Marijuana Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The maximum penalty for simple possession of small amounts of marijuana for personal use would be reduced from one year to 30 days under draft legislation that rewrites the U.S. Criminal Code. The reduced marijuana penalty is one of hundreds of changes in federal criminal laws found in the proposed legislation, an outgrowth of a massive project begun in 1966 by a commission appointed by President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Bomb Explodes In Japan

TOKYO (AP) — An explosion shattered windows in the headquarters of a major Japanese trading firm today, minutes after telephone callers warned of a bomb. Officials said about 15 persons were injured, at least two seriously. The early afternoon blast occurred on the third floor of the downtown headquarters of the Mitsui company. Four telephone calls at three-minute intervals warned that a bomb had been placed in the building and apparently helped reduce the number of casualties, police said.

16 Irish Killings

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Shadowy assassins have killed 16 persons in a month of tit-for-tat killings by Protestant and Roman Catholic extremists. Police said today it is evidence of a new wave of back-street sectarian murder in the embattled British province. Another 20 persons have been shot and gravely wounded. The only motive seems often merely to kill any Protestant or any Catholic, investigators say.

Begin Selecting Branch Case Jury

Jury selection began this morning in cases against Roy Lee Sullivan of Kinston and Connie Hardee Branch of Greenville, in Pitt County Superior Court. Sullivan and Mrs. Branch are charged with conspiracy to murder and being accessories before the fact of murder in connection with the death of Mrs. Branch's husband, Lynwood Branch. Branch was found beside his car in the driveway of his home near Greenville the night of March 29, shot through the head. He died two days later in Pitt Memorial Hospital. Sullivan and Mrs. Branch were arrested on the conspiracy and accessory charges in late April.

Two other men, Harold Payne Wiseman and Matthew Jack Whelton, both Virginia residents, have been charged with conspiracy to murder in connection with the case also. Their cases are also on the Superior Court calendar for hearing this week.

Presiding Judge Perry Martin this morning rejected an objection by attorneys for Mrs. Branch to have the cases against their client and Sullivan heard separately, upholding a motion to consolidate the two defendants.

Prosecution Opens Watergate Trial

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The prosecution opened its case in the Watergate cover-up trial today by telling the jury it would prove that "the most powerful men in the government of the United States ... even including the President" conspired to block the investigation of the Watergate break-in.

Richard Ben-Veniste, an assistant special Watergate prosecutor, told the jury of nine women and three men:

"We will prove to you in the course of this trial that the attempts of legitimate law enforcement agencies ... were met by an effort to cover up the facts and obstruct the investigations by the most powerful men in the government of the United States in a conspiracy that even involved the President of the United States himself."

The start of the trial was delayed two hours, apparently when one juror asked to be excused.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica excused the juror, Lucille F. Plunkett, 59, and named the first alternate, Helen D. Pratt to replace her.

The five defendants, including three of the most powerful officials in the Nixon administration, sat at five small counsel tables with their lawyers.

When Sirica entered the courtroom at 11:29 a.m., John J. Wilson, attorney for former White House staff chief H.R. Haldeman, immediately rose and moved for a mistrial, apparently because of the request by the juror to be excused.

"Motion denied," replied the judge, who also had presided at the Watergate break-in trial nearly two years ago.

"In the early morning hours of June 17, 1972, a security guard working at the Watergate complex noticed that a downstairs door had been taped so that it would not lock," Ben-Veniste began his statement.

The defendants, who sat listening to the prosecutor outline the case against them, were former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, ex-White House aides Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, former Asst. Atty. Gen. Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson, one-time lawyer for the Nixon re-election committee.

Lawyers for Ehrlichman, Mardian and Parkinson planned to outline their defense cases immediately following Ben-Veniste's argument.

Attorneys for Mitchell and Haldeman said they would delay their opening arguments until the prosecution had presented its entire case.

David G. Bress, attorney for Mardian, said he would move for dismissal of the single charge against his client. If, as expected, U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica rejects his motion, Bress said he then would deliver his opening argument.

All five defendants are charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice, a charge that carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

All but Mardian also are charged with obstruction of justice, which carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

In addition, Mitchell is charged with two counts of lying to a grand jury, one count of lying to FBI agents and one of lying to the Senate Watergate committee.

Haldeman is charged with three counts of lying to the Watergate committee and Ehrlichman is charged with one count of lying to FBI agents and two counts of lying to a grand jury.

Each of the perjury counts carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison with fines ranging from $2,000 to $10,000 for each.

Egyptian Support Pledged For Interim Agreements

By BARRY SCHWEID Associated Press Writer

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger gained Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's assurance today that he will try to rally support at the Arab summit for interim agreements with Israel.

"There are positive indications that we are making progress toward a just peace in the area," the secretary said at Sadat's residence outside Cairo.

Kissinger also announced he would return to the Middle East the first week of November, following visits to Russia and the Indian subcontinent.

After his talks with Sadat, Kissinger flew to Damascus for talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad. Later, he flies to Algeria.

Sadat, the key leader in Kissinger's Middle East diplomacy, seemed to be walking on eggs as he agreed to take the initiative at the Arab summit in Morocco on Oct. 26.

"Why am I asked about guarantees?" he exclaimed when a newsman asked whether Egypt was prepared to offer them to Israel in return for a withdrawal in Sinai. "I myself, I need guarantees," he said.

But he added that he was "very optimistic" about the summit.

The West German news magazine Der Spiegel quoted Sadat as saying he would be ready to sign a peace agreement if Israel pulls back from territories occupied during the 1967 war.

Dairy Co-ops Have Bargaining Power

By BROOKS JACKSON Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Milk prices in most parts of the country are being held above federal minimums through the bargaining power of big dairy cooperatives, according to governmental and private statistics.

The government calculated that extra charges levied by co-ops amounted to an average of 1.9 cents per half-gallon nationwide last June, the most recent month for which an official average is available.

The average has risen since then, but the Agriculture Department has not yet revealed the amount of the increase. Bottlers say dairy co-ops in southern Florida are charging 11 cents per half-gallon over federal minimums, which one government economist said was the highest extra charge ever recorded.

Co-ops are able to charge prices above federal minimums because of their size and partial immunity from antitrust laws. The higher prices generally are passed on to consumers.

Under present law, bottlers must pay at least what the government sets as the minimum price for fluid milk in 61 federally regulated markets, which account for about 80 per cent of the nation's fluid milk. But co-ops are free to demand more, and also are free to join in price-fixing associations among themselves.

The co-ops were given exemptions from antitrust laws during the Depression, when dairymen were at the mercy of bottlers and cheese makers. But the processors now contend that the tables have turned, and it is they who are at the mercy of the co-ops.

Under the law, the Secretary of Agriculture is required to prevent co-ops from using their special status to enhance their prices unduly. But department officials say no action is under way to roll back the present record-high extra charges. In the 52 years that the present law has been on the books, not one single price action has been brought by the department against a co-op.

Air Crash Kills 3

CHEROKEE, N.C. (AP) — A private airplane from Montgomery, Ala., crashed Sunday night in a front yard on the edge of the Cherokee Indian Reservation, killing three persons, officials said.

One passenger, identified as Herbert Sellers of Elmore, Ala., survived. He was taken to an Asheville hospital in critical condition.

Swain County Sheriff Bill Lewis said the plane crashed in the front yard of Wayne Woodard, who was in the house at the time. The explosion and fire destroyed one of Woodard's cars and some pine trees, however a hedge prevented flames from reaching the house, Lewis said.

Officers said Sellers, 30, was thrown from the aircraft and was found hooked to his seat. The names of the three victims were withheld pending notification of relatives.

Search For AF Plane

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — An air and sea search was under way today for a missing U.S. Air Force weather reconnaissance plane that disappeared while on a typhoon-tracking mission in the South China Sea.

The aircraft had six persons aboard. It was flying a routine pattern 400 miles north-northwest of Clark Air Base in the Philippines and 80 miles from the eye of Typhoon Bess Saturday night when it disappeared, said an Air Force spokesman at Clark.

The missing U.S. Air Force WC130 Hercules was based with the 54th Weather Reconnaissance Squadron at Andersen Air Force Base on Guam. It took off Saturday afternoon from Clark.

Ed Sullivan Dead At 72

NEW YORK (AP) — Ed Sullivan, the Great Stone Face whose "really big show" entertained millions of American television viewers on Sunday nights for more than two decades, is dead of cancer at 72.

He died Sunday night at Lenox Hill Hospital, with Carmine Santullo, his aide and close friend for more than 40 years, at his bedside. Sullivan had been hospitalized Sept. 6, but his illness was a closely kept secret.

Bob Precht, Sullivan's son-in-law and head of Sullivan's TV production company, said the performer-columnist did not know that he had cancer of the esophagus.

A warm but poker-faced newspaperman who got into broadcasting in 1930 with a radio variety show, Sullivan made his debut on CBS with his weekly TV show in May 1948. The program was called, "The Toast of the Town."

In its 23 years on television, the popular Sunday night program introduced to viewers such now-famous performers as the Beatles, Elvis Presley, Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis and Dick Van Dyke.

Although the show folded in 1971 because of low ratings, Sullivan continued hosting several specials a year.

Sullivan, born in Manhattan and raised in Port Chester, N.Y., began his newspaper career 53 years ago as a $10-a-week reporter on the Port Chester Daily Item. He drifted into sportswriting and started his Broadway column in 1931 on the now-defunct New York Journal American.

Even at the height of his television success, he continued writing his syndicated "Little Old New York" column, which in recent years ran twice a week. His last column was in today's editions of the New York Daily News.

At ease behind the typewriter, Sullivan's television style was stiff, his delivery halting, his verbal fluffs frequent.

Performers and critics variously referred to him as the Great Stone Face, Smiley, the Milton Maestro and Rock of Ages.

Although a gracious man in private, Sullivan often feuded with the New York critics who rapped his show, among them John Crosby, whose criticism of the first Sullivan show was headlined: "Why? Why? Why?"

He also occasionally battled with performers, such as singer Frank Sinatra, who aroused the Sullivan ire in 1965 by refusing to appear on Sullivan's show for less than $25,000.

