Economic Outlook Debated

Reduced Harvest Impact Eyed

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A big loss in grain crops this year because of bad weather will send meat prices up again next year but has stirred debate in the Ford administration about how food prices will act overall next season.

The Agriculture Department said Thursday the corn crop will be 6 per cent less than forecast a month ago, mainly because of killer frosts. And it will be down 16 per cent from the record 1973 harvest.

Soybeans, another livestock feed needed to produce the nation's meat, milk and poultry, will be 4 per cent less than the September estimate and down 19 per cent from last year.

Don Paarlberg, USDA director of economics, said the reduced harvests — even farther below what experts had expected six months ago — will mean higher meat prices next year.

But Paarlberg refused to predict how food prices generally might react in 1975. Those are expected to go up 15 to 17 per cent this year, one of the sharpest climbs since World War II.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has been saying for six weeks that 1975 food prices would be held to less than a 10 per cent gain from this year. Paarlberg was asked about that.

"We have not made an official estimate," Paarlberg told a news conference after Thursday's crop report. "This is Secretary Butz's judgment. And he may simply hold to that figure; he may revise it; he may wait until the analysts have, themselves, reviewed the situation."

In other economic developments Thursday:

—Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns said the nation is in a recession — an assessment contradicting the one stated by President Ford at his Wednesday news conference — although he disagreed with those who forecast a deepening recession in the year ahead.

—United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller said a nationwide coal strike is likely to begin Nov. 12 unless a negotiating impasse with the coal industry is broken.

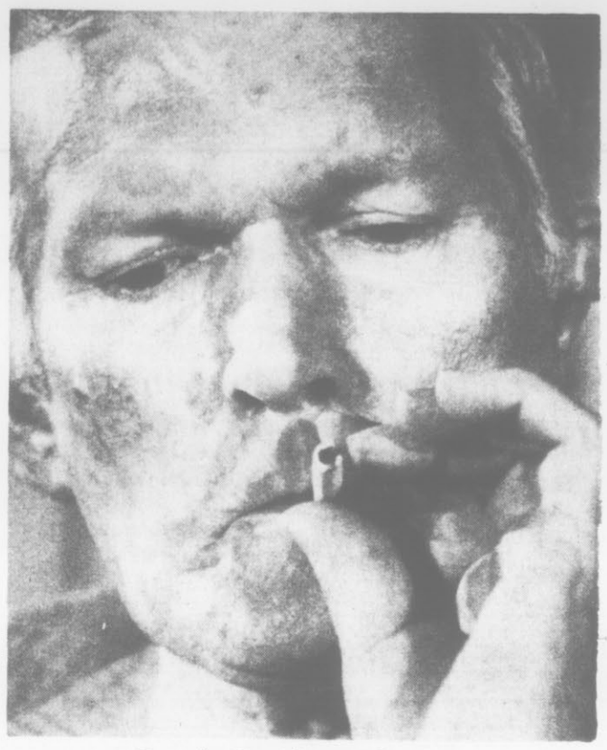

—The House and Senate approved a compromise package of improved GI education benefits that would increase most payments to veterans by nearly 23 per cent.

—The Senate passed unanimously an emergency housing bill under which $7.75 billion in government funds could be pumped into the home mortgage market.

—President Ford urged his cabinet officers to find further budget reductions to hold fiscal 1975 spending to $300 billion or below.

—Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, head of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, issued a statement denouncing Ford's proposed 5 per cent income tax surcharge for middle-and upper-income families.

—The Senate passed a bill to double the size of savings accounts which qualify for full coverage under federal deposit insurance.

Coal Strike Threat

COAL STRIKE?—United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller smokes a cigarette at a Washington news conference where he accused the coal industry of refusing to negotiate. Calling the industry's counterproposals "garbage", Miller warned that a nationwide coal strike is likely to begin Nov. 12 unless the impasse on contract proposals is broken. (AP Wirephoto)

Kissinger's Effort Sees Hard Going

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger brought his Middle East peace mission to Syria today amid Palestinian denunciations, an accidental gunshot and signs his talks in Egypt accomplished less than he had hoped for.

The secretary's arrival was delayed half an hour by an accidental discharge of a submachine gun aboard his U.S. Air Force jetliner. A Secret Service agent suffered minor wounds in the scalp and right forearm.

Kissinger immediately began talks with President Hafez Assad after ceremonies at Damascus Airport. It was expected to be the secretary's toughtest negotiation session.

In other Middle East developments:

—In Moscow, Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev declared in a televised address clearly timed to coincide with Kissinger's trip that the continued occupation of Arab territory is a "powder keg than can explode at any moment."

—In Jerusalem, Premier Yitzhak Rabin called a special cabinet meeting to prepare for Kissinger's weekend visit, and sources said the Israeli government was making last-minute decisions on Israeli demands in future peace talks with the Arabs.

U.S. officials who usually brief newsmen on board Kissinger's plane imposed a virtual blackout on details of his conversations with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. But a clear impression emerged that Kissinger accomplished less than he had hoped for in Cairo.

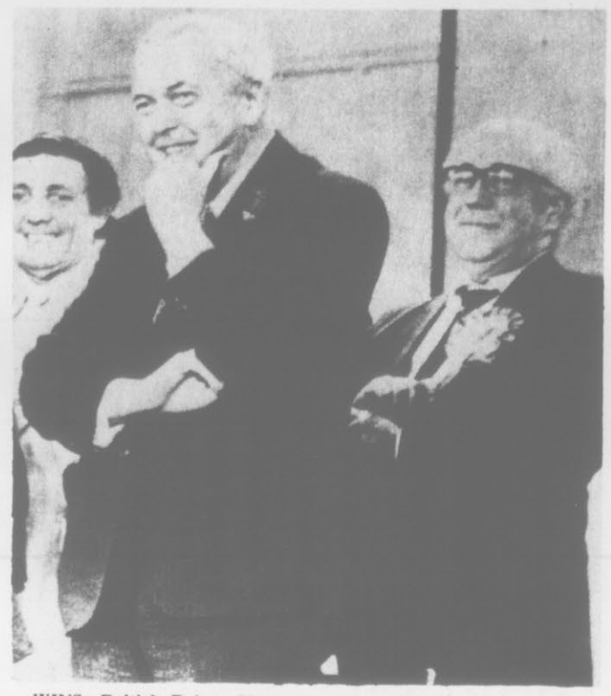

Although reporters saw a map being carried into Sadat's residence during Kissinger's talks with the Egyptian leader, U.S. officials insisted that only "general concepts" were discussed and indicated no breakthrough.

Leaks by Egyptian government officials, widely reported in Beirut and other Arab capitals, said Kissinger told Sadat it would be impossible to arrange an Arab-Israeli peace conference in Geneva for the near future.

As an alternative, Kissinger was said to have proposed lower-level negotiations in Washington between the Egyptian, Syrian, Jordanian and Israeli foreign ministers.

Sadat was reported to have rejected this proposal outright, saying it was a return to the no-war, no-peace stalemate that led to the last Arab-Israeli war in October 1973.

The submachine gun incident occurred when the Israeli-made weapon toppled from a rack in the rear of the plane as it taxied at Cairo Airport. Kissinger hurried to the front cabin as the wounded agent, Walter Boche of Alexandria, Va., called out: "Don't worry about me. Check the secretary."

Labor Wins British Vote

By FRED COLEMAN
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor party has won Britain's general election, riding to power with a mandate for radical measures against the country's ailing economy.

Official returns today said the Laborites took at least 318 seats, the magic number for an over-all majority in the 635-member House of Commons. Labor held only 298 seats in the previous Commons, and its legislation was hobbled by minority rule.

Labor campaigned on a manifesto to renegotiate Britain's membership in the European Common Market, to bring key industries under state control, to bring about voluntary wage restraint, and to tax the rich "until the pips squeek."

Wilson favors keeping close ties with the United States.

With 618 of 635 seats decided, the Labor party held 318 seats, Edward Heath's Conservatives 273, the Liberals 9, and splinter groups 18.

Even before the results were official, Wilson declared, "I will soon be forming my fourth administration." He is the first man in this century to serve four times as Britain's prime minister.

Wilson, looking relaxed but tired after staying up most of the night watching the returns, flew into London from his home district near Liverpool as computer projections predicted a five-seat majority for Labor in Parliament when all returns are in.

The Labor party has been in power with a minority government since last February when a narrow Labor electoral victory returned Wilson as prime minister, and ousted Heath.

Watergate Jury Picked

WASHINGTON (AP) — A jury of nine women and three men was chosen today to hear the Watergate cover-up trial.

For the first nine days of the trial, U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica had questioned hundreds of potential jurors on what they know and think about Watergate.

The tedious and painstaking process was the result of Sirica's fears that two years of news coverage of the Watergate scandals may have persuaded many perspective jurors that the defendants were guilty before the trial began.

While the 12 members of the jury itself have been picked, prosecution and defense lawyers continued picking an additional six alternates in Sirica's crowded courtroom.

Once that is completed, the jurors and alternates are to be taken home to make personal preparations for the trial, which is expected to last three or four months. The jurors are to be housed in a nearby motel and will be allowed no contact with anyone else outside the presence of U.S. marshals.

Completion of the lengthy jury selection process clears the way for Watergate prosecutors to lay out their case against the defense beginning Monday.

Racially, the 12 jurors consist of eight blacks and four whites. More than 70 per cent of Washington's population is black. The panel appeared generally middle-class and middle-aged.

After Sirica made one last request to the jurors to declare any reason why they might be unable to serve, they were sworn in. They shared three bibles while the five defendants stood facing them.

The jurors pledged to "well and truly try" the defendants, who are accused of attempting to smother the investigation into the original Watergate burglary.

Sometimes one-by-one and sometimes in groups, Sirica spent 10-hour days in his closed courtroom seeking out jurors sufficiently unbiased by two years of news coverage of the Watergate scandals.

Watergate prosecutors remain fearful that many potential jurors are reluctant to convict the defendants, three of whom were former President Richard M. Nixon's closest assistants.

In court papers, the prosecutors said many called to jury duty were troubled that Nixon's pardon allowed him to go free while the others faced prosecution for the attempt to suppress the investigation into the original Watergate burglary.

Nonetheless, Todd Christofferson, Sirica's law clerk, said Thursday night that a pool of 45 persons had been sifted out for the final phase of jury selection. Once the group of 45 is asked a few questions today, Sirica is to open the courtroom to public and press for the first time since last Wednesday.

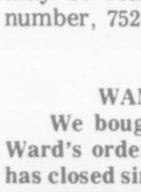

In the final step of picking the jury, defense and prosecution lawyers are to make eliminations based solely on their feeling that one person or another would be unsympathetic to their cause.

Once the so-called peremptory challenges have been completed, the final jury of 12 plus six jurors will be taken to their homes where they will pack for a trial expected to last three or four months. The jurors will be sequestered over the weekend and for the length of the trial in a motel near the U.S. District Courthouse.

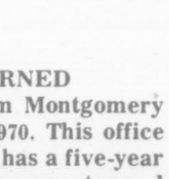

Sirica's impatience to get on with the trial is indicated by his decision to hold court Monday, which is Columbus Day and a federal holiday.

The five Nixon subordinates on trial in the conspiracy case are former presidential aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman; former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell; and two former officials of the 1972 Nixon re-election committee, Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson.

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

752-1336

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day, but the phone service is available 24 hours a day.

FORECLOSURE THREATENED

I got a letter addressed to my husband from the City Attorney saying our property is subject to foreclosure for unpaid balance on curb and gutter improvements. My husband is in the Greenville Nursing Center and doesn't even know me, and I've been out of work since August because of an injury. My husband paid some before he got sick, but they say we owe $136.32 more. Social Services has a lien on our property now, and I just don't know where I can get the money to pay the balance. Mrs. J.E.

Al Averett of the City Tax Office said that, according to law, the City cannot forgive a debt for street improvements. He asked, however, that you talk to him and let him help you work out a payment plan that will make it as easy on you as possible. He may be reached through the City's main phone number, 752-4137.

WANTS FREEZER RETURNED

We bought a chest freezer from Montgomery Ward's order office here June 30, 1970. This office has closed since then, but the freezer has a five-year warranty. The freezer's compressor stopped working and it was picked up July 11 by the service department of Montgomery Ward in Rocky Mount. I've called three times and written once since. In August they said they would deliver it within a few days. S.L.R.

The Service Department of Montgomery Ward's in Rocky Mount said they had attempted to deliver your freezer once, but had found no one at home. They said they were waiting for you to call them to set up a second delivery trip. They promised to deliver your freezer Thursday, asking that you either have someone at home or leave them specific directions in a note.

You reported Friday that your freezer was indeed delivered, just as promised.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

HAS COMIC BOOK INFORMATION

Charles Lawrence of Falkland is a collector of old comic books and can provide information to anyone who would like it. He volunteered after seeing Tuesday's Hotline item about the value of old comic books. His phone number is 752-6389.

Reiterates No Tax Increase

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Jim Holshouser has reiterated his 1972 campaign pledge against any increase in state taxes.

He told a news conference Thursday he wanted to clarify conflicting reports that indicated his administration might request a one-cent hike in the gasoline tax to balance the highway budget.

"This administration will not ask for a tax increase for anybody on anything," he stated.

In fact, he said, the 1975 General Assembly will be faced with the "tightest budget that I can remember since I've been coming here to the legislature.

Holshouser formerly served in the House as a representative from Watauga county.

He told newsmen he will ask the state Department of Transportation to revise its budget proposals to reflect lower gasoline tax revenues.

The governor said he believes his road building program can proceed on schedule without additional taxes, although there will be no room for expansion or capital improvements.

He said certain fees charged by the Department of Motor Vehicles might be raised, but only in cases where they can no longer pay for self-sustaining programs they are designed to support.

Holshouser backed the anti-inflation program of President Ford, but indicated some reservations about the proposed personal income tax surcharge. He said, "What the President laid out was by and large a sound proposal."

He was asked about a report in The Greensboro Daily News Thursday that said letters he wrote soliciting funds for Republican Senate candidate William Stevens had gone to state employes and highway patrolmen.

Holshouser said he was positive that the only persons who received the letters were those on a computerized mailing list of past Republican contributors.

Cold Winter, Searing Summer, Says Almanac

By ADOLPHE V. BERNOTAS
Associated Press Writer

DUBLIN, N.H. (AP) — A food shortage, a bone-chilling winter and a searing summer are in store for 1975, according to the Old Farmer's Almanac(k), which has been predicting American weather with a claim of 80 per cent accuracy for 182 years.

The 183rd annual edition of the almanac — not to be confused with The Farmers' Almanac, a mere 158 years old — says, "Mother Nature is still in charge and we only try to forecast what is already ordained."

Last year's almanac predicted the drought in several areas of the country and the mild winter of 1974.

The almanac's weather tables, that begin with November, predict a generally warm Thanksgiving and a cold Christmas, even in Florida, for 1974.

But there will be a snowy Thanksgiving in the Rockies and Pacific Northwest and a white Christmas is likely in parts of the Northeast, Great Lakes and Great Plains, the almanac says.

And the Old Farmer's Almanac(k) disagrees with the Farmers' Almanac's forecast of an average winter.

The Old Farmer's Almanac(k)'s predictions by "Abe Weatherwise" use a secret formula developed by its first editor and takes into account sun spots, moon phases, jet streams and ocean currents.

The Farmer's Almanac, published in neighboring Maine, gets its forecasts from Harry Buie, an Inverness, Fla., astronomer whose system is keyed to the sun, moon and planets.

The editors of the two almanacs are generally friendly, but "it gets a little less than friendly about this time of year" when new editions are printed.

AEC Is To 'Die'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has passed and sent to the White House a bill abolishing the Atomic Energy Commission and establishing two new federal agencies.

