UNNECESSARY ENERGY USE?

Why are the lights burning down by the river? I've heard good citizens say they would not conserve electricity unless our city does the same. D.K.

The Town Common lights were turned on for the Bicentennial celebration, City Manager Bill Carstarphen said. He said, "The park has not been completed and the lights have been turned off. They will not be turned on again until the park is completely developed, including landscaping and other improvements.

"The City is doing a number of things to conserve energy," he went on. "In the area of street lighting, we have turned off a number of lights in the Shore Drive area, and within the next two months, will begin using a new sodium vapor light fixture which produces the amount of light as the present street fixtures, with about one-half the electrical energy."

WHY SUSPEND?

Isn't there a better punishment for skipping school than suspending a student? It seems it would be better to make him do extra work. I.H.

Director of Secondary Education Kay Whitehurst of the Greenville City Schools said there is a regular procedure for dealing with any encroachment of school rules, which is published in each school handbook. Before suspension is done, the teacher, and then the school administrator try to counsel with the child and an effort is made to contact the parent. Certain punitive actions like staying after school also may be tried. Suspension is usually a method of getting the attention of the parents, so the parent and the school together can attempt to correct the child's behavior, she said.

WANTS SALVE FOR MAMA

There's a certain kind of salve my elderly mother likes which is sold by the Rawleigh Co. I'd like to get some for her, but don't know a local representative. Mrs. A. J.

Hotline found a Rawleigh dealer in a Charlotte phone directory and contacted him for you. He gave us the address of the W. T. Rawleigh Company, which is 225 E. Main St., Freeport, Ill. 61032. We wrote the company and they responded with the name of the executive distributor for this area. She's Carol Whittington, of Rt. 1, Box 434-B, State Road, N.C. 28676. (State Road's located in Surry County near Winston Salem.)

Ford got that message from Mexican President Luis Echeverria on Monday night before returning to the Republican hustings today in an effort to bolster his party's candidates in Oklahoma and Ohio.

Ford arrived here late Monday from Tucson, Ariz., where he wound up a series of conferences on both sides of the border with the Mexican leader.

The President, who has expressed delight at much smaller crowds that have greeted him during earlier campaign trips, found the throngs that swarmed around him in the streets of two Mexican cities even more boisterous and enthusiastic.

Ford, who went to the aid of his party last week in seven states, scheduled a $500-a-plate GOP fund-raising breakfast here as part of an effort to help the re-election candidacy of Republican Sen. Henry L. Bellmon, who is challenged by Democratic Rep. Ed Edmondson.

With Bellmon, Ford also was having a private meeting with a group of Oklahoma ranchers, then going to a GOP rally before taking off for more campaign appearances in Cleveland later in the day.

At his Mexican-American summit, Ford received a pledge of access to oil produced south of the border, but was told he will have to pay Arab prices for it.

At a hastily arranged joint news conference with Echeverria at a Tubac, Ariz., country club, Ford heard his guest say of the oil expected to flow from major fields recently discovered in Mexico: "Mexico will sell it to whoever wants any of it at the market price—the world market."

For his part, Ford told the news conference something Echeverria presumably wasn't happy to hear—that the United States has "not seen any change in the attitude of Mr. Castro" or the Cuban government and "it was not expected that our attitude toward Cuba should change" under such circumstances.

The only substantive accomplishment mentioned following the summit—and Ford spoke of it only in response to a news conference question—was agreement to set up a commission to look further into the problem of U.S. employment of temporary Mexican farmworkers.

Don't Mix

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham today warned motorists against adding wood alcohol-type antifreeze in radiators which contain "permanent" antifreeze.

"Mixing of glycol and alcohol-type antifreezes in the same radiator system is not recommended," Graham told a news conference. "It would not be practically possible to determine the freeze protection of the mixture; inhibitors and other ingredients of the two types of antifreeze may not be compatible."

He also said there is a "boiloff" problem. Graham noted his department has the responsibility for registration and testing of all automotive engine antifreezes offered for sale in North Carolina.

He said in a prepared statement complaints had been received from the Charlotte, Lumberton and Fayetteville areas regarding the wood alcohol base product. He added, "It appears these complaints may have resulted from a lack of information regarding this type product."

"Wood alcohol type antifreezes provide better freeze protection at a lower cost, but these antifreezes have a much lower boiling point than ethylene glycol-water solutions," Graham stated.

Will Discuss Medical District Development Plan

The revised Medical District Development Plan, dealing with the area surrounding the new hospital site, will be discussed at a public hearing Wednesday night at 8 p.m. at city hall.

The revised plan, prepared by the Planning and Engineering Department of the city, is intended to provide a current idea concerning the area in view of developments that have occurred since the original schematic plan was submitted in 1973.

The overall intent of the plan, it is pointed out, "is to provide for the orderly development of an area that takes into account the special character of the existing development."

Retail Prices Feel Inflationary Spiral

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rising prices for food, clothing and mortgage rates pushed the cost of living up another 1.2 per cent in September, making the last 12 months the worst inflationary surge in more than 25 years, the government reported today.

Prices in September were reported 12.1 per cent higher than a year earlier. This was the worst 12-month increase since 1947.

However, the purchasing power of the average worker increased slightly for the first time in three months. Real spendable earnings—that is weekly pay adjusted for inflation and taxes—rose one-tenth of a per cent in September but was still at the lowest level since December 1970.

Price increases were spread across almost the entire economy last month. Food led the way, posting its biggest rise since February.

The Ford administration has predicted that consumer prices will continue increasing at the rate of about one per cent a month through the end of the year, and that there would be no significant easing of inflation until some time next year.

Consumer prices have already risen 9.7 per cent so far this year. In 1973, prices rose 8.8 per cent, the worst in any year since the end of World War II.

The Labor Department said last month's 1.2 per cent increase, after a rise of 1.3 per cent in August, pushed the government's consumer price index up to 151.9. That meant it cost $151.90 to buy a variety of goods and services that cost $100 in the 1967 base period.

Although most of the news was bad, some prices declined in September, including such items as gasoline and fresh fruits and vegetables.

Over-all food prices went up an adjusted 1.9 per cent in September compared to a 1.4 per cent increase the previous month. The index for nonfood commodities increased 1 per cent following an August rise of 1.5 per cent while the cost of services rose 1.1 per cent, the same as in August.

With the exception of fresh fruits and vegetables, all major food categories went up last month, pushing grocery prices 1.5 per cent higher over the month to a level 10.9 per cent above a year ago.

Beef and pork prices were reported up instead of declining and poultry prices, which usually are unchanged in September, also rose. Dairy products increased for the first time in four months while prices of fats and oil products continued to climb sharply.

Higher clothing prices accounted for about a fourth of the 1.1 per cent rise in non-food commodities. New car prices increased slightly instead of declining substantially as they usually do at the end of the model year.

Charges for most household services increased with gas, electricity and telephone rates rising. There was a rise in mortgage interest costs, reflecting earlier increases in interest rates on conventionally financed loans as well as the previously announced rate increase for VA-guaranteed loans, which accounted for more than a fourth of the increase in the cost of services last month.

Lack Immunization Shots

Some Pupils May Be Told 'Go Home'

By JERRY RAYNOR

Reflector Staff Writer

A possibility exists that 124 school children of kindergarten through grade three in the Greenville City Schools may soon be asked not to return to school.

This information was revealed by Superintendent Glenn Cox at the October meeting of the school board on Monday night.

According to state law, all children must meet the required immunization standards before being allowed to remain in school. "The 124 who have not met these requirements are from among about 1,200 students in this age group," Cox reported. "We have no alternative in this matter, and will have to send letters to parents of these students if they do not have their children properly immunized."

Cox added that arrangements with the public health service and the county health department provide for ample opportunity for parents to get the necessary shots for their children.

The 1975 annual and the two year plan for occupational education programs of the Greenville City Schools have been approved by the Management Staff of the Division of Occupational Education of the Department of Public Instruction.

Also approved were adjunct plans for the Optional

School abstract and budget, a Non-Matching Expansion Fund budget and abstract, and a Disadvantaged Man-Months use plan.

"You can see," Cox pointed out, "that our occupational education program is not a simple matter. It's a rather complex matter involving four or five different divisions for which staff and teachers have to draw up fully detailed plans to submit to the Department of Instruction."

On the problem of locker space for seventh grade students at Agnes Fullilove School, board members turned down a proposal for 500 lockers that would have cost in excess of $10,000.

Their reason for turning the proposal down was based on a report submitted to Cox by Captain Jerry McLawhorn, City Fire Marshal. In his report, McLawhorn noted "it is my opinion that lockers located in the hallways would be in violation of the State Building Code."

He added that lockers would make the hallway unacceptably narrow and would create obstructions. In lieu of 500 individual lockers, school board members authorized Cox to proceed with placing coat storage racks and storage bins for books in each classroom and mobile unit that does not now have storage area for clothes and books. Further, they asked that Cox keep a check on the situation, obtain a consensus from teachers at Agnes Fullilove on how this alternative is working, and to report back to them.

Board Chairman Henry Dunn appointed a four member committee to study the subject of a unified city-county school system, after the board adopted a resolution to conduct such a study.

The purpose of the study, all members agreed, and it was so stated in the resolution, is not to deal with acceptance or rejection of a merger of the two systems into a single unified system, but to make an effort to determine: (1) the legal aspects of a merger; (2) critical areas in consideration of a merger; and (3) guidelines for a thorough and orderly study of a possible unified school system.

Dunn appointed Dr. Badger Clark as chairman, with Dr. James Bearden, Edward Carter and Mrs. Terry Shank as committee members. Dunn has asked the committee members to report their findings at the December board meeting.

In a brief report on Title I funds, Cox revealed that the school system this year will receive about $180,000 in funds under that title.

Bombed In Books Protest

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP)

A Kanawha County school was bombed early this morning, less than a day after the White House said it was seeking a "constructive compromise" to prevent more violence in the county's school book protest.

A stick of dynamite was thrown through a window at Midway Elementary on Campbells Creek, southeast of Charleston, police said. Damage was "very light," confined mostly to furniture and windows in one classroom, and classes were to be held as usual today, a spokesman for the sheriff's department said.

The same school was one of two damaged by bombings earlier this month. A fire bomb thrown through a window at Midway caused minor damage Oct. 9 and an explosive was placed against the door of West Branch Elementary in the Cab-in-Creek area.

There was some light picketing early today at county school bus garages, deputies said.

Monday, a group of the ministers and parents carried their protest over school textbook selection to Washington and the White House. Roger Senarad, special assistant to President Ford for education and labor, said he told them the White House would do "whatever we can to help forestall additional violence in Charleston."

Check Keeps Returning

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Candy Postlethwaite has never been in the military, but a misdirected Veterans Administration check has made its way to her doorstep for a seventh time and she can't seem to get rid of it.

