Sirica May Determine If Nixon Can Testify

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica indicated today he is considering sending a team of three doctors to California to determine if Richard M. Nixon's health would prevent him from testifying at the Watergate cover-up trial.

Opening the 12th day of the trial, Sirica emphasized, however, that he has made no decision on defense and prosecution subpoenas for the former president.

The judge has scheduled a hearing on the issue for Thursday. Sirica said today he wants defense and prosecution lawyers to think about who will foot the bill if he decides to conduct his own medical inquiry.

"If I should decide either now or later, if it should develop that I feel it necessary for the former president to appear personally," said Sirica, "who is going to pay expenses to fly doctors out there — the defense or prosecution?"

After that, the lawyer for defendant Kenneth W. Parkinson began his opening statement to the jury, portraying his client as a non-political lawyer lied to by former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, another defendant.

The statement by Jacob Stein, representing Parkinson, continued a pattern in which it has become every man for himself among the five defendants.

Shortly before the prosecution's first witness, John W. Dean III, was to appear, Sirica denied renewed motions for separate trials from former White House Chief of Staff H.R. Haldeman and Mitchell.

Opening statements Tuesday by the attorney's for defendants John D. Ehrlichman and Robert C. Mardian emphasized their client's distance from the other defendants. Haldeman and Mitchell lawyers plan to deliver their opening statements after the prosecution has completed its case.

In his hour-and-a-half statement, Stein acknowledged that Parkinson had shredded handwritten notes made in discussions with Mitchell and Jeb Stuart Magruder.

Ford Campaigns For Off-Year Candidates

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
KANSAS CITY (AP) — President Ford, campaigning in four Midwestern states for Republican candidates in the off-year election, called today for the election of "inflation-fighters" who are going to keep track of every single penny this government spends.

In his text for a $100-a-plate Republican breakfast, Ford said that in the economic area "the President proposes, but the Congress disposes." He continued:

"Unless we send people into the House and Senate who recognize the role big government and deficit-spending play in our economy, we never are going to end this inflation that is costing every American consumer so much."

At another point, Ford told his audience, "You can make my job easier by sending more Republicans to Congress to work with me in the two years ahead."

The President, who scheduled campaign stops today in Missouri, South Dakota, Nebraska and Indiana, declared, "I know that this will be a tough election and some people say that the odds are against our candidates this year."

But he added words aimed at the local citizenry, "The odds were also against the University of Missouri last Saturday — but the Tigers defeated Nebraska in a brilliant effort."

The President made his strongest campaign pitch in behalf of former U. S. Rep.

Thomas B. Curtis, who is challenging Democratic Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton in Missouri.

The President began his day with a dawn meeting with Republican Sen. Robert Dole of neighboring Kansas, who is facing a strong election challenge. Dole, who recently left the post of Republican national chairman, later told a news conference Ford promised there would be no federal controls on exports of wheat.

The chief executive then mingled with 22 guests at a GOP coffee gathering that cost $1,000 a person.

Troops Alerted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army paratroopers at Ft. Bragg, N.C., have been placed on increased readiness in case they may be needed in the Boston school crisis, the Pentagon said today.

Defense spokesman William Beecher stressed that the alert of elements of the 82nd Airborne Division is a "purely precautionary measure" and that officials do not at this time expect the paratroopers to be committed.

The Pentagon action was disclosed a day after President Ford said that federal forces should be used in Boston only "as a last resort."

...Ford Will Testify...

CHICAGO (AP) — President Ford will testify before a House subcommittee that Alexander M. Haig asked him eight days before Richard M. Nixon left the White House if Ford would pardon Nixon in the event of a resignation, the Chicago Tribune says.

Ford will tell a House judiciary subcommittee on Thursday that he made no promise to Haig and refused to make any deals involving Nixon's resignation, the newspaper said in a Washington-dated story in today's editions.

The newspaper quoted White House sources as reporting that Haig, then Nixon's chief of staff, posed to then-vice president Ford a hypothetical question: If Nixon were to resign, would he receive a full pardon?

On Aug. 8 Nixon announced his resignation, effective the next day. Ford granted him a pardon Sept. 8.

The newspaper also reported Ford is prepared to testify that Nixon's attorney, James St. Clair, told him about the existence of damaging taped conversations whose revelation ultimately helped precipitate Nixon's resignation.

National Guard Called To Make Actuary Study Out In Massachusetts

BOSTON (AP) — National Guard units were standing by today in armories around Boston following scattered violence associated with busing for school desegregation. President Ford refused a state request for federal troops.

Gov. Francis W. Sargent mobilized the National Guard on Tuesday and about 500 guardsmen were sent to armories. Other units were put on standby for possible callup.

The governor made the move after citing "stabblings, stonings and disorders" in schools Tuesday, mostly at a high school in the predominantly white Hyde Park section.

Eight persons were injured at racially tense Hyde Park High, including Joseph Crowley, 15. He suffered what a Carney Hospital spokesman described as a deep slash in the abdomen. He was reported in good condition Tuesday night.

All of those injured are white. In rejecting Sargent's request for federal assistance, Ford said in a statement that the primary responsibility for maintaining order continues to lie with state and local authorities.

Ford said no request for federal help would be in order "until the governor is in a position to say he has utilized the full resources of the state and that despite these efforts he can no longer control the situation."

Pitt Memorial Hospital Trustees voted last night to conduct an actuarial study to see how much it would cost to convert to a state retirement fund for hospital employees.

The present retirement plan is doing badly because of the stock market's poor showing. If the conversion were deemed worthwhile, an election would then have to be held by the prospective participants, the hospital employees.

Joel Vickers, administrative assistant to ECU Vice Chancellor for Health Affairs Dr. Edwin Monroe, told trustees the Eastern Area Health Education Center program of which Pitt Memorial is a part is the ninth to be established, and the largest in the state. The 16 hospitals in the Eastern 24 counties of N. C. are involved. It's a partnership among these hospitals, ECU, and the community colleges and technical schools in this area directed by the UNC School of Medicine. Pitt Memorial has five of the 40 directors and Pitt County stands to benefit from much of the $4.7 million capital and operating budget of the organization. The four priorities are a free-standing family practice residency program, the rotation of residents and third- and fourth-year students into area hospitals, continuing education for physicians and health personnel, and clinical training for paramedical personnel. He mentioned the possibility of an AHEC family practice residency building's being located here "as closely tied to the hospital as is possible."

Construction Engineer Ralph Hall reported that the new Pitt Memorial Hospital is seven and one-half per cent complete. He said the project is proceeding very well, largely because of the beautiful weather lately.

The site work is 65 per cent complete and much concrete has been poured. About $2 million has been paid out and $1 million worth of materials are either on the site or stored as a hedge against inflation. The county planner and the city planner and the Department of Transportation are working to have roads in the area widened in time for the completion of the hospital when increased traffic is anticipated.

The Trustees were invited to a hospital employees awards banquet to be held Thursday evening at the Moose Lodge here.

Courtesy medical staff privileges were extended to Dr. Robert R. Ratcliffe, Commissioner of Mental Health for the Eastern region of N. C.

The trustees expressed their delight with the quarter of a million dollar appropriation to the new Pitt Memorial by the Duke Endowment, announced today.

FEARS FOR CHILDREN

Who should I contact to ask about having the speed limit lowered on the state road that runs beside Quail Ridge Trailer Park? There are many small children living out here now and I fear for their safety. Mrs. J. M.

You should write a letter giving all the justification you can for such a lowered speed limit to C. W. Snell, N.C. Department of Transportation, Box 1587, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

HOW CAN I FINISH PATTERN?

Best's Jewelers has gone out of business and I haven't finished purchasing a full set of the china pattern I started with them. Is there any other store in the area that has LaMancha green Poppy Trail china by Metlox? D. M.

A former employee of Best's said Poppy Trail is sold in jewelry stores in Washington, Kinston, and Goldsboro. The nearest store is probably Farmville Furniture Store. They say they carry LaMancha gold, but would be glad to order LaMancha green pieces for you as you need them.

57 PERCENT INCREASE

What has the cost of living increase been in the past 10 years? W.P.

The price index in 1965 was 94.5. As of July, 1974, it was 148.3, ECU Department of Economics Chairman Dr. Louis Zincone said. Divide 148.3 by 94.5 subtract one and you have an approximate 57 per cent increase over the past 10 years.

Duke Endowment Gives $250,000

Trustees of the Duke Endowment have made a second appropriation of $250,000 to help finance the construction of the new Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Subject to the availability of funds, an additional appropriation of $250,000 will be made in 1975 for this project, bringing the total to $750,000 for three grants to Pitt Memorial by Duke Endowment in a three-year period.

Appreciation for the gifts was expressed by Jack Richardson, administrator of the hospital, and by Ed N. Warren, chairman of the Pitt Memorial Board of Trustees. Richardson pointed out that The Duke Endowment has made grants totaling $738,450 to Pitt Memorial Hospital for operating and capital purposes since 1951.

By the end of 1973, total appropriations from the Duke Endowment to beneficiaries, mainly hospitals and child care institutions in the two Carolinas, totaled more than $378 million.

Marathon To Benefit Boys' Club

Some two dozen members of the East Carolina University swimming team will take part in a swimming marathon this weekend in an effort to raise money for the Greenville Boys Club and the swimming team.

Swimming coach Ray Scharf said the marathon swim would start Friday at 2 p.m. He said swimmers will swim continuously around the clock "until the money runs out."

According to the coach, swimmers will swim one length of the Minges Coliseum pool—25 yards—for each 25-cents donation received. "The more money we get, the more the swimmers will swim," he noted.

"We will welcome any donation from 25-cents up," Scharf commented.

He said members of the Boys Club board of directors and swimmers have been soliciting donations in an effort to get the swimming marathon going. But, he said, persons wishing to contribute can contact the pool by calling 758-6490. He noted too, that Boys Club board chairman, Mrs. Ettil Gordon can be contacted about donations at 752-2910.

Swimmers, Scharf explained, have also set up a table at the University Union on the ECU campus to solicit donations from students.

According to the coach, a swim club in California recently sponsored a swimming marathon and raised $15,000.

Funds are needed to support the Greenville Boys Club, according to Scharf, and "we felt that this was one way the swimming team could help support the program... get involved in community activities."

According to the coach, persons interested in watching the swimmers perform are welcome to stop by the Minges Coliseum pool.

"I hope we will raise enough money for the swimmers to swim all weekend long," Scharf said.

Retarded Children
Can Be Helped

THIS NEW STAMP. ... was issued for the first time at the Greenville Post Office yesterday. Proposed by the Oregon Association for Retarded Children in 1965, the stamp was supported by a Senate Bill co-sponsored by Senators Maurine Neuberger, Edward Kennedy, and the late Robert Kennedy. The art work was done by Paul Calle of Stamford, Conn. First day issuance was in Arlington, Tex., headquarters of the National Association for Retarded Citizens.

Repeated Abortions Spur Mixed Reactions Across United States

NEW YORK (AP) — Although the national rate of repeat abortions is unknown, medical authorities are viewing the increasing number with mixed reactions.

"Repeated abortion is a matter of concern," says Dr. Jean Pakter, director of the New York City Health Department's Bureau of Maternity Services and Family Planning. "We'd like to see more women turn to contraceptives after their first abortion, rather than accidentally become pregnant all over again. We hope to renew and concentrate our efforts in family planning after we do further research into the characteristics of abortion repeaters so we can pinpoint our information directly to them.

"While we are concerned about abortion repeaters, we are not at the point where we are going to say, 'After two abortions, that's it.'"

Another, less stringent view comes from Dr. Christopher Tietze, senior consultant with the Population Council and director of its abortion research activities, who says, "The number of women having repeat abortions is small compared to the entire population of women. The small percentage of abortion repeaters corresponds fairly well to the high level of contraceptive effectiveness."

After a recent analysis relating to the likelihood of repeat abortion, Dr. Tietze concludes that the number of repeat abortions to be expected by young women in the year following their first legal abortion, and who are using the pill, can be estimated at between 1.8 and 5.3 per cent of these women. The pill is 98 to 99 per cent effective. For those using less effective methods, he concludes that 9 to 24 per cent of the women will return for a second abortion in the year following the first one.

For his projections covering a decade, which appear in "Family Planning Perspectives," Dr. Tietze predicts an ever-increasing number of repeat abortions. "Within ten years," he writes, "approximating the remaining portion of their childbearing period, 20-50 per cent of pill users and a substantial majority of users of other methods may be expected to experience at least one repeat abortion."

In discussing the increasing need for skillful contraceptive counseling, and greater availability of voluntary sterilization, Dr. Tietze also points out, "It should be explained that a highly effective method of contraception with occasional major side-effects, such as the oral contraceptive and the IUD, may constitute a greater risk to the woman's life, and possibly to her health, than less effective contraception backed up by repeat abortion in case of failure."

Dr. Milton Danon, administrator of Parkmed, a New York City outpatient facility where the number of abortion repeaters has increased by 10 per cent since last year, agrees with Dr. Tietze but finds it discouraging that birth control efficacy represents a health hazard, saying, "When abortion is performed during the first 12 weeks of gestation, its medical safety is unquestioned."

"During 1973, there were no first trimester abortion fatalities in New York City. Yet, for healthy young women under 35 who are taking the pill, the estimated death rate is 1 in 66,000 because of abnormal blood clotting; the estimated death rate from abnormal blood clotting in healthy women under 35 and not taking the pill is 1 in 500,000. IUD complications reported to date are also more numerous than those arising from the outpatient abortion procedure. So what should healthy, sexually active females do? Emphasis should be placed on the development of an effective and safe method of contraception."

The fact that abortion may be safer than using the pill or the IUD is discounted by other medical authorities. Psychiatrist Robert E. Hall, of St. Luke's Hospital and a former obstetrician-gynecologist, states, "The type of woman who has repeated abortions has a basic psychological problem and it was probably present before the first abortion. However, since the psychological dynamics of the woman's problems were not treated, she continues to have abortion after abortion. The problem may lie with her views on her femininity; perhaps she is trying to get even with somebody, or she may unconsciously wish to become pregnant, even though consciously she does not. If women are using abortion as a birth control method, they are either misinformed or their views are distorted."

To others, the quality of life is at fault. "When a woman has an abortion, we can say it is

The high cost of food, a concern with reducing or maintaining weight and the impulse to use gas and electricity economically are changing menus.

Substituting nutritious light suppers for heavy dinners a few times a week benefits the budget, aids calorie-watchers and cuts down on cooking fuel.

One of the best main dishes for a light supper is a one-pot chowder in which the fish is left in large portions. Served in old-fashioned wide-rim soup plates or modern wide shallow bowls accompanied by good bread, it's a satisfying offering.

The following recipe for such a chowder is one we tested recently and enjoyed. For it you can use an economical variety of fresh or frozen fish fillers with some fresh vegetables and frozen diced potatoes. The potatoes come in 12-ounce, 1½-pound and 2-pound packages and we find them convenient to have on hand. Tomato sauce and several strips of bacon add extra flavor to the chowder.

With some dishes like this in your repertoire, you may want to restore that late-Victorian institution, The Sunday Night Supper, and ask guests to share it.

