United States vs. John Mitchell, et al

Watergate Coverup Trial Is Begun In Washington

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Once mighty officials of the Nixon administration went on trial today on charges they tried to block the investigation of the June 1972 Watergate break-in.

At 9:29 a.m. by the courtroom clock, U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica entered the courtroom to preside in the case of "The United States versus John Mitchell, et al."

Most of the seats in the courtroom were taken by a panel of 170 prospective jurors. Sirica told them he would begin by asking general questions to weed out any obviously unqualified and then question the remainder in private.

Twelve jurors and six alternates will be chosen. Sirica has said he hopes to complete the trial before Christmas.

The five defendants include former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and ex-White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman.

The defense and prosecution have subpoenaed former President Nixon as a witness.

Neither Nixon nor his lawyer, Herbert J. Miller, has made any public response to the subpoenas. Monday, however, Dr. John C. Lungren, the ailing former President's physician, said he believes it would be "at least a month, maybe three months," before Nixon could travel from California to Washington.

Nixon entered Memorial Hospital Center of Long Beach, Calif., a week ago suffering from a recurrence of the phlebitis that troubled him during his last year in office. After he entered the hospital, doctors disclosed that a small blood clot had moved from Nixon's left leg to his right lung.

While still president, Nixon was named an unindicted co-conspirator in the case. President Ford subsequently granted him a pardon for any federal offenses committed while Nixon was in office.

The defendants sought unsuccessfully to delay the trial until next year on the grounds the unprecedented publicity generated by Watergate, including the resignation and pardon of Nixon, would make it impossible to find unbiased jurors.

Defendants along with Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman are former Assistant Atty. Gen. Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson, onetime attorney for Nixon's reelection committee.

Sirica granted a prosecution motion Monday to hold a separate trial for former White House aide Gordon C. Strachan. However, Sirica refused to dismiss the charges against Strachan, who claimed the case against him was based on testimony he gave under what he thought was an agreement it wouldn't be used against him.

Later in the day, he rejected Mardian's request for a separate trial.

Charges against a seventh defendant, former White House special counsel Charles W. Colson, were dismissed after he pleaded guilty in a separate case.

All five defendants are charged with one count each of conspiracy to obstruct justice. All but Mardian also are charged with one count each of obstruction of justice.

In addition, Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman are charged with lying to authorities investigating the break-in and cover-up.

The indictment, returned by a federal grand jury last March 1, alleged that all five defendants conspired to thwart the investigation of the break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters in order to hide the identities of the administration and Nixon campaign officials who planned and knew about it.

A $196,643 Goal

LAUNCHING DRIVE. . .Pitt United Fund campaign chairman Hugh Bazemore (L) and executive director Joe Tripp secure the goal board on the courthouse lawn in preparation for Wednesday's kick-off of the UF drive.

Pitt United Fund campaign participants will launch the 1974-75 drive on Wednesday with a kick-off luncheon at the Riverside Restaurant on N. Greene Street.

The luncheon will initiate this year's solicitation effort that is aimed at reaching and surpassing a record $196,643 goal.

The United Fund board of directors approved that healthy budget during the annual budget session in August. The largest appropriations in the current budget are $31,038 for The Salvation Army, $30,000 for the Boy Scouts, and $26,000 for the Red Cross, in addition to $18,500 for the Boys' Club, $15,750 for Local Community Services, and $15,062, for Pitt County Mental Health.

Other budgetary appropriations include: N.C. United, $8,743; Retarded Children, $6,335; Association for the Blind, $3,250; and 4-H Council, $1,965. The budget also includes $23,000 for the operation of the Pitt United Fund office and a $5,000 contingency fund for unpaid pledges.

Ed N. Warren is serving as president of the United Fund this year while Hugh Bazemore is the overall campaign chairman.

Bazemore said that UF workers in each division will attend tomorrow's luncheon. He noted that some 75 persons are expected to be on hand for the kick-off session.

Parade Shapes Up

The proposed route for the Bicentennial Parade October 12 and the prizes for the floats have been announced today by John Dilday, chairman of the parade committee. Entrants are requested to meet between 9:30 and 10 a.m. at the Winn Dixie Store on Tenth Street. From there the parade will go down Ninth to Dickinson, on down Evans to First Street, ending at the Town Common on First Street.

"So far, we have about a hundred units in the parade" said Dilday, "and we're hoping for more. Persons or clubs wishing to enter should confine themselves to historic and patriotic themes. The Grand Prize is $300, second prize is $150 and third prize is $75."

Entrants should contact Dilday at 752-5106 or 756-7289. Thee groups will be sent a format sheet showing their location in the procession.

Sylvester Green Back On The Job

Dr. C. Sylvester Green has been named acting executive director of the Pitt County Development Commission, succeeding James R. Horne who resigned effective Oct. 1, according to an announcement by R. Corey Stokes, chairman of the commission.

Horne, who served for some three and a half years as executive director, left the commission to become industrial executive of the Georgia State Chamber of Commerce in Atlanta.

Stokes commented, "Jim Horne has done a splendid job for us, and has brought many valued and substantial industries into the county in a short time. He leaves with the best wishes of all of us."

Stokes added, "I feel we are fortunate Dr. Green is available to serve as acting director. With his past experience as executive director for ten and a half years, and as a consultant for a year and a half, he is well equipped and knowledgeable to provide continuing leadership for the office, to be of service to industries already here, and any that may consider a location in Pitt County."

Green, who retired from the commission some three and a half years ago, said that it was "wonderful" to again be associated with the organization.

"My health was precarious for a while, but for the past year I have enjoyed excellent health," he asserted, "and since February of this year have been very busy with some writing I had planned to do for years."

He continued, "It will be a good experience renewing so many contacts of those earlier years, and I hope I can be of service in this interim to industries located throughout the county."

The former director said that, "I shall want to, and will try to help in any way possible to further the fine work Mr. Horne has done."

Stokes reported that a committee from the commission to select a permanent successor to Horne will be named, and "although we will not have to be in a hurry, we hope to fill the post as soon as we can find the

Still Need To Clarify Hospital-Med School Pre-Affiliation Pact

Pitt Memorial Hospital administrator Jack Richardson said this morning that there is "still a lot of clarification needed" before final agreement can be reached between the hospital and officials of the University of North Carolina Medical School on the question of clinical teaching facilities at the hospital for students enrolled in the medical school at East Carolina University.

Richardson noted that the hospital's medical education liaison committee has scheduled a meeting tonight to review its response to the pre-affiliation agreement submitted by UNC officials to the hospital.

One of the main stumbling blocks, Richardson said, is a proposal that 75 beds in the new hospital now under construction be set aside for teaching service under the administration of the medical school.

According to Richardson, "we have suggested that no beds be designated as teaching beds, and that all hospital patients be admitted according to need.

"The medical education committee," Richardson continued, "is agreeable to providing facilities, but they think it unwise at this point in time to designate any number of beds. We're talking about an unknown now."

The administrator noted, too, that there is "still a lot of clarification needed as to how patients are to be admitted and to what service." Medical school faculty members will be granted admitting privileges, Richardson explained, "but we don't feel it is wise to designate specific beds."

Richardson said there are some other points to be ironed out before an agreement can be finalized. "We don't know what facilities are being planned in the medical school facility. . .the clinical science building. . .and don't know the plans for the outpatient facility, or for office space for the teaching staff. We need to know what the fiscal building plans are for the medical school," he said in order to plan wisely for use of hospital facilities.

The pre-affiliation agreement, in addition to seeking 75 designated beds, asks for the hospital to accommodate 30 to 40 medical students; 16 full-time clinical teaching faculty and two non-physician professionals; an out-patient facility; six to eight pathologists; and the availability of all hospital doctors for teaching.

Dr. Jack Wilkerson, chairman of the medical education committee said the committee has suggested that the out-patient clinic be provided by the Greenville Area Health Education Center and that the office space for the clinical teaching faculty be provided in the $15 million basic science building authorized by the General Assembly for the expanded ECU medical program.

Hopeful Opening At Fair

It was a "real crowd for a Monday night. . .we were well pleased," Sam Winchester, manager of the Pitt County Fair said of the crowd of fair-goers as the fair opened a six-day run yesterday.

According to Winchester, the crowd last night was estimated at 3,000 persons, "a 10 per cent increase from last year."

One of the featured attractions of the American Legion sponsored fair this year is a display in the exhibit hall of more than 200 homemaking and farming tools of yesteryear.

There are more than 40 other educational displays in the exhibit hall. The theme of the exhibits this year is safety in the home, at work and at play.

Special events have been planned for pre-school children, the handicapped and senior citizens, according to Winchester.

The Greenville Police, Fire and Rescue departments and the Pitt County Community Health Department have planned special programs for these groups. In addition, special music will be presented for the senior citizens and the kiddie rides will be open for the pre-school children and for the handicapped children.

Senior Citizens Day is scheduled for Wednesday from 9:30 a.m. until 11:30 a.m. while pre-school children day is scheduled Thursday from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Handicapped Children's Day has been set for Friday from 9:30 to 11:30.

Other exhibit hall displays include field crops, horticulture, eggs, crafts, poultry, pantry items, home baked products and

RIDE NEEDED FOR 7-YEAR-OLD

The Pitt County Department of Social Services is appealing for a person or persons who will give a seven-year-old boy a ride from his home in Winterville to the Developmental Evaluation Clinic on Charles Street in Greenville each morning and a ride back to Winterville at noon.

The boy needs to attend the Remedial Education Activities Program at the DEC in the mornings and be back in his primary school class each day shortly after noon. Money to help with the cost of gasoline is available, Mrs. Sue Miles of Social Services said. Anyone who can help should call her at 752-4493.

LOANED BIBLE NOT RETURNED

Could you appeal for me for the return of a family Bible. Sometime in May, I think, two ministers came to our house to invite us to a revival. In the course of conversation, I showed them a large Bible which belonged to my great grandfather. It is real heavy and the printing is big and it has the biographies of the 12 disciples and our family's history in it. One of the men asked to borrow it and I agreed, not even knowing his name. If the rest of my family knew I've done this, they'd probably kick me. Perhaps the minister just forgot and will return it, if you remind him. Mrs. O.B.

Anyone knowing anything about this Bible should call Hotline at 752-6166.

NO COAT, NO CHECK

June 17 I ordered a raincoat from Lane Bryant in Indianapolis, Ind. for $17.90. My check was deposited in their bank June 26. My three letters about the order have resulted in letters from them saying I should have received a check — but I have not. H. L.

Hotline wrote to Lane Bryant, explaining the situation. You received a check very wuickly. Enclosed was a note, explaining that it is a duplicate and that payment has been stopped by the company on the check you never received.

Area Republicans Meet Their Senate Candidate

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

An estimated 125 persons from Pitt and neighboring counties attended a rally sponsored by the Pitt County Young Republican's Club at the Pitt County Wildlife Club near Falkland last night to hear senatorial candidate Bill Stevens.

Dr. John East, who introduced Stevens, criticized the national news media—primarily television—for "not only" trying to "destroy one man" but trying to "destroy" the Republican party.

Noting the East has "seen tremendous growth in the Republican Party," over the past few years, East said "I have great admiration for anyone carrying the banner," of the party.

Stevens told the gathering that "fiscal integrity" in government is one of the things needed most at this point, adding that the "principal cause of inflation" has been "brought about by Congress", a Democrat controlled body of lawmakers.

Saying that the U.S. Constitution—as opposed to the North Carolina State Constitution which requires a balanced budget—"does not require a balanced budget. "We need a man to vote for it (a balanced budget) on principal. . .not because the constitution requires it," he said.

Stevens, executive vice-president of Broyhill Industries, from Lenoir, and

Cuts Back

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford today set at 5.52 per cent the pay raise for federal employes, rejecting proposals for a larger increase.

The salary increase for an estimated 3.5 million civilian and military employes goes into effect immediately.

Ford had sought to delay the raises for three months, but the Senate voted 10 days ago to grant the salary increase on Oct. 1 as scheduled.

Even with the Senate action, however, it still was up to the President to set the precise size of the increase. In a White House statement, Ford said he was approving the figure recommended by his director of the Office of Management and Budget and the chairman of the Civil Service Commission.

Federal employes' union representatives had proposed an 8.4 per cent increase. The Advisory Committee on Federal Pay recommended a 7.2 per cent hike.

Foodstamps For Fireman, Too

ASHEVILLE (AP)—Four Asheville firemen have qualified for financial assistance under the food stamp program and a spokesman says up to 20 may qualify for the stamps by the end of the month.

Lt. John Parris, president of the Fraternal Order of Firefighters, said city firemen received a 5 per cent pay raise July 1, giving them an annual salary range of $7,046 to $8,550.

"They're really up against it," he said.

A department spokesman said many of the city's 147 firemen moonlight for extra income.

Baby Boom Seen For United States Next Year

By ANA HONIG

NEW YORK, N.Y.—America's wartime boom babies are about to produce a boom of their own—a bumper crop of 4.3 million babies in 1975, a record high for the nation.

And what's more, even this record population explosion is expected to be surpasses in subsequent years.

That somber forecast comes despite headlines that indicate the American baby boom has been replaced by a birth dearth, and that we will see a glut of schools and teachers, idled obstetricians and empty maternity beds, a woeful time for the makers of baby-related products.

'Perhaps the single most important new fact of recent statistical vintage is that, in America, the Population Explosion has ended," Ben J. Wattenberg writes in "The Real America" Doubleday & Co., N.Y. "And there is every indication that having ended, it will stay ended."

But will it? True, last year's statistics showed a birth slump. In 1973, America's birth rate—15 births per 1,000 persons—and the actual number of births—3.14 million—were the lowest since the early 1940s when the nation was at war. And 1974 continues to droop, with a current 14.5 rate.

Compare these figures to the 4.2 to 4.3 million births per year from 1956 through 1962. Add to it statistics like those of the American Hospital Association which reported only 37.4 per cent of all newborn facilities in the nation's hospitals were in use in 1973—and you come up with a birth dearth.

Yet a closer look at statistics from the Census Bureau and at studies by the Presidential Commission on Population Growth and the American Future reveals an important ract: Between 1945 and 1965, some 48 million Americans reached the age of 20. Between 1965 and 1985, another 78 million Americans will become 20 years old.

This group, says the presidential commission, will be setting up some 1.5 million new households per year—a fact that adds up to more new babies.

"Whether we like it or not," the commission report says, "we are in for a long period of growth, and we had best prepare for it."

Dr. Ervin E. Nichols, associate director of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, put it this way:

"There's no question that we had a real drop in births throughout the country in the early 1970s. But from here on, for five or 10 years, there will be an increase; not necessarily an increased birth rate but just an increase in the number of people who are, if you will, going into production."

Planned Parenthood Federation of America guesses the 14.5 rate will grow to 18 during the rest of the 1970s, simply because there will be more potential parents around.

"Even though they want small families," a federation spokesman said, "even if they practice contraception, even if they largely avoid unwanted pregnances, and even if they have access to abortions, they represent a tidal wave of prospective parents."

How big a tidal wave?

Dr. Paul H. Jacobson, population expert of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. forecasts 4.3 million babies will be born in the United States next year—and that more than 4.5 million will be born each year from 1978 to 1980.

He thinks the big reason for the birth slump is economic, that 1.25 million babies were postponed in the last three years. And, he says, about 85 per cent of these deferred babies will be born by 1979.

Fertility fashions also help shape the size of the American population. Thus, the 19th century family preferred six or seven kiddies around the house and the family of the 1950s considered four children ideal.

What will America's population look like a quarter-century hence?

Older and more female, says Prof. Roger Revelle of Harvard University.

There will be 28 million Americans over age 65 years in the year 3000 vs. 17 million in that age group in 1930, and 41 million over 65 in the year 2035.

OCTOBER WEALTH—Sweet green chile peppers are in markets and may be stuffed with cheese, dipped in batter, fried and served with tomato sauce.