Sullivan, who in recent years lived at the Delmonico Hotel, an old show-biz hostelry on Park Avenue here, said in a 1972 interview that he was severely depressed when his weekly show was cancelled after 23 years.

"When you're off the air, it's like being sentenced to the death chamber. It's sort of like a newspaper where you're doing your column and all of a sudden the managing editor says, 'I've got news for you, boy. You're through.'"

Sylvia, his wife of 43 years, died in 1973.

His survivors include his daughter, Betty Precht of Scarsdale, N.Y.; his brother, Charles Sullivan of Port Chester, N.Y.; three sisters, Mrs. Hugh Murphy and Mrs. George Hegel, both of Port Chester, and Mrs. Piercy Culver of Manhattan; and five grandchildren. Funeral arrangements are pending.

Green Mill Environmental Study At City Hall

By JERRY RAYNOR Reflector Staff Writer

In August 1974, the U.S. Army Engineer District, with headquarters in Wilmington, published a draft environmental statement covering Green Mill Run in Pitt County, or more specifically, Greenville.

A representative of the Corps of Engineers, at the Aug. 8 City Council meeting, presented a status report on the project.

The 13-page summary, which also has two maps and a "typical section" chart attached, covers nine sections—(1) Project description; (2) Environmental setting without the project; (3) Relationship of the proposed action to land-use plans; (4) The probable impact of the proposed action to land-use plans; (5) The probable impact of the proposed action on the environment; (6) Any probable adverse environmental effects which cannot be avoided; (6) Alternatives to the proposed action; (7) The relationship between local short-term uses of man's environment and the maintenance and enhancement of long-term uses of man's environment and the maintenance and enhancement of long term productivity; (8) Any irreversible or irretrievable commitment of resources which would be involved in the proposed action should it be implemented; and (9) Coordination with others.

Under the section "Alternatives to the proposed action," ten alternatives are discussed. These are: "Removal of existing obstruction to flow; diversion of the headquarters directly into Tar River; flood storage reservoirs; flood-proofing; flood plain evacuation; earth trapezoidal channel; floodwalls, or levee system; flood plain regulation or zoning; flood insurance;" and the last alternative—"no action."

Three years ago, in August 1971, the same Army Engineer District presented a study for the Detailed Project Report to the city, which was studied by the City Council. Prior to preparation of the study, a public meeting was held on Feb. 18, 1971.

Reports and studies that have been made on Green Mill Run are authorized under authority of Section 205 of the 1948 Flood Control, as amended.

A description of action recommended in this administrative summary shows plans for "construction of a flood control project on Green Mill Run in Greenville, Pitt County, North Carolina, consisting of about 1.9 miles of channel improvement by deepening and widening the existing stream. A composite channel design was used, with a small base flow channel approximately equal in size to the present channel, and grassed berms and grassed gentle side slopes provided on each side of the base flow channel. The channel top width would be about 70 feet, and the overall depth would be about seven feet. All excavated material would be removed from the project site. Construction methods employed will be selected so as to minimize the temporary turbidity and siltation associated with the work."

Under "Environmental Impacts," the summary states the plan will "provide flood protection, reduce average annual flood damages by about 80 percent, stimulate development in flood free areas, improve esthetic qualities, provide initial link in green for city, provide outdoor recreational opportunities, and eliminate existing potential mosquito breeding areas."

The impacts noted above are favorable ones. In the unfavorable or "Adverse Environmental Effects," the study shows: "Loss of several mature trees in project right-of-way and slight temporary increase in turbidity during and immediately after project construction."

Estimates for cost of the project given in the study are: "The first costs of the project are estimated at $342,000 of which $237,000 would be federal costs. The total average annual costs are estimated at $22,010."

Other estimates show "total average annual benefits resulting from the project were estimated at $32,960 and result from flood damage reductions to present and future development ($26,030) and land enhancement

($6,393) ... Extent of property in the area as listed in the summary shows "The flood plain along the evaluated reach contains about 52 buildings (commercial, academic, and residential) valued at about $2.2 million."

An extensive paragraph goes into the "Environmental setting without the project" which shows the area size and the general course and physical characteristics of Green Mill Run, including the fact that the "city limits of Greenville encompass about 45 percent of the Green Mill Run basin, and about 60 percent (18,000) of the city's population (excluding university students) is located in the basin. The entire East Carolina University campus is located in the basin. ... Greenville's expansion over the last decade has been largely into the basin."

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day, but the phone service is available 24 hours a day.

WANTS TO HELP CAMILLE VICTIMS

I want to do something for the victims of Hurricane Camille in Honduras. Is there any way I can donate some clothes for them? Mrs. N. R.

Mrs. Ruth Taylor, secretary of the local Red Cross chapter, said she is accepting monetary contributions for the many people whose homes and belongings were carried away by Hurricane Camille, but cannot accept clothes, because of transportation and other expenses involved. Checks should be made payable to the Pitt County Chapter of the American Red Cross and sent to Red Cross, Box 586, Greenville, N. C. 27834.

WATS INFORMATION

Is there any number you can call to see if a certain company or agency has a toll-free number? M. W.

Yes, Hotline often uses 800-555-1212, WATS information in East St. Louis, Ill.

WANTS BELLYDANCING

Is there anyone in this area who could teach bellydancing. P. B.

You're in luck. Donna Whitley has just come back to Greenville after living in Morocco and studying Arabic dance, as she prefers to call it. She's always well-versed in West African tribal dances, having studied with the Ghana Dance Ensemble. She is interested in teaching both and may be reached at 756-0574.

Departure Of Mini Is Mourned

By SUSAN CARLSON
LONDON (AP) — It was the success story of the decade, the badge of the bold new age of permissiveness, the uniform of the "Youth Revolution."
It was the marvelous mini — the fashion that came out of newly Swinging London and swept the world.
Now it's all over. Here, where it all started, the mini skirt has been pronounced dead at last.
English papers mourned the loss. The London Evening News cried: "Tell me it isn't true." The Sun headlined: "The Final Heave-Ho." The Evening Standard bade "A Short and Sweet Farewell." On the BBC's pop radio station, disc jockey Tony Blackburn declared a week of mourning for the style. And all over the country men howled in dismay.

In the midst of the furor, there were some who wondered what the fuss was all about.
"The mini? It's been dead for ages — why are they just discovering it now?" mused Jenny Lloyd, a with-it young secretary.
She has a point. For years now, the mini has been persona non grata on the King's Road, a stranger in Carnaby Street, an antiquity to the trendy models, designers, and followers of their fashions.
It's even been the subject of a museum exhibition this year — "Mary Quant's London" — which displayed the fashion fossil in all its former glory.

Miss Quant herself, like the other top designers of the era, dropped the style before the start of the new decade. The mini, she said, was "right for its time. It's another era now. We're in a different mood. We're feeling more refined, more romantic."
Is it romance? Or something else? According to 20th-century folklore, hemlines rise and fall with the Financial Times stock index. And, as mini-mourning gripped Britain, London's stock exchange was plummeting to 1930s-style lows.
But neither name designers nor the stock exchange dealt the final blow. Despite the whims of both, the sky-high style had lingered long after other fads had come and gone.
What killed the mini in the end was the very young it was designed for. More than any other style, the mini promoted — and depended on — the qualities of youth. The day the mini died arrived when a rock fan, questioned while waiting outside a recording studio for her idol to emerge, replied scornfully: "The mini? I haven't worn it since I was little," and at 16 wasn't exaggerating.
For London girls of this age group, it isn't even a fond memory. "Ooh, I hate it," said 19-year-old Sue Davies, a sales clerk in a department store. Val McGhee, 20, elaborated, "I just don't think they look nice. I mean — you hear men say 'Well if a girl's got nice legs...' But most of them who wear them don't."
"It's just horrible," summed up another '70s-style Dolly Bird.

— It's that verdict that made the last mini-strongholds, the popular chain stores of C & A, Marks and Spencers, Richard Shops and Dorothy Perkins (all British equivalents of Sears and Penneys) finally abandon the style. The closest any of the fall stocks will come to the glorious heights of the mini is 19 to 18 inches, a mere 2 inches above the knee.
So, now what next? "Anything fashionable," was Miss Davies' ready reply. Others had more definite ideas, like trousers, a firm favorite among practical ladies with comfort in mind.
For others, it's a case of from one extreme to another. Maxiskirts — free-flowing, side-walk-trailing — have caught on here as nowhere else. In London, unlike America or Europe, they're not just party clothes, fun for resort wear or special occasions. They're an everyday look here, just the thing for doing the shopping in, taking the kids to school in, even for working in. Maybe it's because they have the approval of at least the romantics of the male population. "They're so really pretty and feminine," commented one.
And now, most recent of the looks to capture the British fancy, is the mid-calf skirt. "It's so attractive, so stylish," enthused the fashionable young, one after the other. And it's new.
Still, at least one of the mod young things was willing to hold out hope to depressed leg watchers. "We're going through all the styles — '20s, '30s and now we're on to the '50s, so fast, I think the mini will come back by next year," was student Penny Turten's view.

Better Stay Away From Daughter-In-Law

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A man signed "Borrowed Time" asked in which state he could marry his former daughter-in-law. You replied that since they were not related by blood, he could marry her in ANY state.
Not in Massachusetts! I quote from Section 1, Chapter 207 of the Mass. General Laws:
"No man shall marry his mother, grandmother, daughter, granddaughter, sister, stepmother, grandfather's wife, son's wife, grandson's wife, wife's mother, wife's grandmother, wife's daughter, wife's granddaughter, brother's daughter, sister's daughter, father's sister or mother's sister."
RESPECTFULLY YOURS,
PAUL W. CORRIGAN
ATTORNEY AT LAW, LYNN, MASS.