MAIN-DISH CHOWDER

- 1½ pounds fresh or frozen fish fillets
- Salt and pepper
- 2 carrots (pared, halved crosswise and cut in strips)
- 1 green pepper, cut in strips
- 2 stalks celery, cut in strips
- 4 slices bacon, diced
- ½ cup chopped onion

- 3 cups water
- 15-ounce can and 8-ounce can tomato sauce
- 12-ounce package frozen diced (Southern-style) hash-brown potatoes or about 3 cups from a larger package
- Minced parsley
- Thaw fish if frozen. If necessary, cut fillets into 4 or 5 serving-size portions: sprinkle with salt and pepper. In the center of each, place carrot, green pepper and celery strips. Roll up, securing ends with toothpicks. In a saucepot cook bacon until crisp; with a slotted spoon remove bacon and set aside. Add onion to bacon fat in saucepot and cook until golden; add water, tomato sauce, 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper; heat to boiling. Add fish rollups; simmer, covered, for 20 minutes. Add frozen potatoes; continue simmering, covered, until potatoes are tender — about 15 minutes. On serving, sprinkle with bacon (reheated if necessary) and parsley. Makes 4 or 5 servings.

Will Daughter's Fiance Stay Clean?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by The Chicago Tribune

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter, whom I'll call Betty, is 26, a college graduate and has never given us a moment's worry—until now. Betty wants to marry Ron, a 34-year-old college professor who has used LSD off and on for three years. She said Ron promised to give up drugs three months ago and she is sure he will keep his promise. (Betty has never used drugs.)

Betty's doctor advised her not to risk having children because of her fiance's history with LSD, so she intends to remain childless or adopt. Naturally, this hurts us deeply.

We think Betty should wait and make Ron prove himself before marrying him. So far we have avoided meeting him, which has made Betty very cool and distant to us.

We don't want to attend her wedding, let alone foot the bill for it. Are we wrong?

BETTY'S PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: Yes, I can understand your concern and heartache over the fact that your daughter has chosen to marry a man who has been into drugs, but at 26, she's an adult and is entitled to make her own decisions—right or wrong.

Meet Ron. It will improve your relationship with Betty immediately. Don't foot the bill for a wedding if you don't want to, but do attend. It's entirely possible that Ron will stay clean. I hope so. Think positive.

DEAR ABBY: Every time I buy my husband a gift, his mother says to me in front of company, "You didn't buy him anything. It was bought and paid for with HIS MONEY."

You see, I have never worked outside the house, but I am raising four children, and I keep a clean house and cook good meals and I've made the children's clothes and my own since they were tots.

What do you say? Do I earn any of the money I save from the household allowance he gives me, or not?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: You probably "earn" a lot more than you get.

DEAR ABBY: Please don't throw this away without answering because it's no joke. I'm a guy whose nipples protrude very, very conspicuously. They show through my shirts, and people are always making remarks like, "Hey, you need a bra." However, the fact is, my chest is not unusually large—just my nipples.

Several years ago I read that mothers who wanted to breast-feed their babies were advised to pull on their nipples so they would protrude, and their infants could nurse more easily. I remember now that when I was a kid (in about the sixth grade) I had a habit of doing that unconsciously while I studied.

I would appreciate it if you would consult some authority on how to get my nipples back to normal, if it's possible.

SELF-CONSCIOUS

DEAR SELF: Two suggestions: Cover them with tape to flatten. Or have the protrusions surgically reduced by a plastic surgeon.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Parties Favored Over Trick Or Treat

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — If the feelings of a representative group of young mothers surveyed this past summer are indicative of mothers all over the nation, organized costume parties will soon replace Trick or Treat at Halloween time.

According to the results of an in-depth research survey conducted by Kusan, Inc. of Nashville, producer of children's costumes, there seems to be a renewed interest in community, school and church sponsored parties and Halloween activities.

Groups included in the study consisted of mothers of 3-to 5-years olds and mothers of 6-to 11-year olds, evenly divided between boys and girls. Age of the participants ranged from 25 to 49, and family income from below $9,000 to above $15,000.

As an alternative to the possible dangers of trick or treating, the mothers suggested planned group activity, for they themselves remembered Halloween nostalgically as having been a time of parties "in the good old days."

The mothers viewed Halloween as the only holiday where a child can create, improvise, put together what he wants. Favorite characters to dress up 'as were taken from nursery stories, television and the classics — ghosts, gypsies, witches and bums.

For many, Halloween is directly associated with the start of the fall season and a period of preparation for Thanksgiving and Christmas. In any event, according to the poll, Halloween is still thought of as fun and still very much part of the American scene.

Effect Of Lake Split Minimal

Dr. I. Beverly Lake, whose friendship with Robert Morgan goes back to Morgan's days at Wake Forest law school, has withdrawn his support for Morgan in the present race for U. S. Senate.

Dr. Lake, now an N. C. Supreme Court Justice, informed friends in a letter that he could not continue to support Morgan because, "Morgan has now gone over to the NAACP and the Sanford wing of the Democratic Party."

Dr. Lake also called for organization of a new party, saying that people who supported him in 1960 "have no reason to support either of these candidates." (Morgan, the Democratic candidate, or William E. Stevens, Jr., the Republican candidate).

"They can best serve North Carolina by starting now to form a new political party based on principle, not expediency. "If they do, I'm ready to join it."

Dr. Lake's words seem strange and quaint from this vantage point in time. It is 14 years since he sought the office of governor in 1960, when Morgan was his campaign manager. Since then, our whole world has changed but Dr. Lake is saying the same things.

THIS AFTERNOON

Pre-School Testing Program Sought

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—If officials of the state's education and human resources agencies have their way, every child in North Carolina will be thoroughly tested by experts before entering kindergarten.

The 1975 General Assembly will be asked to provide $8.9 million for the screening program, and to make this testing a requirement for all children entering kindergarten.

Full-scale screening would not take place until 1978—the time when public school kindergartens will be available to all children in the state. Kindergartens are now being phased in with limited enrollment.

Census figures show nearly half a million children in North Carolina under five. The kindergarten age group numbers around 85,000, and is declining slightly each year.

Further, state officials estimate that over half of these pre-schoolers receive no medical care or health screening from private physicians.

First Look

This means that entry into kindergarten for roughly 43,000 children each year will be their first and only exposure to a trained person who might spot emotional, physical, sensory, mental, or other factors which might hamper the child's ability to learn.

And even then, the kindergarten teacher is not equipped to spot all possible problems, or to devise plans for handling them.

Human Resources Sec. David T. Flaherty has set the comprehensive screening program for four-year-olds as his top priority in the department during the coming two years.

Already, in anticipation of General Assembly consideration, state officials have formed a close liaison with the volunteer Parents and Professionals for Handicapped Children to build a statewide network of people to support and work

Morgan must be hurt by the defection of his friend and mentor. In those years since 1960, Morgan has grown and developed as a public servant. He handled the Lake statement in the best manner possible. Morgan pledged to "serve all of the people, not just a part of them."

"I believe it is the duty of every candidate for public office to discuss the issues with all North Carolina's citizens, regardless of their race."

"I believe my record of 24 years of service to the state of North Carolina reflects fairness and equal treatment to every citizen," Morgan continued. "And I believe this is what the people want. Personally, I would not have it any other way."

The Morgan record of service to North Carolina has been brilliant. He defies classification as conservative, moderate or liberal in the literal sense; rather he has shown the ability to change and use his abilities to best meet North Carolina's needs through the years.

It is sad, indeed, when two old friends part ways politically, but Robert Morgan is very much in step with the times and we think the effects of Dr. Lake's statement will be minimal.

for the proposal.

The first step would be preliminary screening of all children in the state, working toward the full-scale testing program in 1978.

Flaherty says the efforts "will give us for the first time accurate information on the number of children who have some type of emotional, behavioral development, fine motor skill or learning problem."

Current public and private school programs do not include any screening for such conditions, and problems often are not diagnosed until the child is older, and more set into the patterns, or until school failure takes place.

New Programs

Coupled with the screening program would be "early intervention" steps to bring into action the various governmental aid programs from whatever source in an effort to combat the problem before it progresses.

Flaherty said the screening system will use standardized testing and observation by experts in order to predict the presence of conditions.

Based on that preliminary screening, a more thorough diagnostic process would be used if a potential problem is indicated.

Results of the screening would be shared with the parents, with the child's pediatrician, and the need to provide more specialized programs both through Human Resources and in the schools, state officials are currently attempting to compile a census of children with special needs statewide.

A "Count the Children" drive now underway involves an in-depth study of 10 counties, coupled with a statewide registration drive the week of October 21-26 in which parents are urged to register at local schools any children with special learning problems.

Resulting from this effort will be some firm figures on which to build future need for particular programs.

The Wrong Conclusions

WASHINGTON—The trouble with Washington is that it is a very suspicious town which keeps jumping to the wrong conclusions. The other morning Arkansas' Rep. Wilbur Mills was involved in an altercation at the Tidal Basin with three women and another man. It was reported by police that Mills' nose was bleeding and he had scratches on his face. One of the women threw herself into the Tidal Basin and had to be rescued by the park police. She was identified as an Argentine-born go-go dancer.

The next morning everyone assumed that the powerful member of the House Ways and Means Committee was involved in some sort of hanky-panky. This couldn't be further from the truth. No matter how it looked in the newspapers and on television, Mills was doing the people's business.

This is what happened: Sunday night Mills decided to go to the Junkanoo nightclub to hold hearings on a tax-reform bill he was preparing to submit to the House. Several witnesses, including four or five go-go girls, testified that tax reform was absolutely essential if everyone in the United States were to get a fair shake. Mills remarked after each witness testified, "I'll drink to that."

As the evening wore on, more and more witnesses gave Mills input on what should be included in the tax-reform bill. Several testified against oil-depletion allowances, others against real-estate shelters.

It was a lively hearing with people getting a lot of things off their chests. About 1 o'clock in the morning, Mills decided to adjourn the meeting. He graciously offered to take home four of the witnesses, three ladies and a gentleman. Although they had been friendly witnesses in the bar, a few became hostile in Mills' automobile when he raised the question of the 5 percent income tax surcharge.

Mills, who sat between the ladies, tried to be peacemaker. He pointed out that he was personally against an added tax on income that would affect the lower middle classes. When he said this, the lady who was for biting the bullet punched him in the nose. Trying to recoup some of his dignity, the congressman added that, although he was opposed to a surcharge on income taxes, he could see the reason for having one if it would stop inflation.

This angered the other woman who started scratching his face. Since both women were out of order, Mills ordered the man driving the car to stop by the Tidal Basin.

He tried to mediate the dispute, but to no avail. One of the women said Mills had no interest in tax reform and, while he talked a good game, he hadn't done anything about it for years.

The other woman said that Mills was really a patsy for big business and cited his contribution from the milk producers as an example of a conflict of interest.

Mills, who up until this moment had behaved like a perfect Southern gentleman, became angered and said, "I hold you both in contempt of Congress."

"You're going to have to catch me first," one of the go-go dancers said. And with that she threw herself into the waters of the Tidal Basin where she was rescued by the police.

Rep. Mills was very moved by all this and went into seclusion to redraft his entire tax-reform legislation.

And that's what really happened last week. But Washington being Washington, no one in this town wants to give anyone in politics the benefit of the doubt.

Stress Foreign Issues

By ROBERT B. CULLEN

Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—Foreign policy issues have not played a major role to date in the campaign between Democrat Robert Morgan and Republican William E. Stevens for the U.S. Senate.

But the man the voters choose in November will be called on, as a Senator, to help shape the profile the nation will present to the world for the next six years. Some decisions that likely will be made during his term could affect foreign policy for years beyond that.

In separate interviews with the Associated Press, neither candidate claimed great expertise in foreign affairs.

Morgan's views on the issues indicated he would be a Cold Warrior in the mold of Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash. Stevens appears more likely to support the policies of detente initiated by former President Nixon.

Morgan, for example, feels that oppression of the Soviet Jews should weigh heavily in the decision on granting favorable trade terms to the Soviet Union.

"We should deal with them (the Soviets) at arm's length. The Jewish people have been our friends through the years and we shouldn't abandon them. I subscribe much to Sen. Jackson's policy."

Stevens, on the other hand, said an attempt to require the Soviets to allow free emigration for the Jews would be an invasion of their internal affairs. "I am sympathetic to the oppression of the Jewish people, but it shouldn't be a condition of trade." That is essentially the position taken by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Stevens favors the fastest possible withdrawal of United States aid to the government of South Vietnam. "It would disturb me if the Communists took over, but I don't think our money is going to make a difference there in the long run."

Morgan, however, feels the nation must honor its "commitment" to South Vietnam, which is currently costing about $1.5 billion per year. "There is now some evidence that they are developing a stable government. Withdrawing our aid would be tantamount to turning the country over to the Communists," he

Concern Over Election Apathy

By JOHN KILGO

Politicians running for office in North Carolina are grimly concerned about how to crack through voter apathy and get their supporters to the polls on Nov. 5.

Voter turnout in North Carolina has been exceptionally light for the last couple of elections—and there are strong signs it will be again this time.

Bill Culp, executive secretary of the Mecklenburg Elections Board, says he doubts that more than 60,000 of the county's 165,000 registered will bother to vote in November.

"That would be disgraceful and I hope I'm wrong," Culp says, "but that's the way it looks now."

Alex Brock, executive secretary of the State

Elections Board, says the number of registered voters in the state for the Nov. 5 election will be around 2.2 million. About 1.6 million of those are Democrats, and about 526,000 are registered Republicans.

"Unless something happens between now and election day," Brock told me, "it could certainly be another disappointing turnout."

Brock is being cautious this time in predicting the voter turnout. He says he'll wait as long as he can before making an estimate.

"Trying to read what the people are going to do is the hardest job I've ever had," Brock said. "You just can't do it. The voters might come out in mass, or they all might stay at home. The interest in the election is doubly hard to read this year because people have to work so hard these days to make a living. They're worried more about the price of bread than they are politics. I believe they'll get more interested in the political campaign as election day draws nearer. I hope so."

Brock says, in his opinion, people are cognizant for the first time in years that their vote might really mean something.

"I think there's a feeling among the people that their vote might be the one that decides a very important issue or race," Brock said. "That's a healthy condition, because the individual vote is critically important."

Brock says voters usually get very interested in congressional races, and in about 75 of the state's 100 counties races for sheriff will be hotly contested.

"Many people feel their vote for their congressman is the most important vote they ever make," Brock said. "I believe these congressional races will spark some interest and help increase voter turnout. Some of our counties also have real battles going on for sheriff. In some of the smaller counties this office creates more interest than any of the rest."

Brock says he anticipates no major problem in the task of setting the election machinery into motion.

"We always have some problems," he said, "but we're right on schedule and we'll be ready for the voters on Nov. 5."

Watergate Helped One Republican

By JAMES H. RUBIN

Associated Press Writer
TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Rep. Charles W. Sandman Jr. of New Jersey figures he is in an unusual position for a Republican this year. He claims to have benefitted from the notoriety of Watergate.

The 52-year-old conservative congressman is trying to capitalize on the attention he commanded as a staunch defender of former President Richard M. Nixon during the House Judiciary Committee hearings on impeachment.

