

Nixon Vital Signs Have 'Stabilized'

By RICHARD SALTUS
Associated Press Writer
LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon's doctor says it is too early to make a long-range prediction on the health of the former president.

But Dr. John C. Lungren said Wednesday that Nixon's vital signs have stabilized, although he remains on the critical list.

Nixon lapsed into vascular shock following urgent surgery for phlebitis on Tuesday. Doctors worked for three hours to restore stable blood circulation.

Nixon's former presidential news secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, told newsmen, meanwhile, that the 61-year-old ex-president came very close to death during the postoperative emergency.

"There is no doubt that we almost lost President Nixon yesterday afternoon," said Ziegler.

Ziegler said Nixon's condition grew so serious that "I think it's fortunate that President Nixon was in the intensive care unit."

Nixon's doctors, however, side-stepped questions on whether Nixon's life was in danger during the period of postoperative shock and bleeding behind the membrane that surrounds his abdomen.

By Memorial Hospital Medical Center's definition, critical condition means vital signs are not stable and not within normal limits — "Indicators are unfavorable."

A hospital spokesman said that by keeping Nixon on the critical list, "it means the doctor still fears that Mr. Nixon may have further trouble."

Lungren, Nixon's doctor for 22 years, said through a hospital spokesman that Nixon's internal bleeding had been arrested and that he was receiving medication for pain and occasional nausea.

"All emergency resuscitation equipment for any contingency" is at his bedside, Lungren added.

A hospital spokesman said a tube had been inserted through Nixon's nose and into his stomach to drain off fluids and prevent swelling of the abdomen because he could not move his bowels, a side-effect of the bleeding.

President Ford is campaigning in nearby Los Angeles today, but a White House spokesman said Ford had no plans to visit Nixon.

The spokesman said Ford was watching Nixon's condition closely, however.

Nixon's wife, Pat, and daughters, Julie Nixon Eisenhower and Tricia Nixon Cox, maintained a vigil. Mrs. Nixon remained by her husband's bed and the daughters were busy answering telephone calls offering best wishes and opening get well cards.

Mrs. Nixon and her daughters have been sleeping at a private residence in Long Beach, 50 miles north of Nixon's seaside estate at San Clemente.

The hospital switchboard has been swamped with calls since Nixon underwent surgery to insert a clothes pin-like clamp over a vein in his groin area. The clamp was implanted to prevent a newly discovered blood clot from moving to his heart and lungs.

Nixon re-entered the hospital Oct. 23 after home drug therapy proved ineffective in treating the phlebitis. He was hospitalized for 12 days ending Oct. 4 for treatment of the problem.

Expensive Deer

Frederick Leon Baker Jr. of Route 3, Kinston killed a deer here early today — much to his sorrow.

Greenville police reported Baker killed a six-point buck when the deer ran into the path of his car on Memorial Drive, 500 feet North of the Third Street intersection about 12:30 a.m.

Damage to the car was set by officers at $400.

Kissingers In Pakistan

By BRIAN JEFFRIES
Associated Press Writer
ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto were to meet today for talks that will provide one of the tougher tests of diplomatic skill on Kissinger's current tour.

Bhutto said in advance that he would press his visitor for resumption of American arms sales to Pakistan. But Kissinger during his visit to India earlier this week assured the Indians that his government would not lift the embargo which it put on arms sales to both India and Pakistan during the 1965 war between the two nations.

Bhutto claims Pakistan needs new and advanced American weapons to counter the arms Russia ships to India.

Bhutto and Kissinger also were expected to review the implications of India's nuclear bomb test on May 18. The Pakistani government does not accept the assurances India gave Kissinger in New Delhi that its nuclear program is entirely for peaceful purposes.

U.S. economic assistance to Pakistan also was certain to be discussed.

The government needs to import about 1.2 million tons of wheat this year to stave off food shortages over the winter and has already approached Washington for help. Bhutto is also looking for financial assistance to cope with a growing deficit in the balance of payments resulting mainly from a quadrupled oil import bill and a slump in the price of cotton, the country's chief export.

Kissinger and his wife arrived in Rawalpindi from Bangladesh and motored to nearby Islamabad. They leave Friday morning for Iran, with a brief stop en route in Kabul, the capital of Afghanistan.

Kissinger spent about 20 hours in Dacca, the capital of Bangladesh, and met with Prime Minister Mujibur Rahman and Foreign Minister Kamal Hossein. The secretary of state was warmly received even though he is blamed in Dacca for the Nixon administration's "tilt" toward Pakistan in the 1971 war in which India won Bangladesh's independence.

"Our people are prey to starvation," Hossein told Kissinger at a banquet for the visitors. But there was no word whether any food was promised beyond the 150,000 tons of grain the United States agreed to ship Bangladesh earlier this month.

Wilderness Being Turned Into Largest Farm In All America

FIRST COLONY FARMS—The main unit of First Colony Farms sits against a stark background of freshly prepared soil and drainage channels. The farm covers 380,000 acres in four eastern N.C. counties. (AP Wirephoto)

By NASH HERNDON
Senatorial Staff Writer
WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — The sparsely populated wetlands in the 50 miles between the Washington County town of Roper and the Pamlico Sound have remained virtually untouched wilderness.

Even today, bears roam the shores of Alligator Lake and deer and waterfowl still find sanctuary against man's development.

But this eastern North Carolina land will change over the next five years. Some 600 square miles of it is hearing the sound of diesel engines as an army of bulldozers and tractors and low-flying cropdusters turn the land into what some call the largest farm in America.

First Colony Farms' 380,000 acres sprawl over most of Dare and Tyrrell counties, spilling into large parts of Washington and Hyde counties.

The farm will mean more food for Americans. It is economically sound and politically attractive in a time when food is scarce and prices are rising.

But the Sentinel of Winston-Salem reports that this farm will also bring environmental problems to eastern North Carolina.

No one is exactly sure how dramatic those problems will be, or how difficult the solutions, or how permanent the consequences. No one is conducting the in-depth environmental studies that could answer the questions.

But the farm will affect the people who live on this wilderness peninsula. And it will affect the waterways that border it on three sides. Perhaps more lasting, it will forever change the land.

Scientists at North Carolina State University warn that farming the region occupied by First Colony Farms is at best a delicate operation that will require advanced technological safeguards against ecological harm.

So far, the role of guardian against environmental disaster has been left solely in the hands of the farm's developers.

The farm is owned by Malcolm P. McLean, a New Jersey industrialist who once lived in Winston-Salem, where he established McLean Trucking Co. After selling the trucking firm, he developed a container shipping firm which he sold to R. J. Reynolds Industries.

McLean has been described as the largest stockholder in Reynolds Industries.

The farm is so vast that even its smaller components are gargantuan. The farm will require more than 1,000 employees to work it when fully developed, now expected by 1979.

The farm will be covered by small V-ditches that drain into a network of channels which ultimately will empty into North Carolina sounds. The farm has a high water table that is augmented by a 55-inch annual rainfall.

Even the smallest component of that drainage system, the six-foot-wide Vditches placed 300 feet apart will cost $5 million to build. There will be 10,000 miles of these smaller ditches and will replace a surface area equal to 7,000 acres of land.

First Colony Farms commissioned a 17-member task force of scientists at N.C. State University to study possible environmental problems that could occur through development of the land.

Their report offers a glimpse at some of the characteristics of the soil and its fragile nature:

—More than 60 per cent of the land is highly organic soil composed of decaying growth in the spongy, marshlike land. It must not only be drained of water, but large quantities of preserved wood in its acid soil must be removed before farming.

—The soil combines chemically with air when exposed and is reduced. Called "subsidence," similar soils in Florida and California have been known to sink at a rate of three to six inches a year because of this chemical reaction.

—The soil is so rich that it catches fire easily.

—Clean-clearing the land causes higher wind velocities that could produce large-scale dust storms.

—The drainage channels could allow pesticides and fertilizers to drain into sounds and rivers, causing serious damage to water quality and marine life.

Dr. T. Ewald Maki, who helped write the report, and Dr. Harvey Bumgardner, who was chairman of the study group, said none of the problems is "insurmountable."

But they also warned that little is known about the environmental consequences of so vast an operation in such a setting and they warned that "serious precautions" will be constantly required to avoid permanent damage to the land.

Maki said strict water control in the drainage canals, as First Colony

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day, but the phone service is available 24 hours a day

GLASS RECYCLER FOUND
I have been saving non-returnable bottles for two years, thinking there would be someone who could recycle them. Is there anyone who could use them? Mrs. D. J.

A. C. Turnage of the local Air and Water Resources told Hotline the nearest glass recycler he knows about is the Laurens Glass Company of Henderson.

Mrs. Elizabeth Gordon of Laurens said the company is located on the U.S. 1 Bypass north of Henderson. They pay $20 a ton or one-half cent per container and will accept any glass, except plate or window glass, or the amber-colored variety. Caps need to be removed, but labels need not be. There is no pickup service, but perhaps a local organization or individual would be interested in establishing some deposit centers and transporting the glass to Henderson. Laurens will supply general information sheets upon request.

NO RENTAL
I went to U-Ren-Co here to rent a television set. The man wouldn't rent to me when he learned I didn't have a North Carolina driver's license, even though I showed him other identification indicating I am a resident of this area. We moved here several months ago. B. S.

A U-Ren-Co spokesman said the store has a large sign posted saying they will not rent to a person without an N.C. driver's license. "We are liable to lose not only the rental price, but the item rented as well," she said, "and the driver's license is a fairly reliable way of tracing the person."

"Television sets are items that we lose quite often," she added.

She also mentioned that you asked to post-date a check, which made them leery, also. She expressed regret that you were angered by the refusal, but defended the company's policies.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

A THANK YOU

David and Linda Adams Sutton say people have been wonderful to them since their plight was written up in Hotline. Linda, 24 and the mother of two young sons, has leukemia. They have received about $400 in contributions to help out with the financial bind Linda's illness has caused, and several people have offered to drive Linda to and from Duke Hospital where she is undergoing treatment. They've also received some lovely cards and letters, they report. Persons interested in helping further should contact them at Quail Hollow Trailer Court, Rt. 8, Box 379-A, Greenville, N. C. 27834.

Leaf Markets Setting Their Closing Dates

Several tobacco markets in the Eastern Tobacco Belt have announced closing dates for the 1974 tobacco selling season.

J.N. Bryan, sales supervisor for the Greenville market, said the warehouses in Greenville will hold their final sales on Monday.

The Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade met Tuesday afternoon to decide on a closing date. Only two warehouses will be open for sales on Monday—New Carolina and Keel's.

"The two warehouses will remain open Monday for the convenience of the farmers who have not finished selling their tobacco," Bryan said.

Louis Williams, sales supervisor for the Farmville market, said the Farmville warehouses will also close after sales on Monday.

The Wallace and Washington markets closed after sales on Tuesday while the Windsor and Robersonville markets held their final sales on Wednesday.

Markets which closed after sales today include Clinton, Kinston, Smithfield and Williamston.

The Ahoskie market will close after sales on Tuesday and the Wilson market has set Nov. 7 as its tentative closing date.

Closing dates for Dunn, Goldsboro, Rocky Mount and Social Security Taxes Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of Americans will pay higher Social Security taxes next year, with additional payroll withholding as high as $52.65 for employees earning $14,100 or more.

The increase takes effect automatically under Social Security legislation enacted by Congress in 1972 and 1973.

There will be no change in the present Social Security tax rates of 5.85 per cent each for employer and 7.9 per cent for the self-employed. However, the tax will be levied on the first $14,100 of each wage earner's income, up from the present $13,200.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare estimated Wednesday that about 19 million workers will be affected by the increase.

Wendell have not been announced.

Edmisten Vows Seek Revenue Dept. Indictments

Crucial Period For Bangladesh

By SPENCER DAVIS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Bangladesh faces a crucial three to four weeks in its fight to obtain sufficient grains and stave off famine, American and Bangladesh diplomats here say.

Because of severe floods last summer, there are no stocks of rice and wheat in densely populated villages and Bengali flood victims are dying of hunger in ever-increasing numbers.

The late rice crop may reach record proportions, but it is not due to be harvested until December, the sources said. The challenge is to mobilize enough food in the meantime to feed the Bangladesh people.

U.S. officials said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger did not make any dramatic announcements on food in his talks in Dacca Tuesday. Prime Minister Mujibur Rahman was disappointed last month that the United States was unable to give more positive assurances of food for this year.

Bangladesh hoped for 700,000 tons of food grains from the United States. The United States has authorized 100,000 tons of wheat and 50,000 tons of rice so far in the fiscal year that began July 1. Another 100,000 tons is expected to be approved before the end of this year, but delivery probably will not be made until early 1975.

The first 50,000 tons of American wheat under the new allocation will leave Baltimore about Nov. 3 and will arrive in Chittagong in December.

Meantime, 11,700 tons of rice bought by the United Nations from China for delivery to Indonesia has been diverted to Bangladesh and reached port on Oct. 27.

Another 50,000 tons of grain from Australia is expected to arrive in late November.

Emergency shipments totaling about 20,000 tons from the European community are scheduled for arrival in the next two months.

And finally, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirate have turned over $15 million to Bangladesh from their oil funds to help finance the purchase of food from abroad.

RALEIGH (AP)—Whether he wins or loses the election, Rufus Edmisten said he will seek criminal indictments against "high ranking" officials in the state Department of Revenue.

"Somebody has got to put a stop to this," Edmisten said, adding, "We've got a very frightening police state, it looks like to me."

Edmisten, the Democratic nominee for state attorney general, may be facing criminal charges for failing to file North Carolina income tax forms during the 10 years he worked for retiring Sen. Sam Ervin, D N.C., in Washington.

