

Friday Presenting Med School Plans

CHAPEL HILL—William Friday, president of the University of North Carolina has scheduled to present plans for expanding the one-year East Carolina University medical school to members of the UNC Board of Governors at a 1:30 p.m. meeting here today.

The plans were expected to be along the lines of a regular two-year medical school, although Friday would not reveal what his report contained prior to the afternoon session.

He said "I do have the report from Dr. (Christopher) Fordham, but I'm making my own report, drawn out of that... and other conversations."

Friday said he met with representatives of the Board of Governors and trustees of ECU in Raleigh yesterday.

"I found the meeting constructive, and I will make what I consider clear and positive recommendations at the joint session this afternoon."

Fordham, dean of the UNC Medical School at Chapel Hill was named by Friday earlier this year, to plan for expansion of the ECU medical school.

The 1974 General Assembly

authorized expansion of the school from one to two years, and approved doubling the size of classes at ECU.

In September, Fordham revealed tentative plans for an unorthodox two-year program at ECU, which ECU backers voiced strong opposition to.

The Fordham plan, ECU supporters said, did not include a traditional program for second-year medical students. They considered the 1974 legislative mandate for expansion would not be satisfied unless a more traditional sophomore year was added.

Later, Dr. Fordham said that UNC planners "haven't gotten much interest" in the unorthodox proposal and indicated that a more traditional sophomore year was being eyed.

Three Doctors To Check On Nixon

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica said today he will appoint a team of three doctors to examine Richard M. Nixon and recommend whether the former president will be healthy enough to testify at the Water-gate cover-up trial.

The judge said he hoped to choose the panel, including a heart specialist and an internal medicine specialist, by next week.

Sirica acted on a formal motion from lawyers for defendant John D. Ehrlichman, who has subpoenaed Nixon.

One of the Ehrlichman lawyers, William Frates, said Sirica already has a list of "really great doctors who have all agreed to do this."

On Thursday, Nixon's lawyer, Herbert J. Miller Jr., reported to Sirica that Nixon would be unable to do anything as strenuous as answer questions in a criminal trial for at least two to three months.

Asked by Sirica to comment on the plan for an independent medical inquiry into Nixon's health, Associate Special Prosecutor James F. Neal said that while he would not resist, the prosecution does not require the former president's testimony.

"We don't even concede that Mr. Nixon is a necessary witness for any of the defendants," Neal said.

At one point, it appeared that Nixon would be required to authenticate 26 White House tapes the prosecution plans to play for the jury starting next week. At that time, it was the prosecutors who first recommended that Sirica conduct his own inquiry into Nixon's fitness to testify.

Sirica said Thursday he may allow Nixon to be cross-examined at his San Clemente, Calif., estate after the former president is well enough to answer questions about the cover-up. A videotape of his testimony would be played for the jury.

Sirica said then he believes he could permit videotaped testimony by Nixon without creating a circus atmosphere. It's possible that images of Nixon and H. R. Haldeman, another defendant, will be flashed on a screen at the courtroom sometime during the trial.

Lawyers familiar with the practice say the use of videotaped testimony is becoming common in courts in a number of states, especially California.

The only testimony Thursday was given by former White House lobbyist Powell Moore.

Misdemeanor

CHARLOTTE (AP)— Sheriff Don Stahl says that when he fired a deputy for voting against him, he didn't know of a law which could imprison him for up to two years for this.

The deputy, Everett "Sam" McCollum, 29, conferred with a lawyer Thursday. But he refused, on the lawyer's advice, to say whether he would press charges against Stahl, a Republican who was elected Tuesday to a third four-year term. McCollum acknowledged he had voted Democratic.

The law, North Carolina General Statute 163-271, makes it a misdemeanor for a public officeholder to fire a person because of the way he voted.

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day, but the phone service is available 24 hours a day.

NEW INSPECTION REQUIRED

About a week ago a rock flew up and broke my windshield. I had just had my car inspected, and now I'm told I must get it done again. Is this true? D.S.

Yes, it is true, according to Inspector G. L. Beppard of the Greenville Motor Vehicles Inspections Office. He said this state ruling was made because of the "red tape" involved for both the car owner and the Motor Vehicles Department in verifying and issuing a duplicate inspection sticker. We're sorry the timing is so unfortunate for you.

SEWAGE SERVICE—WHEN?

I live in the Lake Glenwood Subdivision. We have had a lot of septic tank problems, and I hear there are the same problems in Cherry Oaks, Brook Valley, and Oakhurst. Is there any hope of getting sewage service to these subdivisions in the near future? W.C.

Greenville Utilities Director Charles Horne said, "We have preliminary plans for extending in this direction, and sewer studies have been prepared for the Hardee's Creek Watershed area that includes these subdivisions plus Tuckahoe. The approximate cost would be $2 million. The question is where can we secure funds for such an extension. It would be a severe financial burden for each property owner involved I'm afraid."

TAPE A YEAR OVERDUE

I sent a check for a tape called "At the Hop" to Channel 12, New Bern, over a year ago. I received my canceled check long ago, but no tape yet. Mrs. M.E.

In numerous transactions, WCTI has been completely cooperative with Hotline. We contacted Mrs. Edna Brinson, who in turn contacted the company in New York, which sponsors the offer. You got your tape in less than two weeks, you report. Anyone having a complaint concerning a special offer made through Channel 12 is asked to contact Mrs. Brinson, she said.

SEEKING A TANNER

I'd like to contact a tanner. I'm tired of setting my coconut pies on top of a deer hide in my refrigerator. Mrs. C. M.

"One of the closest and best ones I know is Pelletier Taxidermy of Rt. 2, Box 81-A, Stantonsburg, three miles south of Stantonsburg on Highway 58," Freddie Stokes of Hodges Hardware here said.

High Point Teacher Is N.C. Teacher Of Year

RALEIGH — Herman Lee Forbes, a High Point sixth grade teacher, will represent North Carolina in National Teacher of the Year competition next year.

Forbes was selected as Teacher of the Year for 1975 Thursday at a meeting of the State Board of Education.

The 57-year-old educator won the honor in competition with teachers from each of North Carolina's 149 school systems.

The selection was announced by Dr. Craig Phillips, state superintendent of Public Instruction.

Forbes, who teaches at the Parkview Village Elementary School in High Point, commented in regard to teaching that "the education of children should be directed at helping them develop their abilities to the maximum, so that they can think and act for the good of themselves, the group, society and the world."

After graduating from Shaw

University at Raleigh, Forbes began teaching at Sampson County Training School. He entered the U.S. Army in 1942 and after his discharge in 1946 began teaching in High Point.

Forbes majored in biology and general science at Shaw University as well as serving as accompanist to the Shaw University Chorus. He also holds a masters degree in elementary education from the University of Michigan.

City Is 'Committed' To Improvements Projects

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

A resolution committing the city to provide off-site improvements for a proposed new housing project in north Greenville was approved Thursday night by the City Council.

A commitment to provide storm drains, paved streets and sidewalks for all streets bounded the project site and all streets necessary to provide project access was necessary to assure the Department of Housing and Urban Development of the city's intent to fulfill its share of the city-Housing-Authority agreement.

The proposed Housing Authority project, calling for development of 122 new units of low renting housing, would be developed on a 23-acre site located southeast of the present Meadowbrook housing project, provided the Authority is successful in obtaining the site.

Joe Laney, executive director of the Housing Authority, explained to the Council that work is expected soon from HUD on the execution of the Annual Contributions Contract for the N.C. 22-5 project which will authorize the Authority funds to proceed with the property purchase.

Laney noted that following the acquisition of the property, which will be through condemnation proceedings, the Authority will propose rezoning for portions of the site before the Planning and Zoning Commission and Council.

The Utilities Commission, at its meeting in May, approved the extension of water and sewer facilities, along with natural gas and electric service to the proposed Meadowbrook housing area.

All interior streets in the project area will be provided by the Housing Authority and following completion will be dedicated to the city.

The city's commitment is contingent upon the acquisition and development of the property for the housing site.

The development program for the new project is currently being processed by HUD and the Housing Authority expects some word on the Annual Contributions Contract soon.

The Council approved a bid of $26,802.76 submitted by National Cash Register Co. for new electronic equipment for the accounting section.

The NCR bid, although higher than the $26,015.40 offer for the equipment submitted by the Burroughs Corp., was approved following a lengthy discussion because of the backup capabilities of the NCR equipment in regard to the Utilities Commission's accounting machine.

City Manager Bill Carstarphen contended that although both pieces of equipment offered by NCR and Burroughs Corp. would perform the necessary accounting functions, the factor of having NCR equipment at city hall and at the Utilities Commission site would provide a backup in case of breakdown of either machine.

Both machines meet the specifications sought by the city and both NCR and Burroughs Corp. indicated that they could program the equipment to meet city needs, Carstarphen reported.

He said that the bids submitted by both firms included the total equipment package and involved not only the physical equipment but the software or programming aspects.

Carlton Taylor, a representative of the Burroughs Corp., petitioned the Council following the bid rejection to reconsider the Burroughs offer on the basis that it was the low bid and that all of the specifications stipulated by the city in seeking bids were met.

Taylor told the Council that his firm received the invitation to bid on the equipment in all seriousness and a great deal of time and effort was spent in preparing the bid. The representative noted that his firm also offers local servicing.

Voting on the motion to approved the NCR bid was not unanimous as Council members Percy Cox and John Howard voted in favor of a substitute motion to award the low bid.

No further action was taken following Taylor's petition to gain reconsideration for the Burroughs Corp. bid so the NCR bid approval stood.

Judge Acquits Eight

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — U.S. Dist. Judge Frank J. Battisti granted today a motion for acquittal of eight former Ohio National Guardsmen indicted in the 1970 Kent State shootings.

Battisti said the evidence at the conclusion of the government's case was not sufficient to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendants had a specific intent to deprive anyone of their civil rights.

He said, "We're not dealing with grossly negligent discharge of weapons, we're not dealing with the intention to wound or maim, but only with specific intention to deprive one of certain rights."

He told the jury that "at the start of this trial I told you that you would decide certain facts, but at the conclusion of the government's case there are no facts to be decided by you."

Moving Up

The current Pitt United Fund drive has reached some 75 per cent of the total goal, according to overall campaign chairman Hugh Bazemore.