He claims that out of 8,000 letters from his traditionally Republican district in South Jersey, all but 300 praised him for his barbed attacks on other committee members for allegedly accusing Nixon without enough evidence.

The figures are termed nonsense by Sandman's opponent, William Hughes, 42, a lawyer who came within 4,000 votes of unseating Sandman in 1970.

What's more, if Sandman's claims are accurate, his district must be one of the few around to feel so kindly toward Nixon.

According to a recent survey by a polling organization at Rutgers, the state university, nearly two out of three New Jersey residents opposed President Ford's pardon of his resigned predecessor.

In contrast to Sandman, the other New Jersey Republican on the Judiciary Committee, Rep. Joseph J. Maraziti, has been saying as little as possible about impeachment and the pardon, even though his district is heavily Republican.

Maraziti also originally sided with Nixon on all impeachment votes.

A first-term congressman from a sprawling rural, middle-class district in central and northwestern New Jersey, Maraziti is being seriously challenged by Mrs. Helen Meyer, a liberal Democrat, the wife of former Gov. Robert B. Meyner.

She ran a surprisingly strong race in losing to Maraziti by 25,000 votes in the 1972 Nixon landslide.

Both Sandman and Maraziti are in tight races, according to Republican leaders. "Don't quote me. But it's rough all around," said one GOP state official who is worried about Republican apathy.

New Jersey's third Judiciary Committee member, Democratic Chairman Peter W. Rodino of Newark, is cultivating a national reputation gained through his exposure at the televised impeachment hearings.

Rodino faces only token opposition from a sewerage commission workman in his bid for a 14th term and has spent a lot of time campaigning for Democrats elsewhere in the country.

He has made a television commercial for Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., appeared with the Democratic ticket in New York, and was received warmly during a campaign swing through the Midwest.

Rodino, the dean of the New Jersey congressional delegation, won praise for his management of the impeachment proceedings.

"I'm against a homogenized society because I want the cream to rise," Robert Frost.

Public Forum

To the editor:

The League of Women Voters, which had devoted much time and effort to the role of the planning process in the development of land use, policies and procedures, views with a great deal of trepidation the proposed channelization of the Green Mill Run. In fact, we are quite alarmed that this project appears to be very near the stage of implementation solely because of a lack of citizen awareness of its implications for our city.

Essentially, the plan calls for the widening of the present channel into an area 70 feet or more in width, running from Charles Street to the upper end of Greensprings Park and the elimination of all trees in this right of way, with no guarantee that the project will alleviate those conditions which it is designed to correct—flooding of adjacent areas—all at a cost of more than $105,000 to the city and an annual maintenance rate of about $22,000 (these estimates may be low). In addition, very little concrete evidence has been offered as to the effect that the resulting increased water velocity will have on natural processes. Experts and informed individuals in this community have the firm conviction that routine snagging and clearing of the channel would be equally effective and, of course, infinitely less costly.

The proposed official delineation of the flood plain of the Green Mill Run and the availability of Federal flood insurance to all property owners in the designated area render the proposed channelization totally unnecessary as those who would sustain flood damage in the unlikely event of a flood will be duly compensated for any losses incurred.

The League of Women Voters feels that it is vital that all concerned citizens express their viewpoint immediately to the members of city government so that this ill-considered action will not be taken.

Mortgage Money May Be Easier

By PEGGY SIMPSON

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Homebuyers should find mortgage money easier to locate as a result of an emergency housing credit bill passed by Congress Tuesday.

The bill, which authorizes up to $7.7 billion for federal purchases of conventional housing mortgages, was a priority request of President Ford in his economic message to Congress a week ago.

Rep. Garry Brown, a ranking Republican on the Banking Committee, said he has been assured that Ford will sign the bill.

He said the mortgage purchases should begin soon afterward, freeing up banks and savings and loan institutions to underwrite more mortgages.

Seventy per cent of single-family homes have conventional mortgages but the government's secondary mortgage agencies have been restricted to purchases of home mortgages insured by the Veterans Administration and the Federal Housing Administration.

Middle-class homebuyers will benefit most from the legislation. It authorizes the government agencies to buy up mortgages on houses costing between $33,000 and $38,000 but authorizes the secretary of Housing and Urban Development to allow purchases of mortgages on houses costing up to $42,000 in high-cost areas.

A ceiling of $55,000 was put on mortgages in the extraordinarily expensive areas of Alaska, Hawaii and Guam.

The housing industry is in its worst doldrums since World War II, its officials say.

Homebuyers can't find mortgage money and when they do, it is prohibitively expensive because of interest rates approaching 10 per cent in some areas.

In a fight on the Senate floor, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., succeeded in getting the bill's interest rate lowered to the cost of the money to the Treasury plus one-half of one per cent, or about 8.5 per cent.

Brown estimated the interest would be higher than Proxmire had projected, somewhere between 8½ and 8¾ per cent.

Repeals No-Knock Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has voted to repeal a controversial no-knock law which allows federal agents to search residences in some instances without identifying themselves.

The measure was sent to the Senate Tuesday on a voice vote. The 1970 law was designed to help crack down on drug offenders. It allows federal judges to issue warrants authorizing Justice Department agents to break into residences unannounced for searches in cases where the property being sought might be destroyed or the agents would be in danger if they knocked.

Internment Camp Burned

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The Maze internment camp was set ablaze and almost totally destroyed during a night of rioting by prisoners in the 60-acre complex, police sources reported today.

At least four prison guards were reported injured, one with a fractured skull. A police source said 100 of the 130 quonset huts at the camp seven miles east of Belfast were destroyed.

Kill, Bury 658 Calves

CURTISS, Wis. (AP) — Protesting low cattle prices, farmers shot or slit the throats of 658 calves and buried the carcasses in trenches.

"I'm tired of rhetoric," said Steve Pavich, president of the National Farmers Organization in Wisconsin. "... There is a problem out here in rural America and something has to be done about it."

"None of us like it," one farmer said. "But if they don't change soon they might as well shoot the American farmer and throw him in the pit."

Royalty Basis Oil Bids

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A new style of offshore oil lease sale opens here today with 10 of the 297 tracts in the Gulf of Mexico up for royalty bids instead of cash.

In a royalty bid, the tract of sea bottom would go to the bidder that offered the federal government the biggest share of future income from oil or gas found by drillers.

Interior Sec. Rogers C. P. Morton ordered the experiment to see if royalty bidding would bring new faces into offshore oil drilling — and perhaps more cash to the federal Treasury.

Hopes For Compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders hope to get quick enactment of a compromise worked out with President Ford to cut off U.S. military aid to Turkey but not until Dec. 10.

Opponents led by Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., called that "no compromise at all" and said they would try in the House today to cut off the aid Nov. 30 — or sooner, if Turkey sends any more arms to its occupation forces on Cyprus.

But House Appropriations Chairman George H. Mahon, D-Tex., floor manager of the compromise resolution, said Ford needs until Dec. 10 to get Cyprus peace negotiations going.

House Speaker Carl Albert and Senate leaders said Tuesday they hoped to get final action on the Turkish aid dispute today and let anxious congressmen get home to re-election campaigns.

said. Stevens is hopeful that the United States can begin to bring home some of the 300,000 troops in Europe and the 200,000 in South Korea and Thailand. Overseas troops, he said, contribute heavily to inflation. Stevens noted, however, that troop withdrawal decisions must be based on confidential military information. He said he would trust the President to provide it. Morgan said he is against unilateral withdrawal of troops from Europe; he said it would undercut negotiations now going on with the Warsaw Pact nations. In the Far East, he said, he fears leaving a military vacuum to the Japanese. "The Japanese are a militaristic people and always have been," he said.

Doctor Develops Home Treatment that RINSES AWAY BLACKHEADS Help Dry Up ACNE-PIMPLES...

QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE MUST SHOW IMMEDIATE IMPROVEMENT — OR YOUR MONEY BACK

A leading New York Doctor, working with a cosmetic laboratory, has developed a simple home treatment that rinses away blackheads, helps dry up acne pimples, and shrinks enlarged pores. The name of this medicated product is QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE. Apply this delightfully Mint-Scented Cream and within 2 or 3 minutes an absorbing agent called Argilla, dries and turns this cream into a plastic-like masque. You will now feel as though hundreds of "tiny fingers" are kneading the skin, loosening pore-caked dirt, blackheads and other foreign impurities. As it firms and hardens, its suction action draws out waste matter from the pores. . . . In 15 minutes you simply rinse the masque away with lukewarm water which dissolves it immediately. When you wipe your face, you can see that blackheads and other pore "filler" actually comes off on your wash cloth. And your skin feels clean . . . really clean . . . refreshed, smooth like velvet. Women 35 and over will enjoy the skin tightening experience as the masque relaxes tired facial muscles and eases tension lines on face and throat. If you suffer the agony of blackheads, acne-pimples, and enlarged pores, give yourself this home treatment and see the breath-taking results. Ask for it by name QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE.

Wants Closed Meetings State Award To Recreation Dept.

RALEIGH (AP)—A committee of the North Carolina League of Municipalities has recommended that the league ask the 1975 General Assembly to weaken the state's open meetings law.

The league committee said

municipal agencies need to hold private meetings to discuss personnel matters, make investigations and consider zoning variances.

Representatives of North Carolina newspapers and broadcasters issued strong statements Tuesday against the proposal.

William C. Lassiter, legislative lobbyist for the North Carolina Press Association, said there was no justification for amending the law, passed in 1971.

A league committee headed by Durham Mayor James R. Hawkins will submit the proposal to the league convention in Asheville later this month.

Hawkins said his committee wants closed meeting allowed for "all matters relating to personnel, employees and officials and hearings and meeting held pursuant to the power to investigate affairs of the city."

The committee proposal would also allow closed meetings of "quasi judicial" bodies such as boards of zoning adjustment.

Hawkins said city officials felt the need for confidential discussion when they consider hiring or firing employees or filling vacancies on boards and commissions.

His own city's Board of Adjustment went to court in 1972 in an effort to meet in secret. Its arguments were rejected by Superior Court Judge James H. Pou Bailey.

Lassiter noted that the league committee's proposal would permit the High Point City Council to hold its current police investigation secretly, although it has not sought to do so.

Other press spokesmen agreed with him that they opposed any dilution of the law. Wade Hargrove, lobbyist for the state Association of Broadcasters, said his group also would oppose changes "unless there are very persuasive countervailing arguments."

The Greenville Recreation Department received the Volunteer Organization of the Year Award this past weekend during the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of North Carolina Inc. annual meeting in Charlotte.

The department was cited during the session as the Eastern Seal Society recognized persons and organizations for outstanding contributions and service to the handicapped.

Miss Alice Keene, coordinator for therapeutic recreation with the Recreation Department here, accepted the award which is presented to the volunteer organization that has given the most time and effort toward serving the handicapped.

As a coordinator, Miss Keene has organized activities for the physically handicapped, the mentally retarded, the visually handicapped, the elderly, and the socially deprived.

The department received an engraved plaque from the N.C. Easter Seal Society in recognition of its work with the handicapped.

Attending the annual session from Greenville, in addition to Miss Keene, were Mrs. Gaynor Mills, George Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Vann Latham, Miss Mary Council, and Miss Susan Clark.

Other awards given at the meeting included: a special award to the Yadkinville and Winston-Salem Sertoma Clubs for raising $103,000 to purchase a camp for the Eastern Seal Society;

Media Awards to Radio Station WKKE-Asheville,

Television Station WBTV-Charlotte, the Daily Southerner newspaper in Tarboro, and the Rutherford County News (non-daily);

Special awards to Mrs. Mary E. Parham and the Community Development Group, both of Charlotte;

The Volunteer of the Year Award to K. Lindsey of Charlotte;

The Gallantry Award, presented to the handicapped person who has done the most for Easter Seals, to Jack Callaghan of Charlotte;

The President's Cup, presented to the chapter that has shown the most improvement in services to the handicapped in the past year, to the Northwest Chapter headed by Bob Parrish, executive director and Clayborn G. Sheets, president.

Keen Enters YDC Race

Aubrey A. Keen, 30, of Raleigh has resigned his position as National Committeeman of the North Carolina Young Democrats to enter the race for state YDC president. His candidacy will spark the first competitive race between viable candidates for that position since 1968. Balloting will take place at the YDC Convention, October 19, in Raleigh at the Sir Walter Hotel.

"With our young people numb and apathetic, nothing less important than the independence and the very continued existence of a vital Young Democrats organization is at stake during the coming year. We must place our primary emphasis on building the strength of local county and college clubs and maintaining communications to insure that state activities reflect the feelings and political positions of our local clubs at all times," he said.

A Johnston County native, Keen is presently co-chairperson of the YDC Constitution Committee, served as chairperson of the recent YDC Blood Drive and was named as one of Ten Outstanding Young Democrats of North Carolina for 1973.

Prior to his election as National Committeeman in November of 1973, Keen served as president and secretary of the Mecklenburg County Club, was chairperson of the 42nd annual YDC State Convention Host Committee and served as Ninth Congressional District vice president.

In 1973, he was active as a Mecklenburg County precinct officer and as a member of the N.C. Democratic Party Study Democratic National Telethon for North Carolina in 1972.

He is president of Creative Temporaries Corporation in Charlotte and president of Creative Construction Management Corporation in Raleigh, and attended the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

German Attache To Lecture On Friday

Dr. Jurgen Kalkbrenner, Cultural Attache at the Embassy of the Federal Republic of Germany in Washington, D. C., will present a lecture on "Germany in the 1970s" in Room 244 (the Small Auditorium) of the new Mendenhall Student Center at East Carolina University on Friday at 8:00 p.m.

The lecture is being sponsored by the Pitt County Historical Society, the Department of Foreign Languages at the University, and Quixote Travels, Inc., of Greenville, and is open to the public.

According to Dr. Ralph Hardee Rives, president of the Historical Society, who will introduce Dr. Kalkbrenner, the lecture will be followed by a question and answer period.

Dr. Kalkbrenner is a native of Lubeck in Northern Germany, a veteran of World War II, and he has the Doctor of Law Degree from Kiel University. He has done postgraduate work in the University of Washington at Seattle. His career as a foreign service officer began in 1955 and he has served in Bonn, Germany, in Nairobi in East Africa, in Ankara, Turkey, and as assistant to the President of the European Common Market Commission in Brussels prior to coming to the Embassy of the Federal Republic of Germany in Washington in 1970, as the Counselor of Cultural and Educational Affairs.

Dr. Rives urges all local citizens who are interested in the history of Germany and its position in world affairs today to attend this lecture.

Correction

Approximately 200 teachers and students are expected to attend the annual Eastern Drama Clinic set for Friday at McGinnis Auditorium on the East Carolina University campus.

TWO IN ONE
AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — Maine originally was part of Massachusetts until it gained statehood in 1820.

By STEPHENS BROENING
Associated Press Writer
LISBON, Portugal (AP) — President Francisco da Costa Gomes says the United States can assure the growth of democracy in Portugal by giving his government large doses of economic and political help.
He was interviewed on the eve of his departure today for the United States to address the United Nations General Assembly and meet later this week in Washington with President Ford. Costa Gomes is the first Portuguese chief of state ever to visit the United States.