It was four weeks ago that Mrs. Postlethwaite first received a VA check in the mail made out to one Ronald Lee Vest. She left it for the postman to pick up on his next round.

"I got it back about four or five days later, in a different envelope," she related Monday. So she telephoned the VA office here and was directed to send the stray check there.

"So I did—and I received it back again, in the same envelope," Mrs. Postlethwaite said.

Next she mailed it to the Treasury Department office in Kansas City where the check was issued, along with a certified letter advising that "I did not know this person and this person did not live here." The check was returned once more, in a different envelope.

"Then I took it down to the White Rock (postal) station and gave it to the postmaster," she recounted. "And I got it back again. Then I took it down personally to the Veterans Administration, again—and I got it back, again."

"This was last week, and they told me to mail it to (state) VA headquarters in Waco. And this morning I received it back again."

After the seventh delivery, Mrs. Postlethwaite phoned the Dallas VA office once more. "They just said, 'Well, I don't know what else we can do,'" she said.

At one point she called the Secret Service and told one its agents she intended to destroy the check.

Mrs. Postlethwaite said the agent told her: "You can't destroy it. That's government property."

All right, she'd keep it, she told the man. And he replied, "You can't keep it. It's not yours."

Mrs. Postlethwaite is waiting for further instructions.

Doctors Now Recommend Self Examinations

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Happy Rockefeller detected her own breast cancer at an early stage, apparently before any spread to the lymph nodes.

Doctors recommend that breast self-examination or self-palpation should be practiced once a month.

The following instructions can be followed for self-examination.

1. Sit before a mirror with your back straight, arms relaxed at your sides.

Study your breasts in the mirror for changes in size or shape. Look for puckering or dimpling of the skin or discharge or change in the nipples.

2. Raise your arms high above your head and look again for the same signs. Look for any changes since your last examination.

3. Bring your hands to chin level. Place the heels of your hands together and press to make your chest muscles contract. Look for dimpling of the skin.

Now, lie down on your back on a bed. Place a flat pillow about 13 inches by 16 inches, or a folded bath towel, under your left shoulder.

4. Raise the left arm over your head and rest it on the bed. Keep the fingers of your right hand together and straight. Use a gentle patting motion, feeling with the flat part of your fingers throughout the examination.

5. Start at your breast bone and press carefully on the inner, upper quarter of your breast, moving toward the nipple. Still using the flat of your fingers, feel the area around the nipple.

6. Next feel the lower, inner part of the breast. You will find, among this lower, inner section, a ridge of firm tissue or flesh. This is normal.

7. Now, bring your left arm down to your side. With your right hand, with the flat of the fingers, feel under your armpit.

8. Continue to use a gentle patting motion with your fingers straight out and feel the upper outer quarter of your breast.

9. Complete the examination of your left breast by feeling the lower, outer section of the breast, moving from the outer part to the nipple.

Shift the pillow or towel to the right side and repeat the procedure on your right breast.

Instructions were provided by the North Carolina Health Department.

According to Tillie Cullipher, public health nurse, Pitt County Community Health Department, materials on breast self-examination are available at the Health Department and also through the Pitt County Unit of the American Cancer Society, located at 108-B W. 10th Street.

ERA Workshop Conducted Saturday

"The Equal Rights Amendment must be ratified in order to bring women under the Constitution and to assure them their human rights," said Mrs. Gladys A. Tillett as she addressed members of ERA United at a workshop held in Greenville Saturday afternoon.

ERA United is composed of a number of organizations which have formed a coalition to push for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment when the General Assembly meets in 1975. Mrs. Tillett, who lives in Charlotte, is president of ERA United.

"The Constitution, which is based on English Common Law, does not contain the word 'woman,' and takes no notice of women or their rights," she said, "but assumes that a man and a woman become one with marriage, and that the man is the one." She recounted steps in the struggle women have had to gain, bit by bit, legal rights which men are born with, and noted that it was only in 1920 that the right to vote was finally extended to women.

"The three points which are most often mentioned by those who oppose the ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment are military service for women, non-segregated toilets, and personal relations between men and women," said Mrs. Tillett. Her remarks on these points included the following:

Military service for women: Congress has always had the power to draft any citizen, and preparations were underway to draft women nurses when World War II ended. Women are not now as free to volunteer for military service as are men because standards for acceptance are higher for women than they are for men. The Equal Rights Amendment would make all the privileges and benefits of military service available to women as they now are to men, but it would not deny them the protection which men have had in being called for military service — the consideration which has historically been given to fathers of young children, only sons, and men with physical handicaps.

Non-segregated toilets: Busses and planes have been operating for years with non-segregated toilets and Americans who visit European countries use non-segregated toilets. However, the law concerning the right to privacy assures that no individual would be forced to share a toilet with a person of the opposite sex. In fact, where custom dictates, toilets are segregated on buses other than sex, such as those for commissioned and enlisted personnel on military posts, and the "executive washroom" as opposed to toilets for the non-executives. However, with the Equal Rights Amendment, employment could not be denied women with the excuse that a separate toilet would have to be built for them.

Personal relations between men and women: The Equal Rights Amendment applies only to governmental action and legal rights, and would not affect private action or the social relationships between men and women. Domestic relations and community property laws, however, would have to be based on individual circumstances and needs, and not on sexual stereotypes.

Mrs. Tillett, who has worked for first-class citizenship for women during most of her 70 years, concluded her remarks by saying that she had rather her own daughter and granddaughters serve in the armed forces, operate a jackhammer, or use a second-class toilet than that they spend their lives as second-class citizens.

Following Mrs. Tillett's address, Nancy D. Drum of Winston-Salem, vice president of ERA United, led the group of representatives from the 21 counties of the First Congressional District in a business session. Reports were given of the various activities planned for each county.

Convenors for the meeting were Nelson B. Crisp, vice president of the North Carolina Women's Political Caucus, Stephanie Carstarphen, coordinator for the Greenville ERA Coalition, and Tenna A. Gross, ERA coordinator for the First Congressional District.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

The newest addition to our family is a small goldfish that my son won by throwing a Ping-Pong ball into a custard cup at the State Fair.

He named him Herbie. I figured Herbie was my kind of a pet. He didn't lick your feet, shed under the bed, stay out all night, scratch under the table, nuzzle in embarrassing places, drink out of the toilet, scare small children, have bad breath, or chew the cork off your wedgies.

He just swam around in his custard cup and bobbed occasionally for crumbs.

Then one day my son said, "Herbie needs a home. A real one."

The request seemed reasonable and we went to a pet shop. Homes for Herbie ran from your simple glass cottage beginning at $14.95 to your tri-level condominium at $384. We bought a modest aquarium for Herbie and the salesman said, "With this size aquarium we will need a filter system to keep the water clean."

"Of course we will," I said. "And a thermometer to make sure the water is kept at the same temperature."

"Absolutely," I said weakly. "And we can't imagine a beautiful aquarium without a light to illuminate it, can we?"

"We are being comical, aren't we?" I said.

"And, of course, the food ring so that our fish doesn't have to run all over the bowl."

"So what else does he have to do?" I asked.

"Now, about the furnishings," said the salesman. "What style do we prefer? We could do it in early Castle? Or the Pirate motif with the sunken treasures and the trunk or Contemporary Reef with one or two pottery scuba divers and the carpet in pink

Luncheon Given Club Members

Members of the Grass Roots Garden Club met Wednesday for a luncheon meeting at the home of Mrs. Earl Simmons. Mrs. Margaret Langley was assisting hostess.

Mrs. Langley gave the program on Christmas decorations, exhibiting various items which she had made. A workshop was conducted during the afternoon with members working on decorations.

For the Nov. 20 meeting, a "show and tell" program will be held and members will bring crafts which they have made. The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Amos Evans.

Mrs. John D. Langley gave a report on the Bicentennial luncheon and garden tour, which was attended by several club members. A discussion was held concerning making favors for the patients' trays at the Greenville Nursing Home. Mrs. Wynne reported that there were approximately 150 patients at the home. It was decided the club would make special favors for Valentine's Day.

Mrs. Pam Sasser was welcomed as a guest.

How To Respond To News Of Divorce

By Abigail Van Buren

1974 by The Chicago Tribune

DEAR ABBY: What do you say to a dear friend when she tells you that her married daughter is coming home "for good?" I was speechless because there had never been a clue that all was not going well.

The daughter was the apple of her parents' eye, and only five years ago she made such a promising marriage. She has a darling two-year-old child.

I was lost for words, Abby. I automatically said, "I'm so sorry." But if the marriage had to fail, I suppose it's better that it ended while they were both young enough to start over again. But what does a friend say in such a situation?

NO WORDS

DEAR NO: The less said the better. It's a kindness to ask no questions. And the most generous thing you can do for your friend (and her daughter) is to keep the young divorcee in mind should an eligible bachelor appear on the scene. Also include the daughter whenever possible, to keep her socially active.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow in my late 50s and I'm in love with a man who is younger. We work in the same office. He is married and has a family and he thinks he's an alcoholic.

He has come to my house after work on a Friday, gets drunk and stays drunk the whole weekend. Then he goes to work, goes home and stays sober for two or three months. He also attends Alcoholics Anonymous meetings.

I don't think he is a true alcoholic. I think he just likes to drink. I always have liquor available for him at my house which his wife does not. (She goes to those dumb meetings for wives of drunks.)

This has been going on for three years. How much longer must I wait before he leaves his wife and comes to live with me on a permanent basis? I love him and I believe he loves me. He says he loves his wife, but I think he feels pity and maybe some loyalty and obligation to her because she stuck with him for over 20 years.

Answer soon. I trust your judgment on most matters.

WEEKEND WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I think that he will never leave his wife for you. For one thing, he probably loves her deeply. She's proven that she loves him enough to stick with him. (Those "dumb" meetings she attends are Al-anon, whose function it is to teach spouses of alcoholics how to cope with the many problems alcoholism creates.)

You, on the other hand, are a convenience and a bad habit. Do the man and yourself a favor, and quit providing him with a handy haven for his weekend binges.

Carson Goes To Edmisten Home Town

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
BOONE, N.C. (AP)—State Atty. Gen. James Carson went to his opponent's home town of Boone Monday night looking for votes and met an enthusiastic band of supporters who promised to deliver a Republican win in Watauga County.

The GOP candidate said during the flight to the mountain town late Monday afternoon that he expects to beat Rufus Edmisten, his Democratic opponent, in Edmisten's home territory.

One factor adding fuel to Carson's hopes is that Boone is also the home of Jim Holshouser, the Republican governor. Additionally, Holshouser's father is a Republican candidate for the state House of Representatives.

With just two weeks before the election, Carson said he is trying to concentrate his campaign on the populous Piedmont region of North Carolina.

He predicted the eastern section of the state will continue to be strongly Democratic, the mountain region will favor him, he will carry his vote-rich home county of Mecklenburg by a comfortable margin and the Piedmont so far is a toss-up.