Bazemore said that contributions and pledges on hand now total $146,394 as the fund drive pushes toward the campaign goal of $196,643.

The chairman cited the Industrial Division for its work during the UF drive and he noted that the division is the first segment of the United Fund to reach and surpass its goal. The division has a 1975 goal of $90,000 and that figure has already been topped, Bazemore added.

He urged the other divisions, particularly the county segment, to step up solicitation efforts. The official added that the County Division is far behind in its solicitation time schedule.

"I want to encourage all people who haven't returned their pledge cards to please get it done," Bazemore noted.

Nov. 20 has been tentatively picked as the close-out date for the current drive, he said.

Ready-Made Clothes Affect Vienna Tailors

By WERNER VOLLMANN
Associated Press Writer
VIENNA (AP)—Tailors are a vanishing breed in Vienna, where Archdukes and other nobility were once counted among the best-dressed of the world. Only a generation ago suits and dresses were worn for years, and in many cases were handed down to sons and daughters. This is no longer the case. Aduard Kastner, chairman of Vienna's dwindling tailors' guild, said that in today's throw-it-away society suits and dresses are worn for a fairly short time, partly for reasons of fashion. Ready-made clothes are answer to this trend. Kastner said only 18 boys in Vienna out of a population of 1.7 million have started as tailor apprentices in the past three years. The number of tailor shops has also drastically declined. Vienna had 16,922 such shops in 1925, but only 3,949 in 1963 and only 1,712 a year ago. The trend was somewhat similar in the rural provinces. The young especially like to shop in large department stores. Ready-made clothes can be altered to fit reasonably well in a short time while a tailor needs about 35 hours to make an overcoat. Reflecting the changing times, young boys clamor for apprenticeships as car mechanics. "This is a trend which has been going on for quite a few years," said Dr. Hedwig Wehls of the District Employment Service. Forty-seven per cent of the boys taking up apprenticeship go into the metal-working branch. Retail trade apprenticeships are second on the list of preferred jobs, but here only 11 per cent applied. Another trend is toward white collar jobs. An employee in Austria can be either a white collar worker, a skilled worker or a laborer. Skilled workers and laborers (Arbeiter) often make more money than white collar workers (Angestellte), but tend to feel inferior nevertheless. As a result, a number of firms offer white collar status to workers in order to fill vacancies. In some cases it may mean social advantages such as longer holidays, more sick benefits, etc., despite the fact that strong unions often more than compensated for this, giving workers a better income. The only advantage thus seems the status symbol. The Working Group of Social Research—a group close to Austria's ruling Socialists—after an inquiry said "manual skilled labor encountered a great loss of prestige." The "fascination," especially for younger people, was with desk jobs, which they felt offered more prestige and meant less hard work. Of 862 persons polled in a survey, 86 per cent thought a skilled worker had more trade experience and quicker wits, but 71 per cent also said a clerical employe had more prestige, and 93 per cent thought he had the softer job.

Tomato Sauces
Chances are you have a special tomato sauce for making spaghetti, lasagna, ravioli or another favorite pasta dish. No matter how you make that sauce, you may find it useful to know the differences between canned tomato sauce, puree and paste. All three are made from the pulp and juice of red, ripe tomatoes. The pulp and juice are cooked in equipment designed to remove some of the water and make the product more concentrated. The more concentrated it is, the more the product costs per ounce—but the less you need to use. Tomato paste is the most concentrated of the three products and salt is the only seasoning added to it. You must add water to make your sauce, and of course, whatever seasonings you like. Tomato puree is less concentrated than tomato paste and salt is the only seasoning allowed. Unless the label says otherwise, you can use tomato puree without adding water. Tomato sauce is the least concentrated of the three. It is flavored with sugar, salt, vinegar and spices. Manufacturers add differing amounts of spices or seasoning, so you may do well to check the label to see what the sauce contains. There are standards of quality for all three of these products—tomato paste—tomato puree—and tomato sauce. The best quality ones are labeled "U.S. Grade A" or "Fancy." Lower quality products don't look or taste quite as good, but they are thrifty buys.

Besides being low in calories—pears are generous in flavor. In fact, the Greek poet, Homer, is said to have described pears as the Gift of the Gods. Pears don't need dressing up. Serve them fresh at any meal, for dessert or as a snack. Or, for a change of pace—you may wish to try one of these ideas: Cut pears up into a fresh fruit salad. Or try serving a fresh pear topped with grated cheese or cottage cheese. Pears and cheese go great together. Or, if you don't mind spending a little time in preparation—try baking pears. Glaze them like apples and use them with meat—especially pork. Or fix a pear crisp for a change. For a special treat, serve it warm or cold, topped with whipped cream. Fresh Bartlett pears are delicious—in salads, desserts and garnishes. And they'll be plentiful in the market during the next few weeks. So why not make use of this Gift of the Gods?

are increasingly popular—but the traditional fries are by far still the popular favorite. When buying frozen French fries, look for the grade name on the package. U.S. Grade "A" or U. S. Fancy fries are the very best in color, size, shape and texture. If there is no grade given on the label—and the French fries are in see-through packages, you can check quality yourself. Keep in mind quality fries will be a uniform light color. Pieces will be in uniform in width—but not necessarily in length—and will have few, if any, dark spots or other defects. When heating those French fries, follow the directions on the package carefully. This is especially true when you are using a deep fat fryer. If you have a small deep fat fryer, be sure to cook only a small batch of frozen fries at a time. And let the oil heat up between batches. Low oil temperatures will cause French fries to become soggy and cook improperly. The oven method is the simplest—and probably the most used method of cooking French fries at home. Be sure the oven has reached the proper temperature before putting the fries in it. And here's a final reminder. Serve French fries as soon as possible after preparation.

Loves Her Husband, But Not His Son

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by The Chicago Tribune

DEAR ABBY: I married a man who was married before. Phil has a problem son who is now twelve. I have a daughter and son (9 and 11) by a previous marriage. I'm not saying mine are angels, but they respect me and have never been a discipline problem. Phil addresses them, and they love him, too. Phil and I have had this son of his every weekend and every holiday. He is a difficult child. He lies and steals and I'm afraid he will be a bad influence on my children. Now Phil wants legal custody of his son so the boy can live here with us. Phil's ex will agree gladly because she can't handle him. Abby, if that boy lives here he will ruin my marriage. Try as I do, I can't even like him, much less love him. When Phil married me he didn't tell me I'd have to take his son. Phil is pleading with me. He says he'll have the boy counseled. I am torn. I love Phil, but I don't want that boy living here. Can you help me? TORN

DEAR TORN: Don't battle it out with Phil. Get some counseling to resolve all those hostile feelings about an unfortunate, emotionally insecure (and possibly damaged) 12-year-old boy. The only thing the lad doesn't need is to be placed in a home where another "mother" doesn't want him. He needs a lot of love. Please open up your heart to this boy and give him the same break your children have: TWO parents who love him. It could do wonders for him.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter was married at one of the loveliest weddings this town has even seen. We had everything planned down to the last detail, and nothing was left to chance. Needless to say, it cost us a lot of money, but it was worth it. The morning of the wedding, the minister who was to officiate phoned to say he had FOURTEEN houseguests—his three daughters and their husbands, his mother and dad, and six grandchildren—and could he bring them to the wedding, the reception and dinner as well? We had planned a sitdown dinner after the reception. I couldn't very well tell him he couldn't, so I said yes. Abby, have you ever heard of such nerve? I am still upset about it, and wonder if there was any way to have turned him down politely without making an enemy of him for life. I later learned that two of his daughters were not "visiting" as he said they were. They had recently moved to town. FUMING IN FLORIDA

DEAR FUMING: I can't say whether a negative response would have made an enemy of him for life, but you could have told him that you couldn't accommodate 14 extra.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have a healthy, handsome, little five-year-old son. When people ask us when we're going to get a brother or sister for Joshua, we say: "We don't plan on having any more." (It's true. We happen to think that one is enough.) Well, you should hear some of the remarks we get. "How can you raise a child all alone? You're selfish, you're lazy! You owe it to yourself to try for a girl. A mother isn't really a mother unless she has a daughter. You'll regret it later on!" Our relatives and friends keep pressuring us to change our minds, but we're really very happy with one child. What can we say in our defense? MOTHER OF ONE

DEAR MOTHER: What makes you think you have to say anything? Tell them you don't care to discuss it—then change the subject. Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please. New Arrivals: Varied Backgrounds

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The 89 new House members elected

Tuesday include a gospel music promoter, a house painter, a Catholic priest — and lots of state legislators and local officials.

The 75 Democrats and 14 Republicans include 27 state legislators, three mayors and two judges. Three other Republicans are leading in close races.

The gospel music promoter is W. G. (Bill) Hefner, a Concord, N.C., Democrat. He traveled with the Harvesters gospel singers quartet for years and since has conducted a local religious television program with guest singers.

A feature of his campaign was gospel music concerts, with Hefner telling the audience at the end that he needed first their prayers and second their votes.

The house painter is Edward Beard, a folksy Rhode Island Democrat who has been quoted as saying that if his new congressional office has to be painted "I might just give the boys a hand."

Voters in northeast Wisconsin elected Father Robert Cornell, a Democrat, to become the second Roman Catholic priest in the House, joining Rep. Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass.

Other incoming freshmen include Reps.-elect Leo Zeferetti, D-N.Y., a corrections officer; Gary Myers, R-Pa., a steel company foreman; Lawrence McDonald, D-Ga., a urologist; and Matthew McHugh, D-N.Y., who was Binghamton district attorney for three years.

Voters sent more educators than has been usual to the new Congress, including Texas Democrat Robert Krueger, a Shakespearean scholar and former dean of Duke University.

There are three college professors, two teachers, a school superintendent and a college chaplain.

A manufacturer of well-known fishing tackle, Berkely-Bedell, an Iowa Democrat, also was elected.

Journalist Helen Meyner, the wife of a former governor, was elected in New Jersey and newspaper publisher Stephen Neal unseated one of the House's former star athletes, one-time St. Louis Cardinals pitcher Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell, in North Carolina.

The director of a Ralph Nader-affiliated consumer group, Democrat Anthony Moffett, was elected in Connecticut. Republican Virginia Smith, former director of the American Farm Bureau Federation, appeared to be the winner in a close Nebraska race.