He lived in the Washington suburb of Alexandria, Va., and paid income taxes in that state. When it was first learned that he didn't file North Carolina returns, Edmisten said he didn't know he should. He has since filed returns for the period and paid back taxes he estimated he owed.

Wednesday, it was learned that state Revenue Commissioner J. Howard Coble turned over a report of Edmisten's tax situation to Wake County Dist. Atty. Burley Mitchell. Coble said he made no recommendation about prosecution in the report.

Because he ran against Edmisten for Democratic attorney general nomination and now supports Edmisten's candidacy, Mitchell asked the court to appoint another prosecutor. Superior Court Judge H. Pou Bailey appointed Raleigh attorney Howard Manning to handle the case.

Mitchell said if the report is true, it "might possibly justify criminal prosecution" of Edmisten.

Coble is an appointee of Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser. Two months ago, the governor appointed James Carson as interim attorney general to replace Robert Morgan who stepped down to run for Ervin's Senate seat. Carson and Edmisten are running for the two years remaining in Morgan's term.

Edmisten learned of the possible criminal charges in the tax case while he was campaigning in northeastern North Carolina Wednesday. He said the charges were "political."

Carson, campaigning in the Piedmont, said he wasn't "in a position to comment" on the case and said he and his staff weren't involved with it. "I hope it's being treated like any other case," he said.

In response to the situation, Edmisten said he believes Carson is "personally" behind the action which occurred about a week before the election.

The development "will help me," Edmisten said. North Carolinians will "defeat the people associated with these events," he said referring to Carson. He said it will gain him support and encourage his supporters to work harder.

Coble "is about the most unprincipled person I've ever come upon," Edmisten said. Coble is a "contributor" to the Carson campaign and has helped Carson's candidacy, he said.

If any criminal indictments were to be filed against Revenue Department officials at Edmisten's request they would be based on a charge of illegal release of confidential tax information, Edmisten said. "I've got strong leads that information from my tax returns were illegally leaked," he said.

Edmisten wouldn't elaborate on what information he has about the "leaks," but suggested that some newsmen were given information about his taxes. The leaks were to make it appear that he owes the state large sums of money and therefore cast a bad light on his campaign, Edmisten said. Since the figures were never published, the report was turned over a week before the election "to create in the minds of the public that there may be some deliberate wrongdoing," Edmisten said.

The manner in which the matter has been handled is unusual, Edmisten said. Normally, the possibility of criminal charges is dropped once the department accepts a person's late tax forms, he said, adding that he turned in his forms and his estimate of back taxes several weeks ago.

Edmisten said such a case has never occurred in the state's history and the case against him is "politically motivated."

Edmisten said additional proof of the case being political harassment is that Coble sent letters to the state's congressional delegation warning them that some of their employees might have a "misunderstanding" about state taxes. He has often said he is not being treated in the same way that other persons in the same situation have been treated.

"I've gotten to the point where I'm going to take my gloves off," Edmisten said Wednesday afternoon. Later, though, he softened his stand and said he may not begin attacking Carson personally—something he has said he won't do because it amounts to "low road campaign tactics."

"There are people advising my opponent, people who surround him, who would do anything to win public office," Edmisten said of the issue of his taxes.

Ford Earnings Paced 'Big 3'

DETROIT (AP) — Despite a 21 per cent increase in sales volume, Ford Motor Co. says its profits dropped 51 per cent in the third quarter of 1974, "largely a reflection of the current national and worldwide economic crisis."

Nonetheless, Ford's July-September earnings of $47 million far surpassed the performance of the nation's two other top auto makers.

Ford President Lee A. Iacocca and Board Chairman Henry Ford II said Wednesday that soaring costs, coupled with labor disputes and parts shortages accounted for the drop in earnings from $95 million a year earlier.

Worldwide sales were just over $6 billion, up from $5 billion a year ago, as the firm increased its market share in the United States to 25.9 per cent from 24.3 per cent.

Ford's net income in the first three quarters was $339 million on sales of $17.5 billion, compared with profits of $850 million on sales of $17.4 billion in the first nine months of 1973.

Per share earnings were 51 cents in the third quarter, down from 98 cents, and $3.62 in the nine months, off from $8.55.

General Motors last week reported third-quarter profits of only $16 million, down from $267 million in the 1973 period. Chrysler Corp. said it lost $8 million in the period, compared with a loss of $17.4 million a year ago when it was hit by a nine-day national strike.

The auto makers have scheduled a major round of layoffs and other spending cuts. Ford is laying off 950 workers at five plants. GM is cutting 6,000 employees beginning next month. Chrysler laid off 620 workers and is considering shutting one of its six assembly plants, a move that could throw about 6,000 more off the job.

Hobby Industry Keeps Growing

NEW YORK (UPI) — The hobby industry has grown rapidly since the 1940s. The growth can best be told in retail sales statistics.

In 1971, for example, sales volume was estimated at $1 billion plus. By 1973, the figure went to $1.2 billion and in 1974 that record is to be exceeded.

Back in 1949 sales of hobby kits and material was $100 million. By 1961 sales hit $450 million. Projected sales for the 1980s — $2 billion.

proposes, may help avoid dust storms.

"I personally feel, though, that belts of trees would be more desirable. Even occasional strips of native vegetation would help dramatically," he said.

The Sentinel scheduled two interviews with Simon Rich, general manager of the farm, to discuss plans for environmental safeguards. Rich was not available at either appointment.

Other sources at the farm said there is no plan for windbelts, although a limited number of forested strips will be developed later for wildlife and hunting.

Bumgardner said he was impressed by the technicians hired by McLean for the First Colony staff.

"They are some of the best in their fields. There's strong potential to make this a successful farming operation," he said.

He added, "This is unique land. There is no place that has the same kind of soil, the same kinds of wind and so forth. There's just not a lot of information about how the land will respond, and that's the real key to whether the farm will succeed or not — what the land really does under these new conditions."

ENDORSE MORGAN
RALEIGH (AP) — The Raleigh News and Observer today endorsed Democratic U. S. Senate candidate Robert Morgan "because he has a lengthy record of serious public service that indicates he would represent North Carolina more ably in Washington."

7 Missing In Flash Flood

KILLEEN, Tex. (AP) — Police said today that seven persons are unaccounted for after a flash flood on Nolan Creek swept away a car and several mobile homes during the night.

Rain measured unofficially at more than five inches in about four hours set off the flash flooding in this Central Texas town, where many families of soldiers at nearby Ft. Hood live.

William Platt, an Army man from Ft. Hood, said a car in which he and two companions were riding was carried into the creek. He said that they were forced to climb out a window.

Platt said that about all he could remember was "grabbing onto a tree."

One of the men with Platt was reported missing. He was not immediately identified.

Giants Of Sea Return

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Elephant seals have returned to the Farallone Islands, a lonely group of windswept and fog-shrouded islands 30 miles off San Francisco's Golden Gate.

The discovery was made by a group of scientists who have been making periodic trips to the islands since they were abandoned by the Coast Guard.

For thousands of years these giants of the sea lived along the California coast from Pt. Reyes south to Cape Lazaro off Baja California. Their only natural enemies were giant sharks and killer whales.

They were practically annihilated starting about 1855 when they were slaughtered by seal hunters who used only the fat from their bodies for rendering into oil.

The killings stopped in 1870, but by that time the Elephant seal was virtually extinct. Now a new generation of these 5,000-pound giants of the sea has started returning to the old mating grounds, protected by the U.S. government.

Monitoring System On Birth Defects Begins In November

By KATHRYN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A national computer monitoring system designed to detect possible outbreaks of birth defects caused by exposure to environmental chemicals begins in November at the Center for Disease Control.

"We'll be monitoring 250 different conditions, ranging from structural abnormalities such as cleft lip palate or spina bifida — babies born with the spine outside — to Rh hemolytic diseases," said Dr. J. William Flynt Jr.

"What we are going to identify is anybody's guess," said Flynt, chief of the birth defect division at CDC.

Researchers will have access to a computer readout on approximately one million of the 3.2 million births each year in the United States. The data will come from 1,500 hospitals cooperating in the program.

An estimated 250,000 babies are born each year with birth defects. This program is the first nationwide attempt to determine whether the incidence of birth defects is affected by new drugs and environmental chemicals to which pregnant women are exposed.

"All the computer will show is a statistical increase in birth defects," said Flynt. "The CDC will have to pare the list down to certain circumstances which would possibly be traced to environmental causes."

"We're concerned about the environment — anything that a pregnant woman is exposed to in her occupation, or through chemically treated food, or drugs purchased over the counter."

"If we see an area of high incidence of birth defects, we would first evaluate the information to make certain errors were not responsible for the warning."

"If the warning is valid, there would be interviews with the families to try to pinpoint the substance responsible for the defect," Flynt said.

"The confidentiality of all medical records would be scrupulously observed and field studies would be done in cooperation with state and local health officials."

Such studies are already under way in a number of local communities. The Ohio Health Department, for example, is doing studies on towns with vinyl chloride (an ingredient in some plastics) factories to ascertain if more babies with malformations are born in such communities.

Even major disasters like the one caused by the drug thalidomide in Europe in the early 1960s could smolder unnoticed for several years without a monitoring system, said Flynt. By 1960, thalidomide was Germany's favorite sleeping pill. It was sold over the counter as freely as aspirin and marketed in a dozen or more countries under 60 trade names.

Some 7,000 children throughout the world were born with phocomelia — defective limb development — presumably because their mothers had taken thalidomide early in pregnancy.

Without a surveillance program, it could take months or years for an increased incidence of a specific birth defect to become apparent because many defects are not common.

For example, if a specific defect occurred in only 1 out of every 500 or 1,000 births, doctors and nurses at a particular hospital delivering only 500 babies a year might not immediately notice a tripling of the incidence.

If the increased incidence was due to an environmental contaminant peculiar to that region of the country, but to which only a percentage of pregnant women were exposed, it might be years before the cause was tracked down.

If a number of hospitals in that community were submitting records of birth defects to surveillance program computers, the increase could be spotted quickly.

Flynt said the computerized system will be sensitive enough to pick up a three or fourfold increase in a defect that occurs in as few as 1 in 1,000 births.

Among the causes of birth defects, in addition to drugs and chemicals, are infections such as German measles, genetic factors and chromosomal abnormalities.

Organized by the federal government and two private organizations, the program will give the CDC immediate access to data for the years 1970 through 1973. Data from participating hospitals will be added on an ongoing basis.

The National Institute of Child Health and Human Development is funding the project. The two private organizations are the National Foundation March of Dimes and the Commission on Professional and Hospital Activities, a nonprofit group that computerizes hospital records.

Keep Earrings As Incentive For Wife

this way all my life. Please help me!
SAVED BUT DIFFERENT

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by The Chicago Tribune

DEAR ABBY: My wife is a fraud. About four years ago I made a deal with her. I told her if she would quit smoking I would buy her a pair of diamond earrings she wanted very much.

She agreed to quit, and I bought her the earrings. I should tell you that we had been married for 30 years and I thought I could trust her. Well, a year ago I caught her smoking. She said she really hadn't started to smoke again, but she'd take a cigarette "occasionally" to keep her from eating between meals because she was trying to keep her weight down. At that time she gave me her word that she wouldn't smoke again.

I am almost certain that she is smoking behind my back, but I haven't caught her at it yet. If I can prove that she's smoking should I sell the earrings to teach her a lesson?
UNHAPPY HUSBAND

DEAR UNHAPPY: No. But ask her to hand them over, and put them away as an incentive for her to swear off again.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 23-year-old white male nurse. I love sports and excelled in track. I was saved by the grace of Jesus Christ two years ago. I read my Bible daily and sing in the gospel choir.

Even though I am a born-again Christian, I am miserable. All my life I have wanted to be a woman. I would love to be on the U.S. Women's Olympic Track team. I can cook, sew and type. I have never cared anything about mechanics, engineering or any of the so-called masculine careers. I hate hunting and fishing. I never could kill a living thing.

Abby, this secret desire to be a woman is about to destroy me. I am not a homosexual, but I'd give anything to have a sex change operation. Where is this done? Is it against the law? I will go anywhere. I'd rather be dead than continue living like this.

Abby, if the Lord really loves me, why did He give me a man's body when I feel and think like a woman? I have been included as part of the U. S. Constitution. ERA can be brought up again in North Carolina in 1975.

Mrs. Crisp was introduced by Mrs. J. Hugh Bazemore.

Mrs. Glenn Cox, club president, welcomed Mrs. Wayne Holloman, a former member, back into active membership. Mrs. Dave Felmet was a guest for the afternoon.

In addition to Mrs. Cox, officers for this year are: Mrs. Michael House, vice president; Mrs. Charles H. Moore, secretary; Mrs. Thomas Harwell, treasurer; Mrs. H. E. Lowry, historian; Mrs. Charles Carter, librarian; Mrs. Robert Pittman, parliamentarian; and Mrs. Ed Dowd, yearbook chairman.

The program topic for the year is "Women."

Attorney Is Club Speaker On Tuesday

Club Plans Discussed By Executive Board

Greenville attorney Nelson B. Crisp spoke to members of the Carpe Diem Book Club on the Equal Rights Amendment at a meeting held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Joe Goodson.

Mrs. Crisp briefly traced the history of women's rights from 1874 until today, pointing out that the Supreme Court has never ruled that women have the same rights as men. Women are not mentioned in the original Constitution, she said, though there have been amendments which have included various other groups.

Pointing out that there are many women who have to support themselves and-or their families as well, Mrs. Crisp said these women need the ERA to be

He will talk about the difference facets of the work carried out in Pitt County.

A new slate of officers will be elected at the general meeting. On Saturday, Nov. 16, the Home Life Department will sponsor a bridge luncheon beginning at noon. The cost will be $2.50 per person and reservations can be made by calling Mrs. James Smith, 758-0519, or Mrs. Lindsay Savage, 756-4867.

