Massive Effort To Turn World Opinion

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Ford administration's coordinated attack on high oil prices marks the beginning of a new offensive to turn world sentiment against the producing nations and to unite Western Europe with the United States in energy cooperation.

President Ford, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger all came down hard Monday on the continued high prices set by the other oil countries. They warned that no nation, including the oil states, could escape the consequences if the world is pushed into a depression.

In speeches by Ford and Simon in Detroit and by Kissinger at the United Nation General Assembly, the United States all but demanded an end to rising oil costs.

Ford said the year-long spiral risked a "breakdown of world order and safety."

The next strategic move will be a meeting of the foreign and finance ministers of major non-Communist industrial nations at Camp David this weekend to discuss their common energy problems caused by price rises by the Arabs, Iran, Venezuela and other producers.

When Kissinger pleaded for Western cooperation and interdependence earlier this year, the European allies gave him a generally sour reception. Led by France, they chose to make their own approach to the Arab states.

Knowledgeable U.S. officials say that this time the administration has higher hopes that the campaign will succeed. It is not entirely clear what actions can be taken to carry out the blunt words by Ford, Kissinger and Simon.

Among the possibilities are said to be joint conservation steps and a pooling of energy for disaster situations. The use of force in the event of an oil squeeze like last winter's is considered very much out of the question.

Ford signaled the campaign with his own U.N. speech last Wednesday in which he cautioned the oil-producing nations that manipulation of energy prices could lead to counter action using food as a political and economic weapon.

Then, in his speech to the World Energy Conference in Detroit, the President said: "It is difficult to discuss the energy problem without lapsing into doomsday language." He added: "The danger is clear. It is severe. I am nevertheless optimistic. The advantages of cooperation are as visible as the dangers of confrontation."

Simon, before the same forum, said the oil-exporting nations were jeopardizing their own economies by keeping prices at high levels.

"The international investments of all nations are in jeopardy and the old fable of the goose that laid the golden egg can be seen developing in today's headlines and in international cable traffic," said the treasury secretary.

Kissinger, in even tougher language, warned the General Assembly: "The world cannot sustain even the present level of prices, much less continuing increases."

AHEC Officially Brought To The East By Contract

By CARL L. TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

The General Assembly created Area Health Education Centers, which will eventually provide services for all of North Carolina, was officially brought to the East last night with the signing of a contract on the grounds of Pitt Memorial Hospital.

State AHEC director Glenn Wilson of Chapel Hill and Eastern AHEC Inc. president, Dr. Ed Monroe, jointly signed a contract which would provide funds to support operations for the Eastern AHEC program for the remainder of this fiscal year.

The EAHEC program serves 16 hospitals and 22 counties. An operating budget of $86,000 will be used for the EAHEC for this fiscal year primarily to support organizational development, program planning and continuing education in-service training programs for health manpower in each of the 16 participating hospitals.

The General Assembly created the AHEC program with hopes of improving the distribution, supply, quality, utilization and efficiency of all categories of health manpower, according to Monroe.

Eastern North Carolina is especially in need of expanded medical manpower, says Monroe, with a ratio of 1,700 to 1 residents per physician. The national level is 790 to 1, says Monroe, while most of North Carolina has a ratio of 1,000 to 1.

When completed, the state AHEC program will be comprised of nine areas, with the Eastern area being the largest in physical size. By Jan. 1, 1975, all North Carolina counties will be served by one of the nine AHEC centers.

Five areas of program priority have been established for the Eastern AHEC program and they include: the establishment of an EAHEC central office, a free standing family practice education center beginning of a family practice resident and fourth year medical student rotation program into selected hospitals, the support and production of continuing education and in-service training programs and support for hospital based health manpower clinical education.

According to Monroe, EAHEC will seek to establish structures through which the necessary numbers and kinds of health manpower will become readilty available to provide the fullest possible measure of health care to each citizen.

Hospitals which will be included in the Eastern area will include those in Craven, Lenoir, Pitt, Wayne, Albemarle, Beaufort, Chowan, Carteret, Onslow, Roanoke, Bertie, Columbia, Duplin, Martin, and Washington counties.

Flooding By Fifi Subsides

TOCOA, Honduras (AP) — The floodwaters from Hurricane Fifi are subsiding and countless hundreds have left their refuges in trees and on rooftops in the Aguan valley of northeast Honduras. Now they are flocking to refugee centers looking for food and clothing.

Several hundred are sleeping on the classroom floors of a school in this small town in the heart of the valley. They have powdered milk for their babies and a few local grapefruit that survived the storm. But food and clothing have not arrived, and there are no blankets for the sleepers.

"We are all dying of hunger," said Ophelia Perez, who escaped from Fifi's neck-high water with only the mud-splattered, ragged dress on her back. "When is help coming? Look at my son, he has no clothes. We have lost everything."

Though the banana plantations in the Aguan Valley and the neighboring Ulua Valley were extensively damaged, officials said casualties around Tocoa were very light. But the government late Monday night raised the official estimate of the total dead in northeast Honduras to between 7,500 and 8,000.

Military officials in the devastated San Pedro Sula-Choloma area in the heart of the Ulua Valley estimate between 5,000 and 6,000 bodies have been burned or buried.

John Taylor of Boston, an executive of United Brands, one of the country's two major banana producers, said the crop was almost completely destroyed. Others put the loss at about $500 million and said it would take at least two years to rebuild the plantations.

Finance Minister Manuel Acosta Bonilla told a news conference in Tegucigalpa, the Honduran capital, the official estimate of the damage done by Fifi's rampage last Thursday night was $900 million, half the estimate given Sunday by Col. Ruben Villanueva, the chief relief officer in the San Pedro Sula-Choloma area.

Judge Suggests Court Resolve Questions On Pardon Granted Nixon

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — It might be a good idea to have a trial court resolve questions arising from the pardon of former President Richard M. Nixon, a federal judge suggested Monday.

U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey said "it might be desirable to have at least one trial court resolve whatever questions are extant with respect to the validity of the agreement and with respect to the validity of the pardon."

The comment came as Richey postponed action on attempts to obtain some of Nixon's Watergate tapes for use in related civil suits.

In another Watergate-related court action Monday, Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan Jr. rejected requests from former White House aides H. R. Haldeman and Gordon C. Strachan for a delay in the cover-up trial set for Oct. 1.

A similar postponement request from former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman was rejected last month by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice William O. Douglas.

And Monday night CBS reported that Nixon says on an unreleased tape that Jeb S. Magruder was supposed to "lie like hell" before a Watergate grand jury. The network said unreleased tapes of meetings April 25 and 26, 1973, between Nixon and Haldeman also show Nixon telling Haldeman to make sure no one, including then domestic affairs adviser Ehrlichman, knows that the conversations are being taped.

CBS added that on the April 26 tape Nixon said he was afraid of becoming involved in Watergate and Haldeman noted that he would have to be impeached first and said that wouldn't happen.

The network then quotes Nixon as saying "No, I've slept on that a little. Oh, my God, what have we done to be impeached."

A spokesman for Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski had no comment on the CBS report.

Prosecution lawyers plan to use 33 tapes in the cover-up trial including the April 25 and 26 conversations. Defense lawyers have been supplied with the transcripts of nearly all Watergate-related tape conversations.

Last week one of the convicted Watergate burglars, James W. McCord Jr., asked Richey to declare Ford's pardon of Nixon illegal and to declare that the government had no power to give the former president control over his White House tapes.

Richey dismissed that petition on technical grounds but said Monday that the questions raised in it are very substantial. McCord filed a new petition Monday but Richey was not aware of it at the time he made his comments.

The hearing before Richey was in connection with two suits stemming from the break-in at Democratic headquarters July 17, 1972.

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

752-1336

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day, but the phone service is available 24 hours a day.

LOCAL TREATMENT AVAILABLE

My sister has sickle cell anemia. I'd like to know if she could attend a clinic closer to home than Durham. A.S.

There is no clinic for sickle cell anemia here and there probably will not be, at least until the medical center becomes complete with the new hospital, use of the hospital by the ECU medical school, and implementation of the AHEC program, according to Theresa Lawler, Personal Health Director of the Pitt County Health Department.

Sickle cell, an inherited blood disease usually found in Black persons, is fairly common in Pitt County, local pediatrician, Dr. Ben Shappley said. There is no cure nor any truly effective treatment, with transfusions and alleviation of pain being about all that can be done. He said treatment usually can be handled in the doctor's office or in the hospital emergency room when a crisis is experienced. He advised that your sister establish a good relationship with a local physician and have your records sent here for the sake of herself and you and the rest of your family.

Mrs. Lawler reminded that the Health Department does screen for the sickle cell trait and offers genetic counseling concerning the disease.

WHERE'S KING KORN

Where can you redeem King Korn stamps? Mrs. G. E.

Hotline checked with the Winn-Dixie store here, which gave these trading stamps several years ago. A spokesman said there were once redemption centers in Goldsboro and Greensboro, but according to Telephone Directory Assistance, neither city has a store now.

King Korn is not listed in any of the business listings at Sheppard Library, either, so it may no longer be in business, though we can't be sure. Anyone having any information about the company, please call Hotline at 752-6166.

COAST GUARD BOUND?

Where is the nearest Coast Guard recruiting station? A.W.

Hotline asked Coast Guard Headquarters in Norfollk, Va. The nearest to Pitt County is in Morehead City. Bosun's Mate Chief G. H. Garrett is the recruiter. The phone number is 726-4774. The only other Coast Guard recruiting stations in this state are in Wilmington, Charlotte, and Greensboro.

Record Defense Appropriation Is Up To Senate

By HARRISON HUMPHRIES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A record $82.6-billion defense appropriation bill is coming up for final congressional action in the Senate.

Action is expected today.

Despite a $4.5-billion cut from Pentagon requests, the bill is the largest single appropriation package ever considered by Congress.

It is $3.6 billion above last year's funding for military and civilian payroll of the Defense Department and development and procurement of weapons systems.

The House passed the bill 293 to 59 Monday despite objections that it contains funds in an undisclosed amount for the Central Intelligence Agency and money for aircraft the Air Force did not want.

Rep. Robert Giaimo, D-Conn., said money for the recently disclosed CIA covert political activity in Chile apparently came from prior defense appropriation bills. He called it "shameful."

Rep. H.R. Gross, R-Iowa, objected to $205 million item in the bill for 12 more F111 swingwing jet bombers. He called it "highway robbery."

Chairman George Mahon, D-Tex., of the House Appropriations Committee, defended the fund request, asserting that the Pentagon seeks to halt F111 production so Congress will have no choice but to approve production of the B1 bomber.

The bill includes $445 million to continue B1 prototype development and testing prior to final decision to order production of the plane as a replacement for the present B52.

One of the major cuts in the final bill, worked out in a House-Senate conference committee, is for military aid to the government of South Vietnam. The bill sets a $700 million ceiling for the 17 months ending next June 30.

Gained 71 Pints

FARMVILLE — Monday's Bloodmobile visit to the Christian Church here resulted in the collection of 71 pints of blood, according to Pitt blood chairman Billy Ross.

Ross reported that 11 persons were rejected during the day long drive for a good overall turnout of 82 citizens. The last visit to Farmville was not as successful for the Bloodmobile.

The chairman expressed his appreciation to all of the local volunteer help that assisted in the drive and also to Christian Church officials for making the facilities available.

Ross noted that the Bloodmobile visit was spearheaded by Tom Thompson and other Farmville citizens.

The Bloodmobile was in Ayden today for a visit at the Ayden Community Building.

Estimated Fire Loss Is Put At $8 Million

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—A fire that destroyed the new Drexel and Heritage Furnishings Inc. plant near Asheville on Monday did an estimated $8 million worth of damage, according to Fire Chief P.N. Ball.

Ball said Drexel officials estimated the value of the new building at $6 million and the value of the contents at $2 million.

Officials said the fire apparently started when a spark from a welding torch touched off a small blaze in the finishing room on the second floor of the old building, adjacent to the new structure. The welders had just begun demolishing the old building.

There were no injuries reported, as 450 employes were evacuated from the plant, which manufactured Drexel's top line of furniture. The facility is located at Woodfin, about three miles northwest of Asheville.

Fire departments from Woodfin and Asheville and several volunteer units from surrounding communities answered the alarm shortly after 11 a.m.

Workmen had tried and failed to extinguish the blaze, which spread rapidly from the old building to the new one, igniting some lacquer and thinner.

The old building was used for sorting scrap and by the contractor, who was still working on the second phase of the new plant which was to be completed next July.

The fire spread rapidly through the old three-story corrugated metal structure and into the new building, where workers were making bedroom furniture.

Company President Howard Haworth said the firm would decide in the next few days what to do about rebuilding the plant.

He said Drexel would make every effort to reassemble the plant's employes when the facility reopens.

Back-To-The-Soil?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Owners of home vegetable gardens will do next spring's planting courtesy of the U.S. government if Rep. James A. Burke gets his way.

Burke, D-Mass., has authored a bill that would direct the government to distribute free seeds and plants for use in home gardens.

"It's the cheapest form of helping people help themselves I know of," Burke says. He said that the $6 million worth of seeds and plants that would be distributed under his bill would blossom into an estimated $380 million of vegetables.

A vegetable patch in every yard would give the average family a chance to keep up with the rising cost of eating and would free food supplies badly needed in other parts of the world, according to Burke.

But perhaps even more importantly, he says it would start a "back-to-the-soil" movement, teaching Americans that this country is coming out of an era of "endless abundance and limitless waste into the new reality of scarce natural resources."

Burke admits that he was greeted with a slight grin when he first introduced his seed and plant bill more than a year ago. But both that and the tax measure are alive and well, moving right on track toward congressional approval.

Annual Show, Luncheon Planned

FALL FASHION SHOW AND LUNCHEON—The Women of the Greenville Golf and Country Club are completing plans for their annual fashion show and luncheon scheduled for Oct. 16 at noon at the country club. Mrs. William Dansey, chairman of the event, announces that fashions will be shown from local merchants. Mrs. Robert Dominick heads the ticket sales for the event. Other chairmen are Mrs. Pat Thomas, decorations, and Mrs. William Grantmyre, favors. Mrs. Dansey, left, discusses the fall show and luncheon with committee members, Mrs. Roger Mann and Mrs. Eric Fearrington, left.

Navajos Receive Help For Their Handicapped

By MIKE McCLOY

CHINLE, Ariz. (AP) — Navajo families, isolated by time and distance from the clinics and specialists of the Anglo world, face the same disappointment as anyone else when a child is handicapped.

But a four-wheel-drive vehicle has been whining and straining through mud and jolting over rocky trails to bring help by video tape television.

Since December, Douglas A. Dunlap, director of the human development program at the Rough Rock Demonstration School here, has contacted about 90 families scattered over 100 square miles without a paved road. He expects to contact the other 30 families in this heart-of-the-reservation community within the year.

"Many of the families felt it was the luck of the draw that their child turned out to be handicapped, and had resigned themselves to doing the best they could at home," said Dunlap.

However, a video tape viewer, operated off the vehicle's battery, gives the families information of a service they did not know existed. "Many didn't realize there were special methods of treatment," he said.

One of the tapes portrays a Navajo child, known in the area for his inability to speak, being taught to utter words and phrases in the Navajo language. "The families had been asking whether we'd been able to help him even before we made the tape," Dunlap said.

"We provided speech therapy in the Navajo language and now we're on English sounds," the director said. "I think that's probably unique. There's no need to add the burden of a second language."

A Navajo woman coordinates the visitation program and accompanies Dunlap on the calls. If another staff member is acquainted with a prospective family, he also goes along, Dunlap said.

"Many of the parents don't want to have to send their handicapped children away to school," Dunlap said. "But overall, the people seem to be willing to help, and to support each other."

Unlike Anglo society where the handicapped are often separated socially and for education, Dunlap said, Navajos have "a little more general exposure. They're physically isolated, but family ties are much closer than in Anglo communities."

Although he's conducted no thorough study, Dunlap finds generally fewer handicapped children among Navajos than would be found among Anglos.

"However, we have encountered a large number of educationally handicapped," he said, "children with no gross physical handicap but who need special attention in language or emotional problems, or are late starters."

The video tape project, financed by the Rocky Mountain Regional Resource Center in Salt Lake City, has discovered five or six children who otherwise would not have received attention for their handicap.

It's also bolstered an atmosphere of cooperation between families and the school, which has existed since Rough Rock, administered by Navajos, was built in 1966.

"There are parents here all the time," Dunlap said, "to see their kids, their friends, get advice, get water or whatever."

"We have helped families make arrangements with medicine men for their children with handicaps," Dunlap said, explaining that the ceremonies often help prepare a child to respond to treatment at the demonstration school.

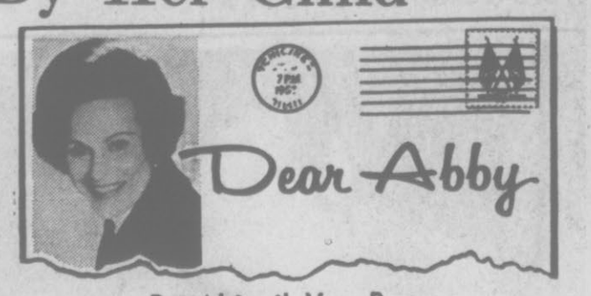

"I think by showing respect for this as a method of therapy, they in turn show respect for ours.

"Some of our methods don't work all that well either," he said.

Dunlap plans to expand the video-tape visitation program next year to include instruction for parents on how to help the handicapped child when he returns home from school in the evening, on weekends or during vacations.

His eventual goal is to create a total community learning environment for the handicapped child — a joint effort by the community, parents and the school Navajos call Dine Bi Olta, Navajo People's School.

Fiance Doesn't Like To Be Called Daddy By Her Child

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by The Chicago Tribune

DEAR ABBY: I am engaged to marry a man I'll call Bob. I love him very much. I also love my little two-year-old daughter, Diane. Diane adores Bob and calls him "Daddy." That's my problem. Bob gets very upset when Diane calls him Daddy, and has asked her not to call him that.

He's the only Daddy Diane has ever known. Her real Daddy left me when I was four months pregnant.

Abby, Bob can't give me any good reason for not wanting my daughter to call him Daddy. Except for this, he's not mean to her and it bothers me.

Bob is 24 and I am 17, but don't let my age fool you. I'm one of those kids who grew up with an alcoholic father and no mother, so I grew up fast.

I desperately need the advice my mother can't give me. She died when I was six. Thank you. DIANE'S MAMA

DEAR MAMA: Bob's reluctance to be called "Daddy" could signal his unwillingness to accept Diane. If he plans to marry you, surely he should regard your daughter as his own. If he doesn't, she'll be cheated and so will you.

Perhaps he suspects that you've coached Diane in this "Daddy" business to pressure him into an early marriage. (Did you?)

In any case, he's edgy about something and is taking it out on the child. Go slowly.

DEAR ABBY: Hurrah for Mr. X who walked out on a dinner party because he didn't want to compete with a blaring TV set. How often I have wished for that much nerve. If one is invited to a "TV party," fine—that gives him an opportunity to send regrets.