There are three mayors — California Democrats Norman Mineta of San Jose, Jerry Patterson of Santa Ana and Jim Lloyd of West Covina, plus former Republican Cincinnati Mayor Willis Gradison.

There also are four city councilmen, three county commissioners, three county officials, nine lawyers and three businessmen.

Optimists Begin Week Of Youth Appreciation

Beginning Monday and continuing through Sunday, November 17, the Greenville Optimist Club is sponsoring the annual Youth Appreciation Week in America.

First started in North Carolina 20 years ago, the idea of paying tribute to the positive achievements of young people grew rapidly, culminating in recent years by the Congress and the President issuing a public law designating National Youth Appreciation week nationally.

Larry Good, president of the Greenville Optimist Club has announced that activities focusing on young people have been planned for the week of November 11-17.

Plans formulated to date, according to Dr. Jack Thornton, Youth Activities Chairman, include events related to government, religion and education.

On Monday evening, John Miller, president of Rose High Student Government Association (SGA) will be a guest speaker at an Optimist Club dinner to be held at Tom's Restaurant.

Many of the churches throughout Greenville will honor young people — some at services on Sunday, November 10; others during services on Sunday, November 17.

The means of honoring young people will vary. Some churches will feature youth choirs; others will have young people reading scripture verses. In some instances, there will be Scout Courts of Honor; and in some cases, young people will conduct entire services.

On Thursday, November 14, City Manager Bill Carstarphen will be host to the SGA president, to the three Rose High class presidents—Fraeger Sanders, Jr., sophomore class, Clay Shughart, junior class, and Tommy Joe Payne, senior class — and the 18 members of the SGA cabinet.

Carstarphen will take the young people, who will be representing all their peers, on a tour of City Hall and on a visit to the Greenville Utilities. They will also have an opportunity to meet Mayor S. Eugene West.

In recognition of Youth Appreciation Week, Mayor West has signed a proclamation designating the week of November 11-17 as a week of tribute to young people, and has called on citizens on Greenville to join in appropriate observations.

D.H. Conley HIGHLIGHTS

For any interested girl, Conley guys can be seen sporting gym shorts and tee shirts each afternoon in the gym; basketball practice began this week. Any guys could try out for the varsity team, but junior varsity was limited to freshmen or sophomores. Coach Shelly Marsh intends to lead the mighty Vikings through another victorious season.

The Valkyrians have been chosen. The team consists of Rosa Adams, Kathy Allen, Joyce Barnhill, Jenny Buck, Patricia Buck, Juanita Casth, Alice Costin, Kay Dixon, Ella Fleming, Kathy Heath, Darlene Hines, Mary McCracken, Teresa Mills, and Jackie Lilly. With much hard work and determination, along with Coach Janet Claiborne's excellent coaching, the Valkyrians plan to make 1974-75 a winning season.

Visitors at Conley last Friday were shocked at some of the students attire. November 1 was announced as "1950's Day", sponsored by the SCA. Students appeared in white socks, leather jackets, below the knee skirts and bobby socks. Winners were chosen from each class and announced at the pep rally. Friday, Freshman winners were Margie Byrd and Jeff Barwick. Sophomores were Carol Gooding and David Hines. Winners from the junior class were Geneva Mobley and Mike Clendenen. Senior winners were Deborah Mills and Tony Smart. We feel that "1950's Day" was quite a success.

The winning class of the spirit stick that was mentioned in last week's column was the sophomore class. Congratulations, sophomores, for such an outstanding display of spirit!

The first issue of this year's newspaper, THE SHIELD was released to the student body Friday. After hard work and effort, THE SHIELD staff proudly presented this paper. Congratulations to Walter Clark for being voted IPS Student-of-the-Week.

Recently elected officers of the Pep Club are president, Rhea McCracken; vice-president, Donna Caccamise; secretary, Audrey Washington; treasurer, Ronnie Mabry; and publicity chairman, Gloria Bostillo. The Pep Club is doing an excellent job of boosting school spirit. They have a record enrollment of 175 members. Keep up the good work.

Soon Subdued Bolivia Revolt

By HAROLD OLMOS
Associated Press Writer
LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Air and ground forces loyal to President Hugo Banzer's military government waged a mop-up campaign today after crushing a one-day revolt in south-east Bolivia.

Banzer took personal command of the forces that quelled the rebellion by troops and civilians in the city of Santa Cruz, 330 miles east of La Paz. The government said the revolt began at 5 a.m. Thursday and was put down by midnight. Many of the rebels reportedly fled into the jungles of the Guabira region north of the city, and Banzer ordered operations to continue against them.

Casualties were believed high, but no figures were available. Officials said many persons were arrested.

The government ordered a state of siege, permitting the detention of persons without formal charges or trial, and prohibiting public meetings. Troops were guarding radio stations. All local news media were put under strict government control, and normal channels for the transmission of news dispatches abroad were closed down.

The fate of three alleged leaders of the revolt — Gen. Julio Prado, Gen. Orlando Alvarez and Carlos Valverde, a former minister of health — was not announced. There were rumors they had been killed or arrested. Prado's son, an army major, led another unsuccessful attempt to overthrow the government last June.

Banzer, who came to power in a bloody coup three years ago, has promised to hold elections next June 6, but some elements in the military feel that the armed forces should remain in power. Rebel broadcasts accused Banzer of "maladministration" and said the rebels wanted to restore a spirit of nationalism.

Landlocked, Andean Bolivia is South America's poorest country with a per capita income of $234 a year. It has had 180 governments in 148 years of independence, and Banzer's regime says it has foiled more than a dozen plots to overthrow it.

Tax Exemptions Require Care

A first look at all the tax exempt property in Pitt County leaves one with a feeling of shock. Tax supervisor Phillip Michaels reported that over $32 million in property is currently exempt.

According to Michaels, that amount of property would bring in $250,000 annually at the present tax rate.

Closer examination shows that the property includes fraternal, religious, charitable and non-profit education organizations which have traditionally been exempted from property tax.

Next, property tax includes a $300 deduction for all individuals. Then there are the people over 65 who have incomes of $5,000 or less, excluding Social Security and retirement.

It is, of course, difficult to argue with the above exemptions as long as they are properly made. Tax officials should, however, watch carefully to make certain that organizations exempted as fraternal, religious, and charitable are not in profit making business. If they are, then the property should be taxed just as any business. It is also understandable that people over 65 with incomes under $5,000 should be exempted from tax on their homes and furniture. If anybody has earned it, they have.

What concerns us is the report that other groups, organizations and individuals will be considered for tax exemption in the next Legislature. There may be others who deserve it, but we can't think of anything or anyone who is not covered in the present exemption list.

Legislators should think a long time before they provide any further exemptions from property taxes in North Carolina. Any time any property is exempted, the burden falls on all of us who still pay property tax. The money to run county and municipal governments still has to be raised and the governing bodies simply raise the tax rate to take care of it.

Any tax exemption should be carefully thought out before it is granted, and if it is granted then it should be carefully supervised.

Jet Lag Affects Henry

WASHINGTON—Anyone who moves as fast as Henry Kissinger is bound to get things mixed up. What with all the flying around and talking to so many heads of state, it's no wonder that when he reports back to the President in Washington the conversation could go something like this. "Well, Henry, how did it go?" "Very well, Mr. President. I got Madame Gandhi to lower her price of oil to $10 a barrel."

cut back on nuclear weapons. "But I got Bangladesh to cut back on nuclear weapons. They promised not to make any this year." "We don't care if Bangladesh makes weapons or not. What happened to you over there, Henry?" "I was moving all over the place, Mr. President. It's hard to keep all those countries straight. Who was supposed to get the atomic energy plant?" "Sadat of Egypt." "Oh, so that's it. I asked Sadat if we could use his landing fields to supply Israel."

Other Editors Say Legal Sanctuary

(Greensboro Daily News) North Carolina has for a long time provided a legal sanctuary for chronic traffic law violators who can afford a good lawyer or have some political influence. That is the wide loophole known as the PJC, or prayer for judgment continued.

It permits the offender subject to license suspension to keep his license if he pleads hardship. The effect of a PJC on the traffic violator's right to continue driving is the same as a verdict of innocent because no points are assessed against his driving record. Some North Carolina judges distribute PJCs freely, sometimes without bothering to check the offender's record.

A recent study suggests that traffic law offenders grossly abuse the hardship plea. Its conclusion was that courts should examine more carefully convicted drivers' claims that suspension of their driving license would leave them unable to get to work.

The Insurance Institute for Highway Safety sponsored the study because it said legislators, policemen, judges and juries all tend to be lenient in the application of laws that include loss of driving privileges as punishment.

To test the assumption that license suspension or revocation causes economic hardship, the Insurance Institute put the following question to 450 persons who said they drove to work: "If you leg were in a cast so you couldn't drive for an extended period, how would you get to work?" Only 21 per cent said they couldn't. The other 79 per cent said they could find some other means of getting to the job.

North Carolina has no mass transit systems to speak of, but a lot of Tar Heels, particularly those living in urban areas, could if they lost their driver's permit ride a bicycle, walk or make use of a car pool.

News stories in the last year disclosed that the state's PJC loophole is allowing many exceedingly careless, if not downright incompetent, drivers to keep on infesting the state's highways. It was revealed that some Tar Heel drivers had accumulated 12 or more points within a relatively short time and yet kept on going.

Calculator Can Shock Public

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The pocket electronic calculator remains a hot item for retailers despite declining consumer enthusiasm, probably because it makes it possible to determine where you are in relation to inflation.

Think about it: When prices are rising at 1 or 1.5 per cent, as they did in the late 1960s and early 1960s, a simple pencil or an abacus can tell you what your dollar will be worth 10 years hence.

When they're rising at 12.1 per cent, as they did from September 1973 through September 1974, you really can't determine quickly that a $12,000 income would have to grow to $37,604 by 1984 in order to buy as much

As a $10,000 life insurance policy would, by 1984, provide just $3,191 in terms of 1974 dollars. A $25,000 policy would provide $7,978 of protection.

40 Years Ago Today

November 8, 1934 Local cotton dealers Speight and Haywood, Inc. say they are making government 12-cent loans daily to farmers of the community. The loans are also available from all city banks.