Meatless Supper From Mexico

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

In late summer and early fall, slim, tapered, mild green chile peppers — sometimes called frying peppers — come into markets. Lighter in color than the Bell or Globe green pepper, they are usually from four to six inches long.

They can make a thrifty main course for a meatless supper when you treat them in Mexican fashion: stuff with cheese, dip in batter, fry and heat in tomato sauce.

The following recipe for Chiles Rellenos con Queso departs from Mexican technique in one particular. Up to now we've followed tradition and broiled the peppers until the skins blistered and then peeled them before stuffing. This takes time.

CHILES RELLENOS CON QUESO

4 sweet green chile peppers, generous ½ pound
¼ pound jack or similar mild white cheese in 1 piece, cut into 8 equal squares
2 eggs, separated
2 tablespoons flour
Pinch of salt
Oil for frying
Tomato Sauce, see below

In a saucepan cover chiles with water; bring to a boil; boil gently just until soft — about 10 minutes; drain. Cut away stem ends, cut in half lengthwise and discard seeds. Place a square of cheese at the end of each chile-half and roll up. Lightly coat chiles with extra flour, shaking off excess.

Start heating oil (at least 1½ inches deep) to 375 degrees.

In a medium mixing bowl beat egg whites until stiff. In a small mixing bowl, without washing beater, beat together egg yolks, flour and salt until smooth; fold into beaten egg whites. Drop chiles, one at a time, into batter and, with a spoon, lift out with some of the batter and drop into hot oil — do not crowd. Fry, turning once, until golden-brown; drain on absorbent paper. The puffy coating may deflate.

At serving time, heat Tomato Sauce until almost boiling. Add chiles; briefly simmer, uncovered and without basting, until just hot through. Coating, if deflated, should puff again. Serve at once.

Makes 4 small servings.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Ever since "Diary of a Mad Housewife" came out, the women in my card club have felt like a bunch of losers.

The closest any of us ever came to indiscretion was Cindy. Her butcher leaned over one day and whispered, "Are you ready for a tryst?"

Cindy thought he said trip and shouted back, "Not till the last two weeks in August when Ed gets his vacation. I'm a homeroom mother this year and there are some things you just can't delegate."

What triggered the whole discussion on infidelity was a letter we all read in one of the advice columns from a woman who had set down rules on what to do if a married man had a heart attack in your apartment. She was as cool and as clinical about it as if she was listing instructions on how to get the rust out of your steam iron.

We all decided there are two groups of women in this world. There are married women who don't look married. And there are women who are born looking married.

If you don't know which one you are, check the following. If you see yourself in any of the situations, you're married.

When your husband's best friend leans close on the dance floor and whispers in your ear, "What are you doing the rest of my life?" and you answer dryly, "Waiting for my washer repairman."

When a tall, dark, handsome stranger takes your hand and asks you to dance and you answer, "I can't. My pantyhose just shifted and with the slightest movement they'll bind my knees together."

When the bread man pins you to the sink and confesses he is feverish, can't sleep and is half-crazed and you ask him if he had his flue shot.

When a Robert Redford lookalike invites you to have a cup of coffee after your evening class and you order an onion sandwich.

When you are invited by the office single dude to join him for a weekend and bring a friend — and you bring your husband.

When a party reveler asks, "Have you ever thought of leaving your husband?" and you answer, "Where?"

When you get an obscene phone call and you tell him it's bad manners to talk with food in his mouth.

No one talks about fidelity anymore. It's just something you hope is still around — and in significant numbers. And when the Coast Guard band strikes up Semper Fidelis and your husband says, "They're playing our song. You wanta dance?" You know you're married.

Household Hints

The Givenchy fall and winter collection shown at New York's Bergdorf Goodman featured daytime dresses just below the knee, evening dresses, to the ankle, sometimes to the floor. In soft light fabrics, the emphasis was on black for evening and greens and browns for daytime. Stockings were dark to match the outfit.

Many of the new fashions for fall and winter are being shown with long silk scarfs knotted at the nape of the neck and streaming down the back, a la Isadora Duncan.

Capes, shirts and jackets of ultra pigskin will be part of the high fashion daytime scene this fall and winter. And for evening, black velvet. Ultra pigskin is a synthetic.

Reader Points Out Another Viewpoint

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column from a handicapped person who resented seeing perfectly able-bodied drivers zip into parking spaces marked "Reserved for the Handicapped," then walk a few steps to the store or building.

The writer complained that he often hobbled on crutches a long way to his destination while some inconsiderate, selfish clod took the parking place reserved for the handicapped.

Abby, one need not be crippled to be handicapped. Many disabilities are not visible. A heart patient, or one with severely reduced lung power may be more seriously handicapped than someone on crutches.

You should have said, "Before calling people 'inconsiderate, selfish clods' for having grabbed your parking space, consider that many who appear to be able-bodied and healthy may be in far worse physical condition than you are." ASTHMATIC'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Thank you for pointing out something that never occurred to me. You are far more insightful than I.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I sure hope you can help me with, as everyone I've told this to just laughs at me.

I know I read an article in the Orlando Sentinel Star stating that someone actually mated a dog with a cat, and the offspring was called a "DAT". (Half dog and half cat.)

I read that it looked like a dog, but had fur instead of hair. I'm sure they even ran a picture of it. Now I could kick myself for not cutting out the article and keeping it as proof.

I even went to the newspaper and asked for a back copy, but because I couldn't tell them the exact date, they couldn't help me.

That paper runs your column so maybe if you ask them they will try to find it. PINKY II

DEAR PINKY: If such a piece ever did appear in the Orlando Sentinel, it was either a spoof or a goof. A "DAT?" DAT'S an impossibility!

DEAR ABBY: Grandma thinks she was "done wrong" by her son and daughter-in-law because they asked her to babysit for them while they took a course in landscaping, when they really took a series of dancing lessons. (They knew Grandma wouldn't babysit if they told her the truth.)

Well, tell her she's lucky. My daughter got us to take her child for five months. She told us she was trying to get her life straightened out, and was working overtime to earn money to fix up her house so she and the baby could have a nicer place to live.

We knocked ourselves out looking after the boy. It cost us a bundle to fly up to get him, also for babysitters (I work part-time), not to mention loss of income for clients I had to turn away.

Now we find out that our daughter had taken up with a man who didn't want the child around. Three weeks after the baby went back with her, she phoned and asked if we wanted to adopt him because she was going to give him up and marry the man she'd been living with.

It's one thing to have kids who are liars. Some are bigger liars than others. GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: Yours not only flew the coop, she used you to feather her love nest.

DEAR ABBY: I didn't know how to address letters to my daughter who lives with her boyfriend out of town, so I asked my psychiatrist who has a son who lives with his girl friend. He said he addresses his letters to Jane and John Doe. Now that's what I do. L. A. MOTHER

Series Of Four Auto Mishaps

An estimated $2,550 property damage resulted yesterday from a series of four traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 5:35 p.m. collision at the intersection of Fifth and Reide Streets involving cars driven by Stevenson Alton Hardee of Route 2, Greenville and Terry Glenn Eubanks of 101 Lakewood Dr.

Investigators, who estimated damage at $400 to the Hardee car and $700 to the Eubanks auto charged Eubanks with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Both drivers involved in a 9 a.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Ione Street were charged following investigation of the mishap.

Vickie Ann Joyner, of Ayden was charged by police with failing to reduce her speed enough to avoid an accident, while Estelle Waters Bunting of 2815 Jackson Dr. was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

Damage was set at $500 to the Joyner car and $150 to the Bunting vehicle.

Cars driven by Deborah Jacobs Gray of Lawson's Trailer Ct. and Tommy Glenn Carter of Route, 4, Greenville were involved in a 2:15 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Fifth and Lewis Streets.

Police, who charged Carter with no operators license and failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident, estimated damage to the Gray car at $300 and set damage to the Carter vehicle at $250.

No charges were reported in a 9:40 a.m. collision on Cotanche Street, 35 feet North of the Fifth Street intersection.

Cars driven by Nathan Russell Gupton of Tarboro and Jean Adams Morris of Route 3, Greenville were involved in the mishap investigators said.

Damage was placed at $50 to the Gupton auto and $200 to the car driven by Morris.

Alternatives?

RALEIGH (AP)—Advancing plans for alternate road projects was encouraged by Gov. Jim Holshouser Monday as a means of making full use of highway funds when top priority projects are delayed.

In a letter to state Transportation Secretary Troy Doby, Holshouser said he is concerned that full use of highway funds is not being made because some projects are held up by court orders, objections to environmental impact statements and other legal traps. He said such problems probably will continue to occur.

"Sound management would appear to dictate that the department be prepared for these delays by having alternate road projects in a state of readiness," the governor said.

Farm Tips

Home gardeners should begin planning now for those strawberries they hope to enjoy next spring. November is the beginning of the planting season.

"Gardeners who plant now should be able to pick enough for home use next spring," comments North Carolina State University Extension small fruit specialist Joe Brooks. "Of course, the first big crop won't come until a year later after the plants have matured," he added. Many gardeners had rather plant in the spring.

Brooks suggests four "musts" for satisfactory results from strawberries: 1. Plant clean, disease-free plants. This means plants that are certified. 2. Plant in clean, disease-free soil. 3. Plant in weed-free soil. 4. Plant the strawberry patch so that it can be irrigated.

Brooks suggested using methyl bromide for treating the soil. This gas, which is available in pressurized cans, kills weed seeds except those of a few of the hardseeded plants, knocks out nematodes and insects and eliminates disease organisms.

"Starting out with clean soil is important," Brooks said, "since the strawberry plants will be in that soil for several years. If the soil isn't clean, the plants have very little chance.

The methyl bromide is applied under a plastic cover that is sealed down to prevent the gas from escaping from the area being treated. The cover is kept on the treated soil for three days. Gardeners should wait two weeks after the cover has been removed before planting.

Also, the gas should be applied to soil that has been prepared for planting and when temperature and moisture conditions are right for planting.

Treatments other than methyl bromide can be used. Brooks suggests diphenamid, dacthal or tenoran. These are post-planting treatments and should be applied according to label directions only.

Here are other suggestions: add lime, phosphate, potash or a complete fertilizer as indicated by a soil test report. Lime should be added early, if possible, even as much as a year in advance of planting. Fertilizer should be applied at least 10 days to two weeks prior to planting. Top dress with nitrogen 30 days after planting.

The plants should be set two feet apart in rows four feet apart. If you want to pick strawberries the first year, plant slightly closer in the row. Plant deep enough so all roots are covered but shallow enough so the crown is above the soil line. The soil shou[ld] be firm around the roots. Consider including so[me] the new varieties in your planting, such Appollo or Titan.

[Pl]ants should be covered with straw so they [do]t be heaved out of the ground by freezing [an]d thawing soil. Also, apply straw in the middles [to] conserve moisture and shade out weeds.

Strawberries are shallow rooted. Drought seriously reduces the size and yield of berries and the number of new runner plants. Plan to irrigate. If used properly, irrigation can also protect plants from frost.

Moose Looking To Anniversary

Preliminary plans for celebrating the Greenville Moose Lodge's 24th anniversary were unveiled last night by Membership chairman Bob Leith.

Leith informed the membership an Anniversary Enrollment was planned for November 25 followed by a 24th Birthday Dinner on November 26. Leith reported the officers were hopeful for attendance by an officer of the Supreme Lodge, from Mooseheart.

Lodge Governor Jack Morgan commented that as a consistent pace-setter among lodges of North Carolina, the Greenville lodge had every reason to make the celebration an event to be remembered.

Other business before the meeting was the report of John Simonowich on success of last week's Flea Market; programs planned by Chairman Roy Thompson, and enrollment of sixteen new members.

Thompson reminded the Teen Dance, for children of the Moose, would be held October 19 (from 8:00 to midnight), featuring the Band of Oz. The event would be also open to invited guests. A dance for Moose members is planned Saturday night, from 9:00 p.m. to 1:00 a.m.

Arrest Man On Heroin Charges

Dennis Ray Suggs, 19, was arrested yesterday at 516A Roosevelt Ave. on charges of possession and sale of heroin. Chief Glenn Cannon said this morning.

The charges, the chief said, stemmed from an August 14 incident when Suggs allegedly sold a quantity of heroin to a State Bureau of Investigation undercover agent.

Suggs was taken into custody yesterday about 8:45 a.m. and placed in Pitt County Jail under $15,000 bond.

Thieu Hints A 3rd Term

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu denied charges of personal corruption Tuesday night and announced, in effect, he will run for a third term next year.

He said over national radio and television, however, that if the people had lost trust in him he would not seek re-election.

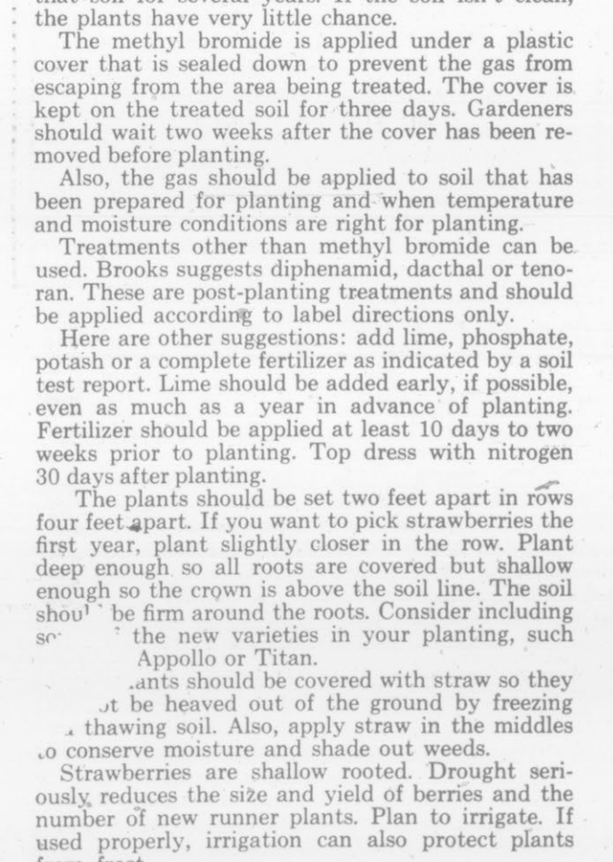

It was generally assumed that Thieu would run again, but the speech was his first confirmation. His second four-year term expires next October.

Last January the National Assembly, dominated by Thieu, passed a constitutional amendment that would allow Thieu a third term, which would be unprecedented in South Vietnam.

The South Vietnamese leader currently faces the most serious challenges to his power since he became president. A Roman Catholic, he has been criticized extensively in recent months by militant Catholic leaders for alleged corruption by himself, his family and his government.

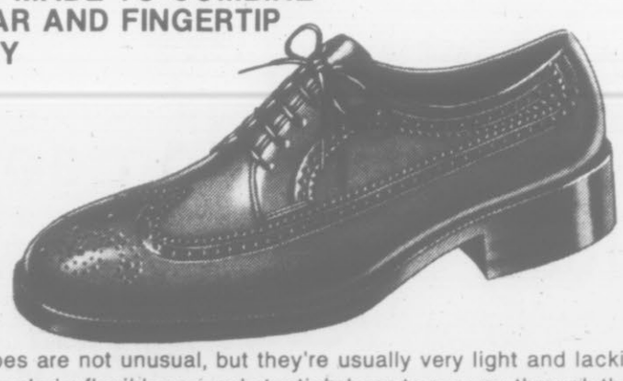

In numerous antigovernment rallies, there have been calls for Thieu to resign or be overthrown. An opposition assemblyman has called for Thieu's impeachment on corruption charges. Even some Saigon newspapers, tightly controlled by the government, have vowed to disregard press laws and report antigovernment political developments.

Little Advantage In The Deal

As ominous as the communist development of Cuba seemed more than a decade past, we have now come to the point where better relations between that nation and the United States seem imminent.

