

Four-Year ECU Med School Is Authorized By UNC Board

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
CHAPEL HILL — The Board of Governors of the University of North Carolina this morning authorized the development of a four-year degree-granting School of Medicine at East Carolina University.

In addition to the authorization, the Board recommended that the 1975 General Assembly appropriate an additional $35.2 million capital construction costs and recommended an appropriation for current operations, also. UNC Pres. William Friday was authorized to take the necessary steps to implement the four-year program.

With 28 Board members present at today's session, only five voted against the measure.

The board also denied requests from three schools—ECU, UNC at Charlotte, and Appalachian State—for permission to begin planning development of law schools.

Later today the board was to consider a committee recommendation that it authorize a veterinary school for N.C. State in Raleigh, denying the request of North Carolina A & T in Greensboro.

The Board's vote on the ECU question came shortly after 11 a.m. Board chairman William Dees of Goldsboro, commenting on the authorization, said, "A lot of us have felt from the beginning there was no practical way to have a two-year medical program that would benefit the state." He also said, "There is something to the idea that a medical school program oriented to family practice is a different emphasis than the kind of medical training we are giving at Chapel Hill."

Discussion on the proposal recommended by the joint planning and finance committees of the University lasted more than an hour. Former State Sen. Tom White of Kinston, a Board member, said during the discussion, "At long last I have the privilege of supporting a medical school at East Carolina University without reservation." He said he had "always felt that the Medical School at ECU should be adequate to meet the needs and not just a stop-gap measure," and he indicated plans proposed in the past, in his opinion, would not have met the need. White said the plan adopted today "is the first fiscally sound program that has been advanced. Others, he noted, "would be pouring taxpayers' money in a rathole, or at best have been makeshift political propositions. I am glad I am now able to support this program."

Dees, during the discussion, told the Board, "It seems to me a two-year program won't enhance the overall program. Through adoption of the committees' recommendation, we're saying to the General Assembly, 'This is the only way to approach it.'"

Other discussion indicated the cost of the school probably would be much greater than the $50 million-plus figure presented a week ago by Friday to the joint planning and finance committees.

Board member Williams Johnson estimated that the ECU school would eventually cost more than $100 million "if we are going to see that it is a first class school."

Several members, including Charlotte banker Luther Hodges Jr. expressed doubts that the state could afford to spend that much without diluting the support given to other schools.

But, Johnson said, "The decision to have a second medical school was not made by this body. This is the only realistic position we can take," given the 1974 legislative mandate to expand the ECU medical school.

"He who calls the tune should pay the fiddler. I have no hesitation in asking the legislature to pay this tab," said board member Hugh Cannon.

According to Friday, the ECU school could grant its first medical degree in 1979.

Board members voting against the measure were Victor S. Bryant of Durham, Phillip G. Carson of Asheville, Mrs. Hugh Morton of Linville, Mrs. George D. Wilson of Fayetteville, and Mrs. Albert H. Lathrop of Asheville.

Less Oil Consumption Pressed By Kissinger; 'Our Liberty At Stake'

By JOSEPH R. TYBOR
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, warning that "it is our liberty that in the end is at stake," has called for rigid international cooperation to cut oil consumption and develop new energy sources. Only a serious reduction in consumption by industrialized nations will impel oil-producing nations to negotiate lower oil prices, Kissinger said. Otherwise, "we face further and mounting worldwide shortages, unemployment, poverty and hunger," imperiling international order.

"It is our liberty that in the end is at stake and it is only through the concerted action of the industrial democracies that it will be maintained," said Kissinger in a major address before a fund-raising campaign kick-off dinner for the University of Chicago.

Kissinger said North America, Western Europe and Japan must cooperate because "there can be no purely American solution."

He proposed a five-point international program of cooperation to check the effects of the global energy crisis.

The plan included reduced dependence on foreign oil supplies; dynamic development of alternative energy sources; a shoring up of economies overburdened by huge outlays paid in high oil prices to producing nations; continuing aid at least at current levels to developing countries; and meaningful dialogue with producers after bargaining power is attained through reduced consumption.

Kissinger said the United States will play a major role in any international cooperative effort, specifically seeking to reduce oil imports over the next decade from seven million barrels a day to no more than one million barrels daily.

Kissinger proposed an international agreement to set consumption goals, asking that by the end of 1975 industrialized countries reduce their consumption of oil by three million barrels a day and meet each year to set annual targets.

"This reduction can be carried out without prejudice to economic growth and jobs, by cutting back on wasteful and inefficient uses of energy both in personal consumption and in industry," he said.

He urged the industrialized bloc to make a major shift toward use of nuclear power, coal, gas and other energy resources to transform current shortages into energy surpluses by the 1980s.

The U.S. effort would call for the investment of hundreds of billions of dollars, "dwarfing our moonlanding program and the Manhattan Project."

Kissinger said the most serious immediate problem is economic and financial strain facing industrial nations that currently are burdened with a collective payments deficit of $40 billion.

He called for the creation of a common loan and guarantee facility to redistribute in 1975 up to $25 billion in money that was invested in consuming nations by the oil-producing nations.

Kissinger painted a bleak picture if the global energy crisis goes unchecked.

Israel Feels Arab Power File Charges On Edmisten

By GENE KRAMER
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — In another demonstration of Arab power at the United Nations, the General Assembly has blocked Israeli plans to counterattack the Palestine Liberation Organization with a major speech a day during the Palestine debate.

The assembly voted 75 to 23 with 18 abstentions Thursday to limit each country to one major speech during the Palestine debate, which runs for another week. "This does not affect a country's 'right of reply' to charges made against it, but this is customarily confined to 10 minutes at the end of the day's session."

It was the third consecutive day that the African, Asian and Communist members united behind the assembly's Arab president, Foreign Minister Abdelaziz Bouteflika, to demonstrate their control of the body once dominated by the United States and its allies.

On Tuesday, the assembly decisively upheld Bouteflika's ruling that white-ruled South Africa could no longer participate in the assembly.

On Wednesday, Bouteflika ordered Palestine guerrilla chief Yasir Arafat treated as a prime minister or chief of state, with a chair on the rostrum and the U.N. chief of protocol to escort him to and from it.

Arafat led off the Palestine debate with a call for creation of a state of Palestine in which Israel would be submerged. Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah replied a few hours later with a major speech declaring Israel would never tolerate PLO authority in any part of Palestine.

Tekeah listed himself to speak daily during the debate, but Bouteflika announced Thursday that he was limiting each country to save time.

File Charges On Edmisten

RALEIGH (AP)—Nine days after his landslide election as North Carolina attorney general, Democrat Rufus Edmisten was slapped with two charges of "failure to timely file" North Carolina income tax returns.

The warrants charging Edmisten with the misdemeanors were issued and served Thursday. The attorney general-elect was released on his own recognizance.

Because the charges are misdemeanors, Edmisten would still be eligible to serve as attorney general if convicted.

Edmisten was charged with failing to meet the April 15 deadlines for filing his North Carolina tax returns in 1973 and 1974.

Late Thursday, Edmisten issued a statement about the charges and called his failure to file "possible technical violations." He was not available to newsmen and issued his statement through aides.

Superior Court Judge James Pou Bailey issued the warrants on recommendation of Raleigh attorney Howard Manning, who had been assigned to the case as special prosecutor. Bailey set Nov. 22 as a tentative date to hear the case. That's four days before Edmisten is to be sworn in as attorney general.

The charges stem from Edmisten's failure to file North Carolina income tax forms during the 10 years he worked in Washington for retiring Sen. Sam Ervin Jr., D-N.C. Edmisten lived in Virginia and paid income taxes in that state, but voted and owned property in North Carolina.

His failure to file North Carolina returns came out during a debate Sept. 23 at Chapel Hill between him and interim Atty. Gen. James Carson, who had been appointed by fellow Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser.

At the time, Edmisten said he didn't know he was required to file income tax returns in North Carolina.

Edmisten and his attorneys decided he should pay the back taxes. He paid what they figured he owed. Even though he would be required only to pay for the last two years, Edmisten turned in tax forms for the entire period he was in Washington.

Holshouser ordered Revenue Secretary J. Howard Coble, one of his appointees, to turn a file of the case to wake County Dist. Atty. Burley Mitchell for a decision on whether Edmisten should be prosecuted. Coble turned the file over one week before the election.

Mitchell, a Democrat, said he was an Edmisten supporter and asked Judge Bailey to assign a special prosecutor to the case.

Twenty-Eight Agenda Items

DRIVERS NEEDED

The Pitt County PTA Council Math and Reading Tutorial Program needs persons to provide transportation for students participating in the G. R. Whitfield program. Each student meets for 50 minutes twice a week some time between 3:30 and 8 p.m. always on a weekday. Anyone who will provide four students a ride will be paid 15 cents a mile. These in charge of the program will see that the driver gets four students who live in the same general area and that their sessions are arranged close together. Anyone wishing to be a driver should contact either Mrs. Angela Phillips at 758-0459 or Whitfield Principal Raymond Reddick at the school, 752-6614.

ARE GIRLS ALLOWED?

Are they going to let girls in Little League baseball next season? I hope not, 'cause they're sure gonna mess up the whole thing. D.T.

Girls will be allowed to try out, Dan Gordon, who is in charge of the Greenville Little League program, said. "It will be up to the managers to pick them up. Ages nine to 12 can participate. Under the Little League charter, there can be a separate softball program if enough interest is shown," he said.

TRASH SPILLED?

Why do city trash collectors scatter trash and make such a mess? F.M.

"I have the best crew I have ever had and morale is very good," City Public Works Director Mayo Allen said. "If someone will call me and show me definite proof that one of the refuse collectors did spill trash, I will take it up with him. However, we have checked on several complaints, but have found that the damage was done before the refuse collectors arrived—perhaps because of the way the trash was stored or by dogs. I take great personal pride in these men who are required to work regardless of weather or other unpleasant conditions and I stand behind them."

20 Shiploads

TEL AVIV (AP) — Premier Yitzhak Rabin said 20 Soviet ships were unloading weapons in Syria today.

"I would like to reveal what is perhaps a secret, that at this very moment 20 Soviet ships are offloading arms in the Syrian port of Latakia," Rabin told a luncheon of Israeli engineers.

He accused the Soviets of building tension in the Middle East and stressed the importance of keeping the U.N. peacekeeping force between Israeli and Syrian armies on the Golan Heights.

The U.N. mandate expires at the end of this month unless it is renewed by both sides, and Rabin said Israel wants it renewed.

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon, pale and thin, settled down at his ocean-side villa today for a quiet recuperation from phlebotomy surgery.

Nixon left Long Beach Hospital Medical Center in a wheelchair Thursday and returned to his San Clemente home. Meanwhile the head of a medical team assigned to determine whether Nixon is well enough to testify in the Watergate cover-up trial said he wanted the court to assist him with legal matters before he attempts the examination.

Dr. Charles A. Hufnagel, one of the three court-appointed physicians, said in Washington that the determination might not actually involve a physical examination of Nixon, but he said it likely would.

Hufnagel, chief of surgery at Georgetown University Hospital, said he has asked U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica to clarify his instructions. He said he expects a response in two or three days.

Hufnagel said he and the other two doctors — all internationally known cardiovascular specialists — want the court to contact Nixon's lawyers to make arrangements for the examination.

"Otherwise, what are we supposed to do? Go out to Long Beach, rent a hotel room and start making phone calls asking whom do we contact? This should be clarified before anything is done," he said.

Sirica's order Wednesday in-

N.C. Business Spokesmen See Slower Growth

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina's economic growth will slow over the next several months and the state budget cannot be expanded very much, business leaders warned a legislative committee Thursday.

The 17 legislators on a committee studying the effects of the economic condition on North Carolina were told that the current recession probably will "bottom out" next summer and unemployment will go beyond the 4.4 per cent it is now to about 6 per cent by summer.

Tom Rideout, a senior vice president of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co., said he anticipates the economic situation will begin a slow recovery by the end of next year. Other who spoke at the meeting agreed with his prediction.

Rideout also estimated that the normal 13 per cent annual increase in tax revenues will drop to 10 per cent this fiscal year, 12 per cent in the 1975-76 fiscal year and nearly 11 per cent the following year.

New state programs and additional employees appear to be out of the question, Rep. Liston Ramsey, D-Madison, said. He is chairman of the House Finance Committee.

One of the speakers, Lewis R. (Snow) Holding, president of First Citizens Bank and Trust Co., said the situation "seems to be a depression." He said the economic slowdown has hurt the state's industries, particularly construction and textiles.

Corporate earnings and consumer spending will also decline, Holding said. He said "it is a distinct possibility" that real tax revenue—figured after accounting for inflation's effects—will be lower this fiscal year than last fiscal year.

The outlook for textiles was termed "just horrible" by Tom Ingram of the North Carolina Textile Manufacturers Association. He predicted additional production cutbacks and plant closings.

The tobacco industry appeared to have a good future though, John Duddle, treasurer of the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., said. Because of a worldwide tobacco shortage, production can be increased next year without hurting prices, he said.

He warned against a tax increase on cigarettes because it may influence other states to also raise their tobacco tax and cause a reduction in cigarette production.

Rideout said increasing taxes would reduce the consumer's ability to spend money, and spending is the key to halting inflation, he said.

Mrs. Middleton Gives Patient Circle Program

The Patient Circle of the Kings Daughters had its meeting in the parlor of the Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church Tuesday night. Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell, president, introduced Mrs. Nancy Middleton as guest speaker.

She spoke on The Energy Crisis and gave several tips on how to conserve fuel and passed out literature containing information on "How to Save Fuel and $$$ in the Home," as well as various food recipes.

Mrs. Shackell had on display the Hortense Moye Loving Cup which the Greenville chapter won at the state convention in Durham recently. She stated that the state convention in 1975 would be held in Southport.

Plans are being made for cheer projects at Thanksgiving and again at Christmas.

A report was given on the charitable deeds of the Kings Daughters.

Mrs. Shackell installed the following officers for the ensuing year: Polly Dail, president; Mrs. J. B. Cutchin, first vice president; Miss Mary Wells, second vice president; Mrs. R. C. Henry, treasurer; Mrs. G. V. Howell Jr., recording secretary; Mrs. Roy Lokkin, corresponding secretary; Annie Turner, reporter.

It was announced that the December meeting will be held at Mrs. G. B. W. Hadley's.

At the conclusion of the meeting hostesses, Mrs. E. L. Baker, Mrs. Ed Rawl and Mrs. C.B. Rowlette, served refreshments.

arrangement of mums, fruit, and eucalyptus. Miss Elizabeth Lang and Dr. Emily Farnham, regent, served guests.

Mrs. John B. MacLeod of Chapel Hill, state regent, was a special guest. On being introduced, she expressed her delight at being in Farmville and seeing the chapter house again. She thanked the group for the dinner given in her honor on Friday night in Greenville. A gift of a paperweight featuring the DAR insignia was presented to Mrs. MacLeod. Mrs. Edward Lee Hill of Ayden made the gift.

Mrs. W. B. Fearing of Greenville was welcomed as a new associate member.

After the opening ceremonies, Mrs. T. E. Hales, chaplain, gave the devotional and Mrs. F. M. Tripp, gave the National Defense report.

Mrs. Lawrence Cutchin, chairman of the Children of the American Revolution Committee, reviewed information about that organization. CAR was created by the Fourth DAR Continental Congress, Feb. 22, 1895. CAR provides training in patriotism and leadership.

Dr. Herbert R. Paschal, professor and chairman of the Department of history at ECU was the featured speaker. His topic was "The USA Bicentennial".

Mrs. MacLeod and Dr. Farnham presented the second portion of the program. It concerned the Bicentennial Project of DAR Chapters of North Carolina. The Chapter members are to furnish a Revolutionary era home, presently in Scotland Neck and will be moved to Halifax. Mrs. MacLeod and Dr. Farnham showed and explained slides of the interior and exterior of the house.

Hinton-Jones Vows Exchanged

PRINCETON—The Princeton United Methodist Church was the scene of the Nov. 2 wedding of Peggy Lynn Jones and Randy Thomas Hinton. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Robert F. Bundy assisted by Ben F. Potter at 7:00 p.m.

Goldie Jones and Mrs. Travis Baker, aunts of the bride, poured punch.

Mrs. Randy Thomas Hinton

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lee Jones of Goldsboro. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Rayonell B. Hinton of Princeton, and the late Mr. Thomas Wyatt Hinton of Princeton.

