

Model Health Dept. Contract Approved By Commissioners

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
County Commissioners approved a contract with the State Board of Health yesterday that will result in the Pitt Health Department becoming a model health operation.

Under the contract, the staff of the local health department will be expanded at state expense, with the county health board and commissioners maintaining policy control over the operation, just as they do now.

Commissioners also approved expanding the physical facilities of the health department. Expansion of the health department will be funded by a $140,000 federal grant with the addition of $235,000 in revenue sharing funds and a $210,000 match from local funding.

The building plans include connecting the present Health Department facility with the mental health building after mental health personnel move into new quarters to be built near the site of the new hospital.

In addition to connecting the two present facilities, new construction would add an additional 7,000 square feet of space for health department use. The proposed renovation and new construction would almost double the 8,000 square feet of space now available in the two old buildings.

Commissioners agreed to study a request from Sheriff Ralph Tyson for additional personnel for his department.

Tyson asked commissioners for three matrons in order to have a matron on duty 24-hours per day at the jail, as well as one additional male jailer and a records clerk.

Tyson said the additional jail personnel are needed, explaining that the average population of the jail now—capable of housing 84 inmates—is 45 to 50 prisoners per day. He noted that 316 persons were locked up last month.

The sheriff said that "90 per cent of the time" there is "a woman in jail," and said a matron is needed to help care for female prisoners.

Commissioners, who last month heard a request from a group of citizens to expand visiting hours at the jail indicated yesterday that in their opinion the sheriff now is allowing maximum visiting hours for the physical facilities now available for visitation.

Visiting hours at the jail are from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m. Thursdays and Sundays.

Dorothy Bolton, director of the Department of Social Services told the board yesterday that fewer households purchased food stamps last month than did the month before.

Miss Bolton said 779 households were certified for participation in the food stamp program, but that 120 families did not purchase stamps during October.

Commissioners were reminded that bids for drainage at the county landfill will be received on November 11 at 9 a.m.

The board was also told that the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission has made application for a Corps of Engineers permit to construct two concrete boat launching ramps at the Port Terminal on Hardee Creek East of Greenville.

In addition to the 90 foot long by 12 foot wide ramps, the Wildlife Commission proposes to construct three wooden docks, a gravel parking area and an access road to the fishing access area.

A report from the Corps of Engineers indicated "a review of all information available at the time of this notice indicates that the work will not have a significant effect on the quality of the human environment," but noted, "written comments pertinent to the proposed work... will be received at the corps' office in Wilmington until 4:45 p.m. December 2.

Coal Shutdown Is 'All But Certain'

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A nationwide coal mine shutdown appeared all but certain after union negotiators walked out of contract talks early today and accused management of forcing a strike.

"With what they've handed us tonight, they've declared a strike in the coal fields," said President Arnold Miller of the United Mine Workers as he left a union caucus without notifying the mine owners waiting in a nearby room.

"There's not a sufficient amount of time left for ratification, and the membership would not ratify what they gave us," Miller declared.

Guy Farmer, chief negotiator for the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, later called Miller's statement "incredible," and said he couldn't "conceive how anyone could say what we gave them was a provocation for a strike."

The UMW's current contract covering 120,000 members in 25 states expires at 12:01 a.m. Nov. 12 and coal miners have a tradition of "no contract, no work." The unions says it would take about 10 days for a contract to be ratified by the membership, which produces two-thirds of the nation's coal.

A walkout probably would begin Saturday morning at the end of this week's final production shift. The miners would be unlikely to return to work the following Monday, the final day of the contract.

The negotiations, which resumed Monday night after a 24-hour impasse, collapsed again several hours after management presented what Farmer said was a substantial offer wrapping up all issues.

A short strike is unlikely to cause any serious disruptions but a walkout lasting more than two weeks could have "a very serious impact" on the nation's sagging economy, Albert Rees, director of the President's Council on Wage and Price Stability, said Monday.

Israeli Raided Village

BEIRUT (AP) — Israeli troops swooped down on the south Lebanon town of Majdal Zoun in helicopters at dawn today, blew up the village chief's house, then carried the man and his eldest son off to Israel.

"Both were known to have cooperated with terrorists," the Israeli government announced. It said Mukhtar Aref Suleiman and his 15-year-old son Ali were being detained for questioning.

The raid came as influential Palestinians said they would escalate their conflict with Jordan's King Hussein over future control of the Israeli-occupied west bank of the Jordan River and would oppose the Mideast peace efforts of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Witnesses said about 150 Israeli troops marched into Majdal Zoun shortly after helicopters overflew the village, which is set among tobacco fields and olive groves six miles from the Israeli border.

They arrested the mukhtar and two of his sons, ordered the rest of the family to leave, then planted explosives and blew up the house. The younger boy, 12-year-old Mustafa, was released after he cried all the way to the helicopter.

It was the third Israeli attack on Lebanese territory in five days but the first time in months that an infiltration squad has reported bringing back Lebanese prisoners.

The Lebanese-Israeli frontier has been tense since Oct. 12 when at least five Arab guerrillas crossed into Israel and went into hiding. Israelis thought the guerrillas planned raids to coincide with Kissinger's visit to Jerusalem, but the men have never been found.

Since then, Israeli forces have killed three Arab infiltrators, shelled a Palestinian refugee camp from the sea and blown up houses in two Lebanese villages, claiming they were terrorist bases. Arabs have fired several rockets across the frontier at Jewish settlements.

Will Tabulate

The Daily Reflector will tabulate returns at the newspaper office on Cotanche Street tonight.

The returns, will be posted on an election board in the parking lot. Returns will be compiled on a Burroughs Corp. Computer.

Polls holders are reminded to phone results in to The Daily Reflector office, 752-6166, as soon as they are available.

'Surprising' Vote Turnout

A spot check of county voting precincts this morning indicated a surprisingly better turnout than had been expected for today's off-year balloting.

Eleven of the county's 27 polling sites were contacted around 10:15 to 10:30 a.m. and if early morning voting trends continued throughout the day, pre-election predictions of a very light turnout could be off somewhat.

None of the 11 precincts reported heavy voter flow during the morning hours but most indicated a better response than during the May primary voting period.

A poll spokesman in Bethel said that 127 voters had cast their ballots there by a little after 10:15 a.m. and the number was termed "real good" for the Bethel precinct.

Grimesland Precinct 1 had 54 voters by 10:30 a.m. and the poll spokesman said that the figure was considered very good for the small voting precinct.

Greenville Precinct 7 (Elm Street Gym), one of the larger voting districts here, had voted 350 persons when contacted this morning and the poll holder said that the figure was "more than we had in the primary at this time of day." He said the flow of voters was "running pretty good."

A spokesman at Grifton said that 146 persons had voted there by 10:30 and the turnout was considered good.

A "pretty steady flow" of voters was reported at Greenville Precinct 10 (Aycock Junior High) and a spokesman at Greenville 3 (Third Street School) said that 125 persons had voted there by 10:30. The turnout was termed good at Third Street School.

Precincts in Winterville and Farmville reported average turnouts while Greenville 9, (Gardner Fire Station) another of the large local districts, reported a good turnout of 286 voters.

The 55 voters at Chicod 2 by 10:15 a.m. was considered "fair" by a poll spokesman and a voting official at Greenville 6 (Fifth Street Fire Station) said 154 persons had voted. He said that the voting there was not heavy.

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day, but the phone service is available 24 hours a day.

SMALL CLAIMS COURTS Does Pitt County have a Small Claims Court? A.W.

Yes, we have a Small Claims or Magistrate's Court, and Hotline talks to people every week who, in our opinion, need to make use of it.

The Magistrate's Court is part of the State's District Court system and can be used to settle any dispute involving less than $300. One does not need an attorney to represent him, though he may have one if he wishes. The hearing is very informal. It's held in the Magistrate's office with you, the defendant, and any witnesses either of you may have present. There is no jury.

It cost $7 to file a written "complaint" with the Clerk of Superior Court, which is how you begin the proceedings. Of course, if you win the case, this filing fee is added to the amount awarded to you in the judgment. The date of the hearing will be set no later than 30 days from the time you file. If the summons for the other party is delivered by the Sheriff Department, you pay an additional $2 summons fee.

You have to gather your evidence, of course, and be sure your witnesses will be present. If one is not willing to serve, you can get a "subpoena" from the clerk of Superior Court. A $5 subpoena fee plus travel expenses can be paid to each witness. However, payment will not be paid for more than two witnesses to prove a single issue.

If the other party settles out of court, you must let the clerk or misgrate know, but you will not get the filing fee back.

The other party, of course, can offer a counterclaim.

The losing party can appeal to the District Court, and have the case tried before a jury. Usually an attorney is needed here.

There is a procedure that can be used to collect money or property as ordered by the magistrate's judgment if the losing party does not comply voluntarily. This is an "execution" of the judgment. It can be initiated in the clerk's office, and the procedure is carried out by the County Sheriff. Basically, it involves the taking and sale of property to satisfy the judgment of the court.

A booklet entitled How To Use The Magistrate's Court To Resolve Small Claims is available at the Clerk of Superior Court's Office in the Pitt County Courthouse. Prepared by the Consumer Protection Division of the Office of the Attorney General, it tells in detail what cases are suitable for Small Claims Courts, how to file, and how to prepare for the hearing, whether you're the plaintiff or the defendant. It also gives examples of all the forms used.

Magistrate Luther Moore says he now hears about 250 cases a month. All Small Claims cases for this county are heard in Greenville.

New Housing Project Is Being Processed By Offices Of HUD

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The development program for the proposed new N.C. 22-5 housing project is being processed by the Department of Housing and Urban Development and word on the execution of the annual contributions contract for the project is expected soon.

Housing Authority executive director Joe Laney told the commissioners Monday night the Greensboro office of HUD has indicated that they see no problems with the development program and the documents should be in the Atlanta HUD office within a week or ten days for final review.

Laney said that following the review, HUD is expected to enter into an annual contributions contract for the 122-unit project with the Authority and that action will authorize the Authority to take steps to purchase the property located in the vicinity of the present Meadowbrook housing site.

The executive director reported that the execution of the contract also allows the architect to proceed with the necessary contract documents so that the project can be let for bids.

Laney reported that the purchase of the property will be through condemnation and the execution of the important annual contributions contract is necessary before condemnation proceedings can be initiated.

He added that the Authority hopes to be able to advertise the project for bids early in 1975.

Garris-Evans Lumber Co. has submitted an offer of $900 for a small parcel fronting on Ridgeway Street in the Newtown Project, Laney said. He noted that the strip of land, which measures 30 feet by 120 feet, was included in plans for Newtown as an access site but it is not needed now for that purpose.

Greenville Leaf Market Finishes Record Season

The Greenville Tobacco Market held its final sale of the 1974 season Monday and recorded its highest average in its history.

"The Greenville warehousemen, specialists in their field, have kept abreast of the times and anticipated the need for scheduling tobacco several years ago," stated J. N. Bryan, sales supervisor of the Greenville market. "For this reason, the first season of the designation plan was operated very smoothly on the Greenville market and the 1974 season was a very successful one."