A light turnout Nov. 5 will likely benefit Republicans most, Carson said, adding that he expects less than a million voters to go to the polls.

As to the controversy that for a while embroiled the race for attorney general, Carson said he has noticed little public interest in it. For the most part, people ask about consumer protection and law enforcement, he said.

For several weeks the campaign was marked by discussions of back taxes, residency and charges accusing one candidate or the other of committing the greater error. Lately, the campaign generally has settled down to questions of qualifications and discussion of the issues.

In his visit to Boone, Carson had dinner with about 20 of the GOP party faithful followed by a rally in an auditorium at Appalachian State University.

An audience of about 300 turned out for speeches by Carson: Allene Stevens, wife of the Republican senatorial candidate; Congressman Jim Broyles who is seeking reelection; and a number of local candidates including the senior Holshouser, a former judge and U.S. attorney who said, "Today I'm only known as the governor's father."

Carson brought the generally partisan audience to applause when he criticized Edmisten for never having held public office or practiced law. That is the main thrust of Carson's message, comparing his background of trial lawyer, legislator, superior court judge, appeals court judge and attorney general to Edmisten's background as Ervin's aide.

After the two-hour rally, Carson said he likes to compare his experience with that of Edmisten but soft-pedals comments about his opponent unless the listeners are favorably inclined or at least marginal. Before civic clubs, for example, he said he generally sticks to issues such as law enforcement and doesn't mention Edmisten.

Volume Up On Market

FARMVILLE — The volume of sales yesterday continued heavy on the Farmville Tobacco Market. Most sales consisted of leaf and smoking leaf grades.

According to Louis Williams, sales supervisor, the volume of lugs and nondescript grades showed a large gain as compared with the last sale day. Prices as a whole were about the same as last week with the exception of some grades of lugs that showed a gain.

Leaf and cutter grades of good quality bought as much as $1.20 to $1.25 per pound. Top practical price paid was $1.15 per pound.

The Farmville market sold 633,068 pounds of leaf for $723,066, giving an average of $114.22 per hundred pounds. To date, the market has sold 27,244,732 pounds of tobacco for $28,950,865, giving an average of $106.26 per hundred pounds.

Drawn-Out Milk Suit Is Expected By Mrs. Woo

RALEIGH (AP)—Lillian Woo thinks North Carolina's suit against nine of the state's largest dairies will be long and drawn out.

Mrs. Woo, a member of the state milk commission and a Justice Department consumer affairs specialist, made the prediction Monday after Atty. Gen. James Carson announced that the Department of Justice had charged the dairies with fixing prices on milk sold to school systems.

Carson, a candidate for election next month, sought $12 million in damages and an injunction prohibiting repetition of the alleged conspiracy.

At a news conference, he said 47 per cent of the state's school systems have been receiving milk bids which were identical—"down to the fourth decimal place."

Dairymen, asked to comment, generally refused until their lawyers had a chance to read the charges.

Ben W. Kilgore, president of Pine State Creamery of Raleigh, said school milk prices are similar because wholesale prices, regulated by the milk commission, are the same.

Carson, however, said they were the same because of collusion. Only one system, Charlotte-Mecklenburg, was found to have competitive bidding, according to Carson.

He said the investigation of the milk industry was begun several years ago under former Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan.

The dairies named in the suit were Biltmore Dairy Farms of Asheville; Borden Co. of High Point; Coble Dairy Products of Lexington; Dairymen Inc. of Wilkesboro; Maola Milk and Ice Cream of New Bern; Pet. Inc. of Charlotte; Pine State Creamery Co. of Raleigh; Seal-Test Foods of Charlotte; and United Dairies, Inc. of Greensboro.

Together, they account for about 75 per cent of the milk sold in the state, Carson said.

Now To Make Deeds Of Studies

Nine investigators reported to a conference in the new Regional Development building on their "Pockets of Excellence" research programs last week.

It is fitting that this was the first conference in the new building on First Street, since the institute, under the direction of Tom Willis, is in itself a product of innovative thinking.

The 250 educators, business leaders and others heard reports on projects ranging from a history-oriented reading program for disadvantaged youth to a study of two community drama companies in England.

There was a report on leisure industries, such as Six Flags Over Georgia, Carowinds, Opryland, Tenn., something that should be of keen interest to this area where recreation can play such an important part in our development.

One participant reported on health care education in Virginia, Maryland and Ohio, again something of interest to our area, where adequate health care is so much a matter of concern now.

A participant went to Japan to study oyster and eel culture and suggested ways that North Carolina can develop these resources for economic diversification.

The project, which was funded by the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation of Winston-Salem, was designed to develop study of areas where superior development has been attained. These ideas can be considered for possible development in Eastern North Carolina.

The "Pockets of Excellence" program seems to have been a success.

Efforts should be made now to translate ideas presented at the conference into practical projects which will benefit the people of our state.

It will also be a fine thing if the "Pockets of Excellence" program can be continued in the future. It is possible that developments can come about that we don't even conceive of now, if we dare to dream. The "Pockets of Excellence" program can translate dreams into practical projects.

THIS AFTERNOON

Can Voter Understand?

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH Just pretend you have five minutes to read, understand, and decide whether you are for or against the following statement:

"Constitutional Amendment to create jobs and employment opportunities and to protect the environment by authorizing the issuance of revenue bonds to finance industrial and pollution control facilities among others for industry and the ratification, validation, confirmation and approval of Chapter 633 of the 1971 Session Laws as amended by Chapter 476 of the 1973 Session Laws of the General Assembly which implements the foregoing and of the proceeds taken pursuant thereto by any county of the State in the creation of a county pollution abatement and industrial facilities financing authority and all proceedings by an authority so created in authorizing the financing of industrial and pollution control facilities."

Well?

That is one of the questions on the November 5 ballot, listed under Amendment Number Two, and the voters are supposed to decide the issue.

Nonsense

"It's pathetic...appalling...how can any voter even begin to understand what that is all about," wonders Alex K. Brock, state elections director.

Brock is irate; both over the confusing wording of the question on the ballot, and the fact that many voters "see the sample ballot and think we made up the wording."

"It's just pathetic to put a pocketbook size amendment on the ballot creating such frustration and confusion for an already overburdened public...it's just ludicrous and ridiculous to expect the voter to make a decision such as this," Brock argues.

does not, under state law, have any responsibility as head of the election machinery to try and explain any of the issues on the ballot.

But he considers it a violation of his own integrity, and of the integrity of the election process, to put such a question to the voters.

A review of the opening sentence on the amendment as written on the ballot makes it obvious that to the average voter: opposing creating jobs and protecting the environment would be like a vote against green grass, motherhood, and the flag.

The question is not at all simple as jobs and the environment.

What does the amendment seek to do?

Real Point

Permit local governments to set up a County Pollution Abatement and Industrial Facilities Financing Authority to issue bonds to build factories or buy pollution control machinery and lease those to new or existing business firms in that county, and use the lease income to pay off the bonds.

Twice, the North Carolina General Assembly (1967 and 1971) has attempted to pass law making it possible for government to issue bonds to finance industry.

Twice, the North Carolina Supreme Court knocked down these efforts, holding that revenue bonds issued by government for private industry fail to meet the constitutional demand that public funds can be spent only in the public interest.

So, the 1974 General Assembly decided to get around that judicial roadblock by attempting to change the North Carolina Constitution.

The entire question is complex, but critical. Tomorrow, this column will explore the provisions of the law which is behind the amendment, and in a subsequent column, set forth the opposition stemming from state governmental sources themselves.

"I'm certainly not a rascal but, frankly, I'm worried."

"Same here... and I'm not even a Republican!"

Still Sharing Wonders

Dear Heather:
Your great-grandfather died a few days ago. You are four and he was 81, and it's not likely that you will retain much of a memory of him. That is a pity, for Ben Pietri was a remarkable man, and there are useful things to be learned from his life.

He taught us, by his own example, that we can be whatever we truly want to be. He reminded us of the meaning of education and of the uses of curiosity. Until the very last months of his life, he never stopped learning and he never stopped looking. He was a great one for keeping his mouth shut.

Other Editors Say Regulation Costly

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

In his recent economy message, President Ford called for a thorough examination and possible elimination of federal regulations that contribute to consumer costs.

His proposal seems to have gotten almost no public reaction, probably because it is difficult to believe that mere regulations can raise consumer prices to any extent.

That is, until you look at the consequences of such regulations. However, there are dozens upon dozens of federal agencies and offices issuing steady streams of rules, instructions, decrees, prohibitions, guidelines and warnings.

It is virtually impossible to name all these agencies, commissions, bureaus and offices, not to mention the many branches of HEW and the Agriculture Department.

But they're there and they inundate manufacturers, businesses, utilities, the transport industry and numerous other members of the private economic sector with regulations.

It takes great amounts of time and money for business to comply and these barrages of regulations and reports. The expense is added on to the price of the ultimate consumer product.

That is how such crushing federal regulations contribute to inflation at a time when the ordinary citizen is trying to save every penny he can.

Just to comply with the stringent EPA requirements for cleaning up air and water will cost private business $200 billion.

Just completing the report forms required by the whole mass of federal agencies costs $18 billion a year.

These huge amounts (and of course they are only a part of the unknown total expense generated by federal regulations) are naturally reflected in the prices that consumers have to pay.

It isn't that there should be no regulations governing health, safety quality of product and all the rest.

But the evidence suggests that federal agencies may be indulging in overkill to keep themselves going. President Ford is pursuing the right course in asking for a determination as to whether the results justify the cost.

It looks as if they don't and that consumers would benefit greatly by having the regulators better regulated.

40 Years Ago Today

October 22, 1934

One of the largest posess in the history of Ohio gathered and searched the woods near Wellsville today to search for Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd, a notorious Oklahoma gunman.

Wounded, Floyd escaped Saturday after a gunfight with Chief J. H. Fultz and two citizens who sought to arrest him and one of his confederates.

Melvin Purvis, head of investigation of the Chicago bureau of the Department of Justice, says Floyd is probably either dead or dying in the woods near the village.

Two hundred and fifty dollars was stolen from the Home Grocery Store on the corner of Evans and Second Street Saturday night. Police on rounds of the area found the back door of the store open and called on store manager to investigate.

The manager said he had turned most of his cash over to the company headquarters but still had $250 on hand when he was ready to close Saturday. He wrapped the money up and hid it in a box of beans. Police say someone must have been hiding in the store when it was closed.

INSIDE REPORT

Twilight Of 'Moderates'

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

LOS ANGELES — If the state Democratic ticket sweeps on Nov. 5 as expected, one prominent California liberal Republican who has generously given time, talent and fortune will quietly go to the local registrar and change his party affiliation to independent.

He will not be alone. Many liberal-to-moderate Republicans fear an overwhelming defeat of their candidate for governor, state controller Hiram Johnson-Earl Warren progressive Republicanism. Indeed, this year's disappointing campaign has shown the moderates deficient in both energy and voter appeal.