A program of wedding music was presented by organist Deloris Holt and Lynwood Rains, vocalist.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore a white colonial styled gown of peau de ange lace. The gown was fashioned with a natural waist, squared neckline and fitted sleeves ending a collar point. The skirt of lace ruffles fell into a chapel length train.

Her waist length veil was attached to a headpiece of lace framing her face and lace edged the veil. She carried a nosegay of miniature carnations centered with a cattleya orchid accented with white lace and satin bows.

The honor attendants were Mrs. James T. Crawford of Goldsboro, sister of the bride, and Darlene Hinton, sister of the bridegroom.

Bridesmaids were Marie McKeel, Diane Worley, Kim Godwin, Ann Massengill, Terry Sugg, all of Princeton, and Donna Parker of Camden, S. C., cousin of the bridegroom. The junior bridesmaid was Tammy Hinton, sister of the bridegroom. Flower girls were twin nieces of the bride, Patricia and Teresa Crawford of Goldsboro. The ring bearer was Chris Rains of Burlington.

The best man was Harold Bailey of Walstonburg, uncle of the bridegroom. Ushers were Lynwood Rains, Andy Miller, David Rains and Michael Stephenson, all of Princeton, George Bailey of Walstonburg and Ted Parker of Columbia, S.C., both cousins of the bridegroom. The junior usher was Malcolm Hinton, brother of the bridegroom.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Martha Mumford of Princeton.

After a wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina and Tennessee, the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride attends Rose High School and the bridegroom is a graduate of Princeton High School and is a junior at ECU.

The bride's parents entertained in the fellowship hall of the church following the wedding.

Cake was served by Mrs. Edgar Earl Stafford. Miss

Their Parents Break Tradition

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by The Chicago Tribune

DEAR ABBY: This is for "DOOMED," who wanted a big wedding but didn't know if his parents should help her parents foot the bill because of tradition.

I am getting married next month, and when my fiance and I became engaged, his parents offered to split the bills straight down the middle. They figured that their son is also getting married, and they should help pay for the wedding.

This has helped my parents immensely, and now we can have the big wedding we've both always dreamed of.

HAPPY IN CLEVELAND

DEAR HAPPY: I'm happy too. Happy that someone has had the courage to break with tradition in the interest of fairness and common sense. Maybe you'll start a new tradition. I hope so.

DEAR ABBY: I am 44 and Louie (my husband) is 49. I work in a laundry ten hours a day, and when night time comes I need a rest. Louie still acts like a teen-ager when it comes to sex. He can't get enough.

On weekends if we go for a drive in the country, Louie starts looking for an abandoned farmhouse or a secluded road. When we go for a walk in the woods, Louie looks for some bushes for us to crawl under. (We were nearly caught several times.)

I got so tired of being hounded for sex, I made Louie ask our family doctor how much sex was normal for people our age. The doc said three times a week was normal, so now Louie keeps a record. If it's less than three times a week, he says I owe him, and he adds it on to the next week.

I am falling behind, and dread the thought of going on a vacation trip with this man. Any suggestions?

TIRED

DEAR TIRED: The time for sex is when BOTH partners are agreeable. Louie shouldn't feel that he's entitled to a certain number of encounters, and you shouldn't be made to feel that you "owe" it to him. Tell him to quit keeping score—you'll tell him when you're ready.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell me what to do with a 10-year-old boy who is such a coward he lets every kid in the neighborhood (some younger and smaller than he is) pick on him and boss him around.

He won't stand up for his rights. In fact, he will run away from a fight rather than try to defend himself.

My husband and I have scolded him and even punished him, but it hasn't done any good. How can we get him to change?

He's not stupid. He loves sports, except boxing and wrestling. Or are some kids born to run from a fight?

ASHAMED

DEAR ASHAMED: What's so great about exchanging punches? There is a lot to be said for avoiding physical combat, so don't scold or punish your son if he chooses to go the nonviolent route.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bailey and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Parker entertained the bridal couple, wedding party and out-of-town guests at the Yearling Steak House Saturday at noon.

The mother of the bridegroom entertained at her home at an after-rehearsal party for the wedding party, out-of-town guests and close friends.

The bride was honored at a shower by her bridesmaids at the home of Mrs. Bob Massengill and Ann Massengill Tuesday.

Bride-Elect Entertained

Bride-elect Augusta Ormond and her attendants were honored at a luncheon at the home of Mrs. Reid Tripp.

Guests were greeted by Mrs. Tripp and invited into her home which was decorated throughout with arrangements of green candles, yellow net with mums and greenery.

After lunch, guests were entertained by Miss Donna Tripp singing and playing on the guitar.

The hostesses were Miss Tripp, Mrs. Tripp, and Miss Elsie Briley.

Such Action Is Beyond Belief

The Associated Press has reported that an effort is under way in Congress to vote a whopping pay raise for Congressmen.

The effort, according to the AP, is centered on lame duck congressmen who have nothing to lose by getting the pay raise through for their colleagues.

The pay increase would amount to $15,900, thus raising a congressman's salary from $42,500 to $55,400—in the neighborhood of a 37 percent raise. Rep. H.R. Gross, R-Iowa, called the move "an almost incredible, unconscionable move at this moment."

With 92 congressmen either retiring or defeated in the present Congress, backers of the pay increase feel that it would be easier to get it through this session, since most of the 92 won't be facing election again.

It is just beyond belief to us that anyone in Congress would be proposing such a pay increase for congressmen at this time. With inflation raging while, at the same time, people are being laid off from their industrial jobs across the nation, such an action by Congress would be totally unacceptable.

Congressmen receive a fair wage for their services. Nobody should ever run for the office on the premise that congressional service will make them wealthy.

We can't think of any way Congress could set a poorer example for the rest of the nation than by voting this huge increase. We hope the idea will be quickly laid to rest.

Diversified Economy Understandably Sound

John F. Watlington, Jr., chief executive officer for Wachovia Corp., believes North Carolina can ride out the economic slump that now faces the nation.

In a talk to securities analysts in New York, he said North Carolina has the agricultural and industrial diversity to ride out the slump.

We think that is an accurate analysis. There is diversity in our state's unique agricultural and industrial mix; too, most Tar Heels are not so far removed from the land that they can't make do in tight times.

ARAB WORLD'S CINDERELLA MAN!

Goals Of U.S. Policy

By BARRY SCHWEID Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is trying to prod Israel into negotiations with Egypt and Jordan while conveying the impression that a stalemate could force the Jewish state to deal with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

"We are not parties to any negotiations," the President said at a news conference in Phoenix, Ariz., Thursday night. "I think we should leave the decisions on who will negotiate to the parties involved."

He duly noted that Israel has vowed never to deal with the PLO, the umbrella group for guerrillas and terrorists which 20 Arab states chose over Jordan as the representative for 600,000 west bank Palestinians.

But he did not foreclose the possibility that Washington might promote such negotiations if Israel does not come to terms with Egypt and Jordan.

"Until we have failed, and I don't think we will in trying to get the parties to work together, I don't think it is appropriate to discuss what we'll do if we don't achieve success," Ford said.

Ford clearly implied it is up to Israel to get talks started with its more moderate neighbors.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's year-long strategy is aimed at step-by-step settlements with Israel with Egypt and Jordan, while shelving the PLO problem. But the Arab summit conference pushed the Palestinian issue to the front.

Ford made it clear that the administration still considers its strategy viable. But the burden of making it work is more than ever on Israel.

Ford first raised the prospect of PLO negotiations last week when he said there must be movement toward settlement "between Israel and Jordan or the PLO."

While his press secretary later said the President stood be-

THIS AFTERNOON

Pondering Prison Reform

By BILL NOBLITT RALEIGH—Convinced that trimming back the prison population can be done more economically, and produce better results for the inmates, than can a massive building program, members of a special commission on prisons is meeting this weekend to map out final plans for changes to be proposed in the 1975 General Assembly.

Chaired by former State Senator Eddie Knox, D-Mecklenburg, the commission is leading off its two-day meeting this weekend by probing a Department of Corrections plan to seek $100 million from the General Assembly to build new prison facilities.

Corrections Chief David Jones is asking the expansion money to relieve prison crowding which he views as an explosive due to unpleasant conditions, and working against rehabilitation for the inmates. The present population is 12,107 throughout the system, one of the highest state totals in the nation, and the highest in per capita proportions.

Reform Approach Meanwhile, Knox's commission is attempting to find ways to revamp sentencing procedures and parole processes to relieve the crunch.

From a series of reports and studies, the commission has learned that a large portion of the prison population is there for things like drunkenness, traffic violations, non-support, and other "victimless" crimes, and that the state's parole system in recent years has turned fewer prisoners out of the system, further complicating the prison crunch.

Knox believes a thorough evaluation by his commission is vital, particularly in light of the request for new facilities.

Several measures are now being drafted for introduction in the 1975 General Assembly, among them a comprehensive juvenile corrections bill which would virtually close the state's juvenile corrections bill which would virtually close the state's juvenile training schools by eliminating from them any youngsters committed for non-criminal causes—that's about half the population.

Here are the basic approaches now under consideration:

—A guaranteed earned parole system in which certain categories of prisoners can, in effect, sign an agreement to perform certain acts (such as schooling or job training) over a given period of time, thereby earning a parole without having to go through the red tape of delay and hearings now involved.

—A mandatory parole provision under which prisoners meeting certain criteria, including length of time, can achieve parole without undue delay.

—A victim compensation program to repay from prison earnings, work release pay, or otherwise, the victims of break-in, burglary or robbery.

—A reform of the juvenile justice system from top to bottom.

That last proposal is perhaps one of the most sweeping under consideration by the commission at this time, and is being prepared by a subcommittee chaired by former State Rep. Sam Johnson, D-Wake.

As currently envisioned, the legislation would eliminate the "status offenders" from training schools. Status offenders are those committed for truancy at school, general discipline troubles, or other acts which are not classified as criminal. About half of the training school population of around 1,000 is in this category.

Communities across North Carolina would be required to provide alternative treatment, training, and housing methods, and judges required to exhaust local resources before sending any child to training school.

Funds and state guidance would be provided for group homes, foster homes, camp homes, emergency shelters, and other community-oriented facilities, and local schools urged to create special programs for the children.

Local Community Evaluation Committees statewide would monitor the various programs, and a state Youth Service Bureau set up to aid.

A Precinct Is Missing

CANTON, Ohio—On election night millions and millions of Americans watched as the NBC and ABC Television networks announced that, according to their computers, Gov. John Gilligan had defeated former Gov. James Rhodes in Ohio.

Gov. Rhodes, like all of us, was so impressed by the fact that two out of three networks had given the election to Gov. Gilligan that he conceded on the spot and went to bed certain he was a loser. When he woke up the next morning he discovered that, although the network computers had declared Gilligan the winner, the real votes showed that Rhodes was ahead by 12,000 votes.

What went wrong?

I happened to be in Canton, Ohio, so I went over to a sample precinct 50 miles away, one that both ABC and NBC had used to decide Gilligan had won. I will call the place Bellwether because the networks like to keep their sample precincts secret.

Most of the people in town had long faces. The man in the coffee shop told me, "We're not proud of it. NBC and ABC were depending on us and we let them down."

Another man at the counter said, "We've been a sample precinct for four elections. We've got 10 percent Italians, 10 percent Jews, 10 percent Irish, 10 percent blacks, 40 percent women and 20 percent miscellaneous. We were a perfect mix."

"But what happened?" I said.

"Farfel lied to the pollsters," a man at the end of the counter said.

"Who's Farfel?"

"He runs a gas station at the end of Main Street. After he came out of the voting booth, he told NBC and ABC he had voted for Gilligan, when in fact he had voted for Rhodes. They fed Farfel's vote into their computers and, bang, they declared Gilligan the winner."

"But why would Farfel do that?" I said. "Why don't you ask him? No one else is talking to him, so he has plenty of time on his hands."

I went down to Farfel's gas station. I found him sitting next to his gas pump playing a harmonica. "Mr. Farfel," I said, "I hear you screwed up the sample precinct in Bellwether and got NBC and ABC to declare Gilligan the next governor of Ohio."

Farfel chuckled, "Yup, danged if I didn't." "Why did you do it?"

"Wal, I tell you, son. I'm one of these old-timers that don't like no television hotshots telling me who won an election before all the votes have been counted. I mean, you turn on the set and some sharp feller in a $300 suit says, 'With 2 percent of the vote in, we declare John J. Pumpkin the next senator of Michigan.' Takes all the fun out of election night. I don't want no computer declaring who my governor is going to be. So year I decided to fix 'em good. I'm half-Italian and half-English, so them network boys had it figured out that if I voted for Gilligan

The INSIDE REPORT

Decimation On The Right

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK WASHINGTON—The upset defeat of Rep. Lamar Baker in Tennessee last Tuesday dramatized the single most surprising element in last week's Republican debacle: the dominant right wing was hurt much worse than other Republicans, casting implications far into the future for both the party and President Ford.

Baker, a stone age Republican with a 100 per cent conservative voting record as measured by Americans for Constitutional Action (ACA), was one of the last-ditch anti-impachment votes for Richard M. Nixon. What's more, he is now president of a well-disciplined private club of conservative House Republicans known as the Steering Committee (labeled in previous incarnations as the "Republican Regulars" and "The Good Guys"). Baker was not alone. Last week's massacre claimed no fewer than three of the Steering Committee's four vice presidents—Reps. Ben Blackburn of Georgia, David Dennis of Indiana and Robert Huber of Michigan.

Out of the 36 incumbent Republican Congressmen defeated for reelection, 25 were members of the Steering Committee. Add at least another 10 Republicans who retired, and the total membership drops from about 70 down to 35. The Steering Committee thus can be written off as an effective force in the House.

At the least, this dooms the long-planned Steering Committee purge of Rep. John Anderson, the courageous and feisty moderate from Illinois, as chairman of the House Republican Conference. A subjective analysis by Anderson's staff shows 51 hard right-wing members out of a total 144 House Republicans in the next Congress, compared with 83 out of 187 today.

The implications, still not fully realized by the slow-thinking White House, greatly reduce Mr. Ford's resources for all-out veto war with Congress. Not only will Republicans most likely to support vetoes be gone, but the atmosphere in the House Republican cloakroom will be transformed. Steering Committee members who lolled on the sofas directing snide and menacing remarks at the John Andersons of the party will be just so many ex-Congressmen, depriving administration forces of their psychological intimidation.

This will have an impact on Rep. John Rhodes of Arizona, the House minority leader. Although there is no interest among moderates in having Anderson challenge Rhodes for the leadership, they will demand more independence of the President by Rhodes and less blind support.

Beyond Mr. Ford's problems, moderate Republicans see their first faint signs of hope since 1964. Despite losing strongholds of progressive Republicanism in New York and Massachusetts, the surprising Nov. 5 pattern spelled catastrophe for the Republican right.

Nowhere was this more true than in the House. While the Steering Committee was being halved in size, the 35-member liberal Wednesday Group lost only one member: the highly regarded Rep. John Dellenback of Oregon. Of Republican Congressmen with a high conservative rating from the ACA, 30 per cent lost; of those with a high liberal rating from the Ripon Society, only 12 per cent were defeated.

These statistics are adorned by individual cases. Larry Pressler, who reversed a long Democratic trend in (Continued on page 6)

Other Editors Say Access To Records

(Greensboro Daily News)

The special Watergate prosecutor, now that President Ford has had time to think things over a little more carefully, is to be given first access to the tapes and documents in the White House which bear on criminal cases involving members of Richard M. Nixon's administration.

Judge Charles Richey of the United States District Court has been presiding over a variety of deliberations involving access to and ownership of the Nixon records, and if he approves the agreement worked out over the weekend by the White House, the Justice Department, and special prosecutor Henry S. Ruth's staff, then Mr. Nixon's control over his presidential papers and tapes — part of the September 8 pardon parcel — would be abrogated.

Instead, members of the special prosecutor's office would have the right to examine portions of files and tapes in the White House germane to their ongoing investigations, and Mr. Nixon would need Mr. Ruth's permission to remove any of those records to California, which he has been seeking to do.

The new agreement, which Mr. Nixon's lawyers are likely to contest before Judge Richey, contrasts sharply with the one it supersedes; the original understanding required a subpoena by the special prosecutor to obtain relevant materials in the White House and granted Mr. Nixon the right to exercise his favorite claim of executive privilege over the materials — as a private citizen. If the new ruling goes through, Mr. Nixon will be given copies of the material obtained by Mr. Ruth's staff and will have no legal right to claim privilege in order to "bar voluntary dissemination by an incumbent President of materials prepared in the executive office of the President to other departments of the executive branch for legitimate governmental purposes..." according to a brief filed jointly by the White House and Mr. Ruth's office.