It is not difficult to recall when Fidel Castro took over the nation following guerilla fighting, only to announce to the world that he was a communist. Cuban ties were made to the Soviet Union and Red China, and it is still to easy to remember when the world stopped for a time during the Cuban missile confrontation.

Things have changed since those days, though. The United States is closer to both the Soviet Union and China than those communist giants are to each other. With better U.S. relations with the major communist powers, it was bound to be that calls would be heard for improving relations with Cuba.

Just recently Fidel Castro met with Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y. and Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I. Both said they felt Castro was interested in better relations with the U.S. Both senators said their visit was not an approval of the Castro government. Pell said, though that the meeting was "frank, warm and friendly."

It is not difficult for us to see why Castro would want better relations with the United States at this point. His plans for spreading Cuban brand communism in South America have failed. Now he is in danger of being left high and dry if relations between the U.S. and the Soviet Union and China improve.

Castro might not have to worry about military action against him in this hemisphere, but without some major power to prop up the Cuban economy there could be disaster ahead.

We don't think the United States has to fall all over itself to welcome Castro's Cuba back to the world. Certainly there is no reason for us to offer huge concessions to Castro in exchange for his friendship. We have tried that route far too often and come out the loser.

We should be receptive to any offers from Cuba for improved relations, but let Castro make the concession. His nation has more to gain from our friendship than vice versa.

Want To Apear 'Legit'

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Organized crime figures like to put their money into legitimate businesses, and top state crime fighters have reason to think this is happening in North Carolina.

Lawmen say that land deals are particularly vulnerable, and extremely hard to pin down, but insist crime money is connected to some land speculation activities in this state.

This area of organized criminal activity is one which will receive a lot of attention from the North Carolina Organized Crime Prevention Council. That group held its organizational meeting in Raleigh this week, and while not yet digging into specifics of the problem, staff people are able to outline some of the major directions which future work will take.

It is obvious that cigarette smuggling which is drawing syndicate money and interest to the state, narcotics, homegrown theft and fence ring operations, and gambling will be covered.

White Collar

Before he took office, however, Attorney General James H. Carson, chairman of the council, said he intended to expand crime-fighting activities into the so-called white collar areas, and there is where the infiltration of legitimate business by organized crime syndicates becomes most dangerous and elusive.

"We have heard a lot of rumors about land speculation deals both in the mountains of western North Carolina, and along the coast," a State Bureau of Investigation source said.

Other reports have filtered in of money illegally gained being invested in North Carolina textile plants, resort developments, car dealerships, wholesale operations, and mobile home business, SBI people report.

But evidence that actual managers of firms involved, or the businesses themselves, are engaged in illegal activities in lacking, and trying to cut through the tangled financial maze is all but impossible.

Experienced investigators with thorough training in accounting are required to track down such links, and the time involved is lengthy, officers report. Further, both state and local requirements for listing financial sources and officers of companies leave large holes, and even securing basic information is difficult.

Putting money resulting from criminal activities into legitimate business is popular with organized crime, officers say, giving the syndicate a way to launder money (turning dirty, trackable funds into "clean"), and often providing a method of reporting taxable income to cover illegal activities, and even producing profits in return.

Additionally, law officers worry that the legitimate covers can be used to conceal other illegal activities.

Two Steps

While presently still in early stages for organizing, the new crime-fighting council will likely move toward two major recommendations, those close to the activity believe:

1. Wiretapping. Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr., has already indicated that he would support such a move if recommended. Law officers generally are convinced that state law permitting electronic surveillance under court supervision is essential in fighting organized crime, and many think the General Assembly would have already granted such permission if not for the backlash of federal abuses brought to light in the Watergate investigations.

2. Grand Jury. A statewide commission, similar to a federal grand jury, not restricted to a single county or area and with strong subpoena and investigatory powers anywhere in the state is highly regarded as a key development.

Coupled with the work of such a body, lawman says, would be stronger powers to grant immunity to witnesses so that testimony could be forced. In effect, a witness would not be allowed to plead the Fifth Amendment since his testimony would not put him in jeopardy.

Killers On Both Sides

EDITOR'S NOTE — In three months, 100 persons have been murdered in political violence sweeping Argentina. The killers come from both right-and left-wing terror groups. Now a clap of thunder, a door slammed shut too loudly causes alarm. Here is a report on the situation.

By MORT ROSENBLUM
Associated Press Writer

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — A plague of political violence has fallen on Argentina from downtown Buenos Aires to the desolate Andean foothills. Nearly 100 persons have been murdered since the start of July, and no one knows who will be the next victim, or why.

Sunday night movie crowds fill the streets of the capital, outwardly gay and relaxed. But a car backfire, or even a loudly slammed door, sends alarm fleeting across happy faces.

Life goes on in the rich rural provinces, but there is a gnawing uneasiness. A carload of youths speeding down a back road may be kids on a spree. Or it may be a carload of guerrillas seeking victims.

Some Argentines react to the bombings, machine gunnings, kidnapings and torture with a philosophic shrug — such things always happen to the other man. Many others are at the point of hysteria.

Residents of the plush Palermo district in Buenos Aires were rocked in their beds by an explosion early Monday. That afternoon they read that an exiled Chilean leftist, Gen. Carlos Prats, and his wife had been blown up by a bomb under their car.

Men believed to be Marxist terrorists machine gunned a military staff car later Monday, wounding two officers and an aide. Another guerrilla shot at a colonel elsewhere, but missed.

The army had just buried a lieutenant colonel and a lieutenant, murdered by guerrillas who said they were taking revenge for 14 to 16 comrades who they claim were executed while prisoners of the military.

Often news of a killing is received with nothing more than a shake of the head and sighs of resignation. There is often no longer surprise.

Business Invited This

By refusing to close off debate, the Senate on Sept. 19 killed a consumer protection bill for this session of Congress. It is cause for rejoicing.

But it is not cause for much rejoicing. This very bad bill will be back at the next session of Congress, and for obvious reasons it will be far more difficult to defeat the measure again. North Carolina's Sam Ervin, who led the Senate filibuster, will be replaced in January by Connecticut's Abraham Ribicoff as chairman of the Government Operations Committee. Four other senators who opposed cloture also are joining Ervin in retirement. Eight opponents of the bill face re-election in November, and two of the eight—Dominick of Colorado and Young of North Dakota—have tough campaigns ahead.

The fourth and final vote on cloture needed 66 votes to end the filibuster. The motion got 64 votes. If Sen. Edward Kennedy had made it to the floor on time—he was one minute late in arriving—the margin would have been reduced to one vote. Sen. Alan Cranston of California, a leading proponent, already is boasting that "we'll win it next year, absolutely."

The object of the bill is to create a new Agency for Consumer Advocacy, headed by an administrator with sweeping powers to intervene in both the formal and informal proceedings of every other federal agency. The administrator would represent a mythical, hypothetical being known as "the consumer." By this own fiat, the administrator would define "the consumer interest." Whatever the name of the actual administrator might be, the effective administrator would be Ralph Nader. This is the prospect that has to be faced.

How did this bill manage to marshal such impressive support? One reason, based in ancient congressional custom, is that many members of the House and Senate had not found the time to read the bill carefully or to think soberly on the bill's implications. They were mesmerized by such enchanging words as "consumer," "protection," and "advocacy." The expedient thing to do was to get on the side of the angels.

But there is another reason, and it ought to be faced

Other Editors Say
Inflation Politics

(Jacksonville Daily News)

Success has many parents; failure is an orphan.

That's how it is with today's economy, especially the double-digit inflation.

Ordinarily, the president and his party get the credit or the blame for the state of the economy when voters go to the polls. This year may be different.

President Ford is trying to attribute a substantial share of the responsibility to the Democratic-controlled Congress, and top Democrats acknowledge that he is succeeding.

When he opened his series of economic meetings, Mr. Ford pointedly noted that he called them in response to recommendations by Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and a "bipartisan" group in Congress. He made sure that invitations went to Democratic as well as Republican economists, and to Democratic as well as Republican members of Congress.

Repeatedly, Mr. Ford and his spokesmen have said that solving the problem of inflation will require "joint" and bipartism action by the administration and Congress.

"Separately we can only make it worse, together we can beat it to its knees," Mr. Ford has said.

This is shrewd political strategy and then some. It also happens to be the only realistic way in which the President could hope to get inflation under control within a reasonable period of time.

The President alone cannot get fiscal 1975 spending down below $300 billion so as to avert another sizable dificit that would increase the demand on loan money and aggravate inflation. For starters, he could not save $700 million and set an example by deferring the Oct. 1 federal pay raise for three months because Congress wouldn't let him.

He cannot succeed in jawboning against undue price and wage increases if members of Congress are advocating "catch up" pay hikes and special interest price boosts for their constituents. The Council on Wage and Price Stability will work only if it has the full public support of both branches of government which established it.

If Mr. Ford asks for tax adjustments, public service employment or other programs to help the economy, he obviously will need Congress to enact them.

Democratic National Chairman Robert S. Strauss and Deputy Chairman Mary Lou Burg admit privately that Mr. Ford has outmaneuvered them on this issue, at least for now.

The INSIDE REPORT

Fears And Frustration

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Behind President Ford's tough new line on international oil prices is a grim reassessment by his top advisers that economic catastrophe in the Western world is threatened within the next four months.

In public and even in some private meetings of administration officials, the President's economic policymakers still stick to the old refrain that the economy is sluggish and in danger merely of mild recession accompanied by inflation. But they now privately concede the possibility of much worse—a drastic business decline with depression-level unemployment—thanks largely to the traumatic impact on the West of wildly rising oil prices.

That's why Secretary of State Henry Kissinger abruptly shifted to a hard line against the oil-producing nations. That's also why Mr. Ford has switched gears and now wants some economic proposals put forth quickly instead of waiting for next year's budget. But that's also why a mood of futility, pessimism and downright fear has spread from the business community into the upper reaches of the administration.

Administration officials are now seeking a viable plan to back up strong words from the President and the Secretary of State. But there is total pessimism; nobody here believes the oil-producing nations will back down any time soon. And unless they do, neither rhetoric coming out of this weekend's economic summit conference nor new programs by the President can protect the economy.

The administration's view seemed much different even to insiders no more than ten days ago. Mr. Ford then seemed to have inherited intact the Micawberism of the Nixon administration, refusing to either admit the danger of catastrophe or to hurry any change in policy.

But realism has taken hold. Top administration officials now privately admit the possibility of the "worst case" that has been propounded by economists inside and outside the government: the skyrocketing escalation of energy costs will generate critical bank failures in Western Europe, which will spread to American banks and American businesses bringing a flash-fire business decline with unemployment quickly exceeding 10 per cent.

Everybody agrees that no protection from this menace, temporary or permanent, is possible without lowering international oil prices. But the overnight shift to a hard line warning the oil-producing nations is no guaranty of relief.

On the contrary, responsible administration officials are deeply pessimistic about breaking the world oil cartel. One knowledgeable policymaker believes the Arabs, particularly Kuwait and Algeria, will never relent until that unforeseeable day of a political settlement in the Mideast. Nor is there any real hope here that withholding U.S. food from the world market would have the slightest effect on oil. Withholding U.S. arms, thought riskier, might be slightly more effective.

About all these officials feel can be done is for the U.S. to make clear by work and deed that it is moving toward energy self-sufficiency and to try acting in concert with Western Europe and Japan. Since such steps are not imminent, there is simply no prospect of any quick price relief from the oil producers.

In the meantime, the President seems to have abandoned his intention to await the 1975 session of Congress before proposing anything important. His economic summit conference is likely to be followed by a tax bill proposing investment incentives for industry and tax cuts for the poor. Significantly, such a tax package has long been pushed by Treasury Secretary William Simon, about to be put in overall charge of the economic program.

But other economists, including some inside the administration, believe much

WHO IS BLINDFOLDED?

One of the most sordid and disgusting details of the abuse to which Jesus was subjected just before his crucifixion is related by the Evangelist Luke. He tells us that Jesus tormentors blindfolded him and then struck him saying, "Prophesy—who is he that struck thee?"

The tormentors, of course, thought that Jesus was now blind and that they alone could see. Of course, it was just the other way around. The men who put the blindfold over Jesus' eyes were blind, and Christ had the power to look into heaven, to look down the ages, and to look into men's hearts.

The tormentors looked upon him, but he looked through them; they saw the blindfold across his eyes, but he saw the wickedness of their hearts. This was a case where the blind believed that they had blindfolded the all-seeing. Glory shone around them, but they walked in darkness.

The Homeowner's Big Illusion

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The biggest components in the selling price of a new, single-family house are generally considered to be the cost of construction materials, 32 per cent, land, 25 per cent, and labor, about 15 per cent.

Since the price of all three has risen sharply in the past few years, so has the sales price of the average new house—from $30,500 in 1972, to $35,500 last year, according to The Conference Board.

Over a 10-year period to 1973, states the board, a business and economic research organization, the price of comparable new homes rose 84 per cent. It cites Federal Home Loan Bank Board figures to indicate that the price tags on existing homes doubled in the same period.

But now the catch. With mortgage money tight and with many families unable to come up with the substantial down payments required, the housing market has shriveled almost to nothingness in many areas.

This means the proud homeowner who brags about his hedge against inflation — "I can get double what I paid for my house" — may be living in an illusory world. If there isn't a market, how can there be a selling price?

True, when the market comes alive again, he might obtain double his money. But if he were to sell today, he might find that big price tag cannot be converted into dollar bills.

Even before the economic summitry of the past month, the subject of credit allocation was being discussed in banking and housing circles, among others.

Advocates of allocation claimed that some deserving sections of the economy, such as housing, were being starved for funds because they couldn't pay the price. Allocation of credit by price alone was unfair, they said.

The arguments against allocation by other criteria, such as social good or greater productivity, were immediately attacked by economists and financial men. Controls on credit, they claimed, would only make matters worse.

What they really were saying, however, was that controls by government would be bad but that controls by private industry, that is, the bankers, would be permissable. The fact is, that banks must control their distribution of credit.

Life In Germ-Free Plastic Bubble For 3-Year-Old

By PAUL RECER
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — David is a 3-year-old who has never known a mother's kiss or the touch of a bare human hand. He lives in a plastic bubble, and doctors say there's no medical certainty he'll ever live elsewhere.

David suffers from a disease known as severe combined immune deficiency. His body has no immune defenses against disease. Even bacteria that most people can easily throw off could kill him.

For three years he has breathed filtered air, has eaten sterile food and has been cuddled only by hands wearing big, black rubber gloves which extend through the wall of his bubble.

He was delivered by Caesarean section on Sept. 21, 1971, and was placed immediately into a plastic-walled bubble. He has lived behind plastic and glass ever since.

"It's only in the last month or six weeks that he's began to think about getting out," said Dr. David A. Freedman, a professor of psychiatry at the Baylor College of Medicine.

"I think that the next step is for him trying to remove himself from that room. The whole question is how long can you keep someone in a goldfish bowl."

At the request of the boy's mother and father, hospital officials have declined to give the youngster's last name or identify his parents. They said he has one sister.

Freedman says that so far David's development — physically, intellectually and emotionally — has gone well.

The boy is brighter than most children his age, his language skills are advanced and "he already knows his letters," Freedman said in an interview.

He is also agile and strong. He jumps and climbs and plays ball inside his 9-by-7-by-6-foot bubble with more skill than most 3-year-olds. He sleeps in a tunnel-shaped annex to the bubble.

David knows his mother and father, even though they've been only faces on the other side of a plastic wall, and responds to them with affection.

He goes home in a portable bubble and stays with his family every six weeks or so. He lives there in a grouping of bubbles.

What the future holds is uncertain.

"We definitely know what it holds if we don't do anything," said Dr. John R. Montgomery, co-leader of the team caring for David. "We know what the future would be outside the bubble."

David's condition occurs about once in every 10,000 births. For most, death comes in eight or nine months, usually from a massive, uncontrollable infection.

