

Oil States Reduce Price, Increase Tax

By HOLGER JENSEN

Associated Press Writer
Three Arab oil states have cut their oil prices by 3.5 per cent. But they also increased taxes and royalties charged foreign oil companies, making it unlikely that consumers will get any reduction.

Saudi Arabia, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates announced on Sunday they were slicing 40 cents off the posted price of $11.65 per barrel of crude oil. They said this would remain in effect through next July.

This applies to the governments' 60 per cent share of their countries' oil production which they sell back to the oil companies or to other purchasers. But to prevent any decline in revenue, the three governments ordered a 17 per cent increase in taxes and royalties paid by foreign oil companies on the 40 per cent of production which they still own.

The price-tax moves were announced in Abu Dhabi after a two-day meeting of the six Persian Gulf oil states. The three other countries—Iran, Kuwait and Iraq—did not go along with the price-tax shuffle. They said that any such decision should be taken by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, which is meeting Dec. 12 in Vienna.

Elsewhere in the Middle East:

The United States and Egypt signed an agreement for the sale of 200,000 tons of American wheat to Egypt for $38.7 million, to be paid for over 20 years at 3 per cent interest. This supplements an earlier U.S. sale of 100,000 tons for $17.5 million. Officials said the 200,000 tons will be .4 per cent of the

Air Raid

TEL AVIV (AP)—Israeli jet fighters bombed Arab guerrilla concentrations in Lebanon today for the first time in three weeks, the military command said. No damage or casualties were immediately reported.

The attack came only a few hours after Israel warned it would continue its all-out war on terrorists.

A spokesman said the planes returned safely to base after the mission over southeast Lebanon, an area the Israelis call "Fatahland" for the high concentration of Al Fatah guerrillas.

No specific guerrilla action prompted the attack, the spokesman said, adding, "We hit them wherever we think is best and whenever the time is right."

American harvest this year.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, in Cairo for the signing, said the United States would also provide Egypt with $10 million worth of tobacco and 60,000 bales of cotton.

The Israeli government announced a drastic austerity program to rebuild its foreign currency reserves so it can continue to buy arms. The program includes a 43 per cent devaluation in the pound, increases in the prices of food, gasoline and electricity, a wage freeze, import curbs and new taxes. Hundreds rioted in a Tel Aviv slum area in protest, but Premier Yitzhak Rabin warned that more severe measures will come soon.

"Arms have poured into the Arab countries and we have had to confront this increased strength," he said in a televised speech.

Israel's arch foe, guerrilla chief Yasir Arafat, said that only the United States can prevent a new Middle East war by halting "unconditional aid" to the Jewish state.

Speaking on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers," the head of the Palestine Liberation Organization said that another Middle East war is inevitable: "I can see it. I can touch it."

The only way to avert it, he said, is for America to "stop its joint planning with Israel." Arafat was interviewed somewhere in Lebanon.

Predicts 3-Week Strike

WASHINGTON (AP)—A nationwide coal strike will begin just after midnight tonight and a top official of the United Mine Workers predicted today that the walkout will last about three weeks.

Most coal mines already were shut for the Veteran's Day holiday while union and industry negotiators continued efforts to resolve differences over a new contract.

As he arrived for today's bargaining session, UMW Vice President Mike Trbovich said failure to reach an agreement before tonight's official strike deadline will prolong the walkout at least another week beyond the union's earlier two-week forecast.

"By not coming up with a contract last night or early this morning, I think we're in for a three-week strike," Trbovich told reporters. He said the major obstacle holding up a settlement is the economic package dealing with wages, pensions, sick pay and other benefits.

Only a few non-economic issues remained and the union official said these will be resolved.

NEW YORK (AP)—Yasir Arafat, head of the Palestine Liberation organization, was flying to New York today with a 17-member PLO delegation that will appear during the United Nations debate on Palestine, guerrilla sources said.

However, neither the guerrilla sources in Beirut nor authorities in New York would add any details for security reasons.

Arafat had not been expected to arrive until after the 14-day U.N. General Assembly debate begins on Wednesday.

Security-conscious American officials were still trying to persuade the Palestinians to stay at a military garrison or on the Coast Guard installation on Governor's island at the tip of Manhattan.

possibility Arafat may get his visa from an Embassy on the way to New York.

Last Thursday at a secret location in Lebanon, Arafat taped an interview that was aired Sunday on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers" program.

In the interview he was asked if he thought another Middle East war was inevitable.

Moving his hands before him Arafat replied: "I can see it. I can touch it."

Asked how it might be avoided, he said "If America stops its unconditional aid; if America stops its continued support; if America stops its joint planning with Israel, then we can stop the war."

If another war breaks out, Arafat said the Arabs "must use the oil weapon— isn't it one of their available weapons?"

The Beirut newspaper As Safir said Arafat in his speech would ask the General Assembly to adopt a resolution:

—Recognizing the PLO as the sole legitimate representative of the 3 million Palestinians in the Middle East.

—Endorsing the organization's right to set up an independent Palestinian state consisting of the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

—Requiring that both territories be placed under U.N. trusteeship until their delivery to the PLO if and when Israeli gives them up. Israel captured the West Bank and the Gaza Strip in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

TRAFFIC TIEUP

Buses leaving Rose High School in the afternoons tie up through traffic on 14th Street too long. Wouldn't it help to have buses lined up and ready to exit and taking turns with other traffic? Or could they exit from Elm Street? Mrs. S. F. J.

"At this point the present solution seems to be the best one we have been able to come up with," City School Superintendent Glenn Cox said. "To exit on Elm Street would place buses in more traffic and mix them with walking students. We recognize it as a problem and Rose High Principal Robert Alligood and the Traffic Department of the Police Department have worked together to try to solve it. The crossing guard is there to help control traffic."

SIGNS MOVED

To J. S., who suggested in the Monday, Oct. 21 Hotline column that "No Turn on Red" signs be located where the first driver in line at an intersection could easily see them: City Manager Bill Carstarphen said your suggestion was a good one, so good that the city immediately went to work to change the placement of all these signs that had been on the right side of the street adjacent to where the first car in line would probably be. They are not placed on the corner on the right across the intersection, where they may best be seen by the first driver in line. He asked that we convey the City's appreciation for your idea.

Coal Strike 'Cruel' To Low-Income Families

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—The impending strike in the West Virginia coal mines threatens to make it a cruelly cold winter for hundreds of low income families in Raleigh.

Most Raleigh residents' heating bills are indirectly tied to the cost of coal through the fuel cost escalator clause applied to power bills by Carolina Power and Light Co.

But people like Clara Bagley know first hand how the cost of coal has been rising. They burn it in coal stoves that are the only heat in their dilapidated homes.

Mrs. Bagley, who is recovering from a gallstone operation, shivered under two blankets in her cold living room when a reporter visited her recently.

"Coal's too high. My husband's going out to the country and try and find some cheap. We can't buy no coal."

Cracks in the plaster behind her let in cold drafts as her two children returned from school. They did not take off their coats. "Yeah, I wear it all the time," said Renee, 14. "It's cold."

A short distance away, Inez Brandon, 73, pulled a sweater more tightly around her. She buys coal in 50-pound bags that cost her $4 each, twice as much as she paid last winter.

If she is careful, she can heat one room in her duplex with such a bag for two or three days. "If the price goes up like it has been, I'm not going to be able to buy any more," she said.

The man people like Mrs. Brandon blame for the situation is Raleigh's only remaining coal supplier, N.W. Smith of Smith Coal and Oil Co. Smith says it's not his fault.

Smith sold a ton of coal last year for $43.50.

This year he charges $74. Just last week, the price was $70, but his suppliers raised the wholesale price $3.50 and he raised the retail price $4.

Smith said the utilities are buying coal madly and driving the price up. He said he can't get all of his orders filled. When he places an order, he doesn't get a quoted price. The mines charge the going rate at delivery. It is always higher.

"They (his customers) think I'm the one doing the robbing, but I'm not," he said.

Cover-Up Jury Begins Hearing White House Tapes Evidence Today

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The jury in the Watergate cover-up trial, listening to a June 23, 1972, White House tape, today heard defendant H. R. Haldeman obtain the approval of former President Nixon for a plan to use the Central Intelligence Agency to choke off the original FBI investigation into Watergate.

Donning olive-green earphones, the jurors listened as Haldeman proposed that the deputy director of the CIA call the FBI and say:

"Stay the hell out of this ... We don't want you to go any further on it."

Haldeman suggests that he and defendant John D. Ehrlichman call in the two top officials of the CIA and direct them to warn off the FBI from investigating the financing of the June 17, 1972, break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters.

On the tape, Nixon replies, "All right, fine."

Shortly before the tape was played, Gen. Vernon A. Walters, deputy CIA director, testified that he was summoned to the White House within a few hours of the Haldeman-Nixon meeting and ordered to persuade then acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III that CIA resources were jeopardized.

The June 23 tape also involves defendant and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

Nixon asks Haldeman, "Well, what the hell, did Mitchell know about this thing to any much of a degree?"

Haldeman: "I think so. I don't think he knew the details, but I think he knew."

Nixon kept the existence of the June 23 tape secret until Aug. 5, just a few days before he resigned the presidency.

On the transcript released then by Nixon, the President is heard to summarize how the CIA would be drawn into the cover-up.

That transcript quoted Nixon as saying, "They (the CIA) should call the FBI in and (unintelligible) don't go any further into this case, period."

That quote was left out of the tape played for the jury. Watergate prosecutors have expressed fear that the pardon granted Nixon from prosecution in the cover-up case and other investigations might influence the jury's willingness to convict the five defendants.

Earlier, U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica had agreed to defense requests that a crucial word on the tape be described as unintelligible on the transcript seen by the jury.

The word spoken by Haldeman is "Gemstone," the code name for the plan to wiretap the Democrats.

To at least one listener, the word "Gemstone" could easily be heard and recognized.

Sirica earlier denied a request for a separate trial and for a mistrial from two of the defendants in the trial.

Sirica acted just before Watergate prosecutors were scheduled to begin playing a series of 26 white House tapes they say is the most important part of their case.

Among them is the last tape made public by Richard M. Nixon before he resigned the presidency.

Children's Book Week Begun

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Children's Book Week in Greenville, in Pitt County and across the nation begins today, marking the 55th anniversary of a week set aside to emphasize the importance of books for children. . . as a source of pleasure and a vital part of a child's formative training.

The national theme for Children's Book Week, November 11-17, 1974 is one that allows a full scope of emphasis. The theme is "Books For All Reasons."

To make the local observance of Children's Book Week as inclusive as possible, Mrs. Kay Taylor, Children's Librarian at Sheppard Memorial Library and Joe Stines, Librarian at East Branch Library, some time ago formulated a plan to involve all interested school children. This was a literary and drawing contest, with every student invited to submit original work to be judged, and with winners to be announced during Children's Book Week.

"We contacted county and city schools," Mrs. Taylor said, "30 of them altogether. In using the contest method, we had three goals in mind. One is to solicit creative efforts on the part of children. A second is to foster public schools and public libraries working together, and the third is to encourage community involvement.

