Ford Says No Deal In Nixon Pardon

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, in a historic personal appearance before a congressional panel, said today he discussed the possibility of pardoning Richard M. Nixon if he resigned as president, but declared there was no deal behind the subsequent pardon.

Reading a lengthy statement in matter-of-fact tones, Ford told the nationally broadcast House Judiciary subcommittee hearing that "I assure you that there never was at any time any agreement whatsoever concerning a pardon to Mr. Nixon if he were to resign and I were to become President."

It was the first documented appearance of a sitting President before a congressional panel, and Ford said he agreed to voluntarily testify to fully and fairly present the facts behind his pardon of Nixon.

From the witness chair in the same room where the full Judiciary Committee conducted its hearings three months ago on Nixon's impeachment, Ford made these major disclosures:

—On Aug. 1 and 2, at meetings with Nixon's staff chief, Alexander M. Haig, and Nixon's chief attorney, James D. St. Clair, there was discussion of a pardon for Nixon if he resigned — as Nixon did on Aug. 9. But Ford said he made clear that "nothing we had talked about ... should be given any consideration" by Nixon in deciding whether to resign.

—The only condition he placed on the pardon he granted Sept. 8 was that Nixon would accept it.

—He had no reports from physicians or psychiatrists on Nixon's health, but did talk to others who had seen Nixon after he resigned. But these reports "were not a controlling factor in my decision."

—He has decided that pardon requests of other Watergate figures will be routed through the Justice Department and he will consider them only after they are so processed.

His statement concluded, Ford answered questions put by subcommittee members in turn, and firmly rejected any suggestion that there would have been reason for Haig to advise Nixon prior to his resignation that he might be pardoned if he quit the White House.

The question was raised by Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., and Ford replied: "None whatsoever. Categorically no."

Ford said he discussed the pardon with Haig on Aug. 1 only because the Nixon adviser had told him of various options being considered in the White House, and asked him for any recommendations he might make. "I had none," Ford said.

Edwards also noted that mercy was one of the considerations in the Nixon pardon, and asked whether the same consideration might now apply to the five men now on trial in Washington for the Watergate cover-up.

"In light of the fact that these trials are being carried out at the present time, I think it's inadviseable for me to comment on any of the proceedings at those trials," Ford replied.

Much of the questioning provided only a review of what Ford had said earlier, in his White House statements and in his prepared testimony.

In his prepared statement, Ford detailed repeated contacts he had as vice president with Haig and St. Clair on Aug. 1 and 2.

Irish Prisoners Frees Hostages

By COLIN FROST
Associated Press Writer

ARMAGH, Northern Ireland (AP) — Women inmates of Armagh jail who seized the warden and three women guards freed them unharmed early today after holding them for 14 hours.

Release of the four hostages came after the jail's Roman Catholic and Protestant chaplains had assured the inmates that male prisoners who rioted in other prisons were safe.

The prison officers were captured Wednesday as violence swept four Northern Ireland jails and guerrilla bomb explosions and gunfire erupted in Belfast streets.

The outbursts seemed directed at the British policy of interning suspected terrorists in the sectarian conflict between extremist Protestants and Roman Catholics. Since the fighting flared up in 1969, 1,067 persons have been killed.

At Armagh, guerrilla gunmen opened fire on British troops waiting outside the prison. No casualties were reported. The 100 women inside were thought to have links with the outlawed Irish Republican Army, which is waging guerrilla warfare to try to force the British out of the mainly Protestant province and unite it with the predominantly Catholic Irish Republic of the South of Ireland.

Hugh Cunningham, the Armagh warden, and three guards were seized as they inspected the women's cells. The rebellious prisoners forced the hostages into an attic of the grim 200-year-old building and erected a barricade of furniture.

"We shall not give up until our men are safe, and we know they are safe," a spokesman for the Armagh inmates shouted to newsmen.

The kidnapings were sparked by rumors that rioters in the Maze jail near Belfast were killed when they went on the rampage late Tuesday, attacking guards and setting fire to their quonset huts. Maze, which contains about 1,400 male detainees and 500 men either convicted or awaiting trial, was virtually destroyed before troops quelled the violence with nausea gas and rubber bullets.

Mountain Colors In Full Glory

ASHEVILLE (AP) — The autumn colors in the mountains of western North Carolina should be at their peak this weekend.

Blue Ridge Parkway interpretive specialist Bob Bruce reports that the leaves along the length of the Parkway are about 100 per cent turned.

"The rain and wind earlier this week did have some effect," he said. "But there is still a lot of good color, especially around Asheville."

At higher elevations and in some of the colder coves, the leaves that changed earlier are gone now, but generally, color will be good into early November, he said.

In the Great Smokies National Park, Don DeFoe, naturalist, said color is at its heighth.

"At the present time, the color is probably little past the peak in most areas, but it's still excellent," he said.

The quality of color by the weekend will depend on whether the rain knocks the leaves off or wind blows them off, he said.

He pointed out that places along the lower elevations will be much more colorful than the higher areas.

The National Weather Service is predicting a nice fall weekend with fair weather Friday through Sunday.

Challenge Use Of Tapes As Evidence In Trial

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prosecutors at the Watergate cover-up trial prepared today to play one of the subpoenaed White House tapes but defense lawyers quickly challenged whether the recojding could be used as evidence.

With former White House counsel John W. Dean III on the stand as the first prosecution witness, the government planned to play the tape of a Sept. 15, 1972, conversation Dean had with then-President Richard M. Nixon and H. R. Haldeman, Nixon's chief-of-staff and one of the five cover-up defendants.

Before the jury entered the courtroom, John J. Wilson, Haldeman's lawyer, was on his feet challenging the use of the White House tapes as evidence.

"I want to examine Mr. Dean on his memory of these tapes before they go into evidence," Wilson said.

Wilson urged U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica to set a far stricter standard for admissibility of the tapes than had been suggested by the prosecutors.

In a memorandum submitted Wednesday to Sirica the prosecutors argued that the tapes would be admissible so long as one of the participants, Dean in this case, "recalls all the participants in the conversations, identifies all the voices on the tapes as those of the participants, and who recalls the substance of the conversations as well as many details of the conversation."

The prosecutors argued there was no need for Dean "to remember each and every detail of the conversation."

Wilson, however, argued for far more questioning of Dean's memory of details.

The defense attorney also threatened to object line by line during the playing of the tapes on the grounds of relevancy.

Sirica said he would permit no such tactic.

Weeks ago, the judge permitted installation of electronic equipment in his second-floor courtroom so that everyone, from the jury of nine women and three men to the spectators, could listen to tapes through earphones.

It was on Sept. 15, 1972, that a federal grand jury indicted seven men on conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping charges stemming from the June 17, 1972, Watergate break-in. The break-in defendants included the five men arrested inside Democratic headquarters and two former White House aides, E. Howard Hunt Jr. and G. Gordon Liddy.

Nixon Files Suit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon filed a suit in federal court today to retain custody of millions of documents from his administration.

Nixon asked the court to order presidential counsel Philip W. Buchen and two other government officials not to produce or disclose any presidential materials to anyone other than himself.

In the complaint Nixon said that he had entered into an agreement with the Ford administration to house his presidential materials and personal records in California but that the White House has not honored the agreement.

First Witness Called In Branch Murder Trial

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Testimony began this morning in Pitt County Superior Court in cases against Roy Lee Sullivan of Kinston and Connie Hardee Branch of Greenville.

Both Sullivan and Mrs. Branch are charged with conspiracy to murder and being accessories before the fact of murder in the shooting death of Mrs. Branch's husband, Lynwood Branch.

Called as the first witness by the state today, Matthew Jack Whealton of Chesapeake, Va. testified that his first contact with Sullivan was by phone in February of this year.

Whealton said that he later met Sullivan at a Virginia motel and had a conversation with him that dealt with "having a person donee away with."

Under questioning by prosecutor Louis Gaylord, Whealton said that he and Sullivan discussed "doing away with Mr. (Lynwood) Branch." The witness related that Sullivan "wanted to know if I could find someone who could do the job." Whealton said that he was told it would be worth $4,000 "to have it done."

Whealton, who is charged with Harold P. Wiseman of Norfolk, Va. on counts of murder and conspiracy to murder in the Branch deaths, said he told Sullivan he thought he could find someone to handle the matter.

The witness recalled that he and Sullivan also talked about an airplane loan that Whealton was trying to arrange for Sullivan.

Whealton continued, "We talked about. . .Mr. Branch. . .and the airplane loan. . .and it was decided that he would call me later on to see if I could find someone to do the job. . ."

Whealton said that Sullivan later called him and asked if he had been able to "obtain someone" to "do away with Mr. Branch" and "I told him, 'yes,' "

The witness said that he and Sullivan made arrangements to meet "later on. . .when he (Sullivan) got the money."

Whealton said that he informed Sullivan of things he would need, including a photo of Branch and both Branch's home and business addresses "so I could give it to the man who was going to do it."

He testified that he met Sullivan and Mrs. Branch in the parking lot of Fass Brothers Restaurant on Highway 17 in Washington "around the first of March." Whealton related that Mrs. Branch got out of her car and walked over to his automobile and said, "Jack?" He said that "she got in and said she was Connie Branch."

Sullivan soon drove up, Whealton continued, noting that Mrs. Branch got out of the car and kissed Sullivan if he had the picture and the money.

Whealton testified that Sullivan offered him a check but he refused to take it, saying he wanted cash.

Whealton said that two pictures of Branch were offered, including an eight-by-ten photograph and on approximately three-by-four inches in size. Whealton testified that he kept the larger picture.

Under further questioning, Whealton said that at the same meeting, Sullivan and Mrs. Branch talked about how they wanted the matter taken care of. Whealton said he was told the job should "look like a robbery. . .since there had been. . .robberies in the area already. . .at this type store."

Whealton said that after the Washington meeting, he received calls from Sullivan "two or three times" informing him that Sullivan was "working on getting the money."

He said he later received a call from Sullivan saying that he had the money and arrangements were made to meet "around the middle of March" at the Pancake House next to the Lemmon Tree Inn in Chocowinity.

Whealton testified that during the meeting, Sullivan paid him $5,000 in $100 bills.

Whealton said that after returning to Chesapeake, Va., he called Wiseman. The witness said that he purchased a .38 caliber revolver and a .32 caliber automatic, paying $100 for each weapon. He said he carried both weapons in his briefcase until giving the .32 automatic to Wiseman. Whealton said that he also made a payment of $2,500 to Wiseman and he noted that he had discussed the matter with him.

"I told him this was the $2,500 to perform the job on Mr. Branch later on," Whealton said.

Whealton said that he next came to Chocowinity on March 19 where he met Sullivan. He said he came "on that occasion to do away with Mr. Lynwood Branch."

He testified that he was driven past the Branch home near Greenville and the car port was pointed out to him. Whealton said that Sullivan indicated that the car port was the place he wanted it done.

The complete jury, including 12 active members and two alternates, was seated on Wednesday as the jury selection closed around 12:30 p.m. The 14-member panel includes three women and 11 men. Three blacks are on the jury.

Superior Court Judge Perry Martin is presiding.

'Project Rescue' Aims To Help

By PATRICIA MC CORMACK
UPI Family Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Every 45 seconds, on the average, fire breaks out in a home. Every 44 minutes fire claims a life.

The highest death rate by fire at home is among persons 65 years of age and older. The second highest is among children under five.

"Project Rescue" aims to help cut deaths by fire in these groups—each relatively helpless under conditions of fire at home.

The lifesaving public service program is sponsored by the National Association of Insurance Agents (NAIA).

Bernard J. Burns, president of the NAIA, says the program is the first national one designed to provide greater protection to the lives of infants and the elderly in the event of fire or some other emergency in the home.

Project Rescue alerts firefighters to the area of the home in which a priority search should be conducted to rescue those persons who are least able to help themselves.

This is done by means of special high visibility decals that mark the windows of rooms which house infants, the elderly or infirm.

Children are easily terrified in emergencies and too often seek shelter under beds and in closets. Older persons, similarly, become confused and are helpless.

Unless firemen know they are in the home—and where—valuable time is lost. All too often, the lost time adds up to a lost life.

The decals on the bedroom windows of the young and elderly gives immediate information at the scene of a potentially disastrous situation even though no other members of the family is present to inform and direct.

Burns said of Project Rescue has not been set ip in your locality, you can obtain the free orange, white and blue decals by writing to the National Association of Insurance Agents, 85 John St., New York, N.Y. 10038.

The best strategy, of course, is to prevent fires. Some tips from fire prevention experts at the National Safety Council:

—Never store gasoline in the home or garage. The fumes of gasoline have the explosive power of dynamite.

—Make sure that other volatile liquids are stored and used in well-ventilated areas.