He became president two weeks ago after leftists in the military forced Antonio de Spínola to resign. In the interview, he was vague about his hopes for the talks in Washington.
He was asked what Lisbon needs from the United States to encourage the development of a healthy, democratic Portuguese state.

He offered no specifics but replied: "Both economically and politically, the United States can give immense help to the Portuguese people in the development of the democratic process now in course. We believe in the disinterested help of friendly peoples and governments."
"In relations between countries, increased mutual confidence is an essential element for the development of dignified and fruitful relations. During these talks much can be done in this direction."
A senior Portuguese government official, who asked not to be named, said the United States should realize that building a democracy in a country emerging from a half-century of dictatorship is made more difficult by economic hardships. The official said the United States can offer financial aid to bolster employment and blunt the rise of inflation. It also could help by providing aid for Portugal's former African colonies.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices declined on the stock market today as profit taking continued, but analysts were predicting another rally before long.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 5.55 to 652.85, and losers held a 3-to-1 advantage over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow had been down 9.85 points at 11 a.m. Analysts said some selling was bound to occur after the strong gains over six sessions which produced a 99-point climb in the Dow before prices began declining late Monday.

Monsanto Corp. was the Big Board volume leader, down 1 1/2 to 15 1/4.

Xerox Corp. was down 4 1/2 to 65 1/4, continuing its decline of Tuesday when it dropped 7 1/4.

Analysts pointed to possible investor disappointment with Xerox's report that third-quarter net was $1.04 a share, compared with 97 cents a year earlier.

Eastman Kodak was off 2 3/4 to 71; Union Carbide dropped 2 to 39, and Allied Chemical was down 1 1/4 to 32 1/4.

The NYSE's 11 a.m. composite index of all its listed common stocks dropped .45 to 37.22.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was off .55 to 68.61.

Houston Oil & Minerals was the Amex volume leader, off 1/2 to 23 1/2.

Selection For Alternates In Branch Case Continues

The selection of two alternate jurors for the cases against Roy Lee Sullivan of Kinston and Connie Hardee Branch of Greenville continued this morning in Pitt County Superior Court.

The 12th juror to hear the trial in which Mrs. Branch and Sullivan are each charged with conspiracy to murder and being accessories before the fact of murder in the death of Mrs. Branch's husband, Lynwood Branch, was seated around 6:15 p.m. Tuesday.

As court resumed this morning, the search for two alternates to serve, in the event any of the 12 active jurors are unable to hear the cases, continued. By 11:15 a.m., five potential alternates had been questioned and excused.

Presiding Superior Court Judge Perry Martin has reported that a total of 14 jurors will be selected before trial testimony begins.

Branch, a Pitt County businessman, was found in the driveway of his home near Greenville the night of March 29. Branch, who had been shot in the head, died on the morning of March 31 in Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Charges were brought against Mrs. Branch and Sullivan late in April.

Two Virginia men, Matthew

Jack Whealon and Harold Payne Wiseman, have also been charged with conspiracy to murder in connection with the case.

Predicts Millions To Die This Year From Starvation

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—One hundred million persons will starve to death this year because high oil prices have created a worldwide shortage of high-nitrogen fertilizer, a biologist predicts.

Gerald H. Elkan, professor of microbiology at North Carolina State University, also predicted, another 400 million persons will suffer malnutrition this year as an indirect result of high oil costs.

"In 1972, the Philippines paid about $50 a ton for chemical fertilizer," he said. "Today it costs $225 per ton. In other parts of the undeveloped world, the story is the same. Fertilizer is too expensive."

Elkan told an audience at Mills College on Monday night that most fertilizers depend on ammonia for their nitrogen which is essential to protein production.

He explained that the world's ammonia industry depends on natural gas and petroleum which produces ammonia when combined with nitrogen in the air.

Much of the world's population gets protein from grain and cereal crops. The crop yields have increased enormously, he said, "but only by using new hybrid varieties that are dependent on large quantities of chemical nitrogen fertilizer and pesticides."

Jenkins Plays Unheralded Role In Rampants' Winning Seasons

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

One of the most successful parts of the Rose High School game during the past two football seasons has been the place-kicking segment.

And by-and-large, a lot of the success of it is due to a player the fans seldom take any notice of—the holder. But, according to most coaches, his job is just as important as the kickers, and perhaps just as much or more skill is involved.

For the past two years, Jack Jenkins has been holding for the extra points and field goals at Rose High School. It's not a job that he greatly enjoys—but he wants to be part of the team. He would rather be out there during the rest of the game, getting his kicks in that way too.

But what he does is greatly appreciated. "Here's one of the best cases of an individual doing an outstanding job without realizing it," Rose Coach Dave Bumgarner said. "It takes an individual with great hands, someone who is reliable, to get the ball and put it down properly. We've won several games just because of our extra point game during the past two

Bumgarner feels that the holder on a football team has to be someone above average. "Jack is this type of guy. He works hard at being a good holder, and he just doesn't know how important he's been for the past two years."

This year, the kicking game has been outstanding for the Rampants. Jeff Hagans, the regular kicker, has hit 13 of 14 attempts. Tim Toates, who subbed once, missed on his only attempt. Three field goals have also failed, although they were just barely off target, and had plenty of distance.

Jenkins does get into the game occasionally on the defensive unit as a back, but Bumgarner still feels his most important job is holding. "I'm sure he'd rather play more, but I rate him as a team before self type guy."

Jenkins agrees that he'd rather be in there. "I'd trade it anytime. I don't play enough to make me happy. And I feel I can play as well as anyone out there—but I guess just about everybody on the bench feels the same way."

He feels that a holder must have good hands. "You've got to get it and position it quickly. We work about 10 minutes a day on it," he said. "Last year, when Scott Wolcott was kicking, we worked more, since that's all he did, but Jeff also plays in the line."

For Wolcott, the job of spotting the ball was a little more difficult than it is this year. Wolcott was a soccer style kicker, and Jenkins had to angle the ball, depending on the distance and the point of the field where it was being spotted. "But with Jeff, I hold it straight up. I do tilt it a little for field goal attempts to help get more distance."

A senior, Jenkins doesn't stick with just football. He also plays basketball and baseball, keeping him in action year around. "I also enjoy surfing," he said. "And I'm also interested in school politics."

Following graduation, Jenkins hopes to enroll at the University of North Carolina and major in political science. "I'm kind of interested in law school, but that's a while off."

"I want to see us get into the state playoffs. All of us think we have the team capable of winning the state title," he said.

Locke Can't Leave Campus

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP)—Basketball coach Tate Locke is restricted to his Clemson University campus as far as recruiting is concerned until Aug. 1, 1975.

President Robert C. Edwards announced Tuesday the Atlantic Coast Conference is disciplining Locke for arranging a private air ride to the campus for the father of a player being recruited a year ago.

Edwards said conference Commissioner Bob James issued the order for a violation of conference and National College Athletic Association regulations.

The Clemson president said the father of Phil Ford Jr., was flown from Rocky Mount, N.C., to Clemson. The son entered the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill this fall.

The president explained that the cost of such visits may be paid by the school, but only when the relative is in the company of the athlete, and transportation is in a family-operated automobile not owned, and whose use is not arranged, by the institution.

Rampants Take Week Off

Rose High School's Rampants, 1-0, in the Division I standings following their 14-0 victory over Rocky Mount, will take the week off for an open date this Friday night.

They'll get back into action the following Friday, October 25, playing host to Northern Nash at Homecoming in Ficklen Stadium.

In the meantime, the Rampants will be working light this week, and watching the battles in the conference to see who will be joining them in a share of the lead. This week's games send Rocky Mount to Northeastern, while Northern Nash and Wilson clash in the other game.

Northern Nash had its unbeaten string snapped, 21-6, by Northeastern last week, as the Eagles grabbed a share of first with Rose, Wilson, 6-0 overall, will be playing its season open on the Black Knights' field.

Last Friday night's game was a defensive struggle most of the way. Rose managed only one first down in the first 22 minutes of play. Only a blocked punt helped to set up their first touchdown, which came in the final seconds of play in the half. In the second half, the Rampants got their outside game and passing attack moving and opened up the Rocky Mount defenses some, moving on to win easily.

At the same time, the Rampants shut down the Rocky Mount offense entirely, except for two long passes. The Gryphons never got their game moving, and their threats came usually on Rampant mistakes. "It was the kind of game I expected it to be," Coach Dave Bumgarner said, "a real, tough defensive one. I thought we could have moved the ball better in the first half, but it took a few plays, like end runs and the passes, to open them up."

"I'm also disappointed that (Doug) Paschal didn't get any more yardage than he did, but they keyed on him all night."

Bumgarner felt that the Rampants did exactly what they wanted to on defense. "We wanted to get them into a passing game, then put a lot of pressure on their quarterback. We did this, and kept him (the quarterback) on his back. He got off some passes, but we intercepted three. And I think that's the first time we've beaten them in a long time."

The coach called it a good win for team morale, and that the kicking game was a key part of it. "I thought we had excellent coverage on both the kickoffs and punts. Macon Moye did a fine job punting, too."

Following the game, the Rocky Mount coach felt that "while it probably wouldn't have made any difference," the officiating was very poor.

Bumgarner agreed somewhat. "I thought several times we could have been called for a few things that weren't called. But I guess that is just the breaks of the game. At one point, when it was very close to a first down, the officials wouldn't give us a measurement, when I felt they should have."

The coaches will be watching the outcome of the two league games this weekend with interest. "It's hard to say what affect the open date will have. It should give us a chance to get people well and healthy. We've been in several very physical games, and we've still got some tough ones to play."

Recheck Game Time

If you are planning to go to Appalachian State University for this Saturday's game with East Carolina University, you'd better recheck your plans.

According to some early schedules passed out in the area, the game time is listed at 7:30 p.m.

However, Appalachian State changed the game time to 1:30 p.m. earlier this fall. They will also be holding "Band Day" at the game, and a large crowd is expected.

The game will pick two teams who haven't been beaten in Southern Conference play, both with 1-0 records.

No Respite For Wake's Deacons

By KEN ALYTA
AP Sports Writer

Wake Forest 0, North Carolina, Oklahoma and Penn State 149.

Those numbers sum up the horrible things that have been happening to Coach Chuck Mills and his Wake Forest football team the last three Saturdays.

They have lost five straight games and have failed to score in the last 14 periods. Since Mills launched his career at Wake Forest with a 9-7 victory over Florida State last year, his Deacons have gone 15 games without a victory. Their best in that period was a 7-7 tie with Duke last November.

The schedule hasn't been easy. Wake Forest has lost to 10th-ranked North Carolina State, No. 2 Oklahoma and Penn State, No. 11.

Returning to Atlantic Coast Conference competition Saturday, the assignment will be equally tough. The Deacons travel to Maryland, winner of its last three and ranked 18th after losing close games to nationally ranked Alabama and Florida.

Mills noted, "We're hanging in there until something happens. Our hope is in the future. On our 48-player traveling squad we have 28 freshmen and sophomores. Six of them start on offense and five on defense."

He added that morale remains good, despite the succession of trouncings.

"Considering our situation," he said, "morale is excellent. We haven't fallen apart. The boys haven't given up studying or good social habits. We've just made a lot of mistakes."

The other teams believe they're better than we are when we take the field, and this has to give them a bit of a boost. I think Oklahoma's third team could win, or at least compete, in the ACC."

Junior running back Frank Harsh, the team's top ball carrier, injured a knee in the Penn State game and will be lost against Maryland. Sophomore Jim Mach will replace him.

Linebacker Gerald Hopkins, also hurt against Penn State, had knee surgery and is out for the rest of the season.

In five games Wake Forest has averaged 97 yards rushing and 104 passing. Opponents have averaged 320 yards on the ground and 163 passing, completing 71 per cent with only interception. The Deacons, with freshman and sophomore quarterbacks, have completed only 40 per cent of their passes, with eight interceptions.

Between puffs on his ever-present cigar, Mills offers this philosophy. "I know I'm going to heaven. There's no hell. It's right here on earth."

The Wake Forest-Maryland game is one of three ACC contests scheduled Saturday. Duke, winner of its last four after losing to N.C. State in the opener, plays at Clemson and N.C. State travels to North Carolina. The State Wolfpack is one short of the record of 15 straight conference victories, held by North Carolina. State is 4-0 in the league and 6-0 overall.

Rounding out the schedule, Virginia is host to Virginia Tech. Each has a 1-4 record, but played well last time out. Virginia lost a 21-point lead in losing 22-21 to N.C. State. And Virginia Tech came from behind in the last half to win at South Carolina 31-17.

Sophomore Joe Sroba's performance for Virginia against N.C. State won him this week's ACC rookie of the week honors in a vote of Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association members.

The Cavalier running back, a 5-foot-9, 172-pounder, carried 29 times for 125 yards. It gave him a 90-yard average for the season, third best in the conference. He also caught two passes and returned a kickoff 22 yards.

Sroba, from Trevose, Pa., began the season as a flanker, but moved to running back when Billy Copeland broke an arm against Navy.

Lady Pirates Top Bulldogs

East Carolina University's women's tennis team gained their fourth victory of the season yesterday, downing Atlantic Christian 7-2.

East Carolina took five of the six singles matches to wrap up the victory, then came back to take two of the three doubles.

The Lady Pirates are now 4-1 on the season, and will play host to N.C. State on Friday at 3 p.m. on the Minges courts.

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland A's don't plan on going back to Los Angeles.

"We're a very emotional ballclub and we could start steam-rolling," said Reggie Jackson after the A's beat the Dodgers 3-2 Tuesday night and took a 2-1 lead in the World Series.

The A's, confident and comfortable in their Oakland Coliseum, can finish off the National League champions if they win the next two games here, with Ken Holtzman going tonight and Vida Blue Thursday night.

Jackson and some others believe it's a good possibility.

"The Dodgers are the best all-around team I've seen in my major league career," Jackson said. "But we're a pretty good team, too. We are a money team. That's why we've been in the World Series for the last three years."

Manager Alvin Dark and center fielder Bill North were thinking along the same lines.

"I know we will be facing a couple of 20-game winners," Dark said of Andy Messersmith and Don Sutton. "But we've got a couple of 20-game winners for them, too."

Actually, neither Sutton,

Holtzman nor Blue won 20 games in 1974, but Dark contended: "I consider them all 20-game winning pitchers."

The way the Series has been going, you have to give some weight to the feelings of Jackson, Dark and North. The opportunistic A's have cashed in on all the breaks to beat the Dodgers in the first and third games.

Los Angeles catcher Joe Ferguson, the goat of the game with two errors, certainly agreed with Jackson's assessment.

"They are definitely a team of opportunity," Ferguson said of the A's. "They got away with murder, to say the least."

The first opportunity for Oakland came in the third inning after pitcher Catfish Hunter struck out against Al Downing. North singled sharply to left for his first hit of the Series and went all the way to third on Bert Campaneris' hot ground ball to third baseman Ron Cey.

That aggressive baserunning paid off for Oakland. After Sal Bando walked on a 3-2 count, Jackson bounced a ball in front of the plate and Ferguson muffed it, allowing the first run of the game. Joe Rudi then singled to center to drive home Bando from second base and the A's had a 2-0 lead for 25-game winner Hunter.