A. C. Haygood, a member of the firm, said "The officials in Washington are to be commended for making it so easy for farmers to go to their own local cotton people."

Plans for a two-day celebration of Armistice Day were completed at a meeting of the Pitt County Post of the American Legion last night.

This year's celebration will begin Sunday and continue through Monday. R. L. McMillan of Raleigh, a lawyer, will deliver the principal address at the East Carolina Teachers College campus building, Monday.

A squad of former soldiers under a leader will be present at each church Sunday and will have charge of the services for ten minutes.

THIS AFTERNOON

Lead In Crime Statistics

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Crime is on the increase all across North Carolina, as else-where in the nation, but the populous Piedmont counties continue to dominate.

Rural residents have complained of crime increases, particularly in numbers of break-ins and burglaries, but a review of crime activities during the first six months of 1974 shows a number of North Carolina counties where people apparently can still leave the doors open while they run to the store.

Figures compiled by the state Police Information Network show a 28.9 percent overall increase in the crime index, compared to the same period of 1973.

Violent crimes (murder, rape, robbery, and assault) increased 16.21 percent; while the nonviolent group (break-ins, larceny-theft, and motor vehicle theft) jumped 31.3 per cent.

Safe Areas A county-by-county look at the report shows some "safe" counties—especially in the far western mountain counties, and down east, where population is smaller.

Graham County, bordered by Tennessee, Fontana Lake, and the Great Smoky Mountains park, appears to be the safest place in the state: they had five reportable crimes—one robbery, an assault, a couple of burglaries, and a larceny.

Other mountain counties with a low crime rate are Alleghany, Clay, and Madison.

Along the coast, Camden, Gates, Hyde, Jones, Pamlico, Pender, Perquimans, and Tyrrell all fall in the low crime category.

In the central state, only Caswell County, on the Virginia line north of Burlington could qualify as a low-crime area.

Still, in the more worrisome crimes of violence, a mere handful of counties contribute more than a fair share.

The state had 280 murders during the first six months of the year. Six counties accounted for 109 of those murders. Thirty-four counties reported no murders; 25 had only one murder; and 12 had two.

Mecklenburg, with the state's largest city of Charlotte, had 37 murders, far and away the leader in this category. Guilford, the second most populous county with Greensboro, reported 19.

After those two, however, are some surprises: the third largest number of murders reported in the state occurred in Gaston County (17), and the next largest in Cumberland (15), where military installations are credited by law enforcement people as a contributor.

Robeson Leads

Finally on the list of counties with 10 or more murders are Robeson County with 11, and Durham County with 10. From the standpoint of murders-per-capita, Robeson, with a population of 84,842 in the 1970 Census, ranks first among the high-murder counties, with a ratio of one per 7,713. Gaston is next with one per 8,730; Mecklenburg third with one per 9,585; followed by Cumberland (one per 14,136), and Guilford (one per 15,188).

Among the larger Piedmont counties, Wake and the capital city of Raleigh, and Winston-Salem in Forsyth County, appear safest from murder. Wake reported six murders (one per 38,075 population, and Forsyth reported nine (one per 23,816).

Robeson is by far the smallest county in population (84,842) to rank among the counties with the most murders, and 10 counties with more people had fewer murders.

In the category of non-violent crimes, property valued at more than $20 million was stolen in North Carolina in the six month period.

The single largest loss was from stolen cars—a total of 4,330 thefts with a value of $6.2 million. Robbers (classified as a violent crime since there is a face-to-face meeting of people as opposed to breaking in and burglarizing) took $878,943 in 1,867 reported occurrences.

Police reported recovering just over $7 million of the $20 million in property taken.

INSIDE REPORT

'Style' Destroyed Sawhill

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — When it became clear his trenchant public advocacy of a new federal gasoline tax had doomed him as Federal Energy administrator, John Sawhill had a plaintive question for a friend: hadn't Bill Simon been an even more persistent booster of the gas tax?

Indeed he had. As Deputy Secretary of the Treasury, as Sawhill's predecessor at the Federal Energy Administration (FEA) and now as Secretary of the Treasury, William Simon has stubbornly advocated a gas tax to cut consumption. But his advocacy has been confined to private administration councils or in the press as an unidentified "Treasury spokesman" — not in person on NBC's "Today" show as in Sawhill's case.

That failure to come to grips with Washington reality explains Sawhill's demise. Although he is now lionized by the liberals as a martyr fired for daring to take unpopular positions, that was not the root cause of his sacking. Future energy officials may survive with positions identical to Sawhill's if they maneuver more skillfully through the Washington jungle. In other words, it was style not substance that destroyed Sawhill.

Sawhill was a sympathetic figure inside the Federal Energy bureaucracy if only for his enemies — particularly big oil's well-paid lobbyists. "The worst elements in this city conspired against him," says one knowing official.

More important, Sawhill's insistence on measures to reduce U.S. fuel consumption to reduce imports is regarded within the administration as essential to any sane energy policy—ignored by President Ford at the nation's peril. Having mastered the energy field, ex-financier Sawhill quickly arrived at the proper policy.

That he flunked his course in the Washington quicksand was clear last April when, shortly after succeeding Simon, Sawhill joined John Gardner's Common Cause. The White House was apoplectic that a high official appointed by then President Nixon should join Nixon's arch-enemy.

Sawhill quit Common Cause as quickly as he had joined it, but the damage was done. Not only was suspicion planted deeply in the administration but a flaw in his own tactics was revealed: he was trying to strengthen his position with liberals and congressional Democrats while neglecting his exposed flank in the administration.

The point of no-return between Sawhill and the administration really came a few weeks before the celebrated "Today" show of Oct. 2. Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington as chairman of the Senate Interior Committee submitted written interrogatories to administration officials, beginning with this loaded question: did the administration have a plan to halt or reverse the rise in world oil prices? All other officials ducked, but not Sawhill. He answered, honestly and concisely: no.

Jackson, ever alert for an opening in the administration's energy policy, particularly Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, were outraged at Sawhill. "The feeling was," confides one official sympathetic to Sawhill, "that Sawhill was making Brownie points with Scoop Jackson at the expense of Ford, Kissinger and everybody else." Buttrressing that feeling was the fact that Sawhill submitted his answers to Jackson without disturbing them in the administration.

Even before he blundered by publicly advocating the gasoline tax after President Ford publicly rejected it, Sawhill's position had become untenable. Irritations between him and Simon ripened into a feud (helped by Sawhill's cutting remarks in private about Simon). Worse yet, Sawhill had no relationship whatever with the new energy czar, Interior Secretary Rogers Morton.

By mid-October, Mr. Ford had decided to sack Sawhill. (Continued on page 5)

Strength For Today

TO SAVE OTHERS "He saved others; himself he could not save."

So cried the enemies of Jesus as he hung upon the cross. And without knowing it they were very close to uttering the ultimate truth about the dying Christ. All that was needed was the word "because." "Because he saved others, himself he cannot save." He could have come down from the cross if he had but asked God to release him of the sacrifice, but the salvation of man would never have been

Strength For Today purchased. Elevated on that throne of suffering, he had to wear the crown of thorns and grasp the bloody nails in his hands, and endure the gibes of the wicked, in order that the wicked themselves might be saved from their wickedness. No one who would save others can ever afford to come down from the cross; least of all the divine son of God who would save all. The words that the crowd cried out in hate against him have been ringing down the centuries to his glory. —by Elisha Douglass

Letter From Exile Aired

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a letter to Sen. Jesse Helms, Soviet author Alexander Solzhenitsyn says he would like to visit the United States for the chance he was denied three decades ago to meet some young Americans.

"At one time I almost met young Americans at the Elbe River," the exiled writer said, recalling his World War II army days. "But in those same weeks I was snatched away from that meeting by my first arrest. Now, 30 years later, it is as if I am given another opportunity for such a meeting. I will be happy to make this meeting a reality."

The letter was made public Thursday by Helms, a North Carolina Republican who sponsored a resolution to grant honorary U.S. citizenship to the writer after he was expelled from the Soviet Union.

Solzhenitsyn, long imprisoned in Russia and now living in Switzerland, wrote that he regarded the citizenship action as a gesture "to honor, with your kindness, the multitude of those deprived of their civil rights, denied a voice, and longing to be heard" children: the remains of a mammoth, found in an apartment complex.

Children by the hundreds, plus many curious adults, have flocked to the complex in the Salt Lake suburb of Sandy this week to watch scientists recover the bones.

The mammoth is an extinct species of a very large elephant.

Ron Griffin, a resident of the complex who discovered the skeleton last Thursday while digging a drain trench, estimates an average of 1,000 persons have come to the site daily to watch the work.

The discovery of the site literally in someone's own back yard, as opposed to out-of-the-way places where prehistoric excavation work is more commonly done, has proved irresistible to school children.

Some schools have run shuttle buses to the site so the children could watch as scientists probe delicately with dental picks, trowels and other small instruments to uncover the bones. The bones are at about the two-foot level, and digging is going as deep as four feet.

Tom Zeidler of the Utah Historical Society says the bones are estimated at between 11,000 and 20,000 years old, although a more precise dating has not yet been attempted.

The Historical Society has been working jointly on the project with Dr. James H. Madsen Jr. of the University of Utah, where the mammoth's remains will be stored at a museum.

Zeidler says the diggers don't know yet whether they will have enough bones to reconstruct a skeleton. Thirty-five bones have been removed so far. Among the parts still missing are the skull and tusks.

Police, who charged Stroud with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage to the Stroud truck at $200 and placed damage to the Dixon vehicle at $1,500.

Joseph Ernest Johnson of Route 3, Greenville was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of an 8:30 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Fifth and Contentnea Streets.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A coal strike could cut steel production immediately, electric power generation, hospital and school operations within two or three weeks and some 280,000 nonstriker jobs within a month.

These are federal estimates, but there are virtually no federal plans to cope with these problems.

An energy official who declined to be identified said there was little the government could do about a coal strike and was reluctant to invoke its Taft-Hartley powers to order miners back to work unless forced to do so.

Reports reaching the U.S. Bureau of Mines indicate the effects of a coal strike likely to start Monday may fall most heavily on perhaps eleven states, with potential problems in four more states and the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) power area.