A total of $2,309,139 pounds of tobacco was sold on the Greenville market for $55,343,914, for a season average of $106.80 per hundred pounds.

"This is the first time in Greenville's history that the number of dollars has exceeded the number of pounds," Bryan said.

In 1973, Greenville sold 56,425,086 pounds of leaf for $50,139,158, for an average of $88.86 per hundred pounds.

"I would like to thank the farmers who sold on the Greenville market this year and we will be looking forward to selling their tobacco in 1975," Bryan said. "I would like to suggest that farmers designate their tobacco to the warehouse of their choice in Greenville as early as possible for the 1975 marketing season."

"Early designation will make the operation of the 1975 selling season as successful as the 1974 marketing year," Bryan added.

Average Of $106.60 For Farmville Mart

FARMVILLE—The Farmville Tobacco Market closed its 70th auction season Monday with an average of $106.60 per hundred pounds.

According to Louis Williams, sales supervisor for the Farmville market, the past season was one of the best on record.

"The pounds were a little below the record but the value was by far the best in the history of the Farmville market," Williams said.

The Farmville market opened on July 22 and continued for 58 sale days as compared with 53 sale days last year.

The market sold 30,515,393 pounds of tobacco this season for $32,529,984 for an average of $106.60 per hundred pounds.

Last year the Farmville market sold 23,910,657 pounds of leaf for $21,351,913, for an average per hundred pounds of $89.30.

The market sold 59,804 pounds of tobacco Monday for $55,125, for an average of $92.18 per hundred pounds.

Confidence Marks Morgan-Edmisten Aerial Tour

Confidence was the apparent mood of Democratic candidates Robert Morgan and Rufus Edmisten as they pushed toward the end of their statewide campaign jaunt Monday with an airport stop here. Morgan, candidate for the U.S. Senate, and Edmisten, who is seeking the state attorney general seat vacated by Morgan, met briefly with newsmen and area supporters as they concluded the next-to-last phase of their airport news conference schedule.

Accompanying the Democratic candidates on the aerial finale were Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt and Democratic national committeeman Howard Lee, mayor of Chapel Hill. Congressman Walter Jones and L. H. Fountain of the First and Second Districts, respectively, were also on hand.

Morgan, who faces Republican Bill Stevens in his senate bid, pointed to a "strong tide of support" for the Democratic Party as the election hour neared.

The former attorney general cited two reasons for the increased strength of the Democratic candidates: the confidence and trust of the people in the party to deal with the troubled economy; and the general negative reaction of many people to the Republican Party.

Morgan said that while the voters do not expect the Democratic Party to offer a "pat solution" to all of the economic woes, there is a feeling that the party can deal more effectively with the problems than the GOP.

Morgan said that the caravan's reception at earlier news conferences on Monday had been "tremendous" and he lauded the campaign efforts of Hunt and Lee who had "been on the campaign trail almost as much as the candidates themselves."

Edmisten said that he felt "extremely good" about the prospects of unseating interim Attorney General James Carson and predicted that he would receive many important GOP votes as well as acknowledged Democratic support.

Edmisten, who was introduced by Hunt as one who has "never cropped flue-cured tobacco but has put in burley," claimed that he knows "something about tobacco" and is anxious to see tobacco industry protected.

Hunt called the attorney general candidate "a man of unquestioned integrity" and said that Edmisten is probably more qualified for the job than any candidate who has sought the post.

Jones, who is in line for the important chairmanship of the House subcommittee on tobacco, if reelected, said that he considers the job a challenge and that he hopes to convince "urban congressmen" that "tobacco is not as evil as they think it is."

The representative faced GOP hopeful Harry McMullan III in today's elections.

The late-minute whirlwind tour yesterday included airport stops for news conferences at Asheville; Charlotte; Triad Airport in the Greensboro, High Point, Winston-Salem area; Raleigh-Durham Airport; and Wilmington, in addition to the local visit.

Hunt Looked For Pardon

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A memo attributed to E. Howard Hunt Jr. shows that Hunt thought he and the other original Watergate burglars expected to be pardoned for their crime two months before they went on trial for the burglary.

According to the memo introduced at the Watergate cover-up trial, the seven original break-in defendants also knew they were being paid for their silence about the involvement of higher-ranking Nixon re-election committee officials in the June 17, 1972, burglary.

As lawyers on both sides of the case assessed the impact of the new evidence, Watergate prosecutors scheduled a series of minor witnesses for the remainder of the trial's sixth week.

Three FBI agents were to be called today to back up the indictment's charge that defendants John D. Ehrlichman and John N. Mitchell had lied when they said all they knew about Watergate came from their newspaper reading.

Hunt, a retired CIA agent, testified last week that he delivered the 2½-page, single-spaced, typed memo to his then-attorney, William O. Bitman, in November 1972 when he and the other defendants in the break-in case became worried they might be abandoned by their superiors at the re-election committee and the White House.

Hunt said the contents of the memo were intended for high-ranking officials at both the committee and the White House. The memo says the defendants in the break-in case "have followed all instructions meticulously, keeping their part of the bargain by maintaining silence ... Having recovered from post-election euphoria, the administration should now attach high priority to keeping its commitments and taking affirmative action in behalf of the defendants."

"To end further misunderstandings the seven defendants' hands set Nov. 27th at 5:00 p.m. as the date by which all past and current financial requirements are to be paid, and credible assurances given of continuing support."

Whitaker presented a slide presentation and discussed the following issues: soil survey of Pitt County and how it is used; soil and water conservation practices in Pitt; soil loss prediction; soil profile; and woodland growth rate.

The students also participated in a field trip at which time they saw and handled some of the instruments used by Whitaker in his work.

ued resolve to honor all commitments. Half measures will be unacceptable ..."

The memo lists four commitments that Hunt said the defendants believed they had coming: financial support, legal defense fees, pardons and rehabilitation.

Although cautioning that his message should not be "misinterpreted as a threat," Hunt wrote:

"The Watergate bugging is only one of a number of highly illegal conspiracies engaged in by one or more of the defendants at the behest of senior White House officials. These as yet undisclosed crimes can be proved."

Hunt has testified that Bitman told him the memo was read to cover-up defendant Kenneth W. Parkinson, a lawyer for the re-election committee.

Associate Prosecutor James F. Neal said Monday that Bitman, who had previously denied the existence of the Hunt memo, maintains he does not recall reading it to Parkinson.

Large Fires In Virginia

ROANOKE, Va. (AP)—Forest fires in west-central and southwestern Virginia, some of them reportedly set deliberately, have been raging for several days and causing continuing problems, officials said.

Mick Swift, a dispatcher here for the U. S. Forest Service, said it had been determined that a series of fires in the Jefferson National Forest had been set. Investigators have been called to the burning areas, he said.

Seven or eight major fires have been set in the area since last Thursday, Swift said, and forest firefighters have been brought in from California and Oregon to battle the blazes.

The largest fire reported so far has destroyed 245 acres in Dickenson County in southwestern Virginia, Swift said.

"I don't want to imply the whole forest is in danger," he said, "but with incendiary fires, you never know where they will strike again."

He said no injuries have been reported and no residents have had to be evacuated, although the fires have posed a serious threat to small wildlife.

In central Virginia, state forester Jim Starr said Monday night his office in Farmville had received reports of 14 fires.

One fire destroyed from 25 to 30 acres of apple orchards along Tobacco Row Mountain and another destroyed five acres of timberland near Sweet Briar, he said, while two more fires were still out of control Monday night in Cambell County.

Pitt Has Over $32 Million In Tax-Exempt Property Listed

Due to a new state law, many counties in the state are getting their first look at the total amount of property which the state has exempted from county property taxation, Pitt tax supervisor Phillip Michaels said yesterday.

Many of the exemptions have existed in the past Michaels noted, but now, in order to qualify for the exemption, applications must be made to the tax supervisor's office and the value of the property is recorded.

According to applications received at the Pitt County Tax Office, Michaels said, the total value of exempt property in the county totals over $32 million. "That represents over a quarter of a million dollars in taxes at the present tax rate," the official emphasized.

Michaels explained that the $32 million figure does not include some six million pounds of tobacco held for export in Pitt County.

"Tobacco held for export within 12 months of the listing date is exempt from property taxation," Michaels said. Several types of exemptions are included in the $32 million figure, according to Michaels. "The largest single group of exemptions includes fraternal, religious, charitable, and non-profit education organizations. The total value of exempt property in these groups is almost $18 million."

Each individual required to list property in the state, Michaels explained, received a $300 deduction from his total personal property value. "In Pitt County, this exemption amounts to over $8.5 million in exempted value," the tax official explained.

"The final sizable group of exempt property," Michaels said, "includes people who are 65 years old or older and who have incomes of less than $5,000 per year—excluding social security and state or railroad retirement income. This group received exemption on property value at over $6.2 million, in Pitt."

Michaels added, "reports of bills already in the State legislative hopper seem to indicate that additional individuals, groups and organizations will be considered for exempt status in the coming legislative year."

Stockholders Will Gather Thursday

WASHINGTON, N.C.—More than 1,000 farmers, ranchers and rural homeowners are expected at the Washington High School auditorium in Washington, N.C. on Thursday, Nov. 7 for the Federal Land Bank Association and the Washington Production Credit Association's annual meeting of stockholders. The activities will begin at 5:30 p.m. with dinner being served in the cafeteria. A brief business meeting will include the annual report for the Associations progress, the election of two directors, election of nominating committee and a report of the board of directors. Entertainment will be provided by Ellen Heidenrich, folk singer from Washington, N.C.

Senator Seeks TV Position

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Edward J. Gurney is trying to interest ABC-TV in hiring him as a political commentator, according to an aide to the Florida Republican.

Gurney, who withdrew his reelection bid after being indicted on federal bribery and conspiracy charges, wrote to ABC President Elton Rule about the job possibility, aide Richard McMeekin said Monday.

An ABC spokesman confirmed there had been an exchange of letters between Gurney and Rule but declined to elaborate. McMeekin said Gurney believed that "based on 12 years here in Washington and a pretty good knowledge of people both in the House and the Senate, that this might be an option he could consider."

Olivier Agrees Direct An Opera

BRIGHTON, England (AP) — One of Britain's most heralded actors, Lord Olivier, has accepted an invitation to direct his first opera. Sir Laurence, as he prefers to be called, will direct Verdi's "MacBeth" at the Metropolitan Opera in New York in 1976.

The actor, currently recuperating in a Brighton hospital for inflamed muscles, says he will continue his film career. He is studying the score and libretto of the opera and is reportedly considering the title role in the film "MacArthur," the story of the World War II general.

PTI Organizing Special Courses

Pitt Technical Institute will hold an organizational meeting for persons interested in upgrading their accounting skills. The intention of the meeting is to try and set up an evening certificate program in accounting.

The meeting will be held on Wednesday at 7:30 p.m., in Room 10, Administration Building.

Possible course offerings will include Principles of Accounting, Intermediate Accounting, and Cost Accounting.