Here's how I handled that situation with some success: I continued to converse with my host and hostess, but I kept lowering my voice until they could hardly hear what I was saying. They finally got the idea and turned off the set. PAT W., BROWNWOOD, TEX.

DEAR PAT: Great idea. Next time, try just moving your lips. That might send them to an ear doctor.

DEAR ABBY: Would you please tell me the proper way to congratulate a bride and groom following the wedding? The bride is my granddaughter.

And what do you say to the groom's parents in the receiving line? GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: Wish the bride much joy and happiness. (Never congratulate a bride. That would be like commending her on having snared a man.)

Congratulate the groom, however, and wish him a happy marriage.

Congratulate the groom's parents, and express your pleasure in welcoming a new "son" into your family.

CONFIDENTIAL TO RED IN ANGLETON, TEX: Tell her the truth. She'll never believe it.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Sybil Leek Favors Scientific Studies

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Sybil Leek, astrologer and psychic who has written and lectured extensively on occultism, is happy to see the bright light of scientific research being focused on the long-shadowed area of reincarnation — a theory in which she firmly believes.

"I don't think the explanation will come through mysticism; I think it will come through science," says the British-born woman who claims that she herself has led many previous lives.

"Serious research programs are going on now and science will provide all the answers that we have not been able to find," adds Miss Leek, author of a new book, "Reincarnation: The Second Chance," which relates case histories she insists cannot be explained in any other way.

A bright multicolored caftan enveloping her ample frame, her short reddish hair pulled back by a pink band, the author detailed some of her previous incarnations in an interview here.

In 2000 B.C. she was a young boy looking after birds and reptiles, declares Miss Leek, who wears an enameled snake ring. In 30 B.C. she was a student of herbs; in 900 A.D. a barber in Yucatan whose task was to keep priests clean-shaven; in the 15th century the older sister of Pope Sixtus IV; in 1510 a doctor, and in the early 19th century a witch in Galway.

"We don't always remember our previous lives clearly but we will remember parts that are necessary in our present lives," she says. "When I wrote a book on herbs and was in difficulties knowledge from that old incarnation seemed to come back to help me. And when I was in Yucatan I could walk around in the dark among the ruins and never stumble."

New advances in the study of reincarnation are being made through use of modern methods such as tape recorders and video cameras, Miss Leek points out, adding that her own past lives came out in taped regression sessions with parapsychologist Hans Holzer.

"Even the voice is different. One part was in ancient Egyptian — if you hand me $10,000 I couldn't translate it. Names, dates and places were checked out and research established that my recollections were authentic," she says.

Though currently gaining increasing attention, the subject of reincarnation has appeared through the ages in philosophy, history and theology and has been a constant theme in all races, all nations, all cultures and all religions, she notes.

She attributes its growing popular appeal in the past five years to the fact that "death has replaced sex as a taboo word. People who no longer have the old faith they had in religion are looking for something that will take away that biting pall that hangs over them.

"There is a message of hope in the theory of reincarnation in that people won't see death as the absolute finish and full stop, nothing more," she goes on.

She defines this theory as "the indestructibility of the spirit. In short, there is another life through the spirit after death and then a series of lives, the experiences of which will keep on adding to one another. We come into each life with some — maybe only a fragment — of past experiences with us."

Miss Leek, who has been an astrologer since the age of 8 and had her first book published at 16, did not realize as a child that she had extraordinary powers. Daughter of a Russian father and Welsh-Irish mother, she says everyone in her family is psychic. "It wasn't until I got out into the world that I realized that not everyone knew in advance what was going to happen."

A widow who now lives in Florida, she says her two grown sons, both professional photographers, also have the family trait of second sight.

"But I have a scientific, rather than a romanticized approach to the unknown. I want to know why," insists Miss Leek, whose closest approach to a crystal ball is the giant crystal pendant she wears, which once belonged to her grandmother. "I welcome skepticism in researchers as long as they do their job properly.

"The best way is if we could have more universities or foundations where people could come without embarrassment, or 'aha, you think you're Napoleon,' where we could do regressions under scientific and controlled conditions — no party games — and have researchers check out the results.

"Nobody will ever welcome death with open arms but I'm not going to let it cloud my life. Every action, every moment is meaningful and I'm not going to waste any of it," declared Miss Leek, emphatically expressing the belief that she will have other incarnations. "While I have no pact to make my future presence known, my children will know."

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

When I read recently of a U.S. jet crossing the Atlantic in one hour and 56 minutes, I thought of my husband. He could have driven it by car in less time. With kids in the back seat, he said himself he could have shaved a good 26 minutes off the record.

As you may have guessed, transporting children is my husband's 26th favorite thing. It comes somewhere between dropping a bowling ball on his foot and eating lunch in a tea room.

That's why I was reluctant to ask him to pick up my kindergarten car pool last Wednesday at school.

"Remember," I warned, knowing of his impatience, "They are small children. . .not mail sacks. That means you have to bring the car to a complete stop and open the door for them. Don't shout and give all six of them a window. Good luck."

An hour and a half later, he staggered through the door.

"So what took you so long?"

"To begin with, old paste breath didn't want to get in the car. He said his mother didn't want him to ride with strangers. Then the name tag that was pinned to what'shername's dress fell off and she didn't know who she was. Debbie cried for three blocks because she left her Donny Osmond lunch box on the swings. Cecil. . .I guess that's his name. . .the one who sits there and re-buttons his sweater all the time trying to make it come out even. . ."

"That's Cecil," I nodded.

"He told me he lives at a Dairy Queen."

"So what took you so long?"

"Michael. Michael is the one who took me so long. He said he didn't know me and I wasn't a mother and he wasn't going to tell me where he lived, so to make friends I gave him a taffy sucker. I must have driven around in circles for 30 minutes before he said, "That's my house."

"Michael," I said, "We've passed this house 20 times. Why didn't you say something before?"

"Because I'm not allowed to talk with food in my mouth," he said. "I swear if I had to drive those kids around every day I'd slip them a little sleeping pill to make them drowsy."

"What a shocking thing to say!" I admonished. "Don't you realize that pills could be habit forming?"

"I didn't think," he mumbled.

"Why, the next thing you know parents would be giving them to their children during dinner, while they were on the telephone, watching their favorite TV shows, going on vacations, entertaining. . ."

Female Security Agent Nabs Obscene Callers

NORWICH, Conn. (AP) If you make obscene phone calls in Connecticut, be prepared to meet Dorthy McCoy, the telephone company's first female security agent in the state.

Mrs. McCoy tracks down people who make obscene, abusive or nuisance calls. She also goes after those who try to duck long-distance charges by misusing a credit card or giving someone else's number.

"We're not cops," she says. "Our function is to serve as a liaison with law authorities, not as authorities themselves."

But when someone persists in misusing the phone, Mrs. McCoy and her four male colleagues in the security section of Southern New England Telephone Co. swing into action.

The SNET response to the malicious caller is an electronic "trap box."

"A trap is not a tap," she said. "The telephone company never, never puts a tap on a phone line allowing us to listen to a conversation." Taps can only be ordered by a federal court and the company independently verifies the court order, she said.

A trap helps investigators trace an obscene call by freezing the connection so it can't be broken, she said.

"A call is not so easily traced as television would lead us to believe," she said. "But the trap holds the connection until we can determine the phone from which the call originated."

By determining who had access to the phone from which an obscene call was made, the caller can often be identified, she said.

Billing fraud, the other side of the investigative coin for Mrs. McCoy, takes two forms — misuse of a credit card and charging a toll call to someone else's number.

"When you're dealing with young people they are not always aware they are stealing," Mrs. McCoy said. "But that's what they're doing."

Many people involved in toll fraud can be caught because of the number they called, she said.

"People's calling habits are almost as individualistic as fingerprints," she added.

The numbers at each end of a long-distance call are recorded for billing purposes. If the caller gives a false number, investigators need only ask the person receiving the call who it was from, she said.

Computers are used to catch people who try to fool the system by using an expired or false billing code to duck a toll charge. The computer will not only block the call, she said, it will also record the phone the caller was using.

"We are never going to get rid of all of it, but we have very few repeaters in billing fraud cases," she said.

Elton John 'Shocked'

LONDON, England (WNS)—Young pianist and pop star Elton John is convinced that Women's Lib has taken over at Windsor Castle. He was changing into costume for pre-dinner recital when Princess Margaret entered his dressing room without knocking and didn't retreat when she caught him in his shorts. "I didn't get over the surprise quickly," confessed John. "At dinner I was still thinking about it and put sugar on my steak instead of salt, by mistake. Nobody seemed to notice so I ate it."

Planning Meet Held Saturday

Mrs. Edna Earle Baker, newly elected president of the Delta Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, was hostess for the Executive Board planning session Saturday.

Reports were presented from summer workshops and plans for the year were formulated. Members of the Coordinating Council presented plans for activities to be held in conjunction with other Delta Kappa Gamma Chapters in the area.

The current budget was presented and plans were discussed for the presentation of grants-in-aid to selected women students at East Carolina University.

The date of first meeting of the year has been changed from October 8 to Oct. 15 and will be held at St. James Methodist Church.

Following the business session, the hostess invited the members of the Board to the home of her son, Billy Baker, where they were served an old-fashioned dinner on the grounds.

The appointed picnic table was decorated with summer and fall flowers. The meal was prepared and served by the following members of Mrs. Baker's family: Mr. and Mrs. Billy Baker; Mrs. W.E. Bagley; and Mrs. Ronald Heath.

Cooking Is Fun

DINNER FOR TWO

Pork Chops — Rice Frances
Snap Beans — Salad
Cupcakes — Beverage

RICE FRANCES

Fine way to perk up rice.

½ cup converted-style rice
1 tablespoon dried currants
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
2 tablespoons coarsely broken walnuts

Cook rice according to package directions. Meanwhile rinse currants in hot water and drain; in a small skillet heat butter and brown walnuts in it. Shortly before rice is cooked, stir in currants. Just before serving, stir in walnuts. Use a fork for the stirring. Makes 2 large servings.

Household Hints

Add minced chives and parsley to sour cream that is to be served as a topping for baked potatoes.

An egg's shell color does not affect the egg's grade, nutritive value, flavor or cooking performance, but in some areas it may affect the egg's price.

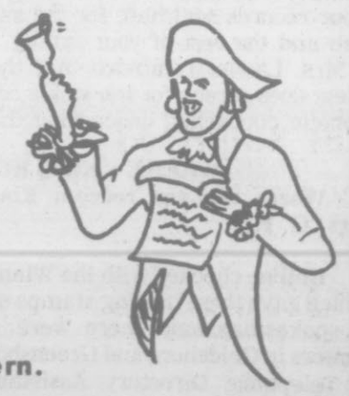

Romano is a delightfully flavored cheese that may often be substituted for the Parmesan that recipes usually call for.

Kennedy Withdrawal Impact Pondered

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

State Democratic chairmen say it's too early to tell who is the frontrunner for the 1976 presidential nomination in the wake of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's withdrawal.

An Associated Press survey showed that Sens. Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota were the most frequently mentioned contenders, with Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas a close third.

Kennedy, considered by many to be the leading contender for the nomination, said Monday he would not be a candidate for president or vice president in 1976 because of family responsibilities.

The AP tried to contact all the Democratic state chairman to ask who they thought the frontrunner was and who they personally felt had the best chance of defeating President Ford two years from now.

Thirty-two of the chairmen said there was no clear choice, six named Jackson as the frontrunner, three named Mondale, one named Bentsen and one named Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, who, like Jackson, unsuccessfully sought the nomination in 1972.

Eight of the chairmen were not available for comment. The total is 51 because the two factions of the Mississippi party — the regulars and the predominantly black loyalist group — were counted separately.

"I don't think there is one (frontrunner) now," said Paul Lamboley of Nevada. "I think it's really a toss-up. We're going to see a real scramble now."

The contenders themselves expressed a similar view. Jackson said in Washington that the race is "wide open now." Mondale said Kennedy's action makes him "strongly inclined" to run.

Jackson was the most often named by all the chairmen — those who definitely thought he was the frontrunner and those who said there was no clear choice so far. The Washington senator was mentioned as a possible candidate by 19 state chairmen. Mondale came in second, named as a potential top contender by 18 of the state chiefs, and Bentsen was third with 13 mentions.

Others suggested as possible Democratic presidential candidates in 1976 were: Govs. Jimmy Carter of Georgia, George C. Wallace of Alabama, Reubin Askew of Florida, John J. Gilligan of Ohio, Dale Bumpers of Arkansas, Wendell R. Anderson of Minnesota and Edwin W. Edwards of Louisiana.

Also mentioned were Sens. Russell B. Long of Louisiana, Birch Bayh of Indiana, Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia and Frank Church of Idaho; U.S. Reps. Morris K. Udall of Arizona and John C. Culver of Iowa; former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford and Boston Mayor Kevin White.

Kennedy said Monday his decision not to run was "firm, final and unconditional." Reaction to his announcement included:

President Ford shook his head, said nothing and grinned broadly when asked by a reporter for his reaction.

Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., said Kennedy "just realized he couldn't win, and not only that, that he couldn't even get the nomination."

Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, with tears in his eyes, said he regretted the decision because Kennedy would have been "a great candidate and a great president."

Thieves Find Cemetery Vases Lucrative Loot

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Cemeteries, long the playground of juvenile vandals, have become the latest target for professional thieves.

The FBI and cemetery operators say thieves are after the bronze vases which hold flowers over thouuands of graves in cemeteries across the nation.

The vases, which weigh about three pounds each, are sold to scrap metal dealers for the current going rate for bronze, up to $1 a pound.

Robert Toson of suburban Milwaukee's Pinelawn Memorial Park said thieves recently made off with 802 grave vases. He said the vases, probably sold for about $2,400 by the thieves, would cost about $21,000 to replace, at wholesale prices.

Spokesmen for two of the nation's largest bronze vase manufacturers, Matthews Bronze Co. of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Gorham Bronze Co. of Providence, R.I., say, however, that they are making replacements for stolen vases free of charge.

Toson said the loss of the vases, which carry retail price tags of $50 to $75, is causing concern among relatives who bought vases.

He said the cemetery thieves generally find the profits high and the risks relatively low in stealing the vases late at night in quiet, unpatrolled cemeteries.

A spokesman for the FBI office here said the agency is investigating interstate shipment of stolen vases. He said cemeteries around the country have been hit, with the most robberies in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio.

Richard Kauppinen of Beloit, president of the Wisconsin Cemetery Association, said police in some areas are being asked to give more attention to cemeteries on their night patrols, but most cemetery managers fear publicity will only spark more thefts and vandalism.

However, the American Cemetery magazine, an industry publication in New York, says only 69 arrests resulting in 35 convictions were recorded nationwide for 3,500 cemetery thefts reported in the last five years.

Rumsfeld Is Ford Choice

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will appoint Donald E. Rumsfeld, now U.S. ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, to take over the duties of White House staff chief Alexander M. Haig Jr., sources say.

However, sources said Monday, Rumsfeld will not carry the title of chief of staff because it is being retired when Haig leaves the White House to become military commander of NATO.

Rumsfeld has been a member of the four-man transition team which Ford named during his first days as President to make recommendations about organization of the White House staff. He is a former Republican congressmen from Illinois who became a friend of Ford when they served together in the House.

The 42-year-old Rumsfeld left the House in 1969 when former President Richard M. Nixon appointed him to head the Office of Economic Opportunity. He later served as a counselor in the Nixon White House and subsequently headed the Cost of Living Council.

He was named ambassador to NATO in 1973.

Nine Items On Planning Agenda

Nine items are scheduled for consideration at Wednesday night's meeting of the Joint City-County and Greenville Planning and Zoning Commissions.

Items under old business to be handled by the joint board include: discussion of an amendment to the Zoning Ordiance defining the comprehensive site plan requirement; a request for an amendment to the ordinance which would delete duplexes from the list of permitted uses in an R-9 zoning district; and a request for rezoning of Windy Ridge tract from R-9 to R-6.

New business includes: setting a date for a public hearing on the Medical District Development Plan; consideration of the adoption of a resolution urging improvements to the existing highways around the new hosptial; and the adoption of a policy statement concerning condominium development in Greenville.

The Greenville planning board will hear a report on the Minges-King lawsuit; consider a street name change in Oakhurst Subdivision; and consider a preliminary plat of D. G. Nichols tract located across from Cherry Oaks Subdivision.

New Cultural Awareness Seen

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (AP) — America's bicentennial may bring with it a new cultural awareness, says the chairman of the National Endowment for the Arts.

Recalling the inalienable rights of the Declaration of Independence, Nancy Hanks said Monday, "I submit that we have done relatively well, with some exceptions, in pursuing our rights to life and liberty."

And yet, Americans have "done very poorly in our pursuit of happiness, which was given equal billing by our forefathers," she told the opening meeting of the Associated Councils of the Arts national convention.

"We've waited a long time for the fulfillment of that third right, which we seemed to think was separable. But as we look forward, I think we look forward to a civilization in which the arts can contribute a full measure to our lives," she said.

Two bicentenial programs sponsored by the National Endowment have this general goal, she said. The city spirit program seeks to increase public awareness of the ways the arts enrich life. The city options program asks communities to look to the future as well as the past.

"We are aiming for something barely dreamed of before in this country's history," Miss Hanks said, adding that she believes an allienace of federal, state and community groups is the best way to bring the arts to the people.

"We have so much potential for something good," she told more than 300 arts administrators. "But we've also got so much opportunity for doing bad."

Disapproval Of Congress

NEW YORK (AP) — Pollster Louis Harris says Americans approve of the House of Representatives' handling of impeachment by a 59-37 per cent margin.

But when Harris' organization earlier this month polled 1,527 households across the nation on three economic issues — keeping the economy healthy, controlling inflation and handling taxes and spending — at least 80 per cent of the respondents voiced disapproval of Congress.

Only 10 to 14 per cent of those queried voiced their approval of Congress' performance, Harris said on Monday. The others polled said they weren't sure.

According to the sampling, Congress is still getting a negative rating of 54 to 38 per cent for its over-all performance. But that rating is an improvement over figures compiled in January, when 69 per cent disapproved of Congress' record and 21 per cent approved.

Gold Supply Is Displayed

FORT KNOX, Ky. (AP) — They were stacked from floor to ceiling: 36,236 golden bars valued at $499,823,244.58.

"It's a sight to take your breath," said Mary Brooks, director of the Mint, who led a delegation of congressmen and newsmen through the U.S. gold depository here on Monday.

It was the first time since the two-story vault was built in 1936 that "unauthorized personnel" have been permitted inside. President Franklin D. Roosevelt saw the gold in 1943, but even he had to ask permission.

Mrs. Brooks said the inspection was arranged so that the Mint "can clear away the cobwebs and reassure the public that their gold is intact and safe."

The question had arisen last July when Rep. Phillip M. Crane, R-Ill. quizzed Treasury Secretary William E. Simon about recent reports that the vault was empty.

Crane suggested that some members of Congress might want to take a look at the gold and Simon obliged.

What Crane saw at the depository was enough to convince him that the reports were unfounded.

The last run by the U.S. Highway Post Office was between Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati on June 30, 1974.

Not Surprised By Kennedy

RALEIGH (AP)—State Democratic Chairman James Sugg says he was not surprised by the announcement of Sen. Edward Kennedy that he will not seek the presidential nomination in 1976.