The energy official said that so far the federal government has little to offer them but the suggestion that industries and utilities with adequate coal stockpiles prepare to share supplies with hardship cases. Negotiators for the coal companies and the United Mine Workers union say a new contract may be drafted before the present one expires Monday.

But UMW President Arnold Miller says it would take his union 10 days to ratify a contract and the members won't work without one, making a two-week strike "a foregone conclusion."

A coal strike of any length would hit the steel industry almost immediately.

The Bureau of Mines says plants that convert coal into coke must slow production to stretch out their supplies because running out of coal would ruin the coke ovens.

The coke is used in steel blast furnaces, but stockpiles average only a one-week supply, the bureau reports, so steel production would be quickly affected by a coke slowdown.

Republic Steel says a coal strike would force "immediate curtailment of iron and steel production." Inland Steel says supply problems and preparations for the strike already have affected operations.

A United States Steel official has testified to Congress that a two-week coal strike would cut his company's steel production in half.

The bureau reports that electric power plants have an average 80-day supply of coal, but some are far below that average.

The bureau said 35 power plants could run out of coal in 15 days, and another 38 could run short within a month.

The TVA is urging its customers to voluntarily reduce electricity consumption 20 percent, or face mandatory curtailments. Government economists estimate a month-long strike by the 120,000 UMW members could force layoffs of an additional 280,000 non-coal workers.

Based on preliminary reports, the Bureau of Mines says a coal strike lasting two weeks to one month might create fuel problems for schools in Colorado, Idaho, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Utah, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Some hospitals could face coal problems in Colorado, Kentucky, New York, Tennessee and Wisconsin, while state institutions could run short of fuel in Colorado, New York and North Dakota, the bureau reported.

Only three of those states — Ohio, West Virginia and Wisconsin — were reported to have legal authority to allocate existing coal supplies for priority needs.

What delayed the execution was the inability to find a successor (unbelievably, feelers were put out to Interior Under Secretary John Whitaker, the old Nixon advance man, who wisely rejected them). Sawhill's aides at EFA took advantage of the delay to seek support from congressional liberals. The reaction: zero. While critically damaging himself downtown, Sawhill had failed to build a loyal following in Capitol Hill.

Yet, Mr. Ford surely will have to swallow the bitter medicine ruthlessly prescribed by John Sawhill. That means much tougher conservation measures, including import restrictions. Ultimately, it may well mean that hated gasoline tax.

Consequently, the early conduct of ex-Federal Maritime administrator Andrew Gibson as Sawhill's successor is being viewed with both hope and apprehension. In contrast to Sawhill, Gibson sits through meetings silent as a sphinx. That could mean he will take the course of non-resistance to the oil lobbyists and their allies in government. However, there is also hope that such silence means he will follow Sawhill's correct policies, but with more discretion, tact and even success.

French, Mr. President. You can inform Sen. Henry Jackson the French have agreed on a new emigration policy for their Jews."

"You were supposed to get the Soviets to agree to that!"

"I was? No wonder the French didn't argue with me. I'm telling you, this jet lag is something."

"Okay, Henry, it's all my fault. I shouldn't have let you go to so many countries. Did you see the Pope in Rome?"

"I had a private audience with him and gave him your message, Mr. President."

"Which was?"

"You'd like him to buy 12 squadrons of Grumman Hellcat fighter planes from us."

"Henry, let me ask you one last question. If you asked the Pope to buy Grumman fighter planes, whom did you ask to pray for us?"

"King Faisal?"

The solution? Small classes in which kids can get individual attention and, ideally, a "crisis teacher" available for youngsters who become anxious or wild.

Ingram Planning Appeal Decision
RALEIGH (AP)—State Insurance Commissioner John Ingram says he will appeal to the State Supreme Court a decision of the state Court of Appeals which rejected Ingram's effort to abolish what he calls "age discrimination" in auto liability insurance rates.

Ingram told a news conference Thursday that regardless of the Supreme Court ruling, he will ask the 1975 General Assembly to end age discrimination.

Marrying Less, State Advised Prepare Divorcing More For New Energy Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are getting married less and divorced more than in the past, according to a Census Bureau report.

The bureau said Thursday that in the last four years the nation's divorce rate increased as much as it had in the entire previous 10 years.

And at the same time the bureau said more young people are deciding not to get married at all.

According to the bureau survey made in March, there were 63 divorced persons in 1974 for every 1,000 married persons living with their spouses. This compared with 47 in 1970 and 35 in 1960.

In the 12-month period ending in March there were 925,000 divorces, an increase of some 200,000 over the estimated 703,000 divorces in all of 1973.

The Census Bureau made no attempt to explain the increase in the divorce rate.

While there has been a decline in the number of single persons over 35, the report noted there has been an increase in the proportion of single young persons, particularly women, establishing their own households.

For example, in the 20 to 24 age bracket, there has been an increase since 1960 from 28 to 39 per cent in the number of women who have remained single, while the percentage of men remaining single has grown from 53 to 57 per cent.

On the other hand, in the over-35 age group, the number of males who have never married has declined since 1960 from 7.8 per cent to 6.3 percent, and the number of females from 7.2 to 5.2 per cent.

"Whether the tendency among the younger group to refrain from marrying represents merely a postponement of first marriage or a development of a trend towards lifelong singleness is not known," the report said.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—An energy crisis will hit North Carolina this winter, as it did last winter, unless the state takes action, a study says.

The study of the state's response to last winter's fuel shortages was conducted by 12 graduate students at Duke University and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. It was funded by the National Science Foundation.

A nationwide coal miners' strike would cause severe shortages of fuel for industry and for power plants, says Alfred R. Light of UNC, student project-director of the study.

Cutoffs of natural gas for North Carolina industry would throw many persons out of work says the report released this week.

It looks like it's going to hit us again," Light said of the energy crisis. "And we'll be as surprised as last winter, only this time we won't have the Arabs to blame."

North Carolina energy officials are predicting no gasoline crisis, Light said. "They're much more worried about the natural gas shortage."

The report makes these recommendations:

—The state Energy Division should be transferred from the Department of Military and Veterans Affairs to the Department of Natural and Economic Resources.

—Local governments should be involved in an energy-shortage "early warning system."

—The Institute of Government at the University of North Carolina should broaden its studies on North Carolina energy policy.

—The state should pass legislation for comprehensive planning of the siting of power plants.

The report says federal energy policy last winter was "haphazard and incoherent." It says North Carolina state government was successful in some efforts, like lowering thermostats and speed limits, and creation of an Energy Division. But other state measures, like a statewide bikeway and allocation of funds for mass-transit, lauded in legislative committees.

The report says much of the state energy effort has fallen off even as new crises approach.

It says local governments cast about for solutions and some local measures were successful, like the odd-even gasoline sales in Durham and elsewhere.

The report says the state press provided few editorial suggestions to state and local officials.

Man Dies In Life Sentence For Plane Crash Man In Wheelchair

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A man was killed and a flight instructor injured when their plane crashed Thursday night on a landing approach to Charlotte's Douglas Municipal Airport.

The crash was three miles from where an Eastern Airlines jet crashed in September, killing 72 of the 82 aboard.

The single-engine Cessna 72 crashed down a bank in a wooded area and landed bottom up. The Charlotte police helicopter was first on the crash scene.

Leo Page Grace, 46, of Cornelius, 15 miles north of Charlotte, was killed.

Donald Neal, 33, of Rt. 4, Mooresville, just north of Cornelius, was hospitalized in Charlotte.

The plane had taken off from the Lake Norman Airport near Mooresville.

A spokesman at the Douglas Airport tower said the tower had lost radio and radar communication with the plane two miles southwest of the airport.

LINCOLN, N.C. (AP)—A paralyzed man confined to a wheelchair has been sentenced to life imprisonment in what authorities call a murder for insurance.

Russell Payseur, 24, of Lincolnton, was sentenced Thursday. He had pleaded guilty to second-degree murder. He turned state's evidence against other defendants, including the victim's wife and mother-in-law.

The police said that Payseur had been promised $4,000 of David Randall Smith's $10,000 life insurance to slay the 25-year-old Gaston County textile worker. Two racoons hunters found Smith's body last June 29 in Lincoln County. Authorities said he had been shot in the back at close range with a shotgun. Police said that his wife, Mrs. Kathy Smith, 24, and her mother, Mrs. Margrette Dellinger, 48, had arranged for him to go fishing with Payseur and another man, and that on the way Payseur shot him.

Payseur is paralyzed from the waist down as the result of an auto wreck.

Mrs. Smith pleaded guilty to second-degree murder and got 25 to 35 years.

Mrs. Dellinger was convicted of conspiracy to commit murder. She was sentenced to 8 to 10 years, and gave notice of appeal.

Elbert Richman, 33, of Cherryville, pleaded guilty to a charge of accessory after murder. He was given 30 years.

Bucs Play Key Contest With Richmond

Miami Seeking Bid To Bowl

The University of Miami tries to keep its post-season football bowl hopes alive while Florida State seeks to halt the nation's longest losing streak in tonight's meeting between the two cross-state rivals in the Orange Bowl.

The Seminoles, 0-8 and losers of 20 games in a row going back to the next-to-last game of the 1972 season, have only two chances left after Miami to avoid their second consecutive winless season.

The major bowl hopes for the 5-2 Hurricanes dropped markedly after they were trounced 38-7 by Notre Dame two weeks ago. Coach Pete Elliott said repeatedly early in the season that his goal was to get a bowl assignment, but has been reluctant to talk about that subject since Notre Dame.

It is not known whether Elliott would consider a bowl such as the Tangerine, where the Hurricanes would play Miami of Ohio in a matchup of Miami, Miami of Ohio, of the Mid-American Conference, beat Florida 16-7 in last year's Tangerine affair and Elliott may not want to risk losing prestige.

And Florida State has been nothing like a pushover for Miami in recent years. Although Miami owns a 9-8 series edge, the Seminoles won seven straight times before bowing 14-10 last year.

Nine of The Associated Press' Top Ten will be action Saturday, with No. 8 Notre Dame taking the weekend off.

