

Pockets Of Excellence Results Were Presented

About 250 educators, business leaders and other eastern North Carolinians gathered at East Carolina University Thursday to hear the results of ECU's

"Pockets of Excellence" research program. Nine ECU-sponsored investigators reported on their projects, which took them to such distant places as the British Isles, Northern Europe and Japan in search of ideas which would further develop eastern North Carolina economically and culturally.

Those attending the conference were welcomed by ECU Chancellor Leo Jenkins, who urged all eastern North Carolinians to make use of ECU's resources in their search for better life styles here.

Each investigator spoke briefly at the conference's morning session, describing their experiences in their chosen areas, and suggesting ways in which the programs they studied elsewhere could be implemented in eastern North Carolina.

ECU School of Business Dean James Bearden reported on his examination of industrial training programs in Great Britain. The result of Britain's 1964 Industrial Training Act, the British program is carried out by boards set up to administer and equalize funds for industrial training in all the nation's major industries.

Each industry pays a small percentage to support the training programs, said Dr. Bearden, but the industries receive infinite benefit in return by having well-trained employees for their operations.

A history-oriented reading program for disadvantaged youth was described by Dr. William Cobb of the ECU history faculty. He said the idea for his investigation was suggested to him by his previous experience as a member of the Xavier University history faculty.

Xavier, the only predominantly black Catholic university in the U.S., was sponsored by the Carnegie Foundation in its attempt to provide a meaningful remedial program for its students whose poor reading ability was inhibiting their success in college.

Dr. John D. Ebbs, professor of English at ECU, reported on his study of two community drama companies in England, at Stoke-on-Trent and at Birmingham. "Eastern North Carolina, because of its rich cultural heritage and great historical significance, is a good potential location for community drama," he said. The English companies bring drama "to the people," with performances of standard drama such as Shakespeare's plays, children's plays and documentary dramas celebrating the area's historical events.

The leisure industry as a possible source of economic development for eastern North Carolina was discussed by H. O. Edwards Jr. of the ECU

Dean Gives Testimony About Assurances

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House counsel John W. Dean III testified today that John D. Ehrlichman said he would talk to then President Richard M. Nixon about demands by some of the Watergate burglars for assurances of help from the White House.

Dean, testifying at the Watergate cover-up trial of Ehrlichman and four other men, said the demand was communicated to special counsel Charles W. Colson from E. Howard Hunt, one of the principals in the Watergate burglary.

On Jan. 3, 1973, Dean said, Colson reported that he had met with Hunt's attorney, William O. Bittman, who said Hunt was "most distraught, washed out, his ulcers were bothering him, his mental attitude was bad and he wanted to plead guilty" unless assurances were coming from the White House.

"Ehrlichman said Colson should not get into any specific executive clemency or grants of clemency with Mr. Bittman," Dean said. He added that Ehrlichman said he "would take it up with the President himself and that Colson should not bring it up but wait until Ehrlichman gets back to him."

Congress In Recess

By HARRISON HUMPHRIES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is in recess until Nov. 18 after breaking a stalemate with President Ford over cutting off military aid to Turkey.

A compromise on a twice-vetoed money bill suspends aid to Turkey Dec. 10, or sooner if Turkey increases its 40,000-man occupation force in Cyprus or sends it any more U.S. "implements of war."

The compromise was worked out after the House failed Thursday for the second time in a week to override Ford's veto of a normally routine funding resolution. The Turkey military aid ban was attached to the resolution.

The House vote on the veto was 161 to 83, two short of the two-thirds majority required to override. The compromise was passed by the House 191 to 33 and in the Senate by voice vote.

Both houses of Congress then closed up shop for a 32-day recess until after the Nov. 5 election, when they will return to tackle unfinished business, including appropriations for several major government departments.

Final action on the money resolution and the President's agreement to sign it took the squeeze off thousands of government employees who had been facing payless paydays next week.

The resolution provides funding authority to operate agencies for which regular appropriation bills have not been passed. These include foreign aid programs and activities of the Health-Education-Welfare, Labor and Agriculture departments and several smaller federal agencies, legally without funds since Sept. 30.

The Turkey aid rider was added because U.S.-supplied equipment was used in the invasion and partial occupation of Cyprus beginning July 20. U.S. law limits the use of American aid equipment to defensive purposes.

Under the rider, the President can suspend the cutoff until Dec. 10 if he determines this action will assist negotiations between Greece, Turkey and Cyprus for a peaceful settlement of the Cyprus dispute, but "only if, during that time, Turkey shall observe the ceasefire and shall neither increase its forces on Cyprus nor transfer any United States supplied implements of war to Cyprus."

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., who said he was the author of the "implements of war" language, said it means weapons, aircraft and munitions or any other defense article used, by itself or in combination with other articles, to kill, wound or destroy.

Historic Step

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., announced today at the White House what he described as a historic step aimed at ensuring free emigration from the Soviet Union of at least 60,000 persons a year.

On Jan. 5, three days before Hunt and the six other men were scheduled to go on trial, Colson told Ehrlichman and Dean that "I have given Bittman assurances, but no hard commitments," Dean testified. He said that Colson related he had told the Hunt lawyer:

"You can tell Hunt a year is a long time and clemency is generally considered around Christmas time."

After hearing that, Dean said, he told Ehrlichman that the word certainly would spread among the other defendants and asked what he should do if they also made demands on the White House.

"He said give the others the same assurances but no hard commitments," Dean related.

Afterward, he said, he told former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, also one of the defendants in this case, about the assurances given to Hunt but said he could not recall Mitchell's response.

Dean also testified that Ehrlichman and Mitchell became uneasy about the prospect of re-election committee official Frederick LaRue traveling about the country soliciting funds without being able to say what the money would be used for.

Dean quoted Ehrlichman as saying, "It's a very bad idea for LaRue to go around the country raising this money."

Dean said Ehrlichman suggested that a Greek millionaire and long-time Nixon campaign supporter, Thomas Pappas, be contacted as a possible source of funds to help the original Watergate defendants.

Dean's testimony came after the court was told that Nixon may soon be well enough to testify in person.

Welfare Funds Cut By $43.5 Million

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirty-five states and the District of Columbia have been told they will receive $43.5 million less in federal funds than they had requested to pay welfare recipients during the last half of this year.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare announced Thursday it was reducing its matching grants by $61.7 million for the remainder of the year to prod states into weeding out ineligible welfare families and eliminating over-payments.

States had estimated they could save $18.2 million through their efforts. HEW told them, in effect, that they were expected to better that, by $43.5 million.

HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger called the reductions "advance downward adjustments."

James S. Dwight, administrator of HEW's Social and Rehabilitation Service, said the new get-tough welfare program had saved state and federal taxpayers $71 million during the first six months of 1974 and should do even better the second six months.

During the first half-year, 37,500 ineligible families had been cut off from the Aid to Families with Dependent Children, he said.

Although that was a modest reduction, in light of the 10.7 million men, women and children receiving $8 billion in AFDC payments annually,

WHAT'S SUMMER THEATER'S FUTURE?
What happened to the ECU Summer Theater?
How can we get it back? R.M.

Albert Pertalion, general manager of the East Carolina Playhouse, answers, "The East Carolina Summer Theater has not been cancelled; it has just been postponed temporarily. There are several reasons for this postponement: 1. Inflation has raised the cost of productions enormously; 2. McGinnis Auditorium, where the performances were held, is in very great need of repair; and 3. New Broadway show that can be produced in Greenville are in short supply.

"What can be done about inflation is anybody's guess," he went on. "The State of North Carolina has granted the Department of Drama money to plan renovations for McGinnis, and by the time these renovations are completed, several good musicals should be available to the Summer Theater. "The concern for the Summer Theater is gratifying and we are all anxious to get cracking again," he said.

LOCKED DOORS
Is it lawful to lock marked exits in an auditorium? I'm referring to Wright Auditorium. E. S.

Associate Dean of Student Affairs Rudolph Alexander said that, according to written procedure provided him and all who work under him, all exits of any building on the ECU campus should be unlocked during any gathering of people, however large or small. If you found an exit locked at Wright during such a gathering, human error was at fault, he said, and hopefully it will not happen again. Most of the buildings on the campus now have panic bars, which when pressed against from the inside trip a lock so no one can be locked in. However, because of its age, Wright does not have these, Alexander said. Anyone finding such an exit locked during a gathering should mention it to a campus policeman, who would have a key to open an outside door, he added.

WHAT ABOUT SIGN?
Why isn't there a sign on State Road 1565 to warn about the train crossing there? A boy was killed there recently, you know. C.J.B.

Department of Transportation Engineer C. W. Snell sent a member of the traffic engineering department to check and make sure all warnings were in place at the intersection you mentioned. He reported that the crossbuck sign provided by the railroad is in place, as are advance railroad signs and signs painted on the pavement on either side.

Best Proof

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Egypt's official Middle East News Agency said Russia and Egypt announced today they have agreed to support the establishment of a Palestinian state as a prerequisite for an over-all peaceful settlement in the Middle East.

In a joint communique reported here by the news agency, the two countries called for seating the Palestine Liberation Organization at any future Geneva peace talks as a full participant.

The communique was issued after a visit to Moscow by Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy.

Supports Palestine State

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — The "best proof" that the state's open meeting law is working is the fact that the League of Municipalities wants to go before the legislature and emaculate it, Rep. Carl Stewart, D-Gaston, said Thursday night.

Stewart was chief sponsor of the 1971 statute that established "the public policy of this state that of the hearings, deliberations and actions of governmental bodies be conducted openly."

A committee of the state League of Municipalities recommended Wednesday a weakening of the law, in effect giving public bodies more leeway to meet in secret or executive sessions.

The committee was headed by Mayor James R. Hawkins of Durham, a city that has lost a court case about its zoning board meeting in secret.

The league will vote on the committee recommendation at its meeting in Asheville later this month.

No Deadline On Green Mill Run Project

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

City Manager Bill Carstarphen reported that he has received a number of calls from interested citizens concerning the status of the proposed Green Mill Run Flood Control Project.

Carstarphen said that a number of people have indicated concern about what they understood to be a deadline by which time the community should either approve or disapprove of the project. The mentioned deadline was Oct. 23, he added.

The city manager said that three points should be emphasized concerning the program.

Condition Excellent

By CHARLES WHITE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller's wife, Happy, was reported in excellent condition today after a breast cancer operation similar to that performed three weeks ago on First Lady Betty Ford.

"Mrs. Rockefeller had a very comfortable night and her condition this morning is reported to be excellent," said a bulletin released in mid-morning by Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center, where her left breast was removed in a 3½-hour operation Thursday.

Doctors have said there was no evidence of cancer in Mrs. Rockefeller's lymph nodes, and chances of long-term survival are about 90 per cent.

get underway before November of 1975." He said that "assuming the project is approved and that it is authorized by the Secretary of the Army, the normal course of events would require at least another 12 months from now before any construction activity would get underway and possibly 18 months."

The third point, he explained, is that, "Prior to initiation of the project, the Corps... must receive from the city a contract committing the city to carry out its share of the proposed project" involving reconstruction of two bridges and continued maintenance of the project. According to Carstarphen, the City Council has to approve any contract and the signature of the mayor is necessary to validate the document. "That contract is not expected to come to the City Council at least for another six months," he pointed out. He emphasized, again, the point that the city is not faced with a "go or no go" decision by Oct. 23. Anyone desiring additional information on the matter should contact the city manager's office at city hall, he said.

Matthew Whealton Admits Shooting Lynwood Branch

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

A Pitt County Superior Court Jury heard Matthew Jack Whealton say yesterday he shot Pitt County businessman Lynwood Branch on the night of March 29.

Branch's wife, Connie Hardee Branch and a Kinston man, Roy Lee Sullivan, are on trial on charges of conspiracy to murder and being accessories before the fact of murder in connection with the death.