"This year, there's a good deal of community involvement. For example, we have drawn judges from a children's literature class at East Carolina University, from advanced English students at Rose High School, and from personnel at Pitt Technical Institute. All these people are joining together to select what they feel is the best and most original work by the students."

Mrs. Taylor noted that of the 30 schools invited to participate, 24 had had students to enter. "Also, I want to point out that several local merchants have given valuable support by donating prizes to be awarded to children."

Altogether, 50 prizes will be awarded to students. "This will be by grades," Mrs. Taylor said. "We feel this is the best approach for this type of contest and that it will stimulate continued interest on the part of children in writing or drawing."

Mrs. Taylor and Joe Stines purposely kept the rules flexible so that a child could enter a very short piece or a long piece, in prose or in poetry.

For the grand prize, an autographed copy of a book by the author of a National Book Award winner will be given. "Individual schools will also be having their own programs," Mrs. Taylor said. "Some will have no more than posters and displays, other schools will have far more extensive programs."

Elmhurst Elementary School, which in the past has had an excellent response to a program of having children make their own books—writing, illustrating, assembling, and binding with materials of their own choice, is once more repeating the program this year. The children themselves will choose books they like as third place winners. Each book chosen will receive an Elmhurst Book Award.

Focus on books will be carried out every day of the week, with talks to be given by Mrs. Taylor, Miss Sally Klingenschmitt and Miss Elizabeth Hyman. On Wednesday, Mrs. Mae Austin's class will present a play; and on Friday classes will assemble in groups to hear a reading by authors of the winning books.

At Wahl-Coates School, Miss Eunice McGee, Mrs. D. Brown and Miss Sally Klingenschmitt will conduct story telling sessions for children of kindergarten through the third grade. Students of grades four through six will meet and talk with Mrs. Joyce Beaman the author of a juvenile book about North Carolina, Broken Acres.

The origin of Children's Book Week dates back to 1919, when Franklin Mathews, a Boy Scout Librarian, wanted a specific week set aside each year in which reading in the home would be encouraged. The first week in observance of this idea was sponsored cooperatively by the Boy Scouts of America, the American Booksellers Association and the American Library Association.

The idea became popular and continued to gain wider national acceptance. In 1945, following the formation of the Children's Book Council, Children's Book Week came under the sponsorship of this council, composed of children's book editors.

Each year, Children's Book Week is highlighted across the nation in libraries and in schools. In addition to special programs, the idea is commemorated by lively posters, bookmarks, streamers and other colorful reminders that for all ages there are "Books For All Reasons."

Awards will be given in first, second and third prize categories in three categories: Cub Scout with the best and most original design; the pack with the best attendance including scouts and parents; and the leader with the most original costume.

A number of adult subcommittees have been set up to supervise the Gold Rush events.

Historical Soc. Meeting

The Pitt County Historical Society will meet Thursday, at 7 p.m. at Parker's Barbecue Restaurant. The speaker for the evening will be Dr. Joseph Congleton of the School of Education at East Carolina University.

Dr. Congleton has been conducting a study on the history of education in the city of Greenville and is now expanding his work to include the rest of Pitt County. His address at Thursday's meeting will include a resume of the research which he has completed with the emphasis largely on early schools and teachers in Greenville.

Dr. Ralph Hardee Rives, president of the Historical Society, has also announced that prior to Dr. Congleton's address, Dr. Louis Zincone, also of ECU, will show colored slides of the flag-raising ceremony which was sponsored by the society on the first day of the recent Bicentennial celebration. Orders for copies of these slides will be taken by Dr. Zincone.

Reservations for the dinner must be made by noon on Wednesday with the society's secretary, Miss Annie Turner, of 1701 E. Fourth St.

Prices Cut Sugar-Use

WASHINGTON (AP)—Record high sugar prices have provoked consumers in the United States and some other wealthy countries to cut consumption, the Agriculture Department says.

Retail sugar prices have climbed sharply in the United States and show no sign of retreating soon. Five-pound bags of sugar that cost about 70 cents a year ago were selling for $2.20 or more last week and were expected by some retail officials to climb to over $3 per bag in the near future.

L.C. Hurt, a specialist in the Department of Agriculture's Foreign Agricultural Service, predicted that world sugar output in the crop year which began last May 1 will be a record 81.1 million metric tons, but world consumption will take practically all that is produced.

The new estimate is about two million tons less than forecast a few months ago, and only 600,000 tons above the 80.5 million tons produced in 1973-74.

Hurt said the production increase is less than one per cent, while consumption is up 1.5 million tons, or almost 2 per cent from the 79.5 million tons consumed last season.

No Benefit Seen Yet In Extended Trading Hours

By LEE MITGANG
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A look at October's New York Stock Exchange volume figures suggests that the first month of extended trading hours did not measure up favorably either to the previous month or to October 1973.

But spokesmen within the investment community, as well as the exchange's chairman, James J. Needham, say it's too early to weigh the success of the longer trading day, which now ends at 4 p.m. instead of 3:30 p.m.

"It's really too early to tell, and I don't think we'll be able to say much until maybe January," Needham said in a recent interview.

A spokesman for the nation's largest brokerage house, Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, says, "The new hours have had a negligible impact. Only a small portion of our orders have come in the extended half hour."

"I haven't found it an advantage yet, but it's really too early to tell," Donald C. Samuel, head of the Energy Fund in New York says.

Surprisingly, reaction was also lukewarm among brokerages on the West Coast, the area many felt would be helped most by the trading extension.

A spokesman for a San Francisco branch of E. F. Hutton Co. said the half hour extended close on the New York Stock Exchange comes at that city's lunch time — 12:30 p.m. to 1 p.m. — normally a lull period in the brokerage business.

G. Robert Ackerman, president of the Pacific Stock Exchange, said there were too many variables to judge how well the extra half hour of trading was going yet.

Based on volume figures supplied by the New York Stock Exchange, there were only two days in October when turnover totaled more than two million shares in the new 3:30-4 p.m. closing half hour. In October 1973, when trading closed at 3:30 p.m., the final half hour produced two million shares 19 times.

This past October, there were 10 days when trading totaled less than 15 million shares, compared with one day a year before.

The tempo of trading in the 3:30-4 p.m. close also was perceptibly slower than the old close. In October 1974, the final half hour accounted for 9.2 per cent of an average day's volume, while a year ago the figure was near 12.5 per cent.

While the final half hour's volume this past October exceeded the penultimate half hour by an average 308,000 shares, that figure was an average 427,000 in October 1973.

Both months, October 1973 and 1974, saw rather vigorous market rallies.

In September 1974, the last month when the closing gong sounded at 3:30 p.m., final half hour turnover averaged 1,612,000 shares. In October, when trading was extended, the average fell to 1,510,000.

Spokesmen for the exchange, including Needham, emphasize the trading extension which took effect Oct. 1 is not an experiment but nonetheless will be monitored from time to time. The American Stock Exchange as well as most regional and Canadian exchanges also lengthened their hours last month.

Those who would like to make friends with some senior citizens have opportunities both in the daytime and at night. Those who would help people find out whether they are eligible for food stamp are needed, too.

For more information about these and other volunteer opportunities, one should call Volunteer Greenville at 758-5703 or 758-2030, or go by the office at 503 E. Fifth Street.

A "Dear Jane" won't work here

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by The Chicago Tribune

DEAR ABBY: It all started last summer when a very pretty but shallow 18-year-old girl came here from Italy to visit her aunt. We were fixed up on a blind date. I am 19 Abby, if it is possible for a girl to rape a boy, that is what happened to me. I mean, she was really eager. We dated all summer.

She went back to Italy and we corresponded. Then she started writing things like, "Nothing else matters to me in this world but you." Also, "I can't wait until we can be married." (I swear to God I never mentioned marriage to her once.)

I tried to break off the correspondence, but she wrote to me anyway. Now she writes that she is coming here to live with her aunt for a YEAR! That's the last thing I want. I want to write and tell her if she's coming to be near me, she shouldn't, because I have a lot of college ahead of me yet. I hate to sound like a heel, but I don't love this girl and I wish she would leave me alone.

She told me that when she was 17 she had a broken love affair and tried to commit suicide and spent three months in a mental hospital, so I have to be careful how I handle her. Please help me. DESPERATE IN N.Y.

DEAR DES: With her history of emotional instability, do not send her a "Dear Jane" letter. You can't stop her from coming, but if she does, let her down gently and ease her out of your life as subtly as possible.

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago, I moved in with an older couple, Jimmy and Laura. They treated me like a daughter and helped me get my head together. I was pretty messed up. I feel I owe them a lot.

Six months ago, I got my own apartment, and three months later I began seeing a lot of this man I work with. I have fallen in love with him. He moved in with me last week and wants to marry me when his divorce is final. I think I love him enough to marry him, but I'm not sure yet. One of the problems is that he is twice as old as I am.

I invited Jimmy and Laura over to meet my guy. They told me privately that they think I am looking for a father and I need to see a shrink. I feel I owe it to them to take their advice. But then if I do, wouldn't it show that I am not sure about my feelings for my guy? D.H.

DEAR D. Yes. But it's nothing to be ashamed of. That takes intelligence! It's a lot easier to make a mistake than remedy it. Get into therapy, and stay single until you are sure of your feelings.

DEAR ABBY: I made the mistake of lending a sympathetic ear to a woman who works with me, and now she calls me nearly every evening at home to tell me her troubles by the hour.

I am not exaggerating, Abby, she often talks for a solid hour and if I don't make some excuse to get away from her, she talks longer.

I have left the phone and rung my own door bell just to end the conversation. Once I actually left the phone for 15 minutes, came back, and she never knew she had been talking to herself. When she starts talking, she doesn't even wait for an occasional sign that she's being heard.

I feel sorry for her, but I simply cannot devote every evening listening to her complaints about her family, her job, and what's wrong with the world. WEARY

DEAR WEARY: Now that you have allowed her to make a habit of calling you, it won't be easy to dissuade her, but you have to start somewhere, so tell her you are too busy to visit when she calls, and after a while she'll get the message.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Competition Helps Everybody

Where does the Republican party go now? Only two years ago the party was riding high. President Nixon had been elected with a huge mandate and in North Carolina the Republicans had made impressive gains, including the election of a GOP senator and governor.

But that was before Watergate. Now Nixon and Agnew have resigned in disgrace. In Tuesday elections the Democratic majorities were increased in Congress.

In North Carolina things couldn't look worse for the Republicans. Two Republican congressmen were lost in the off-year election. In the North Carolina Senate, all but one of the Republican seats was lost, and in the House ten seats were lost.

Politicians and observers began the post-mortem as the election results poured in. The Republican set-back was blamed primarily on Watergate and inflation. Here in North Carolina, however, Gov. Holshouser has to bear some of the blame. He was unable to bring the old and new factions of his party together after the impressive gains were scored in 1972. Since he couldn't, he seemed to concentrate on traditional Republicanism in the Piedmont and West and simply to ignore the "new" Republicans of the East. Shrewd Democrats spotted this and the Eastern vote which had partially deserted the Democratic party in 1972 was smoothly brought back in line.