For additional information, interested persons may visit Pitt Technical Institute—Room 113 or telephone 756-3130, Ext. 38.

Symposium In Field Of Social Reform Slated

A two day symposium for persons active in various fields of social reform is scheduled to be held at the Baptist Student Center, E. 10th Street for a two day period, Friday and Saturday, November 8 and 9. "Accountability America" is the theme of the symposium, for which Dr. Roger D. Sharpe is advisor.

The key-note address is to be given Friday at 8 p.m. by Dr. Anna A. Hedgeman. Author of "The Trumpet Sounds" and a consultant on urban affairs and Afro-American studies, she has been involved in civil rights, social work and education on a national level. She was involved as an architect of the 1963 Civil Rights March on Washington.

Others speakers and participants slated to appear on symposium programs are Dr. W. W. Finlator, pastor of Pullen Memorial Church in Raleigh. Dr. Finlator, is also chairman of the N.C. Committee on the U.S. Civil Rights Commission; Wilbur Hobby, president of the N.C. AFL-CIO and a former candidate for governor; and Dr. Carlyle Marney, director of the Interpreter's House at Lake Junaluska and visiting professor at Duke University. Also: Alton Buzbee, poet and residential counselor at the N.C. School of the Arts; Dr. Vincent Bellis, professor of Biology, ECU; Elijah Stewart and Charles Bentley, paralegals of the Durham County Legal Aid Society; Jerry Connelly, of the American Freedom from Hunger Foundation, Washington, D.C.; Dr. Will Hartsler, Southeastern Regional Director of the American Friends Service Committee; and several Greenville ministers. Students, faculty and community residents are invited to attend the symposium and to sponsor individuals to attend. Registration fee is $2.50 for students and $3.00 for non-students for both days, with fees 25 cents less in each category for those registering on Saturday. Tickets are available at the Baptist Student Center or by phone, 752-4646.

Used Sewing Machines Put Money In Bank

By JEANNE LESEM
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI) — Home dressmaking can save you as much as nine-tenths the cost of a ready-to-wear garment, says fashion editor Irene Cumming Kleeberg.

Economies can range from a secondhand sewing machine to reusing buttons and zippers from worn or outgrown garments.

Mrs. Kleeberg, who is with the trade newspaper, Home Sewing Trade News, says a used machine is a good investment for most home sewers.

"Most machines have so many features you're never going to use," she said. "A consumer has to ask herself if she really needs a zig-zag stitch at all. For many things, you can use a straight stitch instead."

Whether you buy a used or a new machine, she suggests trying as many different brands and models as you can. And remember that buttonhole and zig-zag attachments can be bought for old straight-stitch models.

Excellent advice on sources for used machines and hallmarks of good ones is available in a 25-cent pamphlet by Virginia Ogilvy, a clothing specialist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture extension service. Order "Used Sewing Machines—A Good Buy"—by number, P.A. 1045, from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Time saving gadgets, bought or home made, also can save money in the long run by saving time and helping you give garments a professional look.

Take double-faced carbon paper. If you fold material with wrong sides together and the paper in between, you can mark two seams at once with a tracing wheel. This type of paper works best with a light to medium weight firm fabric, such as cotton or polyester-cotton blends. It is not suitable for soft or thick fabrics such as double knits.

A sleeve roll permits you to press seams open without creating ridges on the outside of a garment. A home made one is easily made by rolling and tying a magazine tightly and covering it with a towel.

A tracing wheel is handy if you often mark seams with dressmakers' carbon paper. But you can also use the blunt end of an orangewood stick.

A template is a guide, usually of stiff but sometimes also flexible material. Ready made templates are available for such things as turning cuffs pants and sleeves, and for measuring and holding straight hems in place for sewing. But pants cuffs can be shortened easily by taking a tuck beneath them where it won't show.

If you want to make your own templates for these or other jobs such as fabric squares and other patchwork shapes, use sandpaper instead of cardboard. It grips fabric better and prevents slipping.

You can also make templates for collars. But plastic and aluminum rules are available, as well as iron-on nonwoven interfacing with premarked guide lines for cutting and sewing.

Shirts can be made into expensive looking bodysuits with sew-on, two-way stretch panty kits. Bra cups are available for sewing or pinning into dresses, bathing suits and lingerie.

Permanent press and delicate fabrics either retain pin and needle marks or are easily damaged by pins and needles. Now there is a spray-on adhesive that takes the place of pins in laying out a pattern for cutting.

Or you can use a professional trick. Hold pattern and fabric together on a cutting board with hatpins or T-pins inserted vertically through the seam allowance into the board.

A needle conditioner pad extends the life of both regular and ball point machine needles by cleaning and sharpening them.

Hair setting tape is good for mending or altering torn paper patterns because it doesn't rip or wrinkle as transparent tape may.

And for those who can't sew a straight seam, several manufacturers now make marked, sew-through adhesive tapes for seams, decorative stitching, inserting zippers and making bound buttonholes.

Editor Learns That Being Tough Counts

By SANDRA GITTENS
NEW YORK (AP) — "I have a phrase I like to use, which is the multipersonal woman. I don't believe that either you or I or any woman out there is just one woman any more," says Lenore Hershey, editor of the Ladies' Home Journal.

Mrs. Hershey says she thoroughly enjoys her new job, but claims she's been living through a year of heavy responsibility since taking it over. Describing herself as a "creative woman by nature, a writer and editor," she says she's had to learn that "if you can't stand the heat, then you'd better get out of the office."

"Meaning, it's taken me a full year to learn how to ride with the daily crises of dealing with people and with pure business management.

"I've been in this business a long time but nobody has ever bothered to train me on the business aspect. I had to learn on the job. It's very difficult."

Training consisted of learning how to deal with men as well as with women who were reporting to her. Patience, forbearance and tact are some of the other things she's had to learn.

"But," she says, "I think, first of all, you've got to accept the fact that if you want the job you've got to accept the problems that are involved with it. If you want the big job, it isn't all beer and skittles; it's a lot of great difficulties. And, above all, you have got to learn to trust in your own decisions. It's executive knowhow. It's toughness in its best sense, yet tough without over-compensating. And I think a lot of women are going to have to learn this lesson."

Her learning experiences have been manifest in important areas.

Claiming this to be the most financially successful year the magazine has had in 91 years, Mrs. Hershey also reports an increase in advertising. One of which she is particularly proud is that of an automobile manufacturer. With Detroit often overlooking women in their advertising, she says the Journal went out to open communications with them. As a result, she says, hers is the first women's magazine to get advertising from Detroit.

"One of the reasons we got it was because a group of us went there and talked to them about communicating with women.

"They have traditionally been male-orientated. They felt men were the ones who made decisions on buying cars. So we went out and did a movie with 10 automotive dealers. They said that now up to 20 per cent of their customers are women. We played that in Detroit along with other proof that women are using and buying cars and showed that even when the man is involved in the decision making, women these days are oftentimes playing into that decision. So I think Detroit is finally recognizing our slogan, 'Never underestimate the power of a woman.'

"I feel the slogan is more meaningful today than it ever was," she says.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

My fifteen-year-old son said to me the other day, "Mom, I think I'm in trouble. Mitzi is referring my case to Mr. Weems."

"Who is Mitzi?"

"She's the girl at the record club who has been writing me letters saying I can't get out of the club because I still have to buy two more selections."

"Then who is Mr. Weems?"

"He's Mitzi's boss."

"Let me see the letter," I said.

Mitzi was a sweetheart. I could tell by the way she used phrases like, "You are forcing me to do something I really don't want to do, Mr. Bombeck, but you have left me no choice than to speak to Mr. Weems."

I had visions of Mitzi stamping out her cigarettes in her cottage cheese and letting her coffee get cold as she anguished over my son's case. I called her the next morning at the record club office.

"Hello, Mitzi Green please."

"Who?"

"Mitzi Green. She's the girl who has been corresponding with my son about his account."

"Oh, Mitzi isn't a person. She's a computer."

"So, put her on."

"You don't understand. Mitzi can't talk."

"Nonsense, she has just written us that she will be talking soon with Mr. Weems about the possibility of bringing legal action against my son."

"But Mr. Weems is a computer too."

"Can he listen?"

"Yes, but you have to understand computers. You can speak to them, but they will not answer you back. You can feed information into them, but it doesn't necessarily mean it will come out 100 per cent perfect. They're an important part of the family here at Freako Record, but they are without emotion and without income."

"You have described my son perfectly," I said. "He's an X-70 model we purchased 15 years ago. Unknown to us, he punched out a membership in your club. According to his print-out, he has already fulfilled his obligation. However, if these two machines want to battle it out, it's all right with me."

"You mean our computer has been corresponding with another computer?" asked the girl on the phone.

It was just a gut feeling, but I had the distinct sensation they were going to kick a few buttons in the Freako Record company.

DAR Chapter Meet Planned

FARMVILLE—Major Benjamin May Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will meet Saturday at 3 p.m. at the Chapter House here.

Dr. Herbert R. Paschall, chairman of the Department of History, ECU, will speak on "The U.S.A. Bicentennial." Mrs. John B. MacLeod, State Regent, of Chapel Hill is to be present as a special guest.

Miss Nancy Lewis, Mrs. S. C. Carroll and Mrs. B. F. Lewis will serve as hostesses.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Larry J. Barnhill of Robersonville announce the engagement of their daughter, Deborah Eve, to Roger Stuart Mewborn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivey W. Mewborn of Snow Hill. The wedding will take place Dec. 31.

Give Lilac Bush A New Home

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by The Chicago Tribune

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow and I am going with a very nice gentleman who is a widower.

We are quite serious about each other, but if we were to marry one of us would have to go to live in the home of the other and he doesn't want to leave the beautiful evergreen tree in his back yard, and I don't want to leave my lilac bush. This may sound crazy, but it is the truth.

How can we settle this? STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: YOU do the moving. It's a lot easier to transplant a lilac bush than an evergreen tree.

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating this attractive well-to-do-bachelor for about six months. (I'm a widow.) My problem is that I'm the giver and he's the taker.

I have bought him several nice gifts just to let him know I'm thinking of him, but he has not bought me a thing. He spends a fortune on himself, so it's not that he doesn't like to shop. And he has great taste.

Whenever he gets a gift from me he seems pleased and says something like: "I really should give you something, but you know how busy I am." Or: "I saw something in a store window yesterday and would have bought it for you, but the store was closed."

Abby, I can afford to buy anything I need, but it would mean so much to get a little gift from him. Why can't he get around to buying me something when he knows how happy it would make me? WAITING

DEAR WAITING: Some men hate to shop for gifts for ladies. Other men are thoughtless. And some are just plain cheap. After Christmas, let me know what you got in your stocking besides your leg, and I'll give you a reading on this attractive, well-to-do busy bachelor.

DEAR ABBY: Who said, "To be thought rich is as good as to be rich?" ROD

DEAR ROD: W. M. Thackeray. But he was wrong. Those who are only thought to be rich don't have to pay the rich man's taxes.

DEAR ABBY: This problem concerns my two sisters. One is 28 and the other is 22. The man involved (I'll call him Steve) is 38.