The new agencies will be the Energy Research and Development Administration and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

The research administration will be commissioned to explore all possible energy sources, with simultaneous projects in nuclear fission and fusion, coal gassification and liquification and solar, geothermal, wind, tidal and ocean current power.

Keep Buzzer

..WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has voted to rescind a federal regulation requiring that new cars be equipped with an interlock system preventing them from being started unless seat belts are fastened.

..The measure, which also must be approved by the House, was approved by the Senate on Thursday.

..Under an agreement reached earlier this week by a HouseSenate conference, an eight-second warning buzzer will be retained.

Goat Herding Is Minor Job Of Busy Woman

BURKBURNETT, Tex. (AP) — What does the wife of one of the nation's most noted cowboys — newspaper, billboard and magazine ad type — do while he is away?

Would you believe she herds goats?

Now, goat herding is not quite on the glamor level of professional modeling, useful as goat herding is.

And Mrs. Dean Myers, wife of Burkburnett's most noted cowboy, doesn't relish it much. It is forced upon her.

"While Dean is chasing wild horses down the canyon or riding off into the sunset, I often herd goats. It's not that I plan to do it — but someone has to," she said.

Myers owns a couple of ranches and is also in the welding business. The welding shop is on a small bit of acreage, and that's where the goats are penned.

"There are pens and fences around the land, but somehow those goats get through — and it's almost always when Dean is gone. If I'm lucky, one of the boys is home," she said.

Mike, their oldest son, thinks the goats get out at night.

"One night the police called and said the goats were out. Mike, Marty and I got up, dressed and got the goats in. Mike, always quiet and reserved, said, 'Mom, if you'll give me the money to buy a set of checkers, I'll give them to the police so they'll have something else to do in the middle of the night besides call us to get the goats in'."

Herding goats is a minor part of the work of this busy woman. Myers and his brother are partners in one ranch near Seymour and the other near Kamay. Mrs. Myers does all the chores at the family's ranch house.

Myers' mature, rugged face is known throughout the world. But, says Mrs. Myers, he was not one of the figures in the famous cigarette-cowboy television commercials.

Cigarette advertising was banned from television. Myers began modeling for the cigarette firm shortly thereafter.

Mrs. Myers grew up on a farm and could hardly wait to escape to a job in town.

"But after working many years in town, it's a pleasure to have the freedom and fun of the outdoors," she says.

Beginning when she was 18, she operated a beauty shop for 15 years and was a worker in the profession's associations.

She worked at most district and state shows, usually serving as a model for guest artists and contestants. "Then I married a model," she noted.

To add to her many duties, she is a member of the Burkburnett Booster Club, secretary of Little League football and is a PTA member. She has worked at sports banquets and helps on civic drives.

Besides herding the family goats, Mrs. Myers feels she helps her husband in other ways.

Often when he is out of town on a welding job he gets a hurry-up call to leave for a commercial. She then makes his plane reservation, gets his clothes ready and packs.

Mrs. Myers said, "If you asked Dean what I do to help him, I feel certain he'd say I encourage him in all of his work, and that I help spend his money."

Engagement Announced

MISS SANDRA BARNES HARRELL. . .is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luke Harrell Jr. of Scotland Neck, who announce her engagement to Charles Matthew Zadnik, son of Mr. Charles Zadnik of Donora, Pa., and the late Mrs. Marie Gramm Zadnik. The wedding will take place Nov. 16.

Rainbow Assembly Officers Installed In Sunday Ceremony

Officers of Greenville Assembly No. 67, Order of the Rainbow for Girls, were installed Sunday afternoon in ceremonies at the Masonic Temple.

Those installed were: Pat Allen, worthy advisor; Charlene Ross, worthy associate advisor; Brenda Foley, hope; Donna Blackwell, faith; Tammy Levey, chaplain; Paige Levey, drill leader; Lisa Murad, religion; Deanie Freeman, nature; Gigi Mosley, confidential observer; and Norma Roberson, outer observer.

The meeting was called to order by the installing officer, Miss Donna Bunch, past worthy advisor, who welcomed guests and introduced the other installing officers:

Installing marshal, Linda Blackwell, past worthy advisor and grand representative to Canada; installing recorder, Mrs. Betty Levey; installing chaplain, Mona Rogers, past worthy advisor; and installing musician, Nancy Murray, past worthy advisor and past grand immortality.

Following the installation ceremony, Miss Allen explained her theme and other plans for her term of office, after which she introduced members of her family who were present: her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mayo Allen; and her grandparents, Mrs. S. L. Corbitt, and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Scott.

She also recognized the members of the advisory board present: Mrs. Pearl Hartsell, past mother advisor and chairman of the board; Mrs. Viola Rogers, past mother advisor; Mrs. Blanche Jackson; Clarence Oakley; and Mrs. Jean Tharp, mother advisor.

Oakley was introduced also as master of Crown Point Lodge No. 708, the sponsoring body of the assembly. Also introduced was Mrs. Nancy Willard, worthy matron of Greenville Chapter No. 149, Order of the Eastern Star.

The junior past worthy advisor, Miss Linda Blackwell, was escorted to the altar and then to the east where she was presented her past worthy advisor's jewel with a tribute by Mrs. Louise Evans.

Worthy advisor Pat Allen was presented her gavel by her father, Mayo Allen.

The mother advisor, Mrs. Tharp, presented awards to the following girls: Pat Allen, who is also grand representative to the state of Pennsylvania, Linda Blackwell, Donna Bunch, Breanda Foley, Deanie Freeman, and Charlene Ross.

The benediction was given by Paul Jewett, after which the officers had their retiring march, followed by a reception.

Refreshments were served from a table covered with a white cloth and centered with an arrangement of pink carnations. The corners of the table were adorned with pink ribbon bows. Approximately 40 were in attendance.

To be installed at a later date are: Gail Owens, charity; Kathy Gaskins, love; Nancy Murray, immortality; Sheri Mosley, fidelity; Susan Harris, patriotism; Francine Elks, service; Linda Blackwell, musician; and Tammy Cannon, choir director.

Installed in February and holding office for a year are Donna Bunch, recorder, and Mona Rogers, Treasurer.

Men, Too Wear Earrings

LONDON (WNS)— Women can no longer keep up with men in the rush for gold and silver earrings in England. When one Britisher announced that he was wearing nine rings in each ear, the battle for male supremacy was on. At the moment 24-year-old John McHugh is champion. He got a friend to make 13 holes in his ear, then pierced another 10 himself. "Since I can get several earrings in one hole, I can wear 38 rings at the moment," he reported. McHugh's current target is 100 rings but he prophesies that the record will reach "200 or even 250."

'Healthy Hound' To Host November Health Fair

A workshop was held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Jack Koontz to make further plans for the Health Fair scheduled for Nov. 12-13 at Wahl-Coates School.

The Health Fair is being presented by the Pitt County Medical Auxiliary in cooperation with the Pitt County Dental Wives, Pitt County Department of Public Health and the Greenville City Schools. All fourth year students in Greenville's public, parochial, and private schools will visit the fair.

"Healthy Hound," the fair mascot, will host the students through various booths exhibiting different areas of health care.

Each committee worked separately preparing its booth and presentation. The various areas and their chairmen are as follows:

Ears, Nose and Throat—Mrs. Ander Mumford, Mrs. W.S. Bost, and Mrs. Rufus Knott; Radiology—Mrs. William McConnell, Mrs. Allen Taylor; Orthopedics—Mrs. James Bowman, Mrs. John Winstead; Surgery—Mrs. Bernard Vick, Mrs. Frank Longino; Opthamology—Mrs. Steve White; Heart and Circulation—Mrs. Eric Fearrington, Mrs. Elliott Dixon; Dentistry—Mrs. Pinkney Young III; Laboratory—Mrs. R. Lee West, Mrs. Charles Gilbert.

Mrs. Edith Rand is Auxiliary president. Mrs. Al Ferguson and Mrs. James Carter are co-chairmen for the fair and Mrs. Ben Shappley is in charge of the art work. Mrs. Jack Wilkerson is in charge of the traffic committee.

Mrs. Reese Gives Program

Mrs. Ann Reese presented the program at the dinner meeting of the Greenville Jay-C-Ettes held Wednesday at the Fiddler's III.

She showed slides of a summer trip to the National Jaycee Convention held in San Diego where her husband, Tom, was North Carolina's representative as Outstanding Jaycee from the state.

President Karen Turner conducted the business session which included discussions on the donation of trees for the town common, new committees, methods for choosing Outstanding Jay-C-Ette of the Year and recognition of wives whose husbands will age out in June.

Deborah Kitrell was welcomed as a new member and Judy Donders was a guest for the meeting.

Mrs. Reese was named parliamentarian for the group.

Patient Went Home For Rest And Recuperation

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by The Chicago Tribune

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I'd be writing to you, but here I am. Will you please let doctors, nurses, aides and all hospital personnel know that when someone who works with them is hospitalized that person deserves the same consideration about visiting hours as anyone else in that hospital?

I was hospitalized with a serious injury two months ago, and during my stay at the hospital, even though there was a big sign on my door which read: "POSITIVELY NO VISITORS: DOCTOR'S ORDERS," I was pestered to death by co-workers who felt I needed a little cheering up.

Nurses, doctors, aides, and people from the hospital office came to see me. Most of them stayed for only ten minutes, but multiply that by 50 every day and you'll have some idea of how exhausted I was.

I finally had to leave the hospital to get some rest. I love my co-workers, but they almost killed me with kindness.

Please, Abby, put this in your column. I hope it goes up on hospital bulletin boards all over the country.

FLORENCE NIGHTENGALE

DEAR FLO. Here's your letter. I hope it works.

DEAR ABBY: I was busted for possession of marijuana two weeks ago. I am a married woman, 19, and have a 14-month-old son.

Everyone has something he calls his own thing, and my own thing is relaxing with grass now and then. When the police came to my door, they deprived me of one of my civil rights by not letting me read the search warrent before they entered my home.

What can I do about this? So many people have been busted the same way. We are sick of the way the police push people around.

If I can't smoke grass in the privacy of my own home, then I guess I'll become an alcoholic.

BUSTED IN L.A.

DEAR BUSTED: Both possession and sale of marijuana are unlawful, and in narcotics cases, search warrants cannot be read at the door because while the officers are waiting outside, someone inside (an accomplice, possibly) can destroy the evidence. So the law enforcers must enter first, and then the warrant is available for reading.

The people, through the democratic process, write the laws, and the police only enforce them. However, your threat to turn to alcohol if you can't have "grass" shows a dependency on some kind of mood-changing drug, which should concern you at least as much as being deprived of your civil rights.

DEAR ABBY: You said in your column that there was nothing sadder than seeing children being raised by children.

Well, I disagree with you. It's a lot sadder to see children being raised by old people in their late 30s and 40s. They have nothing in common.

I am 16, and have a child nearly a year old and there is nothing "sad" about the way my son is being raised. I think it's a break for a kid to have young parents so they can grow up together.

DEAR MOTHER: If you are sufficiently mature to raise a child at 16, you are exceptional.

"Growing up" together is lovely theory, but unless the parents are mature (and maturity doesn't automatically come with years) they'd better do a lot of praying.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Old-Fashioned Picnic Held By Club Members

In celebration of Bicentennial Week, members of the Lakewood Pines Garden Club, dressed in pioneer styles, met Tuesday on the Town Commons.

Their program consisted of an old fashioned picnic lunch followed by a business meeting.

An authentic menu of colonial dishes was planned by Mrs. J.F. Bauman and Mrs. W.C. Taylor Jr. and prepared by the members.

The menu consisted of: wild turkey stuffed with chestnut dressing; brunswick stew; quail pie, Indian bread; sho-nuff cabbage; Spanish corn pudding; Evans yams; molasses cake; apple jacks; spiced peaches; and apple cider.

The picnic table was covered with red and white checked cloths with an Indian corn centerpiece. The food was served from stoneware, pottery, iron utensils and wooden bowls and trays.

Mrs. H.R. Billica presided over the business meeting. The November meeting will next be held at the home of Mrs. Billica.

Mrs. Caldwell Is Speaker

A program on social security and medicare was given by Mrs. Lois Caldwell at the meeting of The Patient Circle of The Kings Daughters Tuesday night.

Mrs. Caldwell is operation supervisor of the Greenville Social Security Office.

Mrs. Lucy Hannaford, chairman of the nominating committee, gave the following list of officers nomiated for 1975-76:

President, Mrs. Polly Dail; First Vice President, Mrs. Thelma Cutchin; Second Vice President, Miss Mary Wells; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Dora Howell, Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Roy Lokken; Treasurer, Mrs. R. C. Henry; Treasurer of Building Fund, Miss Martha Lee Cowell; Assistant Treasurer of the Building Fund, Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell; Reporter, Miss Annie Turner. The election of officers will be held at the November meeting and installation will be held at the December meeting.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. J. B. Cutchin, Mrs. L. L. Rives and Miss Turner. The meeting was held in the ladies parlor of Jarvis Memorial Church.

Diabetic Symbol Is A Safety Step

Robert N. Fleming of Greenville underwent surgery here in March to remove a cancerous pancreas, a section of the colon and part of the lower section of his stomach.

Removal of the pancreas left him a surgical diabetic.

Now Fleming, who says that he considers himself lucky to even be up and around, much less drive a car, has come up with a nifty idea to insure that in the event he becomes ill while driving, his car will help tip off other motorists and medical personnel as to his condition.

Utilizing the accepted symbol of the Diabetic Association, Fleming painted the emblem in bold colors on the trunk of his car and added the prescription for his daily insulin injection.

Noting that he normally does quite a bit of traveling, Fleming said that if he does have a insulin reaction but is able to raise his car trunk, the diabetic symbol should alert others as to his condition.

The symbol, he noted, can also be seen when the trunk is down and reflection tape was utilized in emphasizing the symbol outline so it can be even more easily seen at night.

Fleming, who also wears the diabetic bracelet, said that medical personnel would recognize the prescription on the trunk lid and that vital information could save his life in an emergency.

He added that the idea of the state painting some type of decal that could be placed on the car of a diabetic was suggested but he said that he was told there was not enough demand for such a service.

Fleming, noting that he hopes to be able to resume his job as a chef soon, said that he had never had any diabetes problems before the cancer condition arose.

"I had never pictured myself as a diabetic," he added.

His condition makes it necessary for him to have daily insulin shots rather than pills as in some diabetic cases and Fleming notes that he takes the shot himself each day at 5 a.m.

"I asked them (doctors) about the possibility of the pill instead of insulin shots but they said that the shots were absolutely necessary," he added.

Produced Film On Outer Banks At E. Carolina

"Waterbound—Our Changing Outer Banks" is the title of a documentary film, by two East Carolina University geologists, about North Carolina's coast and its erosion problems.

"The film explores man's environment on the Outer Banks from early times up to the present," says Dr. Michael O'Connor, chairman of the ECU Geology Department. O'Connor, along with Dr. Stanley Riggs, ECU associate professor of Geology has spent six years studying the chain of barrier islands forming much of the State's sandy coastline.

"The Outer Banks are constantly changing," says O'Connor, noting that these changes have occurred for thousands of years.

"As man became established on the barrier islands, the changing of the Outer Banks became a problem," he said.

The 18 minute color film was funded by the N. C. Sea Grant Program and was produced and directed by Dr. Robert Rasch, chairman of the Department of Commercial Art at East Carolina University.

Copies of the film are available at the ECU Department of Geology in Greenville and the N. C. Sea Grant Program, Burlington Labs, N. C. State University, Raleigh, N. C.

Handwriting Is On The Wall

If the United States and the rest of the capitalist world think oil will ever get any cheaper, they have only to listen to Hushang Ansary, Iran's finance minister.

"Once cheap oil is no longer available, you have to do something; either lower your standard of living, forget about excessive consumption and about waste being an important basis of your economy, or you have to increase productivity, or both," Ansary said.

"But how can you do it if you have social problems in your 'permissive society'. . .with strikes every other day?"