Good Democrats always want their party to win. At the same time almost everyone—Democrats and Republicans alike—recognizes that the two-party system which was developing in North Carolina was a good thing.

Competition helps everything and the competitiveness of the two-party system was helping the Democrats to recognize that they had to be united going into a general election.

Well, Tuesday had to be a low point for the Republican Party. But with Democrats firmly in control of Congress and the State Legislature, the Democrats will have to take much of the blame for whatever problems develop in the next two years.

Republican leaders must begin now healing their party's wounds and attempting to show a united front for future elections. They can't expect to be a state-wide party without paying some attention to the East, even though the party registration in the East is overwhelmingly Democratic.

Despite last week's setback, we really think the GOP is here to stay in North Carolina, but only if party leaders can look eastward past Raleigh and only if some party unity can be achieved.

Victory Spells Trouble

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—On the surface, things couldn't be rosier for North Carolina Democrats after Tuesday's election sweep.

From the county level on up, they control almost everything worth having in North Carolina politics except the governor's office. Their majority is 49-1 in the Senate and 111-9 in the House.

But it would be a mistake to count the Republicans out prematurely. The overwhelming nature of those majorities could spell trouble for the Democrats in the 1976 elections.

In the legislature, it's much easier for the leadership to control a narrow majority than one as preponderant as the 1975 General Assembly's.

Democrats are a pretty heterogeneous bunch anyway, and it will be doubly tough to convince them that they have to band together in the face of a nonexistent Republican threat.

Given their mandate to govern, the Democrats may find themselves unable to unite behind a program. They are likely to be sharply divided between rural conservatives and urban liberals.

The leadership will also have to guard against partisan excesses. In the House, that danger is particularly imminent, since the leadership will come from the partisan group that sponsored the "stripping bills" of 1973.

The new Speaker, Rep. James C. Green of Bladen County, says there's no need for any legislation of that sort, since the party is confident of capturing the Executive Mansion in 1976 and wouldn't want to weaken it. But Green has never been hesitant to go for a Republican's jugular.

In the Senate, Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt will probably be more attuned to the impression that the legislature will make on the voters of the entire state because he'll be looking toward a gubernatorial campaign in 1976.

But whatever happens, it will be easy for Republicans to blame whatever is wrong at the time on the preponderant Democratic majorities in both the state legislature and the U.S. Congress.

Voters across the state returned to the Democrats Tuesday. They were fed up with Republican corruption and ineffective economic leadership.

They will be looking to the Democrats to give them clean government and progressive economic solutions, both nationally and in the state. It's a tough assignment.

There is no indication that the Democrats on either level have a coherent economic program to enact. And it's tough to, in effect, govern by committee.

But that is what they will be expected to do, and that is what the voters will judge them for in 1976.

THIS AFTERNOON

Walls In The GOP Offices

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—In rebuilding his gubernatorial office complex, Gov. James E. Holshouser has not only erected physical walls and doors, but a mental attitude among staffers which is hard to breach.

There have been repeated occasions of administration experts who were "unavailable" to provide information or answer questions, or who directed such inquiries to their supervisors.

Asked about this on a couple of occasions, the governor has argued that his administration must "speak with one voice."

People working in the Administration Building, however, see the situation as more complex than that.

"People are literally afraid to say anything," one insider confided. "It's a paranoid, but they're afraid to see their names in print."

A secretary in the building who has been there for some years confesses that she now locks her desk whenever she leaves it; a female employee in another section complained that she feels somebody is looking over her shoulder all the time.

An Example
Is all of this necessary to protect programs and provide unity of opinion—even if that is desirable? Here is an example of a typical exchange which took place recently when inquiry was made on a completely non-delicate issue: how many incoming telephones does state government have to provide free long distance calls; who has them; how much do they cost.

Obviously a question of public record; the people have a right to know. Nonetheless, the wall was encountered.

After numerous phone calls, the man who keeps the record was found: "Well, I've got the information... of course... but you will have to clear this with higher authority... You know, Ahem, any information has to be cleared," the bureaucrat explained.

A call to Charles Sutton, assistant secretary of the Department of Administration, produced this exchange:

"Well, Why haven't you gotta have "Well, Why have you gotta have this information? What do you want it for?" Sutton demanded.

A newspaper item was the answer, and besides, it's public information.

"I'm not aware that this is public record... who has ruled on that?" Sutton wondered. "I'll call... and we'll confer... and see what the opinions are as to... on whether or not this is public record."

Assured that the information is indeed public information—any citizen is entitled to it—and that three hours is overly long to spend haggling over such a relatively inconsequential (even though interesting) bit of material, Sutton finally relented and agreed to "release" what in reality belongs to the public in the first place.

Regular Occurrence
Such exchanges have become routine in Raleigh, not only for newsmen, but for citizens making inquiry, and even for members of the General Assembly (particularly Democratic ones).

Where previous administrations operated offices in the sprawling complexes open and available to visitors, the new Holshouser offices are walled off and closed off—access has to be "cleared" to even see certain people, let alone get information.

Many of the people who work in the Administration Building say the development is due to an acute political atmosphere of fear—not of the governor, they insist, but of his key aides such as Gene Anderson and Administration Sec. Bruce Lentz.

Certainly government is more complex than it was when Gov. Clyde R. Hoey used to stroll over to Fayetteville St. for a Coke every morning—but it is, after all, the people's government.

Talking With The Loser

WASHINGTON—In every political contest there is a winner and a loser. You hear a lot from the winner but nothing from the loser. What happens to a defeated candidate? How does he feel?

"Gov. Habadasher," I said.

"Oh, you still remember me?" Habadasher smiled.

"You only lost the election Tuesday, Governor."

"People forget fast in this state, son."

"It must be tough to have been a governor and then be turned out by the people. What was the first thought that came to your mind when they told you that you had lost the election?"

"I thought about all the good things I had hoped to accomplish for this state—the unfinished business that I had started; the dreams that were shattered by an electorate that didn't understand what I was trying to do."

"That's very nice, Governor. But what were you really thinking?"

"Well, if you want me to level with you, the first thought that came to mind was 'Damn, there goes my helicopter.' You know, I really got to love that helicopter. It would land right out there on the front lawn and zoom! I was above all the traffic and the stinking congestion and lousy air down there and I could get to the football game in 15 minutes. There's no feeling like it."

"No one could fault you for thinking that. Do you blame anyone for losing the election?"

"I blame myself, only myself. Of course, I had lousy TV commercials. I mean they really stank. But every time I complained, they told me I didn't know anything about show business. And those infantile newspaper ads didn't help me any, nor did my campaign staff who seemed to be drunk every time I needed them. And I'll tell you this—I got creamed because some idiot was running for senator on the same ticket as I was and his opponent stole all my votes. Except for that, I would say it was my fault."

"That's very generous of you, Governor. Your wife said after your defeat that she was happy you were getting out of politics."

"She was lying. She enjoyed being the governor's wife more than I enjoyed being governor. Boy, did she love all those servants and that chauffeured limousine and everyone playing up to her because she lived in the Mansion. She may have told the press she was happy I was getting out of politics, but she hasn't talked to me since I lost the election."

"Governor, what does the future hold for somebody like you? Where does one go after being the head of a state?"

"I'd like to get into the Cabinet."

"President Ford's Cabinet?"

"Why not? He blew the election for me with his pardon. The least he could do is give me a Cabinet post."

"But if he gave everyone who lost the election a high post in his Administration, the President would have to hold his Cabinet meetings in RFK Stadium."

"That's what my wife said."

"Governor, by American standards, you're a loser. You have tasted the bitter fruit of defeat. Having lived through it, would you advise young people to run for (Continued on page 5)

INSIDE REPORT

Grave Challenge To Ford

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—With his economic and national security programs stymied by a hostile Congress even before Tuesday's Democratic landslide, President Ford's ability to lead is now critically worsened by the huge influx of new liberals to the House.

The election produced a top-heavy Democratic House in which ambitious, younger liberals are already pressing new claims for power, centered on a dominant House Democratic caucus eclipsing standing committee chairmen. The chief claimant: liberal Rep. Philip Burton of California, a crafty 10-year veteran who will challenge moderate Rep. B. F. Sisk of California to become chairman of the caucus, which he wants to convert into the prime Democratic command post.

With an extra 40-plus new Democrats, mostly liberals, Burton may well succeed. That would undercut the meager influence of House Speaker Carl Albert, a moderate, and slash away at the waning power of Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

This wholly different House (coupled with a Senate long under liberal domination) confronts a President whose impact on the voters was shown Tuesday to be abysmally low and whose standing within his own party today has dropped radically. With conservative Republicans tagging Mr. Ford as their scapegoat, he is ill-prepared for the harsh new reality on Capitol Hill.

So sweeping was the liberal victory that late election night at AFL-CIO national headquarters in downtown Washington, one labor strategist remarked privately that from George Meany on down, the moguls of organized labor (whose money and organization were essential for the Democratic triumph) were uneasy. They fear the new 94th Congress is "too far left," particularly on foreign policy.

A few blocks away that night at the Democratic National Committee, top party strategists privately admitted the new Democratic majority has no program in being to compete with Mr. Ford's unacceptable economic proposals. Democratic national chairman Robert Strauss and Speaker Albert agreed it was imperative to propose specifics.

Thus, the voters Tuesday may have concocted a noxious brew of legislative deadlock, without hope for compromise between a weak, nonelected President and a Congress longer on thirst for combat than a carefully prepared program. Nowhere is this danger more evident than to the President's national security policy.

This year, for the first time since World War II, a President has been unable to get a foreign aid bill through even the present Congress. Mr. Ford's military budget was deeply slashed. His fight to prevent cutting off aid to Turkey was stymied.

But top administration strategists believe this string of foreign policy setbacks may be dwarfed by a runaway Democratic Congress using Pentagon and foreign aid spending as a natural resource to finance anti-recession programs and tax cuts.

Behind this prospect in Washington is a frightening world backdrop: gradual deterioration of the Western alliance. The international oil cartel's drastic increase is not only hastening economic disintegration of the Western democracies but threatens the alliance itself. Having led the West for 30 years, the U.S. has been losing influence steadily, with Soviet-backed Communist parties making dangerous inroads all over Western Europe (most (Continued on page 5)

Public Forum

To the editor:
In Mrs. Harrison's letter (about a week ago), she stated some things that upset her: vulgarity and profanity everywhere and the foul words her fourth grader picked up in school. It has been 23 years since I was in the fourth grade, but I still have memories of all the four-letter words that flourished in school then. I used and wrote them; we all did. Life goes on, and children still love to use "grown-up" words, especially in the schools. Mrs. Harrison states that if parents don't teach their children right from wrong, then the schools should take this responsibility. Now really! This would be a losing battle, as the schools would get the children about five or six years too late. We, as parents, during this time have already molded their lives, and, as stated in Proverbs 22: "Train up a child in the way he should go: And when he is old, he will not depart from it."

As to the morals, or lack of them, in America today, I seem to recall something Shakespeare said, "Nothing is ever bad or good, but thinking makes it so."