The Woman's Club is planning a Christmas show for Nov. 29-Dec. 1. The show will feature tables decorated for dinners, teas, breakfasts, for children, coffee hours and other occasions and in various color schemes. Swags, wreaths, Christmas stockings and other ideas for decorating will be shown. A few items will be available for sale in addition to cakes, cookies and other foods.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Did you ever notice how some women are pace-setters?

My friend, Debbie Dominant, was the first woman on the block with wheels on her garbage cans and chewed on her sunglasses three years before Marlo Thomas.

I'm awed by Debbie, but at the same time I'm intimidated by her. I find myself trying to impress her by putting on dark makeup in the winter to make her think I've been to Miami. And one day when she approached me at the pool, I grabbed a phone book and as quickly as I could turn the pages, traced the words with my fingers and said, "I'm an Evelyn Woods graduate you know."

Debbie's latest trend is what I call the Status In The Supermarket Caper. Last summer, I'm pushing my basket around with all the grace of a buffalo moving furniture when I spot Debbie. She is whipping around, flushed and breathless in a tennis dress up to her tan line, with white tennis shoes with a little ball fringe over the heel, ball fringe over the heel.

"Isn't this terrible?" she said pushing her white hat back on her head. "I was at set point and before I knew it the dinner hour was upon me and I just buzzed in here before I could change. I had no idea I'd meet anyone I knew."

If she was Lady Godiva riding a power mower she couldn't have been less obvious.

In the fall it was not unusual to see Debbie whipping down the aisles in a short golf skirt, matching T-shirt and jacket and cleats, babbling in the same breathless voice about how "Everyone wanted to play an extra eight holes and I knew I would have to make a mad dash for cold cuts."

Last week, Debbie outdid herself. She hobbled into the supermarket in a ski jacket, a pair of goggles perched atop her toboggan and a large cast on her right leg. I was so jealous I could have screamed.

"Don't tell me," I said. "You just broke your leg on the slopes and didn't have time to go home and change."

"You little tease," she bubbled. "I feel ridiculous, but it's hard trying to coordinate an outfit with a cast. Nothing looks right with it except ski togs. You're lucky," she gushed, "that you aren't athletic."

"Oh, but I am," I said. I felt ridiculous with my bowling ball in my cart, but it was worth it just to see the look on her face.

Amendment Can Be Useful Tool

On the constitutional amendment ballot for Tuesday's general election voters will be deciding whether to permit state government units to issue revenue bonds for construction of facilities for new industries.

This will be the second of two amendments on the ballot. The first amendment would change the office of solicitor to "District Attorney." As we understand it, the "District Attorney" designation is already permissible and we can see no objection to the title becoming the legal designation.

The second amendment is more controversial, with several state organizations opposing.

There has been objections to the wording on the ballot which states that the vote is for or against a constitutional amendment "to create jobs and employment opportunities and to protect the environment by authorizing the issuance of revenue bonds to finance industrial and pollution control facilities for industry..." It calls for ratification of the pertinent laws "which implements the foregoing and of the proceedings taken pursuant thereto by any county of the state in the creation of a county pollution abatement and industrial facilities financing authority and all proceedings by an authority so created in authorizing the financing of industrial and pollution control facilities."

North Carolina generally has put the thrust of its industry seeking program in recent years on seeking industries which will pay well and provide adequate benefits for their employees.

We think there has also been an emphasis on industries which will be responsible about pollution control. There has also been a concern about locating industries in areas where adequate labor is available, thus keeping some of our people at their homes. All-in-all we think the state has done pretty well in its industry seeking program.

Since North Carolina is only one of two states which does not presently authorize the revenue bonds, our industry seekers have often been at a disadvantage when they talked to the desirable industries we wanted to have in our state.

We can correct this by approving the revenue bond amendment on Tuesday. The bonds would be repaid through rent or charges to the industries themselves. There is always room for abuse of any program, but given the kind of industry-seeking program we have now we can expect that the desirable type industries will be the ones we will go after in the future.

All-in-all we think the revenue bonds amendment deserves a favorable vote by the citizens of our state. It can be a useful tool in continuing North Carolina's economic development, and we still have some catching up to do in the economic area.

SURE, JOIN IN, AT THE GOING (ARAB) PRICE!

Arabs Jolted Effort

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press Writer

American peace efforts in the Middle East have been jolted by the Arab summit decisions at Rabat. But while this has revived talk of a new round of war as a distinct possibility, the outlook isn't necessarily all that black.

What can be done to avert the threat? After the Morocco summit, some observers are persuaded to speculate that perhaps the time has come for a put up or shut up challenge to the Soviet Union's policy of détente.

The argument is that there are only two alternatives: a new Arab-Israeli war with the concomitant disaster it could mean to the industrialized world or continued reliance on diplomacy.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger now has some new problems he didn't need and the going is likely to be tough. But it would seem that this was as good a time as any for Moscow to demonstrate its genuine interest in a peaceful world.

Because the Arab leaders unanimously recognized the Palestine Liberation Organization as the only representative of the Palestinians, it's doubtful whether there can be a Geneva conference on a Middle East settlement.

There had been a possibility Israel could make a deal with King Hussein of Jordan to return to his control the West Bank territory his grandfather annexed in 1948 and Hussein lost in the 1967 war.

The Arabs say Jordan can still negotiate, but things are different now. Hussein would be doing so with the PLO, the Syrians and others looking over his shoulder, none of them his friends.

Arab statements give Israel good reason to be convinced that a PLO-ruled state would be just a first step. The Arabs proclaim a minimum goal of a secular state for all of what

Diversity: Key To Wealth

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—North Carolina, a visitor remarked, is the only place in the country where you can go from West Virginia to Mississippi without crossing a state boundary.

That variety is a paradox, being the foundation of both a lot of problems, and a lot of successes.

There is more to the diversity of North Carolina than the obvious: the mountains, Piedmont, Sandhills, and coastal plains topography.

There are subtle differences in the educational level of the people and their interests; difference in what one community wants for itself; differences in the physical resources available in the regions of the state.

You would not, for instance, consider a brick factory as a new industry prospect in the clay-less Sandhills. A furniture factory would probably not be interested in locating in the central Piedmont where furniture already competes for employees.

Key Differences
A textile plant which would be rejected in the governmental-complex of Wake County probably would be greeted with open arms in many other sections of the state. Oil is a prospect in some sections; mining in some; and in some, industrial encroachment on agricultural lands must be jealously guarded.

Thus, state officials and research experts seeking to form a new Economic Development Strategy for North Carolina with an eye to the 21st Century have sought to take account of those regional differences as both major elements in present differences in income levels and development across North Carolina; and as elements of strength for future development.

The chief goal set in early stages of strategy development is to boost per capita income: from just over $3,000 now to $5,670 by 1990. Emphasis is on per capita rather than average industrial wages because those involved believe more than just salary goes into making up the good life—there are independent incomes, home farms, hunting and fishing which make up for pay alone.

Out of the complexities of research, study and discussion now going into creation of that new development strategy is emerging ideas for a new industrial mix; geographical dispersal of industry; emphasis on more and better education at the high school, community college, and trade school levels; and a conscious strategy for local and state industry hunters to seek out quality growth suited to the pattern developed in regions across the state.

Salaries Vary

Research by state agency people and the Research Triangle Institute has demonstrated the numerous regional differences in North Carolina. In salaries alone, the range is from a high average near $6,000 per year in Central Piedmont industrialized counties to the $4,500 range in the lower-paying extreme western and extreme northeastern counties—a $1,500 per year difference.

Even ways to attack the economic growth problems vary: in the Appalachians, the decision was to improve roads; down east, the decision was to beef up manpower training.

Computing patterns demonstrate further regional differences. More than 12,000 people commute into the counties around Charlotte to work.

More than 12,000 people commute out of western mountain counties to work in Virginia, Tennessee, Georgia. From northeastern counties, more than 4,000 commute to Norfolk and the magnet of U.S. Navy-related jobs, and even as far as Richmond.

So, those planning the new strategy are turning to the idea of regional industrial complexes suited to distinct interests and advantages of certain areas: "soybean oil theme" for example on vast down east farmlands—cotton, soybean, cucumbers, other oil-producing crops; coupled with firms making pickles and sauces, shortening and cooking oils, and cottonseed mills.

Another example: a "printing theme" for sections where timber is available for pulp, with the complex containing pulp and paper mills, and manufacturers of boxes, book printing and publishing, commercial printing, greeting card and other printing activities.

Overall, emphasis now aims toward a strategy of developing such industrial complexes in regions across the state, with a deliberate effort to secure development of such high-growth, high-pay facilities as office and computer machinery, electronics, research, radio, television, and communications equipment, photo equipment, glass products.

Both Fear A Light Vote

Leaders of both major parties in North Carolina say they're hoping for a large voter turnout next Tuesday—and each indicates a light turnout, which is expected, would hurt their party.

We interviewed Jim Sugg, chairman of the North Carolina Democratic Party and Bill Russo, executive director of the Tar Heel Republican Party. Here's the interview:

Q. What kind of turnout are you looking for, and if it's a light vote, will it help or hurt your party?

Russo: "We're looking for about 900,000 to vote statewide. We've conducted large scale efforts to get out the vote. A light turnout might hurt us. In some areas, however, like Mecklenburg County, a light vote could conceivably help us."

Sugg: "We're looking for a large vote. We've had a massive effort to get out a large vote, because unquestionably a light vote would hurt the Democrats. The larger the vote, the better off our candidates will be. People are fed up with the mess in Raleigh and in Washington."

Q. How does the U.S. Senate race look to you at this time?

Sugg: "The Democrat, Robert Morgan, has a commanding lead at this time. But here again it's going to depend on the size of the vote. If we have a large vote, Morgan will have a resounding victory. If the vote is small, his margin of victory will probably be less, but we feel Mr. Morgan is well ahead and will win."

Russo: "I've really been encouraged about the Senate race in the last month. The enthusiasm has been building for Bill Stevens. Our surveys show some noticable gains for Stevens in the last 30 days. It looks like we're headed to where Gov. Holshouser and Sen. Helms were in October two years ago."

Q. How about the Attorney General's campaign?

Russo: "Jim Carson is ahead right now and the trend looks upward. We think he'll be even farther ahead by election day."

Sugg: "This is the closest of the state-wide races. I think Rufus (Edmisten) is ahead. I think he was hurt initially by the state income tax thing, but the press and the people know he's paid those taxes now. Rufus is running a positive campaign, while Carson has dealt mainly in petty, personal attacks."

Q. What does it look like for races involving candidates for the State Legislature?

Sugg: "This depends on the size of the vote on Nov. 5. It looks like we're going to increase the number of Democrats in the Senate and House. If the vote is large, I feel absolutely certain that you'll see more Democrats in the Legislature."

Russo: "Our surveys show Republicans will make significant gains in the State Senate. We think we're going to do very well there. The gains we make in the State House will be more minor, or it might even be a holding even proposition for us there."

INSIDE REPORT

Javits Reminds Of Hanoi

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

NEW YORK—The belated attack by Sen. Jacob Javits, though inept and oblique, on Ramsey Clark's 1972 visit to Hanoi may prevent the year's biggest political upset and again reveal to Democrats the truth that leftwing activists make highly vulnerable candidates.

Nervously intricate insinuations being made by Javits that Clark's visit made him a North Vietnamese propaganda tool are alien to the old liberal Republican's naturally bland style. So, the tactic reflects his realization, bordering on panic, that he is in deep trouble and must halt Clark's rising support among essentially conservative voters.

If this works, Democrats here again will have been taught the lesson they failed to remember after 1972. As with Sen. George McGovern, reform liberals felt Clark could attract voters well to his right because they respected his integrity and anti-establishment posture. In fact, however, New York Democrats may well have forfeited a Senate seat by failing to nominate a more conventional candidate to ride the national Democratic tide against Javits.

That tide mainly explains why Ramsey Clark in 1974 is much stronger here than George McGovern in 1972. Moreover, unlike McGovern, Clark was never savaged by fellow Democrats on his way to nomination. Although Democratic leaders feared before the Sept. 10 primary (incorrectly, it turned out) that Clark might poison the whole state ticket, they never publicly attacked Clark's leftward course taken after serving as Lyndon B. Johnson's last Attorney General.

Unlike many left Democratic candidates this year (including McGovern himself in South Dakota), Clark has not sought a moderate image—demanding, for example, a crippling immediate defense cut of $25 billion. His rhetoric tends to radical-righteous ("We are going to have to liberate the political process from the domination of wealth").

But the drawing, 6-foot-4 Texas emigre comes over less as ideologue than crusader against the discredited system. He has scored heavily by attacking Javits's acceptance of a $15,000 campaign contribution from Nelson Rockefeller prior to Senate consideration of him as Vice President.

Strength For Today

BURDENS AND HURDLES
The difficulties of life largely resolve themselves into two classes—burdens to be borne and hurdles to be surmounted.

There are some burdens which we have to bear whether we like them or not because of circumstances which we cannot change. But there are other difficulties which are like hurdles. We are supposed to jump over them. It would be ridiculous for a runner in a track meet to stop at the first hurdle, pick it up and put it on his back, and do the same with the next hurdle, and so on. Yet many people are doing this very thing with circumstances which were never intended at all to be carried as burdens. The people who constantly worry about what others think and say about them; those who quickly take offense at a fancied slight; those who brood about the neglect to which they think they are subjected—these people have mistaken hurdles for burdens and have loaded themselves down with what they should have jumped over.

An Upturn In Ford Popularity

By GEORGE GALLUP
PRINCETON, N.J.—

President Ford's job rating has increased over the last month, with 55 per cent now saying they approve of the way he is handling his job as President, compared to 28 per cent who disapprove and 17 per cent who do not express an opinion.