Steve has been living with my 28-year-old sister for about ten years. They have five children but they never got married. Steve has been running around with my 22-year-old sister ever since she was 17, and now she's pregnant. My older sister knows about it but there isn't a thing she can do. Steve and the younger sister are sneaking around, but everybody knows what is going on.

My older sister says she loves Steve no matter what, and my younger sister says the same thing. Steve says he loves them both.

I think both my sisters are nuts, and I'm not so sure about Steve. If you have any ideas on how to straighten out this mess in my family I sure wish you would let me know. THE SISTER IN BETWEEN

The 'Emerging School' Concept

Recently the ECU Board of Trustees has gone on record as favoring the designation of the ECU School of Medicine as a developing four-year medical school.

The expression was coupled with a recommendation that the ECU Medical School be again placed under the ECU Division of Health Affairs.

The proposal goes to the UNC Board of Governors which is now considering plans for developing the ECU Medical School in line with legislation approved by the 1974 General Assembly.

During this year the accrediting people have said that a two-year school must be accredited under an established four-year school and as a result the ECU school was placed directly under the Chapel Hill School of Medicine. That meant that its development was entirely removed from control of Dr. Ed Monroe, ECU vice chancellor for health affairs, and Dr. Wallace Woolles stepped down as dean of the school.

It is safe to say that this was not what the State Legislature and the public in general envisioned. What had been hoped for was development of a new school at ECU which would put its emphasis on training primary care physicians who would be steered toward rural and small town practice.

Now with the medical school on one campus and the control of it on another, no one really knows what is going to develop. Thus the ECU trustees feelings on this matter seem wise, indeed, and there is some feeling that the Chapel Hill Medical School might not find the idea unappealing.

Apparently if the ECU school is designated an emerging degree granting school, the accrediting agencies will look at it differently insofar as independent accreditation is concerned. Of course, there would still have to be full cooperation between ECU and Chapel Hill because most of the one and two-year students would be transferring to Chapel Hill until the full four year program was developed.

We hope the Board of Governors will consider the ECU trustees requests with an open mind. Approval of the emerging four-year school concept for ECU would eliminate a tremendous number of problems for all concerned and, of course, there would still be coordination between the two medical schools, through the UNC administration. At this point we need to eliminate problems with developing the ECU School of Medicine and get on with the job. The ECU trustees recommendations point the way toward doing it.

Pupils Want Voting

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Third and fourth graders at Circle Park Elementary School had no problems in finding reasons when asked to explain, "Why should my parents vote tomorrow?"

Most of their answers on Monday made sense. Some of the spelling did not.

One fourth grader got his message across despite the liberties he took with spelling.

"My parents should vote because it is getting involved in something in helping the government and congress at the same time," he wrote.

"If no one voted this country and the hole would be in big trouble. Even little clubs need presidents, if they did not, who would take care of the treasury? As amaterfaked (a matter of fact) if we did not have a president the hole would be in batal."

Several mentioned the need to help the poor and the threat of starvation if the right people are not elected to office.

One third grader wrote, "Some people need money, some people are very poor and need money. The governor should give it to them. People get sick. What would you do about it? Let them die. No give them money to get well. Suppose the governor let them die. I would give them money if I was rich. But I'm not rich. I need money like everyone else."

One fourth grader said she feared the worse for the world if no one voted.

"If there were no president there would be no freedom and there would be no representative and the world would be lost and there would be no names for any countrys or the state like Fort Worth."

Another feared the loss of laws if no one voted for governmental officials.

"What would the polesman do?" she asked. "They could not give us tickets to speed over the zone like if the speed

Low Education And Wages

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—By whatever scale you measure it, North Carolina consistently ranks near the bottom among the 50 states in how much education Tar Heels have.

That fact is inextricably mixed into the present low-skill, low-pay domination of this state's economy.

For instance, across the nation, more than half (52.3 per cent) of the people have a high school diploma or better. Here, ranking 48th nationally, only 38.5 per cent have that much education.

North Carolina for years has been the fifth highest state in the nation in numbers of young men who fail mental requirements for military service—18 per cent failing, compared to a national 7.8 per cent.

We rank 45th in the nation in median years of schooling completed by the population (10.6 grades), and seventh in the nation in number with less than five years-of schooling (10 per cent).

Income-School Link
There is a direct link between level of schooling and income which can be proved by census figures.

Of North Carolinians below the poverty level, over one-half went to school less than eight years. Another third of those had more than eight years, but less than a high school diploma.

This low level of education, researchers agree, is both a result of, and a reason for, the low per capita income in this state.

Research Triangle Institute people studying the relationship of education to efforts to improve the per capita income believe that "if the state is to continue to close the relative per capita income gap between North Carolina and the nation, the educational system must produce both long range and more immediate improvements in educational attainment."

What this boils down to is beefed up efforts by the public schools to keep students in school for a diploma; expanded efforts by the Community College and Vocational Education schools to provide post-secondary school training; and extension courses in local plants and communities to provide catch-up work on a basic level by all three areas of public education: the public schools, the community colleges, and the university system.

That direction will have to take two shapes, researchers believe: Training to a higher level for present and future students; and programs to reach back for those who missed out the first time around and help them improve their educational level.

Double Dropouts

It is not surprising that experts studying this relationship between industrial employment and wages and education concluded that the same recruitment and retention problems experienced in the school systems are later confronted by prospective employers.

In short, school dropouts are likely to be job dropouts as well.

Meanwhile, in-depth study is underway in the state's prison system to find proof of the contention that school dropouts are often dropouts from life and wind up behind bars.

Regardless of intensive efforts to increase the numbers of North Carolina students who go to college, and many critics of the public school system contend that work is geared to those going to college, the record shows that kids going straight to work after school represent the largest single block.

A survey of 1973 high school graduates, for example, shows 21,872 people took jobs; 2,941 went into the military; 3,176 enrolled in a trade, business, or nursing school; 2,534 enrolled in a junior college; 12,817 enrolled in a community college or technical institute; and 20,246 went to a senior college.

A look at the 10-year history of what North Carolina high school graduates do reveals a constant pattern in numbers who go straight to work or into the military; slight declines in numbers going to senior colleges; and tremendous growth in numbers going to community colleges or technical schools.

This trend, and the demands of the future for higher skill levels to achieve higher pay, lead planners to conclude that more vocational training at the high school and even junior high levels, and more emphasis on the community college program will be needed for coming years.

Inflexibility Is Costly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israel has fallen between a rock and a hard place in the diplomatic maneuvering over the next phase of Middle East negotiations with the only clear escape a fundamental change in policy.

The problem is one that has been the downfall of many negotiators in diplomacy and business: inflexibility.

In this case Israel says that it will never deal in any way, shape or form with the Palestinian Liberation Organization.

While Jerusalem was repeating that constant refrain, the PLO won overwhelming approval from the U.N. General Assembly to participate in a debate beginning in mid-month on the Palestinian question. And in last week's Arab summit at Rabat, Morocco, the PLO was designated the sole and legitimate representative of the West Bank Palestinians in any negotiations.

And while the Israelis kept saying never, their only important ally, the United States, began reappraising its support of the Jerusalem position.

While not firmly committed yet, the United States is plainly moving to accept what some U.S. and Egyptian officials describe as a new reality — the PLO as a permanent participant in the talks.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Monday that Israel and the Arabs must "make an effort to bring their position closer to each other."

An Egyptian official in Washington said Monday that his government will be flexible in a negotiating approach.

This means that Egypt and Israel can resume efforts to widen their disengagement on the Sinai Peninsula without simultaneous talks between the Jewish state and the PLO over the fate of the West Bank.

But the Egyptian diplomat added that there must be progress on the entire Middle East negotiating front, apparently meaning Israel must acknowledge the PLO. U.S. officials are heartened by the Egyptian diplomat's statements and indicated that Israel will be hard pressed to keep to its position.

There is one other alternative for the Jewish state, and that also would require a fundamental policy shift: ignore American pressure, refuse to budge in negotiations and fight another war.

American officials say that that course of action by Jerusalem would risk a loss of the all out support always given by Washington in the past.

One American source said, "We would never abandon Israel, but I don't know that the American people would be as sympathetic in the face of apparent Egyptian reasonableness, particularly when any new war would mean another oil crisis much worse than the last one."

INSIDE REPORT

Kissinger's Ugly Choices

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—One deep irony of the Arab summit conference in Rabat last week is that, from Secretary of State Henry Kissinger on down, no one here was slipped even a clue that the entire Arab world would unite behind the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), including that long-time, steadfast ally of the U.S., King Hussein of Jordan.

Indeed, the pledge from Saudi Arabia's King Faisal of an annual $300 million subsidy to Hussein from his pyramiding oil treasures, plus military and other aid, was not considered a practical possibility. Its effect is to drastically reduce the already waning American influence over Jordan at a worsening time.

There was, moreover, a strong implication in the Rabat communique that Hussein's sovereignty over the east bank of the Jordan River — the half of his kingdom not in Palestine proper—has been given some sort of guarantee by the major Arab powers, a guarantee he needs.

The implications of this, together with the PLO's emergence as uncontested claimant to the historic Arab territory of the west bank, are stupendous: either Israel finally decides to run the risk of serious west bank negotiations with the PLO and its three bargaining partners (Jordan, Egypt and Syria) or a war infinitely more dangerous than 1967 or 1973 will become unavoidable within six months.

Ever since it seized the west bank in the six-day war of 1967 Israel has filibustered all efforts by Washington to push it into negotiations with Hussein over returning the territory (which is packed with Palestinian Arabs Israel could never absorb). Now the bitter fruit of that policy has ripened.

Israel's refusal to engage in good faith bargaining with Hussein became the underlying reason by itself for Hussein's backdown—under pressure from major Arab states—from his long proclaimed insistence that only he could attain territorial concessions from Israel. After seven and a half long years, he got nothing.

Now, Kissinger faces particularly ugly choices. Unless the U.S. agrees that the PLO does indeed represent the west bank, and compels a similar, radical policy switch in Israel, the deadlock on Kissinger's efforts to negotiate piece meal settlements of the Egyptian Sinai and the Syrian Golan Heights will continue indefinitely.

But continuing diplomatic progress at this stage can lead only to military conflict, and this time all American experts agree that it would take a miracle to prevent involvement by the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

"We have begged and implored and warned the Israelis for years to negotiate a return of the west bank with Hussein," one of these policymakers told us. Indeed, some diplomats even con-

To the editor:

I have expressed in an earlier letter my desire to "live and move and have my being in Greenville hopefully for the rest of my life. Therefore, I do not hesitate to appeal to the motorists of this city for help in preserving not only my life but the lives of thousands of bicyclists here who use their bikes for exercises, health, transportation and specifically to fight the energy crisis.

