Watergate Prosecutor Jaworski Resigns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski resigned Saturday, saying his decision had nothing to do with Richard Nixon's pardon and that to challenge it in court would amount to "unprofessional conduct."

His departure, planned for several weeks, will not affect the ongoing Watergate cover-up trial—the major prosecution under his leadership.

The 69-year-old Texas lawyer, who took over the demanding job 11 months ago following Nixon's firing of Archibald Cox, said his work was nearly completed and could be wrapped up by someone else.

And he said he felt it would be "intellectually dishonest . . . tantamount to unprofessional conduct" for him to try to undo the unconditional pardon President Ford gave his predecessor, because he is convinced Ford has full legal authority to grant it.

In a letter to Attorney General William B. Saxbe, Jaworski asked that his resignation be accepted effective Oct. 25 and suggested that Deputy Special Prosecutor Henry Ruth be named to succeed him.

LEON JAWORSKI

Jaworski also thanked Saxbe for keeping his promise not to interfere with the work of the special prosecutor's office. He said he would remain available for "consultations" as the Watergate investigations are wrapped up and a final report is written.

"The bulk of the work entrusted to the care of this office having been discharged, I am confident that such of our responsibilities as remain unfulfilled can well be completed under the leadership of another special prosecutor," Jaworski wrote Saxbe.

In a separate letter, he rejected unspecified "suggestions" that he try to prosecute Nixon despite the pardon, saying the Constitution is clear that Ford had the power to do so and that the special prosecutor's charter does not supercede that right.

"For me now to contend otherwise would not only be contrary to the interpretations agreed upon in congressional hearings—it also would be, on my part, intellectually dishonest," Jaworski said.

"Thus, in light of these conclusions, for me to procure an indictment of Richard M. Nixon for the sole purpose of generating a purported court test on the legality of the pardon, would constitute a spurious proceeding in which I had no faith; in fact, it would be tantamount to unprofessional conduct and violative of my responsibility as prosecutor and an officer of the court."

He said he felt obliged to discuss his views on the pardon "to dispel any thought that there may be some relation between my resignation and that issue."

His letters were delivered to Saxbe at midmorning and the White House was informed simultaneously. There was no immediate reaction.

Sources close to Jaworski, who was spending the long holiday weekend in New York, said he had decided "several weaks ago" to resign.

Large Crowd Sees Greenville Bicentennial Parade Saturday

By SUSAN PRICE
Reflector Staff Writer

A majestic black horse, bedecked with silver spangles and flowing blue tassles led the way for the Greenville Bicentennial Parade Saturday.

Glistening in the noonday sun, the horse led the way for the Marine Corps color guard in pre-revolutionary attire, with strains of the Marine Corps-Anthem setting the crowd into cheers.

Mrs. J. B. Spilman, Greenville's First Lady, rode elegantly with a horse and buggy parade.

E. B. Aycock Junior High School put its best foot into the march, winning the two top awards for club floats. the school's spanish club won the top $300 cash award with the eighth grade History class taking the $150 second place prize.

Antique cars, shining and honking loudly, interspersed the various floats.

The Greenville Junior Woman's Club's float-traced the place of women from 1774 with Betsy Ross to 1974 with Judy Neuffer, the first U. S. Navy pilot. Miss Neuffer a hurricane hunter pilot flew up from Jacksonville, Florida, for the parade yesterday.

Also atop the club float was Mrs. Elizabeth Savage, the first woman to graduate from East Carolina University three times. She received a teacher's certificate in 1918, an AB degree in 1928 and a master's degree in 1933.

Mule carts delighted the crowd, and parents beamed as sons and daughters in scout troops passed by.

High school bands from Plymouth, Tarboro, Jacksonville, Farmville Central, Wilson, and Rose even out-did the U. S. Air Force Band from Langley AFB in Virginia.

The past and present were compared with cars and fire fighting equipment.

And as a final note, the present broke through loud and clear as police stopped the parade to let fire trucks through, sirens blasting, to take care of a small blaze a few blocks away.

Montgomery Radio Station Taken In Hail Of Gunfire

By KENDAL WEAVER
Associated Press Writer

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Three black gunmen took over radio station WAPX in a hail of gunfire Saturday that left a white security guard dead. Pleading on the air for a "black revolution," they surrendered after their last hostage made a bold escape.

The city police chief said two other blacks are being sought in the deadly, bizzarre series of events that began when a 78-year-old white man was hacked in the face with a machete and ended with the takeover of the soul music station.

Chief Ed Wright said that the five were black militants who "had boasted that they were going to kill police officers and make a grandstand play in Montgomery."

The trio in the bullet-riddled radio station in downtown Montgomery had at one point cried over the air: "There's a Negro revolution and a black revolution. We want all you niggers to come on down."

Chief Wright said that the elderly man was hacked without provocation and that the five then fled in a car. Police pursued it, rammed it, and the five began running, he said.

Wright said two escaped and the other three, armed with sawed-off shotguns, took over the radio station in a burst of gunfire that killed a guard, M.E.Furr, on a downtown street.

The elderly man slashed with the machete was not immediately identified. Wright said he was undergoing surgery.

The takeover of WAPX ended after two hours of tense stalemate when the black disc jockey, Alphonzo Dixon, scrambled to freedom.

Police said the gunmen had told Dixon to go to the door and hold up a mirror so they could watch the officers. When he reached the door, he burst through it to safety.

A black secretary in the building, Gloria Gilmer, earlier had been lowered to freedom on a fire ladder at an adjoining building after suffering a bullet wound in the takeover. A spokesman at Jackson Hospital said she was in fair condition.

"They just confiscated the air waves . . . They just called on their black brothers to come down and take over this town," the station's general manager, Aovin Dixon, said after watching his son escape.

Wright, blood stains on his shirt and his hand bandaged from a gunshot wound, told newsmen that the three men, their heads shaved, gave Black Muslim names when they were taken into custody.

The elder Dixon said he knew one of the men as "Arthur X." Wright said they were in their mid-20s, were from Montgomery and commonly pass out militant literature on the streets.

He said the two fugitives were considered "armed and extremely dangerous" and that a widespread manhunt for them was underway.

The three who commendeered the air frequency of WAPX broke into the normal soul music format at the black-operated station.

Kissinger Sure Of Agreement

By JOHN F. BARTON

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, arriving here from talks in Egypt, Syria and Jordan, said Saturday he was sure that a Middle East agreement could be worked out between Israel and the Arabs that would benefit both sides.

His plane landed at Ben Gurion airport at 6:55 p.m. after a short flight from Jordan and talks with King Hussein.

"I am confident that the talks I will have with my friend the foreign minister (Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon) and all of my friends in the cabinet will be characterized by frankness and honesty on both sides," Kissinger said at airport welcoming ceremonies.

"I am also positive that we will also come out, as we always have, with an agreement that will be to the benefit of all the people in this area and above all to our friends here in Israel who have suffered more than anybody from the absence of peace."

Earlier, Kissinger flew into the Jordanian port city of Aqaba by helicopter for talks with Hussein at the king's residence there after a side-trip to the ancient city of Petra.

The Secretary was forced to skip a working lunch planning by King Hussein because of a mild case of intestinal flu but was otherwise well, Kissinger's aides said.

As in Cairo and Damascus earlier this week, Kissinger discussed with Hussein the future pattern of Middle East peace negotiations.

18 Gifts

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice president-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller says he made gifts totaling $1,778,878 to 18 present or former public officials or staff members while he was governor of New York.

The former governor also said he had outstanding loans totaling $155,000 to three of the 18.

Rockefeller had previously disclosed gifts and loans to five of the 18, including a gift of $50,000 in 1969 to Henry A. Kissinger, now U.S. secretary of state.

Rockefeller said he made the full list public because confidential information he submitted to Congress and the executive branch was being "leaked piecemeal to the press, causing the compromising of the privacy of many individuals and misleading interpretations of the facts."

Rockefeller said all of the gifts had been "fully reported as required by the Internal Revenue Code" and that he had paid a total of $840,000 in federal and state taxes on the gifts.

Congressional sources in Washington said reports of the gifts prompted a House Judiciary subcommittee to request renewal of an FBI inquiry into Rockefeller's activities to answer questions not covered in initial FBI investigation reports.

Also in Washington, Chairman James B. Allen, D-Ala., of the Senate Rules Committee said:

"I think chances are good the Rules Committee will reopen hearings (on the Rockefeller nomination) after the congressional recess. He's been called on to explain the gifts and we'll have to see what he says."

In a letter to Cannon, Rockefeller said all recipients were "administratively responsible to me...

"We had identical objectives. There was no conflict of interest involved and there was nothing illegal or immoral about either the gifts or the loans."

All Citizens Urged Join Community Development

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The City Council has endorsed an effort to encourage the participation of all local citizen and neighborhood groups in the planned Community Development Program.

City Manager Bill Carstarphen explained, "We seem to have lost some of the close contact between citizens and local government and the representatives they elect."

Citing a rediscovery of the idea of community development, he said that "in the last several years, we have had a number of citizens groups who wanted to get involved" in the planning process of the city.

The city manager explained that city government took a look at the situation and asked, "Are we really providing the opportunity for all citizens to participate?" and "Are we explaining programs and projects to the point where citizens can identify priorities and express their needs?"

Carstarphen observed, "We took a look and found that we have not been doing a very good job in this area."

He said that the Council, in endorsing the effort, asked that four steps be taken in furthering the Citizens Participation Program.

The first step will be to identify all of the potential citizen organizations in Greenville, including civic, fraternal and service clubs, neighborhood organizations, citizens advisory boards, commissions and committees.

Carstarphen said that response to the inital effort to identify all groups has already begun to come in and he urged any organization that has not been contacted to get in touch with the city manager's office or Jesse Harris of the Human Relations Council.

Step two of the program, he continued, will be to disseminate directly to the leadership of all organizations and through the media to the general public specific printed information on the nature, purpose and options of the program, the schedule the city will employ in implementint the program, and when and how all groups will have an opportunity to participate in program development.

The printed information will hopefully be mailed by the first of November, he reported.

Noting that the Council has asked the city staff to begin preparing the essential elements of the program, Carstarphen said that a "grocery list" will be developed to identify present needs. Citizens groups and the general public will then be provided, through printed materials, media coverage and open neighborhood meetings, real opportunities to express their ideas and participate in the selection of planning priorities.

Utilizing both staff proposals and information offered by the citizens, the program will then be presented to the City Council for one or more community wide public hearings, Carstarphen said.

He pointed out that the citizens involvement program will be set up on a three-year time frame of identification of needed projects and programs with emphasis on the first year when specific areas will identified for action.

The program will not end in three years, the city manager continued, but will be a continuing reevaluation and development of new ideas as existing ones are met.

"We want to have our basic schedule ready for the first year and begin our contact with citizens groups early in November," he again emphasized, "and be able to present our grocery list of projects by mid-December." The package of ideas will hopefully be presented to the Council by mid-January.

"We are going to accept, as part of our jobs, the involvement of citizen and neighborhood groups," the city official said. He noted that an "absolute effort" will be made to identify all groups, not just low income, the affluent, East Carolina University related, or any specific area of the society.

The Council has approved a budget of $5,300 for the program to aid in meeting printing costs, cover mailing expenses, media advertising if necessary, costs of maps and visual aids, and other related items.

"We want to emphasize the point that any organization that has not been contacted should identify itself to the city through its chairman," Carstarphen said.

The idea of citizen involvement in city planning is not new, he added, but a renewal of the effort to encourage and foster citizen participation is needed.

Signs Of Moral Decay

HIGH POINT, N. C. (AP)—A week-long hearing by High Point's City Council has produced a wave of sworn allegations that the city police department has ineffective leadership and shows signs of moral decay and deterioration in enforcing the law.

Most of the testimony centers on Police Chief Laurie Pritchett and his administration during the last eight years, especially Pritchett's alleged relationship with High Point businessman Perry T. Hatcher.

Hatcher, who operates a bingo parlor and billiard lounge known as the "Rac'n Cue", has attended each of the daily sessions. Pritchett, who testified at an abbreviated hearing on Sept. 23, has been hospitalized for several days for treatment of hypertension.

Many of the 40 witnesses who testified last week repeatedly attempted to paint a pattern of toleration, if not acceptance, of organized gambling, widespread violation of liquor laws and some prostitution, especially during High Point's big spring and fall furniture markets.

The hearings are being held under a new state law that empowers a city council to issue subpoenas and to compel testimony under oath. They were scheduled after several months of study by a special investigator, Greensboro attorney Luke Wright, appointed by the City Council.

There were indications during the weekend that the hearings will be completed in the middle of the coming week, freeing the council members and others to participate in the fall furniture market starting next weekend.

The hearings were suspended last month after six officers obtained a restraining order. They contended their rights were being violated because they did not have the authority to cross-examine witnesses.

A Superior County judge ruled Sept. 30 that cross-examination privileges should be allowed any officer who believed he had been incriminated by a witness. The judge also limited news coverage of the hearings, prohibiting live radio or television coverage.

Pritchett, who had been police chief in Albany, Ga., before coming to High Point in 1966, has had a controversial career in the North Carolina city. His department was hit by public allegations of a theft ring in 1972, followed by court and civil service commission hearings, and then by a controversial murder case in the same year.

In his testimony Sept. 23 Pritchett said he had met Hatcher in High Point in 1967 or 1968 when he applied for a license to operate the Rac' n Cue.

Pritchett tetified he had heard rumors of gambling at the billiard parlor and at Hatcher's home on Lansdowne Street, but had been unable to get evidence necessary to halt the alleged operation.

"I wanted an affidavit, something to work on. We wanted somebody in there who could testify that blue chips represented so much money and red chips so much. We never got anybody to go in and find out what was going on," he said.

Hatcher cited the self-protection provisions of the Fifth Amendment and declined to testify. Other witnesses testified that he had been linked with Pritchett in Albany, and had had some connections in Pinehurst and Southern Pines before moving to High Point.

Former policeman David Hartley, who now lives in Scotland Neck, testified he was fired after making a personal investigation of alleged gambling at the Rac'n Cue.

"Perry Hatcher wouldn't be in this town if he had not been invited here. He plays the odds. And the odds were that he knew he wasn't going to have any trouble in this town," said Hartley, now an instructor in police science at the Halifax Institute at Scotland Neck.

Another witness, Linda Collins, testified that she had seen chips and money on tables in a back room while she worked at the Rac'n Cue in 1968. She said uniformed policemen had been in the room once when she delivered some cards.

Dallas Spainhour, a former state alcoholic beverage control agent, said he also observed gambling operations at the firm in 1968 and on one occasion had played poker, losing $29. Spainhour said the matter was reported to his superiors, who passed on the information to Pritchett. Nothing was done, Spainhour testified.

Wayne Pike, a former High Point policeman now working as an investigator for the Guilford County public defender's office, said he and a furniture dealer had gone to Hatcher's home in 1970 after receiving an invitation. "There was a bar at the right and a lady making drinks. A girl with long blonde hair was signing. There were two tables of some sort of cards and dice games and there were chips on the table," he testified.s

Pike said he left early out of fear he would be recognized. The next day, Pike said, he showed the invitation to Pritchett.

"He just shoved it under something on his desk. He really didn't ask me anything but he said, 'Don't go back out there. I'll have the vice squad look into it'...Two or three weeks went by and I asked the chief what had happened. He said, 'I have turned it over to the Internal Revenue Service. They can get more serious charges'," Pike testified.

Other witnesses also testified they had witnessed gambling at the Hatcher home and at the Rac'n Cue.

Three Killed When Light Plane Crashed

SAXIS, Va. (AP)—"They're just scattered all over the marsh," said a Coast Guard spokesman of the bodies of a Greenwich, Conn., family killed when their light plane crashed after colliding with a jet fighter plane.

Removal of the remains was delayed Saturday afternoon while the Coast Guard awaited the arrival of Federal Aviation Administration and National Transportation Safety Board investigators.

Axley, a Bank of New York vice president and the pilot, was taking his wife and daughter to visit Mrs. Axley's parents in Georgetown, S.C., when the accident occurred.

The Coast Guard spokesman said the pilot of a New Jersey National Guard F106 jet reported at 8:30 p.m. Friday that he had "hit something in the air" and thought it had been a small plane.

Later, an eyewitness helped lead a Coast Guard helicopter crew to the crash site, located about one mile south of this Eastern Shore fishing community. The plane went down in a marsh area in Pocomoke Sound near the Chesapeake Bay. The area is located just south of the Maryland state line.

The Coast Guard spokesman said the impact of the crash had strewn parts of the three victims' bodies across the marsh area.

A spokesman for Virginia State Police said investigators had to use a helicopter to reach the scene because boats and vehicles were unable to cross the mire.

Axley was a vice president in the loan department of the bank where he had worked for the past 10 years. The Axleys lived in Greenwich, Conn., a wealthy suburban community near New York.

The plane, a four-seat, single engine Piper Commanche 24, was en route from Islip, N.Y., to Georgetown, a coastal town north of Charleston, S.C., where Mrs. Axley's parents live.

The pilot of the F106 was not injured. He landed his plane safely, and the craft sustained only minor damage, the Coast Guard said.

It was not immediately known where the National Guard jet was headed when the accident occurred or where it landed.

U.S. Oil Imports May Stop If Energy-Saving Steps Work

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States might be able to stop importing oil by 1985, but mandatory energy-saving measures would be needed to accomplish the feat, the Federal Energy Administration says.

Outlining preliminary "Project Independence" findings Friday, the FEA estimated that some 2.1 million barrels per day could be saved by 1985 if mandatory controls were imposed.

President Ford called Tuesday for voluntary conservation steps that he said could save one million barrels a day by the end of 1975.

The FEA said that if the government takes no new steps to speed domestic energy production, the nation still would have to import anywhere between 3.5 million and 10.2 million barrels of oil a day in 1985, depending on the price of oil.

Present imports average some 6.5 million barrels a day.

For the short run, the FEA said, U.S. domestic production cannot substantially affect the level of imports.

By 1985, the agency projectee, development of the Naval Petroleum Reserve in northern Alaska could provide 2 million barrels of oil a day; offshore leasing in the Pacific Ocean could provide 1.2 million barrels; development of oil shale could add 750,000 barrels and oil leasing in the Atlantic could provide 500,000 barrels.

It said shale oil, synthetic oil and geothermal power would not be significant energy sources before 1985, while solar energy would come into use in the 1980s and 1990s.

Energy savings equal to 2.1 million barrels a day could be achieved through such requirements as a 20-mile-per gallon fuel-consumption standard for automobiles; standards for home and office insulation, commercial lighting, appliances and power plants; tax credits for improving the energy efficiency of dwellings and commercial buildings and research to improve industrial processes, the FEA said.

First Lady Is Back Home After Surgery For Cancer

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — First Lady Betty Ford is back home with her family and recovering so well from breast cancer surgery that she plans to go to Japan with the President in mid-November.

Meanwhile, though, a White House spokesman said the First Lady's schedule will be restricted during a three-to-four week recuperative period.

Mrs. Ford was released from Bethesda Naval Medical Center on Friday afternoon, 13 days after she underwent a radical mastectomy for removal of her right breast, some chest muscles and lymph nodes from the underside of her right arm.

Mrs. Ford's recovery has been described by her doctors as excellent; they reported she gained 2½ pounds in the past week and has regained excellent use of her right arm after her surgery.

As she stepped from the helicopter on the White House lawn, she was greeted with a hug and kisses by daughter Susan.

On hand to welcome her were her daughter Susan, about 150 White House staff members, and the new family dog, acquired in her absence. When Mrs. Ford knelt down to greet the golden retriever, named Liberty, the dog responded by licking her face.

ECU Gets Grant To Study Gnarled And Twisted Trees

By GEORGE A. THREEWITTS
ECU News Bureau

Along North Carolina Outer Banks is a unique and rare array of maritime forests. For travelers, the forests are a picturesque setting of gnarled trees with twisted branches that crouch grotesquely along the ocean roadsides. But for biologists at East Carolina University the deformed vegetation is more of a puzzle than a picture.

Why do the plants grow like that?

"No living thing in its right mind would stand up tall and straight when the wind and ocean get to acting up," is the way a few of the Outer Bankers explain the crooked limbs.

They say it is only natural to lean your body over when you are outside during one of the frequent Atlantic "blows".

"The trees have been twisted and whipped around by the wind so much that they must naturally grow that way," they say.

But Dr. Vincent Bellis, associate professor of Biology at East Carolina University is certain that it is salt that's gnarling the trees and he and the ECU Biology Department has just been awarded a $4,000 grant from the Marine Science Council-UNC to find out why.

"Of course we know that the wind picks up salt and minerals from the ocean and deposits them on the beach," says Bellis.

"We can see the effect of these minerals in the trees and vegetation growth. We are going to study how things grow under the stress of this salt spray," he said.

The grant also calls for the biologists to study the effects salt may have on the quality of the ground water supply on the Outer Banks.

Bellis says that his preliminary data indicates that the precipitation exceeds the rate of salt input and that the salt is most likely diluted before going into the water supply.

But the scientists' main task is to find out how salt acts to put knots in the trees. And even if they are successful, their research will never dilute the reality of crippling Atlantic winds and tales told by the "old salts" of the storied Banks.

Most of the North Carolina Outer Banks are protected by the Cape Hatteras National Seashore Park, a federal preserve. The Banks are a more than 200-mile long chain of windswept barrier isles.

Sell Utilities

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)— The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill's trustees Friday rejected a consumer group's effort to buy the university's electric and telephone utilities.

By an 11-1 vote, the trustees accepted a recommendation of a special study commission that the utilities be sold to Duke Power Co. and Southern Bell.

A number of Chapel Hill area consumers have protested the sale proposal. Through the town governments of Chapel Hill and Carrboro, consumers formed a local corporation which has offered to bid for the utilities.

The commission, chaired by former State Rep. John Church of Henderson, reported to the trustees that Duke and Southern Bell would pay about $35 million for the utilities.

The consumer group pledged to pay an equal price. But commission member Sen. Ralph Scott, D-Alamance, said the board was not convinced the consumers had proper financial backing.

The commission now will negotiate contracts with the companies for the sale. If approved by the trustees, the matter would then go before the Council of State and the state Utilities Commission.

The consumer group hasn't been shut out entirely, though. The possibility remains that the Consumers Utilities Corp. could purchase the town water supply.

At the suggestion of Charles R. Jonas Jr. of Charlotte, the trustees directed the commission to draw up two contracts on the water sale. One would be for Duke and the other for a local group.

Inflation Efforts Pushed

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration is pushing ahead with a two-fold effort to talk prices under control while Congress begins work on Ford's legislative remedies for inflation.

An agency set up to monitor inflation held its first formal meeting Friday and selected its first targets: food processing and distribution, medical care, sugar and antifreeze.

Meanwhile, Ford meets today with his new 18-member Citizen Action Committee to Fight Inflation.

The President plans to spell out in a speech Tuesday in Kansas City what he wants Americans to do voluntarily to conserve energy and to fight inflation.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability labeled food processing and distribution "high priority." Food prices have been a leading ingredient in the current 11.2 per cent inflation rate and are expected to increase more rapidly as a result of disappointing harvests.

"The council will also devote a major effort to the costs and prices of medical care," the agency said. Medical care now costs 12.8 per cent more than a year ago.

Antifreeze, which is expected to be in short supply this winter, costs $5 to $6 per gallon, compared with $2 last winter. And sugar prices have tripled in the last year, the Commerce Department estimates.

The council has no powers to enforce restraint in wage and price increases, but it can coax and cajole through public hearings or private conferences.

On Capitol Hill, the House set a $300 billion spending target for the current fiscal year, as requested by Ford in his economic address last Tuesday.

However, there was little hope that the new goal would be met.

"We're simply going through a pre-election exercise," said Rep. Elford Cederberg, R-Mich.

The resolution, approved 329-20 and sent to the Senate, has no legal effect.

The budget submitted last January projected a $305 billion spending limit.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon defended Ford's anti-inflation package in testimony before the Joint Economic Committee.

Simon said consumers will benefit from increased incentives for business investment because higher investment will lead to greater production and lower prices.

He called the President's proposed 5 per cent income tax surcharge on family incomes above $15,000 one part of a "balanced, comprehensive and integrated package of economic policy."

Healthier And Happier Now

PETERSBURG, Ill. (AP) — Two years after trading suburbia for country living, the Alfred Koellings are convinced that they are a healthier and happier family.

They make their own catsup from homegrown tomatoes and knit sweaters from the wool of their own sheep.

They say their home among the wooded, rolling central Illinois hills represents the realization of a dream and an opportunity for them to be a real family — doing things together.

"We got awfully tired of subdivision living," said Koelling, 45, who drives 21 miles each day to Springfield, where he is curator of botany at the Illinois State Museum.

"We still sometimes pinch ourselves to see if it is real."

The children, 10-year-old Geoffrey and 8-year-old Jill, ride a bus 3½ miles to school in Petersburg. Koelling's wife, Charlene, 37, teaches science and is librarian at Greenview school, about eight miles away.

The center of the family's interest is their 15-acre parcel of land— too hilly for farming but just right for country living.

The Koellings' three sheep — part of a menagerie that includes chickens, ducks, geese, cats, a pony, dog, goat and a turtle — are sheared each spring.

Then members of the family clean and card the raw wool, spin it into thread, twist it into yarn, dye it and knit their own sweaters.

The kids help gather onion skins, tulip tree leaves, cocklebburrs, marigolds and black walnuts to make colorful dyes.

"The word is satisfaction," said Koelling. "You start with raw materials that are basically useless and you manipulate them into something. You do the whole thing and it's a whole lot of fun."

The family maintains a garden and picks food for freezing and canning, which helps the family budget in inflationary times, Mrs. Koelling said.

Ordered To Jail

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP)— The woman accused of murder in the slaying of a Beaufort County jailer last August has been ordered to begin serving a 7 to 10-year prison term for breaking, entering and larceny.

Attorneys for Joan Little said they plan to appeal the order of Superior Court Joshua James which means that she cannot be freed on bond while awaiting her trial for the slaying of 62-year-old Clarence Alligood.

In ordering Miss Little to begin serving the prison term, James said a required statement of intent to appeal to the state Court of Appeals had not been served within the required time and that a motion for appeal was not filed.

Miss Little was being held in jail awaiting appeal of the breaking and entering conviction when she escaped last August 27th. Following her escape, Alligood's partially clothed body was found in her cell. She surrendered to state authorities in Raleigh eight days after her escape.

Propriety Questioned

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is defending the propriety of representing former President Richard M. Nixon and other Watergate figures in multimillion-dollar civil suits stemming from government wiretapping.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., questioned the practice Friday and urged Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe to disclose the full policy to the public.

Mondale said he "would be deeply troubled" if government lawyers defended Nixon in civil suits arising from the same conduct which led to impeachment proceedings.

Nixon's lawyer, Herbert J. Miller, notified department officials Friday that the former president wishes government attorneys to continue defending him in suits brought by actress Jane Fonda, former National Security Council aide Anthony Lake, the Socialist Workers party and two other individuals.

"Mr. Nixon does wish us to continue the representation and we will do it," said Deputy Asst. Atty. Gen. Kevin Maroney.

"In each of these cases, we would get in or stay in regardless of whether we were representing a particular defendant," he told reporters.

If Nixon had refused the offer, the department would have participated as a friend of the court "to insure the on-going interests of the government," he added.

In the five cases, Nixon is being sued both as an individual and as a former president. The department will represent him in both capacities, Maroney said.

The federal Treasury as well as Nixon himself may be held liable for damages if the government loses, he acknowledged.

Maroney said the department would not represent the private interests of any Watergate figure unless the individual agrees to permit relevant information developed in the case to be turned over to the criminal division and Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Nixon was not asked to sign waivers, Maroney said. "He has amnesty," an unconditional pardon from President Ford, he noted.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Laurence H. Silberman said that the department will not represent a former official unless government lawyers conclude the individual acted legally and constitutionally.

In one case, the department is representing only Nixon, although White House plumbers Egil Krogh, G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt Jr. also are defendants.

The department declined to represent those three because Jaworski was prosecuting them on criminal charges in the incident, Maroney said.

GAY CAUCUS

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Lutherans involved in the homosexual world — either through ministry to or participation in —have formed a caucus to support the cause of homosexuals in the church.

"Lutherans Concerned for Gay People," which claims ties with homosexuals in all three of the country's largest Lutheran bodies, brings to nearly a dozen, the number of gay caucuses in various church groups.

Revived Four-Laning Welcome

The long awaited four-laning from Greenville to Washington on N.C. 30-33 has been revived and made a part of the Department of Transportation's seven-year plan.

Never mind that there is an election approaching, we are delighted that this project has been re-instated. We have long said that joining all Eastern cities together by four-lane highways is essential to the economic development of our area. To us, the four-laning of the Greenville-Washington highway has long been essential to economic development and improvement of quality of life in both communities.

It is regrettable that the dual laning was dropped from highway plans when the seven-year road program was originally drafted by the Holshouser administration. Considerable survey work had gone on at that time and the project could have moved well along by now. As it is, it will be 1981 before right-of-way acquisition, which puts the project's completion years away.

In the meantime four-laning from the Eastern bypass for about $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles eastward will soon be underway. Some four-laning has been done to the west from Washington. Now we can hope eventually the distance in between will be dual laned so that we will have adequate access between Greenvillle and Washington. Thus we are making some progress.

Somebody Should Tell Them What's In Store

We read the Soviet Union is gearing up to enter the "Automobile Age."

Somebody should warn the people that the price tag is astronomical and the problems and frustrations appear unending.

For the USSR, it means a highway-building program (with dissatisfaction from all sides) that is almost a case of starting from scratch. Then there's the creating of gasoline station networks, garage systems, rest stops, highway and special traffic police organizations. . .a zillion road signs, road maps, expanded licensing procedures, accessory shops and innumerable other requisites.

Still, if the Russian car-owner is anything at all like his American counterpart, he is probably going to agree the new life-style is worth the price.

Miner Strike Price

By EDWARD McHATE

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — With the United States relying more on coal for its future energy needs, the United Mine Workers of America (UMWA) is bargaining for a position of strength in its Washington, D. D., contract talks with the nation's soft coal operators' association.

The UMWA realizes the United States cannot afford an extended miners' strike when its current contract expires Nov. 12. Thus, the union sees the energy crisis as an opportunity to substantially upgrade not only wages but also working conditions and other fringe benefits given Americans employed in one of the nation's most dangerous occupations.

"Industry spokesmen talk of miners earning $50 a day, as though this was some magic figure," the union said. "In fact, fewer than 10 per cent of our members earn as much as $50 a day in straight wages. And even for them, this kind of money doesn't last very long or go very far."

For instance, the UMWA says the underground operator of a continuous mining machine in 1973 earned $45.75 a day or about $10,400 a year before taxes. After deductions, the union said, he earned about $8,350.

Many U. S. union members — teamsters, teachers, journalists, steel workers, textile employes —would be outraged at being paid such salaries while exposed to similar risks.

But higher salaries are not the only major 1974 improvements being sought by the UMWA.

"Coal miners need more than two weeks (vacation) to recuperate from a year of working in the mines," the union proposals insist. "In two weeks, a man is lucky to get some of the dust out of his throat (he will never get it out of his lungs), and some of the kinks out of his back."

The UMWA wants a guaranteed four week vacation for all employes with one or more years of continuous employment.

The union also wants to add five additional paid vacations to the nine now observed by UMWA members —the day after Thanksgiving, Christmas Eve, Good Friday, the birthday of UMWA cofounder John L. Lewis and a day commemorating the memory of slain union reformer Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski.

Also high on the list of UMWA priorities are more adequate company maintained access roads and parking lots at mine locations; a group automobile insurance program;

Agriculture's Big Role

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — At a time when industrial growth and announcements of new or expanded plants win public attention, it's well for Tar Heels to remember: agriculture is growing in importance to the state.

Recent figures covering 1973 farm commodities sales shows North Carolina ranking among the top 10 states in the nation in almost half of the major commodities produced.

In three products, North Carolina ranks first nationally: tobacco, sweet potatoes, and forest products; and is second to Georgia in peanuts.

But there are some surprises on the list. You hear a lot about the great corn producing states of the Midwest; North Carolina ranks in ninth place nationally for corn.

Some of the high production items go hand in hand with processing plants already, but one particular product for which there has been a lot of interest is grapes. The state ranks 10th nationally in grape production, leading many experts to serious study of the prospects of wine manufacturing in the state.

Both soil and climate here are considered by many experts to most nearly equal those of the famous wine producing regions of France and Italy.

Other top farm products in which North Carolina ranks in the national top 10 are turkeys, eggs, broilers, apples, and soybeans.

The N.C. Crop Reporting Service reports that farmers received $2.38 billion for farm goods marketed in 1973, a new record.

No Contract

The country-boy nature of most North Carolinians will show up from time to time, as it did the other day for John Morrisey, lawyer and executive director of the N.C. Association of County Commissioners.

At a meeting of the Law and Order Committee where grant applications were being considered, David Jones, secretary of corrections, opposed funding an agency to make a film of the juvenile corrections system on grounds he was already making a film in his department.

Morrisey backed that suggestion: "When you already have what appears to be a successful in-house project underway, I can see no need for an out-house project."

Been to School?

The special task force reported on "Channels for Changing Secondary Schools" provoked anticipated debate from members of the State Board of Education, and those who led the task force repeated their belief that statewide debate on the many controversial recommendations should follow, and prove healthy.

From all the discussion at a recent meeting of the board, however, the most impressive observations came from Mildred Strickland, a member of the board and school librarian in Smithfield.

Times have changed so rapidly, she observed, that the world inside the average school doesn't come close to resembling the world outside.

She suggests a visit to observe those dramatic changes inside the schools where young men, old enough to vote and serve in the military — true adults under the Constitution — must get a pass to go to the bathroom, and where girls who face the real work issues of abortions can't even decide for themselves that they want an ice cream bar at lunchtime.

The board did not endorse wholeheartedly the task force report, which contained such debate-provoking ideas as experimenting with lowering the compulsory attendance age to 14," eliminating report cards, establishing student "Bills of Rights," and maning adult advocates to represent students, but rather agreed that major change is needed and the report is a step in that direction.

South Boston

(Greensboro Daily News)

This is the fourth week of a federal school desegregation program in Boston being enforced, by court order, through busing. It is also the fourth week of bitter protest and violence nurtured not by extremists or "outside agitators," as one AP story reported, but by the white citizens of South Boston, a predominantly Irish-American section of the city.

Yet when 600 whites form a human chain to block the passage of buses full of black children, as they did Monday; when a black man going to pick up his daughter from school is pulled from his car and beaten by an angry white mob; when police attempting to restore order are beaten by citizens; when individuals, again and again, are attacked by vigilantes out of indiscriminate rage — when all this and more happens in just a few days, the disgrace is not Boston's alone.

It is tempting, here in the South, to call Boston's white citizens hyprocrites, to condemn their unwillingness to take what they were so willing to dish out to southerners ten years ago; it is ultimately a vindictive response to a situation in which righteousness has no place. No region has a claim on rectitude, and none on the behavior which characterizes the white community in South Boston today.