Thus, although reports of the death of the Republican party are sometimes exaggerated, this may truly be the twilight of the moderates. Those who plan to drop their Republican affiliation see the party becoming an evermore ideological band of conservatives guided by outgoing Gov. Ronald Reagan. What's more, a Reaganite Republican party purified of moderates could be national in scope.

This forecast starkly with the euphoria among Republican moderates earlier this year when a chain of events (including the indictment of Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke) made Flounroy the first California progressive Republican nominated for governor since 1954. With the most liberal state ticket in nearly a generation, Flounroy's supporters saw themselves setting a national trend.

Jubilation was premature. Flounroy had neither grass roots constituency nor fundraising structure. Moderate money men kept their wallets zipped tight. All that saved Flounroy from financial suffocation was the generosity — resulting from party loyalty — of well-heeled Reaganites (including even right-wing oilman Henry Salvatori).

Still more telling, Flounroy's calm, rational and quintessentially moderate approach to problems seems alien to today's harassed, deeply troubled electorate.

Flounroy simply cannot duplicate the superheated alarm generated by his Democratic opponent, Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown, Jr., against malodorous special interests. A Ph.D. in political science who taught at Pomona College before entering politics full time, Flounroy makes intelligent but unemotional arguments to voters accustomed to televised political psychodrama.

Before their recent debate on statewide television, Flounroy was implored by aides to lash out at Brown. He tried. When a capital punishment question was asked, Flounroy uncharacteristically snapped: "I was voting for capital punishment in the legislature when my opponent was on a vigil for Caryl Chessman, the murderer-rapist." But he quickly reverted to form with studious analyses of the issues.

We watched Flounroy last week at the same site where we watched Reagan campaigning for reelection four years ago — addressing workers at the Rohr plant in San Diego. In 1970, Reagan entranced the blue-collar audience by denouncing welfareism and espousing law and order. In 1974, the same workers were interested only in the pocketbook: high prices and diminished job security — concerns which Flounroy's balanced discussion of the economy did not begin to satisfy.

Belief that such blue-collar audiences have cooled toward Reagan is the practical reason why Flounroy strategists reject the governor's private suggestions to make Reaganism the campaign's major issue. But lacking his own hardcore support, Flounroy cannot repudiate Reagan, even when the governor denounced Brown for a "siege Heil" mentality.

How hard the times are for moderates is shown by what has befallen Assemblyman William Bagley, a powerful liberal Republican force in the legislature this past decade now seeking to replace Flounroy as state controller. Bagley flails his opponent, Assemblyman Ken Cory, for having accepted an eye-popping $508,000 from two Orange County wheeler-dealers to finance his entire campaign. Prominent Democrats, sickened by Cory's financial connections, privately express their preference for Bagley.

But that does him precious little good in the face of an impending Democratic sweep. One Democrat renowned for his fundraising

COMPARTMENTAL-MINDEDNESS

This long word of twenty-three letters denotes people whose minds are divided into air-tight compartments with no connecting passages between. In some compartments these people carry their religion; in others their business practices. One compartment may contain the fawning behavior they exhibit toward their superiors; another may contain the blunt rudeness reserved for their inferiors. Certain compartments are devoted to storage of principles; others to policies.

The trouble with this arrangement is that the compartmentalized man is ready at a moment's notice to make moral compromises without even being aware that he is violating these moral principles. Hypocrisy becomes his normal stance in life.

It is a salutary experience for all of us now and then to make a tour of inspection through our minds to see whether the various categories of our thoughts are being segregated into air-tight compartments.

Bargains In Shares Overlooked?

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The man who wrote the book believes that investors today might be overlooking bargains in corporate shares.

The book is the 1934 classic, "Security Analysis," which Benjamin Graham coauthored with David Dodd. Many securities analysts consider it their bible, even after the passage of 40 years.

Graham recently looked over the market again. His observations were published in the "Financial Analysts Journal," a professional publication.

"In a large area of the present stock market," he writes, "we could return to a very old-fashioned but nonetheless useful criterion for equity investment—namely the value of the company as a private enterprise to a private owner, irrespective of market quotations for the shares."

Graham doesn't say so specifically, but his comments suggest that some investors might be looking too closely at the market quotations and forgetting the asset value of the corporation.

"If the business has been prosperous, and is at least reasonably promising for the future, it should be worth its net asset value," Graham states.

However, he continues, about one-half the companies listed on the New York Stock Exchange recently were selling at less than book value. About 400 issues were selling at less than two-thirds net worth.

As many other analysts have observed, where else in a time of inflation can you buy something for less than the value of the ingredients that went into it?

Graham doesn't promise that such stocks will regain their market strength, but he states that comparable buying opportunities in years past seem to have worked out well for investors.

'Risks' In FBI Reports

By MARGARET GENTRY

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. attorneys are complaining that the prosecution of criminal defendants is endangered because FBI investigative reports contain information which may be used to discredit prosecution witnesses.

The FBI has rejected suggestions that certain information helpful to defense lawyers should be left out of the reports.

But FBI officials have promised to consider other ways of making the reports more valuable to prosecutors.

The dispute surfaced in a closed-door session between the federal prosecutors and FBI legal counsel John Mintz during a Justice Department conference in New Orleans last week. Mintz and some prosecutors discussed the issue in interviews since then. The U.S. attorneys asked not to be identified.

The complaints involve the written reports FBI agents prepare after interviewing individuals summoned as prosecution witnesses.

The courts increasingly are requiring prosecutors to allow defense lawyers to examine these reports.

The prosecutors have complained that witnesses sometimes lie and often make mistakes in their answers to FBI agents during the first round of questioning and sometimes change their accounts later.

The FBI reports include such conflicts and mistakes by witnesses. Defense lawyers may seize upon these discrepancies in an effort to convince a jury that the witness is lying or unreliable, the prosecutors said.

Some prosecutors asked that the FBI omit reports of the initial interviews and only prepare written accounts of the witness's final version of the crime, according to some attorneys.

D.H. Conley HIGHLIGHTS

Every week at Conley seems to have one main incident of concern or worry. This week there are two — one of concern and one of worry.

Report cards, unfortunately for some, were issued Thursday. With only a few tears shed, the students have one marking period behind them.

Our homecoming game was played Friday night. Conley played host to the Eastern Wayne Warriors. After the game, a dance was held in the school gym. The dance featured "Onyx". Needless to say, Homecoming '75 was quite a success.

D. H. Conley was represented at the Explorer Post meeting Wednesday night by Lynelle Little, Glenn Smith, and Nettie Tyson. The Explorer Post is sponsored by the ECU School of

He got out of bed and started a whole new career. He truly wanted to be a sculptor, so he put his tools and his curiosity together and began making flowers and ferns and fountains of brass and steel and copper. This was part of the meaning of education. All those years in the woods and by the ponds, he had been learning. He had learned how a leaf is attached to the twig, and the twig to the branch, and the branch to the tree. He had seen the world in the eye of a frog.

This is knowledge, Heather—not book-knowledge, but knowledge-knowledge. To know how a leaf curls out of a bud is just as useful, in its way, as knowing how to write a sonnet, or build a bridge, or set a broken bone. Ben's copper leaves had the feeling of leaves because he had looked intently at leaves. Touch those leaves and you know all the autumns of his life.

At 80, he was still a colorful figure at the sidewalk art shows, joking with young artists, selling his flower sculptures, teasing about the blue ribbons he won. Then his health failed and his eyesight failed, and the heart that wouldn't give up, gave up. But life always goes on. Heather, you're learning that now, as a little girl growing up on a farm. The leaves of autumn do not die; they grow in another way in another spring. When you're a few years older, you'll be fishing too, on some perfectly perfect day when the fish are biting and the water sparkles. Think of your great-grandfather. Some part of him will still be there, still looking, still learning, still sharing the wonder of it all.

GRANDFATHER.

Evans-Novak. . .

(Continued from page 4) prowess tried last week to raise a secret kitty for Bagley; he failed completely. Soon afterwards, a fundraising cocktail party for Bagley in Los Angeles was cancelled for lack of response.

Bagley and Flournoy were members of a closely knit, highly gifted circle of Republican moderates elected to the legislature in the early 1960s who backed Nelson Rockefeller for President in 1964. Since then, they have fought — often against Reagan — for humane, pragmatic Republicanism. They have no apparent successors in the legislature. In 1976, Rockefeller — or even President Ford — would be hard put to find a base of support against Reagan.

So the Republican party, here as elsewhere, grows smaller and more conservative. Only one of ten new California voters registered as Republicans this year. If Flournoy and Bagley are swept under by the Democratic tide, Republican ranks will become still leaner numerically and still purer ideologically in the months ahead.

Gentry Col. . .

This prosecutor acknowledged that providing the conflicting accounts to defense lawyers may weaken the government position.

But he said, "This is a risk we have to take because if the public ever starts doubting that an FBI agent tells the whole truth, then we're in worse trouble."

Library Media Association was held at Chowan High at Tyner Wednesday. Terri Averett, a sophomore at Conley, was elected treasurer of the district. Terri's campaign manager was Carol Gooding. Also Cynthia Tetterton was elected vice-

Judge Blocks Giving Papers And Tapes To Nixon

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge has at least temporarily blocked the White House from carrying out an agreement to give former President Richard M. Nixon custody of his White House papers and tapes.

At the same time U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey indicated he will tackle the centuries-old question of just who owns presidential papers—the President or the government. Richey said that although he was ordering the White House to hold onto the tapes and documents of Nixon's presidency, the former president can have access to them "for the sole purpose of preparing to testify in the Watergate criminal trial." If Nixon's health prohibits him from coming to Washington to study the tapes and documents, Richey said in Monday's order, copies may be made and sent to him in California. Nixon's lawyers have asked that all of the materials be sent to a federal repository in California under Nixon's custody as called for in an agreement revealed by President Ford the same day he announced he was pardoning Nixon. In the meantime Nixon's lawyers, in papers filed Thursday, had asked for a temporary restraining order banning the White House from releasing any more of the Nixon materials except for those already under subpoena or which might be subpoenaed for criminal prosecutions already under way.

This would have banned the White House from giving Nixon materials to any of the federal grand juries still investigating Watergate matters, and one of the special prosecutors suggested in court Monday that the Nixon motions might be a ploy in the offing to frustrate prosecutions.

The Department of Human Resources has been reorganized for better planning, Secretary David T. Flaherty told members of the Greenville Rotary Club Monday night. "The Department was created by the 1971 Executive Reorganization Act," said Flaherty. The department includes 31 agencies, boards, or institutions. The largest of these are Health, Mental Health, Social Services, Vocational Rehabilitation, and services for the blind and deaf. It is one of the largest departments in state government. Flaherty has served as Secretary of the North Carolina Department of Human Resources since January, 1973, when he was appointed by Governor Jim Holshouser.