DEAR MR. C: Yours was the first of umpteen hundred letters I received to signal my error. I admit that I shot from the hip on that one, using only common sense and simple logic. (It was understandable to me why people related by blood ties should not marry, but why extend that law to those related by marriage?)
The second letter pointing out my erroneous advice came from Angela Haven Bonin (also of Lynn, Mass.), and the third was from Alan I. Alford, of Alford, Tuck and Pozzi in Sudbury, Mass. (I quit counting when they got up into the hundreds.)
From Judge Blair C. Wood of Waterloo, Iowa came this word: "If a man should marry his son's former wife, the marriage would be void in Iowa. And if they lived together after the marriage, he would be subject to a penalty of 25 years in the penitentiary for incest." (Why only HIM, Judge? How about HER?)
Then, Rabbi Samuel Friedman, my honorary consultant on Jewish law, wrote from Asheville, North Carolina: "On all other affairs, I yield to brains, beauty and a blessed writer, but please bear in mind that a Jewish man is forbidden by law to marry his daughter-in-law."
Henry N. Berry III, Cumberland County Attorney, made the following contribution: "Your column has been read and enjoyed by us in Maine for many years, but please be advised, Abby, that if 'Borrowed Time' plans to marry in Maine, he may become involved in an illegal relationship. I quote from Title 19, Section 31, of the Maine Revised Statutes: "No man shall marry his son's wife and no woman shall marry her husband's father."
Worse yet was the news from Samuel G. Kerall, of Johnston and Shores, attorneys in Birmingham, Alabama: "I would suggest that you retract the advice you gave 'Borrowed Time' immediately. Otherwise you may find yourself charged as an accessory before the fact to the crime of incest. Here in Alabama that might result in your becoming a guest of our lovely state for one to seven years." (Thanks, Sam. Please regard this as an official retraction. I love Alabama, but I wouldn't want to live there under the above-mentioned circumstances.)
And as if I didn't have enough trouble, Dan Bartley, of Bartley & Harrington, Attorneys in Louisa, Kentucky, wrote: "If you insist on practicing law, please do it correctly! 'Borrowed Time' said that he wanted to marry his daughter-in-law in order to make her the sole heir to his estate. You completely ignored that fact. You should have informed him that he could make those provisions in a will. He didn't have to marry the girl."
Well, dear readers, I earned the roasting I received from hundreds of lawyers, legal secretaries, law students, and readers who just happened to know more about it than I did.
In the future when it comes to legal problems, I promise to consult one of my very able legal consultants. And would you believe that both my son and son-in-law are attorneys?

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Gourmet Pear Tart Isn't Expensive

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
On the dessert tables at some of New York's fashionable and expensive French restaurants you often see a fruit tart — this a rectangular layer of perfect pastry topped with fresh fruit and glazed.
For the foundation, French chefs use puff pastry or a rich and less complicated pastry called pate brisee. When we attempted to duplicate this dessert, with fresh Bartlett pears for the fruit, we used an American version of the pate brisee.
PEAR TART
1½ cups flour, fork-stir to aerate before measuring ½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
¼ cup shortening
¼ cup plus 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
4 to 5 tablespoons milk
¼ cup apricot preserves
1 tablespoon lemon juice
3 large fresh firm-ripe Bartlett pears
In a medium mixing bowl stir together the flour, salt and sugar. With a pastry blender cut in the shortening and ¼ cup butter until particles are fine. Sprinkle with milk, working it in as you do so, and adding only enough to hold dough together. Shape into a flat square; cut off about 1-3rd and reserve.
On a floured pastry cloth with a floured stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out the larger portion of the dough to a 16 by 6 inch strip. Transfer to an ungreased cookie sheet.
In a small saucepan over low heat stir together the apricot preserves, lemon juice and 1 tablespoon butter until hot and blended; cool. Brush pastry strip with some of the apricot mixture.
Halve, pare and core pears. Place pear halves, cut side down on the pastry strip, alternating rounded ends so they fit neatly side by side. Brush pear halves with more of the apricot mixture.
Roll remaining pastry into a 15 by 3 inch strip. Cut lengthwise into 3 equal strips, then cut crosswise into 4ths. Cross 2 strips over each pear half, moisten edges and press against bottom pastry. Turn up edges slightly and, if you like, flute. Brush remaining apricot mixture over pastry.
Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until pastry is brown and pears are tender — 45 to 50 minutes. Serve slightly warm or cool completely. At serving time, cut between pears in straight slices or triangles. Serve this pear tart the same day it is made for then the pastry will be deliciously crisp.
Makes 6 servings.

Panel May Requestion Rockefeller

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nelson A. Rockefeller may be recalled by a Senate panel considering his nomination as vice president for questioning about his gifts to friends and political associates and publication of a 1970 book derogatory of a campaign opponent.

"There's a good likelihood that the Rules Committee will recall Mr. Rockefeller," said a press secretary for Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., chairman of the panel. "More than likely, questioning will be on the gifts and the books."

Cannon also was quoted by the aide, Barbara Dahlke, as saying the committee would not vote on confirmation before December.

Meanwhile, several lawmakers said Rockefeller's nomination may be in trouble and Rep. Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass., said he will join with a number of other congressmen in a bid to have President Ford withdraw the nomination.

At his Westchester County,

N.Y., estate, Rockefeller insisted he had responded thoroughly to all questions asked by congressional committees about gifts he made to public officials and associates between 1957 and 1974.

The former New York governor also denied any knowledge of a report, broadcast by NBC that "Rockefeller interests" had arranged a $50,000 loan for L. Judson Morhouse, a former New York state official. The report said Morhouse bought stock with the money and made a profit of over $100,000.

Pressures to have Rockefeller recalled by the Rules Committee increased after disclosure that his brother, Laurence Rockefeller, put up $60,000 to help finance a book derogatory to former Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg. Goldberg was Rockefeller's opponent in 1970 for the New York governorship. The vice president-designate has accepted blame for publication of the book.

Rep. Wayne L. Hays of Ohio, Democratic chairman of the House Campaign Committee, said Rockefeller's nomination "might be in some serious trouble." Appearing on NBC's Meet the Press, Hays said the nomination could go over to the next Congress in 1975, which would not improve Rockefeller's chances of confirmation.

Predict PLO Invitation

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Arab diplomats predict the U.N. General Assembly will adopt a resolution today inviting the Palestine Liberation Organization to join its upcoming Palestine debate "as the representative of the Palestinian people."

The resolution has been submitted in behalf of 69 nations, or half the assembly membership, including all Arab nations except Jordan. It is expected to receive support from Communist members and many of the Third World nations.

U.N. sources said Jordan probably will vote for the resolution as a procedural move. King Hussein's government did not join the sponsors because he refuses to recognize the PLO as the representative of Palestinians under Jordanian jurisdiction, although he recognizes PLO authority elsewhere.

Israel has condemned the proposed resolution. It contends the PLO is a terrorist organization bent on destroying Israel and as such should not be given an audience in the United Nations. Nevertheless, Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah said he expects an invitation to be approved.

Services For Mrs. Moore

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Funeral services were scheduled today for Bette Craig Moore, who police say set herself afire last month after telephoning her intentions to a radio talk show producer.

Mrs. Moore, 43, the estranged wife of state Sen. Herman Moore, died Saturday in a Chapel Hill hospital where she had been listed in critical condition.

A memorial service will be held at 5 p.m. today at the Trinity Presbyterian Church.

Police Hearings Resume

HIGH POINT (AP) — Hearings into alleged police misconduct resume today, with indications that the proceedings might wrap up by mid-week.

City council sources said some of those involved in the hearings would like to complete the business in time for the fall furniture market which opens this coming weekend.

The council is holding the hearings under a new state law which allows city councils to issue subpoenas and compel witnesses to testify.

In Friday's proceedings, former policeman B. F. Collins testified that High Point Police Chief Laurie Pritchett virtually destroyed the department's ability to control gambling, prostitution and liquor by restricting investigations to a handful of men.

Welfare Recipients Cut

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Department of Human Resources reported it has further cut the number of ineligible persons receiving welfare payments.

The department said 27 per cent fewer ineligible person were getting welfare payments in the first six months of this year compared with April through September of last year.

The department said checks showed that 5.6 per cent of those receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) were ineligible in the first six months of 1974. In the six-month period last year, the department found 7.7 per cent of the recipients to be ineligible.

The department is checking the eligibility in accordance with federal guidelines that require states to monitor programs so that no more than 3 per cent of the families receiving the payments are ineligible and no more than 5 per cent are being overpaid. States have until mid-1975 to reach that level without being penalized.

Alcohol Tax For Research

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — The executive committee of the North Carolina Jaycees has passed a resolution asking that a some of the beer and wine tax revenues be spent on research into the causes of alcoholism.

The committee said Saturday that alcoholism causes broken homes, highway accidents and criminal behavior and that more research was necessary to combat the disease.

The committee turned down a proposal that would have asked for an additional tax on beer and wine to finance the research.

LWV Finance Drive Set

The fifth annual finance drive of the League of Women Voters of Greenville-Pitt County begins today. League members will be contacting business and professional members of the community during the week of Oct. 14 and Oct. 21.

Rose Richards, director of the finance drive, said, "The LWV continues to pursue its goal of encouraging informed and active participation in government at all levels. League members contribute their own time, money, and energy to provide such publications as the City-County Survey, the Candidate's Directories, the Directory of Community Services, and the Facts for Voters. However, additional income is needed to meet the costs of publication."

Honorary Member

The son of a Rt. 9, Greenville couple was made an honorary member of the tribe of the Eastern Band last week in Cherokee during the dedication of the area's new Hospital Clinic.

James Edwards Mills, son of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Mills, received the certificate citing his honorary membership in the tribe from vice chief Leroy Wahnetah. Mills serves as hospital pharmacist.

Mr. and Mrs. Mills attended the dedication ceremonies at Cherokee.

The LWV, which is non-partisan, is concerned with public issues as well as with voters' services. Anyone who wishes to make a contribution may call Rose Richards, 756-1683, or Rhea Resnik, 756-5640.

Homecoming Plans Made

East Carolina University's 1974 Homecoming Weekend has been scheduled for Oct. 31-Nov. 3, and will feature a variety of entertainment events for alumni and friends.

Among the highlights of this year's Homecoming are an "Old Time Rock 'n' Roll Concert" with the Shirelles, a buffet breakfast, an art exhibition, an alumni "Keg" social and a Comedy Film Festival.