There are few people in the United States who believe cross-district busing to achieve racial balance is a panacea; it is a major irritant to social harmony. It is, however, the law of the land. The Mayor of Boston recognizes this, as do many others who may not believe in busing, and he is doing his best to minimize the violence and soften the pain and mitigate the injustice which will inevitably be felt by the families of children who are being moved to other parts of the city while children from elsewhere are moved in.

After South Boston, northerners and southerners should have the wisdom to prevent wrong-headedness from becoming bloodshed.

The INSIDE REPORT

Chickens Home To Roost

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The Greek government has quietly withdrawn some of its top military officers from North Atlantic Treaty (NATO) headquarters in Brussels, one more indication of how seriously the Karamanlis government views anti-American sentiment now sweeping Greece.

Facing the first parliamentary election on Nov. 17 since the military coup d'etat of 1967, the new civilian government of Prime Minister Constantine Karamanlis is torn between conflicting political realities.

The merest fragment of public display of pro-American sentiment could boomerang, giving the Greek left a dangerous opening that Andreas Papandreou would be quick to exploit. Karamanlis dealt with this hard political fact by pulling Greece out of the military organization of NATO. Now he has followed up by withdrawing some of the 400-old Greek officers from their regular military billets in Brussels, Naples and other NATO commands.

But the domestic political demands for anti U. S. actions raise the gravest future problems for Greece. Friendship with the West, and particularly the U. S., is absolutely essential for Greece in the long run, as a glance at the map proves. Greece is bordered by three Communist states to the north and by muscle-flexing Turkey on the east.

Karamanlis and his foreign minister, the astute George Mavros, along with most other leading Greek politicians of the center and right, fully understand that fact. But despite strong pressure from the U. S., they are unable to impede the move toward what looks like a form of dangerous neutrality for fear that the anti-American currents now sweeping Greece would pull them under. Accordingly, rational diplomacy dictated by long-term Greek security needs has been inundated by short-term domestic politics. The foundation for this was built by Washington's long love affair with the hated military dictatorship.

A case in point was the absolutely futile effort by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger last week to enlist sub rosa Greek support against the then-pending congressional ban on U. S. military assistance to Turkey.

Conferring at his own request at the Plaza Hotel in Manhattan last week with Mavros, Kissinger explained that the effect of a congressionally-imposed Turkish aid ban was predictable: it would make the Turks dig in their heels against U. S. mediation efforts to remove Turkish troops from Cyprus and return part of Turkey's Cyprus conquest to Greek Cypriots. Thus, it was in the self-interest of Athens to keep the U. S. on good terms with Turkey.

Mavros was stunned. "That," he told Kissinger, "is not something for a Greek to do."

Indeed, far from discouraging Greek sympathizers in the U. S. Congress from voting against the ban on aid to Turkey, top Greek diplomats in the U. S. encouraged it. One active promoter of the aid ban was the consul-general in the influential Greek consulate in San Francisco, who quietly spread the word to friendly Congressmen: stop American aid to Turkey, no matter what the impact on Cyprus.

In short, the political imperatives in Athens on the eve of the parliamentary election far outweigh the long-range necessity of gradually restoring the Athens-Washington link. No Greek leader caught secretly lobbying Congress to vote against the Turkish aid-ban could be elected sewer inspector in a provincial Greek village.

Strength For Today

SKEPTICISM

A friend of mine recently had something to say about skepticism which deserves quotation in full.

"There is no such thing as skepticism. People are divided into two classes—believers and non-believers. There is no middle ground.

"By way of illustration, imagine that a man is lying across a railraod track. He either believes that a train will come or will not. If, after thinking the matter over, he decides that before long a freight is going to come barreling down the line, he will get off the track. If he is certain that the line has been abandoned, he may stay on the tracks.

"The same thing is true of people with reference to their religion. If they believe that life ends up in a cosmic settlement called judgment day, they will do something about it. On the other hand, if they don't believe in judgment day, they will drift along. The people who refuse to regard life as an issue upon which depends their eternity are not skeptical; they are unbelievers."

Few New Words From Wall St.

By JOSH FITZHUGH
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Words, like fortunes, are made and lost on Wall Street.

Gone for now are the words of the heady years of the past, when go-go funds were run by swingers and gunslingers looking for smart money investments in high flyers, glamours, yo-yo stocks or stocks in the second tier of the Nifty Fifty.

But Wall Street's penchant for creating new words, phrases and jokes seems to have declined with the Dow Jones industrial average this year. And about the only new phrase to come out of the Street in recent months is gloomy: double-digit inflation.

"When things are easy in a big bull market, you get more humor," says Eldon Grimm, a veteran of the Street who's been around long enough to know. "Now it's hard to come by."

"I don't think people have the time to think about these things," says Peter Wyckoff, author of "The Language of Wall Street." "They're just too worried."

Each profession has its code words, from banking to short order cookery, and Wall Street still has at least its share.

Blue chips and widow-and-orphan stocks have been demeaned and war babies, defense stocks, rejected. All were caught in the claws of the most powerful bear market since the '30s.

Bull and bear are the Street's best known symbols. They refer to the way a bull thrusts his head up in a fight while a bear grapples and wrestles his opponent down.

From time to time, these concepts have been related to creation of illegal bull traps, bear polls and bear raids, in which bears join forces to force down the price of a stock, only to buy it back at a profit.

Also illegal are bucket shops, run by bucketteers who theoretically execute customers' orders and make money when the client loses. Painting the tapemaking trades just to get a company's name on the ticker is out, but investors can still put their money in pups, cats and dogs.

You can sell short or go long, straddle or swing or take a short against the box. The market can swim, be sick, sleep, be lazy or fall out of bed. It can leave you without a shirt or taking a bath.

Quick action on trading floors has created nicknames for some of the best known companies.

United States Steel is Big X, from its ticker tape symbol. Bethlehem Steel is Bessie, McDonald's Corp. is Hamburger, After Six is Tux. Dome Petroleum is Dump and Buttes Oil & Gas is Bingo.

Like words, there are phrases and sayings.

"He who sells what isn't his'n, buys it back or goes to prison," goes the one about short selling — selling borrowed stock on the theory that you can buy it back later at a profit.

"That's a lot of baloney," says broker Grimm.

PRINCETON, N. J.—Present indications are that a record low turnout will be recorded in the coming November elections for Congress.

Only 42 per cent of the public express "a lot" or "some" interest in the upcoming elections, a drop of 7 percentage points since a comparable time in the last off-year elections of 1970. In that election, only 43 per cent of the electorate went to the polls to vote for members of Congress.

Traditionally, a low voter turnout has been of greater concern for the Democrats than for the GOP, since those who don't vote are more likely to be Democrats than Republicans. A low turnout, however, could be a problem for the GOP this year since in some elections at the height of the Watergate controversy, the Republican voter turnout was lower than that of the Democrats.

Here is the question asked in 1970 as well as in the latest survey to determine interest in the election:

"How much thought have you given to the coming November election— quite a lot or only a little?"

Following is a comparison of the latest results and those recorded during the same period of the 1970 campaign:

Interest In Coming Election

| | Sept. 25-28, 1970 | Sept. 27-30, 1974 |
|---|---|---|
| A lot - Some | 49% | 42% |
| Little - None | 51 | 58 |

In the past, a higher percentage of Republicans have been registered to vote than Democrats. In the present survey this amounts to 5 percentage points.

Young voters today continue to show much greater apathy toward voting than do people in older age groups as the following figures reveal:

Registered Voters By Age Group

| | Yes, Registered | No, Not Registered | Don't Know |
|---|---|---|---|
| 18-24 years | 44% | 56% | * |
| 25-29 years | 59 | 39 | 2 |
| 30-49 years | 75 | 23 | 2 |
| 50 years & over | 84 | 15 | 1 |

(*Less than 1 per cent)

Here is the question asked to determine voter registration in the country:

"Is your name now recorded in the registration book of the precinct or election district where you now live?"

Reported below is the percentage of major population groups who say they are registered as of the first part of September:

Registered Voters

| | Yes | No | Don't Know |
|---|---|---|---|
| NATIONAL | 72% | 27% | 1% |
| Men | 71 | 28 | 1 |
| Whites | 73 | 26 | 1 |
| Non-whites | 65 | 33 | 2 |
| Republicans | 80 | 19 | 1 |
| Democrats | 75 | 24 | 1 |
| Independents | 62 | 36 | 2 |

A Conservative View
Left And Right Stood As One On Emergencies

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

It is a truism of political science that "right" and "left" cannot be measured horizontally across a band of colored chips. Ideologies march around a circle, and now and then they meet. Right and Left met in the Senate Monday afternoon.

The issue had to do with the emergency powers of persidents. For more years than I can remember, this has been a favorite rallying cry of my friends in the right-wing redoubts. In season and out, they have been warning that some president—any president—would invoke a long-forgotten Executive Order, clap us all in concentration camps, declare martial law, and assume dictatorial powers. It all seems a little implausible, but it kept their juices flowing.

By one of those conjunctions of political philosophy, the same prospect alarmed liberals also. The situation especially alarmed Maryland's Charles McC. Mathias and Idaho's Frank Church, two senators for whom my conservative brothers seldom speak a kindly word. They normally stand 180 degrees removed from such sturdy warriors as Goldwater, Thurmond and Tower. But this past week, Left and Right stood as one.

Mathias and Church last year bacame co-chairmen of a bipartisan select committee on emergency powers. As their investigation went forward, they became more apprehensive about what they found. The nation has been in a formal, official and perhaps lawful state of emergency for more than 40 years, since Franklin Roosevelt declared the bank holiday of 1933. We have been in three other states of emergency also.

The two senators sought help from a Air Force computer. They stuffed the computer with the United States Code and programmed the machine to respond to such words as "emergency" and "crisis." To their amazement, they discovered that Congress had authorized successive presidents to exercise emergency powers in some 470 areas. As a matter of law, the situation was precisely as conservative Cassandras had said.

For one example, the computer turned up Title 47, Section 606(c), which authorizes a presient, whenever he declares a state of public peril or disaster, to suspend radio and television broadcasting. The section is not quite that broadly drawn—it apparently reflects a fear that broadcasting stations might provide navigational aid for enemy bombers or submarines—but the authority is broad enough to provide for drastic suspension of communications.

The industrious computer disgorged hundreds of other statutes having to do with industry, agriculture, transportation and the courts. Citing a national emergency, a president could freeze bank accounts, close stock exchanges, and institute martial law. The committee staff collected all these references, compiled five volumes of hearings, and concluded that some remedial action had to be taken.

The Senate took that action on Monday. Without a dissenting vote, it approved a National Emergencies Act. One year after the bill becomes law, the four existing states of emergency would be abolished. Future declarations of emergency would require congressional consent, and no emergency could continue for more than six months without renewed congressional approval. Every action taken by a president under emergency powers would have to be published in the Federal Register. At present, as the Church-Mathias committee found, publication of executive decisions is "clearly a result of the president's own discretion."

On the House side, Peter Rodino, chairman of House Judiciary, has introduced a companion bill. This late in the session, it is doubtful that action can be completed on a public law, but the matter will be revived in January. President Ford supports the Church-Mathias approach, and it seems unlikely that meanwhile he will invoke the forgotten Seed and Forage Act of 1861 in order to wage unauthorized wars around the globe.

The Senate bill strikes a wise balance, in my own view, between the too little and the too much. The measures recognizes that a cumbersome Congress cannot run the country in a period of genuine emergency. But it recognizes also that presidential power must always be restrained. This is what Southern conservatives used to call the Sound Doctrine. It remains sound, one is pleased to observe, even when it is propounded by Mathias and Church.

Ford's Anti-Inflation Effort Is At Mercy Of Reluctant Congress

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

On doing something about inflation, President Ford is looking up a rough and formidable hill—Capitol Hill, as it is commonly known.

The trouble is that too many members of the national legislature, Senators and Representatives alike, put a high premium on the things that make inflation... such as deficit spending and privileged status for big special interest voting groups.

They promise these things to win their seats, vote them into law and then defend them, no matter what. Congressional wisdom is that you don't keep your seat by taking things away from people, but only by handing things out.

Thus, the reaction to Ford's economic program should be no surprise. The Democratic majority joined in cheering Ford, as President, but sat on its hands as he unfolded the steps Congress should take.

And this was at a time when national confidence needed a boost. An hour before Ford took his program to Congress the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation declared big Franklin National Bank, New York, insolvent. This was inflation's first bank victim.

Actually, what Ford asked of Congress was moderate—a somewhat soft bullet to bite. This, of course, makes Capitol Hill's "yes, but" reaction all the more disappointing.

The $300-billion spending ceiling he wanted came to nothing more than a "stop" sign on expenditures, since they are around that level. But it would delay and in some cases, kill a lot of spending which has been voted for the future.

The tax increase proposed certainly was on the modest side. It would cost a few billions and would be a bargain if it did no more than slow the rate of price rise. Right now, inflation is at an annual rate of 16 percent. That's a tremendous "tax" on every dollar of income and savings, too. By comparison the extra 5 percent on tax bills asked for taxpayers above the hardship level is tiny.

The proposals intended to expand and improve the nations production machinery fell with a dull thud, despite the wide agreement that one of the greatest needs of the day is an increase in the amount of capital flowing into the economy. Congress has come to regard such incentives as "business favoritism", to be shunned politically.

Without action, cooperation, by Congress there is a limit on what the White House can do. The Democratic majority is well aware of this. There's no mistake that Ford can be kept in deep trouble for the next two years, if Congress so wishes.

Ford can try on his own what Nixon tried: refuse to spend all that Congress appropriates. This brought impeachment threats against Nixon long before there was any Watergate. But now, Ford is on record on this issue. He can't very well hold back spending without first asking Congress' permission.

What this means is, that without cooperation from the Hill, monetary policy remains the major anti-inflation weapon. Credit has been tight most of this year, with interest rates driven to new highs. Right now, there is a bit of an easing. But it can't continue, unless other anti-inflationary forces are brought into play, as Ford proposed.

The Federal Reserve had gone as far as it could go without a "crunch" which might put other banks and some big borrowers over the brink. It has opted for a breather which will give both borrowers and lenders a chance to improve their liquidity. If necessary, Reserve Chairman Burns will hit the brake again.

Everyone, especially members of Congress, would do well to remember the President's warning:

"I say to you with all sincerity that inflation, our present public enemy, will — unless it is whipped—destroy our country, our homes, our liberties, our property, and finally our national pride as surely as any well-armed wartime enemy."

headquarters is simply the newest signal. Having heard American pledges for over two months that Turkey would be glad to give up some of its Cyprus conquest once talks started (pledges wholly unredeemed), the Greek government continues to advertise itself as anti-American.

There is no hope that this will change between now and the mid-November election, and little expectation that it could change soon thereafter. Likewise, the hostility for Turkey so vividly expressed in Congress over the aid-ban threatens political retaliation against Washington there, too.

With an outstanding IOU debt to Russia for its acquiescence in the invasion of Cyprus last July, Turkey may find it harder than before to deny any Soviet request for overflight privileges in a future Middle Eastern war, particularly with the U. S. Congress so virulently anti-Turkey.

Public Forum

To the editor:

On behalf of the Greenville Jay-C-Ettes and many handicapped people, I would like to think the citizens of Greenville and Pitt County for their cooperation in making our candy sale a success. This is our money-making project of the year. The money enables us to supply cookies and milk for crippled children's clinic, pay doctors' bills, transport children to and from doctors' visits or therapy, buy medicines, supply wheelchairs, crutches, food, clothing, and on occasion pay the rent and oil bills for the handicapped of Pitt County. Without you none of this would have been possible.

This year we had to pay more for our candy but we still offered it to you for only $1 per bag, because many of you were aware of this and brought three, four, five, and even more bags of candy. For this we are very appreciative.

It is only because of you that our organization can function in its purpose of aid to the handicapped of Pitt County. Once again, to each of you we say thank you for your support.

A Maid Should Make The Perfect Marriage

As soon as we can afford a maid, my husband and I should have a perfect marriage.

I hate housework. I always have. When I was a kid, instead of washing the dishes, I licked them clean. My idea of cleaning up my room was throwing everything into the closet and nailing the door shut.

I hated housework so much that I almost didn't get married. When my husband proposed, I said, "If God had meant me to do housework, I'd have been born in an apron."

"I didn't ask you to be my maid," he said. "I asked you to marry me."

"It's the same thing," I declared.

"It is not the same thing," he insisted. "And as an example of my good intentions, I promise that I'll share the housework with you."

"Are you some kind of radical?" I asked suspiciously.

"Of course not," he answered. "Since we'll both be working, sharing the housework is only fair."

"Can I have that in writing?" I asked.

"Don't you trust me enough to take my word for it?" he countered indignantly.

I trusted him. I was DUMB.

The first six months of our marriage, we did share the housework. I cooked, washed the dishes, vacuumed, cleaned the bathroom, dusted and mopped the floors. He shined the handle on the refrigerator door and dusted the television's ON knob.

The second six months we decided he should do the vacuuming and dishwashing. Rather I decided. Every Saturday morning I would sneak out of bed and handcuff him to the vacuum cleaner.

But even this didn't work. The dust on the carpets was so thick at the end of the year that we had to shovel paths to the doors.

Finally, one Saturday morning I confronted him. "Somehow, I don't think our little arrangement is working," I ventured.

"What arrangement?" he said, as he gulped down the last of his banana and turned up the volume on "Scooby-doo, Where Are You?"

"The arrangement by which you promised me that you'd share the housework."

"I do share the housework," he said. "Don't I wash the dishes regularly?"

"Once a month is not regularly," I asserted, deliberately moving in front of the TV screen. "If you don't get busy, the Health Department is going to condemn our kitchen."

"Well, I shouldn't have to wash the dishes when you don't cook," he answered defensively.

"How can I cook? I used up my last clean pot two weeks ago."

GAIL MICHAELS

Seeing that I did not intend to yield, he tried a different tactic. "Aren't you ashamed?" he lectured. "You'd thwart my intellectual development just because of a few dirty dishes."

"I doubt that missing Atom Ant will seriously hinder your intellectual development," I said sarcastically. "Besides, you can bone up on your math by counting the dishes as you wash them. I'll guarantee that the number will surpass 200, and 200 is not 'a few.'"

"If I do all those dishes, I'll get dishpan hands," he argued.

"If you don't do all those dishes, you're going to get dishpan head," I threatened.

"All right, all right," he muttered and shuffled to the kitchen. He turned on the tap and silently surveyed the mounds of dishes. "Whew," he signed, "a man's work is never done."

Large Field Of Democratic Hopefuls Begin Early Campaigns

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Earlier and in greater numbers than ever before, Democratic presidential hopefuls are campaigning across the nation this fall in an effort to build strength for the 1976 election.

Though a large field had seemed likely, it became assured with the recent withdrawal of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., a controversial frontrunner who had by far the greatest support — and opposition — among Democrats.

Three senators — Henry M. Jackson of Washington, Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota and Lloyd M. Bentsen of Texas — and Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona are all-but-declared candidates.

They have been out this fall working for Democratic candidates while trying to improve their own positions.

A governor — Jimmy Carter of Georgia — and a senator — Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia — have indicated interest. A former governor — Terry Sanford of North Carolina — and a former senator — Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma — also may run. So might Mayor Kevin H. White of Boston.

And the contest is clouded by the likely entry of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, who has barely stopped running for the Presidency for a decade despite repeated failure and the 1972 assassination attempt that left him paralyzed from the waist down.

More than two years before the 1976 election, however, the most crucial aspect of the looming Democratic free-for-all is the uncertain impact of the party's new delegate selection rules.

All candidates agree the proportional representation system, which guarantees delegates to any candidate with at least 15 per cent of a congressional district's vote, will keep more candidates in the race longer and virtually assure a wide-open convention.

Neither party has had one since the 1940 Republican convention nominated Wendell Wilkie on the sixth ballot. But the end of "winner-take-all" primaries will prevent any candidates from snaring the huge blocks of delegates that have in recent years assured victory in advance of the convention.

"The thing is so iffy now there is no way of trying to project what will happen," said Jackson, rated by some national Democratic leaders as the closest thing now to a front-runner.

Besides the serious candidates, party leaders believe there may be a revival of "favorite son" candidates with the support of a single state, regional hopefuls and representatives of other key blocks.

State Rep. Julian Bond of Georgia may seek to put together a group of black delegates.

"Someone may have to lock everybody in a room and say 'Okay, boys, who can you agree on?'" said Udall, the 52-year-old Arizonan who insists he is serious about overcoming the Senate's recent monopoly on presidential candidates.

Though no House member has been nominated since President James Garfield in 1880, the tall, witty brother of former Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall has been in 15 states this year. This weekend, he visits New Hampshire, a week after Jackson was there.

The rules, he contended, "play into my hands because one of my assets is the possibility of having support from several dozen congressmen who don't have national clout but have clout in their districts."

He hopes to combine scattered national strength with a base in the Rocky Mountain states and support from environmentalists and political reformers, whose cause he has championed in the House.

Udall's two weakest areas, party regulars and organized labor, are the two cornerstones of Jackson's effort.

AFL-CIO President George Meany favors him, and party leaders believe Jackson's campaign is further along than the others, partly because the 62-year-old Senate veteran never stopped running after his defeat for the 1972 nomination.

But they believe he has to overcome two major obstacles, a speaking style that failed to stir enthusiasm in 1972 and his long record of support for the Vietnam war and major defense projects.

Mondale considers himself the chief beneficiary of Kennedy's withdrawal, citing a poll at last week's Jefferson-Jackson dinner in Des Moines, Iowa, putting him in first place with 37 per cent to 16 per cent for Jackson. At last year's dinner, Kennedy led with 33 per cent, followed by Mondale with 25 and Jackson with 14.

"There has been a tremendous difference since Sen. Kennedy's decision," the 46-year-old Mondale said. "For the first time, I think I have a chance."

The newest of the three senatorial hopefuls is the smooth, confident Bentsen, who has been using a $300,000 fund raised at a 1973 Texas dinner and his chairmanship of the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee to get around the country.

A House member in the early 1950s, the 53-year-old Bentsen was elected to the Senate in 1970 after amassing a fortune in the insurance business. He sees his business background as a prime asset.

"The economy is going to be the major issue in the country for a long time," Bentsen said.

Meanwhile, other candidates wait in the wings. They include several 1972 contenders, Sens. George McGovern of South Dakota, Edmund S. Muskie of Maine and Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, and several running in elections this year, Gov. John J. Gilligan of Ohio, Sen. Birch E. Bayh of Indiana and hopefuls Dale Bumpers of Arkansas, John Glenn of Ohio and Hugh Carey of New York.

This Groom Plans To Adopt Bride's Family Name

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

When 25 year old Greenville resident Satoru Tanabe says "I do" to Kazuko Matsumoto, the young lady who will become his bride in Tokyo on October 26, he will become a groom with a new name, Satoru Matsumoto.

Satoru explained why the reversal from the more traditional role of the bride taking the groom's last name is taking place in the case of his wedding.

"This is done in Japan fairly frequently," Satoru said, "when there's a good reason. In my case, I have an older brother to carry on the Tanabe family name. The girl I'm marrying is the only child, so by my taking her last name there will be a continuation of the male line bearing the Matsumoto name."

The groom's loss of name is not the only difference from Western customs aspect of the forthcoming Tanabe-Matsumoto wedding.

Satoru, a graduate of East Carolina University who came to Greenville from Japan seven years ago, is now employed in the Office of Institutional Research at ECU. Early last spring, Satoru received a letter from his older brother in Japan telling Satoru that a choice had been made "for a marriage partner for Satoru."

"Since my parents are both dead, it falls to my older brother to act in their place in such matters," Satoru noted. "However, the custom of the family choosing a bride in Japan is not now followed so closely as it was in the past, so I had the freedom to say yes or no."

The letter contained a suggestion that Satoru send the young lady's family a picture of himself and an autobiography of his life.

This Satoru did, and he was beginning to wonder if his qualifications were acceptable, since a month passed with no word on the matter from the Matsumoto family, or more importantly, from Satoru's older brother.

But Satoru expressed his pleasure over Kazuko's picture and her autobiography when it did arrive. "And I was pleased that my older brother and my uncles wrote and expressed they approved of the girl," he said.

With the preliminaries over, and both sides mutually satisfied, Satoru was permitted to write directly to Kazuko. In their letters, they agreed that Satoru would visit Tokyo and meet Kazuko in person.

"There was still no formal commitment," he smiled, "and even where arrangements are made to this point, it's generally accepted in Japan today that both the boy and girl must agree that they care for each other before there's to be a wedding."

So in mid-August last summer Satoru caught a flight to Tokyo and very soon was back on his native soil, excited about meeting the young lady who might become his bride. "It was a serious event, a blind date with the purpose of marriage," Satoru said.

"We dated often," he smiled, "and when two weeks had gone I knew I liked her very much and made a marriage proposal to her. She waited a few days to accept my offer, but accepted three days before I was to leave."

On Saturday, October 19, Satoru will be leaving Greenville for another trip to Tokyo. "This time with more happiness than before," he smiled. "We'll be married on October 26.

The marriage will take place in The Prince Hotel, an older Western style hotel in Tokyo, away from downtown. This hotel is noted in Japan for its quiet early 20th century elegance.

"There's one thing I found out during my last trip to Japan," Satoru, who majored in mathematics, said, "inflation in Japan is really high, maybe more than here."

The wedding will be, by Japanese standards, a rather modest one. "There'll be one major reception for about 200 people," Satoru said, "so different from old customs where celebrations lasted for two or three days."

The bride and groom will not be attired in elaborate, expensive special costumes that were formerly a trademark of Japanese weddings, especially among the upper classes.

"One thing that may be different from Western weddings is that we'll have two special guests of honor," Satoru said. "At my wedding it will be a former governor of Saitama Prefecture, (a prefecture in Japan is equivalent to a state n the U.S.) and the president of the Saitama Bank. These two men have played a role that is something equivalent to what here we would call a spon-

Candidate Says "No Programs"

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP)—The "bourgeois candidates" for the U.S. Senate in North Carolina "have no programs at all. They have nothing to say to the working people."

So said Henry R. "Rudy" Nesmith, Senate candidate of the small but dedicated U.S. Labor Party. The Marxist group has won a place on the state ballot and is also fielding candidates for attorney general, chief justice of the state supreme court, and several Congressional seats.

Nesmith's appearance belies the evangelical fervor with which he delivers the message of the USLP. At 30, he wears glasses, keeps his hair neatly trimmed, speaks softly and wears clip-on neckties. But he does indeed have something different to say in his campaign.

Nesmith believes that a vast and insidious conspiracy headed by Nelson "Fang" Rockefeller is laying capitalist plans for a world wide depression. It will result in the starvation and death of hundreds of millions of people across the world and the enslavement of many more.

Among the tools of the conspiracy are the FBI, the Central Intelligence Agency, the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration and black radical Angela Davis, whom the Labor Party regards as a "dupe of the CIA."

Major newspapers, broadcasting networks and news services, Nesmith said, are either knowingly or unknowingly cooperating with the plot.

"In every major instance where we've uncovered something, the Associated Press has covered it up or distorted it. The AP is a tool of the Rockefeller-CIA conspiracy," he said.

The Labor Party believes that the "Rockefeller credit policies" are bankrupting farmers. It advocates wiping out all debts owed by farmers to banks and outlawing commodity speculation.

"This would immediately cut food prices in half, because half of what you pay for food is speculative hot air," he said. "The debt money could be immediately funneled into food production that would end shortages."

The USLP also calls for immediate use of fusion power to end the energy crisis and expand industrial production. The energy crisis, Nesmith said, is a "phony hoax cooked up by Rockefeller."

Fusion power is an advanced form of nuclear energy generation that would duplicate in a reactor the processes that occur inside the Earth's sun, releasing tremendous quantities of energy.

Junk Voyage Fails

Vows New Government Will Fulfill Pledges

By COLIN FROST
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson, after winning a slim majority in Parliament, has vowed his new government will fulfill its electoral pledges aimed at solving Britain's worst economic crisis since World War II.

"We need to work together, sharing burdens and sacrifices," Wilson told party workers Friday, adding that he planned to go on national television Monday to outline a program to "bring the country through to economic security."

Politically, Wilson's Labor government is expected to have little problem in Parliament passing its measures — which include taxing the rich "until the pipes squeak," nationalizing key industries, voluntary wage restraints, and renegotiating Britain's participation in the Common Market.

Although Labor won only a two-seat majority in the House of Commons, defections from party ranks are rare in British politics and Wilson can count on some support from one or another of the splinter parties.

The final tally in Thursday's election gave Wilson's party 319 of the 635 seats and showed the Conservatives badly beaten with only 276 seats. The Liberals took 13, also down two from the old parliament, while nationalists and splinter parties won 27.

Most commentators believe it is enough to keep Wilson in power for three or more years.

Conservatives share of the popular vote was down to 35.7 per cent, the lowest in this century, and they carried 19 less seats than in last February's balloting.

The question on many Britons' minds now is whether Wilson can do anything to curb the economic slide.

Britain, which imports half its food and lives off foreign trade, faces a staggering loss of $10 billion in trade this year. Inflation is soaring at 16.9 per cent a year, despite measures already adopted by Wilson's minority government such as food subsidies, a rent freeze and some price controls.

In the face of these problems, wealth taxes and state control over industries may be impossible, some observers say.

Some 80 per cent of Britain's official reserves of $5.4 billion are borrowed, either in direct loans or through funds from foreign states on deposit here. A wealth tax or sweeping nationalization could drive foreign funds out, weakening the pound, and create new problems.

On inflation, Wilson favors a voluntary deal with the trade unions to hold wage claims down in return for measures to redistribute income. But this too may cause problems as employers — their prices and profits subject to government controls but their wage bills free to mount — may begin laying off workers.

Two Agencies Created As AEC Is Abolished

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has signed into law a measure that abolishes the Atomic Energy Commission and creates two new agencies, including one that could be the nucleus of a new Cabinet department.

In a Cabinet Room ceremony Friday, Ford approved legislation that establishes an Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) to place under one roof the energy research activities of the AEC, the Interior Department, the Environmental Protection Agency and the National Science Foundation.

A Nuclear Regulatory Commission henceforth will perform the licensing and regulation duties of the AEC.

The law also authorizes establishment of an Energy Resources Council, and Ford signed an executive order to create the council, naming Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton as chairman.

The reorganization of energy research programs is a major step toward the administration's goal of creating a Department of Energy and Natural Resources that would absorb the Interior Department.

ERDA will be headed by an administrator yet to be named and will assume responsibility for a $2.65 billion appropriation for the current fiscal year that ends next June 30. It will inherit both those funds and some 7,100 employes from the AEC and the Interior Department.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission will have a chairman and four commissioners, and officials said some of the present AEC commissioners may move to the new agency.

The realignment has no effect upon the Federal Energy Administration, which was created last December to manage oil allocation caused by shortages and to study the choices available to the President in establishing a national energy policy.

The FEA will go out of existence next Feb. 28 unless its life is prolonged.

Revenue Up

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina's general fund tax collections are nearly 13 per cent higher this year than for the same period last year, but gasoline tax collections are down more than 2 per cent, the state Department of Revenue reported Friday.

In a letter to Gov. Jim Holshouser, Revenue Secretary J. Howard Coble said September tax collections amounted to $97.2 million—$11.1 million higher than September 1973, an increase of 12.93 per cent.

For the first quarter of the news fiscal year, Coble said collections were 12.9 per cent higher than last year, reaching $355.9 million—an increase of $40.7 million.

Highway tax collections were down, Coble said. In September, the state collected $25.8 million compared with $26.5 million in the same month a year earlier—a drop of about $700,000 amounting to 2.67 per cent. Most of the highway funds come from the gasoline tax which amounted to $24.1 million compared with $24.7 million in September 1973.

The state's highway tax collections dropped 2.53 per cent in the first quarter of this fiscal year compared with the same period last year, Coble said. He reported collections of $76.8 million for the three months compared with $78.8 million in the same period a year earlier.

Gasoline tax collections for the quarter were $71 million for this year compared with $72.7 million for the same period last year.

Recess Off

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has put off its campaign recess for a week to act on President Ford's promised veto of its cutoff of U.S. military aid to Turkey.

Senate and House leaders cancelled plans to start the month-long recess Friday night after the House killed a 60-day delay of the cutoff. The administration has said passage of the delay would have avoided the veto.

Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill told the House that Ford's veto "is expected sometime over the weekend" and announced the House would reconvene Tuesday. The Senate is to act Wednesday.

The resolution enacted by Congress would halt all U.S. aid shipments to Turkey until Ford could certify "substantial progress" toward an agreement on withdrawing Turkish troops from Cyprus and could certify Turkey is not in violation of U.S. foreign aid laws.

Some opponents of the aid say Ford could not certify Turkey's compliance at all because of her use of U.S. aid weapons to invade Cyprus. Others contend Turkey would not be in compliance until its occupation forces are withdrawn from Cyprus. The State Department has refused to say what would constitute compliance.

WINTERVILLE—Employees of the Town of Winterville are among nearly 1,000 municipal workers in 80 North Carolina cities and towns who have begun receiving improved health, accident and life insurance coverage under a new plan of the N.C. League of Municipalities.

S. Leigh Wilson, League executive director, said that Connecticut General Life Insurance Co. will administer the new benefit package.

Wilson said the new benefit program boost daily hospital protection from $25 per day to $40 per day, provides major improvements on maternity benefits, and increases group life insurance from $6,000 to $10,000 for supervisory personnel and from $3,000 to $5,000 for other employees.

Coast Guard Fights Smugglers And Hijackers

By DANIEL F. GILMORE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The international crackdown on illicit narcotics traffic has spawned a new challenge for the Coast Guard in the Caribbean and Gulf of Mexico, where drug smugglers are hijacking private yachts to haul their cargoes.

"Literally hundreds of crews, passengers and boats have disappeared in the southeastern Atlantic, the Gulf of Mexico, along the Pacific coast and in Hawaii," a House Merchant Marine and Fisheries subcommittee reported recently.

"A great percentage of the victims," it said, "were actual or suspected targets of drug smugglers who have found hijacking can be accomplished easily and the owners disposed of without much fear of apprehension."

The Coast Guard only recently reported a 67-foot fishing vessel was found drifting in the Gulf of Mexico off Port Arkansas, Tex., carrying three dead men, one of whom had been decapitated. A spokesman said "the possibility could feasibly exist that the deaths were related to a drug hijacking."

In other instances, yachts, fishing boats and other long-haul, motorized craft have simply vanished at sea. But authorities have detected a pattern of circumstances raising a strong suspicion that some were seized by drug runners between South America and the United States who killed those aboard or cast them adrift.

Cmdr. Marshall K. Phillips, senior operations officer at Coast Guard headquarters in Washington, said in an interview that about 30 ships have "disappeared in mysterious circumstances in the last few years."