—Keep attics, basements and storage areas free of combustible materials, including newspapers, magazines and rags.

—Check electrical cords to see that they are in good condition. Watch for dried out and cracked wires and plugs.

—Do not overload electrical circuits. Spread the load or have a qualified electrician install new lines. Do not indiscriminately increase fuse amperage to accommodate additional appliances.

—Never leave a stove unattended, particularly when using cooking oil or broiling fatty meats. Keep a box of table salt or baking soda.

—Do not leave cigarette lighters or matches where children can reach them.

This Father Forgoes Promotions To Stay With His Children

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by The Chicago Tribune

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 12 years and have three children, 5, 9, and 10.

Pat makes a very good living selling. He's been with the same company ever since we've been married and has turned down many promotions because he didn't want to travel out of this state.

Now he has been offered what his boss calls "the opportunity of a lifetime"—but it would mean being away from home for two weeks out of every month. He turned it down.

His boss is cool to him, and thinks he's crazy. His parents are barely speaking to us because they think he made a big mistake, but he and I still think he made the right choice.

Abby, we like money as much as the next person, but we feel that during these years, when our children are growing up, they need a fulltime father, and to us that is more important than anything else.

Are we out of our minds? JANE AND PAT

DEAR JANE: Not in my book. I think you're beautiful.

DEAR ABBY: I am a male, 29 years old. I served in the Air Force for three years. I worked with security police. I didn't like it, so I told my commander I wanted to change jobs, but he kept putting things off, so I went to the chaplain and told him I was gay and wanted out.

I was sent to a psychiatrist. He believed me and got me a lawyer and I got out with an honorable discharge.

I've been out for nearly four years. The Army recruiting office called me and asked me if I wanted to join the Army and get into nurse's training. (He said he knew by my record that I had worked in a hospital, which is true.) Naturally, I didn't give him any details about how I got discharged.

I am bored and would like to get back into the Army, but I don't want to be embarrassed. What are my chances for getting in?

NO NAME OR LOCATION PLEASE

DEAR NO: Forget the Army. A caper like yours cost the Air Force time and money. And who knows, you might have another dodge up your sleeve.

DEAR ABBY: I recently hired a woman to work from 8 to 4 five days a week. I pay her a top salary by the hour to do the laundry and general housework.

Fanny (not her real name) arrives at 8:00 and immediately starts to prepare herself a four-course breakfast, which usually consists of fresh fruit, hot cereal, pancakes or French toast, bacon and eggs, biscuits and four cups of coffee. I provide all the food, and have never placed any restrictions on what she may have.

After breakfast, Fanny takes a bath and changes into her uniform. By then it's 9:00.

She works until 12 noon, and then prepares herself an ample lunch which she eats while reading a foreign newspaper. This takes her one full hour.

At 1:00 Fanny resumes her work. Promptly at 3:00, she quits, takes another bath and changes into her street clothes. She leaves at 4:00.

Fanny is a good worker. She's honest, clean and dependable. But since she is being paid to work by the hour, I think a lunch break is all she's entitled to, and that she should bathe and breakfast on her own time. She lives less than a 30-minute drive from here.

If you agree with me, please tell me how to tell her.

FANNY'S MISSUS

DEAR MISSUS: Tell her in English, unless you can tall better in her language.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Family Budget Increase Is Predicted

CHICAGO (AP) — Salaries up by 177 per cent — sound impossible?

No, not if you look into the crystal ball at the year 2000.

"And that is good news for the family budget custodian," says a recent report. Offering a glimpse of how 21st-century families will be living, the report from the financial services arm of Esmark predicts that income for a husband and wife with two school age children will average $38,041 — compared to today's $13,721.

Homemakers will delight in the fact that food costs will be down.

"Approximately 23.6 per cent of gross income will be spent on filling the family larder, as opposed to 25.3 per cent today. Modern, automated food processing technologies will help bring food prices down.

"Shelter will go up slightly compared to 1974. Americans today spend roughly 24.5 per cent of their income for housing — 25 per cent will be spent in 2000."

The forecast is for more of the family dollar going into savings, insurance and investments 25 years hence — 8 per cent. The probability of longer life for the average American will automatically trigger the need for meaningful retirement programs.

R and R — rest and recreation — will figure prominently in the 21st-century budget.

"With more leisure time and shorter work weeks families will earmark a larger share of the familial pocketbook — 5 per cent — to recreational activities.

"The family of 2000 will also have very definitive attitudes on where they live," the report emphasizes.

"Planned communities — now in their infancy — will be the futuristic life style. These new towns will feature one-stop living, work and play areas.

"Taxes will probably take a bigger bite from the income — simply because of an over-all increase. But, by and large, things look good for the budget of year 2000."

More money, better health, easier life and more recreation in the year 2000?

"Emphatically yes," the report concludes.

Keep Child Safe During Halloween

CHICAGO (UPI) — There is a great deal more to selecting a Halloween costume than just how good it looks on your child.

The National Safety Council (NSC) says the proper choice can help keep your child away from the real Halloween monsters —injury.

"A safe costume does not mean a dull costume. Far from it," says Sharon Wildermuth, Council home economist.

"There are just four things to remember: Keep it light, bright, flame resistant and make sure it fits."

A light-colored costume embellished with reflective tape is absolutely imperative if your child will be outside in dusk or darkness. The reflective tape should be applied to the back, front and sides of the child's outfit.

Let the child cut out his own designs from the reflective tape. Dots, strips, patches are all effective headlight-reflective shapes. Trick-or-treat bags should also be decorated with reflective tape.

Ms. Wildermuth asks parents to look for the flame-retardant label when buying costumes. If the costume is being made at home, she advises that 100 per cent wool —which will not support combustion —and the new flame-retardant children's nightwear articles are good base items with which to work in creating costumes.

Cotton, which burns quickly, can be easily made flame retardant by dipping it into a solution of two quarts of warm water, seven ounces of borax and three ounces of boric acid.

Thoroughly wet the garment in this mixture, let it drip dry and then iron. This treatment will last until the costume is washed or gets wet.

No mask, cloth or large collar should cover the child's face since these reduce his area of vision and may cause him to trip or become the victim of a traffic accident.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I procrastinate a lot.

Like I said, I was going to enroll in some night classes at the college, but the building is on a one-way street and I don't make left turns.

I was going on a diet and lose 23 pounds, but someone warned me I might develop a pasta deficiency.

I told everyone I was going to clean the garage, but I got to thinking if it were clean, someone might steal it.

Nine months ago, however, I pledged to let my hair grow. I've promised myself that before . . . usually after I've seen a Grace Kelly movie. I get obsessed with the idea of waking up in the morning in a nest of hair that cascades over the pillow and having my husband say, "You temptress, you. Do you have any idea how appealing you are with your face nestled in a halo of curls?"

"Control yourself," I say cruelly twirling in slow motion like they do on the shampoo commercials. Then I grab a satin robe and a hair brush and later emerge with my hair drawn back severely into a knot like Faye Dunaway. Then just to make myself unattractive, I grab for a pair of shell rim glasses and say primly, "That will be enough of that! Let's have breakfast."

I can't speak for blondes, but women with long hair seem to have more fun. They get all the sexy parts in the movies, all the leading men on television, and make the covers of every magazine. When a woman with short hair makes it, she either gets six kids like Florence Henderson on the Brady Bunch, or gets her picture in the paper because her husband was fooling around and she shot him in the foot. (She also has a tight, home permanent.)

It has been nine months since I decided to join the "sexy" generation. It hasn't been easy. Hair grows in stages. There's the awkward "shag" which is too short to curl and too long for the Marines and brings about an affliction of jerking your head and flipping it our of your coat collar every three seconds. There's the Neanderthal length which just hangs limp and brings pitying glances from your friends who ask, "What happened?"

And there's the optimist length where you bring all the hair you've got into a french twist which resembles a discarded cigar between two prominent ears.

Today, on a Lady Godiva scale of 10, I'm a three which means I have to glue my hair over my ears and stay out of drafts. As I left the house yesterday I knew my shiny hair cascaded halfway down my back and I tossed it carelessly giving it a tousled bedroom look. It was only after a waiter said to me, "Would you care to order now, sir?" that I knew deep down I'd always be a Florence Henderson.

A Law School In The Future?

A study done by the Research Triangle Institute has been delivered to the UNC administration. It says that the state does not need another law school.

North Carolina presently has state supported law schools at Chapel Hill and N.C. Central University. In addition private law schools are operated by Duke and Wake Forest University.

The N.C. Central Law School needs to be improved because enrollment has exceeded facilities and faculty.

The report will go to the UNC Board of Governors which has before it requests for law schools from East Carolina University, Appalachian and UNC at Chapel Hill.

The report will be considered by a subcommittee of the board of governors and then by the board.

While we would not want to anticipate the board's action on this matter, we would expect that the study's conclusions would carry much weight with the UNC administration and the Board of Governors.

If the board decides to recommend against establishing a new law school within the UNC system, it remains to be seen what will develop next in the quest for a law school by several universities.

Likely the requests will continue, and it is almost a sure thing that another law school will be established somewhere in the state at some time in the future, assuming we have continued growth in population and in the economy.

Certainly we would hope that East Carolina University would be in a position to develop the school when the time comes, and we think the ECU Board of Trustees and the administration should maintain an interest in developing a law school.

Hopes Based On Progress

What appears to be some progress in the Middle East talks now being conducted by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger gave the business world a lift.

Kissinger hopes for progress in the Arab-Israeli dispute and possibly some easing of oil prices.

That would be a welcome break for the world, which is presently caught in the grip of grossly overpriced oil.

No Tax Hike For Tar Heels

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—In the wake of President Gerald Ford's inflation-fighting package, there were tremors of possible tax hikes in North Carolina.

Not so, says Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr. He will fight any tax increase of any sort, pledges that no proposals will be forthcoming from his administration during his term of office, and vowed to resist any tax hike measures generated by the General Assembly.

One member of the Holshouser administration—Transportation Chief Troy Doby—was widely quoted as proposing a one-cent gasoline tax hike recently to cover losses of revenue for road-building.

Several other signals have been hoisted of possible income tax hikes for middle and upper income taxpayers, to take up the revenue loss resulting from a General Assembly drive to eliminate the sales tax on food.

None of that is acceptable to the governor.

Food Tax

Recognizing that cutting the food tax would be politically popular, Holshouser continues to insist that to do so would require some increases somewhere—and reminds listeners that he has vowed no tax increase of any sort for anybody.

"I don't think the people of North Carolina want to see taxes increased—period," Holshouser said. What about that penny per gallon gasoline tax hike, if that is what it would take to get the road-building program back on schedule?

"I don't think the people want to see the gasoline taxes increased for any reason," he says—even to build more roads.

There is one area of state revenue in which the governor concedes that certain increases are likely: the variety of state permits and licenses for particular business operation.

The Governor's Efficiency Study Commission pinpointed some 40 state activities in which the costs of operating the licensing activity exceed the income.

For example, the cost associated with issuing a permit for retail sale of beer and wine exceeds revenues by about $315,000.

The permit costs $25. An inspection visit is required, a hearing, voluminous paperwork, printing of the permits, and even hand-delivering the permit to the premises is required.

In this case, the fee should be $50, the commission said.

The cost study group proposed hiking fees to cover actual costs, bringing some $5.5 million into the state treasury in these regulatory activities.

License Fee

Holshouser said he could go along with that kind of proposal, but soundly put to rest some budding talk among highway people about turning to an increased motor vehicle registration or license plate fee to produce more money.

Would he, he was asked, go along with raising any other fees?

"A rose by any other name has just as many thorns," he said, laughing. "A fee hike in an area like the license tags which is charged to everybody . . . I consider very similar to a tax, and would not be in favor of any increase."

What will be the result of a non-increase philosophy on the state budget now being drawn up, especially as state government—like the private citizen—faces rising costs and lowered income?

Those involved foresee a tighter budget, with building programs particularly cut to the bone, and with a firm grasp on revenue estimates to make use of the tradition upward jump in that area so that the some $50 million usually forthcoming from increased income will be used in the budget, and not left for General Assembly use later.

And the opposite side of the no-tax-hike coin is equally obvious: no tax cut proposals.

Ford's "Do It Yourself" Economy

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J.—The American people do not share President Ford's optimism regarding the nation's economic outlook. The latest nationwide survey shows 7 in 10 citizens believing the economic situation will worsen during the next six months, and a growing number of Americans — now 51 per cent — predicting a depression such as that in the 1930s.

In his Oct. 9 press conference, President Ford said, "I do not think the United States is in a recession," and, "I'm convinced if the Congress responds, if the American people respond in a voluntary way, that we can have, hopefully, early in 1975, some meaningful reduction in the rate of inflation."