"The industrial countries must recognize that as cheap oil and other raw materisls are no longer available, the situation calls either for a change in life styles or an effort to do away with social ills and increase production."

"It boils down to this," he concluded. "Cheap oil and other raw materials made it possible for the Western countries to flourish and to make rapid economic progress."

We don't know whether the finance minister accurately sized up the situation in our nation, but we do see the handwriting on the wall.

Middle East oil is going to become more and more expensive. Therefore we are going to have to learn to use our own oil resources more carefully. More important, we are going to have to develop other energy resources. It can be done and we absolutely are going to have to do it.

Rising Retail Prices Remain In The Future

The government reported that wholesale prices rose only one-tenth of one percent during September, a modest rise compared to previous months.

There were warnings, however that big retail price increases are ahead due to whopping wholesale increases during the summer.

The favorable September report can offer some hope, though, that inflationary pressures are easing. Perhaps the economy has absorbed the huge oil price increases for the present and there can be some leveling off of the inflationary rate. We can always hope.

Agency Ads In Dispute

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The advertisement shows little Remedios, hair uncombed and shirt in tatters, peering from the magazine page. The caption says, "The eyes of Remedios can't see beyond the next scrap of food."

But Remedios is receiving regular support payments from a couple in Ohio, the sponsor of the familiar appeal acknowledge Thursday.

The photo of Remedios is used in an appeal for support for the Foster Parents Plan Inc. The organization's executive director, Gloria C. Matthews, conceded in a congressional hearing that Remedios, described as a 5-year-old boy, actually is a 12-year-old girl.

The picture was taken in 1967.

"When we have an effective ad, we use it to obtain sponsors," said Miss Matthews. "The cost to prepare new ads would be astronomical."

Her agency, based in Warwick, R.I., spent $562,000, or 4.6 per cent of its $12-million budget, on promotion and advertising in fiscal 1973, the General Accounting Office reported.

Foster Parents Plan and four other charities, among the dozens that solicit money in the United States to help orphans and other children overseas, were reviewed by the GAO, a congressional investigative agency.

The GAO criticized the charitable organizations, many receiving support from donations solicited in magazine appeals, for a lack of control of funds sent to overseas programs and for management weaknesses.

James A. Duff, associate director of the GAO's international division, told the Senate Labor subcommittee on

State Employes Costly

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—The single most important factor in the spiraling cost of government is the ever-growing numbers of employes in government, and the steeply increasing cost of each.

In the typical North Carolina community, somebody on the block where you live works for either the federal, state or local government.

The total figures are breathtaking: There are a total of 270,100 governmental employes in North Carolina; and that's not counting the thousands of military personnel in this state where sprawling military installations are numerous.

The federal government employes 46,300 people in the state, including Postal Service personnel; state and local governments combined employ 115,400; and public education at all levels employs 108,400.

One For Seven

Those numbers break down to one governmental employe for every seven people employed in non-farm work in the state; a total of one governmental employe for every 20 citizens in this state, with a population of 5.3 million.

The numbers are increasing steadily, with the federal government adding over 2,000 employes in the past year; the state and city and county governments adding over 8,000; and public education adding over 4,000 people.

Such sharp in sheer numbers alone are bound to produce higher and higher taxes, but when coupled with the dramatic hikes in pay associated with governmental employment in recent years, the cost is growing out of all proportion to "civilian" income, many governmental experts believe.

State Rep. Liston B. Ramsey, D-Madison County, is fond of saying that a stopping place must be found: "We can't all be state employees," he argues strongly.

Ramsey and a growing number of colleagues in the General Assembly are distressed over the governmental employment situation.

North Carolina'a average family income is now around $8,000 and the per capits income just over $3,000.

The average state employe's salary is now $8,815, and various fringe benefits paid for by the state pushes the average cost of a state employe ot the $10,000-plus level.

In a state where textile mill salaries average $130 a week, and the average hourly wage for a factory worker is $3.34 per hour (which works out to about $7,000 annual income), it is clear that governmental employes generally are doing better than the average citizen. Legislators are also showing resistance to the historic trend of giving hefty cost-of-living raises every year.

Pay Hikes

The 1974 General Assembly granted a 7.5 per cent pay raise, and many legislators now confess that the average worker in North Carolina didn't receive that kind of raise.

Governmental officials over recent years have traditionally painted a picture a tight labor market for qualified people, and insisted that governmental pay scales had to be increased in order for them to compete with the private sector.

In just one category, however, the falacy of that position can now be seen. On the monthly report by the State Labor Department, the highest pay category generally is "Communications and Public Utilities; nonsupervisory employees." The average weekly salary in that listing is $184.70 for August—that figures out to about $9,600 per year.

In state governmental agencies, colleges, and a growing number of local governments, communication specialists are being hired at an increasing rate to help with promotion and public relations. The average state salary in this field is $12,000 with some public relations officials making over $20,000 per year.

With public attention focusing on government expenses as a means of combatting inflation, state budget officials point out that between 60 and 70 per cent of the annual $3 billion state budget goes into pay and benefits for employes.

The Trial Balloon Room

WASHINGTON—Deep in the heart of the White House, far from the prying eyes of the public and press, is one of the most important rooms in the government. It is the place where they blow up the trial balloons which are floated by the Ford Administration.

Thanks to a source who shall remain nameless, I managed to get into the room and see for myself how this all-important operation functions.

The room was very long—the size of a football field—and divided into workbenches. On each bench was seated a member of the Administration or friend of President Ford blowing up large funny-shaped balloons.

They were so busy with their work, they didn't notice me.

"Say," I said to my source, "isn't that Mel Laird blowing up a balloon over there?"

"Yes," he replied, "the balloon he's blowing up has to do with gas rationing. He tried to float it last week, but it didn't fly."

"So he's going to send it up again?"

"He'll probably try it once more in a different shape and, if it's shot down this time, he'll go on to something else."

"Boy, you have to have a lot of air to blow up one of those balloons," I said.

"Mel does. He probably has floated more trial balloons than anyone in the Ford kitchen cabinet."

ART BUCHWALD

"How does he do it?" I asked.

"Well, he meets with the President and they decide what trial balloon Mr. Ford wants to send up.

"Let's say the President is thinking about gas rationing but he doesn't know if the public will go for it. So he tells Laird to send up a balloon and see the reaction. Laird comes down here and starts blowing."

"And then he sends it up?" I asked.

"Not really. He has to sell it to somebody. If he sent it up himself, nobody would take the balloon seriously. So he calls up Evans and Novak and says, 'The President is going to institute gas rationing.' "

"And Evans and Novak buy it?"

"Every time," my source said. "They float it in their column and then we wait for congressional and press reaction. If it's negative, the President orders Ron Nessen to shoot the trial balloon down by denying he has any intention of rationing gas."

"Doesn't Laird get angry after blowing up one of those balloons to see it shot down?"

"Heck, no. He works for the Reader's Digest, and this gives him something to do."

"Isn't that Secretary of the Treasury Bill Simon over there?"

"He's blowing up a trial balloon on an income surtax.

To the editor:

The presence of Dr. Crane's "Worry Clinic" in the Daily Reflector has been a continuing vexation during my years as a regular reader of your newspaper. Perhaps the only mitigating aspect of your publishing this arrant nonsense is that it generally appears on the comics page.

The column of Monday, October 7, includes so many fallacies and falsehoods one is inclined to wonder whether Dr. Crane is quite sane. First of all, exactly when did Christ warn against being "democratic" in dress or behavior? Who says the currently fashionable dress among young men in "feminine?" And who is qualified to determine that a young man dressed according to the present mode is "half-female?"

Dr. Crane should actually poll the young men's "coed classmates" to learn whether or not they really would prefer "the masterful type of man with a white shirt and an executive haircut." It think he would be greatly shocked to discover that this is certainly not the case.

While it is probably true that most people expect others to live up to the dictates of one stereotype or other, it seems that Dr. Crane's favorite stereotypes went out of style years ago. The tough, masterful male and the soft, helpless, clinging-vine female stereotypes are not only irrelevant to real life today; they are actually harmful and have caused numerous neuroses, identity crises, serious frustrations, and other psychological problems, of which Dr. Crane as a psychiatrist should surely be aware.

As Dr. Crane will no doubt continue to cherish his absurd beliefs and attempt to promulgate them through the medium of his syndicated newspaper column, I urge that you drop it immediately. The space wasted on the "Worry Clinic" might be put to much, much better use.

Can the citizens of the City of Greenville assume the following as being factual?

—that a Draft Environmental Statement from the Corp of Engineers for channelization of 1.9 miles of the Green Mill Run was received by the City in August, 1974.

—that the 1.9 miles will extend from the western end of Green Spring Park to Charles Street.

—that a channel 70 to 100 feet wide and 7 feet deep will be dug.

—that all trees and shrubs will be removed within the area. This will destroy from 300 to 400 trees.

—that the project will cost the City $105,000. The total cost estimated at $342,000, of which $237,000 would be the Federal Government's share.

—that the annual upkeep would cost the City $22,000.

The merits of this project need broader public review. More reliable facts and opinions must be disseminated before the drag-lines and bull-dozers start moving.

The INSIDE REPORT

The Upheaval Of 1974

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

DENVER—A drastic change in the national political balance of power is suggested by ex-McGovern campaign manager Gary Hart's abandoning abrasive liberal ideology for a bland moderate facade to build a huge lead over entrenched conservative Republican Sen. Peter Dominick.

What makes this so remarkable is the background of the two candidates. Hart, whose connections with Colorado are recent and insubstantial, is seeking his first elective office at age 36; Dominick once was this state's most formidable vote-getter. But Dominick's misery is widely shared. A sweep by the Colorado Democratic ticket, surely the most leftish in the nation, looms in a state dominated by Republicans throughout the 1960s.

In terms slightly larger than life, Colorado represents the national upheaval of the 1974 election. Republicans here, dispirited by Watergate, are menaced by immigrants flooding from west and east and pushing Colorado leftward. Rigidly doctrinaire liberals who long ago captured this state's Democratic party have planed down their ideological edges to take advantage of rampant anti-Republican hostility.

Dominick has special problems. An arthritic backache keeps him in constant pain and causes slurred speech, making Dominick at 59 a shadow of the aggressive, youthful campaigner who a decade ago rode into public office the conservative tide sweeping the Rockies.

Besides delaying campaign planning until September, Dominick's physical problems may explain repeated lapses. Republican leaders still wince over his statement last month that the actual Watergate break-in was "insignificant." Debating Hart last week, Dominick dismayed his own supporters by this response to suggested United Nations distribution of food: "Uganda is in there (the UN) and they'd rather eat their own people than food." Meanwhile, Dominick has suffered because of tangential connections with laundered milk lobby contributions to the 1972 Nixon campaign.

But the importance of Dominick's special problems is questionable, considering the adversity encountered by other Republicans. The Denver Post poll shows Republican Gov. John Vanderhoof, moderate and supposedly very popular, losing as badly as Dominick against an extreme liberal, state legislator Richard Lamm. Sam Brown, the former Harvard divinity student who gained national notoriety by organizing 1969 anti-Vietnam demonstrations, has a big lead over the noncontroversial incumbent for state treasurer.

Gary Hart and Sam Brown on the Colorado ticket reflect left domination of the Democratic party here. Old-line Democrats, typified by former Rep. Wayne Aspinall, have been purged. Promising new moderates, such as former Lt. Gov. Mark Hogan, have been driven out of politics.

But here as elsewhere, liberal fire-eaters are shielding their ideological flames for this election. Hart, in particular, profited from managing Sen. George McGovern's presidential campaign, adopting what worked (superb grass roots organization) and discarding what was suicidal (exposed

Strength For Today

A BIG MAN

As we read in the newspapers about the surprising pettiness and self-seeking of some men in high office, our faith in democratic leadership might be partially restored by recalling an incident in the presidency of Abraham Lincoln.

Three years before Lincoln became president he had been associated in a court case with Edwin M. Stanton, then a practicing attorney. Stanton had treated his colleague Lincoln so contemptuously that after the case Lincoln returned home "in pained humiliation," as a biographer expresses it.

When in 1862 Lincoln came to appoint a new secretary of war and Stanton's name was suggested, Lincoln immediately approved the choice. When Stanton received the offer he was much chastened, "can it be true," he said, remembering his past treatment of Lincoln, "that the president wants me in his cabinet?"

Lincoln had learned how to rise above personal feelings of injury and resentment. Personal considerations meant nothing in the presence of public need.

Banks Failed But Savings Safe

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bankers and government regulators say two record-setting bank failures illustrate the soundness of the system for assuring savers they won't be left empty-handed if their banks collapse.

The successive failures of the U.S. National Bank of San Diego and Franklin National Bank of New York have presented the deposit insurance system with its heaviest financial challenge yet, but the bankers and regulators say those are isolated instances of poor banking practice.

In both cases, all depositors were fully protected, even though government insurance guarantees full protection only to accounts of $20,000 or less.

The keystone of the insurance system is a $5.8-billion fund controlled by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the agency behind the FDIC embossed on the doors of 98.5 per cent of the nation's commercial banks. A similar agency, the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., covers a like share of the nation's savings and loan associations.

The keystone is buttressed by the government's readiness to borrow $3 billion more to support savings accounts, by the efforts of bank regulators to pinpoint trouble before it mushrooms into disaster and by the readiness of the Federal Reserve System to unleash its massive money resources.

Until this year, the FDIC, which grew out of the wreckage of the 4,000 financial institutions that failed in 1933, had to dip into its insurance fund for only $100 million to make good deposits in the 502 banks that had failed. No saver covered by FDIC insurance lost a penny. FDIC's record of full repayment to 99 per cent of depositors at insolvent banks even includes deposits exceeding the legal maximum.

But the FDIC still is paying to salvage the remains of the U.S. National Bank of San Diego, which was responsible for $934 million in deposits when it went under and was sold to Crocker National Bank of San Francisco. The latest estimate pegged the cost to the FDIC at $48.3 million.

And now the insuring agency faces the prospect of picking up after the Franklin National Bank, which held deposits of $1.7 billion when it was sold to European-American Bank and Trust Co. Tuesday. The FDIC hasn't estimated its costs for Franklin.

Federal officials consider both cases to be caused by problems unique to the two banks rather than any other underlying defect in the banking system.

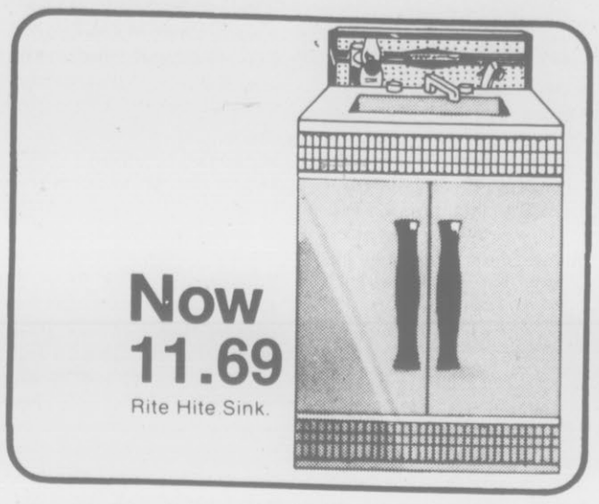

In the San Diego instance, officials point to dealings between the various corporations controlled by C. Arnholt Smith, the bank's controlling shareholder. The Franklin situation was tied to the bank's speculation in foreign currency transactions, they say.

The fund amounts to only 1.21 per cent of all insured deposits, but assurances of repayment go deeper. When a bank fails, the FDIC steps in to take over a bank's property and assets to make sure depositors get their money first.

And frequently the failed bank is simply merged into another solvent bank. Thus in only 297 of the 502 bank failures since 1934 has the FDIC actually had to pay depositors.

Rejects New Trial Site

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP)—A superior court judge has rejected a defense request that the trial of Joanne Little on a first degree murder charge be transferred to North Carolina's Piedmont area.