The severing of the "French-Corsican connection" for smuggling hard drugs to the United States made heroin scarce and costly, Phillips said, and when Mexico effectively closed its border to illicit drug traffic, "the general flow and usage pattern shifted to the sea."

Working closely with other federal agencies, the Coast Guard boards and checks suspicious vessels, sometimes on the basis of tips from the underworld.

The Coast Guard warns private boat owners against picking up strangers as crew members who might be plants for a prearranged hijacking.

"Surprisingly, the number of lost vessels to all causes hasn't varied much over the years despite navigational aids and technological advances," Phillips said.

"Weather is the chief culprit. And there are many collisions at sea between large vessels and small craft that no one ever hears about because the large vessel doesn't even see or hear the smaller one."

Last year, the Coast Guard's Sea and Rescue Service intercepted 64,000 calls for assistance and saved 2,000 persons. About 65 per cent occurred in inner harbors, reflecting the inexperience of many of the 4 million pleasure boat skippers churning American waters.

The Coast Guard has more to worry about than drugs and amateur sailors. Formed in 1790 by Treasury Secretary Alexander Hamilton to protect against smugglers, it now has 35,500 men who roam more than 12,385 miles of U.S. coastline and as far out au 250 miles of continental shelf fisheries, as well as the Great Lakes, inland waterways and the Arctic and Antarctica.

They use 260 ships and 160 aircraft to combat old and new enemies—storms and icebergs, contraband and illegal immigrants, illegal fishing in coastal waters by trawlers from as far distant as Japan, the Soviet Union and Bulgaria, the folly of man in polluting the seas and lakes and endangering himself and others in reckless handling of millions of pleasure craft.

The Coast Guard mounted its greatest peacetime drive against smugglers during Prohibition, when fleets of highly organized "rumrunners" ran the gantlet. Millions of gallons of liquor were confiscated, but millions of dollars worth got through.

"They would modify their vessels as fast as we improved ours," Phillips said.

There still is an occasional haul of duty-free scotch and wines contracted in Canada or the Bahamas by private American clubs trying to stock their bars on the cheap.

The big money and headaches involve narcotics and illegal immigrants, both coming mostly from the Caribbean, Central and South America.

An estimated 6-7 million illegal aliens are living in the United States, with more than a million in New York City alone.

"We even get Chinese who are shipped first to South America or who sign on fishing trawlers and are dropped off in Alaska," an official said.

Phillips reported that one cutter recently caught 50 Haitians crowded in the refrigerated compartment of a banana boat. They had paid smugglers $50 to $250 each for their frigid voyage.

Another major concern is protecting American coastal waters against plundering by foreign trawlers and, with an eye to the future, the mineral riches that lie on or below the ocean beds.

"Our supplies of crabs, lobsters and fish is not inexhaustible," an official explained.

"High endurance" Coast Guard cutters have authority under an international agreement to stop and detain violators taking illegal catches off the continental shelf, which extends as far as 250 miles off the Northeastern and Alaskan coasts.

Most such violators are reported to their home ports or to "mother ships" for disciplinary action, with Washington notified. Those caught within the 12-mile limit of U.S. territorial waters are escorted to the nearest American port.

Eight foreign vessels, including Russian, Japanese and Cuban, have been seized so far this year and fined a total of $803,900.

The Coast Guard, mindful of the tremendous size of oil tankers entering sea lanes, has established a "pollution strike force" ready to travel within two hours of a spill notice to eradicate or contain it. Some 14,000 oil spills were investigated last year.

"The general public thinks of the Coast Guard as going out and assisting with shipwrecks," Phillips said. "We have that and much more to do."

Icebreakers clear the Great Lakes and the northern approaches, support the American base in the Antarctic, and patrol the North Atlantic plotting the size and movement of icebergs. Nearly 1,400 drifted into the Grand Banks off Newfoundland between March and August of this year.

Ashore, guardsmen operate nearly 400 lighthouses and 25 air stations and maintain 13,000 minor navigational lights.

In wartime, the Coast Guard has joined the Navy in battling from Iwo Jima to North Africa in World War II, and off Korea and Vietnam.

Clarion Quintet To Perform At ECU

The second of musical events scheduled on campus at East Carolina University as part of the School of Music 74-75 Festival will take place at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday, when members of the Clarion Wind Quintet of the North Carolina School of Arts in Winston-Salem will appear in concert.

The concert will be in the Recital Hall of the A. J. Fletcher School of Music (Tenth Street). There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

Musicians in the Clarion Wind Quintet are Philip Dunigan, flute; Joseph Robinson, oboe; Robert Listokin, clarinet; Frederick Bergstone, horn; and Mark Poplin, bassoon.

These five men are Artists-in-Residence, both individually and as a unit, at the North Carolina School of Arts in Winston-Salem. Each of the five has had successful solo careers and each has held first-chair positions in major symphony an chamber orchestras.

In tours of North America and Europe, the Clarion Woodwind Quintet has won high praise. ". . .they operate as a team with great sinsibility, rhythmic drive, coordination and coloring . . . a triumph. . ." a New York Times music critic wrote. Other newspapers, both at home and abroad, have accorded equal acclaim to performances by this quintet.

For their 74-75 Festival program here, the five will perform four selections — Louis Jadin's Nocturne No. 3 in G minor; Brahm's Variations and Fugue on a theme by Handel; Iain Hamilton's Sonata for Five; and Harald Genzmer's Wind Quintet. The latter two are contemporary works.

THE CLARION WIND QUINTET. . .from the N.C. School of Arts in Winston-Salem will be in concert at Fletcher Music Building at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday. Part of the School of Music's 74-75 Festival, the event is open to the public and there is no admission charge.

Concerts, Workshops For Percussive Convention

GARY BURTON . . .Vibraphone player, is one of two guests artists to be here Saturday for the State Convention of the North Carolina Percussive Arts Society. Burton will perform in the afternoon in a free concert, playing with the ECU Percussion Ensemble directed by Harold Jones.

A young musician, widely known to music fans as a genius in his field, will be one of two guest artists at the State Convention of the North Carolina Percussive Arts Society to be held on Saturday, October 19, on campus at East Carolina University.

Gary Burton, vibraphone player, and Massie Johnson, Artist Percussion Professor for the North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem are the guest artists.

Both musicians will appear in workshop sessions—Burton from 10 a.m. until noon; and Johnson, from 1:30 to 3:00 p.m.

Burton first achieved prominence as a featured soloist with George Shearing in 1963. Over the years, he has been instrumental in forming a completely new concept of the role of the vibraphone in music. Burton is currently teaching these concepts at Berklee College of Music in Boston, the same school he attended.

His association with leading country musicians, including guitarist Chet Atkins, led to a recording contract with RCA Records. His albums for RCA and other labels contain an impressive number of award-winners.

Now recording on the ECM label, he has an album of duets with Chick Corea entitled Crystal Silence. Earlier albums for Atlantic records, include one cut with pianist Keith Jarrett and violinist Stephane Grappeilli; and a 1972 Grammy Award winner, Alone At Last, composed entirely of solos.

The Gary Burton Quartet, formed in 1967, has traveled and performed extensively in the U.S., Europe, Australia, Japan, South America and in Canada and Mexico.

Of particular interest to the public will be an hour long concert to be held in the A. J. Fletcher Music Center from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. Saturday. This will feature the ECU Percussion Ensemble directed by Harold Jones with Burton as soloist; and the ECU Jazz Ensemble, directed by George Broussard.

There is no admission charge for the concert, and the public is invited to attend.

For those interested, the workshops will be open to the public. For this, registration is from 9 to 10 a.m., and fee for registration is $1.00 per person.

Is There Gold In A Desert Peak Cavern?

EDITOR'S NOTE — The deep shaft is there all right, in the desert peak, just as the legend says. But is the hidden hoard of gold at the bottom? Enough evidence that it's there has excited a battalion of claimants, as well as the U.S. Army, and soon they all may get their answer.

By LARRY CALLOWAY
Associated Press Writer

WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N.M (AP) — Old Doc Noss is haunting the U.S. Army again. His tale of a cavern of gold bars in the New Mexico desert won't rest.

The part-Cheyenne Indian wanderer and occasional foot doctor, whose legal name was Milton Ernest Noss, has been dead these 25 years. But the story of his gold is perpetuated by Ova Noss, his first wife, and by others who still seek the treasure.

Lately F. Lee Bailey, the well-known Boston lawyer, has joined with the believers. Bailey says his secret clients have found gold near the Noss claim.

Fearing an unscientific, unmilitary gold rush, the Army has placed an entire basin in the moonlike San Andres Mountains under 24-hour armed guard.

In the center of the basin Noss found and lost his fortune in the late 1930s. He described thousands of gold bars stacked in a cavern like cordwood, chests of coins and jewels, church relics, armament and 27 tied and tortured human skeletons.

That's what Ova Noss, now 78, told an Albuquerque Tribune writer in an interview in her trailer home in Clovis, N.M., before her attorneys isolated her from the press. She showed two old swords, a silver napkin ring with an 1868 date and a two-handled silver bowl engraved "Brazil."

Doc Noss found the cavern, at the bottom of a natural shaft, while hunting in 1937. Mrs. Noss recalled the day a few weeks later when her husband climbed out of the cavern, dropping a metal bar at her feet. "That's the last one of those I'm going to haul out."

"Why, Doc — that's yellow — it must be gold!"

And Noss, shouting in the desert: "If that's gold we can make John D. Rockefeller look like a tramp!"

In the next two years, Mrs. Noss related, she and her children by a previous marriage helped Noss pull heavy sacks out of the shaft, but he never allowed them or anyone else to see the cavern. She said some of the gold bars were buried elsewhere by Noss, and others he sold.

In 1939, as in so many lost-mine tales, the treasure cave was lost. With the help of an engineer, Noss placed dynamite charges at a narrow place about 180 feet down the shaft. The miscalculated blast caved it in.

Noss spent much of his remaining 10 years chipping at the cave-in, looking for lateral passages and improving two other timbered shafts on the mountain.

In January, 1949, Ova Noss and a partner refiled the Noss claims on Victorio Peak in their own names. By this time the couple was divorced and Noss had remarried. He showed up soon after with Texas businessmen Charley Ryan and Roscoe Parr as partner-backers. One unverified land office report says Ova Noss kicked him off the peak.

Ryan rented a house at Hatch, N.M., and Noss visited him there March 5, 1949. An argument over the gold developed and witnesses said Noss ran out of the house to his pickup truck, where there was a revolver. Ryan shot twice from the porch. The career of the 44-year-old foot doctor-prospector ended with a bullet in the back of his skull.

Police found $2.16 in his workclothes pockets. Ryan was tried and acquitted.

The Army acquired Victorio Peak several years after Noss' death and for nearly two decades has stood between the mountain and the civilian seekers. Allowing access to treasure seekers could result in breaches of national security as well as exposing the searchers to dangerous levels of radiation and possible detonations," says an Army fact sheet. In conversation, information officers add snakes and scorpions.

But the Army also admits to an embarrassing spell of military gold fever at the peak 13 years ago.

Bailey says, "I'm satisfied that some Army personnel have looked for the gold in the past and probably still are."

Lt. Col. Donald Keller, range information chief, responds: "Anyone who thinks the Army is officially up there scratching around for a legendary treasure doesn't have his thinking in perspective. We're just flat not in that business."

The business here is testing missiles and studying war. The security-restricted range is 100 miles long and 40 miles wide, and the desert is wired with $1.1 billion in scientific equipment. The place is so desolate it hid the world's first nuclear test explosion.

The timing is good. After Dec. 31, Americans will no longer be prohibited from owning gold bullion.

New Mexico Atty. Gen. David Norvell last year signed an agreement giving Bailey's clients immunity from state prosecution for trespass if they gave 25 per cent of the gold to the state. Then he went on to sue the Army to let the gold claimers in. The Norvell suit raised an old accusation that the Army is conducting "unauthorized and unlawful covert operations" at Victorio Peak. Ova Noss said the same thing 13 years ago.

At first the range commander, Maj. Gen. John Shinkle, denied the story. But in the face of evidence, the general eventually admitted that "a joint effort of the Army and the Treasury" had taken place at the peak.

In the end, the venture proved inconclusive. The peak has been officially undisturbed for 11 years.

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By MARGARET CLARK

The bestselling author of THE MATLOCK PAPER exposes the most bizarre bargain of World War II in a most startling novel of non-stop suspense. In Robert Ludlum's THE RHINEMANN EXCHANGE, the time is autumn 1943. The outcome of the war is still in doubt; both sides are developing weapons aimed toward eventual victory. For the Germans, these weapons include long range rockets. The Americans, meanwhile, are preparing for "Overlord" in which top priority is given to the manufacture of high-altitude aircraft. But in order to get their Peenemunde rockets to function, the Germans need industrial diamonds. . .diamonds located in Allied-held Africa. And in order to keep their bombers on course, the Americans need a gyroscope perfected by the military industrial communities. . .diamonds for gyroscopes. The unbelievable exchange is to take place in Buenos Aires. THE RHINEMANN EXCHANGE is breathtakingly paced, so cunning and so real that you will be in Buenos Aires, feel the tension in a masterstroke of counterspionage which will change the history of the world.

A brooding old manor house in England's Lake Country, a neglected treasure in art and antiques, an ancient scandal and a mysterious curse. . .all of them in THE PROPERTY OF A GENTLEMAN by Catherine Gaskin. Here's a trip to a once mangificent country house, and the story of the strange involvement of an attractive young woman from a prestigious London auction house. Here she discovers, almost too late, that the traditions that have haunted "Thirlbeck" for so long, at once its burden and its protection, seem to have claimed a life once before and might now do so again. This time her own.

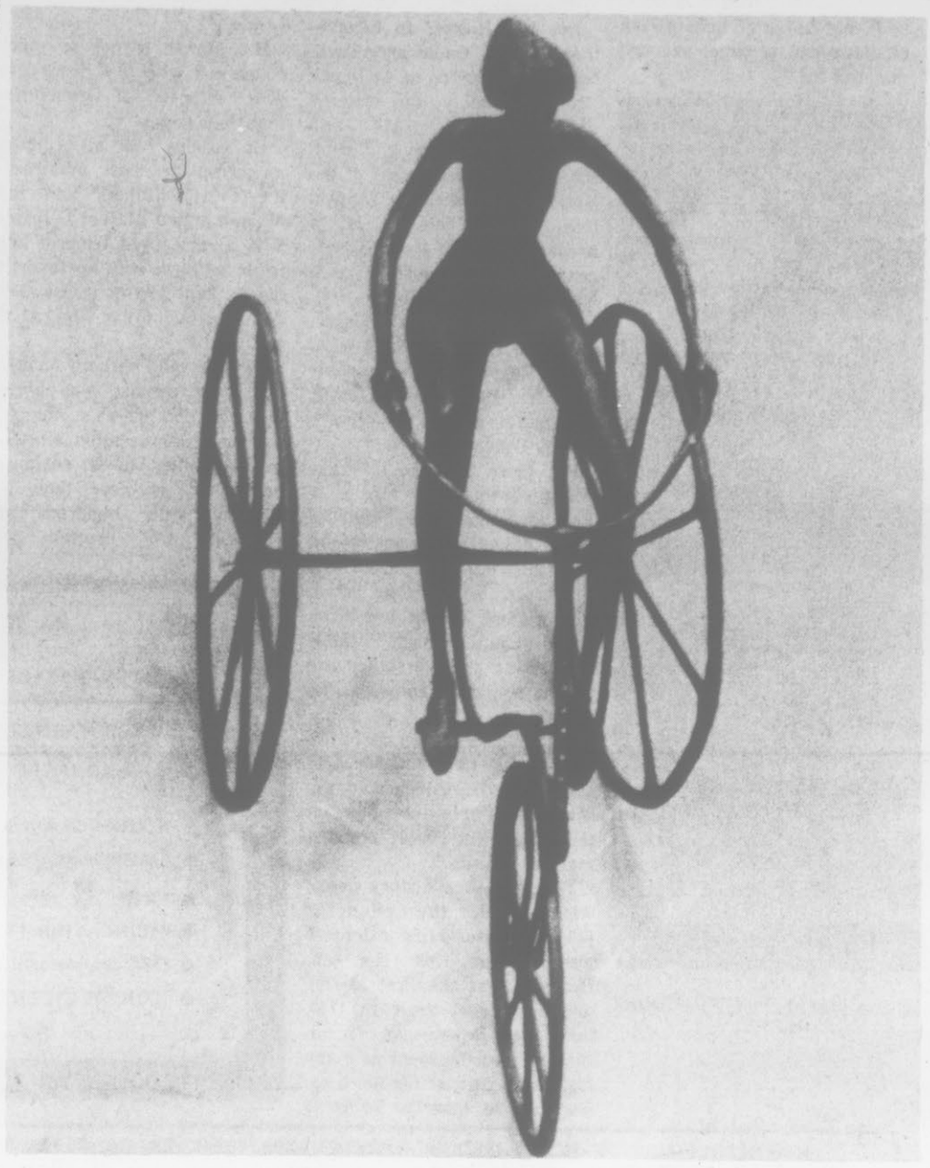
Once again Catherine Gaskin combines romance, mystery and a dash of history. The result is a completely satisfying yarn that could go on forever.

DECADES by Ruth Harris is a novel that goes to the heart of what it was like for not one but three generations of American women coming to grips with love, sex and the changing "femininity" from the Forties to today. It is about a marriage and love affair, about sex and love, about power and money.

Every woman will be fascinated to see how precisely Ruth Harris evokes the feeling of what it was like to grow up female in the innocence of the 40s, the movie-formed dreams of the 50s, the anarchy and disillusion of the 60s. All the details are here—the songs, the headlines, the national preoccupations, even the underwear, from the drooping slip-straps to the armor of crinolines to bra-less T-shirts.

Wonderfully detailed and totally believable, Ruth Harris's novel brings alive the ways of American life and love over three decades.

Springs Traveling Art Show At Kate Lewis



SUMMER CYCLIST . . . This cast aluminum is one of 42 pieces in the 15th annual Springs Traveling Show now on view at the Kate Lewis Gallery. (Reflector photo by Jerry Raynor)

In this bicentennial month in Greenville, the annual traveling show sponsored by Spring Mills of Lancaster, S.C. brings a thoroughly modern note to accentuate today's American art that is a manifestation of multiple influences inherited from many sources in past decades and centuries.

Now showing at the Kate Lewis Gallery in Whichard Building on campus at East Carolina University, the 1974 Springs Traveling Art Show (the 15th annual Springs show) is again a good cross section of work being done by contemporary artists in the two Carolinas.

As in past years, judges have selected works that cover a wide range of media—there's sculpture, watercolors, drawings, prints, paintings, constructions, etc. Very little figurative work is represented in this show.

The top award, or best in show, this year went to Frank Faulkner of Winston-Salem for a large painted tapestry in acrylic. Title "Agincourt III", the painting from a distance has the appearance of a multi-colored quilt.

Five merit awards were given—one each in sculpture, watercolor, graphics, and open media. Greenville's Robert Edmiston, teacher-sculptor in the School of Art ECU received the sculpture Merit Award for his "Modular Construction" done in fiberglass. The formal, free standing sculpture is one of several Edmiston has created in this particular style.

Of interest in the effectiveness of repetition is John O'Neil's Watercolor Merit Award winner. This consists of 36 small squares of white paper, each bearing three fingerprints in red, yellow and blue placed at the bottom of each square. The entire collection is assembled in six vertical and six horizontal rows.

For a number of years, the Spring Traveling Shows have furnished Carolinians with perhaps what is one of the best all around samplers of art in the two Carolinas today. This year's show continues to fill that role, and it's well worth alloting a time to take it in.

Jerry Raynor

Artists Give Works Of Art

Six local artists are donating works of art to the annual benefit gala sponsored by the East Carolina Art Society, the annual Fine Arts Ball, to be held this year on Friday, November 8 at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Artists who have contributed to date are Bette Ashford, Glenn Eure, Tran Gordley, Bob Pittman, Ed Reep and Carolyn Hibbard.

Writing, Illustrating Contest For City School Children

Wednesday, October 23 is the deadline for a program designed to stimulate interest in creative writing and illustrating among the very young in Greenville.

Joe R. Stines, librarian for East Branch Library in Greenville, and Mrs. Kay Taylor, Children's Librarian at Sheppard Memorial Library, are jointly working on this children's project.

The scope of the contest is wide, allowing a child to submit any form of original writing—essay, story, or poem. Picture stories will also be accepted and judged on the drawing.

Two, but not more than two, children may work together on a single work. This can be one writer and an illustrator, or two writers.

Applicable rules are that the contest is open to any child in grades one through seven; entries must have a cover sheet listing: name (or if two worked together, the names of each and an indication of what each child did); grade; school; and a single word "writing", "illustrating," or "both" to indicate which category the work is to be judged in. Any entry without this information will not be considered in the contest. The final requirement is that all entries are to be either on notebook paper, typing paper, or on primary paper.

Entries may be turned in to the Children's Library (basement of Sheppard Memorial Library) or to the school librarian at the school attended by the student.

Work must be original, with no help from adults or older children. Entries will be judged on originality and quality, not on spelling, grammar, punctuation or neatness. Children, are, however, asked to write plainly enough so that judges can read the writing.

Winners will be announced during Children's Book Week, November 11-17. The grand prize winner's work will be copied and a copy kept at Sheppard Memorial Library.

New Show Next Sunday

On Sunday, October 20, a reception will be held at the Greenville Art Center for the opening of an exhibition of paintings by the late Walter Thrift. The reception will be from 3 to 5 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Three Senior Shows On View

Three shows by four East Carolina University School of Art seniors will be on exhibit beginning today and continuing through Saturday, October 19.

At the Baptist Student Union on East Tenth Street, Debby Davis is exhibiting prints in various media as well as ceramics, weaving, and fabric.

At Rawl Building, Barb Coleman and John Guyette will have a joint exhibit in the cases of the first floor of the building and Becky Weeks will exhibit her work on the third floor gallery of Rawl.

The public is invited to visit and view these senior shows, for which there is no admission charge.

Sexauers Show At St. John's

Donald Sexauer, chairman of printmaking in the East Carolina University School of Art, and his wife Myra, a well-known weaver, have examples of their work currently on view at St. John's Gallery in Wilmington.

Sexaueris showing about 25 prints, the majority of which are intaglio prints completed in the past two years.

Myra Sexauer's work will be represented by a dozen weavings, composed of objects from natural environments woven with the warp and weft of traditional weaving. These objects include feathers, seed pods, weeds, rocks, mica and sea shells.

Although the Sexauers have exhibited together frequently at craft fairs, the Wilington show is the first time they have displayed their work together in a gallery.

When Is Love Sacred, When Is It Profane?

The Sacred and Profane Love Machine, By Iris Murdoch, New York, The Viking Press, 374 pages, $8.95

The situation facing the characters in The Sacred and Profane Love Machine is an intriguing and explosive one. A psychiatrist named Blaise Gavender has two families at the same time: his adored wife Harriet and teen-age son David live in the suburbs of London, while across the Thames live his beloved though demanding mistress Emily and eight-year-old son Luca.

Wife does not know about mistress. Mistress threatens to tell. Gavender wants desperately to find some "honest" solution to the problem of his two loves. He fears the effect on wife and son if they learn of his straying, at the same time he is tormented by the bad effects of his secrecy on Emily and Luca.

Yet, all too humanly, he wants the solution to cause him the minimum amount of pain and disturbance. Matters are complicated by two other figures on the scene, a writer-friend of the suburban family who has recently lost his wife to cancer, and a woman-friend of the mistress who is a quietly determined social climber and may be on the make in other ways too.

Many authors could make an interesting narrative of this situation. Iris Murdoch's particular and unique talent is her ability to tell the story forthrightly, clearly, and yet give it a sense of mystery and magic and universality in human experience.

The "extras" begin with the alluring title: what is the sacred and profane love machine at work here? How does it work, on whom and through whom? Indeed, which of Gavender's loves is ultimately the holy one, which the worldly one?

Murdoch takes us step by step into the heart of these people's loves, not only through what they say and do day by day, but also through the mists of their dreams by night. She leaves the reader with the feeling that just beyond the puzzle of sacred and profane love lies a pattern of truth, tantalizingly elusive.

It would not be fair to her or the reader to tell flatly what happens after Gavender finally resolves to tell the truth and shame the devil. One has to read how and why it happened to know what it means. Enough to say for now that what happens is totally unexpected, yet logical, yet magical.

Iris Murdoch herself is as much of a puzzle to critics as any of her novels. She writes in a tone of elegant comedy, with as much suspense as any thriller, yet beneath her surfaces are depths that send reviewers scurrying for words like "myth" and "enchantment" and "barbaric ecstasies."

At times she is resented by critics who feel that deep reflection on life ought to go along with solemn obscurity of language, that authors simply cannot be witty and entertaining and profound at the same time. (They can—Shakespeare and Jane Austen are two examples who come to mind.) Readers, however, are unlikely to resent an author like Murdoch who is at once a smiling philosopher and a good storyteller.

She is in plain fact a philosopher as well as novelist. Perhaps the most amazing thing about Iris Murdoch is the full range of her accomplishments. Besides publishing sixteen novels and two plays in the past twenty years, she has also served on the faculty at Oxford University as lecturer in philosophy. She has published two scholarly works in the field of philosophy.

Furthermore, she is married to an Oxford academic and presides over a large country home near Oxford. When on earth, asks the behind-schedule reviewer, does she find the time to do all that? Judging from her photographs on book jackets, she saves some hours for writing by never combing her hair from one year to the next. But there must be more to it than that.

A Blend Of Traditional, Electronic Music

Laymen who have resisted the often overpowering volume of sounds of electronic music heard in much of rock music or even in formal compositions of "serious" composers, will find something to cheer about in composer Daniel Pinkham's electronic music.

On Wednesday night in the Recital Hall of the Fletcher Music Building on campus at East Carolina University, a near full house heard one of America's better known composers open the School of Music 74-75 Festival in a combination lecture-performance.

Although Pinkham's appearance here was not an integral part of Greenville's Bicentennial celebrations, Pinkham's music can aptly be described as a cultural breakthrough that promises a refreshing new direction as Greenville (and the nation) moves into a third century of development.

Pinkham's electronic music is definitely part of the contemporary American scene, yet there's a strong conservative streak in his use of this 20th century form of composing. "I'm not truly interested in purely tape sounds," Pinkham said following a performance of five of his shorter compositions. "I do, however, like the added new dimensions to music that tape can give."

It is this "added new dimensions" to more traditional sounds that makes Pinkham's music a fascinating revelation of what can be done with the marriage of old and new sounds.

The first composition on the program, Safe In Their Alabaster Chambers, is written for medium voice and electronic tape. "This is the most serious of my music you'll hear tonight," Pinkham said. "It's based on three poems by Emily Dickinson. The tapes were composed first, and the voice score was composed afterwards. In this piece, I'd like to ask you to think of the tapes as scenery."

Miss Dalapas' clear, finely textured voice was a fortunate choice to parallel the musical scenery of the three short poems, in which the tape scores vividly projected pictorial associations. The first was strongly reminiscent of the golden drone of bees, or what one could imagine would be an ancient Greek chorus heard at a distance. The tape for the second poem had reference to water sounds. For the third poem, the taped music opened with a sustained sound (or note?) that was progressively broken up into fragments of sounds. Like a landscape coming alive, the music unfolded into clearly recognizable bird songs which in turn flowed into a night full of cricket song, building up, then dying away slowly.

Lee Hendricks, an ECU student of the organ, accompanied Pinkham's tape for Toccatas for the Vault of Heaven, a composition for organ and electronic tape. Pinkham described this piece as "one in which I wanted to create a wall of sound moving leisurely with fanciful splashes of sound."

Another composition, Aspects of The Apocalypse, abounded in a wide spectrum of electronic sounds, a composition that is a veritable soundtrack of mental associations in music—a regiment of galloping insects, tightening spirals of encircling sounds, heartbeats reverberating in a closed chamber. In conjunction with the Apocalypse tape, Pinkham projected a series of abstracted color slides that visually heightened the effect of the music.

An entirely different Pinkham was revealed in the beautiful, almost lullaby quality of Evergreen the final composition on the program. Based on a poem by the late Robert Hillyer, which Pinkham said "Hillyer wrote especially for me to set to music," the emphasis was on voices. About 20 ECU music students joined Pinkham on stage in this composition featuring organ, piano, auto harp, two guitars and a low-keyed tape. Here, the tape never intruded, but throughout remained an unobtrusive, joyful accompaniment to the warmth of voices in this memorable short composition.

Currently a faculty member of the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, Pinkham is chairman of the Department of Performance of Early Music.

"I am also music director of King's Chapel in Boston," Pinkham noted, "the first church in America to have an organ."

The composer of two full length symphonies, conventionally titled No. 1 and No. 2, Pinkham has also to his credit a number of other works, including scores for television documentaries, choral works and incidental pieces.

"The Louisville Symphony has recorded by Second Symphony," Pinkham said, "and also a composition of 12 variations, my Signs of The Zodiac, which I feel is one of my best compositions.

"It's only been since 1970 that I've composed in the media of electronic tapes, so I'm still fairly new in this field."

Pinkham's lecture-concert is this season's inaugural event for ECU's annual School of Music festival. If the other events scheduled measure up to Wednesday night's rewarding experience, this festival season will be one to long remember.

The two children's film for elementary age school children in Greenville this week total 26 minutes, and both are in color. Caterpillar, a 16 minute animated film, is about a young boy who accompanies his little friend, a dancing caterpillar, on the harmonica. Together, the two won worldwide acclaim. The second film a Disney production, is Of Horses And Men, a 10 minute film in animation of the history of the horse.

Windsor Castle Seen As Epitome Of Monarchy

LONDON (UPI) — In his famous diary for 1665, Samuel Pepys wrote that Windsor Castle "is the most romantique castle that is in the world."

Three centuries later, Philip Ziegler wrote in a London newspaper that Windsor Castle "lies like a stranded whale upon the beach of history—out of place, out of time, yet still magnificent."

WINDSOR CASTLE—In his famous diary for 1665, Samuel Pepys wrote that Winsor Castle "is the most romantique castle that is in the world." (UPI Photo)

Dr. A.L. Rowse, an Elizabethan scholar, would agree with both views of what he calls this "noble assembly, the epitome of monarchy, state and church." His new book, "Windsor Castle in the History of the Nation" (published by Weidenfeld and Nicolson) is a breakneck gallop through nine centuries of the history of a building he clearly loves.

Windsor is the world's largest inhabited castle, a favorite of Queen Elizabeth II. It also may be the world's noisiest castle, with jets screaming low toward nearby London Airport.

But there is more to make Windsor unique.

"The Kings have departed from the palace-monastery of Escorial," Rowse writes. "The Emperors have gone from Hofburg and Schoenbrunn, from Kremlin and Winter Palace; the Louvre and Versailles are museums, the Tuileries no more.

"But Windsor goes on fulfilling the functions for which it was created: residence of the sovereign, the panoply of monarchy, the visible embodiment of Church."

This unbroken history began when William the Conqueror put up Windsor's first defensive works about 1068. His son, Henry I, was the first to live and hold court there in 1110. Since then, Rowse says, "Windsor has been the scene of many historic decisions: far more so, for example, than the Tower of London."

But Rowse is not so much concerned with dry history as with snippets of sometimes malicious gossip.

He gossips best about those monarchs he most admires—the first Elizabeth and her much-married father, Henry VIII. Henry loved Windsor and is buried there with his favorite queen, Jane Seymour. Rowse's description of his funeral is memorable:

"In the cold February of 1547, his gross carcass was borne down to Windsor in a chariot, the funeral procession stretching four miles. In the chapel a hearse of no less than 13 storeys, with hundreds of candles, was erected for him...Everything about him was outsize."

Elizabeth "was more attached to Windsor than is generally realized," Rowse writes. Shakespeare performed there often and set some of his plays at Windsor.

Another of his favorites is George III, who lost the American colonies and spent his last 10 years in madness, a prisoner in the castle he loved.

"There is a curiously attested story that, after his death, the sentries would see his white-bearded figure at the window raising his hand in salute," Rowse writes.

Windsor is essentially a medieval castle, given its basic form by Edward III, who died in 1377. "Its profile is singularly unchanged since the later Middle Ages," Rowse says.

But his lavishly illustrated book makes clear that the castle we see today results from a remarkable collaboration in the 1820s between King George IV and his architect, Sir Jeffry Wyatville.

They clothed the ancient castle in its present stone, added its turrets and towers, and together created a "roofscape unlike any other in the world," Rowse said.

Farmville Accepted Into Flood Program

FARMVILLE—Farmville has been accepted into the National Flood Insurance Program, effective next Tuesday, according to an announcement of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Federal Insurance Administrator George K. Bernstein said this means that individual property owners will be eligible to buy flood insurance protection at affordable federally subsidized rates, offering more extensive coverage under the expanded program authorized by the 1973 Flood Disaster Protection Act.

"We think this program offers better protection for property owners in flood-prone areas while easing the burden on the general public," he said. "Since flood insurance is now available, the law requires that it must be purchased by those who need it in order for them to be eligible for virtually all forms of federal or federally-related financial assistance for building purposes in those areas.

"This would include FHA or VA mortgages, loans from the Small Business Administration, or loans from any federally-regulated or supervised banks and savings and loan institutions."

The policies can be bought from any licensed local property and casualty agent or broker. Kemper Insurance, 1229 Greenwood Cliff, Charlotte, N. C. 28204, has been designated as the flood insurance servicing company for this area. Agents and brokers may obtain forms and information from them.

Schink's TD Gives Bucs Shakey Victory

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

GREENVILLE, S. C.—East Carolina's Pirates, held virtually in check for three quarter by Furman's gutty defense, came roaring back from behind in the final period to ease out a 15-12 victory in the first Southern Conference game of the year for the defending champs.

Furman was in command from the opening kickoff until the fourth period when Mike Weaver suddenly got the wishbone offense moving and the Bucs worked up two touchdowns.

Still, it took Reggie Pinkney to knock a pass out of the hands of Furman's Ken Brown on the final play of the game to save it.

Furman took the lead in the first period, driving for a field goal, a 27 yarder by Andy Goss. They came back with a 15-yard touchdown run by Charles Elvington, Furman's slippery quarterback, then got another field goal from Goss, this one a 32-yarder.

Seemingly, with just under 11 minutes to go, that appeared to seal it. But the Bucs drove on successive possessions on 51 and 67-yard drives to go ahead. Weaver ran in the first one, from the 13, and Jim Woody's PAT cut it to 12-7.

Then, with under a minute left, Don Schink hit over from the one and Bobby Myrick ran over a two-point conversion forcing Furman into an all-or-nothing situation.

Perhaps the key play, aside from Pinkney's closing play was an offensive pass interference call against the Paladins that cost them a touchdown in the second period. That well could have sealed the fate of the Bucs.

Instead, they won their fourth game of the year in five starts and are 1-0 in the league. Furman is now 3-2 overall and 2-2 in the conference.