Downing walked a batter leading off the Oakland fourth, but he should have known better. Once Dick Green got on base, the A's found a way to get him all the way around.

Hunter sacrificed the runner to second, and after North fled to Bill Buckner near the warning track in left field, Campaneris singled home the A's third run — the one which turned out to be their game-winner.

The Dodgers produced some late thunder with solo home runs by Buckner and Willie Crawford in the eighth and ninth innings, but reliable Rollie Fingers preserved Hunter's victory.

A's Have Not Been Outplayed

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland A's have been outthit, outslugged and perhaps even outpitched so far in the 1974 World Series.

Everything but outplayed.

"We scored a bunch of runs tonight," Manager Alvin Dark said with a grin after the 3-2 victory Tuesday night which left the A's one up on the Los Angeles Dodgers after three games.

"Our kids really laid it on the line and deserved better," said Ross. But he added that "we have to look at this as a learning experience. We're a young team. Richmond is experienced and a very good team. We've got our years ahead of us."

The next week it was a 16-12 loss to William and Mary in which the Bulldogs twice failed to make a first down in Indian territory late in the game, and Ross took the blame "for some bad play selection." But he showed some impatience, saying, "Damn it—we gotta win."

Last Saturday night it was a 20-9 defeat by VMI in which the Bulldogs had 425 yards in total offense to 267 for the Keydets.

"I don't know what it takes to win," said Ross. "Our kids are giving effort, we're getting the hitting. We are not getting the one play in a game that can make the difference."

"We make a great goal line stand, and they fumble for a touchdown. We move the ball up the field but then seem to fizzle out when we get around the goal. This has to have a mental effect on our team."

So, too, it would seem, on the coaches.

eight inning Tuesday night.

"I'm a home run pitcher," he said. "Besides, a couple of my friends were up here from North Carolina and I wanted them to get to see a homer. They'd never seen one."

Dark, however, decided not to let the Dodgers look at any more Hunter fastballs. He brought in relief star Rollie Fingers with the score 3-1 and one down in the top of the eighth.

Fingers, in his 14th World Series relief appearance over the last three years, gave up a leadoff homer to Crawford in the ninth.

"They hit a few balls hard against him, but most of them were at somebody," said Dark, who will pitch Ken Holtzman against first-game loser Andy Messersmith in tonight's fourth game.

One of the hardest hit balls was the one that nailed down the victory for the A's. With one out in the ninth inning and the tying run on base, Bill Russell hit a smash at Oakland second baseman Dick Green, who started a game-ending double play, the third twin-killing of the game.

"I knew it was a double play when he hit the ball," said Jackson, who left the game after seven innings, with Claudell Washington taking his place in right field.

Two errors by Ferguson built the Dodgers' World Series total to four.

"We're not hitting like we can, so I'm glad they're having a few defensive problems," said Green. "I suppose that's the only major difference right now."

Coaches Disappointed

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
AP Sports Writer

Two of the most disappointed football coaches in the Southern Conference have to be Bobby Ross of The Citadel and Art Baker of Furman.

While the preseason line was that The Citadel wouldn't make any earth-shaking moves in the league race, Ross anticipated the Bulldogs now would be better than 0-3 in the league and 1-4 over-all.

Furman, on the other hand, was billed as a darkhorse contender for the championship after a 7-4 season in 1973, yet the Paladins are 2-2 in conference competition and all but out of the race.

The Paladins' downfall started in the first game, a 7-0 upset at the hands of Virginia Military's Keydets in which Furman lost five fumbles and had a pass intercepted.

"If we're going to win this year, we're going to have to hold onto the football," said Baker. "We can't turn it over that much and expect to win."

But the Paladins proved him wrong in the next two games, losing four fumbles in a 22-19 nonleague victory over Presbyterian and six more in a 10-0 triumph over William and Mary's Indians.

The following week Furman lost just one fumble and had one pass intercepted in a 24-14 triumph over Richmond, and there were just two turnovers last Saturday night—but the Paladins this time went down 15-12 to East Carolina's two-time league champion Pirates.

"I don't believe that I have ever had a more disappointing loss in my life," said Baker, whose team led 12-0 with 11 minutes left. "We worked hard all week. We knew what we could do, and we went out and did it. I hate to see us play so hard and not win."

Enter Ross, whose Bulldogs edged Presbyterian and lost to Delaware in their first two starts.

Then came the league opener with Richmond, a 27-24 defeat when the Spiders' Terry Carter kicked a 22-yard field goal with 25 seconds left.

"Our kids really laid it on the line and deserved better," said Ross. But he added that "we have to look at this as a learning experience. We're a young team. Richmond is experienced and a very good team. We've got our years ahead of us."

The next week it was a 16-12 loss to William and Mary in which the Bulldogs twice failed to make a first down in Indian territory late in the game, and Ross took the blame "for some bad play selection." But he showed some impatience, saying, "Damn it—we gotta win."

Last Saturday night it was a 20-9 defeat by VMI in which the Bulldogs had 425 yards in total offense to 267 for the Keydets.

"I don't know what it takes to win," said Ross. "Our kids are giving effort, we're getting the hitting. We are not getting the one play in a game that can make the difference."

"We're not hitting like we can, so I'm glad they're having a few defensive problems," said Green. "I suppose that's the only major difference right now."

Petty Assured Of Top Prize

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — If Richard Petty finishes last in Sunday's American 500 and the Los Angeles Times 500, Nov. 24, he can still win an unprecedented fifth Grand National championship, stock car racing's top prize.

All Petty has to do is start in the two races.

Petty has a 691 point lead over Cale Yarborough going into the two final races of the season. The Randleman, N.C., driver is assured of the title even if Yarborough wins both.

"All it really means is five titles sound better than four," Petty quipped.

"I say it only means five instead of four, but in many ways, I can see how I'll look back on this season and remember how important it was to me.

"First of all, we had a disappointing season, for us, anyway, in 1973. We won a pretty good amount of money ($159,655) and some races (six) last year, but it really wasn't what we've come to expect," Petty said.

"So the fact that we bounced back this year and won the title means a lot, if not for me, then for the boys who work on the car...the championship is just the icing on the cake," the Dodge driver added.

Practice for the $105,525 American 500 begins Thursday with qualifying for the first 20 positions to start Friday.

Petty, Yarborough, David Pearson, Bobby Allison and Donnie Allison and Buddy Baker are favored in both the time trials and the 500-mile race at the Rockingham International Speedway.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—North Carolina State quarterback Dave Buckley, with his team trailing 21-0 in the third quarter against Virginia, refused to believe his team was doomed to its first defeat in six games.

Buckley calmly engineered touchdown drives of 76, 80, and 74 yards, capping two of them with two point conversions to give the Wolfpack a 22-21 victory.

Today, he was named the Associated Press Back of the Week in college football.

Buckley's performance included 23 completions in 30 attempts for 306 yards, breaking a school record held by Roman Gabriel of the Philadelphia Eagles.

"It was the most fantastic performance under pressure I've ever seen," said State

Buckley Gets National Honor As Associated Press Back Of Week

Coach Lou Holtz.

Buckley, a junior from Akron, Ohio, had to come up with big plays time and again. On its first touchdown drive, State was faced with a fourth and five at Virginia's 12. Buckley passed to his twin brother, Don, at the Cavalier two.

Later, on a fourth and 12 at the Virginia 36, he hit Roland Hooks over the middle for a score.

He got the winning two point conversion play from the bench, looked at the Cavalier defense, and decided it would work. Buckley rolled left, held the ball until he was hit, and pitched it to Hooks, who went over untouched.

Buckley, a slightly built, quiet economics major, couldn't quite believe it when he learned of his selection. His mouth dropped open, and it took a while for him to say, "It really surprised me. That's quite an honor."

Because of his size—he stands six feet and weighed only 155 lbs. in high school—Buckley was sought by only a few schools, including Kent St. and Miami of Ohio.

He and brother Don went to State, where their first goal, he said, was simply to make the traveling squad. But both developed into stars as freshmen and have had escalating success since then.

For a time last year, it appeared that the brothers had made their last joint appearance on a football field. Dave suffered a detached retina in one eye in a off-the-field accident. He underwent surgery.

Despite the gloomy prognosis of the doctors, he was ready to play three months later.

Recalling the Virginia game, Dave said, "It was like nothing I've ever been in before. In a game like that you really don't have time to think about your emotions until afterwards."

The WORRY CLINIC

Why Use "Boudoir Cheesecake?"

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.
Luella wants to know why I use "boudoir cheesecake" instead of more specific language. That's an example of a euphemism, like that of Ralph McGill, as outlined below. Writers and advertisers often call it "feeling tone."
CASE B-669: Luella G., aged 23, is a new bride.
"Dr. Crane," she began, "my husband and I have both read your columns faithfully since we were in high school.
"In fact, we used your famous 'Tests for Sweethearts' when we first started dating.
"And also sent for your sex booklets after we got married.
"But I notice that in your newspaper column you use the general term 'boudoir cheesecake' instead of offering more specific suggestions about bedroom romancing.
"Why do you generalize with that 'boudoir cheesecake' phrase?"

Euphemisms
This "Worry Clinic" actually pioneered the frank medico-psychological counseling to prevent divorce.
In fact, back in those days even such innocent phrases as the "opposite sex" were often blue-penciled by editors as being salacious and too frank!
They shied away even from a scientific use of the word "sex," though rape cases were often splurged on Page One.
Five years before the Chicago TRIBUNE really shattered the old taboo about printing sexual terms, the "Worry Clinic" was offering discreet but very helpful advice on marital psychology.
The TRIBUNE finally headlined and gleefully boasted about having the courage to print the word "syphilis."

But this was 5 years after the "Worry Clinic" had cautioned teen-agers against promiscuity and cited venereal diseases as a tragic aftermath thereof.
Indeed, several older and prudish editors actually cancelled this column, just because I stated that "Divorce usually starts in the bedroom."
[But that was a form of "euphemism" (sweet) way of saying something bitter], as is my frequent use of "erotic calories" and "boudoir cheesecake" to avoid employing vulgar 4-letter words.
Previously, I have shown the apt example of a euphemism to describe an "old cow," as in the phrase "A bovine maiden of 16 summers."
But one of the most deft examples of a euphemism was expressed by Ralph McGill, former editor of the Atlanta CONSTITUTION.
He said a socialite lady hired a professor of genealogy to look up her family tree.
Alas, one of her grandfathers was found to have been electrocuted in New York's Sing Sing prison.
Shocked and alarmed at this disgraceful blotch on her ancestry, the lady begged the professor to camouflage her grandfather's case so it wouldn't disgrace her present social status.
And the professor rose to the occasion beautifully, for he made this euphemistic entry regarding that black sheep:
"Your grandfather occupied the Chair of Applied Electricity in one of America's best known institutions," the genealogist wrote.
"He was also very much attached to his position that he literally died in the harness!"

If any of you readers have a better example of a euphemism, I'd relish hearing it!
Ralph McGill's example should be stressed in every School of Journalism!
In my college textbook "Psychology Applied," I discuss this matter of euphemisms at more length under the heading of what advertisers call "feeling tone."
Sometimes the use of a single word that is off-color (non-euphemistic), may ruin an otherwise splendid first impression and thus prevent the sale of an insurance policy, an automobile, or even nullify a marriage proposal!
So send for my booklet "How to Write Salable Copy," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — The ABC television network held a meet-the-press powwow the other day to show off the stars of its new "AM America" morning program, which starts Jan. 6. It also emitted an announcement.
The announcement was that Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., who isn't seeking re-election, and former U.S. Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson will appear as "guest contributors" on the show once every other week.

ABC already has said former New York Mayor John Lindsay also will be a guest commentator on the show, but on a once-a-week basis.
The stars of the two-hour show — Bill Beutel of WABC-TV here, Stephanie Edwards of KABC-TV in Los Angeles and Bob Kennedy of WLS-TV in Chicago — spoke, among other things, of their hopes for the show's success.

Miss Edwards, who for several years has co-hosted a local morning program on KABC, sought to quash rumors she might play the trombone — which she played in high school — on the new network show.
She said that would be silly and besides she isn't in shape.
She also said she finds it embarrassing when someone asks if she thinks she'll be better than Barbara Walters of NBC's durable "Today" show. That also is silly, she said.
Sally Quinn was among the gaggle of scribes taking all this down.
Miss Quinn faced the same will-you-beat-Walters nonsense in August 1973, when she signed to co-host the "CBS Morning News," only to leave in January and return to reporting for the Washington Post.

All ABC gets out of him is a sardonic, "To what do I owe the honor of this visit?" But the segment is interesting, if only as a curiosity piece that shows Agnew in private life and in stoic, solitary silence when the cameras are rolling.
The show also has longer segments on world hunger and White House photographer David Kennerly, among other subjects.

Believe They've Found The Right Combination

By CHRISTOPHER CABOT
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Cal Smith and writer Don Wayne think they've found the right combination.

Members of the Country Music Association apparently think so, too, for Monday night the hit song "Country Bumpkin" netted each man a prized CMA award.
Smith took home the trophy for single of the year and Wayne won the song of the year award.
"It seems like we've found a pretty good combination, the two of us," Smith said shortly after Monday night's CMA awards show. "I can't say how great a writer I think Don is. 'Country Bumpkin' was just perfect for me."

Smith currently is back in the country music charts with the song, "Between Lust and Watching TV," which was not written by Wayne.
"But my next single is already in the works," Smith is quick to point out. "Don wrote it and its called 'It's Time to Pay the Fiddler.'"
"Don doesn't know this yet, but I plan to make my next album a tribute to him."
Smith, 44, has been a steady producer in country music since the early '60s. His first big career break was as a featured vocalist in Ernest Tubb's Texas Troubadours.
In 1971 Smith's career began to blossom when "I've Found Someone of My Own," was quickly followed by "The Lord Knows I'm Drinkin'."
"I owe it all to Ernest Tubb," Smith said as he accepted his award. "He starts it all off for me. God bless Ernest Tubb."

During the 1974 World Pairs Olympiad, the International Bridge Press Association, at its annual meeting, presented Omar Sharif with its "Sportsman of the Year" award. There could not have been a better choice. Sharif's graciousness and enthusiasm have become a byword wherever he plays. Here is a case in point, from a rubber bridge played in Paris some years ago.
Sharif held the South cards, and became declarer at a contract of three no trump after a straightforward auction, though North's raise to game was slightly aggressive. West, the late French internationalist Georges Theron, led his fourth-best heart, and East's jack was taken by declarer's king.
With only four tricks in top cards, Sharif had to establish his long club suit as a source of tricks, so at trick two, he led a low club. Theron grabbed the ace of clubs and returned the queen of hearts! This brilliant defensive play forced declarer to concede. He was presented with an extra trick in the form of dummy's ten of hearts, but there was no way to run his clubs—the high club in dummy blocked the suit, and Theron held the ace of diamonds over the king, so there was now no way for declarer to get back to his hand.