This arrangement should have been drawn up at the time of the pardon; it might even have dampened the negative effect the pardon had on the American people. If Judge Richey gives his approval, as we trust he will, the new access will affirm Mr. Nixon's accountability, pardoned or not, as a party to much of the wrongdoing which tainted his administration.

Greenville merchants have begun to turn their attention to Christmas and a meeting of the Merchants' Division of the Chamber of Commerce will be held around Thanksgiving to work out plans for decorations.

Chamber of Commerce secretary R. R. Powell said the meeting will decide proper lighting and decoration of streets in the business district. The lighting program has been under the direction of the Water and Light Commission for many years, and the chamber is expected to call on the commission again this year.

Pitt County County tax collections for the fall are double those for the same period last year, according to county auditor J. H. Coward.

Collections for this year are $306,192.30 as compared to $143,968.68 for the same period last year. Coward said that $143,576.21 of this fall's collections involved this year's taxes, the balance being paid on back years. —Susan Price

GOOD-BYE, GOD

There is a little girl in a certain city whose father and mother never attend church. They have reasons for not doing so which seem to them to be entirely sufficient but which need not concern us here because this incident is not about the parents but about the little girl. Although the parents resolutely stay away from church, they always take the little girl to Sunday School "because it is good for her. (Why Sunday School is good for the daughter and church is bad for the parents they have not yet explained.)

When the parents call for the little girl to take her home after Sunday School is over, she often turns back as she leaves the building, waves her hand, and says, "Good-bye, God. See you next Sunday." Young as she is, she apparently knows that she lives in a home in which God has no part. One wonders if, as she grows up, she will sometime turn back to the building for the last time, wave, and say, "Good-bye, God."

'Recession' An Obscure Term

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP) — Some of the most simply explained activities of our economy are buried today in a clutter of confusion, hidden by complex terminology and definitions that, summed up, often are irrelevant.

No term is more obscure than "recession."

Is there a recession? Yes, there is. Stripped of all the asterisks and academic limitations or exceptions or qualifications, there is a recession of economic activity.

The current quarter, in fact, is the fourth straight one in which the economy, rather than growing, has shrunk. The shrinkage amounted to 7 per cent in the first quarter, 1.6 in the second and 2.9 in the third.

But for a recession to be official mustn't it be proclaimed by the National Bureau of Economic Research, a private organization, or the President or the Council of Economic Advisers?

If any group is qualified to make this determination it is the consumer, who is today more powerful and influential than either business or government.

And the consumer, through surveys and studies, has declared a recession exists.

Prof. George Katona, the dean of consumer behaviorists, for years associated with the Survey Research Center at Ann Arbor, Mich., reduced the consumer definition of recession to this: "Prosperous times, so people feel, are those in which they live better than a year or two earlier, while there is a recession if they live worse.

"According to this criterion, a recession set in toward the beginning of 1974."

For reasons sometimes as obscure as the definition of recession itself, many people aren't satisfied with that explanation, even though it coincides with the more scientifically precise definition so often given.

A recession occurs, many economists agree, when there exists two straight quarters of declining production. Some, however, aren't willing to concede the fact until it is so pronounced by the National Bureau, which might get around to a decision long after the recession has ended.

Some students of consumer behavior like to point out that sometimes the government is much slower than the general population to recognize the onset of recession. The government relies on statistics; the people rely more on instinct and subjective surveys.

To some degree, in fact, the government statistics are only a delayed reflection of what has already been decided by consumers; these figures record rather than forecast the event.

While the precise and complicated definitions have their uses, the psychological condition of consumers can never be ignored, because it is they who buy the cars and homes and food.

If the consumer feels there is a recession, therefore, the economist is likely to find verification in his figures, but several weeks or months later.

UMW President Tries 'Sell' Contract To Union

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —
United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller is trying to sell his union's 120,000 striking coal miners on the proposed new contract he spent nine weeks hammering out with the coal industry.

Miller began presenting the 175-page document to the UMW's 38-member bargaining council of executive board members and regional officers Thursday night. The council must approve the settlement before it can be presented to the union's rank-and-file, who since Tuesday have struck mines which produce 70 percent of the nation's coal. Miller and aides have been explaining the contract line by line to the council.

The UMW president has predicted that the package, which includes sizeable wage and benefit increases, would be ratified by the membership, possibly in time to end the nationwide walkout before Thanksgiving. But there have been indications from the coal fields that some miners are less than enthusiastic over the package.

In southern West Virginia, where some union members have been traditionally skeptical of union leadership, miners have criticized the absence in the proposed contract of a right to strike over local issues.

They say this right is important to avoid federal court orders that were issued against local walkouts under the old contract. Organizers of a petition drive supporting a right-to-strike clause claim they have more than 3,000 signatures.

Government economists have said that a longer walkout could result in the laying off of thousands of other industrial workers and have a potentially devastating effect on the nation's already ailing economy.

Most criticism of the tentative settlement has been directed at so-called noneconomic issues. The economic section of the proposal calls for 15 percent salary increases over the three-year contract period, plus additional cost of living raises. Miners now make between $42 and $50 a day.

The proposal would also increase pensions, for miners who have already retired, from the current $150 a month to $250 a month at the end of the contract period, and would provide even bigger pensions for future retirees. The contract also would provide sick leave for the first time, a new sickness and health protection plan, longer vacations and more holidays.

The ratification process is expected to take 10 days. If the contract wins approval, that would limit the four-day old walkout to a total of two-weeks. The strike has already triggered lay-off notices for more than 15,000 workers in the steel and railroad industries, however a two-week strike was not anticipated to have major consequences on the economy beyond these coal-related industries.

the great plains by capturing a Democratic seat in South Dakota, is a liberal (a "McGovern Republican," says his state's old guard). Rep. William Cohen of Maine, who risked isolation as a pro-impeachment Nixon critic, won with 75 per cent. Progressive Virginia Republicans see future moderation in their state party with the upset of veteran conservative Rep. Joel Broyhill. The claque of hard-core Nixonites from New Jersey and Indiana has been massacred. Conservative state legislators lost safe Republican seats in Michigan while moderate Gov. William Milliken was winning.

These and dozens of similar cases are being rationalized by conservatives in nonideological terms. For example, the unexpected defeat of New Jersey's Rep. William Widnall, senior Republican on the House Banking Committee, is explained in terms of age (68) and infirmity. Nevertheless, ideological overtones cannot be dismissed: Republican losers tended to be those with starkly negative, rigidly conservative voting records.

Thus, Anderson feels Mr. Ford should neither pursue a hard-line veto strategy nor abdicate leadership to swollen Democratic majorities in Congress. He wants the President to frame a new, more conciliatory program. The more conservative Rep. Barber Conable of New York, chairman of the House Republican Policy Committee, essentially agrees with Anderson.

The shape of the next two years may be determined by whether Mr. Ford follows Conable and Anderson or listens to old congressional colleagues, some of whom want him to hire lame-duck Rep. Dan Kuckendall of Tennessee as his new political adviser. By stubbornly defending Nixon even after his fall, Kuykendall managed to lose to a young liberal black man in his Memphis district. Those who want him now to advise the President on national politics reflect the old suicidal complex of the Republican party.

A prominent North Carolina pianist-composer received an award Tuesday night at the North Carolina Federation of Music Clubs 18th annual Music Day at the Hotel Sir Walter.

Loonis McGlohon, probably North Carolina's best known pianist-composer, received the 1974 Hinda Honigman Composers Cup for his composition Waltz for a Toy Ballerina. The award was presented at the 6 p.m. annual dinner meeting of the North Carolina Federation of Music Clubs, on opening day of Culture Week, 1974.

The award is given for the best musical composition by a North Carolinian published during the preceding year.

McGlohon, a native of Ayden is presently director of special projects for Jefferson Pilot Broadcasting Company in Charlotte. He has attained national recognition as a composer-producer, and his songs are recorded and performed by many of America's top artists, including Jose Ferrer, George Shearing, Pearl Bailey, Woody Herman, the

Dr. James H. Bearden, dean of the East Carolina University School of Business, was elected president of the Southern Business Administration Association Wednesday, during the SBAA's 22nd annual meeting in Atlanta.

Dr. Bearden had served the past year as vice president of the organization, whose membership includes deans of schools of business throughout the 16 southern states and the District of Columbia.

As president, Dr. Bearden will lead the association's activities through the annual meeting in New Orleans in November, 1975.

Past presidents of the SBAA include business deans from Auburn University, the University of Georgia, Georgia

State College, the University of Southern Mississippi, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Louisiana State University, Mississippi State University, Samford University and the University of Virginia.

DR. JAMES BEARDEN
The SBAA's primary objective is to help develop better education for business in the South's colleges and universities through exchange of ideas, programs and techniques among educators and business leaders.

"But, Mr. Farfel, the networks spend millions of dollars on computers and hire the best experts in the business. How can they run an honest election if you lie to them in a sample precinct?"

"No skin off my nose. They should be reporting election results and not projecting winners on the basis of what some Ph.D. feeds into a machine. I want to tell you, son, I never had so much fun as when NBC declared Gilligan the winner. I liked to have died laughing because I was the only one in the whole state who knew Rhodes was going to be our governor."

"You know, Mr. Farfel, everyone in town is mad at you. NBC has decided that you can no longer be a sample precinct. It's quite a blow to the pride of the community. Don't you have the slightest regret for what you did?"

"Only one, son. I'm sorry I made a fool out of Barbara Walters. She seems like such a nice girl."

Prompt Food Pledge Declined

By HILMI TOROS
Associated Press Writer
ROME (AP) — The Ford administration has turned down a request by the U.S. delegation to the World Food Conference for an immediate increase in food aid of one million tons, a White House official reported today.

Anne L. Armstrong, counselor to President Ford and third-ranking member of the U.S. delegation to the conference, told a newsman the decision was relayed to delegation members at its morning briefing.

At the urging of Democratic congressional leaders here for the conference, Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz sent the request to Ford asking that U.S. food aid be nearly doubled.

Many participants in the conference were already disappointed because the meeting has done nothing concrete toward countering starvation this year.

But others said it is taking significant steps against hunger in the future.

Mrs. Armstrong said the White House "stands by the original decision which had been gone over and over and over before the conference."

She called the request "unjust" and said in food aid "we had been second to none."

The White House decision was based on domestic considerations and what such an increase in aid would have on inflation and prices in America, she said.

The one million-ton grant would have a commercial value of some $175 million.

"This conference is bringing international awareness to the food problem," said Agriculture Minister A.T. Silva of Sri Lanka, an Asian island (formerly Ceylon) that is among the countries most seriously affected by grain shortages.

"But I don't think there will be enough time to take concrete actions for the emergency," he added.

The conference ends Saturday.

"Long-range plans are fine, but we should also make immediate pledges of food and money right at this minute," said Saudi Arabia's chief delegate, Tahir Ubeid. "This is not forthcoming."

Such pledges were not forthcoming from the Saudis either, despite their huge new oil revenues.

The chief of the American delegation, Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz, said his government felt from the start that the conference was not meant "to spend a great deal of The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Friday, November 15, 1974—7 time discussing the immediate food aid problem."

Democrats in Butz's delegation criticized the Ford administration for shelving their recommendation that it pledge another million tons of wheat for the needy nations. Sen. Dick Clark of Iowa said the administration's attitude seemed to be,

"We will do it on our own terms or not at all."

No Mail Delivery With No Postage

Postmaster H. Lloyd Mills today reminded customers that effective Sunday, the U.S. Postal Service intends to discontinue delivering mail on which there is no postage.

Mills said the new policy was instituted because of the high costs being incurred by the Postal Service in its attempt to deliver such mail. Officials estimate that such costs total approximately $18 million annually.

In announcing the new policy last month, Postmaster General E. T. Klassen said, "it is unfair to burden the vast majority of mailers with costs created by the few who mail without payment of postage."

After November 17, letters mailed without postage will be returned to sender if there is a return address, or to the dead letter office, instead of being delivered to the address as postage due mail as has been the custom. Postal officials will attempt to find the sender of unpaid mail and return it for a slight fee, if there is no return address.

"Naturally we realize that someone could inadvertently forget to put a stamp on a letter or that a stamp could come off prior to cancellation, so we urge mailers to be sure to include a correct return address on their mail," Mills said.

Backs Down On 'Bounty'

CARY, N.C. (AP)—"Too much controversy, too much sensationalism" forced a Cary shopping mall owner to back down on his offer of $500 for anyone who shoots a burglar.

David J. Martin's shopping center has been burglarized five times since July. He recently posted signs at entrances to the mall offering $500 to anyone shooting a burglar but only $200 for helping catch one.

When the signs drew publicity, Cary Police Chief J.W. Boles warned that anyone who shoots a burglar could be charged with murder or face lawsuits.

The mall owner said the signs were aimed at discouraging burglars and he didn't expect anyone to accept his bounty offer. Martin said he's considering new signs: "No reward for shooting burglars. Please protect our criminals."

Public Hearing Set In Grifton Monday Night

GRIFTON—A public hearing to discuss the Contentnea Metropolitan Sewerage District and the bond referendum scheduled for Dec. 10 will be held Monday at 7:30 in the Grifton School auditorium.

Background information of the district and the reasons for the proposed regional sewer disposal plant will be presented. Engineers of the project and CMSD board members will conduct the meeting.

A regional plant would qualify for 87 and one half percent federal funding.

A study conducted by the three towns—Winterville, Ayden and Grifton—shows that a regional facility will not only cost less to build but will provide lower operation and maintenance costs as compared with three separate plants.

One Injured In Car Collision

One person was injured and an estimated $1,500 property damage caused when two cars collided about 6:15 p.m. yesterday on Tenth Street, 140 feet West of the Greenville Boulevard intersection.

Officers identified the drivers of the cars involved as Robert Edward Nelson Jr. of 212 South Pitt St. and David Roy Hewitt of Route 1, Beaufort.

Damage was estimated at $300 to the Nelson vehicle and $1,200 to the Hewitt car.

Hewitt, reported injured in the collision, was charged with following too closely.

PLO Strains Ties Of Christians And Jews

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Some Christian leaders, like most Jews, object strongly to inclusion of the Palestine Liberation Organization in United Nations consideration of the Middle East. Some other churchmen say it could be useful.

The differences about it have strained feelings between American Christians and Jews. "Another stumbling block has arisen in the already boulder-strewn road of Jewish-Christian relations," says Rabbi Balfour Brickner, head of the inter-religious affairs department of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations.

"Many Jews have the feeling that Christians are deserting them on the Israel issue. It has now become the most divisive subject separating Jews from Christians in this country."

To try to reconcile attitudes, a series of public discussions of the problem, involving Jewish and Christian representatives, have been held lately in various places, with more of them in the offing.

Even this effort at times has hit snags. When the United Methodist women's division planned a recent forum on the matter here, Jewish spokesmen declined to take part, charging the scheduled panel was stacked against them with pro-Arab representatives.

On the other hand, sharp Christian opposition to the United Nations' dealing with Yasir Arafat's guerrilla organization, the PLO, also has appeared, including that by a group of 25 Christian specialists on Jewish-Christian affairs.

They issued a message to Arafat through an ad in the New York Times, protesting the United Nations invitation to him because "you speak only for a group publicly committed to the murder of innocents" and to "acts of terror."

The Christian leaders said that the Palestinian people had not chosen Arafat to speak for them and that for the United Nations to deal with him may propel humanity "closer to a catastrophic war."

"Your organization is not only a menace to Israel—a U.N. member which you have pledged to destroy in one manner or another—it is a menace to all humanity," said the group, including several noted Catholic and Protestant theologians and organizational officers.

It wasn't much as stained glass windows go. But for me it held a strange fascination. I guess it was the letters that puzzled me. The first was obviously "A". The second was trying to be "Q" or possibly "O" but didn't quite make it. And if the book portrayed were the Bible—why not put something on its pages that made sense?

It was Grandma who explained it simply. The New Testament was originally written in Greek. In the Greek alphabet, Alpha, like our letter "A," was the first letter, Omega the last. For centuries Christians have treasured these two letters as a symbol of God who said in Scripture:

"I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending . . ."

That sums up why the Bible, revealing to men God's truth, is the first and last word in daily reading.

American Refugees In Angola Are Flown Out

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — More than 100 American women and children were flown to Johannesburg today from Luanda, the capital of Angola, to escape the threat of racial violence.