Picture yourself being told by your physician that exercises (walking and cycling) were essential to provide the strength in your legs to keep you walking. In other words, that prescribed exercise on a bicycle was the key to your present and future mobility. Picture yourself then following this professional advice by using four-lane streets and observing all the rules of the road. (I've been a licensed driver for 25 years with a good driving record.) Think of how you would feel if people blew at you, tried to run you off the road when there was plenty of room in the other lane, and shook their fists angrily as they hurried by. I feel that as a citizen and a taxpayer, I have a right to be there and I intend to fight for and defend that right. There is plenty of room now on Charles, Tenth, Elm and the Boulevard for all of us. I look forward to seeing you there.

Sincerely,
Joseph F. Bennett

To the editor:

We would like to take enough time to say thanks to the Greenville Police Department, Pitt County Sheriff Department, W.I.T.N. T.V., and Mercer Glass Co., for the splendid job that was performed last week when our store was robbed. Everyone was on the job doing their job. Just think, how many off-duty men would have wrecked their own personal car to stop the alleged robbers. But this was done!

I just don't think that the Police and the Sheriff Department get as much credit as they deserve. They do their job and they do it well.

Again we at Discount Everyone's want to thank everyone who had anything to do with apprehending these subjects.

Ecologist Looks At Industry

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Businessmen aren't conservative enough, said David Brower. "They have to learn to live on their income rather than on their capital. Otherwise they're too radical."

The capital, as he views it, is the earth's resources. Use these resources wisely, replenish them and avoid wasting them, and they provide an income. Destroy them and you destroy yourself.

Such advice might be accepted if it comes from one businessman to another. Coming from Brower, however, it is likely to be accepted by some businessmen as fuzzy, liberal, even radical thinking.

Brower is a conservationist, an ecologist. A former executive director of the Sierra Club, he is now president of Friends of the Earth. He doesn't list businessmen among the earth's best friends.

Business often takes its sustenance from the earth without returning a dividend; it depletes soil and energy; it wastes and despoils. It lives on the earth's capital and doesn't seem to realize the capital is running out. All these are Brower views.

"I'm not attacking the profit system or the capitalist system or the Communist system," he said. "I'm attacking the disrespect for the earth, but I'm against shutting down the system."

In fact, he suggests, his ideas could be interpreted as prosystem. "We can't afford to continue tearing up the earth. You don't solve shortages by speeding up the rate of usage. If such ideas persist in practice we'll have an economic collapse."

To avoid this fate he maintains the world's economies must slow growth, "that is, the kind of growth that depends upon using up resources." We must, he adds, "slow down the kinds of games we've played for the past century."

Business and the environment are in real rather than superficial conflict, Brower insists, and business must compromise some of its goals and techniques. Otherwise, he forecasts, disaster will be the outcome.

"If I were in an industry I'd like to be in one that lasts," he said, straining through his frustration to convince business that thoughtless consumption of energy eventually is self-defeating.

The conflict, he states, "will continue until business leaders who already haven't taken the situation seriously turn the problem over to their engineers, technologists and ecologists, instead of to ad agencies."

Brower believes the world now must enter a transition period during which it must make numerous compromises in the interest of self-survival, the most important of these being to slow population.

Strength For Today

CHRISTIAN UNITY
"We are not divided, All one body we: One, in hope and doctrine, One, in charity."

We often sing this hymn in church. But considering it in the light of the religious wars and persecutions of past centuries reaching back to the crucifixion of Christ himself, we may well wonder if the words are not a mockery of the truth.

Today they are not, despite a grim and bloody past, if we define the word church in its ecumenical sense. Every Christian in the world believes in God. Every Christian in the world believes in Jesus Christ and the divine Lord and Savior. It is the faith of every Christian that God is in the world working through the power of the Holy Spirit. Upon these three beliefs Christianity rests despite differences, sometimes profound, of ecclesiastical organization and authority. Three principles give us brotherhood in Christ.

Guitarist Shows Praise Deserved

Last night in a concert at Wright Auditorium, 25 year old guitarist Christopher Parkening showed that he deserves the warm praise he has received from fellow musicians, audiences and critics.

Parkening's Greenville program focused substantially on music by Spanish composers from the 16th through the 20th century, with considerable emphasis on French music. German and Italian composers were also represented.

Even at so early an age, one thing stands out clearly. Christopher Parkening possesses a musical integrity the listener instinctively feels the artist would never compromise. He has an apparent dedication to the purity of melodic line associated with such giants of instrumentalist soloists as Wanda Landowska and Pablo Casals.

His is a clear cut, refined style of performance that is low keyed instead of flamboyant; an approach that ultimately is more satisfying than a showier, more spectacular type of performance could ever be.

In a program refreshingly marked by compositions not generally heard or possibly never before heard by most in his audience, Parkening interspersed some familiar favorites—Handel's "Sarabande," Debussy's "Clair de Lune" and "The Girl With The Foxen Hair," and a selection from Ravel's "Mother Goose Suite." Parkening opened his performance with "Two Pavanes" by the 16th century composer Luis Milan; brief little pieces of gentle coloring set in the stately, formal rhythms of these court dances.

"Three Studies" by Fernando Sor, a composer of the late 18th and early 19th centuries, contains a short opening melody of exceptional beauty that makes me anxious to hear more of this composer's work.

Debussy's "Clair de Lune," as expected, is particularly well suited to a guitar arrangement. More of a surprise were the effectiveness of Handel's "Sarabande With Variations" and Bach's moving "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desire" performed on the guitar. (The latter selection was not listed on the program. Parkening substituted it for a Bach fugue, saying he had been asked to play it instead of the fugue).

Two pieces by Alexander Tansman, a scherzo and a dance from "Suite Cavatina" provided Parkening an excellent opportunity to reveal the full range of his remarkable technique.

During the past two decades, the guitar has become one of the foremost instruments in the world of music in every category of entertainment.

In his concert at Wright last night, Christopher Parkening confirmed the fact that he is a brilliant young classical guitarist worthy to be a successor to the few great master classical guitarists of an older generation still on the scene today.

Break-In Is Charged Duo

Two Craven County men were arrested Monday by Pitt deputies and charged in connection with a Sunday morning break-in at Venter's Store at Calico.

Arrested were Lester German, 23, and Kenny Ray German, 20, both of Rt. 2, Box 259, Vanceboro, according to Sheriff Ralph Tyson. He said that both were charged with breaking, entering and larceny of the Rt. 1, Grimesland business.

The sheriff said that some $109 in merchandise was reported stolen from the store and damage to a rear door, which was forced open, was estimated at $50.

Bond was set at $1,000 for each man and hearings scheduled for Nov. 4 in District Court here, he added.

Investigation of the break-in is continuing by the Pitt Sheriff's Department.

She concluded, "My mother does not vote, that is why I am writing."

As one fourth grader put it: "What if someone got lazy and didn't vote and someone is elected you don't like; it's your's fault. So vote and they might choose the one you like!"

And one third grader concluded with the thought and challenge, "We need someone who doesn't make the country any worse than it is. So come out and vote!"

RALEIGH (AP)—The state Supreme Court has put off action on a suit contesting a proposed constitutional amendment which would permit the issuance of tax-exempt bonds to build industrial plants and anti pollution facilities.

Associate Justice Carlisle Higgins in a handwritten order continued the suit for further consideration by the court in closed conference. The court will hold its next conference Thursday. It could act then or later on the suit.

A group opposing the amendment had asked the court to keep the state Board of Elections from certifying the results of today's vote on the controversial bond issue.

One other constitutional amendment was submitted to the voters today. It would change the title of Superior Court solicitors to district attorneys.

Last Friday, a coalition of public interest groups asked the Supreme Court to act on their complaint attacking the tax-exempt revenue bond proposal. They contended the wording on the ballot for the amendment is designed to trick voters into approving it.

The amendment, if approved, would allow county governments to set up private development agencies to sell bonds for expansion of private industry and for the purchase of pollution control equipment.

The ballot says the purpose of the amendment is "to create jobs and employment opportunities and to protect the environment by authorizing the issuance of revenue bonds to finance industrial and pollution control facilities..."

Wake Superior Court Judge James H. Pou Bailey said the wording of the amendment is designed to dupe voters into approving the proposed amendment. Bailey said a voter would have "to come out against motherhood and in favor of sin" to vote against the amendment.

But, Bailey ruled that the amendment must remain on the ballot. He said the state constitution specifically gives the General Assembly the power to present constitutional amendments to the voters at whatever time and in whatever manner it chooses.

Attorneys opposing the amendment immediately appealed to the state Supreme Court.

They asked the court to enjoin the Board of Elections from certifying the results of the vote on the bond issue amendment.

Family Grocery Bills Continue To Inch Up

By LOUISE COOK

Family grocery bills inched up again during October, an Associated Press survey shows. But the rate of increase declined, supporting government predictions that the price spiral will ease as the year ends.

Sales on meat and eggs helped consumers trying to balance the supermarket budget and offset increases in items like detergents. Sugar prices rose again, but there were signs that the enormous increases may be over.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the prices on March 1, 1973, at a supermarket in each of 13 cities and rechecked at the beginning of each succeeding month.

The latest survey showed that during October about 30 per cent of the items checked went up in price, compared with about 42 per cent the previous month.

The marketbasket bill for October went up in seven cities, down in four and was unchanged in two. On the average, the bill at the start of November was .7 per cent higher than at the beginning of October and 13 per cent higher than at the start of the year. The government has predicted that food prices may rise as much as 16 per cent in 1974.

Savings at the meat and dairy counter provided welcome relief for consumers during October.

Chopped chuck was down in five cities, unchanged in four and up in four. Decreases ranged from 3 per cent in Providence, R.I., to 18 per cent in Seattle.

Eggs, which declined sharply earlier in the year, then started rising again in August and September, went down in price in six of the cities surveyed, were up in two and unchanged in four. They were unavailable in the 13th city surveyed.

Sugar prices went up again in nine cities, but consumers staggering under increases of up to 300 per cent in a year may get some relief soon. The price of sugar declined in two cities — Dallas and Albuquerque, N.M. — and was unchanged in two. The increases, which ranged from 3 per cent in New York and Seattle to 20 per cent in Chicago, generally were less than in previous months.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, chocolate chip cookies, milk, all-beef frankfurters and granulated sugar.

The cities checked were: Albuquerque, Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Judge Shot, Killed In New Jersey Courtroom

By THOMAS G. DONLAN
Associated Press Writer

WANAQUE, N.J. (AP) — A bullet fired through a window fatally wounded a municipal judge while he was holding court. Police termed the death a definite case of premeditated murder.

About 50 persons were in the courtroom. No one else was hurt.

Municipal Court Judge Joseph Crescente, 71, was sitting in his second-floor courtroom Monday night when the shot pierced a window and a venetian blind behind his bench and struck him in the back. He was holding a probable cause hearing at the time.

The magistrate died two hours later at Chilton Memorial Hospital in nearby Pompton Plains.

Officers in this Passaic County community of 11,000 said they were looking for a young dark-skinned male. Witnesses said they saw him aim a rifle at the window of the courtroom from the street.

Witnesses told officers the man fled on foot. The weapon used in the slaying, believed to be a .22-caliber rifle, had not been found, police said.

A detective on the 15-member Wanauque police force said all "past, present and future cases" the judge was involved in were being checked for possible leads.