Judge Joshua S. James ruled that the trial will be held in Beaufort County and a special venire of jurors will be drawn from outside the 2nd Judicial District. The district includes Beaufort, Martin, Hyde, Washington and Tyrrell counties.

Miss Little, 25, of Chocowinity is accused of killing Beaufort County jailer Clarence Alligood Aug. 27. He was stabbed 10 times with an ice pick. His body, clad only in in an undershirt, shirt and socks, was discovered in the cell where Miss Little was being held while appealing a breaking and entering sentence.

She surrendered eight days later to state authorities in Raleigh.

Judge James also denied requests from defense attorneys for $4,300 to hire a sociologist to aid in Miss Little's defense and that the defense be given access to evidence, including Alligood's clothing.

In addition to the Foster Parents Plan Inc., the agencies were the Christian Children's Fund Inc., Richmond, Va.; the American-Korean Foundation Inc., New York, N.Y.; Holt Adoption Program Inc., Eugene, Ore., and Save the Children Federation Inc., Norwalk, Conn.

He said they "have demonstrated time and again their competence in using public funds effectively and efficiently in their programs overseas."

The Volunteers In Service To America (VISTA) program in Greenville, now going into its second year, has been enriched by the recent addition of seven new volunteers, one a local person, the other six from out of state.

"These additions essentially replenish personnel we've lost, those who have completed their one year service," Rick Cagan, coordinator of the local office, stated. "Our volunteers now active in Greenville total 19," he added.

Representing a cross section of America, the volunteers come from New England, Ohio, California, New York, Minnesota and Greenville. Six of the seven new personnel are women, with one lone male numbered among the group. All seven are going into their first assignment in VISTA work.

Donald (Don) Baker is working with the Youth Attention Program and the Kearnery Park Project. A native of Los Angeles, Don is a graduate of California State University with a major in American Studies.

Mrs. Helen DeAngelo, who home is Minneapolis, is a widow on leave from her job as a merchandise buyer for a chain of ladies ready-to-wear shops in the Minneapolis-St. Paul metropolitan area. Her work with VISTA will be in the Senior Citizens program. The mother of two children, 23 year old Mike and 19 year Teri, she notes that "Mike has applied for and been accepted by the Peace Corps. He's now waiting for an assignment, probably in South America as Spanish is his foreign language."

Carol Genduso, a graduate of the University of Buffalo with a degree in psychology, is a native of Baldwin, Long Island, N. Y. Her field of work in Greenville is primarily in the Youth Attention Program, assigning "big brothers" and "big sisters" to youths in the Greenville Community.

Harriet Koffman, the fourth of the seven new VISTA personnel, is a native of Queens, New York and a 1974 graduate of the University of Vermont. She majored in English and is presently working at the South Greenville Day Care Center and is interested in certifications and licensing procedures for local day care centers.

Margo Pensavalle, Boston native and a recent graduate of Boston University, majored in special education. Her VISTA assignment is with the Kerney Park project. Miss Pensavalle admits she is an avid camera bug.

Mrs. Dorothy Richardson, wife of Louis Richardson, is Greenville's contribution to the VISTA program. The mother of three young children, Mrs. Richardson's primary interest is in the tutoring program for children in the seven to 11 age group. She received training in Atlanta for the work she's doing with VISTA in Greenville.

The seventh (alphabetically) of the new VISTA contingent is Linda Williams, native of Marion, Ohio and a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University, where she received a degree in elementary education. Miss Williams is interested in after-school programs for young people and also in volunteer work with senior citizens.

Will Conduct Sunday Service

BETHEL—The Rev. F. C. Mitchell of Greenville and Sweet Hope Free Will Baptist Church of Baltimore, Md. will render services at Mayo Chapel Baptist Church Sunday at 3:30 p.m.

Dinner will be served. The public is invited, the pastor, the Rev. Walter Cherry Jr., said.

He'll probably float it at a chamber of commerce dinner in Chicago tonight."

"Who are all those people sticking pins in the balloon that Simon is blowing up?"

"They're Arthur Burns, Alan Greenspan, Roy Ash and Paul McCracken. When it comes to the economy, all Mr. Ford's economic advisers do is stick pins in each other's trial balloons."

"Are my eyes deceiving me," I said, "or did Henry Kissinger just walk in?"

"Henry's here quite a bit," my source said. "He just floated a balloon last week on getting tough with the oil-producing countries and it landed with a thud. I guess he wants to take some new balloons with him to the Middle East."

"Look," I said excitedly, "there's Sen. Hugh Scott."

"Poor Hugh," my source said. "The Nixon people used him to launch all their trial balloons on Watergate and he's still trying to get back his second wind.

Hart's positions, supporting President Ford's conditional Vietnam amnesty and opposing wage-price controls, frustrate any ideological attack. "Hart's position papers are so conservative I could put Peter Dominick's name on them," confides a Dominick adviser. Hart has courted benevolent neutrality from the right-to-life anti-abortion movement. Confronted last week by a young member of the Trotskyist Socialist Workers Party delivering a Marxist harangue, Hart replied the country needs more — not less — free enterprise.

Having neutralized ideology, Hart can ride the anti-Republican sentiment which helped upset Sen. Gordon Allott in 1972 and has since fueled by Watergate and inflation. When Hart campaigned at Denver's Samsonite factory last week, most workers recognized neither him nor his name but promised to vote for him once they learned he was the Democrat opposing Dominick.

With less than a month remaining, a 30-minute soft-sell Dominick campaign biography has been shelved in favor of a television blitz aimed at Hart.

Republican researchers calculate Hart, a native Kansan who registered as a Colorado voter in 1968 after leaving the federal government to join a Denver law firm, had spent 1,085 days in Colorado as a resident when he announced for the Senate. But this is a state of immigrants, including Dominick (who came here from the East at about the same age as Hart).

More likely, the blitz will stress Hart's ties to McGovern, who lost Colorado by 260,000 votes, and may feature a published 1972 quote attributed to but denied by Hart: "Let me make this plain. We are not Democrats. We are McGovernites."

But Republicans despair. When some 1,000 party workers gathered for a chili supper in suburban Jefferson County shortly after the Denver Post poll results were released, a political rally became a funeral. Gov., declared: "I'm getting tired of us not wanting to fight."

The demoralized Republican faithful, a diminishing band, face an election that may not only change the party guard but bring portentous ideological upheaval. For all his moderate trappings, Gary Hart agrees in substance with George McGovern on such issues as welfare and national defense. What is happening in Colorado and the nation, then, is not just another election.

REALLY CARE

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ms. Mary Millsap, member of the American Association of Industrial Nurses, says "half the job in trying to help people stop smoking is in convincing them that you really care that they are hurting their health."

"Industrial nurses, because they are workers every day on the job, are more strategically placed than most other health workers to help the smoker who wants to quit," she added.

"AND, BEHOLD, IT WAS VERY GOOD"

Not long ago I was driving home along the parkway, depressed and worried by many problems. The day was bleak and gloomy. Huge clouds boiled and churned above dark, forbidding mountains. Even the foliage hung limp and still.

Suddenly the clouds parted and a ray of sun streaked through. In that fleeting moment the landscape became beautiful—grayness transformed into mauves, deep blues and lively greens. It was like watching Creation. For the first time in a long time, I thought of God. And I prayed as I had been taught long ago in my church.

That was a turning point. Since then God and His Church have once more become a part of my life, and my problems have disappeared in a way I never dreamed possible.

God's goodness is always present. Go to your church, and learn the truths that can transform your life.

National Health Insurance Program Said Certain

The head of North Carolina's Blue Cross and Blue Shield a meeting at the Greenville Moose Lodge Thursday morning that some form of National Health Insurance will be passed by the Congress in 1975, to become effective in the summer of 1976.

In a meeting here with area health, business and government leaders, Thomas A. Rose, president of Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina, said there is little chance of a National Health Insurance bill being passed before Congress adjourns this year.

"The question is no longer 'whether' we shall have National Health Insurance—but 'when and what kind', "Rose said.

Rose said Blue Cross and Blue Shield sponsored the meeting here to provide a forum to discuss with area leaders the current status of National Health Insurance and the effect its passage is expected to have on the financing and delivery of health care.

THOMAS A. ROSE

The meeting here was the seventh of eight such reports which have been conducted across the state this month.

Rose said Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina and national Blue Cross and Blue Shield associations are not taking a position for against a particular national health insurance bill.

Rose said the Greenville area represented a substantial enrollment in Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina.

"We estimate that there are 580 business establishments with five or more employees in the Greenville area," Rose said. "We now have 274 of these groups enrolled, including many of the larger employers, such as East Carolina University, Pitt County Schools, Union Carbide and Burroughs-Wellcome."

He added, "Not only is this area important to us in terms of market penetration, but also because of the many dedicated doctors, nurses and other health professionals, and the outstanding health facilities here which deliver benefits to our subscribers, including Pitt County Memorial Hospital and the Greenville Nursing and Convalescent Center."

Rose outlined several principals which he said the Blue Cross and Blue Shield systems believe should be incorporated in whatever form of national health insurance is ultimately adopted.

They include:

—assurance that the health delivery system can provide what the finacing mechanism will buy;

—funds to finance national health insurance for employed persons should not rely solely on a payroll tax but should come from a variety of sources:

—the program should be flexible to allow for new approaches to be tried and evaluated:

—it should allow a partnership of public and private efforts and financial support.

Rose said national health insurance is not the answer to the nation's health problems.

"What is needed is a national program for health improvement and an effort to determine the real health priorities of this nation, and then do something about them.

"We need to clean up the air. Clean up the water. Get rid of the slums. Stop venereal disease. Stop people from drinking and eating too much and driving too fast," Rose said.

"These are the root causes of many of our health problems and the answers won't be found in a National Health Insurance Program that deals only with financing and delivery of health care," Rose explained.

Rose explained that Blue Cross and Blue Shield is searching for ways to deliver health care that will save both time and money for subscribers.

"We are also watching with interest the development of new methods of financing and organizing health services, namely prepaid comprehensive group practice plans and health maintenance organizations," Rose said.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina is considering setting up Subscriber Advisory Councils in 1975 to encourage greater subscriber participation in its operations, according to Rose.

"These consumer councils will be designed to provide an opportunity for a cross-section of subscribers to serve in an advisory capacity and representing the interests of all subscribers relative to their needs for services in the programs of health care that we are in a position to offer," Rose stated.

"We feel confident that the creation of these councils in 1975 would be of immeasurable benefit in developing stronger rapport between the health plan and the public, to the end that the health care needs of the people will be better served," Rose said.

Dr. Ames To Speak At Health Bldg. Oct. 17

Dr. Louise Bates Ames, co-founder of Gesell Institute of Child Development, New Haven, Conn., will speak in Greenville, Thursday, October 17, at the Belk Allied Health Building Auditorium, Charles Street.

DR. LOUISE AMES

At 11:30 a.m. she will speak to students in Allied Health, Nursing, Medicine, Social Professions, and Child Development. This meeting is also open to other students who wish to attend. Her topic will be "The Answer Is In the Organism."

At 8:00 o'clock in the evening she will lecture at a meeting open to the public. Her presentation will be "School Success For All—A Mental Hygiene Approach." There is no admission charge.

Dr. Ames comes to Greenville through invitation from Pitt County Mental Health Association and the Division of Health Affairs, East Carolina University.

In 1967 she assumed the duties of chief Psychologist and associate director of the Institute. She worked in this capacity until 1972 when she became Co-Director, a position she now holds.

A graduate of the University of Maine, she holds a Ph.D degree from Yale University. She is a former staff member of Yale Clinic of Child Development and professor at Yale Medical School. In 1970 she was a member of the White House Conference on Children.

She is collaborator or co-author of 17 book publications, and is the mother of one child and has three grandchildren.

Provide Increased Tobacco Guarantee

Because of increasing costs in producing flue-cured tobacco, the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation announced today that beginning with the 1975 crop year, flue-cured tobacco growers in Pitt will enjoy a substantially higher level of crop investment protection amounting to about 15 percent at no increase in premium per $100 of coverage protection.

Office Representative Betty Jones said, "we are trying to furnish this information to the growers in Pitt County, and we really appreciate the help given us by The Daily Reflector" Miss Jones said further that" this new benefit will be added automatically to both existing policies and those new policies being filed. The grower is not required to do anything.

This higher benefit protection offer is being made by FCIC throughout the entire flue-cured belt from Florida to Virginia starting with the 1975 crop year, and according to reports being received from banks and other lending institutions, the new benefits were being hailed as a strong step toward strengthened credit financing, so vital to today's individual farming operation, since many growers use the policy as collateral assignment in securing production loans."

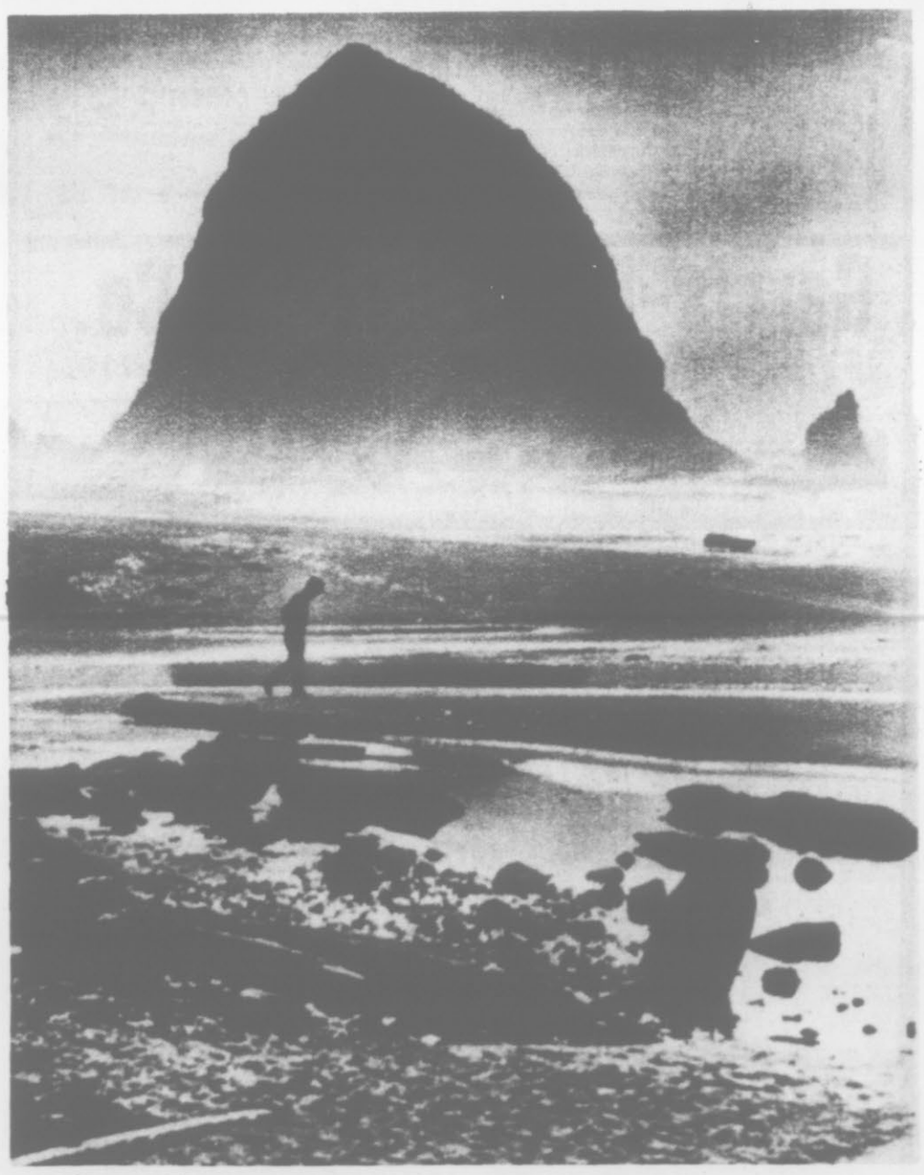

Complete details about the Crop Insurance program, sponsored by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, are available to interested growers and bankers from Pitt County Federal Crop Insurance, Federal Building, Greenville, phone 752-6752.