Most of the refugees are wives and children of employees of Cabinda Gulf Oil, an American company operating in the Cabinda field north of the capital of the Portuguese colony.

Joe Connor, a Cabinda Gulf executive who accompanied the refugees, said the situation in Luanda is calm but trouble was feared this weekend.

"Right now things are pretty explosive in Angola, and it was simply considered safer to get the women to South Africa before possible flareups this weekend."

Forty women and 42 children arrived on a chartered South African airliner this morning and another 12 adults and 10 children were aboard a second flight.

Connor said some of them would return to the United States and others would return to Angola when the crisis cools down.

At least 35 persons have been killed since strife broke out last Sunday in the Portuguese colony between supporters of three rival black independence groups. Portuguese soldiers killed two persons Wednesday night.

Unofficially, the toll stands at closer to 100 in what could be the start of a power struggle among guerrilla organizations wanting to oversee the colony's eventual independence from Portugal.

Angola is the last remnant of Portugal's African empire. Lisbon recently granted independence to Guinea-Bissau and Mozambique becomes fully independent next year.

Ford Directs Rockefeller Drive

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has taken command of a Republican drive to blame the Democratic Congress for delaying Nelson A. Rockefeller's nomination as vice president.

The President said he ranks his choice of Rockefeller as the foremost achievement of his first 100 days in office. He said he could foresee no circumstances which would cause him to withdraw the nomination.

Ford's call to Congress to vote the nomination up or down by year's end coincided with a painstaking examination by the Senate Rules Committee of the two controversies that have contributed most to delaying confirmation.

The principal figure in one of these, former Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg, refused to accept Rockefeller's apology for his long-concealed role in the financing of a critical Goldberg biography during a Rockefeller campaign against Goldberg. The panel today hears nine more witnesses explain their role in the complicated affair.

At a news conference in Phoenix, Ariz., Ford told the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi, that he will ask Congress to insert deadlines into the 25th Amendment to the Constitution to prevent prolonged future struggles over the succession to the nation's No. 2 governmental post.

Earlier Thursday, the Senate's two top Republican leaders used their positions on the Rules Committee to complain at length that Democratic foot-dragging was subverting the 25th Amendment for partisan political gain.

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania took more than 15 minutes at one point to read excerpts from the original debate over the presidential succession amendment in which dozens of congressmen said its chief advantage was the speed with which a cooperative Congress could fill a vacancy in the vice presidency.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., the GOP whip, repeatedly expressed impatience at the delay which he said will cause Ford to leave the country on a trip to Southeast Asia next week without a vice president "on hand and in office to mind the store."

"What bothers some members of the Democratic majority is not that Rockefeller is so unqualified that he would be a poor vice president," Griffin said. "They are bothered that he might be too good," he asserted.

Democratic committee members — including Chairman Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., and assistant Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia — quickly disagreed.

Byrd, one of Rockefeller's most persistent interrogators, said the financing of the Goldberg biography and the large gifts and loans to public officials raise such fundamental questions of legality and ethics that he intends to take his time to air them thoroughly.

Only Wednesday, Byrd had said he saw no evidence to cause him to vote against Rockefeller's nomination, either in committee or in the Senate as a whole.

After the hearings Thursday, however, he said he would vote to report the nomination to the Senate floor but replied, "I'm not sure," when asked if he would vote for the nominee in the Senate.

Burglar Wounded By A Booby-Trap

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP)—A Goldsboro man was in serious condition in a Goldsboro hospital after being wounded Wednesday when he opened a closet door which Deputy Sheriff James Sasser said had been booby trapped as a deterrent to burglars.

Sasser said Earl Rogers, 23, was found with a .22-caliber bullet wound in his chest and was charged Thursday with breaking into the home of Leslie Lancaster of Rt. 2, Dudley. The officer said Lancaster told investigators after his mobile home had been burglarized twice in recent months he rigged a pistol so it would fire when the closet door was opened.

Sasser said the sheriff's office plans no legal action against Lancaster but that evidence in the case has been sent to District Solicitor L. Ogden Parker for possible grand jury action.

Sasser said Rogers' 19-year-old brother, Rennie, also had been charged in connection with the break-in.

The officer said the living room of the mobile home had been ransacked but apparently nothing was missing.

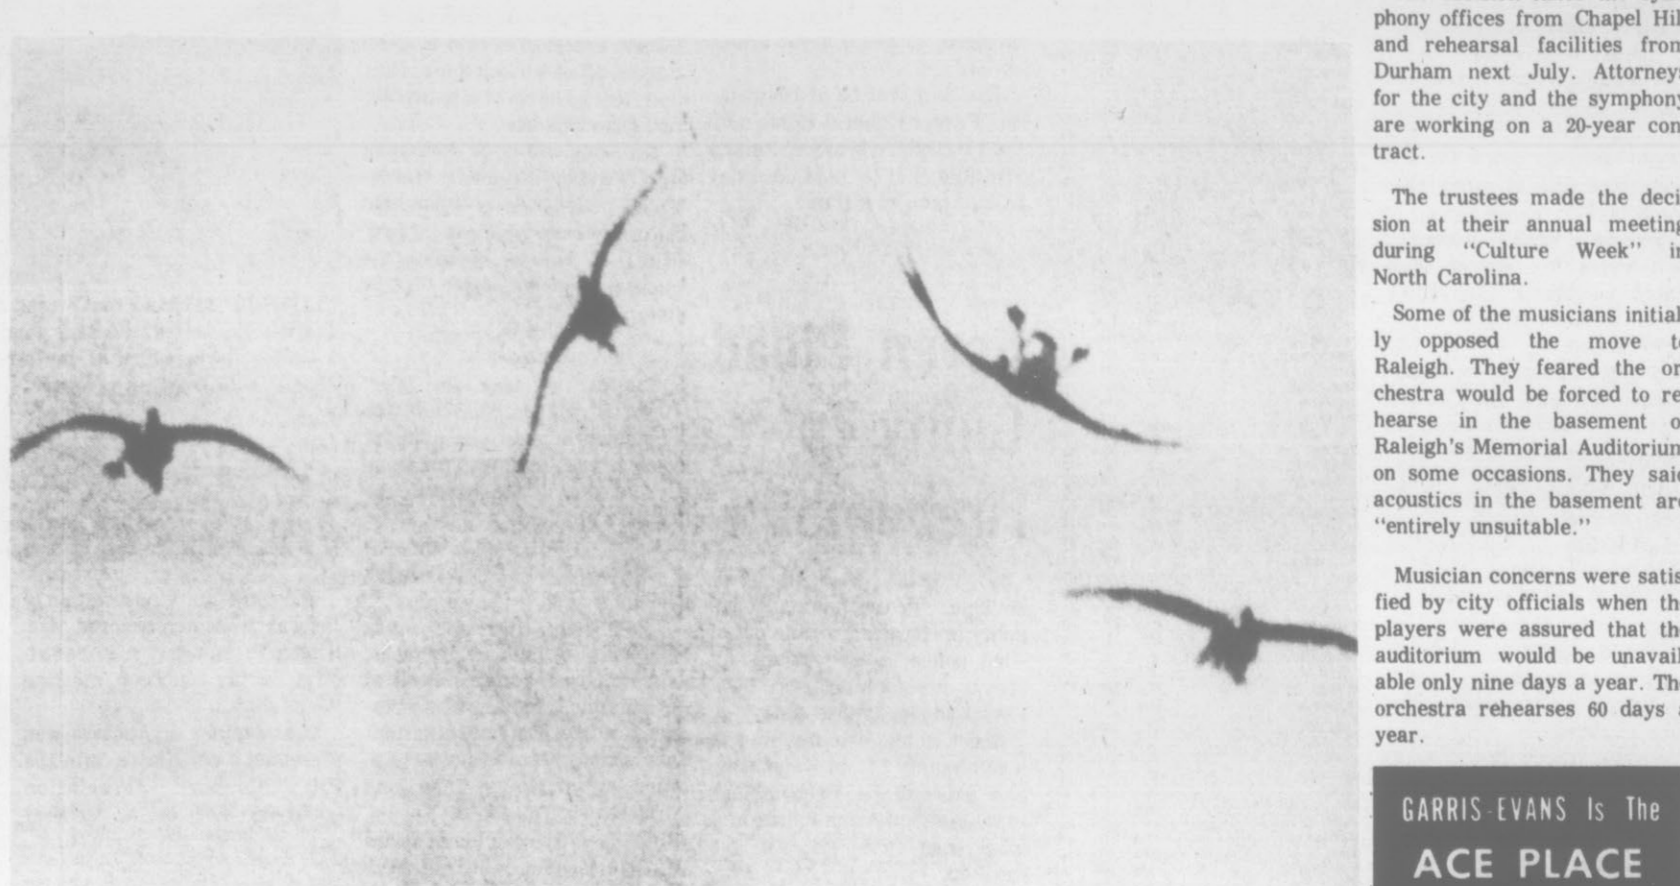

Chairmen In Heart Drive

Pitt County Heart Association fund-raising chairman Warren Stroud has announced special chairmen for the Heart campaign.

They are Mrs. Betty Owens, special events; Mrs. Wanda Petree, corporations and industries; William S. Corbett Jr., special gifts; W. Kenneth Whichard, Heart Fund; Evelyn Perry, ECU; Wilson McDowell, schools; and Mrs. E. C. Davenport, rural.

"The goal for Pitt County is $21,000," Stroud said.

Memorial contributions may be made to Miles Frost at North Carolina National Bank's main Greenville office. The check should be made payable to the Heart Fund. Included should be the donor's name and the name of the person or persons to whom acknowledgement of the gift may be made.

Vote Raleigh As New Home

RALEIGH (AP)—Raleigh was chosen the new home for the North Carolina Symphony by a 19-9 vote of the board of trustees.

The decision takes the symphony offices from Chapel Hill and rehearsal facilities from Durham next July. Attorneys for the city and the symphony are working on a 20-year contract.

The trustees made the decision at their annual meeting during "Culture Week" in North Carolina.

Some of the musicians initially opposed the move to Raleigh. They feared the orchestra would be forced to rehearse in the basement of Raleigh's Memorial Auditorium on some occasions. They said acoustics in the basement are "entirely unsuitable."

Musician concerns were satisfied by city officials when the players were assured that the auditorium would be unavailable only nine days a year. The orchestra rehearses 60 days a year.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market slipped into a broad decline in light trading today.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 6.49 at 651.91. Declines outpaced advances by about a 3-2 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts traced the drop to unhappiness over inflation and the slumping economy. They noted general concern over the sharp rise reported by the government Thursday in the wholesale-price index during October.

There was also some evident disappointment among investors that the market had failed to show any favorable response to another cut in the prime lending rate posted this morning by New York's First National City Bank.

International Telephone & Telegraph was the Big Board volume leader, unchanged at 16 1/2.

Xerox slid 2 1/2 to 63 1/2. The Federal Trade Commission reported a provisional order requiring the company to grant certain licenses on its patents, with the intended result of increasing competition in the office-copier market.

In addition, the company disclosed it had postponed some hiring plans.

Singer gained 1 1/2 to 14 1/2, also in active trading. The company cut its quarterly dividend Thursday, but investors apparently had been expecting it to be omitted altogether.

The NYSE's 11 a.m. composite common-stock index was down .23 at 38.47.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index rose .22 to 68.36.

Imperial Oil A, the Amex volume leader, rose 3/4 to 25 1/2.

Seven Plead Guilty To Firebombing

CONCORD, N.C. (AP)—Seven black youths have pleaded guilty to charges growing out of what police called racially inspired firebombings in downtown Kannapolis last June.

About 40 black youths met in a community hut in Kannapolis and planned the firebombings in retaliation for the killing of a black man by a white, it was testified.

The firebombings began around 11:15 p.m. on June 5 with a fire at the Watkins Building Material Co. which caused an estimated $130,000 damage. In the next four hours, fires broke out at four other places within a mile and a half.

Judge Thomas Seay heard testimony from the defendants and planned the firebombings in retaliation for the killing of a black man by a white, it was testified.

Freddie Lee Springs pleaded guilty to firebombing the Watkins company.

Michael Collons, Larry Crawford and Frank Flowe pleaded guilty to charges of felonious burning of the Centergrove grocery. Only $35 damage was caused because the fire, set off by a kerosene bomb, went out, it was testified.

Michael Brown, Clyde Knox and Christopher Bernard Blanton pleaded guilty to firebombing woods on the property of a high school.

All the defendants are teenagers.

Two other defendants were tried in the Watkins burning last month. James Russell was acquitted and Ralph Cadell Jackson was convicted and sentenced to 10 years. He is appealing.

She Can Smile About Mugging

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Despite her broken arm, Mrs. Hollis Sharpe managed a smile as she recalled the mugger who greedily plunged his hand inside a plastic bag he grabbed from her.

Somewhere stalks a mugger who should be leery of ladies walking their dogs, especially those like Mrs. Sharpe. She carried the bag to clean up after her miniature poodle.

She said, "I only wish there had been a little bit more in the bag."

Harper
Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Bizzell Harper will be conducted Sunday at 1 p.m. at Little Creek Disciples Church on Rt. 1, Ayden. Burial will be in the Ayden Cemetery.

The family will receive friends at Phillips Brothers Mortuary Saturday from 8 to 9 p.m.

Sharp
NEW YORK, N.Y.—Funeral services for Mrs. Annie Moye Sharp of New York, who died Tuesday, were conducted Thursday at 1 p.m. at the Walter B. Cook Funeral Home in New York.

She was a native of Pitt County.

Surviving is one sister, Mrs. Lucy Moye Lattimore of Greenville, N. C.

Thomas
Funeral services for Mrs. Bessie Thomas, who died Tuesday in Wilson Memorial Hospital, will be conducted Sunday at 1:30 p.m. at Arthur Chapel F.W.B. Church with the Rev. J.N. Gilbert officiating. Burial will follow in St. Delight Cemetery in Greene County.

She was a native of Sumpter, S.C., but had spent most of her life in the Farmville community. She was a member of Arthur Chapel Church.

Surviving are one son, Charlie Barnes of the home; one sister, Mrs. Josephine Swift of Farmville; two grandchildren.

The body will be at Flanagan and Parker Funeral Home. Family visitation will be held Saturday from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m.

CLEAN-UP TIME—Front Street, the main thoroughfare in Nome, Alaska, was dotted with deep ponds and debris this week following a winter storm which at one point covered the town's business district with five feet of water. Alaska's Gov. William Egan has declared Nome and surrounding villages on the Bering Sea a disaster area and has asked President Ford for federal aid to help in the cleanup operations. (AP Wirephoto)

Insurance Women Honor Member

The Pitt County Association of Insurance Women honored Mrs. Sophia P. Sumner, member-at-large, at its luncheon meeting Wednesday.

Mrs. Sumner of Ahsokie was presented a certificate from the Pitt County Association qualifying her as a certified professional insurance woman. Mrs. Sumner was one of 988 persons who were awarded the Insurance Institute of America Certificate in General Insurance last year. The award is given to persons who have completed a three semester study program and three national examinations in liability and property insurance.

Mrs. Sumner, who has been working insurance agencies since 1949, obtained her North Carolina agents property and casualty insurance license in 1952 and is employed by the Greene-Bryant Agency in Ahsokie.

The Insurance Institute of America is a nationally-recognized non-profit educational organization supported by the insurance industry.

During the business session Wednesday, reports from the yard sale were given by President Sarah Jenkins. Proceeds from the yard sale will be used to buy gifts for a child at Christmas.

A Christmas dessert party will be held Dec. 16 at the home of Mrs. Jenkins.

Mrs. Jenkins reported on the mid-year meeting of insurance women she attended in Greensboro in October. A total of 28 clubs were represented and the state membership has reached 650.

Guests were Joe Bryant and Bill Reese. The club voted to hold their annual bosses night party in February and the installation of officers will be held in April.

Coordinator For Title 1

RAY PARKER

Ray H. Parker has been named to the position of program coordinator for Title I Funds for the Pitt County Schools.

Parker replaces John H. Taylor Jr. who resigned Oct. 15 to accept a position with the Procter and Gamble Co.

A native of Hertford County, Parker graduated from C. S. Brown High School. He received his B.S. degree from Elizabeth City State University in 1969.

Prior to accepting his position with the Pitt County Board of Education, Parker taught in the Martin County Schools for two years and served as district Boy Scouts executive for three years.

He and his wife, Alfreida have two sons, Derrick and Yancey. Mrs. Parker is employed by the Pitt County Department of Social Services.