"He flinched in his chair and said, 'What was that?'" said Capt. Joseph Cisco, who was in the courtroom at the time of the shooting.

Cisco said he went to the judge, loosened his robe and saw blood on his back. He said others in the courtroom scrambled for cover.

"As far as we're concerned, there is no question that this was a case of premeditated murder," said a police dispatcher in Pompton Lakes, which serves as a central communications center for the area.

The last homicide occurred here in 1913, according to police.

Wanauque is about 10 miles south of the New York State border and some 35 miles northwest of New York City.

Ex-Dictator Faces High Treason Case

ATHENS (AP) — The Athens chief prosecutor today officially charged former Greek dictator George Papadopoulos and 49 other ex-officers with high treason and insurrection for their seizure of power in the April 1967 coup.

If found guilty, several of the men who served in the junta that ruled Greece for more than seven years could be given the death sentence.

Prosecutor Menelaos Koutsakos' charges came four days after a panel of 88 judges voted almost unanimously for a motion to try the group for "high treason."

Koutsakos also ordered that an investigation into the charges begin Wednesday. Investigating magistrate George Voltis will begin summoning witnesses and the accused, many of whom are then expected to be imprisoned pending trial. Last week the civilian government exiled Papadopoulos and four other men instrumental in the 1967 revolt to the Aegean island of Kea, claiming they were plotting to regain power. Among the witnesses to be summoned will be former officers and politicians, including Panayotis Canellopoulos, premier at the time of the coup.

The 50 men are accused of rebelling against the armed forces leadership, abolishing constitutional provisions, and arbitrarily arresting government members and thousands of dissidents during the coup staged on the night of April 21, 1967.

Fourteen of the accused comprise the original junta which planned and carried out the coup. They include Papadopoulos, former military Police Chief Dimitrios Ioannides and ex-regent George Zoiakias.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market bounced back from a mild early decline with a late-morning rally today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 8.68 at 665.91, and gainers held a 4-to-3 lead over losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was moderate. Brokers noted that the closing of the big banks for election day probably held down activity somewhat.

Analysts said the turnaround in the market trend evidently stemmed from encouragement at the market's relative steadiness in the face of a looming nationwide coal strike.

The news of a breakdown in negotiations between the coal industry and the United Mine Workers union greeted traders as they arrived at work today. But the Dow fell only a couple of points in the early going.

At that point, brokers said, investors apparently decided that the market already had anticipated the possible economic effects of a coal walkout, and they moved in to do some profit taking.

As the market began its upswing, it was also reported that the coal-contract talks would be resumed later in the day.

Benquet Consolidated Mining Class B was the most-active NYSE issue, unchanged at 3/4 in trading that included a 149,900-share block at 3.

In the glamor sector, Bausch & Lomb was up 1 to 30/32, Polaroid rose 1/4 to 23/32, and MGIC Investment was up 1/4 to 8/16.

The NYSE's 11 a.m. composite index of all its listed common stocks was up .02 at 38.55, just as the market was beginning to turn.

Giant Yellowknife Mines as the American Stock Exchange volume leader, down 3/4 at 14 1/2. The company reported lower third-quarter earnings on Monday.

RALEIGH (AP)—Early reports from several precincts in North Carolina indicated a light to moderate vote today as the state elected a new U.S. Senator, an attorney general and hundreds of other officials.

Scattered showers were predicted, which might cut into the voter turnout. At mid-morning the weather ranged from cloudy in the west and parts of the Piedmont to sunny in the East.

State Elections Director Alex Brock said only three other persons were in line when he voted in Raleigh about 8 a.m. He said voting in his precinct appeared light.

Charlotte reported that an early survey indicated light to moderate voting.

In Asheville and Buncombe County, a random sampling at mid morning indicated the turnout was heavier than expected.

High Point reported the early voting there was better than anticipated despite some light rain.

In Durham, officials said the voting was about average. A light voter was expected in Durham County even before the weatherman forecast showers.

But in Greensboro voting was reported heavier this morning than in the 1972 presidential election. A check of a half a dozen city and county precincts found that standing in line was not uncommon. One precinct reported it had done as much "vote business" by 9:15 a.m. as it had done by noon in 1972.

At Hickory, a surprising heavy turnout was reported. By 10 a.m. a survey of half of the precincts showed that 15-20 per cent of the county's 47,000 voters had cast their ballots. A light rain seemed to have little effect on the voting and one registrar predicted a 50 per cent turnout.

Early voting also appeared heavy in Burke, Alexander and Caldwell counties in the 10th congressional district despite a light rain. Observers predicted 40-50 per cent of the voters in three counties would ballot.

Apathy and alienation were the accepted reasons for the disinclination to vote in the first elections since the resignations of Vice President Agnew and President Nixon.

Brock predicted that about 35 per cent of the state's 2.3 million eligible voters would go to the polls. That would be less than one fourth of the 3.6 million North Carolinians of voting age.

The motion filed by Calley's lawyers also said that government attorneys handling the Calley prosecution include one of Brown's former law clerks.

Judge Brown and two other 5th Circuit judges, Robert A. Ainsworth Jr. of New Orleans and Homer Thornberry of Austin, Tex., have been pondering the government appeal in the Calley case since Oct. 2.

The appeal was filed after Judge Brown granted an indefinite stay blocking a Sept. 25 ruling by U.S. Dist. Judge J. Robert Elliott of Columbus, Ga., that Calley be released immediately.

Stripped of rank, Calley remains at the Army prison at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., during the legal jousting.

Judge Elliott's ruling, which came after an unusual habeas corpus hearing, said Calley's conviction was unconstitutional due, in part, to massive pretrial publicity that made fair trial impossible.

Fulbright was reported in good condition and a spokesman for his office said the senator probably would be out of the hospital within a week.

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was defeated earlier this year in his bid for re-election and will end his 30-year Senate career in January.

In a recent meeting of the Executive Committee of the Agnes Fullilove School PTA, the scheduled November 7 PTA meeting was cancelled.

Although the actual date for the next meeting has not yet been set, the committee felt that a PTA meeting in December would be favorably accepted by the general body of parents and teachers. When that date has been set, it will be announced.

Dr. Tom Johnson, President of the PTA, heard the Committee discuss school projects which might possibly be undertaken by the association and settled on two: (1) A Teacher Emergency Fund of $450 to include the media center and (2) a beautification program of $100. Final action on these ideas will be taken at the December meeting.

Property as excess and accepting the Garris-Evans bid contingent upon the bidder offering to pay any legal costs involved in the property transaction. The legal costs would involve primarily survey and deed preparation, it was explained.

HUD approval is also needed for the transaction and the Declaration of Trust for the Newtown Project will have to be modified to reflect the change in the legal description of the project.

Laney said that it would probably be approximately 90 days before the property can be advertised for upset bids. He noted that if no bids at or least ten per cent above the Garris-Evans figure are received, the purchase bid will be awarded to the lumber firm.

The parcel adjoins property previously purchased by David Evans for the Housing Authority.

All but four of the Authority's 531 housing units were occupied during October, according to Mrs. Sallye C. Streeter, director of tenant affairs.

She reported that one vacancy existed in N. C. 22-1 (Meadowbrook) and rent averaged $49.81 while all units were rented in N. C. 22-2 (Kearney Park) with a rent average of $54.54. Two vacancies existed in N. C. 22-3 (Moyewood) and rent averaged $51.57, she said, while all units in N. C. 22-4 (Moyewood) were occupied with a rent average of $53.25. All but one unit in N. C. 22-6 (Newtown) were occupied in October and rent there averaged $49.50, Mrs. Streeter reported.

The landscape contractor has completed seeding in Newtown, Laney reported, and the general contractor has begun to plant trees and shrubbery and to clean up the project site. He said that the landscaper guarantees a stand of grass on the site before his contract obligations are fulfilled.

Minor Surgery For Fulbright

PASADENA, Tex. (AP) — Police today charged Ronald Clark O'Bryan, 30, in the trick-or-treat poisoning of his 8-year-old son.

The boy died Thursday night after eating cyanide in candy collected at Halloween.

Police arrested Bryan, an optician who lives in neighboring Deer Park, late Monday night and charged him with murder.

A clerk in the office of Justice of the Peace V. L. West said Bryan was being held in lieu of $100,000 bond.

His son, Timothy M. O'Bryan, died late Thursday night after eating cyanide in a package of powdered candy.

Poison was also found in four other similar candy containers collected by other trick-or-treating youngsters Halloween night.

O'Bryan told police that after his son returned from trick-or-treating with his sister, Elizabeth, 5, and three other youngsters, he ate some candy just before going to bed.

Immediately after eating the candy, he began vomiting, O'Bryan said. The youth died a short time later in a Pasadena hospital.

O'Bryan had accompanied his son and other children on the night of the boy's death.

Pasadena detective Capt. R. E. Rhodes would not elaborate on the arrest.

Calley Asking Judge Bow Out

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Attorneys for William L. Calley Jr. have asked the chief judge of the federal appeals court to step out of the case.

It was the latest move in the fight to free Calley, court-martialed for what became known as the My Lai Massacre and convicted of murdering 22 South Vietnamese civilians.

A motion filed at 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Monday contends that Chief Judge John R. Brown of Houston, Tex., said Calley's court-martial could have been fair and impartial before hearing the former Army lieutenant's arguments that it was not.

The motion filed by Calley's lawyers also said that government attorneys handling the Calley prosecution include one of Brown's former law clerks.

Judge Brown and two other 5th Circuit judges, Robert A. Ainsworth Jr. of New Orleans and Homer Thornberry of Austin, Tex., have been pondering the government appeal in the Calley case since Oct. 2.

Ohio State, Oklahoma Continue To Pace AP's Poll In Football

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Ohio State and Oklahoma continue to run 1-2 in The Associated Press college football rankings this week but Alabama pulled ahead of Michigan into third place while Texas A&M and Florida showed significant gains.

The Buckeyes of Ohio State received 49 first-place votes and 1,212 of a possible 1,240 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters following their eighth consecutive triumph, a 49-7 whipping of Illinois.

Meanwhile, 7-0 Oklahoma turned back Iowa State 28-10 and received 10 first-place ballots and 1,090 points. Ohio State's margin last week was 1,222-1,123.

Alabama put on an impressive performance in trouncing Mississippi State 35-0 and moved up from fourth to third, trading places with Michigan, which was hard-pressed to beat Indiana 21-7. Alabama received two first-place votes and 918 points while Michigan got the other first-place vote and 850 points.

Texas A&M, eighth the last three weeks, climbed to fifth by defeating Arkansas 20-10. Auburn, which had been fifth for three weeks, slipped to 10th following its first defeat of the year, a 25-14 loss to Florida which lifted the Gators from 11th to sixth.

Southern California, which had been sixth, skidded to 11th after being held to a 15-15 deadlock by California.

Penn State defeated Maryland, another ranking team, 24-17 and rose from 10th to seventh. The Nittany Lions edged ahead of Notre Dame's defending national champions, who dropped from seventh to eighth after a hard-fought 14-5 victory over Navy.