Since the attitudes and behavior of the American people will play a key role in the shape the economy takes in the months ahead, today's findings are important to the Ford administration as it seeks to win support for the economic program recently outlined by the President.

The public's economic predictions for the next six months are based on a survey conducted Sept. 27-30, at the time of the economic summit meetings in Washington, D. C. They show little change from survey findings recorded in early August.

At the same time, however, pessimism has grown regarding the likelihood of a depression. In the latest survey, 51 per cent agree with economists who say the U.S. economy is heading toward a 1930-style depression, while 41 per cent disagree, and 8 per cent have no opinion.

In the August survey, views were fairly evenly divided, with 46 per cent believing we are heading toward a depression, 44 per percent disagreeing, and 10 per cent with no opinion.

Pessimism has increased among all major population groups, but has been most pronounced among the business and professional group, and correspondingly, among persons in upper income brackets.

While nationally the number of Americans predicting a depression has increased 5 points, the percentage is up 10 points among business and professional people, and 15 points among people whose annual family income is $20,000 or more.

At the same time, however, white-collar people tend to be more bullish than do blue-collar people.

Democrats are found to be considerably gloomier in their economic outlook than are Republicans. Those in the survey who are 50 years of age and older, who lived through the depression of the 1930s, are about as likely to predict a depression as are persons under the age of 50.

Following is the first question asked:

"Do you think the economic situation in the United States during the next six months will get better or get worse?"

Here are the latest national findings and the comparison:

Economic Situation In Next 6 Months Get Better Or Worse?

	Better	Worse	Stay Same	No Opinion
LATEST	15%	69%	11%	5%
Early August	13	68	15	4

This question was asked next:

"Some economists think the U.S. economy is heading toward a depression, such as the nation experienced in the 1930s. Do you agree or disagree?"

Nation Headed Toward A Depression?

The survey findings reported today are based on a nationwide survey of 1,527 adults, 18 and older, interviewed in person in more than 300 scientificially selected localities during the period Sept. 27-30.

Debacle Not Necessary

WASHINGTON—This is the bullet-biting season, as President Ford keeps reminding us, and his own Republican Party may have to bite a whole boxful of bullets next month. As many as 40 seats in the House and five in the Senate could be amputated by the Democrats unless—.

Unless what? Unless normally conservative Republicans and independents come swiftly to their senses. Most of the imperiled seats won't be won by Democratic energy; they will be lost by Republican apathy.

A headline in last Sunday's Star-News put the prospect succinctly: "GOP Debacle Is Emerging." The newspaper's top political writer, Jack W. Germond, found a nation-wide pattern—so far as Republican fortunes are concerned—of "unrelieved misery." My own sources glumly confirm that appraisal.

It seems incredible that Peter Dominick could be in serious trouble in Colorado. In times past, he has been one of the most popular political figures in the state. Highly respected in the Senate, where he has served for the past 12 years, Dominick is fully qualified for re-election. Yet he seems to be trailing badly behind young Gary Hart, a McGovernite liberal with no track record at all.

It is equally dismaying to talk with experienced observers in Iowa, Kentucky, and even in Oregon, where Robert Packwood had been regarded as a certain winner. The news from Kansas, Oklahoma and North Dakota offers little encouragement. The major gubernatorial contests, in California and New York, find Democrats far ahead.

The underlying reasons are plain: inflation, Watergate, and pardon. To the extent that blame for the current recession can be politically fixed, the Democrats are far more responsible than the Republicans. The Democrats, after all, have controlled Congress for the past 20 years. Republican candidates for House and Senate had nothing whatever to do with Watergate. And to cast a vote against Peter Dominick because Gerald Ford pardoned Richard Nixon is to substitute lunacy for reason.

But if the debacle occurs, apathy will count for more than any other cause. Some 145 million Americans will be eligible to vote on November 5. Fewer than half of them will take the time and trouble to go to the polls. In the off-year elections of 1966, according to the Census Bureau, 44.5 percent of the eligibles voted. The percentage dropped to 43.8 in 1970. Last Sunday's Gallup Poll found political interest at a record low.

Just two years ago, 47 million voters provided an impressive statement of political choice. They voted generally against what George McGovern stood for, and generally in favor of what Richard Nixon stood for. This army of putatively conservative voters won the most convincing political victory of this century. Where have all the soldiers gone? Are they sulking like Achilles in his tent?

A Job Well Done

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR

Leon Jaworski's service as Watergate special prosecutor is about to end, at his request, and his achievements merit warm commendation.

From the time of his appointment some 11 months ago it was clear that the Texas attorney both intended and managed to keep the independence and maintain the vigor needed to get at the facts in this sorry episode of American history. Indeed, the Jaworski name has become synonymous with unrelenting determination and fair-minded pursuit of truth-disclosing material—most significantly, the White House tapes which ultimately led to the resignation of President Nixon and which may figure prominently in the cover-up trial now under way.

With the sequestering of the jury, Mr. Jaworski saw an opportunity to end his involvement in the case, the prosecution of which can proceed smoothly under the direction of his deputy, Henry S. Ruth.

Mr. Jaworski's solid endorsement of Mr. Ruth to replace him gives a deserved boost to the deputy special prosecutor, who effectively rallied the staff during the turbulent period just before Mr. Jaworski's appointment. To Mr. Jaworski's credit, this staff was kept intact and thereafter fully justified his confidence, and he theirs.

By sticking to a straight course that veered neither toward vindictiveness nor undue leniency, Mr. Jaworski earned respect and trust and now the nation's thanks for a job well done.

Thriving Bank In Small Town

By RICK SCOTT
Associated Press Writer

RIO VISTA, Tex. (AP) — A rural West Texas town of about 400 inhabitants seems a strange place to find a thriving bank.

But the First State Bank of Rio Vista, better known to its customers as the Cow Pasture Bank, boasts 12,000 customers and deposits of $21.4 million, up nearly $3 million from a year ago.

While many small town bankers brood over sagging deposits, Lowell Smith Jr. says continuity of management is the real secret of his bank's success.

Smith is president of the bank, which was founded by his father more than 50 years ago. His father, who "is crowding 80," still is chairman of the bank's board.

Some novel marketing approaches also help explain the bank's success.

First, it's probably the only bank with fly-in service.

A customer can land on the airstrip in the pasture behind the bank and walk up to the window to make a deposit or withdrawal.

"Quite a few people fly in each week to make deposits," Smith said in an interview. "I guess it's a convenience other banks don't offer."

The strip behind the bank is on the Smith family ranch on the outskirts of town.

The bank itself operates from an unpretentious, Western-style building. The interior is decorated with painted scenes and pictures depicting Western life.

And then there are the bank checks with a cartoon drawing of a cowboy trying to rope a steer and "making his usual mistakes."

"We try to play upon humor and give people a lift in our advertising," said Smith. "People appreciate a little humor in anything. We just try to give a boost to the lighter side of life.

"Some people put money in our bank just so they can use the checks all over the country and the world," he said.

The bank has a three-county service area "which is pretty much open country." A substantial amount of business comes from farmers and ranchers, but many of the bank's customers live in the Dallas-Fort Worth area which is less than an hour's drive away. Many of these customers once lived in Rio Vista but have moved to the big cities.

Three generations of the Smith family work in the bank. Smith's nephew is a vice president. The bank employs about 55 workers.

Smith said being small is an advantage for the bank. "We try to maintain personal contact with our customers. We've been here a long time. We certainly want to have a modest outlook because we're not trying to be anything a bank can't be.

Smith is not too concerned about the nation's problems, although he admits he's "not very good at forecasting."

"We tend to feel like a fellow ought to keep doing what he's doing and I guess that's about as good a philosophy as anything.

"I've got a lot of confidence in America," he added. "She has a way of coming through."

Not Ready To Support Busing Ban

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Neither of North Carolina's candidates for the U.S. Senate is prepared to endorse a constitutional amendment to ban the busing of school children to achieve racial balance.

Both Democrat Robert Morgan and Republican William Stevens say they dislike busing. But for different reasons, neither will commit himself to voting for the amendment that would end it.

Morgan and Stevens gave their views on busing and a variety of social issues in separate interviews with the Associated Press.

Of the busing amendment, Stevens said, "We should try to work the integration problem out without further laws. I would oppose it."

Stevens said he did not think the quality of education has been improved by the forced integration of the past five years. "But it has produced a situation in which the quality can be improved, and this is what we must address ourselves to."

Morgan refused to take a position one way or another on the busing amendment. "I'm opposed to busing. Both black and white parents prefer neighborhood schools. But I would have to consider the amendment at the time."

Morgan got his start in statewide politics as manager for the segregationist gubernatorial campaigns of I. Beverly Lake in the 1960s. Without specifying what he meant, he said, "The people of this state know where I stand."

But he persistently refused to commit himself on the busing question. "I have said that I have severe doubts about it (the amendment)," he said. "You are not going to draw me out any further because I am not going to turn this into a race-baiting campaign."

40 Years Ago Today

October 17, 1934

Sales on the Greenville tobacco market passed the forty million pounds mark with today's sales and the season's average price is gradually climbing upward. Sales yesterday averaged $36.71 per hundred pounds.

Judge Dink James failed to clear a heavy docket yesterday and continued today with indications that the entire day would be needed to complete hearings in county court.

Today's hearings were mostly from drunken driving and other cases. The cases disposed of yesterday were mostly liquor and assault cases in which some of the defendants received road sentences and others received fines ranging as high as $100.

One of the features of the fair tonight will be 500 local citizens taking part in a "New Deal" pageant. The pageant will picture the workings of the New Deal in this community contrasted to the era prior to this one.

The local choral society will have a part in the pageant and will furnish the music.

Showdown Looms In Turkey Aid

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A continuing showdown between President Ford and Congress looms on the issue of cutting off U.S. military aid to Turkey.

Caught in the middle are federal agencies that have been legally penniless since Sept. 30, some of which may already be unable to meet full payrolls.

Ford is leaning in the direction of a second veto of legislation to cut off military aid to Turkey, Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Wednesday night.

Earlier Wednesday Congress voted to suspend aid to Turkey Dec. 10 or sooner if Turkey sends any more U.S. arms to its invasion force in Cyprus.

Nessen said Ford's objection to this is the same as to the first bill, that it would "undermine delicate negotiations."

The first measure contained an immediate ban on further military aid to Turkey.

Despite the probable second veto, the House approved the latest aid cutoff 194 to 144 and the Senate passed it 45 to 23.

Opponents of the Turkish aid vowed that if Congress could not override a second veto they would try to write an identical or similar cutoff to a new emergency spending resolution.

The Turkish aid cutoff was tied to an emergency spending resolution for federal agencies. Employes in some agencies already may be doomed to receive paychecks next Tuesday for only one day's pay instead of a full two weeks.

Opponents said the ban against Turkish re-arming of its Cyprus occupation forces was needed to guarantee that no further U.S. equipment goes to them before the Dec. 10 cutoff.

"During this period an avalanche of weaponry from every military warehouse in the continental United States could be sent to Turkey, and that equipment could be transshipped to Cyprus to further fortify their forces there and make their stay more permanent," said Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo.

Eagleton served notice that he and other opponents would filibuster any compromise that, as he put it, would be a "testimonial for the Turks."

But House and Senate leaders including Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said such a "precipitous cutoff" could endanger U.S.-Turkey relations and hamper U.S. efforts to bring negotiations for reduction or withdrawal of the Turkish troops from Cyprus.

Both candidates said they opposed another constitutional amendment proposal, this one to ban abortion.

"A woman's decision is private and should be arrived at with medical advice and moral convictions and not complicated by a constitutional amendment," Stevens said.

Abortion is a matter that should be left to the individual states, Morgan said in opposing the amendment.

Stevens is the only one of the two candidates to come up with a detailed proposal for a national health insurance program.

Morgan said he would vote for some form of national health insurance if elected. But beyond saying he would like to see a partnership between government and private health insurors, he could not be specific.

Stevens has proposed what he called a "conservative, relatively uninflationary plan" much like the one favored by the American Medical Association.

It would make available to all citizens, on a voluntary basis, government help in buying approved health insurance packages from private companies.

The poor would get vouchers to pay their premiums. The rest of the people would receive a tax credit for their premiums on a sliding scale based on income.

The insurance policies, under the program, would provide comprehensive health care and hospitalization benefits.

in his tent?

The debacle doesn't have to occur. If the Coloradoans who gave Nixon 63 percent of their vote in 1972 will look to the future, instead of to the past, Dominick could yet be saved. The four House seats lost to Democrats in by-elections of the past year can be reclaimed in November. All that is required is that normally conservative voters act normally.

What will happen if conservatives stay home? What can be expected of a House and Senate overwhelmingly dominated by the Democratic Party? The consequences will bring the triumph of Big Labor and Big Liberalism—the ascension of the very programs, ideals and attitudes rejected two years ago.

