

C.R. Blake Named Assistant To The ECU Chancellor

Suit Charges N.C. Fails To Promote Food Stamp Use

Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina University has announced the official appointment of Col. C. Ritchie Blake to the post of assistant to the Chancellor.

The appointment, approved earlier by the ECU Board of Trustees and the UNC general administration, was announced at a reception for ECU deans and administrators Wednesday night. The reception honored Blake and his wife, the former Nina McLeod of Robins.

Blake, 43, will assume his new duties at East Carolina on Nov. 1. The newly created position will "involve a multiplicity of duties," Jenkins said. Jenkins said he wants Blake to work particularly in efforts to establish an international trade center at ECU and to coordinate the international students program. The chancellor emphasized that Blake will work in many areas of ECU activity and involvement.

Blake, born in Pinehurst, is a 1954 graduate of East Carolina and entered the U.S. Air Force through a commission in the Air Force ROTC program. During his 20 years of military service, Col. Blake served in many operational assignments flying the C-130 aircraft. His assignments included duty at various U.S. bases as well as Okinawa, The Philippines and Vietnam.

He flew over 100 combat missions in Southeast Asia and his decorations include the Air Medal, three Air Force Commendation medals, two Meritorious service medals, the Outstanding Unit citation and the Expeditionary Medal.

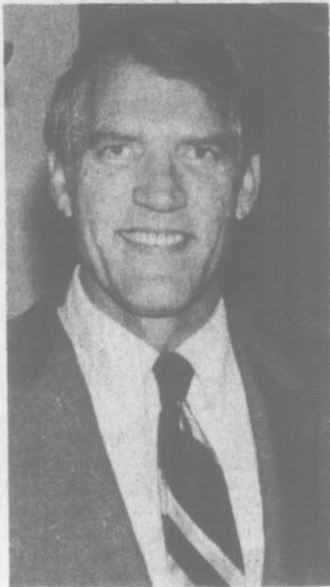

Blake received a Master of Science degree from the George Washington University in 1968. He was a distinguished graduate of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces, Washington, and the Air War College and the Air Command and Staff College at Montgomery, Ala., and the Armed Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Va.

In 1970, Col. Blake was assigned to the staff of the Secretary of the Air Force, the Hon. Robert C. Seamans Jr.

In 1973 Blake was assigned to the Plans and Policy Directorate of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, in the Pentagon.

Col. Blake is the son of Mrs. Gurney R. Blake and the late Mr. Blake, Jacksonville, N. C.

A New York-based group says only 25 per cent of those eligible receive food stamps in North Carolina, while South Carolina's percentage is just 52 per cent.

For that reason, the Food Research and Action Center has included the Carolinas in suits charging 17 states with failure to take effective action to enroll eligible persons in food stamp programs.

Ronald Pollack, a spokesman for the Center, said the suits are designed to "force the states to comply with the statutory outreach requirements, which require that effective efforts be made to make sure that those families that are eligible for the food stamp program have full knowledge of the program and that the program is made available to them."

Since 1972, federal law has required states to organize effective programs to seek out those eligible for food stamps, inform them of their eligibility and enroll them if they wish.

Also being sued are the states of Colorado, Idaho, Indiana, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Nevada, New Hampshire, New York, Ohio, South Dakota, Texas, Virginia, Washington and West Virginia.

Pollack, who said suits will be filed later against other states, said the court action has been initiated by legal aid societies in the various states.

Carolinas food stamp spokesmen said they had not studied the suits carefully enough to comment on them.

However, Ted Harrison, spokesman for the North Carolina Department of Human Resources, said the state began an outreach program last year. The second phase was announced earlier this week. He denied the second phase was announced in view of the suit.

Mrs. Adria McNeely, food stamp director for South Carolina, said the main thrust of South Carolina's program has been to enlist social workers from various state agencies to reach persons eligible for food stamps.

North Carolina officials estimate 365,000 persons are now receiving food stamps, while Mrs. McNeely said 357,481 persons are receiving food stamps in South Carolina. Under present guidelines, a family of four could earn as much as $8,500 a year and still qualify for the stamps.

KING KORN LOCATED

A Hotline reader reported that King Korn stamps are still available, and she gave us an address. You may order a catalog from Peter King Co., 1544 W. Elmdale, Chicago, Ill. 60626, and may send your stamps there to have the items you choose sent to you, a spokesman for the company said.

Blood Threats

BOSTON (AP) — Threats have been made against the lives of most, if not all, of the Kennedy family children, and FBI and Secret Service agents have been dispatched to protect them, sources reported today.

A spokesman for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy confirmed in Washington that the threats were received about two weeks ago, and that the FBI had launched an investigation.

A source close to the investigation confirmed here today that the threats were made against "all children of Kennedy blood" and that Treasury Secretary William O. Simon had authorized Secret Service agents to protect them.

The FBI also has been conducting an investigation into the threats.

Lowers Harvest Outlook

By The Associated Press
Up to 300 million bushels of corn were destroyed by frost in the Midwest this past weekend, according to an American Farm Bureau agronomist.

Warren Collins also predicted that the 1974 crop yield will be far below the latest U.S. Department of Agriculture forecast.

Collins said Wednesday that this year's corn harvest will be between 4.6 billion and 4.7 billion bushels, about a billion less than the record 1973 yield of 5.64 billion bushels.

The latest Agriculture Department estimate was for a corn harvest of 4.995 billion bushels.

Freezing temperatures destroyed 1 to 2 per cent of the crop in northern Illinois, he said, about 4 per cent in Iowa and up to 15 per cent in Wisconsin.

University of Illinois agronomists also reported Wednesday that the frost killed all corn and soybean plants north of Interstate 80 in Illinois. Yields were cut in proportion to the maturity of the plants, said Derrell Mulvaney, UI agronomist at DeKalb.

"Only one third of the soybeans were mature enough not to be affected by the frost," Mulvaney said. The others, he said, "will have beans smaller than normal and some will be off-color."

Reduce Grants

NEW YORK (AP) — The Ford Foundation's board of trustees has voted unanimously not to dissolve the philanthropic organization, but the nation's economic pinch may force it to cut back annual grants as much as 50 per cent.

However, the trustees decided at their regular quarterly meeting on Wednesday to postpone action on grants at least until their next scheduled meeting in December.

The depressed security market and inflation have dropped the foundation's assets from $3 billion to $2 billion during the past year.

Earlier in the week, foundation president McGeorge Bundy said the organization might have to be dissolved and its assets distributed unless a reduction in grants was ordered.

The suggested 50 per cent reduction would apply to the foundation's $202 million annual budget, but it would take a year for any cuts to take effect. Current commitments would be maintained.

Edmisten 'Under Investigation' For State Tax Law Violations

RALEIGH (AP)—Wake County Dist. Atty. Burley Mitchell said today an investigation is being made to determine whether any income tax laws were violated by Rufus Edmisten, Democratic nominee for attorney general.

Mitchell said in a telephone interview he had conferred with Revenue Commissioner J. Howard Coble who was making the investigation.

He said he will study the report of the probe "and if there appears to be any violation of the tax laws we will prosecute."

Edmisten said during a debate in Chapel Hill Tuesday he hadn't filed North Carolina income taxes while working in Washington for retiring Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C. Edmisten said he hadn't filed because he paid state income tax in Virginia where he lived during the decade he worked for Ervin. A supporter for Atty. Gen. James Carson, Republican opponent of Edmisten, had asked Edmisten at the debate if it was true that he hadn't filed North Carolina income taxes.

Meanwhile, James Sugg, state Democratic chairman, Wednesday called for an investigation by the legislature or the State Bureau of Investigation into whether the confidentiality of state tax records had been violated.

Mitchell said even his office does not have access to the tax records unless it is specific case in which there appears to be violations. He said Revenue Department employees who work with tax records have access to them but they are not supposed to divulge them to the public.

Following Edmisten's statement during the debate, Carson said that made Edmisten liable to criminal and civil prosecution. Carson said such action would be up to Coble, who was appointed by Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser.

Struck By Truck

A Greenville woman was killed early today when she was struck by a truck as she walked along Evans Street.

Greenville Police reported that Mrs. Mary Lovett of 124 W. 16th Street was fatally injured around 6:38 a.m. when she was hit by a truck operated by Wilbur Ray Beacham of Rt. 2, Greenville.

Investigating officers reported that the incident, which is still under investigation, occurred on Evans just south of Carolina Sales Corp.

Beacham, who has not been charged in the accident, was driving a truck owned by Tarheel Uniform Service of Greenville, it was reported. Mrs. Lovett was dead at the scene of the accident, officers said.

Sharp Drop For Economic Indicator In August

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government indicator designed to foreshadow future trends in the economy suffered its sharpest drop of the year in August, the Commerce Department reported today.

Most of the drop was attributed to sagging stock prices, but the index of leading indicators also was pushed down by the largest number of new unemployment claims for any month since March.

The Commerce Department said the over-all index dropped by 1.2 per cent on the basis of figures available for 8 of the 12 components involved. The downturn, the second so far this year, reversed a 1.9 per cent jump in July and was the largest drop since a 1.7 per cent decline in December. This left the index 5.7 per cent ahead of where it was a year ago.

In reality, the decline probably was more severe than it appeared, because the index does not take account of inflation. Four of the components in the index track the prices of vital goods, so that inflation would drive the components up automatically, even without any gain in the actual volume of goods involved.

New claims for unemployment insurance totaled 315,000 last month, a 10.5 per cent increase over the previous month. Stock prices were off 10.3 per cent by the Commerce calculations.

Also pointing to slower economc activity were a falloff in the number of building permits issued, lower prices for industrial materials and reduced orders for factory expansion and equipment.

Exerting an upward influence on the government index were a longer average work week, increased orders for durable goods and improvement in the price of goods relative to the cost of labor needed to produce them.

The four remaining categories which are tabulated and used in subsequent adjustment of the monthly figures, are corporate profits; changes in consumer installment debt; changes in book values of manufacturing and trade inventories, and business formations.

AAUW National President To Attend State Convention Here

The 1974 annual convention of the North Carolina Division of the American Association of University Women will be held at the Ramada Inn here during Oct. 4-6.

General sessions scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 5, will be conducted in East Carolina University's Allied Health Building on Charles Street. The theme of the convention is to be "Global Interdependence—Food, Oceans, Nuclear Power."

Miss Carolyn Fulghum, dean of women at East Carolina University and current president of the Greenville Branch of AAUW will be official hostess of the convention. She is scheduled to give the official welcome to delegates at the start of the first general session. Approximately 150 AAUW delegates and members are expected to attend the meeting from all over North Carolina. AAUW National President Dr. Anne Campbell, who is director of public affairs for the University of Nebraska, is coming to Greenville to give the banquet address Saturday evening.

Dr. Nancy Douglas Joyner, research expert at the Institute of Government of the University of Virginia, will present the keynote address of the convention at 9:30 a.m. Saturday in the Allied Health Building Auditorium. Dr. Joyner's special areas of interest include politics, international law, and problems connected with the environment.

In addition to these two addresses, the Saturday program will include two panel discussions, both to take place in the Allied Health Building Auditorium during the afternoon.

At 2:15 p.m. on Saturday Dr. Joyner will join Dr. Elizabeth Koonitz, nutrition programs coordinator of the N.C. Department of Human Resources, in a discussion of "Food and Oceans."

At 3:45 p.m. on the same day a second panel discussion, on the subject "Societal Risks and Benefits of Nuclear Power", will take place between William J. Burton, vice president for public relations with the Duke Power Co., and Dr. Gerald W. Meisner, associate professor of physics at UNC-Greensboro.

At the Saturday luncheon session to be held in the Festival Rooms of the Ramada Inn, Miss Jeanne Nostrandt, 1974-75 recipient of AAUW's Susan B. Riley Fellowship, will speak on the subject "Benefits to Society and AAUW Members."

Mrs. Manning Speaks To CWI Members

Barbara Manning of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co., gave the program at the CWI meeting Monday night. Her topic was "The Advent of Women In The Credit World of Today."

Mrs. Manning stated that the advent of women in all fields of professional endeavor really began with World War II. The war opened many doors for women who had been shut out of this man-world. Women were called in to keep things moving in regular channels. To much surprise, many women performed so well in all duties, that a whole new business world opened permanently for them.

If every woman desiring to succeed in her chosen line of endeavor would set her own guideline by which to achieve these goals she will succeed, she said.

President Angelene Venters announced that the annual bosses night will be held Oct. 10 at the Ramada Inn.

A welcome was extended to guest Ann Parrell of North Carolina National Bank.

Clara Seago submitted the new slate of officers for 1974-75. They were: President, Ina Wingate; First Vice President, Sue Meeks; Second Vice President, Virginia McKoy; Third Vice President, Barbara Manning; Secretary, Faye Adams; Treasurer, Lynn Brown.

Directors were Mary Roberson, Mildred Porter, Pearl Hartsell, and Angelene Venters. Sponsors are Roscoe L. King, Charlie Burnette, Jesse Laughinghouse and Herbert Lee.

At 8:30 on the morning of Sunday, Oct. 6, a dialogue concerning the subject "What AAUW Members Do on Monday" will mesh the ideas of Mrs. Adelaide Stegman, vice president of AAUW's South Atlantic Region, and Mrs. Vonnie Pryor of Winston-Salem.