What the doctors hope to do is to awaken David's natural immunity. Next week, they plan to try injections of a thymus extract that has been used in research. Several other techniques have also been attempted.

But Montgomery says, "We don't know anything at this time that holds promise of a permanent cure."

"One possibility is that we will not have to do anything," said Dr. Rafael Wilson, the other team leader. He said two German infants, held in isolation for two years, spontaneously developed immunity.

GERM-FREE—David is a three-year-old with a disease known as severe combined immune deficiency. His body has no defenses against disease, and he has been breathing filtered air and eating sterile food since birth. David lives in a germ-free plastic bubble. (AP Wirephoto)

4 Identified Wrong Man

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A consulting engineer from Florida has been flown here to face a kidnaping charge in the abduction of 4-year-old Allison Mechem last week.

Clifford Kroger, 38, Winter Park, Fla., the father of five, waived extradition at a hearing in Orlando, Fla., Monday. He is a former resident of Cincinnati.

Prior to Kroger's arrival Monday night, Frank Joseph Wiechman, 26, Cincinnati, was freed after charges were dropped against him in the case.

Police Lt. Dan Cash said Kroger is now the only suspect.

Allison was kidnaped Sept. 23 as she played in front of her home in fashionable Mount Lookout. She was found unharmed in a motel room the following day. Police said they recovered $128,000 in ransom demanded of her father, Charles Mechem, Jr., board chairman of the Taft Broadcasting Corp.

Police asked to have Wiechman freed at what was to have been his arraignment in Hamilton County Municipal Court.

"It really stunned me," said Wiechman. "When Lt. Cash announced what the police decided to do I could have grabbed him and hugged him."

Police said Wiechman, a Florida parolee, was arrested and charged because four persons had identified him either in line-ups or through photographs as the kidnaper of the Mechem girl.

"It is most unusual to have four persons identify the same person and have him turn out to be the wrong one," Cash said.

ground armies are at war.

On the right is the Argentine Anti-Communist Alliance. On the left are the Marxist People's Revolutionary Army and the Montoneros, the most radical element of the Peronist Youth.

The gunmen's goals are numerous. Some leftist guerrillas want to overthrow the government. Others want to take control of the Peronist movement, which is now dominated by conservatives. Rightists want to speed up the slow process of arrest and trial. Some groups kidnap for ransom; others take revenge for past violence. Others just make mistakes.

Dissident labor groups, freelance hotheads, fringe-group fanatics and common criminals also have adopted violence as a routine. The police generally feel they must shoot or be shot.

President Isabel Peron pushed a new law through Congress empowering the police to jail virtually any opponent of the government. But it will take more than a law to track down the guerrillas and capture them.

squarely by my friends in the business community. Let me talk like a Dutch uncle to them. If business leaders had channeled one-tenth of the energy they devoted to fighting this bill into improving their products and services instead, they would not find themselves in this fix. Too many retailers and manufacturers have lost too much of the confidence they once enjoyed.

Why the loss of confidence? By coincidence; on the very day the Senate was taking its cloture vote, a House subcommittee provided food for thought. The subcommittee had analyzed the warranties of 51 leading manufacturers. Only one of them—the Corning Corporation—provided customers with a warranty free of loopholes, catches, gimmicks, and take-backs. Fifty of the 51 provided warranties containing such phrases as "the manufacturer will be the sole judge of whether the part is defective." Is it any wonder, I would ask my business friends, that many a disgruntled customer urges his congressman to support the Nader bill?

The business community will have to do better. For the short haul, a crash program of education has to be undertaken, with a view toward educating Congress and the public in the bureaucratic pitfalls of a "consumer protection" bill. It is doubtful that the people in fact are prepared to genuflect before the messianic Mr. Nader.

For the long haul, vastly more must be done. Business and labor, working together, will have to pursue the old ideals of American industry—to make good products, and to stand behind them. We ought not to need a bureaucracy to define and protect "the consumer interest." This is the job of business itself, and it cannot be neglected.

more is needed to stave off disaster. They feel the President, Simon and chief economic adviser Alan Greenspan must shed their scruples about governmental interference with the free economy and move to rationing of credit and even tough wage-price restraints.

Finally, there is overriding pessimism inside the administration about the effectiveness of the budget-cutting program, particularly in the wake of the ignominious Senate defeat of Mr. Ford's proposed delay in higher pay for civil servants. Few officials today hope for cuts deep enough to significantly free capital for private borrowing.

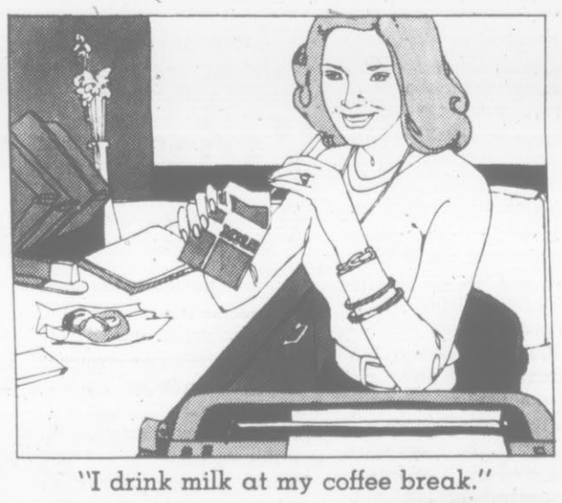

The end product in high government circles is apprehension about the future which is foreign to this capital city. After seven weeks in office, President Ford seems to be owning up to the deepening economic crisis as Richard M. Nixon never did. Merely recognizing the crisis is a good beginning, but fear gnaws away so deeply in Washington today because nobody really knows what to do about it.

Rodino Enjoys Spotlight

By MIKE WATERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Peter W. Rodino Jr., who used to be just a face in the political crowd, says he's enjoying the spotlight that was generated by presiding over the House Judiciary Committee impeachment inquiry.

"Face it, I'm a human being," the New Jersey congressman said in an interview. "These plaudits are satisfying."

Rodino, 65 and serving his 13th term as representative of New Jersey's 10th congressional district, vaulted from relative obscurity to national prominence as chairman of the televised committee hearings on the impeachment of Richard M. Nixon.

Now speaking invitations pile up at his Capitol Hill office. Democratic colleagues want him to campaign for them and his name is recognized across the country.

It was not always so. Two years ago, when his name was placed in vice presidential nomination at the Democratic National Convention many delegates had never heard of him. He got 62 votes.

"I never sought the glare of the spotlight," Rodino said. "I never looked forward to any of this. My objective was to contribute something good to the system. I never sought it, but I guess in politics survival depends on letting people know what you have done."

He takes special pride in the fact that "people keep telling me that 'you and your committee restored faith in our system.'"

The committee recommended the impeachment of Nixon, but the former president resigned before the issue went to the House.

"The system is working," Rodino declared. "What better way to celebrate the bicentennial than to point out that the Constitution is a living thing — that we met the test?"

The Italian-American lawmaker from Newark sometimes feels like a fish out of water campaigning for colleagues.

"Jeez, what do I say to a bunch of farmers?" he reportedly inquired of an aide recently before addressing a rural crowd in South Dakota.

This fall, he is to campaign in Indiana, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Iowa, Kansas, Oregon, and New York. The party has asked him to address a meeting of the Democratic National Committee next month.

Before he chaired the impeachment hearings, out-of-town speaking invitations came mostly from ethnic groups, particularly Italian-American organizations.

His new fame has meant personal sacrifices such as giving up family dinner outings on weekends. And it has cut into his paddleball, opera and reading time.

Now the Judiciary Committee is gearing up for hearings on the nomination of Nelson A. Rockefeller to be vice president. And Rodino has to worry about his own political survival.

Like every other House member, he's up for re-election in November.

Projects Adopted By RC&D Council At Windsor Meeting

The Mid-East RC&D Council held its regularly scheduled meeting in Windsor recently. The meeting was spent considering and adopting Project Measures to be included in the RC&D Plan and to begin work immediately.

Project Measures from four Resource Committees were reviewed and adopted. They included Project Measures concerning Land and Water, Fish and Wildlife, Forestry, and Agriculture.

Lewis Rascoe, chairman of the Land and Water Resource Committee, presented 30 Project Measures which centered around critical area treatment, flood control and drainage, and soil surveys. The critical area treatment measures included erosion control on school grounds in Hertford, Bertie, and Martin Counties. Critical area treatment measures were also adopted to control erosion on state road banks for all five counties. The RC&D Council will be working with the Department of Transportation to try and correct these problems. Flood control and drainage projects were centered around small watersheds in the rural areas and included one from Bertie County and two from Martin County. Also, a flood control and drainage project was adopted for John A. Wilkinson High School in Belhaven.

Project Measures for accelerated soil surveys for Beaufort, Bertie, Hertford, and Martin Counties were adopted. Rascoe pointed out that Pitt County already has a detailed soil survey and that the other four counties need this as a basic tool to be used by planning boards, health departments, and units of government in making wise land use decision.

James Galloway of the Fish and Wildlife Resource Committee presented Project Measures designed to improve the wildlife habitat throughout the region particularly for big game such as turkey, deer, and bear. He also pointed out that sport hunting and fishing in the region has not been capitalized on by the farmers as a money making enterprize. The entire committee felt that there is some opportunity in this area. Project Measures to develop a bear habitat management program for Beaufort, Martin, and Bertie Counties was adopted to insure that the black bear remains native to these three counties.

In conjunction with this, a measure was adopted to establish managed public hunting areas for upland game throughout the entire region. Utility companies will be requested to utilize their right of ways to improve wildlife habitat.

There was an interest in a Project Measure to better control the water levels on the Roanoke River which is influenced by releases from Kerr and Gaston Lakes. Turkey habitat in Martin and Bertie Counties is in danger of being wiped out due to flooding during nesting periods.

Galloway pointed out that there are many creeks throughout the region that need to be cleared and snagged of fallen trees and logging debris to make these creeks available for fishermen using small boats. As a result, a clearing and snagging project was adopted for Chocowinity Creek in Beaufort County.

Harry L. Thompson of the Forestry Resource Committee presented several Project Measures dealing with management of individually-owned forest lands. He pointed out that about one-third of the forest in the region is properly managed and most of this is owned by the industrial timber companies. Project Measures included setting up a County Forestry Association in Bertie, Martin, and Beaufort Counties. A Project Measure to hire a professional forester to work in the region was adopted and Colonel Ed Jones of the Mid-East Commission was requested to try and find a source of funds for this employee.

Other Project Masures included were largely in the educational field.

Project Measures from the Agriculture Committee included training courses on operation and maintenance of new farm equipment to be done with the assistance from the equipment dealers and technical institutes throughout the region. Also, a course is to be set up on grain contracting to include the future market and hedging.

The Agriculture Committee at the present time is developing a brochure on leasing arrangements that will provide up-to-date information for all different kinds of leases for farm lands.

In conclusion, RC&D Council Chairman T.W. Griffin pointed out that all the Project Measures adopted were worthwhile and it would be up to the Council and the Resource Committees to get these projects implemented.

Graham Warns Of Catastrophe

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — The Rev. Billy Graham says economic and financial troubles are sweeping the world toward a catastrophe.

The 52-year-old evangelist, who will open a five-day crusade here Wednesday, told reporters that movement of money into the Middle East will cause "tremendous pressure."

"Men all over the world are going to have to meet with good will and ask God to give a solution, because if they don't, there is going to be a catastrophe," Graham said.

He added the only answer to such problems as the oil crisis "is Jesus Christ. The world's troubles are going to get worse until He comes back again."

Unseasonable Cold Wave

Unseasonably cold weather flowed over the upper Missouri Valley to Lake Superior today with temperatures plunging below freezing and scattered frost reaching as far south as the Applachians and the Ozarks.

The mercury dipped to 32 at St. Joseph, Mo., to surpass the previous record low of 33 for Oct. 1 there.

Partly cloudy conditions prevailed from the upper Mississippi Valley to the Pacific Northwest. Occasional rain or snow fell over the northern Great Lakes region and clouds rolled over most of the Pacific Coast.

The remainder of the nation had clear skies.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 25 at Watertown, S.D., to 82 at Phoenix, Ariz.

Vote Return Standard Time For The Winter

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has given more weight to public convenience than the energy shortage by voting to restore standard time in the nation this winter.

Senate passage without debate or dissent Monday sent the bill to President Ford, who is expected to sign it.

As a result, virtually all Americans will set their clocks back one hour Oct. 27, ending 10 straight months of daylight saving time. The only exceptions will be residents of eastern Indiana, Hawaii, Arizona, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and Samoa, who observe standard time 12 months a year.

Next Feb. 23, clocks will be set forward an hour. Then, unless Congress intervenes again, the regular pattern of daylight time six months a year would be resumed in October 1975.

Year-round daylight time was approved by Congress last December as an energy-conservative measure, and became effective Jan. 6 for a 22-month period.

The Senate Commerce Committee, in recommending a return to standard time during November, December, January and February, reported the equivalent of 100,000 barrels of oil per day was saved during the first four months of 1974 because of daylight time.

But such savings "must be balanced against a majority of the public's distaste for the observance of daylight saving time" during the winter, the committee said.

Daylight time is opposed, especially during the winter months, by parents of school children, who must start classes during the predawn hours, and by the construction industry, which claims additional safety hazards during early morning hours.

N.C. Republican Ladies Are Greenville Visitors

By ROSALIE TROTMAN
Reflector Woman's Editor

Mrs. Bill Stevens, wife of the Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate, paid her second visit to Greenville yesterday.

Accompanied by North Carolina's First Lady, Mrs. James E. Holshouser, Mrs. Stevens was honored at an afternoon coffee held at the home of Mrs. Sellers Crisp. Mrs. William Grantmyre was assisting hostess for the afternoon.

Traveling in a Winnebago, Mrs. Stevens and Mrs. Holshouser will join several other women for a campaign caravan for visits to 30-35 counties next week. Others making the trip will include Mrs. Jim Carson, wife of the attorney general, Mrs. Tom Bennett, whose husband is chairman of the N.C. Republican party, and Mrs. Jim Baley, wife of Judge Baley, a candidate for the Supreme Court.

The Stevens have been campaigning for six months together. "When there are conflicting dates, then I travel on my own to campaign. We have traveled the proverbial 'Murphy to Manteo,'" said Mrs. Stevens.

When asked what appeals to her while campaigning, Mrs. Stevens stated, "It's a toss up—I enjoy meeting the people, learning about the state and seeing the state."

"We don't have a lot of time to spend in campaign headquarters in Raleigh. Most of the work there is done by our staff members and volunteers.

"The people of North Carolina could not have a better man running for the U.S. Senate than Bill. He is highly qualified and is a business man, not a professional politician. His career has been that of balancing budgets, meeting payrolls and working with people to achieve business successes. This is the type person we need in Washington, D.C., today, especially to cope with the economic situation," she added.

The Stevens are the parents of six children—three sons and three daughters. "We have a son-in-law and a daughter-in-law, so we actually have eight children—six the hard way and two the easy way," Mrs. Stevens replied.

In conclusion, she said, "I let my husband do the talking on the issues."

ON THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL . . . Mrs. Bill Stevens, left, and Mrs. James E. Holshouser visited in Greenville yesterday.

Registration Deadline For Voters Said Near

Miss Margaret Register, executive secretary of the Pitt Board of Elections, reminded area voters that the deadline for registration for the Nov. 5 general election is drawing close.

Miss Register said that citizens who have not yet registered have until 5 p.m. on Oct. 7 to get their names on the books.

Under the Uniform Election Law of North Carolina, she explained, when a person registers once with the county, he is eligible to vote in all elections.

New residents of the county who have not registered, as well as persons who have changed their names and addresses since the last election should make sure they are properly registered, the official continued.

People who have had name or address changes need to fill out a short form that insures they are now registered in the precinct in which they live. The minimum age for voter registration, she added, is 18 years of age. Miss Register reported that persons who did not vote in the last general election should check to make sure their names are still on the books.