The latest survey was conducted during the period Oct. 18-21, following Ford's appearance before a congressional subcommittee to explain his pardon of former President Nixon and after the initial leg of his recent campaign swing. The previous survey, taken one week earlier, showed 52 per cent approving.

Ford hit his low point during the period Sept. 27-30 when 50 per cent approved of his handling of the presidency in the first measurement taken after the Nixon pardon.

The increase in his rating over the last month has come principally from Republicans. At his low point in popularity, 65 per cent of GOP voters approved; now 75 per cent of Republicans approve.

Those who disapprove of the way Ford is handling his job most frequently mention his pardon of Nixon as their main reason. Others feel that he is not pushing hard enough on the economic front.

Those who approve cite his style or approach to his office more than any specific actions he has taken. He continues to be favorably regarded for "openness" and "frankness"—a good grassroots approach to Americans."

Ford's recent statement that large Democratic majorities in Congress would threaten the chances for a bipartisan foreign policy and jeopardize peace, comes at a time when 29 per cent of persons interviewed say the Democratic party would be more likely to keep the nation at peace, compared to only 21 per cent who say the Republican party. This is the lowest percentage recorded for the GOP on this issue in nearly a decade.

Half the voters (50 per cent) say they see no difference between the two parties in their ability to keep the nation out of another major war, or have no opinion.

Also, while Ford has tried to place part of the blame for inflation on the Democratic-controlled Congress, the Republican party is near its all-time low point in terms of the party voters see as better able to keep the nation prosperous. Less than one person in five, 17 per cent, says the Republicans can do a better job in this respect, but almost half (47 per cent) look to the Democrats. One third of the public (36 per cent), however, see no difference between the two parties on this question or express no opinion.

MAIL SORTER—Tommy E. Hefner of Rt. 1, Taylorsville, N. C., has installed a sure-fire mail sorter in front of his home. Hefner said he got the idea from a picture in a magazine and constructed the mail box more than 10 years ago. "It has become a landmark", he said. (AP Wirephoto)

Nixon Date Still Stands

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A U.S. District Court judge will hear arguments Nov. 11 on whether former President Richard Nixon will be required to submit testimony in a North Carolina civil suit.

A court clerk said Wednesday in announcing the date that Nixon's health won't make a difference in the hearing because "he doesn't have to be in court."

The suit was filed by 21 persons who said they were illegally prevented from attending a rally in North Carolina for the Rev. Billy Graham at which Nixon appeared.

A subpoena issued Aug. 22 demanded that Nixon — now hospitalized — produce documents and tape recordings related to security measures taken at the rally and that Nixon give a deposition in the case Nov. 26 at Santa Ana.

Richard Murphy, an attorney for Nixon, filed the motion to quash the subpoena.

U.S. District Court Judge William P. Gray will hear arguments on the motion.

Says Kannapolis Narcotics 'Hub'

NEW YORK (AP)—Dist. Atty. Eugene Gold of Brooklyn says Kannapolis, N.C., a textile city 20 miles north of Charlotte, was the hub in a $100 million a year heroin and cocaine operation in the New York metropolitan area.

He identified the kingpin and wholesaler as Andrew Warren Fesperman of Kannapolis.

The narcotics were said to have been brought by motor vehicle from Mexico to North Carolina, then shipped to the metropolitan area for street sales. Gold did not say where the dope originally came from.

The prosecutor announced Wednesday the arrest of Fesperman and 12 distributors. All but Fesperman are from Brooklyn.

Because the ring's tentacles extended into the South, a 16-month investigation was given the code name "Operation Mason-Dixon," Gold said. The investigation was by his staff and federal narcotics agents, he added.

The roundup cost the public $40,000, which was spent by investigators to make buys from the defendants, Gold said.

"We believe this is going to have a substantial impact on the distribution of heroin in the city," he declared.

Gold said it was rare to uncover a major wholesaler in such an investigation.

The defendants range in age from 22 to 38. Two are women.

Nine of the accused distributors were indicted on state charges of possession and sale of narcotics. Under the state's tough, new dope laws, they face maximum life terms if convicted.

was Palestine before the 1948 war. That would mean no more Jewish national home.

Israel cannot tolerate the prospect of the West Bank in the hands of an entity pledged to her destruction, so even moderate voices speculate gloomily on a new round of war.

The speculation is quickened by the decision of the Arab oil rulers to lavish $2.5 billion on Egypt, Syria, Jordan and the PLO. The money will go to a war economy chest and the Arabs are likely to be seized with the idea that they cannot lose. To avert such a development, the Israelis might ponder a preventive war.

There are some indications, however, that the Arab rulers are being cautious. They seem at pains to note that the door is still open to the Kissinger step-by-step approach to some sort of settlement.

To sell Israel on any negotiations with the Arabs it would be necessary to persuade her she won't be asked to negotiate away her existence as a Jewish state. Only the two superpowers together could provide the guarantees.

Can the Soviet Union, in view of all this, now be tested? Is detente important enough to the Kremlin to persuade it to restrain its Arab clients and demonstrate its interest in a peaceful world by cooperating in a search for a way out of a highly perilous situation?

Eyans-Novak.

Furthermore, Jack Javits has the aura of having outlived his time and being ready for plucking. Appearing at a candidates' night last week in a conservative Catholic Brooklyn neighborhood, Javits promised to speak five minutes and wound up with a 25-minute boastful overbearing recitation of his power and accomplishments. While disagreeing with Clark, the audience clearly preferred him to Javits.

Facing his first close election since 1954 has been an unpleasant surprise for Javits. Not realizing he would need middle-class votes to survive, Javits rejected his top advisers' pleas not to make last month's trip to Cuba. Javits was following Park Avenue chic's autumn '74 agenda in pursuing Fidel Castro, but Park Avenue and liberal Manhattan generally are now Clark's. Javits needed New York's Middle Americans, who could not care less about Cuba.

Bad news poured in. Javits's support deteriorated in upstate Protestant Republican and Catholic conservative Democratic districts. Clark also was gaining among the Jewish masses, previously the bedrock of Javits support. Even a television spot showing Javits playing tennis in immaculate whites, attempting to portray physical vigor at age 70, backfired: many Jewish voters complained that Javits, a product of the sidewalks of New York, was going uptown.

To consolidate the Jewish vote, Javits accuses Clark of proposing a Palestinian state (a gross distortion of Clark's actual pro-Israel position). In private, Javits's agents warn Jewish voters that Israel cannot risk losing one of two Jewish Senators.

Too woo middle-class non-Jews, Javits—with obvious distaste and reluctance—brought up Hanoi but left unasked tough questions: Did Clark know he talked only to American POWs who had cooperated with their Communist captors? Was it proper for Clark in Hanoi to praise North Vietnamese "devotion to freedom" and boost McGovern for President? Actually, Javits did not even secure tapes of Clark's conversation with the POWs but merely his subsequent interviews with journalists.

Such deficiencies were compensated for by Clark's angry response. In calling Javits a "Nixon thug," Democratic strategists believe, Clark jeopardized budding Jewish support. Javits is a "thug," says Clark, because in August 1972 he joined Nixon hatchetmen in "a political mugging" of him following the Hanoi visit. However, newspaper files show Javits called Clark "an honorable, patriotic American" who "has a right to say what he said" but perhaps should not have said it in Hanoi. Clark conceded to us he had no factual basis for presuming Javits took part in a Nixonite plot.

This departure from the image of the cool, gentle, principled challenger could be decisive in a close race. But some thoughtful Democrats believe that there should not have been a close Senate race with Rep. Hugh Carey leading for governor by one million voters, and that any candidate identified with mainstream thinking of New Yorkers would have beaten Javits easily.

ECU Symphony Concert Sunday

A LOT OF SINGERS... are pictured in this overhead shot of a rehearsal of the East Carolina University Symphony Orchestra and three university choruses. Robert Hause, upper right, conducts.

The East Carolina University Symphony Orchestra will present its first concert of the year on Sunday, November 3 at 3:15 p.m. in Wright Auditorium. Robert Hause will conduct.

To open the program the orchestra will play the Suit from Abdelazer for string orchestra by Henry Purcell, the great 17th century English composer.

The second work on the program features the combined choruses of the ECU School of Music and the orchestra in Symphony of Psalms. This work was written in 1930 by the Russian composer Igor

Cars Collided At Intersection

An estimated $900 property damage resulted yesterday from a traffic collision investigated by Greenville police.

Officers said cars driven by Wilbur Adam Ballenger III of Route 1, Winterville and John Thomas Sheppard of 925 Legion St. collided about 9:48 a.m. at the intersection of Reade and Third Streets causing an estimated $400 damage to the Ballenger car and $500 damage to the Sheppard auto.

Ballenger was charged by police with having improper tires while Sheppard was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Parents Visited Peace College

RALEIGH—Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Bullock of Rt. 1, Stokes, participated in Parents Weekend at Peace College Saturday and Sunday.

A luncheon was held Saturday to welcome the visitors. Parents met Peace professors and staff members during a mock class day where parents sat in on college classes.

Other activities included a campus tour, student art display, student talent revue, a multi media show and a reception.

The annual autumn concert will take place in Wright Auditorium Sunday afternoon beginning at 3:15 p.m. (Reflector photo by Tommy Forrest)

Homecoming At Church Sunday

Homecoming will be celebrated Sunday at the First Wesleyan Church, located on the New Bern Highway. The day marks the fifth year for the congregation in the present location.

Activities will begin at 9:45 a.m. with Sunday School, followed by the morning worship hour at 11 o'clock. A pot luck dinner will be served at the noon hour. The 1:30 afternoon service will be filled with music.

The pastor, H. A. Lewis, invites all members and friends to attend.

City where he headed the now defunct National Conservatory of Music. The symphony has come to be one of the most popular works ever composed because of its melodic inventiveness and vivid orchestral colors. One of the melodies is perhaps best known to many people as Going Home.

General Admission tickets at $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for students for the performance may be purchased at the door.

Social Club To Meet Wednesday

The Social Club sponsored by the Pitt County Mental Health Association will meet next Wednesday from 10:30 a.m. to noon at the First Presbyterian Church, corner of 14th and Elm Streets, Greenville.

Activities are planned and Mrs. Hilda Garrenton will help persons interested in beginning crafts for Christmas.

For transportation persons in the Ayden-Winterville area are asked to contact Mrs. E.C. Davenport; Bethel area Mrs. C.G. Garrenton; Farmville area Mrs. Will H. Moore; Grifton area Mrs. David E. Bosley.

Revival Begins Monday Night

STOKES—A revival will begin at the Stokes Baptist Church Monday and will continue through Sunday morning, Nov. 10.

The Rev. Thurman Griffin will be the speaker. Special music will be featured during each service, which begins at 7:30 p.m.

Rule Death For 2 More

GASTONIA, N. C. (AP) — Two men convicted of first-degree murder in the slaying of an Atlanta high school girl have been sentenced to death.

This makes 55 persons now awaiting execution in North Carolina, about half the number on death row throughout the nation.

A Superior Court jury took 33 minutes Wednesday to convict Pinkney Thomas Mitchell, 25, and Wallace Charles Lanford, 21, both of the nearby textile community of Bessemer City.

Judge William T. Grist sentenced them to die in the gas chamber Jan. 10. However, appeal is automatic in cases involving the death penalty.

Mitchell and Lanford were tried in the death last April 21 of Kathleen Smiley, 16. Police said she was stabbed to death and left tied to a tree in rural Gaston County.

Mitchell took the stand and admitted killing the girl, claiming he was under the influence of drugs. He said Lanford had no part in the slaying. He said he had sexual relations with the girl and killed her in a blind rage when she refused to perform an unnatural act.

Mitchell said he and Lanford were hitchhiking when they met Miss Smiley on a highway outside Atlanta where she ran out of gas. He said they bought some gas for her car and persuaded her to drive them to North Carolina.

Dutch Rescued Prison Hostages

By KEN JACOBSON
Associated Press Writer
THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — Dutch police and marines fired magnesium grenades early today to temporarily blind four convicts holding 15 persons hostage in a prison chapel, then captured the men and rescued the hostages unharmed.

"Several shots were fired in the air by the marines, but there were no casualties," Police Chief Albert Peijster said.

The operation was over in 15 minutes, officials said.

The hostages, who included two women, were taken to police headquarters and then to their homes. They had been captives since Saturday night, but a police spokesman said they were in "surprisingly good condition."

The four convicts were hurried off to cells. One of them was a 23-year-old Palestinian guerrilla, Adnan Ahmad Nuri, serving a five-year sentence for helping to hijack and burn a British airliner last March. The other three were an Algerian and two Dutchmen, all serving terms for armed robbery.

The convicts had demanded a plane to take them to an undisclosed foreign country and also that Nuri's confederate in the March hijacking, Sami Houssin Tamimah, be allowed to join them. Justice Minister Andries van Agt told a news conference the government never intended to grant the demands.

Peijster and van Agt refused to give details of the rescue at Scheveningen prison "because we may have to do it again." But police sources gave this account:

The police waited until 4 a.m. because they thought some of the convicts would be asleep. Then they hurled magnesium grenades through the chapel windows and at the same time cut the lock on the chapel door with acetylene torches.

The latter process took about 10 seconds. Psychiatrists had advised the police that the noise of the exploding grenades and the glaring light of the burning magnesium would confuse, frighten and blind the convicts for at least that long.

Fifteen marines and policemen wearing bulletproof vests rushed through the door. The convicts, who were armed with two pistols and several spring knives, were taken completely by surprise. They did not fire a shot.

The hostages, most of whom were members of a neighborhood choir that performs regularly at the prison, waved to newsmen as they were driven away in a bus.

The four convicts took over the chapel Saturday night during Mass and held 22 persons hostage, including the priest, two prison guards, three women and four children. They released a 73-year-old man, a woman and the four children on Sunday and Monday.