In addition, the convention schedule includes a Division Executive Committee dinner, Division Board of Directors meeting, Division Legislative Program Committee meeting, Branch Legislative Program Chairmen breakfast, a parliamentary briefing, meetings of Branch, Topic Chairwomen and Area Representatives, group meetings of Corporate Delegates and Branch Presidents, a meeting of Fellowships-Centennial Fund Chairwomen, a legislative program, and a final program for business, reports and announcements.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I bought $52.34 worth of groceries the other day and the carryout boy asked, "Did you want help with this or are you going to eat it here!"

"Things aren't that bad yet," I snapped and as he shifted impatiently from one foot to the other while I fumbled for my car keys he said, "Where do you want 'em?"

"I have some other errands," I said, "Just put them in the glove compartment."

When you think about it, shopping for food is getting pretty absurd. Why I can remember when my station wagon runneth over with $52.34 worth of groceries in it. Today, I can't afford help for my hamburger.

How have the high prices affected consumers? For one thing it has made them better shoppers. Face it, a lot of mothers I know used to shove a banana and a box of cereal through the bars of the baby bed at night and sleep in the next morning. But at 85 cents a box, we want to know what the cereal can do.

a Yo-Yo that glows in the dark." "Yes," I said suspiciously. "But will it patch the driveway and take puppy stains off the carpet?"

Another thing the consumer crunch has done is to pull shoppers together. Every week, the same people gather at the supermarket where we share a common crisis. Sorta like the Poseidon Adventure. I've made friends like Lois, who does her shopping for the week and can still get in the express line. And Mrs. Bretlock, who was checking out her food one day when the store was robbed and she didn't know the difference. And Marty, a young mother who is going to use her Christmas savings and buy five pounds of sugar. And proud Stephanie who puts plastic fruit in her refrigerator and pretends she's rich.

But mostly, the inflated prices have brought about an appreciation by the family for the simple things of life. The other day as I drove in from the supermarket, the family all danced around the car fighting to see who opened the glove compartment first. Everyone but the dog.

He's been eating out since last May.

Will Teach Dancing Class

Mrs. Ramona VanNortwick, director of Ramona's School of Dancing of Greenville, has been invited to teach a masters dancing class in acrobatics Saturday at the Margaret Beale Fletcher Studio in New Bern.

Mrs. VanNortwick is celebrating her 25th year of teaching dancing in Greenville. Prior to that time, she taught dancing in Norfolk, Va., and Richmond, Va.

She has studied extensively in New York, N.Y., Dallas, Tex., and California.

Lori Jo Edwards, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Edwards of Greenville and a student of Mrs. VanNortwick, will be the demonstrating student.

I spent the better part of an hour in the cereal aisle the other day trying to find the all-purpose cereal. The manager came by and said, "Look, here's a great all-around cereal. It's crunchy, sounds like World War III when you pour milk over it, fills you up, not out, gives you energy, provided a midday snack, makes you grow strong, solves your irregularity problems, offers you natural vitamins, tastes like hickory nuts, and has

Reader Praises Abby's Advice

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by The Chicago Tribune

DEAR ABBY: That letter signed "stuck with the kids" could have been written by me. Fresh out of college, I got a dream job. Then marriage, and boom! Two kids, one right after the other. (Both accidents.) I resented them terribly for robbing me of my freedom. Then I felt guilty because I couldn't "love" them like a mother should.

I never hurt my kids physically, but emotionally I was destroying them and myself.

I tried alcohol, drugs, even suicide. I wrote to you as a last resort, and your answer sunk in. I lucked out with a terrific psychiatrist.

I'm glad you told "stuck" that a seemingly overwhelming situation can be dealt with and to get professional help—but fast! I pray that she does. It was my salvation. Thank you, Abby.

BLESSED

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday the man across the street came up to me while I was outside and said, "Where is your old man?"

I said, "If you mean my husband, he is at work. Why do you want to know?"

Then he said, "Because your husband has been calling up my old lady and trying to get her to go out with him."

I didn't know what to say next, so I said, "Well, he'll be home in about an hour. Why don't you come back and talk to him?" Then I went in the house and cried.

When my husband came home, I told him what happened. He said it was all a big lie, but he looked nervous and took off right away saying he'd be right back. He called me up later to say he wouldn't be home for supper.

Meanwhile, the man from across the street came over again, asking for my husband. He said my husband had called up his wife again and asked her to say she must have been mistaken—that the guy who was trying to get her to go out with him was somebody else.

I don't know who to believe, Abby. If my husband had stayed home and faced his neighbor like a man, I would have had more faith in him. What do you think?

HURT

DEAR HURT: I think your husband has a lot of explaining to do.

DEAR ABBY: I recently married a lovely woman. She has two daughters, 15 and 17. They are fine girls, but they go around the house half-nude. They stand around in the kitchen in their shorty nightgowns with nothing on underneath, and often run through the house with nothing on top and very little below.

I asked the girls to please keep themselves covered, for the sake of modesty, and they looked at me like I was out of my mind.

My wife says there is nothing shameful about the body. I am now wondering if maybe I am wrong.

I can't help thinking that those young ladies should change their ways instead of me changing my ideas.

OLD GOAT

DEAR GOAT: You're not wrong. They are.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Eleanor McGovern On Her Book, 'Uphill A Personal Story'

By DOROTHY MARKS
WASHINGTON (WNS)—In the past few years, book publishers have discovered gold in the lives of political wives and families. Eleanor McGovern's first book, "UPHILL, a Personal Story," written with Mary Finch Hoyt Houghton Mifflin Company, $7.95 is a valuable addition to this genre—warm, moving and without a single phoney note.

It should enhance her husband George McGovern's chances of winning re-election to the Senate from South Dakota this November. And it will certainly propel Eleanor into the public eye once again.

It certainly was not designed to get him another crack at the presidency, she said: "No, George McGovern has not the slightest intention of making another try for national office in 1976. I wouldn't want him to," she says firmly.

What she wanted to do, Mrs. McGovern told this reporter, was simply to write a book about children and family life reflecting hers and others' experiences.

Child psychology has been a lifelong interest of hers about which she has read and studied in depth. The publishers, naturally, wanted as well a toothsome account, replete with anecdotes and inside revelations about the disastrous Democratic presidential campaign of 1972.

Well, there are anecdotes, but they do not carry the book. What carries the reader along—and this one read the book through in a single sitting without at all having intended to—is the warmth, the consistently good though not brilliant writing and the life story of a remarkable woman who in 1962 erupted from total immersion in family life to develop over the next 10 years into a worthy-to-be-listened-to national campaigner in her own right.

Eleanor McGovern is the first to admit her debt to her co-author on the writing end. Mary Finch Hoyt, a former Washington correspondent for the Ladies Home Journal, served as press secretary to Jane Muskie and subsequently Eleanor McGovern in the '72 race.

"If you know Eleanor, you know it is her book," says Mary Hoyt. "We started in June, 1973 talking, talking, talking. She would write long drafts in longhand. I would take them home to work over and suggest chapter divisions. Sometimes I would interview her and do drafts for her reaction."

Just how effective a campaigner this frail, 4-foot-eleven mother of five was in 1972, she herself never seemed to grasp, Mrs. Hoyt says. "Eleanor really believed the press was kind to her because they were giving George such a hard time. "When asked how a wife can help a candidate win an election, she says: I don't know how she can help him, but I do know she can certainly hurt him by an indelicate remark or action."

One remarkable passage in the book tells how McGovern left his wife a note somewhere on the campaign trail . . . "Please, Eleanor . . . do not jeopardize either your credibility or mine by making me sound too good."

Understandably, the advance stories on the book highlight her indictment of Senator Thomas Eagleton for what she describes as "the difficulty Senator Eagleton had experienced in telling the truth" about his mental problems.

It was on the plane heading out to Custer in the Black Hills of South Dakota after the Miami convention that campaign handlers Frank Mankiewicz and Gary Hart told the McGovern's all they knew about Tom Eagleton's history of mental illness "gleaned in bits and pieces and characterized for them by the Missouri Senator as occasional exhaustion, fatigue, melancholy."

"I can still remember the general, dull foreboding that overcame me," she writes, an instinctive reaction she attributes to her lifelong interest in psychology which made her especially sensitive to words like "manic depressive" or "electric shock treatment". It was then, she recalls, what had started as a long dreamed of vacation took on the overtones of a Greek tragedy.

In what is her harshest judgment on any living person, she writes". . . in George's and my view it was not right for him to aspire to the position of a heartbeat away from the Presidency . . . that awesome, stressful highest office, in view of his medical experiences."

Though press stories and gossips hurt her in the 1972 campaign, she says, she would not have done otherwise: "I had to get out and campaign actively. I would not have survived sitting at home stewing."

Eleanor's own role in the 1972 campaign is well known. But as was the case with an earlier book in the same genre, "Private Faces—Public Places," by Abigail McCarthy, the now estranged wife of 1968 presidential candidate Eugene McCarthy, it is Eleanor McGovern's story of her early years, the growing up years on a hog farm in the South Dakota dustbowl with her twin sister Ila, of her subsequent marriage and the birthing and loving and rearing of five children, of George's brief career as a Methodist minister and his long, painful rebuilding of the Democratic Party in South Dakota, that makes for the best reading.

Life was uphill, but happily so, almost all the way.

There are poignant vignettes from those early years. The farm chores she and Ila performed, watering the dust-choked lawn and gardens from pails, boiling up quantities of homemade soap in the barn, bringing the cows home from pasture, sneaking into the stock tank from which the animals drank for quick dips on scorching summer days. Eleanor yearned for a real doll she saw in the Sears catalogue but was happy enough dressing up glass bottles with homemade doll clothes.

When the twins were 11 their mother died, leaving Eleanor with a deep and repressed grief which returned to mire her in a severe postnatal depression 14 years later after the birth of her third child, Teresa.

Eleanor says Teresa was the child "we . . . called our ray of sunshine." As an 18 year-old, Teresa attempted to solve her problems by resorting to marijuana. She was arrested in July, 1968 a few weeks before her father's 11th-hour bid for the presidential nomination at the 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago. Teresa lost, but now has found, herself. Eleanor also was traumatized by the fear that like her beautiful, creative mother, she was doomed to die an early death.

The depression which enveloped her as a young mother of three at age 25 led her to bury herself in reading all she could find on psychology and child behavior. For personal solace she sought comfort in the works of Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick.

And in the wake of President Nixon's resignation—which, of course, occurred long after this book went to press—it is entirely probable that Eleanor McGovern's thoughts are very much for the Nixon children first and foremost.

Non-Patriots Can't Be Heroes

In Sunday's New York Times there appeared an advertisement placed by something called "Project Amnesty" which read "Since 1961 the Vietnam war has taken the lives of 1,056,241 Americans. Today you can give life back to 1,000,000.

The 56,241 apparently includes those who actually died in that miserable conflict; the 1,000,000 apparently includes those who fled to other countries to avoid military duty.

We have seen other ads placed by various organizations counseling unconditional amnesty for the draft dodgers and deserters, and at times there is the indication that these people should even be welcomed home as virtual heroes.

Well, hopefully the war is over for the United States in Vietnam and those who felt kindly towards those who ran to other nations during the bitter times, no doubt now feel they are the heroes.

It is their privilege to feel that way. We would suggest, though, that they are not helping the cause of these men by attempting to picture them as "resistors" and therefore patriots. Most Americans are not vindictive toward the draft dodgers, but neither do they picture them as heroes. They did, after all, run at a time when the nation was in agony. It did, after all, require the sacrifice of some other young man to go in the place of each who ran.

There were some, of course, who stayed in the United States and faced jail because of their convictions and that is a strength which those who ran did not show.

President Ford has proposed a reasonable plan for the draft dodgers to follow if they truly are interested in resuming normal lives as American citizens. The plan won't make heroes out of them, but it gives them the opportunity to return in good faith. The plan seems to suit most Americans and it should be given the opportunity to work.

Program Launched For Better Health Care

Contracts for providing funds to support the Eastern AHEC program were signed by State AHEC director Glenn Wilson of Chapel Hill and Dr. Ed Moore, Eastern AHEC president, this week.

Thus a program was launched which can be of great benefit in providing health care for our area. The Eastern AHEC includes 16 hospitals in 22 counties.

Eastern North Carolina's problems of lack of medical manpower are staggering. A start has been made toward solving the problems through the Eastern AHEC and the ECU medical school.

An 'If' In Tax Changes

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — If this year's big tax bill survives heavy cross-fire in Congress, many average Americans will get a tax cut while oilmen will see an old tax-saving friend, the depletion allowance, slowly die.

But all sides in the tax bill battle agree that's an extremely big "if," because the legislation is in trouble. Friends are having a tough time finding and keeping a consensus, while some strange-bedfellow enemies may just gang up and kill it quickly.

As the bill presently stands after many months of voting by the House Ways and Means Committee, but with many controversial items subject to change before the panel's final decisions in the next few weeks, chief provisions would:

—Hike taxes for the oil industry, mainly by phasing out the percentage depletion allowance that has been a fixture in tax law since the 1920s and which saves petroleum producers $2 billion to $3 billion a year in federal taxes.

—Cut taxes for many individuals by increasing the maximum standard deduction from $2,000 to $2,500; by boosting the minimum standard deduction that benefits low-income persons from $1,300 to $1,400 for singles and $1,500 for couples; and by creating a new "simplification" deduction of up to $650 for people who itemize.