Nebraska, a 31-15 victor over Colorado, remained in ninth place, with Auburn rounding out the Top Ten.

Southern Cal headed the Second Ten, followed by Texas, Miami of Ohio, Maryland, Houston, Arizona State, Oklahoma State and California, with Pitt and Texas Tech tied for 19th. Despite its loss to Penn State, Maryland went from 15th to 14th. The Terrapins' three defeats have been at the hands of Top Ten teams.

Last week's Second Ten consisted of Florida, Texas, Texas Tech, Arizona State, Maryland, Miami, Mississippi State, UCLA and Temple with San Diego State and Wisconsin tied for 20th.

The Top Twenty, with first-place votes in parentheses, season record and total points. Points tabulated on basis of 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-etc.:

Newsmen Feel Fight Good One

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — "It was a dump — it had to be a dump," said the man behind the counter in the stationery store.

"Something fishy," said Sam the cab-driver, dropping the meter. "No way Ali could knock out that man — no way."

"Foreman threw it, he didn't try," the Madison Avenue executive told his seat companions on the Long Island Railroad's Hempstead Line.

To those who made the safari last week to Kinshasa, Zaire, and witnessed Muhammad Ali's eighth round knockout of George Foreman, the greatest surprise upon coming home was to learn how many people were left with suspicions and doubts.

Many of those who saw the fight on the closed circuit TV screens contended that Foreman was belting Ali all over the ring until that climactic moment when a sharp left followed by a right sent Foreman crashing to the canvas to take the full count of 10.

The scores of newsmen who witnessed the historic event from ringside were astounded at this appraisal. Almost to the man, they agreed it was a terrific fight. Ali was cleanly the winner. There was no reason for suspicion.

"I have found fighters to be atrocious actors," commented Norman Mailer, the author who covered the scene for Playboy Magazine. "No fighter can feign a collapse without giving himself away."

"I thought it was a hell of a fight — the best first round I have ever seen."

The fight proved one thing. It is impossible to judge a fight accurately on a two-dimensional TV screen. A spectator several rows from the action also can get a warped view.

Only the referee, the judges at ringside and newsmen within a few feet of the action get a real perspective and it is possible for some of them to miss a vital blow here and there.

The TV screen doesn't record the full impact of the blows, the immediate impact on the man he hit or the damage dealt. You get this only from the closest range.

Thu, the TV skeptics should accept the verdicts of those on the scene, who were almost unanimous in the opinion that Ali not only won the fight on superior skill, speed and cunning but also carried a majority of the seven rounds fought to conclusion. Most, including the two judges and the referee, gave Foreman no more than one round.

It was a case of Ali, after whipping himself into superb condition, mesmerizing his big, lumbering but dangerous foe by playing the ropes, permitting Foreman to whale away fruitlessly until the strength was gone from his legs and arms and then delivering the soporific clincher.

Foreman Asks Probe

PARIS (AP) — Former world heavyweight boxing champion George Foreman cried "foul" again, citing three irregularities that he said accounted for his loss to new titleholder Muhammad Ali last week.

After viewing films Monday for the first time of his eight-round knockout loss to Ali in Kinshasa, Zaire last Wednesday, Foreman, accused Ali's handlers of loosening the ropes and padding the canvas. In addition, he claimed he was the victim of a fast count.

"I'm not making excuses for my loss, or for the tactical mistakes," Foreman told a news conference. "There were just things that happened because Zaire is an inexperienced country that had never had a championship fight before or dealt with pros like Ali's people."

Foreman asked for a probe to investigate his claims.

"I'm not asking for anyone to give me my title back," Foreman said during a stopover here. "But I feel there should be a probe into what happened."

Kickers Take Win

ROCKY MOUNT—East Carolina University's soccer team closed out the 1974 season yesterday with a 5-1 victory over N.C. Wesleyan.

The victory gave the Pirates a 7-4 record for the season, their first winning season ever in the sport.

Jeff Kunkler led the Pirate attack, scoring the final three goals of the game for the Bucs. Tom Tozer scored the first, while Pete Angus got the second on a penalty kick.

The lone N.C. Wesleyan goal was scored by Lewis.

The Bucs closed the year ranked 10th in the South, tied with Appalachian State University.

Parker Leading National Punts

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — "I'm just trying to put the other team in the hole—there aren't many teams that can drive 80 yards without fumbling or throwing an interception," says the nation's leading college football punter.

He is Joe Parker of Appalachian State University, who is averaging 44.3 yards on 56 kicks.

The best ever for the former quarterback, a Denmark, S.C., resident, was a 71-yarder against Western Carolina. He boomed six kicks for an average of 48.8 yards in the Mountaineers' 27-3 victory over Furman last week.

The closest rivals for the 6-1, 185-pound sophomore are Joe Marion of Wyoming and Neil Clabo of Tennessee, both in the 43-yard range.

Of the coffin-corner kick, Parker says, "I just try to get it inside the 15. You can't try to kick out of bounds on the one or the two."

Parker says that when he is kicking, opposing teams will either "come with an all-out rush or hold our people to set up a return. I try to kick it a lot further when they're rushing. And when they're holding up, I try to kick it a little higher."

"I've had two blocked this year, one against East Tennessee and one against East Carolina. I had to kick out of the end zone one time, against Tennessee Tech. I don't want to tell you what happened. They got a return for a touchdown."

Sometimes a punter is relieved to get a kick away at all.

Parker recalls that "last year, against Florence (Ala.) State, it was raining that night, and we played on a grass field. My left foot slipped out from under me, and I kicked the ball sitting on the ground."

Appalachian is 5-4 with 12 sophomores and three freshmen in starting roles. Parker says that in both remaining games "field position is going to play a big part. Against South Carolina, if we can keep them inside their 20-yard line when they start, I think we have a good chance of beating them. And the same way with Richmond."

"I just try to kick the ball the same way every time," Parker says. Coach Sasser (Buddy Sasser, an assistant) tells me it's not how strong your leg is, but your timing. All football players have strong legs. I've just done it since I was a kid. My father was my high school coach, and he had a lot to do with it.

My center, Reid Squires, has been doing a super job. He hasn't given me a bad snap yet."

Punter Top S.C. Player

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — Defensive end Mike Copley of the University of Richmond was named Southern Conference defensive player of the week today.

Copley, a freshman from Portsmouth, made nine individual tackles, had five assists and made the key interception that gave the Spiders a 17-14 conference win over Virginia Military Institute Saturday.

Runner-up for defensive player honors was noseguard Fred Snipes of Appalachian State.

Joe Parker, Appalachian's sophomore punter, was selected offensive player of the week Monday. Parker averaged 48 yards on six punts Saturday as the Mountaineers upset Furman 27-3. Parker, the nation's punting leader, is averaging 44 yards per punt this season.

Rams Nip 49ers By 15-13

By ERIC PREWITT
AP Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams' defense stopped San Francisco's running attack virtually all the time, and linebacker Isiah Robertson stopped new 49er quarterback Norm Snead just in time.

"We played well enough to win, and that's all we're trying to do — win," said Rams' quarterback James Harris after Monday night's 15-13 National Football League victory.

But he admitted that Snead and the 49ers "scared us to death in the second half."

The 49ers went down passing as they suffered their sixth consecutive defeat this year and their ninth straight loss to the Rams. Running backs Wilbur Jackson and Larry Schreiber totaled just 40 yards rushing.

Robertson was awarded the game ball, the one he'd grabbed while intercepting a Snead pass at midfield with 4:09 left in the nationally televised game. The 35-year-old Snead, in his debut with the 49ers, had tossed a 39-yard touchdown pass to Gene Washington a few minutes earlier to cut Los Angeles' lead to two points.

After the interception, the Rams' offense killed the clock, moving inside the 49ers' five-yard line before the game ended.

"Jim Harris did a fine job running the offense at the end of the game when we had to suck it up and control the football," said Coach Chuck Knox of the Rams. "That was a good win for us."

The victory made the Rams 6-2 and gave them a stranglehold on the National Conference's Western Division race, with second-place New Orleans standing 3-5. The 49ers and Atlanta Falcons share last place with 2-6 records.

Harris had his moments earlier in the game, too, including a 23-yard touchdown pass to tight end Bob Klein which gave the Rams a 12-0 lead in the second period. The 27-year-old Grambling product who took over two weeks ago for John Hadl — now with Green Bay — completed 12 of 20 passes for 150 yards.

But placekicker David Ray, 0-for-2 on extra point tries against the 49ers, provided the points which ultimately made the difference when he booted a 20-yard field goal early in the fourth period to give the Rams a 15-6 lead.

The 49ers had closed the gap to 12-6 on a pair of field goals by Bruce Gossett, who also had a third-quarter attempt blocked.

Snead, traded by the New York Giants the same day Hadl left Los Angeles, replaced rookie quarterback Tom Owen at the start of the second half and completed 11 of 17 passes for 149 yards against the Rams' defense and the always tricky Candlestick Park winds.

"It was second and 20, and we needed more than two yards by Snead," he said.

The Rams' defensive front four, with a conference-high 28 sacks this season, got to Owen three times and forced him into a fumble which set up Harris' touchdown pass. Los Angeles drove 80 yards for its first touchdown with Tony Baker scoring on a one-yard run.

Spiders Had Some New Faces For VMI Game

By The Associated Press

It's out of the frying pan and into the fire for Richmond's Spiders in their bid for the Southern Conference football championship, and Coach Jim Tait wouldn't have it any other way—well, maybe not.

The Spiders, perhaps with some momentum after last weekend's 17-14 victory over Virginia Military's league-leading Keydets, play host Saturday to East Carolina's two-time defending champion Pirates.

"I think we can get up for the game because they're the champions," says Tait. "If you want to be the champion, that's what you've got to do."

At the same time, Tait—who has seen Richmond become a conference power in his eight years as an assistant coach and in this, his first season as head coach—admits, "I wish we could find somebody else."

It didn't look as if the Spiders would have that trouble when they opened with three straight victories, even though they were forced to come from behind in each game.

But then came successive defeats by Furman, Ball State and Virginia Tech, and in the last two cases the Spiders were overpowered by teams with which they had figured to be on a par.

That forced Tait into some changes, especially on defense, for the game with VMI. He started three freshmen on the right side and got a spectacular performance from the trio.

"We were worried about that, but it worked out all right. They gave a heckuva effort," Tait says.

John Palazeti, who had been moved to the defensive unit after playing two years on offense, went back to the offensive backfield against the Keydets.

"We thought we needed Palazeti in the backfield to take some pressure off (George) Crossman, and he did a good job," Tait says. He also was pleased with the running of Ed Kreilis, who had been injured early in the year.

As for VMI, Tait says, "We beat a very good football team. I don't think they're a fluke at all."

But now it's East Carolina, which Tait says "is the dominant power in our conference right now. We have to win this one. Everyone I've talked to says East Carolina is for real."

Both teams will carry 2-1 conference records into the meeting, and a loss for either could be fatal, although there's still a chance of a three-way tie among VMI, East Carolina and Richmond. All could wind up with 4-2 records.