Nothing in the public opinion polls would indicate that this is what the people want. On the contrary, the Gallup Poll finds strong conservative leanings across the nation. Such leanings alone will get Republicans nowhere. Republicans need votes. The votes can yet be marshalled if disgruntled conservatives will only reflect upon the folly of the fellow who cut off his nose to spite his face.

Burton-Royalty Romance Rumored

LONDON (AP) — British gossip writers reported today there's a new Elizabeth in the life of actor Richard Burton: a princess related to the British royal family.

Society columns of the Daily Mail and the Daily Express said the 49-year-old Welshman who divorced Elizabeth Taylor four months ago is in love with Princess Elizabeth of Yugoslavia.

The princess' estranged husband, British banker Neil Balfour, 33, ran unsuccessfully as a Conservative in last week's British national elections.

Princess Elizabeth, 38, is the mother of a 4-year-old son by Balfour and two daughters, aged 11 and 13, by her first husband, Howard Oxenberg, a New York clothing tycoon.

A second cousin of Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, she was exiled from Yugoslavia in 1940 when the monarchy was overthrown.

A spokesman for Burton said stories of his new romance were true but it is "most unlikely" that the actor would make a statement while Princess Elizabeth is married to Balfour.

The spokesman said Burton and the princess "have known each other for some time, but there is no truth in any rumor that they are officially engaged."

ROYAL SCANDAL?—British banker Neil Balfour, 33, who an unsuccessful as a Conservative in last week's British national election, has a rosette pinned on by his wife, Princess Elizabeth of Yugoslavia during the recent election campaign. British gossip writers reported Thursday that Princess Elizabeth, who is now separated from her husband, has taken the fancy of actor Richard Burton. (AP Wirephoto)

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market reversed an early slide today, turning higher in stepped-up trading on a technical rally.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was ahead 3.44 at 645.73, after being more than 2 points lower in the opening hour. Advances narrowly overtook declines after being more than 2-to-1 behind on the New York Stock Exchange. Trading picked up on the advance.

Much of the recovery in the Dow was due to a gain by Eastman Kodak of 3⅝ to 68⅛. The issue had lost ground heavily in the past two sessions as the company reported lower third-quarter earnings. Bargain hunters took the issue higher today, however.

The profit taking that marked today's early going, as well as the two previous sessions was spurred in part by some discouraging earnings statements from gilt-edged companies.

Sony Corp., the Big Board volume leader, lost ⅛ at 5¼.

Avis, Inc., trading ex-dividend, opened for the first time since Sept. 30, dropping 1¼ at 6¾. International Telephone & Telegraph Corp., ordered by the government to divest itself of Avis, turned aside an $8-a-share bid from Val, Inc., and has yet to find another buyer.

Among higher priced gainers, McDermott climbed 3¾ to 68, Xerox 1⅞ to 66, and Digital Equipment 1½ to 59½.

The NYSE's 11 a.m. composite index of all listed common stocks gained 0.20 to 37.32.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was off 0.07 at 68.86.

Houston Oil & Minerals led Amex actives, up ½ to 24⅞.

Ranchers Ready To Meet With Ford

STEPHENVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Texas ranchers and dairymen say they're ready go to Washington "anytime the President wants" to take him up on his offer to meet with them to discuss their economic problems.

"Maybe they're beginning to hear us after all. I knew when somebody started killing cattle, or even talked about it, it would spread across the country," said James Traweek, president of the Cross Timbers Beef and Dairy Association.

On a campaign swing through the nation's heartland Wednesday, Ford said he would set up a meeting within two weeks and said he would defer changes in the dairy import quota system until he can assess market conditions.

Traweek, whose group herded 800 calves to a trench to be shot several weeks ago, said, "We'd just about given up hope he would meet with us."

The group called off their plans to slaughter the calves at the last minute, hoping that Ford would agree to talk with them about the price of feed, milk and beef.

Dairymen and ranchers say the disparity in production costs and product prices is driving them out of business or into bankruptcy.

Meanwhile, in Wisconsin, where about 600 calves were slaughtered and buried Tuesday to protest low farm prices, The National Farmers Organization said it wants the President's blessing for plans to donate calves to Honduran storm victims.

Newborn Baby Found Dead

The body of a newborn baby was found Tuesday about 2 p.m. on a Speight Seed Farm on Rural Paved Road 1125 on Rt. 1, Winterville.

Coroner E. W. Harvey said the child's body apparently had been in the water several days. An autopsy was performed to determine how the baby died or whether it was living at birth. Harvey said he has not received a report. The Sheriff Department is investigating.

Drugs Not Involved In Girl's Death

Coroner E. W. Harvey reported today that Elizabeth Renette Manning, the 16-year-old who became ill at the Pitt County Fair Sept. 30, died of a brain hemmorhage and that no drugs were involved.

An autopsy performed the night Miss Manning died showed that her death was caused by the rupture of a major blood vessel in the brain. The toxicologist's report showed there were no drugs in her system, he said.

Some investigation of the possibility of her either taking or being given drugs at the fair had been done because of the circumstances of her becoming ill while attending the fair, Harvey said.

Series Of Accidents Here On Wednesday

More than $2,000 property damage resulted Wednesday from a series of four traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville Police.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 9:25 p.m. collision on Memorial Drive involving a car driven by Evelyn Highsmith Moye of 3210 South Memorial Dr.

Police said the Moye car went out of control, causing an estimated $750 damage to her car and an estimated $75 damage to the Moore building, a post and curbing.

No charges were placed by investigators who reported Mrs. Moye was injured in the collision.

Lorine Gordon Cooper of 906 Colonial Ave. was charged with failing to yield the right of way in a 5:05 p.m. collision at the intersection of Greene and Moore Streets.

Officers said the Cooper vehicle collided with a car driven by Ruby Edwards Norris of 1305 Evergreen Dr. causing $300 damage to the Norris car and $275 damage to the Cooper vehicle.

An estimated $100 damage resulted to each of the two cars involved in a 4:45 p.m. collision at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Evans Street.

Officers identified the drivers involved as George Odell Carver II of 107 Columbia Ave. and Myrtle May Nobles of Route 1, Winterville.

Carver was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety and having no liability insurance by police who reported Mrs. Nobles was injured in the mishap.

No charges were reported following investigation of a 5:40 p.m. accident on Grand Avenue, 63 feet South of the Albemarle Avenue intersection.

Cars driven by Stephen Paul Broadhead of Goldsboro and Randall Thurston Lockemy of Henderson were involved in the mishap, according to police.

Damage was estimated at $150 to the Broadhead car and $275 to the Lockemy auto.

Crash Kills Kindergarten Children

NEW CASTLE, Ind. (AP) — The 31 pupils in Sharon Hahn's kindergarten class at Wilbur Wright Elementary School were just settling down for "Story Time."

Michelle Renae Lee, 5, seated on the floor near the teacher's desk, had just enrolled in the class Tuesday. Next to her was Steven Greenwell, also 5.

Suddenly, glass and bricks sprayed the room as an automobile sailed through a plate glass window and landed ontop of Michelle, Steven and a third youngster.

Michelle and Steven died. Elizabeth Sexton, 5, and eight classmates were injured. Police said the auto driver, Frank Burris, 63, of New Castle, apparently suffered a heart attack and lost control of his car. He died en route to a hospital.

Police estimated the car, which landed four feet from Mrs. Hahn's desk, was traveling 80 miles an hour as it approached the school.

Burris' wife, Alice, who was a passenger in the car, was critically injured.

Caesar Rodney, delegate from Sussex County, Del., rode from Dover to Philadelphia on July 2, 1776, to cast his colony's deciding vote in favor of Lee's Resolution for the Declaration of Independence.

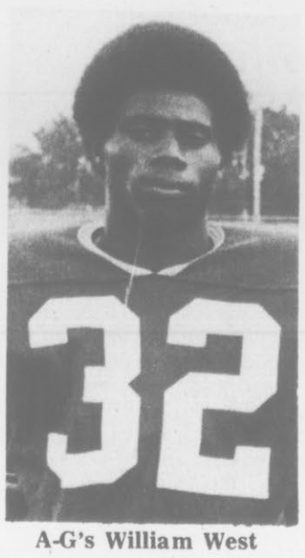
Battle Looming For Second ECC Berth

Southern Wayne has passed its probably most crucial test of the season and barring upset from one of the lower ranked teams in the Eastern Carolina Conference, should be able to coast to the league championship over the remaining four games.



A-G's William West

The Saints humbled the Farmville Central Jaguars, their last major stumbling block, last Friday night by beating the Jags on the Farmville field, 49-15. Only in the final quarter of the game were the Jaguars able to move to a score. The first TD came on a pass from Greg Joyner to Jojo White in the opening minutes of the fourth period and later, with Carroll Griffin at the helm, the Jags drove 61 yards with Jimmy Prayer getting the score.

While Southern Wayne was beating the Jaguars, Greene Central dumped North Pitt, Ayden-Grifton beat Aycock, 30-12, Conley edged North Lenoir, Robersonville smashed Elm City, 48-0, Williamston was upset by Tarboro, 20-18, and Jamesville won its second game, downing Oak City, 26-22.

Southern Wayne's Ken Mack left little doubt that he is one of the best runners in the state and one of the best the ECC has every seen. Mack scored on runs of 18, 50 and 73 yards and added a pair of two-point conversions. He also gained a total of 242 yards on the ground.

DHC's Ricky Phillips

Farmville had come into the game with a 4-0 conference mark as did the Saints. The Jaguars are now tied with Greene Central which beat North Pitt by a lopsided score. These two teams will meet in two weeks in another big conference game. This week, the Jags will be hosting North Lenoir, shutout loser to D.H. Conley.

Conley Coach Chuck Dunn called his team's win "the best offer offensive effort so far." The Vikings got both touchdowns on runs by Calvin Hawkins one on a 90 yard run from scrimmage and the other a 50 fumble return.

Dunn noted that the defensive team showed good effort in holding the Hawks to 64 yards rushing and 20 passing. Conley picked up 283 on the ground with Hawkins getting most of that, 203.

Friday, the Vikings will face Eastern Wayne. Although the game is at home it will be a tough one. "They have the best team I've seen," said Dunn, "and they're coming off a big win." The Warriors slipped past Southern Nash, 18-13, Friday. "We spoiled their Homecoming last year so they will probably be remembering that," said Dunn.

Eastern Wayne uses the wishbone offense with quarterback David Farmer running the team. Jeff Myrick, a running back is one of their favorite ball carriers.

Ayden-Grifton handed the Falcons of Aycock their sixth loss as William West and Paul Ricciarelli both scored a pair of TD's for the Chargers. West had scoring runs of 12 and 34 yards while Ricciarelli scored on 27 and 49 yard pass plays from quarterback David Pratt. "It was a good team effort," said A-G's Mike Overton. "We held them to minus yardage (-2 for the game.) The defense is getting better."

This week Overton expects a typical Greene Central team powered by end Tim Butts, quarterback Jerry Carraway and running back Keith Gay. The Rams had six different players score against North Pitt Friday night as the Rams picked up 336 yards in total offense. Anthony Corbett scored twice for them and ran for 114 yards.

A-G's West rushed for 92 in the win over Aycock while Riccarilli caught four passes for 100 yards. Pratt hit on 10 of 26 passes for 150 yards. If the Chargers could win, they would pull the Rams into a tie with them or fall another game back of loopleader Southern Wayne.

Aycock has only scored in half of its games this year but only once have they scored more than once. This week may be a change for the Falcons as they host North Pitt which has been having similar troubles.

The Panthers are also winless and have scored in only two games. They have been buried the last three weeks by scores of 39-12, 49-0, and 50-. And North Pitt's Pat Smith doesn't expect things to improve. "They (the players) don't want to put out the effort to better themselves," Smith said. "We haven't played anybody better than we are."

Many times when last place teams get together, quite a good game results. With the Panthers scoring an average of four points a game and Aycock giving up 32 a game North Pitt might be able to beat their average. North Pitt, is giving up 33 points each time out and the Falcons, scoring just over four, there may be a lot of points put up by both teams.

Gene Brewer of Farmville Central will be trying to get his team back in their frame of mind they were in before Southern Wayne. Brewer said that the Jaguar quarterback Joyner and Carroll did good offensive jobs along with Prayer running the ball well.

North Lenoir, the coach says, runs from the wishbone combining passing with running equally. They go with a 4-4 defense.

In other games this week, Williamston is at Ahoskie and Robersonville travels to Rock Ridge.

West Likes Running Ball

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

Ayden-Grifton High School's football team is made of a lot of young players this season and one of these youngsters is a sophomore running back, William West.

West started playing football six years ago as a quarterback but when he got to high school he was moved to his present position. He began playing in the little league organizations in Grifton and continued to play through junior high.