—Benefit some upper-bracket taxpayers through a change that would extend to some unearned income, such as dividends and rents, the maximum (Continued on page 8)

Dollars Follow A Route

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH Every workday morning a U.S. Mail truck pulls up to the Department of Revenue building overlooking the shaded Capitol square in downtown Raleigh.

Later that day, a Brink's armored carrier pulls away from the loading dock, headed for a downtown Raleigh bank.

Those are the two most visible signs of what is going on with state dollars, in a system involving elaborate bookkeeping and accounting and reporting measures.

But the story of what actually happens to a taxpayer's dollar is an interesting one considering that mention of that dollar usually is lost in a maze of zeroes, budgetary messages, and legalese.

In the current fiscal year, for example, the state expects to collect and spend some $3 billion.

The Revenue Department is the agency charged with collecting, and each day some 50 employees — many times that number when income tax reports are pouring in — are involved in the process of just receiving and logging the income.

Collecting

"I try to make it clear to all of our personnel that we are not merely tax collectors, a term sometimes despised in the public eye, but are playing a prominent role in getting money into the state coffers, and making it available to pay for the hundreds of services the state provides," explains J. Howard Coble, secretary of revenue.

His agency, Coble is careful to point out, simply administers the revenue laws set up by the General Assembly — telling how much and from whom the money will come.

"Without us getting this money in here, the old ship doesn't sail — we only want what is lawfully due, and are not in business to harass anybody," Coble said.

Each day, some eight or nine big bags of mail arrive, holding up to 20,000 envelopes stuffed with checks, money orders, filing reports, and "more cash than any of us like to admit. Too many people still send in cash or stamps despite our constant message that this shouldn't be done," Coble said.

Louis Hill, a veteran state employee, is in charge of the accounting operation, and puts forth a simplified explanation of just how that dollar gets handled.

In the beginning, a Piedmont textile worker has withheld from his pay a set amount for state income taxes, based on his family size and the state law for that year.

Every three months, his boss pulls that withholding money out of the bank and sends a check payable to the N.C. Department of Revenue, along with a form showing the name of the worker, the amount, and the account number.

So, that check and thousands like it pour in, along with another batch coming from sales taxes collected by merchants, cigarette taxes, inheritance, privilege, beverage, soft drink, etc.

Each check is identified with a code number, listed on a report, and in batches of 100 cross checked for accuracy between dollars and reports. The cashier gets that stack of 100 checks, endorses and dates them, and in a little while the Brink's truck rolls around.

Then, just like the deposit you make at the bank, the state makes a deposit — in the account of the State Treasury. This ends the work of the Revenue Department.

Your dollar is fixed with millions more in the account, and State Treasurer Edwin Gill and his staff take over — they keep the check book, so to speak. Your dollar might be pulled out and invested in some high yield bonds; it might go into a savings account to draw interest for a little while; or it might be used to pay some outstanding bills. But a state employee can't just drop by and pick up a pile of dollars.

The only way to get some money out of the bank is to have an appropriation authorized by the General Assembly. If a state agency wants its money, it must go to Ken Howard, the budget director in the Department of Administration. Howard and his staff keep a list of how much money each state department is supposed to get, and on a quarterly basis the money which the General Assembly said a particular agency could have it transferred into that account.

Finally, your dollar winds up in the payroll account at the Department of Public Instruction, and your friend the high school coach gets a paycheck with your dollar in it.

And The Senate Flunks

Before the vote was taken, last week's Senate vote on a federal pay raise was widely described as President Ford's first big test on Capitol Hill. They called the roll up yonder, and Ford lost two-to-one. The Star-News called it a "stinging defeat." The Post called it a "resounding defeat."

But Michigan's Senator Robert Griffin had a different view. It wasn't a test of the President, he said. It was a test of the Senate. And the Senate flunked.

The issue involved a pay raise scheduled to go into effect on October 1. Ford ordered the raise postponed to January 1, but the law permits such a presidential suspension to be overturned by either house of Congress. The Senate voted its resolution of disapproval by 64-35. The raise, expected to average 5.5 percent, will go into effect as scheduled.

Ford had two reasons for asking the postponement. The first was practical: It would save $700 million. The second was symbolic: It would demonstrate the willingness of a spend-happy government to put its own house in order, and thus to strike a blow against the mounting inflation for which government is so much to blame.

The Senate was interested neither in form nor in substance. One hesitates to question motives. It is possible that all 64 senators who voted for the October raise were motivated solely by considerations of fairness (Continued on page 8)

Other Editors Say Put It In Focus

(Washington Daily News)

Maybe people over North Carolina are getting a bit weary with the story of the East Carolina Medical School.

This is particularly true perhaps of those of us who live here in far Eastern North Carolina and who for so many years have dreamed of a fine medical school in our area.

We look at the picture right now and sometimes we wonder how human beings could mix up something as much as this picture seems confused.

The big question is this: who is in charge of the building of a medical school?

Then if we try to answer that question, not all people in command have the same answer. One group says that the ECU Medical School is under the direct control of the UNC Medical School. How about the faculty? Will the ECU faculty be a part of the UNC faculty or will it be a part of the ECU faculty? How about the selection of an architect? How about the matter of land acquisition? How about the program itself?

We very honestly believe that the Board of Governors in North Carolina is composed of men and women of high caliber. But with a strong majority there being UNC oriented, it is only natural and human to believe that it will stick with interpretations of the Chapel Hill administration.

It is tragic that the last legislature did not spell out clearly and in detail exactly what it meant. Leaving loopholes in which different people can interpret meanings differently makes for loss of time and indecision.

It is our distinct feeling then that only the legislature can clarify the meaning incorporated in the bill to establish a medical school at East Carolina University. What did the legislature have in mind?

It does little good for this leader or that leader to say what the assembly had in mind. The legislators know, but others do not. And until the legislature itself clarifies the entire provisions of the bill, we shall still be floundering without any sense of real direction. Only the legislature can put the objectives in clear focus.

It would be our hope that the 1975 legislature will set out the ground rules in such clear terms that there will be no doubts remaining and no loopholes left.

The Board of Governors, the ECU Trustees, Dr. Leo Jenkins, Dr. William Friday, and the other people directly interested in the story of the ECU Medical School all may have opinions on what was meant. But only the legislature can give definitive answers.

And they should be forthcoming as quickly as is possible and practical after the 1975 legislature convenes.

Food Tax Repeal Goal

By JOHN KILGO
A concerted effort will be made in the next session of the North Carolina Legislature to repeal the 3 per cent sales tax on food.

The controversial tax, initiated during the administration of former Governor Terry Sanford, has been the target of much debate in recent years. It appears the talk this time is more determined and a move is almost certain to take place to repeal the tax when the Legislature convenes in January.

At least one lawmaker,

Senator Cv Bahakel, representing Cabarrus and Mecklenburg counties, says he will introduce legislation in the next Legislature to repeal the food tax.

"With inflation being what it is," Sen. Bahakel told me, "and the price of food so high, the food tax is unfair. Food is a necessity and should not be subject to this kind of taxation. It works special hardships on poor and middle income families, and on those who live on fixed incomes."

Bahakel says he has written the chairmen of the House and Senate

Appropriation committees telling them of his plans to have the food tax repealed.

"I am writing you early in your Advisory Budget commission studies so that adequate consideration can be given to a priority in the use of surplus funds toward food tax relief," Bahakel said in that letter.

The tax on food brings in more than $60 million a year for North Carolina's government. Sen. Bahakel says, in his opinion, that loss can be made up without an increase in the state income tax.

"I'm opposed to raising the state income tax," Bahakel said. "The upcoming state surplus is estimated to be between $100 million and $200 million. This is one source that could be used to offset the loss in food tax revenue."

Sen. Bahakel is a member of a Costs Study Commission, chaired by Sen. I.C. Crawford of Asheville. That commission is going to recommend to the Legislature ways to trim state spending.

"I think this commission will have recommendations which, if adopted, would save the state $40 million a year," Bahakel says. "I think the money will be available to allow us to drop the food tax without raising taxes."

The leadership of the AFL-CIO in North Carolina came out last weekend in favor of the food tax repeal. That group recommended raising income taxes for high income people to make up the loss to the state.

What chance does Sen. Bahakel have to get the food tax repealed?

"I think the sentiment is very strong in the Legislature to do away with the food tax," Sen. Bahakel said. "Many of the men and women in the Legislature believe this tax is (Continued on page 8)

RENUNCIATION BRINGS FREEDOM

True inner freedom is not something which people can achieve by seeking. It is a precious gift which God gives to those who have renounced all personal and selfish liberty in the interest of an overriding ideal.

When St. Paul declared, "I die daily," he gave utterance to the principle by which every servant of God must order his life. He had given up all things, particularly the safety and security which could come by adjusting to the world about him. He was hounded from city to city, persecuted, and haled before the courts. Yet he had an inner sense of freedom much greater and more satisfying than the external freedom which his opponents enjoyed.

This is the kind of freedom which comes not from human institutions, no matter how just and upright they may be. This inner freedom is the gift of God, and to qualify for it one must sacrifice, for his sake, much of the external freedom we hope to enjoy. —by Elisha Douglass

Mutual Fund Outlook Improves

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Times have taken a decided turn for the better in the last few months for the troubled mutual fund industry.

As the statistics clearly spell out, the credit goes to the glittering early success of the industry's newest product — the shorter money market fund. In the six-month period from March 1 to Aug. 31, investors have poured over $600 million more into the money market funds than they have taken out, according to the Investment Company Institute.

The March figure was $16.2 million. By August, it had swollen to $228.8 million. Harry J. Guinivan, the institute's associate director, points out that that includes only the nine money market funds which are members of the trade group.

Not included, for example, is the largest of all the money market funds, New York's Reserve Fund, which issued its first public shares in January 1973, and had grown to $366 million in net assets at the last count.

Guinivan estimates the number of such funds has reached 15 to 20 from only a handful at the start of this year.

"They're coming out so rapidly it's hard to keep track of them," he observes.

The funds invest in a sector of the financial world that few small investors took much notice of until recently, when double-digit interest rates suddenly thrust it into the spotlight.

In this market, big businesses, banks and the government issue and trade interest-bearing securities that resemble bonds, except that they mature in a few days, weeks or months instead of 20 or 30 or 40 years.

A traditional bar to small investors wanting to invest in these vehicles — Treasury bills, bank certificates of deposit, commercial paper issued by industry, and the like — has been the large minimum amount of capital required.

Treasury bills, for instance, generally require a minimum of $10,000, although one issue this summer was offered in $1,000 units. Certificates of deposit ordinarily start at $100,000.

What the funds do, of course, is to pool the money of investors, and thus they can offer access to the short term money market for starting minimum investments ranging from $5,000 to as little as $100 in a couple of cases.

People in the industry acknowledge the popularity of the money market funds almost certainly will fade quickly should interest rates come down to any significant extent.

Lower interest rates might well be accompanied by a better stock market, however. The question then for the fund industry would be whether it could attract once-burned investors back into common-stock funds.

40 Years Ago Today

September 26, 1934
State Utilities Commissioner Stanley Winborne has announced the progress of conferences aimed at lowering electric rates in North Carolina.

Winborne said conferences have reached the point that new rate schedules have been proposed and rejected.

The hearings are being held with officials of the Carolina Power and Light Company.

The commissioner said the lower rates are hoped to save North Carolina customers as much as $300,000 yearly.

The South Carolina Railroad Commission announced yesterday that CP&L has lowered its South Carolina rates to save customers there $94,935 annually.

Greenville Banking and Trust Company has acquired the old Farmers Bank building at the corner of Dickinson Avenue and Pitt Street.

The Hagenbeck-Wallace circus is in town — and will give two performances at Higg's Field near West Greenville school tomorrow.

The circus will be playing in Kinston today and will come to Greenville tomorrow by the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad.

The circus is planning a street parade with gilded wagons over four hundred horses.

BACK IN THE SIDESADDLE AGAIN—Sidesaddle may be an elegant way to ride (right), but Carol Skeenes of Florence, N.J., finds that getting on a horse can be neither easy nor elegant (left). Miss Skeenes, a student at Mercer County Community College, finally got the hang of it in spite of her wearing a long blue velvet Victorian-era gown. She was attending a sidesaddle "clinic" aimed at recapturing an old riding style. (AP Wirephoto)

Kroger Building Being Readied For Exhibitors

The Kroger building is being readied for occupancy for the Bicentennial to be held October 4 through 12. Several exhibitors have already begun construction of their display, according to Bryant Kittrell, Chairman of the Kroger Building Committee.

Those industrial and civic groups already constructing booths are Eaton Corporation, Greenville Packing Company and the Kiwanis Club. Ten industries from the Greenville area have already committed themselves to exhibitions and 30 craftsmen have signed up for sale or exhibit booths.

There is room for more, according to Kittrell, "since this kind of thing won't happen again in Greenville for a hundred years, we want to make sure everyone is included. So sign up for a space and exhibit your artistic talents." Those wishing to make arrangements for space should call Kittrell at 752-2923 or 758-5733, the latter after five p.m. Don Duff of Burroughs Welcome is doing a painting outside the Kroger Building. The art classes of Mrs. Barbara Privette are doing a mural of the industrial history of Greenville.

Kittrell says that artists willing to contribute their time to painting the windows in historical motif would be welcome. "The paint must, of course, be easily removable" said Kittrell.