Furman set the tone of the game in the first period of play as they completely dominated play. In the entire period, the Bucs had the ball for only a minute and 52 seconds, and ran only three plays, then punted. The second period was a little better, but the Bucs got across midfield only once, on their final drive of the period, killed by the clock.

The Paladins pushed for a field goal on their first possession in the game, taking the lead. The drive started on the Paladin 19.

Fullback Ike Simpson picked up five on the first play, as the Paladin line continually cleared out holes for the runners. Larry Robinson got eight in two carries, and after Simpson got two more, Robinson went up the middle for 12. Simpson added four to midfield, then Robinson penetrated ECU territory to the 42. He and Simpson alternated for three plays, then Robinson got 11, including yardage lost by Furman for being off-sides the previous play. That put the ball at the 20. They got another first down at the 15, but were held at the nine after three plays, and Coach Art Baker elected to go for the field goal with Andy Goss kicking a 27-yarder with 5:42 left in the period.

East Carolina had to punt after three plays, and Furman again mounted a drive, this time from their 30. This time, Charles Elvington keyed things, running for 14, then passing for 14 more. As the quarter ended, the Paladins had reached the Buc 26. They continued to move it, reaching the nine, from where Goss hit Steve Hall for a touchdown, but an offensive pass interference call in the end zone not only nullified the score, but gave the ball to the Pirates.

Late in the half, driving from their own 13, the Bucs finally crossed midfield. That came with 1:15 left as Mike Weaver hit Vic Wilford at the 46. In three more plays, the Bucs got to the 33, but three more pass attempts fell incomplete, including one knocked out of Ken Strayhorn's hands on the goal line, and time ran out.

The Pirates came out in the second half and looked like they might get it in gear. From the 30, Strayhorn took a pitchout to the 45. Schink went up the middle to the Furman 48, but two plays later, the Bucs fumbled it away.

Furman hit on two plays to the Buc 44, but on a pass completion, Furman fumbled and Ernest Madison recovered on the 15. But the Bucs, apparently feeling friendly, fumbled it back three plays later at the 26.

That turned into the first Furman touchdown. Goss picked up three, then on third down, Elvington hit Ken Brown for a first down at the 16. Elvington kept on a quarterback reverse on the next play and danced into the end zone practically untouched, with 8:57 left in the third frame. Goss's kick failed, and it was 9-0.

Furman offered another brief threat, moving from their 41 to the Buc 35 in two plays before a 15-yard penalty set them back and Jim Bolding's interception on the next play stopped them.

Furman drove again on the next series, moving from their own 15. Elvington ran his reverse again for 12. Later he hit McDonald for 12, then reverse again for seven to the Furman 49. The Bucs appeared to stop them there, and put them in a hole with a penalty. But Tom Woodson ran instead of kicking and no one on the Buc defense could stop him until he'd run 12 yards for the first down at the Buc 42. Elvington hit Hall at the 19, and Robinson hit to the 15. The Pirates held there, however, and Goss got his second field goal, this one from 32 yards for a 12-0 lead with 10:59 to play

East Carolina finally decided it was time to get into action. A 15-yard penalty on the kickoff gave the Bucs the ball at their own 49. Strayhorn got eight to the Furman 43, and Myrick added five. After a three-yard gain, Weaver kept down to the 20. Strayhorn got five, and Weaver hit to the seven, but forward passed and it cost the Bucs five. However, Weaver carried it around the right side for 13 and the score. Woody's kick made it 12-7 with just eight minutes left.

The Bucs got it back with just over four minutes left. They moved, but slowly, to the Furman 45. But there, Weaver pitched out to Strayhorn around the left side, and he danced down from the sidelines all the way to the one. Schink cracked over from there for the lead with 49 seconds left. Myrick ran over the PAT to force Furman to go for the touchdown rather than a field goal to win, 15-12.

Furman did its best to get back, moving quickly to the Buc 48 with eight seconds left. There, a razzle-dazzle play—a handoff then a lateral back to Elvington, who passed to Brown in the end zone was just broken up by Pinkney, who knocked the ball away to preserve the Pirate win.

Furman outoffensed the Pirates, 390 yards to 242, but the Buc's refusal to die spelled the difference.

State Rallies To Nip Virgina By One, 22-21

By BILL BASKERVILL
Associated Press Writer

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP)—Quarterback Dave Buckey sneaked for a touchdown and Roland Hooks ran for the two-point conversion with 3:46 left Saturday as North Carolina State overcame a 21-point deficit and edged Virginia 22-21 in an Atlantic Coast Conference football game.

The victory boosted the 11th ranked Wolfpack's record to 6-0 and 4-0 in the ACC, while the Cavaliers fell to 1-4 and lost for the second time in two conference starts.

N. C. State began its comeback after Virginia quarterback Scott Gardner hit split end Ken Shelton on a razzle-dazzle 45-yard scoring pass with 2:43 gone in the third period to make it 21-0.

Fullback Stan Fritts, whose two fumbles in the first half led to one Virginia touchdown and wiped out an apparent N. C. State scoring chance, got the Wolfpack on the board with a two-yard run with 5:12 left in the third period. A run for two extra points failed.

Three minutes later, Buckey hit Hooks across the middle with a 36-yard scoring pass and then found tight end Pat Hovance wide open in the end zone, and the Wolfpack trailed by only seven points.

After the Cavaliers were unable to move, N. C. State took over on its own 26 with 6:45 to go. Buckey then directed a nine-play drive that was capped by his own two-yard sneak for the touchdown. Hooks took Buckey's pitchout and raced over for the winning two points.

The game marked the second week in a row the heavily favored Wolfpack had come from behind to pull out a victory. Last week, they nipped East Carolina 24-20.

Virginia's first two touch downs came after fumbles by Fritts, a 210-pound senior who rushed for 111 yards, giving him 2,017 for his career.

The usually sure-handed fullback was smacked hard by Cavalier linebacker Dick Ambrose early in the first quarter and cornerback Doug Jones grabbed the airborne fumble and ran 53 yards to State's 33. Five plays later, Gardner hit tight end Jim Colleran with an 11-yard scoring pass.

Another Fritts fumble wiped out an apparent State touchdown on the third play of the second quarter when Jones recovered for the Cavaliers in the end zone.

Gardner then directed Virginia 80 yards in 13 plays with fullback Mike Dowe ramming over from the three.

Virginia went up 21-0 early in the third period when Gardner pitched out to tailback Joe Sroba, who then lateraled back to Gardner on the other side of the field. Gardner found Shelton wide open in the end zone.

The Wolfpack piled up 497 yards in total offense to 384 for the Cavaliers as Buckey completed 23 of 30 passes for 306 yards. Gardner hit 16 of 25 for Virginia for 207 yards. Sroba carried 29 times for 125 yards for the Cavaliers.

Penn State Mauls Wake

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) - Quarterback Tom Shuman threw a pair of touchdown passes and freshman Jim Cefalo and sophomore Duane Taylor each scampered for two more scores as Penn State walloped winless Wake Forest, 550, in an intersectional college football game Saturday.

It was no contest from the opening kickoff, which Penn State returned to its 38 and then marched 62 yards in eight plays to take a 7-0 less than four minutes into the game.

The victory was the fourth against one loss for 15th-ranked Penn State, and the fifth straight defeat for Wake Forest, which has given 199 points and scored only 21.

Shuman, the Nittany Lions' senior signal-caller, completed 12 of 14 passes for 183 yards, and directed an attack that included drives of 62 and 69 yards in Penn State's biggest offensive show of the season.

Shuman played less than three quarters as Penn State coach Joe Paterno used virtually his entire team after the Lions ran up their big lead.

Tech Conversion Beats Carolina

ATLANTA (AP) — Jimmy Robinson made a diving catch of a Rudy Allen pass for a two-point conversion in the closing seconds Saturday, giving Georgia Tech a 29-28 college football victory over North Carolina.

Freshman Adrian Rucker of the Yellow Jackets scored on a seven-yard touchdown run with 36 seconds remaining to play, getting Tech within a point at 28-27.

Tech then took a time out and Coach Pepper Rodgers decided to go for ths victory.

It was the second consecutive week that the duo of Robinson and Allen had combined in the closing seconds for a Yellow Jacket victory.

Last Saturday Allen hit Robinson on a 17-yard scoring pass with 37 seconds remaining go give Tech, now 3-3, a 28-24 triumph over Virginia.

The Tarheels, 3-2, had gone in front 28-27 with 2:34 left to play when quarterback Chris Kupec scored from five yards out in the wild finish before 38,143 screaming homecoming fans at Grant Field.

Duke Blasts Army By 33-14

By REESE HART

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Once beaten Duke rolled to a 33-14 triumph over Army Saturday behind quarterback Hal Spears to post its fourth consecutive victory.

A crowd of 28,500 saw the Blue Devils grab an early 9-0 lead before Army's Markus Hardy took a kickoff and returned it 100 yards for a touchdown. Duke had a 19-7 lead at the half and ran it to 27-7 in the third quarter.

The Blue Devils drove 51 yards for a touchdown in the opening minutes of the game, with Tony Benjamin scoring from the seven.

Unable to gain, Army punted and Duke headed goalward again, driving to the Cadets' four. Rich McInturff kicked a 21-yard field goal. In the second period, Duke rolled 52 yards to Army's six, and on fourth down McInturff booted another field goal, this one for 24 yards.

With 2:21 left before the half, Spears arched a 53-yard pass to Randy Cobb for a touchdown to send the Blue Devils to a 19-7 lead.

In the third period, Duke took a kickoff and swept 76 yards for a touchdown in eight plays with Art Gore going over from the eight.

Army, which made only two first downs in the first half, scored early in the fourth period on a one-yard run by Scott Gillogly to cap a 79-yard drive.

The final Duke score came late in the fourth quarter on a four-yard run by Mike Bomgardner.

It marked the fifth consecutive game that Army has scored 14 points. The Cadets won their opener over Lafayette and have lost four in a row.

Army gained only 39 yards against the strong Duke defense in the first half but came back with a rush in the third period, driving 79 yards. It ended with Gillogly scoring from the one on the fourth play of the final quarter.

Mike Bomgardner gained 92 yards to lead Duke's rushing. Spears amassed 48 yards on the ground and completed 10 of 15 passes for 178 yards.

Late in the first quarter the Blue Devils drove from their 19 to the Army 10. From there Bomgardner ran into the end zone but fumbled and Army recovered.

Jackson Homer Boosts A's

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Reggie Jackson, hobbled by a painful leg injury that made him a doubtful starter until just before gametime, walloped a 400-foot home run Saturday, helping the Oakland A's to a 3-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers in the opening game of the 1974 World Series.

The victory gave the defending world champion A's a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven Series which continues Sunday when Vida Blue pitches for Oakland against the Dodgers' Don Sutton.

But when it was over, the opening game of baseball's 71st World Series belonged to Oakland, mostly because of Jackson's homer and the relief pitching of Rollie Fingers.

Jackson, who pulled his right hamstring muscle during the American League playoffs against Baltimore, had said he would play in this World Series if he had to do it in a wheelchair.

As he loosened up before the game, he told sports writers he felt about 85 per cent of his full capacity.

But when A's Manager Alvin Dark presented the lineup card, Reggie, Most Valuable Player in the 1973 World Series, was in right field, batting fourth for Oakland.

In the second inning, he showed why.

With the count one ball and one strike, Dodger starter Andy Messersmith made a mistake on Jackson and Reggie unloaded on the pitch, sending it soaring into the left-center field seats for the game's first run.

That gave A's starter Ken Holtzman a quick lead and, in the fifth inning, the Oakland lefthander helped his team to another run.

With one out, Holtzman ripped a ground ball past first base and into left field for a double. It came on only the second trip to the plate all season by an Oakland pitcher, who seldom bat because of the American League's designated-hitter rule.

The first trip had come two innings earlier, when Holtzman walked.

It was Holtzman's third World Series double in the last two years—seasons when he never had a regular-season swing because of the DH rule.

He had clutch doubles that led to Oakland runs in the first and seventh games of the 1973 Series against the New York Mets.

With Bert Campaneris at bat, Messersmith uncorked a wild pitch and Holtzman advanced to third. The count crept to two balls, two strikes and, suddenly, Holtzman broke for home on a daring suicide squeeze play. Campaneris coolly bunted the ball and the A's had their sec —

The Dodgers had reached Holtzman for hits in every inning, leaving runners on base in the first four.

In the fifth inning, they caught up with the Oakland starter and knocked him out.

Shultz, Roy Lead Terps

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—John Schultz and Kenny Roy ran for two touchdowns apiece and Bob Avellini scored another while passing for 213 yards, leading Maryland to a 41-0 Atlantic Coast Conference football victory over Clemson Saturday.

The Terps scored on four of their first five possessions to roll up a 20-0 lead, and checked the Tigers twice at the goal line to record their second consecutive shutout.

A 38-yard punt return by Ken Schroy and a fumble recovery by defensive tackle Randy White set up short touchdown drives of 15 and 37 yards for Maryland in the first two quarters. Schultz scored from the four and one yard lines.

Maryland, now 3-2, stopped Clemson at the six following a bad center snap and drove downfield for a 25-yard fieldgoal by Steve Mike-Mayer to make it 10-0. Another field goal, from 22 yards, came after a pass interception by Jim Brechbiel early in the second period.

Avellini, who completed 14 of 22 passes, gained 89 yards with four passes before scoring from one yard out and left the game with Maryland ahead 27-0. Roy scored on touchdown runs of six and one yards late in the game, following two more Clemson fumbles.

Clemson, now 2-3, reached the Maryland four-yard line early in the second half but failed to punch the ball across on four consecutive running plays.

Clemson did well against the Maryland ground game, but Avellini, who has started in all three Maryland victories, moved the Terps through the air consistently.

He completed three passes for 35 yards prior to the first field goal, with a fumble recovery by guard Ed Fulton keeping the drive alive.

Louis Carter gained 65 yards on 21 carries for the Terps, who defeated Clemson for the third year in a row.

Ken Callicutt, Clemson's leading rusher this season, carried 14 times for 62 yards. Quarterback Mike O'Cain completed six of 13 passes for 82 yards. Tight end Ben Cunningham, who had 14 previous receptions, managed only two against the Terps for 21 yards.

Clemson fumbled nine times on a dry field and Maryland recovered five of the bobbles.

Bucs Set To Open Basketball Drills

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Tuesday afternoon, a new era gets underway at East Carolina University as new basketball coach Dave Patton takes his first real look at his first team.

While familiar with most of the players due to his two-year apprenticeship under former coach Tom Quinn, this is Patton's freshman season as a collegiate coach, but he faces it with a spirit of seeing a much improved team.

Eight players who saw 200 or more minutes of play return, giving the Pirates extraordinary experience and depth. These two factors, coupled with good shooting and quickness may give the Pirates just what they need to become a true challenger for the Southern Conference championship, and Patton has made that his goal, along with his players.

"If we are going to have a problem, it may be in rebounding," Patton said. "We have about the same height we had last year, but the rebounding experience is not as great." Nicky White, who was the team's leading rebounder, was one of the two players who graduated following last season. "Our inside people have been working hard all summer on the weights," the coach said, "and they have increased their strength and bulk so that they'll be able to muscle in with the rest for loose balls."

While Patton feels the shooting will be improved, he also feels that it must show an improvement in consistancy. "With our running offense and our pressure defense, we are going to have to put the ball up a lot of times, however. But I want to emphasize that defense is going to come first. We want to be a good defensive team first, and a running team second. But I think we have the stuff to be both, and I think we can score a lot of points off our defense."

Patton feels that the team's depth will be a definite factor in any success the Pirates have. There is plenty of it., and the coach thinks that with it, the Bucs may be able to run many teams with less depth into the ground. "It takes a lot of stamina to press and run the entire game. If the other team can't do it and we can, it can be a great plus for us."

Returning this year are four front-court men—Donnie Owens, Kenny Edmonds, Reggie Lee and Buzzie Braman. Owens and Lee were both starters last year, Owens at the point.

In the front court, back are Greg Ashorn, Al Edwards, Robert Geter, Tom Marsh and Ron Hunt. Geter was a usual starter, although both Marsh and Hunt saw some starting duty under Quinn.

New to the team this year are three freshmen and three transfers. The three freshmen include Dean Hartley, Wade Henkel and Erwin Durden. Coming from junior colleges are Henry Lewis and J. C All-America Earl Garner, while Kenny Kellstrom is eligible as a transfer after a year's sitting out.

"I'm unsure how our fresh will play, due to all the experience we have. Henkel, I'm told, has looked good in pick-up games they are always playing. We are counting on Lewis and Garner to play a lot. We think all our freshmen are going to be good players for us, however."

While Patton admits that both Furman and Davidson will be rated above the Pirates, he feels that the Bucs can outdepth them both. "We want to make everyone play our game. Also, we have no one super-star we have to depend on. If we have one or two players who are having an off night, we have a lot more who can take up the slack. Our opponents are not going to be able to just defense one or two players; they must defense all five who are out there."

In the opening weeks of practice, Patton looks to quickly get the principles of his defense into the team. "Then, we'll have that out of the way and can concentrate on other things."

Then, the big problem will principally be finding out who the starting five is going to be. "We've got 15 people, and any one of them could start, and may from time to time. We are going to use the people we feel can get the job done at the time. Every position is up for grabs, and the players know this and appreciate that it will make us better in the long run."

Patton doesn't plan to platoon, however. "We may substitute five, or just one. It all depends. We don't want anyone out there who is tired, and I expect a tired player, who may let down and cost us a basket or two to get himself out as soon as possible."

Another plus for the Bucs is a renewed team spirit. "They are chomping at the bit to get started, and so am I," Patton said.

When the season opens on November 30, the Bucs have a hard opening, however. They meet national champion N. C. State first, then another tough ACC team in Duke, then nationally ranked Alabama, in succession, and all on the road.

Most observers see this as an 0-3 opening for the Bucs. "We're going into every game expecting to win," Patton said. "But we're also going to impress on the players that these three games don't make our season. We have 21 more to play after that. You have to open with somebody, and I'd just as soon meet a big one as not. We're going to keep our eyes on our eventual goal—winning the Southern Conference Tournament. If we get our people playing to their potential, the winning and losing will take care of itself.

"But we will be competitive with anyone we play," Patton vowed.

Rampants Blank Rocky Mount With Two TD's

ROCKY MOUNT—Rose High School finally got its wishbone offense in gear when it went to the outside Friday night, and handed Rocky Mount a 14-0 defeat. The win gave the Rampants a half-share of the Division I lead in in the early standings, along with the winner of the Northern Nash Northeastern game. The other conference member, Wilson, played outside the league.

Lindberg Morris scored both of the Rampant touchdowns, on runs of five and six yards. Jeff Hagans kicked both of the extra points.

The Rampants had trouble moving the ball against the tough Rocky Mount defense in the first half, but began to go more to the outside in the second half. A few breaks kept them from turning the game into a rout in the half.

Rocky Mount, despite a couple of good threats, never really got cranked up good. The Rampant defense held the Gryphons to just 48 yards on the ground, while they picked up 115 through the air. One pass, however, accounted for 50 of those, and the Rampant defenders also came up with three interceptions.

The first half was a defensive struggle all the way, with Rose scoring late after a blocked punt put them in good field position.

The first quarter saw nearly the entire 12 minutes played on a three plays and a punt basis. Rose did not make a first down in the period, and Rocky Mount got only one, on a 34-yard pass from Doug Henley to Richard Lea. The Gryphons did, however, get into Rose territory twice. The first time came on their second series, when a 19 yard punt return by Ronald Martin put it at the Rose 40. The three plays, however, netted only three yards.

A series later, they drove from their own 42 to the Rose 29 before turning it over on downs. The 34-yard pass for the first down was the key play, moving it from the Gryphon 39, to where they had been thrown back, down to the Rose 27. A 15-yard penalty killed the drive, and two incomplete passes turned it over.

Rose got its first down with 8:58 left in the second period, but still was unable to move out of its own territory because of a 13-yard loss on a fumble. On the next series, however, with 3:45 left they did get across midfield, but couldn't pick up a first down from the 49, and gave it up.

With time running out, the Gryphons, held at the 28, went back to punt, but Mike Brewington broke through to block the punt and Rose took over on the 18.

Rose drove again on its first series of the second half. They moved it from the 29 to the Rocky Mount 33 before being held on downs apparently, only inches short. Even then, the Rampant coaching staff asked for a measurement, but were refused.

Late in the period, Rocky Mount got into scoring position helped by two straight 15 yard penalties against the Rampants, one for pass interference, and the other for roughing the passer. That put the ball on the Rose 38, and a pass from Henley to Earl Lawrence moved it to the 25. But William Battle coughed up the ball to Rampant Lee Hill at the same stripe on the next play, ending the threat.

Rose then began its second scoring drive. Henry Trevathan, who had replaced the injured Mike Ball, led the team downfield.

He first hit Tommy Joe Payne on third and seven for a 18-yard gain to the Rose 47. Then, after Andrew Newton got five, Morris added three. Doug Paschal, held in check by a heavy key on him most of the night, got a first down at the Rocky Mount 41, and Morris added two more. Trevathan went to Payne again for 18, then Newton went around the left side for 11. After a three-yard gain, Newton got six more to the one. Rose got a first down there, but a penalty pushed them back to the six. Morris went around right end on the next play, and Hagans again got the PAT for a 14-0 lead with 9:26 left.

Rose picked off a pass on the first play after the kick, as Jace Hagans grabbed off the ball and returned it to the Gryphon 27. Rose tried for a field goal at the 20, but it was just wide.

Rocky Mount got away with a 50-yard pass from Henley to Preston Jones, then went to the air again for nine more. After two runs netted eight yards and a second down at the Rampant 13, Henley was again picked off, this time by Cray Hutton at the 13.

Rose got another interception on Rocky Mount's final possession, as Harry Pair got the ball this time.

The Rampants, now 5-2 overall and 1-0 in the conference, take the week off this Friday, then return to action on Oct. 25 playing host to Northern Nash for Homecoming in Ficklen Stadium.

Gaylord Perry Says There Is No Trouble Between Him And Robinson

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Gaylord Perry, ace of the Cleveland Indian staff, makes light of the incident between himself and the new Indian manager Frank Robinson that allegedly nearly brought them to blows.

Reportedly, Perry was quoted a day before the locker -room incident as saying he wouldn't work for Robinson if he were named manager unless he got $1 more than Robinson, who reportedly is making $180,000 a year. Robinson was upset over the statement, mostly because Perry had told his salary. Some words were passed in the dressing room, but there is no problem between the two, Perry says.

"I had a press conference in Akron while I was down there on a business trip," Perry said in an interview this week while visiting in Greenville. "I was questioned as to whether Robinson would be named the manager, and I said that I would have to wait until later to comment." This was before Robinson was named to the position as baseball's first major league black manager. "Then, someone asked me what I'd like to make next year, and I told them a dollar more than Robinson," Perry said. "I was joking, but it got blown out of proportion."

"As far as Frank is concerned now, there is no problem between us. In fact I feel that I'll be able to make more since he's on the club. I've been wanting more, but the Indians were reluctant to give me more, telling me I was already the highest paid on the club. Well, this isn't true now." Perry didn't discuss his salary, but reportedly he's asking for $150,000 and a two-year contract.

"I've told the front office what I want. There's absolutely no problem between Robinson and me and I expect to be in Cleveland next year. But if not, I'll play somehwere else."

Perry got off to a fantastic start, winning 15 in a row after bowing in the opening game against New York. After Oakland snapped his streak, the wins came fewer, and in the closing months of the season, he won only six more, a total of 21. It was revealed after the string broke that Perry had been bothered for some time with an ankle injury. "I don't think that it really caused me any problems," he said. "In fact, it was better down the stretch. The losses were just the breaks of the game. Sure, I won 15 in a row, but the team did some outstanding playing behind me and in getting me some runs to work with. That made it easier to win. They felt confidant, and so did I."

Going into the final month of the season, Cleveland was right in the pennant race, and manager Ken Aspromonte was talked of as a prime candidate for Manager of the Year in the American League. Despite this, reports circulated most of the year that he would be fired at the end of the season. When Robinson was traded to Cleveland by California, Perry said the club immediately knew that it was for the purpose of making him the new manager after the end of the season. "Aspromonte was the manager when Phil Seghi came to Cleveland as general manager. Nearly every general manager wants his own man, and it's just that Ken wasn't him appointee."

Seghi and Robinson face the job of building Cleveland from a contender into a winner. There have been rumors that Henry Aaron, who has said he might like to play in the American League, where the designated hitter rule is used, might be trade bait for Perry for Atlanta, which needs pitching.

"I don't think that will happen," Perry said. "Cleveland needs more pitching, not less. So I don't think they'd trade me for Aaron or for hitting."

This year also marked the first time that Gaylord had been on the same team with his brother Jim since high school days. Jim joined Cleveland this year in a trade with Detroit. The two are the lone pitching brother combination to win 20 games in a single season. with Gaylord off to a good start, Jim got away to a lesser one, but then picked up. "It was a pleasure to work with him," Gaylord said. "Jim pitched some very good ball, and he lost some tough ones. He could have won 20 with some breads." If he had, the two could have set another milestone—both winning 20 the same year on the same team.

Perry was also asked if he felt the designated hitter rule was the reason the American had seven or eight 20-game winners while the National League had only one. "I don't really think so," he said. "Two years ago, before the rule, I won 24 and completed 29 games. I won 19 last year, and completed nearly as many, and did better this year. So iI don't feel that it meant that much to me."

About the future, Perry feels that Cleveland can be a legitimate contender next year. "We've were a great deal better this year, and I hope we can continue to improve next year. I think a lot depends on how Buddy Bell's knee recovers. Otherwise, it'll depend on what kind of trades we make. I don't think it would take many, just a few in the right places."

This fall and winter, Perry will be working on his Martin County farm, along with some hunting and fishing. He'll also be working on his pitching from time to time.

This year, his fork-ball replaced his mystery pitch that many called the spitter. "I only got one warning this year—in the first game. After that, they learned to tell the difference."

Blue Faces Sutton Today

Campaneris tried to short-hop the ball but was unable to handle it and Lopes was safe on the error.

The Dodgers, who seemed anxious to test Oakland catcher Ray Fosse's arm, sent Lopes on a hit-and-run play and Bill Buckner rifled a single to right.

Jackson charged the ball, had trouble picking it up and third base coach Tommy LaSorda began waving furiously for Lopes to keep running.

Jackson recovered quickly but Lopes had that extra step and, when Jackson heaved a wild throw back to the infield, Lopes scored easily.

Out of the bullpen came Fingers, the reliever who was involved in Oakland's latest clubhouse scrap Friday. Doctors took five stitches in his scalp after he had battled fellow pitcher John "Blue Moon" Odom, who sprained his ankle in the fracas.

Fingers struck out Steve Garvey and then, after hitting Joe Ferguson with a pitch to load the bases, he squirmed out of trouble by getting Ron Cey to fly out.

In the eighth, the A's got Fingers another run—it turned out to be the winning one—and would have had more except for a remarkable throw by right fielder Ferguson.

Campaneris opened with a single and Bill North bunted, moving him to second. Next, Bando bounced to Cey at third base. He made a good stop on the ball but threw it away for an error.

At the last instant, Ferguson cut in front of Wynn, grabbed the ball and threw a strike to catcher Steve Yeager, retiring Bando for the double play.

The throw and tag play was so startling that the Dodgers didn't even realize the side had been retired. They stood there for almost half a minute before being waved in by the umpires.

Fingers worked his way out of another two-out, two-on jam in the eighth, leaving the 10th and 11th Dodgers stranded on base.

He steamed into the ninth, protecting his 3-1 edged.

With two out, Wynn socked a long drive that barely made it into the left-center field seats, just beyond the leaps of North and Joe Rudi.

That made it 3-2 and, when Steve Garvey followed with a line single to right, Fingers was finished.

Out of the bullpen came Jim "Catfish" Hunter, who had not relieved all season.

He fell behind 2-0 before Ferguson swung and missed at his next pitch. Then a foul ball made it 2-2 and Ferguson waved at the third strike, giving the A's their first-game victory.

Scott Fires Five TD's Pacing Ball St. Win

MUNCIE, Ind. (AP)—Backup quarterback Rick Scott fired five touchdown passes Saturday to lead Ball State past Richmond, Va., 38-23, in a non-conference college football game.

Scott threw only seven times all day, and the scoring passes, setting a Ball State school record, were his only completions. He was intercepted once and the other pass was dropped. He also carried the ball 11 times for 49 yards.

The Sycamore, Ill., senior was called to duty when starting quarterback Art Yaroch injured his collar bone after racing 31 yards on the third play of the game. Scott, who shared the quarterback duties with Yaroch last year, hit only four of 10 passes in the Cardinals' first four games, this season.

Using the Ball State ground attack to set up his passing, Scott found Mike Nocero with a 22-yard scoring strike in the first quarter and hit Rick Clark and Jim Michlos twice each for touchdowns. His scoring passes to Clark went for 52 yards in the third quarter and 29 in the fourth.

The victory marked the fifth straight year Ball State, now 23, has won its homecoming game. Richmond's Spiders fell to 3-2.

Southern Wayne Slaps Farmville Central

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

FARMVILLE—Ken Mack scored three times and Craig Clark put up two as the Southern Wayne Saints thrashed the Farmville Central Jaguars, 49-15 in a battle for the top spot of the Conference, Friday night.

The win left the Saints undefeated in both conference play and in the overall totals. Farmville Central falls a game back in the Eastern Carolina conference with only one loop loss at 4-1.

Mack and company rolled up 520 yards rushing. That was also their total offense tally as they did not need to pass. They called pass plays a few times but Farmville Central's coverage forced the Saints to run, usually resulting in a big gain.

In getting his three scores of 18, 50 and 73 yards Mack picked up 242 yards while fullback Clark gained 78 scoring on runs of eight and one yards. Quarterback Ron Pelletier rushed for 138 yards and a touchdown. The other Saint TD came on a four yard plunge by Todd Carroll.

Only in the last quarter, was Farmville Central able to successfully move the football. They had crossed midfield only twice in the first half and twice in the second when the Jaguars scored.

The Jags got their first TD on a short pass that turned into a long 54 yard run by Jojo White. The second came on a five yard scramble by Jimmy Prayer.

The Saints scored the first time they had the ball and put up points on their next six possessions. They punted only twice, both in the fourth period. The Saints turned both Farmville Central fumbles into touchdowns.

The Southern Wayne defense was set up around their brick wall of the three down linemen. Vincent Pearsall the right end, was the big man of the trio at 6'5", 310. Beside him were Elton Best, 6'2" 260 and two other players who divided the work at the other end. Both of them were 260.

Farmville got the opening kickoff and started to moving the ball until a penalty stopped them. Jeff Wilkes picked up four on first down but a fumble lost a yard on the next play. Ronnie Gay picked up six and Greg Joyner got the first down with a 2-yard sneak. Gay was stopped at the 43 after a gain of one and Wilkes only got two on second down.

Joyner tried to pass on third down but the Jags were slapped with a passinterference penalty that ended the drive and forced a punt.

The kick was badly shanked and went out of bounds at the Farmville Central 45. In six plays the Saints were on the boards. Clark rushed for eight on first down and Mack carried twice for 13. Another run by Clark moved it to the 21 and after a pickup of three, Mack slanted over right tackle 18 vards for the TD. He also added the conversion for an 8-0 lead with 5:56 left in the period.

The kick went out of bounds and from the Jaguar 40, Joyner hit Walter Gorham with a pass over the middle but Gorham fumbled it at the Southern Wayne 39. Clark moved the Saints across the 40 to the 42 and Mack put the ball on the Jaguar side with a gain of 13. A penalty set the Saints back five but it made little difference to Mack as he sped past the left side of the line after cutting back across the field for 50 yards and a second TD.

Southern Wayne forced Farmville Central to punt on the Jag's next possession and the Saints went in on four plays. With Clark and Mack sharing the work they moved the ball to the eight, most of the yardage coming on a 45 yard run by Mack. Clark went in from the eight.

Clark scored again the next time the Saints had the ball capping a 47 yard drive on a one yard run. Pelletier had a big third down run of 16 yards to keep the drive going after the Jags had given up five yards on the first two plays of the drive. The extra point was run by Anthony Williams.

Farmville Central got a drive going and picked up three first downs but ran out of steam at the Saint 47. Tony Oakley's kick was downed on the 10. Mack banged up the middle twice for seven vards and Clark added five. On first down at the 22, Pelletier tried to pass but found all his receiver cover and elected to run eluding everybody going 78 yards for the TD with 1:36 left in the half.

The Saints got the opening kick off of the Second half and picked up a first down on their third play. From the 27, Mack danced throught a hold in the left side of the Jaguar line and raced 73 yards to add another six to the Saint total.

Carroll finished off the Saint's last scoring drive, a 64-yard march with a four yard sneak to run the total up to 48-0 and Pelletier's kick made it 49-0 with 2:13 left in the third quarter.

The Jaguars finally mounted a drive the ended the third quarter and opened the fourth. From their 23 they went 77 yards, the big play being the pass from Joyner to White for the TD.

Farmville scored again the next time they got the ball going 61 yards this time. Jimmy Prayer had a 15 yard run moving the Jaguars across midfield and Carroll Griffin connected on four of five passes for 34 yards, two to Gorham and two to Prayer. A pass for six yards to Prayer set up the five yard run by Prayer for the score. Griffin passed to Prayer for the conversion.

The Jaguars are at home again this Friday night hosting North Lenoir, 12-0 losers to D. H. Conley Friday night.

Hawkins Leads Vikes To 12-0 Decision

WHEAT SWAMP—Calvin Hawkins scored two touchdowns and rushed for almost as many yards as he had in the previous five games leading the D. H. Conley Vikings to a 12-0 win over North Lenoir, Friday night.

Through the first five games, Hawkins had picked up 204 yards but against North Lenoir, he ran for 203.

Hawkins' first score came after Conley recovered a fumble at the Viking ten. Hawkins roared 90 yards to put the Vikings up by 6-0.

In the third period, Lorenzo Carmon forced the Hawks to cough up the ball at midfield and Hawkins picked up the loose ball and returned it 50 yards for the TD.

Keith Gould had an interception and a fumble recovery for Conley.

The Hawks had two touchdowns called back because of penalties and a pass was dropped in the end zone. Conley drove within the North Lenoir 20 three times but failed to add points.

"I have to mention the fact that the defense played an extremely good game," said Conley coach Chuck Dunn. The Vikings held the Hawks to 64 vards rushing and 20 in the air.

The Vikings, now 3-3 for the year, entertain Eastern Wayne this week.

Davis led the Bullet attack with 175 yards in 19 carries. He also scored an extra point.

Jamesville was the first to score as they went in on a 25 vard pass from Curtis Ange to Jerry Ange. They fell behind early in the second quarter, however, as Oak City moved to a score, a six yard run by Cecil Brady and William Johnson added the Conversion for the 8-6 lead.

Jamesville regained the lead later in the period as Curtis Ange hit Curtis Hardison with a three yard pass and Davis added the PAT to put the Bullets back on top.