The executive secretary said that special extended registration hours have been announced by the Board of Elections. The local office, located at 201 E. Second Street will remain open Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Oct. 2, 3, and 4 until 7 p.m., she said. Regular week-day hours Monday through are from 8:30 to 5 p.m.

Any Pitt County resident may register at the county office as well as with their local registrar.

County wide registration will be conducted at the following places on Saturday (Oct. 5) from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.: Greenville office at 201 E. Second Street; Ayden Town Hall; Bethel Town Hall; Farmville, office of C.A. Lilley at 106 E. Wilson Street; Grifton Town Hall; Grimesland Town Hall; and Winterville Town Hall.

Miss Register said that anyone interested in further information should call the Pitt Board of Elections at 758-4683.

Confidence In Business And Congress Sags

NEW YORK (AP) — The Louis Harris polling organization says the public has gained some confidence in the executive branch of government since last year, but confidence in Congress, big business and the press has gone down.

Harris said a poll of more than 1,500 households across the country earlier this month showed 28 per cent have "a great deal of confidence" in the executive branch, compared with only 19 per cent in 1973.

Congress, meanwhile, dropped in its confidence rating from 29 per cent in 1973 to 18 per cent this month.

Confidence in big business dropped from 29 per cent to 21 per cent over the year, while the press won only a 25 per cent confidence rating, compared to 30 per cent last year.

Rancher Sells Land To Just Stay In Business

By TIM REITERMAN
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After a lifetime of cattle ranching, 74-year-old Arnold Christensen sold his 8,200 acres of range land just to stay in business.

Third-generation rancher Stanley Van Vleck made money selling timber, clay and recreational services on 9,000 acres of grazing land, but lost money raising beef.

They are two of six California and Colorado cattlemen awarded $32.7 million after the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. (A&P) was convicted of fixing beef prices in violation of antitrust laws. The plaintiffs say they are typical of thousands of other ranchers across the nation.

Despite rising retail prices, the ranchers say their per-pound earnings stayed below 1951 levels until 1973. They sold livestock at less than cost, sometimes losing $100 a head. They cut back production and borrowed from banks. As a last resort, some sold property to raise funds.

"We work like hell but we're still borrowed up the hill," said Christensen, of Arbuckle, Calif. "People say: 'Why not get out?' But this is all I know."

Christensen, who figures he lost $300,000 to $400,000 between 1964 and 1968, sold three ranches totaling 8,200 acres between 1950 and 1972. He now leases 15,000 acres in three Northern California counties, with 4,000 head in the "Lazy C Bar F" cow-and-calf operation.

"You're lucky if you can sell a top quality 500-pounder for 35 cents a pound," he said. "That's $175, but your actual production expenses would run about $250."

Noting that his stepson and two daughters have chosen other pursuits, Christensen said, "These young people are not foolish like us old-timers. They go where they can make a buck. It's just too late for some of us to get out."

As for his $914,676 A&P award, the rancher said, "If any money comes out after appeals, maybe my grand kids will get it. But we aren't looking for money from this suit. We're looking for a square deal for every cowman and the consumers of this country."

In addition to Christensen, the U.S. District Court jury on July 25 awarded $25,058,280 to Dan Compton of Woodbridge, Calif; $5,708,958 to Irvin Bray of King City, Calif.; $552,984 to Van Vleck of Slough House, Calif.; $240,849 to William Prather of De Beque, Colo.; and $236,334 to R.E. Boulton of Castle, Colo.

They were plaintiffs in a suit filed in January 1968 and originally financed by independent associations representing 2,000 livestock growers in Colorado, California, South Dakota, Wyoming and Montana.

Cases against Safeway Stores of Oakland, Calif., and Kroger of Cincinnati, Ohio — originally listed as codefendants — were dismissed in 1973 after they agreed to discontinue certain buying practices and to pay $90,000 in legal fees. Four firms were listed as alleged coconspirators but not defendants.

An A&P motion for a new trial is to be heard Oct. 11. Attorney Joseph M. Alioto, son of the San Francisco mayor, said he would try Oct. 17 to make the suit a class action which may include all ranchers who suffered similar losses.

New Transit Body Meets

The newly created Transit Advisory Committee will meet this evening at 8 p.m. in the board room of the Greenville Utilities building.

On the agenda for tonight's first session of the ad hoc committee, headed up by City Councilmen Dr. Frank Fuller and Joe Taft Jr., is the organization of the advisory body and a presentation by representatives of the State Department of Transportation.

The representatives are expected to discuss three areas with the local committee. They include: information on what other cities in the state in our population range are doing in the field of transit and what their experiences have been; what possible sources of federal or state funding might be available to Greenville in the area of transit development; and what are some of the alternatives available to the city in terms of different types of transit that might be feasible in a city our size.

The state's mass transit specialist, Dave Robinson is expected to attend tonight's meeting and he will be accompanied by a representative from the Department of Natural and Economic Resources, John Anthony, who is in the department's Community Services Division.

The public is invited to attend the session.

Most leaf grades were $2 per hundred pounds higher. Top practical prices were $1.13 and $1.14 per pound. Several piles of quality leaf and cutters sold for $1.20 per pound.

Yesterday, a total of 758,128 pounds of tobacco was sold on the Farmville market for $853,845, giving an average of $112.63 per hundred pounds.

Chrysler Corporation announces a new car warranty with unlimited mileage for one full year.

For the first 12 months of use, any Chrysler Motors Corporation dealer will fix, without charge for parts or labor, any part of our 1975 passenger cars we supply (except tires) which proves defective in normal use, regardless of mileage.

And that's just the beginning.
We're confident that you'll find everything about our new '75's—from engineering and styling to economy—easy to say yes to. And for the clincher, we're backing them up with our new Owner Care Program.
It starts with a new 12 month, unlimited mileage warranty so strong and simple it's bound to generate questions. So, right here and now, we offer some answers.

Q. Unlimited mileage sounds simple enough. But what's the catch?
A. There's no catch. The warranty covers every part we put in the car. And it's good for as many miles as you can drive in 12 full months.

Q. What about labor? How much will that cost?
A. Nothing. If Chrysler Corporation put that part on your car, it's covered. Parts and labor. And that goes for everything except tires, which are covered separately by their manufacturer.

Q. But there are some expensive things that could just "wear out" if you drive enough miles even though they're not "defective." You know; brake linings, mufflers, shock absorbers. Do I have to pay for them?
A. No. To a lot of people those might be considered something for you to worry about. But since we want to make your relationship with the car we make as worry-free as possible, we're ready to take on those responsibilities. So, even if they just wear out during the first 12 months of normal use, we'll replace them no matter how many miles you drive.

Q. That's a great "extra." Does it include everything that just wears out?
A. No. We expect you to take care of normal maintenance—the little things like changing filters and wiper blades (unless, of course, they're defective, then they come under the warranty).

Q. The only way you could top all that is throw in a free loaner. Uh... do you?
A. Sure. If you make an appointment for warranty repairs in advance, and the job cannot be completed from morning until evening of the same working day, participating dealers will supply you with a loaner. Free.

Q. Is there anything else I should know?
A. Replacing certain worn out parts, our unlimited mileage warranty and our free loaner program are all just the beginning of a new Owner Care Program, designed to make owning our new cars so worry-free, they'll be irresistable.
See your Chrysler-Plymouth or Dodge dealer. Ask him about his new cars, then ask him about "The Clincher!"

NEW YORK (AP) — Blue-chip and glamor issues continued their severe slide in the stock market today, sweeping the Dow Jones industrial average under the 600 mark.

The widely watched average of 30 blue chips was down 12.75 to 595.12 at 11:30 a.m. Losers held a 3-to-2 edge on gainers overall in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the continued selling reflected concern over how well the economies of the United States and other nations could stand up to the persistent pressures of inflation and the world oil situation.

Among the Dow 30, Eastman Kodak was off 2⅛ at 63⅝; Du Pont fell 3¼ to 104¾; Sears, Roebuck was down 1⅛ to 50½; and Procter & Gamble tumbled 3⅝ to 69⅜.

Elsewhere in the growth-stock category, Burroughs was down 3 at 64, Merck gave up 1¼ to 49, and Texas Instruments was off 1⅞ at 59⅜.

American Telephone & Telegraph was the Big Board volume leader, down 1 at 40 in trading that included a 204,600-share block at that price.

AT&T warrants, also actively traded, fell ⅜ to 1.

The company, in a letter to shareholders, said it had no plans to take action to prevent the warrants from expiring as scheduled next May 15. The warrants give their holders the right to buy AT&T common at $52 a share, and thus would be effectively worthless without a substantial rise in the price of the stock before the expiration date.

The NYSE's 11 a.m. composite index of all its listed common stocks was down .37 at 33.08.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was off .01 at 62.84.

Syntex was the Amex' most-active issue, down 1⅛ at 28⅛.

SEATTLE (AP) — John Hogness, president of the University of Washington, wagered $20 million last May that he could shed 20 pounds by the start of fall quarter classes.

Hogness is now as trim as his word. He weighs in 21 pounds lighter, at 224 pounds for his 6-foot-4 frame.

The UW president told students attending his inauguration last spring he would lose the weight or cancel tuition — estimated at $20 million.

a former member of the N.C. House of Representatives emphasized his support for fiscal responsibility and a balanced budget on the national level.

Stevens told the Eastern audience, "we do not concede any part of the vote in North Carolina. . .we're going to get a substantial share of the vote down here. . ." on November 5.

Saying his involvement in politics is secondary to his interest in business, Stevens said, "I think I know something about working out a solution to our economic problems. . .stop deficit spending. I stand four-square on a platform of fiscal responsibility.

"What's the difference," he asked, between the Republican candidate and Stevens' Democratic opponent, former N.C. Attorney General Robert Morgan, "Who is. . .merely crying wolf and who. . .will do what he says he will do?"

"I submit to you. . .I am much more likely to deliver." Morgan, he noted is a career polititon.

"He wants to stand on his record. . .but does not want his record challenged. When it is, Stevens charged, Morgan calls it a "personal attack. . .smear tactics."

"What I'm doing," Stevens said, is "examining his record and talking about it.

"He (Morgan) will not join with me in discussing the issues.

"I'm going to win this race for you on November 5," he told the Republicans. "We're going to retire my opponent from his 24 years on the public payroll."

During a question and answer session, Stevens noted that "you do need, as consumers, protection in Washington." But he said, "we don't need another super agency to tell us what to do or not to do," explaining that there are now over 30 agencies in the federal government that deal with consumer protection matters. "There are plenty of safe-guards now. We do not need an entire new bureaucracy."

Stevens noted too, that "there are foes of the tobacco stabilization program in Washington.

"I think we must have representatives in Congress alert to the fact that there are foes. . .that can get things done without rocking the boat and swamping it.

"I will be very conscientious in efforts to further the effectiveness of the tobacco stabilization program. I would fight to the death to save the stabilization program. . ."

The candidate said, too, that in his opinion, that there is justification for relaxing the guidelines on bussing students to attain specific ratios of students in schools. He said we should "get on with quality education" now that the schools have been integrated.

Massive N.C. Drugs Roundup Is Seeing Arrest-Count Swelling

RALEIGH (AP)—Further arrests were expected today in North Carolina's second massive statewide drug crackdown in a three-month period.

By late Monday night, some 141 persons in 23 counties had been arrested on various drug charges. The State Bureau of Investigation said further arrests were anticipated but wouldn't tell how many persons were to be picked up.

SBI Director Charles Dunn made the raids public during a speech to the North Carolina Organized Crime Prevention Council Monday morning. "I think before it is over the number will exceed the 146 we arrested in July," Dunn said mid-afternoon Monday.

Among those arrested was Jeannette Martha Grier, 32, of Charlotte. She was among five persons arrested last month in the bombing of an SBI agent's car in Salisbury.

Dunn told newsmen that "some of the major illegal drug distributors of the state are being arrested. The great majority of those being arrested are charged with posession and sale" of drugs.

In some cases, undercover agents made "substantial purchases," Dunn reported.

Dunn said the raid followed weeks of investigation and that most of the cases involved instances where persons sold drugs to undercover agents. He said arrests were made by local officers assisted by SBI agents and agents of the Federal Drug Enforcement Administration.

Dunn said the drugs involved included "everything from heroin and cocaine, various hallucinogenics, some stimulants and marijuana."

The SBI chief said, "It looks now like about half of these cases will involve marijuana."

The department reported the main targets in the crackdown were dealers of drugs and their suppliers rather than people who just use an illegal substance.

The SBI said arrests have been made in Buncombe, Burke, Watauga, Iredell, Gaston, Mecklenburg, Guilford, Orange, Vance, Cumberland, Nash, Wayne, Pitt, Perquimans, Craven, Pamlico, Carteret, Onslow, New Haven, Jackson and Stanley counties.

The department said there may be arrests in other counties as the raids continue.

Threat To Veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford today threatened to veto a bill containing an amendment to cut off military aid to Turkey, declaring the measure would destroy any hope for the success of U.S. efforts for peace in Cyprus.

In a written statement hours before a final Senate vote on legislation containing the amendment proposed by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, Ford declared:

"If the Eagleton amendment or similar language is adopted by the Congress, the United States will have lost its negotiating flexibility and influence. It thus hurts the very countries and objectives it purports to help."

The Senate adopted the Eagleton amendment on Tuesday by a 57-20 vote, adding it to a resolution which would continue foreign aid at a level of about $2.5 billion a year.

Kickoff 3:50 For TV Game

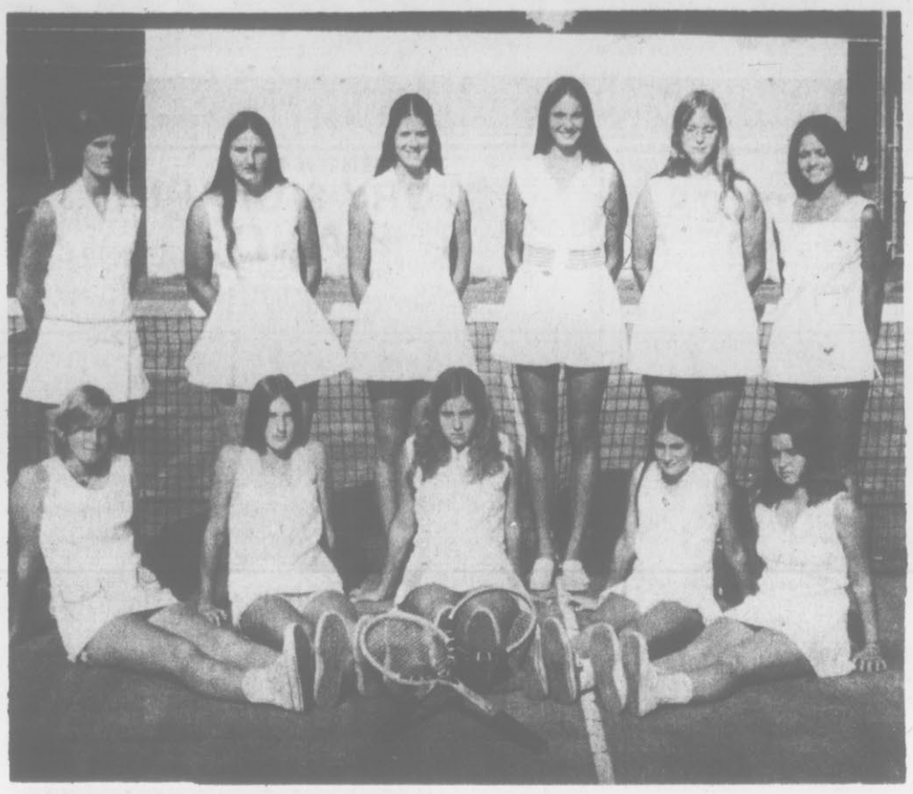

The East Carolina-North Carolina State football game Saturday will be regionally telecast by the American Broadcasting Company, it was confirmed late yesterday.