Columbus Day Address To Be Aired Monday

A special Columbus Day address will be heard over three local radio stations on Monday according to Thomas A. Hanifer, grand knight of John Ivey Smith Knights of Columbus Council No. 6600.

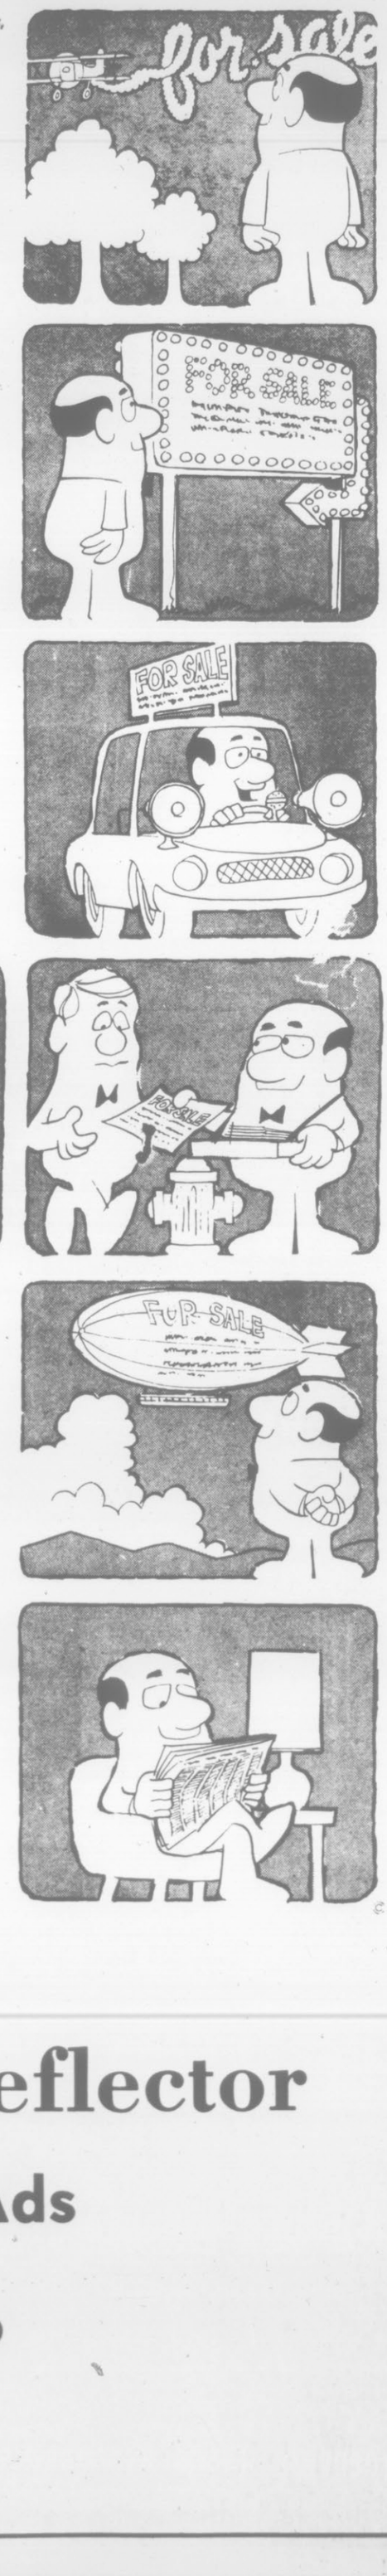

The stations and times which the address will be broadcast include: WFAG, 8:15 a.m.; WRQR, 7 a.m.; and on WNCT, 11:30 a.m.

The address will be delivered by Dr. John W. McDevitt, supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus. The executive head of the 1,200,000 member Catholic fraternal organization will speak on "Freedom: A Treasure and a Trust."

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market backed down a bit today in profit taking after its dramatic rise in the two previous sessions.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 5.71 at 642.37, while losers and gainers stood about even in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Big Board's 11 a.m. composite index was off .16 at 36.61.

Brokers said a round of profit taking was to be expected after the rise of more than 45 points in the Dow Wednesday and Thursday.

At the same time, the market seemed to draw some support for a prediction by economists at New York's First National City Bank that the rate of inflation would slow markedly next year to the 5 to 6 per cent range.

Citibank and the First National Bank of Chicago meanwhile cut their prime lending rates from 11¾ to 11½ per cent. But brokers pointed out that some investors had been hoping for a larger cut in view of the latest figures on short term money market trends from the Federal Reserve.

United Aircraft was the Big Board volume leader, down ⅝ at 28¼. A 100,000-sharelock traded at 28.

Typical declines in the glamor sector included Xerox, off ¼ at 71¼; Johnson & Johnson, down 1¼ at 81⅞; and Texas Instruments, off 1½ at 62.

IBM, which reported a 16 per cent gain in third quarter earnings after a 31 per cent increase in the first half, slipped 2⅛ to 174.

On the American Stock Exchange, Offshore Co. was the most-active stock, down ⅛ at 15⅞. A 100,000-share block changed hands at 15¾.

The Amex's 11 a.m. market value index was off .06 at 66.85.

Charge Attempt At Kidnapping

A 19-year-old Route 3, Plymouth man was arrested yesterday on charges of attempted kidnapping in connection with an incident at the Medical Pavilion parking lot off West Fifth Street here Wednesday afternoon.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Harold Overton Jr. was placed in Pitt County Jail without privilege of bond on the charge.

The police official said Overton allegedly pulled a pistol on Mrs. Shirley R. Orton of Shady Knoll Trailer Pk., and told her to drive him out of town. Mrs. Orton told investigators that following a brief conversation the man walked away, got into a truck and left.

Bucs Open Title Defense At Furman

Split End Mike Shea

For the Furman Paladins, and possibly for the East Carolina University Pirates, Saturday night is a crucial one in this 1974 football season.

Furman currently is 2-1 in Southern Conference play. They were upset by VMI in the opening game of the season, then turned around and beat William & Mary and Richmond back to back. Now, at 7:30 p.m. Saturday night, they play host to East Carolina in Greenville, S. C., and the title that the Bucs have held for the past two years may be on the line.

"It's for everything as far as they're concerned," ECU Coach Pat Dye said. "If they win, I'd say they have it about wrapped up. But if they lost, it will probably end their chances. For us, it's just one of several we've got to win to defend our title. We've got a long way to go, but it's kill or be killed for them."

With two straight upsets behind them, some might feel that it will be tough for the Paladins to get up again. But against East Carolina, it has never been hard for the Paladins. They are always up for the Bucs, and always give them fits.

The Paladins run out of the I formation, and like to give the ball to tailback Larry Robinson, their leading groundgainer. He's picked up 355 yards rushing in four games and has scored two touchdowns. Next down the line is fullback Ike Simpson, who's got 202 yards in 41 lugs, while Andy Goss had 193 in 32 trips into the line.

"They like to get the ball to Robinson," ECU assistant Lannie Norris said. "And they may throw a little more with Charles Elvington at quarterback."

Elvington, listed as the backup man behind David Whitehurst, took over when Whitehurst was hurt against William & Mary, and is expected to be at the post Saturday night. Whitehurst probably won't play at all.

Elvington has hit 11 of 25 passes for 132 yards, while Whitehurst hit 8 of 18 for 172 yards.

"They line up with two tight ends, and the flankers split out and try to come right at you," Norris said. "At least they've done that against everybody they've played. They also like to get a power sweep going with the guards pulling and everybody blocking out in front of Robinson going on the pitchout. Like East Carolina, they like to stick to the ground and pass if they have to."

When they do pass, Norris noted, they like to go to receiver Ken Brown, who's caught seven of the 19 completions for 177 yards and two touchdowns. "When they do have a long yardage situation, they'll split out a little more," Norris added.

Simpson and Elvington will run from time to time, as well as put the ball in the air to keep the defense honest, but Robinson remains as the bread and butter man. "I kind of expect them to throw more against us than they have against anybody else," Norris said. "Especially if we are able to stop their ground game."

Defensively, Furman is leading the conference against the rush, and in total offense. They are also nationally ranked in both. "They play the same type defense we do," Norris said.

Vince Perrone, a cornerback, is probably their best known player in the defensive unit, but Norris likes the looks of defensive end Bill Anderson, linebacker Larry Anderson (no kin) and safety Curtis Boyd.

"Perrone is also an outstanding kick return man—one of the best in the conference. We'll have to cover him well."

Overall, Norris looks to Furman to be the most aggressive team the Bucs have faced defensively. "They hit hard and get a crowd around the football. They have a lot go get them up, and I'm sure that they'll be ready."

"I see a cutting, slashing, old fashioned-head-knocking football game," Dye said. "We are going to try and keep 11 people around the ball all the way. It's the only way to play defense. We don't plan to do anything different."

Furman hasn't played a wishbone team this year, and this might present them some defensive problems. "But it represents us problems, too," Dye said. "We have to get ready for a lot of different defenses, since we don't know what they are likely to throw at us."

Dye also looks for Furman to do a little more passing than they have in previous games—but only if the ground game sputters.

Ricky Bennett

East Carolina, meanwhile, is continuing to work on its passing game, trying to get everything squared away between quarterback Mike Weaver and his receivers.

"Both teams probably feel that they can hold the other," the coach said. "In a game like this, a mistake could easily put up one or two quick scores, and that could change the complexion of the game right away. We know that they do have a good kick return game, and this is one place where you can really get burned with a breakdown."

The Bucs will go into the game without the services of starting center Tim Hightower. He is set to undergo survey for a torn retina today, and will miss four to six weeks. Randy Parrish, who has seen considerable action behind him, will start Saturday.

Rampant Cubs Bop Gryphons

Rose High School's junior varsity captured its third win of the yesterday, downing the previous unbeaten Rocky Mount Baby Gryphons, 6-0.

The lone score came in the first period of the game when Mike Brown eased over from the one yard line. The two-point conversion attempt failed.

Rose got off a couple of other threats, but failed to make them pay off. At the same time, the Rampant Cub defense didn't allow Rocky Mount inside the 30-yard line.

The game marked the fourth straight contest for the Rampants, now 3-2, that their defense has not allowed a point. Except for their first game, any points against them have come against the offense or the specialty teams.

Leonard Williams drew play for his play both offensively and defensively. "He made one pass interception, a number of tackles, and was our leading groundgainer," Coach Bud Phillips said. "The entire defensive unit also played well."

The Cubs take next week off, then return to action on Thursday, Oct. 24, traveling to Northern Nash.

Orioles Said Up For Sale

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — The baseball season is over for the Baltimore Orioles, but the season for rumors about the team's possible sale continues unabated.

A front page story Thursday headlined the news that the Orioles were for sale, and said board chairman Jerold C. Hoffberger would soon suggest the terms he would accept for the American League club.

"This has been said before — it's nothing new," Hoffberger said of the report he would consider any reasonable offer and present it to the board of directors. But he denied that he was ready to outline terms.

"The only possible embellishment," Hoffberger said, "is that when I come to a decision, I may spell out my terms rather than wait for bids."

And, although Hoffberger has expressed disappointment at Baltimore's home attendance, he has not yet reached that point.

Falling below the one million mark in attendance for the third year in a row, the Orioles attracted 962,582 fans to Memorial Stadium this season while winning the Eastern Division title for the fifth time in six years.

"If we had not made the playoffs," Hoffberger said, "we would have lost about $300,000. But by getting into the playoffs for four games, two of them at home, we should just about break even."

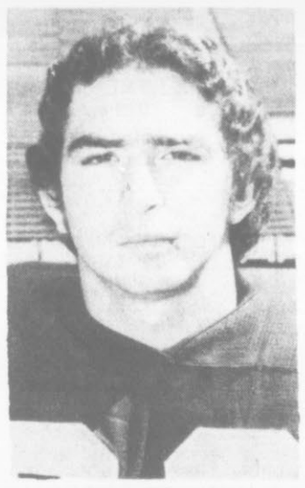

Hoffberger, who has controlled the Orioles since 1966, has said frequently that he is not in the sport to make money but neither does he want to absorb losses.

Under Hoffberger, the Orioles lost money only in 1972, when they showed a net loss of $214,582. There was also a deficit of $57,412 in 1967, but only because about $280,000 was lost in operating a pro soccer team.

There have been periodic reports that the Orioles might be purchased and the franchise shifted to either New Orleans or Seattle, when new stadia in those cities are completed.

Other prospective buyers have been reported in Washington, D.C., Philadelphia, Houston and in Baltimore.

"If we should decide to sell the franchise," Hoffberger said, "naturally I would prefer that it would be to someone in Baltimore so the Orioles could stay here."

Thinclad Co-Captains

Tom Watson and Palmer Lisane have been named co-captains for the East Carolina indoor and outdoor track teams, it was announced today.

Watson, the indoor shot put champion in the Southern Conference, was the second leading scorer in the Southern meet last year. A sophomore from Denville, N. J., he overcame a serious knee operation last September to come on and be one of the outstanding performers for the Bucs.

Lisane, a junior from Wallace-Rose Hill, was the 440-yard champion in the outdoor season last year. He also finished third in the indoor 600. "He's been a steadily improving performer," Coach Bill Carson said.

Bucs Host ASU Runners

East Carolina University's Pirates will hold their first home cross-country meet of the year here Saturday at 10 a.m. hosting Appalachian State University.

The Mountaineers come into the meet with a 5-1 record, while the Bucs have yet to record a win in seven outings.

ACC Teams To Meet Wishbone

By The Associated Press

Atlantic Coast Conference football rivals Duke and North Carolina meet outside opposition this Saturday and both face the test against a wishbone offense. Duke will host Army and North Carolina travels to the unfriendly home field of Georgia Tech.

It will be the Tar Heels' first test ever against the wishbone as they go against a Tech team coached by the man who perfected it at UCLA, Pepper Rodgers. Last year Rodgers' UCLA team led the nation in rushing, finished second in scoring and was third in total offense.

North Carolina coach Bill Dooley says Rodgers has gotten the Yellow Jackets' wishbone on the move. "Georgia Tech runs the wishbone very well," Dooley said. "They have good, hard-running backs and two fine quarterbacks in Danny Myers and Rudy Allen.

"It's a big challenge for our defense going against this good Tech offensive team. We'll have to play a top defensive game if we hope to win," the Tar Heel coach said.

Tech's Grant Field in Atlanta has meant defeat for most visitors, and this Saturday is homecoming for the Yellow Jackets. One of the teams to overcome the home team advantage was Pitt, which beat Tech 27-17 earlier this season. North Carolina is fresh from a 45-29 win over the Panthers, but Dooley said that's no indication of how his team will fare in Atlanta.

"Comparative scores in football don't prove a thing," Dooley said. "We pay no attention to them. The fact is that the Tech-Pitt game was anybody's ball game until the closing minutes. Pitt led by only 20-17 and scored a late touchdown to pull out the game."

The last North Carolina—Georgia Tech contest was in 1945 and the Yellow Jackets won in Chapel Hill 20-14.

Duke, like North Carolina at 3-1 for the season, will face an improved Army team. The Cadets are 1-3 this season, but put on an impressive showing last Saturday against 15th ranked Penn State, leading 14-0 before succombing 21-14.

Army went to the wishbone offense this year under first year coach Homer Smith. They have executed it well as quarterback Scott Gillogly has rushed 75 times for 200 yards. Gillogly can also take to the air and has completed 17 of 39 passes for 265 yards and one touchdown.