Sugg said in a prepared statement Monday he thinks Kennedy's announcement "cleared the deck for other Democrats aspiring to the presidency and will permit them to concentrate on the issues and conduct a positive campaign instead of a negative campaign against the front runner."

The Contribution Of Susann

We would feel amiss if the passing of Jacqueline Susann went unnoticed.

Jacqueline, at 53, lost a long struggle against cancer.

For the very young, the very blue-nosed, and the very, very old, Jacqueline Susann was the most successful woman writer of our times. The literati sniffed her work was not literature; but the green of envy showed through. One cannot argue with the marketplace; and her stories sold, and sold and sold.

She could, and did, weave a commentary on the contemporary social scene in her tales that caused many a nervous adult to hastily cover their reading material in the presence of an adolescent sibling. (Jacqueline was not reticent about four-letter words, three letter words, nor two-letter words in her narratives.)

Miss Susann was a truly remarkable writer if only because of her capturing a vast following; few women (or men) who write can claim that. Many profited from her work.

Publishers of the Susann works profited in a big way; and because of that, more serious writers saw their efforts in print (often at a loss to the publisher), because the business world could afford to indulge in idealism rather than worrying about paying the bills.

When one visualizes the many thousands of would-be writers who seek publication, and the handful who reach that goal. . .and the few who attain serious consideration. . .it is easy to comprehend the Suzanne status in the world of publishers.

As for readers, let us say that for the many she used the "shocking", the mundane and the bizarre to illustrate her points. For a few she was "lascivious"; for another few, dollar-hungry.

Jacqueline Susann will not be long remembered for her contribution to the literary scene; but a score or more of lesser known writers have been published because she made it all possible.

Quite an achievement for a gal who broke the rules.

Not Everybody Will Be Happy Over Sacrifices

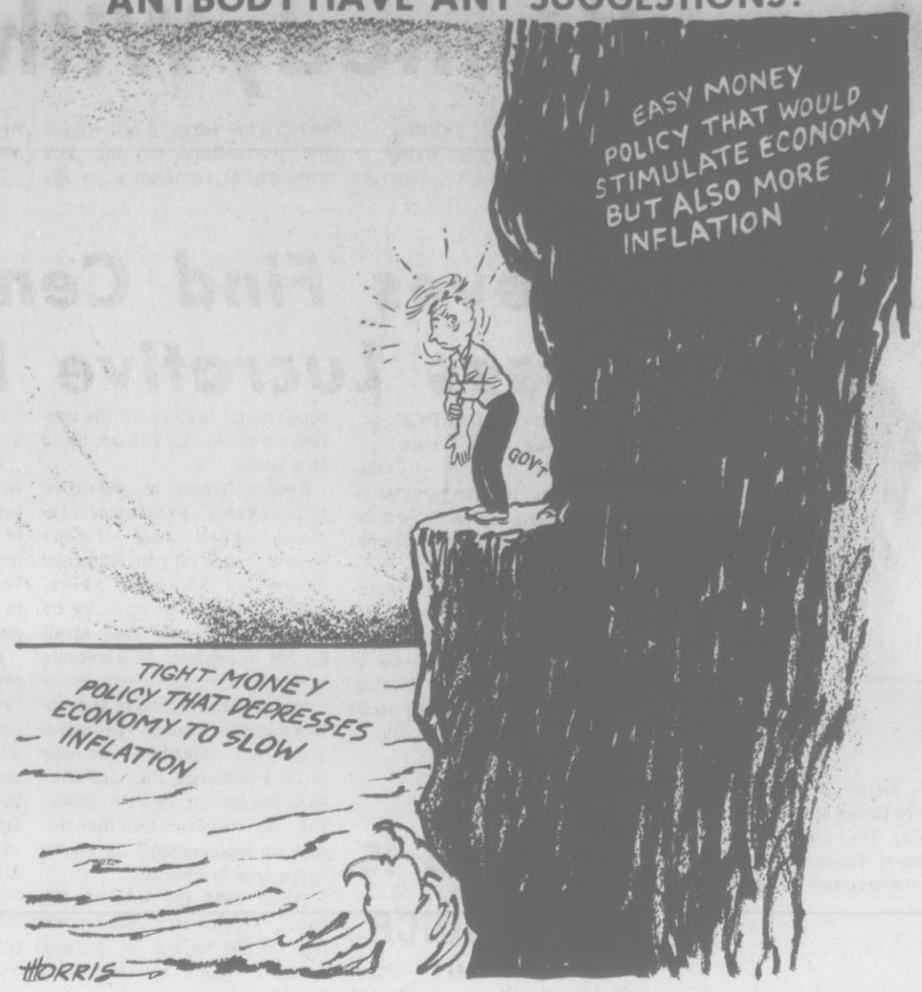

The Joint Economic Committee of Congress sees "several more years" of high inflation and high unemployment.

The committee had a number of recommendations for bringing inflation under control.

Improving our economy is not going to be easy and everything that will be necessary to control inflation is not going to be pleasing to everyone.

Sacrifices will have to be made, however, if we are not to face even worse economic problems in the future.

ANYBODY HAVE ANY SUGGESTIONS?

Call-Up Powers Sought

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon is preparing to ask Congress for new power to mobilize up to 50,000 National Guardsmen and reservists without a declaration of national emergency.

Officials said the aim is to enable the government to call up reserve forces for help in such situations as last fall's urgent supply airlift to Israel. A handful of Air Force reservists took part in that airlift as volunteers.

Under present law, the President cannot muster guardsmen or reservists for any military purpose unless either he or the Congress has declared a national emergency.

New legislation, now being drafted, would authorize the President or the secretary of defense to mobilize guard-reserve units totaling up to 50,000 men at any one time for a maximum of 90 days without formal proclamation of emergency.

William K. Brehm, the Pentagon's manpower chief, told a National Guard association meeting in Puerto Rico on Monday that defense officials would prefer to use volunteers "for smaller emergencies whenever and wherever possible."

But, Brehm said, "there can be instances when we will need selected units of the guard and reserve quickly to protect the national interest."

The new legislation is one more step in a growing Pentagon effort to mesh the more than 900,000 men in the Selected Reserve with the regular forces so they will be ready for early deployment and combat in a crisis.

Behind that effort is a belief that a combat-ready reserve can substitute for maintaining big and costly regular forces. Since the peak of the Vietnam war, the regular forces have been cut to about 2,160,000 men, smallest since before the 1950 Korean War.

Also, for the past four years, it has been stated defense policy that a swift military build-up will be handled first by mobilizing reserve elements rather than through the draft.

THIS AFTERNOON

Protected By The Law

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — The national argument over disposition of former President Richard Nixon's tapes and documents could never be duplicated in North Carolina.

We have state law and tradition dealing with the papers and documents of North Carolina governors which require continued public ownership.

At the national level, no such rules hold, and presidents have followed the lead set by the very first occupant of that office: George Washington took his records with him when he left office, and set a precedent which has since led to establishment of elaborate Presidential libraries, and the "gifts" of presidential materials allowing tax write-offs.

But in this state, those materials belong to the state, and are kept in the State Archives. For five years, no one is allowed to examine those documents without written permission either from the governor then in office, or from the former governor whose administration produced the materials. After five years, the files are open for examination by any person.

Fifty Years

This practice has been followed by governors for more than 50 years, and in 1971 the General Assembly passed legislation formalizing the practice.

The recent General Assembly took this matter a step further and defined public records as "documents, papers, letters, maps, books, photographs, films, sound recordings, magnetic or other tapes, electronic date records, artifacts, or other documentary materials. . ." connected with the governor's administration.

These regulations do not cover personal letters, but many such exchanges have been left in the files by previous governors, and do not apply to materials collected by a governor before he took office.

The collected materials of former governors Gregg Cherry, Kerr Scott and his son Robert Scott, and Dan Moore are in the State Archives, Those of Terry Sanford are kept at Duke University where he is president, and those of Luther Hodges are in the Southern Collection at Chapel Hill.

State Sen. McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, thinks the North Carolina system should be adopted at the national level, and by other states.

Clean House

In most states the outgoing governor cleans house, and the new man must start from scratch. "This is not right. No businessmen would stand for it in private business. We should not stand for it in the biggest and most important in which we are all engaged," Smith told a meeting of the Tri'State Convention of American Business Clubs recently.

Smith thinks that ignoring history is dangerous, and allowing governmental materials to become the private property of individuals is wrong "not merely from the standpoint of honesty, efficiency, and economy, but for keeping in our memory what went on in the past."

Smith thinks North Carolina's General Assembly, and those of other states, should pass resolutions asserting common ownership of papers and tapes, asking that they not be destroyed, but made available for public inspection.

Those materials, he said, were produced on "company time" by employees of the public and are rightfully the property of the public.

"If all else fails, I foresee a lawsuit. Citizens as taxpayers and the states as constituent electors have standing to sue, in my opinion.

"It would be another great case for the Supreme Court; but we should not have to go through all that. Firm action now by the present President ought to be enough. He cannot have made already a legally binding deal to give away this property of the nation," Smith said.

Whither The 2 Parties?

Where are we headed with our two-party system? The question has been raising its puzzled head for quite some time, but the issue recurs with fresh perlexity in the pending bill for the financing and regulation of federal election campaigns.

For whatever it may be worth, my guess is that this well-intentioned legislation one day will be seen as the last nudge toward oblivion. That prophecy may be wrong. The two-party system has been pretty well fixed in our republic for the past 120 years, since my own party, the Whig party, sprung its gussets and fell into shreds. The two-party system has survived Bull Moosers, Progressives, States Righters and George Wallace. It is a remarkably durable institution.

Even so, the system is in trouble. A dozen causes have contributed to the slow decline. The antisepsis of civil service has destroyed most of the healthy bacteria of political patronage. Programs of public welfare have replaced the scuttle of coal for the precinct worker. Parties have little to give by way of reward for faithful service; and they can impose little punishment for defection. Television provides a candidate with audiences far beyond the reach of a shad bake, clam bake, or party rally in the park.

Other factors have played a part. A generation has grown up in disenchantment with political institutions generally. Young people look about then and see that "the system" has failed to end poverty, stop racism, prevent war, and clean up the dirty environment. The two-party system is part of the system. Almost half of the young people registering to vote in recent months have refused to affiliate with either major party. Like organized religion, organized politics is raveling at the edges.

The pending bill on campaign reform, unless I am wholly mistaken, will accelerate the parties' decline. This surely is not the purpose of the bill. The idea is to prevent the malodorous

Other Editors Say Common Sense

(Henderson Dispatch)

Congress is to be commended for coming to its senses on this belt-interlock arrangement whereby a motorist cannot start his car until the seat belt is buckled on. The House has voted to repeal the requirement and the same is true of the Senate, but with some strings attached. The bill is now in conference to harmonize the two versions of the repeal legislation.

This is in no sense to discredit seat belts. They are right and proper, and may have saved lives on occasions when in use. But use should be voluntary and not compulsory. To equip a car in such manner that the motor cannot be fired until the belts are put on is the height of folly.

One observation indicated the ridiculous phase of the device, in that a driver can not start his car to move a few feet into the residential garage or carport until belts are fastened. Moreover, General Motors says the interlock system adds $30 to $40 to the price of the car, as if the cost were not already high enough.

In the slow pace of legislation through Congress, repeal of this monstrosity has been delayed until after new models are already moving along the assembly line, with the interlock included. Of course, it can be disconnected when the law permits, but there is no logic whatever in imposing it in the first place.

Motorists are up in arms against the gadget, and understandingly and properly so.

People are so controlled by non-essential legislation that they are harassed to the point of revolt—not against government, to be sure, but against bureaucratic regulations in general. Many of the impositions are but the brainchild of theorists. They aggravate the public to the point of just plain resentment. Why sensible lawmakers would fall for interlock attachments on cars and many other non-essentials is quite difficult to understand. It is to wonder if in at least some instances the honorables actually are not aware of implications they vote for.

Public Forum

To the editor:

A sound individual, by not abusing himself, stays the further ahead of himself; by not continuing himself, sustains himself outside himself. By never being an end in himself, he endlessly becomes himself.

Facing reality is natural and fulfilling; and those who alter it are they themselves killing. The way to do is to be. Do enough, without vying. For your own sake, be living, not dying.

It is said life is sometimes empty, but think of windows and doors. With these we are helped by what is not to use them for what they are for. If you abuse drugs, then there is indeed cause for compassion: My friends, conduct your triumph as a funeral in similar fashion. We care and we can help.

40 Years Ago Today

September 24, 1934

Some 200 textile workers claimed today that they were locked out of a textile mill near Concord, N. C. The strikers marched on the courthouse lawn in Concord in protest after they said management at the mill told them their jobs had been filled.

However, many mills in the Carolinas were again running full force after several weeks of employe strikes.

City schools opened today with indications of the largest enrollment in history.

Superintendent J. H. Rose said enrollment figures will be announced tomorrow.

Rose said a general teachers meeting will be held this afternoon, with a meeting of principals to follow that meeting.

The INSIDE REPORT

Wilbur Mills And GOP

By ROWLAND EVANS
and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — President Ford's non-support of a Republican challenger against Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas is widening the gap between the White House and influential Republican conservatives who are turning to Gov. Ronald Reagan of California for leadership.

The latest in a series of backstage developments concerning Mills's campaign for a 19th term in Congress was an unscheduled visit to the state Democratic convention in Hot Springs, Ark., Sept. 14 by William Simon, the Republican Secretary of the Treasury. Unable to arrange a meeting with Mills in Washington to discuss economic legislation, Simon stopped in Hot Springs on the way east from an Arizona speech. He conferred with Mills there, then gave him a lift to Washington in his government Lear jet.

Arkansas Republicans, assembled in state convention in Little Rock the same day, were incensed. They grumbled that Simon's visit undercut the campaign against Mills by his 30-year-old Republican challenger, Judy Petty. Their complaints were promptly relayed to conservative state party leaders and Congressmen. "I think this is another reason why party leadership is going to have to be exercised outside the Ford White House," one Southern state chairman told us.

Nobody gives Mrs. Petty any chance of upsetting Mills. But party officials have encouraged her campaign, both to help revive the somnolent Arkansas Republican party and to keep Mills tied down in Arkansas so that he cannot travel the country raising funds for Democratic candidates as he did in 1972.

But President Ford has larger goals. Facing a deadly serious economic crisis, he wants the powerful chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee on his side. Indeed, Mr. Ford could become the first President since John F. Kennedy to establish an enduring working relationship with Mills.

Consequently, Mr. Ford and his closest aides were aggravated several weeks ago when Reagan announced he would make a special trip to Little Rock Sept. 30 to address a fund-raiser for Mrs. Petty. Reagan's admirers in the party and on Capitol Hill claim this demonstrates he is far more the party loyalist than Mr. Ford.

At the White House, the President's top aides feared Mills would interpret Reagan's activity as reflecting hostility from Mr. Ford. Thus, Simon's visit to Hot Springs was a dramatic demonstration that the President has no interest whatever in Mrs. Petty's challenge.

A footnote: Anti-Ford attitudes by Southern Republicans were not eased by the White House selection of a Southerner, Virginia state chairman Richard Obenshain, as part-time co-chairman of the Republican National Committee. Southern Republicans consider it a sop to the South, a view shared privately by Obenshain himself.

However, some moderates on the national committee grumbled that the White House had picked Obenshain without investigating whether a secret meeting of conservatives in Washington three weeks ago attended by Obenshain discussed Reagan third-party possibilities. Obenshain told us he has

SEVEN MISTAKES, OR ONE?

A distinguished psychiatrist was recently quoted as saying that it is better to make seven mistakes than it is to make one.

By this he means that it is better to live an active, outgoing life, even at the expense of making mistakes, than it is to retreat into one's self after making one mistake. People who take the latter course have ended their education. Making mistakes is an integral part of the learning process.

Of course, making mistakes can also indicate a failure to learn. This is particularly true in situations where the same error is repeated over and over again. The person who does not learn from mistakes is in as bad a position as the person who withdraws from an active life because of the fear of making mistakes.

In the last analysis, then, it is not so much the process of making mistakes which counts but the attitude we have toward them.

The Anti-Inflationary Roads

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — There is no dearth of material from which President Gerald Ford can pick and choose in formulating an anti-inflation policy. There never was, and that is precisely his problem. He must exercise the wisdom of Solomon.

On the matter of taxing, for example, Richard Cooper of Yale University claims a tax reduction of $10 billion to $15 billion for low-moderate incomes would be anti-inflationary. But J. Kenneth Galbraith of Harvard urges a tax increase.

The proposals advocated over the past three weeks of presummary are replete with contradictions and special pleading of business, finance, labor, government, housing, the poor, investors, borrowers, lenders. . . .

But there are areas of agreement as well, especially in regard to lowering interest rates, keeping a check on government spending, and attempting to keep joblessness from rising swiftly during the adjustment to more stability.

Among the suggestions that must be considered by Paul McCracken, who has the unenviable job of formulating an economic program, are these — separated into monetary (money supply, cost) and fiscal (government spending, taxing) categories:

Monetary:

—Ease Federal Reserve policy on money supply. Widely advocated by economists and others of all persuasions. While administration spokesmen opposed mildly, Arthur Burns, Fed chairman, indicates the easing already may have begun.

—Allocate credit to most productive uses. Money now is allocated by price alone. Has been suggested that criteria of efficiency and social good, such as to boost housing, also be used.

—Negotiation of an international agreement to regulate Eurodollars. These are obligations payable abroad in U.S. currency. Critics contend that while domestic dollar supply is limited by Fed, dollars abroad unregulated.

Fiscal:

—Balance the budget. That is, don't permit government spending to exceed revenues. Widespread support. Government budget deficits over a long period of time are highly inflationary.

"There is only one cure and we all know it," said Milton Friedman of the University of Chicago, generally regarded as a conservative. "We have to slow down total spending. Only the Federal government can do that ...."

—Use taxing power for special effects. Nathaniel Goldfinger, AFL-CIO economist, proposes an excess profits tax. Investment community wants to encourage capital formation by lowering income tax on interest and dividends.

Some economists suggest higher taxes on income to curtail demand. But others suggest a tax cut for lower income workers to make them more satisfied with smaller wage increases.

Many of the suggestions from economists and others go beyond the usual fiscal-monetary measures. Among the suggestions for a multidimensional attack on

Rob't Morgan Closes Door On Ladd-Firing Debate

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP)—Robert Morgan is not going to talk about the dismissal of James Ladd any further, according to his campaign manager, Charles B. Winberry Jr.

It was Winberry, and not Morgan, who met the press Monday to answer questions about the Ladd case and other controversies surrounding Morgan.

OLDEST CONVICT—John Weber celebrates his 99th birthday today in the hospital facility of the Ohio Penitentiary in Columbus. An inmate for 48 years, Weber is listed as the nation's oldest prisoner. He was sentenced to life imprisonment in 1926 for the shooting death of his 18-month-old daughter. In 1972 his sentence was commuted to second degree murder, making him eligible for release but Weber says he is too old for freedom. (AP Wirephoto)

Although Morgan was scheduled to be in Raleigh Monday working in his campaign office, Winberry said he did not appear because "he is not going to get down in the gutter with his opponents," in the U.S. Senate race.