INDICTED—The Rev. John T. Tirella, 54, a volunteer chaplain from Manhattan's St. Anthony of Padua parish, was indicted Wednesday as the go-between in a $50,000 escape plot that freed seven convicted narcotics bigwigs from New York's federal house of detention. (AP Wirephoto)

'Saviors' In UN Warn South Africa

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — South Africa is keeping its membership in the United Nations as the result of a triple veto by the United States, Britain and France. But even its saviors demanded that the white South African government change its racial policies. The Security Council voted 10 to 3 Wednesday in favor of throwing South Africa out of the United Nations. The resolution was defeated only because the three Western powers who voted against it are permanent council members, and their negative votes count as vetoes.

Costa Rica and Austria abstained on the vote.

It was the first vote on the specific question of expelling a member country in the 29-year history of the world organization and the first triple veto.

The Council president for October, Michel Njine of Cameroon, said South Africa "remains a member of this organization only because of the veto power."

The General Assembly for the past several years has rejected the credentials of South Africa's delegation, but it cannot expel a member without a recommendation from the Security Council. On Sept. 30, the assembly voted 98 to 23 to reject the credentials and took the additional step — by a vote of 125 to 1 — of asking the Security Council to take up South Africa's future in the world organization.

Speeches during the assembly and council debates made clear that the South African government will be under all kinds of pressure to get it to change its policies.

U.S. Ambassador John A. Scali said the South African policy of racial segregation, known as apartheid, is evil and ugly. He called on the ruling white minority to end it and create a society of equality.

But Scali said expulsion was an "all or nothing policy" that would make it harder than ever to influence the South Africans to change. He said they "should continue to be exposed over and over again to the blunt expressions of the abhorrence of mankind for apartheid."

Scali and British Ambassador Ivor Richard said expulsion would only strengthen the most extreme racist elements in South Africa at a time when there was hope for change.

No Major Disclosures In Probing Rockefeller

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressmen on House and Senate confirmation committees say they have found no major disclosures in new FBI and financial reports that would block Nelson A. Rockefeller's confirmation as vice president.

House Judiciary Chairman

Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., told newsmen Wednesday there is something new in a 2,300-page FBI report but refused to indicate what it is.

Other members said after a closed door briefing on the report that it has new details but no major new disclosures.

"There are no new bombshells," said Rep. Henry P. Smith, R-N.Y.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., a member of the Senate Rules Committee, at the same time, said a comprehensive congressional report on Rockefeller's finances also has nothing in it that would block his confirmation.

Nominated For Award

WASHINGTON, N.C.—Pam Kuehn of Greenville is one of four students at Pamlico Community School who have been nominated to receive the Morehead Awards.

The other students are Mary Glenn Peele of Williamston; Georgia Anne Gardner of Washington and Kenneth C. Snow Jr. of Washington.

Nominees for the Morehead Awards must show evidence of moral force of character and of capacities to lead; they must have demonstrated high scholastic abilities and extracurricular attainments; they must also possess a good degree of physical vigor as shown by participation in competitive sports or in other ways.

This is the first year that women have been eligible to receive the Morehead Scholarship. National winners will receive $2,500 a year for four years of study at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

First Lady May Not Visit Japan

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House spokesman says First Lady Betty Ford probably won't go to Japan with the President.

Mrs. Ford underwent surgery for breast cancer a month ago, and White House physician William Lukash had said he thought it unlikely that she would make the Far Eastern trip.

Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen was asked Wednesday by reporters if the trip had been totally ruled out for Mrs. Ford. He had said she "probably" would not make it.

"I'd just like to leave that word in there," he replied.

Insists Mayor Was Joking

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles J. Carney, D-Ohio, says Youngstown Mayor Jack Hunter was joking when he asked the congressman to sponsor a bill adding Republicans to the list of endangered species and making it a crime to turn them out of office.

"The mayor's comments were made in jest, but I can understand his feelings," Carney, who didn't agree to the suggestion, said in a statement.

The mayor, a Republican, said he wants Carney to introduce the bill when Congress reconvenes if the November elections prove as disastrous for the GOP as predicted.

Extra Night Of Full Moon

Tonight is not only the traditional trick-and-treat time across the U. S. and other countries of the world where All Saint's Eve has become pumpkin and candy night — it's also a treat night for moonlight lovers.

Because of the conjunction of the calendar and the moon cycle, the countries of the Western Hemisphere will have a full moon tonight, the night of October 31, 1974.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina egg markets were generally steady Wednesday. Supplies were adequate to short and demand was fair to good.

Weighted average prices for small lot sales of consumer grade eggs delivered in cartons to nearby outlets: Grade A large whites 68.78, medium whites 66.40, small whites 50.98.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—Corn was steady to strong, soybeans irregular, wheat, oats and barley steady at leading North Carolina grain markets Wednesday. No. 2 yellow shelled corn was quoted at 3.00-3.25, mostly 3.20-3.25 in the East and 3.40-3.60 in the Piedmont. No. 1 yellow soybeans 7.30-7.48; wheat 3.25-4.39, oats 1.60-1.85 and barley 1.70-2.45.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina hogs are steady to 50 cents higher today. Kinston, tops of 39.00-40.00; Salisbury 39.00; Rocky Mount, 38.75-39.25.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina f.o.b. dock broilers: Steady with a firm undertone for next week's trading. Supplies adequate; demand good; weights heavy. Estimated slaughter today 1,008,000.

No hen report today.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market kept its latest rally alive today, grinding out a moderate gain despite some early profit taking.

Trading remained active. The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 4.22 at 677.25, and advances held a 3 to 2 edge on declines at the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said lower interest rates continued to induce some buying by investing institutions. "Cash positions are high, and the money's probably burning a hole in some people's pockets," observed Robert Colin at Faulkner, Dawkins & Sullivan. "It isn't earning what it was in commercial paper and Treasury bills.

"Each day the market shows strength like this seems to reduce the chances that it will make another new low," Colin added.

Howard Johnson, down 1/4 at 4 1/2, led the NYSE most-active list, largely because of a huge 433,300-share block trade at 4 1/2.

Marcor, up 1 1/4 to 15 1/4, and Sears, Roebuck, ahead 1 1/4 at 54 1/2, paced a board advance in retail issues. Marcor's Montgomery Ward subsidiary reported October sales up 12.4 per cent, while Sears advanced 11.7 per cent.

Raymond International Surged 1 1/4 to 8 1/2. The company reported sharply higher third-quarter earnings and said its backlog as of Sept. 30 was at a record level.

Peter Paul, which announced a dividend cut on Wednesday, lost 3/4 to 9.

The NYSE's 11 a.m. composite index of all its listed common stocks was up .23 at 39.35.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index gained .19 to 69.67.

Pantasote advanced 3/4 to 37 1/2 on the Amex on a steep rise in third-quarter profits.

BETHEL—Funeral services for Mrs. Hazel Webb Crisp, 83, who died this morning, will be conducted Friday at 3 p.m. at Bethel United Methodist Church by the Rev. Ellis Bedgeworth and the Rev. Curtis Tyler. Burial will follow in Bethel Cemetery.

Mrs. Crisp, a native of Edgecombe County, was the daughter of the late William and Louvenia Gardner Webb. She was married to the late William Elijah Crisp. She was a member of the Bethel United Methodist Church, the Women's Society of Christian Service, Women's Christian Temperance Union, and the Bethel Home Demonstration Club.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Joe N. Tetterton of Bethel and Mrs. Sarah Moore of Norfolk, Va.; one son, Norris Crisp of Norfolk; three brothers, Clyde Webb of Miami, Fla. and George and Clifton Webb, both of Pinetops; one sister, Miss Mary Eva Webb of Pinetops; and two grandsons.

The family requested that flowers be omitted.

for their opinions on the difference."

Hearings on the proposed change are scheduled in Chicago on Oct. 30; Dallas, Oct. 31; Atlanta, Nov. 1; San Francisco Nov. 11.

Current USDA grading standards call for a certain amount of marbling, or fat in muscle tissue, before beef earns the prime or choice rankings.

"But it takes time to develop marbling, and more than two weeks as much feed to create fat as muscle," Ellis said. "You have to continue feeding the newer breeds of cattle past the point where they are ready for market from a weight standpoint."

The new standards will permit leaner meat to be graded higher than under current rules.

Why not just continue to feed the cattle until they develop the required marbling?

Effective In Absorbing Oil

By MICHAEL O. WESTER LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — The lowest grade of cotton fiber is being studied for use by the U.S. Coast Guard in cleaning up oil slicks.

The fiber is called "cotton wasties."

"This grade of cotton, when properly dispersed, can pick up 50 times its own weight in oil and still stay afloat without any apparent loss because of wave action," said Lt. Cmdr. Donald S. Jensen of the Coast Guard's Office of Research and Development.

"That's a better record than anything previously used, including commercial absorbents, straw or even coconut hulls," he said.

Jensen, of the Coast Guard's Pollution Prevention Projects branch, has been named technical monitor for an $89,000 Texas Tech research project which involves building a "sea" on which to test the new concept.

Working together at Texas Tech are three principal researchers. They are Dr. George F. Mennaghan, chairman of the Department of Chemical Engineering; Dr. James E. Halligan of the chemical engineering faculty; and A.A. Ball, head of fabric structures at the university's Textile Research Center.

For the past 12 months the team has been working under the sponsorship of Cotton Inc., the research and marketing arm of America's cotton growers who have an interest in anything which might create a better market for wasties.

"In the move from the laboratory beaker to the tank stage we hope to establish the limits of the concept," Mennaghan said.

Gunboats Shell Palestinians On Lebanon Coast

By The Associated Press
Israeli gunboats shelled a Palestinian refugee camp on the southern Lebanese coast early today, and Palestinian guerrillas claimed five civilians were killed and 13 were injured.

The Israeli military command said the target was a guerrilla base inside the Rashidiye refugee camp about nine miles north of the Israeli-Lebanese border.

The attack was part of Israel's "systematic offensive war against the terrorists," the Israeli command said. It added there was no return fire and all the boats returned safely.

It was the first Israeli naval raid since May 19. The Rashidiye camp was the target then, too.

Arab gunners later fired several rockets into the Israeli border settlement of Biranit, the Israeli command said. No casualties were reported.

In the wake of the Arab summit conference in Rabat, the Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said Egyptian Premier Abdel Aziz Hegazi asked Egypt's "battle committees" to review existing civil and popular defense plans and "prepare the masses once again for the possibility of a new Middle East war."

The summit recognized the guerrilla leaders of the Palestine Liberation Organization as the government of the West Bank of the Jordan river when that territory is released from Israeli control. The Rabat meeting also promised Egypt and Syria each $1 billion a year, Jordan $300 million and the PLO $50 million for use against Israel.

Premier Yitzhak Rabin warned the Israeli parliament these Arab moves "do not bode well for Israel" and could force the government to make major foreign policy decisions. He reaffirmed that his government would not negotiate with the PLO.

Rose, Titans Clash For Championship

Linebacker Jeff Hagans

Jeff Hagans Provides Triple-Threat Weapon

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School's offense and defense has run hot and cold at times this year, but one part of the game has been almost like clockwork—the point after touchdown tries that have been kicked.

So far this year, the Rampants have attempted to kick for extra points 17 times. They've been successful every time but once. Oddly enough, the man handling the kicking duties is doing it for the first time this year, and is even surprising himself with how well he's doing.

Jeff Hagans, a senior, also plays in the offensive line and serves as a defensive linebacker, where he's drawing some attention as a collegiate prospect for next year.

"He's the fastest lineman we have," Coach Dave Bumgarner said, "and he may be the biggest. He's not a lot of good things, but he's done them in spots. He hasn't been constant as we'd like for him to be in his play in the line, but we have had some good games from him and we are hoping for a few more."

"Jeff is strong, quick, fast and definitely a college prospect. He's a good blocker, and a good kicker. We really hadn't anticipated his doing this well. At the first of the year, we really thought that our kicking game was going to be one of our weak points, but it's turned into a strong point."

Hagans regularly plays one of the linebacking spots for the Rampants, and sees spot duty in the offensive line. He says that he enjoys the offensive side of the line more, however.

Jeff started playing football in the seventh grade while in junior high school. He played in the line for two years, then in the ninth grade, he was switched into the backfield as a runner.

"I was a ball carrier in the ninth grade, and then again in the 10th when I was on the junior varsity, but I was moved back into the line as a junior on the varsity," he said.

Which does he like better? "Well, I really like the line better, since I've played there most of the time. I enjoy the hitting, too."

Of his kicking, Jeff noted that he tried out for it during his junior year, but that he hadn't fully recovered from an ankle injury his sophomore year, and he was unable to kick well. But this year, things have fallen into place for him, and he's doing the job well. He works on his kicks about 15 times a day.

The rest of the time, he continues his work as a defensive and offensive player. "It's up to us to open holes for the backs, when we're on offense, and it's up to us to keep the other team's offense from scoring touchdowns when we're on defense," he said. "That's our job and that's what we try to do."

In the off-season, Jeff takes part in both wrestling and track. "I like all sports. I enjoy watching them too, and I like to shoot pool."

Following the end of the year, Hagans will turn his sights toward college, where he wants to continue his playing career. "Right now, we want to win the conference championship and get into the state playoffs. That's what everybody on the team wants," he said.

As for college, he has no definite plans. But with his playing ability, coupled with the ability to kick, he should be able to find someone who could use him.

Saturday night, Rose High School's Rampants will entertain Wilson's Fike High School in the conclusion of a collegiate-high school doubleheader in Ficklen Stadium.

And the high school game may prove to be the one with more riding on it.

A victory for Rose High School in the game would wrap up the Division I championship for the Rampants, and give them a berth in the State 4-A playoffs. It would be the first 4-A title for Rose, and their first in football in a number of years.