THE SPECTRUM OF RELIGIOUS EXPERIENCE
The religious experience is much broader and comprehensive than the doctrines and rituals of any of our denominations.

Someone has said, "If you could get religion like a Methodist, and experience it like a Baptist, and be positive about it like a Disciple, and be proud of it like an Episcopalian, and pay for it like a Presbyterian, and propagate it like an Adventist—that would be real religion!" To which one might add, that if one would be loyal to one's religion like a Catholic and willing to die for it like a Jew, the religious experience would be complete.

All of us tend to think of religion in the terms of our own denominations. But sincere and devoted as these denominations are, they can only enlightening, and very productive of brotherhood, if we would periodically attend services at a number of churches other than our own.

The Mood Grows More Somber

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—The economic climate has changed. As with the approach of fall, the mood of the people grows more somber with the developing coolness. They think of security. They reflect rather than act.

Many families are paying off bills and declining to use their credit cards, concluding that this isn't the time to begin new projects. Business too is curtailing its spending for expansion and improvement.

Talks of layoffs are rising. The latest jobless rate, for October, was 6 per cent, but it is probably higher at this date. Many of the big concerns have slowed or ceased hiring.

Merchants are holding sales. In New York City, some men's clothing retailers have pared 50 per cent or 75 per cent from their prices, and that isn't just shoptalk. They're hurting.

Another sign of declining economic activity is the type of tale you hear from the merchants and manufacturers. As Christmas approaches they're trying to convince the public that a buyer's market exists.

In some instances this is true; in others it's merely promotional. Convince the people we're hurting, they say, and the people will move in for the kill. They'll think in terms of distress prices and fantastic bargains.

No amount of encouragement is going to lure certain customers out to shop because they're too busy trying to make ends meet.

In sympathy with their customers, the recognizing that resistance to prices is also considered patriotic, some food chains have been telling their customers to boycott items, notably sugar.

All is not bleak, however, if you look beyond the recession to the future, perhaps to the fall of 1975 or even before. Interest rates will be lower. Real estate speculation will have lessened. Shortages might be alleviated.

Some economists still argue that recession is good for the economic soul, purging it of excesses and abuses. They view it as a diet or a penance that will set things right again.

Few people will argue that these are indeed some of the results of recession. Few people will disagree that millions of Americans had developed the notion that they were owed a living.

But for the most part, recession as a cure for inflation is considered a medieval concept, it being too torturous a process, and perhaps too damaging in the long run.

And that brings us to the questioned never answered by the economists, who claim to have so many answers: If recession are unacceptable, why then do we suffer them rather than avoid them?

Crosstown Busing Is Accepted As 'Fact Of Life'

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — After nearly a decade of court battles, angry words and political wrangling, busing has been accepted as a fact of life in the city that pioneered massive crosstown busing.

Many whites say they still don't like busing and would like to see a constitutional amendment prohibiting it. But the days of petitions and posters, rallies and telegram campaigns, are over.

Massive busing to achieve racial balance, which has recently bit northern and western cities, came to Charlotte in 1970 following nearly five years of legal proceedings.

The court order was bitter medicine for whites in this conservative Southern city. However, school officials hope the worst of the controversy is over.

"I can't say that I personally am completely happy with the situation which now exists in our schools in regard to pupil assignments," said William Poe, chairman of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg board of education. "But I am firmly convinced that there is better public understanding of the problems which now exist than ever before."

"I just think they've tried to live with it," said Sam

McNinch, a former board of education member and one-time leader of the antibusing group. "I think they've been knocked in the head so many times they're tired of fighting it."

The shift in public opinion came after the school board exhausted all legal appeals, and after thousands of whites fled the public system for private schools or neighboring counties.

The busing order, issued by U.S. District Court Judge James B. McMillan, was at the time the most extensive in the country. Nearly 12,500 students were bused under the order.

Busing prompted the same widespread protests among parents, political figures and school officials that have occurred in Northern cities now faced with busing.

One state legislator challenged the order in the courts, arguing that it violated a state law against forced busing. A federal panel ruled most of the state law unconstitutional.

A group called the Concerned Parents Association held rallies, distributed petitions and threatened boycotts. School officials said the order would disrupt the system and force the system to spend millions of dollars in transportation costs.

Public rhetoric centered around such issues on neighborhood schools, and the safety of the children rather than on segregation.

"It's not that I don't want my children going to an integrated school," said one antibusing leader at a 1970 rally. "I'm concerned about the distance. I don't think it makes sense to send children across town."

The board of education appealed in the ruling to the 4th U.S. Circuit of Appeals, which upheld part of the order but struck down the section requiring elementary school busing. In a 4-2 ruling, the court found that every school in a unitary system need not be racially balanced.

The NAACP Legal Defense Fund appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court. On April 28, 1971, the high court reversed the appellate decision and held that busing was a legitimate means of achieving school desegregation.

The ruling ended the rallies and the petitions but not the controversy. Since the 1970 order, thousands of affluent whites have enrolled their children in the county's 30 private schools, which now have a total enrollment of some 8,000.

Thirteen of the private schools were organized after the busing order.

"We've been round since 1887," said Sister Mary Picot of Charlotte Catholic High School. "But when court-ordered desegregation began, we were suddenly faced with an enormous number of devout Catholics."

School authorities say fear of busing was one of the factors responsible for a decline of some 1,000 in the public system since last year. There are about 77,500 students in the system.

Although the drain continues, school officials believe it is tapering off and that whites are adjusting to the situation.

"Once the community and the parents and the school system realized that this was something that was going to be, then they said, 'Well, let's make it work,'" said Gerson Stroud, a black desegregation specialist with the school system.

School board elections of the last three years point to a shift. A year after the Supreme Court ruling, two moderates were elected to the board after pledging to cooperate with the busing order. In an election last May, McNinch, one of the board's most vocal anti-busing members, was defeated for reelection.

A citizens group was organized earlier this year to assist the board in drawing up a pupil assignment plan that would meet the standards laid down by the court.

The board and Judge McMillan had been at odds over an assignment plan since the Supreme Court ruling. The board, fearing a mass exodus by whites, was reluctant to order large scale busing of white children to inner city schools. Blacks claimed board policy made them bear the brunt of busing.

With the citizens group, the board drafted a new plan last summer which shifted more of the busing to whites. McMillan approved the plan last June.

"Those of us who had been here and been through it all from the beginning began to recognize that there were still advantages to be gained (from busing)," said one group member.

The business community, through the Chamber of Commerce, also pledged to support the assignment plan, agreeing to higher taxes to finance extra busing costs. Four years earlier, the chamber had urged the board to appeal McMillan's busing order.

"Our community has the opportunity to heal what has been the major disruptive force in our midst, cutting across the fabric of our community life," said Spokesman Walter Barr in announcing Chamber support.

But what effect has the controversy had on the schools?

"I think it has diluted the standards terribly," said McNinch. "I don't think that at this time it ought to be blamed entirely on the blacks. But in order to make the program work, the standards have been diluted so low that any child can do well."

Some teachers have complained that they were pressured to promote all students, regardless of their performance, and that classroom discipline had deteriorated.

"They want everybody to pass so they won't feel frustrated," said one veteran teacher. "They want everybody to be happy because it looks good for the system."

Within the last two years, several high schools have experienced interracial fighting, which in some cases forced cancellation of classes.

Last month, county police were called to Olympic High School to restore order after fighting among about 100 blacks and whites.

Word of the outbreak prompted the Boston school board to recall a delegation of high school students who had come to Charlotte to take a look at desegregation here.

The trip had been arranged by students at West Charlotte High School, who wrote the Boston Globe urging Bostonians to give integration a chance.

Despite trouble, school officials and McNinch believe the schools are quieter this year than since busing began.

Student leaders, many of whom have been bused since they began high school, say

Charlotte Students Plan Boston Visit

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Charlotte high school students will fly to Boston on Wednesday to talk about school desegregation problems with students there.

The five day trip, organized by 32 community and church groups in Boston, was announced less than a month after four students from racially-troubled Boston high schools visited Charlotte to see how desegregation and busing had worked here.

"We don't have all the answers," said Kitty Huffman, local director of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, which coordinated the visit in Charlotte. "But if there are this many groups in Boston that want to look at it in a positive way, maybe we'll have some suggestions that might help them."

According to Mrs. Huffman, 23 Charlotte students and three chaperones will make the trip, possibly with other youngsters from Columbia, S.C., Charleston, S.C., Atlanta and Jackson, Miss.

Charlotte has used massive crosstown busing to achieve racial balance in the schools since 1970.

The Southern students will be housed at Simmons College, according to Mrs. Huffman, and will not visit high school campuses. They will meet with Boston students off campus, she said.

In Boston, trip coordinator John Kellogg, said the visit

The danger, then, of the new Congress at loggerheads with the President is clear: growing doubt in Europe of U.S. reliability; enticement to Moscow to test President Ford's power; encouragement in Israel, based on its new Democratic supporters in the 94th Congress, to play an even harder line against Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's efforts for a Mideast settlement.

Indeed, the gulf between a President at low ebb in his own party and a potentially runaway liberal Congress poses a challenge for the next two years this country has not faced since 1931-1932, when Herbert Hoover served out his dismal last two years in conflict with a Democratic House of Representatives.

Then, as now, a Republican President could not begin to master the domestic economy. The difference between the gloomy period and the two years ahead is that the United States today are under constant pressure from a powerful Soviet Union. Deadlock between the Congress and President over foreign policy was not even an issue then. Today, it is a potential threat worse even than inflation and recession.

Major Power Plants Have Backlog Of Coal

By The Associated Press
A two-week coal miners' strike apparently would have little effect on the production of electricity in North Carolina and South Carolina.

A survey shows Duke Power Co., South Carolina Electric and Gas Co. and Carolina Power and Light Co., major suppliers in the two states which use coal to generate electricity, have enough coal on hand to last more than two months.

Spokesmen said Duke, the nation's sixth largest utility, and SCE&G have a two-month supply and CP&L, which is more dependent on coal than Duke, has a 90-day supply of coal stockpiled.

John Bowen, attorney for the South Carolina Public Service Commission, said, "We frankly would like them to have...200 days if they could have it" to protect against blackouts.

Staff members of the North Carolina Utilities Commission, and the South Carolina Public Service Commission have been meeting recently with power company officials to work out plans in the event of a prolonged strike.

Utility and regulatory officials agree chances of running completely out of coal in the Carolinas are slim because the steel industry would shut down first and its plight would bring strong pressure to end a strike.

Officials concede, however, that a lengthy strike could bring brownouts and periodic blackouts to residential areas. The most extreme measure, they say, would be to shut off electricity in residential areas for a couple of hours a day. This, they emphasize, would be a last resort.

The first step to stretching the stockpile of coal would be an appeal to the public to voluntarily cut back on the use of electricity, such as lowering furnace thermostats and hanging out clothes to dry rather than use electric dryers.

On the other hand, power companies have several steps they could take to make their coal supply last longer than 60 or 90 days.