Coach Mike McGee's Blue Devils will rely on a hard-hitting ground game geared around tailbacks Larry Martinez and Tony Benjamin and fullback Mike Bomgardner. Quarterback Hal Spears can throw when he has to. He has completed 16 of 27 passes for 228 yards and one touchdown in three games.

Duke trails 2-7 in the series with Army.

North Carolina State coach Lou Holtz said he is scared as the day approaches for his undefeated Wolfpack to play Virginia with its 1-3 record. It's fear of the unexpected in a football game, he explained, like what could have been a costly fumble on the 12-yard line against East Carolina last week.

State's rushing defense is tops in the ACC, but it is Virginia's passing game that leads the league. The teams meet in Charlottesville Saturday in one of the week's two conference squabbles. The other will see Clemson at Maryland.

Hazel Browning-Stockton (M) defeated Tisa Curtis-Sharron Parr, 8-5.

Rose Second In Close Decision

Rocky Mount nipped Rose High School, which turned around and nipped Ahoskie in a three-way cross-country meet that was as tight as a meet can be, yesterday.

Rocky Mount finished the meet with the low score of 40 points. Rose was just a step behind with 41, while Ahoskie finished with 42.

Lee Tolar of Rocky Mount was the individual winner, completing the course in 13:58. Ricky Reese of Rose was second in 14:04, followed by Rocky Mount's William Gray in 14:06. Mike Avent of Rocky Mount was fourth in 14:34, followed by Steve Goss of Ahoskie in 14:38.

Art Klose led the second five across the line in 14:39, while Wallace Johnson (14:41), Randy Stroud (14:42), and Mike Rogers (14:48) came next, all of Ahoskie. Melvin Roberson of Rose closed out the top ten in 14:55.

Other Rose finishers included Marvin Roberson, 11th in 15:02; Jimmy Peszko, 12th in 15:04; Jimmy Davis, 16th in 16:03; Mac Davis, 19th in 16:38; Billy Billica, 20th in 17:52; Robert Bellesheim, 21st in 17:59; and David Pendered, 22nd in 18:39.

Rose is scheduled to travel to South Lenoir on Monday.

Pirates, Rose Given Panel Nod

The way things are going these days in college football, it might be well just to put names in a hat and pull them out as to try and figure out who is going to win.

Even Jack Whichard, who usually is solid as a dollar (pre-inflation) fell prey this past weekend, tumbling to a 5-7 record, his worst ever.

"I had a 6-6 one time, I think," he moaned, "But I don't ever remember being below.500."

Nearly everyone else was also singing the blues—especially over the Rose game. Only Tom Baines, thankful for the flu that saved him one there.

Baines continues to lead the pack, moving his record out to 37-11 for the year, while George Holland held onto second place with a 33-15 mark. This writer moved into third with a 31-17 mark, followed by Whichard at 30-18. Diane Allen is 28-20, while Joe Jenkins snapped his 6-6 series and moved up to 28-22.

This week, we are all going to try and go better and improve—except for Tom that is, we're all trying to figure out a way to lower the boom on him.

First, a glance at the high school games which don't appear on our scorecards. We currently hold 31-1 record in these picks, and we wonder why it doesn't rub off on the others.

Southern Wayne will be at Farmville Central in a key Eastern Carolina Conference game. The winner will probably go on to the league title, while the loser will have to battle for second and the other playoff berth. The Jaguars just might have the stuff to stop Ken Mack and Company, but with the Saints' record, they must be picked.

Greene Central travels to North Pitt. The Rams are moving along now, while the winless Panthers are showing improvement. But they haven't come that far yet. Greene Central should win here.

Ayden-Grifton goes up against the other winless member of the Eastern Carolina loop, Charles B. Aycock. The Chargers are still in the thick of the battle for second, and should be able to easily handle the Falcons.

Conley goes to North Lenoir in another loop game. The Vikings are coming off a tough game with Greene Central, while North Lenoir has a two-game losing string going. It should be a tough game, and the Vikes might pull it off. But the home field is North Lenoir's, along with the pick.

Elm City will be a Robersonville for a battle between the leaders of the Eastern Palins Conference. The Eagles have been keeping the scoreboard hopping during the last couple of weeks, and this time out they may slow down a bit, but they'll still come out on top.

Finally, Williamston visits Tarboro, seeking to remain unbeaten in Northeastern Conference play. The Tigers had a slight scare last week, while Tarboro has been showing improvement. Williamston should come out on top, however.

Now, to our weekly poll.

Rose, after being upset by Goldsboro, travels to Rocky Mount for its first league game. The Rampants should be back at full strength this weekend. And the panel has faith—it's a 6-0 decision for Rose.

The Pirates of East Carolina go down the road to the other Greenville to meet the somewhat surprising Paladins for Furman. After Furman's opening loss to VMI they were counted out of the race for the title. But they've come back with wins over William & Mary and Richmond, getting into the thick of it.

The Paladins, too, are always up for the Pirates for some reason. This is usually one of the toughest games of the year for the Bucs, and this year promises to be no exception. Still, there is not a vote to the contrary. We all favor the Pirates.

In other games, it'll be VMI over The Citadel; Richmond over Ball State; Maryland over Clemson; North Carolina over Georgia Tech; Penn State over Wake Forest; Appalachian State over Lenoir Rhyne; Boston College over William & Mary; Duke over Army; N.C. State over Virginia; and Louisiana State over Tennessee.

VMI Puts String On Line

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
AP Sports Writer

East Carolina's two-time champion Pirates open their Southern Conference football season Saturday night at Furman against the Paladins in one of two games that could have a major bearing on this year's scrap for the title.

The other has Virginia Military's league-leading Keydets playing at The Citadel, which has been beaten 27-24 by Richmond's Spiders and 16-12 by William and Mary's Indians in its last two games.

East Carolina is 3-1 over-all, the defeat by 24-20 last Saturday to 11th-ranked North Carolina State. Since a 7-0 opening game loss to VMI, Furman has won three straight—the last two in the conference over William and Mary, 10-0, and Richmond, 24-14.

The Keydets are 2-0 in the conference, having routed Davidson 43-7 besides beating Furman, and 3-1 over-all. The Citadel is 1-3 against all opposition.

The afternoon schedule consists of only two nonleague encounters, Richmond taking its 3-1 record to Ball State and Davidson's Wildcats, 0-2, playing at Wofford.

In a pair of nonconference games Saturday night, William and Mary, 2-3, is at Boston College and Appalachian State's Mountaineers, 3-2, try to break a two-game losing streak at Lenoir Rhyne.

VMI Coach Bob Thalman says he thinks it has been proved the Keydets' victory over Furman "was no fluke. It was a hard-hitting game." Of The Citadel, he says the Bulldogs "are a lot better than their 1-3 record. Naturally, it's a very important game to us."

To win, the Keydets will have to stop the Bulldogs' Andrew Johnson, the leading rusher in the conference and No. 2 in the nation with an average of 154.3 yards per game.

But VMI's offense is improving with quarterback Tony Farry averaging 80 yards per game in total offense and Ronnie Norman averaging 86 yards per game on the ground.

"I'd be less than candid to say I'd like to win because I have played and coached at VMI," says Coach Bobby Ross of The Citadel. He says the Bulldogs "could easily be 2-0 in the league, but we aren't, and all we can think about now" is winning a league game.

East Carolina Coach Pat Dye thinks Furman can all but wrap up the championship by beating his Pirates, since the Paladins already have beaten Richmond and William & Mary. He also feels a defeat for the Paladins "would kill their chances."

Despite an emotional drain caused by the loss to N. C. State, Dye says, "Our season starts over with Furman. It's the Southern Conference title we're out to get this time. And Furman is a very tough team to start the defense of our title with."

The East Carolina-Furman scrap looks to be a ground battle, for the Paladins have rushed for 240.8 yards per game while passing for 76 and the Pirates have the league's top rushing attack of 307.5 yards per game but have completed only five of 36 passes for 110 yards.

The Pirates are led by fullback Don Schink with 73.5 yards per game and quarterback Mike Weaver with 70.3. Furman's Larry Robinson has averaged 91.3 yards per game.

"Richmond is an excellent passing football team, and they have a fine running game to supplement it," says Ball State Coach Dave McClain. "We'll have to defend the passing of Harry Knight and run our ground control game to keep the ball away from them."

Although Knight completed only eight passes against Furman, he's hit 49 in four games for 706 yards and six touchdowns to lead the conference. Spider split end Mike Mahoney is the league's top receiver with 20 catches for 336 yards and two touchdowns.

William and Mary quarterback Bill Deery leads the conference in total offense with 161.4 yards per game, 117.4 on the ground. The Indians' Doug Gerhart has averaged 55.2 yards rushing.

Cowboys, Green Take Rec Wins

The Cowboys and the Green team came away with Recreation Department football victories yesterday.

In flag ball, the Cowboys took a 16-12 victory from the Steelers.

The Steelers scored first, pushing over two first half scores. The first came on a 38-yard run by Paul Taylor, while the second was a 32-yard interception return by Darrell Green.

The Cowboys got on the board before the end of the half, too, as Mark Douglas ran in from 38 yards out. Billy Dough got the PAT to cut the lead to 12-7 at halftime.

In the second half, the Cowboys picked up a safety to make it 12-9 then got the winning touchdown as Dough passed 19 yards to Scott Galloway. Dough also ran over the PAT.

Jamie Byrd and Steve Irwin led the Cowboy defenses, while Jimmy Jones and Green were listed top defenders for the Stellers.

In the tackle game, the Green took a 26-8 win over the Gold.

The Green hit first, with Ron Butler scoring on a 10-yard fumble return. Later in the half, Willie Jones scored from five out and Danny Carmon ran the PAT for a 14-0 halftime lead.

The Gold got a safety early in the second half, but the Green came back with another score as Mark Saieed carried a fumble back 68 yards for the touchdown.

Gold's lone touchdown came on a 24-yard interception return by Bryant Smith. The final Green score was 16-yard pass from Stuart Motsinger to Danny Carmon.

Saieed and Mike Williams led the Green defense, while Edgar Lloyd and Andre Smith stood out for the Gold.

World League Is Still Alive

By CRAIG AMMERMAN
AP Sports Writer

For those trying to keep up with the continuing serial of the infant World Football League, here's the latest:

—The league reduced itself to 10 playing teams Thursday by removing the Jacksonville and Detroit franchises from the remainder of the 1974 schedule, but not from the league itself.

—Two of the 10 playing teams called separate news conferences to deny what they called rumors that they would move to other cities.

—Two other WFL teams have already moved in this first troubled season, and yet another is being operated by the league, which is under a court order not to move the club.

Despite all that, WFL offcials claim the league's future is strong.

It did not appear that way Thursday.

The series of developments that began in Philadelphia were concluded late in the day in California when Commissioner Gary Davidson, who also created the World Hockey Association and American Basketball Association, announced that the Jacksonville and Detroit franchises were being removed from the 1974 schedule with five games to go.

But Davidson said the two teams, which between them have lost a reported $4 million, were not folding. He said plans to draft players from those two teams by the other franchises had been scrapped because "several potential investors have indicated that they wish to keep the teams intact for a fresh start next year."

Davidson also did not say if, when or whether Detroit and Jacksonville players would be paid, although he has previously said all contracts would be honored by the league. Players on both squads have gone weeks without getting a check.

Meanwhile, there were these other developments Thursday:

—In Orlando, the Florida Blazers, who originally were located in Washington, were protected by a court order from being moved by the league. However, the team, which is deeply in debt and has tried unsuccessfully to move to Atlanta, is being operated by the league.

—In Memphis, Leo Cahill, general manager of the Southmen, called a news conference to say, "I want to reiterate that we came to Memphis to play and stay and we are going to stay." The franchise originally was located in Toronto.

—In Philadelphia, John Blsaccob, president of the Bell, also called a news conference to announce his team was not leaving that city.

Davidson said scheduling problems created by removing Jacksonville and bdetroit from the rest of 1974 would be solved by having the two teams which were to play those teams play each other instead.

And at the same time he announced that six of the league's 10 playing clubs would qualify for a post-season playoff series to be culminated by the championship game, called the World Bowl.

Sooners Get First Test

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Awesome Oklahoma, winner of its last two games by an amazing combined score of 135-3, will seek to maintain that momentum Saturday against upset-minded Texas in one of the feature games on this weekend's college football schedule.

While top-rated Ohio State has the home field advan tage Saturday for its Big Ten encounter with 13th-ranked Wisconsin, the No. 2 Oklahoma Sooners must travel to Dallas to take on the Texas Longhorns, rated 17th.

"They've really got an outstanding football team," said Texas Coach Darrell Royal, who has a 12-5 coaching record against the Sooners.

A Texas official said 150,000 tickets could have been sold for the 69th meeting of the schools, which will be played before a sellout crowd of 72,000 at the Cotton Bowl. The series began in 1900 and although Oklahoma has won the last three games, Texas leads 42-24-2 over-all.

Oklahoma, 3-0, has been established as a three-touchdown favorite, and a look at the national statistics explains why. The Sooners are No. 1 in scoring with 54.3 points per game; No. 1 in total offense with 584.3 yards per game; No. 1 in rushing offense with 488.3 yards per game; No. 2 in total defense, allowing just 165 yards per game, and No. 3 in scoring defense, giving up only 4.3 points per game.

Wisconsin is also an underdog as it goes against Ohio State, even though Wisconsin is coming off an impressive 59-20 romp over Missouri.

Tailback Archie Griffin leads the Ohio State attack. Griffin, a junior, gained 196 yards against Washington State, the 15th consecutive time he has passed the 100 mark.

In the only other game this weekend pairing teams in the top 20, No. 9 Texas Tech, 3-0-1, visits No. 16 Texas A&M, 3-1, in a nationally televised Southwest Conference clash.

The Aggies lost to Kansas 28-10 last week and dropped from ninth to 16th.

Texas Tech depends on its passing combination of sophomore quarterback Tommy Duniven and senior flanker Lawrence Williams.

No. 3 Alabama, No. 4 Michigan, No. 5 Nebraska and No. 6 Notre Dame all have home games Saturday, and are rated as solid favorites. Alabama, 40, plays Florida State; Michigan, 4-0, takes on Michigan State; Nebraska, 3-1 opposes Missouri, and Notre Dame, 3-1, meets Rice.

Among the other top 10 teams, seventh-ranked Southern California, 2-1, plays a night game against Washington State at Spokane, Wash.; eighth-rated Florida, 4-0, travels to Vanderbilt and 10th-ranked Auburn, 4-0, plays Kentucky.

In other major games, No. 11 North Carolina State tries to stretch its record to 6-0 at Virginia; No. 12 Arizona visits Utah for a night contest; No. 14 Arkansas plays host to Baylor; Wake Forest is at No. 15 Penn State; No. 19 Kansas plays at Kansas State and No. 20 Miami, Ohio is at Ohio U.

Weaver Given New Contract

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — Earl Weaver, who directed the Baltimore Orioles to a fifth American League division title in six years, was rehired today for the 1975 season.

Contract terms were not disclosed but Weaver is believed to have signed for an estimated $80,000, representing a raise of about $5,000.

"Money was not an object," Weaver said of his negotiations with General Manager J. Frank Cashen. "About 15 words were said over money.

"Frank made me take a raise — not a big one, but a little one — although I wasn't sure I deserved one. Anyway, I'm happy. This will be my 19th year with the Baltimore organization, and they've treated me fairly all the time."

"There was never any doubt in my mind that Earl would be back," Cashen said. "Winning five times in six years isn't too bad. The only thing we have to do is figure out a way to beat Oakland. We gave them one hit Wednesday, and that didn't work."

Cashen referred to the victory by Oakland in the final game of the American League championship series, when the A's won 2-1 while getting just one hit and beat Baltimore for the second year in a row.

Since taking over the Orioles in the middle of the 1968 season, replacing Hank Bauer, Weaver has posted a .608 winning percentage with 634 victories and 408 defeats.