The controversy over the Ladd firing stems from a hearing held last month by the North Carolina State Personnel Board.

Ladd was appealing for reinstatement as director of the North Carolina Criminal Justice Academy at Salemburg, a post he held for less than six months before Morgan fired him in June. His appeal was upheld by the board.

Morgan said Ladd was fired because he refused to cooperate with the academy's executive board or with Dr. John Kozy, an East Carolina University philosophy professor named by Morgan as a curricular consultant to the academy.

Ladd contended that he was fired for political reasons, among them his refusal to contribute to or work in the Morgan campaign.

During the hearing, Ladd testified under oath that on one occasion, Morgan "took out a long campaign contribution receipt book and explained to us how money was going to be raised for his campaign, where we would sign if we raised money, etc.

"At the conclusion of his discussion he took the receipt book and threw it across the table at me. I didn't pick it up."

Morgan, in sworn testimony, was asked at the hearing, "Did you at any time display a campaign receipt book to Mr. James Ladd and through insinuation indicate that it was difficult raising money?"

Morgan answered flatly, "I did not."

But Ladd's testimony was corroborated by the third party at the meeting, Joseph A. Faircloth. Faircloth is now on leave from his job as director of the North Carolina Criminal Justice Training and Standards Council.

Faircloth was asked if Morgan displayed a receipt book to him and Ladd. He answered, "Yes; sir, he had someone there in the headquarters to get him one of the books."

Faircloth was asked whether Morgan threw the book across the table at him and Ladd. "After explaining how the book was to be used, yes sir, he did," Faircloth answered.

Winberry said Monday that Morgan stood by his testimony. Morgan himself has refused to answer questions about it, saying he wants only to talk about issues in the campaign.

Winberry did acknowledge that Morgan, at the time of his meeting with Ladd and Faircloth, was showing the receipt books to many people as a way of demonstrating that all contributions to his campaign would be accounted and reported.

Faircloth indicated as much in another portion of his testimony. "He explained he would like to run the campaign with contributions of $25.00 or less and this was a receipt book so that everything would be above board."

Faircloth said he did not think Morgan meant to imply that he wanted a campaign contribution.

Winberry did not quite call Ladd and Faircloth liars. "If my mama read that I'd used the word 'liar' in the public press, she'd come down here and wash my mouth out with soap," he said.

But he suggested that Ladd and Faircloth have both been rewarded for their testimony by the Republicans.

Ladd, who was getting $19,200 per year in his old job, has been named to a post in the Department of Corrections that pays $20,600. Republican Atty. Gen. James Carson has not, however, acted on the personnel board's recommendation that he be given back pay for the period after he was fired.

Faircloth is currently studying for a master's degree at Harvard. Before the hearing, Morgan aide Howard Kramer asked the personnel board to grant him a leave with pay. The request was denied.

Faircloth said last week he has talked with Carson about signing a consulting contract with the state that would enable him to earn money while he attends school.

Carson, he said, was noncommittal. The matter will be taken up by the Criminal Justice Training and Standards Council next month.

Winberry said it would have made no sense for Morgan to fire an employe for political reasons in the middle of a campaign. He pointed out that less than 40 of the approximately 500 Justice Department employes contributed to Morgan's campaign and that he fired only six people in his five years as attorney general.

Looks Ahead

RALEIGH (AP)—The president of Carolina Power & Light Co. says the nation faces the possibility of "disastrous power shortages" within three to five years.

Shearon Harris told the Raleigh Rotary Club Monday "the nation appears to be on a direct course and full speed ahead toward" such a shortage.

"An inadequate power supply," he said, "will impose economic constraints far more costly for consumers and working people than electricity pricing that fully covers necessary costs."

Harris told the group that soon many electric utilities "will be preoccupied in preparing and administering regulations that prevent new customers from being connected to the system and limit existing customers from increasing their usage."

New FBI Posters On Sought-For Trio

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The FBI has distributed flyers with new pictures of fugitive newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst and two Symbionese Liberation Army companions, Emily and William T. Harris.

The new photos show Mrs. Harris wearing a wig, Harris with a closely cropped haircut and Miss Hearst's profile.

The flyers, distributed to 52,000 law enforcement officials throughout the U.S., also adds new aliases for the Harrises, including Mike Andrews, Richard Frank Dennis, William Kinder, Jonathan Maris, Jonathan Mark Salamone, Mrs. William Taylor Harris, Mary Hensley, Joanne James, Anna Lindenberg, Cynthia Sue Mankins and Dorothy Ann Petrie.

"We want 52,000 pairs of eyes to get a new look," said special agent-in-charge Charles Bates after the flyers were released on Monday. He did not disclose when or how the pictures and aliases were secured.

Miss Hearst, 20, the daughter of Randolph A. Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner, was kidnaped by the SLA on Feb. 4. She later renounced her family and said she had joined her captors. She is wanted in connection with a $10,600 holdup at the Hibernia Bank robbery here on April 15. She is also wanted for violations of federal firearms laws.

Harris, 29, and his wife, 27, are wanted on federal arms violations and state charges which include kidnaping.

Energy Czar Morton

Rogers Morton, neglected and unhappy as President Nixon's Secretary of the Interior, is on the verge of being put in charge of the nation's energy policy by President Ford—a decision causing misgivings among energy experts in the administration and on Capitol Hill.

A secret recommendation by the White House Domestic Council staff recommends that Treasury Secretary William Simon be kept as head of the energy committee. Nevertheless, Mr. Ford is expected to replace him with Morton and the Interior Department's old-line bureaucracy can handle interrelated diplomatic, economic and technical problems that comprise the energy crisis.

Mr. Ford's decision has been pending since his Oval Office meeting Aug. 29 with Morton, Simon and Federal Energy administrator John Sawhill. Morton met alone with the President, an old congressional crony, for 45 minutes before Simon and Sawhill entered the office. In that private chat, Morton asked for the energy post, arguing that Simon had more than enough economic problems to keep him busy.

Since then, some Ford advisers have urged that he bypass both Morton and Simon by placing overall energy policymaking in the new Energy and Research Development Agency (ERDA). Their choice to head ERDA: Robert Seamans, veteran technocrat and former Secretary of the Air Force.

A footnote: If Morton is named, it will represent a dramatic turnaround for him since a meeting of the energy action group that October. Gen. Alexander Haig, White House chief of staff, mercilessly chewed out Morton for airing his views to the press. High officials believe that if Haig were staying at the White House he would have fought hard to keep Morton from the energy post.

'Lost Colony' Set Attendance Record

MANTEO—The Golden Trinity sailed its last course of the season when the final performance of "The Lost Colony" outdoor drama's 34th production season came to a close Saturday night, August 31.

Having played to an audience of 78,011 people this summer, "The Lost Colony" enjoyed one of its all-time highest attendance records in the history of the play. Only two other seasons have been equal to or greater than the attendance this year.

"The Lost Colony" set a two-year attendance high on the night of August 3 when it played to a capacity audience of 2,120. This season the average per night audience totaled 1300 people. The total paid attendance for 1973 was 70,003.

Although rain threatened many performances of Paul Green's outdoor symphonic drama this season, there were only four official rainouts of the production. "Rainy weather, fear of gasoline shortage and late summer storms hampered attendance a little this year," according to John F. Hruby, general manager for "The Lost Colony."

A Rejection By Fulbright

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., has turned down an offer to become ambassador to Great Britain after he leaves the Senate early next year, a spokesman says.

Fulbright, who was defeated in a primary election earlier this year, decided against the offer because of personal reasons, the senator's spokesman added. He would not elaborate.

President Ford had offered Fulbright the post now held by Ambassador Walter H. Annenberg before the senator visited China recently with a congressional delegation, the spokesman said. After thinking it over during the interval, Fulbright visited Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger on Saturday and declined the offer.

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has not announced what his plans are when he leaves the Senate after 30-years of service.

scandals that stunk up the political landscape two years ago. The bill would put ceilings on the amounts that could be spent by candidates for the presidency and for the Congress. The bill would create a new federal board to oversee campaigns. Public funds, voluntarily contributed through the check-off plan, would be channeled to presidential candidates and possibly to congressional candidates aas well. The idea is to make out politics purer.

The purpose is fine, but I doubt this bill will accomplish that purpose. It will invite private and personal campaign expenditures, outside the party system. It will cripple one function of the political party, which is to raise funds for a party campaign. If the bill winds up by making public money available to candidates for House and Senate, the effect will be to encourage third, fourth and fifth party candidates, thus benefiting incumbents and placing plurality winners in office.

This additional probability: Once the national government gets involved in our elections, through the new administrative board and the campaign subsidies, the quiescent movement toward the direct national election of presidents will take on fresh momentum. We would then be headed toward a fundamental restructuring of our whole scheme of government. Minority parties, assured of a place on a uniform, nationwide ballot, would mutiply like rabbits. In theory, the voter would have a greater choice; in practice, to judge from the European experience, we would wind up only with greater confusion.

With deference to the reformers, who sincerely want to make our sick politics well, I cannot believe this radical surgery is well-advised. Before the two-party system is further weakened, it might be prudent to reflect that we have nothing to take its place. There is not much satisfaction, after all, in marveling at the brilliant operation, if the patient dies.

inflation are these:

—Controls or restraints. Business especially complains about negotiated inflation through wage settlements, but unions declare something of the same sort occurs with prices. Less support than in past, but still prominently mentioned.

—Indexing. Advocated by the Friedman school. "Escalator clauses on all sorts of things," says Friedman, plus cost-of-living adjustment on taxes. Already used in labor contracts, which specify raises equal to inflation rate.

—Examination of existing regulations and subsidies. Hendrik Houthakker, Harvard economist and former adviser to President Nixon, claims he has a list of 45 federal programs that inflate prices and which should be ended.

Business complains that environmental and safety regulations raise prices without contributing to production. Transporters claim maze of regulations on how things must be shipped adds to costs and prices.

Thomas Moore of Michigan State University insists that erasing Interstate Commerce Commission regulations would reduce trucking charges by 20 per cent or more. Limitation of competition among airlines also keeps prices high, he says.

—Antitrust action. Various proposals have been suggested even before presummit conferences. The belief is that concentrations of power in big industries, unions, institutions tends to reduce competition.

—Encouraging smaller businesses. The more competition the lower the prices — in theory anyway.

Midwest Corn, Soybean Crops Are Cut Back By Killing Frost

By GORDON HANSON
Associated Press Writer

BOONE, Iowa (AP) — An early killing frost has dealt weather-stricken Midwest corn and soybean producers another blow and may mean higher consumer prices on meat, milk and eggs.

Officials say freezing temperatures which settled across the Upper Midwest on Saturday and Sunday nights may have caused the loss of another 200 million bushels of corn, and the figure on soybean loss could be twice as great.

One result may be consumers paying "still higher prices for meat, milk and eggs," says Walter Goeppinger, chief administrative officer of the National Corn Growers Association in Boone.

"American farmers would probably have raised a record 6.1 billion bushel corn crop this year," he said on Monday. "After the spring storms and summer drought, it was looking like a crop of 5 billion bushels.

"But the frost damage has covered such a wide area that 4.8 billion bushels is the maximum that can be expected. It could be less."

Severe spring storms washed away much newly planted corn and soybean seed or delayed plantings, then a summer drought laid waste to thousands of acres of prime cropland.

Now the unseasonably early frost has taken its toll of immature corn stands in Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota, Wisconsin, South Dakota, Illinois and Michigan, Goeppinger said.

Delayed plantings of corn resulted in later-maturing plants which were more susceptible to frost. For that corn to develop "it needed a later-than-average killing frost date, instead of an earlier one," Goeppinger said.

Dr. Harvey Thompson, an Iowa State University agronomist, estimated the Iowa corn loss from frost alone at 40 million bushels, or 4 per cent of a predicted one billion bushel harvest.

"The percentage loss on soybeans will be more than double the loss on corn," Thompson said. "Because of the spring rain, hardly any beans were planted on time, and a lot were replanted a couple of times."

Goeppinger said corn producers in the seven-state Upper Midwest area who were hit by the drought and then the frost "are really paying the biggest price. Probably in many cases they may not get 15 to 20 bushels to an acre. And in some cases there is complete failure."

Corn producers in recent years have consistently harvested more than 100 bushels an acre.

Goeppinger said higher prices for corn will cause beef, poultry and hog producers — who use the grain for fattening livestock — to reduce the amounts they send to market.

Old Monument Is Bomb Target

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP)— The downtown Confederate Monument has been a sensitive issue here since last summer when City Council first voted to remove Memorial Day Confederate flags, then later decided to put them back next year.

Police received two anonymous phone calls Monday about bombs being planted at the monument.

The first one proved true.

"A bomb will go off at High and Court at the monument in half an hour," was the word a police dispatcher received about noon.

In a bag on the ground at the northwest corner of the monument, police found a homemade bomb with explosive power of about 20 pounds of TNT. The device later was disarmed by an explosive ordance disposal squad at Ft. Story.

The bomb's explosive power was estimated by Navy Chief Warrant Officer R. P. Demers, who said it could have injured passersby on both sides of Court Street. Faulty wiring probably prevented the bomb from exploding, said a member of his squad.

Patrolman C. T. Ryder picked up the bag in which the bomb was found and saw a can and a battery inside. The bomb squad then was summoned.

The 35-foot stone monument was completed in 1881 and has figures of four Confederate soldiers at its base. The bomb was found beside the sculpture of an artilleryman.

Demers said he believed the bomb, a fairly easy device to make, was of a type demonstrated two weeks ago on the television show, "Hawaii Five O."

"It was a legitimate bomb," Demers said. "It would have gone 'boom'. I'm not saying it would have killed everyone on the street, but it would have hurt a lot of people."

A police dispatcher received another anonymous call about 6:30 p.m. saying, "That one didn't go off, but the next one will." Police units sent back to the monument area found nothing the second time.

Entry Deadline

Greenville women are reminded to submit their applications for the Bicentennial Baking Contest before midnight, Saturday September 28 according to Nancy Gustafson, chairwoman of the contest committee.

Entries themselves must be submitted at the Kroger Building Saturday, October 5 between 10 a.m. and 12 p.m. The winner will be announced.

There will be a $5 prize in each of four categories, cakes, pies, cookies, and breads. All recipes must date prior to 1940. Application blanks are available at Bicentennial Headquarters at the corner of Ninth and Evans.

Oldsters In Peace Corps

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (AP) — When Harold Soderquist celebrates his 80th birthday in December, he and his 76-year-old wife, Bertha, will be in West Samoa starting a two-year stint with the Peace Corps.

They will have to learn a new language, adapt to a new culture and take on full-time teaching jobs, but they say they welcome the challenge.

"I can't think of anything else," said Soderquist.

Mrs. Soderquist added, "We rested long enough — about 10 years."

Soderquist retired in 1965 from Wayne State University where he taught the philosophy of education for 28 years. Mrs. Soderquist taught in the suburban Farmington school system, retiring in 1959.

The Soderquists leave next week for an orientation session with the Peace Corps in Denver. In November, they will be stationed in Apia, capital of West Samoa.

Soderquist will teach English and teaching methods in a teacher's training college and will also supervise practice teaching. His wife will teach English in a high school.

Family Of Nine Living In Their Old School Bus

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Marion and Jacqueline Roberts and their seven children are living in a battered, 12-year-old school bus that never takes them to school.

Vandals broke all the windows in the house they were renting and they decided to move out. They have been living in the bus since mid-July.

But now, the parents say no one will rent them living space because of the size of the family; and the Omaha School District refused to accept the children because they have no permanent address.

Roberts, 36, is a heavy equipment operator whose income has dropped sharply in the recent building slump. But he says it has not fallen off enough to qualify the family for government-assisted housing.

Mrs. Roberts said the objection of landlords always has been the size of the family.

The family can afford to pay $200 to $250 a month for rent. And she said the children are not destructive.

The children, four girls and three boys, range in age from 4 to 15. Six of them attended school last year.

Dr. Joseph Hanna, associate school superintendent, said the district's policy is that students must live at a permanent address.

However, he said "we certainly don't deny an education to any child," and if the family parked the bus in one specific spot each night it would satisfy the requirement and the children would be admitted immediately.

Roberts drives the bus to recreation areas at night where the family has access to toilet facilities, showers and picnic tables. Mrs. Roberts prepares food on a gas stove in the bus.

In the morning Roberts drives the family to nearby Elkhorn where they eat breakfast at his father's house. Then, it's off to a job site — if he's working.

Roberts said he acquired the bus with the idea of making a camper out of it. "We didn't figure on living in it," he added.

CD Director Talks On Tornado Survival

Area Civil Defense Director Col. Davis Spivey addressed the Greenville Moose Lodge members Monday evening on tornado survival.

Survival, he said, was dependant upon heading the warnings and knowing what to do. In his considered opinion, he ventured that there was actually more threat of extensive tornadic damage in Pitt County than from hurricanes.

A film from the National Weather Service, illustrating the danger signs, and process leading to a "Tornado Watch" and finally a "Tornado Warning" from the Severe Storms Forecaster in Kansas City, was shown.

The "Tornado Warning" stage was reached, Spivey told his audience, when a funnel was actually sighted and reported in the endangered area.

Strength of tornadic winds, he said, could run from 300 mph. to as much as 500 mph.; and its ground speed was equally variable. In any event, the populace should take cover at the point of a "Tornado Warning." A question and answer period followed the program.

In other business before the lodge, Governor Jack Morgan reminded the Moose Cub Pack was now activated for the season and that Ed Stallings was the new Cub Master; and Assistant Scoutmaster Bill Shaw reported the Moose-sponsored troop was now meeting on Wednesday evenings.

Newsprint Hikes Seen

NEW YORK (AP) — A new round of newsprint price increases has been predicted by some analysts as a result of a new price hike by Price Paper Co., one of Eastern Canada's largest newsprint producers.

Price said on Monday its next boost of $25 per ton will go into effect January 1975. It was the fourth increase announced within a year.

The increase will bring the price of standard 30-pound newsprint to its customers in the Eastern United States to $259.65 a ton from the current price of $234.65 a ton.

The company, which supplies newsprint to such papers as the New York Times and the Washington Post, blamed the increase on rising costs of fuel, wood pulp and chemicals from which paper is made.

Other major producers complained about constantly rising costs, but refused to discuss their future pricing plans.

One paper analyst said, however, "This is a highly competitive business and if one goes up in price and can make it stick, the other companies usually follow."

Governor Loses His License In Elk-Poaching

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — Montana Gov. Thomas L. Judge has lost his big-game hunting privileges for six months in the state's most publicized elk poaching incident in years.

Justice of the Peace J.G. Lamoreaux on Monday ordered Judge's $300 bond forfeited and his big game license suspended when Judge did not appear at a scheduled hearing.

Judge tagged a young bull elk in an area open only for killing bulls with advanced horn development — called branch antlered animals. He said he first thought he had made a legal kill.

The governor said he expected to be treated like any other hunter. But officials said they couldn't recall any hunter losing both license and a $300 bond after turning himself in. One official said the usual forfeiture is $35.