It had been reported as early as late spring that the game was a likely choice by ABC as one of their regional games for this weekend, but officials at N. C. State and East Carolina were told that it could not be firmed up until the Monday before the game.

Air time for the broadcast will be at 3:30 p.m., with kickoff set for 3:50 p.m. in Carter Stadium in Raleigh.

Both teams go into the game with unblemished records. State, ranked eighth in the nation on the Associated Press poll, is 4-0, with victories over Wake Forest, Duke, Clemson and Syracuse. East Carolina is 3-0, having beaten Bowling Green, East Tennessee and Southern Illinois.

Jim Bolding, sophomore safety for the Pirates, underwent surgery for a torn ligament on his left hand yesterday. It is expected that he will be able to play on Saturday, however. He will have to wear a splint on his hand for about six weeks, officials said.

Defense, Passing Key To Duke's Big Victory

By The Associated Press

Duke football coach Mike McGee says a rugged defense and a successful passing game were the keys to the Blue Devils' 27-7 victory last Saturday over Virginia.

"Our defense played well and our receiving was the best of the year," said McGee. "Our idea was to throw early against Virginia. I had an idea Virginia might try something new on defense and they did. They had a 'five-cover' which slowed down our inside game. We went to the outside with success."

Meanwhile, Duke's defense hounded Virginia quarterback Scott Gardner and stuck close to receiver Ken Shelton, who caught only one pass all day.

Virginia coach Sonny Randle blamed himself for not having his team emotionally prepared, although the Cavaliers rushed for an early touchdown and held off Duke's ground game at first.

"There will be some changes this week," said Randle. "I don't know who is going to be on that plane to Atlanta."

Virginia plays Georgia Tech on Saturday, while Duke hosts Purdue. Meanwhile Saturday, Clemson hosts Georgia, Maryland is at Syracuse, North Carolina plays Pittsburgh, North Carolina State hosts East Carolina and Wake Forest is at Oklahoma.

While McGee was pleased with his defense, N. C. State coaches were not satisfied with theirs, despite a 28-22 victory over Syracuse.

"We just weren't doing the job," said assistant coach Al Michaels. "They were ready."

The Orangemen bulldozed through the middle and scampered around the ends for 316 yards, 137 on runs by halfback Ken Kinsey.

Fortunately for the 'Pack, safety Bob Divens and cornerback Eddie Poole turned in top-flight performances and kept Syracuse from cashing in on more drives.

"We're disappointed with the yardage they gained," said Michaels. "But we should enjoy the victory."

Maryland's defense was reminiscent of last year's team, which was eighth in the nation against the rush.

Led by tackle Randy White, the Terrapins held North Carolina to 127 yards on the ground and 122 yards in the air. White made seven unassisted tackles and was in on six more.

Meanwhile, Tar Heel runner James (Boom Boom) Betterson was hindered by a painful boil and did not start, although he carried 11 times for 78 yards.

Clemson's upset over Georgia Tech was due in part to a last-minute decision to use the quarterback sweep. Clemson coach Red Parker said he made the decision after seeing how effectively South Carolina had used the sweep against the Yellow Jackets.

Sophomore quarterback Mike O'Cain used the play seven times for 54 yards in the Tigers' explosive second half.

O'Cain's emergence may mean the Tigers will operate with two quarterbacks this season. Senior quarterback Mark Fellers had an erratic day against Georgia Tech, but Parker seemed unwilling to move him to the bench permanently.

"I wouldn't think of abandoning either one," he said. "They are both my quarterbacks."

Foreman Back In The Ring

N'SELE, Zaire (AP) — "It feels good to be back in the ring again," world heavyweight champion George Foreman said Monday.

"I've been doing my roadwork for the past five days and when (trainer) Dick Sadler says it's okay, we'll be sparring again."

Foreman appeared in good spirits as he resumed gym work after a two-week layoff in preparation for his title defense against Muhammad Ali, now scheduled for Oct. 30 in Kinshasa, Zaire.

The bout, originally planned for Sept. 24, was postponed when Foreman caught an elbow over his right eye in a sparring session with Bill McMurray.

The much-heralded cut has caused severe difficulties for journalists, publicity people and especially promoters of the bout. Many of the problems have to do with rescheduling theaters and stadiums that were to show the bout on closed circuit television but have prior committments on Oct. 30.

Foreman was examined by a World Boxing Council doctor Monday and proclaimed fit for training.

"I'm very happy with the way George looks and feels after the injury and the layoff," said Sadler. "We've still got four weeks to go and I kept all six sparring partners here for George to work with.

"The champ has 250 rounds of sparring under his belt for this fight and I'm sure we'll have the opportunity to get in a few more before the 30th."

Another interested party who was pleased to see Foreman working out again was Ali. Ali has worked out only sparingly since the accident.

"Now I can get back to the serious work again with a clear head," said Ali. "I'm glad that George has kept in shape and felt that the eye is in good shape.

"I don't want anything to cheat me out of getting my crown back."

King Rehired; Says Braves To Be In Race

ATLANTA (AP) — With or without slugger Hank Aaron, Manager Clyde King says the Atlanta Braves should be in the thick of a pennant fight next year.

King, 50, signed a two-year contract Monday to continue as manager of the Braves, a post he assumed July 24 when Eddie Mathews was fired.

He said the difference between the club's third place finish this year and a pennant next year may be a right-handed power hitter and one or two left-handed pitchers. King said the Braves would be looking for help in those departments but added, "We're not going to rape our club to strengthen it."

He conceded that Aaron, 40, could help fill the need for right-handed power with the quick wrists which have propelled more baseballs out of more ballparks than any player in history. Aaron said last weekend he may reconsider his decision to retire at the end of this season.

"I realize what a tough decision he has to make," King said. "He's been a great player for 20 years. We are going to be patient with him. We will be happy with whatever decision he makes."

The Braves manager noted that the club may have the answers to its left-handed pitching problems within its organization in minor leaguers Jamie Easterly and Mike Bard.

King brushed off a suggestion that the Braves may be hard put to match the talent of the top two teams in the National League West Division—the Los Angeles Dodgers and Cincinnati Reds.

"I certainly don't feel we can't contend with them," he said. "From the All-Star break on, I think we kept up with 'em pretty good."

At the time of the All-Star game, when King became manager, the Braves trailed the Dodgers by 14 games. Going into the final two games of the season today and Wednesday against Cincinnati, the Braves trailed the Dodgers by 14 games.

Under King, the team had a 36-24 mark. Before he took over, the Braves were 50-50. It adds up to a season mark of 86-74 and a lock on third place, Atlanta's best finish since winning the division in 1969.

Patton Is Pick Champ

David J. Patton of 102 Berkshire Dr. in Greenville is the winner of this week's Daily Reflector Football Contest.

Patton correctly picked the winners in 26 of the 32 games listed in last week's paper. The LSU-Rice tie was counted wrong on all ballots, since it is possible to pick a tie.

Patton won, however, on the basis of his point total with a guess of 77. A total of 75 points were scored in Oklahoma's 72-3 victory over Utah State.

Second place went to Mike Holloman of 3018 Memorial Dr., Greenville, also with 26 right. His point guess of 68 was further off the total.

One other entry also had 26 games correct, but was further off the total.

The new contest for this week appears on the following pages.

DUNKEL COLLEGE FOOTBALL INDEX

GAMES OF WEEK ENDING OCT. 6, 1974

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

Cards, Pirates Both Get Wins

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Bruce Kison of Pittsburgh and Bob Forsch of St. Louis, a pair of pitchers who were pretty much overlooked in the preseason analyses, matched three-hitters Monday night to keep the National League East race in a flat-footed tie.

Kison rode pinch-hitter Richie Zisk's tie-breaking seventh-inning triple to a 2-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs, while Ted Simmons' three-run homer in the first inning provided more than enough of a margin as Forsch pitched the Cardinals to a 5-1 victory over the Montreal Expos.

Meanwhile, in the NL West, the Houston Astros prevented Los Angeles from clinching the title by beating the Dodgers 4-1. Los Angeles now leads second-place Cincinnati by two games, with two to play.

In the only other National League game, the New York Mets beat the Philadelphia Phillies 5-2.

Kison had a shaky first inning, allowing two singles, a hit batsman and a bases-loaded walk to force in a run, but then settled down.

Kison, 9-8, allowed just one single and a walk the rest of the way— by far his strongest game of the season and his first complete game since 1972.

Pittsburgh and St. Louis each have two games remaining. The Pirates play host to the Cubs while the Cards are at Montreal.

Zisk, batting for shortstop Frank Taveras, clouted his game-winning triple in the seventh to score Manny Sanguillen, who had singled and taken second on a wild pitch.

"I made a perfect pitch," said loser Bill Bonham, 11-22. "It was a change-up, low and away. I don't see how he hit it."

Cards 5, Expos 1

Forsch, a rookie called up from Tulsa in July, pitched nohit ball for 6 2-3 innings before finishing with a three-hitter at chilly Jarry Park in Montreal.

Mike Jorgensen broke up the no-hit bid by hitting what Forsch called "a bad pitch, a fastball up and over the middle of the plate" for a two-out double in the seventh. Ken Singleton followed with a single for Montreal's only run.

Simmons' first-inning blast was his 20th home run of the year.

"It was a high fastball," he said of the pitch from Steve Rogers, 15-22. "When I hit it, I knew I hit it well."

Astros 4, Dodgers 1

The Dodgers, who clinched a tie for the NL West title on Saturday, still need either a victory or a Cincinnati loss to win the crown outright.

They were stopped Monday night by the six-hit pitching of Larry Dierker and Ken Forsch. Dierker, 11-10, went the first six innings but left when his arm stiffened.

"Playoff-wise, not wrapping it up tonight hurts," said Los Angeles Manager Walt Alston. "If we had won, we could have arranged our pitchers the way we wanted to."

Mets 5, Phils 2

Wayne Garrett's three-run homer backed the seven-hit pitching of Jerry Koosman for the Mets.

American League scores: Baltimore 12, Detroit 6 and Cleveland 2, Boston 1.

Baltimore Is In The Drivers' Seat In East

By LARRY PALADINO
AP Sports Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver is being cautious. He doesn't want to say anything to psychologically aid the New York Yankees.

But the Yankees need more than a slip of the tongue today — they need to win their last two games while Baltimore must lose at least one of its last two for New York to even tie for first place in the American League East.

Monday night the Detroit Tigers sure didn't do anything to aid the Yankees, psychologically or otherwise.

Baltimore battered Detroit for 12 hits and nine runs the first four innings enroute to a 12-6 victory before a chilled, rain-dampened crowd of 6,575 at Tiger Stadium.

In the only other American League game scheduled, the Cleveland Indians edged the Boston Red Sox 2-1.

The Orioles' triumph was their seventh consecutive and their 14th in the last 16 games. They have posted a 26-6 record since Aug. 29 when they were third, eight games behind leader Boston.

An Oriole victory would force New York to win tonight and Wednesday in Milwaukee. That would give the two contenders a 90-72 final record and force a one-game knockout playoff Thursday in New York.

Should Baltimore win one and New York lose one of its next two, the Orioles would win their fifth East crown since the major leagues went to divisional play six years ago.

The only way New York can win the title without a one-game playoff is to win twice against the Brewers while Baltimore loses the final two to Detroit. That would give the Yankees a 90-72 record and the Orioles an 89-73 mark.

"This is a big one for us because all we have to do is win one of two games to tie. The pressure is definitely on the Yankees," said Oriole second baseman Bobby Grich, who drove in three runs in three separate trips to the plate.

Baltimore didn't waste time against Tiger starter Mickey Lolich, who became the first 21-game loser for Detroit since Hooks Dauss was 13-21 in 1920.

Lolich, who has lost six successive games since winning his 16th, gave up four of Baltimore's five second-inning runs.

Davis singled, Don Baylor doubled, Brooks Robinson hit a two-run single and Earl Williams belted a two-run homer. A walk by Mark Belanger, a stolen base, a walk to Paul Blair and a single by Grich produced run number five.

Grich hit a solo homer off Fred Holdsworth in the sixth while Belanger singled in two unearned runs off him in the ninth.

Indians 2 Red Sox 1

Jim Perry posted his 17th victory, scattering nine Boston hits. The Indians scored twice in the fourth inning on Charlie Spikes' single, John Ellis' double, a infield out and Dave Duncan's two-out single off Bill Lee.

Pirates Kick Pembroke, 3-1

The East Carolina soccer team scored three goals in the first half, and it was all the Pirates needed as they coasted to their second straight victory of the season here Monday afternoon over Pembroke College, 3-1.

Wingman Tommy O'Shea and midfielder Tom Tozer spearheaded the Pirates offensive attack. O'Shea bottled the Pirates first goal early in the first half and Tozer scored the second goal on an assist from Toni Isichei. Midfielder Jeff Kunkler tallied the final goal of the game in the first half on a penalty kick.

East Carolina dominated play in the first half. The Pirates had 24 shots in the first half and 20 more in the second half with many near-misses.

Pirate coach Curtis Fyde was pleased with the team's first-half performance but he felt things got a little to sloppy in the second half. "We looked like gold money in the first half. We controlled the ball very well offensively and got great play from our wings," said Fye, "I take the blame for sloppy play in the second half. I want our young players to get some experience, but we just seemed to lose our momentum in the second half."

Frye inserted the reverses to start the second half, but sent the starters back in mid-way the second period had elasped to finished the game.

"Our young players looked good. Wayne Burrow played the whole second half and did a good job. He made some young mistakes, but the more he plays the better he'll get," said Frye. "Ed French also played well."

Frye also praised the play of wingman Harry Hartofelis, wingman Paul Froehlich, halfback Lloyd McClelland and full back Charlie Hardy.

"We're going to need everybody this week because we've got a tough road schedule coming up," noted Frye.

The Pirates travel to Lexington, Va. Wednesday to face VMI and then play Madison College on Thursday in Harrisonburg, Va. Madison is ranked eighth in the country.

Thalman Has Respect For Winless Gobblers

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
AP Sports Writer

Virginia Military's Keydets and Virginia Tech's Gobblers for many years met in the final football game of the season for both with the success of the campaign for each team often riding on the outcome.

When the two tangled last year, they went into the game with similar 2-8 over-all records, and the Keydets may have been one of the forces that hastened the departure of Tech Coach Charlie Coffey when they upset the Gobblers 22-21.

This year is an exception to the rule.

The two teams meet Saturday in Richmond's annual Tobacco Festival game, and it will be the fourth outing for both.

VMI, the surprise Southern Conference leader at 2-0, comes into the game with a 2-1 over-all mark. Tech has failed to win in its three starts under new Coach Jimmy Sharpe.

The fact Tech is winless so far—the opponents have been Kentucky, Southern Methodist and Houston—means nothing to Keydet Coach Bob Thalman, now in his fourth season at VMI.

"Tech has a better team than last year," says Thalman. "I have a great deal of respect for them."

Thalman says, "History has shown this to be always a great game. It's one of the oldest rivalries in the country and I'm glad it has continued. Our players always look forward to playing VPI and I must admit that so do I."

For many years the game was played in Roanoke on Thanksgiving Day, but the last few games have been played at Tech.

Of this year's site, Thalman says, "Both schools have strong alumni support in the Richmond area and I think it's great that this year's game will be played there."

Thalman says, "There's no question this is a big ball game for both of us. Past records mean nothing in a game like this one."

The VMI coach says Tech "has a great receiver in Ricky Scales, and Phil Rogers is a hard runner. It will be our first look at the wishbone, and we have our work cut out for us this week."

Scales last week became the most prolific pass receiver in Tech history, catching his 81st aerial for a school career record, but Rogers has yet to flash the form of his sophomore season last year when he became the Gobblers' first single-season 1,000-yard runner.

VMI, meanwhile, recovered from a 45-7 shellacking at Vanderbilt to overpower Davidson 43-7 in its first display of offensive fireworks this season.