Whealton of Chesapeake, Va., was the only witness to testify in the case yesterday.

He, along with Howard P. Wiseman of Norfolk, are charged with murder and conspiracy to murder in connection with the Branch death.

Yesterday, Whealton told the court that he shot Branch on the night of March 29.

According to the witness, he drove Wiseman to the Branch home that night and put him off at the front of the house. Wiseman, he told the court, was left at the home "to kill him"

(Branch) when the businessman returned to his residence.

Whealton said he then left the area, but returned in "ten or 15 minutes" and "saw Mr. Wiseman walking toward 264 (U.S. 264)." Wiseman, according to Whealton "said he couldn't do it."

The witness then told the court that the two men started to leave the area once more, but saw the Branch car headed toward the Branch home and followed it.

Whealton testified that he "turned into the drive behind Mr. Branch," and when Branch got out of his car, "I sat in my car and called to him."

Branch walked toward the Whealton vehicle, the witness said. "About 15 foot away, I fired my gun at him. Mr. Branch stood there looking at me," then started walking toward Whealton's car and fell. "I took my left hand and pushed him away. He fell to the ground," Whealton related.

Whealton said the March 29 trip to Greenville was the third time he and Wiseman had come to do the killing. He said the first time was on March 19, when he and Wiseman went to the Branch store "for the express purpose of killing Mr. Lynwood Branch," but left without making any attempt when a "lady drove up and sat in her car." With the woman there, Whealton said, it was a "good idea not to try to eliminate Mr. Branch at that time."

He told the court that a March

Mrs. Tillett To Conduct Workshop On Saturday

A descendant of one of the signers of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence, Mrs. Gladys Avery Tillett, will be in Greenville Saturday to conduct a workshop for members of ERA United in the First Congressional District.

ERA United is composed of a number of organizations which are working for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment by the 200th anniversary of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence, May 20, 1975.

Included in this group are the League of Women Voters, United Methodist Women, YWCA, AFL-CIO, Business and Professional Women, the North Carolina Nurses Association, and others. "The list is growing daily as other groups join," says Mrs. Tillett, who is president of the organization.

Saturday's meeting will begin at noon with a dutch luncheon at the Three Steers Family Restaurant on Memorial Drive. Convenor for the group is Tennala A. Gross, who works with ERA United as coordinator for the First Congressional District. Working with her are Nelson B. Crisp, vice president of the North Carolina Women's Political Caucus, and Stephanie Carstarphen, coordinator for the Greenville ERA Coalition.

Representatives for ERA will be attending from the 21 counties comprising the First Congressional District. Other interested persons are also welcome to attend the workshop.

Mrs. Tillett, now in her seventies, was a college student during the time women were working for the right to vote. She was active in that effort and has continued her activities. She is the widow of the late Charles W. Tillett, a Charlotte attorney who served as president of the North Carolina Bar Association. She has three children and 10 grandchildren.

During her years of political activity Mrs. Tillett says she has become convinced that "it is not the hand that rocks the cradle, but the hand that puts the ballot in the ballot box that rules the world."

Children Are Concerned About Their Father

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by The Chicago Tribune

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 13-year-old girl. I'm writing this for my brother (he's 12) and myself because we both have the same problem. It's our father.

He refuses to take a vacation. Dad says he can't spare the time. He's in the insurance business and he makes a good living, but what good is the money if he works himself to death? Mom is a housewife. We live in a nice home in the suburbs, have two cars, nice clothes and my brother and I go to a good camp.

Mom and Dad haven't had a vacation together since they've been married. Other families take a vacation every year. All our dad knows is work. Is there some way we can get him to take a vacation?

We're not asking for a trip ourselves. We'd be happy if he took Mom and went someplace for a rest. Can you solve our problem?
MILWAUKEE KIDS

DEAR KIDS: You might tell Dad that because you love him you want him to live a long time, so he'd better take care of his health. Being in the insurance business he knows that all work and no play make a lot of jack, but it also makes Jack a poor insurance risk.

DEAR ABBY: I am being married soon. My fiance's favorite brother, who was asked to be our best man, has just undergone his third operation. He will be out of the hospital in time for our wedding, but he'll be in a wheelchair for several months.

My fiance insists that his brother be in the wedding party, wheelchair or no wheelchair.

Abby, there will be over 500 people at the wedding and reception. I'm having a professional photographer take pictures of the whole thing—even movies—and I just know that wheelchair will ruin everything. Imagine, the best man going down the aisle in a wheelchair! I'm afraid people will laugh.

Please don't get me wrong, Abby. I love my future brother-in-law and am sorry for what he's had to go through, but I think someone else should take his place as best man. Am I wrong for wanting everything to be perfect?
PHOENIX BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: If by "perfect" you mean appearances over the feelings of your fiance and his favorite brother, you are indeed wrong.

A best man in a wheelchair (or for that matter, ANY member of the wedding in a wheelchair) is not unique in the annals of wedding ceremonies. And it's not apt to be laughed at.

DEAR ABBY: Sixteen years ago I read a letter in your column urging readers to remove the doors from stored and abandoned iceboxes and refrigerators so children couldn't crawl into them and become accidentally trapped. (You called them "potential coffins.")

I remembered that letter so vividly because the year before, I had lost a precious four-year-old grandson in such a senseless accident. Following his death, his mother (my daughter-in-law) had psychiatric treatment for a year to overcome her recurring nightmares and feelings of guilt.

I read the same warning in your column three more times over the years.

Yesterday I read a small item in our local newspaper. A seven-year-old girl, who had been missing for 12 hours, was found dead in an abandoned icebox stored in the basement of a playmate's home. During a game of hide and seek, the child had crawled into the icebox, was trapped, and eventually died of suffocation.

Abby, will you please warn your readers again? It may save a young life.
GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: I will. But most people are strange. They think the weird things about which they read can never happen to them.

Chapter Members Hear Program By Mrs. Howell

Mrs. Sue Craft Howell was the speaker at the first meeting of the year of Delta chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma held last evening at St. James United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Howell, who heads the chapter's committee on research, chose as her subject "New View Points." The backdrop for her remarks was "Changing times, Changing values, Education for Today and the Future", and the focus was "Continuing Education for Women Educators."

"We fear change because we don't know the outcome; because change affects the life style with which we are comfortable; because change affects our teaching methodology, disrupts our pet philosophies, and deprives us of our sacred cows," Mrs. Howell told the group.

She said that their profession demanded that educators be conversant with the futurists' concepts of today's and tomorrow's learning. She challenged her listeners to delve into the thoughts of Alvin Toffler's "Future Shock" and his editorializing work, "Learning For The Future."

Mrs. Howell discussed alternative standards presented by writers such as Dr. Shulamith Firestone and Dr. Alice Rossi. She said that today's schools systematically prepare young women for yesterday's future, damaging their intellectual and creative abilities, ignoring major changes that are likely to restructure the form and function of the family.

The speaker closed her talk with the comment, "Despite our fear of the future—I am optimistic. My credo is: There is a miracle in every new beginning. May I challenge you to share this optimistic attitude!"

Preceding the program, Mrs. Edna Earle Baker, newly-elected president, presided over the business meeting. Gifts were presented to two members who have recently retired, Mrs. Selina L. Davenport and Mrs. Miriam D. Little. The presentations were made by Mrs. Lena B. Brown and Mrs. Elizabeth R. Wilkerson.

Mrs. Gale D. Sanderson, presented a study of the present membership with implications for future membership needs. A discussion of finance and policies was led by Mrs. Betsy P. West, who chairs the committee which is responsible for these departments.

Mrs. Anna B. Harrington chaired the hostess committee which decorated the meeting room and planned the dinner which preceded the meeting. Working with her were Mrs. Madeline Griffin, Mrs. Margaret Hadden, Mrs. Howell, Miss Carolyn Fulghum, Miss Elisabeth Hyman, Miss Ruth Garner, Miss Ruth White, and Miss Camille Clarke.

Yearly Programs Discussed By Opti-Mrs.

Programs for the new year were discussed at Tuesday night's meeting of the Opti-Mrs. Club of Greenville, which was held at the home of Mrs. Wade Trask.

During a business meeting conducted by Mrs. Charles Ross, new president, members voted to hold a dinner meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 19, and to decorate for the Optimist Club Christmas party scheduled for Dec. 14.

The club's Christmas dinner party will be held at the home of Mrs. Max Stephenson on Dec. 15.

A report on the status of Operation Sunshine was given by Mrs. Ross, who is a member of the Operation Sunshine board. Mrs. Larry Good told of plans for the Evening Optimist Club's boat show scheduled for March 31-April 6 at Nichols Discount City. The women will assist the Optimists during the show.

A Tupperware sale will be held by the club during the next months and proceeds will be used for club projects.

Members were reminded to bring unwrapped gifts to the November meeting to be given to Operation Sunshine.

Spit-Roast Lamb Is Economical

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

We find that spit-roasting a leg of lamb on an open broiler-rotisserie is economical and provides great eating. Because the spit-roasting is slow and even, there's little shrinkage and the meat goes a long way; it comes to the table the way it should — with roasted, not steamed, flavor and texture.

Our spit-roast lamb, the first time around, was served to six for an elegant dinner. Then we used the leftover meat for an informal curry supper for four as well as for two hefty sandwiches for a weekend lunch. In addition, because we bought a leg of lamb weighing about 7½ pounds, we had a little of the shank bone cut off and used it along with the bones from the roast meat for a barley soup that made four hearty portions for another lunch. Sixteen servings in all.

Open broiler-rotisseries are smokeless, nonspatter and easy to clean. They come in two sizes: one has a compact 12 by 8½ inch heating element and the other an extra large 15 by 10 inch heating element.

Using just the broiler part of the open broiler-rotisserie is fine for the broiled chicken and fish that so many of us like to serve often these days.

If you plan to invest in a rotisserie, you may want to consider acquiring a meat thermometer with a short stem especially designed for spit-roasting. One of these we've tried is stainless steel and may also be used when roasting meat in the oven of the kitchen range. While the usual long-stem meat thermometers may be used in rotisserie cooking, we find the short stem of this latest tool is a big advantage because any meat thermometer used with the rotisserie has to be inserted so that it clears all parts of the unit as the spit rotates.

The following recipe is a great one for spit-roast lamb. When a friend gave it to us, and before we tried it, we wondered whether the coating of coarse salt, tarragon and peppercorns might fall off. Interestingly enough it doesn't, and it adds immeasurable flavor to the meat.

SPIT-ROASTED LAMB
5 to 7½ pound leg of lamb
2 garlic cloves, slivered
2 tablespoons coarsely ground black pepper
2 tablespoons coarse (kosher) salt
½ to 1 teaspoon crushed dried tarragon

If a 7½-pound leg of lamb is used, you may have to have enough of the shank bone cut off so roast is no longer than heating element of open broiler-rotisserie. Let lamb stand at room temperature for a few hours before roasting. With a sharp pointed knife, make deep slits at intervals in the surface of the meat and insert a garlic sliver in each. Stir together the remaining ingredients and roll lamb in mixture, patting it down. Slide a holding fork to the end of rotisserie spit. Insert spit through lamb so that it is well-balanced and insert other holding fork; secure. Place on spit supports so that meat is as close as possible to the heating element without touching it. If used, insert meat thermometer. Place motor on spit arm support; turn on motor. Spit-roast to desired doneness — it will take 2½ to 3 hours for well-done meat — 175 degrees on the meat thermometer.

RALEIGH (AP)—Gates opened at 9 a.m. today for the 107th annual North Carolina State Fair.

Fair Manager Art Pitzer predicted Thursday after a tour of the fairgrounds that "This is going to be a great fair."