The day the strike starts the utilities will have about 10 to 14 days supply of coal in the pipeline. They can make maximum use of nuclear and water-powered plants and can cut voltage by 5 per cent without hurting appliances and motors. And they can buy electricity from oil-burning systems in other areas.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market drifted downward in quiet trading today. Brokers noted that activity was slowed by observance of Veterans Day in a number of states.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 1.64 at 665.52, and losers outstripped gainers by about 4-to-3 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Some brokers offered the view that many investors were withholding commitments until they could see how long the nationwide coal strike, due to begin officially after midnight tonight, might last.

They also pointed to uncertainty over how long the nation's increasingly visible economic slump might continue.

Occidental Petroleum, the NYSE's most-active issue, was down 1/2 at 13 1/4 in profit-taking after a sharp advance last week.

Control Data fell 1 1/2 to 15 1/2 in active trading. The company said it expected inflation and high interest rates to continue pinching its profits in the current quarter.

Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad added 1 1/2 to 11 1/4. The long-standing plan for the merger of the line into Union Pacific was approved, with some conditions and restrictions, by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Sugar stocks added to some strong recent gains encouraged by rising prices for the commodity. Holly Sugar rose 3 to 38 Amalgamated Sugar was up 3 1/2 to 33 1/2, and Michigan Sugar climbed 1 1/2 to 16 1/2 on the American Stock Exchange.

The NYSE's 11 a.m. composite index of all its listed common stocks was down .18 at 39.45.

The Amex market-value index dropped .21 to 69.59.

Bernier To Be Speaker

Rosamond Bernier of New York, an art critic, writer, editor and publisher, will be the speaker for the North Carolina Art Society's annual dinner at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 13, at the Sir Walter Hotel.

The dinner is one of the events of "Art Day," scheduled as part of Culture Week in Raleigh.

Mrs. Bernier was European feature editor of Vogue in Paris and then became co-founder of the art review "L'Oeil" in 1955. She edited the magazine until 1969.

Award winners in the 37th Annual North Carolina Arts Exhibition will be announced at the dinner.

A reception opening the exhibition will follow at the museum.

Full-Time Flag

The American flag is now flying 24 hours a day, seven days a week, over VFW Post 7032 on Mumford Road here.

The members voted unanimously to install floodlights at the base of the flagpole, and under the new international rules of flag practice will fly it all the time.

Post Commander Leon Evans said, "This should remind us at any hour of the day or night of our American heritage and responsibilities, making us continually aware that being a good and loyal American is a full-time job. We have requested Rep. Walter Jones to consider our Post for the honor of displaying a flag that has flown over the U. S. Capitol."

Commander Evans invited all veterans to join the Post. Regular meetings are held on the first and third Thursday nights at the VFW building.

Plane Crash Killed Three

CHARLESTON, S. C. (AP) — Three persons were killed Sunday night when a twin-engine plane crashed after taking off from the Charleston Airport.

Their identities were not immediately confirmed. But relatives and business acquaintances in Columbia said they were Mr. and Mrs. Alan J. Reyner and their son, Jeff, 22. Charleston County Coroner Kenneth Chue said the bodies were burned beyond recognition.

Reyner, a pilot, was an executive of a Columbia automobile dealership, and a pilot. The plane was owned by Love Corporation, a Chevrolet dealership.

Mr. and Mrs. Reyner and their son had flown to Miami for a football game.

The air control tower at Charleston Airport said contact with the aircraft was lost about 7:15 p.m. A search was started immediately and the wreckage was discovered about 8:15 p.m.

The crash site was in a wooded area between the Ashley River and S. C. 61 west of Charleston.

Mud Pours Into Shaft Of Mine

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Hundreds of tons of mud today washed down a shaft at the Impala Platinum Mine, the world's second biggest, killing at least seven miners, a company spokesman said.

A spokesman said the dead included two white miners and "not less than" five black miners, but he denied reports that 2,000 to 3,000 miners were trapped.

An Impala official said the slime poured into the shaft after heavy rains forced a dam to burst at the mine in Bafokeng, near Rustenburg 100 miles from here.

The official said the mud caused considerable damage to surface installations.

PRICE HEARING
RALEIGH (AP)—The N.C. Milk Commission will have a public hearing at 10 a.m. Tuesday on whether the guaranteed price paid to farmers for raw milk should be increased.

In his talk to a Greenville audience on Saturday afternoon during the "Accountability America" symposium, Wilbur Hobby, president of the North Carolina AFL-CIO focused on labor in North Carolina.

Hobby referred to recent attempts on the part of state officials to attract industry to the state by advertising the low wages in North Carolina as compared to the national wage average.

Some of the factors he pointed out were that though North Carolina's workers ranked fourth in productivity nationally, North Carolina ranked right at the bottom of the ladder, sharing with Mississippi the nation's lowest wage scales.

North Carolina workers, Hobby stated, are being paid $1.08 per hour below the national average wage earnings.

Another area Hobby spoke on was the need to press for strict accountability for health and safety conditions for workers in factories. He cited examples of unsafe working conditions in factories and weak, ineffectual enforcement of safety laws.

Hobby mentioned cases in which the union had reported unsafe conditions to the N.C. Labor Department, and stated that although health and safety inspection of businesses were supposed to take place without prior notice, time after time businesses had corrected unsafe conditions immediately prior to the inspector's visit.

Another speaker appearing on the Saturday session of the two day symposium, Dr. W. W. Finlator, stressed the roles of accountability of the people and of the government. Dr. Finlator is Chairman, State Advisory Committee of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights.

Going directly to the wording of the Constitution of the United States, Dr. Finlator said that the forming of a more perfect union means "a union of all the people."

Dr. Finlator talked about the responsibilities of the government—to establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare and secure the blessings of liberty.

He stressed, too, that the Bill of Rights spells out certain things that the government shall not do—such as prohibit the freedom of speech, of the press, of the right of people peaceably to assemble—and of the right of the people to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

In reiterating the basics of the American Studies. Dr. Hedgeman told her Greenville audience it was rare to find young people, students, so really interested in accountability. She emphasized a pressing need for a world vision, a world view of responsibility that includes all people of the world, not just our own isolated view.

Other speakers during the two day symposium included Dr. Vincent Bellis of ECU; Jerry Connelly of the Freedom from Hunger Foundation in Washington, D. C.; Charles Bentley and Elijah Stewart of Durham; and two local clergymen, Father Charles Mulholland of St. Gabriel's and Rev. James Bailey of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

Coal Strike Threat To Steel Industry's Boom

By WILLIAM DIMASCIO
Associated Press Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — The steel industry, bolstered by a no-strike agreement with steelworkers and headed toward record profits through the first three quarters of 1974, faces a major threat from the impending coal strike.

The consensus of industry analysts was that if the strike lasts more than two weeks, layoffs of thousands of steelworkers will begin and production will be curtailed significantly.

Coal company and union representatives have been meeting in Washington and reported progress Sunday night toward an agreement. But a settlement was not likely until midweek, after the start of a nationwide strike. The miners' contract expires at midnight tonight.

Even if a tentative agreement is reached, rank-and-file members must approve it before the strike ends under the union's no contract-no work tradition. Ratification is expected to take eight to 10 days.

The coal strike would be especially costly to the steelmakers if it causes shutdowns.

During shutdowns, the companies face rapidly rising costs for taxes, bonded indebtedness and machinery depreciation.

And the cost of closing down before and restarting after a strike can be staggering.

That's why the no-strike agreement signed last spring with the million-member United Steelworkers Union was especially significant.

While most companies were reluctant to discuss their coal reserves, the American Iron and Steel Institute estimated the industrywide coal stockpile at about 30 days' supply with half the steelmakers with less than 20 days' supply on hand.

Contingency plans vary among steelmakers, who consume one of every six tons of coal mined.

Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. says it will operate normally for the first week and reassess the situation after that.

U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's largest producer, plans to slow production by 25 per cent immediately and 50 per cent if the strike goes past two weeks.

The impact of the strike will be minimized in the steel industry if the mills can keep operating and avoid the costly shut-down and eventual restarts. A cutback by steelmakers eventually would have a crippling effect on related industries, such as automobiles.

But power companies would be able to stretch their energy supplies somewhat by not having to serve the steel companies.

Anderson Sets Pair Of Records

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

On a day when two National Football League quarterbacks bordering on 40 years of age were pitching it up there with the best of them, young Ken Anderson proved to be just that — the best of them.

Anderson, who was eight years old when Sonny Jurgensen and Len Dawson each stepped back into the NFL pocket for the first time in 1957, put on a dazzling display of passing accuracy to lead the Cincinnati Bengals to a 17-10 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers Sunday.

Anderson, 25 and in his fourth pro season out of tiny Augustana College, completed 15 of his first 16 passes to set a consecutive completion record of 16 over two games and 20 of 22 passes — a new NFL efficiency record.

"Anderson was superb," said Cincinnati Coach Paul Brown. "But then, that's the way he usually is."

But threading his passes through the Steelers' defense wasn't all Anderson was called on to do. He also sprinted to the sidelines to make a victory-saving tackle on Mike Wagner after the Steeler safety had scooped up a loose ball in the fourth quarter and was racing toward the game-tying touchdown.

The Bengals now trail league-leading Pittsburgh by one-half game in the AFC Central.

And all this came after Pittsburgh's Glen Edwards had temporarily knocked Anderson out of the game with a vicious tackle.

In the rest of the NFL, it was Dallas 20, San Francisco 14; Washington 27, Philadelphia 20; Denver 17, Baltimore 6; Green Bay 20, Chicago 3; Oakland 35, Detroit 13; Los Angeles 21, Atlanta 0; Miami 21, New Orleans 0; Houston 21, Buffalo 9; Cleveland 21, New England 14; the New York Jets 26, the New York Giants 20 in overtime, and San Diego 14, Kansas City 7.

Minnesota meets St. Louis tonight in a battle of National Football Conference leaders.

Redskins 27, Eagles 20

Sonny Jurgensen, whose aching knees and damaged thigh probably make him feel older than his 40 years, still has a spry right arm. He hit Charley Taylor with a 30-yard scoring pass in the fourth quarter to rally Washington past Philadelphia.

Taylor, who grabbed nine passes including the game-winner with 2:15 left in the game, became the third all-time leading receiver in the NFL.

Chargers 14, Chiefs 7

Lenny Dawson, who has celebrated 39 birthdays, had a day worth celebrating if only his team had won. Dawson passed for 381 yards but was beaten by rookie Jesse Freitas' 71-yard tie-breaking touchdown bomb to Gary Garrison.

Dolphins 21, Saints 0

With the Dolphins' victory, paced by Bob Griese's three first-half touchdown passes and a hammerlock defense, they're back on top with an eye on their third straight Super Bowl crown.

"Our defense was outstanding," said Miami Coach Don Shula. "Our offense was great in the first half."

Browns 21, Patriots 14

The Patriots elected to open the game by kicking into the wind so that the Browns would have to "start off running the ball," said New England Coach Chuck Fairbanks.

They got a lot more running than they bargained for as little Greg Pruitt started running with the kickoff at his 12 and didn't stop until he reached the Patriots' end zone. Pruitt later dashed 25 yards with a fourth-quarter punt to set up Cleveland's tie-breaking touchdown drive, culminated by Ken Brown's four-yard run.