William Johnson tied the game again as he scored on a one yard run to make the score 14-14 at the half.

Oak City fumbled at the Bullet three and with less than a minute left in the game. Jamesville drove to the three where Davis took it in.

Finley Brings A's Back For Another Try At Title

By WICK TEMPLE
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Well, fans, it's Charley Finley time again.

What used to be the World Series, the fall classic, the epitome of sports, has become the annual trial, tribulation and sounding board of Charley O., owner of a handsome mule and a maniacal group of baseball players called the Oakland A's.

That sort of lethal camaraderie is not Finley's only problem. Mike Andrews, the infielder Charley O. tried to fire during last year's World Series, sued Finley for $2.5 million this week for holding him up to public scorn.

Catfish Hunter, Finley's prize pitcher, says Charley O. only paid him half of his contracted $100,000 this year and Catfish plans to desert the A's after the Series.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has had his problems with Finley. He had to nail Charley O. on the Andrews firing last year and order the infielder reinstated. It didn't do Andrews much good. He was put on option after the season and no team picked him up.

Finley, meanwhile, has bought the whole A's team hound's tooth hats after Bear Bryant of Alabama sent him one. He is minus a wife, who is suing him for divorce. He has a new team mascot—Miss California—who is considerably more attractive than the mule. He still has his green jacket and he still waves a pennant.

The report here is that Finley now wants to take the lineup card out to home plate in the first series game in Oakland Tuesday night. He may as well. He all but makes it out.

Alvin Dark, Finley's latest manager, has less control over his team than any manager in the majors. Finley regularly countermands his orders. Dark has found religion and regales his team and sports writers with Bible verses.

But controversy is to come—watch for it. And make no mistake.

Irwin Edges Player For Piccadilly Golf Title

By GEOFFREY MILLER
AP Sports Writer

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Hale Irwin, the U.S. Open champion, dethroned Gary Player of South Africa 3 and 1 Saturday and won the Piccadilly World Match Play Golf Championship and the first prize of $24,000.

The dramatic, seesaw 36-hole final provided more excitement than top quality golf.

Player, below form, hooked his drive five times, missed a number of vital short putts, lost his chance to win the title for the sixth time in 11 years and settled for the $12,000 second prize.

Irwin, a former college football star from Kirkwood, Mo., was remarkably accurate with his three-wood second shots on the long holes, planting them regularly on the greens.

A crowd of 3,000 followed the two stars around Wentworth's 6,997-yard, par 35-38—73 course.

Player conceded the match on the 35th hole, sparking controversy over the final score.

Irwin went to that hole 2-up. Player missed a putt from 10 feet, and the American then only needed to get down in two from a similar distance to halve the hole. Player shrugged his shoulders, walked across the green and shook hands with Irwin, apparently conceding the match.

The result first was announced as 2 and 1, but later it was changed to 3 and 1.

"I don't know whether Gary conceded the hole or the match," Irwin said. "I would say 3 and 1. It sounds better."

Throughout the morning round, the lead went back and forth. Irwin jumped in front three times, and each time Player caught up. The American was 2-up after the 12th, then had putting troubles and lost three consecutive holes.

Irwin came back to tie the match on the 16th, but Player went 1-up again at No. 18.

In the afternoon it was Irwin all the way. He won the 21st after Player's drive landed in short rough. Player three-putted at the 24th, and Irwin sank a 16-foot putt for a birdie at the 25th to go 2-up.

Player pulled one back at the 29th, but that was the last hole he won.

Irwin said the pivotal point of the match was on the next hole. He drove into the rough but used a three-wood to get out and landed on the fringe of the green. He got down in two putts from 60 feet while Player just missed with an 18-foot birdie try, and the hole was halved.

"If that putt of Gary's had gone in, he would have been only one hole down," Irwin said. "The pressure then would certainly have been on me. But then he missed an easy one on the next hole and it was virtually all over."

At the 31st, Player putted from seven feet, went three feet past the pin, then missed again.

Player, who had figured in five previous finals and had won them all, was getting ready to celebrate his 100th major professional tournament success, but had to postpone it.

"I have no excuses," the little South African said. "I just never got sharp."

Greene Central Blasts Panthers

BETHEL—Anthony Corbett and Melvin Briggs each scored two touchdowns and Corbett rushed for over 100 yards to lead the Greene Central Rams to a 50-0 blasting of the North Pitt Panthers, Friday night.

Corbett scored on runs of six and thirty yards while Briggs scored on runs of 34 and 14 yards. Corbett rolled up 114 yards while Linwood Underhill ran for 118.

The Rams got their first TD on Corbett's six yard run. Briggs made the score 12-0 later in the first period scoring on a 34 yard run. Both times, the PAT failed.

Underhill increased the Ram lead to 18-0 in the second quarter with a touchdown run of nine yards.

The Rams finally made an extra point in the third quarter. Corbett recorded his second TD on a run of 30 yards and Owen Waters got one on a gallop of 25 yards. Tim Butts added the kick for a 31-0 edge.

The Rams scored three more times in the fourth quarter on a 20 yard run by Warren, a 15 yard sprint by Briggs and a four yard burst by Mike Canady.

The Rams ran for 336 yards but did not complete a pass.

Tarboro Upends Tigers On Extra Points, 20-18

TARBORO—Kenneth Speller scored three touchdowns but the Williamston Tigers could not pull out a win as Tarboro surprised the Tigers and handed them a 20-18 loss.

The difference came in the extra point department as Tarboro made two on three touchdowns. Williamston was stopped from adding the conversion each time Speller scored.

Williamston scored on a one yard plunge by Speller. The Tigers had marched 66 yards getting a 22 yard run by Speller and a 12 yard pass from Phil Selby to Eric Goddard.

Tarboro broke the ice in the second quarter as they scored on a 70 yard pass from Al Forrest to Kenneth Joyner. Weinstein's kick with 1:38 left in the half made it 12-7.

Tarboro went ahead in the third quarter scoring on a 73 yard drive. A 53 yard pass from Joseph Jones to Terry Throne helped Tarboro and from the five Jones took it in.

Tarboro got the winning points as Forrest ran ten yards to end a 94 yard drive with 9:15 left in the game. Williamston fought back to score with 6:31 left on a five yard run by Speller but the extra point attempt failed.

Both teams rushed for over 200 yards, Tarboro getting 243 and the Tigers 249. Speller had 104 of the Tigers' total and Neno Lloyd rushed for 61. Lloyd also had 66 yards in kick returns. Jones led Tarboro with 141 yards in 31 carries.

Simmons Gets Shutout

OAKLAND (AP) — The National Hockey League's first shutout in 1974 belongs to rookie goalie Gary Simmons and the California Golden Seals.

Making his NHL debut, Simmons shut out the Atlanta Flames and the Seals beat Atlanta goalie Phil Myre three times in the final period to post a 3-0 victory at the Oakland Coliseum Friday night.

Simmons, who played for Phoenix in the Western Hockey League last year, kicked out 24 Atlanta shots on goal, giving the Seals their first NHL victory in their last 14 regular season games.

Alabama Squeezes Past Florida St.

By PHIL ORAMOUS
Associated Press Writer

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — "We didn't have any offense," Alabama Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant said of the third-ranked Crimson Tide's slim 8-7 victory over hapless Florida State Saturday.

A field goal by Buckey Berrey with 33 seconds left gave Tide its fifth straight victory of the season. The Seminoles have lost 17 in a row.

"There's some grumbling among the alumni and I'm starting it. I'm tired of the same old tune," the coach said.

"The same old tune is 'I got out-coached."

FSU Coach Darrell Mundra said Alabama had come close to blocking some punts during the game and he decided to go with a safety late in the last period rather than punt from the end zone. After the safety the Tide drew field position close enough for the winning kick.

"We talked it over and decided to go for the safety," Mundra said, "it gave us 15 yards better field position."

Bryant said Florida State "picked at us like children and deserved a lot more than they got."

The Seminoles had taken the opening kickoff and gone on a 78-yard, nine-play rampage to take a 7-0 lead with only four minutes gone.

Late in the third quarter, Florida State's Fred Miller fumbled at his own 31 and Bob Baumhower recovered for the Tide. Four plays later, Berrey got Bama on the scoreboard with a 44-yard field goal, making it 7-3.

Robersonville Burns Elm City

ROBERSONVILLE—Ricky and Frankie Spruill each ran for two touchdowns as the Robersonville Eagles blasted Elm City, 48-0, in an Eastern Plains Conference game, Friday night.

The Eagles ground out 313 yards rushing while holding Elm City to 60. Robersonville also picked up 39 passing.

The Eagles broke into the scoring column with a 34 yard run by Ricky Spruill. Jimmy Stalls added the PAT kick for a 7-0 lead. The Eagles got the ball back later in the frame and turned over another score as Ricky Spruill did it again going in from the ten. Stalls added the extra point.

Jeffery Warren intercepted an Elm City pass in the second quarter to set up another Eagle score. From the Elm City 36, Robin Fowler picked up 14, Frankie Spruill got five and Ricky added two. From the two, Frankie Spruill took it.

Wyatt Daniels returned an Elm City punt 35 yards to open the door to another Eagle score, a 39 yard pass from Warren to Ricky Purvis. Stalls' kick made it 28-0. Frankie Spruill scored again following a fumble recovery by Gordon Jenkins at the Elm City 13. Fowler carried down to the six and Spruill carried twice to get the score.

Daniels, who had a long return earlier, broke one in the third quarter 48 yards for a touchdown.

The final Robersonville touchdown was set up by an interception by Neno Hayes. Donny Matthewson finished off the game by going ten yards for the TD. This time Stalls' missed the extra point after hitting six straight.

Matthewson had 95 yards rushing and Fowler had 77 to pace the Eagles.

Wildlife Afield : Where Are All The Chestnuts?

By JIM DEAN

"Chestnuts roasting on an open fire . . .," sings Nat King Cole. It's a wonderful song, but it always causes a pang of regret. You see, I've never actually seen a chestnut roasting on an open fire, and I think I've missed a part of my heritage.

Almost everybody knows what happened to the American chestnut tree. Back about the turn of the century , a strain of chestnut blight was accidentally introduced from the Orient, and it spread from New York throughout the Appalachians until it had killed every mature chestnut tree.

But many people have forgotten—or were born too late to ever know—what the American chestnut was really like. Few people realize just how important this tree was.

The American chestnut was the most numerous single species of hardwood in the Appalachians from New England to Alabama. Chestnuts accounted for anywhere from one third to three fourths of the hardwood forests.

In other words, there were more chestnuts than oaks or hickories, maples or beeches. The chestnut dominated the forest not only in numbers, but also in size.

It grew taller, reaching heights of 80 to 100 feet, and it was thicker. One chestnut growing in Francis Cove, N. C., had a stump that measured 17 feet across.

The chestnut was considered the most nearly perfect tree. It grew almost anywhere (except on swampy ground) and its lumber was excellent for construction and paper making as well as furniture. Chestnut was practically indestructible and fence posts and rails outlasted the men who placed them. The wood and bark was rich in tannin, making it valuable in making leather from animal hides.

The American chestnut grew rapidly, reaching sawlog sizes in about 50 years. When cut, new sprouts rose out of the stump and reached as high as 10 feet in the first year, thus making it unnecessary to plant seedlings. The trees were never frost-killed because they bloomed in late June or early July and therefore there were always plenty of nuts.

Wild turkeys, deer, bears, squirrels, and other game animals and birds fed heavily upon the many nuts that fell from these trees each year.

At the turn of the century, populations of some game species were quite low. There weren't many deer. The turkey was in trouble. Bears were getting more scarce.

This situation has been largely blamed on the massive logging, forest fires and virtually unrestricted hunting that was going on in the early 1900s, but it seems more than just a coincidence that this was also when the mighty chestnut bit the dust. In fact, the loss of the major contributer to the annual mast crop seems more likely to have caused major problems for wildlife populations than anything else.

Of course, as most know, the restoration of game populations since the turn of the century has been relatively successful through habitat management and enforced hunting regulations. Deer populations are much higher now than at any other time in this century. The turkey is a hopeful candidate for restoration in western North Carolina and early efforts to restock turkeys seem to be paying off. Squirrels seem to be in good shape, but the bear—having lost most of its original mature forest habitat—is still in trouble.

But wouldn't it be nice if the American chestnut could also be returned to its former glory? Surely the return of the chestnut would be beneficial to our present wildlife populations.

So what are the chances? Some blight resistant Oriental chestnuts are being studied (and that's where we still get roasted chestnuts from in some of the large northern cities). But this is not considered the best solution.

The best hope is that a strain of blight-resistant American chestnut can be developed, and scientists are working on it. Already, there is some evidence that the many surviving sprouts of American chestnuts are becoming more blight resistant. The sprouts live longer before the blight gets them, and some have reached four inches in diameter.

Also, there is the hope that a blight-resistant mature chestnut will someday be found somewhere in the vast Appalachians. When, and if, it is ever found, the nuts from such a "grandfather" tree could help restore the chestnut to its former range and glory.

You may be able to help. If you know the whereabouts of a large, living American chestnut, contact the Division of Education of the N. C. Wildlife Resources Commission, 325 N. Salisbury Street, Raleigh, North Carolina 27611. Also any fairly sizeable tree (four-six inches in diameter) with some apparent degree of immunity to blight would be of interest.

We'll pass the information along to the proper scientists, and maybe someday our children and our wildlife populations will again enjoy the benefits of this magnificent tree.

Sunday's Game Is A Must For The Cowboys

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

It may be a little early in the National Football League season to start talking about "must" games but as far as the Dallas Cowboys are concerned, it may not.

The Cowboys, defending National Conference East titlists and perennial playoff participants, have dropped three straight games, their longest losing streak since 1965, and are tied for last place with the New York Giants in the NFC East with a 1-3 record.

Dallas visits St. Louis Sunday to take on the surprising Cardinals, longtime also-rans who are off to their best start since 1966 with a 4-0 record. The Cards are on top in the NFC East and lead the Cowboys by three games. A St. Louis victory wouldn't exactly eliminate the Cowboys but would leave them with an awful lot of catching up to do.

"I've seen us win 10 games in a row before," says Dallas Coach Tom Landry, "But the odds against us are getting greater...We've got to beat the Cardinals."

In other Sunday games, Buffalo is at Baltimore, Cincinnati visits Cleveland, the New York Jets host New England, Pittsburgh invades Kansas City, San Diego entertains Oakland, Houston visits Minnesota, Miami is at Washington, Denver welcomes New Orleans, Atlanta hosts Chicago, Los Angeles plays Green Bay in Milwaukee and the New York Giants are at Philadelphia.

Detroit hosts San Francisco in the Monday night game.

St. Louis is leading the NFC both in points scored and fewest points allowed.

They have scored 11 touchdowns this season and seven of them have been on plays covering 56 yards or longer. Quarterback Jim Hart's long-range bombs to wide receiver Mel Gray and the running of speedster Terry Metcalf have been the main weapons in the St. Louis arsenal.

On the bright side for Dallas, running back Calvin Hill is expected to be at full strength after a series of injuries.

The Cowboys have beaten St. Louis six straight times, including 45-10 and 30-3 routs last season.

Buffalo, with its newly discovered Joe Ferguson-to-Ahmad Rashad pass-catch battery, will be facing the winless Colts who are being shuffled around as new Coach Joe Thomas looks for a winning formula.

Cleveland, on the verge of extinction in the AFC Central Division, will be seeking revenge for an opening-day 33-7 thumping in Cincinnati.

New England, off to their best start since 1964 at 4-0, lead the league in points scored. The Jets will be making their first home appearance after six exhibition and four regular season road games.

Kansas City again will go with Mike Livingston in place of Len Dawson at quarterback against the Steelers, and Chiefs' Coach Hank Stram says Livingston will call his own signals this time. Terry Bradshaw could see some action behind center for Pittsburgh in place of Joe Gilliam.

Ken Stabler, coming off a three-touchdown pass performance against Cleveland, leads Oakland against San Diego where rookie runner Don Woods will be after his third straight 100-yard game.

Houston is the only NFL club which has never won an interconference game and they figure to maintain that record against the Vikings, 4-0, who have won 13 straight at home.

Aging Sonny Jurgensen replaces Bill Kilmer at quarterback for Washington in hopes of juicing up the offense against Miami.

New Orleans, which has lost 17 straight road games, tries again in Denver where the Broncos are coming off their first victory of the year, a 17-14 squeaker over Kansas City.

Chicago, 2-2, needs one more victory to match last season's total. Bob Lee will again try and get the Atlanta offense, tied with New Orleans for fewest points scored in the NFC, into gear.

Los Angeles will be going for its sixth straight triumph over Green Bay. The Packers are having defensive problems and have given up more points than any other NFC team.

Philadelphia hasn't won four straight since 1966 but can do it Sunday by beating the Giants who will go with lefty Jim Del Gaizo at quarterback in place of Norm Snead.

SIX SCORE TWICE

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Six Southeastern Conference Football players scored two touchdowns in their opening games of 1974. Seniors Brad Davis of LSU and Mike Fanuzzi of Kentucky, junior Glynn Harrison of Georgia and sophomores Cal Cullivan of Alabama, Phil Gargis of Auburn and Walt Packer of Mississippi State all reached the end zone twice.

SURPRISES GALORE

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Eileen Gustines and her two young children watched the 94th running of the Alabama Stakes at the fence leading to the backstretch at Saratoga racetrack. She was surprised when her husband, Meliodoro Gustines, yelled to her that he had won the race riding Quaze Quilt.

Florida May Issue Ultimatum

By HOWARD SINER
AP Sports Writer

The Florida Blazers, unhappy about missing salary checks for a month, are talking about issuing a "No pay, No play" ultimatium to the World Football League.

Quarterback Bob Davis, Florida's player representative, indicated that today was the informal deadline for the financially woe-stricken WFL to deliver the checks. He promised decisive action if the team was not paid.

"If we don't get paid Saturday, I'll have a team meeting and my vote will be not to play the next game," said Davis.

The Blazers, leading the WFL Eastern Division with a 11-4 record, are scheduled to play next Wednesday at Memphis.

"The league is already in default on its contract with the players," said linebacker Billy Hobbs. "If we don't get the money Saturday there are going to be definite problems."

The WFL, which has already given each Blazer $200, said enough money had been sent to Orlando, Fla., to provide each player with half of his back pay. But the money did not arrive Friday as planned.

Stained Glass Is For Artisans

By DEBORAH FRAZIER

DENVER (UPI) — In 1886, Charles Watkins packed his stained glass and tools in a covered wagon and headed for Denver from Detroit. Four generations later, the Watkins studio still is going strong.

"There were just a bunch of miners in Denver when my grandfather first came out, and they weren't much interested in stained glass," Phil Watkins Sr., said.

Watkins, his wife, Alice, and their son, Phil, run the studio alone although it once employed 25 artisans.

"I remember going into my father's studio in the 1920s and seeing the windows, all framed, stacked up to the ceiling," Watkins said. "The contractors would come in on Saturday and buy them all up."

Watkins said at that time, windows were made up a hundred or so at a time, with the design varied a little before the next batch was produced.

According to Phil Jr., the studio now makes "something over 30 but less than 100 a year."

Glass for windows is produced in two general ways. The more difficult method involves blowing molten glass into a hollow cylinder, slitting the side and then flattening the curved piece out for cooling.

The second method, considered by some to produce a less artistic piece of glass, consists of pouring molten glass onto a large iron plate, rolling the substance with hot iron rollers for uniform thickness, and then allowing it to cool.

Watkins said neither the principles nor the tools of the art have changed much in the 500 years since European crusaders brought the craft back from Islam, although the techniques for glass making have been simplified at the expense of color and quality.

He said to become skilled in the craft, a person must first be an apprentice for five years.

"During the first two years, an apprentice breaks a lot of glass and ruins a lot of material before he starts to make a studio any money," Watkins said. "But unless you stay with it and become skilled in design and the craft, your window will look the same in a railroad station as it would in a church."

Watkins, his father and his son all began in the family studio by age eight as floor sweepers. They graduated to cementers, cutters and upward until after receiving college degrees in art, they became full craftsmen.

Watkins earned his degree, was a pilot in World War II in Egypt and stayed on there as an airline pilot.

"But after a while, I returned to my father's studio to start at $44 a week, and I knew I had made the right decision," Watkins said.

Watkins has orders from 34 states, ranging from churches to bars, from airports to schools. He said 30 to 40 of the windows in Colorado's statehouse came from the studio over a 100-year period.

He said most windows the studio makes are for churches, with modern designs favored over traditional. Watkins also said more people are beginning to buy stained glass windows for their homes.

"For quite a while, people were afraid if they got a stained glass window for their home, people would come in on Sunday, take a seat and wait for the preacher," he said.

Although the studio usually runs a year behind on orders, Watkins says he doesn't plan to expand or take on extra help.

"With a small studio, you can keep a finger on everyone, and here anyone of us can see a window through from the first drawing to putting it in.

"In the big studios, everyone is specialized—one person talks to the customer, another does the sketch, another the cutting and so on. In the end, hardly anyone recognizes the window.

"I am not out to be a tycoon. I drive a Chevrolet, live in a small house and try to be fair to my customers. The work is good and I enjoy it."

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

A recent nationwide survey of more than one thousand representative home-owning families forecasts record spending of $35.4 billion on home improvements this year, up 14 per cent from last year's $22.3 billion. By outdistancing the 12 per cent annual rate of inflation, this spending represents real growth in a booming market for building supply dealers.

How are people spending this money? More than $3.4 billion will go for kitchen remodeling, $2.7 billion for add-a-room projects and $1.6 for new roofing, with the rest divided among a wide variety of home improvements, the major one the remodeling of bathrooms.

Paralleling the growth in home modernization is a surge in the number of do-it-yourself projects. Of the most frequent remodeling projects, the survey found that nearly three out of four respondents who finished their basements did the work themselves. Almost two-thirds modernized their bathrooms by themselves and slightly more than one half made kitchen remodeling a do-it-yourself project.

What lies behind the "bull market" in home remodeling? "Making the home a more enjoyable place to live," according to Harold Sugarman, publisher of Building Supply News, is listed as the prime motivation for modernization by 81 per cent of the respondents. This probably is a reflection of the growing tendency among homeowners to spend more of their time at home due to uncertainty generated by the energy crunch.

Double-digit inflation also is forcing many prospective homebuyers to shelve their moving plans. Experts estimate the cost of moving, all things considered, at about 10 per cent of the price of a new home. According to the Wall Street Journal, the median price for a new single-family home has jumped a phenomenal 50 per cent since 1970, to $35,000. That means a consumer who purchases a home at that price faces an extra bill of $3,550, which includes a lot of things besides the physical movement of household goods.

Remodeling could be cheaper. The most expensive home improvement, according to the survey, is adding a room. Its average cost is $3,221. Expanding an attic into a living area costs an average of $2,354. Putting a room in the basement averages $837.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

Now Loch Ness To Have Its Monster

LONDON (AP) — Loch Ness, whose murky waters rate as one of Scotland's top tourist attractions, is getting a monster visitors will be able to get a look at.

The "real life" monster — in concrete and steel — was commissioned by the local Preservation Group.

For decades the legendary prehistoric monster said to lurk in the Scottish Loch has evaded hunters, although numerous sightings have been claimed.

For years the Loch Ness Preservation Group has maintained round-the-clock vigils around the loch without any positive proof. Now the group has had its own Nessie made by London artist Alan Ross.

An authority on prehistoric creatures, Ross builds life-size cement and steel models which have been exhibited in many countries.

"Nessie was my most challenging assignment," says Ross. "Reports and pictures of monster sightings at Loch Ness and similar lakes in Finland, Ireland and Canada indicate that Nessie is probably a prehistoric Elasmosaurus," he added.

Ross, a firm believer that Nessie does exist, says it is probably about 50 feet long, 14 feet wide from fin to fin and just over 13 feet high.

His full-size replica, made in southern England, had to be towed to Scotland on a trailer — with a police escort.

Slow Cruise In Their Model A

QUINCY, Mass. (AP) — Some people take a cruise on an ocean liner for their honeymoons. Not Leon and Lou se Vaupel — they spent their 1974 honeymoon cruising through the U.S. in a 1929 Model A Ford.

The Vaupels, of Davis Junction, Ill., stopped in Quincy to see John Quincy Adams' house — one of many stops they made in their 6,000-mile jaunt.

Leon says the couple have never been stopped for speeding. "How can you get a ticket going 40 or 45 miles an hour?" he asked.

The Garden Clinic

N. C. State University Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. When and how do you prune nandina? (Mrs. C. W., Greensboro)

A. Nandina is best if pruned late in the winter or early spring. Cut away the oldest and largest stems at the ground. This forces energy into the new growth, resulting in a nandina clump that is full of foliage from the ground to the tip of the plants. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. Can hemlocks be grown in this area? (T. P, Apex)

A. You can grow hemlocks about as well as you can grow white pines and banana trees. Occasionally, you will be successful but most of the time you will be disappointed with trees planted outside their natural range. If you want to try a hemlock, select a deep, rich, moist, well-drained site that never gets soppy. (Fred Whitfield, extension forester).

Q. The sweet potatoes that I started digging from my vegetable garden have holes in them but no insects. What's the problem and what can I do? (W. B., Dunn)

A. If the holes are large gouged out areas, the damage could be caused by mice or rats. If the gouging is smaller, it could be done by grub worms; and if the holes are about one eighth of an inch across, they could be caused by wireworms. If they are smaller, the problem could be flea beetles. Send samples of injured potatoes to the Plant Disease and Insect Clinic, Gardner Hall, N. C. State University, Raleigh, North Carolina 27607, for a positive identification of the problem and control recommendations. (H. E. Scott, extension entomologist)

Q. Why do I have difficulty producing Irish potatoes in the fall? (H. G., Williamston)

A. Irish potatoes have a rest or dormant period during which they will not sprout. Also, soil borne decay organisms are likely to be more active at higher soil temperatures. These two factors alone or in combination can result in poor stands; hence, difficulty in producing fall potatoes. (W. W. Reid, extension horticulturist)

BE CAUTIOUS WITH DEEDS

Probably the deed to your property is filed away, all but forgotten. Probably you've never checked it since the day it served to pass title from the previous owner to you. Perhaps you didn't even check it then. There may have been no urgent reason to. Nevertheless, an apparently secure deed can turn out to be a worthless piece of paper.

For instance, suppose the deeds states the name of the seller, but doesn't contain his signature? Suppose the seller was under 21? Suppose the seller died before you received the deed? Suppose there's an error in the way the deed describes the property?

Any of these defects — as well as many others — could make your deed invalid. But defective deeds are the exception, not the rule, so don't be frightened. Just be cautious. And the best way to be cautious is to deal with a reputable real estate professional and a knowledgeable real estate lawyer.

Nuclear Reactor Safety Continues Questionmark

EDITOR'S NOTE — Are the nation's nuclear power plants safe? What about those to be built in the next decade? Theoretically, they're safe. But theory has not yet been fully tested in experiments. And day-to-day operation of some reactors is turning up problems no one thought would occur.

By WILLIAM STOCKTON
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—By 1985, nearly one-third of the nation's electricity is to be produced by nuclear reactors. But their safety is in doubt and might remain in doubt for years.

More than 110 reactors across the country now are operating or being built. By the early 1980s, there are to be 250 of the costly installations producing 29 per cent of the nation's electricity.

Despite the Atomic Energy Commission's assurances that the reactors are safe, critics say the nation is staking much of its future energy supply on a technology that might in time be proven unsafe.

most of what is now known about reactor safety is based on computer analyses and simulations of reactor behavior. There have been no full-scale tests of reactor safety systems under emergency conditions.

These experiments won't take place until 1977. Even then, disagreements may continue because some experts contend the experiments overlook potential reactor accidents.

On Sept. 20, the SEC ordered 15 reactors shut down within 60 days so that inspections — lasting a day or two — can be made of small auxiliary pipes that are part of larger pipes which carry cooling water to reactor fuel. Cracks in pipes at two reactors have been found.

Also in September, Carl J. Hocevar, a reactor safety expert, resigned his post at the AEC's Idaho Falls, Idaho, reactor test facility where much safety research has been conducted. Hocevar's letter of resignation said he was quitting "in order to be free to tell the American people about the potentially dangerous conditions in the nation's nuclear power plants."

Dixy Lee Ray, the AEC chairman, dispatched the agency's top safety research administrator in late September to meet with scientists at Idaho Falls and discuss their concerns.

The reactor safety controversy usually pits the Atomic Energy Commission and the nuclear power industry against small citizens' groups around the country. Prominent scientists have lined up on both sides of the debate.

The New England Coalition on Nuclear Pollution, with 100 members, is typical of the dozen or more organizations seeking to prevent construction of nuclear power plants.

The central issue is whether the giant reactors can be operated without dangerous releases of radiation. These could come through small daily emissions or because of a non-nuclear explosion caused by a mechanical failure that no one thought would occur.

Nuclear reactor safety and the problems with which it plagues the reactor industry are symbolized by the Vermont Yankee reactor in Vernon, Vt., a rural village of 200 people on the banks of the Connecticut River. During 23 months of operation, Vermont Yankee has shut down 17 times because of accidents, equipment failures, lightning strikes, or to correct dangerous conditions.

The safety experts centered their attention recently on Valve V10-25A, a steel alloy valve, larger than a man, deep inside Vermont Yankee. Secured behind locked doors in a room of concrete walls filled with oppressive heat and machinery noise, V10-25A hangs in silent repose anticipating the catastrophic accident everyone hopes will never occur.

Valve V10-25A is part of Vermont Yankee's emergency system. AEC rules require monthly tests of the 1,000-pound valve, which releases cool water into the reactor if the primary water cooling system fails.

But last March 4 when engineers in the reactor control room three floors above flipped a black toggle switch to open V10-25A, nothing happened. The valve gate was stuck. The electric motor supposed to crank it open quickly burned out.

Vermont Yankee officials said the valve failure wouldn't have threatened safety if the command to open had come during an emergency. Other emergency systems would have taken over, preventing the reactor from overheating to the point that fuel rods melt and radioactivity is released.

But the failure was another in a string of problems plaguing the $217 million reactor since it started up late in 1972 after five years' construction.

Problems with nuclear fuel rods have caused higher than expected releases of radioactive gases.

Through operator error the reactor was partially started up last year while the reactor pressure vessel was open and workers were inside the reactor containment building. Automatic safety equipment took over and shut down the plant. No one was injured.

In all, Vermont Yankee reported 39 abnormal occurrences to the ACC in 1973 and 12 more through the first seven months of 1974.

Vermont Yankee's difficulties are typical of those besetting many nuclear reactors. The AEC compiled 861 abnormal occurrences in 1973 for all reactors and a similar number the year before.

Taken singly, the problems haven't threatened public safety. Nuclear power advocates point to the industry's safety record — no member of the public ever has been injured. However, several plant workers have been hurt by radiation.

Reactor manufacturers and the public utility companies that operate the plants contend the problems are an inevitable result of working the bugs out of a new, highly complex technology.

The debate about catastrophic accidents centers upon the nuclear fuel inside metal rods suspended in a reactor's pressure vessel. The pressure vessel is a large, sealed metal bottle.

Nuclear fission in the fuel produces vast heat which is carried away by water flowing over the fuel rods. The heat produces steam to spin turbines that generate electricity.

Heat from fissioning nuclear fuel quickly would melt the fuel rods, releasing enourmous quantities of deadly radiation to the pressure vessel and the reactor containment, a concrete dome surrounding the pressure vessel.

Hydrogen gas might be generated in the process. If it exploded, the containment might be ruptured, relasing clouds of radion-laden steam.

To prevent this, elaborate emergency systems, similar to Vermont Yankee's, stand ready to flood reactor cores with water.

With some exceptions, most experts agree the emergency systems would supply the necessary water if all components functioned properly.

But there is a sharp disagreement over whether the water would prevent a reactor core meltdown.

Nuclear critics claim that emergency flood water flow patterns would be different, producing hot spots in the fuel rods. Melting could result, further disrupting water flow and producing more melting.

The nuclear reactor industry contends this won't happen. It bases its confidence on complex calculations and computer-generated mathematical models of reactor behavior.

Noting the high incidence of abnormal occurrences at nuclear reactors, an AEC task force this year called for tougher inspections throughout the reactor industry. To prevent problems like Vermont Yankee's stuck valves, the task force said, the quality of reactor design, construction and operation should be more closely monitored.

Emphasizing during an interview that he spoke only for himself, Herbert J. C. Kouts, head of the AEC's reactor safety research program, called for creation of rigorous standards that would assure the use of "nuclear grade" equipment in key reactor areas.

"Just because a valve has worked well in a chemical plant doesn't mean it's O.K. for a nuclear reactor," Kouts said.

Other Drugs; Not Marijuana

Kelly Martin Harrington, 23, of 3003 East Tenth St., arrested by Greenville police Tuesday on charges of illegal possession of drugs in connection with an incident on Dickinson Avenue October 8, 1973, allegedly had in his possession phenobarbital and other drugs rather than marijuana as reported in Wednesday's edition of The Daily Reflector.

Harrington was placed under a $1,500 bond on the charge.

DEAR ABBY: I've never seen a problem like mine in your column, but here goes.

First off, I'm a girl, I've always lived out in the country. I grew up near a neighbor kid I'll call Danny. He was just like a brother to me and has always been my closest and dearest friend.

I am engaged to a fellow I'll call Earl. We're getting married in a little country church and I'm planning my wedding.

I know the bride is suppose to ask her best friend to stand up for her. Well, I don't have a girl friend I'm really close to, or a sister or even a cousin I can ask, so instead of having a "maid of honor," why can't I ask Danny to be my "man of honor?" He is certainly my best friend, and I can't see anything wrong with it.

Earl thinks it's a neat idea, and Danny said he would be honored to stand up for me, but my parents say people will think we are crazy.

What do you think? MAKING PLANS

DEAR MAKING: I think it's a neat idea, too. A friend is a friend. What difference does gender make?

DEAR ABBY: I sure get a lot of laughs out of your column. It brightens my day. But something bothers me. Why is there so much jealousy in marriage?

My late husband used to call up some of his old girl friends and play records to them over the phone. So what? He knew these ladies before he knew me, and he could have married any one of them, but he married me instead, so what did I have to be jealous of?

This was a second marriage for both of us. I was a "girl" of 68, and he was a "kid" of 86. We both loved to dance, and he took me dancing three nights a week until he was 95. Then his doctor told him to cut it down to once a week so he did. He passed away at 97, and I sure do miss him.

I'm not complaining. We had eleven good years together which we never would have had if we had been jealous of each other.

You can print this if you want to. It might teach something to those young folks who think if you're not jealous you're not in love. And you can sign it "Edna" because that's my real name. EDNA

DEAR EDNA: Thanks for a wonderful letter. You've brightened MY day.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow in comfortable circumstances. My daughter divorced a very wealthy man six years ago. (He was in oil.) She got a good settlement, seeing as how she caught him in the act with another woman.