Present Priorities "With the input of ideas and needs that we have received from counties and regions this year, we have worked out a system of priorities that we are presently working on," Flaherty said. "Our first priority is to recognize children's needs and problems early before they need the help of institutions. Second we would like to require pre-kindergarten children to be screened physically and in other ways to help pre-school children." "There are no programs for children between the ages of 0-6 with problems. We need to work for early intervention," Flaherty continued. Other priorities that the department is presently working on are respite care for handicapped children, transportation for different programs to help citizens, and recreational facilities for handicapped children, according to Flaherty. "The Departments of Human Resources and Public Instruction have joined with Parents and Professionals for Handicapped Children (PPHC) to co-ordinate 'Count the Children' census during the week of Oct. 21-26," Flaherty explained. "The purpose of the census is to allow every child the equal opportunity of educational services." In conclusion, Flaherty invited the Rotary members as "people in roles of leadership," to share the needs of the people with the department of Human Resources.

Traffic Safety Talk For Moose

Speaking to members of the Greenville Moose Lodge last night, Sgt. Glenn Swanson of the North Carolina State Highway Patrol said the Patrol's goal was to cut down its arrests rather than to increase them, by informing the driving public of the laws and programs relating to safe motoring. The Traffic Safety Information Officer dwelt largely on the problems of drinking and driving, and expressed the conviction that when a man does drink he should not endanger the life and limb of other people. North Carolina's criteria for the varying degrees of effect from alcoholic consumption were outlined and their relative impact on physical and mental reaction described. Sgt. Swanson told his listeners that over 50 per cent of North Carolina auto fatalities in the past year showed some degree of alcohol involvement. "Some states," he said, "have stiffened their laws concerning the drinking driver, and others are considering stronger standards."

He pointed out, too, that the fact legislatures... made up of many diverse interests... were adopting stringent standards for drinking drivers, was ample evidence the public favored such action. Breathalyzer tests were demonstrated for volunteers from his audience. In other business before the meeting, Civic Affairs Chairman Roy Thompson reported Saturday night's dance for children of Moose families and their guests was well-attended, and urged members to begin the collection of used clothing within their own households and among those of neighbors and associates for the coming Clothing Bank drive. "There'll be a formal collection on November 4," he said, "but it's best we begin now and have our own decks cleared before the campaign formally begins."

TELLING IT LIKE IT IS—"Robbery In Progress" signs like this one were introduced outside branches of the Chemical Bank in New York City Monday. When activated from key observation points inside the banks, the lighted signs will flash the notices to police and other passersby. (AP Wirephoto)

Other members appearing on the program were Jean Clark, Chocowinity High School; Jean Haddock, Greenville City Schools; and Verona Cratch, Beaufort County Schools.

OTTAWA (AP) — United Farm Workers President Cesar Chavez has canceled a Canadian campaign for support of his union's grape and lettuce boycott because of illness. A spokesman said Monday that Chavez was recovering in a California hospital from a back ailment and exhaustion. He was to start the tour today in Sydney, Nova Scotia. Led by Ohio State and Oklahoma, the first eight teams in The Associated Press college football ratings held onto their positions today while Nebraska and Penn State climbed back into the Top Ten and Arizona and North Carolina State dropped out.

Ohio State remained No. 1 for the fifth week in a row with a 49-9 rout of Indiana. The Buckeyes received 50 first-place votes and 1,196 of a possible 1,210 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Runner-up Oklahoma drubbed Colorado 49-14 and picked up eight first-place ballots and 1,082 points. Last week, the Sooners trailed Ohio State 1,160-1,020.

Third-place Michigan received one first-place vote and 923 points after beating Wisconsin 24-20. Alabama, No. 4, trimmed Tennessee 28-6 and earned one first-place vote and 887 points. Auburn received the other first-place vote and 699 points with a 31-22 triumph over Georgia Tech.

Southern California, Notre Dame and Texas A&M remained in the 6-7-8 positions. USC downed Oregon 16-7, Notre Dame walloped Army 48-0 and Texas A&M blanked Texas Christian 17-0.

Nebraska, which was seventh in the preseason ratings and got as high as fourth before dropping down to 12th following its second setback, made it back up to ninth with a 56-0 shellacking of Kansas, which had been 13th.

Penn State, eighth in the preseason poll, skidded to 19th after losing to Navy early in the year but has been climbing back gradually—to 15th, 11th and now 10th. The Nittany Lions defeated Syracuse 30-14.

Arizona and N.C. State, Nos. 9-10 last week, slipped to 16th and 17th, respectively. Arizona lost to Texas Tech 17-8 while N.C. State bowed to North Carolina 33-14.

The complete Second Ten consists of Texas Tech, Florida, Texas, Arizona State, Maryland, Arizona, North Carolina State, Tulane, Miami of Ohio and California, which made the Top Twenty for the first time this year. The Bears replaced Kansas.

Injured List Big For Bucs

East Carolina University's football team, following its sad experience on artificial turf at Appalachian State University, reads its roster like a medical report, and a hard workout yesterday afternoon added more names to the list.

A number of players suffered bruises and abrasions from the AstroTurf in the Boone stadium, along with other injuries. Bobby Myrick suffered a hip pointer in the game; Don Schink got a sprained wrist and bruises on his thigh and forearm. Mike Weaver suffered abrasions on his kneecap and both elbows and forearms. He also has a bruised thigh, and a cold with a fever.

Ken Strayhorn, who broke his nose in the game, reinjured it Monday. Others lost in the game include Ricky Bennett and Larry Lundy, both with knee injuries. And reserve quarterback Tom Chipok has a shoulder separation.

Monday's practice also brought out information that Steve Mulder is out with a possible torn ligament in his knee and Thomas Slade has a sprained neck. All of the Pirates, with the exception of Chipok and Mulder are expected to be ready to play Saturday night against Dayton, however.

Basketball, with its practice underway, also sent several players to the training room too. Among them were Wade Henkel, who suffered a pulled groin muscle, and also has a virus; along with Tom Marsh, out with a pulled thigh muscle.

Contest Winners

Dennis E. Warren of Rt. 2, Box 281, Robersonville, is the winner of this week's Daily Reflector Football Contest.

Warren picked the winners in 27 of the 32 games listed in last week's Daily Reflector.

Second place went to Henry Land of P.O. Box 458, Kannapolis, who was just one back with 26 right.

The tie game between Illinois and Michigan State was counted as incorrect on all ballots since it is possible to pick a tie.

The new contest for the coming week appears on the following pages.

LEAVING THEM ALL BEHIND — Chicago Bears wide receiver Charley Wade (83) outruns an official and Green Bay Packers defenders Ken Ellis (48) and Willie Buchanon (28) on his way to a first quarter touchdown Monday night in Chicago. Wade caught a pass from Chicago quarterback Gary Huff and sprinted 57 yards for the score. Chicago won, 10-9. (AP Wirephoto)

Bears Nip Packers, 10-9

By JOE MOOSHIL
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — "It was strictly designed to be a short-yardage play," said Carl Garrett, "but Randy Jackson and Perry Williams threw super blocks and I could have gone all the way if I hadn't tripped."

The play—one of many key plays in the Chicago Bears' stirring 10-9 victory over the Green Bay Packers—came in the closing minutes when the Bears were hanging on to their threadbare advantage Monday night.

Garrett not only got the two yards for a clutch first down but rambled 18 yards to get the Bears out of a serious hole. Bob Parsons then punted out on the Green Bay four-yard line and still the Bears didn't clinch the triumph until Garry Lyle intercepted a Jerry Tagge pass in the closing seconds.

Another key play—the game was full of them—came in the fourth quarter with the Bears leading 10-6. Tagge spotted Barry Smith alone in the end zone and fired. Craig Clemons appeared to come out of nowhere at the last second to bat the ball out of Smith's hands.

"Clemons made it look tough because of national television," said Coach Abe Gibrone. "He should have been there all the time."

Clemons credited Smith with making "a good move. I got there at the last second. Sure, we used six backs on defensive at times but remember, we were quick enough to come back and support on the run."

The strategy of using six defensive backs was puzzling since it forces a team to run rather than throw and Green Bay is known more for its running than its passing.

"You can think whatever you want," said Gibrone. "The six defensive backs forced them to run. We fired, we could stop their running. They had never seen six defensive backs before and it's tough to throw against them."

The Bears scored the first two times they had possession of the ball to take a 10-0 lead and then hung on while fighting off three Chester Marcol field goals in the second half.

Mirro Roder booted a 23-yard field goal midway in the first period and Gary Huff hit Charley Wade with a 57-yard touchdown pass minutes later. It was Wade's first pro touchdown although he leads the Bears in receptions.

"I was overdue, long overdue," said Wade. "And it came on national TV too, that's what made it great. A lot of people saw what I can do."

The Bears nursed the lead through the first half and five minutes into the second half Marcol booted a 34-yard field goal after Al Matthews had intercepted a Huff pass.

Later in the period, Ted Hendricks intercepted another Huff pass and returned 44 yards to the Chicago 37-yard line. But the Packers were halted on the 16-yard line and had to settle for a 33-yard Marcol field goal.

Now the Packers needed only a touchdown for a tie and they would have had it if Clemons hadn't knocked down Tagge's pass to Smith. With a little more than six minutes to play, they went for another field goal and Marcol connected from 36 yards.

They never had another serious chance—not with Garrett's run, Parsons' punt out of bounds and finally Lyle's clinching interception.

Hornets In Playoff

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The Charlotte Hornets have clinched a berth in the World Football League playoffs.

The league announced Monday that there will be an eight-team playoff, instead of the six as previously decided.

There are 10 teams in the league. If the Hornets lose their four remaining games, they would finish 10-10. And the best that Shreveport and Portland can finish is 9-10-1.

In all likelihood, the new playoff setup will include the champions of the three divisions, the runner-up, and the two other teams with the best records.

Two Golfers Claim Aces

Two holes-in-one have been recorded at Brook Valley Golf and Country Club during the past week.

Don Hayes got one of them on the fifth hole, using a five-wood. His shot went into the cup on the fly. Witnesses were Secretary of Human Resources for North Carolina David Flaherty; his assistant Joseph Balak; and Howard Hawkins and Harry Wilson. The ace was Hayes first.

Also coming up with a hole-in-one was Frank Hill, on the 12th hole. He used a six-iron for the shot, also into the cup, giving him his first ace. Playing with him were Ben Harrison, Troy Riddle and Harold Thomas, pro at Brook Valley.

Eagles Top Win

The Eagles took a 20-6 victory over the Steelers yesterday in Recreation football.

Dwayne Fisher put the Eagles into the lead in the first half with a 15-yard run and Mont Carter added the PAT for a 7-0 lead.

Michael Thurber got the second Eagle score in the second half, raising the score to 13-0.

The Steelers came back with a score as Jimmy Jones hauled in a 12-yard pass from Darrell Green.