Oilers 21, Bills 9

The Bills, riding a high from their exciting victory over New England last week, came to a crushing low Sunday, losing to the Oilers.

Houston quarterback Dan Pastorini threw a 13-yard scoring strike to Mack Alston and handed off for touchdown runs of 13 yards by Willie Rodgers and nine by Vic Washington.

"We're back in the pack now," said Buffalo Coach Lou Saban, whose club is tied with the awesome Dolphins, both with 7-2 records.

Jets 26, Giants 20

If nothing else, the Jets proved to be the better New York club on Sunday, Nov. 10. But it took five periods to decide this intra-city squabble between a team from Queens, N.Y., and another from New Haven, Conn.

Gimpy-legged Joe Namath, who passed for 236 yards — to Giant quarterback Craig Morton's 237 — uncharacteristically rolled four yards for the game-tying touchdown, then passed five yards with 6:53 gone in the overtime for victory.

Rams 21, Falcons 0

"It didn't look to me like there was a 21-point difference," said Atlanta's Marion Campbell, making his head coaching debut. But only Campbell, replacing the fired Norm Van Brocklin, and the point spread bettors will see it that way.

James Harris fired a pair of touchdown passes and the Los Angeles defense paralyzed the Falcons' attack.

Cowboys 20, 49ers 14

Calvin Hill set two Dallas club records with 32 carries and 153 yards rushing. He scored two touchdowns, including the game-winner on a six-yard run late in the fourth quarter.

Raiders 35, Lions 13

Quarterback Ken Stabler connected with Cliff Branch on touchdown passes of 36 and 15 yards and fullback Marv Hubbard thundered for two more as the Raiders rolled to their eighth straight victory.

Bears 20, Packers 3

Rookie Steve Odom's 95-yard punt return set a club record and snapped a 3-3 tie.

Broncos 17, Colts 6

Denver came out on the short end of practically every offensive statistic except the most important one — points scored.

The Colts ran 38 more plays from scrimmage, outgained the Broncos by 152 yards and collected twice as many first downs, but none of this will show in the standings.

Bill Thompson's defense picked up the Broncos' offensive slack as he stole two Baltimore passes and returned a punt 60 yards, sealing the Colts' fate.

Vikes Picked To Beat The Cardinals

By PAUL LeBAR
AP Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "We've never been to the playoffs, so why should anyone get excited?" an unperplexed quarterback Jim Hart asked.

And, in accepting Hart's approach, the St. Louis Cardinals are shrugging off their three-point underdog status against the Minnesota Vikings in their National Football League game tonight.

The oddsmakers' affront is nothing new for the Cardinals, who carry a 7-1 record into the nationally televised game.

But it may offer special incentive to Jim Otis, a running back who remembers a 14-10 loss to the Vikings, 6-2, in a preseason game.

"They're going to be surprised, that's all I've got to say," predicted Otis, who is expected to team with flashy Terry Metcalf in the Cardinals' backfield.

Confidence was also exuded along that line by Coach Don Coryell, who declared, "I like it when we're the underdog. Our team's going to play hard no matter what the odds are."

A match of Minnesota's stout defense against an explosive St. Louis offense could be a preview to NFL playoff action scheduled for next month.

If the Cards maintain their lead in the National Conference East and the Vikings stay atop the National Conference Central, the teams will clash again Dec. 22 in Minnesota.

"But we better not think that far ahead," warned Coryell, the coach of a team which is coming off three straight 4-9-1 seasons.

"Anything can still happen," the Cards' coach said. "We can't even think beyond this game."

St. Louis, in addition to overturning the odds, would also like to atone for previous poor showings in Monday night games.

In their last two such exposures, the Cards fell 20-17 to the San Diego Chargers in 1971 and 31-10 to the Miami Dolphins the next year.

One who is not taking them lightly is Minnesota Coach Bud Grant, who concedes, "They're going to be coming after us."

Minnesota snapped a two-game slump last week by beating the Chicago Bears 17-10 as the Cards were falling 17-14 to the Dallas Cowboys.

"St. Louis has always been regarded as a team with fine personnel," the Vikings' Grant said. "They've never played up to their potential. I think this year is a credit to their coach."

Roberson's Ordeal Is Finally Over

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

For Coach Scotty Robertson and his New Orleans Jazz, the long ordeal is finally over.

"We have had a lot of bad breaks and a lot of injuries, but I think we proved ourselves tonight," said Robertson, basking in the warmth of his expansion team's hard-fought 102-101 victory over the Portland Trail Blazers Sunday night — New Orleans' first triumph after opening the season with 11 frustrating defeats.

The Jazz won in dramatic fashion, erasing a 23-point third-quarter deficit and finally pulling it out on a 20-foot jump shot from the right corner by a closely guarded Pete Maravich with just two seconds left on the clock.

Maravich led all scorers with 30 points, 22 of them in the second half. He also had 12 assists, 11 rebounds and four steals in a good night's work.

Elsewhere in the NBA Sunday, the Seattle SuperSonics beat the Philadelphia 76ers 109-95, the Buffalo Braves topped the Detroit Pistons 124-117, the Boston Celtics edged the Kansas City-Omaha Kings 102-99, the Atlanta Hawks defeated the Milwaukee Bucks 99-94 and the Golden State Warriors nipped the Los Angeles Lakers 106-103.

The Jazz is now 1-11, but ironically that's just one-half game worse than the Milwaukee Bucks, a perennial NBA power which is off to a 1-10 start.

Milwaukee's lost its 10th game Sunday as two baskets apiece by Tom Van Arsdale and Jim Washington sparked a fourth-quarter Atlanta rally.

Adding to Milwaukee's woes, it will have to play at least two more games without star center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, out with a broken hand.

Bob Lanier scored a season-high 45 points, but that wasn't enough to help the foul-plagued Pistons against Buffalo.

The Pistons led by one point going into the final period, but were outscored 38-30 in the fourth quarter. In that period the Braves were awarded 22 free throws and they sank them all, coming within two of the NBA record.

Fred Brown and Archie Clark sparked Seattle to a 40-21 first-quarter lead and the Sonics were never caught.

Butch Beard's driving layup in the final minute and Keith Wilkes' free throw with 13 seconds to go provided the margin of difference for the Warriors.

Carolina Accepts Bid Despite 54-32 Loss

By The Associated Press
The University of North Carolina football team voted Sunday to accept an invitation to the Sun Bowl in El Paso, Tex., despite an overwhelming 54-32 defeat at the hands of Clemson the day before.

The Tar Heels, 5-4 for the season, voted unanimously to meet Mississippi State in the post-season classic Dec. 28.

This will be North Carolina's fourth bowl appearance in five years. They appeared the 1970 Peach Bowl, the 1971 Gator Bowl and the 1972 Sun Bowl, winning only the Sun Bowl.

Clemson humbled North Carolina with four early touchdowns and led 34-8 at halftime. Quarterback Mark Fellers led the punishment with two touchdowns and passed for two more as Clemson brought its Atlantic Coast Conference record to 3-2 and 5-4 overall, identical to North Carolina's record.

Clemson ran for a whopping 390 yards and passed for 132 more while the Tar Heels totaled 263 on the ground and 193 in the air. North Carolina's 18 points in the last period made the score a bit more respectable.

North Carolina entertains Army Saturday and Duke the week after while Clemson hosts Virginia Saturday and meets South Carolina the following week. Meanwhile, 14-ranked Maryland, bound for the Liberty Bowl in Memphis Dec. 16, can clinch the ACC title Saturday with a win over Duke in the Oyster Bowl at Norfolk, Va., or at Virginia next week in the final game of the regular season. Maryland, 4-0 in the conference and 6-3 overall, rolled over Villanova 41-0 Saturday. It was the Terps' fourth shutout in nine starts.

Tim Wilson scored a pair of touchdowns to lead the Maryland attack while Rick Jennings rushed for a game-high 149 yard on 19 carries. Also Steve Mike-Mayer kicked field goals of 30, 21 and 37 yards to give him a school record of 14 for the season.

North Carolina State, headed for the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl in Houston Dec. 23, did the best job of boosting the ACC's prestige Saturday by upsetting seventh-ranked Penn State, which will play in the Cotton Bowl Jan. 1.

The Wolfpack, 4-2 in the conference and 8-2 overall, defeated Nittany Lions 12-7. Fullback Stan Fritts scored one touchdown from the four-yard line and passed 22 yards for another to lead North Carolina State in its impressive triumph.

The Wolfpack closes out its regular season at Arizona State Saturday.

Two touchdowns by tailback Art Gore led Duke to a 23-7 victory over winless Wake Forest. The win left Duke 2-2 in the ACC and 6-3 on the season while Wake Forest sank deeper in the conference cellar with a 0-6 record and fell to 0-9 for the season.

Virginia stopped Southern Conference leader William and Mary 28-10 Saturday after trailing 10-7 at the half. The victory put the Cavaliers at 4-5 for the season while remaining at 1-3 in league play.

Virginia scored twice in the third period and added a fourth quarter touchdown. Tailback Billy Copeland scored runs of seven and 15 yards to lead the Cavaliers' ground attack that netted 261 yards. Copeland picked up 97 yards in 21 carries.

Virginia journeys to Clemson Saturday and closes out the season next week hosting Maryland.

Show Will Go On

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — In the spirit of show biz, the Charlotte Hornets say Wednesday's show in Memphis will go on as scheduled, despite a late payroll and missing equipment.

Last Wednesday, the sheriff of Caddo Parish, La., locked up the World Football League club's equipment under a court order sought by a New York firm.

The plaintiffs claimed the Hornets owed them more than $26,000 for cleaning and other services while the club was the New York Stars.

Then last Friday, general manager Upton Bell told the players that there was not enough money in the bank to cover their payroll checks. Bell gave the players their checks Sunday, but told them not to cash them until Tuesday "at the earliest."

Player representative John Elliott said that the turn of events had upset some players but that no boycott of Wednesday's game against Memphis was in the works.

"I guarantee you the game will be played," he said. "A few of them are concerned about not having their usual equipment."

SC Race Left Up To VMI

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
AP Sports Writer

After East Carolina's 16-game Southern Conference win streak ended Oct. 19 in a 23-21 upset by Appalachian State's Mountaineers, Coach Pat Dye said, "I haven't convinced the team that you have to go out and play 60 minutes to win a football game in this conference." The Pirates apparently didn't get the message, for their hopes for any more than a tie for a third straight title—and even those hopes are slim—vanished Saturday when they fell to 2-2 with two games left in a 28-20 defeat by Richmond's Spiders.

That all left the race up to Virginia Military's Keydets, 4-1 with a Nov. 23 home game against East Carolina, and to Richmond and Appalachian, 31.

The Mountaineers and Spiders meet Saturday in the final league game for Appalachian, and the Mountaineers must win to stay alive. Richmond finishes Nov. 23 against William and Mary's Indians.

The only weekend winner of the six league teams who met outside foes was Furman, 5-4 over-all. The Paladins beat Lenoir Rhyne 14-10.