Wilson, however, is aiming to hold onto its chances at the title by beating Rose. Wilson comes into the battle with a 1-1 league record, and a 7-1 overall mark. Rose is 2-0 in the conference and 6-2 overall.

Last week, the Rampants dumped the only team to stop Wilson, Northern Nash, 21-6. Earlier Northern had taken a 12-7 win over Wilson. But Wilson banged Northerneastern, 35-13, and Northerneastern had handed Northern its only other loss two weeks ago.

So, according to Coach Dave Bumgarner, the game must be looked at a toss-up.

During last week's game, the Rampants appeared to be dominating play in the first half, but it ended in a 0-0 tie. "I thought the first half was our worst of the year," Bumgarner said later.

"We sat down at halftime and had a little pep talk and it did the trick. The offense played much better in the second half. We got better blocking and better running from our backs. The line blocked well in the second half too."

Defensively, Bumgarner felt that the defense did an outstanding job in the first half, but began to tire in the second.

"We missed on several scoring opportunities, but we were playing a darn good Northern Nash team. I think we were just a little better than them, however."

The Rampants are in good physical shape for the Wilson game, with only Mike Murad sidelined. He may be available for limited action.

"Wilson is just like Northern Nash," Bumgarner said. "They run the same type offense, the twin year, and they run it well. They are more explosive, and they have scored a lot of points. They also haven't given up many points. The most anyone has scored against them is 14 points.

They have a good quarterback who throws the ball well, and their offense is very well balanced."

In the veer offense, Wilson has run a lot of players. Randy Edwards is the leading ground gainer, with 777 yards in 122 carries, a 6.4 average. He's scored nine touchdowns and three PATs. Tim Bissett is the number two runner with 651 yards, while Mike Lane has 524 yards, Reggie Rowe has 220, and quarterback Stan Johnson has 166.

Johnson has also thrown for 491 yards, completing 29 of 65 for nine touchdowns. He's had only two picked off. His chief target has been tight end Linwood Hardy, who has caught 10 for 238 yards and five touchdowns.

Overall, the offense has rushed for 2300 yards in eight games.

Defensively, Wilson runs from the 5-2 with variations. They do a lot of stunting and gambling. Reggie Cooper, a linebacker, and Jesse Montiero, a tackle, are the defensive leaders, with other standouts including end Vance Tingler; middle guard Bert Wiggins and backs Stuart Frantz and Mike Estrata.

The defense has allowed less than 200 yards a game.

"It's going to be a tough game," Bumgarner said. "They feel they can beat us. But our kids know the situation, and they are confident too. We are going to have to play a full game of football and make very few mistakes to win it."

Bumgarner didn't feel that playing on Saturday would be a problem. "It's going to be a fitting conclusion to a good afternoon," he said. "There is a lot of football for the Eastern North Carolina fans. And those who come back for our game will see one just as exciting, if not more so, than the afternoon game."

Kickoff for the Rampants will be 7:30 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium Saturday night.

Terps Rumble On Offense Too

By The Associated Press
Maryland's league-leading Terps, who have dominated defensive statistics in Atlantic Coast Conference football, now are creating a stir in the offensive departments as well.

Coach Jerry Claiborne's club gained more than 400 yards running and passing in three of its last four games. It now is fourth in total offense and in passing, and third in rushing.

After its first two starts, narrow losses to nationally ranked Alabama and Florida, the Terps' total offense was sixth in the seven-team league. Since that time—five straight victories—their lowest offensive showing has been 364 yards, and the best 473 yards.

Maryland, ranked 15th nationally, is preparing for Saturday's game at 10th ranked Penn State. It will be televised regionally.

North Carolina State, which has fallen out of the top 20 after successive losses to North Carolina and Maryland, will be home to South Carolina. The South Carolina Gamecocks, former members of the ACC, are now independent. They have upset Mississippi and North Carolina the last two weeks after losing their first five games.

Virginia will be at North Carolina, Clemson at Wake Forest and Georgia Tech at Duke.

For the first time in eight weeks, Clemson will be favored. Wake Forest has lost all seven games this season, and has not scored in the last 5½ games, 22 quarters.

Thomas Takes Women's Event

Jeanette Thomas fired a record round to win the Fifth Annual Brook Valley Women's Invitational Golf Tournament yesterday.

Mrs. Thomas, who had an 84 for the first round of play, came back with a 73, setting a new women's competitive record for the course, to have a 157 total, good enough to win.

Second place went to Kathy Semeske, who had a 78-83—161 total. Third place went to Jane Reinhardt, 80-83—163. Dickie Selway won the low net honors with a 145.

In the first flight, Dolly Horn had a 91-79—170 to take first place honors. She was followed by Vera Bernard, 90-84—174, and Sue Hallow, 90-86—176. Jan Woodworth took low net honors with a 141.

Jeanne Marmorose won the second flight, firing rounds of 96-92 for a 188 total. Toby Thompson took second with a 95-94—189. Betty Stuart and Gina Germani both had 97-94—191 to tie for third. Low net went to Helen Back with a 146.

Betty Wilson was the third flight winner. She had rounds of 101 and 85 for a 186 total. Second place was Frances Keeny with a 99-92—191. Frances Johnson, with a 101-94—195, and Margie Colven with a 105-90—195, tied for third. Low net went to Ester Horton with a 159.

In the fourth flight, Jean Davidson won with a 109-103-212. Pat Goroppa took second with a 109-106—215, while Irene Bircher was third at 113-106—219. Low net was won by Maxine Hawley with a 162 total.

A total of 73 women completed in the tournament.

Award Has Not Ended Troubles

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Being selected as the top pitcher in the American League by winning the Cy Young award hasn't eliminated Catfish Hunter's troubles with his boss, Oakland A owner Charles O. Finley.

Hunter insisted in a telephone interview from his home in Hertford, N.C., after his Cy Young Award selection that Finley "still owes me $50,000 on this year's contract."

Asked about this and the possibility he might claim free agent status, Hunter said that and the salary matter would be discussed at a meeting between his attorneys, Marvin Miller of the Players Association and Bowie Kuhn, commissioner of baseball.

"They're going to decide what's going to happen on that," Hunter said.

When Finley was asked about the dispute, he declined comment. "Why ruin a great day for Hunter," he said. Finley said he was "very proud and happy" for Hunter whom he described as "one of the finest gentlemen in the game."

The 28-year-old North Carolinian appeared mildly surprised as his winning the Cy Young award over Ferguson Jenkins of the Texas Rangers who got 75 votes from a 24-member panel of the Baseball Writers Association of America to 90 for Young.

Hunter said he learned of his selection Wednesday afternoon when his wife told him after he returned from a fruitless deer hunt.

"I thought Ferguson Jenkins might get it instead of me," Hunter said. He pointed out that both of them had 25 wins last season and that Oakland had won the World Series.

"His team was not as good; so he had to pitch a little better, maybe," Hunter said.

Hunter agreed that the Cy Young award was the greatest honor to come to him during his 10-year career in the majors.

"I think when a pitcher comes into baseball the first thing he wants to do is win 20 games, the second is to win a World Series and the third is to win the Cy Young award," he said.

Hunter was the only pitcher named on each of the 24 ballots, and he received 12 first-place votes to 10 for Jenkins.

The California Angels' Nolan Ryan came in third with 28 points and one first-place vote. Cleveland's Gaylord Perry got the other first place vote and tied with Luis Tiant of Boston with eight points. Baltimore's Mike Cuellar had six and reliever John Hiller of the Detroit Tigers had one.

Hunter said that "at the All-Star break, Perry looked like he was going to run away with it, but after the break he just couldn't win a ball game. I thought Ryan might have a chance because of his strikeout record and his no-hitter."

Eagles, Blue Win

The Eagles and the Blues captured wins yesterday in the Recreation Department's football program.

In the flag league, the Eagles took an 18-6 victory over the Cowboys.

The Eagles scored twice in the first half. Ken Barnes picked up the first on a 32-yard run. The second came on a 29-yard pass from Barnes to Emmett Walsh for a 12-0 halftime lead.

In the second half, Mike Thurber scored for the Eagles on a 47-yard end around play. The Cowboys got their only score when Billy Dough scored on a 30-yard run.

In the tackle game, the Blue took a 26-8 win over the White.

Joey Mattheis scored the first Blue touchdown, on a two year run. The second came in the same period, the second, when Rufus Sutton went over from the one. Calvin Paige added the PAT for a 14-0 halftime lead.

The Blue scored twice more in the second half. Paige went over from the 18, and then Mack Stocks scored on a one-yard plunge. That upped it to 26-0.

Jamey Adams kept the White from being shutout, scoring from the two. Robert Robbins added the PAT points.

WINS WITH GLASSES
NEW YORK (AP) — Hale Irwin, 1974 U.S. Open golf champion, is the third professional on tour to win an "Eyes Right" award from the Society of Visual Care. He joins Arnold Palmer and Tommy Aaron.

The 29-year-old Irwin won the Open last June at Mamaroneck, N.Y., while wearing wire-rimmed glasses.

Charlotte Bows To Sun

By The Associated Press
College football coaches who build winners with ground attacks are fond of saying, "There are three things that can happen when you throw the ball — and none of them are good."

But it was the aerial route Wednesday that the winners in the World Football League took.

Southern California defeated Charlotte 34-25, Birmingham handled Florida 26-18, Philadelphia topped Chicago 37-31 and Memphis clinched a tie for a division title by edging the Hawaiians 33-31.

In tonight's nationally-telev vised game, Portland travels to Shreveport.

The Charlotte Hornets were No. 1 in the league in defending against the pass. But Southern California has the top passer.

Rookie quarterback Tony Adams rattled the Hornet's defensive secondary with 13 completions out of 24 attempts for 234 yards.

Adams, who has cranked up the arm and thrown 43 times in a game, connected with running back James McAlister in the first period to highlight the Sun's first scoring drive. Then, with 22 seconds left in the opening half, Adams found wide receiver Dave Williams in the end zone on the scoring end of a 22-yard pass.

Adams scored two touchdowns himself, preferring to run it in from the one on both occasions.

At Birmingham, Ala., the Americans' Al Jenkins caught five passes for 168 yards to pace the victory over Florida. With the score knotted at 7-7 in the second period, Jenkins teamed up with quarterback Matthew Reed for an 80-yard bomb.

Birmingham increased its advantage to 23-7 before the Blazers scored their final 11 points.

Jim "King" Corcoran collaborated with Willie Franklin on a 90-yard pass play in the final two minutes to set up Philadelphia's winning score.

Corcoran, never one afraid of putting the ball into the air, completed 20 of 34 passes for 349 yards as the Bell jumped off to an early 15-0 lead. But Chicago went ahead before Corcoran's aerial attack gave the Bell a big boost towards a play-off berth.

John Huarte passed for three touchdowns in pacing Memphis to its victory over the Hawaiians before a crowd of 20,544 in Honolulu — the largest of the season for Hawaii.

Huarte threw touchdown passes of 27 and 37 yards to Gary Shirk and also hit Roger Wallace with a 51-yard toss as the Southmen posted their 15th victory in 18 games, the best record in the WFL.

Most of the scoring was jammed into the first half as Memphis grabbed a 25-20 lead at halftime. Hawaii cut it to 25-20 on a 20-yard field goal by R.A. Coppedge in the third period. But then Huarte connected with Shirk for 37 yards early in the fourth quarter.

Hawaii made two of its points by scoring a safety in the second quarter.

Hudson Leads Atlanta Victory

By The Associated Press
Playing with an extremely painful right arm Wednesday night, Atlanta's Lou Hudson led a fourth-quarter blast that powered the Hawks to a 104-96 victory over the Detroit Pistons.

Hudson, suffering from calcium deposits and inflammation in his arm, reacted to the challenge of the moment.

"It's the excitement of playing," said Hudson, explaining how he rose above exquisite pain. "You get that extra little energy, that extra little burst. Right now I don't think I can shoot the basketball 10 feet. Tonight it's going to kill me."

Hudson hit on an 18-foot jumper to put Atlanta ahead 89-87 with 4:50 remaining and added 10 more points before the final buzzer to keep the Hawks ahead.

Detroit was ahead 86-77 four minutes into the final period. Then the Hawks outscored them 15-2 in the next five minutes, including the go-ahead field goal.

In the night's other NBA games, the Chicago Bulls defeated the Boston Celtics 105-104; the Kansas City-Omaha Kings whipped the Milwaukee Bucks 99-97; the Washington Bullets trimmed the New York Knicks 94-86; the Phoenix Suns tripped the Philadelphia 76ers 104-99; the Houston Rockets ripped the Houston Rockets 113-100 and the Seattle SuperSonics walloped the Los Angeles Lakers 117-97.

Bulls 105, Celtics 104

Chicago built a whopping lead on a balanced attack led by Chet Walker and then withstood a furious Boston comeback to snap a five-game losing streak.

Kings 99, Bucks 97

Nate Archibald scored 30 points and Sam Lacey dominated the boards down the stretch as Kansas City-Omaha overcame a 12-point fourth quarter deficit to down Milwaukee for the Kings' fifth NBA victory in six games.

Bullets 94, Knicks 86

Elvin Hayes poured in 21 points and collected 16 rebounds to pace unbeaten Washington over New York. Hayes scored five points in the final minute after the Knicks cut the Bullets' lead to 86-84. The victory was the seventh of the season for Washington.

Suns 104, 76ers 99

Charlie Scott poured in 27 points to lead Phoenix over Philadelphia 76ers. Fred Carter, playing his first game of the season for the 76ers, put his team in a challenging position when he scored his seventh field goal with only 50 seconds remaining, narrowing the margin to 100-97.

But Phoenix cut off the threat when Curtis Perry made a lay-up with 30 seconds remaining, to put the Suns ahead 102-97.