Of special importance are a Sunday afternoon concert by the ECU Symphony Orchestra and Combined Choruses and the Saturday afternoon football game with The Citadel.

Further information and tickets for most events are available in advance from the Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall Student Center, Box 2724, ECU, Greenville. Football tickets must be purchased from the ECU Athletic Ticket Office.

Cyclethon '74 Heart Fund

Cyclethon '74 was held yesterday for the Pitt County Heart Fund.

The bicycle marathon was successfully completed by 10 cyclists, who rode from the ECU campus to Farmville to Bethel to Stokes and back to ECU.

Edith Webber and Michael Indorf were co-chairmen of the event, according to W.B. Chalk, president of the Pitt County Heart Association. The courses covered 100 kilometers, and each rider had a sponsor who had pledged 25 cents per kilometer to the Heart Fund.

"These riders were pedaling for their health and their hearts," Indorf said, "and were also riding to help sponsor heart research."

Regional Air Service Required

It is becoming more obvious that Eastern North Carolina is taking a long and serious look at its air service.

Our Eastern leaders recognize that adequate air service is absolutely essential to the continued development of the East. Many of the nation's largest corporations have located facilities in Eastern North Carolina over the past decade, and longer. It is necessary that good commercial air schedules be provided so that executives for these firms can reach their Eastern N.C. facilities.

In addition, public agencies, like East Carolina University, generate air travel. Private citizens also need good air service. This is particularly true in a developing area, where people are coming in from other sections of the nation. They need air service to fly back to their original homes in times of emergency.

Some years back there was a strong movement to establish a regional airport in the East, but it failed on a split vote after reaching the Civil Aeronautics Board. Service was instead assigned to several airports in the east. The result has been fragmented service.

Now the idea of a regional airport seems to be revived with the Wayne County Airport Authority recommending that Wayne County and Goldsboro join with Kinston and Lenoir County is promoting a regional airport at Stallings.

The Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority is offering moral support to the idea. Our area already uses Stallings as the closest airport with Piedmont Airline service.

It is not too late for the regional airport concept to be put in effect in the East. Indeed, it may be essential if we are to have the kind of regularly scheduled service that we must have here in the East.

There would be a place for feeder service, such as Wheeler Airlines is offering, in such a concept. Then if we can get the Department of Transportation to see the necessity of tying Eastern cities together with adequate four-lane highways, we can have the needed access to a centrally located airport.

Eastern North Carolina cities can do far more together in obtaining air service than they can separately. We think the movement toward regional air service for the East can be a healthy one, indeed.

Dairymen See Politics

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — North Carolina's dairy farmers see politics in Gov. James E. Holshouser's "stacking" of the Milk Commission. Dairymen believe they are being sacrificed for consumer Republican votes in the November election.

The Holshouser administration is wooing consumer votes by pledging to lower milk prices, a move which the farmers fear will not only hit them in the pocketbooks, but will work to run the little dairy farmer and the small dairy processors out of business, they believe.

Some 100 dairymen showed up for a meeting of the Milk Commission as the governor's two new appointees were installed, giving the Republican administration majority control of the board. Former State Sen. Hamilton Horton is chairman.

With the changes, the governor said he now has "a clear majority of the members of the Milk Commission (who) agree with me that we can guarantee a solid base of support for our dairy farmers and at the same time let our people benefit from free competition at the retail level."

Change Law
The governor signaled his intention to get the General Assembly to change the law, and permit use of milk as a loss leader in stores—that is, prices could be cut by the dairy or the store to attract customers.

The farmers say it won't work that way; tampering with the loss leader provision will upset the delicate balance of regulations set up by the Milk Commission to fill its mission of guaranteeing a good supply of milk in the state.

In sum, farmers believe the big-time dairy processors will take a loss in order to run the little people out, then consolidate control over the market system and run the price back even higher—while cutting the amount they pay the farmers.

And milk, they say, is a perishable item which can't be held during hard times. Beyond the financial worry, which is real to an industry beset by a host of economic problems, is the feeling among farmers that the price action represents blatant political maneuvering.

The governor rejected all names submitted to him by dairy interests, choosing instead people as commissioners "whom he knew would share his own views," according to sources in the governor's office.

This was not a spur of the moment thing, a spokesman said, but was rather the results of a long-term study by the governor who is convinced "he can demonstrate that allowing milk as a loss leader will not hurt the farmer."

Strong Industry
Dairymen believe the Milk Commission is essential to keeping a strong industry, and it should be made up of people knowledgeable on farming, processing and the problems of the consumer. The new commission tilts strongly toward the consumer, with Horton, who sponsored a measure in the 1974 General Assembly to allow milk price competition, and Mrs. Lillian Woo, former president of the state Consumer Council and now a consumer advisor to Attorney General James H. Carson, as strong leaders.

The dairy farmers see Mrs. Woo as a direct link between consumerism, the governor, and the attorney general; to them, clear evidence that the price-cut activity is designed to woo voters for Carson.

State Sen. Bob Barker, D-Wake County, is chairman of a General Assembly milk study commission surveying pricing and production practices with an eye to legislative recommendations.

"The governor was premature in saying what he did about what he would accomplish with his milk commission... the governor should not have that much control... and he was premature in saying what he would get the General Assembly to do. He was aware that we have a General Assembly study underway." Barker believes allowing milk as a loss leader will tend to disrupt the pricing process, and agrees with farmers that the action smacks of partisan politics.

The governor's rejection of milk-interest nominees, hand-picking the chairman, announced intention to control the commission, dictating the loss-leader decision, and advance signaling to the Legislature that he will seek repeal of the loss leader law are clear indications of an effort to win consumer votes, Barker said.

Supermen Have Feelings

WASHINGTON — For several years now, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has been portrayed in magazines and books as Superman. Whenever there was trouble in the world, Henry would dash into a phone booth near the White House, change into his blue body-stocking costume and fly off to settle the matter.

I was passing the phone booth and I saw Henry inside. "Good," I said to myself, "Henry's going to settle the oil crisis." I waited to see him fly out of the booth on his mission, but he just remained there.

"But, Henry, if you won't be Superman, what will we all do?"
"That's not my problem. Being Superman means you have to travel a lot. I want to spend more time with Nancy."

ART BUCHWALD

"Henry," I finally said anxiously, "why haven't you changed into your costume?"
"I'm not going to be Superman any more," Henry said. "I'm sick and tired of working miracles."

Public Forum

To the editor:

My daughter, a fourth grader, came home from school recently and told me the very vulgar name a boy had called her that day in school. This is not the first time she's come home telling me of the filth she's learned in school, so I'm not upset she's heard something new. She knows this talk is wrong.

What upsets me is that there is such widespread usage of vulgarity, profanity, and so many "damns" and "HELLS" polluting the air. If a child hears this on television continuously and even hears a senator using this talk at a city celebration, won't he assume it is acceptable?

I am very concerned over the lack of morals in America, and I feel that if parents don't care to teach their children right from wrong, then schools will have to take over this responsibility. In my opinion, it will be better to live in a country of illiterates who are moral than with intellectuals who are immoral.

Seven years ago, a well-known newspaper editor wrote a disturbing article called, "Who's Tampering with the Soul of America?" This was even presented on a nationwide television show. He warned us that Nikita Khrushchev thought America was as Sodom and Gomorrah, ripe for the kill. How did he get such an impression?—from seeing one movie set from the musical, "Can-Can." This would be like a nursery rhyme compared to the barbarian and barnyard-like antics brought to you straight from the pits of hell to your movie screen, and even into your homes via television today. We've been sinking deeper into the quicksand of decadence for seven Rip Van Winkle years since this critical warning. If you're tampering with the soul of America, wake up—before you get us all in trouble.

Mrs. Merrilee Harrison
209 Fairway, Drive
Greenville

"I can appreciate that," I told him, "but you have an image to uphold. The media made you what you are today. You just can't go into a phone booth and say you're not coming out."

"Why should I come out?" Henry replied. "The House is picking on me; the Senate is picking on me; the press is picking on me. You know Supermen have feelings, too."

"You can't pay attention to criticism, Henry. If everyone loved you, you wouldn't be doing your job."

"Everyone used to love me," he said.

"Yes, but that's because they didn't like Nixon. You always looked so much better compared to him. Once he resigned, you were more or less on your own, and some people decided they loved you and some people decided they didn't."

"I think Superman should be loved by everybody," Henry said. "I don't mind criticism, if it's fair. What I don't like is unfair criticism." "Nobody likes unfair criticism," I told him.

The INSIDE REPORT

Ford Program Reduced

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—Chaotic policymaking at the top of the Ford administration, coupled with Republican fright over the Democratic surge in the congressional election campaign, reduced Mr. Ford's new economic program to little more than a loud whisper.

Symbolic was what happened to the President's speech, outlining a generally tepid economic cure aimed far more at recession than inflation, just before the President delivered it to an unenthusiastic Congress.

Mr. Ford's top inside adviser and speechwriter, Robert Hartmann, was given the speech Monday afternoon with orders to put it in final form. From that moment until shortly before the President took it to Capitol Hill Tuesday afternoon, not even Secretary of the Treasury William Simon was able to penetrate Hartmann's inner sanctum to make significant last-minute changes.

One result: Mr. Ford's words indicated compliance with the Clean Air Act in converting oil-fired electric utility plants to coal. In fact, however, his top policymakers agreed late Monday that the Clean Air Act would have to be severely modified in the interest of speeding this conversion. That means reducing requirements for scrubbers and stack-gas cleaners in the new coal plants and assures a political showdown with environmentalists.

Both Roy Ash's Office of Management and Budget (OMB) and Simon's Treasury men were unable to get their hands on the speech to tone down the President's phrase—"cleaner coal processes"—to fit only minimum health requirements.

That was symptomatic of what one White House aide called the "really snarled" process of trying to squeeze into Mr. Ford's speech what some aides regarded as economic imperatives.

Thus, a nationwide ban on Sunday gasoline sales, a prime energy-saver, during the Arab oil boycott crisis last winter, was seemingly nailed into the speech until 10 p.m. Sunday night—only to be exhumed and discarded sometime Monday. The reason: such a constraint on the tradition of Sunday joyriding would be politically dangerous to Republicans campaigning for office.