Top-ranked Ohio State, 8-0, will play at Michigan State; No. 2 Oklahoma, 7-0, will be host to Missouri; No. 3 Alabama, 8-0, will entertain Louisiana State in a nationally televised game; No. 4 Michigan, 8-0, will be at Illinois; No. 5 Texas A&M, 7-1, will play at Southern Methodist; No. 6 Florida, 7-1, will meet Georgia at Jacksonville, Fla.; No. 7 Penn State, 7-1, will travel to North Carolina State; No. 9 Nebraska, 6-2, will be at Iowa State and No. 10 Auburn, 7-1, will play Mississippi State at Jackson, Miss.

The nation's only other major college team with an unbeaten and untied record, Yale, puts its 6-0 slate on the line in an Ivy League game at Penn.

Mighty Ohio State is a four-touchdown favorite to roll past Michigan State en route to its Big Ten showdown against Michigan, No. 4, but Coach Woody Hayes remembers that the Buckeyes' last regular-season loss came at Spartan Stadium two years ago.

Michigan State, 4-3-1, ranks third in the Big Ten with a 3-1-1 mark.

Oklahoma, whose 16-game winning streak is the longest among major colleges in the nation, goes up against Missouri, 5-3, a Big Eight rival which has already knocked off two ranked teams, Arizona State and Nebraska.

Alabama, which is expected to meet Notre Dame in the Orange Bowl in a rematch of last year's national championship pairing, takes on Louisiana State in a Southeastern Conference clash that will be nationally televised following four regionally televised games.

Illinois goes from the frying pan into the fire. Still reeling from a 49-7 trouncing by Ohio State last week, the faltering Illini must take on Big Ten co-leader Michigan Saturday.

Texas A&M will try to stay on top in the Southwest Conference against Southern Methodist, while Georgia and Florida meet in a Southeastern Conference game.

Independent Penn State faces a strong Atlantic Coast Conference team in North Carolina State, while Nebraska faces Big Eight rival Iowa State and Auburn takes on SEC foe Mississippi State.

In games involving the rest of the top 20, No. 11 Southern California, 5-1-1, will play at Stanford; No. 12 Texas, 6-2-0, will be at Baylor; No. 13 Miami, Ohio, 7-0-1, will host Kent State; No. 14 Maryland, 5-3, will entertain Villanova; No. 15 Houston, 6-2-0, has the weekend off; No. 16 Arizona State, 5-2, will be at Brigham Young; No. 17 Oklahoma State, 4-3, will play at Kansas State; No. 18 California, 5-2-1, will be at Washington.

One year ago, East Carolina University went into its final three games with the Southern Conference title on the line. The Bucs won all three to win their second straight title.

Except for one five-year sweep by West Virginia, no Southern Conference team has won three consecutive titles in the history of the league. But—just like last year, the Bucs can win it—if they win these final three.

East Carolina, however, can't look beyond Saturday's game with Richmond on the Spiders' home grounds. If the Bucs lose that one, their title hopes will vanish. "There is no tomorrow," Coach Pat Dye said. "It's win Saturday or forget it."

The same thing holds true for Richmond, tied with East Carolina for current possession of third place with a 2-1 league mark. The Spiders still feel that they can win the title, but they must beat the Bucs to do it.

To win, East Carolina must stop the passing of Spider quarterback Harry Knight, one of the national leaders in passing. But by the same token, Richmond must offset the 11th ranked rushing offense of the Pirates.

"We thought Tom Vosberg (Dayton) was a good thrower" assistant coach Jim Fuller said. "But Knight is even better. Both are excellent throwers, but Knight throws harder. He really drills it in...and he can throw long."

Knight so far this year has hit on 85 of 178 passes, a very respectable 47.8 percent. These have covered 1,127 yards for seven touchdowns. He's been sacked for losses just 17 times, but has only a net of minus six yards on the ground, showing that he can scramble—or run the ball if he wants to. He passes both from the pocket and off the sprint-out.

Knight also has two fine receivers in split end Mike Mahoney and flanker Dinky Jones. Jones, certainly not dinky at 6-1, 190, also returns punts. Mahoney has 25 catches for 406 yards and three scores. Jones has pulled in 23 for 333 yards, and also has three.

"All good football teams are strong up the middle," Fuller said. "They certainly are. They have a top center in Ramon Perez, a good quarterback; a strong fullback in George Crossman, and a good tailback in Bobby Allen."

While Richmond doesn't run that much, Crossman is the leading rusher with 387 yards in 102 carries. He's also the conference's leading scorer with 42 points. Allen has 295 yards in 76 lugs.

"Their running plays are just basic—dives, sweeps. They are pass-oriented, but they've had some problems too. But we've got to get to Knight if we want to win," Fuller said.

Defensively, the Spiders had a rebuilding job this year. Only Ace Owens and Bob Saunders returned from last year's team—and Owens has been switched from tackle to nose guard. "They've had some problems in finding the right combination. But they feel that they found it last week, using three freshmen, one of whom was named the conference Defensive Player of the Week. They did look like a completely different team last week, and we look for them to be fired up this week."

Since Richmond can both run and pass, the Pirates are going to have to do some fine defensive work to hold them down. "We have to go after Knight and stop his passing," Dye said. "We want to make them have to score the hard way—by grinding it out on the ground."

Last week, The Citadel scored two touchdowns against the Pirates by the pass, and rolled up 220 yards through the air. "We could have held them to less. But we wanted them to get out of their ground game, where they are much better," Dye said. "I didn't really worry about it."

Richmond has always been the key rival for East Carolina in the Southern Conference. In the past two years, along with the games this year, Richmond has lost only three times. Once this year to Furman, and the previous two years to East Carolina.

"It's going to be an emotional game," Dye said. "You can see it building among our players. They are taking a different approach to their preparations this week."

But Dye isn't fully satisfied. "We are still not playing as good as we can," he said. "We are starting to look like it. We began to show it against Dayton, and our offense showed it more against The Citadel, but we're still not quite there."

"I'm hoping that we'll get there this weekend." Kickoff is set for 1:30 p.m. in Richmond's City Stadium.

Bucs To Scrimmage

East Carolina University's basketball team will take to the road for two pre-season scrimmages in Eastern Carolina.

On Thursday, the Pirates will scrimmage in New Bern. The action will take place at New Bern High School gym, with the Bears scrimmaging at 6:30 p.m., and the Pirates following them on the court.

Then, on Tuesday, Nov. 19, the Bucs will appear in Washington at the high school gym there. Washington High School will scrimmage first starting at 6:45 p.m.

In Washington, the scrimmage is being sponsored by the Washington Babe Ruth League, and a $1 donation will be asked of spectators.

Near Perfect Game Needed

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
AP Sports Writer

Coach Pat Dye says if East Carolina's Pirates "ever play a near perfect game, we're going to be hard to beat"—and that's just what they may have to play from here out if they're to win a third successive Southern Conference football championship.

The Pirates, rudely upset in their second league game this season by Appalachian State's Mountaineers, have to win their last three games—starting Saturday at Richmond against the Spiders—to win the title outright.

It's as much a "must-win" situation for the Spiders, who are 2-1 in the conference with East Carolina behind Virginia Military's Keydets at 4-1 and Appalachian at 3-1.

But there is one difference. Where East Carolina—6-2 overall—plays its last three games on the road, where the Pirates have lost two of three, the Spiders—4-3 overall—play their last three at home. One of the Pirates' games is a Nov. 23 stop at VMI, the Keydets' last league game.

The six other conference teams face nonleague foes Saturday.

VMI, 5-3, goes to Virginia; William and Mary's Indians, 3-5, are at home against Virginia Tech; The Citadel's Bulldogs, 2-6, go to Navy; and Davidson's Wildcats, 1-5, entertain Lehigh in the afternoon.

Night games have Appalachian, 5-4, at South Carolina and Furman's Paladins, 4-4, at home against Lenoir Rhyne.

"We haven't done well this year on the road," says Dye. "Now we must mature and start doing the little things right. If we don't stop doing those silly little things (offsides, motion penalties, fumbles, interceptions), we can't possibly win our final three games."

But Richmond Coach Jim Tait says he hasn't heard anything about East Carolina except that the Pirates "are for real. East Carolina is the dominant power in our conference right now. We're not a bad football team, but East Carolina is a fine football team."

The Spiders' attack centers around quarterback Harry Knight, No. 2 in the conference in total offense with 160.1 yards per game, and No. 1 in passing with 85 completions for 1,127 yards. On the other hand, East Carolina has completed just 13 passes in its eight games.

But the Pirates have an overpowering running attack led by Don Schink with 65.3 yards per game, Kenny Strayhorn with a 61.5 average and quarterback Mike Weaver with a 50.8 average. Strayhorn has scored seven times. Schink, Weaver and Bobby Myrick have five touchdowns.

Richmond obviously was up last week in beating VMI 17-14, handing the Keydets their first league defeat, but Tait says he thinks the Spiders can "get up for East Carolina because they're the champions. If you want to be the champion, that's what you've got to do."

Despite last week's loss at Richmond, VMI Coach Bob Thalman says, "We've come back before and I'm sure we can do it again." At stake for the Keydets are the Virginia Big Five championship and their first winning season since 1967.

The Keydets have excellent runners in Ronnie Norman, 92 yards per game, and Kim Glidewell, 69.3, while Virginia will again be without quarterback Scott Gardner, injured two weeks ago, who missed last week's 24-10 defeat at North Carolina.

"Virginia played a strong game... Their defense has certainly improved and the offense played well considering they didn't have their starting quarterback," says Thalman. "Sonny Randle is a fine coach and has done a good job at Virginia."

It will be ground game against ground game when Virginia Tech, 2-6, goes to William and Mary. The Gobblers are averaging 256.1 yards per game rushing, the Indians 237.3.

Phil Rogers is Tech's leading runner with 522 yards, but four other Gobblers have run for more than 200 yards. W&M's Bill Deery, No. 1 in the league in total offense with 166.9 yards per game, has 730 yards rushing and is 65 short of the NCAA career record for a quarterback.

"I was quite impressed with Tech's defense" in a 14-7 defeat last week by Miami, Fla., says William and Mary Coach Jim Roof. And Roof says against some of the teams the Gobblers have played, "the Tech wishbone was awesome."

"Navy represents another tremendous challenge to our young football team," says Coach Bobby Ross of The Citadel. The Bulldogs' big gun is Andrew Johnson, leading the league with 127.5 yards per game rushing, even though East Carolina stopped him with 40.