"A lot of effort has gone into it," he added. "The grounds look good, the exhibits look good. We're enthusiastic about it."

"One thing that impressed me are the 4-H exhibits in the Education Building. They're perhaps the best we've had," Pitzer added. "The number of entries and exhibits is up 20 per cent over last year."

Pitzer listed two highlights this year as "The Cotton Patch," which relates the development of cotton from the field to the finished product, and "Hog Heaven," which tells the story of pork.

Singers Jerry Reed and Susan Raye will be in Dorton Arena Friday and Saturday nights. Roy Clark is scheduled to appear with the North Carolina Symphony Sunday afternoon and night.

Awards for the best commercial and non-commercial exhibits will be presented Tuesday night in Dorton Arena.

The James E. Strates rides and shows will again be in the midway.

School Board Meets Monday

The regular October meeting of the Greenville City School Board will take place Monday, October 21, at 8 p.m. in the boardroom at 431 West Fifth Street.

Among agenda items are ones on budget-finance matters; reports on school facilities to include long range plans and facilities at Agnes Fullilove; and the 1975-76 curriculum.

Other items on the agenda are resignations and election of personnel; an occupational report, and a monthly report on food service.

Family Band, Cloggers Gave Program

WINTERVILLE—The Flattand Family Band and the Green Grass Cloggers of Greenville presented the program of traditional and blue grass music at the Winterville Ruritan Club's ladies night Tuesday night.

The meeting was held in the cafeteria of A. G. Cox Grammar School.

President H. D. Weaver gave the welcome address to the Ruritan ladies and the response was given by Mrs. J. H. Mobley.

Jimmy Dunn, chairman of the program committee, presented the entertainer, to the club members.

Mrs. L. H. Ellis and Mrs. Linwood Rouse were in charge of decorations.

Fighting Flares In Charlotte Schools

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP)—Four youngsters were injured today as racial fighting spread to two more public schools in the Charlotte-Mecklenburg system.

School officials said none of those injured was hurt seriously in fighting that broke out in mid-morning at South Mecklenburg High School. About 100 pupils, most of them black, left the campus after being instructed to return to class or leave school.

Authorities said no one was injured in two small outbreaks at Kennedy Junior High School, which is in the same attendance area as Olympic High - where fighting forced the suspension of classes Thursday.

The disturbance at South Mecklenburg broke out during the closing minutes of a pep

"Curious Eyes" Given OK

WILMINGTON, N. C. (AP)—A Superior Court judge ruled today that an anthology entitled "The Curious Eye" does not violate North Carolina's laws on obscenity.

Judge Joshua James, ending a two-day hearing, dismissed a restraining order that barred the use of the book in two New Hanover County high schools.

James said he had found that the "book has serious literary and educational value."

Keeping Order Is Local Matter

It would be easy enough for southerners to gloat over the Boston school situation, but it is important to recognize that it is a tragic situation which involves people fighting one another.

We must also consider that any school violence anywhere in the nation has the potential of becoming major trouble which could spread anywhere in the country.

Thus we would hope that the present pattern of racial violence which has engulfed the Boston school system during its time of integration will soon be replaced by a period of harmony. Many southern school systems, after initial violence upon integration of the schools, settled down to relative periods of quietness following the initial shock. We think that can happen in Boston, if that city can survive the current troubles which beset it.

In the meantime, Boston has the problem of how to best handle the violence. There are 450 state and metropolitan police on duty in the city and the troubles seem to be beyond their control.

The governor of Massachusetts mobilized 500 riot trained National Guardsmen for duty. Unfortunately Boston Mayor Kevin H. White is not helping the situation by resisting use of the National Guardsmen and instead yelling for federal force to handle the situation.

President Ford has, and should, continue to resist the calls for federal marshalls or troops in Boston. Keeping order is a local responsibility and if local authorities can't do it, the state should step in and assist. Using federal troops should be only a last resort and only where there is a total break-down of the law.

Sending federal troops around the country to use bayonets against our own people opens the door for some future dictator type to take over the country with military might.

There is ample force in Massachusetts to handle the situation in Boston and this force should be used prior to any federal intervention. Troops have been alerted at Ft. Bragg apparently because of the Boston situation, but we sincerely hope that President Ford will maintain his policy of looking to local and state authorities to handle the situation.

THIS AFTERNOON Selection Changes Studied

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—What started as a political hassle over who shall name members of the state's Textbook Commission has resulted in a far-reaching study likely to produce recommendations for major change.

The action of Republican Gov. James W. Holshouser in delaying, then rejecting appointment of the nominees put forth by Democratic Supt. of Education Craig Phillips precipitated creation of a special study commission by the General Assembly to report back on any recommended changes.

New Concerns
Members of that commission have found that the need for change goes far beyond the simple question of who appoints the members. It goes to how much involvement there would be for parents, students, and teachers in picking school materials; how much latitude local school officials should have beyond the textbooks on the approved state list; how can teachers be assured of money to buy films and records and other supplementary teaching aids to accompany the textbooks; and how can parents and legislators be educated to the fact that not every school course these days requires a textbook at all—the money might better be spent for other materials.

George S. Willard, superintendent of city schools in Wilson, and a former chairman of the Textbook Commission, said the system has served North Carolina well in the past, and that despite the political flap, he finds the Present Textbook Commission doing an outstanding job.

"But, it is timely and well that we have decided to take a look at the system... other forces are at work which make some recommendations for change well advised," said Willard, chairman of the special study commission. The group will compile a report to the General Assembly.

"I think there will be some change. We have reached no consensus on any point at this time... but then of course, the matter of the method of appointment is one of the concerns," Willard said.

Carefully noting that he was expressing his own personal view at this state, Willard said he expect the size of the 12-member Textbook Commission to be increased, but not to 25 members as had been suggested by the legislature.

Support Phillips
He thinks perhaps a deadline for appointment of new members will be considered to avoid the delay created by the governor last year, and said, "I tend to feel that nominations should be made by the state superintendent, so long as he tries for a proper balance in expertise and geographical balance."

"But if the governor can just ignore all that—even though he appoints good people—then I'm inclined toward supporting the recommendations of the superintendent for it to work best."

The study group has been discussing the idea of changing the law to have the superintendent recommend and the State Board of Education appoint, but some see that as "too much in house."

Phillips told the study commission recently that he will seek an increase in the next General Assembly from $8 per pupil to $12 per pupil for textbooks, and that he is also pondering whether the definition of textbook needs to be changed so that money can be used for other things.

"Parents just expect a kid to have a book," Phillips said, but the problem is that books are being replaced by new learning kits and workshop materials. But textbook money, by law, is restricted to books.

Members of the commission suggested that trying to broaden the definition would probably confuse parents and legislators.

The state currently spends some $9 million yearly on textbooks, with the Textbook Commission picking the books used in elementary classes, and selecting a variety of junior and senior high school books for consideration by local schools.

Other areas of concern on the study group include a system to assure some Textbook Commission members are carried over from one term to the next to assure continuity, and a method of providing coverage for the middle school books which are now in limbo between the elementary and high school divisions of the Textbook Commission.

Parade of the Watergate defendants

By ART BUCHWALD

With Money, And Without

WASHINGTON — The two major political problems in this country this week are that Nelson Rockefeller seems to have too much money and Richard Nixon doesn't seem to have enough.
Last Friday the headlines said Rocky was throwing around money like a drunken congressman, while the Justice Department had made a deal to defend Richard Nixon's Watergate civil suits at no cost to him.
This angered many people in the country, including Selwyn Mims who called in a rage. "Why should I as a taxpayer have to foot Nixon's legal fees?"
"Because," I said, "that's the way they do it over at Justice. They fell they own Nixon something."
"Why doesn't Rocky give him the money?" Mims wanted to know.
"Why should Rockefeller give him any money?" I asked.

"Because if Nixon hadn't resigned, Rockefeller wouldn't be the vice-presidential candidate now."
"That's true, but Rockefeller can't just give money to everybody. After all, there's even a limit to his fortune," I said.
"How do you know that?" He had me there. "I'm just guessing there's a limit. There is, isn't there?"
"Why are you asking me?" Selwyn wanted to know. "Anyway I think we should make Rocky promise to take care of Nixon for the rest of his life."
"That's not cheap," I warned Selwyn. "Nixon likes a lot of perks, such as servants, chauffeurs, secretaries, ghostwriters, not to mention a press secretary and a large office staff."
"Rocky can handle it," Selwyn assured me. "At least, he can afford it more than we can."

"But," I said, "here could be a conflict of interest. Suppose Nixon ran for public office again? If he had accepted a gift of money he'd be under obligation to Rockefeller."

ART BUCHWALD

"If you read Rockefeller's statements he has never given anybody money except as a gesture of appreciation and friendship. Not once has he taken advantage of the gifts."
"You know that," I said, "and I know that. But does Nixon know it? I think you have a good idea, but it won't fly. We, the public should give Nixon anything he asks for and not leave it up to the Rockefeller's of this world."
"While I'm the first to agree that this country should economize, I don't believe it should be at the expense of an ex-President who was forced to resign because he was up to his ears in the obstruction of justice for which he has been given a full and unqualified pardon."
"Well it was just an idea," Selwyn said. "You don't have to get sore at me."
"I'm sorry. I lost my cool," I said. "But you have to admit, we've reached a sorry point in this country when we question a man who gives one or two million dollars away to people he has a deep affection for."
"I wasn't questioning that," Mims protested. "All I was suggesting was a way to take care of Nixon's legal and household bills without sticking the taxpayer. Gerry Ford did ask us to think of ways of saving money."
"He also said it was time we forgave Rockefeller," I said, "because he's suffered enough."

Querying Rockefeller

Now that disclosure of Nelson Rockefeller's gifts and loans has created a public stir, the whole matter should be fully aired and cleared up. A recall of the Vice-President-Designate to testify before the Senate Rules Committee would make this possible.

The question Americans will want satisfied is: Were these gifts intended in any way to buy favors or influence? Or, as Mr. Rockefeller maintains, were they the disinterested sharing of his wealth with friends and associates to help keep them in public service?

The gifts, totalling about $2 million since 1957, raise some justifiable doubts about Mr. Rockefeller's judgment. One wonders, for one, why he thought it proper to donate $15,000 recently to the campaign fund of Senator Jacob Javits, who sits on the Senate committee that must approve his nomination.

Especially disappointing is Mr. Rockefeller's connection with the publication of a derogatory biography of Arthur Goldberg, his Democratic opponent in the 1970 New York gubernatorial campaign. It is not thought the book had any effect in the election and Mr. Rockefeller has now apologized to the former Supreme Court justice. But the incident leaves a nasty taste.

Coming as all this does in the wake of Watergate, it adds to the public's cynicism that government officials look after themselves and their own. President Ford is earnestly seeking to lift that miasma of suspicion that has so long swirled around the administration. Yet the latest Gallup poll shows that his rating had dropped dramatically since he took office — largely because of the Nixon pardon.

How can it be driven home to all public officials that if they are to restore a sense of integrity and confidence in government their acts must not make it appear that there is one law for the rich and mighty and another for the poor and powerless?

The INSIDE REPORT

A Loner From Out Of The West

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
LOS ANGELES—The minimum joy with which many California Democratic stalwarts await their greatest election landslide in 16 years can be traced to this paradox: they regard 36-year-old Edmund G. Brown, Jr., riding the anti-Republican wave toward a landslide victory for governor, with emotions ranging from disdain to intense dislike.

Some of these prominent Democrats confide that in the polling booth Nov. 5, they will vote for embattled Republican nominee, state controller Houston I. Flournoy. But voters, their eyes glued to television, perceive a different Jerry Brown. Exhibiting a reformist image but wisely avoiding ideological pitfalls, he comes across as refreshingly youthful, energetic and free of old political entanglements. Moreover, Brown and his allies have privately revealed presidential ambitions, even for 1976.