The Sunday ban on gasoline sales was the last and most modest survivor of a host of tough energy-saving measures, including a stiff gasoline excise tax, standby rationing and a mandatory ceiling on oil imports from abroad. Despite the President's personal—and understandable—desire to show foreign oil producers that the U. S. has both the muscle and the will for self-sacrifice, he finally opted for volunteerism, the last refuge of uncertain politicians.

Leaders of his own party did not give the President much room for maneuver. Terrified at the prospect of a 10-cent gasoline excise tax, Sen. William Brock of Tennessee and Rep. Bob Michel of Illinois, chairmen of the Senate and House Republican Campaign Committees, privately told the President last Thursday he "must kill" all talk of it within the administration. He bowed to the pressure.

By contrast, powerful politicians here, including Sen. Robert Byrd of West Virginia, the increasingly influential Senate Democratic whip, pointed to France where President Giscard d'Estaing demanded—and got—emergency wartime powers to deal with France's similar economic-energy crisis. "Ford needed some of that leadership," Byrd told us.

Likewise, the OMB pleaded for Mr. Ford's speech to identify the specific cuts he wants in the spending budget (Continued on page 5)

Strength For Today

CONSCIENCE
A clergyman tells a story about a man who many years ago stole eighteen dollars worth of eggs from his employer. Later the thief was converted. He hunted up the former employer, at considerable expense, and gave him by way of restitution for his theft eighteen dollars plus interest compounded from the day it had taken place. "I paid back everybody I stole from," said the former thief. "You are the last."
The great Cardinal John Henry Newman once said, "Conscience is the true vicar of Christ in the soul—a prophet in its information, a monarch in its authority, a priest in its blessings or anathemas according as we obey or disobey it." And Benjamin Franklin once said, "A good conscience is a continual Christmas."

Nothing lifts the weight of guilt so much as to be able to go to someone you have wronged and make restitution, if restitution is possible. And if it is not possible, at least we can be decent enough to say we are sorry for our wrongdoing.

Moscow Watching Inflation

By DAVID MASON
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Almost daily the Soviet press virtually chortles about inflation in capitalist countries. The implication is that it doesn't happen here.

Milk has cost 19.2 cents for a half liter for several years. Medical and dental care and education are free.

Thus a Soviet citizen who is content to live with the drab basic needs provided by the state has not felt the pinch suffered by citizens of the developed Western countries.

This is even more true given the fact that wages have moved up a bit in the past few years to an average $225 a month.

But there is more to the story than comes out of Soviet statistics books and the Soviet press as it recounts with thinly masked content the galloping inflation in the West.

Most foreign observers here feel that if Soviet consumers could get a crack at more of the higher quality consumer goods which are commonplace in the West, every kopek they earned would tumble out of pocket books and savings banks to chase after the items. Inflation, Western style, would be here.

Premium price tags go on anything that emerges into the luxury class of consumer goods, either produced here, brought in from more highly developed Eastern satellite communities or the West.

East German raincoats will create block-long police controlled lines at a department store.

Automobiles, which are becoming more available, are bought up as quickly as they come off the line. Western popular records reportedly go for as much as $130 on the black market and many a tourist has been quoted wild prices for blue jeans.

Labels Don't Apply

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Most North Carolina voters would probably say that as a general rule, the Republican party fields the more conservative candidates and the Democrats the more liberal.

That's the national stereotype. Like most stereotypes, it is based in a grain of truth. Across the nation, as a general rule, Democrats are "more liberal" than Republicans.

But stereotypes, taken to extremes, can be more deceptive than revealing. Successful politicians tend to be pragmatists rather than ideologues and they make decision on issues which defy pigeonholing into "liberal" or "conservative" slots.

It was a supposedly conservative Republican president for example, who took the "liberal" steps of imposing wage and price controls and opening the door to Communist China.

In North Carolina's Senate race, the stereotypes are almost useless. Republican William Stevens and Democrat Robert Morgan do not align themselves at a well-defined point on anyone's spectrum. They take positions to suit their own ideas and perceptions of the mood of the electorate.

Morgan, for example, favors the "liberal" idea that Congress should establish a strong consumer protection agency. He favors some form of government credit rationing. He talks about tightening tax laws to prevent businessmen from taking deductions.

Stevens, the "conservative businessman" opposes those ideas and in many cases take the opposite stance. But Stevens also favors withdrawal aid to South Vietnam; he is a member of the NAACP. Meanwhile, Morgan favors aid to South Vietnam and does not apologize for managing the segregationist I. Beverly Lake gubernatorial campaigns in the 1960s.

In fact, given the entire range of issues Stevens is probably "more liberal" than Morgan.

A political analyst might look at their positions and decide that there were really two basic kinds of issues. One kind might be called economic-political. It would include issues like regulation of business and consumer protection. One this kind of issue, Morgan is "more liberal."

The second grouping might be called social-political. It would include issues like abortion, prayer in the schools, marijuana and race relations. On these, Stevens is probably "more liberal."

The political analyst would then take into account such American traditions as isolationism, slavery, and libertarianism. He would conclude that there was a logical reason for the positions taken by both candidates.

But North Carolina voters, for the most part, won't see it that way. And therein might lie the key to the election.

Most voters identify with a party for a variety of reasons. Some do because their fathers did. Others consider themselves Democratic or Republican because they feel "liberal" or (Continued on page 5)

Textile Firms Cutting Back Production

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Uncertainty about the economy and a slowdown in demand have forced Southeastern textile companies to cutback on production and in some cases lay off thousands of workers.

The precise number of workers laid off is unknown, textile sources say. However, some 1,500 were recently idled when six mills closed in South Carolina for a week.

During the last three weeks, at least 15 mills have shut down in the Carolinas for limited periods and at least another 35 in the Carolinas, Virginia and Georgia have reduced their work schedules.

Industry spokesmen say further layoffs could occur unless sales pick up within the next three months.

"Business is off in the textile business," said Sadler Love, secretary-treasurer of the American Textile Manufacturers Institute. "The people who buy textile products are not buying enough. The apparel industry is not buying. This is reflected in production reductions."

The clouded economic picture has made textile companies fearful that sales may continue their decline.

"What I hear is people saying, 'Look, I know what I need to do now, but I don't know what's coming in February, six months from now.' Nobody wants to get stuck with a big inventory if the bottom falls out," one industry official said.

The slowdown has affected some of the nation's largest textile manufacturers, as well as smaller knitting operations. Burlington Industries, the nation's largest textile manufacturer, has reduced the work week from six days to five at mills in the North Carolina towns of Raeford, Burlington, Rocky Mount and Reidsville and in Clarksville, Va.

J. P. Stevens & Co. is operating mills in two North Carolina towns on a four day work week. Cannon Mills, one of the country's largest producer of towels, has cut most of its production to a five-day schedule.

Although sales overall are sagging, some sections of the industry are prospering, notably denim mills. Burlington reports its denim sales "are going great guns." Swift Textiles of Columbus, Ga., announced it was shifting production to denim exclusively.

for the present fiscal year, ending next June 30. But the President's economic advisers couldn't agree where the $5 billion worth of cuts should come because they can't agree which is the worst threat—inflation or recession. The question was left for Congress.

There was other topsy-turvy policymaking in his appeal for "volunteerism" to reduce oil imports. He set a target of one million barrels a day. Yet his instinct to seek (SET ITAL) mandatory (END ITAL) import ceilings was overridden when the Council of Economic Advisers and Arthur Burns' Federal Reserve computed that a real one-million-barrel-a-day cut would cost 450,000 jobs next year (mainly in tourism) and reduce the gross national product by one and a half per cent.

That indicates the President's greater fear is recession, not inflation, and it raises a question whether he really expects to get his one-million-barrel reduction.

Gerald Ford's opening shot in the grim economic war came from a small-bore pistol. The strong assumption is that he will reach for more potent weapons after the election—but at the cost of more months of precious time.

Tom Ingram of the North Carolina Textile Manufacturers Assn. attributed the denim boom to the popularity of jeans and denim apparel among the youth.

Industry executives will be watching Christmas sales to see whether the slump will be short-lived. "If the consumer holds up and we have a good Christmas, I think we'll be back on a reasonably satisfactory basis in the first quarter of 1975," said Robert Small, president of Dan River Mills.

Farmers Cannot Bear All Burden

DURHAM (AP)—Declaring that "agricultural production is necessary for survival," the head of the North Carolina State Grange said this morning that "farmers alone must not be expected to bear the economic risks from current efforts to get more production in a time of worldwide uncertainties and turmoil."

Mrs. Harry Caldwell, master of the state Grange, delivered the opening address this morning during the 46th annual meeting of the farmer organization in Durham.

After her speech, committees began study of about 100 proposed resolutions on issues affecting farmers. Committee reports will be delivered during Tuesday's session.

"conservative."

Another group of voters will hear something about a candidate's position on an issue or issues that pleases them and vote accordingly.

The problem facing William Stevens is a tricky one. He must avoid alienating those staunch Republican voters who consider themselves conservatives and will assume that he is unless he proves otherwise.

At the same time, he must make inroads into Robert Morgan's support among the Democrats. Considering Morgan's record, the left wing of the Democratic party is more likely to contain potential defectors than the right.

That is why Stevens is appearing before the NAACP and attacking Morgan's connection with Lake. He no doubt is sincere; but he also chooses to publicize his views because he feels the black vote can be wooed away from Morgan.

As an underdog, Stevens has little choice but to try to win those liberal Democrats with his positions on the social issues while retaining his Republican support with his economic views.

Morgan's people say they aren't worried. "For every liberal he might gain, he'll lose a conservative to us," said campaign aide Howard Kramer.

The election on Nov. 5 will tell the tale.

tion, courage, vigor and a desire to build stronger agriculture.

Mrs. Pozza was cited for her "outstanding job" as a home economics agent and credited participating in activities dealing with occupational health, rural environment and rural safety.

The farmer organization recognized the Benham Baptist Church as the "rural church of the year." The church was recognized during a vesper service before the fellowship dinner.

New Shows At Planetorium

CHAPEL HILL—New ideas about the limits of space are highlighted in the Morehead Planetarium's new public production, "Journey Toward Infinity," which is now open.