But the Eagles came back with a three-yard run by Barry Tyson to wrap it up. Ken Barnes added the PAT for the final 20-6 margin.

REBUILDING TASK

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Army's football team scored only seven touchdowns in 1973 while losing all 10 games. Thus, the biggest task for new West Point football coach Homer Smith is rebuilding the Army offense.

As head coach at Davidson College in 1969, Smith guided the Wildcats to their first and only Southern Conference title. The past two seasons he assisted at UCLA and was the Bruins' chief architect in the development of the Wishbone T offense. The Bruins won 17 of 22 games during his campaigns on the West Coast.

Penn State's football co-captains are halfback Jim Bradley of Johnstown, Pa., a premed student, and center Jack Baiornos of Quincy, Mass., a pre-dental major.

Brock Leads All-Star Team

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Brock slid safely on The Associated Press' 1974 Major League All-Star baseball team.

Picking up the most votes of the outfielders with 290, the St. Louis Cardinals' base-stealing wonder was among the classy group voted in Monday by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Brock, who broke Maury Wills' distinguished record of 104 steals with 118 this season, was joined in the outfield by Oakland's Reggie Jackson and Jeff Burroughs of Texas. Jackson polled 218 votes while Burroughs had 194 to make the blue ribbon team ahead of such illustrious names as Jimmy Wynn of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Atlanta's Ralph Garr, the National League's batting champion.

The major battles in the voting took place at shortstop and for the right-handed pitcher's berth. Cincinnati's Dave Concepcion won the shortstop position over Bert Campaneris of Oakland, 173 votes to 133.

Ferguson Jenkins of the Texas Rangers was named the team's right-handed pitcher, outdueling Catfish Hunter 159-117. Nolan Ryan, the California Angels' strikeout king, finished a distant third with 53.

Baltimore's Mike Cuellar won in a breeze for the left-handed pitcher's slot. Cuellar collected 255 votes to 46 for his nearest rival, Detroit's John Hiller. Ken Holtzman of Oakland was third with 35. The remainder of the team includes first baseman Steve Garvey of the Dodgers; second baseman Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins; third baseman Mike Schmidt of the Philadelphia Phillies and catcher Johnny Bench of the Reds, all runaway winners.

Along with his phenomenal exploits that broke Wills' record, Brock's season included a .306 batting average, 105 runs scored and 194 hits.

Jackson blasted 29 home runs, knocked in 93 runs and batted .289 for the A's while Burroughs had his finest season at Texas with 25 homers, 118 RBI and a .301 batting average.

Concepcion drove in 82 runs and batted .281 for the Reds. Jenkins, a former 20-game winner in the National League, had a 25-12 record for the Rangers and boasted a 2.82 earned run average while striking out 225 batters. Cuellar won 22 games and lost but 10 for Baltimore while posting a 3.11 ERA.

Garvey, a landslide victor over Dick Allen of the Chicago White Sox, 273 to 76, batted .312 while hitting 21 home runs and driving in 111 runs. Carew, the majors' best hitter with a .364 average, also was the American League's best vote-getter with 306.

Schmidt drove in 116 runs and hit 36 homers for the Phillies. Bench blasted 33 homers and knocked in 129 runs to finish far ahead of the field at his catching position.

Clemson Defense To Test Tough Volunteers

Football coaches don't usually belittle an opponent. But Tennessee Coach Bill Battle's statement that Clemson has a good football team carries more than the usual weight.

Clemson, which will play at Tennessee Saturday, put up a solid defense last week in defeating Duke 17-13 and ending the Blue Devils' victory string at four games.

The defense forced six fumbles. And it twice denied Duke scoring bids after the Blue Devils had moved inside the Tiger five-yard line.

Tony Benjamin of Clemson, who had five individual tackles, three first contacts and two assists, was named as one of the two Atlantic Coast Conference defensive players of the week.

Battle says the Vols will work on their offense all this week, "we've got to move the ball and get it into the end zone."

In other games Saturday for ACC teams, Duke will be at Florida, N.C. State will be at Maryland, North Carolina at South Carolina in a night game, and Virginia at Wake Forest.

Maryland gets a chance to continue justifying its pre-season selection as the best team in the ACC.

The Terps leading the ACC at 3-0, shook off a lackluster first half against Wake Forest. They scored on their first four possessions in the second half, and won 47-0. It was their third consecutive shutout, a feat they had not performed since 1948.

Quarterback Bob Avellini, who replaced the injured Ben Kinard after Maryland lost its first two games, has directed four consecutive victories.

North Carolina, which upset North Carolina State 33-14 after the Wolfpack had won six in a row, will be playing at South Carolina against a revitalized Gamecocks team. South Carolina, loser of its first five games, defeated Mississippi 10-7 for what Gamecock Coach Paul Dietzel called the greatest single victory of his career. Bobby Marino kicked a 21-yard field goal with 17 seconds left to give South Carolina its first victory of the year.

Tony Kupec, who passed for two touchdowns and ran for a third against N.C. State, was a co-choice as the ACC offensive player of the week. He coordinated a precision attack that produced three touchdowns in the first quarter against a team which was ranked No. 10 nationally.

The other player to win offensive honors was Virginia guard Tom Glassic, a 233-pounder who opened holes all afternoon as the Cavaliers edged Virginia Tech 28-27. He helped keep the outside running game open for sweeps, and provided excellent pass blocking for quarterback Scott Gardner.

Little Bit Of Baseball

By ANDY LIPPMAN
Associated Press Writer
UNION, Ky. (AP) — The frost is on the pumpkin. The leaves are turning gold. The kids are back in school.

Still, it's baseball season in Union.

It's always baseball season at the home of Larry Luebbers, seller of country hams and baseball fan extraordinaire. For, while the 33-year-old Luebbers is ruler of his domain, he is also umpire, groundskeeper and, often, the only fan at his own major league ballpark.

Luebbers is the proud owner of all that is left of Crosley Field, until 1970 the home of the Cincinnati Reds.

"All I really ever wanted to do was walk on the field," said Luebbers. "Then when they auctioned off parts of the stadium, I thought I'd pick up a few seats and one thing kept leading to another."

Four years and $29,000 later, Luebbers has a barn full of seats and his ducks now peck at the pitching rubber once trod upon by the likes of Jim Maloney, Johnny Vander Meer and Ewell Blackwell.

"I didn't think it was right that they should just rip the stadium up and cart it away," said Luebbers.

So, he did something about it. As you enter Union you can see Luebbers' stadium up on the hill. It's really a skeleton of a stadium now. The fences, the foul poles and the dugouts are all in place, but there are no grandstands.

Luebbers has only 400 seats, but that's enough. "There are only 250 people in Union," grinned Luebbers. "If I tried to rebuild the place with all those decks, every person in Union could have his own section."

The old scoreboard is going back in place as soon as the steel arrives and signs with 1970 prices grace the outfield walls. Luebbers spent $9,000 terracing his pasture and seeding it with bermuda grass.

In the past three years, local knothole teams have used the park. Luebbers himself is a coach. His team was 2-10 this year.

"Last winter the infield froze over and we ice-skated," said Luebbers, settling into one of the box seats which gives him a view not only of the field but out into the surrounding Blue Grass countryside.

"I hope that I can get this thing finished. It's becoming almost a compulsion with me."

Portland Must Show Interest, Owner Says

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer
There's still a chance the Portland Storm will move into the World Football League playoffs—but there's a better chance that they'll move.

Portland plays in Thursday night's nationally televised WFL game, hosting playoff-bound Memphis. In Wednesday night's action it's Birmingham at Shreveport, Philadelphia at Southern California, Florida at Charlotte and Hawaii at Chicago.

The league said Monday night that eight teams would make the playoffs. At the start of the season, the league said four would make it. Then, several weeks ago, it was expanded to six. Now it's eight, meaning only two of the 10 clubs still playing (two have suspended play) will sit out the postseason action.

The Storm is hoping the national TV game will be a showcase for football interest in Portland and that it'll draw a sellout crowd at 33,000-seat Civic Stadium.

If it does, it'll virtually triple last Wednesday night's showing of 11,032 fans, a season-low, who saw the Storm slip past the Hawaiians 3-0.

"If they want a professional football team here, we can't go on drawing only 11,000 per game," says Storm owner Bob Harris.

"If we continue to draw that number for these last two games the team closes out its home schedule Nov. 6 against Florida then we might have to give some thought to moving."

Harris said the Storm had to draw about 28,000 fans per game to break even this year, which means they're far from it. They've averaged 15,433. So even two full houses for its final two games wouldn't bring the books into the black.

The Memphis Southmen, 14-2 and leading the Central Division, seem to have nothing but rushers, with three of them in the top 10. J.J. Jennings leads the league with 1,189 yards, John Harvey has 802 and Willie Spencer, who will probably miss the game against the Storm with a knee injury, has 788.

Still, the Southmen can also move the ball in the air. John Huarte, back in the starting line-up after missing 3½ games with an injury, has thrown for 20 touchdowns and Ed Marshall has caught a league-high 15 scoring passes.

Birmingham's Americans are 12-4 and trail the Southmen by two games while Shreveport is in the Western Division scramble with Hawaii and Portland.

The Steamer's main playoff hopes rest on Jim Nance, 88 yards away from rushing into the 1,000-yard club, and Rick Eber, No. 1 among WFL receivers with 58 catches for 696 yards.

Southern California, 12-4, has already clinched the Western title and faces a tough challenge from Philadelphia, 6-10. The Bell is four games behind second-place Charlotte in the East.

It figures to be a war of big bombs between rookie Tony Adams of the Sun, the No. 1 passer in the league with 3,211 yards, and Philadelphia's Jim Corcoran, No. 2 with 3,002. James McAlister and Dave Williams have teamed for 107 Southern California catches, good for 1,562 yards and 13 TDs, while John Land is Corcoran's main target.

First place in the East is at stake when the Florida Blazers, 11-5, visit Charlotte, 10-6. They're as close as their first meeting, when the Blazers pulled out a 17-15 victory over the Hornets.

The Hawaiians, 6-10, and Chicago, 7-9, are thinking wild card and the Fire is hoping for a replay of its 53-29 battering of Hawaii earlier this year. But it's not likely—Chicago has been riddled by injuries since then.

Wheels Players In Draft Today

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Thirty-seven players were scheduled to go for grabs today as the 10 remaining teams in the World Football League draft players from the defunct Detroit Wheels' franchise.

The league announced Monday after an all-day meeting of owners and the board of governors that teams would draft in reverse order of standings by telephone conference hookup at a motel here.

It also said it had approved ownership for a new franchise which will begin play in New York in 1976 and that the number of teams in the league playoffs this year will be expanded from six to eight.

League President Gary Davidson said the remaining WFL teams would be allowed to expand their rosters from 37 to 40 so that they could take as many of the 37 Detroit players as they need. He said that contracts of all Wheels' players would be honored.