Brown, then, is another of the new Democratic species of the 1970s: the loner detached from conventional party ties appealing directly to voters with a totally flexible ideology. Though vastly different in approach and philosophy, successful Democratic politicians increasingly fit that description: Gov. George Wallace of Alabama, Gov. Daniel Walker of Illinois, Senate candidate John Glenn in Ohio.

Here in California, however, Brown reminds some of an earlier loner from out of the west. Following a hard-nosed performance by Brown in a televised debate against Flournoy, a Republican leader muttered: "Damned if he doesn't remind me of Dick Nixon." Indeed, veteran Democrats have long been referring to Brown as "our Nixon." Superficially, there are similarities: overpowering ambition; a keenly honed mind; a preference for attack; an instinct for the jugular; an attempt to be one of the boys impeded by a certain awkwardness; perhaps most important, obsessive devotion to hard work.

What makes Brown so unpopular on the brink of victory was pointed up last week at a meeting of garment workers in San Francisco attended by state Sen. Mervyn Dymally, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor. Brown has not sought close identification with Dymally, a black; so, he entered and left the meeting without either greeting or mentioning his running-mate. Stunned by the rebuff, Dymally cancelled plans to attend a Brown fundraiser in Los Angeles that night.

He was not the only absentee. Rep. John Burton, state Democratic chairman, was not even invited. Those who did pay $150 a ticket at the Century Plaza Hotel did not see Brown if they showed up at the 7 p.m. starting time; he arrived an hour late, after the cocktail hour ended.

Such defiance of etiquette for candidates has led Democratic politicians consistently to underestimate

Brown. They felt he was elected secretary of state against a Republican sweep in 1972 because of his father, two-time Democratic Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown. They did not believe he could survive a tough primary or, if he did, could defeat Republican moderate Flournoy.

They underestimated not only Brown's appeal to voters but his ideological flexibility. Although his image is left of center, he has shown remarkable—and commendable—ability to moderate idealism.

While Mervyn Dymally and John Burton were nowhere near the Century Plaza fundraiser, the head of the Pacific Telephone Co. was a paying guest.

Coincidentally or not, Brown the next day addressed telephone company employees in San Diego by promising to restrain his crusade against special interests. His appointments to the state public utilities commission, he said, would consider the welfare not only of consumers but of Pacific Telephone as well: "I am not going to put a demagogue on there."

BUNYAN'S CONVERSION
John Bunyan, the great seventeenth-century English evangelist, has left a description of his conversion. One morning as he was walking through the town of Bedford he came across three women, old and poor, who were telling each other what God had meant to them. One told about how God had sent her peace and understanding when a great injustice had been done to her. "I was strong in Him," she said, "and I felt His comfort down in my poor heart." "Aye," said the second woman, "when my husband died of wounds received in battle, my soul was stayed upon God and I felt my faith grasp his sweet strong promises. And look you," she continued, "I would not give up this love from God to be the great Earl of Bedford himself."

As Bunyan walked on, mulling over the words of these women, suddenly he was "flooded with the reality of God." "That night," he said later, "I could scarcely lie in bed for joy and peace and triumph through Christ. All my former darkness had fled away and the blessed things of heaven were set in my view."

Public Forum

To the editor:
Bill Noblitt's column of October 14 is funnier than the "funny papers." "North Carolina's dairy farmers see politics in Governor James E. Holshouser's 'stacking' of the Milk Commission."
Is that supposed to be news? I reckon there were "politics" involved in the original establishment of the milk price controls and the rule against price cutting at the retail level! I never heard anyone fuss about the super market cutting prices on chickens, or bacon, or steak. What's so unique about milk? Of course, a lot of poultry is raised on a contract basis. If the processor cuts prices, or if the retailer chooses to cut the price for a day or so as an advertising gimmick (a loss leader), that doesn't necessarily mean there's any effect at all on the producer farm.
Mr. Noblitt's column would lead one to think that an appeal for "consumer votes" is sneaky. All of us are consumers and I think legislative action should appeal to John Q. Public, known these days as the "consumer."
I'm fairly sure that a local tobacco farmer couldn't care less if the A & P store decided to sell cigarettes "at a loss," so long as price supports at the warehouses were still in effect.
Actually, Mr. Holshouser's neck of the woods has a lot of small dairy farms of the sort Noblitt sees dying out if the new Milk Commission follows Governor Holshouser's line of thought.
I suspect Mr. Holshouser is not entirely ignorant on the subject of dairy farming.

Ford's Economic Advice Is Old Hat

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The American consumer, desperately seeking guidance through the tangled mess of his personal finances, has been told by the President to balance his budget, save, waste not, economize and "do it yourself."
The advice recalls the slogans and aphorisms that gently introduce every grade-schooler to the realities of the marketplace. They are the key words and phrases of home economics courses. They are women's page standbys.
They are familiar words also because they are practiced regularly by millions of homemakers, often out of necessity rather than from choice. They are the common sense foundation of any household's financing.
Nevertheless, while such advice might be the basis for good household economics, it hardly serves as the basis for a newly announced, voluntary national program to meet the inflation-recession crisis, an economic emergency that has been compared in some respects to the 1930s.
First, it is old stuff. It is the very advice that millions of American householders have practiced almost instinctively for months and years. Many a householder must wonder if President Ford is the last to become aware of such habits.

Second, it appears to demonstrate the inability of the administration, or in fact any institution or segment of American society, to come up with believable, substantial advice for householders.
The net impact, therefore, could very well be measured as a further drop in consumer expectations, especially since so many consumers had expected that a change of administrations would be accompanied by a change in strategies.
A University of Michigan consumer survey, for example, found 63 per cent of consumers felt that economic policy would change under Ford, although many expressed their opinion as a hope rather than a belief.

Now that substantial changes have not been forthcoming, disappointment is likely to be acute, and not to be assuaged by slogans such as "Whip Inflation Now," or by presidential admonitions to make out a list before shopping.
The administration is on the spot. Everyone is listening for the sounds of economic leadership, and they aren't likely to be satisfied with the sounds of their own advice restated by Washington.

Anti-Inflation Conceptual Plan

A conceptual plan designed as an anti-inflation tax measure is an "idea that probably should be investigated," according to Dr. Louis Zincone, chairman of the East Carolina University Department of Economics. Zincone said this morning that the plan, which would offer businesses tax credits as incentive for deepening the lid on prices, was formulated by himself, Dr. James H. Bearden, ECU School of Business dean, and associate professors Frank A. Close and Jack W. Thornton. The economist pointed out that the tax credit system "certainly has not been tried before, to my knowledge." He added that the proposal would be mimeographed and mailed to North Carolina congressmen as well as to White House officials. Zincone explained that, under the proposal, businesses would receive more tax credit the less prices are increased. Businesses that adhered to the concept of maintaining low prices would be rewarded with tax credits while those which exercised less restraint would be in line for less tax benefits.

According to Zincone, firms on the borderline of raising or not raising prices would probably decide not to increase prices under the tax proposal but the incentives probably would not be great enough to offset some other price increases.

The department chairman contended that computer simulation would be the ideal way to evaluate the proposal but such research would be prohibitive locally due to mammoth costs.

"I would think that somebody with the research capability should take a look at the plan," he added. The system needs further study and specific numbers need to be filled in on the basis of research utilizing real data, Zincone noted.

No Pool For Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration's anti-inflation campaign has sidetracked plans to build a new swimming pool at the White House with private contributions.

"The President asked the American people to tighten their belts and avoid unnecessary expenditures, and it doesn't seem the proper time to ask people to contribute to a swimming pool," Press Secretary Ron Nessen explained Thursday.

Nessen said some legal and financial problems have arisen, but the economic situation was the main reason for shelving the pool project.

Workers Furloughed

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Fiber Industries has announced it will furlough a number of employees at plants in Shelby and in Greenville, S.C., because of softening in the filament yarn market.

The furloughs will begin Saturday, Oct. 26. Sources said they would involve about 250 workers at Shelby and 400 at Greenville. The plants employ a total of about 5,500. The announcement said the length of the furloughs would depend on general business conditions.

The Celanese Corp. announced earlier this week that 70 workers were being furloughed at its Celriver plant near Rock Hill, S.C.

The Daily News Record, a trade publication for the textile and apparel industries, reported in its Thursday editions the following furloughs or dismissals at man-made fibers plant: Dow Badische Co., furloughed for the week half the 1,600 workers at its Mebane and Boonville, N.C., facilities, and laid off 170 others indefinitely.

DuPont dismissed 150 short-term workers at Wilmington, N.C., and 100 at Camden, S. C. The plants employ about 3,000 each.

American Enka Co. laid off about 100 workers at its plants at Enka near Asheville, N.C., and Lowland, Tenn.

Prepare For Ford Visit

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—North Carolina Republicans are preparing for a crowd of about 15,000 to be on hand when President Ford visits the Tar Heel state Saturday.

A 2 p.m. rally is planned at the Greensboro Regional Airport where the President is expected to offer support for the state's Republican candidates. He will visit South Carolina before the Greensboro stop.

on sensitive issues. While philosophically opposed to abortion, he says he stands behind the Supreme Court's pro-abortion decision. While philosophically opposed to capital punishment, he says he will faithfully carry out the new California law authorizing executions (leaving unanswered whether as governor he will try to change the law).

He has, furthermore, developed into a formidable campaigner. Articulate and quick-witted, he was constantly on the attack in debating Flournoy. His Jesuitical (as a former seminarian) and legal training make him a difficult target. The old canard that Jerry Brown was a lightweight has long since been discarded. While publicly denying national ambitions, Brown recently told one leading California Democrat he would like to run for President in 1976. Indeed, such talk has been common in Brown's inner circle.

Brown's Democratic critics recognize his national ambitions but scoff at his ability to realize them. Confronting hostile Democrats in the state legislature, they believe, he will be quickly cut down. But such critics have consistently underestimated Brown's ability to function as a loner on a chaotic political landscape. Having surprised them as a candidate, he may do as well as governor and aspirant for the presidency.

Jones Says Conditions Explosive N.C. Prisons Overcrowded

RALEIGH (AP)—Corrections Secretary David L. Jones has called for a big increase in state spending for prisons to ease what he called "dangerous and explosive" overcrowding.

Jones told the Advisory Budget Commission Thursday the money is needed to build 10 new prisons, housing over 3,000 inmates; to start renovating maximum security Central Prison and to provide additional security and other services at present prisons.

Jones said the prison system has 1,400 more prisoners than it can properly handle now and warned that unless new prisons are built that number will grow to 7,000 by 1983. Jones said the present prison population is 11,561 and the prisons' capacity is 10,164.

Jones outlined for the budget commission a long range construction plan through 1983 that would house 17,369 prisoners. He estimated the prison population then will be 17,298.

Jones told the budget group overcrowding is leading to "a situation that's impossible to control." He added the rehabilitation is "impossible" and conditions in many prison units are "dangerous and explosive."

Jones asked the commission for an "expansion budget" of $51.7 million in the 1975-76 budget year and $47.5 million in 1976-77. An "expansion budget" request is what a department asks for new programs and facilities; it is in addition to a "continuation budget" which is what a department seeks to continue existing programs. The Advisory Budget Commission usually sharply trims expansion budget requests.

World War II Air Crew Being Buried

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is burying the remains of ten World War II bomber crewmen in Arlington National Cemetery, more than 30 years after they disappeared on a combat mission over New Guinea.

Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish chaplains prepared a joint funeral service for today, and the Army planned military honors for these casualties of a long-ago war with Japan.

Their remains were discovered in recent months and brought back from a remote mountain valley in tropical New Guinea. Because of the ravages of weather and time, the Army said it was necessary to bury the remains together in two caskets.