Free art and scientific exhibits are open before and after each Sky Theater production.

"Journey Toward Infinity" can be seen Monday through Friday at 8:00 p. m.; on Saturdays at 11 a. m., 1, 3 and 8 p. m.; on home football Saturdays at 11 a. m., 5 and 8 p. m.; and on Sundays at 2, 3 and 8 p. m. The show will be pre-empted, however, on the evenings of Oct. 18, 19, 25, 26, 27 and Nov. 1, 2 and 3 by an incredible concert of sights and sounds called "Heavy Water Lightshow" from San Francisco, at $2.00 per person admission rate.

She also said that the production rate of fertilizers must be increased and that a reduction in farm exports will hurt the nation's balance of payments.

During a fellowship dinner Sunday night, state Agriculture Commissioner James A. Graham and Ada Dalla Pozza, home economics agent at North Carolina State University, were presented distinguished service awards.

In presenting the award to Graham, Mrs. Caldwell said Graham is "one who inherited and developed many of the finer characteristics of our rural people" including determination, courage, vigor and a desire to build stronger agriculture.

Regular admission applies for all "Journey Toward Infinity" shows. Admission is 75-cents for children through age 11 or grade 6, $1 for students through college and $1.25 for adults.

Buchwald . . .

"I'm the first to admit," he added, "that I'm not perfect. What I don't like is other people telling me I'm not perfect."

"Nobody likes to be told they're not perfect, Henry. The thing to do is rise above it and prove they're wrong. Now get into that silly costume and fly off to the Middle East and straighten out our problems."

"I'm not going to do it unless I have assurance that people will stop picking on me."

"You have my word, Henry. I'll make sure that there is not one line in the newspapers questioning any of your past actions."

Henry started taking off his pants.

"Okay," he said, "I'll do it one more time. But if I hear any squawks from anybody about what I did, it's the last time I go into this phone booth."

I held his pants while he took off his shirt.

"I don't know if I ever told you this, Henry," I said, "but you have lovely legs."

"Don't try to change the subject," he said as he took off his shoes and socks. This is everybody's last chance. If they don't like what I'm doing, let them get another Superman."

"They'll like it, Henry," I assured him. They'll like it."

And so last Tuesday as people looked up into the sky they saw a weird object. One person said "It's a bird"; another person said "It's a plane," and then everyone cried at once "NO, IT'S KISSINGER!" And we all slept better that night.

ACCOUNTANTS' CERTIFICATE

The Greenville Utilities Commission
Greenville
North Carolina

We have examined the balance sheet of the Greenville Utilities Commission as of June 30, 1974, and the related statement of income and expenses and surplus for the year then ended. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards, and accordingly included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

In our opinion, the accompanying Statement of Financial Condition and Statement of Income and Expenses and Surplus present fairly the financial position of the Greenville Utilities Commission at June 30, 1974, and the results of its operations for the year then ended, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina hog market trending steady. Kinston, 39.00-40.00; Rocky Mount 39.00-39.50; Salisbury 40.25.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market scored another solid gain today, spurred by hopes for cheaper oil and lower interest rates.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 12.20 at 670.37, continuing the sharp advance that produced a record 73.61 rise in the popular average last week.

Gainers held a 7-to-2 edge on losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading continued brisk, despite the fact that banks and many other businesses were closed for Columbus Day.

The rally seemed to get encouragement from several directions. In the money markets, experts were predicting a continued decline in the bank prime lending rate and in the free-market short-term rates on which many banks base their primes.

Over the weekend Saudi Arabia's King Faisal offered assurances to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger that his nation would push for lower oil prices.

And the Wall Street Journal reported this morning that top government officials believed an oil-producing area in south-east Mexico might be far larger than had been thought earlier.

American Telephone & Telegraph was the Big Board volume leader, up 1/2 at 45 1/2. Brokers note that the widely held stock is considered sensitive to interest-rate trends because it is generally bought and held primarily for its dividend yield. Northrop slid 1/4 to 26 in active trading. A spokesman for the aerospace company confirmed over the weekend that a federal judge had sealed an affidavit said to disclose that the company maintained a secret political slush fund.

The NYSE's 11 a.m. composite common-stock index was up .52 at 38.01.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index rose .54 to 68.58.

Houston Oil & Minerals, which reported an offshore Texas gas discovery, was the Amex volume leader, up 1 1/2 at 19 1/2.

Ferguson Evens Series At One Each

PIRATES ON THE MOVE—East Carolina running back Kenny Strayhorn (43) fades into a blur as he takes a handoff from quarterback Tom Chipok (11) and goes into the Furman line, Saturday night. The Pirates rallied in the fourth quarter to beat the Paladins, 15-12. (Reflector photo by George Holland)

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer OAKLAND (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers are picking up speed in their "freeway series" with the Oakland A's.

"We've captured the momentum that we lost in the first game," said Joe Ferguson, hero of Sunday's 3-2 victory over the A's that tied the 1974 World Series at one game each.

Riding the crest of their dramatic victory at Dodger Stadium, the National League champions prepared to face the A's Tuesday in Game 3 at the Oakland Coliseum — a seven-hour car ride from Los Angeles.

Ferguson hopes he can produce as explosively as Sunday, when he belted an enormous two-run homer over the center-field fence off Vida Blue.

The Dodgers will start little-used Al Downing against Catfish Hunter, the A's formidable 25-game winner.

Alston brought in strongman Mike Marshall from the bullpen at this point, but baseball's premier relief pitcher didn't exactly look in top form right away.

Herb Washington, Oakland's famous designated runner, took over for Rudi at first base after Gene Tenace struck out and every one of the 55,989 fans at sunny Dodger Stadium knew what he was going to do.

So did the Dodgers. ★★★★★

The entire Oakland team appeared stunned after that play.

The last batter, Angel Mangual, striking out on Marshall fast-balls.

Alston Plans Change In Tuesday's Lineup

By JACK STEVENSON AP Sports Writer OAKLAND (AP) — Manager Walter Alston plans a switch in his Los Angeles Dodger lineup for Tuesday night's third World Series game which will give Joe Ferguson a chance to show his wares in another department — catching.

In the first two games at Los Angeles, the Oakland A's used

"I'll probably use Willie Crawford in right field and have Ferguson catching," Alston said. Crawford is a left-handed hitter; both Ferguson and Steve Yeager, the catcher he first two games, are right-handed hitters.

"I don't care where I play as long as I can swing the bat four times," declared Ferguson, who turned in one of the greatest throws in World Series history during the first game and banded a two-run homer over the center-field fence in the second.

Alston hasn't shuffled his lineup much this season, but he does use Ferguson both in right field and behind the plate. Al Downing, 5-6 during the regular season, gets the starting call for the Dodgers.

"If Al is on, he's tough to beat," Yeager commented. "Basically, if he can put the ball where he wants it, we'll win."

Don Sutton pitched the Dodgers to their 3-2 victory Sunday after the A's captured the opener by the same count in this best-of-seven series.

"It's the best Dodger ball club I've been on," commented Sutton, a rookie with the 1966 championship team but now a $100,000 a year performer.

'We're Going To Win'—Bill North

By ERIC PREWITT AP Sports Writer OAKLAND (AP) — "They gave us their best shot, and if that's the best they have, they're in trouble," said the Oakland A's Bill North after the Los Angeles Dodgers squared the 1974 World Series.

Los Angeles right-hander Don Sutton picked up his 12th consecutive victory, 3-2, Sunday, with relief help from Mike Marshall, but the Dodgers must turn to something of a longshot Tuesday night when they start 33-year-old left-hander Al Downing here in Game Three.

"We're going to win the series," said North, who thinks 25-game winner Catfish Hunter will pitch the A's into a 2-1 lead Tuesday night.

Downing, 5-6 this season, was a member of the A's staff briefly in 1970, the year before he surprised the baseball world by becoming a 20-game winner with the Dodgers. He came up with the right assortment of pitches to make up for the fastball he had lost.

"Sutton isn't a fast ball pitcher, either," said the A's Reggie Jackson when asked if he looked forward to Downing's pitches after facing 20-game winner Andy Messersmith and Sutton in the opening two games at Los Angeles.

"I don't mean to knock Sutton," said North. "He's a good pitcher, and did very well against us, but it was still a 3-2 game. With a break here or there, we could have won it." The A's looked back at two big scoring threats that fizzled Sunday, the first when North hit into a double play with the bases loaded and one out in the eighth inning.

"I thought I had a hit there. It was the best ball I hit in two days," said North of the hard rouser fielded by Dodger shortstop Bill Russell, who stepped on second and threw into the dirt toward first base.

"I thought the ball would go up the middle, but Russell was breaking that way. Then his throw hit 10 feet in front of Steve Garvey. If it had gone through him, we still would have had two runs," North added.

"It was the toughest hop possible," said North in tribute to Garvey's backhanded pickup at first base which protected a 3-0 Dodger lead.

In the ninth, Joe Rudi singled home two runs and left the game for pinch runner Herb Washington with one out.

Manager Alvin Dark, who pleases A's owner Charles O. Finley every time he inserts Washington, decided to let the former Michigan State track star try to steal second off reliever Mike Marshall.

San Francisco Meets Improving Detroit Lions

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Lions have lost their four National Football League games this season but, believe it or not, they are on an upsurge — statistically anyway.

The San Francisco 49ers have a 2-2 record, but seem to be on the downside.

Whether those trends continue will be determined tonight when the National Conference rivals meet at 9 p.m., EDT, in their nationally televised game at Tiger Stadium.

"I still think we can do it. We can still be a factor in our division race," says first-year Lions Coach Rick Forzano, whose team has lost its games by only 14 total points.

"We're improving offensively each game and our defensive effort has been outstanding each week," he continued.

A loss would virtually eliminate Detroit from playoff hopes in the Central Division race, while the 49ers aren't nearly in such bad shape since they won their first two games.

"Ever since I've been with the 49ers we have had a tough time with the Lions and it always seems to be tougher in Detroit," San Francisco Coach Dick Nolan says.