Note that the play to tricks two and three must go exactly as they did if declarer is to be beaten. If Theron does not win the first club, Sharif continues with clubs, then after setting up a diamond trick, the ace of hearts serves as an entry to cash the good clubs. And if Theron does not return the queen of hearts, Sharif will have time to clear the clubs while still holding the heart entry.
Now this game was not being played for pennies, and at the current price of copper, the number of pennies Sharif lost on this deal would total up. Yet Sharif was the first to congratulate Theron on his fine play, and reported this deal so that Theron's brilliance received the credit it deserved.

Smuggling Of Cigarettes Is Big Business

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina top law enforcement officials say they are doing as much as they can to stop cigarette smuggling. But they admit their efforts haven't been good enough.

Both U.S. Atty. Thomas McNamara and State Bureau of Investigation Director Charles Dunn say new laws are needed if North Carolina wants to stop the massive flow of cigarettes from the state.

Since cigarette taxes started climbing in several Northern states around 1966, the smuggling business has grown. State revenue officials now estimate that one million packs of cigarettes per day leave North Carolina for states with higher tax rates.

The economics of the cigarette smuggling business are simple. A pack of cigarettes is taxed two cents in North Carolina, where tobacco is a staple of both agriculture and industry.

In New York City, taxes per pack run as high as 24 cents, depending on nicotine content. An entrepreneur willing to transport large quantities northward and evade New York taxes can make a substantial profit.

The problem could be solved if the tax on cigarettes were the same in each state. But New York and other northern states are as unwilling to lower their levies as North Carolina is to raise them.

As long as people in the high tax states are willing to buy and suppliers are willing to sell, police will have a problem stopping the trade.

There are two types of cigarette smuggling — over the road and through the mails.

North Carolinians who mail cigarettes to other states are required by the federal Jenkins Act to report the name and address of the purchaser to taxing authorities in the buyer's home state. They rarely do.

McNamara said enforcing the Jenkins Act has been futile. It carries only misdemeanor penalties; the fines assessed for violations are not enough to deter the mail order suppliers.

He has tried to get civil injunctions against the mail-order firms. But, McNamara said, the firms merely change their names or make technical changes in their ownership to evade the injunctions.

Now, McNamara is engaged with postal authorities and other federal officials in "Operation Puff," a broad-based effort to stop the flow of cigarettes through the mail.

He has obtained indictments charging mail fraud, a felony, against mail order suppliers. McNamara contends that mail order suppliers are defrauding the recipients of the cigarettes by not advising them to pay state taxes and defrauding the high tax states with intent to evade taxes.

McNamara has tried one such case. U.S. District Judge John Larkins has not rendered a decision. If his verdict is favorable to the prosecutor, McNamara believes it will be easier to stop the mail-order flow.

But although there are currently more than 100 mail-order firms in the state, McNamara, Dunn and others feel that over-the-road smuggling is responsible for the bulk of the traffic.

It is not illegal in North Carolina for a man to drive a truck up to a cigarette seller, load it with cigarettes, and drive it away, as long as the two-cent state tax is paid.

Illegality starts when the truck crosses a state line. Dunn said the only thing the State Bureau of Investigation (SBI) can do to stop the traffic is pass along any intelligence it gathers to colleagues in other states.

Dunn said the SBI has a few agents working in its organized crime unit who work with out-of-state agents in attempting to keep tabs on large shipments.

But the Highway Patrol has no special detachment against smugglers. Gov. Jim Holshouser recently asked the two agencies to come up with some plans to deter the trade, but they have done nothing as yet.

The suppliers themselves are not about to hurt the trade. One of them, Mack Judge of Whitakers, has told a New York grand jury, "I think it is better I don't know who they are. You don't want to take a man's name and turn it in. Somebody would shoot you."

Some local police departments have made special efforts to make it difficult for smugglers to operate by keeping the supply houses under surveillance and reporting any large shipments.

But in Weldon, on Interstate 95 south of the Virginia border, Chief James R. Vaughan says he will not interfere. "We would be doing a disservice to these people (local sellers) who are, as I say, legal businessmen. It would dry up their business."

Manufacturers and wholesalers, Dunn said, have been approached by Northern states with requests to cut off sales to smuggler suppliers. But, he said, they are unwilling to stop such a lucrative and legal practice.

The smuggling traffic is lucrative — at least superficially — for North Carolina state government as well. Revenue Secretary J. Howard Coble estimates about one-third of the state's $20 million annual cigarette-tax revenues come from cigarettes bought for out-of-state consumption.

But there is a growing fear that permitting the cigarette trade to flourish will allow organized crime to gain a foothold in the state.

A 1973 New York legislative investigation reported that "although organized criminals were not among the first into the bootlegging field, once in, they moved fast to make up for lost time."

"Organized crime had the cash, personnel and necessary contacts to insure the success of its operations."

The report identified several reputed Mafia members as kingpins in the trade.

One bootlegger arrested in New York, Anthony Granata, was identified as a member of the Joseph Colombo "family." Confiscated records showed that in an eight month period, Granata's operation had smuggled 1.1 million cartons of cigarettes into New York.

Dunn said there is increasing evidence that organized criminals are beginning to make the cigarette traffic a two-way trade, bringing drugs and other contraband into the state with them and taking cigarettes out. He also expressed fears that organized crime might find it convenient to buy into the cigarette distribution business to "eliminate the middleman."

Dunn said there was no hard evidence as yet to confirm his fears. But he said, "The people involved in criminal activities in New York are not the types to shy away from breaking the law down here."

He said the situation might improve if courts in Northern states began handing stiffer sentences to offenders they do convict. "Until recently, they've been slapping them on the wrist," he said.

The situation is changing, Dunn said. Perhaps it is because the high tax states are losing so much money. New York Gov. Malcolm Wilson has estimated that the state and New York City lose $85 million per year because of untaxed cigarettes.

North Carolina Atty. Gen. James Carson has said he will ask the 1975 legislature for a law to curb smuggling. Carson said it would probably impose a limit of about 50 cartons per week on the amount an individual could buy.

A similar measure was passed in 1969 by the state Senate but killed in the state House.

Two Banks Robbed

By The Associated Press
Banks in widely separated areas of North Carolina were robbed Tuesday and in both instances the bandits made their getaway with an undetermined amount of money.

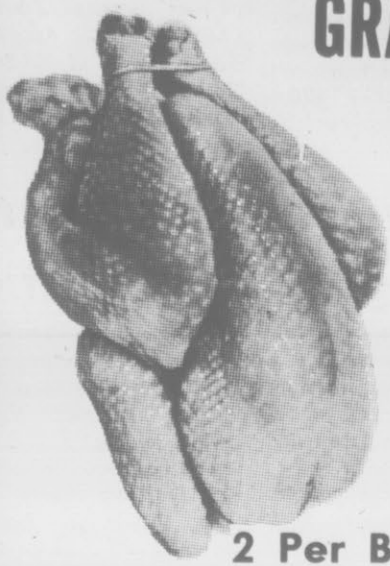

Also in both instances, a Northwestern Bank was the victim as three armed men held up the Summit Avenue branch in Greensboro and two men, also armed, held up the bank's Andrews institution in the far western part of the state.

The robberies brought to 58 the number of bank holdups in North Carolina thus far this year.

The Greensboro bandits fled with the aid of at least two getaway cars left at strategic points, switching from one to the other. They also disabled a pursuing police car, putting a dozen bullet holes in it. The officer was unhurt.

Law Schools Need Additional Study, Jenkins Comments

Dr. Leo Jenkins says that the question of whether the state needs additional law schools is one that needs continued study. The chancellor of East Carolina University, commenting on a report released this week by the Research Triangle Institute which concluded that there is no need to increase the capacity of current law institutions in the state, asserted, "I think this is a problem that will need continued study in North Carolina for a long time."

Dr. Jenkins pointed out, "The fact remains that there are many young qualified people in North Carolina who are not getting the opportunity" to attend law school.

"This is a situation that should not continue," he contended. The RTI study, prepared for the University of North Carolina Board of Governors, concluded that North Carolina will need to turn out some 300 lawyers each year between now and 1980. The report noted that 450 admissions each year are expected to the state Bar.

The recommendations were made in spite of the fact that law schools at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, North Carolina Central University, Duke and Wake Forest turn down a majority of their applicants.

The study said that the state could have a surplus of lawyers by 1980 because of an anticipated national surplus.

The Board of Governors commissioned the study last summer after requests by both ECU and UNC-Charlotte for law schools. A board subcommittee will consider the report this Friday and Saturday and the Board of Governors will take up the law school question on Nov. 15.

N.C. News Briefs

Major Desegregation Test

CHAPEL HILL (AP)—University of North Carolina officials expect the first major test of their new desegregation plan to come on the issue of veterinary education.

UNC Vice President John Sanders says two schools have indicated an interest in developing a veterinary school—N.C. State in Raleigh and N.C. A&T in Greensboro.

The university Board of Governors will decide before the 1975 General Assembly convenes whether to recommend a veterinary school for either campus.

It may recommend that neither school develop one. The Southern Regional Education Board has recommended that North Carolina and Virginia share a school. Virginia Polytechnic Institute has begun planning a school with funds from the Virginia legislature.

Defends "Curious Eyes"

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Two teachers have testified that a short-story anthology called "Curious Eye" has exceptional literary value in a textbook dispute in the New Hanover County schools.

New Hanover County Sheriff H.G. Grohman is seeking to have the book declared obscene and banned from use in the schools. He testified against the book Monday.

Grohman's testimony was rebutted Tuesday by Mrs. Mildred Medlin, an English teacher in the school system for 29 years.

She said the book was available to advanced juniors and seniors in 1973-74 until a student complained about the language in some of the stories. It was then withdrawn.

Tobacco Prices Higher

By The Associated Press

Flue-cured tobacco prices were generally higher Tuesday as auction sales reopened on markets in the Carolinas and Virginia.

Price averages rose $.47 on the Old and Middle Belts, where 7,911,729 lbs. were sold at an average $112.59. Season totals became 273,609,937 lbs. at $105.27.

The average on the Eastern Belt rose $.22 to $113.50 on volume of 8,157,517 lbs. Season totals reached 350,727,760 lbs. at an average $105.06.

South Carolina and Border North Carolina sales averages declined $.72 to $110.31 on volume of 4,242,991 lbs. Season sales reached 275,085,251 lbs. at an average $103.69.

Concert In Jeopardy

RALEIGH (AP)—A scheduled concert at the state fair Sunday with country and western singer Roy Clark and the North Carolina Symphony has been placed in jeopardy by a labor dispute.

Symphony musicians have given notice that they intend to strike at the midnight Saturday unless progress is made in current contract negotiations, scheduled to resume Thursday.

The walkout, if it continued, would disrupt the concert schedule starting October 22.

Cellist John McClellan, the musicians' spokesman, said Tuesday he was confident that the points at issue could be worked out.

Inland Dream Yacht

MOUNT PLEASANT, N.C. (AP)—A 46-year-old construction foreman is building his lifelong dream, a yacht to sail the seas with his family.

In his spare time during the last two and a half years, Doug Wiley has been working on the 64-foot yacht, which will be christened "The Lady Frances," in honor of his wife. He has it about half completed.

Wiley, who also has two children, is building the Lady Frances in his front yard near Mount Pleasant, 180 miles from the ocean.

Whites Given Preference

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Whites will be given preference over blacks in public housing projects in Charlotte, in an attempt to integrate the facilities more fully.

The city's housing authority adopted the new policy Tuesday after noting that 95 per cent of the tenants in its 3,127 units are black.

To Close Plants

By The Associated Press

Two of North Carolina's major textile manufacturers will shut down five plants each for a week, beginning Monday, because of market conditions.

The temporary shutdowns announced Tuesday by Fieldcrest Mills and the Burlington House Division of Burlington Industries will idle 4,300 workers without pay.

The closings are among the latest in cutbacks by textile firms in the last few weeks. They will affect 2,800 workers at Fieldcrest Mills in Eden, N.C., and Fieldale, Va., and 1,500 at Burlington House plants in Alamance and Caswell counties in North Carolina.

The plants make fabrics for draperies, bedspreads, sheets, blankets and towels.

Meanwhile, two other North Carolina plants not in the textile field have announced they will furlough workers for an unspecified time. This will affect 120 workers at the Westinghouse meter plant in Raleigh and 115 at the Sylvania television and record-player plant in Smithfield.

Mortgage rates are terribly high, and maybe they'll drop a bit if you wait. But the cost of houses is rising, so the higher price you might have to pay if you wait could offset any saving you get from a lower interest rate on the mortgage. Weigh that point when deciding and let us tell you about our new trade in program if you need that larger home.

Rockefeller Asks For Immediate Recall

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nelson A. Rockefeller has asked to be recalled immediately by two congressional committees considering his nomination as vice president so he can testify about controversial gifts and a 1970 campaign book. There was no immediate indication, however, that either the Senate Rules Committee or the House Judiciary Committee was about to call Rockefeller for questioning soon.

The former New York governor complained Tuesday that "my nomination is being tried in the press and not before the appropriate committees of Congress, without my having the opportunity to present all the facts."

"This is being done on the basis of selective leaks from my income tax returns and gift tax returns, all of which were submitted to the committees in confidence," Rockefeller said in a statement.

Meanwhile, President Ford expressed complete faith in the integrity of Rockefeller and said the vice president-designate has his complete support.

Aides to Rockefeller said he telephoned Rules Committee Chairman Howard W. Cannon in Las Vegas and House Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr. in Washington on Tuesday. He urged Cannon to reconvene the Senate hearings tomorrow (Wednesday) morning if possible, and certainly before the end of the week, aides said.

The furor over Rockefeller's nomination grew out of nearly $2 million he gave in gifts to political associates and friends and a derogatory campaign biography about his 1970 gubernatorial opponent, former Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg. The book had been secretly financed by the former governor's brother, Laurance Rockefeller.

Laurance Rockefeller also acknowledged Tuesday that he urged former President Richard M. Nixon to approve Eastern Airlines' acquisition of Caribair in 1972. Nixon overruled the Civil Aeronautics Board in the fall of 1972 and again in February 1973 and allowed Eastern to acquire the Puerto Rico-based airline.

Laurance Rockefeller denied the request had any connection with the Rockefeller family's $200,000 contribution to Nixon's re-election campaign. The New York Times said the House Judiciary Committee plans to investigate whether there is any connection between the campaign contributions and Nixon's reversal of the CAB ruling. The probe would be in connection with Nelson Rockefeller's nomination.

Treasury Removes Limit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Small investors will be given another chance to put their savings into government securities as a result of a Treasury Department decision removing a $10,000 minimum purchase limit.

The Treasury said Tuesday that investments as small as $1,000 will be accepted at an auction scheduled for Oct. 23 to sell $1 billion of Treasury notes with a 4½-year term. The interest rate for the notes will be determined solely on the basis of bids submitted at the auction, the Treasury said.

The government hiked the minimum purchase to $10,000 last month after droves of small investors turned out for a sale of 9.5 per cent notes sold in August at a $1,000 minimum.

Registration Thursday At Regional Center

Registration begins at 8:30 Thursday morning at the new Willis Regional Development Center at East Carolina University for the "Pockets of Excellence" conference culminating a two years series of studies.

Advance registration indicates a wide, representative attendance for the daylong conference, first to be held in the new RDI center at ECU. The program includes reports on nine separate study projects conducted in various parts of the world in a wide-ranging search for "pockets of excellence" which might be applicable to situations, conditions and resources located in eastern North Carolina.