Although Army experts were unable to establish individual identifications, they found what was called conclusive physical evidence that the remains of all ten men were present.

The last time the ten Army Air Corps officers and sergeants were seen alive was May 7, 1944, when they took off in their B24 bomber from a field in Australian New Guinea for a combat mission over New Guinea.

According to the records, air searches were conducted over land and water without detecting any sign of the plane or its men.

Nothing more was learned of these men until the wreckage of the B24, serial number 4240525, was discovered about 36 miles northwest of Lae, New Guinea.

Two centuries old ban lifted for Catholics

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Roman Catholic laymen, barred from belonging to Masonic lodges for more than two centuries, now may do so without church objections so long as the particular lodge doesn't foster anti-Catholicism.

That's the interpretation put by U.S. Catholic leadership on a recent letter from the Vatican's office on doctrinal matters.

applicable to all Masonic groups. As the letter indicates, he says, the "canonical provision concerning excommunication is to be interpreted precisely, not broadly, in the light of the actual attitude and practice of a particular Masonic or other group."

The step comes after several years of exploratory friendly gestures between some American Catholic leaders and Masonic groups, chiefly sessions arranged by the Rev. John A. O'Brien of the University of Notre Dame.

Although some Catholics previously have been members, despite the broad church prohibition against it, the new ruling limits application of the ban only to cases in which a specific lodge opposes the church.

However, he said the letter shows that the "church continues to discourage Catholic membership in the Masons," and to excommunicate those joining societies that are "actively hostile to the church."

Father O'Brien, recently hospitalized with a stroke, became the first Catholic priest to speak at a Masonic meeting in 1964 in South Bend, Ind., and afterward took part in similar conferences. But he adds that it may be given a "strict interpretation," that is, applied only in instances of specific lodges where such anti-Catholicism exists.

The annual membership meeting of the Pitt & Greene Electric Membership Corp. is scheduled for Nov. 13 in the auditorium of Farmville Central High School.

ECU Institute Gets Grant

East Carolina University's Institute for Coastal and Marine Resources has received a $2,000 grant from the Marine Science Council-UNC to study the growth of aquatic vegetation in the Pamlico River.

The ban against Catholic membership first was imposed by Pope Clement XII in 1738 on grounds that Freemasonry fostered vague, naturalistic religion, and involved secret oaths and conspiracy against Catholicism.

The election of directors from districts two and seven for a three-year period is on the business agenda.

Dr. Richard A. Stephenson, director for ECU's Coastal and Marine Resources Institute, says that fishing and recreational activity in some parts of the river have been adversely affected by the overabundance of the so-called river or seaweed.

Stephenson said the study will determine why the vegetation is located where it is and how it relates to sand erosion and decomposition of organic matter from the shoreline.

A statement from John Cardinal Krol, of Philadelphia, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, says the Vatican letter makes clear that the longstanding prohibition is not equally

Arrested After Being Freed

MIAMI (AP) — He had just been freed on $25,000 bond and still faced charges of stealing an airplane, but after four years in a Cuban jail Richard Peter Johnson stood on U.S. soil and said, "I'm a free man again."

Johnson was one of four Americans returned to this country from Cuban prisons as a good will gesture following a recent visit to Cuba by two U.S. senators.

"It's good to be back in the greatest country in the world," Johnson said Thursday as he hugged his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Johnson of Walnut Creek, Calif. "We've got four years to catch up on."

Johnson's reunion with his parents at the federal courthouse followed a scene at the airport in which he was arrested by waiting FBI agents and his father engaged in a brief scuffle with the agents.

Johnson was physically restrained by the FBI agents and prevented from reaching his son.

Johnson is the editor of "The Layman's Bible Commentary," and author of the volume on "Philippians" in that series.

Saturday Morning Bricklayer

My neighbor Marty is a certified public accountant. He is also an assistant scoutmaster. And treasurer of the Civic Association. Hard worker for local charities. And—oh yes—Marty is a Saturday morning bricklayer. He can build a mighty fine wall to set off that patio he put in last summer.

You'd think that a man so capable and versatile wouldn't feel dependent on anybody or anything. Not so.

It is usually the folks like Marty—the ready, willing and able ones—who are first to recognize their spiritual needs. Nor are they ashamed to admit their dependence on God—and His Church. You'll hear Marty and his wife give credit to their religious beliefs for the strength of their marriage and for the ideals that inspire their family life.

In fact, it's Sunday morning, rather than Saturday, when they do their most important building. How about joining them at church time?

PUBLIC ANNOUNCEMENT

Landmark Baptist Church

On Nov. 3, 1974 a New Testament Baptist Church will be officially organized. The Christian families who have been meeting for worship in temporary quarters have chosen the name, Landmark Baptist. This name is symbolic of God's Command to "Remove not the ancient landmark, which thy fathers have set." It signifies the unchanging doctrines and Faith of God's People everywhere. The service for organization and dedication will be conducted by Pastor John T. Woodley.

The exact time and location of meetings will be given in a later announcement.

Wheaton
21 trip ended in failure to carry out his objective when both himself and Wiseman were "both pretty well drunk... in no shape to do anything..."
Wheaton said during the afternoon session yesterday that he talked with Sullivan "numerous times" on the telephone after March 21, "two or three times a day... sometimes four times a day."
During a March 23 telephone conversation, Wheaton testified that Sullivan told him "he wanted it done at Mr. Branch's home... done there." Wheaton also noted that "during all the conversations Mr. Sullivan started threatening me... my wife and children."
Wheaton told the court that the gun he fired in the shooting he threw from his car "into Albemarle Sound" on the return trip to Virginia after the March 29 shooting.
Wheaton, during the afternoon session, identified Mrs. Branch as the woman he met in Washington with Sullivan "around the first of March," at which time Wheaton said he refused a check from Sullivan in payment for the killing, saying he wanted cash.
During the morning session, performed on Branch following his death March 31 indicated the man had died from "damage to the brain as a result of a penetrating wound" to his head.

The pathologist said such a wound would be "consistent with a wound caused by a missile fired from a pistol."
Judge Perry Martin, who is presiding at the trial, said yesterday that the court would meet until 10 p.m. tonight and indicated a Saturday session is possible.

Wheaton said he had given $2,500 to Wiseman "to perform the job on Mr. Branch..."
Before ending his testimony and cross examination about 5:45 p.m. yesterday, Wheaton told the court that he was testifying because he wanted "to tell the truth", and that the prosecuting attorneys said they would "let me plead guilty to first degree murder... conspiracy to commit murder" and recommend to the court that the sentences should be life in prison on the murder charge and 10 years in prison on the conspiracy count.
This morning, the court heard Greenville pathologist Dr. Lee West testify that an autopsy

Correction
Several lines were omitted from a paragraph in a story concerning the Sullivan-Branch trial which appeared in Thursday's edition.
The paragraph should have stated: Sullivan soon drove up. Wheaton continued, noting that Mrs. Branch got out of the car and kissed Sullivan. Sullivan then got in the car, Wheaton said, and he asked Sullivan if he had the picture and the money.

Prisoner Plan
SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Chile's military government announced today that the International Red Cross has told it the Soviet Union may be willing to study a plan under which Chile would release some of its political prisoners if Cuba and the Soviet Union did likewise.
Navy Capt. Claudio Collados, undersecretary at the Chilean foreign ministry, made the announcement at a news conference.

Two Shot In Ireland Violence Down In Boston

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Terrorists shot two men during today's morning rush hour in the center of Belfast after a night of rioting and arson in the capital and other cities.
The two men, both Roman Catholics, were taken to a hospital with gunshot wounds caused by shots from a passing car.
Authorities reported more than 20 major fires during the night in Belfast and other cities. Rioters in Armagh hijacked three trucks and burned them and their cargoes of beef, butter and television sets. Seven buses went up in smoke in Ballymoney, about 35 miles northwest of Belfast.

BOSTON (AP) — School attendance went up and reported incidents of violence were down as Boston neared the end of a fifth week of busing for school desegregation.
Meanwhile, U.S. Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., began work a long-range busing proposal.
The mayor's office reported no injuries and four arrests in minor incidents Thursday. Some 450 National Guardsmen remained on standby alert in Boston-area armories, and federal troops at Ft. Bragg, N.C., were on increased alert in case local authorities are unable to maintain order in Boston.

Brooke met with three representatives of the Congress of Racial Equality and said he would work to blend CORE suggestions for Boston desegregation with those of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People to "get the best of both plans."
He declined to reveal the specifics of the proposal.
A CORE spokesman said the long-range proposal would be announced early next week at a news conference in Boston.
Officials said school attendance Thursday was 74.3 per cent citywide, up from 66.7 per cent Wednesday.
Less than 20 per cent of the white students assigned to South Boston High attended school Thursday, continuing a white boycott which began when U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr.'s busing order became effective Sept. 12, when school opened.

The 16 Lekoteket facilities in Sweden act as advisory bureaus to families with handicapped children and disseminate information about normal and abnormal development of small children to teachers, nurses and other professionals.
Development of eastern North Carolina's oyster and eel industry was the subject of investigations by James A. McGe, director of the ECU Coastal Resources Center, and by Dr. Robert W. Williams, Associate Vice President for Academic Affairs in the UNC system.
McGe, reporting on his study of Japan's oyster and eel culture, made comparisons between Japan's and North Carolina's methods of culture, with suggestions about how North Carolina can develop its coastal eel and oyster resources into a means of economic diversification.
Dr. Williams reported on his investigation of several aspects of the state's eel industry, including possible markets for North Carolina eels, improved processing of eels for shipment and sale, encouragement of wild catch of eels, aquaculture of eels and byproducts industries which might locate here.
The conference concluded with group meetings in the afternoon, during which details and methods of implementation of the projects were discussed with individuals attending the meeting.
The ECU "Pockets of Excellence" project was funded by the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation of Winston-Salem, which sponsored the investigations to seek out "achievements of superior calibre, or 'pockets of excellence' which have implications for the development of eastern North Carolina."

Regional Development Institute, whose project has involved detailed study of such notable "theme parks" as Six Flags Over Georgia; Carowinds; Opryland, Tenn. and Cedar Point, Ohio.
This kind of leisure industry, as opposed to the traditional amusement park with its carnival shows and thrill rides, carries out a theme which is used in its shows, shops and eating places.
Dr. Vance E. Hamilton, NCSU Community Development Specialist, spoke on his observations of innovative programs in health care education in Virginia, Maryland and Ohio.
"Eastern North Carolina has a problem in available health care services and an insufficient number of trained health care personnel," he said. "These resources are in the 'curative' category of health program, which we badly need, but we also lack the 'preventive' type of program which is a very effective means of assuring good health among our population."
Cultural enrichment of eastern North Carolina was the object of research done by ECU faculty musician James Houlik. He examined the operations of the International Concert Administratie in Amsterdam, a non-profit agency which builds audiences and presents "young and promising performers."
Houlik suggested that ECU could use its present resources in providing such a service for the eastern region. The area of the Netherlands which has been serviced by the Concert Administratie is similar to eastern North Carolina, he said.
Ruth Lambie, assistant professor in the ECU School of Home Economics, reported on her study of the "Lekoteket" or play library in Sweden.

Wishbones Collide As ECU, ASU Meet

By sundown Saturday night, the number of teams with perfect Southern Conference records will be reduced to two—assuming there isn't a tie Saturday afternoon when East Carolina visits Appalachian State.

The two teams are currently tied for second place in the conference, both posting 1-0 league marks. VMI leads the conference with a 3-0 mark, and will stay in first regardless. The clash between the Pirates and Mountaineers is the lone league contest. Everyone else is playing outside foes.

It took a frantic final 11 minutes last Saturday night for the Pirates to remain unbeaten in the league and win their 16th straight Southern game as they rallied to nip Furman 15-12. The Paladins were in complete charge of the game until those final 11 minutes when the Bucs put together two straight touch-down drives.