"We have done fairly well defensively so far, but the Lions have enough weapons to make this our toughest test."

The 49ers lost to Cincinnati and St. Louis after winning the first two at New Orleans and Atlanta. In losing to Chicago, Minnesota, Green Bay and Los ANGELES, the Lions have steadily improved — on paper. Their yardage totals went from 156 to 162 to 290 to 291.

The offense was disastrous the first two game averaging just 2.6 and 2.9 yards a play. That increased to 4.9 and 5.3 the last two games.

They managed just nine first downs in each of the first two games but boosted that to 11, then 17 last week.

Detroit's offense has scored only four touchdowns. However, the defense has given up only six.

Perhaps to the Lions benefit tonight is that San Francisco is going with left-hander Dennis Morrison at quarterback. It will be the former Kansas State player's first pro start and only second regular season game.

San Francisco, although ranking first in the NFC in rushing — mostly on the legs of rookie Wilbur Jackson, is 13th in passing. Joe Reed hasn't done well as a replacement for Steve Spurrier, who was injured in the last exhibition game.

Greg Landry, Lions quarterback also injured in the pre-season finale, is ready to play for the first time this season, but Bill Munson remains the starter for Detroit.

The A's were not able to score until the ninth inning Sunday. Shut out by Don Sutton through the first eight, the A's needed some breaks in the last inning to get men around the bases.

Sutton, a 19-game winner this year, hit Sal Bando with a pitch leading off the ninth and then gave up a check-swing double to Reggie Jackson that eluded Los Angeles third baseman Ron Cey.

Washington had thoughts of stealing second anyway, but didn't get very far. Marshall, one of the best pickoff men in the business, nailed the flashy runner with a perfect throw to first baseman Steve Garvey.

Woody's Ramblin's

BY WOODY PEELE

Furman Coach Art Baker fumed and East Carolina Coach Pat Dye heaved a sigh of relief when Reggie Pinkney knocked away a possible touchdown pass on the last play of the game Saturday night in Greenville, S.C. The defensive play preserved a slim, miracle rally for the Bucs, 15-12, and won them their 16th straight Southern Conference game.

But if the Pirates won it, Furman outplayed them almost the entire game. Furman, not counting their final desperate 49 second attempt to win it, had the ball eight times. They scored on three of those with a touchdown and two field goals. Furman stopped themselves three other times with a fumble, an offensive pass interference call that resulted in a touchback, and a third-down pass to a wide-open receiver that was simply dropped well into first-down territory.

Baker was greatly upset about the final play of the game, charging that pass interference should have been called against Pinkney.

"It was a judgment call," Dye said Sunday afternoon after looking at the films. "It didn't look like pass interference to me. They hardly bumped, and the receiver cut in front of Reggie anyway. I thought they might have had more to gripe about over their offensive interference call."

Dye admitted that there were two factors in the game that nearly cost the Bucs the win. "First of all, Furman has a real good football team. But I think the biggest factor was that they were ready to play and we weren't. All week long, all we heard and all that was talked about was the State game. The players just didn't seem to worry about this one. I don't believe that they thought Furman was for real."

After last week's 24-20 loss to the unbeaten Wolfpack, Dye made the statement that "you don't learn from losing."

"I think we learned something from winning this one," he said. "We were never out of the game and we could have chosen to lie down and die. But we didn't fold up. We came back and won. That makes the players very special to me."

Dye also felt that not getting many penalties helped the Bucs. "We were only penalized three times for a total of 15 yards. They had 81 yards in penalties, and it could have been more. For instance, when they were trying to run the clock (with a 12-7 lead), they shifted their whole backfield—not to set up a play, but to draw us offside. We were penalized, but I think it could just have easily gone the other way."

The coach did have plenty of praise for Furman. "They played well, and they deserve a lot of credit. They ran at our strength and they made it work. Our coming back was a great tribute to us, though."

Now the Bucs have to begin work for another tough foe, Appalachian State. The Mountaineers are a hard-hitting team and Dye feels they are better than their 3-3 record. "Everyone is going to be up for us, so we've got to get ready to play the same type game."

Hopefully, the Bucs will be ready this week. They are a marked team. With a 16-game winning streak in the Southern Conference, and listed as favorites to win their third straight Southern title, East Carolina can only be rated as target number one for every team in the league.

"I'm just glad that Furman is behind us," Dye said. "I was scared to death Saturday night. In fact I told Art (Baker) before we went on the field that this was the first time I'd been scared this year."

This time, the Bucs came back to win—as they did two games ago against Southern Illinois, after trailing most of the way. A big win would be welcome indeed for a change.

Don't Mention Stats To Coaches Ross Or Baker

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
AP Sports Writer

Don't even mention the old cliché that "statistics are for losers" in the presence of Bob Ross and Art Baker, for in their case it was only too true in the Southern Conference football race.

The Citadel had 425 yards in total offense to 26-7 Saturday night for Virginia Military, but the Keydets—with the aid of a fumble and a pass interception—upped their league leading record to 3-0 with a 20-9 victory over Ross' Bulldogs.

Baker's Furman Paladins had 390 offensive yards to 24-2 for East Carolina, but the two-time defending champion Pirates scored twice in the last eight minutes for a 15-12 victory in their league debut.

"Our defense really came up with a big play," said VMI Coach Bob Thalman of linebacker Jay Newcomer's 64-yard pass interception that helped the Keydets to a 14-3 halftime lead although they needed a penalty in the second period for their initial first down.

East Carolina Coach Pat Dye said "our team had actually been beaten for three quarters and it was something deep down in our players that brought them back like that"—like that being a pair of scoring drives that wiped out a 12-0 Furman lead.

The four teams that went outside the league had no consolation. They were beaten both in statistics and final score.

Richmond's Spiders were bombed by Ball State 38-23.

Utah State 24, Colorado State 23

San Jose State 13, New Mexico 11

Texas El Paso 13, New Mexico State 14

California 40, Oregon 10

Oregon State 23, Washington 9

Stanford 13, UCLA 13 (tie)

William and Mary's Indians were trounced by Boston College 31-16, Appalachian State's Mountaineers lost to Lenoir Rhyne 31-10 and Davidson's Wildcats were routed by Wofford 49-7.

"That's the sign of a good ball club," said Thalman of the big defensive play, and he added—as if in warning to future foes who might have a light regard for the Keydets, 41 over-all—that "I've said it before and I'll say it again: We are right on schedule."

Ross, whose Bulldogs lost 27-24 to Richmond and 16-12 to William and Mary, agreed, saying that "VMI will be a definite factor in the conference race. I see very little difference between them, Richmond and William and Mary."

After Newcomer's interception, VMI got another break when Keydet quarterback Tony Farry fumbled going into the end zone with two-time All-Southern offensive guard Andy Dearman recovering for a touchdown. Farry later threw 37 yards to Ronnie Moore after a Bulldog fumble.

The Citadel's Andrew Johnson went over the 100-yard rushing mark for the seventh straight game and took over the national lead as he ran 30 times for 185 yards.

But VMI's Kim Glidewell had 139 yards on 25 carries, 22 after intermission as the Keydets controlled the ball behind the blocking of Dearman.

"We were a little sluggish in the first half. The second half we got our offense cranked up and we began to execute a little better," said Thalman. "Glidewell ran well. He's a money player. We'll go to him in nearly every situation."

Furman, upended by VMI 7-0 in its opener and all but eliminated by the Saturday night defeat, dominated most of its game with Charles Elvington scoring after an East Carolina fumble in between a pair of field goals by Andy Gopi.

But Pirate quarterback Mike Weaver scored from eight yards out with eight minutes left after a 51-yard march, then directed a 67-yard drive capped by Don Schink's one-yard run with 49 seconds remaining.

The big play was a 44-yard run by Strayhorn, who had 89 yards on seven carries, and Baker said "we made a mistake on the long run. We didn't take the pitch man."

Baker, whose running star was Larry Robinson with 83 yards on 22 carries, said "East Carolina has a good football team. Anyone that can come from behind like they did in the fourth quarter has a good team. But I hate to see us play so hard and not win."

"It just boiled down to the fact that Furman controlled the game both offensively and defensively until the final 10 minutes," said Dye. "They ran straight at the strength of us. Coach Baker had his team highly motivated and well coached."

"We simply didn't appear ready to play at first. I'm real proud of our comeback."

Perhaps the worst thing that happened to Richmond was an injury to Ball State quarter-

Spoilers Still After N.C. State's Lou Holtz

By The Associated Press
North Carolina State football Coach Lou Holtz is good at his job, as his 6-0 record proves. His problem is that people keep trying to spoil his work.

A 28-22 victory over Syracuse three weeks ago left him thankful. A 24-20 squeaker over East Carolina a week later left him weak.

When the 11th ranked Wolfpack squirmed by Virginia 22-12 last Saturday, he gasped, "Boy, there's got to be a better profession."

Holtz will run into more people trying to give him headaches this Saturday when he and his defending Atlantic Coast Conference champions take on old foe North Carolina.

The Tar Heels, after a dismal 4-7 season last year, have posted a respectable 3-2 this season, losing to Georgia Tech in a 29-28 thriller last Saturday.

Though North Carolina was suffering through hard times last year after two successive league titles, Bill Dooley's charges carried the Liberty Bowl-bound Wolfpack to the wire before taking a 21-20 setback.

In the win over Virginia, quarterback Dave Buckley broke a team record and tied another. His 23 completions, out of 30 attempts, tied a mark set by Roman Gabriel in 1960 against Maryland, and his 306 yards passed the 296 by Bruce Shaw against Wake Forest in 1972. In a series that began in 1894, North Carolina holds a 42-15-6 edge.

Other games Saturday have Duke at Clemson, Maryland hosting Wake Forest and Virginia at home to Virginia Tech.

Duke is sailing through one of its best seasons in recent years, having beaten Army last Saturday 33-14 for its fourth straight win against an opening loss to N.C. State.

Meanwhile, Clemson has turned in a pair of smashing upsets against Georgia Tech and Georgia, but has been crushed in its other three games. The latest Tiger loss came last Saturday, 41-0 to Maryland.