Quarterback Tony Farry, a senior who had never played the position in college, ran for 43 yards and two touchdowns and passed for 122 yards and another score.

"The only game to us right now is the Tech game," says Thalman. "We're pretty much on schedule. We could have played better than the score indicated against Vanderbilt."

Kilmer Leads Redskins' Win

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bill Kilmer, limping with a pulled calf muscle, tried unsuccessfully to tell everyone that he was only a small part of the Washington Redskins' victory over the Denver Broncos.

"It was a team effort ... the offense, the defense and the special teams," he said. "We didn't make any mistakes and they did. We didn't have any interceptions. We didn't have any fumbles."

Despite his comments, Kilmer threw two touchdown passes to Charlie Taylor, including one early in the first quarter, to lead the Redskins to a 30-3 victory in the National Football League nationally televised interconference game.

The victory put the Redskins in second place in the NFC Eastern Division with Philadelphia, each with records of 2-1, behind undefeated St. Louis, 3-0. The loss gave Denver a record of 0-2-1, last in the AFC Western Division.

In addition to Kilmer's two touchdown passes to Taylor, Mark Moseley kicked field goals of 37, 22, and 18 yards and Duane Thomas scored a touchdown with 11 seconds remaining in the game to give the Redskins more total points than they have scored in two previous contests this season.

Denver's only score came on a 34-yard field goal by Jim Turner in the third period.

"The Redskins are back," said Washington Coach George Allen. "We're back together as a team. We had the old spirit tonight."

Denver Coach John Ralston said: "Bill Kilmer did an outstanding job. His execution was never better. It was just one of those night when Kilmer was at his best."

Kilmer had 17 completions in 23 attempts for 223 yards and two touchdowns.

Turn Lilliston loose on your peanut crop—
Count on the highest possible harvest returns

Lilliston 1500 Peanut Combine
It has been called as near perfect a machine as ever built. Few implements of any kind anywhere have been as effective, as versatile, as dependable as the Lilliston 1500. That's why there are far more of them picking the world's peanuts than any other combine made.

Sixty-four years of peanut production experience are squarely behind this world-famous Combine. Proof enough that it will pick better, work more dependably, last longer and trade higher—a combination that can only build bigger profits for you.

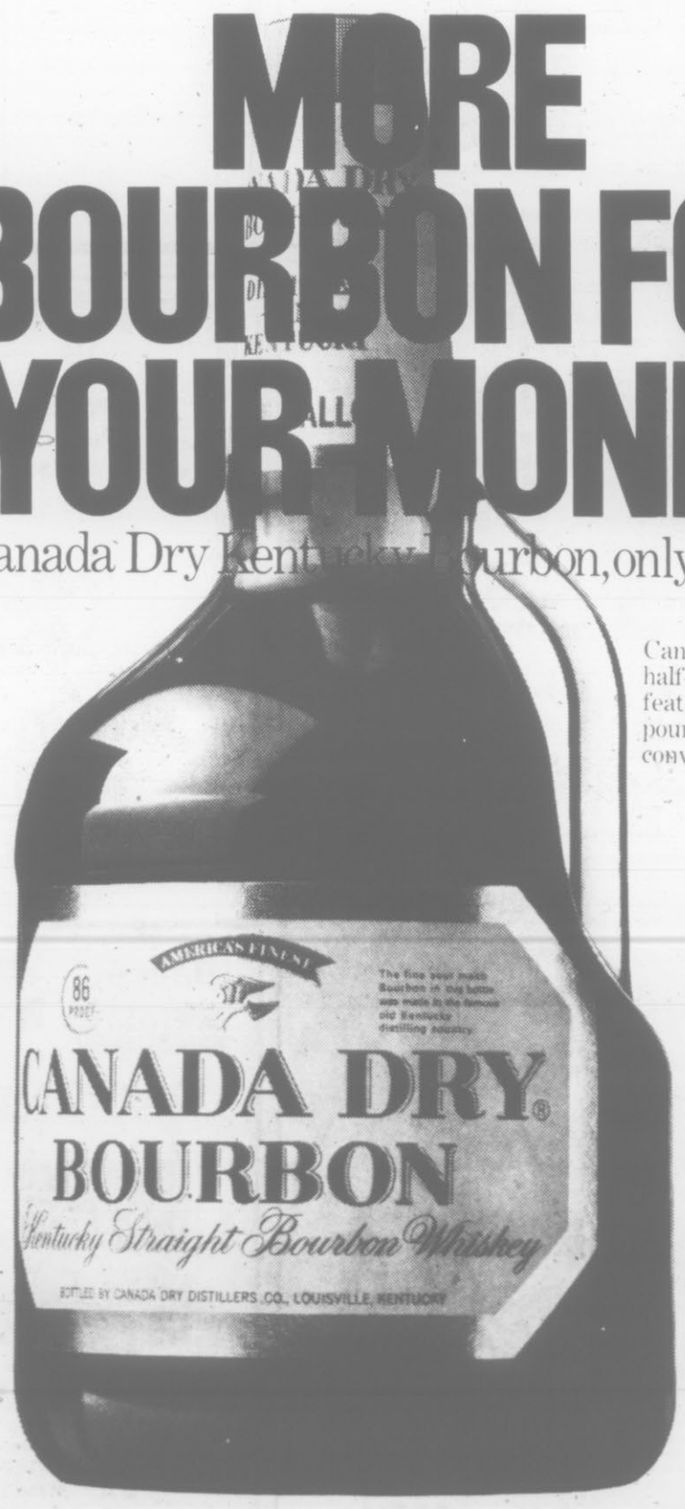

Lilliston 6000 Hi-Cap Peanut Combine
Here is a completely new dimension in peanut combining, a working concept that goes far beyond anything else operating in peanuts today. The capacity of the Hi-Cap 6000 is massive. In many conditions the 6000 will harvest at twice the speeds of conventional units.

Besides being engineered for greater harvesting capacity, the Hi-Cap lowers pod damage and produces superior cleaning. This is the big one—the super harvester—first, fast and in all ways superior to any other harvester in the field.

Theory As To Chemical Need

Adrian wonders if prolonged leaching of the land's 44 water-soluble chemicals via rainfall, may have killed the dinosaurs. Lack of a trace of cobalt threatened the extinction of Australian sheep! Then read Prof. Swain's new dinosaur theory!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

CASE B-656: Adrian J., aged 37, is a dental surgeon.

In March of this year, I addressed the Dental Societies at Cleveland, Ohio, Dallas, Texas, and then Akron, Ohio, on successive weeks.

"Dr. Crane," Adrian asked, "we'd like to have you take 30 minutes to explain in detail your view of the ocean's 44 trace chemicals.

"For our dental stress on fluoridated water fits into that idea.

"And I was interested in your theory that the dinosaurs may have become extinct because of a gradual leaching of the soil of certain water-soluble chemicals necessary to their life."

Dinosaur Diets

When the sheep population of Australia was dying off, frantic ranchers over there thought defective rams might explain the sterility of the ewes and the fact that many miscarriages occurred.

But new, virile rams didn't stop the threatened extinction of the sheep.

Then a chemical analysis of the soil showed that cobalt was deficient in the pasture fields.

Cobalt was then added to the blocks of sheep salt and dusted on the grazing lands.

Presto! The threatened death of all the Australian sheep was dramatically stopped.

Apparently, the lack of only a tiny amount of cobalt would have caused the loss of an entire species!

Maybe that is what also explained the gradual disappearance of the dinosaurs after their 80-million year rule of this planet!

Brachiosaurus, for example, weighed almost 50 tons and consumed about 2,000 pounds of vegetation daily!

But the continual leaching of the soil via rains, may have washed away certain vital water-soluble chemicals to the point that the dinosaurs became less fertile and more susceptible to disease.

Over a period of several million years, they could thus have died off completely, though we still have torrid heat and lush vegetation in the Amazon as well as African jungles that should sustain dinosaurs even today!

Prof. Tony Swain, of the Royal Botanical Gardens at Kew, now advances another interesting theory.

He explains that 130 million years ago the first flowering plants began to displace the ferns and evergreen forage of herbivorous dinosaurs.

Since the herbivorous dinosaurs often served as food for their carnivorous kinfolk, any poison in the herbivorous creatures would kill off both types of dinosaur.

Since Prof. Swain says modern reptiles (like the turtle) are about 40 times less sensitive to poisonous alkaloids than are mammals, then the dinosaurs may have eaten tons of flowers containing dangerous alkaloids.

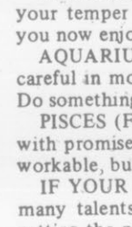

The accumulation of such lethal chemicals over a period of time may have proved to be the death knell for the gigantic dinosaurs.

This theory is very interesting, but the recent evidence of the threatened extermination of the entire sheep species from Australia, due merely to lack of cobalt, leads me to favor the trace-chemical view concerning the death of the dinosaurs.

Send for my booklet "The Ocean's 44 Trace Chemicals," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents and see the possible relationship between those 44 trace chemicals vs. modern deficiency human ailments!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

There are a limited number of themes in contract bridge. However, they recur in an astonishing number of disguises. Today's hand is from the World Pairs Olympiad, played in Las Palmas, Canary Islands, last May, and features a defensive manuever that has been written up on many occasions.

North-South were employing a range of 15-17 points for their no trump opening bids. North wheeled out the Stayman convention to check on whether his partner held a four-card major suit, then bid his hearts to show five of them. South's rebid of two no trump denied three-card support for hearts, so North decided to try for nine tricks at no trump.

At most tables, the opening lead was West's fourth-best spade. East won the king and returned the suit to West's ace. West could set up his spades, but he could never get in again to cash his tricks. Declarer thus had all the time in the world to go about setting up hearts and diamonds for his contract.

At some tables South was defeated, and without peeking to the opponents' cards, there was nothing he could do about it. One of the successful defenders was Michael Cappelletti of Washington, D.C., playing with his wife, Kathy. When a low spade was played from dummy at the first trick, Cappelletti inserted the ten! As the cards lie, declarer could have ducked this trick, leaving the spade suit blocked. But that would have been a foolish play had West started with only five spades, for then the defenders could have taken the first five tricks in the suit. Now declarer had to rely on the diamond and club suits to produce his tricks. When East gained the lead with the king of diamonds, he returned the king of spades. It was a simple matter for Mrs. Cappelletti to overtake with the ace and run her spades, resulting in a two-trick set.

Shoplifters Add To Cost

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The president of the Mass Retailing Institute says shoplifters added more than 2 per cent to the amount consumers paid at self-service stores last year.

Kurt Barnard of New York, in Atlanta for the institute's convention, said in an interview Monday that the costs of shoplifting — about 2.6 per cent of total sales — were passed along to customers.

"Remember one thing," Barnard said. "The average store does not make as much in net profit after taxes as the thieves get away with. Naturally, the store cannot make up these losses, so the loss is added to the price of some item in the store."

He said shoplifting is not limited to customers.

"The larger part of the loss comes from internal theft involving employes," Barnard said. "Very often it is a matter of crooks getting together and hiring themselves out and laying the foundation for major crime."

He said judges and district attorneys who are too lenient must share the blame for the shoplifting problem along with store operators who refuse to prosecute.

Barnard said store operators are becoming stricter.

"If you don't put them in jail, then those who steal from you will put you out of business."

Bank Robbed By Four Bandits

BESSEMER CITY, N.C. (AP)—Authorities are searching for four armed men who pulled off North Carolina's 52nd bank robbery of the year Monday.

The bandits fled with a reported $2,000, after holding up a branch of the Home Savings and Loan Association.

The FBI said money was also taken from two customers. Agents said each of the men was armed with a pistol.

A New Show On 'How To Cook'

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Public Broadcasting Service is offering public TV stations a new how-to-cook show tonight. So what, you say? Well, this is a different kind of TV dinner. It's for kids from ages eight to 12.

Called "Zee Cooking Show," it'll appear once a week for the next 14 weeks. It stars four budding chefs per show and chief cook Colette Rossant, herself the mother of four mothers.

I highly recommend the show; not only for youngsters, but also for all adults who suffer stove fright and tend to exist on peanut butter and honey sandwiches when nobody's around to cook for them.

Tonight's show deals with the delicate process of making an omelet. Granted, that doesn't sound as lively as, say, "Kojak." But the lively way Mrs. Rossant goes about her instruction, plus the kids' reaction to it, is curiously refreshing.

Mrs. Rossant bustles about the kitchen with frequent cries of "Voila!" as the omelet takes shape.

The show, produced for PBS by the Educational Television station in Columbia, S.C., doesn't show how to prepare high-level eats. Nor does it specialize in French cooking.

Its basic aim, she says, "is to show that cooking is fun, that it doesn't take hours to cook and that you can take hamburger, or meat loaf or fish and you don't have to cook it badly."

One major problem area in the kitchen is measurement — rookie cooks often get stumped when the recipe calls for a half cup of this or a teaspoon of that. How does she deal with the issue for children?

"I explain a little about it," she says. "But I'm not a great measurer. I don't believe in that. Only essential things. I say, 'A taste, a tad, a pinch.' Experiment? Exactly. This is how you cook."

Asked if there've been any culinary disasters in the show, Mrs. Roussant replied, "Well, it's completely unedited, so whatever disaster I have on the show is a disaster a mother might find in her kitchen when her children cook.

"It does happen, but I try to save it — that's part of the instruction — and there've been no real disasters."

How does her kiddie kitchen course differ from adult versions?

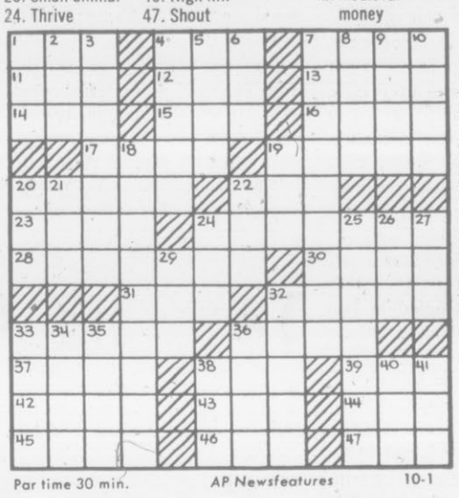

"I never deal with adults," she said firmly. "This is because children are not afraid. Children like to experiment. They'll try anything. It's not the same with adults.

"They're not as free as children. They always say, 'Well, my cook book says this,' or 'my mother says that' or 'I've always done it this way.' You don't have that problem with children."

Prices Up, But Some Bargains For Grocery-Buyer

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The family grocery bill followed an all-too-familiar upward pattern during September, an Associated Press marketbasket survey showed, although there were a few bargains at the meat counter.

The cost of eggs, laundry detergent, cookies and sugar generally went up last month, while the price of pork chops and chopped chuck went down.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the prices on March 1, 1973, at a supermarket in each of 13 cities and rechecked at the beginning of succeeding months.

The latest check showed that during September the bill for the 15 items went up in 11 cities and down in two — Seattle, Wash., and Salt Lake City, Utah. On the average, the bill at the start of October was 2.3 per cent higher than it was at the beginning of September and 12 per cent more than at the start of the year.

The latest price boosts in the AP survey generally reflected higher farm prices caused by drought and bad weather in the Midwest. There is some hope for the future, however.

The Agriculture Department said Monday that prices paid to farmers dropped 2 per cent from Aug. 15 to Sept. 15, the first decline since last spring. The lower farm prices could mean lower supermarket prices in a couple of months — if retailers pass along the savings.

Administration officials have said that food prices will continue to rise in 1975, although at a slower pace than in 1974. The 1974 boost in food prices is expected to be between 15 and 17 per cent, officials say.

The latest AP survey showed that the price of a dozen, medium white eggs went up during September in 12 of 13 cities checked. Eggs were not available at the 13th supermarket. Despite the increases, however, eggs remained cheaper than they were at the start of the year, averaging 13 per cent less than they did at the beginning of January.