VMI, 5-4, lost to Virginia 28-10; William and Mary, 3-6, to Virginia Tech 34-15; Appalachian, 5-5, to South Carolina 21-18; The Citadel's Bulldogs, 2-7, to Navy 28-21; and Davidson's Wildcats, 1-6, to Lehigh 53-6. Richmond is now 5-3 over-all, East Carolina 6-3.

"Our defense played a great football game against one of the best offensive teams we faced this year," said Richmond Coach Jim Tait. "That offense is awesome and we did a good job containing it."

Dye said the Spiders "controlled our defensive line with their offensive line. I never thought they would do that. I didn't think they would line up and run at us like they did."

But the keys to the game were three Pirate fumbles in the first half which Richmond turned into 13 points—field goals of 35 and 21 yards by Terry Carter and an 18-yard TD pass to Rickey Brown from Harry Knight, who hit 10 of 17 for 117 yards.

After East Carolina cut a 10-0 deficit to 10-7 with an 80-yard drive that ate up 9:20, Knight came back with a 62-yard scoring play to Nick Rucci on which two Pirate defenders tipped the ball to Rucci 35 yards from the goal.

"Fumbles no doubt killed us. I guess we gave them all they got in the first half with the exception of the long pass," said Dye.

Mike Weaver, who ran 20 times for 95 yards, set up one Pirate score after intermission with a 47-yard burst. He then ran 22 yards to midfield and lateraled to Bobby Myrick, who went the last 50 yards for another. Myrick had 107 yards on 11 carries.

But the Spiders got a 41-yard scoring reverse from Dinky Jones, and Carter set a school record when he kicked his third field goal, a 25-yarder. "They were a superior football team," said Dye. And Tait, speaking of the conference title, said "at least now we have a chance to play for it."

Lenoir Rhyne built a 10-0 lead over Furman, and Paladin Coach Art Baker said "it looked like we were snakebitten with all the fumbles in the first half. At halftime, we felt like we could win it. You could tell the players thought they could come back."

Harry King capped a 62-yard drive by scoring in the third period, and Larry Robinson got the winning score after Curtis Boyd set it up with a 49-yard pass interception runback.

"Two things that stand out to me were the offensive line and the defense coming through with big plays when we needed them," Baker said. "That's something we haven't gotten in the last couple of games."

VMI held a 10-7 halftime lead over Virginia, the touchdown a 40-yard bomb from Tony Farry to Ronnie Moore, but the Keydets blew three scoring chances inside the Cavaliers' 20.

"We failed to take advantage and cash in on our opportunities in the first half," said VMI Coach Bob Thalman. "In the second half, they just lined up and stuck it down our throat. Our defense just had to play too darn much."

Sophomore Billy Copeland, playing fulltime for the first time since he was hurt in Virginia's opener, ran 21 times for 97 yards, scored twice and set up a third touchdown. A savage defense led by Dick Ambrose and Tom McGraw kept VMI bottled up the second half.

William and Mary had 440 yards in total offense to Virginia Tech's 383 and the Indians' Bill Deery set an NCAA career rushing record for quarterbacks of 2,243 yards as he ran for 86. He added another 159 passing for a 245-yard day.

But the Indians lost two fumbles and two passes, and Coach

Jim Root said "we knew we could move the ball, but when you give it up as many times as we did, you just can't expect to win."

Roscoe Coles ran for 53 yards and two touchdowns and Bruce Arians ran for one score and hit seven of 10 passes for 102 yards and another. Ricky Scales had five catches for 78 yards.

With two quarterbacks out, running back Jay Lynn Hodgkin took over the job for South Carolina and ran for 138 yards and passed for 78 against Appalachian. The Mountaineers scared the Gamecocks with a 64-yard final period drive but couldn't mount another.

Navy, led by freshman quarterback Mike Roban—who directed three scoring drives—built a 28-6 lead before The Citadel scored twice on Andrew Johnson's 32-yard run and Gene Dotson's six-yard pass to Doug Johnson.

Sophomore fullback Ron Gardner ran 21 times for 106 yards and three touchdowns in Lehigh's romp over Davidson.

WHITNEY, Tex. (AP) — Roger DeCoster of Belgium rode a Suzuki to the overall victory Sunday in the Trans-AMA Motocross series event here.

DeCoster finished second in each of the two 40-minute heat races.

The triumph gave DeCoster the series point lead after five of the eight American Motorcycle Association-sanctioned races.

the Liberty Bowl Selection Committee said Sunday night that six teams remain under consideration.

The committee said Georgia, Tennessee, Pittsburgh, Kentucky, Baylor and Arkansas are still in the running.

Maryland, which won a Saturday game 41-0 from Villanova, last week accepted an invitation to appear in the Dec. 16 bowl.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina has accepted a bid to the Sun Bowl in El Paso, Tex., where the Atlantic Coast Conference football team will face Mississippi State on Dec. 28.

Athletic Director Homer Rice said the decision came after the players voted unanimously to accept the bid.

On Saturday, the Tar Heels lost to Clemson 54-32.

It will mark the team's fourth bowl appearance in five years and their second in the Sun Bowl. In 1972, North Carolina defeated Texas Tech 32-28 in the Sun Bowl.

The Worry Clinic Slavery Known By All Races

Donna wonders about the origin of slavery and also its earliest form in America. Note how an Indian slave in Massachusetts led to the publishing of the first Bible in America! It was in the Algonquin language.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE B-690: Donna J., aged 18, teaches a Sunday School class.

"Dr. Crane," she said, "has slavery been typical of all countries?"

"For example, Biblical Joseph was sold into slavery by his own brothers.

"But did the Hebrews have slaves before that date?"

"And in Colonial Days did our American immigrants have slaves, too?"

Slavery Facts

Ancient nations would customarily make slaves out of the people they conquered. Sometimes the victors would kill the adult men among the conquered territory but keep the women and children alive to be servants.

And even in Colonial New England, Caucasians were enslaved for certain periods of time, to work out their passage ticket charges during the voyage from Europe.

But American Indians also were enslaved not only by Spanish but also by the English.

For example, about the year 1645 A.D., a pioneer preacher named John Eliot was driving near the village of Boston.

He happened to be passing a field where a farmer was plowing.

But the farmer had an Indian harnessed to a plow, in lieu of a horse.

The Indian had difficulty pulling the plow through the stony ground, so the farmer plied the whip to the Indian's back.

Pastor Eliot couldn't stand such cruelty, so he leaped from his wagon.

"You can't treat a human being like that," he yelled to the farmer, "so turn that Indian loose!"

"But he's not a human being," replied the farmer, "for he is just a savage.

"And if you want me to release him, just pay me 10 gold pieces so I can buy a horse. Then I'll give him over to you."

Well, the preacher had only 11 gold pieces but he immediately counted out 10 of them, to give the Indian his freedom.

But the Indian thought he had simply changed masters, so he climbed into the wagon and started driving for Pastor Eliot.

Rev. Eliot named that Indian Job Neustan and taught him English.

In return, the Indian tutored Pastor Eliot in the Algonquin Indian language.

And in 1659, Pastor Eliot and Job worked for 4 years to complete the first translation of the Bible into the Algonquin Indian language.

In 1663, Pastor Eliot paid to have 1,500 of these Bibles published, which were the first American Bibles! And for Indians, not Caucasians!

So slavery in Colonial Days was of white and red men as well as black men.

And yellow men have likewise been slaves, too, so all races have suffered slavery at one time or another.

Alas, even in our large cities today, "white slavery" often occurs, where pimps and madames maintain houses of prostitution, seducing young farm and immigrant girls into sexual slavery therein.

But churches have been the main foes of slavery, as shown by Pastor Eliot, so support your churches!

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠8 ♥K10954 ♦J109 ♦10954
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♥ 1♠ Pass Pass
Dble. Pass?

What action do you take?
A.—Bid three hearts. Since you have not yet bid, North's double is for takeout. You have already limited your hand by your earlier pass, so you can now afford to jump without misleading partner as to your strength. You hold some useful values, and you must distinguish this hand from a far weaker one where you would still be forced to bid two hearts.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q109762 ♥A107 ♦J82 ♦7
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1♠ Pass Pass?
What action do you take?
A.—Bid one spade. Partner may be trapped with a good hand and some length in clubs, which prevented him from taking immediate action. While this hand may not be good enough for a direct overcall when vulnerable, you are entitled to take certain liberties in the pass-out seat.

Q.3—North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠8 ♥KQJ965 ♦KJ7 ♦AJ3
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1♠ Pass Pass?
What action do you take?
A.—Bid two hearts. Had your major suits been reversed, you might have made a takeout double with the intention of bidding spades at your next turn. However, with your actual hand, that course could be dangerous, for partner might jump in spades. A jump to two hearts in the balancing position describes a strong, one-suited hand. The bid is not forcing.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠952 ♥KJ6 ♦843 ♦KQ72
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♠ Pass 1NT Pass
2♦ Pass?
What do you bid now?
A.—Two spades. Despite the fact that you have 9 points, we prefer the conservative choice of a preference to partner's first bid suit. With a real help in either of partner's suits, you more precipitate action could get you overboard.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q97 ♥A72 ♦QJ6 ♦10762
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♠ Pass 1NT Pass
2♦ Pass?
What do you bid now?
A.—Three spades. You have a maximum no trump response and your hand has been improved by your support for both of partner's suits. Since you have already limited your hand by your first response, partner will not expect more from you for your jump at this turn.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q762 ♥AQ7 ♦76 ♦AQ102
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1♠ Pass 1♥ Pass?

What do you bid now?
A.—Two hearts. It is a close choice between one spade and two hearts. We prefer the latter because our spade suit is sketchy while we have powerful support for partner. The immediate raise should cause partner to revalue his hand upward. If there is a game in spades, partner must be strong enough to introduce the suit over your heart raise.

Q.7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q10 ♥AK982 ♦72 ♦J763
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♠ Pass 2♥ Pass
3♠ Pass?
What do you bid now?
A.—Four clubs. Partner's sequence of bids has shown a strong hand with at least five spades and four clubs, and at least game should be there in either black suit. If partner's next bid is four hearts, you can probe further by showing your spade support, in case partner has a slam in mind.

Q.8—North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AQ76 ♥AQ10 ♦AJ9852
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♠ Pass 2♠ Pass
3♠ Pass 3♠ Pass
4♠ Pass?
What do you bid now?
A.—Six no trump. Partner has bid strongly, but even if you establish, through Blackwood, that partner has the missing ace and all four kings, you still will not be sure that seven is a good contract—the diamonds might not be solid or the queen of clubs could be missing. With your major tenaces protected from the opening lead, the small slam at no trump should be a laydown.

Dispute Could Cost His Title

By RICHARD de WEGER
Associated Press Writer
AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — Bobby Fischer's chess crown will go to a Russian if the dispute between the American and the International Chess Federation isn't settled by April 1, the president of the federation says.

Dr. Max Euwe said in an interview Sunday he will strip the 31-year-old American of his crown unless he agrees to defend it under the scoring rules set by the federation, which is known as Fide.

"At the moment we are in a complete stalemate," Euwe said. At its June meeting in Nice, France, the Fide congress rejected Fischer's demand for a new scoring system for the 1975 title match. When he learned of this, Fischer sent a telegram to the federation's headquarters in Amsterdam, saying his demands were "non-negotiable" and renouncing his title.