The win left the Pirates with a 4-1 overall record.

Appalachian, meanwhile, comes into the game with a 3-3 record. They jumped off to a good start, winning their first three, over East Tennessee, Middle Tennessee and Davidson. But after that, their troubles began. They lost to Western Carolina, 21-17, then Tennessee Tech, 24-14. Last week, the Mountaineers fell to Lenoir Rhyne, 31-10.

The two teams have met one common opponent—East Tennessee, both winning. ASU took them 16-7, while the Bucs came away with a 21-9 victory.

The game may look like an intra-squad scrimmage to some observers. Both teams run the wishbone offense—and both use the five-two defense. For this reason, both should be thoroughly familiar with the principles of the others' offense and defense.

The top performer on offense for the Mountaineers has been sophomore Robbie Price, from nearby Goldsboro. Running the 'bone from the quarterback position, he's rushed for 166 yards and passed for 249, giving him 415 yards.

"He beat out Phil Coccioletti, who was their quarterback last year," ECU assistant Coach Henry Trevathan said. "And you might remember that Coccioletti had a good game against us last year."

But in the last couple of games, Coccioletti has come on strong as Price has had hit troubles. Coccioletti is more of a passing quarterback, however, hitting 20 of 45 for 308 yards. Prince has connected on just 18 of 48. Coccioletti, however, has run only six times for 14 yards.

Halfback Clint Bradshaw is the second leading rusher with 185 yards, while another Goldsboro player, Emmitt Hamilton has rushed for 190, best on the team. Fullback Richard Patrick is next with 164 yards. He alternates a lot with Randy Merritt, who has 65 yards.

"They just haven't been able to get things going for the last couple of games," Trevathan said. "They have good people, but something just isn't falling into place."

Trevathan said Appalachian has an offensive line that will rival the best faced by the Bucs. "We're not going to be looking down on them at all. They are all good sizes, both in height and weight. They do lack some experience, and that may prove to be the difference."

In one phase of the game that is somewhat different, ASU splits both ends out. They include still another Goldsboro player. Devon Ford, and Donnie Holt.

The defense is anchored by middle guard Fred Snipes, while Larry McKenzie is the top man in the secondary. "That backfield has still another Eastern Carolina boy," Trevathan said, "Roscoe Batts of Rocky Mount."

Coach Pat Dye feels that because there are so many Eastern Carolina boys on the team—and because the Bucs are number one, that ASU will definitely be "up" for the game. But at the same time, he doesn't expect his Pirates to be as flat as they were last week.

"We need to have a good game. A game where we keep the ball for a lot of plays, and play the type defense that will let us do that. Furman kept the ball on us, and we can't let Appalachian do the same," Dye said.

"But we've had a good week, and I think that we're ready to play."

The Mountaineer field will present something new to some of the Pirates—it is the only one in the state with AstroTurf. Most of the Bucs played on it last year at Southern Illinois, but many of the younger players didn't.

"I don't think it's really going to be a problem for us," Dye said. "We're going to work out on it, Friday afternoon, and I think that'll give us a good feel of it."

Dye, despite the fact that ASU has passed more in the last couple of games, looks for the Mounties to run straight at the Pirates—at least at the start. "They saw that Furman had a lot of success with it, and I'm sure they'll try to see if we've corrected this. But they may go to the air early too, since we weren't able to stop Furman there either."

Dye didn't feel that ASU would do anything new in the game. "They know what has been successful for them, and they'll keep it up. We know that they think they can win and will be out to do all they can to accomplish this."

ASU Coach Jim Brakefield said earlier this week that his team is "beat up" from the last couple of games. "We are too," Dye said. "These last three games have been very physical. We've worked light most of the week because of it." Dye said only Buddy Lowery, who was injured in the Furman game, has not worked this week, but he is expected to be ready to play.

Dye also is hopeful that he'll be able to play more of his younger players this week. "We need to get some of our younger defensive players in," he said. "The first defense has played most of the way the last three weeks. But our younger players have shown a lot of improvement in the last few weeks, and some of them are really ready to play."

While both teams have shown their ability to move the ball, Dye feels that the kicking game may be critical. ASU has one of the nation's top punters in Joe Parker, the S.C. leader with a 43.9 average.

But at the same time, they've seen 14 of his 39 punts returned for 136 yards. East Carolina, kicking 29 times, has a 38.7

average by Gill Job. His kicks, however, have only been returned nine times for just 22 yards, as the Bucs coverage has been tight.

"I think the kicking game will have a lot to do with the outcome," Dye said. "It could be the difference."

The game, which is set to start at 1:30 p.m. in Boone, winds up a three-game road trip for the Pirates. They return home next week for their final two games in Ficklen, hosting Dayton and The Citadel. After that, it's three straight road games with Richmond, William & Mary and VMI to wind up the season.

Linebacker Butch Strawderman

Lowery Stays Around The Ball

Saturday night in Greenville, S. C., East Carolina University did what was necessary in the final quarter to salvage a 15-12 win over Furman University. The win was the 16th consecutive Southern Conference victory for the Pirates and it all but ended the strong Paladin club's chances to unseat ECU as conference champions.

The Pirates had to struggle back from a 12-0 deficit in gaining their first conference win of the season, and it was an epic struggle due to Furman being able to control the football for the majority of the game. That, in essence, was what ECU defensive tackle Buddy Lowery predicted as being a strong point of the club.

"They ran an awful lot," said Lowery, a native of East Spencer, N. C. "They run the sweeps and options almost to perfection."

The Paladins did that to a tune of 276 rushing in 57 carries. It was hard, Lowery said, to defend the Paladins and accomplish the team's main, defensive goals.

"Our main goals, as defensive tackles, are to rush the passer and get the football," said Lowery. "Furman was a well-organized team."

Lowery, a senior, came to ECU after a year's tenure at Fork Union, Va., Military Academy. He was recruited from there to East Carolina by Sonny Randle, former head coach, and while at ECU, has been a starter on two Southern Conference championship teams.

Lowery was hesitant to compare the Pirate teams of the past to this club, and for an apparently valid reason.

"Defensively, we are more experienced as a unit," said Lowery. "That helps when everybody knows more about what the people around him will do in certain situations."

The "Wild Dog" defense lost one of Lowery's running mates, All-Southern Conference performer Cary Godette, a middle guard, due to a knee injury prior to the start of the season. But instead of increasing the defensive tackles' work load, Lowery is impressed with Nick Bullock's play.

"We all knew Cary was a good player, of course," said Lowery. "But Nick is showing he can do the job, too. It is just a matter of time, we figured that, that when Nick came along, in experience, that we would be okay."

Lowery's best game of the season, to date, was against Southern Illinois, which the Pirates won 17-16. Against Furman, the 6-1, 240-pound senior suffered an ankle injury that cut down on his effectiveness. But the smiling veteran should be back in the lineup for this week's game with Appalachian State University in Boone, N. C.

The Pirates want a victory over ASU very much, as they do over the remaining Southern Conference opponents on the 1974 schedule. But to pick up those wins, Lowery said the Pirates will have to continue to do what they have done in their last three games: leave nothing on the field.

"Everybody has had to let everything out for three weeks now," said Lowery. "We got behind and not a single person left anything on the field."

For a defensive lineman, in particular, to give a total effort, he must give "a lot of hustle and be around the ball." Defensive line coach Ben Grieb's assessment of Lowery fit that description perfectly, too.

"He has a lot of desire and hustles," said Grieb. "But more importantly, he has a great attitude and wants to be a great football player."

Nash Central Nips Aycock

NASHVILLE—Nash Central Junior High School rolled to a 22-18 victory over E. B. Aycock Junior High School last night. It was fourth loss for the Phantoms in five games this season.

Each team scored three touchdowns, but it was the extra points that made the difference. Nash Central connected on two of their three two-points efforts, while Aycock failed to hit on any of theirs.

Nash Central grabbed the initial lead in the first period of play. That came on a 14-yard pass from Harold Hamm. Ricky Smith ran the PAT to make it 8-0.

They added their second score early in the second period. This time, Mike Marshman did the honors, on a five-yard run. Luther Roberts picked up the PAT for a 16-0 lead. Aycock came back with their first score in the second quarter. Fred Ayers got it from two yards away. That out it to 16-6 at the half.

Aycock hit again in the third period, with Ayers again getting into the end zone, this time on a five-yard romp. The PAT again failed, however, and Nash remained ahead, 16-12.

Nash sewed it up with another in the final period. Eugene Stokes scored on a 24-yard run, upping it to 22-12. Aycock's final touchdown was a 13-yard pass from Jeff Aldridge to Lorenzo Owens.

Aycock will meet Kinston in their next game, Thursday, October 31, in Greenville. E. B. Aycock 0 6 6 6—18 Nash Central 8 8 0 6—22

Buckey Has Been Pack Magician

By The Associated Press Quarterback Dave Buckey and his twin brother, split end Don Buckey, have played in every North Carolina State football game since they arrived on the campus 2½ years ago. And during that time the Wolfpack has won 23 of 30 games.

The twins from Akron, Ohio, are slim six footers who weight only 155 pounds.

N.C. State has won all nine games in which Dave was a starter, beginning with the 1972 Peach Bowl and continuing through last Saturday's 22-21 victory over Virginia.

He was a freshman when he got the nod the first time as a starter for the Peach Bowl after an injury sidelined regular Bruce Shaw. He responded by leading the Wolfpack to a 49-13 victory over favored West Virginia. As a sophomore in 1973 he started twice, against North Carolina and Maryland.

N.C. State is undefeated in six games this season, four of them in the Atlantic Coast Conference. It is ranked No. 10 nationally.

State can tie the record of 15 straight conference victories by winning at North Carolina on Saturday. The record was set by North Carolina in the 1970-71-72 seasons. The North Carolina Tar Heels are 3-2 this season, and 1-1 in the league.

In other games Saturday for ACC teams, Duke will be at Clemson, Wake Forest at Maryland, and Virginia will be host to independent Virginia Tech.

N.C. State has come from behind in its last four victories. It was down 21-0 before beating Virginia.

Panel Likes Pirates, Heels

Whew!

Thanks to some last minute heroics by the East Carolina Pirates, the panel came through with a pretty good week last time out. We also have to give a tip of the hat to Dave Buckley and the State Wolfpack for saving us all another loss.

The field gained a little on the leader last time out as Tom Baines had an 8-4 week and most of the rest of us went 9-3. That closed it a little, but Tom still is holding onto the lead.

Baines holds a 45-15 record for the season so far, followed a little closer by George Holland at 42-18. Then comes this writer with a 40-20 mark, just one up on Jack Whichard at 39-21. Diane Allen, 36-24, and Joe Jenkins, 35-25, bring up the rear of the pack.

This past week's high school games also produced a couple of upsets that we didn't ferret out, and our mark for the season in that tumbled to 35-3 on the year.

The battle for the Eastern Carolina Conference title appears to be about over, barring any surprises. Southern Wayne, after dumping Farmville Central, looks to be in the driver's seat there. But the important battle for second is still on, with a playoff berth at stake.

Farmville Central will be trying to get back on their winning ways against North Lenoir. The Hawks after getting away to a good start have fallen on hard times and last week were held in check by Conley. Farmville Central may be feeling a little unhappy over their loss last week, but this is still a big one for them since they must keep winning to stay in second. The Jaguars should win it.

Greene Central, tied with Farmville for second, plays at Ayden Grifton. The Chargers still have a shot at second, but must win the rest to do it. This shapes up to be a tough game for both teams, but we like the looks of the Rams.

Eastern Wayne visits Conley in another league outing. The Warriors are improving as the days go by, while Conley is coming off a big win over North Lenoir. This also shapes up as a real good game, but we feel Eastern may have a little bit more depth than Conley can handle.