I live in Colorado and my daughter lives in Texas. She had written that she was serious about a bachelor (also in oil) so I wasn't surprised when she called and invited me to the wedding.

She really went all out with a catered sit-down dinner for 200 guests. At the reception someone complimented my daughter on the elegance of the affair and she said: "Oh, Mother is paying for all this." Then she laughed and said: 'I was only kidding."

My question: Was she? Am I obligated to pay for her wedding? Her father and I paid for the first one.

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: Are YOU kidding? Certainly not, You weren't consulted about the plans or the cost, so forget it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO JINNY: No need to feel phony. A good wife laughs at her husband's jokes—not because they're clever, but because SHE is.

Could Save

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Virginia Electric & Power Co. said Friday a revision in the Federal ration's allocation program for residual oil could save Vepco customers in Virginia and North Carolina up to $50 to $75 million next year.

T. Justin Moore, Vepco president, asked the federal agency to revise its allocation program in a telegram to FEA Administrator John C. Sawhill.

The FEA reportedly is considering four alternative proposals to the present system of allocating oil under the Emergency Petroleum Act of 1973.

Vepco urged the FEA to reject the first two alternatives. Moore said the first would retain the present system and the second, which provides for a single market price for oil, would be inflationary.

Moore asked that the FEA adopt the third and fourth proposals, which allow all importers to share the less expensive oil.

Vepco said one of its suppliers of imported oil has jacked the price the utility pays by 40 cents per barrel.

The increase was a result of an additional tax recently imposed by the Venezuelan government on oil shipped to the United States, Moore said.

Vepco now uses either imported crude oil or decontrolled U.S.-produced oil, both of which are more expensive than residual, or "old oil," being sold under price controls, Moore said.

Vepco said the imported oil it is using now costs between $10 and $12 a barrel, compared with $5.25 per barrel for residual oil.

Moore said Vepco uses 25 million barrels of imported fuel oil annually. He told Sawhill the price of the oil has increased 270 per cent since January 1973.

"The present situation will become even more inequitable with any additional price increases," said W. N. Thomas, vice president for fuel resources.

"Utilities in some areas are allocated large quantities of the old oil at $5.25 per barrel while companies such as Vepco are having to pay nearly twice as much for the imported variety."

In a related development Friday, Norfolk mayor Irvine B. Hill said he'll ask city council to support a study to determine the feasibility of Norfolk's generating its own power and dispensing with Vepco.

"The objective is to save the taxpayers money," he said.

Local governments in Virginia pay Vepco a lower rate than is charged residential or industrial customers.

But Virginia's State Corporation Commission, which granted Vepco a 22.5 per cent emergency rate increase earlier this month, is studying a possible increase of these rates.

Hill said Norfolk could either take over Vepco's facilities in the city or build its own generating plant, but the latter option would cost about $200 million and would require a revenue bond referendum.

Has Her Legs Amputated

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Mrs. Bette Craig Moore, 43-year-old estranged wife of State Sen. Herman A. Moore, D-Mecklenburg, has had both legs amputated as a result of burns.

Police said she apparently doused herself with charcoal lighter fluid and ignited it Sept. 19 at her Charlotte home.

Mrs. Moore is reported in critical condition at North Carolina Memorial Hospital, where was transferred for treatment Sept. 26.

Police said Mrs. Moore had called a radio talk show shortly before she was burned and told the producer that her life had lost all meaning.

Scandal Does Not Spur Voters To Vote

By MARY GANZ
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — As wave upon wave of political scandal breaks over public officials, do the American people rise up in indignation and march to the polls in record numbers?

No.

The American people read of the scandals in the headlines, yawn, and flip to the sports section—or so it seems from an informal survey of voter turnout this year in Southeastern states.

In Florida, 26 per cent of those registered showed up for this year's Democratic primary. It was the lowest voter turnout in 22 years.

In North Carolina, turnout dropped from 35 per cent in 1966, the last off-year senatorial primary, to 27 per cent this year.

In Georgia, 48 per cent of registered Democrats and Republicans voted in the 1970 primaries. Forty-one per cent voted this year.

Many officials blame the Watergate scandals outright for voter apathy.

"The American people are sick of politics, sick of people in government," said Georgia Secretary of State Ben Fortson. "We're in such a state in this country that people blame politicians for all of it."

Dorothy Glisson, Florida secretary of state, agreed. "People say what difference does it make, the candidates tell them one thing and do another."

Voter turnout was down all over the Southeast, even in states where active campaigning figured to raise voter interest. But officials in some states discounted the Watergate impact on apathy.

"I don't think Watergate had anything to do with it," said Heber Ladner, Mississippi secretary of state. "There has been a pattern of turnout decline in off-year elections. You have got to have heated campaigns to get the voters out."

Primaries were held this year in three of Mississippi's congressional districts, and participation was 97,948. The same three districts turned out 189,554 voters in 1972.

Tennessee was the only state in the region where voter turnout held steady with the last comparable year. About 50 per cent of the registered voters turned out in 1970 and again this year.

But turnout in this year's Democratic primary—where 12 candidates were scrambling for the party's nomination for governor—was down from 508,000 four years ago to 450,000 this year. Republican turnout, on the other hand, zipped from 245,000 in 1970 to 390,000 this year.

Democrats say the confusing number of candidates on their ballot kept voters away. Republicans, like Ron Reitdorf, GOP state executive secretary, say the size of the Republican vote shows that "Tennessee now has a fully-developed twoparty system."

Both parties are predicting high turnouts in the November election.

Meanwhile, voter turnout was down in primaries in South Carolina

Heavy Damage In Collisions

Almost $8,000 property damage resulted from a series of five traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Friday.

Heaviest damage reported resulted from a 1:30 p.m. collision at the intersection of Fifth and Cotanche Streets and involved cars driven by Harold Carlton Elliot Jr. of 1202A East 14th St. and Floyd Woodrow Gray of Washington, N. C.

Damage was estimated at $2,000 to the Elliot car and $1,000 to the Gray auto by officers who charged Gray with failing to stop for a stop light.

Phyllis Leona Williams, 2614 Tryon Dr. was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of an 11:13 a.m. collison at the intersection of 14th and Charles Streets.

Police said the Williams car collided with an auto driven by Larry James Early Sr. of 1719 South Greene St. causing an estimated $800 damage to the Williams car and $900 damage to the Early vehicle.

Willie Alex Reid Jr. of 1404 Spruce St. was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety after his car collided with a parked car owned by Terry Evel Pollard of Route 1, Greenville about 11:52 p.m. on Raleigh Avenue 183 feet East of the Myrtle Avenue intersection.

Police estimated damage at $800 to the Reid car and $300 to the Pollard auto.

No charges were reported when cars driven by Jessie Alton Smith of 1603 Garland St. and Howard Ivey Savlo of Route 1, Hookerton collided at 6:20 p.m. on Memorial Drive 305 feet South of the Dexter Street intersection.

Damage in the collision was estimated at $650 to the Smith car and $350 to the Savlo car.

A vehicle driven by Lena MacDail Faulkner of Ayden collided with a parked car about 10:30 a.m. on Evans Street south of the Eight Street intersection.

Damage to the Faulkner car was set at $100 while damage to the parked vehicle, owned by S. G. Wilkerson and Sons Funeral Home was placed at $195.

No charges were made.

Seaman May Come To U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Lithuanian seaman who sought asylum on a U.S. Coast Guard cutter four years ago, only to be dragged back to his ship and imprisoned for treason, now is being permitted to leave the Soviet Union, a congressman says.

The State Department has determined that Kudirka has a valid claim to American citizenship through his mother, a U.S. citizen living in Lithuania, Morgan said.

Bride's Name.

sorship. They, along with my older brother and the family of my bride to be are primarily responsible for the arrangements. You could say they have given their blessings to Kazuko and myself."

Kazuko, whose father is prominent in manufacturing circles, is a native of Kazo City; Satoru's home town is Chigasaki City. "Both these places are a short distance from Tokyo," Satoru said, "so we both feel Tokyo is our home." Kazuko is a graduate of Chuo University, where she majored in English literature.

On the return trip to the U.S., the couple have plans to make stops in Hawaii and Chicago before coming back to Greenville.

Asked if he expected to encounter any problems in remembering his new name when he returns to Greenville, Satoru grinned. "No, I don't think so. Right now most people in Greenville and around the university call me Tanabe, but anyway that will not make much difference. I'll be Mr. Matsumoto, and for the chance to marry Kazuko it will be worth making a change in name."

Correction

The first paragraph in the second column, beginning with the fifth line should read: "packed into an open place on the shores of the Roanoke facing the false facade of a riverboat, the 'Roanoke Queen.' Older people sat on rows of folding chairs. Younger couples stood at back and around the sides. Smaller children sat on the dusty ground. . ." etc.

Beginning with the fourth line of the third paragraph in the second column text should read: "changing variety of musical accompaniment. . ." etc.

Mortgage rates are terribly high, and maybe they'll drop a bit if you wait. But the cost of houses is rising, so the higher price you might have to pay if you wait could offset any saving you get from a lower interest rate on the mortgage. Weigh that point when deciding and let us tell you about our new trade in program if you need that larger home.

It Is No Joke: London Sinking

By GREGORY JENSEN

LONDON (UPI) — Help. London is sinking.

That is no joke in a low-lying metropolis skewered on an arm of the sea. If it were funny, London wouldn't be spending millions to eliminate a remote but all too possible catastrophe.

Last month air raid sirens left over from the World War II blitz wailed out six 30-second blasts as a flood warning test. It was the last test. Next time the sirens sound Londoners should take to higher ground.

All summer workmen have labored on the River Thames' banks. Retaining walls were raised. Where none existed, new ones were built, doing violence to a lot of gardens.

For London's problem is the tame Thames.

This seems a ridiculous proposition. On its own the Thames is the gentlest of rivers, twisting like a lazy snake from west to east through London's heart toward the river mouth 25 miles downstream.

But twice a day North Sea tides make the Thames run backwards. All through the city they push the river high onto its artificial banks.

Too high. Routinely the river spills over the top in tiny areas —Putney reach, beneath Hammersmith Bridge, along Chiswick reach, onto Strand-on-the-Green opposite Kew Gardens.

Every year it spills further. For every year London, like all of southeast England, sinks about a third of an inch.

In the 1960s Prof. Undres Schofield of the University of Manchester pinpointed this sinking as one ingredient in an unlikely but possible devil's brew.

Start with heavy rain, add an extra-heavy tide, whip that with strong northeast winds pushing even more water up the estuary and London would be swimming.

Schofield said such a freak flood could cause 1 billion pounds ($2.3 billion) worth of damage. A small flood in 1928 killed 14 people in central London.

"If the Thames defenses are breached by only one inch all the way along, that's an awful lot of water," said Alec Williamson, spokesman for the Greater London Council.

The council's ultimate defense is the Thames Burrier, an elaborate 10-gated flood control device across the river at Woolwich.

The barrier, already three years a-building, should be finished in 1979. The new retaining walls are designed to tame the Thames until then.

The over-all cost is now estimated at 243 million pounds ($459 million), Williamson said.

"But the benefit is incredible," Prof. Schofield said. In the 1960s he estimated the possibility of a catastrophic London flood at 1 in 10. Now, even before the Thames Barrier is finished, he puts the chances at 1 in 100.

Introduced To Tennis At Early Age

By PATRICIA MOORE

The daughter of a tennis pro, Barbara Close grew up in a tennis-playing family. Introduced to the game at the age of eight, she took to it like a duck takes to water.

Before that time, she served as a "ball girl" for her father, which exposed her to the sport and aroused interest in it. Her father, the late Earl Bossong, believed that prior to the age of eight or nine a child lacked the co-ordination and maturity to learn the game well.

By the time she was in high school, Mrs. Close was on the tennis team in Hollywood, Fla., and during her junior and senior years ranked as its number one player.

For the past two years she has been Ladies' City Singles Champion and she and Mrs. Frances Cain have held the Ladies City Doubles Championship for Greenville.

Though she loves the game, which has played an important part in her life, she never thought about becoming a pro. "My family comes first," she firmly asserts.

The family includes daughter Ginny, who at seven is a ball girl just as her mother once was; and son Chris, age nine. She recalls that her first date with her husband, Frank, was a tennis game which he won. Dr. Close is an associate professor in the ECU School of Business.

In the years since she was young, Mrs. Close has seen changes in the game of tennis, both as a popular sport and as an active career for women.

Tennis "used to be an expensive sport," she recalls, "mainly because you played on private courts so you had to be a member of a country club to play." Cost of equipment and dress also were expensive.

Tennis Is Popular

Now there are public courts, so the player's major investments are a racket and balls and whatever tennis attire is desired. "There has been a trememdous increase in tennis. It is more popular than golf now," Mrs. Close notes. She reflected that this may be partially due to the fact that "with our fast pace of life now we can play a game of tennis in an hour or hour and a half and get plenty of exercise. Golf takes several hours."

Good women tennis players such as Billie Jean King and Christ Evert have also created an interest in the sport. "Women can play in tournaments and win money," Mrs. Close pointed out. There are tennis scholarships for women, which are an incentive, since one could earn her way through college on a tennis scholarship as well as make a living as a pro. And women pros are becoming more plentiful, both at country clubs and other places.

In this part of the country, the mild year-round climate allows year-round tennis playing. The warmer climates such as California and Florida have traditionally assured that tennis could be played all year and may be a factor in those states providing many of the sport's finer players, Mrs. Close noted.

With the growth in tennis' popularity, however, indoor courts are being provided in some of the cooler climates so that enthusiasts may have access to their favorite sport in more places more of the time.

Recreation

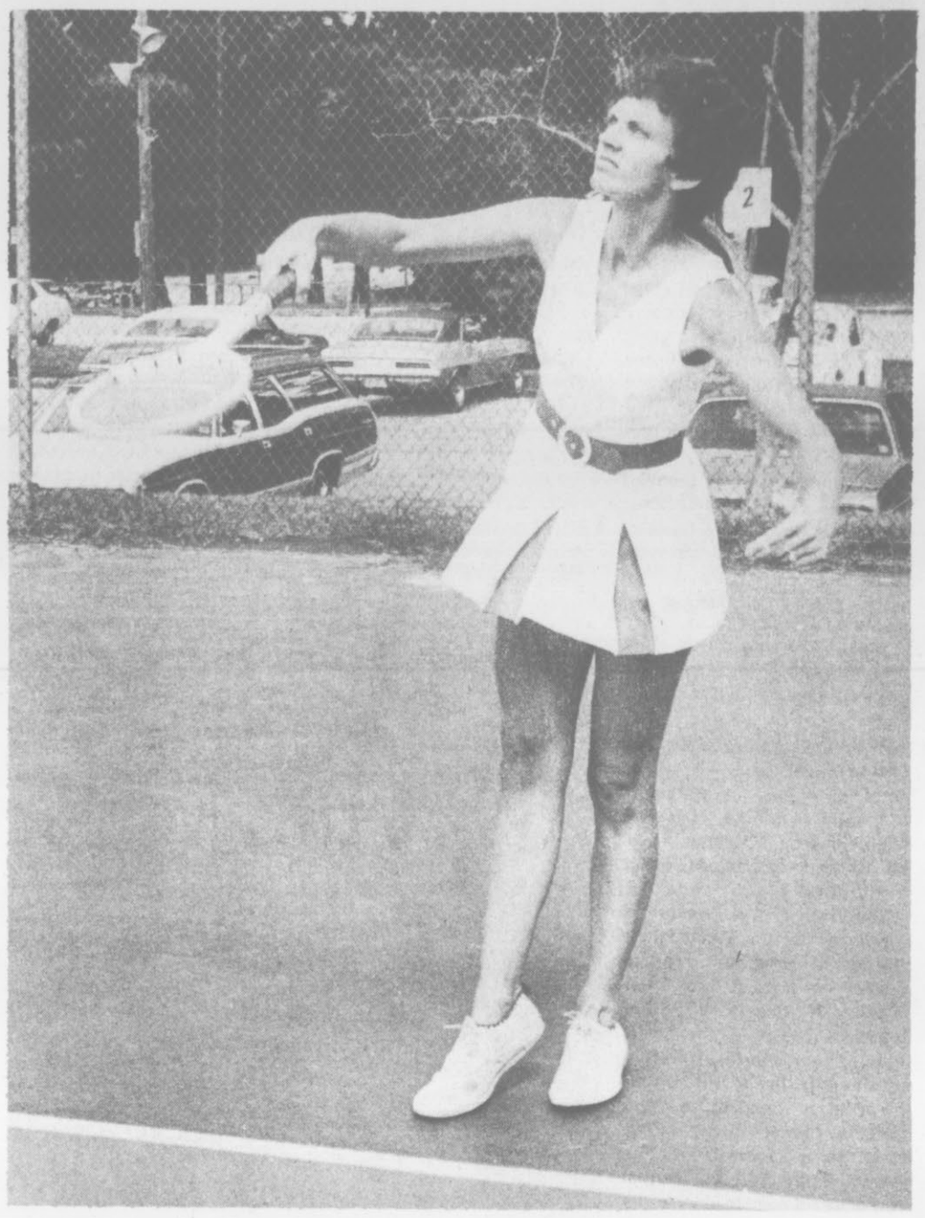
Though many regard tennis as a serious sport, Mrs. Close enjoys the game as recreation and as a way of being outdoors, Another reason she enjoys tennis is that "you meet more nice people playing tennis—outgoing and pleasant people, people you would like to be friends with."

Though tennis has undergone changes such as a growth in popularity and in women stars, the basic principles of manners and sportsmanship taught by her father still hold true for Mrs. Close.



LADIES' CITY SINGLES CHAMP . . .Barbara Close demonstrates both good tennis form and stylish attire during a recent game at Elm Street park courts.

And he used the same teaching methods for her as for some of his better known students such a Barry McKay, Tony Trabert and Billy Talbert, who became national tennis stars.

Mrs. Close remembers her father's emphasis on playing one's best rather than winning. "He said you could not win every time. You have to learn to lose gracefully," she noted. He also stressed tennis appearance, which he believed was indicative of how one would play. A tennis player should dress like a tennis player, Mrs. Closes believes.

She also believes that a good attitude towards the game excludes foul language and bad temper. "You let off steam by hitting the ball," she said. The temper belongs in the privacy of one's home, she believes.

Like herself, her sister, brother and mother still pursue tennis as an active sport.

Mrs. Close has other interests, too. She served as membership chairman of the Pitt County Association for Retarded Children and works with children at the Elm Street Tennis Club, where the Closes hold family membership. She is a member of the East Carolina Tennis Association Ladies League Summer and Spring. Her other hobbies are bridge, piano, reading and the family's newest joing hobby—sailing.

Air Pollutant Contributes To Yellowing Of Fabrics

By ELISABETH NEWNAM
UNC-G News Bureau

GREENSBORO — Nitrogen oxide, a common air pollutant, has been found to be responsible for the yellowing of many white fabrics, according to Dr. Victor Salvin, a textile chemist at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Dr. Salvin, a professor in the UNC-G School of Home Economics, has been conducting research into the "yellowing problem" for the past three years.

"The yellowing of white fabrics and yarns has long been recognized as due to the combined effects of light, heat and aging," explained Salvin. "We also knew air pollution had an effect, but until now that effect has not been clearly established."

Dr. Salvin presented his findings Wednesday at the National Technical Conference of the American Association of Textile Chemists and Colorists in New Orleans.

Recognized as a leading authority on the effects of atmospheric pollutants on textiles, Dr. Salvin began this research project in 1971 with a $19,434 grant from the Office of Air Pollution Control under the Environmental Protection Agency in Washington.

The identification of nitrogen oxide as a cause of yellowing is particularly significant to the fabric and clothing industry. According to Dr. Salvin, these manufacturers lose between $30 million to $40 million annually due to the yellowing of white materials before it reaches the retail market.

Nitrogen oxide, a common air pollutant, exists in the atmosphere with ozone, sulfur dioxide, and hydrogen sulfide where the combustion of gasoline or other fuels occurs. Salvin said it is common in many warehouses where fabric is stored before being sent to the retailer. Often the result, he noted, is a product so discolored it cannot be sold.

"Thousands of pairs of women's white stockings yellow before they can even be put on the market," said Salvin. "The cost, both of replacing the product and in trying to uncover the cause for the yellowing, is tremendous."

Salvin's research involved 18 serious complaint fabrics, samples of which were sent to him by various manufacturers. He experiemented with each, establishing that nitrogen oxide reacts chemically with certain additives to white fiber, rather than with the fiber itself. It is this reaction, he said, which causes the yellowing.

One exception, Salvin noted, is spandex, a polyurethane fiber which reacts directly with oxides of nitrogen and becomes yellow. Spandex is a fiber commonly used in the manufacture of lingerie, particularly bras and girdles.

According to Salvin, there are at least four additives which cause yellowing when exposed to nitrogen oxide. The four are: optical brightener, which is said to make fabric "whiter than white;" fabric softener; and anti-static agent; and a chemical applied to rubberized cotton. He cautioned, however, that there are different types of each additive, and not all react in the same way with nitrogen oxide.

"The chemical additives are the result of each manufacturer trying to come up with a 'better fabric," explained Salvin. "They are essentially a cosmetic treatment of the fabric—to make it softer, or brighter. Not all of them will turn yellow, but many do. Sometimes the cosmetic works, sometimes the manufacturer falls on his face."

Salvin became interested in the yellowing of white fabrics while conducting a survey on the effects of air pollution on dyed and undyed fabrics for the Environmental Protection Agency several years ago. Undyed fabrics represent about 10 percent of the $70 billion production of textile products in the U.S. each year.

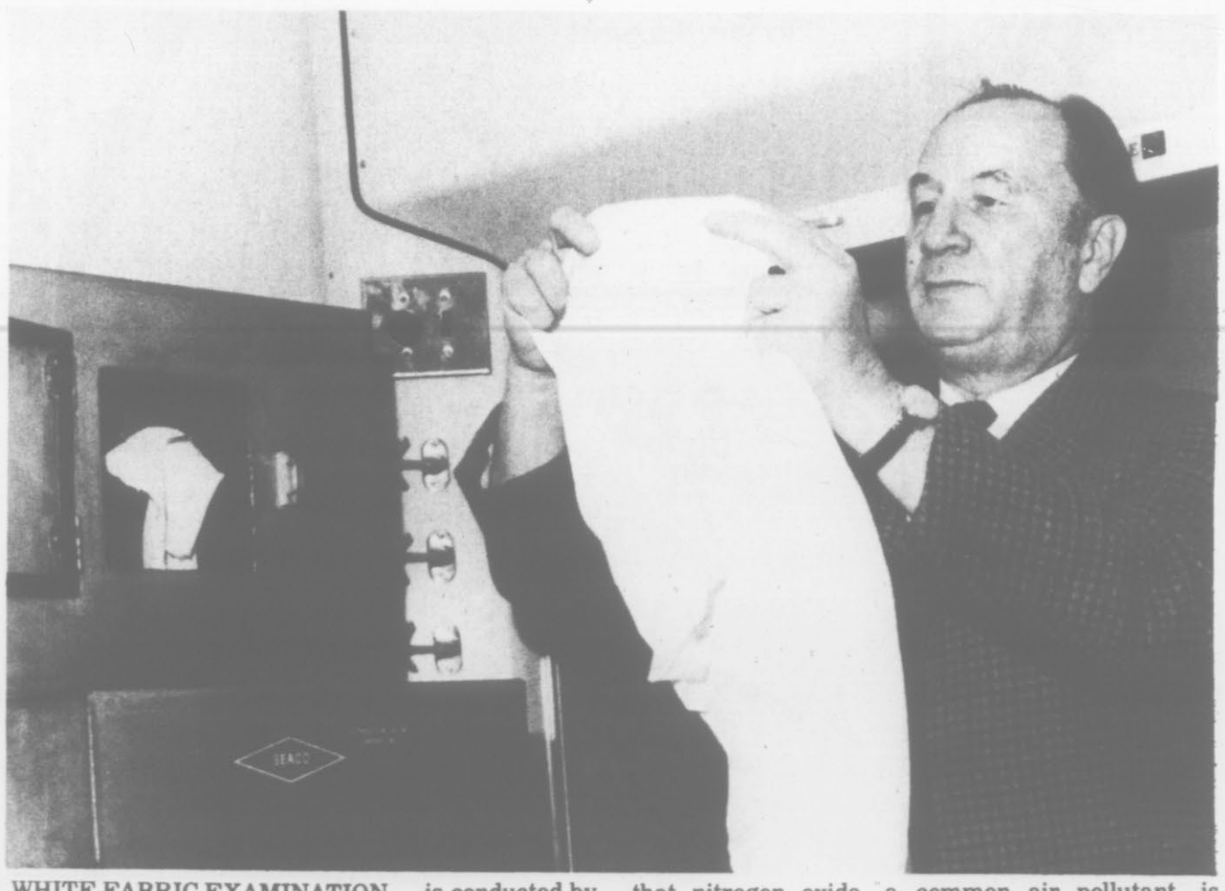
Although the fabrics he has worked with are those that have not reached the consumer, Salvin said his findings will ultimately benefit both the buyer and manufacturer.

"By the time the product reaches the consumer and turns yellow, the consumer doesn't know what to do," explained Salvin. "He doesn't know who or what to blame for the discoloration, so doesn't know where to complain."

Once standard testing methods are adopted by manufacturers to screen out those additives that will turn yellow, Salvin said, the product that does reach the consumer will be much less likely to discolor.

"No manufacturer intentionally puts out a product that will be a failure," said Salvin. "But the consumer is entitled to a product that will retain its appearance. The identification of nitrogen oxide as the culprit is a step in the right direction."

Dr. Salvin received his undergraduate and master's degrees from Wesleyan University and his Ph.D. from Yale.



WHITE FABRIC EXAMINATION. . .is conducted by Dr. Victor Salvin in his research at UNC-G. He found that nitrogen oxide, a common air pollutant, is responsible for the yellowing of many white fabrics.

About Working Wives

NEW YORK (UPI) — To determine the effects of inflation on American households, an employment agency has just completed a national random survey.

The report on the survey by Staff Builders Inc. includes these highlights:

—Three out of four or 75 per cent of the nation's housewives are working wives.

—74 per cent of these working wives say they could not maintain their current standard of living if they stopped working.

—57 per cent said their salaries pay for necessities only; 19 per cent said their salaries pay for luxuries only; 24 per cent said salaries pay for both.

—47 per cent became two income families in the past two years; 40 per cent in the past year.

—44 per cent of working wives responding to the survey have fulltime jobs; 56 per cent hold temporary or part-time jobs.

History and Recipes Make A Good Mix

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

When the women who belong to the Junior League of New Orleans decided on a new fund-raising effort to aid them in supporting some community betterment projects, they chose to assemble a cookbook — one that would appeal to travelers and history buffs as well as cooks. The result was "The Plantation Cookbook" (Doubleday), published a few years ago and still going strong.

The first half of The Plantation Cookbook consists of profiles of 22 plantation homes, built prior to 1860 and now open to the public, that represent five basic areas of Louisiana. There's also a "tour" of seven pre-Civil War houses in New Orleans plus a brief history of that city in its early years. League members involved in preparing the historical portion of the book visited the plantations and explored New Orleans, doing a thorough job of research. Charming line drawings are used to help a real or armchair traveler recall or envisage the scenes.

Other league members worked at gathering recipes that preserve Louisiana's culinary achievements and they tried them on their families and guests. Because each recipe serves eight, there were lots of dinner parties during this preparation period and frank comments on the worth of each recipe were invited; only those that tasters were enthusiastic about were chosen for inclusion in the book. For the most part, the recipes rely on foods available in Louisiana in antebellum days.

We were attracted to The Plantation Cookbook's Pecan Pie because it is less sweet than most recipes for this very American dessert, and because it suggests an interesting chocolate embellishment. Here's our adaptation of the recipe.

PLANTATION PECAN PIE

2 eggs
½ cup sugar
½ cup dark corn syrup
2 tablespoons butter, soft
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup coarsely chopped pecans
Unbaked 8-inch pie shell
½ cup (about 28) pecan halves
Garnish of 1 cup heavy cream (whipped) or 1 ounce semi-sweet chocolate (melted), if desired

Beat eggs slightly; add sugar, corn syrup, butter and vanilla and beat gently until combined; stir in chopped pecans. Turn into pie shell. Place 4 pecans in the center, petal fashion; place remaining pecan halves around edge. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until set — 30 to 35 minutes. If garnish is used, serve pie hot or cold with the whipped cream or drizzle chocolate over the cooled pie in a zigzag design between center pecans and those around edge and let chocolate set.

He spoke on several areas in which a greater need for safety consciousnes should be developed.

The areas he mentioned include:

He also discussed the use of electricity in the home and gave some suggestions for Halloween.

By Erma Bombeck

An avid television viewer from Sarasota, Florida named Doris has noted some rather interesting observations regarding the daytime "suds" circuit.

"Clara Shea died on 'As The World Turns'," she writes, "But a few weeks later turned up with a new hairdo on 'Guiding Light.' At one time Robert Hughes was looking for his wife, Sandra, who had left him. If he had hung around for the soap opera following his, he would have found her there. Despite the fact that I've seen Tom Hughes played by three different men, the wives never appear to notice when they run in a new one.

"Sometimes I think soap operas are worth watching just to see where the characters will pop up next."

Well, Doris, that should tell you something about the stamina of everyday people. My husband and I have been the key figures in our own personal soap opera for 25 years, seven days a week (with options to renew yearly) and not once has either of us been written out of the script. (A substitute, I'd notice!)

I think one of the reasons for our obvious long run is that my husband works steady. As I have often said, "I married him for better or for worse, but not for lunch." Soap opera husbands never seem to "keep hours." And this business of pussyfooting around the house all day drinking coffee and discussing abortions, incest, divorce, runaways, murder, embezzlement, identity crisis, amnesia, custody of the kids, and what car to drive to the funeral is enough to drive anyone off to another series.

I can't help but compare one of the old radio serials to the present day. Remember Vic and Sade and their son, Rush? And Uncle Fletcher? Why, sometimes they'd sit around for a week and listen to the screen door squeak. The high spot in their day was when Rush would rock on his own foot. No social ills, no earth-shattering decisions, no pressures of living. . .only the sometimes boring, sometimes reassuring slice of life.

Yes, Doris, life on TV is not only demanding and confusing, it's downright exhausting. I saw one girl on a commercial who made rotten coffee, appeared three days later with irregularities, a week later had a metal drain in her face showing her sinuses were congested, and last night she was thanking her momma for putting her on pills so she could sleep in the city at nights.

I hope she finds a nice soap opera and settles down to a nice illicit relationship-custody suit-major surgery-etc.

Book Reveals What To Do

By SANDRA GITTENS

NEW YORK (AP) — Backroom politics is the name of the game, say Bill and Nancy Boyarsky. What it involves is the obtaining of favors from politicians by big business, labor unions, bankers and government employes, in return for campaign contributions.

"Backroom Politics" is also the name of their new book. In it they describe the villains as special interest groups; and the heroes as innocent citizens, who sometimes happen upon touchy situations and correct them.

Bill says the beginnings of the book came long before the tidal wave of Watergate. "But I think now people are going to start rebuilding and getting everything together again. I think they want to start doing something about their government."

Nancy agrees but she also believes people are going to mistrust the government more since Watergate. Yet, the only way the changes are going to come about, she says, is if people organize. "It's almost impossible for an individual to do anything. Voting is the easiest thing to do," she adds, "but it does nothing in terms of your own neighborhood."

They both claim most politicians start out with the best of intentions, but find that in order to get re-elected they have to play ball with the people who dispense the money. "Even the people who start out with the highest of motives really disappoint the people who supported them in the beginning. It isn't always true," says Nancy, "but it's true often enough to make it just about the rule."

Bill says that because of the money factor involved in political campaigns they decided to devote two chapters of the book to campaign contributions. Using various cities around the country they tried to explain how certain kinds of political deals can negatively affect the private citizen. "In the contributions chapters we took a disaster that happened in Los Angeles and showed how the law that would have prevented it by requiring better controls had been weakened through the state legislature.

"Next we talked of the efforts to change the law, again, relating everybody's action to campaign contributions. The point," he says, "is that one has to get elected to win. But then they begin making compromises because the money is so important in politics. In that sense a politician is a victim of the system. However, I think that's more of a justification than anything else. He can say 'no.'"

The book was written for two reasons. First, because they became a part of a community, Bill and Nancy could see the direct effects of local politics in their own neighborhood; and second, because, as political writer for the Los Angeles Times, Bill was able to cover local politics and see the mechanics of the system for himself. He discussed the coverage with Nancy, and they decided to write down the kinds of things that go on behind the political scene and why.

"So we've tried to explain specifically who we were talking about in the book when we say special interest and vested interest people," he says. "We've broken it down. There are the businessmen who own department stores, banks, etc., who have an interest in the way the city is run. Others are city and government employes and labor unions.

"For instance, in the cities, in whose interest is it to build these high rise cities? It's in the building trades union interest, the interest of banks, lending companies and real estate people. These people are really aligned. And it's also in the interest of the city employes. So that's really who the citizen is fighting. He's not just fighting business, but business, labor and city employes. We've tried to explain right out who these villians are, then we tried to give a lot of examples of what they've done."

Nancy added that private citizens could exert some controls on the structure if they organized, and suggested that neighborhoods find and pay someone for covering city activities. Pointing out that local newspapers are an excellent source for getting to the bottom of particular grievances, she says good contacts and the most reliable information are often appreciated by hometown papers.

"The citizen has more tools at his disposal now than ever before as a result of Watergate," she says.

PHYLL'S TACOS

My sister's version is quickly made.

1 pound ground lean beef
Medium onion, chopped
Large green pepper, chopped
Large rib celery, chopped
Large clove garlic, chopped two 8-ounce cans tomato sauce
¼ cup water
1 tablespoon (or more) chili powder
1 teaspoon sugar
5-ounce package (12) taco shells
¼ pound cheddar cheese, grated
½ head iceberg lettuce, shredded

In a 10-inch skillet, cook the beef — crumbling with a fork — until it loses its red color; add the remaining ingredients except the taco shells, cheese and lettuce. Simmer uncovered until vegetables are tender and mixture is as thick as you like — 15 to 30 minutes. Heat taco shells according to package directions. Fill shells with the meat mixture and top with cheese and lettuce; or let eaters fill and top the tacos themselves. Serve at once. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

WOTM Have Christmas In Oct.

Women of the Moose, Greenville Chapter No. 1308, marked "Christmas In October" Thursday night when members brought gifts for children at Mooseheart and elderly members at Moosehaven.

Fifteen Tarheel teachers were honored at a luncheon in the Capital City Wednesday as Regional Teachers of the Year in North Carolina for 1975.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Sutton, Mrs. McLawhorn attended East Carolina University, where she received both a B.S. and M.A. degree. She was named Pitt County Teacher of the Year this spring.

She is married to A.J. McLawhorn and they have a daughter, Joni.

Regional candidates were selected during the past month by district representatives of the N.C. Association of Educators—Association of Classroom Teachers and representatives from the Department of Public Instruction.