ECU Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins, originator of the "Pockets of Excellence" program will open the conference with an overall report. Dr. John D. Ebbs, Professor of English and program coordinator, will close with a discussion of future prospects for the "Pockets of Excellence" project.

Ayden Approves Taxi Franchise

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer
AYDEN—The Ayden Town Board of Commissioners Monday night approved a franchise for the operation of a taxi service in Ayden.

A public hearing was held concerning the issuance of a taxi cab franchise to James Pridgen and James Lamb under the name of City Cab Company.

The board, after checking the necessary documents and hearing no opposition to the matter, agreed to issue the franchise and stated that the new company operate no more than three taxi cabs within the town of Ayden.

The board concurred in the election of Till Chauncey as fire chief for the Ayden Fire Department. He will fill the unexpired term of Charlie Tripp who resigned as chief.

Mayor Ross Persinger was authorized to meet with Bill Popajohn and Associates to work on a retirement or pension plan for the town of Ayden employees.

J.J. Brown, Carl Speight and Don Russell were named to a committee to work with Popajohn on a plan.

The board passed an ordinance to place stop signs on Terrace Drive and Montague Avenue at Fourth and Fifth Streets intersections.

The board also passed an ordinance prohibiting parking at all times on W. Third Street 300 feet west from Verna Avenue and 200 feet east from Short Street.

Since the above area is a state road, Town Manager Don Russell was authorized to send a copy of the ordinance to the State Highway Commission for concurrence and for the necessary signs if approved.

Board members adopted a preliminary assessment resolution ordering curb and gutter improvements on Montague Avenue between Sixth and Seventh Streets and set Nov. 11 as the date for a public hearing to discuss the resolution.

The board passed a resolution endorsing the continuation of revenue sharing. Russell was instructed to send copies of the resolution to all candidates running for the House and Senate recommending that they also endorse the program.

A public hearing to reconsider the issuance of a special use permit to allow a self-service gas station to be located at the corner of W. Third Street and Laurinburg Street will be held Nov. 11.

A request from Charlie Hardee of Quick Fill, Inc., that the station be located at the corner of W. Third and Laurinburg Streets, was denied by the board of commissioners last month. The request was also denied by the Ayden Planning Board earlier.

Hardee wrote the board and asked that the board reconsider its decision from last month.

An ordinance was passed requiring windshield license decals to be placed on all vehicles effective January 1.

The decals will replace the metal license tags used in the past.

Reappointments and appointments made to various boards include:

—Johnnie Williams reappointed to three year term on the Recreation Commission; Mrs. J. R. Lowry was appointed to a three year term on the Recreation Commission;

—J. Odell McLawhorn and Heber Braxton Jr. were appointed to three year terms on the Planning Board:

—Dr. Elliott Dixon, Billy Nobles, Mac Edwards, Walter Lee Stroud, Kenneth Branch and Chester Stox were reappointed to one-year terms to Ayden Industries, Inc. New members named to Ayden Industries, Inc., include J. J. Brown, Willis Manning and Mrs. C. I. Westbrook.

Correction

The talks by child psychologist Dr. Louise Bates Ames were Thursday at 11:30 a.m. and at 8 p.m., rather than today and tonight, as was reported in yesterday's Daily Reflector. They will be held in the auditorium of the Belk Allied Health Building on Charles Street here.

Pipeline May Ruin Isolated Wilderness Village

EDITOR'S NOTE — The 10 residents of Wiseman, Alaska, cherish their little hamlet's wilderness isolation. But fate has tricked them. The Alaska pipeline will cross their doorstep.

By ROBERT W. WELLER
Associated Press Writer
WISEMAN, ALASKA (AP) — Civilization has touched this tiny hamlet, leaving its handful of residents worried and angry. The 25 aged cabins, cupped in a valley surrounded by mountains, seem to blend with the land, at peace with nature. Some of the roofs sag. Most were built during the Gold Rush days near the turn of the century. In those days Wiseman, named after an itinerant prospector, boasted 100 residents and 10 prostitutes. Now there are just 10 residents, and only four live here through the cruel winter when the bottom drops out of the thermometer, sometimes reaching ing 60 degrees below zero. This hamlet is 75 miles north of the Arctic circle.

The fulltime residents include Mrs. Florence Jonas, a 76-year-old Eskimo who came here as a child, and prospector Harry Leonard, also 76. The other two permanent residents are Ross Brockman, a vegetarian in his 70s, who sought Wiseman's climate to cure a lung ailment, and Charlie Breck, 58, former prospector. Brockman and Breck have summer gardens which produce giant vegetables under the ever-present Arctic sun; enough food for both summer and winter.

The six others are Jim Johnson, 52, a prospector and salmon fisherman who boasts he's only had to work four of his 18 years in Alaska, and the five members of the Rick Reakoff family. Reakoff is a big game hunter and guide. The Reakoffs and Johnson leave Wiseman when winter sets in, returning to Fairbanks 200 miles to the south.

The streets in summer are just brown streaks through the willows and weeds. There's no electricity, no telephone. Until July, you could reach Wiseman only by air or on foot, wading across a nearby river.

Fresh food comes only from the village gardens, and meat and fish are hung to dry in bear-proof caches built on stilts.

The handful of people in Wiseman cherish their simple, wilderness life. But fate has played them a trick. Civilization has followed them to the middle of nowhere, to Wiseman's doorstep.

Now the rumble of giant earth-movers shatters the sleepy quiet. Construction workers, hundreds of them, are carving out a haul road to parallel the trans-Alaska pipeline — the largest private construction project ever undertaken by man, a $5 billion pipeline to carry crude oil from Prudhoe Bay north of here to the Gulf of Alaska.

"It's just like the main drag to Fairbanks," sighs June Reakoff.

And Charlie Breck believes the pipeline crews are bulldozing Wiseman's epitaph into the permafrost.

"There won't be no more Wiseman," he mutters.

Although the prospectors here have filed claims for their mining sites, land in the village can't by law be claimed until it has been surveyed.

Some Wisemanites fear they might lose their land when the pipeline road opens up the North. The Arctic will be opened when a bridge is completed over the Yukon River to the south, providing a highway link for the first time from southcentral population centers to the Arctic Ocean at Prudhoe Bay.

The residents of Wiseman take threats to their claims, imagined or otherwise, quite seriously. Harry Leonard, the prospector who has spent 40 winters here, parked a tractor on the pipeline road this summer, blocking construction work for six hours.

He claimed the road was infringing on one of his mineral claims and state troopers were used to get him to leave.

The next day, he walked into a nearby pipeline construction camp, one of 12 that eventually will house about 14,000 workmen, brandishing a gun and ordering the road crews to leave. The matter was settled informally, typical of bush justice.

The road, and all that it implies, is the number one irritant. "If they would build a pipeline and just go away, that would be okay," Mrs. Reakoff said.

The road was just an ominous cloud on the horizon for five years before the pipeline was approved. Last July 12, the cloud burst. That night, bulldozers from the Coldfoot pipeline camp reached a rise overlooking the shallow Middle Fork of the Koyukuk river, directly across from the village.

Less than a mile away, the cats and dozers can be seen and heard in Wiseman. The sights and sounds seem strangely out of place here. They assault the senses.

NFO Wants To Unite Farmers

By CHARLES ROBERTS
Associated Press Writer

FAYETTE, Iowa (AP) — The head of the National Farmers Organization wants to unite farmers who produce 30 percent of America's food. He also wants to set cattle, hog and dairy prices which buyers would have to meet.

"It's just as patriotic for farmers to price their products as for manufacturers to price their products and labor to strike," Oren Lee Staley told about 300 farmers here Monday.

If buyers balk at the farmer set prices, "then there will be an automatic holding action when members will be advised to hold their production on the farm until those prices are met," Staley warned.

"It would be foolish for cattle and hog producers and dairy producers to continue to take these (current) prices," said Staley.

The meeting was one of 160 similar sessions across the nation Monday night.

The threat of a holding action comes at a time when agriculture experts predict lower yields in basic crops because of a difficult growing season in the nation's breadbasket.

Through much of the Midwest this year, rains washed away spring plantings, summer sun and drought conditions baked replanted crops and early frost nipped immature corn and soybeans.

That Great Vanilla Flavor

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

My earliest memory goes back to dinner at my grandmother's house climaxed by creamy, homemade, ivory-hued ice cream dotted with black specks that alarmed me the first time I saw them. My grandmother told me with some asperity that they were straight from the vanilla bean and gave the ice cream its true vanilla flavor.

In school I learned that the explorer Hernan Cortes discovered vanilla during the 15th century when he quaffed a cup of hot chocolate at the court of Montezuma. The Aztec Indians made this pungent beverage from the beans of the cacao tree, combined with bean pods the Spaniards named vainilla.

The aromatic vanilla bean is the fruit of a lovely, lemon-yellow orchid that has no odor itself. I'm told the bean has virtually no scent or flavor either, until it is dried and cured.

For three centuries after Cortes stumbled onto it, vanilla remained a luxury within reach of only affluent Europeans and Americans, since it was believed that only the Mexican Indians could grow the orchid and make it bear fruit.

Then a French botanist discovered that the orchid could be pollinated by a special species of bee native to Mexico. Madagascar eventually became the main center for raising the orchid, which grows on a coarse vine that requires about three years of pampering before it bears fruit.

Vanilla came into its own with the invention of ice cream in the 17th century. Today it is three times as popular as any other flavor. In fact, nearly 250 million gallons of vanilla ice cream find their way into cones, sundaes, sodas and shakes. Vanilla also lends sweetness to cake, cookies and puddings. I have found that a drop of vanilla even gives a lift to a Tom Collins.

Whole vanilla beans can be used by those who cherish great grandmother's desserts, but the extract is used in most modern recipes.

Here is a liqueur sauce that in my opinion can transform a dish of ice cream or pudding into an epicurean treat.

VANILLA-COFFEE LIQUEUR.
1½ cups brown sugar, firmly packed
1 cup granulated sugar
2 cups water
½ cup instant coffee powder
3 cups vodka
2 tablespoons pure vanilla extract

Combine sugars with water. Bring to boil and boil for 5 minutes. Slowly stir in coffee powder. Cool. Pour into jug or jar. Add vodka and vanilla. Mix thoroughly. Cover and let stand at least 2 weeks. Serve over ice cream or pudding or as flavoring for milk drinks. Yields about 5 cups.

The marble dome on Rhode Island's state capitol building was the first such dome in the United States. The dome was finished in 1900.

Youthful Upbeat On Electronic Music

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — What do switched-on teens, 6-year-old composers and third-grade jazz buffs have in common?

They're all amateur music-makers, for one thing. And they're all involved in an upbeat sort of music education that's sweeping American schools.

There are electronic music courses where students tinker with a synthesizer, classes in which students compose, then perform, their own songs, and schools where music is in tune with the entire academic curriculum.

A recent study by the American Music conference (AMC) here found a diverse sampling of innovative school music programs across the country — from individual courses in small-town schools to entire school systems in major metropolitan areas.

The new look in music is substantiated by statistics which indicate that 30 per cent of the elementary schools and 52 per cent of the high schools polled in a recent national survey plan to expand music programs.

The programs cited by the AMC vary in scope, format and instruction methods, but all rely on a creative teacher, all are child-oriented and all have encouraged students to view music as an integral part of their lives.

Musical math, noteworthy history and tuned-in science classes are not at all unusual in schools where music has been integrated into the entire curriculum.

In 12 Columbus, Ohio, elementary schools an Arts Impact Program has done just that.

Originally funded by the federal government, the year-long program now involves some 5,700 students and 190 faculty members. Instead of a separate class period for the subject, music is related to every aspect of academics, from math to gym. History students may learn the music of the era they're studying; art students may base their paintings on musical works. Librettos and stories behind operas may relate to poetry, geography, history, composition or the language arts.

This thematic thrust is very much in evidence at two Berkeley, Calif., lab schools. Jazz and music education there begins in kindergarten and continues through third grade, giving the instrumental program, begun in the fourth grade, a solid base.

Jazz is also related to all other subjects. In language classes, students may analyze the meaning of song lyrics; in math, they may discuss set theory and meter; students in the science class may study the concepts of sound.

By the time a student completes third grade, he knows the fundamentals of reading music, is able to write a few bars and has had such pre-instrumental experience as breathing exercises and fingering.

At New York's Columbia Grammar and Preparatory

School, first through sixth graders inject play and adventure into writing their own songs, which they later perform, direct and produce in musical numbers.

During the first grade, students jointly compose their first song, learn to read it from notes and play it on such instruments as the xylophone, the metallophone and the glockenspiel. They also learn the fundamentals of note reading, harmony, rhythm and structure.

During second and third grade, students begin to write and direct staged musical productions. By the fourth grade, they're introduced to the study of orchestral instruments and part-time specialists visit the school to teach violin, cello, flute and clarinet.

Composition is also making an impact on the music curriculum at Evanston, Ill., Township High School, where vocalists and instrumentalists meet twice a day to compose, sing and play their instruments. The group uses only original music — written by members, by students in the school's composition classes or by the music faculty.

At Ketcham High School in Wappingers Falls, N.Y., more than 170 students are using the school's synthesizer — an electronic wonder that can duplicate the voices of a dozen instruments and create unusual, often "weird" sound effects. Upper grade math students may use the synthesizer in connection with a unit in calculus on the mathematics of harmonics; in physics, students will use an oscilloscope hooked up to the synthesizer to produce a visual record of the structure of various sounds and effects.

Laos Agreement May Be Working

By FREDERICK H. MARKS
VIENTIANE (UPI) — It was an improbable scene.

Lined up together at the village of Phone Savang, deep inside pro-Communist Pathet Lao territory, was a Russian T47 Tank, a gleaming American-produced C123 troop transport plane — with "Air America" stenciled on the side — and about 40 Thai prisoners of war, just released by the Communists, who were digging and pushing at the plane.

It was the middle of September, when Communists and rightists in Laos were in the midst of exchanging POWs. The C123, flown to Phone Savang on the Plain of Jars to ferry the prisoners to freedom, had sunk into the grassy runway on landing. The Pathet Lao produced the Russian tank to assist in pulling the plane free, but that didn't work. When the Thais were freed, they lent a hand, and the combination of the tank and the Thai POWs—who were battling each other just 18 months ago—did the trick. The plane was pulled free.

Maybe, the war in Laos is really over.

The coalition government has been functioning for nearly six months now, and while the country is burdened with problems, at least the coalition still exists. Two earlier attempts (in 1957 and 1962) failed when the rightists and the Communists just couldn't work together.

The current prognosis by diplomats in Vientiane is bright. The diplomats are elated at the conciliatory attitude on both sides of the new government.

"These folks are just tired of fighting each other," U.S. Ambassador Charles R. Whitehouse said. "There is a recognition by both sides that they must work together."

A British diplomat said: "They (the Communists and rightists) know, of course, that this is their last chance. They have no choice. Their only alternative is war and everyone here has had too much of that."

Ironically, there is a consensus that the severe heart attack suffered by neutralist Prime Minister Souvanna Phouma in July may have been a blessing in disguise.