Volunteers are needed to man some of the industrial booths during the Bicentennial itself. Books clubs, civic clubs, garden clubs, sororities and fratern-

Business Meet For Chapter

Greenville Chapter No. 1308, Women of the Moose, will hold its October business meeting at the Moose Temple tonight at 8 o'clock.

Jointly sponsored by the WOTM chapter and the Greenville Moose Lodge, the flea market is scheduled for Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Committee projects will also be discussed, Mrs. Jamieson said, urging attendance of all members.

nities, etc. are asked if their members would give one hour each of their time as their contribution to the celebrations. The exhibition hours are from 10 a.m. till 9 p.m. during the Bicentennial celebration period.

Repair Course Begins Oct. 3

Few Changes On Farmville Mart

FARMVILLE — No significant changes were noted Wednesday on the Farmville tobacco market with the exception that more primings, lugs and non-descript tobacco was marketed than any previous day this week.

More piles sold for $1.12 per pound than any other price. Most volume consisted of leaf and smoking leaf. Top price of $1.20 per pound was paid for some leaf and cutter grades.

Quality as a whole was not as good as Tuesday. A total of 650,223 pounds sold for $722,809 for an average of $111.18 per hundred pounds.

To date 19,809,856 pounds of tobacco have been sold on the Farmville market for $20,476,617 for a season average of $103.37 per hundred pounds.

Hosted By DemoWomen

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Helen Gahagan Douglas, who lost a bitter U. S. Senate race to Richard Nixon in 1950, will be a special guest of the Democratic Women of North Carolina at their state convention this weekend in Charlotte.

Mrs. Douglas, a three-term California congresswoman now in her 70s, is to arrive in Charlotte this afternoon and address the Democratic women at a luncheon Friday.

Nixon defeated Mrs. Douglas for the Senate seat in most part, political observers say, by painting her liberal congressional votes as a demonstration of being "soft on communism." She never again ran for public office.

The former actress and singer is the widow of actor Melvyn Douglas. While in Congress, she worked for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Law, introduced legislation for equal pay for equal work done by women, and supported the United Nations. She worked with the Farm Security Administration on the problems of migratory workers before her election to Congress in the early 1940s.

—Ease taxes on capital gains, meaning profits from sales of assets such as securities or real estate held a certain length of time.

Over-all, staff experts said it will be next week before firm estimates on the revenue gains and losses for the Treasury are ready for presentation to the committee. But they guess there would be a net $400 million gain for the government when the bill's features take effect.

Committee Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., is pushing to get a bill passed by the House before the planned mid-October recess for the November elections. But the committee is deeply split over the major features such as the proposed boost in oil industry taxes.

Still pending are moves to reconsider such things as the new minimum tax on the wealthy, and a suggestion that a way be provided so that no federal taxes would have to be paid by a head of a household earning up to $3,200, or by others on a scale ranging to a married couple with four children and annual earnings of $6,500.

Kilgo Col. . .

(Continued from page 4) unfair and isn't needed. People who make between $5,000 and $20,000 a year are hurt very much by the food tax. And you can imagine the burden it puts on people who have to live on fixed incomes. It hurts them badly."

Bahakel says he believes "a vast majority" of the people of North Carolina want the food tax repealed.

Craft Col. . .

(Continued from page 4) 50 per cent tax rate that now applies to earned income such as salaries. Some unearned income may now be taxed at up to 70 per cent.

—Curb tax shelters, especially in the real estate field where these are extensively used by investors.

—Create a new minimum tax on the rich, which would be an alternate tax to be paid only if the liability is larger than the wealthy person's regular taxes due.

Kilpatrick. . .

(Continued from page 4) and equity. But it may be observed that fairness and equity, which always are seen with some difficulty, may be perceived with greater clarity six weeks before an election. The raise will benefit 1.5 million civilian employees and 2.1 million members of the armed forces. Most of them have families, and most of them vote. So much for the $700 million.

Have federal employees been treated unfairly? No such charge can be sustained in terms of the rising cost of living. Over the past five years, the cost of living has gone up by 30 percent. Federal salaries have gone up by 30.5 percent. This new raise will make it 37.7 percent since 1969.

The minor bureaucrat who five years ago this month was earning $9,000 got a Christmas raise in 1969 to $9,540. A year later, with a 5.96 percent raise, he went to $10,109. In January of 1972, with a 5.5 percent raise, he went to $10,665. In January of 1973, a raise of 5.14 percent moved him to $11,213. Nine months later, in October of 1973, a further raise of 4.77 percent boosted his salary to $11,748. With the October 1 raise, he will go to $12,394. The reader who is similarly situated can make his own comparisons.

Salary figures tell only part of the story. The government, which is to say the taxpayers, also provides 32 percent of base pay in such benefits as retirement, paid vacation, health and hospitalization, sick leave, and the like. The federal employe has what amounts to absolute job security, and the government's retirement program surpasses anything in private industry.

Proponents of the October raise said it was justified on terms of "comparability" and they cited a government study to prove it. The study suggests that on the average, federal salaries are 7 percent below comparable salaries in industry. The study is a farce. It excludes salaries paid by state and local governments, by non-profit foundations, and by industries employing fewer than 250 persons. Roughly 75 percent of the labor force, according to an analysis by the General Accounting Office, is excluded from the comparability study.

Milton Friedman, the University of Chicago economist, speaks for many of his colleagues in saying that the government's deficit spending, which has added billions to the money supply in recent years, is the chief cause of the inflation that plagues us. How is such spending to be curbed? Not by voting two-to-one to spend $700 million that reasonably could have been saved.

Report ECU Support Funds

A total of $2,784,116 in support funds for active grants on the East Carolina University campus was received during the past fiscal year.

The funds originated from federal and state government agencies and private foundations and were used for 118 active research and service projects in a variety of areas. While most of the granted funds were awarded to projects in the sciences and the allied health fields, sizable amounts were awarded for projects in the humanities and social sciences also.

Funding was achieved on the basis of detailed project proposals written by ECU faculty members and submitted to potential funding agencies. At the end of the fiscal year 1973-74, funding for 43 other projects was still pending.

The ECU Research Council funded 24 individual research projects totaling $5,326. Most of these awards consisted of reimbursement of expenses incurred by ECU faculty members in their research.

A detailed report on funded research, training and demonstration projects was recently released by the ECU Office of Sponsored Programs which helps in the negotiation and administration of ECU's funded projects.

Resignation Is Accepted

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Former President Richard M. Nixon's resignation from the state bar has been accepted by the California Supreme Court, ending his law career which began before World War II.

In a brief order signed Wednesday by Chief Justice Donald Wright, the court said: "The Sept. 16, 1974, voluntary resignation signed by Richard

M. Nixon as a member of the State Bar of California is accepted without prejudice to further proceedings in any disciplinary matter pending against him before the state bar should he again seek to become a member thereof."

Disciplinary proceedings Hockey's Stanley Cup is the oldest trophy competed for by professional athletes in the United States.

could be reinstated against Nixon should he reapply to the state bar.

The resignation was Nixon's second attempt to remove himself from the bar.

The first letter, dated Sept. 11, triggered a resolution by the bar's board of governors urging the court to reject it because Nixon had refused to acknowledge he faced possible disciplinary action by the bar.

Introducing Starfire—the little Olds you didn't expect. It's a sporty little four-seater that's smaller than a compact, easy on gas, but abnormally Supercoupe in looks, features and spirit on the road!

Delta 88—our full-size family car never looked better—but it's more than just another pretty car. It's really built for the long miles. 7 models, including a convertible, with room and comfort for a growing family.

Meet Omega Salon—our luxurious compact for drivers who like the looks and comforts of imported touring cars. It's got the touches you like—but at an Olds price. Choice of three models.

Tornado—America's first contemporary personal luxury car with front wheel drive. It pulls you around turns and along straightaways with outstanding traction. Tornado and Tornado Brougham models.

Cutlass Supreme—now our "little limousine" is big on luxury, yet it offers improved operating economy. One of eleven mid-sized Cutlass models—including wagons—that are right for the times.

98 Regency (below)—The most comfortable, most thoroughly luxurious Oldsmobile ever built. Magnificent "loose-cushion" look interiors, and a distinctive new look in both six-window sedan and coupe models.

IT'S A GOOD FEELING TO HAVE AN OLDS AROUND YOU.

We raised the gas mileage in every 1975 Olds model.

Every '75 Olds has a new Maximum Mileage System that helps make it a better car in several ways: Our best mileage in years. Smooth-running engines. Fewer tune-ups and less routine maintenance.

And—better exhaust emission control. The System represents the most advanced engineering and technology we can build into a '75 Olds. It includes a new catalytic converter (see below)—and a lot more.

There's a new high-energy ignition, for a hotter spark and improved ignition performance.

Also, Olds engineers adjusted shift points in transmissions. Installed low-ratio economy axles. And made GM-spec steel-belted radial tires standard.

As you can see, we've done a lot to improve the gas mileage capability of every 1975 Oldsmobile.

New Catalytic Converter—designed for long life.

This "pod" full of platinum-palladium coated beads provides a new way to reduce most emissions—offer combustion, in the exhaust. It does a more effective job—and it eliminates some of the gas-robbing, combustion-stage controls of the past. Best of all, it allowed Olds engineers to re-tune the engines to run smoother and give better MPG than last year.

Chop Away At Nixon Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional subcommittee has questioned the government's plan to provide former President Richard M. Nixon's 14-member staff at San Clemente with 77 typewriters, 21 sofas, 44 desks and 186 chairs. How can 14 workers use 77 typewriters? Sen. Joseph Montoya asked on Wednesday as a Senate appropriations subcommittee sought justification for the $850,000 asked by the Ford administration for Nixon's transition to private life. Arthur F. Sampson, head of the General Services Administration, told Montoya's subcommittee he is unsure just how many typists there will be. He said the 14 regular employees may be supplemented temporarily by some on loan from rector of the White House Office of Management and Budget. But he said a case could be made for having aides do menial tasks to free the former president to do more important work. Montoya said his panel will finish work on its own bill by today.

Study Extending TV News Show

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — ABC News is awaiting the results of a year-long survey of what viewers might like to see if the network expands its weeknight television news show from a half-hour to 45 minutes or an hour.

But it doesn't mean ABC plans to break the half-hour news barrier soon.

The survey, says ABC News President Bill Sheehan, "is just an exercise because we really don't have any hope of expanding the 'ABC Evening News' right now. But we want to be ready in case the day comes."

He said the study, conducted by Frank N. Magid Associates, an Iowa-based news consulting and research firm, simply asks, "What are people looking for if the networks go to an hour or 45 minutes?"

He recalled that when an earlier survey was made of viewer preferences in half-hour network news shows, "what we found quite clearly was that people watching the early evening news broadcasts were looking for a pretty quick summary of what had happened that day."

"Now, what we're looking for is to find out if they just want more of that or whether there's an appetite for longer, analytical kinds of material or 'magazine' kinds of material."

The idea of a 45-minute or hour-long news show on week nights has been discussed at the three networks for several years. But it still remains only a dream, with nothing definite planned, the networks say.

Until 1963, they only broadcast 15-minute evening news programs. NBC went to a half-hour in September that year, followed by CBS in December. ABC says it adopted the 30-minute format in January 1967.

Right now, the official line at ABC, whose weeknight news show is carried by 197 stations, is that an hour-long version of it will regularly appear within the next five years. But it won't predict which year.

CBS, whose evening news is carried by 194 stations, and NBC, its nightly news carried by 209, also predict hour-long network evening news programs in the future.

Soviet Will Cooperate

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev says prospects for continued cooperation with the United States are good under the administration of President Ford.

Brezhnev, speaking on Wednesday at a dinner for visiting Hungarian leader Janos Kadar, said establishment of better U.S.-Russian relations during recent years has been "highly acclaimed in the U.S.S.R."

"Therefore, we received with satisfaction the statement by President Gerald Ford about his personal intention and that of his administration to continue the course for further development of relations between our two countries in the same direction."

"On our part we told the President we stand for maintaining contacts for consolidation of peace, mutual trust and good neighborly relations between our two countries."

Turkey Reports Soviet Destroyer 'Exploded'

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — A Soviet guided missile destroyer exploded in the Black Sea on Wednesday, Turkish naval sources said today. There was no immediate confirmation from any other source.

Turkish port sources said the destroyer belonged to the Kashin class and was attached to the Soviet Black Sea fleet. They did not say how many men were aboard, but the authoritative British publication Jane's Fighting Ships shows that a comparable American destroyer carries about 350 men. The Guinness Book of World Records says the worst peacetime disaster involving a military ship occurred in 1963 off Cape Cod, Mass., when the U.S. nuclear-powered submarine Thresher was lost with all 129 aboard.

The worst wartime naval disaster occurred in 1945 off Danzig when a Soviet submarine sank the German ship Wilhelm Gustloff, killing 7,700 men.

Jane's says a Kashin class destroyer is 470 feet long, 52 feet wide, weighs 5,200 tons fully loaded, has four missile launchers, four anti-aircraft guns, four rocket launchers and five torpedo tubes.

Kashin class destroyers were the world's first warships to rely entirely on gas turbine propulsion for quick acceleration, but they have been rapidly outdated by later classes. Jane's said 19 of the ships were built in Leningrad and Nikolaev.