Jas. Meredith An Independent Candidate

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — James H. Meredith, who integrated the University of Mississippi in 1962, has won court approval to run as an independent candidate for Congress.

But Circuit Court Judge Francis Bowling criticized Meredith in issuing his ruling Monday, calling a 50-mile voter registration walk by Meredith "a grandstand act for publicity purposes." Meredith denied the walk was to pressure the court.

A state spokesman said Bowling's opinion would be appealed. Meredith, 43, challenged a state ruling that he couldn't run as an independent after being in the Democratic primary.

Meredith, 43, withdrew from a runoff after leading a primary field of five, saying he couldn't win backing of the state Democratic party. Bowling upheld Meredith's argument that he could legally run as an independent because he withdrew before the primary process was completed.

Recycling Hits Gas Stations

NEW YORK (AP) — Many gas stations are being abandoned, demolished or converted — due to the effects of the energy crunch.

National Petroleum News estimates that 10,000 service stations have closed since 1970.

Some stations have been sold to fast-food franchisers and some have become flower shops, beauty salons or libraries. At least one has been changed into a church, the magazine says.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A computer that links approximately 200 university, college and public libraries in the eastern United States, including the 1.3 million-volume Rush Rhees Library at the University of Rochester, recently flashed a detailed recipe for apple cake on a print-out screen here for no apparent reason.

University librarians surmised that one of the computer subscribers is a gourmet cook with a sense of humor.

Possible Natural Gas Shortage Termed Very Real

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Industry executives have warned that the nation may run short of natural gas this winter.

The warnings came Monday during the first of five days of public hearings on "Project Independence," a program designed to reduce America's dependence on energy imports.

"The situation in natural gas is much worse than the public has been led to believe," said Z. D. Bonner, president of Gulf Oil Co. "If we have a cold winter, we're going to have some very bad experiences."

Paul E. Reichardt, chairman of the board and president of the Washington Gas Light Co., said major distributors cannot obtain all the natural gas they need "because discoveries of new gas reserves have not kept pace with the demand for gas."

The joined other oil industry representatives in calling for government action to allow exploration of suspected oil and gas deposits off the East and West coasts in the Gulf of Mexico.

"The time has come when the nation simply must know whether or not reserves of natural gas and oil exist off the East Coast," Reichardt said. "If work were to begin immediately it would take five to seven years to develop reserves. Further delay is intolerable."

The resumption of oil exploration off the coast of Southern California is "absolutely essential to the success of Project Independence," said Edfred L. Shannon Jr., vice president of Western Oil and Gas Association.

They also advocated lifting government price controls on gas as a stimulus to development of new reserves.

"The law of supply and demand must be allowed to operate and work its will in terms of profits and prices," Bonner said. "This will stimulate development of all our domestic energy resources."

But environmental groups objected to the proposals.

"To be honest, I find obscene the concept of giving economic incentives to the oil industry, whose profits have been ridivulously high the past two years," said David Schlissel of the Georgia Power Project.

And Barbara Heller of the Environmental Policy Center in Washington opposed any "energy and mineral developments which are planned for the oceans without first assuring the survival of our fisheries."

There also were calls for Congress to pass enabling legislation allowing the construction of oil unloading terminals in coastal waters deep enough for the giant supertankers which now carry much of the world's oil but are too big for U.S. ports.

Such legislation is necessary to cut the cost of importing oil, argued representatives of five groups which have proposed building superports.

Emphasizing the need to get started on such projects, William B. Read, president of Louisiana Offshore Oil Port, said the proposed superport would have cost $500 million if construction had started 18 months ago. Now, he said, it would cost $650 million.

Kenneth L. Dupuy, regional administrator for the Federal Energy Administration which is coordinating the hearings, said Americans must reduce their use of energy resources.

At the present rates of demand and expected production, Dupuy said, the United States might have to import as much as 50 per cent of its oil by 1985.

He said imports made up 15 per cent of the oil supply in 1960, and 30 per cent in 1972.

Duke R. Ligon, assistant administrator for energy resources development of the FEA, said oil imports are now estimated at 35 to 36 per cent of U.S. consumption. He said one aim of Project Independence was to reduce that to 20 to 25 per cent in the near future.

But even then, he said, the days of inexpensive fuel supplies are over.

"For a long time the American people have enjoyed days of cheap energy," Ligon said at a news conference. "Those days are gone."

When first announced by President Nixon, the goal of Project Independence was complete self-sufficiency in energy in 1980. But Ligon said that goal was unrealistic and would create fuel shortages which would disrupt the American economy.

"Any movement away from the 35 per cent dependence we now have would be considered a major step," Ligon said.

Recognition Award To Greenville Recreation Dept.

By JERRY RAYNOR

The Greenville Recreation Department is the winner of the 1974 Special Award given to an organization not a member of the North Carolina Association for Retarded Children (NCARC) for outstanding achievement in the field of work with these children.

At the annual NCARC banquet held on Saturday in Raleigh, the award for Greenville was presented by president-elect of the association, Dr. Robert G. Taylor, to Miss Alice Keene, who accepted the award for Greenville. Miss Keene is coordinator of Programs for Exceptional Children and Adults conducted by the Greenville Recreation Department.

"I want to express all our appreciation to the people of the Pitt County Association of Retarded Children, to the many local agencies who have helped us, and to the city government," Alice said. "We would never be able to have the programs we have without all this fine support."

Three basic programs are conducted by the Greenville Recreation Department on a regular and continuing basis for retarded children and adults. One is the exceptional adults program which works with about a dozen adults; another is two similar exceptional children programs carried on in conjunction with the city schools, with an average of 80 children; and the third program is the Special Olympics for both children and adults, which has about 50 local people involved.

Last May, the Greenville Special Olympics contingent won over 20 medals at the annual state event.

The Greenville Recreation Department was also the recipient of a certificate for outstanding work, presented by the national chapter of the Association for Retarded Children to a non-member agency. The Recreation Department of Topeka, Kansas this year received the top award for programs carried out by recreation centers.

Other 1974 winners in North Carolina include Ms. Peggy Leudtke, the "Asheville Citizen Times," and John E. Callighan, WSOC-TV, Charlotte, both recipients of the NCARC Journalism Award.

Local area award winners for work with handicapped people in recent years include Dr. Malene Irons, 1967; the "Kinston Daily Free Press," 1969; WCTI-TV, Channel 12, 1972; and Ashley B. Futrell, editor - publisher of "The Washington Daily News," 1973.

Miss Keene, a graduate of East Carolina University with a degree in Therapeutic Recreation, is a native of Four Oaks. She has been with the Greenville Recreation Department since September 1973.

Farmville Leaf Prices Steady

FARMVILLE — Prices were steady on the Farmville Tobacco Market Monday with the exception of quality primings which were stronger than on previous sales days.

The top practical price was $1.12 per pound. Some leaf grades sold for as high as $1.20 a pound. The volume consisted of mostly leaf and smoking leaf grades. Offerings consisted of nondescript grades and primings.

The market sold 646,625 pounds of tobacco for $719,747 for an average of $111.31 per hundred pounds.

To date, the market has sold 18,835,907 for $19,394,301, for an average of $102.96 per hundred pounds.

Farm Product LoansApproved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Poland will be able to buy $28 million worth of U.S. farm commodities under a new commercial credit package.

The Agriculture Department said the arrangement will enable Poland to purchase $8 million worth of cotton, $4 million of tobacco, $10 million of rice and $6 million of tallow.

The loans, financed by the department's Commodity Credit Corp., bear commercial rates of interest and must be repaid in installments over a maximum of three years.

Living It Up

CENTREVILLE, Md.(AP) — Soviet diplomats are living in grand style at their Eastern Shore retreat, stocking it with comforts that would have made a czar envious.

After buying a luxurious estate at Pioneer Point for more than $1 million, the Russians acquired two yachts, imported a speedboat for waterskiing, installed air conditioning, improved the tennis courts and touched up the swimming pool.

The resort, formerly owned by businessman John Jacob Raskob, includes two mansions on 40 tree-shaded acres with sandy beaches along the Corsica and Chester Rivers.

Victor Ivanov, resident manager of the estate, says the resort is used for relaxation by Soviet diplomats and their families who come from Washington, often in groups of about 50.

They amuse themselves playing tennis, soccer, table tennis, fishing, skiing and swimming, Ivanov said.

At one recent party, the Soviet diplomats invited local government officials and provided seemingly unending supplies of lobster, vodka and caviar.

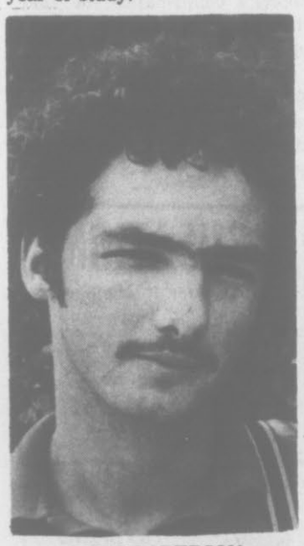

"You'd think they were capitalists," one neighbor commented.

Summer Work Is Put To Use

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

East Carolina University student Greg Roberson of Robersonville is one of hundreds of students who will be able to put his summer work experience to good advantage in his senior year of study.

GREG ROBERSON

Greg majors in Parks, Recreation and Conservation. (PRC). With an increasing number of North Carolina municipalities accepting trained personnel into expanding recreation programs, on the spot training plays a big role in a PRC student's curriculum.

This past summer, Greg was assigned to Camp Atlantic at Ocean Isle Beach in southeastern North Carolina, three miles from Seaside and only a bit further from Shallotte.

"Camp Atlantic is aquatics oriented and has a wide range of water based activities," Greg remarked. "This includes water skiing, surfing, SCUBA diving and boating." Greg feels he could not have received a more appropriate assignment, as his native state is rich in potential for significant future growth of seashore recreation activities.

"Being there gave me a chance to fulfill my field work requirements," he said. "At the camp I was a boating instructor and a bunkroom counselor. I worked with children, teaching the fundamentals and rules of motor boating, including safety."

In his counseling work, Greg remarked "I lived with the campers, and hopefully I helped them solve problems and develop the characteristic of finding themselves as competent individuals."

On thing that impressed Greg was the diversity of backgrounds of the young campers. "These were boys from nine to 15 years old," he said. "Quite a number were from other states and there were some from Mexico, Italy and other foreign countries.

"Most foreign boys spoke some English, and practiced diligently as they came to this camp with one of the aims being to improve their English."

The international flavor was rounded out, Greg noted, "in that one of the counselors was from abroad, from Denmark."

Greg indicated that there were a few problems in working with young people that age. "But," he added, "if getting involved and working with people is what interests a college student looking for practical experience, being part of a team on a summer camp may be just what a student is looking for."

Defends Steps Creating Jobs

CHINA GROVE, N.C. (AP)— Governor Jim Holshouser today defended the action of the last two legislatures in creating more than 13,000 new state jobs.

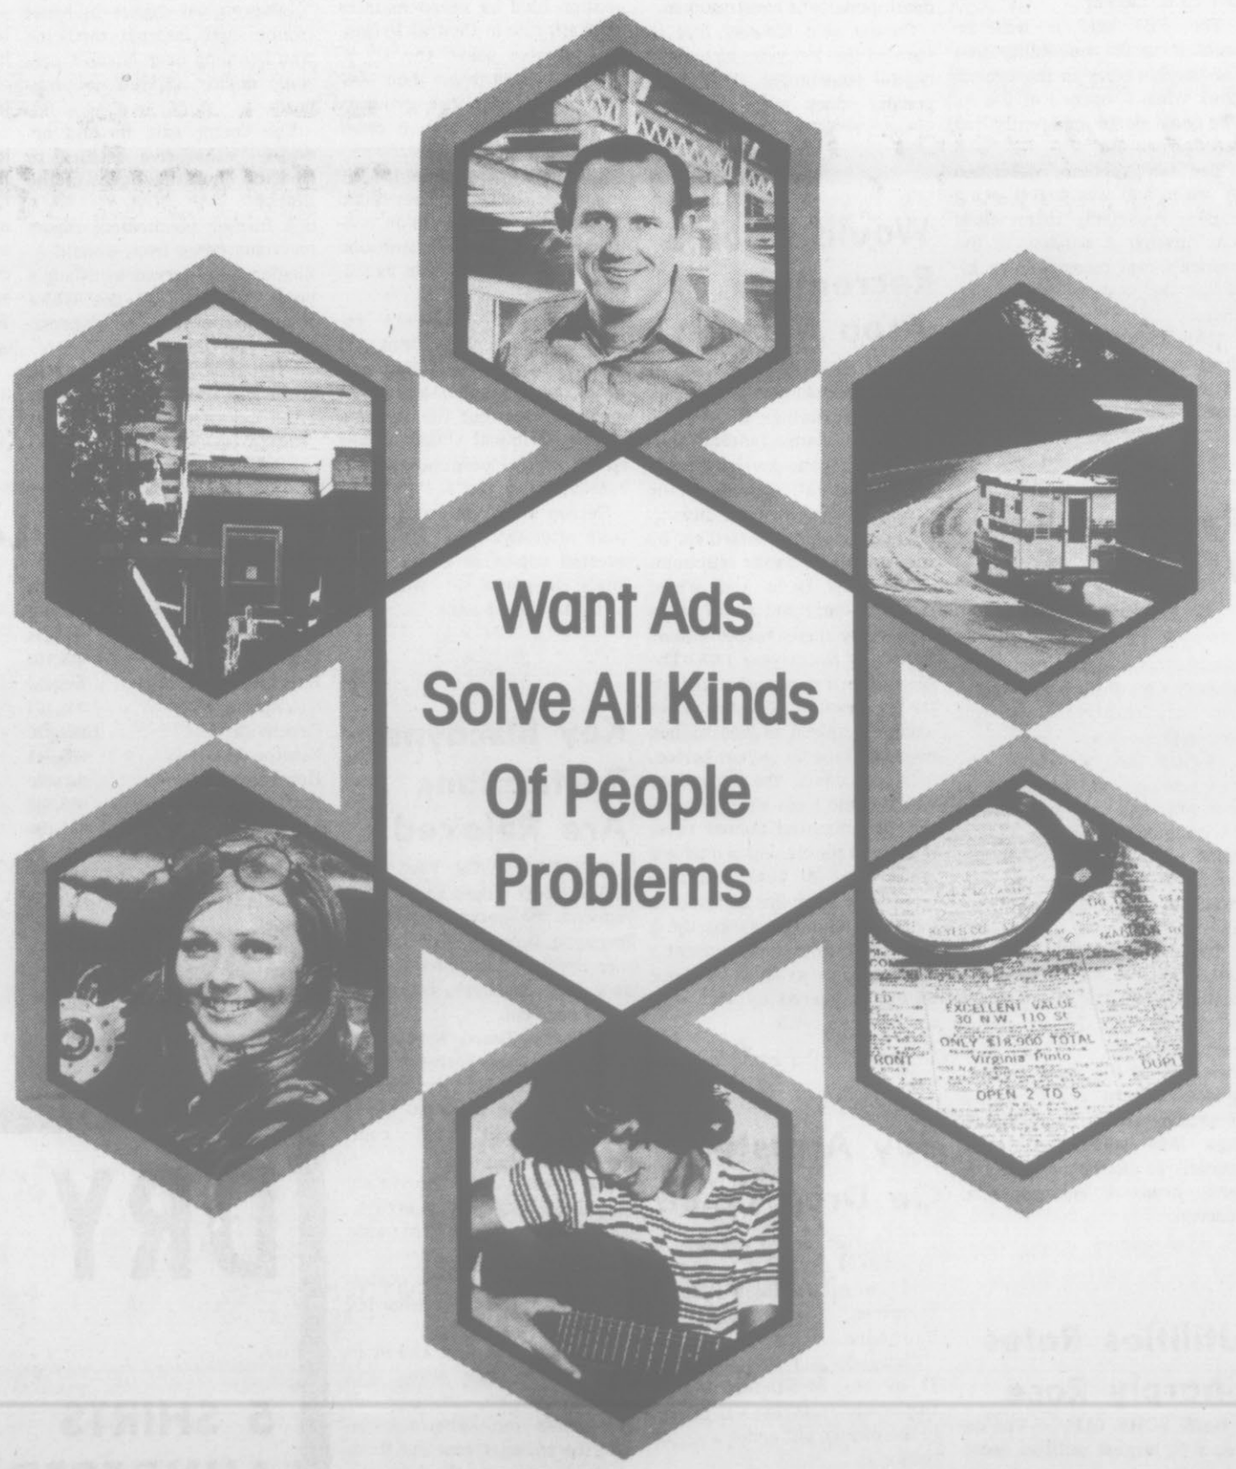

In a talk prepared for delivery to a teachers' meeting at China Grove, the governor said that the new jobs consisted mainly of more teachers and other personnel in schools and colleges, more attendants in mental hospitals, more prison guards and more highway patrolmen.

Holshouser told the teachers, "I make no apologies for providing better patient care in our mental institutions, better controls in our prison system or a more progressive education program that puts more teachers in the classrooms."

After speaking to the teachers, the governor's program called for him to make a People's Tour of Rowan County.

Hostage Of Bank Bandits

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Two armed men held up a First Virginia Bank of Tidewater branch here early today and fled with a woman employe as hostage. Police said the woman later was released, unharmed.

Authorities said the bandits escaped with an unspecified amount of money in the 9 a.m. holdup at the Wards Corner bank branch.

The woman bank employe, identified as Sylvia Satterwhite, 21, was taken by the men in her car, according to police broadcasts.

About an hour later, officers said, Miss Satterwhite turned up safe at Ocean View — apparently let out of the car by her captors. No further details on her release were immediately available.

No one in the bank was injured.

Area police and FBI agents sealed off all main highways and tunnel approach roads in search of the car.

The FBI said it was investigating the possibility that the bandits were in the branch bank when it opened at 9 a.m. The bank alarm apparently had been turned off.

The two robbers, described as white and wearing stocking masks, reportedly threw their loot through a window in the women's rest room into an alley at the rear of the branch office.

Then they climbed through the window and went to Miss Satterwhite's car, parked behind the bank.

Resource Board Meeting Opens

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP)—A two-day meeting of the North Carolina Coastal Resources Commission got underway at Elizabeth City this morning.

During the two days, the commission was scheduled to tour proposed interim areas of environmental concern in the Elizabeth City area including the Great Dismal Swamp, Currituck Sound and several historical sites.

The commission, which was set up by the 1974 General Assembly to regulate development in North Carolina's coastal area, will hear a report from the staff of the state Department of Natural and Economic Resources on six public hearings held along the coast recently to discuss proposed interim areas of environmental concern.

Utilities Rates Sharply Rose

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's 50 largest utilities boosted their rates by an average 55.4 per cent during the first six months of this year, compared with an average 12.4 per cent rise for all of 1973, according to a private study.

National Utilities Services Inc., a group specializing in utility rate analysis, said the companies cited higher operating costs, including the jump in petroleum prices, for the big rate hikes.

Even with the abnormally high rate increases for the first half of the year, many utilities say they still need more funds for expenses and to assure development of future production.