The Parkers reside in Colonial Park Mobile Home, Rt. 4, Greenville.

No Cruelty In Swallowing Frog

MARKET DRAYTON, England (AP) — A court has ruled that Derek Podmore committed no cruelty on a frog by swallowing it.

Podmore, who appeared in court Thursday in a black rubber scuba diver's rig with two pheasant feathers in his hair, said afterward he was all set now for a run at the world frog-swallowing record.

Podmore was accused of causing unnecessary suffering to an adult frog, which he swallowed live between gulps of brew in a tavern of this small country town.

There was prosecution evidence from a veterinary surgeon who claimed frog swallowing was cruel, since the creature died of either suffocation or shock. But the court dismissed the case after defense counsel compared the act to fishermen using frogs as live bait.

Deery, Indians Challenge Pirates

Placekicker Jim Woody

The chances of a Southern Conference championship have just about vanished for the East Carolina Pirates, the defending champs, but they will be gone completely unless they beat home-standing William & Mary Saturday afternoon.

Kickoff for the Southern Conference game is 1:30 p.m. in Williamsburg, Va. The Bucs must win to have a chance for a tie, and even that is an outside one.

For a tie—a three-way one—to occur, East Carolina must win both of its remaining games, against William & Mary and VMI. At the same time, Richmond must beat Appalachian State Saturday, then fall to William & Mary the following week. Of course, Appalachian can end the Buc hopes with a victory over the Spiders.

Last week, in their 28-20 defeat at the hands of Richmond, the Pirates faced one of the best quarterbacks in the conference is Harry Knight, described by the Buc staff as "quite dangerous."

But if Knight was dangerous, William & Mary's quarterback, Bill Deery, defies description. Deery leads the Southern Conference in total offense, standing 14th in the nation in that field. He's the number two rusher in the league and is the number two passer. Overall, he's accounting for 169.5 yards per game, and has a touchdown responsibility of 10.

"Deery is definitely the key to their success," East Carolina assistant coach Frank Orgel said. "But he's not the only key. Dick Pawlewicz, who plays a number of positions is a key man too, and they have a good, sound, balanced offense. John Gerdelman's running has been impressive too. They are as good a team as we've played."

Orgel feels that William & Mary's offense is perhaps better than Richmond's since they can do so many things off it. "They line up in the I, but they run the option off it very well. Deery can run or throw, or pitchout. He's a threat to score every time he gets the ball, either by breaking a long run or throwing the bomb."

It might be noted that Deery has broken the NCAA national record for rushing for a quarterback during his career.

Still, the Indians have only a 3-6 record and are just 1-2 in the league. "Mistakes have hurt them. Just two or three plays a game has made the difference," Orgel said. "They've given up a lot of yardage (376.7 per game), and they've had a lot of yards in penalties. They play good defense, but they haven't been able to make the big play — forcing a lot of turnovers. They move around and give you different looks."

And, Orgel pointed out, the Indians have another advantage few other teams the Pirates have played have had. "They had an open date, then played Virginia Tech (another wishbone team). So they've really had three weeks to work against the wishbone and fine some way to stop it. They can correct some of the mistakes they made against Tech."

Deery's running isn't the entire part of the Indian offense. He's run for 90.7 yards a game, and completed 6.3 passes a game for 764 yards. Gerdelman has averaged 58.7 yards a game rushing, while Deery has used three targets for his passes, split end Bruce McCutcheon, tight end Mike Bujakowski, and Pawlewicz. Pawlewicz usually lines up as a slot-back, but may move into a full-house backfield, or change off with McCutcheon as a split end, or Bujakowski as a tight end.

He's also the deep man on kickoffs, and ranks fourth in the nation, averaging 30 yards per return.

Coach Pat Dye has tagged the two players. Deery and Pawlewicz as William & Mary "dynamic duo," and notes the Pirates must stop them.

"They are a darn good football team. They execute well, and they are going to give us a lot of problems," Dye said.

"I hope we're going to play defense this week," Dye said when asked if he thought the game could turn into a high scoring fight. "I want to see a lot of points, but just on our side of the scoreboard. But if they don't make any mistakes — or if we don't force them into making some, we're going to be in trouble."

Dye isn't worried about the team being down for the game. "I think we're going into this one in a good frame of mind," he said. "We've had good practices this week, and I'd be very disappointed if we don't play well."

"I do think that the best team will win. And if we lose I don't think it will be because we didn't play well."

Should the Pirates bow in their final two games of the year, it would give them their worst league record since 1969.

Cagers In Good Drill

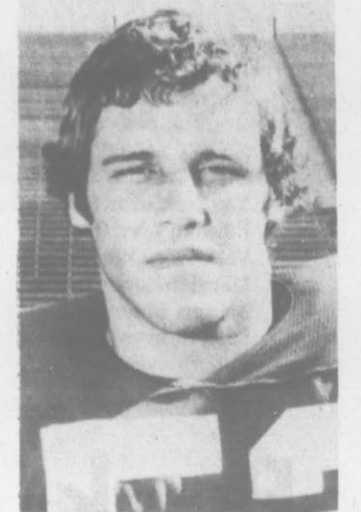

NEW BERN — East Carolina University's basketball team went on the road last night for the first time, holding a scrimmage in conjunction with one held by the New Bern High School team.

The Pirates played for 40 minutes, playing two 20 minute halves without stopping the clock during play. There was a constant interchange of players, so no official totals were kept. The two units did put 132 points up on the scoreboard, however.

Wade Henkel, a freshman, led the scoring with 23 points, while senior Robert Geter had 18, sophomore Buzzy Braman had 15, senior Kenny Edmonds had 14 and junior Earl Garner added 11. Five other Pirates had eight points each.

Coach Dave Patton was quite pleased with the work of the team. "We ran well, and we had a good passing game. We also hit the open men real well."

The Bucs will hold one more scrimmage of this type, on Tuesday in Washington. Washington High School's team will scrimmage at 6:45 p.m., with the Pirates following them. The game is being sponsored by the Washington Babe Ruth League.

Sports Hero No Longer Held In Awe

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Americans are losing the awe they once had for their sports heroes and are becoming more cynical about big-time fun and games, contend two Harvard students who have spent eight months probing the sports mentality in the United States.

"I think it is a loving cynicism, however," says Edward L. Trimble of Baltimore, 20, a major in history and literature at Harvard University.

"There are not any sacred cows any more," adds Glenn A. Ayres of Annapolis, Md., a 20-year-old Harvard junior majoring in psychology and social relations.

"It is difficult to become star-struck over athletes who are suddenly thrust into the roles of businessmen with astronomical salaries and cordons of business agents," Ayres said.

"Fans have discovered their heroes can be corruptible."

Trimble and Ayres were members of the 12-man editorial staff of the Harvard Lampoon, the nation's oldest college humor magazine, which recently produced a full-length parody of Sports Illustrated. It was an exhaustive piece of work, eight months in the making.

"For most of us," added Trimble, a lean six-footer, "it is another world to go away to. It is an escape. We all attach ourselves to a personality or a team representing goodness and light. And we root for it against what we picture as the bad guy."

"But we are learning to stand apace and recognize sports for what they are," said Trimble. "Nostalgia. A lift in spirits. But there is more of a humorous than a serious vein running through them now. We can be amused at what we see rather than think the world will revolve on the outcome."

Trimble said he found that the public, while not awed, was nevertheless fascinated by the modern sports giants.

"Americans are impressed by millionaires and records," he added. "When Sandy Koufax is in an airport, people will stop and stare at that left arm of his. And Eddie Arcaro — they will marvel at what a little man can do on top of an animal."

Paladins Set For Run At Another Cage Title

By WOODY PEELE

(One of a series)
(Editor's note: This is the first of a series of articles on Southern Conference basketball teams, along with area high school and East Carolina winter sports teams. The series is expected to continue through December.)

GREENVILLE, S. C. — It seems amazing, but Joe Williams in his fifth year at Furman University is the dean of Southern Conference basketball coaches.

He's won either tournament or regular season championships for the past three years, and if he has his way, there won't be any changes in those plans for a few more years at least. His Paladins are favored to capture the championship again this season, and he has a couple of big reasons why.

The two big reasons are 7-1 Fessor (Moose) Leonard and 6-9 Clyde Mayes. Mayes was the Southern Conference Basketball Player of the Year last season. Both are back for their senior years at Furman.

"Some people may not believe that it's possible. I wonder if I do," Williams said. "But Clyde has actually improved since last year. I didn't think he could improve any more than he already has. But he's quicker, and that may be the difference."

With Mayes and Leonard anchoring the front line, along with veteran Craig Lynch, a 6-6 junior, the Paladins probably will have the strongest front line in the Southern—and maybe the strongest in the South.

"Our second unit may be weaker, however," Williams admitted. The team doesn't have the depth it has had in the past. "We lost a good group to graduation, and we're down to seven players that we're really counting on."

Another loss was that of All

Freshman team member Bruce Grimm, who transferred to Providence after the end of spring term in Greenville.

Williams said that the biggest problem with Leonard in the past was his inconsistency, but that so far in practice, he has shown that he may have overcome this. "Lynch has also played real well so far, but his father is seriously ill," Williams said. "We are hopeful that the situation will clear up soon, however, and he'll return to form."

The big question mark for Williams is how to replace his backcourt. Besides losing Grimm to transferring, he also lost his other starter and backup men at the guard slots to graduation. Right now, he's looking to Steve Green, a 5-10 junior college transfer, and Ronnie Smith a 5-10 freshman. "Both of them are excellent leaders, great passers and have great quickness," Williams said. "One will end up at the point." The number two guard is likely to be 6-4 senior Mike Hall.

Dolphins Get Win

The Dolphins ousted the Steelers, 19-0, from the City Recreation Department's Flag Football Tournament yesterday.

The Dolphins got two first half scores. Willie Carney took a seven-yard pass from Leroy Harris for the first touchdown. Then, Kenny Langley carried back an interception 45 yards for the second. Carney and Harris teamed up again for the PAT pass.

In the second half, the Dolphins scored on a 17-yard run by Carney.

The playoffs continue on Monday, with the Cowboys meeting the Eagles. Tuesday, the Redskins take on the Dolphins, with the two survivors meeting for the title on Wednesday.

In a tackle game, the Blue took a 14-0 victory over the Gold. Both of the scores came in the first half. Joey Matheis scored on a one-yard run and Reggie Selby added the conversion for an 8-0 lead. Later in the period, Selby scored on a four-yard run for the final 14-0 margin.

There remains one other question mark, however. Since both guards are inexperienced, the only experienced guard back is Baron Hill, who has been slowed down by his recovery from a compound fracture of his arm during the summer.

"We have to improve our defense," Williams said. "Our assets are passing and quickness and we plan to run more to take advantage of this."

Williams is also worried about his schedule. He feels it is the toughest ever at Furman. Among the teams Furman must play are Clemson, Oklahoma, Florida, Minnesota, Southern California, North Carolina and N. C. State. "I hope we get tough early. They key will be how we take a loss," Williams said.

Mayes and Leonard are the only players back who averaged in double figures last year. Mayes, with a 17.3 mark, and Leonard at 15.3. Lynch wasn't far off at 9.8, and probably should take up the slack.

If the guard positions mature quickly, Williams could easily find himself with another first place seeding going into next spring's Southern Conference tournament—which will be played on the Paladins' home court.

Last Place Joe Was Winner Once

This week marks the first week of the high school state playoffs, and this area is fortunate enough to have three teams vying for the title.

We'll take a look at their chances, along with the Southern and Atlantic Coast Conference outlooks — as our panel sees them.

Joe Jenkins is due an apology — and he's been swift to let us know. Every day since last Friday, he's been camping under our desk bellowing in pain.

Seems we made a slight mistake. Last week, we said that the best record was a 7-5 mark — well we were wrong. Joe, bless his heart, came up with an 8-4 record. But Joe's been down so long, we just didn't realize it until it was brought to our attention.

His record, however, was correct.

This week, Tom Baines continues to lead the pack, with record of 75-33. George Holland, who went 8-4, moved back into sole possession of second with a 71-37 mark, while we are right behind at 70-38. Diane Allen follows with a 65-43 mark, just one up on Jack Whichard, 64-44. Joe comes in the rear of the pack with a 60-48 record.

The panel isn't picking the Robersonville and Farmville Central games, so we'll look at those first.

Robersonville rolled over its opposition in the Eastern Plains Conference, and went to the semi-finals of the state playoffs last year. This year, they've been even stronger as they start another visit. The Eagles are tough both offensively and defensively. We look for them to come home with a victory.

Farmville Central, except for powerful Southern Wayne, had not a great deal of trouble this year. Havelock won its conference title, but the league over all isn't the strongest around. We feel Farmville has played the tougher teams and come out in a stronger position to win the battle. The Jaguars will be winning to advance to the quarterfinals.

Our panel has taken a look at the Rose-Sanford Central game. The Rampants were disappointing in their game against Northeastern last week, while Sanford just did get past Richmond County. The two teams should provide a lot of fireworks, but Sanford has the home field — and the home fan — advantage. Unfortunately, the panel casts a 5-1 vote in favor of Sanford.

East Carolina University, its title hopes dashed by its loss to Richmond last week, goes to William & Mary, seeking some solace. The Indians have the top offense in the league, and will be hard to stop. However, the panel has faith in the Bucs, and gives them a 5-1 nod.

In the other games, the consensus has Richmond over Appalachian State; Clemson over Virginia; North Carolina over Army; South Carolina over Wake Forest; Florida State over Virginia Tech; Furman over The Citadel; VMI over Colgate; Maryland over Duke; N. C. State and Arizona State a toss-up; and Auburn over Georgia.

The full poll:

Poll Didn't Prove Right

By MARSHALL JOHNSON, AP Sports Writer.

Should Appalachian's Mountaineers upset Richmond's Spiders in one of three Southern Conference football games Saturday, there are going to be a lot of embarrassed coaches around the league.

In their preseason poll, the coaches picked Appalachian to finish fifth and Virginia Military's Keydets sixth, but a Mountaineer victory over the Spiders would leave only Appalachian and VMI in the running for the conference title.

Both Appalachian, 5-5 overall, and Richmond, 6-3, go into the game with 3-1 conference records behind VMI at 4-1. It's the final game for the Mountaineers, who would wind up 4-1 by winning.

That would leave a decision up to a Nov. 23 game in which VMI will play host to East Carolina's two-time champion Pirates, 6-3 over-all and 2-2 in the league, who play Saturday at William and Mary against the Indians, 3-6 and 1-2.

Another possibility—if Richmond beats Appalachian but loses to William and Mary and East Carolina wins its last two games—is a three-way tie among VMI, Richmond and East Carolina.

Only one thing is certain—either Appalachian or East Carolina will be knocked out of the running by the Appalachian-Richmond result.

The third conference game is scheduled Saturday night with Furman's Paladins, 5-4 over-all and 2-3 in the league, at home against The Citadel's Bulldogs, 2-7 and 1-4.

VMI, 5-4 over-all and loser of two in a row, tries for the third time to assure its first winning season since 1967 in a non-league home game against Colgate. Another nonleague scrap has Davidson's Wildcats, 1-6, playing host to Defiance.

"I guess they're gonna be picked over us," says Appalachian Coach Jim Brakefield of the Spiders, whom he calls "a pretty physical football team."

Brakefield is especially wary of Spider quarterback Harry Knight, who leads the league in passing with 95 completions in 1,244 yards and nine touchdowns.

The Mountaineers' Joe Parker leads the nation in punting with a 44.5-yard average on 59 kicks, and Appalachian's Devon Ford is the top punt returner with a 16.5 average on 34 run-backs.

Of Richmond, which used three fumbles for 13 points in a 28-20 victory last Saturday over East Carolina, Brakefield says "I hope they had all their luck last week."

East Carolina must cope with William and Mary quarterback Bill Deery, the league leader in total offense with 175.6 yards per game, and Pirate Coach Pat Dye says "he scares you every time the ball is snapped. He quarterbacks a team better than its record indicates."

The Pirates, averaging 288.9 yards per game on the ground to 242.1 for the Indians, "are not going to lay down and die," Dye says. "In the next two weeks we'll see how much the team wants to finish the season winning."

Furman Coach Art Baker says "last year I had trouble convincing our kids just how big a game it was," and The Citadel came away with a 26-21 upset. Baker says, "I don't see that problem this time. We need a win Saturday to assure a winning season."