U.S. Navy officials in London said they had no information about the explosion of the Soviet destroyer. The NATO southern naval command in Italy said it too had no information on the report.

A spokesman for the U.S. 6th Fleet in Naples said his headquarters also had no information, but pointed out that such reports normally would go to the U.S. Navy offices in Turkey.

The Turkish navy monitors Soviet naval movements from the Black Sea into the Mediterranean through the Dardanelles, which are controlled by Turkey.

All Deny Knowing

RALEIGH (AP)—No one in Gov. Jim Holshouser's office admitted to knowing today who ordered the North Carolina highway patrol to set aside eight unmarked cars exclusively for use of the governor and "other dignitaries."

Jack Childs, the governor's news secretary, said Holshouser had never asked for the cars and ordered them returned to regular law enforcement duties when he found out they had been set aside.

On August 29, Highway Patrol Maj. O.R. Roberts ordered each of the patrol's eight districts to set aside an unmarked car and hold it for the exclusive use of the governor, Mrs. Holshouser and other dignitaries who visited the district and needed ground transportation.

Roberts referred all questions about the matter to the governor's office.

Childs said the episode was a "big misunderstanding." He said the governor had once told the patrol that he preferred riding in unmarked cars. But Childs said Holshouser had never asked for cars to be set aside.

Ironically, Holshouser was a frequent critic of Democrats for using state cars when he was a state legislator and state Republican chairman.

Five of the eight patrol districts already had unmarked cars that were assigned for dignitaries' transportation. The other three districts had to convert normal patrol cars for the purpose.

According to the memo, the cars were not to be used for any other reason.

Woolen
FALKLAND—Funeral services for Mr. Dave Woolen will be conducted Saturday at 3:30 p.m. at St. John's Baptist Church, Falkland, with Elder Warren Cooper officiating. Burial will follow in the Art Willow Cemetery.

He was born and reared in the Falkland Community and spent most of his life there. He was engaged in farming.

Survivors include three daughters, Miss Alice Woolen and Mrs. Chaney Stancill, both of Falkland, and Mrs. Doris Stancill of Newport News, Va.; four sons, Woodrow, George and John, all of Washington, D.C., and Edmond Woolen of Falkland; two brothers, Rome Woolen of Baltimore, Md., and Diggs Woolen of Greenville; 16 grandchildren; seven great grandchildren.

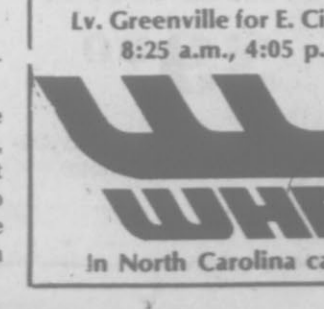

The family will receive friends at Phillips Mortuary Friday from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Mrs. Moore To Burn Center

CHARLOTTE (AP)—State Sen. Herman A. Moore, D-Mecklenburg, said today his estranged wife was being transferred to the burn center at North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill.

Mrs. Moore, 43, was burned severely last week when police said she poured charcoal lighter fuel on her clothing and set fire to it.

Moore said in a statement today that her condition remained critical.

Guerrillas Are Blamed

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Leftist guerrillas are blamed for the assassination of two more army officers, raising to 20 the number of persons killed by guerrillas' bullets or bombs in 10 days in Argentina.

The leftist People's Revolutionary Army last week promised "indiscriminate reprisals" against army officers in retaliation for the death of 16 guerrillas it said were executed while prisoners of the army.

More than 75 persons have died since July 1 at the hands of rightist or leftist guerrillas. Meanwhile, leftist Congressman Hector Sandler demanded that the United States Embassy be asked to account for the activities in Argentina of the Central Intelligence Agency. He said he made his demand because of the official disclosures last week of the CIA's operations in Chile against Marxist President Salvador Allende.

The Argentine Anti-Communist Alliance, an organization of right-wing terrorists, announced that Sandler is its next target for assassination. The group says it has killed five prominent leftists this month.

Falling Crane Kills 2 Persons

GREENVILLE, S. C. (AP)—A crane fell from a nine-story tower under construction in downtown Greenville today, crashing through the roof of an adjoining wing of the building. Police said two persons were killed.

Two other persons were reported injured by a spokesman for the South Carolina National Bank. All of the victims were believed to be construction workers.

Charles Cecil, an SCN spokesman, said the short-boom crane was mounted on a wheeled vehicle that was operating on the roof of the nine-story SCN tower being erected in the downtown business district.

HELPING HAND
CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Urban Appalachian Council, headquartered here, is the first organization of its kind to advocate the interests of three million Appalachians living in America's metropolitan areas.

By The Associated Press
 The Shah of Iran rejected today President Ford's call for reduced oil prices. He called on the industrial nations to cut the prices of their exports first.

The shah, one of the leaders in the drive to increase oil revenues for the producing countries, told newsmen in Canberra, Australia, "No one can dictate to us. No one can wave a finger at us, because we will have a finger back."

The shah said the Middle East oil countries are prepared to fix a world price for oil if it could be related to an index of 20 to 30 commodity prices.

"If world prices go down, we will go down with oil prices," he said. "But if they go up, why should we pay the bill?" he said.

He claimed that severe inflationary problems began before oil prices rose last year, and that oil prices still contribute only 1 to 1.5 per cent to world inflation. The only real solution is for people to realize "they must just work a little harder," he said.

In Vienna, Abderrahman Khene of Algeria, secretary-general of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, said oil prices may rise again next year at the same rate as inflation.

Khene said his organization's financial experts will meet on Oct. 23 to review the price situation. If they decide the world rate of inflation is likely to be 12 per cent, it is "conceivable" they would recommend raising prices next year by 1 per cent a month.

Khene denied a Beirut newspaper report that the oil nations were planning a 12 per cent hike on Jan. 1.

Venezuela Mines Minister Valentin Hernandez said the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries might hold a special meeting soon to discuss Ford's speech.

The French government announced it will cut back France's 1975 oil imports by 10 per cent. A government spokesman said petroleum imports would be limited to $10.1 billion, the same amount that is being spent this year.

Rose Hosting Improving Cardinals

Defensive Back Ronald Randolph

Rose High School football coach Dave Bumgarner is hoping that his Rampants are going to stop being in an early Christmas mood Friday night and settle down to some serious football.

"We have to. Jacksonville isn't the type of team that we can make the same mistakes against as we made against Kinston and still win," Bumgarner said.

The Rampants will be playing host to the Cardinals of Jacksonville Friday at 7:30 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium, seeking their fourth win in five starts.

Jacksonville, meanwhile, will be going for its third win in as many games. They've split their four games to date. Losses came in their first two games, a 22-0 decision to White Oak, and a 22-0 whipping by Wilmington Hoggard. But since then, they've come back to down West Cartaret, 45-0 and Scotland Neck, 26-0, giving them a two-game streak of holding their opponents scoreless.

For the Rampants, however, Bumgarner's biggest worry is the Rampants themselves. Eight times this year, Rose has been scored upon. "Seven of those were nothing but gifts," Bumgarner said. "We either gave up the ball in excellent field position for our opponent, or we let them get off a long kick return for a score. Only New Bern's first touchdown was truly earned. They drove the ball 80 yards on us, and deserved their score." Last week against the Kinston Vikings, Rose fumbled the ball

Being In Right Place Pays Off

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Being in the right place at the right time has paid off for one Rose High School football player.

"My duties usually include blocking the safety or one of the defensive backs," Max Ray Joyner said. "Then, I'm free to just block downfield for the ballcarrier."

Doing this has twice produced touchdowns for the offensive guard of the Rampants, probably making him the leading touchdown producer from his position in the state.

It's made him the number two scorer on the Rose High School team as it is, with 12 points.

The first of his scores came in the game against New Bern. He picked up a fumble near the five yard line and carried it into the end zone for the final score in that game. It nearly helped Rose to pull off a comeback victory in the game.

The second touchdown came in the Kinston game, and was the first of that contest, giving him back-to-back scores. This time, he fell on another teammate's fumble in the end zone.

And on both scores, Joyner came from the opposite side of the line from the play to get the ball.

"Max was one of those dark horses at the start of the year that we really didn't know what to do with," Coach Dave Bumgarner said of the junior lineman. "He's only 5-11, and he weighs 160 pounds, and that's not very big for an offensive lineman. But he does an exceptionally good job of blocking, and he does a good job of getting around the ball to help the ball carrier downfield. He gives a 150 per cent effort. Of course, sometimes he does get beat, but away four times, giving Kinston the ball in excellent field position each time. "But it is a tribute to our defense that they held them every time but once—even when we fumbled at the six—and even then it took them three plays to push it in, and just did then," the coach said.

"We've got to quit playing Santa Claus and start doing some things for ourselves instead," he said. "The main problem on our fumbles is that our backs are taking their eyes off the ball during the pitchout, to look ahead, and this is causing them to not look the ball into their hands."

Bumgarner was also questioned as to how Kinston managed to get almost as much yardage on their last series as they did the rest of the game put together. "They had stopped us on downs inside the ten, and we were giving them the run. We really expected them to try and pass on us, since so little time was left, so the secondary and the linebackers were playing back. They just took advantage of it and run the ball well.

"Still, I think our defense is doing an excellent job. When the offense turns the ball over so deep in our own territory, they

Hard Passes Finding Mark

Lying at the bottom of a closet in the McAlley home in New Rochelle, N. Y., is a battered and beat-up catcher's mitt. It's caught its last pass.

That's right—pass. You see, Southern Illinois quarterback Fred McAlley had it all figured this summer. He would throw daily to his 16-year-old brother to prepare for his senior season with the Salukis.

"The first pass I threw," the 6-3, 172-pounder recalled, "caused my brother to yell with pain. He claimed I hurt his hand."

"So I went out and bought a catcher's mitt. I had my brother run a pattern and knock the ball down with the catcher's mitt," McAlley said.

When McAlley lines up Saturday night at 7:30 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium to face unbeaten East Carolina, his receivers won't be wearing catcher's mitts.

That was proven last week at Indiana State as McAlley completed 6 of 13 passes for 112 yards, including a 52-yard aerial to split end Bruce Puhf for a touchdown.

In that game, McAlley was pitching in relief. Starter Leonard Hopkins had been slightly injured sending McAlley into the game in the second quarter.

have a big job to do, and they've done it pretty well, I think."

Bumgarner is also pleased with the offense. "They are doing the best job of executing they've ever done," he said. "They have picked up the plays, blocked better, and our running has been excellent. The only disappointing thing is our passing, and we really aren't that unhappy about that. When you're picking up five yards a carry on the ground, you don't have to pass too much."

Bumgarner pointed out that the three starting running backs all are averaging over five yards a carry. Doug Paschal, the leading rusher, had 456 yards for a 5.6 average, while Lidberg Morris had 361, a 6.1 mark. Andrew Newton had 214 yards and a 6.3 average.

"Even when we had Al Hunter and Reggie Perkins running in the backfield, we didn't do quite that well. They averaged a little more rushing as a team, but we only had two backs over five yards a carry."

Jacksonville will present a team against the Rampants much like the one they just faced in Kinston—led by a running quarterback.

Leander Green, the quarterback, has been their principal ball carrier so far this year, but the two running backs, Wayne Humphrey and Reggie Sandlin picked up over 100 yards each in their last game—something that Jacksonville hadn't done all year.

"He's really a better runner than the Kinston quarterback," Bumgarner said of Green. "He can pass off the scramble or turn it into a good run."

"I expect them to be just as (Continued on page 14)"

Pirates Rank Ninth In National Rushing

East Carolina University's Pirates have moved up to ninth in the nation in rushing offense, the NCAA reports.

According to the national statistics, released this week, the Bucs are rushing for 340.5 yards a game. They moved up from 14th place last week. Oklahoma, after one game, leads the country with a 438 average.

The rushing category is the only one in which the Bucs appear, although they are just out of the top 14 in scoring defense, allowing seven points a game. The 14th place team, Pacific, has allowed 6.7 per game in three outings.

A number of East Carolina opponents, however, do appear throughout the national statistics, along with other Southern and ACC teams.

Harry Knight of Richmond currently ranks fourth in total offense with a 244.5 average, while Bill Deery of William & Mary is sixth at 227.3, and Tom Vosberg of Dayton is 10th at 205. Scott Gardner of Virginia, an ACC member, is second at 311.5.

In rushing, Deery ranks 13th at 133.7, while Andrew Johnson of The Citadel is 24th at 116.1. Duke's Larry Martinez is 16th with a 124.5 average.

Knight is eighth in passing averaging 15.0 completions a game. Vosberg is 16th with a 13.0 mark. Gardner leads the nation with 19.5 a game.

Appalachian State's Joe

Parker is the sixth best punter with a 43.9 average. Johnny Evans of N.C. State is 15th at 42.4. Other ACC members include Phil Waganheim, of Maryland, fifth at 43.9, and Bob Grupp of Duke, 16th at 42.2.

Dave Preston of Bowling Green, a 24-6 victim of East Carolina, is third in scoring with a 15.0 average. Ken Shelton of Virginia is tied with Martinez for first with an 18.0 average, while James Betterson of North Carolina is eighth at 12.0.

In all-purpose running, Shelton is eighth with a 173.0 mark, followed by Betterson at 172.5. Martinez is 12th at 157.0, and Milly Jerome of North Carolina is 25th at 138.0.