Carson Asks Death Penalty Be Upheld

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina Atty. Gen. James Carson has asked the U.S. Supreme Court to rule that the state's death penalty is constitutional.

Carson said Monday that in view of the 200 year history of capital punishment, "the death penalty does not constitute cruel and unusual punishment in a constitutional sense."

He made the statement in North Carolina's response to a petition filed by seven inmates on death row in Central Prison. The inmates asked the U. S. Supreme Court to set their sentences aside on the grounds that the death penalty is cruel and unsual punishment.

The petitioners were led by Henry N. Jarrette. They cited the Eighth Amendment in contending the U.S. Constitution prohibits any state from executing people.

The attorney general's response, which had been requested by the U. S. Supreme Court, cited the Tenth Amendment in claiming the nation's highest tribunal "had never ruled capital punishment unconstitutional, per se."

Carson said numerous other state attorneys general had requested copies of North Carolina's response in what he termed a "lead case."

Would Double Recreation Area Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee has approved legislation that would more than double federal funds available for the development of outdoor recreation areas and the preservation of historic sites.

Under the bill reported out by the national parks subcommittee, the Land and Water Conservation Fund would be increased by stages to $800 million a year by fiscal year 1978. The $20 million a year authorized for the preservation of historic sites would be raised to $100 million over the same three-year period.

In both cases, the the money would come from nearly $8 billion in estimated annual revenues from the leasing of offshore oil lands. A subcommittee consultant said the decision to increase funding was partly a result of the government's stepped-up program in off-shore leasing triggered by last winter's energy crisis.

Key Biscayne Restrictions Are Relaxed

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — The Coast Guard says it has reduced the security zone on Biscayne Bay in front of former President Richard M. Nixon's Key Biscayne compound by 75 per cent.

A Coast Guard spokesman said Monday the Secret Service has requested boaters still be kept out of an area 475 yards square in front of the compound.

The restrictions previously closed the waters in an area 1,000 yards to sea and 1,200 yards wide.

The Coast Guard will continue to patrol the new restricted area.

The area was first closed to boat traffic after Nixon was elected in 1968, touching off complaints from fishermen who said the security zone cut them off from some of the best sea trout flats in Biscayne Bay.

Boy Arrested On Drug Count

Greenville police arrested a 16-year-old city youth last night and charged him with the felonious possession of marijuana.

Charged was J. Fred Hamblen II of 101 Middleton Place, Greenville. Hamblen was placed in the county jail under a)2,500 bond.

In a separate incident, police arrested Clinton A. Ridenour, 19, of 2704 Tryon Dr. and charged him with terrorizing a citizen with a weapon, according to Police Chief Glenn Cannon. The amount of bond set was not known.

BAN IS LIFTED

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—The new Greek government has lifted the ban on the Communist party for the first time in 38 years and also announced that members of the military dictatorship that quit in late July can run in the elections expected in November.

Key Demo Senator Hopes Public Fears Of Wealth Will Be Eased

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A key Democratic senator says he hopes Nelson A. Rockefeller's confirmation hearings will ease public fears that "big business, big oil and big banks will benefit" from the elevation of the wealthy New Yorker to the vice presidency.

Though such fears may not be totally erased, Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia said in an interview, he thinks the American people should be reassured by "the tremendous experience and knowledge" Rockefeller would bring to the vice presidency.

Both Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., chairman of the Rules Committee, and Byrd, a member of the panel, said they saw little obstacle to confirmation of the former New York governor, based on Monday's opening day of hearings.

Rockefeller returns today for more questioning by the nine Rules Committee members. On Monday they asked Rockefeller about matters ranging from his personal and family finances to his approval of New York's controversial abortion reform law.

The day's questioning lacked the drama and tension of prior events in the vast Senate Caucus Room, such as last summer's Watergate hearings, or the Rules panel's sessions a year ago at which President Ford was approved for the vice presidency.

Even Rockefeller's vast financial holdings underwent few detailed questions as he repeatedly insisted his family's economic power is overrated and that his own acts are not influenced by his financial holdings.

"If I had spent a lifetime abusing economic power I assume I would not be sitting here today," Rockefeller said.

About the only cloud on Rockefeller's generally bright horizon was questioning about his role in a 1972 effort for renegotiating of a controversial Navy contract for F14 fighters being manufactured by the Grumman Aircraft Corp. on New York's Long Island.

Cannon asked Rockefeller about a July 8, 1972, letter to key officials of the Committee for the Re-election of the President, Clark MacGregor and John N. Mitchell, and to White House aide John D. Ehrlichman, and a memo suggesting a phone call to then Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

"As governor of the state of New York, I always tried to represent the best interests of my constituents," Rockefeller said. But he made clear that, as vice president he would do nothing to favor New York over other states.

After the hearing, Cannon said the use of influence in behalf of contracts is something "done every day," adding he only wanted to make sure Rockefeller wouldn't continue to favor New York interests.

Asked the prospects for Rockefeller's confirmation, he said that "outside of that, I see no problem."

Asked if Rockefeller was a shoo-in for confirmation, Byrd replied "I wouldn't say he is a shoo-in. But as of now, he looks good."

Nixon In Hospital For Week Of Treatment

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon, reportedly feeling depressed and fatigued, will be hospitalized at least a week for "extensive tests and treatment" of phlebitis.

His face described as pale, Nixon checked into Memorial Hospital Medical Center of Long Beach through a rear entrance on Monday. The former president's physician, Dr. John C. Lungren, said Nixon would be there for at least seven days.

Lungren refused, however, to provide specifics on the treatment Nixon will receive for the painful ailment which has afflicted his left leg.

General plans call for Nixon to receive anticoagulant drugs in an effort to dissolve two blood clots now resting in the area of his left thigh. Such treatment also is designed to prevent the clots from breaking loose and moving through the blood stream to the lungs or heart, where they could cause death.

Lungren did set down tight ground rules for public information on Nixon's hospitalization: Written reports will be issued at noon each day, and every word will be cleared in advance by the former president.

Lungren told newsmen after Nixon, his wife, Pat, and his youngest daughter, Julie Nixon Eisenhower, slipped into the hospital that he had examined the former president and found "evidence of physical fatigue."

Lungren, an expert in heart trouble and internal medicine who has long been Nixon's personal doctor, offered no prognosis.

The doctor said he had ordered "exhaustive studies to find the causative agent of the illness."

A further nonmedical report on Nixon came from Ronald A. Ziegler, who served as Nixon's press secretary at the White House and is now the ex-president's chief aide.

"The phlebitis and the events of the last 45 days have caused him to not be in good spirits, to at times be low in his frame of mind," Ziegler told newsmen. "His mind, though, is very acute."

Ziegler responded with a flat "No" when asked if Nixon would undergo psychiatric care.

"He feels as anyone would feel after experiencing a great and severe loss," Ziegler said when pressed about Nixon's mental health. "His discussions with me have sometimes been reflective and sometimes directed toward the future."

Ziegler also denied Nixon had entered into the hospital as a means of avoiding both defense and prosecution subpoenas to testify at the Watergate cover-up trial of six former administration and re-election campaign aides. The trial is scheduled to open in Washington on Tuesday.

Ziegler said a report by Dr. Walter Tkach, Nixon's former White House physician, that Nixon feared that if he were hospitalized he would "never come out alive" came during "a period during which the former president was in a lull."

Disorders At Boston School

BOSTON (AP) — About 200 persons protesting court-ordered school busing demonstrated neaf Charlestown High School today and racial disturbances broke out anew at Hyde Park High School.

The white protesters in Charlestown, middle-aged and young, carried placards saying, "Stop forced busing." Police said six persons were arrested and an officer was bitten by a demonstrator.

Uniformed officers were sent inside Hyde Park High today after an unidentified 17-year-old white boy was assaulted by four blacks, police spokesmen said. The school, located in a largely white neighborhood, had been closed Friday because of scattered fighting between blacks and whites.

The youth hurt today was treated at a hospital for an arm injury.

Two boys, a 16-year-old black and a 15-year-old white, were arrested at Hyde Park High in connection with another, unspecified, incident, police said. They were charged with disorderly conduct.

About five blocks away, at the school's Barton Rogers Annex, police said a 15-year-old white girl was bitten on the face in a fight with another girl. She was taken to a hospital for treatment.

The Charlestown protest was dispersed after about 100 officers were sent to the scene, near the historic Bunker Hill Monument. Charlestown High is tentatively scheduled to be integrated in January under terms of a busing plan that a federal court judge has ordered to integrate city schools.

File Suit On Guru's Church

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The Devine Light Mission Inc., church of the Guru Maharaj Ji, has been sued by Astrodome-Astrohall Stadium Corp. which claims the mission owes it $14,500 in unpaid rent.

The corporation claims in the state court suit filed Monday that the church still owes that amount on a promissory note signed Nov. 15, 1973 when the 16-year-old guru and self-proclaimed "perfect master" used the Astrodome for "Millenium 73," a religious festival which was supposed to usher in a reign of peace on earth.

The corporation also seeks interest on the amount plus attorney fees.

Joe Anctil, spokesman for the Denver-based mission, said the church has tried to pay the $14,500 by monthly installments of $3,000. He said the corporation returned a $3,000 check mailed in March.

Trio Of League Games Saturday

Associated Press

Don't laugh, because the Keydets were there a week ago, are now tied for first place with Applachian State's Mountaineers and could regain sole possession by winning Saturday at Davidson over the Wildcats.

There was a time when nobody laughed.

Beginning in 1957, the Keydets won four conference titles in a six-year span that ended in 1962. The closest they've come since then was a tie for second the following year.

Only two league games have been played so far, the Keydets upending Furman's Paladins 7-0 in the opener for both Sept. 14 and Appalachian pinning a 30-0 defeat on Davidson last Saturday.

But there will be three conference scraps this week, starting with the VMI-Davidson encounter Saturday afternoon.

Richmond's Spiders, 2-0 overall, go to The Citadel, 1-1, and William and Mary, 1-2, goes to Furman, 1-1, for Saturday night scraps that count in the league standings. It will be the first conference game for all but Furman.

A pair of Saturday night nonleague encounters have Appalachian, 3-0, at home against Western Carolina and East Carolina's two-time league champion Pirates, 2-0, entertaining Southern Illinois.

The Pirates don't begin their bid for a third successive crown until they go to Furman the night of Oct. 12.

VMI will carry a 1-1 over-all record against Davidson, which made its first start in the loss to Appalachian.

If East Carolina is to be dislodged this year, the most logical candidate is Richmond, which had last week off after beating Villanova 14-13 and upsetting West Virginia 29-25 for the most impressive nonleague victories so far by a conference team.

Just because The Citadel's Bulldogs were bombed 48-12 last Saturday at Delaware, the nation's fifth-ranked small college team, doesn't mean they're going to be easy, says Spider Coach Jim Tait.

"When you start taking any team in this league lightly, you're in trouble," says Tait, even though he admits his own club might be better than people figured before the season began.

By BRENT KALLESTAD
AP Sports Writer

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Baseball's best batsman, Rod Carew of Minnesota, plans to spend a leisurely off-season planning another run at the coveted .400 plateau.

"It can be done," maintained Carew, who has locked up his third straight American League batting championship and his fourth since 1969.

"A guy needs a lot of walks and has to keep his legs strong to run at top speed through an entire season," he explained.

Carew flirted with the .400 mark during the first half of the season before he leveled off around .360.

"You learn a lot more about hitting as you get older," said Carew, who will be 29 on Oct. 1. "I never thought I'd win four batting titles either when I first came into the league."

Carew is proud of his niche in the game.

"Don't underestimate the singles hitters," he said. "Guys like Pete Rose, Greg Gross, Ralph Garr and myself — we have to get on base, or the long ball hitters can't get their RBIs. We keep the game more exciting."

The Twins second baseman ranks among the game's premier bunters and base stealers. Carew has 51 base hits on bunts in the past two seasons and has stolen 80 bases.

Carew would like to score 100 runs in a season — a goal which has somehow evaded him.

Minnesota president Calvin Griffith, who pays his infield star a six-figure salary to mix his numerous line drives to all fields with a sprinkling of bunt hits, said he would not consider a trade involving Carew.

Cagers Set Co-Captains

East Carolina University head basketball coach Dave Patton has announced that his four returning seniors will serve as captains for this coming season.

The four are Robert Geter from Columbia, South Carolina; Donnie Owens from Etoile, Kentucky; Tom Marsh from Bethsesda, Maryland; and Gregg Ashorn from Cincinnati, Ohio.

The Pirates will open the 1974-75 basketball season on November 30, in Raleigh, against the defending National Champions of N.C. State University.

Dempsey's Field Goals Let Eagles Take Win

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Tom Dempsey kicked his way back into the good graces of Philadelphia Eagles' management.

The 27-year-old Dempsey booted two pressure-packed field goals in Monday night's nationally televised game to give the Eagles a 13-10 victory over the Dallas Cowboys.

The Eagles have never said so officially, but there have been strong rumors that the National Football League club wanted to unload the kicker.

Dempsey, as player representative, led the Eagles in the strike against the NFL. He exchanged harsh words with Eagles' owner Len Tose. As a result, he hasn't even signed his 1974 contract.

But all the bitterness was lost in the glow of Dempsey's 33-yard field goal early in the final period that sent the Eagles ahead 10-7. And after Dallas tied it, the gutty kicker with the club foot booted one 45 yards with 25 seconds left to win the game.

Tose rushed up to a bunch of newsmen in the Eagles' dressing room after the comeback triumph, and shouted for all to hear, "Dempsey will sign a contract this week."

The 255-pound Dempsey, from Palomar, Calif., Junior College, is no stranger to being a football hero. He holds the NFL record for longest field goal — a 63-yarder in the final seconds of a 1970 game that gave New Orleans a last-second victory over Detroit.

Dempsey parted company with the Saints prior to the 1971 season, victim of a bulging waist line and a feud with the head coach. He sat at home waiting for somebody to call. The Eagles signed him as a free agent but didn't activate him until the eighth game of the season.

Since then, the 6-foot-1 booter has led the team in scoring, amassing 106 points last season on 34 conversions and 24 field goals. His physical handicap, the club foot and half a right arm — birth defects — never stood in his way as a football player. In 1971, he was honored by the Philadelphia Sports Writers as the Most Courageous Athlete of the Year.

The Cowboys did everything but win the game. Led by quarterback Roger Staubach and running backs Billy Newhouse and Walt Garrison, they amassed 385 yards, rolled up 20 first downs. The Eagles offensively gained 165 yards with five first downs.

Eagles' Coach Mike McCormack summed it nicely when he said "the defense and Tom Dempsey won the game." The coach gave each member of the defense and Dempsey a game ball.

The Eagles' defense gave up yardage everywhere except where it counted most — close to the end zone. And it was the defense that scored the Eagles' only touchdown.

Skiers In Tar Meet

Winners have been announced in the Tar River Open Water Ski Tournament, held Sunday.

Parker Overton of Greenville took first place in the Men's Tricks division, while Keith Stewart of Fremont was second. In the women's division, Marie Fields of Gaston Lake was first, followed by Becky Overton of Greenville.

In the slalom division, Joe Thompson of Wilson won first place in the men's division, followed by Depratt Watson, also of Wilson. Debbie Bradley of Wilson was first among the women, while Marie Fields was second.

Britt Is Winner

Keith Britt of 403 Kirkland Drive, Greenville, took first place in the second of the weekly Daily Reflector Football Contests.

Britt correctly picked the winners in 24 of the 32 games in the upset week.

Second place went to last week's first place winner, Dottie Nisbet, who picked 23 correct winners. She won, however, on the basis of her point guess. Mrs. Nisbet's guess of 77 was the closest to the actual total of 66 scored in Virginia's 38-28 victory over William & Mary.

Two other persons also had 23 games right, but were further off the total.

The third of the weekly contests appears in today's Daily Reflector.

Ohio State Slips By Irish To Lead Poll

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

In extremely close voting, the Buckeyes of Ohio State replaced Notre Dame today as the No. 1-ranked team in The Associated Press college football poll.

Five new teams appeared in the Top Twenty as a result of the weekend's rash of upsets.

Following Saturday's 51-10 rout of Oregon State, Ohio State received 23 first-place votes — three fewer than Notre Dame — and 1,110 of a possible 1,220 points from a nationwide panel of 61 sports writers and broadcasters.

The Fighting Irish of Notre Dame, who walloped Northwestern 49-3, received 26 first-place votes but only 1,104 points.

Oklahoma, idle last weekend, held onto third place with eight first-place ballots and 913 points.

Alabama, fifth a week ago, received the other four No. 1 votes and 896 points and moved up a notch to fourth by battering Southern Mississippi 52-0. Nebraska, last week's No. 4 team, dropped to 10th by losing to Wisconsin 21-20.

Michigan, a 31-0 winner over Colorado, climbed from sixth to fifth with 756 points. Texas defeated Wyoming 34-7 and rose from ninth to sixth with 588 points.

Last week's 7-8 teams, Louisiana State and Penn State, were upset by Texas A&M 21-14 and Navy 7-6 and skidded to 17th and 19th, respectively. Arizona State trounced Texas Christian 37-7 and jumped from 11th to seventh. Pitt shot from a tie for 15th to eighth with a 27-17 triumph over Georgia Tech. Texas A&M, a newcomer to the rankings, zoomed all the way to ninth by beating LSU. Nebraska rounded out the Top Ten.

The Second Ten consists of Wisconsin, Oklahoma State, North Carolina State, Tennessee, Arizona, Illinois, Louisiana State, Southern California, Penn State and Miami of Florida.

Wisconsin made it by edging Nebraska. Oklahoma State knocked off Arkansas 26-7 one week after the Razorbacks upset Southern Cal. Illinois thrashed Sanford 41-7 and Miami stunned Houston 20-3.

One member of the panel called this week's voting the toughest he's ever had to do.

The Top Twenty, with first-place votes in parentheses, season record and total points. Points tabulated on basis of 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1:

1. Ohio St. (23)	2-0-0	1,110
2. N. Dame (26)	2-0-0	1,104
3. Oklahoma (8)	1-0-0	913

Three Are Nominated

Three East Carolina University football players have been nominated for play in the Golden Anniversary Shrine East-West Football Classic on December 28 at Stanford Stadium.

All-American Linebacker candidate Danny Kepley, along with defensive tackles Buddy Lowery and Kenny Moore have been selected to be considered very strongly for play in this year's Classic. All three are seniors, and members of the Pirate's famed "Wild Dog" defensive unit.

Each player is a native North Carolinian, with Kepley from Goldsboro, Lowery from East Spencer, and Moore from Harrells.

All three are seniors and have helped East Carolina to win two consecutive Southern Conference Championships, and the three are trying to make that three championships in a row this season.

DUNKEL COLLEGE FOOTBALL INDEX

GAMES OF WEEK ENDING SEPT. 29, 1974

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

Athletic Director Is Behind Randle Efforts

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Hanging out the college football wash:

GROD has won out.

GROD stands for Get Rid Of Dietzel, a campaign of attack that's been going on for a couple of years, and Paul Dietzel finally packed it in following South Carolina's 20-14 loss to Duke Saturday night.

Dietzel, in his ninth year at South Carolina, said he will step down as head football coach at the end of the season but wants to remain as athletic director.