So far this year, West has rushed for a total of 625 yards and five touchdowns. Not only does he carry the ball for the Chargers but he is also a defensive safety, punt returner and kick-off man.

"I used to enjoy watching football on TV and I decided that I was going to play too. I like to run the ball. I feel like I'm going all the way through unless somebody knocks me down," West said.

William is the youngest of a family of nine children. Only one of his seven brothers has played football before him.

Of the many plays the Chargers run, West likes the plays designed to go outside best. "I like to go outside, you can pick up more speed. This helps you get by the defense," he said.

William says he depends on his linemen some of the time and on his own ability to elude the defenders. "When I get hit hard in the line I tell the guy that missed the block to move him out of the way," he said.

When another back is carrying the ball, William is either blocking for him or faking in another direction. He also runs pass patterns. One of these is a screen pass. A screen is designed to let the defensive men penetrate while the offensive blockers move to one side of the field to block for a back who has drifted over. "The defense has to charge hard and the defensive end has to come in. When I get the ball I tell the line to go," West said, describing the screen. He also runs fly patterns, flares and routes across the middle of the field. West had caught six passes through the first four games for 102 yards.

When he gets past the initial line of scrimmage on a screen or a sweep, West says he depends on his speed and fakes to help him beat the defenders.

To be a good running back, William says a player has to "have confidence, speed, ability and you have to lift weights to make you strong and keep you in shape. You have to be able to take it."

On defense, West is the deep man in the Chargers' three-man backfield. A-G employs a zone defense meaning that the two cornerbacks and West have certain areas they are responsible for. "I'm responsible for deep passes." On running plays, he has to be able to come up to "stop the man because he can break through." On passes, he looks "for the receiver and the quarterback."

Returning kickoffs is a hard job, also. "First you have to catch the ball, then you've got to have blocking and speed. I try to run to the side with the fewest people." So far this season, West has not broken a run for a score but with four games left he just might. "I think so," he said.

His biggest game so far has been the loss to Farmville Central. "When we played Farmville, I ran for 181 yards." He thinks the Chargers could have beaten the Jaguars but mistakes, he said, hurt them.

In his free time, William plays basketball and listens to music. His favorite subjects are English and History. "I like to talk about things that happened in the past." He likes James Brown, and singing groups, Earth, Wind and Fire and Newbirth. His favorite actor is Bruce Lee because "I like to see him do Kung Fu."

Being a sophomore. West hopes the team will grow together picking up experience until the players graduate. Coach Mike Overton rates his runner as second only to Southern Wayne's Ken Mack. "He has done a good job' he's a hard worker. He doesn't say a lot."

Being just a sophomore, West will be used and relied on a lot over the next two-and-a-half years in the Charger football program. He has the potential to be an outstanding high school football player and future A-G fortunes may be resting on his shoulders.

Last Chances In American

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — They are calling Sunday's American 500 stock car race "The Last Chance Special."

That's because:

—Chevrolet-driving Cale Yarborough must win it or lose all chances he has of overhauling Richard Petty for the lucrative Grand National stock car driving championship. The title carries with it, among other items, a bonus of about $75,000.

—Canada's Earl Ross, 19-year-old Richie Panch, 38-year-old Bob Burcham, Jackie Rogers and Tony Bettenhausen Jr., need good finishes to keep in the running for rookie of the year honors. The title, carrying a $10,000 bonus, will go to one of them.

—Such top drivers as Buddy Baker, Bobby and Donnie Allison, 1973 driving champ Benny Parsons and up-and-coming Darrell Waltrip haven't won a super speedway event this year and are about to run out of opportunities.

All were on hand today for a practice round leading up to qualifying sessions Friday and Saturday.

The starting list for the $105,500 American 500 will be limited to the 36 fastest qualifiers.

Petty needs only token finishes in this one and the final outing of the season at Ontario, Calif., Nov. 24 to bag his fifth Grand National championship.

Yarborough not only must win, but Petty must wash completely out here and in California for Yarborough to bag his first title.

Yarborough admits such a combination isn't likely to happen. Petty not only is a four-time winner at the one-mile North Carolina Motor Speedway, but this year has finished no less than 21 times in the top five in 28 outings. Thus, he isn't likely to break and leave Yarborough room to squeeze through to the title.

Petty and Yarborough with 10 triumphs each, coupled with six wins by David Pearson, have dominated the super speedways—tracks of a mile or longer—this season.

Bobby Allison and Ross are the only other winners, once each on short tracks. Baker and both Allisons won big events last year, while Waltrip is looking for his first ever Grand National triumph.

Ross, by winning at Martinsville, Va., in September, jumped solidly into the rookie of the year picture. But he wrecked in the prestigious National 500 two weeks ago, leaving Panch and Burcham to finish ahead of him.

In competition for the American 500 pole position, the hot speedsters will shoot at a single lap record of 139.048 miles an hour set in 1970 by Bobby Allison.

Petty holds the 500 mile race record at the track, 118.696 m.p.h. in the Carolina 500 in March, 1971.

President Gerald Ford played three years of varsity football at the University of Michigan. He was the team's starting center in 1934.

Oakland Out For KO Punch Tonight

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

OAKLAND (AP) — The embattled Oakland A's have the Los Angeles Dodgers staggering on the ropes and plan to finish off the National League champs tonight with Vida Blue's left-handed punch.

"I'd be disappointed if we don't end it tonight," said third baseman Sal Bando after the A's took a commanding 3-1 lead in the 1974 World Series with a 5-2 victory Wednesday night. "We think very positively."

With Don Sutton on the mound, the Dodgers aren't dead yet — but it may be just a matter of time. Even if they don't win tonight, history is on the A's side. Rarely has a team come back from a 3-1 deficit to win a World Series.

It's only happened three times — 1925, 1958 and 1968.

"We'd like to win tonight, but if we don't, we'll go on down to Los Angeles and finish it," said Bando.

The A's hold the upper hand in this wacky series despite internal unrest, a condition that has been common with this oddball team for some time now.

The latest episode involves Gene Tenace, a sensitive player who was lifted from the lineup by Oakland owner Charles O. Finley prior to Wednesday night's game. Tenace's reaction ranged from humiliation to rage. He branded the A's eccentric owner inhumane.

Tenace, who had played first base for the first three games of this World Series, found out about the lineup change after a team meeting during which Finley gave a pep talk.

"I had to be told by coach Bobby Winkles," said Tenace, still simmering in the clubhouse a few minutes after Wednesday night's significant victory. "Neither Finley nor (Manager Alvin) Dark would tell me. I felt humiliated."

While Tenace burned, Finley kept the rest of the A's smoldering with his pregame meeting. He read some inflammatory remarks from Los Angeles star Bill Buckner that appeared in a local newspaper.

"Buckner said that we have three good ballplayers and that the other 22 are no good," Finley said. "I told them to go out and prove that he's wrong."

The A's did just that — and got excellent performances from some of those people that Buckner had termed inferior to the Dodger talent.

Jim Holt, a pinch-hitter who had been in a terrible batting slump, rifled a two-run single in a four-run sixth inning that broke the game open. Dick Green knocked in a run and made some fabulous defensive plays at second base. And Ken Holtzman and Rollie Fingers, two pitchers that Buckner probably wouldn't mind having on his team, silenced the usually noisy Los Angeles bats.

Holtzman not only dominated the Dodgers most of the time he was in there, but also hit a home run, something the A's have had a tough time doing lately.

Talking about his drive off Andy Messersmith that gave the A's a 1-0 lead in the third inning, Holtzman said: "He got behind me and I was looking for a fastball — and I got it."

The euphoria felt by his home run was quickly dampened by the Dodgers in the next inning. They took a 2-1 lead over Oakland's 19-game winner on a two-run triple by Bill Russell. It quieted the crowd for a while, but they had plenty to shout about in the Oakland sixth.

Bill North led off with a walk and moved to second when Messersmith threw wild past first attempting to pick him off. The A's took advantage of the Dodger mistake, of course. They've been doing it all Series long.

Bando drove in the tying run with a lazy, looping single to right field. Proud of his first hit in this Series, the stocky third baseman announced jokingly: "I hit the hell out of it."

Then Messersmith walked Reggie Jackson and got into more trouble when Joe Rudi sacrificed the runners along. Messersmith then issued an intentional walk to Claudell Washington, who was starting in place of Tenace, and the bases were loaded for the A's.

Holt was announced as the pinch-hitter for Ray Fosse despite a streak of recent frustration. Before the World Series, Holt had gone hitless in 25 appearances as a pinch-hitter. He came through in Saturday's first game, however, and then came through again Wednesday night with a clean base hit to right that gave the A's a 4-2 lead.

Green then grounded into a forceout and Washington came home with the A's fourth run of the inning. It was all over at that point, but the Dodgers didn't know it. They struggled and squirmed while Holtzman held them at bay and then started to make some noises in the eighth inning.

Jimmy Wynn, leader of the Dodgers' long-ball offense this season, walked with two out and Steve Garvey, another of their gold-plated hitters, singled to left with two away. Dark wasted little time in calling in Fingers, whose handlebar moustache is as reknowned as his fine relief pitching.

Fingers struck out the dangerous Joe Ferguson for the last out of the inning, then got through the ninth with the help of a dazzling double play started by the omnipresent Green.

"We can't afford to think negative because we're down three games to one," noted Garvey, refusing to play dead. "You can bet we'll be back tomorrow."

Furman Leading Both In Offense, Defense

Furman's Paladins, who did everything but win the game against East Carolina's defending champions, have taken over the lead in the Southern Conference in offense this week.

That gives the Paladins the lead in both offense and defense. Last week, they led in defense, while the Pirates held the offensive lead.

Furman, through five games, is now averaging 331.4 yards a game, just ahead of Richmond with a 322.4 mark. The Citadel at 319.6 is third, while the Pirates have fallen all the way to fourth with 316.4. William & Mary also is averaging over 300, with a 312.5. mark.

This week's Pirate foe, Appalachian State, ranks sixth with 268.0 yards a game.

In rushing, the Pirates maintained their conference lead, rolling up 290.4 yards a game. Furman is second with 247.8, followed by The Citadel with 244.4 and William & Mary with 238.0. The other four teams all are averaging less than 200 per game, including sixth ranked Appalachian State, at 163.2.

The Bucs, from first in rushing, go to dead last in passing, averaging only 26 yards a game. Richmond leads the league with 193.4 yards a game, while Davidson is averaging 130. The Mountaineers of ASU are third at 104.8, while the rest are all under 100.

In the scoring offense, Richmond is first this week with a 21.4 average, followed by the Bucs at 20.0. VMI has a 19.8 mark, while ASU is fourth at 17.5. They are followed by William & Mary at 14.0, Furman, 13.6, Citadel, 12.6, any Davidson, 4.7.

On the defensive side of the coin, Furman still tops the league in total defense, allowing only 209.2 yards a game. Appalachian is second at 254.3, followed by the Pirates 307.6.

In rushing defense, Furman leads, allowing 141.4 per game, while the Mountaineers are second with a 166.3 mark. East Carolina is third at 199.0, and no other team is below 200.

Against the pass, Furman is also tops, allowing 67.8 a game. The Citadel is second at 77.4, followed by Appalachian at 88.0. VMI is the only other team allowing less than 100 yards, with a 96.6 average. East Carolina ranks sixth at 108.6.

Against the score, the Paladins again are tops, leading the field from top to bottom. They are allowing only 11.0 points a game, while the Bucs are second with a 13.2 mark. Appalachian is third giving up 15.0 points a game.

Individually, Harry Knight is the total offense and passing leader, while Andrew Johnson paces the runners.

Knight, the Richmond quarterback, is averaging 182.2 yards a game, just ahead of William & Mary's Bill Deery who has a 177.3. Johnson at 160.4 is third, while Mike Weaver, the Pirate quarterback, is fourth at 92.4.

Johnson, taking aim at Carlester Crumpler's single season rushing mark of 1,309 yards, is well on the way, with 802 in five games a 160.4 average. If he keeps that up, he'll end up with nearly 2,000 yards for the year.

Deery is second in rushing with a 105.5 average, the only other Southern player getting over 100 a game. Weaver ranks fifth with a 66.4 mark, while Don Schink is sixth at 66.0.

Knight heads the passing hitting 12.8 completions a game. He's followed by Davidson's David Harper with 9.0 per game.

Davidson's Gary Pomeroy leads the receivers with 5.0 per game, while Mike Mahoney of Richmond is second with 4.6 per contest.

In punting, Appalachian's Joe Parker leads with a 43.9 average. Bunched behind him are Citadel's Gene Dotson at 38.9, and VMI's Ron Bongiovanni and ECU's Gill Job, both at 38.8.