In receiving, Mike Mahoney of Richmond is fourth with 7 per game, while Gary Pomeroy of Davidson is 13th with five a game. Shelton is second with 8.5 a contest, and Jerome is 13th with five.

In punt returns, Dayton's Greg Meter is sixth, returning an average of 22 yards a punt.

Davidson's Mike Eubanks is second in the nation in interceptions with two.

Dick Pawlewicz of William & Mary is tied for fourth with Betterson in kickoff returns, both averaging 37.3 yards a return. Ralph Stringer of State is ninth at 28.0, and Troy Slade of Duke is 13th with 26.5.

Among the team category, Virginia is fourth in total offense, 483.0 per game, while State is sixth, 469, and North Carolina is 10th, 451.5.

Virginia leads the nation in passing offense, with 286.5 yards a game, while Richmond is fourth at 242.5. Dayton is seventh at 206.3, North Carolina is ninth at 204.0, and State is 15th with a 184.3 average.

Carolina is 10th in scoring with a 36.5 average, while State and Virginia are tied for 15th with 33 per game.

Appalachian State is eighth in total defense, allowing 183.7 yards a game, and 12th in rushing defense, allowing 101.3 per game.

Maryland is sixth in punting, hitting 45.4 per boot.

In scoring defense, North Carolina is tied for second with a 3.5 point per game allowance, while Appalachian State is eighth, giving up 4.7.

Gardner's 25 passes completed against Navy, his 309 yards passing against William & Mary, and his fourth touchdown passes in each game rank as national highs so far. Shelton's 241 yards in receptions against William & Mary is the highest so far.

Record Doesn't Fool NC Coach

By The Associated Press
Although Maryland has lost its first two games, North Carolina football Coach Bill Dooley still thinks the Terrapins are one of the best teams in the country.

"Maryland has an excellent team," says Dooley. "Their offense is solid and their defense is just tremendous. They were the pre-season favorites to win the Atlantic Coast Conference championship and their opening performances have justified that high ranking."

Dooley's Tar Heels, winners of their first two games, and the Terps square off in a regionally televised game Saturday afternoon, with North Carolina trying to avenge a 23-3 whipping last season.

Other games involving ACC teams have Virginia at Duke, North Carolina State at Syracuse and Clemson hosting Georgia Tech. Wake Forest is idle.

State stands atop the league standings with all three of its victories being conference games, while the Tar Heels are second, having beaten Wake Forest in their only conference test.

Maryland could move into second place with a win. Duke and Clemson have each lost a conference game, Wake Forest has dropped a pair and Virginia will be facing its first conference foe.

Dooley is impressed with Maryland's tacklers, but "doubting our problems is the fact that their offense is just as good as their defense," he says. "Their offensive line is solid and they have great depth in the backfield, along with a super performer in tailback Louis Carter."

Maryland, ranked No. 14 in the Associated Press poll last week, fell out of the rankings by losing to fourth-rated Alabama and a strong Florida team on successive weekends.

In spite of that, Dooley feels, "They definitely belong in the top 20."

The Terrapins, who have scored 26 points in two games, will have to contain a potent Tar Heel attack that has measured out passing and running in about equal doses in racking up 73 points against Ohio and Wake Forest.

Halfbacks James Betterson and Mike Voight have gained 211 and 135 yards respectively, while wingback Jimmy Jerome has gained 262 yards on 10 pass receptions, one for a touchdown.

Quarterback Chris Kupec has completed 12 of 15 passes for 214 yards and a touchdown. Alternating signal caller Billy Paschall has a dozen completions in 17 attempts with no TDs.

Meanwhile, at Durham, the Duke Blue Devils will have to figure out how to stop the heretofore unstoppable combo of quarterback Scott Gardner and split end Ken Shelton.

Gardner is the nation's leading passer, and Shelton is No. 2 in receiving. The Cavalier quarterback has completed 39 of 73 for 573 yards and eight touchdowns in two games and Shelton has caught 17 for 346 yards and six touchdowns.

Shelton is also tied for the national scoring lead with none other than Duke's Larry Martinez, who has scored all six of the Blue Devil touchdowns.

Foreman To Be Ready

By JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer
KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — George Foreman has stopped dodging and weaving and says he'll definitely be dodging and weaving against Muhammad Ali on Oct. 30.

The heavyweight champion, whose freak sparring-session eye cut postponed the $30-million title fight — originally set for Sept. 25 — displayed Wednesday what appeared to be a healing injury in one of two sessions with newsmen.

The first meeting with reporters came when he removed the bandage from the one-inch cut below his right eyebrow. It was sustained Sept. 16 either by a jab or an elbow from 36-year-old sparring partner Bill McMurray, hired by Foreman to imitate Ali's quick, dancing moves.

With part of Foreman's right eyebrow shaved away, the scar was barely visible, and it seemed to be healing neatly with no sign of swelling.

"I'm confident the healing is under way," he said. "If everything continues going on this way, I feel I'll be able to defend my title ... The eye seems to have gotten right back to where it was — almost."

But at that first news conference, Foreman refused to say definitely that he would defend his title on Oct. 30, the new date announced by promoters.

Three hours later, however, Foreman faced the newsmen again and said flatly: "I'm fighting Ali on Oct. 30... I'm contracted to the promoters to fight on their date. I owe all the exhibitors a firm date."

Spiders Open Bid For Title

Associated Press
Coach Bobby Ross of the Citadel is concerned about the passing of Richmond's Harry Knight, and Knight is concerned about the Spiders winning the Southern Conference football title.

Both teams would like to improve on their 1973 records, although the Spiders, 8-2, have a shorter road to travel than the Bulldogs, 3-8.

The two teams meet each other Saturday night in Bulldog territory in what is first conference game of the season for both teams. Richmond is a heavy favorite.

Richmond, 2-0, has upset West Virginia's Mountaineers, 29-25, after putting on an unbelievable comeback in the space of 2½ minutes to knock off Villanova the first weekend of the season.

The Bulldogs, 1-1, haven't had much to get excited about during the young season. A 6-0 winner against Presbyterian Sept. 14, the Citadel aggregation was badly trounced by Delaware State, 48-12, last weekend.

In other conference action this weekend, Virginia Military's Keydets, 1-1, play Davidson, 0-1, in a match at the Wildcats' home field and William and Mary, 1-2, travels to Furman, 0-1. In games outside the conference, league-leading Appalachian State, 3-0, plays host to Western Carolina and Southern Illinois visits East Carolina's Pirates, 2-0.

"People say a certain game makes you or breaks you," said Red Schoendienst, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, as he savored his team's nerve-wrenching 13-12 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates. "If there ever was a game to do it, this was it."

Rookie Jim Dwyer, a seldom-used St. Louis reserve, knocked in the winning run with a sacrifice fly in the 11th inning Wednesday night. The Cardinals recovered from a 5-0 first-inning deficit, then bounced back after the Pirates had scored three times in the top of the 11th and had taken a 12-9 lead.

The Cards' victory lifted them into first place, one-half game ahead of the Pirates. Their edge is in the win column. They have won one more game than Pittsburgh. Both teams have lost the same number of games. St. Louis has six games remaining — all on the road — three at Chicago and three at Montreal. Pittsburgh has seven games left — four at New York and three at home against Chicago.

Meanwhile, in the National League West, the first-place

Los Angeles Dodgers were beaten by the Atlanta Braves 5-2 and their lead over Cincinnati was reduced to four games. The Reds kept their dim pennant hopes alive with a 4-1 triumph over the Houston Astros. The Dodgers' pennant-clinching number is three. Both Los Angeles and Cincinnati have six games left.

In other National League action, the San Diego Padres edged the San Francisco Giants 3-2, the Philadelphia Phillies swept a doubleheader from the New York Mets 6-2, 6-3, and the Montreal Expos beat the Chicago Cubs twice 7-1, 3-2.

Ted Sizemore began St. Louis' winning rally with a single in the bottom of the 11th against rookie Juan Jimenez, the Pirates' sixth pitcher. Reggie Smith walked and Ted Sizemore doubled, driving in Sizemore and driving out Jimenez.

Then with another rookie, Jim Minshall, pitching, Joe Torre grounded to second baseman Rennie Stennett, who had not made an error in 59 previous games but whose string was broken when he dropped a flyball in the fifth inning. Stennett then made his second error of the game, throwing wildly to first, as Smith and Simmons raced home, tying the score 12-12.

After Ken Reitz struck out, Bake McBride bunted safely, and Dwyer followed with his game-winning sacrifice fly, scoring pinch runner Larry Herndon.

Braves 5, Dodgers 2
Two-run homers by Darrell Evans and Dusty Baker in the seventh inning against Los Angeles relief ace Mike Marshall highlighted a Braves' five-run rally and stalled the Dodgers' pennant drive.

Reds 4, Astros 1
Rookie Ken Griffey continued his hot hitting for Cincinnati, stroking two hits, driving in one run and scoring one. Griffey has 11 hits in his last 19 at-bats for a .570 average.

Griffey's hitting backed the pitching of Clay Kirby and rookie Rawly Eastwick, who combined for an eight-hitter. Padres 3, Giants 2
Run-scoring singles by Dave Winfield and John Grubb in the eighth inning lifted San Diego past San Francisco.

Phil's 6-6, Mets 2-3
Tom Hutton's three-run pinch homer off Mets' ace Tom Seaver in the fifth inning was the big blow for the Phils in the opener, enabling Philadelphia to overcome a 2-0 deficit. Larry Cox' two-run double in the second inning keyed a five-run up-rising and helped the Phils win the nightcap.

Expos 7-3, Cubs 1-2
Tom Walker pitched a six-hitter for his first complete game in the majors and Willie Davis and Bob Bailey slugged homers for the Expos in the opener. In the second game, Steve Rogers and Dale Murray combined on a seven-hitter for Montreal.

Wrong Choice Lets Orioles Hold Lead

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer
Detroit Tiger Manager Ralph Houk peered out of the dugout and considered the situation.

The Tigers were leading 4-3 in the bottom of the ninth inning. Baltimore had two men out and runners on second and third. Mickey Lolich was tiring on the mound and crafty veteran Tommy Davis was stepping up to the plate with young Don Baylor on deck.

What to do? Do you walk Davis, a man who almost always hits the ball someplace, or do you pitch to him rather than Baylor, who has been hot lately?

Houk chose the latter and Davis promptly provided meat for armchair managers across the country by looping a soft liner over second base to drive in two runs.

Game over. Orioles win 5-4. "It was a lucky hit," conceded Davis. "I thought they might walk me, then I saw Houk motion to the right fielder to come in. You have to have a hit like that when they move everybody in." The victory kept Baltimore one-half game ahead of the New York Yankees in the American League East. The Yanks outlasted Boston 1-0 in 10 innings.

Elsewhere, Minnesota beat Oakland 1-0, Cleveland whipped Milwaukee 8-3, California blanked Kansas City 7-0 and the Chicago-Texas double header was rained out.

Lolich, 16-20, breezed into the ninth with a 4-2 lead, thanks in part to a two-run triple by Dan Meyer. But Andy Etchebarren singled with one out and Curt Motton walked. Paul Blair singled in one run and Bobby Grich belted a long fly ball to move the runners into scoring position. Then Davis won it with his dying quail off a Lolich

Bumgarner added that he thought that Rose could move the ball on the Cardinals. "I think we'll be able to score on them, but we've got to quite making silly mistakes and turning the ball over in good field position for our opponents," he said.

Two Ramparts are injured, oddly enough, both with broken fingers—Macon Moye and Mike Murad—but both are expected to be able to play in the game. Tim Toates, who saw only limited action last week because of illness, is expected to be back at full strength.

Language Arts Hondurans Largely Ignored Fifi Threat Conference Set

"Learning Disabilities and the Language Arts" will be the theme of the fourth Language Arts Conference at East Carolina University, scheduled for Nov. 7-8.

The conference, an annual offering of the ECU Department of English, will focus on reading and writing instructions for semi-literate secondary school pupils. Eastern N.C. teachers in the language arts are invited to attend.

Four main topics will be the subject of conference lectures and discussion: faculty linguistic habits, socio-emotional problems which interfere with learning, diversity in linguistic competence, and remedial reading and writing programs.

Conference director Janice Hardison Faulkner described the conference as "a product of a continuing effort by the ECU English department to stay attuned to a constantly changing scene."

Conference leaders include Dr. John Lutz of the ECU psychology faculty; Dr. Mabel Laughter of the special education faculty; Dr. James Kirkland, Dr. Keats Sparrow, Ruth Fleming and Dr. James Wright of the English faculty; Bertie Fearing, Chairman of Humanities at Pitt Technical Institute; and Anne Burke, Director of Remedial Reading at Pitt Technical Institute.

For further information, teachers interested in participating in the conference should ask their schools' language arts directors or write Mrs. Faulkner at the ECU Department of English.

All conference events will be held in the ECU Mendenhall Student Center.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras — No one in Honduras paid much attention early last week as Hurricane Fifi crept through the Caribbean sea.

It was just another storm to the 2.6 million people in this triangle-shaped Central American country.

Fifi is gone. But Honduras, a nation reeking of poverty, is flat on its back with Fifi's name etched forever in the national memory, the worst disaster in Honduran history.

The government estimates that 7,500-8,000 died. No one will ever know for sure how many perished. The National Emergency Committee said another 100,000 are homeless.

