion in peace.
And here, only 650 miles from their Mother Russia, about 300 "Old Believers" believe they've found what they've been looking for.
"Life up here is not easy but people can make out and make out very good," says Carl Martushev, smiling from behind a scraggly beard.
The village they've carved out of the wilderness isn't on any map. It's 12 miles up a dusty, gravel road on Alaska's Kenai Peninsula, 200 miles southwest of Anchorage.
Before turning up the road at Anchor Point, you've reached the westernmost point accessible by car on the North American continent.
Here, on the village's dirty streets, lined with picket fences, fair-skinned youngsters play a stick-throwing game called "cllok" while playmates shout encouragement in Russian.

And here they practice the Russian Orthodox faith as it existed in the 16th century, before liturgical reforms were made.
They worship in a simple woodframe building, not much different from the village houses, except for its onion-top spires.
Martushev says his people don't get too fancy in church buildings, because their roots must remain shallow.
"If something goes wrong with our church we will leave and we don't give a damn whether we leave a house behind," he said.
But the rootlessness has reached full circle. "If we can't stay here, there's no place to go ... except back to Russia and we've been there," he said.
The long journey of the Old Believers began when they split with the Czar over religious reforms.
They first moved to Siberia, living there until they could no longer handle the excesses of communism.

They moved to China and fared little better, and in the 1950s they left for Brazil.
After living briefly in Brazil, they gained admittance to the United States under an agreement worked out with President Kennedy. They were allowed to move to communities in Oregon, as long as they stayed off the welfare rolls.
There's no problem of welfare rolls in Alaska.
Far from it, in seven years on the peninsula, they've become the envy of homesteaders and fishermen who've lived on the Kenai since World War II or longer.
Their fiberglass boats, made at the "Russian Marine Factory" in the village, outperform most local boats.
And although they had no commercial fishing experience, they've managed to gain a good share of the local catch.
Some of the village men work for local contractors, and others work at a village-run saw-mill.

Most peninsula residents have welcomed the Russians, although there have been exceptions. One hardware store owner in nearby Homer has refused to sell to them and won't let them in his shop.
One young Russian girl said: "They say Russians go home. But we say Russians were here before you." Russians first came to the Kenai in the 1700s and 1800s.
Before settling here, the group's elders showed up at a borough meeting to announce their intentions and to make it clear they weren't setting up a commune.
They bought land at auction for about $14,000. Some say that was much more than it was worth. They leased additional grazing land.
Hard luck knocked soon. A tent fire claimed one life and their cattle began dying shortly after arrival. But nearby ranchers helped them nurse the herd back to health.
They built a new village in a virgin spruce forest.
Most of the homes have washers, dryers and other modern appliances and several homes have saunas.
But there are no radio or television sets in the village. "It's against our religion," says carpenter Peter Basargin, 21.
Still they know what's going on. Some have read Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn's works.
The village elders recently visited a neighbor, retired Army Brig. Gen. B. B. Talley, their closest friend, to ask: "Do you think the government will fall because of Watergate? We can't stay here if it becomes Communist."
Talley says the Old Believers left Oregon because they felt their religion was threatened when some of their children began smoking marijuana.
He said they encourage village young people to marry early to avoid contacts with the outside.
A decision to set up a separate school in the village has helped shield the children.
But a neighbor said: "Lots of times we see the Russian kids — we call them the Russian hoods — roaring down the road with radios blasting and potato chips flying out the windows."

Although some of the men speak Russian, Chinese, Portuguese and English, none speaks English well enough to pass citizenship tests.
The village adults plan to hire a teacher to help them pass citizenship tests.