The consistent strength of Appalachian has been its kicking game with Joe Parker leading the nation in punting with a 44.4-yard average and Devon Ford averaging 16.5 yards on punt returns.

Southern football teams played in 13 Rose Bowl games from 1926 to 1946.

Hornets Get Wash

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP)—Sheriff Jimmy Gaslin permitted the Charlotte Hornets to remove their football uniforms from State Fair Stadium Thursday—but only to be washed.

Then they were returned to the stadium dressing room, where they were securely locked with the remainder of the Hornets' equipment.

The Hornets played a World Football League game in Shreveport Wednesday night. Then their gear was seized under court order for bills allegedly unpaid while the club played the first 13 games of the WFL season in New York.

A security firm seeks $15,276 and a clearing establishment asks $10,939 in a lawsuit filed in a Louisiana court.

Upton Bell, general manager of the Hornets and head of the new group that has taken over control of the club, said all the bills were run up by New York Pro Grid, Inc., the former owners.

He is attempting to resolve the difficulties as soon as possible.

The Hornets will resume practice today at Belmont Abbey near Charlotte, presumably in shorts and in T-shirts or sweat shirts.

The players will have their cleated shoes. A player pays for his own shoes, and they were packed on the charter flight home.

Coach Babe Parilli said, "This late in the season it won't make much difference about the pads, because we can go without them in practice."

Cowboys Get Title

The Cowboys and the Gold captured victories in the Recreation Department football program yesterday.

The Cowboys took a 12-7 win over the Redskins to win the regular season flag football title.

The Redskins scored first on a one yard run by Mike Edwards. Edwards also ran over the PAT. The Cowboys came back, however, to close the gap to 7-6 by halftime on a 62-yard run by Mark Douglas.

Then, in the second half, Douglas went over from the one, giving the Cowboys the win.

In the tackle game, Gold took a 20-6 win over the White. Edgar Lloyd put the Gold ahead in the first half, recovering a fumble in the end zone. Bryant Smith added a second touchdown on a seven yard run for a 12-0 half-time lead.

Gold scored again on a 52-yard pass to Perry Murphy, and Smith ran over the extra points to make it 20-0. The White scored on the final play of the game on a 15-yard pass from Robert Robbins to Jamie Adams.

Purple Takes Swimming Meet

Four meet records and two individual freshman records were shattered Thursday night in the East Carolina University swim team's annual Purple-Gold meet held at Minges Natatorium.

The Purple team won the meet, 64-49, but ECU swim coach Ray Scharf said the results were actually closer than the score indicated.

"We showed, as a team, exceptional potential," said Scharf. "Overall, I was extremely pleased."

If the pre-season tuneup is an omen to come for the defending Southern Conference champions, the rest of the conference is going to be in big trouble.

The team of Gary Pabst, Donald Oatfield, Alan Clancy and Bobby Vail turned a time of 3:48.6 to set a 400-yard medley relay record; Tomas Palmgren's 10:24 shattered the old 100-yard freestyle mark; Pabst turned in a 2:06.8 clocking in the 200-yard backstroke and Vail, Clancy Pabst and Steve Ruedlinger finished in 3:198.3 in the 400 yard freestyle.

Along with these Purple-Gold records, Pabst's time in the 400-yard medley relay (:56.0) and 200-yard backstroke were individual freshman highs.

The Pirates open their season at home next Saturday in the Southern Conference Relays. Results of Purple-Gold:

Looking For A Good Week

Ouch! That's about all our collective panel can say following last week. Although there wasn't much of a shareup in the standings, the best anyone could come up with was 7-5, while nearly everyone went 6-6, and one went 5-7.

Fortunately, we were one of the 7-7 pickers, and moved into a tie with George Holland for second place in the standings. But the other 7-5 was Tom Baines, who really increased his lead on second place.

Baines is now 68-28 on the year, while George and I are 63-33. Diane Allen is fourth at 59-37, followed by Jack Whichard at 58-38, and Joe Jenkins at 55-41.

This week could prove interesting, but let's look at the high school area final games.

Farmville Central warms up for the 3-A Playoffs by hosting C.B. Aycock. The Falcons finally won one a few weeks ago, but the Jaguars after escaping from Conley last week, should be ready to roll up some momentum. Farmville the winner.

Greene Central, now out of the playoff race, ends up with Eastern Wayne—an up-and-down team. We look for this to be a toughie, but the Rams should win it.

Williamston closes with Bertie. The Falcons are one of the weaker teams around, and Williamston should be able to hurdle by them to close out the year.

Ayden-Grifton goes to North Lenoir, seeking to save its wounds. The Chargers were upset last week, but probably will snap back to win this one.

Conley closes out at Southern Nash. The Vikings are among the most improved in the area, but Southern has shown that they can win. Unless the Vikings get stung early, however they should win it.

Woody's Ramblin's

BY WOODY PEELE

North Pitt, after its stunning upset last week, goes into the lair of the big one, Southern Wayne this week. North Pitt will be fired up, but the Saints are too big for any 3-A team in this part of the state. Southern to win here.

Finally, Robersonville will be hosting North Johnston in the game that will decide the Eastern Plains title, and a playoff berth in the 2-A ranks. Neither have lost in the league, and this should be a hum-dinger. But we like Robersonville.

Now, to our panel.

Rose will be playing at Northeastern in their final game prior to the 4-A playoffs. The Rampants have clinched a tie for the Division I title and will be going after sole possession of first with a win—not to mention a perfect league record. Our panel is united: we all feel the Rampants can win it.

East Carolina goes to Richmond in a key Southern Conference game. One team will probably be out of the title picture following the game. Again, we're the same right down the line: East Carolina to win.

The other consensus picks: Navy over The Citadel; Furman over Lenoir Rhyne; Virginia Tech over William & Mary; Duke over Wake Forest; Penn State over State; South Carolina over Clemson; Maryland over Villanova; and Florida over Georgia.

Gourdine New NBA Aide

CLEVELAND (AP) — In 1954, Simon P. Gourdine failed in his effort to become a balby for the New York Knicks basketball team.

Thursday, at the age of 34, Gourdine was named deputy commissioner of the National Basketball Association, becoming the highest-ranking black in professional sports in the United States.

"I sent a letter to them (the Knicks) and I guess they had the position filled already, so I never got the job," Gourdine said of the 1954 attempt.

Gourdine, who has been with the NBA since 1970 and a vice president since 1972, was elected to the position by unanimous vote of the board of governors, meeting here for their fall meeting. He was given a three-year contract.

"I want to make it clear that my election as deputy commissioner does not automatically give me the position of commissioner," Gourdine said. "However, I am hopeful that I will become commissioner sometime in the future. My new position gives me a forum to show my skills, and I think that I have the ability to compete for the job."

Nick Curran, the NBA public relations director, said the board of governors heard a report from the selection committee, but no vote was taken on who would succeed Walter Kennedy, who is retiring June 1 after 12 years in the post.

Gourdine moves into a position that has been in the NBA bylaws for 15 years, but never has been filled.

He said his appointment has been referred to as historic, "probably because of the fact that I'm black."

"It's a symbolic showing to everyone that blacks are qualified to hold top administrative positions," Gourdine said. "I willingly and gratefully accept the position as a personal accomplishment and as an accomplishment for black people."

The board of governors will meet again on Jan. 14, 1975, during the All-Star break in Phoenix, and it is possible they will vote on a successor to Kennedy at that time. The owners have known for two years that Kennedy was retiring.

NHL Wheeling And Dealings

TORONTO — Defenseman Rod Seiling, who was picked up by the National Hockey League Washington Capitals earlier this week from the New York Rangers, was sent to the Toronto Maple Leafs in exchange for right wing Tim Ecclestone and defenseman Willie Brosart. The Capitals in turn dealt Ecclestone to the Atlanta Flames for cash and future considerations.

PITTSBURGH — The Pittsburgh Penguins of the National Hockey League traded defenseman Ab DeMarco to the Vancouver Canucks for defenseman Barry Wilkins.

Players To Receive Pay

MEMPHIS (AP) — A trust fund has been set up to make sure all World Football League players will be paid for the current season, the WFL and the WFL Players Association announced Thursday.

"I've never heard of an agreement of this nature before in professional sports," said Alan R. Miller, general counsel for the players association. "This is the first time a league and a players' association have worked together in this manner to assure the success of a league."

"The WFL has shown that it is cooperating with the players and doing everything possible to assure that the players receive full compensation," he said.

Donald J. Regan, WFL president, said revenue from the league playoff games, licensing, television, sale of franchises and expansion would go into the fund.

Rampant Cubs Capture Title

Rose High School's junior varsity made it a clean sweep for the Rampants yesterday, downing Northeastern's jvs, 14-8, winning the Division I JV title.

The Rose win, coupled with a 16-6 victory by Rocky Mount over Wilson left the Rampant Cubs in first place with a 3-1 league record.

Rose scored first in the opening period on a seven yard run by Leonard Williams, who also ran over the two-point conversion for an 8-0 lead that held through the remainder of the half.

Williams provided Rose with the winning touchdown in the third period, this time scoring from the four, upping it to 14-0. Northeastern's only score came in the final period, when Maryland Bright scored from the 13. Frank Beasley got the PAT for the final score.

Northeastern had two other threats, but fumbled the ball away both times. Rose, also bothered by fumbles, lost the ball four times during the game.

The win closed out the season for the Cubs.

Three Teams Go To Bowls

By The Associated Press The Atlantic Coast Conference may have three of its seven teams in postseason bowl football games.

Maryland and North Carolina State are already in. North Carolina is a good possibility. The N.C. State Wolfpack, 7-2, has voted to play in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl on Dec. 23 in Houston.

Maryland, which beat State and North Carolina, has been lined up for the Dec. 16 Liberty Bowl game in Memphis. The opponent will be announced later. N.C. State won the Liberty last year.

Sun Bowl officials says they have every reason to believe North Carolina, 5-3, will accept their invitation to play Mississippi State in that game in El Paso, Tex., on Dec. 28.

However, there is some possibility of North Carolina playing in the Peach Bowl in Atlanta on that date.

Vanderbilt has accepted an invitation for the Peach Bowl. Its opponent will be Texas Tech, if the Red Raiders defeat Texas Christian Saturday, which they are favored to do.