A nine-member committee consisting of educators and lay citizens interviewed the candidates and two of them were selected for consideration as North Carolina's Teacher of the Year. During the coming week, the two finalists will be observed in the classroom by a small committee from the Learning Institute of North Carolina.

The 1974 Teacher of the Year is Mrs. Frances Kiser, English teacher, Cleveland County Schools.

This is the second year in a row that Pitt County has won District 15 Teacher of the Year. Last year, Mrs. Arlene Hoot, sixth grade teacher of Stokes-Pactolus Grammar represented District 15 as Teacher of the Year.

Bronco Rider Doesn't Scare

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Blonde Benjie Prudom, 21, of Dallas, lives dangerously. A criminal justice major at Sam Houston State University, Huntsville, she is a bareback bronco rider and bull fighter, which may come in handy when she becomes a policewoman, her current goal.

Meanwhile, the 5 foot 8 beauty, who has worked as a fashion model and once thought she would like to be a comedienne, competes in big rodeos such as the Girls Rodeo Association competition at Spring Creek, Nev.

"I'm never worried about getting my face smashed" she explained, even though a recent champion, Sheila Bussey, is recovering from a broken jaw. Other girls have had broken arms, and Benjie has had some minor injuries, but she always has faith that she will come through unscathed.

"I can do anything I want to do, with God's help," she maintains. "If we are lucky there usually are not more than two girls hurt in major competitions.

"You must have a positive mental attitude and good coordination when you ride a bucking horse. The main difficulty occurs when the gates are opened and the horse goes out. You know he is going to buck out, but it always happens so quick. If you know the horse is stout — a muscle type — it might scare you that you could be bucked off and thrown 15 feet in the air or be stepped on. But, then, you can't function well unless you are a bit nervous."

At the big rodeos such as Spring Creek there is good bucking stock, and any time you have good bucking stock, you can guarantee a good rodeo, she insists.

Overall purses can be as high as $20,000. The association, which she joined six months ago, keeps records of how much money is won during a season. To win the world champion "all-around cowgirl" title, a cowgirl must be the big money winner.

Benjie is also a bull fighting clown, a cape waver, which she prefers to riding the bulls, although she thinks it is harder to be a bronco bareback rider.

Among the variety of events in the larger rodeos are calf roping, bull riding, team roping, barrel racing and goat tieing — which Benjie does occasionally.

Children Are Wise About Money

NEW YORK (UPI) — If a little kid at your house charges interest when you borrow two bits from him, you know he's not ignorant about money.

The same for a youngster who wants her allowance adjusted to reflect increases in the cost of living.

Such boys and girls are typical rather than being exceptions when it comes to being wise about money.

Today's youngsters understand a lot more about the subject than their parents did at comparable ages, says Rex J. Morthland, president of the American Bankers Association (ABA).

The head of the Peoples Bank and Trust Co. in Selma, Ala., said children have a good grasp of the fundamentals.

Take the case of an eighth-grader who was asked for a definition of money. He answered:

"Nice to have. You get a warm feeling if you have a lot."

A degree of sophistication surfaced in the answer of a pupil asked —"If you had $10 to whom would you give it."

"Something tax deductible," the grade schooler answered.

These examples came from responses to a questionnaire devised by the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco. The bank wanted to find out how much grade school kids know about banking.

Morthland also told of classroom banks.

It is not uncommon these days for children to be running a bank or handling checks in a classroom project.

Laura Cohen, an art teacher at Estrella Junior High in Phoenix, Ariz., developed a unique program to promote good behavior while teaching students basics of banking.

Miss Olson also trained one student as a teller. The pupils created their own unit of currency, an estrella. Miss Olson arranged to have her bank print counter checks bearing the school's insignia. The Rocky Mountain Bank Note Co. contributed checkbook covers and registers.

Boys and girls are rewarded with estrellas, whose value corresponds with rules of conduct set up by Miss Cohen. Estrellas are paid out by the tellers and deposited by the children into their own accounts.

They use the money to buy candies and trinkets at classroom auctions but also are encouraged to save the estrellas.

Having a bank account —a real one —is not a pipe dream for many American teen-agers. Seventeen Magazine estimates more than 12 million girls between 13 and 19 have their own savings account.

J. Kent Willing, 3rd., a vice president at Provident Bank in Philadelphia, has three children. Four, five and six.

"The starting point for an allowance is when a kid begins to like gum," he said.

"Then he must use his own money.

"Each child received 15 cents when he was three years old, with the stipulation he keep his room clean.

"Each child has a savings account where we put in the birthday and the Christmas money. They're too young to appreciate what it means, but we explain interest in terms of real objectives.

She Chooses Her Weapon

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — "I want to be a leader," says Edna Acosta, who has traded typing and filing for rifle training and pushups at 5:30 a.m. to become a lieutenant in the Connecticut National Guard.

The 24-year-old Hartford woman is the first female to attend the guard's Officers Candidate School (OCS), which prepares members for leadership positions. She recently returned from a training session at the guard's Camp Meskill in Niantic.

Miss Acosta has been in the guard 1½ years, working full-time in the recruiting office at the Hartford Armory. This year when the guard opened OCS to women, she jumped at the chance to leave her secretarial job.

The challenge of dawn exercises, weaponry training, drills, marching and military tactics has made her proud to be the first woman in officers' school.

"Sometimes even better than a lot of them," one male officer candidate said.

The soft-spoken, dark-haired guardswoman came to the United States from Puerto Rico seven years ago. Miss Acosta, who said she "always wanted to be a WAC," enlisted in the guard in April 1973. She was sent to Ft. McClellan, Ala., for basic training and Ft. Jackson, S.C., for advanced instruction.

She must return to Camp Meskill for one weekend a month and undergo another two weeks of training next year before she is eligible to take a series of tests. If she passes the tests, she will be commissioned a second lieutenant.

A woman officer is not allowed to command a company of troops, so she will probably become an executive officer performing administrative duties.

Being a woman, she also has to do "women's pushups" during physical fitness training. When doing "women's pushups" she balances on her knees instead of on her feet so her abdomen isn't strained.

"We've got a lot of crazy rules," one lieutenant said.

Country Music's Best On Monday

Country music has gained respectability. Today it's even fashionable.

Eight years go, when the now big popularity of the country sound was growing, a group of its composers, promoters, singers and fans got together and established the Country Music Association Awards ceremonies in the heart of the music industry — Nashville, Tenn. This year, on Monday, October 14, (10-11 p.m.), on Channel 9-11, the ceremonies, hosted by Johnny Cash, will be broadcast live from Nashville's Grand Ole Opry House.

Country music began as poor-man's music. It was born with the plaintive ballards of the Appalachian mountaineers, folks who for centuries kept their songs as isolated as their lives. Then, when the early, magical days of gramophones and vintage radios dawned, "hillbilly" music was born, spilling over an unknowing population.

This newly discovered music spread during the Depression. From the Dust Bow, it moved onward in rattling model-Ts. World War II took it north into defense plants and military barracks.

Today, country music is all grown up. From its back-porch strumming milieu into a structured urban culture, the music has gained stature.

Kris Kristofferson, a Rhodes scholar and one of country music's chief contemporary songwriters and singers, remembers his family's reaction when he told them he was determined to write country songs for a living.

"Nobody who's over 14 years old listens to that kind of music," said his father. "And if they did, they wouldn't be anyone we'd want to know. Don't embarrass us by coming around."

Needless to say, Kristofferson, who will be one of the performers on the Awards broadcast, came around — and will be around for a long, long time.

Although its demise was forecast when electric guitars, violins and brass intruded, country music quietly boomed instead. In the 1960s, country records started outselling classical and jazz. Artists like Ray Charles and Bob Dylan caught the bug, which made some people wonder what happened to the hillbilly stereotype.

World Series Play Again 'Biggest Show'

The World Series, which reached an unduplicated audience of 110,000,000 viewers last year on NBC-TV, is this country's biggest sporting event.

In 1973, NBC Television Network coverage of the World Series broke all previous audience records:

—69,550,000 television viewers — the greatest number of people ever to watch a baseball game — tuned in the second game of the 1973 World Series.

—The seventh game of last year's Fall Classic attracted an average of 22,300,000 homes per minute — the largest commercial audience in baseball history.

—The seven games of the 1973 World Series averaged a 30.7 rating and 20, 320,000 homes per minute, both all-time highs.

The NBC Television Network, "Number One in Live Coverage of Major Sports Events All Year 'Round," has kept direct step with the times in its on-going effort to provide these viewers with an extraordinary form of sports journalism. Perfected during 28 years as the exclusive carrier of Major League Baseball's World Series, NBC-TV coverage of the Fall Classic has paralleled the startling electronic advances made by television since 1947.

For its inaugural telecast of the New York Yankees-Brooklyn Dodgers World Series in 1947, NBC-TV had a modest network of just four stations in New York City, Washington, Philadelphia and Schenectady, N.Y.

Contrast with that the fact that coverage this year will be fed to 230 television stations in the United States, will be carried in Canada and Mexico, and will also be beamed live, via satellite, to Bermuda, Puerto Rico, Venezuela, the Virgin Islands, the Dominican Republic and elsewhere in the Caribbean and South America. In addition, the American Forces Radio and Television Service (AFRTS) will also package television highlights of the World Series for shipment to its networks and stations around the world.

NBC has held exclusive telecast rights to the World Series each fall since such coverage began 28 years ago. And, since games of the Fall Classic moved into prime time in 1971, the six nighttime contests colorcast to date rank as the top six prime-time sports events of all time. The network's prime-time World Series coverage this year — from the city of the American League champions — is scheduled for Tuesday, October 15 (Game 3), Wednesday, October 16 (Game 4) and, if a fifth contest is necessary, Thursday, October 17, all beginning at 8 p.m.

Eight stationery color cameras and a pair of PCP-90s, the 40-pound hand-held "creepy" cameras, will provide coverage for the millions of people watching the games at home. Additionally, such technical sophistications as instant replay, slow motion, isolated cameras and the like — which enable viewers to see the spectacular and controversial plays from every angle, over and over again — will also be employed.

All told, there will be 150 tons of

Unplanned Moments Recalled

Bobby Quinn remembers the unusual or the different rather than the routine or the planned. And it's not easy to sift the best from such a collection of memories.

For almost eight years Quinn has directed "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson."

"Doing five shows a week for all this time," says Quinn, "makes it almost impossible to pick standouts. But I can recall many things that were unusual.

"After many shows of heckling a Los Angeles car dealer named Ralph Williams, Johnny was doing a routine and unbeknown to the audience, Williams was hiding under a break-away desk for almost 15 minutes. He broke through it as a payoff to one of Johnny's jokes.

"Another night, Johnny came out dressed as a Shirley Temple-type, with wig, a little pinafore, button shoes, etc. In fooling around, he lifted his dress and in his haste, realized that he had forgotten to put on shorts over his jocket shorts. The audience howled.

"Once, in an animal spot, the trainer of a jaguar was telling Johnny how tame the animal was and said John should feed him some milk. John was hesitant at first but agreed to do it. But, as he left the desk, the animal clawed the trainer. Needless to say, Johnny changed his mind on the spot.

"David Susskind and Shelley Winters were guests one night and the former was making remarks about Miss Winter's shape and appearance. Shelley countered with "How many Oscars have you won? I have three.' The audience roared with approval and Mr. Susskind settled down.

Joseph Cotten Plays Tycoon

Joseph Cotten guest-stars as a tycoon who hires Rockford (series star James Garner) to investigate his prospective son-in-law, suspecting his portfolio is too good to be true, in "This Case is Closed," a special 90-minute presentation of NBC Television Network's "The Rockford Files" Friday, October 18, 9:30 to 11 p.m., on Channel 6-7. Sharon Gless also guest-stars.

Warner Jameson (Cotten) warns Rockford not to reveal to his daughter, Susan (Miss Glass), that in spite of her fiance Mark's (Geoffrey Land) reputation, he suspects he is a phony.

THE DANDY DEN

What does the man in your house have in common with rich man, poor man, beggar and theif—doctor, lawyer and Indian chief? He likes to feel that he's king of his castle—no matter how hectic things are in the house. Every father wants a little privacy. Whether dad already has a peaceful spot of his own, or you're just thinking about converting that spare room into a den for him, there are a few considerations. The den should be warm, comfortable, and radiate an aura of peacefulness.

The dandy den must have special floor covering to make it his peaceful spot. See our wall to wall carpeting to suit the decor of his den. Eastern Carpet Inc., 602 West Greenville Blvd., Greenville. 756-1944. "Where There's Always A Sale."

Herb Alpert Is Back

Herb Alpert and his Tijuana Brass are back! After an absence of more than four years, Alpert and the group are returning to the world of musical entertainment in a big way. A new ABC Television Network special, "The Sentry Collection — Herb Alpert & The TJB," to air on Sunday, October 13, 10-11 p.m., on Channel 3W-5-12.

Special guests for the hour are Jim Henson's popular Muppets.

The Emmy Award-winning team of Gary Smith and Dwight Hemion, who created Alpert's first television special — "Singer Presents Herb Alpert and the Tijuana Brass" in 1966, one of television's most highly rated musical variety specials — will produce the program. Hemion will also serve as director.

Backed by the nine-man TJB, and featuring singer Lani Hall, Herb Alpert and his trumpet will mix some of the music that first made him famous — "The Lonely Bull," "Spanish Flea" and "The Tijuana Taxi," with music from his latest album "You Smile — The Song Begins."

Before Herb Alpert took his sabbatical, he and the group had become the top name in the pop music field. They had sold over 54 million record albums, and had starred in several very well received television specials. Alpert and the TJB are currently on a much-heralded cross-country tour.

Jim Hensen and the Muppets join Alpert in sketches and songs with a heavy accent on adult humor. The Muppets, best known for "Sesame Street," have been entertaining television viewers for many years, starting with "The Jimmy Dean Show" and "Today," then finding a special niche with the Children's Television Workshop. Last season they appeared as the special guests of Julie Andrews, and on their own Valentine's Day special, both for ABC.

"The Sentry Collection — Herb Alpert & The TJB will be produced in association with ATV.

THE MUPPETS are Herb Alpert's special guests on the ABC-TV's special "The Sentry Collection —Herb Alpert & The TJB", airing on Sunday (10-11 p.m.)—The hour-long special marks Alpert's return to the world of musical entertainment after an absence of more than four years.

'Perfect Heist' Baffles McCloud

Fernando Lamas, Larry Hagman and Leslie Parrish guest-star in "The Gang that Stole Manhattan," a drama about an almost perfect multi-million dollar jewelry heist, on NBC Television Newwork's "McCloud", starring Dennis Weaver, to be colorcast on the "NBC Mystery Movie", series Oct. 13, Sunday, 8:30 to 10:30 p.m., on Chanell 6-7.

Small-time con man Max Cortex (Lamas) arranges underworld backing for a 1930's motion picture that serves as a diversion to the jewelry caper. A "real" dead body turns up during filming of the movie and Marshall McCloud's (Weaver) investigation points to homicide. Sensing connection between the film and the slaying, McCloud seeks the link, but is romatically derailed by actress Lynne O'Connell (Miss Parrish) and unpleasantly confused by bumbling, egotistical actor Larry Harris (Hagman), who wants to play a real-life detective.

Sonny Bono Has Twiggy As Guest

Entertainer Glen Campbell, international celebrity Twiggy and the Staple Singers, popular soul group, are Sonny Bono's guests, Sunday evening, October 13, 8:00 to 9:00 p.m., on Channel 3W-12.

In one segment of this fun-filled show, Sonny is a dour prisoner visited by his girl (series regular Teri Garr), who never fails to infuriate him.

Other highlights of the revue are Sonny and Twiggy as two young people on a date who run out of gas and stop their car at a retirement home for monsters.

An instant remake of history takes place with Twiggy as Queen Victoria, Sonny as Prince Albert, and Glen as the court physician and every other man around the palace.

Glen sings his latest release, "The Moon In a Harsh Mistress," and the Staple Singers are featured with their hit record, "Respect Yourself." Twiggy displays her musical abilities when she sings "The Dancer."

A wild comedy opera sequence features Sonny and Twiggy as the only passengers on a ship which is threatened by a full-scale mutiny. Glen stars in the skit as the ship's officer.

Documentary Focuses On Dangers In Sports

Every week in the autumn about 1.2 million youngsters play high school football. By the end of the year it is estimated that student football players will suffer up to one million injuries of all kinds, from ordinary bruises to permanent disabilities. Why?

ABC News investigates the risks to high school age athletes, focusing on football — the uniquely American contact sport — on the documentary special, "ABC News Close-Up on Danger in Sports: Paying the Price," Monday, October 14, 8 to 9 p.m., on Channel 3W-5-12.

Av Westin, ABC News Vice President and Director of Television Documentaries, explained: "We're going to look at the way football is played in high schools across the country and examine just how dangerous it is. It brings out the best in skill, coordination and timing. Yet it can cripple and kill."

For the investigative report, ABC News Science Editor Jules Bergman interviews sports figures, including Joe Namath, the New York Jets' quarterback; medical experts, researchers in the development of protective equipment, high school players and coaches. The program, produced by Phillip Lewis, examines the kind of coaching high school players receive and the conditioning, the medical attention and equipment available to them.

"The use of the head as an offensive weapon in tackling has led to some of the most serious injuries," Lewis said. "But there is no rule against it for high school players. Why?

"Most states do not require high school coaches to meet any minimum certification standards other than having a teaching degree. Why?

A series of simple screening tests — to be demonstrated on the program — provides guidance in judging whether and how youngsters should play particular sports.

DANGEROUS SPORT — Physicians and players tell about the risk of injury during the "ABC News Closeup on Danger in Sports: Paying the Price," Monday, October 14 (8-9 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12. Shown clockwise are: Dr. Robert Kerlan, Medical Director of the National Athletic Health Institute, Inglewood, Calif., with ABC News Science Editor Jules Bergman; Joe Namath, and Bruce Dozier, 17, a football quadraplegic under treatment at Rancho Los Amigos Hospital, Los Angeles. The documentary focuses on high school football risks and ways to protect against them.

Maude Has Met Match

Don't call her "Madame," but Hermione Badderley, the noted British actress who plays the new housekeeper on "Maude," does have an authentic title—which she no longer uses. When she was married to the late Honourable David Tennent, she became the Honourable Mrs. Tennant. The Tennants are one of England's oldest titled families.

On "Maude," seen Mondays from 9:00 to 9:30 p.m., on Channel 3N-9-aa, Miss Badderley brings new fans every time she makes a stage, film or television appearance. In fact, one of her very first admirers was George Bernard Shaw, who, when he saw her as a child on stage in England, sent her a note saying she was such a good performer she should change her name from Badderley to Goodeley.

Invariably, Miss Badderley is totally in command of her role, be it drama or comedy, wherever she is performing, but she's quick to admit that Hollywood is now her favorite locale. She prefers the normally sunny weather, as compared to the temperature extremes of London or New York, and she is looking for a home in Southern California so she can send for her two French bulldogs.

David Birney, Farley Granger and Tyne Daly are the stars of "The Haunting of Penthouse D," a "Wide World: Mystery" to be presented on Tuesday, October 15.

In this original drama, Miss Daly plays an emotionally troubled young woman who is invited to spend two weeks in New York at her friend's Manhattan penthouse. But when her friend is called away for a modelling assignment abroad, she must stay in the penthouse alone. A series of nocturnal and mysterious disturbances serve to heighten her emotional problems, incidents that may be the work of her new acquaintances, the next door neighbor, played by Birney, and her girl friend's married beau, played by Granger.

Telly Savalas, TV's "Kojak," is the host for "The World's Professional Karate Championship," a "Wide World: Special" to be seen on Wednesday, Oct. 16, and featuring experts in the martial art from seven countries.

Ryan O'Neal will be a featured guest on the program in which Mike Anderson, publisher of Professional Karate Magazine, will analyze the art of karate.

The heavyweight contenders for the world title, the United States champion and the champion of Yugoslavia will vie for the international crown on the program, which also features title contests on the light heavyweight, middleweight and lightweight levels.

Television newsman Walter Cronkite will be interviewed at his summer home in Martha's Vineyard, Mass., on "The Dick Cavett Show," a "Wide World: Special" for Thursday, Oct. 17.

In this revealing interview, Cronkite discusses his personal views of Watergate, freedom of the press, television's ability to cover news, his rumored ambition in politics, and the television newscaster as a "star."

Helen Reddy and Paul Williams are hosts for the first annual "American Song Festival," a songwriting competition which was recently concluded at the Saratoga Performing Arts Center in Saratoga, N. Y., a "Wide World: Event" for Friday, October 18.

A knowledgable sports reporter with 12 years of television experience, Ms. Chastain will be working on a variety of sports broadcasts on the Network, including analysis of live sports broadcasts.

First Showing Of Western

Telly Savalas, George Maharis, Arlene Dahl and Janet Landgard star in "Land Raiders," action-packed Western which has its first television showing, in color, on "The CBS Late Movie" Thursday, October 17, starting at 11:30 p.m., on Channels 3N-9-11.

Ruthless Vince Carden (Savalas), who dominates the Arizona territory town of Forge River, drives his brother Paul (Maharis) from his home, thus disillusioning Vince's wife, Martha (Arlene Dahl).

Haunted by the mysterious death of a girl he had loved, Paul attaches himself to a wagon train heading for Forge River, where he meets Kate Mayfield (Miss Landgard). Paul and Kate become the sole survivors of an Apache reprisal for a slaughter staged by Vince's men. Vince uses the Indian attack as an excuse to raid their defenseless village, sparking a massive Apache assault on Forge River.

Palance Is Signed For A Re-Make

Jack Palance has been signed by producer Richard Collins to star in MGM-TV's "The Three Godfathers," an ABC Movie of the Week airing November 26.

John Badham directs the western classic from a script by Ron Bishop. Palance plays an outlaw-turned-hero in the seventh version of the western tale based on a Peter B. Kyne short story.

The role was originally created by Bronco Billy Anderson in the 1909 film "Bronco Billy and the Baby". Harry Carey, Sr. starred in two "Three Godfather" remakes, one made in 1916 by Harvey Gates, and the third entitled "Marked Men" made in 1919 and directed by John Ford. Charles Bickford added his interpretation of the role in William Wyler's 1929 film "Hell's Heroes."

MGM gained the rights to Kyne's rights and in 1936 Chester Morris starred in the studio's version of "The Three Godfathers", followed by John Ford remaking his remake in MGM's 1948 production starring John Wayne.

Fonda, Ball In Comedy Drama

Henry Fonda and Lucille Ball star in "Yours, Mine and Ours," a comedy drama to be colorcast on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies" Oct. 14 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7. The film is loosely based on the experiences of the Beardsley family and in book form.

In the story, Helen North (Miss Ball), a widow with eight children, meets and marries U.S. Navy Warrant Officer Frank Beardsley (Fonda), a widower with 10 children of his own.

Complications set in right away as Helen and Frank must cancel their moneymoon when one of the children develops a fever. Shopping for a house large enough to accommodate two families poses another problem as does the coming of age of the eldest children.

Conrad In Role Of Nick Carter

The question on the sound stages at Universal Studios during the filming of "The Adventures of Nick Carter" was whether the title role was written for Robert Conrad or if Conrad could have been created especially for the role.

Either way, it is an amazing amalgam of star and part which airs over "The CBS Late Movie," Wednesday, October 16 at 11:30 p.m. on Channel 3N-9-11.

It is obvious to Nick Carter aficionados that the fictional Carter was born on the pages of Street & Smith magazine in 1886, some 50 years before baby Conrad's entry into the world on the south side of Chicago. And actor Conrad was prepared to take the role of the master detective through four years of private eyeing in "Hawaiian Eye" and four years of government investigating in "Wild, Wild, West," plus a half dozen motion pictures thrown in to add further credentials.

But it is in the physical resemblance between Conrad and his character in "Nick Carter" which had the studio wags referring to the 90 minute motion picture as "Nick Conrad."

Carter was created as an amazing individual who could dispatch a dozen villains with his fast fists and quick footwork.

Reasoner Series On Hunger

"The Reasoner Report" will initiate a continuing series on world hunger entitled "Food and Hunger — The Silent Tragedy," during an hour-long, prime time special edition of the ABC News weekly magazine program, Wednesday, October 16, 10-11 p.m., on Channel 3-5-12.

The first eyewitness report by ABC News Correspondent Harry Reasoner will be from the Dominican Republic. Reasoner will examine the conditions which lead to poverty and hunger as the major segment of the prime time special edition. The program will preempt "Get Christie Love!"

In the future, Reasoner, recipient of the 1974 Emmy Award as Outstanding Television News Broadcaster, will give first-hand accounts of conditions in various parts of the world every fourth week on "The Reasoner Report" in its regularly scheduled time period on Saturdays from 6:30 to 7:00 p.m.

"There is no story, in my opinion, with greater significance," Mr. Primo, executive producer, said, "than the increasing tragedy of starving people around the world. Unfortunately, the problem will be with us for a long time. We expect to report on the situation in every dimension—through the eyes of the people struggling to survive, as well as on the causes and effects."

In another program segment for the prime time special edition, Reasoner will report on the home and village in the Dominican Republic to which the Siamese twin girls, Clara and Alta Rodriguez, will return after being separated in an operation at Children's Hospital, Philadelphia. The report will include interviews with their mother, Farida Rodriguez, and Dr. C. Everett Koop, Chief of Surgery at the hospital.

Other program segments for the prime time special edition will include a profile of White House photographer David Kennely.

Drew Phillips will produce the first report in "The Silent Tragedy" series and the story of the Rodriguez twins.

Smothers Bros. Star In Special

The Smothers Brothers, whose frank, satirical brand of humor made them television's most controversial comedy team, will be reunited in a one-hour variety special on the NBC Television Network later this year, it was announced today by Lawrence R. White, Vice President, Programs.

The special is being developed as a possible series for the NBC-TV prime-time schedule, Mr. White said.

Joe Hamilton, executive producer of "The Carol Burnett Show," will be executive producer of the NBC-TV Smothers Brothers special.

The Brothers — Tom and Dick — starred in their own CBS-TV series, "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour," for three seasons, and had a summer replacement show on ABC-TV in 1970.

The Brothers temporarily abandoned their show business careers shortly thereafter and went their separate ways. Only recently have they decided to resume their active careers on a major scale.

Though the Brothers have added crisp, fresh material, their humor is still rooted in social consciousness and the good natured give and take always their trademark. Their appearances have been limited primarily to nightclubs and college campuses since their reunion.

A Miami Herald reviewer who saw them recently said, "After four troubled, empty years, two old friends have made it back.

Torment In A Divorce

Trish Van Devere plays Amy Brower, who faces an unwanted divorce from the man she has always loved, in "One Is a Lonely Number," compelling drama of a young woman forced to rediscover herself, to be presented for the first time on television on "The CBS Thursday Night Movies" Thursday, October 17, (9:00-11:00 p.m.) on Channel 3N-9-11. Also starring in the film are Monte Markham, Janet Leigh and Melvyn Douglas.

Amy is a wife who finds that the most tortured trial of her life is her dissolving marriage. She is bright, pretty and educated, but for years she's only thought of herself as a wife. During her time of crisis, she tries to find the solution to her emptiness in her reflection in other women and in a desperate romance with a man who tells her he is married.

Finally, confused by her inability to change her life, she finds comfort and encouragement from a compassionate old man, a widower who has known loneliness intimately and for too long.

After two divorced men become friends, each secretly begins a romance with the other's ex-wife, causing even more complications than the original marriages did in "Playmates," a modern comedy airing on the ABC Television Network's "Tuesday Movie of the Week," October 15, (8:30 to 10 p.m.), on Channels 3-5-12.

Flip Is Back On Friday

Peter Sellars, Richard Pryor, Martha Reeves, special guest Lily Tomlin, and "Flip Wilson. . . Of Course," appear in various comedy sketches on Flip's first of four specials, to be colorcast October 18, Friday evening, 8:30 to 9:30 p.m., on Channel 6-7.

The show will utilize realistic settings for its sketches, with Flip portraying various new characters, including a police detective, a pool hall champ, a penny arcade patron, and a trainee-telephone operator. He will also appear as one of his established characters, the Rev. Leroy from the Church of What's Happening Now.

Miss Tomlin will play a society woman down on her luck and a gabby girl in a penny arcade. She will also do her Ernestine characterization.

In a sketch set in a store-front church, Pryor portrays the Rev. Elmo, the resident minister; Martha Reeves sings, "Wild Night"; and the Rev. Leroy delivers a sermon on Daniel and Nebuchadnezzar, "King of the Goodtimes."

Wilson also appears in two sketches with Miss Tomlin. One, set in a penny arcade, finds him recording a message home to his mother, trying to impress her with his success in Hollywood, as he enlists the aid of Miss Tomlin and Pryor, who hang out in the place. (Sellars is the voice giving instructions in the recording booth.) In another segment, Flip portrays A.G. Johnson, who reports for duty as a telephone operator to Miss Tomlin, in her Ernestine role.

Flip and Pryor also confront each other as pool hall champs ready for the match of the century.

Sellars portrays Mr. Burton Hudspith, the auctioneer, who arrives to help Mrs. Hainsworth (Miss Tomlin) out of her financial straits. He also plays visiting inspector Henderson of Scotland Yard, assigned to help Capt. Powers (Wilson) with some of his cases. Finally, he appears as Napoleon weighing alternatives.

TRAPPED — David Janssen and Hope Lange portray researchers on board a crippled submarine that is trapped beneath the sea and threatened inside by a cargo of deadly snakes, in "Fer-De-Lance," having its world premiere, on "The CBS Friday Night Movies" Friday, October 18 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 9-11.

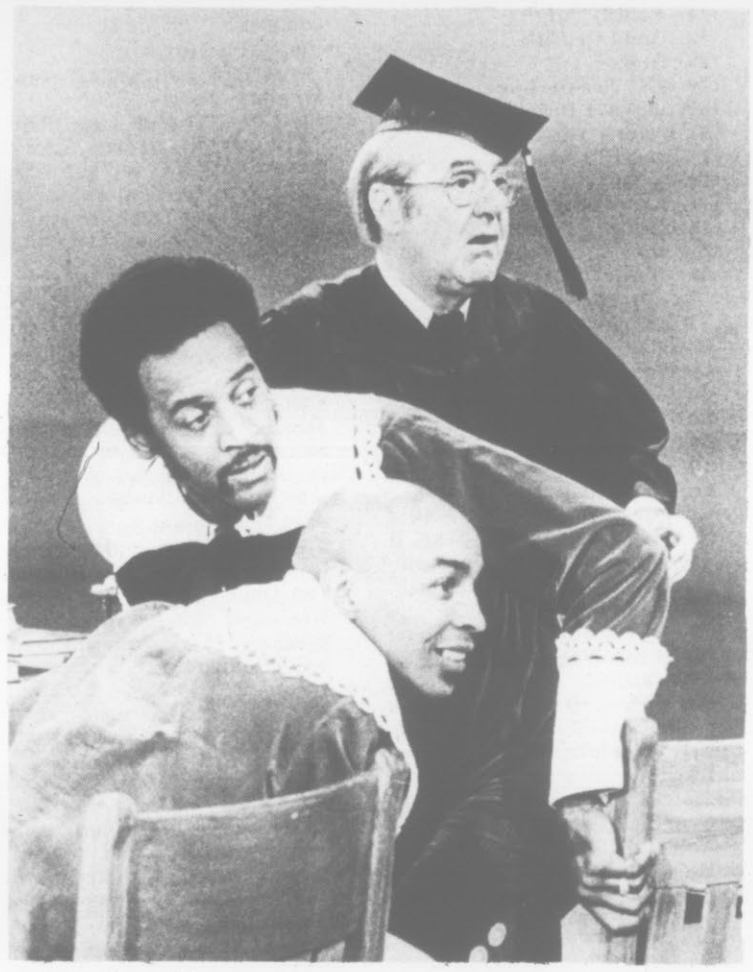
Open House Week For Children's TV Slated

"Open House Week for Children's Television," October 19-26, the eight-day week sponsored by the ABC Television Network and its affiliates to encourage parents to sit down with their youngsters to watch children's television programs on all networks and local stations, has received wide praise and endorsement from educators, schools and educational institutions across the country. Among the leading proponents of the project in Eda Le Shan, prominent author and child psychologist.

"The concept of 'Open House Week for Children's Television' is a marvelous idea," Mrs. LeShan said. "Watching television together gives parents an opportunity to find out what their children are thinking and feeling, as well as providing an opportunity for parents to communicate their values to help shape their children's attitudes. Parents can express their tastes in music or dance or art, their feelings about war and peace, their political opinions, their ideas for ways to solve human problems. Television programs used as a family experience can lead to better understanding of human behavior as each member of the family contributes his own thoughts about why a hero or villain behaves as he does."

Mrs. LeShan, who has been an educator and family counselor for more than 25 years, feels that parents have a very definite responsibility to know what their children are watching on television. "We don't allow a five year old to go to see 'Last Tango in Paris.' We don't allow our children to live exclusively on popcorn and soda. We carefully choose our child's pediatrician, neighborhood and school. If it's snowing, the boots go on, no matter how loud the protests. We consider it a parental prerogative to do our best to keep our kids from getting run over in traffic or burning themselves on a hot stove. Why shouldn't we know what our children are exposed to when the television set goes on?"



GUEST TEACHER — Jim Backus (top), known to millions as the voice of "Mr. Magoo," teaches Globetrotters Bobby Joe Mason (center) and Curly Neal some Rhythm Rhymes on "The Harlem Globetrotters Popcorn Machine" (11-11:30 a.m.) on Channel 9-11. Backus is one of the many guest stars appearing on the new Saturday morning live-on-tape series, which stars nine of basketball's famed Globetrotters, along with young Rodney Allen Rippy and comedian Avery Schreiber.

1973 Heisman trophy winner, John Cappelletti, of the Los Angeles Rams tells how a winning football team is trained when he hosts the "GO" show Saturday, October 19, 12:30 to 1 p.m., on Channel 6-7. He shows how Coach Joe Paterno of Penn State puts his men through spring practice to make the team a bowl contender and winner.

Players seen in action, in addition to Cappelletti, include Gary Hayman, Randy Crowder, Tom Schuman, Jerry Jerman, Chris Bahr and Rick Reinher.

Conditioning exercises, blocking, running and other spring activities, Capelletti explains, are to help avoid injuries later on. He also points out that Coach Paterno believes his players should concentrate on getting a good education, the main purpose of their attending college.

Arkansas Guns For Texas Win

Arkansas has appeared in 37 television games, and 21 of these contests have been viewed by a national audience. The Razorbacks have had tube-exposure every year since 1959, and the Arkansas - Texas game will come your way on Saturday, October 19, on ABC channels 3-5-12 at 1:30 p.m.

This rivalry started in 1894, with the Texas Longhorns running up a 54-0 victory. Today, 54 football games later, Texas has been victorious on 40 occasions while Arkansas has been on top only 14 times.