Ronnie Moore of VMI is the top punt returner with a 23.1 mark, while Dick Pawlewicz of William & Mary is the top kickoff returner at 34.2. Bobby Myrick of East Carolina is second in kickoff returns with a 21.1 average.

Moore and Richmond's George Crossman lead the scoring with six points a game, while Mike Eubanks of Davidson is the top pass interceptor with three in three games.

Volleyball Team Splits

RALEIGH—East Carolina University's women's volleyball team split a pair of matches yesterday in Raleigh, beating Meredith Coolege, but falling to the University of North Carolina.

East Carolina downed Meredith by a 2-1 score, then bowed to the Lady Tar Heels by the same score.

In the Meredith match, East Carolina won the opening game, 15-6, then fell to Meredith, 15-13, in the second. East Carolina came back with a 15-13 win in the finale to wrap up the match.

In the Carolina contest, the Lady Pirates also won the first match taking a 15-10 victory over the Tar Heels. But North Carolina came back with 15-8 and 15-10 vicotires in the remaining games to take the match.

The results left the young Pirates team with a 3-5 overall record.

Their next outing will be Monday, when they play host to UNC-Wilmington.

Charlotte Puts Out Fire Before 20,000

By HOWARD SINER
AP Sports Writer

A record low 750 fans turned out at 90,000-seat JFK Stadium on a rainy night in Philadelphia for a World Football League game. The hapless Bell responded by trailing all the way and losing again.

The Shreveport Steamer triumphed 30-25 Wednesday night with quarterback D.C. Nobles throwing to Rick Eber for touchdown passes of 27 and 39 yards. The second TD pass scored the winning points.

"I don't know if it was the World Series, the weather or what," said Philadelphia runner John Land. "But that's the smallest crowd that I can ever remember playing in front of

In other WFL games Wednesday night, Memphis beat Florida 25-15, Charlotte blanked Chicago 27-0, Southern California trimmed Birmingham 29-25 and Portland edged the Hawaiians 3-0.

Southmen 25, Blazers 15

Quarterback John Huarte, who had missed three games with a thigh injury, passed for 212 yards and one touchdown to lead Memphis, 14-2, the WFL Central Divison leader, to its 11th straight victory.

Southman runner Willie Spencer, who has gained 788 yards, was apparently lost for the season due to a third-period knee injury. He had scored on a short touchdown plunge earlier in the quarter.

Hornets 27, Fire 0

Inspired by a strong defensive effort, the Hornets blanked Chicago before 20,333 hometown fans for the club's first victory in Charlotte since the franchise quit New York.

Defensive end Clarence Campbell recovered a fumble by Chicago's Reggie Sanderson at the Charlotte 18 in the opening period to set up the first touchdown.

Hornet Don Highsmith scored on runs of two and 15 yards; Ed White had a two-yard TD; and Pete Rajecki kicked a 40-yard field goal.

Sun 29, Americans 25

Southern California, 11-4, clinched the WFL Western Division title after quarterback Tony Adams hit 20 of 30 passes for 316 yards and led the Sun to the come-from-behind triumph in the last period.

Trailing 17-11 going into the final quarter, Adams fired an 18-yard scoring pass to Keith Denson and led the Sun 75 yards for another touchdown. James McAlister's plunge over from the three-yard line.

It was the second touchdown of the game for McAlister, who had caught a 13-yard TD pass from Adams before the 25,247 hometown fans.

Ron Garcia booted a pair of field goals for Southern California.

For Birmingham, 12-4, Charlie Harraway scored twice.

Storm 3, Hawaiians 0

In a comedy of errors and missed opportunities, Portland managed to triumph on Booth Lusteg's 37-yard field goal late in the third period after a Storm wide receiver gained 31 yards on a surprise reverse.

The Hawaiians, 6-10, missed four field goal attempts, one a 47-yard try by R.C. Coppedge with 93 seconds remaining in the game.

Appalachian Is Glad To Be Home

By The Associated Press

After a fast start with victories in their first three football games, Appalachian State's Mountaineers have lost their last three—and things don't get any better Saturday with two-time Southern Conference champion East Carolina the opponent.

About the only thing the Mountaineers have going for them is the fact they're returning home, where they've won two of three games.

"We've just been beaten up physically," says Appalachian State Coach Jim Brakefield. "We don't have a lot of people playing, and we aren't playing very well, anyway."

The Mountaineers appeared set to crack their two-game losing streak last Saturday night by taking a 10-0 lead at Lenoir Rhyne, but the Bears shut them out after that and won 31-10.

At the same time, East Carolina's Pirates came from a deficit in the last 11 minutes for a 15-12 squeeze past Furman's Paladins in their conference debut.

On a conference basis, at least, the Mountaineers will be even with the Pirates going into Saturday's game. Both are 1-0 behind Virginia Military's Keydets at 3-0. But East Carolina is 4-1 over-all, the only defeat by 24-20 to 10th-ranked North Carolina State.

East Carolina Coach Pat Dye has had special praise for the Mountaineer's defensive unit, particularly Fred Snipes.

"We have to block well on that nose guard because I think he's outstanding," says Dye. "He creates a lot of problems around the center."

Dye says Appalachian State is a big team and "we've got to put pressure on the quarterback throwing the football because they also have a fine running game."

The problem for Dye is whether Brakefield starts sophomore Robbie Price or senior Phil Coccioletti at quarterback. Price is a good runner, Coccioletti probably the better passer.

Price earned himself the starting nod at the beginning of the season, but Brakefield says he's been inconsistent of late, and Coccioletti has seen more action.

The probable starter Saturday is Price, like East Carolina sophomore Mike Weaver very dangerous on the ground, although the two teams run different offenses.

Joe Paterno is in his 25th season of football at Penn State. This is his ninth year as head coach.

Power Station Raises Shrimp In Cooling Ponds

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — Besides generating electricity, the Central Power & Light Co. power station here is generating a lot of interest in its harvest of six-inch, man-raised shrimp from its cooling ponds.

This year's catch averaged 1,500 pounds per acre.

Shrimp averaging about six inches in length and weighing nine-tenths of an ounce were harvested Wednesday under the supervision of Dr. Fred Conte, mariculture specialist for the Texas Agriculture Extension Service of Texas A&M University.

The project, a joint venture between Texas A&M and the Ralston-Purina Co., is designed to determine the feasibility of using Laguna Madre waters adjacent to the power station for commercial shrimp farming operations. Laguna Madre is separated from the Gulf of Mexico by Padre Island.

"We expected larger shrimp this year because we stocked the tanks at lower density," said Conte, who supervised three harvests last year. "Also, we are looking very closely at the survival ratio of the shrimp."

Last year's harvests yielded more pounds per acre, 4,696, but the shrimp were smaller.

"Now we are aiming for a larger shrimp and a better survival record," he said.

The larger shrimp, sold commercially with the money plowed back into the project, help bring up the dollar value of the harvest while bringing down the cost of food.

"The shrimp are larger, but we have fewer shrimp to feed which means less money is needed for food," Conte said.

In conjunction with the harvest Wednesday, CPL announced the opening of 18 quarter-acre ponds adjacent to its Davis power station. These ponds will be used to rear shrimp and will use a pump and pipe system to deliver more warm water from the cooling lake and intake canal into the ponds, CPL officials said.

The power plant uses water from the Laguna Madre for cooling and then returns the warmed-up water to the ponds.

Currently the shrimp are raised in a succession of three ponds for a total period of 140 days. During harvest, they are drained into catch nets through 12-inch pipes which assures almost a total capture of the crop.

The shrimp originally came from Florida and included both brown and white species.

Dr. Jack C. Parker, project leader and coordinator of the Sea Grant Mariculture program for the Texas Agriculture Extension Service sees pond-grown shrimp as a supplement to the commercial catch rather than as a replacement as the demand for the luxury food grows.

"Shrimp mariculture can become a new industry that will reduce the need for seafood imports and at the same time create new jobs for Texans and new uses for the state's coastal land areas," Parker said.

Another of the research objectives is to get shrimp to reproduce in captivity. Ponds now must be stocked with already-pregnant shrimp to obtain more shrimp for farming.

Missing Cop

ERWIN, N.C. (AP)—The case of the missing Erwin policeman remained unsolved today, but Chief John Gautier said, "We will find him."

Rodney Price, who joined the department several months ago, has been missing since Oct. 6. He formerly was a member of the Benson force.

Efforts to locate him have been fruitless.

Gautier said Price apparently took with him a pistol belonging to the town and two of three uniforms he was issued. One uniform was recovered at a cleaning establishment where Price had left it.

Gautier said Price gave no notice he was quitting.

Student Arrested In Co-ed Jock Raid

One student was arrested Tuesday night after a group of about 50 co-eds from Greene Dorm on the main campus marched to "The Hill" to stage what they termed a "Jock Raid" on the men's residence halls, James Mallory, Dean of Men at East Carolina University said.

According to the school official, campus police pursuaded the group of female students to abandon their planned raid, but when male students saw them coming, the men "started pouring out of the residents halls."

Mallory noted that as the "girls started down the hill (College Hill Dr.) the men gave chase. Then, he explained, officers stopped the crowd, estimated at "300 to 400 at the most" and "gave them five minutes in which to disperse. They did, very orderly."

Mallory noted that when the men returned to the hill, they began to gather again outside Tyler Dorm and were ordered again to disperse.

He said during the time the men were gathered on the hill "we had three streakers."

One person, Mallory said, was caught and arrested. He was identified as Dalton M. Parker Jr., of 105B Scott Dorm.

Parker was placed under a $200 bond on charges of indecent exposure.

This class has been named the William Hoke Smith class honoring Companion William Hoke Smith, KYCH, for his outstanding work in the York Rite Bodies on both the local and state levels.

Collecting Facts On Cigarette Smuggling

RALEIGH (AP) — A North Carolina State Highway Patrol officer says the patrol will begin collecting information today on smugglers hauling cigarettes out of nine eastern North Carolina counties.

"If the program is successful, if it's a benefit to the organized crime prevention function, we propose to expand it into other areas, possibly the far west where cigarettes are also being loaded and smuggled out of this state," Patrol Maj. L. J. Lance said in an interview Wednesday.

The patrol has scheduled meetings to day in Greenville and Henderson to explain the new assignment to some 60 troopers who patrol the nine eastern counties.

"We will attempt to furnish the State Bureau of Investigation any information concerning the transporting of cigarettes, that possibly might be untaxed, into other states," Lance said.

It will be the SBI's responsibility to pass the information on to law enforcement agencies in other states.

Teen-Ager Convicted

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — A black teen-ager has been convicted of firebombing a building-supply company during what a witness described as a night of racially inspired firebombings and burnings in nearby Kannapolis.

The defendant, Ralph Jackson, 17, of Concord, was found guilty Wednesday by a Superior Court jury of 11 whites and one black that deliberated two hours.

Judge Thomas Seay delayed sentence until a presentencing investigation is completed.

A second defendant, James Russell, 18, also of Concord, was acquitted.

A third youth, Freddie Lee Springs, 18, of Kannapolis, who also is charged with participating in the burning of the Watkins Building Material Co., was the key state witness.

He testified that after the slaying of a black man by a white man following an argument, there was a meeting a week later, on June 4, at which 30 young blacks were urged to riot and burn. The white man has been convicted of seconddegree murder, but is appealing.

$860 Million Tobacco Sales

RALEIGH (AP)—An official of the state Department of Agriculture says North Carolina's 1974 flue-cured tobacco gross income is projected at $860 million, $160 million more than in 1973.

John Cyrus, chief of field crops for the state Department of Agriculture said Wednesday the income projection is based on this year's estimated poundage of 828 million averaging $1.04 per 100 pounds.

In 1973, flue-cured tobacco income amounted to $700 million and the season price average was $88.37 per hundred.

Exactly how much the farmers, whose production costs have risen drastically, would realize from the higher prices was not known. Cyrus said several weeks ago that farmers needed to average about $97 per hundred for the 1974 crop in order to clear about what they did last year.

Wants To Go To Boston

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)— Pupils at West Charlotte High School want to fly down at least two pupils from racially troubled Boston to see how integregation is working at their school.

The West Charlotte youngsters plan to ask airline officials to donate round-trip tickets, which cost $138.73 each, or to raise the money themselves with car washes, bake sales, paper drives and dances.

Handwriting Differed

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Board of Education concluded Wednesday that the handwriting differed on two National Teacher's Examination tests given a former Lumberton school teacher in 1967.

The board revoked for a second time the certificate of Olivia S. Huntley of Greensboro. The action came after James R. Durham, former State Bureau of Investigation handwriting expert, testified the writing in two NTE exams attributed to Mrs. Huntley is "completely different."

Mrs. Huntley's certificate was revoked in 1967 by former Supt. of Public Instruction Charles Carroll and the decision upheld by the board.