Detergent, which remained fairly stable in price earlier, started rising during September, due to higher manufacturing costs caused by increases in prices charged for raw materials.

The price of laundry detergent went up in nine cities during September, rising an average of 8 per cent. The price went down in one city and was unchanged in three.

Center cut pork chops went down in seven cities, with the declines ranging up to 30 per cent in Seattle where the price dropped from $1.69 a pound to $1.19. Chopped chuck was down in six cities.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, chocolate chip cookies, milk, all-beef frankfurters and granulated sugar.

The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Ga., Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Old Newspaper Market Slumps

By JACK LEFLER
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The bottom has dropped out of the market for old newspapers.

"The market is very soft," said Harold Cowan, owner of A A A Industrial Paper Supply of Los Angeles, a firm that buys old newspapers for recycling into newsprint and industrial products.

The price has slumped from $32 a ton six months ago to $10 for domestic use and $5 for export.

Early this year there was a scramble for old newspapers, with Japanese and Korean interests grabbing a big percentage of the market and driving the price up. Now there is a surplus.

"What has happened," said Cowan, "is in the market in the Orient."

Japanese sources, commenting on the slowdown in paper imports, noted that their country's economy, which has been growing at a rate of 10 per cent a year for the last two decades, has slowed down and this has affected imports of all types.

In 1972, Japan and Korea shipped about 2,200 tons of old newspapers a month from Southern California ports.

As the demand rose, a monthly shipment of 12,000 tons was projected for 1974, but it should fall far short.

Cowan said the demand for old newspapers in California also was adversely affected by the prolonged carpenters strike. During the strike there were no sales of old newspapers for recycling into wallboard, wallpaper, building paper and roofing paper.

Cowan said he has a surplus of newspapers on hand, hasn't bought any in eight weeks and probably won't for another two weeks. This has put a crimp in collection drives by schools and churches, but their efforts are still going on to a limited extent.

Probably the biggest user of old newspaper for recycling into newsprint is Garden State Paper Co., a subsidiary of Media General, Inc. Garden State has plants at Pomona, Calif., Garfield, N.J., and Alsip, Ill.

Sixty-five newspapers in California and about 200 throughout the country are using recycled newsprint.

"Although prices for waste newspapers have dropped in recent weeks, the general paper industry, particularly on the West Coast, is stronger today than at any time since World War II," said Richard B. Scudder, chairman of Garden State.

"Today's waste newspaper prices are higher than any paid since January 1973, when an unexpected export demand resulted in unprecedented high prices.

"The so-called current drop in prices occurred as the export market closed off its purchases and the domestic market adjusted to the situation."

Scudder said Garden State has played an important role in attempting to bring some degree of stability into the traditionally cyclical waste paper market.

"For example," he said, "Garden State is the only company in the industry to establish a guaranteed floor price, providing our dealers with an assurance of profitability regardless of market fluctuations.

"We are also the only company to undertake ambitious warehousing programs to maintain a steady flow of supplies. At the present time, Garden State is carrying more than 40,000 tons inventory at our Pomona mill, accounting for more than 95 per cent of all waste newspapers warehoused in the Pacific region. Another 32,000 tons are warehouses on the East Coast.

"We have no crystal ball to predict the future forces which will affect the economics of supply and demand in today's changing market."

Farm Scene

By HENRY C. RIDDICK

Alton Johnson, Pitt County farmer in Carolina Township, and his wife, were honored recently by Uniroyal Chemical Company as a leading peanut sees producer. The contest, sponsored by Uniroyal, was an attempt to upgrade the quality of seed to be used by farmers in producing peanuts. It was open to farmers who save their own or commercial seed producers. Johnson was honored for winning the county contest.

Gardening Chores for September

With the first cool days of autumn, you will want to take care of these early fall tasks:

1. Spray roses for diseases for the last time; rake and remove all leaves that fall from the plant. This is the over-wintering source of next year's black spot.

2. Repot house plants that are to be kept in the house all winter. These plants should be brought in several weeks before artificial heat is turned on. This will enable plants to adapt themselves to the indoor climate without being handicapped in their adjustment. If the plants did not grow well outside during the summer, replace them as they are not likely to improve in the house.

3. Secure bulbs for planting in the fall. You should make your bulb selection now so that you will have the pick of healthy bulbs not the leftovers. . .write the Agricultural Extension Service, Box 1427, Greenville, NC, or call 758-1196 and request a copy of our booklet on "Spring Flowering Bulbs."

Lt. Governor Will Resign On Sentencing Day

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke says he will resign his state post when he is sentenced Wednesday in Washington on a perjury conviction in the ITT case.

Reinecke, 50, a Republican convicted July 27 of lying to a U.S. Senate committee in 1971, had filed motions asking reversal of his conviction or a new trial. The motions were rejected Friday by U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker in Washington.

Reinecke said in statement Monday: "In view of the judge's decision ... I will resign as lieutenant governor simultaneously with my sentencing ..."

Reinecke faces up to five years in prison and a $2,000 fine on the conviction of lying to the Senate Judiciary Committee in testimony about International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.'s $400,000 offer to underwrite the 1972 Republican National Convention.

ECU Delegation Hosts Other N.C. Members

East Carolina University's delegation to the State Student Legislature were hosts to 100 students from other North Carolina campuses when the SSL's first interim council meeting was held at ECU Sept. 27-29.

SSL officers present were Amy Orr, Lieutenant Governor (Greensboro College); Rick Gilliam, Treasurer (ECU); and Sally Freeman, Secretary of State (ECU).

Events at the meeting included planning sessions, committee meetings and social hours with ECU Student Government officers and political science faculty members.

ECU SSL delegation member Valerie Szabo said the main goals of the annual North Carolina Student Legislature program are educational, not only for the student participants but for the general public as well.

SSL meets each month during the academic year to vote on resolutions concerning political matters on a local, state or national level.

Its General Assembly meets each spring, operating along the lines of the N.C. General Assembly. The students debate and amend passages of the bills under consideration before a general vote by both houses.

At the end of the spring assembly meeting, awards are given to participating campuses for outstanding performance. Last year ECU won the Best Bill Award in the large campus category for its 15-page "Juvenile Justice Act." Its delegation won the Best Delegation Award, and ECU delegate Jim Davis received the Carlyle Award for Best Speaker.

This year's governor is Carl Bullick of UNC-Chapel Hill.

Musicians Going To State Meetings

The North Carolina chapters of the National Association of Teachers of Singing (NATS) and the Music Teachers National Association (MTNA) will meet jointly at Appalachian State University Oct. 11-13.

Announcing the joint conventions was Dr. Charles W. Moore of the East Carolina University School of Music, who is vice president of the state MTNA chapter. About 600 private music teachers as well as college and university faculty musicians are expected to attend, he said.

Highlighting the three-day event will be five nationally known artists and speakers. Jesse Coston, Curtis Institute bass baritone, and Peter Takacs, ECU artist faculty pianist, will perform recitals. Featured dinner speaker will be Max Camp, University of South Carolina piano professor and president of the MTNA's Southern Division.

The gathering will also feature the first performance of Margaret Sandresky's "To Be Played in the Mountains," a piano work commissioned by the two organizations for the joint convention.

Composer Sandresky is professor of theory and composition at Salem College and is an active keyboard performer. The premiere performance will be given by her husband, Clemens Sandresky.

Also performing at the convention will be pianist Joseph Banowetz, member of the North Texas State University faculty and visiting lecturer for the National Music Camp, Interlocken, Mich.

Dunn Sees Signs Of Mafia Activity In N.C. Crime

RALEIGH (AP)—Charles Dunn, head of the State Bureau of Investigation, said in a speech Monday there are indications that associates of 11 Mafia groups operate in North Carolina, but a federal official disagreed.

In a speech to the North Carolina Organized Crime Prevention Council Monday, Dunn said federal and state police information show evidence of Mafia infiltration in the Tar Heel state. He said the activities and Mafia connections haven't been proven, but there is evidence of organized crime.

While claiming existence of organized crime exists in North Carolina, Dunn said "it is not the overriding factor in our crime problems today." He said "known crimes by Mafia associates—while costly to some—are few in comparison to the total number of crimes committed."

In an interview later Monday, Edward J. Krupinsky, special agent in charge of the Charlotte office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, took an opposing position on Dunn's claims.

"There has been no information that has come to our attention that the so-called Mafia has invaded North Carolina. If anyone does have any such information, I wish they would let us have it," Krupinsky said.

"There is a distiction between organized crime and the Mafia," the FBI man said.

"You can have any two people conspire to commit a crime and that can be construed to be organized crime. If that's what youre talking about, you do have organized crime in North Carolina," he said.

Krupinsky has previously disputed Dunn's claims about Mafia activity in North Carolina.

The Organized Crime Prevention Council is newly organized and headed by Atty. Gen. James Carson. Carson said the council will study professional crime and recommend legislative action on the problem. Dunn's address was the first heard by the council.

In his speech, Dunn told the group that Mafia associates are mainly working in the areas of cigarette smuggling, gambling, narcotics, security frauds and some land specualtion. On the whole, he said the organized crime in North Carolina is carried on by associates of Mafia families rather than family members themselves.

The growth of organized crime in North Carolina "has been gradual, well-designed and carefully executed," he said.

The Mafia associates "have more often courted the well-to-do rather than the street criminal. They have made investments which insure high profits with low risks. They have taken advantage of our out-of date laws and our unsuspicious nature," he said.

Dunn said the SBI plans to fight organized crime by trying to cut off cigarette smuggling and fighting groups that use arson, land acquisition, corporate fraud and gambling to further their interests. He said emphasis will be given the areas of land acquisition and fraud.

The SBI chief gave this rundown of alleged Mafia operations in North Carolina:

—Associates of the Vito Genovese family of New York are believed to be operating in the southeast, the Piedmont and western North Carolina with activities in loan sharking and loan fraud, real estate and corporate transactions including fraud, arson, securities and manufacturing.

—Associates of the Joseph Bananno family of New York are believed to be involved in real estate corporate fraud, bankruptcy, loan sharking and cigarette smuggling in east and west North Carolina.

—Associates of the Luchese family of New York (headed by Carmine Tramunti) are believed involved in real estate and corporate transactions, loan frauds, narcotics and cigarette smuggling in the Piedmont and eastern part of the state.

—Associates of the Santo Trafficanti family of Miami are alleged to be in the western and southern Piedmont with dealings in loan fraud and fraudulent and counterfeit securities.

—Associates of the Carlos Marcello family of New Orleans are believed dealing in real estate and business infiltration in the southern Piedmont.

—Associates of the Joseph Colombo family of New York may be in eastern North Carolina with dealings in real estate, corporate transactions, bankruptcies and cigarette smuggling.

—Associates of the Salvatore Pieri family of upstate New York are believed operating in the southern Piedmont with activities in stolen securities, real estate and fraudulent loans.

—Associates of the Raymond Patriarca family of Boston may be dealing in stolen and counterfeit securities, fencing stolen goods and fraudulent loans in the southern Piedmont.

—Associates of the Carlo Gambino family of New York are alledged to have operated in the east, the west and southern Piedmont with activities in real estate, loan frauds, securities, stolen treasury notes and cigarette smuggling.

—Associates of the Stefano Magaddino family of Buffalo, N.Y., are believed to have dealings in real estate, corporate funds, business infiltration, gambling and narcotics in the Piedmont.

—Associates of the Meyer Lansky group of Miami are believed to operate in several areas of the state in real estate, manufacturing, infiltration of business, arson and insurance frauds.

Wreck Kills 4 Tar Heels

SUFFOLK, Va. (AP)—Four North Carolinians were killed Monday and two were injured critically in a head-on collision of a station wagon and a pickup truck on Virginia 32 here just north of the North Carolina line, police said.

The dead were identified as Douglas R. Chappell, 32, of Tyner, driver of the pickup truck; W. Thomas Eure, 54, of Sunbury, driver of the station wagon; Blanche Louise Boyette, 40, and Angela Boyette, 6, both of Corapeake, passengers in the station wagon.

Chappell, Eure and Mrs. Boyette died at the scene of the accident at 6:40 p.m., and Angela Boyette died at 11:40 p.m. at Norfolk General Hospital, authorities said.

Police said two other passengers in the station wagon were admitted to area hospitals in critical condition. Dean Harrell, 13, of Corapeake was admitted to Norfolk General Hospital, and Marjorie Harrell of Corapeake was admitted to Louise Obici Memorial Hospital in Suffolk.

Police said the accident occurred when the pickup truck passed a vehicle and collided head on with the station wagon.

DOCTOR BIRD

MONTEGO BAY, Jamaica (UPI) — Jamaica's national bird is the streamertail hummingbird, which can be found nowhere else in the world. Jamaicans call it the "doctor bird" because its long, black tail looks like the old-fashioned swallowtail coats worn by Victorian era doctors.

Phasing Out A Test Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—A pilot program designed to encourage a wide range of test projects in the criminal justice system is being phased out of Charlotte, N.C., and seven other cities, the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration says.

The Pilot Cities Program is being dropped because it fell short of expectations, LEAA officials said Monday.

Begun nationally in 1970, the program involved LEAA grants for such projects as analyzing juvenile court treatment procedures, improving information systems in criminal justice agencies, and drawing citizens into a community relations program with police.

Other affected cities are Albuquerque, N.M.; Dayton, Ohio; Norfolk, Va.; San Jose, Calif.; Omaha, Neb.; Rochester, N.Y.; and Des Moines, Iowa.

Tax Repeal Has Friends

MORGANTON, N. C. (AP)—Preliminary results from a statewide poll of legislative candidates indicate most of those responding favor repeal of the 3 per cent state sales tax on food, according to the North Carolina Tax Council.

In a report released Monday night, the council said it had received replies from 47 of 177 candidates in 22 counties. Candidates in the other 78 counties are to be polled later.

Of those who answered, the council said 57 per cent indicated they favored repeal, 38 per cent said they would accept repeal if it were tied to an over-all tax reform and 5 per cent had no opinion.

The report was made public at a meeting advertised as the council's statewide kickoff for a campaign to repeal the food sales tax during the 1975 legislative session.

State Sen. McNeil Smith, D-Guilford, principle speaker for the meeting, said receipts lost through a sales tax repeal could be made up by revisions in the income tax rates, especially in the upper income brackets.

"If we could exempt food in the depths of the depression, we certainly ought to be able to exempt it now," said Smith.

"The budget can't be any tighter next year than it was in 1933 or in 1935, and we had some food exemptions then and at all times until 1961."

WAITING—Anatoly Karpov paces the floor Monday in Moscow as his opponent, Viktor Korchnoi, studies his next move during their match in the series to determine a challenger for chess champion Bobby Fischer. The match was adjourned until today, and observers said a draw appeared likely. (AP Wirephoto)

Getting all kinds of customers into a bank with premiums and gifts is easy. At Planters, we do it all the time.

But in order to keep them as customers a bank has to offer them something more. And we do that, too.

When you save at Planters National Bank, the first thing we offer you is a choice.

6½%	2½ years	Savings Certificate
6%	1 year	Savings Certificate
5½%	90 days	Savings Certificate

We have five different savings plans for all kinds of savers.

For people who always want their money immediately available, we have a Regular Savings account. The interest is the highest allowed by law, 5%, and you can deposit or withdraw anytime you want.

For people who want a little more, there's our Golden Savings. You can add to it anytime you like, but we need 90 days notice on withdrawals.

For the investor, Planters has Certificates of Deposit. Three kinds: 5½% to 6½%. Minimum deposits may vary, so does the maturity. See the chart above for details.

One last thing. While some of our customers are very enthusiastic about the idea of saving money, they just can't bring themselves to do it.

For these people, we have Sav-O-Matic, an automatic transfer of funds from a PNB checking account to any PNB savings account.

So, if you're interested in making money on your savings, after we give you all the free gifts and premiums, come to Planters National Bank and take your choice.

We may knock ourselves out to get you, but then we also knock ourselves out to keep you.