Finally, North Pitt and Charles B. Aycock clash. Neither team has won a game this year, and it may depend on heart as to who takes this one. We think the Panthers have a real good chance to win, if they want to. We'll try to give them some incentive—we feel they can win.

Woody's Ramblin's

BY WOODY PEELE

Robersonville's Eastern Plains Conference defending champs are rolling along. This week, they roll into Rock Ridge. By the time it's all over, they will have rolled over Rock Ridge.

Williamston, after being upset by Tarboro, tries to regroup for their game against unbeaten Ahsokie. The Tigers must win it if they want to stay in the running for the title. But we must pick Ahsokie to take them.

The Ramnants of Rose are idle this week, so the panel picked no high school game.

Leading the panel's list, however, is the battle between the ECU Pirates and the Appalachian State Mountaineers in Boone Saturday afternoon. The Bucs escaped from a close one last week against Furman for their 16th straight Southern Conference victory. ASU has been surprising in that they've lost three in a row. They'll be up for the Bucs, however, and hitting hard. The Pirates can't afford to wait until the fourth quarter in this one.

The panel likes the Bucs however, and picks them, 6-0.

In other games, the consensus shows Furman over East Tennessee, Rutgers over William & Mary; Maryland over Wake Forest; Virginia over Virginia Tech; Kansas and Nebraska, a toss-up; Tulane over The Citadel; Southern Mississippi over VMI; Duke and Clemson, a toss-up; North Carolina over N.C. State; Georgia over Vanderbilt; and Louisiana State over Kentucky.

By the way, Tom and I have come up with a suggestion. You will have noted that we aren't picking Davidson games this year except when they play within the Southern Conference. There's also been the suggestion that we don't pick Wake Forest except when they play an ACC school.

Perhaps, the two should meet at the end of the season, in a "Futility Bowl" game. But we really can't decide on the penalty. One of us feels that the loser should give up the sport, while the other feels the winner should quit and the loser must keep on playing.

Waltrip Given Dark Horse Role

By BLOYS BRITT

AP Auto Racing Writer

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP)

When Darrell Waltrip moved up to stock car racing's big league two years ago he had stardom written all over his slender, brown-haired frame. "He can't miss," said Glenn Wood, the mastermind behind the Mercury that David Pearson has driven to fame and fortune. "We already have him on our futures list, when and if Pearson retires."

Waltrip, 27, for the most part has had to make his own way, working on his cars himself and driving them, though under-financed, against the best the sport had to offer.

He has done well. So much so that he is among four or five darkhorse candidates to win Sunday's $105,500 American 500, next to last superspeedway event of the season.

The darkhorse role places him somewhere behind the more accepted circle of winners, among whom in this race are Richard Petty, Pearson, Cale Yarborough, Allison brothers Bobby and Donnie, and Buddy Baker.

"I can win it," said the solidly-built Waltrip, one of the circuit's most articulate, best-dressed drivers. "All I need is for the car to hold together for 500 miles."

Waltrip has started his home-owned Chevrolet 13 times this year and has brought it home 10 times among the top 10 finishers. He has won $51,365 but has earned at least that much more in sportsman racing, where he is a star in Kentucky and Tennessee.

His best finish of the season, and best payday, was third in the National 500 at Charlotte two weeks ago. Only Pearson and Petty finished ahead of him, all in the same lap.

"It was a good run," Waltrip said, "and for once, things were working like they should. With that experience, I think we're ready to win one."

Meanwhile, qualifying sessions began today to select 36 starters for Sunday's race. Though Waltrip was expected to land a high position in the lineup, he was not expected to be a contender for the coveted front row pole position.

That honor was expected to go to Pearson, who posted the fastest lap—135.099 miles an hour—in Thursday's shakedown session.

Pearson's competition was expected to come from Petty, who was clocked at 135-plus in his Dodge; Ford's Buddy Baker, Chevrolet's Cale Yarborough, Donnie Allison, and Bobby Allison, who wheels Roger Penske's Matador.

The first 20 starters in the lineup were to be decided today, with the final 16 spots up for grabs Saturday. There are 46 entries.

Cowboys, Blue Capture Wins

The Cowboys and the Blue team carried off victories in the Greenville Recreation Department's football programs yesterday.

In flag football, the Cowboys took a 13-12 win over the Redskins. The Redskins grabbed the initial lead in the first, half, as Mike Edwards ran in from in-yards out.

The Cowboys came back to tie it up in the half, however, as Mark Douglas scored on a seven-yard run.

The Cowboys got what proved to be the winning score when Billy Dough passed 38 yards to Dwight Smith. Dough hit Gordon Douglas for the PAT that meant the difference for a 13-6 lead.

The Redskins got one more score, a 37-yard punt return by Edwards to cut it to the final one-point margin.

Jordan Alligood, Sheppard Vars and Jamie Byrd led the Cowboy defense, while Robert Stencil and Paul Abraham stood out for the Redskins on defense.

In the tackle game, the Blue took a 32-0 victory over the Green.

Calvin Page put the Blues ahead with a 24-yard pass interception return in the first period. Then, Joey Mattheis scored on a one yard run, and ran over the PAT for a 14-0 lead.

Reggie Selby scored the other three touchdowns for the Blue, on runs of 41, 39, and 33 yards.

Page and Will Sanderson led the Blue defense, while Mike Williams and Ron Bulter were leaders on defense for the Green.

Michigan State quarterback Charley Baggett of Fayetteville, N.C., stayed in shape this summer by operating an air hammer for a Lansing, Mich., construction firm.

A's Again Series Champs

By KEN RAPPAPORT

AP Sports Writer

OAKLAND (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers brought out the best in the Oakland A's. As it turned out, the best was good enough to win the 1974 World Series.

"They needed a little humility," said Sal Bando, and the A's gave it to them by whipping the Dodgers 3-2 Thursday night to win their third straight world title, this one in five uneasy games.

The season ended officially when Oakland relief star Rollie Fingers collared pinch-hitter Von Joshua's bleeding grounder and hopped in joy as he threw out the runner.

Actually, the Dodgers were dead but didn't know it when they popped off against the A's before this bizarre Series started.

They called the A's doubtful champions, even though they had won two straight baseball titles.

"After they beat Pittsburgh in the (National League) playoffs, the Dodgers said they weren't impressed by us," said Joe Rudi, who hit the winning home run Thursday night. "Well, they have all winter to think about it."

Reggie Jackson, the most emotional of all the dynamic A's, wouldn't gloat over the obviously sweet victory. But you got some idea how he felt when he announced: "We're the champs ... I don't have to say anything more."

What the Dodgers learned from the 1974 World Series is that you don't give the A's a break and expect to get away with it.

In the first game at Los Angeles, the Dodgers outhit the A's 11-6, but the A's outscored the Dodgers 3-2. Jackson homered for the A's, and they got their winning runs on a squeeze bunt by Bert Campaneris and an error by Dodger third baseman Ron Cey. Fingers throttled the Dodgers with some great relief pitching before 25-game winner Jim "Catfish" Hunter came in to get the last out.

Another 3-2 score resulted in the second game at Los Angeles, but this time the Dodgers were the winners. Joe Ferguson hit a two-run homer for the National League champions and strongman Mike Marshall snuffed out a ninth-inning Oakland rally.

After the A's scored two runs on Joe Rudi's base hit in the ninth inning, sprinter Herb Washington ran for Rudi but was picked off first base by Marshall in the most embarrassing play of the Series for Oakland.

It was a big mistake, Washington admitted, but the last one for the world champions.

Back in the comfort of their own ballpark, the A's took a typical 3-2 decision in game No. 3. The A's scored two unearned runs after Ferguson, moved from right field to catcher, fumbled Jackson's 15-foot boun-

289-POUND LINEMAN

Offensive lineman Anthony (Tiny) Porter carries a lot of weight on the Michigan State football team. He's the heaviest Spartan at 289 pounds, eight more than defensive tackle Harvey Feinauer.

cer in front of the plate. Bill Buckner and Lillie Crawford hit home runs for the Dodgers, but they came too late.

The omnipresent Fingers saved the victory for Hunter. As you might expect, the A's were outbatted by the Dodgers 7-5 but Oakland still found a way to win.

Pitcher Ken Holtzman, who hits as well as he pitches in World Series play, unloaded a home run in Oakland's 5-2 victory in game No. 4.

Jim Holt, hitless in 25 pinch-hitting appearances during the regular season, delivered a two-run single to key a four-run sixth inning that broke the game open. The tireless Fingers bailed out an Oakland starter once more.

That set the stage for Thursday night. Movie star Rock Hudson threw out the first ball — and the A's picked up the same, tired script.

"We never win them easily," said Oakland second baseman Dick Green, the defensive star of the Series.

Vida Blue, still looking for his first World Series victory, was given an early lead but couldn't hold it. A Dodger error set up Sal Bando's sacrifice fly in the first inning, then Ray Fosse hit a mistake pitch from Dodger ace Don Sutton into the left field seats for a 2-0 Oakland lead.

It stayed that way until the sixth, when the Dodgers tied the game with the help of their two best run-producers of 1974.

Jimmy Wynn hit a sacrifice fly and Steve Garvey singled in the second run and the Dodgers pulled even with the A's at 2-2.

This quieted the capacity crowd of 49,347 fans at the Oakland Coliseum for a while — but they didn't stay that way for very long.

In the next inning, Rudi parked an inside fastball from Marshall into the left field seats. The massive electronic sign in left field lit up "JOE" in 90-foot letters, green and gold A's pennants sprouted from the concrete stands and, as the crowd noise peaked, fireworks went off.

The dramatic home run came after a game delay of six minutes. A fan had thrown a bottle on the field and Wynn, the Dodgers' center fielder, collected it and threw it to the sidelines with disdain. The Dodgers had a conference with the umpires about the possibility of pulling their players off the field, but decided that the situation was not quite that critical.

By the time Marshall got around to throwing a pitch. Rudi was ready for him.

"I hit an inside fastball which, believe it or not, I sort of expected," the Oakland star said.

Then along came Fingers. "I was told that if we got the lead, I'd be in the game," said Fingers.

He came in, all right, but wasn't his usual self. This was evident when he gave up a hard single to Buckner leading off the eighth inning.

The ball got through center fielder Bill North and Buckner attempted to make third on the error — but was nailed on a beauty of a relay throw from Jackson to Green to Bando.

Fingers walked the dangerous Wynn but got out of the inning by getting Garvey and Joe Ferguson on fly balls.

The great relief pitcher then got the Dodgers 1-2-3 in the ninth and the A's became the first team in baseball history since the New York Yankees to win three straight World Series. The Yanks won five straight at one point and four at another.

Rampants Third In Title Meet

ROCKY MOUNT—Wilson Fike High School romped to the Division I cross-country championship yesterday, nearly sweeping the meet.

Wilson finished with a low score of 16, just one point shy of a true sweep. Northern Nash was second with 70 points, while defending champion Rose was third with 74. Hosting Rocky Mount was fourth with 84.

John Goforth of Wilson finished in first place to take the individual championship with a time of 12:37.4. Second place went to Jay Newton of Wilson in 12:48. Gary Lucas was third, 13:05, followed by teammate Russell Wierden in 13:07, to give Wilson the first four places.

Ira Harris of Northern Nash broke the Wilson string, finishing fifth in 13:14, while R. Ellis was Wilson was sixth in 13:19. Rocky Mount's W. Gray was seventh in 13:25, followed by Wilson's S. Broadhurst in 13:26. R. Milliard of Northern Nash was ninth in 13:29, while Rose's Art Klose finished out the top ten in 13:30.

Other Rose finishers included Ricky Reese, 14th in 13:48; Jimmy Peszko, 15th in 13:49; Marvin Roberson, 17th in 14:10; Melvin Roberson, 18th in 14:14; Jimmy Davis, 24th in 14:43; and Mac Davis, 26th in 15:05.