Starting with his first full season as manager in 1957, Weaver's teams have finished in the first division 21 times in 23 tries, including five teams in winter league play.

BACK ON THE BEAM

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Virginia quarterback Scott Gardner didn't wait long to pick up from where he left off last season when he led the Atlantic Coast Conference in total offense with 2,120 yards. In the opening game defeat by 38-25 to Navy, Gardner accounted for 264 yards passing and 13 rushing. The effort by the Sarasota, Fla., junior was the best during the first week in the ACC.

From High School To The Majors!
A native of Baltimore, Al Kaline joined the Tigers at age 18, right out of high school—entering the major leagues without ever playing in the minors. Through his 22 seasons, he's played in the All-Star game 16 times and has won 10 Gold Gloves for fielding excellence. This year he spent full time at the plate as Detroit's "designated hitter."
"Newspaper Carriers, You Lead the League!"
. . . says the great Detroit Tigers star Al Kaline. And Al knows something about league-leading—he's tops among active American League players in number of games and number of hits, and second in six other hitting categories.
As he entered this season Al was closing in on the 3,000-hit mark, which has been attained by only 11 players in baseball history—nine of them already in the Hall of Fame. But between his at-bats, he takes time to pay tribute to America's newspaper carriers on the occasion of Newspaper Carrier Day 1974.
"It takes steadiness to be a good ball player," Al says. "You've got to be in there all the time, working hard, giving it all you've got. And that's exactly what your newspaper carrier gives you—steady performance every day. That's why these young folks are tops in my league!"
Carriers are tops in the U. S. Savings Bonds thrift league, too. Through the years they've supported the program, and thousands of them buy Bonds regularly out of their earnings. Many of them do it through Newspaper Carriers Thrift Clubs, setting dollars aside each month for college expenses or other important needs. They believe in their country's future and their own. That's what buying Bonds is all about.
Won't you join Al Kaline and the Treasury Department in a big "thank you" to your own and all of our country's newspaper carriers? It's their day in the sun—Newspaper Carrier Day 1974!

Bicentennial Celebration For Martin County Is Underway

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

JAMESVILLE—As Martin County's Bicetennial celebrations continue throughout the county, the fishing-farming-manufacturing village on Jamesville on the Roanoke River had its initial round Thursday night in marking this historic event.

It was a perfect night for the happy occasion. Dust turned to darkness as a crowd at least triple the town's 600 townspeople packed into an open place on the children sat on the dusty ground in front in the stage and filled a long slope to the edge of the heavy woods that surrounded the open space. Overheads, stars were bright in a moonless sky.

A low stage before the "Roanoke Queen" was the scene of action for a home-grown old fashioned variety show. Two simple spotlights picked out pretty young teen-age girls, black and white, who appeared first as can-can dancers, later returned as Charleston flappers, and then made a final appearance in an Eleanor Powell type dance number.

On the ground at the edge of the stage, J.C. Griffin manned an upright piano, providing a changing variety of musical shoresof the Roanoke facing the false facade of a riverboat, the "Roanoke Queen." Older people sat on rows of folding chairs. Younger couples stood at back and around the sides. Smaller accompaniment—sweet and slow for Macon Holiday's singing of old favorites like "Carry Me Back To Ole Virginia" and "Old Kentucky Home;" waltzy for Rose Armstrong's "Hello! Dolly;" and rollicking for audience sing-along songs, such as "Moonlight Bay", "Carolina In The Morning," and "I'm Looking Over A Four Leaf Clover."

SUMMER HOMES

Nineteenth century hand wringing melodrama was included in a skit, "Father, Father, What Shall We Do?" A young Negro lad, Ronnie Speight, brought back memories of Bill Robinson in a tap dance routine.

There was an abundance of cornball jokes too, most of them resurrected from decades ago, given a new twist by substituting local names for all the Pats and Mikes.

There were a number of appearances by Billy, a young black and white goat who seemed nonchalant about being brought on stage every few minutes.

A young Jamesville woman, Mrs. Bailey (Deane) Phelps, Jr. was in overall command of the "Roanoke Queen" revue. "It's really been a community effort all the way," she said. "There's 30 people doing the acting and singing, plus all those working backstage and on the lights. Many people joined in helping to make the showboat scenery. We're all proud of how good it looks."

Tonight, Jamesville will continue to celebrate Martin County's Bicentennial with a special event at the half time period of the football game between Jamesville and Oak City.

"We're going to have a parade at two o'clock Saturday," Mrs. Phelps said, "one that will have ox drawn carts. We're going to use natural materials, there'll not a single piece of crepe paper in any of our floats."

On Saturday there will also be an arts and craft sale, and later a barbeque supper with proceeds going to the Jamesville Volunteer Fire Department. If the weather permits, a ballonist will be on hand. Home made ice cream and candy will be available early Saturday night, with later a big square dance in the school cafetorium.

The weekend of festivities will conclude Sunday with an antique and artifacts display by the Woman's Club on Sunday afternoon, and a community religious service at 7 p.m.

"There's one thing I'd especially like to mention," Mrs. Phelps said. "Our bicentennial celebrations are not only for the fun of it, but will serve a very useful prupose. Anything we make will go to the restoration of the Burras House, a historic house in Jamesville."

A Bicentennial Film To Be On Television

The Bicentennial film to be shown on WNCT television Saturday, at 4:30 and at 8:30 will be a tracing of Greenville's history from the Indian settlements to the present day.

The camera moves over old pictures making them come alive. Greenville's part in the American Revolution, the Civil War, the beginning of the area's development through the coming of the steamboat, the railroad, the plank road to Raleigh, etc. are all a part of the story.

The script was written by Dr. Thomas A. Williams who also edited the Bicentennial Book. After the showing on television the film will be given to the libraries for use in the Greenville area. Producer of the film is Tommy Payne and narrator is Ed Field.

North Pitt School News

By GENEVA HOLDER

Annuals are on sale for the third week at $8.32 each if paid in full now. If a deposit is made, the price is $4.50, with the balance due in May. Seniors who wish to have their name on their annual should add $.52 to the total price.

Boosters are still available to students who want to sell six $2.00 boosters to receive a free annual.

The annual staff sponsored assemblies October 2, 3, and 4 to promote the sale of the '75 Prelude. The programs, coordination by Pat Morris, included four skits presented by members of the annual staff with special entertainment presented by Pam Jenkins, Bernita Johnson, Dexter Dixon, Sheila Little, Mr. Steve Miller, and the cheerleaders. Special appreciation to Louis Ayers, pianist, Steve Stancill, lighting director, Jimmie Sue Spain, master of ceremonies, and John Pritchard, editor.

Friday, October 4, North Pitt hosted Farmville Central. The final football score was 49-0 with Farmville Central. North Pitt will host Greene Central Friday October 11 at 8:00.

This week North Pitt Notes features two science teachers, Mr. James Staton and Mr. Floyd Rowe, Jr.

Mr. Rowe was born in Ayden and attended Ayden High School. At North Carolina State University, he majored in forestry. He later attended East Carolina where he received his teacher's certificate and his MS in science education.

Mr. Rowe, his wife Henrietta, and their two children live in Ayden. Mrs. Rowe is a teacher.

Mr. Rowe's hobbies are photography and camping.

Mr. James Staton was born in Greenville. He attended C. M. Eppes High School. At Livingstone College in Salisbury, he majored in biology. He has also studied science at ECU.

Mr. Staton, his wife Margaret, and their three children live in Greenville. Mrs. Staton, a former teacher, is a housewife.

Mr. Staton enjoys hunting and fishing in his leisure hours.

There are six pictures on display in the library. These are portraits of famous persons, with one exception. Students are urged to guess whom each picture portrays.

AARP Unit Hears Talk

The local chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons met Tuesday afternoon and heard William E. Clayton, an assistant regional director for North Carolina explain the functions of other AARP chapters in the state.

The AARP is an association of more than six million persons designed to provide benefits and other services to help members feel "vital, important and involved in every part of life," Clayton explained.

AARP members are eligible for supplementary group health insurance plans to supplement Medicare and receive information on how to save money on auto liability insurance as well as participate in a variety of quality travel tours and cruises.

Membership in AARP is open to persons 55-years-old or over, whether retired or not.

The local AARP chapter meets the second Tuesday of each month at 2 p.m. at the Bank of North Carolina on Tenth Street, Kathleen Woolard, publicity chairman of the chapter said.

Catherine Cottle presided at the meeting.

Four Collisions In Greenville Thursday

Four traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday resulted in an estimated $2,275 property damage.

Heaviest damage, officers said, was caused when cars driven by Judith Anne Rockett of Charlotte and Joe Herbert Taylor of 210A Hudson St. collided about 9:50 p.m. at the intersection of 14th and Charles Streets.

Police, who charged Taylor with failing to stop for a stop light, set damage at $500 to the Rockett car and $500 to the Taylor auto.

Joyce Ross Harper of 104 Manhatten Ave. was charged with failing to stop following investigation of an 8:23 a.m. collision at the intersection of Fifth and Pitt Streets.

Damage to the Harper car was set at $300 while damage to the second vehicle involved in the mishap, driven by Ingrid Hoffman Civils of 1311 Willis St. was placed at $425.

No charges were reported after cars driven by James Earl Gatlin of 705 McDowell St. and Audrey Holland Parsons of Route 3, Greenville, collided about 4:25 p.m. on Tenth Street 23 feet West of the Clark Street intersection.

Damage was estimated at $350 to the Gatlin car and $75 to the Parsons auto.

No injuries were reported in the series of mishaps.

The WORRY CLINIC

Actions Pose Today's Lesson

Jesus was not a pacifist! He also blessed the soldiers and policemen as the real "peacemakers." And He turned the other cheek for personal affronts but resorted to violence to defend mankind's basic freedoms! He even let the shiftless poor die of hunger and disease!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE B-654: Hiram P., aged 38, is a church deacon.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "our congregation was somewhat startled by your recent address entitled 'Jesus, the World's Greatest Psychologist.'

"For you showed that Jesus was not a peacenik or pacifist.

"I wish you'd explain some of those new aspects of Christ, for most of the clergymen I know have ignored this 'Horse Sense' aspect of Jesus."

Action vs. Words

"Action," runs an old adage, "speaks louder than words."

Jesus said that if a man should smite us on one cheek, we should turn the other also (Matthew 5:39).

And Christ demonstrated that idea in His personal affronts, as when they spat upon Him en route to Calvary.

But by His actions Jesus distinguished definitely between such personal insults vs. threats to basic human freedoms that had taken mankind thousands of years to wrest from sadistic dictators.

For when Christ saw the moneychangers defiling the Temple, He didn't attempt to use verbal persuasion on them, though He was the greatest salesman ever to set foot on this Earth.

Instead, He overthrew the tables of the moneychangers and cast them out of the Temple (Matthew 21:12).

He also overthrew the seats of those who sold doves!

Indeed, in John 2:15, we read this further evidence of His use of physical violence:

"And when he had made a scourge of small cords, he drove them all out of the Temple, and the sheep, and the oxen; and poured out the changers' money, and overthrew the tables."

Mark 11:15, likewise recounts Christ's resort to physical violence to rid the Temple of its polluters.

Jesus also lauded the policemen and soldiery, as in the 7th Beatitude:

"Blessed are the peacemakers" (Matthew 5:9).

Peacemakers are not the pacifists who meekly hope or wish or long for peace.

Instead, they are the men, as in uniform, who bravely stand out to protect our women and children on the streets, highways and even in our private homes.

They risk their lives to keep the lawless and criminal element from abusing the peaceful citizenry!

Christ also showed in His personal behavior that He did not believe in universal philanthropy, with taxes to be spent on welfare for the shiftless poor.

For He once fed 5,000 hungry people, but during the 3 years of His earthly ministry, He apparently let at least 10,000 or more die of starvation!

And He also tried Socialized Medicine when He healed the 10 lepers, but gave that up too.

Meanwhile, He let possibly 25,000 sick, cancerous, leprous and other maimed people die, within probably a block of His lecture stops!

For Christ separated the indigent into the chronic "gimme" (shiftless) poor versus the ambitious poor who temporarily are out of jobs but are eager to work whenever possible.

"The poor ye have with you always." He must have tartly described those lacking the faith, ambition and elbow grease to come to Him for food or healing, for Jesus didn't make medical house calls or hand out free food stamps door-to-door!

And in Luke 4:23-27, Christ cited the "selective" food giving of Elijah and also the restrictive healing of Elisha to justify His own very discriminating charity.

Dr. Jenkins Lay Speaker

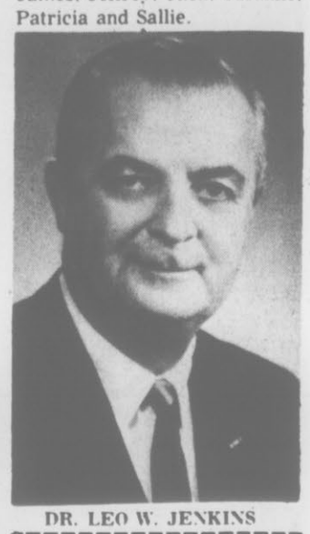

United Methodist Churches throughout the nation will be observing Laity Sunday.

Lay speaker for the day at St. James United Methodist Church will be Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, chancellor of East Carolina University.

Dr. Jenkins was born in Succasunna, N.J., and received his B.S. from Rutgers, M.A. from Columbia and Ed.D from New York University. He came to ECU as dean in 1947, became president in 1960 and chancellor in 1972.

A member of St. James, Dr. Jenkins has been a delegate to the General Conference of the Methodist Church, Dallas, Tex., in 1968 and in St. Louis, Mo., in 1970.

Married to the former Lillian Jacobsen, Dr. and Mrs. Jenkins are the parents of six children, James, Jeffrey, Jack, Suzanne, Patricia and Sallie.

Opening lead: Four of ♣.

There is nothing my good friend Omar Sharif likes better than to take time off from film-making for a good horse race or a rubber of bridge. At the recent Deauville Bridge Festival, he partnered American internationalist, Harold Ogust, in the feature event, and they came up with a sparkling defense on this deal.

Despite a competitive auction, North-South bought the hand at five spades, a contract that was made at most tables. Holding the West cards, Sharif took advantage of the vulnerability to make two bids on minimal values, to suggest a sacrifice should his partner be so inclined. Holding fair defensive values, however, Ogust elected to try to beat the opponents.

The opening club lead was won by the king, and declarer ruffed the ace of clubs continuation. The contract hung on declarer's ability to bring in the spade suit without loss, and the odds slightly favor trying to drop the king over the finesse—two missing cards will divide 1-1 52 percent of the time. However, before tackling trumps, declarer decided to see if he could glean any further knowledge about his opponents' holdings.

Declarer crossed to the ace of hearts and led dummy's singleton diamond. Ogust stole the limelight by making the fine play of the king of diamonds. When this won the trick, he continued his excellent defensive work by returning a low diamond. Now it was declarer's turn to make a good play—he inserted his queen.

Sharif realized that declarer's problem had to be locating the king of trumps. It was also apparent that if West revealed that he held the ace of diamonds, it would surely mark his partner for the king of spades. So he found the brilliant defense of ducking smoothly, allowing declarer to win a useless trick with the queen of diamonds.