Mrs. Huntley sued for reinstatement and $250,000 in damages in 1969 in U.S. Middle District Court. The court ruled in favor of the board, but the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled early this year that Mrs. Huntley had been denied due process and the case was sent back to the board.

AT LAST ITS OVER—The Rev. Dr. John M. Tietjen managed to smile as he announced at a press conference Tuesday that he had been fired as Concordia Seminary president by the Board of Control of Concordia. Tietjen was suspended last January on charges of teaching false doctrine. When Tietjen was suspended a majority of the students and faculty walked off the campus and formed Seminex (seminary in exile) in protest. Tietjen said that he was innocent of the charges but he planned no appeal. Concordia is a school of the Lutheran Church-Missoyri Synod. (AP Wirephoto)

82nd Paratroopers Ready To Move If Called

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP)—Army paratroopers of the 82nd Airborne Division began preparations Wednesday to move to Boston if President Ford decides to use federal troops to maintain order in the school crisis.

Defense spokesman William Beecher said elements of the 82nd Airborne were alerted as a "purely precautionary measure" and that officials did not expect the troops to be committed.

Spokesmen at Fort Bragg would not identify the units placed in readiness or say how many personnel were involved.

Newsmen visiting the sprawling installation near Fayetteville reported no signs of mobilization or unusual activity.

However, they said secuity had been tightened at adjacent Pope Air Base and that outsiders were being restricted from the installation.

If the troops were deployed, they would likely depart from Pope Air Base by military aircraft.

Beecher said that "primary responsiblity continues to lie with state and local officials." Under the law, federal forces would be committed only after local and state resources were exhausted.

The order came only a day after President Ford said federal troops would be used in the Boston school crsis "only as a last resort."

Federal troops were last used in school desegregation crises 11 years ago. Military officials were not anixous to deploy them in the explosive Boston situation.

Mass. Guard Stands By

BOSTON (AP) — The National Guard was standing by today, and federal troops have been placed on increased alert to deal with any continued violence related to court-ordered busing to achieve integration in Boston's public schools.

Gen. Vahan Vartanian, adjutant general of the Massachusetts National Guard, said the Guard members will remain in the city as long as needed.

In a "purely precautionary move" Wednesday, the Pentagon said Army paratroopers at Ft. Bragg, N.C., were placed on increased alert in case they were needed as a "last resort" in the Boston school crisis.

Schools and streets were quiet Wednesday, officials said. School attendance was down, with 66.7 per cent of the city's public school students reporting to classes.

The highest attendance rate since schools opened Sept. 12 was 80 per cent. Attendance Tuesday, before a confrontation at Hyde Park High School in which eight students were injured, was 74 per cent.

Two arrests were reported Wednesday. A 17-year-old black male was charged with assault on a police officer at Hyde Park High School.

Math Teacher Killed

LELAND, N.C. (AP)—A math teacher at North Brunswick High School was shot to death in the school parking lot Wednesday afternoon.

The Brunswick County sheriff's office identified the dead woman as Mrs. Cynthia Gainey, about 30, who was going to her car at the end of the school day when the shooting occurred.

Deputies reported the arrest of her former husband, Edward Pee Wee Gainey on a first degree murder charge.

Deputy George Ballard, who was on the school ground at the time, said he heard a shot, saw people running and saw a car speeding away.

Ballard said he gave chase and apprehended Gainey at the intersection of U.S.74-76 near the New Hanover County line.

Wilbur Mills Denies Any Romantic Involvement

JUST CHECKING — A policeman in Saigon checks bundles of newspapers ready for distribution to see if any copies of the banned journal, Dai Dan Toc, are being smuggled from the printing plant Monday. Authorities confiscated the press run of the opposition paper, which is printed with other dailies at a central plant, for anti-government articles. (AP Wirephoto via Cable from Tokyo)

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills has denied any romantic involvement with a former stripper who was with him during an encounter earlier this month with park police in Washington, D.C.

Mills also said he may have had "a little too much" to drink before the incident.

The Arkansas Democrat who is opposed in his bid for a 19th term in Congress by Republican Judy Petty of Little Rock arrived here Wednesday after nine days of seclusion.

Mills said he believed the incident would be a factor in that race, but added that he thought he would win. "I don't think there's any question about that," Mills said in an interview with John Meyer of CBS News.

Police said Mills was intoxicated when they stopped his speeding, unlighted car at 2 a.m. on Oct. 7. Mills was not driving and his wife was not with him.

One of the four other persons in the car was Annabel Battistella, 38, identified as a former dancer who reportedly had worked as a stripper in a Washington nightclub and was billed as "the Argentine firecracker." She got out of the Mills car and plunged into the Tidal Basin, a backwater of the Potomac River at Washington. Police pulled her from the water.

Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, told newsmen on his arrival at the airport here: "I said I was embarrassed. I'm still embarrassed."

Meyer, who interviewed Mills aboard a plane on the trip to Arkansas, asked: "Was there anything between you and the young lady?"

"No," Mills replied, "I ought to be flattered at my age of 65 for anybody to ask me such a question, but, uh, I know the impression is trying to be created that there was, but she said herself that Mrs. Mills was with us whenever we went out except one or two occasions when she was at home with her foot broken, but we were not by ourselves on any of those occasions."

Mills was asked by CBS if it was true that some of the people in his car on Oct. 7 were intoxicated.

"I don't know frankly," the congressman replied. "I didn't think anybody was. I didn't think I was. I felt like I was high."

He laughed, then added, "And, we'd been celebrating this lady's departure back to Argentina. And, maybe we did have a little too much. I'm not going to say we did or didn't, but I didn't feel it. I didn't feel that we did."

Mills said he wasn't sure how long he had known Mrs. Battistella. He said he might have known her "a year at least."

Asked if he expected any adverse reaction to the incident, Mills said, "Oh, it will to some people who want to be prone to criticize or find fault or make something big."

Mills is scheduled to address the Little Rock Jaycees tonight.

Mrs. Petty has said that she will not make a campaign issue of the Tibal Basin incident.

Turns Down Rockefeller Request

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Rules Committee has turned down Nelson A. Rockefeller's request for an immediate reopening of his vice presidential confirmation hearings, but has scheduled a session Nov. 13 to question him.

Rockefeller had hoped to go before the committee this week to explain his nearly $2 million gifts to political associates and friends and a $60,000 payment by his brother Laurance to finance a critical campaign biography of Arthur J. Goldberg, who was Rockefeller's opponent in the 1970 New York gubernatorial election.

The decision to delay reopening the hearings until after the November elections was engineered by Democrats on the Rules Committee without consultation of GOP members, said Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott.

Scott said he was "extremely disappointed" by the delay, and Rockefeller said in a statement that "I regret that I won't have a proper forum for at least another month."

In explaining the delay, Rules Chairman Howard A. Cannon, D-Nev., said the committee's investigation of the gifts and the book have not been completed and that a report on the audit of Rockefeller's income and gift tax returns will not be available before next Tuesday.

Congress is not scheduled to reconvene from an already-postponed campaign recess until Nov. 18.

Cannon publicly announced, and told Rockefeller by telephone, that the former New York governor is free to make statements to the news media about the gifts and the books.

In New York, Rockefeller complained that information on his gifts was given to congressional committees in confidence and leaked to the news media.

He also said he was "getting a little indignant" about the delays in Congress on his nomination.

$2.2 Million Suit Against Airline

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Eastern Airlines has been sued for more than $2.2 million by the estate of a Virginia Beach man who died when an EAL DC9 jet plane crashed Sept. 11 at Charlotte, N. C.

The suit was filed in U. S. District Court here by attorney Stephen C. Swain and Mrs. Lucille C. Lundy, co-administrators of the estate of William W. Lundy. The suit alleges that Lundy's death was the result of "carelessness, recklessness and gross negligence" in the operation, maintenance and control of the plane.

Lundy, who was 50, was one of 69 people killed when the plane, approaching Charlotte's Douglas Airport, crashed into a cornfield about three miles short of the airport.

Lundy, a retired Navy petty officer who worked for the Navy as a civilian gun expert, had been in Charleston, S. C., on Navy business. He was scheduled to transfer to a Norfolk-bound flight at the Charlotte airport.

A National Transportation Safety Board spokesman has said it may be months before the board announces a probable cause for the crash.

Eastern Airlines officials could not be reached for comment.

Sir Walter Raleigh Comm. Reinstated

Members of the newly reactivated Sir Walter Raleigh Commission were sworn Tuesday by Judge David Britt of the North Carolina Court of Appeals.

In ceremonies in the Archives and History-State Library Building, members of the Commission, recently appointed by Gov. James E. Holshouser, received their oaths of office and certificates of membership to the Commission.

The Commission's function is to collect money to build a memorial to Sir Walter Raleigh in the City of Raleigh, to advise the secretary of Cultural Resources on the erection of the monument and to advise the superintendent of public instruction on the designation of a Sir Walter Raleigh day in the public schools.

The Sir Walter Raleigh fund was begun in 1901 under the auspices of the State Literary and Historical Association headed by the people of the state, mostly from school children, who sent in their pennies, nickles, dimes and quarters. However, due to bank failure during the 1920s and 1930s some of the money was lost, but more than $2,000 remained with the State Treasurer.

Subsequent General Assembly legislation made the commission statutory, and in April, 1972, accumulated funds of more than $10,000 were transferred to the then Department of Art Culture and History for reactivation of the project.

The WORRY CLINIC

Influences Of Voodoo Still Exist

Hilda's problem is common, despite this advanced age of astronauts. For voodoo ideas still affect many otherwise intelligent folks. This is true in medicine as well as in the employment practices of many firms. Beware!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE B-670: Hilda B., aged 18, is a college coed.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "one of my professors is such a devotee of horoscopes that he makes us all give him our birthdays.

"Then he decided from his analysis of the signs of the Zodiac whether we deserve an 'A' vs. 'C' or even a 'D' grade.

"For he is so prejudiced in favor of his occult system that he pays little attention to whatever we write on our exam papers!

"And I have since learned that several employers in Chicago also use the bumps on your head and the facial measurements of applicants to decide whether to hire them.

"Does psychology consider such methods as scientific?"

Fun But Fallacious

Many of these so-called systems of character analysis are fun for parlor entertainment.

But scientific psychologists have not found them valid for rating personality or for hiring employees!

Horoscopes offer you very entertaining character sketches, depending on which month holds your birthday.

Such descriptions contain about 90 percent of very complimentary remarks but then insert maybe 10 percent negative attributes.

The later are included to disarm your suspicion that the whole affair is merely a "soft soap" or "snow job" of 100 percent flattery.

And when you read the horoscope for your own birthday, you soon indulge in empathy, for you quickly identify yourself with all the compliments ascribed to those born in that month.

However, among my students at Northwestern University, I'd often expose the ease with which they'd identify themselves with their known horoscope.

For I'd clip off the monthly dates for all the year's horoscopes and then paste the corresponding horoscopes on cardboards.

The students then were to try to pick out their own particular horoscope from the entire group.

What happened?

Well, they rated only a chance score at being able to select the horoscope pertaining to their birth month!

Which shows that we quickly identify ourselves with our known horoscope and then eagerly accept all the compliments cited therewith!

But when we don't know which horoscope pertains to our birthday, then we can't select which one is supposed to apply to our own month!

As regards phrenology (character reading from the bumps on your skull) you will find many employers who believe firmly in such "bumpology."

When you see newspaper ads under the "Help Wanted" section, if the prospective employer asks for 2 photos (full front and side view), he probably believes in character reading from your facial features and shape of head.

If a good job is at stake, go along with him, though actually his system has no scientific validity! But don't argue if you can land a good job.

Actually, the brain is like a computer, with millions of tiny wires (nerve branches) but no single spot represents musical talent vs. mathmatical skill, etc.

No "bumps" bulge over any spot of a computer, either, and neither do bumps in the skull bulge over so-called "character locations!"

A jutting chin also may belong to a rank coward whereas a receding chin may pertain to a fighter personality, so facial features likewise aren't scientific character indices.

So send for my scientific "Tests for Employer and Employee," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 percent.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

UN Stamp On Population

This is the "World Population Year" designated by the United Nations to focus attention on the problems of finding a balance between people and resources so that the quality of human life everywhere can be improved.

To help publicize these efforts, the U.N. Postal Administration has issued a new stamp and a souvenir card. The stamp comes in two denominations — 10 cents and 18 cents. Featured are three cherubs dancing around a world globe. In the right corner is the denomination while the inscription, United Nations World Population Year, appears below.

The souvenir card, the sixth in a series of such cards by the U.N., reproduces the World Population Year stamps as well as the three U.N. stamps previously issued for population trends and development.

The stamps and the cards (at $1 each) can be purchased by mail from the United Nations Postal Administration, P.O. Box 5900, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y., 10017.