No one knows how many people died of hunger after Fifi destroyed almost 50 per cent of the nation's food crops.

The Hondurans were undernourished, hungry, in abject poverty, before the storm came. In their usual state of malnutrition they were not up to holding on for the three, four or five days it took for the floods to recede enough to get food and shelter to them.

With almost half this season's corn and bean crops gone, the nation faces starvation.

Poverty is common in Honduras; the average annual income is less than $260. Many peasants have almost no cash income; they live off their crops and by bartering. Beggars abound in the cities. Boys drop out of first grade to shine shoes to help buy food.

People were warned about Fifi. But few paid attention. Only 10 days before, Hurricane Carmen skirted the coast without serious damage. Even if the barefoot, poorly clad people wanted to leave they had nowhere to go and no way to get there.

Measured against other killer storms, Fifi was just a kitten. The storm had sustained winds of 125 miles an hour with gusts up to 140 m.p.h. Carmen's winds gusted up to 175 m.p.h. and there was no large loss of life.

Fifi did her damage with water. She dumped up to 24 inches of rain in 36 hours on north-eastern Honduras.

As Fifi's eye trudged slowly offshore, tides 15 feet above normal rose in the mangrove swamps, blocking the flow of the rivers. The torrential rain suddenly turned tranquil mountain streams into raging torrents. The streams flowed into the Uluu, Chamelecon and Aguan rivers, and the rivers had nowhere to go except over their banks.

Damage throughout the country far surpassed the gross national product. Between 80 and 95 per cent of the banana crop was wiped out, with a loss of half a billion dollars.

People tried to help. But the aid pouring in from other countries in plane after plane ran into bottlenecks. Only 20 per cent of the railroad lines survived. There are few paved roads.

As the first week after the storm neared its end, reports came in of outbreaks of disease. Rotting bodies of the dead, animal and human, were taking their toll.

Expects Report On Summitry

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House Press Secretary Ron Nesen says he expects President Ford to "have some important things to say" about the economy on Saturday but that he has seen no shift in the President's attitude.

He said that he expects the President to speak out at the conclusion of a summit session of government and private economists and businessmen, but that he assumes any major decisions about a new course of action will require additional time.

Contradiction To Agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House Foreign Affairs Committee vote to limit American military aid to South Korea in fiscal 1975 is a total contradiction to previous U.S. agreements, according to the State Department.

The committee agreed on Tuesday to limit military aid to the Seoul government to $100 million because of alleged tyrannical actions by President Chung Hee Park.

Speaking for the State Department, Robert Anderson said the committee action "a total contradiction to the program we agreed to to modernize South Korean forces." He said the arrangement was part and parcel with an agreement allowing the United States to reduce its forces in South Korea.

Recruiters Face Action

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Lt. Col. Richard H. Marshall, commander of the U. S. Army's Charlotte District Recruiting Command, says he has begun making preliminary recommendations for disciplining some recruiters charged with recruiting malpractices.

The alleged malpractices turned up in an investigation begun late in 1973 and involved such charges as falsification of birth certificates, parental consent forms, police record checks and other actions to get unqualified men into the Army.

Marshall declined Wednesday to elaborate on what action he plans to take. His district embraces western North Carolina and part of South Carolina.

"I'm just now involved in making my preliminary recommendations for the Asheville zone, and I can't discuss it further. I want to talk to each recruiter who has been involved, or against whom allegations have been made," Marshall said.

The investigation also has broadened to take in the Kannapolis and Winston-Salem recruiting zones.

Other alleged malpractices include manufacture of fake high school diplomas and falsification of high school certificates.

Big Deficit In Sugar Quotas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says there will be a deficit of 600,000 short tons in the amount of sugar that U.S. areas are expected to supply under their quota this year. The shortage was re-assigned to 29 foreign countries.

Officials said domestic beet areas would be down 200,000 tons; mainland cane areas (Florida and Louisiana) 350,000 tons; and Hawaii 100,000. Puerto Rico, however, has been able to supply 50,000 tons more than indicated earlier, meaning a net domestic shortfall of 600,000 tons.

Rumsfeld Committee Unregistered

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A 13-year-old political committee set up for newly appointed presidential aide Donald Rumsfeld did not register under the 1972 federal campaign reporting law until it went out of business this year, documents on file with the Senate show.

Rumsfeld's former campaign manager said the committee was not required to file under the law that took effect April 7, 1972. But officials charged with monitoring the act said the committee should have registered, if not when the law took effect, at least by 1973 when it took preliminary soundings on a possible Rumsfeld race for the Senate in Illinois.

Rumsfeld, a former House member who resigned from Congress in 1969 to join the Nixon administration, was due in Washington today for his new assignment as an assistant to President Ford. He is to serve as coordinator of the White House staff and schedule.

He has been U.S. ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.
Rumsfeld could not be reached for comment on the political committee, initially created in 1961 for the first of his four campaigns for the House.

Reports filed last February show that the Rumsfeld Committee had a balance of nearly $20,000 at the beginning of 1969. It had some income primarily from interest, and spent nearly $10,000 in closing out 1968 House campaign expenses before the reporting law took effect.

The law says a political committee must register if it "anticipates receiving contributions or making expenditures" of more than $1,000 during a calendar year.

Chicago attorney Donald Lowitz, who served as Rumsfeld's campaign manager in four successful House races between 1962 and 1968, said the committee wasn't required to register because it didn't anticipate receiving or spending money, since Rumsfeld had resigned Congress and was serving in appointive positions in the Nixon administration.

However, committee records on file here say: "In 1973, the committee began to consider the possibility of its proposing that Mr. Rumsfeld be a candidate for the United States Senate from the State of Illinois in the 1974 election."

opinion poll conducted and arranged to hire an office manager but did not pursue a Rumsfeld senatorial campaign.
It paid $10,000 in outstanding bills, taxes and final accounting fees, contributed $3,057 to the U.S. Treasury and went out of business on Feb. 4. A final accounting of its activities for the previous five years was received by Secretary of the Senate Francis R. Valeo on Feb. 8.

When asked about the case, officials in Valeo's office said the committee should have registered within 10 days of the decision to take preliminary steps toward a senatorial campaign.

DR. PATRICIA G. HURLEY AT WORKSHOP

Dr. Patricia G. Hurley of the East Carolina University School of Home Economics was among 100 men and women from all regions of the U.S. at a recent "Aesthetics Responsibility Workshop" in Snowmass, Colorado.

State Insurance Commissioner John R. Ingram said Wednesday that he is calling on the companies to give him recent figures on their income from premiums and how much they pay in claims. He said they have until Oct. 21 to provide the information.

Ingram said the figures supplied by the companies will be used to determine how much credit insurance rates should be cut. The North Carolina Bankers Association has supported a 20 per cent rate cut but Ingram is pushing for cuts up to 50 per cent.

If the companies don't cut their rates voluntarily, the commission will order reductions, Ingram said. It will be about a month before a decision can be made on how much the rates should be cut, he said.

Credit Insurance Premiums 'Rare'

RALEIGH (AP)—A North Carolina credit insurance executive testified Wednesday that his company collected $4.7 million in premiums during 1973 and paid less than $150,000 in claims.

Testifying at a hearing on credit insurance companies, J.B. Martin Jr., president and chairman of the board of First Protection Life Insurance Co., said the company paid out in claims less than 3 per cent of its income from premiums.

He said the company sells insurance only through franchised auto dealers. He said commissions on the insurance run as high as 62.5 per cent. Martin testified on behalf of the Association of North Carolina Life Insurance Companies.

Credit life and accident and health insurance is sold as part of a loan. If a person dies or becomes disabled, the loan is paid by the insurance company.

One of the purposes of the hearing which ended yesterday and will resume Oct. 25 is to determine whether the approximately 85 credit insurance firms in North Carolina are making excessive profits.

Arrest Juvenile In Purse Theft

Greenville Police have charged a 15-year-old juvenile with felonious breaking, entering and larceny, assault with a deadly weapon, and resisting arrest following the investigation of car break-in on Tuesday.

Police reported that Ms. Patricia Mooring of Lot 16-A, Kenland Manor Trailer Park, told officers that when she returned to her car at a local shopping center Tuesday morning, she discovered her purse missing.

Officers, who reported that the purse was recovered, arrested the juvenile Wednesday around 12:30 p.m.

Greece 'Rules Out' Kissinger As Mediator In Cyprus Case

By GENE KRAMER
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.
(AP) — Greece has ruled out Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger as a mediator trusted by us and trusted by the Turks," Greek Foreign Minister George Mavros told a news conference on Wednesday. Mavros said he could understand Kissinger's interest in the Cyprus situation because of its danger to world peace. He said, "Any interest is well accepted, but not as an official mediator."

'Shangri-La' Is Now Merged

By BRIAN JEFFRIES
Associated Press Writer
RAWALPINDI, Pakistan
(AP) — The tiny landlocked mountain kingdom of Hunza, which claims to be the original Shangri La, has lost its last vestige of independence and become part of Pakistan.

Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto of Pakistan announced the merger during a tour of tribal areas along the Pakistan-China border. Pakistan "is one and cannot afford to have states within a state," Bhutto said. "It belongs to the peasants and the workers, not to nawabs and mirs (princes and kings). We have no enmity for any individual, but we have to end the reactionary system and run the country according to our mandate."

Home Minister Abdul Qayyum Khan said the merger was effective immediately, and officials from the Pakistani government had been sent to take over the administration. The merger ends 900 years of benevolent feudalism for Hunza and retires the state's 65-year-old ruling mir, Lt. Gen. Jamal Khan, on a pension.

The tranquil life of Hunza, the longevity of its people and their apparently idyllic way of life are said to have inspired James Hilton's novel "Lost Horizon."

But the world has been steadily moving in on Hunza since the partition of India and the withdrawal of the British in 1947. Since then, the mir has been reduced to little more than a figurehead with responsibility only for resolving local disputes according to custom.

After a cordial meeting with Mavros on Tuesday, Kissinger hinted to a newsmen he might stop in Cyprus during his trip to the Middle East next month. "The United States is prepared to do what is useful to bring about a fair and workable solution, including possibly my direct involvement," he said. Kissinger also talked on Tuesday with Turkish Foreign Minister Turan Guner and scheduled additional meetings with both Guner and Mavros after his return to New York Sunday night. But neither the Greeks nor Turks have ever asked Kissinger publicly to intervene.

Greek hostility toward the United States erupted during the Turkish invasion because Kissinger failed to prevent the invasion and then failed to check the Turkish advance. There were anti-American demonstrations in Athens and other Greek cities, with chants and placards denouncing "Killer Kissinger."

Although both Mavros and Guner are in New York for the United Nations General Assembly, they refuse to see each other, diplomats said. The diplomats disclosed, however, that the two governments have maintained contact through West Germany, one of the few European countries continuing to have equally good relations with both Ankara and Athens.

Return 25 Counts In Bombing Action

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 31-year-old Yugoslavian immigrant, accused of terrorizing Los Angeles as the so-called "alphabet bomber," has been named in a 25-count indictment.

Muharem Kurbegovic was charged by the county grand jury with 3 murder counts, 6 arson counts, 15 counts of violating laws on use of destructive devices and one count of willful and malicious burning of personal property.

Superior Court Judge Raymond Choate set Oct. 2 for arraignment of Kurbegovic after the indictment was announced on Wednesday. He was also ordered held without bail as he has been since his arrest Aug. 22.

Charges in the indictment stem mainly from a Aug. 6 explosion at Los Angeles International Airport in which three persons were killed and 35 injured in the Pan American World Airways section of the international terminal.

Fifty-seven witnesses appeared before the grand jury, including survivors of the blast that rocked the busy airport, shattering windows and scattering bodies and furniture.

Gifts Rescue Small College After Loss Of 30 Students

By GERALD J. TAYLOR
Associated Press Writer
MOUNT CARROLL, Ill. (AP) — Shimer College announced last year that a decrease in enrollment was forcing it to close the books on 120 years' tradition. It had lost 30 students.

But a clamor from students, faculty and alumni and $300,000 in donations forced trustees to take another look. So, a new academic year has started for the tiny liberal arts school known for its emphasis on classic literature and innovative teaching programs.

"We're so small that we didn't need millions to save it," said Ralph Hough, executive assistant to Shimer President Esther G. Weinstein.

"Now our biggest problem is convincing people that we're not dead. There was a lot of publicity when we decided to close, but no one's said anything about our staying open."

The school, which opened in September 1853, was slated to close Dec. 31, 1973.

Students, parents and alumni donated the money; administrators pared budgets and the registrar launched a direct-mail recruitment campaign.

"We had two $25,000 donations, but most of the money came in small gifts — $5, $10, a few $100 donations," said Hough.

Full enrollment climbed back to about 200, and the doors to the 16 aging buildings on the 40-acre campus stayed open.

"For a school of 1,000 students, losing 30 isn't a big thing," Hough said. "But here it was a disaster."

Officials hope the recruitment program will soon boost enrollment to about 400.

The school boasts a one-to-nine faculty-student ratio, and offers little in the way of vocational majors, popular at larger schools.

It pioneered early entrance programs for bright students.

To graduate, a student must pass comprehensive examinations regardless of class credits compiled in his studies.

Many students major in general education. Others follow prelaw and premedical courses. Shimer is still not out of the woods, but it's no longer under the gun.