The best known Detroit players include quarterback Bubba Wyche, formerly of the University of Tennessee and the Canadian League; linebacker Mike Taylor of Michigan and the New York Jets; defensive end Mike Walker of Tulane, and fullback Sam Scarber, who played at the University of New Mexico and in Canada.

Wyche may not be available in the draft, a league spokesman said. He was signed by the Chicago Fire after the collapse of the Detroit franchise and played in the Fire's last game.

"That situation will have to be resolved prior to the draft," the WFL source said. "I assume it will cost them a draft choice in a future college draft, something that would have some real meaning. I didn't get any word on that yet."

There will be no draft of players from the financially troubled Jacksonville team. "They think they have a group which would like to buy the team in total and start operations next year," the source said.

Money problems forced the Detroit and Jacksonville franchises to cease operations two weeks ago. The scheduled opponents of the two teams will play each other for the remainder of the WFL schedule.

Davidson said the new owner of the New York team will be "announced in that city later this week." He said the team would play in Yankee Stadium after it is renovated.

The WFL, which is in its initial year, started the season with a team in New York, but the franchise was shifted to Charlotte, N.C., late last month.

"We feel while we have had our problems we have not ignored them but we have worked toward their solution," Davidson said, referring to the collapse of two franchises. "I feel very positively we have turned the corner."

Davidson said the eight teams with the top records would compete in this year's playoffs which begin Nov. 20 and end Dec. 5 with the World Bowl.

The playoff draw will be established next week, the league source said.

Los Angeles Making A Bid

By Goeffrey Miller
AP Sports Writer
VIENNA (AP) — "We may be the underdogs, but I reckon we have a 50-50 chance of landing the Olympics," said Tom Bradley, the strapping mayor of Los Angeles.

The lanky, 6-foot-4 mayor, a former quarter-miler and basketball player at UCLA, was in Vienna to lead his city's bid against Moscow for the right to host the sports extravaganza in 1980.

"We like to think we are the best equipped sports city in the world," Bradley said prior to today's presentation to the International Olympic Committee. Moscow was to follow with its presentation. Lake Placid, N.Y., the only city bidding for the 1980 Winter Olympics, also was scheduled to appear before the IOC. Decisions on sites for both the Summer and Winter Games were expected from the IOC Wednesday.

"We have not made any personal approaches to members of the IOC. We have done everything in accordance with IOC regulations, and I know we shall get a fair hearing," said Bradley. "I have no idea even whether the Pan-American vote on the IOC will go in our favor."

While the potential hosts polished their presentations Monday, the IOC unanimously adopted a revised and simplified rule governing athletes' eligibility for the Olympics.

The international federations will be given a freer hand to decide whether their own athletes are amateurs or not. But there is no relaxation in the old rules forbidding an athlete to make any financial gain from sports, or to compete as an amateur in one sport if he is a professional in another.

Athletes are no longer restricted in the amount of time they may spend training, with financial compensation for loss of earnings.

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — David A. Benjamin was named squash and tennis coach at Princeton University Monday.

Benjamin is a 1966 graduate of Harvard, where he was captain of the tennis team. Since 1970 he has worked as a head tennis pro while pursuing a doctoral degree at Harvard.

Princeton's squash team tied for the national championship last spring and its tennis squad placed 16th at the NCAA championships.

LA ROMANA, Dominican Republic (AP) — The United States, with a team consisting of Cynthia Hill, Deborah Massey and Carole Semple, will open defense of its title today when golfers from 22 countries begin competition in the sixth Women's World Amateur Golf Team Championship at the Los Cajules course.

The U.S. won the title in 1972 in Buenos Aires with a team of Laura Baugh, Jane Bastanchury Booth and Mary Ann Burke.

The 6,212-yard, par-74 beachfront course was drenched by a brief but heavy rainstorm Monday which was accompanied by winds up to 50 miles per hour.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Paul Baxter, the Cleveland Crusaders' top draft choice, was to undergo exploratory surgery today after injuring his left knee Saturday night in a game at Cape Cod, the World Hockey Association club said.

If Baxter, an 18-year-old defenseman, needs surgery to repair torn ligaments, he could be lost for three to four months, the Crusaders said.

The WORRY CLINIC Dilemma Of An Unwed Mother

Edith faces the same sexual dilemma as thousands of other girls. Her own selfish ego makes her fail to look far ahead to the future and follow the wise advice of her Guidance Counselor. Use the moral yardstick below!

By GEORGE S. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.
CASE B-674: Edith W., aged 17, is a pregnant, unwed high schooler.
"Dr. Crane," her Guidance Counselor asked, "could you please give Edith some advice?"
"For her boy friend has run off and deserted her."
"Her mother works and her father is dead."
"Yet Edith insists on keeping her baby after it is born, for she says it is the only thing that really belongs to her."
"And several of her girl classmates think she is wonderful in thus refusing to give up the infant."
"But with so many splendid married couples eager to adopt a child, don't you think Edith is selfish in her attitude?"
Pregnancy Advice
In this period of loose morals, unwed pregnancy has zoomed. And it is usually due to one of several of these reasons:
(1) Girls who come from feuding parents or broken homes, often have an excessive hunger to be loved.
So they succumb easily to high-pressure wooing by a boy who fervently protests his undying love, though that may be merely sales talk for a sexual orgy.
For there is an axiom from the field of salesmanship, which states that "Nothing is so easy to sell as that which the customer has long wanted."
Since these affection-starved girls from broken or feuding homes, have longed for love, they are "ducksoup" for designing males.
(2) Often a girl will actually plan to get pregnant as a means of forcing an attractive boy to marry her.
Thus, if her regular escort is popular and she fears others of her coed classmates may steal him away, she may entice him into an illicit pregnancy, hoping a shotgun wedding will ensue.
(3) If a high school coed is dating a college boy, he may stampede her into illicit sexual affairs by saying, "All the college girls do it."
To avoid being thought of as unsophisticated and old-fashioned, she may then submit to his social pressure.

(4) Closely related to this situation is that of the girl who stays home while her high school sweetheart heads for college or Military Service.
In her grief and fear about losing him, she may then throw herself into his arms and go the limit, as a parting farewell gesture.
(5) Among the feeble-minded 20 million Americans, girls are often made pregnant by their fathers, brothers, cousins, uncles and in-laws via incestuous unions.
And they often wish to cling to their babies to get the monthly ADC (Aid to Dependent Children) checks who taxpayers are forced to furnish them.
But in most cases it is wiser to let the baby of an unwed mother be adopted in a good home where no stigma will attach to it, and it will have a loving father and mother to let it develop normal emotional stability.
To decide such cases, keep in mind this age-old yardstick for determining what is right:
Whatever does the most good for the most people for the longest period of time is right!
Adoption does the most good for the baby, and also adds greater happiness to its legal adopting mother and father.
It also relieves the unwed girl's mother and father of the stigma of rearing an illicit grandchild.
And it permits the girl to finish her education or get a good job and rehabilitate herself for possible happy marriage later on.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Gambler At Ease In A Film

By WAKA TSUNODA
NEW YORK (AP) — Amarillo Slim, who says he has "acted all my life but not in front of the camera," has finally corrected the oversight and made his film debut.

The well-known professional gambler who has won the World Series of poker twice makes a brief appearance as himself in "California Split," a film about compulsive gamblers starring George Segal and Elliott Gould.
"I was hired as a technical advisor, they told me, but when I got up there (a location site in Reno, Nev.), all of a sudden they wanted me to play cards. That's how it came 'bout," drawled Texan Thomas Austin Preston Jr., who is known as "Amarillo Slim" because of his home town and his 6-foot-4, 171-pound build.
Did his acting experience at the poker table come in handy in film acting?
"Yeah," he nodded in his characteristically hang-loose manner. "I was relaxed. Unconcerned. I didn't give a damn about those cameras. I did what I've been doing all my life."
Slim believes that poker, a game born in America, is getting popular as a spectator sport.

"Hold 'em" is a variation of seven-card stud in which each player is dealt two cards face down. Five cards are then dealt face up in the center of the table as a community pile. The winner must make the best high hand he can out of his two hole cards and three from the community pile.

him to win the trick. Now is the time for West to plan his campaign. From the fact that declarer ducked in dummy, which risks having dummy's ace ruffed away, West can assume that declarer cannot count ten tricks. The duck also tends to suggest that declarer hopes to establish dummy's fifth diamond as a parking place for one of his losers. If that is the case, West would only help declarer if he continued with another diamond. South would win the second diamond and ruff a diamond. A club finesse puts him back in dummy for a second diamond ruff, setting up the long card. Declarer would then draw two rounds of trump, leaving the high trump outstanding, enter dummy with the ace of clubs and discard a heart on the fifth diamond. He would lose a trump, a heart and a diamond.
To thwart declarer, West must attack dummy's entries in the club suit. Thus, at trick two it is correct to shift to a club. But to lead a low club is not good enough, for declarer can allow this to run to his ten, and then discard one of his heart losers on the club suit by simply finessing West for the king. West must shift to the jack of clubs, and declarer can come to no more than nine tricks.

Hunters Finding A Shortage In Guns

By TERRY RYAN
Associated Press Writer

Hunters are hunting for scarce guns and ammunition before going after ducks and deer this year. Sporting goods dealers across the country report shortages of rifles, shotguns and ammunition.

The shortages resulted from limited supplies of steel for gun barrels, choice woods for rifle stocks and plastic and brass for cartridge cases, dealers said.

Officials in many states reported increases in both poaching and legal hunting of game birds and animals. The price of meat is a factor, some said, but others said it's still cheaper to go the supermarket.

With hunting season about to start in many states, gun dealers from Maine to the Mexican border are looking at thinly stocked rifle cases and ammo bins. "There's a shortage of everything popular," said Dave Gils of Coast-to-Coast Stores in Fargo, N. D.

Steel shortages have affected production at the Ithaca Gun Co., said John Hrana, marketing manager for the upstate New York gun maker. "Most of the effect was in the first part of the year," Hrana said. "But our production forecast is being met almost 100 per cent now."

A shortage of top quality walnut wood for gunstocks has caused delays for some manufacturers. A few have turned to birch and other woods to fill the gap.

Most dealers reported little difficulty getting inexpensive guns, but the demand is for mid-priced and quality firearms and they are in short supply.

Despite price hikes of 30 per cent and more during the past year, some dealers blame the shortage of hunting guns on manufacturers waiting for still higher prices.

"There's a lot of talk about shortages of raw materials, but you have to wonder if they are not just holding back until the next price increase," said Judd Kirkham, sporting goods buyer for a J.C. Penny store in Kansas City.

The ammunition situation is about the same.

"The price of ammunition is out of sight," said Virginia Carter, owner of Ozark Tackle and Supply in Eldon, Mo.

In short supply are cartridges in the calibers most often used for deer hunting.