For that to happen, Richmond must knock off Appalachian State's Mountaineers next week. The Mountaineers are 3-1 in league play with just that one game remaining.

"We're not a bad football team, but East Carolina is a fine football team," says Tait. "They've dominated the conference the last three years the way we did for several years."

That's a domination Tait and the Spiders would like to have come back their way, beginning Saturday.

Contest Winners

Stephen Woodward of 107 Oxford Road, Greenville, is the winner of this week's Daily Reflector Football Contest.

Woodward correctly picked the winners in 27 of the 32 games listed in last week's Reflector.

Second place went to Karl Wuensch of 1900 S. Charles St., Apt. 11-C, Greenville, who had 26 right. Two other people also had 26 right, but were further off the point total of 76. Wuensch had a guess of 71 points.

The tie between Southern California and California was counted wrong on all ballots since it is possible to pick a tie.

This week's new contest appears on the following pages.

Claims Teams Set For Sugar

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — It will be Florida and Nebraska in the Sugar Bowl for the Dec. 31 football classic, it was reported today.

The New Orleans Times-Picayune said in today's editions it learned of the line-up from an unimpeachable source.

The major bowls have a gentlemen's agreement not to announce competing teams until Nov. 16 although there is no official rule against earlier disclosure.

Florida is now 7-1-0 this season. The Gators played once before in the Sugar Bowl, losing 20-18 to Missouri in 1966.

Nebraska is 6-2-0. The Cornhuskers played in the Sugar in 1967 and lost to Alabama 34-7.

Reports Monday indicated that officials of Notre Dame and Alabama would vote this week to go to the Orange Bowl in Miami. The two met in the Sugar Bowl last year, and the Irish won 24-23.

Joe Katz, executive director of the Sugar Bowl, challenged the reports of an Irish-Tide Orange Bowl match.

"For all they know," Katz said, referring to the Orange Bowl, "the teams may be meeting and making a decision to come back and repeat in the Sugar Bowl."

He said Sugar Bowl scouts would be looking at Alabama, Auburn, Florida, Nebraska and Penn State this weekend, and "if we felt any of these teams were worthy, we wouldn't be sending people to the games."

"Unless something happens in the next 48 to 72 hours, say, that the schools tell us they're going to the Orange Bowl, then we're still in the running. We wouldn't be spending our time and effort if this story were so."

WEEKLY PRIZES

$15.00

2nd PRIZE

$10.00

CONTEST RULES

1. Thirty-two football games are placed in the ads on these pages. Pick the winner of each game (not the score) and write the team name opposite the advertiser's name on the entry blank. The entrant picking the most correct winners each week will be awarded $15.00. Second place $10.00.
2. Pick a number which you think will be the most number of points scored by both teams in any one of the week's games listed and write your answer in the space provided on the entry blank. This will be used to break ties. In the event of a further tie the money will be equally divided between the winning entrants.
3. Only one entry per week per person. The contest is open to all except employees of The Daily Reflector and their immediate families.
4. Entries must be in The Daily Reflector office not later than 5:00 p.m. Friday or post marked not later than Friday p.m. Address entries to: "FOOTBALL CONTEST", P.O. Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. (Reasonable Facsimiles also accepted)

Biggest Spenders? McGovern, Cranston

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Alan Cranston clung to a slim lead today over Sen. George McGovern for the distinction of running the most expensive Senate campaign of the year, with both men's spending topping $1 million.

A tabulation of recent campaign spending reports also shows that former astronaut John Glenn, running for the Senate in Ohio, topped the $1-million mark by the start of today's balloting.

The public-interest group Common Cause prepared the tabulation from the most recent wave of campaign spending reports, which piled up over the weekend and which cover the period up until 12 days ago — Oct. 24.

The Common Cause tally shows Cranston, a Democrat seeking re-election over fairly light opposition in California, leading with $1.27 million raised and $1.11 million spent.

McGovern trails only slightly behind with $1.10 million raised and $1.03 million spent. McGovern failed to carry his home state of South Dakota as the Democratic nominee for president two years ago, and this year faces a challenge for re-election to the Senate from a former prisoner of war, Leo Thorsness.

McGovern's spending is about double that of Thorsness' and amounts to about $1.67 for every man, woman and child in his thinly populated state. It is about four times what he could legally spend under the new federal campaign law, which doesn't go into effect until Jan. 1. The new law would limit McGovern, and other Senate candidates from sparsely populated states, to $100,000 in the primary and $150,000 in the general election, plus 20 per cent more for fund-raising costs.

Glenn is running in heavily populated Ohio, and spent a lot in a stiff primary campaign in which he unseated incumbent Sen. Howard Metzenbaum for the Democratic nomination. Glenn raised $968,206 by the end of the last reporting period, which ended before the most expensive days of the campaign. By now he certainly has exceeded $1 million in total spending.

Neither Glenn nor Cranston have approached the spending limits in the new law. Cranston would be allowed about $1.7 million in the general election alone. The formula allows Senate candidates to spend 8 cents in the primary and 12 cents in the general election for every voting-age resident of the state.

unless this would allow them more than the $100,000 and $150,000 minimum limits.

Voters will have to wait until next year to learn the final outcome of this year's big-spender competition. The next batch of campaign finance reports aren't due until Jan. 31, 1975. But there are indications that heavy spending and big donations continued right up until today's balloting.

Radio Journalist From Chile Appearing Here

Gabor Torey, the young General Manager of the National Radio of Chile, will be in Greenville on a three-day tour and series of appearances on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

The 32-year-old prize winning newspaper and radio journalist is visiting the United States under the auspices of the International Visitor program of the Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs of the State Department.

Torey will be accompanied by his wife and by Mrs. Francisco Baraona. Host for his local visit is William R. Harmon, Station Manager of Voice of America.

Born in Budapest, Hungary, Torey also holds the position of Government of Chile delegate of National Radio Chile. A graduate of the University of Journalism, Torey was wire services news editor for the newspaper, Daily La Prensa, and was reporter-commentator for Radios Minería. In 1971 he was awarded a national prize for radio journalism.

In addition to Spanish, Torey speaks English, French, Hungarian and Russian. The Toreys have four children.

This is Torey's second visit to the U.S. He was in America before on a short visit in 1968.

The tour here will mark Torey's first contact with a smaller, rural community. Other legs of Torey's American visit have included time in Washington, D. C., New York and Chicago. In Washington he was a guest of the National Press Club. In New York he visited Columbia University and at Chicago the University of Chicago. He has observed both Republican and Democratic Party gatherings.

Several appearances have tentatively been scheduled for Torey in Greenville, including a tour of the town, meetings with television, radio and newspaper representatives, and possibly a visit to the joint public affairs (press) division at Cherry Point and a tour of Tryon Palace.

On Wednesday evening, Chancellor Leo Jenkins is hosting a reception for Torey and his party. In campus appearances, Torey is scheduled to speak to a journalism class and on Thursday afternoon plans are for him to talk informally in a discussion gathering. This later event is scheduled for 3 p.m. Thursday in Room B102, Brewster Building (The Social Studies Building on East Tenth Street). On this occasion, interested persons from the community are invited to attend.

Torey will leave Greenville early Saturday morning.

City Drops Ticket Case

SEATTLE (AP) — After it cost taxpayers at least $1,300 in court costs, the city apparently is conceding defeat in a battle over a $5 traffic ticket.

The case began over a year ago when Gordon Grimlund was cited by police for going through a stop sign. Grimlund said he was innocent, and went to trial in Municipal Court.

He lost that battle, but appealed the conviction to Superior Court. A 12-member jury was empaneled to hear the criminal case last May.

A unanimous verdict was required. But the jury, after nine hours of deliberation, voted 7 to 5 to acquit.

The city then called for another 12-member jury to be empaneled.

Brief — and now familiar — testimony was given by Grimlund and the arresting officers. The jury retired and several hours later reported the verdict: 9 to 3 for acquittal.

To forestall another trial, another jury and further expenditures, Superior Court Judge Frank Eberharter suggested the charges be dismissed, providing Grimlund maintains a clean traffic record for three months.

The city agreed and drafted such a court order, which Eberharter is scheduled to sign today.

Alumnus Is Old Hoax

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP) — Bill Edwards, whose name and image are enshrined in a memorial at Davidson College, will be dropped from the alumni rolls of his alma mater. It seems he never existed.

The storied young bachelor, whose exploits appeared for a decade in the college alumni bulletin, was a hoax perpetrated by members of the Class of 1953.

Over the years, the alumni bulletin reported Edwards as a "real estate pioneer" in Metuchen, N.J., and a researcher on "the zero gravity platform" in Singapore.

In 1973, it was reported that he had died mysteriously while investigating a drug ring operating between Hong Kong and Metuchen. Classmates contributed some $20,000 to the college's new library and a bronze plaque and photo of Edwards were mounted on the memorial book-drop, which was dedicated last month.

On Monday, members of the class said the reports were arranged from Metuchen by a classmate who lived there. The photo was of a former Navy buddy of one of the hoaxers.

Giving Program Of Folk Dances

Purna Kapadia of Bombay, India, will present a program of Indian folk dances at East Carolina University tonight.

She will appear in the Dance Studio, room 109, Drama Building (old Wahl-Coats School) on Fifth Street at seven o'clock.

Ms. Kapadia, a first year law student in Bombay, has studied dance for several years. Her program will demonstrate traditional Indian dance techniques and include representative dances from different states in her country.

John N. Miller, Presbyterian campus minister for ECU and host for Ms. Kapadia's visit in Greenville, extends an invitation to the public to attend the program.

'At Home' On Lunar Surface

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A Charlotte-born astronaut who became the 10th man to walk on the moon said he "felt right at home" on the lunar surface.

"Though the moon's environment was rather extreme, I felt right at home," said Charles Duke, lunar module pilot of the Apollo 16 mission.

Duke, who was formerly of Lancaster, S.C., was in Charlotte on Monday for a seminar on national security.

NEW MARSHAL
WASHINGTON (AP)—James R. Durham Sr. of Raleigh, N.C. has been appointed U.S. marshal for the eastern district of North Carolina.

SENTENCED—Judith Ward, 25, of Stockport, England, was sentenced Monday for her involvement in the bombing of a military motor coach in February 1974 which claimed the lives of 12 persons. The IRA member received 12 life sentences to run concurrently for the murders and 20 years in prison for the explosion. (AP Wirephoto)

YOU KNOW WHAT I MISS MARGIE? I MISS NOT HAVING A SKATING MOTHER!

SKATING MOTHERS ARE LIKE STAGE MOTHERS AND SWIMMING MOTHERS...

THEY GRUMBLE AND COMPLAIN AND GOSSIP AND FUSS, BUT YOU SURE NEED THEM!

HOW DO THEY GET THAT WAY, SIR? EARLY RISING AND TOO MUCH COFFEE!

WHO'S LEADING? NOBODY! NOBODY VOTED!

WHAT DO WE DO NOW? I GUESS WE REVERT TO OUR OLD SYSTEM OF GOVERNMENT.

THERE MUST BE A BETTER SYSTEM THAN "SIMON SAYS."