From declarer's view, East was now marked with the ace-king of both minor suits. West had bid twice, apparently without a high honor in either minor and, at most, two secondary honors in hearts. Logically, therefore, he had to have the king of spades. So declarer ran the ten of spades, and was greatly shocked when East won the king for down one.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1974

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES A real chance comes to do specific work that is necessary to put your plans into action. Get your surroundings in the best of condition. Improve health, also.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can work at top efficiency now whether at home at business, in creative fields, or whatever, so get an early start and persevere.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get out to beauty or barber shop early and make yourself especially attractive, then you can later create an excellent impression socially.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Think very carefully if you want to solve that problem at home ideally. Avoid one tonight who is trying to horn in on your territory.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make appointments with those who can help you become more productive and efficient at your daily routines. Sociable p.m.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Show you are practical today and come out of that dream world you have been drifting into for some time and you get much done.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Improve appearance, then show more affection to loved ones. Group affair brings fine benefits, even if only on cultural level.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Talk over with some expert whether you should make changes to improve your position. Show more understanding for mate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Seek out good friends who understand your aims and will help you attain them. Attend that social affair that will bring you the benefits you want.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Seek the advice of bigwigs so you can improve your position in life. Show pride in whatever it is that you possess. Guard reputation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Out to the new places with new acquaintances for cultural pleasure. If changes need to be made, consider them well.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Fulfill any promises you have made conscientiously. Seek more happiness with the one you love. Show more affection.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Find out your true position with associates and listen attentively to their ideas for greater success. Reach better understanding with one who opposes you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be willing to listen to what others have to say, particularly the elders, and will then have the know-how to build a fine structure to his or her life, giving attention to every detail of whatever is being worked out. A fine, orderly mind here and any profession requiring neatness, precision is excellent, especially in laboratories of all kinds, or in business of the highest order.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

THE STUFF DREAMS ARE MADE OF...
The North Carolina State Fair. The one place left in this world where dreams are still in fashion.
Two hundred and five acres of magic, fun and wonderment; of joyful sights and sounds.
The Fair is one hundred and seven years old and still young, still new. Still the best place on earth to show a child a good time. And set him dreaming.
Our dream materials...
The Petting Zoo. Where children make friends with the animals.
Zany performances of the Royal Marionettes. Where laughter is a way of life.
Breath-taking excitement. Like Jack Kochman's Hell Drivers and the thrill-a-minute Midway.
Educational exhibits. Like the Village of Yesteryear, Touch and See, and the agricultural displays.
Places where children learn so painlessly, they don't even know they've been taught.
Star time is every night at 7:00. And the Stars are free with your gate admission ticket.
Oct. 18-19. Jerry Reed and Susan Raye. Country and Western music at its finest.
Oct. 20. Roy Clark and the North Carolina Symphony. The best of two worlds collide and make beautiful music together.
Oct. 21. Anita Bryant. Spreading her special kind of sunshine.
Oct. 22. Awards night for the exhibitors.
Oct. 23-24. Ray Stevens. He keeps coming back 'cause everybody loves him.
Oct. 25-26. Festus and the Frontiersmen. Old Fes' puts on quite a show.
Two dollars buys a lot of dreams.
That's all you pay to enter. The parking is free and so are the Stars. Children twelve and under are free, and it costs you absolutely nothing to get in if you're sixty-five or older.
So make this the year for the State Fair. The best place on earth to have a good time.
It'll give your children some beautiful dreams. And maybe even help you remember a few of your own.

Condominium Policy Statement Adopted

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission has adopted a policy statement pertaining to condominiums in view of the "considerable interest . . . generated lately over condominium development" here.

The statement points out, "It has become increasingly evident that the housing slump, which the nation is currently in, will continue for sometime to come."

The Planning Commission asserted, "Increasing costs in land, labor and material, coupled with the highest interest rates we've known, have placed tremendous obstacles in the way of the home building industry as well as the home buying public. Lending institutions, as well as the builder and home buyer, are having a hard time in making new monetary commitments."

The economic slump, the board agreed, "has caused a switch both in the attitudes of the home buying public and the development objectives of the builder. Increasingly, people are turning to alternate forms of housing which were either unacceptable or unavailable to them in the past. Condominiums and other forms of joint ownership have become both marketable from the builder's viewpoint and acceptable to the home buyer."

Local interest in condominium development "has led us to the belief that such developments would be an asset to the housing market in Greenville," the statement adds, "not only because it increases the size of the existing supply but also by offering another type of unit in more reasonable price ranges."

In anticipation of a "certain number of problems" during the early development stages, "it is our desire to develop a more complete set of regulations to help guide condominium development in Greenville and to reduce the number of problems that may arise."

The planning board also expressed a desire to work with local developers and builders "in the creation of this ordinance by creating a special committee composed of three members of the Planning Commission, the city engineer, the city planner, the director of Greenville Utilities, and an additional technical assistant as needed."

In the interim, the commission has adopted a guideline for use in dealing with condominium projects. The policy states, "A condominium project shall be considered as a multi-family project and shall be located in all zoning districts where multi-family projects are allowed either as a permitted use or as a special use."

It also states, "The division of ownership inherent in the condominium concept divides the land or building tract into two or more parcels and therefore constitutes a subdivision. As such, the Planning Commission feels that it should approve all plats, before their recordation, required by the Unit Ownership Act. This shall also pertain to the conversion of an existing rental building into a condominium."

The guideline continue; "The conversion of an existing rental building into a condominium shall also require submission of the structural changes and alterations that will be done."

The board explained that, "Until a new regulation is adopted, a condominium shall meet all the yard, space, parking and other requirements found in the Greenville Zoning Ordinance for multi-family projects, and all shall conform to all multi-family building construction codes of the City of Greenville."

Heeded Power Cutback Appeals

By BYRON DAVIS
Associated Press Writer

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — A request last month by the Tennessee Valley Authority that all electricity users voluntarily reduce power consumption has met with a surprising response, a TVA official said Thursday.

"We are delighted with reports we are receiving from throughout the valley that show electricity consumers in all categories, from residential to businesses and industry, are responding," said Albert O. Daniels. "Many of them are using innovative alternatives."

Daniels is TVA's emergency energy program coordinator.

"Some industries have been especially responsive," he said. "For instance, the Monsanto Co. on Sand Mountain in Alabama is installing a system that recovers heat generated in its plant that will be recycled to provide warmth for workers that otherwise would have been supplied by electricity."

This company also has put its engineers to work and they have come up with other innovations. One of these involves an increase of a chilled water flow that cools one of their manufacturing processes and reduces the need for electric refrigeration.

"They also found a way to conserve enough compressed air to discontinue the need for a 1,200-horsepower compressor," he said.

"This company also tells us that it estimates the amount of power it is saving would heat, light and air-condition more than 200 three-bedroom homes.

"These are the type of things that industry has come up with so far," Daniels said. "We have received comparable support from local governments.

"Lighting levels have been reduced in many government offices and dozens of cities already are disconnecting street lights and reducing other types of outdoor lighting.

"Residential consumers also have responded," he said. "We are getting many reports of residential customers following the suggested guidelines TVA issued for reducing electric use in the home."

Daniels said it is too early to tell how much electricity in terms of kilowatt hours is being saved by these voluntary actions.

"But our people out in the field say that these things are being done, and with this kind of response, across the valley, we are encouraged that the changes of involuntary electric cutoffs will be greatly reduced."

VEPCO Gets Go-Ahead On 2 Nuclear Reactors

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission nas authorized the Virginia Electric & Power Co. to begin work on two additional reactors at its Surry nuclear power plant, and a Vepco spokesman said "very preliminary" work will begin Monday.

The AEC's "limited work authorization," issued Tuesday, allows the utility to begin land clearing, road surfacing and excavation for reactor containments at Units 3 and 4 at Surry, the spokesman said Thursday.

Work beginning Monday will consist of only surveying trees to see which can be cleared, the Vepco spokesman said. The AEC hasn't issued a construction permit which would allow full work to begin on the two new reactors.

Vepco presently operates two reactors at the site.

The limited authorization was issued at Vepco's "own financial risk," the AEC said, under a new regulation adopted in April.

The authorization came even before the end Wednesday of a two-day hearing at Surry into health and safety aspects of the additional proposed reactors.

The AEC told Vepco at that hearing to provide better records on the geology around the Surry plant. Some geologists say a fault line near the plant could exist.

The Vepco spokesman said the AEC's request involved "clerical type work" such as retyping pages and putting legends on charts, but "there are no substantive changes in the conclusion of the report."

Vepco has no plans to make test borings at the Surry site to see if the reported fault line along the James River does exist, the spokesman added.

Mohammed Fabet, an Old Dominion University professor, likened the geological reports Wednesday to "a student's term paper" and said they were based on 1930s library documents.

A 1945 investigation said the Hampton Roads fault did not exist, but environmentalists fighting construction of the two new reactors say geologists aren't sure and "the question of a Hampton Roads fault keeps recurring."

If the fault does exist, an earthquake would be more likely to move along it than in other areas.

A team of scientists studying material from recent satellite data says in a U.S. Geological Survey study that "it is entirely conceivable that earthquakes of more than minor intensity could occur anywhere along the Atlantic coast."

The USGS is studying new material on East Coast faulting through the Earth Resources Technology Satellite program.

Rep. Wilbur Mills 'Embarrassed And Humiliated'

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASQINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills has described himself as embarrassed and humiliated by his involvement in an episode during which a woman jumped into the Washington Tidal Basin. He says he is returning to work at the Capitol and then will resume his re-election campaign.

The Arkansas Democrat, 65-year-old chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and long considered one of the most powerful and respected members of Congress, had not been seen on Capitol Hill this week.

Park police said they stopped his speeding, unlighted car, driven by someone else, early Monday. They said a woman passenger "obviously intoxicated" emerged and that Mills stepped out of the car with his face bleeding and smelling of alcohol. They identified the woman as Annabel Battistella.

No charges were filed in the incident.

In a written statement on Thursday, Mills said Mrs. Battistella was one of a party of neighbors and friends he was entertaining, that she became ill, he tried to have her taken home, there was a struggle and her elbow broke his glasses, causing facial cuts.

Mills' administrative assistant, Oscar Eugene Goss, said Tuesday that Mills had told him he was not in the automobile and knew nothing of the episode. Mills said in his statement that Goss had misunderstood him when he said merely that a news account of the affair was inaccurate. Goss agreed in a separate statement.

In his statement, Mills said he and his wife Polly became close friends of Mrs. Battistella and her husband Eduardo when the Millses moved to a suburban apartment complex in Arlington, Va., where the Battistellas already had an apartment.

Mills said the events of Sunday evening and Monday morning began when he arranged a bon voyage party for Gloria Sanchez, a cousin and house guest of the Battistellas, who was returning to her native Argentina.

Because Mrs. Mills had a broken foot, he said, they could not entertain at home and at Mrs. Mills' insistence he arranged to "take our friends to a public place we had frequented before."

His statement did not specifically mention drinking, but continued "we then visited another public place and after a few refreshments Mrs. Battistella became ill and I enlisted the help of others in our group to assist me in seeing her safely home."

"The man I asked to drive was unfamiliar with my car and among other things in the glare of the lighted streets neglected to turn on the headlamps," Mills said.

Mills said "as we proceeded home, she (Mrs. Battistella) attempted to leave the car and I attempted to prevent it. In the ensuing struggle her elbow hit my glasses and broke them resulting in a number of small cuts around my nose.

"About this time, the car was stopped by the Park Service and Mrs. Battistella was able to open the door and leave the car. The next thing I knew she was in the water."

Mills' account did not say why Mrs. Battistella was trying to leave the car and she has been unavailable for comment. Police said she was attempting suicide.

Justice Dept. Lawyers Assigned To Boston Civil Rights Problems

By PAUL E. SCHINDLER Jr.
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Five Justice Department lawyers have been assigned here to insure prompt enforcement of federal civil rights laws in connection with court-ordered school busing.

The FBI announcement Thursday night came after what Gov. Francis W. Sargent called a "relatively quiet" day in Boston.

City officials said there were few of the incidents of violence which have marked the first four weeks of a U.S. District Court plan to desegregate Boston public schools by busing 18,200 of 92,000 pupils.

James O. Newpher, special agent in charge of the Boston FBI office, said the FBI has been investigating alleged civil rights violations and cases of possible interference with Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr.'s busing order.

"We have sent some information to Washington for a decision on what further action to take," Newpher said in an interview Thursday. "When the lawyers arrive tomorrow, we'll present our information to them, and they will expedite whatever action is necessary."

Meanwhile, Mayor Kevin H. White said he would not support a wider busing plan until the federal government gives a better guarantee of safety for school children here. He accused President Ford of inflaming resistance to integration.

There was no direct White House response to White's remarks, but a spokesman said citizens should obey the court's ruling. The spokesman also said law and order in Boston is a state and city responsibility.

Ford told a news conference Wednesday that, while the law must be obeyed, he disagreed with Garrity's order.

White said Ford's statement would lead to further disruption "and will endanger the safety of our school children in the process."

State and Metropolitan District Commission police replaced the Tactical Patrol Force of the Boston police in the white, Irish South Boston section for the first time Thursday. The 450 new police patrolled the section, a center of anti-busing sentiment, after Garrity ordered White to seek such aid from Sargent.

While the Boston School Department is drawing up plans for the second phase of school integration, White said he would not support it without greater federal safety guarantees for school children.

"I reject the criteria that federal assistance is justified only when a condition of riot and rebellion exists in our streets and when local authority has collapsed," he said.

At least eight persons were injured in busing-related violence Thursday, none of them seriously, according to police and the mayor's office.

School officials reported city-wide attendance Thursday was 65 per cent, compared with 60 per cent on Wednesday.

Sierra Club To Sponsor Tour

The local Sierra Club group is sponsoring an informal on the site inspection of some areas of the Green Mill Run that will be involved in the proposed channelization project.

The tour will begin tomorrow, Saturday, at 3 p.m., beginning from the new picnic table site in Green Springs Park.

Dr. Michael O'Connor, geologist at East Carolina University, will conduct the field trip. Interested persons are invited to participate in the inspection tour.

Retreads Save A Lot Of Oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 200 million tire casings are discarded each year in the U.S., according to the Tire Retread Information Bureau. That's enough to circle the earth four times at the equator.

Retreads are a way of recycling tires while saving valuable crude oil reserves. It takes seven gallons of oil to produce an average automobile tire, but only 2½ gallons to retread one.

At that rate, the more than 40 million retreads sold in 1973 alone saved hundreds of millions of gallons of crude oil.

Suspend Use Of 'Harrier'

CHERRY POINT, N.C. (AP)—The Marine Corps has suspended the use of Harrier AV-8-A vertical take off and landing aircraft at Cherry Point Marine Air Station pending an investigation of a crash that killed a Marine pilot.

Capt. Roy Russell Dougherty of New Bern was killed Wednesday on a routine training operation in one of the single-seater jets.

A Marine spokesman said one of the British-built planes was also involved in an accident Tuesday, but the pilot was not injured.

Officials said that more than 40 of the aircraft based at Cherry Point are affected by the suspension order. The Marine Corps has a total of 71 Harriers including two squadrons at Cherry Point and a third in Japan.

The AV-8-A has been assigned to the 2nd Marine Aircraft Wing at Cherry Point since April, 1971. Since that time, the wing's two squadrons of Harriers have flown 22,600 hours and have been involved in five major accidents, the Marine spokesman said.

OVER AND OUT

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Pony Express actually was in existence only 18 months before the transcontinental telegraph put it out of business, according to the Missouri Tourism Commission.

A LIME YELLOW FIRE TRUCK?—Yes. The Greenville Fire Department has received a new lime yellow fire truck. The 1,000 gallon per minute pumper—a Ward LaFrance—was delivered last week at a cost of $43,995. The new Detroit diesel-power truck will replace a 1952 model 750-gallon per minute pumper now on duty at the city's East End substation. A 1956 model 750-gallon per minute pumper stationed at the West End station will be transferred to the East End facility, a 1,000 gallon per minute American LaFrance pumper will be assigned to the West End post and the new pumper will be housed at the city's central station, Chief Ray Smith explained. The 1952 model engine will be sold, he noted. According to the chief, the new lime yellow color "can be seen at night better" than the traditional red truck which, he explained, "appears black at night." Although there are no plans to paint other vehicles now in service with the new color, Chief Smith said that new trucks purchased in the future will probably be lime yellow. The new truck will be placed in service next week, he noted. (Reflector Photo)