Under Dietzel, who won a national championship at Louisiana State in 1958 and later coached at Army, the Gamecocks have compiled a 38-46-1 record with only two winning seasons.

Another coach with problems is Virginia's Sonny Randle, who was criticized last week by several players who quit the squad, saying Randle placed football over academics. The coach was supported by Gene Corrigan, Virginia's athletic director.

"It is impossible for anyone close to Coach Randle not to believe that football is extremely important to him," Corrigan said. "He has, indeed, been hired to bring success to a program which has not had much success during the past 20 years.

"His personal intensity to achieve this goal at his alma mater is to me understandable and I am completely supportive of his efforts. With regard to the academic side of life, it has always been our intention that this is our primary responsibility to the student-athlete.

"It is accurate to say that emphasis on football has been strengthened at the university, but we do not intend for that to interfere with the choice of academic programs by members of our teams."

As if one Griffin wasn't bad enough for Ohio State's opponents, now there are two.

No. 1, of course, is Archie, who gained 100 yards for the 13th consecutive game by rambling for 134 against Oregon State, including a 19-yard touchdown in the first period.

Younger brother Ray, a freshman, made his varsity debut later in the 51-10 rout and scored twice on runs of nine and 12 yards.

Ray's touchdowns really got Archie excited and he ran on the field both times to congratulate his little brother.

Larry Martinez, a third-string tailback at the start of the season, has scored all six touchdowns in Duke's first two games. Martinez carried 36 times for 199 yards and three touchdowns against South Carolina. The 199 yards is the fourth best performance in Duke history.

The previous week, Martinez scored three times in a loss to North Carolina State.

Oklahoma State's Abby Daigle, who set a school record by booting four field goals against Arkansas, was overlooked in high school at Vidor, Tex., because the team went 0-10 in his senior year and he didn't have a chance to kick until the sixth game of the season.

Daigle was all set to enroll at a junior college when Oklahoma State expressed interest late last summer.

North Carolina State's Lou Holtz says his team overcame his own "bonehead plays" in beating Clemson 31-10. Holtz said he "should have been kicked out of the stadium" for calling an unsuccessful try for a first down on a fourth-and-five situation and then neglecting to try for a two-point conversion when State took an 8-7 lead.

A coach who did not gamble was Georgia Tech's Pepper Rodgers. Trailing 20-14 against Pitt—in a game Tech eventually lost 27-17—Rodgers opted for a 33-yard field goal on fourth-and-four. It was good, but someone asked Rodgers why he didn't go for broke.

Rodgers said he took the field goal "because I've seen the pros do it on television on Sunday. Besides, if you could make fourth-and-four every time, you would win all the time."

Holy Cross must have had some kind of offense in routing Brown 45-10, right?

Guess again! The Crusaders managed all of five—count 'em...1, 2, 3, 4, 5—first downs, 127 yards rushing and a mere 36 yards passing. But they scored once by recovering a blocked punt in the end zone and twice on punt returns of 59 and 85 yards by John Provost, who also intercepted four passes.

Now that battering-ram Roosevelt Leaks has returned to the Texas line-up—at halfback—Coach Darrell Royal was asked how he plans to handle Leaks and freshman sensation Earl Campbell, the new fullback.

"Well," said Royal, "I'm gonna say 'Yes, sir' and 'No, sir' a lot."

West Point is another place where they say "Sir" quite a bit.

"You have to be respectful when arguing with an official," says Army Coach Homer Smith. "I usually say, 'Sir, are we watching the same game?'"

Steve Belichick, a member of Navy's staff who has been scouting Army almost every week for years, was discovered on the Cadets' practice field last Friday.

"I didn't let him on, I found him there," Smith reported. "It gave us a little chance to, uh, talk. Yes, we've let him go, but his voice is a little higher."

It was, as Pittsburgh Manager Danny Murtaugh put it, "a bang-bang play." And it shot down St. Louis' chance to nail the Pirates.

Lou Brock, having just stolen his 115th base of the year, was on second in the eighth inning. Then he tried for No. 116.

But it was Brock who got nailed instead, Manny Sanguillen gunning him down with a perfect throw to Richie Hebner.

It was an especially costly attempt at larceny when, a moment later, Ted Sizemore Singled. Brock would have scored — had he still been on second. Instead, it was just a meaningless hit for the Cardinals in a still scoreless game.

Scoreless until the 10th inning, that is, when Hebner singled to give the Pirates a 1-0 victory that moved them within a scant half-game of the first-place Cards in the frenetic National League East race.

In the less-heated West Division, the Los Angeles Dodgers reduced their flag-clinching "magic number" to four by beating the Atlanta Braves 4-3 and widening their margin over fading Cincinnati to five games.

In the only American League action — not involving pennant contenders — the Milwaukee Brewers beat Cleveland 6-2 in the first game of a twinight doubleheader before the Indians bounced back for a split with a 7-4 triumph.

Jim Rooker, 14-11, pitched nine innings of shutout ball for the Pirates and got the victory when Dave Giusti chalked up his 12th save of the year.

Dodgers 4, Braves 3

Sutton, 18-9, who singled and doubled to drive in two Los Angeles runs, was chased after giving up a single to Craig Robinson, a triple to Ralph Garr and a home run to Rowland Office.

Bill Buckner collected a double and three singles, drove in one run, scored one and took a homer away from Dusty Baker in the fourth inning when he leaped high to spear the drive, his glove clearly over the top of the left field wall.

Brewers 6-4, Indians 2-7

While the battles went on for the top of the divisions in the National League, the all-but-overlooked struggle continued in the middle of the American League East with Milwaukee and Cleveland vying for fourth place.

Milwaukee won the opener with four runs in the ninth inning, two on Tim Johnson's tie-breaking double. Two-run homers by Charlie Spikes and Leron Lee led the Indians to victory in the nightcap, leaving the Brewers within half a game of the Indians.

Eastern Race Is Still Hot

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

As the weather turns cool in the East, the pennant race is hotter than ever in the American League.

September is fading slowly — like the Boston Red Sox — and with October waiting in the wings, the New York Yankees and Baltimore Orioles are packing their heavy clothes ... just in case there's baseball to be played after the regular season ends.

The Yankees had to pack anyway. After Wednesday's night game closes a three-game series against the Red Sox, they'll have their final five games in enemy ballparks. If New York Manager Bill Virdon gets his wish, they'll win those contests and the packing will start in earnest.

As it stands now, the Yanks need win only one more than the Orioles, whom they lead by a game in the East Division.

It's four more games back to the Red Sox, who speak of supernature when they refer to division title hopes.

"We're going to have to perform a miracle now," said Manager Darrell Johnson, whose Red Sox were seven games ahead just a month ago before losing 21 of 29 starts.

If help from the heavens is to come, Boston will need it starting tonight, when they face the leading Yankees in a twi-night doubleheader. All three East contenders had Monday off.

The Orioles, winners of 20 in their last 26 games, don't plan to accomodate Boston by losing. They face the Detroit Tigers tonight, with Birds' Manager Earl Weaver also looking to other clubs for assistance in unseating the New Yorkers.

"Maybe we can get some help when the Yankees visit Cleveland for three more games (later in the week)," Weaver said. He added, though, that "it won't be easy for anybody from now on."

Rose 3rd In Meet

ROCKY MOUNT—Rocky Mount High School took first place in a tri-meet held on its cross-country course yesterday, just nipping Northern Nash and Rose.

The Gryphons finsished with 40 points, while Northern Nash was just one back with 41. Rose finished third with a total of 43.

Lee Toler of Rocky Mount finished with the best time, completing the circuit in 12:32. Art Klose of Rose was second, turning a time of 12:38.

Rose, however, didn't place another man until eighth place, and that cost them.

Rounding out the top ten finishers were: R. Miller (NN), 12:43; M. Avent (RM) 12:49; J. Jones (NN) 12:55; W. Gray (RM) 13:04; R. Harris (NN) 13:11; Marvin Roberson (R) 13:37; Melvin Roberson (R) 13:41; and R. Privot; (RM) 13:48.

Other Rose finishers were Jimmy Peszko, 11th in 13:50; Ricky Reese, 13th in 14:08; Jimmy Davis, 17th in 14:39; and Ernest Stein, 18th in 15:17.

The Rampants and Rocky Mount both travel to Wilson on Thursday.

R. Rapids Tops Tigers

ROANOKE RAPIDS—Roanoke Rapids handed the girls' tennis team of Williamston High School its first defeat of the year yesterday, a 5-4 decision.

The match wasn't decided until the final doubles match, captured by Roanoke Rapids in a tight 8-6 set.

The defeat knocked the Williamston record to 3-1 overall and 2-1 within the Northeastern Conference.

The Tigerettes will play host to Ahoskie on Wednesday.

Summary:

Cav Lineman Gets Honor

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — For the second straight week, Virginia's standout wide receiver, Ken Shelton, has been picked as the offensive lineman of the week in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Sharing offensive honors with the Cavalier star is Duke tailback Larry Martinez, who was chosen back of the week for his performance in the Blue Devils' 21-14 victory over South Carolina.

The selections were made by a committee of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association.

Shelton, a senior from Standarsville, Va., was picked last week for his play in Virginia's 35-28 loss to Navy, and this week was chosen on the basis of his performance in a 38-28 triumph over William and Mary.

In each contest he caught three touchdown passes and now has six for the season, only two shy of the ACC record for touchdown passes caught in a single season.

Shelton had nine catches for a record 241 yards in the William and Mary game. The old ACC record was 209 yards on 13 catches by Henly Carter of Duke in 1968. The Virginia star now has 17 catches for 346 yards in two games.

Martinez, a third-stringer at the start of the season, scored three times and rushed for 199 yards on 36 carries against South Carolina. He has scored all six of the Blue Devil touchdowns in two games.

Against South Carolina, he had a key 30-yard run on a third and nine situation on the Blue Devils' second scoring drive, and carried the ball six out of seven times on the gamewinning 41-yard drive. Martinez scored on runs of one, eight and two yards.

Earlier, Duke back Jeff Christopher and North Carolina lineman Ronnie Robinson were picked as the defensive players of the week.

Christopher intercepted two passes, returning one for 21 yards to set up Duke's tying touchdown in the third period. He also led the Blue Devil secondary in tackles with nine solos and four assists.

Robinson had a big day at middle guard. He was in on 12 tackles and twice got to the opposing quarterback in the Tar Heels' 30-0 win over Wake Forest.

Robinson and the rest of his teammates will find out just how good they are this weekend when they take on Maryland in a regionally televised encounter at College Park, Md.

North Carolina has won its first two games, while Maryland has lost twice. The Terps were picked as the pre-season favorites to capture the ACC title, and North Carolina will be their first conference test.

Tar Heel guard Ken Huff says the players will have a little extra incentive, since many of them come from the Virginia-Maryland area.

In other games this weekend, Virginia is at Duke, North Carolina State travels to Syracuse, Clemson hosts Georgia Tech and Wake Forest has an open date.

Cale Is Closing

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Cale Yarborough, with his victory in Sunday's Wilkes 400, narrowed the gap in his bid to overtake Richard Petty for the 1974 championship of the National Association For Stock Car Auto Racing.

Yarborough drove a Chevrolet to his 10th victory of the season at North Wilkesboro, N.C., and boosted his point total to 3,525.600.

Petty, the four-time national champion, finished second in a Dodge and leads with 4,017.390 points.

Four races remain to decide the title.

Petty, also with 10 victories for the year, retained the money earning lead with $236,990. Yarborough, having his best year in earnings, has won $211,213.

David Pearson, with 1,512.800 points was third, and Bobby Allison with 1,355.400 was fourth.

Rounding out the top 10 in the point standings were Benny Parsons 1,279.200; Dave Marcis 1,044.550; Cecil Gordon 777.790; David Sisco 717.600; J.D. McDuffie 687.440, and James Hylton 668.000.

To Increase The Seating

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Developer Fred Godley, Jr., has offered to expand the capacity of Charlotte's Memorial Stadium from 23,000 seats to an arena that could seat 60,000 to make it more attractive to a professional football franchise.

Godley said Monday his company would put up $4.2 million to expand the stadium and construct a parking deck, and then would lease both to the city.

He made his proposal in a conference with Mayor John Belk, who indicated he'd rather have a new stadium.

Godley said he could have the expanded stadium ready for the 1975 football season, if he wins quick approval from city council.

Charlotte has been under consideration as a new site for the Detroit Wheels and possibly other teams of the World Football League.

Turn Lilliston loose on your peanut crop—
Count on the highest possible harvest returns

Lilliston 1500 Peanut Combine

It has been called as near perfect a machine as ever built. Few implements of any kind anywhere have been as effective, as versatile, as dependable as the Lilliston 1500. That's why there are far more of them picking the world's peanuts than any other combine made.

Sixty-four years of peanut production experience are squarely behind this world-famous Combine. Proof enough that it will pick better, work more dependably, last longer and trade higher—a combination that can only build bigger profits for you.

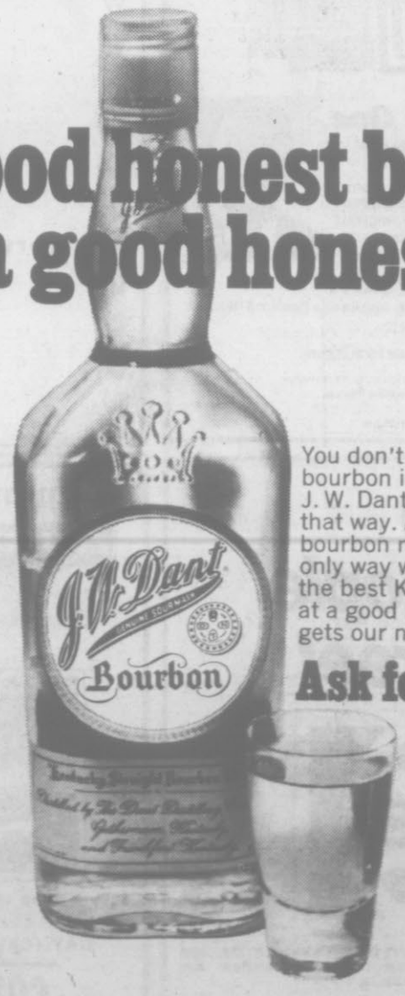

Lilliston 6000 Hi-Cap Peanut Combine

Here is a completely new dimension in peanut combining, a working concept that goes far beyond anything else operating in peanuts today. The capacity of the Hi-Cap 6000 is massive. In many conditions the 6000 will harvest at twice the speeds of conventional units.

Besides being engineered for greater harvesting capacity, the Hi-Cap lowers pod damage and produces superior cleaning. This is the big one—the super harvester—first, fast and in all ways superior to any other harvester in the field.

Turbulence, Pressure In Today's Soap Opera Plot

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A soap opera called "Love of Life" starts its 24th year on CBS today, having given viewers more than 5,900 daily crises to brood about since it first aired on TV on Sept. 24, 1951.

That's a record for televised weeping and gnashing of teeth. Producer Jean Arley did some teeth-gnashing of her own when asked to describe the show for those who work days and never see it. Like me.

"A capsule description?" she retorted. "Well, the story flows around Vanessa and Bruce Sterling in a town called Rosefield.

"There's so much going on — 'Sturm und Drang' kind of things," she said, meaning turbulance and pressure. "I don't know how you'd ever capsulize something like that."

The lead characters, portrayed by Audrey Peters and Ron Tomme, are a childless, middle-aged couple, she said. Bruce publishes the Rosefield Herald and Vanessa is a housewife who dabbles in real estate.

Life was quite innocent when they began on TV. Nowadays any soap opera worth its suds is "relevant," meaning abortion, adultery, Lesbiansim and crying without a license are dealt with forthrightly.

"We've come a long way and we're very frank now," Miss Arley says. "We've even had a story lately about a couple whose sex life went awry after a number of years and there was a sex therapy situation. Which is a big step from what it used to be."

Miss Arley said the show's writers have a rough idea of which way the over-all plot is headed as much as two years in advance.

"It's kind of a bare outline," she said. "We have a basic 13-week cycle, and that's broken down into weekly situations." She said a given crisis or subcrisis isn't necessarily resolved in a given time.

"It may not be resolved for a year, or it can wind up in two weeks," she explained. "It depends. Right now, we're dealing with corruption, a corrupt mayor. It's been on the last six months."

Do viewers gripe much about boudoir hanky-panky?

"Sometimes very strongly," she said. "They think it's immoral or they say, 'Hooray!' You can get two sides. I think it depends sometimes on age or loyalty to a character with whom viewers identify."

Soap opera plots are more complex than the federal budget. But Miss Arley said her show's daily story powwows keep the authors from writing characters into boxes from which there's no escape.

"I worry about everything, all the time," she laughed. "You just hope you're doing the best possible job and that people are watching."

'Thunderbolt' Tale Kept Alive

By WILLIAM POOLE

BROOKLINE, Vt. (UPI) — To this backroad Vermont town of less than 200 residents the names of the early 19th century Scottish highwaymen, "Thunderbolt" and "Lightfoot," sound out of place.

But an unusual old school house and more than a century of rumors and local gossip have kept the legend of the colorful criminals alive.

In 1822, when John Wilson taught Brookline children for one year in the round, brick school house he personally designed, townspeople had no idea he was the infamous "Thunderbolt," a highwayman banished from Scotland.

No one knows when Wilson came to town. only the story of Wilson's partner in crime, Michael "Lightfoot" Martin, throws first light on the legend.

Martin came to this country from Scotland in 1819, with the official warning that he must avoid all association with Wilson. However, "Lightfoot" Martin was apparently unable to abandon his old ways and in 1821 he was convicted of a high crime and was hanged in Cambridge. Mass. But before he went to the gallows he revealed that Wilson was his old partner, 'Thunderbolt."

News didn't travel fast in those days and there is no indication the Brookline locals found out that the man they had entrusted with the education of their children was in fact a former criminal. They knew him only as the a well-educated man, capable of designing what is said to be the only round school house in the United States.

Wilson left Brookline, after only a year, and moved too nearby Dummerston, where it is said he built another, but more conventional, school. Later he moved to another neighboring town, Newfane, where he established himself as a medical doctor.

In 1836 he moved to Brattleboro where more of the secrecy surrounding him dissolved. Local historians link his divorce from a Brattleboro woman to Mrs. Wilson's discovery of his true identity. Scars around Wilson's neck, wrists and ankles, possibly from prison chains and perhaps even from an escape from the gallows probably led to the revelation of his secret past.

Wilson died in 1847 at the age of 58 and is buried in Brattleboro's Morningside Cemetery. Some momentoes of his life of crime still survive, such as pistols and a wooden support worn inside one of his boots to prevent a limp apparently caused by a wound.

What serves, however, as the true monument to the legend of Dr. John "Thunderbolt" Wilson is Brookline's old round school now used as a library and meeting place for community groups. The tales told inside the old building when such groups as the 17-member Ladies Benevolent Society meet help keep the legend alive.

At quilting parties and other events the story of "Thunderbolt" is told over again, with its details recounted as vividly as if they had happened just yesterday.

4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♥.