"They probably feel like we snuck up on them last year, so they will want to avenge that," says Coach Bobby Ross of The Citadel, who has the league's top rusher in Andrew Johnson, 124.1 yards per game. "They are a very good football team. Their main problem has been like us—they're plagued by their own offensive mistakes."

VMI will rely on the running of Ronnie Norman, 85 yards per game, and Kim Glidewell, 65.7, in its bid for a sixth victory. Despite the last two defeats, Coach Bob Thalman says, "We've come back before and I'm sure we can do it again."

Aaron Signs Two-Year Pact With Milwaukee

By MIKE O'BRIEN, AP Sports Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Hank Aaron has yet to hit a baseball for the Milwaukee Brewers, but the all-time home run king already has made a profound impact on his return to the city where he began his quest for stardom 21 years ago.

"I want to end my career here. My main challenge is to come back and bring a championship to this city that I love so dearly," Aaron said Thursday in his first appearance here since the Brewers obtained him in a trade with the Atlanta Braves Nov. 2.

Brewers' president Bud Selig announced that Aaron, who will be 41 Feb. 5, had signed a two-year contract as a player. Manager Del Crandall said Aaron will be used primarily as a designated hitter.

The news conference, described as the largest ever held here, was considered momentous enough to be televised locally live. The dozens of newsmen were joined by admiring dignitaries — including former Wisconsin Gov. Warren P. Knowles — and many cheered as Aaron entered the conference room at the downtown hotel.

Aaron, who hit 398 of his record 733 home runs for the old Milwaukee Braves from 1954 through 1965, said he was confident he could improve on his 1974 figures of a .268 batting average and 20 home runs.

He said the pressure of trying to surpass Babe Ruth's previous record of 714 career homers was past, and that not having to play in the field every day should help his stamina.

But Crandall and others pointed to Aaron's potential leadership value to the team. American League president Lee MacPhail said Aaron should boost attendance not only here, but in AL cities where he never has played.

"I'm delighted and so are all the other 11 clubs in our league," MacPhail said. "A couple of years ago a few of us worked quite hard to sell the concept of the designated hitter. Today, all those people will be recompensed a thousand-fold for getting the DH rule through."

Aaron said one of his reasons for asking to leave the Braves and the National League, which does not have the DH rule, was to be able to play without the strain of regular outfield duty.

Ticket director Dick Hackett said the trade has produced "stacks of mail inquiring about season tickets."

"It's unbelievable," he said. "We get letters from little old ladies, little kids, saying 'God bless you for bringing Hank Aaron back.'"

Selig declined to discuss Aaron's contract, other than to call it "an extraordinary contract for an extraordinary athlete."

Aaron reportedly earned $200,000 annually under his expired three-year contract with Atlanta.

Selig also declined to say whether Aaron has been promised a front office job with the Brewers, who have been without a general manager since Jim Wilson resigned in August.

All the show payoffs on the first three finishers were $2.10. This caused the track to lose $2.074. The Off-Track-Betting Corp. lost $2,532.

Pack Seeks 2nd Upset

By The Associated Press

Last week, North Carolina State won a 12-7 upset over Penn State, whose Joe Paterno is the No. 1 major-college football coach in winning percentage. This Saturday night the Wolfpack gets a shot at the No. 2 coach, Frank Kush of Arizona State.

The game at Tempe will be the last of the regular season for the Wolfpack, which will play Houston in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl.

A victory over Arizona State would give N.C. State a 9-2 mark, its best ever. Arizona State is 5-3. N.C. State is No. 16 nationally.

Kush's record is 137-37-1 in a little over 17 years of coaching. His teams have won 54 of their last 61 games. Of the seven losses, five were by a touchdown or less, and none was by more than nine points.

Other games for Atlantic Coast Conference teams Saturday will be Duke vs. Maryland in the Oyster Bowl at Norfolk, Va.; Army at North Carolina, Virginia at Clemson, and Wake Forest in a night game at South Carolina.

Maryland and Duke, each 6-3, are good on both defense and offense. Maryland, No. 13 nationally and headed for the Liberty Bowl, leads the conference in rushing defense, scoring defense and total defense. Duke is second in the three categories. The Duke Blue Devils are tops in pass defense, and the Maryland Terrapins are second.

Maryland is averaging 27.4 points a game and Duke 19.4.

Duke coach Mike McGee says that from what he can see in the films, Maryland has the strongest physical team in the conference.

North Carolina, 5-4, got a bid to the Sun Bowl although it was beaten 54-32 at Clemson last week. Clemson, tough at home and running the veer offense to perfection, scored 34 points in the first half. In Army, the Tar Heels will face a team with a similar offense, the wishbone. Army is 3-6. It won by 17-15 last week over the Air Force, which is 7-2.

"Clemson executed very well, but there is no excuse for our defense playing as poorly as it did," said North Carolina coach Bill Dooley. We must play better this week if we hope to stop Army."

Clemson is tough at home. It has won all four games this season at its Death Valley, where its loud fans sometimes bother other teams.

Clemson is 5-4 against Virginia's 4-5.

Virginia won the mythical state championship by beating VMI 28-10 last week.

Wake Forest has lost all nine games this season, and 11 in a row counting the final two of last year. South Carolina is 3-6.

The Deacons hope that history will repeat. Eleven years ago they met the Gamecocks in Columbia and broke an 18-game losing streak.

Blazers Close Out With 27-24 Victory

ANAHEIM (AP) — It's been a season of difficulties for the World Football League in its first year. Just ask the Florida Blazers.

Money troubles have afflicted the new league and with one of the conference's most publicized problems, Blazer players have not been paid in 11 weeks.

But with a promise of new owners and new money, the players decided to travel west for the final game of the WFL's regular season, a meeting between the Eastern Division champion Blazers and the Southern California Sun, the winner in the Western Division.

And with a pair of key defensive plays by linebacker Eddie Sheats, including a blocked punt to set up the winning field goal with four seconds to play, the Blazers closed out the regular season with a 27-24 victory over Southern California on national television Thursday night.

"I'm very proud of this team," said Florida Coach Jack Pardee.

"No one really knows the adversity we have overcome. All year long we've had to react in tight situations and tonight was no different."

The Blazers' only score in the second half was Dave Strock's 25-yard field goal to win the game as the Sun, trailing by 17 points at halftime, came back with 14 points in the final quarter.

Southern California tied the score on a desperation play with 2:29 left in the game. On fourth down on the Blazer 26-yard line, with 24 yards needed for a first down, Sun quarterback Tony Adams hit Keith Denson with a touchdown pass.

But Sheats intercepted Adams' pass on the action point try and kept the game tied 24-24.

The Blazers ended the regular season 14-6. Southern California finished 13-7.

Florida got two touchdowns on passes by Bob Davis to rookie tight end Greg Latta. The first was a 26-yard throw in the first quarter for a 10-0 lead after Strock booted a 28-yard field goal to open the Florida scoring, the second a four-yard toss in the second quarter.

Florida's Tommy Reamon captured the WFL rushing title running 68 yards to complete the 20-game regular schedule with 1,576 yards.

Kermit Johnson scored on a 33-yard touchdown run for Southern California and finished the season with 1,008 yards, becoming the sixth back in the league to go over 1,000 yards.

Both teams are playoff bound. The Sun hosts Hawaii next Thursday night and Florida hosts Charlotte Wednesday night.

Oilers Seeking Fourth Straight

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

About three weeks ago, the Houston Oilers, sagging under the weight of a five-game losing streak, left home and staggered into Cincinnati. And just about everyone figured the string would run to six.

A few hours later it was the Bengals who were staggering. The Oilers pranced out of Riverfront Stadium with a 34-21 victory.

An upset, everyone said. A fluke.

So the Oilers followed that up by knocking off the New York Jets 27-22 and the Buffalo Bills 21-9. Now the streak is a positive one — three victories in a row, for the first time since 1971. It was the best road trip in the team's history. Those three victories were more than Houston had won the entire past two seasons combined.

And on Sunday, they face the Bengals again, this time in the suddenly friendly Astrodome. The team is predicting the largest crowd of the season, perhaps a sellout.

Sunday's other National Football League games, it's Pittsburgh at Cleveland, Los Angeles at New Orleans, San Diego at Oakland, Buffalo at Miami, St. Louis at Philadelphia, Dallas at Washington, Green Bay at Minnesota, the New York Giants at Detroit, the Jets at New England, San Francisco at Chicago and Baltimore at Atlanta. On Monday night, Denver hosts Kansas City.

Sid Gillman, the coach of the rejuvenated Oilers, doesn't buy that "upset" business anymore. "We feel we can play with anybody," he said.

The Bengals have a pretty good quarterback in Ken Anderson, the NFL's No. 1 passer. He picked Pittsburgh to pieces in last week's 17-10 victory that trimmed the Steelers' lead in the American Conference Central Division to one-half game over the Bengals.

What Anderson has done for Cincinnati, Don Pastorini has done for the Oilers. Given time to pass by his improved offensive line, Pastorini has thrown five touchdown strikes in the last four games and has moved up to fourth among American Conference passers.

Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll isn't saying who his starting quarterback will be against the Browns. Terry Bradshaw, who lost his job to Joe Gilliam in the exhibition season, has been back as the starter the past few games. And Terry Hanratty is still lurking on the sidelines.

The Steelers haven't won in Cleveland since 1964.

The Rams need only a tie against New Orleans — whom they shut out 24-0 in the second game of the season — to clinch the National Conference West title.

The Raiders can also lock up the AFC West title if they beat San Diego and Denver loses to Kansas City Monday night. Oakland has an eight-game winning streak going.

The Dolphins are still hurting at running back with Larry Csonka and Mercury Morris only questionable for their AFC East showdown with the Bills. Buffalo's O.J. Simpson, who left last week's game with a sprained ankle, is expected to start.

The Eagles, hosting St. Louis, were given a strong shot at challenging for the NFC East title but are struggling now, having lost four in a row.

The Redskins and Cowboys, who have spent the last three seasons slugging it out for first place in the division, are both trying to catch St. Louis this time around.

Washington, one game off the pace and one up on Dallas, will again leave until game time the decision of whether Sonny Jurgensen or Billy Kilmer starts at quarterback.

Like the Raiders, Minnesota can win its division — the NFC Central — with some help. The Vikings have to shut down John Hadl and beat Green Bay and need a loss by Detroit, which has beaten the Giants in the teams' last four meetings.

The Patriots, one game back of Miami and Buffalo after leading the division for most of the year, are hoping to duplicate their Oct. 13 24-0 shutout over the Jets, who came alive against the Giants behind Joe Namath's brilliant passing last week.

Rookie Tom Owen, who lost his starting job to Norm Snead, then replaced the injured veteran quarterback last week, is back in the starting lineup against the Bears. The Falcons and Colts are on three-game losing slides. Baltimore has never lost to Atlanta but is encountering quarterbacking problems with both Marty Domres, who played last week, and Bert Jones hurt.

NEW YORK (AP) — Yogi Berra has been with the New York Mets in the National League 10 years. But as a player with the Yankees, Yogi set numerous World Series records. Some of Berra's series marks include most series played (14), most times on a winning club (10) and most times at bat (259).

Sooners, Michigan Put Spots On Line

Oklahoma, out to retain its No. 1 ranking, and third-ranked Michigan, aspiring to the top, take on conference foes who can pack surprising punches Saturday.

The top-ranked Sooners bring their powerhouse to Kansas for a Big Eight Conference football battle with the Jayhawks, who have lost four consecutive games. But Kansas shocked

Buffalo Adjusts To Keep Winning

By The Associated Press

The Buffalo Braves have adjusted their game because of the absence of injured Ernie DiGregorio, their classy play-making guard, but the other teams in the National Basketball Association can't seem to adjust to the Braves.

Buffalo stretched its winning streak to six games and its Atlantic Division lead to 2½ games over defending league champion Boston, beating the Celtics 112-100 Thursday night.

"We're playing stronger team defense now because we realize we're not going to score as many points without Ernie," explained Buffalo Coach Jack Ramsay.

Last season, the Braves were the highest scoring team in the league, averaging 111.6 points per game, but they finished with only a 42-40 record because of their defense, which was the worst in the NBA, allowing 111.8 points per game. Now, they are 10-3.

"I haven't given the responsibility to any one player to take over for Ernie," said Ramsay. "The whole team is doing it."

The player who did it most for the Braves against the Celtics was Randy Smith. He fired in a game-high 27 points, including 17 in the last quarter. Jim McMillian added 20 points and Bob McAdoo, the league's leading scorer, contributed 18. Jo Jo White was high for Boston with 25.

In other NBA games, Portland downed Atlanta 104-92, New York topped Cleveland 94-89, and Houston beat Chicago 105-96.

In the American Basketball Association, New York topped Memphis 108-101, San Antonio outlasted Kentucky 102-100 in overtime, and St. Louis trounced Virginia 118-96.

John Johnson broke loose for 17 of his 19 points in the third quarter, sparking Portland's victory over Atlanta, but it might have been a costly

Texas A&M earlier this season with a superb performance by quarterback Scott McMichael.

Michigan is at home against Purdue in a Big Ten Conference clash. And it was Purdue that ruined Notre Dame's bid for a perfect season, 31-20.

Kansas' potent but sputtering attack is led by McMichael and runners Laverne Smith, second in Big Eight rushing, and Robert Miller, fourth in the league.

The Jayhawks will be missing only John Scanlan, a defensive lineman who underwent knee surgery Sunday.

The Sooners have one of the nation's best runners in elusive Joe Washington. Steve Davis will direct the explosive Sooner offense with Grant Burgett and Jimmy Littrell joining Washington in the backfield.

Kansas has not beaten the Sooners since 1964. Oklahoma goes into the game with a 4-0 mark in conference play and 80 against all foes, and owns the nation's longest winning streak among major colleges.

In other games involving The Associated Press Top Twenty this Saturday, second-ranked Alabama is at Miami of Florida, fourth-ranked Ohio State is at Iowa, 17th-ranked Pitt is at fifth-ranked Notre Dame, Kansas State is at sixth-ranked Nebraska, Georgia is at seventh-ranked Auburn, Washington is at eighth-ranked Southern California, ninth-ranked Florida is at Kentucky, and Rice is at 10th-ranked Texas A&M.

Ohio University is at 11th-ranked Penn State, 12th-ranked Miami of Ohio is at Cincinnati, Duke takes on 13th-ranked Maryland at Norfolk, Va., Memphis State is at 14th-ranked Houston, 15th-ranked Michigan State is at Indiana, 16th-ranked North Carolina State is at Arizona State, Colorado is at 18th-ranked Oklahoma State, Washington State is at 19th-ranked California, and Texas Tech, rated No. 20, is at Baylor.

Purdue is the only stumbling block left before the Michigan Wolverines travel to Columbus for the annual showdown clash with Ohio State. One thing the Wolverines aren't doing is looking ahead.

Senior Larry Burton, the world class sprinter at split end, has caught 33 Purdue passes for 571 yards while freshman flankers Paul Beery and Reggie Arnold have combined for 19 receptions and 294 yards. Sophomore quarterback Mark Vitali, who didn't start until the fifth game of the season, can become the seventh Boilermaker to throw for more than 1,000 yards in a season.

Ground-oriented Michigan travels on the legs of tailbacks Gordon Bell and Rob Lytle, who have run for 774 and 717 yards, respectively, and fullback Chuck Heater. Quarterback Dennis Franklin is much improved after being hobbled for several games with a sprained ankle. He has thrown for five touchdowns.

Saturday is the 26th meeting of the teams. Michigan has won the last five and dominates the series 18-7.

Miami of Florida was crushed by Notre Dame just three weeks ago. Now the Hurricanes take on Alabama, Notre Dame's Orange Bowl foe New Year's night.

Alabama, with a 9-0 record compared to Miami's 5-3 mark, has won the last seven games against the Hurricanes. And the Crimson Tide has shut out its last two opponents.

Pittsburgh will be under extra pressure when it meets Notre Dame this Saturday. The Panthers have been promised a bowl bid if they defeat the Irish.

Ohio State definitely will not be looking past Iowa at the upcoming Michigan game, despite the Hawkeye's poor record. Victories in their last two games could send the Ohio State Buckeyes to the Rose Bowl.

Nebraska should have a breather with Kansas State before the Cornhuskers meet in their annual "super bowl" clash with Oklahoma.

Southern California will have to watch out for looking ahead, since the Trojans have the big one with UCLA coming up next week.

Florida already has a Sugar Bowl date with Nebraska, but shouldn't be too extended against Kentucky, which is missing Sonny Collins, in a regionally-telecast game.