Rockets 113, Jazz 100

Forward Mike Newlin scored 21 points to lead a balanced attack that gave Houston its victory over winless New Orleans.

Sonics 117, Lakers 97

Spencer Haywood poured in 40 points, leading Seattle past Los Angeles.

American Basketball Association results: Virginia 114, Indiana 111; San Antonio 135, St. Louis 98; Kentucky 97, San Diego 94; Denver 105, Memphis 95 and New York 95, Utah 91.

Furman Stats Still The Best

Furman's nationally ranked Paladins continue to lead the Southern Conference in defense, and also are atop the league in offense.

The Paladins, ranked 12th nationally in total defense, are allowing only 226.7 yards a game, while Appalachian State is second in the league with a 255.9 mark. East Carolina is third, 274.3, and is the only other team giving up less than 300 yards a contest.

Furman is allowing 160.9 yards in that field, while East Carolina is second with a 173.4 average, and Appalachian State is third at 178.6. The rest of the league is giving up over 200.

This week's Pirate opponent, The Citadel, is fourth in the league in total defense with a 351.4, and sixth against the rush at 260.4 per game.

Furman and Appalachian both rank against the pass, nationally. Furman, number two, is allowing just 65.9 yards a game, while Appalachian, ninth is giving up 77.3. The Citadel is third at 91.0, while East Carolina is fourth at 100.9.

Furman also leads against the score with a 12.7 average, with East Carolina just behind at 13.0. VMI is third at 16.1, and Appalachian fourth at 17.4. The Citadel is fifth with a 22.6 average.

Offensively, Furman ranks first with a 335.7 yard average. William & Mary at 314.9 is second, followed by The Citadel at 309.9 and Richmond at 304.3. East Carolina, fifth at 300.3, is the only other team averaging over 300 yards.

The Bucs are tops in rushing with a 276.9 average. Furman is second at 239.9 and William & Mary is third at 237.3. The Citadel ranks fourth at 232.4, while VMI at 215.3 is the only other team with over 200 a game.

Richmond is the top passing team with a 179.8 average, with Davidson second at 138.0. ASU is the only other team over a hundred yards a game at 101.5. The Citadel is sixth with 77.4, and the Pirates are last at 23.4.

East Carolina leads the scoring with a 22.1 average, with VMI second at 20.6, the only other team over 20. The Citadel is seventh with a 13.4 average.

Individually, Harry Knight of Richmond leads the league in total offense with 169.7 yards a game, good enough for 17th nationally. Right behind him is Bill Deery of William & Mary with 166.9 per game, 19th nationally. Andrew Johnson of The Citadel at 138.3 and Charles Elvington of Furman, 104.3, are the only others over a 100 per game.

Johnson, leading the rushers, is third nationally, with a 136.6 average. He's the only one in the conference rushing for over 100 a game, and he needs only 44 more to crack the 1,000-yard mark for the year. East Carolina's Ken Strayhorn stands sixth with a 66.1 average.

Knight leads the passing and is 11th nationally, competing 12.7 passes per game. Gary Pomey of Davidson tops the receivers with 5.2 catches a game, sixth in the country. Mike Mahoney of Richmond, with four a game, is 28th nationally.

Joe Parker continues to be the national leader in punting with a 43.9 average. Gill Job of East Carolina is second in the league with a 39.1 mark.

Devon Ford of ASU is sixth at 15.6, and Ronnie Moore of VMI is seventh at 15.3 in national punt returns.

Moore also leads in kickoff returns in the league with a 21.4 average, while Bobby Myrick of East Carolina is second with a 21.1 mark.

Strayhorn is the league's leading scorer with a 6.3 average.

Webb Wins Tournament

Ercel Webb took first place in a recent "Three Club Tournament" held at Brook Valley.

Webb, using only two selected clubs and a putter, finished the round with a 74, then won a playoff from Lee Alcorn and Al Ward, who also had 18-hole totals of 94.

Mack Bach won the first flight with Don Taylor finishing in second. Doug Morgan won the second flight, beating out Ed Reep.

In the third flight, Jim Fleming won, while Andy Boles finished second.

Simpson Back In Second Half

By The Associated Press
You can't keep a good shooter down.

Ralph Simpson was off in the first half, but more than doubled his production and doubled his fun in the second while leading Denver to 105-95 victory over Memphis in the American Basketball Association Wednesday night.

"Simpson is just a great shooter," said Denver Coach Larry Brown. "It's hard to keep him from scoring his points."

Simpson had only six points before intermission, but then came on with a rush in the second, scoring 14 to help the Nuggets put the game away.

"Last year Denver used Simpson as guard and forward and I had planned to swing him like that this year, too," said Brown. "But he is looking so good at guard and our young kids have progressed so well up front that he may be a full-time guard this year."

In the other ABA games, the Kentucky Colonels whipped the San Diego Padres 97-94; the Virginia Squires defeated the Indiana Pacers 114-111; the San Antonio Spurs ripped the Spirits of St. Louis 135-98 and the New York Nets downed the Utah Stars 95-91.

Simpson 20 points led Denver while teammates Mack Calvin and Mike Green finished with 19 points each as the Nuggets boosted their Western Division-leading record to 5-1. Memphis fell to 2-5.

Colonels 97, Conquistadors 94

Ted McClain's two free throws with seven seconds left proved to be the deciding points as Kentucky defeated San Diego. San Diego had the ball and the lead with nine seconds remaining when Louie Dampier stole the ball and passed it to McClain who was trying to make a layup.

Will Jones dunked at the buzzer to provide the final margin.

Spurs 135, Spirits 98

Donnie Freeman's 28 points and 27 by George Gervin led San Antonio Spurs over St. Louis.

Magruder Turnabout Pressed

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Once again, Watergate defense lawyers are pressing a key prosecution witness on what caused him to drop out of the cover-up and start telling the truth about the break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters.

Defense counsel began cross examination Wednesday of Jeb Stuart Magruder, former deputy director of Richard M. Nixon's re-election committee.

Plato Cacheris, an attorney for former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, opened the cross examination by asking Magruder, the third prosecution witness at the cover-up trial, about his testimony at the break-in trial in January 1973.

"Did you speak words of perjury to the jury?" asked Cacheris.

"Yes, sir," replied Magruder. "John Mitchell didn't speak those words for you, did he?" asked the defense attorney.

"No, sir," Magruder said.

Mitchell is one of five former Nixon administration and campaign aides charged with conspiring to thwart the investigation of the Watergate break-in.

The other defendants are former White House aides H. R.

Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, former assistant Atty. Gen. Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson, one-time lawyer for the Nixon re-election committee.

Defense attorneys indicated Wednesday that their cross examination of Magruder would take a full day. The next prosecution witness is scheduled to be Robert Reisner, Magruder's assistant at the re-election committee.

Driver Charged In Collision

Addie Buchanan Burgess of Route 5, Washington was charged with failing to stop for a stop light following investigation of a 2:08 p.m. collision Tuesday at the intersection of Tenth and Washington Streets.

Officers said the Burgess car collided with a vehicle driven by Kevin Leigh Gray of Graham, causing an estimated $800 damage to the Burgess car and $100 damage to the Gray auto.

Mrs. Burgess was reported injured in the mishap.

Cacheris cited several occasions on which Magruder had lied under oath and each time asked him if he had been charged with perjury by the special Watergate prosecutors.

Magruder, who pleaded guilty Aug. 16, 1973, to a single count of conspiracy to obstruct justice and promised to cooperate with the prosecutors, replied that he had not been charged with perjury.

"Is that part of your arrangement with the special Watergate prosecutors?" asked Cacheris.

"Yes, sir," replied Magruder, who currently is serving a 10 months to four years sentence in prison.

He admitted also telling the agents that after the break-in he had tried for "self preservation" to accumulate as much money as possible from the committee.

Magruder apparently accumulated $6,000 in committee funds for possible use to pay legal fees. But when the committee picked up some of the fees he returned the money.

"Yes, sir," replied Magruder, who currently is serving a 10 months to four years sentence in prison.

He admitted also telling the agents that after the break-in he had tried for "self preservation" to accumulate as much money as possible from the committee.

Magruder apparently accumulated $6,000 in committee funds for possible use to pay legal fees. But when the committee picked up some of the fees he returned the money.

Magruder, who pleaded guilty Aug. 16, 1973, to a single count of conspiracy to obstruct justice and promised to cooperate with the prosecutors, replied that he had not been charged with perjury.

"Is that part of your arrangement with the special Watergate prosecutors?" asked Cacheris.

Tax Repeal Will Be Art Seniors Action League Goal Show Work

CHERRYVILLE, N.C.(AP)—The president of the North Carolina Christian Action League says the organization will push for repeal of the state's 3 per cent food tax in the 1975 General Assembly.

Coy C. Privette told the Cherryville Rotary Club Wednesday the Christian Action League is proposing additional taxes on cigarettes and alcoholic beverages to replace the food tax which produces around $67 million annually.

Privette said his group is proposing the tax on cigarettes be upped from two cents to six cents per pack, which would produce $44 million annually.

"Concerning beer, we are proposing an additional five cents per 12 ounce can, and this would produce $39 million, and this additional income would help pay for some of the expense due to the current littering along our highways," Privette said.

He also called for the tax on liquor to be increased from 12 to 15 per cent which would bring in $5.7 million more per year.

He told the civic group the additional taxes would bring in more than $88 million "which would be more than enough to offset the current revenue from food, and no services to the people would be curtailed."

Moose Halloween Carnival Tonight

The annual Halloween carnival for children of the Moose and their invited guests gets underway tonight at 7:00 and closes at 9:30.

Carnival booths and games have been prepared in the main auditorium of the Greenville Moose Home, and a costume contest with awards for the winners as well as refreshments for all, planned.

A variety of art work by John Palmer of Charlotte and Trudy Allen of Concord, both senior students in the East Carolina University School of Art, is being displayed in Rawl Building this week.

Both students are candidates for the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in communications art and plan careers in the advertising field upon graduation.

Palmer, who is pursuing a double minor concentration in painting and European studies, is showing two- and three-dimensional graphics utilizing various graphic arts techniques.

Miss Allen is minoring in interior design. Her show consists of original designs for pamphlets, brochures, magazine covers, and silkscreen and cut paper posters.

She is a member of Delta Phi Delta honor society in art, Design Associates and the National Society of Interior Design.

Govm't To Study Food Pricing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government plans to examine pricing practices of food stores in an attempt to curb the rapidly rising costs to consumers.

Albert Rees, chairman of the newly created Council on Wage and Price Stability, said Wednesday the agency wants to discourage food stores from marking up the price of items already on the shelves.

Public hearings on the practice will be held sometime next month as part of an investigation into profits and markups for food middlemen. The hearings are the council's ultimate weapon against inflation since it has no enforcement powers.

Some food chains already have announced that once they mark the price of an item, they will not stamp on a new higher price.

The council, created in August, was President Ford's first request of Congress when he took office and declared inflation to be Public Enemy No. 1.

Meanwhile, Ford met with a group of livestock and poultry growers and listened to their recommendations for a variety of solutions to their economic problems. He told them he was very much aware of their problems, but made no commitments in response to their suggestions.

Suggestions from the growers included meat import restrictions, a review of dairy price supports and removal of certain regulations that are believed to hold back production.

A White House report on the meeting said the growers also urged removal or easing of restrictions on U.S. cattle exports to Japan.

The report said Ford told the growers that Japan's ban on meat imports would be a priority for discussion with Japanese leaders when he visits Japan next month. He also pointed out that the pending trade bill gives him authority to lower or raise tariffs and he felt this would help him in the negotiations.

In other economic developments: —Ford Motor Co. reported third-quarter profits down 51 per cent from a year ago, with earnings in the July-September period falling to $47 million from $95 million a year earlier. Ford President Lee A. Iacocca blamed the decline on soaring costs, coupled with labor disputes and parts shortages.

—Standard Oil of California said profits rose 32 per cent and Ashland Oil said profits rose 14 per cent in the first nine months of 1974, compared with the same period in 1973. Socal's earnings were $299 million or $1.77 a share, compared with $226 million or $1.33 a share for last year's third quarter. Ashland posted third-quarter earnings of $27.3 million or $1.05 a share, up from $23.9 million or 95 cents a share last year.

—The second price hike for sugar companies in two weeks was made by Sucrest Corp., which raised the price of sugar sold in 100-pound bags to bakeries, confectioners and soda-pop manufacturers to $53.25, up $3.85. Last Friday, Amstar Corp., the nation's biggest sugar refiner, raised its wholesale price of sugar packaged for home use about eight cents per five-pound bag to $2.52 per package.

Reports Theft Of $27,000

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—A 66-year-old retired man has reported the theft of $27,000 from his home while he was at the movies Wednesday night, police report.

They quoted Dennis Lee Maynard as saying his loss was mostly in $100 bills.

It was not immediately learned why he had that much cash in the house, or what business he had been in.

Police described him as a widower who lived in a home in an older but substantial residential section. He said the rear door was forced between 7 p.m. and 10:30 p.m.

with? Note the formula below!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE B-682: Edna T., aged 20, is a college senior.

"Dr. Crane," she began, we use your textbook in our class in Applied Psychology.

"And I notice therein that you say 'only' children are greater marriage risks than are those who grew up with several brothers and sisters.

"Well, I have been dating 2 college boys who are quite congenial with my personality. "But one comes from a big family while the other is an 'only' child.

"At this stage, I think I am equally fond of them.

"But if I stopped going with one, I think I'd soon fall in love with the other, so what should I do?

Stall For Time

In this dilemma, I'd advise Edna to stall for a year or so until she can obtain a job and learn more about the rigors of earning a good pay check, and budgeting her money.

Maybe, by the time she is 21, or 22, she will find that her personality harmonizes better with one boy than with the other.