As declarer, you should never assume that you cannot make your contract. If the situation seems hopeless, try to work out a reasonable lie of cards that will permit you to win through, and then play on the assumption that that distribution exists. If doubled, however, exercise care that you do not unduly increase the penalty with a line that stands little chance of success.

With an opening bid facing an opening bid, North-South reached a reasonable four spade contract. South realized that his king of clubs was perhaps worthless in view of West's overcall, but he decided he was not going to mastermind the situation and pass his partner's forcing call. He therefore made the minimum bid possible, simply continuing to game.

Since West did not want to lead from his club tenace, he attacked with the queen of hearts, getting his side off to a good start. When dummy came down, declarer saw that the contract was in jeopardy. He had two heart losers and, with the ace of clubs marked in West's hand, two club losers. However, a study of the position revealed a slight chance . The opening lead placed the king of hearts in East's hand, which suggested that West held the queen of clubs in addition to the ace for his overcall. If he also held only two hearts, declarer realized that he would be able to set up the king of clubs for a heart discard from dummy.

The initial step in declarer's campaign was to allow the queen of hearts to hold the first trick. The heart continuation was taken with the ace, trumps were drawn in two rounds ending in the closed hand, and a low club was led toward the jack. West went in with the queen and shifted to a diamond, but declarer was in control. He won the ace of diamonds and played the jack of clubs, forcing the ace. The king was now set up for a heart discard, and declarer claimed the rest of the tricks.

Note that declarer can make his contract even if East plays the king of hearts to the first trick. Now declarer must hope that West started with queen-jack bare in hearts. He wins the ace of hearts, draw trumps and continues in the same way. As the cards lie, East cannot gain the lead to cash the defender's second heart trick.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1974

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Don't make changes or see molehills as mountains in a.m. Later you can get into the swim of events and can achieve much that is modern and up-to-date. Enjoy amusements with friends in p.m.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Follow every law that applies to you, especially during the a.m. Join good friends later in the day. Handle credit matters wisely.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Relegate new interests to afternoon since the a.m. may be unfavorable for such. Do marketing early. Plan civic matters in a.m., also.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Meet obligations early in the day, then discuss mutual plans for the future with associates and bigwigs. Be progressive.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Find out just what your true position is with regular associates, and then handle your share of work conscientiously.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Tackle work in a.m. instead of grumbling about it so you can reap the benefits thereof. Improve health. Have fun tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Do the work connected with creative talents. Forget recreation which could be disappointing and concentrate on work. Make this a banner day.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Avoid arguments at home and maintain harmony, enjoy amusements. Reconcile with some outsider since it could improve your financial status. Sociable p.m.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't take any risks early, then the p.m. can prove to be happy, constructive. Watch wallet while shopping. Keep alert.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You feel lack during the early part of the day, but later you get a brainstorm, or friends help you increase income.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Daytime not good for the social. but the p.m. is excellent. Go to the beauty or barber shop so you are at your best in evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan future better in a.m. hours. During the p.m. you can delight others so you become most popular and unforgettable. Make a fine impression.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) In a.m. others are touchy, so do not criticize. An aim difficult to gain in a.m. becomes especially easy to achieve after lunch.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she can solve difficult problems and be ahead of others even from early childhood, so give a fine college education and permit to study various philosophies of life. Then there can even be fame in this chart as well as much success from the financial standpoint. More than average care must be given to the health and diet, since the mind here is very active.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

VEPCO Says It Must Have Full $123 Million

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Virginia's attorney general says the Virginia Electric & Power Co. should be awarded $82 million of the emergency rate increase it is seeking, but the utility says it must have the full $123.7 million.

Both Atty. Gen. Andrew P. Miller and Vepco filed briefs Monday with the State Corporation Commission expressing their views.

The attorney general urged the commission to find that the low rates paid to Vepco by state and local governments has had a lot to do with the utility's current financial difficulties.

Under state law, Vepco is permitted to negotiate directly with the state and localities on utility rates.

The current rates, which are tied to contracts executed in the past, result in Vepco selling power to the governments at a price lower than it costs to produce it, Vepco said during hearings last week on its rate request last week. Vepco has estimated if the governmental bodies were paying regular rates the company would realize an additional $27 million annually.

Miller urged the SCC to recommend that the next General Assembly pass legislation banning the negotiated rates.

The attorney general also urged the commission to order a temporary halt to Vepco's construction of nuclear units No. 4 at North Anna power station and Nos. 3 and 4 at the utility's Surry power station, and a halt to the Bath County hydroelectric power plant.

"In essence, the attorney general suggests that half a loaf will do." Vepco said in its brief. "He is wrong. the whole loaf is a necessity. Without it, the company will of necessity fail to meet its public service obligation... It is hard to believe that the commission will also accept this awesome responsibility."

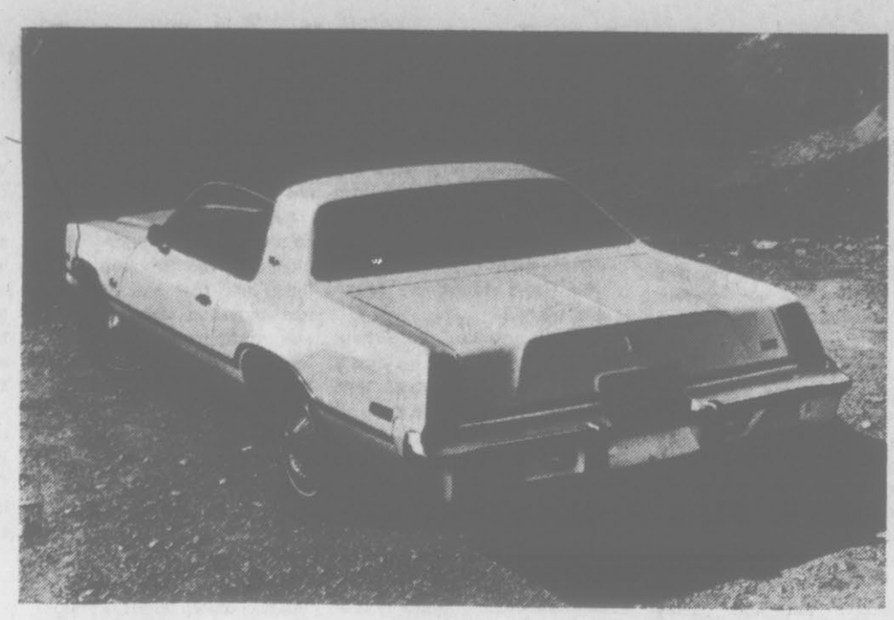

Vepco's brief said that Miller's position that additional construction should be postponed "is a dangerous one."

The company reiterated its position that the full rate increase was necessary in order to increase the company's earnings to a point that would generate investor interest in Vepco stocks and bonds.

That would permit the Vepco to raise capital to continue its construction program that is pegged heavily on atomic power, the utility said.

Vepco labeled as invalid Miller's contention that the legislature should enact a law requiring the state and localities to pay their fair share and that the commission should reduce the emergency rate request by that amount.

The company's brief said that while negotiations currently are under way with the governments there is no certainty they will agree and there is even less certainty that the legislators will take remedial action. "And on either count, the relief, if it comes, is a year off," the brief said. "The company needs the full amount requested now and not a year from now."

Japan Awaits Terror Attack

By STEVE WILSON
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — Fear is growing that Japan's elusive underground radicals may be ready to resume a terror-bombing campaign, with Japan's biggest companies their main targets.

The bomb explosion which killed eight people and injured more than 300 on Aug. 30 in Tokyo was the first overt indication the radicals again may be going on the offensive here.

The Japanese gunmen's takeover of the French Embassy in the Hague last week has intensified these fears and further demonstrated the skill and dedication of the Japanese radicals such as the Red Army members.

Police say Japanese leftists have even published a textbook on how to make bombs, entitled "Poem of Roses."

The nation has a long history of political violence. Its present crop of terrorists has baffled police, and probably are causing concern for officials planning President Gerald Ford's scheduled visit to Tokyo in November.

A number of important business sources say they received discreet warning from officials this summer that another wave of terrorism might be expected.

"At the time we laughed and didn't take it seriously," said an employe of a big bank recalling a warning sent to employes to be on guard for bombs and the like.

"No one is laughing now," he declared after last month's blast at the Mitsuibishi Heavy Industries building, Japan's largest defense contractor.

The explosion "did not come as an utter surprise," declared an executive for one of Japan's major companies. "We had received a warning that some big corporations may be bombed."

The motive behind most of the terrorist acts in Japan seems to be to strike at symbols of authority and power, such as police, railroads and the nation's business elite.

Radicals used bamboo staves for weapons in the late 1960s. But as they were driven underground by the usually efficient Japanese police, many have taken up other weapons, particularly bombs.

"Bomb cases have increased (since 1970), but we are not sure how these incidents are connected with each other," a police official said in an interview.

He said there were 175 cases in 1970 where bombs were planted, 272 cases in 1971, 183 cases in 1972 and 238 cases last year, killing 11 people in four years.

Most of the bombs in the past have been put around police stations or railroad terminals, often in vacant spots where they caused a few serious injuries. Beginning in 1973 there seemed to be a tendency to put them where they would do more damage, the police spokesman said. But, only two people were killed last year, although 575 people were injured.

The police source said officers do not know why there was only one bombing in the first part of this year. In fact, he confessed that the "police don't have any definite information on the radicals' operations in Japan."

City's 2nd Burn Victim

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—A 38-year-old Charlotte woman was still in critical condition today from burns suffered Monday when she doused herself with charcoal lighter fluid and set herself afire.

Mrs. Kay Hooks was admitted to Charlotte Memorial Hospital with burns over 68 per cent of her body, a hospital spokesman said.

It was the second such incident in Charlotte in less than a week.

Last Thursday, Mrs. Bette Moore, 43, the estranged wife of state Sen. Herman Moore, telephoned her intentions to a local radio station before igniting her body.

Mrs. Moore, who also poured lighter fluid over herself, was in unsatisfactory condition at Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Hooks' husband, William Hooks, told police he found his wife early Monday morning running through their mobile home. She was on fire.

Officers said matches and a note were found in the kitchen.

Cher Bono Will Have Own Show

NEW YORK (AP) — Cher Bono, whose "Sonny and Cher" television show and her marriage ended almost in the same stroke, will star in her own weekly variety series next fall.

A CBS spokesman announced Monday that Cher has been signed to a contract for a one-hour special in February and a regular variety show starting in the fall of 1975. Contract details weren't made public.

CBS canceled the "Sonny and Cher" show last spring after Cher's marriage to Sonny Bono broke up. Her former husband already has his own variety show, which premiered last Saturday on ABC.

PEDESTRIAN GETS WARNING — Highway Patrolman S. F. Padgett issues warning ticket to pedestrian near Farmville found hitch-hiking while standing on the paved portion of U.S. 264 East of the town and walking on the wrong side of the highway. The Highway Patrol last week began an intensified program designed to promote pedestrian safety which includes issuing pedestrian warning tickets to walkers in all cases where citations are not issued. Letters will be sent to the parents of juveniles found in unsafe pedestrian activities, informing them of their youngsters activities and asking them to talk with their children about pedestrian safety. Ted Kennedy Triggers Crowds

By BILL STALL
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)—If happy days were here again for Democrats, the euphoria didn't exactly bubble over at the Hollywood Palladium the other night—not until Ted Kennedy strode on stage.

While the state candidates droned through their speeches, many of the 2,000 party faithful fidgeted in their seats or strolled to the lobby for another beer.

Entertainers Steve Allen and Lorne Greene tried gamely to whip up enthusiasm at the "Old-Fashioned Political Rally," admission $7.50 each.

Then the 42-year-old senator from Massachusetts appeared to the tune of "Happy Days Are Here Again," the old refrain inevitably played at such gatherings of Democrats, in good times or bad.

Edward M. Kennedy gazed through the spotlights. A grin crossed his face and with the familiar intonation of the Kennedy voice, he brought the rally to life:

"I want to tell you, it's great to be back in California. And it has nothing to do with the fact that California has 45 electoral votes in the next presidential election."

That triggered cheers and applause that have been missing from California politics this year.

Money is tight for both parties, and fund-raising was the chief reason Kennedy came. But Democrats have reason to be optimistic.

Edmund G. Brown Jr., 36, is leading the polls for the governorship held for eight years by Republican Ronald Reagan, who won it from Brown's father. "One thing I always object to is for a young fellow to run on a famous name," Kennedy joked.

Sen. Alan Cranston is considered almost a cinch for a second term. Prospects are good for picking up congressional and legislative seats.

But it has been a ho-hum campaign. The rekindling of the old Kennedy mystique in California a week ago momentarily pulled it out of the dol-drums.

After the Palladium rally, state party chairman John L. Burton, a Congressman from San Francisco, said: "Until he came in, it seemed that everyone was asleep."

The California trip was Kennedy's first major outing in the 1974 campaign. He was accompanied by national political reporters looking for signs of a 1976 presidential bid.

Burton said Congressional district fund-raising in San Jos, Monterey and Concord exceeded expectations.

San Jose Mayor Norman Mineta, a congressional-candidate beneficiary of the Kennedy trip, said: "Just the charismatic appeal of Sen. Kennedy as an individual brings people out."

Charley Weaver Is Dead At 68

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cliff Arquette, the chuckling, grandfatherly Charley Weaver who made millions laugh with his homespun letters from Mt. Idy, is dead at 68.

The veteran comedian died on Monday at St. Joseph's Medical Center in suburban Burbank. He had been taken there Saturday night after complaining of chest pains.

In April 1972, Arquette suffered an apparent heart attack in his car. Later that year he suffered a stroke.

Arquette was the second veteran character actor to die within three days. Academy-award winner Walter Brennan died of emphysema on Saturday in an Oxnard, Calif., hospital at 80.

As the cuddly Charley Weaver, Arquette appeared in rolled-up shirtsleeves, suspenders, crooked tie and floppy hat. With his wire-rimmed glasses slipped to the end of his nose, he told homespun stories about life back home in fictitious Mt. Idy.

Arquette introduced the television character — whom he called a "rube" and "dirty old man" — in 1953 on the Dennis Day show.

As Weaver, Arquette appeared on numerous TV talk shows, beginning several years ago on Jack Paar's "Tonight" show. He was a regular on NBC's "Hollywood Squares" game show since its inception in 1966.

Born Dec. 28, 1905, in Toledo, Ohio, Arquette quit school at 14 and entered show business. For the next three years he played in a band at Cleveland's Euclic Beach, then went into vaudeville.

Arquette did his first radio network show with Fred Astaire and Charlie Butterworth and later worked with Burns and Allen and Rudy Vallee.

He is survived by a son, Lewis of Chicago, and a brother, Russ of San Francisco.

Funeral arrangements were pending.

GROWING YOUNGER

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — The average population of Virginia is younger than that of the nation, with a higher proportion between the ages of 18 and 44. The growth resulted from a heavy immigration of young people that began in 1940.

Fewer Fire Losses Seen

According to County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner, there were 32 fewer losses of tobacco barns to fires in Pitt County during the summer of 1974 than in the summer of 1973.

For the three months period of July, August and September, a total of 99 barns were lost to fires. This compares to the 1973 tally of 131 barns lost.

Figures reveal that losses to the two years per month were: (1974 figures followed by figures for 1973)—July, 41 and 68; August, 52 and 62; and September 6 and 1.

The total estimated value of barns lost to fire for 1974 amounts to $270,700. This is considerably less (about $55,000) than the estimated 1973 loss of $326,325.

The Ayden Fire Department had the busiest season of any of the 18 rural fire departments in fighting tobacco barn fires. Ayden responded to 18 alarms. Next was Winterville, with 10 alarms, followed by Grifton and Red Oak, each with nine alarms.

Dolphins Named Mark And Anne

WOBURN, England (UPI)—Anne and Mark are attractions at Woburn Abbey, England's most gimmick laden and most visited stately home.

The names of Princess Anne and her husband, Capt. Mark Phillips, were given to two young dolphins at the game park on the 3,000-acre estate.

High Overhead Ends Designing

LONDON (AP) — John Cavanagh, one of Britain's leading dress designers, is closing his dress shop in London's swank Mayfair District.

"The ever-increasing overheads and cost of production have made it virtually impossible for us to continue this business any longer," Cavanagh wrote in a letter to his customers.

His customers included Princess Alexandra and the Duchess of Kent.

Cavanagh, now 60, has worked as a dress designer since he was 18. He began as a pupil of the late Edwaeux and later worked for Pierre Balmain before opening his own premises in Curzon Street, London, in 1952.

Seeking Recruit Tutorial Aides

Appeals for assistance in conducting a city wide tutorial reading program have gone out to many Greenville citizens. On Monday, each school child was given a notice to take home to parents and friends of parents requesting volunteer workers for the program.

"We are also hoping that people with ability and time but who did not receive notice through the school children will contact the city school office," Charles Ross, Director of Instructional Services for the Greenville City Schools, said today.

"Volunteers can contact me or Mrs. Kay Whitehurst at the school office by telephoning 752-4919 or coming by the office in person." The central office is located at 431 W. Fifth Street.

The program is a joint venture of the Greenville City Schools and the Pitt County Mental Health Association. Mrs. Joseph Le Conte, the association's executive director, represents that agency in working with the city schools.

A continuation of the tutorial reading program started in 1971, it is hoped that it will be possible to expand the program even more this year than in past years. Tutors will teach during the day and will be asked to donate two hours per week for the school year.

Volunteers are being asked to return the forms taken home by school children no later than Friday, September 27, with indications of preference for days they can teach, as well as school and student level preference.

How we get all kinds of people to save at Planters after we give them the free clocks and dinnerware.

Getting all kinds of customers into a bank with premiums and gifts is easy. At Planters, we do it all the time.

But in order to keep them as customers a bank has to offer them something more. And we do that, too.

Rate	Maturity	PNB Plan
6½%	2½ years	Savings Certificate
6%	1 year	Savings Certificate
5½%	90 days	Savings Certificate
5½%	90 days	Golden Savings*
5%	Withdraw Anytime	Regular Savings

*Golden Savings may be withdrawn during the first 10 days of each calendar quarter if on deposit 90 days.

We have five different savings plans for all kinds of savers.

For people who always want their money immediately available, we have a Regular Savings account. The interest is the highest allowed by law, 5%, and you can deposit or withdraw anytime you want.

For people who want a little more, there's our Golden Savings. You can add to it anytime you like, but we need 90 days notice on withdrawals.

For the investor, Planters has Certificates of Deposit. Three kinds: 5½% to 6½%. Minimum deposits may vary, so does the maturity. See the chart above for details.

One last thing. While some of our customers are very enthusiastic about the idea of saving money, they just can't bring themselves to do it.

For these people, we have Sav-O-Matic, an automatic transfer of funds from a PNB checking account to any PNB savings account.

So, if you're interested in making money on your savings, after we give you all the free gifts and premiums, come to Planters National Bank and take your choice.

We may knock ourselves out to get you, but then we also knock ourselves out to keep you.

PNB PLANTERS NATIONAL BANK MEMBER FDIC

Federal law and regulations prohibit the payment of a time deposit prior to maturity unless 3 months of the interest thereon is forfeited and interest on the amount withdrawn is reduced to the regular savings rate.