"The prime minister was a crutch," one ranking member on the rightist side said. "As long as he was around to negotiate and compromise between the two sides, there was a tendency to depend too much on him. Now that he is in France recuperating, the members of the coalition have to deal directly with each other. I think we are learning to trust each other."

Despite the optimism, the coalition government still faces problems.

The biggest, perhaps, is the economy. "Laos is an economic basket case," one diplomat said. The country is landlocked, and as such, depends on overland delivery, mostly through Thailand, of its essential imports. Like other countries, inflation is soaring, and the government is short of revenue.

The United States has cut back its aid and, not surprisingly, the coalition government has turned to North Vietnam for assistance. A Laotian trade delegation led by Soth Petrasay, a ranking Pathet Lao who is now Minister of Economy and Planning, has just won a $4 million economic aid agreement from Hanoi.

The deteriorating economic situation has led to an outbreak of strikes, unheard of during the war, which has further hampered government attempts to swing the economy around.

Beyond the economy, both the rightists and the Communists are digging in for prolonged political infighting, which will ultimately end in elections, though no one expects voting to take place for at least three years.

The Communists, in the early months of the coalition, tried to use their highly disciplined political muscle, but Souvanna Phouma used his influence to keep them reasonably in line. And now that the initial feeling out period is over, the Vientiane side has begun to organize itself. At least four political parties among the rightists and neutralists have begun serious lobbying for grass roots support.

Six months ago, when the coalition government was formed, one long-term resident was openly skeptical about the chances for its survival. "I defy them to make it work," he said.

It was a challenge the new coalition apparently has accepted.

Volunteer Firemen Really Work At It

By WILLIAM POOLE
DUMMERSTON, Vt. (UPI) — Dummerston's volunteer firemen don't play at being firefighters. They work at it.

As a result, they are among the best in a region noted for the skill and dedication of its volunteers.

The 53 men who belong to the Dummerston unit are farmers, businessmen, printers, electricians and holders of numerous other jobs when they are not fighting fires, participating in fund-raising events or learning the skills needed for emergencies.

Fire Chief George Duke, an officer at a bank in nearby Brattleboro, estimates each volunteer puts in a minimum of 800 to 1,000 hours a year working for the Dummerston Volunteer Department, a private corporation which charges the town only $10,000 a year for its services.

The group has purchased more than $250,000 in equipment with the town subsidy and funds raised at chicken barbecues, auctions and raffles.

Chicken barbecue sales, held weekends on Vermont's scenic Rte. 30, became so popular the state police had to order them stopped. Tourists caused traffic jams when they stopped their cars on the state highway to buy chicken cooked at roadside by the volunteer firemen.

Because of the ban on roadside barbecue sales the firefighters are catering picnics and dinners.

The money gathered by the fire department has helped turn it into a unit which has won several awards since it was formed in 1950.

The shiny, bright fire trucks of the Dummerston volunteers are always an eye-catching attraction, whether in parades or on fire calls.

"We all own and take pride in our equipment," Duke said. He added there are always some volunteer firemen taking care of equipment at both fire stations in town. The stations were built by the volunteers, but now a new one is being erected in West Dummerston by a contractor.

The Dummerston department owns and takes good care of two pumps, two tankers and a three-month old rescue unit. The tankers are a two-year-old, 1200-gallon model and a 1962 model with a capacity of 1400 gallons. The other vehicles are a four-year-old, 1,000-gallon-per-minute pumper and a 13-year-old, 500-gallon-per-minute pumper.

The volunteers are trained in all aspects of rural firefighting.

Wine Boom Levels Off

By JEANNE LESEM

UPI Food Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — A spontaneous wine boom created by consumers at the beginning of this decade is leveling off, but the industry is optimistic about the future.

For one thing, table wines have passed dessert wines in total case sales. Researchers see this as an indication that Americans are beginning to drink wine with meals fairly often.

Case purchases also are rising, compared with a few years ago when 64.7 persons questioned in a survey said they bought wine by the bottle.

But table wine sales, which doubled during the five year period beginning in 1969, dropped off 3.5 per cent during the first five months this year, compared with the same period in 1973.

The Wine Marketing Handbook, an annual publication of a New York market research firm, predicts that the wine boom will continue on its own power, although at a slower pace. They also expect it to be led, as in the past three or four years, by younger consumers.

Associate editor Dan Hecht said in an interview that wine sales were off somewhat, "at least in rate of gain, since its 1974 edition was published a few weeks ago."

"It's possible the cost of living is involved," he said.
Both Hecht and handbook research director Bernard

Appel forecast increases in table wine sales this year, but expect 1974 to end with a smaller gain than the 8.7 per cent reported for last year.

Their optimism is based on several factors including:
There has been a role reversal in buying patterns that finds older consumers emulating 18-to-34-year-olds, who now drink more wine than their elders.

As these young people grow older themselves, they and successive groups of young adults are expected to continue the pattern. The handbook editors think the situation reflects rebellion against the older generation, plus changing life styles, a desire to do "in" things.

Women also have become much more influential—both in creating occasions for serving wine and in actually selecting and buying the wine. Chain Store Age, a merchandising magazine, says supermarkets, whose dollar sales are controlled by women shoppers, accounted for one third of all wine sales last year.

Meantime, the pop wine fad has fizzled. At the height of the wine boom in the early 1970s, cold duck and other dessert and aperitif wines that experts liken to soda pop represented one third of the total business for California wine producers. But pop wines showed a 17 per cent decrease during the first six months this year.

And for the first five months of 1974, the most recent figures available show wine distribution in general down only .2 per cent from the same period last year.

Many Visitors To Expo '74

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — Latest attendance figures indicate that Spokane's Expo '74
World Fair will attract 5.5 million visitors by the time it closes on Nov. 3, or about 500,000 more than originally expected.

One of the more popular attractions has been the Burlington Northern pavilion, which has been drawing an average of better than 2,000 visitors a day for its "Portrait of a Railroad," winner of first prize in four film festivals. Another is the cable car, which offers a panoramic view of the 100-acre fair site and downtown Spokane.

Set New Record In Bed-Pushing

SYDNEY (UPI) — Twelve schoolboys and one well worn bed broke the world bed pushing record on Sept. 1.

The record attempt began a week earlier when they set off to beat the 720 mile non stop record.

They set a new world figure of 726 miles and raised $2,000 for the New South Wales Spastic Center.

The first elephant in the United States reached New York City in 1796 and was exhibited for the following 15 years at an admission price of twelve and one half cents per person.

Meanwhile, the E. and J.
Gallo Winery, in Modesto, Calif., which until now has produced only inexpensive generic wines, has just added six varietals, wines named for the grapes from which they are made. Varietals usually are more expensive than generics, but the new ones are expected to retail for about $2.00 a bottle.

California remains the nation's largest producer, with a total of 399.9 million wine gallons last year. It has added more than 200,000 new acres of vineyards since 1967, 30,000 of them in 1973.

New York state, with its 11,000 acres of vines, is the second largest domestic producer, with a 31-million gallon annual yield, and rapidly expanding production.

Nicholas Paul, president of the state's Finger Lakes Wine Growers Association, shares the view of his California competitors and industry people in general that the wine boom is leveling off. He foresees a slow, steady six per cent annual gain in U.S. wine consumption with wine eventually establishing itself as an alcoholic beverage staple.

Eight Block Street Of Dreams In Crisis

EDITOR'S NOTE — Trust, that ethereal element of human life, is sorely tested in the world of money. Today Wall Street and its workers face a crisis of trust. They still watch the ticker, and most believe, and some survive ...

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Wall Street, almost everyone is too practical to say, is eight blocks and a million dreams long. It begins at Trinity Church on Broadway where Alexander Hamilton is buried and ends at the East River, a sometime Mafia cemetery.

Wall Street is one-way, downhill, from the church to the river. But in a larger sense, Wall Street spans the nation. It reaches into pocketbooks and safe deposit boxes from Kennebunkport to San Clemente.

There are few smiles on Wall Street today. The Dow Jones averages have been falling, almost without interruption, since January, 1973.

And in the hustle of the specialists on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange, in the quiet concentration of brokerage offices, in the restrained seventh floor member's luncheon club, in the rattle-dazzle service of Eberlin's Restaurant a block away, the recurring explanation is as much political as financial.

How could the great American public have lost faith in great American institutions?

Inflation, tight money, high interest rates, Watergate credibility, a President who did the unthinkable, another who pardoned the unpardonable, all of these things weigh on the spirits of men who live with the public confidence.

The 1,366 seats on the New York Stock Exchange are selling for $66,000, against a modern high of $515,000 six years ago — and ominously the alltime high of $625,000 in 1929. There are only 514 member firms to deal with the public, the lowest number since the late 1800s.

The Dow Jones average has dropped from a high of 1,051.70 on Jan. 11, 1973, to the low 600s today, rubbing out more than $200-billion in the value of Big Board stocks alone. Seven thousand brokers have left the business.

Eugene Lampel is 52, 18 years a stock broker. His words: "Pretty horrible. I've never seen anything like it. Not for this period of time, this degree of bearishness. You can't really find words on how badly people have been hurt and how badly they feel."

Sol Ellman is 51, his income in six figures in his prime. His words: "A demoralized public and market. I've been around for 25 years and I've never seen anything like it. We've had stocks drop 50, 60, 80 per cent in price. To use a cliché, it's basically a credibility gap. The people just don't believe."

Steve Unger is 31, three years on Wall Street's firing line, an emigre from the oil industry, now an ardent disciple of total asset handling. His words:

"Discouraged? Well there are times of course when everything looks black. But I'm not a quitter. I sort of put it in the back of my mind and go ahead ... If you look back you're sunk."

Steven Kraus, a vice president of Paine, Webber, Jackson and Curtis, says, "The purchase of common stocks is really a bet on the future ... You're talking about confidence factors, credibility factors ... Now a few weeks ago we figured Watergate was a dead issue. We had a new President, looked to be Middle Western, square shooter, Boy Scout type and would address severely and critically the inflation problems. Then you had a pardon two weeks ago that destroyed that image ...

"Inflation gets worse. Everything you pick up shows a deterioration of the economy ... Instead of a turn in interest rates which we would have expected by now, an end to Watergate which we would have expected by now, buried and finished, and an aggressive fight on inflation, we have maybe some fight on inflation and none of the other problems solved."

That is the recurring theme on Wall Street. That and faith that things will get better, although some brokers can't wait.

Arthur Blank II packed up his small store of business cards, put his over-elegant name plate in his out basket and walked away from the black screen with the greenglowing numbers where the market prices of American firms parade one after another.

"The reason I'm leaving the business," he says, "is that I don't enjoy it anymore. The fun of meeting new people and new ideas, and selling yourself is gone. I've been in this business 10 years and it's like starting all over again selling people who don't want your product. And that's tough."

Blank, 36, says he had never made under $50,000 a year. But in the first six months of this year he made only $8,000.

"No matter what you say it's a comedown when you have certain expenses to pay." And to add to his problems, he believed in the stocks he was selling, so he bought them himself. And they went down.

Blank is taking a new job selling industrial real estate. He says it will guarantee him $50,000 a year. But he remembers the glory days of Wall Street:

"The best thing I liked was ... I could work from seven to seven and not know what time it was. I'd come home, and I couldn't wait for the next day to start. Maybe I'm an idiot more than I'm smart. But I had to get out before I did something drastic like (puts his index finger to his temple) blow my head off."

His voice breaks as he says this, and he adds, "I felt so depressed at times that I was losing people money, and did not understand the reasoning behind why they were losing money."

But most of the brokers are sticking it out, Ronnie Hurford is 28, although the once lucrative job as a commissioned broker now offers considerably less.

Steve Unger's take home pay is off 10 per cent. Gene Lampel's is down 40 to 45 per cent. Some are hurt even more.

Mostly they scale down their living.

The temper and nature of the business has changed. Brokers now offer a broad mix of investments.

Steve Kraus, whose Park Avenue branch employs about 50 brokers, says, "I think things are going to be very different in the next five years. I think we are deep in the trough of a market slide ... We may go deeper yet. But somewhere in the next several months we might hit bottom."

In the meantime, the mood of Wall Street is to survive, muddle through, brave it out, adjust to today, hope for tomorrow.

Collected Old Radio Programs

By JACK V. FOX
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Frank Bresee had an unusual hobby as a young man. He collected discarded recordings of old radio programs going back to the 1920s—5,000 records in all.

Bresee saved Amos 'n Andy, Fibber McGee and Molly, Jack Benny, Fred Allen, Lanny Ross, Walter Winchell, Kay Kyser, Ken Murray, Young Widow Brown, The Guiding Light, Abbott and Costello, Ed Wynn, Lum and Abner.

He hung onto Phyllis Diller making her first appearance as a contestant on a Groucho Marx program. Oscar winner Ed Begley playing Charlie Chan. George Burns and Gracie Allen.

He got Clem McCarthy making his famous Kentucky Derby miscall, the returns of the Harding-Cox presidential election, Bob Hope singing "Thanks For The Memory" and W. C. Fields snarling at Charlie McCarthy.

Bresee preserved Arthur Godfrey firing Julius LaRosa on the air. Lowell Thomas breaking into uncontrollable laughter over a blooper, Ginny Sims and Harry Babbitt, Bing Crosby's first songs on NBC, Kate Smith and H. V. Kaltenborn.

Frank also saved some of the recordings of the programs in which he played Little Beaver on the Red Ryder serial in the late 1930s.

For years they lay stacked up in the basement of his parents' home, uncatalogued and collecting dust.

Eight years ago, Bresee got the idea of selecting choice tidbits from the recordings, putting them into a format with a nostalgic introduction and seeing how they were received in these days of rock and roll, country and western, all news and disc jockey patter.

They were an immediate success with the Armed Forces Network (now the American Forces Network), and then several years ago Bresee made another modest hit with a similar five-minute program on Los Angeles radio station KMEG.

With the current revival of nostalgia, Bresee now is offering a syndicated program to radio stations across the country. He says he has encouraging responses from more than 100.

"One of the most encouraging things is how they catch on with young people," he said. "I really don't know why. Maybe they're looking for happier times."

Bresee, 44, a bachelor, has a lavish pad in one of the cliff houses that look like they are about to plunge at any minute onto Hollywood's Sunset Strip below. He has a recording studio in his home, where he puts the shows together.

He records a brief introduction and commentary to each one and, to the older generation, it brings back a time that just can't be almost 50 years ago.

"It was 1926 from WGN in Chicago and at exactly 7 p. m. everything stopped. People were listening to Amos and Andy."

"You could walk down a street on a summer night and never miss a word because everybody had his radio tuned to the same program. And everyone was waiting and ready to laugh when Andy said, 'I see regusted.'"

Idleness Among College Grads

TOKYO (UPI) — Nearly 20 percent of Japan's college graduates are idle — neither working nor studying, a survey shows.

The survey by the Education Ministry showed 75.4 per cent were working and another 5.6, taking graduate courses. The remaining 19 per cent were idle.

TERMITES OR ANTS?

Don't be half sure. Call a professional pest control operator for an inspection today. The potential damage to property from termites can exceed the damage from tornadoes, hurricanes and fire. This is why termite protection is as important as a homeowner's insurance policy.