The WORRY CLINIC

No Limit On Male Sexuality

Father Paul's parishioners often cite a fallacious notion about sex. Wives, after your mates understand the true medical facts, then serve them enticing "boudoir chessecake" to banish their former platonic inhibition.

married 20 years or more. "And the wives often tell me their marriages have become increasingly platonic, due to an old notion of their husbands. "Which is the belief that there is only a fixed amount of sexual fluids in the male. "So when the final amount is exhausted, the men will be permanently impotent. "Thus, those husbands excuse their lack of affection as being an attempt on their part to conserve their erotic supply.

"Is such an idea medically justified?"
Church Clinics
 In their splendid "Marriage Clinics" Father Paul and thousands of other talented clergymen function as unofficial psychiatrists. Which is excellent, for Dr. Karl Menniger said that psychiatry is really a method, instead of a group of M.D. specialists, and thus should be available to all intelligent folks! There would also be very little need for the M.D. psychiatrists if everybody was active in a local church!

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, OCT. 19, 1974

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have an ideal day to prepare for expanding in whatever way you wish. You can make new contacts and find the information you need. A new school of thought can guide your influence over greater distances in the near future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can step out of that dull, boring existence now and find your rightful niche in the world if you put your faculties to work.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Follow your intuitive promptings and gain the right results where important matters are concerned. Show your true devotion to mate.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Talking with associates now could lead to better operations in the future. Also, come to a better understanding with friends and kin.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make your home more charming and increase harmony with those who dwell with you. Add inexpensive items to your wardrobe.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get an early start on recreations today and restore your energies. Spend within your budget when shopping. Show more affection to mate.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A day spent at home with kind and good friends can make this a pleasurable one. Sidelstep one who wants to upset the harmony there.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Keep business appointment that is important. Take care of correspondence but make it short and sweet. Enjoy hobbies with friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Meet with experts and discuss monetary problems. Make improvements to property that will add to its value. Be understanding with mate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are highly magnetic now and can get your social life heightened so that you get ahead faster. Try to build up your vitality.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Put those ideas to work that will improve your position in business. Plan how to have true rapport with mate. Strive for happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be your own gregarious self today and make the acquaintance of worthwhile persons. Know what your true aims are and how to gain them.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take the right action that will improve your credit rating and cause you less worry. Know what your public aims are and go after them.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have magnetic charm and can make big headway in dealing with others, particularly where pleasing the public is concerned. Others will automatically gravitate toward your progeny, who is a born leader. Don't neglect religious training. Sports are a must. There is much vision here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Marriage Counselors, like Father Paul, also save the taxpayers millions of dollars. How?

By reducing the legal load on our judges and courtrooms, bailiffs, court stenographers and other overhead charges that raise our taxes.

Imagine, too, the emotional insecurity of the 13,000,000 kiddies who are thus half orphans!

In answer to Father Paul's query, we medics can assure you that it is fallacious to think there is only a fixed amount of erotic secretions implanted at birth.

Instead, glands actually thrive by regular use, as is likewise true of muscles. A young cow doesn't secrete as much milk with her first calf as with the 3rd or 4th. Why? Because the heavy nursing by intervening calves causes the milk producing cells to increase in both number as well as size!

Same is true of a young wife who may not have half enough breast milk for her first baby, but may have ample for later infants.

"Hyperplasia" is the medical term for the multiplication of milk cells, and "hypertrophy" refers to the greater size thereof that results from frequent use.

Regular marital relations also seem to insure longer sexual vigor and possibly reduce the incidence of prostrate trouble.

For a sudden weaning of her baby will make a young mother's breasts enlarge painfully and "cake."

A similar condition often occurs in husbands whose wives suddenly die and thus stop the male's prostatic function.

So send for my booklet "How to Prevent Platonic Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Vaughan, Rich In TV Special

SINGER SARAH VAUGHAN

Two superstars of American jazz—singer Sarah Vaughan and drummer Buddy Rich—will be featured on In Performance At Wolf Trap, Monday, October 23, at 8 p.m. on the Public Broadcasting Service.

Sydney Orchestra directed by Andre Kostelanetz, and the Preservation Hall Jazz Band. In addition, In Performance At Wolf Trap will present an evening of dance with the Eliot Feld Ballet and a special from the National Folk Festival.

The 60-minute special will be seen locally on Channel 25. Ms. Vaughan, with her trio, will present a collection of many of her greatest hits. Buddy Rich will be joined by his 17-member band for a session of contemporary jazz.

The special jazz double-header is the second program in the series, which is made possible by a grant from Atlantic Richfield Company.

Like all programs in the series, which is a production of WETA, Washington, D. C., the jazz concert was taped as it was performed at Wolf Trap Farm Park for the Performing Arts.

Ms. Vaughan will sing many of the songs that have established her as one of the country's all-time great jazz singers including "Misty," "Round Midnight," "Body and Soul" and "Moonlight in Vermont."

Rich's part of the concert contains his solo on "West Side Story," and ensemble work from his young band.

In addition to the jazz, the special, which was directed by Stan Lathan, will feature an interview with Ms. Vaughan.

"By taping the concerts as they were performed," David Provit executive producer said, "we were able to capture some of the electricity that happens between a talented performer and an appreciative audience."

Later programs in the In Performance At Wolf Trap series will include concerts by Yehudi Menuhin, the National

After 97 Years, A Gift Accepted

WASHINGTON (AP) — After 97 years, Congress finally has accepted a massive gift of 19th century memorabilia but it has to wait until July 4, 1976, to be sure exactly what it contains.

The gift is an iron safe more than 5 feet high, 4 feet wide and 3½ feet deep, packed — according to the best available information — with mementoes of the 1876 national centennial celebration.

Congress has had physical possession of the safe since 1877 when Mrs. Charles F. Deihm of New York, described in records as a publisher, a dedicated patriot and a Civil War widow, turned it over with the materials she had toured the country to collect. She requested that it be opened on the bicentennial day by the president.

Congress, however, did not show itself exactly enchanted with her donation. It refused to allow the safe to be exhibited in the Capitol's Statuary Hall, moved it to semi-exposed storage where the weather worked on it for 80 years, and currently keeps it in a dusty storeroom.

In the past two days, however, the lawmakers made amends. First the House, then the Senate, adopted a resolution accepting the gift with thanks and directing that it be publicly displayed in the Capitol pending its ceremonial opening.

The safe was on view at the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition of 1876 and, according to records compiled by the Capitol architect, contains a number of autographs, a literary collection including poetry, fiction and a book on temperance, a roster containing the names of 300,000 government employes, and a gold-lined silver inkstand with two gold and pearl pens — for autographs.

Political Climate Better

By LY PHUC THAI
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim says the political climate of the world is better now than it has been for two decades, despite serious regional conflicts and economic problems.

"This will reflect positively on the world situation and on the future of the great majority of small and medium-sized countries."

Waldheim said that one regional problem that persists is in the Middle East. He said the General Assembly's decision Monday to hear the Palestine Liberation Organization reflects recognition of the PLO's role in efforts to solve the Middle East problem.

On Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's recent trip to the area and related efforts there by the United Nations, Waldheim said he hopes the efforts would bring about renewed Geneva peace talks to work out a solution.

The secretary-general warned, however, against over-optimism. He said, "Many more efforts and a lot of good will on all sides" will be needed to produce an agreement.

"I can only hope we will be able to achieve a breakthrough leading to lasting peace in the area.... Otherwise, I feel the situation will be critical again next year," Waldheim said.

In other disputed areas, Waldheim noted that the rival sides on Cyprus are meeting generally once a week to iron out their problems.

But he regretted that fighting has continued in South Vietnam despite the cease-fire signed in Paris more than 20 months ago.

Early Release For Objectors

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 1,000 conscientious objectors who are satisfactorily performing civilian service in place of military duty will receive early release from their work obligations by Thanksgiving, Selective Service Director Byron V. Peptonne says.

Peptonne said Thursday that the release program parallels the early discharge that the Army is offering its remaining draftees.

A total of 1,042 conscientious objectors will be released from Selective Service supervision at midnight Nov. 22, Peptonne said.

51 Percent Price Hike For Sugar

By The Associated Press
The Philippines announced today it hiked sugar prices 51 percent, and one Manila supermarket sold out its sugar supply in less than 30 minutes.

At the same time, sugar prices reached a record $1,012.30 a ton in trading on the London Terminal Market. One dealer said prices could go even higher when the Common Market and possibly the United States start buying on the free market.

The Philippines is one of the world's leading cane sugar producers with an estimated output of 2½ million tons. It usually exports 1½ million tons to the United States.

Manila housewives went into mild panic buying following the announcement that the Philippine Price Control Council increased the ceiling price of domestic sugar to encourage production.

Stocks And Market Report Approve

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina hog markets today were mostly steady to .50 lower with tops of 39.00-39.50 at Rocky Mount; 38.00-39.00 High Falls; 36.50-37.00 Tarboro and Bethel; 38.00 Wilson.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina FOB dock boilers: Market weaker, supplies adequate, demand fair, weights mostly desirable. Average price 38.03 cents per pound. Estimated slaughter today 983,000.

Hens: Market steady, supplies about adequate for a slow live demand. Too few sources reporting to release prices.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market surged ahead in early trading but backed off slightly in midday as some profit-taking ate into the advance.

The Dow Jones industrial average, up more than 10 points in early trading, was ahead 8.21 at 659.65 at 11:30 a.m., but advances continued to overwhelm declines by 4 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading which spurted at the opening and ran ahead of the tape for several minutes, continued at an active pace.

A 1/4-point reduction in the prime rate announced by New York's First National City Bank and Chemical Bank came as good economic news during the morning.

The Big Board's volume leader was NL Industries, unchanged at 14, followed by U.S. Industries, off 1/4 to 4. Pan Am, which announced a massive overseas route consolidation with TWA earlier in the week, was unchanged at 27, and First National City Bank's parent, Citicorp, gained 3/4 to 28 1/2. McDonald's rallied 1/4 to 32 1/4.

The New York Stock Exchange broad-based composite index showed a gain of .65 at 38.17 at 11 a.m.

The Amex's market-value index was up .55 to 69.53 at 11:20 a.m.

WOMEN
OAXTEPEC, Mexico (AP)—Bishops of the Episcopal Church say they support the principle of ordaining female priests. A vote on the issue stipulated, however, that such ordinations must wait until church law is changed.

At their annual conference, the bishops rejected a bid to hold a special meeting next year on ordaining women but approved the subject for the agenda of the next General Convention.

The church's policy-making body, comprising laymen and clergy, next meets at Minneapolis in 1976. It would have to approve a change in church law. It narrowly rejected a proposal last year for accepting women priests.

Thursday's vote in the House of Bishops was 97 to 35 with six abstentions. It reaffirmed a position the bishops took at their last conference in 1972 to recommend ordaining women to the General Convention. About 150 of the church's 220 bishops attended this year's conference at this resort 40 miles south of Mexico City.

Attending Seminar
Pitt Memorial Hospital pharmacists, John Stallings, Millie Brown, and Lynne Molic are attending a five-week pharmacy seminar at Martin General Hospital. The seminar is co-sponsored by the UNC School of Pharmacy and the Northeastern Pharmaceutical Society.

Tobacco Prices Steady

FARMVILLE—Grade for grade prices remained steady yesterday as compared with Wednesday. All firms had full sales.

Quality was not as good as on other sales days this week. More damaged tobacco was seen on the floors than any previous day this season.

Nondescript grades showed a sharp increase in volume yesterday and stabilization receipts were light.

The market sold 765,977 pounds of tobacco for $867,438, giving an average of $113.25 per hundred pounds.