"We're no Harvard yet — financially at least, but everyone decided (Shimer) was too valuable to let it vanish," said Hough.

Inmate Says Mistreated

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Jodie V. Austen, an inmate of Central Prison in Raleigh, has filed suit charging that the sheriff of Union County violated his constitutional rights and forced him to endure cruel and unusual punishment in the county jail.

The suit, filed Tuesday in U. S. District Court in Charlotte, seeks $100,000 in damages from Sheriff Frank I. Fowler. Austen also seeks a permanent injunction to prevent further alleged misuses of power by Fowler.

According to the suit, Austen was arrested May 1, 1973, on a charge of incest and was held under Fowler's custody in the Union County jail for 329 days.

Austen was convicted of incest and sentenced to 10 to 15 years in prison, which he has appealed. He has been kept at Central Prison pending the outcome of the appeal, prison officials said.

Austen charged that he was denied needed medical treatment and that when his mother sought to arrange for him to be treated, the sheriff put him in solitary confinement.

The suit alleges that the sheriff took Austen's mattress and blanket in September and, when it became cold, turned on the air conditioning instead of the heat.

Austen said in the suit he was denied writing materials and did not get enough to eat.

CHEVROLET FOR 1975. CARS THAT MAKE SENSE FOR TODAY.

MONZA 2+2 The small car of tomorrow will probably be a little more powerful, handy and comfortable than ever. The 1975 Monza 2+2, shown above, offers this today. It has advances like rectangular headlights set in a soft front end, fold-down rear seat, and a new 4.3-liter V8 engine available.

NOVA In the background above, our new Nova LN Sedan. A luxurious Nova with thick carpeting and wide-back reclining front seats. For 1975, all Novas have been emphatically refined along the lines of elegant European sedans. Nova's always been good. Now it's beautiful.

CAMARO Our sensibly sporty compact. It looks like a million and drives like it looks.

IMPALA America's favorite car continues to provide the room many families need plus plenty of quiet and comfort. Still the great American value.

WAGONS Big ones, small ones, in-between ones. Practical wagons that make sense for America. And you.

CHEVELLE Mid-size, easy to drive, room for six, mid-priced, strong reputation for value. America's most popular intermediate.

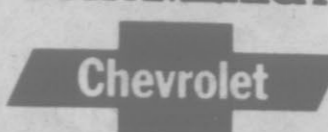

MONTE CARLO Its special ability: making you feel good. About the way it looks and drives. About your own taste and judgment.

CHEVROLET'S NEW EFFICIENCY SYSTEM FOR 1975 It's the key part of a program aimed at helping our new cars run leaner (more economically), run cleaner—and save you money every mile.

The Efficiency System is standard on all 1975 Chevrolets with V8 or 6-cylinder engines. It's a series of significant engineering improvements working together for the very first time. Components include High Energy Ignition, catalytic converter, Early Fuel Evaporation and steel-belted radial ply tires. In sum, the System is designed to heighten the pleasure and lower the cost of driving a 1975 Chevrolet—to bring you a better running car in many ways, along with improved fuel economy, more miles between recommended maintenance and an engine that stays cleaner internally because of no-leak fuel.

Your Chevrolet dealer will gladly give you the details and answer your questions. See him and the sensible 1975 Chevrolets starting September 27.

Amnesty May Not Apply To Ex-Citizens

By BARTON REPERT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Department officials say President Ford's amnesty program may exclude Vietnam-era draft evaders and deserters who have become citizens of Canada or some other country.

"The Justice Department now feels that these people would not be eligible for the program and that if they came across the border they would run the risk of immediate arrest," a department spokesman said on Wednesday.

But the spokesman, John Russell, added that because of past court challenges and a lack of clear, specific legal precedents on loss of U.S. citizenship, "it's still arguable both ways."

In his proclamation on Sept. 16 putting the conditional amnesty program into effect, the President declared that "this program will not apply to an individual who is precluded from re-entering under 8 U.S.C. 1182 (a) (22) or other law."

The statute cited bars from re-entering the United States any alien who has left or remained outside the country in order to evade military service during wartime or national emergency.

At issue is whether U.S. citizens who have fled to Canada or abroad and taken out foreign citizenship become aliens, without formally renouncing their U.S. citizenship.

While the outcome potentially could affect several thousand war-resister exiles, at least for now it largely is a symbolic issue because few draft evaders and deserters in Canada or elsewhere have expressed a strong desire to return, except for brief visits.

However, he noted that Canada requires that persons obtain official "landed immigrant" status and remain in the country at least five years before they can apply for citizenship.

Because the major surge of exiles occurred as the Vietnam war was heating up in the late 1960s, "we're now moving into a period when there are thousands of others who are eligible and are making their decisions" on whether to opt for citizenship, Colhoun said in a telephone interview from Toronto.

Regarding landed immigrants, Canadian government officials again contend they lack any figures specifically on U.S. war resisters.

Over the five years 1968-72, immigrant status was obtained by 22,749 males aged 15 to 29. The annual number increased from 4,076 in 1968 up to 5,510 in 1970, then began declining to 3,980 in 1972.

Papyrus Was Beginning Of Civilization's Trouble

By ROBERT MUSEL, UPI Senior Editor
LONDON (UPI)—There was trouble down on the farm and the field hands went over the heads of the foremen to send a letter of complaint to the owner.

"There are a lot of mistakes because no one in charge knows about farming," they wrote. "Please call some of us in and listen to what we wish to tell you."

Nothing really unusual in that, except the date on the letter. It was written 2,331 years ago.

If there is anything at all remarkable about the petition of the disgruntled farmhands, and many of the other papyrus documents now on display at the British Museum, it is that humanity has changed so little over the centuries.

In ancient Egypt and Greece, where most of the documents on show were written, a loan shark demands high interest, a spoiled schoolboy writes petulantly to his father, a mother complains that her child is out of control, VIPs get special treatment, an ethnic minority is persecuted.

The ancient world recorded its triumphs and troubles, its letters and household accounts, its comedies and tragedies on papyrus—a plant that the Egyptians discovered some time around 3000 B.C. could be beaten into a writing surface.

"Civilization—or at the very least human history—depends on papyrus," Pliny the Elder wrote in 70 A.D.

That was pretty much the case until the Chinese invention of paper (the name is derived from papyrus) began to replace it, although the Vatican issued a papyrus document as late as 1057 A.D.

One of the great collections of papyrus material is in the British Museum, some of it from the library of L. Calpurnius Piso, father-in-law of Julius Caesar. And what is view now is a tantalizing sample of its richness.

"If you won't take me to Alexandria, I won't write you a letter or speak to you or greet you, so send for me...if you don't I won't eat, I won't drink. So there!"

That was a schoolboy of the early 3rd Century A.D., obviously a candidate for the woodshed. Dad's reply is not preserved.

The only papyrus letter in existence in which the hour of receipt is recorded dates from 254 B.C. and the recipient noted that it had arrived "Year 32, Mesore 2, at the 10th hour."

The reason will be understood by anyone who ever had to make arrangements for his boss:

"Apollonius to Zenon, greeting. As soon as you read this letter send off to Ptolemais the chariots and the other riding animals and the baggage-mules for the ambassadors from Pairisades and the delegates from Argos whom the King has sent to see the sights..."

Zenon was evidently covering any possible complaint that he was late on his share of the VIP reception.

Other letters report a complaint from an Egyptian that a squatter has moved into one of his houses, a loan to one Herakleides Valerius (122 A.D.) which he guarantees to repay with 50 per cent interest if he defaults on installments, from Emperor Claudius (41 A.D.) to the Alexandrians warning citizens and Jews not to break the law (there had been anti-Semitic riots) and no (sic) letter from Zenon to Menon for the following reason:

Epharmostos to his brother Zenon:

"The letter you wrote to Menon about Kallikon's money has been eaten by mice."

Can Still Tell Friends He Beat Computer

By BILL BUCY
PROVO, Utah (UPI)—The final score: Newsman 2, Computer 0.

Of course it was only a child's word game called Hangman, and I did do extensive pre-game training with a dictionary, but there is great satisfaction in beating an electronic brain at its own game.

My opponent was Brigham Young University's PDP-10 computer, a huge blue box that sits in its private air conditioned room blinking lights and looking superior to the operators who supposedly control it.

The game is simple. The computer puts up a stick figure of a person on a screen in front of a keyboard terminal. Below the figure are spaces representing a word chosen by the computer. The challenger must guess letters to fill the blanks.

Each time a letter is chosen that is not in the word picked by the computer, part of the stick figure disappears.

The computer had given me a seven letter word and I was down to my eyebrows before I came up with the final letter in "absolve."

The computer congratulated me and then, in a moment of spite, threw 13 spaces on the screen.

I was once again down to my eyebrows when the letter I picked created "enia" as the last four letters in the word. In desperation, I punched the "Z" key and it popped up as the fifth letter in the word. That did it.

I started punching the right buttons and in less time than it can be done on a typewriter, I won my second game by spelling "schizophrenia."

But playing games with a computer seems a waste of the computer's time, considering the huge investment involved, so I ended my games by punching "bye" and talked to Gary Carlson, director of the university's Computer Sciences Department.

"Computer games are more to be created than played," he said. "It's the planning of the program that is the real fun."

He said computer scientists like to devise game programs for the computers so they can say, "I made that machine do that."

"It's a great way for a student to learn programming skills," he said. "The programmer must taken into account all the variables and use the computer's brain to make the calculations—in millionths of a second."

The games played by computers around the nation range from tic-tac-toe and poker, involving straight mathematical computations, to elaborate, three-dimensional strategy games such as "Star Trek."

Carlson said I won my games because the computer couldn't calculate such variables as my vocabulary.

"It is possible to beat a computer at its own game, but the more difficult and mathematical the game, the sharper you have to be," Carlson said.

Chess, the most popular computer game, is one contest in which humans still have a chance. The computer is only as good as the programming instructions put into its memory cells.

That's why Columbia University's smaller and less expensive computer beat the University of Southern California's larger electronic brain in 51 moves.

But he said Bobby Fischer is still safe.

"Computer programs are still only on the state champion level," Carlson said. "Bobby Fischer, with his vast knowledge of games played in the past, can still beat a computer without those games."

The most popular game among computer experts, and one gaining international fame, is called "Star Trek," based on the popular science fiction television program.

In it, the universe is blocked off into three dimensional squares. There are "Klingons" (hostile aliens) to destroy, refueling bases, laser weapons and stars that get in the way of the starship Enterprise's travels.

The computer allows the Enterprise to search quadrants of the universe, fire weapons and destroy the enemy. Each time the weapons are shot, energy is expended and a certain number of foes must be destroyed before the ship's energy runs out.

Sometimes the game goes on for hours.

A rudimentary form of the game is played on computer-operated "pinball machines" in taverns and amusement centers.

While the games are fun, they also have educational value.

Carlson said if young children could be taught the simpler games, they would be more responsive to learning. But he says most schools can't afford computers and common use of the games as educational devices is still a few years away.

I left the computer center knowing all I had proved was that my vocabulary was better than that of the programmer who fed the words for "Hangman" into the computer.

But I still tell my friends that I beat the computer.

Pass Pass

Opening lead: Eight of ♠.

I am indebted to Walter Dedico of Swift Current, Sask. for this hand, featuring a pretty defensive play by East.

The hand turned up in a Swiss Teams event, and at both tables the final contract was four spades, reached on similar straightforward auctions. At each table the opening lead was West's singleton heart. Both Easts played the ten and declarer won with the king.

Though South would have liked to ruff a club in dummy, it was obviously much too dangerous to give up the lead, before trumps were drawn. East might win the club and give his partner a heart ruff, and if he had the ace of diamonds as well, a second heart ruff would defeat the contract. Thus, both declarers drew three rounds of trumps, then led the nine of hearts and passed it.

At one table, East won the nine with the queen, and that was the end of the hand. Declarer took the club return, crossed to dummy's ace of hearts and discarded two clubs on the long hearts. Though he eventually lost two diamond tricks, the contract was secure.

At Dedico's table, East allowed declarer's nine of hearts to win! While this left declarer with no heart loser, it effectively killed dummy's long suit, for East's ace-queen of diamonds over dummy's king-jack, prevented declarer from getting to the table. Though declarer could set up his fifth heart with a ruff, he had no way to get back to dummy to cash it. With careful defense, East-West were able to collect two tricks in each minor suit for a one-trick set.

Election Could Hurt Marriage

DETROIT (AP)—Robert Law and Teresa Gillis plan to marry Nov. 16 but the Nov. 5 election could have a dramatic effect on their marriage.

Both are candidates for the Michigan Legislature but from different districts within the city of Detroit. Under state law, a nominee must live in the district he seeks to represent.

Both are Republicans and acknowledged underdogs in their campaigns. But if both are elected, each one would have to maintain a residence in his or her district. The two districts are close to each other, but they are not adjacent.

"If we're both elected, we'll probably have a house in one district and an apartment in the other. I've checked, and that's legal," Law said.

Revival Series Through Sunday

Revival services will continue through Sunday at Emanuel Holiness Church, Gardenia Street, with the Rev. G. S. Holliday as the evangelist.

A singing program featuring the Gateways will be presented Saturday night. Refreshments will be on sale by the ladies of the church following the program.

Services will begin each night at 7:30 p.m.

The Rev. Woodrow Catlett is pastor.