Last season, Roosevelt Leaks used his speed and power to score three touchdowns and lead the Longhorns to a 34-6 Southwestern Conference win. As the 1974 version of the Texas-Arkansas Classic unveils, the Texans will be without the services of Mr. Leaks.

The Razorbacks travel to the Lone Star State with upset and victory as their foremost thought.

Detroit Eyes A Better Future

Last season was possibly the worst year ever recorded in the history of the famed NFC Central Division, otherwise known as the "Black and Blue" division, where tough defense was the standard for other pro teams to emulate.

Detroit, always stingy on defense, was a team that had defense as their forte. Yet, last season they were hit harder by injuries than any team in the league. Unfortunately, most of their injuries were to starters, standouts like; defensive backs Rudy Redmond and Wayne Rasmussen were out for the entire season, defensive tackle John Small out for 13 league games, starting offensive linemen Jim Yarbrough and Chuck Walton lost for 53 quarters. Altie Taylor, Steve Owens, Mel Farr and Jimmy Hooks were lost for a combined total of ten games, quarterback Greg Landry, out for more than half the season and there were still more. Under the circumstances, their 6-7-1 won-loss record was quite an achievement.

Steve Owens, the top Lion ground gainer for 1,035 yards in 1971, has been plagued by injuries for the past two seasons. A healthy Steve Owens to join Altie Taylor in the backfield could create what is potentially one of the most powerful running games in the NFL.

Head Coach Rick Forzano, following Detroit's 7-6 loss to the Vikings said, "I'm very proud of my players for the way they played against the Vikings. This is a good football team, and they're going to break loose soon."

The 1974 version of the Detroit Lions will leave their mark on the 1974 season and the San Francisco 49ers could find this out the hard way Monday, October 14th at 9 p.m. on ABC Channels 3-5-12.

Linemen Are Key To Rams

The Los Angeles Rams averaged 208.9 yards rushing per game, the best record in the National Football Conference and the second best in the NFL. They were number one in the NFL in total offense averaging 350.4 yards per game and posted a 12-2 won-loss record last season.

These accomplishments clearly indicate the Rams are a team to watch in '74. The reasons for such tremendous offensive prowess can be found in their powerful offensive line which is anchored by All-Pro guard Tom Mack. Mack has been selected All-Pro seven of his eight pro seasons.

Rams powerful offense last season: "First, we have sound coaching and Prochaska is very knowledgeable about the techniques he teaches. Second, we have the best group of backs since I've been with the Rams. They're all smart runners and come off their blocks very well. Third, we have balance. By that I mean a good passing game which opens up the running game."

In discussing differences in line play between the Prothro era as opposed to Prochaska's teachings under Chuck Knox, Mack indicates, Prochaska is basically teaching the same blocking techniques that Prothro did, but in a different manner.

"What they emphasize now is hit stick and stay. As I recall, under Prothro, we weren't as concerned with the staying aspect. We were more concerned with knocking someone off the line because the backs were hitting specific holes.

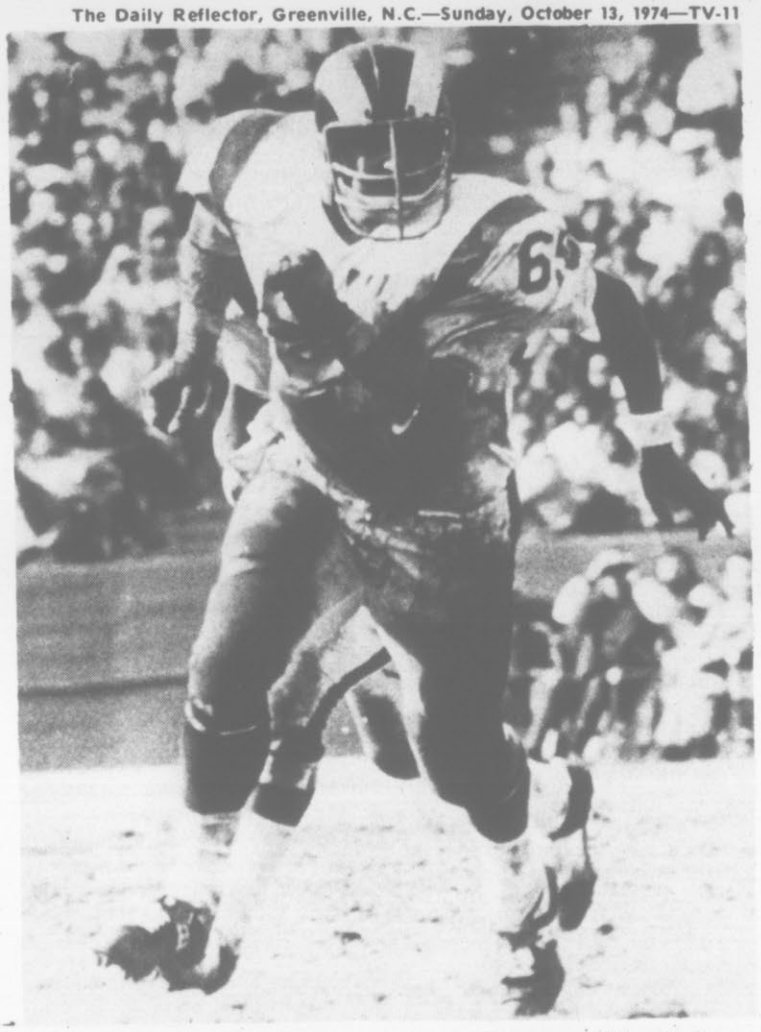
It's slightly different now because our backs tend to roll towards the hole instead of slanting right into it. Now, if we stay with a guy-even if it is a sloppy block — the backs are going to find the hole. It's seldom that you completely wipe out a guy."

Another significant difference in the Ram line play concerns their flip-flop system. Under Prothro, the Rams would flip-flop so that Mack was always the weak side guard and Scibelli always the strong side blocker.

Now, under Knox, Mack remains on the left side whether it is the strong or weak guard.

"Not flip-flopping is more settling to the offensive line in general," explains Mack. "We learn to adjust on running plays, but it was difficult to master on pass blocking. You're always facing a number of different people and it was hard to establish a pattern on them. As for me, I don't prefer one side to another as long as I stay on one side."

The Rams and their powerful line will be in action against the Green Bay Packers on Sunday, October 13, at 4 p.m., on Channel 3N-3W-9-11.



RAMS LINE — Tom Mack (6-3, 250) All-Pro guard for the Los Angeles Rams as an integral part of the Ram offensive line. The Green Bay Packers will host the Rams, Sunday, October 13th at 4:00 p.m. on Channel 9-11 in a game televised from Milwaukee Wisconsin.

Discovered Similarity In Football And Acting

Why do football players get into acting?

Ask Joe Kapp, who has followed the recent cleat-prints of Joe Namath, O. J. Simpson and Jim Brown, and the former quarterback replies that "one prepares you for the other."

"Remember, there's a lot of 'acting' in football," says Kapp. "You get used to following orders. You have to develop an ego. And, when you play in front of 50,000 fans in a stadium, you're not likely to be self-conscious in front of a camera."

So, when he isn't busy with his real-estate interests in San Francisco, Kapp looks for a dramatic role such as he plays on "Emergency!", broadcast Saturday evening, October 19, 8-9 p.m., on Channel 6-7. In the episode entitled "Surprise," Joe portrays a physical fitness instructor who passes out in a sauna bath.

Kapp, who was a star at the University of California at Berkeley, led the Bears to the Rose Bowl in 1958. He was drafted by the Washington Redskins, then did a stint in Canadian football. Joining the Minnesota Vikings, he once threw seven touchdown passes in one game — against the Baltimore Colts, in 1969 — tying an NFL record. But a dispute over money sent Kapp to the Boston Patriots and led to a subsequent legal hassle with the NFL that took him off the playing field.

"Quarterbacks hassle with physical pressure," Joe says. "With actors, it's all mental. But pressure is pressure, and to me both are in the same ball game," he observes. "That's why so many athletes are shucking the grandstands for the movie camera. The money is good and it doesn't hurt a bit."

He continues, "Playing high quality football didn't come easy to me, and acting doesn't either. I'm just a rookie with a hell of a lot to learn.

"But I like to win. If I can't play well, then I just won't play. I wouldn't take this part on "Emergency!" if I didn't think I could do a good job.

"When I was a kid, I used to stack fertilizer at a warehouse. I tried to be the best fertilizer stacker in the whole damn company — and you know something — I was."

IN 'SURPRISE'—Joe Kapp, former Minnesota Vikings quarterback, appears on NBC-TV "Emergency" in the episode "Surprise" to be colorcast Oct. 19 (8-9 p.m.) on Channels 6-7. Kapp plays a physical fitness instructor who passes out in a sauna bath.

Special Examines Plastic Hazards

CBS REPORTS: "The Case of the Plastic Peril," an examination of the health hazards of vinyl chloride — a substance from which thousands of ordinary plastic products are made — will be broadcast Saturday, Oct. 19, from 10 to 11 p.m., on Channel 3N-9-11.

Vinyl chloride is a gas which is processed into polyvinyl chloride, commonly known as vinyl plastic, and has been linked to at least 14 cases of a rare form of liver cancer among the 6,500 workers in polyvinly processing plants in the United States.

Vinyl plastic is the material used for such commonplace products as phonograph records,upholstery covers, salad-oil bottles, supermarket meat and produce wrappers, beverage can liners and blood bags.

On the broadcast, CBS News Correspondent Morton Dean talks with plastics factory workers — one who already has cancer of the liver, others whose blood tests have revealed liver disorders — about their fears

"The Case of the Plastic Peril" takes an inside look at what happens when Government agencies — in this case, those concerned with worker safety and consumer protection — and an industry are called upon to deal with a crisis such as this — how they respond and how they cooperate — and it examines the ability of Government's resources to cope with the problem

Large-scale production of vinyl chloride began in the 1950s and was presumed harmless. But now that the liver cancer, which may take as long as 20 years to manifest istelf, has been found among vinyl chloride workers, there is a persistent fear of a "time bomb" effect, i. e., that the consequences from exposure to the chemical may reach far beyond the relatively few cases discovered so far.

Moreover, investigations have raised the possibility that hundreds of thousands of workers handling polyvinyl chloride, the plastic, in the manufacture of everyday products may have been exposed to the materials' ill effects. Vinyl chloride, the gas, has already been banned as an aerosol propellant by two Government agencies because of its possible danger.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR RONA JAFFE, author of "Family Secrets"

When did you first decide to be a writer?—A. S., Hartford, Conn.

● At five—when I saw my first "Tarzan" film! I thought it would be loads of fun to be a lady reporter and go into the dark and dangerous jungle with a man reporter. My first job was editing for a magazine where I had to rewrite other people's lurid stories (cleaning them up and toning them down). At that time sex wasn't as fashionable as it is now. My bosses felt that since I was 20, I was naïve and would therefore inject some innocence into the manuscripts. Finally I decided if I could improve the work of others, I should write under my own name.

FOR ALAN ALDA

How much are you and "Hawkeye," the character you portray on "M*A*S*H," alike?—Paula Wall, Hobbs, N.M.

● Neither of us is interested in war, and we both try to do our work as well as we can. Unlike the character, I'm a family man and I don't drink martinis (I've never had one in my life); but I do have a sense of humor that's always with me. When it's not on display, I keep it hidden—just below the surface!

FOR JEANE DIXON, seeress

I thought that you did not use your gift of prophecy for monetary gain but that you gave all remunerations to charity. Now I hear this is not true. Would you comment?—H. Tobola, Cadott, Wis.

● All the earnings from my lectures, articles and various radio and TV appearances go directly to the Children to Children Foundation. I personally do not receive one cent.

FOR JAYNE MEADOWS

Why do you wear furs and feathers when you claim to be a conservationist?—James Giarelli, Gainesville, Fla.

● The furs I wear are either fake or else minks that Steve bought me 15 years ago. Mink is not an endangered species. When I have to wear furs for a role, I make sure they're not from an endangered species. For "Love American Style," I wore the ostrich-feather coat designed by Edith Head 40 years ago for Carole Lombard, and supplied by Paramount Pictures. I'm not a hypocrite! I love all humans and animals.

● Actually, it's hard on the whole leg, not just the knees. When you get up and down that often, you really begin to feel it. That's one reason I like to play another position from time to time. It gives me a nice break from catching, and I still get to stay in the game.

FOR O. J. SIMPSON, football star

During the football strike, you said that "freedom of speech" was one of the players' demands that most concerned you. Could you explain?—Ted Davidson, Teaneck, N.J.

● Too often free speech in pro football has been a one-way street. For example, in Atlanta last year Coach Norm Van Brocklin said he would fine any player who criticized the Falcons' organization in the press. Yet he held players up to ridicule in front of media people. We want the chance to speak as freely as the people who discuss us with the media.

FOR ELIZABETH POST,
director of the Emily Post Institute

Should parents accept an invitation from their unmarried son or daughter to visit the apartment they're sharing with someone of the opposite sex?—G. B., Albany, N.Y.

● I definitely think they should. To refuse gains the parents nothing but a loss of communication and influence with their child. And, of course, "acceptance" of the invitation doesn't necessarily mean approval of the arrangement.

FOR MARY STUART, star of "Search for Tomorrow"

What episodes have you enjoyed most in "Search for Tomorrow"?—T. Valins, Pontiac, Mich.

● Two stand out. When I played a blind character and a deaf mute. It was challenging and fascinating, and it gave me enormous insight into how handicapped people live. I prefer stories in which I can become totally involved and lose my own identity. For selfish reasons, I'd love to have more of the music I write played on the show. My song, "Don't Look Back," was used on "Search," and it was very well received.

FOR ARTHUR HERZOG, author of "Swarm"

Is there a real likelihood that dangerous bees from South America are coming north, as you predict in your novel?—Tom Moore, Sacramento, Calif.

● Yes, there is. The bees are now in Brazil—they are imports from Africa and escaped there—and are coming north at about 200 miles a year. If they make it all the way to the U.S., they could be a problem, as they are very irritable and attack in swarms. But the U.S. Government is taking measures to try and keep them out.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

Do you have any professional ideas on whether it's better for an adopted child to be told of his natural parents and the circumstances that led to his adoption?—A. C., Philadelphia, Pa.

Roger Grimsby

● Professional opinion still indicates the child should NOT be told, because of the resultant search by the child for his biological parents and the emotional trauma that might result from it. Roger Grimsby, anchorman of ABC-TV's "Eyewitness News," is an adopted child who, despite sealed legal documents, was successful in locating his natural parents. In a recent lecture on the subject, he admitted he has been left with mixed feelings. He believes that the information should not be provided to the adoptive parents, but the child himself should be able to get it when he reaches legal age.

Famous Scandinavian Design Scissors

The Scissors that are molded to your hand

- Cushion plastic handles with contour finger grip gives you more comfort and cutting freedom than you've ever experienced before.
- Stainless steel blades
- Cut paper . . . patterns . . . fabrics with incredible ease

Some time ago those inventive Scandinavians introduced an entirely new concept in scissors. It was a scissors with a special cushioned handle anatomically designed to fit your hand. The comfort was incredible. You could cut through the most intricate curve, cut all kinds of materials, cut free hand into all kinds of designs or slip the scissors along the table for an even straight line cut. People who were used to the old fashioned kind of scissors couldn't imagine a pair of scissors working so efficiently and so effortlessly as this new design. Seamstresses and anyone who needed them knew they had discovered a secret. But originally these scissors cost much, much more. In fact, even today you can find this design selling for $8.00 or more in fine stores. But now we've created this same design at a fantastically low price. "Shear Joy"! It's got the familiar orange, cushion soft, plastic handle, the stainless steel blades, weighs only 3 ounces, and they're 8¼" long. If you thought there was nothing glamorous about a pair of scissors then wait until you've tried these. At this new low price you can't afford to be without them. Order now. If they are not shear joy, simply return for full money back.

Globe Photos

Johnny Cash and June Carter with their son John Carter. Johnny and June will host the CBS-TV special Country Music Award Show on October 14.

"On weekends, when I drive out the gate, sometimes there are 40 or 50 tour buses out there! They unload at the front gate and take pictures of the house. . . . I'd like to say it doesn't bother me."

Normally, country-western superstar Johnny Cash shuns interviews. And when he does consent to them, he invariably includes his wife, June Carter, or (as in this case) Rosanne Cash (Johnny's daughter) and Rosie Nix (June's daughter). The meeting was held in their New York hotel suite.

Johnny Cash seemed to be a very relaxed man, one who smiles so often he should pose for toothpaste ads. He is much younger looking and better looking in person than he seems on TV. He talked easily, giggled often and acted very much like a man who has just found the secret of how to stay happy. Like his wife June, he wears an Israeli wedding ring and, around his neck, both the Star of David and a gold cross.

FAMILY WEEKLY: What makes you happy now?

JOHNNY: Having my family with me. It really does. That's what makes me happy, and knowing that everything's all right! Of course, a man's got to enjoy his work. I really enjoy working. The girls and I come off the stage at night and we're as high as kites! We're just so happy with what we're doing. And having John Carter [Johnny's youngest son, age four] with us makes us all feel better. He's here today, playing out in the park.

FW: Music seems to be kind of a way of life with you.

JOHNNY: It always has been. The girls both inherited a legacy of music I suppose, especially Rosie. Music in this family goes back to 1927, when her grandmother, Maybelle Carter, first started recording. June, Rosie's mother, has been onstage since she was six. I've been at it for 20 years. All Rosanne has ever known is her daddy as an entertainer and performer. I guess she wouldn't know what it was like to have a daddy who lived a normal life and worked at a regular job.

FW: Then music has always been part of your family?

JOHNNY: It's a binding kind of thing because we feel a closeness when we're singing that nobody could feel any other way. It's like we're sharing a song together. And the song is coming from each one of us, but it's coming from all of us as well. It's like a marriage out there. We're all one!

FW: How do you explain the growing interest in country-and-western music?

JOHNNY: In many ways, country and western has grown up. It's appealing to a lot more people. It's meshing and merging in a lot of ways without losing any of its originality, pureness and simplicity of form. At the same time, which is a strange thing, people like Willie Nelson, Waylon Jennings and guys like that are calling their music "hard country rock" or "hard country." Waylon Jennings is kind of like an outlaw in country and western. In many ways, he's like me. I've never really been quite orthodox country. I've done it according to feel. And that's the way a lot of people like Waylon are doing it. There's honesty in his performance and delivery. He doesn't compromise the way he feels just to please a certain group of peole. He is himself. But it's not all a bed of roses family-wise. Life on the road is very stimulating and exciting. It's a great life, living in a nice hotel like this and playing a beautiful place like the Music Theater. But when we get home, then the tough part starts. It's hard for a 42-year-old man to understand a 16-year-old or a 19-year-old girl! When we go home, there's a lot of pressure that builds up. Things are waiting for us to come home and take care of.

FW: Then not having enough time seems to be the big problem?

JOHNNY: Exactly! How do you slice up your time? Who do you give this time to or that person? How do you decide?

FW: But isn't home the only place you can really relax?

JOHNNY: It's the only place you can't relax unless you stay home three or four weeks. Then you can adjust to the change of pace. But you need time to separate the entertainment world and the home world. We haven't found that time.

FW: Do you ever have enough time to yourself?

JOHNNY: I can't remember when. I remember one day last year when I had a day to myself. That's when I went up on the farm. Even then I had an appointment. That's one of the mistakes we make in this business: not having time alone to restore whatever it is that gives us the strength to continue.

FW: Do you find when you travel together as a family that you're so glad to be with each other that you don't need other people around?

JOHNNY: That's certainly not true with the girls. June and I are fairly exclusive. For example, when we finish a concert, we always have an invitation to go to a club or hear another entertainer. We rarely do it. If we could, we would put on wigs and glasses and go sit in the audience like everybody else. That would be great! We did that once.

FW: Would you like to be a bum and just go out there and do what you want to?

JOHNNY: Secretly, maybe I would! I have a blond wig and glasses. June put hers on one time, too, and the two of us went to see the Carter Family and sat right in the front row and nobody knew us. It was great fun. I guess there's a little bit of that in all of us, when we'd like to be just a face in the crowd.

FW: How do you relax?

JOHNNY: I enjoy John Carter. I relax a lot with him. And I love to go to movies! Do you know what I like? I like children's movies! I looked in The New York Times and saw what movies were showing here for children. I saw "The Song of the South" was playing again. I'd like to go see that again. I took John Carter to see "Herbie Rides Again." That's the last movie I've seen. Do you know what I enjoy about it? The children! I enjoy the laughter and applause of children. I really get a kick out of that. I don't know if you saw it, but I really loved the scene when that Volkswagen ran up the side of that building and jumped across the river! All those kids were jumping and screaming and laughing!

"I have a blond wig and glasses. June put hers on one time, too, and the two of us went to see the Carter Family and sat right in the front row and nobody knew us. It was great fun."

Maddy Miller

Johnny Cash

knocks on the door. A lot of people just come walking up to our house—even at night. Of course, we have a guard, and the alarm system is always working. There's no way anybody could break in. But people come. A songwriter or somebody from a charity organization who thinks he needs my help. They knock on my door late at night and want to talk to me. Invariably, I say, "I'm sorry! I don't take care of business at home. You'll have to see somebody in my office tomorrow." I try to handle it as politely as I can.

JOHNNY: I lock the door or tell the guard I'm not at home or I don't want to see anybody unless it's an emergency. Or I go to my back room, stay in there and sleep or read by myself. I don't think I've done it more than twice in my life, but I can if I want to! On weekends, when I drive out the gate, sometimes there are 40 or 50 tour buses out there! They unload at the front gate and take pictures of the house. The bus goes up to the end of the street, turns around and comes back and picks up the people.

FW: Does that bug you?

JOHNNY: There are times when there might be 400 or 500 people standing out in front of my house! I'd like to say it doesn't bother me. Sometimes—and usually it's when I'm in a hurry—I hit that driveway and there are 300 people blocking the car! For pictures and autographs. It's taken a lot of wisdom and prayer to know how to handle it.

FW: How does June help you in this?

JOHNNY: She is a solid rock! She'll stop and talk to those people.

ROSIE: She'll give them her life story. And stand there and chat with them and give them recipes.

JOHNNY: I tell you, she has been the human anchor that God gave me to hold on to through those kinds of things. And I'm pretty hard on her. Sometimes when people want to talk or ask a question, I turn to her and let her answer it. June is a very strong person spiritually. No matter what the crisis is, she'll always stop me cold with a smile! She'll say, "Now raise your right hand and reach up for some strength!" Sometimes, if it's really a crisis, I'll say, "Don't bug me!" And I'll refuse to raise my hand! But she'll just keep looking at me and keep smiling. And she'll stick her hand up there higher and higher until finally I'll have to do it too!

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

How Much Do You Know About (Grrrrrrr!) Hostility?

True or False: Most people feel there is no excuse for husbands and wives throwing things or slapping each other. (See number 3)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. If you are in a happy mood when confronted by someone who is angry with you, his hostility will gradually diminish.

2. If a person is frustrated, a good way to calm him is to sympathize with him.

3. Most people feel there is no excuse for husbands and wives throwing things or slapping each other.

4. A chief reason why two people become hostile toward each other is that they have different types of brain rhythm.

ANSWERS

1. False. Studies show that your happy mood is likely to arouse more hostility and increase the chance of a violent altercation. Conversely, if you are in a depressed mood, this will have a cooling effect on the other person's anger.

2. False. According to studies at the University of Alberta (Canada). It was found that sympathy actually elicited more aggression under frustration conditions.

3. True. A survey of more than a thousand adults showed that only 20 percent could easily visualize situations where they could fully approve of a husband slapping his wife's face. A somewhat higher percentage said they could imagine circumstances where a wife would be justified in hitting her husband. But less than four percent could imagine situations in which they felt more extreme forms of marital mayhem would be justified.

4. True. Studies conducted by Dr. W. Grey Walter of the Burden Neurological Institute (Great Britain) have shown that if one person is a visual thinker (one who thinks in practical, down-to-earth terms) and another is an abstract thinker (theoretical as opposed to realistic or literal), neither understands the other, and a mutual hostility tends to build up almost immediately. "The antagonism between visual and abstract thinkers can cause an irrational rupture of communications among scientists, politicians, administrators, diplomats, and even married couples." The two antagonists may think they are speaking the same language, but they are not. Their brain rhythms, their mental faculties, function in diametrically opposite ways.

Precious 24K Gold, married to pure .999 Silver by an extraordinary advance in Gold Metallurgy.

The World's first Medallic Series in Gold Bas Relief.

(UNITED STATES CITIZENS ARE LEGALLY ALLOWED TO OWN GOLD AND SILVER IN THIS FORM.)

As our great country approaches its second centennial. The Letcher Mint proudly presents a limited edition of intricately crafted commemorative medals...unique in all the world:

For more than four years research has been conducted in the laboratories of The Letcher Mint, drawing heavily on the latest space-age developments in the forming of precious metals.

As a result of these painstaking efforts by the craftsmen and technicians of the west's largest private mint, we now can create a single amazing piece of metal—with pure 24 K gold and the purest silver obtainable (99.9% silver) permanently combined to form a collector's item of exceptional rarity and beauty. This is not gold plating or common "gold on silver" —but an entirely new and revolutionary process.

A Treasury of Americana

In the relatively short span of time between 1776 and 1976 the ideas and deeds of these great men helped make America the most influential country in the world.

George Washington
Benjamin Franklin
John Paul Jones
Alexander Hamilton
Abraham Lincoln
Robert E. Lee
Mark Twain
Thomas A. Edison
Theodore Roosevelt
Charles A. Lindbergh
Dwight D. Eisenhower
John F. Kennedy

Now at a time when world events rush forward at breathtaking speed, the wise collector and novice alike have a rare opportunity. That of owning a series of precious medals of both historic significance and true intrinsic worth.

Sculptured by Boris Buzan

Enduring Value

As the cost of gold and silver on world markets spirals inexorably upward, there could be no wiser choice for the collector than a purchase of pure gold and pure silver medals and coins. For here truly is a commodity whose value is timeless and virtually indestructible.

Each piece in this distinguished series measures a full 39mm (1.53″) in diameter. The obverse side depicts each of 12 Great Americans sculptured in brilliant pure gold (24 K). The mirror-like, pure silver background is finely detailed with illustrations individually designed for each of the 12 medals. The reverse dies are exquisitely engraved with fascinating biographical details in raised, frosted lettering, against the gleaming, pure silver background. And each piece contains a total of 5 grains of pure 24 K gold and 370 grains of pure .999 silver (more pure than sterling).

Limited Edition

In honor of the 200th anniversary of the American Revolution, 9,800 sets of Great Americans medals will be struck. 5,000 of these have been reserved for existing Letcher Mint collectors, leaving only 4,800 available to the public at large, on a first come, first served basis. No other sets will be struck and the dies will be destroyed, insuring the rarity of the series and its value to the collector.

Price Guarantee

The Great Americans series will be issued at the approximate rate of one medal per month. And the issue price of $30 per piece will be maintained regardless of increases in the prices of gold and silver on world markets during the life of your series. This offer will expire December 30, 1974.

Please complete the order form below and each medal will be sent to you postpaid via insured mail, in its own case. You will be notified monthly as each medal is struck. # The Strange Way We Groom Ourselves for Failure

By Allan J. Cox

Diana Bryant

"Courage to risk failure is what leads to success," says Allan J. Cox.

"It is always easier to blame others for some personal disappointment or problem rather than see how our own negative attitude guaranteed the occurrence."

Wise men have known for a long time that if you can change a person's expectations you can change his behavior. However, although we know this, we do not always make proper use of this important wisdom in our daily lives.

Perhaps it is because we have been burned by leaders who have misused—or, at the very least, misunderstood—the powerful tool of inspiration. Unfortunately, inspiration has been used more often than not to manipulate others for self-serving ends rather than for their own fulfillment. The lesson from political life is clear: Rash promises and the call to new hope among dispirited people lead to even greater depression and apathy when those promises go unfilled and those hopes are proved unjustified.

However, I think there are deeper reasons for our not being comfortable with the notion that by changing our expectations we can change our behavior. And I think the discomfort stems from knowing that this makes each of us responsible for the outcome of his life. It is always easier to blame others for some personal disappointment or problem rather than see how our own negative attitude guaranteed the occurrence.

At work, we see this harmful principle operating daily. For example, a subordinate has an idea with real merit, but he is sure the boss won't like it, so he never presents it. Or even if he does, his presentation is so lacking in verve that the boss is hard-pressed to take his attention away from his other duties to give the idea the consideration it deserves.

What purpose is served for the subordinate who has set up his failure with such low expectations and a consequent unenergetic performance? Is it that he can now comfort himself by blaming his "closed-minded" boss for prohibiting what surely would have led to a stellar outcome? I think so.

To one extent or another, I believe we all trip ourselves up this way. Without being aware of it, we use low expectations to get ourselves off the hook. By assuming a lack of cooperation on the part of others, we guarantee their uncooperativeness and our nonparticipation in an activity in which we would be expected to make a contribution. In this round robin, we excuse ourselves from an activity where we question our ability to perform and save face by blaming someone else for thwarting our ambitions. What we hide from ourselves, of course, is our ambition to be the star and our fear that we will never make it.

How does one break this self-limiting cycle? How does one meet a challenge on positive ground? How does one adopt a positive view of what he is, what the circumstances are and what he can accomplish? In short, how does one raise his expectations?

By not being afraid of making a mistake. Courage to risk failure is what leads to success. Self-confidence comes by taking risks where the outcome is no more than the fruition of what you truly believe can be accomplished. And remember, even when you make a mistake, that doesn't mean you are one!

What in the World!

Douglas Kent Hall

LARRY MAHAN
A card-carrying cowboy

QUOTE: From Larry Mahan, six-time All Around Cowboy in rodeos and star of the rodeo documentary, "The New American Cowboy": "I've ridden over 6,000 animals in my career. I figured out that last year I was bucked off saddle broncs two times and, out of 130 to 150 bulls I rode, I was bucked off 30 percent of the time. I don't know how many times I've been stepped on, crushed or kicked. The cowboy is just as tough as he used to be, but he's had to organize to better himself. We've established card-carrying members of the Rodeo Cowboys Association because we get ripped off just like any other participants in spectator sports. The grounds owner can make $100,000 off us, so we're just trying to get a percentage of the gate. Top cowboys can ~~win $60,000 a year while others only~~ win $600 a month—we don't get a cent for just being there. If you don't place within the top four of a category, you don't make any money." UNQUOTE.

Steven Stills of the recently reunited rock group Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young: "I like playing music with these guys. It's a social event. I never wanted to be only the main guy. It's fun, subjective, or whatever, because we're old friends. We're playing new music, and it's fun to enjoy each other. We realized why we fell apart—our size of popularity—and this time we tried to be sensible, plan for it, grow up a little. I mean it's staggering when you face 60,000 people—you grow out of your skin. You'd have to be a cold man not to be affected by that much energy. It's also expensive on the person to travel on the road; you're tired; it eats on your energy level. I want to go home. I miss my son. He was born in the spring and I want to see him."

JENNIE AND CRAIG
A cry of joy

Mother Jennie Thomson is delighted with her very ordinary baby boy, Craig, because she was such an extraordinary baby. When born 20 years ago, Jennie had a serious heart condition that forced her to live as an invalid in a hospital for the first six years of her life. Finally doctors were able to perform a revolutionary operation in which they inserted plastic plates in her heart. Since then she has been able to lead a normal, full life. Marriage, however, brought with it the fear that any children she might have might inherit the same heart affliction. Fortunately that was not the case. Every time Craig gives a hearty, healthy cry, Jennie breaks into a wide smile.

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

by HAL FOSTER

Our Story: A GREAT MASS OF DRIFTWOOD FLOATED DOWN THE RIVER AND LODGED AGAINST. THEIR BRIDGE UNTIL THE PIERS COLLAPSED UNDER ITS WEIGHT. BEHIND THIS DAM THE PENT-UP WATERS FIND ESCAPE AROUND THE UNFINISHED END AND SCOUR OUT AN EVER-DEEPENING CHANNEL IN THE GRAVEL.

PANTING WITH RAGE KARAK TURNS, GRIPPING HIS AXE AND LOOKING FOR SOMEONE OR SOMEONE ON WHICH TO VENT HIS ANGER.
"HOLD!" CAUTIONS VAL, "I CAN BRIDGE THE TORRENT."

"IN THE CALM WATER BEHIND THE DAM WE CAN CONSTRUCT A SIMPLE WALKWAY, BUT WHERE THE TORRENT RUSHES THROUGH, A TOWER WILL SUPPORT A DRAWBRIDGE THAT CAN BE LOWERED ACROSS THE GAP AND SO DEFEAT THE WATER DEMON!"

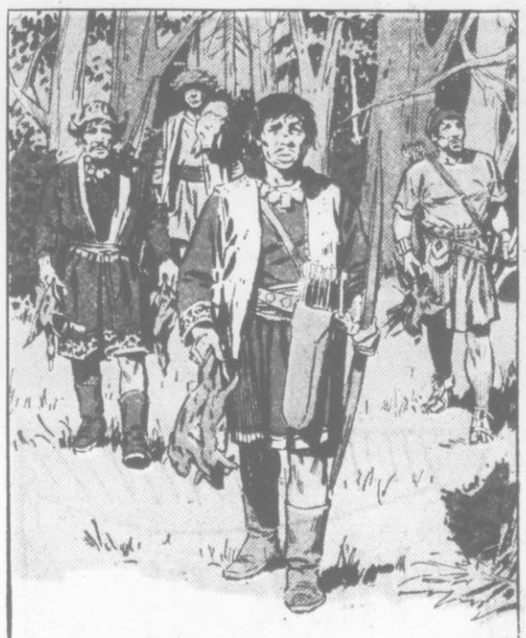
ONCE AGAIN THE WORK STARTS, BUT ALL THE NEARBY TIMBER HAS BEEN CUT AND THE WORKERS HAVE TO HAUL THE LOGS AN EVER-INCREASING DISTANCE, AND TIME FLIES.....



.....TIME FLIES, TOO LONG HAVE THEY REMAINED HERE. THE HUNTERS MUST GO EVER-FARTHER AFIELD FOR THE DWINDLING SUPPLY OF GAME.

AT DAY'S END, WHEN FOOD AND DRINK HAVE PUT KARAK TO SLEEP, VAL SITS ON THE CLIFF ABOVE THE TURBULENT RIVER. THE QUESTION: WILL STARVATION HALT CONSTRUCTION OF THE BRIDGE?

Hal Kaufman's JUMOR WHIRL®

YOU CAN pretend you are a magician and have lots of fun with this magic-like math trick. Practice it a bit and you'll be ready to give your friends a surprise.

The magician writes the number 12345679 (note omission of 8) on a blackboard or a sheet of paper. He tells his audience that this is a magic number, and indeed it is. He next asks someone in the crowd to name his favorite number between 1 and 9. The performer mulitplies this number by 9 and the result by the magic number.

It will work with any number between 1 and 9. Amazing!