Maryland, trying to regain the national recognition it lost after setbacks to Alabama and Florida, has reeled off three straight victories in convincing style.

The Terrapins have beaten East Carolina lost a cross-country meet to Appalachian State Saturday but the Pirates set a record in doing so.

The Pirates runners fall, 35-21, low score winning in cross country but Ed Riggsby was the overall winner planning first in a time of 30:51.6 on a new six-mile course establishing a record.

ECU coach Bill Carson called race Riggsby's best ever.

North Carolina, 24-12, Syracuse, 31-0, and then Clemson.

This Saturday's opponent should give Coach Jerry Claiborne another breather, as winless Wake Forest limps to College Park after being clubbed by Oklahoma and Penn State the past two weekends by 63-0 and 55-0 scores.

Virginia and Virginia Tech will renew a rivalry that started in 1895, with the Cavaliers on the short end of a 24-27-4 record in the series.

Both teams are having poor seasons, with only one victory apiece.

Behind first-year Coach Sonny Randle, Virginia has beaten only William and Mary, while Virginia Tech managed a 31-17 victory over winless South Carolina last Saturday.

The national recognition it lost after setbacks to Alabama and Florida, has reeled off three straight victories in convincing style.

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY

SALESPeOPLE

A big time company, with a small time philosophy

We believe that the salesperson is the most important person in our company, and this philosophy has helped us become one of the fastest growing industrial corporations in America today.

The average commission income of our salespeople is $18-$20,000 annually their first year, and this figure grows substantially by the second and third years. They are backed by a drawing account of up to $300 weekly, and an excellent program of fringe benefits for family security.

The exceptional quality of our industrial products and their use by nearly every type of business and organization has created a virtually ideal sales situation that can easily lead to sales management responsibility.

Sound interesting? We believe it should if you want income security, opportunity for advancement, limited travel and time to spend with your family. No previous sales or technical background necessary for the right person.

Biorythms Research

NEW BRITAIN, Conn. (AP) — Rhythms that could be of great importance to man are being studied by a doctor here who uses himself as his No. 1 test animal.

Dr. Howard Levine studies biorythms, or the pattern of biological functions in the human body.

Among questions that he and other biorythmic researchers ask are: How are workers affected by being switched from a night shift to a day shift? Are medications prescribed at 10 a.m. too large or too small at 2 p.m.? Is there a best time to treat cancer patients?

"Some day," says Levine, chief of medicine and medical education at New Britain General Hospital, "when science is more sophisticated about rhythms, the minute data can be reanalyzed and perhaps contribute to a better understanding of the ways our bodies operate in time."

On trips, the 58-year-old physician takes along a brown suitcase containing instruments he needs to measure his own biorythms several times daily. He records blood pressure, oral temperature, ability to estimate the passing of 120 seconds, peak respiratory flow, strength of hand grip and eye-hand coordination.

Not a hypochondriac on the prowl for something wrong with himself, Levine says he's driven by curiosity and fascination about the periodic functions of the human body.

He and other researchers are beginning to see clinical applications of their measured discoveries, he says.

For example, there is an optimal time to treat cancer in laboratory animals. Is it possible, he wonders, to shift that time by varying the animal's diet? If so, is the technique applicable to man?

The effectiveness of medications at different times of the day also reveals the importance of knowing about biorythms, he explains.

For example, he says, female sex hormones are often administered to men to treat cancer of the prostate. The physician must first know the level of male sex hormones in the patient. In most hospitals that level is measured when the patient awakens in the morning.

But there is a rhythm in the level and in the morning it runs 35 to 40 per cent higher than around midnight.

Two short zippers on the side of a skirt or pants may be better than one long one for wearing with a short jacket.

Confident Ford Will Veto Ending Aid

By EMEL ANIL
Associated Press Writer
ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Many Turks seem unperturbed about the move by the U.S. Congress to end American military aid to Turkey. Government officials privately express confidence that President Ford will veto the attempt.

But if Ford doesn't, or if Congress overrides a veto, Turkey presumably would go shopping for arms elsewhere, with Britain or France among the most likely suppliers.

"For a country in our position there would always be those willing to provide these arms," one high-ranking Turkish official said.

Ankara is unlikely to seek weapons from the Soviet Union, its giant neighbor to the north, nor is it certain that the Kremlin would sell it arms even if asked. A Turkish shift toward Moscow would go contrary to centuries of enmity and a traditionally strong Turkish aversion to Communism.

The drive by Congress has been met with official silence in Ankara and almost no public uproar. Turkish leaders have been careful to refrain from statements that could spark a wave of anti-Americanism like that which followed a harsh letter from President Lyndon B. Johnson that warned Turkey not to invade Cyprus in 1964.

Curtailment of American arms sales could result, however, in quick deterioration of Turkish-American relations. The future would be uncertain for the American military presence here, mainly a strategic air base in Incirlik and three radar monitoring stations in Anatolia.

"We could undertake some actions which would be very bothersome to the United States," said an official of the Defense Ministry.

Turkish officials emphasize that their off-the-record comments should not be interpreted as threats and that there has been no suggestion that Turkey withdraw from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The uproar in Congress over arms sales to Turkey is a direct outgrowth of an invasion of Cyprus on July 20 by Turkish forces using U.S.-made weapons, and their takeover of the northern third of the island 45 miles from Turkish shores.

American military aid or no American aid, Turkish leaders in the government and in the opposition are emphatic that the tough Cyprus policy will not change.

Optimistic About Defeating Mills

By BILL SIMMONS
Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Republican Judy Petty says she is "completely, totally, absolutely optimistic" about her chances for defeating Rep. Wilbur D. Mills next month.

The 30-year-old divorcee says the Tidal Basin incident in Washington last week involving Mills will be a factor in the election, "but not because I make it so."

Mills' car, in which he was a passenger, was stopped last Monday near the Tidal Basin for traveling at high speed and with headlights out, according to police reports. Another passenger in the car, a woman later identified as a former stripper, leaped into the basin and had to be rescued by a policeman.

Many observers originally believed Mrs. Petty would make a poor showing against Mills in the general elections. But her chances for toppling the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee may have improved since the Tidal Basin incident.

She has maintained that the Mills incident is a personal matter, not a campaign issue. She has concentrated her drive against the 65-year-old Democrat on illegal campaign contributions — especially from dairy interests.

"Wilbur Mills is up to his knees in sour milk," Mrs. Petty said.

The Watergate Committee report says more than $80,000 was illegally given from corporate assets of dairy groups to pretending a slip-of-the-tongue, she occasionally refers to her opponent as "Wilbur Milk." Cartoonists, taking the theme, have shown a Mills-faced cat licking cream from its whiskers.

The Watergate Committee report says more than $80,000 was illegally given from corporate assets of dairy groups to "draft Mills" organizations which operated in 1971 and 1972 before Mills said he was running for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Mrs. Petty has campaigned much more vigorously than Mills, who has hardly put in appearances that could be construed as campaign ventures. In one week, she made 26 stops in one county and met factory shifts around the clock.

Tar Swamp To Be Studied

A section of muddy swampland near Greenville will undergo scientific investigation by a group of East Carolina University biology students.

The study, conducted by the ECU Biology Department under a $2,445 award from the Marine Science Council-UNC, is an effort to determine how the swamp affects the adjoining Tar River and its downstream estuaries.

Dr. Mark Brinson, assistant professor of Biology at ECU says the research will include the study of the productivity of the swamp forest and the amount of organic matter that it releases into the river.

"And we want to learn the value of an undisturbed swamp compared to one that has been channelized," Brinson said.

He explained that so far, no one has come up with this kind of information.

The swamp forest is located

Librarians Go To Meet

Seven librarians from East Carolina University's Joyner Library will be among professional librarians throughout the southeast at the biennial conference of the Southeastern Library Association in Richmond, Va. Oct. 16-19.

ECU's delegation includes Dr. Ralph E. Russell, director of library services; Ann S. Watson, cataloging librarian; Judy Moore, serials librarian; Dorothy E. Brockman, circulation librarian; James A. Chantrill, documents librarian; and Marilyn R. Stephenson and Janet L. Kilpatrick, reference librarians.

PTA Meeting Is Thursday

The first PTA meeting for the new school year will be held at Third Street Elementary School Thursday, October 17 beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting will take place in the auditorium, followed by a visit to classrooms to meet teachers. A membership drive will also be conducted, and parents are urged to join. The fee is 50 cents per parent or other interested school patron. In addition, a one dollar contribution may be made by anyone.

Introducing Planters Ultra Checking. How does your checking account stack up against it?

Ultra Checking is a new kind of checking account. Its designed to save you time, money and several trips to the bank each month.

It's the most advanced checking account in North Carolina because it offers you more extra services than any other bank around.

First of all it offers you a different statement. (On the right.) It helps you balance your checkbook in a flash.

All your checks are listed numerically (1) so you can check them off quickly and the ones that are missing (2) are easily identifiable. Just look for the (*).

With Ultra Checking, a lot of your banking transactions can be made without you. Automatically. Loans can be paid off (3), deposits can be made through Sav-O-Matic and so on.

And just so you can see how you wind up each banking day, we even give you a daily bank balance record (4).

That covers the time factor. But PNB's Ultra Checking also covers the money factor.

As good as our Cash Guarantee Account was, it couldn't hold a candle to our new service, Check Credit (5).

Now, you can still write checks for more than you have in the bank, but with a Check Credit loan you can get a lot more out of it than before.

For instance, as soon as your credit line is approved you can also get a flexible interest rate, depending upon your qualifications.

With Check Credit you really get a Simple Interest Loan (6) because you only pay for what you use, only as long as you use it.

You can borrow from your account automatically in increments of $100 at a time, or in any amount you specify. Or you can ask for a specific amount to be transferred to your checkbook. With advance notice, we'll give you a check loan down to the penny.

One way or another, Check Credit makes it possible for you to pay less interest than before.

It saves you a penalty charge for bounced checks because when you write a check you can't cover, we cover it for you.

When you put it all together, Planters Ultra Checking has all the things a good checking account can offer you along with some things only an advanced checking account can offer you. See a PNB banker today, because after this you won't ever have to see him again. Well, hardly ever.