Texas A&M can move one step closer to the Southwest Conference title and a Cotton Bowl berth by getting past Rice.

Introducing the '75 Corollas.

Including the lowest priced car in America.*

Basically, our '75 Corollas are gas-pinching economy cars. But they come with more than basics. For instance, our SR-5 sports such items as AM/FM radio, tach, clock, radial tires and a 5-speed transmission. Fancy stuff, sure. But you don't pay a fancy price. Because it's all standard.

Still one of the world's great bargains.

As you can see, our other models are nicely endowed, too. Even our lowest priced car, the Corolla 2-Door Sedan, comes with power front disc brakes and white-wall tires. Like: Fully reclining bucket seats, So you see, it's not so much the price that makes it a bargain. It's what you get in the bargain. Two extras that don't cost extra. There are a couple of things we put in every '75 Corolla which we think you'll especially like. First off, there's extra room. Which should make you feel comfortable about driving a small car. Second off, there's extra care. We care that things fit and work right. In short, we build every Toyota exactly the way we'd like you to own one. With pride. Small car specialists for over 40 years

'Too Late' To Consider Postponing Ford Visit

By BARRY SHLACHTER
Associated Press Writer
TOKYO (AP) — Elder statesman Eisaku Sato said today it's too late to think of postponing President Ford's visit to Japan.

"We can't question whether the timing is good or bad," said the former prime minister and co-winner of the Nobel Peace Prize this year.

"Ford's visit is already scheduled. In dealing with the supreme leader in international affairs, to change the schedule would be like trying to stop a locomotive already traveling down the tracks. It's not as simple as changing the time for some ordinary person like me."

Since Ford's visit was scheduled for Nov. 18-22, the political future of Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka has been put in doubt by charges that he used his official position to increase his fortune.

Leftist opposition to the visit took a violent form Thursday for the first time with a fire-bomb attack on the American and Soviet embassies, but the anti-American demonstrations have been negligible compared with the violence that forced cancellation of President Eisenhower's visit in 1960.

"Tanaka still represents the Japanese people. Through him, the nation confers with Ford," Sato said in an interview.

He added that should the prime minister be forced out soon after the President leaves Japan next Friday, American leaders would be prepared for such a move and it would not hurt relations between the two governments.

"America is a reliable partner for us," Sato said. "Amiable relations will be maintained, I foresee."

Sato said Ford's visit — the first to Japan by an American President while in office — is a historic event and the government is determined to carry it through no matter what may occur.

Sato, now 73, was prime minister from 1964 to 1972. Tanaka was his minister of finance for seven months in 1964-65 and his minister of international trade and industry for the last year Sato was in office. Tanaka became prime minister when Sato retired.

River Said Clearing Up

WINTON, N.C. (AP)—A year-long study shows that the Chowan River has recovered from large algal blooms that choked the waterway in 1971 and 1972, according to a preliminary report on the study.

At a public meeting in Winton Thursday night, the state Department of Natural and Economic Resources also reported that the Chowan has one of the lowest bacteria counts of any major river in the state. Bacteria counts are considered when determining whether a river is safe for human use.

The department reported that algal blooms were reduced after a fertilizer plant was ordered to stop discharging wastes into the river.

While the blooms have been cut back, the department warned that agricultural runoff of fertilizers from fields or discharges of wastes from cities along the river could cause the problem to crop up again.

Checking On Thermostats

By The Associated Press
Two Tennessee television stations kept the heat on public agencies Thursday in the wake of Tennessee Valley Authority's call for saving electricity, including cutting back thermostats to 65 degrees.

At Chattanooga, WRBC-TV newsmen found the thermostat at the Chattanooga Power Board, the TVA power distributor, was set at 75 degrees. A power board official ordered the television crew to leave when he discovered what they were doing.

At TVA offices in Chattanooga, the WRBC-TV newsmen found eight thermostats set at 72 degrees and others ranging from 70 to 74.

In Nashville, WLAC-TV said the temperature in the office of Jack Eakins, TVA Nashville manager, was 72. At Nashville Electric Service, TVA's power distributor, the temperature was 74.

The previous day, WLAC-TV found the temperature in Mayor Beverly Briley's office at 74 and Gov. Winfield Dunn's office was measured at 70, although the thermostat was set at 65.

'Pleased' Over Marina's Ruling

SOUTHPORT, N.C. (AP)—A Spokesman for a firm developing Bald Head Island into a resort complex says his company is pleased with the findings of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on the latest suit by environmentalists opposed to the development.

"We are very pleased with the position of the court of appeals and are confident of a favorable ruling when the case is heard again," said John Messick of Southport, a spokesman for Carolina Cape Fear Corp.

The court of appeals remanded the case to Judge John D. Larkins, Jr., of U.S. District Court in eastern North Carolina.

The suit by the Conservation Council of North Carolina and the Sierra Club seeks to ban construction of a marina on Bald Head Island, located in the mouth of the Cape Fear River.

Messick said the marina is a key part of plans for developing the island as a resort center.

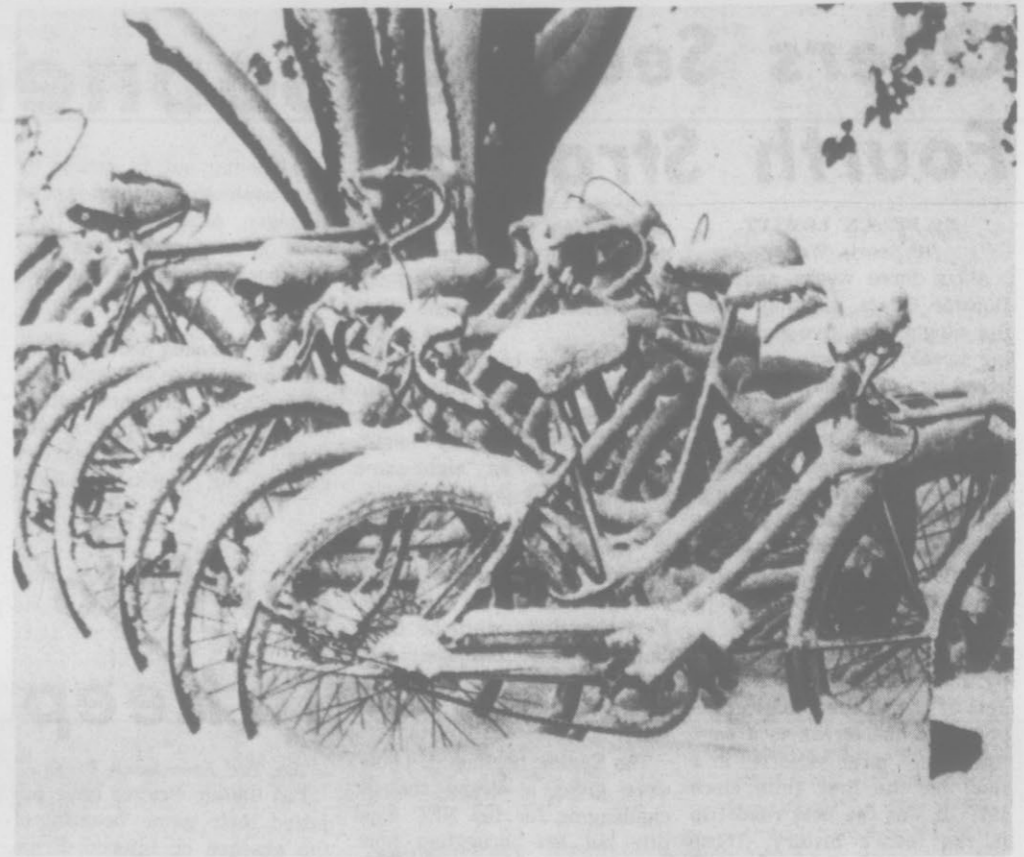

The environmentalists contend the Army Corps of Engineers violated federal law in approving a permit for the marina without an environmental impact statement.

In July, Judge Larkins denied requests for an injunction against marina construction, but environmentalists were successful in obtaining a review of that decision before the appeals court in Richmond, Va.

The appeals court held that the corporation, "in its plans, had not been wholly oblivious to environmental concerns. In fact, it had made numerous concessions in the construction plans, evidencing its concerns in this regard, including strict erosion controls, limitations on dredge-spoil fill areas, guarantees to leave 400 acres of highland marine forest in its natural state, and, not least of all, a grant by quick claim of 9,000 acres of marshes and lowlands to the state of North Carolina."

Messick said the Carolina Cape Fear Corp. is confident of a favorable ruling when Larkins hears the case again.

Twelve Injured In Trailway Accident

NORTH AUGUSTA, S. C. (AP)—Twelve persons were injured today when a Trailways bus struck a tree and knocked over a power pole in North Augusta.

The injured were taken in four ambulances to University Hospital in Augusta, Ga., just across the Savannah River from North Augusta. Mark Daniels of the Belvedere-North Augusta Rescue Squad, said only two passengers and the bus driver appeared to be seriously injured. About 20 to 25 passengers were aboard the bus.

Daniels said one woman had a back injury and another suffered severe facial lacerations. He said the driver had a compound fracture of the right leg and possibly a broken arm.

The driver was pinned in the bus for about 20 minutes before rescue workers could free him.

None of the injured were immediately identified. The accident occurred about 7:15 a. m. on Georgia Avenue inside the North Augusta city limits. The bus was headed for Augusta.

Daniel called the accident scene "a pretty massive mess."

An overheated engine means less economy in operating the family car. Overheating causes increased gas consumption and hastens deterioration of engine oil.

Demo Caucus Is Called Dec. 6

KANNAPOLIS, N.C. (AP)—Dwight Quinn, the senior Democrat in the North Carolina House, has called a party caucus for Dec. 6 to select nominees for speaker, speaker pro tem and clerk.

Quinn sent letters to all House Democrats asking them to gather in the legislative building in Raleigh.

Although the new officers will not be elected until the House convenes in January, nominees from the Democratic caucus are virtually assured of election since their party holds a majority.

Rep. James Green of Bladen is unopposed for the nomination to be speaker.

Couple Died In Asheville Fire

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Traveling salesman Bill Price and his wife died in a fire which destroyed their $45,000 house in Asheville early today.

Neighbors said there had been four or five small fires in the house in the last few years.

Firemen said the one today started in the kitchen. The cause was not immediately determined.

Price and his wife were the only occupants besides their dog, who also perished.

The Prices were in their 50s. The house was in the Lakeview Park section of north Asheville.

Price worked for an Asheville hardware concern.

The Worry Clinic A Future Wife Is Very Special

Lena won her husband by refusing to surrender to his demand for an illicit weekend together at a motel. Men pick wives who have moral spunk and idealism though they may play around with concubines!

By George W. Crane
Ph.D., M.D.
CASE B-693: Lena R., aged 20,

what he was saying. "So I asked him if he was positive about his feelings. "He nodded and then pulled a little jewel box out of his pocket, telling me to open it. "It was a lovely diamond engagement ring. "He said he had never offered a ring to any girl before, but if I would be his wife, he'd put it on my finger at that moment and follow it up with a wedding band after our graduation. "Well, Dr. Crane, I was so choked with happy tears that I could only nod assent, so he slipped the ring on my finger and then he kissed me. "But if I hadn't read your frequent warning that men prefer to select wives from girls with spunk and religious idealism, I'd probably have ruined my chance for true happiness."

Physical Handicaps Do Not Make Man A Loser

By MARK LOWE
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Pete Strudwick was born without feet, no right hand and three fingers missing from his left hand. Now 44 and a veteran of enough marathon running miles to have taken him from Anchorage, Alaska, to Washington, D.C., Strudwick wants to take his "stumps," as he calls his footless extremities, over the rough terrain of 19,566-foot high Kilimanjaro in Africa. "I've got my sights set on it," said the hardy looking Strudwick, who wears special orlon socks covered with silicone rubber on the bottom when he runs. "A little 8-year-old girl has gone over that mountain. Blind black people have gone over it. I'd like to try. I'd like to throw a flag up on it for all the guys who think they're losers and aren't." Strudwick doesn't consider himself a loser. His lower extremities end after his ankles in useless paddings of skin. His upper limbs betray themselves in something as simple as a handshake. But he's certainly not helpless. And he doesn't live like it. "Running is really what's keeping me alive right now," said the La Palma, Calif., junior high school math teacher. "I have all kinds of birth defects. My spine is twisted and bent and one leg is longer than the other. "But if I don't run I fall apart. I've got to work just to be normal." The 5-foot-10 Strudwick, whose mother had measles when she was pregnant with him, isn't content to run 40 to 50 miles a week, as he does in practice alone. He runs up and down mountains and against some of the best long distance competitors around in grueling marathons that take hours to complete. The 140-pound athlete, who lettered on his high school football team as a guard, doesn't delude himself, though. He can't. He always finishes last. "I always get my pants beaten off in races," Strudwick said. "But you need some kind of challenge in life. There are very few things in life where you can really go all out. "I find as long as I'm going to have to face problems in life, I may as well meet them head on. Running makes me proud. It kind of makes up. I suspect part of it is defensive. Ever since I was a little kid I've had people put me on the spot because I look freaky. "I got a big kick out of the other runners and they get a big kick out of me." Strudwick, who has run the 27-mile Pikes Peak Marathon in Colorado three times, competed in his first long distance race, the 26 miles long Palos Verdes Marathon, at the age of 39. "I told myself if I couldn't run it, I was going to walk it," said Strudwick, the son of a British army major. "But I was going to get through that distance. I was in kind of a daze when I crossed the finish line after 5:45 or something ridiculous like that. But it's become my way of life ever since. "I was real excited. The guy who was supposed to win came in third and told me after the race he wanted me to have his third-place trophy. "I was so intoxicated with even getting through the thing, I almost took it. But I caught myself. I told him I'd rather have his hand. He earned the trophy because he was the one who finished third." Strudwick also climbs mountains, scuba dives, flies airplanes, has hitchhiked across the country and was once a shrimper in Florida. But despite not living by the rules that would seem to govern the handicapped, Strudwick believes in standards. His own. "I don't like situations where rules aren't stated," he said. "That's one of the reasons I like sports. I'm a teacher, a parent and a married person and that requires certain codes

Opening lead: Queen of ♠.

Communication is the key to successful play in many instances. South forgot to establish liaison between his hand and dummy, and so went down in a contract that should have been made.

Since his partner was a passed hand, South felt it more important to describe the strength and balanced nature of his hand than to worry about the fact that his club suit was unstopped, so he elected to open one no trump. North checked on his partner's major holdings by employing the Stayman convention, and in keeping with the theory of the method's originator, South showed his spade suit first. North had just enough to raise directly to game.

West led the queen of hearts, and East's nine smacked of a singleton. To eliminate possible ruffs, declarer won the king of hearts, cashed the ace and king of spades and tried the diamond finesse. East won the king, cashed the jack of spades and exited with a diamond. Declarer had two losing hearts and only one trump in dummy to ruff with, so he eventually lost a trick in each suit for down one.

Declarer was a trifle hasty in drawing trumps. Since East would be ruffing in front of the closed hand, he would in effect be ruffing losing hearts, so declarer should first have established lines of communication. At trick two, South should take the diamond finesse, which loses to East. A diamond return to dummy's ace is as good as any. Declarer then crosses to his hand with the trump king and leads a club, ducking in dummy. Now the defenders are helpless.

Assume East returns a club. Declarer wins in dummy, draws a second round of trumps, and cashes the queen of diamonds, discarding a heart from the table. Now he leads the king of hearts. No matter what East does, declarer can ruff two hearts in dummy, using club ruffs as re-entries to his hand.

"But soon wanted me to give in to him and have an illicit affair. "He asked me to go to a motel one weekend and stay with him, as man and wife, for he said all the girls did such things nowadays. "Well, I was shocked and brokenhearted, for I really loved him truly. "But I told him I was then the exception to his rule. "And I said I was disappointed in him for I had thought he wasn't like the usual man in being interested only in sex. "Well, I was in tears at that point, so I left him and ran into the dormitory. "And I felt that all my idealistic dreams had crashed around my head, so I cried myself to sleep. "He didn't come back for more dates until several weeks later, when he telephoned, asking me out for dinner. "By this time, I had been able to pick up the pieces of my shattered dreams, so I could smile and affect a gay mood I didn't feel. "During the meal, he was more quiet than usual, so I tried to keep conversation flowing. "And as we strolled across the campus on the way to my dormitory, he suggested we sit down and watch the moon out over Lake Michigan. "Then he suddenly blurted out an apology, saying he was sorry about what he had said to me the night we quarreled. "And he told me he loved me with all his heart, for he now realized he couldn't really care for any girl unless he respected her. "Then he proposed to me, though I almost feared to believe what he was saying. "So I asked him if he was positive about his feelings. "He nodded and then pulled a little jewel box out of his pocket, telling me to open it. "It was a lovely diamond engagement ring. "He said he had never offered a ring to any girl before, but if I would be his wife, he'd put it on my finger at that moment and follow it up with a wedding band after our graduation. "But if I hadn't read your frequent warning that men prefer to select wives from girls with spunk and religious idealism, I'd probably have ruined my chance for true happiness."