Game management and wildlife officials in many states said they expect a moderate increase in the number of hunters in the field this year because of larger herds and flocks and the growing popularity of outdoor recreation.

The high price of beef produced a boom in hunting license sales last year, but officials generally are looking for 3 to 5 per cent increases now.

Some people haven't waited for opening day to begin their hunting. Officials in Utah, Illinois, New Hampshire and several other states reported an increase in poaching this year.

A Night For Driving Care

CHICAGO (UPI) — Halloween is a time for motorists to exercise special caution. Children on the trick-n-treat route often dash out into the road. Motorists, says the National Safety Council, should be on the lookout for them.

There are these other motorizing tips:

- Slow down in all residential areas.
- Obey all traffic signs and regulations.
- Watch for children in dark clothing walking down the road, on the shoulders or on the median.
- Watch for children at road crossings.
- Make sure your headlights and windshield area are clean to insure good visibility.
- Be especially careful when backing out of driveways.

ABOUT UNICEF

NEW YORK (UPI) — Over 400 million persons suffer from trachoma. For five cents you drop into a UNICEF trick n treat box, the United Nations Children's Fund can provide antibiotic ointment to save one of them from blindness.

Farm Scene

Many times we hear about the beautiful fall colors in the mountains of North Carolina, however, we have these same red, yellow and bronze colors in Pitt County. These colors need to receive much emphasis in landscape designs. Deciduous trees such as Sourwood, Sugar Maple, Red Maple, and Scarlet Oak are excellent for reddish color. Ginkgo and Tulip trees have excellent yellow fall foliage. Crepe Myrtle produces reddish, yellow and bronze color.

Fall Planted Shrubs and Small Trees

Small trees and shrubs can be planted with success during the late fall at lower elevations. If the job is done with care. At lower elevations late fall planting allows the roots to gain a foothold for a fast start next spring. Three points to remember in planting shrubs are (1) make holes large enough for the roots of the plants to spread out, (2) leave the soil in a saucer shape around the trunk so it will hold water, (3) choose good, medium loam soil and, (4) prune back about one-third of the top growth at planting time.

Azalea and Camellia Rooting

Azaleas and Camellias can be rooted during October. Tip-growths with well-developed shoot buds are used. Use cuttings three to five inches long and bevel or slope the base of the cutting about one-half inch. Dip the base end into a rooting hormone.

Leave only the top two leaves on Camellia cuttings and only three to five on Azaleas. Plunge the cuttings into clean sharp sand, to within two inches of the top of the cutting. Soak the sand with water and sprinkle the cutting thoroughly each day for 10 days. After the 10 days, sprinkle as often as necessary to keep the sand moist. About mid-winter when the roots are formed, the plants can be transferred to flower pots.

SAVINGS PENNIES—Bell Fleishman, one of science students at University Liggett Middle School in Grosse Pointe Woods, weighs some of the 10,000 pennies students have collected to finance a new chimp at the Detroit Zoo. They have set a 50,000 penny goal by Dec. 10 to pay for and support the new unnamed chimp that arrived last week. A couple of years ago another class of Mrs. Jane Renaud bought a sea lion for the zoo. Weighing is faster than counting pennies, the students have found. (AP Wirephoto)

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices backed off some early gains in an apparently belated response to some bad news about inflation.

The Dow Jones industrial average picked up 5 points in the first half-hour of heavy trading as Monday's advance spilled over into today. But the blue-chip indicator turned and slipped to 666.38, down 3.44 as investors caught up with the news that the consumer-price index roared ahead at a 14.4 percent seasonally adjusted annual rate for September, boosted primarily by a big jump in food prices.

The Dow was also depressed by losses among blue-chip stocks such as Du Pont, which reported lower earnings Monday but rose sharply on short covering, brokers said. Today Du Pont traded at 103 1/2, off 2 1/2.

Trading continued active and advancing issues broadly led declines on the New York Stock Exchange.

The broad-based NYSE index of all common stock listed on the Big Board rose .27 to 38.99 at 11 a.m., and the American Stock Exchange market-value index rose .66 to 70.03 at 11 a.m.

The plan continues, "It is probable that some construction activity related to this program may be undertaken near the hospital. Also a 100-acre tract of land immediately adjacent to the new hospital site was rezoned for a small shopping center, office and institutional uses and for medical arts."

Developments in the area "have significantly altered the original plan as first presented," it is pointed out. "They point to a much larger medical orientation than was originally anticipated. This new and larger orientation also points out a much larger role for public funds to play in the development of the area."

The city invited all interested persons to attend the meeting, to be held as part of the agenda of the Joint City-County Planning and Zoning Commission.

Five other items are slated for consideration at Wednesday night's Joint City-County and Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission meeting.

In addition to the public meeting on the medical plan, the joint board will discuss the Joint Planning Commission-Board of Realtors Condominium Study Committee and consider a request by Mrs. Paulette Corda for rezoning a tract of U.S. 264 from RA-20 to CN for a ceramic shop.

The three items on the Greenville board agenda include: request by Perkins Oil Co. for rezoning, from R-6 to CN, of property at Harding and E. Fifth Streets for a bicycle sales and repair store; dedication of streets in Arlington Plaza Subdivision; and consideration of a preliminary plat of Georgetown Square Townhouses located in the Oakmont Professional Plaza on the west side of N.C. 43.

The Planning and Zoning Commission invited all interested persons to the public meeting on the medical plan. The planning session will begin at 8 p.m. at city hall.

Ran Car Into School Bus

BELTON, S.C. (AP) — A 17-year-old high school student was killed today when his car slammed into the rear of a school bus, the South Carolina Highway Patrol said.

None of the students on the bus was injured, officials at Belton-Honea Path High School said.

Trooper F.E. Gillespie identified the dead youth Rany Max Vaughn, the only occupant of the car.

The collision occurred around 8:10 a.m. on a rural road south of Belton as both the bus and Vaughn were en route to the school.

Pupils on the bus were quoted as saying the Vaughn's car was attempting to pass the bus when he saw an oncoming car and pulled back behind the bus. They Vaughn applied his brakes, but skidded sideways into the back of the bus.

Driver Charged In Car Collision

Abner Beryl Ayers Jr. of Route 4, Williamston was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 5:15 p.m. collision yesterday at the intersection of Third and Pitt Streets.

Police reported the Ayers vehicle collided with a car operated by Dempsey Demetri Parker of Route 9, Greenville causing an estimated $500 damage to the Parker car and $400 damage to the Ayers vehicle.

No injuries were reported.

Antifreeze Time—If A Tar Heel Can Find It

By The Associated Press
A cold wave which sent North Carolina motorists scurrying for antifreeze Monday has brought the coldest weather of the season to the Tar Heel state.

The mercury plunged to 19 in the Alleghany County community of Laurel Springs in the northwest mountains, North Carolina's traditional "icebox" corner.

Other overnight lows ranged from 21 at Hendersonville and Fletcher in the mountains to a record-breaking 31 at Wilmington on the south coast. The previous low in the port city for Oct. 22 was 34, set in 1952.

Raleigh-Durham also recorded a new low of 26, one degree colder than the previous record.

Some of the other overnight lows were 22 at Canton, 24 at Asheville, 25 at Henderson, 28 at Jacksonville, Hickory and Greensboro, 29 at Rocky Mount and 46 at Cape Hatteras, the only station in the state above freezing.

Shivering motorists who scurried to do so after record low temperatures Monday and Tuesday night found stocks gone or depleted. Prices three or four times last year's, because the antifreeze is oil-based, didn't stop anybody.

Customers were prepared to travel great distances to find the stuff. Clarence York, manager of a Pep Boys store, said the automotive supply chain's two Charlotte stores had received calls from 200 miles away. The stores had been charging $4.99 a gallon, compared with $1.98 a year ago, but have been out of stock for 10 days. York said they hoped to have a supply next week.

Zayres discount stores put 700 gallons on sale at each of its Charlotte stores at $4.99 a gallon on Sunday, and sold out in a few hours. Zayre had been charging a dollar more and selling out before the Sunday sale. Two Richway stores in Charlotte said they had sold out a week ago. They were flooded with calls Monday, when the overnight temperature reached freezing. Highs will be mostly in the 60s today and in the 70s Wednesday.

K-Mart stores in Charlotte apparently had an adequate supply of antifreeze at $6.99 a gallon.

The overnight freezes of the last two days came too late to do much damage to crops. Ted Caudle, a Mecklenburg County horticulturist, said at Charlotte that most staples have been harvested, or were already destroyed by the first frost several weeks ago.

"The soybeans were pretty well wiped out last time," he said. "And the corn has already been harvested. There's nothing in the fields that is important now."

However, he said flowers not in greenhouses or otherwise protected would be damaged.

Cox to request a state allocation of one additional elementary teacher for South Greenville. There are 27 students throughout the system in excess of state prescribed maximum class sizes. The request will be made for South Greenville in view of the fact there is an available classroom space there that could be used for an additional class.

The 27 over maximum number is fairly evenly distributed; with three at Eastern, three at Elmhurst, two at Sadie Saulter, four at South Greenville, and five at Wahl-Coates. Third Street is the only elementary school without pupils over the maximum limit. There are no reported legal overloads in grades seven through 12.

The school board also approved Cox's requesting temporary permission to operate the classes with more than maximum students enrolled. This procedure is required by state law.

Two student activities of more than one day's duration away from school were approved. The first is the annual foreign travel trip to be taken by Spanish students, who will make a trip to Mexico at a later date. The other is an overnight trip in November to Winston-Salem by 13 arts and crafts students in Bob Karl's art classes.

Also approved is a planned appearance of "The Singing Play", a production of the A. J. Fletcher Educational and Opera Foundation of Raleigh. This event will be for all fifth graders in the city school system and will take place at the South Greenville School beginning at 1:30 p.m., November 13. This will be a performer-student participating activity, with selections from The King and I, and four operas — Don Pasquale; Tales of Hoffman; Madame Butterfly; and Rigoletto.

A native of Americus, Ga., Dr. Busbee has degrees from the University of Georgia, where he was a graduate assistant in its School of Forest Resources.

Dr. Raymond L. Busbee has joined the faculty of the East Carolina University Department of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Safety. He will be coordinator of ECU's Parks, Recreation and Conservation program.

A health fair to be conducted at Wahl-Coates by the Pitt County Medical Auxiliary for a one day period was approved. The demonstration booths will be manned by wives of local doctors.

Also approved was a request for one school, yet undetermined, to have three half-day holidays during November for the purpose of having Barry Humphries conduct workshops in a teacher in-service human relationship program.

On the matter of the use of mini-bikes on school campuses during non-school hours, school board members have reminded the public that such use is unauthorized, and is a violation.

A motion to deny the use of school activity buses to any private group or agency was defeated by a four to three vote. Board members, however, asked Cox to check into the legality of permitting use of school activity buses for non-school related activities; and also to check on the extent of insurance coverage when these buses are used by non-school groups.