"We advised him that he had until April 1 to make up his mind, and appealed to him to reconsider his position in the interest of the chess playing world. But so far the world champion has not reacted to our plea," Euwe said.

Euwe, 73 and a former world champion, said Fischer "could go on claiming he is the real world champion, but that is something he should prove by playing."

"I hope, I even expect, a solution can be reached," he added. "I know Fischer to be a fair player and I feel rather confident he will drop his demands if we succeed in convincing him they are unreasonable."

Until Fischer defeated Boris Spassky for the championship in 1972, the world title was a Soviet monopoly. Now Soviet grandmasters Anatoly Karpov and Viktor Korchnoi are battling in Moscow for the right to challenge Fischer. Karpov has a commanding 3-1 lead in the 20th game of a 24-game series. Sixteen games were draws. The first player to win five games

Fugitive Hijacker Killed In Shootout With FBI

By DAVE RILEY
Associated Press Writer
VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP)—Richard Floyd McCoy and Melvin Dale Walker kept to themselves when they were staying in the ranch-style house they rented in a peaceful subdivision here.

Neighbors had little contact with them, except for an occasional passing greeting or a friendly wave as McCoy jogged through the neighborhood. One of the men once offered to help fix a neighbor's car.

Then late Saturday night,

FBI agents swooped down on the rented house after three days of surveillance. Shots were fired. McCoy was killed and Walker arrested.

"I just can't believe it. They seemed so nice," said one neighbor after discovering that McCoy was a convicted sky-jacker who once bailed out of a jetliner with $500,000 ransom and that Walker was a bank robber on the FBI's 10-most wanted list.

Federal agents say the men were using the house in the quiet middle class neighborhood a few miles from the oceanfront as an occasional hideout. Both had been the objects of a nationwide manhunt since they fled from a federal prison in a rain of gunfire three months ago.

FBI agents were staked out inside the rented house and across the street on the second floor of a two-story home when McCoy and Walker came home about 11:30 p.m. Saturday.

McCoy, 31, a former Sunday school teacher and Green Beret who flew a helicopter in Vietnam, went to the front door of the house. Walker drove away, apparently to survey the neighborhood.

"McCoy opened the front door and at that point an agent inside identified himself and told him to hold it and then to come in," said FBI spokesman John Coney.

"After about a split second, he pulled his revolver," Coney said. "He got one shot off, and the agent returned fire. It blasted him right out the front door."

McCoy's single shot missed the agent and imbedded itself in a wall. Coney said McCoy was hit once by a shotgun blast.

Outside, Walker was just returning to the house when the shooting started, Coney said. Walker, who had been added to the 10-most-wanted list less than a month ago, sped away but was arrested minutes later.

"Two units pulled him over at gunpoint," Coney said. "He had two loaded weapons in the car, but he chose to surrender."

Walker, 35, was taken to the Portsmouth city jail to await arraignment today.

McCoy had been a Mormon

Sunday school teacher and had attended Brigham Young University as a law enforcement major before becoming a Green Beret.

But in April 1972, armed with a grenade, he took over a United Air Lines 727 shortly after the plane had left Denver for Los Angeles. The flight was diverted to San Francisco, where passengers were allowed to leave and $500,000 in ransom and parachutes were placed aboard.

McCoy bailed out near Provo, Utah. He was arrested at his home in Provo three days later and all but $30 of the money was recovered. He was sentenced to 45 years in prison.

McCoy and Walker, along with two other inmates, fled from the federal prison at Lewisburg, Pa. Aug. 10, smashing to freedom through two chain link fences in a commandeered garbage truck despite a deluge of bullets. The other two escapees were recaptured a short time later.

Both McCoy and Walker had been named in one federal bank robbery warrant — a $15,000 holdup in the eastern North Carolina town of Pollockville — and agents indicated Walker may be charged with several other bank jobs.

Six Days Later, Six Elections 'Undecided'

By The Associated Press
Six days after the elections, two races for senator, one for governor and three for the House of Representatives are still undecided and will remain so until recounts are completed.

Here is a state-by-state run-down:

NORTH DAKOTA: Republican Sen. Milton R. Young holds a 240-vote lead over former Gov. William L. Guy, a Democrat, in the race for Young's Senate seat. Five of the 53 county canvassing boards have yet to turn in official tabulations, but are expected to do so by Tuesday. Young, 76, said Sunday: "The uncertainty of it all is the worst part."

NEW HAMPSHIRE: In the Senate race, Republican Rep. Louis C. Wyman held a 335-vote lead out of 220,000 cast over Democrat John A. Durkin, a former State Insurance Commissioner. They face a recount.

ALASKA: Jay Hammond, a

Republican, had a 661-vote margin over Democratic Gov. William A. Egan, whom he is seeking to unseat, as questioned ballots in the Anchorage area were counted. Still unreported were a few absentee ballots and the returns from four villages.

LOUISIANA: Officials have refused to certify the race in the 6th Congressional District and say they will refuse to do so until there is a court ruling on a count from a voting machine that may have malfunctioned. If the machine's tally is allowed, Republican W. Henson Moore would defeat Democrat Jeff LaCaze by five votes. Without the machine's vote, LaCaze would win by 195 votes.

NEBRASKA: Virginia Smith, a Republican, leads by 24 votes over Democrat Wayne Ziebarth in the state's 3rd Congressional District. However, votes from heavily populated Lincoln and Hall counties remain to be tabulated. Neither is the incumbent.

MAINE: David Emery, a Republican, leads by less than 600 votes over four-term Democratic Rep. Peter N. Kyros in the state's 1st District. Lawyers for both men have agreed to a recount which will begin today and is expected to take a week to eight days.

Traffic Claims Fourteen Lives

By The Associated Press
There were 14 traffic deaths in North Carolina over the weekend, but the fatality toll for the year is still running 336 behind last year.

The Highway Patrol said 1,330 persons have been killed to date, compared to 1,666 for the corresponding period of 1973.

Officials have said previously that reducing the state's speed limit to 55 miles per hour has been a key factor in the reduction of traffic deaths.

A pair of accidents claimed two lives each.

Two 18-year-old Angier residents, Jerry Ray Stanley and Billy Dale Cutts, were killed when their car went off the shoulder of N.C. 210 and overturned several times Saturday night in Harnett County.

Two persons died Friday night when their car turned into the path of an oncoming tractor trailer truck on N.C. 90 10 miles east of Lenoir, the patrol said. They were identified as Jean Cruise Dennis, 24, of Granite Falls, and Larry Dean Hollar, 23, of Lenoir.

Other weekend victims included:

—Army PFC Joel Dansby of Westland, Michigan, a Fort Bragg military policeman who was killed when his jeep was struck by a vehicle while he was pursuing a driver accused of running a red light on the military installation.

—Kimberly Sue Register, 2, of Rt. 2, Grifton, who was killed when a car ran off the road 1½ miles north of Grifton.

—Willard Jay Hendrix, 46, of Gretna, Va., who was fatally injured when struck by a vehicle on U.S. 29 about 2½ miles north of Reidsville.

—Stanley Jones, 13, of Shannon, who was killed by a car as he darted across a highway in Robeson County.

—Roger Keith Warden, 20, of Belew Creek, who died when his car crashed head-on with another vehicle north of Winston-Salem.

—Mary Ann Kincaid, 19, of Wingate, who was killed when her vehicle collided with a tractor trailer truck on U.S. 74 in Monroe.

—Florence Gossett Millsaps, 60, of Charlotte, who was killed when her car smashed into a utility pole in Charlotte.

—George Thomas Davis, 21, of Raleigh, who died when his motorcycle collided with a pickup truck in Raleigh.

—Gerald Langston Lane, 22, of Pikeville, who was killed after his car ran off a rural paved road near his home and overturned.

—John Charles Anderson, 19, of Timmonsville, S.C., who was killed when his motorcycle hit a bridge and ran down an embankment near Black Mountain. The Highway Patrol said Anderson was not wearing a safety helmet.

The Associated Press tabulates fatal traffic accidents from 6 p.m. Friday until 12 midnight Sunday.

Protesting The Rockets

RALEIGH (AP) — Secretary of Natural and Economic Resources James Harrington says he will protest this week to the U.S. Marine Corps over a rocket barrage that accidentally struck a state park last week.

No one was hurt as the rockets exploded on the beach at Hammock's Island State Park, blasting three-foot craters and hurling shrapnel 150 yards away.

That was because no one was around. But, according to park superintendent Claude Crews, there "would have been a disaster" if campers or fishermen had been at the park, as they were the day before.

The rockets were supposed to be fired at the Marines' Brown's Island bombing range as part of a practice mission flown by Huey Cobra helicopters from the New River Air Station near Camp LeJeune.

The Marines, through a spokesman, said they were investigating to find out what went wrong. According to Crews, past investigations haven't done much good.

Three other times since 1969, he said, armaments intended for Brown's Island hit the park. The two islands are contiguous on the Outer Banks of Onslow County.

See Discrimination Among Regulators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five federal agencies have failed to carry out their responsibility to eliminate employment discrimination in the industries they regulate, the U.S. Civil Rights Commission said Monday.

The study covers the Federal Communications Commission, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Civil Aeronautics Board, the Federal Power Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Of the five, only the FCC has even acknowledged its responsibility of requiring regulated industries to end job discrimination against women and members of minority groups, the study said.

Although the FCC has adopted rules prohibiting broadcast licensees from discriminating in their employment practices, the FCC's enforcement program has been highly inadequate, the report said.

The study is the first of six reports covering 30 government agencies as a sequel to the commission's 1970 study of federal civil rights enforcement. This is the fourth such followup by the Civil Rights Commission, itself an independent government agency.

Nixon's Health Said Improving

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Hospital officials reported Richard M. Nixon's health improving as a federal judge prepared to appoint a panel of doctors to examine the former president.

Anticoagulation therapy "presumably" was resumed during the weekend, Norman Nager, spokesman for Memorial Hospital Medical Center, said Sunday.

Nixon was taken off the blood-thinning drugs when he went into shock following phlebotomy surgery Oct. 29, but his doctors had said Friday the anticoagulants probably would be restarted Saturday or Sunday.

Nager said this presumably had been done, but he had no confirmation from Nixon's physician, Dr. John C. Lungren, who was unavailable over the weekend.

Meanwhile, in Washington, D.C., U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica said he would appoint a panel of three doctors this week to examine Nixon in the hospital to determine whether he is able to testify at the Watergate cover-up trial of his former top aides.

Nixon's lawyer has filed an affidavit saying the former president would be unable to testify for two or three more months.

Since the shock episode that his doctors said nearly killed the 61-year-old former chief executive, Nixon has progressed from "critical" to "sub-intensive care" to "in-hospital recovery period," but doctors have declined to say whether he is still in serious condition.

Nixon has been plagued with a number of complications, including a collapsed lung and pneumonia, since the surgery to prevent blood clots from reaching vital organs.

At the end of last week, doctors reported improvement in Nixon's lung problems.