Wives Are Special
Repeatedly I have warned you unmarried girls that men may play around with several good time girls, yet desert them when it comes time for marriage. For true love involves respect and idealism, in addition to physical magnetism or erotic charisma. Men may consort with women of loose morals and even protest their love in order to make a girl surrender to their sexual demands. Yet they may have no real love for her, for men want wives with moral spunk and idealism!

So send for my "Tests for Sweethearts," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents. (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Services To Open Monday
"Enthusiasm is contagious" will be the theme of services to be held Monday through Thursday at the First Free Will Baptist Church. Evangelist for the week will be the Rev. T. O. Terry of New Bern. A native of Cordova, Ala., the Rev. Terry is a graduate of Free Will Baptist Bible College, Nashville, Tenn. He has held pastorates in Tennessee, North Carolina and Virginia. He has done extensive evangelistic work in the southeastern states and is presently serving as chaplain at the Craven County Hospital, New Bern. Music will be held each night featuring the Day Star Singers of Farmville, the Gospel Chargers and Hines Cousins of Winterville, the King's Road Crusaders and Lester Burroughs of Greenville. Services will begin each evening at 7:30. Youth Night will be held Tuesday followed by Family Night Wednesday. A fellowship hour will be held following the Thursday evening service. The pastor, Rev. Buddy Sasser, invites the public to attend.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, NOV. 16, 1974

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening for you to accept an invitation to be with persons who interest you the most. You have much prophetic insight now so listen to what they have to suggest. They can be most helpful to you and to your future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A new acquaintance can be of assistance to you at this time, so cultivate this relationship. Avoid one who is a troublemaker.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Listen to the voice of your intuition since it can be helpful in solving any problems you may have. Relax at home this evening.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) contact those with whom you want to reach a better accord and get the right results. Use your Gemini charm to your advantage.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be sure of the motives behind any projects you enter into today. Avoid one who has an eye on your assets.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make the appointments early for the recreation you want to have later in the day. Show devoted attention to family members.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A good day to discuss mutual aims with persons in the privacy of your home. Use more diplomacy and increase harmony at home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Ideal day to visit persons who can give you ideas and the data you need. Later engage in favorite hobbies with friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A good day to expand in business so that you have more abundance in the future. Listen carefully to advice of monetary expert.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Go to good friends who can give you ideas on how to acquire more of the world's goods. Help them with their aims, too.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Analyze your present position and make sure you know how to progress further and rightly. Take it easy tonight and relax.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Being your own gregarious self is wise today. Attend social functions to which you are invited. Take health treatments.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Show your talents to bigwigs and gain their backing. Avoid one who is jealous of you and could do you harm. Be logical.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have a strong desire to get ahead from the earliest age, as well as to help others do the same, so be sure to provide a good education. You could easily have a famous person and one who will be a boon to humanity. Any bluntness should be curbed early. A fine person in this chart. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

'Night Stalker' Earns A Chance

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — If you tune to ABC-TV tonight at 10 p.m., an hour earlier in some areas, you'll see a small, battered hat moving briskly around Chicago. Beneath the hat is actor Darren McGavin. He plays Carl Kolchak, a brash, disheveled reporter working for a Chicago wire service in a series called "The Night Stalker." He specializes, to his boss's dismay, in bizarre stories.

While the ratings say this show wasn't watched by many viewers, it still escaped cancellation this week when ABC announced its midseason program changes. Which is good fortune, indeed.

"Night Stalker" has a lot of nerve and rancid charm and should be seen at least once by everyone. Tonight is as good a night as any.

Tonight's saga concerns a state Senate candidate whom we soon learn is young, terrifyingly ambitious, wants to be president and has sold his soul to the devil for quick political success at any cost.

The deal lets him transform himself into a vicious dog, making his race the first in which voters could throw the candidate a bone.

Kolchak starts sniffing all this out while puzzling over the mysterious deaths of key opposition figures and the demise of the candidate's campaign manager. The last gets him in a 40-floor elevator crash in which the only survivor is a vicious dog.

Kolchak's interest heightens when the candidate fails to show up at a public TV station to debate the incumbent. The station cancels the debate and announces that "Musical Holiday," starring Alice Faye and John Payne, will be shown instead.

He finally tracks down the rascal at home that evening, but gets no interview. He instead gets attacked by a vicious dog, which rips the coat pocket of his rumpled drip-dry suit.

His crusty bureau chief (Simon Oakland) dismisses Kolchak's theory that the potential senator is owned and operated by the devil.

But the rascal, Carl cries in frustration, "is evil incarnate and he's going to go all the way to the White House!" He later mutters, "That's the trouble with this country. Nobody cares."

Fortunately, the republic is saved by this probing reporter, but you'll have to watch tonight's show to find out how.

BUDGET CRISIS

NEW YORK (UPD) — The Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., faced with a severe budget crisis, has notified 41 persons on the staff of church agencies that their jobs are being phased out and announced that another 23 positions, now vacant, will not be filled.

Chief Of Staff Might Not Lose Job For Talk

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford says Gen. George S. Brown will remain as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff despite Brown's "one mistake" in remarks about Jewish influence.

But some administration officials say they believe Brown still could be in jeopardy if congressional attacks on the general grow significantly and persist when the House and Senate return next week.

Opinion among White House staff members is said to be mixed on whether Brown should go. But Brown has the support of Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger, although Schlesinger deprecates what Brown said in a meeting at Duke University last month.

Asked about Brown's status at a news conference in Phoenix, Ariz., Thursday night, Ford noted that "I have publicly disavowed the comments made by Gen. Brown."

The President also noted that he had called Brown to his White House office early Thursday and "indicated to him very directly my strong feelings" on the matter, and that Brown had publicly apologized for his remarks.

But, said Ford, "I have no intention of asking Gen. Brown to resign. He has been an excellent chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff."

"He is going to continue as chairman," Ford said. "He is a fine officer and he's done a good job, and I don't think he should be fired for that one mistake."

Senior officers interviewed in the Pentagon deplored Brown's statements about Jews.

One general called the episode "appalling." Another general, concerned about what he anticipates as an increasingly tough road for the defense budget on Capitol Hill, said "the last thing we need is Archie Bunkerism."

Officers who have known Brown for years said they had never heard him utter any adverse sentiments about Jews. "He's just plain not anti-Semitic," said one Air Force general.

Bosley Was On Panels

GRIFTON—Mayor David E. Bosley of Grifton was one of nine speakers participating on three panels at the fourth annual meeting of the North Carolina Land Use Congress, Inc., in Greensboro recently.

Other panelists included former North Carolina governor, Robert W. Scott; Robert Leak of the Division of Economic Development, Department of Natural and Economic Resources; Dr. Charles E. Linder of the Institute of Government at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill; and William F. Cadell, deputy secretary of Transportation.

James Hunt, Lieutenant Governor of North Carolina, and Dr. Marion Clawson of Resources for the Future, were the luncheon speakers for the two-day meeting.

The theme of the meeting was "North Carolina's Development Policies," and Mayor Bosley participated on the panel on "New Perspectives on Growth." He presented a paper which traced the failure of urban renewal programs in terms of providing new housing units in sufficient quantity to accommodate the people displaced by razed buildings. He stated that land use and growth are out of control and do not respond to the currently-held theories of treating the problem.

Guess What! Robert Howard & John House of Branch's Trading Post & Oil Company have invented a new game called "Gas Pump Bingo." Come on by and visit Robert and John from now thru Christmas and let them explain how to play Gas Pump Bingo. Why, if you are one of the lucky winners you can take home a nice turkey for the holidays. Also while you are there, ask Big Robert about the many deals he can give you on all size tires—to fit all size cars. Yes, Robert and the boys are ready to play bingo and wheel and deal. So come on by and give them a try. They are located approximately 1 mile from Greenville on Washington Hwy. 264.

Bike-A-Thon To Start Diabetes Week

A KISS FOR THE BRIDE—RCA Chairman Robert Sarnoff kisses his new bride, Metropolitan opera star Anna Moffo, following their marriage Thursday in Sarnoff's Manhattan Home. (AP Wirephoto)

The Eastern N.C. Diabetes Association will open Diabetes Week here with a Bike-A-Thon here Sunday, and local Key Clubs, Keywanettes, and local merchants are helping out. These groups are providing volunteers, equipment, and supplies to aid the project. Bike-A-Thon riders are lining up sponsors who pledge a certain donation for each mile ridden by the sponsored cyclist. All donations are tax-deductible and go to aid the American Diabetes Association of N.C. Bike-A-Thon hours will be from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Riders in each city who collect the most money will receive special awards from the American Diabetes Association of North Carolina. Entry forms are available from participating merchants,

High School Key Clubbers and Keywanettes. Persons wishing to ride or sponsor a rider should contact Clyde Jackson, 758-4208 after 6 p.m., if not able to contact a Key or Keywanette Club member. Bike-A-Thon riders may start at any of several checkpoints along the 20.5 mile route. These will be manned from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday. They are at King's Department Store, at Greensprings Park, at the main Greenville Post Office, at the junction of Highway 30 and 264, and at the Junction of Highway 264 and State Road 1203. Routes will be patrolled by volunteers to aid in traffic control and give assistance to riders.

The Health Department is putting special emphasis on diabetes detection, and is offering free tests Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from 8 to 4:30. Testing also will be done in the satellite clinics from 10 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 3 p.m. These are held in Farmville Tuesday, in Bethel Wednesday, in Ayden Thursday, and in Grimesland Friday. The Association urges the public to take advantage of this service. Diabetes Association President Mrs. Ann Watson said. She also said any person wishing to learn more about how to adapt ones diet to ones needs as a diabetic is invited to the Association "Thanksgiving Dinner" to be held at Moyewood Center Thursday at 6 p.m.

Interviewers To Survey County

Survey Research Center interviewers in Pitt County will be asking questions about such current subjects as inflation, the cost of living and perceptions and attitudes towards the political parties and their congressional candidates during the next few weeks. The University of Michigan political scientists will be conducting a survey of the attitudes, opinions and voting preferences of United States citizens in the Pitt County area and throughout the United States. This is the 12th in a series of presidential and congressional election studies conducted since 1948 by the Survey Research Center. Conducting the interviews in Pitt County will be Clara Shackell and Virginia Lansche.

U.S. Dollar At New Low

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP)—The U.S. dollar hit a new low today on Swiss money markets as West Germany's refusal to hold the value of the mark down continued to trigger shock waves. Shortly before noon, the dollar was bringing only 2.6785 Swiss francs, well below the previous record low of 2.70 set July 9, 1973.

Gold, meanwhile, was selling at $189 an ounce on the Zurich bullion market, a dollar above Thursday's closing but two dollars under the record $191 an ounce reached at one point in London on Thursday.

The dollar began dropping on European markets after West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt said in a statement Wednesday night that he is in favor of letting the value of the mark increase. He said this would help reduce his country's big foreign trade surplus and assist other members of the European Common Market with balance-of-payments problems.

Building Plant At Ansonville

WADESBORO, N.C. (AP)—Man-made filament yarn plants are closing because of lowered demand, but a new one will be built near here.

Anson County, which two weeks ago lost a hosiery plant employing 300, got good news Thursday: a new fibers plant will hire 100 workers. The county is 40 miles east of Charlotte and in lower North Carolina, near the South Carolina line.

The $7 million plant is being built in Ansonville, population 1,500, by Meyers Fibers Inc. That's a subsidiary of Clarence L. Myers & Co. of Willow Grove, Pa.

The plant will process polyester material into filament yarn for Meyers Yarns Inc., a yarn-texturing plant on an adjoining site which employs 128. Meyers had the new plant on the drawing board 18 months ago, before hard times hit the industry. "We couldn't back out now if we wanted to," said Darwin D. Godwin, vice president in charge of the new operation. "But we wouldn't anyway. I've heard no pessimism from the owners. They've been in this business a long time, and they are used to ups and downs."

Meyers also has two plants in Pennsylvania.

The yarns produced and textured by its plants go into men's and women's knit, double-knit and woven outer garments.

Three weeks ago, Burlington Industries announced it would close its Ballet hosiery plant in Wadesboro, population 4,000. Ballet workers are gradually being released, with operations scheduled to stop in February.

Man Charged In Fatal Beating

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP)—James Stokes Jr., 26, of Macon, Ga., has been charged with murder in a fatal beating at a labor camp, authorities report.

Stokes was arrested after the body of William Ezra Corn, 50, of Hendersonville and Wellford, S.C., was found Wednesday at the Clear Creek camp near Hendersonville.

Sheriff Albert Jackson said Corn had been beaten on the head and shoulders. No reason was given.

Judge Dismisses Punitive Suit

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A judge has dismissed part of a suit of the operator of a legal abortion clinic against Presbyterian Hospital of Charlotte. But he has let another part stand.

Dr. Harold Hoke had sued for $500,000 in punitive damages and $100,000 in actual damages.

He claims that because his application for staff privileges at Presbyterian was delayed for six months, he suffered mentally and financially. The staff rights, which he now has obtained, enable him to admit patients for surgery if necessary.

CYCLISTS . . . Mrs. Ann Watson, president of the Eastern N. C. Diabetes Association, and Duane Maxwell, grand marshal of the Bike-a-thon to be held Sunday, urge the public to take part either as a rider or a sponsor. With Duane is his dog, Chopper. (Reflector Staff Photo).

More Banks In N.C. Reduce Prime Rate

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—North Carolina's second and third largest banks are dropping their prime interest rates from 11 per cent to 10½ per cent.

The change by North Carolina National Bank and First Union National Bank is effective Monday.

NCNB based its action on continued decline in the cost of short-term money, some abatement in loan demand and the Federal Reserve Board's decision to lower the amount of funds a bank must keep in reserve, said Kenneth Clark, vice president and director of communications.

NCNB is the state's second largest bank, ranking behind Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. Wachovia last week dropped its rate from 11 to 10¾ per cent. First Union spokesman Hugh Flaherty said, "We looked at the market and just decided it was in the best interests of the bank and its customers" to lower the rate.

The prime interest rate is the rate banks charge their largest and most creditworthy corporate customers.

First Citizens Bank and Trust Co. spokesman Harry J. Nicholas said his firm is considering lowering its prime rate from 10¾ to 10½ per cent.

MINERS' MUSEUM

SPRINGHILL, Nova Scotia (UPI)—Former miners act as underground tour guides at the Springhill Miners' Museum. Visitors are escorted down into the mine, which stopped operating in 1970 after 140 years, swing a pick at the coalface and take the coal home as a souvenir. There are exhibits and other mementos in the museum.

Girl, Two Men Are Sentenced

CONCORD, N.C. (AP)—A 15-year-old girl and two men, all from Charlotte, have been given prison terms for Concord's biggest jewelry robbery.

The three pleaded guilty Thursday to charges of common-law robbery in the $36,000 holdup of Suther's jewelry store. Owners Joe and Nellie Suther testified that a shotgun was held on them Sept. 3, they were tied up, and the jewel cases were rifled. Mrs. Suther said diamond rings were ripped from her fingers.

Phyllis Lindsey got six to eight years. Rudy Caldwell got 10 years and Otis Marvin Brazil eight years.

Police have recovered six rings. Two men are still being sought in the robbery.

Teacher Sues Over Dismissal

CHARLOTTE (AP) A teacher fired last month for alleged physical abuse of her handicapped students at Billingsville Elementary School in Charlotte has filed a suit for $100,000 damages.

The teacher, Leona Baxter, claims her dismissal came after an unfair and unconstitutional hearing by the Charlotte and Mecklenburg County school board.

She is seeking damages from the board and reinstatement with back pay.

TERMITES OR ANTS?

Don't be half sure. Call a professional pest control operator for an inspection today. The potential damage to property from termites can exceed the damage from tornadoes, hurricanes and fire. This is why termite protection is as important as a homeowner's insurance policy.