The bidding:

South	Pass	North	East
2 NT	Pass	6 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Three of ♥.

Declarer used the wrong entry at the wrong time and found himself shut off from dummy's long suit. As a result, he went down in a slam that should have been made.

With 23 points in high cards and a perfectly balanced hand, South had a classic two no trump opening bid. North added his 11 points to his partner's minimum of 22, came up with enough for a small slam and bid what he thought his side could make.

West was reluctant to lead from the jack of clubs, so he selected his fourth-best heart. Dummy was disappointing because of wasted values (the jack of diamonds would have been infinitely preferable to any of the major-suit honors). To make his contract, declarer saw he would have to find East with the ace of diamonds.

Dummy's ten of hearts won the first trick, and declarer led a low diamond to his king, which held. Dummy was reentered with a high club for another diamond lead. East alertly found the killing defense. He rose with the ace of diamonds and returned a club, removing dummy's last entry while declarer still had the blocking queen of diamonds in his hand. Eventually, East took the setting trick with the jack of clubs.

Observe the difference if declarer wins the opening heart lead in his hand, enters dummy with a club and leads a diamond. When the king wins, declarer reenters dummy with the remaining club honor to lead a second diamond. East ducks, the queen wins and declarer concedes a diamond trick. The queen of hearts serves as an entry to dummy's good diamonds.

It does not help East to win the ace of diamonds and return a heart, attacking declarer's entry to the table. Declarer wins in his hand, unblocks the queen of diamonds and gets back to dummy with the queen of hearts to cash his extra tricks. Either way, the slam rolls home.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, OCT. 18, 1974

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You would be wise to scrupulously carry through with promises you have made. Avoid borrowing or lending and other financial transactions. Evening is excellent for social activities in the company of persons you like.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) It is wise to go out for entertainment after late afternoon when planetary aspects are more favorable for such. Don't argue with mate.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make certain you handle any obligations wisely, especially those of a monetary nature. Your intuitive faculties are working well.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) The morning is not a good time to come to a meeting of minds with associates. Show that you are in a mood for quick and satisfying action.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Unpleasant work needs to be done early in the day, and then you can engage in hobby. Read and elevate your consciousness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) The evening is best time for pleasure so handle business obligations during the day. You can be highly romantic in the evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't argue at home during day and then you can invite friend in for a most pleasant evening. Shop early and stay within your budget.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't be so willing to accept whatever is offered you, but separate the good from the bad, and the genuine from the fake. Be wise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Although you think you could improve your station in life, stick to what has proven sure for the time being. Consult business expert.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Discontent makes you want to lambast others but by evening the picture clears for you. Do some constructive work early.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get rid of personal worries and then analyze your position more accurately. The evening is ideal for you and loved one to enjoy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Work conscientiously toward gaining your goals during day, and then you'll have time for social activity in the evening.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be objective in your business dealings today. A higher-up will not be very cooperative because he is too preoccupied. Keep calm.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one who may not fully appreciate the present environment. Teach to have duties to perform, whether poor or wealthy, so that the right values in life will be attained. Add foreign language to the educational curriculum. A fine chart, especially in the export- and import- field.

Rather's Book Called Tart And Lively

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Palace Guard," a tart, lively book about the Nixon White House, isn't exactly the kind of scholarly work a history professor might write. Personal opinions abound, fine-print footnotes don't.

The tone is in the classic feisty manner of the Texas Observer. But the Texan who co-authored it insists it wasn't written in that spirit.

"I like to think it's written in its own spirit," laughed Dan Rather, the hard-nosed CBS correspondent the network transferred from the White House beat to "CBS Reports" after Nixon resigned as president in August.

"It's as close to the truth as we could make it without cutting the truth, that is, watering it down ... what we attempted to say was, 'Here it is as best I could make it out.'"

Rather's collaborator was Gary Paul Gates, a CBS newswriter. Since CBS bars leaves of absence, Rather said, Gates quit CBS to work full time on the project for six months, then was rehired by the network.

Some of the book's observations are funny, such as its portrait of economic adviser Arthur Burns: "His ample thatch of pewter-grey hair was precisely parted down the middle, as though to indulge the slightest deviation might make him look raffish."

But some asides are acid, to wit, the end of a report on how strong-willed H.R. Haldeman, bested in a face-to-face dispute with strong-willed John Connally, later became a big booster of Connally for the vice presidency in 1972:

"In the classic bully pattern, Haldeman was the first to knuckle under when faced with a true show of strength."

Might not such remarks, many of them aimed at Haldeman, cause some readers to say, ah-hah, Rather really was out to get those folks?

"Well, they'll just have to jump up and down," he replied. "For example, what is painted in the book is not only the Haldeman I know but the Haldeman I think an awful lot of White House people knew.

"I wouldn't question for a moment that if Haldeman read the book he might very well say to himself, or someone else, 'There's nobody in that book that I recognize.'"

Intelligent Women Sexually Aggressive

By TONY BAKER
Associated Press Writer

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Women with high IQs are often more sexually aggressive and less sexually inhibited than women of average intelligence, a Syracuse clinical psychologist reports after a 10-year study of sexuality of highly intelligent women.

Disputing humorist Dorothy Parker's oft-quoted, "Men seldom make passes at girls who wear glasses," Dr. Manfred F. DeMartino said in a recent interview:

"Men have been looking in the wrong direction for a long time. They should be making passes at girls who wear glasses. If anything, women of high intelligence are not only as sexy as those of average intelligence, but they are somewhat more so."

DeMartino, 45, who is also professor of psychology at Onondaga Community College, said many men believe that intelligence in women is incompatible with sexuality, and many women respond negatively to that belief.

"But I would hope as a result of these findings that women would no longer find their intelligence a detriment in love-sex relationships. They shouldn't feel they have to hide their intelligence. The problem lies with men, in making them aware of the fact that intelligence and sexual responsiveness do go together."

DeMartino said intelligent women "tend to have feelings of high self esteem, they seem to be more adventurous, more experimental and even more innovative in their sexual relationships. They also tend to be very well informed on matters pertaining to sex."

He said the study showed that intelligent women are most sexually active between the ages of 20 and 29, and most of them characterize their sex drives as stronger than average.

DeMartino's study was based on questionnaires filled out anonymously by 327 women aged 16 to 61. The women, most of them in the genius range, were primarily from the United States, but some were from Australia, Canada, England, Italy, The Netherlands, Hong Kong, New Guinea and Switzerland.

The results of DeMartino's study are presented in a book, "Sex and the Intelligent Woman."

DeMartino said he does not plan a similar study of sexuality of intelligent men.

"You can't get them to tell the truth, and they all consider themselves experts from the age of 14, anyway."

Alaskan Marijuana Case May Become A Hallmark

By TAD BARTIMUS
Associated Press Writer

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — The Alaska Supreme Court has taken under advisement a case challenging the constitutionality of marijuana laws in what could become a landmark case in the United States.

Lawyers for defendant Irwin Ravin, an Anchorage attorney, argued Wednesday that 30,000 Alaskans have used or possessed marijuana at least once. The lawyers also cited statistics from the 1973 National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse which determined that almost 26 million Americans have tried marijuana at least once.

Ravin was arrested on a marijuana possession charge after being searched by police when he refused to sign a traffic ticket in December 1972.

Last November, U.S. District Court Judge Dorothy Tyner denied a motion to dismiss Ravin's case on grounds of unconstitutionality. A Superior Court upheld Tyner's decision.

In Ravin's appeal, the state Supreme Court will consider these questions:

—Does restriction of marijuana use in private violate U.S. and state constitutional guarantees of liberty?

—Do the restrictions violate an individual's right to privacy?

—Is it irrational to classify marijuana with other, more dangerous drugs?

—Does the legality of alcohol and the illegality of marijuana deny those who wish to smoke marijuana due process of law?

Ravin's lawyers say the burden of proof lies with the government to show there is a "compelling public interest" in prohibiting use of the drug.

Arguing for the state, Steve Dunning, an assistant district attorney, described privacy as probably the "most amorphous of all rights ... this is a right which conceivably could swallow an enormous area of legislative power.

"I am not conceding this court must be convinced by the evidence," Dunning said. "If the quantum evidence (for legalization) is sufficient, I think the court should defer to the legislature."

The state high court has six months to render a decision on the challenge.

Return Of Roberts Requested By N.C.

Portland, Ore. (AP) — North Carolina authorities have requested that William Roland Roberts be returned to Wilkesboro to stand trial for murder and armed robbery in the death of a priest.

Roberts, 37, was arrested Saturday after he checked into a Portland hospital complaining of chest pains.

He is accused of robbing Father Francis Donahue, 62, last June in his rectory in North Wilkesboro. Donahue died of a heart attack while trying to free himself from his bonds, Wilkes County authorities said.

Wilkes County Sheriff E. Hoke Wiles said the request had been made but he had received no word on whether it would be approved.

Ohio authorities have also asked for Roberts. The 37-year-old federal parolee is wanted in Cincinnati for kidnapping and murder in the death of an elderly man.

He is charged with various offenses in several Southern states, many involving crimes against priests.

Portland authorities said Roberts' arraignment, scheduled for Tuesday, was postponed pending a federal parole violation hearing.

No date has been set for the parole hearing.

Snake Was For Real, Not A Rubber Toy

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)— Policeman J.A. Corriher picked up what he thought was a rubber snake put in his patrol car as a practical joke--and found it was a live nine-inch copperhead.

He said it struck at him several times but missed after he touched it Wednesday. He threw it from the car and killed it.

He said he knows of no reason why someone put the snake in the car other than that he is a police officer.

Another policeman, R.J. Whiteside, who drives the car on alternate shifts with Corriher, believes the snake was in the vehicle when he used it Tuesday.

He says that Tuesday evening his 6-year-old son Robert Jr. "stepped up inside the door on the driver's side to say goodby, and jumped back saying something had stung him.

"I looked around, thinking it had been a bee or a hornet, but I found nothing."

Whiteside said the boy's foot swelled and discolored. But it was not until Wednesday, when Corriher called and told about the snake, that Whiteside had any inkling of what had happened to his son.

"We took him to a doctor, but the bite was not serious," Whiteside said.

Invitations For N.C. Awards Ceremony Available To Public

Invitations are now in the mail for the 11th annual North Carolina Awards dinner, to be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday, October 23, at the Royal Villa in Raleigh.

Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr. will present the awards, the most coveted honor the state can bestow upon its citizens.

The General Assembly of 1961 established the North Carolina Awards Committee to "make annual awards for notable accomplishments by North Carolina citizens in the fields of scholarship, research, the fine arts and public leadership."

Four awards will be given this year. Grace J. Rohrer, Secretary of the North Carolina Department of Cultural Resources, said. The committee, headed by Mrs. Oliver Rowe of Charlotte as chairman, is an agency of the department.

Mrs. Rohrer also said the after-dinner recption honoring the award winners would return to the Governor's Mansion this year. For several years the reception has been held at the North Carolina Museum of Art because the Mansion was being renovated.

"We are especially pleased," she said, "that the reception can be held once again at the Mansion as the most fitting and appropriate place to honor these distinguished North Carolinians."

The award winners are chosen by the committee which works with sub-committees in the area of fine arts, literature, public service and science. The sub-committees also annually amke nominations recognizing significant "creative achievement."

The other members of the committee are: Wellington B. Gray, Greenville; Dr. George W. Pearsall, Durham; Dr. J. Archie Hargraves, Raleigh; and Richard Maxwell, Greensboro.

The award itself consists of a gold medal, designed by the distinguished sculptor Paul Manship. One side of the medal portrays a sculptured concept of the Great Seal of North Carolina. On the other is a scroll enclosed in these words: "Achievement Is Man's Mark of Greatness."

Anyone wishing to attend the dinner but not receiving an invitation may obtain one by writing the North Carolina Awards Committee, care of North Carolina Department of Cultural Resources, 109 E. Jones St., Raleigh, N.C. 27611. The black tie dinner is $7 per person.

Loses Court Bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lincoln Theodore Perry, the black actor known as Stepin Fetchit, has lost a bid for Supreme Court review of his claim that the Columbia Broadcasting System libeled him and invaded his privacy.

The court let stand Tuesday a decision of the U.S. Circuit Court in Chicago that Perry was a public figure and therefore could not collect damages unless CBS maliciously defamed him.

Perry, 72, sued because of a 1968 television special on black history in which he was described as having popularized "the tradition of the lazy, stupid, crap-shooting, chicken-stealing idiot."

Perry denied this saying he had "elevated the Negro" in the 33 films he made before leaving the movie business in 1938 during a contract dispute.

He said the television special destroyed his show business career and caused him to lose a role in the TV series, "Sanford and Son," for which he made a pilot film. Perry, who lives in Indianapolis, had continued as an entertainer after leaving movies.