George Crumbley, executive director of the Peach Bowl, said that if Texas Tech does not win, the bowl has not ruled out the possibility of North Carolina and possibly Pittsburgh.

North Carolina was in the Sun Bowl two years ago, defeating Texas Tech 32-28.

The N.C. State athletic director, Willis Casey, said, "Any team that gets a bowl bid should be happy, because it signifies a successful season. We are State are delighted to be going to the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl."

The Wolfpack will be making its third straight bowl appearance under coach Lou Holtz. It probably will play Houston, 6-2.

The last time State played the Houston Cougars was during the regular season in 1967. The Wolfpack upset third-ranked Houston, 16-6.

N.C. State beat Kansas 31-18 in the Liberty Bowl last year, and beat West Virginia 49-13 in the Peach Bowl in 1972.

North Carolina coach Bill Dooley said, "It's certainly nice to be considered the top choice of the Sun Bowl. But right now all we have on our minds is our game with Clemson on Saturday. I will have no further comment on the bowl situation at this time."

Neither he nor Harrison Kohl, executive director of the Southwestern Sun Carnival, would say when the North Carolina players and officials would decide on acceptance.

Mississippi State accepted its invitation Wednesday. It will be its first bowl appearance in 11 years.

Besides North Carolina at Clemson, games Saturday for ACC teams are North Carolina home to Penn State, Maryland home to Villanova, Wake Forest at Duke, and Virginia home to VMI.

Bowl Lineups Shaping Up

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

The Mississippi State Bulldogs are finally getting a place in the Sun.

"It's a dream come true," said quarterback Rocky Felker Thursday after learning that his football team had been invited to play in the Sun Bowl.

"When we heard about it, everyone just went crazy."

The bowl appearance will be the first in 11 years for the Bulldogs, who have been Southeastern Conference pussycats until this year.

Mississippi State, a high-scoring team this season behind a virulent Veer offense, will probably meet North Carolina in the post-season game Dec. 28 at El Paso, Tex.

The college football bowl picture was put into sharper focus with these other developments Thursday:

—Vanderbilt was selected to play in the Peach Bowl on Dec. 28 in Atlanta. The Commodores will probably face Texas Tech — if the Red Raiders can beat Texas Christian this Saturday.

—North Carolina State announced that it had accepted a bid to go to the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl in Houston on Dec. 23. The Wolfpack will play the University of Houston Cougars.

Vanderbilt, with a 5-2 record but with four regular season games yet to play, snapped up the invitation from George Crumbley, the Peach Bowl director. But Texas Tech was more elusive.

Crumbley announced that the Red Raiders had accepted an invitation if they beat TCU this weekend, but Texas Tech officials would not publicly confirm that decision.

If Texas Tech fails to beat TCU, Crumbley said that the Peach Bowl has not ruled out North Carolina or possibly Pittsburgh.

North Carolina State and Houston last met in a regular season game in 1967 when the Wolfpack upset the third-ranked Cougars 16-6. North Carolina State, 7-2, opened the 1974 season with six straight victories and climbed to No. 8 in the nation before losing to North Carolina and Maryland.

Houston lost two of its first three games, then rallied to win five in a row.

Florida and Nebraska have previously been selected to go to the Sugar Bowl, Penn State will meet the winner of the Southwest Conference in the Cotton and the Orange will feature a battle between Notre Dame and Alabama. The winners of the Big Ten and Pacific-8 Conferences will determine the entrants in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day.

Tighter Limits On Kiddie Shows

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The National Association of Broadcasters now lets stations subscribe to its code of standards air up to 12 minutes of "nonprogram" material—commercials, promotional blurbs and so forth—during each hour of their Saturday morning children's shows.

Faced with continued prodding by parents' groups and possible Federal Communications Commission action, the NAB in July cut that time to 10 minutes, starting in January, and to 9½ minutes by 1976.

It seems like a goodly slice. But in recent years, the four Post-Newsweek TV stations and the five owned by Group W have had even fewer minutes per hour open to prospective kiddie show sponsors.

Group W allows six minutes per hour, the Post-Newsweek stations eight minutes. Both companies say the restrictions apply on all days of the week, not just Saturday mornings. There's a major catch: The restrictions only apply to programs produced by the stations or their parent companies or purchased by the stations, the companies say.

All nine stations are network affiliates. Company officials say they can't do anything about the number of commercials in network-provided shows—the networks all adhere to NAB guidelines—because the ads are part of the network program packages. Still, the companies' commercial time limits for non-network children's shows are considerably below the maximum the NAB code will allow in 1976. Why were the tighter restrictions adopted?

It's simple, says Ray Hubbard, vice president for programming at Post-Newsweek's stations in Miami and Jacksonville, Fla., Washington, D.C., and Hartford, Conn.

"Saturday morning is prime viewing time for children," he said. "We saw no reason why children should look at more commercials in their prime time than adults do in their prime time."

Hubbard, who said the limit was adopted in 1970, referred to the fact the NAB only allows 9½ minutes of "nonprogram" material per hour in prime evening time, when the TV audience is primarily adult.

Winthrop Baker, president of Group W's stations in Baltimore, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and San Francisco, was somewhat more blunt about why his company adopted its six-minute-per-hour rule.

He said while he wasn't involved in the decision, "the people here felt the children's programs were excessively commercial and that we'd do something about it in those areas where we had direct control."

Fertilizer Use Argued

CHARLOTTE (AP)—You can get "yes" and "no" opinions on whether reducing the use of fertilizer on lawns, shrubs and golf courses would help much to feed the world's hungry.

A bipartisan Senate resolution has asked President Ford to appeal to Americans to do so.

But Conrad Furr, Charlotte nurseryman, says there is "not a lick of truth" to reports of a world fertilizer shortage. In any case, the amount of fertilizer used on ornamentals in this country wouldn't put a dent in the supply, he says.

Ken Folkes, professional at the Pawtucket golf course in Charlotte, says, "Fertilizer producers are creating their own shortage to jack up prices...I'm not going to do anything to alter my golf course until someone proves there is a fertilizer shortage."

But the Rev. Herman Nicholson, pastor of Providence United Methodist Church in Charlotte, believes there is a shortage. "We used to fertilize the church's lawn in the spring and fall," he says. "But because of the fertilizer shortage and the starving people in the world, we recently decided to stop this practice."

Nicholson estimates that caretakers used about a ton of fertilizer a year on the two-acre lawn.

Goodwill Voyage?

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—A proposal to send a "Great White Fleet" of about 24 warships on a world-circling voyage is circulating in high Navy circles, the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot says.

The newspaper said today that the proposed voyage is designed to tie in with America's bicentennial celebration and enhance the Navy's image at home and abroad.

The proposal reportedly suggests that such goodwill visits would dispell the wariness with which some countries view the United States after the Vietnam war, the newspaper said.

Navy officials said the idea, now only a theoretical concept, falls into the realm of "possible future operations" and can't be discussed, the Virginian-Pilot said.

The fleet would be named after President Theodore Roosevelt's Great White Fleet of 1908, which visited six continents and traveled more than 42,220 miles in 535 days.

Opening lead: King of ♥.
Here is an opportunity for you to play in a game with some of the world's great experts. In a major team match you are sitting West and the opponents reach four spades—though the auction is somewhat unusual, your opponents have arrived in the only game contract that stands a chance. An international championship hangs in the balance. If South succeeds in his contract, his team will win the title; if he goes down, you are the champions.

You lead the king and queen of hearts, both of which win, and continue with a third heart which declarer ruffs. He leads the king of spades. Plan your defense.

You are at the crucial point of the hand. If you took the ace of spades, you can no longer defeat the contract. Declarer wins any return you make, finesse the ten of spades and draws the outstanding trumps with the queen. Now, he takes the rest of the tricks with his minor suit winners.

But see what happens if you allow declarer's king of spades to win! Declarer must draw trumps, so he continues with another spade. Again, you must refuse to take the ace. You play the jack and dummy's queen wins—but now there is no way for declarer to make his game.

Declarer cannot afford to play a third round of trumps, for that will exhaust all his trumps. Thus, when you win the ace, you will be able to cash another heart trick for a one-trick set.

However, declarer cannot make his contract if he does not play a third round of trumps. When he tries to run diamonds, East ruffs his third round with his remaining trump to complete the defensive book, and West's ace of spades is the setting trick.

Congratulations on winning your first big bridge championship!

Singing Groups To Give Concert

A Spiritual Concert featuring three eastern North Carolina singing groups will be held at 8 p.m. Friday, in the Greenville Moose Lodge.

The three groups to be singing are the Masters of Rocky Mount; The Assembly Quartet of Askeville; and the Light House Singles of Windsor.

Admission is $2.00 for adults, $1.00 for children six to 12 years of age, and free to children under 6. Proceeds go to the Hopewell Pentecostal Holiness Building Fund.

North Carolina hens, market steady on heavy types, supplies barely adequate and demand good. Heavies at farm 18.5 to 19. F.O.B. plants 22 to 23.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today amid disappointment over a second straight weekly decline in the nation's money supply.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 3.67 at 668.26, but gainers outpaced losers by about 6 to 5 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was fairly active. After Thursday's close, the Federal Reserve released weekly figures that showed a $2-billion drop in the money supply—the total of cash and checking account deposits in the economy.

Analysts noted that investors have been hoping lately to see a trend toward faster growth in the money supply to provide the fuel for an economic pickup next year.

Lending some support to the market was a continued downward trend in the prime lending rate, with major banks in New York and Chicago cutting the basic charge on corporate loans from 10 1/2 to 10 1/4 per cent.

International Telephone & Telegraph, the Big Board volume leader, was up 1/4 at 16 1/2.

Mesta Machine, which reported sharply lower earnings for the first nine months of the year, fell 1 1/2 to 20 1/2.

Gold issues surged as the price of bullion hit a new high in London. ASA, Ltd., was up 4 1/2 to 89 1/2; Homestake Mining, 3 1/2 to 54; and Dome Mines, 2 1/2 to 58 1/2.

The NYSE's 11 a.m. composite index of all its listed common stocks was off .01 at 39.73.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index lost .14 to 69.71.

Texas International led the Amex most-active list, up 1/2 at 6 1/2 on higher third quarter profits.