Or a third Romeo may then enter the picture.

You readers can see the greater obstacle confronted when you marry an "only" child. For it has received 100 percent of the parental attention ever since birth.

Because a happy marriage should be a 50-50 affair, when this "only" child then takes a wife, he will obtain but 50 percent of the attention.

Which means he drops from his former 100 percent monopoly of adult attention in the home to but 50 percent.

This is vaguely disturbing and often irritating, for people can become "addicts" of the family spot light, just as narcotic users can become addicts of drugs.

If you cut down the daily dose requirements of a confirmed morphine addict to but 50 percent of his usual intake, he becomes restless and irritable.

Now consider Edna's other suitor, who comes from a family of 4 children.

If his parents divided their love and attention equally among all 4 offspring, then he receive 25 percent.

If he should then marry Edna and enter upon a 50-50 marital division of attention, he would actually gain a double daily dose of affection and the family spotlight.

And notice, too, what would happen when the first baby arrives.

The 'only' suitor, already irritable at dropping from his earlier 100 percent spotlighting to but 50 percent, then would find that his new baby would rob him of at least half of the 50 percent, thus leaving him at best but 25 percent.

This drop from his original 100 percent to 25 percent would further shock his selfish ego.

It would disturb the ego of the other man who received only 25 percent of the parental attention as a child, but his reduction from the 50 percent he gained by his marriage, would now drop him down only to that original 25 percent, even if the new baby takes away half of the 50 percent attention his wife showered upon him.

So use your head more than your heart when you pick a mate!

For love can be developed by going through the proper motions with any fairly attractive and cooperating partner.

So send for my "Test for Husbands and Wives," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Swiss internationalist Tony Trad is the organizer of several of Europe's leading bridge congresses. But his fame is mainly as a player, and in Europe, he is rated among the best defenders in the game, as this hand from a recent tournament demonstrates.

Trad's two heart overcall on the East cards is the intermediate jump overcall, popular with many European players. It shows a one-suited hand of opening bid strength. That action did not deter South from entering the auction, and when he re-bid his spades North judged well to go on to game with his doubleton honor.

West led his top heart, and against routine defense South would have romped home with his contract. He was unlucky that, in Trad, he had to contend with a player of great ability. Even though the king and ace of hearts both stood up, prospects for the defense were not bright. The ace of spades would complete the defensive book, but the setting trick did not appear in sight. Since South almost surely held the ace of diamonds for his bidding, there were no tricks to be had in the minor suits. Thus, the only chance lay in promoting a second trump trick.

In pursuit of this plan, Trad continued with a third round of hearts. Declarer ruffed with the nine, entered dummy with the jack of diamonds and led a spade. Trad was tempted to rise with the ace of spades and lead a fourth heart, but he saw that this would not succeed—declarer would discard a club from hand while ruffing in dummy, return to his hand with a club ruff and draw trumps when the queen fell under the king.

The winning defense, therefore, was to play the queen of trumps. Declarer won the king and led a trump to the jack and ace. But now a fourth heart completed the trump promotion—if declarer ruffed low, West would overruff with the seven. Alternatively, if declarer ruffed with the ten, West's seven would be promoted to the setting trick!

Martha Renews Alimony Claim

NEW YORK (AP) — Martha Mitchell still figures she can't get by comfortably on the $1,-000-a-week temporary alimony she was awarded as a prelude to her separation suit against former U.S. Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell. Tuesday she asked to renew her original claim for $3,000-a-week.

Manhattan Supreme Court Justice Manuel Gomez agreed to hear a re-argument of her claim later this week. He originally pared down Mrs. Mitchell's $3,000 figure to $1,000.

Milk Price Hearing Scheduled Nov. 12

RALEIGH—A public hearing will be held in Raleigh Nov. 12 to discuss whether or not the present Class I price of milk should be increased.

Conducted by the North Carolina Milk Commission, the hearing will begin at 10 a.m. in the Governor W. Kerr Scott Building, N.C. Fairground.

The hearing is being held for the purpose of receiving information, evidence and testimony as to whether or not the price increase should be approved.

The Milk Commission will receive information on all matters pertaining to the Class I price to be paid producers.

All milk producers, milk distributors and other interested parties are urged to attend the hearing and present information pertinent to the matter. All interested parties will be given an opportunity to be heard.

The State Fairground is located on Hillsboro Street, Highway 1 South, business route. Persons attending the hearing should turn on Blue Ridge Road and enter gate 11. A parking area is located adjacent to the building.

Cabinet-Making Course Begins This Evening

Pitt Technical Institute is offering a cabinet making course beginning tonight at 7 o'clock at D. H. Conley High School.

The class will meet from 7 p.m. until 9:30 p.m. each Monday and Thursday for a total of 60 hours.

Course content will consist of the use of shop tools and equipment in learning methods of cabinet construction and related woodworking areas. Practical application will include measuring, layout and construction of special interest projects.

There is a $2 registration fee and each individual will furnish his own supplies.

For further information, interested persons may call or visit Pitt Technical Institute.

PUBLIC NOTICES

NOTICE OF SALE OF TIMBER IN THE GENERAL COURT OF JUSTICE SUPERIOR COURT DIVISION
FILE NUMBER: 73SP247
North Carolina
Pitt County
NINA BELL SMITH, Widow, et al
LIZZIE MILLS, et al
Pursuant to an Order entered by the Honorable Perry Martin, Judge presiding for the Pitt Superior Court for the Third Judicial District, on the 10th day of September, 1974, the undersigned will offer for sale to the highest bidder for cash, at public auction, at the door of the Pitt County Court House, at 12:00 o'clock Noon, on the 12th day of November, 1974 all merchantable timber lying, standing or growing upon the following described tract of land:
Located in Chicod Township on the East side of S. R. 1755 between Black Jack and McGowan's cross road and bounded on the North by Alice M. Elks, on the East by Weyerhaeuser Company, on the South by Prince Mills, and on the West by S. R. 1755, and more particularly described as follows:
BEGINNING in the center line of S. R. 1755 at the Southwest corner of Alice M. Elks, said point being located North 75-56 West, 35-37 feet from an iron pipe located on the Eastern side of said S. R. 1755 and in the line of Alice M. Elks, and thence from said beginning point, South 75-56 East, crossing the said iron pipe, 1,449.89 feet to an iron pipe in the line of Weyerhaeuser Company, the Southeast corner of Alice M. Elks, thence following the Weyerhaeuser line which is a chopped and painted line, South 05-02 West, 2,370.27 feet to an iron pipe at the Northeast corner of Prince Mills land; thence following the Northern line of Prince Mills, which is a chopped and painted line, North 63-13 West, 1,897.26 feet crossing an iron pipe located 31 feet from the center line of S. R. 1755, to the center line of S. R. 1755, marked by a nail and a cap, and which point is located 1,014.5 feet measured along the center line of S. R. 1755 in a northerly direction from the intersection of the center line of S. R. 1776; thence following the center line of S. R. 1755, North 15-25 East, 1,121.64 feet; North 14-14 East, 801.57 feet to the point of Beginning, containing seventy eight and 41/100 (78.41) acres, exclusive of the right of way of S. R. 1755.
The property is known as the Possie Mills woodland.
The successful bidder shall have twenty four (24) months from and after the execution and delivery of a deed conveying said timber, within which time to cut and remove it from the said land.
The terms of the sale are cash and a deposit of ten (10) per cent will be required of the highest bidder.
This the 11th day of October, 1974.

Geologist Summarizes Opinions On Green Mill Run

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
One of several East Carolina

University faculty specialists asked by the U. S. Corps of Engineers in Wilmington to provide comments on the engineer's August 1974 Draft

Environmental Statement for Green Mill Run is Dr. Stanley
Riggs, an associate Professor of Geology.

In a letter to Mayor S. Eugene West and in a letter and comments to Colonel Homer Johnstone of the Wilmington District office of the Corps of Engineers, Dr. Riggs has outlined a summary of opinions and furnished a detailed study of factors relating to the proposed draft environmental statement.

Writing to Mayor West, Dr. Riggs notes: "From extensive experience with channelization and flood control on a national basis, we are learning that this approach to flood control is of minimal and temporary success. In actuality, such projects generally lead to greater flood damage as a result of the modification of the floodplain and the subsequent increased development of the adjacent properties."

"Green Mill Run," Riggs states in another paragraph, "does represent a unique natural resource which could be a major asset to the City of Greenville instead of a 'problem area.' I would suggest that the city take a new look at this resource and approach the stream and its floodplain from the following basis:

"1. Strong floodplain zoning.

"2. Reconstruction of the remainder of the old bridges across Green Mill Run and its tributaries that act as 'floodplain dams.'"

3. Subsequent acquisition or permission for public use, of the floodplain through the city.

"4. Develop a series of cross-town hiking and bike trails through the beautiful floodplain 'natural park' (which are already partially developed) to tie into the existing and well used trails along the south banks of the Tar River."

Summarizing the thrust of his extensive seven page document of comments (plus two charts), Dr. Riggs in his cover letter to Colonel Johnstone notes: "Data which I and other members of the Geology Department of East Carolina University have been collecting underscore the need for additional study by suggesting extensive sediment pollution with adverse downstream effects. This cannot be ignored and must be weighed heavily in any environmental impact. Also our studies within Green Mill Run suggest that the method of channelization and maintenance proposed for this project are inadequate to be anything other than a very short-term flood protection. I would suggest that some basic geologic field work and modern stream process studies to be done before pursuing this project further. As it stands now, this project is geologically unsound."

Dr. Riggs was one of those who made extensive remarks before the engineer people at a public meeting on the Green Mill Run Channelization project held at City Hall on February 18, 1971. "I regret to say that, for the most part, these comments were completely ignored by the Corps in its new Statement of August, 1974," Dr. Riggs states in his letter to Colonel Johnstone.

A few highlights from Riggs' comments include: "One of the most important questions emerging from the proposed Green Mill Run channelization project is that of sediment pollution. With respect to this question, the Green Mill Run environmental statement is totally inadequate. The state of North Carolina has become concerned enough... that a new sediment control law was passed and became effective July 1, 1974..."

Another is: "Several faculty members and graduate students of... East Carolina University have participated in a series of extensive research projects... of the rivers and estuaries of North Carolina during the past eight years... we have analyzed the suspended sediments in several North Carolina estuaries and in some of the major tributaries, including the Tar and Pamlico Rivers, Green Mill Run, and Chicod Creek. The data collected... is sufficient to permit us to make a number of important conclusions about these streams and their sediment loads..."

Riggs then itemizes 13 separate factors, including one which states "... In its present partially channelized and urbanized state, Green Mill Run responds much more rapidly to rainfall than other unchannelized streams such as Chicod Creek and has relatively higher concentration of suspended and bedload sediments under high water conditions..."

Dr. Riggs attributes the high concentration of sediment to several conditions — "Green Mill Run has been channelized in most places with lateral streams and storm sewers shunting directly into the main stream;" "It is 'urbanized,' with abundant construction adjacent to the stream and abundant landfill decreasing the floodplain size and cover..." and "... increased run-off due to the large areas covered by pavement and buildings and the resulting lack of vegetation."

One example of what happens is given by Dr. Riggs in discussing the pond in Green Springs Park. "This pond," he writes, "was initially dug in Green Mill Run to a depth of between three and four feet below normal water level during the spring of 1969. Before the end of that same year, the entire pond had been filled with sediment and is now filled up to several feet above normal water level with only the main stream channel meandering through the flats..."

Dr. Riggs additionally touches on waters further down the Tar River as it winds its way oceanward. "... In the Pamlico River around Washington, the gorp is so thick both on the bottom and in suspension in the water column, that it has had drastic effects on the oysters, shellfish, bottom plants, and fin fish. This sediment not only has a direct effect on the biology... but has a definite harmful effect on the recreational aspects of the Pamlico River region... as well as being detrimental to people living or vacationing on the banks of the Pamlico River..."

Attend Consumer Education Session

More than 50 Region IV North Carolina Social Services workers met in consumer education workshops held at East Carolina University. A staff team from the Consumer Protection Division of the State Attorney General's Office prepared and presented the study theories. Topics on practical, consumer protection focused on legal background, skills in handling consumer complaints, and investigative techniques of the Consumer Protection Division. Discussions centered around basic marketplace problems of low income consumers.

Region IV training associates Ethel Hines and Elsie Petersen of the N. C. Division of Social Services scheduled the joint meeting, which is the fourth in a series of five seminars held throughout the state.

Hines said, "The sessions resulted in an effective exchange of information for our workers who are in daily contact with those who do not have the economic advantage of legal assistance in the broad scope of consumer problems."

Assistant Atty. Gen. James Blackburn, Special Agent Claude Green, and Administrative Assistant Stephanie Fountain represented the Consumer Protection Division. The final session will be held Nov. 5 in Greensboro.

Revival Will Begin Friday

REV. J. H. THOMPSON

The Rev. J. Hubert Thompson of Goldsboro will conduct a weekend revival at Sheldermine Pentecostal Holiness Church beginning Friday at 7:30 p.m.

The services will begin each night at 7:30 and continue through Sunday night.

Special singing will be presented each night.

The Rev. Roy O. Williams is the pastor.

WORLD PREMIERES

BUFFALO, N. Y. (UPI) —

The 10th anniversary season of the Buffalo Studio Arena Theater will present the world premieres of three shows and revivals of four.

THE BANK OF WINTERVILLE BECOMES

First State Bank

On Friday, November 1st, The Bank of Winterville becomes First State Bank. Normally with name changes many other facets of a business' operation change also. At First State Bank we do things a little differently. Our customers will find the same helpful people, the same convenient banking services and the same convenient hours of operation. At First State Bank the customer is our main concern. Oh yes, customers now using Bank of Winterville checks can use them until their supply is gone.
